Nigerian Seeks 'New Ideas' on Visit Here

By Bruce Plaxton

Vincent Chukwuemeka Ike, (pronounced eekay) deputy registrar for the University of Nigeria, is now living on the MSUO campus in order to familiarize himself with the American system of higher education

"When the University of Nigeria was founded about two years ago following independence, the Nigerian education system was, and for that matter still is, basically British and the authorities wanted to look elsewhere, including the United States, for new ideas," Ike replied when asked why he was in the United States.

Although both England and the United States speak the same language, there are many differences in the two educational systems and "there was a feeling that Nigeria could adapt the standards and the methods of the American system to her particular conditions," Ike said.

MSUO's Meadow Brook Theatre Guild will hold its first annual barn wash in the Belgian barn at 1 p.m., tomorrow.

Purpose of the barn wash is to prepare the walls of the theatre section for painting.

The Belgian Barn is located adjacent to the Science building at the south end of campus.

"We urge all students to attend this event. Incoming freshman interested in drama are also invited," Doug Turek, Guild president said.

"Music to wash barns by, tools to wash with and refreshments will be provided the barn washers," Turek said.

Hucker Attends Conference

Charles O. Hucker, professor of history and chairman of the Asian studies committee at Michigan State University Oakland, last weekend attended a national conference on "Studies of Chinese Civilization." The conference, held in New York June 1 and 2, was sponsored jointly by the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Sciences Research Council.

"It was very useful in that it surveyed the existing studies of Chinese civilization in this country and looked at how these and other studies could (Continued on Page 2)

Editor Denied Admission To Second Council Meeting

The editor of the Oakland Observer was denied admission Tuesday night to the second meeting of the Student-Faculty University Council after he refused to agree to a consultation with Dean of Students Duncan Sells after every meeting.

The Council met in combined session with the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, an Academic Senate committee.

Observer editor Bill Hoke was asked by Sells before Tuesday night's meeting to go

Mary Ann Cusack

Dr. Cusack To U of M

Dr. Mary Ann Cusack, assistant dean of students, has resigned her post to accept a position at the University of Michigan.

Mrs. Cusack will be assistant director of university relations and in charge of special projects.

The university relations office is in charge of news releases, campus radio and television productions, and all other university publications.

"I'll spend part of my first year traveling and doing research," Mrs. Cusack explained.

Mrs. Cusack who has been at MSUO "since before its doors opened," was assistant to Loren Pope, and was an English instructor before being named assistant dean of students.

"Most of all I'll miss the close relationship with students faculty and staff. It's been an honor and a valuable experience to have been a part of the beginning of MSUO.

"I honestly believe that the kind of education students are getting at MSUO is the best. This I firmly believe. The graduate school at the University of Michigan is a continuation of this high quality of education," Mrs. Cusack said.

Mrs. Cusack, who helped plan the new dorm system here, feels that "the dorm should be a place to develop whole persons. I think next year we can do much more."

Mrs. Cusack will assume her new duties August 1.

into the hallway to talk. Hoke then left the room to talk with Sells.

Sells asked Hoke:

"Are you willing to accept the compromise?" Sells was referring to his proposed discussion following each session.

MSUO to Have Drama School

William Merrill Adeline Hirschfeld, Elizabeth Appleton, and William Merrill Jr., will direct the first summer Theatre School at MSUO.

Sponsored by MSUO's Division of Continuing Education, the six-week school will produce a three act comedy as well as train students and young adults in the fields of acting, modern dance, and technical theatre producton.

Merrill, formerly producerdirector and owner of Will-O-Way Playhouse in Bloomfield Hills, has wide theatrical experience.

Mrs. Hirschfeld, of Wayne State University, will teach speech and dramatics. She is a professional actress of stage, television, and film. She is currently instructing drama teachers at Wayne.

Mrs. Elizabeth Appleton,

Mrs. Elizabeth Appleton, wife of Dr. Sheldon Appleton, assistant profesor of political science, will teach modern dance. She formerly taught modern dance at the University of Minnesota and George Washington University.

William Merrill Jr., is currently studying technical theatre production at the State University of Iowa.

Each instructor will have one two-hour class period a week. William Merrill will have two classes each week for rehearsal of the comedy which will be selected after the final enrollment figures are known.

Journey To Stratford

MSUO students now have an opportunity to attend outstanding Shakespearean performances.

Stratford, Ontario, home of the famed Stratford Shakespearean Festival, is only a four hours drive from the MSUO campus. Macbeth, The Tempest, and Taming of the Shrew are being presented this season in the Festival's completely equipped theatre.

Christopher Plumber, Bruno Gerussi, Kate Reid, Tony Van-Bridge, Douglas Campbell and other noted artist will star in the summer series.

Students who wish to attend these fine performances should stop at the Observer office, 109 NFH, or call university extension 2221. If the demand warrents it, the Observer will try to arrange student group rates and provide transportation.

"No, I am not," Hoke said. Hoke than asked Sells if this meant he could not attend the meeting.

"Yes," Sells said.

Council member Neil Smith was appointed temporary press chairman at the meeting.

Smith is to write stories of each SFUC meeting and submit them to a yet unnamed person to be checked for accuracy.

The Observer then is to receive a news release from SFUC.

Smith released the following statement to the Observer after Tuesday's meeting:

"Press releases will be made available to the Oakland Observer to facilitate communications to the student body."

Sells, in his statement of purpose given to the Observer three weeks ago, said:

"The student representatives on this council will meet next week to begin discussion on (Continued on Page 7)

1962 BOH Features Hunt Fair

A country fair, sponsored by the MSUO Foundation Scholarship Committee, will be the setting for a new innovation at this year's Detroit Horse Show.

Presented at the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club, the annual event, June 26 - July 1, will include a Hunt Fair, directed by the Scholarship Committee.

Although this array of booths, entertainment, and games has been an integral part of other large horse shows, this is the first time one has been included in the Detroit area.

Highlights of the fair will be pony rides, a Trinkets and Treasures booth, children's games and a tea room staffed by Scholarship Committee members, university personnel, and community volunteers.

In addition, booths will be provided by area shops including: Julie, Inc., Saks Fifth Avenue, Danish Pastry Shop, Village Bookshop, Miner's, Games Imported, Gwynn's, Rare Books and many others.

Co-chairmen for the Hunt Fair are Mrs. L. L. Colbert and Mrs. A. C. Girard of Bloomfield Hills.

Proceeds will be given to the MSUO Foundation Scholarship Committee, which now contributes more than 135 scholarshps to MSUO students,

Mrs. June Matthews, Foundation executive secretary, pointed out that, although community groups such as the Village Woman's Club and the Pontiac Area Junior Chamber of Commerce are joining the effort to raise money for this project, student help is "really needed."

Any students wishing to help sell tickets, programs, food, or perform other tasks for the Hunt Fair should stop in the Foundation office, 102 NFH or call university extension 2111.

We Shall Not Be Censored

The freedom of your press has been challenged.

We have met the challenge.

MSUO students have the right to know what is being said about them.

A meeting of students "discussing undergraduate needs at MSUO," should be covered by the campus newspaper.

The Oakland Observer has the responsibility to tell students what is said about them.

We shall not be censored.

Points not yet made clear to the Observer are:

- how communication can be "facilitated" when two or more people who have no journalistic training write so-called factual news releases of what transpired at a meeting, while people who have the responsibility and the ability to provide coverage are denied admittance to the meeting.
- how three people on the committee one a co-chairman defend their positions on a Student-Faculty University Council when in fact they are not students at MSUO.
- how the SFUC is so suddenly suddenly for the menbers, at least allied with the Academic Senate.

We have told and shall continue to tell students on this campus what is being said about them and what is being planned for them.

We shall not be censored.

Despite statements accusing the Oakland Observer of irresponsibility, inaccuracy, and bad taste in its reporting, the Oakland Observer has yet to receive a list of specifics.

We are waiting. Our letters columns are open to everyone. Our position is clear and honest:

The Oakland Observer, the newspaper of this community, has a responsibility to keep its citizens informed and aware — as does any newspaper in any community.

We need no further justification.

And we need no one's permission.

Scales Get Big Treatment: Cramer

By Bill Williamson

"I treat everything from infected toenails to the flu," said Mrs. Margaret Cramer, university nurse.

Among nurse Cramer's many duties are to treat anything she is equipped to handle and to decide which cases should be referred to the hospital.

Nurse Cramer has been in charge of the polio drives in the spring and of the blood bank programs.

"We've had two successful blood banks and two successful polio drives," she said.

"September, October and March are my busiest months. During the year there are an average of 300 students and from 50-75 faculty members a month in the clinic," she said.

"The busiest time of day is from 8 to 10 p.m. and from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. I distribute about 200 asprins each month, but the rate goes up as final exams begin," nurse Cramer said

"The most popular item in the health center is the scale! Many students check their weight regularly.

"I also check eyes, blood pressure, give allergy and vitamin shots and counsel students on health matters. I have literature available on health, nutrition and dieting."

"MSUO students have always been very polite and cooperative and I've enjoyed working with them. I think the general health of the students is good." she said.

Nurse Cramer has worked at St. Mary's Hospital in Detroit, and has set up clinics for General Motors and Chrysler Corporation.

Survey

Fifteen per cent of the Michigan residents can name only one college in the state, or none, a survey of "The Public's Picture of Higher Educatilon in the State of Michigan" revealed recently.

According to the report, released by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, more than one-third of the people interviewed could name no more than three of the nine state and 40 private colleges and universities.

Less than two-thirds of the adults citizens who could name as many as six Michigan colleges were aware that enrollment pressures were predicted to mount to crisis proportions with the next ten years. The enrollment problem has been the subject of a state-wide information program,

Letters to the Editor:

"From Hogwash To Barnwash"

To the Editor:

The students and faculty of MSUO are invited to don their old clothes and turn out this Saturday for the social function of the year: MSUO's "First annual Barnwash." The event, which has been two years in planning, will be held in the Belgian Barn at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

The background of the event is a well-known story to most of the students on campus. It began two years ago with a group of students who conceived the idea of saving one of the campus barns for conversion into a small experimental theatre of the summer stock variety.

Many people scoffed at the proposal as idealistic, dreamy, or in more colloquial, "A lot of hogwash." For two years the idea was nursed while the barns lay dormant but intact.

Early this year, a group of students joined together to form the Meadow Brook Theatre Guild and produced the first full stage production on campus. The success of the Theatre Guild and its production of "Alice in Wonderland" brought several results. It showed the very definite need for theatre facilities on campus if any further dramatic ventures were to be undertaken. And it gave the cautious administration some evidence that with a little leadership and encouragement the students would undertake a project of this type and see it through to a successful end.

At this point the plans went from the talking to the paper stage. Architects were contacted to begin drawing up plans and estimates for the conversion. These must be approved by the Board of Trustees before any actual reconstruction work can be begun.

In the meantime, two sections of the proposed building, the Belgian Barn, were turned over to the Theatre Guild for office space and scenery construction and storage. A cement floor was poured in the workshop area. This much has been done by the university. The rest has been left in the hands of the students. It s their turn to show just how much they want this theatre and how mhch work they are willing to put forth to get it. They will have that chance this Saturday.

The task set forth is to wash down the walls in the workshop area with brooms and baskets and then paint them. The materials will be supplied. All that is needed are people.

The Theatre Guild, sponsors of the event, going by the motto that work is the curse of the studious class, will supply refreshments and "music to wash barns by."

Academic Freedom

To the Editor:

As I understand it, both Republicans and Democrats supported the move to ban Communists from our campus. This was done on the grounds that "using a university as a sounding board for propaganda and . . . personal interests" in contrary to the search for truth. I do not agree with this stand, but it seems to me that Communists are only following a well beaten track to our door to use us as a sounding board. They are far behind many of our congressmen. In as much as they have said that we should mot waste public money for these purposes, I move that we stop them from coming here to further their personal interests. If anything, a true Communist is more concerned with the search for truth then these people are. He just thinks that he's found it.

Academic freedom has just been defined as the right to seek after and arrive at the truth. As freedom of speech, and of the press could be defined in exactly the same way, any one who now advocates the destruction of anybody's (or is it only our own?) way of life or form of government is now perverting these rights, according to the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan. I can only express the desire that these fine institutions stop perverting these rights by advocating the destruction of the way of life of the American Communist.

Project HOPE

To the Editor:

Tonight I received the May 18 issue of The Oakland Observer, and I was interested at once in the undertaking of a fund drive for the ship HOPE. I have heard of the ship HOPE before this, and I think it is a wonderful thing. I would be very pleased to think I could help.

Even though it is too late to work on a committee for the Project HOPE, I wanted you to know I would be interested in doing anything for it that I could. I am going to be a freshman at MSUO when the fall term opens.

Sincerely yours, Sheryl Willows

Some Directions

To the Editor:

Sitting here at a reception desk, I started to glance through your Observer. "The dawn has broke."

I usually don't put in my 'two cents or sense', but I couldn't help but jump for joy when I read the suggestions put in the Observer for road signs and building signs! Many a day I direct lost and bewilered visitors to their, sometimes acrosscampus, appointments — many times minutes late.

I wonder how many "letters" it will take to get the ball rolling to purchase signs or employ a full time man as "trail guide"?

Conference participants considered current aspects of Chinese civilization and explored possibilities for future study projects.

Attending the conference were a total of 17 delegates from Harvard University, the University of Chicago, Pennsylvania State University, Princeton University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Yale University, University of Colorado. Representatives were also present from the Freer Art Gallery, Washington, D.C.

To the Editor

My personal opinion of the purposes and nature of the Student - Faculty University Council and the decision reach ed by the Council to make news releases available to the press: our Council is made of individ uals invited to meet with the Faculty Senate Committee for Student Affairs to examine the needs of the MSUO community.

We are a group primarily for discussion and recommendation, attempting to define and alleviate any problems that might exist on our campus and to suggest ways of alleviating any possible problems to the administration and Faculty Senate of MSUO.

In the course of discussion, certain statements are sometimes made, which, if allowed to be made public, would cause hurt, embarassment and serious reprisal to individuals or groups.

Call it "academic freedom" or just plain privacy, if you will. Every family has secrets and every MSUO classroom and teacher is protected by this basic freedom. Our Council is trying to protect its members and innocent people from faulty reporting, well-meant or otherwise.

The Oakland Observer's reputation for accuracy, responsibility and taste is not too reassuring. I feel that the best authority for what is discreet and what is not is the Council itself.

To Visit Other Universities

"I was very much impressed with the personal qualities of Mr. Stoutenberg and he had many new ideas to present to us.

"I felt that if I could observe the university where he was the registrar I could learn from the experience," Ike commented.

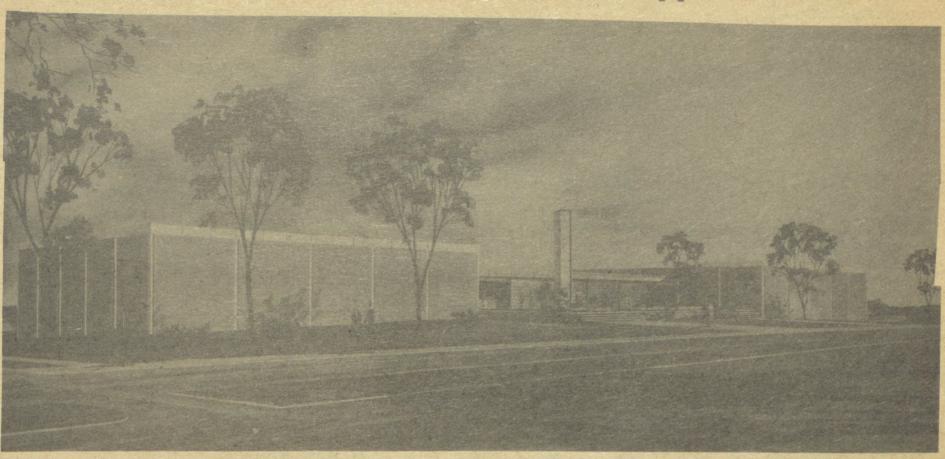

He pointed out that his duties as registrar in Nigeria are much wider than those of an American registrar. Under his direction in Nigeria are admissons, records, scholarships, and university personnel. In addition, he is Secretary to the Senate (a body similar to the Academic Senate at MSUO.)

I am particularly interested in the American system of keeping records as it is "much better than the British system," Ike said. "Such things as grade point averages, so common in America, are unknown in British education and hence in Nigeria," he explained.

Nigeria is divided into four regional districts which in turn are divided into several levels of local government. It is the local and regional governments which handle the primary and secondary schools. However, all schools have their own entrance examinations which admit approximately 20% of the students applying at each level. Thus only a fraction of students ever enter one of the country's four universities.

Ike will visit several other universities in the United States including MSU-EL, the University of Chicago, Howard University, and Lincoln University

Special Section On Recreational Opportunities

STUDENTS, LANDSCAPING, AND ATHLETIC equipment will complete MSUO's intramural sports and recreation building sometime this fall. The picture above shows an architect's drawing of the finished structure. In the foreground is the swimming pool area containing diving and underwater observation facilities. The building's center section is designed for administrative offices, a lecture hall, lockers, and equipment storage rooms. At right is the gymnasium. As big as three basketball courts, the gym area will be used for numerous indoor sports, including basketball, volleyball, badminton, and tennis (there are indoor tennis facilities). Pictured below is the T-shaped swimming pool as it looked Monday. The dark area in the center is the pool's foundation, now only a structural steel network. Top of ladder, at right center, reaches to top of pool itself. The shallow area is at left.

New I-M Building Features Pool, Gym

A T-shaped swimming pool and a large gymnasium for MSUO students will be the main features of the Intramural Building now under construction east of the Oakland Center.

A portion of student fees will be used to retire bonds for the building.

Equipped with two one-meter diving boards, with a threemeter board to be added later, the swimming pool ranges in depth from four to twelve feet. Imported tile will complete the pool's interior. Underwater lights and windows will permit viewing from special observation rooms beneath the pool deck.

Swimming facilities will also include offices and shower rooms.

Featuring a dividing door, the gymnasium will contain three basketball courts. Other floor markings provide six volley ball courts, three indoor tennis courts, and ten badminton courts.

Future plans are for a dance studio, weight-training room, and handball courts.

Connecting the swimming and recreation facilities is a two-story unit containing administrative offices, instruction rooms, and student leaders' offices on the first floor. Shower and grooming rooms, lockers, and equipment check-out rooms will be on the lower level.

Operation of the building and equipment is planned from midmorning to early evening, but may be altered to accommodate student needs.

Hollie Lepley, physical education director, and Jack Hidde, assistant physical education director will be available for instruction or assistance. Additional instruction will be provided in such felds as synchronized swimming and modern dance if students desire it.

Equipment and supplies for all recreation will be available to students without charge except for tennis and golf balls and possibly arrows. There will be a small fee for locker rental and towel service.

Tennis courts, located behind the building, will be completed in mid-summer. The Intramural Building should be finished by early fall.

Book Features Upbeat Theme

NEW YORK (UPI) — Juvenile delinquents and beatniks rate only a passing glance in a new book about the younger generation.

What rates: decent juveniles and young men and women many times more numerous than the beats and delinquents.

Author Claire Cox tips her hand in the title: "The Upbeat Generation" (Prentice-Hall. Inc.).

From start to finish — 184 pages later — Miss Cox sings the praises of what's high about the hopes and examples of the generation whose beginnings lie in the depths of the depression. World War II, the Korean and the cold wars.

She finds the "upbeats" far from disenchanted and not about to give up the ghost — regardless of the tensions of the times.

The author, a United Press International feature writer, proves in the text that young people are emerging from psychological fallout shelters.

"Their venturesome idealism is returning. . .." she reports.

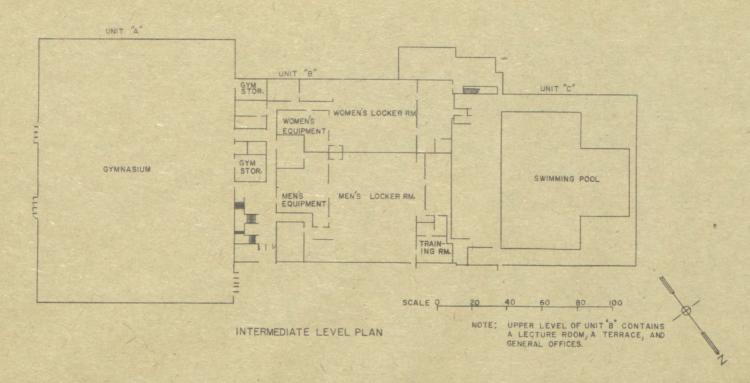

Further clues to the contents come from the chapter titles in "Upbeat Generation." Samples include the following:

—You Need Not Be a Football Hero, the Junior Joiners, Project Youth, There is Nothing Dull About Jack, For God and Country, Young Men in a Hurry.

The last chapter aptly is titled

Not the End — a Beginning.

H.M.S. Bounty Sails Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — A replica of the British three-masted H.M.S. Bounty, famous for a mutiny that resulted in settlement of Pitcairn Island in the Pacific, has embarked on a voyage that will take it to leading United States, Canadian and European ports during the summer and fall.

The new Bounty, a faithful copy of Captain William Bligh's historic vessel, was built especially for filming of a motion picture — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Mutiny On The Bounty."

Its first port of call will be Vancouver, B.C., where it is expected to arrive June 9. After a stay of three days, the Bounty will proceed to Victoria, B.C., and then to Seattle for a 10-day stay as part of the World's Fair exhibition.

Visits to other cities on both the west and east coasts will follow and the vessel is expected to cross the North Atlantic in late summer for stops at several European ports before arriving in New York for the premiere of "Mutiny On The Bounty" in late fall.

Visitors will be invited aboard at each stop to inspect the ship, which was built in Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, and then sailed via the Panama Canal to Tahaiti, where most of the picture was made. The Bounty had been docked at Los Angeles since the film's completion several months ago.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - A dental research team here has found that teeth of children born in 1956 and bottle-fed as infants have accumulated 16 times as much strontium-90 as bottle-fed children born in 1947.

The researchers said, however. that the amount is still much below the level considered dangerous. The research team includes Dr. Harold L. Rosenthal, Dr. John E. Gilster and Dr. John T. Bird of Washington University School of Dentistry. Their study will run for three more years. The research is done on baby teeth donated by parents.

The researchers say that data already on hand indicates that the research will produce the information needed — whether teeth can be used as a measure of the body's burden of radionuclides.

Doctors say strontium-90, a long-lasting isotope which is found in fallout from nuclear tests, replaces calcium in bone and teeth.

The St. Louis tests show an increase in the amount of strontium-90 from 0.15 micromicrocuries per gram of tooth calcium of children born in 1947 to 2.50 micromicrocuries in teeth of children born in 1956,

University Council

"They will also concern themselves with problems regarding the student role in orientation and the need for and means of effecting student government."

According to Dr. David Beardslee, chairman of the Academic Senate's Committee on Student Affairs, he and Sells had several conversations about two months ago concerning how students could present their views to the faculty and administration since the Student Government Senate no longer was active.

Shortly thereafter, the Student Affairs Committee recommended to Sells that he appoint several students to meet from time to time with the committee, Beardslee said.

Sells selected the students whom he wished to appoint and sent each a letter in which he requested that they serve on 689 E. Blvd. 1251 Baldwin 333-7152 333-7057 the Student-Faculty University Council, but made no comment of any connection with the Academic Senate or any committee of that body,

At the first meeting of the Council, at which Hoke was present, Sells told the members that the Student Affairs Committee would join them at their next meeting. He did not mention any relationship between the two groups.

"The Council is not a committee of the Academic Senate, but rather, was formed by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs," Beardslee said. The Observer has been unable to learn the relationship between the Council and the Academic Senate,

During the first meeting of the SFUC, the Observer agreed to let Sells see the copy of the SFUC story before it was sent to the printer.

This agreement, however, is contrary to journalistic practices and Sells was told after he had read the first story that the practice would be discontinued, Hoke said.

The chairman of the University Publications Committee, Dr. Donald Hildum, assistant professor of psychology, then contacted Hoke with the proposed compromise.

"The compromise was not that copy was to be submitted but that there would be a consultation between Mr. Sells and the newspaper," Hildum said. The Observer told Hildum on three occasions that Sells' proposal was unacceptable.

The Observer later learned that the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs had met and made a written suggestion on the subject of press coverage.

This report reads:

"Committee on Student Affairs resolves to meet with student committee. Such meetings are intended to facilitate communications between students, faculty, and student administration.

"In view of the need that such communication be open and free, we feel that it is in the best interests of the University if press reports be cleared for factual accuracy with a person designated by the committee."

Hoke told Sells on several occasions that the Observer regards the SFUC as a student group representing student opinion, and that a student group discussing issues involving students should be open to the press.

An informed source disclosed to the Observer after the meeting Tuesday night that a "feeling of no-confidence" towards the Oakland Observer was responsible for the Council's decision to keep the press out of its meetings.

Official reasons for the Council's decision, however, were not made available the Observer.

Play Receipts May Go to Project HOPE

The comedy will be presented six times after the conclusion of the course.

"We regard this as a very professional program stressing professional development," Mrs. Jackson stated.

"It is possible that one night's receipts could be donated to the Project HOPE fund on campus," she continued.

William Merrill, whom Mrs. Jackson described as "excited about working with young people," has volunteered to lend Will-O-Way equipment to the Theatre School.

"One of the barns on campus may be used as a theatre workshop, but no final decision has been made as to which would be the most valuable," Mrs. Jackson said.

"The MSUO Theatre Guild has offered its facilities and will purchase materials for the summer theatre school if they contribute to our own theatre at MSUO. We welcome anything that helps build our program here," Douglas Turek, Guild President said.

Students may take single courses or the entire four course series. The cost for the four courses is $70. MSUO students may take any or all of the courses for half-price.

Schedule for the Theatre School is: Show Rehearsal, William Merrill, Mondays and Thursdays; Acting and Speech, Mrs. Hirschfeld, Tuesdays; Modern Dance, Mrs. Appleton, Wednesdays; Technical Theatre Production, William Merrill Jr., Fridays.

All classes are from 10 a.m. until noon.

Further information on the Theatre School is available from Mrs. Jackson, 264 SFH or by calling FE 8-4515, university extension 2147.

QMFS Discovered By Observer Staff

Need money? The Observer's new IBM machine programed a system last week which it titled QMFS (Quick Money For Students).

QMFS, as it is affectionately called by the advertising staff, minimizes the onus of work and guarantees more than a living wage for college students.

Sound attractive? Sure it does; and it is within your reach. Gray flannel is an asset, but initiative and ambition are more important.

Commissioned advertising positions are open on the Observer, 109 NFH. Stop in any time during the day, or simply call FE 8-4515, university extension 2105, 2221, 2222.
