Jets Again Strike Near China

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck for the second straight day today at North Vietnamese targets just 10 miles from Red China's border, along the major railroad from China to Hanoi.

★ ★ ★

The attacks yesterday and today were closer to the Chinese border than any previous air raids in the Vietnam war.

Navy A6 Intruders and A4 Skyhawks from the carrier Constellation in the Tonkin Gulf raked the Lang Son railroad bypass bridge 63 miles north of Haiphong.

Other Navy pilots from the Constellation hammered a railsiding south of Lang Son and pilots said they cut the tracks in several places.

The U.S. Command announced that in Saturday's 151 attacks on the North, an F105 Thunderchief and an RF4C reconnaissance plane were shot down by ground fire.

CREW MISSING

All three crewmen were listed as missing.

Sharp ground fighting flared in South Vietnam's northern 1st Corps area.

Elements of the 1st Brigade of the 101st Airborne Division, starting Operation Benton, ran into small arms, automatic weapons, mortar and artillery fire from 100 to 150 Communist troops last night.

They counted 35 enemy dead on the battlefield southwest of coastal Tam Ky, about 340 miles northeast of Saigon. Two paratroopers were killed and 19 wounded.

In Washington, the raids close to China brought new criticism by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., Senate Preparedness subcommittee chairman, said the action reflects a more-pressure philosophy which he backs.

The Air Force said fighter-bombers destroyed or damaged 143 pieces of rolling stock in the raids yesterday.

ENEMY LOSS

In one strike, the Air Force said, one 20-car train and one 35-car train were covered by the impact of 750- and 3,000-pound bombs.

One flight reported destroying four antiaircraft sites on the north end of the Lang Son target area.

Operation Benton was launched yesterday and over-all American casualties so far are four dead and 32 wounded, killing 48 Communists.

Romney Drive Seems to Be On

MACKINAC ISLAND (AP)—Gov. George Romney's final push for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination appeared to be under way today following a weekend meeting with his three major supporters in the party's moderate wing.

And the governor disclosed he will embark Sept. 9 on a three-week European trip in which he said he hopes to visit Russia. The trip may be extended to include stops in the Middle East.

The weekend was billed as time of rest and relaxation and Romney and his guests, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Rhode Island Gov. John Chafee, and former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, left yesterday still insisting there had been little serious political discussion.

But at a news conference Saturday, the three for the first time together emphatically endorsed Romney.

There also appeared a new tone to Romney news conferences, a tone that indicated to some there is no longer any question that Romney will seek the nomination, although he has yet to formally announce his candidacy.

'SHARE DEDICATION'

"Already the three of us share deeply a sense of dedication to help Gov. Romney win the nomination," Rockefeller said as he sat with the other three on the sunlit veranda of the governor's three-story, 20-room frame mansion overlooking the broad Straits of Mackinac.

The exact role that Rockefeller and Scranton already are playing in the Romney drive is unclear. The meeting here was planned only three days ago and seemed to be more of an effort to bring back in the public eye the Romney bandwagon, somewhat sidetracked by long but successful legislative battles for fiscal reform and racial rioting.

FOUND GUILTY — Dean Andrews Jr. (left) flashes a smile as he is held by sheriff's deputies and escorted off to jail early this morning. A 44-year-old attorney, he was convicted of perjury in connection with his grand jury testimony in an alleged New Orleans plot to assassinate President Kennedy.

Perjury Found in 'JFK Plot'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A jury convicted Dean Andrews today of lying to a grand jury about a mysterious figure in the alleged New Orleans plot to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

★ ★ ★

Guilty on three of five perjury counts, the Criminal Dist. Court jury decided at 1:30 a.m., after deliberating two hours and 40 minutes.

"I really shouldn't complain," said Andrews with a heavy sigh moments before he was hustled off to jail. "If I didn't have bad luck, I wouldn't have any at all."

Defense attorney Harry Burglass immediately announced an appeal will be filed on many points of law.

★ ★ ★

Judge Frank J. Shea did not set a date for sentencing.

INELIGIBLE FOR BOND

Burglass said Andrews, 44, will not be eligible for bond until he has been sentenced. Maximum sentence would be five years.

Treasury Chief Warns of Tax Alternatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler offered Congress a stark choice today: reject President Johnson's tax increase and open the way for a possible $29 billion deficit, or enact it and still face the prospect of $14 billion to $18 billion red ink spending.

Those, Fowler told the House Ways and Means Committee, are the hard facts of the nation's fiscal situation.

He said that with economies the government plans to make, and with the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, which he called "a moderate, temporary, emergency increase," th Treasury can hold its borrowing down to a level that will not disrupt markets and shoot interest rates up. Thus, he said, widespread inflation can be avoided.

Budget Director Charles L. Schultze backed Fowler's estimate of the deficit and said "we are determined to cut more than $1.5 billion" in spending.

★ ★ ★

"We are aiming at a cut of over $2 billion as a means of holding civilian expenditures below the January estimate," Schultze continued. He said that each appropriation bill as it is passed will be reviewed by the government agency involved to see if the spending can be held below the approved figure.

REVENUES DOWN

Fowler said the spending estimate submitted in January for the year that began July 1 may now be exceeded by as much as $8.5 billion, including $4 billion for defense, and that revenues may be as much as $7 billion less than had been anticipated.

He said that what he called an outsized federal deficit "cannot be accommodated without severe disruption to the credit markets, sending interest rates sky high and shutting off the flow of credit to sectors such as the home mortgage market and small business."

He reminded the committeemen that "last year the mortgage market was starved for funds and home building went through the wringer."

Supervisors to Get Bid for Road Funds

By JIM LONG

The Board of Oakland County Road Commissioners will drop its financial problems in the laps of county supervisors next week.

Commission Chairman Frazer Staman said today that when the full board meets Aug. 24, he will request that the county allocate $2 million to help maintain roads in 1968.

"For years, we've operated without any assistance from the county," explained Staman, "but we've reached a point where we cannot properly function without help."

The county once levied a tax of two-mills per $1,000 of assessed valuation, but now the road commission relies entirely on revenue derived from state gas and weight taxes.

★ ★ ★

Staman said that a detailed study of county road needs in the next 20 years revealed that $200 million must be spent on construction.

ANNUAL $6.1 MILLION

"In view of the fact that our income is $6.1 million annually and only about $2 million can be spent on construction it is obvious that we cannot meet the needs and in fact are rapidly losing ground," he said.

Last week, the commission announced it was curtailing some types of road maintenance because of a lack of funds.

The commission borrowed $500,000 from the board of supervisors earlier this year to repair damage caused by the severe winter, but according to Staman, these funds have almost been exhausted.

When the commission appears before the board, members will be armed with an old state law to back up their demands.

BOARD'S DUTY

The 1909 state act reads "It shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to raise a sufficient tax to keep any county roads or bridges already built in reasonable repair and condition reasonably safe and fit for public travel.

It's likely, said Staman, that the board, would have to call an election asking voters for the necessary revenue if it's unable to find funds in its budget.

A tax of 80 cents for each $1,000 would be required to raise the $2 million for roads.

Glacier Park Bears Kill Two Girls

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — The superintendent of Glacier National Park says lightning may have goaded two grizzly bears into killing two 19-year-old girls early yesterday as they slept in sleeping bags in this rugged wilderness.

Killed in the separate incidents 20 miles apart in the mountainous park on the Montana-Canada border were Julie Helgeson of Albert Lea, Minn., and Michele Koons of San Diego, Calif. Roy Ducat, 18, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was seriously injured by the bear that killed Miss Helgeson.

Forest rangers pressed a search for the killer animals.

Park Supt. Keith Neilson said his only theory on the attacks was that lightning strikes in the park alarmed the normally shy, near-sighted grizzlies into attacking. "There is no scarcity of natural food and the grizzly is an unusually shy animal. It's strange for them to attack."

Lightning started 14 forest fires in the park Saturday and yesterday. More than 400 firefighters tried to control them. The park has had no rain since June.

NUDGING REPORTS

Neilson said he has had several reports of bears nudging people in sleeping bags this summer, but they ran when the campers screamed.

The bear that killed Miss Koons sniffed at four other sleeping bags while the occupants lay frozen with fear, then attacked Miss Koons, Neilson said.

The others escaped, but the zipper on her sleeping bag stuck.

All three victims were employed for the summer in park hotels. Miss Koons worked in the gift shop at Lake McDonald Lodge. Miss Helgeson worked in the laundry at East Glacier Lodge, and Ducat was a busboy at East Glacier. They were on outings on their days off.

FIRST KILLINGS

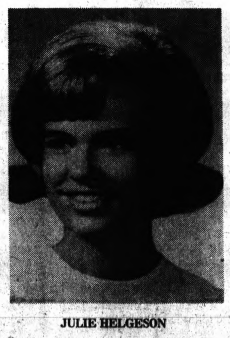

The two girls were the first people reported killed by bears since the park opened in 1910, although several have been injured.

Neilson said Glen Cole, Park Service biologist from Yellowstone National Park, had been summoned to try to figure out why the bears attacked.

Park rangers armed with rifles combed the Granite Park Chalet area where Miss Helgeson was attacked and the Trout Lake area 20 miles west where Miss Koons was killed. All trails in the area were closed to campers and hikers.

★ ★ ★

Ducat, who was recovering in a Kalispell hospital, told rangers that the bear attacked Miss Helgeson first, then pounced on him in his sleeping bag nearby. He said he escaped and the bear went back to Miss Helgeson.

State Fears a Delay in School Start

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A labor mediator and the two top teachers' unions expressed concern today that as many as 80 Michigan school districts still have not signed agreements with teachers and may force schools to stay closed in September.

"I'm fearful," said Philip Weiss, a member of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board (MLMB), "I'm very much concerned."

★ ★ ★

The Michigan Federation of Teachers (MFT), AFL-CIO, and the Michigan Education Association (MEA), both listed many of the districts as critical in collective bargaining negotiations with school boards.

In many districts, teachers have vowed not to return to work unless they have a contract.

LARGEST DISTRICT

Detroit, with 11,000 teachers and 298,000 students, is the largest district affected. But several other large districts, including Bay City, Saginaw, Benton Harbor and Escanaba are included on the list.

The Detroit Federation of Teachers, an arm of the MFT, won't resume bargaining until Aug. 28, a week before school starts. A contract ratification meeting is set for Sept. 5.

★ ★ ★

Failure to ratify the contract means "schools will not open," said Edward Simpkins, DFT vice president.

Weiss said the major problem in most districts is money. He said 25 to 30 millage elections this month would have an important effect on some contracts.

Gov. George Romney, who met with educators Aug. 1, said it would be "naive and unwise" to look to Lansing for more money.

UAW, Ford Tackle Wage Hike Demand

DETROIT (AP) — Union and company bargainers at Ford Motor Co. today tackled a key, 50-page section of their contract dealing with wages and other economic matters.

★ ★ ★

The negotiating session was expected to deal mainly with proposals by the United Auto Workers for revisions of the wage level.

★ ★ ★

"A substantial wage increase for all" is one of the top demands outlined by union President Walter P. Reuther for his 665,000 workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

★ ★ ★

It is considered unlikely that Ford, GM or Chrysler will make its first wage offer to the union before Aug. 28 or possibly even Aug. 31, a week ahead of the Sept. 6 expiration date of contracts at the Big Three.

AWAITS DEMONSTRATION

William O'Brien, vice president for personnel at Chrysler, said last week that it was reasonable to assume the companies would make no wage offer until after a planned demonstration by skilled tradesmen Aug. 23.

★ ★ ★

More than 200 skilled workers from the Detroit area have defied union headquarters and voted to carry through with plans for a demonstration to emphasize their demands for a substantial pay boost over any general pay increase.

★ ★ ★

UAW leaders have termed the meeting "ill advised and ill timed," fearing it will delay company money offers or that a small turnout would embarrass union negotiators.

★ ★ ★

With little more than three weeks left before contracts run out, negotiators for the union report that company bargainers are taking a hard-nosed stance. Union bargainers insist that they've made no progress to avoid a possible strike.

Detroit Negro Is Charged as Riot Agitator

DETROIT (AP) — A 22-year-old Negro was charged today with helping to trigger Detroit's week-long riot last month which resulted in the deaths of 43 persons, injury to several hundred and property damage estimated at more than $500 million.

Michael Lewis was named in three warrants which accused him of urging a crowd to riot and joining in the riot on at least two occasions. Maximum penalty under the charge is five years in jail.

Lewis was arrested by police Sunday night near his home on the fringe of the 12th Street area where the riot broke out July 23 after an early morning raid on a "blind pig" speakeasy.

Police said they have been seeking two agitators who inflamed the crowd of some 200 persons that gathered outside to watch police load prisoners into vans.

Viet Bombing Ignites Furor

Raids Near China Spark Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. bombing within 10 miles of Red China detonated new congressional furor today over the Vietnam war.

"I think it's very dangerous and extremely stupid," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But Senate Preparedness subcommittee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said the broadened bombing of North Vietnam reflects a more-pressure philosophy which he supports.

The new level of bombing came on the eve of Senate debate on President Johnson's foreign aid program. Debate opening today already had been expected to bring fresh attacks on Johnson policies in Vietnam and elsewhere in the world.

Whether one variety of recent congressional criticism — that bombing was too sparing — affected Johnson's decision to add new targets could not be determined as the White House fended off questions on the shift in tactics.

★ ★ ★

But it was learned that Stennis' subcommittee heard secret testimony last week from Adm. Ulysses S. G. Sharp, Pacific commander, that Johnson had agreed to some extension of warplanes' options to strike what one subcommittee member called "lucrative targets."

TARGET CURBS OFF

Strikes Sunday against North Vietnamese rail yards 10 miles from Red China and Friday against Hanoi's Doumer bridge came after Johnson lifted temporarily two major target restrictions.

Woman Knifed; Suspect Arrested

A woman identified by Pontiac police, as Alice Harper, age and address unknown, was taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after apparently being stabbed seven or eight times about 11:30 a.m. today.

The incident occurred in the Bagley-Wessen area.

Taken into custody at the Pontiac police station was a man identified by police as Joseph L. Hodge, 44, of 40 Harris.

Police reportedly found and impounded a hunting knife at the scene.

The $2 million would be in addition to the nearly $3 million the department anticipates it will receive for primary road construction from the federal government, city's participation, and gas and weight taxes.

★ ★ ★

In 1966, 30 Michigan counties appropriated funds for road construction and in five counties where funds weren't available, a tax was assessed, according to Staman.

COUNTY AID

"I believe we're entitled to county money, too," Staman said. "We're a county agency like the welfare department. And they don't operate solely on state funds."

The only hope motorists have for obtaining a safe and adequate road system, said Staman, is the initiation of a continuing program of road improvement financing by the board of supervisors.

He said that had the proposed Good Roads Package become law it would only have taken care of emergencies and the most necessary road construction.

★ ★ ★

"At best, it would have provided about $800,000 a year," Staman said.

COMMITTEE REPORT

It will be recommended to the board of supervisors that no action in the 1968 county budget be taken until one of its committees, probably roads and bridges or ways and means, returns with a report on the commission's request.

The budget is scheduled for adoption in October.

The chief reason cited by Staman for the road problem in the county is the rapid increase in population and vehicles.

Vehicle registration has increased from 162,610 in 1950 to 385,117 in 1965 and it is estimated to hit 480,000 by 1970.

"If that many vehicles were placed end to end it would make a traffic jam over 1,800 miles long," said Staman.

AFTER EARLIER SHOOTING — Sheriff Buford Pusser of McNairy County, Tenn., is with his wife in a Memphis hospital after he was shot from ambush Jan. 4, 1966. Saturday Mrs. Pusser was killed and the sheriff was shot in the chin in another attack.

Tennessee Sheriff Is Shot; Wife Killed

SELMER, Tenn. (UPI) — It takes a tough man to ride herd on the moonshiners and gamblers who flourish in rural red clay country along the Tennessee-Mississippi border.

Sheriff Buford Pusser is a tough man.

A 6-3, 210-pound former wrestler, the McNairy county sheriff had dodged death half a dozen times since being elected three years ago, and he had been threatened as recently as last month.

He dodged death again Saturday, but this time his wife was killed. Pusser escaped with a bullet in the jaw.

Pusser got a disturbance call at his home early Saturday and his pretty, blonde wife, Pauline, insisted she accompany him in case he needed help.

It was a trap.

As the sheriff's car headed down a dark county road, an assassin's car roared up with its lights off and blazing guns sent lead flying.

"He said it sounded like a bunch of machine guns opened fire on him," said Selmer Police Chief Hugh Kirkpatrick.

SUSPECTS QUESTIONED

By early Monday police had questioned several suspects and Kirkpatrick said, "We think we know who's behind it." No arrests had been made.

Pusser, who made many enemies in relentless battle against moonshining, bootlegging and gambling, swerved his car for the shoulder of the road when the first volley rang out, but it was too late. One of the first bullets struck his 33 - year - old wife in the head, killing her.

The assassin's car flew by and Pusser, cradling his dead wife's head in his lap, headed for help.

The car returned, however, and more shots were fired. A bullet struck Pusser in the jaw before the killer's automobile roared away for the last time, leaving at least 11 bullet holes in the sheriff's car.

CRY FOR HELP

The burly lawman managed to mumble a call for help into the radio, then fled for town. He was found five miles from the shooting scene, weak from loss of blood and in shock from the grief of losing his wife.

Pusser, at 29 one of the youngest sheriffs in the state, was taken to a Memphis hospital where he was reported in satisfactory condition.

Despite his age, Pusser was a legend in the tough west Tennessee flatlands. In three years he had been shot three times, stabbed twice and run down by a moonshiner's car — and he kept fighting.

Six men attacked him one time when he was unarmed and a deputy recalled "The sheriff took three of them to the hospital and three of them to jail."

DARING ARREST

Another time a moonshiner tried to run him down in a car, but the sheriff hopped onto the hood of the speeding vehicle, clawed his way to the driver's window and subdued the man.

"He's the best sheriff we ever had," said Special Deputy Rod Province.

"There used to be a lot of bootlegging around here, but he's cleaned it up now," Province added.

No Kidnaping Suspect Trace

No trace has yet been found of the man sought for the kidnapping of a Bloomfield Township girl Wednesday.

The car used in the incident, which ended in Bowling Green, Ohio, when the girl escaped unharmed, has not turned up either, according to township police.

The FBI has obtained a warrant charging the suspect with kidnapping and the hunt is being pressed in Ohio and neighboring areas, according to police.

Wanted is a Detroit resident, Frank Patterson, 32, an employe for a Detroit guard service. He is accused of abducting Diane C. Brown, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Brown of 1070 Northover.

★ ★ ★

Patterson allegedly used a ruse to capture the girl as she was driving on I-75.

Reportedly using a stolen guard car with flasher, uniform and pistol, he allegedly "arrested" the girl and got control of her car.

She got free in a restaurant in Ohio five hours later. The girl was not harmed, police said.

Car Tape Sets Stolen at Firm

Automobile stereo tape sets valued at more than $1,000 were stolen from a Pontiac firm, it was reported to city police.

Officers said an employe of Blue Ribbon Distributors, 1910 W. Widetrack, discovered the theft shortly before 3 a.m. today.

At least 11 tape sets, valued from $69 to $159 each, were taken, according to police. Officers said the total amount of property taken will be uncertain until an inventory is made.

They said the thief entered the building by breaking through a window on the north side and left at the same point.

Public School Students Urged to Register Early

BIRMINGHAM — Students enrolling in the Birmingham public schools for the first time this fall are urged to register at their respective schools as soon as possible.

For junior and senior high schools, students must take placement tests. For elementaries, children must be 5 years old before Dec. 1 and first graders 6 years before Dec. 1.

All incoming seventh graders and all incoming tenth graders must have a physical exam. Forms and information are available at the schools.

The City Commission will hear a recommendation on sidewalks for the south side of East Maple from Adams to Columbia at tonight's meeting at 8.

The proposal is for a four-foot-wide walk with construction to avoid moving any trees.

TO PONDER REPORT

The commission will also consider a report on a proposed ordinance to place restrictions on parking or storing of trailer-type vehicles on private property.

Decision to study the issue came after complaints of residences that stored vehicles were unsightly on some property.

City legal advisers have outlined some areas the city could control, such as storing of extra-large boats, prohibiting storage in front areas, time limitations, etc.

★ ★ ★

Also to be heard is a recommendation against hiring a guard for the downtown parking structure.

COST FOR GUARD

An administration report states cost would be $6,000 to $6,500 per year for a guard to work 60 hours a week policing and cleaning the five-story building.

The administration feels the guard would be of "questionable benefit" and that present periodic checking by the police is adequate.

Chinese Free Soviet Vessel

All Crewmen Aboard After Bitter Exchange

MOSCOW (AP)—The battered Soviet merchant ship Svirsk limped out of the Red Chinese port of Dairen Sunday a Moscow report said, after the Chinese released her captain and three crewmen following a bitter exchange of protest notes with the Soviets.

The Soviet Union announced that seven tugboats full of Red Guards escorted the ship out of the Yellow Sea port. The Svirsk's hull, superstructure and equipment bore anti-Soviet inscriptions.

All the Russian crewmen were aboard when the Svirsk headed for the Soviet port of Vladivostok, the announcement reported, but the ship's documents were kept by the Chinese.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin sent a telegram to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Saturday demanding that the Red Chinese release the captain and captured crewmen and let the Svirsk sail.

ORDERED OUT

A Peking broadcast heard in Tokyo, however, made no mention of Kosygin's telegram in announcing that "the Chinese government ordered the captain and one other crewman to leave China and never come back to this country."

The ship arrived in Dairen July 22 and shortly after, a Pravda dispatch said, second navigator Stanislav V. Ivanov was accused by Chinese authorities of refusing to accept a Mao Tse-tung badge. The Chinese demanded that Ivanov be turned over to them but Capt. Viktor A. Korzhov refused.

Melee Flares After Arrest at Rolladium

The arrest of a Pontiac man for investigation of possession of narcotics triggered a disturbance last night at the Rolladium Roller Skating Rink, 4475 M59, Waterford Township.

The disorder lasted about two hours, according to Waterford Township police who received assistance from eight other law enforcement agencies.

Police said several fights erupted inside the Rolladium, two minor fires were set and windows of nearby buildings were damaged by the unruly crowd.

The trouble started after security guards at the Rolladium arrested Harry J. Smith of 212 Central on the narcotics count and summoned police.

★ ★ ★

When police arrived, a large group of persons were around the Rolladium office where security guards were holding the prisoner. They were yelling and pounding on doors and windows, police said.

RINK CLOSED

The Rolladium was closed and all the customers were removed by police.

Security guards told police the suspect had a parcel of narcotics wrapped in aluminum foil. The confiscated substance will be tested by the Michigan State Police Crime Laboratory.

Smith was to be arraigned today.

Assisting Waterford Township police were policemen from the Pontiac State Police post, Oakland County Sheriff's Department, West Bloomfield Township, Pontiac, Sylvan Lake, Keego Harbor, Orchard Lake and White Lake Township.

The trouble started shortly after 9:30.

Rope Links Two Girls Found Strangled in N.Y.

BRIDGEPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Frank Gualtieri says he expects an arrest "within a few days" in the strangulation slayings of two 14-year-old girls found tied together with rope and left in a marshy field near this community northeast of Syracuse.

Jacqueline Saunders of Mattydale and Mary Ann Marzullo of North Syracuse, both Syracuse suburbs, were reported missing by their parents early Saturday morning. They had attended a volunteer firemen's demonstration Friday night only a few blocks from the Saunders' home.

The girls were to have stayed overnight at the Marzullo home, and Mary Ann called her parents at about 11 p.m. to say they "would be right home," police said. A fisherman found their bodies around noon Saturday in the tall grass. Their hands had been tied behind their backs.

Gualtieri said Sunday the girls had been seen in a car and that a description of the car had been given. On the basis of that information and laboratory tests, the district attorney said, we "expect to make an arrest within a few days."

★ ★ ★

He declined to elaborate or to offer a motive for the slayings. But earlier he said "more than one suspect" was being sought, adding that it was "inconceivable that a crime of this sort could have been committed by one person."

BOTH GOOD GIRLS

Jacqueline and Mary Ann were described by police as "average, good girls," and neighbors were quoted as saying they did not stay out late at night. Their homes were about 1¼ miles apart and both would have been ninth-graders in the same school this fall.

A medical examiner said there was no evidence they had been molested sexually. There were bruises on their faces and bodies.

The United States station at the South Pole measured only two inches of snow one year recently.

Gold Offered for Helping Yanks Escape

U.S. Litters N. Viet in Rescue Drive

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The latest military campaign to save the lives of American pilots in hostile North Vietnam has met little more than snorts of skepticism here.

No one is against the plan really, but feeling is "it just won't work."

The campaign originated in the Saigon offices of psychological warfare. It has been carried into enemy territory in the form of millions of leaflets proclaiming rewards of pure gold to anyone aiding the escape of downed U. S. pilots.

The leaflets read:

"Helping American military pilots and other U. S. military personnel escape to freedom can bring you 50 taels of gold (about $1,750). If you see an American who has parachuted to ground or has escaped capture, do not be afraid — approach him and make him understand you wish him no harm by waving your hand.

* * *

"Help him in any way you can.

"Hide him from hostile authorities, cooperate with him in finding his way to safety. You may escape to freedom with him or return home just as you choose.

"You will be paid these 50 taels of gold at the time the American is rescued or at any other time the American is rescued or at any other time you choose. You may collect the reward in gold bullion, or in the equivalent amount of any currency you choose, payable in any free world country."

The leaflets are signed by Elsworth Bunker, U. S. ambassador.

Critics of the litterbugging see it as "impossibly invalid." One Air Force officer, who has himself been shot down, says it sounds "more psychotic than psychological."

* * *

"For one thing," he asks, "how will the gold be paid?"

'CLASSIFIED'

The answer is probably classified. Neither State Department nor Department of Defense spokesmen will publicly comment. But there are several obvious possibilities.

One is that helicopter rescue teams would be the payoff men. In most rescues, at least one crew member usually touches ground where transactions could be made.

Another possibility is that the pilots would be equipped with bribe bullion. This theory is somewhat shallow in light of the act that a tempted North Vietnamese would risk less by shooting the flyer and stealing the gold.

* * *

Observers agree the most probable method of payment would be the usage of "bloodchits." The chits, popular in other wars but seldom used in this one, guarantee the bearer a reward upon presentation to any American military command.

NEAREST BASE

Supposedly, bloodchits would be given to helpful North Vietnamese by rescued pilots. Then the holder would have to make his way —probably into Laos or Thailand — to receive compensation from the nearest U. S. military base.

Even the chit idea is shaky, however. Few North Vietnamese can freely travel outside their country and those who do have to pass searching border guards. Carrying a bloodchit — even concealed—would therefore be tantamount to suicide.

Actually, almost any method of payment would be potentially suicidal to North Vietnamese friendlies . . . that is, if the friendlies remained where they would be subject to discovery and execution.

* * *

But if they could be persuaded to flee the Notrh with rescued pilots, cooperating peasants would be able to collect and enjoy the 50 taels of gold in another nation.

U. S. HOPE

And this, presumably, is exactly what U. S. officials hope.

Reds' First U.S. Comics to Be Classics Illustrated

NEW YORK (AP) — The American publisher who combined comics and classics is about to export his versions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Huckleberry Finn" and other stories to Yugoslavia. Albert Kander, president of Gilbertson Co., Inc., publisher of Classics Illustrated, said they would be the first American comic books in Eastern Europe.

Jovan Milenkovic of Belgrade will print and distribute the editions, he said. Plans call for printing one million copies this fall, accompanied by serialization in Yugoslavian newspapers.

* * *

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has criticized the inclusion of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Huckleberry Finn."

"I just don't understand why they would want to send these books to a Communist country as representative of the United States," said Miss June Shagalovy, NAACP national education director. "They portray Negroes in a stereotyped way and perpetuate certain prejudices."

Kanter said the selection from Classics Illustrated's list of 167 titles was made by the Yugoslavian publisher, who also chose "The Three Musketeers," "The Last of the Mohicans," "Moby Dick," "Song of Hiawatha," "Wild Bill Hickok," "Les Miserables," "Adventures of Cellini," "Robin Hood" and "The Jungle Book."

"They're all classics," he said. "We send them what they ask for. I don't know how they choose them. The classics are the classics. They are respected as such rather than as propaganda."

* * *

Kanter estimated 1.5 billion copies of his abbreviated comic strip versions have been sold in 32 languages in the past 27 years. "In all that time, we never have had any one in any country say 'We'll take everything on the list—except this one'," Kanter said.

Both "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Huckleberry Finn" are available in regular book form at U.S. Information Agency libraries around the world, the USIA reports.

Deer, Raccoon, Woodchuck Inhabitants

Pontiac Twp. Man Sheltering Wildlife

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP — The neat gray two-story shingled home of Kenneth Crisp, 3321 N. Squirrel, may be no "home on the range."

But the spacious grounds harbor an array of Michigan whitetail deer, raccoons and woodchucks.

Pontiac Press Photo

A FONDNESS FOR ANIMALS — Kenneth Crisp, 3321 N. Squirrel, Pontiac Township, returns the affection of two pet raccoons, part of the menagerie he's assembled in the last 12 years.

Crisp, some 12 years ago at age 60, decided to get into the deer business and purchased a pair of the local variety.

"I liked them," he said.

He hit the jackpot in that the doe presented the retired Detroit Ordinance vehicle inspector with a set of twins five years running.

THREE REMAIN

Of the resulting progeny, only three remain.

"I've shipped deer into northern Michigan and Wisconsin," Crisp said proudly.

The three inhabit a large fenced pen adjacent to the rambling Clinton River. Other huts on the grounds house two curious raccoons and two woodchucks.

* * *

Actually one woodchuck is permitted the freedom of the Crisps' yard.

HAS RICKETS

"It's got rickets," said Crisp as he handed it a large leaf of lettuce saved for the animals by Auburn Heights food stores.

The older and bigger "chuck" — Chuckles by name — recently escaped his pen and wandered into the commercial district of nearby Auburn Heights.

* * *

A fear of strangers resulted, according to Crisp, when people became frightened and in turn frightened the woodchuck. Some small boys with stones, he said, hurt the "chuck."

* * *

When Crisp, who now keeps busy by attending the gardens at University Presbyterian Church, Avon Township, retrieved the animal, it was "people shy."

RECEIVES ANIMALS

"People who find animals and don't know what to do with them usually bring them here," Crisp said.

He has a game breeder's license issued by the Michigan Department of Conservation.

* * *

Mrs. Crisp has no objections to the animals. While her husband is collecting wildlife, she's been busy assembling an enviable display of antique glass.

Crowd Jeers Hart Viet Talk at Southfield

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Philip A. Hart made a whirlwind trip through his home state last weekend, endorsing President Johnson's Vietnam policy and calling for "a change of emphasis in order to end the hopelessness that pervades big city Negro ghettos."

The Michigan Democrat was jeered and taunted in Southfield Saturday as he addressed a meeting sponsored by Vietnam summer projects in Detroit and Pontiac and the Oakland County Peace Committee.

Hart told the audience that a settlement must be found that would not hurt U.S. prestige in Southeast Asia or leave room for misinterpretation by Red China.

Hart said he favored U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam as soon as possible.

* * *

"But," he declared, "if we leave under the wrong conditions, our Asian allies will think our word is written on water."

APPROVAL

The audience roared when he said his wife differs with him on the Vietnam issue.

"Let's send your wife to Congress," several shouted.

Saturday night, Hart addressed the 4th Congressional District Democratic Dinner in Dowagiac.

He called for "a change of emphasis in order to end the hopelessness that pervades big city Negro ghettos."

NO LONGER HOPE

He said the nation can no longer hope to cool discontent by letting the Negro sit at the front of the bus or serving him in restaurants.

He said the emphasis must now be placed on eliminating "what seems an impenetrable system" of job discrimination.

"The hopelessness of employment does strange things," Hart said. "A paycheck is a demonstration of manhood. So is shooting a policeman."

"All of us would rather provide the job than the policeman," Hart said.

Cranbrook Director Sees Science Club

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — A science club for top area students at the Cranbrook Institute of Science is envisioned for the future by Warren Wittry, institute director.

He said he believes such an organization for high and junior high students would be a valuable contribution not only to the community but to the entire field of science scholarship as well.

Such a club would be part of the "community-mindedness," thought of as the future goal of the institute by the directors, he said.

The Science Institute on Lone Pine is the only one of its type serving the Detroit metropolitan area. Its natural science museum, planetarium and observatory are visited annually by thousands of students.

However a more limited role, keyed to the Oakland County educational system, is sought with the hope facilities will be constructed further south in the Detroit area to fill the need there.

FORM CLUB

Dr. Wittry, who took over the institute directorship July 1 from retiring Dr. Robert Hatt, said he will form the club this fall.

The club is visualized as made up of students with a variety of interests. They will gather and discuss various science fields and take part in joint projects.

"Of course there are science clubs in the various schools and some excellent teachers. But what we would offer such a group is our highly trained staff and comparatively large facilities," Dr. Wittry said.

* * *

He emphasized that such a club would be a valuable counteraction against the "bowling alley approach" to science — the trend toward overspecialization.

IDEA EXCHANGE

He said the students would be involved with all the fields of study and get a chance to exchange views.

In the present setup at Cranbrook Institute the organization gives "a large number of students a brief exposure to science," Dr. Wittry explains.

"However with the club we could also give an interested group of young people exposure on an intensive level."

* * *

He pointed out such organizations are common on the post-high school level, but not for the younger students.

'REACH THEM YOUNG'

"And it's important to reach them young," Dr. Wittry pointed out.

He anticipated that among the club members "associations would be made that would last them throughout their lives."

State Cranberry Crop Eyed

By JACQUELINE KORONA

NEWBERRY (AP) — Tangy, little cranberries one day may float out of bogs in the Upper Peninsula and land Michigan in yet another commercial fruit industry.

"Wisconsin's cranberry production is higher than that of New Jersey or Massachusetts," says J. F. Davis, a Michigan State University professor of soil science.

"And from the information available, Michigan can produce yields equal to those produced in Wisconsin."

Another arrow pointing toward the cranberry as a possible Michigan product-to-be is an experimental project conducted in Luce County by Newberry businessmen.

* * *

The county chamber of commerce, with technical assistance from the MSU Cooperative Extension Service, conducted a successful experiment to grow cranberries in the Upper Peninsula in quantities sufficient to make the berries commercially productive.

CONTEST WINNER

The project has been named a regional winner in the Agricultural Development of the Year contest connected with Michigan Week activities. The 13 regional winners will compete for the 1967 state award. Judging will take place during the Michigan State Fair Aug. 25-Sept. 4.

"Yields equal to as much as 14,000 pounds per acre were reported taken from the small test plots in the experimental area, says Karl Larson of Sault Ste. Marie. He is agricultural agent for Chippewa, Luce and Mackinac counties.

* * *

"Yields of 8,000 to 10,000 pounds per acre are considered sufficient to meet the standards of commercial production," he said.

* * *

The county reports that several commercial firms already are interested in the experiment, which dates back to 1954 when a Wisconsin cranberry processing company inquired about bog lands in the Newberry area.

PROJECT START

Interested persons and organizations met to discuss the possibility of berry bog business and in 1960 a plot was selected and cranberries planted.

Temperatures in the Newberry area are comparable to those in one of the commercial cranberry bog areas of Wisconsin, Davis says. In mid-May this year, the temperature at the Wisconsin bog was 16 degrees above zero. On several late May nights it dropped below freezing.

* * *

Soil in the Upper Peninsula compares with that of Wisconsin bogs in its high degree of acidity.

* * *

Davis says that with good conditions it is possible to produce 100 barrels (100 pounds per barrel) per acre. The price per pound last year was about 15 cents — providing a gross income per acre of $1,500.

PLANTING IS EXPENSIVE

Planting a cranberry bog is expensive, however.

* * *

"One ton of vines per acre are needed to plant a bog," says Davis. "The cost of vines depends on the variety, but ranges frm $150 to $1,000 a ton."

* * *

Some 50 per cent of the berries end up as sauce and 32 per cent as juice. The remainder are sold as fresh fruit.

Youth Killed in Auto Chase

BURNSIDE — An Imlay City youth was killed when his car tumbled end-over-end at speeds over 100 miles per hour early yesterday morning on M53, south of Burnside Road, according to Lapeer County deputies.

Michael J. Kehoe, 18, was dead on arrival at Marlette Hospital after the 2:30 a.m. accident. A passenger, Robert Desjardin, 20, of Center Line, was reported in serious condition at the same hospital.

Deputies said Kehoe was being pursued for a speeding violation but did not heed a deputy's siren or flasher light.

The victim's car went out of control while trying to pass another vehicle and rolled over several times, deputies said.

Ionia Free Fair Ends

IONIA (AP) — The Ionia Free Fair ended its 52nd season Saturday night, drawing 451,718 paid visitors during its eight-day run.

The attendance was up 20,000 from last year when the fair turned a profit of $18,403.

Lake Orion Will Take Up Action on Intersections

LAKE ORION — Action on elimination of hazards at two traffic intersections in the village will face councilmen tonight.

John Reineck, village manager, sent a letter to the Oakland County Road Commission asking for studies and action on the M24-South Broadway and M24-West Flint Street intersections.

Reineck's letter read, "Cars turning right from South Broadway normally end up in the middle of M24, and serious head-on collisions could be caused by this situation.

"If 15 feet could be cut from the M24 right-of-way, a normal right turn would be feasible from South Broadway onto M24."

* * *

Because of serious accidents at the M24-West Flint intersection, Reineck has asked for a survey of the traffic light there. He said southbound cars turning left onto West Flint have been responsible for the accidents.

* * *

The village recently installed a new stop sign on the corner of East Flint and Orion Road in an effort to prevent accidents there.

Walled Lake High Sets Registration

WALLED LAKE — New pupils of the Walled Lake Senior High School can register now through Aug. 31 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the high school, 2978 S. Commerce.

Also at these times, parents and pupils can review scheduling arrangements. Classes will begin Sept. 7.

* * *

The bookstore will be open from Aug. 21 to Sept. 1. The schedule is Aug. 21, last names beginning with L through Q; Aug. 22, E through K; Aug. 23, A through D; Aug. 24 R through S; and Aug. 25, T through Z.

* * *

Seniors will be notified of dates when their pictures will be taken. The dates will be between Aug. 22 and 25.

Firm Founder, 76, Dies

SOUTHFIELD (AP) — Service was held in Southfield today for David S. Diamond, founder and retired president of Diamond Screw Products Co. of Wyandotte.

* * *

Diamond, 76, of Franklin died Saturday at Harper Hospital.

* * *

Survivors include his wife, Lilian; a daughter; three brothers; and four sisters.

Apartment Zone Bid Up

TROY — Plans for a $3-million apartment for the elderly will once again come before the Troy Commission at its 7:30 meeting today.

The group, New Life, Inc., has been trying to have a site at Maple near Livernois rezoned from business to multiple apartment use.

The group last year obtained the desired zoning, but then met with other difficulties, delaying construction.

The commission then rezoned the land back to business use.

* * *

However the venture's backers, supported by two church groups, won approval from the planning commission by a 4-2 vote and will place the matter before the commission again.

AGAINST REZONING

But city officials indicated today the administration would recommend against the rezoning.

The commission will also study a possible hike in water rates. The Detroit Water system has raised its rates to the city an estimated 15 per cent.

* * *

Also before the commission is a proposed revision of the subdivision ordinance to require sidewalks in all developed areas.

90-Acre Plans Unveiled in Novi

NOVI — Plans for 90 acres on the northwest corner of Eight Mile and Haggerty were recently revealed by developer Richard E. Gabel.

By next spring, construction will begin on the first 100 of 400 apartment units. The 100 on the northwest part of the parcel will be completed by fall 1968, Gabel said.

Within five years, the entire development is set for completion, said the developer. Other plans include offices to be built shortly.

Later on, the scene will be filled in with a medical complex, shopping area and a motel.

* * *

Gabel and 11 others purchased the former farmland from Mr. and Mrs. William B. Walker, Jr., owners of the Walway Manufacturing Co., Southfield.

INDUSTRIAL PARK

Gabel is also developing a 133-acre industrial park in Novi. It is to include heavy and light industries, businesses and apartments.

Burglars Take Antique Guns

NOVI—If you are approached by an antique gun salesman, notify the Novi police.

Early Saturday morning, 62 antique revolvers and pistols, valued at $2,900, were stolen from the Village Arcade, 43391 W. 12 Mile, police reported.

Police, on a routine check, noticed the rear door of the business open and the lock kicked off. The door to the gun room, said police, had been kicked in. The suspects had left two sacks on the floor.

Police are still investigating the case.

Saks Fifth Avenue Opens New Store in Troy Mall

Saks Fifth Avenue's newest branch at the Somerset Mall in Troy opened doors to shoppers this morning. The 86,000-square-foot store located at Coolidge and Big Beaver is geared to serve the Troy - Bloomfield Hills - Birmingham area.

The store will be stocked with all apparel and accessories that are available at other Saks stores.

Adam L. Gimbel, president of Saks, said of the 27th store in the chain, "This store is the latest addition in a nationwide network that has brought the high fashion and unsurpassed service of Saks Fifth Avenue to customers from coast to coast."

A shop-within-a-shop atmosphere, was designed and decorated by Copeland, Novak and Israel of New York. The interior, inspired by the colonial restoration at Williamsburg, Va., uses a decor of colonial, Queen Anne, Georgian and federal periods.

The architects of the two-story building of rough-faced, fawn-colored brick are Abbott, Merkt and Co. of New York.

Joel E. Rath of 1015 Bird, Birmingham, is manager of the new store. He was formerly general manager of the Saks store in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Vacations for Swedish Prisoners Designed to 'Socialize' Them

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden is experimenting with vacations for prisoners. This is part of a liberal correctional system which authorities believe is the right road despite escapes and repeaters.

"Our purpose is to try to make them better citizens, to socialize them," says Clas Amilon, director at the National Correctional Administration.

★ ★ ★

Following this concept, nine prisoners spent three weeks this summer at a camp where they were allowed to play badminton, row on the lake or wander down to the nearby village for a pack of cigarettes. Their wives or fiancees could live with them at the camp.

Amilon was happy with the results and looks forward to more vacations for more prisoners.

NOT ONLY RESPITE

Vacations aren't the only form of respite from prison life. Two-day furloughs are permitted on a liberal basis. A prisoner usually becomes eligible after serving 10 months of his term. Most prisoners never reach the 10-month period. During 1966 one-third of the 9,641 convicts admitted served sentences under two months.

On occasion the sentences are short by the standards of other countries. A 20-year-old man with a previous record of assault and robbery was recently sentenced to 16 months for an assault that led to the victim's death.

Work is fundamental to the Swedish prison system. Some prisoners are housed in "open" institutions.

"An open institution," explains Amilon, "is an institution without walls, from which you can escape if you want. There are guards but they are unarmed. The escape possibilities are numerous."

An open institution like the Tillberga "factory prison" has 120 inmates employed in workshops as modern as any on the outside. Tillberga's specialty is prefabricated houses.

It all adds up to such a good deal that in years past some Finns used to sneak across the northern border to steal a car so they could spend the winter in a comfortable Swedish prison. This sort of tourism has stopped since the passage of an inter-Scandinavian law that sentences criminals in the country where they are caught in but sends them back to their own country to serve.

Despite all the liberality, the escape rate in 1966 was 8.2 per cent, but a large number of these were prisoners who did not return from furloughs, or returned late.

"I know that many escape to be near a wife or a girlfriend," Amilon says. "On the other hand a lot of inmates just cannot tolerate the atmosphere of an institution, even if it is liberal."

Special research is being done on this question, Amilon said, and research is needed on the problem of recidivism - those convicted a second time.

Neither the number of fugitives or recidivists warrants a change in the thinking behind the present correctional system, according to Amilon. He feels half the institutions should be "open" instead of one-fourth as at present.

"The main point has always been work - rehabilitation through work," Amilon says. "It is very important and will always have its place, but we are still lacking in other areas.

"We do have group therapy and group counseling, but we must expand in this area, adding better aftercare. We must expand the psychological treatment."

A group called the National Association for the Well-being of Prisoners has recommended that the censorship of prisoners' letters be relaxed, the number of visits be increased and a system be introduced that would allow a prisoner to have privacy with a visiting wife or fiancee.

GIs on Horns of a Dilemma

SAIGON (UPI)—A water buffalo attacked a platoon of American infantrymen, wounded four of them and captured one of their rifles nine miles northwest of Saigon, it has been reported.

The soldiers had to call in an armed helicopter to kill the buffalo and get the gun back.

"There were two of them hiding in the trees," said Pfc. David S. Blassingame of Sherman, Tex. "It was the second landing zone we had hit that day and, other than the critters, it was secure."

Blassingame said his platoon was moving out of a hedgerow into paddy lands, searching for Vietcong weapons caches.

"The first four guys got through safely. Then one of the buffalo charged the fifth. That was me. I lost my rifle, snagged on his horns, and he hit me in the leg."

TURNED AND CHARGED

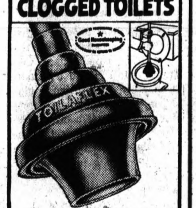

The buffalo then turned and charged Pfc. R. A. Ayres of Cambridge, Pa., and tossed him head over heels into a muddy creek.

As the platoon leader, 2nd Lt. James Marschewiki of Little Rock, Ark., was being trampled in the mud, he yelled, "Shoot it," but his men said they were afraid to fire for fear of hitting him.

The fourth victim was not identified.

The soldiers, from the U. S. Army's 25th Infantry Division, said they managed to scramble to safety, but the rifle was still lodged on the buffalo's horns and they called for a helicopter to swoop in and kill it with machine-gun fire so they could recover the weapon.

It Seems to Me . . . .

We Must Take All Precautions to Reduce Highway Accidents

More horrible highway accidents of late have aroused tremendous public indignation.

You hear it everywhere.

★ ★ ★

In one of these recent catastrophes, no less than seven people were killed, most of them instantly. In two others, two were hurled into Eternity almost instantly.

Apparently the careless, the indifferent, the alcoholics and a certain age group constitute the greatest menaces. All that law authorities can do is struggle valiantly to reduce the number to the barest minimum out of justice to the rest. This "orderly balance" probably numbers 99.9999 per cent.

But they're the victims.

And they're wholly innocent.

★ ★ ★

Not long ago, I heard some Chrysler engineers discuss accidents and they said alcohol was involved in over half of the crashes. These men are authorities. Here is a leading factor and one that must be dealt with in accordance with its importance and dealt with severely.

The AMA says single male drivers under 25 are the most dangerous age group and the high point is 21 and 22 years of age. Males in these two years have more accidents than any other age sector.

★ ★ ★

It seems as though every driver of every vehicle must be constantly on the alert and especially vigilant today. There's an accident truism that's always valid:

"The cemetery is full of people who had the right-of-way."

Once, the "right-of-way" might have meant reasonable protection, but it doesn't today. The fact it should becomes relatively unimportant.

Today it's just a help.

It's no guarantee.

★ ★ ★

Apparently, the right-of-way will always be abused by a small but highly dangerous number. A tiny percentage of all accidents may be incompetence and equally, there's no defense against this.

All drivers everywhere must double or triple their precautions and their constant suspicions of "the other fellow."

Look out at all times.

Expect some mistakes.

Don't bank on normal procedures.

Answer to Anonymous . . . .

The few anonymous letters we receive are usually dropped in a yawning wastebasket.

Hiding behind shameless anonymity, a current soul says my editorial on the Detroit riots was "childish and immature" and that I "should have no post of responsibility."

Sorry, chum.

This editorial was reproduced in several newspapers including The Chicago Tribune and The Nashville Banner. Their individual and combined standing and judgment leave you looking pretty silly.

★ ★ ★

Better luck next time.

Disloyal Citizen . . . .

One of our most disloyal citizens seems to be this ROCKWELL KENT. (Don't confuse him with NORMAN ROCKWELL, the great illustrator.)

KENT has the LENIN Peace Prize and now donates $10,000 to the North Vietnamese government which will be used against our own men.

★ ★ ★

Certainly, this is treason.

And we have two choices.

In view of his age (85) he might be overlooked on the theory he's going to get complete punishment shortly in the Hereafter. On the other hand, this newspaper favors hurling the book at him. He deserves the biggest fine possible, and the longest prison sentence on record.

★ ★ ★

Why should scum escape merely because it's aged?

And in Conclusion . . . .

Jottings from the well-thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

The Imperial Magazine said that if an insurance company offered you five cents today, ten cents tomorrow, and kept doubling each day for one month, would you accept that offer; or would you prefer $500 per month starting now and running for your entire life? The first plan would produce $26,843,545.60. This would pay $500 a month for 4,474 years. . . . . Quoted from the Boston Globe: "The font so generously presented by Mrs. SMITH may be set in position at the east end of the church. Thus babies can be baptized at both ends."

★ ★ ★

Trusted scouts advise me Elizabeth Sullivan deserves mention as one of the attractive young ladies in the area. . . . . Overheard: "Nothing brings two people closer together than an umbrella." . . . . . The Cincinnati Enquirer says the fastest thing on wheels is an Arab riding a bicycle through Miami. . . . . They've just tested a clock in a Paris observatory that loses one second in a thousand years.

Wanna know how many more years you'll live? Here's the answer:

Your Age	Years Left
20	50.2
30	41.0
40	31.7
50	23.2
60	16.0
70	10.3
80	5.9
85	4.3

That leaves me, personally, about 20 minutes. . . . . Overheard: "It's reliably rumored LBJ is going to buy the Houston Astro-Dome as a playhouse for grandbaby LYN." . . . . . Dept. of Cheers and Jeers: the C's—ED SULLIVAN's program over the years—tops; the J's—that Italian mouse on this same program.

David Lawrence Says:

Treason Requires Aid to Enemy

WASHINGTON — Many Americans have wondered why citizens who have declared their sympathy for the North Vietnam side of the war in public speeches or have openly sided with Castro or have urged Negroes in this country to commit acts of insurrection aren't guilty of treason.

LAWRENCE

But the truth is that "treason," as defined by the Supreme Court, does not apply to such cases.

A study of the various decisions handed down by the high court reveals that for treason to be committed there has to be an overt act of actual aid to the enemy, and the existence of an enemy is not legally recognized until after a declaration of war.

While Congress by resolution and by appropriations has authorized U. S. military forces to fight in Vietnam, there has been no "declaration of war" in a formal sense.

The interpretations by the Supreme Court indicate that the wording of the Constitution itself in the provision specifying treason is inadequate and would seem to require amendment. The exact phraseology of the Constitution on treason is as follows:

"Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court."

★ ★ ★

Many speeches or public statements have recently given the North Vietnamese, for instance, encouragement by conveying the impression that the people of the United States are opposed to their own government's policies, and that eventually the American forces will withdraw without achieving their objective.

PSYCHOLOGICAL FACTORS

This concept is certainly giving "aid and comfort" to an adversary and even preventing peace negotiations. But the Constitution, according to Supreme Court rulings, takes no account of psychological factors as an influence helpful to the enemy in making its policies.

The existing provision of the Constitution does not place any territorial limitation on where the crime of treason may be committed.

So a traitorous speech made abroad by an American citizen might seem to some people to be punishable, but the Supreme Court cases say that a speech alone is not punishable and that an "overt act" of aid to the enemy has to take place and be duly witnessed or confessed in open court.

★ ★ ★

While public opinion in America today certainly seems to be demanding punishment for those who have been giving any kind of "aid and comfort" to the enemy with or without any overt act, nothing can be done to punish dissenters unless a formal declaration of war is adopted.

Also an amendment to the Constitution is necessary if an "overt act" of treason is to include any speech which incites other citizens to engage in disloyalty or disobedience of the laws of the United States.

Bob Considine Says:

Catastrophe Reportedly Confronting California

NEW YORK — Now hear this from Milton Immermann, president of the Walter Dorwin Teague Co., industrial designers:

CONSIDINE

"The stage is being set for the most catastrophic American disaster. Realtors continue to sell land and builders are throwing up homes and high-rise apartments and office buildings the length and breadth of the San Andrea Fault. It runs from Northern California to Baja California.

"It is historically unstable land. In prehistoric times it shook and fell apart horrendously enough to separate Lower California from present day Mexico. It collapsed and destroyed San Francisco in 1906.

"I don't like to think of the next big one, now that it is becoming crammed with life and property. Geologists don't even want to teach in the schools that have been built along the Fault.

★ ★ ★

"When the big shake comes, it will make the Alaska earthquake a couple years ago look like nothing, though that was the second heaviest documented quake next to the Tokyo earthquake of 1923."

OTHER NEWS

There was a respectful pause at our table at "21," some miles from the Fault, while Immermann took a caviar break.

Then I asked the internationally renowned engineer and designer if he had any other news aside from the impending fall of the House of Reagan.

"Yes," he said cheerfully. "Our company is doing the decor and other phases of the Boeing 747. We've been Boeing consultants for 20 years and more; built the full-scale mock-up of the 707 on the eighth floor of a slaughterhouse on 26th Street here in town — and I'd say that perhaps 400 sales were made from that model.

"Now the 747 is going to carry 400, maybe 500 passengers. We've been thinking of the waste product involved in long flights with that many people.

WHY NOT CONVERT IT?

"That waste contains billions of microorganisms. Why not convert the waste, while en route, into energy? Fuel cells, say, that could be a source of additional electrical power aboard the plane."

Be better than jettisoning it 35,000 feet over my old house in New Jersey, I warmly agreed.

Early Riser Gives View of Double Daylight Time

Those lame brains in Lansing that voted us double daylight savings ought to get up two hours ahead of the sun. And it's only August.

Michigan legislators voted themselves the third highest pay among the 50 states. So they join the rich and lie in their beds while the workers get up.

★ ★ ★

Michigan was already in the wrong time zone and so those third grade dropouts in Lansing add daylight savings and give us a double dose. We're the only such state in the union.

★ ★ ★

When do we vote again? I can hardly wait and that goes for the rest of the gang on my shift and we mean vote on who goes to Lansing.

More Comments on Recent Disturbances

Rep. Anderson's letter was rather appalling. It is agreed that laws are made for our protection and must be enforced at all costs. There was some hesitation to enforce the law at the outbreak of rioting in Detroit and this is regrettable. But perhaps Rep. Anderson should be reminded that when military strength was applied many of our American citizens lost their lives. This was necessary but it was regrettable.

You can build a wall of strength, but you can't stop the tide. As difficult as it may seem, it's time to start demanding that the promises of the Constitution be fulfilled for all Americans. Don't be soft, but be right.

GERALD McLEOD

Revolution comes from the word "revolve" and means a complete change. Do organizations that are talking revolution expect to accomplish this under capitalism with the same social system prevailing? How do they expect to better our economic conditions under the same profit system?

I'm for a complete change but I want it done without bloodshed. Our Constitution gives us this right.

SAMUEL HAGON
3110 GARDEN

Each year millions are raised for charity through a United Fund campaign. Why not a tax-exempt "urban fund?" Spending could be administered by either a special mayor's committee or the Hudson committee. Those unable to pledge money could vow commitment and involvement. We must not reconstruct those devastated areas of Detroit. We must pledge to wipe out inhuman conditions and build environmental and social greatness in the Detroit region.

GEORGE M. COLLINS
DETROIT

Our present "breakdown" so evident by the riots appears to be the symptom of a great illness in society. This chaotic holocaust reveals that many unsatisfactory factors have been brewing a long time. Extremists were swept into it, as were many underprivileged persons and their unsolved basic problems, and some of the young, impatient, poorly educated. The best education available to everyone may be the cheapest investment America can make.

★ ★ ★

One aspect of education is badly neglected and must be taken into consideration — moral teaching. Unless moral teaching (responsibility, fairness, good will) is taught from the ground up, practical education, vocational training and higher education will not be enough.

We have paid out of all proportion to what such a good, general program would have cost, had shortsightedness and neglect of broad generous education everywhere been otherwise, and solid education an integral part of our school system. Education cannot be given generously enough or widely enough so that your children may live in peace.

Russia's Power

London Economist

If they want to, the Russians now have it in their power to start the train of events that will set off the third world war, It will be very easy. All they have to do is to decide that the only way of repairing their power position in the Middle East is to back their Arab friends every inch of the way in the argument about what happens after Israel's victory.

Collision Course

Grand Rapids Press

The Michigan Legislature and the state's colleges and universities may be on a collision course as the result of appropriations bills.

One reservation prohibits the colleges and universities from enrolling more than 5 per cent of nonresident students above the level of 1966-7. And if the present enrollment of nonresident students exceeds 20 per cent no increase will be allowed. It will, says the Legislature, cost the school $600 for every nonresident student enrolled in violation.

★ ★ ★

This is an attempt to tell the colleges and universities how to run their affairs. Yet the 1963 constitution says flatly that the governing board of each school "shall have general supervision of its institution and the control and direction of all expenditures from the institution's funds."

The Constitutional Convention wanted to make sure that the autonomy was protected. It further stipulated that "the power of the boards of institutions of higher education shall not be limited by this section." In short — hands off.

The majority of legislators has agreed that it is up to the administrators to determine how many out-of-state students are good for its educational program and for the student body. One sure way to keep any university from becoming provincial is to keep its doors fairly wide open to students from other states and lands. In all instances, tuition fees for out-of-staters are substantially higher than for nonresidents. Moreover, thousands of Michigan students attend state colleges and universities in other states.

★ ★ ★

The two Michigan schools most likely to be affected by the Legislature's new rules, if they stand, are the University of Michigan and Michigan Technological University. They are the two with the highest proportion of nonresident enrollments. Grand Valley would be affected in a particularly distressing way.

It had 22 nonresident students last year. Under the new rule it would be permitted only 22, 24 in the next year, and 25 the following year. Its hopes of broadening its geographical appeal and of escaping provincialism would be defeated completely. As of the moment it has prospects of enrolling 40 nonresident students.

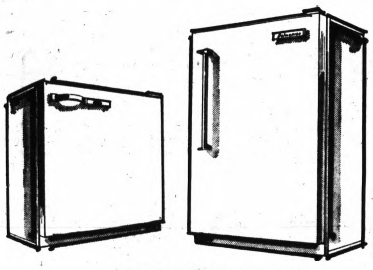

It is difficult to believe that the courts would uphold the Legislature's restrictions. Certainly a test should be made. Unhappily, no decision is likely to be forthcoming before the new school year starts. Those that may object to the Legislature's action will have no choice but to enroll the nonresidents and take a chance on losing $600 each on those above the quotas.

Tax Officials DO Have Hearts

CLEVELAND (NEA) — Don't ever believe that the men at Internal Revenue Service don't have hearts.

There's a lady in Cleveland who knows differently.

Alice Bolka, a payroll clerk, is getting a refund check for approximately $2,000 because IRS officials are convinced she has not claimed all deductions to which she is entitled.

And in this stranger-than-fiction case, the biggest problem of the tax men has been convincing Miss Bolka to accept the windfall.

* * *

HOSPITAL CARE

For the last three years of her life Mrs. Juplia Bolka required hospital care. The daughter paid all the medical expenses.

Even when the medical care totaled $7,781.50 in 1965 — more than her total income for the year — Miss Bolka did not complain. She used her savings to pay off the bills.

On her income tax return for that year, she claimed none of the medical expenses and even refused to list her mother as a dependent.

* * *

Hadn't her mother provided for her children during the 25 years she had been a widow? To the daughter it was unthinkable that now she should ever consider her mother as a dependent.

BORROWED $200

Miss Bolka borrowed $200 from Rudy in 1965 to pay her income tax.

Mrs. Bolka died last Oct. 16 at age 73. After deducting the Medicare benefits that had been paid, the daughter still paid $2,762 for medical care from her own funds.

When he made out her income tax return for last year, Rudy was successful in getting his sister to claim at least part of her mother's medical expenses. But she still refused to list her mother as a dependent.

* * *

Miss Bolka received a slight refund for last year.

CONTACTED IRS

About six weeks ago the brother telephoned the IRS and inquired if something couldn't be done in his sister's behalf.

Clifford W. Glotzbach, assistant director of Internal Revenue, was contacted and took charge of the case.

Reexamination of last year's return showed that Miss Bolka should get an additional $529 refund.

* * *

MAXIMUM DEDUCTION

For 1965 — the year the daughter paid out more than her salary for her mother's medical care — an $800 refund will be made.

It would have been higher but revenue agents could give her only the maximum medical deduction of $5,000 against the $7,781 paid.

Reopening the 1964 return, agents credited Miss Bolka with the $1,001 in medical bills she had paid and never claimed. She will get a refund of about $500 for that year.

* * *

For each year Miss Bolka, with some reluctance, permitted tax agents to list her mother as a dependent on her return.

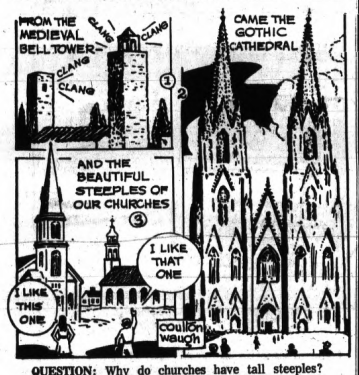

NOT CONFIRMED

Because of the government's ban on disclosing information on income tax returns Glotzbach could not confirm the figures given by the brother. He could only state that the records were being corrected.

"This only goes to prove," Glotzbach said, "that the government wants no more than it is legally entitled to and that it wants taxpayers to take advantage of all their deductions."

The daughter will have 6 per cent interest added to her refund check as soon as all the records are corrected.

QUESTION: Why do churches have tall steeples?

* * *

ANSWER: It is said that the churches of early Christian days often had small turrets or towers to suggest the idea of looking upward to spiritual things.

When churches in the medieval period began to build tall towers called campaniles—to carry the bells used to call congregations to worship—pointed structures on top were often added (1).

Bell towers became taller. The Gothic period with its tall pointed arches arrived—and campanile and spire fused into a majestic climax with the great Cothic cathedrals (2) which seem to actually soar into the sky, carrying the spirit of earth-bound man up to a higher religious feeling.

Because tall towers and steeples had this suggestion, they became used when churches were built in America.

If made of humbler materials than the Gothic cathedrals, the churches of America (3) provide the same inspiration: the tall towers and slender spires seem to point upward toward God.

Buffalo Bill, Annie Oakley

Steel Pier Stirs Up Memories

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — She sits behind a small desk in a cupboard of an office at the end of the Steel Pier and talks about the man she called Uncle Bill, Buffalo Bill Cody.

He sits behind a desk in a larger office on the second floor overlooking the Steel Pier and talks about the woman whose boots hurt her feet and who taught him to read and write, Little Annie Oakley.

She is Lorena Carver, a pretty Californian, the daughter of Doc W. F. Carver, a champion shooter and the originator of the American Wild West Show.

At the age of 11, in 1908, she became the first female to ride a horse as he dived from a high platform. The diving horse, one of the most famous acts in show business, and the longest-running, is a feature of the Steel Pier.

★ ★ ★

He is George Hamid, the man who owns the pier (built 66 years ago by Quakers), who came to America from Lebanon as a member of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show in 1907, at the age of 9, and whose story is The American Dream come true.

TOP PERFORMERS

The Steel Pier, which charges one price for all the entertainment attractions inside, attracts such performers as Louis Armstrong, Ricky Nelson, the Supremes, Edie Adams, Frank Sinatra Jr., and The New Vaudeville Band.

It's the last stronghold of vaudeville in America. And the first time George Hamid saw it, he was nearly penniless, 14 years old, and the leader of a troupe of 10 hungry Arab boys.

"We had $35. We were out of a job because Eva Tanquey, the 'I Don't Care Girl,' got mad about something and broke up her show.

★ ★ ★

There was a waitress at a restaurant down the boardwalk — it's still there — who liked one of the boys, so she let us have a lot of scraps. One day we were all out on the beach tumbling, doing our act to show off and stopping traffic.

The manager of the Steel Pier saw us and decided he should hire us. We were down to $1.50 at the time.

"Did I ever think I would own the pier? In those days all I was worried about was getting enough to eat and sending dollars home to my grandmother in Lebanon."

Miss Carver, who loves horses, believes water is a natural element for horses. "The world would never have been civilized had horses not liked water. How would people have gotten anywhere otherwise?"

DIVING HORSE — Lorena Carver, complete with horse, takes the plunge in this circa-1920 photo. Miss Carver, who now trains the horses that do the diving at the Steel Pier, took part in the act until 1938.

Flunk-Out Rate May Rise

Grade-Saving Mono Probed

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

BETHESDA, Md. — It's certain to happen at least once every year on every college campus.

There comes a knock at the health center's door and in slumps a pallid, wheezing, wet-eyed student. "Yes, what is it?" the doctor asks.

"Sir, I'm pretty sure I've got mono. I'm tired all the time and I can't study," the student hacks. "And I have a final coming up this week."

The student is behind in his work and is borrowing a little cram time. The physician knows it, but can't be sure he's not really telling the truth. So he's practically powerless in the face of a frantic, test-fearing student who claims he has mono. The student gets his excuse.

* * *

Mono — short for mononucleosis — has come to be the traditional grade-saver on the college campus. Because so little is known about infectious mononucleosis, students can claim it whether they have it or not and usually get away with it.

PATIENT TESTIMONY

The University of Maryland Student Clinic at nearby College Park reports that mononucleosis cases do increase significantly around exam time. Mono's symptoms are such that doctors must immediately depend on patient testimony, not tests, for diagnosis and treatment.

But the big mono mystery could end soon. The National Institute of Health is out to solve the mystery and, if it does, an NIH spokesman cracked, "the college flunk-out incidence could increase."

Infectious mono is also known as the kissing disease. It has been recognized world-wide as such for half a century. Virus is the best guess for its cause, but so far no virus or other infectious agent has been isolated from sufferers.

* * *

Symptoms are fatigue, malaise, chilliness, fever, sore throat and swollen lymph glands in the upper part of the body. Mono is a masquerader. It may resemble diphtheria, the stiff neck of meningitis, the abdominal pains of acute appendicitis, the rash of scarlet fever, the swelling around the eyes of trichinosis or the generalized abnormality of the lymph nodes which can be mistaken for leukemia.

LOOK FOR LINKS

Therefore, one of the objectives of the study (actually being conducted by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases) is to look for links mono may have with more serious or potentially fatal diseases.

"Most of the patients," said a NIAID technician, "are between 15 and 25. Mono is more severe in persons over 30, but is rare after 35.

"We receive reports of about 10,000 actual cases in this country a year, plus thousands more with mono symptoms. There is usually a rise in the number of cases in late spring, and a smaller rise again in October."

* * *

Mono, which is believed to be highly contagious (therefore the "kissing disease" tag), is diagnosed in a simple blood test in which the serum from the blood of patients with mono contains antibodies that will cause the clumping of red blood cells of sheep and horses.

MYSTERIOUS CHANGES

Also, the lymphocytes —specialized white cells of blood which, in mono, increase in number in proportion to other white cells — undergo mysterious structural changes.

Bed rest is the principal therapy, and perhaps mild sedatives to relieve symptoms. The mono-wise college student presumably takes an aspirin and climbs into bed with his books to cram for a belated exam.

While the annual mono incidence is relatively low, compared with other "minor" diseases, NIAID technicians fear far more people treat it as a cold or simply ignore it. The danger is obvious if the study should link mono to more serious problems.

* * *

Working with mono patients referred by private physicians, and with volunteers from the huge NIH complex, doctors and technicians are attacking mono's mysteries three ways: immunologic — learning about the body's responses to the disease; hematologic — concentrating on the function of a typical lymphocytes which are a hallmark of mono; virologic — tracking a mysterious agent in an attempt to show how the disease is transmitted.

SCIENTIFIC APPROACH

The viologic part is proving interesting, although NIAID people studying mono aren't too keen on having it publicized.

* * *

"Well," a spokesman reluctantly admitted, "the scientific approach is to look at all possibilities."

Which will explain walking into the NIAID mono lab and seeing a roomful of patients and volunteers kissing up a storm.

Trip by Family of 10 Described

JACKSON (AP)—A $10-a-day food budget, shopping around for motels with kitchenettes instead of television sets and swimming pools and a confidence in the generosity of relatives said Mrs. Leland B. Wilson, her nine children and the family pet on a six-week tour of the United States.

The family started from its home Ukiah, Calif., and stopped in Jackson to visit Mrs. Wilson's brother-in-law and his family, the H. L. Wilsons. Further stops at New York City; Washington, D.C.; Baltimore; Macon, Ga.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; and Los Angeles were also made.

* * *

Dr. Wilson a general practitioner, accompanied his brood as far as Omaha, Neb., for a reunion of the Wilson clan. But his wife braved the remainder of the journey without his support.

"They're pretty good travelers," Mrs. Wilson said, encompassing all, even the gray poodle. Her decision to take the jaunt was made slowly.

THOUGHT ABOUT IT

"I thought about it for weeks before I mentioned it," she said. She finally began the task of convincing her husband by saying the children should see their grandmother, who lives at Denver. The Omaha meeting pulled the family a little farther east, and soon a visit to Mrs. Wilson's father at Evanston, Ill., and on around the circuit, was scheduled.

* * *

She wanted to make the trip this year, before the oldest daughter, 18, leaves for school in the fall. "Once they start going away to college, they're hard to corral," she said.

* * *

Youngest child on the expedition was 6.

Problems with the 10-passenger station wagon were few, with a low tire which meant buying a new one in Nevada, on the second day of the trip, and a burned out brake lining at Chicago comprising the extent of difficulties.

ONE CHILD 'LOST'

Only one child was "lost." the incident happened at Evanston, when Mrs. Wilson guiltily admitted the half hour she asked 10-year-old David to wait in the library while she shopped stretched into an hour and a half. A policeman the child found took him at his word when told the grandfather and aunt hosting the group lived at Chicago. David's naivete about suburban areas and their separate names did not mar his remembrance that he was to meet his mother near the library, and the policeman spotted her right away when he went there. "He said I looked worried," Mrs. Wilson explained.

* * *

All other experiences were pleasant. At Salt Lake City, the family found a motel that offered one room for $7.88.

"Part of us stayed in the motel and part of us slept in sleeping bags outside," Mrs. Wilson says. At another motel, the entire family spent $15 for two large adjoining rooms with a kitchenette.

* * *

"I think there was a guardian angel of economy guarding over us," Mrs. Wilson says. Food bills were restricted by a budget that allowed $1 for breakfast cereal, fruit for lunch at the same price, and four $2 meals and sharing them for dinner.

Despite growing anti-American and leftist campaigns at Brazilian universities, two-thirds of Brazilians hold generally favorable opinions of the U.S.

PRESS SPOTLIGHTS FASHION FIRSTS

AP REPORTS—Biggest fashion news yet by Piccolino. Double knit jumper and color keyed sweater top in 100 per cent Acrylic is shown off to best advantage here by Gina Saporita, kindergartner at David Grayson School. Piccolino fashions are available at the Lion Store, Miracle Mile Center. Scott Sanders who will also begin school for the first time this fall at Carpenter, models a Penn-Prest no-iron plaid shirt with Penn-Prest slacks featuring diagonal rib weave and self-belt. His oxfords are wing-tipped black spruce grained leather. Fashions worn by Scott are available at Penneys, Miracle Mile Center.

TAPED TYPE—Just for the record on film or not, Mark Nelles of Cooley School will make history in his Billy the Kid pants of no-iron Dacron. With them he wears a Sire permanent press shirt and Little Gent sweater of 100 per cent Orlon. His outfit is from Federal's Department Store, Downtown. Kindergartner, Bonnie Turpin of Roper City and Country School, Bloomfield Hills, is about to make a lasting impression in this Winnie Pooh cotton print dress with traces of white outlining yoke and cuffs. Available at Sear's, Downtown.

PHOTO BEAT—A real action shot of what could one day be a great ballerina. Fetching little Jody Illes of Grayson School makes "the scene" in a Shepardess Acrylon brown jumper embroidered with ski design. Her white blouse features the classical Peter Pan collar—from the Lad and Lassie Shop at Miracle Mile Center. Dressed in typical photographer fashion is Kelly Lee of Manley School who looks the part in a cotton and Dacron poplin trench coat with Orlon pile lining. The fake fur collar is mohair and Orlon — available at Richards Boys and Girls Wear, The Pontiac Mall.

EXCLUSIVE—Here's that man again, this time filling in all the blanks on the newest story by "Girltown." Shelley Ann Crozier of Whitfield School tells all in an orange-yellow Nylon wool jumper with a bright applique felt flower. Her Nylon long sleeved shell and over-the-knee textured stockings are designed by Danskin. Completing the story are waxed tan loafers—all available at Jacobson's Children's Store, Birmingham.

HOT OFF THE PRESSES—A real headliner's outfit is the one modeled by Huddie Willse of West Bloomfield School (left). His Kentfield shirt and permanent press hopsack jeans are by Farah and sold at Waite's. Next to him is petite Kim Dalgard, a schoolmate who shows the typical woman's approach to the subject in a gold and navy plaid dress with drop pleats from the yoke. Her dainty look is expanded with the feminine news maker of a huge bow just under the crisp white collar. Arthur's, Downtown, handles this line. Pressman, Kelly Lee looks pleased with the early edition in his four-squared hat. This model was exclusively created by the "Pressman Couture" of The Pontiac Press.

PLATES CAST — Ready for the "first run" in this trio of school oriented ensembles. From left, Sharon Cummings, first grader at Riverside School, wears a skipper blue Millbrook machine washable jumper. Her matching Danskin patterned tights are on the top of fall's fashion list. Available at Tel-Huron Children's Shop. David Kaczmarek of Whitfield School models black permanent press slacks with a white and black pullover shirt of 100 per cent cotton. It is sold at Kmart, Glenwood Plaza. At far right, Robin Carey who attends Bailey Lake School in Clarkston shows real style with a navy sailor dress trimmed in white piping by "Infanette." It can be purchased at Neumode Hosiery, Downtown.

His "Arthur Winer" slacks are beltless with tapered legs in a reverse twist all wool worsted — from Dickinson's Menswear, downtown. Ferris Institute sophomore, Marge Cockle sits pretty in an "Evan Picone" A-line skirt with coordinated turtle neck sweater. Keep Child's Library Accurate, Current

A major dilemma facing students today — and one rarely encountered by their parents during their school years — is the difficulty in keeping up with facts and theories which are constantly changing or being disproved.

A child who learned the rudiments of a branch of chemistry in high school — or any of several science subjects, for example — today has to start almost from scratch, to re-learn vast bodies of new or different information when tackling the same subject in college, just a very few years later.

In fact, never before in history has the acceleration of human knowledge been so rapid, the changes in theory, fact and general information so numerous and complex.

As another example, there is the area of geo-politics. In the last eight years alone, there have been 39 brand-new nations formed, 15 countries have changed their names and 32 have changed their international borders, according to Hammond Inc., producer of maps, globes and atlases.

* * *

In fact, in compiling their just published "Citation" atlas, specifically designed for students and their budgets, the mapmakers found that 58 internal boundary changes were also necessary to conform with current world geographical conditions — along with more than 1,400 topographical changes and more than 2,500 city and town name changes.

Before the start of each school term, most educators today, and interested parents, are taking special care, therefore, to check the school and family reference books with which their students must work.

The basic recommended reference library for a family with children of school age should include at least the following:

- a recently published dictionary;
- a set of well-recognized and modern encyclopedia, with periodically issued supplements bringing it up-to-date!
- a copy of an authoritative and recently published atlas;
- this year's world almanac should also be considered almost mandatory.

Books such as a modern thesaurus and a recent biographical dictionary can also prove extremely useful.

* * *

For the danger to a student of working with out-of-date reference books and materials is more than just that of finding incomplete or inaccurate information. It is often also the danger of finding no information on a subject at all.

Anytime is the best time to discover yourself — to find out what makes you as you are.

Majority Married

The teaching profession may once have been a haven for bachelors and spinsters, but today about 80 per cent of the men and 63 per cent of the women in public school teaching are married.

Frosted Fruit Bars

Cookie Treat for Lunch Box

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

You can count the short weeks now before the beginning of another school year. Mothers may do it with a sigh of relief, whereas youngsters may be less enthusiastic.

If there is a lunch box in your immediate future, you'll want some new ideas for filling it.

This recipe for Frosted Fruit Bars came to us from a Mrs. Hartman. Unfortunately, she gave us no further information about herself. But she says, "Most children love these cookies for lunches."

FROSTED FRUIT BARS

1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup vegetable shortening
2 eggs
½ cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons instant coffee
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup crushed pineapple, drained
3 cups flour
1 cup quick oatmeal
1 cup chopped dates
1 cup raisins
1 cup nut meats

Cream sugars, shortening and eggs until fluffy.

Add milk, soda, salt, instant coffee, vanilla and pineapple.

Add flour, oatmeal, dates, raisins and nut meats. Mix well.

Spread on well greased 10x-15 cookie sheet. Bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees, or until cookies test done, as for cake.

If desired, drop by spoonsful on greased pan. Bake 10-12 minutes.

Latest Techniques Initiated

By ED BLUNDEN

The Bloomfield Hills School District will embark on a bold new educational program this fall, using the latest techniques and innovations.

The district is expected to be watched closely by educators around the country in the coming years to see how well the system works.

Called the Continuous Progress System, the district will be the first to have such a program from kindergarten through high school.

The plan will be initiated at the three schools that will open for the first time this semester — Way Elementary, East Hills Junior High and Lahser High.

★ ★ ★

It calls for each student to proceed in each subject at his or her own pace. This system has been in use at various schools and in various subjects for many years, but the Bloomfield district will be the first to incorporate it in its full range of classroom work.

SPECIAL CLASSES

During the summer the district's teachers have been taking special orientation classes in preparation.

Students will remain in groups that correspond with their age levels. But levels of achievement will vary with some students of the same age being ahead or behind the others.

It would be possible, for instance, for an "eight grader" to be at an actual 10th grade in one subject and sixth grade in another.

★ ★ ★

Officials say with the system each individual is encouraged to attain the highest abilities he is capable of in the various fields of study.

Encouraging individual motivation to study is a primary goal. The district provides various supplementary programs for students who do not adapt well in any or all aspects of the system.

Individualized instruction and counseling is expected to aid students having difficulties.

Children will not receive grades, as such, until after grade 7. Periods for testing will not be on a regular, school-wide basis, but on individual progress.

Parents will be kept informed of their children's progress through conferences.

School hours and the school year will remain traditional. More advanced students who complete high school requirements will be given courses for which college credit could be given.

Educators are expected to watch the district's progress in this and coming years. It is expected much can be learned there that could be of use to other schools.

BOY, DID HE GET A RIGHT NUMBER! — At least that's what petite Ann Pullis of Pontiac Northern High School reflects in her smile. Winkelman's, The Pontiac Mall, provided Ann with this winning combination. Her "Bryant 9" jumper in black watch plaid has the surprise bonus of a kiltie skirt. Under it she wears a white pullover turtle neck sweater with minibib.

Moist Air Stops Autumn Sniffles

CHICAGO (UPI) — Back to school often means back to sniffles.

★ ★ ★

One company which makes humidifying equipment says the onslaught of fall colds are to be blamed not so much on changeable weather as on the "dryness of heated rooms in school and home."

★ ★ ★

Heating the indoor air dries it, explained Burton Shaffer, executive vice-president of Hamilton Humid-Aire.

★ ★ ★

The dry air in turn leads to parched nose and throat membranes which doctors say are more vulnerable to cold germs. Humidifiers combat the dry air.

What Lady Wants, Lady Gets

NAPERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A women's residence hall on the campus of North Central College is designed and outfitted on the principle of giving the lady what she wants.

★ ★ ★

An advisory committee composed of women students, a few men and administrative personnel provided the architects with the information on what she does want.

In the recently completed Rall Hall for 142 women, the architects, Fridstein & Fitch of Chicago, say they have achieved the main goal of a home-like environment without an institutional look.

An L-shaped structure eliminates long "bowling alley" corridors.

Furniture is movable with no built-ins. The girls wanted to create their own arrangements. A combination of desks, hutches and dressers was installed.

MORE PRIVACY

There is more privacy with each group of six rooms having its own lounge and washroom.

Storage closets for out-of season clothing, long evening gowns and luggage are provided.

A main lounge with free-standing fireplace helps create a home-like atmosphere.

★ ★ ★

Quick press jobs are practical with built-in ironing boards in upstairs lounges.

Fast coffee making is made easy with water heater-coolers.

Culinary skills can be shown to boyfriends in a kitchen especially designed for this purpose.

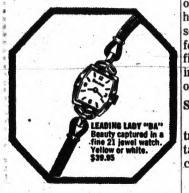

★ ★ ★

Architect Marvin Fitch said the precast concrete and brick hall represents all of the requests of the committee, including a sun deck screened with multicolored canvas squares screening the men's dorms next door . . . and higher," he said.

Babies Graduate

Evidence that the leading edge of the post World War II "baby boom" has about completed high school is seen in the National Education Association report that there were 2.4 million high school graduates this year, an increase of only 1 per cent compared with increases of 16 and 17 per cent in the years immediately preceding.

Prevent Youngsters' Reading Problems

By LOIS MANDIBERG

Parents of preschool age children can consciously prevent reading problems before they occur, according to Dr. Daniel Briggs, director of Reading and Language Center for Oakland Schools.

"If a child appears interested in learning to read and print — encourage him. If the child shows no inclination while a preschooler — don't attempt to force an interest.

"The desire to read is a maturational thing and children reach that point at different times," he commented.

Briggs suggested that parents begin reading to their children while they're still very young. He recommended the little children's books with pictures.

"There books are meant to be read to children; not read by them," he emphasized pointing out that many of the books were on a sixth or fifth grade reading level while the subjects were of preschool level.

READ ALOUD

Reading aloud allows the child to familiarize himself with word sounds and learn to grasp the general meanings of total sentences and words.

Briggs also suggested that parents ask their children to retell the story in their own words. This helps the child to understand the entire story and learn how to pull meaning out of the story as a whole and speak in entire sentences.

Store catalogues are excellent for word-picture association exercises Briggs points out. It's a solid way of teaching children how to identify tools and toys for example and connect them with their word names quickly. Start this exercise at age 2 he suggested.

* * *

He also suggested frequent trips to the library reading hours. This puts the child in the habit of going to the library and enjoying his stay with the librarian who reads to him and asks questions.

Parents should also take out books regularly to read to the child and books for the child to read himself. These latter books should have some texture, like raised letters or pop-up pictures according to Briggs.

Chicago Schools

Ninety per cent of Chicago's Negro youngsters attend all-Negro schools (97 per cent attend majority-Negro) and, rather than diminishing, segregation has actually intensified in recent years.

Polish Shoes

White buckskin shoes can be cleaned by a scrub with soap and water . . . It may sound strange, but it's important to put a high polish on shoes before storing them. Lubrication will keep them in better shape . . . A moistened chamois will remove dog hair from clothes, and will not harm the fabric.

Educator Deplores School Life

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Education today is in "seething ferment," Alfred T. Hill, executive secretary of the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges said in a visit to St. Louis.

"It is characterized by fluidity, flexibility, adaptability, pressures, inter-institutional cooperation, community relations, international exchanges, computerized business methods, federal financing, electronic teaching devices and others," Hill said.

He believes "gone are the good old days of academic serenity."

He said "education by design" is a subtle method of creating an environment for learning by the next generation.

* * *

If students are shown examples of good taste, they will learn to recognize and appreciate them and will never be satisfied with the cheap and tawdry, he maintains.

STERILE ATMOSPHERE

"If you put young people in an impersonal, efficient, unsentimental antiseptic, colorless environment and keep them under severe pressure and tough competition for four years, you will tend to produce a generation of colorless, unimaginative, uncreative and timid conformists," he said.

"They will have no roots, no loyalties, no dreams, no individuality.

"If you set before them examples of cheapness and poor taste, they will become accustomed to cheapness and poor taste.

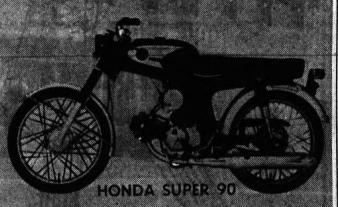

* * *

"If you give them no noble or beautiful tangible things with which to identify, they will become suckers for whatever is the latest political, religious or sociological fad."

Original Art

'Sheepskin' Paintings Are an Education

By LYDIA BICKFORD

When the time comes for my three children to find suitable art for their homes, they'll have no problem at all.

They can hang up a diverse collection of parchment scrolls proclaiming that they are honorable doctors of philosophy, holders of two master's of arts in educational psychology, certificates that they are able to speak Spanish (after six weeks' study in Madrid), and of course, humble bachelor's in artis cum dignitate from the undergraduate college now nearly forgotten.

If there's any space left, they can tuck in the Red Cross Life-saving citation, which at least has some practical value.

For all this parchment, they have paid a heavy price.

They have had alarming weight losses at exam time. They have wrestled dirty dishes at restaurants, calmed hysterical children while baby-sitting, and manicured lawns.

They have read their eyes out, written reams of footnoted papers, holed up in library stacks to do obscure research, and eschewed sports, socializing, and cultural events.

As they moved up the academic ladder, the jobs became somewhat more intellectual. One son corrected 120 freshman English papers and taught a course in poetry while writing his own contemplations on Shakespeare and commuting 150 miles each day to his own university.

But even far from the campus, academic cares are a constant companion. The children go aboard an aircraft with 40 pounds of books and four pounds of clothes.

The siesta hour on the coast of Spain or Grand Abaco Island is given over to floor-pacing, and dialogues on real meaning of Shakespeare's couplets.

A course in frenzied French needed for the doctorate rages in the evening. But still there are blissful moments of carefree snorkeling.

I'm glad I'm not properly educated. My B.A. would shrivel alongside all these advanced degrees I am not fluent in Spanish and French.

But in my academic life, I found time to play cricket, go to fraternity parties, sing in the touring Glee Club, and enjoy a fast tennis game. What price today's education?

STEPPING DOWN — From the higher realm of fashion is this marigold diagonal wool coat with Dior inspired collar. Mothers Beware, Prepare

Timetable Returns in Autumn

Back to school means back to work for mothers who usually have a hiatus from tight schedules during the summer months.

But with the advent of fall the smart housewife will start now to organize her time so that school schedules, meeting schedules, and the hundred other appointments that must be kept during the year don't become a nightmare of confusion.

It's a simple matter to keep ahead of yourself. Here are compiled some tips to organize your time more efficiently.

The first step is to accustom yourself to a regular routine, this simple practice will keep you on schedule.

* * *

Second, pick a day on which you plan to begin being on time. Then, the evening before, invest a few minutes in writing a list. You'll reap benefits from then on. For instance:

● LIST the whole family's daily (and weekly, if you make a chart) appointments on a kitchen bulletin board that is scheduled in half-hour appointments just like a man's daily business calendar. Begin with breakfast—when to start preparations, and when you will serve it. Then fill in the time to wake Dad and the children.

● LIST on your same calendar departure times for the whole family. If you must drive the children to school, cross out the time you will be away from home, but have something listed for when your return — maybe a second cup of coffee, and then do the breakfast dishes immediately.

● LIST all the phone calls for the day, and instead of interrupting other work each time you think of someone, make them in batches. If one line is busy go on to the next call. Save time by having a separate list next to the telephone of numbers frequently called and emergency numbers. Keep a record of area code numbers so out-of-town calls can be made without delay. Then, check off completed calls, and put uncompleted calls on the next day's group.

● LIST the day's errands. Plan your stops systematically. If the tailor is located between the supermarket and bakery, visit each establishment in order. Doubling back is a time-waster.

● LIST food needs by categories that include the things your family likes. Then when you make out each day's shopping list the right meats and vegetables will come quickly to mind.

● LIST measurements of your family. You can save precious shopping time by having these statistics on a little card in your wallet.

● LIST instructions. These can be guidelines for the baby sitter, or how to change a fuse. It saves time and assures accuracy when a step-by-step description is provided for household functions.

* * *

Lists are designed to help to get things done. But it must be adhered to for results. You will keep on schedule by keeping on time. To do that always wear your watch.

'Telephone Stomp' Removes Tension

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lots of action occurs at both ends of the line when teen-agers telephone one another.

They jump, hop on one foot, wave an arm. They assume geometric positions one never thought the anatomy capable of —a combination of the twist, frug, tumbling, jerk and a harmless convulsion.

The teen-agers are getting rid of pent-up sexual energy and also defending the ego when they do these things, Dr. Gerald H. Pearson explained in "Adolescence and the Conflict of Generations" Norton.

By blabbering over the phone for long periods, the adolescent with a weak and helpless ego feels the ego grows strong—via the addition of the other person's ego.

Meanwhile, if you're confused by dress, mannerism and other adolescent actions, hear this:

"The adolescent wields the magic of dress, mannerisms and action in the hope of achieving instant identity . . . it always appears easier to change externals than himself."

MAKES POINT

Dr. Richard Galdston, of Harvard Medical School, made that point in "Mental Hygiene," quarterly of the National Association for Mental Health.

"The boy who judges himself to be weak and fearful takes to cowboy boots and a beard and becomes tough," he said.

"The girl who finds her power over boys to be wanting wears eyeshadow and black stockings and thereby becomes a femme fatale.

And the high school genius down on the farm who finds himself in the lower third of his college class carries French novels on the subway and sports Ivy League clothes."

Dr. Galdston, analyzing some current adolescent behavior patterns, said the adolescent's most compelling task at this time is the establishment of a sense of self-confidence in place of reliance upon parental faith.

"The quest for self-confidence presses him to pursue a route filled with detours, obstacles, dead-ends, and superhighways leading nowhere," he said.

Take the use of alcohol, marijuana, LSD, and other drugs. Dr. Galdston said these produce the mental experience of movement and change.

Praise Him for Efforts in Studies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — So you want to help your child learn a second language?

In the booklet, "Modern Foreign Languages and Your Child," the U.S. Office of Education makes the following points to assist you:

● Motivation and attitude have been found to have a greater influence on success in learning a language than does I.Q. Parents are urged to encourage their child's efforts, recognize his progress, and attach importance to his achievement.

● Parents can help children find time and a place for daily practice of the new language. Daily use is more useful than a long session once a week.

● Helping a child build an interest in the country and people whose language he's learning will help sustain his interest in the language.

● Records, books or magazines in the language are good study aids that can be provided by parents.

Support of the School's foreign language program is another way in which parents can help.

One example of an outstanding school program is the Spartanburg, S.C., method of bringing teachers from France to teach French.

PATTER OF LITTLE FEET — Across school courtyards in the area, this rythmic sound of fashion has a toe-in. Shown (from top down) is "Boxer" an elasticized heel boy's slipon . . . Experience Limitations Handicap Slow-Students

The academically privileged—those students who learn easily, remember well, and perform dazzingly at exam time — can't possibly put themselves in the shoes of the non-learner.

Lots of adults have the same difficulty.

And it's this one big stumbling block that hampers consistent achievement programs for the slow student, and often turns them into stop-and-go efforts.

Here's what Superintendent Aleda Druding in Philadelphia reports:

"Many children have vocabularies so limited that they are unable to speak in sentences. 'Huh?' 'Out!' plus a number of curse words may be their entire repertoire.

* * *

"The experiences such children have had are so limited that stories in their primers will not make sense to them.

TENEMENT HOMES

"The majority of these children — and their parents—have not been farther from their tenement homes than 25 blocks. They have not seen motion pictures, eaten in a restaurant, or ridden on a bus.

"Children may come to kindergarten without knowing their own names. 'Big Boy' or 'Brother' is the only name they have heard at home.

"Hundreds of children have never brushed their teeth or bathed regularly. Mother has never shown them how.

* * *

"Many children will fall asleep in class because they find it difficult to sleep at night in the noisy room they share with three or four other children and adults."

So how do you start giving these children the mere skeleton of an academic education?

In this particular Philadelphia district, the children had to be taught to speak in full sentences before they could read. Imaginative teachers used puppets, toy telephones and films to help.

* * *

Working with the classroom teacher on a school-community coordinating team are a counselor, a school nurse, the principal, reading specialists and others.

FLEXIBILITY

Tactics and techniques are flexible. Sometimes team teaching is used. Sometimes specialists take over while the classroom teacher watches the success of a new approach.

Tests disclosed that the children could understand spoken ideas which were completely baffling when read. So the teams redoubled their efforts to make the printed word mean something.

Art reproductions are shown to bring something of the aesthetic to children who don't know what beauty is.

* * *

Practical classes in making curtains help brighten tenement homes—and also make a bridge between school and community.

To make the bridge even stronger, a non-professional coordinator is on a never-ending round of visits to parents, explaining, relating, encouraging, forever trying to break down such attitudes as: "What's the good of school? Johnny's never going to get to be anybody."

It's grinding work that requires faith in those who previously were disregarded as "poor academic risks."

Research Centers Influence Education

By JEAN SAILE

A new concept in elementary education which has introduced the fourth "R" to the old readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic rote of learning is changing many students' opinoin of school.

The fourth "R" is research as provided for in research centers in use in the Utica Elementary School District since 1958 and now finding their way into several Oakland County schools.

It's the carrot before the horse, educators say, for fast-learning students, an enticement to get them to hurry and finish class assignments so that they can browse at will in another room, totally different in desiga from any classroom of the past.

The carpeted room, equipped with learning machines to simplify the complex for slower students and with other material to excite their curiousity, is designed to meet the needs of all types of students, proponents say.

* * *

Independent research, triggered by home-provided exhibits promoted through a variety of means.

There are film strips, educational TV channels, recordings, projectors, slides, micro-viewers, reading machines, books and laboratory facilities.

In the center of each research center is an island complete with sink. Here stands an aquarium, a miniature greenhouse, and an electric microscope. Children are quick to keep the island stocked, teachers say.

Furniture in the centers seems a bit sparse, but educators note that this also has a purpose. The floor is carpeted and since children, by nature, prefer to sit on the floor, groups are able to move in and out without the need to plan for seating space.

* * *

Accoustics in the large irregular rooms allow for many types of activity at once with little sound carry-over.

Utica educators who were the innovators of the surrounding area in regard to use of the research rooms are voluble in their praise.

"We're convinced that these centers are the best way we've found to give the children an opportunity to be creative and independent," said Utica Supt. Philip Runke.

"They learn early to develop good study habits and to look up material on their own."

In the lead with the new hardware look is Carina, an easy slip-on. Following the beat is Sandy, a fashion leader with three buckle fastenings. Bringing up the rear is the long time favorite, Lambchop, the penny loafer. Providing the high stepping tune is a cornet from Edward's, downtown.

Educator Balks at Mistruths

An educational consultant with a penchant for nailing a fallacy to the wall recently spent a lunchtime pointing up some widely accepted mistruths.

"There's a theory that as long as the teacher keeps on talking, the child is learning," said Dr. Stanton Leggett. "So we develop non-stop talkers. The poor child doesn't have a chance."

"How do people learn? Psychologists have discovered there is no one set way. Mainly, I feel it is getting a kid involved in something useful to himself and to his school."

Describing a program at the Exeter School in Exeter, N. H., Dr. Leggett said that certain students were released from all formal classes for two months, and turned loose to create what they wished.

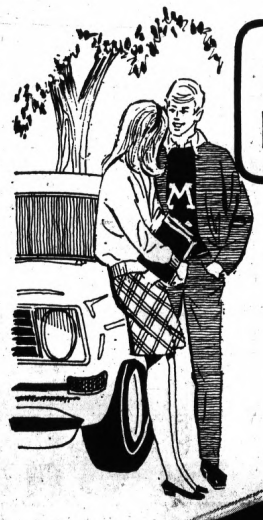

★ ★ ★

"Some doubters thought the students might do nothing, but they worked harder than in class," he said. "One wrote a play which was good enough to be produced at the school.

"There are all kinds of ways of imparting learning. In Richmon, Va., science teachers have built a 'froggery,' an absorbing kind of aquarium for students to watch.

Teen Shop Highlights the Latest

The Birmingham Pickwick Shop swung open its door for business in March and has really electrified the teen-scene shopping as a result. This is the third in a line of shops for the fashion-conscious swinging set.

Mrs. Ida Goldman is the manager.

"If there is something new and we haven't got it, it's because it's on its way!" said Mrs. Goldman.

"I don't want any look in my shops except what's newest, smartest, and the look we feel is right for the contemporary youth-minded buyer that desires originality in their dress."

ERRORS INDICATED—Instructor Alfred Pavlish, coordinator of data processing instruction for Waterford Township Schools, points out logic errors on source program cards to Paul Klemm, 16, of 3060 Edgefield, Waterford Township. The machine they are standing in front of is a printer. Paul was a student in a recent night course on computers offered to junior high and senior high students, aged 13-16, in the Waterford Township School District.

Clothes Buys Interest Teens

Many a teen-age girl is spending her vacation time refurbishing her wardrobe for school.

Practicality and economy are their watchwords, as they search through the department stores.

Major purchases for the majority, according to a survey by a teen magazine, are a new raincoat, with an average cost of $11.88; a jumper; three regular-length skirts; four blouses; a pair of long pants; a pair of flats for school and a pair of sneakers; and a pair of leather boots.

Very cost-conscious, the young shoppers paid only $9.93 for the boots, $3.26 for a new belt, and $4.19 for a new wallet.

* * *

They found stockings for less than a dollar a pair, ankle socks for 97 cents, and half-slips for $2.75.

When asked what they purchased for fun or work, the majority had invested in a new ball point pen for $1.06, and stationery for $1.23.

Time Concept Hard to Learn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tiny children tell time only one way: they know when it's time to eat.

Learning what time means takes a long time, child experts say and generally, a child is 9 years old before he understands just how long a month is.

As Dr. Robert L. Fawcett, medical director of Good Housekeeping's medical center once explained, to a small child, time is a "vast eternal."

Sometimes between the age of 2 and 3 he gets some idea that time is broken up into past, present and future.

* * *

When he is about 4, he begins to speak of things as happening in the past or coming up in the future.

But Fawcett points out that it isn't an adult understanding of the past. A 4-year-old who says "Do you remember when I used to sing a little song at night," may be talking about something that happened four nights ago or 14 months ago.

When a child is about 5, a mother can begin to teach him about time by mentioning specific hours.

She can say that the child's father comes home at 7 p.m. or that they will go to the park at 3 p.m. She can tell him to come indoors when the noon siren sounds.

Dr. Benjamin Spock says parents can help a child learn about time by giving him the idea that it is his job to get to school on time.

"A child hates to miss things even more than his mother hates to have him miss them," Spock explains in his book, Baby & Child Care. "That's the best mainspring to move him along."

One of the best and simplest ways to teach a child about time was pioneered 20 years ago by Vernet Johnson. The idea is to have a child learn about time by helping construct an inexpensive paper clock.

A paper plate with 12 numbers on it will do, although play clocks can be bought. Just attach two cardboard arrows of different length with a brass paper fastener.

* * *

To start, set the hands at the time when the child's father comes home. Then tell the child to watch for a real clock to match the hands on the paper clock.

Sounding Board Vents Frustrations

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI) — Students at Rockford College have found an off-beat way to express their views on subjects from faculty quality to the war in Vietnam.

Students maintain a "Sounding Board," a five by eight feet bulletin board, for posting letters, which must be signed.

Sometimes the subject matter is a blast at the quality of food on campus.

Associate dean of Students Milan J. Divina said one interesting letter was posted recently "with a piece of French toast attached to illustrate the writer's opinion."

How to Entertain

The Little One Left Behind

By BEA SWORDS

When school begins you may be minus another pair of pattering feet, but still have one lonely set left over for a year or two.

The child that must wait for his turn to start school usually misses his absent partner terribly. It is a special problem, but you can help him adjust to it.

Here is a small composite of the kind of things professional nursery school people do to keep small fry busy and thinking.

A busy box is essential. This is a shoe box filled with colored aoil (as in candy wrappers), snips of yarn, scraps of calico, string, large sequins and other pasteables.

★ ★ ★

Precut colored paper fish, houses and animals for the child to paste these treasures onto.

ANOTHER IDEA

A variation of this is an old wallpaper book and a stack of magazines accompanied by blunt scissors.

Keep fat crayons, beginners' pencils, paper and library paste on hand.

Someday, when you really feel up to it, let your child experiment with water color paints.

★ ★ ★

If you can, let the child work at your kitchen table or maybe a smaller table in your kitchen. Make it a household misdemeanor to leave the table with crayons, etc.

It is recommended that you read to your child.

This will stimulate his interest in books and make his coming school years happier.

★ ★ ★

Don't act as though reading were a chore. It can be a real help if your child will curl up quietly with a book once in awhile.

CAREFUL CHOICE

Try to choose books the child will like — about the things he likes to do or something he might like. Reading should be an experience and not a bore.

Often with very small children it isn't so much the idea of having them understand what you're talking about — they just like to be held on your lap and talked to.

Don't overlook the necessity of letting your child widen his group of friends.

★ ★ ★

It might be possible for you to enroll your child in a nursery class for one or two days a week.

BULLETIN BOARD

Be sure to keep a bulletin board of what the children are doing in school, home or nursery class. Tack up the big orange flowers and strange creatures they bring home, it lets them know you care.

If you don't send your child to a nursery school, you will run into the friend situations.

If your child has trailed after the older one he may want now to build his own relationships.

★ ★ ★

Remember, just because you don't care for Johnny's mother doesn't mean your child won't be absolutely wild about Johnny.

Be just as fair with the child visitors as you are with your own. If you won't let your own cat in the living room, make it an all-covering law.

It's fun to surprise children. Let them have a tea party, an ice cream bar or bowl of pop corn.

★ ★ ★

If you like to bake, take time to let your child roll out a piece of dough and cut a cookie or two. Make a small cake or pie for him in a little dish as a treat.

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

Children love excitement in things — even little things — like a visit to the laundromat, dry cleaners, etc.

Let your child see what does happen inside a washer — or let him stop to watch the Department of Public Works people tearing up sidewalk.

These added little patiences help you and help your child know — mother is also a friend and can be company.

A lonely child needs reassurance and an introduction to the fact that he has his own life to lead.

O It matters not how long we live, but how. — Philip J. Bailey, English poet.

Boston Schools Are Topic of Book

"Village School Downtown," by Peter Schrag, is a report on urban school issues as they are being fought out in one significant major city.

The reviewer is a research psychiatrist for the Harvard University Health Services and has worked with parents' groups in the Boston Schools.

"The Village School" that persists in the downtown Boston area and many similar areas is one more part of an outdated, unjust world we still seem to cherish.

Peter Schrag tells us why it persists, and gives example after example of what we might do, were we interested in lively, vital children rather than ones who will do what they are told when the orders come down from "above."

Once Meant Just Horse

In the horse and buggy days of our grandparents, the term grooming needed no explanation. One groomed one's horses — brushed, trimmed, combed them . . . according to how one valued them.

Children in particular insisted on their favorite pony's tail being braided and tied with a beautiful red ribbon.

★ ★ ★

By extension, good grooming meant doing something with oneself, using soap and water in generous amounts.

We have never had it so good, says the National Institute of Drycleaning. From lye soap and washboards we have come to push-button automatic washers and dryers and the clothes care services of the professional drycleaner.

Creating a New Home Away From Home Is Fun

By JUNE ELERT

The nation's college dormitories will be opening their doors this fall to thousands of youngsters who may never have been away from home for extended periods before.

The dormitories at Oakland University provide an example of modern styling with the accent on practicality. And in their unoccupied state, their appearance is not likely to compare favorably with the coziness of home.

Each room contains a single bed for each occupant (one, two or three depending on the size of the room), built-in desks, study chairs, closets, individual bureaus of a mini-variety, storage bolster, mirror, some kind of window blind, and a wastebasket or two.

The stark concrete walls and striped mattress ticking bear a striking resemblance to a prison cell. Homesickness is likely to increase on sight.

* * *

To banish this initial antipathy, look upon the empty room as a frame, into which each occupant will put something of herself to make a finished canvas.

GETTING ACQUAINTED

For a time, when each new student's room is located and her luggage carried in, confusion will be king. After introductions have been made, surroundings will be ignored while strangers make initial forays into the exciting business of making friends.

Then linens will be discovered and gossip will continue while beds are made. If the students have had some advice from older hands, prior to arrival, bedspreads and curtains may be unearthed from the pile of belongings, and so the first bold strokes will be daubed upon the canvas.

Unpacking will take care of the hollow look of the closets. The essentials for bath and beauty care will establish a fragrant garden upon the bare plateaus of the bureaus.

* * *

If the room is shared by two or more persons, one will be sure to have a radio, another perhaps a typewriter, a record-player, maybe even skis.

Soon all that awesome empty space will be crowded with bits and pieces of this and that, and one will be saying to the other, "What shall I do with this? There's no place to put it!"

Senior Norlene Smith's room in Hill House is comfortably furnished and decorated, with some touches of home that tell of an interest in things domestic. She and her roommate of last year made the matching twin bedspreads and window drapes.

A full-length mirror in which to check her appearance from top to toe is the primary addition she has provided for her own satisfaction. The room is uncluttered. Toilet articles are arranged neatly on the bureau.

BOLSTER STORAGE

Non-essentials are stored out of sight in the bolster over her bed. Books and hatbox, tissues and jewel case are lined up in organized manner on the shelves over the desk. A matching throw-rug completes the atmosphere of a "home-away-from-home."

Meg Secoy, also Hill House senior, has built an interesting collage. The walls over her bed are covered with fascinating items: An enormous color photo of the New York skyline at night; an advertisement for The Radio City Music Hall; a New York Yankees baseball cap; a limp-looking deflated balloon — all have prominent places.

They were sent to Meg by her boyfriend, Robert Skollar, who lives in the Bronx. Several snapshots of him also adorn the walls.

* * *

The ledge of the storage bolster accommodates a couple of raffia-covered wine bottles used as vases for field flowers. Over her desk is a conglomeration of articles crowded so closely that from a distance they might be wallpaper.

A mountain scene in oils occupies an upper corner of the desk, and several water-color sketches done by girlfriends are prominently displayed. Cartoons, cut-outs, a Soupy Sales tie, a drawing of Linus (of the Charley Brown gang), all add to the "Mod" atmosphere.

The topper is a huge portrait of Bill Cosby taped overhead like a guardian angel.

So, with a little time, and some effort, and at very slight expense, the empty room is transformed from a frame into a portrait. It will speak to the visitor unmistakably of the interests and enthusiasms of its occupant. And it will surround its occupant with an aura of closeness to things held dear.

Free Educational Program

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — "You've got to keep busy or you'll get old," said John Hobart, 71, as he left a classroom at the University of Kentucky.

Hobart, a retired engineer, is one of dozens who take part in the university's unique Donovan Fellowship Program, which offers free education for people over 65.

He is taking courses in art, piano and voice. Although he earned his master's degree years ago, he had never before studied in any of these three fields.

There are no requirements for senior citizens taking part in the program. They don't have to have any particular level of previous education. They don't even have to live in Kentucky.

The program was begun in 1963 and was named in honor of the late Dr. Herman Donovan, who then was president emeritus of the university and who dreamed it up.

"We've already been asked by a number of colleges and universities to tell them how the program works," Dr. Earl Kauffman, who administers the Donovan program, said.

* * *

Kauffman said other colleges and universities have offered free education for senior citizens, but that Kentucky is the only school where the program has its own central office on campus.

Pontiac Catholic High Opening Delayed

By BOB WISLER

Catholic students at the "new" Pontiac Catholic High School might have some difficulty adjusting when they return to school this fall.

Although the name is new the school is as familiar as an old friend.

The students returning for the most part attended either St. Michael's or St. Frederick's High Schools last year and instead of going to planned $1,700,000 modern high school they'll be attending classes at St. Michael or St. Frederick's.

That's because the new Pontiac Catholic High School which at one time was planned for occupancy this fall is still under construction and won't be completed until some time next year.

UNITED EFFORT

Fr. Valentine S. Kurmaniak, pastor of the school, believes that he may witness a sort of "sociological phenomenon" as the students who maintained fierce loyalties to either St. Michael's or St. Frederick's become one student body.

Boys who formerly were staunch athletic rivals will now find themselves playing on the same team. And, each of the two Catholic High School student bodies will have to begin cheering on a new home team.

Present arrangements call for St. Michael's to be used for the 11th and 12th grades and St. Frederick's to be used for 9th and 10th grades.

★ ★ ★

The faculty — 18 nuns and nine lay persons — might have to do a little commuting, especially if they are teaching subjects which both the higher and lower grades are being taught, Fr. Kurmaniak said.

For the most part, though, the pastor does not envision any serious problems in conducting classes. The total enrollment should be about 500, he said.

Fr. Kurmaniak said the Pontiac Catholic High School, being built on Giddings at Walton is scheduled to be completed in the first part of 1968.

If everything goes well this year's seniors could graduate from the new facilities.

The school now taking shape will have 24 teaching stations, which includes classrooms, library and laboratories. It will have a Norwegian brick facing. These are larger and more textured than standard bricks and have a "sunset" coloring.

The school will have two courtyards and is designed so that students are afforded different views as they walk through the corridors.

Contained on a spacious 80-acre parcel, the school can eventually accommodate 1,000 and 1,400 could be served if new classrooms are added.

★ ★ ★

The gym will seat 2,000. There is also a large music area, a science area and lecture halls between the science laboratories.

The school was designed by Glen Paulsen & Associates of Birmingham. They are hoping that weather conditions which hampered construction plans considerably will allow rapid progress in the next six months.

Waterford Calendar

The 1967-68 school calendar for the Waterford Township School District is as follows:

University Freshmen Take Note

What can the male freshman expect when he enrolls at the University of Michigan? Most have had a taste of the university's long lines while suffering through the ordeal known as summer orientation.

One finds that most of the time from registration until classes begin is free. This allows the newcomer to wander around campus and familiarize himself with the university.

More importantly he has leisure time to meet and get acquainted with his roommates and the men on his hall.

During the nights before classes numerous lawn dances and mixers are held. These provide an excellent opportunity to meet the girls in your class, however, many of them are unavailable due to the large packs of upperclassmen who descend vulture-like upon the mixers.

* * *

If the mixer is a good one, and most of them are, one weaves through the crowd until finding an unattached girl who would like to dance.

NUMBER OR NO

There is a tendency to have a split personality at larger universities (a chronic ailment during registration); am I Ralph Schmidt or 955 547 6?

At Michigan there is a concentrated effort to ease this problem. Most freshman counselors are extremely helpful. Impressive and vital accomplishment has been achieved in Michigan's campaign to make mass education more personal in the classroom.

One has lectures two days a week, say Monday and Wednesday and class instruction on Tuesday and Thursday. Classes vary in size from 15 to 30 students while lectures sometimes go above 500.

The work load at Michigan surprises few students. They expect to be busy and most are not disappointed.

First one learns how to study, this seems to be the ability to really concentrate, then there is a sixth sense that one develops which tells a student what to study.

The veteran student has a feeling for material which must be learned in detail and material which can be weeded out. Many freshman don't know how to study because they never had to at high school.

* * *

Another area in which Michigan has done some important work is in preparing incoming freshmen for lower grades. This may sound negative, but obviously only a few are going to be A students at college whereas almost everybody was an A or at least B student at their high school.

TOP STUDENT

Many a student who was a top student at his local high school will become depressed when he discovers though working constantly, he's only getting C's and D's.

However, by the second semester if the student learns to study, his grades will come up.

After a few weeks of classes, fraternity rushing begins. Fraternity life is optional at Michigan, at some schools it is mandatory from a social standpoint. Only about 20 per cent of the men at Michigan belong to a fraternity. If you are gregarious and think you would enjoy brotherhood look into rush.

* *

The fraternity system offers friendship, lodging and social life at a price not much higher than the cost of room and board at Ann Arbor.

There is a flaw in the grading system at Michigan. It uses a point system common with many colleges—A equals 4, B equals 3, C equals 2, etc.

Unfortunately there is no method of recording minus, or plus grades (i.e. a B plus is recorded as a 3 or B). The inequities are obvious, if a student has four C pluses his grade point average is 2.0 when it should be a 2.4.

* * *

There is talk of changing this system but until it is the new student should be prepared not to be disillusioned if his grades do not exactly reflect his achievement in the course.

Michigan has its share of bureaucracy and red tape, according to students. But its very size is responsible for the freedom to do different things and meet interesting people.

Q. What will the returning letterman be wearing this fall?

A. The Ivy vested suit or the vested duo...

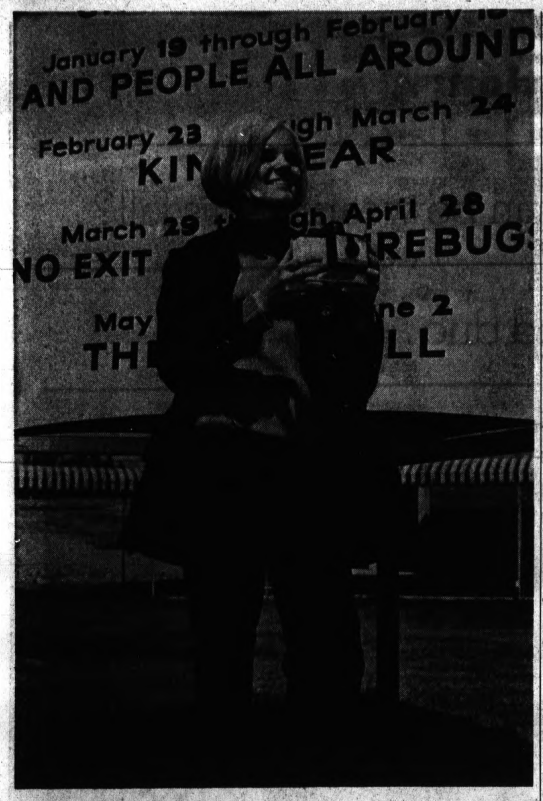

The well-dressed collegian will emphasize the vested look this fall in his natural shoulder wardrobe. Our Comprehensive collection includes such renowned traditional makers as H. Freeman, Hart Schaffner and Marx, Fox of Boston, Frost and Frost, John Milford, Stanley Blacker, P. B. M., and Charter Club. The fabric selection is equally large and with sharkskins, hopsacks, worsteds, cheviots, tweeds and oxford weaves in patterns like herringbones, Glen plaids and a huge assortment of solids and multi-colored shades. These 3-button models are priced from $65 to $145. (left) Representative of our collection of Ivy vested suits is this vested hopsack from Charter Club. Woven in one of the country's finest mills, this natural shoulder 3-button model has hook vents, lap seams—and a matching vest. Plain front trousers with belt loops. Sizes 36-46; in rich shades of blue, olive and brown. 79.50. (right) A bright new note to fall is the vested duo. It's a co-ordinated outfit that includes a sport coat with matching vest with contrasting slacks. They're in harvest tones, district checks, shepherd checks, and new fall plaids. This one is in an all-wool shetland Glen plaid. The natural shoulder 3-button sport coat has flap pockets, deep side vents—and a matching vest . . . in a good selection of sizes in the new fall plaids. The co-ordinating slacks, in a pleatless belt-loop model, are in an all worsted twist or flannel fabric. Sport coat and vest is only $55. Co-ordinating slacks are 19.95 and 22.50.

Waterford Township

Attendance Area Changes

Unless he moves, the average pupil usually attends only three different schools: elementary, junior high and senior high school.

However, when new schools are constructed and old schools are phased out the picture changes. This situation will prevail in Waterford Township this school year.

Consequent boundary changes will mean that several pupils will attend different schools before they advance from one educational level to another.

Lambert and Waterford Center elementary schools were phased out following the 1966-67 school year.

★ ★ ★

The new Crescent Lake Elementary School won't be ready for occupancy until early 1968. Until then, pupils in this new attendance area will attend classes at Waterford Center.

HIGH SCHOOL

The new Charles S. Mott High School is not slated for completion until September 1968. But the school's first sophomore class will begin next fall, based at Mason Junior High School.

Mott's attendance area will encompass approximately the east one-third of the township, cutting into the Township and Kettering high school boundaries.

Mott students will come from Mason and Crary junior high schools.

The Mott attendance area, as described by school officials, is as follows:

That area of the school district east of a line from Grayson and Mason schools, 3730 Dixie, Saginaw Trail, Turness and Pine Orchard streets, 3730 Lakewood, 4204 South Shore, 4790 Pontiac Lake, Fiddle Lake, Stringham School, Pontiac Country Club, 4385 Motorway, Robinwood Drive.

Boundaries for the proposed new Crescent Lake School will be as follows:

★ ★ ★

That portion of the Crescent Lake Subdivision bounded on the north by Elizabeth Lake Road, on the east by Crescent Boulevard and Pinegrove (taking in both sides of Crescent Boulevard and Pinegrove), south to Prentis (both sides of Prentis), west on Prentis to Clayburn (both sides of Prentis), west on Prentis to Clayburn (both sides of Clayburn), north on Clayburn to Elizabeth Lake Road.

ALSO AFFECTED

Also affected because of the new school and phasing out of Lambert and Waterford Center schools will be attendance areas of six existing schools — Beaumont, Burt, Haviland, Four Towns, Pontiac Lake and Williams Lake.

The Beaumont attendance area will be enlarged by that portion of the Waterford Center attendance area south of M59 on both sides of Airport Road. It will be enlarged additionally by that portion of the Pontiac Lake attendance area north of M59 and west of Pontiac Lake including the peninsula which extends into the lake proper.

The other changes will be as follows:

● Burt — To be enlarged to include that portion of the Lambert attendance area north of Cass Elizabeth an east of Wexford, taking in both sides of these streets that lie east of Woodingham.

★ ★ ★

Haviland — To be increased by that portion of the Lambert attendance area west of Wexford and south of Cass Elizabeth. The attendance area will be decreased by that portion of Haviland attendance area south of Coomer, west of Hiller (west side only) and north of Greer (north side only).

★ ★ ★

● Four Towns — To be increased by that portion of the Haviland attendance area south of Coomer, west of Hiller (west side only) and north of Greer.

● Pontiac Lake — To be decreased by that portion of the attendance area north of M59 and west of Pontiac Lake including the peninsula that extends into Pontiac Lake proper.

● Williams Lake — To be increased by that portion of the Waterford Center attendance area north of M59 and on both sides of Airport Road.

Teen-Agers Report

School Life Hectic

Who said that too many extra-curricular activities interfere with studies?

Not the thousand and more teen-agers whom we interviewd recently on the subject. Most of them figured, in fact, that they were taking part in too few rather than too many projects of that kind.

As a 17-year-old Hawaii girl, Melva Ebesu of Honolulu, lamented, she doesn't "think my life is as well rounded as it should be."

Or as Thomas Waylett, 17, of Camden, N.J., commented, "I don't think I do anything for my community."

Of the 1071 young people we questioned, 53 per cent said they did not take part in enough extra-curricular activities, 21 per cent said they were sufficiently but not excessively burdened, and only 1.9 per cent thought their outside activities too numerous.

HECTIC

"It's hectic, but it's fun, and I wouldn't have it any other way," explained Cecilia Hesby, 17, of Tacoma, Wash.

More than 50 activities were mentioned by the students, and were divided about equally between pursuits inside and outside the school.

As might be expected, nearly 11 per cent of the young people considered sports their most important activity.

★ ★ ★

Working on the school newspaper and playing in the school band tied for second place with 5.3 per cent each. But, as might NOT be expected, more girls than boys gave the "most important" designation to sports — nearly 13 per cent of them compared with 8 per cent of the boys.

The young men put school band interest in first place. Only 1.8 per cent of the girls favored music.

Being the senior class treasurer appealed most to 17-year-old Thomas Waylett, of Cloversville, N.Y. "It is," he said, "a position of honor and a hard job."

★ ★ ★

Reg Jones, 16, of Smithville, Mo., gave his vote to football. "It is a game," he explained, "that helps you become a man. It teaches you to take the hard knocks, get up and ask for more. It also teaches you sportsmanship.

BOWLER

A Hibbing, Min., student, Ben Boldt, 18, plans to turn his extracurricular favorite into a career. He said he expects "to become a professional bowler."

Another who saw a relationship between what he is doing now and his future, 17-year-old Jerry Johnson, of Phoenix, Ariz., said: "My membership in the Science Club is the most important to me, not only because it is so interesting but because it is more closely associated with my future career than anything else."

Lewis Shaft, 16, of Miami, Fla., admitted he had too many extracurricular activities, a situation he lamented because "it keeps me from seeing my girl friend."

College Questions Answered

What colleges are hardest to get into?

What qualifications do you need to get into these schools?

What type of entrance exams should you take for which school?

How much do they cost?

★ ★ ★

These and many other questions are answered in "The New American Guide to Colleges," published by Columbia University Press.

INTEREST

Of special interest to many parents and students alike will be the "College Discovery Index" section of the book which summarizes admissions policies and tuition costs, based on a survey by author Gene R. Hawes.

The index lists 92 colleges as the country's most hotly sought after institutions. This is 34 more than there were four years ago, according to the book.

Most of the colleges which have joined the most wanted list are found on the East and West Coasts.

★ ★ ★

The book includes individual entries on more than 3,600 colleges and graduate schools, with the index listing them in order of accessibility.

After analyzing undergraduate admissions policies, Hawes concludes that in some areas "a desperate shortage of America's traditional colleges of open admission has developed."

★ ★ ★

For graduate schools, Hawes has found that 50 per cent are competitive or highly competitive in their admissions policies, sometimes even rejecting students with B or A averages.

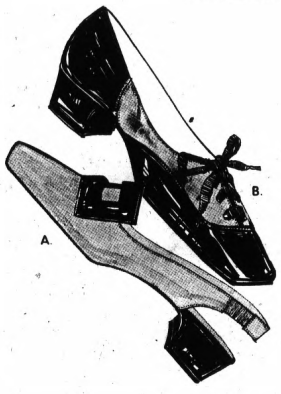

Another 22.6 per cent have admissions policies ranging from competitive to acceptance of all B average or upper-half ranking students.

Nineteen per cent accept those with from C to B averages and the remainder accept those ranging from the lower strata of their classes of C averages.

Bear your own burdens first; after that try to help carry those of other people. —George Washington.

OCC Moves Ahead

8 Buildings Set for Auburn Hills

As construction nears an end at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus, it will be just beginning at OCC's Auburn Hills campus, on Featherstone Rd., just north of Auburn Heights.

Groundbreaking will take place this fall for the construction of eight of the campus's first permanent buildings.

Included in the $11,000,000 project will be a general assembly session building, which will contain four large lecture halls, a horticultural study building, a power plant, a learning resource center, learning laboratories for science and mathematics and business and technology buildings.

Four other buildings — a student center, and humanities, social studies and communications buildings — will be added to the campus later.

The eight structures contained in the first phase of the program will be ready for use in September of 1969.

RENOVATED NIKE SITE

Since its opening in 1965, Auburn Hills classes have been held in renovated U.S. Army buildings. The 247-acre campus formerly was a NIKE missile base before its purchase by OCC.

Because of limits of space, enrollment at the campus has been held to about 1,500.

The third OCC campus, Highland Lakes, will enroll about 2,500 students this fall. It was opened for students in the fall of 1965 on a 157-acre parcel on Cooley Lake Rd., east of Williams Lake Rd. in Union Lake.

The campus formerly served as a county tuberculosis sanitarium. The hospital's three large buildings were renovated for student use.

OCC Director of Community Relations Mitchell Tendler said that the Highland Lakes campus will be expanded eventually but not in the near future.

College administrators are still searching for a site for a fourth campus, to be located in southeastern Oakland County.

Tendler said that over 100 possible sites have been inspected so far but that a suitable one that the college can afford has not yet been found.

He said that is difficult to project the college's enrollment figures for the future although 5,000 students at each campus would be a desirable maximum.

Much, he said, will depend on population growth in the county. He noted that the population center for the metropolitan area has been moving progressively northwest in recent years.

In 1966 the center moved out of Detroit for the first time to an area near 9 Mile Road and Evergreen in Southfield.

Competitive Exams to Be Held in November

The State Education Department has announced competitive examinations for state scholarships will be held Nov. 11 at 150 locations throughout the state.

The examinations are open to high school seniors and graduates planning to enter college as freshmen in 1968.

Some 27,000 students are expected to take the examinations.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 will be awarded cash grants ranging from $80 to $800 depending on tuition costs at the college selected and the amount of financial need.

★ ★ ★

About an equal number of students will be named honorary award winners, indicating high performance on the test but less need for financial aid.

Results of the Nov. 11 examinations will be announced the following spring.

Health Service Makes Grant

The U.S. Public Health Service had made a grant to the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to carry on a program to combat smoking at the junior high school level.

Findings indicate that every day more than 4,000 young people start smoking; by 18, half of the nation's teen-agers smoke regularly.

Grade School Teachers Needed

The gravest shortage of teachers today, according to the National Education Association, is in the elementary education field.

Elementary school teachers are needed in the ratio of nine to every six secondary school teachers, but students are now preparing to teach in the inverse ratio.

Youth Ship Will Spread Goodwill

The Japanese government is going to send 280 young men and women through Southeast Asia by ship to promote goodwill and understanding.

★ ★ ★

The project is one of the events planned in connection with the centennary of the Meiji Restoration which signalled Japan's emergence as a modern nation.

The youths are scheduled to leave Tokyo next Jan. 19 aboard the 12,000-ton Sakura Maru.

The project almost never got off the ground. When it was first announced by the government last month, youth groups vehemently opposed it because girls were excluded.

★ ★ ★

Backing down when youth organizations over the country threatened to refuse cooperation with any and all government-sponsored functions now and in the future, the prime minister's office scrapped the plan and announced a new one including girls.

★ ★ ★

Officials had argued that girls would be unable to stand up to the rigors of hostel-type accommodations on a long ship voyage.

Youth leaders said "The true reason for excluding girls is that the bureaucrats don't like the idea of working boys and girls living together on board."

OCC Celebrates Third Birthday

Orchard Ridge Campus to Open in Fall

Oakland Community Colleges, this fall will celebrate the third anniversary of its opening and, at the same time, take a long step forward toward the kind of physical maturity envisaged by its founders.

Of immediate importance is the partial opening of the college's new Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Township. Construction work on six instruction buildings and a power plant will be finished in time to receive students in September although work will not be complete on four other buildings until late spring of next year.

Approximately 2,000 students will attend Orchard Ridge this fall, a figure that will raise to about 5,000 with the completion of the remainder of the campus buildings.

The campus, located on a 149-acre site south of I-696, and between Orchard Lake and Farmington roads, is the first of OCC's three campuses to be designed specifically to implement the college's independent study approach to learning.

* * *

The essence of the system, already in use at the college's Highland Lake and Auburn Hills campuses, is that the student learns on his own. For each course he takes, the student attends one class a week. He is then given the responsibility for using the remainder of his time constructively on course study.

UP TO STUDENT

The amount of time and effort spend on study is left entirely to the individual.

Oakland Community College is the first institution of higher learning in the nation to use the independent study approach on a college-wide basis.

In accord with the approach, there will be no traditional classrooms at Orchard Ridge. Three large assembly rooms provide for weekly class meetings.

The remaining portions of the instructional buildings are taken up with learning labratories equipped with from 50 to 100 individual study carrels, with labratories for technical and science subjects with small discussion rooms for six to eight students.

"We will rely almost entirely on group discussion rooms and the study labs," said Dr. Richard E. Wilson, provost (chief administrative officer) for the campus.

Buildings that will not be ready in September include the fine arts building, the informational resources center (library with audio visual equipment) and the commons.

* * *

The latter will serve as nucleus of the campus and will contain seven small assembly halls, a book store, a large auditorium, a cafeteria, restaurant, a kitchen and a partially covered plaza.

GROWING FACULTY

Sixty-five faculty members have been hired to staff the campus, a figure that Dr. Wilson said could grow to as many as 250 to 300 in the years ahead.

Although immediate plans place the maximum enrollment at 5,000, Wilson said the campus could handle as many as 7,000 full time day students with an additional 6,000 night students.

The campus was designed by Perkins & Will of Chicago and Giffels & Rossetti of Detroit. The design received an award of citation in national competition with other institutions of higher learning at the 1966 convention of the American Association of School Administrators.

* * *

Sixty representatives of the American Association of Junior Colleges will visit the campus Aug. 10 as part of a national tour they will make of community college campuses. Orchard Ridge will be their only stop in Michigan.

Washable Togs for Youngster

Washability is the key word in any 1967 back-to-school wardrobe.

* * *

Cottons, corduroys, washable knits, machine-washable wools, stretch nylons, suds-off-able vinyls, and a number of other wearable, workable, washable fabrics featured in fall fashions are the answer to a busy mother's prayer.

First Day Is Important

Unless the youngster going to school for the first time has had nursery school training, the first day of school for a child is a most important one, and even frightening.

To make it easier for your children, try to arrange a visit to the school in advance of opening day.

This will remove some of the strangeness and lost feeling of the first day.

Higher Learning

There were 866 colleges and universities in the United States at the end of the Second World War. In 1965, there were 2,300.

Pizzas for All at 'Our House'

One way to get food you like is to open your own restaurant. Mike Jessen, Pete Gruenstein, and Jed Harris, all 20-year-old students at Beloit College, have done so at "Our House," featuring pizzas and other foods sometimes hard to find there.

* * *

They've had to invest $7,000 of their own and borrowed money, but say business has been fab.

For Eligible Homebound Students

Tele-Teaching to Begin at Oakland Schools

By JOE MULLEN

The walls of the homebound classroom will be the boundaries of the intermediate school district when tele-teaching begins at Oakland Schools in September.

Three tele-teaching stations, each capable of transmitting instruction to as many as 20 children at a time, will be installed in an upstairs office of the Oakland Schools building in the county service center, this month.

The teaching console will be connected to head-set telephones in the homes of students selected for the latest development in the teaching of the homebound.

To be eligible for the program, children must meet requirements for homebound instruction.

* * *

These include the inability to go to school for two months or more and a physician's statement that the child is well enough to be taught.

4TH GRADE MINIMUM

Tele-teaching will not be attempted for children below grade four and those beyond this grade level must have, in the instructor's judgment, work habits that will permit them to profit from telephone lessons.

Mrs. Mildred Williams, a veteran member of the Oakland Schools homebound faculty, is in charge of adapting the tele-teaching system to the needs of youngsters served by Oakland Schools.

"We will be able to teach at least four classes a day in the tele-teaching program," Mrs. Williams said.

* * *

"The homebound program we have operated for the past 10 years consisted of two home visits a week to each child with each visit for an hour period."

Each teaching station will be operated by a homeroom teacher who will assemble children by making a phone call. Children can communicate with one another in the tele-teaching sessions.

Mrs. Williams plans to tap the specialists on the Oakland Schools staff for some lessons and to utilize programmed and taped lessons.

* * *

"One of the big advantages of this system will be taking the long term homebound youngster out of his isolation and putting him in communication with others in his age group," Mrs. Williams said.

CHILDREN CONTACT

She pointed out that these children have been at a disadvantage due to minimum contact with other children in the same age range.

Home calls by teachers will continue on a regular schedule, though not weekly at first.

"The home visit schedule will be revised according to the needs of the students," Mrs. Williams said.

* * *

Patterned after a tele-teaching program first used in Los Angeles in 1962, the Oakland Schools program was launched last January when the intermediate school board authorized purchase of three $8,000 tele-teaching stations.

All but six school districts in the county will be served by the Oakland Schools tele-teaching.

Pontiac, Waterford Township, Royal Oak, Birmingham, Farmington and Ferndale have enrollments large enough to justify employment of homebound teachers in their own special education programs.

The long term homebound students in these districts probably will be enrolled in tele-teaching classes, Mrs. Williams indicated.

Head-set phones to be used by children in tele-teaching will have no dial and the number of the telephone will be recorded only on plastic dialing card kept at the tele-teaching station.

An Exciting Experience

Transition to College Life

Entering college can be an exciting or miserable experience for the freshman girl.

Migrating, perhaps for the first time, from the nest of the family to the sea of unfamiliar faces is a trying situation for anyone and especially for the college-bound adolescents.

An adventurous spirit can overpass the qualms of homesickness and fear, however, to make the freshman girl's college year happy and interesting.

Perhaps the best part of freshman year is the revelation that college isn't as fearful as anticipated.

★ ★ ★

The meeting-of-the-roommate is an apprehensive moment for many girls who realize that here is one person who can make life wonderful or horrible on the domestic front.

CAUTION TAKEN

However, most colleges take some precautions in pairing roommates and a little patience and understanding can make the association compatible.

Trying to take an interest in the other person and making fair compromises on living arrangements (sleeping with windows opened or closed, choosing colors for room decorations, etc., can bring together two people who would otherwise have no common denominator.

Getting used to the surroundings is easier if a girl takes time to explore a little, by herself and with friends.

★ ★ ★

Realizing that facilities can't be faultless, a little adjustment to squeaky closet doors and slippery shower room floors may be necessary.

Also, in the area of cuisine, although dormitory food isn't mom's home cooking, it is usually palatable with a little touching-up (catsup here, mayonnaise there).

Learning to handle personal chores such as weekly laundry and ironing and room-cleaning is a necessary evil but not so difficult with a little patience.

★ ★ ★

Many girls find that a trip to the local laundromat is quicker and more economical than waiting for the dormitory laundry machines.

ALTERNATE DUTIES

Alternating room-cleaning duty is often easier than trying to pick up together since roommates usually have limited space to work in.

A nightly pick-up session before retiring helps to eliminate a massive operation on Saturday morning.

Many first-semester freshmen find themselves suffering from inexplicable aches and pains that are only the ordinary results of extra walking, unfamiliar foods and a changed routine.

★ ★ ★

University health services are accustomed to dealing with these maladies and, before writing home to the family physician with frantic appeals for pills, students should at least give their local staff a try.

In most schools, too, a medical excuse will not be given to a student who has missed a class and not gone to the infirmary.

Time seems to be a big problem for all college students and how to budget it is probably the most important thing a freshman can learn in order to be successful at studying.

Putting to use the snatches of time between classes and limiting extracurricular activities to one or two at first will make adjusting easier.

COMPROMISE

The freshman girl can probably best approach the problems she encounters by taking time to think them out and realizing that some compromises in her normal way of life must be made.

For instance, dating at college will be a mild shock to some girls who are not accustomed to meeting boys on the street, in a restaurant, etc.

The college crowd are a heterogeneous group, but they have a common denominator, that they are all students, and mix with more ease than most any other group.

★ ★ ★

College men are therefore not considerd too forward if they casually introduce themselves to coeds.

The high school-to-college transition can be painful but is an exciting experience if students in the same position while dents remember to budget their thought that it only happens time, be extra patient with oth- once.

Mother Joins Twin Daughters

Back to School at the Priestleys

When two young American girls leave the family for college in the fall it's nothing out of the ordinary.

It happens in many families, including the Allen E. Priestley's of 2973 Edgefield, Waterford Township.

But when Mother takes off for a college education too, that's another thing.

Mrs. Priestley (Ruth) is one of the many middleaged mothers who feel a need for more education, both to keep busy and to keep up with college-going offspring.

★ ★ ★

"I was weary of church and charity work," she said. "If everyone else in the family has a college education I ought to have one too!"

Her husband is a 1944 graduate of Detroit College of Law and is now vice president and chief title officer for a Michigan abstract and title company.

Oldest daughter, Mrs. David E. Morgan, is a 1965 garduate of Adrian College and teaches elementary art for Garden City Schools.

Twins Jane and Jean, 19, will be sophomores at Adrian College and Miami University respectively in the fall.

★ ★ ★

A two-year business college course after high school was not enough for this mother so she enrolled for a battery of tests at Oakland University's Continuum Center.

There she was tested for aptitudes, interests and scholastic ability and interviewed by a psychologist who explained the test results.

Finding that after 30 years away from serious studying she was not prepared for a full load of college courses, Mrs. Priestley enrolled in a summer course of freshman English at Oakland Community College.

★ ★ ★

There were several other women her age enrolled. "I think that everyone I met who was going back to school was going because she really wanted to, not because she had to work to support her family or for other reasons," she said.

OWN SATISFACTION

"I'm really doing this for my own satisfaction, too. By the time I get a college degree I may not be able to to to work!"

She is aiming at a degree in library science, usually a six-year endeavor.

★ ★ ★

Study habits are a real problem, says Mrs. Priestley. "It takes me longer to get things done. When you're my age you're not as quick and receptive as the younger students."

★ ★ ★

After earning a B for the English course, she decided to enroll for more OCC classes in the fall.

Further plans are to complete the two-year community college course in library technology, then to transfer to a four-year college to finish her degree work.

What's the family reaction to Mother's new life as a coed?

"If Mother can do it, I suppose I can too," said Jane, who would like to teach high school biology.

★ ★ ★

"She's always wanted to go to college and we're really proud that she's doing so well," said Jean, an aspiring journalist.

And her admiring husband says "anything that will keep her happy is fine with me."

Goodies Ease Transition

When the ivy-covered college walls close around the entering freshman, there's likely to be a period of emotional instability at home.

Fond parents are tempted to phone the first Saturday evening to see if their offspring is homesick. Or they write worried and sorrowful letters which will probably cause homesickness if it didn't already exist.

A more constructive approach to the communication problem is to bridge the gap with a surprise present of goodies. The college student doesn't exist who infinitely prefers Mother's cooking to dormitory fare.

But the gift requires some thought. A gourmet box from a specialty shop is good, but usually expensive. A handsome chocolate cake may bruise easily if it's in transit a long time.

★ ★ ★

But there are ways out. You can ship the ingredients for a king-size feast if you concentrate on non-perishable and non-breakable items.

Triangular wedges of cheese in a cardboard box are suitable. (Forget the crackers. They'll be crushed.)

Spreads that come in aluminum-like tubes, such as anchovy paste, travel well.

Soft brownies and date bars will survive the trip if packed in small units in aluminum foil, and placed in a box with crumpled newspaper around them for easy traveling.

★ ★ ★

Candy bars usually make it without mishap, again with plenty of paper around them.

A loaf, rather than a layer, cake, preferably made from a brown sugar or molasses recipe rides well, if wrapped in several sheets of foil.

Build Up Interest in Trip Beforehand

First and second graders will enjoy a vacation motor trip more if their interest is built up in advance, according to Playskool Research.

If several states are to be visited, youngsters can use a map puzzle plaque to learn about geographic location, natural resources, and capital cities.

Long before the trip begins, parents and children can make a game out of "claiming" states with information and fitting them into the map puzzle.

Always forgive your enemies; nothing annoys them so much. — Oscar Wilde, Irish dramatist.

Street Dance in Harlem

They were dancing in the streets in Harlem recently, at a city sponsored festival.

That's important because a lot of dances have come out of Harlem.

Some of those seen on this occasion were The Boogaloo, Broadway Funky and African Twist.

Stocking Parade

Hosiery sellers are reported to have high hopes that the wide open look in stockings will help curtail that mischievous (to them) habit of gals going bare-legged in summertime.

Waterford District Schools Welcome Indicom Project

By HUD WILLSE

This month, the Waterford Township School District began meeting the challenge of Indicom — an exciting three-year experimental project in individualized instruction to be developed through the use of a computer.

The $1,375,000-project ($400,000 the first year) is being funded exclusively by the federal government through Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. of 1965.

Indicom stands for individual communications system, explain school officials.

If the project proves successful, the district will continue the work, expanding results learned over the experimental period.

★ ★ ★

The equipment, consisting of a computer and 10 individual terminal consoles, will be leased by the district the first year and purchased the second year.

TWO-FOLD PURPOSE

Purpose of Indicom is two-fold, according to Roy J. Alexander, assistant superintendent of secondary schools and acting project director:

- "To prove conclusively that a local district has the talent and resources to develop instructional units appropriate to computer-assisted instruction.
- "To truly individualize instruction."

A professional staff of 15 persons has been hired to conduct the project. Among the key positions are a director, programmer, writer, graphic designer and four specialists in information services, curriculum media, research and technological services.

They will attempt to develop a learning program for the individual student. The first of the equipment — the computer and two terminal consoles won't be delivered until next April.

★ ★ ★

To be centered in a secondary school and a primary school, the project will involve up to 150 teachers and about 800 students from the district.

Teachers, under guidance of the Indicom staff, will be charged with developing instructional units which will eventually be fed into the computer.

The writer will edit the instructional units into more concise and appropriate language which, in turn, will be translated into computer language by the programmer.

★ ★ ★

Funds also are available to bring in expert consultants from outside the district. Their contributions could be instrumental toward the success of the project.

INDIVIDUALIZE INSTRUCTION

"If the program functions as it is projected," said Alexander, "we will be able to truly individualize instruction."

The terminal consoles, or student work stations, will be connected to the computer. These consoles will be equipped with a television tube, earphones, an alphanumeric keyboard for placing input on the screen or into the computer, and a graphic tablet from which an electronic stylist can be shown on the screen.

The main part of the program, according to Alexander, is developing instructional units for placement into the computer.

★ ★ ★

Instructional units will be developed in English, mathematics, science, history, foreign languages, counseling, special education, humanities, health and physical education and in vocational areas.

Different kinds of units that could be stored in the computer include:

- Where practice or drill is required to develop a complex skill or set of responses.

★ ★ ★

- Any outstanding presentation of ideas or materials by a teacher.
- Where the presentation of certain concepts requires a well-controlled, self-paced interaction with demonstration material.
- Where effective learning on a subject requires a certain sequence in time.

★ ★ ★

A mathematics student experiencing difficulty with fractions may have occasion to use the computer.

AT WORK

Sitting at a terminal console, he might select his code number and the exercise he desired to take.

He would punch it into the terminal through the keyboard. His answer to the first question might be wrong. The computer would then tell the student to try again.

If he is wrong frequently, the computer would recommend a simpler exercise involving skills in the problems he missed.

"This is education tomorrow," said Alexander, "the pattern of educational media-technology of the future.

"Waterford is very fortunate to have this pioneering project."

Litterbugs in School

NEW YORK (UPI) — Schools have a litter problem, too.

Keep America Beautiful (KAB) sampled a cross-section of schools nationwide to determine if school children are litterbugs.

The national antilitter organization got an affirmative answer and at the same time found that the young scholars have well defined litter habits.

The most littered spots at school, the survey showed, are playgrounds, washrooms, and sidewalks. Lunch rooms and locker rooms are runners up. The school room itself isn't exempt.

KAB recommend that schools take on antilitter programs. The survey showed that schools with good antilitter programs don't have serious litter problems.

OU Launches Experimental Learning Program

By DICK ROBINSON

College students no longer just learn from books and lectures. They now learn about themselves — their creativity, their personality — in experimental programs.

"Education is not just books," comments Dr. Melvin Cherno, associate professor of history at Oakland University. "It is learning about ones self."

This idea is incorporated in the philosophy of OU's New College which will open this fall.

It is another application of the small-college-with-the-university idea which seems to be growing throughout the nation.

★ ★ ★

Charter College, which features a flexible schedule and independent study in Europe, was the first small college at Oakland two years ago.

MORE PLANNED

And more are planned, according to Dr. Fred W. Obear, assistant provost and coordinator of Charter and New Colleges.

New College will feature a required performing arts workshop and a field term that requires students to go away from school to learn about society.

The required study of theater, music and dance is billed as the only one in the nation by Cherno, master (English title for head) of New College.

★ ★ ★

Performing arts workshop will be taken during the freshman year.

"They will not be appreciation courses, but they will explore our creativity," Cherno said.

Each student who chooses to enter New College will have some type of role in a play, dance recital or musical performance, Cherno explained.

★ ★ ★

A course in improvisational theater will examine the loss of creativity in the individual. It will conclude with an amateur play venture.

MUSIC

In music, students may study the design of musical instruments, compose or perform his own music. Dance will be approached as a means of expression.

In the sophomore year, a student will take a 12-credit field term to study contemporary society through a project involving salaried or volunteer work or independent research.

"Students will go to unfamiliar places," Cherno related. "A small town boy will live in the city and the city boy will go to the country."

★ ★ ★

Cherno said any number of projects could be done, including working in a factory, living with Bohemians or examining the role of the minute men.

Each student's project would have to be approved ahead of time and he would be under constant supervision while in the field.

Satisfactory or unsatisfactory grades may be given in some experimental work, Cherno announced, but regular grades would be given in most courses.

★ ★ ★

"New College has been established on the conviction that a rigorous and systematic program of general education should complement a student's major," Cherno noted.

About 70 students are being accepted in the college on a first-come, first-serve basis for this fall. Enrollment will eventually build up to about 500.

The college offers a four-year program in which the student spends less than half of his course time.

In the junior year, students will concentrate on science and the senior year will be completely flexible. Seniors will attend special seminars or do apprentice teaching or an independent study project.

★ ★ ★

"The college will attempt to workout a program relating the study of a foreign language to a visit to a foreign country, perhaps French Canada or Mexico, explains Cherno who recently returned from teaching Charter College in Europe.

Six Lepers Attend Scripture Institute

NEW YORK — Six leprosy patients were among students in a recent Penzotti Institute — a Scripture distribution training course — organized by the Bible Society in Paraguay. Penzotti Institutes are held throughout Latin America.

Most courses are conducted in churches, but this one was carried out among staff and patients at a hospital and a lepers' lazarette with the patients later distributing Scriptures throughout the colony.

★ ★ ★

The American Bible Society is the largest of 35 national Bible Societies devoted to translating, publishing and distributing Scriptures without note or comment in 150 countries.

School Tots Move About

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Children with hearing handicaps — once restricted to their desks by heavy headsets and cords— are moving about the room like any other second and third graders at Edna E. Davis School for Acoustically Handicapped Children.

Mrs. Homer Dickerson, instructor for the specially equipped two-grade room in the public school, said the children are enthusiastic about their new freedom.

★ ★ ★

The room was prepared for the system with bell wire taped in a loop pattern around the floor and hooked to an amplifier and microphone system. Carpeting was installed over the wire.

When the children enter the room they turn their individual hearing aids to a telephone setting. The magnetic field in the hearing aids picks up sound waves emitted from the wiring on the floor and the children can hear anywhere in the room.

Nongraded School Concept Is Gaining in Popularity

By GEOFFREY GOULD
AP Education Writer

Children are not peas in a pod.

They differ in intelligence, ability, ambition, family background, their place in the social structure.

Educators have been trying to cope with this basic fact of life for 100 years or more, and the pace of their efforts has quickened with the baby boom that began during World War II.

Schools are different too, and they attack the problem of differing abilities in different ways. Some methods seem to work better than others.

But all over the country the time-hallowed practice of freezing children into rigid grades on the basis of age is being questioned.

Dr. B. Frank Brown, principal of the Melbourne, Fla., High School and a noted educational innovator, says "grouping by the length of the legs makes as much sense as does grouping by age."

He adds, "there is nothing so unequal as the equal treatment of unequals."

The Council for Basic Education put it this way in a recent Bulletin:

"To put the fast and the slow, the extremely bright and the average, into the same 'democratic' mix is unfair to everyone concerned."

Almost every school is forced to adopt some kind of ability grouping. The question is what's the best way to do it. That is where the controversy and opposition come in.

In the past the classroom teacher did it herself by dividing slow readers and rapid learners into the "redbirds" and "bluebirds" or some such.

Don't think the youngsters didn't know which was the "dumb kids" group and which was the "smart kids." The parents knew too, and sometimes objected.

ABILITY

Dr. Carl F. Hansen, superintendent of schools in Washington D.C., instituted a four-track system in the city's high schools in 1958. In his recent book about the experiment, "Four Track Curriculum for Today's High Schools," Hansen argues that ability grouping is inevitable.

"Often carelessly, sometimes cruelly, only occasionally in a planned way, ability grouping has occurred in one form or another throughout the history of secondary education — and in education at all levels and in every epoch," Hansen said.

Hansen set up these four tracks — basic, general, college preparatory and honors. He has tried to hang onto the idea of the comprehensive high school, in which all levels of achievement are represented, rather than setting up special honors schools.

* * *

But critics have said the track system is too inflexible, that teachers are tempted to use the lowest track as a dumping ground, and that once a child is assigned to the lowest track it is difficult to move up from it.

Hansen also has run afoul of the civil rights problem that plagues all big city school systems. Some Washington Negro leaders have opposed the track system because they believe it tends to discriminate against Negro pupils. They point out that almost all the students who land in the basic track are Negroes.

One of the most promising developments in the never-ending search for better ways of grouping is the nongraded school. This concept is being more and more widely used in elementary schools and is beginning to make a dent in high schools too.

* * *

Here is how it works:

The formal grade barriers based primarily on age are eliminated.

OWN SPEED

Each student is encouraged to forge ahead at his or her own speed, in all subjects.

There is never a problem over whether to promote or fail students at the end of the school year. They simply pick up in the fall at the point they left off when school closed.

In the traditional graded school if a student is not promoted at the end of the year he must go back and repeat the same material for another year. This waste and frustration is done away with in nongraded schools.

* * *

The bright students can push to the limits of their higher ability, in some cases doing college level work while still in high school.

For the less able students there is no stigma of failure. They learn at the rate they can and often find a subject in which they can excel and are permitted to. For there is a full range of differing abilities within each child as well as within a class.

At the same time an effort is made to free the teachers from the time consuming drudgery of grading papers, housekeeping chores or monitoring the cafeteria.

* * *

This gives them more time for individual instruction. The flexibility of the system allows the teacher to work with smaller groups while other students are working independently.

The system requires careful counseling and monitoring of progress. If a student is good in English, but deficient in mathematics, for instance, a program of remedial work in math is provided.

The nongraded system has its drawbacks and its critics, and it requires a careful period of preparation, both of teachers and of parents.

Some say it is coddling of the child or "soft pedagogy" with not enough discipline.

* * *

But its advocates point to spectacular results.

In "School of Tomorrow — Today," Arthur D. Morse had this to say of the Appleton, Wis., experience, where schools have been nongraded for several years:

"Does this mean that Appleton children are being coddled, that they are not being prepared for the realities of life?

* * *

"According to the standardized achievement tests they are outperforming their predecessors in graded classes and are exceeding national norms in all subjects."

PUPILS PLEASED

Sidney P. Rollins, who directed the changeover to nongraded high schools in Middletown, R.I., reported that "pupils stimulate themselves to greater effort . . . most parents are pleased — probably because the pupils appear to be.

Pupils seem to appreciate the opportunities for avoiding the boredom and frustration that the ungraded structure can offer."

Brown, who pioneered the nongraded high school at Melbourne, Fla., cites other benefits: an astonishingly low dropout rate, a virtual disappearance of serious disciplinary problems, and an impressive growth in the range of subjects the unfettered students have explored.

* * *

In short, the youngsters like it and tend to do better because they are interested and have become involved personally in the learning process.

Dr. Stuart E. Dean, a veteran teacher now with the U.S. Office of Education, says the goal is "really individual instruction."

"Can we get it?," he said in an interview. "That's problematical. Can we come closer to it? Yes. Can we salvage more kids? I'm sure of it," Dean said.

Parent-Teacher Conferences Frequently Fall Short of Goal

Back in the so-called good old days, parents used to go to school only three times during their child's career — when Johnny first was dragged to kindergarten, when he got an "F" in behavior and when he (hopefully) graduated.

Today, chances are that parents will spend a great deal of time in school, particularly if the youngsters attend one which favors parent-teacher conferences.

Theoretically, these conferences are designed to give the parents an opportunity to learn about their children's progress and to give the teachers an opportunity to advise the parents on what they can do to help the youngsters.

Practically, the conferences are madhouses.

A recent conference night in one suburban high school is an example.

ANNOUNCEMENT

A week before the scheduled event, Johnny brought home the announcement of the meeting, complete with a list of all his teachers and their room numbers.

Father immediately announced he would not attend, maintaining that "a mother's place is in the school."

By the time the great event actually rolled around, however, Father was temporarily placeated.

Arriving at the school, the parents learned they would have three minutes — absolutely no more—with each teacher. They also would have to sign up to speak to a teacher.

Mother headed for English class, Father for math. There were six people already on the English list, so Mother signed her name, figured she had 18 minutes to spare and went in search of history.

Father, meanwhile, was number three on the math list and decided to wait.

★ ★ ★

Mother finally got to meet the history teacher and discovered the how-do-you-dos took up about half of her allotted three minutes.

STANDARD ANSWER

When she asked how Johnny was doing in history, she got standard answer A: "He shows commendable interest, although he is not working up to capacity." (Answer B is: 'He is too withdrawn and does not participate enough in class.")

Since Johnny has been doing quite well in history, Mother begins to wonder if the teacher has the right child.

Her suspicions are confirmed when the teacher advises that Johnny should get a haircut and avoid the Beatle-style. (Johnny has a crew cut.)

★ ★ ★

Three minutes are up, however, so Mother leaves quietly.

Father, meanwhile, has been arguing with the math teacher.

"If plain algebra was good enough for me, why does Johnny need all this new-fangled math," he demands, while the teacher tries to explain that two and two really isn't always four.

★ ★ ★

After several more fruitless conferences and some hectic running from one room to another so as not to miss appointments, Mother and Father leave.

They are little wiser, but they feel a good deal older.

Lots of Bounce

If you see a girl bouncing along with a rubber ball tied to her ankle by an elastic thong, think nothing of it. Just another French fad.

Music Fills School Halls

Gone are the days when high school music-making was limited to lively band presentations of Sousa's marches.

Students are busily making music now in all categories: jazz, folk singing, serious classical works and choir selections.

In a series of programs titled "Musical Night to Remember," students across the nation present serious music in recital halls for adult audiences.

Their programs often include new works by American composers, something civic orchestras usually shy away from.

Young people are performing in New York's Carnegie Hall, in Toledo, Baltimore, Tulsa, Phoenix and El Paso in 50 annual concerts.

This "American Youth Performs" project was conceived by Charles Abdoo of Brooklyn, an operatic tenor who often solos on the programs.

C IS FOR COED — And that's just what Carolyn Reis is this year at Pontiac Northern High School. Skirts Put Legs in the Spotlight

Because of short, short skirts for girls from three to 30, legs are in the spotlight this fall.

Helping the appearance of even the most average looks, are the many types of hosiery available, from kooky to conventional, from knee socks to tights.

Tights particularly have come into their own. There are lace varieties for dress up, and velour and "poor boy" ribbed ones for tailored clothes.

Crocheted hosiery also is high on the popularity poll. This year's crochets, found in knee socks, over-the-knee stockings and tights, are woven in more open fashion, giving a light, airy look.

Knee high socks, last year the property of younger girls, will be favorites with teen-agers and college girls this fall. Cuffs add an extra touch to the socks.

A plain rib cuff might decorate a cable sock, while a flat knit sock is adorned with a velour top.

Heather styles will be important in both knee high and over-the-knee hosiery. Other new designs include a thick and thin weave, a tapestry look with little flowers or diagonal patterns and an irish style sweater stitch.

Color will be more subtle. Except for ski motifs, the trend is away from the sharp, multicolor knits. Patterns are in the self-color of the stockings, making them easier to coordinate with clothes.

Blending colors of the same family rather than matching identical hues is the important point.

Particularly popular shades will be sorrel green, currant, brick, plum, gold, sapphire and camel. White and off-white will head the fashion parade, with mauve and plum shades running second.

Banana 'Tripping' on the Increase

Dr. James Goddard, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration is investigating the smokingof banana peels by college students. He state that smoking banana peels may be hallucinogenic.

Banana peel enthusiasts at the Univresity of California held mass smoke-outs.

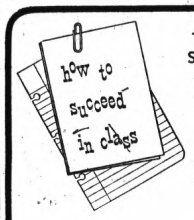

It sends them on a "mild trip," helps them view modern pressures and adversities lightly.

The fad has spread to New York where students paraded around Central Park's Sheep Meadow chanting "Banana, Banana" carrying a two-foot wooden banana.

German Girl Views American Campus

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A German girl who married an American student gives here a revealing glimpse of U.S. campus life compared with that in her home country.)

By BARBARA BICKFORD

LANCASTER, Pa. — The day I drive my student husband the 70 miles from our home to his university, the schedule gets tight.

It is the only day in the week that the nasty sound of the alarm clock wakes us up at 7:10 a.m. I get up first.

"Wake me at 20 to eight," he mumbles as I leave the bedroom, and the next half-hour is filled with a shower and a specially careful make-up.

Also the breakfast must be prepared because when I at last wake him up, there won't be any time for cooking tea and toasting the homemade bread.

★ ★ ★

I have to give him advice in the choice of his tie, reassure him that blue and brown look tres chic together.

I have to know the weather report by heart.

The question whether he wears his vest or not becomes in this early morning hour essential.

There are buttons to sew, shoes to polish — even if I had prepared everything the evening before, the mood — and with it the clothes to wear — have changed in the morning.

★ ★ ★

We leave the house in a mess. The question of who drives is soon decided.

Of course, the wife. She has all week nothing to do and is relaxed.

In the car my husband rehearses his report for Shakespeare class, changing some words, asking for advice.

I let him out at the university and then I drive the car slowly up and down the streets.

JUST THINKING

Sometiems it crosses my mind . . . the husband would say if he drove behind me. "Look at this woman driver — what is she doing? — I don't understand people driving like that."

Well, she is looking for a parking place — desperately.

Fifteen blocks away, I find a tiny place. It takes all my art in driving to place the Volkswagen in it.

After half an hour walk, the carefully powdered nose is shiny, the hair is messed up. The adventure of an American campus starts for me again.

Coming from a German university, I am dashed by the fantastic number of good-looking and well-dressed people. The girls with their shining hair, the well-taken-care-of faces, the good material of the cloth.

I like the classic look of the loafers, the different shades of the shetland sweaters, and the white pants the boys are wearing.

Altogether, I have the feeling that American students care much more about their looks than the German students do.

FRIENDLY AURA

As I walk over the campus, people I have met only once say hello to me and talk to me, something that would very rarely happen in Germany.

There the students are anxiously busy to keep up their air of the hard-working student who has nothing in his mind but his studies.

Very nicely the professor gives me the permission to attend the class together with my husband.

It took me a long time to learn that I can say something if I want to, and that no one particularly cares if it isn't the right thing to say.

The amount of cigarettes I smoke during class gets less and less.

I am relaxed, another new and wonderful experience for me, because in Germany there is still this big gap between teacher and student, and we are not supposed to smoke during the classes, and we have to think hard and carefully before we open our mouths.

Parents Block Teen Talk

Curious to find out how successful were teen-parent communications, writer Hope Bennett taped a series of interviews with 14 to 18-year-old girls.

She asked specific questions such as: Can you talk things over with your parents? What discourages teen-agers from talking with their parents? What other adults can you talk with easily?

These parental attitudes often stood out as roadblocks to communication:

- Parents who don't listen, but preach at you.
- Parents' endless questions.
- Teasing, especially about boy friends.
- Failing to hear a cry for help, and tossing the matter back at the teen-ager with a curt "It's your problem."
- Invading privacy even to the point of reading the teen's mail.

★ ★ ★

Girls who were able to talk freely with their parents said this happened because the parent talked "across" not "down."

OTHERS

Adults other than parents to whom confidences were brought included aunts, teachers, and girl fiends' mothers.

"My girl friends's mother is only five years younger than my mother, but if she were 70, she would still be easier to talk to."

"I usually go to my aunt. She is the same age as mother, but she's sort of crazy like me, and she trusts teen-agers, and doesn't take everything so seriously."

★ ★ ★

Teens who gave up completely on talking with adults about important matters prefer discussions with close friends, or a sister or brother.

★ ★ ★

"I don't talk to any adults," one said, I'm closer to my 14-year-old sister. She's more my generation."

Safety Rules to Be Observed

The Automotive Safety Foundation of Washington has set down ten basic principles for school children and parents to observe, if the children are to walk safely to and from school.

They are:

- Traffic safety education should be provided in the classroom.
- Every elementary school pupil should be taught to choose the safest route between his home and school, and to follow this same route every day.
- Parents are obligated to understand traffic regulations and to make sure their children understand them. Parents exert the most influence in developing their children as safe and self-reliant pedestrians.
- Uniformity is important in traffic control. Traffic signs, signals, pavement markings, and regulations should conform to nationally accepted standards.
- Signals and other traffic controls should be based upon engineering studies of the traffic flow at principal school crossings.
- Children should be protected at main crossings by school safety patrols and or adult guards in uniform, and possibly signal lights.
- School bus routes should make a maximum penetration into the residential areas they serve. Pick-up points should be located on minor streets, not on highways.
- Every city, town, and village should have a Central School Traffic Safety Committee. Each school should have a similar citizens' committee.
- Parent-teacher associations and other civic organizations should press for improved safety measures.
- Much of the potential hazards to pupils can be eliminated if pedestrian safety is considered when the school site is chosen.

Gap Widens in Finances

NEW YORK (UPI)—Colleges are carrying "an increasing burden" that involves filling a multi-billion-dollar gap between total costs of providing higher education and the amount paid by students in tuition, room, board and other fees.

Of the approximately $10.3 billion it is costing this academic year to provide college educations for some five million young Americans, only an estimated $3.5 billion comes from the students.

Robert J. Keir, who says so, is president of C.I.T. Educational Buildings Inc. and Tuition Plan Inc.

★ ★ ★

The remaining $6.8 billion, he said, is provided, on a roughly 50-50 basis, by federal, state and local governments, on one hand, and on the other by business and industry, foundations, alumni groups and individuals.

In Colleges, Universities

Students Search for Identity

NEW YORK (UPI) — They know their names, area codes, social security numbers, zip codes, addresses and checking account numbers.

But today's college students, despite such identification, are deeply worried over their search for identity.

A United Press International poll of contestants in the annual National College Queen pageant showed the search for identity the most pressing problem along academic trail.

Lower moral standards—"sex without love" — is the second biggest worry among students, according to the survey. As one put it:

"Sex without love causes all too many guilts, frustrations, and crises in an already critical period of a person's life."

MORAL LAXITY

Moral laxity, accepted by fellow students, was cited by another collegian, who said:

"To be accepted or have a good time, students often give in to the pressures applied by others.

"Unless this can be corrected, it threatens to destroy our society. Each generation tends to imitate the preceding one, only usually they become a bit more liberal."

★ ★ ★

If the trend continues, according to the collegian, anarchy will result.

Other comments from students asked to describe "the most important problem facing college students today":

- "Individuality. Students floundering in school are searching for purpose. If they permit themselves to think about stressing unique characteristics that they possess instead of following the crowd they would benefit greatly."
- "College students today have a tremendous need for self expression and they must have a constructive avenue for doing this.

I think the problem stems from the fact that the world is moving at such a rapid pace and we feel as though we are caught in the undertow . . . and must get out before it is too late. The only thing they know is — rebel.

Pressures of all sorts repeatedly were listed among the problems.

★ ★ ★

Pressures for high grades, social pressures and even some pressure of a physical sort from crowded classrooms and corridors.

Paperback Boom Sweeps Colleges

Over the course of the past ten years, notes a writer in the Williams College Record, a paperback revolution has swept the American college campus, bringing with it a vast change in the structure of the curriculum. The article goes on in part:

"No longer is it unusual to find the average assignment in the social science courses to be somewhere between 100 and 150 pages of reading per class.

"In fact it is rare to find a course where the assignments don't reach this length. A professor will often come across a book that would be excellent for his class — and only 95 cents. Add another book to the syllabus and 200 more pages.

"Slower readers obviously have difficulty keeping abreast. The main question, however, is whether the gain in quantity of material read is worth the loss in quality of both the classroom process itself.

"All too many times an issue as large as the rise and fall of Nazi Germany is relegated to one class, and Shakespeare's Hamlet is graciously awarded half an hour on the English 102 syllabus. Worthwhile and interesting discussion simply cannot take place, because all of the varied readings must be covered.

"Seldom is anything really understood. Exams become not a test of learning but a spitting back of general knowledge tied together with connecting phrases such as 'and in this next work we see' or "100 years passed, and then it seems' only to mention a few.

Good or Bad —Kids Learn

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A Stanford University professor thinks that occasionally bad teaching can produce good results.

Prof. Ernest R. Higard points to the late Truman Kelley, one of the original authors of the Stanford Achievement Tests who taught statistics at both Stanfood and Harvard.

"His teaching was 'poor' in that he always got mixed up in working out a derivation on the chalk board," said Hilgard, a professor psychology and education.

"But the students learned a great deal in helping him find his errors and putting him back on the track. As a consequence, students of his . . . went on to take leadership in statistics."

★ ★ ★

Hilgard emphaisizes that he does not want to encourage bad teaching, just caution educators against "accepting pat answers concerning teaching effectiveness."

The Class of '06

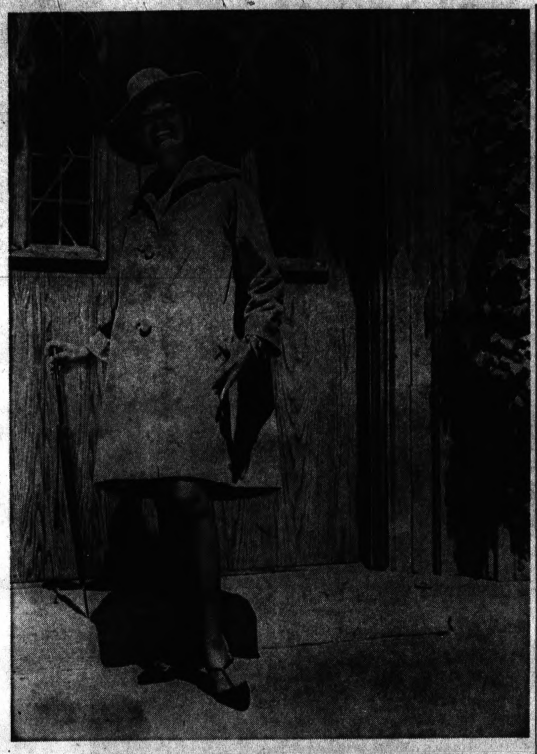

Pontiac Grove School

Really this is the boys' class. In those days when the 'kids' went Back-To-School the boys' classes were held in one room and the girls were taught in another. If you can name any, most, or all of the lads in this photo you would recognize many of the men who today are Doctors, Lawyers, Merchants, Industrialists, Bankers in the Pontiac Area. The Community leaders. They began their daily newspaper reading with The Pontiac Press Gazette. In fact one of them still refers to our newspaper by that name today . . . habit, I guess. But the important thing is they read their local newspaper daily!

Most of this distinguished class still are daily readers of The Pontiac Press!

You should be, too. This is the newspaper where you get all the local news, county news, state news, national and international news. It is the ONLY daily that gives you so much local, right-at-home information! Start your Back-To-Schoolers in the habit that gives them a broader insight, keener preception, and fuller knowledge of their world . . . start them reading The Pontiac Press every day!

Worn Out

Achievers Slow Down

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK — Students who performed whiz-bang in high school more and more are making dim-wit grades in college.

They're not stupid or lazy, according to Dr. L. Carroll King, Northwestern University chemistry professor.

Most of them are victims of "the crime against a generation," he said at a symposium on chemical education sponsored by the American Chemical Society.

The crime, as he analyzes the situation, is being committed daily by parents and colleges demanding too much.

Through four years of high school, the promising student is pushed. He gets out of bed at 7 a.m., grabs something to eat and gets to class by eight. He puts in a full day and arrives home tired.

DAY COMPLETED

By the time he finishes homework, his 17-hour day is completed.

"After four years of this 17 hours a day of activity in high school," Dr. King said, "Mr. Good Student is no longer that. He is a tired, discouraged old man.

"By the time he completes secondary school, we have asked him to do too much, too fast, too soon, and we have asked him to keep at it too long."

★ ★ ★

So what happens? Mr. Good Student realizes college means four additional years of 17-hour days. It is too much. He quits.

With Unfaithful Mate

Giving to Spouse Most Important

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently read something in your column which in my judgment was one of the best pieces of advice I have ever seen anywhere. But why was it buried in small print at the bottom of your column?

ABBY

It should have been featured right at the top, and bill-boarded with 12 point bold type. It was: "CONFIDENTIAL TO THE WIFE OF AN UNFAITHFUL HUSBAND: DON'T ASK YOURSELF, WHAT DOES SHE HAVE THAT I DON'T HAVE? THE ANSWER IS NOTHING. BETTER ASK YOURSELF, WHAT HAS SHE GIVEN THAT I HAVEN'T GIVEN?"

The husband of an unfaithful wife may substitute "she" for "he" and the same advice applies to him. Sign this

ONE OF YOUR EDITORS

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of people who refuse to play cards for fun? They always suggest playing for a little something, just to make it "interesting."

★ ★ ★

I enjoy playing gin rummy, and I play the same game whether I'm playing for money or for fun. My sister and her husband will never play unless there's money involved to make it "interesting."

★ ★ ★

Last night we gave them an "interesting" evening — which cost us a $10 bill. One night last week they had another interesting evening here — for $6.50.

Don't you think that people who HAVE to play for money in order to make the game "interesting" are interested only in the money? PLAYS FOR FUN

DEAR PLAYS: Not necessarily. To a card player who enjoys a challenge, playing for "fun" is about as "interesting" as playing tennis with the net down. On the other hand, if the stakes run hog-wild, your assumption is correct.

Greenfield Village Is Setting for Osbo-Harris Saturday Vows

Mary-Martha Chapel in Dearborn's Greenfield Village was the setting for Saturday afternoon vows spoken by Donna Jean Harris and Hospitalman Apprentice John Douglas Osbo, USN.

The daughter of Mrs. Donald E. Harris of Dixie Highway and the late Mr. Harris, was given in marriage by her brother, Ronald R. Schebor of Clarkston.

MRS. JOHN D. OSBO

The bride was attired in floor length white peau de soie with bateau neckline and wrist-pointed sleeves.

Re-embroidered Alencon lace accented the highrise waist from which the skirt flowed in a modified A-line, and featured a sweeping chapel train.

A plateau of matching lace capped her shoulder length bubble veil of silk illusion.

A cascade of Phalaenopsis orchids and Stephanotis formed the bridal bouquet.

Bonnie Jensen of Ludington was honor maid with attendants Patricia Osbo and Mrs. John Rushlow, a sister and cousin of the bridegroom, respectively.

Best man duties were performed by Lon Howey. Hospitalman Apprentice Richard A. Teno, USN, and Paul Nicholas served as ushers.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Osbo of Clarkston.

The newlyweds greeted guests in Rosedale Park Clubhouse.

They will reside in Waukegan, Ill. while the bridegroom is stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

MRS. BRUCE W. McCAUL

She Disagrees With a Former Post Answer

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently I read the column where you were asked about the disposition of hand towels when a guest at a party or reception. Of course the bath tub suggestion was ridiculous, maybe a gag, but I seriously question your alternative suggestion of the hamper.

First, many bathrooms do not contain a hamper, and, secondly, many of us who may have hampers would prefer to put therein what we deem appropriate.

Isn't the correct solution to leave them where they were found, either back on the rod, or on a nearby table, or window sill? — S. Johnson

Dear Mrs. Johnson: If the towels were hanging on a rod to begin with, they certainly may be put back there. But if they were in a little pile on the edge of the sink, or nearby, I can't condone piling the soiled towels on the window sill. I'll still stick to my vote for a hamper.

INVITATION

Mrs. Post: I am a teenager who is one month short of eighteen. Recently my boy friend moved to another city. Now that he and his family are settled, I have been invited to come for a visit.

This invitation was extended by both his parents, as well as himself. I would be staying with them at their home. The problem is, my parents said that they don't think it is the proper thing to do.

They said if I can get your approval it would be good enough for them. — Carole

Dear Carole: I can see no possible reason that you should not visit your boy friend. His parents' invitation is sufficient to make the trip perfectly permissible, so go, and have a wonderful time.

Do, incidently, pay your fare both ways.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary that the flowers used to decorate the church for a wedding be white ones? The altar of our church is white marble and white flowers have absolutely no effect against it.

Would it be proper to use pink flowers instead? — Helen

Dear Helen: Although white flowers are most appropriate, colored ones are permissible when they look better in the church, or are chosen to carry out the color scheme of the bridal party.

Government Orders Tests to Be Continued

WASHINGTON (AP)—New long-range tests have been ordered for birth control drugs, both those now on the market and those still in the experiment stage.

But there are no government plans to halt the sale of the drugs now in general use.

The Food and Drug Administration ordered the testing when it was found that dogs and monkeys developed abnormal breast tissue after receiving MK-665, an experimental drug.

★ ★ ★

Four of the six dogs developed breast cancer. The monkeys developed an abnormality known as atypical hyperplasia which the FDA said could be, but probably is not, a forerunner of cancer.

MK-665 also had been tested on 340 women but these tests were halted early last year after the results of the dog experiments became known.

Previous birth control pills had been tested and found safe for dogs but were not tested in monkeys.

★ ★ ★

Now the FDA wants the 11 pharmaceutical firms making birth control drugs to conduct the new tests on primates — animals of the family including monkeys and man.

But an FDA spokesman said "there is no indication of any change with regard to the marketing of these pills at this time."

Ceremonies Join Two Area Pairs

The former Mary Frances Fisher of Ann Arbor, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Fisher reside at Central Drive, Orion Township, recently spoke vows with Pvt. Dennis Mann, USA son of the Stanley Manns of Berkley.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

A baby is always a miracle, and especially when it is yours. This feeling of awe is particularly strong when you have your first child. It seems almost unbelievable that you could have produced such a wonder!

Fortunately, the danger has been taken out of pregnancy and delivery if a woman will take advantage of the splendid prenatal care now available. However, even in this enlightened day, some women fail to do this.

If they are in good health, they may feel that it is unnecessary to check in with their doctor during the early months of pregnancy.

* * *

Nothing could be further from the truth! Most of the serious conditions which sometimes develop during the later months could have been avoided or controlled had the physician had the opportunity to do so during earlier stages.

So, take measures which will safeguard you and your child and make those important nine months comfortable as well as exciting.

Here are some things to remember. Get in touch with your physician as soon as you suspect that you may be pregnant. Follow his advice about everything. If you feel that you cannot afford a doctor of your own, go to a clinic.

One is available to almost everyone, and these are staffed with well trained people.

This is very important! Report any unusual symptoms to your doctor immediately. Some women make the mistake of disregarding these, thinking, "Oh this is just to be expected when I am pregnant." Many women do the same thing when they are going through menopause years.

They think, "It's just menopause." The result of such thinking may be tragic and unnecessary.

* * *

These are some of the things you should report when pregnant: Persistent nausea, dizziness, swelling of the feet or ankles, in fact any swelling, less output of urine, blurred vision or spots before the eyes, any fever, fainting spells, any unusual discharge, abdominal cramps, persistent headaches and failure to feel the baby move after you have felt this for a while.

* * *

And, don't blame that bundle of joy for loss of your figure! There is no reason for a woman to become overweight during pregnancy. This adds to the discomforts and hazards of pregnancy and makes delivery more difficult and also leaves her with a big figure problem.

Readers Learn of Variable Annuities

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

DEAR MISS FEELEY:—In a recent article on annuities, I notice you did not mention anything about the "variable" annuities they have now.

MARY FEELEY

I have one and would appreciate any comments in your column on this type. As I read the policy, the minimum guarantee is there, but the maximum is variable, according to the good management and judgment of the people in charge of the fund. Are variables new or have they been around for a long time?

D. L. W., Chicago

DEAR D. L. W.: Variable annuities have been around for some 15 years, usually sold to groups rather than to the individual. In New York State, where nearly 70 per cent of the total life insurance business is written by licensed insurance companies, variable annuities connot be sold to the public at this time.

★ ★

However, I gather that the contract you have is what's known as a balanced annuity — a combination of fixed and variable dollars. If your contract calls for a guarantee of any kind, it's not a true variable annuity. The latter contract promises you a certain number of "units" per month, rather than a certain number of dollars.

Each unit represents a proportionate share in a large portfolio of selected stocks. Each month after retirement, you get an amount of money equal to what your units are worth that month. The number of units you get are fixed when you retire, but the value of each unit will change with the value of the investments.

For instance, with a true variable annuity, your monthly payments during pre-retirement years allow you to be credited with "accumulation units." At retirement, with dividends and profits from the fund reinvested you could have, say, 15 units a month.

If the unit value varies in three consecutive months — $10.15; $9.80; and $10.40 — then your retirement income for those months would be $152.25; $147; and $156.

You can and do get a statement from year to year on the status of the units, both during what is known as the accumulation period (when you're buying) and the annuity period (when you're collecting).

Since you can't know in advance exactly what your retirement income will be in dollars, you're simply banking on the fact that the payments from a variable annuity will be in closer relation to the cost-of-living figure than fixed payments would be.

However, the trend is toward a balance. Professional groups leaning toward variable annuities often combine them with a fixed-dollar annuity, which remains stable even during a stock market decline.

The balanced type of annuity offered through group plans has set percentages in fixed dollar investments and in variable dollar investments of the monthly installments paid into the plan. But the retirement plan calls for a fixed-dollar annuity — or the same number of dollars each month for life.

With any of thses annuities, as with the conventional fixed annuity, you can cancel a contract any time before the income or pay-off period. The money you have in it at that time can be taken out.

Some companies today set up their pension plans on a basis of part profit-sharing and part fixed dollars. The employee will have part of his retirement income through ownership of stock in the company, and the other half in a stated sum of money.

★ ★ ★

Variable annuities have performed well in a comparison with fixed annuities. It's a question of whether a person wants a sure thing, or a certain amount of risk in the hopes of bigger returns.

By O. U. IJA

NEW YORK (UPI) — The man came in with a large flat package and said he had a Ouija board and they were selling now at the rate of 2 million a year.

We told him he was looking at the wrong calendar and this was 1967.

We said everyone knew Ouija boards went out with McKinley.

No kidding, the man said. In 1967 millions of Americans were again busy asking Ouija questions, like back in the 1890s when Ouija was invented and scared greatgrandma out of her bustle.

Look what we've got here, we told the family.

You're nuts, they said, everyone knew Ouija boards went out with McKinley.

Sit down, we commanded the wife, and let's try it.

We got it on our laps, put our "fingers lightly on the heart-shaped indicator" as the instructions said, and waited for Ouija to tell us if cousin Cecil, with three girls was going to get the boy he wanted this time.

No, Ouija said, no boy for Cecil.

How about Mary and that long-haired fellow she'd been dating. Would he pop the question before the draft got him?

Another no from Ouija.

Ouija, give us the winner in the 7th tomorrow at Aqueduct. M U S G was the answer.

What about Harry? Would he get that scholarship he was in for? No again.

Put it away, the wife said, it's giving all the wrong answers.

We took a peek at the paper. No "Musg" in the 7th, but "Muse" was running. It came in second and that was $2 blown.

But cusin Cecil had a girl, all right, two days later. Mary's boy didn't say a word before he went off to the army. And Harry didn't get the scholarship.

So what's proved? Ouija is a lousy handicapper, that's what.

Medical Capacity in Riots Surveyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are surveying the capacity of cities to handle medical emergencies resulting from riots, with indications federal aid might be proposed if major deficiencies are found.

Dr. Carruth Wagner, director of the Public Health Service's Bureau of Health Services, says the standard of planning for emergencies always has depended on the existence of law and order.

★ ★ ★

Rioting, he said in an interview, "makes it an entirely different ball game."

Wagner noted that in the Newark, N.J., riot there was evidence ambulances were fired upon by snipers. "Most people never would have anticipated this," he said.

BLOOD SUPPLY

He added some Newark hospital staff members were unable to get to work because the riot area lay between their homes and the hospital. He said good blood and blood substitutes were in short supply.

Wagner said the check on hospital and other medical capabilities for riot situations is part of a broader survey, begun about three weeks ago, on emergency medical services of communities around the country.

★ ★ ★

"The riots just happened to hook into this," he said.

Most communities and hospitals seem to do well in handling normal accident and emergency medical cases, Wagner said, but "I think we have some indication that most communities don't handle the unusual kinds of accidents as well as they could."

WHOLE RANGE

The survey is to cover the whole range of emergencies from car accidents to natural disasters like floods and hurricanes.

Wagner said the important thing is that communities have plans for hospitals and other medical facilities to coordinate efforts during an emergency.

★ ★ ★

While declining to say what the government will do if major deficiencies are found, Wagner indicated federal assistance might be proposed.

In a related move, the Health Service is trying to get hospitals to take over all of the 2,500 so-called package disaster hospitals stored around the country. Some of the 200-bed units now are in such places as municipal buildings, armories or schools.

King-Led-Rights Group Meets, Will Discuss Riots

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An open discussion on rioting in American cities is expected to highlight initial activities of the 10th annual convention of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which starts today in Atlanta.

The discussion, with more than 2,000 SCLC delegates participating, follows an analysis of causes and effects of city crises by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., SCLC president; Bayard Rustin, director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, and Dr. Kenneth Clark, author and psychologist at New York University.

Other topics planned for discussion during the four day convention include "civil rights and politics," "approaches to poverty" and "the movement for world peace."

Convention headquarters will be the Ebenezer Baptist church, where King and his father are copastors.

Meeting with the conference delegates, SCLC officials said, will be political figures, government officials, economic experts and civil rights leaders.

Actor Sidney Poitier will be keynote speaker at a convention banquet tonight.

NSA Leader Tells of Fears

Students Wary in CIA Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the National Student Association (NSA) said today that in breaking its relationship with the Central Intelligence Agency earlier this year, NSA officers were fearful of the consequences.

★ ★ ★

W. Eugene Groves told some 1,500 delegates to the association's congress that during the break period, Richard G. Stearns, association vice president, "was awakened at 4 a.m. to be read out of future service in the U.S. government by a CIA agent over the phone."

Another NSA leader, Jim Johnson, "was frightened that he would be knocked off on the street corner that week in Washington," Groves said. He did not amplify on this statement.

BREAK IN FEBRUARY

The period Groves referred to was last February, when the 1.7 million- member NSA announced the break with the CIA. Ramparts magazine disclosed the 15-year secret alliance, during which the CIA provided about $3.3 million for NSA projects overseas and recruited NSA staffers for intelligence work.

Groves said he had been told that Philip Sherburne, a former NSA president, "was threatened with fabrication of psychiatric records—records that would appropriately turn up at a future date to ruin his career or to open him to blackmail."

★ ★ ★

"There were difficulties and fear" during the February period, Groves said, but "physical fear we parried." Now, Groves said, "we are more solvent than ever recently, with little help from the CIA—achieved despite them in fact."

Groves called upon the association to concentrate its attention on domestic problems rather than international activities. He said "our cold war mentality" of previous years "creates more antagonisms than it solves problems."

NSA WITHDRAWAL URGED

He urged withdrawal by the NSA from the International Student Congress, a confederation of non-Communist student unions based in the Netherlands set up in 1950 to counter the Communist International Union of Students.

He also proposed a reorganization of the NSA to make it more representative of students and said there should be stronger efforts to gain financial support from the campuses.

Prof Follows Parades in His Vintage Rolls

By DICK ROBINSON

What does a guy do when he has a 40-year-old canary-yellow Rolls Royce which was the parade car of Spain's Gen. Francisco Franco?

Why, he puts it in his garage and keeps his own car outside.

He babies and polishes and keeps it in excellent shape.

He drives it to town occasionally and is a real big hit with the kids who climb all over it.

When he sees a parade, he drives his Rolls Royce at the end of it, puts a smile on his face and starts waving. No one knows the difference.

ROUND THE BLOCK

And he takes visitors around the block in the car.

Chug, chug, chug, chug . . . goes the car.

But George Engeman, assistant professor of Spanish at Oakland University, wants to be known as a teacher first, a soccer fan and coach second, and last — but obviously not least a car enthusiast.

Oddly, though, if he had not pursued a teaching career in Spanish by working for his Ph.D. at the University of Madrid in the early 1960s, he would not have had a chance to buy the car.

Engeman, who lives at 674 McGill, Avon Township, with his wife, newborn baby and puppy, bought the historic car from a Spanish nobleman at an undisclosed price.

The 36-year-old professor is among a distinguished line of owners.

At first, the Torpedo Phaeton touring car was used to take guests to the bull ring. Eventually, the Spanish army took it over after the Spanish Civil War in 1939.

It was then that Spain's chief of state, Gen. Francisco Franco, paraded through the streets in the car after leading the rebel forces to victory.

A Spanish nobleman then picked up the car in an auction and in turn sold it to Engeman, who is the fourth owner. Old army serial numbers are still visable on the car's body.

"I love cars," Engeman related while Benevenuto Cellini III — the 3-month-old pup — chewed on his pants cuff. "But it's just a hobby."

Actually, his full-time hobby is teaching Spanish. He came to OU last year after four years at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa.

He got started in the business after a brief stint in the newspaper line.

INTERESTING TEACHERS

"I found some interesting teachers in Spanish while I was at the University of Virginia," he recalls. "So I majored in Spanish.

"I believe students should go to school where the good or interesting teaching is."

Engeman, assistant soccer coach at OU, says the sport may do better than hockey or basketball in interest in the next 10 years.

When he's not drilling the OU booters, he's out refereeing some high school soccer game.

He has a particular quirk about the definition of an amateur and professional athlete:

"If an athlete plays before a crowd which pays admission, in my book the player is a professional. I won't have my son play a game at which admission is charged."

They don't have any "professional" athletes at Oakland University, even going by Engeman's standards. And that's what he likes.

FRANCO'S PARADE CAR — George Engeman, assistant professor of Spanish at Oakland University, proudly displays his 40-year-old canary-yellow Rolls Royce. He says Spain's chief of state, Gen. Francisco Franco, used it as his parade car from 1939 to 1954.

British Plan to 'Repatriate' Doctors Hit

By Science Service International

LONDON — A plan by the Ministry of Health, to send a team of five medical experts to North America to persuade British doctors who emigrated there to return, is being severely criticized by the medical profession in Britain.

The team, which will leave London next month, consists of two doctors from the ministry, and three senior hospital doctors from Birmingham.

Criticizing the timing of the visit and the composition of the team, Dr. Derek Stevenson, secretary of the British Medical Association, says, "If any doctors return to Britain as a result of this trip, the majority will be family doctors or relatively junior doctors in hospitals.

"Yet this ministry team has no junior doctor who could talk to those in America on the same level, nor any practicing family doctor.

"In any case, the ministry should make conditions for doctors here better before they try getting them to return from Canada and the United States."

The position of the family doctor is summed up by a doctor in southeast England: "Since last year the pay of family doctors has improved but the patients are just as demanding and the form filling is much worse.

"A doctor who comes back from the States should have his head examined."

Memo-Minded Computer in Debut

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — There's a popular theory that the work load in an office expands to fit the number of people working there. A corollary might be that the number of memos written expands to fill the absolute capacity of the message-handling system.

* * *

If that theory is true, there'll be even more memos written in the future—thanks to new computer-controlled message handling equipment now being developed.

Control Data Corp., which admits to being a leader in the automatic memo-handling field, is showing off its new system to communications experts this week in Washington. Prime target of the campaign is the Department of Defense, where the memo is a way of life.

CDC representatives lament the fact that, while computers are getting faster, ways to feed information in and get it out have lagged.

It isn't logical, they say, to have a computer capable of instantaneously classifying, numbering and filing that memo on sump pumps and veeblefretzers as well as picking out the right distribution list for it, if three expensive typists and keypunch operators are needed to translate the document into Computerese first.

CDC's leading candidate for keypunch emancipator is an $87,000 optical page reader that scans typewritten copy at the rate of 370 characters per second and feeds the information directly into the computer.

NEW RIOT BLOW—Mrs. Mary Trabulsy (left), 65-year-old widow of a Lebanese immigrant, and her invalid daughter Jenny look over an order from the City of Detroit to tear down the remains of her store, which was wrecked by the recent riot, and clean up the area. It is estimated that the cost would be $1,800. The store was the only source of income for Mrs. Trabulsy and her 37-year-old daughter, who has been bedridden for the past 21 years with polio. There was no insurance on the building.

Flood Threat Evacuates Alaskan Community

NENANA, Alaska (AP) — All women and children in this central Alaska community of 300 were evacuated Sunday night in the face of rising floodwaters from the Tanana River.

Forty-seven Alaska National Guardsmen were rushed from Fairbanks, about 50 miles northeast of here, to assist in the evacuation and help battle the rising waters.

* * *

The flooding is a result of heavy rains that have plagued the Nenana and Fairbanks area for about a month.

The Tanana, which floods at 12 feet, overflowed its banks three weeks ago but much of the water had been held away from the town with the help of 36,000 sandbags.

However, the river reached a height of 13 feet 10 inches Sunday night and was expected to rise to 14 feet 2 inches today.

While the men of the town stayed behind to fight the flooding, the women and children were evacuated to a radar station near Clear, about 20 miles away.

* * *

Continuing rains in the Alaskan interior have closed all roads into Fairbanks, and mud slides and a washed out bridge cut off rail traffic from Fairbanks to Anchorage.

Fairbanks, which normally has a rainfall of 2.2 inches in August, had a record 2.47 inches in 24 hours Saturday.

* * *

The river was two feet below flood stage at Fairbanks Sunday night and there was no immediate danger of flooding in the city.

Reptile Specialist, 12, Starts Medical Practice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Among amateur doctors, 12-year-old Peter Dailey probably has the most slithery roster of patients possible.

His practice, says the specialist, is limited to reptiles—but he makes house calls.

* * *

Until the other day, Peter confined his practice to his own menagerie.

But a neighbor, Susie Pickett, 6, called to say Herman, her torpid tortoise, had the malaise.

'VETS LAUGHED'

"His eyes looked bad," recalled Susie's mother, Marjorie Pickett. "They were swollen and closed. We called the vets, but they just laughed. They said they only handled dogs and cats"

On hearing there was a reptile specialist in the neighborhood, Mrs. Pickett declared: "Bring him over."

* * *

Over came Peter, within an hour.

"He was carrying this little paper bag," she recalls. "He had brought all his tools and medicines, like a doctor. He had tweezers, bottles and a little plastic squirt bottle full of water. He had a book on turtles."

DIAGNOSIS

After examining Herman, she said, Peter told her "the turtle hadn't been getting decent care. We told him we had been feeding Herman mostly lettuce. He said he needed strawberries and cod liver pills."

Peter squirted water into Herman's eyes to clean them, then applied a drug from one of his vials. He told the Picketts to feed Herman strawberries and keep in touch.

Peter, who owns a box turtle, a tortoise named Biggie, a bullfrog, a horned toad and a lizard, said he learned his medical lore from books at the local branch library.

But he seems to have helped Herman.

"The swelling has gone down," Mrs. Pickett reports, "and his eyes are open. Of course we've got him on strawberries."

Month-Old Copper Strike Long Way From Settlement

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Families of the nation's 42,000 striking copper workers and the dozen or more copper towns are awaiting the next payday, but it seems no closer now than when the strike began one month ago today.

Most people close to the situation—the workers, company officials and union representatives—indicate this could be the longest copper strike of them all, longer than the six-month work-stoppage of 1959-60.

* * *

"The bad thing," says Bill Propkopis, "is that between strikes you never make up what you lost."

Propkopis owns a bar in Magna, Utah, a copper town in the southwest corner of the Great Salt Lake Valley. He comes from a copper family and worked five years for Kennecott Copper Corp. before "getting out after that one in '59."

SAGE ADVICE

"My daddy used to tell me: 'Son, you're making what you are today because of the guys who went on strike before. And today you're striking for the guys who'll be working here tomorrow,'" Propkopis said. "But you never break even. That's why I quit," he added.

* * *

Strikes haven't been infrequent in the copper industry. In Utah alone, Kennecott has been shut down seven times in 16 years.

But this strike marks the first time a single major union has been able to press an industry-wide shutdown. The big four producers — Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda and American Smelting & Refining Co. — face a labor force newly dominated by the United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO.

'BIG STICK'

Before, the Steelworkers and the old International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers had been the two dominant bargaining agents. They merged this year, and union spokesmen announced a "big stick" bargaining policy was in the offing.

After 31 days, pickets seem as determined as they were a month ago to back the steelworker pronouncement that this would be "the most successful strike the copper industry has ever known."

* * *

"We're ready for a long one," says Gary Finch, 28, a Kennecott worker from Hunter, Utah. His only complaint is that strikers can't buy cigarettes with the food coupons issued them weekly.

"There isn't a harder time to try to quit smoking than when you're just laying around," he said.

Road Deaths, Drinking Tied

Study Shows Almost Half Involve Alcohol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Excessive drinking is involved in nearly half of the 53,000 highway deaths each year, according to a government survey.

The national Highway Safety Agency is putting the finishing touches on a study of the relationship of drinking and accidents.

Dr. William Haddon Jr., director of the agency, told United Press International "the evidence is very clear that, as far as most fatal accidents are concerned the most common factor is excessive drinking."

Haddon said about 8,000 pedestrians are killed annually in traffic accidents, but "for the remainder, across-the-board, about half the fatal crashes involve alcohol in excessive amounts.

* * *

"Usually, almost a flat 70 per cent of single-car fatal accidents in such places as California, New York and various other major cities involve substantially elevated blood-alcohol levels, and at least half of them meet anybody's liberal definition of intoxication.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS

"The teen-age and college-age male is apparently quite important here," Haddon said. "They might be out to have a good time and are not as experienced with drinking and driving as their elders.

* * *

"It's important that the kind of society we have often requires driving after drinking," he said. "The road house, the party, the social occasion with drinking is often reachable only with an automobile."

FLAMING DERRICK — Firemen battle an early morning blaze yesterday in Los Angeles, following an explosion of an oil well. A huge ball of flames engulfed the derrick after the explosion rocked a five-block area. Firemen had to fight the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control. Several persons were injured.

'Rifle Sights Wanted for Microscope Use'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — George T. Miller, who ordered seven telescopic rifle sights for the Houston antipoverty agency, said Sunday he had hoped to convert them into classroom microscopes.

Police Chief Herman B. Short responded to Miller's statement with laughter.

★ ★ ★

Miller, 64, property manager of the Harris County Community Action Association, was vacationing in Virginia Friday when Short made public the scope requisition and the chief's feelings about it: "disgust and outrage."

★ ★ ★

The sun-weathered Miller wore boots, cowboy hat, Western tie and a satin shirt with pearl snap buttons to a news conference and appeared unperturbed as he read a prepared statement.

SURPLUS GOODS

Miller said his job involved ordering surplus goods offered free by the government to anti-poverty agencies.

He asked first for microscopes, he said. But they were unavaible, so he ordered the telescopic sights, thinking the lenses could be used to make microscopes.

★ ★ ★

Miller said he did not know for certain that his plan for making microscopes would work.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Jack Thompson, professor of optics at the University of Houston, said such conversion was impossible, since a microscope constructed from telescope lenses would magnify objects only two or three times.

'PERHAPS MALICIOUS'

Miller, onetime Harris County (Houston) deputy sheriff, said the police chief's remarks about the sights were "unfortunate and perhaps malicious . . . made for the purpose of discrediting the local community action agency."

★ ★ ★

Miller added, "The chief of police knew the sights were at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, not Houston, and that there was no danger even if they were ordered for some nefarious purpose, which they were not."

★ ★ ★

Short responded later with laughter, saying, "They just requisitioned the rifle sights, and that's all there is to it. I don't consider it too unusual for the police department, and me, too get blamed for this. It's really rather humorous."

Urban Coalitions Urged to End Ghetto Problems

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

This summer's racial violence has caused a crisis of leadership. The riots have made it easy for "blacklashers" to justify resistance to necessary social changes.

YOUNG

But this leads to a dangerous polarization of attitudes which could lead to more violence.

Negro leadership has lived up to its responsibility by speaking out against riots and by proposing rational programs to end their causes. Now it is time for white leadership to speak out and condemn the backlashers and start doing something to end the ghetto's problems.

Churches, liberal organizations, political clubs, business and labor, interracial and human relations group — all have to speak out now and regain the initiative from the backlashers. They have been silent for too long.

There are signs that some leaders realize the urgency of the situation and are willing to join with others to form the coalition so desperately needed if our country is to have peace and progress. I took part in a recent meeting to form just such a group.

It is called the Urban Coalition, and our first meeting included leaders of business, labor, religion, city mayors and civil rights groups.

Out of this meeting came proposals for an emergency work program to provide jobs and training for the unemployed, the establishment of job centers in cities and the commitment of private industry to take all steps necessary to insure full employment.

This last item is especially significant because business has not done enough to provide the jobs and training needed.

Negro workers are unemployed at a rate more than twice that for white workers and Negro family income is $3,000 LESS per year than for white families.

Something has to be done about this — now.

★ ★ ★

Many business leaders understand that they have a tremendous stake in urban peace and some of them realize they can't afford to continue old ways of doing things.

LOCAL TEST

But the real test will come at the local level. Businessmen and community leaders are going to have to come forward with vigorous support for radical changes.

That is why various local Coalitions are now being formed.

In New York, for example, Mayor Lindsay, who was at our Urban Coalition meeting, has set up a New York Coalition of local leadership to attack ghetto problems. Other cities and regions will do the same.

★ ★ ★

This month will be spent organizing these groups. On Aug. 24 we will meet again in Washington, D. C. At this meeting, 1,000 community leaders representing the regional coalitions will formulate action programs to be taken to cure joblessness and a host of other social ills.

EXCITING TREND

The Urban Coalition could be the most exciting new development in a long time. But only if its members are sincere in pushing for radical change. The time is long past for mere lip service to the ideals of equality.

U.S. Statute of Limitations on Theft Ends

BOSTON (UPI) — The federal statute of limitations on the $1.5-million Plymouth mail robbery, the nation's largest cash holdup, expires today. No more indictments were expected.

★ ★ ★

Three persons, two men and an attractive blonde mother of four, were indicted two weeks ago in the Aug. 14, 1962, holdup of a Boston-bound mail truck on a sealed-off section of Route 3 in Plymouth, at the edge of Cape Cod. They are the only persons who have been charged in the crime.

U. S. Atty. Paul F. Markham said the federal grand jury was not expected to sit today, and no further indictments were expected. The state still has five years in which to seek indictments.

The federal government admits it already has spent more in investigating the daring crime than the bandits stole.

★ ★ ★

Bandits blocked off one section of the much-traveled highway after the mail truck passed, diverting other traffic down back roads. Meanwhile, the truck was pulled to the side of the road, the two guards bound and gagged while the money was taken. The truck was driven by a bandit in a policeman's uniform to the Boston suburb of Randolph, where it was abandoned.

FACTOR IN MURDERS

Police believe the money may have led to some of the 44 gangland murders in eastern Massachusetts since March 1964.

None of the money ever has been recovered.

'YOUR HEALTH'

PINCHED NERVES
By Dr. H. H. Alexander

If you are nervous, irritable, suffer with frequent headaches, dizziness, experience pain in your neck, shoulders, arms, back or legs or often feel a tightness and pain in your chest and in between your shoulder blades — the chances are you have pinched and irritated nerves.

Often falls, sprains and faulty posture cause misalignments of the spine, which results in pressure on nerve roots. Any pinching of these nerves as they leave the spine can cause trouble in the organs and limbs serviced by them.

Chiropractic has specialized in the analysis of spinal disorders and misplacements of vertebrae that cause pinching and irritation of nerves. Consult your chiropractor in cases where nerve pains are suspected. Treatment is directed towards lasting correction by removal of the spinal misalignments.

California U. Official Says Cuts Peril Stature

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — The University of California is reportedly reeling under the impact of cuts in its scientific research budget.

The cuts — amounting to about 17 per cent of all non-agricultural research — are so severe they would endanger the university's reputation if continued much past this year, according to Dr. Mark F. Ferber, the university's special assistant for governmental relations in Washington. He described the situation as desperate.

"If this is a one-year crisis, university research can sustain itself," said Dr. Ferber. "But if it's a trend, we can look forward to a deterioration of the nationwide and world-wide impact of the University of California."

Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration this year slashed $3 million — a 10 per cent cut — from "organized research," which refers to those university groups, such as the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, whose main function is research rather than instruction.

* * *

Because every dollar of state research money means several dollars in federal matching funds, university officials estimate the true loss to be in the neighborhood of $10 million.

DISPROPORTIONATE AMOUNT

Moreover, disproportionate amount of the loss must be borne by the nonagricultural sciences.

Agricultural research takes up to 70 per cent of the university's total organized research budget. But under pressure from powerful farming interests, the state ruled that only a quarter of the cutback could be made in agriculture research.

In its search for new financial sources, the university is thinking of charging California framers for services rendered by its experimental stations.

* * *

But barring new funds, some scientific groups will suffer as much as a 25 per cent cut according to Dr. Roger W. Heyns, chancellor at the Berkeley campus.

SERIOUSLY AFFECTED

Among the institutes due to be most seriously affected at Berkeley, Dr. Heyns named: The Institute of Governmental Studies, the Virus Laboratory, the Seismographic Stations and the Institute of Human Development.

Common Man Gets Brush-Off by NASA

By TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The average American has traditionally grabbed for the big things in life — money, rank, accomplishment — and so it is no surprise that in this age Mr. Common Man is now reaching for the biggest plum thus far, the moon.

Unfortunately, he won't get it. Not right away, at least.

According to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, average people by the thousands are asking to be included in this country's interplanetary program.

They petition NASA almost daily. Truckers, mechanics, haberdashery clerks—they all want to be part of the excitement, they all want to be participating witnesses in today's tomorrow.

* * *

They want to be astronauts.

IN GOOD SHAPE

"I'm 37 years old," a recent applicant writes. "I'm in good physical shape and I hate my present job. I want to fly rockets. Tell me honestly, do I have a chance?"

Honestly, NASA says, he doesn't. For one thing he's too old.

But even if the applicant were younger, his chances of getting a piece of the current space action would be nil. . . and the same goes for Mr. Common Man in general.

* * *

The requirements for space flight are too stringent. So much so that, to date, only 61 men have qualified as astronauts in this country . . . that's one out of every 3 million people.

NOT ORDINARY JOB

"We can't accept ordinary fellows," explains a NASA official, "because spaceflight isn't an ordinary job. So we must screen applicants with severe requirements."

Such as?

"Well, first thing we do is to take a gun and shoot it at the applicant's chest. If the bullet bounces off, the man has successfully completed the first examination."

Actually, the primary astronaut prerequisites are not really superhuman in nature. They are stiff, certainly, but not so insurmountable that a few everyday mortals would not qualify now and then. There are just six in all:

- Applicant must be U. S. citizen.
- Born after Dec. 1, 1929.
- Under six feet tall.
- Have degree in engineering or science.
- Have 100 hours of jet piloting.
- Be in good physical condition.

* * *

The last one is the sleeper. It's an elastic point which includes emotional as well as physical superiority and as such has axed thousands of exceptional men.

ONE OF ORIGINAL 7

Deke Slayton is one illustration.

He was one of the original seven Mercury astronauts until it was discovered he had a congenital heart murmur.

The blemish was medically insignificant, but Slayton was abruptly ruled out as a space explorer.

* * *

Emotional soundness is equally as demanding.

Candidates have been excluded from space flight consideration for such things as irritability under stress.

Says NASA spokesman Don Zeistra: "Before any candidate is selected he is required to take part in limited space simulator exercises.

"The tests are designed to familiarize the men with something of the space environment.

* * *

"While in the space simulator a man's reaction pattern is closely examined. For example, he is watched for any indications of claustrophobic or cabin fever quirks.

"If any are detected, the candidate is normally dropped.

STEP UP TO color

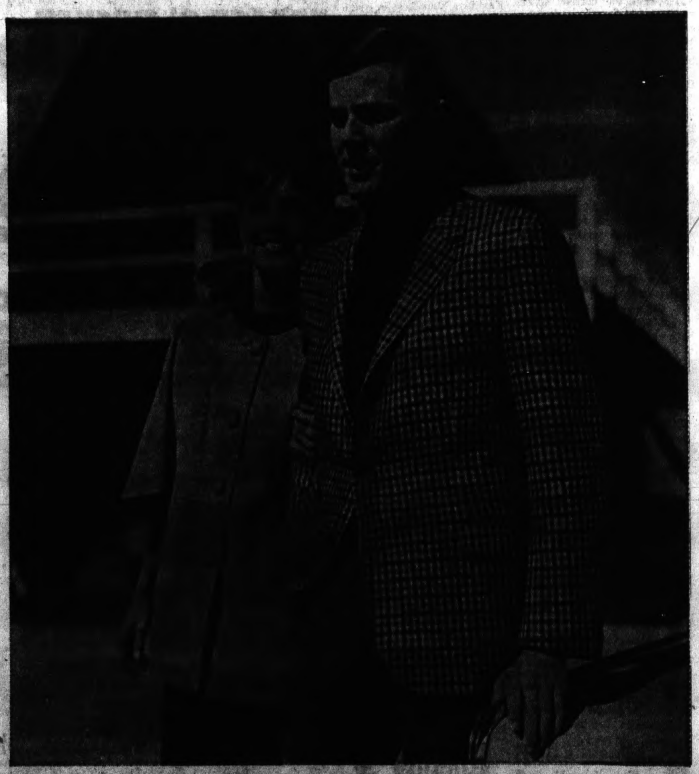

Look beyond the landscape for autumn colors this fall. Men will be harvesting a rich crop of color in their suits and sportswear — new lighter mid-tones for business wear and brightly uninhibited shades for leisure hours. This is the season of the blazer bountifully colored in shades like rust and old gold . . . of sport coats in rustic colors and dominant patterns . . . of the double-breasted in both suits and sportswear. In city and country this fall, men will be showing their colors.

CLIMB TO COLOR: The blazer provides instant color. Here are five of 18 shades tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx in a year-round Dacron polyester-worsted fabric by Forstmann. Both single- and double-breasted styles are available. The blazer can be dressed "up" or "down" with ties, turtlenecks, ascots or vests.

THREE TRENDS IN ONE: color, the double-breasted look and the shaped silhouette handsomely blended by Hart Schaffner & Marx. Trim natural-shoulder lines, accented by a trimmed-down waistline, highlight the mid-tone blue worsted fabric. Double-breasted styles also are available in advance-fashion suits.

INTERNATIONAL FLAIR: The worldly look comes to leisure wear, too. This Bagpiper sport coat by Society Brand Clothes has braw and bonnie flair in both style and fabric. The houndstooth check pattern is accented with a shaped waistline, side vents, and ticket pocket.

Buffalo QB Finally Makes Detroit 'Debut'

Kemp to Face Milt Plum in Exhibition Tilt

Jackie Kemp, the quarterback who just didn't fit into the Detroit Lions' picture in 1956, but who later became the biggest "steal" of American Football League trades, will, after 11 years, make his "debut" in Tiger Stadium tonight.

Kemp will be calling signals for the Buffalo Bills instead of the Lions when the two rival league teams meet at 8 p.m.

★ ★ ★

When he joined the Lions in 1956, from little Occidental College on the West Coast, Buddy Parker had a couple quarterbacks named Bobby Layne and Harry Gilmer.

★ ★ ★

Kemp made a couple exhibition trips with the Lions that year and the top tune in training camp during his stay was the Occidental College fight song.

George Wilson, who was then offensive backfield coach with the Lions, protested vehemently when Parker decided to let Kemp go.

Kemp went into Canada and then latched on with the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League.

In 1962, the Bills grabbed Kemp for the $100 waiver price and since then they have claimed it was the biggest "steal" of trading in the AFL.

He guided the Bills to three divisional championships and twice he went back to haunt the Chargers, defeating them in the AFL playoffs.

PLUM TO START

Tonight, Kemp will face veteran quarterback Milt Plum, who has coach Joe Schmidt's nod as starter.

"We started Karl Sweetan last week and we'll start Milt against Buffalo, and let them split the game," he said.

Plum had 10 for 17 passes in the second half of the Denver game, completing the lone touchdown pass to Bill Malinchak in the 13-7 loss.

Tonight will also mark the first appearance of the heralded Lions' rookies Mel Farr and Nick Eddy, along with linebacker Paul Naumoff.

Schmidt said that he would use all three in the game, along with Roger Brown, veteran defensive tackle, who did not play in the first contest.

★ ★ ★

Also ready to play tonight is Dick LeBeau, cornerback, who was a holdout for 24 days of training camp.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected for the contest which now has the NFL and AFL tied at 1-1 in their pre-season schedule against each other. Denver defeated the Lions last week and over the weekend, Baltimore routed the Boston Patriots, 33-3, to even the series of the two leagues.

Damage Suit Is Filed Against Singer Pat Boone

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A $4.5-million suit will be filed today against singer Pat Boone, owner of the Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association.

★ ★ ★

Attorneys said the action is being taken by Franklin Mieuli, president of the San Francisco Warriors, because of Oakland's attempt to "steal" the National Basketball Association's top scoring star, Rick Barry.

An injunction was issued by Superior Court Judge Robert J. Drewes last Tuesday preventing Barry from joining the Oaks. The judge said Barry can't play with anyone but the Warriors during the 1967-68 season.

Mieuli's attorneys said $1.5 million of his suit is for actual damages and $3 million for punitive damages.

★ ★ ★

Mieuli said, "First of all, we're seeking damages from Boone and the Oakland team for inducing Barry to breach a valid and binding contract."

"During depositions taken prior to this verdict, it was made clear that Barry understood the NBA contract's reserve clause as being binding and valid," Mieuli said. "Under oath, Rick said he knew the option bound him for another year."

SPORTS

Souchak Champion as Close Foes Falter

Mike Souchak thought he had the 47th Annual Michigan Open Golf Tournament sewed up as he went into the 16th hole of the final round.

He was eight under par and leading. Then he hit a wedge over the green from 100 yards, chipped short of the green and two-putted when he finally got on.

What pulled him through Sunday was that two of his three closest contenders — Stan Brion and Jimmy Picard, both of Tam O'Shanter — were having troubles of their own.

The 48-year-old pro at Oakland Hills Country Club fired rounds of 68 and 71 for a 72-hole total of 283, one stroke better than Brion, Picard and Chuck Matlack.

Two strokes off the pace at Spring Meadows Country Club, where the tournament was held the second straight year, was the tournament's low amateur, Robert Meyer of East Lansing, with a 285.

MIKE SOUCHAK

At 286 were Casmere Jawor of Dearborn Heights and Mike Hill of Tecumseh.

BONE AT 289

John Molenda of Warren was fifth with 287, and defending champion Gene Bone of Pontiac and Detroit's Walter Burkemo tied for sixth at 289.

"I tried to give it away, but they wouldn't take it, for which I am grateful," Souchak said.

He was referring to the near fatal double bogey six on the 70th hole that could have cost him the $1,000 top prize, had Brion and Matlack not run into difficulties.

★ ★ ★

"What's happened has happened," Souchak said coming off the 18th green, thinking he'd blown the tournament. "But I can't determine what happens out there on the course."

But putting disaster hit both Brion, who led the tournament through the first three rounds, and Matlack of Rockford.

The tournament will return again next year to Spring Meadows.

CITY BASEBALL HONORS—Manager Truman Lamphere (front) of M.G. Collision holds the Shaw Jewelers Trophy and team sponsor Bill Manuel has possession of the Quaker Oats trophy, both emblematic of city Class A baseball supremacy, after Collision knocked off defending champion Teamsters, 5-3, last night to win the playoff championship. Collision now plays in the state district tournament.

INTO FIRST PLACE — Jim Merritt (left) gets the glad hand from Jackie Hernandez and Rich Reese (20) after pitching the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday. The win carried the Twins into first place in the tight American League race.

New City Champ Crowned as MG Trims Teamsters, 5-3

There's a new champ perched on the Pontiac Class A baseball throne.

A two-run ninth inning helped M. G. Collision take the title yesterday from defending champion Teamsters 614, by a 5-3 count.

The victory qualified M. G. for the district phase of the state tournament which opens later this week.

The Teamster squad rallied from almost certain defeat for two runs in the bottom of the seventh to square the score at 3-3, but M. G. pushed across the deciding markers in the ninth on two hits, a walk, an error and a fielder's choice.

★ ★ ★

With one down in the ninth, Ron Kind singled and Jack McCloud drew a walk. Kind came across on a single by Earl Robinson and McCloud followed moments later on an outfield bobble.

SHARP IN RELIEF

Walt Miller came on in relief of Jack McCloud in the seventh and stayed around to pick up the victory. Don Sackett was saddled with the loss.

★ ★ ★

John Fleser's single in the third sent Bob Rakoja home with a run to put the Teamsters ahead, 1-0, but McCloud, who had two hits, stroked a run-scoring single in the fifth to tie it at 1-1.

A single by Willie Holloman, a triple by Kind and an infield grounder by McCloud put the Collision nine on top in the seventh, 3-1. The Teamsters knotted the count again in their half of the inning.

Earl, Rookie Trade 'Dusters' as Detroit Posts 3-2 Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Like the weather, everybody talks about the bean ball but nobody does much of anything about it.

The subject reared its ugly, but colorful head in a brief skirmish between Detroit's Earl Wilson and rookie Jim Hardin of the Baltimore Orioles in a game won by the Tigers 3-2 Sunday.

The victory, Detroit's third straight, put the Tigers one game back of new leader Minnesota in the tight American League pennant race. The Twins beat Chicago 3-2 to take over first place, one-half game ahead of the Sox.

Ray Oyler had just delighted 21,114 fans with a long homer into the lower left field stands to give the Tigers a 3-0 lead in the second inning when Hardin hit Wilson with a fast ball.

Oyler's homer, his first of the season, followed Al Kaline's double and a walk to Jim Price.

Hardin, making only his second start in the majors, let off the Baltimore third and Wilson's first pitch sailed behind his head and into the backstop.

Plate umpire John Stevens halted play and issued a stern warning to Wilson. Detroit Manager Mayo Smith and Hank Bauer, the Baltimore skipper.

"The loss was Baltimore's sixth in seven games.

"We play just good enough to get beat," said Bauer. "One decision changed this game for us."

He referred to a play in the seventh inning when shortstop Ossie Chavarria's back-hand stop of Dave Johnson's grounder in the hole between third and short and nipped him at first with a perfect throw.

Oyler's homer had hit his 12th homer leading off the inning, cutting the Detroit lead to 2-0 and Paul Blair, who hit his 10th homer in the second, walked.

"If Johnson were safe, we would have had two runs on and nobody out," said Bauer. "Wilson would be taken out and we could have sacrificed."

Wilson got out of the jam by getting Vic Roznovsky on a fly to Kaline and striking out pinch-hitter Doug Powell.

The victory was Wilson's 16th against nine losses.

Wilson, who singled to lead off the Detroit seventh, was replaced by Fred Gaultier, just up from Toledo, who held the Orioles scoreless the rest of the game.

The Tigers were off today and open a three-game series with the contending Boston Red Sox Tuesday. Joe Sparma is slated to pitch for Detroit against Dave Morehead.

Golfers Meet to Honor Haig

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — This remote resort was the golf capital of the world today as many of the game's elite gathered to honor the man who, more than anyone, made their sport world wide.

Professional greats from Arnold Palmer to former Professional Golfers Association tillists Johnny Revolta and Walter Burkemo were to be on hand at a testimonial for Walter Hagen, only man ever to win five PGA championships.

"Sir Walter" or "The Haig" as sports writers dubbed him when he dominated the sport during the 1920s, planned, of course, to be there himself.

And there was even the chance that the 74-year-old master, known as one of the best shotmakers the game has ever seen, would recount some of the antics that made him as famous off the links as on.

Dr. E. A. Wagener, a local physician and one of the originators of the testimonial dinner, said Hagen has recovered remarkably from three brief cancer operations, the most recent last February.

RETIRES — Ollie Matson, one of the NFL's great runners, announced his retirement Sunday from the Philadelphia Eagles at the age of 37. He has been in the NFL for 14 years, including a spell with the Lions.

Past Champs Return for Women's Amateur

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Seven times in the past 10 years the national women's amateur golf title has gone to one of two gals, and they're both back this week for the 67th annual USGA's tournament.

Mrs. JoAnne Gunderson Carner of Seekonk, Mass., seeks to defend the crown she won last year to go with the honors she captured in 1957, '60 and '62.

A triple winner is Mrs. Ann Quast Welts of Mt. Vernon, Wash., who won in 1958, '61 and '63.

Both face tough tests as 123 entries, including a bunch of low-scoring teenager, were listed for today's first 18-hole qualifying round at the Annandale Golf Club. Another 18 holes will be fired Tuesday with the low 32 scorers going into match play starting Wednesday.

Firebirds Fall to Ypsi in Exhibition at Rochester, 28-13

Tracy's Debut Is Spoiled by Ex-Lion Mate

Three TD's Thrown by Juday; Flint Next Foe Saturday

The nice thing about exhibitions is that—for the losers—they don't count.

Oh, those knocks and bruises are real and nerves are frayed a little, but it isn't costly. The real thing comes later.

So it is with the Pontiac Firebirds, the newest entry in the Midwest Football League, who made their debut Saturday night and dropped a 28-13 decision to Ypsilanti's Vikings before some 2,500 fans at Rochester High School.

Early impressions are that Ypsilanti and coach Earl (Jug) Girard, an ex-Detroit Lion star, have built themselves a potential MFL champion.

★ ★ ★

Ypsilanti finished second to Pontiac in the title race last year and the Vikings grabbed the runner-up spot on the strength of a solid defensive unit.

OFFENSE SHARP

Now, the Vikings have an offense with former Michigan State All-America Steve Juday at the helm.

★ ★ ★

With Juday doing the throwing, the Vikings had little trouble moving the ball against the inexperienced Firebirds and scored in every period.

Juday's success, of course, helped point up some of the weak links in the Pontiac Defense for coach Tom Tracy. Tracy, also an ex-Lion, coached at Ypsilanti last year and made the switch to Pontiac in the off-season.

After a slow start, Juday warmed up and finished with 17 completions in 35 attempts, with three of the tosses going for touchdowns.

★ ★ ★

Also adding strength to the Vikings' offensive unit was the presence of ends Tom Grunder, a 6-2, 225-pounder from Eastern Michigan University, and former University of Michigan star Craig Kirby, a 6-3, 225-pounder.

SIX CATCHES

Kirby hauled in six of Juday's passes for 98 yards, one a nine-yard TD pitch, while Grunder snared a pair of scoring passes.

The Firebird weaknesses were obvious. The team was slow to respond to sweeps on defense and the Birds were caught napping time after time by Juday on screens plays.

On offense, a Juday would help.

Quarterbacking slowed the Birds in the early part of the game. Sam West, a converted flanker, and Marty Malatin of Kent State share the signal-calling duties and both had trouble connecting with passes.

Trailing 16-0, the Birds hit the scoreboard early in the fourth when Malatin rambled seven yards around the right-side on a keeper play.

A 48-yard pass from Malatin to West set up the final Firebird score. West's catch gave the Birds a first down at the Ypsilanti eight-yard line and on the first play, Hawaiian Bill Apisa, brother of Michigan State fullback Bob Apisa, slipped up the middle for the six points. Ed McQueen added the extra point.

Tracy and his aides move back to the practice field Tuesday evening to start trying to iron out the wrinkles in preparation for the Flint Blue Devils.

The Birds entertain the Flint eleven Saturday night at Wisner Stadium in their final tuneup. They open the season at Mount Clemens August 26.

Twins Knock Chisox From Lead in A.L.

Rally by White Sox Fails in 9th Inning of Minnesota Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Stanky must have thought it was all a bad dream.

Here was Minnesota tip-toeing away with the American League lead and using a pitch and putt attack more characteristic of Stanky's Chicago White Sox to do it.

So, with first place slowly drifting away, Stanky decided to put up a fight. And all that strategy got him was an early shower. About two outs early.

The Twins were nursing a 3-2 lead built on a Chicago-type rally of two singles, a double steal, an intentional walk, and a force play. When Tommie Agee opened the ninth with a long double, Stanky thought he was back in business.

But Agee, trying to stretch his hit, was thrown out at third on a close play. Stanky rushed umpire Bill Valentine, tossed his cap, jawed nose to nose and was invited to leave early. Two outs later, the rest of the White Sox followed.

SLIM MARGIN

The 3-2 victory moved the Twins into the league lead, ½ game in front of Chicago. Detroit, which beat Baltimore 3-2, is third, one game back. California took fourth place, 1¼ games behind, by beating Boston 3-2. The Red Sox are fifth, 2½ games out.

★ ★ ★

In other American League games, New York outslugged Cleveland 15-11 and Washington blanked Kansas City 2-0.

The Twins' victory was their fourth straight and completed an 8-2 home stand. "Now we've got to have a good road trip to make it stick," said Manager Cal Ermer.

The Twins pushed the winning run across in the eighth. Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva opened with singles and worked the double steal after Harmon Killebrew struck out.

Bob Allison was intentionally walked and then Don Buford deflected Rich Rollins' bouncer to Ron Hansen, who forced Killebrew at second as Tovar scored.

Rollins drove in all three Minnesota runs and Agee homered for the White Sox.

FOURTH STRAIGHT

California won its fourth straight, with home runs by Jose Cardenal and Roger Repoz the big blows. Cardenal's inside-the-park shot led off the game for the Angels and Repoz connected against loser Jim Lonborg, 16-6 in the second inning.

Bob Tillman drove in six runs—three on a ninth inning homer—and Horace Clarke and Ruben Amaro smacked four hits apiece as the Yankees beat the Indians. Max Alvis rapped a pair of home runs for Cleveland.

Frank Bertaina pitched a five-hitter as the Senators reached .500 again by beating the Athletics. Rick Monday's second inning error and singles by Bernie Allen and Ed Brinkman, provided all the runs Bertaina needed.

The Senators, in sixth place, are only six games behind the league leading Twins, and how's that for a pennant race?

Reason to Celebrate

George Stark celebrated his 20th year of golf yesterday by acing the No. 13 hole at Oakland Hills. Stark used a No. 6 iron on the 149-yard hole and he scored an 83 for the round.

U.S. Tankers Plan Show of Talents

CHICAGO (AP) — Most of America's brilliant young aquatic stars who made a record-breaking shambles of the National AAU outdoor swim meet last weekend today were pointed towards an autumn display of their talents in Japan or Europe.

A notable exception is Don Schollander, 1964 Olympic star from Saratoga, Calif., who smashed one world record—seven world marks, existing or pending, fell in all—and anchored a world record-matching 800-meter free style relay victory.

★ ★ ★

Because of prior commitments, Schollander was not included on the 19-man squad named for the World Student Games at Tokyo, Aug. 26-Sept. 5, or the eight-man unit visiting England and West Germany Sept. 27-Oct. 9.

Sensational Mark Spitz, 17, Santa Clara, Calif., who again broke listed world records in the 100 and 200-meter butterfly in the three-day AAU meet, is too young for the Tokyo Games.

BRIGHTEST HOPE

But the USA's brightest swim hope for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City is on the team touring England and West Germany.

Schollander; Spitz; breast-stroke star Ken Merten of Pacoima, Calif.; backstroker Charles Hickcox, Phoenix, Ariz., and diver Keith Russell of Mesa, Ariz., all were double winners in the AAU meet in which seven American marks and 10 meet AAU marks also were shattered.

★ ★ ★

Hickcox, Merten, and Russell, along with new AAU champions Greg Charlton (400-meter free style) of Arcadia, Calif., Peter Williams of Michigan State (400 individual medley), and Mike Burton of Carmichael, Calif. (1,500-meter free style) also are included in the Tokyo-bound group.

Burton and Stanford's Mike Buckingham figured in two great Sunday world record performances.

Palmer Reaches Golf Milestone

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Arnold Palmer, the 37-year-old millionaire golfing great, was as happy as a kid Sunday after winning the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

It wasn't the $20,000 check or just another triumph in an ever growing list that had Palmer grinning radiantly.

★ ★ ★

It was professional victory No. 50, a long sought milestone which was becoming more evasive with every attempt.

The $20,000 vaulted Palmer to $138,189 for the year to keep him well ahead of the pack, boosted his official career earnings to $892,640 and put him over the $1 million mark in unofficial earnings.

"The 50th win has been an obstacle I've been thinking of for a long time," said Palmer, who had not scored a triumph since the Tucson Open last February.

★ ★ ★

"When you go any length of time without a win, it seems to become all the harder to win again. Right now my game is good but I was becoming cautious of not having won a tournament in many months."

TRAILED BY ONE

He started the final round Sunday tied with Jack Nicklaus, one stroke behind a relatively unknown trio of leaders—Jack McGowan, Allan Henning and Kermit Zarley.

Doug Sanders, who was in the running until he bogeyed No. 14, finished with a one-under par 34-35—69 and a 279 total to take second money of $12,000.

Palmer's final round of 34-33—67 gave him a four-under-par 276 total, one shot over the Firestone Country Club record set by Ken Venturi in the 1964 Classic.

Phillies Fall to Pvt. Holtzman, 6-2

By The Associated Press

Over in Vietnam, somebody will undoubtedly be glad that Pvt. Ken Holtzman gave a couple of pints of blood last week. Back in Philadelphia, they may wish he wasn't all that civic minded.

Holtzman, on his first pass from the Army in nearly three months, pitched well enough for 5⅓ innings for the Chicago Cubs to beat the Phillies 6-2. They took the nightcap, too, 1-0 behind Ferguson Jenkins.

★ ★ ★

Holtzman, who went into the Army for six months with a 5-0 record on May 20, hopes to make his weekend pitching a regular thing now that he's out of basic training and learning to be a combat medic at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

"I won't know until Friday if I'm going to get a pass," he said. "This weekend I got one by giving two pints of blood. I've got enough left if they say give some more, but I'm not doing it just to get a pass. It goes to Vietnam. I know how much it's needed."

BEGAN TO TIRE

Maybe it was the long layoff or maybe the missing blood, but Holtzman says he began to tire in the fifth and Manager Leo Durocher took the 21-year-old lefty out, though he gave up just four hits, striking out four and walking two.

Bill Stoneman finished up and Ron Santo's 25th homer sparked a three-run fourth inning. Jenkins stopped the Phils on four hits in the second game, winning his 16th game, and Don Kessinger drove in the only run of the game.

★ ★ ★

In other National League contests Sunday, New York swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 3-0 and 11-9, Cincinnati shut out Los Angeles 3-0, St. Louis edged San Francisco 2-1 and Atlanta crushed Houston 8-4.

Tom Seaver threw a four-hit shutout in the first game for the Mets, who scored three times in the eighth inning to beat the Pirates. Ed Kranepool's two-out single drove in the only run New York needed.

★ ★ ★

In the second game, the Pirates took an 8-6 lead into the eighth, but the Mets fought back for five runs on two singles, a sacrifice fly and a force out. Ron Swoboda homered for New York and Willie Stargell and Bob Rodgers connected for the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis made it two shutouts in a row for the Reds over the Dodgers, stopping Los Angeles on three hits. Lee May hit a two-run homer for Cincinnati. Saturday, Milt Pappas blanked the Dodgers on six hits.

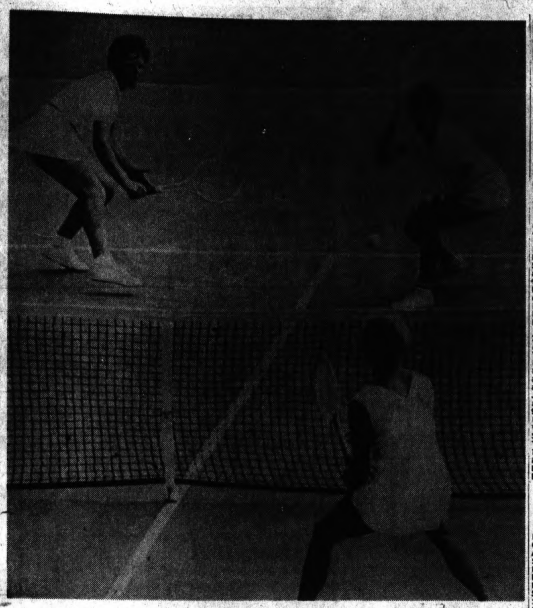

The Cardinals scored both their runs in the third inning on a walk, a single by Lou Brock and a double by Alex Johnson. Dick Hughes, with relief help from Joe Hoerner, was the winner. Willie McCovey tripled in the fourth for the Giants and scored on Jim Hart's single.

Rico Carty, Mack Jones and Hank Aaron hit homers for the Braves who won their fifth consecutive game as the Astros dropped their 10th straight and fell into the National League cellar.

SHARP COMBINATION — In far court, Rosemary Casals (right) and Mrs. Billie Jean King display the volleying attack which carried them to a 10-8, 6-4 victory yesterday in the No. 1 doubles match of the Wightman Tennis Cup competition in Cleveland. In foreground is Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones who was teamed with Virginia Wade of Great Britain.

Singles Matches Today

Netters One Victory From Cup

CLEVELAND (AP) — Texan Nancy Richey and Mrs. Billie Jean King of California both were favored to score their second and Wightman Cup tennis singles victories today, but only one needs to conquer her British opponent to give the cup to the Americans for the seventh straight year.

Miss Richey, who performed brilliantly Saturday in upsetting the No. 1 British star, Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, 6-2, 6-2, gets the first chance to clinch the trophy for the United States for the 33rd time in its 39-year history. She will oppose Virginia Wade, whom she defeated in Wightman Cup play in England last year.

* * *

In today's second singles, Mrs. King, 23-year-old world queen of tennis, renews an old rivalry with Mrs. Jones. They will be meeting in Wightman Cup singles for the sixth time in seven years, and Mrs. Jones' only triumph was here two years ago.

Mrs. King, who defeated Miss Wade 6-3, 6-2 Saturday, teamed with 19-year-old Rosemary Casals of San Francisco Sunday for a doubles victory that put the U.S. team ahead 3-1. They overcame Britain's No. 1 doubles team of Jones-Wade 10-8, 6-4.

* * *

Christine Truman came from behind to beat Miss Casals 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 in Sunday's opener for the first and only point the British team has scored so far. The duel between the 5-foot-2 Rosie, playing her first Wightman Cup singles, and the 6-foot-1 Miss Truman, who said this eighth appearance in the classic probably is her last, drew repeated applause from 5,837 fans.

Ryun 'Strolls' in Easy Mile

U.S. Track Star Has Britons Buzzing

LONDON (AP) — American track artist Jim Ryun flew out of England today leaving British sporting circles a picture of impending national disaster at next year's Olympic Games.

The 20-year-old speedster from Wichita, Kan., strolled a mile round the celebrated White City track Saturday, leaving Kenyan distance ace Kip Keino galloping yards behind and Britain's best gasping in their downdraught.

* * *

In a race billed as the Mile of the Century, world record holder Ryun turned in an effortless 3:56.0, well outside his best of 3:51.1. The Kenyan policeman was 1.4 seconds behind.

Britain's toiling Alan Simpson was clocked in 4:00.4 for third on a dull, windy day.

* * *

The United States walloped the British 139-84 and one sports writer said today that it reminded him of an old movie featuring "clowns going backward."

British sports writers blamed fatalism among the nation's top track stars and lethargy among its controlling officials for the disappointing result. They called for a shakeup of both to avoid humiliation in Mexico.

On Fairways, Cart Is Still Ahead of Car

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — City Manager Ellsworth Hoppe boarded an electric golf cart and chased an automobile through traps and fairways of the city golf course Saturday.

Hoppe was approaching the 18th green in his match when, he said, the car bounded over a bunker, into a sand trap and onto the fairway. Hoppe, bellowing, "Halt!" pursued it in the golf cart across the clubhouse parking lot before the car returned to the highway.

Police, summoned by witnesses, stopped a car at a nearby traffic light and arrested both its occupants. They were charged with public intoxication and Hoppe charged one with destruction of public property—damaging the golf course.

Pontiac Squad in Tourney Tilt

The battle for the state Class C softball championship opens with district play tonight at Drayton Plains park in Waterford.

Pontiac's Town & Country takes on Warren — 2 in a 7:30 game with Holly Jamison Insurance meeting Waterford Day's Sanitary Service at 9. The losers play at 7:30 tomorrow night and the winners have a 9 o'clock date.

Action in the Class A tournament opens Wednesday with Royal Oak taking on Ferndale at 9 p.m. There are only two teams in the 'A' action so they will play a two-out-of-three for a spot in the regional. The second game is slated for Friday at 6 and the third, if necessary, on Saturday at 7.

Winners in both classes advance to regional play at Flint next week.

Flint 9 Gains State Title in Mack Tourney

MARSHALL (AP)—Dave Sova scored from second base on a throwing error by second baseman Tom Conner to give Flint a 1-0 victory over Ann Arbor Sunday and the Michigan Connie Mack baseball championship.

* * *

Flint entered the finals of the two - game elimination tourney with a 3-1 mark, needing two victories to win the title. It beat previously unbeaten Ann Arbor 10-2 in the first game before taking the eight - inning nightcap.

* * *

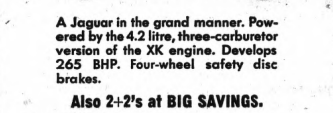

The victory moved Flint into the national Connie Mack tournament to be held at Farmington, N.M., later this month.

Sore-Armed Unitas Pains Pats

BOSTON (AP) — Johnny Unitas, the Baltimore Colts' sharpshooter who owns a top share of the National Football League's passing records, still is bothered by a sore arm, but rivals had better beware.

"Sure, the arm still bothers me," the 12-year-NFL quarterback said with a shrug Sunday after helping the Colts to a 33-3 victory over the Boston Patriots of the rival American Football League.

* * *

Unitas, handicapped by a knee injury and tendonitis in his right shoulder and elbow the past two years, indicated he was a man ready and willing to live with a little pain.

He completed nine of 14 passes for 91 yards and broke out of a trap to rush for eight yards as the Colts built a 13-3 first half lead. Then he retired to the sidelines as Baltimore posted its 13th straight exhibition triumph.

The victory evened the 16-game preseason series between the two leagues at one game each. However Detroit, a 13-7 upset victim against Denver's AFL Broncos, attempts to break the deadlock tonight as host to the Buffalo Bills, last year's AFL Eastern champs, in the only game scheduled.

KEY AERIALS

Unitas completed three key passes before he handed off to Tom Matte for a five-yard scoring run completing a 59-yard march late in the first period. The Patriots picked up a 37-yard field goal by Gino Cappelletti early in the second quarter, but Lenny Moore returned the ensuing kickoff 46 yards to the Boston 37.

A 17-yard Unitas pass then helped set up a 26-yard field goal by Lou Michaels.

* * *

Jon Morris' long distance centering pass on punt formation sailed out of the end zone for a safety. The Colts added another quick seven points by taking the free kick and going 39 yards, Unitas passing to rookie Ray Perkins for 19 and then handing off to yearling Jim Detwiler for the other 20.

The Patriots made their deepest penetration, to the Baltimore 21, in the third period, but a field goal attempt failed. The Colts added touchdowns on Jim Welch's five-yard run and rookie Terry Southall's pass to Bob Baldwin covering 72 yards in the finale.

* * *

The only other game Sunday produced a minor surprise as San Francisco clobbered the Cleveland Browns 42-14 at San Francisco in an all-NFL exhibition.

Cleveland errors set up the rout as the 49ers scored twice after recovering fumbles and again after recovering a blocked field goal attempt.

LONG BOMB

John Brodie's 61-yard pass to Kay McFarland produced another score and drives of 48 and 76 yards got the other two before 27,482 fans.

Frank Ryan and Gary Lane threw touchdown passes for the Browns.

* * *

In the NFL Saturday, Los Angeles whipped Dallas 20-6, Green Bay bounced Pittsburgh 31-20, New Orleans upset St. Louis 23-14, Minnesota trounced Philadelphia 34-0 and the New York Giants and Atlanta played to a 10-10 tie.

In the AFL, Kansas City easily handled the New York Jets 30-17, San Diego nudged Miami 20-19 and Oakland cruised by Houston 24-7.

Philadelphia also lost two members of its backfield Sunday, Ollie Matson through retirement and quarterback King Hill to a broken hand.

Rochester Teams Split in Weekly Publinx Play

Rochester No. 3 team lost its first match of the season yesterday in the Michigan Publinx Weekly play, losing a close 11½-10½ to Green Acres No. 2 team.

With two weeks of matches still scheduled, other scores yesterday showed Pontiac Country Club, led by Paul Bada, defeating Rochester No. 1 team 15-7, and Bald Mountain edging Hickory Hollow, 11½-10½, in other Red Division play.

In the White Division, Sylvan Glen defeated Green Acres No. 1 team, 14-8 and Rochester No. 2 defeated Northbrook, 15-7.

Tim Baldwin shot a 65 in leading the Sylvan Glen team, while Jerry Lammers fired a 68 as Raisin Rover defeated Braeburn, 12½-9½.

Aussie Pro Routs Rookie on Net Tour

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP—Tennis' touring professionals, minus a ruler, turned their sights toward Europe today convinced that Rocket Rod Laver is truly supreme.

The versatile Australian with the winning habit, thrashed rookie Dennis Ralston 8-6, 6-0 in the finals of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation Sunday.

* * *

Laver then returned with fellow Australian Fred Stolle to win the doubles title, surging from behind to down Pancho Segura and Alex Olmedo 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The wrapup of the tournament was punctuated with word that Wally Dill no longer serves as executive director of the International Professional Tennis Association.

But about the only thing anybody agreed on was that Dill, 35, who reactivated the pros under the new tournament format last year, was out.

Meanwhile, the pros leave this week for Wimbledon, England, to shoot for the richest purse in pro tennis, featuring a first prize of $10,000.

Hamtramck Nine in Legion Finals

LANSING (AP)—Hamtramck and Midland met today for the State American Legion baseball title.

Defending champion Adrian, which beat Hamtramck 4-0 for the title last year, did not make the finals.

Dick Lange fired a seven-hitter and drove in four runs with a homer and a single Sunday as Midland defeated previously unbeaten Hamtramck 5-1 to force the playoff.

Hamtramck had snapped Midland's 37-game winning streak Saturday with a 5-3 victory.

Two Features for Fair

Joy Fair, Pontiac racer, won a pair of features in three different racing events over the weekend. Fair won the 100 lap event with a record time of 27.5 at Heidelberg, failed to finish in O'Keefe International at Toronto, and won the Toledo raceway feature yesterday.

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

Jim: "Here is an interesting hand for bidding. There is nothing to the play."

JACOBY

Oswald: "You're right. Playing in diamonds or in no-trump North and South have 12 top tricks and would make a grand slam if the spade finesse were to work."

Jim: "It should have been a cinch to get to six diamonds and the pair that did get to six diamonds by the bidding in the box have asked us to comment. Incidentally, the game was match point duplicate."

Oswald: "You remember the story about the man who asked, "How do I get to the Jones Drugstore?" The answer was: 'Drive to the third traffic light and turn left. No! Just drive to the second traffic light. Turn left and then right.'"

★ ★ ★

No. You'd better go to the fourth traffic light. Oh! You can't get there from here. There is no good way to get to six no-trump and my guess is that six diamonds bid and made turned out to be a good score."

★ ★ ★

Jim: "It was. It seems that no one else in the field reached that spot. Some did not get to a slam at all. A couple of others reached seven and the failure of the spade finesse brought them down with a crash."

Oswald: "I suppose we could improvise and show how to land at six no-trump. Why should we? Bridge is not an exercise and never will be until you can see all 52 cards during the bidding.

I like the bidding in the box except for West's rather pointless and dangerous one heart bid. This gave North a chance to cue bid and to cue bid a second time to show that he really meant the first one. Then South did well to start proceedings by rebidding his diamnod suit. This made it obvious that his later bids were ace-showing."

♥ CARD Sense ♠

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1 ♣	Dble	Rdble
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	2 N.T.
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	4 ♦	Pass	?

♠ K 8 9 ♥ A J 5 4 ♦ 4 3 2 ♣ K 10 7 6
What do you do now?

A—Bid six clubs. Your partner has never given you a chance to pass and you have all your previous bids plus a little.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of passing over one spade your partner bids two clubs. What do you do now?

Age of Reptiles Is Recreated

By NELSON WADSWORTH

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP) — Just north of the West Entrance to Yellowstone National Park a huge tyranasaurus rex or "thunder lizard" rears its ugly head through the lodgepole pines.

★ ★ ★

Fangs bared, eyes alert, the 25-foot-tall dinosaur seemingly searches the forest for a hapless prey.

Nearby, a spiny-backed Ankylosaurus twitches its tail in an attitude of defense, waiting for the coming attack as cars whiz by on U. S. Highway 191.

A scene from an old "B" movie? Or has the clock turned back 100 million years to a Mesozoic water hole and the Age of Reptiles?

★ ★ ★

Not quite, though to some passersby it might seem so.

UNDYING AMBITIONS

The huge behemoths are the creation of a Salt Lake City sculptor - turned - scientist who has one undying ambition in life: to mold the most realistic dinosaurs in the world.

His West Yellowstone creatures are proof that he may have succeeded.

"I want to make them as they really were when they roamed the earth," says 49-year-old Elbert H. Porter.

"There is something fascinating about the Age of Reptiles and I want to recreate it for people to see."

9 DINOSAURS

In all, Porter has nine life-size dinosaurs in his display, ranging in size from the squat, five - foot - long protoceratops to an 80-foot-long diplodocus which raises its long neck just behind the tyranasaurus.

And flying through the trees —though actually suspended from wires—is a huge teranadon with a 20-foot wingspan.

On a calm day the winged reptile is silent, but just let the murmur of a breeze begin its guy wires squeaking . . . and if you look up suddenly it appears the teranadon is swooping in for the kill.

★ ★ ★

Porter's obcession with dinosaurs began about eight years ago when he gave up a teaching career in the art department at the University of Utah to devote full time to free-lance sculpturing, particularly on dinosaurs.

SOON THEREAFTER

The idea of recreating a scene from the Mesozois Era with life-size creatures was soon buzzing through his mind.

"I wanted to build the display in an alfalfa field near Salt Lake City," Porter said. "There would be 100 dinosaurs arranged in their natural habitat.

"Some would be locked in combat; others merely grazing tranquilly on grasses and foliage recreated from the age."

★ ★ ★

Porter actually built the first few animals for his "Dinosaur World" but construction of a freeway near his property forced him to move to West Yellowstone in 1965 where there was more tourist traffic.

IT WAS EASY

Having worked with fiberglas making model airplanes for an aircraft company in World War II, it was easy for Porter to combine the devices of this medium with those of art and sculpture in fashioning his animals.

Miniature models are first made in clay. Then wooden and chicken-wire superstructures are built, around which the lifesize animal is sculptured in plaster.

After a thorough rasping, sanding and smoothing, layer by layer of fiberglas is applied.

★ ★ ★

Final steps include putting on dyes and scaley skin textures and removing the inner frame.

Porter strives for realism in everything.

Before doing his first life-size animal he studied paleontology, visited museums where dinosaur skeletons are displayed and gathered every bit of information he could about the Age of Reptiles.

"And where scientific fact left off, we added our own imagination," he said.

During the winter months, when Yellowstone is covered with snow, Porter works as a free-lance sculptor in his studio in Salt Lake City.

ACCOMPLISHED ARTIST

As an accomplished artist, his work is often in demand.

He made the golden angel that capped the Mormon Pavilion at the New York World's Fair and has done the busts of many prominent people.

But he always returns to his dinosaurs.

★ ★ ★

This spring he completed more than 20 miniature dinosaurs for a display at Dinosaur National Monument in northeastern Utah, and this summer he is back building them life-size in West Yellowstone.

★ ★ ★

"I know I'll never get rich doing this," the sculptor says smiling and running his hand through his black, wavy hair. "But it's just like an unfinished painting. You've got to work on it until it's done."

Computer Course Slated at OU

A pilot program designed to orient students interested in a career in the computer field will be offered this fall at Oakland University.

Sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education, the Tuesday-Thursday evening course will begin Sept. 5. Five sessions will be held. Tuition fee is $35.

Changes in Film Morality Now Being Felt in Ireland

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

DUBLIN — Ireland, long the most censored by English-speaking countries, is moving toward a liberalism that movie men never thought possible.

THOMAS

Sweeping changes in film morality have affected the United States and England during the past five years, and they are being felt now in Ireland.

★ ★ ★

"We are moving with the times," says an important official of Irish censorship, "but we are stopping short of pornography."

The Irish in the past have banned such a seemingly innocent film as "Forever Amber," and more recent victims have been "The L-Shaped Room," "The Girl with the Green Eyes," "Station 6 Sahara," "A Taste of Honey" and "Irma La Douce."

Observers feel that many of these films would be passed if they came up for approval today.

ADMITTED AFTER CUTS

Such problem pictures as "The Group" and "The Servant" have been admitted to Ireland, after certain cuts were made. The Irish censor turned down "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" but his decision was reversed by the appeal board. These films are shown with admission limited to those over 18.

The Irish machinery for censorship is much like that in England, except that in Ireland it is operated by the government, not the film industry. The film censor, currently a retired doctor, functions under the minister of justice. He is charged with inspecting films to prevent: 1. indecency; 2. obscenity; 3. blasphemy; 4. anything subversive of public morality.

If film distributors dispute his findings, they can appeal to a board consisting of two judges, two clergymen (Catholic and Protestant) a trade union official, a grandmother and three others.

During 1966, however, the board reversed the censor's decisions only 11 times out of 1,047 separate films, including shorts and newsreels.

One of the things that rankles film men is the fact that once a movie is banned, it can never be submitted again. Some of the films banned 20 years ago might easily pass today. But the law doesn't provide for resubmission.

"That may soon be changed," said an official. "Recently the parliament passed a law permitting banned books—like some of Sean O'Casey, James Joyce, Frank O'Connor and Yeats—to be submitted for approval again. If that can be done for books, the law concerning films might well be altered, too."

★ ★ ★

The increased liberality of Irish censorship doesn't mean Ireland is altogether ready to accept the growing frankness of American and English films. The Catholic church retains a firm hand on matters of public morality. Nudity in films is still closely censored.

"Some producers think everything should be allowed in films," an official remarked. "They argue that there is nudity in St. Peter's in Rome. We admit that is true. But the nudity in their films is in an entirely different context."

Continuing Friday's Drop

Stock Mart Takes Sharp Loss

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a fairly sharp loss early this afternoon in active trading.

★ ★ ★

The list was continuing Friday's decline amid forecasts that a consolidation of the recent climb to new 1967 highs was in order.

★ ★ ★

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 5.43 at 915.22.

Losses outnumbered gains by a ratio of more than 7 to 4.

★ ★ ★

The market was lower from the start and widened its decline as the session wore on.

A continuation of profit taking was the main reason for the decline brokers said. They added that the economic background of the market was more encouraging than otherwise, noting reports of stronger demand for steel, record industrial sales in June and a report that the 10 per cent tax surcharge bill faces tough sledding in Congress.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 1.2 to 339.1 with industrials off 2.2, rails off .5 and utilities off .1.

★ ★ ★

Wall Street also had to deal with news that International Telephone and Rayonier were talking about a possible "association" of the two companies. Here again, the response was less than enthusiastic. Each stock gained a fraction.

★ ★ ★

Xerox lost 6 and Raytheon 2.

Prices declined on the American Stock Exchange. Trading was less active than on Friday.

★ ★ ★

Siboney was active and edged higher. Computer Applications advanced about 2 points. Losses of about 1⅛ were taken by McCulloch Oil and Anelex. Gruen Industries sank almost a point in brisk trading. Cinerama and Associated Oil & Gas were active fractional gainers.

2 Officers Face Murder Exam

Charged With Killing 2 Negro Teens in Riot

DETROIT (UPI) — Two white policemen charged with the shotgun deaths of two Negroes during the Detroit riot face court examination today on murder charges.

Patrolmen Ronald W. August, 28, and Robert Paille, 31, were arrested last Monday in the slayings of the two Negroes, who were allegedly lined up, beaten, cursed and killed in a motel raid during the worst riot in modern times.

August, married and the father of two, is charged in the death of Aubrey Pollard, 19. August is a four-year veteran on the Detroit Police Department.

Paille, a bachelor and two-year police veteran, is charged in the death of Fred Temple, 18.

★ ★ ★

August and Paille were free on $5,000 personal bond pending the outcome of the examination. The hearings were expected to last two or three days.

PRETRAIL EXAM

Undisclosed facts about the killings and beatings of other Negroes and two white teenaged girls were expected to be divulged at the pretrial examination.

The hearing, before Recorders (Criminal) Court Judge Robert E. DeMascio is to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to hold the police officers for trial.

Avery Weiswasser, an assistant to Wayne County prosecutor William Cahalan, said 64 witnesses were subpoenaed for the hearing.

A New Idea for TV Specials: Equal Time for All the 'Kids'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—There are secret maneuvers going on at NBC for Nancy Sinatra Jr. to do her own TV special. Dean Martin's kids, Danny Thomas' and Lucy-and-Desi's are surely going to want their own specials if Nancy gets one. It might prove a great improvement in TV. If there are younger singers and younger executives, why not younger specials?

Frank Fontaine may return to the Jackie Gleason show occasionally but of course that wouldn't affect Art Carney . . . Juanita Hall thanks all of you who sent contributions to aid her fight for health. She appreciates the confidence you expressed in her.

WILSON

A friend of mine attended an adult party in Paris where one couple went around asking if anybody had some LSD. One guest gave them some STP pills, which they downed in orange juice. Then they sprawled out in a corner, and began their "trip," due to last 16 hours. "Nice people, too," my friend insisted.

* * *

New Talent: Luscious Linda Bennett of Guy Lombardo's "Arabian Nights" at Jones Beach, and January Tyme, coming into the Living Room, who will wear a dress that makes electronic sounds when touched in the right spots.

* * *

I wouldn't let them tattoo me down at the new Salvation discotheque at 1 Sheridan Sq. (site of once famous Cafe Society Downtown). Come to think of it, they didn't insist.

They were mostly tattooing pretty young girls, on navels, thighs, legs, etc., as photog Jerry Schatzberg and Bradley Pierce opened their spot — called "Salvation" because it's a surcease from noise of most discos. Here you can hear yourself talk and also watch dancing — that's supposed to be your "salvation."

* * *

There was a bare-chested girl in a gold-painted body who suprised some villagers with her bareness. There were beautiful models, lovely waitresses, long-haired underground leaders, such as Andy Warhol and Ed Sanders, and squares like George Grizzard, Eileen Heckart and Warren Beatty (and me). The tattoo is strictly temporary.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Secret Stuff: Rumors are being heard about one of Hollywood's most gossip-proof mariages . . . Judy Garland's album, "At Home at the Palace" — cut last week — is being rushed to stores . . . Adam Clayton Powel's estranged wife, Yvette put her Dorado Beach home for sale . . . Barbra Streisand 'll do a fly-through-the-air bit in "Funny Girl," a la Peter Pan.

Joey Bishop's son Larry will costar in the film "Wild in the Streets" . . . Tony Martin and Cyd Charisse will tour South Africa . . . John Houston's 16-year-old daughter, Angelica, will make her film debut opposite David Hemmings (in a movie directed by daddy) . . . A fading entertainer told his agents to find him a B'way show fast, "to save my career."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: The salesman's credo: "Selling is like shaving. If you don't do it every day, you're a bum."

EARL'S PEARLS: Football star Joe Namath's knee has been getting so much attention you'd think he was wearing a miniskirt.

Comedienne Fannie Flagg was given the keys to her home town, Birmingham: "But wouldn't you know it — they were for the back door." That's earl, brother.

Unique Sensing System Could Abolish Break-Ins

By Science Service International

LONDON — No bank or warehouse need never be broken into again during the quiet hours. Equipment, developed primiarily for military use, is available to pick up the vibration in the ground from the lightest footfalls, even against a background of heavy traffic.

* * *

The existence of the system was first disclosed in the recent Mountbatten Report on the shortcomings of the British prison system. It is described as the only device which offers security from outside a protected area.

It consits of a special type of microphone linked to a receiver smaller than a briefcase and giving either audible or visual indication of an unwanted presence. The signals are so presented that it is possible to differentiate between man and animal, or a herd and group of soldiers.

* * *

The market potential in police, frontier and surveillance organizations all over the world is formidable, amounting to several tens of millions of dollars over the next few years, although an individual unit to protect a bank should cost less than $3,000.

Scout Dogs Are Trained to Detect Traps

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — This giant military base is renowned as the Army's infantry center. But it also is becoming a center of training for a "soldier" officially listed as equipment and considered a vital weapon for the war in Vietnam.

The only facility providing scout dogs for the Armed forces is located here, and they have repeatedly proved their value in the rice paddies and jungles of Southeast Asia.

Scout dogs are not the same as sentry dogs. The latter are trained to attack an enemy. Scout dogs, on the other hand, only provide more sensitive eyes, ears and noses for the infantryman trying to smell out an ambush before it happens.

One dog, Tiger, located a 300-man enemy ambush force in South Vietnam and alerted an American unit of 200. The U.S. detachment handed the Communist soldiers a severe defeat. But Tiger was one of the Americans killed in the battle.

Maj. John W. McKinney, commanding officer of the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, says scout dogs — German shepherds or a mixed breed of high German shepherd content—can detect a four-man unit up to 137 yards away 93 per cent of the time.

A lone enemy can be detected 85 to 87 per cent of the time up to 82 yards away.

The dogs are valuable not only in locating the enemy, but also his weapons and traps. McKinney says explosives have a smell the dogs can detect.

Preservatives on metal also give off a scent the dogs are trained to seek. A light breeze blowing over a booby trap wire gives off a faint sound only the dogs' ears pick up.

* * *

Dog handlers are trained to spot the slightest sign of trouble shown by the scouts.

McKinney says only German shepherds readily adapt to the task because of their intelligence and an ability to grow a long or short coat, depending upon the climate.

People in the News

By the Associated Press

Prince Charles, heir to Britain's throne, created quite a splash in London when he dunked a fully dressed countess at a swimming pool party, the Sunday Express reported. It was after midnight, some unnamed guests were quoted as saying, Queen Elizabeth II had left the party, and some guests had gone swimming when the aquatic high-jinks occured last weekend.

CHARLES

One guest told the Express that 48-year-old Primrose, Countess Cadogan, came without a swimsuit. "Primrose was wearing a blue silk dress. She was running up and down the side of the pool wondering how she could get in," he added.

"Then Prince Charles and another guest, Prince Ali of Murshidabad, gripped her hands and pulled her in with all her clothes on."

Long Way Around to Reserve Training

Patrolman Robert Turner, a boatswain's mate 2nd class in the Navy Reserve, arose early yesterday to catch a plane for Florida for two weeks annual training.

At Kennedy Airport, a ticket seller said he could fly half-fare if he got a special serviceman's form. The form was available at 3rd Naval District, Manhattan, 15 miles from the airport. Back to Manhattan went Turner, who was told no forms were available there but he could get them at a naval station in Brooklyn.

Subway-bound for Brooklyn, the 40-year-old Turner saw a knife-wielding man threatening two women. He went to their aid, received a cut on one arm, and aided in the man's arrest.

Taken to Beekman-Downtown Hospital in Manhattan, Turner still had to go back to Brooklyn for the forms — which he did. His next chore was to appear in criminal court, as a patrolman, to sign a complaint against the man.

It was back to the airport, where he took off for Florida — at half-fare.

Princess Grace Attends Hollywood Party

Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco attended an informal party Saturday night at the Hollywood home of film star Rock Hudson.

GRACE

The former Grace Kelly, making her first appearance at a Hollywood party since she left her acting career 11 years ago, wore a full-length Chinese robe. Her husband, in accordance with the invitation's "no ties" instructions, wore an open shirt and slippers.

The party, with a Mexican theme and dancing to two Mexican bands, was given by Hudson to honor Carol Burnett on the eve of her new CBS television series. Among the some 200 guests were Eva Gabor, Lucille Ball, Barbra Stanwyck, Jack Benny, Debbie Reynolds, Milton Berle, Danny Thomas, Polly Bergen, Henry Fonda, James Garner, Samantha Eggar, Barbra Streisand and Ernest Borgnine.

Two Calumet Men Jailed in 'Wild West' Shoot-Up

CALUMET (AP) — Two men today were held in the Houghton County jail in nearby Houghton after a break-in at a police station and a shooting spree described by police as "something out of the Wild West."

Robert Coppo and Carl Weijola, both of Calumet, were arested by State Police Sunday and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ruben J. Rowe on charges of breaking and entering and armed robbery.

* * *

Calumet Police Chief John L. Sullivan said the break-in occurred while the village's one-man late-night police force was aiding a heart attack victim some distance away.

Sullivan said the men broke into the fire station, took an ax from the ladder truck and smashed in the door to the police station. Both the police and fire departments are in the village hall in this Upper Michigan community of 1,100 residents.

* * *

"They broke open the lockers and took out some pistols and billy clubs and a lot of ammunition and started shooting things up," the chief said.

Patrolman Frederick Rauch heard the gunshots as he approached the station, and he radioed for help from the police force at nearby Laurium. State police also were called as were Houghton County sheriff's officers.

By the time Rauch got into the station, the two intruders had run off into the night after firing several shots into the air.

Chief Sullivan said the pair went to two homes in an effort to get an auto. The first home owner peeked out, saw the men with guns in their hands, and did not answer their pounding on the door. The second refused to turn over the keys to his car and the men fired one shot into his living room ceiling and fled.

* * *

They then continued on to a cottage where Luke Shaltz of Sewickley, Pa., and his family were vacationing. They entered via a screen door, fired a shot into the ceiling, and forced Shaltz to turn over his car keys.

* * *

As they sped towards Hancock, 12 miles away, a State Police car spotted them and gave chase. Troopers Harold Riley and Carl Hendrickson fired 10 shots at the fleeing vehicle before they punctured a rear tire, sending the fleeing car careening out of control.

JOB SWITCH — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thanag, former chief of South Vietnam's pacification program, yesterday took over the number two spot in the military leadership. He has been put in charge of "cleaning up" military ranks.

Lumber Blaze

WALTZ (UPI) — Five fire departments fought nearly two hours early today to control a fire, visible 11 miles away, which destroyed a lumber yard and caused an estimated $150,000 damage.

Pay Law Called Job Loss Factor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Federation of Independent Business claims that more than half a million persons have lost their jobs because of the new $1.40 federal minimum wage law.

The federation said it based its contention on continuous field surveys of its membership, and estimated 588,000 have lost their jobs as an apparent result of the law, which went into effect in February. It said more and more small businessmen were working out methods and buying equipment that would permit them to fire least-skilled employes.

Tire Defect Data Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., is asking tire manufacturers to submit details on the number of defective tires they have recalled in the past seven years.

Nelson noted over the weekend that the $125 General Dual 90 tire lost Rubber Manufacturers Association (RMA) approval after failing speed and load tests earlier this year.

The tire recently was restored to the RMA's approved list, but Nelson said the maker of the Dual 90 refused to recall any of the possibly defective tires designed for heavy, high speed cars.

"This is a blatant violation of the public's trust," Nelson said. "The tire company has an obligation to inform the consumer that his tire may be defective and maybe a safety hazard. This lifesaving information must be dispensed to the people whose lives are endangered."

In a letter to 19 U.S. and three foreign tire makers, Nelson asked for details on the nature of tire defects. The number recalled from owners and the number still on the road.

Body in Lake Is Identified

SOUTH HAVEN (AP) — The body of a woman found this weekend floating in Lake Michigan has been identified by Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Cooper of Van Buren County as that of Mr. Eva Howse, 45, of Detroit.

* * *

Mrs. Howse had been missing since Jan. 14, when she and two other persons in a Civil Air Patrol plane disappeared while searching for another downed aircraft, State Police said.

* * *

Police said her body was identified by Jewelry and other items she had been wearing.

With Mideast Visits

Tito Seeking Arab Peace

CAIRO (AP) — Yugoslav President Tito has begun visiting Socialist Arab countries involved directly in the war with Israel in an effort to help Arab leaders find an acceptable way out of the present deadlock over Israeli possession of territory captured in the war.

* * *

No immediate results are expected, but observers believe his mission will be a success if it brings the Arabs to reconsider and take what Tito called a more realtistic approach toward a peace formula with the victorious Israelis.

Arab discussions so far have centered on "means of removing the traces of Israeli aggression."

* * *

After extensive talks with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in Cairo, Tito is expected to go to Syria and Iraq with his plea for realism.

SENT MESSAGES

Tito's mission gained importance from the fact that both President Johnson and Soviet leaders have sent him messages outlining their views on a solution to problems of the June war.

23 Lives Lost on State Roads

By the Associated Press

Four multiple - fatality accidents, each killing two or more persons, played a deadly role in boosting Michigan's weekend highway death toll to 23.

In the multiple - death crashes, none of the victims was older than 28. The youngest was 16.

★ ★ ★

The Associated Press reports the weekend traffic fatalities for the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

Killed were:

James Minier, 22, of Ironwood, when the car in which he was a passenger ran off a county road and crashed Sunday in a gully near Wakefield in Upper Michigan.

State Fears a Delay in School Start

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A labor mediator and the two top teachers' unions expressed concern today that as many as 80 Michigan school districts still have not signed agreements with teachers and may force schools to stay closed in September.

"I'm fearful," said Philip Weiss, a member of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board (MLMB). "I'm very much concerned."

★ ★ ★

The Michigan Federation of Teachers (MFT), AFL-CIO, and the Michigan Education Association (MEA), both listed many of the districts as critical in collective bargaining negotiations with school boards.

In many districts, teachers have vowed not to return to work unless they have a contract.

LARGEST DISTRICT

Detroit, with 11,000 teachers and 298,000 students, is the largest district affected. But several other large districts, including Bay City, Saginaw, Benton Harbor and Escanaba are included on the list.

The Detroit Federation of Teachers, an arm of the MFT, won't resume bargaining until Aug. 28, a week before school starts. A contract ratification meeting is set for Sept. 5.

★ ★ ★

Failure to ratify the contract means "schools will not open," said Edward Simpkins, DFT vice president.

Weiss said the major problem in most districts is money. He said 25 to 30 millage elections this month would have an important effect on some contracts.

Gov. George Romney, who met with educators Aug. 1, said it would be "naive and unwise" to look to Lansing for more money.

UAW, Ford Tackle Wage Hike Demand

DETROIT (AP) — Union and company bargainers at Ford Motor Co. today tackled a key, 50-page section of their contract dealing with wages and other economic matters.

★ ★ ★

The negotiating session was expected to deal mainly with proposals by the United Auto Workers for revisions of the wage level.

★ ★ ★

"A substantial wage increase for all" is one of the top demands outlined by union President Walter P. Reuther for his 665,000 workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

★ ★ ★

It is considered unlikely that Ford, GM or Chrysler will make its first wage offer to the union before Aug. 28 or possibly even Aug. 31, a week ahead of the Sept. 6 expiration date of contracts at the Big Three.

AWAITS DEMONSTRATION

William O'Brien, vice president for personnel at Chrysler, said last week that it was reasonable to assume the companies would make no wage offer until after a planned demonstration by skilled tradesmen Aug. 23.

★ ★ ★

More than 200 skilled workers from the Detroit area have defied union headquarters and voted to carry through with plans for a demonstration to emphasize their demands for a substantial pay boost over any general pay increase.

★ ★ ★

UAW leaders have termed the meeting "ill advised and ill timed," fearing it will delay company money offers or that a small turnout would embarrass union negotiators.

★ ★ ★

With little more than three weeks left before contracts run out, negotiators for the union report that company bargainers are taking a hard-nosed stance. Union bargainers insist that they've made no progress to avoid a possible strike.

Four of Detroit Bakeries Struck in Wage Dispute

DETROIT (UPI)—Bakers picketed the producers of half of this city's bread supply for the second straight day yesterday, but both union and management said there was no threat of a shortage.

"There's no problem of a bread shortage," a spokesman for one of the struck companies said. "Either out-of-town bakers would come in and sell or plants that are not struck would step up production."

★ ★ ★

A wage dispute has shut down Taystee, Grennan, Wonder and Hostess bakeries, producers of half the bread marketed in the Detroit area.

The union is seeking a 50-cent boost during the next two-year contract while management has offered 30-cents. Bakers' wages range from $2.79 to $3.10 per hour.

Viet Bombing Ignites Furor

Raids Near China Spark Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. bombing within 10 miles of Red China detonated new congressional furor today over the Vietnam war.

★ ★ ★

"I think it's very dangerous and extremely stupid," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But Senate Preparedness subcommittee Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said the broadened bombing of North Vietnam reflects a more-pressure philosophy which he supports.

The new level of bombing came on the eve of Senate debate on President Johnson's foreign aid program. Debate opening today already had been expected to bring fresh attacks on Johnson policies in Vietnam and elsewhere in the world.

Whether one variety of recent congressional criticism — that bombing was too sparing — affected Johnson's decision to add new targets could not be determined as the White House fended off questions on the shift in tactics.

★ ★ ★

But it was learned that Stennis' subcommittee heard secret testimony last week from Adm. Ulysses S.G. Sharp, Pacific commander, that Johnson had agreed to some extension of warplanes' options to strike what one subcommittee member called "lucrative targets."

TARGET CURBS OFF

Strikes Sunday against North Vietnamese rail yards 10 miles from Red China and Friday against Hanoi's Doumer bridge came after Johnson lifted temporarily two major target restrictions.

Pentagon sources say the administration will continue those restrictions except on certain key, vital missions. The restricted areas are a 30-mile diameter circle around Hanoi, penetrated two or three times previously, and a 15-to-20-mile-wide buffer zone along the North Vietnam-Red China boundary.

Fulbright said the bombing near Red China "is directly contrary to what was the established policy of the government in 1964 and it will lead the country directly into the most disastrous consequences."

Tennessee Sheriff Is Shot; Wife Killed

SELMER, Tenn. (UPI) — It takes a tough man to ride herd on the moonshiners and gamblers who flourish in rural red clay country along the Tennessee-Mississippi border.

Sheriff Buford Pusser is a tough man.

A 6-3, 210-pound former wrestler, the McNairy county sheriff had dodged death half a dozen times since being elected three years ago, and he had been threatened as recently as last month.

He dodged death again Saturday, but this time his wife was killed. Pusser escaped with a bullet in the jaw.

Pusser got a disturbance call at his home early Saturday and his pretty, blonde wife, Pauline, insisted she accompany him in case he needed help.

It was a trap.

As the sheriff's car headed down a dark county road, an assassin's car roared up with its lights off and blazing guns sent lead flying.

"He said it sounded like a bunch of machine guns opened fire on him," said Selmer Police Chief Hugh Kirkpatrick.

SUSPECTS QUESTIONED

By early Monday police had questioned several suspects and Kirkpatrick said, "We think we know who's behind it." No arrests had been made.

Pusser, who made many enemies in relentless battle against moonshining, bootlegging and gambling, swerved his car for the shoulder of the road when the first volley rang out, but it was too late. One of the first bullets struck his 33 - year - old wife in the head, killing her.

The assassin's car flew by and Pusser, cradling his dead wife's head in his lap, headed for help.

The car returned, however, and more shots were fired. A bullet struck Pusser in the jaw before the killer's automobile roared away for the last time, leaving at least 11 bullet holes in the sheriff's car.

CRY FOR HELP

The burly lawman managed to mumble a call for help into the radio, then fled for town. He was found five miles from the shooting scene, weak from loss of blood and in shock from the grief of losing his wife.

Pusser, at 29 one of the youngest sheriffs in the state, was taken to a Memphis hospital where he was reported in satisfactory condition.

Despite his age, Pusser was a legend in the tough west Tennessee flatlands. In three years he had been shot three times, stabbed twice and run down by a moonshiner's car — and he kept fighting.

Six men attacked him one time when he was unarmed and a deputy recalled "The sheriff took three of them to the hospital and three of them to jail."

DARING ARREST

Another time a moonshiner tried to run him down in a car, but the sheriff hopped onto the hood of the speeding vehicle, clawed his way to the driver's window and subdued the man.

"He's the best sheriff we ever had," said Special Deputy Rod Province.

"There used to be a lot of bootlegging around here, but he's cleaned it up now," Province added.

No Kidnaping Suspect Trace

No trace has yet been found of the man sought for the kidnapping of a Bloomfield Township girl Wednesday.

The car used in the incident, which ended in Bowling Green, Ohio, when the girl escaped unharmed, has not turned up either, according to township police.

The FBI has obtained a warrant charging the suspect with kidnapping and the hunt is being pressed in Ohio and neighboring areas, according to police.

Wanted is a Detroit resident, Frank Patterson, 32, an employe for a Detroit guard service. He is accused of abducting Diane C. Brown, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Brown of 1070 Northover.

★ ★ ★

Patterson allegedly used a ruse to capture the girl as she was driving on I-75.

Reportedly using a stolen guard car with flasher, uniform and pistol, he allegedly "arrested" the girl and got control of her car.

She got free in a restaurant in Ohio five hours later. The girl was not harmed, police said.

The $2 million would be in addition to the nearly $3 million the department anticipates it will receive for primary road construction from the federal government, city's participation, and gas and weight taxes.

★ ★ ★

In 1966, 30 Michigan counties appropriated funds for road construction and in five counties where funds weren't available, a tax was assessed, according to Staman.

COUNTY AID

"I believe we're entitled to county money, too," Staman said. "We're a county agency like the welfare department. And they don't operate solely on state funds."

The only hope motorists have for obtaining a safe and adequate road system, said Staman, is the initiation of a continuing program of road improvement financing by the board of supervisors.

He said that had the proposed Good Roads Package become law it would only have taken care of emergencies and the most necessary road construction.

★ ★ ★

"At best, it would have provided about $800,000 a year," Staman said.

COMMITTEE REPORT

It will be recommended to the board of supervisors that no action in the 1968 county budget be taken until one of its committees, probably roads and bridges or ways and means, returns with a report on the commission's request.

The budget is scheduled for adoption in October.

The chief reason cited by Staman for the road problem in the county is the rapid increase in population and vehicles.

Vehicle registration has increased from 162,610 in 1950 to 385,117 in 1965 and it is estimated to hit 480,000 by 1970.

"If that many vehicles were placed end to end it would make a traffic jam over 1,800 miles long," said Staman.

Public School Students Urged to Register Early

BIRMINGHAM — Students enrolling in the Birmingham public schools for the first time this fall are urged to register at their respective schools as soon as possible.

For junior and senior high schools, students must take placement tests. For elementaries, children must be 5 years old before Dec. 1 and first graders 6 years before Dec. 1.

All incoming seventh graders and all incoming tenth graders must have a physical exam. Forms and information are available at the schools.

The City Commission will hear a recommendation on sidewalks for the south side of East Maple from Adams to Columbia at tonight's meeting at 8.

The proposal is for a four-foot-wide walk with construction to avoid moving any trees.

TO PONDER REPORT

The commission will also consider a report on a proposed ordinance to place restrictions on parking or storing of trailer-type vehicles on private property.

Decision to study the issue came after complaints of residences that stored vehicles were unsightly on some property.

City legal advisers have outlined some areas the city could control, such as storing of extra-large boats, prohibiting storage in front areas, time limitations, etc.

★ ★ ★

Also to be heard is a recommendation against hiring a guard for the downtown parking structure.

COST FOR GUARD

An administration report states cost would be $6,000 to $6,500 per year for a guard to work 60 hours a week policing and cleaning the five-story building.

The administration feels the guard would be of "questionable benefit" and that present periodic checking by the police is adequate.

Chinese Free Soviet Vessel

All Crewmen Aboard After Bitter Exchange

MOSCOW (AP)—The battered Soviet merchant ship Svirsk limped out of the Red Chinese port of Dairen Sunday a Moscow report said, after the Chinese released her captain and three crewmen following a bitter exchange of protest notes with the Soviets.

The Soviet Union announced that seven tugboats full of Red Guards escorted the ship out of the Yellow Sea port. The Svirsk's hull, superstructure and equipment bore anti-Soviet inscriptions.

All the Russian crewmen were aboard when the Svirsk headed for the Soviet port of Vladivostok, the announcement reported, but the ship's documents were kept by the Chinese.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin sent a telegram to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Saturday demanding that the Red Chinese release the captain and captured crewmen and let the Svirsk sail.

ORDERED OUT

A Peking broadcast heard in Tokyo, however, made no mention of Kosygin's telegram in announcing that "the Chinese government ordered the captain and one other crewman to leave China and never come back to this country."

The ship arrived in Dairen July 22 and shortly after, a Pravda dispatch said, second navigator Stanislav V. Ivanov was accused by Chinese authorities of refusing to accept a Mao Tse-tung badge. The Chinese demanded that Ivanov be turned over to them but Capt. Viktor A. Korzhov refused.

Melee Flares After Arrest at Rolladium

The arrest of a Pontiac man for investigation of possession of narcotics triggered a disturbance last night at the Rolladium Roller Skating Rink, 4475 M59, Waterford Township.

The disorder lasted about two hours, according to Waterford Township police who received assistance from eight other law enforcement agencies.

Police said several fights erupted inside the Rolladium, two minor fires were set and windows of nearby buildings were damaged by the unruly crowd.

The trouble started after security guards at the Rolladium arrested Harry J. Smith of 212 Central on the narcotics count and summoned police.

★ ★ ★

When police arrived, a large group of persons were around the Rolladium office where security guards wre holding the prisoner. They were yelling and pounding on doors and windows, police said.

RINK CLOSED

The Rolladium was closed and all the customers were removed by police.

Security guards told police the suspect had a parcel of narcotics wrapped in aluminum foil. The confiscated substance will be tested by the Michigan State Police Crime Laboratory.

Smith was to be arraigned today.

Assisting Waterford Township police were policemen from the Pontiac State Police post, Oakland County Sheriff's Department, West Bloomfield, Township, Pontiac, Sylvan Lake, Keego Harbor, Orchard Lake and White Lake Township.

The trouble started shortly after 9:30.

Car Tape Sets Stolen at Firm

Automobile stereo tape sets valued at more than $1,000 were stolen from a Pontiac firm, it was reported to city police.

Officers said an employe of Blue Ribbon Distributors, 1910 W. Widetrack, discovered the theft shortly before 3 a.m. today.

At least 11 tape sets, valued from $69 to $159 each, were taken, according to police. Officers said the total amount of property taken will be uncertain until an inventory is made.

They said the thief entered the building by breaking through a window on the north side and left at the same point.

Rope Links Two Girls Found Strangled in N.Y.

BRIDGEPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Frank Gualtieri says he expects an arrest "within a few days" in the strangulation slayings of two 14-year-old girls found tied together with rope and left in a marshy field near this community northeast of Syracuse.

Jacqueline Saunders of Mattydale and Mary Ann Marzullo of North Syracuse, both Syracuse suburbs, were reported missing by their parents early Saturday morning. They had attended a volunteer firemen's demonstration Friday night only a few blocks from the Saunders' home.

The girls were to have stayed overnight at the Marzullo home, and Mary Ann called her parents at about 11 p.m. to say they "would be right home," police said. A fisherman found their bodies around noon Saturday in the tall grass. Their hands had been tied behind their backs.

Gualtierei said Sunday the girls had been seen in a car and that a description of the car had been given. On the basis of that information and laboratory tests, the district attorney said, we "expect to make an arrest within a few days."

★ ★ ★

He declined to elaborate or to offer a motive for the slayings. But earlier he said "more than one suspect" was being sought, adding that it was "inconceivable that a crime of this sort could have been committed by one person."

BOTH GOOD GIRLS

Jacqueline and Mary Ann were described by police as "average, good girls," and neighbors were quoted as saying they did not stay out late at night. Their homes were about 1¼ miles apart and both would have been ninth-graders in the same school this fall.

A medical examiner said there was no evidence they had been molested sexually. There were bruises on their faces and bodies.

The United States station at the South Pole measured only two inches of snow one year recently.

Flunk-Out Rate May Rise

Grade-Saving Mono Probed

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

BETHESDA, Md. — It's certain to happen at least once every year on every college campus.

There comes a knock at the health center's door and in slumps a pallid, wheezing, wet-eyed student. "Yes, what is it?" the doctor asks.

"Sir, I'm pretty sure I've got mono. I'm tired all the time and I can't study," the student hacks. "And I have a final coming up this week."

The student is behind in his work and is borrowing a little cram time. The physician knows it, but can't be sure he's not really telling the truth. So he's practically powerless in the face of a frantic, test-fearing student who claims he has mono. The student gets his excuse.

★ ★ ★

Mono — short for mononucleosis — has come to be the traditional grade-saver on the college campus. Because so little is known about infectious mononucleosis, students can claim it whether they have it or not and usually get away with it.

PATIENT TESTIMONY

The University of Maryland Student Clinic at nearby College Park reports that mononucleosis cases do increase significantly around exam time. Mono's symptoms are such that doctors must immediately depend on patient testimony, not tests, for diagnosis and treatment.

But the big mono mystery could end soon. The National Institute of Health is out to solve the mystery and, if it does, an NIH spokesman cracked, "the college flunk-out incidence could increase."

Infectious mono is also known as the kissing disease. It has been recognized world-wide as such for half a century. Virus is the best guess for its cause, but so far no virus or other infectious agent has been isolated from sufferers.

★ ★ ★

Symptoms are fatigue, malaise, chilliness, fever, sore throat and swollen lymph glands in the upper part of the body. Mono is a masquerader. It may resemble diphtheria, the stiff neck of meningitis, the abdominal pains of acute apendicitis, the rash of scarlet fever, the swelling around the eyes of trichinosis or the generalized abnormality of the lymph nodes which can be mistaken for leukemia.

LOOK FOR LINKS

Therefore, one of the objectives of the study (actually being conducted by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases) is to look for links mono may have with more serious or potentially fatal diseases.

"Most of the patients," said a NIAID technician, "are between 15 and 25. Mono is more severe in persons over 30, but is rare after 35.

"We receive reports of about 10,000 actual cases in this country a year, plus thousands more with mono symptoms. There is usually a rise in the number of cases in late spring, and a smaller rise again in October."

★ ★ ★

Mono, which is believed to be highly contagious (therefore the "kissing disease" tag), is diagnosed in a simple blood test in which the serum from the blood of patients with mono contains antibodies that will cause the clumping of red blood cells of sheep and horses.

MYSTERIOUS CHANGES

Also, the lymphocytes — specialized white cells of blood which, in mono, increase in number in proportion to other white cells — undergo mysterious structural changes.

ous structural changes.

Bed rest is the principal therapy, and perhaps mild sedatives to relieve symptoms. The mono-wise college student presumably takes an aspirin and climbs into bed with his books to cram for a belated exam.

While the annual mono incidence is relatively low, compared with other "minor" diseases, NIAID technicians fear far more people treat it as a cold or simply ignore it. The danger is obvious if the study should link mono to more serious problems.

★ ★ ★

Working with mono patients referred by private physicians, and with volunteers from the huge NIH complex, doctors and technicians are attacking mono's mysteries three ways: immunologic — learning about the body's responses to the disease; hematologic — concentrating on the function of a typical lymphocytes which are a hallmark of mono; virologic — tracking a mysterious agent in an attempt to show how the disease is transmitted.

SCIENTIFIC APPROACH

The viologic part is proving interesting, although NIAID people studying mono aren't too keen on having it publicized.

★ ★ ★

"Well," a spokesman reluctantly admitted, "the scientific approach is to look at all possibilities."

Which will explain walking into the NIAID mono lab and seeing a roomful of patients and volunteers kissing up a storm.

Trip by Family of 10 Described

JACKSON (AP)—A $10-a-day food budget, shopping around for motels with kitchenettes instead of television sets and swimming pools and a confidence in the generosity of relatives said Mrs. Leland B. Wilson, her nine children and the family pet on a six-week tour of the United States.

The family started from its home Ukiah, Calif., and stopped in Jackson to visit Mrs. Wilson's brother-in-law and his family, the H. L. Wilsons. Further stops at New York City; Washington, D.C.; Baltimore; Macon, Ga.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; and Los Angeles were also made.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Wilson a general practitioner, accompanied his brood as far as Omaha, Neb., for a reunion of the Wilson clan. But his wife braved the remainder of the journey without his support.

"They're pretty good travelers," Mrs. Wilson said, encompassing all, even the gray poodle. Her decision to take the jaunt was made slowly.

THOUGHT ABOUT IT

"I thought about it for weeks before I mentioned it," she said. She finally began the task of convincing her husband by saying the children should see their grandmother, who lives at Denver. The Omaha meeting pulled the family a little farther east, and soon a visit to Mrs. Wilson's father at Evanston, Ill., and on around the circuit, was scheduled.

★ ★ ★

She wanted to make the trip this year, before the oldest daughter, 18, leaves for school in the fall. "Once they start going away to college, they're hard to corral," she said.

★ ★ ★

Youngest child on the expedition was 6.

Problems with the 10-passenger station wagon were few, with a low tire which meant buying a new one in Nevada, on the second day of the trip, and a burned out brake lining at Chicago comprising the extent of difficulties.

ONE CHILD 'LOST'

Only one child was "lost." the incident happened at Evanston, when Mrs. Wilson guiltily admitted the half hour she asked 10-year-old David to wait in the library while she shopped stretched into an hour and a half. A policeman the child found took him at his word when told the grandfather and aunt hosting the group lived at Chicago. David's naivete about suburban areas and their separate names did not mar his remembrance that he was to meet his mother near the library, and the) policeman spotted her right away when he went there. "He said I looked worried," Mrs. Wilson explained.

★ ★ ★

All other experiences were pleasant. At Salt Lake City, the family found a motel that offered one room for $7.88.

"Part of us stayed in the motel and part of us slept in sleeping bags outside," Mrs. Wilson says. At another motel, the entire family spent $15 for two large adjoining rooms with a kitchenette.

★ ★ ★

"I think there was a guardian angel of economy guarding over us," Mrs. Wilson says. Food bills were restricted by a budget that allowed $1 for breakfast cereal, fruit for lunch at the same price, and four $2 meals and sharing them for dinner.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

A baby is always a miracle, and especially when it is yours. This feeling of awe is particularly strong when you have your first child. It seems almost unbelievable that you could have produced such a wonder!

Fortunately, the danger has been taken out of pregnancy and delivery if a woman will take advantage of the splendid prenatal care now available. However, even in this enlightened day, some women fail to do this.

If they are in good health, they may feel that it is unnecessary to check in with their doctor during the early months of pregnancy.

* * *

Nothing could be further from the truth! Most of the serious conditions which sometimes develop during the later months could have been avoided or controlled had the physician had the opportunity to do so during earlier stages.

So, take measures which will safeguard you and your child and make those important nine months comfortable as well as exciting.

Here are some things to remember. Get in touch with your physician as soon as you suspect that you may be pregnant. Follow his advice about everything. If you feel that you cannot afford a doctor of your own, go to a clinic.

One is available to almost everyone, and these are staffed with well trained people.

This is very important! Report any unusual symptoms to your doctor immediately. Some women make the mistake of disregarding these, thinking, "Oh this is just to be expected when I am pregnant." Many women do the same thing when they are going through menopause years.

They think, "It's just menopause." The result of such thinking may be tragic and unnecessary.

* * *

These are some of the things you should report when pregnant: Persistent nausea, dizziness, swelling of the feet or ankles, in fact any swelling, less output of urine, blurred vision or spots before the eyes, any fever, fainting spells, any unusual discharge, abdominal cramps, persistent headaches and failure to feel the baby move after you have felt this for a while.

* * *

And don't blame that bundle of joy for loss of your figure! There is no reason for a woman to become overweight during pregnancy. This adds to the discomforts and hazards of pregnancy and makes delivery more difficult and also leaves her with a big figure problem.

Buffalo QB Finally Makes Detroit 'Debut'

Kemp to Face Milt Plum in Exhibition Tilt

Jackie Kemp, the quarterback who just didn't fit into the Detroit Lions' picture in 1956, but who later became the biggest "steal" of American Football League trades, will, after 11 years, make his "debut" in Tiger Stadium tonight.

Kemp will be calling signals for the Buffalo Bills instead of the Lions when the two rival league teams meet at 8 p.m.

★ ★ ★

When he joined the Lions in 1956, from little Occidental College on the West Coast, Buddy Parker had a couple quarterbacks named Bobby Layne and Harry Gilmer.

★ ★ ★

Kemp made a couple exhibition trips with the Lions that year and the top tune in training camp during his stay was the Occidental College fight song.

George Wilson, who was then offensive backfield coach with the Lions, protested vehemently when Parker decided to let Kemp go.

Kemp went into Canada and then latched on with the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League.

In 1962, the Bills grabbed Kemp for the $100 waiver price and since then they have claimed it was the biggest "steal" of trading in the AFL.

He guided the Bills to three divisional championships and twice he went back to haunt the Chargers, defeating them in the AFL playoffs.

PLUM TO START

Tonight, Kemp will face veteran quarterback Milt Plum, who has coach Joe Schmidt's nod as starter.

"We started Karl Sweetan last week and we'll start Milt against Buffalo, and let them split the game," he said.

Plum had 10 for 17 passes in the second half of the Denver game, completing the lone touchdown pass to Bill Malinchak in the 13-7 loss.

Tonight will also mark the first appearance of the heralded Lions' rookies Mel Farr and Nick Eddy, along with linebacker Paul Naumoff.

Schmidt said that he would use all three in the game, along with Roger Brown, veteran defensive tackle, who did not play in the first contest.

★ ★ ★

Also ready to play tonight is Dick LeBeau, cornerback, who was a holdout for 24 days of training camp.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected for the contest which now has the NFL and AFL tied at 1-1 in their pre-season schedule against each other. Denver defeated the Lions last week and over the weekend, Baltimore routed the Boston Patriots, 33-3, to even the series of the two leagues.

Damage Suit Is Filed Against Singer Pat Boone

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A $4.5-million suit will be filed today against singer Pat Boone, owner of the Oakland Oaks of the American Basketball Association.

★ ★ ★

Attorneys said the action is being taken by Franklin Mieuli, president of the San Francisco Warriors, because of Oakland's attempt to "steal" the National Basketball Association's top scoring star, Rick Barry.

An injunction was issued by Superior Court Judge Robert J. Drewes last Tuesday preventing Barry from joining the Oaks. The judge said Barry can't play with anyone but the Warriors during the 1967-68 season.

Mieuli's attorneys said $1.5 million of his suit is for actual damages and $3 million for punitive damages.

★ ★ ★

Mieuli said, "First of all, we're seeking damages from Boone and the Oakland team for inducing Barry to breach a valid and binding contract."

"During depositions taken prior to this verdict, it was made clear that Barry understood the NBA contract's reserve clause as being binding and valid," Mieuli said. "Under oath, Rick said he knew the option bound him for another year."

Look, No Water Skis

MANITOWISH WATERS, Wis. (UPI) — Neil Weber, Milwaukee, won the state Barefoot Waterski Championship on Rest Lake Sunday.

Larry Rushmeyer of Ironwood, was second and Jack Alward, Eagle River, Wisc., was third.

SPORTS

Souchak Champion as Close Foes Falter

Mike Souchak thought he had the 47th Annual Michigan Open Golf Tournament sewed up as he went into the 16th hole of the final round.

He was seven under par and leading. Then he hit a wedge over the green from 100 yards, chipped short of the green and two-putted when he finally got on.

What pulled him through Sunday was that two of his three closest contenders — Stan Brion and Jimmy Picard, both of Tam O'Shanter — were having troubles of their own.

The 40-year-old pro at Oakland Hills Country Club fired rounds of 68 and 71 for a 72-hole total of 283, one stroke better than Brion, Picard and Chuck Chuck Matlack.

Two strokes off the pace at Spring Meadows Country Club, where the tournament was held the second straight year, was the tournament's low amateur, Robert Meyer of East Lansing, with a 285.

MIKE SOUCHAK

At 286 were Casmere Jawor of Dearborn Heights and Mike Hill of Tecumseh.

BONE AT 289

John Molenda of Warren was fifth with 287, and defending champion Gene Bone of Pontiac and Detroit5s Walter Berkemo tied for sixth at 289.

"I tried to give it away, but they wouldn't take it, for which I am grateful," Souchak said.

He was referring to the near fatal double bogey six on the 70th hole that could have cost him the $1,000 top prize, had Brion and Matlack not run into difficulties.

★ ★ ★

"What's happened has happened," Souchak said coming off the 18th green, thinking he'd blown the tournament. "But I can't determine what happens out there on the course."

But putting disaster hit both Brion, 24-year-old assistant pro at Orchard Lake's Tam O'Shanter Country Club, who led the tournament through the first three rounds, and Matlack of Rockford.

The tournament will return again next year to Spring Meadows.

CITY BASEBALL HONORS—Manager Truman Lamphere (front) of M.G. Collision holds the Shaw Jewelers Trophy and team sponsor Bill Manuel has possession of the Quaker Oats trophy, both emblematic of city Class A baseball supremacy, after Collision knocked off defending champion Teamsters, 5-3, last night to win the playoff championship. Collision now plays in the state district tournament.

INTO FIRST PLACE — Jim Merritt (left) gets the glad hand from Jackie Hernandez and Rich Reese (20) after pitching the Minnesota Twins to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday. The win carried the Twins into first place in the tight American League race.

New City Champ Crowned as MG Trims Teamsters, 5-3

There's a new champ perched on the Pontiac Class A baseball throne.

A two-run ninth inning helped M. G. Collision take the title yesterday from defending champion Teamsters 614, by a 5-3 count.

The victory qualified M. G. for the district phase of the state tournament which opens later this week.

The Teamster squad rallied from almost certain defeat for two runs in the bottom of the seventh to square the score at 3-3, but M. G. pushed across the deciding markers in the ninth on two hits, a walk, an error and a fielder's choice.

★ ★ ★

With one down in the ninth, Ron Kind singled and Jack McCloud drew a walk. Kind came across on a single by Earl Robinson and McCloud followed ments later on an outfield bobble.

SHARP IN RELIEF

Walt Miller came on in relief of Jack McCloud in the seventh and stayed around to pick up the victory. Don Sackett was saddled with the loss.

★ ★ ★

John Fleser's single in the third sent Bob Rabaja home with a run to put the Teamsters ahead, 1-0, but McCloud, who had two hits, stroked a run-scoring single in the fifth to tie it at 1-1.

A single by Willie Holliman, a triple by Kind and an infield grounder by McCloud put the Collision nine on top in the seventh, 3-1. The Teamsters knotted the count again in their half of the inning

Past Champs Return for Women's Amateur

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Seven times in the past 10 years the national women's amateur golf title has gone to one of two gals, and they're both back this week for the 67th annual USGA's tournament.

Mrs. JoAnne Gunderson Carger of Seekonk, Mass., seeks to defend the crown she won last year to go with the honors she captured in 1957, '60 and '62.

A triple winner is Mrs. Ann Quast Welts of Mt. Vernon, Wash., who won in 1958, '61 and '63.

Both face tough tests as 123 entries, including a bunch of low-scoring teenager, were listed for today's first 18-hole qualifying round at the Annandale Golf Club. Another 18 holes will be fired Tuesday with the low 32 scorers going into match play starting Wednesday.

Earl, Rookie Trade 'Dusters' as Detroit Posts 3-2 Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Like the weather, everybody talks about the bean ball but nobody does much of anything about it.

The subject reared its ugly, but colorful head in a brief skirmish between Detroit's Earl Wilson and rookie Jim Hardin of the Baltimore Orioles in a game won by the Tigers 3-2 Sunday.

The victory, Detroit's third straight, put the Tigers one game back of new leader Minnesota in the tight American League pennant race. The Twins beat Chicago 3-2 to take over first place, one-half game ahead of the Sox.

Ray Oyler had just delighted 21,114 fans with a long homer into the lower left field stands to give the Tigers a 3-0 lead in the second inning when Hardin hit Wilson with a fast ball.

Oyler's homer, his first of the season, followed Al Kaline's double and a walk to Jim Price.

Hardin, making only his second start in the majors, led off the Baltimore third and Wilson's first pitch sailed behind his head and into the backstop.

Plate umpire John Stevens halted play and issued a stern warning to Wilson, Detroit Manager Mayo Smith and Hank Bauer, the Baltimore skipper.

The loss was Baltimore's sixth in seven games.

"We play just good enough to get beat," said Bauer. "One decision changed this game for us."

He referred to a play in the seventh inning when shortstop Oyler made a fine back-hand stop of Dave Johnson's grounder in the hole between short and third and nipped him at first with a perfect throw.

Curt Blefary had hit his 17th homer leading off the inning, cutting the Detroit lead to 3-2 and Paul Blair, who hit his 10th homer in the second, walked.

"If Johnson was safe, we would have had two men on and nobody out," said Bauer. "Wilson would be taken out and we could have sacrificed."

Wilson got out of the jam by getting Vic Roznovsky on a fly to Kaline and striking out pinch-hitter Boog Powell.

The victory was Wilson's 16th against nine losses.

Wilson, who singled to lead off the Detroit seventh, was replaced by Fred Lasher, just up from Toledo, who held the Orioles scoreless the rest of the game.

The Tigers were off today and open a three-game series with the contending Boston Red Sox Tuesday. Joe Sparma is slated to pitch for Detroit against Dave Morehead.

Golfers Meet to Honor Haig

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — This remote resort was the golf capital of the world today as many of the game's elite gathered to honor the man who—some feel—made their fame and wealth possible.

Professional greats from Arnold Palmer to former Professional Golfers Association titlists Johnny Revolta and Walter Burkemo were to be on hand at a testimonial for Walter Hagen, only man ever to win five PGA championships.

"Sir Walter" or "The Haig" as sports writers dubbed him when he dominated the sport during the 1920s, planned, of course, to be there himself.

And there was even the chance that the 74-year-old master, known as one of the best shotmakers the game has ever seen, would recount some of the antics that made him as famous off the links as on.

Dr. C. A. Wagener, a local physician and one of the originators of the testimonial dinner, said Hagen has recovered remarkably from three throat cancer operations, the most recent last February.

Militants Rap Thieu Regime

Viet Buddhists Vow Protests

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's militant Buddhists vowed today to stage protests against the government's recognition of a rival faction as the country's official Buddhist Church and hinted at a "struggle movement."

In a strongly worded statement, the leadership also denounced the current presidential campaign and called for "drastic changes."

* * *

They avoided saying what form the protests would take, but questions about "struggle movements" or "demonstrations," brought wild cheers and applause from the more than 800 Buddhist followers at a news conference.

The "struggle movements" of extremist Buddhists have in the past been able to help topple governments and bring thousands of demonstrators into the streets. But their power is believed to have greatly diminished following their clash with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky last year.

'SUPPRESSION' CHARGED

The militant Buddhists held their news conference at the An Quang pagoda, Saigon headquarters of their leader, Thich—Venerable—Tri Quang. The Buddhists cheered as their leaders accused the government, and specifically Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, of trying to "suppress and destroy Buddhism."

* * *

Thieu signed a charter the last week of July which set up Saigon's Buddhist Institute, the Vien Hoa Dao, as the official Buddhist church of South Vietnam and squeezes the An Quang Buddhists from control of the Unified Buddhist Church.

The Viet Hoa Dao and the An Quang Buddhists have been fighting bitterly for months for control of the Unified Buddhist Church which is unified in name only.

2 Officers Face Murder Exam

Charged With Killing 2 Negro Teens in Riot

DETROIT (UPI) — Two white policemen charged with the shotgun deaths of two Negroes during the Detroit riot face court examination today on murder charges.

Patrolmen Ronald W. August, 28, and Robert Paille, 31, were arrested last Monday in the slayings of the two Negroes, who were allegedly lined up, beaten, cursed and killed in a motel raid during the worst riot in modern times.

August, married and the father of two, is charged in the death of Aubrey Pollard, 19. August is a four-year veteran on the Detroit Police Department.

Paille, a bachelor and two-year police veteran, is charged in the death of Fred Temple, 18.

* * *

August and Paille were free on $5,000 personal bond pending the outcome of the examination. The hearings were expected to last two or three days.

PRETRAIL EXAM

Undisclosed facts about the killings and beatings of other Negroes and two white testaged girls were expected to be divulged at the pretrial examination.

The hearing, before Recorders (Criminal) Court Judge Robert E. DeMascio is to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to hold the police officers for trial.

Avery Weiswasser, an assistant to Wayne County prosecutor William Cahalan, said 64 witnesses were subpoenaed for the hearing. He said only about 15 were scheduled to testify, but that Norman L. Lippitt, the lawyer for August and Paille, might ask others to testify.

No charges have been made in the slaying of a third Negro at the Algiers Motel during the riot.

INNOCENT PLEAS

August and Paille pleaded innocent at their arraignments last monday, and Recorders Judge Donald S. Leonard ordered them jailed without bond. Last Tuesday they were, however, released by Leonard on $5,000 bond each.
