Father Rescues Child in Fire as Mother Dies

Both in Hospital After Early Morning Blaze in Waterford Home

An expectant Waterford Township mother perished and her husband and 14-month-old child were badly burned by a fire which destroyed their home early today.

Mrs. Mary Green, 20, of 6157 Rowley St., was pronounced dead at the scene from suffocation and burns by Dr. Isaac C. Prevette, deputy coroner.

Mrs. Green's husband, Richard, 28, stumbled from the burning one-story frame house with their daughter, Sharon Lee, and the two were rushed to Pontiac General Hospital by Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

Green, a Pontiac postal employee for the past two years, is reported in critical condition with second and third degree burns over his entire body. Sharon Lee, who suffered first and second degree burns to hands and face, is reported in fair condition.

Green told Deputies Harry Jones and Merrill Finkle on the way to the hospital that his wife, who was right behind him when he dived through a front window, must have stumbled.

Her body was found on a living room couch after Waterford Township firemen brought the blaze under control, according to Fire Chief Rudy Boss. All three apparently were asleep in the same room when the fire broke out.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bayles, the owners who lived in the rear of the house, escaped unharmed. Boss said the cause of the fire has not yet been determined, but believes that it may have started around an oil stove in the living room.

Damage to the building and contents was estimated at $2,500 by Boss.

Public Gets 1st Look at Lenin-Stalin Tomb

MOSCOW (U)—Thousands of people marched across snowy Red Square today to file through the Lenin-Stalin tomb and get their first look at embalmed body of Joseph Stalin. It was the first public opening of the tomb since the Soviet leader died in March.

Red Square was blocked off to all except those holding passes for the first day's three-hour showing. Western diplomats and correspondents have been promised admittance tomorrow evening.

The first in today were several delegations of war veterans, including some Koreans, Chinese and numerous women.

It has been announced that "Moscow working people" will have the first chance for admission cards.

Mrs. Vogeler Describes Struggle to Free Husband

By HAZEL A. TRUMBLE

"It's up to the women," said Lucile Vogeler this morning when she stepped off the train to visit Pontiac for a day.

"I have profound faith that the women of the world can take up their cudgels, and communism will fade from the picture. I know what women can do," she said, remembering her own battle to get her husband out of the Communist jail in Prague.

Speaking tonight at Pontiac High School Auditorium in the first of this season's Kiwanis lecture series, Mrs. Vogeler is completing a two-month cross-country lecture tour. She will tell of her fight to liberate her husband, Robert Vogeler, imprisoned in Hungary for 17 months.

Diminutive, blonde and blue-eyed, Lucile Vogeler has retained enough of her Belgian accent to give her a cosmopolitan air. Ambassadors, military generals and state departments of several nations have tasted the political prowess and maneuvering of this woman who only asked "for my husband back."

"Your husband goes off to his work in the morning and when

ROBERT W. EMERICK

Public Relations Director Named

Pontiac Motor Brings Robert Emerick From Indianapolis Post

Appointment of Robert W. Emerick as director of public relations for Pontiac Motor Division was announced today by Robert M. Critchfield, division's general manager.

Emerick will coordinate the public relations activities of the division locally and nationally, and report directly to the general manager.

In announcing the appointment, Critchfield pointed out that Pontiac plans to expand its institutional and product press relations program and other phases of public and community relations.

Emerick has been with General Motors in its public relations department for more than 16 years. Since 1947 he has been regional public relations manager in Indianapolis.

He was born in Hamilton, Ohio, and was graduated from Miami University in 1934. Following graduation, he played professional football with the Detroit Lions and the Cleveland Rams, now the Los Angeles Rams.

He joined General Motors Fisher Body Division advertising department in 1934 and was assigned to the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild. He joined General Motors public relations department in 1937. Since then, he has held a number of positions, including advance man for the General Motors "Parade of Progress," director of GM's plant-city-public-relations activity in the New York area, and regional manager in Atlanta and Indianapolis.

He is married to the former Virginia Lehman of San Antonio, Tex., and they have two sons.

U. S. Is Asking Death Penalty in Kidnap Case

Greenlease Boy's Dad and Jury Hear Grim Confessions Read

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The grim story of how Carl Austin Hall shot and killed little Bobby Greenlease as he struggled for his life was told today in the ex-convict's confession.

The confession was made public for the first time when it was read at the federal kidnap trial of Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, the alcoholic divorcee, before a jury called to determine whether they shall die for their crime. The government is demanding the death penalty.

Late yesterday the confession of Mrs. Heady was read to the jury.

The boy's multimillionaire father, Robert C. Greenlease, visibly steered himself as he listened from a front seat in the crowded courtroom.

Only a short time before, on the witness stand, he identified Bobby's photograph and some of his belongings. He swallowed hard. Sometimes his voice was almost inaudible.

It was the first time the public had heard the full confession. U.S. Dist. Atty. Edward Scheufler read the 26 pages.

In his opening statement for the government Scheufler had asked the death penalty for both Hall and the woman "because of the nature of the crime."

Hall and Mrs. Heady pleaded guilty at their arraignment and Scheufler told the jury, all businessmen from outside Missouri, that his sole job is to determine whether the couple should pay the supreme penalty. Under the Lindbergh kidnap law a jury must recommend the death sentence before it can be imposed.

Attorneys for Hall and Mrs. Heady said they stood on their guilty pleas but reserved the right to make insanity pleas should developments warrant. However, Roy Dietrich, president of the Kansas City Bar Assn. and court-appointed attorney for Hall, said no insanity pleas were contemplated now.

The confession of Mrs. Heady told how Hall shot the little boy when he found a cord he had planned to use to strangle him was too short.

Baxter Found Guilty of Murder

Wife Slayer Remanded to County Jail to Await Sentence

Gilbert R. Baxter, 22, was convicted of second degree murder Monday by an Oakland County Circuit Court jury of nine women and three men in the shooting of his wife Ellen, 19, on June 2.

Jurors deliberated three hours after being charged by Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty for more than 30 minutes following completion of the one-week trial.

A $2,500 bond was canceled and Baxter was remanded to Oakland County Jail to await sentence Nov. 27 at 9:30 a.m.

He was tried in the shooting of his wife with a 30-30 hunting rifle following a violent argument in their home at 874 S. Parke St.

Chief Assistant Prosecutor George F. Taylor and Assistant Prosecutor Homer Gerue called 22 witnesses to the stand.

Defense attorneys Carlton S. Roeder of Pontiac and Robert C. Lombro of Detroit called five witnesses to the stand, including Baxter and his mother, Mrs. Helen Baxter.

The former factory worker faces a prison term of any amount of years up to life.

While the proposal went through without a dissenting vote, the CIO Shipbuilders' Union indicated it would not sign up. Good Taste for Balmy Weather

ICE CREAM WEATHER—This trio, Miss Gayle Joyner (left) of 405 Garland Ave., Sylvia Lake, and Miss Juanita Rawlins of 69 Lincoln Ave., shed their coats and licked ice cream cones in yesterday's balmy weather. New Record Set as Mercury Hits 68 Degrees Here

Pontiac's "mid-autumn" "heat wave" set another record today as it went into its fourth straight day of 60-plus temperatures.

The mercury climbed to 68 degrees at 2 p.m. in downtown Pontiac, one degree above the record high for this date established in 1928.

Yesterday, a record-smashing 68 was recorded here at 3 p.m. This was two degrees over the previous high for Nov. 16 set in 1942.

Partly cloudy skies and slightly cooler weather are forecast by the U.S. Weather Bureau, with a low of from 43 to 47 tonight and a high of from 57 to 60 degrees Wednesday.

The thermometer registered 46 at 8 a.m. today, and a low of 42 was recorded here yesterday.

CIO Bars Raids on Union Ranks

Delegates Tell Rebels in AFL to Heed Pact; Shipbuilders Dissent

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—The National CIO convention today joined the AFL in an unprecedented peace pact to outlaw membership raids between the giant labor unions.

Some 700 delegates to the 15th constitutional convention unanimously approved a "no raiding" agreement to follow the same action taken by the AFL in September. The pact automatically goes into effect Jan. 1, 1954.

The convention served notice, however, that raiding would continue between rival unions unless the AFL Teamsters and other AFL unions agreed to abide by the terms of the pact.

Unions are not bound by the agreement unless it is signed by their leaders—and the Teamsters, among others, have indicated they will not sign by Jan. 1.

While the proposal went through without a dissenting vote, the CIO Shipbuilders' Union indicated it would not sign up. Ross Blood, secretary-treasurer of the union, told the convention: "We have no intention at the moment of signing the agreement." He added that the shipbuilders would not register a negative vote, however.

Free All Anti-Red POWs on Jan. 22, Dulles Urges

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles declared today that all anti-Communist prisoners of war held by the Neutral Nations' Repatriation Commission in Korea should be given their freedom and civilian status on Jan. 22.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru had recently suggested that the question of release of the POWs should be considered anew by both sides in the Korean controversy if the proposed political conference did not take place.

Dulles made clear in a news conference statement that the United States rejects this Nehru suggestion and feels that provisions of the Korean armistice agreement covering POWs must be carried out to the letter.

He said these provisions state that 120 days after the prisoners were turned over to the repatriation commission (for explanations by Reds trying to persuade them to go home) they must be given their freedom and civilian status. He said the date for doing this will be Jan. 22.

The Koreans among the anti-Communist prisoners, Dulles told questioners, are electing to stay in the republic of Korea, and the Chinese who have refused to return to Red China presumably will elect to go to Nationalist China or Formosa, although they might elect to go elsewhere.

McCarthy to Ask Broadcasting Time

NEW YORK (U)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today he would demand "radio and television time to answer former President Truman's attack upon me last night."

"I am notifying the Federal Communications Commission and will demand time on the air to answer Mr. Truman," McCarthy said.

McCarthy referred to Truman's statement in his speech that "it is now evident that the present administration has fully embraced, for political advantage, McCarthyism. I am not referring to the senator from Wisconsin—he is only important in that his name has taken on a dictionary meaning in the world."

Attorney General Opens Secret Files For Facts

Ex-President Says He Kept White to Help FBI; Ike Aide on Stand This Afternoon

WASHINGTON (A.P.)—

Atty. Gen. Brownell was reported to have collected a batch of secret documents for possible use in his reply before a Senate committee to former President Truman's crackling charge he "lied to the American people" in the Harry Dexter White case.

Brownell was to testify before the Senate internal security subcommittee today in a closed session and later in a public hearing.

Brownell's office turned aside with "no comment" all questions about the papers which he will take with him.

However, Department of Justice sources indicated that his staff has been busy the last few days digging into department files—including those of the FBI—in preparation for his testimony.

Brownell was reported to be prepared to introduce some of this material as evidence, if the questioning session so develops as to make this necessary.

The Senate group on its own moved toward bringing names of other former Truman administration officials into its inquiry.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind.) announced he has asked Brownell for a report on the Truman administration's handling of the cases of Harold Glasser and Frank V. Coe, who like White were in the Treasury Department.

Both Glasser and Coe have refused to answer questions from congressional committees as to whether they had Communist affiliations or engaged in espionage activities.

Truman's fighting speech split political reaction squarely down the middle. Democrats—including some who have been critical of him in the past—rallied around him. Republicans scoffed at his defense, promised more disclosures to come.

Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, said in Chicago that "it is infamous that the man who has done more than anyone else to organize and fortify the free world against communism should be subjected to such malicious political attack."

Leonard W. Hall, chairman of the Republican National Committee, termed false Truman's assertion the GOP organization had worked "hand in glove" with Brownell on the White case. He said the committee learned of Brownell's original Chicago speech on the subject only 10 minutes before it was made on Nov. 6.

"If Mr. Truman's statement is representative of the truth of the balance of his presentation, then no reliance whatsoever can be put on his statement," he said.

KANSAS CITY (A.P.)—

Former President Truman told the nation last night that he kept Harry Dexter White in government service despite charges of disloyalty because he did not want to endanger an FBI investigation of subversives.

This was Truman's answer to accusations stemming from a speech 11 days ago by Atty. Gen. Brownell. The former President spoke over a nationwide radio-TV hookup last night.

Brownell had charged that White had been retained in an important post in 1946 "though he was known to be a Communist spy by the very people who appointed him." White died in 1948.

Truman, jaunty and confident as ever, made a step-by-step summary of the White case, and prefaced and followed it by blasting Brownell's charges as "phony," as "false" and as "shameful demagoguery."

"The manner and timing of what has been done," Truman said, "makes it clear that the powers of the attorney general have been prostituted for hopes of political gain. No election is worth so much."

Truman's first answer to Brownell's charges was that the Republican Party was "desperate" because of their election reverses in New York and New Jersey.

The attorney general withheld comment on Truman's talk. Other reaction ran generally along partisan lines.

At one point Truman lashed out with this: "It is now evident that the

Telegrams Pour Into Truman Office

KANSAS CITY (U)—Harry Truman's office looked like a messenger boy's headache today as telegrams poured in with comments on his "tell all" speech in the Harry Dexter White controversy.

An office staff of five persons was busy opening a stack of wires they estimated at several thousand. They estimated that 95 per cent of the wires they had read by 9:30 a. m. were commendatory.

"The American people have always been fair play," Truman said in a statement after reading some of the telegrams.

"I am highly pleased by the response to my statement as indicated by the thousands of telegrams coming in from every state in the union."

Toll Is 2 Dead, 19 Wounded on 3rd Day of Deer Season

From AP & UP Dispatches

The deer hunting death toll from gunfire stood at two today with at least 19 wounded as the young season went into its third day.

Latest gun victim was Donald Keen, 37, of Dowagiac. He was killed late Monday while hunting in Cass County. He dropped his shotgun and it discharged, striking him in the face.

One of the latest hunters to be wounded was Jack E. Harmon, 19, of Bellevue, who was shot through the lung by another hunter when he was mistaken for a deer in Plainfield Township, Iosco County.

The other addition on the wounded list was Richard E. Anderson of Marquette, who shot himself in the right foot while hunting in Marquette County.

Latest heart attack victims were Claude C. Linn, 78, of Okemos, who died at Chippewa Lake on route north, and Carlton Doty, 33, of Utica, who died Sunday night in Mercy Hospital, Bay City, while returning home from the north woods.

Conservation department agents, despite record hunting pressure except in scattered southern counties; reported the deer kill was below normal almost everywhere.

One of the few plus-spots was a 10-square mile controlled area on the Rifle River. Opening day hunters got 25, compared with 22 last year.

TWO Birmingham Commission Delays Action on Triangle and Offers Explanation

From Our Birmingham Bureau
BIRMINGHAM — Leaving the question open on annexation of the Troy Township triangle bounded by Adams, Buckingham and the Grand Trunk Railroad, city commissioners passed a resolution last night to clarify their proposition over the site mentioned, slated for possible terrace development with septic tanks.

The commission contends that if the area is developed it should be annexed, rather than served with septic tanks.

The school board is negotiating with the developer to obtain 20 acres of the land.

The commission added to the resolution proposed by City Manager Donald C. Egbert, that it opposed dense concentration of the property abutting the city, annexed or not.

The resolution further states that storm water from the triangle will flow into Birmingham since no drainage facilities are anticipated, and adds that septic tanks are not satisfactory for disposal of sanitary waste.

Egbert said the city has never favored annexation and that it should only be considered now to protect Birmingham's property.

"It might be a problem that we can work out with Troy and the developer," he stated, "with co-operation, and without annexation."

Commissioner Lance Minor turned in a "no" vote, saying he was "opposed to any resolution of this character and opposed to borrowing trouble."

"Developers of the land purchased it with a full knowledge of what they were undertaking," he said.

"They could go west of this property, and not spend so much of the taxpayers' money. Let us take care of our own problem."

Egbert is hopeful that a similar resolution, resolving the intent of Troy Township, will be forthcoming.

Holding a hearing over rezoning six lots on Southfield at Fourteen Mile, the petition was tabled until the plan board can study the area and discuss it at a joint meeting with the commission next month.

Brownell to Reply to Truman Today

on anything in the former President's explanation," Hall declared.

Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, followed Truman on the air last night, to declare that if the former President was aiding FBI investigations in the White case there remained unanswered questions as to why he had labeled congressional probes as "red herrings."

Ferguson raised the question, not mentioned by Truman, of the latter's laudatory letters to White when White was preparing to transfer from the Treasury to the International Monetary Fund, and when he left the fund in 1947.

Ferguson went back on television this morning, saying that in Truman's speech "for the first time the past administration has admitted they had Communists in their administration."

He said Truman offered "no evidence they ever kicked them out . . . (they) really did nothing to get them out."

Ferguson said that actually, the Truman administration gave White a handsome salary increase to $17,000 a year, which he said was tax free and hence the equivalent of about $30,000 in his monetary fund post.

Noting the action of the New York grand jury which indicted top Communist leaders but did not lodge a finding against White, Ferguson said the jury indicted only those who were professed Communists, no one in the government.

Ferguson also said it would have been a simple matter for Truman to have kept White out of the monetary fund post even after the Senate had confirmed him.

Ferguson said it would have involved only a motion to reconsider, and withdrawal of the nomination.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said he had often disagreed with Truman "but I have never questioned his loyalty to his country."

McClellan said it will be up to Brownell to prove before the Senate committee "his position that White was promoted when President Truman knew he was a spy."

"Unless he can show that, I think maybe the public will feel that President Truman acted in good faith," McClellan said.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) of the Senate internal security subcommittee said that group is "interested only in fact and is not concerned with political bias."

"We intend to make a complete record in the White case . . . and let Congress and the American people be the judge of what the true facts are," he said.

Rep. Moulder (D-Mo), a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said Truman had given a "crystal-clear statement of the facts and an answer to the scurrilous and insulting political smear against him and the Democratic party."

Rep. Clarence Brown (R-Ohio) took up Truman's admission that he had made an error when he said originally that White was "fired" when he was found to be "wrong."

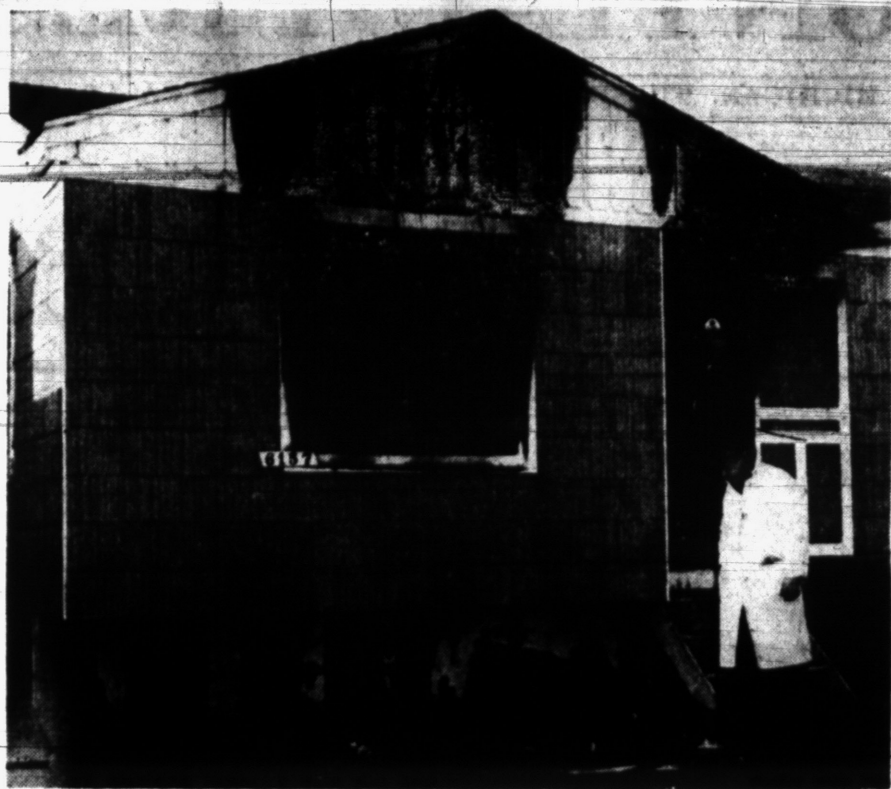

"There are many people who think Mr. Truman made many other mistakes, including the codding of Communists by his administration and his reluctance to believe that Alger Hiss could not be trusted," Brown declared.

Rep. McCormack of Mass. chafed, assistant House Democratic leader, retorted in a separate interview that Truman had exposed "the below-the-belt conspiracy of Brownell and others."

"Brownell made use of confidential FBI reports for political purposes," McCormack declared. "If he can use one FBI report for political purposes he can use another, and the sources of FBI information will be dried up."

Rep. Clardy (R-Mich), a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said in Philadelphia the Truman administration had "quashed" an indictment against White by a federal grand jury sitting in New York in 1947.

Clardy did not elaborate on his statement that an indictment was about to be handed down against White and was quashed. White appeared before the grand jury. It did not indict him. He died in 1948 after testifying before the House committee that he was neither a Communist nor a spy.

Truman Claims Brownell Lied to American People

present administration has fully embraced, for political purposes, McCarthyism. I am not referring to the senator from Wisconsin—he is only important in that his name has taken on a dictionary meaning in the world."

"It is the corruption of truth, the abandonment of our historical devotion to fair play. It is the abandonment of the 'due process' of law. It is the use of the big lie and the unfounded accusation against any citizen in the name of Americanism or security."

It is the rise of power of the demagogue who lives on untruth; it is the spread of fear and the destruction of faith in every level of our society.

"This is not a partisan matter. This horrible cancer is eating at the vitals of America and it can destroy the great edifice of freedom."

As to the action he took in the White case, he said, it was the best for the nation.

He said he wanted the "American people to understand that the course we took protected the public interest and security and, at the same time, permitted the intensive FBI investigation then in progress to go forward. No other course could have served both purposes."

He admitted an error in a previous statement made after Brownell issued his charges. Then Truman declared that, as soon as he learned White was "wrong," he fired him by allowing him to resign.

"Although my recent offhand comment concerning his resignation was in error," he said last night, "the fact is that he was separated from government service promptly when the necessity for secrecy concerning the intensive investigation by the FBI came to an end."

White had been assistant secretary of the Treasury. The Brownell charges revolved around his promotion to the post of U. S. member of the Board of Directors of the International Monetary Fund, a promotion Brownell said was approved after the White House received allegations of disloyalty against White.

In describing the White case, Truman said a lengthy FBI report on "certain accusations of espionage" reached the White House in December 1945.

"Among the many names mentioned, I now find, was that of Harry Dexter White, who had been in the Treasury Department for many years and who was at that time an assistant secretary of the Treasury," he said.

He added that as best he can determine an FBI report "specifically discussing activities of Harry Dexter White was brought to my attention" early in February 1946. He said it was delivered to him by Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan, his military aide, and also "brought to my personal attention by Secretary of State Byrnes."

Truman said he sent a copy of the report to White's immediate superior, the late Fred Vinson, then secretary of the Treasury. He said he also discussed the matter with Vinson as well as Byrnes.

But that discussion, he related, was not until after the Senate had confirmed White's promotion to the International Monetary Fund.

"Secretary of the Treasury Vinson consulted with Atty. Gen. Tom Clark and other government officials," Truman related. "When the results of these consultations were reported to me, the conclusion was reached that the appointment should be allowed to take its normal course. The final responsibility for this decision, of course, was mine. The reason for the decision was that the charges which had been made to the FBI against Mr. White also involved many other persons. . . . It was of great importance to the nation that this investigation be continued in order to prove or disprove these charges and to determine if still other persons were implicated."

He said any unusual action in connection with the White appointment "might well have alerted all the persons involved to the fact that the investigation was under way and thus endanger the success of the investigation."

Mrs. Vogeler Tells of Freeing Husband

he doesn't return at night you are afraid. Neither does he return the next night nor the next. First I am fearful, and then I get awfully mad. My husband has told me that if anything happens to do something. But he didn't say what," she recalls.

Her woman's intuition sent her to the underground workers in Vienna where they were living. Failure to get aid from the U. S. State Department to free her husband from the Hungarian Communists prompted her to lay a kidnapping plot. This was foiled and two Russian officers who had promised to help her were killed.

"I had been told that as an American citizen you were promised protection anywhere in the world. And so I called on Dean Acheson in London and he told me coldly that nothing could be done. That was the day when I lost my temper and I told him that his 'lousy state department policies' were responsible. He warned me that I was writing my husband's death warrant, and to keep this out of the papers," she said.

Crediting the American newspapers with keeping the story alive for two years, Mrs. Vogeler said that publicity helped free her husband.

"I have had all of totalitarianism I want. My brother was shot by the Nazis and when this same type of ideology took my husband, I became determined to tell the world this story. My two sons must not grow up in this kind of a world," she said.

Prayer, she said, was her sustaining power during her hours of trial.

"Many good things have come from this experience. It has made me closer to God and my husband, too. Even when things looked the darkest, I knew someone else was with me," says Mrs. Vogeler.

Her next trip is to Washington where she plans to tell President Eisenhower and Sen. Knowland of California what the "grass roots" thinking is.

"People should write individual letters to the President and let him know how they feel. If he knows everyone is behind him he will stick to his original promises and not be influenced by his advisers," she said.

Plans Changes in Ford Agency

Cy Owens Takes Over
Milliman Business; Starts
Remodeling Program

C. A. Owens, former Ford dealer in Northville, has purchased the Milliman Ford Agency at 147 S. Saginaw St. and is launching an immediate rejuvenation program for both the display room and repair shop.

Owens, 36, who lives at 643 Edison St. in Plymouth with his wife and two children, plans to move to Pontiac as soon as possible.

He is changing the name of the 19-year-old Milliman Agency to Cy Owens.

A Navy veteran with service in the Mediterranean theater during World War II, Owens started in the automobile sales business in 1946 with a Kaiser-Frazer agency in Plymouth. He bought the Northville-Ford dealership in 1951.

A former University of Illinois student, Owens is secretary of the Metropolitan Ford Dealers Association, a member of the American Legion, and belongs to the Rotary Club, the Optimist Club and the Elks Club in Northville.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS—Supt. of Schools Eugene L. Johnson officially presented copies of a 15-page brochure explaining the bond issue to be voted on Monday to board of education members last night.

Placed in the mail today were 1,900 more copies of the booklet prepared by the Citizens School Development Committee, urging approval of a millage increase and $1,750,000 bond issue to build a new high school and an addition to the Wing Lake Elementary School.

The school board approved borrowing $30,000 to meet current operating expenditures, with the provision that attempts will be made first to secure advances from Bloomfield Hills and Bloomfield County Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty to a charge of issuing a check.

Narcotics Suspect Asks Examination on Charge

Oscar Atkins, 28, of 824 S. Saginaw St., demanded examination on a charge of possessing narcotics yesterday when he appeared before Pontiac Judge Maurice E. Finnegan.

Atkins was ordered held in Oakland County Jail when he failed to post a $2,000 bond. The examination was set for Dec. 2.

Pontiac Detective Raymond Meggitt, of the vice bureau, and Patrolman Herbert Cooley said they confiscated about a quarter of an ounce of heroine when they arrested Atkins while he was leaving a building Sunday night.

Spanking Death Leads to Prison

Stepfather Sentenced to 9-15 Years for Beating
2-Year-Old Boy

GRAND RAPIDS (UP)—Arthur J. Wiltse, 26, began a 9 to 15-year prison term today for the "spanking death" of his 2-year-old stepson.

The sentence was imposed Monday by Superior Judge Thaddeus B. Taylor, who found Wiltse guilty of manslaughter Nov. 5 after a trial without jury.

The boy, Thomas Russell, died in a local hospital Aug. 18 after he had been spanked. Defense attorneys said the boy had cancer but medical testimony showed bruises and internal injuries caused death.

Taylor said that even if the court agreed that cancer was a contributing factor, it did not excuse Wiltse's beating of the boy. He noted that the child had three hemorrhages at the time he was pronounced dead.

Wiltse was sentenced as a juvenile on a burglary charge, later on an assault charge and was released from prison in June 1951.

The judge quoted a prison report saying that Wiltse "is possessed of a violent and ungovernable temper and wilful disposition."

He said the court was satisfied after testimony by medical experts that the boy's death resulted from the "spanking."

WATCHING AND WAITING—Republican Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan watches the CBS-TV monitor screen in New York last night, as former President Truman, in Kansas City, delivers his answer in the Harry Deter White case. Ferguson followed the Truman speech with an appearance on the "Chronoscope" program in reply to the former President.

Fog Blots Out Light in Europe

Western Cities, London in Twilight; Pall Disrupts Sea, Air Traffic

LONDON (AP)—The season's first major fog swirled over Britain and Western Europe today disrupting air and sea traffic and blotting out almost all light in many cities.

A deep twilight prevailed in London at mid-day. But the British capital, used to this sort of thing, regarded the fog as merely a curtain raiser for the deeper autumn "pea-soupers" yet to come.

Only a few Londoners turned up with smog masks—as recommended by some doctors—tied around their noses and mouths, preferring apparently to hold these in reserve for worse days.

Last autumn acid fogs polluted with smoke and industrial fumes killed an estimated 12,000 people in Britain. Doctors suggested the gauze masks covering the nose and mouth might save lives this year.

London and Northolt Airports were closed, delaying plane traffic with the United States, Canada, the Continent, East and West Africa and the Orient. Ship and rail traffic was delayed.

Cold foggy weather prevailed in France. The fog hid the top of Paris' Eiffel Tower. Orly and Le Bourget Airfields were closed to incoming traffic.

Shipping was at a standstill in Antwerp, Belgium's major port. The Belgian National Airport of Melsbroeck also was closed.

The grey mass spread over Denmark and southern Norway and Sweden. Temperatures there were slightly above normal.

Clarkston Man Hurt in Waterford Crash

Daniel E. Reardon, 47, of Clarkston, was treated for face cuts at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital yesterday following an auto accident on U. S. 10 in Waterford.

Reardon's wife, Dorothy, 39, told Oakland County sheriff's deputies she was unable to avoid hitting an auto driven by Albert J. Milka, 45, of 4159 Foley St., Waterford. Both vehicles were southbound on U. S. 10 and Milka was making a left turn, deputies said.

A parked car, owned by Ernest Johnson of 5370 U. S. 10, was damaged when the other two cars smashed into it after the collision.

Pair Back in Jail in Check Charge

Arthur L. Bowen, 22, and his wife, Betty Ann, 19, of 771 Wing St., Waterford Township, pleaded guilty Monday before Oakland County Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty to a charge of issuing a check without an account.

They were returned to Oakland County Jail when unable to furnish $1,000 bond each and sentence was set for Nov. 27.

Bowen and his wife pleaded guilty to issuing a check for $37.65 last Oct. 19 and also admitted issuing several other checks in a statement to Assistant Prosecutor Donald Brown.

Steel Officials, Union Men Take Tour of Plants

CLEVELAND (AP)—Top officials of U. S. Steel and the CIO United Steelworkers set out together today on a strictly experimental grass roots tour of half a dozen Ohio steel plants.

By this novel method, they hope to find a common ground for settling the little issues that sometimes swell into big ones and cause major strikes in the basic steel industry.

Heading the touring party will be Benjamin F. Fairless, chairman of U. S. Steel, and David J. McDonald, president of the steelworkers union. Top aides of both will accompany them.

"Many of the problems that reach our desk arise on the local level," Fairless explained at a joint company-union press conference last night. "We hope this will be the beginning of many such plant visits."

"Our industrial relations system simply has to work and work better," added McDonald. "The machinery for settling local disputes sometimes strips a gear. We want to find out how to improve this system."

Similar tours are planned in the Pittsburgh, Chicago and other areas.

'Red' Union Banned at Memorial Building

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A State meeting of the American Civil Liberties Union was canceled out of the Indiana World War Memorial yesterday after protests came from the American Legion and the minute women.

Arthur Garfield Hayes, a New York attorney who heads the union, is scheduled to address the Friday night meeting of the Indiana chapter.

F. J. (Star) Brown, secretary of the board of trustees of the war memorial, said the meeting would be too "controversial" to be held in the state-owned memorial building which is reserved for patriotic and civic groups.

The 1952 Legion convention accused the union of "a long history of unbroken and undeviating defense of Communists and Communist causes."

Hit-Run Driver Sentenced Here

A 22-year-old Pontiac man, who told Pontiac Police he drove a hit-run auto later found overturned and abandoned behind Wisner Stadium Saturday night, was sentenced to 10 days in Oakland County Jail yesterday by Pontiac Judge Maurice E. Finnegan.

Lawrence E. Houser of 105 E. Ann Arbor St., who pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident, told police he became frightened after hitting an auto driven by Frank B. Lawrence, 30, of 246 W. Howard St.

"I started to turn around to identify myself, but I was so nervous I lost control of the car and turned over," Houser said.

Houser said he was trying to avoid hitting a bus discharging passengers at Johnson St. and Pine Grove Ave. when he struck the other auto.

Police said Houser's brother, William F. Houser of 401 Third St., who owns the car, said earlier that the auto was taken from in front of his home.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO SUFFER WITH ARTHRITIS SAYS DETROIT LADY

O-Jib-Wa Bitters proved to me that my long suffering from Arthritis was unnecessary says Mrs. Ora Carrington of 1494 20th Street, Detroit.

"After suffering over six years with rheumatism and arthritis, I thought nothing would help me. I tried many medicines and treatments with little success and figured I was doomed to suffer for good. Both my shoulders, back and spine hurt so much I couldn't lift anything heavy, and in the morning my fingers were stiff and painful. What bothered me also, was the feeling that I didn't know where to turn next for help and I was about ready to give up in despair. O-Jib-Wa Bitters was recommended by some friends who had received good results, and as I had read some wonderful reports on your medicine in the paper, decided I would give it a chance to help me. Results were slower coming to me than several others I had read about, but the important thing was that I was getting better. I improved gradually and in about a month, I experienced the results that I had thought were impossible. I am able to do all my own work now without the slightest pain and my nerves are so improved that I sleep well again. I highly endorse O-Jib-Wa Bitters because it proved to me that suffering from arthritis as I did was unnecessary. If only I had tried O-Jib-Wa Bitters sooner, I would have escaped much misery. Needless to say, I'll never be without O-Jib-Wa and in closing would like to repeat—that people don't have to suffer from arthritis. Get a bottle of O-Jib-Wa Bitters and give it a fair trial on my recommendation."

Opera Opens 70th Season

Met Celebrates With Modern Faust, Rebuilt Auditorium

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera celebrated its 70th anniversary last night with a rebuilt auditorium, a bigger-than-ever, but dignified audience and a modernized "Faust"—the same opera that opened the Met 70 years ago.

The opera performance was a success, musically and production-wise.

The new house arrangement was a success because it provided more seats and bigger returns in the box office, with seats selling for up to $30.

And the Metropolitan's long campaign to turn the opening night back into a cultural occasion, and to suppress the exhibitionists who got out of hand in some past years, appeared to be succeeding too.

Observers who had called last year's Met opening unusually well behaved found this one even more so.

Last year a lady appeared in trousers. This year there was not even one outlandish costume or undignified performance.

For the opening of the Met's 69th season—there was no season in 1897 because of a fire in the opera house—Manager Rudolph Bing gave opera fans a brand-new version of the Gounod classic which opened the venerable opera house in 1883.

He even moved the time of the opera from the Middle Ages to the middle of the 19th century, with new costumes to match—including a Mephistopheles in tails.

Also new was Mephistopheles' voice, that of Nicola Rossi-Lemeni, Constantino—born, reared in Italy and appearing here for the first time.

Jussi Bjorling as Faust was in a role familiar to him, and Victoria de los Angeles was Marguerite.

Chief Schroeder Names Pontiac's 1st Fire Marshal

Fire Chief John F. Schroeder today announced the appointment of Pontiac's first fire marshal and three other promotions following civil service examinations last week.

Named to fill the new position is Charles E. Metz of 690 Scottwood Ave., 39, who was promoted from lieutenant. Seven persons competed for the new job.

Fire prevention and investigation will be the duties of the new fire marshal who has been with the department since 1942.

Schroeder said a new city ordinance, now in preparation, will be submitted to Pontiac City Commission soon to set up a bureau of fire prevention for the fire marshal.

Schroeder said he will name an assistant to Metz soon.

Grim Searchers Hunt Hunter Who Went Home

SAGINAW (UP)—Adolfo Lopez, 30, was back at his foundry job today, still not quite sure what all the fuss was about.

But the facts were clear to 50 state policemen, Isco County sheriff's deputies, volunteers and the pilot of a light plane. They were informed that they had been searching for the man who wasn't there.

It all started Sunday when Lopez, Juanita Rocha and Rocha's 15-year-old son left to go deer hunting in Isco County. They parked Lopez' car near Hale and entered the woods separately.

Rocha and his son met back at the car Sunday afternoon. But no Lopez. They waited until Sunday night and finally called police when Lopez failed to return.

The big search for Lopez started Monday morning. Aided by a "spotter" plane, it continued through the day. Then searchers used flashlights and torches to light their way through the woods after dark.

Shortly before midnight, the searchers bedded down with the thought of resuming their search today. About that time, it was discovered that no one had informed Lopez' wife that her husband was missing in the dark woods.

deputy put in a long-distance call to Mrs. Lopez to break the grim news.

"Oh, he's not missing," she replied. "He came home about noon today. Said he came out of the woods and couldn't find the car so he hitchhiked home."

Ballot to Decide Tax, Bond Issue

Ortonville Votes Jan. 12 on $200,000 for School, 14-Mill Hike

ORTONVILLE—A $200,000 bond issue for the construction of 10 new rooms on Brandon Elementary School will come before Ortonville voters Jan. 12, the school board announced today.

The bond issue also will provide funds for construction of a bus garage. However, the board pointed out, plans are only in the tentative stage.

Brandon PTA members last night heard John Thomas, Flint bonding lawyer, speak on the proposal.

Voters also will decide a 14-mill tax increase to be used for the building fund only.

Polls will be open at Ortonville High School from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. To be qualified, voters must be taxpayers, registered and a resident of the district for 30 days. Non-taxpayers may cast ballots on the tax increase, the board said.

Precinct Change Up for Reading

City Commission Also Receives Report on Bids for Library Tonight

Pontiac City Commission tonight is expected to give first reading to an amendment revising the election precinct ordinance.

The changes will increase the number of precincts from 35 to 44 and relieve strain on certain precincts where voting was excessively heavy during the last presidential election.

City Manager Walter K. Willman is scheduled to report on bids received for construction of the new branch library at Glenwood avenue and Russell street.

Several proposed rezonings are scheduled for consideration. They include:

A report from the City Plan Commission approving an ordinance to rezone to C-1 lots 1 and 2 of assessor's plat 102, if a 20-foot alley is provided. A public hearing is also scheduled on the matter.

A report from the commission and a public hearing on an ordinance to rezone to C-1 lot 188 of assessor's plat 138, providing an alley is located from the rear of the property. A resolution to accept a deed from the property owners for a 20-foot alley and a public hearing also are slated.

A report from the City Plan Commission approving an ordinance to rezone to C-1 outlet "A" of Washington Park subdivision. A resolution to accept the deed for a 20-foot alley as required, and a public hearing also is scheduled.

A commission report approving an ordinance to rezone to M-1 part of section 15 on N. Perry at the Belt Line Railroad. A public hearing and adoption of the ordinance will be considered.

Consider a petition from the Tel-Huron Shopping Center, Inc., asking that the west half of lot 21, lots 22 and part lots 23 and 25 of assessor's plat 73 be rezoned to C-1, and that an alley be vacated and a new alley deeded.

The city commission is expected to accept the resignation of Eugene A. Gump as a member of the Police Trial Board.

Commissioners are scheduled to hear a communication from the Pontiac Police Officers' Association supporting Pontiac Police Chief Herbert W. Straley against the charges filed against him with the Police Trial Board.

The commission is also expected to:

Hold a public hearing and confirm a special assessment roll for construction of sidewalk on the north side of Parkdale from Kennett to the northwest line of lot 67, Lakeside Park Subdivision. Confirm a special assessment roll for construction of sidewalk on the north side of Parkdale from Kennett to the north side of Columbia from Baldwin to the west line of lot 2, assessor's plat 27.

Consider a proposed resolution declaring a public necessity for construction of a water main in W. Corbitt from Baldwin to the west end of the street. Hear a bid from Russell and Emma Sherman to purchase lots 11, 12 and 13 of Robert Herndon Pontiac Apartment Subdivision.

State National Guard Again Reports 10,000

LANSING (AP)—The strength of the Michigan National Guard has passed 10,000 for the first time since July 1950, Brig. Gen. George C. Moran, state adjutant general, said today.

Tabulations of unit strength reports showed that Guard membership totaled 10,010 officers and men on Oct. 31. The Guard has last been at the 10,000 mark just before federal induction of units for the Korean War began.

Illinois County Launching 'AA' for Roly-Polies

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UP)—An open meeting was called tonight to form plans for the first test of "avoid-dupis Anonymous," the fat man's latest hope in the battle of the bulge.

A federal health specialist from Washington, D. C., on hand for the organizational meeting, said an experiment would be closely watched by health officials across the country.

Basically, "AA" is a plan to promote the "we're-all-in-this-together" spirit and to prevent diet backsliding by banding together in groups where the strong can help the weak and the weak help each other.

Winnebago County was selected for the test because the area lies in the nation's "fat belt." As one Farm Bureau representative put it, "we raise the things that make you fat, and we eat them."

Dates and details of the "Avoid-dupis Anonymous" meetings will be decided at the organizational meeting tonight. The actual weight-shedding program is due to begin in January, when the first of eight meetings will be held.

Doctors and nutritionists will address the meetings, explaining the dangers of obesity and how to lose weight.

The program in Winnebago County is sponsored by the County Medical Society, the county chapter of the Heart Association, the County Home Bureau and the Council of Social Agencies.

Petoskey Ministers Uphold Lottery Law

PETOSKEY (UP)—The Petoskey Ministerial Association has launched a crackdown on bingo games.

The Rev. Lloyd Brasure, president of the association, said eight members of the association agreed to sign court complaints if necessary should bingo be continued in the community.

Brasure said ministers agreed first, however, to send a letter to all organizations conducting games that formal action would follow if the benefit games were continued.

"The law is on the books, and should be enforced unless or until it is taken off," Rev. Mr. Brasure said.

Has Anybody Seen a Sackful of Money?

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (U)—Mrs. Amine Hicks, an elderly widow who says she has carried about $85,000 around in a paper sack since 1945, told police she lost it in a drug-store.

Officers, skeptical at first, said yesterday they had confirmed her story.

Mrs. Hicks told reporters she had kept the $50 and $100 bills with her at all times because she doesn't trust banks. The money was left her by her late husband, she said.

Dagger-Shaped Plane Revealed by Air Force

WASHINGTON (U)—The Air Force disclosed last night some details of an "extremely high speed" experimental plane which looks like a huge dagger covered with pinholes, but it said security forbids saying how it has performed.

The plane, called the X3, was built by the Santa Monica, Calif., division of Douglas Aircraft Co., and has been under test for about a year.

It has a fuselage length of 66½ feet, slightly greater than that of the familiar DC3 passenger plane. But its wing span is only 22 feet 8 inches—less than the span of the DC3's tail section.

Because of this short span and a long, tapered nose, the X3 has been nicknamed the Flying Stiletto. More than 850 pinholes dot the outer surfaces as part of a system for measuring pressures.

CIO, AFL Set to Approve Pact

No-Raiding Agreement Expected to Pass; Early Merger Doubtful

CLEVELAND (U)—The CIO was ready to approve a "no raiding" pact with the AFL today, but the chances of the agreement blossoming into any early AFL-CIO merger seemed dim.

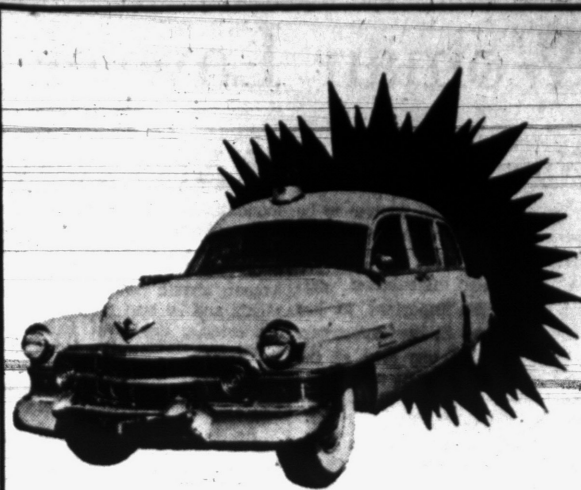

Overwhelming approval by the CIO's 700 convention delegates of the "no raiding" plan was forecast. It would bind individual AFL and CIO unions subscribing to it to refrain from attempting to persuade already-organized union members to switch from AFL to CIO, or vice versa.

While the agreement represents a forward step toward achieving an eventual AFL-CIO merger, top officials of both the AFL and CIO seemed doubtful that the desired unity can be achieved any time soon.

In fact, CIO President Walter Reuther displayed some irritation yesterday in his keynote convention speech at recent remarks of AFL President George Meany, although Reuther said he had confidence in Meany and the AFL leadership.

Meany recently was quoted as saying the CIO was formed by AFL leaders to foster political ideas—and throw their weight around in national politics.

Reuther, somewhat angrily, said Meany's memory "failed him badly" because the CIO was formed out of the AFL in 1935 to organize the mass production industries. Reuther said the AFL was unwilling to undertake this job at the time.

Woman Lawyer From Greece Enjoys Interchange of Cultures in U.S.

For the American woman to be the best dressed in the world, she must also be the best "under-dressed." Her foundation garments are as important to her appearance as is her outerwear.

More than 80 per cent of the women in this country, age 15 and above, wear some type of foundation.

Yet only about five per cent of these women have in their wardrobes the foundation garments for every activity and occasion.

foundations with varying types of outer apparel, and to prolong their usefulness through alternate wearings and frequent laundering, a woman should own five hip garments and 10 bust garments.

Basically, the ideal foundation three categories: (1) for office, home or street wear, (2) for recreational wear, and (3) for evening or dress wear.

Girdle and brassiere are the mainstay of the everyday wardrobe, or an all-in-one garment if that is preferred. The latter may be alternated with girdle and long line brassiere, a pairing which offers the same smooth look as the corset.

It is just as essential for the homemaker, for the sake of her figure, to wear comfortable yet controlling foundations when doing housework, as for the woman who goes to business and thus must look fashion-and-figure-right at all times.

For recreational activities, most women prefer pantie girdles, since these allow freedom and ease of action. A sturdy brassiere of cotton, rayon, or nylon should be teamed with the pantie garment.

UM Fellowship Student Dreams of Being Judge

By JANET ODELL

If all the lawyers in Greece were as attractive as the one who visited Pontiac Monday night, the courtroom would be a popular place.

Miss Maria Mihopoulou is a small brunette, scarcely 5 feet tall, with an engaging smile and a pleasant voice. She has dreams of becoming a juvenile judge some day.

A graduate of the University of Athens Law School, Miss Mihopoulou is in the United States on an American Association of University Women fellowship. Since September of 1952 she has been studying at the University of Michigan and hopes to complete work for her master's degree in sociology by February.

The local chapter of AAUW heard Miss Mihopoulou speak at its fellowship meeting Monday evening at the YWCA. She spoke first about the fellowship and then told something about life in modern Greece.

It took a full year to complete all arrangements for her trip to the United States. Miles of red tape, reams of blank forms, hours of personal interviews, exams and just plain waiting were necessary before the fellowship was secured. Then the entire process had to be repeated to obtain a Fulbright travel grant.

Although she spoke English before she arrived in Ann Arbor, Miss Mihopoulou admits that it was difficult at first to understand Americans. Added to that confusion was different food, a different system of college education and a bit of homesickness.

To climax it all, the Michigan climate did not agree with her. But now, a year later, she takes the differences all pretty much for granted.

There is no doubt that Miss Mihopoulou is impressed with America. Yet she is not wholeheartedly in accord with all our customs or beliefs.

"Americans know how to make money very well but not how to spend it. In Greece we know how to have fun with less."

The family is a more important thing in Greece. On holidays in Greece all the generations gather together for a party. There are no babysitters in that country. When parents go out, there is always some relative to stay with the children. Very few families have maids.

Modern Greeks do not marry young. There is, first of all, a serious housing shortage. Unless young couples move in with their parents, they must wait until they find a place to live.

Then, too, the idea of women working is still fairly new. The young man must be well established in his work and be able to support a wife before he marries.

Couple dates are infrequent until there are serious intentions of marriage; before that there are many group dates. No girl needs constant dates to insure her popularity. With a helpless shrug of her shoulders, Miss Mihopoulou says, "Maybe that is wrong. Maybe we grow up maladjusted. But I think not."

Miss Mihopoulou worked in the National Bank of Greece as a lawyer before coming to this country. Her chief interest on the side was helping juveniles. She has been studying the prevalence of juvenile delinquency in our country and the methods used to combat it.

War and hunger increased the incidence of juvenile delinquency in Greece. Children as young as 10 years were thrown on their own during the war. Some had used guns as a matter of self-defense. After the war, when conditions became more normal, it was almost impossible to expect these children to conform to the laws.

Women in Greece have had the franchise for only two years. Before Miss Mihopoulou left her homeland a bill was pending that would give women the right to become judges. So far it has not passed, possibly because the legislators are all men.

Women the world over have to fight their way in the professions. Miss Mihopoulou thought this was the case only in Greece. In her Athens law class about a fourth of the group was women. She expected to find more than the one or two women she has seen in each of the classes she has visited in the Michigan Law School.

Miss Mihopoulou says she will take home more than knowledge. She will carry a warm feeling of welcome and friendship that has been hers as an AAUW fellow. She is enjoying the interchange of cultures.

Greece, the ancient, has centuries of tradition behind it. Her people have always had to defend themselves in war, then to reconstruct the ruins. By contrast, America has such a young spirit.

It is free will that unites America, Miss Mihopoulou thinks. Americans love and respect their country and its laws because they want to. But people from the two different cultures can live side by side in peace, she believes.

Dark gray flannel with contrasting overplaid is the background of this smartly styled skirt. Constructed so the fullness starts past the hipline and falls into lovely soft folds, this skirt will be the companion for all your sweaters and blouses.

Very Little Girls Have No Worry About Hemlines

PARIS (INS)—The controversial question of skirt lengths may still be open to debate for adults, but for very little girls it has been settled by a Frenchman named Albert Lempereur.

This gentleman has decided that very little girls will wear skirts which reach the middle of the knee-cap.

"Whatever the fashions for mother may be," Lempereur announced, "little girls should not wear skirts with hemlines above the knees."

And since Lempereur is practically the leading expert in Paris for junior sizes, a lot of girls are going to do exactly what Lempereur says.

In fact, the dresses in Lempereur's winter collection for little girls establish the Parisian fashion laws for toddlers, school girls and teen-agers.

For a three-year-old baby the skirt just reaches the middle of the knee-cap. For miss seven-year-old—whose knees often are bony and scratched—the skirt should just cover the knees. Girls aged ten to twelve should wear skirts dropping half-an-inch below the knees.

Lempereur admitted defeat in one field.

"We can't set a rule for college girls," he said. "They do as they please."

"The way of dressing little girls in the Paris manner is dictated by rules of harmony and decency," added this Paris expert in children's clothes.

He argued that little misses look much more graceful with slightly longer skirts. Under no circumstances should they show their knees.

Day Shoes Fashionable, Healthful

Battered Brogues or High Heels Are All Wrong

Foot doctors tell us the woman who spends the day in a pair of battered old shoes for comfort's sake is neglecting her health as well as fashion. And the comfort is short-lived, too.

The solution is not to be found, of course, in wearing flimsy ankle-strap shoes atop 4-inch heels.

Although doctors have been bawling this practice for years, some women persist in the belief that they are putting fashion first. They are as wrong as their cousins, the comfort-firsters.

Costume coordination is a key word with fashion-wise women. High-heeled sandals, low-slung pumps, all the doodads that adorn shoes are designed for dress wear, not for every day use.

With daytime clothes, fashionable women wear daytime accessories, from hat to shoes.

So, for the health and beauty's sake and for lasting comfort, all women (whether they are housewives, salesgirls, students or office workers) should wear walking shoes for daytime.

On that both doctors and stylists are agreed.

Thanks to the cooperation of health and fashion experts in recent years, there are numerous smart, comfortable shoes available today.

MOMS Unit Plans Wednesday Party

Hair Style Seen as Cue to Identification

OMAHA (NEA) — Thousands of women and young girls who disappear each year could be located more easily by law enforcement officials if the officers would classify the women by their basic hair styles as well as by other physical characteristics.

That is the belief of a young hair stylist, S. J. Franco, who has developed a system to use a woman's "crowning glory" as a fingerprint.

Franco points out that when a young girl runs away from home or a mother becomes an amnesia victim, the police description of the missing person includes such details as the color of her eyes or the color and style of clothes she was wearing. But it is a simple matter for her to change to other clothing and it is hard to tell her eye color from a distance.

Police officials, he said, ignore the frequently important detail of her hair style—whether she was wearing a pony tail or a poodle cut.

And, although a woman can always drop into the nearest beauty shop to get a new hair-do, Franco maintains, the beauty operator still is limited in her ability to change the hair style by the woman's physical features.

For example, a stout woman with a short neck could not easily adopt should length curls, a tall woman with a long neck would look out of place with a boyish shingle bob, and a woman with a round facial contour would seem like a circus freak if she piled her hair around her head like a balloon.

Thus, Franco says, a woman can be trapped by her own vanity since destroying her attractiveness would be the last thing she would do in order to conceal her identity.

Also, the hair stylist claims, women are "typed" in their hair styles by their personalities. A nurse or school teacher probably would not deviate from a conservative hair-do.

The play girls would not hesitate to wear something "dramatic" or radical. Others with masculine inclined personalities, would wear boyish hair styles.

Hair coloring would not be an important factor in identifying a woman, according to Franco, because modern hair dyes are available which can reproduce any color—even the gray hair of age—regardless of the natural color of the hair.

Franco's system of hair style identification is based on a system of "fours." He says there are four basic lengths, four basic directions, and four kinds of curls from which nearly all coiffures are developed.

The four lengths are upswep (or formal), shingle, collar length and shoulder length. The four directions which the hair may be combed are up, down, forward and back. And the four types of curls are kinky, medium, loose (or wavy) and straight.

Many missing mothers, wives and daughters would be with their families now and many females of the underworld would be in custody, Franco believes, if police had simply included their hair styles on the thousands of "wanted" circulars distributed each day.

Neoma R. McCarl Wed by Candlelight

Neoma Ruth McCarl became the bride of Ronald S. Chaffee Nov. 7 in Bethel Tabernacle.

The Rev. Frank L. Racine of Bethany Tabernacle performed the ceremony before 250 guests.

For the candlelight service the bride chose a gown of Chantilly-type lace over satin styled with a cathedral train and a jewelry necklace. A tiara of seed pearls and lace held her fingertip illusion veil.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander McCarl of Waldon road, was attended by Patricia Ann Snover of Flint, as her maid of honor. Geraldine Salgeon was the bridesmaid.

Jerry Innes of Peck was best man for Ronald, who is the son of the Earl Nelson Agers of Waldon road. Richard Innes was the groomsmen. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

The bridegroom returned to Ft. Knox, Ky., to be transferred to Europe. The new Mrs. Chaffee will reside with her parents until he returns from overseas duty.

Gallery Has Exhibition by 2 Artists

Harvey Luce and Mrs. Wicke Show Their Work

The spirit of contemporary Italy portrayed in watercolor and a unique treatment in the medium of enamel on copper highlight the works of Harvey Luce of Bloomfield Hills and Mrs. Maureen Wicke of Gross Pointe being exhibited through Dec. 10 in Peggy deSalle's Little Gallery in Birmingham.

Mr. Luce, executive vice president of McManus, John and Adams, toured Milan, Rome and Florence last spring to talk with advertising people and designers about modern trends in design.

While there he made many sketches and, upon his return, completed several watercolor paintings of the Italian people and their country.

Mr. Luce, who has won many awards in the art director's field, has exhibited in the Associated American Artists' Gallery in New York City and in galleries in Washington, D. C.

The Birmingham exhibition is the first showing for Mrs. Wicke, who holds the distinction of working with enamel on copper in the creation of three-dimensional copper panels and paintings. Canadian born, Mrs. Wicke is the mother of two children.

Both artists are being introduced for the first time by the Little Gallery.

Act Ladylike to Win Approval of Europe's Men

PARIS (INS)—If "a guy is a guy wherever he may be," touring American gals may want to know what men in France, Britain, Italy, Switzerland and Belgium go for.

Males in Europe still want the sweet, simple, unpretentious, well-behaved type of girl.

Here are a few hints on how to be sweet, simple, unpretentious and well-behaved in European eyes.

Don't stub your cigarette in the saucer of your coffee cup. Ninety out of 100 European males disapprove of this habit.

Don't be (or appear) scatterbrained. Dress for the occasion. Sport clothes are out of place in an elegant restaurant and a dance frock looks silly for a picnic.

Don't try to be "different." European men don't like girls who insist on being too individual. Don't sprawl on the floor if everybody else sits on chairs.

The luxurious, brightly colored look, beautifully translated in a magnificent print on wool, has a demure Peter Pan collar and string tie at the neck. This sets off the bright buttons from neck to hem, and the unpressed pleats fall softly to flatter every figure.

LoLita Fox Repeats Marriage Vows

After a New York City honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. George Clinton Balch will reside on Putnam avenue.

They were married Saturday evening in Oakland Avenue United Presbyterian Church in a candlelight ceremony performed by the Rev. Dr. Andrew Creswell.

The bride, daughter of the Erwin Bruners of Walnut Lake road, is the former LoLita Marie Fox. She chose a gown of illusion net over satin applied with roses. A tiara of lace held her fingertip veil and she carried a semi-colonial bouquet of white roses and chrysanthemums.

Norma McGlothlin attended the bride in a gown of forest green net over tulle with a matching velvet headpiece, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

J. Clark Balch Jr., dean of men at Olivet College, was his brother's best man. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark Balch of Liberty street. Bernard Walters and the bride's brother, James K. Fox, seated the guests. James also escorted his sister to the altar.

Receiving guests in the church parlors after the ceremony, the bride's mother wore a gown of aqua and black crepe with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bridegroom's mother chose navy crepe with velvet trim and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride later changed to a tailored tweed suit with green accessories for the wedding trip.

George is a graduate of Olivet College in Olivet, where he was affiliated with Adelphe fraternity.

Queen Realizes Ambition

Becomes Parisian Model

PARIS (UP)—A life ambition was achieved at 20 by former "Miss Dixie" and Florida "Citrus Queen." Carolyn Stroup was a top-flight Paris fashion model during the past summer.

Working for designer Schiaparelli, Carolyn was in on the ground floor of this year's controversial short skirt war and learned the hard way what makes women's styles. She intends to put this knowledge into practice by becoming a fashion designer.

"These short skirts have been exaggerated," she said. "Only some women can wear them, and then they're not had."

A long-haired brunette with cupid-bow mouth, Carolyn, whose home is West Palm Beach, Fla., came to Paris accompanying this year's "Citrus Queen."

"I fell in love with the city right away. On an impulse I walked into Madame Schaparelli's and asked for a job," she said.

Her 35-inch bust, 24 waist and 36 hips did the rest.

"It was my life's ambition to learn fashion designing at the world's fountain-head," Carolyn said.

Paris, she found had everything. After work, she polished up her French, visited art shows and the Louvre.

Even at her Left Bank lodging house, Carolyn said she found a romantic touch of the past—her landlady is a descendant of Joan of Arc's brother.

The rent was less than $1 a night. Paris models unlike their American sisters, don't earn much money. Carolyn was paid $5,000 francs ($100) a month.

Women's Club Hears Talk

U.S. Economy Discussed

"This Is Our Problem" was the subject discussed by B. James Theodore Monday afternoon when Pontiac Women's Club met at the YWCA on Franklin boulevard.

Mr. Theodore, a member of the Harding College Freedom Forum Alumni, directed his presentation toward a better understanding of what makes our economic system work, and the basic principles underlying America's greatness.

The presentation was developed by Harding College in Arkansas, in consultation with outstanding authorities, to clarify in non-technical language the economic problems important to all Americans.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. M. E. Baldwin, and N. Harry Chapman reported on the county meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

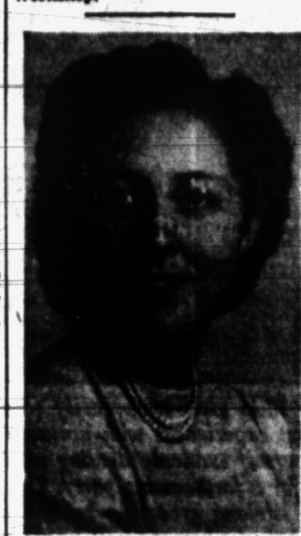

Mrs. Forrest Brown spoke on the progress of Girls' Town, sponsored by the State Federation of Women's Clubs and financed by the sale of a Michigan magazine.

Mrs. Harold C. Macklin had charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. W. H. Bodard, Mrs. A. M. Hall, Mrs. H. F. Going, Mrs. Howard Luther, Mrs. W.

M. Easton, Mrs. George Crisman and Mrs. Harry Sater.

The group decided to join with other women's clubs in the United States in contributing to the fund to restore Independence Hall and other historic buildings in Philadelphia.

A silver tea on Dec. 14 is planned to provide a Christmas for a needy family. The program on that date will feature the Tuesday Musicals Workshop.

Smooth Out Elbows

If your elbows are very rough, add powdered pumice to your soapsuds and lather the area with a brush. Make it a habit to pat on a bit of cream every time you lubricate your hands.

Ideal Measurements

Your figure should be ideal if your bust and hips are the same size and if your waist is 10 inches less. Should there be a difference of more than 12 inches, you had best start exercising.

Trims-Waistline

Touching finger tips to the floor without bending the knees is an excellent exercise for waist and stomach. Before starting, stretch your arms high in the air, lifting the rib cage out of your waist; it won't seem an impossible task then.

Shrimp, Rice Gently Fried in Butter

Mrs. William Crisp Adds Extra Flavor With Spices

By JANET ODELL

Now that shrimp has become more plentiful and less expensive, we can indulge in it occasionally. This recipe for shrimp fried with rice should make a good Sunday evening supper dish. Mrs. William Crisp shares it with us.

Outside of her children and her home, Mrs. Crisp is interested in handicraft and gardening. She is a member of the YWCA Ladies Day Out group.

SHRIMP FRIED WITH RICE

By Mrs. William Crisp Jr.

1 pound cooked and cleaned shrimp (or a 5-ounce can)
1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
1 1/2 cups cooked rice (white, brown or wild)
Salt and pepper
Paprika
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine the shrimp, onion, green pepper, celery and cooked rice. Add salt, pepper, paprika and a very little curry, if desired. Melt butter in frying pan; slowly fry the shrimp and rice mixture in it for about ten minutes.

Serve very hot, with or without herb mustard or chutney sauce.

Ways to Get Even Heat Distribution

By HUBBARD COBB

About three days after the first cave man discovered that he could heat his home with fire, his wife complained that while the middle of the cave was real comfortable the back of the cave was like ice.

This business of uneven distribution of heat has been going on ever since.

If your home is heated by forced warm air you can regulate the amount of heat coming through the registers in several ways.

Most registers have louvers in them which can be opened or closed depending on whether you want a lot of heat or just a little. An even more satisfactory way to get the system to produce even heat is to adjust the dampers on the ducts.

These dampers are usually located near the furnace and it's a simple matter to turn them to a point where just the correct amount of heat is forced out through the register.

On hot water systems the job of getting better distribution of heat is somewhat more complicated.

If you have an old gravity system, the best remedy is to have a plumber or heating man install a circulator. This is a small electrically driven pump which will force the hot water through the system.

Another way to improve the distribution of heat is to have the size of pipe to certain radiators increased or decreased depending on whether more or less heat is required.

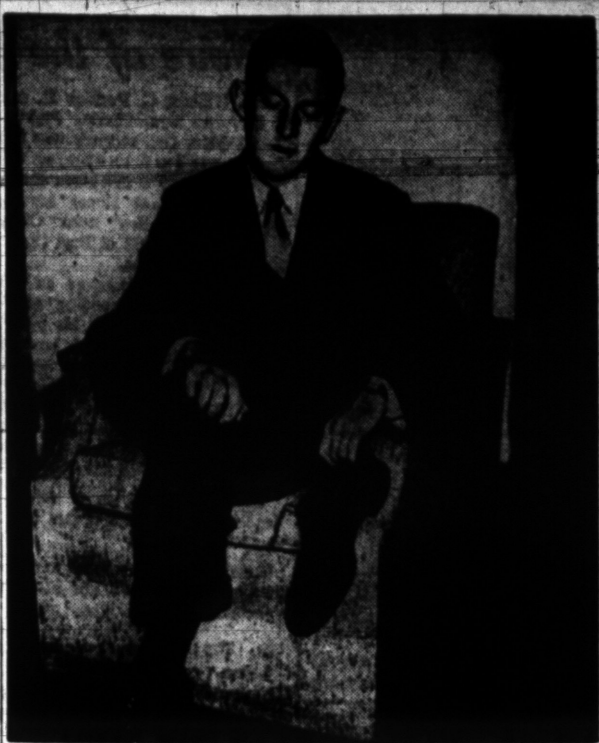

April-May Unit Elects Officers

The April-May Group of First Presbyterian Church elected Mrs. Leslie Huntwork as president at the Friday luncheon and business meeting held at the church.

Other officers elected include Mrs. John Heitsch, vice president; Mrs. Duane Lemaux, secretary; and Mrs. Floyd Mortenson, treasurer.

Mrs. Kenneth Carman presided at the meeting and Mrs. Lyndon Salathiel gave the Bible study. Mrs. Huntwork read letters from the missionaries in India.

Mrs. Orley Hill, Mrs. William Kalwitz, Mrs. John Birge and Mrs. E. V. Overstreet served the luncheon.

LISTEN, MEN! You fellows always kid us about kicking our shoes off when we get in the house. How about your dainty little custom of taking 'em off—and scratching your feet?

Mary Margaret McBride Says:

Gals Not Penny-Pinchers—Just Lack Experience

It's no secret among practiced fund-raisers that if you want to get big donations for a cause, the time to ring doorbells is when the man of the family is at home.

This is not to call women stingy, exactly. Still, the fact remains that the average man does write a more imposing charity check. And you really can't brush this statistic off with an amused reflection that good old Joe is only trying to brag when he gives $100 at a time when his financial statement indicates he can better afford $25.

A more logical explanation of the — shall we say, comparatively cautious? — generosity of women was given to me by Mildred McAfee Horton, who has raised large sums for education and now sits as the only woman on the board of directors of at least two big companies.

Mrs. Horton says it isn't that we women are less concerned about worthy causes than are men, but that we habitually think of money in terms of relatively small sums.

Admittedly we own a good deal more than half the nation's wealth, and if we so elected, could control the country's economy. But here's the catch: We usually turn our money over to men to administer. The result is that women rarely handle large amounts.

Most of us go through life without ever writing checks much larger than those needed to cover household expenses and maybe a few c.o.d.'s from stores where there are no husband-paid charge accounts. Dealing with the laundryman, milkman and the supermarket around the corner limits most of us to the petty-cash world which we still are in when the call comes for a contribution.

What to do, then, about loosening up thrifty women for a worthy cause?

Right now I am working on a game designed to remodel the conservative spender into a money-no-object tycoon. This game, to replace bridge, canasta and recipe-swapping as afternoon diversion, is called "Let's Form a Corporation." Special prizes go to the players who pull off the slickest merger, float the biggest bond issue and show the largest profit from an investment.

I'm also mulling over a child's version (best to get them young, they say) to replace "come to see." This is called "Bank Teller," and the little girls will sit at metal cage windows and count out stacks of stage money which they shove through the wicket to little boys.

Two more boring games have never been invented, but desperate

In-Laws Need No Invitation to Pay Visit

May Drop In Just Like Members of Own Family

By EMILY POST

A new daughter-in-law writes me: "I have been married six months and during this time my husband's family has come to visit us just once. When asked why they didn't come more often, his mother said because they weren't invited."

"I was quite taken back at this statement as I always thought members of the families did not wait to be invited. Have I been wrong about this?"

Answer: The question itself suggests that you must have been very cool to your mother-in-law for her to feel this way.

While they should be invited occasionally to a specific party or dinner, it is not necessary to be invited to visit nearest members of your family-in-law, any more than your own family.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been employed by this company for a little over a year. I am secretary to one of the executives. Last Christmas he gave me a government bond for a present. It was quite unexpected as I had been with him only a very short time.

I would like to know if it would be proper for me to give him a present this Christmas. He has been very nice to me and I would like to remember him with a present, but do not want to overstep my bounds.

Answer: A present is not expected by an employer from any employee. It would, in fact, be considered improper, except possibly from one who has been very long with the firm.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a senior in high school and expect to graduate in January. Would it be proper to enclose a billfold-sized picture of myself with my graduation announcements, or would this be presumptuous on my part?

Answer: A certain few of your nearest relatives and intimate friends would possibly not criticize, but others certainly would. In short, my best advice is "Don't!"

Unlovely Neck Dead Give-Away of Age Secrets

Many older women manage to retain the youthful beauty of their faces only to have their necks tell the age story. Of course, the reason is obvious.

Most girls start at an early age to pamper their faces, but give no thought to their necks.

When the results appear somewhere along in the forties, a woman can make up for lost time with diligent effort. But why tolerate even the first signs of an unattractive, old-looking neck at any time?

It's the old story of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure.

Your ounce of prevention should consist in nightly creaming, good posture and a couple of simple exercises.

After you have applied your night cream to your face, extend your message to include the neck, smoothing the cream on gently. Learn to hold your head erect at all times so that no tendency to sagging will develop.

Steady Beau's Teasing May Indicate Uncertainty About His Girl's Devotion

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: Lom and I have had many good times together since we've been going steady. We've had our ups and downs, but at the moment I'm pretty low over a joke he keeps pulling on me.

"I went with another boy before I started dating Lom and Lom kids me about him all the time. A little joke doesn't bother me now and then, but I'm getting tired of the same old one.

"Lom tells me I have a chance with my old-boy friend, that he still likes me, that he's better looking than he (Lom) is. It's getting my goat!

"I don't care about my old boy friend anymore. Is Lom's teasing a sign that he's getting tired of me?"

It is more likely aimed at finding out how you feel about him. Maybe all his teasing is just to prod you into saying something that will reassure him.

Lots of couples who go steady drift into taking each other pretty much for granted. The wonder of discovering nice things about each other stops bursting into compliments.

A girl begins to chafe with fear that he doesn't love her anymore, just because he hasn't said so recently. A boy begins to wonder how he stacks up with other boys she knows or has known, just because he's had no recent proof that she thinks he's terrific.

Your Lom's teasing may be just to try you out. Go along with his little joke and give him one more bone to worry over.

But use that joke as a springboard for some compliments for Lom himself, and you'll dispel his fears. His teasing will stop when he finds out what he wants to know.

"Dear Miss Woodward: I've liked this boy for years and recently he seemed attracted to me, at least he made a point always of talking to me and fooling around. A few nights ago he asked me to go out with him and, of course, I accepted.

"He said he would call me at 7:30. I waited till 8 o'clock and he never showed up! The following day I saw him and gave him a piece of my mind. Don't you think that's a dirty trick to play on a girl?"

I do indeed. There is no excuse for a boy not keeping an engagement he has made when there are so many telephones handy. If he forgot until too late, if something important came up that prevented his turning up at the hour expected, if he didn't feel well, or even wasn't in the mood—he could have called you.

But it does no girl any good to

Dentist Shuns White Clothes, Soothes Children

ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—Dr. Roy M. Wolff, a children's dentist, told the Mid-Continent Dental Congress yesterday he wears green shoes, yellow trousers and a light-colored sports shirt at work.

The reason: When children saw him in white they thought of doctors who gave them shots and became frightened.

His two women assistants wear blue shoes, blue jumpers and white blouses. The office is decorated in pastel hues.

"It's worked wonderfully," he said. "The psychological effect is terrific."

Arms Vote Due at U. N. Session

Political Committee Set to Ballot on U.S.-Backed Disarmament Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (U.P.)—The 60-nation U.N. Political Committee headed for a vote today on U. S.-backed disarmament proposals, including a plan to set up big power arms talks.

The balloting had been held over from yesterday when Russia, faced with certain defeat on her own proposals, asked a 24-hour postponement so she could study the Western resolution. The Soviets seek an immediate ban on atomic and hydrogen weapons followed by the establishment of controls. The West wants controls arranged first and then the ban imposed.

The Russian requested delay gave rise to speculation that the Soviets might not oppose the Western resolution. Deliberately worded in a non-controversial manner, this simply asks the U.N. Disarmament Commission to continue its work and suggests the big powers might hold private arms talks.

The Russians refrained from opposing a similar resolution last spring. Although this move was hailed at the time as a Soviet contribution to lessening of international tensions, it had no practical effect since the commission still was unable to make much progress.

Meanwhile, a Big Three call for U.N. censure of Israel for the massacre of 53 Arabs in Kibya, Jordan, sparked angry reaction from both sides in the dispute.

HAT-HAPPY—A week-old leopard playfully paws a zoo attendant's hat at his first public showing in Copenhagen, Denmark.

The Arabs complained the rebuke should be stronger and the Jews labeled it unfair.

The resolution, framed by Britain, France and the United States, was slated to go to the Security Council today or tomorrow. It rebukes Israel for the raid and demands strengthening of the U.N. truce team that watches over the Palestine armistice.

Britain Sends Bombers to Battle Mau Maus

NAIROBI, Kenya (U.P.)—Four Lincoln heavy bombers from the Middle East Command have arrived here to take part immediately in an intensified air drive against the anti-white Mau Mau terrorists in the Aberdare and Mt. Kenya forest areas.

Announcing this today, Col. A. D. Tree, who commands the new combined army and air force operations center set up over the weekend, said:

"The army wants to produce a very loud bang."

Says Farm Policy to Be Election Issue

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said today that "unless the Republicans can reverse the farm trends in the next year, a Democratic Congress will be elected next November."

The Arkansan made the statement, in an interview, on his return to the capital after several weeks in his home state.

McClellan said he had found general dissatisfaction among the farmers in Arkansas, so much so that he predicted agricultural policy will be "a highly important issue" in next year's congressional elections.

Livestock raisers have been hit hard by falling prices for their animals and rising prices for things they must buy, the senator said.

He said his statement about the possibility of his party's recapturing control of Congress next year "does not imply that President Eisenhower personally is becoming unpopular."

"But," he said, "the people seem to feel that the Republican Congress has not been able to move in any positive direction, or to come to grips with the problems that face us."

There were nearly four million babies born in the United States in 1952.

Love is just one of the things you can send to your servicemen overseas through regular letters.

Others are faith, hope, encouragement and news. No detail is too trivial. Goings-on at church, club or union; Peggy's knee scratch, painting the north room, the new post office—all of these bring your servicemen closer to the land he loves more than any of us at home can realize.

Send letters often and fill them to the edge with words you can be sure will be read and re-read till the next letter comes.

Bob Considine Says:

Lives of Hall, Heady Offer No Reason for Kidnaping

KANSAS CITY (INS)—Who are these people who kidnaped and murdered a defenseless and unquestioning child, then heartlessly fleeced the frantic parents out of $600,000 ransom money?

Well, the more one looks into their past the more bewildering becomes their present. Only their future seems assured.

Carl Austin Hall is a fairly intelligent-looking man of 34. His parents, having produced a mentally feeble son just before him, showered a wealth of love and affection on Carl, born three years later. His lawyer father died when he was 13, leaving the family very well fixed financially.

Carl was a good student in elementary school. Without incident he went three years to a straight-laced Kemper military school in Boonville, Mo., where one of his friends was Paul Greenleaf, adopted son of Robert Cosgrove Greenleaf, father of the kidnaped and murdered Bobby.

For his senior years, Carl Hall returned to his native Pleasanton, Mo., to graduate with "his class." The class liked him well enough to elect him its vice president.

He enlisted in the Marines in 1938 and fought through the bloody New Britain, Peleliu and Okinawa Battles. He rose as high as sergeant during that time, but busted out in 1946 as a private. He did not gain an honorable discharge. His termination was "under honorable circumstances."

We'll leave him at that point in his now quickly diminishing life and take up the question of Bonnie Heady.

She's 41 and swollen with booze now. Her mother died when she was two, and Bonnie was raised by an aunt who is the wife of a respected Chicago physician. "Aunt Nelly" called on Bonnie in prison remembered her as "normal, happy, and carefree as a child."

Bonnie was getting better than average marks at Northwest Missouri State College when she fell in love with and married Ellis Heady of St. Joseph, Mo., a prominent stockyard commission merchant.

They were a pleasant couple the Headys, their neighbors in St. Joe reported. Mrs. Heady was slim, vivacious, well-dressed, and civil minded.

Now back to Hall, a man she was soon to meet and whose slovenly woman she became.

Hall attacked the $100,000 estate his mother left him (she died during the war) with the zeal of the Marines attacking an enemy beach. He converted everything into cash, and spent the cash as fast as he could convert.

Apparently he paused briefly in his headlong flight when he married a Pleasanton divorcee. He invested in a crop-dusting venture, then in whisky stores and other undertakings. Everything failed. When his money ran out two years ago his wife divorced him. Carl Hall promptly became a criminal.

As for Mrs. Heady, she was divorced from her husband a year ago for "general indignities."

Thereafter or just before, she became a lush. Her set no longer saw her, but an ever-increasing stream of friends, male, beat a path to her door—from which she seldom emerged.

On one of her rare trips from her house she and Hall met at a tavern. He promptly moved in.

By that time Hall was a tagged criminal. Late in 1951 he had held up eight cab-drivers for a total swag of $33. Caught, he was given a five-year term but was paroled after a year and three months.

As the two, living together, drank up such money as Heady had left behind him after the divorce, Hall and Bonnie were driven to ways of finding more. We are now hearing about the horrifying way they chose. But I wonder if anybody, even these now thoroughly bestial persons, can explain "why?"

Postmaster Warns 'Jokers'

Cleveland Office Cracks Down on Those Tossing Cats, Etc., in Mailboxes

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Postmaster Joseph Prosser is fed up with some of the "jokers" who have been mailing cats, dogs, cigar butts, report cards and billfolds and intends to crack down.

There are 1,000 mailboxes here, and annually the department is flooded with items that bear no resemblance to letters or packages.

"From now on," Prosser said, "We will keep a closer scrutiny on our mail collection boxes. Any jokers caught mailing dogs, cats and lighted cigar and cigarette butts will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Prosser reported on a recent incident where an unwary postman opened a letter box and found a frantic tomcat inside.

"When our man came along and opened the box to get the mail, the cat leaped out and nearly scared him to death," Prosser said.

"That was bad enough, but the cat had ruined about all the mail in the box. Why, the last mailman saw of him, he was racing down the street with several letters stuck to his claws."

He was particularly bitter about those who can't pass a mailbox without tossing a lighted cigarette or cigar into the slot.

"That's destroying government property," he pointed out, "punishable by up to $500 fine, plus costs and maybe one year in prison."

Pickpockets like to use mailboxes to get rid of the billfolds and purses they have emptied.

"The last time the Cleveland Indians played at home, we picked up more than 100 stolen billfolds from our downtown boxes and returned nearly all of them," Prosser said.

The claims and inquiries department makes these returns for a charge of from 10 to 50 cents, depending on the weight.

With school underway once again, the mail boxes will be receiving grade cards until next summer. Prosser can't understand how children think getting rid of the cards is going to prevent their parents from finding out their marks. The cards are returned, he said.

Using His Bullhead

GRAND RAPIDS UP — The secret of Frank Miller's consistent fisherman's luck has been revealed by his wife. Mrs. Miller says her husband keeps a tiny bullhead in a water-filled jar at their Cheshire Township home. When the fish moves around the jar during the day, the Millers say it's a sure sign that fishing is good on the lakes.

Text of Truman's Address in Espionage Controversy

Ex-President Defends Action During FBI Spy Investigation

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The text of former President Truman's address last night:

On Nov. 6 the new administration, through Herbert Brownell Jr., a former chairman of the Republican National Committee now serving as attorney general, made a personal attack on me. Brownell made this attack in the course of a political speech before a luncheon club in Chicago. This attack is not in parallel, I believe, in the history of our country. I have been accused, in effect, of knowingly betraying the security of the United States. This charge is, of course, a falsehood, and the man who made it had every reason to know it is a falsehood.

On Tuesday, Nov. 10, as a direct result of this charge I was served with a subpoena of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which called on me to appear before it to be questioned about my conduct of the office of the President of the United States.

Explains Refusal to Testify

First, I would like to tell you, the people of America, why I declined to appear before that committee. On the surface, it might seem to be an easy thing, and smart politics, for Harry Truman, now a private citizen of Independence, Mo., to use that committee as a forum to answer the scurrilous charges which have been made against me. Many people urged me to do that. It was an attractive suggestion and appealed to me. But if I'd done it, I would have been a party with the committee to an action which would have undermined the constitutional position of the office of President of the United States.

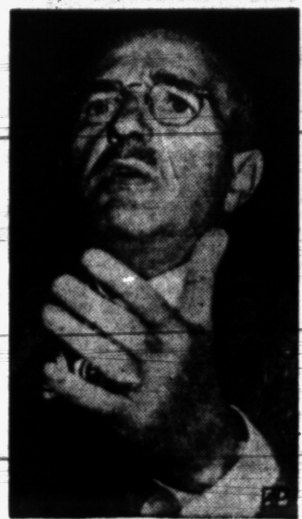

The separation and balance of powers between the three independent branches of government is fundamental in our constitutional form of government.

A Congressional committee may not compel the attendance of the President of the United States, while he is in office, to inquire into matters pertaining to the performance of his official duties. If the constitutional principle were otherwise, the office of President would not be independent.

It is just as important to the independence of the executive that the actions of the President should not be subjected to questioning by Congress after he had completed his term of office as he should not be questioned while he is serving as President. In either case, the office of President would be dominated by the Congress and the presidency might become a mere appendage of Congress.

Feels Still Bound by Official Oath

When I became President, I took an oath to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the

HARRY DEXTER WHITE

United States. I am still bound by that oath and will be as long as I live. While I was in office, I lived up to that oath—and I believe I passed on to my successor the great office of President of the United States with its integrity and independence unimpaired.

Now that I have laid down the heavy burdens of that office I do not propose to take any steps which would violate that oath or which would in any way lead to encroachments on the independence of that office.

So much for the committee. Now for the charge which Mr. Brownell made in his political speech—a charge that I knowingly betrayed the security of the United States. Let me read you what Mr. Brownell said:

He said: "Harry Dexter White was known to be a Communist spy by the very people who appointed him to the most sensitive and important position he ever held in the government service." There can't be any doubt that Mr. Brownell was talking about me. Now, let me talk about Mr. Brownell and the phony charge that he has made.

His charge is false, and Mr. Brownell must have known it was false at the very time he was making it.

Mr. Brownell has made a great show of detail as to the dates on which particular FBI reports were forwarded by the Department of Justice and the manner in which they were handled.

As Mr. Brownell should have learned by this time, a great many documents pass daily through the White House. It is not possible to recall eight years later the precise day or the precise document which may have been brought to my attention.

In fact, when Mr. Brownell made his charges, I was unable to remember the precise documents to which he referred. Just as President Eisenhower was unable to remember that he had met with Harry Dexter White and Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau in 1944.

But, of course, I knew of the intensive investigation of Communist activity which was then going on and which involved many persons. As a matter of fact, this investigation was one of the many important steps which my administration took, beginning in 1945, to render the Communist conspiracy ineffective in this country. These steps included the successful prosecution and imprisonment of the top Communist leaders in the United States.

I believe that the American people are entitled to know the facts, not just the misleading statements that this present administration finds it politically expedient to make.

I have had my files examined and have consulted with some of my colleagues who worked with me on this matter during my term in office. The facts, as I have determined them in this manner, are these:

In late 1945, the FBI was engaged in a secret investigation of subversive activities in this country. In this investigation, the FBI was making an intensive effort to verify and corroborate certain accusations of espionage made by confidential informants.

A lengthy FBI report on this matter was sent to the White House in December 1945. The report contained many names of persons in and out of government service concerning whom there were then unverified accusations. Among the many names mentioned, I now find, was that of Harry Dexter White, who had been in the Treasury Department for many years and who was at that time an assistant secretary of the treasury.

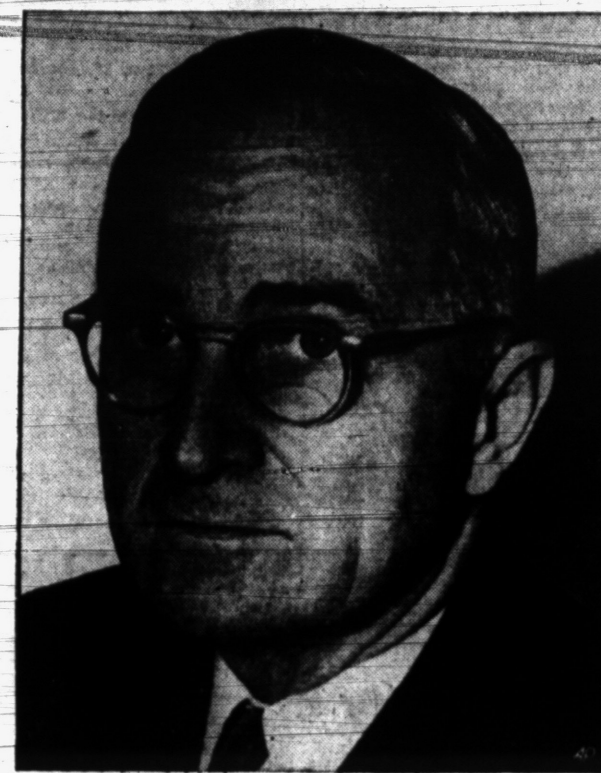

Recalls First Report in February, 1946

As best I can now determine, I first learned of the accusations against White early in February 1946, when an FBI report specifically discussing activities of Harry Dexter White was brought to my attention. The February report was delivered to me by General Vaughan and was also brought to my personal attention by Secretary of State Byrnes.

This report showed that serious accusations had been made against White, but it pointed out that it would be practically impossible to prove those charges with the evidence then at hand.

Immediately after the matter was brought to my attention, I sent a copy of the report, with a covering note signed by me, to White's immediate superior, the secretary of the treasury, Fred Vinson. In this note dated February 6, 1946, I said:

"I am enclosing you a memorandum from the secretary of state, which came to me this morning. I suggest that you read it, keeping it entirely confidential and then, I think, you, the secretary of state, and myself should discuss the situation and find out what we should do."

Later—I believe it was the same day—I discussed the matter with Secretary Vinson as well as with Secretary of State Byrnes.

As I have mentioned, Mr. White was at that time an assistant secretary of the treasury. It had been planned for some time that he should be transferred from that position to be the United States member on the board of executive directors of the International Monetary Fund, a new international organization then in the process of being set up. His appointment had been sent to the Senate for this new position, and it was confirmed on February 6, shortly before I saw secretaries Byrnes and Vinson. In this situation, I requested Secretary Vinson to consult with the appropriate officials of the government and come back to me with a recommendation.

Secretary of the Treasury Vinson consulted with Attorney General Tom Clark and other government officials. When the results of these consultations were reported to me, the conclusion was reached that the appointment should be allowed to take its normal course. The final responsibility for this decision, of course, was mine.

The reason for this decision was that the charges which had been made to the FBI against Mr. White also involved many other persons. Hundreds of FBI agents were engaged in investigating the charges against all those who had been accused. It was of great importance to the nation that this investigation be continued in order to prove or disprove these charges and to determine if still other persons were implicated.

Any unusual action with respect to Mr. White's appointment might well have alerted all the persons involved to the fact that the investigation was under way and thus endanger the success of the investigation.

Claims Authority of White Curtailed

It was originally planned that the United States would support Mr. White for election to the top managerial position in the International Monetary Fund—that of managing director—a more important post than that of a member of the board of executive directors. But following the receipt of the FBI report and the consultations with members of my cabinet, it was decided that he would be limited to membership on the board of directors.

With his duties thus restricted, he would be subject to the supervision of the secretary of the treasury, and his position would be less important and much less sensitive—if it were sensitive at all—than the position then held by him as assistant secretary of the treasury.

Tonight, I want the American people to understand that the course we took protected the public interest and security and, at the same time, permitted the intensive FBI investigation then in progress to go forward. No other course could have served both of these purposes.

The appointment was accordingly allowed to go through, and the investigation continued. In 1947, the results of the investigation up to that time were laid before a federal grand jury in New York by the Department of Justice. Mr. White was one of the witnesses called before that grand jury. The grand jury did not indict Mr. White, although it was the same grand jury which indicted the 12 top Communists in the country. All this was done in the American way, by due process of law.

In the meantime, Mr. White, in April 1947, resigned his office referring to reasons of health.

Although my recent off-hand comment concerning his resignation was in error, the fact that he was separated from government service promptly when the necessity for security concerning the intensive investigation by the FBI came to an end.

He died in 1948 after appearing before the Un-American Activities Committee of the House.

Thus, what this new administration has attempted becomes clear. It has distorted a decision that enabled an investigation of great importance to proceed—as it did—unembarrassed, and with ample safeguard to the public interest, into an alleged harboring of Communists. This is shameful demagoguery.

It is worse than that. Herbert Brownell Jr., the attorney general of the United States—the highest legal officer in our government—has degraded the highest function of government—the administration of justice—into cheap political trickery.

Asserts Brownell Deceived His Chief

The attorney general of the United States has not only degraded his office, he has deceived his chief as to what he proposed to do. And in saying, "Harry Dexter White was known to be a Communist spy by the very people who appointed him" he lied to the American people. In backing away from his charge with the mealy-mouthed statement that he had no intention of impugning the loyalty of any high official of the prior administration, he lied to the American people again.

If this were a matter which merely involved the name and reputation of Harry Truman, private citizen of Independence, Mo., I would not be as concerned as I am. I can take care of myself.

I believe that the American people know me well enough from my service as captain of Battery D in the World War I to my service as President of the United States to know that I have always acted with the best interests of my country at heart.

But Mr. Brownell knows that, in this matter, while the final decision was mine, I relied on my principal advisers. One of them—one of those most concerned—was the then secretary of the treasury, and later the beloved chief justice of the United States, Fred M. Vinson, who is now dead. No man I ever knew was a more patriotic American. The wild imputations of disloyalty which Mr. Brownell has made were directed not only against me, but also against him. I do not mind too much for myself or for those members of my cabinet who are alive, for we are able to defend ourselves. But I deeply resent these cowardly insinuations against one who is dead.

There is one aspect of this affair that should be clear to everyone. That is the obvious political motivation of this attack on me. In launching this attack, the Republican attorney general worked hand in glove with the Republican National Committee. The manner and the timing of what has been done make it perfectly clear that the powers of the attorney general have been prostituted for hopes of political gain. No election is worth so much.

The whole history of our Republic does not reveal any other such attack as this by a new administration on an out-going President. Up to now, no administration has ever accused a former President of disloyalty.

In Communist countries, it is the practice when a new government comes to power to accuse outgoing officials of treason, to frame public trials for them, and to degrade and prosecute the key officials of the previous government. That is the way the Communists, whose only God is power, run their public affairs. It is not the way Americans behave.

At least, it has not been so in the past.

Says Administration Abandons Fair Play

This tragic debasement of high office by the attorney general has had enough, but the thing I wish most to get over to you tonight is that this incident is only the most publicized and the most recent example of the decay of the basic principles of freedom now taking place in this country.

It is now evident that the present administration has fully embraced, for political advantage, McCarthyism. I am not referring to the Senator from Wisconsin—he is only important in that his name

Ferguson Claims Truman Avoided White Questions

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich.) says former President Truman in his radio-television talk last night failed to answer several questions about the Harry Dexter White affair.

Ferguson appeared on the CBS "Chronoscope" television show immediately after the former President spoke.

The Michigan senator said Truman left people to draw the conclusion he used the Senate "to create a decoy" to get evidence against subversives. Ferguson also declared that Truman carefully refrained from mentioning the name of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

In his address, Truman dealt with charges by Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. that he promoted the late treasury aide, White, after the FBI reported to the White House that White was a Communist spy. The former President claimed in his talk that White was kept in a government job to avoid interfering with an FBI investigation.

Ferguson said Truman should not have allowed the Senate to confirm the appointment of White as U.S. executive director of the International Monetary Fund without letting that body know of unfavorable FBI reports on White. Truman received one report the day White was confirmed.

The senator said Truman could have "sent the name back to the Senate and then a reconsideration could have taken place because the rule says that it's for two days that they can make such a reconsideration. It could have been withdrawn."

Saying Truman indicated Congress was not told of the FBI report, Ferguson asserted that Truman "leaves the people to draw the conclusion that he used the senate of the United States in order to create a decoy . . . so that they (the FBI) could get a certain amount of evidence . . ."

Ferguson said he is concerned with "the fact that he (Truman) doesn't name J. Edgar Hoover although it was leaked out that Hoover had a specific agreement on this matter" and that "Hoover had planned this to use this man as a decoy." Ferguson later said Truman allowed the leak.

The New York Herald Tribune said today that Hoover refuses to accept any responsibility for former President Truman's decision to retain Harry Dexter White in the government after an unfavorable FBI report on him.

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper by Homer Bigart said: Even though Hoover was present at a luncheon conference on the issue, it was learned that he believes he was there simply as an observer.

Hoover's boss, Tom C. Clark—then attorney general and now a Supreme Court justice—and the late Fred M. Vinson agreed with Truman at the conference that the proper course was to let White take an International Monetary Fund post.

Vinson, who later became chief justice, was at the conference because as secretary of the treasury he had proposed White as executive director for the United States of the monetary fund.

Truman "doesn't combine Hoover with any of his people that he consulted," Ferguson asserted. "He leaves that to the imagination, that the FBI was to investigate."

Ferguson said the former President failed to answer these questions, among others:

Why did Truman, in view of the FBI reports, "continually refer to the investigations conducted by the Senate and House committees of those espionage risks and White as a Red herring?"

Why did the former President write White letters of praise on his appointment to the monetary fund post and later upon his resignation?

Ferguson also said that he knows of nothing that would indicate the Brownell charge was aimed for political effect.

The senator also said the White case was not isolated and mentioned Frank Coe, who resigned under fire last December as secretary of the International Monetary Fund.

Ferguson said he wanted to know why Coe was allowed to remain in the monetary post. The senator noted that Coe, in a Senate committee investigation, "refused to testify as to whether or not he was a Communist, whether he was engaged in Communist activities or subversion and was very similar in his answers to what they accused White of."

40-Year Railroad Veteran Starts 'Long Vacation'

LAST RUN—Harry L. Bashore of 3170 Dixie Highway, foreman for Grand Trunk Western Railroad, receives retirement congratulations from C. E. Stark, 273 Briscoe St., Grand Trunk yard manager, after completing last day of work. Bashore joined Grand Trunk Dec. 8, 1922. He says he'll be able to keep busy gardening and fishing.

Harry L. Bashore spent his 65th birthday yesterday hauling his boat out of the water and stowing away his fishing tackle for another year—still not convinced that he really was retired after 31 years with Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

Bashore, who lives at 3170 Dixie Highway on Loon Lake with his wife, said he felt like he was "on vacation" since he retired Saturday.

"But it's going to be a long one," he added.

A yard foreman for the past 25 years, Bashore said he is looking forward to winter.

"I'm just going to sit inside and look out at all that snow. I've been outdoors in enough of it for a long time."

Next spring the Bashores are planning a trip to the west coast.

Bashore has spent 40 years railroading working nine years for the Baltimore and Ohio at Willard, Ohio, before coming to Pontiac.

During World War I he served in France and Germany with the 3rd Infantry Division.

Bashore says there have been a lot of changes since he got his first railroad job.

"Today's engines are more powerful and haul a lot more cars than when I first started," he said. "And even the cars are getting bigger."

Santa's Helpers Washington Jacks Start Christmas Tree Harvest

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Christmas still is more than a month away, but Santa's helpers already are swarming over western Washington timberlands.

Axes in hand, they are harvesting an important symbol of the season—the Christmas tree.

Between now and Dec. 25, millions of Christmas trees will be cut, baled or packed, and shipped to every state, Hawaii, Alaska and numerous foreign countries.

Christmas trees have become big business in Washington state. Last year approximately 2 million trees were exported and an additional half million or more were sold within the state.

Most of the evergreens come from a half dozen large operators who harvest saplings from their own or leased land. Many smaller operators buy their trees from the state or from farmers who raise them on woodlots.

Asst. Forestry Supervisor Donald R. Hopkins estimates several thousand persons work full or part-time in Washington in some phase of the Christmas tree industry. They range from the farmer with 100 trees to one operator who has 28,800 acres of logged-over land in Mason County, the center of the Christmas tree activity.

"Strangely enough," Hopkins said, "Christmas trees grow best on poor land which will not grow satisfactory trees for lumber."

Mature evergreens, he said, "throw off more seed when they are growing on good soil, thus producing more small trees."

Ten to 20 years after the seed fall the new evergreens are Christmas tree size, ready to be cut and shipped.

On Christmas tree farms the trees' lower limbs are pruned to make upper branches grow thick and full. The trees are also thinned for more perfect proportion. Crowding causes lopsided trees, unsuitable for holiday decorations. Harvesting begins in late October. Trees are selected, cut and

Television Catches Fire During Truman Speech

DES MOINES (AP)—In the midst of former President Truman's fiery reply to charges he kept an alleged Communist spy in the government, the television set at the Winton Hoskins home here burst into flames last night.

Mrs. Hoskins, a supporter of the former President, said she was sorry to see the month-old set destroyed, "but it was a good speech."

Ask Supreme Court to Ban Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has been asked to strike down at once segregation of Negro and white pupils in public schools as being in violation of two amendments to the Constitution.

A brief filed yesterday by attorneys for Negro parents in four states—Kansas, South Carolina, Virginia and Delaware—declared the 14th Amendment had the broad purpose of "obliteration of race and color distinctions."

A brief in a case applying to the District of Columbia said segregation violates the Fifth Amendment, which says no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. The briefs were filed as a preliminary to reargument, scheduled to begin Dec. 7, on five segregation cases. The expectation is that any decision by the court will affect other states which require complete or partial segregation of the races in public schools.

Long Distance Call Fails to Disrupt Truman Talk

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A hush fell over the studio. Technicians made their final adjustments. It was a scant two minutes before Harry Truman was to begin his nationwide television and radio speech on the Harry Dexter White case last night.

Over the public address system came the voice of the studio, receptionist:

"Mr. Truman, telephone—long distance."

The former President did not answer.

Dean Reverses Stand on Talks

Tells Reds U.S. Would Invite Neutrals Under Certain Conditions

PANNUNJOM (AP)—U. S. envoy Arthur Dean told the Communists today the United States would be willing to invite neutral nations to the Korean peace conference under certain conditions—a sharp reversal of his earlier stand.

At the same time, Dean rejected as "totally unacceptable" a Communist proposal to hold the conference at Pannunjom with Russia, India, Burma, Indonesia and Pakistan attending as nonvoting observers.

The U. N. delegate to preliminary peace talks told the Reds the United States would ask its allies to consider asking neutrals to the full-dress conference if:

1. The belligerent nations reach agreement on the Korean question and want to move on the broad Asian questions.

2. The conference bogs down and it appears that progress on Korean problems is impossible.

The talks resume tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Communist interviews with Chinese and Korean war prisoners who refused to go home were called off again today when the Reds called for POWs skipped by persuaders yesterday.

And the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission called off interviews for tomorrow when the Reds had not filed a request for prisoners from a new compound by the 10 a. m. deadline.

U. N. and Communist proposals for setting up the Korean peace conference came after three weeks of maneuvering and Dean told newsmen afterward, "This is going to be a long horse trade."

The Red proposal closely follows previous Communist plans, but Dean's move departed sharply from his stand that he had authority only to exchange views on composition of the peace talks.

Dean said the United States is ready to "commit itself" and recommend to South Korea and the 15 other U. N. nations which fought in Korea that neutral nations be invited to the conference after a "completely satisfactory agreement" is reached on Korea or if developments "make it appear desirable" that they take part.

The U. S. envoy emphasized, however, that he could make no guarantees as to how the allies would react if the United States recommends the seating of neutrals.

The Red proposal to hold the peace talks at Pannunjom was rejected by Dean minutes after it was advanced.

Hears Security Lax at GE Plant

McCarthy Interested in Firm Because of Big U. S. Contracts

NEW YORK (U-P)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) says a former General Electric Co. security officer has testified that security at the main GE plant was almost non-existent for years but "is somewhat improved now."

McCarthy, head of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, resumed closed sessions here yesterday on security in GE plants and on alleged subversion at the Army Signal Corps radar laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N.J.

Another closed session is scheduled here today, and then the senator will move on to Boston for a closed hearing tomorrow in connection with the GE plant at Lynn, Mass.

The senator held hearings last week at Albany, N.Y., concerning the main GE plant at Schenectady, N.Y. He says his interest in the big electrical firm stems from the heavy government contracts it holds.

McCarthy said a witness, whom he identified only as a former GE security officer at Schenectady, gave this testimony yesterday:

GE officials "were always willing to put out fires when they were exposed, but they had no conception of the importance of giving security information which would prevent fires."

Individual security officers at the Schenectady plant "were doing as well as they could, what with the lack of authority given them."

McCarthy said the subcommittee also took testimony yesterday from an unidentified former employee of Ft. Monmouth. He said this witness refused to say whether he ever was a spy.

Riveter Stabs 5-Year-Old Son

Police Quote Father as Admitting Slaying Boy After Drinking

DETROIT (U-P)—A 230-pound riveter was held for investigation of murder today in the fatal stabbing of his 5-year-old son.

"I just stabbed him, that's all," police quoted Homer Harrison, 22. "I don't know why I did it, I'm sorry."

Harrison's wife, Helen, 22, said she returned to their downtown apartment from her drug store job Monday night and found her husband watching television.

"Come with me, dear, I'll show you something," she quoted him. Mrs. Harrison said her husband then led her into a bedroom where their son lay dead with a stab wound in his chest. Nearby was a blood-stained steak knife.

Mrs. Harrison said she coaxed her husband out of the apartment when he suggested they kill themselves by turning on the gas jets. Police were called when the couple argued in a hotel lobby.

The wife told police of the stabbing and led them to the apartment. Harrison, who works at a Detroit airplane parts plant, told police he had been drinking on the job Monday.

Flower Picking Grave Offense by Americans

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (U-P)—There will be no more flower picking by Americans in Greenland—the Danes don't like it.

A Greenland Department source disclosed today that the "unauthorized American activity outside the air bases in Greenland," discussed with U. S. Gen. Charles T. Myers when he was in Copenhagen last week, actually concerned Arctic flower picking.

The Greenland Department had reports that American scientists, visiting the Thule Air Base, had been strolling outside the base area picking flowers.

This is against regulations barring foreigners from travel in Greenland or making scientific investigations without permission in advance by a special Danish commission.

Gen. Myers, as commander of American air bases in Greenland, was told about the flower picking and promised that it would not happen again.

Hospital Hosts Future M.D.s

75 UM, Wayne Medical Students Attend Dinner at Pontiac General

About 75 senior medical students from the University of Michigan and Wayne University scheduled to graduate this June were guests of Pontiac General Hospital at an intern recruitment dinner last night.

The hospital has approval for eight new interns to be added in 1954, according to Miss Lauretta F. Paul, hospital director. The dinner was held to interest graduates in the Pontiac General program, she explained.

The students toured the hospital and were acquainted with its procedure. Pontiac General operates under the National Intern Matching Program Inc. Hospitals list interns most acceptable to them, and interns choose preferred medical institutions.

Lists are then matched, she stated, and placing done as nearly to hospital and intern choice as possible. Interns spend a year at Pontiac General, rotating from job to job. "When they complete the year they are eligible to practice medicine," said Miss Paul.

Ability Alone to Determine Big 10 Bowl Choice

Munn Repeats His Dislike for Single Platoon

Lauds Michigan Line, Cites Own Defense in Saturday Play

By ROBERT E. VOGES
EAST LANSING (UP)—Some of the stadium fans and television viewers complained over the weekend that the Michigan-Michigan State football game here Saturday was a dull one.

Although not entering this complaint directly, MSC Coach Biggie Munn had some comments to make on parallel subjects afterwards.

"I wouldn't say the game was dull," Munn said, "although we were a little sharper against Ohio State."

"People are accustomed to the flashy, race horse style of football," Munn said. "You just don't get it under the single platoon system."

"You can't expect as much when the boys have to go both ways. That's where the high schools and the professionals have the edge on us."

Under the new system, Munn declared, fewer boys are getting to play. A lot more of them are getting hurt and the game is losing a lot of its sparkle.

"I still like the football we played under the old system," he said.

"Michigan played a great defensive game," Munn said further of the 14-6 MSC victory. "The Michigan line was awfully tough and they were driving us back. We looked pretty good on defense ourselves, though."

With Michigan held to 158 yards on Saturday, the Michigan State defense currently is the best in the Big Ten. Spartans have allowed opponents only 1,597 yards so far this season.

On the offense this year, Michigan State attack is way behind the past three seasons—bearing out Munn's contention that the game has lost a lot of its razz-dazzle. Michigan State has ground out 2,550 yards in eight games. This compares with 3,227 yards in the 1950 season, 3,627 in the 1951 season and 3,858 yards last year.

Racing Writers Ask Discipline

Scribes Ask USTA for Action Against Miller for Alleged Attack

NEW YORK (UP)—The U. S. Harness Writers Association today announced a resolution urging disciplinary action by the U. S. Trotting Association against Del Miller, a leading harness driver and trainer, for an alleged attack upon a harness writer.

Writers said Miller "did commit an unwarranted physical attack upon the person of Jack Schultz, a member of the U. S. Harness Writers Association" in the lobby of a hotel at Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 12.

Schultz is a member of the staff of Newsday at Garden City, N. Y. He was elected vice president of the Harness Writers at their annual meeting here yesterday.

Miller won the 1950 Hambletonian with Lusty Song. He was not immediately available for comment.

Globetrotters Five Here for Benefit Tilt Sunday

World-famous Harlem Globetrotters will bring their bag of basketball tricks to Pontiac Sunday night, when the barnstorming sensation meet Shaw's Jewellers in a benefit game in Pontiac High School's big gymnasium.

The exhibition, sponsored by the Muses Club of St. George's Greek Orthodox Church, is scheduled for 8 p.m. A preliminary game, at 7 o'clock, will match St. George's team against a group of University of Michigan students.

Jewellers, comprised of the cream of the area's basketball talent, probably will be as good an amateur club as any the 'Trotters will encounter.

Shaw lineup includes former prep stars Bob McManus (St. Fred), Pete Palshan (Ortonville), Bill Tyms (PHS), Harry and Don Lauder (Ferndale), Skeeter Laidlaw, Mike and Cecil Hanes (Keego); veteran city league performers Hubert Price and Bob Seay; Keego coach Sam Menard and Avondale coach Bob Eldridge; ex-University of Kentucky cager Garland Townes; and Ed Collins.

Leading the Globetrotters will be captain William "Pop" Gates, former star pro player with the New York Rens, Tri-City Blackhawks, Washington Bears and other teams.

Tickets for the game are on sale at Calbi's, Griff's Grill and a number of other establishments in and around Pontiac.

UM Discovers 2nd String

By JOHN F. MAYHEW
ANN ARBOR, (UP)—The plight of a second stringer is not very rewarding. But Michigan has four of them that are earning recognition.

Halfbacks Ed Hickey and Dan Cline, fullback Bob Hurley and quarterback Duncan McDonald have contributed increasingly to Michigan's football efforts. Losses can't fairly be charged to them. When called upon, they gave and gave well.

Hickey has been called on to carry the ball 30 times and has averaged 4.1 yards per play this season. Cline made a 3.0 average on his 15 tries and Hurley carried 39 times for a 5.8 average.

McDonald, in spot passing assignments, completed 13 of 39 tries for 266 yards and four of Michigan's six touchdowns in Western Conference games.

Hurley was asked to pass four times. He completed all four for 30 yards.

Cline completed 5 of 11 for 90 yards. Their best showing came during long stretches of duty against Michigan State.

Coach Bennie Oosterbaan's switch from the regulars to his second-stringers showed no visible dip in Michigan's calibre of play. In fact, only quarterback Lou Baldacci was a regular in the backfield that scored one touchdown and came close to another.

Despite the general dejection in the Michigan camp over losing the last three league games, Oosterbaan can go into the finale against Ohio State with assurance that he has good second-string depth.

And in some places, he may even have good third-string depth. A case in point is Tommy Hendricks, Detroit halfback who appears to be the fastest straight-away runner on the Michigan squad. Hendricks has had only three ball carrying chances this season. He gained 32 yards and gave Michigan some bright hopes for the future.

Oosterbaan held the usual light Monday workout yesterday, and kept a close eye on five cripples. None had any serious injuries.

Michigan State ended its conference season with a 14-6 victory over Michigan Saturday — their fifth Big Ten win against one loss, to Purdue. They also have two nonconference triumphs.

The Michigan win assured the Spartans of at least a tie for the conference championship. However, they meet Marquette in their winup game Saturday and a loss to the improving Hittoppers undoubtedly would effect the directors' choice, if they have to vote.

Wisconsin and Illinois, by winning their respective games with Minnesota and Northwestern Saturday, can tie with MSC for the Big Ten crown.

However, Wisconsin made the Pasadena trip last New Year's and is ineligible to return. This leaves Illinois as the other possible nominee, if it gets past Northwestern.

Illini have won six games overall and have been tied by Nebraska and beaten by Wisconsin.

Thus, on the basis of records—conceding Michigan State and Illinois victories Saturday—Spartans appear to have the inside track for the Rose Bowl bid.

And the athletic directors indicated performance would be their prime consideration in the event a vote is taken.

NEW YORK (UP)—John Kelley of Boston University is a youngster who is hoping to take a chance and that's why he holds the IC4A cross-country championship today.

When all the other competitors were trying to catch a second breath late in the five-mile run through the Van Cortlandt Park woods yesterday, the 125-pound Kelley decided to lay on the pace.

That was the grind for him and his clocking of 24:51.7 was the second fastest in the history of the event.

Michigan State won the team title again with a total of 82 points to 88 for Pittsburgh and Penn State. Lyle Garbe paced the Spartans with an 11th place finish.

Wells Slated to Rejoin Spartans in Today's Drill

EAST LANSING (UP)—First string halfback Billy Wells, who missed the Michigan game because of pneumonia, was scheduled to rejoin Michigan State's football team at practice today.

Wells, one of MSC's backfield stars this year, was released from the hospital Monday noon and watched Monday's practice as a spectator. He said he hopes to be ready to play in the Marquette game Saturday.

Steve Sebo, Michigan State backfield coach, lettered three years each in football and baseball while a Spartan undergraduate.

"Ed's plenty burned up about losing out on the voting for the sportsmanship award!"

Howe Remains in NHL Lead

MONTREAL (UP)—Gordie Howe of Detroit collected two goals and four assists during the week to run his first place total to 20 points in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Official league statistics released today show the Detroit production line of Howe, Ted Lindsay and Dutch Reibel still running 1-2-3 in the scoring lists. Lindsay has 18 points and Reibel 17.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of the league leading Montreal Canadiens is first among the goal scorers with nine while Howe is first in assists with 14.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit paces the goaltenders—with an average of 1.44 allowed closely by Harry Lumley of Toronto with 1.59.

Name Comics Rules-Makers, Declares Allen

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP)—Kansas coach Phog Allen, whose opinion of the NCAA basketball rules committee is no secret, proposed today that a panel of Hollywood comedians take over rule-making for the sport.

The eight members of the committee, Allen said, should be replaced by Abbott and Costello, Jerry Lewis, Ed Wynn, Bob Hope and the three Marx Brothers—with Groucho Marx as chairman.

"This celebrated group, after a hurried huddle, could come up with no more amusing ambiguities and paradoxes; no more discrimination and ridiculous suggestions than are incorporated in our present basketball rules," said Allen.

It's Time Out!

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (UP)—Wake Forest Coach Tom Rogers regards his tackle, Bob Bartholomew, as "one of the best I've ever seen."

Says Rogers, a former Duke end, "I played against several All-Americans but I rate Bartholomew right at the top."

A rugged performer, Bartholomew has played nearly 90 minutes in several games this season. He's a sophomore, weighs 215 and hails from Rocky Mount, N. C.

Trabert, Seixos Win

SYDNER (UP)—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixos, America's hopes to recapture the Davis Cup, swept into the semi-finals of the New South Wales tennis championships today.

Seixos overwhelmed Rex Hartwig 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 but Trabert had to go five sets in the 100 degrees plus heat to subdue Mervyn Rose 6-4, 8-6, 3-6, 1-6, 6-4 and gain the round of four.

Pike are little, if any, inferior to musky as fighters, except they do not leap quite so spectacularly.

Athletic Heads Say Vote to Be for Best Squad

State Appears to Have Inside Track, If It Wins on Saturday

By TOM BRANAGAN
CHICAGO (UP)—A sounding of Big Ten athletic directors indicates they will judge Michigan State's fitness as a Rose Bowl representative on the basis of football ability alone.

An Associated Press survey of the conference's directors gives this general reaction.

It had been thought at least two factors might work against the Spartans' selection, should the athletic chiefs of the various schools be forced—as seems likely—to choose between them and Illinois.

One item involved the present probationary status of the Michigan school because of an outside booster-supported fund—the Spartan Foundation—that formerly aided some athletes. The other had to do with MSC's status as a first-year Big Ten competitor.

However, the athletic director's consensus was that their votes will be cast strictly for the football team they think is the Big Ten's best and can make the finest showing against the Pacific Coast conference team at Pasadena New Year's Day.

Michigan State ended its conference season with a 14-6 victory over Michigan Saturday — their fifth Big Ten win against one loss, to Purdue. They also have two nonconference triumphs.

The Michigan win assured the Spartans of at least a tie for the conference championship. However, they meet Marquette in their winup game Saturday and a loss to the improving Hittoppers undoubtedly would effect the directors' choice, if they have to vote.

American, British Golf Associations Agree on Minor Revisions of Rules

NEW YORK (UP)—The United States Golf Assn. and the British Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, the world's principal ruling bodies of golf, have agreed on a number of minor revisions of the rules of golf, to become effective Jan. 1, 1954.

They also have agreed that there will be no further changes in the rules until representatives of the two bodies have had personal conferences.

The principal changes concern hazards and checking scores in stroke play—the latter designed to help eliminate the occasional mix-ups that occur when a player signs a card on which a mistake has been made.

The change makes it obligatory for the player to "ensure that the marker has signed the card." The rule now calls for the marker to sign the card and hand it to the competitor and for the competitor to check his score, sign it and turn it in. But the competitor, who is solely responsible for the correctness of the score, has not been required to accept the responsibility for the failure of the marker to sign.

In regard to hazards, henceforth a ball may not be lifted for identification in a hazard although if a ball is covered by sand, fallen leaves, etc., the player may remove enough to enable him to see the top of the ball. But if he plays the wrong ball from a hazard, there is no penalty.

A clause added to rule 22—dropping and placing the ball—provides that "A ball lifted in a hazard must be dropped and come to rest in that hazard unless otherwise provided for in the rules."

Other principal amendments provide that strokes played with a wrong ball do not count in the player's score; that combining stroke play and match play is prohibited (instead of saying it "should not be permitted"); and that practice on a course before starting stroke play is definitely prohibited on the day that play begins.

'Production' Scores Cut in Pro Contests

NEW YORK (UP)—Professional basketball has gone on the defensive this season. National Basketball Assn. statistics released today show the nine club league has averaged 75 points a game for each team in the first 35 games this year. At the same point a year ago the league was averaging 83.5 points a game.

Some of the names are familiar. They include Bob Dillinger who at one time was sold by the St. Louis Browns for $100,000 and four plays.

Buckeyes Mad OSU Claims 'Brushoff' by 'M' Ticket Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)—Coming to the Ohio State-Michigan football game here in 1954?

Well, if you are, prepare yourself to see it from the end zone, unless you're among a lucky 3,000 stretched from the 50-yard line to the goal line.

Ohio State is vowing to get even for what it considers discrimination and a brush-off, too, from the Wolverine ticket office.

Under Big Ten rules, the visiting club must be furnished 3,000 seats "within the playing field yard stripes," and that, says Ohio State, is exactly what it got—plus 13,000 seats in the end zone of Michigan's 97,000-capacity stadium for its routers at Saturday's Ann Arbor game.

Ohio State can't see where the game is likely to be a sellout, and, besides, it'd like to have a few more routers along the sidelines in any event.

George Staten, Ohio State ticket director, said he complained but got nowhere.

"Just wait," he said "until Michigan comes down here next year. They'll get the same treatment on the 3,000, and the rest of theirs are going to be in the south bleachers."

Under a caption, "Look what they did to us!" the Ohio State Journal printed in Monday's issue a diagram of the Ann Arbor stadium with the OSU section outlined in black.

Man Utilizes Fishing Rod to Bag 8-Point Buck

Wounded Deer Falls in River So 'Hunter' Hooks, Drowns It

WELLSTON, Mich. (UP)—Dewey Loomis bagged an 8-point, 200-pound deer yesterday with a fishing rod.

He was in a boat in Pine River when he heard a shot. A wounded deer came tumbling down a bluff, fell into the river and began to swim.

Loomis rowed after it, grabbed his rod, equipped with a 30-pound test line, and cast. The line tangled in the deer's antlers.

Loomis reeled the buck alongside and pushed its head under until it drowned, then loaded it in the boat and rowed home.

Students Run Gamut of Opinion on MSC Chance for Trip

By JOHN F. MAYHEW
ANN ARBOR (UP)—University of Michigan athletic authorities were non-committal today, but students ran the gamut of opinion on the question of Michigan State's chances to represent the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Athletic director Fritz Crisler and Prof. Ralph Aigler, Michigan's representative to the Western Conference, declined to comment on what the Spartans position might be if Illinois wins its last game and ties MSC for the Big Ten title.

"I'll cross that bridge when I come to it," said Crisler, who will cast Michigan's vote in the event of such a tie. He refused to comment on the weight MSC's probationary status might have in such a vote.

On the same subject, Aigler said "I don't want to say anything about that. It is a delicate matter."

The students were not so shy. "I think it (MSC's probation) would affect the vote," said Les Zane, a senior from Flint. "I don't think it should. But I think it will and that Illinois will win the vote."

Dillinger, Sisler, Bearden, Holloman in Minor Draft

NEW YORK (UP)—Major league ball clubs have received their Christmas bargain catalogs in the form of the minor league draft list.

For the next two weeks they will have a chance to decide whether any of the 1,500 players available at cut rate prices are worth a gamble.

Since all of the clubs now maintain elaborate scouting systems the quality of the merchandise is pretty well known in advance. Prices range from $15,000 for available players in the Pacific Coast League down to $2,000 for a Class D player.

Some of the names are familiar. They include Bob Dillinger who at one time was sold by the St. Louis Browns for $100,000 and four plays.

West Virginia Still in Running for Sugar Bowl

Classic's Boss Thinks Mountaineers Are Fine Team Despite Loss

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—West Virginia, tumbled from the ranks of major unbeaten football teams last Saturday, is still considered a likely prospect for the Sugar Bowl by the classic's general manager, Fred Digby.

Digby saw the Mountaineers lost their first game by a 20-14 score to South Carolina, but said West Virginia was "the biggest team physically I've seen this year with backs averaging over 200 pounds."

He told a New Orleans quarterbacks club meeting yesterday he thought West Virginia has a fine team despite the loss.

Texas Tech, the nation's highest scoring major team, was entered into the Sugar Bowl picture by Lloyd Glaudi, sports editor of the New Orleans Item.

Glaudi pointed out that Texas Tech represented a "colorful new face" with fresh new money for our town . . . and a top ranking challenger for an SEC (Southeastern Conference) club.

Glaudi said the Sugar Bowl could "do itself proud" by selecting Texas Tech.

Irwin Poche, president of the Sugar Bowl sponsoring Mid-Winter Sports Association, said Alabama, Auburn, Georgia Tech, Mississippi and Kentucky were among the SEC schools under consideration.

Commenting on West Virginia, Digby said it was his opinion that "Georgia Tech would have to be up to her game with Notre Dame to beat this West Virginia team."

Romeo Grid Banquet Is Slated Tonight

Guests will be varsity and reserve teams, coaches, cheerleaders, the homecoming queen and her court.

CASE—Operating V Grip.
It Begins Hook Action—We take you now to the first move of imparting hook spin (right to left turn) on the ball by using the "V" grip system prescribed by former match champion Jimmy Smith. To deliver a straight ball, the thumb was pointed ahead, straight on, through the swing to the follow-through.

Now the V, formed by the thumb and index finger, is opened simply by turning the thumb slightly to the left of ball center, as illustrated. Fingers move naturally a little to the right.

Important: No wrist turn. Maintain same hand position from time ball is pushed away to get it into swing until release. Thumb comes out of ball first, leaving third and little fingers to apply spin.

Deliver ball about 6 to 8 boards in from gutter. Aim at No. 3 pin, or at the pocket between 1-3 pin, depending on alley being either slow or slick. Don't hurry swing.

LONG GAIN FOR LIONS—Doak Walker, Lion halfback (37, right), makes a 45-yard gain before being hauled down by Clayton Tonnemaker, Green Bay center (left). Others in on play are: John Marinkovic, Packer end (83); Dick Wildung, Green Bay tackle (70). Action took place in 3rd period of NFL game at Green Bay Sunday.

Putting Trouble Drops Hogan to 3rd; Sailor Takes 2nd

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—Marty Furgol, a professional from Lemont, Ill., today was the winner of the $3,500 Tanagerik Open golf tourney with a 54-hole total of 206, three strokes better than champion Ben Hogan who finished third.

Bud Holscher, a sailor from San Diego, Monday placed second with a 207.

Hogan slipped from a second-round, one-stroke lead because of putting troubles. He carded a 36-36, par 72 against Furgol's 33-35-68.

The win was worth $250 to Furgol. Holscher got $150 and Hogan $100.

Hayes, Durando Slated for Olympia Ring, Dec. 2

DETROIT (UP)—Norman Hayes of Boston, a familiar face to boxing fans at Olympia, has agreed to fight middleweight Ernie Durando of Bayonne, N. J., here Dec. 2, matchmaker Nick Londe announced today.

Hayes has been shooting for another crack at Durando since Durando gained a close decision over him in New York in June, 1952.

Durando boasts victories over such ring luminaries as Charles Humez, Paddy Young and Rocky Castellani. Hayes stepped into the national boxing spotlight several years ago with wins over Jake La Motta and Robert Villemain.

Nash Is Only Challenger to Shindorf's Point Title

Dick Nash, Royal Oak's all-state candidate, slipped from 3rd to 4th place in the individual scoring derby in Oakland County last weekend, but still is the only gridder with a chance to overhaul the leader.

Nash dropped despite three touchdowns and seven extra points in the Acorns' 67-0 rout of Highland Park.

Russ Shindorf of Pontiac St. Mike's regained the lead with three tallies against Oxford. His pace-setting total is 102, matching the amount piled up by Rochester's all-state Ed Church in winning last season.

Avondale's Marv Evans ran up 32 points (five TDs and two conversions) to zoom into 2nd place with 90 points. It dropped previous leader Joe Ruhlman of St. James to 3rd and Nash to 4th.

Royal Oak's Jack Drawbaugh moved into 5th on his five-touchdown outburst in the Highland Park game. Holly's Jerry Hunter got a pair of tallies against Fenton to finish in a 10th place tie.

All the leaders are through except the Royal Oak pair. Nash trails Shindorf by 16 points. Acorns end the prep season Thanksgiving Day against Birmingham.

TOLEDO SEXTET Drops to 4th in Puck Loop

CINCINNATI (AP)—Toledo was torpedoed to a tie for fourth place in the International Hockey League after running No. 1 and No. 2 since the early part of the season. And the Mercurys of Toledo enjoy no chance of overtaking the league-leading Cincinnati Mohawks in this week's ice action of 13 games. Mercurys play only two contests, the margin of wins the Mohawks hold over their Ohio cousins.

Toledo dropped three straight games last week by the identical scores of 5-3. They lost first to the Mohawks and then were beaten by Grand Rapids and Louisville, two second division clubs.

Johnstown (Pa.) Jets shot up from fourth to 2nd spot with victories over Louisville and Grand Rapids. A victory tonight for the Pennsylvanians over Cincinnati would give them a tie for first.

'Wreck', West Virginia, Baylor Tumble Out of List; Illini Now 7th

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Notre Dame and Maryland, only major elevens to escape the season's plague of "upsetitis," stood almost unchallenged today as the No. 1 and No. 2 teams of college football.

Notre Dame, preseason favorite for national honors, held its position at the head of the Associated Press rankings for the eighth straight week but felt new pressure from its constant pursuer, Maryland.

Meanwhile, three teams which were victims of surprise reversals—Georgia Tech, West Virginia and Baylor—fell from the top 10 and gave way to newcomers Wisconsin, Southern California and Rice.

Notre Dame's Irish, who conquered North Carolina 34-14 for their seventh straight victory, had only a 60-point edge over undefeated Maryland, which smashed Mississippi 38-0.

That is equivalent to only six first-place votes in the poll, which gives 10 points for a No. 1 vote, nine for No. 2, etc.

A total of 151 sports writers and broadcasters participated this week and elevated Michigan State, the 1952 national champion, to third place, supplanting Illinois, downed by Wisconsin 34-7. The Illini slipped to seventh.

Georgia Tech, beaten by Alabama 13-7, fell from 5th to 12th, and West Virginia, its 13-game winning streak snapped by South Carolina, plummeted from 8th to 19th. Baylor, upset by Houston 37-7, dropped completely out of the picture from ninth place.

Notre Dame received 93 of the 151 first-place votes while Maryland collected 42. The Irish had 1,404 points compared with 1,344 for the Terrapins.

Others in the top 10 were Michi-

County Hunters Report Success in North Woods

Reports of successful Oakland County hunters continue to come to the Pontiac Press.

Oakland County Sportsmen's Club member Joseph Nichols, 601 Peacock, Pontiac, was among the earliest, bagging a spike horn about 7 a.m. in Flynn Valley near Curran.

John Gallus, 1421 Hartwig, Rochester, had to wait only until 8 a.m. to bring down a four-point, 125-pounder with his 30-30.

Gallus was hunting 10 miles north of Harrison in Roscommon County.

Leslie Marsac and his nephew Billy both connected along the south shore of Hubbard Lake near Alpena. Leslie, 510 Northfield, Pontiac, got an eight-pointer, while Billy, who lives in Lake Orion, shot at spike horn.

Another lucky hunter was Pontiac Press stereotyper Len Saunders. Saunders downed a 3-pointer Sunday at 10:40 a.m. in the Manistee State Forest.

Tussle for World Trade May Give Reds a Break

By PHIL NEWSOM
UP Staff Correspondent

While Russia and Red China have proved extremely unpleasant neighbors, there is a growing belief among Western businessmen that their money is as good as anyone else's when it is moved across the counter.

A scramble for trade with the Communist nations already is on in Western Europe, and conceivably could extend to the United States whose manufacturers would be reluctant to lose a potentially rich market by default.

Two stumbling blocks to really extensive trade are the West's ban on sale of war-making supplies to the Communists, and the Communists' own tendency to price themselves out of the market.

Nonetheless, many businessmen regard Russia and her satellites and Red China as the new frontier in today's highly competitive world market.

Pointing up this feeling have been three recent events:

1. The British board of trade's lifting of the ban on sale of small passenger cars to Red China.

2. Disclosure that Russia has ordered 100,000 tons of steel pilings and heavy sheets from France, and that deliveries already are under way.

3. The controversy that developed between the United States Commerce and State Departments when a Chrysler corporation official said there was a "good possibility" that American cars may be sold to Red China in the foreseeable future.

The State Department said there was no plan to relax the embargo with the Reds.

The test case at the moment is Western Europe.

Free Europe, worried by the sudden return of German and Japanese competition, offers machinery, ships, steel and many other products to Russia.

Russia offers grain, oil, critical ores, timber, cars and caviar to the West.

The catch is that Russia asks too much machinery for her wheat, and, as result, trade actually is declining with some countries—notably Sweden—despite efforts to the contrary.

In no case is the trading large-scale.

The steel deal between France and Russia, for example, totals around $11,000,000—a small change in terms of big business.

It has, however, developed some interesting interpretations of what is and is not strategic in the sense of the ability to make war.

The United States bans sale of tankers to the Communists countries.

However, Sweden builds tankers for the Reds, as do our NATO allies, France, Holland, Denmark and Belgium. Finland also is building Russian tankers.

A comparison of other goods for sale also is interesting.

Oil is embargoed by the free nations as a war material, as are chrome and manganese ores which the United States is busy stockpiling against a future emergency. Yet these three items form a major part of Russia's exports to the West.

The end result of the present trade scramble is not in sight.

But diplomats, as opposed to the businessmen, fear it is just another phase of the cold war—that from an innocent-appearing start it can result in an all-out Communist effort to wreck Western economies by dumping on the world market the products of cheap slave-labor.

County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews has been trying to give the animals away on a "you catch 'em and you can have 'em basis" without much success.

But now Harold D. Wheaton, operator of the Hill City Zoo at Rapid City, S. D., is going to try to bring the animals in by erecting a high steel fence corral baited with salt and hay.

Matthews says it will be up to Wheaton to get the strays on trucks and take them to his South Dakota zoo.

Taxing Co-ops Still Hot Issue

Two Congressmen Lead Drive as Battle Shapes for Next Session

WASHINGTON—The old issue of taxing cooperatives could provoke some hot lobby battles again next session.

This, at any rate, is the opinion of a handful of national lobbies which are preparing for the anticipated fight. They believe that, with reductions in some other taxes scheduled, a revenue-minded Congress may look longingly at co-ops as a possible source of extra income.

Under present law, cooperatives do not pay federal taxes at the co-op level on earnings that are distributed to members, whether in cash, stock, certificates of indebtedness, or by bank allocation.

Treasury Department officials are studying the possibility of taxing these earnings, and two congressmen who have led the drive for widening co-op taxes—Reps. Noah M. Mason (R-Ill.) and Clifford Davis (D-Tenn.)—seem ready to press again for legislation, already before Congress, for this purpose.

On Nov. 9, Mason, a member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, urged taxation of co-ops and tax exempt business as one method of offsetting possible revenue losses.

"There is neither rhyme nor reason in permitting cooperatives to do $20 billion worth of business in competition with taxpaying businesses without paying the same kind of taxes themselves," said Mason.

Currently preparing to battle for wider co-op taxes is a list of organizations led by the National Tax Equality Association and the National Associated Businessmen.

These long-time advocates of such action hold that co-op savings passed back to members should be taxed in the same way as dividends of regular corporations. They say that Mason has estimated that "full" taxation of co-ops and related groups would bring in more than a billion dollars.

A tabulation of government statistics credits co-ops with at least 10 million members. Those who oppose further co-op taxes, including a bloc of groups led by the Co-operative League of the U.S. and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, argue that earnings from co-op activity are not profits, do not legally belong to the co-operators, and therefore cannot constitutionally be taxed except as income of patrons.

They term Mason's estimate "fantastically high"—others have ranged down to as little as $10 million—and emphasize that, except for the tax exemption on earnings turned back to members, co-ops pay all taxes, including some corporation taxes, under the same laws and at the same rates as other businesses.

The Record Shop Betty Hutton's New Voice Likely to Broaden Career

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEW YORK (NEA)—For the first time in her pretty, blonde life, Betty Hutton is proud of her singing voice. Her new singing voice.

"I never really sang before," she says. "I could shout and I could clown and put over a song, but I had no voice. I knew it, better than anybody else."

And then came what she now calls a "blessing in disguise." she lost her voice, completely. Doctors said that she'd misused it so much that two tremendous growth had formed on her vocal cords—nodes, they called them—and they'd have to be cut out.

"I had no choice," she says. It took two operations and then she had to learn how to talk all over again, before she could even think of singing.

Since the operation, she's been under the supervision of vocal coaches, who've taught her how to use her voice properly.

"Now I have a real voice," she says, with a big smile. "I can sing my old songs—but sing them right—and for the first time in my life I can sing ballads, too."

Her two postoperative records, for Capitol, show the new Betty. They still have the old bounce, but there's more voice to the bounce.

Now that she "can really sing," she'd like to take a shot at a Broadway musical.

Betty characterizes her old voice as "a whisky tenor." If that's true, you could call her new voice a cognac contralto.

Whisky may have more kick, but cognac is a mite smoother.

ON THE CLASSICS: It took 15 recording dates to bring together the new RCA-Victor recordings of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci." Just Björkling, who sings on both, traveled all the way from Sweden for the sessions.

A reader corrects my statement that Epic's new "Tales From the Vienna Woods" is the first version with the original zither solo on records.

'Victory' Has Distinguished List of Alumni

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—Ten years ago this week a show called "Winged Victory" opened on Broadway. Today no producer could afford to assemble the distinguished alumni of that production.

The producer of "Winged Victory" was the United States Army Air Forces, and the proceeds went to Army Relief. The military charity reaped a sizeable profit, since the picture sale to 20th Century-Fox alone amounted to a million dollars.

The show, the brainchild of Moss Hart, was a mélange of music, comedy and sentiment. Perhaps its most notable feature was the cast, few members of which earned more than $80 a month. One of the players, Barry Nelson, was reminiscing about the show.

Barry, now starring in "My Favorite Husband" on CBS-TV Saturday nights, told about one of the members of the chorus whom he got to know to know well. This fellow was bitter about Army life. Some people take out their troubles in drinking, but he ate. He reached around 300 pounds.

His name: Mario Lanza. Another young man did a short monologue at the opening of the show and later imitated Carmen Miranda. He was an unknown then, but people now know him as Red Buttons.

Oh, there were lots of others. . . . Peter Lind Hayes, then known principally as Grace Hayes' son. . . . Edmond O'Brien, Don Taylor, Gary Merrill, who became more famous in films later. . . . Karl Malden, who won an Oscar for "A Streetcar Named Desire." . . . Kevin McCarthy, who got a nomination for "Death of a Salesman." . . .

George Reeves, now the "Superman" of TV. . . . Ray Middleton, who hit with Ethel Merman in "Annie Get Your Gun." . . . John Forsythe of films and "Tea House of the August Moon." . . . Eugene Conley of the Met. . . . and others like Lon McCallister, Mark Daniels, Alan Baxter, Dave Rose, Joe Bushkin.

One of the girls in the show was Phyllis Avery, who plays Ray Milland's wife on TV and married Don Taylor (they're now separated). Also in the picture was a girl named Judith Tuvim. She's better known as Judy Holliday now.

"It was quite a cast," said Barry Nelson, looking back at the show. "We were chosen from thousands of Air Force men who tried out for it. The selection was limited to those who had been in show business, since there had to be some starting point."

"Nearly all of us were making $30 a month or less. There were a few officers in the cast, but they had minor roles. It was a funny thing—the officers seemed to be lesser lights in civilian life than the enlisted men."

The show played six months in New York, and most of the actors were quartered at a hotel that had been taken over by the Air Force. A few were allowed to make their own homes, and Nelson admitted that he almost went broke with only his enlisted man's pay coming in.

Most of the cast stayed in tents in Santa Monica during the filming of the picture. A six-months' tour of the country followed. The show was then broken up and many of the cast went overseas in entertainment units or in other capacities.

Barry, an Oakland boy who was picked out of a University of California play for an MGM contract, was doing well before the war. He returned to the studio to find he was well down in the list in being picked for roles. He went to New York and scored hits in "Light Up the Sky" and "The Moon is Blue."

During his 800-performance run in the latter, he filmed a TV show called "The Hunter" in New York. Now he's reversing the usual trend and doing "My Favorite Husband" live from Hollywood.

Rochester Village Council Approves Annexation Survey

Chicago Firm to Give Report

Will Determine Results of Change to City Form of Government

ROCHESTER — Village councilmen here last night gave their approval for a 60 to 90-day annexation survey to determine what might result if the village became a city.

The council accepted an offer by James Pollock of the J. L. Jacobs Co. of Chicago for the survey costing $2,500.

Possibilities of changing the village into a city form of government and of annexing nearby territory have been long discussed in village council meetings.

The survey would give an indication of what social, economic and political results could be expected if the village became a city and annexed territory, Pollock said.

He said the study could be started within a week and would be completed in 60 or 90 days. Of the cost of the project, $1,000 will be due Jan. 1.

The council received an offer for the survey from another company but rejected it.

Also last night, the council granted a water and sewer permit for 912 North Main St. where a new super market is nearing completion.

STAKING THEIR CLAIM—The Rev. James B. Guinan and committee chairmen are shown after erecting a sign on the future site of Trinity Episcopal Mission of Farmington on an eight-acre wooded tract in Farmington Township. Left to right are John Irwin, architectural chairman; Rev. Guinan; Fred Buesser Jr., bishop's committee chairman, and Edward Moseman, land procurement chairman.

Will Dedicate Milford Church

St. George Episcopal Gets Own Building After Six Years

MILFORD—A new building will be dedicated here tomorrow night for St. George Episcopal Church.

Dedication of the new church will mean a big step forward for parishioners. They've been holding services for six years upstairs in the old "Opera House" on Main street.

Located on East Commerce street, the new building of stone blends in with a rolling landscape. Designed by William A. Ganster, architect, it has a tall, clear glass window decorated with a wrought iron grille instead of the usual stained glass window above the front door.

The Rt. Rev. Richard S. Emrich, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, will be on hand to consecrate the altar of the church in the 8 p.m. ceremonies.

Construction of the new church was begun last spring after a ground breaking ceremony in March. A campaign was held for building pledges.

St. George Mission was first organized in Milford Nov. 10, 1946, by a group of 30 men and women. The group met with Bishop Emrich and the Rev. Kenneth C. Morris, then of the Brighton parish and later transferred to Pontiac.

After conducting services with a series of laymen and clergy of other churches, the mission got its present full-time vicar, the Rev. John L. Cottrell, 1950.

Book Review Slated

NEW HUDSON — The book "A Man Called Peter" will be reviewed by Mrs. Henry Wieduettes of Detroit tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Methodist Church here. Residents of the community have been invited to attend.

Trinity Mission Acquires New Site at Farmington

FARMINGTON—Trinity Episcopal Mission here has acquired title to eight wooded acres in Farmington Township to be used as a building site, the Rev. James B. Guinan, vicar, announced today.

Situated between Eleven and Twelve Mile roads, and east of Orchard Lake road, the property was selected as the most favorable of more than 10 sites investigated by the church's land committee, according to Rev. Guinan.

"In selecting this particular site, we considered trends of population movement in the township and the need for adequate parking facilities," he said, "and the selection is admirably suited to our needs in serving this rapidly expanding area."

The rolling land contains a water pond and is heavily wooded thus combining features of natural beauty with adequate space for large-scale construction, Rev. Guinan added.

He said an architectural committee with John M. Irwin, 37900 Howard, as chairman, has been appointed to proceed with preliminary building plans.

Trinity Mission presently is holding services Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in Farmington Universalist Church on Warner avenue.

Under a new policy in the school system teachers are being asked to release pupils to parents only on written authorization from the central office in their school.

One Mishap Too Many

Royal Oak Youth Vows Never to Ride in Autos

ROYAL OAK—Douglas E. Foster, 17, of 12 E. Katherine, whose life has been plagued by auto mishaps, vowed yesterday that he would never ride in a car again.

Last August he was the driver of the car in which his 15-year-old sister, Patricia Ann, was killed in Royal Oak Township. The driver of the other car was blamed for the accident.

His brother, Richard, 10, died Aug. 2 when he swerved his bicycle into the path of an auto in Troy Township.

Yesterday Foster was a passenger in a car driven by George R. Chene, 16, of 2824 John R. Royal Oak Township, when Chene failed to make a turn and crashed into a truck.

When police arrived Foster was tearing up his driver's license. He was only slightly injured.

"I'm through with riding in cars," he said.

Chene was ticketed for driving without having a driver's license in his possession.

Hal Boyle Says:

Why You Didn't See Him at the Met Opera Opening

NEW YORK (U) — Please don't ask why you didn't see me at the opening of the Metropolitan Opera this year.

Yes, I missed it. And I'm so sick about the whole business. I can hardly talk about it. I don't know how I'll recover my social position.

Anybody who isn't seen at the Met on opening night is definitely an outcast in this town for the rest of the season. Eating all the chlorophyll in the world won't help you.

If your name comes up—though why it should, heaven only knows—people say pityingly, "Oh, him! Isn't he the one we didn't even see at the Met?" And the rest is silence.

The truth is I had made careful plans for my appearance at the Met opening this year, because it was the 70th anniversary. When the curtain first went up back in 1883, the papers reported "the show was divided between the stage and the audience."

Well, things have improved since then. Now nobody pays any attention to the stage. The audience is the whole show. Instead of singing "Faust" the performers could have yodeled or put on a minstrel show and nobody would have realized it except a few brassy members of the hot polka in the peanut gallery.

You know, of course, the whole object in attending a Met opening is not only to be seen—but to be really noticed. This is getting harder each season.

It is no longer enough merely to stand on your head, smoke a Turkish water pipe or playfully spray Mrs. Astorbilt with soda water.

Everybody does things like that, and it no longer pays off. I recall one year when an opera patron got his picture in all the papers because he refused to stand on his head. It was just his way of being different.

You attract attention now more by what you wear than by what you do.

So you can imagine what a blue funk I was in when word leaked out that Maggie McNellis was coming to the opening in a gown of white peau de soie embroidered with pearls and gold; Lady Makins, a gown of lace in flaming scarlet, re-embroidered in chenille and trimmed with red velvet; and Mrs. Carl H. Pforzheimer, a robe de style of grape-purple silk velvet with train, pearls, diamonds, long white kid gloves, and white ermine box jacket.

Who would ever notice poor little me in my faded old tux, decorated only with tulle-patched moth holes.

"Why don't you wear something new and daringly different?" suggested my wife, Frances, who unfortunately is unable to attend Met openings, poor dear, because the diamonds hurt her eyes and she is allergic to mink.

Why not indeed? I decided to wear a dazzling leopard skin toupee instead of a hat, a tufted green bath towel twined into a loin cloth instead of a suit. And instead of tawdry rubies or emeralds I decided to wear the famous Tiffany yellow diamond in my navel, set off by a fine old bare skin descended from Adam.

To cap it all—as a conversation piece—I planned to wear as a watchdog an elderly carnival dwarf with a small white beard, who would cry out at intervals, "Ten o'clock and all is well... 11 o'clock, and things are even better..."

Then everything began to go wrong. First, the leopard skin toupee wouldn't stay on, even with Scotch tape. Next the Tiffany people declined to rent me the diamond, on a trumped up excuse that I had the wrong size navel.

Finally, the dwarf refused to be worn as a watchdog unless I paid him overtime after midnight and let him pass out handbills advertising his carnival. Naturally I knew the opera wouldn't let him publicize a rival attraction.

So I had to call it all off, and stayed home and sulked.

"Why don't you just show up wearing nothing at all?" suggested Frances. "Has that been tried?"

No, it hasn't. And it won't be either. Who would ever notice a nudist at an opening of the Metropolitan Opera? Nobody would look at him twice even if he blew a trumpet.

Bridge Making Return to Popularity in Hungary

Extensive Test of Polio Vaccine Mapped for U. S.

NEW YORK (U) — A hope-laden polio vaccine will be given to probably one million school children in second grades only—beginning Feb. 8 in an effort to learn whether polio has been conquered.

Official details of a unique nationwide medical test were announced yesterday by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The children will get three successive shots of a vaccine made of killed polio virus and triple-tested for safety.

The vaccine was developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh. It will be given to second graders in public, private and parochial schools in some 200 U. S. counties — none officially named as yet.

What happens to these youngsters during next summer's natural exposure to polio will tell whether the vaccine is a success.

Success will be assured if these youngsters have less paralytic polio, or none, compared with unvaccinated children of the first through third grades in those same counties.

The answer won't be known until some time in 1955 when careful scientific checkups have been completed, said Basil O'Connor, foundation president.

If the vaccine does really protect, then large amounts could be made available for children of all ages in 1955, O'Connor said.

The counties and states for the tests, costing the foundation 7½ million dollars, are still being chosen.

The English discovered a method of casting crucible steel in 1740 and was able to use it and keep it secret from manufacturers in other countries for 60 years.

Report Irregularities, State Agencies Told

LANSING UP—At the request of Aud. Gen. John B. Martin, Gov. Williams has ordered all state agencies to report promptly any suspicion of irregularities in the handling of public funds or property. The executive office said that Martin reported his office was notified too late of several recent cases of irregularities. As a result, Martin said, his auditors found records unavailable when they arrived.

Williams notified state agency heads: "No attempt is made to define the cases which come within this broad category, nor at what point of significance a specific case should be reported. The important thing is to have such matters in the hands of proper state officials in time to eliminate possible attempts to thwart or obscure irregularities and to prevent discoloring the facts."

Digs Up Old Coin

DARTMOUTH, Mass. (UP) — Nine-year-old Teddy Stys, watching his brother turn over the soil on his farm here, saw a coin flipped into the air. It was a one-cent piece, dated 1795.

Man Fined for Having Unregistered Weapon

Thurston J. Bramblett, 50, of 50 E. Kennett St., pleaded guilty to possessing an unregistered gun and paid a $25 fine yesterday when he appeared before Pontiac Judge Maurice E. Finnegan. Pontiac Police arrested Bramblett Saturday on a complaint that he was throwing bottles in the rear of a building near his home. Police said they found the weapon in Bramblett's hand when they arrived at the scene.

Wears Out 15 Horses

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UP) — While observing his 50th anniversary as a physician, Dr. Harold S. Backus recalled that during his first five years of making calls he wore out 15 horses.
