First Building Rising for MSUO

VIEWING PROGRESS—Officials of Michigan State University Oakland watch the erection of cement casings for the third floor of the classroom wing of the MSUO building. Dr. Durward B. Varner, MSU vice president, right, is supervising the preparation of MSUO as an almost autonomous university. Roy Alexander heads student activities for the new institution. All concrete work on the building will be done by the end of September and roof will be on the classroom wing by that time. Although formal applications for admission are not printed, informal application by letter is welcomed, Alexander said.

County Offices Might Merge

Eye Drain Commission, Public Works as Next in Streamlining Effort

Feasibility of combining the Oakland County Drain Commission Office with that of the Department of Public Works is the next project under study by a special committee seeking ways of streamlining county government operations.

John L. Carey, chairman of the County Government Study Committee, said his nine-member committee will meet Thursday "to study the mechanics" of such a merger.

It was this same committee that in June made its first inroad into modernization when the offices of county clerk and register of deeds were combined.

Carey, Springfield Township supervisor, said there were many questions to be answered before action could be taken on the committee's second goal. Carey himself said he believed it not only feasible but necessary.

"Here you have the Drain Commissioner putting in one drain," Carey illustrated before yesterday's Board of Supervisors meeting. "And on the other hand you have the DPW working on another drain project."

To help iron out the many questions, Carey and his committee have summoned the Drain Commission of the Board of Supervisors, the Oakland County Planning Commission, and members of the Board of Public Works to meet Thursday morning with his committee.

It was formed by the supervisors in October of last year for the purpose of seeking reforms in the operations of the county government.

Hoffa Fought System U.S. and State of Auto Drive-Aways Marking Time at Little Rock

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Teamster President James R. Hoffa told Senate investigators today about the big Union's campaign against a drive-it-yourself system for delivering new cars to auto dealers.

The subject came up when the Senate Rackets Committee asked about a $2,000 transaction in July 1954, in which union funds were converted into cash—apparently through purchase of a cashier's check.

Hoffa explained that the money was used to buy a Plymouth automobile for Hoffa's home Local 299 in Detroit.

At the same time, he said, one auto company had instituted a program under which dealers were urged to go to Detroit and drive new cars back to their home cities. This would bypass normal delivery by truck.

Hoffa said the local gave him discretion on "how to whip" the system.

He said he decided to buy a motion picture camera, mount it on a car, and follow a "drive-it-yourself" Indiana dealer back to his place of business.

He said the plan was to park a trailer in front of the dealer's establishment and invite the public to see how it was being "defrauded" into buying a "new" car that actually was "used."

Later, Hoffa said, it was decided to buy a car and drive it on such a trip and use it as a "display" in that campaign. Hoffa said the Plymouth was purchased for cash, in the name of Gene San Soucie, head of the Indiana conference of Teamsters, who was acting as a "private citizen" in anticipation that the dealer would retaliate with a law suit.

Later, Hoffa said, ownership of the car was transferred to the Local. He said that transfer came after the campaign against the drive-it-yourself system was completed but he did not immediately summarize the results of those efforts.

Hoffa resumed his testimony amid charges by committee investigators that his picture of himself as the Union's house cleaning champion was sharply out of focus. Hoffa countered with charges the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee is trying to wreck the 1½-million-member teamsters union, and the monitors are stealing his thunder in calling for reforms he has planned but not announced.

The senators accused Hoffa yesterday of barely scratching the surface in ridding the Teamsters of alleged union goons and racketeers.

Says Eddie Fisher Will Lose in Love

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—Mrs. Owen Harman, Debbie Reynolds' grandmother, said yesterday that "Eddie Fisher will never have another girl who will love him as much as Debbie has."

The grandmother recently spent four months in Hollywood with Debbie, who was born in El Paso. "I thought they were very happy," she said. "They certainly put on a good act."

Brucker Finds Formosa Easing

Ike Avoided Shooting War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Army Brucker, back from a Far East tour, says President Eisenhower's no-appeasement speech last week has averted a shooting war with Red China.

Brucker said the Formosa situation has eased but still is serious.

"The President's utterances have done a lot to cool it off," he told newsmen on arriving at National Airport from his three-week tour. Without Eisenhower's statement "this would have been a shooting war," he said.

"I think the President's statement has done a great deal to put that situation in the proper perspective in the free and the Communist worlds," the army secretary added.

"I look to see quite a difference in the next 30 days."

Brucker said he found Formosa calm with "no hysteria, no panic."

No Move Is Seen Today to Break Stalemate on Closed Schools

From Our Wire Services

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—The Justice Department failed today to make any move to break the integration impasse and a U. S. District Judge said the prospects for immediate federal action are so dim he is leaving Little Rock.

"There is no emergency down here," Federal Judge John E. Miller said. "We will just have to let nature take its course."

"I think haste sometimes creates more trouble than it remedies. That's just my own country idea."

Judge Miller, who handed down the original Little Rock desegregation order three years ago, said he is leaving shortly for his home at Fort Smith.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who ordered Little Rock's four schools closed yesterday, apparently had nothing immediate in mind either.

The schools entered their second day of gubernatorial closure with complete order today.

There were even fewer students around than yesterday, because the school board banned all extra-curricular activities, such as football, band practice and pep squad meetings, last night until the closure problem is solved.

The board cast about for a stop-gap means of teaching 3,470 students who can't attend classes.

Reported 'Within Reach' of Contract Agreement

Rush to Beat Deadline Set for 10 A. M. Wednesday; Big 3 Make New Offers

(From Our Wire Services)

DETROIT — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers Union were "within reach" of a contract agreement today with less than 24 hours left before a strike deadline.

But tempers on both sides began to flare as the talks, aimed at reaching agreement on a new contract before 10 a.m. tomorrow, reached the final stages.

The talks moved forward at a rapid pace last night after all of the "Big Three" auto companies submitted similar proposals to the Union in a space of only 18 minutes.

The Union rejected the Ford offer and made a counter offer before the talks broke up shortly before midnight.

"There are certain areas in which the Union can make a new approach," UAW President Walter P. Reuther said. "We have rejected the company offer and have a counter offer in the areas in which there is disagreement."

"At the moment there is still time to reach an agreement although there is a great difference in some areas."

Although details of both the company's offer and the Union's counter offer were withheld, some details became available through various sources.

Ford Vice President John S. Bugas first revealed that the offer was for a three-year contract.

An authoritative spokesman later disclosed the offer would include:

1. — Continuation of extra payments if the cost of living continues to increase.

2. — Extension of the company financed supplemental unemployment plans from 26 to 30 weeks with an increase in the $25 maximum paid under the old contract.

3. — Increase in pensions for retired workers from $2.25 per month for each year worked to $2.40.

4. — Additional pay for skilled workers.

5. — Continuation of the annual improvement factor under which workers receive a yearly increase of six cents an hour or 2½ per cent of their hourly wage. Companies say these payments now average seven cents hourly.

Reuther refused to say which areas of the company offer he felt were "deficient" or which were covered by the Union's counter proposal.

"I don't care to discuss the specific details because I don't think it would contribute to the work we are trying to do at the bargaining table," he said. "The Union will do everything in its power to reach an agreement without a strike."

Bugas at first said he did not feel the union had made a counter offer.

Claims Arrest of Driver on Area Lake Unlawful

Hardly anyone would question that Oakland County has 423 lakes, unless they wanted to take the time to count them.

But which of these lakes, large and small are public, and which are private, is likely to come out of an appeal being heard now in Circuit Court.

Appealing an April jury conviction from West Bloomfield Justice Court for reckless driving is Harold W. Zielke, of 6671 Pinnock Dr., West Bloomfield Township. He was fined $75 and assessed $25 court costs, or 30 days in jail.

Zielke, who owns a home on the western end of Upper Straits Lake, was arrested last January 25 by sheriff's deputies for spinning his car on the ice of the lake.

Now Zielke's attorney, James P. Matimore, of Detroit, claims the deputies had no right to arrest his client, on what Matimore contends is a private lake.

But Jerome K. Barry Jr., assistant prosecutor assigned to the case, sees it another way. Barry argues the arrest was justified, but admits that he'll have "to dig into" law books to support his case.

So far he views Upper Straits Lake as public because it can be reached either from public-owned land, highways or other waters.

Judge Frank L. Doty yesterday decided to give Barry some extra time to prove whether the lake is public or private. No date when the appeal will return to court was set.

Supporters of McDonald cited him as a labor statesman who had brought great gains to the 1,200,000-member USW.

The show of confidence in McDonald began with the reading of a resolution and developed into a parade of hundreds of placard-carrying delegates marching with band music to the stage to shake his hand.

The vote marked the third time in the opening session of the USW's convention that expected opposition to union policy failed to develop. The others were on convention procedure.

Grass-Roots Executives Built 'Biggest Corporation'

GM Is 50 Years Old Today

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT (AP)—The world's biggest industrial corporation is 50 years old today.

General Motors Corp., first and only manufacturing concern to pile up a single year profit of more than a billion dollars, plans no bang-up celebration on its 50th birthday.

Most of the Golden Anniversary celebrations have already been held.

General Motors' success basically was a matter of men rather than of money. Under its 12 presidents the company built 69 million vehicles. It also made scores of millionaires.

Its top executives usually have been grass-roots men. Its founder, the late William C. Durant, was a one-time buggy maker. Still living are such fabulous personalities as Alfred P. Sloan Jr., now 83 and honorary board chairman, and Charles F. Kettering, now 82. Sloan once sold ball bearings. Kettering was a one-time telephone lineman who worked his way through college.

Harlow H. Curtice, just retired as president, came to General Motors as an accountant. One of his predecessors as GM president, the late famed William S. Knudsen, was a Danish immigrant.

It has been said Durant founded GM and Sloan built it.

Durant envisioned a huge single corporation to build motor vehicles. He brought together Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Buick and Oakland (later Pontiac) to form the nucleus of General Motors in 1908.

He sought to dominate General Motors subsequently through stock control. He lost two multi-million dollar fortunes in stock market speculations. Durant died in obscurity after seeing others fashion the structure that held GM together.

Veteran City Policeman Selected for Court Post

Capt. Walter C. Krause, veteran member of the Pontiac Police Department, is expected to announce his resignation tomorrow to accept a job as municipal court process server.

Krause, 59, has been recommended for the post by the two city judges. City Commissioners are expected to act favorably on the appointment tonight.

Krause would fill the position left vacant last week by the death of Percy G. Newman. He said the resignation would be effective Oct. 1.

Head of the uniform patrol bureau the past year, Krause has held the rank of captain since June, 1956, when he became the department's first night patrol captain.

A World War I veteran who served with the 32nd (Red Arrow) Division in France, Krause joined the police department in 1924. He served for many years in its juvenile division, being promoted to sergeant in 1938 and lieutenant in 1946.

Formosa Talks Progress; Speed Up Quemoy Relief

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The talks in Mysłowiec Palace between the ambassadors of Red China and the United States on easing the Formosa crisis were in recess today.

U. S. Ambassador Jacob Beam and Peiping's envoy, Wang Ping-nan, surprised Warsaw's diplomats yesterday by sitting for 2 hours and 30 minutes at their first meeting. Then they adjourned until Thursday.

The interval gave both their governments time to analyze what was said at the first session and to prepare the next step.

The length of the first meeting, diplomats believed, meant the two negotiators had approached the central problem without preliminary maneuvering.

In Washington, the State Department indicated what it considered was the core of the talks in the former hunting lodge of Poland's kings. A press officer said the purpose of the discussions was to "bring about a situation where use of force will not be taken without prejudice to either side."

It was understood that Beam brought up the long-standing demand for Red China to renounce the use of force in Formosa Strait at the first meeting.

National Anthem Really Intended as Drink Song?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Star Spangled Banner, written 144 years ago yesterday by Francis Scott Key, was intended to be sung with gusto as a drinking song, according to a professor at the University of Southern California.

"Many people think Key's lyrics were set to the tune of a popular drinking ballad as an afterthought," said William Templeman, head of the USC English Department. "This is not correct."

"Key actually wrote his lyrics with the specific intention of having them used as a drinking song. The handbill on which our National Anthem was first printed indicates that it was 'to be sung to the tune of Anacreon in Heaven,' a barroom ball of the day. It was to be sung with gusto and for fun."

Templeman backed up his contention by citing the prohibitionists' action in 1931 when they opposed adoption of the song as the national anthem.

More Showers for Broad Areas of Nation Today

By The Associated Press

More showers were in prospect for broad areas in the Eastern half of the country today while generally fair weather was the outlook in most Western states.

Rain fell along leading edges of cooler air which moved across sections of the Midwest while showers and thunderstorms broke out in most sections of the South to the Gulf Coast region. Heaviest rain belt extended from western Texas northward through Oklahoma, Missouri, Illinois and Lower Michigan.

Rainfall measured nearly 6 inches in parts of west Texas. Sloan, during the early part of last night, at Odessa, in west Texas, a cloudburst dumped 1.67 inches of rain within one hour. The downpour caused a freight train derailment and flooded low-lying areas. Kansas City reported nearly 2 inches of rain.

Meanwhile, dying tropical storm Gerda moved across Cuba today into the Gulf of Mexico.

Gerda, the seventh tropical storm of the season, had whirled across western Haiti with 65 mile an hour winds before losing its power.

DEATH COACH LIFTED FROM BAY — Floodlights from salvage barges converge on coach of Jersey Central Railroad as it is lifted in slings from the 35-foot-deep waters of Newark Bay early this morning. It was in this coach, second of three that plunged from open drawbridge across the bay yesterday that most of the passengers died.

Bodies of 20 Plucked From Newark Bay

Work to Recover Wrecked Train

BAYONNE, N. J. (UPI) — A huge floating crane worked through the night to recover three Jersey Central Railroad passenger cars that, with two engines, plunged through an open drawbridge into 50 feet of water in Newark Bay yesterday.

Twenty bodies had been recovered by early today and the death toll threatened to rise as high as 40. At least 40 persons were injured. The bodies recovered included seven picked up shortly after the tragedy and 13 found in a passenger car raised by the crane at 12:10 a.m.

The Hudson County medical examiner meanwhile scheduled an autopsy on the body of Engineer Lloyd F. Wilburn, 63, to determine whether he may have had a heart attack at the throttle.

The dripping passenger car hauled up by the crane shortly after midnight was identified as the second of the three cars to plunge into the water and the one believed containing the most dead. The first of the three cars was empty. The third hung suspended from the bridge for 2 1/2 hours before dropping into the bay, allowing most of its passengers to escape.

GRISLY SIGHT

Nearly every window was smashed in the first car hauled up although the car itself was in fairly good condition. The grisly, floodlit scene inside was one of horror. A man's leg hung outside one shattered window indicating he nearly escaped the watery death. The hands of another man's body were badly cut, apparently from smashing a window in a vain escape attempt.

No one was known to have escaped from the second car which followed the two engines and the deadhead car into the water like a link in an anchor chain.

Determination of the exact death toll might take days, officials said, because the strong tidal currents in the area may have washed bodies out through the smashed windows.

One of the bodies brought up in the second car was tentatively identified as that of John Hawkins, mayor of Shrewsbury, N. J. Police said he carried an unspecified amount of negotiable securities which were recovered.

Missing and feared to have been on the train was George (Snuffy) Stirweiss, former star infielder for the New York Yankees.

Federal and state inquiries attempted to determine why the train rolled apparently unhesitatingly through two warning lights and a final red light into its watery tomb. Because of the manner in which the train ran non-stop to the bridge, investigators were inclined to spotlight the heart attack theory as a possible cause.

After passing the red light the train hit a derail switch which sent it bumping along the ties between the bridge's two sets of tracks. Even then the train did not stop.

Some witnesses have said they believed they heard the train's brakes screeching at the last minute.

One question being asked by investigators was: Why, if the engineer did suffer some sort of seizure, were not the brakes applied by a second trainman believed to have been in the engine cabin with him?

The federal and state investigators also were trying to determine whether the bridge should have been opened for the sand barge that had requested passage only several minutes before the appearance of the banker's hours commuter train. Coast Guard regulations state that such bridges need not be opened in the area where the wreck occurred if a train is due in three minutes or less.

A much greater loss of life was prevented by two quirks of fate—the first car was empty, the second car caught and held on the bridge instead of dropping after the others, allowing most of its passengers to escape. The final two cars, one of them containing passengers, remained on the bridge.

Jersey Central President E. T. Moore said the passengers included weekend vacationers returning home from the Jersey shore and commuters bound for New York, just across the Hudson River.

Moore told reporters that, despite the severity of the tragedy, "We don't know how to stop accidents."

The Day in Birmingham

Alter Building Ordinance to Fit New Construction

BIRMINGHAM—Builders in Birmingham who have had trouble meeting city construction requirements, as outlined in the zoning ordinance, saw some of their difficulties removed with adoption of an amendment to the statute last night by the City Commission.

Lots, particularly in the older subdivisions, are sometimes narrower than those presently platted, making it difficult for builders to meet minimum side-yard requirements.

On the recommendation of City Planner Herbert Herzberg, the commission altered the ordinance making it possible to reduce sideyards six inches for each foot under the "50-foot desirable width."

Commissioners also approved the bid of the Subterranean Construction Co. of Oak Park for installation of a sewer and water main on Cole avenue. This will include the loop connecting these mains with those on E. Lincoln avenue.

The area is being prepared for commercial development, which includes the new parcel post annex and a garage for the Birmingham Post Office.

Also approved was an agreement with the City of Troy for the maintenance of Adams and 14-Mile roads by the City of Birmingham.

The contract states: "Troy will hold Birmingham harmless from any and all liabilities arising out of maintenance and repair."

Birmingham Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley and Detective Lt. Merl Holmquist are attending the state's re-training program of the FBI National Academy. The three-day session is being held at the academy grounds near Millford.

Dave Blanchard of 1211 Lenox Rd., Birmingham, is accepting calls for the young people of the First Baptist Church who will participate in the church's youth work day slated for Saturday.

They will take any and all jobs around homes, both inside and out. Earnings will be used in church charity activities.

The 12:30 p.m. meeting of Missionary "B" of the First Presbyterian Church will be held tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Ernest W. Seasholtz, 1587 Fairway Dr.

Missionary "A" will meet in the church lounge at 2 p.m. for a discussion of the services and needs of the Presbyterian Village in Redford.

Family Night at the Congregational Church of Birmingham will include a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Dr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Grey will be special guests at the event. Reservations may be made at the church office before noon tomorrow.

Mrs. Hugh Coldren

Service for Mrs. Hugh (Kittie) Coldren, 83, of 623 E. Lincoln Ave., Birmingham, will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Burial and graveside service will take place at the Manelona Cemetery, Manelona, Mich., at 2 p.m. Thursday.

A former Minnesota and Wisconsin school teacher, Mrs. Coldren died Monday following a long illness. She was graduated from Hillsdale College in 1888 and was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Germana Sodales.

Surviving are a son, Harold of Birmingham, a granddaughter and a grandson.

Negligent Homicide Charged in Accident

The driver of a car which killed two men on U.S. 10 at Hatchery Rd., in Drayton Plains, early Sunday was arraigned before Waterford Township Justice Donald E. Adams Monday.

Alfred H. Thompson, 51, of Davison, originally held for investigation of manslaughter, has been charged with negligent homicide.

Thompson waived examination and was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court with date of arraignment there set for Sept. 29. He furnished a bond set at $1,000.

Alfred R. Adkins, 21, of 163 Augusta Ave., and David J. Williams, 33, of 8331 S. S. Lane, Waterford Township, were struck by Thompson's car while fixing a flat tire. Thompson told police he didn't remember making the curve and must have fallen asleep.

Color in Advertising Ups Reader Interest

NEW YORK (AP) — Color in advertising increased readership by 80 per cent in a recent test by the Houston, Tex., Chronicle. M. Jack Butler, the Chronicle's business manager, said today.

Butler gave the results of the Chronicle's study of run of press color in a talk before the third annual newspaper ROP color conference. Around 1,000 newspaper executives, ad agency personnel, advertisers and supplier representatives are attending the three-day meeting.

Butler gave the following overall retention figures for both color and black and white: color contributed an 80 per cent increase over black and white in readership and a 94 per cent increase in retention two, three and five days later.

ROP color advertising is used to describe color ads which appear in the regular run or main sections of newspapers as opposed to the rotogravure, comic or special sections. Robert K. Drew, advertising director, The Milwaukee Journal, reported, "ROP color has gone through the era of experimentation and now is rapidly being accepted. There was unusual interest in color during the past summer, particularly in view of the economic conditions."

Dem Party Leader Rips Kamp Pamphlet Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler called on Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn today to denounce and repudiate the Kamp pamphlets.

Butler also called on the Fair Campaign Practice Committee to take action on what he called "this serious violation of the fair campaign practices code now being carried on in California and elsewhere on behalf of the Republican party."

The pamphlets by Joseph P. Kamp attack Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union.

Butler told Alcorn the GOP chairman's "silence on this matter can only mean that you condone, and that your party intends to employ, the smear tactics of Joseph Kamp."

Over Third of Lawyers in Hungary Disbarred

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — More than a third of Communist Hungary's 3,500 lawyers have been reported disbarred and the rest subjected to political qualifications.

Reliable sources said disbarment notices have been going out since Sept. 1 but a decree signed by Justice Minister Ferenc Nagy went into effect Saturday.

The decree requires lawyers to have "certificates of good conduct" from their local bar associations. Most of them must work in cooperatives, which pool their fees, and must try to improve their "political qualifications."

Father Failed to Name Killer

Son, 8, Informs Police Three Times He Slew Staten Island Couple

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Melvin A. Nimer made "no positive identification" of the killer who fatally stabbed he and his wife, authorities have disclosed.

District Attorney John M. Braisted of Richmond County said that at no time as he lay dying of stab wounds in his kitchen did Nimer say who knifed him.

He said the physician did gasp out emergency medical instructions to a policeman. Nimer lived for about 40 minutes after he was stabbed twice the morning of Sept. 2. His wife Lou Jean lived for about three hours. Both were 31 and resided on Staten Island.

The couple's eight-year-old son, Melvin Dean, has told police on three separate occasions that it was he who stabbed his parents as they slept. He reportedly said he killed them with a bread knife, which he washed and returned to its place.

The child is undergoing psychiatric tests at Bellevue Medical Center, where doctors said it could take months for them to find out whether the boy really did commit the double crime.

The psychiatrists hope to determine whether he was mentally capable of slaying his parents, as he claimed when he changed his original story.

The towheaded youngster was returned to New York last week after attending the funeral of his parents in their home town of Orem, Utah. Police said he had first given his incriminating statement to them before he left for the funeral.

Strictly for the Girls

NEW YORK (UPI) — Judges in a nationwide drawing sponsored by a girdle and bra company were unable today to explain why, out of 2,128,658 entry blanks filled out across the country, 738 were submitted by men. The 738 males who tried to win the prize of a trip to Europe received polite letters informing them the drawing was strictly for the girls.

Wife Obtains Divorce; Hubby Likes Pigs Best

Reveal Mode of Life of Pre-Columbian Man 9,000 Years Ago

WASHINGTON—The National Geographic Society announces resumption of excavation at Russell Cave near Bridgeport in northern Alabama where pre-Columbian man lived for some 9,000 years.

Earlier expeditions in the summers of 1956 and 1957 dug 32 feet into the floor of the cave and layer by layer, collected two and a half tons of artifacts. But they did not reach bedrock.

UNCOVER NEW CAVE

There is a possibility that the digging may open up an entirely new cave. A small charge of dynamite precipitated a huge, rumbling rockslide deep within the mountain beneath and behind Russell Cave. No entrance has been found to the new cavern, but it is believed further excavation will find or produce an opening to what might be "an archeological treasure trove of early man."

Fortunately for archeologists, Russell Cave's occupants were messy housekeepers. For thousands of years cave men and cave women cleaned up the floor by scattering fresh soil over the debris. Thus the stone points, bone tools, broken pottery and fish-hooks of each generation were preserved in chronological order.

Charcoal taken from a hearth 23 feet down was radiocarbon-dated at 9,020, plus or minus 350 years.

WARRIOR'S DEATH

The stone-age occupants received little better treatment by their fellows than did the broken pots and tools. From the size and position of the bones and the angle of the lethal weapon, Expedition Leader Miller reconstructed what happened to one of the cave men:

"He was short, naked, and desperately afraid. He ran, bending over to make himself smaller, sensing not so much by sound as by a hunter's instinct that an enemy was close behind. Suddenly a stone-tipped shaft buried itself in the muscles of his back.

"The warrior stumbled on, hid, and somehow escaped. Then he dragged himself, half paralyzed, back to the sanctuary of his dark, vaulted cave home and there he died.

"No grave was dug for him. His body, with the stone spear point still in his back, was simply laid on the cave floor and covered with earth and refuse. Life went on around his resting place, as it had for thousands of years and would for thousands more."

Since the end of World War II the U.S. Army has increased the technical school programs available to recruits to about 150.

Make Fortune by Digging Through Cellars

By PHYLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — You never know where you'll get a great, inspiring, not to say fortune-making idea.

Bud Greenspan and Jimmy Hammerstein (son of lyricist Oscar) can give you some tips.

"Look," says Bud, "in the right cellars."

"And buy," adds Jimmy, "a good tape recorder."

The boys have made a good living practicing what they now preach. They have spent many days in dirty cellars, and many nights over tape recorders to produce two collector's-item record albums.

The first, "The Greatest Moments in Sports," came out in 1955. It was a collection of sounds and voices from the great sports events of the last 50 years, and sold well over a million copies.

They used the tapes of old broadcasts, which had been falling into decay in sooty subterranean chambers of radio stations, and sponsors' warehouses.

For some recorded proof of the greatest shot ever made in basketball (with one second to go, a Rhode Island State player looped the ball through the net to win the game—shooting from under his own basket), the boys found a couple of other significant sounds: the voice of Florence Nightingale, recorded in 1891, and a record of the bugler in the charge of the light brigade.

"In cellars," Bud concludes, "is pure gold."

At the risk of losing potential album buyers, Bud and Jim reveal this opinion of sport after living with the sounds of it for four years:

Boxing is the most dramatic sport in the U. S. today. "In baseball, there's an anti-climactic pause before a pitch. In football, there are several pauses for formation. In boxing, a guy may be getting murdered one moment. The next, he's won."

Of all the material they've gathered for both albums, Bud and Jimmy have withheld, for obvious reasons, only two short segments.

One was a pep talk by Knute Rock-Clem McCarthy calling the wrong reasons, only two short segments.

The other was Stakes.
