Begin Full Ballot Recount Monday

Candidates OK Vote Tabulation of Whole District

Board Group Will Check
Schimmel-Ludy Race in School Election

A recount of all the ballots in Monday's Pontiac School District board election will be conducted next Monday by a board committee.

The decision to recount the whole district was jointly agreed upon in a surprise meeting last night of the two persons involved, Louis H. Schimmel and Lloyd R. Ludy who lost by a scant 12 votes.

Schimmel was conducting a board meeting when Ludy arrived to pick up recount petitions at the board office. Schimmel introduced himself to Ludy and took him aside for a conference in which he proposed the total recount as a mutual project.

ELIMINATE ALL DOUBTS

"We owe it to whoever is the winner to make sure that no doubts be left about his right to hold his seat," Schimmel said. "And we owe it to the people to be certain the man they want is elected."

Schimmel also pointed out a limited recount might give precinct workers in the chosen areas a feeling their accuracy was being questioned.

Ludy agreed entirely, stating he had asked for recounts in three precincts only because they were the largest and not because he had any special reason to doubt the efficiency of the count in them.

He and Schimmel agreed to each secure half the needed number of signatures on the petitions and to file them Saturday. They also agreed to split the cost of the recount which, by law, is $5 per precinct.

The council voted to compile costs of installation of fluoridation equipment.

Storm Delays U. S. Open as Ben Hogan Withdraws

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

TOLEDO, Ohio—Tornado-like winds and heavy rain ripped the Inverness Country Club at 11 o'clock this morning at the USGA National Open, sending thousands of spectators and golfers running for shelter.

The storm struck shortly after Ben Hogan, four-time Open champion, announced he was withdrawing from the tournament due to a back ailment.

Hogan was scheduled to tee off at 9:36 a.m. with Ted Krohl and Gene Littler. Littler and Krohl went out as a twosome. Hogan was then rescheduled to tee off at 10:35, but shortly before this he made the announcement that he was withdrawing altogether.

The huge press and officials' tent wavered with the heavy winds and newspapersmen went to the aid of the wooden supports to prevent the tent from blowing away. The entire floor of the tent was covered with water and all electricity was turned off temporarily.

At 11:20 the wind subsided but the rain continued. First word was that the Open would be suspended for at least three hours.

Warships Break Formation After International Review

NORFOLK, Va.—Ships of the United States and 17 foreign nations broke formation today after a proud international review display that represented perhaps a final fling of military grandeur for many of them.

From the precise anchorage stations that strung them out along a double column 14 miles long they moved to close shoreside moorings.

For many of the ships—the old, the not-so-old and others outdated in the present day pace of jets, missiles and nuclear power—the hours of glory in the international review amounted to a swan song.

WON APPLAUSE

But in steaming toward a precarious future in the military picture they won a round of applause from Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations.

"They're old, yes, and you might say obsolete," said Burke from his review station aboard the tactical command cruiser Northampton. "But if need be, they will still sweep a mine for you or sink a submarine. It's just a harder job with the older equipment."

"The free world is proud of the navies represented here today all dedicated to peace," Defense Secretary said.

Board Approves Salary Hikes, Long Contracts

Starts Court Action to Condemn 15 Lots for School Site

The contracts of the superintendent and assistant superintendent were renewed for five years with salary boosts by the Pontiac Board of Education last night.

The board voted to grant Dr. Dana P. Whitmer a contract which would raise his salary from the present $16,500 to $17,000 next year and $1,000 more for each of the following four years to a maximum of $21,000.

They also increased his expense account from $1,500 to not less than $2,000 for the term of the contract.

Assistant Superintendent Otto C. Hufzler received an increase from $11,100 to $11,600 for next year and $1,000 a year more for the succeeding four years to a maximum of $15,600.

In other wage action, the board approved a new salary schedule for operational personnel which included engineers, custodians and matrons.

The schedule adds 3.4 per cent to their wages to compensate for the increase in the cost of living and will cost some $23,000 in all.

Overtime rates were set at 120 per cent of the hourly rate.

A secretarial salary schedule was also adopted which will cost some $4,200 more in wages. The board denied the secretaries' requests for more accumulated sick leave days and four weeks vacation after 15 years employment.

The board voted to end a long drawn-out series of negotiations for a school site in the Franklin road-Fern street area by voting to seek condemnation action on 15 lots.

OFFERED AT $630

The lots were offered to the board at around $630 each while appraisals set the value at less than half that price.

Rev. J. Allen Parker voiced against condemnation stating the board had purchased a five acre adjacent parcel without condemnation.

Other board members said the original purchase was at 12 per cent over the appraised value.

Roars of Welcome Greet Mayflower II

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (INS)—Booming cannon and the roars of thousands ashore today welcomed Mayflower II as she completed the re-enactment of the arrival of the Pilgrim fathers 337 years ago.

Many thousands of persons, jammed into a solid mass of humanity around the famed Plymouth Rock Memorial, cheered as Mayflower II was eased to a mooring 400 feet offshore by three Coast Guard boats.

At noontime, Capt. Alan Villiers and his 33 plucky crewmen were ferried ashore in the Shappoon, an oversized rowboat.

Signal cannon were set off when the Mayflower arrived. A choir sang "The Star Spangled Banner" from atop Cole's Hill. Sirens and whistles shrieked, church bells tolled. Indians from Oklahoma danced.

It marked the beginning of a 12-day series of celebrations and pageants for the skipper and crew of the Mayflower, touched off this afternoon by the official welcoming ceremonies.

There was a colorful colonial air throughout, with many of the residents garbed in Pilgrim or Indian costumes—to match the 17th Century setting brought by the 1620-type ship which sailed the Atlantic in 54 days as compared to 66 for the original Mayflower.

Two blimps and several airplanes circled overhead in the overcast sky while the waters of the harbor were alive with small boats.

Mayflower II made her final landfall in Plymouth after a speedy sail from Provincetown this morning across Cape Cod Bay.

Mayflower II departed last March from Brixham, England, where she was built on April 20.

Plymouth braced itself for a tourist and visitors' rush of huge proportions to be climaxed at the official ceremonies starting at three o'clock.

Waterfront streets have been closed to traffic in the area of the wooden amphitheater constructed on Cole's Hill overlooking Plymouth Rock, the Pilgrim landing place, and the Mayflower II's moorings.

The 7,000 temporary seats in the new amphitheater were being sold at prices ranging from $2 to $25 for the day, or $100 for the entire 12 days of the pageant. There were still some 3,500 seats available when the booths opened at dawn.

Massachusetts Governor Foster Furcolo arranged for speedy transportation to Plymouth from Cambridge where he attends the Harvard University commencement, so he can join in the official ceremonies.

Slain Mary deCausin Found in Dump by Lovers' Lane

Discovery Ends Hunt by Volunteer Army; Police Quiz Six

The mutilated body of six-year-old Mary deCausin of Ecourse was found at 10:40 a.m. this morning in a secluded lover's lane only two and a half miles from her home.

She was wearing only her white blouse, with her hands tied behind her. She had been raped, and her head was almost completely severed from her body, said Ecourse Township Police.

A resident of the neighborhood, Paul Panter, found the body in the wooded area known as Trenton Road Woods, when he went there to throw out a basket of rubbish.

There was a striking similarity between this and the circumstances surrounding the death of seven-year-old Barbara Gaca, of Detroit, two years ago.

Both were lured away from home, assaulted, stabbed and left in a dump area near a lover's lane.

The Gaca girl was found wrapped in a blanket, left among debris in a West Bloomfield Township dump. Although the Trenton Road Woods area was not a dump, it was occasionally used for this purpose.

Panter told police he had not taken part in the search for the girl, but he knew she was missing. He said he saw her body as he walked back toward the road after throwing away the rubbish.

Police said she was apparently killed at the scene. Her arms were smeared with blood from the wound inflicted when her murderer stabbed her in the throat with what police said was "a knife or some other sharp instrument."

Police roped off the area near the heavily traveled Dix and Trenton roads hoping to keep it clear until they could carry out a thorough search for clues.

The murder weapon has not been found, according to police, but they reported the discovery of "good samples of tire tracks" which most likely belonged to the vehicle driven by her murderer.

Police say they have taken six suspects into custody, one of them being an Orion Township photographer, Orville E. Dibble, 48, of 3806 Coleport St., who owns a pony which he takes with him as a prop for shots of children.

Mary was reported to have been seen following a man with a pony and camera yesterday afternoon near her home at 12546 Helen St., Ecourse Township.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund deCausin Jr., and granddaughter of Detroit Deputy Fire Chief Edmund deCausin Sr. The child's mother reported her missing after she failed to come home for supper last night.

Grocer in Flint Kills Girl, Self

Double Slaying Follows Argument of Couple Engaged for Year

FLINT (U)—A 22-year-old Flint grocery store operator killed his 19-year-old girl friend last night and then shot himself fatally.

Flint Detective Francis Folaran said the body of Miss Barbara Moss was found in Kearsley Park on Flint's east side. The body of her fiancé, John W. Cooper, was found early today 200 yards from his victim.

Cooper and Miss Moss had been engaged for about a year according to relatives. They quarreled earlier this week.

Last night Miss Moss went to a dance in downtown Flint. Cooper met her after the dance and the two went away together.

At 12:40 a.m., Mrs. Mildred C. Cooper, 45, Cooper's mother, called police to report her son came home and said he had just killed his girl friend.

Folaran said Mrs. Cooper told him her son then grabbed a .38 caliber pistol and fled from the house saying, "They'll never get me alive."

Police began a search for Miss Moss and Cooper. Acting on a tip from Mrs. Cooper they directed their search toward the park area.

The body of Miss Moss was found lying face down in a small creek in the park.

Police said she had suffered severe head injuries but it was not known whether she died from a beating or by drowning.

At daylight, police returned to the park and found the body of Cooper. The pistol was found beneath his body.

Squall Leaves Minor Damage

Temperature Scoots 12 Degrees in Storm; Winds Hit 50 M.P.H.

The noon squall that crashed into Oakland County today resulted in a flood of calls to the Sheriff's Dept. reporting fallen trees, wires and minor property damage.

The storm hit with 50 mile-an-hour winds and gusts up to 60, but was over in 10 minutes.

The temperature in Pontiac dropped from 76 to 64 degrees during the 10 minutes.

MAN TRAPPED

Pontiac police report one man was trapped in his car by a falling tree and wire at 38 S. Johnson St., but escaped later unharmed.

Trees and wires were reported down on Lewis; 89 Moreland; and 303 Central.

The lowest temperature recorded in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. was 60 degrees. At 2 p.m. the mercury stood at 57.

4 Men Face Dope Charges

Arrested in Vice Raid on Club Hall Tuesday; Release 49 Others

Four local men, arrested by Pontiac Police vice squad members Tuesday night and early today, will be questioned further today on the charge of violating the state narcotic laws by possessing marihuana.

Two men were arrested following a raid Tuesday night on a local music hall. A total of 51 persons were questioned by vice squad members.

49 RELEASED

Lt. William Nesbitt, head of the vice detail, said 49 persons ranging from 14 to 37 years old, were released pending further investigation after they were picked up by a crew of 11 officers Tuesday.

Robert E. Evans, 32, of 486 Elm St., was freed on a $500 bond yesterday after he waived examination and was bound over to Circuit Court. He appeared before Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum. The higher court arraignment was set for Monday.

Harry H. Hurt, 37, of 103 Fairgrove St., was also arrested Tuesday and will be questioned regarding the marihuana and cigarette paper confiscated by police at his home. Such items were also found in Evans' home.

A quantity of marihuana and a hypodermic needle were also found at the site of the raid. The Progressive Jazz Society, 337 S. Saginaw St. Tuesday night.

The two men arrested about 3 a.m. today were Guillermo Garcia, 23, of 185 S. Parke St., and Alex V. Hernandez, 35, of 27 O'Leary St.

Lt. Nesbitt said one quarter of a pound of marihuana was found in Garcia's home and the accused had a small package containing enough marihuana for about five cigarettes on his person.

What does a halo around the moon mean? Does it indicate warm weather—as some say? Does it mean it is likely to rain?

A halo can, and often does, give a clue about approaching weather. A halo is formed when high, thin clouds move overhead, creating the halo effect. These high clouds are composed of ice crystals, which reflect the moon's light.

Because a warm front always moves in overhead before its mass passes over the immediate surface directly before the leading edge, one can often detect its approach, either in daylight or at night.

At night the high clouds producing the halo produce a sign of probable rain. And during most of the year the approach of a warm front will mean noticeably warmer weather ahead. So the halo often does mean that rain and warmer weather are on the way. It is one of the sky signs which can be read by careful observers—though it is not an infallible forecaster. So warm it is neither rain nor warm weather will follow the preceding night's halo.

Last Money Bill Sent to House

Ups to Over $4 Billion Total Cuts Advocated by Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The last of 12 regular appropriation bills was sent to the House today by its Appropriations Committee, which boosted to about $4,040,000,000 total cuts it has recommended this year in presidential money requests. The bill allots $514,813,023 to finance government public works programs during the fiscal year starting July 1, a reduction of $61,639,977 from the amount President Eisenhower requested. As it has on the past 11 bills, the House is expected to follow closely the committee's recommendations. Not all of the House-passed measures have been passed by the Senate, but that body has adhered generally to House figures on bills it has considered.

The goal of congressional budget-cutters this session is to cut close to five billion dollars from the President's over-all money requests totaling $73,300,000,000.

The bill approved by the committee today provides funds for the Army Engineers' river and harbor and flood control programs, the Reclamation Bureau, the Bonneville Power Administration, the Southeastern Power Administration and the Southwestern Power Administration. Its total is $32,521,977 less than Congress voted for the same purposes this year.

The largest allotment of new funds, $619,325,023, was for water resources programs.

Warships Break Review Formation

retary Charles E. Wilson messaged all ships and aircraft after yesterday's historic muscle flexing. "My congratulations on the smart appearance of all ships and aircraft and for a job well done."

The big day—first of its kind since President Theodore Roosevelt reviewed the ships of six nations here in 1907—went off without a hitch. The sea along Hampton Roads was calm as ice and not of the same temperature.

The heat ranged from 88 to 91 degrees, but the kaleidoscopic scene took precedence over the discomfort.

Never before in history had such a variety of ships lined up for inspection. Never had there been so many national anthems played, flags displayed. The 19-gun salute for Wilson rumbled like thunder over this whole section of the country.

Scores of helicopters flitted about the 14-mile double row of warships.

Deactivation of the Wisconsin will begin in November and the Iowa will leave the line next year. Sec. of the Navy Gates disclosed. When these two are shelved, the Navy will be left without a single battleship in active service.

Missing from the naval show was one of the elements which menaces the survival of the surface ship—the nuclear-powered submarine.

But naval airpower appeared in force in the skies above the battleships, cruisers and destroyers. Huge, long-range planes, which can scan vast areas of the sea and sky with electronic eyes, dived above the international fleet.

Also darting along were the jet attack planes, capable of totting atomic destruction.

The Day in Birmingham Plan Day Camp Program for Playground Activities

BIRMINGHAM—Summer playground activities will inaugurate a new feature when they open June 25. A day camp program will be provided at Springdale Park, Robert E. Girardin, recreation director, revealed today. The program there will include field trips, wood crafts, games, cookouts and other summer activities using the old Girl Scout cabin as park headquarters.

Transportation schedule for the youngsters attending will be a bus leaving Pierce School June 25; Eton Park, June 27; Pembroke Park, June 27; Adams School, June 28, and Quanton School, July 1. The cycle will be repeated in this order.

Fare for the children is 25 cents per person with a limit of 36 each day. Buses leave the playgrounds at 9:30 a.m. returning at 4 p.m. Girardin said, youngsters must be over eight years of age and each must furnish his own lunch.

Birmingham Chapter 220 OES will honor James Roark, chairman of the youth committee of the grand chapter of Michigan and Arlene Weitzel, president of the Oakland County Association, next Wednesday.

The Chapter will open at 4 p.m. to be followed by a reception at the First Baptist Church at 3:15 and a dinner at 6:15.

State grand officers will exemplify the degrees of the chapter at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Temple on Woodward avenue.

Mrs. Eugene Hess, a native of Germany, Mrs. Eugene Hess, 55, of 1723 Maryland Blvd. died in Detroit Memorial Hospital Wednesday.

She was married to Eugene Hess in Germany in 1926 after receiving her degree in law from Munich University. They came to this country 11 years ago from Toledo. Mrs. Hess has been research secretary at the Cranbrook Institute of Science for 10 years. She was a member of the institute, Birmingham Unitarian Church and the League of Women Voters.

She is survived by her husband, a son Walter of Salt Lake City, and a daughter Mrs. Robert Berges of California. Also surviving are two sisters and one brother. Services are under direction of the Manley Bailey Funeral Home and will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday from the Temple of Memories, White Chapel Cemetery. The family has suggested donations to the American Cancer Society.

Fred L. Sage, 69, died Tuesday while visiting in Carmel, California. He made his home at 183 Puritan here, where he had lived since 1925. He was a retired automotive engineer, one of the pioneers entering the field in 1910. At the time of his retirement he was director of engineering for the Dodge Truck Division of Chrysler Motors.

Sage was a lifelong member of the Society of Automotive Engineers and was a Mason. He is survived by his wife Olivia, his mother Mrs. Alice E. Beck of California, a daughter Mrs. George W. In a Press article yesterday, it was incorrectly stated that Leonard Briscoe, 21, admitted driving on the wrong side of the street in a car-truck collision. Truck driver Levy Cadell, 35, of 57 Bagley St., admitted he was on the wrong side of the street, according to police reports.

Industrial Expansion Studied in Detroit

DETROIT—A third big industrial redevelopment project—taking in all of the old 50-acre Packard Motor Car property and 70 surrounding acres as well—is on the city drawing boards today as a possible new step toward expanding Detroit industry.

The multimillion-dollar proposal covers an area bounded by the Ford Expressway to the north, Mt. Elliott to the west, Warren to the south and Canton to the east. The project is under consideration as a major extension to the midtown Milwaukee Junction redevelopment project, although this 240-acre site is located 10 blocks to the west of the Packard property centering at 1580 East Grand Blvd.

Claims Top-Secret Wartime Tests Possible Cause

Lawyer Protests Soldiers' Sterility

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A lawyer claimed today that at least a dozen soldiers who worked on a top-secret wartime experiment are either sterile or have fathered deformed children as a result.

Atty. Raymond Lyddy represents four Connecticut soldiers. One is sterile, Lyddy says. Wives of the others have had six miscarriages, three deformed children and two apparently normal children.

He said the 100 or so members of the tank ordnance company which worked on the project were warned that exposure to rays from the equipment could make them sterile. He said he only had information on about 30 of the soldiers, but about half of those reported some trouble.

He said "the instances of sterility, malformations and deformed children were just tremendous." The New York Daily News, which first reported the story in a copy-righted dispatch from Washington, said Army Secretary Wilber Brucker has been asked to make a full investigation. The request came from the former company commander, Marshal White of Chicago.

The news said the experiment consisted of mounting brilliant arc lights on tanks to blind gunners. The operation was carried out in the 9th Armored Division, which was fighting along the Rhine.

About 456 of the tanks were sent into action, the News said, but they had only limited success in combat and the idea was dropped. The News added that the lights were 13-million-candlepower carbon arc lamps, and "there is strong reason to believe that something more than carbon arc was involved."

In Washington, the Army said no complaints of this type "officially" have been brought to the attention of the Army. If any are received they will naturally be investigated.

Honor Late Senator

ANN ARBOR (AP) — A bronze plaque in memory of the late Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich) will be dedicated Friday at the University of Michigan. The plaque was donated by Delta Upsilon, Vandenberg's fraternity when he attended Michigan. It will be hung in the lobby of Haven Hall, where the political science department is located. Vandenberg died in 1952.

$45 National Issue

DETROIT (AP) — To collect $45 fine from Nick Nicksich of Wyandotte for not registering his 25-foot cabin cruiser for five years, the Coast Guard tried to collect for nine months, appealed for help and was turned down by the U.S. Attorney's Office because the amount was too small, and successfully asked the U.S. Attorney General's Office in Washington to file suit for the money. Nicksich paid without awaiting trial.

Police Question 4 About Holdup

Two Deckerville Men Say They Were Robbed, Beaten by Thieves

DECKERVILLE (U)—Four young men were questioned today about the robbery and beating of two Deckerville men last Sunday. They were picked up in a police chase yesterday.

Sheriff Quincy Hoffman of Sanilac County chased and caught a car containing the four. However, the driver, James A. Wilson, 24, of Lexington, fled on foot, the sheriff said.

Wilson later was caught in a nearby woods. He was charged and arraigned on contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He pleaded guilty, was fined $100 and sentenced to five days in jail. He was rearrested immediately and charged with rape.

The sheriff said his companions were Edward Weiss, 22, of Lexington; Maurice Germain, 18, of Lexington; and Wilson's 16-year-old brother.

Weiss and Germain were charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Weiss pleaded innocent and was held under $1,000 bond. Germain pleaded guilty was fined $100 and drew a five-day jail term.

Sheriff Hoffman said a 16-year-old girl riding with the men also was taken into custody. He said a 15-year-old girl, picked up by Wilson, broke away and told police she had been raped.

The sheriff said he was answering the call about the alleged rape when he saw the alleged rapist.

Hoffman stopped them for questioning in the robbery of John Draback, 38, and Lawrence Wright, 36, both of Deckerville. Draback and Wright said they were stopped by four men Sunday night. He said the four took $14.80 and then slugged Wright.

Polio Foundation Head Marries Therapy Chief

NEW YORK (U)—Basil O'Connor, 65, head of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, was married yesterday to Miss Hazel Royall, 43.

They sail today on a European honeymoon.

The bride is director of functional therapy at the Warm Springs Foundation in Warm Springs, Va.

It was a second marriage for both. O'Connor's first wife died several years ago. The new Mrs. O'Connor recently was divorced from Charles Dudley Stephens, II, of Tallahassee, Fla.

Chrysler Opens Savings Plan

Stock-Saving System Extended to Personnel in Canada

WINDSOR, Ont. (U)—Chrysler Corporation of Canada has announced a stock purchase and savings plan for salaried personnel. President Ron. W. Todgham said the company will augment employee savings by contributions ranging from 40 to 60 per cent of the amount saved.

Participation is open to salaried employees with at least one year's service. More than 2,300 Chrysler of Canada employees in Windsor and throughout Canada will be eligible on a payroll deduction basis.

LIKE U.S. PLAN

Corporation participation will vary from the minimum of 40 per cent to a maximum of 60 per cent of the employee's personal contribution, depending upon the percentage of net profit in relation to net sales in the calendar year prior to stock purchase. This is similar to Chrysler's U.S. version of the plan.

Eligible employees may invest and save up to 10 per cent of their base salaries. Savings are turned over to a trustee for the purchase of stock and Canadian savings bonds. Interest and dividends will be credited to each employee's account.

Employees may withdraw their own investment in bonds and stock at any time, although they must remain in the plan for five years to gain the full benefit of the corporation's contribution.

Name Parrot Fever in Woman's Death

BLOOMSBURG, Pa. (U)—Medical authorities here say an autopsy on a 62-year-old retired school teacher who died yesterday "indicates she was the victim of parrot fever."

Mrs. Helen Kremer and her husband Ralph, who is reported in "very weak condition" at Bloomsburg Hospital, were stricken 11 days ago.

Dr. C. L. Johnston, state medical officer for Columbia County, said they bought a parakeet from a department store here several weeks ago.

Hospital authorities said the couple had the normal symptoms of the disease but an analysis of blood serum would have to be completed before a positive diagnosis could be made.

AEC Requests H-Power Funds

Says Research Needed Before Nuclear Energy May Be Used

WASHINGTON (U)—The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) wants Congress to give it another five million dollars to buy facilities for research in harnessing the hydrogen bomb for peacetime use.

The AEC also says it is going to spend $21,700,000 for a year of long-range experiments in harnessing the power of H-reaction.

A commission spokesman said yesterday this was the first time a price tag on this work had been disclosed to the public. The figures, along with much detail on previously announced private atomic power projects, came out of hearings of a Senate-House atomic energy sub-committee.

AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss said recently that control of the fusion reaction to produce abundant cheap power is a goal for the "somewhat distant future."

He said he is confident the atomic fusion power plants now projected or in their infancy will be built and will have paid for themselves before fusion power from H-reaction makes them obsolete.

While the proposed legislation requiring detailed information on AEC financial participation in power projects has yet to be acted on by either house, the commission gave the subcommittee yesterday the sort of data the bill calls for.

Divorced Woman Aids Ex-Husband Further Career

LOS ANGELES (U)—A woman who divorced her architect husband on grounds of extreme cruelty is going to give him $1,200 a month for the next 10 years to help him in his career.

"He has a great talent and should have the opportunity to develop it," said Mrs. Julianna Kemper Beckett yesterday in court. She said the support payments for William Sutherland Beckett would come from a trust fund established for her by her family.

Mrs. Beckett was awarded the contested divorce after testifying that Beckett had "an unmanageable temper" and struck her on several occasions. They were married in 1948 and have three children.

Teenager Wins Battle With Speed Boat Prop

Teenager Steve Schych, of 13211 Hemmingway St., Redford, miraculously escaped serious injury yesterday on Elizabeth Lake when a power boat ran over him in the water.

Steve told Waterford Township police he was helping a friend, Ralph Kauffer, get up on a pair of water skis at the back of the boat.

Patty Leone, of 4704 Sherbourne Ave., driver of the boat, told police she was backing up slowly and did not see Schych.

The propeller hit the boy between the knee and hip. He was taken to Pontiac General Hospital, treated and released.

Stock Market Dip Called Indicative of Faith in Ike

NEW YORK (U)—Meads Alcorn, says the stock market reaction to President Eisenhower's upset stomach was indicative of the people's confidence in the President's policies.

Alcorn, addressing business and industrial leaders at the Union Club yesterday, said: "I pose as no authority on the stock market, but it seemed significant to me that on Monday a news flash from Washington could, in a matter of minutes, send the Dow-Jones average into a tailspin on Wall Street and then back up again after it became evident that all the President had was a 'tummy' ache."

Defending the administration's $71,800,000,000 budget, Alcorn said it represented a per capita cost of $416 compared with $469 for the last Democratic budget.

Actor Slips in Bathtub

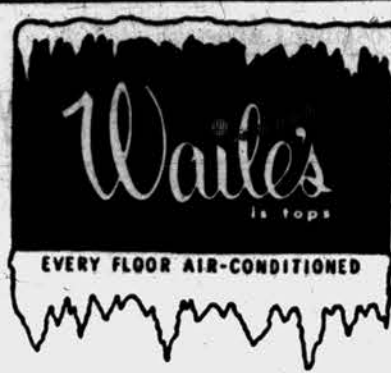

TOKYO (U)—Film actor Robert Wagner slipped in his hotel room bathtub last night and hurt his foot. A studio official said Wagner, star of the film "Stopover Tokyo," now being made here wouldn't be able to work for the rest of the week. He suffered a broken blood vessel and severely bruised muscles.

India has boosted customs duties on "luxuries" such as wines, watches, motorcycles and "bigger" cars, New Delhi reports.

Andy Griffith May Be World's Top Pessimist

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—I like Andy Griffith because he's probably the most honest, most pessimistic movie star I ever met. Could be—some folks'd say—he's too honest.

"Gonna be doing any movies this summer?" I asked Andy when we met recently, right after "A Face in the Crowd" came out.

"Nobody's offered me any movies to do," Andy said, talking just like he did in "No Time for Sergeants." "Where you gonna be workin' then?" "Don't look like I'm gonna be working."

I congratulated Andy on his success in "A Face in the Crowd." He thanked me, but to him the wonder of it all was that he didn't collapse of fear while making it.

"I didn't go to pieces and get sick at my stomach and all," he said.

"The greatest fear I have," Andy went on, "is of rejection. I was afraid the Hollywood crew would say, 'What's so great about that ugly New York actor?' or 'Why was his New York show such a hit?' I get so frightened that I get sick."

"Did you see 'Sergeants' when Charles Hohman took your part?" I asked Andy.

It was the wrong question. "I saw part of it," nodded Andy gloomily. "I'm sorry to say this—but the same laughs was in it when he did it!"

He sure is pessimistic.

'Beware of Wild Child' Sign Fails of Support

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Climaxing a heated debate on the floor of the Wisconsin Legislature, Assemblyman Elmer Genzmer offered a tongue-in-cheek amendment to a bill which sets penalties for vandalism committed by children. Under Genzmer's proposal, a child would be exempt from damages if he wore a sign reading: "Beware of Wild Child." The proposal was ruled out of order.

Mexico Hopes to Offer Good Drinking Water

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government's department of water resources plans to spend $16,000,000 in 1957 on giving good drinking water to more of the population.

Many, especially in small villages, now are forced to drink dirty and unhealthy water from tanks and rivers — and have to carry it long distances in some cases.

Chile's first railroads were constructed in 1850.

MIAMI — Salt-water sports fishing in Florida is a $200,000,000-a-year industry, according to a survey by the state board of conservation and the University of Miami. The estimate was based on interviews with more than 6,000 fishermen.

Snubbed in Italy, Rates Applause Here

It's different in Italy. One of Rome's patrician blues slammed the portals of her palace on her own son because he married ELSA MARTINELLI.

ELSA may not mean much to you and she didn't to Countess MARGHERITA MANCINELLI SCOTTI DI SAN VITO, either.

That's the rub.

Countess MARGHERITA MANCINELLI SCOTTI, etc., etc., comes from a distinguished line of Italian ancestors and little ELSA was a slum-born Roman. Not a single one of her forebears was a diplomat, a merchant prince or the possessor of a great title.

Hence the snub.

Of course, the girl has become a well known actress in Italy and for the past two years has been supporting her mother, eight sisters and a brother. Her mother-in-law wants no part of the comely little lass because of her inconsequential origin, because she is an actress and because she was threatened with a jail sentence when she told off a traffic officer who gave her a ticket.

In this country, a young woman with enough stuff to support a huge family on her father's death would win the right of admission to any social set anywhere. America would accept her unseen and with loud applause and great gusto after an heroic achievement like this.

Furthermore, America could hardly shake off a son's wife just because she had an altercation with a traffic officer. We believe in the sanctity of the law and the authority of traffic officer. But we'd hardly impose disinheritance because of so trivial an offense.

The U.S. of A. is still the best, the most and the finest.

Perhaps we deserve all this international superiority. Smug?

Canada's Election

No one expected the Liberal Government of Prime Minister St. LAURENT to be defeated in Canada's June 10 national election.

Though there was no burning question involved, what was expected was a reduced majority for the government which has been in power for 22 years. The Conservatives won 49 new seats for a total of 110, to the Liberals 103—a loss of 67. The Socialist Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (CCF) captured 24 seats, the Social Credit party (Socreds) 19 and Independents 6.

Though Prime Minister St. LAURENT is not required to resign under Canada's parliamentary system, he is expected to do so and to recommend that Gov. Gen. VINCENT MASSEY ask JOHN Diefenbaker, leader of the Conservatives, to form a new cabinet. Nine of the 17 Liberal cabinet members lost their elections. Of the top leaders only 75-year-old Prime Minister St. LAURENT and Foreign Secretary LESTER, PEARSON were re-elected.

Both CCF and Secred leaders indicated some support for the Conservatives. But it may be that Mr. Diefenbaker would not want to depend on their votes and may ask for another election soon in an effort to win a decisive majority.

John Diefenbaker, 61 years old and party chief for only nine months, is a Saskatchewan lawyer. He conducted a dynamic and tireless campaign, making more than 100 speeches in his 20,000 mile tour across Canada.

What made the campaign noteworthy was the moderate and reasonable tone of the candidates' speeches.

Vaccine Being Made to Combat Asian Flu

The World Health Organization (WHO) through its global network of influenza centers and working under urgency, has isolated the new London and has developed a vaccine.

This vaccine now is being manufactured by a London hospital and United States health authorities are planning to provide a supply in this country for use next winter.

"Asian flu" is sweeping India, the Philippines and Japan and is expected to reach Europe and the United States sooner or later. Fairly mild at the present time, it has spread to Australia and onto ships in Far Eastern waters. But with peoples constantly traveling, communicable disease no longer can be localized.

Working with governments, this United Nations agency already has done much to halt the spread of other contagious and infectious diseases. It is good to know that WHO is in the forefront in this influenza battle.

Our greatest need: The spirit of '76 and prices of '36.

One of the finest rose gardens in Pontiac is that of Marsh at 18 Illinois Ave. Its 25 varieties in 15 colors will be at the top of their beauty during the coming week, and they're well worth the inspection of every rose lover—and who isn't? They also have other flowers, but Frank tells me that roses are their main ambition. They've made a diligent study of rose culture and cultivation, and their garden proves it. You're invited to look them over, and share in the glory the Marshes get out of it.

David Lawrence Says:

Judicial Chaos Becomes Complex

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court added several complexities to the judge-made chaos of our times Monday when it handed down a decision freeing two American women who murdered their soldier husbands. The reason for acquitting them is that they were denied a civilian "trial by jury" while living in military quarters overseas.

Eight justices participated in the decision and the ninth refrained because he had not been on the court long enough to hear the whole case. But the ruling and dissenting opinions do not give anyone the slightest inkling of what is or is not "the supreme law of the land" on this particular issue.

Four justices ruled that the wives of servicemen cannot be tried overseas or anywhere else by court-martial but must be tried by civilian courts—either foreign or specially provided for by the United States.

Two justices agreed to dispose of the case by freeing the two women because they said they had not had a jury trial and in a capital offense—punishable by death—there has to be a jury trial. They declared that other kinds of offenses committed by civilians attached to the armed forces might possibly come within military jurisdiction but declined to be specific about future cases.

BRUTAL MURDER
Two dissenting justices said the evidence showed that two women "brutally killed their husbands, both American soldiers, while stationed with them in quarters furnished by our armed forces on its military installations in foreign lands."

These justices wanted to uphold the ruling of the military tribunal which had sent the women to prison for life.

Now it so happens that these two cases were decided the other way—the military court was upheld—in a decision handed down a year ago by the Supreme Court.

The high court seldom reverses itself. If it does, it usually contends that some new facts have been brought out that weren't available before. This time the majority of the justices say frankly their previous decision was wrong.

Justice Frankfurter in his separate opinion goes to considerable pains, however, to show that the ruling rendered a year ago was based on a previous decision in another case that really doesn't resemble the facts or circumstances surrounding the present case.

One wonders after reading that explanation why justices didn't give some such explanation when they reversed the famous opinion upholding "separate but equal" facilities in schools.

This decision was rendered originally in 1896 and was then reversed in 1954 when the court merely said it believed "sociological" considerations had somehow grown more important—a concession.

LIL' ONES
Now that I can reach it, what'll we put in it?

tion to expediency. Frankfurter in his opinion last Monday, however, in arguing for the idea of giving explanations when reversals by the court occur, quoted approvingly of the following concept:

"If a precedent involving a black horse is applied to a case involving a white horse, we are not excited. If it were an elephant, then we would venture into thought. The difference might make a difference. We really are concerned about precedents chiefly when their facts differ somewhat from the facts in the case at bar."

The foregoing will be quoted again and again to point out that the Supreme Court in reversing the "separate but equal" doctrine three years ago just didn't have any new facts but decided to go along with the "trend of the times."

Justice Frankfurter in his latest opinion warns belatedly that reversals must be based on judicial principle and he adds: "Legal doctrines are not self-generated abstract categories. They do not fall from the sky; nor are they pulled out of it. They have a specific judicial origin and etiology."

Dr. William Brady Says:

B-12 for Secondary Anemia Like Air in Leaky Tire

"I have secondary anemia and have been taking vitamin B-12 for 3½ years. Have not noticed any improvement as yet. Should I continue?" (D. V.)

If no improvement in at most 3½ months, you will probably notice none in 3½ years or 3½ decades.

Anyway, taking vitamin B-12 or any other medicine for secondary anemia is like constantly pumping more air into a leaky tire.

In some instances, anemia is primary, that is to say due to some fault or failure in the normal blood production or development in the bone marrow, spleen, and liver.

One type of primary anemia is called pernicious anemia which can now be controlled, virtually cured, by (1) eating raw liver, (2) hypodermic injections of liver extract or (3) vitamin B-12 tablets in courses from time to time when the blood strength gets low enough.

Two other types of anemia may be called primary—first chlorosis, the green sickness, formerly prevalent in girls, rarely encountered today; and second, hypochromic or nutritional deficiency anemia, the gray sickness.

GRAY SICKNESS
The gray sickness occurs usually in women who are fortyish and plumb discouraged with their complexion, hair, and nails. They need my pamphlet on The Gray Sickness—available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A woman with that gray look needs iron and ascorbic acid (vitamin C) and vitamin B complex every day from now on, to overcorrect her nutritional deficiency.

Secondary anemia is caused by: (1) frequent bleeding, as from peptic ulcer or internal piles or, in women, from excessive menstrual bleeding or irregular menstruation.

(2) Frequent or habitual use of drugs which destroy blood corpuscles, such as acetylsalicylic acid and phenacetin—the pain-killing ingredients in many nostrums indiscriminately used to relieve headache, neuralgia, aching joints or muscles, backache, fatigue, anxiety, worry.

(3) Chronic or masked carbon monoxide anoxia from breathing air polluted with carbon monoxide (colorless and odorless) in bedroom, kitchen, shop, office, automobile.

(4) New hazards, at home and at work, such as the use of carbon tetrachloride and other solvents in a place not thoroughly ventilated.

Finally, secondary anemia occurs in most cases of tuberculosis—sometimes the anemia is diagnosed and unsuccessfully treated long before the lung trouble is recognized.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan. (Copyright 1957)

Men Complain of Wife's Tardiness

Roy's wife is probably an exception to the rule, for most husbands still complain about the tardiness of wives. Discuss this case in your social or church groups and then take a secret poll. But make it secret, for many husbands are diplomats and simply "Yes" their wives along.

Case V-310: Roy R. Rollinger, aged 48, is the talented head of a large tire company at Anderson, Indiana.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "you recently had a very interesting article about wives who are late for appointments."

"Mrs. Rollinger and I have been married for over 25 years, and have seldom been late for an appointment, including our attendance at church."

"In several instances we feel we have been of assistance to friends who are habitually tardy."

"As we see it, there are two reasons for this. The first is the bad habit of being late."

"But some people think it is a breach of etiquette to be on time or the first person to arrive at a gathering."

"We have pointed out to friends that if a person keeps 10 other folks waiting for even 6 minutes,

'Think of Birds Before Spraying'

Where would we be without birds and bees? I could write and write about all of God's creations, including humans. But all I'm going to do is appeal to the human race to just think about the birds and bees before they decide to have lakes and swamps sprayed for the indestructible mosquitoes. Mosquitoes cannot be destroyed completely, but birds and bees can.

'Married Student Deserves Praise'

Be proud of the married high school student. Obviously he wants to make something of himself—the diploma is an important step. It takes a lot of courage to ignore sneers and snickers of classmates. Others don't know the work married students have other than homework. He must study harder to catch up to classmates. Consequently, he usually gets better marks and learns more. Any honor student should be looked up to with pride, married or not.

So long as the personal life of married students isn't discussed openly with classmates, what harm can there be? Isn't free public education open to everyone who wishes it?

'Accept Psychology Despite No Gain'

I wonder how the commercialized countries of the world can call psychology a medicine when it shows a heavy loss all along the line, from mental quirks of World War I, when psychologists first gained recognition, to the panty raids in colleges and the 49 per cent of representatives in the nation's diseases of young people under 20 at the present time. Other medicines must show a gain to be accepted.

Strongly Favors Addiction Stories

I heard someone comment that articles about teenage drug addiction overemphasize the situation, especially in the lurid descriptions of the effects and aftereffects. The person who said that is all wet.

If more youngsters would read such articles at an impressionable age, there would be far less teenage addicts. Even before I was old enough to fully realize what drug addiction is, I learned through such articles that it was something one didn't fool around with, under any circumstances. That was back in the days when people weren't trying so hard to protect youngsters from the unpleasant things in life.

I can even remember before and after pictures of dope addicts, and believe me, they were might convincing. Modern child specialists may say such things cause psychological traumas, but there are times when a trauma in the right direction is the best thing in the world for a child.

Wondering

Says Sanitation Should Be First

We live within the city limits but still have rural facilities. You don't have to move to Bloomfield Knolls or Walton Heights to have septic tank troubles. The city will come right out and tell you the land isn't suitable for septic tanks, but why did they let houses be built without testing the soil for proper drainage?

The sidewalks were put in in 1923 and the houses were built in 1943. They must do something soon to remedy the situation—people can't go on living like this. It certainly isn't very healthy or sanitary, either.

You call the city to complain and the next day the road grader comes out to make you think they're going to do something. Any time of the year, whether drizzle or downpour, we're without plumbing facilities. It can be most embarrassing. This should be declared a public necessity and be first above anything else.

Safety Official Suggests Driving Rules

BY NED H. DEARBORN
President, the National Safety Council

Our statistical experts at the National Safety Council estimate that about 50,000,000 fun-loving Americans will happily seat themselves behind the wheels of their cars this spring and summer and take off for somewhere, far or near.

Will you be one of them?

If so, more power to you! Have a wonderful vacation, have lots of fun, catch a lot of fish or souvenirs or sunbathe, and come back to work refreshed, revitalized and rarin' to go.

But above all, be sure to come back!

The reason I say that is that last spring and summer at least 20,000 men, women and children got into their cars and started out for somewhere — and they didn't come back for the simple reason that they had a traffic accident.

Please don't write me off as a killjoy and a gloomy gus for making that statement. For the whole purpose of this article — and the whole purpose of the National Safety Council — is to make your driving completely happy by making it completely accident-free.

TRIPS RUINED

One thing is sure — even a little accident can ruin a trip or a vacation! And a serious accident can ruin your life!

So it's to your selfish interest not to have an accident at any time.

Last year 40,000 Americans were killed in traffic accidents, and 1-400,000 were injured. This toll simply must be reduced if America is to continue to hold up its head as a leader among civilized nations!

May I suggest some simple and practically painless safety rules that will help make your vacation free from an accident?

1. Before you leave on any trip of any length, be sure your car is in safe and efficient working condition. If you yourself are not a mechanic, take it to your garage and have it checked over for tires, brakes, windshield wipers, steering mechanism, and everything else that might cause trouble or an accident. This is money well spent.

2. Then get — and keep — yourself in good shape for the trip, too. Get a good night's rest before you start. Get plenty of rest and sleep throughout the trip. Make sure your glasses are right. Make sure you don't have some ailment that may make it unsafe for you to drive.

DON'T OVERDRIVE

3. Don't overdrive, either in speed or endurance. Take it easy all the way. Stop in time each day, before you become tired. If possible, have someone spell you at the wheel. If you find yourself getting drowsy or tired, or bored, stop for a cup of coffee or a soft drink.

4. Above all, don't drink if you drive!

5. Map out your day's trip before you start, and aim for some spot for the next night's stopover that you can reach without too much stress and strain.

6. Take time to keep your windshield and light lenses clean.

CHECK CAR OFFEN

7. Have your car checked often for oil, water, battery and any sign of wear or tear. This not only is a safety measure, but it saves a lot of trouble.

8. If the children are with you, take things along for them to keep busy with. And don't take your eyes off the road or your hands off the wheel to arbitrate disputes or to direct them to their proper places in the car.

9. If the weather turns bad, or you run into bad roads, face up to it and slow down. Don't try to get so far so fast, regardless. Speeding is going too fast for conditions, regardless of how slowly you may be driving.

10. Be courteous and patient in traffic and see how much more relaxed and happy you'll be. Your family will be happier, too! A smile is one of the greatest safety devices ever invented.

Now, those 10 rules aren't too tough to follow, are they?

I urge you to use them in your driving. I guarantee they'll pay off tenfold.

Army Displays Its New Rifle

M-14 Will Lighten Load of Infantry, Increase Firepower of Troops

DETROIT (AP)—The Army has developed new small arms that will lighten the load of the American foot soldier and increase his firepower.

The new weapons were given a public demonstration — the first time outside the Aberdeen, Md., Proving Grounds—in tests staged in the Detroit area this week as part of the training program for military reserve personnel.

The firepower tests showed the deadly effectiveness of the M-14 rifle which has double the firepower of the Garand M-1 rifle used in World War II. The M-14—known as the T-44 during development—weighs about a pound less than the Garand.

A new feature of the M-14 is a flash hider that prevents the enemy from detecting the foot soldier's position.

The demonstration also showed the firepower superiority of the M-15, a heavy barrel version of the M-14, and the M-60 general purpose machinegun.

The M-15 will replace the Browning automatic rifle. The M-60 will replace all types of the Browning .30 caliber ground machineguns.

The Army's new small arms are available now in "very limited quantity" for test purposes. But eventually they will become standard equipment for the American foot soldier as soon as Congress appropriates funds for their production.

One feature of the new weapons is that they use 7.62 mm ammunition, which has been standardized for use of the NATO troops.

On hand for the tests were officers from all branches of the armed forces in the Detroit area.

A statement issued by the Army military district here said the Army's whole family of small arms have been relegated to the limbo of museum pieces along with the flintlocks of our pioneer fathers" by the development of the new weapons.

News of Service Personnel Seaway Costs Up, Commission Told

Robert Ish, Navy Aviation Machinist's Mate and Jet Mechanic, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merie Ish of 1290 Thayer Rd., Ortonville, is now home on leave.

Ish, who recently was promoted to the rank of third class petty officer, is stationed at the Naval Air Station, Cecil Field, Jacksonville, Fla.

A 1955 Ortonville High School graduate, he enlisted in September, 1955, receiving basic training at Great Lakes, Ill.

Leon Filhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Filhart, of 1121 Hädley Rd. also of Ortonville, is now receiving Marine basic training at Camp Pendleton, San Diego, Calif.

He was graduated from Ortonville High School in May, 1957.

Army Pvt. Gary M. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Williams, of 3300 Elizabeth Lake Rd., recently qualified as a paratrooper at Fort Bragg, N.C. He received wings after completing the 82nd Airborne Division's Jump School, which included five training jumps. Prior to entering the service in December, 1956, he attended Pontiac High School.

Roy W. Gullett, Jr., Navy Ensignman 2C, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gullett, of 287 S. Jessie St. and husband of the former Miss Shirley J. Sisson, of Pinconning, recently arrived at Toledo, Ohio aboard the coastal minesweeper USS Turkey.

There the ship was delivered to the Naval Reserve and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center.

The Turkey, which swept mines along the Japanese Coast during World War II, had visited New York; Halifax, Nova Scotia; Montreal, and Toronto, Canada.

Seaman Apprentice Frederick T. Collette, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Collette, of 75 N. Winding Dr., is attending electronics school at Great Lakes, Ill.

He graduated from Waterford High School in 1956 and prior to enlisting in April, 1957, was a student at Lawrence Institute of Technology.

He may be written: Frederick T. Collette, Jr. SA 5163559, SSC Building 311, Barracks 402-408, United States Navy Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

ANN ARBOR—The Great Lakes Commission, at a meeting in Ann Arbor recently, heard of developments relating to the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Construction costs and estimated operating costs have increased since the project was authorized in 1954. The U. S. share of construction costs has jumped $35 million to $140 million. Canada's share from $200 million to $285 million, because of inflation, changes in basic designs, and additions to original plans. Estimates of operating costs—including depreciation, interest, repayment of borrowed money—have jumped from $16.8 million to $24.3 million.

Increased attention is being given to tolls that will be charged Seaway users, although proposed toll structures will not be announced until 1958, after public hearings have been held.

The Corps of Engineers has begun deepening connecting channels to 27 feet in the Detroit, St. Clair and St. Marys Rivers. The $135.8 million project to be finished by 1963, will permit ocean-going vessels to reach the upper Lakes ports.

A comprehensive survey of Great Lakes harbors by the engineers, including present and potential bulk and general cargo traffic, is slated for completion in 1958.

New French Premier Confirmed

PARIS (U) — A resigned, reluctant National Assembly early today confirmed Maurice Bourgès-Maunoury as France's 22nd post-war premier by a majority of less than 50 votes. The action ended a three-week Cabinet crisis.

Both the preballot debate and the 240-194 vote itself reflected the Assembly's lack of enthusiasm. Seventy-three deputies abstained.

Bourgès-Maunoury felt 58 votes short of an absolute majority of the Assembly's 595 members. But only a majority of those voting was needed to install him.

SAME AS MOLLET

Bourgès-Maunoury's program on which he took office virtually duplicates that of his predecessor, Socialist Guy Mollet. The new Cabinet chief, who was Mollet's defense minister, promised the Assembly continued vigorous military action against the Algerian rebels, limited political reforms in the rebellious North African territory, new taxes and fewer imports to rebuild France's almost-gone stock of foreign exchange.

The new Premier got the support of all but eight members of his own Radical Socialist party, a middle road group. He also was backed by the Socialists and most of the conservative Independent Republicans.

Opposing him were the Communists, the extreme right-wing Poujadists and the Assembly's lone wolf, former Premier Pierre Mendès-France. The other parties abstained.

YOUTH MOVEMENT

Bourgès-Maunoury at 42 becomes the country's youngest premier since 1883. The average age of his 14-man Cabinet is less than 50 and includes 37-year-old Felix Gaillard in the key spot of finance minister.

Bourgès-Maunoury's first big test will come when the new tax program is presented. That was the issue on which the conservatives toppled the Mollet government because it wanted to put new taxes on big business.

Technical Oversight Holds Up School Bill

LANSING (U) — Speaker George M. Van Beursem said today a legislative oversight has been discovered that will require withholding of the 1957-58 school aid bill from Gov. Williams until after June 27.

That is the date the legislature returns for the last gasp of its 1957 regular session.

Van Beursem said a necessary technical motion for amendment of the title of the bill to conform with its substance was made neither in the House nor Senate, when the bill completed legislative passage on May 25. The lawmakers will be asked to remedy the oversight when they return to the capitol.

Miner Found Dead After Day and Half

SHAMOKIN, Pa. (U) — A 19-year-old miner buried under 50 tons of shale for 36 hours in a coal mine cave-in was found dead last night.

Hope had waned for Frank Putnock as the searchers, working in shifts, were hampered by sliding rock and walls of the shaft that had to be shored.

However, Mrs. Elizabeth Putnock was waiting by the cave-in when her son's body was brought out. Also standing by were friends, relatives and the miner's teen-age girl friend, Jean Kershner.

Reject Thorpe Bid to Return to Mexico

MT. CLEMENS (U) — The State Attorney General's office has rejected an offer by Floyd Thorpe to return to Mexico to help recover some $55,000 in embezzled state money.

Thorpe, held in the Macomb County jail with his wife, Anna, did not make the offer of aid to authorities but voiced it in conversation with others.

Joseph A. Sullivan, deputy state attorney general, said the missing money "is available. We can get it without sending Thorpe down there."

The money represents an investment by Thorpe in a hotel in Mazatlan, Mexico.

Thorpe and his wife are held on charges of embezzling $80,811 in state funds. Mrs. Thorpe is the former secretary of state branch office manager at St. Clair Shores. The Thorpes are accused of fleeing March 2, 1956 with receipts from the sale of auto license plates.

Sullivan said the state has hired attorneys in Mexico City to negotiate for the return of the money. To permit Thorpe to return could result in costly extradition proceedings if he balked at returning, Sullivan said.

The largest of 53 bells in the carillon of the Parliament building at Ottawa, Canada, weighs 22,400 pounds.

Pickets Invade Union Property

Port Huron Member Joins Rebel Pontiac Teamsters

Pickets in front of Pontiac Teamsters Local 614 Hall, 1410 S. Telegraph Rd., grew bolder today and invaded an area posted "for members only."

One picket began marching back and forth on a parking area which is conspicuously posted with large signs.

ENTITLED TO WALK

He loudly maintained that he was a union member and just as much entitled to walk on the local's property as anyone inside the building.

No effort to dislodge him was made by the local's officers, and sheriff's deputies at the scene said a warrant for trespassing would have to be sought by the officers if they wished to remove him.

Another development was the arrival on the picket line of a Port Huron Teamster member. He said he is unhappy with rank and file representation at Port Huron Local 339 and had come to join the Pontiac rebels in sympathy with their aims.

A comic note was supplied by another unidentified man who stood stubbornly alongside of the Port Huron picket and told reporters he was an official of Local 339 sent to keep an eye on their wandering member.

The picketing is now in its third day. The rebels are protesting the placing of the local under a trusteeship by James Hoffa, Teamster vice president.

Plan Camp for Crippled

ANN ARBOR (U) — The Washtenaw County Society for Crippled Children said Wednesday it will open a 10-day camp for crippled persons between the ages of 8 and 30 at nearby Patterson Lake Aug. 20.

Navy Calls It 'Isolated Incident' Chinese Reds' Artillery Hits American Plane

WASHINGTON (U) — Navy officials described an isolated incident today the shots fired by a Communist Chinese shore battery at an American plane which they said apparently strayed off course and was damaged slightly.

They expressed the opinion, based on early dispatches, that the incident is not likely to produce any significant military repercussions.

Say Ice Cream Man Violated Ordinance

While a six-year-old boy, injured by an auto yesterday is in Pontiac General Hospital, Pontiac police today intend to sign a complaint against an ice cream truck driver, Albert Whitehurst, accusing him of violating a city ordinance which requires an assistant to ride with him to safeguard children and traffic hazards.

Ricky White Liley, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Liley, 694 Parkwood, was rushed to the hospital by the Fire Department's emergency crew. He was reported in fair condition today at the hospital where he has internal injuries.

Driver of the auto which the child supposedly ran into after he darted from the ice cream truck and into the street was Maureen S. Fleming, 23, of 801 Scottwood St., according to police.

The accident happened about 5:45 p.m. yesterday at Scottwood near Pennsylvania streets.

Boosts Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (U) — For 49 weeks every year Harvey Tyrrell walks and rides throughout virtually every part of Atlantic City in his role as a city policeman.

Come vacation time where does Harvey go? "I'm going to spend three glorious weeks in Atlantic City," he said.

The Navy announced yesterday that the plane, flying from the carrier Hornet, was "fired on and slightly damaged by Communist Chinese antiaircraft" in the area of the Formosa Strait.

"It appears that the aircraft concerned was to the westward of its plotted position, being about eight miles off the coast when it was fired on," the Navy announcement added. It said the plane, otherwise unidentified, was on a routine training flight at the time, and returned quickly to the carrier.

Navy officials here said that the incident could result in diplomatic representations — the Chinese charging a violation of their air space and the United States countering with a protest against an unprovoked attack on an American aircraft.

The messages from the 7th Fleet which had operational control of the force including the carrier Hornet, referred to yesterday's happenings as an "incident." The Hornet also reported that after the slightly damaged American plane returned to its mother carrier training exercises underway at the time of the incident were resumed.

Train Runs Over, Kills Birmingham Mother

A 35-year-old Birmingham mother of five died beneath the wheels of a Grand Trunk and Western Railroad engine shortly after midnight last night at the Birmingham depot.

Mrs. William Brown, of 2043 Yorkshire Rd., jumped from weeds along the track, and fell in front of his train, engineer Thomas Kruse of Detroit told police.

Says Most 'Pests' Are Beneficial

U. of Michigan Zoologist Describes 'Mammals of Great Lakes Region'

ANN ARBOR UP—Weasels and skunks might like an occasional chicken dinner, but since they're helpful mice too, they're beneficial to the poultry farmer.

That's the report by Prof. William Burt, curator of mammals at the University of Michigan's zoology museum. He says there's a little bit of good in every bad mammal in his book, "Mammals of the Great Lakes Region."

Here is what Burt has to say about several mammals which sometimes are regarded as pests by farmers:

The Eastern Mole—"As a tiller of the soil and as a consumer of insects, the mole is definitely beneficial. But when it chooses to hunt insects in a garden or lawn it can become a pest and must be dealt with accordingly."

The Weasel—"All weasels are condemned for their occasional raids on poultry. The few fowl killed are small payment for the herds of mice kept under control by these energetic little carnivores."

SKUNKS BENEFICIAL

The Skunk—"Except for their occasional raids on poultry or their discharge of scent in the vicinity of farm buildings, these active mammals are beneficial to the farmer."

The Fox—"An occasional renegade fox will raid the farmyard and do considerable damage. But if the value of fox fur and the value of fox as a mouser is considered, the local damage done is insignificant. Some misinformed administrations have seen fit to pay a bounty on the fox in recent years."

The Coyote—"According to recent studies in other parts of the country, the coyote as a scavenger and mouser probably does more good than harm."

The Wolf—"To be sure, they take a few deer, but there are usually too many deer for available winter food. It is my opinion that this magnificent carnivore should be protected. I doubt if it will ever come back in sufficient numbers to be a problem."

The Woodchuck—"At the present time, woodchucks are comparatively rare and inflict slight damage to crops. To the hunter and trapper they are definitely an asset."

The Norway Rat—"Nothing good can be said of this foreign interloper. It costs each person about $2 a year to support this public enemy. It gnaws holes in buildings, chews up equipment and merchandise, kills young poultry for the lust of killing and is a general nuisance."

The House Mouse—"Next to the Norway rat, this is probably the most destructive mammal in the area. It is particularly destructive in farming districts where grain is stored."

Elmer Grows Some Fuzz

Progress Reported, but With Occasional Backsliding

By ELMER WHEELER

I really believe I'm getting places.

My "cowardly hair" seems to have stopped charging rearward. Or at least slowed down.

It may be my imagination, but honestly, I am not finding so much hair on my comb these days.

Too, I believe my hair is getting a little better back, for I have spent several weeks now using the mildest of tonics (my doc says they are O.K. if used conservatively, that even too much water can drown a person).

I'm now washing my noggin twice a week, not enough to make it look like a worn-out rug or my sheep dog when he comes in out of the rain; but enough to keep it dust or dirt free and unclogged in the pores.

I'm boning up on nutrition now. I'm relearning from my Fat Boy's Book what foods to eat to promote better health, and I'm keeping track of my vitamin count to make sure I am not one of those people "with full stomachs" yet "starving from malnutrition."

What is more, I'm not upsetting my mind with worry. I'm trying to take things in my stride. Not trying to do everything today. Using a little manana.

HE REALLY RELAXED

Fact is, I took three weeks' vacation this year instead of two. Instead of motoring madly to some resort, burning up nerves and pistons, I flew to Mexico and really relaxed.

In Merida, Mexico, I learned about another hair treatment. I was tempted to try it, but my wife said "Nix." wasn't I getting along better by not thinking about my hair?

Only one more time I "fell off the wagon" and took to the bottle, that is, the tonic bottle.

Somehow or other you always feel tonics of other lands have more value, and when I found a bottle from Egypt in a Mexican store, I figured maybe some secrets of the Nile were passed on to the maker, and I tried it.

Two days later my wife complained of the enormous number of flies. For awhile I figured it was the area we were in, then suddenly it dawned on me it was my tonic they were after.

I bathed that night hard and fast and swore never again to be tempted with fancy hair stuff until I had given my doc's program an honest try.

I did watch my diet though, I ate dark breads with lots of wheat germ. I ate proteins galore such as chicken, fish and meats. I had cheese and fruits for dessert.

I began to notice, or rather the wife did first, that I wasn't scratching my head so much so often. Maybe cleanliness was removing the itch.

Nor was I brushing off those invisible butterflies any more on my shoulder, so I guess my nerves were relaxing, and I was improving on my physical and mental well-being which reflected in all parts of Elmer, including his hair glands.

Some fuzz appeared one day just in front of my receding hair line. I rushed at once to the doc.

He smiled, pleased. Said while there was fuzz, there was hope. That perhaps the clogged pores in front of my receding hair line were cleaning themselves out, and maybe I didn't have the bad gene and my hair would correct itself.

FUZZ APPEARS

Then one day my wife said, "I actually think the hole in your head, or rather your hair, is closing up. Fuzz is coming out inside the hole and the hair around the hole seems to be thicker."

Gosh, did I feel good. Just as plants in a depleted soil come out thin and stringy, I guess hair that lacks nourishment comes out the same way; and that both can be made stronger and thicker by proper fertilization.

Maybe I was finding ways to stop falling hair not due to the bad gene. (Perhaps someone some day will isolate the bad gene as they have flu and polio viruses.)

Nothing is impossible. The coats on the cattle in Hereford are best in the world, as is the meat from them which gets highest world prices. I know, I live in Dallas on Sizzle Ranch.

I guess what goes in you makes you.

I stopped reading hair-raising stories, and started reading up on hair-raising, even on animals, to see if I could find some answers.

There must be a reason why my sheep dog has hair in his eyes, and the Chihuahua down the street that he envies, has no hair. Breeding counts.

So on the advice of Peter J. Michael I boned up on animal hair. NEXT: Who Ever Saw a Bald Mink?

Two days later my wife complained about the flies.

Religion Grows in U.S., Says Ex-Army Secretary

NEW YORK (U. S. — Robert T. Stevens, former secretary of the Army and newly named chairman of the Religion in American Life Program, says Americans are becoming more religious-minded.

The non-sectarian program he heads includes a yearly campaign backed by the advertising industry, urging people to "attend church or synagogue regularly. Says Stevens now a textile executive:

"There are definite evidences not only of a growing interest in religion in America today, but also of a real deepening of our spiritual life."

India plans to make primary schooling compulsory for the first five years, by 1965.

Teenager Vanishes; No Clue of Girl, 15, After 3-Years Wait

LA CROSSE, Wis. (INS) — More than three years have passed since the disappearance of Evelyn Hartley shattered a festive night in La Crosse, Wis.

But only memories and a pair of shoes testify that the pretty 15-year-old baby sitter ever existed.

Her heartbroken parents, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Hartley, still nurse the flickering hope that their athletic daughter survived the mysterious events Oct. 24, 1953.

Periodically, they go to the police station, vainly hoping for some information about their child.

The police doubt that the girl is alive. Police Chief George Long, discussing the maddening uncertainty, said:

"If only we were sure of something. Anything. Even if we found her body we would at least know what happened."

"We keep hoping for a break in the emptiness, but we have never really known any more than we did that first night."

Of the first night they knew this:

The tall, fair girl arrived at 7 p.m. with a book. She sat down in the living room and began reading when the Rasmussens left. Evelyn was a good student and liked to read.

Dr. Hartley made his daughter promise to call home every hour, just to say everything was all right.

At 9 p.m., Dr. Hartley realized his daughter hadn't called and wondered if she was having trouble so he called the house. There was no answer.

Dr. Hartley tried some of the Rasmussen neighbors and asked if anything had happened.

"She should answer," they said, "the lights are on."

The worried professor drove to the Rasmussen home where he found the doors lock, the lights and radio on. No one answered the doorbell.

He finally entered through a basement window, which he found ajar. On the floor near the window lay one of Evelyn's shoes. The frantic father called the police.

Detectives found blood stains on the ground outside and a bloody handprint on the wall of an adjoining house. The girl's other shoe and her book were upstairs in the living room.

Footprints of a size 11 tennis shoe were found in the soft earth outside. The shoes later turned up 14 miles outside town along a lonely road.

The police worked day and night checking leads. They have questioned more than 2,000 persons.

Long said his department still gets crank letters about the case. "We always check them out," he added, "but they lead nowhere."

Evelyn was going to mind the baby of Prof. and Mrs. Vilgo Rasmussen so they could see the homecoming football game between La Crosse and River Falls State Colleges. Rasmussen and Dr. Hartley are members of the La Crosse faculty.

The violent weather yesterday and during the night extended from Texas to Iowa. Funnel clouds were sighted in parts of Texas, Missouri, South Dakota, eastern Kansas and southwestern Iowa. Heavy rain and hail drenched many sections, with strong winds lashing areas in the middle and lower Mississippi Valley.

More than 3 1/2 inches of rain doused Shreveport, La., in a six-hour period. Wind gusts were clocked at more than 50 m.p.h. Similar blows were reported at Champaign, Ill. Heaviest rainfall hit areas in southwestern Missouri and most of Arkansas.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were indicated in most areas east of the Mississippi River to the East Coast.

June's steady brand of wet weather showed no change today after another day of storms pounded areas in the mid-continent.

Sheriff's Job Is Challenge to Veteran of World War II

GOLDEN, Colo. (P) — Uncle Sam's "one-man army of Bataan," Art Wermuth, has slowed down. He's working only 14 hours a day as sheriff of Jefferson County, a booming suburban area in the Rocky Mountain foothills west of Denver.

"I love being sheriff," says the stocky 262-pounder with crew-cut hair. He's credited with single-handedly killing 116 enemy Japanese in the Philippines during World War II.

Wermuth, 41-year-old Republican, was appointed last January to the sheriff's job after a predecessor got into income tax trouble.

If things develop like he hopes, Wermuth will seek re-election.

Wermuth's postwar career has been just as exciting as his time in Army service. During the war he won the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Bronze Star, five Purple Hearts and put in three years and four months in a Japanese war prisoner camp.

VARIED ROLES

Since August 1945 he's been an impresario of a flying circus, a drug salesman, service station operator, city marshal of Wichita, Kan., and an oil engineer in Venezuela.

After the South American venture — ended by his wife's illness — Wermuth settled at her home town of Lakewood, Colo., a Denver suburb. He prospered as an insurance salesman, built a home at Evergreen and acquired a 108-acre ranch at Conifer, Colo.

As sheriff of Jefferson County, Wermuth has a staff of 35 and jurisdiction over 12,000 square miles and 90,000 persons.

The physical dangers of law enforcement pose no problem for Wermuth, who candidly — not boastfully — says "I'm not afraid of anything."

His big goal, he says, is to straighten out juveniles who get into trouble.

Wermuth and his wife, Patricia, a former parachute jumper in his flying circus, adopted an 8-year-old boy last year and have applied for the adoption of a girl about the same age.

"Kids are great, I love 'em," he says.

EYES EVIDENCE—Sheriff Art Wermuth at work.

Dublin Paper Eyes Marriage Proposals

DUBLIN — In an effort to find out how an Irishman proposes to his girl—as comparatively few do, according to statistics—a Dublin newspaper asked several hundred women who will be getting married soon. Some replies: "On the top of a bus when I casually sprang the news that I was going to visit my sister in the States."

"Atop Featherbed Mountain after four hours of silent climbing and 43 chain-smoked cigarettes." "Jocosely, indiscreetly, after an office party; in a cinema to the annoyance of people around." "At dances, parties and whist parties, until he agreed to stop asking other girls as well." "At a tennis club dance, conscious of his bald spot and having first stated that bachelorhood was a fate worse than death." "His mother asked me."

The Gold Coast, Nigeria Sierra Leone and Gambia, together, shipped to Britain $72,508 tons of oil seeds, nuts and kernels in a recent 10 months—two-thirds of her needs—Accra reports.

Double-Barreled Cannon Preserved in Georgia

ATHENS, Ga. — Preserved in Athens from the Civil War is what is believed to be the only double-barreled cannon in the world. It proved impractical because the firing of the twin barrels could not be synchronized and the cannon balls, which were chained together, broke apart and carried only a short distance.

Most Travel By Car

WASHINGTON—Recent surveys show that 83.3 per cent of the overnight trips in the United States are made by passenger cars compared with 9 per cent by train, 4.9 per cent by bus, 6.1 by air, one half of one per cent by ship. This adds up to 103.8 per cent but is explained by the fact that some persons use more than one method of transportation on a trip.

Tax Collector Confirms Suspicions of Nurse

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (P)—An Internal Revenue Service agent volunteered to donate blood to a hospitalized friend, and a nurse's suspicions were confirmed. Finding the agent's temperature two degrees below normal, she refused his offer, declaring: "I always knew those tax collectors are cold-blooded."

Milford Man Builds 2nd Machine That He Can Both Drive and Fly

Dewey Bryan of Milford has built a second machine that will drive up to 60 miles an hour on the highway, unfold its wings, and "take off like a big bird," at 90 miles an hour in the air.

Because of bad weather conditions yesterday, Bryan was unable to make a test-flight of his "Auto-Plane," at Pontiac City Airport.

VISIBILITY ZERO

Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, along with other investigators and interested spectators, were at the airport at 10 a.m. to witness the take-off. However, Bryan was grounded because visibility was zero.

He lives with his wife, Marie, and three daughters at 507 Skinner Rd., Milford.

Some time ago, Bryan tested a "flying-mobile" that he had put together with, "baling wire, a bucket of nuts and bolts, and a pair of discarded wings off an old glider."

WEIRD LOOKING

In spite of the appearance of that weird contraption, it drove on the highway, and flew in the air and Bryan caused plenty of commotion in both places with his brain-child.

Since that time, he has learned much about automobile-plane combinations, and his trim little machine is a far-cry from the egg-crate he took off the ground more than two years ago.

The Continental A-75 engine has a 22-foot wing span. When empty, the one-seater weighs only 720 pounds, and has two nine-gallon wing-tanks for the 80-octane gasoline that is used.

CRUISING SPEED

Its cruising speed in the air is from 85 to 90 miles per hour and uses about 4½ gallons of fuel in one hour. This gives Bryan a 400-mile flying range, he said.

The chassis of the Auto-Plane has a tri-cycle gear, with three small wheels for support and transportation. One big prop. mounted back of the pilot seat motivates the vehicle, both on land and in the air.

There are hydraulic brakes, and the canopy is made of plexi-glass. When on the road, the wings fold up over the propeller, which is a safety feature and the over-all height is 7½ feet, while on road duty.

TOOK 2 MEN

The old model took two men, almost a half an hour to attach the awkward wings. The new "Bryan II" takes one man just six minutes to mechanically connect or disconnect the airplane wings.

It took him two years, and $1,000 to build this new auto-plane, making it virtually impossible for mass production at the present time.

He said, "I've learned a lot with this machine, and would like to build a model for actual production, but this is as far as I can go, on my own."

Bryan works at the General Motors Proving Grounds, near Milford, and received five years of mechanical back-ground experience when he was in the navy.

One thing bothers him. He can't get car insurance, because it is not a car, and he can't get plane insurance, because it isn't a plane.

Agents are busy trying to figure out just how they can write up the invention that may revolutionize the entire transportation world.

Officials to Seek Hospital Fund

Commission, Trustees Meet Tonight on Ways to Get $436,000

How to get emergency funds so as to permit completion of the new city hospital addition will be the number one problem facing city commissioners and members of Pontiac General Hospital's Board of Trustees at a joint meeting tonight.

"We will discuss ways and means of getting the money," said William P. Babcock, chairman of the board.

Babcock said that the board's first objective is to seek $436,000 which is needed immediately so contracts for ordered equipment would not be cancelled.

The board has met, as a group and by committee, several times since the May 20 defeat of the hospital bond issue.

City Manager Walter K. Willman and Oscar Eckman, city director of finance, will attend to outline the city's financial picture.

Scooter Crash Is Fatal

DETROIT (AP) — Lawrence Smith Jr., 13, of nearby Warren, was fatally injured yesterday when his motor scooter ran into the rear of a car in suburban East Detroit.

GROUND TRANSPORTATION—Dewey Bryan demonstrates his Auto-Plane with the wings folded, ready for travel on the highways. He took two years to build the vehicle, at a cost of about $1,000.

NOW IT'S A PLANE — With the wings unfolded, Bryan's Auto-Plane is ready for the air. The builders claim a cruising speed of from 85 to 90 miles an hour, with a flying range of about 400 miles without taking on additional fuel.

New Board Member Likes 'Pay-as-You-Go' Financing

Pontiac School District's new board member, William H. Anderson, is a self-made man with a horror of borrowing.

"I managed to build up my own business without long-term borrowing and I think the school system can do the same," he says.

Anderson, 44, is a partner in the Columbia Non-Ferrous Foundry and Machine Co., of Pontiac. His formal education ended with junior high school, but he took extra courses at Pontiac High and has added to his education informally all his life.

CURIOUS ABOUT TAXES

It was curiosity about where the taxpayers' money is going that interested Anderson in the school system and induced him to make his first bid for public office.

"But I wouldn't have run for the board if I hadn't been asked to by an individual here in Pontiac," he said.

"I have no specific criticisms of the board of education," Anderson maintained, "but I have certain convictions on how things should be done."

"I believe in pay-as-you-go financing, rather than bond issues, because you have to pay for the bonds eventually, so why not stay out of debt and build schools as you can afford them."

"I am not one of those who think the so-called frills are unnecessary in school construction or curriculum planning, but I feel there can't be too much emphasis on the 3 R's and citizenship."

ECONOMIES POSSIBLE

Anderson said he felt some economies could be realized in school construction, but his mind was open on the subject.

"It seems to me that Madison Junior High might have done without its little theater, and its general design, with skylights, seems more suited for California or Florida than Michigan," he commented.

"I favor a study commission of local builders, educators, architects and laymen to advise the board on construction so we are certain to get as much building per dollar as possible," he continued.

Anderson also said he felt the board should not purchase school sites more than three years in advance. "I don't know the board's policy on this matter, but it has been said that some sites have been bought 10 years ahead of time. If this is true, I would oppose it."

On the subject of teachers' salaries, Anderson said he thought starting pay in Pontiac is too low to attract the best teachers. He believes, too, class sizes should be reduced.

WANTS GOOD SCHOOLS

A soft-spoken, pleasant man, Anderson feels he will have little trouble in fitting in with the present board membership. "We all want the same thing, the best schools at the lowest cost," he said.

"I think new faces and new blood on the board are a good thing," he stated. "Two terms, that is eight years, seem long enough for anyone to serve. I don't think I would serve any longer than that."

Married, Anderson has two daughters, one married and the other attending Madison. He lives at 919 Spence St.

Onetime Prodigy Cleared of Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandra Berkova Mazelle, 26, a onetime child violin prodigy, has been cleared of a narcotics charge.

Municipal Judge Louise Burke dismissed the count against her yesterday on the motion of the district attorney's office, which said it had insufficient evidence to prosecute.

Miss Mazelle was arrested May 3 by officers who said they found a codeine prescription, issued to her, in the pocket of a male friend. She said she plans to resume her career as a violinist.

Railroad Group Settles Dispute

New 3-Year Pact Ends 8 Months of Negotiation With 26½-Cent Boost

CHICAGO (AP) — Major railroads and the 20,000-member Conductors Union last night settled an eight-month wage dispute with a three-year contract calling for pay hikes totaling 26½ cents an hour.

The agreement was announced by the National Railway Mediation Board after negotiations between the railroads and the Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen.

A mediation board member, Leverett Edwards, said provisions of the new contract follow a "pattern of those accepted by unions representing about 94 per cent of all railroad employees."

Under the terms of the new contract, road conductors will receive an immediate raise of 12½ cents an hour. This boost is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1956, the end of the last contract period.

An additional 7 cents hourly will be made effective Nov. 1, 1957, and another 7-cent raise will go into effect Nov. 1, 1958. The new contract also contains an escalator clause that provides for cost of living adjustments.

OVER $600 A MONTH

Road passenger conductors averaged $659 monthly under the previous contract. Road freight conductors earned an average of $647.

Contract negotiations began last Oct. 17 between more than 100 carriers and the union. The union had asked a 25 per cent wage hike when it announced its requests last July 2.

Railway workers in nearly every railway terminal city in the country are affected by the agreement. Some 2,000 union members work in the Chicago area. About 1,000 each are employed on train runs from such cities as St. Louis and Buffalo, N.Y.

Traffic on Roof Makes Repairs a Tough Chore

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joseph Petschar had a narrow escape while repairing a house roof.

He was almost hit by a car. Petschar, 72, had just climbed down from the roof yesterday when there was a terrible crash. A car landed right where he had been working moments before.

The auto belonged to Gilbert Chavez, 31, who had been visiting a home on a steep hillside street in back of the Petschar residence. The car started rolling down the hill. Chavez shouted for it to stop. It didn't — not until it shot off a 25-foot embankment to land on Petschar's roof. No one was injured and after the excitement was over Petschar climbed back on the roof — which needed a lot of repairing.

Camera Finds Man a Girl Can Look Up To

In quest of interesting personality pictures, a photographer did himself proud at MacManus, John and Adams when he shot James E. ("Mickey") McGuire and Jane Gange.

McGuire is an artist and Jane is in General Research. Jane stands four feet ten, but she creeps above the five foot mark through the feminine device of high heels.

McGuire's height often occasions speculation. When queried, the crew at MacManus, John and Adams usually passes the question off with a glib, "Oh, he's seven feet."

This the man himself denies. "I'm no such thing," says he. "I'm only six feet eleven and a half."

There you have it.

Four feet ten—six eleven and a half—and both with a host of friends at the big advertising agency at Bloomfield Center.

Man-Made Globe Will Fly at Incredible Speed

'Moon Watch' to Track Earth Satellite

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Twenty minutes after being fired into space from Florida, the earth's first artificial satellite will move across the African skies.

And within minutes from the time the small globe roars into the heavens, an 80-man Moon Watch team will be on the job in this area.

The subcontinent of Africa will be the first country the satellite will pass over in free flight around the earth. Takeoff date for the flight is still unscheduled.

Calculations made by the Moon Watch team at the start and finish of the great experiment will be of utmost importance to the project.

Although the satellite will be equipped with a tiny radio transmitter, Minitrack, with a life-span of two weeks, scientists are dubious of Minitrack's chances of surviving the launching blast.

This is where Operation Moon Watch comes into the picture in South Africa.

To permit precision cameras to record the transit of the man-made moon, a definite orbit must be supplied to astronomers manning the cameras.

Observations necessary to calculate this orbit will be supplied by teams at Cape Town, Bloemfontein, Pretoria and Johannesburg—and by Minitrack, if it survives the takeoff.

The equipment to be used for precision optical tracking will be a Schmidt camera on loan from the U.S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year.

The international radio station midway between Johannesburg and Pretoria, at Olifantsfontein, has been selected as the site for the Schmidt camera.

Once the orbit has been established in America by electronic computers on information supplied by Moon Watch teams, the Schmidt camera will swing into position.

Observation—by the teams and the camera—will only be possible at dawn and dusk, when the satellite can be viewed through darkness while the sun's rays are still on the small sphere.

Working Hard, Says Johnson

Congress Isn't 'Slow'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today the congressional session "has now entered the payoff stage."

"The months that have been spent in careful, thorough committee work are now paying off in terms of rapid, decisive action," the Senate majority leader said in an interview.

Johnson obviously was hitting back at recent comments by Eisenhower administration spokesmen that the Democratic-controlled Congress had been lagging on parts of the Eisenhower program.

He noted that the Senate had passed four major appropriations bills this week and said it will take prompt action on other money bills.

BILLS PASS

Two passed yesterday. One carries $5,378,594,800 for the Veterans Administration and some 24 other independent federal agencies. The other contains $2,885,290,781 to operate the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare departments.

Both totals were less than President Eisenhower requested. The Senate voted less than the House for the VA and other agencies, but it added to House allotments for the Labor and Health-Education-Welfare departments.

So far the Senate has cleared eight appropriations bills. It still must act on five money bills for the next fiscal year.

To date the Senate has cut about $1,400,000,000 out of the President's budget requests and some 32 million dollars below House totals.

George Hospitalized With Heart Ailment

ATLANTA (AP) — Walter F. George, President Eisenhower's special ambassador to NATO and a former Georgia senator, is in serious condition with a coronary disease at Emory University Hospital.

An attending physician said the 79-year-old statesman was suffering with "coronary atherosclerosis, or hardening of the coronary artery which nourishes the heart."

The physician, who asked that his name not be used, said George was receiving anticoagulants, drugs used to prevent the blood from forming clots.

George arrived in Atlanta by train from Washington yesterday and entered the hospital for a series of diagnostic tests.

Before entering the hospital, the statesman said his future as an ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would depend on the results of the examinations.

George served in the Senate for 34 years. He did not seek re-election in 1956.

ANIMAL QUIZ

QUESTION: What are skunks good for?

ANSWER: Most people don't like skunks but actually they are very useful.

Nature has given them the ability to produce an evil-smelling fluid that they can squirt at enemies eight to 12 feet away.

Because of this, few animals attack them. They venture out usually at night, to feed on mice, rats, insects, lizards and frogs.

Skunks also help farms by eating grasshoppers and field mice which damage crops. Most grown skunks in America are about two feet long, about the size of a big cat. Their skins are often used in fur coats.

FOR YOU TO DO: Color this picture of the black and white skunk. He really isn't a bad fellow after all.

(Jeanette Theriault, York, Maine, received $10 for this idea. Send in yours. Tomorrow: When did horses first come to the New World? Violet Moore Higgins, AP Newfeatures.)

Census Tally Shows 34,300 Youngsters

The Pontiac School District census has been completed, and an unofficial tally shows there are 34,329 youngsters from birth through age 19 in the district.

Paul Allison, director of child accounting and census for the board, says this compares with the 1956 census of 33,643.

The census is, of course, not 100 per cent accurate, Allison pointed out, but it is not far off. Last year, a check of school records showed 33,909 youngsters compared with the census figure of 33,643.

The census will be used to determine next fall's probable school enrollment, Allison said, and he urged any family missed to call his office if they have lived in the Pontiac district since before June 1.

The census also turned up the number of handicapped children in the area. It showed: Physically handicapped, 69; hard of hearing, 25; partially blind, 21; and mentally handicapped, 92.

Allison noted that the school system maintains special rooms for the physically handicapped and the retarded children who are found able to benefit from special education.

He paid tribute to the 43 census workers and to the public which, he said, "cooperated very nicely on the whole."

Newsman May Will F-105 Be Last Man-Carrying Fighter?

Lose Passport

Tentative Action Taken on Reporter Who Broke Red China Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department's Passport Division has tentatively refused, after a hearing, to renew the passport of newsman William Worth.

The decision, still subject to final approval, can be appealed first to a special State Department board and then to the courts if the application is rejected each time.

Worthy, employed by the Baltimore Afro-American, defied the State Department's ban on travel to Red China last December. His passport expired last March 4.

Refused extension when he filed application for renewal, Worthy went before a passport hearing last April 29.

Shortly thereafter, his attorneys filed an 11-page brief which supported his application and criticized Secretary of State Dulles for banning travel by reporters to the Communist-held Chinese mainland.

"News coverage cannot be regulated by foreign policy fluctuations without laying the cornerstone for governmental press control, too tragically often in the recent past the first step on the road to tyranny," it said.

Worthy's case was heard by Ashley J. Nicholas, legal officer for the Passport Division.

People Outnumbered by Bicycles on Island

BOSTON (AP)—There are more bicycles than people on Nantucket Island.

That information was given the Legislature yesterday by Rep. Robert F. Mooney D-Nantucket who is seeking legislation for construction of bicycle paths on the island.

Mooney said Nantucket, 30 miles off Cape Cod, has 4,100 bicycles and about 3,500 residents.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — U. S. Air Force flame jockeys — jet pilots — may soon be riding out one of their last new model flames. There are AF experts who claim that the recent big order of Republic's F-105—1,300 mph Thunderchiefs—may be the last production purchase of man-carrying fighters.

The Matador and other guided missiles have already been assigned targets previously belonging to fighter-bomber planes in Europe. Missiles are now getting these targets in Formosa and other places in the Far East.

By the time the F-105 is ready for the museums, perhaps by 1963, the missiles may have moved into the fighter field completely.

LAST OF SERIES

The F-105 is the last of the so-called "Century" series of fighters. The F-100, F-101, F-102, F-104 and F-106 are all production models and able to fly faster than the speed of sound, which is 760 mph at sea level.

The F-105 is a research model. And the F-107 lost out in competition with the F-105 for what could be the last mass-produced fighter plane. No other numbers designating fighters have been revealed by the Air Force.

There are reports of a "Century-plus-10" series being in the secret-planning or drawing-board stage. They would be capable of flying from three to five times the speed of sound, or between 2,000 and 4,000 mph. But the question is whether or not they will be overtaken by the missile art before reaching the production line.

One of the big advantages of the F-105 is that it combines long range, speed and the ability to carry a heavy load of either nuclear bombs or missiles. It can deliver a hydrogen bomb.

The Lockheed company calls its F-104 a "manned missile."

The F-105 has even more characteristics of a missile and is less "manned" than the F-104.

But how to make tactical use of the F-105's tremendous speed in air-to-air combat is another matter, now under considerable study.

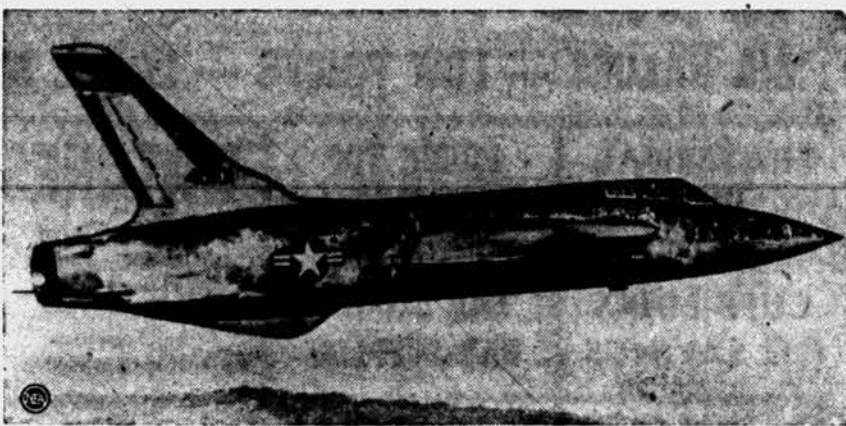

The last actual air-to-air combat the enemy, for example, raised the question of the value of either side of engaging in such combat.

The tactical problems of the Korean air war were considerable at sub-sonic speeds. At the present high supersonic speeds the number of tactical problems increases. And each one is enormous.

The same questions of tactical employment applies to all of the supersonic fighters.

Two experimental vertical take-off and landing planes, the Bell X-14 and the Ryan X-13, could upset predictions about the F-105 being the last mass-produced fighter. They are both jet propelled.

THE F-105 "THUNDERCHIEF" — The problem is how to make use of the speed in aerial combat.

Cyclist Picks Farm Bride

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Bicyclist Charles L. Holder, of Tellico Plains, Tenn., who has pedaled across the nation four times, found himself a farm bride yesterday.

The 20-year-old former Marine said he was on a back road when he decided to stop at a house for a drink of water.

"She was in the front yard and I asked for a drink," he said. "We didn't talk much but I asked her to marry me. She agreed and talked to her folks. She jumped on the back of the bicycle and we rode on to Wildcat before either of us spoke much."

His bride-to-be is Jackie Britt, 20, whose home is near the village of Hitchita in eastern Oklahoma.

"It happened suddenly and I haven't fully recovered," Holder declared. "We want to get married at the Oklahoma Semecentennial here."

Holder said if he didn't receive any encouragement at the exposition he would try to get a job and make enough money to buy Miss Britt a bike.

She is "not much of a bicycle rider but with practice she got her leg muscles tuned up," he said. "We will work here until we get on our feet and then plan a bicycle trip around the world as a honeymoon."

College Vacation Proved Lengthy for This Woman

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mrs. Walter J. Daly got a diploma as a registered nurse from Baylor University in 1938 and postponed taking further college work for other matters.

Yesterday Mrs. Daly, 37, got her degree of bachelor of science in nursing from the University of Pennsylvania.

During those 19 years she served eight years as a first lieutenant in the U. S. Army Nurse Corps, was with a unit awarded a Presidential Citation for action under fire at Anzio in 1944, got married and had three children—Michael 10, Marcella, 9, and Patrick 7.

When she finally got around to going back to school, Mrs. Daly got her degree in the regulation four years.

Mr. Yentsch, who was assistant secretary-treasurer of the E & B Brewing Co. for 20 years, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George Dean and Mrs. Marvin Moesta of Detroit and two sons, Alfred and Edward Jr. of Grand Rapids.

Marcus-Hodge Link in Spotlight Again
CHICAGO (INS) — The scandal-ridden name of slain Chicago banker Leon Marcus held the spotlight today as authorities delved deeper into a multi-million dollar tax fraud in the Cook County treasurer's office.

The name of Marcus, a principal in the 24-million-dollar Hodge scandal last year, popped up yesterday when auditors traced part of the Cook County embezzlement to the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co.

The bank, now under new ownership and management, was owned by Marcus until he sold out at the outset of the scandal involving jailed ex-State Auditor Orville Hodge.

Police, still mystified by the kidnapping and shooting of Marcus last March 31, hoped the new revelations might lead to solution of the murder.

Shift in Ore Sources Leads to New Name
CLEVELAND — Because the sources of iron ore have shifted in the last 10 years, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Assn. has changed its name to the American Iron Ore Assn.

For many years the bulk of the ore used in this country came from Lake Superior mines. But, in announcing the name change yesterday, the association said the industry has spread out over the United States and Canada.

The name change was made at the association's 63rd annual meeting.

F. G. Fardee, who headed the Lake Superior Assn., was picked to continue as president. H. C. Jackson, associate managing partner of Picanda Mather & Co., was elected board chairman.

Worker Dies, Crushed in Crane's Mechanism
DETROIT — Everett Parsley of Detroit was crushed to death yesterday while repairing an overhead crane at the Lake Erie Metal Pickling Co. here.

Witnesses said Parsley motioned another worker to start up the crane. His body was caught in the mechanism.

Nevada Searches for Costello Link

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Nevada gambling officials are conducting an intensive investigation to see if racketeer Frank Costello has any official interest in the Tropicana Hotel, newest of the gambling palaces in Las Vegas.

News of the investigation, which has been under way for a month, was pried out yesterday by a statement from the district attorney's office in New York that a note found in Costello's pocket, listing $651,284 in casino winnings, had been traced to the Tropicana.

Several hours later, Gov. Charles Russell acknowledged that the state has known for weeks that the sum in the note tallied with gambling winnings for a 24-day period at the Tropicana.

And a member of the Clark County Licensing Board, which has immediate jurisdiction over the Las Vegas casinos, said the board knows who wrote the note — an auditor at the hotel.

Seek to Allow Juries to Fix Death Penalty
SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The California Legislature last night sent to Gov. Goodwin J. Knight a bill giving juries direct and full responsibility for fixing the death penalty.

The bill would require a jury, if returning a conviction in a case where the death penalty applies, to hold a separate hearing on the penalty.

Under present California law the trial judge must order a death sentence in capital crimes unless the jury recommends mercy.

Hungary Misses Tourists, Cash

U.S. Government Bars Travel in Red-Bossed Tourist Spot

By CARL HARTMAN

BUDAPEST (AP)—Hungary, would like to get as many as 5,000 American tourists this year—and the capitalist dollars that come with them.

The main obstacle is that U. S. passports are stamped "not valid for travel in Hungary." U. S. diplomats say that in the present state of U. S.-Hungarian relations they don't know if they can protect American citizens.

Bela Baco, young chief of Hungary's official tourist agency, wants to do something about the situation.

"I can get Hungarian entry visas in two weeks for anyone who wants to come from either Canada or the United States," he says. "We have accommodations for 3,500 in sight, but we can push it up to 5,000 if necessary."

A poor country, badly hit by last fall's revolt, Hungary needs foreign currency.

PLENTY TO SEE
Hungary has plenty to see, including how a Communist government works. Budapest, the Danube, Lake Balaton, Gypsy music and peasant costumes.

The Communist authorities are eager to show the world that although some parts of the capital were heavily damaged in the fighting, the country as a whole is far from being in ruins.

The danger that they might end up on the wrong side of the bars is one reason for the State Department's reluctance to see Americans travel in Hungary.

The possibility is slight, but it exists. Under Hungarian law many Americans of Hungarian parentage are considered Hungarian citizens. Some 350 of these "dual nationals" now in Hungary are unable to leave. Several have had to serve in the Hungarian army, and at least one has been in jail.

Broomfield Backs Liberal Work Rights

A more liberal "right to work" policy for retirees under Social Security was proposed today by Congressman William S. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) in Washington.

Broomfield introduced legislation to increase the maximum allowable earning power of those eligible for old age benefits from $1,200 to $3,000 annually, calling the present level unrealistic in the face of higher costs of living.

The change would serve two purposes, Broomfield said, to allow families to earn "reasonable" supplemental income and to provide experienced workers for industry.

Broomfield said urban areas like Oakland county are among the hardest hit by the present system because "prices have increased at a rate much higher than those in other sections."

Bothered by Extra 4 1/2 Cents

Money Difference Annoys Americans

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

TORONTO (NEA)—Eddie, the taxi driver, flipped the flag on his meter and grinned back at his Yankee passenger.

"I sure get a kick when the tourists hand me American money," he said. "I tell them in that case the fare will be four and a half per cent more than the meter shows."

ALWAY PROTEST

When they protest—and they always do, Eddie said—he explains it this way:

"Our dollar is better than yours because our government is sounder. Our national debt is smaller in comparison. We're paying it off faster. And we've got more natural resources to back up our money."

This explanation of why the Canadian buck is today worth four and a half cents more than the U.S. buck—it varies—has flaws. But it reveals that Canadians are heading for some potentially "explosive" problems in their financial relations with the U.S. This country's phenomenal boom, complicated by U.S.-Canadian business relations, has already become an issue in the June 10th national election.

The simplest explanation of the difference between the two North American dollars is the big demand for Canadian currency by Americans plunging into Canadian enterprises. A changing market price results because the Canadian government is not committed to buy dollars or gold at a fixed price, as the U.S. must do by law.

Tom Kent, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, puts his finger on the crux of the emotional aspects of the situation saying:

"U.S. capital has made Canada incomparably better off in material terms. But the question is whether the country is thereby losing its soul, making a mockery of its political independence. This, undefined and incoherent, is the question that lurks in the back of Canadian minds."

Non-resident capital investment in Canada, mostly American, totals 15 billion dollars. Most recent figures show 68 per cent of Canada's petroleum industry controlled in the U.S., for example. In mining the figure is more than 50 per cent.

Fifteen billion dollars is a big sum in terms of Canadian economy. The gross national product of Canada was 29 billion dollars last year, compared to 412 billion for the U.S.

The political issues shaping up from all of this are complex. But generally the Conservatives charge that the Liberals have encouraged U.S. investments, directly and indirectly, by their financial policies. At the same time, they say, the Liberals have failed to control inflation.

U.S. citizens have squawked because their cost of living has been inching up fractions of a percentage point during recent months. Canada's index jumped three per cent last year and has been going up faster recently.

But in defense of their efforts to curb inflation, a Liberal Party financial expert points to automobile credit as an example of Canada holding back inflation better than the U.S. Less than five per cent of new cars are being financed for 30 months or more, compared to 40 per cent in the States, he says. Most Canadian auto credit is still for 24 months, as it was in the U.S. three years ago.

Another problem vexing Canadians is the 14 billion dollar trade imbalance with the U.S. Canadians are buying that much more from the U.S. than the U.S. buys from Canada.

One reason for this, an expert claims, is the huge purchase of capital goods in the States. "But when this capital equipment begins producing goods for Canadians to buy—we hope this trade imbalance will be the other way," he says.

As the Canadian campaign gets hot all of these issues will be getting more attention in the U.S. and Canada.

Scientist Explores Weather of Ancients

NEW ZEALAND—By studying an ancient tree which was growing before the Spanish Armada was defeated and before Columbus discovered America, a botanical scientist in New Zealand hopes to find out what kind of weather the people there were having centuries ago. The tree, a totara, was felled in 1906 and was 435 years old at the time.

From examination of the tree's rings and of the carbon it absorbed when it was living, the scientist can tell whether any given season was late or early, sunny or wet. The tree has for centuries recorded atmospheric changes and the botanist is also measuring atmospheric changes since it died nearly 50 years ago.

Park Visitors Gain

WASHINGTON—Some 20,000 persons visited the 29 national parks in 1956, an increase of 7 per cent over 1955. Seven parks were visited by more than 1,000,000 persons each. Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, with 2,885,000 visitors, had the heaviest volume.

Actor Switches Roles in Broadway Drama

NEW YORK (AP)—Ed Begley, a veteran and versatile performer, is making the biggest casting switch of the Broadway year. Beginning June 2, he is taking over the role created by Paul Muni in the hit drama "Inherit the Wind." The part is based upon famous lawyer Clarence Darrow's work in the Scopes "monkey trial" at Dayton, Tenn., 30 years ago.

Since the play opened in 1955, Begley has been portraying Muni's chief on-stage antagonist—a role based upon another renowned attorney, William Jennings Bryan.

Australia produced some $130,000,000 worth of coal last year.

Firemen Save 50 Hams Despite Their Hunger

RUSTBURG, Va. (AP)—The firemen were almost overcome with hunger, but they saved 50 hams.

The fire started when a raftier broke in F. W. Merryman's smokehouse. Some of the 150 hams plunged into the fire over which they were being smoked. The aroma was delicious but the fat was in the fire and it blazed. The 50 hams saved were in an adjoining smokehouse and were the property of Ed Evans, Rustburg's high school basketball coach.

Quick Help May Cut Drownings

DETROIT — Although safety education has reduced incidence of drowning by 50 per cent in the last 50 years, some 7,000 Americans will die by accidental drowning during the summer months.

But the number could be greatly reduced and "many of these persons could probably be saved by adequate resuscitative measures and aftercare," according to an article in Therapeutic Notes, a magazine published by Parke, Davis & Company.

About 90 per cent of the ninety million persons who use swimming facilities each year swim very poorly or not at all. Only 10 per cent swim reasonably well or very well, and the percentage of swimmers who are able to assist others in distress is even smaller, a fact corroborated in that three of every four drownings occur within 60 feet of the shore.

Artificial respiration, the article emphasizes, must be "instituted immediately, even at risk of other injuries" since circulatory failure may occur in a matter of seconds.

DRAIN LIQUID

The immediate problem of resuscitation is to drain as much liquid as possible from the respiratory system and to maintain an adequate airway. The patient should be placed in a prone position and lifted at the waist, so that the water will drain out of the bronchial passages. Debris, mucus, dentures and other material should be removed from the mouth and throat.

"The 'push-pull' or 'arm lift-back pressure' is recommended for all persons except infants and very small children," the article states. "In infants and small children, this method carries the risk of rib fracture and lung puncture. For such patients, 'prone tilting - visceral shift' method is advised."

"Especially designed for children ranging in age from one week to two years and from seven to 28 pounds, and in length from 20 to 33 inches, this procedure involves digital maintenance of an airway, support of the head in midline position, and exertion of internal pressure, respiration being controlled by shifting of the abdominal viscera."

—the patient should be kept warm and dry.

—He should be given a whiff of spirits of ammonia which may temporarily help him breathe deeper.

—If his condition is good, he may be placed on his side to ease breathing movements and prevent regurgitation.

—Patient should be removed to the hospital as soon as possible, but must be handled with great care to prevent development of secondary shock.

The doctors' advice and urgings still are valid, the article states. In fact the physician cannot emphasize enough the adages "wait one hour after meals before swimming, don't swim if tired or overheated," and "don't ignore muscle cramps."

Last Rites for Jimmy Dorsey Hold Mass for Bandleader

NEW YORK (AP)—A Requiem Mass will be offered at St. Patrick's Cathedral Saturday at 10 a. m. for bandleader Jimmy Dorsey, who died yesterday of lung cancer.

The public will be permitted to view Dorsey's body at a funeral home from 2 p. m. today to midnight tomorrow.

Burial will be in Annunciation Church Cemetery, Shenandoah, Pa., the town where Jimmy and his late brother Tommy were born.

In 1949 Jimmy was divorced by the former Jane Porter, his wife of 21 years.

Since he never remarried, he will be buried with the rites of the Roman Catholic Church to which he belonged. Tommy, married three times, was not eligible for Catholic burial.

Jimmy, 53, died 6½ months after Tommy, 51, choked to death in his sleep in his Connecticut home.

CONTINUE FOR HOUR

"Resuscitation must not be interrupted for any reason until the procedure has been performed for at least 15 minutes. There is some question as to how long artificial respiration should be continued if the patient shows signs of reviving. One doctor recommends a minimum of one hour. After the patient's respiration is established, artificial respiration should continue for some time."

Points to remember in after-care:

Two-Suspected Bandits Only Armed Guards

DENVER (AP)—Three police cars roared up to a downtown cafe yesterday and six policemen piled out.

They had just been tipped by a man that the Cup 'n Saucer Restaurant was about to be held up. The informant said he spotted two men with guns stuck in their belts.

The police rushed into the cafe and found two armored car guards who had dropped in for a cup of coffee.

Begin Construction Work on All-Nuclear Reactor

CHICAGO (AP) — Scientists, industrialists and political leaders gathered in a rolling meadow 50 miles southwest of Chicago yesterday to witness the start of construction of what will be the nation's largest all-nuclear power reactor.

This new stepping stone in the atomic era is called the Dresden Nuclear Power Station. It will cost 45 million dollars and produce 180,000 kilowatts of power, enough to serve a city of a quarter of a million inhabitants.

FEED POWER

When completed in 1960, it will feed power into the Commonwealth Edison Co. system, serving Chicago and most of northern Illinois.

Some 600 workmen already have completed excavation and foundation work for the plant. Today they will throw up the first of 20 steel columns. These will house the station in a 190-foot steel sphere, including its turbine room and other equipment.

Officials estimate the plant will be able to produce power at a cost of three-fourths of a penny per kilowatt hour. This is about the same as the cost of power in coal-fired plants.

USES STEAM

Power from the station will be generated in what is called by physicists—a "boiling water reactor." This nuclear device uses steam created in the reactor to develop electricity. The principle of the boiling water reactor was originated in government experiments at nearby Argonne National Laboratory.

The purpose of the huge sphere, with walls more than 1 1/4 inch thick, is to contain any radioactive vapors which might be released in the remote possibility of a leak in the reactor, officials said.

For fuel, the Dresden station will use what is called "slightly enriched uranium." A 60 ton supply allotted to the plant by the Atomic Energy Commission is expected to last six years.

A conventional generating station of the same size would burn more than three million tons of coal in the same period.

Scientists at Argonne say the safety system built into the boiling water reactor is designed to cause an immediate shutdown in the event of improper operations. The possibility of a nuclear accident, they said, is extremely remote. The steel sphere is a further safeguard.

Seamen Urged to Study Radar

Know-How on Using Equipment Seen as Way to Reduce Collisions

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS)—There will always be collisions between ships at sea, but there needn't be as many as there are now, according to Capt. L. M. Thayer of the Coast Guard in Portland.

The solution, he says, is the proper use of radar equipment which now is carried by many merchant vessels.

"A blip on a radarscope shows only distance and relative position," Capt. Thayer explained. "You need to know much more—mostly the speed and direction of an oncoming vessel and the point at which its path will intersect yours."

He said such information can easily be obtained by plotting individual blips on a standard Navy "maneuvering board" or "radar graph," which anyone can purchase.

However, in the past, instructions for use of such equipment have been so heavily draped in mystery that navigators on most merchant ships have been discouraged about using them, according to Capt. Thayer.

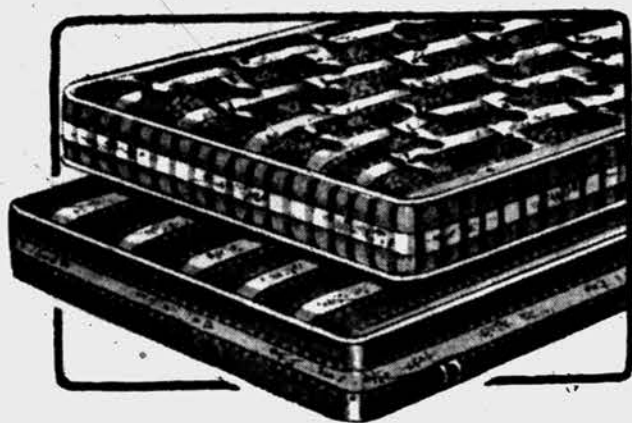

But simplified instructions in the use of such equipment now is available — so simplified that an hour's time can fit almost anyone for accurately plotting radar courses at sea—Capt. Thayer says.

Drinks in Belfast Now Cost More

BELFAST — Drinks in the 500 public-houses of Belfast, Northern Ireland, now cost more. Prices of whisky, brandy, rum, gin, beer, stout and porter all went up simultaneously as the result of action by the Belfast & Ulster Licensed Vintners' Association.

Under the new scale, the price of whisky rose twopenny a glass, brandy sixpence, and rum and gin by fourpence. Beer, stout and porter all cost a penny extra per bottle and pint. H. Sheehan, secretary of the association, explained that the higher prices were imposed to offset the wage rise of $2.10 a week recently granted to bartenders, greater overhead and generally higher costs.

Turbine Engines for Autos by '60

Use of Steel Alloys Brings Development Closer to Reality

NEW YORK — Appearance in the laboratories of new steel alloys presages strange and wonderful power sources for future automobiles — the gas turbine, the free piston engine and ultimately, the atomic engine.

The official publication of American Iron and Steel Institute said that every major automobile maker in the world is experimenting with gas turbines today, and Detroit's investment alone is guessed to be between $50 and $75 million. Ford, Chrysler and General Motors — all have gas turbine experimental passenger cars.

The publication said the gas turbine engine has endeared itself to automobile engineers because of smoothness, in that it eliminates the vibration that is the bane of the gasoline engine.

Its disadvantages have been melting away under the hammer of research. One big problem was exhaust heat. This was solved by transferring the heat to the incoming air. The second problem, high fuel consumption, was partially solved with the first one.

Steelways said the other difficulties are less serious. A gas turbine engine offers no "compression braking," that is, it coasts when you take your foot off the accelerator, instead of slowing down gradually as the engine in a gasoline-powered car does. More powerful brakes, perhaps the disk type used on some racing cars, will settle this.

The publication said that no manufacturer will cite a target date for sale of production line gas turbine engines today, but some automotive writers predict there'll be one on the market by 1960. The 1957 English Rover is almost ready to go, with seven years of development work behind it. It could be sold, its makers say, for $7,000 today.

General Motors has a free-piston-engine automobile, the XP-300, running today with relatively few technical difficulties to be ironed out. Ford also has a free-piston engine in experimental use.

Smithsonian Collection Boasts 2 Million Fish

WASHINGTON — The Smithsonian Institution reports that its division of fishes has assembled one of the two or three largest fish collections in the world — a total of more than 2,000,000 specimens representing most of the known fish families and nearly half the known species.

The oldest specimens in the collection were collected by naturalist Louis Agassiz in the 1820's.

JOIN SWIM CONTEST — Beverly James, 210 Elm St., (left) and James Stone, 651 E. Mansfield Ave. (right) get their feet wet in preparation for the free swimming instructions they will receive during the Learn-to-Swim Campaign (June 17 to June 23) sponsored through the cooperation of the Pontiac Rotary Club and the Pontiac Y. M. C. A. Richard Poole, (center) chairman of the drive, said lessons will be available to all grade school children nine years of age or older who cannot swim. Parents must come to the Y with registration blanks given to their children in school recently. Deadline for registration is Friday. No telephone reservation will be accepted. Enrollment is limited to 231 boys and 231 girls.

Solve Parking Woes in Downtown Areas

CHICAGO (INS) — The Industrial Realtors Society says downtown districts are not doomed because of parking problems and predicts the birth of a new industry to devise systems for the more efficient use of space for automobiles.

The society, an affiliate of the National Real Estate Board Association, challenges the theory claiming parking woes have forced shoppers to abandon downtown areas for suburban centers. Parking engineer Carlisle F. Managuth says he envisions a giant new industry "specializing in the rapid and efficient storage of autos at the point where the drivers decide they want to be, rather than trying to take away from them the privileges of going where they wish."

He says the future of the parking industry involves, among other things, devising "parking structures integrated with the office and shops" and "mechanical parking in multi-story structures with production-line conveyor-type efficiency."

Exotic Lands Supply 21 Metals for Cars

DETROIT — Vanadium that lay beneath Inca temples in Peru; antimony lining the Burmese road from Rangoon to Mandalay; beryllium on Brazilian coffee plantations—even a trace of molybdenum overlooked in the gold rush on Cripple Creek, Colorado.

All these, and more, make up the modern American motorcar.

According to metallurgists, more than 21 metals from the four corners of the globe go into Detroit's automotive melting pot, making today's cars as exotic a means of transportation as Cleopatra's river barge.

Four of every five pounds of material in automobiles are metal, and that of these four pounds, nearly 97 per cent is accounted for by three metals—steel, cast iron and aluminum.

Child Swimming Program Takes 103 Applicants

ORION TOWNSHIP — The Child Guidance Assn. swimming program has accepted 103 applications for this year's swimming program that will begin Wednesday at the Village Park.

The seven week program is under the instruction of Florence Conn. As the result of requests for an adult class, Mrs. Charles Starrs, program chairman, has announced that a swimming course for them is being organized and all interested adults may call MY 2-5051 before June 17.

Many of the children's classes are under the maximum of 15 students and additional registrations may be made by calling Mrs. Starrs.

Suggests Program for Indians in U. S.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (U) — A church group has urged Congress to establish a Point 4 program for American Indians.

At a hearing of a Senate committee, Frank S. Ketcham, an attorney, speaking for the home missions board of the Congregational Christian churches, said: "It is up to us as a nation and a great people to redress our past wrongs and to cooperate to assist the American Indian..." He said Congress lately has been reducing its responsibility for Indian welfare, and this policy should be changed to "genuine concern for their well being" through a new economic aid program.

U.S. Plays Golf, but Scotland Owns It

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
EDINBURGH (INS) — It probably is safe to say that golf, that most miserable and humbling of frolicsome games, was originated in Scotland.

Fact is, it is not only the "probably safe" thing to say—it's the ONLY safe thing to say when you drop into Edinburgh, and the sand traps, hereabouts.

"I don't know exactly what you play in your benighted country," said Lawrence Miller, for example, "but it isn't the devil's game we play at St. Andrews and other links. We Scots have a horrid habit of sitting bunkers in dead middle o' the fairway to trap a mon, and et cetera."

FAMED ATTORNEY

Mr. Miller is a famed attorney in Edinburgh and also, by self-admission, "one of the world's keenest golfers." As such, he offers a concise emotionless accounting of the history of golf.

"It's quite clear," he said, "that Mary—Queen of Scots, that would be—was the first real golf widow."

"It was regarded with great disgust by the people when she went out to play golf with Lord Bothwell only days after the death of her husband, Lord Darnley. She played at St. Andrews—a fine course, or did I mention that? I'm a member."

Miller belongs to nine other courses, including two of championship quality, and his total annual dues for all 10 are 36 pounds ($100.80). Which explains why this is called "Golfers' Land."

"The first recorded history we have is that in the 1400s, Parliament passed a law prohibiting the playing of golf. King James II, he was, who banned it because it was an age of national defense and nobody was taking archery practice—they were too busy with the stick and ball."

FEATHERED BALL

In those days, the ball was made of feathers packed in leather, and the game was referred to as "gourf"—a peculiarly apt title.

Asked why more Scotsmen don't win more world titles, Miller turned wistful: "That, lass, is a sore point. We used to produce them regularly until after 1918. Since that war, life is real and life is earnest and today we have no amateurs who can play more than weekends."

"Of course, America has a disgusting habit of winning at our games."

He smiled philosophically. "I think, to put it bluntly, ye'r advantage is money. Scotland doesn't have any such thing as a Frank Stranahan."

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers reports that PTA membership has increased by more than a half-million during the past year. Mrs. Jack C. Greig, national membership chairman, says total membership now is 10,694,474.

Lake Ports Increase Overseas Commerce

ANN ARBOR—U. S. ports on the Great Lakes are making "amazing progress" in overseas commerce, the Great Lakes Commission was told during a meeting at the University of Michigan.

Marvin Fast, acting executive director of the commission, reported that general cargo trade increased approximately 2,000 per cent during the last decade. "The number of lines serving lake ports in overseas trade increased from three to 20 during that time, and the number of ships making round trips through the Welland Canal jumped from 21 to 334."

Fast noted that overseas trade is now starting its second quarter century (it began in 1832). "It reached an estimated 600,000 tons last year," he added. "According to a special tabulation for the commission, 1935 overseas trade was worth $160 million, $101.7 million of it in exports."

Fast said that seven of 10 ports surveyed by the commission staff reported record overseas trade for last year.

He also noted that the Fjell-Oranje line has announced it will begin passenger service between the Great Lakes and Europe in 1939 with a vessel now being built to carry 100 passengers plus cargo. Passenger service is now available from Lakes ports to the Caribbean in combination cargo and passenger vessels.

GRADUATION EN MASSE—When the Oscar Berg family does anything they don't do it by halves. This being graduation week in the Pontiac School system, all four of the Berg youngsters are graduating. Wednesday, Donny, 6, "graduated" from kindergarten to first grade at Webster School, and Lee Richard, 11, graduated to junior high from Webster. Yesterday morning, Bruce, 14, graduated from Washington Junior High, and in the evening his sister, Barbara, 17, bid farewell to Pontiac High. The Bergs, of 1030 James K Blvd., are proud of the children who have done well scholastically. Barbara is a member of the National Honor Society and Bruce won a silver "W" for his achievements.

Summer Fun Ahead on City Playgrounds

Boys and girls 6 through 16 years can look forward to another summer of fun when the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Dept. opens its summer playground program Monday.

Supervised activities will be conducted Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 through Aug. 9 at the following schools:

Bagley, Baldwin, Bethune, Central, Crofoot, Emerson, Jefferson Junior High, LeBaron, Lincoln Junior High, Longfellow, Malkin, McCarroll, McConnell, Owen, Washington Junior High, Webster, Weaver, Wilson and Lakeside Homes.

Leonard T. Buzz, supervisor of recreation, asked that children attend the playground closest to their home.

SOME EVENTS

Some of the things children will enjoy include arts and crafts, athletic events, horseshoes, field trips to local points of interest, including the zoo, an annual fishing rodeo, music and dramatic shows.

The General Motors Futurliner bus, presented to the department last year, will be used for most of the shows, Buzz said.

For the first time this year new multi-purpose rooms at several schools will be used in the playground periods.

Buzz announced that his playground staff will participate in a training program prior to the June 17 opening.

He said leadership will also be available at Oakland, Murphy and Beaudette parks from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. Monday through Friday. It will also be available on weekends and holidays from 1 until 10 p.m.

Optimist playground will have trained leaders Monday through Friday from 4 p.m. until dark, Buzz added.

The Song of Bernadette French City of Miracles Prepares for Centenary

PARIS (INS)—France's "city of miracles" has become a vast human beehive as it prepares for the centenary next year of the holy Virgin's apparition to a little girl.

Twenty million pilgrims are expected to converge on Lourdes from all over the world in 1958 to worship at the Grotto that has been credited with countless cures of cripples and invalids.

A plan is afoot to issue them special "pilgrims' passports" to facilitate their journey.

It will be 100 years next Feb. 10 that the Virgin Mary manifested herself to the then 11-year-old Bernadette Soubirou, a humble sheep herder. The jubilee festivities will continue throughout 1958.

A widely-circulated report that Pope Pius XII himself would honor the occasion with his presence was denied by the Apostolic Nuncio in Paris.

A spokesman for Monsignor Paolo Marella told International News Service:

"His Holiness seldom leaves the Vatican even to attend events in Rome. It is absolutely out of the question that he should travel abroad."

In Lourdes, construction crews are working 16 hours a day, to build a huge underground basilica, second in size only to St. Peter's in Rome.

It will extend some 600 feet under the gardens leading to the Grotto, oval-shaped, like Christian churches in primitive times, it will be about 240 feet wide at its center.

It is designed like a bomb-proof airplane hangar with a concrete cantilever roof, supported by modernistic slanting pillars. It can hold up to 20,000 people.

In the city itself, streets are being widened, new parking lots laid out and hotels refurbished and modernized.

Nearby Ossun airport, which handled 27,000 pilgrims who came by air in 1956, is being expanded and improved so as to be able to deal with increased day and night traffic. Preliminary estimates place at 200,000 the number of visitors to Lourdes next year who will travel by plane.

Mayer Antoine Berguero is coordinating the improvement plans by Lourdes' 16,000 inhabitants so that the expected pilgrims will be assured a comfortable stay.

Because of its status as a "holy city," Lourdes does not have a municipal tourist office and does not issue travel folders to attract visitors.

Such activities are shunned as undignified by both the Bishop's

Man to Hurl Tiny Challenge at Space

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Feature Writer

One by one man has conquered land, sea and air. This year, he hurls his first puny challenge at the most mysterious and huge dimension of all—space.

Compared to the unimaginable vastness of space, the challenge is so tiny it's almost ridiculous: a steel ball 20 inches in diameter with a weight of 21 pounds. To get only this handful of instrumentation into space man is building a 22,600-pound rocket engine system—a bit more than a ton of propulsion for every pound of result.

Sometime late this year, possibly November, a three stage rocket system will flash into the skies above Patrick Air Force Base, Fla.

In the head of the third rocket will be the gold plated satellite. Its skin is as polished as science can make it. Its heart and mind are delicate instruments, capable of gathering space data and spitting it back to earth by radio.

TO MAKE SIX TRIES

Before the end of 1958, scientists say, they will make "six earnest tries" to establish the satellite in an orbit encircling the earth from 200 to 1,200 miles into the unknown.

The first experiments are under way. Several rocket engines have been fired off this year. They are essentially trial shots to help scientists develop the engine and work out details, such as the mechanisms which will separate their vehicle automatically.

To pierce the earth's atmospheric blanket, the engines will have to break the earth's gravity. The engine system will have to give the little satellite a boost into its orbit at 18,000 m.p.h.

DIFFERENT PATH

Since the earth will spin inside the satellite's orbit, each circle made by the satellite will cover a slightly different path over the earth. At its lowest altitude, under ideal circumstances at sunrise and sunset, the satellite will be visible with good binoculars.

The satellite's height will largely measure its life.

Richard W. Porter, chairman of the Earth Satellite Technical Panel of the U. S. Committee for the International Geophysical Year, explains that an orbit only 100 miles high will cut the life of the satellite to a few revolutions around the earth.

If it orbits at about 300 miles, he says, it may stay aloft for several years.

The carrier mechanism for the tiny ball will be some 72 feet long and some 45 inches in diameter. The first two stages of the rocket engine will use liquid fuel. The third stage will use solid propellant.

Once lodged in space, the satellite will perform four Herculean tasks: It will measure the amount of ultra-violet radiation from the sun, measure the earth's magnetic field, gather information on high speed particles like cosmic rays, and measure the energy balance of the earth.

To see how this works, let's take just one task—the measuring of high speed particles. In the satellite is a 5½ inch Geiger counter, measuring the amount of particle radiation the satellite receives. A powerful pocket radio transmits the information back to earth after it has been tape recorded.

Hundreds of miles below, radio stations manned by scientists of many nations will receive the messages, decoding them and putting together a minute-by-minute report on the state of the great void.

This, of course, is only the start. Somewhat like the cautious bathers, man is testing the void by dipping in one small expendable toe.

Statistics Show Building Growth

173 Permits Issued,
39 for New Homes

The month of May showed a continued building growth in Pontiac, as revealed in monthly building statistics released by Carl F. Alt, city building inspector.

Among the total of 173 permits, totaling $468,200, 39 were issued for new homes with estimated values amounting to $353,000.

During April there were 48 new home permits worth $391,000 granted by Alt. This made up the bulk of the April total of 168 permits totaling $507,746.

Residential garages continued to spout in Pontiac as permits for 25 new ones totaling $15,297 were issued.

Making up the remainder of the May total were 86 permits for residential alterations and repairs ($62,110); three commercial alterations and repairs ($22,300); two commercial buildings ($7,600); five wrecking jobs ($550); installation of three tanks ($1,950); two fire escapes ($600), and construction of eight fences ($1,793).

Beef Sales Lead Pork

CHICAGO — During 1956 per capita spending for beef totaled $43.90, or $15 more than the per capita pork purchases. In 1946 the per capita retail value of pork consumed in the nation totaled $34.50, or $1.10 more than was spent for beef.

Charge Two Detroiters With Breaking, Entering

Two Detroit men will be arraigned in Circuit Court Monday charged with breaking and entering at Omans Sunoco Station, 18 Orchard Lake Ave., Sunday night.

Oscar Coleman, 23, of 5015 Spokane St., and Robert Coleman, 29, of 1734 Chicago Blvd., were freed on $500 bond each by Municipal Judge Maurice E. Finnegan after they waived examination Tuesday and were bound over to the higher court.

East, West Meet in Conservative New Leader in Canada

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Canada's East and West meet in John G. Diefenbaker, leader of the party which carried eight of the country's ten provinces.

The 61-year-old Conservative fashioned his career on the western prairies of Saskatchewan after being educated in the more eastern province of Ontario.

KNOWS FARMING
He is a lawyer but knows farming and farmers.

He is courtly, yet loves to tell stories about himself.

Although a Conservative, he can talk labor's talk to Labor.

For 30 years, he has battled almost always in opposition to the government. Finally, in Monday's national elections, his party won enough seats to form a new government with the help of minority parties.

INTENSE MAN

Diefenbaker is an intense man of deep religious convictions. He will not make a political speech on Sundays. When he was elected party leader at the national convention in Ottawa last December, he said he would be satisfied if his leadership earned this epitaph:

"He wasn't always right. Sometimes he was on the wrong side. But never on the side of wrong. That is my dedication."

That convention contest was the third time he had tried for the leadership. His victory, plus Monday's upset, was a great personal triumph for the man who personally led the campaign.

BECAME KNOWN

Through the weeks, his lean, wiry figure and curly black and gray hair became known throughout Canada, as he pledged increased social services, farm aid, tax cuts and increased trade.

A wounded veteran of World War I, he has been the party's foreign affairs expert, and some observers believe he will keep the external affairs portfolio when he takes over the prime minister's job.

Diefenbaker's first wife died five years ago. He remarried, and his wife accompanied him during the entire campaign tour, which ended in the party's success, topping of the Liberal Party after 22 years in power.

Only in Quebec, where his lack of fluent French is held against him, did he run into a stone wall of Liberal opposition.

But there is no reason to think that with another general election likely within a year, Diefenbaker can't go just one step better and get a clear-cut majority to form a solid Conservative government.

Medical Advances Highlight of Report

ANN ARBOR — Noteworthy medical advances are among the results of research sponsored by The University of Michigan's Memorial Phoenix Project on the peaceful uses of atomic energy during the past year.

This is brought out in the project's annual report, being distributed this week to the thousands of donors who helped establish the memorial to the University's dead of World War II.

Prepared by Dean Ralph A. Sawyer, director of the project, the report notes radioactive materials are now being used to treat advanced pulmonary emphysema, a condition in which damaged lungs do not release enough oxygen to meet the body's needs.

Radioactive iodine is administered to the patient in sufficient quantity to cause partial destruction of the thyroid gland, which plays an important part in the body's capacity to use oxygen in the process of metabolism. Thus the body's demand for oxygen is brought in line with the lung's capability for supplying it, the report states.

DOG and OYSTER

A Dog, used to eating eggs, saw an Oyster, opened his mouth wide and swallowed it with great relish, supposing it to be an egg. He soon suffered great pain. "I deserve all this torment, for my folly in thinking everything round must be an egg."

Hare Remains Unhappy With License Process

LANSING (U) — Secretary of State James M. Hare says his office is processing drivers licenses and automobile titles on a more nearly current basis, but that he still is not satisfied. "We are currently investigating the application of electronic business machine equipment that will reduce processing time," he said. Hare said that on June 1 two years ago there were $2,785 operators' licenses in process in Lansing, and about the same number of automobile titles.

At the start of this month, he said, the totals were 31,053 and 35,839, respectively. Mars has practically no oxygen or water.

Municipal Finance Unit OKs New Borrowings

LANSING (U) — The Municipal Finance Commission has put its okay on new borrowings totaling $11,889,950, including a $6,350,000 revenue bond issue for improvement work at Wayne Major Airport.

The Wayne County Road Commission got the green light on the airport project, which consists of acquiring and equipping a new terminal building.

Graham Offers 25 Complete Radiation Course

Two Choices

Evangelist Throws Out an 'Either-Or' Selection to 17,000 at New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Graham wants New Yorkers to think about this question:

"Either Jesus was who he said he was, the son of God and only those who accept him will be saved, or else he was the biggest liar and charlatan that ever lived."

The evangelist threw out the either-or challenge to 17,000 people in Madison Square Garden last night, and a catch came in his voice. "If people would only think about it . . . if they would only reflect."

Launching the fifth week of his New York crusade, Graham said the city teems with prodigal sons who have gone astray—and God wants them back.

Just as in the parable which tells of the father celebrating when his son returned from wasted living, Graham said, so the legions of God react whenever a sinner repents.

"The moment one person receives Christ," Graham said, "it sets off a celebration in heaven. The orchestras play, the bands sound out, the flags are unfurled and the angels rejoice . . . It makes big black headlines. 'John Doe Repents!' and all heaven sings."

The reaction of the world is usually different, he said, adding: "They may laugh at you and sneer."

A big visiting delegation of about 800 Tennesseans was present for the service, including Gov. Frank Clement.

The evangelist based his sermon on Luke 15, recounting the parables of the lost sheep and prodigal son.

Graham said his crusade definitely will end July 21, but later he told reporters he has plans for continuing activity in this area after that date. He did not elaborate.

Jet Pilot Dies in Crash

SAPPORO, Japan (AP)—Capt. Katsumi Hijioka crashed to his death today in a U. S.-made Sabre Jet fighter—the 29th member of Japan's fledgling air force to die in air mishaps since January.

Twenty-five persons this week completed a 2-month Civil Defense radiological monitoring course aimed at teaching the fundamentals of radioactivity and its detection.

Among those receiving certificates of completion were 16 from Pontiac city departments.

FINAL EXERCISE

A final exercise was conducted where students learned the use of CD Geiger counters, ionization rate meters, and dosimeters.

The course was conducted each Monday night beginning April 1. Instructors were Victor Lindquist, Pontiac High School science teacher and a graduate of a University of Michigan radiological course, and Fred T. McDermott, state industrial hygienist for the Michigan Dept. of Public Health.

Pontiac graduates included Charles Cohen, Ralph Florio, and Roland Bourke, of the City Health Dept.; James Clancy of the Water Beattie, Richard Mielke, and Lawrence Lyons, Fire Dept.; Capt. Oliver Lemeaux, Capt. Walter Krause, and Sgt. Medford Pittman, Police Dept.; and Stanley Swierczynski, of the Engineering Dept.

Others included Clyde Christian and Orville Hubback, of the Dept.

Dad Rescues Girl, Then Falls to Death

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Thomas Bennett, 45, saved the life of his daughter, Deborah, 3, yesterday—then fell to his death.

Police said Bennett rushed to a second-floor porch as he saw Deborah tottering on the railing. He pulled her backward but lost his balance and plunged through the railing to the ground.

Bennett's daughter, Marie, 9, had followed her father to the porch. She grabbed Deborah's feet to prevent her from falling through the broken railing.

H-Bomb Every Month

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Telegraph today said Britain now can produce one megaton H-bomb per month. A megaton is equivalent to a million tons of TNT. In addition, the newspaper said, the British can turn out "at least one, and probably several" ordinary atomic bombs in a week.

of Public Works, and Leonard Buzz and Donald Nagel of the Parks and Recreation Dept.

The remainder of the class consisted of: Bruce Drumm, White Lake; Francis Evon, Pontiac Township; Arthur Geyer, Milford; Henry Houston, Bloomfield;

Tough Shanghai Red Dies

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—This Red is dead and his usually raucous saloon is shuttered.

Shanghai Red was born Charles Oliver Eisenberg on San Francisco's Barbary Coast 65 years ago. His rough and tumble life ashore and afloat came to an end early yesterday after a heart attack which struck him down in his bar Tuesday night.

Circuses Have Bright Future, Fan Asserts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The circus dying?

"Not at all, sir," says the outgoing president of the Circus Fans of America Assn. "Why, we're just beginning. There's a great future ahead."

Gil Conliff said yesterday at the association's annual convention that there are 25 circuses on the road today "and all are making money."

One member disagreed. "There ain't no more circus," said 94-year-old Jake Posey, a veteran of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey.

"When they stopped taking the circus across the country on horses that was the beginning of the end."

"And when they took 'em off the railroads and put 'em into trucks, that did it."

Kansas City Housewife Killed by Fan Blade

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Mrs. Earl H. Horseman, 48, was found dead last night beside a 48-inch bedroom window fan which had no protective grill around its blades.

The family physician said one of the blades, apparently hit her head yesterday morning. Her husband found her when he came home about 6 p.m. from his foreman's job at a General Motors assembly plant. The fan was running.

One Basic Filling Makes Four Luscious Desserts

What to serve at the bride's first "at home" parties? Just relax, and make these fancy, but easy desserts. The secret of all four desserts is one basic filling made with melted semi-sweet chocolate morsels. From this comes a quartet of delightful desserts made with ready-to-use lady fingers, cream puffs, ice cream, and graham crackers.

Serve with a little showmanship and a bride's pride in new china and crystal. Any one of these desserts rivals a gourmet's creation that takes hours to make.

Bride's Quartet of Chocolate Desserts
Basic Semi-Sweet Filling: Melt

over hot (not boiling) water one 6 oz. package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels. Remove from water. Stir in till smooth 1/2 cup light corn syrup, 2 tablespoons water. Reserve 1/4 cup for use as glaze. Fold into remaining mixture 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Lady Finger Dessert
Split and halve 8 lady fingers (32 pieces). Line 1 quart glass dish with 24 pieces. Drizzle 1/2 glaze over pieces. Pour in filling. Place remaining lady finger pieces on top. Drizzle with remaining glaze. Chill several hours. Yield: 6 servings.

Semi-Sweet Graham Loaf
Place 5 graham crackers, broken in large pieces (to fit pan) in bottom of waxed paper-lined pan 10" x 5" x 3". Pour over 1-3 filling. Repeat to yield 4 cracker layers. 3 filling layers. Drizzle glaze over top. Freeze till glaze is firm. Wrap properly for freezing. Serve frozen, remove waxed paper, then slice lengthwise in half, crosswise in 2" slices. Yield: 10 servings.

Cream Puffs Glaze
Fill 8 cooled 3" cream puff shells with filling. Drizzle glaze over tops. Freeze till glaze is firm. Then wrap properly for freezing. To serve, let thaw 15 minutes. Cream puff shells can be bought at fancy bakeries to fill at home.

Minute Ice Cream Sauce
Increase water to 1/4 cup. Omit heavy cream and vanilla. Serve warm or cool over ice cream.

Unflavored Gelatin Daily Improves Fingernails

To improve fragile, brittle fingernails include an envelope of unflavored gelatin in your daily diet. The gelatin is taken in beverage form by stirring the envelope amount into a glass of fruit or vegetable juice, milk or water.

Period of use is about three months, the time generally required to grow a new nail. The envelope contains 115 to 120 grains of gelatin and costs about 5 cents. The same amount of gelatin in capsule form costs about 75 cents.

Next time you're making a medium cream sauce for leftover chicken, try using one cup of chicken broth and one cup of cream for the liquid.

Sprinkle baking powder biscuits with paprika, celery seed or garlic powder before baking. Serve with a meat course.

Wrigleys Open Drayton Store

Wrigleys Supermarkets will open its fifth store in the Pontiac area Sunday, June 16, at 5060 Dixie Highway, in Drayton Plains. It will be the company's 99th Michigan store.

The supermarket, which occupies 18,730 square feet, is the first store to open at the Dixie Highway location, which is the site for a future shopping center development. The parking lot adjacent to the store accommodates 300 cars.

The Drayton Plains store contains 116 feet of meat display counters, with 16 feet of frozen meat, 85 feet of other frozen foods, and 53 feet of triple deck dairy shelving, which offers easy access to merchandise. The new supermarket is 1,200 square feet of sales area.

To guarantee fresh merchandise, daily deliveries of perishable goods are made from Detroit. A new meat wrapping machine has been installed to enable meat cuts to be wrapped faster, thus decreasing the time the meat must be packaged in advance of peak shopping hours.

A Mel-O-Crust bakery, which occupies 30 feet, features an oven that bakes frozen pies on the spot. Shoppers can order their pies when they enter the store and pick them up freshly-baked as they leave.

A parcel pick-up station has been established in the front of the building enabling customers to pick up their packages as they leave the parking lot. Eight magic-eye check out stands, with the convenient cart control system, provide efficient and speedy service.

Does Your Family Get Proper Amount of Milk?

Whether the family gets enough milk is up to you. Don't you as a homemaker do most of the food shopping? Don't your milk drinking habits carry over to your children's use of milk?

According to several recent surveys, women and teenage girls, and families with low incomes are most in need of more milk reports the MSU Marketing Information Agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawyer. Adults need 2 or more cups of milk each day, small children need 3 to 4 cups and teenagers need a quart or more. Check your milk shopping habits and make any needed changes to improve the family's health.

Check Knowledge of Meat With Quiz

As a homemaker you are undoubtedly aware of the importance of good nutrition to your family. Actually you play a very important role. The health and well-being of the family is closely related to the meals they eat. The planning and preparing of these meals is largely the responsibility of you, Mrs. Homemaker.

Reba Staggs, well known home economist and meat expert, emphasizes the importance of meat in the diet.

Take this quiz. See how well you are acquainted with the value of meat in the daily menu.

1. Meat contributes generous amounts of—needed for the growth, and repair of body tissue.

(a) carbohydrate (b) fat (c) protein

2. All meat provides iron needed for healthy blood. —is a particularly rich source of iron.

(a) Corned beef (b) liver (c) lamb patties

3. The B vitamin, thiamine, is important for the proper functioning of the heart and nerves. All meat contains thiamine but —is an outstanding source of this B vitamin.

(a) Beef (b) pork (c) veal (d) lamb

4. Meat contains minerals needed for good nutrition. Meat is rich in —and —but generally low in—.

(a) Calcium (b) phosphorus (c) iron

5. All meat should be cooked at a — temperature to obtain maximum tenderness and juiciness.

(a) high (b) low

Only Half an Hour Needed for Cooking

Tomato Beef Sauce

1/4 cup olive or peanut oil
1 cup finely diced onion
1/2 cup finely diced green pepper
1/2 pound mushrooms (thin sliced)
1 pound ground chuck beef
1 can (1 pound and 12 ounces) tomato puree

2 large cloves garlic (peeled and crushed)

1/2 teaspoon dry crushed oregano

1/2 teaspoon dry crushed basil

1/2 teaspoon brown gravy coloring

1 bouillon cube

1/2 cup boiling water

Heat oil in 12-inch skillet; add onion, green pepper and mushrooms. Cook until wilted, stirring often, over moderately low heat—about 10 minutes. Add beef; mash beef with long-handled two-tined fork until it loses its red color.

Add tomato puree, garlic, oregano, basil, gravy coloring; dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water and add. Cook slowly for 30 minutes or longer. Serve over spaghetti and sprinkle with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese.

Bananas Good Any Way

The versatile banana is a fruit with dozens of uses. Slice ripe bananas (yellow peel flecked with brown) to serve over ready-to-eat cereal, pudding, or cake. Bake bananas, broil bananas. For this purpose, the less ripe banana (slightly green-tipped or all-yellow peel) will stay firm during cooking.

Slice them lengthwise, or diagonally for use in salads. For dainty "Crinkly-edged rounds" of banana, run the prongs of a fork lengthwise down the peeled banana, then slice crosswise.

Pork and veal chops often need to be braised to be tender. But never brown the chops in liquid during cooking; add a little at a time, as needed.

Hot Dogs Top Vegetable Dish

You may not be able to teach an old dog new tricks, but you can conjure up new serving tricks for that popular favorite, the hot dog. For those homemakers who want to celebrate National Hot Dog Month early—it doesn't start officially until July—here's a magical recipe that transforms the hot dog into a delicious family supper dish. Called "Frank and Corn Bake" it's as easy on the budget as it is to prepare.

Frank and Corn Bake

1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter
6 skinless frankfurters
2 No. 300 cans corn
1/2 cup chili sauce
6 green pepper rings

Cook chopped green pepper and onion in butter until transparent, about 5 minutes; stir in corn. Pour corn mixture into 6 individual casserole dishes. Slit frankfurters and lay one on top of each filled casserole. Fill slits with chili sauce. Top with green pepper ring. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 20 to 30 minutes. Makes six servings.

FRANK AND CORN BAKE—Here's a dish that's easy on the budget and on the homemaker who prepares it. Green pepper and onions are lightly cooked before adding to whole kernel corn. Chili filled opened hot dogs top the vegetables and are baked briefly. Additional green pepper serves as a garnish.

Low Butter Consumption Despite Higher Milk Use

WASHINGTON (INS)—Butter consumption in the United States is now at a record low but agriculture department specialists point out that the total market for milk products is better than ever.

The reason is the increased use of dairy items which contain milk solids (without fat).

In recent years, per capita consumption of milk solids without fat in such forms as cheese, evaporated and condensed milk, frozen dairy products, dry whole milk and nonfat dry milk has averaged 48 to 50 pounds. It was less than 40 pounds in the 1920s and 1930s.

Despite this increase for all milk, a large part of farm production of solids-not-fat is still not used for food. About 30 per cent was not marketed by farmers in 1955.

In recent years, officials point out, a substantial portion of the supply has been processed into nonfat dry milk which is brought by the government to help support prices of manufacturing milk.

The use of milk fat declined as food processors and consumers shifted to low-cost substitutes. Before World War II, per capita consumption of butter was 17 to 18 pounds. It dropped to less than nine pounds by 1955.

At the same time, consumption increased for margarine and cheese spreads, and use of vegetable fats and oils for cooking purposes also increased. Today, relatively less milk fat is being used in several products including whole milk and cream.

An important reason cited by officials for the decline in butter consumption is the wide price difference between it and margarine. For many years butter retailed for twice the price of margarine.

With the present price spread of about two and one-half times the cost of margarine expected to continue, the marketing specialists say it will be difficult to expand commercial butter sales.

Here's a leisurely luncheon entrée that's just perfect for warm days. It's a jelled bologna ring. Prepare your favorite vegetable aspic salad and add flavor and texture to the mold by using julienne strips of bologna.

7-Minute Quicknic Tray

Take time out from two TV commercials and here's your quicknic all ready, at the program break! Mash spicy canned Maine sardines with chili sauce and lemon juice.

Mix chopped sliced canned mushrooms and dry mustard into canned deviled ham for a zesty spread. Creamed cottage cheese, chopped corn, chili filled opened hot dogs top the vegetables and are baked briefly. Additional green pepper serves as a garnish.

Add grated orange rind to the egg-and-milk combination in which you dip bread slices for French Toast. You can substitute orange juice for part of the milk if you

What Kind of Shopper Do You Consider Self?

By JANET ODELL

Pontiac Press Home Editor

What kind of a food shopper are you? Do you think you're a good one? From whose point of view? Do you come home, satisfied that you have lots of bargains in your bags of groceries, but leaving behind disgruntled grocery clerks and check-out girls? Or are you a welcome shopper, but one who spends far more than you should because you don't know how to shop?

If you have so much money that it doesn't make any difference how much you spend on food, don't bother to read any more of this article. But if you have to watch where the pennies go, read on and perhaps learn how to get a little more for your money.

First of all, you can't be an efficient shopper unless you have a plan. You must know what you need. Unless you have your menus in mind, you won't know what foods to buy.

You will short change your family if you don't give them all the food essentials when you plan menus. Briefly, this is what you should include:

MILK — two or more cups daily for adults, three or four for youngsters. (Cheese and ice-cream can replace part of the milk.)

MEAT — two or more servings each day. This group includes fish, eggs, and lentils and nuts occasionally.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS — four or more servings daily, including a dark green or deep yellow vegetable (at least every other day), a citrus fruit or other fruit or vegetable containing vitamin C daily — also potatoes.

BREADS AND CEREALS — Four or more servings daily.

These are the foundations of a good diet. You build on them, according to your family's likes and dislikes.

In these days of self-service stores, we don't have to take up the grocer's time trying to decide what we want. But there are other ways in which to annoy the man in the food store — and short change yourself.

The cartoons showing the particular lady pinching all the tomatoes to find the ones she wants are not all imaginary. You have seen just such women shopping. They may take home the best produce for themselves, but they leave behind irate store clerks and disgruntled fellow shoppers.

WE ALL PAY MORE

When food has to be discarded because it has been mishandled by unthinking shoppers, we all pay. Grocers know they will incur just so much of this damage and set their prices to allow for it.

We think you should be choosy about the food you buy, but not at the expense of your fellow shoppers. We think you should look for solid heads of lettuce; for firm, thin skinned grapefruit; for ripe melons and pineapples; and for unwilted spinach. But take it easy.

But back to saving money. . . Are you a label reader? If you never read anything but The Pontiac Press, change your reading habits immediately and add label reading. You'll learn a lot.

INGREDIENTS LISTED

If you happen to be on a diet that restricts use of certain foods, read the labels to see if these foods are in the food you're buying. Remember that Uncle Sam says all food packers must list the ingredients on the label. You'll find out whether "a trace of salt" is added to vegetables; whether the tuna is canned with or without oil; and whether sugar is added to the fruit juice. It could be important.

Read labels to see if you're getting a bargain. Is the large economy size really economical? How much per ounce or per pound are you paying? The last time we bought coffee (we buy it in the bean) we checked on the three-pound bag. There was almost no saving in buying that instead of buying three one-pound bags. Naturally, we bought the smaller bag. Usually it works the other way.

Read labels to see if a less expensive item will do as well as a more costly one. If you're using tomatoes in a casserole dish, you probably don't care whether they remain whole. But if you're serving stewed tomatoes in a sauce dish, you want them to look as good as possible.

GRADE C IS USEFUL

Often the difference between Grade A and Grade C vegetables and fruits is merely the difference between perfect sections or halves and run-of-the-lot pieces. Some of the most delicious canned peaches we ever ate were in the latter category. Distinguish between appearance and taste and decide which is more important. You'll save money.

Do you believe that only nationally advertised brands of food are fit to eat? Why not experiment with some lesser known brands. We know of one factory that prepares evaporated milk for three or four different companies, putting various labels on the cans. The milk inside is the same; only the label is changed.

Experiment with just one can of a new brand. If you and your family don't like it as well as the brand you're used to, no damage is done. You can go back to the original one the next time. On the other hand, you may like it better and save money.

Watch for sales. Canned goods do not deteriorate over a period of a year or so. Just before the new crop comes in, the stores like to clear out their last year's supply. Take advantage of that and save money. This applies to frozen foods too for homemakers who have freezers.

Do you figure out cost per serving of meat and produce? One cut of meat may be more expensive than another. But if the first one is boneless and will serve one more person than the piece with the bone in, you'll save money by buying it. Do a little simple arithmetic before you buy.

Do you try to plan your meats for the week around the specials the stores advertise? Do you sometimes buy the odd cuts that are reasonable because of little demand. We are thinking of pork neck bones, veal hearts and lamb breast, for instance.

If you don't know how to cook these, ask the butcher or call The Pontiac Press Food Editor. All meat, regardless of price, has the same nutritional value.

Do you buy a lot of convenience foods? The lower your budget the fewer of these foods you can afford. But for any prepared food it is wise to ask yourself whether you can make it cheaper and as good.

We think the commercial mayonnaise makers do a good job and wouldn't think of taking over. But when it comes to sweet rolls, fancy cookies or frozen macaroni and cheese, we think the home product is as good and much cheaper.

SNACK FOODS COSTLY

Do you buy a lot of snack foods? Fancy lunch meats, soft drinks, fancy candies and cookies, potato chips and salted nuts are more expensive than some snacks you can prepare at home. Canned and frozen fruit juices quench thirst, cookies can be home made, french fried delicacies can be done in a home fryer.

Popcorn is wonderful nibble food while cheese and crackers adds more protein to any diet. Snack foods are good. Most of us want some of them. But they are expensive.

It's challenging to plan your menus, using foods that are within reach of whatever budget you have for the week. With the many thousands of different foods available in today's markets, we should all eat like kings. You should be the world's best shopper if you take just a little time, a little trouble and a little imagination.

DESSERT-ON-A-DIET! — There's something new in desserts that's easy on dieters' consciences and pocketbooks — a low Calorie Cottage Cheese with Caramel Sauce Cup. Just serve a four-ounce portion of cottage cheese in a paper cup and pour caramel sauce over it. There's not enough sugar to add pounds, but it will add energy. The paper cups are an attractive yellow leaf design and measure exactly four ounces. This informal way of serving a dessert leaves no sticky dishes to wash later. Just throw the cups away.

Cocktail Spiced Shrimp Will Win Raves at Party

Spiced shrimp are more than a tempting treat. They're a conversation piece. You'll win raves from your guests by serving spiced shrimp at your next bridge luncheon, buffet supper, cocktail party, or other special snack. What's more, you'll rave about this recipe, too, because it's really easy to prepare.

A note of caution: The man of the house may try to take this over and collect the credit.

Spiced Shrimp

- 1 pound cooked, peeled, deveined shrimp (cups)
- 2 medium onions, thinly sliced
- 1 lemon, sliced
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon whole black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- Dash of Tabasco sauce
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1/2 cup salad oil

Fill a bowl with alternating layers of shrimp, sliced onions and lemon.

Combine vinegar, water, salt, sugar and spices in a saucepan. Bring to a boil, cover, simmer for 5 minutes, and then cool.

Strain, add lemon juice and oil. Pour over shrimp. Cover and refrigerate for 24 hours. Stir occasionally. Drain before serving. Use plastic or wooden picks for serving. Yield: One quart.

It's Cheaper Than Eggs

Evaporated milk does double duty in glorifying fried chicken, which has all the standing a fine old American tradition deserves. First use the milk to coat the chicken pieces so that the flour adheres to form a beautifully crisp crust. Then put it to work as a base for creamy gravy.

Fill Bull's Eye With Cheese

Where did the Hamburger originate? The story goes that hamburger steak had its beginnings in the city of Hamburg, Germany. The ancient traders of Hamburg brought back from the Baltic provinces of Russia a taste for red meat, shredded with a dull knife and eaten raw. Generally speaking, however, America's preference runs more to cooked meat and a convenient way of eating it. . . thus evolved the Hamburger as we know it.

Here's a hamburger recipe that evolved from Carnation Company's test kitchens. . . a delicious combination of ground beef, seasonings and evaporated milk that's broiled right on the bun. The evaporated milk keeps the meat moist, tender and firm-textured, something no other form of milk can do.

Bull's-Eye Burgers

- 1/2 cup (small cap) undiluted evaporated milk
- 1 egg
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 1/2 cup fine cracker crumbs
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup finely chopped green pepper
- 4 hamburger buns, split in half
- 1 8-ounce jar processed Cheddar cheese spread

Combine evaporated milk, egg, beef, cracker crumbs, salt, pepper, mustard, onion and green pepper. Blend together until well-mixed. Form meat mixture into 12 thin patties (about 1/2 cup each). Place each patty on hamburger bun half, covering completely. Make a depression in each Bunburger with tablespoon.

Place Bunburgers on broiler pan. Broil 5-7 inches from heat for 3 to 7 minutes (or to taste). Spread cheese in depressions in Bunburgers. Broil until cheese bubbles (1 to 2 minutes). Makes 6 servings.

Creamy Spinach Done With Cheese

Delicious way with spinach.

Creamy Spinach

- 1 package (10 ounces) cleaned fresh spinach
- One half of a 3-ounce package of cream cheese
- Salt, pepper

Remove tough stems from spinach. Dunk spinach in several fresh water baths to clean thoroughly. Cook rapidly, covered, in the water clinging to the leaves, stirring several times. Or if you like a milder flavor, cook spinach in a quart of boiling water. Drain thoroughly.

Return drained spinach to saucepan with cream cheese; melt cream cheese, mixing it with spinach, over low heat. Add salt and pepper to taste. Makes 4 servings.

Condensed Soup Makes Gravy for Veal Chops

Try veal chops this oven-way for a change.

Veal Chops With Mushroom Sauce
4 loin veal chops (about 1½-inch thick)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed undiluted cream of mushroom soup
½ cup water
1 teaspoon garlic powder
Crushed thyme
Salt, pepper

Trim almost all fat away from around chops; cut off "tails." Brown chops and chop ends rapidly in hot butter in skillet.

Mix soup, water, garlic powder and a pinch of thyme together in baking pan—about 8x12 inches is a good size. Arrange browned chops in pan; sprinkle chops with salt and pepper.

Bake uncovered, stirring sauce occasionally, in slow (325 degrees) oven until fork-tender—about 45 minutes. Serve veal chops with the sauce which will be on the thin side; if you like a thicker sauce use ½ cup instead of ¼ cup water. Makes 4 servings.

Meat Spread Used in Dip

For summertime entertaining, use this Easy Meat Dip for appetizer trays or evening snacks. Mix two 4½ ounce jars of prepared pork or beef meat spread with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon onion juice. Mix thoroughly and chill. Serve with crisp raw vegetable relishes or potato chips.

Get Greatest Use From Every Bit of Cheese Bought

Get the good from every piece of cheese you eat. Waste none. Cut off only as much as you need each time; then store the rest tightly wrapped. Cheese may mold without spoiling; if it does, just cut off the mold and use the rest.

Go easy with the heat when you cook cheese. Cooked too quickly, cheese gets tough and stringy.

To speed up the melting and blending of cheese, break it, grate it, slice it or shave it into small pieces before you heat it. When possible, mix the cheese into a sauce before adding it to other ingredients.

Add small bits of cheese to a tossed green vegetable salad; to a potato salad; or a kidney bean salad. Or add grated cheese to salad dressing you serve over lettuce. Many top-notch cooks stuff celery with cheddar cheese, but have you tried it with cottage cheese. It's good by itself, but better sprinkled with paprika, and extra-special with a topping of caraway seeds.

Casserole From Cans

Handy canned shrimp offers many an easy summer's supper. To make popular Shrimp Norfolk, arrange drained canned shrimp in individual casseroles. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, a bit of poultry bread dressing and a dash of garlic salt; then top each serving with a tablespoon of butter. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) about 10 minutes, until hot and lightly browned.

Dessert Includes Daily Essentials

The dessert course gives you an ideal opportunity to slip in the daily quota of health-giving foods such as milk, enriched yeast-raised bread and eggs. This delicious Baked Coconut Pudding is packed with vitamins and minerals as well as flavor. It serves ideally when the rest of the meal is light for it is fairly hearty. Dress it up prettily, hot or cold, with sliced oranges, cream or whipped cream, or a bright dab of jelly.

Baked Coconut Custard
1 cup soft yeast-raised bread crumbs
1 quart milk, scalded
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs
1 teaspoon orange extract
1 cup grated coconut

Combine bread, milk, sugar, butter and salt and set aside. Beat eggs with a fork. Slowly stir in milk mixture; then orange extract and coconut. Pour into a greased 1½-quart casserole dish. Place casserole in a pan of hot water and bake at 375 degrees (moderate oven) about 1 hour, until a knife inserted near the center comes out clean. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The whole family likes potato salad on a picnic, but because it may spoil easily it becomes a problem on a hot day or a long trip. So what could be more convenient than canned potato salad! Take a jar or can of German style potato salad along on your next outing—and no matter how far you go, you'll be confident when you serve it. The family will love its sweet-sour flavor, too.

Cooling Drink Is Varied With Blackberries

A breeze-fanned porch or patio, good company and a tall, cooling drink—that's the perfect formula for lazing away a warm summer afternoon.

It's smart to have a variety of carbonated beverages on hand for just such times. A glass, tinkling with ice, filled with sparkling grape, orange or lemon soda, ginger ale or root beer, is a welcome sight and fills the bill on many occasions.

For special guests and parties, you might like to prepare a more elaborate drink. Simple and delicious, and so easy to prepare, is this one combining canned blackberries and lemon soda.

Tangy Cooler
1 8-oz. can blackberries
1 cup light cream
1 28-oz. bottle lemon soda
Put blackberries through sieve or food mill. Add light cream. Mix well. Divide among 4 tall glasses. Fill each glass with ice cold lemon soda. Stir gently to mix.

Make Sodas in Glass

Here's a Quick Chocolate Soda, fizzy with refreshment. So easy, you make the whole thing right in the glass. Combine 3 heaping teaspoons quick cocoa powder with a small amount of milk in a tall glass. Add 1 scoop vanilla ice cream. Fill slowly with chilled sparkling water or other carbonated beverage.

Hospital Auxiliary Holds Awards Luncheon

Civic Room Is Setting for Affair

Presidency Taken by Mrs. Rapaport at Board Meeting

Mrs. Raymond Rapaport was named president of the Women's Auxiliary to Pontiac General Hospital on the acceptance of the resignation of Mrs. William McClure.

The board meeting preceded the annual awards luncheon held at the Pontiac Federal Savings and Loan Building Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Ralph Babbington was selected to serve in Mrs. Rapaport's former office of third vice president. Mrs. Dexter Kennedy was named chairman for the membership drive slated for July.

Awards were presented to members who have given 50 or more hours of volunteer service to the hospital. Ninety-six members and guests attended.

Mayor William Donaldson was a guest of the group.

The president's gavel of the Auxiliary to Pontiac General Hospital was presented to Mrs. Raymond N. Rapaport (center right) by Mrs. William H. Bedard at the annual awards luncheon held Wednesday. Watching as the presentation was made were Mrs. P. Eugene Miller (left), past president of the auxiliary, and Warren Simon, acting director of Pontiac General Hospital.

Church of Advent Auxiliary Hears Progress Report

Thirty-two members of the Women's Auxiliary of Episcopal Church of the Advent met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Rogers Marquis in Bloomfield Hills. Mrs. Clarence Surr and Mrs. Franklin Read assisted the hostess.

The Rev. John Wigle reviewed activities of the church and told of the progress to date in the building program.

Following the business meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Fritz Stoddard (left) of Ottawa drive and Mrs. Robert Tedcastle of Old Orchard drive found a few minutes to visit before the luncheon meeting of the Auxiliary to Pontiac General Hospital. Mrs. Stoddard will open her home for the membership tea to be held by the auxiliary in July.

Husbands: Four Things Will Make Brides Happy

Keep Them Well Supplied With Love, Appreciation, Adventure, Security

BY RUTH MILETT

Women get much advice on how to keep a husband happy.

Men are told little about how to keep a wife happy. So this year instead of writing a column for June brides I am writing one for new husbands.

Memo to June bridegrooms:

To be happy, women need four things their husbands can give them: Love, appreciation, adventure and security.

A word about love. Husbands have been known to reply to a wife's tearful protest that "You don't love me any more." "I married you, didn't I?"

How stupid about women can a husband be? A man may think that when he marries a woman he proves his love for once and all. But a woman wants to be told every day of the world that she is loved.

She wants to be told without having to ask. Furthermore, she wants her husband's words of love to be backed up by his interest in her as a person.

THEY GO STALE

Now about appreciation. Women for whom homemaking is a major interest, work for appreciation. If they don't get it, they go stale on the job.

Adventure is something we are told men need more than women. Maybe so. But that is no reason for overlooking the fact that women need it, too. And what a husband should remember is that adventure may mean one thing to him and quite another thing to his wife.

Is it any sillier for a woman to get a sense of adventure from spicing up on one "perfect outfit" or from redoing the living room than it is for a man to get a feeling of adventure from landing a fish or killing a deer? Of course not.

So even as you occasionally need to break away from the humdrum, so will your wife. And the way she chooses won't necessarily be the way you choose.

As for security. You are her security. The stronger you are, the safer she will feel.

Philathea Class Marks Birthdays

The Loyal Philathea Class of First Baptist Church met Tuesday evening in the church parlors. Mrs. C. L. Baker presented the program.

A birthday dinner for members whose birthdays were in the past three months was served by Mrs. E. C. McNair and her committee after the meeting.

Nancy A. Ody, Irven Kearney Exchange Vows

The marriage of Nancy A. Ody and Irven L. Kearney was performed Saturday afternoon at the First Presbyterian Church by the Rev. William Marbach in a double ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ody of South Midland drive, Joseph F. Kearney and Mrs. Frances Lada of Plymouth are Irven's parents.

Jean Earls was Nancy's only attendant. Thomas Goodale of Northville served as best man.

The new Mrs. Kearney will make her home in Pontiac until her husband is discharged from the U. S. Marine Corps. Pfc. Kearney will be sent to Sasabo, Japan, as a military policeman when he returns to duty.

Armenian Group Selects Officers

Mrs. Kelly Yakhmalian was elected president of the Ani Chapter of the Armenian Relief Society at the last meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Miran Awedian of North Saginaw street. Mrs. John Vartanian assisted.

Other officers elected were Mrs. John Stephanian, vice-president; Rose Hoogasian, secretary; and Mrs. Albert Papazian, treasurer. A family picnic the end of June will conclude group activities for the season.

24 Attend Banquet

Twenty-four members were present for the Pontiac Mother Singers Banquet held at the Villa Inn in Lake Orion Tuesday evening. Mrs. Frank Walters was hostess at her home in Lake Orion to members following the banquet. The group plans a July picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon L. Schiller of Onondaga road are the proud parents of a son, David Bellaire, born June 8 at Pontiac General Hospital.

Grandmothers of the infant are Mrs. Leah M. VanWagoner of Oxford and Mrs. Nina Schiller of Lake Orion.

Lola Strom Re-elected by Sorority

Lola Strom was re-elected president of Omega Mu Sigma sorority when members met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Emma Olsen on Hatchery road.

Serving with Miss Strom are Mrs. Wayne Anabel, vice president; Mrs. Kuga Kojima, recording secretary; Mrs. Helen Frack, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Leo Halfpenny, treasurer; Mrs. Harlan Oakes, chaplain, and Mrs. Don Cotterman and Mrs. Merrill Petrie, auditors.

A contribution was voted to Camp Oakland for Boys, and plans were completed for the annual picnic to be held June 25 at the home of Mrs. Louis B. Livingston on Woodbine drive.

Following the business meeting, members sewed for the American Cancer Society.

Extension Club Plans Booth for CAI Fair

Mrs. James M. Rowland of Elizabeth Lake road was hostess Tuesday evening to the Burlingham Park Extension Group. The group will sponsor a booth at the annual CAI Fair in Waterford, June 21-23.

Officers elected were: Mrs. Richard Thompson, chairman; Mrs. William Wagner, assistant chairman; Mrs. Robert Canler, secretary; and Mrs. Donald Marion, treasurer.

Others include Mrs. James Rowland, reporter; Mrs. Albert Titolt, recreation chairman; Mrs. Robert Barber, community chairman; and Mrs. Lawrence Maki, safety chairman.

Pythian Sisters Hold Meeting

Mrs. Glynn Pettinger and Mrs. Adelbert Ayres were accepted as members of the Pythian Sisters at a recent meeting of Mispah Temple No. 7 on Voorheis road.

Entertainment was arranged by Mrs. Harry Harrington, Mrs. William Vance and Mrs. George James. The group will sponsor a home-made articles booth at the CAI Building Fair in Waterford June 21 to 23.

Assisting Mrs. Ray Harrington, general committee chairman for booth arrangements, will be Mrs. Mel Hale, Mrs. Clifford Neville, Mrs. George Newlin and Mrs. William Vance.

E. JAMES KITSON
Receiving a bachelor of arts degree in secondary education from Eastern Michigan College today will be E. James Kitson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kitson of Parkhurst street. James will continue working at the college as manager of Charles McKenny Hall.

Mrs. Denis Hawker found time from her busy schedule during her ten-day visit here for an afternoon of shopping. Visiting Australian journalist Denis Hawker, who has been in Pontiac since February, accompanied his wife on the shopping tour, offering his repeated assurance that "fashions here are the same as they are back home."

Mr. and Mrs. Hawker leave Pontiac Saturday for tour of the United States. They will visit several European countries before returning to their home in Hobart, Tasmania, Australia.

Not Too Strenuous for Middle-Aged

Bicycles Offer Excellent Exercise

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Summertime offers us an excellent opportunity to build up our general health, and therefore to improve our looks.

The time we spend in outdoor exercise, the relaxation which comes from close contact with nature, and the variety of fresh vegetables and fruits can give us a backlog of increased energy which will make the rest of the year much more successful and productive.

During recent years the value of bicycling as a mild form of exercise has been emphasized. Famous heart specialists have sung its praises. We know that exercise is important in attaining splendid physical condition and in prolonging the youthful portion of life.

However, many forms of exercise are too strenuous for the man or woman at middle age and later. Swimming, golf, walking and bicycling are four exercises which can be indulged in at any age if there is no abnormal condition and if they are indulged in with discretion.

Often physicians recommend these even when there has been some impairment of the heart or of some other organ. Naturally each case is different and you should follow your doctor's directions in such matters.

FAMILY EXERCISE

Riding a bicycle is not only wonderful exercise but you also can enjoy the beauty of the countryside or park nearby. It's a companionable exercise, too, when you go along with a friend or a member of the family. It provides a family group exercise which is wonderful.

Women write to know if this is a reducing exercise! It is reducing

Good Looks Are Secondary in Picking Sweethearts

Teenagers Hunt Personality With Capital P

By EUGENE GILBERT
President, Gilbert Youth
Research Co.

What does a girl look for when he picks a girl friend?
What does a boy look for when she picks a boy friend?

Is every girl the only girl for some love-smitten boy? Is every boy the only boy for some love-smitten girl?

These are questions that have been kicking around the world ever since the early cave man took club in hand and went hunting for a helpmate and ever since the first cave woman allowed herself to be dragged by the tresses to the altar rail.

We decided to find out what makes young hearts tick in unison by shooting these age-old questions at more than 1,000 teenagers in cities and towns across the continent.

To our surprise — and probably to yours too — we learned that personality is spelled with a capital "P" when both boys and girls set out to choose friends of the opposite sex.

"BEING A PERSON"

Personality, according to Webster, is a "quality or state of being a person and not a thing or abstraction . . . that which constitutes distinction of person, individuality."

We have no quarrel with Webster, but we think Sande Goldfarm, a 16-year-old New Haven, Conn., girl who took part in the survey, expressed it much more succinctly when she said, "It means a friend should be fun to be with, not a drip."

And young Paul Steinke of Philadelphia taking a negative approach, said "It means not being a square."

More than 25 per cent of the girls and nearly 28 per cent of the boys put personality in first place on their list of character traits sought in friends of the opposite sex.

Among both boys and girls, personality received nearly twice as many first place votes as any other friendship asset.

WIDE DIFFERENCE

After that, there was a wide difference of opinion among the sexes.

Boys quickly reverted to the wow and whistle school of thought by placing good looks in second place on the list, a shade ahead of companionship and well ahead of such attributes as brains, education, good family and similar background.

The girls weren't particularly concerned whether their boy friends looked like Gregory Peck or the bridegroom of Frankenstein's daughter so long as they had a good reputation, made good companions, and had a good education.

These three qualities wound up in second, third and fourth place, respectively, on female list of charm qualities sought in the ideal boy.

Good looks, as a matter of fact, closed a poor seventh with the girls, but still well ahead of brains and money.

BRAINY GIRLS

Surprisingly, boys put a higher premium on brainy girl friends than girls did on brainy boy friends, despite the high feminine regard for good education.

Boys may still be on the lookout for good looking girls, but the dumb blonde type seems a thing of the Hollywood past in most neighborhoods.

As Lee Hallet of Chicago put it, "Who wants to talk to himself all night?" But a Philadelphia lad filed a dissenting opinion. "I'm a sucker for a pretty face," he admitted.

Money finished in last place on both lists, an indication that both the gold digger and the gigolo may be passing from the American scene.

After paying homage to beauty, boys voted heavily in favor of good reputation, putting it in fourth place on their list (compared with second for the girls' list, just a notch behind companionship).

Girls put a higher regard on good family (fifth place) than boys (seventh place), agreeing with Martha May Long of Little Rock, Ark., that "good family means most often a good boy."

Intrigued by the overwhelming vote given personality by both boys and girls, we sought an explanation by asking for comment from selected teenagers. Here are a few samples of what we learned:

Chicago boy: "It's cheaper to talk than go out."

Forest Hills, N.Y. girl: "Who cares if still water runs deep? I want to have some fun and gaily with my friends, or I might as well stay home with a good book."

Stamford, Conn., boy: "Dull people, ugh!"

Ashland, N.J. girl: "Personality is what makes the world go 'round and draws people together."

HANDSOME BOYS

The girls also reflected their preference for personality in commenting on masculine good looks. "The dullest and most stupid boys I know could win a man's beauty contest," sniffed a 15-year-old New Jersey miss.

And an Indiana girl thought that "a good personality takes the place of good looks."

Several strong votes, however, were recorded for the tall, dark and handsome type, no matter how dull and dreary.

"Who wants an ugly boy friend?" asked one girl who obviously didn't.

And 13-year-old Peggy Mullen of Haddonfield, N.J., commented, "I dig cute boys — don't you?" The answer appears to be no among most of her sister bobbysoxers.

Why do boys want brainy girl friends? Their questionnaire comments provided some clues. "I admire someone with brains," said a Germantown, Pa., lad. "At least I want them to try and think."

A Midwestern boy admitted that in picking a girl friend he "sure hopes she's smarter than me or we're both sunk!"

The girls also had their reasons for wanting some brain as well as brawn in their male companions.

"Having specific knowledge in subjects of common interest really forms the basis of a good friendship," said a New Jersey junior miss.

An Ohio girl commented that if her boy friend is interested in bettering his education, "he'll know what he wants to do later in life."

And a New Haven lass showed no patience whatsoever with dim-witted boys. "I don't like ignorant people who have no excuse for being dumb," she huffed.

From the results of the survey it appears that if a girl wants to avoid being a wallflower all she needs, in this order, are: Personality, good looks, be a good companion, good reputation, brains, education, come from a good family, have a background similar to the boy in question, and finally but not too important, have money. The line forms to the right.

So all you homely, brainy, well-educated, somewhat impoverished, well-reputed fellows with the terrific personalities can take first place in the stag line.

Japan Could Be Another Reno

Divorces Cost 28 Cents With Only Five Minutes Needed to Get One

TOKYO (INS) — Japan is potentially another Reno but most people who want a divorce don't know it.

In Japan you can get a divorce for 28 cents—if both parties agree—and it takes about five minutes.

PROCEDURE SIMPLE

The procedure is simple: Both parties sign a paper stating their intention, take it to a government ward office, have it stamped and the knot has been untied.

The 28 cents (100 yen) is the service charge.

The couple need not give the reason for divorce, nor are they required to wait, go to court, establish a long residency or pay lawyer bills.

Ninety-five per cent of all divorces in Japan are accomplished in this streamlined manner—yet the divorce mills in Japan go begging for business.

With a population of 90,000,000 Japan's annual divorce total is 15,000.

PATIENT PEOPLE

The U.S. rate with almost twice Japan's population is 400,000 broken marriages a year.

Japanese social welfare experts point to the innate "patience" of the Japanese people and the long tradition against divorce.

Japanese "patience," a welfare official said, comes from centuries of putting up with minor irritations of life caused by lack of elbow room in overpopulated Japan.

TOLERATE NAGGING

Thus Japanese tend to live modulated existences and a nagging wife or unfaithful husband is tolerated along with train crowds and long, unpleasant working hours.

Husbands who go to other hearts—a chief cause of U.S. divorce—remain married in Japan. Due to the nation's mores, Japanese wives pretend faithfulness doesn't exist or simply ignore it.

If American influence is not felt in quantity in Japan, it is nevertheless beginning to be felt in "quality."

An official of the Tokyo family court said today that Japanese divorces are becoming more and more "Americanized."

The Tokyo family court—and similar ones throughout the nation—handle the five per cent of Japanese divorces which are contested and not accomplished in the "quickie" manner.

The court official said of the 100 recent divorce cases he handled, 70 per cent involved love triangles. He added:

"Executives over 40 are divorcing their wives in favor of secretaries and typists just like they do in the United States."

Recover Victim's Body

ALGONAC — State police yesterday recovered the body of Edward J. Conoley, 36, of Dearborn, who drowned May 2 while attempting to board the sandusucker Algonac in the St. Clair River near Algonac.

India's black pepper exports are soaring, particularly to Communist countries.

HORNS OF A DILEMMA — This adventurous goat had no trouble homing in on what probably seemed to be greener pastures on the other side of fence of a farm in Dixon, Mo. His trouble came when he tried to get his head back in his own back yard. Each time, the horns became caught on the wire, and the fence really got his "goat" until help arrived.

Speech Trick Mere Mimicry, Say Experts Sure, Animals Can Talk, but Do They Talk Sense?

WASHINGTON — Television's recent spate of talking dogs — each receiving a cash prize for pronouncing such words as "ham-burger" and "amen" — reopens the age-old question: Can animals really communicate with man and with each other?

Tales of talking horses, dogs, and even an occasional monkey abound in the annals of zoology. But every talking animal has proved to be a more vocal mimic, totally unaware of the meaning of the word or two it had mastered.

Even parrots, the chatterboxes of the animal kingdom, are only repeating what is — to the birds — a series of senseless sounds, says the National Geographic Society. Psychologists term this type of speech echolalia.

Chimpanzees, cleverest of the world's nonhuman population, have the necessary vocal equipment for human speech. Yet all attempts to teach them words have failed. The reason, according to anatomists, is that those brain areas which control speech are greatly underdeveloped in the ape family.

Virtually all species of wildlife, however, have the ability to convey basic information among themselves.

BIRDS CRY WARNING

Most birds, when threatened by an enemy, have a certain scream that alerts the entire feathered community. Some cities have used recordings of the starling's warning scream in an effort to rid themselves of the pesky invaders.

Europe's highly social, crow-like jackdaw has a complex code of movements and cries by which he is able to signal his fellows as to how far he intends to fly. Crows are known to have a large vocabulary of cries and, according to one naturalist, can even express small numbers.

Rabbits use a hind leg to thump a warning, and beavers employ their broad tails for the same purpose. The tonal quality of a dog's bark can indicate joy, pain, fear or anger.

MOVEMENTS IMPORTANT

Gestures as well as sounds are significant in animal communication. A doe, for instance, silently transmits a danger signal to her fawn by flipping up her tail like a white flag and bounding away. The upraised tail tells the fawn to follow — and fast!

Bees communicate by means of intricate dances. Scouting bees inform the swarm of the distance and location of feeding areas and nesting sites through dance steps.

Some scientists who have observed bees at length have even learned to translate this "language."

Science notwithstanding, some diehards still hold that certain animals — particularly apes — can talk. These animals remain silent in human company, goes the explanation, because they know that if they speak out they will immediately be put to work.

Missile Center Soldiers Have College Degrees

WHITE SANDS PROVING GROUND, N. M. — All the brains at this missile center are not inside civilian heads, a recent survey has found.

Some 496 military personnel assigned to the research base have either bachelor or graduate degrees from colleges or are completing work toward advanced degrees.

A total of 282 enlisted men have bachelor degrees, and 270 of these are below the rank of corporal.

When Ike Traded Jobs, His Valet Tagged Along

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON — When Dwight D. Eisenhower resigned from the Army to run for president in 1952, Sgt. John Mooney—his devoted Negro valet—resigned too with this consoling word to his five-star chief:

"Don't mind, general. We'll get along all right."

Well, they have gotten along all right—both of them. Eisenhower, of course, was elected and re-elected. And Mooney has been right at his side all the time, perhaps more than any man alive, just as he was all during World War II.

It's a mutual devotion. The President thinks the world of Mooney and Mooney idolizes his boss.

This is what's behind one of the engagements on Eisenhower's calling list today—the first day of presidential appointments since the chief executive came down with a stomach upset over the weekend.

On the calling list it says: 11 a. m. A group from the Coppersville, Md., African Methodist Episcopal Church will call on the President. Sgt. Mooney's Church.

So it's a proud day for John Mooney, who was 43 last Friday. A proud day because he was getting a chance to show off his boss to a group of friends from his home town on the eastern shore of Chesapeake Bay near Easton, Md. Mooney, who lives with his wife Delores at the White House, is more than a valet to the President—much more. They are close friends.

But you can't find out from Mooney himself how he works with the President. You have to go to friends of Mooney around the White House to learn something about him.

"The sergeant has one hard, firm rule," says one of these friends. "He won't talk to reporters. Don't waste your time."

Actually, he will—a very little bit. He always has a pleasant greeting. That is about the size of it. He minds his own business. Mooney is the first to see Eisenhower each morning. He is the last to see him before he retires at night.

In addition to his household duties, he stags golf balls when Eisenhower practices on the White House south lawn. He gives Eisenhower a hand on his cooking, a favorite presidential hobby. He always is around to help when Eisenhower is rigging a trout line—and he is just as much an expert with a casting rod as the President is.

But the full measure of Mooney's devotion is most apparent when the President is ill.

The same was true during Eisenhower's long convalescence from his 1955 heart attack and his intestinal illness last year.

She Trains Girls in Art of Undressing in Public

KUALA LUMPUR — Miss Rose Chan, Malay's best known strip teaser, will soon be going to Japan to make a film on strip shows.

She said negotiations are now under way for making of the film in which she will appear with three other girls of her striptease troupe.

"I have trained all these girls in the art of undressing in public," she said pointing to them. "Before they came to me they did not even know how to move gracefully."

CHAPTER 16

A week passed before I rode to Anchor, and even after all that time my left eye was a great purple patch, and every deep breath sent a flash of pain through me that almost doubled me up. I didn't feel much like riding, but I had to find another man to replace Gene Dillingham, and I was determined to see Alec Dodson again.

When I rode through Carlton, Art Delaney was sweeping off the walk in front of his store. He waved a fat hand. "Haven't seen you for quite a spell, Will. Where you been?"

"Home." I reined up across the hitch pole from him. "Haven't felt like sashaying around."

"Dillingham?" I nodded and he said: "Must have been some ruckus. He looks twice as bad as you do."

"Might get one of Alec Dodson's boys." He scratched his head, grinning maliciously. "Well, sir, looks like the ghost of Joe Pardee is about to be laid to rest."

I rode on. If I hadn't, I'd have got off my horse and given Delaney a whipping. Better wait and ride it out, I thought.

The first wagon of the colonists had been pulled into the willows along the creek not more than fifty yards beyond Carlton. I pulled off the road and made a circle through the hills to Anchor, adding an hour to my time, but I preferred that to riding past fifty wagons. I didn't want to see Mathers or his girl or any of them. There would be trouble if I saw them today, with the mood I was in, and I didn't want trouble right now.

When I reached Anchor, Dodson was sitting in front of his house whittling on a piece of cedar. I said, "Howdy, Alec." His face was as gray as death. He lowered his head and went on whittling.

"The locusts have moved in," I said. He jumped up, threw the cedar stick to the ground, and started for his house.

There was no sense in his acting that way with me. I spurred my horse forward and cut him off from the house. "What the devil's the matter with you?" I said.

He stared at me, tears rolling down his face. "You can see what's the matter without asking." He choked and wiped a hand across his eyes. He turned and pointed down the creek, the white tops of twenty or more of the wagons visible from where we were. "All I've got left is this quarter section." He swallowed and wiped his eyes again. "If Joe Pardee was alive, they wouldn't be here. You're Box P. Why didn't you keep 'em out of the valley?"

"Why you ——" I started. "You're president of the cattlemen's association. Call a meeting."

"No," he said. "I'll never call a meeting." He walked around my horse toward the house. I said: "I fired Dillingham. Got a man you care to spare?"

He stopped. "Who do you want?" His men were all good hands, but I knew Red Thurston better than the others, so I said, "Red," and he nodded. "I'll send him over in a few days," he said, and went into the house.

Again I circled the wagons, striking the road just above Carlton. As I passed the store, I suddenly remembered that Delaney had said I might get one of Dodson's boys. I wondered how he knew.

When I reached Kathy Morgan's house, she was standing at the front gate. She smiled, calling: "Come in for a minute, Will."

I said, "All right. It's time I was looking at a friendly face. I just came from Anchor."

"How's Alec?" "Crazy," I said. "Crazy as a loon." I tied my horse and stepped through the gate. We walked to the house, and I told her what happened. "And he wants to know why I didn't keep them out of the valley."

"That's like him," she said. "We went in, and she motioned for me to sit down. 'I'll get you a drink,' she said, and disappeared into the kitchen."

I leaned my head against the back of the leather chair. I told myself that from now on my worries were going to be strictly Box P business.

Kathy returned a moment later and handed me a glass of whiskey. We were silent for a time, and it seemed to me that Joe Pardee was gone from our lives; yet it had been only a short time ago that Kathy and I had sat here just as we were now, both of us saying Joe was haunting us.

That was one of the great gifts of time, this healing and forgetting. I started to say something like that to Kathy; then I looked at her, and decided against it. I had a feeling that Joe's death was not forgotten, that the wound had not yet healed.

"I expected so much of you," Kathy said suddenly, "and you haven't done the job you could have. I know what happened that morning when Mathers was coming up the canyon. You could have stopped them then, but you missed the chance. And why? Because Sarah has you wound around her little finger. Everybody in the valley knows it but you. She names the song and you sing it. That's right, isn't it?" "Gene Dillingham's been here, hasn't he?"

"No," she said impatiently. "I heard about it in the store. It's all over the valley, how you had Mathers stopped; but you let his girl slip past, and because you knew she was going after Sarah, you quit. Partners!" Kathy laughed scornfully. "Why, you're nothing but a hired hand, Will."

For a moment I was angry. Then I wanted to laugh, but I didn't. I said, "All right, maybe you can tell me what to do now."

"Sure I can," she said. "There's eyed dreamer. And his daughter, Nela. I wished I could save them from the misery which was bound to lie ahead of them.

I got up. "I'm not going to fight a war by myself, if that's what you're afraid of."

"No, I wasn't afraid of that, but I have been worried that you wouldn't be in a position to take charge when the time came." She rose and came to me. "Will, the nearest law officer is in Canon City. As long as there were just a few of us living here, it didn't make any difference, but it does now. When the colony breaks up, there may be stealing and killings and it's hard to tell what else. What you've got to do is to go to Canon City and get yourself appointed deputy. You see what that will do for you?"

I nodded. The same thought had been in my mind. Time and climate in the end would whip them for us, but I respected John Mathers' even if he was a wild

I thought about it a moment, his lips curling in disgust. When not at all sure I could get a deputy's badge. A man like John Mathers represented fifty votes, a fact that would not be overlooked by the Canon City Sheriff as individual settlers had been ignored in the past. I knew, too, that if I used force in the valley I might wind up an outlaw, even if I was a deputy to start with.

"Yeah, I see," I said. "It might do several things for me. I'll think it over." I turned and left the house.

That night Red Thurston rode in, calling out to me, "Hear you need a good man?" "That we do," I said. "What happened? I thought Alec wasn't going to let you go for a few days?" "You ain't heard?" he asked.

Trial Agreements Hit

A former national commander of the American Legion last night told nearly 300 at a Flag Day dinner that "Old Glory may be losing her luster."

Speaking at the 14th annual Elks-sponsored dinner at the Pontiac Elks Temple, Battle Creek attorney J. Addington Wagner lashed out at U. S. agreements with foreign countries which he said deny constitutional rights to American servicemen abroad.

Wagner urged immediate revision of the agreements to assure servicemen the right to be tried by a civil or military court of the United States.

The dinner also included honoring of about 60 recently-naturalized American citizens, the annual flag-flying award and a patriotic presentation by Oakland County 4-H clubs.

Several of the new citizens gave brief talks relating to the flag and Flag Day.

A $25 savings bond award for the flag best displayed by a Pontiac home went to Wylie F. McClellan, of 1554 Richmond Ave. The winning display is picked on the basis of cleanliness, newness and properness.

In winding up his talk Wagner said, "Let us all, working together, restore the brilliance, pride and honor to Old Glory."

The program was planned by the Lodge Americanism Committee headed by County Clerk Lynn D. Allen.

Nurse Edith Cavell was shot by the Germans in Brussels in 1915.

To Support Family of Man He Crippled

LONG BEACH, Calif. — A 34-year-old longshoreman must pay at least $200 a month for the next 10 years to support the wife and five children of a man he shot during a card game argument.

The payments were fixed yesterday as part of the 10 years' probation on which Fred D. Hawkins was placed for shooting Roger Bland, 37, last Feb. 20, Bland was paralyzed by the bullet.

Hawkins pleaded guilty to an assault charge and offered to help the family. He will also spend 90 days in jail as a condition of probation.

Four Men Killed as Plane Crashes

BROKEN BOW, Okla. — Four Harrison, Ark., men were killed last night when their single-engine plane crashed three miles south-east of here.

The dead were William E. Hudson, 33, president and manager of the Save-a-Stop Cosmetics Corp., Harrison; Dorvin Smith, 24, the pilot; William J. Cronwell, 35, personnel director of Save-a-Stop; and William R. Weedman, 31, the company's sales director.

The men left Harrison yesterday morning on a business flight to Dallas and apparently were returning home when the crash occurred.

TOLEDO—Every year when the National Open rolls around, one question always pops up. It goes something like, "Will this be Sam Snead's year?"

Snead is like the Major League slugger who leads in every department, then fails to connect in some big event like the All-Star game. He has won every major golf tournament worth mentioning, yet his record for the National Open stands at 0-for-16.

There were times when "Slammin' Sam" seemed almost sure of breaking the jinx, but on each instance some run of bad luck or one pesky hole scuttled his title chances.

Most famous fizzle for Snead came in the 1939 Open at Philadelphia. All he had to do was to gain a par-5 on the 18th to win. A bogey 6 would have tied him with Nelson, Craig Wood, and Denny Shute, all finishers with 284.

"That day I wished I had an ax and a sharp razor blade in my bag," said Snead. "I would have used the ax on the writer who persisted that I tell him about the 8 I took, and I would have used the blade on myself."

As a result Nelson won the Open in two playoff rounds. He and Wood fired 68's on the first 18 holes and in the second round, Nelson shot a 70 as Craig took 73.

Actually, Snead's tough luck started in his first Open he entered at Oakland Hills in 1937. That year he roared back after a poor start to finish with 283 for the lead.

Ralph Guldahl who was tied with Snead after 54 holes with 212, started out badly on the first few holes of the last round and it looked like Sam had it.

At the 8th hole, someone told Guldahl he had to have a 70 to win. He proceeded to par the next three holes, and on the 12th his approach went into the crowd and it looked like the end for Guldahl as he bogeyed. After another par, he then eagled and birdied the rest of the way to beat Snead by two strokes, finishing with 281.

Sam did finish first in one category that year at Oakland Hills, he and Wood were the best dressed men in the tournament and they split $500.

Another photo finish loss was the 1947 Open at the Riviera in Los Angeles. He and Lew Worsham finished regulation play in a 282 tie.

In the playoff round, Worsham shot a 69 and Snead's chance to tie was only 30 inches from the cup. The ball rimmed the cup and again he finished second best.

Another near miss in 1949 squelched the opportunity to tie Cary Middlecoff, and he and Clayton Heafner finished in a second place tie.

So, when Sam tees off this afternoon in the opening round of the 57th National Open, a huge gallery of sentimental well wishers is expected to stand by the 45-year-old West Virginian as he makes his 17th bid.

NL Consecutive Game Record Set by Musial

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Stan (The Man) Musial continues to break records, but remains unimpressed with his varied baseball talents. Musial appeared at Connie Mack Stadium last night in his 823rd consecutive game, setting a National League record — and promptly slashed out a single for the first hit of the ball game. The Cards later won, 4-0, from the Philadelphia Phillies.

He's been setting these records almost as long as he's been getting those hits. But the boredom of repetition isn't the reason Stan takes record breaking and other honors in stride. It's just his nature to be the quiet unassuming, likeable person that he is.

At a post-game party in the Cardinals club house honoring their favorite teammate, someone asked: "What's the difference between this game and the first one you ever played?"

"In this one," came the typical Musial reply, "I wasn't nervous."

Photographers asked him to pose over a display of baseballs spelling out the number "823."

"Take a position like you were going to bat," one of them called to the league batting champion many times over.

"Bunt!" he shouted in mock outrage. "I'm no bunter."

Musial's appearance last night broke a record set by Gus Suhr, former Pittsburgh first baseman, between 1931 and 1937. Stan started his current string on opening day of the 1952 season.

The genial Redbird now ranks fifth among the all-time iron men of the majors behind the immortal Lou Gehrig, who had a record of 2,130 consecutive appearances, Everett Scott, Joe Sewell and Eddie Yost.

Gehrig didn't miss a game in 13 consecutive seasons. Musial has played in nine full seasons and has appeared in 2,192 of his team's 2,229 games since he joined the club 14 years ago.

He needs only seven more in a row to pass Yost's record and move into fourth place.

Mantle Blasts Two Long Homers

CHICAGO (AP)—Thousands of fans filed out of Comiskey Park early today shivering because of the wee-hour chill and the awesome display of power by Mickey Mantle.

The Chicago White Sox won the marathon game from the New York Yankees, 7-6, and stretched their American League lead over the Yanks to five games, but Mantle stole the slugging show.

Mighty Mickey was terrific. He sent a mass shudder through the crowd of 40,033 in the ninth by blasting a two-run, 425-foot homer into the center-field bullpen that left the Yankees just one run behind.

Bragan Praises Thomas for New Pirate Surge

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Manager Bobby Bragan said today the main reason his hustlin' Pittsburgh Pirates have beaten the Cincinnati Redlegs three consecutive times is Frank Thomas who he called "one of the most versatile and best players in the majors."

"The worm is turning just a little," said Bragan. "We're getting a few breaks that went the other way earlier in the season. Now we've tied our season's longest winning streak at four games and one of the big reasons is Thomas."

In last night's game, won by the Pirates 4-3 in 10 innings, Thomas had two singles in three times at bat to boost his batting average to .338, fifth best in the National League. His hits drove in two runs to give him a total of 29 RBIs.

"And look what he did in the 10th when Dee Fondy got a leadoff walk," Bragan continued. "I knew

White's Club Downs Gidley 9 at Drayton

White Brothers scored twice in the first inning and went on to defeat Gidley Electric 4-1 in Waterford League softball action last night at Drayton Plains.

A two-base error, an infield single, a wild pitch and Monty Tipton's triple in the opening stanza gave White enough for victory. Bernie LaRue protected the lead with his steady four-hit pitching.

Drayton Drug meets Weldon Pharmacy faces front-running Emmanuel Baptist at 8:30 in tonight's league games.

No Racing at Yonkers

NEW YORK (AP)—Hopes that there will be racing at Yonkers Raceway Friday night dimmed early today when negotiations between the trotting track officials and the Standardbred Owners Assn. (SOA) broke down completely.

'Magical' Names Strong Open Bidders

TOLEDO—The "magical" names of golf, Sam Snead, Cary Middlecoff and Jack Burke, and Doug Ford of the younger set had the galleries waiting for them at tee-off time as the 57th U. S. Open Championship got under way today at Inverness Country Club.

The threat of rain, which hampered practice rounds earlier this week, diminished and the weatherman predicted temperatures would reach 80 degrees by mid-afternoon. There was, however, a forecast for showers late today.

Along with the fears of rain, many of the entries have picked up the slogan "pick a hole and weep."

This has stemmed from the many changes which were made by USGA golf architect Robert Trent Jones to the Inverness course. The USGA feels that the few added bunkers and narrowed fairways should offer no great difficulties to the better golfers.

Middlecoff and Snead both picked the 12th as the hole which may make them weep. It is a par-5 yard undulates 250 yards and the fair-tee, giving the long drivers lies on the sidehills. About 150 yards farther a ditch crosses the fairway and then 60 yards of high grass fronts the heavily trapped green.

"Someone will have to be hot to birdie this hole," said Middlecoff.

Wally Burkemo, one of Michigan's representative pros, figures after a couple practice rounds that his "wall and weep" hole is the 14th, a par-4, 479 yarder with a tight fairway and heavily trapped green.

Along with the 14th, the rugged par-4 holes where experts figure the tournament could be decided are the 4th, 5th and 15th, all long, narrow, tricky and heavily trapped.

The first big threesome moved out at 9:35 this morning. The gallery moved out with Ted Kroll and Gene Littler. Kroll was last year's top money winner after his Tam O'Shanter victory in Chicago, and Littler has been known especially for his three straight Tournament of Champions' title in Las Vegas.

Rochester Golf and Country Club pro Jack Fleck, the surprise Open Champion of 1955, left the starting tee at 10 a.m. With him were Peter Thomson, three time British Open champion from Melbourne, Australia, and Jimmy Demaret, the old pro who figures this has to be his year, as it may be his last.

The Fleck, Thompson-Demaret trio gave the first hole gallery a thrill. Demaret sunk a 25-foot putt for a birdie 3. Thompson followed with a 50-footer, also for a birdie and then Fleck just missed his birdie by a foot. He took a par four.

Thomson has been chosen by many as best choice from among the younger set to win the title.

BIRDIE — LIVE VARIETY — Former National Open champion Ed Furgol, one-time Pontiac area amateur and pro, strokes a half-grown bluejay that refused to move from a guard rope at Inverness club, Toledo, where the current U. S. Open championship got under way today. "This is the first time," said Furgol, "that a birdie didn't want to get away from me."

All told, there were 25 hits in last night's game—14 by New York and 11 by Chicago.

Bill Skowron and Hank Bauer also belted home runs for the Yankees and Walt Dropp and Jim Rivera hit homers for the White Sox.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel frankly conceded that: "We're not getting good pitching — they knocked us around in Detroit, too."

Stengel told reporters after the rain-slowed game "don't worry about us giving up."

Mantle had terse comment on his hitting last night:

"I hit a slider for my first homer and a fast ball for my second," said Mickey.

It was a night to remember, and a long one, too. The game was delayed and interrupted by rain, and didn't end until 12:20 a.m. EST.

Rogell Will Speak at Multi-Lake Party

Plans for the annual Multi-Lakes Conservation association presidents' banquet have been completed. Affair takes place at the M-L clubhouse, at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 29.

Featured speaker will be Billy Rogell, former Detroit Tiger star. There will also be professional entertainment, and dancing will follow. Tickets are available at the clubhouse.

Hogland in for '57

CINCINNATI — Redlegs coach Jimmy Dykes played 22 years in the American league.

Jeweler String Reaches 47 Behind Mazur's One-Hitter

It's getting downright monotonous. For want of better words, that seems the best way to describe the string of scoreless innings being shovled down the throats of City League softball teams by Shaw's brilliant pitching staff.

And the shutout streak grows to amazing proportions with each passing week.

Behind the magnificent one-hit pitching of Jake Mazur, the Jeweler's blanked Birmingham, 1-0, in last night's top attraction at Beaudette Park.

Mazur's quick and late-breaking curve ball baffled the Birmingham hitters as 17 of them went down on strikes. Their lone safety was a fluke.

Shaw's mound corps has yet to yield a run in 47 innings spanning seven games. Jeweler hurlers have thrown two no-hitters, four one-hitters and one two-hitter.

Cal Atwood pitched a sparkling four-hitter for Birmingham, but a bouncing single by Vern Keebaugh in the 7th inning tallied the only run Shaw's required.

Don Hill twirled a steady five-hitter as Elks No. 810 defeated Stadium Inn, 7-4, Verie Sheldon and John Helisek were on the hill for Stadium, with Sheldon suffering the loss.

In girls' league games at North Side, undefeated Commerce Theater spanked the West Side Merchants, 8-4, and North Side Auto Sales trimmed Gingiville, 6-3.

Tonight's games: CIO Local 653 vs. Pontiac Select-a-Drink, 7 p.m., and Drive-In Cleaners vs. Ox-bow Pavilion, 8:30, at Beaudette; Pontiac State Hospital vs. Dostal Foundry, 7 p.m., and Pontiac Police vs. Franklin Products, 8:30 at North Side.

Shaw's record: 000 000 1-1 4 1 Birmingham 000 000 6-0 1 0 Mazur and White; Atwood and Beck Elks 000 000 2-1 7 1 Stadium 000 001 1-4 8 6 Hill and Varough; Sheldon, Helisek and D. Wilson.

Porter, Bunning Pace Tiger Win

DETROIT — Manager Jackbas driven in as many runs as he Tighe thought twice before he tookid in both the 1955 and 1956 seasons. J. W. Porter out of the Detroiters, hammered a first inning Tiger lineup, and it's fortunate forhome run yesterday that helped the Tigers that he did.

Tigers scored three times in the first inning, with a single by Charlie Maxwell and a bloop double by Al Kaline preceding Porter's towering drive into the upper left field seats. Jim Bunning's tight pitching carried the club the rest of the distance.

Tighe announced after Tuesday's game that he planned to put Bill Tuttle back in the starting outfield with Kaline and Maxwell. Porter, who had a string of six at-bats without a base hit, would return to the bench. The manager changed his mind just before the teams took the field for the second of their three-game series, and Porter didn't waste any time making his skipper look good.

STEAL FAILS—Tiger infielder Frank Bolling makes the tag on Oriole outfielder Alfred Piarik, in a fast play during yesterday's game in Briggs stadium, won by Detroit 4-2. The Oriole player was sliding into 2nd base on an attempted steal, in the opening frame, where the Tigers clinched the win with three tallies.

It was only the second home run of Porter's major league career. The other one came five days earlier against New York.

Doubles by Kaline and Red Wilson scored the final Tiger run in the sixth inning.

Bunning, hiking his record to 6-1 with his third route-going performance in seven starts, survived a shaky start and home runs by Bob Nieman and Bob Boyd. After yielding one run and four hits in the first two frames, the tall Kentuckian pitched two-hit ball over the last seven innings.

He got his first strikeout in the fifth inning and ran up six more before the contest was concluded.

It was the second time that a base hit by Porter had helped Bunning to victory. On May 29 against Kansas City, Porter lashed a pinch double that scored the winning run in Bunning's 4-3 decision over the Athletics.

Ray Moore, always tough on the Tigers, was to oppose Paul Foytack (7-4) in the win/loss game of the series today. Moore's record is 2-4.

Suggest Club Circuit

TOLEDO, Ohio — Byron Nelson and Gene Sarazen, two golfers who have played over as many championship courses as anyone you can think of, agreed today that the perennial complaints about "tricked up" courses for the open championship usually aren't justified.

They also agreed that the tournament would be a lot better competitive event if a circuit of championship clubs could be established in the United States, as it is in Britain.

Nelson is here as an "honored guest" of the Inverness Club, where the 1957 Open begins today. Sarazen qualified to play in his third Open over the course where he made his debut in the big event in 1920.

"There are so many great courses in every section of the United States that there's no need to play over one which has to be artificially toughened," Nelson said.

"My idea of a real championship test is one where the tournament could be played without making any important changes. They'd have to give the greens special attention, of course, to have them in top condition.

"Perhaps they would let the rough grow just a little along the fairways and near the greens so there wouldn't be too easy chip shots. If the fairways are 35 yards wide, that's enough. They aren't too narrow here."

Figures released today by the office of baseball Commissioner Ford Frick give Musial more votes than any other National League player in the fan poll.

The star first baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals has drawn a total of 12,485 votes in the poll's first cumulative vote total. Willie Mays, New York Giants' brilliant center fielder, is second with 11,807 votes.

The National League meets the American League in St. Louis, July 9, in the 24th All-Star meeting. The American League leads 13 victories to 10.

The leaders by position: First Base—Stan Musial, St. Louis, 12,485; Old Hodges, Brooklyn, 1,671; Joe Adcock, Milwaukee, 1,274; Dee Fondy, Pittsburgh, 1,172.

The Huron Valley Boys Club of Milford came up with a two-run rally in the final inning to score a 3-2 victory and ruin Pontiac's Legion opener yesterday.

Loser Joe Tinson took a 2-1 lead into the 7th but got in trouble by walking the 1st two batters. Relief pitcher Charley Honchell gave up a single to Done Dide to score the tying run and a perfect bunt by Jack Lavoie chased the other home.

Pontiac scored both its tallies in the 4th after trailing 1-0 on key hits by Bud Hayward and Isaac Jones. Jones led the losers with two hits. Tinson fanned 10 in defeat.

Pontiac returns to action Sunday meet Rochester at Jay Cee Park at 2 p.m.

7 Colts in Belmont Stakes

NEW YORK (U.P.)—A field of seven colts, smallest since the great 1933, appeared to be about the size of it for the 89th running of the $100,000-added Belmont Stakes Saturday.

Narrowing it down further, it looks like a two-horse duel between the Wheatley Stable's Bold Ruler, and Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man, plus a battle of skill matching a veteran Belmont combination against a trainer and jockey taking their first stab at the famed 3-year-old classic.

Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, who will be 83 next month, and jockey Eddie Arcaro each will be shooting for their seventh Belmont with Bold Ruler. Johnny Nerud, who trains Gallant Man, and his rider, Willie Shoemaker, have never had a colt in the mile and one-half race.

This final number in the Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown is to be televised and broadcast nationally, CBS, 3:30-4 p.m., EST, and very probably will determine the 3-year-old championship, as it has done in 10 of the last 11 years.

Nerud said he planned to enter Bold Nero, another colt owned by Lowe, so actually there will be only six betting interests. Bold Hero and Gallant Man both were bred overseas by the Aga Khan.

Akins Awarded Close Decision

Fans Boo as St. Louis Welterweight Conquers Byars in TV Bout

NORFOLK, Va. (U.P.)—Virgil (Honkytonk) Akins of St. Louis was a step closer to a shot at the welterweight title today following a close but unanimous decision over Walter Byars of Boston, but his manager said his future plans are somewhat indefinite.

Eddie Yarwits said he expected to send Akins next against either Gaspar Ortega or the No. 1 challenger for Carmen Basilio's welterweight crown, Tony DeMarco—a recent upset victim of Byars. Akins, the nation's fifth-ranked welterweight, scored repeatedly to the head in the late rounds of last night's televised 10-rounder that was a sports feature of International Naval Review Week here.

A near capacity crowd of 3,000 fans roundly booed the decision. Despite his victory, Akins was unhappy.

"He never really fought," the St. Louis battler said.

Spartans Enjoy Banner Season

MSU Athletes Matched Only by 'M' in '56-'57 Big Ten Campaign

EAST LANSING (U.P.)—The 1956-'57 varsity athletic season was the most successful in modern times for Michigan State University, perhaps in the school's history.

By an unofficial point rating system, the combined mark posted by 12 teams in Big Ten competition was matched only by the University of Michigan, the athletic department said in a review of the year.

And unlike the U. of M., the Spartans claimed two titles outright and tied for a third. Wolverines won one team championship. All but two of the Spartan varsity teams posted winning records. Undisputed Big Ten titles were won by the swimming and cross country teams. Basketball team tied for conference laurels.

Angry Minoso Vows He'll Be 'Terror' if—

CHICAGO (INS)—Angry Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox vowed today that American League pitchers "better not throw at Minnie's head any more."

The left fielder also declared that he is going to become a "rough and tumble ball player" and that he will be a "terror" if opposition pitchers keep throwing balls close to him.

Minoso's latest explosive words were issued following the Chicago White Sox-New York Yankees battle which the Sox won, 7-6.

It was the second night in succession that Minoso had a run-in with a Yankee hurler.

Cards Sizzle, Others Fizzle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The St. Louis Cardinals, rocketing along while the rest of the hotshots fizzled, finally have themselves a spot in the National League's first division—a fourth-place berth that's only a game removed from the lead.

In a week's time, the Cards have won eight in a row, making up 5½ games on the leaders in a rush that's been carried by three pitchers and a couple of old pros named Stan Musial and Del Ennis. Last night they defeated Philadelphia 4-0 to gain a share of fourth with the failing Phils.

First-place Cincinnati was slugged a third time in succession by seventh-place Pittsburgh, this time in a 4-3, 10-inning decision. That left the Redlegs half a game ahead, five percentage points in front of Milwaukee and Brooklyn, deadlocked for second after the Dodgers put an end to a four-game skid with an 11-9 victory over the Braves.

The New York Giants, with all their runs unearned, defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4-3 in the other NL game.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox regained a five-game lead, defeating the second-place New York Yankees 7-6 despite a four-RBI, two-home-run show by Mickey Mantle. Cleveland retained third, beating Boston 6-1. Fourth-place Detroit stopped Baltimore 4-2. Kansas City and Washington split a two-night pair, the A's winning 5-3, then losing 3-2, second, four of them unearned as Musial and Ennis have batted error and also balked. Al Smith in 18 of the Cards' 37 runs. Last night Musial singled and doubled, scoring a run, while breaking the league record for consecutive game. Willie Mays' three-run homer tied it for the Giants in the sixth. Then he stole third in the ninth and jogged home with the winner as catcher Cal Neenan threw wild on the theft. Al Worthington won Lou Skizas, Gus Zernial and Had Smith homered in the A's victory.

Cleveland scored five runs in the

Giants Rally for 15-7 Win

The saying "some days you can't make a dime" is probably on the minds of the Thomas Die & Stamping baseball team today.

Winless in four games, the Thomas club took another crack at getting victory No. 1 last night and for awhile it looked like a successful try.

The luckless Thomas outfit scored six times in the 1st inning, only to have the Michigan Giants tally 11 times in the 2nd stanza. The Giants then went on to a 15-7 triumph in Wednesday's City League baseball tilt at Winder Field.

Thomas drove starting pitcher Louie McGuire to the showers in the opening frame, but the Giants retaliated by shelling starter Gary Shore as well as reliever Delno Chappelaine in the 11-run 2nd which saw 16 batters go to the plate.

Ernest Nelson smacked three hits, including a double, to lead the Giants' 13-hit attack. Neil Trevino was the winning pitcher.

Palmer to Compete in Flint Open Test

FLINT (U.P.)—Arnold Palmer, the young golf professional who won the recent Rubber City Open in Akron, Ohio, in a playoff battle with Masters champion Doug Ford, will compete in the $37,000 Flint Open next week.

The ex-coast guardsman, winner in the Houston and Azalea tournaments, is the second leading money winner on the circuit with $16,269 pocketed. Ford is the leading money winner with $28,931, and he also will be on hand for the Flint tournament.

Golfer Hits 175 Yard Tee Shot—Catches It, Too

Charles (Chuck) Lemke, Bloomfield Hills baseball mentor, is some shakes as a golfer, too, take the word of two companions in a round at Springdale Park, yesterday afternoon.

"Who," reported Hal Trott, another member of the Hills coaching staff, "could hit a 175-yard tee shot and then catch it before it ever hit the ground."

That's what Lemke did, and Don Dennis, Bloomfield golf coach, attests Trott's story of the incident. Lemke hit a drive off the short No. 2 tee. His ball found a big tree at right of the fairway, bounced back, on the fly, and right into Lemke's outstretched hands. Chuck finally holed out with a 7.

Gromek Stays on Active List

DETROIT (U.P.)—General Manager John J. McHale today denied a published report that the Detroit Tigers will take pitcher Steve Gromek off the active list and use him as a coach.

"There's nothing to it," said McHale. "Such a move hasn't even been considered and won't be considered this season." Gromek, 37, has pitched only 16½ innings in 11 games this season and has an 0-1 record.

Local June Brides Are Highlighting County Social Calendar

MR. and MRS. THEODORE NICKLAS

Betty Neraasen Wed in Evening Ceremony

ORTONVILLE—Betty L. Neraasen and Theodore Nicklas were united in marriage Saturday in a candlelight ceremony at Christ Lutheran Church, Hadley. Rev. Edward Rehner performed the 8 p.m. double-ring ceremony before 225 guests.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of embroidered nylon lace over satin featuring princess lines with scalloped hem line. The V-shaped neckline was also scalloped and outlined with seed pearls and iridescent. The headpiece was scalloped cape from which extended a finger tip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and pink carnations.

Attending as matron of honor was Mrs. Jack Putman of Pontiac, assisted by Mary Gail Gallivan of Detroit and Ellen Koester of Flint, sister of the bridegroom. Becky Putman was the flower girl.

Dr. Paul F. Schoen Jr. of Ortonville performed the duties of best man while Welford Nicklas, brother of the bridegroom, Ben Koester and Guy Eick seated the guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Neraasen of Ortonville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Augusta Nicklas of Davison. After a two-week honeymoon the couple will reside in Goodrich.

Maxine M. Miller Wed in Oxford

OXFORD — In a double ring ceremony on June 1, Maxine May Miller became the bride of Charles C. Palshan.

The Rev. Frederick Clark performed the 7 p.m. candlelight service in the presence of 300 guests at the Oxford Methodist Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller of Oxford, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of champagne lace with long and white chapel train. The scalloped neckline was outlined with iridescent sequins.

The long tapered sleeves formed a lily point over the hand. Her pearl and rhinestone crown secured a fingertip illusion veil. The bouquet was of two white orchids with stephanotis in a pearl heart. Attending as maid of honor was Daune Miller, sister of the bride. Karen Palshan of Ortonville and Audrey Walters of Royal Oak were bridesmaids. April Street of Flint was the junior bridesmaid. Flower girl was Dee Dee Palshan.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Palshan of Ortonville, asked his brother James to serve as best man. Seating the guests were Lewis and George Palshan, brothers of the bride.

groom and Kirt Kilian of Ortonville, Lee Palshan, also a brother of the bridegroom, served as ringbearer.

A reception was held at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club in Waterford after which the couple left for a trip to northern Michigan. Upon their return they will reside in Auburn Heights.

MRS. CHARLES C. PALSHAN

Gardiners Take Honeymoon Trip to Smoky Mts.

CLARKSTON — After a honeymoon in the Smoky Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. John Gardiner are home at 454 Auburn Ave., Pontiac. They were united in marriage June 1 at Memorial Methodist Church in Milan, by the Rev. William Hughes.

Parents of the bride are the Charles McGovern of Milan. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Gardiner of Clarkston.

The bride chose for her wedding a gown of white embroidered organza with a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a flowered capulet.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Fayne McGovern, Sandra Craige of Milan and Barbara DeWolfe of Pontiac were bridesmaids.

The bride's niece, Susan Humphrey, of Clark, was flower girl. Paul Pantel of Clarkston acted as best man. Vern Carmean of Pontiac and Fayne McGovern of Milan ushered the guests to their seats. A reception was held in the church parlors.

MRS. JOHN GARDINER

Rite Is Read in Royal Oak

Connie Coan Is Wed to Donald R. Krause in Lutheran Service

ROYAL OAK — In a 6:30 p.m. service at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connie Marie Coan became the bride of Donald Ray Krause. Rev. Herbert H. Barts performed the double ring service.

The chapel train dress featured a Sabrina neckline, pointed sleeves and sequins. Her crown was decorated with matching sequins, while she carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and rosettes.

Maid of honor was Hester E. Upton of Pleasant Ridge with other attendants Beverly Krogman and Audrey Chevalier both of Royal Oak.

Lyle Reits of Detroit served as best man and seating the guests were Myron Coan, Gordon Reits and Robert Sieball all of Royal Oak. Scheryl Lee Haselbuhn was the flower girl.

A reception was held in the Elk's Hall, Royal Oak, after which the pair left for a trip to Niagara Falls and northern Michigan.

Dr. Dudolph Diesel patented the engine with which his name is generally associated in about 1892.

Married in Catholic Rite

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP — Wed at Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church recently were Joan Hazel Kolaski and Ronald Eugene Hienze. Rev. Fr. Frederick J. Delany performed the service and about 150 attended.

The bride gown was lace over satin sheath with a beaded crown, and shoulder veil. She carried a white orchid on a Bible.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kolaski of Waterford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Helms of Detroit.

Attending as matron of honor was Mrs. Carl Narrin of Drayton Plains while Mrs. Susan Thomas of Clarkston was bridesmaid.

Best man was William Ulezac of Lansing and ushering was Gerald Bianucci of Detroit.

A garden reception at the bridegroom's home was held after the service. The pair left for a trip to Hidden Valley Lodge near Gaylord.

'I Like It Here' Set for Weekend

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A three-act play by A. B. Schiffrin, "I Like It Here," will be presented by the Township Players of West Bloomfield today, Friday and Saturday.

James Beall, a Detroit attorney, is the director and will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Neil McArthur, charter members of the Players. Mrs. McArthur is the assistant director while her husband is the technical director, supervising the construction of sets.

Area residents also participate in the presentation. Dolores Olsen of 2253 Middlebelt Rd. is the wardrobe designer and Therese Spadafora of 4040 Lark Dr. is acting in the comedy.

Ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. George Bender at FE 4-0819. Tickets will also be available at the box office, which will be opened at 7 p.m. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

After the presentation, the public has been invited to meet the members of the cast in an informal gathering where refreshments will be served.

ENJOYING THE SCRIPT — James Beall of Birmingham, director of "I Like It Here," is seated with his assistant director, Dorothy McArthur of Pontiac, reading over a part of the script for the forthcoming comedy to be presented at West Bloomfield High School Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Hospital to Aid Thirteen Towns

Slate Groundbreaking Near Romeo on Sunday for New Facility

ROMEO — Groundbreaking ceremonies set for 3 p.m. Sunday will climax five years of work aimed at construction of a community hospital in this area.

The event will take place on the site of the new facility located on Van Dyke (M53), five miles north of here.

The dean of Michigan physicians, Dr. David Burley, 94, of Almont will turn the first shovel full of dirt. Witnessing the act will be dignitaries from the 13 towns to be served by the new hospital.

charge of the ceremony include Mrs. E. E. Anderson and Dr. Louis R. Newlin, both of Romeo and James Ligon of Allenton, all directors of the Community Hospital Foundation.

Dr. Newlin will introduce Macomb County Health Department Director, Dr. Oscar D. Stryker, who will act as master of ceremonies. Ligon will give a brief history of the project to date.

The new facility, to cost $469,000 was designed by architects of the Detroit firm of Smith, Hinchman and Grylls Inc. It will have a core of 32 beds and be expandable to 80 beds. The Walter L. Crouse Co. was awarded the construction contract with the building completion date set for March 1958.

Sewers to Be Cleaned

LATHRUP — Besides awarding a sewer cleaning contract at its regular meeting this week, the city council here also adopted two resolutions in the stepped-up program for solving its sewer disposal problems.

The General Pipe Cleaning Company of Kalamazoo was given an $11,000 contract to clean all lateral sewers.

A resolution was passed requesting the County Board of Supervisors to create a public works department to build the Evergreen Interceptor, a proposed sewer to Detroit, which would provide sanitary sewer outlets for Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills and Troy.

50 at Lake Orion Begin Driver Work

LAKE ORION — Fifty students of the Lake Orion School District began their driver's training class, under the instruction of John Cherry, this week.

A total of 63 applications requested driver's training for the course, created to alleviate the backlog within the high school and give parochial students an opportunity to have the training. The course is credited with six hours behind the wheel and 30 in the classroom.

The cost of construction would be shared by all mentioned communities, Administrator Leonard A. Watchowski said.

Another resolution was adopted requesting the County Drain Commission to have engineers prepare construction plans for the Evergreen Interceptor sewer from Lathrup. A hearing on contempt charges for pollution of Rouge River has been set for June 25.

EDWIN SHELDON JR.

ALMONT—Edwin O. Sheldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin O. Sheldon Sr. of Romeo will be graduated from the University of Michigan Medical School Saturday. He is graduating with honors, having been elected to the honorary medical society of Alpha Omega Alpha and the National Honor Society.

REV. J. E. HENNEBERGER

A parsonage has been purchased at 2578 Eastfield Ave. in Farmington for the Rev. James E. Henneberger who represents the United Lutheran Church in America. He will organize a congregation in this area. The ULCA is the largest of all Lutheran bodies in North America.

87 Romeo Students to Graduate Tonight

ROMEO—Eighty seven members of the graduating class of Romeo High School will receive their diplomas during commencement exercises at 8 tonight in memorial stadium.

Main speaker will be Dr. Edgar G. Johnston. His topic will be "Interns in Citizenship."

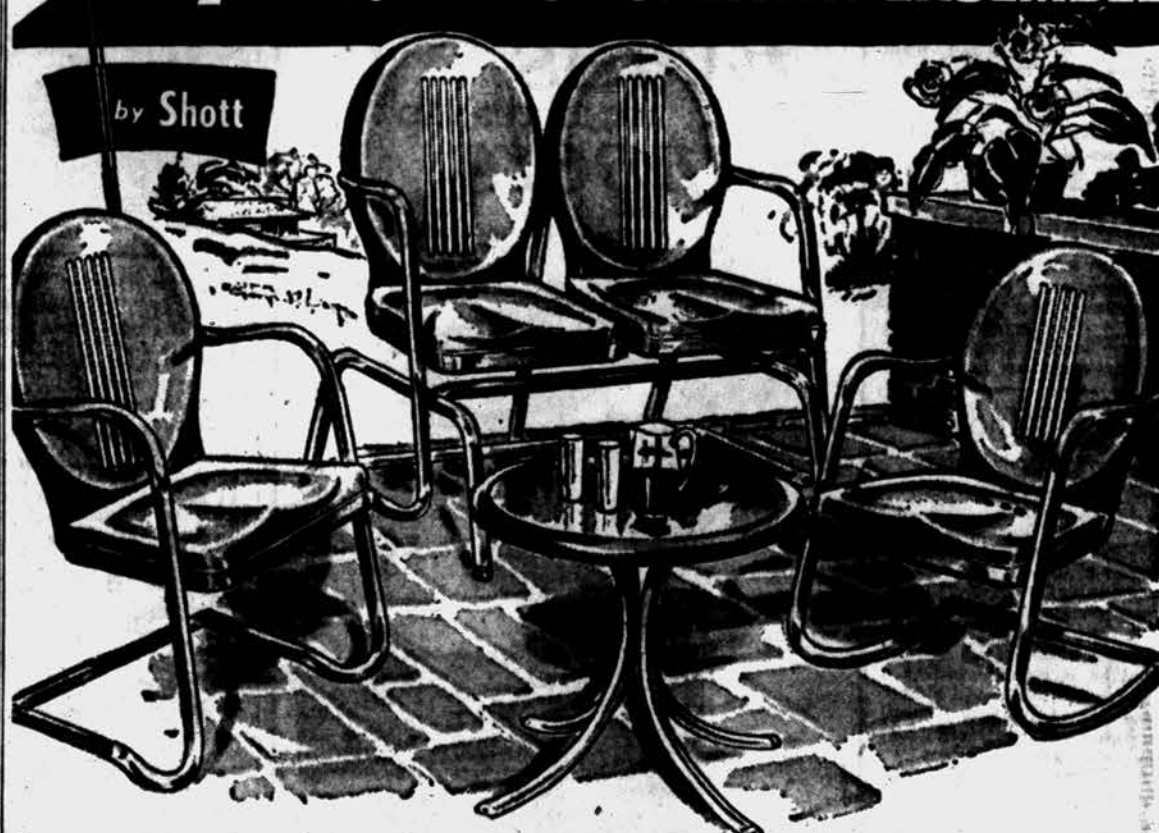

Voters Approve Issue

DRYDEN — Voters have approved a $240,000 school bond issue by a vote of 266 to 23.

The money will be used to build an addition to the Dryden Community School.

Autos Marring Face of Paris

Citizens of City Protest Changes Brought About by Vehicular Traffic

PARIS (INS) — The lovely face of Paris is about to be scarred forever—and all because of the automobile.

Like many American cities Paris is slowly being strangled to death by vehicular traffic.

Drastic action planned to relieve mounting congestion will require widening boulevards, building under- and over-passes, and removal of certain buildings.

All this, many people fear, will break the symmetry of line to which Paris owes a great deal of its elegant beauty.

Paris used to be the ideal city to take a leisurely carriage ride in more gracious days. But now, with a booming prosperity feeding nearly 200 cars a day onto already congested streets, riding or driving through Paris has become an unpleasant task.

The parking problem is making Paris merchants tear their hair and scream for relief.

A private organization, "The Study and Coordinating Group for Underground Planning," estimates that lack of downtown parking space is costing Paris stores $100,000,000 a year.

This sum, they say, could pay for a complete subterranean network of traffic lanes and parking areas in the next ten years, sufficient for foreseeable traffic problems.

A scheme for building underpasses at the great circle of the "Arch of Triumph," "La Place de la Concorde," and other points of historic and artistic interest has already drawn protests from those Parisians who would rather forgo private cars in Paris than touch one stone of the city's monuments.

There is no question that the plans will be implemented, regardless of the protests. France is becoming more and more what its businessmen like to call "practical." "France is marching ahead in spite of itself," they say.

While traffic jams and bottle-necks are more exasperating, it is the lack of parking space that is having the worst effect on Paris retail trade.

In the Champs-Elysees and Faubourg St. Honore areas, the little parking space available is limited to one hour.

'Houn' Dog' Their Work

Two Tunesmiths Propel Elvis to National Craze

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Two guys responsible for many of the raucous rhythms coming out of the nation's juke boxes are Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller, both 23.

Their rock 'n' rollers have helped propel Elvis Presley and others to a national craze.

"Houn' Dog," "Black-Denim Trousers and Motorcycle Boots," "Love Me," these are a few of their hits. And there are more to come.

Leiber and Stoller contributed tunes to Presley's film "Loving You." Now they've got four ditties in the wiggly one's latest film, "Jailhouse Rock."

The Presley songs from the flickers are guaranteed to sell at least a million records and can go from three to five. "Houn' Dog" sold five. "Love Me" totaled 2 1/2 million—and it was never put out as a single record! It was included as the lead song in an album.

Jerry and Mike are local boys transplanted from Baltimore and New York respectively. Jerry, red-haired, nervous and single, writes the words. Mike, who has a high forehead, seems more calm and is married, writes the music and plays piano well enough to land a role in "Jailhouse Rock."

How did they meet? "I was going to Fairfax High (in Los Angeles) and writing some songs," Jerry recalled. "I was working with a drummer who put the notes down for me. He was kind of a slow worker, so he told me about a guy he knew at City College who could write music faster. He gave me the guy's address and I went and knocked on his door."

Without clues, finding anything lost in the Tower of London would be an impossible task, says the National Geographic Society.

This history-steeped site beside the Thames holds not one but many towers, and countless hiding places. Surrounded by a dry moat, it covers 18 acres. Inner and outer walls are studded with massive bastions and towers of various sizes and architectural periods.

The Bell Tower, scene of the current Barkstead treasure hunt, stands west of Bloody Tower. Among other involuntary guests, its walls enclosed Sir Thomas More and Elizabeth I, when she was a young princess.

Hal Boyle Says:

He's a Four-Time Loser With the Family Dentist

NEW YORK — All I don't want for Father's Day is four front teeth.

But come Sunday I'll be wearing four new store ones—although at the moment I'm not sure whether I'll be wearing them in my face or my back pocket.

Other happy fathers will be proudly showing off the presents showered on them by their loyal kinfolk—rainbow neckties, dazzling robes, beach shoes, peacock sport shirts, new power lawnmowers.

And what'll I be doing? Standing in front of a bathroom mirror making faces at myself, and by nightfall I'll be able to ring the bell once loud and clear and say "Mississippi!"

When my dentist first proposed about a year ago to take out my four upper front teeth, I ran out of his office, figuring the guy either had delusions of grandeur or else was taking money from Moscow to sabotage the American way of life.

"Rover," said my heartless wife "every time you get an ingrown toenail you think it is a conspiracy on the part of the medical profession to destroy you."

Frances then went to the dentist and got his side of the story. Naturally she came home battling for the dentist. In any battle between a husband and science, the wife always turns her back on her man and fights shoulder-to-shoulder with science.

"The dentist is really doing you a favor," she said. "Those teeth have to go, or else you could get something real serious."

"Let him do you the favor!" I shouted. "These fangs have served me 40 years, and I'll not desert them now."

But in adopting this attitude I found I had bitten off more than I could chew. Everytime I sneezed Frances would shake her head and say "It's your four front teeth. They're getting worse, you know."

After 11 losing months of this war of marital nerves, I gave up and agreed to let the dentist have his fun this week.

Well, at the office this morning all my false friends with false teeth are grinning at the empty space in my gums and saying helpfully: "Getting old, eh?"

The answer, of course, is yes. But I'm reconciled. There comes a time in any man's life when most of his remaining adventures are dentures.

Car Crashes Into Home — It's the 16th Time

PISCATAWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. — Mr. and Mrs. William Liebeck were rudely awakened recently when a car shot off the road, ripped up their front steps and damaged part of their porch.

The couple was shocked but hardly surprised. It was the 16th time since Sept. 1, 1953 that a car has gone out of control and landed on the Liebeck property.

It's getting so a lot of people are moving back into the cities to get away from the crowds in the suburbs. Now and then we meet a woman who won't lie about her age—she just refuses to talk about it — Earl Wilson.

In Great Underground Caverns Oil Stored Beneath Earth

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP)—Some of nature's little-known but marvelous creations helped keep people warm this winter.

The wonders are the great salt domes that bulge up like mushrooms to within a few hundred feet of the surface.

The solid domes, found over the years by oil drillers, were of only geological interest until recently.

Then someone hit on the idea of digging into the salt to create a cheaply built reservoir.

The best way to do this was to allow water to dig.

So shafts were sunk into the domes, water introduced to dissolve the salt, the water then pumped out.

This plan created great underground caverns with solid salt walls that will hold a variety of liquids.

Fifteen miles west of here, Freestone Underground Storage Corp. had six million gallons of liquefied petroleum tucked away in man-made cavities in the top of Butler salt dome when the winter fuel rush began. Liquefied petroleum is also known as bottled gas. It is used for home heating systems in areas unserved by gas utilities.

The Butler dome is one of the largest and most accessible in the East Texas area, pushing up to within 350 feet of the surface. Its flat top covers an estimated 1,200 acres.

Freestone Underground Storage Corp. has drilled three wells into the Butler dome, the last completed last year.

The third well was washed with fresh water for two months and has a storage capacity of 300,000 gallons. After the winter rush for fuel, the cavity will be washed again and made larger.

Salt is not dissolved by liquefied petroleum and gas liquids do not seep into the salt beyond recovery range.

"The only losses we have had," Newman said, "are losses that go with any ordinary handling operation. We can get back almost every drop we put into the holes."

The underground storage facility was developed for less than one fifth the amount that a ground-level steel storage tank would have cost, Newman said.

Dr. Johnson, Britain's 82-year-old "Red Dean" of Canterbury, resisted demands of the choir-men of his cathedral for a raise in their pay, now $13.45 a week

Call to Dr. Schweitzer All in Day's Chores for Adria Koe

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Not long ago Alan Sherman, producer of "I've Got a Secret" (CBS-TV), told Adria Koe, the comely young coordinator of production for the show:

"Call up Albert Schweitzer in Africa. Tell him that we'll pay his expenses to come to New York and appear on the show. All his winnings will go to the Schweitzer Foundation."

Miss Koe recalls, "So I picked up the phone and told the operator to get me Albert Schweitzer in Africa. I had no clue where he was. If the operator thought I was crazy, she didn't say so. In any case, she couldn't reach Dr. Schweitzer."

In any case, too, the incident is only one of the many interesting things that befall a Girl Friday working for "I've Got a Secret," the show on which Garry Moore serves as master of ceremonies Wednesday evenings. The purpose, of course, is to stump the panelists: Bill Cullen, Henry Morgan, Faye Emerson, Jayne Meadows.

A recent "secret" which the panelists were requested to guess was that guest Vera Ellen was wearing a dress made from an old suit of Bill Cullen's with accessories created from some haberdashery of Henry Morgan's. To obtain the raw materials for Miss Ellen's costume involved larceny (of a kind)—and also involved Miss Koe.

She obtained the articles with the connivance of friends and relatives of the panelists. Cullen recognized a piece of his old suit too late to guess the "secret."

Edison Lineman Killed

DETROIT (AP) — Working atop a utility pole, Detroit Edison Co. lineman Donald E. Randall, 32, was killed by electric shock Wednesday when he touched a 4,800-volt wire.

Muskegon Conductor Leads Youth Program

EAST LANSING (AP) — William Stewart, director of music for Muskegon public schools, will conduct the high school band in the 12th annual Youth Music Program at Michigan State University June 23-24.

Others announced as faculty members for the event include Merwyn Mitchell, Grand Rapids, training band conductor, and Keith Lancaster, Royal Oak, chorus director.

Mitchell is music director at Ottawa Hills high school and Lancaster is chorus director at Royal Oak high school.

Find Woman's Body

SAGINAW (AP) — A body tentatively identified as that of Mrs. Jeanette McKinley, 28, of Saginaw, was found floating in the Saginaw River Wednesday. She had been missing since Monday night when she either fell or jumped into the river from a boat, between Saginaw and Bay City.

Doctor Praises State's Mental Health Work

A national leader in the field of mental health has reported that Michigan is better prepared to provide psychiatric treatment for its mentally ill today than it was in 1950.

Speaking before the Michigan Mental Hospital Institute at Michigan State University, Dr. Daniel Blain pointed out that the state now has one psychiatrist for every 21,000 persons. The 1950 ratio was one psychiatrist per 31,000. Michigan's present ratio places it 15th among the 48 states.

Dr. Blain added that Michigan rates high in such other areas as patient-employee ratio (14th) and per-capita expenditure of state funds for mental hospitals (7th). Dr. Blain is medical director of the American Psychiatric Association in Washington.

Attending the June 10-11 meetings from the Pontiac State Hospital staff were: Gerald A. Bas, business executive; Dr. Ann W. Becker, clinical director; Ruby L. Eargle, R. N., and director of nursing; Dr. Ivan A. LaCore, superintendent; Richard L. Luchmann, personnel officer; Marguerite M. Parrish, social service director; and Dr. Theodore Satermoen, assistant to medical superintendent.

Ship's Crew Perished?

VALPARAISO, Chile (AP) — Maritime authorities said last night they believed 13 crew members and 3 passengers of the Chilean tanker Jeanette perished when the ship was wrecked Tuesday near the port of Hualco, Chile.

Wife, 16, Strangled to Death Say Man Admits Murder

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Prosecutor Stuart Hoffius said Fred O. Minor, charged with murder in the strangulation of his 16-year-old wife, Bessie Marie, signed a statement last night, admitting he choked his wife during an argument.

Minor, 24, waived examination on the charge yesterday. He was ordered held for arraignment Monday in Superior Court.

Police said Minor walked into headquarters to report a family quarrel in which he said he thought he had killed his wife. Officers found the young woman's body in the couple's apartment Tuesday.

Hoffius said, prior to signing the statement, Minor claimed he had "blacked out" after his wife slapped him. The prosecutor quoted the young woman's last statement as saying that when he came to be discovered his hands at his wife's throat.

Police said the couple rented the apartment last Thursday while attempting a reconciliation. They had been separated six months.

The Minors were married in South Carolina when he was 19 and she 13. Their three young-sters were placed in foster homes when the couple separated.

First battalion chief John Moor led the rescuers who spread a net beneath the girl and rushed up an aerial ladder to seize her.

Taken to Receiving Hospital for observation she told police she had been criminally assaulted Tuesday night and "shame" over the attack prompted her to jump.

Boy Remains in Coma From Sleeping Sickness

ANN ARBOR (AP) — An Upper Peninsula youngster, who has contracted sleeping sickness, remained in a coma today at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. A hospital spokesman said last night that 9-year-old Charles Caynus of Alston, Houghton County, was on "the danger list" in "critical condition." The spokesman said the boy falls to recognize anyone and does not respond to voices. Doctors said Charles is suffering from encephalitis, more commonly known as sleeping sickness or brain fever. They could not predict when he would come out of the coma.
