Grizz Facts: A look at student retention

First-year retention rates for 2017 incoming freshmen stayed relatively even with rates seen over the past five years.

Students who return for a second year and who have earned 28 or more credits in their first year are considered 'on-track' to graduate.

The percentage of first-year students retained after 2017 and on-track to graduate is slightly lower than the previous year, but remains the second highest rate on record.
