SAIGON (U) — Hanoi Radio reported today that President Ho Chi Minh's condition is deteriorating and greatest efforts are being made to care for him, American monitors in Saigon reported.

The French-language broadcast was Hanoi's first report that the condition of the 79-year-old father of Vietnamese communism was worsening. Two earlier official announcements said he was in "somewhat grave" condition and that his illness was "developing."

Officials in Saigon felt that even that much admission meant Ho was near death.

His illness was announced in a communique which said: "Over the past few weeks, President Ho Chi Minh has not been well. . . . A collective of professors and medical doctors has been attending him day and night."

'NOT STABLE'
Another communique, broadcast four hours later, said Ho's condition was "not stable" and that "his illness is developing and is somewhat grave."

"They would hardly issue such a bulletin unless Ho was already dead or in a coma of some kind," said one official in Saigon.

Hanoi did not disclose the nature of the illness, but Ho had a bad case of tuberculosis in the 1940s and reportedly had suffered from heart trouble and possible lung complications for more than two years.

Experts in Saigon said Ho's death or incapacitation probably would result in an intensified power struggle in North Vietnam but no change in the goal of a unified Communist Vietnam. And they said even the jockeying for power might not be evident for some time.

PARTY CONTROLS SEEN

"It will be a dictatorship by the party, not a dictatorship by one man," one expert said. "The Political Bureau and the Central Committee will be the important factors."

The chief contenders for the succession are considered to be the chief of the Communist party machine, Le Duan, who is listed No. 2 on the Politburo; Truong Chinh, No. 3 and the party's most vocal ideologist; Premier Pham Van Dong, No. 4, and Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the defense minister, architect of the French defeat and the director of the war against the United States and the Saigon government.

Le Duan is considered pro-Moscow, Truong Chinh pro-Peking.

A Japanese news agency that has a correspondent in Hanoi said the North Vietnamese first learned of their leader's illness in a radio bulletin broadcast at 4 a.m. The Japanese agency, Nippon Denpa Hoso, said people gathered in the streets despite the early hour to talk about the news. Tuesday was North Vietnam's independence day, and the Japanese agency said an independence day program scheduled for Tuesday night was canceled without explanation, apparently because of Ho's condition.

Saigon Sees No Change in N. Viet Goal

SAIGON (AP) — Experts in Saigon expect the power struggle in Hanoi to intensify regardless of the outcome of Ho Chi Minh's illness. But they foresee no change in the ultimate goal of the North Vietnamese leaders — a unified Communist Vietnam.

"For the moment they will probably give the appearance of closing ranks," one expert said. "They probably realize among themselves that they cannot afford an internal struggle."

"It will be dictatorship by the party, not dictatorship by one man," said a South Vietnamese expert. "The political bureau and the central committee will be the important factors."

But the Hanoi watchers believe a test of will must inevitably come from among the main contenders long standing in Ho's shadow. These are Communist party boss Le Duan, the party's most vocal ideologist, Truong Chinh; Premier and heir-apparent Pham Van Dong, and the military leader, Vo Nguyen Giap.

IMMEDIATE CHANGE UNLIKELY

How this struggle would affect the war or the peace talks in Paris is questionable. Few see a prospect of any immediate change.

One official said that any severe contest for power inevitably must lead to a slowing down of the war in the South, but that this would not necessarily mean any weakening of the adamant North Vietnamese position at the Paris talks.

Should either a pro-Moscow or a pro-Peking faction gain superiority, however, North Vietnam might move away from middle ground in Communist circles.

Ho was able throughout his years to walk a tight rope in all international ideological disputes. Most experts believe that his successors will try to do the same, but they may not be able to maintain the independence that the patriarch of Asian Communism could.

House Loan Stall Hits Poor Students

By The Associated Press
Would-be college students across the country are feeling the financial pinch even more than usual this fall because of congressional inaction on legislation to boost the interest rate on government-guaranteed student loans.

Some college officials say the delay will prevent hundreds of students—many in low-income groups—from attending college at all this year.

The Senate has passed legislation raising the 7 per cent ceiling on the government-guaranteed student loans to 10 per cent, making them more attractive to lenders who now charge 8 1/2 per cent to prime borrowers.

The bill is stalled in the House, however, over an amendment to prohibit loans to student disrupters.

ACTION PENDING

The House is expected to act on the measure Sept. 15 and President Nixon has appealed to lenders to keep student loans flowing despite the congressional delay.

New York University said First National City Bank, which heavily financed students under the guaranteed-loan program, now turns down requests if the prospective student borrower has not had a business relationship with the bank or been a previous borrower.

In Oregon, the U.S. National Bank and the First National Bank will lend only to students whose parents have made satisfactory deposits or who have had a financial relationship with the bank for at least a year.

A spokesman for Stanford University in California said the school expects to lose 650 students from an expected enrollment of 11,000 because of the Congressional delay and cutbacks in other federal aid programs like those under the National Defense Education Act.

Albert Lee Carnick, 50, of 4758 Belforton, Bloomfield Township, remained in grave condition today at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. Officials admitted his prognosis was "not as good as the doctors had hoped."

Doctors said Carnick, who yesterday received the left lung of a teen-age traffic victim, has not regained consciousness since surgery. His six-hour operation was Michigan's first recorded lung transplant.

Carnick, said to be dying of emphysema prior to surgery, is now being assisted in breathing by a respirator. He is also receiving drugs to bolster his blood pressure.

A daughter, Mrs. Jane Carnick Webber of Chicago, said her father had been given only six weeks to two months to live before the operation.

Half-Day Schooling Protested

By DICK ROBINSON

A drive to end to eliminate half-day school sessions for elementary pupils in Waterford Township.

About half of some 8,800 pupils in the district are to start half-day sessions tomorrow, but a group of mothers will try to have them put back on full days. The other 4,400 pupils are to go on half-days in the winter.

Mrs. Raymond Swindell, 5508 Pleasant, said the half-day session protest was sparked when proposed half-day sessions in Livonia were ruled unconstitutional Friday.

She and Mrs. Donald Keehn, 2990 Van Zandt, are calling for other Waterford parents "interested in revoking half-day sessions" to meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the VFW Hall, 1890 Airport.

APPEAL WATCHED

Meanwhile, school officials are waiting to see what happens in Livonia, where the school board will appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court Friday's circuit court decision requiring the school district to remain on full days this fall.

"The main thing we want is a full day's education for our children," Mrs. Swindell said. "What can my second-grade son learn when he's in school only 2 1/2 hours a day?"

Waterford elementary pupils are being put on half-day sessions this fall to prevent the school system from going into the red, according to acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen.

He has said elementary pupils will only be able to get a basic education — reading, writing and arithmetic — on half-day sessions.

PARENTS BROUGHT SUIT

The Livonia ruling by Wayne County Circuit Judge Charles Kaufman came after a group of Livonia parents brought suit against the school board which had ordered half-day sessions this fall.

"If they can do it in Livonia," Mrs. Swindell comments, "we can do it here."

She contends that when the State Legislature said schools districts must have 180 days of school for students to receive state funds it meant 180 full days.

Related Stories, A-2, A-4

But Pagen contends nowhere is the length of a school day defined.

JUDGE'S RULING

Kaufman said in his ruling it was up to the State Legislature to provide the 180 days of education required by Michigan's Constitution, ruling, in effect, that half-day classes could not be imposed as a cost-cutting device.

An attorney will be at the Waterford parents' meeting tomorrow to explain their rights, according to Mrs. Swindell. If the parents decide on court action, money would have to be raised for the attorney's fee.

Pagen said he "would like to revoke half-day classes, but how can we do it legally?"

He cited a section of the current state act which prohibits deficit financing and imposes a misdemeanor penalty of $500 fine and/or three months in jail.

'RULING DISCRIMINATORY'

The acting superintendent also says he feels the Livonia school board decision putting grades 5 through 8 on a half-day schedule is discriminatory.

"That's why we spread it out over all elementary grades 1 through 6,"

While the Waterford protest mounts, Pagen said he has asked Kaufman for a copy of his complete decision which he will turn over to the school attorney for study.

Half-day sessions have been a traditional way of resolving school finance problems, Pagen comments.

ADC Clothing Allowance Faces County Supervisors

The County Board of Supervisors, meeting tomorrow, will face the job of deciding how to meet clothing needs of the 2,400 county families now receiving Aid to Dependent Children (ADC).

The finance committee handled the issue like a hot potato yesterday.

Said finance committee Chairman George Grba, D-Pontiac, "I don't want the all-powerful finance committee to do the hatchet job. I want (this issue) to go to the full board where everybody can see the votes."

A motion to recommend appropriation of $90,000 in emergency clothing funds was withdrawn. Supervisor Carl O'Brien, D-Pontiac, then offered a watered-down motion which simply referred the appropriation to the full board without recommendation.

SOME DISSENT

O'Brien's motion passed unanimously.

It caused some dissent among the handful of ADC mothers present who appeared to favor cash allotments.

Until now ADC recipients have been able to obtain emergency clothing supplies only from the county-operated store at 1 Lafayette in Pontiac.

A recent study of the facility undertaken by local merchants recommended several improvements.

The three-man Social Service Board, the staff of the Social Services Department and a majority of the supervisors human resources committee have recommended that recipients be given cash allotments and allowed to purchase clothes where they will.

The $90,000 would be distributed at the rate of about $30 per child as opposed to a reported $47.50 in goods per child issued during the last year, according to county officials.

Lung Recipient Still Is 'Grave'

Albert Lee Carnick, 50, of 4758 Belforton, Bloomfield Township, remained in grave condition today at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. Officials admitted his prognosis was "not as good as the doctors had hoped."

Doctors said Carnick, who yesterday received the left lung of a teen-age traffic victim, has not regained consciousness since surgery. His six-hour operation was Michigan's first recorded lung transplant.

Carnick, said to be dying of emphysema prior to surgery, is now being assisted in breathing by a respirator. He is also receiving drugs to bolster his blood pressure.

A daughter, Mrs. Jane Carnick Webber of Chicago, said her father had been given only six weeks to two months to live before the operation.

SMOKING NOT LINKED

Ironically, smoking has not been judged the cause of Carnick's illness as it has in numerous other cases of emphysema.

Clouds Will Hold a Hint of Showers

The weather forecast calls for some cloudiness tonight, with tomorrow mostly cloudy with a chance of showers. Friday is to be warm with a chance of showers.

Temperatures are to fall into the high 50s tonight and climb to 80 to 85 tomorrow.

Probabilities of precipitation are 10 per cent today, 20 per cent tonight, and 40 per cent tomorrow.

A mild 62 was the low recording before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury had warmed up to 84 by 2 p.m.

Mrs. Webber said her father stopped smoking 12 years ago. She said his illness had been determined to be congenital.

The six-foot, former 180-pounder is down to 130 pounds, the daughter said.

Mrs. Webber reported that until five years ago her father had rarely been ill. Since that time, however, life for Carnick, an engineer with Copco Steel Corp. of Detroit, had become a series of missed work days and one hospitalization after another. Mrs. Webber said at one time he had been hospitalized six weeks.

Yesterday's operation provided Carnick with the lung of 17-year-old Richard Allen May of Jackson, who died of injuries in an auto accident.

While 24 human lung transplants have been attempted, only one recipient has survived for more than a few days. A Belgian is still alive nearly nine months after the operation.

B52 Strikes Aid Beleaguered S. Viets

SAIGON (AP) — Massive American B52 strikes today hit North Vietnamese battalions of South Vietnamese forces near the provincial capital of Song Be for the fourth day.

South Vietnamese casualties were climbing, with at least 30 troops killed, 138 wounded and 17 missing, as well as four American Green Beret advisers wounded.

The enemy resistance was so strong that more than 1,000 troops from the Green Berets' mobile strike force of hired tribesmen have been forced into retreat. Only six enemy soldiers were known dead.

ENEMY BASE FOUND

The fighting was touched off Sunday when a battalion of strike-force troops uncovered an enemy base camp. The South-

Vietnamese were surrounded quickly, attacked from all sides and forced to lighten their perimeter. They have been unable to move since.

American intelligence officers thought at first the camp was the headquarters of an enemy regiment. But now there is speculation that it may be a division headquarters.

During the light hours on Sept. 2, B52s pounded the enemy camp with more than 500 tons of bombs. Some strikes were only three miles from the Cambodian border.

A U.S. air cavalry battalion of 400 men which had reinforced the South Vietnamese Tuesday was pulled out today after another 400 strike force troops were flown in. But one-battalion of the strike force also was pulled out, leaving 800 to 1,000 South Vietnamese troops committed to the battle.

10-MINUTE FIGHT

American air cavalrymen probing the jungles of the enemy's War Zone C, 65 miles northwest of Saigon, ran into a barrage of machine-gun and rifle fire Tuesday for the fourth successive day. In a 10-minute fight, 12 enemy and two Americans were reported killed.

2-Week-Old Boy Requires Surgery to Remove Bullet

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A two-week-old boy was reported in good condition following an operation Tuesday which removed a bullet that lodged in his brain when his mother was shot before his birth.

The surgeon said it may not be known for a long time whether the child will suffer brain damage.

The mother, Mrs. Glenda Messer of Waynesville, was shot accidentally Aug. 18 when her husband dropped a pistol, police said. The baby was born prematurely two days later.

The surgeon, Dr. L.S. Van Blaricom, said the cushioning effect of the womb and the fact that the infant was living off his mother's system probably accounted for his survival. He said such a wound probably would have killed an adult.

LA Murder Probe 'Progressing'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In sequence and in method of doing it," Houghton said. When asked whether he thought the murders were committed by one person, Houghton said, "I personally doubt it, although I must tell in all fairness we do not have conclusive evidence that one man could not have done it."

The victims were stabbed or shot or both, found lying inside the house, on the lawn, and in one case—inside a car.

Miss Tate—who was expecting a baby within two weeks—and coffee waitress Abigail Folger were stabbed; hair stylist Jay Sebring and Polish playboy Vol-tyck Frokowsky were stabbed and shot; and 18-year-old Stephen Parent, who apparently did not know the other victims, was found shot to death in his car.

Holiday Road Toll Is 609

By the Associated Press
Highway accidents killed 609 persons across the nation over the three-day Labor Day weekend.

The toll fell short of the 625 to 725 the National Safety Council has estimated for the holiday.

Over a three-day nonholiday weekend in June, deaths totaled 435. The count was made by the son with the Labor Day figure.

Troy Underwater Recovery Squad on Alert

TROY — A group of children and parents walked from their homes across the street and stood by the edge of Emerald Lake.

They strained to see what the divers were doing 50 feet away.

Was it someone from the neighborhood? A child?

The Troy Underwater Recovery Squad specifically chose this lake so they wouldn't frighten a crowd that might think someone had drowned. This was a practice session for the divers.

The squad of 12 men — 10 police and two fire fighters — maintain a constant alert, ready to recover anything — stolen property; runaway cars or even the body of a boy who panicked while swimming.

All volunteers, many of them free-lance divers, the squad is on 24-hour call. Assisted by the volunteer firemen, they have twice received emergency calls at home, "suited up," driven to the scene, and recovered a child's body — all within 20 minutes.

The idea for the special squad started in 1964 after a Troy policeman tried repeatedly to rescue a small boy. The officer had neither fins or goggles to help him. The frantic mother had to wait for the sheriff's marine patrol to arrive — and find her son dead.

Six men volunteered at the beginning. The number has since grown to 12. They serve without special pay, though they do receive training time off and overtime for calls during off-duty hours.

Many have their own equipment, but the city does have five air tanks, underwater lamps, snorkels, refill tanks and a $1,000 air compressor. The equipment is stored in Fire Station No. 2, manned entirely by volunteers.

Often the unsung heroes of a rescue or recovery, the volunteer firemen rush a rowboat to the scene, where they pull the recovery squad diver many times across the lake with a tow rope. While the diver is on the bottom searching with a tow rope, the diver is on the bottom searching, he loses all sense of direction. In the boat, the firemen keep sight of shore and set up a pattern of search.

Any man volunteering for the squad must go through rigid training. The divers also train during the winter.

The training can get quite tedious," said Cpl. Richard Booth the squad leader. "If you have even the slightest touch of claustrophobia, you'll know it once you get in the water — especially if you're swimming under a solid layer of ice."

The men meet twice a month for practice sessions. They have all had first-aid training and they are able to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation while swimming into shore.

The men are called out to locate a drowning victim as fast as possible and to bring him to shore. A family's anxiety while watching a rescue is best relieved by speed and efficiency, said Cpl. Booth.

He said the main reason the squad was formed, even though the Oakland County Sheriff's Department has a similar team, was to serve quickly and professionally the needs of Troy residents.

Birmingham Classes On; Talks Continue

BIRMINGHAM — Classes are in session as scheduled in the school district today while negotiations between the board of education and Birmingham Education Association (BEA) continue on three major unresolved contract issues.

Tentative agreement has been reached on salaries and fringe benefits. The new salary schedule calls for a $7,450 minimum to a $11,950 maximum for a bachelor's degree holder and from $8,000 to $13,800 for a teacher with a master's degree.

Last year's salary schedule ranged from a bachelor's degree minimum of $6,900 to a master's degree maximum of $12,550.

Settlements in the metropolitan Detroit area for the 1969-70 term are averaging about a $7,500 minimum for beginning teachers with a maximum of $12,500-$13,000.

FRINGE BENEFITS

The new fringe-benefit package includes Blue Cross-Blue Shield master medical care with family coverage, a $2,500 life insurance policy with accident benefits, a 250-day sick bank for all teachers and improvement in supplemental pay.

Total cost of the economic items, according to a Board of Education spokesman, is $784,000.

Negotiations are continuing on the major unresolved issues — agency-shop clause, a board grievance procedure and a no-strike-no-sanctions clause.

A BEA spokesman said negotiators are attempting to clear all issues this week. He added, however, that there are several differences remaining concerning the major unresolved issues.

But His Job's in Jeopardy

His Mustache Will Stay

By T. LARRY ADCOCK

His boss — Richard L. Graham, director of Troy's Department of Public Works (DPW) — yesterday issued a two-day suspension notice to Garrett, following a memo last week demanding that Garrett remove (by yesterday) his "Fu Manchu"-style mustache and "Your mustache and sideburns should be adequately trimmed so as not to attract stares or attention and to reflect a neat and reasonable appearance," Graham's memo read.

'SECOND CHANCE'

Yesterday, Garrett — still mustachioed and sideburned, despite his boss' memo — and a representative of his union (American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Local 574) confronted Graham at City Hall. He received the two-day suspension notice, presumably a "second chance."

"I'm not shaving it off," Garrett said, reflecting on tomorrow's deadline.

An engineering assistant whose primary duty is inspecting contractors' work, Garrett describes most of the public (contractors) he meets as "guys who shave on Saturdays."

Garrett, a 25-year-old ex-Marine, says he is "definitely patriotic and all that."

'PERSONAL PREROGATIVE'

"I'm not a rebel or anything... It's just that I don't think I have to conform to everything one person decides. My appearance is my personal prerogative," Garrett declared.

Garrett is a fairly successful part-time artist. "After Thursday, I may have to become a full-time artist," Garrett quipped.

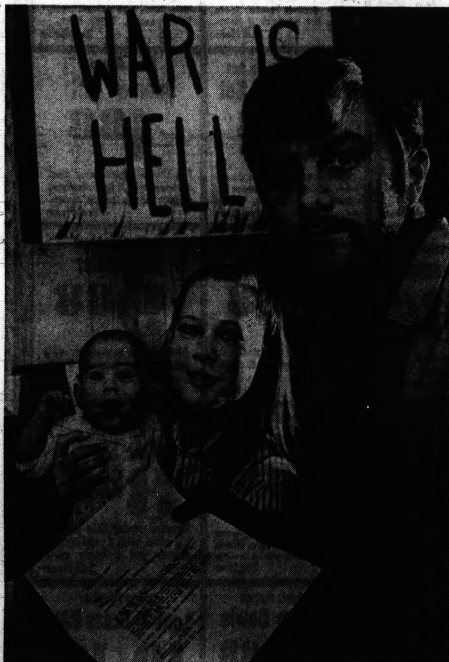

Garrett said he is "pretty sure" he will be fired tomorrow for disobeying his supervisor's memo and a vaguely worded city rule that directs employees to "exhibit a neat appearance."

Garrett says his mustache is kept neatly trimmed.

HE'S NOT ALONE

"Plenty of guys in the DPW have long sideburns or longish hair. The situation now is even more ridiculous than when it originated — if that is possible," Garrett said.

Garrett has been with the Troy DPW for a year and a half and says his work record is very good. Garrett, his 21-year-old wife and their year-old child live in Royal Oak. (Only city department heads are required to live in Troy.)

'NO REBEL' — David Garrett, a 25-year-old assistant engineer for the Troy Department of Public Works, faces dismissal from his job of 1½ years tomorrow if his "Fu Manchu" mustache remains. "I'm not a rebel or anything... It's just that I don't think I have to conform to everything one person decides," Garrett reasons. Supporting his refusal to shave are Garrett's wife, Dawn, 21, and their son, Sterling, 4 months.

Unite With W. Bloomfield Police

Citizens Aim to Halt Rowdies

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Upset residents of the Briarcliff Subdivision Homeowners Association are uniting with the township police department in an effort to halt teen-age motorists allegedly ruining property and threatening wives and children.

John Rexford, head of the homeowners association, last night told the Township Board that he could name a number of the youths involved but that every time a police car was called, the youths would disappear before the car came.

W. K. Porter, a subdivision resident, said the youths drive across lawns and leave them ruffed and swear at, and threaten to assault, women.

Township Supervisor John Doherty and several council members urged the residents to sign a formal complaint against the teens.

YOUTHS MAKE THREAT

One man retorted, "Sure, I can sign a complaint, but when I go up north on vacation my house will be burned down." He added that the youths just laugh and say "We know what to do about the cops" when confronted by subdivision members.

Doherty said, "We have to take a stand and sign a complaint. This is common not only to Briarcliff. We'll make every effort to pick up these youths but we'll need the cooperation of every citizen."

Doherty said that frequently when complaints were signed against the youths, the very act of going to court with parents was sobering and broke the youths' feeling of confidence that no one could stop him.

Trustee Walter J. Whitmer said, "If a citizen doesn't make a complaint, this will get out of hand."

The Briarcliff residents agreed that signed complaints should be lodged against the youths.

The residents agreed to work in conjunction with the police department.

The teens have been gone or on good behavior by the time police reached the scene. New methods to catch the youths in the act of violating the law are being investigated.

In response to a resident's question, the township attorney explained that if a resident catches a youth when actually on his property, he could detain the delinquent — with reasonable force — until police arrive.

Residents from other subdivision present at the meeting agreed to unite against rowdy teen motorists.

During the regular meeting, the board voided a low bid from Acitelli Corp. of Pontiac for construction of sewers in Herndon's Walnut Lake Estates because insurance and cleanup costs were not a part of the total bid specifications, making the Acitelli bid almost 50 per cent lower than the next lowest bid. The contract was awarded to Mole Construction Co., Taylor, for $908,678, still almost $300,000 under the original estimates.

The paving of Inkster from Maple Road to Beeson Hill and the paving of Farmington Road a quarter-mile on each side of Walnut was approved at a total cost of $255,524 will be paid by the township, county and Bloomfield township.

New Section Is Occupied in Farmington Twp. Hall

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — The supervisor is sitting in a new spacious office today after moving from cramped quarters in the old section to the new section of the Township Hall.

Occupying the new building are the supervisor's office, clerk's office, treasurer's department, assessor's department, building department, violations bureau, zoning office and District Court.

The main offices are situated off a central room with a reception desk.

Township Board meetings will be held in the half-octagon-shaped council chambers which double as a district courtroom.

OCCUPIED BY POLICE

has been taken over by the police department.

Construction started in early 1968. All is finished now except for the landscaping.

An open house will be held sometime in October.

The new addition, larger than the old hall, cost $379,000. The structure was financed through the building fund with general fund revenues. Contractor was the Pinkert Construction Co.

The township government had moved into the old hall only seven years before. Originally, the offices were housed in the lower level of the Masonic Lodge at Grand River and Farmington in the city of Farmington.

Farmington OKs Curb on Permits

FARMINGTON — A 90-day moratorium on issuance of building permits in the central business district was approved by the City Council last night.

During that time, the Downtown Redevelopment Committee, a sub-committee of the planning commission, will attempt to develop zoning regulations "with teeth" for the central business district.

The committee, which will present an in-depth progress report to the planning commission Sept. 22, plans first to improve the existing downtown area (which the members currently consider "blighted") and then plan future use of the transitional areas surrounding the district.

The plan will probably take 10-15 years.

With 'a Great Deal of Money'

Bernadette Is Back in Ireland

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — Bernadette Devlin returned from the United States today and said she had raised "a great deal of money" for Roman Catholic victims of last month's religious warfare in Northern Ireland.

"We awakened in some Irish-American people their need to do something for their old country," she said, "and we succeeded in getting a great deal of money for the needs of those who were burned out during the riots."

The 23-year-old Catholic member of British Parliament refused to say how much money she raised, but she said it was being deposited in American cities and would be transferred to Ireland later.

"It's not that I do not trust the Stormont (Ulster) government to the extent that they would steal my money," she said, smiling. "But I feel it's best to keep it secret until the time fatigue and security conditions. "She has been suffering from extreme fatigue for several days," said Phil Tracy. "In addition to her poor physical condition, security considerations dictated that her return to Northern Ireland be sudden and unannounced."

Earlier Tuesday, Miss Devlin debated W. Stratton Mills, a Protestant member of British Parliament from North Belfast, Ireland, on a pre-taped television program.

Who's Fooling Whom?

Either the United States is beginning to bring its troops home from South Vietnam because the South Vietnamese are attaining the capability to take their places, or the withdrawal is merely another dubious attempt to find an end to an endless war.

The announcement that President Nixon will delay indefinitely a decision on further troop reductions beyond the 25,000 already withdrawn, pending evaluation of current North Vietnamese military action, uncomfortably suggests the latter—that troop withdrawal is the Nixon administration's version of President Johnson's bomb-then-pause-then-bomb-some-more policy.

It is explained that the President does not wish to deprive himself of bargaining latitude at the Paris peace talks by giving the impression that America is committed to withdrawal no matter what the Communists do. The delay is a warning to Hanoi that we will not stand idly by if it continues to mount offensives and carry on the war as usual.

The tactic may be worth a try, but it is not likely to accomplish any more than similar stratagems have accomplished in the past.

If South Vietnam is not yet able to defend itself without the shield of half a million U.S. troops, and if no one knows when or if it ever will be, nothing is to be gained by fooling ourselves on this score.

We are certainly not fooling the enemy.

Rocky Marciano

ROCKY

ROCKY MARCIANO, killed in the prime of life on the eve of his 46th birthday, gave heavyweight prize fighting during his seven-year reign a badly-needed aura of respectability until his retirement in 1956 as undefeated champion of his division.

His ring record was unmatched in boxing annals, revealing 49 victories without a defeat, 43 of them by knockouts.

Despite his ring ferocity, Rocky embodied a gentle nature, and it was often said that he felt genuine compassion for the adversaries he conquered in the ring.

Unlike the majority of professional fighters, MARCIANO was a thrifty businessman and conserved wisely the $1.7 million in ring purses he collected. A devoted family man, the "Champ" quit the ring mainly to enjoy more home life.

Born in Brocton, Mass., where he continued to make his home, of immigrant parents, the fighter came up the hard way. The eldest of six children, he quit school at 14 to help support the family.

Few beings have so well acquitted themselves during their earthly destinies as did the man born Rocco Francis Marchegiano. He leaves an illustrious record of professional achievement and personal probity.

Money Man's Mind Muffs

Score one for the memory, however tricky, of the manager of a Toledo finance company when he thought he recognized a well-dressed customer.

He did. "The same as last time?" asked the expectant money lender.

"Yes," was the reply as the "customer" pulled a gun and escaped with $300.

The manager said the man was the same person who robbed the office of $200 a month ago.

So How Come It's Still Heavy?

David Lawrence Says:

School-Prayer Plan Is Workable

WASHINGTON — Maybe a method of permitting prayers to be said by public-school pupils now has been devised which will meet the legal difficulties that have arisen since a 1963 decision by the Supreme Court of the United States.

LAWRENCE

The high court ruled then, in cases arising under Pennsylvania and Maryland laws, that the required reading of verses from the Bible and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools was unconstitutional.

In Leyden, Mass., a school committee has just developed a plan which, it is believed, will overcome legal objections.

A three-member school committee passed a motion that was worked out after conferences with legal experts. The motion reads, in part, as follows:

"On each school day, before class instruction begins, a period of not more than five minutes shall be available to those teachers and students who may wish to participate voluntarily in the free exercise of religion as guaranteed by our U.S. Constitution. This freedom of religion shall not be expressed in any way which will interfere with another's rights."

ALLOWED TO LEAVE

Either the teacher or the pupils may offer the prayer, and those who do not wish to take part will be allowed to leave the room. The motion specifies that nonparticipation "shall not be considered evidence of nonreligion."

The prayer will be spoken during what is virtually an intermission. The class could be divided into two or more groups for the prayer interval.

Gerald F. McCarthy, a member of the school committee which developed the plan, is confident that the formula will "stand the test of any court."

The Supreme Court in 1948 ruled against the teaching of religion itself on public-school premises during what was called "released time."

NOT PERMITTED

The court in 1952 held that, while the teaching of a particular religion on school premises by preachers or representatives of various religious groups would not be permitted, "released time" could be used for children to go to other parts of a city or town to attend such classes.

The program at Leyden, however, is not to be supervised, controlled or directed by any religious sect.

The students will, of course, be notified that the prayer is not compulsory in any sense.

All the school system does is to provide the time and place. It does not prescribe the prayer or instruct anyone to attend the session.

But it does furnish an opportunity which will doubtless be received with satisfaction by those parents who would like to have their children learn the importance of prayer each day with fellow students.

China Stirring Trouble in Asian Areas of Russia

By LEON DENNEN

NEA Foreign News Analyst
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Red China's continuing attacks on Russia's nationalities policy focuses new attention on the key role of ethnic groups in the escalating conflict between Moscow and Peking.

Mao Tse-tung's exploitation of the ethnic problem comes at a time when mounting evidence from other quarters suggests that this is increasingly an area of extreme delicacy for the Kremlin's uneasy rulers. They are discovering belatedly that man's desire to be independent is a more powerful force in the world today than communism or capitalism.

Whether in Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Ukraine or the "socialist republics" of Central Asia, nationhood, like personal freedom, is an absolute value that cannot be "abolished" by terror and suppression. It is merely driven underground.

TROTSKY WARNING

It was, in fact, Leon Trotsky, one of the leaders of the Communist revolution, who first warned that Moscow's Russian satellite was Russia's soft and vulnerable underbelly. He recognized this in Alma-Ata, capital of Soviet Kazakhstan bordering on China, where he lived in internment before his exile from Russia by Stalin in 1927.

Trotsky was murdered by one of Stalin's agents in 1940, but his ominous prophecy has become a reality to plague the Kremlin.

Ironically, it is the Chinese Communists who are today wielding the nationalist weapon in an attempt to cut off the Russians from the non-Russian ethnic groups in the Soviet Union.

Though Mao also claims to be a Marxist-Leninist internationalist, he fans the flames of nationalist hatred and revolt in Russian-dominated Central Asia.

RULERS CASTIGATED

He castigates the Kremlin rulers as "new czars." Each day Peking's mass media spread charges about arrests and executions by the Soviet KGB, concentration camps and other forms of nationalities oppression.

"The struggle of the oppressed nationalities against the Kremlin's new czars is a reflection of the deepening political and economic crisis that plagues the Soviet Union," said a recent editorial in Peking's People's Daily.

"The new Soviet czars are resorting to counterrevolutionary dual tactics — barbarous persecution and suppression on the one hand and despicable lying and deception on the other."

There is no doubt that Peking's propaganda is potentially dangerous for Moscow, since the Chinese claim Russian territories in the Far East inhabited by nationalities whose sympathies may be swayed by clever anti-Soviet propaganda.

Time to Think

Louisville Courier-Journal

No one should be surprised that officials of NASA are now pressing Washington to finance, at a cost of perhaps $4 billion dollars, a program to put men on Mars. They figure the time is ripe, in the aftermath of the feat of landing men on the moon, to lobby for an even more grandiose space program. If the moon, why not Mars? If Mars, why not Venus, and so on through the solar system and even beyond?

This kind of thinking isn't surprising in NASA spokesmen, who, after all, have a vested interest in the space program, but it is time for the public, which finances the show, to take a more questioning attitude toward what is proposed and what is going on.

Significantly, there has been a rebellion of sorts within NASA. Several scientists, including the science director of the manned spacecraft center, have resigned amid charges that the space directors are more concerned with engineering and publicity than with the advancement of science.

I listened to Miss Devlin from Ireland and when she was asked about the I.R.A., she had very little to say about it. She didn't tell the reporters what kind of an army it was. In 1939 the Irish Republic Army did the same thing in England it is doing today. It blew up our bridges, power stations, and post offices. It was outlawed in 1939 but I see it is still doing its dirty work.

I hope the Pontiac mothers will think twice before giving toward the million Miss Devlin is here for. I witnessed some of the destruction in England in 1939.

Our waterfront, which we try to keep clean, is a mess. I think it's just thoughtlessness on the part of otherwise wonderful neighbors.

Peace Corps a Skilled-Work Outfit

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — In September, top Peace Corps officials will play host here to directors of volunteer service projects from all 59 nations participating in corps programs.

The goals: Better programs and perhaps a multinational mix of volunteers.

The coming session is symbolic of the advancing sophistication that marks the Peace Corps today. After eight years, it may have lost a little of its original romantic glow, but it holds a very strong force of 11,000 volunteers (down from a peak of 13,000) and is refining its operations in major ways.

A professional poll taker's survey, incidentally, showed young people's interest in Peace Corps work holding steady over the past three years. The pollster told Peace Corps Director Joseph Blatchford:

"You are the remaining link of credibility between young

LEANER, TIGHTER

To help sustain that link, Washington operations are being made leaner and tighter under reorganization recommendations of a private management firm. After staff trimming, the goal is to produce faster decision-making so the headquarters is more quickly responsive to inquiries from the field forces.

As in the Peace Corps' much smaller domestic counterpart, the Vista program under OEO, a very strong trend has developed toward greater use of skilled people in volunteer work.

Right now, upwards of 85 per cent of the volunteer force are college graduates "generalists" who must be taught various skills needed by the host countries. The corps would like to get that figure down to around 70 per cent.

Skilled mechanics, craftsmen, farmers and other proven specialists (including lawyers) are wanted for an expanding role in the overseas force.

APPEALS TO UNIONS

Blatchford is appealing to unions to let workers serve abroad without loss of seniority. He is also asking business firms to allow middle-management types to take a sabbatical in the Peace Corps without prejudice to their careers.

The stress on skills goes farther still. The corps would like to mix in some mature, tested experts as "backstops," as an aid in overseas planning of programs before the volunteers move in. A few such specialists are involved now, but eventually as many as 1,000 might be pulled in.

To assist in attracting the needed skilled people, the corps seeks to use union men, farmers and similar skilled individuals to recruit among their own kind. And, on a pilot basis involving no more than 200 volunteers, the corps is experimenting with money allowances large enough to support their families overseas.

Despite the shift in emphasis toward a wider cross-section of Americans on the volunteer force, college graduates will continue to make up the bulk of it. For the most part, they have to acquire useful skills in the corps training.

Much weight is given, moreover, to handling projects in a way that permits the host lands in Asia, Africa, Latin America and elsewhere to develop their own volunteer services to take over when Peace Corps people leave.

Waterford Civic Center Near?

By DICK ROBINSON

Construction may start within a year on an estimated $2.5-million Waterford Township civic center on land bought almost 20 years ago for a cemetery.

This is the hope of Robert C. Dieball, township director of planning and zoning.

The first steps required to build a new township District Court, township hall, police station, auditorium and two other buildings on 19 acres on Crescent Lake near Tubbs Road have just been taken.

The Township Board has established a five-member building authority.

The authority will plan the area, sell revenue bonds to finance construction and rent the facilities and finally deed it—after maybe 30 years—to the township.

FACILITIES INADEQUATE

Seven years ago the site was set aside for a civic center, but no one pushed its development until less than a year ago when it was realized most township facilities were inadequate, according to Dieball. Added population is causing most of the trouble, Dieball explained.

The township now has about 65,000 residents. Some 93,000 are expected in 10 years and 127,000 by 1990.

"The township is not just a little rinky-dink backwoods place anymore," Dieball claimed.

"You can't expect the township clerk and supervisor to operate out of a shoe box anymore as they once did when they took township records home because there was no central office."

DEPARTMENTS SCATTERED

Further, Dieball says several township departments are scattered around Waterford 36 square miles and need to be centralized.

And they will be centralized in the next several years on a portion of 80 acres bought by former township supervisor Carlos Richardson from an ex-Clarkston wrestler for $15,000.

"We bought the land for a cemetery because we were running out of cemetery land," recalls Richardson, the founder of Richardson Farm Dairy.

But only a small portion of the farmland is now a township owned cemetery.

URGENT NEED

Dieball says there is an urgent need to construct new township buildings. "We should be building buildings now," he maintains.

He cited the following problems with current facilities:

- District Court. A new courthouse, possibly as part of a township hall, is the township's most urgent need.

The present court is located in the basement of Judge Kenneth Hempstead's office on Elizabeth Lake Road across from Pontiac State Hospital in Pontiac.

Hempstead rents the court to the township at more than $7,000 a year, according to Dieball. Yearly payments on a new court building would cost the township just a little more.

• Township hall and police station. Both are seriously overcrowded.

The building and planning departments were forced out of the township hall this year. The building department was moved to the utilities building on the civic center site and planning department to the old Waterford Center School.

Township clerk, supervisor and treasurer and the main fire station remain in the township hall.

Another move which scattered township offices was the shift of the recreation department from the Community Activities Inc. building to the former Waterford Center School.

Police headquarters is a small remodeled garage near the township hall.

• Warehouse. "We need a central warehouse because the township rents space all over town to store equipment, such as voting machines," Dieball said.

Yearly rent for one warehouse now being used by

FIRE STATION AT AIRPORT

A new site is now set for the township hall and police department but not for the central fire station, which is in township hall.

Dieball says township officials are now asking county officials if they can put the central fire station at Pontiac-Oakland Airport.

Then the township would probably sell the vacant township hall-police station land at M59 and Crescent Lake Road, Dieball predicts. It totals 3 1/2 acres.

"The way gas stations are paying for corner locations, that corner would probably bring up to $200,000," Dieball estimates.

"Another portion of that land could bring in $100,000 more."

BUILDINGS ON SITE

Three main buildings are already on the civic center site — utilities administration building and garage and main library. The library is scheduled for expansion.

Proposed buildings for the site and estimated cost are:

- District court, $100,000. It would probably be a wing of the township hall.

- Township Hall. It is tentatively planned as a three-story structure costing about $531,000.

- Police station, $540,000.

- Warehouse, $44,000.

- Parks and Recreation Building, $121,500.

- Civic auditorium to seat 500, $312,000.

The District Court will be constructed first, Dieball says.

Time schedules for the other buildings will be decided by the building authority working in conjunction with planning department, planning commission and consultants.

COST UNCERTAIN

As for the cost of the project to taxpayers, Dieball says that is uncertain until it is decided exactly what will be built and when.

But he said the most needed buildings could be built immediately without additional costs to taxpayers.

Buildings which will produce revenue will be financed by revenue bonds, he said. Others will be paid from the township's general fund.

"The project won't necessarily mean voters will have to approve additional tax millage," Dieball explains. "It depends on when the facilities are constructed, and it will be done in stages."

***

Libya Coup Seems in Red-Leaning Pattern

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Libya's coup d'état is another in a series of upheavals by army officers in the huge Arab world, which is moving it steadily closer to becoming a main arena of confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Arab world upheavals have been following a pattern, and from initial assessments, Libya's seems unlikely to be an exception.

The pattern involves overthrow of a conservative regime by army officers in the name of Arab unity, nationalism and a demand for "Arab socialism." The tendency then is to shift to the direction of the Communist world. It would seem paradoxical for army officers, traditionally rightist, to do this, but the factors involved cause it to make sense to the Arabs.

Among the factors are the existence of Israel in the heart of Arabdom, resentment of the West for making that possible, wounded pride, dreams of ancient Arab glories and a large measure of opportunism which causes Arab military men to reach in any direction for help, regardless of long-range risks. These leaders often see nothing illogical in accepting arms and other aid from the Russians while outlawing communism in their own countries.

ENORMOUS AREA

An enormous Arab area is involved in this progressive orientation toward Moscow. It includes Iraq, Syria, Yemen, Sudan, the United Arab Republic and Algeria.

Within grabbing distance now

may be a goal the Russians long have nurtured — a chain of friendly governments stretching along the Mediterranean and into the Arab East for almost 3,000 miles.

Historically, the Russians have pressed southward seeking warm weather ports and outlets to free them from a sense of isolation. Today that pressure is extended over a wide area. The goal, primarily, would be to counter what Moscow considers a western threat of encirclement with a sort of encirclement. The oil of Libya and the Arab East is largely incidental in this. The Russians do not need it. At the moment, Europe does.

For much of the cold war, the main arena was Europe. But battle lines there are more or less frozen. The current Moscow doctrine is that East Europe is the Soviet backyard. The West did not choose to dispute this in 1956, during the Hungarian rising, in 1961 during the building of the Berlin Wall, or in 1968, when a Czechoslovak reform movement was crushed by the Russians.

ANOTHER MATTER

The Middle East is quite another matter. Moscow began concentrating much of its attention there in 1955, helped the following year by the British, French and Israeli attack on the Suez Canal Zone. The Russians lavished arms on the Egyptian regime installed in 1952 by army officers under Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser after the overthrow of the corrupt monarchy. The 1954 developments set off a chain of events. Syria, influenced by arms-hungry army officers, veered far to the left. Iraq had a bloody upheaval in 1958 in which King Faisal was murdered, and since then a bewildering series of army coups and counter-coups.

Yemen's feudal monarchy was overturned in 1962. Once again army officers looked to the Big Bear for arms. Last May, a military coup in the big African Arab nation of Sudan overthrew the civilian regime. A military-dominated Sudanese government is flirting with Communist regimes and taking the now-familiar hostile posture toward the United States.

The Arabs seem to have gained little from all this except arms, war and turmoil. More than a billion dollars worth of Soviet arms went up in smoke in the Arabs' 1967 lightning defeat at the hands of Israel. Moscow now is spending $2 billion or more reequipping and retraining the Syrians and the Egyptians, apart from substantial other arms investments elsewhere in the Arab world. The Libyan coup might persuade Moscow that it has an unbeatable hand in the huge Middle East. If so, chances seem less than bright that there will be a big power agreement to settle the area down and make it less dangerous.

Integration Setups Stir Black, White Protests

Strife, Suits Stymie Some Schools in South

ATLANTA (AP) — White boycotts, black picket lines and federal lawsuits faced school systems in the South today as the new term's second day of classes began.

Angry protests against racial integration Tuesday included a fire-bombing and the padlocking of schools in one area.

White students staged large-scale to wholesale boycotts in some districts of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and North Carolina.

IN NORTH CAROLINA

Two pre-dawn fire bombs struck Irwin Avenue School in Charlotte, N.C., Tuesday. Classes opened anyway at the predominantly Negro junior high school which had to absorb many pupils of lower grades under an integration plan.

Police reported no arrests in the bombings, but 15 Negroes were arrested later in Charlotte after a demonstration blocked traffic. They were protesting an integration plan that closed their school and six other predominantly black schools, and called for 4,200 black students to reach classes elsewhere by bus.

Alabama's former Gov. George C. Wallace, a third-party presidential candidate in 1968, urged Alabama parents to "march on their schools" and demand freedom-of-choice attendance plans for their children.

In Alabama's rural Choctaw County, only 482 of an expected 2,300 white pupils showed up for newly integrated classes.

LAWSUITS IN WORKS

The Department of Justice, meanwhile, prepared lawsuits against several Georgia school districts. Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said the districts had reneged on voluntary integration plans.

A five-man squad of civil rights division lawyers moved into the state to initiate court action. Suits were filed late Tuesday against three districts.

Other federal attorneys were at work in New Orleans on several Louisiana school cases. One of these involved Ascension Parish.

In East Ascension, schools were padlocked at Gonzales and in other areas Monday night to prevent the opening of classes under court integration orders.

LIMITED OPERATIONS

Schools were closed or operated at limited levels Tuesday

throughout the eastern part of the parish. There were white pickets at several schools, protesting integration decrees that threw out freedom-of-choice plans.

There were white pupil boycotts in Florida's Manatee and Hillsborough counties in protest over integration plans which in some schools left whites in the minority.

IN TENNESSEE'S CANNON COUNTY school bus drivers walked out demanding higher wages and in Lawrence County the teachers struck over a pay raise issue.

Black pupils staged "freedom classes" on the grounds of a suburban Atlanta school which they occupied for two days last week to protest the closing of the school to achieve integration.

In Florence, S.C., about 150 Negro children and parents vowed to conduct classes on the lawn until the school board opens their closed school.

ABOUT 70 WHITE PARENTS

appeared at the Jefferson County school board offices in Birmingham, Ala., protesting that Irondale Primary School — an all-black facility scheduled for integration — was unfit for use because of outdoor toilets, broken windows and inadequate lunchroom facilities.

County Budget: Money Yes, Staffing No

More money instead of more salaries are yet to be determined. A $500,000 contingent fund has been proposed for expenses not now visualized. The personnel unit recommended $500 raises for most county employees and raises of $1,500 to $3,000 for salaried administrators. Increases of $1,500 were proposed for elected officials other than supervisors.

The committee has approved a new position, director of aviation at $21,500 a year, replacing the former classification of airport manager. The former Oakland-Pontiac Airport manager made $12,500 a year. The position is vacant.

Dr. Bernard Berman, county health director, would get a $3,000 yearly boost to $33,000 under terms of the committee's action. County Budget Director Leo Halfpenny would be upped $3,000 to $21,500. A $2,500 raise is proposed for Department of Public Works director T. J. Alexander. Alexander then would make $27,500, or $6,000 more than his elected counterpart in the drain office.

$2,000 FOR AUDITORS

Both full-time auditors, Daniel T. Murphy and Robert Lilly, would get $2,000 yearly raises. The raises would give Murphy, as chairman, an annual income of $33,500 and Lilly $26,000. Corporation Counsel Robert Allen would get a $2,000 yearly increase to $26,000.

FLEXIBLE SALARIES.

The salaries proposed are flexible to $20,000 a year. Plunkett reportedly hopes such salaries would allow him to keep experienced men on the job. Plunkett himself is proposed for a $2,000 raise, to $26,000.

In the health department, provision is made to take over some positions currently financed through federal programs. These include dentistry and tubercular workers. Federal backing is due to lapse in both areas, Witherup said.

The two vacant positions of deputy medical directors have been jacked $3,000 to $27,000 in the hopes of attracting qualified physicians. One position has been vacant five years. The other two, the personnel director reported.

NEW DEPUTIES

Among Sheriff Department requests, new deputies were pared from seven to four but two new detectives, to form the nucleus of a narcotic squad, were allowed.

Deputies are paid a top rate of $10,000 a year, however, their salaries are under negotiations. The detectives would get $10,600 each a year.

Witherup said the increases were made nearly mandatory by like increases in surrounding municipalities and in private industry.

Welfare Children Called Prone to Psychiatric Ills

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of New York researchers reported Tuesday "profoundly shocking" figures suggesting that psychiatric impairment affects almost twice as many children in families on welfare — including whites, Negroes and Spanish-speaking persons — compared with their counterparts in the general population.

The team, headed by Dr. Thomas S. Langer, now of Columbia University, said that one of the most shocking results of their study — and one requiring confirmation by other investigators — affects Negro children. They said the evidence strongly suggests that as Negro children age, regardless of whether they are on welfare or not, they have the highest risk of impairment, and by age 18 wind up with the highest proportion of emotionally impaired youths of any group.

Langer, who is white, in reporting the findings to the annual convention of the American Psychological Association, declared with respect to the Negro prevalence of psychiatric impairment among two samples of 1,000 children each selected at random from homes in the general community of Manhattan or from homes of welfare families receiving government aid for dependent children.

The children chosen were aged 6 to 18.

Depression-Era Pioneers Form Alaska's Farming Backbone

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The U.S. government first tried to develop agriculture in an Alaska valley by bringing in some 200 families to colonize the land. Few of the original colonists are left now—nearly 40 years later—but they've made it something of a success.)

By TOM BRILEY
PALMER, Alaska (AP) — Only the hardest lasted long enough to call the controversial Depression-bred colonization of the Matanuska Valley a success.

The 200 families brought here in May 1935 were greeted by the strong, cool winds which blow continually in the spring and a freakish streak of rain.

They came into a wilderness in a strange land.

Before the summer was over 26 families gave up, and the

And the same spirit which kept them here is making faintly prosperous the only real stronghold of agriculture in Alaska.

Clair Patten, who came here with her husband, recalls, "It was a bad Depression. We had nothing. We had no hope of getting anything."

It was folks in that conditions whom the federal government selected to populate a colony in the valley, which starts some 40 miles northeast of Anchorage at the head of Kuik Arm of Cook Inlet.

The government's effort started with selection of families in the north-central area—Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota—who presumably would be best able to cope with conditions here.

Only the healthy and those with some education were picked. The age range was 25 to 35; but this was stretched.

The government provided transportation, 40 acres of land and a house, giving the settlers 30 years and low interest to pay for them.

Ray Rebarchek, who was 26 when he came here from Lake of the Woods County in Minnesota, said, "It was no good there. That's what I wanted, something better. They told me not to expect too much. But I was happy. I lived in a back-miles northeast of Anchorage at the head of Kuik Arm of Cook Inlet."

"I never dreamed it was as good as what we saw when we got here," he went on. "The wildflowers were amazing. The later, Max Sherrod produced a temperature produce them.

Rebarchek is retiring now and will devote more time to his fishing and bowling.

Vegetables grow that way up GETTING MECHANIZED — Some who are a bit younger are going ahead, and they have been propelled into the age of now is ready to sell his 80 acres, plus buildings, for $40,000.

The valley prospered during World War II, when the military moved men into the Territory of Alaska by the thousands, and they ate everything the valley could produce.

SMALL MARKET

Before the war the market simply had not been big enough. And after the war the valley, with its high costs, had trouble competing with products shipped from Seattle.

A cooperative formed by the settlers was a help, and it continues in the form of Matanuska Milk, which has as its main job the marketing of valley dairy products.

The Matanuska Valley, with 28,000 acres cleared and 15,000 in cultivation, accounts for 75 per cent of the state's agricultural production. About the only other agriculture in the 49th state is a little farming in the Tanana Valley outside Fairbanks and the raising of beef cattle and sheep on Kodiak Island and in the Aleutians.

DIFFERENT VIEW — Bill Lents, at 63, sees it a bit differently: "It seems as though times have changed. There's big money everywhere. Farmers have no incentive to work at it."

Lents agrees that "no doubt" the colonization was a success: "Anybody who went after it didn't get hungry. We raised six kids off the farm here."

He had a dairy until 1965, when it "got to be too much during the Labor Day holiday weekend, and 15,000 persons He turned to raising hay but

Bridge Was Busy

MACKINAW CITY (AP) — More than 50,000 vehicles crossed the Mackinac Bridge during the Labor Day holiday weekend, and 15,000 persons crossed the bridge on foot.

DAIRY FARMER — Leonard Moffitt settled in Alaska's Matanuska Valley in 1937, when he was 17. Now he owns the valley's largest dairy. The barn behind him was built by the valley's first settlers.

Do People Pay Mental Price Adapting to Obnoxious Noises?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The purpose of this scientific experiment with people was to find out if they pay a mental price for adapting themselves to obnoxious noises.

If a mind-price is involved, city people must be putting out for it constantly — assuming at least some elements in their rising noise pollution are obnoxious to them.

Of that, there is doubt and this required New York scientists, Drs. David C. Glass, Jerome E. Singer and Lucy N. Friedman to find a truly obnoxious noise.

The scientists made separate tape recordings of (1) two persons conversing in Spanish; (2) one person speaking in machine mimeographing; (4) a desk calculator calculating; (5) a typewriter pounding away.

JARRING SOUND

These tapes they superimposed on one another on another tape and, when it was played, the noise could be guaranteed to jar any ear.

This tape they played individually, repeatedly, and under varying conditions to 45 college girls.

While subject to all this, they performed such simple mind-tasks as adding two-digit figures, picking out the A's in a list of words and, at the end, taking tests that assessed what mind-prices they were paying, if any.

When the girls adapted while able to anticipate when the noise would come on and go off, they paid no measureable mind-price.

But when they adapted while being unable to predict, they performed their tasks with less efficiency and were less able to take frustrations with equanimity.

Sex Education Endorsement 'Qualified' by Catholic Bishop

LANSING (AP) — The Most Rev. Alexander Zaleski, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Lansing, has made a qualified endorsement of formal educational programs in family living and sex.

"The unwillingness or inability of many parents to fulfill their responsibilities," Bishop Zaleski said Tuesday "is one very important reason that has necessitated public programs in this area."

Ideally, Christian family life should provide a foundation for sound sexual development, he said, adding:

"However, the ideal is not always met in practice. Many parents, because of feelings of inadequacy or through rejection of their responsibilities, do not fulfill their obligations in this regard."

Many parents, Bishop Zaleski said, feel that the right to educate their children in the norms of sexuality is being usurped.

"Any educational program in human sexuality should involve the parents of students from its very beginning," he added.

"It would be wise to begin any sex education program with parents and teachers. Any program of this nature should have prior approval of the parents who should also have the right to attend these classes or withdraw their children if they see fit."

PRIMARY RIGHT

"It cannot be emphasized enough that the primary right and responsibility for education of children belongs to their parents."

Bishop Zaleski said the recommended state guidelines for such instruction are generally, praiseworthy in purpose and content.

However, he said there should be serious reservations about the training of teachers and the all-inclusive bibliography of all materials available without regard to quality or acceptability.

Bishop Zaleski also questioned a proposal for an integrated curriculum, under which sex education would be taught as a part of the entire school curriculum where possible, in classes such as physical education, biology and social studies.

18 Male Students Move Into Dorm at Mercy College

DETROIT (AP) — More than 1,000 coeds at a small, Catholic, formerly all-girls school in northwest Detroit are watching closely as 18 of the school's 128 male students move into a new men's dormitory.

The men's residence at Mercy College, Bethesda Hall, a two-story, yellow brick building once a nuns' residence, has been clocked at 30 seconds from the girl's residence hall against one minute from the chow lines. Some girls said this might give them an advantage in vying for the men's attention.

Last year the men had to stay in a makeshift residence consisting of four cramped rooms above the campus garage.

Bedsada Hall has 22 single rooms, a small living room and a recreation area. The men will meet Thursday to establish house rules and make the crucial decision whether to allow girls in the living room.

The first male students invaded the Catholic girls' college five years ago.

A handful of coeds got a glimpse of the new men's quarters Tuesday. After standing uncertainly in the hall, the girls stepped into the living room where a poker game was underway.

Catholic Priest Is Wed Sunday

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest who has asked to be relieved of his priestly vows married a college coed Sunday in a Protestant church ceremony.

The Rev. Roger F. Baglin and Miss Angela A. Borzillary, both of Rochester, were married in St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Miss Borzillary is a junior at the State University College at Buffalo.

Only a few days ago the former Miss Borzillary brought to the social department of the Rochester newspapers a story of her impending wedding and a photograph of herself in a bridal gown.

The story, printed in the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle, made no mention that her husband was a priest, although it said he was a graduate of St. Bernard's Seminary. A check by the Rochester Times-Union uncovered the fact he was a clergyman.

Father Baglin, 34, was named by the Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, bishop of the Rochester diocese, in 1967 as field coordinator of the Spanish Apostolate in Rochester. He served until the late summer of last year, when he enrolled at Syracuse University and later earned a master of arts degree.

Should Woman Be Buried Next to Sister's Husband?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Shortly after my husband passed away, my sister (who is two years younger than I) expressed a desire to purchase the grave plot next to hers for herself when her time comes. She went to places when he died. She says it will give her "peace of mind" to be buried next to him.

She has a grave in another cemetery with our parents, but now she has changed her mind and wants to be buried next to my husband. (Her husband was buried at sea.)

I have a plot next to my husband's for myself when my time comes, but the one on the other side is still for sale.

My sister and I have always gotten along very well, and she says she will not do anything against my wishes, but I cannot for the life of me understand why she needs to be buried on the other side of MY husband for HER "peace of mind."

Since that plot will not be available indefinitely, I must make a decision soon. If I say no, I'll be hurting my sister, and if I say yes, I'll be hurting myself. What should I do?

ANONYMOUSLY YOURS

DEAR ANONYMOUSLY: Since it would appear that your sister goes "to pieces" more easily than you, say yes, and hope that when her time comes, she will rest in peace.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a divorced man for almost five years. I am also divorced. He is very good to me, but has been a playboy all his life, and it is difficult for me to believe that he will settle down and be a good husband.

He says he loves me and has asked me to marry him several times, and although I am sure I am the Number One Girl in his life I have reason to believe he cheats on me. When I'm at his apartment, I keep finding evidence of other women, such as cards and notes signed, "All my love." He claims he can't help it if women chase him.

I tell him he wouldn't have that problem if he didn't encourage them. I do love him, Abby, but I'm wondering if I should marry him feeling the way I do.

DEAR DISTRICTING: A woman who loves a man cannot trust during the courtship doesn't know what misery is until she marries him.

DEAR ABBY: I am 28, and very much in love with Lena, who is 34. I want to marry her, but the problem is my mother. She says Lena is too old for me. I have been trying for four months to get my mother to meet Lena, but she is so opposed to her on the grounds of her age that she refuses to even make her acquaintance, to give her a chance.

My mother is a fine woman in many ways, Abby, but she is very stubborn. She says if I marry Lena she will not come to the wedding.

DEAR NO KOOK: If you have to ask ME, you are not ready to marry Lena—or any other woman.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 70 years old and have lived long enough to know that people who mistrust every other person are not to be trusted themselves.

Very truly yours,

VICTOR IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR VICTOR: To which I can only add, "AMEN!"

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who I am sure does not hear half of what is going on, but she absolutely refuses to admit that she is deaf! Everyone yells at her, and even then they have to repeat what they've said two or three times.

I once mentioned that I thought she should have her hearing tested and she exploded in anger. Why is it a disgrace to wear a hearing aid? People who can't see are perfectly willing to go to an eye doctor and get themselves fitted with glasses.

Now, what do you do with a stubborn one like that?

CONCERNED RELATIVE

DEAR RELATIVE: Until this relative is willing to admit that she has a hearing loss, you may as well talk to the wall. There are none so deaf as those who will not hear.

DEAR ABBY: Interesting that a recent correspondent's brother with "girlish ways" was not permitted to express them, and then became an alcoholic.

We allowed my younger brother to "express himself" in what we thought were harmless ways at Halloween, masquerades, and school plays. He is now 22, and the best dressed girl on the block! (At least in private and on his solitary walks in the evening.)

It is incredible! He doesn't just roff up his trouser legs and use a little lipstick. He goes in for girdles, bras, heels, wigs and every type of make-up conceivable. It's gotten so that now I borrow things from him.

All we can do now is to protect him from detection and social embarrassment. It's all very puzzling, but we live with it and try to understand and be sympathetic to our "Barbara." "HER" OLDER SISTER

DEAR ABBY: After my fiancé and I sent out our wedding invitations we received word from relatives "requesting" that certain other people (usually their relatives) be invited, too. As a favor to the first person who made such a request we sent an invitation to her son.

Now it appears that we failed to send one to her daughter, too, and the whole family is up in arms and taking sides. The fact that the mother failed to mention her daughter's existence is denied, and now we are made out to be the ogres.

We've sent "last minute" invitations and have written letters of "apology" explaining the oversight, and hopefully things are being smoothed out. But where do people get the nerve to call and demand invitations for their relatives whom we do not even know?

UPSTATE N.Y.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JESS: Reforms always come from below. No man with four aces ever asks for a new deal.

DEAR ABBY: Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, announced Tuesday she would marry Neil R. Ballou, a London banker, this month.

The 32-year-old daughter of Prince Paul of Yugoslavia was recently divorced from New York dress manufacturer Howard Ozenburg, by whom she has two children.

Ozenburg was married recently to Maureen McCluskey, daughter of New York interior designer Ellen Lehman McCluskey.

Claims Villanova Professor

Interracial Marriages Successful

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marriages between Negro men and white women are twice as stable as all-black marriages and slightly more stable than all-white marriages, says a sociologist.

Prof. Thomas T. Monahan of Villanova University told the American Sociological Association Tuesday he bases his conclusion on a study of marriage and divorce statistics in Iowa between 1940 and 1967. He said the study covered approximately 8,000 interracial marriages.

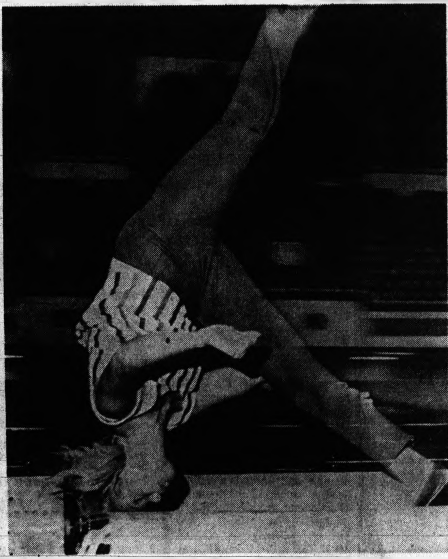

Monahan said he also found that matches between white husbands and Negro wives were more stable than all-Negro marriages, but less stable than all-white unions or marriages between Negro men and white women.

Monahan noted the findings "contradict previous public opinion that interracial marriages don't have a chance of succeeding," but he declined to make any long range interpretation on the data from just one state.

"Is Iowa representative?" I don't know. This is a problem since many states don't identify races of marriage partners."

Although the Negro-white marriages were more enduring than the average nonmixed marriages, the study found them less enduring than marriages in which both partners were oriental, Catholic or Mexican.

Tax Structure Enters Stock Sale Picture

By ANNE TAYLOR
AP News Feature

Dear Miss Taylor: My husband recently retired and the company he worked for has consolidated all their companies and holdings and have gone on the stock exchange and issued new stocks. We own some of these stocks and stand to make a nice profit on them.

However, we do not plan to hold these stocks for long. What should be the treatment of the profit on these stocks for tax purposes? If we wait six months (two and then apply the regular before selling will this help the tax figures?

Mrs. A. H., Wilmington, Del.
Dear Mrs. A. H.: The tax treatment of these stocks should be the same as it is for stocks acquired in any way. If you hold them for less than six months then you must pay taxes as if your profits were ordinary income. If you hold them six months or more, then any profit would be taxed as capital gains.

The capital gains tax means profit on these stocks for tax purposes? If we wait six months (two and then apply the regular tax rate to that half. Your maximum tax would be 50 percent of that half or, in other words, 25 percent of the total profit.

If your profits were treated as ordinary income you would, of course, have to pay taxes on the full amount. Depending upon your tax bracket, this could mean a big difference in the amount you pay. It could mean very little also if your tax bracket is no more than 25 percent.

Generally speaking, my advice is that you and others involved in similar situations hold your stocks for at least six months in order to earn the capital gains tax treatment. In fact, you may already have owned them this long.

Remember: If you owned stock in the company before it went on the exchange — and merely received new certificates — then your ownership dates back to the day you obtained the old stock.

Why Grow Old?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Hairweaving is one of the most interesting techniques to appear on the modern scene. In time it may well become more popular than any of the other methods for refurbishing the bald or balding head.

I decided to have a firsthand look to see just what goes on so that I could tell you. With this in mind I visited with Nancy Mace at her Hairweaving Salon in New York City. Miss Mace is an extremely warm, outgoing, vital person. She is highly skilled and creative. She also has boundless enthusiasm for her work and a sympathetic understanding of what it means to her clients. She had been in the beauty business for many years.

Hairweaving has advantages. It is painless. It looks entirely natural. It is impossible to detect any artificiality. Best of all you do not have to take it off. You can sleep in it and swim in it, and shampoo it.

FAIRLY EXPENSIVE
On the other hand it is fairly expensive. (from about $200 to $600) depending on how much is needed, and there is some upkeep. As the natural hair grows out the weave must be tightened every few months at a cost of around $25. Also, so far as I can discover, there are not many highly trained operators yet.

Those available are usually to be found in a few large cities. Let me tell you how it is done. It's fascinating! The hair is parted and with a chain stitch the needle moves in and out of the natural hair, close to the scalp, forming a base, or ridge. The needle is threaded with a fine hairlike nylon thread. It is to this ridge that the false hair is attached. How many ridges are needed depends on how thin the hair is. A person may require only one or two, or many more.

Nancy Mace refuses to do a weave if she feels that she cannot do a perfect job which will appear natural. For instance, if a woman has an extremely receding hairline it may be impossible to cover the first ridge. Also, a person must have enough hair to work with. Nancy says she can cover a perfectly bald head if there is some hair at the sides.

When the weave job is finished the natural hair is brushed and blended in with the artificial hair (for an entirely natural appearance. Two men were in the salon when I was there and it would not have occurred to me that there was anything artificial about their fine heads of hair.

A woman was in the process of hairweaving. She was bald on top of her head, a few inches back from her forehead. I asked her if she had worn wigs and why she gave them up and she said, "I had to remove them at night and couldn't bear to have my husband see me look that way."

Soap Apple Prize May Encourage Apple Polishing

With schools reopening, a New Jersey Manufacturer is giving boys and girls an opportunity to win free apples that they can present to their teachers—but these particular apples are soap.

MEM Company, known for its English Leather men's toiletries, has produced a shiny red and yellow soap apple that would make an ideal gift for a youngster to give to his teacher. The make-believe fruit, imported from England, is packaged in a box with ABC and cartoon illustrations.

One hundred of the soap apples will be awarded to 100 boys or girls who write the best, short statement, "Why I like my teacher."

Entries should be sent to MEM Teacher Contest, Northvale, N.J., 07647 no later than Sept. 21, 1969. Winners will be selected according to originality of their statement.

Four equal notches resembling teeth first should be cut ¼-inch from one end and turned in for the bottom. This will be glued to four popstick sticks forming the base. Glue popstick sticks, side by side, to the outside of the tube. These holders can be painted or decorated in many ways for a variety of effects.

DEAR POLLY—One of the girls in our office made scissors holders out of toilet tissue tubes and gave them for Christmas gifts. I have really enjoyed mine and could use one in every room in the house.

Linda Maxine Meek and Gibson William Mathewson were married Saturday in St. Paul's United Methodist of Paul's, Rochester. Their wedding ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. Wilson Sprekel and Robert Wilkins who served the couple as honor attendants.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Meek of North Fieldstone Drive, Avon Township was gown in satin and lace with valance ruffles. She carried a bouquet of Stephanotis, orchids and baby's breath.

Lunch Buckets Are Decorative, Useful Pieces

Join the lunch bucket brigade in a decorative way. Turn an old-fashioned lunch box into a roomy purse or sewing box.

First, clean the tin surface of the box and paint it a bright color. Then choose a colorful quilted cotton print to line the lunch box.

Cut out the quilted fabric in separate pieces to fit the bottom and four sides of the box. Trim top edges of the lining with rickrack or cotton bell fringe.

Glue quilted fabric inside the rounded top of the box in one long piece. This padded lining can serve as a pin and needle cushion if you use the box as a sewing kit.

COORDINATE TRIM

To coordinate the lining trim with the outside of the box, glue rickrack or fringe around the edges of the box opening.

OU Course Moving to New Setting

Oakland University's Continuum Center for Women begins its fall series of the popular Investigation Program on Monday. There will be a program meeting every day for two weeks at the picturesque club house on Oakland's Meadow Brook Estate — the perfect place to contemplate important dimensions in one's life.

The Center was established in 1964 at Oakland University through a Kellogg Foundation grant for the purpose of developing programs that would enable women to deal more constructively with normal life problems.

The Investigation Program, the Center's major activity, was designed to meet a woman's needs with the purpose of stopping her world just long enough to enable a glance inward, and outward — allow her time to make the best possible decision about her place in contemporary life.

It helps the woman who says, "I'm looking for something that would seem terribly important to me — creative, challenging, meaningful and helpful to myself and others."

This program is an approach to self evaluation and life planning comprised of several major dimensions which include psychological testing, structured group interaction, relationships with staff and peers, and information-gathering related to educational, volunteer and employment alternatives.

The late Alfred Wilson used this building for a club house. Located on the grounds of Oakland University's Meadow Brook Estate, it will be the meeting place for OU's Continuum Center for Women programs, beginning Monday.

Secret of High Rank in Club Work

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

For those women whose last child goes off to school this year, a warning. Even now the committees are forming and your excuse of "Oh, I'd LOVE to, but I have little Karin at home..." will no longer be valid.

Membership drives will be under way soon and if you have any hopes of escaping, you must begin making plans now. A hint. Knowing all the words to "I Get Along Without You Very Well," does not work.

There is the possibility that you are actually itching to get into the thick of things in the club and organization world and you are looking forward to the coming school term as a time of freedom from hearth, etc. If you yearn for entry into the land of good works and intellectual pursuits, may I be the first to offer lots of luck and some tips.

The important thing is to prepare yourself for the social time after the meeting when everyone drinks punch and talks a lot.

A JOINER

If you have been looking forward to this kind of life, then you must have already made some preparations. That is to say, you belong to at least two book clubs.

Anyone hoping to make it during Punch Time obviously has a season ticket to something besides the basketball games. (If yours is for the String Quartet Society, you are officer material.)

If you are sincerely interested in The Arts (and who would dare accuse you of being insincere?), the members calling on you at home will recognize this as you have an African mask hanging on the dining room wall, right next to the Picasso reproduction.

On the coffee table you should have a reproduction of the famous lions that guard the doors of the New York Public Library. (If you don't have this sort of thing now, don't despair. You can get all sorts of important stuff through the mail order houses. Look through the

This year is the year for digging out all those old things you were going to give to the Salvation Army. Old-style dresses are in, and one of the neglected accessories of the past few years — the hat — is back on the scene.

White-Washed

Summer is being "white-washed," and one of the fashion accessories to undergo the treatment is shoes. White sandals and square-toed, flat-heeled pumps are, as grandma used to say, the cat's meow.

Parking Lots for West Huron Okayed

Several city parking lots will be built along West Huron to help the businesses along the route.

The city's legal staff was authorized to begin lot-site purchases at last night's City Commission meeting — the shortest meeting in the memories of commissioners, taking just 30 minutes.

Need for the additional parking lots became evident when the State Highway Department informed the city that all on-street parking is to be eliminated by next September. Earlier this year parking was banned on the state highway (M59) in the downtown area.

Costs of the lots will be met through assessment to the property owners who will benefit from the parking facilities. The number and locations of the lots are yet to be determined.

ACTION CITED

Commissioner Robert C. Irwin, whose District 2 includes the West Huron area, said, "This is a fine example of a city working with businessmen to aid the entire community."

The commission also was informed the Grand Trunk Western Railroad seeks the permanent closing of West Boulevard at the tracks. In negotiations, the city has been trying to retain rights that would allow some sort of bridge or tunnel for auto traffic in the area.

The railroad has extensive expansion plans for the area involving increased services in shipping General Motors products.

A meeting to resolve city and railroad conflicts was requested.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved a cooperative program with the Pontiac School District and County Probate Court. An office is to be established at 87 Franklin and manned by a citizens committee which will provide services to juveniles who have come before the courts. A juvenile caseworker, paid by the city and school district, will work with and counsel the youths.

- Deferred for one week adoption of an ordinance on fencing in the city. The ordinance will prescribe legal fences. Currently residents desiring front-yard fences must obtain a permit from the Planning Commission because fences are not described in existing ordinances.

- Rezoned 467 N. Perry from light to heavy commercial to allow construction of a Midas muffler shop.

- Set a public hearing for 8 p.m. Sept. 16 on an assessment roll for a water main on Lebeigh from Highwood to Laurel. Cost was set at $7,200, with $5,850 to be assessed.

• Honored by resolution, the late Vernon K. Archer, who served on the City Board of Review from 1961-67; and Edward Wright Jr., who won a silver medal in the Deaf Olympics held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Donations from the community helped pay Wright's costs of participating in the games.

Detroit Police Outburst by Black Backing Gribbs Jolts Episcopalians

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Police Officers Association (DPOA) has announced its support of Wayne County Sheriff Roman S. Gribbs in the upcoming election.

The DPOA made the announcement in a front-page editorial of its 8,000-circulation monthly magazine, Tuebor.

"We figured he'd be best for the police department and for the city as a whole," president Carl Parsell said.

The DPOA, unlike a companion group of white homeowners' business and police groups, the Real Detroit Committee, did not endorse Common Councilwoman Mary Beck, the "law and order" candidate in the city's primary election.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — An emotional outburst by black clergy members, embittered at an association at the Episcopal Church's convention in the up-convention, late Tuesday night threw the meeting into troubled uncertainty.

There were indications it would reconsider.

"I'm sick, I'm sick of you," cried the Rev. Canon Julius F. Carter of Pittsburgh, "from the south to the north to the east to the west, I'm sick of you."

His voice at the breaking point, he charged that the convention "just finished a crucifixion. You've crucified every black clergyman in this church."

INDEFINITE SUBSTITUTE
His outcry came after delegates shunted a measure for direct funding of the Black Economic Development Conference, and put in its place an indefinite substitute.

There was an immediate spate of parliamentary maneuvers for further consideration of the matter before a final decision.

A special session for it was set Wednesday morning.

Earlier, two runaway American soldiers, declaring their refusal to serve in the Vietnam war, turned up at the convention, asking it for sanctuary.

The world's wild whooping crane population has reached a record total of 50 birds, two more than a year ago. There were only 15 in 1941.

Thai Pullout Talks Begin

BANGKOK (AP) — Thailand and the United States opened formal talks today on the "gradual reduction" of the 49,000 American servicemen stationed in Thailand. But the number of troops to be withdrawn was not discussed.

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said after the meeting that he and U.S. Ambassador Leonard Under discussed only "political principles and the relations between the two countries."

Details of withdrawals will be worked out at subsequent meetings, he said. The next is scheduled late next week.

Some banks pay you high interest on your savings. And make you pay it all back for checking.

Sad but true, but it can happen if you have $500 in savings in an ordinary bank, and you're checking there, too.

Figure it out: You spend an average of $25 a year on checking charges, just what your $500 in savings earns for you at 5%. Which nets you exactly nothing for your trouble.

But not with Commonwealth's 5% Golden Passbook.

We pay you the highest possible bank interest in Detroit and give you a free checking account. You pay no service charges, and the only balance you have to keep is enough to cover the checks you write.

That's like having an extra $500 earning interest. So if you have $500 in a Golden Passbook, you've actually got $1000 in earning power.

Yet your money is handy. You can withdraw your savings during the first ten days of any interest quarter. (Or with just 90 days' notice in between times.)

Switching your funds is easy. Just bring in your present passbook, certificates or other funds. We'll handle the rest.

After all, anyone who can save $500 or more these days deserves a free checking account. And that's what you get from the bank that pays you more than interest.

New Oceanography Gear Rarely Fully Passes Navy's Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—with it that prevents it from doing what its manufacturer said it would?"

"Yes," he replied, "either a repair or an adjustment is necessary, for the most part... something that should have been done by the manufacturer or."

$250,000 IN GEAR

NOIC, initially a Navy operation but now more widely based, has a $1.3-million annual budget and a staff of 60. It examines $250,000 worth of oceanographic equipment a month, produced by fewer than 100 companies.

"I would hate to think how much defective gear the Navy accepted before we began this operation four years ago," one official said. "Frankly, all of it may have been defective." Some failed in tests before

Of the other failures, the spokesman was asked: "Are you saying that every piece of oceanographic equipment you test here has something wrong being installed on ships and some afterward.

NOIC ENCOUNTERS:

An example of situations NOIC encounters: A measuring system, part of a $400,000 contract, was nine months late in delivery. When it arrived, it was damaged because it had been improperly packed, and the units had to be returned.

PARTS MISSING

Three months later, the factory returned one of the units—with parts missing. Later the parts were supplied upon request, but manuals for assembly and use had not arrived within two weeks of the date it was to go aboard ship.

One unit of the system was run for a week, at the end of which it was inoperative.

Excerpts from a letter from NOIC to the Navy in another case:

"Before an acceptance test of the unit could be performed, these options had to be accomplished."

"The gearing in the depth channel of the recorder was very noisy and had to be adjusted."

"The guide rod that supports the chart paper was loose in the case and had to be reinstalled and secured in place."

"The gears in the salinity channel were not meshing; these had to be readjusted."

"The cabling for the sensor input connections in the rear of the recorder were reversed and improperly marked as listed in the instruction manual."

A smaller example: Long screws instead of short screws, not the ones who decide whether the company is capable of making it."

When tightened, they "cut right through the plastic coating on the capacitors and blew up the whole power supply."

The failure rate is increasing, officials agree, but they give differing reasons.

One suggested the reason is that instrumentation is more complicated. Government, he said, has "unique requirements, special demands" and the manufacturer has limited research and development facilities.

Part of the defects, he added, are "due to lack of official continuity. The people who evaluate a company's ability to produce are not responsible for its capability or output. The people who must use the equipment are not the ones who decide whether the company is capable of making it."

POOR WORKMANSHIP

A staff member of the U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office said much workmanship is "pathetic" because of lack of industry quality control. Furthermore, he said, 15 per cent of companies supplying Navy oceanographic equipment have a "consistently low performance rate, but we have to take the low bidder even if we know he can't perform."

Capt. T. K. Treadwell, commander of the Navy office, said: "There is nothing unique instrumentation or nuclear subs."

"We face the same problem with cars, television sets and refrigerators... If we could just bring back some of the pride in craftsmanship, the element of responsibility that we used to have, most of the necessary improvements in quality could be achieved at no cost."

But in the absence of such a revolution, Treadwell turns to more immediately practical approaches.

WHAT'S IT WORTH?

"What we have to ask ourselves in oceanography—and presumably in other government procurement areas where the things such as data-gathering rather than risk of life are involved—is how much is really worth?"

"It looks as if we could resonably spend 25-50 per cent more for hardware without pricing ourselves out of the market," he said.

Treadwell also said he believed the NOIC program was encouraging higher quality but that there ought to be changes in procurement procedures as well.

"There ought to be some flexibility in the low-bid principle and on the economic factors that pressure us to place contracts in certain areas. The principles are helpful, but we balk at not being able to override a decision if it appears to us likely to lead to catastrophic result."

Delinquents, Aged Infirm Lumped for Mutual Aid

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — Two groups of society's castoffs—juvenile delinquents and the aged mentally infirm—have been brought together at Alton State Hospital in an experiment one man thinks can help both.

J. Robert Russo, an associate professor of psychology at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville, bases his belief on the good feeling a person gets from helping.

These involved are 20 teenage boys from Pere Marquette State Boys' Camp, a minimum-security reformatory, and elderly patients at Alton State.

All Russo asks the boys to do is help the hospital staff, to work with the patients however they can.

TWO PART CONCEPT

"The basic concept has two parts," the 35-year-old professor explained. "The first part is that human beings behave in a way they're expected to behave. Expect a guy to be irresponsible and he'll be irresponsible. Expect a guy to be responsible and you increase the likelihood that he will be."

"The other half has to do with the positive feeling a person gets about himself when he knows he's helped someone else. It's a normal human response. We want to increase personal responsibility plus provide the positive feeling of helping another human being."

"This is going to improve the self-concept of the delinquent. Up to this point in his life, the delinquent has been told by other people he's no good. Our whole correctional process is meant to tell him this. He's removed from society and exiled."

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare's office of education granted $9,992 for a one-year experiment. It's a token, really. As far as the office of education knows, Russo said, this is the first experiment of its kind. It began in July.

SIMPLE BEGINNINGS

It began simply. Russo just asked the 50 kids at Pere Marquette for volunteers. Fewer than 10 refused. The boys already were being transported to the hospital, located about 20 miles from St. Louis, to do menial jobs in the kitchen and laundry. Russo just changed their jobs.

Part of the experiment is to see what effect the casual company of youth has on the patients. The boys were to act as nurses' aides, more or less, helping care for the patients and keep them company.

But the youths quickly decided for themselves they wanted to do more.

They learned the operational framework of the hospital and worked within it to get from those they considered less seriously ill to those they felt really needed their attention.

STIMULATING EFFECT

"I thought it would be very depressing to them (the kids), but apparently it hasn't," said Wilma Kincaide, ward nurse. "I think it's helped the patients. They all tend to get like each other because they're old. I think youth stimulates them." Ask the kids why they took on the responsibility and they have difficulty explaining. Their first answer usually is cynical or glib, but not honest. Press them and they shrug their shoulders or say "I don't know."

"It's easier than the laundry," Terry, 15, murmured. He's in for sniffing glue.

The laundry may be more strenuous, but you don't have to work with people who soil themselves, who are incompetent, or who are misshapen.

"Well, it pays better than the laundry."

But the pay is the same for both.

REAL REASON

Finally Terry gave his real reason.

"I guess," he said slowly, softly, "I could try and make an impression and act the way they think I'm supposed to, but I'm doing it because I like it."

One of the boys tried to talk a man in a corner of the ward into getting out of bed and joining the other patients. A few minutes later the boy left, the old man got up and walked to the front of the ward.

"He doesn't have anybody to talk to," the boy said, nodding his chin at the old man. "I remember when I was in the Jo-

Project to 'Unlabel' Handicapped Child

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Don't label the handicapped child. Put him in a regular classroom with other children. That's the goal of a new joint venture by the University of North Carolina and the University of Arizona.

As seen by Richard Elliott, assistant director of the North Carolina project and an official of the Wright School for Handicapped Children in Durham, N. C., the initial goal will be to train regular classroom teachers to work effectively with children who "suffer handicaps, whether physical or emotional."

The next step, Elliott says, will be the development of a technique to bring the handicapped child back into the regular classrooms or to keep him from being transferred out of the mainstream of education.

THEY'RE LABELED

Many children, Elliott says, may be emotionally disturbed or face an adjustment problem for a year or two and are sent to special schools.

They return, he adds, "but they return with a label. We want to remove the label, erase the need for the label."

Elliott notes that one of the major educational problems of today is the fact we have set up special classes and special institutions, but have not effectively dealt with keeping troubled or handicapped children in the regular classrooms."

To accomplish this goal of the project, Elliott says, "We will first develop regular classroom teachers who can accept the problem of handicapped children and learn effective ways of working with them."

TEACHERS AFRAID

In his opinion, many teachers are "afraid of teaching the emotionally or physically handicapped child because they are not familiar with the problems. We will work to eliminate this fear and to develop teachers who can work with the handicapped within the framework of their regular classes."

In North Carolina, 20 teachers have been working this summer at the Wright School and will take their knowledge back to their regular classrooms this fall.

ARIZONA FACILITY

In Arizona, 10 Indian teachers have been trained at Camp Echo, a summer facility in Tucson for physically handicapped children.

The three-year project is being financed by a $288,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

During the first year of the program, the North Carolina group will concentrate its efforts on children who suffer emotional problems. It will make a special effort to assist children of minority races—especially Negroes.

Indian Troops' Presence Tilts Nepal's Diplomatic Teeter-Totter

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The Himalayan kingdom of Nepal is playing a political game with India that is pushing it inadvertently closer to China.

Nepalese government leaders recognize this but quickly point out they are not willing to sacrifice independence for improved relations with their southern neighbor.

The problem centers on the presence of 80,000 Indian military personnel stationed in Nepal. At least 32 of them are posted in 18 checkpoints along the Nepal-China border to operate radios and report all movements across the border. The rest are liaison officers in this capital city.

Prime Minister Kirti Nidhi

Bista, who is widely believed to be only a spokesman for tough-minded King Mahendra, has been pushing hard for the Indian group's removal.

He denies that China has put any pressure on him to oust the Indian military element. He says: "I stand for the supreme national ideals of my country. India must withdraw if it respects the sovereignty of the country."

He adds that he could understand that China would not be pleased to have Indian troops along its border.

Peking has voiced approval of Bista's stand through radio broadcasts.

WON'T PLAY OFF

Bista, a pleasant, bespectacled man, makes it clear he wants good relations with both China and India. "We have succeeded in maintaining our neutrality and we will continue to do so," he says. "We will not play China and India off against each other."

Preventing this from occurring anyway may become increasingly complex, particularly if India takes any retaliatory moves through trade against Nepal. Nepal now sends more than 80 per cent of its trade to India. India also provides nearly three times more aid than any other country. It currently pumps $12.6 million in actual aid into Nepal, compared to $4.9 million from China and $3.7 million, plus $2.8 million for malaria eradication, from the United States.

where gold-topped temples spire above the ancient, sagging buildings made of mud bricks.

Despite Nepal's independence, India has basically considered it as part of the motherland, as it does with the two kingdoms of Bhutan and Sikkim.

EXILED OPPOSITION

The king faces continued opposition from politicians in exile, living in India, which has not improved his liking for India. In early July, three newspapers were closed in two days for printing unspecified stories "harmful to the national interests."

Immediately afterward, Rishikesh Shaw, former ambassador to the United States and former foreign minister, was arrested. Bista explained this was done "because he had caused unrest in our society and to prevent further occurrences, he was arrested." Shaw, linked to the exiled liberal Congress party leaders in India, had criticized Bista for his handling of the Nepal-India military problem.

CHINESE INTERESTS

Chinese interests in this country of 12 million are reflected in the assistance projected for the year 1970, $7.7 million. This aid is not militarily oriented, with the questionable exception of roads which could be used to move troops. China has built two major roads, including one that runs from Tibet to the snowy Himalayas into Katmandu. The other runs east-west. India is concerned with the roads from a security standpoint, but Nepal sees it as a trade potential. "The road runs both ways," says Bista.

The Chinese have also provided a factory and a shop for malaria eradication, from the hydroelectric dam.

HIGHLY VISIBLE

These projects are highly visible, compared to the American efforts in agriculture, education, health and aviation. This brings some criticism, even from Nepalese intellectuals sympathetic to America.

"Who do you think the people will believe is doing this for them?" said one American-trained doctor.

Despite their obvious aid projects, the Chinese themselves are extraordinarily shy. An American correspondent who visited the area of a dam project saw only one Chinese close up, and he promptly ran behind his dump truck.

Nepal was for centuries lost to outside civilization. It preferred it that way and the British, when they ruled India, made no effort to change it.

Not until 1954 was the first road pushed into Katmandu.

LOSE 10 LBS. IN 10 DAYS ON NEW GRAPEFRUIT DIET

This is the revolutionary new grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Literally thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in restaurants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada. Word of its success has spread like wildfire, because this is the one diet that really seems to work for most overweight people. A well known "torso columnist" recently wrote: "If I follow the diet, I reported losing 20 pounds quickly and easily long after my doctor said I was getting down to his minimum weight of 145 pounds. All this without cutting out the occasional beer or wine. If it is so easy, I can easily lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first four days. You will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. You will lose 10 pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all there are no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you stuff yourself with foods that were formerly "forbidden." Such as big steaks trimmed with fat, Southern fried chicken, rich gravies, macaroni, lobster, swimming in butter, bacon, fats, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full, until you can't possibly eat any more. And still you should lose 10 pounds in the first 10 days, plus 10 pounds every two days thereafter until your weight comes down to normal. The secret behind this new "Quick weight loss" is not generally known. Fat, it has been theorized, does not form fat. Perhaps fat fights fat. And the grapefruit juice in this new diet might act as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and fluid are gone you will come to your weight, and your weight will remain controlled. A copy of this new and startling successful diet plan can be obtained by sending $3 to Kane Associates.

OVER THE SLUMP

"Prices are up one day, down another. But the big machines which have their tremendous output allowed us to ride over the slumps." Richard Neu, vice president of Neu-Proler, says the companies "have their own markets. We don't really compete with each other except perhaps to get cars."

The autos, which are delivered to them by train, have been plucked of tires, seats, motors, windows, transmissions. They are bought for about $15.

A crane grabs them off a scrap heap with a sound like breaking orange crates, and swings them onto a conveyor belt.

RIPPED APART

They are drawn into the machine's gipping maw and ripped apart with a roar by rotating hammers and cutting tools.

The body comes out in three piles:

- Usable steel hunks—at Luria, the steel comes out as bright, curlicue shavings.
- Valuable metals such as magnesium, zinc, copper, aluminum.
- Impurities, of which 25 to 30 per cent is dirt.

SUSPECT IN KILLING

HARBOR SPRINGS (AP) — A Petoskey man was shot to death in Harbor Springs early Tuesday. The victim was identified as 31-year-old Adam F. Daniels. Police said a suspect is in custody today.

Big Machines 'Devour' Cars

Result Is Scrap for Steel Reprocessing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No, not all old cars are flattened into scrap pancakes. Some are chewed up in 80 seconds by giant machines that turn them into shavings and chunks for reprocessing into steel.

The machines, which stand about three stories high and cost $2 million apiece, dispose of the auto bodies at the rate of 1,000 a day.

These auto eaters belong to three metal processing firms. Clean Steel Inc. of Long Beach has the "Hammer Mill." The "Proiler" belongs to Hugo Neu-Proler Co. of Terminal Island and Luria Brothers uses the "Fragmentizer" in Vernon.

"The scrap market is very speculative, like the stock market," explained Douglas M. Schapiro, office manager of Clean Steel.

Pontiac Div. Boosts 3 in Assembly Plant

Three promotions in Pontiac Motor Division's car assembly plant were announced today by Charles L. Stevens, manager of car assembly operations.

William C. Killen, 2242 Os-trum, Waterford Township, was named manufacturing superintendent of second shift operations replacing Jesse C. Hunter, who is retiring.

Rodney J. Juve, 4201 Blackburn, West Bloomfield Township, was promoted to manufacturing superintendent of first shift operations.

Peter J. Elliman, 882 Lyndale, Avon Township, was appointed superintendent of the assembly plant service group, replacing Juve.

All three appointments are effective immediately.

Killen, a graduate of General Motors Institute, joined Pontiac in 1947 as a process engineer. He has served the division as senior process engineer, assistant manager, and most recently as assistant axle and differential plant superintendent.

PREVIOUS POST Juve, who began his General Motors career at Chevrolet in 1955, joined Pontiac Motor Division in 1968 as superintendent of the assembly plant service group.

Elliman joined Pontiac as a General Motors Institute co-op student in 1969. After graduation in 1961, he worked with Vauxhall Motors in England until given a special assignment with Opel in Germany in 1963.

In 1964 he returned to the United States and joined Pontiac as a mechanical engineer in the standards department.

He was promoted to supervisor of plant layout in 1966, and to senior engineer in the layout section in 1967.

Aug. 20 Auto Injuries Claim Area Man, 26

A Wolverine Lake man died early today of injuries he suffered Aug. 20 when he lost control of his car on Commerce Township Road, Oakland County sheriff's deputies said.

Dead is Velzy C. Brian, 26, of 741 Glenway. Officials at Pontiac General Hospital said he died about 2:15 a.m. of internal injuries.

Brian was driving north on Benstein near Oakley Park about 8:30 p.m. the day of the accident when he lost control of his car, deputies said. No other persons were in the auto.

State Education Board Secretary Chides Milliken

LANSING (AP) — Michael J. Deeb, secretary of the State Education Board, has added his voice to a pending debate among board members over the public schools superintendency of Dr. Ira Polley.

James F. O'Neil, a Republican board member from Livonia, charged Polley was "inadequate" and indicated he would seek a replacement by vote of the board.

Gov. William G. Milliken late last week backed Polley, who is a Democrat.

Deeb, also a Democrat, said Tuesday Milliken had criticized the board for being "quarrelsome." That "can only lead one to believe he (Milliken) is confused about the role of the state board," Deeb said.

If your waist is from 27 to 46, inseam from 28 to 34, we just made it tough for you to buy your permanent press fall slacks.

Because within those ranges (including hard-to-find 35 and 37 waists) there are enough different fabrics, patterns, and colors in traditional, continental, and flare styles for us to show you more slacks than you need. Which means you'll have no trouble finding the ones you want. They're all in the gigantic shipment we just received from the Farah people.

It works out to about 25 pairs each. Even if you all show up at once.

Junior Editors Quiz on PEKING MAN

QUESTION: Who was the Peking Man supposed to be?

ANSWER: Not all persons believe that modern man descended from the cave-men of very long ago. Scientists, most of who do believe this, speak of the Peking Man as being in a more advanced stage than the first man-like creatures whose remains have been found.

Two striking things about him, they say, were that he often lived in a cave and that he discovered the use of fire.

Earlier, men had not used caves because of the large, dangerous animals which often frequented them. But a blazing brand from the fire would scare away the most ferocious cave bear or wolf — and so Peking man had his cave home protected by the very fire which warmed it.

For food, he hunted animals with primitive stone-tipped spears, and probably gathered roots and berries. The name came because bone remains were found near Peking, China, in 1927. It is believed, however, that other ancient pre-historic men of this type may have lived in other localities.

The bones show that this early man was about 5 feet 8 inches tall. Scientists believe he lived about 360,000 years ago.

Foreign Press Charges Leadership Lack in U.S.

LONDON (AP) — The Index-Prime Minister Trudeau aliveness on whether to pull ready wants to withdraw Canadian troops out of Vietnam exemplifies the lack of leadership in Washington, Denmark, Britain, Italy and Germany are as yet unpredictable.

Herein said the "miserable progress" of the war continues as conflicting advice pours in on President Nixon at the summer White House in California.

"After eight months in office, President Nixon, who during the election campaign said that he had a plan to end the war, is clearly nonplussed." But further American withdrawal "will be resumed when the President returns to Washington in September," Heren continued. "It will not be a day too early for most Americans."

Other comments about America from abroad this week, especially in West Germany, concerned U.S. defense cuts announced by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

EUROPEAN PULLOUTS

Several West German newspapers said Laird was hinting at troop withdrawals from Europe, but they added such withdrawals would be insignificant.

"There is no reason for concern about a substantial reduction of U.S. troops in Europe," said the Frankfurter Rundschau.

The nationally circulated Die Welt said: "It is believed in Bonn that between 12,000 and 15,000 supply troops will be withdrawn. The political repercussions in Canada—whose

Medical Biologist Seeks to Stop Spread of Asian Panic Disease

SEOUL (UPI) — Dr. Robert Tonn of the World Health Organization (WHO) calls it a panic disease, and the description fits.

Japanese encephalitis, one of the scourges of northeast Asia, terrifies parents in some of the most densely populated regions in the world.

Encephalitis — sleeping sickness — attacks the brain and nervous system and can cause paralysis, loss of memory, disorganization of the mental processes and coma. Partial paralysis and loss of memory can be permanent.

In South Korea alone, encephalitis kills about 30 per cent of the people it attacks. Most of its victims are children between the ages of 4 and 10 years.

7,500 DEATHS

In the decade since 1958, Republic of Korea health officials have reported 23,519 known cases of encephalitis with 7,502 deaths.

Japanese encephalitis also strikes in Japan, Okinawa, Taiwan and probably Communist China and North Korea. It breaks out in summer and is thought to be carried by mosquitoes.

"On a worldwide basis, it is rather a minor disease," Tonn said. "But locally, it is a serious one. It's more of a panic disease than anything else."

The trouble is that medical doctors know little about how the disease is spread, and that is why Tonn has set up his laboratory in Seoul.

MEDICAL BIOLOGIST

Tonn, 42, is a medical biologist from North Dakota. WHO's Japanese Encephalitis Vector Research Unit sent him to Korea in May to organize and direct a five-year study of the disease. In medical science, the word vector refers to the carrier of microorganisms from one host to another.

The challenge for Tonn and the 22 members of his team is to find a way to prevent encephalitis from spreading from animal to man. Doctors believe that a specific mosquito carries encephalitis from pigs, horses or birds to human beings.

Tonn's team is not working on cures or vaccines. Instead his men are looking for ways to break the life cycle of encephalitis germs before they reach man.

"Our unit is here to try to find an effective and economically feasible method of controlling Japanese encephalitis from a nonhuman standpoint," the American research worker said.

"In other words, we are concerned with studying the natural history of the disease in mosquitoes and reservoir hosts."

"Then we hope to take this information and find weak links in the natural history of the virus, and by finding these weak links, we hope we can put control measures to work against the weak links."

The encephalitis research work is financed jointly by the Republic of Korea and WHO.

The Korean government will contribute the equivalent of $132,000 for the research program. Another $400,000 will come from WHO.

Texas Doomsday Gang Awaiting Namath

By the Associated Press
The Doomsday Gang is laying in wait for Broadway Joe Namath, pro football's controversial ace quarterback, deep in the heart of Texas.

Which indicates that the Super Bowl here of the World Championship New York Jets is in for a rough time in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas Saturday night when the Cowboys tangle with the Jets in an exhibition game.

The Doomsday Gang is the name given to the Cowboys' defensive front four who aim to rush Namath all over the place. "He is just like any other quarterback to me, I hate them all," declared George Andrie, a defensive end Tuesday. "It's a tremendous challenge to play the Super Bowl champs. It means a lot to all of us."

"I've been thinking about him the whole off-season," commented Bob Lilly, another of the Cowboy front four. "This has to be the biggest exhibition we've ever played. I think we will be motivated a little more because of Namath."

"We've got it on us that we lose games against strong teams, so it could really help us to beat the Jets and then the Colts next week."

Namath got a taste of what might be in store for him when he was dumped twice for losses by Minnesota last week, although he threw two touchdowns passes in guiding the Jets to a 24-21 victory over the Vikings.

"It was good to get that practice in scrambling," Namath said afterwards. "I needed it." The Cowboys beat the Houston Oilers 14-11 last week to help the National Football League clinch the exhibition series with rival American League outfits.

Going into this weekend NFL teams have won 17, lost 11 and tied one, thus clinching the 33-game inter-league series.

Elsewhere, on Tuesday, Fort was re-activated as a player by Green Bay and may start at tackle against Pittsburgh Saturday.

Pittsburgh placed wide receiver Marshall Cropper on the injured list and San Francisco cut 11 players, including veteran San Diego Chargers and the Oakland Raiders placed quarterback Eldridge Dickey, their first

Chicago Bulls Count Blessing Following Deal

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Chicago Bulls may have been counting their blessings Tuesday after completion of the four-player trade with the Philadelphia 76ers, but not everyone involved was quite as enthusiastic.

Somewhat disgruntled by the swap, veteran forward Chet Walker said he was considering a business offer which would base him in New York. "I won't be making as much money as I would make playing basketball, but I see a chance for the future," the 29-year-old Walker said.

Walker was to go to the Chicago Bulls in exchange for Jim Washington according to a trade finalized Tuesday. In addition, the 76ers said they were swapping Shaler Hallmon for a player to be named after the 1969-70 National Basketball Association season.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Carter

Can you imagine one boy scoring more touchdowns than himself on entire teams, with all their players put together, are able to score in one season... There once was a boy who did it... Dick Todd, of Crowell (Texas) High School in 1934, scored the unbelievable total of 49 touchdowns himself in one season... and to realize how amazing that is, consider the fact that many whole teams go through seasons without being able to score that many touchdowns... A sports historian says that in all the years of football, nobody has ever approached the season Dick Todd had at Crowell High School.

Can you name the pitcher who struck out Casey in baseball's famous poem "Casey at the Bat"?... Oddly enough, the pitcher is not named in the poem.

Of all the football teams in America, which one do you think has played the most games since the start of football 100 years ago?... Answer is NOT Princeton or Rutgers who were the first two teams to play football... It's Penn which has played a total of 907 football games going into this season.

I bet you didn't know... that we still can't understand how so much misleading, erroneous, and even false information still gets into print. No wonder that the average tire buyer needs professional advice. See one of our Pros.

Pheasant Data 'Disappointing'

Southern Michigan's pheasant hunting prospects for this fall aren't any better over-all than last season, but there are some bright spots in the generally "disappointing" outlook.

Leading off with the best news first, this summer's pheasant brood counts by rural mail carriers were up "substantially" in Shiawassee, Clinton, Genesee, Hillsdale, Jackson and Lapeer counties. In Ingham County, brood survey results show signs of a modest gain for the birds.

That county's improvement in pheasant numbers plus more pronounced increases in Shiawassee and Clinton counties largely account for sightings of birds being 36 per cent higher than last summer in the central area of Southern Michigan.

In the southwest area and the A11eazee-Otsego-Muskegon county bloc, pheasant populations seem to be about the same as in 1968.

Elsewhere, the pheasant hunting picture for this fall leaves a good deal to be desired.

COLLAPSE IN THUMB

In the Thumb Area, once southern Michigan's stronghold for pheasants, the birds are down 50 per cent from last year. Biggest drops there were noted in Sanilac and St. Clair counties, the area's major pheasant producers.

This summer's pheasant brood counts in Macomb County also took a major drop, estimated at about 50 per cent.

Reflected by this is an over-all 22 per cent decline in pheasant numbers for the whole Southeastern Michigan area.

If the substantially lower brood counts for Sanilac and St. Clair counties were not included in the total, Southern Michigan's pheasant population would show a modest five per cent climb over last year.

However, when they are added as they must be, the region's counts fall four per cent below 1968.

No matter how they look at the over-all pheasant outlook, Department of Natural Resources game men aren't able to mask their general "disappointment."

"Frankly," observes pheasant specialist Vic Janson, "we had good reason to hope the birds would make at least a moderate over-all gain this year."

TROUBLE AHEAD — Leon Gudzinski, fire officer for the Department of Natural Resources, isn't taking a pollen count in the above picture. He's checking the condition of weeds. A lack of moisture the last two weeks has resulted in several small grass and brush fires. Gudzinski and other fire officials fear a major outbreak may occur this fall sending men and equipment into the fields (below) to try and control the blazes.

Turkey Permit Applications Being Taken

The Department of Natural Resources is accepting applications for wild turkey hunting permits in the M10 area.

There will be two hunting periods, Oct. 31-Nov. 3, and Nov. 7-10, with 500 permits available for each session. Deadline for application is Sept. 22.

A 1969 small game license, now available from dealers, is required.

On the blank side of a government post card, the applicants must print the four-day season of his choice and below that print his new small game license number and sign his name.

On the postage side the applicant should address the card to himself. Then place the card in an envelope and mail to Wild Turkey, Drawer M, Lansing, Mich. 48928. All applicants must be at least 14 years old. A drawing will determine who receives the permits.

The Baldwin area will be closed this fall.

Expensive Fun Includes Elephant at Access Site

A group of teen-agers decided to have some fun last Sunday night at the public boat access site on Lake Oakland. The seven boys involved paid a high price.

Six pleaded guilty before District Judge Kenneth Hempstead yesterday to loitering and were fined $100 each or 30 days in jail. A seventh was fined $150 for simple larceny.

Five girls in the group were not charged.

Waterford police and Department of Natural Resources officers made the arrest. They said the group was at the site after the 11 p.m. closing hour and had broken all of the signs and placed them in the car driven by the youth charged with larceny.

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania — Big game hunting will never be quite the same again following 15-year-old Nancy Coggins' rampage through Tanzania.

Nancy bagged 28 animals — one for each day of her safari — including an elephant with tusks weighing 128 and 107 pounds.

Wind Hampers Salmon Anglers

Large Pike Caught on Inland Lakes

High winds curtailed the salmon fishing off Manistee in Lake Michigan last weekend, but pike fishermen turned up a couple of good catches on inland waters.

Dale Humphrey, 676 Bloomfield, caught northerners weighing 13½ and 12½ pounds Monday at the Kent Lake outlet. He was fishing from shore with a silver spoon.

Roy Taylor, 402 Mason Lapeer, also shore fishing, landed a 19½-pound northern at Fletcher Pond near Hillman. He was using a live chub for bait.

The chubs were finally located late Monday about three miles south of Manistee and six miles off shore. Boats able to get out reported good catches up to 15 pounds. Largest chinook entered in the Salmon Festival was a 22-pounder, reportedly taken in Lake Minnetonka by a walleye fisherman.

BIGGEST CATCH

Leroy Green of Muskegon when came pole fishing for bluegills off the breakwall in Muskegon Harbor and landed a 22½-pound chinook, the largest fish he has caught in 43 years of angling.

Green was using red worms and the line tested at 25 pounds. Total cost of his equipment was $2.18.

"Nancy shot a lot better than many men," Dunn said.

Fish Derby Winner Avoids Advice

Advice from friends, however well-meaning, doesn't always pay off.

Frank Losey, 66 Newberry, found that out last year when he was advised not to enter a northern pike in the Pontiac Press Fish contest because "it wouldn't win anyway."

The pike would have taken the black bass division honors. This year Losey didn't take any advice or chances. He entered a nine-pound pike caught from Orbow Lake and it won pike division honors in the contest which ended at noon yesterday.

The 6½-pound largemouth caught last week at Bush Lake by Larry Puffer of Holly won the black bass division. Both anglers will receive $50 Savings Bonds.

LARGE ENTRIES

For the second straight year the bass division dominated the contest. Fourteen bass over five pounds and seven over six were reported to The Press.

Last challenger to Puffer's winner was a 6½-pounder caught Saturday morning at Lake Orion by John Minard, 300 Pinetree, Lake Orion.

Bass fishing seemed to hold up very well through the summer and is expected to improve later this month. However, a lack of pike anglers apparently hurt that division. The 1968 winner only went eight pounds.

Losey, an engine assemblyman at Pontiac Motor, took his winning pike on a minor and battled it about 10 minutes. Puffer's bass was caught in deep water on a Rapala. He operates a sporting goods store in Holly.

This was the first time that Bush Lake has produced a contest winner. However, Orbow has yielded several leading pike including the 20½-pounder that is the contest record.

Governors Urging Pesticide Controls

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The governors of five Great Lakes states Tuesday called for rigid restrictions to control the use of persistent pesticides until acceptable substitutes are available.

"At the same time, they urged the Food and Drug Administration to increase the minimum permissible DDT tolerance levels in Great Lakes' fish sold in interstate commerce."

The action followed several months of meetings between officials of the five upper Great Lakes states.

"With this action we have a mechanism which can be an effective tool in combating pollution," said Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan.

He said the recommendations to ease the threat of pesticide pollution marked "a milestone in interstate cooperation."

The governors' recommendations call for a gradual phase-out of persistent insecticides such as DDT, Dieldrin, Aldrin, Chlordane, Endrin, Heptachlor and Lindane.

ALTERNATES SOUGHT

Development of alternatives should be accelerated, the position paper stated.

To date, only Michigan among the five upper Great Lakes states has banned the general use of DDT.

The governors also requested the Food and Drug Administration to establish "an appropriate tolerance level for DDT" in Great Lakes fish sold in interstate commerce.

It's a Business

Honey—Not Just Sweet Talk

By JANET ODELL

Food Editor, The Pontiac Press
You've probably seen H. H. and Ima Jean Todd at the Farmers' Market. They're in the booth with the demonstration beehive. Stop, if you're interested, and they'll give you some sweet talk.

A beekeeper by avocation, Todd is a Fisher Body employee.

Ten years ago, he started three colonies of bees with the idea of interesting his stepson in the honey business. The project backfired: the stepson soon lost interest, but Todd was hooked.

He set out to learn everything he could about bees.

How well he has succeeded is proven by his impressive collection of ribbons from the Michigan State Fair.

This year, honey from Imatodds Apiaries won four blue ribbons and was instrumental in helping the Southeastern Bee Association take the sweepstakes prize for the best honey display.

SHE HELPS

Although Mrs. Todd says her husband has just the right temperament for a beekeeper—calm and unburied—he says his wife can do and does do anything necessary in gathering honey and keeping the bees happy.

She takes over the job of making candles and other items from bees wax and foundation (that's the honeycomb material that goes into the hives and is filled with honey by the bees.)

Their beeswax is molded into attractive cakes. It is sold to homemakers and sportsmen. Thread, fishing lines and bow strings are stronger when waxed. Zippers, drawers and windows slide more easily. Irons glide effortlessly.

The Todds have only a few bees at their Elizabeth Lake Estates home. They keep most of their colonies on farms northwest of Pontiac.

Their best honey comes from hives in fields of star thistle. Todd says this plant is found only in Michigan and parts of California. Nectar from it produces a rare, light honey he considers unsurpassed.

Because none of the Todd honey is shipped across state lines, it is not pasteurized. He sells to health food stores in addition to customers at the Farmers' Market.

KITCHEN TESTED

Mrs. Todd, who likes to cook with honey, shares two of her favorite recipes with Press readers.

HONEY PECAN PIE

1 cup honey
3 well beaten eggs
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup nonfat dry milk solids
¼ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups pecans
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1 9-inch unbaked pastry shell
Mix honey with eggs. Cream sugar, dry milk and butter and add to honey mixture. Stir in pecans and pour into pastry shell.
Bake at 375 degrees for one

SIDE LINE — Mrs. H. H. Todd shows off a Christmas candle made from pure beeswax. Making decorative items with wax and cooking with honey are her main contributions to the family business.

hour, or until center tests done with a knife.

Very small muffin tins may be lined with a round of pastry and filled with one teaspoon of the above mixture. Bake 10-12 minutes at 425 degrees.

HONEY CUSTARD

1½ cups milk
¼ cup honey
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon vanilla or ¼ teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon maple flavoring Few grains of salt.
Heat milk. Beat eggs and beat in honey, flavoring and salt. Add hot milk and beat well. Pour into custard cups and set in pan of hot water. Bake 45 minutes at 300 degrees.

Test with a clean silver knife dipped in hot water and inserted in middle of custard. If knife comes out clean, the custard is done. Be careful not to overbake. Remove as soon as it is set.

Calcium Need Continues High
Old people still need food to build and repair body tissues and bones. Even though growth has stopped, repair work goes on continually. If food does not contain enough protein and minerals the repairs will not be well done.

A lack of calcium in the diets of older people may account for the frequent occurrence of broken bones in this age group. (Other minerals are also required with calcium.) Also vitamins are required for repairs since they work with minerals and protein to keep the body operating.

Company coming for lunch or Sunday night supper? Serve chicken or shrimp salad garnished with deviled egg halves.

PROUD WINNER — H. H. Todd of 290 North Winding shows a few of his state fair ribbons in his booth at Oakland County Farmers' Market. In addition to honey, he sells molded beeswax and candles. Todd is all set with a business he will be able to pursue in his retirement years.

AT THE FAIR — Imatodds Apiaries are represented in this display of honey at the 1969 Michigan State Fair. Entered by the Southeastern Bee Association, it won the sweepstakes award.

Boaters Like Them

Luncheon Meats Convenient

Americans like their boating! So why not plan a boating party?

When canned meats are used, meals, plain and fancy can be quick and easy. Some of the party food can be made at home and stowed away in a portable refrigerator, insulated bag or hamper and taken aboard. Even "elegant eats" can then be ready in about the time it takes to hoist the "come aboard" flag.

MEAT SALAD DINGHIES
1 can (12 ounce) luncheon meat

¼ cup salad dressing
2 tablespoons drained sweet pickle relish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon minced onion (optional)
8 pastry boats (directions follow)
Cut ¼ can of meat crosswise into 4 even slices. Cut each slice on the diagonal into 2 sail-shaped pieces. Plunge long heavy wooden picks into each "sail." Place on flat surface; cover and chill.
Finely chop remaining meat. Stir in dressing, relish, mustard and onion; chill.

To make Dinghies, spread pastries with meat mixture; stand a "sail" upright in salad sail-boat fashion. Yield: 1 cup salad, enough for 8 boats.

PASTRY BOATS — Prepare pie crust mix; roll 3/16 inches thick. Bake as for pie shell on label. Yield: 8 boats.

SOUR CREAM SALAMI-POTATO SALAD
5 cups sliced, cooked chilled potatoes
¼ cup sliced green onion
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
½ pint (1 cup) dairy sour cream
¼ cup salad dressing
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups diced peeled cucumber
1 cup diced cotter or hard salami

Combine first 3 ingredients in mixing bowl. Mix sour cream, dressing, vinegar, mustard, salt, celery seed and pepper. Pour over potatoes; toss lightly and chill. Before serving or packing add cucumber and salami; mix. Yield: about 7 cups or 8 servings.

VIENNA'S VINEGARRETT
½ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon thinly sliced green onion
3 cans (5 ounce) Vienna sausages, drained
Combine first 4 ingredients; heat to dissolve sugar. Add onion; pour over sausages. Refrigerate 4 to 6 hours, stirring 3 or 4 times during chilling. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

WITH LUNCHEON MEAT — Meat Salad Dinghies are fun to serve, good to eat. Boat shaped pastries are prepared at home and the edible boats are put together on board ship. Other luncheon meats add protein to the rest of the main course.

Cheesy Corn

Pour 2 cups cream-style corn into well-greased baking dish. Stir in 1 tablespoon prepared mustard and 1 teaspoon each of salt and pepper. Slash 4 hotdogs lengthwise and put in long sticks of cheese. Place hotdogs atop corn and bake about 20 minutes at 350 degrees F.

It's perfectly all right to hard-cook a dozen eggs at a time and refrigerate some of them for use over several consecutive days.

Three-Brain Theory Makes Him Think

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Earlier this year, a neurophysiologist at the National Institutes of Health came forth with a theory that man has not one but three — count 'em, three — brains. The brains developed, one after the other, during the various states of the evolutionary process and eventually wound up inside the human cranium where they interact and function together. Theoretically, at least.

WEST

• The arbitration brain, which settles disputes between the physical and the mental brains.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

If I may use myself as an illustration, I quit smoking a few weeks ago and this has made a big improvement in my physical condition. My mental outlook has remained the same, however, which forces my arbitration brain to work overtime.

When I get out of bed in the morning, my physical brain checks over my body and reports that everything is running smoothly.

“You feel good today,” it says, which brings about an immediate rebuttal from my mental brain.

“Why you ding-a-ling!” my mental brain snaps. “What have you got to feel good about? Wait until you read that morning paper and then see how good you feel.”

SURE ENOUGH
I read the morning paper and sure enough, I can't find anything to feel good about. So I submit the conflict to my arbitration brain.

“Your body is robust enough to justify feeling good until lunch,” it rules. “After that, your intellect will take over and you will feel progressively worse for the rest of the day.”

That's the trouble with having three brains. You're always compromising.

***
Furthermore, I am not certain the three brains MacLean does identify perform exactly as he envisions. I think they may shape up more along these lines:

• The physical brain, which handles bodily functions;

• The mental brain, which handles intellectual processes;

• The arbitration brain, which settles disputes between the physical and the mental brains.

That's the title of a small booklet published by the volunteers here and illustrated by volunteer-drawn cartoons.

“What is the relationship between the Peace Corps and the poverty program?” the booklet asks.

“The page you have the answer: ‘The poverty program has set the poverty line at $800 more a year than the Peace Corps living allowance.’”

In fact they say: “It's fun to be in the Peace Corps, and it's

Market Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen congressmen have protested to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell about reports he may drop civil action against the Automobile Manufacturers Association on charges of conspiring to slow development of antipollution devices for motor vehicles.

The representatives, all liberal Democrats, said the Justice Department was negotiating with the association and its major members — General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors — for a consent judgment in the suit brought by Mitchell's predecessor, Ramsey Clark, earlier this year.

"DON'T TAP FUNDS"
WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney has told Congress the Nixon administration has reservations about opening up two potential sources of hard-to-find mortgage money.

Romney said neither the government National Mortgage Association — known also as Ginnie Mae — nor the Federal Reserve System should be used to provide additional resources for the tight housing market at this time.

DEMAND FACES 'NO' RACINE, Wis. — American Motors Corp. is expected to reject tomorrow a demand by the United Auto Workers Union that it catch up immediately with wages and fringe benefits prevailing in contracts between the UAW and General Motors, Chrysler and Ford.

Treasury Position
WASHINGTON (AP) — The cash position of the Treasury Department was reported to Aug. 26, 1969 (in dollars):

As of the issues were too great to synthesize, a forecast of boom after totality ignores the possibility of a new conference in the future. There has been speculation that Ford will introduce a car to compete directly with the Volkswagen.

This polarization is noted also in another area of popular discussion. It involves the matter of personal indebtedness and its consequences. You can choose your sides.

Which viewpoint goes like this: "This country is headed for a spectacular downfall. Just look

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes a certain degree of blindness these days to forecast either a boom or a bust in the 1970s. And you can bet that the forecasts are polarized. The blinds are on.

It is not uncommon, for instance, to find some stock market analysts forecasting tremendous price jumps in the 1970s based, they say, on the fruition of technology, on population increases, and on greater foreign trade.

In fact, a Gross National Product of $2 trillion is said to be a probability shortly after the '70s, which already are being called with confidence "The Stagflation Decade."

But in order to make such statements the forecasters must have a certain faith in the world trade position of the United States has deteriorated, for example, and America continues to spend more abroad than foreigners spend here.

IN A DITHER
This has been going on for 17 years and, as you know, the financial managers of many countries in a dither. They fear, among other things, that a loss of confidence in paper money could ensue and that trade might diminish.

Which viewpoint do you take? The doom dispensers say world trade is bound to collapse and bring down the world's industrial economies. The happiness hucksters claim human inventiveness will bring joy to all. There's little in between.

Q. Several companies have recently cut dividends. Is this because the economy has been successfully cooled? — B.B.

A. Since July there has been a noticeable increase in the number of dividend cuts and omissions. Directors of four companies chose to reduce their cash payments; one board elected to substitute stock for a cash dividend; another reduced cash and supplemented it with stock, and eleven others omitted their dividend altogether.

I would hesitate to cite the effectiveness of the Nixon Administration's hard-line policy — on inflation — as the underlying cause of a temporary earnings reversal. A study of the 17 companies referred to above reveals in most instances earnings difficulties of several years' duration. While the high cost of credit and other inflationary pressures may have triggered the immediate action, and at the same time provided a more palatable explanation for stockholders, stagnant, erratic or declining earnings were at the root of these several decisions. And Wall Street, long aware of earnings erosion, had discounted the bad news well in advance of the actual event.

A few surprises, such as Potomac Electric's declaration of a stock dividend in place of its 27th-annual quarterly cash payment, resulted in immediate and decisive market reaction. Sharen, trending lower all year, with only $17 billion or $18 billion. Living over their heads. Never be able to pay all the bills as it seems?

"I'm encouraged by a couple of things: First, those bills are being paid back regularly. The American people as a whole consider it some sort of a sin to let their bills ride. Ask any banker.

"Secondly, those bank accounts that people are accumulating look good to me. Why, for many months they were putting more than 7 per cent of their take-home pay into savings. That doesn't look like a spend-a-penny habit."

Take your pick: The country is heading for a boom in the 1970s that will lift the material well-being of most people beyond their dreams, the American economy is heading for a steady end and the signs are all about us.

Ford to Discontinue Falcon Compact Line
MONTAUK, N.Y. (AP) — The Ford Motor Co., noting that "af-John Naughton, vice president of the Ford Motor Co. and general manager of the Ford Division, said today at a news conference in the Falcon production line, Ford said it will convert to the popular Maverick.

NEW TRENDS
The new models exhibit a trend towards lower and lower lines and emphasis on what Ford calls its intermediate cars. "Affluence is all about us," Naughton said, "and that affluence is having a powerful impact on automobile makers who must stay ahead of changing trends."

As income has risen, so has the desire and demand for luxury cars and the top-of-the-line series."

Naughton said 1970 could be the year when cars of intermediate size, outside the standard-size year for the first time in automotive history.

CHIPS PLACED
That's where we've placed our biggest stock of chips," he said.

Naughton said Ford intends to continue the Falcon name as a family car which means "economical family transportation."

Ford spokesman refused to comment further on Naughton's remarks.

Stock Market Slide Deepens

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slid deeper into lower territory in moderate trading today, with declines stretching their lead over advances to nearly 350 issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average at noon was off 3.63 at 834.15.

Brokers attributed the market's early decline, in part, to a lack of stimulus to spur buying, as well as to some disappointing

Some oil stocks with interests in Libya, where a new regime has taken over, continued to slide, although Libya said it intended to respect all pacts and agreements.

Steels were mixed. Motors, aircrafts, chemicals and utilities mostly were lower. Metals had a higher tone.

On the American Stock Exchange, Alaska Airlines was the most active issue, unchanged at 16.

People in the News

By The Associated Press

Mrs. Inge Rice, wife of the new U.S. ambassador to Australia, was detained briefly at a Melbourne airport last week when officials found that she had not been vaccinated against smallpox before leaving America.

Three-quarters of an hour later, she was passed by medical officials after showing State Department papers stating that she has a physical condition which prevents her from being treated with smallpox virus.

Mrs. Rice, 35, rejoined her husband, Walter, and 4-year-old daughter, Lisa, for the last leg of their flight to Canberra.

Folk Singer Plans U. S. Tour

Bob Dylan, the folk singer who has been in virtual hiding from his fans since a serious motorcycle accident three years ago, is planning a U.S. concert tour.

Dylan outlined his plans yesterday in New York upon his return from an appearance at a big weekend pop festival on the Isle of Wight, where he was accompanied by a Canadian group, the Band.

"We're going to put the show together," he said. "The Band will probably be with us. We will have some new groups, too."

Tricia Rejoins Family

Korea Honors Retiring U. S. Commander

Nixon on Low-Cholesterol Diet, Too

This information comes from Mrs. Virginia Knauer, his adviser on consumer affairs.

In an article in the Easton (Pa.) Express she said that after she proposed limiting the fat content in hot dogs to 30 per cent she received a call from the President, who said: "Virginia, I just wanted you to know that I'm with you 100 per cent on the hot dogs. I'm on a low-cholesterol diet myself."

MRS. KNAUER

A Look at TV

Defector Tells His Story

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

A real-life escape story, Russian author Anatoly Kuznetsov's account of his defection from the Soviet Union, was the main attraction on CBS' season of Tuesday night news

Kuznetsov speaks no English,

but the hour-long interview

taped in London overcame the obstacle. CBS' Correspondent

Morley Safer asked the

answers were translated simultaneously by Russian-speaking newspaperman David

Floyd, to whom he turned for help.

Safer explained the writer still lives in hiding. Anatoly

-he prefers to drop his last name-said "I am still afraid of Soviet officials."

In a quiet voice, the tense, be-

carefully laid plans to escape from his native land after Soviet troops went into Czechoslovakia,

ALMOST APPREHENSIVE

He told how he persuaded officials he was loyal and finally received permission to go to London for some research on a book about Lenin. Even when he told how he got rid of his official

"watchdog" - his guard went off to a burlesque show-Anatoly showed only utter seriousness and almost apprehension.

The camera stayed in close on the subject most of the time the Russian was telling his story.

Although the sound track was in Oxford English, the effect was impressive.

Safer occasionally pressed

Anatoly as he was cross-examining him, asking almost accusingly if he felt guilt about his actions. Anatoly admitted he did, but spoke of the surveillance and suspicion in his home-

At one point he pulled a handful of film from his pocket. The rolls contained negatives of his manuscripts, he said. "My life," he said.

FEARS FOR FAMILY

Safer asked if Anatoly did not fear for the safety of the family

pause before the sad-looking

deed."

LIVONIA (UPI) - The hometown newspaper of James F.

O'Neill today accused O'Neill of creating crisis "where none exists" and called upon him to resign from the State Board of Education.

In a front-page editorial in the weekly Livonia Observer, the newspaper said O'Neill's disagreements with Dr. Ira

Polley, state superintendent of schools, have become a ven-detta.

This has led O'Neill "to engage in tactics and espouse

direct bearing

Ho's Condition Worsens

SAIGON (U) — Hanoi Radio reported today that President Ho Chi Minh's condition is deteriorating and greatest efforts are being made to care for him, American monitors in Saigon reported.

The French-language broadcast was Hanoi's first report that the condition of the 79-year-old father of Vietnamese communism was worsening. Two earlier official announcements said he was in "somewhat grave" condition and that his illness was "developing."

Officials in Saigon felt that even that much admission meant Ho was near death.

Ho's illness was announced in a commune which said: "Over the past few weeks, President Ho Chi Minh has not been well... A collective of professors and medical doctors has been attending him day and night."

'NOT STABLE'

Another commune, broadcast four hours later, said Ho's condition was "not stable" and that "his illness is developing and is somewhat grave."

"They would hardly issue such a bulletin unless Ho was already dead or in a coma of some kind," said one official in Saigon.

Hanoi did not disclose the nature of the illness, but Ho had a bad case of tuberculosis in the 1940s and reportedly had suffered from heart trouble and possible lung complications for more than two years.

Experts in Saigon said Ho's death or incapacitation probably would result in an intensified power struggle in North Vietnam but no change in the goal of a unified Communist Vietnam. And they said even the jockeying for power might not be evident for some time.

PARTY CONTROLS SEEN

"It will be a dictatorship by the party, not a dictatorship by one man," one expert said. "The Political Bureau and the Central Committee will be the important factors."

The chief contenders for the succession are considered to be the chief of the Communist party machine, Le Duan, who is listed No. 2 on the Politburo; Truong Chinh, No. 3 and the party's most vocal ideologist; Premier Pham Van Dong, No. 4 and Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the defense minister, architect of the French defeat and the director of the war against the United States and the Saigon government.

Le Duan is considered pro-Moscow, Truong Chinh pro-Peking.

A Japanese news agency that has a correspondent in Hanoi said the North Vietnamese first learned of their leader's illness in a radio bulletin broadcast at 4 a.m. The Japanese agency, Nippon Denpa Hoso, said people gathered in the streets despite the early hour to talk about the news. Tuesday was North Vietnam's Independence day, and the Japanese agency said an independence day program scheduled for Tuesday night was canceled without explanation, apparently because of Ho's condition.

He is known as "Uncle Ho" to millions of Vietnamese who considered him the father of Vietnamese independence.

AP Wirephoto

Saigon Sees No Change in N. Viet Goal

SAIGON (AP) — Experts in Saigon expect the power struggle in Hanoi to intensify regardless of the outcome of Ho Chi Minh's illness. But they foresee no change in the ultimate goal of the North Vietnamese leaders — a unified Communist Vietnam.

"For the moment they will probably give the appearance of closing ranks," one expert said. "They probably realize among themselves that they cannot afford an internal struggle."

"It will be dictatorship by the party, not dictatorship by one man," said a South Vietnamese expert. "The political bureau and the central committee will be the important factors."

But the Hanoi watchers believe a test of will must inevitably come from among the main contenders long standing in Ho's shadow. These are Communist party boss Le Duan, the party's most vocal ideologist, Truong Chinh; Premier and heir-apparent Pham Van Dong, and the military leader, Vo Nguyen Giap.

IMMEDIATE CHANGE UNLIKELY

How this struggle would affect the war or the peace talks in Paris is questionable. Few see a prospect of any immediate change.

One official said that any severe contest for power inevitably must lead to a slowing down of the war in the South, but that this would not necessarily mean any weakening of the adamant North Vietnamese position at the Paris talks.

Should either a pro-Moscow or a pro-Peking faction gain superiority, however, North Vietnam might move away from middle ground in Communist circles. Ho was able throughout his years to walk a tight rope in all international ideological disputes. Most experts believe that his successors will try to do the same, but they may not be able to maintain the independence that the patriarch of Asian Communism could.

STILL MISSING — Dr. James A. Pike, former California Episcopal bishop, is being sought by Israeli police and Bedouin tribesmen in the Dead Sea area of the Judean desert where he vanished Monday night when his car broke down. His wife, Diane, 31, was with him at the time. (Story, Page A-2).

By The Associated Press

Would-be college students across the country are feeling the financial pinch even more than usual this fall because of congressional inaction on legislation to boost the interest rate on government-guaranteed student loans.

Some college officials say the delay will prevent hundreds of students—many in low-income groups—from attending college at all this year.

The Senate has passed legislation raising the 7 per cent ceiling on the government-guaranteed student loans to 10 per cent, making them more attractive to lenders who now charge 8½ per cent to prime borrowers.

The bill is stalled in the House, however, over an amendment to prohibit loans to student disrupters.

ACTION PENDING

The House is expected to act on the measure Sept. 15 and President Nixon has appealed to lenders to keep student loans flowing despite the congressional delay.

New York University said First National City Bank, which heavily financed students under the guaranteed-loan program, now turns down requests if the prospective student borrower has not had a business relationship with the bank or been a previous borrower.

In Oregon, the U.S. National Bank and the First National Bank will lend only to students whose parents have made satisfactory deposits or who have had a financial relationship with the bank for at least a year.

A spokesman for Stanford University in California said the school expects to lose 450 students from an expected

Lung Recipient Still Is 'Grave'

Albert Lee Carnick, 50, of 4755 Bratford, Bloomfield Township, remained in grave condition today at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. Officials admitted his prognosis was "not as good as the doctors had hoped."

Doctors said Carnick, who yesterday received the left lung of a teen-age traffic victim, has not regained consciousness since surgery. His six-hour operation was Michigan's first recorded lung transplant.

Carnick, said to be dying of emphysema prior to surgery, is now being assisted in breathing by a respirator. He is also receiving drugs to bolster his blood pressure.

A daughter, Mrs. Jane Carnick Webber of Chicago, said her father had been given only six weeks to two months to live before the operation.

SMOKING NOT LINKED

Ironically, smoking has not been judged the cause of Carnick's illness as it has in numerous other cases of emphysema.

Clouds Will Hold a Hint of Showers

The weather forecast calls for some cloudiness tonight, with tomorrow mostly cloudy with a chance of showers. Friday is to be warm with a chance of showers.

Temperatures are to fall into the high 50s tonight and climb to 80 to 85 tomorrow.

Probabilities of precipitation are 10 per cent today, 20 per cent tonight, and 40 per cent tomorrow.

A mild 62 was the low recording before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury had warmed up to 80 by 12:30 p.m.

Half-Day Schooling Protested

By DICK ROBINSON

A drive is on to eliminate half-day school sessions for elementary pupils in Waterford Township.

About half of some 10,000 pupils in the district are to start half-day sessions tomorrow, but a group of mothers will try to have them put back on full-days. The other 5,000 pupils are to go on half-days in the winter.

Mrs. Raymond Swindell, 5508 Pleasant, said the half-day session protest was sparked when proposed half-day sessions in Livonia were ruled unconstitutional Friday.

She and Mrs. Donald Keehn, 2990 Van Vandt, are calling for other Waterford parents "interested in revoking half-day sessions" to meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the VFW Hall, 1600 Airport.

APPEAL WATCHED

Meanwhile, school officials are waiting to see what happens in Livonia where the school board will appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court Friday's circuit court decision requiring the school district to remain on half-days this fall.

"The main thing we want is a full day's education for our children," Mrs. Swindell said. "What can my second-grade son learn when he's in school only 2½ hours a day?"

Waterford elementary pupils are being put on half-day sessions this fall to prevent the school system from going into the red, according to acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen.

He has said elementary pupils will only be able to get a basic education—reading, writing and arithmetic—on half-day sessions.

PARENTS BROUGHT SUIT

The Livonia ruling by Wayne County Circuit Judge Charles Kaufman came

after a group of Livonia parents brought suit against the school board which had ordered half-day sessions this fall.

"If they can do it in Livonia," Mrs. Swindell comments, "we can do it here."

She contends that when the State Legislature said schools districts must have 180 days of school for students to receive state funds that they mean 180 full days.

Related Stories, A-2, A-4

JUDGE'S RULING

Kaufman said in his ruling it was up to the State Legislature to provide the 180 days of education required by Michigan's Constitution, ruling, in effect, that half-day classes could not be imposed as a cost-cutting device.

An attorney will be at the Waterford parents' meeting tomorrow to explain their rights, according to Mrs. Swindell. If the parents decide on court action, money would have to be raised for the attorney's fee.

He cited a section of the current state aid act which prohibits deficit financing and imposes a misdemeanor penalty of $500 fine and/or three months in jail.

'RULING DISCRIMINATORY'

The acting superintendent also says he feels the Livonia school board decision putting grades 5 through 8 on a half-day schedule is discriminatory.

"That's why we spread it out over all elementary grades 1 through 6,"

While the Waterford protest mounts, Pagen said he has asked Kaufman for a copy of his complete decision which he will turn over to the school attorney for study.

Half-day sessions have been a traditional way of resolving school finance problems, Pagen comments.

DIRKSEN HAS SURGERY — Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate's 73-year-old Republican leader, had a growth removed from his right lung at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington yesterday. His condition is satisfactory. Reportedly, the tumor was cancerous and the operation was highly delicate because the GOP leader's heart was twice its normal size.

Libya Coup Seems Pattern: Looking to Reds

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Libya's coup d'état is another in a series of upheavals by army officers in the huge Arab world, which is moving it steadily closer to becoming a main arena of confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Arab world upheavals have been following a pattern, and from initial assessments, Libya seems unlikely to be an exception.

The pattern involves overthrow of a conservative regime by army officials in the name of Arab unity, nationalism and a "new brand of Arab socialism." The tendency then is to shift to the direction of the Communist world. It would seem paradoxical for army officers, traditionally rightist, to do this, but the factors involved cause it to make sense to the Arabs. Among the factors are the existence of Israel in the heart of Arabdom, resentment of the West for making that possible, wounded pride, dreams of ancient Arab glories and a large measure of opportunism which causes Arab military men to reach in any direction for help, regardless of long-range risks. These leaders often see nothing illogical in accepting arms and other aid from the Russians while outlawing communism in their own countries.

ENORMOUS AREA

An enormous Arab area is involved in this progressive orientation toward Moscow. It includes Iraq, Syria, Yemen, Sudan, the United Arab Republic and Algeria.

Within grabbing distance now

may be a goal the Russians long have nurtured — a chain of friendly governments stretching along the Mediterranean and into the Arab East for almost 3,000 miles.

Historically, the Russians have pressed southward seeking warm weather ports and outlets to free them from a sense of isolation. Today that pressure is extended over a wide area. The goal, primarily, would be to counter what Moscow considers a western threat of encirclement with a sort of encirclement. The oil of Libya and the Arab East is largely incidental in this. The Russians do not need it. At the moment, Europe does.

For much of the cold war, the main arena was Europe. But battle lines there are more or less frozen. The current Moscow doctrine is that East Europe is the Soviet backyard. The West did not choose to dispute this in 1956, during the Hungarian rising, in 1961 during the building of the Berlin Wall, or in 1968 when a Czechoslovak reform movement was crushed by the Russians.

ANOTHER MATTER

The Middle East is quite another matter. Moscow began concentrating much of its attention there in 1955, helped the following year by the British, French and Israeli attack on the Suez Canal Zone. The Russians lavished arms on the Egyptian regime installed in 1952 by army officers under Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser after the overthrow of the corrupt monarchy. The 1956 developments set off a chain of events. Syria, influenced by arms-hungry army officers, veered far to the left. Iraq had a bloody upheaval in 1958 in which King Faisal was murdered, and since then a bewildering series of army coups and counter-coups.

Yemen's feudal monarchy was overturned in 1962. Once again army officers looked to the Big Bear for arms. Last May, a military coup in the big African Arab nation of Sudan overthrew the civilian regime. A military-dominated Sudanese government is flirting with Communist regimes and taking the now-familiar hostile posture toward the United States.

The Arabs seem to have gained little from all this except arms, war and turmoil. More than a billion dollars worth of Soviet arms went up in smoke in the Arabs' 1967 lightning defeat at the hands of Israel. Moscow now is spending $2 billion or more resupplying and retraining the Syrians and the Egyptians, apart from substantial other arms investments elsewhere in the Arab world.

The Libyan coup might persuade Moscow that it has an unbeatable hand in the huge Middle East. If so, chances seem less than bright that there will be a big power agreement to settle the area down and make it less dangerous.

Integration Setups Stir Black, White Protests

Strife, Suits Stymie Some Schools in South

ATLANTA (AP) — White boycotts, black picket lines and federal lawsuits faced school systems in the South today as the new term's second day of classes began.

Angry protests against racial integration Tuesday included a fire-bombing and the padlocking of schools in one area.

White students staged large-scale to wholesale boycotts in some districts of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and North Carolina.

IN NORTH CAROLINA

Two pre-dawn fire bombs struck Irwin Avenue School in Charlotte, N.C., Tuesday. Classes opened anyway at the predominantly Negro junior high school which had to absorb many pupils of lower grades under an integration plan.

Police reported no arrests in the bombings, but 15 Negroes were arrested later in Charlotte after a demonstration blocked traffic. They were protesting an integration plan that closed their school and six other predominantly black schools, and called for 4,200 black students to reach classes elsewhere by bus.

Alabama's former Gov. George C. Wallace, a third-party presidential candidate in 1968, urged Alabama parents to "march on their schools" and demand freedom-of-choice attendance plans for their children.

In Alabama's rural Choctaw County, only 482 of an expected 2,300 white pupils showed up for newly integrated classes.

LAWSUITS IN WORKS

The Department of Justice, meanwhile, prepared lawsuits against several Georgia school districts. Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said the districts had reneged on voluntary integration plans.

A five-man squad of civil rights division lawyers moved into the state to initiate court action. Suits were filed late Tuesday against three districts.

Other federal attorneys were at work in New Orleans on several Louisiana school cases. One of these involved Ascension Parish.

In East Ascension, schools were padlocked at 6:30 a.m. and in other areas Monday night to prevent the opening of classes under court integration orders.

LIMITED OPERATIONS
Schools were closed or operated at limited levels Tuesday

throughout the eastern part of the parish. There were white pickets at several schools, protesting integration decrees that threw out freedom-of-choice plans.

There were white pupil boycotts in Florida's Manatee and Hillsborough counties in protest over integration plans which in some schools left whites in the minority.

In Tennessee's Cannon County, school bus drivers walked out demanding higher wages and in Lawrence County the teachers struck over a pay raise issue.

Black pupils staged "freedom classes" on the grounds of a suburban Atlanta school which they occupied for two days last week to protest the closing of the school to achieve integration.

In Florence, S.C., about 150 Negro children and parents vowed to conduct classes on the lawn until the school board reopens their closed school.

About 70 white parents appeared at the Jefferson County school board offices in Birmingham, Ala., protesting that Irondale Primary School — an all-black facility scheduled for integration — was unfit for use because of outdoor toilets, broken windows and inadequate lunchroom facilities.

Indian Troops' Presence Tilts Nepal's Diplomatic Teeter-Totter

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—The Himalayan kingdom of Nepal is playing a political game with India that is pushing it inadvertently closer to China.

Nepalese government leaders recognize this but quickly point out they are not willing to sacrifice independence for improved relations with their southern neighbor.

The problem centers on the presence of 60-odd Indian military personnel stationed in Nepal. At least 32 of them are posted in 18 checkpoints along the Nepal-China border to operate radios and report all movements across the border. The rest are liaison officers in the capital city.

Prime Minister Kirti Nidhi

Bista, who is widely believed to be only a spokesman for tough-minded King Mahendra, has been pushing hard for the Indian group's removal.

He denies that China has put any pressure on him to oust the Indian military element. He says: "I stand for the supreme national ideals of my country. India must withdraw if it respects the sovereignty of its country."

He adds that he could understand that China would not be pleased to have Indian troops along its border.

Peking has voiced approval of Bista's stand through radio broadcasts.

WONT PLAY OFF

Bista, a pleasant, bespectacled man, makes it clear he wants good relations with both China and India. "We have succeeded in maintaining our neutrality and we will continue to succeed," he says. "We will not play China and India off against each other."

Preventing this from occurring anyway may become increasingly complex, particularly if it takes any retaliatory moves through trade against Nepal. Nepal now sends more than 80 per cent of its trade to India. India also provides nearly three times more aid than any other country. It currently pumps $12.6 million in actual aid into Nepal, compared to $4.69 million from China and $3.7 million, plus $2.8 million for malaria eradication, from the United States.

Chinese interests in this country of 12 million are reflected in the assistance projected for fiscal 1970: $7.7 million. This aid is not militarily oriented, with the questionable exception of roads which could be used to move troops. China has built two major roads, including one that runs from Tibet through the snowy Himalayas into Katmandu. The other runs east-west. India is concerned with the roads from a security standpoint, but Nepal sees it as a trade potential. "The road runs both ways," says Bista.

The Chinese have also provided a tile factory and a shoe factory and are currently building a hydroelectric dam.

HIGHLY VISIBLE

These projects are highly visible, compared to the American efforts in agriculture, education, health and aviation. This brings some criticism, even from Nepalese intellectuals sympathetic to America.

Who do you think the people will believe is doing the best for them?" said one American-trained doctor.

Despite their obvious aid projects, the Chinese themselves are extraordinarily shy. An American correspondent who visited the area of a dam project saw only one Chinese close up, and he promptly ran behind his dump truck.

Nepal was for centuries lost to outside civilization. It preferred it that way and the British, when they ruled India, made no effort to change it.

Not until 1954 was the first road pushed into Katmandu.

Despite Nepal's independence, India has basically considered it as part of the motherland, as it does with the two kingdoms of Bhutan and Sikkim.

India Foreign Minister Dinesh Singh, on a recent visit, repeatedly preferred to a "special relationship" between the two countries. The controlled Nepal press said this means "reduced sovereignty."

King Mahendra abolished political parties in 1960 and now runs the country with an elected national assembly (Panchayat).

EXILED OPPOSITION

The king faces continued opposition from politicians in exile, living in India, which has not improved his liking for India. In early July, three newspapers were closed in two days for printing unspecified stories "harmful to the national interests."

Immediately afterward, Rishikesh Shaw, former ambassador to the United States and former foreign minister, was arrested. Bista explained this was done "because he had caused unrest in our society and to prevent further occurrences, he was arrested." Shaw, linked to the expelled liberal Congress party leaders in India, had criticized Bista for his handling of the Nepal-India military problem.

Within another day, 16 students were arrested for staging a demonstration in support of India. Similar demonstrations by pro-Chinese students were unopposed. No charges are required against the arrested under the government's broad security act.

Big Machines 'Devour' Cars

Result is Scrap for Steel Reprocessing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—No, not all old cars are flattened into scrap pancakes. Some are chewed up in 90 seconds by giant machines that turn them into shavings and chunks for reprocessing into steel.

The machines, which stand about three stories high and cost $2 million apiece, dispose of the auto bodies at the rate of 1,000 a day.

These auto eaters belong to three metal processing firms. Clean Steel Inc. of Long Beach has the "Hammer Mill." The "Pro-Prater" belongs to Hugo Neuberger Co. of Terminal Island and Lauria Brothers uses the "Fragmentizer" in Vernon.

The scrap market is very speculative, like the stock market, explained Douglas M. Schapiro, office manager of Clean Steel.

OVER THE SLUMP

"Prices are up one day, down another. But the big machines with their tremendous output allow us to ride over the slumps."

Richard Neer, vice president of Neuberger, says the companies "have their own markets. We don't really compete with each other except perhaps to get cars."

The autos, which are delivered to them by train, have been plucked of tires, seats, motors, windows, transmissions. They are bought for about $15.

A crane grabs them off a scrap heap with a sound like breaking orange crates, and swings them onto a conveyor belt.

RIPPED APART

They are drawn into the machine's gaping maw and ripped apart with a roar by rotating hammers and cutting tools.

The body comes out in three piles:

- Usable steel lumps—about 10 to 15 per cent of the total.
- Valuable metals such as magnesium, zinc, copper, aluminum.
- Impurities, of which 25 to 30 per cent is dirt.

The separation is done by a complicated setup of sifters, magnets and chemicals.

In Moderate Trading

Stock Market Sags Slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sagged a bit in moderate trading early today.

IBM was off 1 at 342½. Eastman Kodak dipped 1 to 76½.

Atlantic Richfield, 3,600 shares at 115½, unchanged;

General Electric, 3,500 shares at 85½, off 1; Lockheed Aircraft, 4,000 shares at 74½, off 1; and American Telephone & Telegraph, 8,000 shares at 32½, unchanged.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Fractional losses included Aerojet-General, Allen Electric, and Four Seasons Nursing.

British Petroleum and North Canadian Oils gained eighth.

The Dow Jones industrial average showed a gain of 3.04 at 1 p.m. Tuesday but this eased and the indicator closed up 1.08 at 337.78. The Associated Press 60-stock average closed unchanged at 294.5.

Market Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen congressmen have protested to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell about reports he may drop civil action against the Automobile Manufacturers Association on charges of conspiring to slow development of antipollution devices for motor vehicles.

The representatives, all liberal Democrats, said the Justice Department was negotiating with the association and its major members — General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors — for a consent judgment in the suit brought by Mitchell's predecessor, Ramsey Clark, earlier this year.

"DON'T TAP FUNDS"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney has told Congress the Nixon administration has reservations about opening up two potential sources of hard-to-find mortgage money.

Romney said neither the government National Mortgage Association — known also as Ginnie Mae — nor the Federal Reserve System should be used to provide additional resources for the tight housing market at this time.

DEALERS SUE FORD

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — An alliance of 200 New Jersey Ford dealers has filed suit against the Ford Motor Co. in an historic move that could be landmark.

The suit — possibly the first in modern auto history in which dealers have moved en masse against their franchisor — seeks to force the Ford Motor Co. to return to direct dealings with car buyers.

DEMAND PAGES 'NO'

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — American Motors Corp. is expected to reject tomorrow a demand by the United Auto Workers Union that it catch up immediately with wages and fringe benefits against their franchisor.

The suit — possibly the first in modern auto history in which dealers have moved en masse against their franchisor — seeks to force the Ford Motor Co. to return to direct dealings with car buyers.

News in Brief

As if the issues were too great to synthesize, a forecast of boom often totally ignores the opposite possibility. And a forecast of bust quite frequently avoids mention of economic strengths.

This polarization is noted also in another area of popular discussions. It involves the matter of personal indebtedness and its consequences. You can choose

"This country is headed for a spectacular downfall. Just look at all that debt being run up by people. Living over their heads. Never be able to pay all that credit that's been extended to them."

"What's going to happen when we have a little downturn, when people get laid off and can't pay those bills? Why, there'll be a panic. Bill collectors will be tripping over each other to be first in line."

The comparison then is made with the 1920s when, it is said, people went into orgies of self-indulgence. "Isn't it the same today," the cynic says, his tone laden with the sorry burden of knowing the terrible fate that lies ahead.

That's one viewpoint. Consider another:

"One of the fundamental strengths of this American economy, a factor that gives me great confidence in our future, is the responsible way in which ordinary people have shown they can handle debt. It's encouraging. Is it as bad?"

"Sure the American people have run up a lot of bills, something over $100 billion in private, short-term debt compared with only $17 billion or $18 billion 10 years ago. But is it as bad as it seems?"

"I'm encouraged by a couple of things. First, those bills aren't being paid back regularly. The American people as a whole consider it some sort of a sin to let their bills ride. Ask any banker."

"Secondly, those bank accounts that people are accumulating look good to me. Why, for many months they were pulling more than 7 per cent of their take-home pay into savings. That doesn't look like a spending orgy to me."

"Take your pick: The country is heading for a boom in the 1970s that will lift the material well-being of most people beyond their dreams; the American economy is heading for trouble and the signs are all about us."

It takes a genius, perhaps, to synthesize the two points of view into one forecast. Rather than attempt that synthesis with ordinary minds, many prognosticators just put on the blinds and take a position.
