

POWs Send Greetings via Radio Hanoi

NEW YORK (AP) — "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I'm in good health and ... full of hope. Hope you'll have a joyous-filled holiday season..."

The message, from an American prisoner of war in North Vietnam to his family, was broadcast by Radio Hanoi yesterday. It was monitored in Hong Kong and relayed to the United States. At least four times within the past eight days Radio Hanoi has broadcast such messages.

American radio networks have broadcast the messages over their facilities and sent them by closed circuit to stations in the fliers' hometowns.

The message above was attributed to Air Force Capt. Joe David Luna and a tape was played by CBS News for his wife, Mrs. Pearl Luna of Roy, Utah. The audio quality was poor and Mrs. Luna said she was unable to be sure the voice was that of her husband.

OTHER MESSAGES

Hanoi Radio said other messages came from Lt. Cmdr. Hugh Allen Stafford of Cambridge, Md.; Capt. Norman McDaniel of Greensboro, N.C.; and Capt. James Quincy Collins Jr. of Alhambra, Calif.

The Christmas greetings run from 30 to 45 seconds.

CBS Radio has broadcast the messages, usually with comment from the families, over its network. NBC Radio broadcast three of the greetings on its network and is sending them by closed circuit to hometown stations.

ABC Radio is sending the messages to the hometown stations, and in addition is mailing tapes of the broadcasts to the families. The Pentagon also requested copies of the tapes.

SOBBED IN RELIEF

Mrs. Jean McDaniel of Greensboro sobbed in relief when CBS News called her with the message from her husband.

"This is the best Christmas present I could give my children because they are always asking me where he is and when he'll be coming home," she said. "At least, now they know that someday he might be coming home."

Private Eyes Baring Many Holiday Tales

MIAMI (AP) — "Tis the season to be followed," says a private investigator who recommends avoiding the office holiday party.

The season "always brings a rush of new business on the domestic relations front," investigator Ed Bishop said yesterday in an interview.

"The much-joked-about office party frequently triggers what is usually a long-standing problem," he said. "Liquor relaxes the guy's inhibitions... in many instances, Christmas parties act as a catalyst."

After the partygoer has tarried longer than he should, Bishop added, "the wife suddenly gets what she considers concrete evidence of something she's suspected all along. Then she calls us."

A BUSY FIRM

The rugged, 54-year-old former Miami Beach policeman has worked for several Dade County grand juries and currently is helping a Florida legislative committee. His agency has 73 investigators.

Although wives make many of the calls that bring him an upsurge of business during the holidays, Bishop said, they aren't alone in contacting the agency.

"Oh sure," he said, "we chase wives, too."

City's Santa to Give Candy, Raise Cane With Criminals

Santa Claus will be on double duty through Wednesday in downtown Pontiac. He'll pass out candy canes to the youngsters and be on the lookout for criminals. Santa—for the third Christmas season—is Police Officer James L. Ockerman Sr.

Ockerman, a 26-year-veteran of the Pontiac force and bearer of seniority Badge 1—will wear a St. Nick suit over his police uniform.

Police Chief William Hanger approved the annual project three years ago. The Pontiac Police Officers Association provides funds for the treats Ockerman gives the children.

"I think it's good community relations and the kids love it," Ockerman said.

The kids aren't the only ones who love it. Ockerman, who plays Santa for his own children and grandchildren, and his friends' children, arrives at the police station bright and early to don his special suit.

He will walk his downtown beat from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily (except this weekend) until Christmas. And he will love every minute of it.

"We try to show the people that we policemen aren't just out catching criminals all the time, that sometimes we help put a little cheer and a little humor into people's lives," Ockerman said.

Arabs Unifying Israeli Strategy

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Kings and presidents of 11 Arab states and representatives of three others and of Palestinian refugee groups were meeting here today to unify their strategy against Israel.

Informants said guerrilla chieftain Yasser Arafat, whose Palestinian raiders have captured the imagination of the Arab world, will try to convince the Arab leaders to abandon efforts for a political settlement with Israel.

But the sources added there are moderate Arab leaders who still believe a negotiated settlement is possible and they will try to win over those who advocate force.

Whatever is decided, the outcome of the meeting is likely to set the Arab nations' joint attitude to peace moves sponsored by the Big Four, The Soviet Union, the United States, France and Britain.

The meeting is the fifth Arab summit and the first since August 1967 in Khartoum after Israel's victory over Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the June war.

MONDAY — Variable cloudiness and cold with chance of snow flurries.

Congress Set to Pass Tax Reform by Yule

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — President Nixon indicated to Republican congressional leaders today that a House-Senate compromise on tax reform and relief has improved the chance that he will sign the measure into law.

But Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said the President did not rule out completely the tax bill veto he once threatened.

"The cuts made by the conference are a substantial improvement in the bill," Scott told newsmen after the White House meeting.

But he said Nixon did not disclose any final decision on the tax bill.

'IMPACT REDUCED'

"... He has said that the inflationary impact has now been considerably reduced," Scott said.

The huge tax bill, cracking down on many preferences but also passing out extensive tax cuts and Social Security benefits, is set for passage by Congress before Christmas.

Related Stories, Page A-8

over the next three years, raise Social Security benefits to some 25 million Americans by 15 per cent across the board and ease tax rates for single persons.

But nothing in the bill will affect the amount of taxes Americans will have to pay next April 15 on income earned this year.

After a Senate-House conference committee completed work on the measure yesterday, it came much closer in its revenue effect to an earlier House version Nixon indicated he would accept.

Moreover, it provides a surplus of revenue in the two years the President is most concerned about—$6.47 billion in 1970 and $288 million in 1971 — although the projections show a net loss later.

A high-ranking official, who could not be identified, said yesterday there was little doubt that Nixon would sign the bill. He said Nixon needed the revenue it would yield next year.

But the official also said Nixon would couple his signature with a sharp complaint about the long-run effects of the bill. Its long list of provisions eventually will cost the government several billion dollars.

The House has tentatively scheduled a vote on the measure Monday and the Senate is expected to follow promptly.

ONE DOGPOWER—Noah the Ark, 18-month-old Afghan hound, gets his daily walk in Robbinsdale, Minn., 16 inches of snow or not. His mistress, Mrs. Francis X. McPhillips, figures she'd rather drive than walk. So, out comes the car, on goes the leash and there goes Noah.

Key Aide Quitting Commerce Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resignation of a key man in the Nixon administration's "black capitalism" program has brought to the surface once again the bubbling turmoil in the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

Arthur L. Ortiz, director of the Commerce Department agency's campaign to persuade franchising companies to make more room for members of minority groups, submitted his resignation Thursday. It was not disclosed until OMBE was questioned yesterday.

Ortiz will return next month to New Mexico, which he left six months ago, to become state personnel director.

Although OMBE said the parting was cordial, sources within the agency said Ortiz was frustrated by what he thought were administrative shortcomings and was receptive to another job offer before New Mexican officials approached him.

EX-DIRECTOR MOVES

His resignation was submitted on the same day Commerce announced that Thomas F. Roeser, who was fired almost two months ago as OMBE director, quit his job as special assistant to Secretary Maurice H. Stans. Roeser will become public affairs director for the Peace Corps.

It became clear yesterday from interviews with several OMBE officials and observers that discontent has approached such a point the agency might lose as many as four of the 20 members of its professional staff.

The discontent apparently has its roots in the time before Roeser was fired.

Even now, however, there are differences of opinion about the cause of the firing. High Commerce officials have contended Roeser wasn't a good administrator.

Roeser supporters claim he was dismissed because he differed with Stans on the way OMBE's activities should be promoted.

38-Year Fugitive Gets Full Pardon

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — For 38½ years he lived the half-life of a fugitive. Now, wherever he may be and by whatever name, John Q. Harris at last is truly free.

The Utah Board of Pardons has quietly decreed that Harris, called the dean of Utah prison escapes, no longer owes a 1-to-10-year term for writing a bad check.

Harris was 25 when he began serving his sentence in 1931. A month later he fled a work detail and vanished. The search was brief, and the escape became only a statistic.

Then in October of this year Warden John W. Turner received a telephone tip that Harris was living in Ambler, Pa. Checking old files, Turner verified the long-forgotten escape.

What happened next is a bit sketchy; state officials have applied a sympathetic muffler to the case. But this picture emerges:

Utah's Board of Corrections decided to ask Pennsylvania authorities to check Harris' record in the years since the escape, but officials there say the request never came through.

Instead, Warden Turner got a phone call from Harris, and a letter. Harris, now near age 63, said he had led a decent life over the years, and wanted only to be let alone.

Turner complied. On Dec. 12, the Board of Pardons terminated Harris' sentence. The action was not reported until this week when a reporter asked about the case.

Ernest Dean Wright, director of the Board of Corrections, says there was practical reason for freeing Harris: prison is supposed to rehabilitate men. But freedom has already accomplished that.

"His record is clean," Wright said.

Harris' crimes were never major. Sketchy prison records from 1931 suggest that Harris, from rural Southern Utah, got in trouble for checks covering only small amounts. There are indications that his communications with the warden told of illness and depression-type poverty.

And his punishment was not light. "After all," said Wright, "this man spent one month in prison—and 38 years looking over his shoulder."

'State Bar Post Not Waldron's'

LANSING (AP) — Reports that the Michigan Bar Association will pick House Minority Leader Robert E. Waldron as its executive secretary have been denied by A. DeVere Rueggesser, bar president.

"There's no basis for that," Rueggesser said yesterday when asked about several reports that Waldron would be named to succeed Milton E. Bachmann, who is retiring. The post is understood to pay $25,000 a year.

Waldron, a Grosse Pointe Republican who will be 50 in late January, meanwhile, confirmed that he is thinking of resigning from the seat he has held since 1955. Asked his interest in the bar association job, Waldron replied he "would certainly be interested" if offered it.

An effective, closely followed leader among House Republicans, Waldron raised eyebrows when he remained conspicuously silent on Gov. William G. Milliken's education reform plans.

Adamantly opposed to the parochial plan that Milliken incorporated in a more than $1-billion school aid bill, Waldron was reported to be concerned that his opposition to that would be interpreted as opposition to Milliken.

Lawmakers Go Home; No Gift to Governor

LANSING (AP)—The Michigan Legislature went home for Christmas yesterday, leaving Gov. William Milliken not even a lump of coal in place of the nonexistent stack of approved education reform bills.

There was little to show for the 2½-month-long legislative session. Milliken planned to leave today for a long-awaited vacation in the Virgin Islands before traveling to the Rose Bowl next month to root for the Michigan Wolverines.

"There are some who will say that the session which is ending today, and which began in the early part of October, was not a successful session," Milliken told lawmakers prior to the noon adjournment.

'SOUND OPENING POSITION'

"I do not agree with that," "I will not acknowledge to anyone that we are in anything but a sound opening position" for action when the Legislature convenes its 1970 session Jan. 14, Milliken told newsmen earlier yesterday.

The governor said he believed the "hundreds and hundreds of hours" of discussion on education reform this fall, put his package in a desirable position for passage.

But Senate Minority Leader Sander Levin, D-Berkeley, said the fall session had been designed for action—"not just talk."

"It is absurd to make claims of substantial progress on education reform after conducting a special session devoted to the problem without the passage of a single bill," Levin contended.

FEW BILLS PASSED

The session, aimed at revamping the state's educational system on the basis of a Milliken program developed by a special commission, passed only a few bills — including one to boost the current 6 per cent interest rate ceiling on municipal bond sales.

Not one education measure from the Milliken package made it through both chambers.

After much debate, floor maneuvering and even a court suit on the controversial question of parochialism, the Senate approved a $1 billion-plus state school aid bill for 1970-71 with $25 million in state funds for private and religious schools.

The parochial forces — pro and con — went to work on House members to make the issue one of the most lobbied ever.

NO HOUSE VOTE

The House never voted on the bill. A three-bill package of bills aimed at closing tax "loopholes," sponsored by Senate Taxation Chairman Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, passed the Senate but was appended down to the point where they brought in only about $28 million — compared with DeMaso's $40 million in the House.

Windsor Man Is Charged in Gift-Certificate Fraud

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — A 51-year-old Windsor man was charged yesterday with possessing $105,000 in counterfeit gift certificates from the J. L. Hudson Co., the largest department store in neighboring Detroit.

Joseph Kikola was arraigned before Judge John Wheelton in provincial court and was held under $50,000 bond pending a second hearing Monday.

He is specifically charged with unlawfully possessing "material that was adapted and intended to be used to commit forgery, namely approximately 2,100 forged J. L. Hudson merchandise certificates valued at $50 each."

The Detroit News quoted the Detroit area director of the U.S. Attorney General's Task Force Against Organized Crime and Racketeering as saying the man was believed to be involved in a multimillion-dollar scheme to defraud the store.

U.S. VIOLATION?

The News quoted James E. Ritchie, task force director, as saying the ring involved citizens in both Windsor and Detroit.

James Brickley, U.S. attorney for Michigan's Eastern District, would say only that his office was investigating possible violations of U.S. law.

Ritchie was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Inspector John Williamson of the Windsor police said the phony gift certificates were found in Kikola's car Thursday night after he was arrested in Windsor.

Kikola was arrested reportedly after fleeing a routine customs check on the Windsor side of the Ambassador Bridge, which spans the Detroit River and links Detroit and Windsor.

STORE TIPPED OFF

John W. Paynter, Hudson's treasurer, said the store received information a week ago that an attempt was going to be made to push counterfeit gift certificates in the store during the Christmas holidays.

"To protect ourselves, Hudson's had put a security check into effect on all gift certificates of $10 or more," Paynter said.

"As far as I know, none of the phony certificates have been presented," he added.

The only difference between the fake certificates and the legitimate ones was that the counterfeit documents had no IBM punching and no serial numbers.

U.S. Reported Set to Let Bunker Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News says the White House has agreed to relieve Ambassador to South Vietnam Ellsworth Bunker of his post.

However, State Department and White House spokesmen in Washington said they could not confirm the CBS report.

The CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite quoted White House sources yesterday as saying President Nixon has agreed to let Bunker go as soon after the New Year as possible.

The report said the White House has discouraged speculation that Bunker might go to the Paris Peace Talks as a replacement for former chief negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge.

All the residents were routed after Mrs. Marge Radke called firemen at 3:21 a.m. from her apartment when she noticed smoke coming from an electric plug connecting her television set. There were no injuries.

Capt. Junior Deneen said there was "at least" $15,000 damage to the building and contents.

Deneen blames faulty wiring in the second floor circuitry, for causing the fire in Mrs. Radke's apartment. The blaze shot up between the walls to the third floor and through the roof. Smoke and water damage was evident on all three floors.

'EXCELLENT FIRE TRAPS'

Deneen said the old building had several false ceilings and floors creating space between the original and the modernized structures that created "excellent firetraps."

Besides Mrs. Radke, others homeless are Robert Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick DePogter and Christopher Burns. None had insurance on their belongings.

"We couldn't afford insurance on the contents," said Patrick DePogter. "I'm in the Army."

Mrs. Radke had just finished the last of her Christmas shopping. All the presents burned.

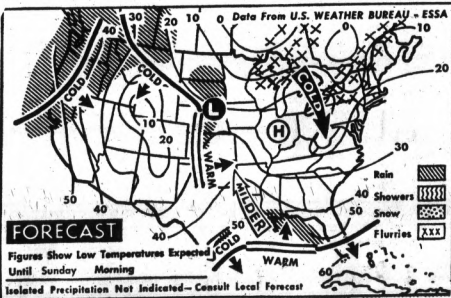

The DePogters will stay with an area family over the holidays.

Birmingham

School Board Cuts Back on Bus Program

BIRMINGHAM—The Birmingham Board of Education voted this week to eliminate all remaining exceptions to the district's bus transportation policy.

Under the mandate, students living less than a mile away from their school will not be provided bus service.

The new regulation also stipulates that all students residing within an incorporated city—Birmingham and Troy—will not have bus service.

The board based its bus transportation revision on the theory that public safety is a municipal responsibility. Financial difficulties also prompted the revision. The new regulation would cut costs approximately $2,000 a year per bus.

Board members also indicated that busing may be cut back from the one mile provision to one and a half miles in nonincorporated areas.

The City Commission has voted to permit teen-age dances on Sunday.

The city's attorney was directed to revise an existing city ordinance that bans dancing on Sunday except at a church or nonprofit institution.

The ordinance revision was prompted when the commission was requested by officials of The Palladium, a teen-age dance hall at 136 Brownell, to permit dancing on Sunday.

Sunday dancing hours will be limited from 2 to 10 p.m.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—Robert L. Cinoman, 5981 E. Millerway, has been named to the newly created position of manager-service sales development in the central industrial and transportation region of General Electric's installation and service engineering department.

Cinoman holds degrees from Yale and Wayne State Universities.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS—Lee E. Larson, 1910 Hillcrest, has been appointed head of the corporate sign department of General Motors' Argonaut Realty Division.

He will be responsible for the production, engineering, installation and maintenance of signs for the corporate identification program.

N. Viets Step Up Supply Shuttles; Offensive Feared

SAIGON (AP) — The number of North Vietnamese trucks moving supplies south along the Ho Chi Minh trail has increased eight-fold since October, official sources said today.

In October, reconnaissance planes sighted about 250 trucks a week moving through eastern Laos, the sources said, but the number jumped to about 1,000 a week in November when the monsoon season ended and roads became more passable. In the past two weeks, of the monsoon season.

The U.S. Command has stepped up air strikes against the Ho Chi Minh road network, using fighter-bombers and B52s. The U.S. Command, despite President Nixon's admission earlier this month that American bombers are "in the trail," refuses to disclose air strikes in Laos.

But headquarters did announce a B52 raid early today said. In Saigon American troops were warned to stay off the border. Five B52s dropped 150 tons of bombs just northwest of the A Shau Valley, a key entry point from Laos.

Incident in Saigon this week. Spokesman said there was little activity on the battlefields.

Despite a ban on street demonstrations, several hundred persons marched on the National Assembly building Friday to demand action against three assemblymen accused of being Vietcong sympathizers. Police stopped traffic to let the demonstrators cross a main street near the assembly building.

With obvious government approval — some of the demonstrators said they had been paid to participate — the crowd smashed open the front doors and invaded the chamber where about 80 assemblymen were meeting. Police took no firm action to halt the protest.

Political observers have viewed charges against the three legislators as part of President Nguyen Van Thieu's campaign against anyone advocating neutralism or a coalition government as a way to end the war.

Safety Hints Listed for Holiday Tipplers

CHICAGO (AP) — A 180-pound man might drink five bottles of beer before he gets drunk, but three bottles would do it to a 120-pounder.

The heavier man might drink five shots of whiskey before falling "under the influence," but four would do for the little one.

And all holiday drinkers should remember that even the "average" drink has a mind-boggling effect for an hour after it is consumed.

These are among the guidelines for drinkers set forth by the American Medical Association and the National Safety Council in a new campaign to teach drinkers how long the effect of a drink lasts and what it does to their driving ability.

MORE REALISTIC

They believe the campaign is a more realistic approach to ward drunken driving. More than 25,000 of the 56,200 automobile fatalities in 1968 involved alcohol consumption, and the organizations concede that past campaigns urging drivers not to drink at all have had little effect.

The council and the AMA have prepared charts relating drinks and blood size to the degree of intoxication.

Most states consider a person with a 0.15 per cent concentration of alcohol in the blood to be "under the influence." But some states, federal agencies, the AMA, and the Safety Council recommend that a person with a 0.10 per cent alcohol concentration in his blood be presumed "under the influence."

Among popular alcoholic drinks, beer contains the lowest percentage of alcohol while whiskey and rum have the highest, but—because of the size of the drink—cocktails such as martinis and manhattans are the most intoxicating.

GETTING UP THERE

A 120-pound drinker reaches the 0.10 per cent concentration level with slightly more than three bottles of beer. The 180-pound drinker would have to consume five bottles to reach that limit.

The 120-pound whiskey drinker would reach the 0.10 per cent level with less than four one-ounce shots. The 180-pound drinker could have five.

One and a half martinis or manhattans would bring the 120-pound drinker to the 0.10 limit. Just over two would bring the 180-pound to that level.

A 12-ounce bottle of beer contains 4 per cent, or a half-ounce, of alcohol. Wine, depending on the type, contains 12 to 18 per cent. After-dinner liquors contain 25 to 40 per cent.

A HALF OUNCE

Whiskey, scotch, vodka, rum, brandy and cognac contain 45 per cent alcohol, so a one-ounce shot glass has nearly a half-ounce of alcohol.

"Strong" cocktails, such as martinis and manhattans, contain 30 per cent alcohol, or one ounce per 3½-ounce drink. "Medium" cocktails, such as old fashioned, daiquiris and alexanders, have 15 per cent alcohol, or three-fifths of an ounce per four-ounce glass.

Uganda Chief Recovering From Wounds

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Uganda's President Milton Obote is recovering from gunshot wounds that are not serious, a government spokesman said today.

The 44-year-old president was shot in the head Friday night at the close of the annual convention of his ruling Uganda People's Congress.

Sources said one bullet entered one cheek and passed out the other. There was no official confirmation. Obote was reported to be conscious when he was rushed to Mulago Hospital.

The government spokesman said an armed man was arrested in connection with the assassination attempt, but his identity was not revealed.

AIRPORT CLOSED

Entebbe airport, 20 miles from Kampala, was closed for a short time, but was reopened early today and flights were reported operating normally.

Just before the shooting, the delegates to the party congress had approved Obote's call for a new Socialist "move to the left" for the East African country. They also called on Obote to make Uganda a one-party state.

As 1,000 delegates cheered and Obote started to leave, three shots rang out and he fell to the ground. An escort carried him a few steps to a car that hurried to the hospital.

The official government statement read: "The president was shot this evening as he left the Lugogo conference hall. He has been admitted to Mulago hospital and his condition is good. There is no cause for alarm. A man has been arrested with a weapon."

The attempt on Obote's life came two months after the assassination of President Abdirashid Ali Shermarke of Somalia and less than half a year after Kenya's minister for planning and development, Tom Mboya, was killed by a gunman in Nairobi.

The shootings, together with reported plots to overthrow the governments of nearby Tanzania and Burundi, have raised tension in East Africa to a high point.

Fiscal Danger Aired

Disquieting fiscal news emerges from a report of the Citizens Research Council of Michigan which is concerned with by State Rep. LOREN ANDERSON, R-Waterford Township. The report forecasts a State deficit of $332 million for the fiscal year 1972-73 if revenues do not begin to match current spending.

ANDERSON

It was but seven short years ago that a Republican administration headed by Gov. GEORGE ROMNEY took over an $80-million deficit accrued during 14 years of Democratic control and converted it into a $167-million surplus by mid-1966.

Meanwhile, however, the costs of government had been inching up, notably in the area of education and expanded social services, and within a year the surplus had shrunk to $11 million.

Michigan's first income tax, which became effective July 1, 1967, gave State finances a badly-needed shot in the arm, and kept budgetary operations in the black.

But again expenses are overtaking current income, with Gov. MILLIKEN's $1-billion education reform program certain to plunge the 1970-71 budget deep into the red.

The gloomy prospect seen by the Research Council and ANDERSON does not take into account an increase in State income or other taxes nor increased State revenues resulting from accelerating business activity.

It is inevitable, however, that the Michigan income tax rate will have to be appreciably increased—perhaps to double the present rate of 2.6 per cent for individuals—if the State is to remain solvent.

Rep. Anderson is to be commended for taking early steps to appraise the State's fiscal status before it is brought to light in a context of financial emergency.

Private Mail Plant Really Hums

NORTH BERGEN, N.J.—There is no time like Christmas to find out why the men who carry the mails need the postal service equal to its tasks. If you follow the huge mail trucks out of the Lincoln Tunnel into the shrinking wilds of the Jersey Meadows, you are led to a long, low, shiny industrial structure with trailer vans suckling like piglets along its sides. This is a distribution point for parcel post from over 1,000 post offices in the New York area. It is also a private enterprise operation called Mail Express Inc. Last Friday this company handled 110,532 "pieces" of parcel post. Most of these were mailbags full of packages with an average weight of 40 pounds. 4.5 MILLION POUNDS This means that in one 24 hour period some 4.5 million pounds of parcel post were unloaded, sorted and loaded again in vans marked for travel by rail. Mail Express, a subsidiary of Sealand Services which in turn belongs to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., was created to bid for this job after postal authorities decided that help from the private sector was needed. The premise of the new company was that machinery could be designed to do most of the work now done by hand in the old installations. The new plant, ready three months after the contract was awarded in 1958, has made good on the premise. CONVEYOR BELTS

The building is such a maze of conveyor belts that nowhere is it necessary to drag the bags of mail along the floor in the old style. Men load the incoming bags on fingers of the conveyor system and stack the outgoing bags in their trailers. But the sorting process is left almost entirely to computers. The bags don't lie around; they are either in motion or in the trucks ready to go.

The company is paid by the number of pieces it handles so the manager, Eric Aronson, looks hard for ways to make the operation more efficient. The company is currently testing a huge gadget devised to raise the front of a trailer and dump its contents onto conveyor belts without the help of human hands.

This is the kind of progress that increases profits. The testimony of Jersey Meadows is that the job can be done better and faster but not until the postal service is liberated from its anachronisms and licensed to meet modern demands with modern ingenuity. Space Program Future Periled by Past Success

HOUSTON—The biggest menace to the future of America's space program is the success of its past. Now that we have beaten the Russians to the moon, some congressmen ask, why not run a nice cheap operation from here on? Let's say a program that won't cost more per year than the war in Vietnam costs per month.

A good share of the public appears to feel the same way.

People used to fall on their knees in public places, such as in front of a giant TV screen in New York's Grand Central station, and beseech the Almighty's blessing upon a lone astronaut as he was lifted off the pad on his pillar of flame.

Today they take for granted the most extraordinary achievements and the attendantly stupefying risks. There was a lot of whining over our not getting color television from the moon on this latest trip.

CONSIDINE

SWEATED OUT ABORTS

John Glenn and the nation figuratively and literally sweated out four frustrating aborts of his Mercury capsule, spread over weeks. Delays were caused by such natural disasters as a low, 15,000-foot ceiling over Canaveral. Everybody was near collapse when Glenn finally got off and became the first U.S. spaceman in orbit.

Pete Conrad's Apollo 12 took off in a driving rainstorm, disappeared into the low-hung overcast within seconds, then was hit by lightning. But there was no panic aloft or below. A couple of days later, its lunar landing module touched down within yards of the target. Now they are all back to their split-level ranch houses, wives and kiddies and will live happily ever after.

Figured. That's what everybody thought would happen. "Everybody down here knows they put on these shows just for Walter Cronkite," a Houston dweller assured me the other night, without blinking a false eyelash.

One wonders what kind of coverage will be given to Jim Lovell's Apollo 13 mission to Fra Mauro in the lunar Alps. It is scheduled to lift off at some precise second after 3 p.m. EDT, next March 12. And it will, of course. What sort of pulse will we have when Alan Shepard sails upward in Apollo 14 next July?

Barring previous tragedy, the departure of Apollo 18, last of the series, could occasion scarcely more commotion than the departure of the 6:18 for Scarsdale. (King Features)

Comments on Education in Waterford Township

I voted for school millage in Waterford Township two times, against my better judgment, but not the last election. Our educators talk of achievement and advancement, but what are they doing about it for the good of all students? The gifted, yes, but the less fortunate, no.

Many are unhappy with "the system," locking doors, dress codes, and lack of understanding. I resent the lack of parent-teacher association.

Discusses Qualifications for Commissioners

I reside in Pontiac and have a college degree in business management. I have served in Vietnam, Formosa and continental United States. I have worked on the production line here and now work in a responsible management position for that same employer. I was president of the youth synod in my church, president of the veteran's club at college, and was quarterback on my high school football team.

I believe in this Nation, the free enterprise system, the value of all citizens regardless of race, creed or ethnic group. I am concerned about the plight of senior citizens, the lack of adequate housing, the problems of education and the social problems of our nation. I pay taxes to the City, the State and the Federal Government. There must be many more young men like me in this City, and thousands more across the Nation under 30. But we do not qualify for the office of City Commissioner.

UNDER 30 YEARS OF AGE

Urges More Understanding for Teen-Agers

I read the Voice of the People letter about the death penalty and I am sorry so many people feel the same way. I am serving a sentence of 50 to 65 years in Jackson prison for second-degree murder. My crime was not a sex killing or a robbery. I was just a very mixed up 20-year-old. If I had had anyone I could turn to or talk to, this probably would never have happened.

If you have teen-agers, try and listen to them and talk to them. Most of all, try and understand them.

JON PUTNAM

'Give Taxpayers Details of Sewer Costs'

An analysis of the figures listed in The Press concerning the Clinton-Oakland Sewer Interceptor makes one wonder what our elected and appointed officials are doing. Some 17,273 property owners, apparently exclusive of business concerns, will pay $35,536.50 in connection and lateral fees for a project that will cost $31,250,000. This is over cost more than 13 per cent. The Press article did not explain this difference or even indicate that it existed.

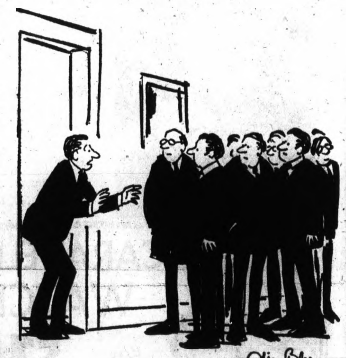

I feel all public officials owe the taxpayers a detailed and lucid explanation of present costs, budgets and proposed costs, and not just comments such as quoted in The Press—"I can't do that. It would be like trying to summarize the Bible."

BERRY'S WORLD—By Jim Berry

"Now, I want everybody to keep calm—we're going to be investigated by 'Rader's Nalders'.... er..."

Roy Cromley

U.S. Plays It Close to Vest at Helsinki

WASHINGTON (NEA)—If President Nixon seems hard-nosed about the arms talks with Russia, and not overly interested in reaching an agreement, it's part of a strategy devised by his advisers.

These men have spent a great deal of time going through the minutes of past meetings with the Russians. A series of studies have been written on Russian negotiating techniques and on why the Reds do what they do in conferences.

Most of the old-timers with major experience in talking with the Kremlin's men have had their brains picked in considerable detail.

Out of this has come what might be called "the strategy of reticence."

Paraphrased, it runs as follows:

● By all means, don't let the negotiations be hailed as opening a new era in U.S.-Soviet relations. Quick eagerness to believe in the sincerity of Soviet intentions tends to strengthen Soviet hardliners. It could tempt the Kremlin to use the negotiations to dissipate Western suspicions, rather than seriously seek arms control.

● Don't be in a hurry for a solution. Don't seem eager, in fact, for any solution at all. Act as though time were not of importance. Once the Soviet government learns the United States (or any other country) has a time limit, or is overly anxious for an agreement, historically, Kremlin negotiators have sat down and waited patiently for time to run out in the conviction they would then get their way.

● Don't go into serious talks with the Russians unless the initiative comes heavily from their side. As former U.S. Ambassador to Moscow George Kennan has put it: "Russians can be dealt with satisfactorily only when they themselves want something and feel themselves in a dependent position."

● Prepare to let the Russians argue every point ad nauseam—and be patient with them. That's their hang-up. They're caught in a system which compels it.

● Don't offer compromises. The word compromise is not of Russian origin. It normally follows the adjective "putrid."

● Call for frequent recesses. Soviet negotiators, even those of the highest rank, cannot respond or change their stand even on elementary matters except after thorough-going discussions among the top men in Moscow. This takes considerable time. Recesses give that time. Otherwise the Russians merely repeat over and over again what they've said before, which gets very dull.

Old British Laws Sort of 'Scroogish'

LONDON (AP) — Christmas in Britain could be a pretty merry affair if everybody obeyed the law.

Under ancient statutes carolers can be jailed and a family can be hauled into court for eating too much plum pudding.

The songsters and feasters are safe. A Scotland Yard spokesman says: "Those laws are a bit old-fashioned—a spot of carol singing and Christmas dinner never hurt anyone."

The highway Act of 1835 forbids anyone from "obstructing the highway or the footpath with...lanterns, bassoons or other instruments." Not many carolers these days bring along bassoons, but many a footpath is obstructed by singers with lanterns and other instruments.

$12 FINE

As for singing in the streets, London's urban regulations state with a touch of Scrooge that "Any constable may request said singers to desist."

A determined caroler violating the silent night could get a $12 fine.

The Puritan Parliament of 1644 passed a law saying that on "olde habit of eating and making plumme puddings and pies be the rest of the festive season in take at dinner of more than followed, for these heathenish a dungeon. The law still exists, three courses. Nor shall the things are abominable."

but nobody seems to care.

Kill-Cult Suspect Gets a New Attorney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The slim, brown-haired defendant Louise Van Houten, a member of a communal cult who is charged with conspiracy in the Sharon Tate slayings and murder in two other killings, has a new lawyer — a specialist in his field.

Marvin L. Part, 38, a former deputy district attorney and former deputy California attorney general, was appointed by the court Friday to represent the defendant.

Keene said he appointed Part because the public defender's office is involved in another case — the murder last July 25 of Malibu musician Gary Hinman — and the possibility of conflict of interest might arise if the office also represented Miss Van Houten.

Police say the Hinman case and the other seven deaths are related.

Miss Van Houten is among six members of the Charles M. LaBianca, a wealthy grocer, lived in the Silver Lake-Los Feliz district.

Keene, who had earlier postponed Miss Van Houten's preliminary hearing until Monday, asked Part if he would object to the presence also of Manson and another of the defendants, 20-year-old Linda Kasabian.

Part said he had no objection. Newsman later asked Part whether he would seek a separate trial for his client.

He replied: "When you take some defendants and put them in with other defendants that have a bad image, it can be harmful."

TIME TO STUDY

But he declined to give a definite answer, saying he would spend the weekend studying the grand jury transcript before entering her plea Monday.

Meantime, in Mobile, Ala., attorneys for Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, another of the defendants, were told they have until Dec. 29 to decide whether to fight her extradition to Los Angeles.

The date was set by Circuit Judge Joseph M. Hocklander Jr., Alabama Gov. Albert Brewer had signed a warrant honoring an extradition request from California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Senate-House Compromise

Key Points of Tax Relief Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some principal provisions of the compromise tax bill which are aimed at producing income and closing tax loopholes:

Income surcharge — Extended at 5 per cent for the first six months of 1970. It currently is 10 per cent.

Excises — Continuation of the present 10 per cent telephone and 7 per cent auto levies an additional year to Dec. 31, 1970.

Minimum tax — A 10 per cent tax is applied against a broad list of preference items including some oil income now sheltered, capital gains and accelerated real estate depreciation. But the taxpayer can subtract what he pays in normal federal income tax from his preference income before applying the 10 per cent levy.

Investment credit — The 7 per cent credit for business is repealed retroactive to April 18.

Charitable giving — Unlimited charitable contribution deduction is repealed. The amount of charitable contributions deductible each year is raised from 30 to 50 per cent of income. Some tax is applied to the increase in value of property donated for charitable purposes but this does not apply to the value of stocks or other property in which a future interest is donated nor to the increase in value of paintings or other art objects given to museums.

Restricted stock — The value of restricted stock or other property received as compensation is taxed on the value at the time of receipt.

Antitrust convictions — Deductions are denied for fines and two-thirds of treble damages paid after convictions for criminal violations of the antitrust laws.

Multiple trusts — Higher taxes are imposed on income from property divided into a series of trusts to get lower rates.

Multiple corporations — Only one reduced-rate small business tax benefit is allowed for a series of small corporations set up by big company. Now each small firm can get the low rate.

Hobby losses — Deductions of an activity not carried on for profit are disallowed.

Real estate depreciation — Exceptionally fast tax write-offs now available for commercial and industrial buildings are disallowed. There is a smaller reduction in the liberal depreciation now available on used buildings, including apartments.

Capital gains — On capital income tax from his preference income in excess of $50,000, the present maximum 25 per cent tax is repealed and rate becomes half of the normal income tax rate or a maximum of 35 per cent with present rate schedule.

Corporate capital gains — Alternative corporate capital gains rate is raised from 25 to 30 per cent.

Depletion allowances — The 27½ per cent oil and gas depletion allowance is cut to 22 per cent. Minerals now getting 23 per cent are cut to 22; some minerals now getting 15 per cent are cut to 14; Molybdenum is raised from 15 to 22 per cent.

Taxes are increased on mineral production payments.

Foundations — A 4 per cent tax is imposed on investment income, self-dealing operations are penalized, each foundation is required to pay out all of current income but not less than 6 per cent of its investment assets, and foundation activities in carrying on propaganda, influencing legislation and financial voter registration drives are restricted. In addition, foundations are limited in new acquisitions to buying not more than 20 per cent of a company's stock; on present holdings, they must not retain more than 50 per cent of a company's stock and eventually must get rid of more than that.

Tax-exempt organizations — Unrelated business income of churches and other tax-exempt groups is taxed. Investment income of now tax-exempted groups set up primarily for the dual's long-term capital losses benefit of their members, such as social clubs and employee beneficiary associations, is taxed.

Conglomerates — Tax incentives which encourage growth of conglomerates through corporate mergers are reduced.

Delays in tax payments — An extra penalty, in addition to the present 6 per cent interest charge, is added for overdue individual and corporation tax payments.

Capital losses of individuals — Only 50 per cent of an individual's long-term capital losses can be offset against his ordinary income.

Provisions Year by Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major income tax relief provisions, as they take effect year by year, agreed on by the Senate-House conference committee:

1970

Personal exemption rises from present $600 to $650 effective July 1, making the full-year exemption $625.

Low-income allowance of $1,100 takes effect as of Jan. 1. The standard deduction, now 10 per cent up to a maximum of $1,000, rises to 13 per cent, with a $1,400 ceiling.

EXEMPTION

Personal exemption remains at $650 for full year.

Low income allowance drops to $1,050.

Standard deduction rises to 14 per cent with $1,500 ceiling.

Rate for single taxpayers is reduced to not more than 20 per cent above the rate for married couples.

RATE DROPS

Maximum marginal rate — the rate paid on the highest bracket of income — drops from the present 70 per cent to 60 per cent on earned income.

1972

Personal exemption rises to $700.

Low income allowance drops to $1,000.

Standard deduction remains at 14 per cent but the maximum is increased to $2,000.

Maximum marginal tax rate drops to 50 per cent.

Battle of the Bulge--a Nazi View

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This week marks the 25th anniversary of the Battle of the Bulge, a counter-offensive which Adolf Hitler thought could turn the tide of World War II in his favor. This interview tells the story of that battle from the viewpoint of a German general who undertook to carry out Hitler's desperate orders.)

By OTTO DOELLING
DIESEN, Germany (AP) — A chill winter fog lay over the Eifel Mountains, cloaking the command post of Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel. Snow and the fog muffled the sound of his 5th Panzer Army moving toward the Belgian and Luxembourg frontiers.

It was 4:30 a.m., Dec. 16, 1944. H-hour for a Hitler-ordered offensive that the general had tried unsuccessfully to change.

His command radio reported that forward elements had already crossed the Our River into the Ardennes Forest. No fire was reported from American troops stretched thinly along the rough terrain.

Surprise had been achieved. Hitler's "Operation Fall Mist," which was to become the Battle of the Bulge, had begun in its key central sector with the stealthiness of fog drifting over the fields.

ARTILLERY OPENS UP

To the north, SS Gen. Sepp Dietrich's artillery opened a thundering overture to the approach of his 6th Panzer Army. The tactic of stealth, which was to prove the most effective, was one concession that the otherwise unbending Hitler had granted Manteuffel. The 5-foot-4 general, a grandnephew of one of Bismarck's field marshals, had not hesitated to tell Hitler what he thought was wrong with the plan of battle.

Hitler kept the plan secret until the last moment, and Manteuffel was astonished when he first learned of it a month and a half earlier. At the time, his army was heavily engaged defending German soil between Aachen and the Rhine.

"On Nov. 3, Field Marshal Walther Model, my immediate superior, invited me to his command post for breakfast," Manteuffel recalls at his home in this Alpine village in Bavaria. "To my surprise, Jodl was there."

ALSO PRESENT

Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl was chief of staff of the Wehrmacht, high command. Also present was Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, commander of the western front. Model, commander of Army Group B, outlined Hitler's plan in a three-hour briefing.

The plan called for the 5th and 6th Panzer armies to attack abreast through the thickly wooded Schnee Eifel and Ardennes, overrunning Bastogne, St. Vith and Malmedy, break through across the Meuse River and wheel northward over open tank country to Brussels.

The final objective was the strategic port of Antwerp.

The 7th Army to the south had the more limited mission of protecting Manteuffel's left flank.

MORE REALISTIC

The next day, Manteuffel and Model agreed on what they considered a more realistic scheme, a "little slam" as opposed to Hitler's "grand slam."

This envisioned a penetration to the Ardennes, followed by a northward turn at the Meuse, but no crossing. With such a let, the two commanders felt they could cut off 15 British, Canadian and American divisions, the latter constituting the bulk of the U.S. 1st Army commanded by Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges.

The two won approval from Rundstedt to take their alternative plan to Berlin.

Late in the afternoon of Dec. 2 Model and Manteuffel sat at a small table opposite Hitler. Hitler's mental alertness seemed unimpaired, but Manteuffel noticed he was showing signs of physical degeneration. When he walked, Hitler dragged his left leg and one arm appeared almost useless.

EXPRESSED DOUBTS

"We expressed our doubts to Hitler," Manteuffel recalls. Hitler led Manteuffel into a side room and gave the general a one-hour lecture on the political significance of the plan.

The thrust through the weakly defended Ardennes would split the Americans and Britons physically—Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army Group from Field Marshal Bernard Law Montgomery's 21st. But most important, as Hitler saw it, the reversal would shatter the British-American alliance. It would be another Dunkerque.

From the hindsight of 25 years, Manteuffel acknowledges that Hitler's strategic concept was good, "but his grand design completely lacked a realistic concept of what was still possible in the fifth year of the war."

The Berlin meeting did give Manteuffel "one small success."

He was permitted to discard preparatory artillery barrages in favor of stealth. The general made this choice after a secret tour of the Our river sector. He learned that Americans in the area relaxed security between nightfall and dawn.

VERY QUIET

"It was a very quiet front, regarded as a rest area by the Americans. I thought, why wake them?" Manteuffel explains.

The general believes that the surprise he achieved was one factor that permitted his army to drive a bulge 50 miles long into the Allied lines while Sepp Dietrich's spearhead stalled in the third day of the attack.

"Three hundred thousand men and a thousand armored vehicles were deployed without detection by Allied intelligence," Manteuffel says.

On Dec. 16, three German armies comprising 22 divisions were hurled against 4½ U.S. divisions, including three of Maj. Gen. Troy Middleton's 8th Corps that held an 88-mile front.

DELAYING TACTICS

The outnumbered Americans began what Manteuffel describes as "the battle of little men"—small, isolated units that bravely delayed the round-bound German spearhead.

They disrupted the German timetable. Instead of reaching the Meuse by the second night, Manteuffel's two tank corps found themselves engaged in attacking the stubborn northern and southern shoulders of the bulge—St. Vith and Bastogne. The St. Vith pocket held out until a pullback Dec. 23. Through the self-destructive element of the German offensive was a tactical error, Bastogne was surrounded but never captured.

The Panzer Lehr Division under Lt. Gen. Fritz Bayerlein reached within four miles of Bastogne on Dec. 19—before Brig. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe's 101st Airborne Division had arrived in what Manteuffel considered sufficient strength to defend.

BEGAN TO RETREAT

It was a dismayed German army that began to fall back from the Meuse Valley on Dec. 26. The counterattacking U.S. 1st and 3rd armies linked up to close the bulge on Jan. 16—one month to the day after the start of the battle.

Allied casualties numbered 60,000 or more. The Germans lost their last effective reserves. The way to the heartland of the Reich now lay all but open.

DEFIANT 'NUTS'

The subsequent five-day siege would never have guessed that McAuliffe's defiant "Nuts" reply to a German ultimatum of surrender were to make Bastogne a catchword for the Battle of the Bulge.

Yank Subs for Santa Claus

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
LONDON (UPI) — The real Santa Claus told me he is wary of children with sticky fingers. "The nervous little kids will try to jam their fingers in your ears or eyes. Be nimble, be quick," Santa said.

I had told him I would be playing Santa in London's Selfridge's department store. "Do you know judo?" he said. No, I said.

"Well, the thing is to work out with barbells. Makes you tough. Enables you to handle the children," said Santa.

BOYS ARE WORST

"The worst ones are the 9- and 10-year-olds. The boys stand there in front of your throne and call you phony and try to yank your beard off," Santa said.

"And don't go calling yourself Santa Claus."

In England Santa's common name is Father Christmas. "These are children of a suspicious world. Tell them you're always makes them happy," Santa Claus, and they'll know something's wrong," he said.

Santa helped me into my outfit. I filled out the suit nicely. YOU EAT WELL.

"You Yanks eat well," Santa said.

I put on the white boots, the white wig, the white walrus mustache and the white beard. A snap on the red jacket popped open.

A young lady who helps out as a dwarf—she hands balloons for Santa to pass to the children—told me not to worry about the snap.

"The beard will cover it up. And the kids won't notice because they're too scared of you," she said as she gave me a bunch of balloons.

POINTS TO DOOR

Santa sat down on a stool in the dressing room and pointed to the door leading to Santa's throne.

"The little folks are out there waiting for you. Pounce on the wall before you go out and then tell them Rudolf the red-nosed reindeer's been acting up."

"Shout, 'Hush, Rudolf!' It piques your world. Tell them you're always makes them happy," Santa Claus, and they'll know something's wrong," he said.

I beat a fist against the wall and went out. The children were frightened.

ALL VERY GOOD

Karen, Caroline, Stevie, Doug, las, Dottie, Alvin, Nancy, Ebbie, Abdul, Sharon and Daisy all said they had been very good. Their mothers and fathers smiled. The children enunciated their yule desires—dolls, space outfits and model trains were the favorites.

Mark acted as if he was about to wet my knee, but his mother rescued him and me. David did get a finger in my ear.

Almost all appeared frightened or awed.

Daddy and mommy had to remind them to say thank you for the balloon.

I turned and rapped on the silver-papered wall and shouted out a question about how Donner and Blitzen were getting along. There was no answer, so I explained to the children I had better check on the reindeer and went inside.

"Had enough?" said Santa. "I get 15,000 children on a good day. About 30,000 on a bad day," he said. He had been doing it for 16 years. I asked him why.

"Because I love children," Santa said.

Britons Can Get Wigs at Taxpayers' Expense

LONDON (AP) — Skinheads come under fire Thursday for getting free wigs at taxpayers' expense.

The British Medical Journal leveled the attack at those who are getting wigs on the National Health Service.

It is costing the taxpayer about $2.4 million a year, the weekly Journal said.

Anybody, it seems, can apply for a wig and get it. A prescription is good for two wigs. Each one made of human hair and costs $78.20. Both must be maintained, which means cleaning and dressing every month at $2.16.

'PRIORITIES WRONG'

"Thousands of British men and women are getting the wigs on this basis—scot-free—and the Journal commented: "We have got our priorities wrong."

Dermatologists are confused, the Journal said, by lack of political guidance.

They see a balding person demanding a wig, they want to say a wig is unnecessary, but then they get into an argument over whether National Health Services are good, bad or indifferent. Most of them get out of the problem by prescribing the wig.

OK to Drive—Without Arms

MOUNT GILEAD, N.C. (AP) — The State of North Carolina gave Carol Burton, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Burton of Mount Gilead, an early Christmas present. It was a driver's license.

For a girl without arms, it was a unique present.

A spokesman for the state Department of Motor Vehicles said Carol became the first female congenital amputee in the state to receive a license to drive.

The attractive junior at West Montgomery High School, who was born without arms, obtained her learner's permit on Oct. 16. At that time she was examined by the state's assistant chief license examiner, the state's senior examiner and a former local examiner.

She obtained her regular driving permit this month after taking the assistant chief license examiner for a ride.

She can't, of course, operate a conventionally equipped automobile. The 1966 model car she drives has special steering and gear shifting equipment which her father had installed.

Look Backward

Crocheted bags that bring back visions of the 1930s are making the pocketbook scene — pair them with crocheted clothes to match, a long scarf or two — then practice saying, "I Want to Be Alone" in front of a mirror before going out.

Pat Panella, Bloomfield Township, a member of the Junior Auxiliary at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, serves refreshments at the annual Christmas party for clinic children. Shirley Gibson, 12, Meadowlawn Street (rear) waits her turn as La-tomada Nichols, 8, a visitor from Nebraska, shyly accepts a cake. The party is sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband died nine years ago leaving me with two small children. Friends rushed in, offered their sympathy and we were promptly forgotten. Months, even years go by without an invitation to have dinner with a "complete" family.

I have often invited married couples and their families to my home for dinner, but they politely decline for they are not interested in coming to a lady's home where there are only the lady and her children. I have my women friends, and the children have their school friends, but aside from this, we don't even exist.

I once considered joining an organization for parents alone, but when the first invitation closed with, "bring your own bottle," I decided it wasn't for me.

A well-known young men's service organization announced a Sunday father-son swim hour. When I called and explained that my son's father was dead and asked if my son could attend anyway, I was told that the boy would feel "uncomfortable" with boys and their fathers, and he was refused permission to attend.

Please, Abby, appeal to your readers who are fortunate enough to still have their "complete families" to remember those who do not. My story is not unique. Ask anyone in these circumstances.

PARENT ALONE
DEAR PARENT: I cannot imagine a "service organization" rebuffing your son in the manner (and for the reason) you describe. (In which city was this? I'd like to know more about it.)

And as for having your dinner invitations "politely declined," because "no one is interested in coming to a lady's house where there is just the lady and her children?" If that is indeed the reason, I'm surprised that you haven't thought of inviting a gentleman to be your "host" and escort. Surely in the past nine years you must have met one such gentleman who could fill that role.

DEAR ABBY: Talk about weird problems, check out mine. I am a college student and have recently been fitted for contact lenses. I love them because I've worn glasses since the fifth grade. My problem is my boyfriend. Believe it or not, he likes me better in glasses! He wants me to throw away my contacts, but I am not about to, after having invested $200 in them. I much prefer contacts over glasses and I think I should be the one to decide, don't you?

My boyfriend says he has to look at me. He's even offered to reimburse me the $200 if I get rid of the contacts.

So far we've compromised. I wear my glasses when I'm with him, and my contacts when I'm not with him, but this is a stupid arrangement and can't last very long. Can you help me?

GLASSY-EYED
DEAR GLASSY: You're right. You are the one who should decide. If whether you wear glasses or contacts is going to make a difference in your relationship, it's best to find out now and act accordingly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNCLE MILTON: If you lend a friend 10 dollars and never see him again, it's a good investment.

Birthday Gift for Two Girls in Question

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My friend and I both have birthdays within a few days of each other. We would like to have a joint birthday party, but we have a problem. We would ask the guests to bring gifts, but we know it will create an awkward situation.

Some of my guests do not know the other hostess. Therefore, they might not think it proper to bring a present for someone they do not know. What do you suggest? — Kathy and Ann

Dear Kathy and Ann: You do have a problem. There are two ways to solve it, and you may not like either, but you'll have to choose if you don't want your guests to be in the embarrassing position you yourself mention.

Either you should restrict your guest list to friends who know both of you well enough to want to give you birthday presents, or you should be truly altruistic and write "No presents, please" on all the invitations.

'Toasting' Language Has Meaning

As midnight strikes and the New Year begins, around the world men and women will toast 1970, to wish good health and abundant wealth to friends gathered around in traditional New Year's Eve festivities.

But, have you ever wondered, as you raise your glass, why toasting is a tradition in nearly every civilized country?

Wine and liquor expert, Julius Wile, did some cherry research into the history of toasting and looked for a world-wide selection of toasts to vary your traditional "to your health" or "cheers."

In ancient times, when poison was the quickest and most effective way to do away with foes, a host, to show his good faith and trust, would pour some of his visitor's drink into his own cup. He would then raise his cup high above the table and consume its contents.

However, the term, "toast," dates to Stuart's time in chilly England. Chunks of bread were toasted over the fire, then dropped on top of cups of wine or liquor. At first this dripping piece was eaten, but then it became customary to "drink one's toast."

Thus, in this way, the term, "toast," now applies to raising one's cup in good faith and cheer.

We no longer float toasted bread on our drinks, but we still toast, even on the most unlikely occasions, but especially on New Year's Eve.

Herbert Hoover III and his fiancée, Carmilla Sparo, pose for pictures before they attended a dinner party in their honor Friday night at the Surf Club on Miami Beach, Fla. The couple plan to be married today in Bal Harbour, Fla. Herbert is the grandson of the founder of the Hoover Vacuum Company. Carmilla is a movie starlet from Sweden.

Actress Rachel Roberts, pictured with her husband Rex Harrison in New York in 1963, said Friday she hopes for a reconciliation. Only hours before she spoke to reporters in London, Harrison's lawyer had announced the couple were living apart. Harrison, long a box office hit in serious and light plays and films, married Miss Roberts seven years ago.

She'll Settle for Mere Baubles

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK — Dear Santa. Brace yourself against your sleigh. Finally I've made out my Christmas list.

As a starter, there's a maxi coat in perfect matched Russian crown sable skins, priced at $125,000. So hurry over to Jacques Kaplan, the furrier, who advertised it in a newspaper two weeks ago.

I quietly checked in with Monsieur Kaplan and the coat is still available, although some customers have been in "negotiating."

Don't let him sell you on one of his hammocks of yak fur at $6,250. Each measures 10 feet, and that in a New York City apartment? Forget it.

Then, there are those jeweled stocking stuffers I've been clipping information on. Start at Cartier's on Fifth Avenue, where the Sultan de Maroc diamond is available for "several hundred thousand dollars." It's only about half the size, 35.27 carats, of the stone Richard Burton bought from the store for Elizabeth Taylor, for something over $1,050,000.

WILL TAKE LESS

I'm hardly the Liz Taylor type anyway, and quiet little me will be quite happy with the sultan, a "rare icy blue-gray diamond" set in a ring and surrounded by more diamonds.

There's some doubt, Santa, that you'll have a chance at the Tiffany diamond up the avenue — a 128.5 carat number, valued at $2 million and said to be about the largest and finest canary stone in the world.

Tiffany's has owned it since 1878, and the word is that Walter Hoving, the company's chairman, would just as soon keep it around. But the store does have an 80-carat rough diamond for $450,000, which can be cut to specifications.

Harry Winston has another nice little stocking stuffer — a 65-carat marquise diamond for $700,000. Or take a look at Winston's emerald and diamond necklaces for $1,200,000. I've always liked emeralds too.

There's no immediate interest at our house in the African safari that Abercrombie & Fitch offer at $1950 per person. We wouldn't mind chartering an A & F yacht, though — cost unlimited.

Santa, I realize that these requests all tote up to several million dollars. You may have trouble financing them, what with the stock market in a deep slump.

Matter of fact, it might be wise to shop after Christmas and get the mark-downs. I can wait.

Parties Planned for All Ages During Upcoming Holidays

By SHIRLEY GRAY
Come Christmas Eve (that's next Tuesday), the college crowd will descend on Bloomfield Open Hunt for THE party of the year, the annual Bachelor's Ball.

This pleasant custom, a holiday season must since 1962, makes the rounds of various clubs. Last year, the host club was Orchard Lake.

For the first time this year, however, the black-tie requirements of previous years are dropped. Informal garb will be the thing.

The change was made, says Mrs. Charles L. Wilson, publicity gal, because arranging formal attire for the partygoers, many of whom had just breezed into town one or two days before from school, presented some real logistical problems.

There are 10 other mothers, besides Mrs. Wilson, doing the arranging and handling the details, in time-honored mother fashion. They are Mesdames: Alfred Davock, Arthur Hallen, Ernest A. Jones, C. W. McConnell, Frederick McKeab, Thomas Minor, Richard Reilly, Steele Sellers and Richard B. Wallace. Chairman is Mrs. William Randall.

ROMANTIC NOTE

In the midst of this happy season, an especially happy note from Dr. and Mrs. S. Daniel Steiner of Bloomfield Hills. Their son, Thomas Daniel, is engaged to a young lady from Rochester, N.Y., Rebecca Grimmer, daughter of the Clarence A. Grimmers Jr.

Tom, a 1967 Dartmouth grad, is doing volunteer legal duty for VISTA. His bride-to-be is finishing up at Boston University, and after her 1970 graduation, plans to teach in elementary school.

Dr. Steiner is GM's chief medical director.

The Carl Luckenbachs, who live in Birmingham, gave a little dinner-dance Thursday at BOH in honor of the season.

On Sunday, the kids take over the Hunt Club. The annual Christmas party for under-10's starts off with brunch at 11:30, followed by a visit by Santa, baby. At 4 p.m., the adults move in for the annual Tea Dance.

Tennessee Girl Wins Acclaim for Her Ballad--Book--Play

NEW YORK (UPI) — At 17, Jane Wagner, of Moristown, Tenn., was going to conquer the world with her music. Then, it was with her acting, followed by sculpture and designing.

Finally, she got around to writing, and in the first television play she ever put on paper, she probably has found her direction.

Miss Wagner, a tiny, brown-eyed blonde, is the author of an hour-long network special presented originally as a breakaway from the usual Saturday daytime mold of cartoons for children.

But the play won such critical and viewer acclaim, the network has now rescheduled it for prime evening time next week.

The work, which originally began as a ballad Miss Wagner wrote, also has been turned into a book and Miss Wagner thinks she may make it back into a ballad again.

The play is entitled simply "J.T." Its central figure is a small Negro boy of the ghetto.

NEGLECTED BOY

The youngest, whose father deserted his family, is left to himself while his mother is at work and while he skips school and has as his only companions a stolen transistor radio and a scrawny, half-blind cat which he finds in an empty, litter-strewn lot.

He nurses the cat back to health, only to have it become a victim of the cruelty and brutality of the slums.

But in the association, the child learns some social values that enable him to start behaving with a stronger sense of responsibility.

CRS bought the play as one of three in its special "Children's Hour" dramas and aired it last Saturday at noon. The one-hour show will be repeated at 7:30 p.m. EST Monday, preempting the highly rated "Gunsmoke."

"It was trying to do something that had universal appeal," said Miss Wagner in an interview.

"... To show how the human spirit transcends hate and brutality."

Students in 1800's Limited by 'No-Nos'

DANVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — An indication that the nation's college students haven't really changed too much shows in an exhibit of historic items marking the 150th anniversary of Centre College here.

Under the faculty catalogue published in 1854 were the following prohibitions:

"Thou shalt not drink whisky. Thou shalt not steal chickens and turkeys. Thou shalt not paint signs and take off gates. Thou shalt not go into taverns or oyster saloons. Thou shalt not kiss the girls or hug the babies."

"Thou shalt not play cards. Thou shalt not pester Prof. Snyder. Thou shalt not pop fire-crackers and Thou shalt not cut off calf-tails."

Police, Paper Find Minnie in a Hurry

CROWLEY, La. — C. R. Reynolds of Oklahoma City asked the Louisiana state police for aid.

"Please help me find Minnie Ziegler," Reynolds wrote. "She runs a country store somewhere in Louisiana. I am an old man, 87 years old. Used to buy hams, bacon and sausage. She had homemade bread and cakes just out of this world. Please help me locate her. Have lost her address."

Mrs. Ann McCoy, who works in state police headquarters, made copies of the letter and mailed them to newspapers around the state.

The Crowley Post-Herald reproduced the letter on page two Thursday, over the type line asking, "Anybody Here Know Minnie?"

"The paper hadn't been out but about an hour and 20 minutes when August Chappuis, the postmaster at Rayne, telephoned," said Editor Jack Hildebrand.

MINNIE FOUND

Chappuis remembered Minnie very well. He said she is Minnie Sigler, postmaster at Fullerton and he, too, had fond memories of her bread and cakes, having sampled them back in 1964 when they rode a bus to New York City to attend a postmasters convention.

In Fullerton, Miss Sigler operates the only store in town. Her bakery and cannery is a sideline at the rear of the store.

"It takes a little of everything to make a living out in these backwoods," she said. "I wouldn't brag on my cooking for anything in the world but some likes it. I think it's an honor that Mr. Reynolds went to all this trouble. I'll write and ask him what he wants."

flexibility of watercolor in his paintings from nature.

Plates at the Ready: 'Charge!'

By BETTY CANARY
NEA Writer

You're wrong if you thought there was nothing worse than carefully selecting merchandise in a store, then marching happily behind the clerk to the cash register only to discover you have no check book. What's much worse is carefully selecting merchandise, marching happily, etc., writing a check and discovering you have no identification.

Oh, I've had troubles before. Like the time I tried to pay cash and the sales girl in that store apparently had never before seen real green money. She kept shaking her head and asking, "You don't have a pink check or a red, white and blue credit card maybe?"

Now, of course, one needs not only a check but two credit hadn't smiled that knowing cards and a driver's license as smile at both me and my son. Identification. Some stores ask as if to show he knew a thing or two about Ma Barker and HER boys.

gested dental X rays as positive identification but frankly I doubt that would ever catch on. I simply hope it never happens to you — being caught with an honest face and the explanation that the reason you have no identification is because your other handbag was stolen yesterday.

Perhaps a psychiatrist could explain it to me — why I felt vaguely guilty of having committed a crime by daring to go out in public without a full set of chargeplates. (A heinous crime at that, mind you. Not a simple little crime like running out of gas and having to walk to the service station in my nightgown.)

GUILTY

But, guilty is how I felt. As if I'd been caught flagrantly disregarding the basic rules of The Shopping Game. My efforts to prove my identity made me sound more guilty than I felt.

I am sure I would have felt innocent if only my son hadn't been with me — pretending he wasn't with me.

well-beeled homemakers in the combinations of appetizers, 1969 Neiman-Marcus Christmas catalog — had been programmed to make hundreds of menu-recipe selections.

Visitors to the demonstration areas were given a "computer menu" listing 21 different entrees (beef, fowl, fish, lamb, game, lobster, etc.) with each having a numerical code.

After a shopper had made his or her main-course selection the code number was typed into a teletypewriter connected to the kitchen computer, and in a few seconds out came its selection of a complete meal, from appetizer to wine.

This operation was under the direction of Margaret Anne Cullum, a former Neiman-Marcus sales lady, who referred to herself as "computer custodian and scorekeeper of noses and taste buds."

NO LEFTOVERS

Miss Cullum reports that "for some odd reason on the day after Thanksgiving a majority of the people selected lobster, and not one person asked if the computer could help with turkey leftovers."

As to which came first, the chicken or the egg, there is no doubt in Miss Cullum's mind. "Twelve hundred people requested the computer to read out chicken menus, but they chicken out on eggs, as only one shopper asked for a meal built around eggs, and he was a man on his honeymoon. I don't know whether that is significant or not," she said.

"But at that," she continued, "eggs did better than chicken livers or calves liver — they came up minus on the mini-computer scoreboard."

According to Miss Cullum about 500 men, most of them accompanied by their wives, visited the Honeywell installations, about half of them asked the computer to program a meal around game fowl or game meat. With few exceptions, the other half selected beef as a main course.

The women visitors, in the main, expressed more interest in the recipes and the various

New Game Depicts Tale of Odysseus

An innovation in games is "Odyssey," which is based on Homer's legendary tale of Odysseus and his perilous ten-year sea voyage for the sake of Helen of Troy. This highly intriguing game is played on a colorful and decorative muslin scroll illustrating the world and sea as they were conceived by ancient Greek historians.

"Odyssey" offers hours of fun-filled fascination for its players as they recreate Odysseus' journey by "navigating" fleets of tile ships, through all sorts of perils, to the dictates of a die fashioned from an ancient wooden design.

Several different versions of the game may be played by groups of up to four people. A great deal of attention has been paid to design in the creation of "Odyssey," by Stancraft Products. When not in use the muslin scroll "board" serves a dual purpose as a handsome wall decoration.

The game instructions and an interestingly written reference to Homer, the Greek poet, are printed on parchment-like paper giving an increased air of authenticity to the game. "Odyssey" is packaged in a decorative facsimile of the Greek Ionic column.

Veterans to Meet

Members of Barracks 49, Veterans of World War I and Auxiliary, will meet Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the American Legion Post on Auburn Avenue for a cooperative dinner and installation of officers.

Her Birds Causing a Peck of Trouble

JOHNSTON, R.I. (AP) — Victoria Wentz has more than 60 bird feeders in her backyard, serves sandwiches to squirrels and says she will go to jail before she obeys a court order to reduce the handouts to her feathered friends.

Enrico Di Zoglio, a neighbor, doesn't like the wildlife. He says the birds are a nuisance to his property, lawn, family and car.

"There's no talking with that woman," declared Di Zoglio, who took the matter to Superior Court where it will be heard Monday.

Judge Anthony A. Giannini has issued a temporary restraining order directing Mrs. Wentz to stop using the feeders in the present condition and numbers.

"CAN'T STOP"

"Once you begin feeding the birds you can't stop," Mrs. Wentz said. "I'll be jailed before I stop feeding my birds."

Di Zoglio, who said the controversy has been going on for more than one year, has placed bright colored banners, chicken wire and netting between the tall trees along the property line.

"Nothing really seems to work," he said.

Mrs. Wentz says she has been harassed and birds that visit her yard have been killed in violation of my right to peaceful living."

FIRECRACKERS

"I have been subjected to 31 days of firecrackers, exploded three times daily," she said. "Nests have been knocked out of trees."

"Is this what you call neighborly love?" she asked.

In the suit, Di Zoglio says Mrs. Wentz's bird feeding has become a detriment to his comfort and health and that in the summer, rodents and snakes are attracted to the area.

"My crime is feeding the birds and wildlife during the cold winter months," Mrs. Wentz said, adding: "Has the world gotten so sophisticated that there is no room left for any of God's little creatures?"

Officers in the Soviet Union forces spend almost twice as much time in schools as their western counterparts.

Morocco to Bow to France on Removal of Interior Minister

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Morocco's controversial interior minister, Gen. Mohamed Oufkir, is likely to be replaced early in 1970, qualified sources report.

His withdrawal from the Cabinet will close a bitter quarrel between France and Morocco over the kidnapping of the Moroccan leftist leader Mehdi Ben Barka.

Ben Barka disappeared in Paris Oct. 31, 1965, and supposedly is dead.

Morocco and France announced this week their imminent resumption of full diplomatic relations with an exchange of ambassadors. The government of Charles de Gaulle in 1966 accused Oufkir of masterminding Ben Barka's abduction and probable murder. De Gaulle made Oufkir's removal from the Cabinet a condition for resumption of full relations. The French have an international arrest warrant for the 45-year-old, much-decorated hero of French army service in World War II and Vietnam. But this has been ignored by the West European countries Oufkir has visited privately in the past four years.

A tough Berber aristocrat from the Sahara fringes, Oufkir has a widespread following among Morocco's security forces. This has made him the strongman of King Hassan's regime.

He repeatedly offered in 1966 to resign to clear the way for a reconciliation with France, but the king refused to part with him. Hassan rejected De Gaulle's demands for Oufkir's extradition and ignored continuing French pressure to fire him.

Property More Costly Than People

Auto Damage Expenses Soar

By DAVID W. CHUTE
DETROIT (UPI). — It costs you more as a motorist to protect yourself against damaging cars than against damaging people.

Insurance company premiums for protection against property damage claims in car collisions run about 20 per cent more than personal injury premiums.

More than 55,000 persons were killed in automobile accidents in 1968, and another 4.4 million suffered injuries. These claims were settled for an average $1,550, or something less than $7 billion.

But this is less than half the record $14.25 billion the insurance companies paid out in total claims. Most of the rest was paid out in the millions of property damage claims.

AVERAGE CLAIM $267

The average property damage claim handled by insurance companies in 1968 was $151. But in 1968, that average had jumped to $267, a whopping 77 per cent jump. In that same time, injury claims had increased only 58 per cent.

The Journal of Insurance Information says 86 per cent of all property damage claims are for $300 or less.

DESIGN OF CARS

Insurance company officials say a large part of the answer for the sharp rise in property damage claims is in the design of modern cars which makes them prone to severe damage in a minor collision at very slow speeds. Even a parking lot bump.

Dr. William Haddon Jr., former head of the National Highway Safety Bureau and now president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, recently showed films of late model cars hitting a barrier at 5 and 10 miles an hour. Damage to the cars averaged more than $200 in the 5-miles-per-hour hit and more than $650 in the 10-miles-an-hour crash.

The reasons: Bumpers are more ornamental than functional; radiator grilles pointed at the center are easily damaged because full impact of a crash is centered on one point instead of across the bumper; even the radiators behind the grille are sometimes damaged in a minor crash; side marker lights sometimes stick out beyond the bumper, others are built into bumpers.

In some cases, repairing some of these elements requires replacement of an entire assembly, costing as much as $30 because a $2 piece is broken.

$1-BILLION SAVING

Arthur Mertz, vice president and general counsel of the National Association of Independent Insurers, says if bumpers could be made to reduce repair costs by 10 per cent, it would save about $1 billion a year.

The high cost of repairs is reaching the ears of the auto makers.

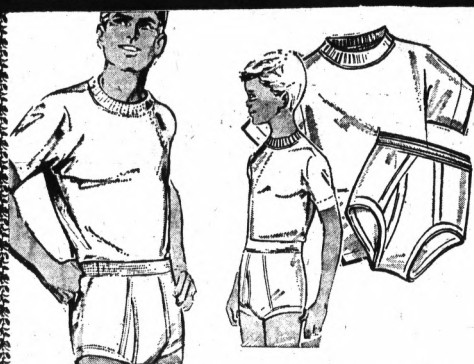

The Automobile Club of Michigan's publication Motor News says engineers in all the companies are experimenting with new materials and new designs to lessen low-impact force damages to cars and will be putting them on new cars in the coming decade. But lead time for a new car is on three to four years, so it probably will be that long before the cost of damage repairs levels off or goes down.

Meanwhile, says Ed Daniels, general manager of the Auto Club's insurance exchange, auto insurance will cost more before it costs less.

Yule Bonuses Smaller on Wall Street

NEW YORK (UPI)—If humbug replaces Merry Christmas as the standard yuletide greeting on Wall Street this year, brokerage houses shows that eliminated the bonus entirely.

Gypsy Moth Can Hide in Yule Boughs

By National Geographic Society
WASHINGTON — Christmas trees and other festive greenery sometimes hide unwelcome immigrants.

Female gypsy moths attach their buff-colored egg clusters to trees, shrubs and fallen branches.

A single cluster contains from 100 to 1,000 potential caterpillars, enough to start a serious infestation.

The voracious insects defoliated 254,000 acres of Northeastern woodlands in 1969. New York, New Jersey and Connecticut were hit hardest.

TREES ENDANGERED

One defoliation may kill white pine, spruce and hemlock. Two can destroy hardwoods such as oak.

Severe forest damage increases the chance of fire and erosion, affects the flow of streams, and destroys wildlife habitats.

To contain infestations, state and federal officials carefully inspect holiday greenery from infested areas. Even so, a dangerous hitchhiker occasionally slips through.

A lone gypsy moth recently appeared in Virginia's Shenandoah National Park. The insect probably hitched a ride on a trailer or camping equipment.

CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH

So far, an intensive investigation by the Department of Agriculture's Plant Protection Division has given the area a clean bill of health.

A French naturalist brought the first gypsy moth from Europe to the United States for an experiment in 1869. A few escaped from his Medford, Massachusetts, laboratory; they eventually multiplied to alarming proportions.

One morning in June 1889, Medford residents awoke to discover a crawling army of dark insects. Millions of busy jaws stripped trees.

"The caterpillars covered one side of my house so thickly that you could not have told what kind of paint was on it," recalled a townsman.

Some are merely making a token payment.

"It will be an extremely rare, retail-oriented firm which will pay as much this year as last year," said Adrian Banky of Association of Stock Exchange Firms.

But he noted that institutional brokerages (those whose business is chiefly from mutual funds, pension funds, insurance companies and banks), "may not be too far different than last year."

MOST TO PAY LESS

He estimated that about four of five retail firms will be paying less in bonuses.

Other industry sources said as many as one quarter of the retail firms on Wall Street will be unable to pay any bonus this year.

The reason is the much-discussed and lamented profit pinch which has hit virtually every brokerage firm this year. The average daily volume so far this year has been a shade below 1.1 billion shares, compared to more than 1.3 billion the year before.

BREAK-EVEN POINT

The New York Stock Exchange estimates the industry's break-even point at just over 10 million shares. But the industry wasn't even making that much until fairly late in the year when a fall buying surge helped boost the average over the 10 million mark.

The nation's largest brokerage firm — Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. — has cut bonuses about one-third. Bonuses last year ranged from 10 to 22 weeks pay. This year the range is from 7 to 15 weeks, according to a spokesman.

Goodbody & Co., one of the street's biggest, will not pay a bonus at all this year, it is reported. This will mark the first time in 25 years the firm has not paid out some kind of a Christmas bonus.

Among other large firms which will pay little or nothing in Christmas bonuses, according to sources, are Walston, far this year has been a shade below 1.1 billion shares, compared to more than 1.3 billion the year before.

Bridge Tricks From Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

If you want to overbid your bonus unless you bid it.

good hands a trifle, more power to you. You can't collect a slam bonus unless you bid it.

However, if you do like to overbid, you don't want to follow up by underplaying. South's jump to three spades wasn't much of an overbid but, once he bid it, North wouldn't let him off the hook short of six.

A diamond lead would have cooked his goose right off the bat but West opened the queen of hearts and South had a chance to operate. He didn't operate too well, and the patient died.

South played three rounds of trumps and led a club. West played the seven, dummy the jack and East the three. South returned to his hand with his second high heart and played a second club.

West had noted his partner's play of the three and knew that the deuce was still missing. Therefore, East had either played a singleton or started an echo to show a doubleton. This was safe for West to play his nine-spade.

South was in dummy and, since he could not get back to his hand to lead a third club through West, he had to play the third club from dummy. This made it impossible for him to get a diamond discard.

South should have guarded against this defense by leading a club at trick two. If West ducked, South would then draw trumps before leading a second club. This would leave him a heart entry to his hand for a third club lead and his overbid would have paid off.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California farmers raised a record $4.5 billion worth of crops this year but their pocketbooks won't show it, the state reports.

Agriculture Director Jerry Fielder said Friday his staff estimates total value of the state's crops will be up three per cent from last year, with higher prices for cattle and eggs making the big difference.

"Unfortunately, rising production costs will largely offset the increase in gross farm income this year," Fielder said, "and little or no improvement is expected in net farm income."

Some farmers will go out of business, Fielder said, because their income isn't rising fast enough.

Total crop production this year came to 39.7 million tons, down two per cent from last year's record 40.6 million tons.

Shoppers Who Park Overtime Get Yule 'Gift'

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Policemen will substitute candy canes and good wishes for parking tickets for the second consecutive year on cars parked overtime in this resort community.

The greeting is sponsored by the Lake Placid Business Association, which buys the canes, and the Police Department, which distributes them.

The candy will replace tickets normally given from today through Christmas Eve along Main Street.

The greeting attached to cars reads: "Our way of saying Happy Holidays and an accident-free New Year."

Last year 800 motorists found their car windshields adorned with the striped sweets instead of $1 tickets.

Hippo Hazard

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — The hippo hazard has driven motorists at Livingstone, near Victoria Falls, to petition the government for preventive measures.

GLENWOOD PLAZA • CORNER NORTH PERRY AT GLENWOOD

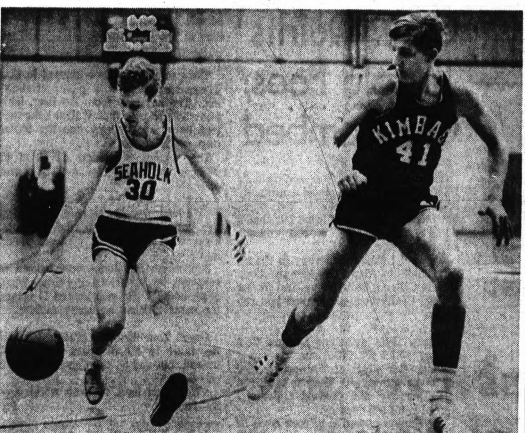

TOO HOT TO HANDLE—No one seems to want to touch the loose basketball. In fact, both the Andover and Kettering players seem to want to stay away from it. Andover's Scott Roley (24) watches the ball and John Schmidt (50) watches the getaway of Jerry Bell (21) in their game last night at Andover where the Barons won in overtime over Kettering, 75-70.

Avondale, Madison Win:

Troy Cruises Past Rochester in O-A

SETTING PACE—Ed Petty (41) of Kimball seems to be setting the pace and waiting for a chance to move in on Seaholm's Dan Sovran dribbling with the ball. The teams played a key Southern Michigan Conference game last night at Seaholm and the Maples won a 38-32 decision.

Seaholm, Ferndale Lead League

Maples Top Kimball in Painstaking SMA Tilt

Painstaking is a word not often applied to basketball, but it is the best description of Birmingham Seaholm's all-important 38-32 win over Royal Oak Kimball in Southeastern Michigan Association basketball play Friday night.

Both squads played slow, deliberate basketball, working for the open shot and jockeying for floor and rebounding position. It was a study in patience and would have been a delight to watch for an analytical mind.

As it was, the game, which was in doubt until the closing minute of play, left spectators from both schools with little to deliberate basketball, working for the open shot and jockeying for floor and rebounding position. It was a study in patience and would have been a delight to watch for an analytical mind.

Greg Howard's 36 Helps

Dryden Rip Capac, 80-71

Little Greg Howard poured in 36 all scorers with 27 points Friday night as he led Dryden to an important 80-71 win over Capac.

Howard hit nearly 50 per cent of his free throws as the 5-7 guard led all scorers in the game and brought his club from behind a 34-31 halftime deficit to the win.

Dryden hit 59 per cent of its floor shots and 24 of 29 free throws while the losers managed just five of 13 tries from the charity stripe. Capac out-scored Dryden, 66-56 from the floor.

In another Southern Thumb contest New Haven kept its unbeaten ways going with an easy 80-51 win over Almont, winless in the conference after three tries.

Bob Mason added 19 points to go with Howard's 36-point burst for Dryden while Jerry Abraham led Capac with 20 points.

harange the officials. There was little to cheer about on the floor.

FINAL BUZZER

But there was plenty for the victorious Maples to cheer about after the final buzzer sounded. The win gave them a tie with pre-season favorite Ferndale in the league's lead, both schools holding 2-0 SMA records.

Chants of "We're number one" rolled through the gymnasium and into the boisterous Maple locker room after the bitterly fought win.

"We knew that with their two big men (6-5 Phil Weaver and 6-4 Steve Hebold) we'd have to have a slow-down game and a solid zone defense to beat them," a happy first-year Coach Tom Villers said after the victory.

And it was a combination of the troublesome Maple zone and fine ball-handling which proved to be the difference in the outcome.

Weaver made a one-man bid to pull in the out for Kimball in the third quarter as he racked off nine of the Knights' 11 points in that quarter, but Seaholm stayed with its game plan and held on for the win.

"They beat us well and they deserved the victory," a downhearted Kimball Coach Charlie Jones commented. "Their zone kept us outside and we couldn't find the range."

The Knights hit just 13 of 35 field goal tries, including only three for 24 in the first half. Seaholm, meanwhile, was not faring much better, hitting just 16 of 50 tries.

But Jim Hagen, a six-foot senior, and 6-2 senior Carl Charles were coming up with key rebounds of Kimball's misses, enabling the Maples to

West Bloomfield, Brighton Roll

Andover, Clarkston Work Overtime for Wins

It was a breeze for Brighton but a tight squeeze for Bloomfield Hills Andover last night in Wayne-Oakland League basketball.

The Bulldogs of Brighton bumped Northville, 58-46, while Andover downed Waterford Kettering, 75-70, and the two winners joined West Bloomfield atop the W-O with 3-0 records.

EASY PREY

Northville was easy prey for the Bulldogs, but Kettering, 6-4, was no pushover for the Barons. Andover had to come from behind in the fourth stanza to tie the game before winning with a 9-4 edge in overtime.

In another overtime encounter, improving Clarkston went two extra sessions before surpassing Clarenceville, 77-72. And in the other W-O contest, West Bloomfield squeezed past Milford's Redskins, 54-52.

Coach Joe Doby and the Captains of Waterford Kettering appeared on their way to an upset victory over Andover.

CAPTAINS LEAD

The Captains led at intermission, 31-28, and they were in front by four at the three-quarter mark, 48-44.

But Andover, trailing 52-44, applied a tight press and it produced eight quick points and a 52-52 tie.

TIES GAME

Andover eventually squeezed ahead and Kettering's Jerry Bell tied the game at 66-66 with a basket at the 14-second mark.

In overtime, Bob Gratz put Kettering ahead, but Larry Allingham tied it for Andover. Then Joe Spraker hit a two-pointer for a 70-68 Kettering lead.

QUICK SPIRIT

But Andover scored seven points in the final 10 seconds. Junior Pete Bowers stole the ball twice and fed Ken Heidel, a sophomore, and he pushed in two quick baskets.

Bell had a hot hand as he connected for 32 points, gaining 10 field goals and 12 of 18 free throws.

LEADS ANDOVER

Allingham closed with 22 markers for Andover, while John Schmidt picked up 17 and Dick Souther 16.

Steve Scholes long jumper with three seconds left gave Clarenceville a 65-65 tie with Clarkston in regulation, but the Wolves, after a 23-11 first overtime, took the decision with a 10-5 edge in the second extra period.

WRAPS IT UP

In that second overtime, Steve Kraut put Clarkston ahead for good with a pair of free throws (71-70). Steve Warman made it 73-70 with a basket, and after a Clarenceville bucket, Don Brown shoved in two more two-pointers to sew it up.

BROWN AND WARMAN WOUND UP

With 24 points apiece to pace the Clarkston attack, B D Ridling led Clarenceville with 29. The win left Clarkston at 2-3 and 1-2 in league play.

RECORD CLEAN

The Lakers of West Bloomfield kept their record (4-0) clean in a cliffhanger at Milford.

The two were deadlocked at 40-all after three quarters, and the Lakers won it with a 14-12 edge in the fourth stanza.

LEADS ATTACK

Dave Johnston led a balanced West Bloomfield attack with 14 markers, while Wally Alix tossed in 13 and Casey Hammill 12.

Gary Neighbors flipped in 31 to pace the Milford attack. It was his high for the season.

TAKES CHARGE

Brighton, down 21-19 in intermission, took charge in the third stanza, outscoring the Northville squad, 21-11, to take a 40-32 lead into the fourth quarter.

Brighton gained a 39-28 edge in rebounds and hit on 27 of 66 shots for the game. Northville managed only 16 of 68.

Bob Musch led Brighton with 16 markers, followed by Dave Harmon (15) and Bill Bybee (10).

Ron Hubbard flipped in 16 markers and Bernie Bach added 10 for Northville.

TURN AROUND—Seaholm's Carl Charles (44) forces Kimball's Loren Millon (51) to look elsewhere for someone to pass to in their game last night at Seaholm where the Maples shocked the Knights, 38-32 in slow play.

N. Farmington Rallies to Nip Groves, 74-72

The Raiders of North Farmington battled from behind last night to upend Birmingham Groves, 74-73, in a Northwest Suburban League contest.

Doug Gilmore's layup with just 12 seconds left in the game decided the contest in North Farmington's favor.

The triumph gave North Farmington a 2-0 record in league competition, while Groves is now 1-1.

The lead seemed to slip from start to Groves' winning bucket at the 12-second mark.

Groves jumped into a 23-17 first-quarter advantage, but North Farmington poured in 11 points in the second period to gain a 44-40 lead at intermission.

But then it was Groves' turn. The Falcons promptly outscored North Farmington in the third, 19-17, to go in front after three stanzas, 59-56, only to fall victim to the Raiders surge in the fourth.

BIG GUN Ken Kilka was the big gun for the Raiders and the thorn in the side for the Falcons. He poured in 30 points, collecting 10 field goals and hitting on 10 of 11 attempts at the free throw line.

Assisting Kilka with the scoring were Mike Goo (12), Drew Mahalik (11) and Rich Herpich (11). For the evening, the Raiders hit on 20 of 30 free throws.

CHARITY HURTS Groves had more field goals — 31-27 — but the Falcons made good on only 11 of 18 attempts at the charity stripe.

Scott Love set the pace for Groves with 24 markers, followed by Kevin Birke (16) and Tom Rex (15).

IN BETHLEHEM — Thousands will hear the bell in the tower of the Church of Nativity in Bethlehem on Christmas Eve. Pilgrims from all over the world attend this midnight service in the Holy Land each year.

Born in Bethlehem

Celebrate Jesus' Birthday With Music

Some 1,900 years have passed since the baby Jesus was born to Mary and Joseph in the little town of Bethlehem.

Men and women throughout the world still remember His birth in songs and sermons and in giving gifts at Christmas to those they love and to those in need.

It was Jesus who said "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, with all thy mind, and with all thy strength," and "thy neighbor as thyself."

In Pontiac area churches, choirs will sing cantatas, anthems and choruses written by great composers telling of Jesus' love and forgiveness.

Plays will be presented and sermons preached, all related to the "Glory of God."

The committee will continue to assist the pastor in working out plans for the new congregation. Additional members will be added in the near future, Pastor Freed said.

The first worship service for Holy Spirit Church is set for 10:30 a.m. on Jan. 11 at Green Elementary School, 4500 Walnut Lake, West Bloomfield Township.

Sunday School classes will begin about a month later after a teaching staff has been organized. It is hoped there will be classes for three-year olds through adults.

Presently Pastor Freed is seeking names of young people in grades seven through nine who are interested in enrolling in confirmation classes. Information may be had by calling the pastor's home.

BUILD IN SPRING

Construction of the new church building will likely get under way in the spring, Pastor Freed said.

Friends of the Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Andrews of St. George's Episcopal Church in Milford are sending them to England for five weeks this coming summer. They will attend the Canterbury Ecumenical Summer School at St. Augustine's College.

Church funds are not being used. The trip is the result of spontaneous gifts from friends for 10 years of outstanding service the Andrews have given the church and community.

Archbishop Thomas Beckett was murdered in 1170 A.D. and since that date, Canterbury has been a place of pilgrimage. The 800th anniversary of the martyr's death will be observed in 1970. The event will be commemorated in a cultural festival by internationally famous artists.

Students at each session of the summer school will take a full part in the festival, and their seats will be reserved for the major events.

Marimont Baptist

Once again the Senior Choir of Marimont Baptist Church, 66 W. Walton will present the Christmas cantata.

"The Wonder of Christmas" by John Peterson will be performed along with the annual Christmas program at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

The cantata presents the story of the birth of Jesus Christ, and the true meaning of Christmas, taken from the Biblical text according to the Gospel of Luke.

The congregation and soloists will join in the singing of carols.

North Perry Baptist

"A Christian Christmas" directed by Mrs. James Gargle will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday at North Perry Baptist Church, 1180 N. Perry. Alan Gargle will serve as pianist.

Members of the Sunday School classes will participate in the program.

The Sunday School Crusade Contest ended in a tie between the third and fifth grade classes. Bibles will be given individual winners during the 11 a.m. worship tomorrow.

Deacons will fill baskets of food and clothing for deserving families Monday afternoon. Toy contributions will be appreciated, the pastor said.

Youth of Walled Lake in Home Classes

Contemporary Christian Living is the name of the religious program for high school students of the Walled Lake area.

Sponsored by St. William Catholic Church, the program is unique as classes which meet for several hours an evening each week have home program leaders.

These are adults who welcome assigned classes into their homes. Some 150 young people constitute the program now scheduled for 14 homes.

Administrators are Charles and Jim Duff.

The Rev. Jim Mayworm, of St. William's Church and spiritual director, commenting on classes said "We are pleased to see the program is a hit with teen-agers as a new concept in modern Christian formation."

DIALOGUE
"The students seem to enjoy dialogues on contemporary issues with their peers and adult leaders."

While one class may schedule a resource person to discuss current topics such as the dangers of smoking, drug abuse, others may devote an evening to the use of film, tape, or records to cover a variety of subjects including "Freedom," "Why Vietnam," "People" and "The Church Today."

University Student Assists in Services

Mike Elwood, a student at Central Michigan University, will assist the Rev. Edward D. Auchard in the morning service tomorrow at Orchard Lake Community Church.

Young people, home from college, are invited to attend the Fellowship Time between worship services. The Children's Choir Festival

A Religious Group Solves Problems

NEW YORK (UPI) — A metal building system enabled construction of the first interfaith religious center at a college within the New York State University system.

The story of the new Interfaith Center at the State University in Geneseo, N.Y., began in 1966 when the Catholic chaplain at the college was instructed by his bishop to look into the possibility of building a Newman Center for Catholic Studies.

When it was learned Protestant groups were considering converting an existing building into a social center, the groups decided they had a common goal and merged to form an Interfaith Board.

The first official act of the Board was to purchase land directly across the street from the campus, locating the religious center — which can have no official connection with the State University — technically "off campus."

But when the Board invited bids for a building that would include an auditorium with a capacity of at least 400 persons, a large lounge with adjacent kitchen facilities and a number of offices and seminar rooms, the cost was found prohibitive.

No public funds could go into the center, which was financed mainly by gifts and donations from alumni, students — and Geneseo residents.

Then Edgar Tafel, architectural consultant for the Interfaith Center, suggested a building using steel component parts but retaining a masonry facade.

This brought the cost down to where the budget could meet it.

Although it appears to be a brick building, the new Interfaith Center actually is an Armo Metal building with a brick exterior.

But it is serving the students who until this year had no interdenominational center for either worship or study.

It is the highest form of self-respect to admit mistakes and to make amends for them.—John J. McLaughlin, American diplomat.

Children Portray Live Nativity Scene

Children and young people of Five Points Community Church, 3411 E. Walton, Pontiac Township, are presenting a Living Nativity scene on the front lawn of the church.

The display, beginning Thursday, will continue through Monday.

Complete with cast, story and music, the traditional scene of the birth of Christ will begin at 7:30 each evening. It will be repeated at 8 and 8:30 p.m.

The star on top of the church, a manger scene on the lawn, shepherds and sheep on the nearby hill, and wise men on their way to worship at the manger will be the complete scene.

The Five Points Church is located at East Walton and Squirrel, just opposite Oakland University.

Bring Gifts

White gifts will be brought to St. Mary's in the Hills Episcopal Church, Orion Township and placed in the manger at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Holly Communion will be celebrated at 9 a.m. A carol service is scheduled for 11 a.m.

Rabbi Ernst Conrad points out that the problem is relevant since the majority of people in the western world have for several centuries declared their commitment to Christianity.

The origin and historical development of the holiday will be traced. Guests are welcome, the rabbi said.

Reflections
WHEN SHOULD A FUNERAL DIRECTOR BE SELECTED?
Many people put this decision off until forced to. The wisest and best time to select a funeral director is far in advance of need. To do this is not morbid—merely good foresight and common sense.

Commissioners Set to Study 1970 Budget
Pontiac City Commissioners will begin study of a tentative 1970 budget of $11,589,000 Monday.

The proposed figure is an increase of less than five per cent from the 1969 total of $11,007,000.

The commission is meeting Monday this week instead of its regular day, Tuesday, because of proximity to Christmas.

The tentative figure represents a balanced budget and does not provide for an increase in the seven-million property tax levy.

The city income tax is expected to net $5.2 million during the year. The property tax is expected to yield $3.4 million, based on an estimated total assessed valuation of $491 million. Various other sources of income complete the total. The valuation is expected to increase $60 million.

The commission will study the budget and call a public hearing sometime in January.

Holiday Atmosphere Fills Contemporary

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press
Santa Claus is coming to town and one of the first places he's sure to stop is the contemporary blevel of the Nick Palmers in Waterford Township.

For weeks, the Palmers have been preparing for his annual visit with festoons of greens and sparkling Italian lights brightening the decor and the inviting smell of baking cookies whetting appetites of all who drop in.

The ground-floor family room paneled in rough-sawn cedar shares honors with the kitchen as the heart of this attractive home. Designed for comfort, the family room is spacious.

A raised hearth fireplace of California manufactured stone dominates one end of the room.

HEAVY

"The stone is very heavy," said Mrs. Palmer, "and its texture duplicates that of petrified wood, as does its color."

Colorful pictures peek from their rock perches inside the holly wreath decorating the fireplace. Ropes of greens highlight the handrail leading to the second living level with perky little elves peeking out here and there.

Designed and built by Palmer, the home accents convenience and beauty. In the kitchen, a free-form sink island provides ample working space as well as a snack bar for quick lunches or coffee breaks.

SPECIAL LIGHT

The island is lit by a specially designed, free-form fixture which repeats the contour of the island itself.

Christmas comes to the kitchen as a jolly elf hangs onto the black wrought iron birdcage planter over the wall counter space.

Centering the moss-green covered table in the informal dining area is a candle arrangement. The round globe fixture emphasizes the blues and greens of the draperies and the fabric of the chairs.

The draped window wall opens onto an informal dining patio, perfect for picnics during the milder weather. Backing the patio is a railroad-tie retainer 200-feet long.

"Installing that was a real fete," said Mrs. Palmer. "But now that it's in and planted, it's lovely in the blooming season." Twelve rose climbers spread their fronds against the ties as well as a collection of hybrid teas and flowering shrubs.

Royal-blue sculptured carpeting, white walls and white antique satin draperies set the background in the formal living room. The room is set aside from the front entrance by an open white wrought iron divider. Panels of grape design add decorator interest to the space container.

Marble-topped tables of fruitwood follow the French Provincial lines. A greens arrangement with a white ceramic Madonna and white doves establish a holiday atmosphere on the room's stereo.

FRONT GABLE, brick planter, window box, breezeway, cupola and shutters are among the warm touches that give this small house an appearance of hospitality. Hand-split wood shingles carry out the generally traditional exterior theme.

S-24 STATISTICS
Design S-24 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, foyer, two bedrooms and a bathroom on the first floor, with a habitable area of 1,104 square feet. The expansion floor upstairs, divided into two bedrooms and a bathroom, totals 570 square feet. The covered breezeway between the house and one-car garage can be made into a 14' by 12' enclosed porch or extra room. Over-all dimensions, including the breezeway and garage, are 61' 6" by 33' 6". The plans include a basement.

In Handsome Built-In

Elegance of Fine Furniture

If you've been thinking of a built-in as utilitarian storage only, banish the thought. It doesn't have to be a bit bleak, indeed it can have all the grace and custom-made elegance of a really fine piece of furniture.

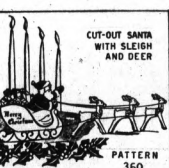

Cedar Storage Raises Value

The resale value of a home can be increased and its appeal to prospects enhanced by having a cedar closet. Cost of lining an existing closet is around $60, but if the moth-repelling closet helps sell the house and bring a better price, it's well worth the effort, many home owners report.

It's no trick for the amateur handyman to line a closet with aromatic red cedar, which may be applied directly to existing walls.

The pieces, which are tongue-and-grooved, can be installed easily and quickly.

REMAIN FRESH
Having a cedar closet is a good investment not only in the event of a future sale but for the coming months and years. Clothes and furs stored in a cedar-lined closet are safe and remain fresh and ready for use year after year.

MAKE THIS DECORATION
for your picture window or to put on the table or mantel. Pattern 360, which gives acoustical-size cutting and painting guides for Santa, sleigh and deer about 10 inches high is 50 cents. It also is one of four patterns in Packet No. 55 — Christmas Cut-Outs for Lawn and House which is a big value for $1.50. The Pontiac Press Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 50, New Windsor, N.Y. 12550.

larger platters, too, and other hard-to-store pieces. The elegance enters with design, choice of materials and finishing. A countertop of polished marble is handsome, practical for serving and easy to care for. In black or a dark tone, it's a dramatic foil for silver and fine china.

As for the cabinets themselves, there's no better choice than Douglas fir or western pine. Either will have a special splendor if they're gold-stained but may be stained or painted any shade picked up from wallpaper or upholstery.

The design of the cabinet doors will do most to set the tone. What's needed is a decorative piece, yet one with clean and simple lines that won't distract from furnishings or conflict with other patterns in the room. Raised panel doors, for instance, are timeless and have a custom look.

NOT CHEAP

A Realtor's Preamble In A Paraphrase

Over all is God. Upon his wise utilization and universal ownership depend the survival and growth of our civilization. God is the only One through which any nation can reach its highest goals.

He is the Creator of the Heavens and the Earth. God imposes upon us obligations beyond those of ordinary nature. He imposes grave spiritual and social responsibilities and a patriotic duty to which any Christian should dedicate himself and for which he should be diligent in preparing himself.

A Christian, therefore, should be zealous to maintain and improve the standards of his calling and share with his fellow Christians a common responsibility for its integrity and honor.

In the interpretation of man's obligations, he can take no safer guide than that which has been handed down through twenty centuries embodied in the Scriptures.

"Whatsoever ye would that man should do to you, do ye even so to them."
Matthew 7:12

Accepting this standard as their own, all mankind should pledge themselves to observe this spirit in all their activities, and to conduct their business in accordance with its demands.

House of Herod and Jesus—6

Violence Reigned in Christ's Life

AP Religion Writer
 Roman crosses lined the roads of Galilee and Judea—2,000 of them—on which Jewish patriots writhed in agony and died. It was a harrowing but common sight during the boyhood of Jesus.

From the start, he lived in the midst of violence, struggle and peril. Yet he grew up with an undaunted assurance.

"Take heart... Have no fear... Blessed are those that are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Brought back from Egypt on the death of King Herod the Great, who had sought to slay him among the children in Bethlehem, his upbringing in Nazareth remained in the shadow of the Herodians and the Roman Empire.

RULED BY SONS

Three sons of Herod, survivors of family purges that had done away with five other sons, now ruled his divided realm. Archelaus in southern Judea, Herod Antipas in Galilee to the north, and Philip in the mostly pagan region east of there.

Flames of revolt broke out across the country in Jesus' childhood, and turned it into a powderkeg of insurrection and fierce reprisals throughout his early years around him.

Not only he, but his brother, James, and his staunch advocate, John the Baptist, eventually were slain in the onslaughts of a imperially dominated rule, which later made martyrs of his apostles and thousands of his early followers.

But it was a grimly familiar situation to Jesus from the very first, from that earliest flight into Egypt to elude the slaughter of Roman legionnaires, and through his maturer days in Galilee, swept by uprisings and scourging troops.

TOWNS RAZED

Near 6 A.D., when he was approaching 12, two Roman legions augmented by horsemen and auxiliaries, under command of Rome's Syrian legate, Varus, stormed through Galilee, Samaria and Judea, razing towns in bloody punishment for uprisings.

"Along this march, nothing escaped them, but all places were full of fire and slaughter," writes first-century historian, Flavius Josephus.

Numerous towns, including

Sepphoris, just across a valley from Nazareth, were left in smoking ruins, with 30,000 Jews sold into slavery, and 2,000 ringleaders hunted down and crucified along the roadsides—the Roman penalty for rebellion.

This was around the time, either shortly before or after, Jesus made that youthful pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and became so immersed in conversation with temple scholars that the Galilean party started back without him.

3-DAY SEARCH

Scripture relates that Mary and Joseph searched three days before finding him. "Did you not know," he said, "that I must be in my Father's house?"

But the bitter upheavals, spurred by alien oppression and attachments of Herod's successors to pagan Rome, began even before the scorched-earth march of Varus, and continued long after.

"Now at this time there were 10,000 other disorders in Judea which were like tumults because a great number put themselves into a warlike posture," Josephus relates. "Thus did a great and wild fury spread itself over the nation."

At the time Jesus' family returned from Egypt to Nazareth, deciding against going back to Bethlehem because of the turbulence in Judea following Herod the Great's death in 4 B.C., his son, Archelaus, already was involved in retaliations there.

UNLEASHES ARMY

When temple crowds, lamenting the late king's burning to death of their learned, defiant leaders, Judas and Matthias, stoned a detachment of 1,000 troops sent to disperse them, Archelaus unleashed his entire army to crush the melee. Foot soldiers and horsemen, laying on in merciless abandon, killed 3,000 Jerusalem people, sending hundreds of others fleeing to the hills to form armed bands to strike back at the foreign predators.

For a time, the whole nation was in revolution, a swelling tide of resistance deploying in three companies to attack Roman forces at the temple, at the hippodrome outside the walls, and at Herod's palace in the upper city.

Legionnaires finally beat them off, at one point setting fire to the temple cloisters to dislodge rebels on the roof, most of whom tumbled to their deaths in flames, fighting back with slings and bows to the end.

OVERRULES APPEALS

During this rampage, Archelaus, Herod Antipas and Philip were in Rome, getting their jurisdictions—none equal to their father's kingship—confirmed by Caesar Augustus, who overruled appeals from Jewish delegations to end the rule of Herod's line.

Returning to the territories, Archelaus pursued his harsh crushing of dissent, replacing the temple priesthood, overriding Judaism's moral precepts, imposing extortionate taxes and arousing a wave of revolt that brought Varus' troops flailing across the land.

Archelaus then was deposed and banished to Gaul, succeeded by Coponius, the first of a line of 16 Roman procurators, including Pontius Pilate, to hold Judea in submission, while Philip and Herod Antipas retained their restive tetrarchies in liege to Rome.

It was Herod Antipas who impressed former Greco-Roman features on Galilee, the rural area where Jesus grew up and began his ministry, where he himself defied direct threats of the tetrarch, who had beheaded John the Baptist for denouncing his profligacy.

JESUS WARNED

When Jesus was warned by sympathetic Pharisees to "get away from here, for Herod wants to kill you," Jesus told them, "Go tell that fox... I must finish my course... I must go my way today and tomorrow and the day following."

In the years before then, Antipas rebuilt Sepphoris as a walled city, the Rome-armed bastion of Galilee, just south of Nazareth. He also walled Betharamphtha, renaming it Julia, the wife of Augustus Caesar. On the south end of the city named for Augustus successor, Tiberius, with elaborate Roman baths over natural warm springs.

Earlier, however, in Jesus' youth, native resistance to foreign-dominated rule broke out like scattered brush fires, and it continued sporadically for more than half a century, until Rome annihilated the nation in 70 A.D. Writes Josephus: "What did most elevate them (the Jews) in following this war was an ambiguous oracle that was found also in their sacred writings: how about this time one from their country should become governor of the habitable earth."

SMOLDERING TIME

It was a smoldering time of wrath, hostilities and underground movements, of factions, secret cabals and flaring violence, followed by pursuits and savage repressions.

Time and again, Roman cavalry pounded across the countryside, leaving fields of gore, clapping natives into chains, driving rebels into mountain hideaways.

In the hovels of Jerusalem's lower city, Zealots daggersmen whispered their vow: "No ruler but God," and sealed it with assassinations of Roman collaborators.

In Jesus' developing years in Galilee, numerous rebel chiefs arose, leading guerrilla bands in lightning assaults against Roman power. Judah, son of the rebel Hezekias slain by the Herod the Great, rallied a new Galilean uprising, overrunning the palace at Sepphoris, seizing weapons and funds.

Another Zealot, Simeon, a tall handsome man who once had been a slave to Herod the Great, donned the diadem of a holy king, and led an attack on the palace at Jericho and at Betharamphtha, putting them to the torch and carrying off spoils.

ORGANIZE ASSAULTS

A shepherd named Athronges and his four brothers, known for their herculean physiques and great strength, organized assaults on Roman infantry, once waylaying supply troops at Emmaus, killing 40 Roman soldiers and their commander.

Some rebel leaders, including Simeon and Athronges, soon were captured and slain but others arose, and, in partnership with a Rabbi Zadok, kept up the struggle for years, firing a militant new party, the Zealots.

"They have an inviolable attachment to liberty and to God is to be their only ruler and Lord," Josephus recounts.

"They do not fear dying any kind of death... nor can any such fear make them call any man Lord."

Four other major factions were active in Jesus' time:

• The collaboratorist Sadducees, who worked arm-in-arm with Rome and its puppet rulers, made up of aristocratic landowners and merchants, who dominated the Jewish judicial-executive council, the Great Sanhedrin, and who were indifferent to religion, other than its practical, legal prerogatives.

• The pacifist, devout Pharisees, mostly unpropertied but scholarly men, dedicated to the Torah and prophetic ideals, scrupulous in their conduct, working at trades, but also serving as respected teachers and exemplars to the people, bearers of the vital spiritual traditions of Judaism.

• The Essenes, aloof, ascetic separatists, living in isolated communities around the Dead Sea, with their strict codes, "consecrated" weapons and a fiercely militant battle manual, with signals for ambush, pursuit and assembly.

• The Herodians who along with the Sadducees, firmly supported the Roman establishment, and who frequently are cited in Scripture as opponents of Jesus, including the time they baited him about whether he approved paying taxes to Caesar.

"Show me a coin. Whose likeness and inscription has it?" "Caesar's."

EMPEROR TIBERIUS

"Then render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's." The "Iron," Tiberius, became emperor in 14 A.D. on the death of Augustus, and under influence of his bitterly anti-Jewish adviser, Sejanus, Tiberius named Pontius Pilate in 26 A.D. as the fifth procurator in Judea.

In his 10 years there, Pilate repeatedly had to crush uprisings, once disguising soldiers as citizens to put the sword to hundreds in the temple square, slaughtering a mass gathering in Samaria, sending Jesus to the cross.

He finally was removed by Rome for his brutality in 36 A.D., but the next year, in 37 A.D., the death of Tiberius brought to power a new, more grossly cruel emperor, Caligula.

BANISHES ANTIPAS

He banished Herod Antipas to France in 39 A.D., and with Philip having died in 34 A.D., the last of Herod the Great's line, was gone, except a grandson, Herod Agrippa, the son of Aristobulus, one of Herod the Great's sons whom he had had slain.

A protégé of Caligula, the bribing, embezzling Agrippa briefly ruled his father's old kingdom from 41 to 44 A.D., and subsequently ingratiated himself with the brute emperor, Nero, and joined with his Roman generals, Vespasian and Titus, in devastating Jerusalem in fire and blood in 70 A.D.

That was the end of Israel's life for 1,878 years until 1948. And it was the final touch of the spawn of Herod the Great.

Secular historians, in those years, say little of Jesus, but what they say is revealing. Tacitus tells of a "great multitude" being Christians, deriving their name "from one Christus, who was executed in the reign of Tiberius by the procurator of Judea, Pontius Pilate."

'CHRISTIANS NO MORE'

Josephus mentions the "stoning of James, the brother of Jesus, called the Christ." Suetonius tells of an expulsion of Jews from Rome for disorders "instigated because of Christus."

A later emperor, Diocletian, after 10 years of killing Christians, had this inscription put on the Roman Coliseum:

"The Christians are no more."

It was the savage, erroneous postscript which Herod's masters in Rome wrote to a Christmas saga that the Judean king, who was executed in the palace at Jericho and at Betharamphtha, but which surpassed all the fury of his baleful descent to raise the image of a true king that grows on in the face of trials and trouble.

"The light shines in the darkness," wrote the apostle John, "and the darkness has not overcome it."

(THE END)

Robbers Walk Into Trouble

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Three men picked the wrong man as a robbery victim Friday—and the wrong place.

With officers lurking nearby and a State Police airplane circling overhead, the three allegedly robbed a federal agent of $23,000.

Officers said the three—Carl Wayne Matthews, 28, of Sallisaw, Okla., Marshall M. Powell, 32, of Centur, Ga., and Peter Maruskis, 49, of Russell, Ga.—were apprehended shortly after the incident and charged with armed robbery and assault with intent to kill.

William P. Sprecher, chief agent of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Internal Revenue Service, said the agent was to meet the men in an undercover attempt to purchase stolen guns valued at $60,000.

Albuquerque: 'City of Candles'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The golden glow of more than one million luminarias transforms Albuquerque into a "City of Lighted Candles" each Christmas Eve.

The luminaria custom was begun more than 300 years ago in Spain and Old Mexico to light the Christ Child on his way.

The first luminarias were bonfires of crisscrossed pinon boughs built in three-foot-high squares in the Spanish villages along the Rio Grande.

Modern luminarias usually are made of ordinary brown paper bags filled with sand. Each holds a single stubby votive candle.

JUST BEFORE DUSK

In this southwestern city of 250,000, the lighting of the candles begins just before dusk.

Homes in entire neighborhoods are then darkened.

Throughout the evening residents and tourists, who are attracted to the city especially passengers call it an "un- to view the spectacle, wind believable" sight.

Special flights also are available so the miles of flickering candles outlining rooftops, sidewalks, streets and patios may be viewed from above.

Commercial airline pilots flying over the city on Christmas Eve report that the lights make an awesome spectacle.

One stewardess said passengers call it an "un- to view the spectacle, wind believable" sight.

Serviceman Thanks Pupils for Travel Aid

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sixty-five pupils in two seventh grade classes in Charlotte got personal thanks Friday after they helped a serviceman come home for Christmas from Thailand.

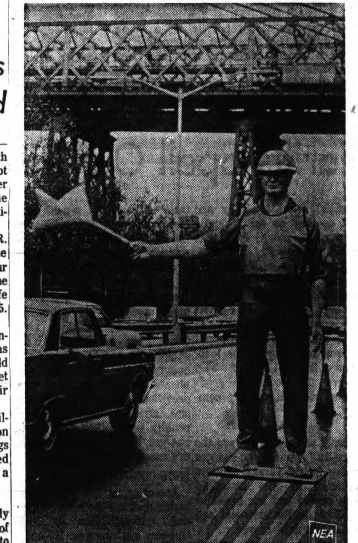

Airman I.C. Charlton R. Smith, 22, arrived at Charlotte Friday at the end of a 34-hour flight from Karot, Thailand. The $650 fare was paid by his wife and parents and the pupils' $125.

The students earned the money by doing odd jobs such as washing cars and selling old newspapers. None had ever met Smith until he walked in their classroom.

Thirteen-year-old Debbie Wilson told why the classes took on the project: "We all hear things soldiers do for us, so we decided to do something for them for a change."

The pupils' teacher, Randy Sills, was a college classmate of Smith's and suggested him to the class.

According to a recent study, high school athletes get better grades than nonathletes.

Oil Firm: Additive Halves Smog Factors

STANDARD OIL (UPI) — city driving that it is stalling and puffing clouds of black smoke from its tailpipe and, after a few tankfuls of this new gasoline, restore it to proper working order," Kane said.

The new additive also cuts down carbon monoxide emissions and increases gas mileage by about 5 per cent in typical urban driving, Standard said.

The firm said its plant in Richmond, Calif., is now preparing to begin production of the new component, called F-310. It will be added to three grades of gasoline now on the market beginning next month in Los Angeles and Hawaii.

Kane said as the supply increases, the new ingredient will be made available in all Standard marketing areas. He said the firm would soon be prepared to supply the additive to other oil companies.

A spokesman for the California Air Resources Board said experts had not yet had time to evaluate the Standard development.

"Their numbers appear to be impressive, and we really hope they have something," he said.

About 24 per cent of all pickup trucks in the United States are uninsured.

Marine Lost Legs; Now He's Walking

CONROE, Tex. (AP) - Jimmy Edwards III is coming home today and when he gets off the plane he'll be walking.

That's quite a feat for Edwards, for the young Marine lost both legs on Aug. 19 in South Vietnam.

But the former page over seer in the U.S. House of Representatives has told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Edwards of Conroe, that he is adjusting to his "new legs" remarkably well.

He had only been in Vietnam 14 days when a rocket burst in a bunker where he and a dozen other Marines had gone for cover.

He was one of only two survivors.

Edwards dropped his law studies at the University of Maryland last February during his junior year to join the Marines.

Radio Station Hires Ex-Press Scrivener

The appointment of James H. Dygert as WJR News State Capitol correspondent, effective January 1970, has been announced by William G. Harris, news director for WJR.

Dygert, a University of Michigan graduate, began his journalism career with four years on the Michigan Daily, the student paper at U. of M.

He was formerly a reporter and political writer for the Pontiac Press (1962-63); copublisher and editor of two suburban weekly newspapers, the Troy Messenger and the Rochester News (1964); and assistant editor of Detroit magazine at the Free Press until appointed entertainment editor in July 1966.

Richard Nixon Hears From the Other One

HOOPA, Calif. (AP) - Richard Nixon the 6-year-old got a Christmas card Friday from Richard Nixon the President.

Little Richard lives on the Hoopa Indian reservation here, about 60 miles north of Eureka. Last summer, he said, he was confused because "people kept saying my name on the radio and television."

The boy's mother, Mrs. George Nixon, first managed to get him clarification from the President in the form of a letter.

The President followed up with a snowy white card "Friday and an admonition to 'always stand as tall as the redwood trees and be proud of your Indian heritage.'"

Richard's dad is a woodsman on the reservation.

LA Police Raid 'Oh! Calcutta!' 7 Are Arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Police raided the play "Oh! Calcutta!" Friday night and arrested its producer, four actors and two actresses for investigation of indecent exposure.

They were booked after being arrested at the Fairfax Theater. On Thursday, the show, in which performers are nude most of the time, went off as scheduled despite earlier threats of arrest by city officials.

Those arrested were the producer, Louis Swartz, 43; Sheldon Pearson, 38; Margo Sappington, 22; Martin Spear, 28; Michelle Marsh, 22; Anthony Mirziny, 27; and George Welbes, 35.

Peanut Barrage Cost 30 Students School Bus Ride

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) - An unidentified lady school bus driver threw about 30 students off her bus Friday for pelting her with peanuts.

Officials of the bus company said the driver was harassed by flying peanuts for four miles during the morning trip and she finally stopped the bus and gave the exit command.

Some parents called and complained because their children - all attending Winnacunnet Cooperative High School at Hampton Beach - had to hike home in 28-degree weather. Others called their parents and were driven home.

The bus company owner, Shaun Berry of Northampton, said he would move the lady driver to another route.

Comic Alan King

He Jabs Establishment

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK - Alan King operates out of an office more befitting a lawyer than a comedian, from the paneled walls decorated with old maps, to the overflowing bookcases, to the wooden desk with an inlaid leather top and a pewter-base lamp.

Nevertheless, it is appropriate in a way, because King carries a brief for every person who has a grievance, real or imagined, against insurance companies, doctors, department stores, utilities and countless other institutions.

ON SAME SIDE
He got up from the desk and walked to the window and gazed down for a minute. "The funny thing about conservation and pollution - this is the first time everybody's on the same side. The big companies doing the polluting say, oh yeah, we're against it. We gave $100 to the cause."

Has his needling produced any results? "Nothing. Just that I'm being sued."

"The only reaction I get is that it just makes it easier for people. Someone sitting in a doctor's office remembers a line I've said and gets a laugh. I think if we didn't laugh, we'd just die. It doesn't help, but it does ease the pain."

"My only hope is..." He paused. "I think there's great hope. We haven't hit rock bottom. I think it's the last hurrah for politics as we know it. I think the answer is with the kids."

"It's our own fault, we've made them so smart we don't know what to do with them. I'm not talking about the kids who carry Vietnam flags and throw rocks. I think if we get out of Vietnam they're going to take on conservation. Who's going to be against them?"

SYRACUSE N.Y. (AP) - The envelope received in the Post Office Thursday bore a color photograph of a neat, one-story, wood-shingled house and the words "to the family living in this house, Syracuse, New York, U.S.A."

The photograph was covered with plastic and taped to the front of the envelope with the notation: "Postman, thanks for helping us."

"We'd like to help them," said Thomas DeYulia, a postal employee, "but I've never seen an address like this."

"If we can't bring the letter to the house, maybe the owner will come to the letter," he said when he asked a newspaper for help in locating the house.

If efforts to deliver the letter fail, its return should be simpler. A return address, B. Swenson, Box 3851, Bala Cynwyd, Pa., is on the back flap.

Syracuse has a population of nearly 270,000.

POWs Send Greetings via Radio Hanoi

NEW YORK (AP) — "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I'm in good health and... full of hope. Hope you'll have a joyous-filled holiday season..."

The message, from an American prisoner of war in North Vietnam to his family, was broadcast by Radio Hanoi yesterday. It was monitored in Hong Kong and relayed to the United States.

At least four times within the past eight days Radio Hanoi has broadcast such messages.

American radio networks have broadcast the messages over their facilities and sent them by closed circuit to stations in the fliers' hometowns.

The message above was attributed to Air Force Capt. Joe David Luna and a tape was played by CBS News for his wife, Mrs. Pearl Luna of Roy, Utah. The audio quality was poor and Mrs. Luna said she was unable to be sure the voice was that of her husband.

OTHER MESSAGES

Hanoi Radio said other messages came from Lt. Cmdr. Hugh Allen Stafford of Cambridge, Md.; Capt. Norman McDaniel of Greensboro, N.C.; and Capt. James Quincy Collins Jr. of Atherton, Calif.

The Christmas greetings run from 30 to 45 seconds.

CBS Radio has broadcast the messages, usually with comment from the families, over its network. NBC Radio broadcast three of the greetings on its network and is sending them by closed circuit to hometown stations.

ABC Radio is sending the messages to the hometown stations, and in addition is mailing tapes of the broadcasts to the families. The Pentagon also requested copies of the tapes.

SOBBED IN RELIEF

Mrs. Jean McDaniel of Greensboro sobbed in relief when CBS News called her with the message from her husband.

"This is the best Christmas present I could give my children because they are always asking me where he is and when he'll be coming home," she said. "At least, now they know that someday he might be coming home."

City's Santa to Give Candy, Raise Cane With Criminals

Santa Claus will be on double duty through Wednesday in downtown Pontiac. He'll pass out candy canes to the youngsters and be on the lookout for criminals.

Santa—for the third Christmas season—is Police Officer James L. Ockerman Sr.

Ockerman, a 25-year-veteran of the Pontiac force and bearer of seniority Badge 1—will wear a St. Nick suit over his police uniform.

Police Chief William Hanger approved the annual project three years ago. The Pontiac Police Officers Association provides funds for the treats Ockerman gives the children.

"I think it's good community relations and the kids love it," Ockerman said. The kids aren't the only ones who love it. Ockerman, who plays Santa for his own children and grandchildren, and his friends' children, arrives at the police station bright and early to don his special suit.

He will walk his downtown beat from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily (except this weekend) until Christmas. And he will love every minute of it.

"We try to show the people that we policemen aren't just out catching criminals all the time, that sometimes we help put a little cheer and a little humor into people's lives," Ockerman said.

Arabs Unifying Israeli Strategy

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Kings and presidents of 11 Arab states and representatives of three others and of Palestinian refugee groups were meeting here today to unify their strategy against Israel.

Informants said guerrilla chieftain Yasser Arafat, whose Palestinian raiders have captured the imagination of the Arab world, will try to convince the Arab leaders to abandon efforts for a political settlement with Israel.

But the sources added there are moderate Arab leaders who still believe a negotiated settlement is possible and they will try to win over those who advocate force.

Whatever is decided, the outcome of the meeting is likely to set the Arab nations' joint attitude to peace moves sponsored by the Big Four, The Soviet Union, the United States, France and Britain.

The meeting is the fifth Arab summit and the first since August 1967 in Khartoum after Israel's victory over Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the June war.

Snow May Greet Arrival of Winter

No matter what the weather — winter will officially begin for the Northern Hemisphere at 7:44 p.m. tomorrow.

And the weatherman promises the Pontiac area scattered snow flurries or light snow over the weekend. Here is the U.S. Weather Bureau forecast:

TODAY — Variable cloudiness and cold with snow flurries, the high 24 to 29. Mostly cloudy tonight with some light snow beginning late tonight. Low 21 to 26.

SUNDAY — Mostly cloudy with chance of light snow. Slightly warmer, high 29 to 34.

MONDAY — Variable cloudiness and cold with chance of snow flurries. Precipitation probabilities in per cent are 20 today, 40 tonight and 50 tomorrow.

A frosty 13 was the low before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. By 12:30 p.m. the mercury had warmed up to 27.

Key Aide Quitting Commerce Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resignation of a key man in the Nixon administration's "black capitalism" program has brought to the surface once again the bubbling turmoil in the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

Arthur L. Ortiz, director of the Commerce Department agency's campaign to persuade franchising companies to make more room for members of minority groups, submitted his resignation Thursday. It was not disclosed until OMBE was questioned yesterday.

Ortiz will return next month to New Mexico, which he left six months ago, to become state personnel director.

Although OMBE said the parting was cordial, sources within the agency said Ortiz was frustrated by what he thought were administrative shortcomings and was receptive to another job offer before New Mexican officials approached him.

EX-DIRECTOR MOVES

His resignation was submitted on the same day Commerce announced that Thomas F. Roeser, who was fired almost two months ago as OMBE director, quit his job as special assistant to Secretary Maurice H. Stans. Roeser will become public affairs director for the Peace Corps.

It became clear yesterday from interviews with several OMBE officials and observers that discontent has approached such a point the agency might lose as many as four of the 20 members of its professional staff.

The discontent apparently has its roots in the time before Roeser was fired.

Even now, however, there are differences of opinion about the cause of the firing. High Commerce officials have contended Roeser wasn't a good administrator.

Roeser supporters claim he was dismissed because he differed with Stans on the way OMBE's activities should be promoted.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — For 38½ years he lived the half-life of a fugitive. Now, wherever he may be and by whatever name, John Q. Harris at last is truly free.

The Utah Board of Pardons has quietly decreed that Harris, Allied the dean of Utah prison escapes, no longer owns a 1-to-10 year terms for writing a bad check.

Harris was 25 when he began serving his sentence in 1931. A month later he fled a work detail and vanished. The search was brief, and the escape became only a statistic.

Then in October of this year Warden John W. Turner received a telephone tip that Harris was living in Ambler, Pa. Checking old files, Turner verified the long-forgotten escape.

What happened next is a bit sketchy; state officials have applied a sympathetic muffler to the case. But this picture emerges:

Utah's board of collections decided to ask Pennsylvania authorities to check Harris' record in the years since the escape, but officials there say the request never came through.

Instead, Warden Turner got a phone call from Harris, and a letter, Harris,

Congress Set to Pass Tax Reform by Yule

From Our News Wires
WASHINGTON—A huge tax bill cracking down on many preferences but also passing out extensive tax cuts and Social Security benefits is set for final passage in Congress before Christmas.

It would boost the personal income tax exemption from the current $600 to $750 over the next three years, raise Social Security benefits to some 25 million Americans by 15 per cent across the board and ease tax rates for single persons.

But nothing in the bill will affect the amount of taxes Americans will have to pay next April 15 on income earned this year.

But a question mark hangs over the reception of the bill at the White House.

NIXON WARNING

previously he would veto a too-generous tax measure. His remarks apparently were aimed at the bill as passed by the Senate which voted on an $800 personal exemption.

After a Senate-House conference committee completed work on the measure yesterday, it came much closer in its revenue effect to an earlier House version Nixon indicated he would accept.

Moreover, it provides a surplus of revenue in the two years the President is most concerned about—$6.47 billion in 1970 and $288 million in 1971 — although the projections show a net loss later.

The White House has been silent, but most members of Congress who commented seemed to think the bill would pass the presidential test.

A high-ranking official, who could not be identified, said there was little doubt that Nixon would sign the bill. He said Nixon needed the revenue it would yield next year.

But the official also said Nixon would couple his signature with a sharp complaint about the long-run effects of the bill. Its long list of provisions eventually will cost the government several billion dollars.

The House has tentatively scheduled a vote on the measure Monday and the Senate is expected to follow promptly.

The administration fought the increase in the personal tax exemption to the end.

This provision would raise the exemption for taxpayers and dependents to $650 as of next July 1, to $700 in 1972 and to $750 in 1973.

Private Eyes Baring Many Holiday Tails

MIAMI (AP) — "Tis the season to be followed," says a private investigator who recommends avoiding the office holiday party.

The season "always brings a rush of new business on the domestic relations front," investigator Ed Bishop said yesterday in an interview.

"The much-joked-about office party frequently triggers what is usually a long-standing problem," he said. "Liquor relaxes the guy's inhibitions... in many instances, Christmas parties act as a catalyst."

After the partygoer has tarried long enough to be should, Bishop added, "the wife suddenly gets what she considers concrete evidence of something she's suspected all along. Then she calls us."

A BUSY FIRM

The rugged, 54-year-old former Miami Beach policeman has worked for several Dade County grand juries and currently is helping a Florida legislative committee. His agency has 73 investigators.

Although wives make many of the calls that bring him an upsurge of business during the holidays, Bishop said, they aren't alone in contacting the agency.

"Oh sure," he said, "we chase wives, too."

HE FLIPS FOR A PRICE—Passersby look in disbelief as Keith Gardella of the Salvation Army does a flip on a Chicago sidewalk. Each time someone donated $5 toward his organization's $665,000 Christmas appeal, Gardella repeated his acrobatics. For a $1 contribution he took the clapper from the standard Salvation Army bell and waved the bell in silence at a downtown Chicago intersection.

FIVE LEFT HOMELESS—Fire broke out early today at this four-unit apartment house at 263 Orchard Lake, leaving five persons without homes. Capt. Junior Deneen blamed faulty wiring originating in the second floor for the fire. He estimated "at least" $15,000 damage to the building and contents.

Five people were left homeless early today as fire swept through a four-unit apartment house at 263 Orchard Lake.

'State Bar Post Not Waldron's'

LANSING (AP)—Reports that the Michigan Bar Association will pick House Minority Leader Robert E. Waldron as its executive secretary have been denied by A. DeVere Rueggesser, bar president.

"There's no basis for that," Rueggesser said yesterday when asked about several reports that Waldron would be named to succeed Milton E. Bachmann, who is retiring. The post is understood to pay $25,000 a year.

Waldron, a Grosse Pointe Republican who will be 50 in late January, meanwhile, confirmed that he is thinking of resigning from the seat he has held since 1965. Asked his interest in the bar association job, Waldron replied he "would certainly be interested" if offered it.

An effective, closely followed leader among House Republicans, Waldron raised eyebrows when he remained conspicuously silent on Gov. William G. Milliken's education reform plans. Admittedly opposed to the parochial plan that Milliken incorporated in a more than $1-billion school aid bill, Waldron was reported to be concerned that his opposition to that would be interpreted as opposition to Milliken.

All the residents were routed after Mrs. Marge Radke called firemen at 3:21 a.m. from her apartment when she noticed smoke coming from an electric plug connecting her television set. There were no injuries.

Capt. Junior Deneen said there was "at least" $15,000 damage to the building and contents.

Deneen blames faulty wiring in the second floor circuitry, for causing the fire in Mrs. Radke's apartment. The blaze shot up between the walls to the third floor and through the roof. Smoke and water damage was evident on all three floors.

'EXCELLENT FIRE TRAPS'

Deneen said the old building had several false ceilings and floors creating space between the original and the modernized structures that created "excellent fire traps."

Besides Mrs. Radke, others homeless are Robert Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick DePachter and Christopher Burns. None had insurance on their belongings.

"We couldn't afford insurance on the contents," said Patrick DePachter. "I'm in the Army."

Mrs. Radke had just finished the last of her Christmas shopping. All the presents burned.

Lawmakers Go Home; No Gift to Governor

LANSING (AP)—The Michigan Legislature went home for Christmas Friday, leaving Gov. William Milliken not even a lump of coal in place of the nonexistent stack of approved education reform bills.

There was little to show for the 2½-month-long legislative session. Milliken planned to leave today for a long-awaited vacation in the Virgin Islands before traveling to the Rose Bowl next month to root for the Michigan Wolverines.

"There are some who will say that the session which is ending today, and which began in the early part of October, was not a successful session," Milliken told lawmakers prior to the noon adjournment.

'SOUND OPENING POSITION'

"I do not agree with that," Milliken said. "I will not acknowledge to anyone that we are in anything but a sound opening position" for action when the Legislature convenes its 1970 session Jan. 14. Milliken told newsmen earlier Friday.

The governor said he believed the "hundreds and hundreds of hours" of discussion on education reform this fall put his package in a desirable position for passage.

But Senate Minority Leader Sander Levin, D-Berkley, said the fall session had been designed for action—"not just talk."

"It is absurd to make claims of substantial progress on education reform after conducting a special session devoted to the problem without the passage of a single bill," Levin contended.

FEW BILLS PASSED

The session, aimed at revamping the state's educational system on the basis of a Milliken program developed by a special commission, passed only a few bills—including one to boost the current 6 per cent interest rate ceiling on municipal bond sales.

Not one education measure from the Milliken package made it through both chambers.

After much debate, floor maneuvering and even a court suit on the controversial question of parochialism, the Senate approved a $1-billion-plus state school aid bill for 1970-71 with $25 million in state funds for private and religious schools.

The parochial forces—pro and con—went to work on House members to make the issue one of the most lobbied ever.

NO HOUSE VOTE

The House never voted on the bill. A three-bill package of bills aimed at closing tax "loopholes," sponsored by Senate Taxation Chairman Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, passed the Senate but were amended down to the point where they brought in only about $3 million—compared with DeMaso's $40 million in the House.

Windsor Man Is Charged in Gift-Certificate Fraud

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—A 51-year-old Windsor man was charged yesterday with possessing $105,000 in counterfeit gift certificates from the J. L. Hudson Co., the largest department store in neighboring Detroit.

Joseph Kikola was arraigned before Judge John Wheelton in provincial court and was held under $50,000 bond pending a second hearing Monday.

He is specifically charged with unlawfully possessing "material that was adapted and intended to be used to commit forgery, namely approximately 2,100 forged J. L. Hudson merchandise certificates valued at $50 each."

The Detroit News quoted the Detroit area director of the U.S. Attorney General's Task Force Against Organized Crime and Racketeering as saying the man was believed to be involved in a multimillion-dollar scheme to defraud the store.

U.S. VIOLATION?

The News quoted James E. Ritchie, task force director, as saying the ring involved citizens in both Windsor and Detroit.

James Brickley, U.S. attorney for Michigan's Eastern District, would say only that his office was investigating possible violations of U.S. law.

Ritchie was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Inspector John Williamson of the Windsor police said the phony gift certificates were found in Kikola's car Thursday night after he was arrested in Windsor.

Kikola was arrested reportedly after fleeing a routine customs check on the Windsor side of the Ambassador Bridge, which spans the Detroit River and links Detroit and Windsor.

U.S. Reported Set to Let Bunker Quit

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS News says the White House has agreed to relieve Ambassador to South Vietnam Ellsworth Bunker of his post.

However, State Department and White House spokesmen in Washington said they could not confirm the CBS report.

The CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite quoted White House sources Friday as saying President Nixon has agreed to let Bunker go as soon after the New Year as possible.

The report said the White House has discouraged speculation that Bunker might go to the Paris Peace Talks as a replacement for former chief negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge.

John W. Paynter, Hudson's treasurer, said the store received information a week ago that an attempt was going to be made to push counterfeit gift certificates in the store during the Christmas holidays.

"To protect ourselves, Hudson's had put a security check in effect on all gift certificates of $10 or more," Paynter said.

"As far as I know, none of the phony certificates have been presented," he added.

The only difference between the fake certificates and the legitimate ones was that the counterfeit documents had no IBM punching and no serial numbers.

Widow Bids for Sympathy; Abby Suggests Alternative

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband died nine years ago leaving me with two small children. Friends rushed in, offered their sympathy and we were promptly forgotten. Months, even years go by without an invitation to have dinner with a "complete" family.

I have often invited married couples and their families to my home for dinner, but they politely decline for they are not interested in coming to a lady's home where there are only the lady and her children. I have my women friends, and the children have their school friends, but aside from this, we don't even exist.

I once considered joining an organization for parents alone, but when the first invitation closed with, "bring your own bottle," I decided it wasn't for me.

A well-known young men's service organization announced a Sunday father-son swim hour. When I called and explained that my son's father was dead and asked if my son could attend anyway, I was told that the boy would feel "uncomfortable" with boys and their fathers, and he was refused permission to attend.

Please, Abby, appeal to your readers who are fortunate enough to still have their "complete families" to remember those who do not. My story is not unique. Ask anyone in these circumstances.

PARENT ALONE
DEAR PARENT: I cannot imagine a "service organization" rebuffing your son in the manner (and for the reason) you describe. (In which city was this? I'd like to know more about it.)

And as for having your dinner invitations "politely declined," because "no one is interested in coming to a lady's house where there is just the lady and her children." If that is indeed the reason, I'm surprised that you haven't thought of inviting a gentleman to be your "host" and escort. Surely in the past nine years you must have met one such gentleman who could fill that role.

DEAR ABBY: Talk about weird problems, check out mine. I am a college student and have recently been fitted for contact lenses. I love them because I've worn glasses since the fifth grade. My problem is my boyfriend. Believe it or not, he likes me better in glasses! He wants me to throw away my contacts, but I am not about to, after having invested $200 in them. I much prefer contacts over glasses and I think I should be the one to decide, don't you?

My boyfriend says he has to look at me. He's even offered to reimburse me the $200 if I get rid of the contacts.

So far we've compromised. I wear my glasses when I'm with him, and my contacts when I'm not with him, but this is a stupid arrangement and can't last very long. Can you help me?

GLASSY-EYED
DEAR GLASSY: You're right. You are the one who should decide. If whether you wear glasses or contacts is going to make a difference in your relationship, it's best to find out now and act accordingly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNCLE MILTON: If you lend a friend 10 dollars and never see him again, it's a good investment.

Birthday Gift for Two Girls in Question

Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My friend and I both have birthdays within a few days of each other. We would like to have a joint birthday party, but we have a problem. We would ask the guests to bring gifts, but we know it will create an awkward situation.

Some of my guests do not know the other hostess. Therefore, they might not think it proper to bring a present for someone they do not know. What do you suggest? — Kathy and Ann

Dear Kathy and Ann: You do have a problem. There are two ways to solve it, and you may not like either, but you'll have to choose if you don't want your guests to be in the embarrassing position you yourself mention.

Either you could request that your guests bring gifts for both of you well ahead of time, or you should be direct, altruistic and write "No presents, please" on all the invitations.

'Toasting' Language Has Meaning

As midnight strikes and the New Year begins, around the world men and women will toast 1970, to wish good health and abundant wealth to friends gathered around them at traditional New Year's Eve festivities.

But, have you ever wondered, as you raise your glass, why toasting is a tradition in nearly every civilized country? Wine and liquor expert, Julius Wile, did some cherry research into the history of toasting and looked for a world-wide selection of toasts to vary your traditional "to your health" or "cheers."

In ancient times, when poison was the quickest and most effective way to do away with foes, a host would show his good faith and trust, would pour some of his visitor's drink into his own cup. He would then raise his cup high above the table and consume its contents.

However, the term, "toast," dates to Stuart's time in chilly England. Chunks of bread were toasted over the fire, then dropped on top of cups of wine or liquor. At first this dripping piece was eaten, but then it became customary to "drink one's toast."

Thus, in this way, the term, "toast," now applies to raising one's cup in good faith and cheer.

Wine and liquor expert, Julius Wile, did some cherry research into the history of toasting and looked for a world-wide selection of toasts to vary your traditional "to your health" or "cheers."

Actress Rachel Roberts, pictured with her husband Rex Harrison in New York in 1963, said Friday she hopes for a reconciliation. Only hours before she spoke to reporters in London, Harrison's lawyer had announced the couple were living apart. Harrison, long a box office hit in serious and light plays and films, married Miss Roberts seven years ago.

She'll Settle MAKE OVER PAGES

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK — Dear Santa. Brace yourself against your sleigh. Finally I've made out my Christmas list.

As a starter, there's a maxi coat in perfect matched Russian crown sable skins, priced at $185,000. So hurry over to Jacques Kaplan, the furrier, who advertised it in a newspaper two weeks ago.

I quietly checked in with Monsieur Kaplan and the coat is still available, although some customers have been in "negotiating."

Don't let him sell you on one of his hammocks of yak fur at $6,250. Each measures 10 feet, and that in a New York City apartment? Forget it. Then, there are those jeweled stocking stuffers I've been clipping information on. Start at Cartier's on Fifth Avenue, where the Sultan de Maroc diamond is available for "several hundred thousand dollars." It's only about half the size, 35.27 carats, of the stone Richard Burton bought from the store for Elizabeth Taylor, for something over $1,050,000.

WILL TAKE LESS

I'm hardly the Liz Taylor type anyway, and quiet little me will be quite happy with the sultan, a "rare icy blue-gray diamond" set in a ring and surrounded by more diamonds.

There's some doubt, Santa, that you'll have a chance at the Tiffany diamond up the avenue — a 128.5 carat number, valued at $2 million and said to be about the largest and finest canary stone in the world.

Tiffany's has owned it since 1878, and the word is that Walter Hoving, the company's chairman, would just as soon keep it around. But the store does have an 80-carat rough diamond for $450,000, which can be cut to specifications.

Harry Winston has another nice little stocking stuffer — a 65-carat marquise diamond for $700,000. Or take a look at Winston's emerald and diamond necklace for $1,200,000. I've always liked emeralds too.

There's no immediate interest at our house in the African safaris that Abercrombie & Fitch offer at $1950 per person. We wouldn't mind chartering an A & F yacht, though — cost unlimited.

Santa, I realize that these requests all tote up to several million dollars. You may have trouble financing them, what with the stock market in a deep slump. Matter of fact, it might be wise to shop after Christmas and get the mark-downs. I can wait.

Parties Planned for All Ages During Upcoming Holidays

By SHIRLEY GRAY
Come Christmas Eve (that's next Tuesday), the college crowd will descend on Bloomfield Open Hunt for THE party of the year, the annual Bachelor's Ball. This pleasant custom, a holiday season must since 1962, makes the rounds of various clubs. Last year, the host club was Orchard Lake.

For the first time this year, however, the black-tie requirements of previous years are dropped. Informal garb will be the thing.

The change was made, says Mrs. Charles L. Wilson, publicity gal, because arranging formal attire for the partygoers, many of whom had just breezed into town one or two days before from school, presented some real logistical problems.

ROMANTIC NOTE
In the midst of this happy season, an especially happy note from Dr. and Mrs. S. Daniel Steiner of Bloomfield Hills. Their son, Thomas Daniel, is engaged to a young lady from Rochester, N.Y., Rebecca Grimmer, daughter of the Clarence A. Grimmers Jr.

Tom, a 1967 Dartmouth grad, is doing volunteer legal duty for VISTA. His bride-to-be is finishing up at Roston University, and after her 1970 graduation, plans to teach in elementary school.

Dr. Steiner is GM's chief medical director.

The Carl Luckenbachs, who live in Birmingham, gave a little dinner-dance Thursday at BOH in honor of the season.

Tennessee Girl Wins Acclaim for Her Ballad--Book--Play

NEW YORK (UPI) — At 17, Jane Wagner, of Morristown, Tenn., was going to conquer the world with her music. Then, it was with her acting, followed by sculpture and designing.

Finally, she got around to writing, and in the first television play she ever put on paper, she probably has found her direction.

Miss Wagner, a tiny, brown-eyed blonde, is the author of an hour-long network special presented originally as a breakaway from the usual Saturday daytime mold of cartoons for children.

But, the play won such critical and viewer acclaim, the network has now rescheduled it for prime evening time next week.

The work, which originally began as a ballad Miss Wagner wrote, also has been turned into a book and Miss Wagner thinks she may make it back into a ballad again.

The play, entitled "J.T." Its story is about a young Negro boy of start behaving with a stronger sense of responsibility.

CBS bought the play as one of three in its special "Children's Hour" dramas and aired it last Saturday at noon. The one-hour show will be repeated at 7:30 p.m. EST Monday, preempting the highly rated "Gunsmoke."

"I was trying to do something that had universal appeal," said Miss Wagner in an interview.

"...to show how the human spirit transcends hate and brutality."

Students in 1800's Limited by 'No-Nos'

DANVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — An indication that the nation's college students haven't really changed too much shows in an exhibit of historic items marking the 150th anniversary of Centre College here.

"Thou shalt not drink whisky. Thou shalt not steal chickens and turkeys. Thou shalt not paint signs and take off gates. Thou shalt not go into taverns or oyster saloons. Thou shalt not kiss the girls or hug the babies.

"Thou shalt not play cards. Thou shalt not pester Prof. Snyder. Thou shalt not pop fire-crackers and Thou shalt not cut off calf-tails."
