Girl, 13, Killed When Mountain Climbers Fall

Teenagers Plunge Into Rocky Crevasse; Many Injured Seriously

TIMBERLINE LODGE, Ore. (AP)—A group of youthful mountain climbers, roped together for safety, plunged to the bottom of a rocky crevasse yesterday when two of their number lost their footing.

One girl died and the others were injured, some of them gravely, as the teen-agers were whipped one after the other over the brink on the slopes of Mt. Hood.

Doctors worked all night and into today on the mountaineers trying to save those gravely hurt.

Some of those hurt lay for hours at the lip of the crevasse as doctors worked over them. Others, who could be moved more readily, were brought by snow tractor to Silcox warming hut 2,000 feet down from Crater Rock about 1,000 feet above this resort lodge.

Lynn Kaufman, about 13, of Larchmont, N.Y., died of suffocation, said Dr. Matthew Mirkovich of Los Angeles. He was vacationing here and was one of the first to reach the scene. She was driven deep into the snow as her companions dropped into a jammed pile in the bottom of the crevasse.

They had slid a hundred feet or more down an icy chute, then plunged into the crevasse. Some said the final drop was 40 feet. It dashed them onto a rock-strewn floor.

One climber who saw them said all were joined together with about 100 feet of rope and suddenly two of those at the back of the line lost their footing.

Rescue efforts were organized swiftly. The U.S. Air Force sent a plane to drop plasma and other medical supplies and the Royal Canadian Air Force sent a helicopter able to operate at high altitudes to McChord Air Force Base, Wash., to be ready for a call.

In New York stunned parents of the young mountaineers said today none of their children "knew anything about mountain climbing."

Only two of the 19 members of a youth hostel group from the eastern states, were able to walk following the accident.

Oil Blaze Blackens Sky Over Texas

SMOKE CLOUDS SKY—Smoke from a roaring blaze which took the lives of 19 workers rises over the Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp. refinery near Dumas, Texas yesterday. The fire began with an explosion, and more fires and explosions continued as firemen fought the blaze. The initial fireball blast was visible 65 miles away.

19 Die of Burns in Gas Explosion at Tank Farm

31 Burned by White-Hot Blast at Texas Plant; Fireball Like A-Bomb

D U M A S, Tex. (AP)—A burning petroleum tank exploded into a towering mass of white-hot flames that seared 15 men to death in an instant yesterday. Four others died later from horrible burns.

At least 31 others were burned by the blast that shot an orange fireball thousands of feet high and scorched a quarter-mile radius.

Spectators saw friends and relatives stumble moaning and crying, their clothing afire, from the smoke and flames at the Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp. tank farm. Ensnared explosions burned and shattered three other big storage tanks and blackened others nearby.

"The fiery blast snuffed out their lives and they crumpled in their tracks," Editor Bill Lask of the Moore County News said.

Bob Hamilton, a News reporter, said his hair almost caught fire 200 yards from the explosion. A shirtless boy stumbled out with his naked back in flames. He said the dead were caught in a "pool of fire."

Some of the burning bodies set fire to blankets used to wrap them. Others exploded from internal steam pressure. A railroad bridge burned a quarter mile away.

Bob Bower, Shamrock public relations official, said the men were fighting a small ground fire when the 20,000-barrel tank containing pentane, a butane-like fuel, caught fire. Firemen who were attempting to cool other tanks were caught in the first explosion at 6:53 a.m. Greater loss of life was averted because many of the men had

Confesses Moore Answers First Degree Count Today

HOWARD W. MOORE

The Mass of the Angels Will Be Sung for Baby Martha Tomorrow

The sullen sex killer of three-year-old Martha Little will be arraigned on a first-degree murder charge this afternoon.

"If I had any wish in the world, I would wish I could bring that little girl back," Howard Wayne Moore told Sheriff Frank Irons yesterday.

Moore, a 23-year-old furnace repairman for a Pontiac heating firm, confessed Saturday that he killed the child with a tire iron after she screamed when he tried to molest her.

Services for Martha, one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Little of 238 Lake St., Lake Orion, will be held tomorrow from St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Lake Orion. The Lake Orion Lions Club has offered to pay all funeral expenses.

A Mass of the Angels will be said tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. for Martha. In Roman Catholic liturgy, this is a special mass of jubilation, since the Church believes the child is assured a place in Heaven among the angels.

Yesterday Moore was taken by officers back to the field in Independence Township where Martha's nearly nude body was found Saturday, the back of her head crushed by heavy blows.

CHILD VIOLATED
Moore confessed the murder was done with a tire iron, but deputies have been unable to find the weapon near the scene of the crime. A broken beer bottle was found beside Martha's body, and fragments of glass were imbedded in her skull.

A post-mortem Saturday at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital confirmed she had been sexually attacked.

Asked where he threw the tire iron, Moore refused yesterday to leave the police car.

"It must be out there somewhere," he said, pointing vaguely to the field. "I just don't remember good when I'm drinking."

IMPULSE KILLER
A convicted car thief, Moore said he drank "about 12 beers," and blamed the beer and an argument with his recent bride over a grocery list for the "impulse" which led him to attack and kill Martha.

Need of Death Penalty

Once again the people and officials of Michigan are facing a tragically frustrating fact.

Our great Commonwealth has no penalty to fit the foul crime confessed by 23-year-old HOWARD W. MOORE. The harshest punishment which can be meted out to this bridegroom of a month for the rape slaying of his three-year-old Lake Orion neighbor, MARTHA LITTLE, falls far short of justice.

Although he has confessed this revolting crime, all a competent court can do about it is to sentence him to one of our State prisons. There the State will feed and house him for the rest of his life, or until and if he is paroled.

This inability to make the punishment fit the crime isn't just the result of accident or oversight. It exists because not only the Legislature but the people of Michigan have voted that legal execution is too severe for first degree murder.

The result is that every few months the people of the State are outraged by similar sex crimes. Only a few weeks ago a young school teacher in the Upper Peninsula was a victim. Last year the lives of two little girls and a boy were sacrificed on the altar of Michigan's refusal to do anything about ridding itself of convicted sex slayers.

In the name of all that's good and decent how many more Martha Littles will have to be sacrificed before Michigan will protect its women and children by adopting capital punishment?

This newspaper believes in the death penalty for convicted sex slayers.

International Suez Board Being Considered by West

LONDON (AP)—American support was asked today for a plan to set up an international board, on which Russia would be represented, to control the Suez Canal and guarantee freedom of passage for the ships of all nations.

British and French sources said the plan, designed to counter Egyptian President Nasser's seizure of the canal, was placed before policy makers of the three Western powers, meeting here in a crisis atmosphere. In effect it would recognize Egypt's nationalization of the canal, but would superimpose a guarantee of its international use.

A rising clamor in the British press demanded the use of armed force, if needed, to answer Nasser. Hundreds of onlookers thronged around 10 Downing St. where British Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, his Cabinet and military chiefs, met.

The Cabinet session preceded a second conference of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and U. S. Undersecretary of State Robert Murphy, who examined the Suez question for five hours yesterday. Informants close to the conference said the plan which the United States is being asked to support would give Egypt, as well as Russia, a place on the Suez control board, and that Egypt would be guaranteed a share of the revenue from the operation of the waterway.

Russia was a signatory of the nine-power convention of Constantinople in 1888 which guaranteed the canal would be open to ships of all flags in peace and war. Alarm of Britons and Frenchmen over the fact Egypt's nationalist revolutionary leader has

Find Cornerstone Relics

CORNERSTONE DISCOVERY—Workmen razing the original Pontiac General Hospital building last week discovered a small copper box which had been laid in the cornerstone of the building on July 12, 1906. Examining some of the historical contents of the box are Miss Lauretta Paul, hospital director. Holding the box is John M. Hoffman, job superintendent for Darin-Armstrong Co. of Detroit. The box contained a June 18, 1906 copy of the old Pontiac Press-Gazette with a full-page of the 32-graduating class of Pontiac High School. Postcards showing landmarks of the city and the History of the Oakland County Hospital Assn., which began the drive for the city hospital, were discovered in the box.

Reject McKeon Defense Move

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (INS)—Defense motions that three of the four charges against Marine S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon be dismissed with findings of "not guilty" were rejected today at his court-martial. McKeon, a former drill instructor, is accused of causing the deaths of six Marine recruits by leading them on a disciplinary march into the swamps of Ribbon Creek April 8.

Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein, law officer of the court, denied three separate motions made by Chief Defense Counsel Emil Zola Berman, asking that counts two, three and four in the indictment against McKeon be dismissed. Klein's ruling, in line with court-martial procedure, is subject to objection by any member of the seven member military tribunal which is hearing the evidence.

When Klein announced his decision, Col. Edward L. Hutchinson, president of the court-martial, declared a recess to enable the court to make a final ruling.

Hutchinson announced, after court had reconvened, no member of the court had objections to the law officer's rulings. There fore, Klein's decision was final.

Berman made three separate motions calling for dismissal of counts two, three and four of the indictment against McKeon. It was the opening gun fired by Berman in launching the defense's presentation at the trial.

McKeon will take the stand in his own behalf as one of the "Early" defense witnesses, it was revealed by Berman.

McKeon said he welcomed the McKeon, 31, of Worchester, Mass., says he was convinced his 74-man platoon was "gloating off" and lacked discipline and morale. So he led his men on a march into the boondocks and swamps of Parris Island.

SIX DROWN
Six recruits lost their lives by drowning in the tidal waters of Ribbon Creek on the ill-fated "death march."

McKeon expresses deep regret over what he terms the "accident." He admits having taken several drinks of vodka during the hours that preceded the march, but insists he was clear-headed when it began.

Berman said he expects to finish the defense case earlier than he had previously estimated. He characterized the prosecution's case as having been marked by "weakness and confusion" and because of this, he said, he didn't think it would take him more than a week or 10 days to present the defense.

Stassen Flies to Ike's Farm

May Present His Case for Dropping Nixon and Moving in Herter

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Harold Stassen flew here today for a conference with President Eisenhower—quite likely to discuss Stassen's proposal that Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts be picked as Eisenhower's vice presidential running mate.

Stassen's surprise arrival a few minutes after 10 a.m. came just a week after he first advocated that Herter rather than Vice President Nixon, be nominated for the No. 2 place on the Republican ticket.

Stassen stepped from Eisenhower's personal plane with a big smile on his face. He carried a bulky brief case.

Newsman asked Stassen whether Eisenhower, who came to his country estate here Saturday for a long weekend of rest, had requested the visit.

"No, I asked to see him," Stassen replied. "I requested the appointment on Saturday."

Stassen was driven immediately to the Eisenhower farm about six miles from the airport. It was his first conference with Eisenhower since July 20.

Killer of Martha Little Shows Sign of Remorse

"If I had any wish in the world, I would wish that I could bring that little girl back."

Confessed killer Howard W. Moore told Oakland County Sheriff Frank Irons and State Police Detective John Wooley this, as they questioned him further about the brutal slaying of three-year-old Martha Little.

It was the first real sign of remorse the bridegroom of five weeks had shown since his arrest late Friday at a gas station, when he was held on a drunk and disorderly charge.

"He says he still can't remember everything clearly but that he wished he could," Irons remarked following the interrogation.

Irons said the 23-year-old Moore was still "pretty mixed up," but that he seemed relieved that he had confessed.

The stony-faced Moore had two other visitors during the day. Oakland County Prosecutor Fred Zeim, who had hurriedly returned from a convention on Mackinac Island, and his assistant, George Taylor, talked with the prisoner for 15

Youth's Death at Crossing Puzzles Wixom Residents

Residents of Wixom are puzzled today what drove nine-year-old Billy Grave to his death Saturday afternoon when he rode his bike in front of a train at a crossing in the center of the Oakland County community.

Witnesses to the accident said cars were stopped for the east-bound freight train with its whistle blowing and that the blinker lights were operating.

Billy, a fourth grade student, was killed instantly when his bicycle was struck by the train at the crossing at Pontiac Trail and Wixom Road, approximately 500 feet from where Billy's family lives.

State Police officers have called the crossing "one of the most treacherous in Oakland County." Vernon Martin, of Walled Lake, whose car was stopped for the train said he "shouted at the boy as he started across the tracks, but did not get his attention in time."

The dead boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Grave, of 119 Wixom Rd., are under a doctor's care.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1 p.m. at the Richardson-Bird Chapel at Walled Lake. He will be buried in the Wixom Cemetery.

Beside his parents, Billy is survived by Mrs. Verna Groat of Detroit, and Mrs. James Fry, of Sturgis, both grandparents, and two married sisters, Mrs. Forrest Hubbel and Mrs. John Romberg, both of Wixom.

Collision Jams Xway

DETROIT (INS) — Traffic on the Davison underpass in Detroit was jammed for 35 minutes today after two autos overturned, spilling gasoline on the street.

MARTHA'S HOME — This is the Lake Orion home where Martha Little lived with her parents and five brothers and sisters. One of her favorite pastimes was playing in a sandbox built next to her house by her father. It was the last place she was seen alive by the father. Sheriff Frank Irons, and a Lake Orion police officer are shown above looking over the sandbox during the early hours of the search for any clues of her disappearance.

'She Always Stayed Near Home'

By LAWRENCE S. MARTZ JR.

Standing on the porch of his Lake Orion home Saturday morning, quiet, slow-spoken Joseph Little looked with haunted eyes at the small brown house next door.

"I didn't know him at all," Little said. He spoke as if he were just discovering the fact.

"He just moved in a week ago," we nodded, said "hello" a couple times, but I don't know anything about him."

For Joseph Little, knowing his next door neighbor was suddenly the most important thing in the world.

Little's 3-year-old daughter, Martha, had been missing 11 hours.

The neighbor, 23-year-old Howard Wayne Moore, was being held in Oakland County Jail under suspicion of having something to do with her disappearance.

HAPPILY AT PLAY

Through the sleepless night, a mounting horror grew in Joseph Little's gray eyes.

He had been taking care of Martha and her five brothers and sisters the evening before. The older children were swimming, the 5-month-old baby was sleeping, and Martha was happily playing in a sandbox beside the house at 8 p.m.

Little had just returned from the store with cheese-coated popcorn as a treat for his children. When he called Martha at 8, she answered him.

When he called at 8:30, she wasn't there.

Neighbors and Lake Orion police began searching the neighborhood immediately. Men in boats started to drag the shoreline of Lake Orion, only 200 yards from Little's house.

"But she never went to the lake alone," Little said. "She always stayed close to home."

About 10 p.m., sheriff's deputies and state troopers joined the search. They suspected Moore might be able to tell them something when his wife, Irene, bride of only a month, told a neighbor he left his home about the same time Martha disappeared.

WASHING OFF BLOOD

He was arrested at a gas station at 10:30. He wasn't wearing the shirt he had on when he left.

As the night passed and the search spread, more bits of evidence against Moore trickled in.

An attendant at the gas station where he was arrested told deputies he had seen Moore washing what looked like blood from his hands. Moore's face and neck were scratched, the attendant said.

Under relentless grilling, Moore insisted he was in a bar all evening. Only a waitress remembered Moore being there. She told police Moore came in about 10:30 with scratches on his face and neck and blood on his hands and shirt.

Under analysis in the state crime detection laboratories at Lansing, Moore's trousers revealed traces of human blood and scraps of flesh.

BIGGEST SEARCH

The biggest search in Oakland County history was organized. More than 200 men combed back roads, woods, swamps and fields.

The sheriff's mounted posse forced horses through heavy undergrowth. Boats criss-crossed nearby lakes, dragging for the 'small body.'

At the jail, Moore insisted he was innocent.

"Do you think I could live with myself if I'd done a thing like that?"

But deputies painstakingly searched his car found a child's fingerprints on the dashboard and window sills.

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Moore broke down. He confessed the brutal rape-slashing; agreed to lead deputies to the murder scene if they didn't make him look at the body.

As they prepared to leave the jail, the questioners received a radio report that Deputy Don Kratt had found the body sprawled in a freshly-mowed hayfield, 20 feet off a lower lane near Maybee and Sashabaw roads in Independence Township.

Kratt, 25, is a Waterford High School graduate who joined the Sheriff's Department in May, 1955. Married, he lives only a mile from the shady lane where he first spotted the body.

Sheriff Frank Irons and veteran officers of the department praised his alertness and initiative which led to the discovery. Irons added that cooperation from the numerous agencies participating in the case was exceptional.

Lines Form Against Sale of Land for Industry

LINES FORM—IT and O LINE BIRMINGHAM — Hopes of city officials to get closer to their price for two pieces of property in the Elton Park area and to rezone it for industrial use may face heavy residential opposition tonight.

Five letters included in tonight's agenda object to the rezoning, and register objection to industry so close to the new subdivision homes. Another letter asks that the Berry Door Co., in the area, discontinue night operation. "On warm evenings, the constant running of the machines becomes most irritating," writes Mrs. F. A. Von Koss.

Worry about children playing in the park with trucks passing, and land values of nearby residences, are mentioned in the letters.

Parcels No. 5 and 6 at Commerce and Lincoln, are being offered for sale, with minimum bids asked of $26,271 and $16,432.

With bids being asked equal or over $30,000 for three lots just south of Webster on Hunter Boulevard, the city's agenda tonight includes a letter from a previous bidder, demanding either rejection or acceptance at once. The bid, of Marie N. Primo, is $29,100.

A financial report on proposed parking lots from James Purkiss, finance director, suggests that councilmen wait until next spring on all lot construction, thus allowing assessments to be paid. Then, Purkiss advises, Lot No. 4 could be paid for.

Earlier advice has said Lot No. 4 might be dropped because of land shortage.

Also on tonight's agenda are reports on the Twelve Town Drain, selling the sewage plant to the North Evergreen Authority, property acquisition for Parking Lot 2-HH, and condemnations of Park Street and Ferndale Street rights of way.

About 150 honored D. C. Egbert last night at a dinner, while several hundred attended the open house for him in the afternoon.

Mayor James Allen spoke at the dinner, lauding Egbert for his 19 years as city manager and 27 years of city service and presenting him with gifts that included a scroll and a small evergreen plant.

The evergreen symbolized the "Christmas Tree" that will be named in his honor, and will bear a bronze plaque. Replacing the present tree that centers Shain Park, the Norway spruce will be planted when weather conditions are right.

backed away from the tank because of the intense heat.

The other tanks, ranging from 10,000 to 20,000 barrels in capacity, quickly caught fire from the initial blast. They contained crude oil or its by-products.

The injured were taken to the 40-bed Moore County Memorial Hospital in this Texas Panhandle city of 8,000.

Nine of the dead were Shamrock employees and the others volunteer firemen from nearby towns.

Flames from the burning tanks were shooting at midnight as high as they were at noon. But winds that earlier had blown the flames away from the farm of 50 to 75 tanks subsided and fear that the other tanks would ignite subsided. The fire was expected to burn itself out.

A skeleton fire crew stood by but a Shamrock official, S.G. Wait, said there wasn't "a thing any fireman could do to prevent the entire tank farm from going up" if the fire spread.

Dr. James L. Johnson of Amarillo, who was flying his light plane near Dumas when the tank exploded, saw the first fireball. He landed at Dumas and rushed to the hospital.

I was watching the fire, which was about 20 miles away," he said. "It was followed by a big mushroom of smoke—just like the kind in the atomic bomb pictures."

The fireball was also sighted at Amarillo, 40 miles to the south.

The Shamrock plant is located eight miles northeast of Dumas. Bower estimated the damage at half a million dollars.

Lowell Berry, maintenance foreman, said the plant would be back in operation within eight hours after the fire burned out.

Hamilton said the heat from the blast was unbearable at 200 yards away. He added:

"A whirring sound was heard for about two minutes and then it hit. The resulting inferno looked like tons of TNT going off. Orange flames turned to black."

"As I started to cross the highway an unidentified man ran by with smoke billowing from his hair. Instinctively, I reached to feel my own hair and it was hot."

Many Scots are unaware of the fact that the bones of St. Andrew rest in the Cathedral at Amalfi on Italy's Sorrento peninsula.

Distraught Parents Recall Few Years With Martha

It was a grim and heartbroken couple that left St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Saturday night after making positive identification of their three-year-old daughter who had been found slain that afternoon in an Independence Township hayfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Little and their pastor, the Rev. George G. G. of St. Joseph's Church in Lake Orion, walked out of the hospital emergency room with heads bowed and fighting back the tears after one glance had told them the dead girl was their Martha.

The hard-working couple, parents of five other children, had held out hope and prayed right up to the end that it might be all a mistake and that their girl would still be alive somewhere.

One look and they realized it was all in vain as had been their continuous vigil kept in their modest Lake Orion home.

Little, a plumber's helper in Lake Orion who had lived at his present address for five years, said he had talked to Moore once when the young bridegroom moved next door a week before and had said hello to him once.

The grieving parents sat recalling the few years they did have with Martha. Joseph told how she had always been a happy and healthy girl. He said she especially enjoyed playing in the sandbox he built for her next to their house and also liked riding her tricycle or riding with him in the car.

He said the sandbox was the last place he saw her alive about 8 p.m. Friday. He had just returned from the store with candy for the children. Mrs. Little was on duty as a nurse at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital at the time.

The search began when Martha failed to answer his call a short time later, with friends and neighbors taking part and then, various police officers. The number of searchers reached over 400 by the time she was finally found.

Mrs. Little remarked that her daughter would have been four years old August 5, next Sunday. Her husband told how they had planned a birthday party for Martha.

"We were going to give her some saddle shoes because she had always wanted some. Now she will be buried in them," Joseph Little said, staring back at the hospital as Father G. started the car to prepare to leave.

notified Lake Orion police. Moore was arrested about two hours later at a gas station, where an attendant reported he was washing brownish stains from his hands.

Under relentless grilling for 11 hours, Moore broke and admitted the slaying minutes before Oakland County Sheriff's deputy Don Kratt discovered Martha's body in a field off Maybee Road in Independence Township.

More than 200 police and volunteers had been searching for the child in the biggest all-out search in Oakland County history.

Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem learned this morning that a neighbor boy, nine-year-old Pat Jones saw Moore Friday night with his arm around Martha before they left the neighborhood.

The boy said Moore had been polishing his car.

The boy, son of Clare L. Berger, of 315 Lake St., Lake Orion, is scheduled to make a statement to Ziem today, as is Moore's 20-year-old wife, Irene.

Flying Saucer Seen by 7 Near Saginaw

SAGINAW — State police at the nearby Bridgeport Post today said they received seven reports of a "flying saucer" between midnight and 7 a.m.

One officer, who declined identification, said he saw a flying object himself.

The first report, which came from the nearby Burt Ground Observer Corps Station, said the object appeared about 12 feet in diameter, had red and blue lights and was moving swiftly. Various reports put the object between 1,200 and 25,000 feet.

The reports came to state police from Saginaw, Midland and Grafton Counties.

Garrison was pronounced dead at Receiving Hospital. He had been shot in the mouth with a rifle.

Garrison's wife died less than a year ago. He was released only last Thursday from New Grace Hospital after 24 days' hospitalization for a broken clavicle.

KILLER LIVED HERE — This small, one-story home, located within 30 feet of the home of the murdered Martha Little, was where Howard W. Moore, her confessed killer, had lived for only one week before the girl was discovered missing Friday night. The 23-year-old bridegroom of a week has continued to maintain he does not know how the child got into his car but admits he bludgeoned her to death and left her in a hayfield when she cried because he molested her.

ADA Hits Nixon as Candidate

GOP Would Be Taking Chance With Nation's Future, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans for Democratic Action said today the Republican party will be taking a "dark and dangerous gamble with the nation's future" if it renominates Vice President Nixon.

A staff report on Nixon's record, addressed to delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention, based on the organization's conclusion on what it called Nixon's "many limitations and weaknesses."

"It is a record that shrinks when measured against the needs and responsibilities of America's position in the world," said the 24-page printed document.

Preparation of the pamphlet was started before Harold E. Stassen opened his July 23 drive to replace Nixon with Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts as President Eisenhower's running mate. But it took note of the Stassen move as "further public expression of deep sense of unease about Nixon" and added:

"This public controversy over Nixon's fitness happened because he has become more controversial, more vulnerable, more expendable than he was in 1952, when the first effort was made to drop him seven weeks after his nomination."

Stassen said he feels certain Herter's name will be placed in nomination for the No. 2 spot on the GOP ticket because "regardless of everything, said about me in the past week, the convention is now open."

Eisenhower has expressed delight at Nixon's plan to seek renomination, but has not foreclosed the possibility of another running mate. Stassen, Eisenhower's assistant for disarmament, said during a CBS interview he doesn't think Eisenhower has "reached a final conclusion."

"The President also believes in an open convention. . . . He will wait until all the factors are in," Stassen said.

Cops, Robbers Game Fatal to 16-Year-Old

LYNN, N.C. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Carl Lee Blackwell died yesterday after being shot through the heart while trying to wrest a pistol from his 4-year-old nephew, who was using it in a game of "cops and robbers."

Sheriff Lloyd Westbrook said he was told the nephew and other children had been playing with cap pistols, when the youngster went into the house and got a .25 caliber pistol belonging to his grandfather.

Young Republican Says He'll Back Leonard

DETROIT (AP) — Allan Clink, national Young Republican committeeman from Michigan, announced today formation of a new committee in support of Donald S. Leonard, GOP candidate for the nomination for governor.

"We feel Leonard is qualified by experience and education to be a good governor," Clink said. "He has the physical ability to wage the aggressive campaign necessary to be elected governor and he can be neither bossed nor bought."

Committee members include representatives from the 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th Congressional Districts.

FUN IN THE BACKYARD — I

The Swing

There is plenty of fun to be had in the back yard when the weather is fine. Many hours can be passed pleasantly on a swing under the trees.

Here is Janey on her swing, being watched by a little squirrel in the tree, and by her two dolls. Color this picture with your crayons, and then paste it down on cardboard.

Study it carefully before you cut it out, and notice how the rope goes across Janey's arms, through her hands and up over the tree. Then cut the figure out, and cut around the heavy outline of the trees and ground, so the center is completely cut away.

Take a long piece of thread, make a big knot in one end and thread it from the front through the seat of the swing up to Janey's hand, through it, at the hole indicated, up to the tree, across the back of the picture to the hole in the tree at right. Then bring it out at the front, down to Janey's hand, through it at the indicated hole and out through the swing seat. Draw the string straight, but not too tight, and knot the end to match the one on the left.

Fasten a penny behind Janey's back, with gummed tape. The weight will be just right to help her swing. Hang the picture by a string through the holes at the top.

(Tameia and Louise Edline, Lima, Ohio, first suggested this idea. If you have an idea for Junior Editors, send it in care of this newspaper, and it may be worth $10 to you. Violet Moore Higgins; AP Newfeatures.)

Owner Drains Water!

Lake Becomes Mud Hole

WHITINGHAM, Vt. (AP) — Cottage owners along Lake Sadawaga and Houghton N. Sawyer were at odds today because the lake, no longer exists.

Sawyer drained the water from the 220-acre lake he has owned for 30 years. He said he no longer felt up to paying the tax bills.

A thin trickle of brook water winds through a mud flat where swimmers and boaters held sway a month ago.

Mud prevents recovery of boats now anchored on the lake bottom. And the insects are nothing to write home about.

Sawyer says there is an easy solution: he'll close the gates, refilling the lake, if the cottage owners will help him foot the $150 annual tax bill.

Some of the townspeople don't see it that way. Selectman E. J. Roberts of Jacksonville, who happens to be Sawyer's first cousin, says Sawyer is "just being ornery."

"He figured that if he let the water out, people would rush to him and get on their knees and beg him to sell it," Roberts said. "I figured I had to do something dramatic," said Sawyer. "But you know how those stubborn Yankees are."

Democrats Plan Runoff Election

Nomination for Texas Governor Has Liberal Opposing Conservative

DALLAS (AP) — U. S. Sen. Price Daniel, a conservative and States-Righter, opposes liberal Ralph Yarborough in a runoff Aug. 25 for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas.

Daniel, who said he would resign his Senate seat after he won the nomination, led the ticket with 578,946 votes in the final tabulation yesterday by the Texas Election Bureau, an unofficial vote-counting agency.

Yarborough, a former district judge who lost two previous gubernatorial races to Gov. Allan Shivers, had 428,948 votes in the incomplete returns.

W. Lee O'Daniel, former U. S. senator and Texas governor, polled 324,145.

J. Evetts Haley, Reuben Senterfitt and J. J. Holmes all failed, but pulled enough votes to help keep anyone from having a majority and therefore throwing the race into the Aug. 25 runoff election.

The Democratic nomination usually is tantamount to election in Texas.

WW II Students Decline

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Only seven or eight World War II veterans remain at the University of Michigan out of some 11,000 who received their education under the GI Bill of Rights, which expired this week. Some 3,000 Korean veterans attending on the Korean bill are expected in the fall semester.

Use of post cards with round corners has been authorized by the Post Office Department.

Ike Keeping Eye on Hot Situation in Suez Canal

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower kept watch today on the potentially explosive Suez Canal crisis. He also prepared to act on legislation left for him by Congress.

Closing out a long weekend at his country home, Eisenhower stayed near the telephone for further consultations with Secretary of State Dulles on Egypt's seizure of the canal.

Aides were expected to fly from Washington with some of the bills enacted before Congress adjourned Friday.

Assistant press secretary Murray Snyder said the President and Dulles discussed the Suez situation at length yesterday by long-distance telephone a few hours after Dulles returned to Washington from Latin America. Any conclusions were undisclosed.

Eisenhower plans to return to the capital tonight or early tomorrow morning. Still in the convalescent stage

Farmington Stymied on School Sites

$2,000,000 for Building — Good Spots Unobtainable

By MARY CELINSKE
Farmington Correspondent

FARMINGTON — With $2,000,000 to spend for new schools in the mushrooming Farmington area, Farmington Board of Education members find themselves stopped for want of desirable school sites upon which to build. Everyone can appreciate the need for new schools but everyone wants them "somewhere else."

"For sometime it has been a problem to negotiate with owners," says O. E. Dunkel, Superintendent of Schools. "For various reasons, they do not wish to sell, they don't want a school nearby, or they value their property too highly. Frequently, desirable school sites are just out of reach of the schools."

That the board seek sites nearer the western limits of the city, however, at a joint meeting of the board and council held Thursday, Dunkel made it clear that the board feels such an arrangement would defeat its purpose.

"If we move very far west we move away from the need as it now exists," Dunkel stated. "As subdivisions develop to the west, children there will have to be accommodated, and children living in the heart of the city would again be right where they are today."

Council members have agreed that an elementary school should be located in the city, but no definite decision as to its location has been reached.

So far the board has completed the purchase of two school sites in the Kendallwood area. On a spot at 13 Mile and Power road a new junior high school will be erected, and an elementary school is planned for a six-acre site between 12 Mile and 13 Mile roads, west of Farmington road.

The school board is seeking a site near the center of the city of Farmington. At present there are three schools within the city limits, only one of which—the junior high school—is centrally located.

According to Dunkel, there are now 308 elementary students in that part of the city lying west of Brookdale between Grand River and the cut-off. All of these children must be transported by bus to the 10 Mile Elementary School because of hazardous McGee Hill. Cost of their transportation must be borne solely by the school district because they live within one mile of the school. (Districts are reimbursed by the state for transportation of children living more than one mile from school.)

The school board has attempted to purchase city-owned property along Farmington road, south of Grand River. The City Council is opposed to the sale of the property to the schools on the ground that property owned by the schools is not taxable. Little vacant property remains in the city, and the council, realizing the city's need for a sound tax base, would prefer that the property be sold for some other purpose.

Troy Officials Eye Drain Bill

TROY — Ditches that edge a goodly number of this city's roads if cleaned out in a city-wide project, would solve much of the flooding problems in the spring, according to City Manager O. G. Holway.

Holway is suggesting at tonight's city commission meeting that the city purchase special equipment for such ditch digging.

Present city-owned road-work fleet includes trucks and graders, but such a clean-up project along the roads would require other units, he says.

Further road building equipment is also needed, Holway says. Dirt has washed into most ditches, and in many cases slowed the water-flow during rainy spells this year, so that roads and basements of homes were flooded.

Other items on tonight's agenda are routine approvals, according to the city clerk.

Fire Unit Sets 3-Day Carnival on Brandon Field

ORTONVILLE — The fire department of Brandon Township will sponsor a carnival here tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday nights at the Brandon school athletic field.

Rides and concessions are planned, with entertainment furnished by one of the well-known Skerbecs shows.

Proceeds will go toward a two-way radio system with units in the two fire-trucks and the fire hall.

Holly Authorizes $233,000 Bond Sale

HOLLY — The village council has authorized the sale of $233,000 in sewage disposal bonds, the issue of which was provided for in an election several months ago.

Contracts for the work are also being completed. It involves replacing and enlarging some of the present sewers and the installation of new ones, also the starting of a disposal plant. Ever since a sewer system was laid in the village, the sewage has been dumped into the Shiawassee River just west of the village.

Purchase of Equipment Might Reduce Flooding, Manager Contends

TROY — City Attorney Jack. Hutson and City Manager O. G. Holway are studying possible ways that this city may reduce or avoid its assessment for the proposed Twelve Town Drain.

Mayor Frank Costello has indicated that he feels the assessment, of almost $19.45 an acre, is far too high. Other commissioners also are joining the opposition to the drain officials' dividing of financing.

A meeting of commissioners is slated as soon as Hutson and Holway complete their study. Indications are that probably the discussion will not be resumed until next Monday's meeting.

Engineers are continuing to "toy with ideas" on a sewer system that Troy might install itself, according to City Clerk Lawson Lockhardt, but have not been given any go-ahead on detailing. "It all depends on how the Twelve Town disagreement is settled," he says.

"There's been no decision to cut away from the Twelve Town plan," Lockhardt says, "but some of the city officials figure that the city can serve itself better by creating its own system."

"They don't plan on going along with it unless they absolutely have to," he added.

South Lyon Couple Say Vows; Bride Wears Lace

SOUTH LYON — Betty Jane Hamner chose a Chantilly lace gown with a Peter Pan neckline inset with illusion for her Saturday wedding to Clifford J. Lewis. Both are South Lyon residents.

Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hamner, of 224 S. Lafayette, and Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis, 360 Gibson St., respectively.

The couple spoke vows in the First Baptist Church, Northville, at 7:30 p.m., before 250 guests.

The bride's gown, highlighted with sequins on its lace bodice, had insets of lace in the nylon tulle, full skirt. A lace headpiece with sequins held her silk illusion, fingertip veil.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and pompons.

Dotted Swiss gowns were worn by her attendants: Nelda Lane of South Lyon as maid of honor, Mildred Ballagh of Lake Orion as bridesmaid, Barbara Hamner as her sister's junior bridesmaid, and Carol Whitehead as flower girl.

The bridegroom had as his best man, Charles Gaffka, and as ushers, Arnold and Tony Gaffka.

FANNED LIFE SPARK

Doctor Earl Book, whose office is near the beach said, "Mrs. Schroeder is responsible for saving that boy. She fanned what little spark of life there was until we could get a pulmoner on him."

One of the first persons to arrive when help was summoned, was Richard Parker, of Pontiac, who is employed across the street from the Arch. He was a Marine for seven years and said, "I've seen a lot of men drowned and I thought that kid was gone. Mrs. Schroeder did a wonderful job of bringing him back." Parker was stationed at Pearl Harbor when it was attacked.

A "boy-cried-wolf" note was injected into the situation. Two weeks ago, Eckert told of one of the children yelling that someone was drowning — just as a joke. Police and firemen were called, at that time and the swimmers were

The very same boy who had reported the hoax was the one that reported that Steve had gone down. Some time was lost because no one believed the report, according to Eckert.

Steve's father, Sam Brock of 175 W. Maple Rd., said, "Words cannot express our gratitude. It was Larry Eckert's courage and Mrs. Schroeder's knowledge that saved our boy."

Mrs. Schroeder modestly declares "It's what anyone would do in the same situation."

For classroom hours, the college girl will wear the slim skirt this fall. But when it comes to dates, she'll blossom out in wide skirts and even prop them with petticoats. The slim silhouette is shown (left) in a slip-over ridged cotton knit with turtle neck worn with a cotton sheath skirt. Lightly quilted cotton print (cen-

Let Child Tell You if You're Wrong

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Dave's family subscribes to a popular magazine. His best friend's family doesn't. So Dave, who is eight, takes pleasure in giving them copies that his parents have finished reading.

One Sunday afternoon his father couldn't locate the current issue. When Dave said he hadn't seen it, his father said, "I guess the MacIvers have it, eh? Since you've been giving them my magazine, I haven't put one down for fear it disappears."

A little later, Dave's mother found the magazine. So her husband thoughtfully sought his son in the yard where he seemed absorbed in repairing his express wagon.

He said, "Mother found this behind the couch where I was reading it last night. So I was wrong. You didn't give it to the MacIvers."

The boy made no comment. Then his father said gently, "Dave, you should have said, 'Dad, you are wrong.' You let me get away with something that wasn't true. So look up at me—and say what you should have said before. Say to me, 'Dad, you were wrong.'"

Dave had only got to the second word when the tension in his face broke—and he began to cry with the relief of his release hurt and anger.

The most economical thing a parent can do is train a child to say "You are wrong" when he believes us to be so.

If all children got this training, they would spare us most of the bad temper, lies, disobedience and general peevishness by which they now say "You are wrong" in aggressive action instead of aggressive words.

As they don't get this training, they don't dare speak the aggressive words. Unless like Dave's father we deliberately undertake to relieve them of their fear, we can live perpetual victims to their indirect, protesting, aggressive action.

A child's fear of the phrase "You are wrong" tells us that we have a problem of egotism—that our authority over him is fragile, based not on truth, but on falsehood.

For it is humanly impossible for us to be always right.

Though as parents, we must impose our views on Dave, we never dare claim perfect rightness for them. They are to be respected only because they are the very best we can see at the given time.

By JANET ODELL

This is the time of year when you begin to think about making pickles. To start you off, here is Mrs. Fred Jackson's recipe for Cucumber Cauliflower pickles. She says it's one of the best she ever tasted.

Mrs. Jackson gardens a lot and grows the cukes for this recipe. She also bakes fancy cakes as a hobby. She's a member of the Mt. Vernon extension group and of the Gold Star Mothers.

At the recent International Toastmistress Convention held at Hotel Statler in Boston, Mass., Gertrude McMahan of Santa Ana, Calif., international president, was principal speaker.

Miss McMahan spoke on "We Have Chosen the Good Part." Also speaking during the four-day convention were Sumner G. Whittier, lieutenant governor of Massachusetts; John R. Hayes, mayor of Boston; and Alfred T. Pompeo, mayor of Medford, Mass.

The convention opened with a "Boston Tea Party" held in the famous Old Faneuil Hall.

Representatives of 234 clubs attended the convention.

Eight persons participated in the speech contest. They were selected by elimination contests held in the various regions prior to the convention.

Mrs. R. A. Crawley of Vancouver, British Columbia, was the outstanding speaker. Her subject was "Cherry Blossoms, the Rockies and Grand Canyon."

Mrs. Howard Wheatley represented the Pontiac Toastmistress Club and was a delegate by proxy for the Redford Club.

Ladies' Church Unit Meets

Fourteen members of the Ladies Aid Society of Oakland Avenue United Presbyterian Church met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Fred Johnston on Sarasota avenue for a picnic luncheon.

Mrs. Theodore Allebach led devotions and gave a report on the Youth Conference that she attended recently at Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio.

Mrs. Guy Caswell presided at the business meeting at which time plans were made for a money-making project to be held in August.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs.

Deanna L. Mielke Weds Kenneth A. Ish

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Otto Mielke, Deanna Lee Mielke became the bride of Kenneth A. Ish in a candlelight ceremony Saturday evening. Some 350 guests witnessed the eight o'clock service performed by the Rev. John Streit in Grace Lutheran Church.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Donna M. Mielke of Sedum Glen drive, wore a floor-length gown of nylon tulle and hand-clipped Chantilly lace. The boat neckline was trimmed with iridescent sequins and the traditional long sleeves tapered to points at the wrist.

Her veil of silk illusion was held in place by a crown of sequins and seed pearls, and she wore a strand of pearls and pearl earrings, a gift of the bridegroom.

Jeanette Pierce was maid of honor. Gloria Rose, Mrs. Robert McCallum and Starr Linda Featherstone were the bride's other attendants. Their gowns were fashioned identically of crystalettes in blue, green, pink and orchid colors respectively.

With their ballerina-length, princess style gowns they wore flowered headpieces with matching colored nose veils. Each carried fans of feathered carnations.

FLOWER GIRL IN YELLOW

A floor-length dress of yellow crystalettes over taffeta and a matching headpiece was worn by Sally Featherstone for her duties as flower girl. She carried a small fan of yellow feathered carnations.

Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ish of Dover road, asked his brother, Paul Ish, to serve as best man.

Ushers were Marian Wilson of Detroit, Milton Mielke Jr., brother of the bride, and Robert McCallum. Ricky Mielke, cousin of the bride served as ring bearer.

A reception was held at the Amvets Hall immediately following the ceremony.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Mielke wore a dress of crystalettes with white accessories. Her corsage was of Bird-of-Paradise.

Mrs. Ish chose a mauve lace-over-taffeta dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

For the honeymoon trip to northern Michigan, the bride changed to a black and white sheath ensemble with black accessories and the white corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The newlyweds will make their home in East Lansing where the bridegroom is a senior student at Michigan State College.

MRS. KENNETH A. ISH

To reside in East Lansing are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Ish, who were married Saturday at Grace Lutheran Church. The bride is the former Deanna Lee Mielke, daughter of Mrs. Donna Mielke of Sedum Glen drive. Kenneth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ish of Dover road.

The Blonde Cried MURDER

By Brett Halliday

XXXVII
There was an air of elegance, a feeling of almost oppressive luxury about the huge lobby of the Roney Plaza Hotel on Miami Beach. At this hour of night and before the winter season had officially opened, the lobby was none-the-less quite well filled with gay couples in evening dress, coming and going from the bank of elevators to the cocktail and dining rooms where late supper was being served and dancing was in progress.

Michael Shayne made his way among the milling guests to the wide expanse of desk where two clerks were still on duty.

One clerk, a tall, lean, middle-aged man with a thin black mustache and a pained expression, turned his tired eyes on Shayne and lifted his upper lip a quarter of an inch in what was supposed to pass for a smile, and inquired, "And what can I do for you, sir?"

"Do you have a Barnes registered?" Charles Barnes from New York.

"If you'd care to inquire at the house telephone, sir?" The clerk flipped a white hand towel at a row of phones at Shayne's right.

The detective started to protest but, realizing he'd get faster results by observing protocol, went to one of the phones and asked the same question.

BARNES IN 1210?

A pleasant female voice repeated the name and said almost immediately, "Twelve-ten. Would you like me to ring them?" Shayne said, "Please." He let the phone ring six times before replacing it.

He returned to the desk and said, "Barnes in 1210?" Can you tell me anything about him?

The eyebrow-like mustache lifted superciliously. "I'm sure I don't know. If the telephone doesn't answer—"

Again, Shayne hesitated, and then he turned away with a slight shrug. He stepped back from the desk and lit a cigarette, looking around the lobby carefully.

He spotted a youngish man wearing a double-breasted blue serge suit leaning negligently against one of the pillars and apparently completely disinterested in everything that was going on about him.

HE'S NOT HERE

Shayne threaded his way to him and asked, "Is Jimmie Curtis still in charge of Security?"

The young man looked at him stonily for a moment, then his face relaxed in a pleased smile. "You're Mike Shayne, aren't you?"

"That's right. Jimmy around?"

"He's not here any longer. Hasn't been for months. Mr. Gerdon took his place."

"And where," asked Shayne, "can I find Mr. Gerdon?"

"I'll take you to his office."

The young man detached himself from the pillar and to Shayne's faint surprise it remained standing. He led him beyond the desk into a corridor, around the corner and down another with closed office doors on both sides.

He stopped near the end at a door marked "Private," knocked and then opened the door. He stepped inside and said smartly, "Mr. Gerdon. This is Mr. Shayne from Miami."

Shayne followed him in to a large room with a very thick carpet on the floor. A totally bald man with sunken cheeks and slightly protruding eyes set behind a highly polished mahogany desk.

NO TROUBLE?

He said, "Shayne?" and rose slowly as his bulging eyes studied the rangy detective from across the bay. He nodded and said, "All right, Rawson," and held a hand out to Shayne without noticeably cordiality.

"Heard a lot about you, of course. Is this social or business?"

"Business," Shayne sat in the chair he indicated. "A man named Barnes in 1210."

"No trouble, I hope," Gerdon turned his swivel chair to a card filing cabinet and drew out a lower drawer. He flipped through the cards and withdrew one, placed it on the desk in front of him.

Shayne said, "I'll know better when you give me the dope."

"Mr. and Miss Barnes from New York: Brother and sister. Twelve-ten is a two-bedroom suite," Gerdon explained. He read the New York address on East 63rd Street. "Credit rating A-1. They checked in 16 days ago. Everything regular. Paid the first week's bill with a New York check that cleared." He looked up with a frown.

"What are their first names?"

"Charles and Mary."

"Anything else on the card?"

"No notations. That means run-of-the-mill as far as observations go."

Shayne said, "Can you get some one in who can describe them both to me?"

Gerdon hesitated. "If you'd tell me what you have in mind—"

Shayne said, "A man carrying Charles Barnes' wallet was pulled out of the bay tonight. Dead. First time I knew he had a sister." His gaze was withdrawn, his voice speculative.

Gerdon sucked in his lips. He pressed a button on his desk, leaned forward to speak in a low tone into a small microphone on a stand in front of him on the polished mahogany. Then he leaned back and said, "We'll have the room-maid in. And the night-boy who serves that floor. Dead, eh? An accident?"

Shayne shook his head. "Murder."

Cadillac

No Reason to Wait Any Longer !

There's not much question about what this man and his son have on their minds.

They're thinking about Cadillac—and about how wonderful it would be to have one in their own driveway!

And because dreams of a Cadillac are hard to put aside, we suspect that it won't be too long now before we'll have an opportunity to give them the facts about Cadillac ownership.

And when that happy time arrives, they'll find that we have some wonderful news waiting for them about how practical

Cadillac ownership has recently become.

We will explain, for instance, that it is now possible to become the proud owner of a 1956 Cadillac for little more than the cost of far lesser cars.

We will tell them how economical a Cadillac is to operate—and how extraordinarily free it is from the needs of service.

And we will show them how, at resale time, Cadillac returns a greater share of its owner's original investment than any other motor car in the land.

But the best news will be yet to come.

For then we will talk about the generous allowance we can give them on their present car—and how short the waiting period is on the Cadillac of their choice.

They will find, we feel certain, that they have lost their last logical reason for waiting any longer to enjoy a new Cadillac.

Incidentally, have you considered how wonderful a Cadillac would look in your driveway? If you have, then we sincerely urge you to come in soon and get the facts.

We'll be waiting for you with a story too wonderful to resist!
