

By the Rocket's Red Glare

ON THIS patriotic holiday, when all America does honor to the nation, that phrase, "the rocket's red glare," has a new meaning.

When Francis Scott Key wrote the words that later became part of the fabric of our patriotism, they meant something different. They referred to rockets all right—crude forerunners of the ones which soar the skies today.

But they were Congreve rockets, a new military device being used by the British in their quarrel with the young American nation in the War of 1812.

They looked something like the rocket which was to become one of the major symbols of celebrating the Fourth of July—the "skyrocket." This later piece of fireworks, its tubular body filled with powder and its stick to be poked into the ground, made many a dad a rocket expert in the early years of this century.

Our modern rockets which have us on the threshold of the Space Age could hardly have been imagined by the British tars who touched off the Congreve rockets aimed at Ft. McHenry in the attack witnessed by Francis Scott Key who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner."

But today, with regularity, tremendous American rockets course through the emptiness of limitless space. They bring a new symbol into being, representing the inspiration, the ingenuity and the courage of the Land of Freedom—born in this world July 4, 1776.

Safety experts grimly watched the nation's highways today, desperately hoping that somehow the predicted record July 4th holiday traffic toll could be averted.

The National Safety Council forecast 410 highway deaths before the holiday officially ends at midnight Sunday. The council said 12,000 persons would be injured by then.

The 410 figure tops the previous three-day Independence Day holiday record, set in 1955 when United Press International recorded 391 highway deaths.

The all-time July 4th death mark occurred in the four-day 1950 holiday weekend, when 501 persons were killed on the roads.

The council said its forecast of 410 deaths meant 80 more persons would die this weekend than during a normal non-holiday three-day weekend period.

Police across the nation mobilized full efforts in an attempt to at least slow down the highway death rate. Virtually all available patrolmen were called out and warnings against speed, drinking drivers and carelessness came from almost every possible source.

A St. Louis, Mo., radio station teamed with a dairy and said it would give a free ice cream bar to everyone in the state if Missouri's highways stayed death-free this weekend.

As yet, no Missouri fatality had been recorded. A radio station at Winston-Salem, N. C., said it would pay funeral costs for Forsyth County's first holiday traffic death. The station said it hoped this would "be a contest with no winners."

Officials of Both Sides Meet to Resolve Split on Building Plans

The Detroit Area Hospital Council has taken under advisement arguments by St. Joseph Mercy Hospital that its physical plant should be expanded.

A hospital spokesman said yesterday that council and hospital officials met in Dearborn in an attempt to resolve their differences over St. Joseph's proposed 200-bed addition to existing 330-bed facility.

The hospital says the addition is needed to meet an increasing demand for hospital beds in an area where demands already exceed capacity.

The council says that the present demand is, in reality, "artificial," and that more facilities (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Believe Tycoon Puts on Naive Act

Probers Call Goldfine Shrewd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Peter F. Mack (D-Ill.) said today there has been a well-organized public relations effort to make Bernard Goldfine appear to be more naive than he really is.

Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich.), another member of the House subcommittee which is looking into the Boston millionaire's relations with presidential aide Sherman

Adams and others, said he considers Goldfine "anything but naive—a very brilliant business man."

Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo.) said in another interview that "any man who has been both in his enterprises and in securing influence is bound to be a very shrewd person."

The rosy-cheeked Boston industrialist has stressed his humble beginning as an 8-year-old immigrant boy from Russia, and his fascination at meeting important people.

And when the subcommittee disclosed what Goldfine described as Christmas gifts "that we send to some poor workers in different offices," Goldfine commented that "if that is something that is bad, I would like to be told about it."

The subcommittee recessed until next Tuesday its questioning of Goldfine after disclosing that he sent checks of from $35 to $75 each to 33 persons it said were present or former employees of the White House and congressional offices—both Democratic and Republican.

The White House confirmed that two of its employees had received checks. One, Miss Laura G. Sherman, said she had received a $75 check last Christmas. Press secretary James C. Hagerty said Miss Sherman, whose home is at Franconia, N.H., had been at the White House about a year and formerly was on the staff of Sen. Norris Cotton (R-NH). She now is No. 2 secretary to Sherman Adams, whose acceptance of favors from Goldfine has been aided by the subcommittee.

Hagerty said Mrs. Helen Cole, secretary to appointments secretary Thomas E. Stevens, reported getting checks each year since 1950—a period including three years of the administration of former President Truman. The checks ranged from $35 to $75, Hagerty said.

Report Rebels Now Hedging About Release

Believe Navy's Airlift Halted to Keep Secret Castro's Positions

From Our News Wires

HAVANA, Cuba—Forty-three Americans spent the Fourth of July in rebel camps of eastern Cuba today waiting for their own Independence Day.

Some informants said the rebels appeared now to be hedging on their release after turning loose four Americans and one Canadian.

The U. S. naval base at Guantanamo was reported to have reached an answer to the mysterious snag which stopped the rescue of the 45 captives.

It was believed the 45 men, including 30 U.S. Marines and sailors, might start walking out of the rebel-held hills today. A U.S. Navy airlift by helicopter halted abruptly yesterday, apparently for fear the craft would give away rebel positions to the Cuban army.

Local Highway Mishaps Minimized by Rainfall

Last night's rain-soaked introduction to the Independence Day weekend helped keep Pontiac and Oakland County highway mishaps down to a minimum.

No fatal accidents were reported here during the first 18 hours of the holiday. In nearby counties, however, an Imlay City woman and a Utica man were killed in separate accidents.

Area police reported numerous minor collisions occurring in yesterday's heavy rain. At least six persons suffered minor injuries.

The rain slowed traffic to a crawl in many places yesterday afternoon, police said. Dixie highway was temporarily barricaded in Drayton Plains yesterday afternoon and traffic was re-routed for a time on Telegraph road north of Voorhees, as storm waters swirled across the roadways.

Killed were Mrs. Ethel Buscard, 73 and Charles Engelberg, 71.

In Lapeer County General Hospital with serious injuries are Mrs. Buscard's companions, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Hoffa Builds His Power as Transport Unions Unite

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa, whose Teamsters Union has been cast out of the AFL-CIO, is rapidly wooing other unions to his side and further building his already tremendous power.

Hoffa's new partners include some of the same AFL-CIO leaders who voted only a little more than six months ago to oust the Hoffa-led truck union from the federation on sensational corruption charges.

If there were any doubts of what the fast-moving Hoffa is up to, they could be laid to rest with his announcement yesterday of a plan to link all the nation's transportation unions into a mutual aid alliance.

Already in a position, with his 1 1/2-million-member Teamsters Union, to call the shots on the coast, Hoffa envisioned the new alliance as embracing all workers in air-land-sea transport.

Hoffa counted as initial members of the alliance the International Longshoremen's Assn. and National Maritime Union. The ILA, like the Teamsters Union, was expelled from the main body of organized labor on grounds it was infested with hoodlums.

The NMU is headed by Joe Curran, an AFL-CIO vice president and member of the federation's Ethical Practices Committee. Curran said he couldn't recall whether the AFL-CIO rules prohibit, as they do, an affiliated union from dealing with ousted unions like the Teamsters and ILA.

Hoffa said he was confident of another alliance signer in Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO's Seafarers International Union. With Hall in his camp, Hoffa will have lined up most of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department which Curran contended wasn't accomplishing anything anyway.

All transport unions, including those in the railroad and aviation industries, will be invited here in August to learn about the "Permanent Conference on Transportation Unity" and to join up, Hoffa said. He will preside as temporary chairman and underwrite expenses.

Dulles to Meet With De Gaulle

Flies to Paris for Talks on France's Position in NATO, Atomic Power

PARIS (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flies today for weekend talks with Gen. Charles de Gaulle on France's determination to become an atomic power and western hopes that France will become a stronger NATO member.

The United States was reported reluctant to see France enter the list of atomic powers because of added complications to the already complicated problem of world disarmament—and fearful that the A-bomb might not be controlled by any future unstable government.

Dulles was arriving this afternoon (10 a.m. EST instead of 9 a.m. EST) and conferring with De Gaulle on Saturday, their first meeting since 1947, when neither held office. De Gaulle met last week with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

De Gaulle returned last night from a three-day visit to Algeria and called his top foreign affairs aides in this morning for a final briefing for tomorrow's encounter.

Informed sources said De Gaulle was likely to ask Dulles for U. S. shipments of "pure" plutonium. Lack of this vital atomic fuel is reported to be blocking French plans for an early atomic bomb test, France has the know-how but not the material, the sources said.

France has some plutonium but needs greater quantities for successful bomb testing. Estimates here are that it will take France from six months to two years to develop enough plutonium for its own uses and it would like to speed up the process.

Fourth of July Wet for Most of Nation

By United Press International

The weather put a damper on Fourth of July outings today with scattered showers and thunderstorms ranging from the Rocky Mountains to the East Coast.

The only areas expected to escape the rain today were the Lower Mississippi Valley, the New England states and the Far West.

Heavy rains continued to fall during the night in the central portion of the country, including the flood-stricken section of southwestern Iowa.

The Iowa floods, which began Tuesday night, have claimed 19 lives and caused damage in the millions of dollars. Continued rains threatened more severe flooding in the area.

Flash floods also swept parts of northern Missouri and Kansas, but damage was confined largely to farmlands.

Tornado funnels were sighted near Chadron, Neb., and at Salina, Kan., last night, but they apparently did not touch ground.

Mrs. Crane, 23, of 88 Park Island, had her girl, not as yet named, at 5:23 p. m. She weighed 6 pounds 15 ounces.

May Get Worse Yet Fear 19 Die in Iowa Floods

AUDUBON, Iowa (UPI)—Rivers and creeks again surged over their banks today in flood-battered sections of southwestern Iowa, hampering the search for victims of the rampaging waters.

The unofficial death count in the siege of flash floods climbed to 19, including two persons still missing and presumed dead.

Authorities feared more bodies might be found when the water subsides and a new search is begun of haycocks choked with mud and debris.

Heavy rains triggered new flooding in nearby Exira and Atlantic last night and early today. Authorities said the situation was not serious yet, but warned flood-weary residents it could get worse if predicted rains continue.

Check for Ailing Cornices

Property owners in Pontiac must cooperate to prevent falling cornice stone incidents such as occurred in Detroit recently, said Carl Alt, city building inspector.

"It is the property owners who are primarily responsible for the good condition of their buildings, although the city makes regular checks for danger points," said Alt.

Alt said that regular inspection, plus luck, "have nevertheless combined in Pontiac's favor in recent years."

As he recalled, the last time a cornice stone fell to the sidewalk was about three years ago in the S. Saginaw street district.

NONE HURT YET

"No one was hurt, nor was the incident considered serious," Alt said.

Even with more manpower, Alt said, repeated, minute inspection would be necessary to detect danger spots as soon as they develop.

But the Pontiac inspection department, with only two men available to inspect all buildings and new construction, cannot afford to do this, he said.

Most commercial buildings get checked once-a-year at least, when the department makes its annual inspection of signs, according to Alt. "In addition we're constantly on the alert to detect signs of weakness during the year."

This system of inspection has resulted in repairs to seven or eight buildings so far this year, he noted.

OWNERS RESPONSIBLE

Property owners are legally compelled to make repairs, Alt said, under the city's building code, thus maintaining public health and safety.

A bright spot in the picture, he feels, is the proposed urban renewal of the S. Saginaw street area, where many of the past danger spots have existed and others are expected to crop up.

"If the project gets under way," Alt said, "many of these buildings may be eliminated completely."

"Frost, plus old age, are the chief factors behind falling cornice cracks, then expands when the weather turns cold, cracking the cement," Alt said.

This is the same action that helps break up concrete roadways, he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Russia and Britain wrote off today as a probable hoax a letter purportedly written by a U. S. Air Force pilot saying he planned to drop an A-bomb off the English coast and then take refuge in the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Embassy released the letter last night. The U. S. State Department immediately described it as a Russian forgery published for propaganda purposes. It was signed only with the initial "W."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Starlet Jill St. John has been married three times—and she's just 17.

But a single court action changed all that yesterday. All three marriages were last year to the same man, Neil Dublin, 23.

She divorced him on testimony that he harassed and ridiculed her and caused her to break out in hives.

She and Dublin eloped to Yuma, Ariz., and then got married again in Las Vegas, Nev., because they weren't sure if the first ceremony was legal.

When they got back to Los Angeles their parents insisted on another marriage—just to make sure.

U. S. Seems Ready to Meet Soviets

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and its NATO allies appeared likely to accept, with conditions, a Soviet proposal that military experts study ways of preventing a surprise attack.

The proposal for a conference was made by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in a letter to President Eisenhower Wednesday. Eisenhower is expected to reply promptly after completion of consultations already started with NATO nations.

Advance indications of conditional agreement came both from Secretary of State Dulles and from unofficial comments by British officials. Both Eisenhower and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd have made similar suggestions in the past.

They hope that Soviet leaders are seriously interested in coming to some practical agreements on a problem, the solution of which would go a long way toward reducing the dangers of an outbreak of war and mark the beginning of disarmament.

However, authorities do not rule out the possibility that the Soviet government may be trying to repair its peace propaganda position. This has been badly damaged in the last few weeks by such things as the breakdown of summit conference negotiations in Moscow, the execution of former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy and the threat not to attend nuclear test talks at Geneva.

Another purpose, officials said, may be to inject new steam into Khrushchev's eight-month-old drive for a summit conference.

Dulles told reporters that the long exchange between Eisenhower and Soviet leaders over the need to do something about preventing surprise attack might now result in technical talks on the question of what practical steps can be taken.

Little Evidence of Syrian Troops

U.N. Observes Report on Lebanon Scene After Charges of Infiltration

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) — The United Nations observation group in Lebanon reported today it had found little evidence of Syrian troops entering Lebanon to fight in the simmering Lebanese insurrection. Lebanon has charged "massive infiltration."

The first fact-finding report of the three-man team, comprising Galo Plaza of Ecuador, Maj. Gen. Odd Bull of Norway and Rajeshwar Dayal of India, detailed operations of the 100-man field force in the first two weeks of its existence.

It reached no definite conclusions but reported the investigation of some rebel strongholds and cases of "Syrians" fighting with the insurgents and reported by the Lebanese authorities.

In the area of Chouf, the stronghold of rebel leader Kamal Jumblatt, observers saw "large groups" amounting to several hundred men, but no weapons or other signs of armed men, the report said.

"The army consisted mostly of a varied assortment of rifles of British, French and Italian makes. Mines seen near the Baalbek area were of British and French makes. It has not been possible to establish from where these arms were acquired."

"Nor was it possible to establish if any of the armed men observed had infiltrated from outside; there is little doubt, however, that the vast majority was in any case composed of Lebanese."

Hotel Owners in Italy Facing Ire of Tourists

ROME (UPI) — Italian hotel proprietors are bewildered. They have done their best to modernize their premises in order to make them functional, only to find out that many tourists do not like neon lights and modern furniture.

That especially concerns small hotels and pensions in cities such as Florence, Rome and Venice. German tourists particularly are sentimental and against modernistic hotels.

One hotel proprietor in Florence showed around his small hotel a German couple, proudly pointing out all the modernization and new functional furniture.

The two Germans, old clients of the hotel, bluntly told him that next year they would not reserve their room at his hotel because they liked much more the old-time pension.

According to hotel proprietors, American tourists are the least concerned with Italian romantic pensions. Usually the Americans care for good, de luxe hotels. Only a few artists still look for 19th century atmosphere.

The flood crest on the Nishabotna was expected to hit the downstream community of Hamburg today and 600 persons were alerted to flee on a moment's notice.

Elsewhere in Iowa, the Racoon River crested at Des Moines, flooding some low-lying sections of the city, but causing no serious damage.

The floods, which began Tuesday night, have left about 1,140 persons homeless, destroyed or damaged 285 homes and washed away thousands of acres of crops.

"Four bodies were recovered yesterday by about 600 rescue workers before new rains and darkness forced them to end their search for the night."

The flood area was threatened by still another danger—disease. Officials feared debris and dead livestock deposited by the floodwaters might start an epidemic.

Okinawa 50th State?

TOKYO (UPI) — Radio Moscow, in a broadcast beamed to Japanese listeners Thursday night, accused the United States of planning to make Okinawa its 50th state.

The Germans are specialists in another kind of tourism—camping. Many German men know this country well as a result of World War II service here, and they come with all their equipment and set up their own camps. This doesn't make the hotel owners happy, of course.

London (UPI) — A U. S. Air Force twin-jet RB-45 light bomber crashed in a wheat field during a reconnaissance flight last night. The three crewmen parachuted to safety.

New Plate Setup to Speed Car Sales?

LANSING (UPI) — Sec. of State James M. Hare said a new license law might work well with an expected early introduction of 1959 car models.

Hare said models were expected to be introduced earlier this year than previously. Car owners now keep their license plates. That is, the plates stay with the owner — not with the car.

Previously, said Hare, persons held off buying cars until new licenses began being distributed but now, with the plates staying with the car owner, there would be no need for delaying. The only cost to the owner is a one dollar transfer fee when he buys a different car.

Drowning Youth Saved at Addison

A Mt. Clemens youth nearly drowned at about 1 p.m. yesterday in Lakeville Lake, Addison Township.

Adolph Raygaert, 20, of 16221 17 Mile Rd., was swimming with a friend when he sank from sight. The friend, William VonRustin, of 37775 Garfield Rd., Mt. Clemens, pulled Raygaert from the lake with the help of Ralph Sterns, owner of the Lakeville Landing.

Addison Township Fire Dept. revived Raygaert with oxygen. He was taken to Pontiac General Hospital for first aid and then transferred to Mt. Clemens General Hospital for further treatment.

Negro Population Gains

WASHINGTON—The nation's 14 largest metropolitan centers had a 68 per cent increase in Negro population between 1940 and 1950, when the last national census was taken. White population in those areas climbed 4 per cent during the same period.

There are about 800 species of the orchid native to the Philippine islands.

Nearly 2 Million Persons Err on Their Tax Forms

CHICAGO—An analysis of Internal Revenue Service figures by Commerce Clearing House, national reporting authority on tax and business laws, shows that arithmetic errors on federal income-tax return during 1957 cost 1,090,000 taxpayers an average of $90 each in added taxes.

And another 615,000 taxpayers received automatic refunds of mistaken overpayments totaling $42,979,000 and averaging $70 each through the same process of mathematical verification carried on by the revenue bureau.

New Mexico has more than 300,000 acres under irrigated cultivation.

'No Fighting Here' and Then—Bam

A carnival worker from St. Clair found out the hard way last night in Pontiac that you just can't believe everything—especially from a total stranger.

Chester Natupalle told Pontiac police Det. O. C. Johnston he was "joking with a friend" in front of a bar near Saginaw and Pike Sts. when a stranger approached and announced, "There won't be no fighting in Pontiac."

Suddenly the stranger's fist lashed out at Natupalle's jaw knocking him to the pavement. He was taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital with head injuries. His assailant escaped.

Geographically Alaska is much closer to Russia than the Continental United States. It is more than 800 miles across the Bering Strait at west tip of Washington State.

Seaway Called Boon to Europe

France Sees Method of Evening Dollar Gap With U.S., Canada

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—From across the Atlantic, many Europeans are looking to the St. Lawrence Seaway in trying to chart a course out of their own business and monetary shoals.

The trade dollars of the United States and Canada are their objectives.

Toledo Blade writer, Alan F. Schoedel, in a three-week tour of European ports, found France making a particularly well-organized effort to increase its sales to the United States.

Part of the drive is aimed at making French industry break away from the idea that it is selling to New York. It is selling to America.

Thus the seaway, the water link to the middle of America, is important to French interests.

In recent years, France has seen the dollar gap—the difference between its purchases from the U. S. and its sales to the U. S.—go from bad to worse.

Last year, France purchased 900 million dollars worth of American goods but sold only 300 million dollars worth to this nation.

This imbalance produces a serious strain on French reserves in the U.S.-Canadian dollar area.

To help level it off is the purpose of the Comité Franc-Dollar, sponsored jointly by French industry and the French government and known in English as the Committee for the Development of French Exports to North America.

French industry is hard put to keep up with domestic demand for its own products. So why the need to develop new markets in North America?

Alain Rysto, secretary of Comité Franc-Dollar, explained that French industry must buy raw materials, equipment and unfinished goods from the United States. It can't do this unless it also sells goods to North America to provide France with dollar purchasing power.

Rysto's assistant, Michel Casati-Olier, said the failure of French industry to see past New York is deeply rooted in years of shipping through East Coast ports.

The trouble with that, he said, is that the New York distributors often cover only a limited territory.

Leaders of the Comité Franc-Dollar feel the Lakes ports would have much more to gain by a cooperative drive for the foreign market than from their present method of competing individually.

The committee is enthusiastic about an idea by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce to have a representative for all the Lakes ports located in Paris. It believes this would prove a boon in opening new markets for France.

Unemployment Still Dropping

93,700 Less Pick Up Jobless Benefits; But New Layoffs Start

WASHINGTON (AP)—Continuing a 10-week decline, unemployment among workers insured for jobless benefits hit another 1958 low during the week ended June 21.

The Labor Department said yesterday the total declined by 93,700, to 2,610,900—the lowest reported so far this year.

However, the department said initial claims for jobless benefits—which reflect new layoffs—rose seasonally by 47,800 during the week ended June 28 to a total of 366,400.

The increase was attributed to new auto industry layoffs, partly due to the beginning of the switch-over to 1959 model production and to plant shutdowns for summer vacations.

Despite the drop in insured unemployment, the department noted that joblessness in that category still is more than double the 1,268,700 reported for the same week a year ago.

The rate of unemployment among the nation's 43 million insured workers during the week ended June 21 was 6.2 per cent, compared with 6.4 per cent the previous week and 3.1 per cent a year ago.

Leelanau County Red Maple Tree Country's Largest

NORTHPORT (UPI)—A gnarled red maple that measures 142½ inches in circumference may be 150 to 200 years old and the largest of its variety in the nation.

Howard Harvey of Williamsburg, a member of the Northwest Chapter of the Michigan Botanical Society, said the tree—located on the northern tip of Leelanau County—sets a new Michigan record in the red maple classification and it's the largest reported in the country.

Other champion trees discovered on South Manitou Island by the local chapter include a white elm 181½ inches in circumference and about 400 years old, and white cedars estimated to be more than 600 years old with girths ranging from 14 to 17 feet.

Sets Example for Whole World

'Twas 182 years ago today that 57 men affixed their signatures to a document that they knew was their death warrant if their project failed.

But they preferred death to an existence brought about by their mother country. The colonies which they represented were being intolerably taxed to pay for a victory which they had helped that country to win.

After several days' debate on the question which had the support of only two-thirds of their constituents (the other third fearing further reprisals if such action was taken), they wielded the quill pen without a tremor.

That immortal document, our Declaration of Independence, which pioneered the way for a free world, shows that no signature faltered.

These men were patriots in the pure essence of the word. They were statesmen. There wasn't a politician in the bunch, and the impending gallows did not swerve them one inch from the courage of their convictions. Would our present lawmakers stand as firm?

Sylvan Officials Remain Silent About Charges

Our phones continue to ring with inquiries asking "What's to be done about unjust traffic violation penalties in the City of Sylvan Lake?" We are at a loss for an explanation.

After a barrage of letters and phone calls, The Press suggested in an editorial that the city in question come forth and issue a statement.

They have remained quiet and the whole matter seems to rest under a cloak of secrecy.

The taxpayers along with other residents using the streets and roads in the City of Sylvan Lake are demanding a clear cut interpretation of the traffic laws in that city.

Budget Reform Bill in Senate Committee

Technical language of a House passed measure which would have the effect of making changes in the rules of the Senate has caused delay in Senate action on a modern Federal budgeting bill.

The legislation has been taken off the Senate consent calendar and referred to the Committee on Appropriations of which Sen. Haydon, Dem. Ariz., is chairman. It is to be reported back to the Senate before July 11.

This Hoover Commission sponsored reform would put Federal budgeting on a modern business basis of annual review. It would end the practice of permitting unexpended carryover balances to accumulate in the hands of agencies beyond further Congressional review.

The bill has been approved in substance by the entire Senate and by an overwhelming majority in the House. Its purpose is to strengthen Congressional control of Federal expenditures.

The Senate should have the opportunity of approving an amended measure before adjournment.

Never in all history was a man so scathingly censured in an edict to be sent to him as was their ruler, GEORGE III. He was personalized.

Terrible charges against him were made in 28 of the 33 paragraphs in the declaration, although its signers well knew that his anger meant death if he had his way.

While those 57 men knew that George III was bordering on insanity, principally brought about by his slipping empire, and failure of his taxation schemes, they also knew that he became more heartless as his insanity increased.

The audacity of the wording of the Declaration of Independence, leading up to the surrender of his army at Yorktown, so beclouded the mind of the British monarch that in the later years of his reign his duties were turned over to a regent.

However, he did not die until 1819, living to see the United States once more defeat his country, in the War of 1812-14.

Down Canada's maritime way, the natives have never admitted that England won that war with France. French still is the dominant language, and 199 years after the English were victorious in that supposedly decisive battle on the Plains of Abraham, that vast area still is more French than English.

On this July 4, 1958, when another star is to be added to our national flag, the first in 46 years, it is refreshing, heartening and pride instilling to note that no gunpowder has ever been used to add a star to that constellation of 49, after the original 13 states adopted it.

Tune Kicks Up Fuss in Congress

Battle Produced National Anthem

(Few of us, standing to sing the National Anthem, wonder about its history. But as we celebrate this country's birthday today, let's take a look at the song's lively past—and at the controversy still swirling around it.)

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — History doesn't march straight ahead as it seems to in books. Often it stumbles about, sometimes with delightful results.

Did you ever stop to think, for example, how fortunate it was that during the War of 1812 the British were in such a hurry? They hustled Dr. William Beanes off to prison so fast he didn't have time to grab his wig or, more important, his spectacles.

If they hadn't been in such a rush, one of the most famous of all patriotic lines would never have been written.

"O say! Can you see, by the dawn's early light?"

That's the unbrokened Dr. Beanes anxiously peering at a shore dimly seen and putting the question to Francis Scott Key aboard a British ship in Baltimore harbor.

This is the time when we celebrate our nation's independence.

With a long weekend coming up, there'll be quick vacation trips, firecrackers, baseball doubleheaders, watermelons, brass bands and, at night, the rocket's red glare as it bursts in the air.

At many of the more strictly patriotic gatherings there will be at least a few moments of attention for the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," an old tune that still has enough life in it to kick up a fuss in Congress.

Which takes us back to the eye-straining Dr. Beanes, a prominent Washington physician and patriot. The British had invaded Washington and burned it in August 1814. Capturing three British refugees, Dr. Beanes had them thrown in jail. Later the Redcoats toted away the unfortunate Dr. Beanes as a British prisoner.

All this helped to stir the patriotic fervor of Francis Scott Key, who had opposed the war that was to produce his stirring poem. Strongly religious, Key had wrestled with the idea of entering the ministry. Religion lost, and he became a first-rate lawyer.

As this nation drifted toward war, Key became deeply disturbed. When he was chosen to deliver the oration before the Washington Society of Alexandria, Va., a high honor, he mournfully spoke on "the deplorable condition into which the American people had fallen as a result of their vice and stupidity."

Then came the British invasion, and Key stopped fretting over deplorable conditions to worry over more immediate problems. When he was asked if he would attempt to obtain Dr. Beanes' release, he accepted.

Although Key was successful, the British were cautious. They hold both Key and Beanes aboard ship while plans were made to attack Baltimore.

Key spent the night of Sept. 13, 1814, in agony as the British guns boomed. During the early morning hours the tension heightened as Dr. Beanes kept asking: "Can you see the flag? Can you see the flag?"

Then, when Key did see the flag still flying over Ft. M'Henry, he poured his feelings into the poem he jotted down on an envelope.

On Sept. 21 it appeared in the Baltimore American. Soon it was being sung in taverns and theaters. It was an old tune, one that had been used for "Adams and Liberty" during the Revolutionary War.

Rep. Carroll Kearns (R-Pa.), a graduate of the Chicago Musical College, has worked out basic harmonies, in various keys, to help conductors abroad—and here, too—know how to play the piece.

Kearns points out one difficulty in "The Star-Spangled Banner" that each of us understands all too well.

"The trouble is that it was written in too broad a range," Kearns says. "No one is able to reach all the high notes and all the low notes."

But a word of reassurance. Whether or not an official version is adopted, no violence will be done to the anthem. You'll never get a congressman to vote against "The Star-Spangled Banner," especially in an election year.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Feeding Through Veins Futile in Some Cases

"I know of two cases where elderly people were kept alive when there was no hope for recovery, by feeding through the veins. A friend of mine, about 75 years of age, has been so fed for many weeks at enormous cost for hospital and doctor bills. Her family's savings are gone. She would prefer to die. Are doctors justified in keeping a patient alive like that when there is no hope for recovery?" (R.D.C.)

In the first place I doubt that any food or nutrient injected into the veins will keep anybody alive for a significant length of time. In the next place, what arbiter says there is no hope for recovery? And what is the nature of the illness of your friend?

If it is impossible to feed the patient in the natural way or through stomach or duodenal tube with milk, soup, fruit juice, vegetable juices, sugar solutions, vitamins and minerals, he or she will live as long without any food or nutrient as with injections into the veins.

So it seems to me that your friend's family are impoverishing themselves to make a brave but futile gesture.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
"In the list of some twenty different occupations, persons engaged in which should be required to wear suitable masks while at work, you did not mention school teachers. Are teachers less likely to spread the cri to pupils or to each other than optometrists, bartenders or barbers are to infect their customers?" (D.M.E.)

Answer — Not a bit. Thank you for spotting the oversight. The suitable mask is a transparent one, not so unsightly as the chequered affected by characters making like Hollywood. It is described in booklet Call It C.R.I. for which send 35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Is it possible for people to have worms? Some people say that itching around the orifice is due to worms." (P.W.)
Answer — Yes, people have pinworms (seat worms, thread worms), a common cause of such itching; round worms; tape worms, etc. Apply a little 3 per cent ammoniated mercury ointment to skin around orifice before going to bed. This ointment may be purchased ready-made. Send 35 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet Unbidden Guests, which tells why people have worms.

"I'm 16 years old. I'm bow-legged. I have heard of a boy 15 whose bowlegs became straight after he had taken vitamin D every day for a year." (J.C.H.)
Answer — Only surgery can straighten the legs in a person more than 6 years of age.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan. (Copyright 1958)

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Divorce Results From Ignorance

Lena wanted a divorce on the grounds of incompatibility and mental cruelty. But those vague terms usually mean maladjustment in the sexual core of marriage. Most divorces start in the bedroom, as you will see from the case below. Scrapbook these vital cases.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE Y-353: Lena J., aged 29, has been married for six years. "Dr. Crane, I am planning to sue my husband for divorce," she began rather beligerently.

"We just don't get along. We are incompatible in our personalities, and he has been guilty of mental cruelty, so I can't be happy with him any longer."

"But my clergy, DR. CRANE, man insisted I talk to you first, though I consider it a waste of your time."

Sometimes we psychiatrists "shock" patients without use of drugs or electricity, as a means of jolting them out of their biased view.

"What makes you think you are such a failure as a wife?" I demanded, accusingly.

"Why-why-why I am not a failure! It's all my husband's fault," she protested, though uncertainly.

"That's not true," I challenged. "When a married couple break up, each one is usually 50 per cent to blame. What have you done that is wrong?"

Urges Readers to Support Curb on Supreme Court

It's time we were sending letters to our Congressmen giving them support on the Jenner-Butler bill to curb the runaway Supreme Court. While we are supposed to be shoring up our defenses against communism, and our Armed Forces are preparing to defend us against attack, The Supreme (Court is making decisions which destroy power of the states to defend us against internal subversion. ## Downtown Clerks Ask Better Hours

Well, I see the big headed Downtown Merchants Association is giving clerks in downtown stores a day off. But they have to work the night before until 9 p.m. What kind of a Fourth will they have? They did the same thing Memorial Day. Stores must be hard up. I was in South Bend over Memorial Day and at 5 p.m. the day before the downtown was closed tight. Give the store help a break.

Jack

Once again we got a letter from Downtown Pontiac Merchants Association saying stores would be open until 9 p.m. July 3. Why do men and women in stores have to work these hours when factories and banks have a complete weekend off? We can't do anything but work and stay home. We're willing to cooperate with business, but why can't we get a break? Fair is fair. Let's treat everyone equally.

Producing Less Steel; Watch for Price Hike

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Those steelworkers who are still on the job are getting more pay today than they did Monday. But the mills are turning out less steel this week than last and may produce at a still lower rate before the summer ends.

If so, layoffs may spread. Already about a third of the steelworkers are idle.

Users of steel, in the meantime, are waiting for the other shoe to drop. — a hike in the price of steel, if there is to be one. The price of this basic commodity affects the cost of making most of the durable goods you buy.

The big debate is how much of an increase, if any, is justified, or how much can be made to stick in today's economic climate.

The two extremes are: 1. those in management who say that on a purely mathematical basis the increased labor charges raise the cost of making steel by $1 a ton; 2. the union leaders who contend that increased productivity in the industry means that steel can be turned out at the same price even with the higher labor costs and the companies will still make a reasonable profit.

By increased productivity they mean that today's newer equipment and improved processes result in more steel being turned out by one man's labor.

Union leaders also note that during the period that the mills got down to operating at around 50 per cent of capacity, most companies still made a profit, even if sharply lower than the earnings a year ago when mills were operating at near capacity.

Those on the sidelines waiting for steel management to make up price increase will be coming along its collective minds feel that some this summer.

How much may depend as much upon the amount of demand for steel that develops after the summer lull as upon the amount of increase in labor costs.

six years earlier, but apparently didn't.

I obtained their solemn promise to make a sincere effort to follow my medico-psychological prescription for 90 days, regardless of whether they believed it would work or not.

"Just go through the proper motions," I warned them, "and you will soon begin to feel the corresponding emotions."

"That is an axiom of psychology and it will work, despite your Doubting Thomas frame of mind." They walked out of my office with an entirely new outlook on the intimate phases of marriage.

And six weeks later Lena telephoned me to say they were now completely in love and happier than they had ever been, even on their honeymoon.

So send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope, plus 20 cents (non-profit). It can help olderweds as well as newlyweds!

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

The dauntless soldiers at Valley Forge, the courageous far-sighted leaders who signed the Declaration of Independence . . . and the many others who helped make our history, have won for us the four Freedoms, and independence, which "July 4th" symbolizes. ## Purchases an Ad to Thank Wife for Happy Years

MIAMI (UPI) — Elmer C. Wagler, saddened by classified advertisements telling of broken marriages, bought an ad himself to publicly thank his wife for 30 years of happiness.

Wagler, operator of a missionary guest home in Miami Springs, married his wife, Marguerite, in Peoria, Ill., on July 1, 1928. When their anniversary rolled around this year, Mrs. Wagler was in Haiti visiting a son.

Wagler said that many times he had read with regret classified ads in which divorced husbands announce they are no longer responsible for their wife's debts.

So to turn things around, Wagler bought an ad in the Miami News to announce his "appreciation of wife."

"I am responsible for all debts and obligations of my wife," he said, "present and future and am happy to be the provider for one who has made these the best years of my life. I wish to publicly express my gratitude."

Japan, India Reach Iron-Ore Agreement

VISAKHAPATNAM, India — A broad agreement has been reached on the sale of 2,000,000 tons of iron ore annually to Japan from the Rourkela area of India, starting in 1964. Both countries will benefit.

In India the agreement will lead to the installation and improvement of railway and port facilities and the development of the mining industry. Japan will be assured of a continued iron-ore supply on a long-term basis at reasonable prices.

New York harbor has 24,000 annual arrivals and departures, more than any other port in the world.

Heavy Stable Helping Boston Business Tycoon

What It Took to Get Goldfine Ready for Congressmen

By MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The hour is late and a chunky millionaire swathed in a richly hued dressing gown lies wearily on his hotel bed. He listens to his dog-tired attorney as the lawyer paces the floor in limp shirt-sleeves and suspenders and reads from a sheaf of suggested testimony.

In the next room of the millionaire's luxurious hotel suite, three blocks from the White House, his wife sits, smoking constantly and showing her tension by tugging the diamond-encrusted pendant at her throat.

BOURBON DISHED OUT

Deep down in the basement of the same hotel, the millionaire's public relations staff dishes out bourbon, caviar and sheets of mimeographed material to reporters.

Harsh floodlights destroy the room's air conditioning as television newsmen cameras are set up to record the words of the wealthy tycoon talking about his income tax deductions.

This is the present world of Bernard Goldfine and what it takes to tell Congress and the public about his deep and ardent friendship for Sherman Adams.

No fighter since Sugar Ray Robinson has traveled with a heavier stable of compatriots, comforters and professional guides.

The Goldfine organization for his current appearances before the House subcommittee on legislative oversight consists of his wife Charlotte, their two sons Solomon and Horace, seven attorneys, three public relations men, two secretaries, typists, mimeograph operators, photostat operators and an endless stream of bellboys.

The setting—several suites in the Sheraton Carlton Hotel for the Goldfine family and some of the attorneys, plus a large suite across Washington's busy K Street at the Statler Hilton.

"It's almost like covering a candidate's headquarters at a national convention," observed a reporter in the hallway outside Goldfine's suite.

Presiding over the public relations side of the operation was Tex McCrary, former foreign correspondent, TV personality and now head of a large New York public relations office. McCrary said he was here in response to a plea for help from Roger Robb, Goldfine's chief Washington attorney.

McCrary assigned two of his staff members, William Safire and George Britt, to the task of getting information from Goldfine and his battery of lawyers and relaying it to reporters.

McCrary's television background crops out when he refers to Goldfine's prepared texts as "the scripts."

McCrary says he is here serving without fee or compensation for expenses, and purely because of his longstanding friendship with Robb. It might also be noted, however, that McCrary has been one of Sherman Adams' most ardent supporters and admirers since the 1952 presidential campaign which first carried Dwight D. Eisenhower to political success.

A prime example of McCrary at work was the 25-page document Goldfine read to the subcommittee Wednesday as his opening testimony. Here is the unvarnished story of how the document came into existence.

When it was determined Goldfine would have to appear before the House members, Lawrence Cohen of Boston, family attorney for the Goldfines, began to put together the essential facts. Samuel Sears, also of Boston and an attorney for Goldfine's companies, joined in the preparation.

Robb joined the advance guard in work on the testimony with his specialist's eye on Washington angles. When the Goldfines came to Washington last Sunday they were joined by other attorneys including former Judge Sol Gelb of New York who was on the staff of Thomas E. Dewey when Dewey was New York district attorney. Gelb is a specialist in cross-examination and coached Goldfine on what to expect.

On Tuesday night the testimony was virtually complete. Robb spent long hours talking with Goldfine. Armed with technical and financial data from Cohen, Sears and James Kelleher, another Boston attorney, Robb then sat down and put on paper Goldfine's words and style of phrasing.

Late Tuesday night, not many hours before Goldfine made his debut before the committee, the textile manufacturer read the final draft aloud. McCrary listened, watched and made notes, taking care to remember each time Goldfine pounded his fist on a bedside table for emphasis.

Then a final-final or "reading" copy for Goldfine was prepared and here McCrary went to work. He followed his television training and "scored" the testimony, underlining in heavy red pencil each point—a word or a phrase—where Goldfine had pounded for emphasis.

He explained to Goldfine the red underlines meant those words were to be "punched" or accented.

McCrary also noted that after reading for a few minutes Goldfine's voice began to crack. In red pencil he wrote into the script at appropriate points, "Glass of water."

One line McCrary recognized as a laugh producer, but thought Goldfine should remain serious. Text wrote between the lines, "Don't laugh."

When the script was "scored" it was well after midnight and Goldfine was asleep.

***

Robb confided to McCrary his firm belief Goldfine's massive inner strength would see him through the tribulations of the congressional inquiry. In fact he thought Goldfine would be great.

McCrary smiled, reached for the script and fished out his crayon. Across the top of the first sheet McCrary wrote in firm red letters, "You will be great."

U. S. SIXTH FLEET

REEFED UP — Chart above gives a profile view of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean. Normally comprising about 50 ships, it has been strengthened in recent weeks to a total of 74, among them three carriers which handle about 75 planes each. The fleet also supports an expanded amphibious force of 23,500 Marines. It is from these that the U.S. will probably supply its portion of troops should the United Nations vote to send an international military force into Lebanon to quell the rebellion in that country.

Tiddlywinks Suddenly Becoming Popular

LONDON (AP)—Tiddlywinks used to be for kids. But in Britain lately the game has caught the interest of muscular athletes, intellectuals, and even the royal family.

To play tiddlywinks you take a firm hold of a bone or plastic disk and snap other disks around a table.

At Cambridge University there is talk, admittedly on the sophomore side, of making tiddlywinks an event of the Olympic Games.

Why the sudden upsurge in the popularity of the humble little game? No one really knows, but possibly the lazy weather of recent weeks has something to do with it. It's more fun than irregular verbs.

Tiddlywinks, a very old game not figuring conspicuously on the sports pages, got lifted into the academic atmosphere at Cambridge, where students idled away some spare time snapping the disks. Cambridge organized a team—Peter Downes, captain—and claimed the world's tiddlywinks championship. There being no other known contender, Cambridge's claim was secure until the University of Oxford challenged.

There was a noisy match, and Oxford won by an eyebrow, 113 to 111. So presumably Oxford holds the championship, but Cambridge protested that the play was an unimportant preliminary to serious, official tiddlywinks competition.

Oxford received a challenge from the University of Pennsylvania and the Oxford captain Elliott Langford, agreed to take his mates to America next year if they can raise the fare for the journey.

Then the Goons, popular troupe of entertainers, challenged Cambridge and invited a conspicuous athlete, Prince Philip, to join their team. From Buckingham Palace the prince issued a light-hearted statement saying:

"While practicing secretly I pulled an important muscle in the second, or tiddly, joint of my winking finger."

Being partial to polo, the prince indicated that tiddlywinks must take a secondary place in his esteem, and added:

"This is naturally very disappointing, but at least it gives my side (the Goons) a much better chance to win."

Then Oxford challenged the House of Commons. Lawrence

Taylor, who represents Oxford in Parliament, agreed to organize a team of tiddling lawmakers.

So tiddlywinks is snowballing, and there are indications that there will have to be a world convention to lay down some rules. The kids, who up to now have monopolized the game, play it without umpires, or precise laws.

But in Britain there is a rudimentary literature of tiddlywinks, and one manual says:

"Take an egg cup, and set it in the center of a blanket spread taut on a table."

Then competitors each get five winks, the little disks which they lay on the blanket, and press down on them with the tiddly, the shooter disk, in such a clever manner that the winks are snapped and made to jump into the egg cup. The wink is prone to kiss the lip, as in golf, and then dunder off somewhere else.

Less expert players, the manual suggests, might start off with a somewhat larger target, like a beer stein or a bowler derby hat.

General Property Tax
Levied by 30 States

CHICAGO — Although they accounted for only 1.4 per cent of the states' total tax revenue during fiscal 1957, general property taxes were used by 30 states, according to the Federation of Tax Administrators.

Property taxes amounted to 10 per cent or more of State tax revenue in only three states and in only 12 were they more than 5 per cent.

Michigan Law to Commit Mentally Ill
Born of Past Ignorance and Suspicion

(Rep. Ben E. Lehman, Allegan County farmer and eight-year veteran of the House of Representatives, has long shown an interest in Michigan's mental health problems. Several years ago he headed up a legislative committee investigating farm activities at mental institutions and now he's chairman of a joint committee looking into commitment procedures. Following is the first of two articles summarizing the committee's findings to date.)

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's laws covering the commitment of mentally ill persons to state hospitals were born of suspicion and a narrow belief that victims were not different from criminals.

That is not surprising, since these laws go back to 1877 when little was known about mental illness and those afflicted were regarded with fear, superstition and a feeling of helplessness.

The same situation is general among most other states. Commitment laws in this country were patterned after early English common laws and poor laws. But while England itself has rewritten its laws to reflect today's humane, sympathetic understanding of mental sickness, most of our states continue to get along with patched-up versions of the ancient English statutes.

Michigan in recent years has made remarkable progress in providing quicker, more effective treatment for mental illness. It has invested 90 million dollars in new buildings and other facilities. And it has launched special programs to train the skilled personnel needed to staff its hospitals, clinics and diagnostic and research centers.

All this has been done in the light of new knowledge that mental illness is not unlike physical illness and that it can be cured, or at least greatly alleviated, by use of drugs and other methods of treatment.

But the law that governs the admission, care and discharge of patients remains virtually unchanged from the 1877 statute.

For that reason, a joint legislative study committee of the House and Senate was set up last year to look for ways of bringing the law up to date.

The committee set out to study three general areas which seemed most in need of repair—commitment procedure, loss of a patient's civil rights and the system of reimbursements to the state for cost of patient care.

Citizen and professional groups, as well as public officials, have given advisory help to the committee in all three areas.

When the original commitment law was written, those who believed the mentally ill should be placed in a hospital frequently were regarded with suspicion. Some were suspected of trying to get a relative out of the way so they might profit in one way or another.

To prevent any "railroading" of patients into mental hospitals, the law provided a Probate Court hearing as a condition of commitment.

Today, however, Michigan probate judges say they seldom, if ever, encounter evidence of "railroading" in the hundreds of cases they hear every year. To do so, they say, would require connivance by the two examining physicians required by law, the petitioner and even hospital authorities.

Moreover, in these days of overcrowded facilities when hospital superintendents are bending every effort to discharge patients as rapidly as they can safely do so, no one is hospitalized who doesn't obviously need treatment.

The law, nevertheless, requires a hearing even on uncontested commitments and these take just as much time and effort as contested cases. At the same time, the only expert witnesses who should shed any light on the proceedings—the examining doctors—never appear at uncontested hearings.

Hearings take up the time of the courts, nurses and other attendants and sheriff's officers who must transport patients from detention facilities to court and back again. Legal authorities long have argued that no such expensive procedure is required to insure observance of "due process of law."

They recommend hearings only in contested cases.

A further legal handicap requires the judge to commit the patient to a specific institution. The judge, a non-medical person, must determine whether the patient is mentally ill, feeble-minded, or epileptic, then decide where to send him to do him the most good.

Probate judges object that a patient can fall into two or even all three categories. An examination at the hospital to which the judge has committed him may reveal the patient could better be cared for at a different institution. Then it's necessary to go through the commitment procedure again, often at considerable cost to the patient's mental condition.

It would be far more reasonable and efficient to commit the patient to state mental health authorities for a medical examination and then assignment to a hospital.

These two changes would place the responsibility for commitment largely on medical, rather than legal, authorities. And that is where it obviously belongs.

(Next: The patient's civil rights and payment for his care.)

Alaska would have the smallest population of any state—215,000 persons. Nevada had the lowest with 256,000 persons. But Alaska is growing fast—by 77 per cent between 1940 and 1950 compared to five per cent in the Continental United States.

Will Visit Cheer or Hurt Patient?

Make sure that the hospital patient who has undergone surgery is ready to see visitors before you barge into his hospital room.

You can always check with hospital authorities or a member of the family to make sure that your visit will do the patient good, instead of merely tiring him.

Miss Sputnik—Carla Bradford (left) discusses the latest in beach attire with Linda Adams. Both will take part in the parade and picnic.

Accessories, hat and tie, can break the square outline, or diagonals converging toward the waist minimize bustline, diaphragm or waistline.

The real talent for all women is to select from the new fashions the most becoming to her. The short figure can break that square outline by directing the eye to more prominent opposing lines in her eye-catching accessories.

Telephone Manners

If your TV set is in the same room with your telephone, turn it down or off before you answer the telephone. It is confusing and annoying in such cases to try to make someone understand over the telephone.

Add extra flavor to an omelet by stirring a heaping tablespoon of sour cream into well-beaten eggs. Sour cream also gives finer texture and flavor to batter for cookies, pies and pastry.

Advice From Abby:

You Paid for Mistake So Start Living Now!

DEAR ABBY: There has been a very special cheesecake recipe in my family for generations and all my friends are wild over this cheesecake. I serve it when I have company. I am having a party soon and everyone looks forward to my cheesecake dessert except this one man, who told someone that he does not care for cheesecake. I know if he ever tried mine he would like it, but I don't want to force him. Should I disappoint all the other guests and serve a different dessert, or should I let the majority rule and serve the cheesecake?

CHEESECAKE MAKER

DEAR CHEESE, ETC.: Serve the cheesecake and suggest he try it. If he doesn't want to eat it—pass the fruit and nuts to him!

DEAR ABBY: We have an eleven-year-old son whom we are trying to raise up clean and decent. The people across the street are making this hard for us because they have a twelve-year-old girl who is telling us how I can make this any plainer and still get it in the paper. Will you please tell us what to do about this?

MRS. G. L.

DEAR MRS. G. L.: If your boy is interested enough to listen, this is an ideal time for YOU to give him YOUR version of the same facts.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a boy who takes you out three nights straight and practically breaks your back kissing you and then goes around telling all his friends that you are an easy make-out?

ELLIE

DEAR ELLIE: I think he's right!

DEAR ABBY: Must a girl pay all her life for one mistake? I am 23, hardworking, good-looking and decent, but when I was 16 I had a child born out of wedlock. I go to church faithfully and feel that God has forgiven me, but my mother won't let me forget it. We put the child out for adoption, and although very few people know about me, my mother says I have disgraced her. I am a prisoner in my own home. I work in a dress shop all day and have to come right home after work. I am not allowed to go out with a man and give all my pay to my mother. My mother says no respectable man would ever marry me so I can forget about men. I am only human, Abby.

Should I just jump off the bridge or what?

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Your mother is wrong. Plenty of respectable men marry girls who have made "one mistake." You are over 21, and can support yourself. Pack your clothes and rent yourself a room. You've earned your freedom and paid for your "mistake"—start living and good luck!

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Tigers to Play Holiday Pair at Cleveland

Aguirre Leaves Bullpen to Hurl Opening Game

Foytack Works Second Against Tribe; Move to Chicago Tomorrow

CLEVELAND (U) — Bill Norman's concern about his pitching staff was much in evidence today as the Detroit Tigers opened a six-city tour with a doubleheader against the Cleveland Indians.

That Norman had his problems was obvious from his decision to draft Hank Aguirre from the bullpen to start the opening game.

No far Aguirre has been the best of Detroit's relief pitchers. But it is only the disappointing performance of Bill Hoest recently that prompted Norman to look for starter help from the relief corps. Paul Foytack, who has been alternately brilliant and inept, was picked to pitch the second game.

The 26-year-old left-handed Aguirre, who came to Detroit in a trade that brought Jim Hegan from the Indians, will be pitching with an injured ankle. His left ankle was cut and required seven stitches after a collision with Ted Williams' spikes in a recent game with Boston. The heat has delayed healing.

Aguirre has said his leg doesn't bother him although the stitches remain. "I've already tried it out and it's nothing," he said. Trainer Jack Homel said he didn't think the wound would bother Aguirre's pitching.

Norman had toyed with the idea of sending Herman Webber against the Indians in the opener but decided in favor of Aguirre because of the lanky Californian's aggressive attitude.

"There is a boy who really wants to win," Norman said. "He's a hard worker with a lot of stuff inside. I like what I've seen of him the last three weeks and he's going to get a chance to make it with this nine."

Aguirre broke into baseball as an Indiana farm hand in 1951. He was called up by the Indians in 1955 and won two straight at the end of the season after an 11-9 record at Indianapolis.

The following spring Aguirre was shipped out on opening day but was recalled in July after posting four straight victories at Indianapolis for a 10-6 record. He won two in a row for the Indians and finished with a 3-5 record. His last triumph was a four-hitter against the Tigers.

The Tigers leave Cleveland after their doubleheader and play a weekend set at Chicago before the break for Tuesday's All-Star game at Baltimore.

Chisox Drop A's, Orioles Win

By The Associated Press

Just a year ago, it seemed only Manager Al Lopez thought a thin rookie outfielder named Jim Landis ever would become a hitter for the Chicago White Sox. Now it's a new season and a new Landis, coming along at .294 at the moment with a dandy .381 average for the last month.

British Driver Sets Lap Mark

REIMS, France (AP) — Mike Hawthorn of Great Britain, hurled his two-liter Ferrari around the twisting Reims course at an average speed of 210.9 kilometers (131 miles) an hour Thursday for a course record and the best time during the first day of trials for the Grand Prix de France automobile race.

Hawthorn was timed in 2 minutes 21.7 seconds for the lap which measures 5.16 miles. The old record had been held by Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina since 1956 at 2 minutes 25.8 seconds for an average of 130.3 miles an hour.

Fangio had the fifth best time in the trials at 2 minutes, 25 seconds for an average of 128 m.p.h. Tony Ruttman, an Indianapolis veteran who participated in the American-European duel at Monza last week, has been entered for the Grand Prix but has not arrived in Reims.

12 Holiday Races Will Pay $390,000

The two-day Fourth of July holiday racing program at six major tracks offers a dozen rich races with total value of $390,000 in added money and plenty of name stars to brighten the programs.

There are two $75,000-added holiday fixtures on today's program, the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park where Bold Ruler has the star's billing, and the Stars & Stripes Handicap at Washington Park where Lincoln Road holds the spotlight.

Two Southpaws Tied

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Left-handed golfers took a break today from their national tournament with defending champion Harry Shoemaker and Dick Greenwald tied for the lead at the halfway mark.

The kid from Fresno, Calif., hit an amazing 429 at Colorado Springs in 1956 to get his shot with the Sox last season. But he was only a .212 swinger in the American League and finished the year in the minors.

Now Landis has hit in 30 of his last 32 games, driving in 22 runs. He was 2-for-4 yesterday, lining a two-run double that provided the clincher in the seventh and adding a two-run single as the White Sox defeated Kansas City 7-2.

That dropped the second place Athletics 10 1/2 games behind the New York Yankees, who walloped Washington 11-3. Baltimore defeated Boston 7-5 in 15 innings — the longest game of the year in the majors — and skidded the Red Sox into a third place tie with Detroit in the only other AL game scheduled.

Right-hander Jim Wilson won his seventh for the White Sox, who had a 3-0 lead on Earl Battey's third homer and Landis' double, then scored four in the eighth on a pair of bases-loaded walks and Landis' single. Ray Herbert (3-4) lost it.

The Yankees rapped four homers, all two-run shots, off loser Russ Kemmerer (4-7) and Jack Spring. Mickey Mantle blasted his 17th and 18th, both tape-measure drives. Norm Siebera hit his sixth and Yogi Berra his 13th in support of southpaw Whitey Ford (10-3), who won his 101st in the majors and 12th in a row over Washington since Sept. 20, 1954.

He gave up six hits, two each by Jim Lemon and Rocky Bridges, who homered for the Nat runs.

Joe Ginsberg's pinch single scored the winner for the Orioles in a two-run 15th at Boston. Billy Loes, who lost his first seven decisions, won his second in a row with 5-2-3 innings of five-hit, shut-out relief. He struck out five—fanning Frank Malzone, Jackie Jensen and Dick Gernert in the 15th.

Murray Wall (3-7) was the loser after southpaw Duane Wilson had blanked the Birds on six hits for six innings in his major league debut. Chuck Beamon and George Zuverink shut out the Red Sox on two hits for 8-2-3 innings before Boston prolonged it by matching Baltimore's three-run 10th.

Roberts Hands Braves 3-1 Loss, Cards Split

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Braves have gone limp at the plate again, scoring just two runs in the last 29 innings, but the St. Louis Cardinals and San Francisco Giants have blown chances to close in on the National League leaders.

Robin Roberts, who had lost three in a row, knocked off the Braves 3-1 yesterday for Philadelphia. But the Braves retained a 2 1/2-game spread over the second place Cards, who split a twinning pair at Los Angeles, winning 4-2, then losing 3-2 as the Dodgers went over the million mark in home attendance.

Third place San Francisco remained three games behind with a 4-3 defeat by the Chicago Cubs who regained fourth place from Cincinnati. The Redlegs were beaten 2-0 by Pittsburgh.

Consecutive home runs by Solly Hemus and Ed Bouchee, playing his first game since his re-instatement after that morals mess, bagged it for the Phils in the eighth inning and handed rookie Carl Willey his first defeat. Roberts, now 6-8 with his 15th major league victory, gave up six hits, two by Joe Adcock, Robin, usually hurt by homers, now has pitched 28 innings without throwing a gopher ball.

The Cardinals, winning with a pair of unearned runs in the first game seventh on a walk, error and two sacrifice flies, blew a comeback shot in the eighth on a bum gamble against that short left field fence at the Coliseum and Gino Cimoli's arm. Trailing 3-1 in the eighth, Ken Boyer walked and Gene Green and Del Ennis singled with two out. Ennis' hit, his 1,998th in the majors, was off the screen and scored Boyer, but Green was cut down trying for third.

Onetime Dodger Sal Maglie (2-1) went all the way for the defeat, while southpaw Johnny Podres, 7-0 at the Coliseum, ended his losing string at three for an 8-7 record. Dick Gray drove in two runs, joining Charlie Neal with back-to-back homers in the fourth. Boyer hit his 13th for the Cards.

Sam Jones (4-7) won the opener, although giving up rookie Norm Larker's third homer (all against St. Louis). He needed Larry Jackson's excellent relief in the eighth, when Laker's third hit scored a run and put two men on, with none out. Stan Williams (3-3) lost it.

Rookie George Witt and Elroy Face combined for a seven-hit shutout over Cincinnati—the second in three games for the Redlegs, who have one run in 30 innings. Witt (2-1) won it, giving five hits in 6-2-3 innings. The Pirates had only five hits off loser Joe Nuxhall (4-4) and two relievers, but got three of 'em in the sixth—Bill Virdon's double, Bob Skinner's RBI single and Ted Kluszewski's run-scoring double.

Seven-Member Fight Stable Sidelined

NEW YORK (AP) — Hymie Wallman's seven-member fight stable has been sidelined in New York by the State Athletic Commission which has slapped indefinite suspensions on Wallman and boxing judge Bert Grant.

Julius Helfand, commission chairman, announced the suspensions yesterday after a special meeting, following Grant's indictment Wednesday by a New York grand jury on charges of accepting $400 in bribes from Wallman. Grant, a judge since 1947, denied the charges and was freed on bail pending trial.

Grant was indicted on one count of conspiracy and 10 counts of bribery involving five fights in which Wallman's boxers appeared from 1954 to early 1958.

Wallman has been referred to by the office of District Attorney Frank Hogan as a front man for Frankie Carbo, a shadowy figure who reputedly has great influence in boxing circles. Wallman was named as a co-conspirator but not a defendant as he had received immunity when he testified.

In sidelining Wallman's stable, Helfand said he was following precedent. The action does not mean that the fighters are suspended, merely that they cannot fight in New York while Wallman is under suspension. Wallman is suspended until he can answer charges now being prepared by the commission to revoke his license. The hearing on these charges will be held as soon as possible, provided they do not conflict with Hogan's boxing investigation.

The fighters are heavyweights Alex Mitell of Argentina and Willie James of Boston, light heavyweight Phil Saxton of Elizabeth, N.J., middleweight Charley Cotton of Toledo, welterweight Jimmy Peters of Washington, lightweight Tommy Roberts of New York and featherweight Ike Chestnut of New York. Two other fighters, lightweights Orlando Zulueta of Cuba and middleweight Randy Sandy of New York, had contracts with Wallman that expired and were not renewed.

Helfand said Grant was the only judge asked to appear before the grand jury and that two referees—Teddy Martin and Al Berli—had testified fully after signing waivers of immunity. He said Hogan's office had told them they would not be recalled. He also said he had used Berli as a referee Monday at St. Nick's and would use Martin in the future.

Doctoring Your Golf

By DR. CARY MIDDLECOFF

PATIENT'S COMPLAINT: Flinching in the clutch.

DIAGNOSIS: Trying to Steer the Ball.

Treatment: Many golfers, especially those with little competitive experience, tend to hit their worst golf shots at the times when their best shots are needed most. Mostly it's because they tense up and restrict their swings. The fault is generally known as "trying to steer the ball," or trying to "guide" the ball.

The way to counteract this tendency is to just loosen up and hit the ball HARD. Give it a good solid pop. True enough, the shot may turn out badly. Lots of shots do.

But you give yourself a much better chance for a good shot in the clutch when you hit all out. Tightening up and shortening the swing will almost guarantee you a bad shot.

(Copyright, 1958, John F. Dille Co.)

Gene Sarazen, America's top hope in the British Open, says American pros should be thankful foreign golfers can't get their bucks to go to the States to play because "they would win the big money."

Casey Stengel calls Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays more valuable than Stan Musial and Ted Williams because "my guy and the other guy are four-way players. They hit, run, throw and make you the sensational play in the field. Then other two fellows—they just hit."

The Varsity Shop in Birmingham has been designated as the area distributor for 1958 NCAA athletic guides.

Jesse Diaz again took first place with 226 points in the monthly contest for billiards players with Epifanio Flores taking second with 202 and Harry Ellout third with 187.

Former Ferndale High star John Yodhes was signed recently by the Los Angeles Dodgers and has joined their Class C farm team at Great Falls, Mont. More recently the batting star of the MIAA with Kalamazoo, Yodhes is called "a definite major league prospect by the Dodgers." Another Oakland County boy drawing considerable attention from scouts is ex-Royal Oak Dondero pitcher Jerry Patenaude now playing in Detroit.

Pittsburgh has signed eight more young players to Minor League contracts. They are Atlantic Coast Conference batting champion Rex McMillan of Wake Forest, Toronto, sanglot pitcher Gary Collins, 1st basemen Jim Russell of Randleman, N.C., Mel Dotterweich of Baltimore, and Charles Watkins of Orinda, Calif., catcher Leroy Luketich of Staunton, Ill., pitcher Bob Daniel of Sacramento, Calif., and John Finch, an infielder from Plateau, Ala.

Tiger 2nd baseman Frank Bolling and Al Wistert, former Michigan football All-American and pro star, were special guests at father and son banquet at Livonia recently.

Althea Gibson says she has no ideas about turning professional as she goes into the championship round at Wimbledon. She may give up big time tennis for a singing career.

The Los Angeles Dodgers have announced they will play several exhibition games next spring at Sarasota, Fla., with the Boston Red Sox now planning to switch to Arizona for training. The Dodgers had previously played games at Miami Beach but have been replaced by Baltimore since moving from Brooklyn.

New York had no big league baseball on July 4 today for the 1st time since the early days of the American League with the Yanks on the road and no more National League teams.

APPEAR AT WISNER — Three members of the Water Folies' diving team which will appear at Wisner Stadium July 11-13 are Charlie Aiken of Brazil (bottom), Roger Nadeau of Boston and Emile Hotte of Montreal. The folies, en route from the Brussels World's Fair, are touring the United States.

State May Triple Areas in UP for Deer Hunting

LANSING (U) — Areas open for "any deer" seasons may be nearly tripled in the Upper Peninsula next fall, state game officials said today.

Conservation department specialists are analyzing survey information to determine where special deer seasons should be established.

Last fall 1,314 square miles were opened for shooting deer of either sex in the Upper Peninsula. H. D. Ruhl, chief of the department's game division, said the area may be expanded to 3,500 square miles this year in a move to harvest 5,000 to 7,000 more deer than the total killed in the bucks-only season. Last year hunters bagged some 1,500 antlerless deer in the U. P.

Under proposed plans, the four areas north of the Straits opened to any deer shooting last year would be expanded and split into smaller units.

In the northern Lower Peninsula, about 10,000 square miles of deer range may be opened to special season hunting, slightly less than last year, Ruhl said.

Ruhl said recommendations for special seasons will be presented to the state conservation commission at its August meeting.

Girl-Athletes in Title Tests

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Female track and fielders get one of their rare opportunities to step into the spotlight today and tomorrow with the opening of the girls' and women's national championships.

Some 237 girls and women will vie Saturday for the senior national championships in 12 events and for the 20 places on the U.S. team which will meet the Russians in a dual meet at Moscow, July 27-28. The men already have been picked for the trip.

But today's competition was turned over completely to the younger set. Some 132 girls up to 17 years of age engaged for medals in 11 events.

There are a number of entrants from Cuba and Canada who will try for U.S. titles, but the major interest will be in the competition for the 20 free trips to Russia. The Cubans and Canadians are ineligible for those, naturally.

Tennessee State, which produces track and field stars like Kentucky comes up with basketball stickouts, will defend six titles. The girls from Nashville, 20 of them, probably will win more this year.

WHOPPER — Robert Wheeler, 355 Lawrence, Drayton Plains, thought he had hit a snag with his small picker hook, while fishing in the St. Clair river at New Baltimore, Wednesday. He was stunned when after a long struggle a big gray fish appeared alongside his boat. Wheeler, fishing with his uncle Bert Wheeler, 4073 Silver Birch, Drayton Plains, had hooked a 53-pound sturgeon that measured 65 inches long. A passing boatman loaned Wheeler a gaff to land the fish. Sturgeon are rare prizes in the area where this one was caught.

Sarazen in British Finals

ST. ANNE'S-ON-THE-SEA, Eng. (UPI)—Gene Sarazen, playing on tired 56-year-old legs in a pouring rain, shot a one-under-par 70 today on the third round of the British Open Golf Championship, giving him a 54-hole total of 216 strokes.

As he slowly made his way off the tee for the fourth and final hole of the tournament in the afternoon, Sarazen remarked: "Thank God, only one more round."

Sarazen shot an admirable 35 for the first nine holes of the morning round and came back in 35 on the rain-soaked Royal Lytham and St. Anne's course. Throughout most of his round, pain fell, as it has done throughout this week-long tournament.

When the rain eased off momentarily in the morning and there appeared a break in the clouds, Sarazen laughed: "I'm wet all the way through anyway."

The venerable golfing squire from Germantown, N.Y., started the final day of play 11 strokes behind the leader, Christy O'Connor of Ireland, and was not given much chance of repeating his British Open championship of 1932.

Sarazen might have had an even better card had it not been for the seventh and 18th holes. On the seventh, he roughed his second shot and took four to get on the green. He wound up with a bogey six. On the easy 18th, he pulled his tee shot into a trap and took a five.

He shot consecutive birdies on the 13th and 14th holes when he made excellent chip shots and sank putts of four and six feet.

Sarazen was one of the earliest to tee off on the third round. Among the early finishers, Trevor Wilkes of South Africa shot a 69 for a 54-hole score of 215.

Sarazen shot a creditable 73 for the second day in a row yesterday but his 144-hole total was 11 behind O'Connor's leading 135.

O'Connor's total was just one stroke ahead of Leopoldo Ruiz of Argentina, whose 30-35-65 tied the Open record for a single round in the tournament proper. Peter Thomson of Australia, who led the qualifying round and also was the first-day leader with a 66, slipped to a 72 yesterday and fell three strokes off the pace. Thomson, who is seeking the British Open title for the fourth time, was tied at 138 with Dave Thomas, a British pro who shot a second-round 68.

Monte Bradley, a 27-year-old Army private from Hillsboro, Tex., who was the only other American to qualify for the tournament proper, failed to make the grade for the 36-hole windup. The field which originally numbered 340 golfers was cut to 40 who shot 147 or lower for the first two 18-hole rounds.

Dodgers' Attendance Passes Million Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers passed the one million mark in home attendance Thursday night at their Coliseum doubleheader with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The club announced the millionth fan was Marvin Crowder, an aircraft worker from nearby Torrance. He was given two box seat tickets good for the rest of the season.

Crowder had never seen a major league game before. The games were the 34th and 35th of the home season. After 35 games at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn last year the Dodgers had drawn 491,081.

Six Pros See Long Service in Oakland

When it comes to seniority in the ranks of Oakland County golf professionals, six names stand head and shoulders above the rest of the class.

Who's the No. 1 pro in Oakland from the standpoint of tenure? The honor goes to Frank Syron, owner of Pontiac Country Club.

After Syron, in the order of their seniority, are Tommy Shannon of Orchard Lake, Al Watrous of Oakland Hills, Bill Graham of Bloomfield Hills, C. B. (Brownie) Meyer of Twin Beach and Ray Maguire of Birmingham.

Syron is now serving county golfers for the 37th consecutive year. Frank was Orchard Lake Country Club's first pro and also saw service at Bloomfield Hills before buying Pontiac CC in 1941. Syron is still going strong at the Elizabeth Lake road course.

Shannon has been servicing county golfers for 31 years. Tommy came to Orchard Lake in 1940 following stints at Red Run and Glen Oaks.

Watrous needs no introduction. After a five-year stint in the Grand Rapids area, Al migrated to Oakland Hills in 1930 and has remained there ever since. His 28-year span is the 3rd longest in the county.

Genial Bill Graham has been in good standing with Oakland shot-makers for 27 years. Bill came to Bloomfield Hills CC in 1931 as assistant pro and has been head man on Long Lake road for the past 15 years.

In a virtual tie with Graham for seniority rights is "Brownie" Meyer, who dropped in at Twin Beach, a private nine-hole course, in 1931. Meyer is still there after 27 seasons.

Birmingham and Oakland Hills have received the attention of the silver-haired Maguire, now serving as Birmingham's head pro for the 14th straight year. Maguire turned professional in 1938, giving him a 20-year service record to county golfers.

Ray holds the distinction of shooting two holes-in-one on the same round in the 1949 U. S. Open sectional qualifiers at Plum Hollow. Prior to turning pro, he had an honorable record in the caddy ranks.

'Fabulous Sum' Might Get Hose

CHICAGO (AP)—A fabulous offer might persuade Mrs. Dorothy Comisky Rigney to sell the Chicago White Sox.

That is what Johnny Rigney, her husband and vice president of the club, says.

A report that Bill Veeck, former owner of the old St. Louis Browns and Cleveland Indians, is prepared to make an offer drew this comment from Rigney:

"We got a story about a month ago from a casual friend of Veeck that if Dorothy ever wanted to sell the club she could let him know."

"Maybe if she got some fantastic offer she might sell," Rigney added. "But it must be fabulous—one so good that she couldn't possibly turn it down."

They will join Capt. Perry T. Jones of Los Angeles, Davis Cup captain, in New York Sunday or Monday and then will go to Toronto to meet the winner of the Cuba-Canada matches.

HAYMAKER — Here's Major Robert Borg, probably the top dressage rider in America, an Oxford farmer when not appearing in horse shows, or Olympic games equestrian events. He was pitching hay when the cameraman arrived.

FORMAL — Major Borg in formal show ring attire stands by the head of his splendid dressage mount, Sergeant Sabota, after an exhibition at the recent Bloomfield Hunt Club show.

RUBDOWN — A bit of a rubdown was being given Bill Biddle, by his owner, Major Borg, after a workout for the Olympic horse, at the major's farm at Oxford. Biddle is one of several dressage horses Major Borg is training.

U.S. Juniors in Semifinals at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)—Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis and Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., carried U.S. colors into the semifinals Thursday in the Wimbledon junior boys and girls tennis championships.

A Russian girl, Uanna Dmitrieva, 16, also gained the girls' semifinals but the Russian boy, Andrei Potanin, was sent to the sidelines. It's the first time at Wimbledon for the Russians.

Buchholz, 18, breezed past J. Leschy of Denmark 6-3, 6-1. His semifinal foe will be Ronald Barnes, Brazilian Davis Cupper who eliminated Potanin, 7-5, 14-12.

Ex-Cavalryman Becomes Olympic Rider, Farmer

By H. GUY MOATS

A former United States cavalry officer, whose work with the equine mounts went the way of modernity during the 2nd World War, but who turned to the art of training and riding dressage horses, for Olympic competition, has become an Oakland County farmer.

Over at Oxford Major Robert (Bob) Borg and his family have been operating a large farm, in partnership with Ford Motor vice-president Irving A. Duffy of Birmingham. The farm is known as Red Bob Farm. The name is a combination of Duffy's nickname during his U.S. Army service as a colonel of cavalry, as "Red," and Borg's "Bob." The pair were friends of long standing. Duffy, a West Point man, was a top figure, as chairman for the last three years, for the Detroit Horse Show.

"Red" was instrumental in bringing the major here two years ago for his first colorized dressage exhibition. Major Borg's work at this year's show with Sergeant Sabota and Bill Biddle was a highlight. He has those two, along with Decelle, Appaloosa, Dainty Dots, Olympic Knight and Nikki, an Arabian, in dressage training. Biddle and the "Sarge" were his mounts at the last Olympics, at Stockholm, Sweden.

The major was 4th in individual, 2nd in team dressage in the 1948 Olympics in London, England, rode in the 1952 games in Helsinki, Finland and was 2nd in the western hemisphere with Bill Biddle, at the Pan-American Games in Mexico City in 1955. He is now prepping for the 1960 games in Rome.

Major Borg is a cosmopolite. He was born in the Philippines (Manila); matured in Oregon; was advanced equitation instructor at the army cavalry school; was with the 6th Army in South Pacific, served with the Alamo Scouts, an intelligence group; was at Adak island (South Pacific); patrolled Russian borders with a U.S. horse troop until 1950.

"Mr. Duffy and myself believe in some principles of farming that are being followed out here," explained the major. "We grow hay, oats, corn and wheat, and now we are starting to breed horses."

Red Bob Farm is at 1955 Ray road, north of Oxford.

Dallas Club Status Bothers Loop Prexy

DALLAS (AP)—Dick Butler, president of the Texas League, said Thursday he doesn't know whether the baseball loop could survive if the Dallas club drops out Saturday as owner J. W. Bateson threatened.

Bateson, wealthy owner of the slumping seventh place club, fired hot blasts at three Texas League clubs. He needs a new manager and players to bolster the team and its dwindling attendance.

Butler spoke rather grimly, saying: "I don't know if the league would fold, but if Bateson quits his reputation would be worse than if he stayed. Win or lose, he should stay. He has been a successful man, and now he thinks people are laughing at him because Dallas is in seventh place. When the Rangers win a few, his attitude might change."

Critic Roils Tennis Umpires

Called to Task for Mistakes in Pronunciation

Wimbledon Officials Stumble Over Names of Players

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Wimbledon umpires, generally suave and imperturbable, are an angry crew today.

They've just been taken to task—in an anonymous letter—because some of them don't know how to pronounce the name of Maria Bueno, the Brazilian teenage bombshell who hit Wimbledon for the first time this year.

"Tell the umpires to pronounce it 'Bwayno' and not 'Buhno' as our uniformed umpire did yesterday," the writer said. "It was most painful and annoying to listen to. Such ignorance is inexcusable."

Wimbledon umpires, perched high on their chairs and intoning the score through microphones, don't often get criticized. And when they are, it's generally because of the way they handle a match. To collect bricks just because they can't pronounce the tongue-twisting names of some of the foreign players just isn't tennis, in their opinion.

Take Jadwiga Jedzejowska, for instance. Or Ignace Toczynski, or even Peter Theodoropoulos.

You've got all your work cut out trying to keep their scores, without bothering how you pronounce their names.

Jadwiga was a Polish girl in the thirties well-known around the tennis courts of the world. After an umpire had taken a dozen or so of her matches, he learned to pronounce her name "Yenreyof-ska"—but he never felt very happy about it.

Similarly with Toczynski, a Pole who exiled himself from his homeland after the war and who used to play at Wimbledon a few years back. You are aware, of course, it's pronounced "Closhinsky" but were the umpires?

And Peter Theodoropoulos, who is a Greek and—luckily for the umpires—doesn't play the world circuit very much.

Take a deep breath, count twenty, and his name doesn't seem all that difficult. But by the time you've called his score, you're probably a couple of games behind. And with a name like that, you never catch up.

Even the simple ones aren't always easy. No pitfalls in Barry MacKay, the giant American from Dayton, Ohio, you might say. Yet some umpires call him "Mackeye" with the accent on the last syllable, while others prefer "Mackee" with the accent on the first.

Luckily for the Wimbledon umpires, most of the difficult names are off their score sheets for another year.

Britain's Angela Mortimer and defending champion Althea Gibson from New York won their way yesterday to the women's finals over Suszi Kormoczy (pronounced "Suszy Kormoszy") and Ann Haydon, while Ashley Cooper and Neale Fraser tangled in the men's All-Australian singles final today.

Miss Gibson moved into the finals with an authoritative 6-2, 6-0 victory over Miss Haydon. Miss Mortimer disposed of the Hungarian girl just as easily, 6-0, 6-1.

At Royal Regatta

Russians Edge Yankees

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP)—The Russians wiped out the top American eight at the Henley Royal Regatta Thursday in a bitterly fought race rowed at the height of a thunderstorm.

Russia's Trud crew led the University of Washington varsity crew by 1½ lengths, with a background of deafening thunderclaps, forked lightning, pounding hailstones and rain that made the race all but invisible to spectators.

The clash came in a preliminary round of the Grand Challenge Cup competition—the major eight-oar event of the big regatta. The Russians covered the rain-lashed mile and 550-yard course on the narrow Thames River in six minutes, 49 seconds—19 seconds slower than the record established by Cornell in winning the Grand Challenge Cup last year.

Three Minor League Cities in Contention

Tiger Farm Teams in Title Chases

3-48 temp cond — TIGER farm Valdosta, the Tigers Class D farm team in the Georgia-Florida League, finished in first place for the first half of the league's split season, and Charleston and Birmingham continued their respective battle for first place in the American Association and Southern Association.

CHARLESTON SENATORS, American Association, Manager Bill Adair:

Jerry Davis, a right hander from Garden City with a 10-13 record at Birmingham in 1957, has won 10 games without a loss for Charleston and leads the league in earned run average. Don Lee has won 6 of 9 games for the Senators and George Spencer has been brilliant in relief roles and has a 7-1 record.

Bill Taylor boasts the top average at .326 and Jim Delsing and Ken Walters share the RBI lead with 40 apiece.

BIRMINGHAM BARONS, Southern Association, Manager Cal Ermer:

45 Players Under Par in Rubber City's Open

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—This July 4 may be rather drab at the Rubber City golf tournament. The boys shot most of the fireworks yesterday.

As they went into today's second round of the four-day $22,000 medal play race 45 of the 126 club swingers were under par and a dozen others were even. It was the tour's biggest scoring spree of the year, outclassing the Kansas City Open, where 33 bettered par on opening day.

With Firestone Country Club's 5,520 yards as dry as tinder, the long hitters made a mockery of regulation figures and set up today's scramble to determine the 60 low professionals and 10 amateurs who will continue play Saturday and Sunday.

With a score of 144 or 145 expected to qualify, defending champion Arnold Palmer, the year's No. 1 money winner and victor in the Masters tournament, will have to perk up a practice round, passing up a practice round, arriving just before tee time yesterday and shot a 72, seven strokes off the pace.

As they wheeled into the Inde-

Big Bluegills Biting

Panfish are giving anglers plenty of fun on the many lakes about Oakland County, and one fisherman today reported a 10-inch specimen taken from a lake near Oxford. Clyde Smith, 809 Orlando, Pontiac, got his limit of bluegills, including the 10½-ouncer.

Fishing was reported very good at Middle Straits Lake, with dry flies and worms taking many good fish, Alfred Masini, Proud Lake Recreation area manager says.

Gophers vs. Army in '63

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The University of Minnesota Gophers will play Army here Oct. 5, 1963, in the first scheduled football game of the two teams. The contest will be played at the University's Memorial Stadium.

Joe Grzenda, the 21-year-old southpaw from Scranton, Pa., finally lost his first game this year after eight victories. Phil Regan also has eight wins, as does veteran right hander Harry Byrd. Mel Clark has the most RBIs with 57.

AUGUSTA TIGERS, South Atlantic League, Manager Wayne Blackburn:

Frank Kostro and Steve Boros, two infielders who began the season at Birmingham, have provided Augusta with added punch in recent weeks. Kostro, a shortstop, leads the league with his .347 average and Boros blasted three home runs in his first week in the league, including two in his first game.

DURHAM BULLS, Carolina League, Manager Charles Kress:

Durham has been getting improved pitching in the past few weeks, but the Class B club still lacks a .300 hitter.

Lefty John Aehl, who pitched a no-hitter earlier this year, has won five of nine games.

IDAHO FALLS RUSSETTS, Pioneer League, Manager Al Lakeman:

Newcomer Jerry Kudajoch, a first baseman from Scranton, is hitting .445. Jake Wood is hitting .399 and Jack Risch, who played at Idaho Falls in 1957, is hitting .396.

Dick Sheldon, a right hander from Birmingham, Mich., has been with Idaho Falls since June 6, and has recorded 4 straight victories. He began the season with Durham.

VALDOSTA TIGERS, Georgia-Florida League, Manager Frank Overmire:

Valdosta, which has won the pennant two straight years, captured the first half of the season championship.

Catcher Jack Moore's .322 average ranks him third in the league, and shortstop Dick McAlliff is the only other Valdosta hitter over .300.

Rookie Gene Burroughs of St. Petersburg, Fla., has the most victories in the league, and has won 10 of 16 games.

ERIE SAILORS, New York-Pennsylvania League, Manager Steve Gromek:

Added batting punch has moved the Sailors to within striking distance of the first division, and bonus pitcher Doug Gallagher aided the pitching corps with victories in his first two professional starts.

Left handed swinger Dan Briner and Bill Maupin have sparked Erie's attack with .358 and .326 averages, respectively.

Aerial Spraying for Mosquito Control Not Harmful to Animals

WAYNE B. SIEFERT
County Horticultural Agent

The safety of aerial spraying, an increasingly popular method of mosquito control, has been endorsed by three U. S. government agencies. For many years this method of spreading DDT for control of Gypsy Moth in the eastern states has not caused injury to man nor from animals. Careful studies of its effects on birds or other wildlife have failed to show any hazards when properly applied.

The standard formula used in this area calls for one pound of DDT dissolved in one gallon of light oil per acre. At this rate, less than two ounces of DDT falls on a lot 50 by 100 feet.

Many of us have been bitten by mosquitoes where aerial spraying has been done, and promptly concluded the spray hasn't been effective. Yet it takes only a few moments to recall previous seasons without spraying when the problem was extremely serious.

Any spraying program for mosquito control depends on killing the mosquito when it hides among the shrubs, tall grass or under eaves. Occasional mosquitoes are bound to escape by flying directly to your porch or barbecue stand without using a convenient stop over.

In addition to aerial spraying, keeping tall grass cut and spraying the eaves of nearby buildings seems to really pay off.

SHUN CLOVER MITES

The clover mite is the same insect which has been such a serious problem to Oakland County home owners during last March and April.

In certain areas within the environs of Pontiac, these mites are building up on fruit trees, garden shrubs and flowers until serious damage is being done. Where the lower leaves or inside leaves of favorite plants are becoming to turn dull green or silvery gray, it usually means mites are the cause.

Carefully examine the underside of the leaves, particularly along the leaf veins. If a large number of dark specks are moving around, identification seems pretty certain. Besides rescuing these favorite plants, control may well mean keeping them out of your house next spring. Because they are in various stages of development more than one application is necessary. The chemical must be put on the underside of the leaves, and one must cover all of the plant.

Malathion has controlled this insect though, others seem better adapted. Aramite, Systox, Oveex and Kelthane have specific mite destroying properties. Whichever is chosen, make three applications at 10 day intervals to completely destroy the colony. Directions on the package should give you satisfaction.

CONTROL SCALE INSECTS

Serious insect pests, the Oyster Shell Scale and Lecanium Scale are entering a very susceptible stage during late June and early July. During the winter, spring and summer, these insects have a hard waxy cover which protects them from spray chemicals. But at this season, young hatch out under these covers and crawl to the new plant growth. During this crawling stage, Malathion, or DDT, will completely destroy this colony.

There is considerable difference between these two pests when one tries to identify them. Oyster Shell Scale is a light gray, flattened oyster shell like scale on birch, lilac and several other plants. They may be easily scraped off with the fingernail.

Lecanium scale is a rounded, dark red or brown turtle shell shaped scale on oak, arbor vitae, yews, and many other ornamental trees and shrubs.

Either of these will eventually destroy the usefulness of the host plant.

The time of spray application varies each season depending on weather. This year both are behind schedule. When tiny gray or light brown specks are seen on the new leaves and stems the young have hatched and the females have died. Two sprays at 10 day intervals should destroy this pest. Directions on the package will indicate the correct mixture.

Ever Try to Eat Nasturtiums?

While most people plant nasturtiums to look at, it is perfectly true that you can eat them, too.

The tender young leaves, flower buds, and young seeds are all useful in salads, performing the same function as water cress and tasting very much like it.

It is that similarity of taste between nasturtiums and water cress that got the names all mixed up between the two, and one may think this is pretty silly, but botanists insist that water cress is properly named nasturtium and that what we know under this common flower name is actually tropaeolum.

But one had better treat this information as confidential because you're likely to get a blank stare if you ask for tropaeolum seed, and the man at the produce counter would be sure you needed medical attention if you called his water cress nasturtium.

MEET 3 REQUIREMENTS

Anyhow, nasturtiums are fine flowers, for they fully meet the three major requirements of any garden subject. First, they are easy to grow. Second, they produce large numbers of flowers. Third, the blooms keep excellently as cut flowers.

They are an ideal lazy gardener's subject. If you have put off getting the garden started until spring has pretty well sprung, don't worry about it. Nasturtiums are easy prey to frost or even to cold, wet soil, and the longer you wait the better off you may be.

If you had sort of planned to turn under some manure or commercial fertilizer and didn't get around to it, don't worry. Plant nasturtiums; they do best when the soil is on the poor side.

Another thing you won't have to worry about is choosing among new varieties, for there has been scarcely any change in the kinds of nasturtiums available since the mid-30's.

For vigorous, rapid-growing plants to act as a ground cover you should buy the tall mixed. "Tall" doesn't mean they'll get high off the ground; it means that they are big, sprawling vines lying on the ground, or climbing over rocks and debris. For plants with the same brightly colored single flowers but with less ambitious plants, get dwarf single mixed.

For fancier flowers that have enough extra petals to be called semi-double and plants that are moderately spreading you can select the color you like from this list: Golden Glean, Mahogany Glean, Orange Glean, Salmon Glean, Scarlet Glean, or for all these colors and more, Glean Hybrids. If you like neat, mounded, globe-shaped plants that look just fine, for instance, in rock gardens, you should look for Golden Globe, Mahogany Gem, Orange Gem, Scarlet Gem, or Gem Mixture. All these have semi-double flowers, too.

NASTURTIUMS — For a quick growing, colorful ground cover for banks, rocky spots, or hard-to-get-at places tall single nasturtiums do the job.

Learn Botanical, Common Flower, Plant Names

By CYNTHIA LOWEY
AP Newsfeature Writer

In the gardening fraternity, the type most likely to annoy is the amateur who insists on using the botanical or Latin name for plants.

For some reason or other, the privilege of calling those Lady Washington geraniums in the window box Pelargonium domesticum is reserved for nurserymen and ladies who lecture on flower arrangements. Anyone else is names is to pick them up when you are working with the plants and studying their cultivation. Then, if you fear the jeers of non-gardeners, learn also the popular names.

While this is the season of flowers, it is also the season of pests. In our neighborhood, the slugs are on the wane, both as a result of drier weather and of poison bait.

CLEAN GARDEN
The cleaner the garden beds, the fewer the slugs. And they love to linger in dense, moist growth, so one of the tricks in control is to allow light and sunshine in around the plants.

For most of the rest, sprays and dusts on a 10-day schedule of application give adequate results. (July, when so many of the flowers are coming in, is also a fine time to give plants a tonic—a booster shot of fast-acting fertilizer which will reach them quickly.)

Through the years, most of us have learned pretty well how to handle most of the unwelcome visitors to our garden and lawns: rabbits, moles, beetles, aphids, borers. Two which defeat me utterly are dogs and children.

This spring my perennial border was effectively smashed by a two-week craze for cops-and-robbers during which the area behind my privet hedge—the border—was the hide-out for the black hats. The main attraction was an old and extremely climbable willow tree nearby, used as a lookout point.

Last year the little ones invented a game of throwing themselves into the hedge and bouncing out—an activity from which the hedge is still recuperating.

The easiest way to learn plant names is to pick them up when you are working with the plants and studying their cultivation.

Use Columbines for Color, Grace

They Thrive in Shade, Sun; Range in Height; Give Garden Glamour

Columbines, among the most dependable of garden perennials, provide airy gracefulness and fascinating colors for home gardens.

They thrive in sunny places as well as in partially shaded problem areas. In a mixed border, columbines contribute a full measure of charm and they are completely at home with such favorites as irises, daylilies, delphiniums, Oriental poppies, bleeding hearts and other plants.

Columbines range in height from about 12 inches to three feet, and the modern long-spurred hybrids often produce foliage masses several feet in diameter.

They may be started from seeds or obtained from nurseries. The plants should be set out during fall or early spring and since they are relatively disease-free will require little care.

Coffee Crop Increases

CAPE TOWN — African coffee, cheaper than the Latin-American product, is gaining popularity with the United States makers of instant coffee, export figures indicate. The African crop has risen from 2,600,000 bags a year before World War II to 8,600,000 bags annually now, or about 25 per cent of the world's total coffee production.

Soybeans Gain in SW Michigan Fruit Belt

Southwestern Michigan, long acclaimed as the state's fruit belt, is fast becoming a soybean belt as well.

Assistant Van Buren County Agricultural Agent Robert Earl says participation in the corn phase of the soil bank acreage reserve program may be responsible for the increase in soybean popularity.

Soybeans generally thrive in good corn soil and can be planted from May 15 to June 10.

Earl points out it is necessary to treat the soybean seed with a special strain of soybean-fixing bacteria culture at planting time. He also advises the use of high quality, true variety seed for the best results.

Better Home Landscape, Remove Some Growth

Want to improve the appearance of your present home landscape without doing the whole job over again?

Joseph T. Cox, extension specialist in landscape architecture at Michigan State University, says that overplanted and cluttered effects can sometimes be overcome by removing some trees and large shrubs. Removing lower branches of trees that obscure a view can help too.

Texas, heretofore the nation's largest state and major joke subject with its 263,513 square miles, would become the second largest state. Alaska is twice as large with 586,400 square miles.

Take Steps to Rid Lawn of Crab Grass

Home owners can take another step toward ridding their lawns of crab grass this summer before the grass gets more than two inches tall. Several chemicals can help in the fight against this lawn invader.

According to Buford Grigsby, weed control scientist at Michigan State University, two of the most effective chemicals are phenyl mercuric acetate and disodium methyl arsonate.

Trade-names of compounds containing these chemicals may vary so follow directions for amounts and number of treatment, Grigsby says.

Crab grass cannot be controlled quickly or even in one growing season, the scientist points out. A control program extending over several years will probably be necessary if the infestation is heavy.

The key to success is to prevent the crab grass plants from setting seeds which will be in the soil to grow in following seasons. If seed production is controlled, the supply in the soil will be used up and crab grass will no longer be a problem, Grigsby says.

Also, crab grass doesn't do well when shaded. Practices such as fertilization and proper mowing, which will encourage growth of thick turf will help keep crab grass down.

Don't Repot Your Plant in House if It's Healthy

As long as your house plants are doing well, don't re-pot them, says Fred Widmeyer, extension specialist in horticulture at Michigan State University. The longer you can put it off, the better.

You'll find that foliage plants are slower growers than most flowering plants and so need re-potting less often.

Quiz the Gardener

Q—During late June my pansies begin to get straggly and their blossoms sparse. What can be done to improve their appearance and the quality of the flowers?

A—When pansies get long and straggly, they may be cut back to within a few inches of the base and fertilized. This will encourage new growth from the base that will be bushy and bear more flowers. Growing pansies in partial shade is also necessary for a continuance of flowering, as they resent the heat of the hot summer sun.

Q—What annuals will thrive in a hot, dry location?

A—Portulaca, annual gallardia, marigold, petunia, cosmos, scabiosa, sinia, California poppy, snow-on-the-mountain, salvia, four o'clocks, verbena and cornflowers.

Q—Does it make any difference whether garden rows are planted east and west or north and south?

A—Not materially, since in the summer the sun is largely overhead. With vegetables of moderate height and mostly shading the soil between, the direction of rows means nothing. With tall limas, peas and corn it might help a little to run the rows east and west, but the slope of ground is the decider.

Q—When is the best time to repot house plants?

A—This depends on the plant. Early fall and spring are the best times.

Q—Can you tell me why peonies transplanted early this spring failed to bloom? Buds appeared but they did not develop. Plants are healthy.

A—Peonies need to be moved in the fall in order to give them time to become established. Otherwise they do not have the strength to develop their buds to the flowering stage.

Graham Says Power of U.S. Rests in Youths

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—writes youth leaders, evangelists and other young people.

Graham said last night.

"There is enough potential power in the youth here tonight to change the world for Christ, if dedicated in the right direction," said.

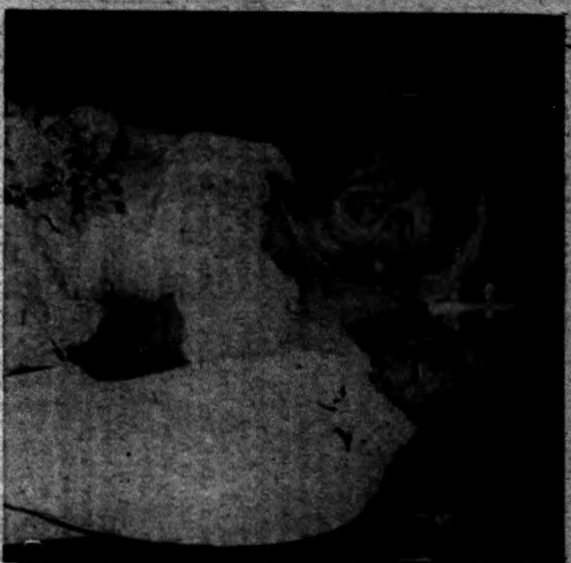

An estimated 607 of the 15,000 present walked forward to make decisions for Christ. Both figures were from Michigan for Graham's Sacramento crusade, and brought the attendance to 44,400 and decisions to 2,600 for the five meetings.

Graham said young people want leadership and direction. Today's youth, he said, has too much leisure time, and "idle-ness can play tricks on the soul."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam ended the 1958 fiscal year with the largest national debt in 18 months—$276,444,433,345.81. The total, representing the debt on June 30, was the highest for the end of any month since December 1956 when it came to $276,731,000,000. At the same time last year, it was roughly $5,800,000 lower.

The daily Treasury statement, which gives the cash position of the Treasury, gave no reliable indication of how far the 1958 budget may be out of balance.

The exact figure won't be known until the next monthly Treasury statement is published in about two weeks. However, to officials have been predicting a 1958 deficit of 24 to 3 billion dollars—compared with a budget surplus of $1,645,000,000 last year.

Warner Bros. to Film Ferber Novel on Alaska

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
HOLLYWOOD—We've really got something to shoot off the cannons and fireworks about on this Fourth of July—a brand new STATE! Welcome to the U.S.A., Alaska, our biggest state and the 49th star in our flag. We salute you!

What a timely break for Warner Bros., which owns the film rights to Edna Ferber's "Ice Palace," a story of Alaska with a blow-by-blow description of Alaska's fight to be admitted into the Union.

Of course, the ending of the Ferber novel will have to be changed. It was written with statehood being defeated by wily politicians successful in keeping the big territory from being a part of the United States. It can't possibly hurt the dramatic value of the story to use the happy ending of Alaska becoming our newest and biggest state.

I never felt pretty blonde Susan Oliver received the breaks she deserved when she was in Hollywood. The one picture I saw her in I thought she showed great promise. She now sends word that she has been given the chance she has been waiting for on Broadway.

Susan will have the lead female role which Mary Ure created in "Look Back in Anger," the John Osborne play which has been running on Broadway for a long time.

She has a two-picture-yearly contract with Warner Bros., and Jack Warner has given Susan permission to do the stage play.

Thanks to George Zaharias for a very nice letter. He tells me it isn't true that Bert Gordon has bought the life story of his late wife Babe Dirlidron Zaharias.

"I am going to be in California soon and hope to see you and thank you for everything in the past," writes George. "But," he adds, "I will make the announcement when the picture is to be made and I do not expect it to be Bert Gordon."

Snapshots of Hollywood at random:
As soon as "The Journey" was finished Deborah Kerr left Vienna for Switzerland and the north of Italy, while Yul Brynner headed for the south of France.

Just before the big studio fire broke out, the Sam Goldwyns were ringdaring at the MGM House to hear Sammy Davis Jr. Sam took a bow when he was introduced.

Same night Judy Garland and Sid Luft were applauding Sammy. A threesome at the Luau, Elizabeth Taylor with Arthur Loew Jr. and Dr. Rex Kennamer.

Rock Hudson reluctantly declined an invitation from the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce to be king at the carnival on Kamehameha Day because he is needed for his next picture. Can't say I blame him for being sorry. Anyone who has ever been in Honolulu on that day can never forget it. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Ike Spending Fourth of July at Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower is spending the Independence Day weekend at his Gettysburg farm home.

The youngsters with him are David, 10, Barbara Anne, 9, and Susan, 6, the children of the President's son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower. Their parents stayed home with the Eisenhowers' youngest grandchild, Mary Jean, 2.

Army Awards Ford $1.3 Million Order

DETROIT (UPI) — Contracts totaling $1,374,000 have been awarded to the Ford Motor Co. for engineering, fabrication and test work associated with the installation of compression ignition engines in the Army Ordnance Corps medium tank.

an existing one of more than six million dollars awarded to Ford in 1956 for tank design and development.

D. C. Pippel, manager of Ford's Mobilization Planning and Defense Sales Dept., said the new contracts were awarded in line with the Army's objective of making maximum use of diesel engines in combat vehicles.

Alaska is a man's country. It has 16 men to every 10 women.

2 Gunmen Take $7,300 From Ford Credit Union

DETROIT (AP) — Police sought two gunmen who held up the Ford Highland Park Federal Credit Union yesterday and escaped with $7,300.

The gunmen entered the credit union and forced manager Daniel Maroudis, 29, and another employee to get down on the floor while they emptied cash drawers. Before leaving, the bandits locked the two employees in a washroom.

Witnesses said the gunmen fled in a 1950 blue car.

Inserts Little Rock Decision in 'Record'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) has inserted in the Congressional record — at a cost of $326 — District Judge Harry L. Lemley's order suspending school integration in Little Rock until 1961.

In asking on the Senate floor that the order be printed "in view of the widespread public interest," McClellan said he had been advised that it would cost $526 for the order and a later order denying a stay pending appeal to be included in the appendix of the daily Congressional Record.

McClellan also asked that the Supreme Court's refusal to review the order be included.

Twister Costs 5 Million

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Damage from a series of tornadoes and hailstones which hammered south central Montana Wednesday was estimated last night at more than five million dollars. The figure was set by insurance adjusters who toured the stricken areas as a gentle rain spattered hard-hit Billings.

34-24-32 Comin' Up!

CHICAGO (AP) — A clerk in the secretary of state's office said it was easy on the eyes filling a young woman's request for auto license number 342432. The figures the woman told the clerk, represented her bust, waist and hip measurements — 34-24-32.

The name Alaska comes from an Eskimo word meaning "great lands."

It's Now Billions for Defense, Not a Cent for Blackmail

Revered Slogans Appear Strange

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of our most revered slogans look a little strange on this Fourth of July.

1. The United States once proclaimed: millions for defense but not one cent for tribute.

Now we spend not millions for defense but billions. And 16 American servicemen and businessmen are detained in Communist China, the Soviet part of Armenia, the Russian-occupied part of Germany, and the rebel-held part of Cuba.

The ugly word tribute hasn't been mentioned but our State Department does talk about blackmail and some see little difference in meaning.

2. Grandmother used to plug hard for a safe and sane Fourth. Her aim was to see that as few grandchildren as possible lost their fingers playing with firecrackers.

Casualties from fireworks probably will be relatively few tomorrow. But what grandmother didn't foresee was the astonishingly profitable nature of the American automobile. It will kill or maim scores of persons over the holiday weekend while Americans congratulate themselves on observing a safe and sane Fourth by banning firecrackers.

3. The law of supply and demand was once regarded as inviolate as any in the land. By it, prices went up when demand exceeded supply and went down when supply exceeded demand.

But the government tinkers with that right along now. It tries to spur demand by such things as making it easier and cheaper to borrow money with which to buy. It tinkers with supply by such things as buying surplus metals for its own stockpile or by taking over excess farm supplies.

4. Let the buyer beware was a slogan when the Republic was young. Now there are a number of regulatory agencies devoted to seeing that the buyer gets what he thinks he's buying. This runs all the way from meat at the butcher shop to new stock issues on Wall Street.

5. A free economy is still one of our dearest boasts. But a multitude of federal and local laws and a growing number of commissions and agencies touch almost every businessman somehow, from his franchise to do business to his pricing policies and his relationship with his workers.

Larger corporations have legal departments to help them keep abreast of all the rules and changes in the rules. Just the tax laws themselves play stellar roles in deciding on how businesses are to be run and on whether new programs can be started or whether it would be cheaper to drop old ones.

6. Back when the first Fourth of July was a very fresh memory,

President Washington spoke about the wisdom of the United States minding its own business and letting other nations mind theirs.

Now it's hard to put your finger on any spot on the globe where Uncle Sam isn't involved in one way or another. He got into this situation gradually. But in World War I and especially after World War II he jumped in with both feet. Most Americans seemed to agree it was the only thing he could do.

This isn't to say that President Washington might not approve if he were here this Fourth of July. It's just to point out that the old slogans, good as they still may be, just aren't applied the same way any more.

Mosquitoes Kept From Beauties by Crop Duster

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La. (AP)—winners in the Miss Louisiana contest last night, but the real hero of the pageant was a 19-year-old crop duster who kept mosquito welts off the beauties.

Swarms of mosquitoes were hovering over American Legion field waiting for their dinner to show up in the open-air competition. Crop duster Bob Hitt took to the air with a load of insecticide.

"He really laid down a fog," said Bob Evans of Helena, Ark., the master of ceremonies. "He flew under telephone lines and risked his life to save the girls' lovely skin."

Fatal Nike Explosion Blamed on Detonator

WASHINGTON (AP)—A ruptured detonation cap is blamed for the Nike missile explosion that killed 10 persons and injured two others at Middletown, N. J., May 22.

The Army gave that explanation yesterday and added: "The procedure which may have caused the accident has been corrected and eliminated."

3 Hawaiian Delegations to Press for Statehood

HONOLULU (AP)—Three Hawaiian delegations head for Washington tomorrow to press for statehood in this session of Congress. Quinn's party includes Samuel Wilder King, who has served both as governor and delegate, and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, former delegate and president of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

An average petroleum employee is now three times more safe on the job than he is within his own home.

America Looks Good After Month in Europe

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—I'm not much of a flag-waver but if I wave the flag a little around the Fourth of July, I hope I'll be forgiven.

The American skyscrapers with the high-speed elevators in them, and the comfortable, roomy long-nosed Detroit automobiles, look pretty good to a fellow who's been in Europe for a month. I don't mean I didn't enjoy it. I'd even like to go back to Europe again this year.

Everybody was friendly. Nobody said, "Yankee, go home." Still, you come back feeling lucky. I love the foreign cooking and I sampled a lot of it. Well, I had a little something wrong with my teeth the last two countries we were in. I came home and went to my woman dentist.

"You got trench mouth," she said. "I wasn't in any trenches!" I assured her. She laughed. "You probably got it off some fruit that wasn't washed too well. You know I come from Europe myself and I know about those things. Open wide, now, while I try to fix you up a little!"

I love those little cars and I will let you feel my backache to prove it.

The Italians have done wonders with them and they spurt around the streets of Rome like bugs. But one day when I was out at a film studio interviewing Charlton Heston, I looked at something I hadn't seen in a month and I said:

"Now there's a car!"

It belonged to somebody from Hollywood. It was a glistening, glossy new Lincoln Continental. And if Brigitte Bardot'd walked past then, she wouldn't have got any more attention from the Italians than that car did.

We don't appreciate the space we have here until we get to Europe. They were shooting that TV film of Grace Kelly in Monaco and somebody said, "I think we should move the camera about 20 feet."

"If you move it 22 feet," somebody cautioned, "you'll be over the border and in France!"

When we visited London, Paris, Brussels and Rome, we were conscious, though, that those cities have one thing that we lack in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

Well, we probably have a little of it, but we don't put it right out on the streets for everybody to oggle. I refer to vice. Which is getting more and more open all over Europe while we haven't had a Mickey Jolke scandal now for several years.

In Belgium we talked with some government people who were so hopeful that the long-talked-of "United States of Europe" would become a reality.

Let's hope it does. And since we're all quite pleased with ourselves at fireworks-shooting-off time, I feel very generous and since they are all such nice people over there, I think they deserve to be like us.

Music in the Round

by Dick Saunders

Among the pop albums selling well in the Pontiac area are "Saturday Night With Mr. C." (Victor LOP-1004), Perry Como's latest; and "Stardust" (Dot 3118) by Pat Boone.

The Boone LP is a pleasing sort of thing by a generally pleasing vocalist. Como's latest is the kind of thing there should be more of. No fancy gimmicks or huge orchestrations. Just a good singer swingin' along with a small combo.

In the classical vein, Van Cliburn's much publicized Victor is selling like mad, as expected.

The Epic label has released two goodies not to be missed. One is a Neal Hefti assortment of fine arrangements titled "Pardon My Doo-Wah" (LN-3481).

Hefti and a chorus of eight do their way through a crisp collection of old and new ditties with the assistance of several fine musicians.

The other Epic release is "On A Munday Flight" (LN-3475) on last week.

FIVE ACES: Still dripping with popularity is "Splash Splash" by Bobby Darin. A surprising second in sales around Pontiac is "Do You Want To Dance" by Bobby Freeman, which seems to have come back for a final reprieve.

Third is "Poor Little Fool" by Ricky Nelson and looks hot. In fourth spot is "Yackety Yack" by the Coasters (dropped from second A Munday Flight" (LN-3475) on last week).

THE JAZZ NEST: For a healthy splattering of blues by familiar names, Columbia has hit the spot with two new LP's. "Little Jimmy Rushing and The Big Brass" (CL-1188) offers a nice collection of blues and jazz collection of musicians.

Included on the LP are Coleman Hawkins, Buck Clayton, Jo Jones, Dickie Wells, Vic Dickenson, Milt Hinton, Jimmy Mundy, and Urbie Green, among others.

Billie Holiday, with new songs in new settings, is heard to good advantage in "Lady In Satin" (CL-1157).

Fail to Pick Up Excellent Ideas

Station in Milwaukee Makes National News in Public Service Realm

By JANET KERN
Districted by UPI

On the whole, local station shows are totally ignored by the program-hungry, studio-cramped, talent-starved networks and sponsors.

They fly from coast to coast; they invest in myriad fly-by-night schemes; they invest half-baked notions; and they spend millions in pursuit of good TV show ideas in either the entertainment or public service realm.

MISSING PLENTY
But they never think to look at local TV station offerings. And they're missing quite a lot that way.

Recently, for instance, the Washington office of CBS-TV was startled to receive a call from New York headquarters asking for information about a report that a top hard-to-sing United Nations ambassador had agreed to appear on a CBS-TV public affairs show.

CBS-Washington replied that no such deal was cooking. But it not only was cooking—it already was cooked. CBS' Milwaukee station WXIX-TV had snagged the statesman to appear on one of the least known and most unusual shows on TV.

PANEL PROBES
"Milwaukee Reports" is a public affairs show on which prominent and controversial public figures submit to question by an avowedly partisan panel of junior Bar Association members.

When a public figure goes on "Milwaukee Reports," he knows he will face interrogators who are devoutly and unanimously opposed to him and everything for which he stands.

He also knows that to appear on this show he must pay his own way and receive no fee of any sort (if he's a very big celebrity, WXIX-TV may send someone to meet his plane; otherwise he must find his way to the TV station unescorted).

The "Milwaukee Reports" guest also knows that he'll be seen and heard only by the relatively small audience within range of a strictly local Wisconsin, ultra-high-frequency TV station.

Yet, thanks to the persuasive powers and imaginative sales pitches of public affairs director Warren Bush, former President Harry Truman came to Milwaukee to appear on the show and made his famous declaration that Alger Hiss was not a spy . . . thereby breaking into national print from coast to coast via a local Milwaukee TV show.

Vice President Richard Nixon has been a guest, and Senator Estes Kefauver, and India's Krishna Menon, Arab Information Service representative Dr. Fayed Sayegh, and Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler.

"Milwaukee Reports" has been on the air, via a CBS-owned TV station, for three years and two months, attracting large audiences, quizzing big guests and often making big national headlines.

Before his quiz show career ended early last year, Van Doren piled up $129,000 in winnings on the "Twenty-One" program — a record up to that time. He subsequently was engaged as an education and public affairs consultant by the National Broadcasting Co.

He and his wife, the former Geraldine Ann Bernstein, were married April 16, 1957, at St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. She had been his secretary during quiz show days.

Ingried Plans Marriage to Swedish Producer
LONDON (AP)—Actress Ingried Bergman said today she will marry Swedish theatrical producer Lars Schmidt as soon as it is legally possible.

"After our marriage," said the Swedish-born actress, "we plan to live in France."

It will be her third marriage. An Italian court is expected to announce its decision shortly on the application by Roberto Rossellini, Miss Bergman's present husband, to have their marriage annulled.

Hal Boyle Says:

Our Independence Signed at Leisurely Pace

NEW YORK (AP)—"Is not American already independent?" demanded Samuel Adams of Massachusetts after Colonial forces had fought three battles against the British.

"Then why not declare it?" The statesmen of 1776 moved leisurely toward the framing and adoption of "the noblest document in political history."

The North Carolina Legislature voted on April 12 to join any other colonies in a "Declaration of Independence." Virginia on May 15 voted to initiate the declaration. And so on June 7 one of its delegates, Richard Henry Lee, arose in the Continental Congress and moved that:

"These united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." Virginia on May 15 voted to initiate the declaration. And so on June 7 one of its delegates, Richard Henry Lee, arose in the Continental Congress and moved that:

"These united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

Helped by the wisdom of Benjamin Franklin and John Adams, young Thomas Jefferson composed the historic document in 18 days. To him it was more than a political statement. It was a profound testament of the imperishable rights of all men.

As any young author would, Jefferson writhed at the changes Congress made in his masterpiece. It deleted his censure of the British people and his stirring denunciation of human slavery. It inserted appeals to "Providence." It tightened a few of his florid phrases.

But the document remains as Jefferson's mightiest monument.

Although Congress voted independence on July 2, it didn't adopt the Declaration until July 4, and it wasn't publicly read until several days later.

New York abstained from the voting, and Pennsylvania and Delaware cast divided votes. But by July 15th, when the Declaration was ordered engrossed, the vote had become unanimous.

It is doubtful if anyone signed the Declaration the day Congress passed it. Some men who voted for it on July 4 never did get to sign it; some signed it who were not present when it was first passed. The final signature—that of Thomas McKean of Delaware—wasn't affixed until 1781.

What sort of men were they who risked the hangman's noose to put their names to the Declaration? Not at all the immature or irresponsible firebrand types often associated with revolution.

Missing are some of the great leaders for liberty of the period, including George Washington, whose tool then was the sword rather than the pen.

Only two of the 56 signers were bachelors. Sixteen were married twice. The signers fathered 325 children—Carter Braxton of Virginia leading with 18.

Slightly more than half were Episcopalians. The rest were Congregationalists, Quakers, Baptists, Presbyterians and Catholics. Ten were the sons of preachers.

The last signer to die—and the oldest at the time of his death—was Maryland's Charles Carroll of Carrollton. He lived to be 95.

First to die after the signing was John Morton of Pennsylvania in April 1777.

Some paid a costly price, losing their lands and fortunes in the Revolution.

Some died violently. George Whyte of Virginia was poisoned by a grandnephew, impatient for his inheritance. Button Gwinnett of Georgia was killed in a duel with a political rival.

Most of the signers remained active in public life. Two later John Adams, Elbridge Gerry served as vice president under James Madison.

The document itself was nearly captured by the British in both the Revolution and the War of 1812, twice narrowly escaped being destroyed in fires.

Over the years it found refuge in 10 cities in five states before in 1921 the Library of Congress gave it a permanent home, and made it a national shrine.

Makes Appeal for New Trial

Royal Oak Man Says Conviction on Assault Charge in '49 Unjust

Another attempt is being made by Gus Pappas, 48-year-old Royal Oak man in Marquette prison for a 1949 assault, to prove he was "unjustly" convicted.

Pappas, who Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem says has made "numerous similar attempts, directed his latest one to Circuit Judge Frank L. Doty. The judge sentenced Pappas to 15 to 30 years for assault with intent to rob in January, 1950.

Pappas charges a witness, Norman Fallowfield, was "coached" by State Police Det. Anthony Spratto "into telling 100 lies" against him during the non-jury trial.

He has asked for a new trial and a writ of habeas corpus to allow him to return to Oakland County to testify.

Ziem said he would seek affidavits from several persons who

Pappas claims aided in putting Fallowfield "under extreme duress."

Judge Doty is expected to rule on the request by July 21, Ziem said.

Pappas was convicted for attacking, along with another man, a Berkeley father and his daughter in their home on April 22, 1949.

Ike Approves Bill on Water Projects

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has signed a compromise version of a bill, similar to one he has twice vetoed, to authorize future construction of a 1 1/2 billion dollars worth of water projects.

Actual funds for the projects are appropriated in separate legislation. Michigan projects, which the bill would authorize, together with the amount of authorization, include:

St. Joseph Harbor, maintenance only; old channel of Rouge River $101,500; beach erosion in Berrien County $226,000; flood control for Kalamazoo river at Kalamazoo $5,333,000; for Grand river, $9,333,000; for Saginaw river, $16,985,000.

There were 30 senators in the first Congress of the U.S.
