Guns Silent Today Along India-China Border

Need More Talks on Cuban Trouble

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.S. negotiators prepared today for a new round of talks with the Soviets in an effort to iron out remaining differences over Cuba.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said progress had been made in negotiations with the Soviet Union, but he stressed that several issues must still be threshed out and more talks are necessary.

"We hope they will proceed smoothly and that the matter can be concluded in the Security Council before long," Stevenson said in a statement to newsmen.

Informed sources said they expect negotiations to resume next week, but no date has been set.

John J. McCloy, head of President Kennedy's coordinating committee, is expected to remain in New York until the troublesome points have been resolved.

POSSIBLE VISITOR

Delegates believed that Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, who has been conferring in Havana with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, might come here next week before returning to Moscow.

Castro, with apparent prodding from Mikoyan, has agreed to let the Soviet Union pull some 30 jet bombers out of Cuba in line with its pledge to remove all offensive weapons.

But the Cuban leader still refuses to permit on-site inspection by the U.N. to make sure all the weapons have been removed. And he has threatened to shoot down U.S. reconnaissance planes flying over Cuba.

The Cuban delegation asked Acting Secretary-General U Thant to obtain release of an attache under arrest on federal charges of conspiracy to commit sabotage.

Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuga charged that the U.S. arrest of Roberto Santiesteran Casanova, 27, violated the attache's diplomatic immunity. The FBI said Santiesteran had applied for diplomatic immunity after entering the country Oct. 3, but that it had not yet been granted.

The General Assembly called on the Geneva Disarmament Committee to resume talks in a spirit of compromise and keep going until agreement is reached.

The 110-nation assembly approved 84-0 a 33-nation resolution calling for agreement on general and complete disarmament at the earliest possible date. France, who has refused to take part in the Geneva talks cast the lone abstention.

GENEROUS GIVING — When Carl Wiles, 12, and his brother Donald, 17, asked for a donation of food for a destitute family, Mrs. Henry Gamble, (right), of 33 Edna St., came through with a 16-pound turkey. The entire Wiles family joined in to make the other family's Thanksgiving more meaningful.

Dead Son's Vow Kept by a Generous Family

By REBA HEINTZELMAN

Thanksgiving today means much more to the Robert Wiles family of 27 Edna St. than sitting down to a table overflowing with a variety of mouth-watering food.

It means the satisfaction of having started a project of thankful giving of food, clothing and hope to people continually caught in the web of unfortunate circumstances.

The idea was started when the Wiles' 17-year-old son, Robert II died of cancer in Ford hospital just one year ago this month.

He was so grateful to those who had helped ease his suffering that he said, "If I ever get well, I'll spend my life helping those who have cancer."

The Wiles family has remembered that generous vow. Upon inquiry, Mrs. Wiles obtained the name of another family touched by the ravages of cancer.

The mother of this family of seven small children has had critical surgery, and is expecting her eighth child within two weeks. Her husband — just released from the hospital — is out of work.

Their home is slated for destruction under the city's urban renewal program. Wind sweeps through the old dwelling like water through a sieve.

This, then, was the Wiles' project.

The two oldest boys, Donald, 17, and Carl, 12, grabbed a couple of bushel baskets and started a personal door-to-door campaign in their neighborhood. Everyone re-

Gen. Walker Competent for Trial

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Edwin A. Walker, the controversial former Army major general, has been ruled mentally competent to stand trial on charges of seditious conspiracy and inciting an insurrection.

U.S. Dist. Judge Claude F. Clayton, who is an Army National Guard brigadier general, handed down the ruling Wednesday at the end of a two-day hearing to determine whether there was reasonable cause for a mental examination of the 53-year-old Walker.

The Texan was arrested here Oct. 1 following the desegregation rioting at the University of Mississippi which killed two persons.

Shortly before Clayton ruled in the Walker case, he ordered chief U.S. Marshal James McShane released from the Lafayette County jail. McShane had surrendered to Sheriff Joe Ford on state charges of inciting a riot and breach of peace during the rioting.

TWO INDICTED

McShane and one other person—who has not yet been identified—were indicted last week by the county grand jury after it probed the rioting which followed the arrival of Negro James H. Meredith on the university campus.

The judge said the examination made by Dr. Robert L. Stubblefield, professor at the Southwestern Medical School in Dallas, "was essentially negative. No opinion was expressed. It did not say whether he was sane or insane."

Cruisers Steaming Homeward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear bomber crews shifted to normal duty after a month on special alert. Destroyers, cruisers, carriers steamed home from the blockade. Air Force reservists prepared to become civilians again.

The United States was gradually uncoiling the buildup of its armed might which at one point in the crisis had appeared on the verge of being launched against Communist Cuba.

But in the southeastern United States, Florida in particular, there was no relaxation yet.

Thousands of Army troops, including tank forces, and hundreds of fast, rocket-armed jet fighters and powerful bombers stood ready—just in case.

Radar searched the skies in the direction of Cuba and antiaircraft missiles were poised—the Soviets still have not pulled out their IL28 jet bombers.

U.S. reconnaissance planes kept watch—the need for this surveillance underscored by the recent discovery of 25-mile range Soviet bombardment missiles the United States hadn't known were in Cuba.

However, there was a general easing of tension.

With the unwinding of the crisis the government notified civilian fliers it was lifting restrictions on flying over all but the southern tip of Florida.

RUN FOR DEAR LIFE — By the time the Thanksgiving season came to a close today, it was increasingly difficult for Leonard Weeks of 3411 Reese Road, Independence Township, to catch up with his big white gobblers. They seem to know they were doomed if caught. This year, Weeks and his family have only 500 birds left from a flock of more than 6,000 raised on the 80-acre farm.

Americans Pause, Give Thanks

By The Associated Press

Americans the world over paused today to observe their unique holiday — Thanksgiving—with prayers, feasting and family reunions.

Although the holiday's origin dates back not only to the old world but to the ancient world Biblical accounts of harvest festivals, Thanksgiving is regarded as an American custom and a symbol of a nation's way of giving thanks for the bounty of its wealth, both material and spiritual.

Today, the mood for the Thanksgiving observance is set at Hyannis Port, Mass., where President Kennedy and 27 members of his family reaching through three generations are having their tradition-tinged Thanksgiving reunion.

CRISIS RECEDES

Because the clouds of the Cuban crisis seem to be receding, there is much for the President and the nation to be thankful for on this holiday. The President said as much at a news conference Tuesday.

A passage from his 1961 Thanksgiving proclamation is strikingly pertinent to the emergency of the past two months:

"We give thanks, too, for freedom as a nation; for the strength of our arms and the faith of our friends; for the beliefs and confidence we share; for our determination to stand firmly for what we believe to be right and to resist mightily what we believe to be base."

In Miami some 600 families invited servicemen, who are in Florida as part of the Cuban crisis buildup, to their homes for dinner. Families in Key West and Fort Lauderdale followed suit.

Secretary of the Navy Fred North spent Thanksgiving Day at the Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

RE-ENACT HOLIDAY

Des Moines re-enacted the first Thanksgiving Day at Plymouth, complete with men in Pilgrim costumes carrying muskets and "Indians" to make it more realistic. The holiday service at the Plymouth Congregational Church has become so attractive that it draws attendance from throughout Iowa.

In the state of Virginia, Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr., has ignored the long-accepted Plymouth Rock version of Thanksgiving and said the day would serve as a memorial to the Virginians "who gathered at Berkeley near Richmond in 1619 to observe America's first Thanksgiving ceremony."

Expect Soviet Test Ban Push

Red War Readiness Eases as Cuba Calms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union, searching for "silver linings" in cold war clouds, was expected today to step up its campaign for a nuclear test ban now that the Cuban tension has eased.

The Soviets greeted the ending of the Cuban blockade yesterday by calling off military preparedness measures in force since the height of the crisis, including "combat readiness" for rocket units.

The government newspaper Izvestia indicated yesterday that the world's attention now can be turned to other international issues.

"The sooner the Caribbean crisis will stop overshadowing the world's political climax, the sooner silver linings will appear in other international disputes," it said.

This week, Izvestia called for a moratorium on testing by East and West, possibly as long as five years.

But in none of their proposals have the Russians accepted the western conditions that some on-site inspection must be permitted if a test ban is to be policed without fear of sneak explosions.

The Sino-Indian dispute and the continuing ideological conflict between Moscow and Peking were expected to occupy more Soviet attention now that the Cuban tension has waned.

The latest criticism of Peking was a comment by Presidium member Otto Kuusinen, who heads the Soviet delegation to the Hungarian Communist Party congress in Budapest.

Kuusinen, in remarks published here, attacked "loud-mouthed" critics in Albania for opposing Soviet-Cuban policy while "being unable to help Cuba by any means whatsoever."

In attacking tiny Albania, the Russians usually mean China.

Downtown, Miracle Mile, Tel-Huron, Mall

Old Santa's Coming to Town

If you think Dec. 25 is a busy day for Santa Claus, get a load of his schedule for tomorrow.

Jolly old St. Nick is due to arrive at four different locations by helicopter, airplane, train and on foot within five hours Friday.

The scene is already being set with lavish decorations in downtown Pontiac, and at Miracle Mile, Tel-Huron and Pontiac Mall shopping centers.

Santa will put in his initial appearance of the season at 9:30 a.m., arriving by special train at the Grand Trunk Western Railroad Depot on W. Huron Street.

He'll be greeted by merchants and driven downtown in a special car, where he'll hand out candy canes to children along Saginaw Street.

Downtown streets have been decked out with from $2,500 to $3,000 worth of decorations that will remain up through Jan. 1, sponsored by the Downtown Pontiac Business Assn. (DPBA).

SPRUCE ALL ABLAZE

A giant 35-foot blue spruce, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Louis DeYonge of 3300 Fox Blvd., Commerce Township, will blaze forth with some 1,100 lights at Saginaw and Oakland.

The annual tree lighting ceremony will take place at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Marcella Williams, a clerk at George's Department Store, 74 N. Saginaw, has been selected Miss Downtown Pontiac Christmas Clerk for 1962 by the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce.

She will throw the switch to light the tree, aided by Mayor Robert Landry.

As an extra Christmas gift to the public, the city and DPBA are cooperating to offer free parking all day in all municipal parking lots during December.

City employes are putting up the decorations and the Pontiac Area Junior Chamber of Commerce is planning to cover windows of all vacant stores with decor, as well as sponsoring a window display contest for merchants.

But Cease Fire May Be Only Temporary Lull

Nehru Tells His Army to Withhold Fire While Terms Are Studied

NEW DELHI (AP) — Shooting has stopped along the Himalayan frontier but informed sources said today India is not planning to accept Red China's terms for settlement of the month-old border war.

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian army has been ordered to withhold its fire against Red Chinese troops who are observing a self-imposed cease fire in the Himalayan war, informed sources said today.

Prime Minister Nehru earlier told parliament: "So far as we know there has been an effective cease fire."

But the Indian government has not formally reacted to Peking's declaration of a cease fire to be followed by a Chinese withdrawal from their conquests in one month of border fighting.

India appeared to be buying time by using the lull offered by the Chinese to rebuild its defeated army units in north east India.

A defense ministry spokesman refused at this daily briefing to clarify the cease-fire situation.

MAYBE . . . YES

He would not deny that Indian troops might have fired since the Chinese cease fire deadline Wednesday. But he said there has not necessarily been any firing.

Informed sources said the orders were for Indian soldiers to fire only when fired upon. The defense ministry spokesman said orders were a military secret and refused to disclose them.

In parliament earlier Nehru reported the Chinese had silenced their guns but he did not say that Indian troops also had been ordered to hold their fire.

Peking had set the cease fire in the Himalayan war at midnight Wednesday (11 a. m. Eastern Standard Time Wednesday).

An editorial in the People's Daily, broadcast from Peking said that as of today "The Chinese frontier guards cease fire on Chinese initiative along the entire Sino-Indian border."

But the paper warned: "The cessation of the border conflict depends on the Indian side rather than the Chinese side, and now it depends particularly on whether or not the Indian government responds positively."

Nehru was studying Peking's terms of the cease fire and a proposed troop pullback, but gave no hint of what course India would take.

Feeling ran strong in India, however, against what many said would be a compromise. The Hindustan Times called Peking's offer an ultimatum, rather than a peace offer.

Nehru has vowed that the Chinese must be driven from Indian soil.

Let's Be Thankful for Nice Weather

Thanksgiving Day festivities will end tonight under fair skies with colder temperatures, says the weatherman. A low of 26 to 34 is predicted for this evening.

Slightly warmer and partly cloudy is the forecast for the next two days. Friday's high will range from 36 to 44.

Winds today are from the northwest at 15 to 25 miles per hour.

Thirty-four was the lowest temperature reading preceding 7 a. m. today. At 10 a. m. the mercury measured 34.

AF to Release 14,000 Reserves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 14,000 Air Force reservists called up during the Cuban crisis will be released within the next week, it was announced yesterday.

With the Cuban tension greatly eased by the halt to the U. S. arms blockade and Russia's pledge to pull jet bombers out of Cuba, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara also cleared the way for about 21,000 other sailors and marines to be discharged before Christmas.

McNamara authorized the Navy to cancel extension of duty tours for about 15,000 Navy men and 2,000 Marines and to allow the Navy to reinstate an order permitting early release of men whose enlistments expire during the Christmas season.

The Air Force reservists presumably will be able to have Thanksgiving dinner at home since they never left their home stations.

* * *

A Defense Department announcement said "every effort" would be made to expedite the release of men called up or held over "and to return them to their homes as soon as possible."

Navy Secretary Fred Korth said 4,000 men whose enlistments are up between Dec. 15 and Jan. 3 would be released by Dec. 19.

About 6,000 other Army and Air Force personnel also will get discharges in advance of Christmas in cases where the expiration of their enlistments fall close to Christmas. Unlike the Navy — which used 25,000 men in the Cuban blockade — the Army and Air Force did not cancel original orders for early release of their men.

The Air Force reservists were called up Oct. 28.

* * *

A total of 14,214 Air Force reservists were in eight troop carrier wing headquarters, 24 troop carrier squadrons and six aerial port squadrons ordered to active duty on Oct. 28.

The troop carrier squadrons have remained at their home stations on active duty.

Jan. 1 Verdict in College Case

Arguments Completed on Admitting Negro

ANDERSON, S.C. (UPI) — A Federal judge indicated yesterday he expects to decide by the first of the year whether to order th admission of a Negro to all-white Clemson college.

Oral arguments on a suit by Harvey Gantt, charging the state-supported institution with discrimination, were completed yesterday and Judge C. C. Wyche asked for additional briefs in the case. He said he planned to make a ruling around Jan. 1.

The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals has ordered a decision in time for Gantt to enroll for the spring semester, if the ruling is in his favor. Gantt, 19, of Charleston, applied earlier this year for transfer to Clemson from Iowa State University. His application was rejected.

South Carolina is the only southern state which never has admitted a Negro to an all-white public school. Alabama's school system also is segregated but a Negro girl, Autherine Lucy, several years ago attended the University of Alabama forthree days before being expelled.

The main issue in the case, according to Wyche, is whether Gantt's application was treated differently from applications from white students. The college maintained throughout the three-day hearing that the Negro received standard treatment, but two school officials said yesterday some deviations from normal procedures were made.

W. R. Mattox, admissions supervisor, said Gantt's application was kept in the college vault. He said the only other application in the vault was that of another Negro who applied for admission about the same time Gantt did.

HEADED FOR DOMINICAN — Peace Corp. volunteer Jon L. Fruytier is packing clothes today in preparation for his 21-month stay in the Dominican Republic. Tuesday he will leave his home at 3157 Waukegan St., Auburn Heights, and meet 24 other volunteers at New York's Idlewild Airport.

Peace Corps No Vacation,

Youth Off to Caribbean

By ROGER SRIGLEY

Jon L. Fruytier may relish his Thanksgiving dinner today more than many of us — because he knows next year he'll probably be eating rice and beans.

The 21-year-old Auburn Heights resident, alonig with 24 other Peace Corp volunteers from 16 states, will leave Tuesday for a 21-month stay in the Dominican Republic.

He'll arrive in Santo Domingo, capitol of the Republic, the same day he leaves his house at 3157 Waukegan St.

After a one-week stay there getting acquainted with the government and its workings, Jon and a Peace Corps "partner" will be assigned to an inland village.

He's not sure which area he will be sent to, but Jon is certain he'll be able to practice skills he acquired in the Peace Corps' rural community action training.

"We'll have the task of assisting the village people in everything from well drilling to chicken raising," Jon said, while packing his suitcase.

"I think the food and water situation will be the most difficult thing to get used to. You even have to boil the water before washing your clothes."

HE'LL DO ALL RIGHT

Jon carries his 175 pounds well on a six-foot frame. He looks as though he will have little trouble becoming accustomed to the Republic's main diet of rice, beans and fried bananas.

In addition to completing three years of college, Jon was prepared for his task by a month of vigorous physical conditioning and two months of schooling at the University of Puerto Rico, under sponsorship of the Peace Corps.

He pointed out that the volunteers must get acquainted with the natives "at a pace set by themselves. At first we'll meet a lot of people, shake a lot of hands and drink a lot of strong coffee," he said.

"We've been advised to work through the young people," Jon added.

The Peace Corps volunteer said that basically citizens of the Caribbean island want the same things that we in the United States seek.

"They want the best for their children too," Jon said, "and they're now beginning to realize that rice, beans and poor living conditions aren't the only things available."

2nd Hurt in Red Attack

GI Killed in Korea

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—North Korea Communist troops killed a U.S. soldier and wounded another in a hand grenade attack on a United Nations observation post Tuesday night, it was announced today.

The attack took place in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

The Korean soldiers threw five hand grenades at the post, the United Nations Command (UNC) announced. Three exploded outside the post, one failed to explode, and one went off inside the post, killing one man and wounding the other on the feet.

The Americans were not identified pending notifications of relatives.

* * *

U.N. officials showed fragments of Russian-made hand grenades at a news conference announcing the attack.

"This sneak attack was unprovoked, executed without warning, and performed under cover of darkness by North Korean People's Army personnel," a UNC spokesman said.

Both soldiers were members of the 1st Cavalry Division, one of the U.S. Army units serving in the United Nations force here.

The spokesman said the post, about seven miles southeast of the truce city of Panmunjom, was only about 350 yards south of the central demarcation line in the demilitarized zone.

The dead soldier was the first American killed in an observation post since the end of the Korean War in 1953.

The spokesman said a "vigorous protest will be made to the North Koreans concerning the incident." He said several other Americans were in the area during the attack, but by the time they reached the post, the Koreans had vanished.

He said "certainly more than two" Koreans were involved in the attack. The last such raid was staged in August against a post manned by South Korean soldiers. One was killed and four wounded.

The human relations workshop session will be held at 8 p.m. at Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church, 5631 N. Adams Road.

Birmingham Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley, concerned over his city's 20 per cent increase in traffic injuries this year, has warned residents to "exercise the greatest caution in this most hazardous period of the year."

"More than 300 persons will be injured in Birmingham because of careless behavior on the part of drivers and pedestrians," said Moxley.

"Traffic accidents always increase during the late fall and winter months because longer nights, encroaching twilight hours and treacherous weather conditions all add up to sharply reduced visibility.

"Accidents increase for the simple reason that drivers and pedestrains cannot see one another as well as during periods of bright daylight.

* * *

Moxley urged motorists and pedestrains to drive and walk safely "so we can enjoy the holidays."

In his monthly report, the police chief noted that there were 64 traffic accidents in October, four less than the same month last year.

However, there were 28 persons injured in last month's accidents and only 19 hurt in mishaps during October 1961. There also were two more persons hurt this October than in the previous month.

Santa is slated to sneak into Pontiac Mall quietly and without fanfare around 10 a.m.

Merchants at the Mall have spent some $7,500 on his home — Christmas Fantasy Land. A giant dome has been constructed over half of the Mall's main pool and fountain.

Surrounded with gay decorations and trees, the dome is covered with a plastic-type material to make it resemble a gigantic igloo with ramps running up to Santa's throne from either side.

Small silver reindeer also dominate the scene.

At 12:30 p.m., Santa will drop in at Miracle Mile in a helicopter. He'll go to his workshop, housed in Santa's Castle in the bazaar area.

The castle can comfortably hold 100 youngsters.

8,000 LIGHTS

Some 8,000 Christmas lights and decorations will be turned on for the first time tonight at Miracle Mile.

On Dec. 1, merchants will unveil a life-size Nativity scene in which everything is authentically detailed.

Specially made up mannequins and live sheep will be featured in the extravagant display. Santa's Christmas Tree Land with some 200 trees will open at the south end of the shopping center on Dec. 7.

Santa again will take to the air to arrive aboard a sleek Aero Commander airplane at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

He'll be greeted by some 60 youngsters and their parents from Tel-Huron Shopping Center. The kids will be taken to the airport from Tel-Huron by bus and Santa will ride back with them.

Handing out free candy canes and balloons Santa will find some $1,500 in new lights and decor adding a festive touch at Tel-Huron this year.

Learn to Be More Thankful

(In keeping with our policy of running guest editorials from time to time; our Thanksgiving Day message has been written by Rev. Galen E. Hershey, pastor, First Presbyterian Church.)

By nature, man is neither thankful nor unthankful. His attitudes are acquired. For all of us, giving thanks, like any art or skill, must be learned.

This Thanksgiving our reasons for gratitude are abundant and obvious. The right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" has not been denied us. Freedom of worship and freedom of speech remain in our land.

Science and industry continue to increase our comfort. Our leisure time lengthens; and we have ready access to entertainment, education and culture.

REV. HERSHEY

The world, though tense and troubled, is still intact. The hope for peace is present. These are but a few of our blessings.

But are we thankful? No number of blessings assures us that we as a nation or persons are adequately grateful to God. Selfishness, greed and envy easily dominate the motives of men. All of us have need to pray, "Make us truly thankful, O Lord."

Unless we have learned that gratitude brings strength and peace to our lives, our spirits can be impoverished by either too much or too little.

To have been ill, poor, lonely, or defeated ought to make us aware of our need for humble gratitude at all times. On the other hand, hardships can harden and embitter. Often persons who have had harsh deprivations fail to become grateful or merciful when abundance and success again crown their days.

In learning to give thanks, our best teachers are the grateful people, who in poverty or plenty, sickness or health, success or failure, give thanks to God always. Out of an awesome awareness of the goodness and mercy of God they have become genuinely grateful.

The happiness and contentment of grateful people spreads to us, teaching us that "It is good to give thanks to the Lord, to sing praises to Thy name, O Most High." Psalm 92:1.

Here's a Cheerful Note for Downtown Shoppers

Heartening news for area Christmas shoppers is the story concerning the vacated Oakland County courthouse property.

★ ★ ★

The Downtown Pontiac Business Association has just closed a deal to lease this property from the County for a six-month period. The site has already been cleared and, according to Max Adams, Chamber of Commerce manager, should be open to the public in a very few days.

The plan calls for a rush job of resurfacing which will make this downtown parking lot one of the most advantageous in the City.

The County and the downtown merchants group are to be congratulated on their fast action in providing this useful facility for Christmas shoppers.

Soviets' Human Nature Remains Unchanged

The mass walkout of Russian construction workers at an industrial site in Siberia is the latest indication that things are not as they once were in the U.S.S.R. when Stalin ruled supreme.

On the other hand, this overt demonstration of dissatisfaction with living conditions shows that some things have not changed, even after 45 years of communism. Human nature, for instance.

Consider the remark of the official in charge of state investment in the area. Citing the problem of constant labor turnover, he said:

"If you cannot interest a person from a material point of view, you are not going to keep him on the job."

The discovery of this elementary truth apparently comes as a profound shock to the Marxists. It goes contrary to the book. A new type of selfless, dedicated Soviet man was supposed to be in the making, free of distortions caused by "capitalistic exploitation."

Russians, however, seem to behave much like anybody else once state direction of their lives is relaxed ever so slightly. They want the good life today, not in some promised Utopia to come.

The Man About Town

Hunters Warned

Increased Land "Posting" Seen Result of Abuse

By HOWARD HELDENBRAND

Comes a timely and fair-minded letter from Mrs. Leslie Raymond of Lake Orion, dealing with the unfriendly attitude, evidenced by "posting," that owners of hunting lands hold against hunters because of the abuses of the relatively few.

She says that this minority is guilty of destruction, responsible for fires and in other ways inflicts damage.

A case is cited of a farm near Ortonville, on which hunting was permitted, where hunters left a gate open and a valuable cow, thereby admitted to a field of green corn, died as a result of gorging—despite the costly efforts of a veterinarian to save it.

So now that farm is posted!

My correspondent voices the moral that many are suffering for the sins of the few. That, however, will not appease owners of violated land; and continued disregard by hunters of their obligations while enjoying the privileges of others' lands can only eventually deprive them of all access to individually-owned hunting grounds.

A column salute to Fred Thayer of Walled Lake, a member of the Enggass Jewelry Co. staff, who just celebrated his 50th anniversary in the jewelry business.

Identified with the company for the past five years, the 77-year-old veteran hasn't missed a day in the two years he has been with the local store.

Congratulations on this fine record, and all best wishes for a long continuance of it.

Well, it has got to be said sooner or later, so it might as well come from the MAT. . . . In this rhubarb between the Post Office Department and the stamp collectors over the imperfect Dag Hammarskjold stamps, who is going to get stuck with 'em?

Stephen Garrard of Highland, postcards agreement with our recent editorial pointing out the need to edit Voice of the People letters to insure clarity, in some instances, and more numerous publication . . . says that, as a frequent contributor, he has always had fair, objective treatment and realizes that the essence of newspapering, as with astronauts, is space!

The man plunked himself down in the barber's chair and asked for a shave. After the first few strokes, he asked the barber if he had another razor.

"Yes, I do," answered the barber. "Why?"

Replied the customer, "I'd like to defend myself."

Washington's Thanksgiving Proclamation

"Whereas it is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey His will, to be grateful for His benefits, and humbly to implore His protection and favor . . . Now, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be; that we may then all unite in rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks for His kind care and protection of the people of this country . . . and, in general, for all the great and various favors which He has been pleased to confer upon us. . . ."

The true spirit and significance of Thanksgiving Day is expressed in the nation's first Thanksgiving Day proclamation, made by George Washington in 1789 and excerpted, above. It is food for thought, to be digested before enjoying the pleasures of the table, the gridiron and the parades in our observance of Thanksgiving, of which the spirit is essentially religious.

JFK Parries Questions

Rusk Hints at Forthcoming News

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Dean Rusk — not President Kennedy or Premier Khrushchev — has suddenly injected a startling and mystifying note in international relations.

When Kennedy announced at his news conference Tuesday night that Khrushchev had promised to remove his jet bombers from Cuba, this was good news but it had been expected for a couple of days. It cleared the air a bit but not completely.

Kennedy has wanted inspection by the United Nations inside Cuba to be sure all Russian offensive weapons are removed. So far he has not obtained agreement on this from Fidel Castro.

He said that until there are international arrangements for inspection in Cuba "difficult problems remain" and this country will have to "pursue its own means of checking military activities in Cuba."

★ ★ ★

So the Cuban problem is not at all settled. But just a few hours before Kennedy addressed the newsmen, Rusk was talking to the Foreign Policy Association in New York.

AFFECT PEACE

"I suspect that we are on the edge of perhaps unprecedented events that could affect the peace of the whole world," Rusk said.

He could hardly mean in this sensational statement what Kennedy was to disclose a few hours later — Khrushchev's promise to take his bombers home — since this had been expected and was just one more step in his Cuban backdown.

Kennedy didn't mention at all in his news conference this extraordinary comment by Rusk who is not given to making flamboyant or startling statements. On the contrary, Rusk always operates quietly.

Rusk hinted in his New York talk that developments in various diplomatic areas were soon to be expected, saying: "consultations are in progress as we meet here now which may very much affect" Kennedy's thinking.

But Kennedy was to say at his news conference that his letter exchange with Khrushchev and negotiations between Americans and Russians at the United Nations were limited to Cuba and took in no other issues.

IT'S A MYSTERY

Rusk, whatever it was he had in mind, left it a mystery. In reviewing the Kennedy-Khrushchev exchange on Cuba, he said hope was expressed that "other agreed measures might follow to lessen the tensions of the world."

★ ★ ★

Relations between the Russians and Red Chinese seem to have been deteriorating for years. The Chinese, reversing the "soft-on-Communism" slogan of American right-wingers, have in effect accused Russia of being soft on capitalism.

The relationship hit a new low when Khrushchev backed up on Cuba and the Chinese, without actually accusing the Russians by name, denounced Khrushchev's withdrawal in the face of Kennedy's firm stand on Cuba.

The role of communism took on a doubly tawdry look when, while Khrushchev was yielding in the face of American power, the Red Chinese invaded helpless India. The Communist world began to look split and upside down.

The Chinese, who had tried to influence the neutral nations by screaming against Western aggression and imperialism, became both an aggressor and an imperialist.

And Russia, which had preached peaceful coexistence, was caught red-handed in Cuba trying to sneak in missiles with which to try to intimidate the United States.

But this didn't quite explain why Kennedy twice said on Tuesday "this is a very climactic period." He first used it when asked to give an estimate on relations between Russia and Red China.

At the end of the conference that strange statement by Rusk was still unexplained. If it seemed to hint some further far-reaching announcement soon—such as Kennedy-Khrushchev agreements that went far beyond a Cuban settlement — the President himself seemed to rule that out by saying all negotiations with the Russians for weeks had been limited to Cuba.

Bob Considine Says:

Americans Have Plenty to Be Thankful About

NEW YORK — Looking around for some things to be thankful for?

Well, let's start with life. You're living in the most challenging, arresting, interesting age in the history or man. The historian of a thousand years hence will say of us who are alive today that we were lucky witnesses of the birth of not only the atomic but the space age.

CONSIDINE

He will say that we in America were fortunate enough to have been born in (or reached) a land that did more for the rights of man than any land ever had.

★ ★ ★

You can be thankful for medical miracles which, had they been in existence a generation ago, would have prolonged the lives of your deceased parents, brothers, sisters, children.

The life expectancy in America when George Washington was still living was 30. Today it is 70.

You can give a sigh of thanks today for the existence of a free press, freedom of assembly, freedom to say anything you wish, to vote for any person on the ballot (or none of them), go to the church of your choice (or no church at all).

You live in a land that provides fine schools for you and your children. No one knocks on your door with a pistol butt in the dead of night.

You can buy a newspaper for a nickel and the events of the entire world are spread before you — all the way from what's going on in the upper Assam Valley to how to baste a turkey.

We have the best cars, planes, the best clothes, the best furniture, the best houses and apartments, the best water, best steaks, streets, sewers, highways, accidents.

We make more money than any nation in history, and give more away in a year than all the nations gave away, combined, through the past thousand years.

And we seem to be the only thankful nation on earth which ever gets around to setting aside a day in which to express gratitude to the dear Lord, who, for reasons best known to Himself, bestowed upon us all these bountiful blessings.

New Political Trends Take Form

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Preliminary totals on the 1962 election vote count reveal a few new political trends which may have some effect on the campaigns for 1964 and beyond. These estimates are based on unofficial figures which may be revised slightly when all the returns are in and fully tabulated.

The total vote for the 50 states will be close to 51.5 million, maybe a little over. This would be a 6.5 million increase over 1958. But the increases didn't come where they were expected.

EDSON

Nearly complete returns indicate a total Democratic vote of 27.5 million. This is 2.5 million more than the 1958 total, but only a million more than was expected.

The Republican vote increased nearly four million, however, from a nearly static 20 million average for the mid-term elections of 1950, 1954 and 1958 to nearly 24 million.

Part of the Democratic shortfall is accounted for in states like Virginia and Mississippi which did not elect a U.S. senator or governor this year, and in nearly half of the southern states' congressional districts where there were no GOP candidates. There was no incentive for Democrats to get out and vote.

On the other hand, over half of the Republican gain is accounted for in the southern states where there was some change-over of former Democratic voters to Republican candidates.

This resulted in the election of four more Republican congressmen from the southern states, but the GOP did not make corresponding gains in the North or West.

In the governorship races the Democrats made gains in New England, electing their candidates easily in Connecticut and Vermont but with extremely close races in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. In the great plains strongholds, Democrats elected governors in Iowa, Nebraska, Montana and North Dakota.

In the Southwest, however, Republicans made equally striking gains, electing Henry Bellmon as Oklahoma's first GOP governor. And in Texas, where the Democrats used to get 70 to 80 per cent of the vote, Democratic Governor-elect John B. Connally had to be content with only 54 per cent of the vote.

Political analysts see in these developments the beginning of a trend towards a real two-party South. But it is by no means fully developed.

In the North and West and the industrial Midwest, Democrats continued to make gains with considerable support from organized labor. Of 32 Senate candidates endorsed by all union candidates for the House endorsed by all union political action groups, 23 won for a 72 per cent record. Of 367 candidates for the House endorsed by all union political action groups, 215 won for a 67 per cent record.

Believers in political cycles in the United States base their case on a finding that in this century the shifts of power from one major party to the other average 10 to 12 years.

McKinley through Taft, 16 Republican years.

Woodrow Wilson, 8 Democratic years.

Harding through Hoover, 12 Republican years.

Roosevelt through Truman, 20 Democratic years.

Eisenhower, 8 Republican years.

Kennedy, at least four Democratic years assured.

★ ★ ★

This adds up to 36 Republican years and 32 Democratic years of White House control up to the end of Kennedy's present term. With six "eras" in the 68 years, the average is a little over 11 years. If Kennedy is elected president for a second term, the average will be 12 years even at its end. The question is: how long will the present Democratic cycle begun by Kennedy last?

At a minimum, the Republicans might be expected to continue gaining strength in 1964 and 1968. They might even hope to win the presidency in 1968 and begin another Republican era. For 1972 and beyond, their chances might be even better.

The only fly in this political ointment for the GOP is that during this century the Republican percentage of control in Congress has been declining gradually but steadily, while Democratic percentages have been rising for longer periods.

The great challenge for the GOP is to find ways to elect more Republican congressmen in the years ahead.

Voice of the People:

'We Must Decide—Soon— What to Do With Castro'

We Americans must be calm about a few medium range Red bombers in Cuba. We have enough concentrated fire power near their bases to destroy them completely.

Our chief concern should be reports that missiles are buried and ready.

I was elated to think we were going to put a quick end to that bearded fanatic, but we have lapsed into continued delay. If we don't decide soon, we'll have no new frontier to cross.

★ ★ ★

Americans are thinking people. We have a right to know as we will be the backbone of any decisions made in Washington. Russia will not risk a nuclear war over Cuba. Cuban supply lines are Soviet folly. Also, the Kremlin has internal problems. The split with Red China is a major concern and they cannot support a space program, maintain Cuba and feed their own people.

Recent uprisings in Russia would support this. Now is the moment to stop Fidel Castro.

I was the patient. I think of her often and of all the adjustments she must have had to make, plus the patience it certainly took.

'Dems' Philosophy Leads to Failure'

Now that it's all over, the most disgraceful aspect of the whole political campaign was Ted (Junior) Kennedy's promise to the Massachusetts voters that the Kennedy beachhead in Washington could get more for them than his Republican opponent could. This is the kind of philosophy that started with Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and is leading our country into bankruptcy and dissolution, even as the fallen Roman Empire.

JFK Can't Get Around to All Questions

Many Reporters Called, but Few Chosen

By HARRY FERGUSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At a presidential news conference many are called but few are chosen.

President Kennedy held his first meeting with the press since Sept. 13 Tuesday night and 381 reporters attended, all of them loaded with questions.

An average of nine persons leaped to their feet shouting "Mr. President" every time a question was indicated. Kennedy's arm shot out pointing to one and eight sat down disappointed.

If the presidential finger had pointed two feet to the left or right you would have heard on your television and read in your newspaper some interesting questions and answers that are now lost.

Maybe more interesting than some you did hear or read. Here is a sample of questions prepared by reporters who never got the presidential nod:

★ ★ ★

What is your reaction to the recent events in Oxford, Miss., and do you consider the problem there solved?

Has Red China's aggression against India been a factor in our recent talks with the Russians?

Will you comment on the election of your brother to the United States Senate?

Are the Russians using the Telstar for experiments of their own?

There is no sure-fire way a reporter can plan to get his question answered. There is considerable advantage for those sitting in the middle section of the three sections of seats covered with orange leather.

The old-timers know that and arrive early to fill up the center section. Last night the presidential finger gave the go-ahead to only one man not sitting in the middle section.

There are unwritten rules governing the conduct of Kennedy's press conference. One of them is that the conference shall last approximately 30 minutes.

Last night six minutes were consumed by the President in reading his statement on Cuba. The tall man wearing glasses who asked the first question was Stewart Hensley, chief of the UPI State Department staff, substituting for White House correspondent Merriman Smith who is on vacation.

That, too, is by prearrangement under which a press association man opens the questioning. Hensley's "Thank you, Mr. President" also signaled the end of the conference.

Kennedy, of course, has no way of knowing what is in a man's mind when he points to him in recognition. The result often is that two or three reporters will ask a question bearing on the same subject. That happened Wednesday night when Edward Folliard of the Washington Post, Raymond Brandt of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Clark Mollenhoff of the Cowles publication all were recognized and all asked about some facet of the government's program of so-called "managed news."

Old-timers here rate Kennedy as the president who is the fastest thinker at a press conference since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When he nods his head sharply in the middle of a question, as he often does, it seems to mean that he knows exactly what is coming and already has framed his answer.

Last night he fielded a long, stem-winding question and got a laugh by saying: "You will have to give me a much more detailed hypothetical question."

He lightened the back and forth on the government's information policy by telling this story: U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson sent a message to U. N. Acting Secretary Thant. The first thing Secretary of State Dean Rusk knew about it was when the press associations carried it.

"This," said Kennedy, playing for a laugh and getting it, "caused Ambassador Stevenson some pain."

Plan Hearings on Sugar Beet Prices, Wages

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has arranged a series of public hearings on wage rates and prices for the 1963 crop of sugar beets.

The hearings will be held in cities within major producing regions of the sugar beet area. The schedule of meetings includes:

Denver—Dec. 7 in the Cosmopolitan Hotel, 9:30 a.m.

Fargo, N.D.—Dec. 10 in the library building of North Dakota State University, 10 a.m.

Detroit — Dec. 12 in the Pick-Fort Shelby Hotel, 9:30 a.m.

One condition which producers must meet to qualify for payments under the sugar act is to pay wage rates not less than those determined to be fair and reasonable by the secretary of agriculture.

Detroit Port Hearing Set

DETROIT (AP) — A special committee of the State Legislature will conduct a public hearing in Detroit Tuesday on possible port development projects there. The committee is headed by Rep. Gail Hardy, R-Eau Claire.

Jurors Await Court Charge

Retire for Verdict in Condemnation Case

Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer will deliver his charge to the jury in the Pontiac urban renewal condemnation hearings Dec. 4.

Arguments by opposing attorneys were completed Tuesday in what has already become the longest judicial proceeding of any type in the history of Oakland County. The hearings began in May.

The jury will decide on the City of Pontiac's condemnation actions against some 250 persons with interest in 73 parcels of land.

At issue first is the necessity of the condemnations of the disputed land for the city's urban renewal project, and then necessity in each individual case.

Jurors also will decide the prices the city must pay for each parcel if they decide in favor of the city on necessity.

Attorney Milton Cooney, who represents several of the property owners, contended that it is illegal for a government to condemn private property for resale to private individuals.

There have been indications that a verdict in favor of the city on necessity may be appealed by property owners to the State Supreme Court.

Pontiac's first urban renewal project has been held in abeyance for several months while awaiting the outcome of the hearings.

Thirteen women and one man comprised the jury that heard the pleadings, but the decisions will be made by only twelve of them. Two will be chosen by lot for dismissal before the jury retires for deliberation.

Harriman Facing Big Job in India

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Time will tell whether the job W. Averell Harriman started yesterday will become as legendary as two very similar ones he undertook 21 years ago.

Harriman heads a high level team of U.S. officials flying to India to assess the military needs of that country in its undeclared war with China.

It was on March 6, 1941 that President Roosevelt appointed Harriman as his special representative in Great Britain. It was Harriman's job to facilitate the lend lease and other aid that was flowing into embattled England.

Later that year, on Aug. 29, Roosevelt directed Harriman to take on the same task in Russia.

The two-fold operation became known as the Harriman Mission.

Harriman is not likely to remain in India as he did for the duration of World War II in Europe. He is now assistant secretary of state Far Eastern affairs.

'Fiction' Tells of Stalin's Prisons

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet magazine has published the first detailed account of the punishment, starvation, and death that hundreds of thousands of Soviet citizens suffered in Stalin's prison camps.

The literary journal "New World" printed a short story by A. Solzhenitsyn, an unknown author, called "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich."

It made it clear that the fiction was well founded on fact. The only previous account of Stalin-era prison camp life was a recent vignette in the government newspaper Izvestia.

Although nearly every Russian has a relative or friend who spent many years in these camps, the Soviet press had not mentioned them previously.

The publication of the two stories was seen as a further step in Premier Nikita Khrushchev's program of easing Stalinism from Soviet life.

WAS EXPERIENCED

It was clear Solzhenitsyn had experienced prison life. Poet Alexander T. Tvardovsky said in an introduction to his story that "it is fiction, but one must have passed through it to describe it the way the author does."

The "Ivan" of the story was serving a 10-year sentence. He had to get up every day at 5 a.m. begin work at 8 a.m. and work until 6 p.m., even in temperatures as low as 40 degrees below zero. Food was scarce.

"All their thoughts were directed to the fact that they had to have more to eat," the story said. "He (Ivan) saved bread crusts.

"If somebody left something on plate, tens of people would grab it. In the evening, the soup was much thinner than in the morning, when it was necessary to feed the prisoner so he could work. In the evening he would go to sleep without it."

DOGS ON WATCH

Armed guards accompanied by police dogs always watched the work brigades, and prisoners were forced to hold their arms behind them.

"If they step to the right or left, the guard fires without warning," it added. "Generally, if anybody escapes, that is the end of life for the guards. They have neither sleep nor food and sometimes they are so angry they won't bring back the escapee alive."

Prisoners were punished by being forced to undress in severe cold, made to sit in the snow for long periods, or placed in cells.

"The walls of the punishment room are made of stone," the story said.

"The floor is made of cement. There are no windows and the stove is on only so that the ice on the walls might thaw and turn into a pool on the floor. One has to sleep on boards covered by nothing."

The only food was 300 grams (about 10 ounces) of bread and thin soup "on the third, sixth, and ninth days."

"Ten days of punishment meant he was deprived of his health for the rest of his life," it said. "He got tuberculosis and never left the hospitals. And those who went through 15 days are already in the ground."

Cut Spending to Cut '63 Taxes—Proxmire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., urged the administration yesterday to cut spending in the 1963 budget if taxes are to be cut.

"For Congress even to consider the tax cut which business, labor, and top administration officials have been pushing so hard in recent days will be grossly irresponsible unless federal spending requests in the coming year are sharply cut back," Proxmire said in a statement.

He recalled his own "economy fight" during the 1962 session. The $7.8-billion deficit recently announced by the Treasury Department is, he said, "shocking evidence of the importance of carrying on the fight in 1963 more intensively than ever."

Ionia Free Fair Receipts $200,000 in a Week

IONIA (AP) — For the first time in its more than 40-year history, the Ionia Free Fair has reported receipts of more than $200,000 for a week-long run.

Secretary-Manager Allan Williams told the fair board of directors that the 1962 operation grossed $218,000 with net earnings of $6,334. The previous high gross was $197,000 in 1957.

709 Listed for Release to County

During the first four months of a county referral program, under which elderly mental patients are being moved out of state hospitals, 709 have been approved for release by the Michigan Department of Mental Health.

These patients have been referred to county bureaus of social aid for placement, the department announced. Of this number, 178 are now residing in community facilities.

Pontiac State Hospital made 227 referrals up to Nov. 1.

★ ★ ★

Placements by county bureaus picked up sharply during October when homes were found for 85 patients, according to the current report of the Department of Mental Health.

This is almost double the total number of placements under this program during the first three months of the fiscal year.

"The progress being made by our hospitals in preparing patients for placement is gratifying," said Charles F. Wagg, mental health director.

"During the next few months we expect referrals to exceed 1,000, and indications are that county bureaus of social aid will be able to increase substantially the number of placements," he said.

Referrals made by other state hospitals to Nov. 1 were: Kalamazoo, 191; Newberry, 44; Northville, 49; Traverse City, 55; Ypsilanti, 99 Howell, 16; Lapeer, 2; Mt. Pleasant, 1; and Caro, 25.

Mass. Governor Asks Recount

BOSTON (UPI) — Republican Gov. A. Volpe yesterday formally requested a recount of the votes cast in the Nov. 6 election which he lost to Democrat Endicott Peabody by 3,091 votes.

Harold Hestnes, a member of Volpe's staff, filed the recount petition containing 6,280 voters signatures from eight different counties with Secretary of State Kevin H. White.

The governor needed only 1,000 signatures for the petition.

The recount cannot legally begin until next Tuesday. It is expected to take about a week. Candidates must be given three days notice before the tally begins.

Independence Boon to Congo's Animals

RWINDI, Congo (UPI) — Two years of Congolese independence may have been rough on humans but the wild animals in the vast Albert Game Reserve have thrived on it.

Since independence, tourists who used to visit the Park in thousands, have dwindled to a trickle of United Nations employes on local leave.

But while human beings are a rarity, the Parks teeming with untamed animals who have been hunted in the past 25 years only by photographers.

The herds of elephant are increasing despite some ivory poaching by the Dandandi tribe to the north of Lake Edward.

Conservator Basile Munyaga, 35, who was born on the fringe of the Park, estimates there now are between 12,000 and 13,000 tuskers on the lush greenlands of his domain.

The herbivorous hippo have reached the 14,000 mark and should be thinned out to preserve grass for the multitudes of antelopes and other grazing animals also on the increase, Munyaga said.

TRACKS DISAPPEAR

Thirty thousand water buffalo, as tame as Jersey cows, glower fearlessly at motorists bumping along the overgrown tracks.

In many places the tracks have completely disappeared because of encroaching grass and lack of traffic.

One by one the jeeps used by the African game wardens to patrol the reserve have all cracked up.

Because of the Congo's desperate economic situation and lack of foreign currency they cannot be replaced. Lacking mobility in this huge stretch of territory, the wardens are at a disadvantage in their fight against poachers.

The Rwindi hotel, high on a windswept escarpment overlooking the lion country, is without plumbing.

WATER PROBLEM

The pump bringing water from a spring two miles away cracked up.

Water for the wardens and tourists who stay at the hotel now has to be rolled up in barrels from the spring. Guests do as best they can with buckets in their rooms.

But if rutted tracks, plumbing and transport inconvenience the humans, the only effect on the animals has been greater isolation in their natural habitat.

Snails Do Plenty of Odd Things

WASHINGTON — Snails may not be built for speed, but they are remarkable in many ways.

★ ★ ★

Some snails sing. Others are equipped with 80,000 teeth, and they gnaw at houses.

A few may curl up in their shells and sleep four years at a time. One species (Strombus pugilis) strikes nasty blows with its foot.

About 30,000 species of gastropods range from the Arctic to the Antarctic and from ocean bottoms to 18,000 feet in the Himalayas, the National Geographic Society says. All are sturdy individualists.

SNAIL MELODY

The Burgundy snail of France hums a high, reedy melody while munching grass glades in the spring. Though it has only one lung, this snail is a powerful breather: its exhalations can make a candle flame flicker.

★ ★ ★

The Giant African snail, which has thousands of filelike teeth set in its tongue, can polish off a head of lettuce at one sitting. It avidly chews flowers and crops and even has rasped chunks off buildings.

A native of the east coast of Africa, the snail has spread far beyond its home to devastate parts of Hawaii and the Orient.

The African monster grows from six to nine inches long. At the other end of the snail scale are gastropods the size of small grains of sand. They live by the billions in semitropical brackish waters.

Another tiny aquatic snail of the Florida Everglades has extended its range to South America by hitchhiking rides in the feathers of migrating water birds.

Philippines Lie 'Close' to U.S.

Islands Emerge From Devastation of WW II

WASHINGTON — Americans have a personal interest in the people and progress of the Philippines.

The United States, on July 4, 1946, fulfilled its promise to grant independence to the Pacific islands it had held for nearly half a century. Since then the young Republic has emerged from the devastation of World War II, suppressed the Communist-led Huk rebellion and advanced an ambitious program to expand farm and industrial production.

Passage by the United States Congress of the Philippines war-damage-claims bill recently cleared up a lingering misunderstanding. With their continued military and economic ties to America, the islands stand as a bulwark of Western defense and an example of Western democracy in the Far East.

SHARED STRUGGLE

The Philippines is made up of some 7,000 islands and islets scattered between Formosa and Indonesia, says the National Geographic Society. More than 4,000 are unnamed. The two largest and most important are Luzon, which is about Ohio's size, and Mindanao, a little bigger than Indiana.

Luzon holds both the populous and cosmopolitan old capiatl, Manila, and the official new seat of government at nearby Quezon City.

To Americans, Luzon's Bataan peninsula and Corregidor Island will always be remembered for their part in the Pacific war with Japan. There, in the spring of 1942 United States and Filipino troops made a heroic, hopeless stand to halt the Japanese invasion of the Philippines. And there, three years later, the Americans returned in triumph.

The Philippines now has a population of 27,500,000, an increase of more than 9 million since the end of the war. They speak 70 or more languages and dialects and represent a variety of elements ranging from bow-and-arrow hunters to sophisticated urbanites.

South African Attacks Officer in Nicotine Fit

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — A man said in the magistrate's court in nearby Uitenhage that he assaulted a policeman because of nervous strain as a result of giving up smoking.

Joseph Keyer, 35, admitted that he slapped Constable William Sereo after midnight one night. He said he saw the constable riding a bicycle in Main Street, Despatch, near here.

The bicycle had no lights and when he spoke to the policeman he said he received a rude reply. He then slapped the policeman.

He said he would not have done it if his nerves were not in such a bad state. He had given up smoking recently and this had effected his nerves and made him irritable.

Halt Welfare Cases at Stearns Hospital

LUDINGTON (AP) — Paulina Stearns Hospital was notified yesterday by the State Department of Social Welfare that it has been decertified for the care of county welfare patients.

It means, a spokesman said, that Mason County now must plan to send its elderly and emergency welfare patients to an accredited hospital outside the county.

A State Welfare Department notice declared that no new patients would be eligible for hospitalization or assistance through state and federal funds at the hospital after Nov. 26. Aid to patients now under care will be withdrawn after Dec. 15, the notice said.

2 Accomplices of Moonshiners Reined In, Sold

GREEN COVE SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Two saddle horses, used shine still, have been sold at auction.

The County Commission advertised the horses for sale after they were taken in a raid on a still. They had to be advertised for 30 days prior to the auction.

Sheriff John Hall said it is not unusual for moonshiners to use horses in their illicit operations.

★ ★

"In a heavily wooded area, they use the horses to make a getaway in the event of a raid," he said. "Horses also serve as sentries because they usually lift their ears when they hear someone approaching."

Prosecutor to Quit Kent County Post

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Prosecutor Richard N. Loughrin yesterday announced an "irrevocable decision" to resign effective Jan. 1 from his Kent County post.

He was elected to a second consecutive term in the Nov. 6 elections after having been associated 11 years with the office. Loughrin was appointed an assistant prosecutor in 1951 and served under three chiefs before election to the top post in November 1960.

★ ★ ★

He said increased pressures in office—including staff shortages —plus a threat to his health forced the decision to resign.

Detroit Bank Chosen by City

The Detroit Bank and Trust Co. has been named paying agent for Pontiac's water revenue bonds.

The bonds were sold to a New York investment firm in June and will finance the city's water system improvement program to be completed in time to begin accepting Detroit water next July 1.

The contract, okayed by the City Commission Tuesday night, calls for payment to the Detroit firm at a rate of five cents per coupon clipped and $1 per each bond of $1,000 or less paid at maturity or by call.

Minimum charge for any six-month period is $10 plus miscellaneous expenses.

The $3.77-million issue matures over a 35-year period.

Emergency CD Center Established in Holland

HOLLAND (AP) — Establishment of an emergency control center for civil defense in Holland's civic center basement, with appropriation of $19,800 for communications equipment, has been approved by the Ottawa County Board of Supervisors.

County CD Director Hans Suzenaar said the money will be included in the county budget with federal funds covering about half the appropriation.

Expects Order to Halt Buck Creek Pollution

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) A Kent County official said he expects the state attorney general's office to issue an order directing that the City of Wyoming and Paris Township stop polluting Buck Creek.

Drain commissioner Frank Bouma described the creek as "terribly polluted" and said the matter had been turned over to the attorney general by the water resources commission.

Bowman to Keep Plugging Against Nonresidents' Tax

LANSING (AP) — Senator-Elect John T. Bowman has made it clear he will take his anticity income tax fight along when he moves from the House to the Senate in January.

The Roseville Democrat said he has not—and will not—change his position on the controversial issue which top Democrats have said was the main reason for Gov. Swainson's defeat on Nov. 6.

"I will continue my efforts to prohibit the imposition of a city income tax on nonresidents," Bowman said in a news release.

Bowman added that he "will continue to encourage and urge the mayors' vigilance tax committee to continue its petition drive to compel legislation for a vote of the people on the issue . . ."

He termed "ridiculous in the extreme" any suggestion that the Bowman bill introduced in the House this year "was not in the best interests of the people because of certain political ramifications involved."

This clearly was a reference to reports that Bowman had offered to abandon the bill if fellow Democrats would promise him the nomination for lieutenant governor at the August convention.

Bowman admitted earlier he has been stung by the heaping of blame on his bill to outlaw city income taxes—and its veto by Gov. Swainson—for the governor's loss to Republican George Romney.

VETO WAS REASON

Swainson, Congressman - Elect Neil Staebler and other top-level Democrats have said the fact that the governor was forced to veto the bill was the chief reason for his defeat.

They pointed out that Romney drew heavier support than expected in Detroit suburbs, where the Bowman bill was popular as a counter-measure to the 1 per cent income tax imposed by Detroit on all persons—residents and nonresidents — working in the city.

Swainson rejected the legislation as "a complete contradiction of the commonly accepted practice in income taxing" and as being "not in the best interests of the state as a whole."

It might "alienate great blocs of voters."

Bowman said the only question to be considered in a bill is whether it is in the best interest of the constituency.

"The people I represent may be assured that an effort will be made to secure passage of this legislation either through a single bill or by making this issue a part of the general tax proposal," he said, adding:

★ ★ ★

"I further believe we will have basically the same support for this legislation in the House and Senate as we had in the past."

Bowman won election to the Senate seat vacated by the resignation of former Sen. George Steeh, D-Mount Clemens, after serving four terms in the House.

Gives Counties Pat on the Back

Claims They Improve Elderly Mental Care

LANSING (AP) — State mental health officials credit the improvement of county-level machinery for helping to boost the number of elderly mental patients released by the state under the four-month-old county referral program.

Counties are improving their staffs and methods for locating suitable homes for the elderly patients who can qualify for old age assistance and no longer need psychiatric treatment, said State Mental Health Director Charles F. Wagg.

"During the next few months we expect referrals to exceed 3,000 and indications are that county bureaus of social aid will be able to increase substantially the number of placements," said Wagg.

He said 709 elderly mental patients have been approved for release and 178 of these already have been relocated in community facilities, public or private nursing homes.

Wagg said homes were found in October for 85 persons, almost twice the number relocated during the first three months of the county referral program.

Of the total, 468 are awaiting placement and 63 were found to be ineligible for old age assistance, although certified to be ready for discharge.

News Poll Varies on Space Race

NEW YORK (UPI)—One-third of a group of newsmen, editors and publishers polled across the country believe America will pass Russia in the space race before 1970. Forty per cent think the U.S. will approximately equal the Soviets.

The survey results represent responses from 308 "public opinion leaders" to a questionnaire sent out by the General Electric magazine Forum.

The conjectures as to the space race were predicated on each respondent's idea of how much money the U.S. should spend on the effort during the decade.

Twenty-five per cent recommended a sharp increase in the present level of expenditures relative to the Gross National Produce (GNP).

SPEND MORE

Thirty per cent thought expenditures should be "a little higher" in relation to the GNP during the rest of the decade, and 22 per cent recommended they be kept at the present ratio.

However, in an analysis of the answers, Dr. G. D. Wiebe, dean of Boston University's school of public relations and communications, said:

"Perhaps the most challenging finding is that while there is a strong tendency among the respondents to view the space program as a race which we should win they fear this is a race which we won't win."

He added that "only 33 per cent believe we will win even if the government does what each of them thinks it sould do regarding expenditures."

Wiebe found the respondents "divided as to whether first priority should go to winning the 'race' (61 per cent) or to orderly scientific achievement (35 per cent)."

However, a two-to-one majority found the space program "a productive dollar investment over and above its defense and Cold War functions."

A WOMAN'S PLACE . . . — Sari-clad Indian women give their attention to a lesson in rifle handling at Tazpur in India's Assam province where they have been enlisted in the home guard as part of the nation's mobilization against advancing Red Chinese soldiers.

Marxists Mix 'Em Up

The Battle of the 'Isms'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Do you understand what the Soviet-Chinese Communist squabble is all about?

It's easy. Here it is, in a nutshell, from the Red Chinese newspaper Red Flag of Nov. 16:

"All Communists must work hard to raise their ability to distinguish Marxism-Leninism from revisionism, to distinguish the way of opposing dogmatism with Marxism-Leninism from that of opposing Marxism-Leninism with revisionism under the cover of opposing dogmatism, and to distinguish the way of opposing sectarianism with proletarian internationalism from that of opposing proletarian internationalism with great-nation Chauvinism and narrow nationalism under the cover of opposing sectarianism."

If you don't dig that, you've "lost touch with the masses" are guilty of what Red Flag calls "closed-doorism."

Take Initiative in Peruvian Plan

U.S. Companies Develop Latin Country

LIMA, Peru—Thirty-one American business firms are not simply sitting back waiting to let "George" do the gear-shifting in the Alliance for Progress efforts.

The companies have embarked on a program of "commercial and cultural interchange interpreting the role of North American business firms in the economic and social development of Peru."

This may mean supplying remote villages with radios with which to receive educational programs or it may mean sponsoring English courses to students drawn from the ranks of organized labor.

* * *

Heading up the program, called CONAPROBE (Comite Norteamericano Pro-Peru), is Ray Lee Muschell, of San Francisco. His encounter with CONAPROBE happened quite by accident.

Muschell, a graduate of the Heald School of Engineering, San Francisco, married a Peruvian citizen.

Called to Peru by the illness of his wife's parents, Muschell "was practically met at the airport by CONAPROBE, which was just getting under way several years ago.

ACCEPTS OFFICE

He took a full-time job with the organization as its executive secretary.

Projects which Muschell directs are not big as government aid programs, but they are tightly held and aim at takeover by the Peruvians as quickly as possible. Initiative by individuals pays off.

"We gave 100 radio receivers to the Maryknoll Fathers," Muschell said, "and they took them up in the hills with them to drop one off in each village.

Operating a radio transmitter from Puno, on the edge of Lake Titicaca, these missionaries broadcast educational programs to the Indians in remote southern Peru and Bolivia."

There is the scholarship program, too. Knowledge of English improves employment chances of those who pass the language course.

"We encourage people in the ranks of organized labor to take English lessons in the Instituto Cultural Peruana-Norte-americano," said Muschell.

"The student has to indicate initiative by enrolling, and paying the necessary fees. On completion, we give him a check for $150, or half what it costs him to take the course."

SUCCESS STORIES

A couple of examples of CONAPROBE's value to Peruvians:

Juan, 20, a graduate of the English instruction got his money back, but also a job with one of the airlines. He is paid, for that two-language ability, about 25 per cent more than he would otherwise be able to make.

Pedro, 21, now works in a branch of a U.S. bank, which does a considerable English-speaking and reading business.

"If a man graduates from this course, then has the initiative to go to one of the American firms," says Muschell, "he never gets turned down for employment."

Military Plans Ozone Study in Atmosphere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force announced plans yesterday for what it called the most thorough study of atmospheric ozone ever made.

The one-year research program, starting next January, will involve the launching of more than 700 balloons.

Simultaneously every Wednesday noon, Greenwich Time, 11 stations will launch balloons carrying a new measuring device, called the Regener Ozonemeter, and radio telemetry equipment to send back the measurements.

The balloons will inflate to a diameter of 25 feet at their maximum altitude of 100,000 feet.

In addition, each station will conduct daily launches for a 15-day period next spring when ozone concentrations in the atmosphere are most intense.

Ozone is oxygen that has been electrically charged. Carrying the faint odor of chlorine, it is poisonous to human beings and can harm materials such as rubber if concentrated.

Ice Cream Left Behind by Cold Night Thieves

BOREHAM WOOD, England (UPI)—Thieves broke into a factory here on the coldest November night in six years.

They left empty-handed after finding nothing but 500 crates of ice cream.

Oh, for the Good Ole Days of Burping Babies

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the learned discussions of parenthood is: When are children at their best?

Children themselves are fascinated by this kind of talk, as people are always interested in discussions of mankind as it used to be. Children also like to be told about how they were before they remember.

BOYLE

In our house we have only one child under middle-age, a daughter, Tracy Ann, who is 9 years old.

"With all the trouble and the dearness that you are now, our experience with you up till now is that you were never more responsive to our love than when we held you over our shoulder, patted you—and you burped. That was our family peak—no matter what you study in the fourth grade," we tell her.

Correction to the previous paragraph. That is what I tell my wife and daughter.

CHILD TALK

"What my wife says is: "How can you talk that way to a child?"

"You mean her or you?" I ask.

"It is the way I feel as of now."

"Well, that is no attitude you should have toward your duty of raising a child that will express our mutual desire for her to—"

"You mean," I ask, "that if we work to send her to college she will be more fun then afterward than she was when we burped her?"

"Yes," says Frances, my wife, with her usual sense of certainty. "Children are often most rewarding when they are in their teens."

"Name just two," I demand, "from Adam to Adenauer."

RIDICULOUS CHALLENGE

My wife thinks this challenge is rather ridiculous. So does my daughter, who is always on her mother's side. Perhaps we discuss our child more freely in her presence than we ought—but she is usually there.

Editor's Note: Our own opinion is that if Boyle had more than one child, he would listen to them more rather than tell them.

Boyle's Note: No matter how many they are—tell 'em now and listen to them later.

At this point my daughter, Tracy Ann, usually intervenes and asks, "Don't you think you'll like me just as much when I'm a teenager, daddy?"

"Well," I reply, "of course, I know you're in a hurry to be a teen-ager, and that's very important to you.

* * *

"But can I show you what I mean? Let me hold you again as I did before, and put you over my shoulder, and oh, you wouldn't understand, and—"

PLEASING CLUTCH

"Oh, Daddy, put me down," cries Tracy. "You know I have to do my arithmetic."

But she is pleased by the clutch of the hold before, the remindful and rememberable feeling of how it was.

And Frances sighs pleasantly, and says:

"Well, you may hav ea point. "Well, you may have a point. But you can't keep them in diapers forever, can you? And she is growing up, isn't she? Men are such fools about daughters!"

Aren't they?

54 Churches Plan Blood Bank Appeal

Fifty-four Protestant Churches in the area are taking part in a blood bank appeal sponsored by the Oakland County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Donors are asked to attend a blood bank from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 27, at the First Baptist Church, Oakland Avenue and Saginaw Street.

General chairman is Mrs. F. L. Haushalter of 2185 Scott Lake Road, Waterford Township. She said chairmen from each of the churches are conducting telephone appeals to obtain donors.

'Scour Prison for Talent; I 'Specialty' Is Barred

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP)—Inmates at the Indiana State Prison getting ready for their annual holiday revue advertised in the prison newspaper for volunteers who can sing, dance, juggle, do magic or any other specialty act.

But "no escape artists will be accepted," the notice ended.

Safety studies show that in 70 per cent of all fatal traffic accidents, one or both of the drivers had violated one or more safety laws.

Now its the Napoleonic era that inspires a game. Stratego, a unique game of skill and maneuver developed in Holland, has been introduced here with highly decorative playing pieces depicting Napoleon's marshals, generals, colonels and other officers in uniform. There are also spies, scouts and miners. Competition is based on skillful planning, clever deception, memory and suspense. It's an intriguing game for the whole family.

U.S. Airlines Lose Millions

Dollars Fly Far Away in 9 Months of Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The major U.S. domestic airlines lost $6.2 million during the first nine months of the year, an industry report disclosed.

The Air Transport Association (ATA), which represents the scheduled airlines, said the January-September loss was not as severe as last year, however.

The carriers had a net loss of more than $14.3 million in the first nine months of 1961.

For September, the ATA report showed, the airlines had a net operating profit of about $4 million, compared to an operating loss of nearly $4 million in September 1961.

The operating profit, however, does not include such expense items as income taxes and other special costs.

The ATA summary gave no breakdown on the airline losses.

But the carriers' own reports to the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) showed that Eastern, Trans World and Northeast were the "red ink" airlines while the other major carriers reported profits for the first nine months.

Sec. Wirtz Renews Call for Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz renewed yesterday his call for a tax cut early in 1963 and added that prospects are good for its enactment.

But he told a news conference that his optimism may be based more on his personal bias than on the actual political situation.

Wirtz said he doubted that the recent series of good economic indicators "will accomplish the level of economic growth that is essential for full employment."

A stimulus is needed both in consumer demand and in public investment, he said. A tax cut, he continued, would accomplish both.

"It does seem to me that the most important step is to emphasize as strongly as possible the increase in consumer purchasing power," he said, explaining that he meant a tax cut should be made to benefit people in the lower income tax brackets more than the big corporations.

AID Report Details Projects

Foreign Aid Going to Church Schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agency for International Development (AID) disclosed yesterday that U.S. foreign aid funds are being used in 17 current projects to assist religious-affiliated schools in other countries.

Issuing a new policy statement on an issue that has generated sharp controversy, administrator Fowler Hamilton said AID will continue to work through religious-affiliated institutions in situations where they are the best or only channel for raising educational standards in underdeveloped countries.

But he said that no U.S. funds will be made available to religious schools abroad "without prior assurance and built-in guarantees that there will be absolutely no discrimination on religious grounds in the matter of who will benefit."

He said U.S. aid funds also may not be used "for the advancement of secretarian religious purposes."

Hamilton said a review of 1,500 technical assistance projects now in progress overseas turned up 17 instances in which U.S. aid is going to religious affiliated colleges, or to elementary and secondary school systems which include religious teaching as part of their curriculum.

In Iran, Turkey and Afghanistan, U.S. aid funds are being used to upgrade public school systems in which the Islamic religion is taught.

Christian and Jewish children are excused from the religious instruction in Iran and Turkey. In Afghanistan, the religious instruction is compulsory, but "Christians and Jews are not required to attend the public schools."

In Colombia, U.S. aid funds are going to public schools in which Roman Catholic religious instruction and observances are part of the curriculum.

"But the Colombian constitution guarantees the right not to participate in religious practices objectionable to the individual," AID said in a report detailing the 17 projects.

In Uganda, AID is helping to expand high school education at two mission schools affiliated with the Episcopal church and two affiliated with the Catholic church.

In Kenya, two Quaker schools, which also are supported by the local government, are receiving AID. In all of these cases, religious instruction is optional with students.

★ ★ ★

The remaining projects all involve colleges or other institutions of higher education.

Counterfeiters Hit Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Counterfeit U.S. and Canadian money is showing up around Windsor, police reported yesterday.

The bogus U.S. bills are of $20 denomination and described as being of "very poor" quality and printed on paper which should be readily detected as counterfeit. The Canadian bills are of $10 denomination.

Businessmen throughout the area have been issued warnings to be on the lookout for the counterfeit currency.

No Work? No Love! Wives Threaten

DAGENHAM, England (NEA) —The wives of 35,000 Ford workers are threatening to go on a "love strike" if their husbands stop work at the Ford Motor Co.'s huge plant here in Dagenham.

Stealing a leaf from Lysistrata, heroine of a B.C. Greek comedy, the wives are talking of withholding their favors until their menfolk come to their senses.

Admittedly, the "no love" strategem is viewed here as a last, desperate measure to be resorted to when all else fails.

But the women seem eager to apply other economic sanctions, such as withholding the Sunday dinner, or letting the housework go, in an effort to head off a major strike.

"A strike would mean misery, empty purses and tears," says pretty Mrs. Evelyn Carter, 29-year-old mother of four, who heads the antistrike wives' movement. "We are determined that our children will not go wanting this Christmas."

Mrs. Carter has collected the names of more than a thousand wives to a petition calling for a secret ballot on on the proposed strike at Ford.

(The women are convinced that if their husbands have the chance to vote secretly they will vote to keep working.)

IMPORTANT FACTOR

Overnight the women have become an important factor in labor relations at the Ford plant, which is controlled by the parent company in the U.S.

Their influence is credited with warding off so far a showdown fight between management and unions. But the trouble is by no means over.

There have been 89 unofficial work stoppages, many of them Communist - inspired, at Ford this year. Wildcat strikes have disrupted production on every new British Ford model. The losses in sales have been enormous.

Rather than continue on a stop-and-go basis, the management has decided to make a stand in refusing to re-employ 70 men whom it terms "wreckers and trouble workers." Many of these are shop stewards. Some are avowed Communists.

"Even Ford of Britain can bleed to death," Sir Patrick Hennessy, chairman of the British subsidiary, recently warned the unions.

Ford now finds itself at the crossroads here. Since the war the U.S. firm has invested over $560 million in Britain. An additional $84-million expansion is planned for the Liverpool works.

MORE COMPETITION

Now with Britain planning to enter the European Common Market, Ford of Britain will face ever-increasing competition.

Management claims it cannot afford costly labor disputes because inevitably, the parent company would favor expansion in trouble-free parts of Europe.

The Ford plant in Cologne, West Germany, hasn't had a strike in 17 years.

Hotheaded shop stewards are not entirely to blame for the wildcat strikes at Dagenham.

The fault, in the opinion of impartial observers, lies largely with the unions themselves, which, they claim, have lost contact with the men at factory level, and consequently have no control over them.

There are 22 separate craft unions represented at Dagenham. This cumbersome union structure makes it impossible to get quick action on the men's grievances.

Consequently, the men turn to the shop stewards for action, and the shop stewards, in turn, flout the agreements. The result is anarchy.

Workers Refuse Pay Ordered by U.S

CHICAGO (UPI) — Four model makers for a small consulting engineering firm have accused the Labor Department of "invading our rights" by attempting to make them eligible for overtime pay.

The four, Gale Puerner, Roy Allen, Ralph Koehler and Ron Koenig, are employed by Norland & Associates, Fort Atkinson, Wis.

Last August an investigator for the Labor Department's wages and hours and public contracts division made what the government called "a routine investigation" of the firm.

A department spokesman said such "routine investigations" are often ordered in industries or areas in which frequent violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act have been found.

SALARY AND STOCK

Norland, an 11-year-old firm engaged in product design, which did much of the development work on electric can openers, had almost all of its 24 employes, including the four, under contracts providing monthly salaries, bonuses and stock options.

The four and their employers insisted their work was creative and thus exempt from the wages and hours act under the professional status provision of the law.

"Sometimes they work from blueprints, but a significant part of their work is done from nothing more than verbal instruction and they make frequent changes on their own initiative," George L. Congdon, Norland president said.

But the government investigator found otherwise and the department's Milwaukee, Wis., office notified Norland it was violating the law.

The notice said the four must become hourly paid employes who work a 40-hour week and an eight-hour day and receive overtime pay.

The company was told the four must be given back pay for all hours worked more than 40 from the time they were employed.

Puerner, who has worked for Norland four years, was entitled to about $2,000 additional; the others lesser amounts. They refused to claim the overtime pay.

★ ★ ★

The four object to punching a time clock and having others set their working hours. Puerner said, "We make our own work schedules." He estimated the four have been averaging about 50 hours a week.

Congdon and the model makers agreed the company has not used coercion to get the four to protest the federal finding.

"We did all this on our own initiative," Koehler said.

The four feel they make more money under their salary-bonus-stock option status than they would under the provisions of the wage and hour law.

Assure Officer of Regular Pay

ST. JOSEPH (AP) — Thrice-wounded by a gunman, Berrien County Sheriff's detective Victor Yost has been released from hospital care and assured of continued regular pay while recuperating.

County Supervisor Raymond Leatz announced that Yost's hospital and medical bills will be paid under Workmen's Compensation and the county will supplement the compensation to match the officer's weekly pay.

Yost, 44, receives a yearly salary of $5,200.

He was shot along with special deputy Charles Plummer, 38, in a pre-dawn battle Nov. 5 with two men stopped for questioning in a car on a Benton Harbor street.

★ ★ ★

The men reportedly admitted their part in the case and are held to await further court action.

Plummer, shot twice, was released from hospital care last week.

A special "wounded deputies fund" was reported nearing the $3,000 mark today in financial aid to the officers. Fund founder Tom DeRosa of Coloma said money distribution would be determined by a committee headed by Sheriff Henry Griese.

Coat or Fur Pieces Tops for His Wife

Clothing is the most popular item which husbands give their wives on Dec. 25 — with a coat or fur piece leading the list with 19 per cent of the husbands. This is in keeping with the heart's desires of the wife who lists a mink coat or other similar coat or fur piece as her "most wanted" Christmas present.

Other "wanted" items the wives will find in their Yuletide stocking include jewelry, rings and watches, dresses, household appliances (toasters, mixers, irons), TV sets, radio and hi-fi equipment, robes, large appliances (refrigerators, ranges).

Peace Corpsmen Train in New York's Harlem

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Since the basic idea of the Peace Corps is to help underdeveloped nations, it's a bit of a shock to discover corpsmen practicing right in the heart of New York City.)

NEW YORK (AP) — She had seen slums before. Remotely. Antiseptically. From the window of a train clickety-clacking its way to the heart of New York City.

Now she was in East Harlem.

Brenda Bouchard. Age 22. Blonde. Blue-eyed. Born Pasadena, Calif. Graduate Bryn Mawr. Political science major. Peace Corps trainee.

"It seemed so cold and foreboding from the train," she says. "But it's not like that. A smile works wonders."

* * *

And with 79 other young, energetic, startlingly attractive trainees, she moves bright-eyed, curious through the oppressive jungle of slums, where often neighbor is suspicious of neighbor, and the stranger comes to, prey or be preyed upon.

* * *

These trainees are the first in the Peace Corps program to learn their A-B-C's against the big city backdrop.

Month-long lessons completed, they pack up next week and fly to Colombia. There they will be assigned, along with 30 Colombians undergoing training with them, to slums in eight city areas.

They will spend two years living and working among the people of the barrios.

Brenda is in a five-member training team. The others are James Coberly, 22, of Laguna Beach, Calif., a tall, crew-cut, forthright, easily smiling young man who left San Diego State College last term to enter the Corps; Anita Mulay, 18, a green-eyed freshman from San Diego State; and two Colombians, Elena Tobon, 23, a social worker of Medillin, and Benjamin Arriaga, 32, a government employe of Tado-Choco.

GIVE AND GET

What can a Brenda Bouchard or a Jim Coberly or an Anita Mulay bring to a big city slum—in Colombia or in New York? What can such a place give them?

"They will try to do something that is very difficult—talk to people, some of whom do not want to talk to them," says Mitchell Ginsburg, associate dean of the New York School of Social Work. The school is supervising the training.

"It's easy to say, 'Just talk to people. Just talk.' But it is tough to do."

WIN TRUST

"This program wouldn't be valid if they just got friendly," says Dean Ginsburg. "It is not our job to provide friends for Colombia, however nice that may be.

"Our job is to train these Peace Corps workers into individuals who will be able to win the confidence and trust of the people in the barrios. Once that is done, the worker then tries to form a group of potential community leaders.

"The goal is to get the people to decide what they need, what they want, what they are willing to do to get it, and how this can be done.

* * *

"It is not to ask people, 'Do you want a new sewer system?' and then set about building it for them. The idea is to guide them into action, and in this way native leaders will emerge."

Jim, Brenda and Anita have their own ideas. Not included is the notion that they will save the world. That, they make quite clear, belongs to the zealots and fanatics.

"We're really what is called 'middleman' power," says Jim. "That means that we're not expert in anything, but able to do something, and willing to do it.

"When we're in Colombia, as far as I can see it, we will be doing jobs that will never be completed. There's no end to the kinds of things people can do because their needs can charge."

Brenda likes people.

"When we trained in Puerto Rico, I decided that the Puerto Ricans were the friendliest people I'd ever met. Now I'll go out on a limb and say they are. 'Sweet' is a sickening word, but that's what they are."

Anita, though the youngest at 18, already has worked with what the sociologists euphemistically call "the disadvantaged."

In California, as a sociology student, she worked with Negroes and Mexicans.

"I want to do something to help, if I can," she says. "Probably, I'll get more than I give."

Jim, Brenda and Anita trained most of their time with American Friends service committee's East Harlem house. One of their first assignments was nothing more complicated than telling people about voter registration.

For each trainee there has been a little of everything. One day, I was over to the Daughters of Israel home for the aged, where they joined elderly Jews in a holiday celebration, and got some idea of how the agency worked.

Sometimes there were afternoon hours spent in Central Park with all the kids they could gather off East 111th St., near the Friends Service Committee Center.

Evenings might be taken up helping a family, or working in an art center, or at a hospital.

Then there was classroom work at the New York School of Social Work, and occasional lectures, and the inevitable bull sessions at the end of the day, when they'd sit around drinking a beer, or smoking, and talk of events little and big.

Wife Fails to Vote, Election Ends in Tie

YERINGTON, Nev. (UPI) — Pio Galantuomini and Larry Longero finished in a dead heat in a race for election as Lyon County game commissioner. Galantuomini revealed his wife forgot to vote.

"It could have been worse," said Mrs. Elaine Galantuomini. "I could have voted for Longero."

U.S. Red Party to Go on Trial

Charged With Failure to List as Russ Agent

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U. S. Communist party will go on trial Dec. 11 on charges of failing to register as an agent of the Soviet Union ,it was disclosed yesterday.

The trial, before a jury in U.S. District Court here, will be the first in the government's 12-year-old, complicated legal efforts against the dwindling party, its officers and leaders under the 1950 Subversive Activities Control Act.

Preliminary motions were disposed of last month. Joseph Forer, attorney for the party, said he expected the trial to proceed as scheduled without further delay. He will base his defense on a series of constitutional questions which have not yet been before the Supreme Court.

The party was indicted last Dec. 1 on 12 counts of failure to register. It faces a maximum penalty of $10,000 fine on each of the 12 counts.

To date, no Communist has registered under the 1950 law and none has been convicted of failure to do so.

Two individuals—Gus Hall as general secretary of the party and Benjamin J. Davis as national secretary—have, in addition to the party, been indicted for not registering, but no trial date has been set.

Legal procedures have been set in motion against 10 other alleged members and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy says the Justice Department will move against others.

If there are convictions, a long process of appeal lies ahead, and it may be several more years before the cases are settled.

The act has served so far as a means of harassment. The party membership has dwindled from an estimated 80,000 after World War II to 10,000 and it now is heavily infiltrated with FBI informers.

Average Husband Gives Wife 2 to 3 Yule Gifts

The average American husband gives his wife between two and three presents each Christmas at a total cost of $32 (approximately $14 per present), according to a study of the U. S. gift market. One in every six generous husbands doles out more than $100 for his wife's presents although none give her more than eight gifts. Nearly 40 per cent give their wife only one present.

Hitch in Cycle Test Draws Fine of $42

SALE, England (UPI) — Motorcyclist Vincent Riley was fined $42 for not reporting he hit a car while taking his driver's test.

The examiner didn't see the accident and passed Riley. But a passer-by reported it to police.

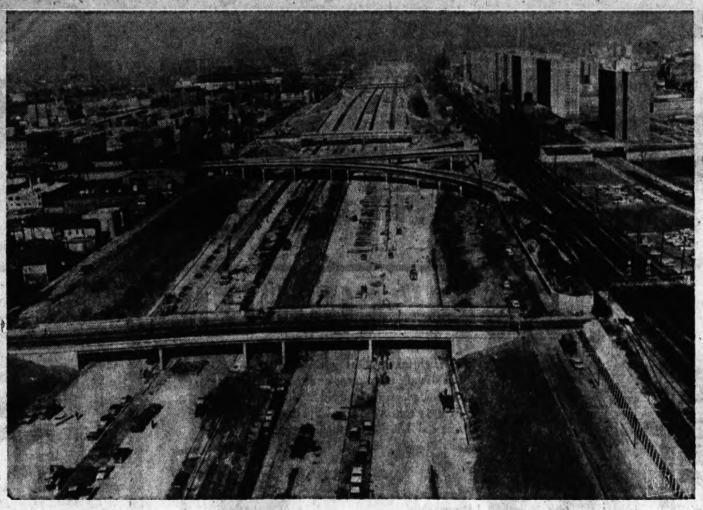
STATE'S OLDEST GIRL? — Sharon Sue Ruse of Kalamazoo had the shock of her young life when she dug up her birth certificate to prove she is 14 years old. The state certificate lists her birth date as 1497, which makes her officially Michigan's oldest teen-ager.



WIDEST ROAD — Aerial view shows progress of construction on what will soon be the world's widest superhighway, the Dan Ryan expressway, which runs 20.8 miles through Chicago's south side, carrying 16 lanes of traffic.

British Look at Spy Case Behind Doors

LONDON (AP) — A three-man government tribunal appointed to investigate the case of a spy in the British admiralty will hold its hearings behind closed doors.

Lord Radcliffe, the chairman, said the probe will involve highly secret government security affairs.

"If we decide at any stage that it would be possible and right to hold public hearings we will inform the public to that effect," Radcliffe said at the tribunal's opening session, which lasted only an hour.

Prime Minister Macmillan named the tribunal to investigate British security leaks following the unmasking of an admiralty clerk, William John Vassall, an admitted homosexual and Soviet agent.

But the issues have blurred over in an atmosphere of recrimination that swirled round the case and put high reputations at stake.

One major point in question is whether one of Macmillan's own ministers plotted to flee with Vassall behind the Iron Curtain.

★ ★ ★

In setting up the tribunal a week ago, Macmillan made plain his purpose was to deal not only with security shortcomings but with "vile and wicked stories" that buzzed around the government.

Sukarno Visits Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—President Sukarno of Indonesia arrived yesterday for a brief unofficial visit. Prince Patupen Yukon represented King Bhumibol in a fairly small reception committee which included Russian Ambassador Antoly Nikolayev.

Sight-Seers Welcomed to Houses of Royalty

WASHINGTON — A choleric duke of the old school would doubtless turn purple with rage at the state of affairs these days in the stately homes of England.

Cars and buses fill parking lots in the very shadows of Ditchley Park, Ashby de la Zouch Castle, Dodington House at Chipping Sodbury, and other monuments of a bygone age.

Queues of curious visitors wind through once-sacrosanct drawing rooms, libraries, picture galleries, and bedchambers. Some sight-seers even stay for tea—at sixpence a cup.

Those inexorable twins, death and taxes (plus the death-watch beetle), are transforming the old "great houses" into common property. About 450 historic homes in Great Britain are open to the public, for a fee, the National Geographic Society says.

★ ★ ★

Peers of the realm have thrown open their ancestral homes to the masses because they need help to run them.

DEATH DUTIES HIGH

A young lord who inherits a vast estate may find himself saddled with millions in death duties. Add $50,000 or so a year for routine maintenance, and the burden is obvious.

Special upkeep on a 500-year-old house can be staggering. At the Manor House in Curry Mallet, Somerset, for example, death-watch beetles are chewing the massive Norman beams in the banqueting hall; woodworms infest the minstrel gallery; furniture beetles are in the furniture. And, The Times of London glumly reports, the roof leaks, too.

The beleaguered aristocrats are carrying on in the best tradition of stiff upper lip and all that. Said Lord Montagu of Beaulieu (pronounced Bewly): "Deep in our hearts we hate having people into our houses, but it would be absolutely wrong to run out and give up the fight."

As added attractions to the 13th-century abbey on his estate, Lord Montagu has opened a "fully licensed" restaurant and antique automobile museum.

★ ★ ★

The museum honors Lord Montagu's late father, an early motoring enthusiast who gave King Edward VII his first auto ride.

BISON AND GOLF

Woburn Abbey, seat of the Duke of Bedford, is reputedly England's most popular stately home. It draws some 350,000 persons a year. The abbey offers a zoo featuring American bison, a merry-go-round, slot machines, a miniature golf course, and paddle boats on 14 assorted lakes.

For about $95, a tourist can spend the night at Woburn Abbey—a bargain, the duke says, compared with a suite at the Savoy.

Russia's Volcano Erupts 'Violently'

MOSCOW (AP) — Klyuchevskaya Volcano, Russia's 15,912-foot crater in northeast Siberia, has exploded in its most violent eruption in 17 years, the Soviet news agency Tass reported yesterday.

Other volcanoes on the Kamchatka Peninsula also have grown active, the agency said.

Tass said the sky over Klychevsaya, highest active volcano on the Eurasian continent, was aglow with hot gases. Strong quakes shook the earth at the foot of the volcano and volcanic "bombs" burst from a side crater.

Squirrel Says Nuts to Work

GRAND HAVEN (AP) — Operations at Oldberg Manufacturing Co. braked to a standstill three minutes after noon yesterday when a squirrel short-circuited an electric transformer at the plant.

Employes were sent home after officials determined that repairs would make it impractical to keep them on. Oldberg employs some 350 persons in the production of automobile mufflers.

More Enjoying High Fidelity

Music, like cloth, should be bright and not faded, full and not tattered. But unlike cloth, music improves constantly with use.

The more we hear it, the better we learn to appreciate it, and the more meaningful it sounds.

Thanks to the development of high fidelity music reproduction, more and more Americans are affording themselves unmatchable enjoyment.

High fidelity reproduction can almost transport the listener to the time and place of the live performance.

And with stereophonic high fidelity, the illusion is made complete. The listener feels as thouht he is physically present in the concert hall.

Unlike monophonic or single-channel high fidelity, stereo provides two separate sound channels which reach the ears by different paths, thus creating a panoramic curtain of round and providing concert hall realism.

Only four basic components are necessary to enable you to enjoy the scintillating world of stereo.

They are—a precision turntable with tone arm and cartridge on which to play your records, a single chassis stereo amplifier which contains the power that boosts volume, controls tone, and filters the sound—and a pair of loud-speakers—spaced to meet the acoustical requirements of your room—to transmit the two channels of sound to your ears.

Husbands Spend More

The average price paid for each Christmas present is $5.36. The husband's average purchase ($11.38 per gift) runs more than double what his wife usually spends ($4.56 per gift).

Mariner 2's Signal OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The following report on the progress of Mariner 2 was released yesterday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Mariner 2, launched Aug. 27, is expected to pass within 20,000 miles of Venus Dec. 14.

★ ★ ★

Mariner at 7 a.m. EST:
Distance from the earth: 20,282,702 miles.
Distance from Venus: 7,449,065 miles.

Approves Merger of 2 Freight Firms

Merger of Kramer Brothers Freight Lines, Inc., of Detroit, and Consolidated Freight Co., Saginaw, has been given final approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was announced today.

Kramer Brothers' Pontiac terminal at 1410 Franklin Road will continue to operate. It is one of 18 terminals operated by the Detroit trucking firm.

Under the I.C.C. order, Kramer will purchase all of the stock of Consolidated and of City Cartage, Inc., a leasing affiliate. No substantial changes will be made in management or personnel of either company, according to officials.

New Sewage Plant Tried Out in Holland

HOLLAND (AP) — This community's new $835,000 sewage treatment plant was on shakedown trials Wednesday to replace an older facility which has been in operation since the late 1920s.

Work on the new plant started in mid-1961. It is expected to be in full operation by the end of the month.

Life Goes On in Tiny Quemoy

Red Shellings Fail to Stop Island Off China

WASHINGTON—Headlines reiterate, "Quemoy Shelled Anew." One terse paragraph tells the story with deadly routine.

At times, however, the battered little island off the coast of southeast China returns to prominence in the news. This happened recently when Communists began a massive military build-up on the mainland—just five miles away.

But life goes on—whether the Chinese Communists are lobbing a few shells onto the island or mustering 400,000 men in an invasion threat. And, surprisingly, the material lot of Quemoy's 45,000 civilians has improved strikingly in the past decade.

MILLION SHELLS

Though the Chinese Reds have pumped more than a million artillery shells into Quemoy since 1949, when they took over the China mainland, life expectancy on the island has risen. Shellfire has killed less than 200 civilians, barely outranking measles as a cause of death.

Better hygiene has greatly increased the life span. Thirteen years ago, Quemoy was a notorious breeding spot for bubonic and pulmonary plague; rodent control and inoculation have practically wiped out these killers.

A Sino-American organization called the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction is chiefly responsible for conquering the plague. The JCRR also has taught modern farming methods, tested new crops, encouraged the use of fertilizers, and introduced pest control.

The results have been outstanding. Wheat and barley harvests have increased tenfold. Sweet-potato and peanut yields nearly doubled in six years. Hog cholera no longer fells the island's herds. Food is cheaper.

Past, Future Meet in Negeb

Israel's Vast Desert Sees Building on Ruins

WASHINGTON — Past, present, and future meet with a harmonious clash in Israel's vast desert — the Negev.

The ruins of an ancient city which protected King Solomon's trade route to Arabia have recently been unearthed in the barren region west of the Dead Sea where intensive economic development is underway.

★ ★ ★

The archeological project was financed, in fact, by the development authorities as a national service. It has revealed a series of settlements lying one above another at the site of Arad — a Canaanite city that was flourishing when the Israelites of the Exodus arrived in the Promised Land.

WASTELAND IN USE

To modern Israel, the Negev offers an open frontier more than half the size of the entire nation, says the National Geographic Society. Despite the eroded soil, barren hills and sand-swept wastes, it promises to ease the grim, tandem problems of an increasingly dense population and the need for economic growth.

Much progress already has ben made. All-weather roads crisscross the Negev. Regular air service has been established. A railway line extends southward to the desert's gateway at Beersheba, and eventually will reach a southern outlet at the fast-growing port of Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba.

A 16-inch oil pipeline has been laid from Eilat to the refineries of Haifa, making it possible to pump the strategic fuel from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean without having to transit the Suez Canal.

The growth of both Beersheba and Eilat demonstrates strikingly the human, geographic and scientific revolution going on in this part of the world.

A dozen years ago, biblical Beersheba was a sleepy stop on a camel caravan trail. Today it is a booming, polyglot city of 45,000 people, the Negev's biggest commercial and industrial center.

Eilat — in the brief period since the Gulf of 'Aqaba was opened to Israeli shipping in 1956 — has changed from a fishing village into a busy port. With access to the Red Sea and Indian Ocean, it looks forward to becoming an important trans-shipment point for Asian and East African trade — a hope supported by memories of the days when Solomon's nearby Ezion-geber served a similar purpose.

ALL THE thrills, spills, and fun are here for boys who like the new hobby of racing miniature cars by remote control. In a new Which Lane Chicane Race, miniature go-karts race around an oval track until they encounter the Chicane section, which narrows two lanes down to one. One of the little karts, must give way to the other going through the Chicane, but which lane each will end up in when emerging is unpredictable. The competition is thrilling.

Flint Bank to Run One at Davison

LANSING (AP)— State banking commissioner Charles D. Slay yesterday approved the merger of the financially distressed Davison State Bank with the Genesee Merchants Bank & Trust Co. of Flint.

Slay said the merger, requested by shareholders of the two banks on Oct. 19, was made "in the public interest" as the result of "substantial discrepancies and other serious irregularities" in the dealings of the Davison bank.

Bank officers have revealed that, in recent months, the bank has suffered heavy capital losses. Its capital between June 30 and Oct. 19, decreased by $540,000 and another $850,000 in substandard loans, is reported outstanding.

Davison State Bank officers say the losses are the result of "excessive extension of credit and misapplication of funds."

A number of lawsuits have been filed against George A. Greenlee, former executive vice president and cashier, who resigned from the bank staff and now lives in Canada.

A 23-man grand jury is studying the case but to date has returned no indictments.

The Flint bank was granted authority under the merger to operate branches in Davison, Goodrich and Burton Township, areas currently served by the Davison State Bank.

DENMARK'S GIFT to the children of the U.S. is the Lego system, based on a unique method of construction, utilizing precisely engineered units of durable, color-fast plastic which may be made into anything the child imagines — houses, animals, ships, trains, furniture, skyscrapers or airplanes. Educators, parents and children will find that it is more than a toy. It's a concept in construction that helps to develop character and responsibility.

Holidays Call for Dancing

Holidays and dancing go together, so now is the time to brush up on the latest steps if you want to get complete enjoyment out of holiday dancing parties.

Perhaps the easiest method is to roll up the rug in the family recreation room, put a few appropriate records on the hi-fi and ask a dancing friend to show you the latest steps.

If you don't have a relative or friend available to help you, phone your nearest YMCA or social center. Many of these organizations offer dancing lessons for nominal fees.

Most ballrooms provide dancing lessons for patrons. These are usually conducted in the evening before regular dancing sessions begin.

There's normally no charge for this service, and you have the advantage of learning from expert instructors while a live orchestra plays.

AVERAGE $5

Private lessons from a professional instructor will cost about $7.50 for a half-hour, but the price decreases with the number of lessons taken. The average cost will be about $5 for a half-hour session.

If you're an experienced dancer, you can brush up on the latest steps in one or two sessions.

However, if you're starting from stratch, about six lessons will give you the fundamentals of the current popular dances—cha-cha, mambo, merengue, rumba and samba.

With the right amount of instruction and practice, anyone can become a good dancer, according to professionals in the field.

The holidays offer exciting opportunities for dance fun. Make the most of them.

The Liberty Bell was cast at Thomas Lester's foundry at Whitechapel, London. It arrived in Philadelphia safely but cracked when it was tried out for sound.

Puppets Carve Niche in World

WASHINGTON—The wondrous old art of puppetry is getting fresh rounds of applause.

Miniature curtains the world over are rising on more and more performances by the bizarre, beautiful, and bumbling little characters of fantasy, says the National Geographic Society.

Puppets have made good in movies and television, playing Shakespeare as well as modern comedy and commercials. State puppet theaters flourish in Moscow and Budapest.

The United Nations uses them in health programs to dramatize sanitation needs in primitive areas.

At a recent festival of an international federation of puppeteers, 25 countries were represented.

The U.S. State Department sent marionettes this year on a goodwill tour of India, Afghanistan and Nepal.

Their creators, a professional husband-wife team, presented variety acts that charmed thousands of Asian school children, hospital patients, and perfectly sound adults.

In turn, the Americans brought back puppets and musical instruments of the art traditionally linked to the Orient.

Puppet plays may be older than spoken drama. Marionette stringpullers were mentioned in the Hindu epic "Mahabharata." The origin of Southeast Asia's shadow puppets is lost in the mists of time, though they are still worked behind screens lighted by coconut-oil lamps.

These shadowy struggles between men and gods were prophetic of the motion-picture industry.

Firm Gets Theater Order

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—American Seating Co. of Grand Rapids has received a contract to supply a total of 2,735 upholstered chairs for the New York State Theater in Lincoln Center, New York City. The contract amount was not disclosed in the comapny announcement yesterday.

Ancient Art Practiced by Glass Blowers

WASHINGTON — An experienced glass blower is worth his weight in Venetian crystal nowadays.

Though machines efficiently produce everyday glassware, masters of the ancient art are in constant demand to fashion fine crystal and intricate laboratory apparatus, the National Geographic Society says.

In the United States, the number of glass blowers has dwindled to about 900. Many of these are employed in large laboratories, where they devise complex systems of bending, curving and spiraling tubes, bulbous retorts, cylinders within cylinders and spigoted flasks. Their handiwork sometimes looks as if cartoonist Rube Goldberg had collaborated with Dr. Frankenstein.

Today's glass blowers use essentially the technique that Phoenicians developed in the ancient city of Sidon about 300 B.C. The artisan makes a "gather" by dipping the knobby end of a blowpipe into a pot of hot, viscous glass. As he removes the pipe, a mass of hot glass adheres. Blowing gently or vigorously, he expends the gather into a thick or thin bulb.

By swinging and rotating the bulb, puffing, rolling and manipulating the glass with a few simple tools and reheating when necessary, the glass blower can create almost any form.

BECAME COMMON

Some Phoenician glass blowers migrated to Rome, where entire streets were lined with glass furnaces. Glass, once a precious commodity, became common. Roman artisans became masters of fine glass blowing, and their two-color cameo vases have never been matched.

The golden age of glass began in Venice in the 13th Century and lasted for some 400 years. Superb glass, unduplicated elsewhere, contributed to the wealth and prestige of the Venetian city state.

As other countries developed their own glass industries, Venice lost its monopoly. But beautiful glass objects are still blown there. Visitors may stop their gondolas at several houses along the Grand Canal to watch the glass blowers at work and to admire their products.

Russ Diplomat Hurt in NY Xway Accident

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Soviet diplomat was injured last night when the car he was driving struck a concrete abutment on an expressway, police reported.

★ ★ ★

The diplomat identified himself as Mikhail Timofeevich Menzhulin, according to the police, and produced credentials indicating he is a third secretary of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations. He was released when he claimed diplomatic immunity. He received face cuts but refused medical aid. There was considerable damage to the car.

To Recognize Missionaries in Special Day

ROCHESTER — Special recognition services in honor of the new missionaries will highlight this Sunday's events at the First Congregational Church, 1315 N. Pine St.

★ ★ ★

The church will honor Mr. and Mrs. Lester Weiner, missionaries working in Southern Rhodesia, Africa, under church sponsorship.

A tape recording will be played at the 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. services wherein Rev. Weiner will explain his work in Africa. Native crafts will also be on display at the church.

This same program, with the addition of color slides, will be presented to the church school members on Sunday, Dec. 2.

Golfer Is Finished With Golf for Good

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — A golfer hit four balls into a stream that flows beside the Arundel Golf Club course here.

He picked up his bag of clubs and hurled them into the water. His golf cart followed. Then the man sat down, removed his spiked shoes and threw them after the clubs and cart.

Five minutes later he waded into the stream. Onlookers thought he had cooled off and would retrieve his possessions.

★ ★ ★

They say the man groped until he found the bag, unzippered the ball pocket, removed a set of car keys, closed the zipper and pushed the bag into deeper water.

Dripping, he strode to his car and drove away.

To Start School Study

ROCHESTER — A citizen's school study committee will be working for the next six weeks on presenting the board with a list of recommendations for school district improvement.

The group was formally established at a meeting in Central Junior High School last night. Members elected Dr. David Wilder, 461 Orchardale Drive, as chairman.

Five subcommittees were set up at the meeting to cover areas of curriculum and faculty; financial; publicity and communications; salary scales; and buildings.

School Supt. Donald C. Baldwin said the group will meet again at the junior high school next Tuesday.

"We anticipate that these committees will be enlarged and other people will join them," he said.

"Any interested parties are welcome to join and should attend the next meeting," Baldwin said.

YM to Offer Members Open Swim Program

The Pontiac YMCA will offer an open swim program to members beginning Saturday at Pontiac Central High Schcol and every Saturday thereafter until Dec. 29.

Top Industry Hardwares Merge With Acquisition

FLINT (AP) — Grandsden-Hall & Co., of Flint and Saginaw, has acquired Chas. Sterlinger Co., of Detroit, and has merged what are termed the state's two leading "hardware stores for industry."

Details were withheld, but Philip Hall, 35, of Gransden-Hall, said Strelinger would retain its name and operate independently. Hall becomes president of Strelinger.

Everything Rosy Again

LONDON (UPI) — Douglas Smith, 25, accused by his firm of stealing a rose bush from company grounds and thereby precipitating a 1,500-man wildcat strike, will be allowed to return to work, the Bowaters Paper Mills announced yesterday.

Fisherman Given Glare by Big One

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — The fishing was pretty poor in Chickamauga Lake when Earl Wall saw bubbles in a little cove — and had visions of carp.

After he dragged a light lure through the bubbles a couple of times, the bubbles stopped, Wall reached for a larger lure.

"All of a sudden," he said, "right out from the boat, up popped this scuba diver. He took a long look at me through that glass mask, scowled and then submerged as fast as he came up."

Wall went home.

Meet Saranade, a 22-inch doll that sings, tells stories and teaches her young playmates to dance, count, recite the alphabet and practice good habits. She talks and sings by means of a sturdy battery-powered radio concealed inside her. The radio broadcasts records played on a portable phonograph which comes with the doll. There are no wires connecting the phonograph and Saranade. She may be carried 15 to 20 feet away from it.

How your savings can help build your country's future as it builds your own

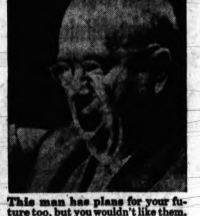
What are your plans for—say—8 or 10 years from now?
A new home?
College for your children?

Plans like these take money . . . money that you'll have if you start buying U.S. Savings Bonds now. For every $3 you invest—Series E Savings Bonds will pay you back $4 when the Bonds mature . . . even more if you hold them longer.

But your plans will take more than just money. You'll need the freedom to choose, to act, to decide for yourself. We Americans have these freedoms now. And when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds, you help your country preserve those freedoms.

You see, while your dollars are earning interest for you, Uncle Sam puts them to work to defend the cause of freedom. Your dollars help strengthen our economy here at home, and help our Nation stand up for freedom all over the world. And then they come back to you—with interest!

There probably isn't a better way to put your savings to work, to help build freedom for your future. Why not start today at your bank . . . or on The Payroll Savings where you work.



This man has plans for your future too, but you wouldn't like them. An important way we can keep his ambitions in check is to keep strong financially—as individuals and as a Nation.

Keep freedom in your future with

New Map May Doom 150 Towns

LANSING (AP) — Some 150 Michigan communities — most of them remote country crossroads and "ghost towns"—are doomed to possible oblivion when the state published its official 1963 highway map.

For the first time in recent years, the State Highway Department has made a county-by-county survey to determine whether its official state maps designate any communities which no longer exist or are so tiny as to be unimportant..

Responses from the counties add up ti about 150 possibilities," said a department official. "A lot of them have been on the map for years even though they don't amount to much."

Elimination of the crossroads and ghost towns in the interest of "map clarity," he said, is still subject to review before the map is printed but in general the county recommendations will be followed.

Plans for the revision came out yesterday as the department announced the Gugler Lithographic Co., of Milwaukee, has won the job of printing the 1963 map with a low bid of $37,029.

Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said he will recommend that the State Administrative Board accept the Wisconsin firm's bid.

It will mark the first time in 22 years that a company other than Rand - McNally has printed the state map. Rand - McNally was the second low bidder among five competing for the contract.

★ ★ ★

Some 600,000 maps will be printed in time for distribution by the middle of March, and the highway official said they are expected to move as fast as this year's maps, when the supply ran out a month after printing.

Warrant Is Issued for Virgil Grissom

MARIANNA, Fla. (AP) — A Jackson County judge has issued a warrant for the arrest of astronaut Virgil Grissom for speeding, the Pensacola Journal said yesterday.

The newspaper said Judge Julian E. Laramore issued the warrant after Grissom did not pay a $20 fine on a guilty plea to driving 70 miles and hour in a 55-mile zone.

Grissom was arrested by the highway patrol Nov. 3. He pleaded guilty by telephone, the judge said, and was told to mail in the fine.

The Journal said Grissom now would have to post a $50 cash bond or appear in court.

Soviets Develop New Small Car for Exportation

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russian automobile industry has prepared for export a new small car reportedly developed along the lines of the Italian Fiat 600 with some style pointers from the French Dauphine.

The Zaporozhets, a restyled, larger version of the 1960 model, is said to have a 26 horsepower engine mounted at the rear. Its increased weight, at 1,650 pounds, has kept the top speed down to about 62 miles an hour.

The older version was said to suffer from numerous technical difficulties and mechanical faults, although it was billed as "the best small car in the world." It was copied from the Fiat 600.

Russia Trying to Get Her Foot in Turkey's Door

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)—Communism's clamoring voice is growing louder and stronger in Turkey.

Recent student riots and demonstrations have been blamed, in part, on Communist agitation.

Communist radio broadcasts, increasing in number and stridency, are pounding away at American and NATO bases in Turkey and demanding their removal.

The Soviet embassy here has been accused of spending millions of lira to subvert Turks.

Government leaders, while confident that Turkey will never move into the Communist camp, are worried.

Prime Minister Ismet Inonu, at the height of the Cuban crisis, warned his people of the dangers of "outside" agitation—and sabotage—to "confuse and weaken Turkey's position."

Beside belonging to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Turkey has defense and economic pact with the United States. America has three big air bases here and there are an estimated 15 missile sites equipped with intermediate range Jupiters.

"Why should U.S. rocket-nuclear weapons remain close to the borders of the U.S.S.R., including those in Turkey?" Radio Moscow asked this week.

EYES TURKEY

This is the general theme of Moscow broadcasts beamed to Turkey. Apparently, Moscow still hopes to find support for dismantling American bases here.

Beside Radio Moscow, Turkish language broadcasts emanate from Baku on the Caspian Sea, Budapest and East Germany.

The noisiest of the Communist voices is that of a clandestine station called Bizim Radyo (Our Radio), which claims to represent the outlawed Turkish Communist party. That station is believed to be in East Germany.

Turkey's deputy prime minister, Hasan Dincer, recently told newsmen:

"It has now been ascertained that Communist elements are not wasting any opportunity in engineering agitative movements and unrest in the provinces of Turkey. The Communists, fully aware of the fritility of trying to penetrate our national precepts in towns and rural areas, have concentrated their activities in the larger cities of the country."

★ ★ ★

How successful are these activities?

Riots and demonstrations, sparked mainly by university students here and in Istanbul, nearly toppled Inonu's uneasy coalition government recently.

The demonstrators, while backing Inonu, denounced government amnesty plans for 258 jailed members of the late Premier Adnan Menderes regime.

Inonu finally calmed the students and the prisoners were released last month without incident. The students, along with the Turkish army, were responsible for the 1960 revolution which eventually sent Menderes to the gallows.

Inonu later was quoted as saying he was convinced "Communist agitation is involved in these incidents."

President Cemal Gursel told an interviewer:

★ ★ ★

"We are not impressed by Communist threats. And Turkey will not accept communism. Our peasants will not stand for it."

Women to Be Allowed to Speak, From Balcony

CAMBRIGE, England (UPI) — Brian Pollitt, Communist president of the Prestigious Cambridge Union, has ruled that women may speak at the previously all-male society's debates.

But the distaffers will have to contribute their back seat comments from the balcony.

Humanized New Dolls Kiss, Kick

The yearning of little girls to have a doll that's real has inspired some intriguing new answers in Santa's pack of surprises this Christmas.

New in the category of "nearly human" doll accomplishments is a toddler replica that not only looks kissable, but actually produces a realistic kissing sound when her palms are pressed.

There's also a 40-inch doll ready to be a real companion in the bigger-than-ever category.

NEW DESIGNS

Some new designs in the baby doll field have reproduced with surprising realism the kicking and squirming motions of a healthy baby.

The topical fashion doll with a Jacqueline hairdo is accompanied by a varied mannequin type, with bouffant coiffure, spike heels and all the latest fashion trends.

New versatility in doll conversation is also slated to add spice to Christmas morning this year.

One group of dolls with speaking mechanisms similar to last season's Chatty Cathy, will be able to carry on a conversation with their owners and even with each other, occasionally.

HAIRDRESSING TOO

The young hairdresser will have wider scope for her talents than ever. The latest crowning glory for dolls is rooted so firmly that constant shampooing and setting will cause no damage.

★ ★ ★

The world of dolls will prove a more able ally than ever to mothers in their struggle to inculcate good grooming habits.

Kits containing all the basics for hair, skin and teeth care are attractively presented to intrigue juvenile enthusiasm.

To Meet 'Realities of Algeria'

Ben Bella to 'Revise' Evian Pact?

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

It is not surprising that the first dark clouds are appearing over the so-called Evian accords which led to Algerian independence and established the pattern of future relations between Algeria and France.

Algerian premier Ahmed Ben Bella telegraphed his punch in Havana in mid-October when he endorsed Fidel Castro's demand that the United States give up its base at Guantanamo.

Ben Bella also now is saying that the Evian accords should be revised to meet the "realities of Algeria."

There is little doubt that among these "realities" are the provisions by which France retained for 15 years her air and naval base at Mers-el-Kebir on the Algerian coast and for five years her rocket and nuclear testing installations in the Sahara.

* * *

France regards Mers-el-Kebir as essential to her Mediterranean defenses and her nuclear test sites at Colomb-Bechar and Reggane in southwest Algeria as essential to her development as a nuclear power.

Ben Bella has declared he regards these test sites as a problem for which it is essential "that a solution be found."

The French are not opposed to reopening discussions on some of the Evian agreements, but they look with a very cold eye on any change in the military status.

COMPLAINTS OF OWN

Further, they have come complaints of their own which are contributing to the growing strain between the two governments.

Approximately three-quarters of the one-million French who lived in Algeria and were the foundation of the Algerian economy now are residing in France.

Ben Bella has appealed for their return but has at the same time, the French feel, permitted continued harassment of Europeans in Algeria and has shown undue haste in nationalizing French properties.

* * *

Ben Bella has announced that Algeria will be a nonaligned socialist state and this month he began giving some indication of his plans.

He said the state would take over and put into operation 500 factories left idle by their fleeing European owners.

He said also the state would take over large estates and set up its own marketing organization for citrus fruits and olives.

Most of these also would be taken from European owners.

FORMIDABLE WOES

Ben Bella indeed faces formidable problems. Shuttered apartment windows and store fronts in Algiers testify to the creeping poverty overtaking the city. In a national population of 10 million, two million are unemployed.

Until the end of this year, Algeria will be living on the French budget. After that, she is on her own.

Whatever direction Ben Bella's socialism finally takes, he so far has not given encouragement to the Communists and has, in fact, forbidden them to function as a party. There also are great international pressures on him to speed a land redistribution program. But to be successful, he also must keep his peace with France.

MUSKEGON (UPI) — The National Lumberman's Bank of Muskegon has announced plans to build a modern three-story main office building in the central business district.

Wayne Prof to Talk on Husbands

"Husbands" will be the topic of a talk by Dr. John M. Dorsey at the Nov. 27 luncheon meeting of the Episcopal Churchwomen of Christ Church Cranbrook.

★ ★ ★

He will be introduced by Neil McMath, a trustee of Cranbrook Foundation and a former vestryman of Christ Church.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Dorsey's talk will emphasize the attitude wives should take toward their husbands to assure a happy marriage.

"Appreciation that a husband is always doing the best he can is the most constructive attitude for a wife to take, believes Dr. Dorsey.

"Arguments are always traceable to the fact that each disputant is not talking about the same thing. If he were, there could not be any argument. All unhappiness, such as anger, resentment of jealousy, is traceable to hurt love."

Dr. Dorsey, who is on the Wayne State University faculty, was educated at the University of Iowa and did graduate study in Vienna. He was associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Michigan before coming to WSU.

He has been on the staff of a number of area hospitals and at present is chairman of Detroit's Committee for the Rehabilitation of Narcotic Addicts.

At that first Thanksgiving in Plymouth, Mass., in 1621, Indians who came to the feast brought Indian corn. It was they who taught the white men about popcorn. This symbol of harvest and Thanksgiving was caught by Pontiac Press photographer Edward R. Noble as he drove through the countryside. It points up the seldom-discussed fact that Oakland County still ranks high as a farming area.

Contribute Only if You Know Them

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: I have been working at my present job for the last six months and I like it very much except for one thing. Whenever anyone leaves, whether it be to have a baby, to get married, retire or whatever the reason, a collection is taken up for that person.

Some of these people I barely speak to and I don't see why I should contribute toward a present for them.

Would it be proper to refuse to contribute toward these collections?

A: You may properly explain to the person taking up a collection that you are very sorry but you don't feel that you can afford to contribute anything for so-and-so as you hardly know what she looks like; but you will, I'm afraid, be thought stingy and risk becoming unpopular with your fellow employes if you refuse to contribute to every collection.

AVOID TITLES

Q: My husband is a clergyman in a rather small parish. When sending Christmas cards to members of his congregation, how should they be signed?

Would it be proper to sign them The Rev. and Mrs. John Brown? To sign them simply John and Mary Brown does not seem right for a man in his position. Will you please advise me?

★ ★ ★

A: To sign the cards "The Rev. and Mrs. John Brown" would not be proper and if you wish to avoid the signature John and Mary Brown, have the cards printed, "The Rev. and Mrs. John Brown send you their best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

FRENCH PASTRIES

Q: The other evening I invited several friends in to dinner. For dessert I served an assortment of French pastries. I left them in the little paper shells that they come in.

Will you please tell me if this was proper or should they have been removed?

A: Correctly, they should have been removed.

Gift Cake Cover

Glazing and decorating fruit cakes for holiday giving can be done right after baking. Home economists recommend making a simple glaze by adding ½ teaspoon cornstarch to ½ cup corn syrup and bringing to a boil quickly over a high gas flame. Brush the hot glaze over the cake, then add a fruit and nut decoration. The cakes can then be wrapped and stored or frozen until the holidays.

Compounds of copper impart the bright coloration to the flame of a Bunsen burner.

Ripen Off The Tree

The banana is one of the few fruits that attains maximum flavor and food value when harvested green and allowed to ripen off the plant. When shipped from the tropics and discharged from the steamship, the fruit is green and hard, and its carbohydrate content is almost entirely starch. As the fruit ripens, the starch is converted into fruit sugars.

News of Area U. of M. Students

By BARBARA GRIFFIN

University of Michigan students were busy this week winding up social activities and studies in preparation for the long-awaited Thanksgiving vacation which began yesterday afternoon.

A majority of the students left campus for this long weekend, jamming the airports and train stations.

Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity, makes getting home easier by providing "Willopolitan," a large bus which runs from Ann Arbor to Willow Run and Metropolitan airports, saving students time and taxi fare.

For those who must remain on campus, the Michigan Union will again serve the annual Thanksgiving Day dinner so that no one will miss out on turkey.

Last weekend members of the sophomore class presented "Bye Bye Birdie" in Lydia Mendelssohn Theater. Sponsored by the Women's League, the Soph Show is an annual co-ed event with the casting, acting, direction, production and orchestration handled entirely by sophomores.

"Birdie" was a complete success with the three performances sold out two weeks in advance.

Instrumental in the success of this year's Soph Show was Fred Coffin of Birmingham, director of "Bye Bye Birdie." Fred is a member of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity and spent long hours assembling a cast before the rehearsals began six weeks ago.

Also participating in Soph Show was Diana Owen of Auburn Road, who played flute in the orchestra. Diana is a music education major and recently sang in a choir from Jordan Hall which placed second in Lantern Night, the all-campus women's songfest.

Enjoying the Friday night performance of "Bye Bye Birdie" with their dates were Sylvia Rothschild of Dwight Street and Barbara Griffin of Ogemaw Road, both sophomores.

SYMPHONY CONCERT

The University Symphony Orchestra gave its first concert of the year in Hill Auditorium Thursday evening under the direction of Josef Blatt.

Playing first violin in this performance was Jean Huttula of South Roselawn Street. Jean is a freshman in the School of Music, majoring in string instruments.

Three Pontiac students were pledged to Michigan fraternities in the recent fall fraternity rush. Pledging entails a lot of hazing, work sessions and meetings where the pledges must learn fraternity history and ritual.

Then around Christmas time, they will be honored by the chapter at the pledge formal and initiated as active members of the fraternity next semester.

Mark Berg is one of the twelve new pledges of Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity. A freshman in the College of Engineering, Mark lives on Middlebelt Road.

Tau Delta Phi claims Steve Wyman of Ottawa Drive as one of its new pledges. Steve is also a freshman.

FORMAL DANCE

Sophomore Bruce Wigent of Mohawk Road transferred to U. of M. this year and has pledged Sigma Nu Fraternity. The Sigma Nus presented their formal dance Saturday night, traditionally called the White Rose Ball.

Bruce and his date enjoyed themselves dancing to the small combo and socializing with the brothers and their dates.

★ ★ ★

Freshman Tom McGrath of Niagara Road is a new member of Evans Scholars and is living in the house. This group of students has the social structure of a fraternity, but all the brothers have received athletic scholarships from the same foundation and live together as a house.

Last Friday evening the Chi Omegas enjoyed themselves at their annual Jungle Party. Seniors decorated for the occasion, transforming the sorority house into a tropical forest.

The girls and their dates dressed as jungle animals and many unusual costumes were displayed.

Chi Omegas' Judy Ward of Starr Avenue and Elaine Garrett of Mark Street and their dates dressed as natives for the party, complete with grass skirts and long black wigs.

FOOTBALL

Pontiac members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity are very proud of their A and B football teams which have won intramural championships this year.

This is the fourth consecutive A team trophy which the SAEs have won and their B team won the class B championship this past weekend for the third straight time.

Playing on the championship B team were SAEs Doug Roeser of Neome Drive and Ken Shaw of Delaware Drive. Coaching the victorious squad was Dick Reynolds of Illinois Avenue. All three are juniors.

MARGARET EMMERT

The John J. Emmerts of Orchard Lake announce the engagement of their daughter Margaret to Donn Charles Neal, son of the Charles G. Neals of Grosse Ile. They are alumni of Alma College and are graduate students at University of Michigan. Summer vows are planned.

Mysterious Mrs. Wood a Character

SYDNEY (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Sophie Wood was a mystery. In the kitchens and cubbyholes of the hotel where she lived they called her "Diamond Lil."

Her diamonds were great rocks. She held her stockings up with string (this on the word of her former chauffeur who says he had seen the string below her knees as he helped her from her auto).

Mrs. Wood was a widow, aging yet sprightly, one who liked to tell her friends naughty stories (again on the word of the chauffeur).

Mrs. Wood wore Victorian clothes and never tipped (the hotel doorman says that's not right — "At Christmas and times like that she'd maybe give me a shilling (10 cents)").

AS OF LONG AGO

Her chauffeur until a couple of years ago, one James Nefken, had to wear a long dust coat and cloth cap like motorists of long ago (this also on the word of the chauffeur).

One of her favorite pastimes was to sit in a big city store and watch the shoppers go by (on the word of the hotel doorman).

She survived three husbands, the second a rich jute merchant in India named Donaldson (on the word of friends).

She was always a perfect lady (on the word of Bert, the hotel carpenter).

In August "Diamond Lil" died. Weeks passed, then the word came out (from her solicitors).

She was 91. She had left $224 to Bert the carpenter "who has always been a kind friend to me," the same amount to a former bookkeeper at the hotel, $2,240 to chauffeur Nefken, and the rest of her estate $1,034,350 to the University of Sydney.

"It's a bolt from the blue," said Prof. S. H. Roberts, vice chancellor of the university.

Women are strange creatures. They're always asking for equality, all the time they're going around acting superior. . . . An optimist is a fisherman who brings along a witness. . . . Every man has his share of bad breaks—but the fellow who gets ahead is the one who gets them repaired. — Earl Wilson.

Develop Self-Control First, Then Accept Responsibility

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me if I owe this old lady an apology. I am a teen-ager. I help take care of an elderly, bedfast woman. She must be about 80. Once in a while she pulls my hair or throws a glass of water on me.

ABBY

Twice I lost my temper and hit her. Once I bruised her arm and the other time I blackened her eye. She told me I couldn't work for her until I learned to control my temper and apologize.

Is it my fault that I can't stand old people who aren't mentally right?

KANSAS

DEAR KANSAS: You not only owe this lady an apology, you owe yourself a self-improvement program. Striking anyone (and particularly an elderly, bedfast person) is cruel and inexcusable.

Until you can control your temper you should not be placed in charge of anyone. There is always hope for one with a conscience.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: That guy who said a wedding ring was only for women is nuts!

I have worn a wedding ring, placed on my finger by my beloved wife, for 22 years. To me it is as important as the ring I placed on HER finger.

It's gold, but it would mean as much if it were chicken wire.

HOOKED AND HAPPY

DEAR ABBY: I recently moved to a new community and was invited to join a neighborhood bridge club. It meets once a week and the members take turns being hostess. The other ladies all drink coffee and I am the only tea drinker in the club.

One lady, when she is hostess, uses her best china to serve everyone but she uses a plastic cup and saucer to serve me! When I asked her why, she replied: "Because I don't want to ruin my Wedgewood with tea stains!"

I considered this an insult and told her so. She said my manners were worse than hers or I never would have brought the subject up. I'd like your opinion.

TEA DRINKER

DEAR TEA DRINKER: If your neighbor was sincerely concerned about staining her china with tea, she should learn how to wash dishes. Life is too short to be little. Ignore the incident. She is off base a country mile.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: When my mother died she left me a beautiful pair of diamond earrings. I would like to wear them but I never had my ears pierced when I was a child. Is it dangerous to have them pierced now? I am fearful of the operation.

Mrs. E. R.

DEAR MRS. E.R.: It is not dangerous if it is done by a physician. But a jeweler could 'fix' the earrings to be worn without having to have your ears pierced.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I know why I sometimes pick the table that is still messy from the last diners. It is usually one of the choice tables. The tables that are cleared and set up are the ones nobody wants. Near the kitchen, near the door, near the washroom or right under the air conditioner.

RESTAURANT HABITUE

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN YOUR HANDS": I cannot send you the names and addresses of the homes for unwed mothers in your area unless you send me your name and address. Yes, the information is strictly confidential and the homes are free.

★ ★ ★

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. L.: Why don't you visit with your friend in the afternoon? It is obvious that your husband and her husband have nothing in common, so don't force two grow men down each other's throats.

★ ★ ★

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby in care of The Pontiac Press.

Look Like Dresses, Costumes, Shirts

There's New Life in Spring Suits

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York couture group and other front-line fashion houses are breathing new life into the spring suit.

The new suit shapes, shown during opening of spring lines in New York during the last two weeks, make the suit that passes for a suit passe.

Some of the suits look like dresses, costumes, shirts, sweaters. Andf then there are the suit-like outfits that have split personalities — multiple purpose things that can be worn two or three ways.

The clothes, among those being unveiled during fashion shows for buyers from across the country, will be in the stores by January.

LINGO IMPORTANT

When you go suit shopping, though, you'll need to know the new suit lingo. The shirt suit, for example, looks like a slouch silhouette. It features a top that slips over the head. Some designers call this a pullover. This comes belted —and unbelted.

Sweater suits feature jackets looking like sweaters. Some have cowl backs.

Typical of the double and triple duty outfits: a four-piece wardrobe that you wear instead of carry. This mutiple-purpose costume, in the Adele Simpson collection, features a black coolie coat, one blouse and two skirts — worn at once or separately.

The blouse top in green and black blot print has a matching skirt. The second skirt, black, is worn over the printed one.

BACK TO PS 6

Miss Simpson, who travels abroad for fashion inspiration, this season also went around the corner to her alma mater—PS 6 in New York City.

Highlights of other collections:

—Ilie Wacs Couture advanced the long, lean look in coats and suits. The shape was spare but shoulders were wider. Jackets were longer and included demifitted to free-floating cardigan shapes. Skirts were lightly fitted with clear - cut shaping. Sleeves took an oriental slant. Kimono and raglan vied for honors with the squared-off, set-in sleeve.

★ ★ ★

—Maurice Rentner feated the pullover cut from bolts of varied cloth, including tweed and chiffon. Designer Bill Blass gave the shirtwaist new chic by turning one out in the sheerest of lace. The Blass look for evening: columns of crepe.

Or Are You Too Lazy?

Try a Daily 'Thank You'

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE N-482: Larry F., aged 20, is a college student.

"Dr. Crane," his generous father began, "maybe I am at fault for having made life too easy for Larry.

* * *

"For whenever I send him an extra 25 dollars, he doesn't even drop me a note to say 'Thank you, Dad.'

DR. CRANE

"I have paid all of his college expenses and furnish him a liberal allowance, besides, but he doesn't express any gratitude for that, either.

"What is wrong with people? Haven't they any gratitude?"

SAY "THANK YOU"

People nowadays alibi by saying they are too busy to write or to phone—or even to pay a deserved compliment.

* * *

But that is not true! They are just too indolent or plain lazy.

Which is why I launched the "Compliment Club" a few years ago in my psychology classes at Northwestern University.

* * *

How many of you readers say "thank you" to God when you sit down at the typical bountiful American table?

* * *

Yet our forefathers literally starved until a large percentage died that first year after landing at Plymouth Rock.

And others survived by eating the bark of trees and even gnawing the leather in their moccasins.

Maybe we would be in a far more appreciative mood if on Thanksgiving Day we'd fast entirely instead of gorging.

After a 24-hour fast, we might then begin to realize the bounties that God has literally showered on us Americans.

Then we might say "grace" or a "thank you, God" before our meals.

TONGUE-TIED

If you are a teen-ager at home today with your parents, have you said "thank you" to either Dad or Mother since morning?

Have you paid them a sincere compliment in the past 24 hours?

* * *

Yet they have worked and struggled to furnish you your meals and a roof over your head and your attractive clothes, plus a lot of luxuries that nobody but royalty can enjoy in many countries around the world.

And you husbands — have you paid your wife a compliment today?

Have you wives reciprocated to your husbands and thanked or praised them?

America is far too tongue-tied. We are inarticulate about the many blessings that God and our relatives have showered upon us.

Until we are marooned for a year in a TB sanitarium, we don't even recognize the value of a healthy chest.

Until we see a polio cripple valiantly hobbling around we ignore the nimble hands and feet with which we are blessed.

* * *

So let's all resolve to be more grateful.

We can start by thanking God at meals, even in a quick whisper.

And we can carry along this positive, articulate habit by offering sincere compliments to our companions.

Praise produces miracles. But personalities can wither and die from mere silence.

So learn to speak up. Praise people while they are still alive and can thus be buoyed up to renewed fervor in good works.

"Proper words in proper places," was the way Dean Swift defined literary style.

"Proper words in proper places," however, produces kindliness, brotherhood and heaven right here on this earth!

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Celeste Holm Knows Clothes

Dress to Create Mood

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Yesterday I quoted the famous, charming Celeste Holm when she spoke of the necessity of self-discipline in any success. I also reminded my readers that discipline which makes us faithful to beauty and health routines is essential if we wish to be our most attractive self and to prolong the youthful part of life.

According to Miss Holm, discipline carries over to the selection of clothes and to dressing. This actress recently commentated for a TV special on fashion.

She feels that a well-groomed and a well-disciplined woman is one who can steel herself to get rid of every mistake in her closet and never wear a color or style which is unbecoming to her just because everyone else is wearing it.

Celeste believes in creating a mood with clothes — bright colors for rainy days and soft shades for hot days. She uses her wardrobe of hats as an exciting emphasis to the mood of her clothes. Like so many chic women, she says, "I believe in simple clothes but I avoid the sameness of stark clothes by stirring up interest with a striking hat."

Miss Holm owns many different styles of hats. Which style she wears, "Just depends," she says, "on whether I am in a dashing, devastating or demure mood."

Simple, well-cut lines and good materials, plus stunning accessories, are not only smart but also flattering to the figure, especially the rather mature silhouette.

Along with the discipline of not buying styles or colors which are unbecoming, even though they are the mode, she said, "I like to have something definite in mind when I start out to shop—a color, a style of dress or a hat I want to match to something specific.

"By sticking to my guns, even if it means quite a bit of searching, I will wind up happy with what I've bought. The determination to say "NO" to certain saleswomen is worth it when everything in your closet satisfies you."

If you would like to have my leaflet, No. 54, "Planning Clothes to Suit Your Personality and Figure," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

To Honor Couple at Dinner

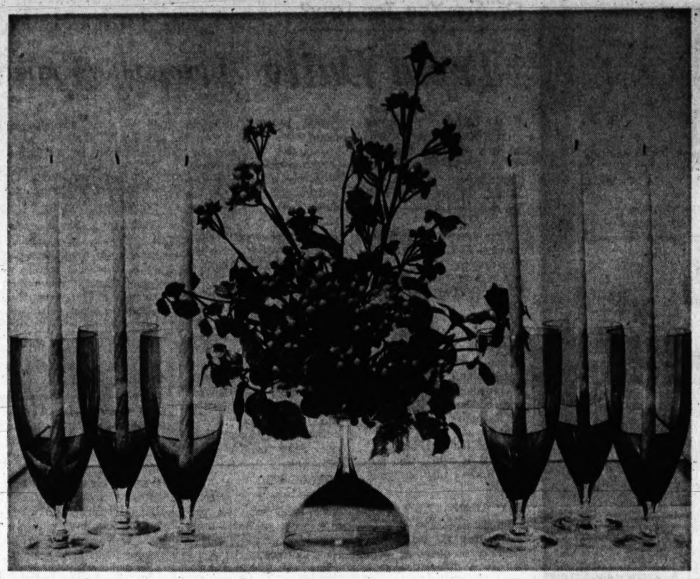
Cynthia Ann Terry and David Stevens who plan to wed Saturday in Our Lady of Refuge Church will be honored at a dinner-party today in the Old Mill Tavern, on Dixie Highway.

The Emil Mailahns of Auburn Heights, hosts for the affair, have invited their niece's parents, the Walter E. Terrys and daughters Pamela and Elizabeth of Orchard Lake. Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens of Green Lake, parents of the future bridegroom, and his brother Gregg and Mrs. E. John Gass of Detroit will also be present.

Cocoanut Is Good Garnish

Golden brown cocoanut makes an attractive garnish for cakes, ice cream, puddings and meringues. To toast cocoanut, spread it thinly in a shallow baking pan. Place in a gas oven preheated to 350 degrees and toast 8 to 12 minutes, or until delicately browned. Stir the the cocoanut occasionally so the flakes brown evenly.

Christmas dinner will get to the table faster if there's a can opener in the house that does everything automatically, even to rolling back the can edge. A device for removing bottle tops is an additional feature.



Crystal and candles, arranged on a window shelf or foyer table, convey a cheerful welcome to holiday guests. Displayed to highlight the symmetrical beauty of glass, the grouping is defined by swirling candles based in florists' clay. The sprightly floral arrangement of berries and leaves is perched atop the base of an upturned champagne goblet, easily composed by anchoring stems and petals in pliable clay. As a natural reflector of light and color, the "Debutante" Gray Mist glassware gaily radiates warmth and brilliance.

Explain 'Why' Behind Misjudged Actions

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Last spring Sharon enacted the role of the South Wind in her school play—and made quite a hit.

So yesterday she was shocked and depressed to learn that another sixth grade girl had been chosen to perform in their school's Thanksgiving play.

Certain that some disappointing fault in her had caused the drama coach to give the part to the other child, she couldn't get home quickly enough to seek sympathy from her mother. But she didn't get any.

* * *

As her mother cut her a slice of gingerbread, she said:

"What's the coach's choice of Sally Dobbs got to do with you? She's not given Sally the part because she thinks she's a better actress than you. She's given it to her because she has to give other sixth grade girls a chance to act in school plays. She's not been thinking about you at all. She's been thinking of trying to be fair to the other kids."

Sharon still felt disappointed at the denial of her wish to perform in the Thanksgiving play—but the desolate feeling that some unknown deficiency in her had caused the denial was considerably relieved.

* * *

Self-centeredness is a quality of childhood.

Like Sharon, youngsters tend to see accusation of them in any denial of their wishes.

When jealous Johnny discovers that we've had ice cream downtown with his little brother, he at once concludes that we find his little brother more satisfactory than we find him. It never occurs to him that we bought Buddy ice cream because he was with us when we wanted some.

To children, other people's needs are not really substantial. You, the school drama coach and I primarily exist to indulge their desires for parts in school plays and for ice cream.

They think that if their wishes are not indulged, it is only because we are secretly critical of them.

Therefore it is important to correct the young's impression that all denials of their wishes involve disapproval of them.

If we want to help Sharon outgrow her self-centered conviction that her drama coach had dislike of her on her mind-when she was seeking to deliver justice to other little girls, we have to say so. We have to declare truth that is behind the actions which children misjudge.

Polly's Pointers

For Kitchen Comfort!

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Buy an inexpensive or used stenographer's chair for use in the kitchen. The casters make the chair easy to move to any work area such as washer, drier (wonderful for sitting down to fold clothes, peel potatoes or listen to a child's problem) and so on.

The chair is easily moved to clean under and around and requires a small amount of space. Keep some reading matter or sewing in the seat of the chair to take advantage of those extra free minutes while cooking.

MRS. D. R. B.

DEAR POLLY — Place a colorful piggy bank in the bathroom to drop those used razor blades in for safety. No more cutting fingers. Also my easy way to melt those chocolate squares, used in cooking, is to leave the squares in the wrapper when they are removed from the box.

Put in a pan over hot water, turning them over a couple of times until melted. Open the paper and remove chocolate. None lost in sticking to a pan. MRS. M. L.

DEAR POLLY — When a two-battery flashlight gets dim, reverse position of the batteries and it will be bright again. MRS. M. S.

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY — Buy an extra half-yard when getting material for a house dress and make a tie-on apron to match your dress. They protect but look like part of the dress. Neater and nicer looking, too, than a contrasting color or pattern. MRS. R. L. T.

★ ★ ★

Here is a different answer to E.R.'s request for a way to soften her "heel." Use plenty of TALC (tenderness and loving care) to soften a heel. Make a big fuss about everything nice that he does or says. Put HIM on a pedestal, the idol of all men, the pillar of strength, the best father and the most wonderful man in the world. Plenty of Tender Loving Care should put you in the driver's seat in no time at all.

Sees Families Helped, Not Hurt, by American Women Who Work

EAST LANSING — The woman who works is not necessarily neglecting her family. She may well be improving it and society.

"Surveys show that more women than men are neurotic at middle age," says Dr. Elizabeth Drews, associate professor of education at Michigan State University and member of the President's Council on the Status of Women.

"Women get that way by just sitting. Employment or activities which offer intellecmuch to remedy this."

Dr. Drews says that the services women can offer, such as teaching, are needed all over the world. Also women need to feel useful. They don't want to become vegetables.

BIG PROBLEM

"How a woman combines her work and her intellectual interests with marriage is the big problem today," she continues.

"But it will be difficult to solve this until the cultural lag of seeing marriage and career as incompatible is overcome."

Naturally, a mother with young children cannot work full time, Dr. Drews agrees. But she feels every woman needs an outside activity to maintain an interest in the world around her.

"No one can be mentally healthy unless he continues to grow," the educator maintains. "Psychiatrists say the most common problem people voice in America today is that life has no meaning.

"Few have the momentum to keep up with world happenings on their own. Few have developed long term dedications."

An intelligent mother is a great boon to her children, not just an unappreciated servant, Dr. Drews believes.

Often the woman who works is more alive and more interesting, especially if her work is of an intellectual and creative nature.

Dr. Drews feels that patterns for working part time and for flexible education and training need to be established so that women can make the best use of their lives.

Many times, employers do not wish to hire part-time help, and colleges do not always welcome the mature woman who returns for more training, she points out.

But the situation is changing, she says. More women are working than ever before. Women are aware that they must continue to develop intellectually after marriage.

Find Quality, Value in Alaska Fur Seal

Alaska fur seal is the fur of unchallenged prestige with peak fashion rating and of timeless beauty. Like a precious gem it sets an international standard of quality and value. From its mysterious depths to its vibrant glow and silken softness, Alaska fur seal serves as a touchstone of inspiration to great designers on both continents.

Alaska fur seal is the ideal fur for bringing contemporary fashions into focus, in a panorama of trend-setting themes and variations. The soft beautiful pelts are perfect for dramatic capes of all lengths, modified princess lines with gentle ease, coats of great fullness and even fitted suits for the ultimate in luxury.

The Fouke Fur Company of Greenville, S.C., began processing and auctioning Alaska fur seal for the United States Government in 1916.

★ ★ ★

Since then they have achieved through continuous experimentation and research, beautiful shades for Alaska fur seal; Matara, a deep luscious blue brown, Kitovi, a midnight grey brown and of course, velvety black.

★ ★ ★

"Lakoda," sheared natural Alaska fur seal was introduced to the fur world by Fouke in October 1960. Only two years old, it has met with wonderful success.

This new member of the fur seal family is pastel amber in color, light in weight with a beautiful lustre and enchanting as pale sunlight.

Lakoda is less expensive than the dyed Alaska fur seal because it does not require all of the necessary 125 steps to achieve the black, Matara and Kitovi colors.

Pimientos Put Color in Sauce for Sprouts

Not only does this vegetable dish boast good flavor, but it's such an attractive color combination.

Brussels Sprouts With Coral Sauce

1 pint basket (½ to ¾ pound) brussels sprouts
1 cup boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
White pepper
2 drained canned pimientos

Trim ends from sprouts; remove any wilted leaves; soak in lightly salted water about 15 minutes. If some of sprouts are very large, cut in half. Cook rapidly, in a covered saucepan, with the boiling water and ¼ teaspoon of the salt just until tender, about 10 minutes; drain.

★ ★

Meanwhile make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk adding the remaining ¼ teaspoon salt and the pepper. Mash pimientos coarsely with a fork; add to white sauce with drained sprouts; reheat. Makes 4 servings.

City Living Least Preferred in Teen Poll

By EUGENE GILBERT
President, Gilbert Youth Research, Inc.

The relentless march of population in America toward city life rings no bells with the average teen-ager.

In our latest nationwide survey, we discovered that those who had had the opportunity of living in more than one type of community—city, small town, farm or suburb—said they preferred the city least of all.

"In the city," said Mary Kelleher, 16, of New Haven, Conn., "there isn't enough healthy air and outdoor amusements and sports."

Carolyn Sobuski, 18, of Erie, Pa., said there's "not too much of a chance to really be alone;" Cherie Raskin, 15, of Miami, Fla., also objected to the city's overcrowded way of life; and Nancy Colwell, 12, of Denver felt there were too many strangers a girl would never get to know.

Overcrowded conditions, in fact, was the objection of 32 per cent of the 1,026 young people we questioned.

Among the group, 45 per cent currently were living in the city, 27 per cent in the suburbs and 28 per cent in small towns or on farms.

Nearly half, 46 per cent, said they formerly had lived in another area than where they now are located.

When we asked which they liked best, 32 per cent of them said the suburbs, 26 per cent said a small town, and only 24 per cent said the city. Eight per cent liked the farm best, and the rest couldn't make up their minds.

LIKE BIG CITY STORES

From a list of potential advantages of living in a city, most of the teen-agers (38 per cent) selected the convenience of stores as the most important — and the girls seemed to attach slightly more value to it than the boys.

Being "close to everything" and having more things to do" also were considered city advantages.

Marc Sheinbein, 16, of Oklahoma City, felt the city affords better "protection from burglars and lightning."

The teen-agers weren't quite as agreed on the various advantages of small town living. Most (33 per cent) checked "you get to know everyone," and 16 per cent liked having more elbow room.

★ ★ ★

A surprising disparity showed up between girls and boys. Twenty per cent of the girls, but only 4 per cent of the boys, selected "people are friendly" as the greatest advantage of living in a small town. Twenty per cent of the boys, but only 14 per cent of the girls, appreciated "more space."

As Elizabeth O'Brien, 16, of Flushing, N.Y., put it, "You are able to become more friendly with your neighbors."

More than half the group, 58 per cent, said there were differences between city teen-agers and small town or rural teens. But there was spirited disagreement on which group had the more desirable characteristics.

★ ★ ★

"Some small town kids," said 15-year-old Julie Irwin of Lansing, Mich., "haven't had the opportunity of meeting lots of people and developing their personalities."

SNOBBISH OR GOSSIPY?

"City teens tend to mature faster and start dating earlier," said Margaret Schmidt, 15, of Englewood, N.J. Fair enough, replied Jamia Martino, 16, of New Haven, but they also have "more of an opportunity to become juvenile delinquents."

Danny Hill, 14, of Moorseville Ind., said he had noticed that "the country teens believe in work first; the city teens believe in fun first."

Marcia Free, 16, of Waterford, Pa., confeised the differences she could detect between the group were only slight, but the basic one was this:

"City teens are sometimes snobbier; small town teens sometimes gossipier."

Doctor Tells Nurses About TB Treatment

"The modern treatment for tuberculosis is surgical resection of the affected part." These were Dr. C. P. Mehas' words as he addressed the Oakland District Nurses Association Tuesday.

Dr. Mehas is TB consultant for the Oakland County Department of Health.

The speaker traced the history of treatment of tuberculosis from the early therapy of simple bed rest, through the use and discarding of collapse procedures such as pneumothorax to the modern drug and surgery therapy.

★ ★ ★

Hospitalization now is shorter and the patient is considered cured when he leaves, although he may remain on drug therapy for 1-3 years.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Mehas' conclusion was that "complacency is our biggest problem in the fight against tuberculosis today and education of the public is our greatest weapon for its eradication."

Pillar Club Looks at Trip Slides

Thirty members of the Pillar Club met Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. J. A. Rammes on Rosedale Avenue. Mrs. George Wasserberger, chairman on arrangements, was assisted by Mrs. Dexter Craig, Mrs. Fred Conner and Mrs. John Kiltie.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Wililam A. Gordon showed slides of a recent trip through the Canadian Northwest to Seattle. Mrs. Conner used "Forgiveness" as her devotional theme.

★ ★ ★

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Beulah Phillips, president; Mrs. Earl Treadwell, vice president; Mrs. Frederick Holmes, recording secretary; Mrs. Phillip Vieriech, treasurer, and Mrs. E. C. Russell, corresponding secretary.

Sorority Sees Europe Slides

Douglas Jilbert showed colored slides of his family's summer tour of Europe before some 13 members of Alpha Chapter, Beta Theta Phi Sorority, Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Orben Wilkens on Waldo Street. Mrs. Alice Sinclair was a guest.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Leon Reene reported on the chapter's participation in the Needlework Guild of America's recent ingathering.

A benefit sale Dec. 1 at 128 West Pike Street was announced by Mrs. Helen Turek, ways and means chairman.

The population density of Britain is approximately 552 persons to the square mile.

Logging Machine Helps Town of Baraga

BARAGA (AP) — Back in 1948, Philip LaTendresse invented a machine to handle logs.

The first machine was built in a small welding shop owned by LaTendresse and Clifford LeClaire. LaTendresse designed it for the needs of the Northwoods Timber Co. here.

LaTendresse called it the Cary-Lift. It was an odd looking contraption constructed mainly of war surplus materials, part from logging trucks and anything else LaTendresse could strip for parts at a time when materials were scarce.

Soon there was a brisk demand for the machine. Loggers and farmers in this western Upper Michigan area said it filled the bill.

In 13 years manufacture of the Cary-Lift has grown from a small seven-man operation to a thriving enterprise employing nearly 300 people in this community of some 1,000 population.

The machine has undergone many refinements and it is now made in a variety of models for the building trades as well as for loggers and farmers.

USES FOR MACHINE

Cary-Lifts are used primarily for log loading and skidding; loading and moving of finished products in plants such as celotex in L'Anse and in logging yards; loading and unloading coal, sand, gravel and iron ore with bucket attachments.

They are also used in steel mills to transport huge steel slabs weighing 20,000 pounds spiece.

When the operation outgrew the machine shop, LaTendresse obtained the financial backing of the Pettibone Mulliken Corp. of Chicago to expand production. Since then the Pettibone operation has made four moves to larger quarters.

At Baraga, machines of 8,000- to 30,000-pound capacity are manufactured at the rate of about 35 per month. Other Pettibone machines have capacities as high as 100,000 pounds. About 2,000 Cary-Lifts have been manufactured here altogether, but most of them have rolled off the production lines during the past five years.

A fleet of specially equipped trailer-trucks is maintained at Baraga to transport the Cary-Lifts to all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico.

The Pettibone Michigan plant is a boon to the economy of Baraga on Lake Superior's Keweenaw Bay.

In addition to the labor force employed at the main plant, eight machine shops in the local area are kept humming, turning out parts and castings for the huge lifters. These shops are independently owned and employ between 10 and 20 men each.

Cary-Lifts are a common sight in Baraga County and throughout the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, but they also have found their way into other parts of the world.

Some were shipped to the Antarctic, and the only modifications required were installations of special cold weather hoses and greases.

Others have been sold in Finland, Russia, Australia, Holland, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Panama and South America.

PAIN IS GOOD NEWS — Everett Knowles, 13, grins despite pain as Dr. Arthur L. Watkins exercises fingers of boy's right hand at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. The youth had the severed arm restored to his body less than an hour after a train accident in May. Doctors say sensation of pain is a good sign the arm is returning to normal.

Pinata's Mexican Version of U.S. Christmas Tree

South of the border, down Mexico way, the pinata is to Mexican children what the Christmas tree is to their northern neighbors.

Yet this colorful Mexican custom can be the highlight of a children's Christmas party anywhere.

In Mexico, pinatas are large clay pots elaborately decorated with tissue paper of various colors.

Often they are designed in the shape of birds, animals or comic faces.

Rather than being considered as a work of art, however, the light-hearted destruction of the pinata is a happy part of Christmastime festivities.

Suspended from the ceiling, the pinata is filled with gifts, candy and fresh fruit.

BLINDFOLDED

At a given point in the party, each child is blindfolded, handed a broomstick, and spun around until dizzy.

They are then allowed to swing three times for the pinata, hoping to shatter the clay pot and send its contents spilling over the floor. A happy scramble follows.

In the U. S., red clay flower pots and saucers make excellent pinatas.

Next, take a long piece of cord and pass it through the drainage hole in the bottom of the pot, knotting it inside the pot so that the pot may be suspended upside down.

Then select the goodies with which to fill your pinata.

After filling the pot to the brim with these, glue the saucer firmly to the rim of the pot and let dry overnight.

The pinata may be suspended directly from the ceiling or from another cord run from one wall to another.

Just be certain that it is well out in the center of the room so that the stick-wielding youngsters shatter nothing but the pinata.

Surviving 59ers Lick Alaskan Wilderness, Find Peace

TALKEETNA, Alaska (AP) — Forty-two strong they left their Michigan homes three and a half years ago to do battle with the Alaska wilderness.

Their numbers have wilted and endless toil and privation have taken their toll. But to the 17 Michigan 59ers who still live in the remote Susitna Valley, the wilderness has been licked.

* * *

Shielding his eyes from a bright autumn sun and looking approvingly over 17 acres of ripening oats, Marino Sik, to no one in particular, put it simply:

"We have found peace in our valley."

* * *

ALL HAD DREAMS

In the nation's newest state, all 42 had high dreams of carving a homestead—and a new life—from the dense birch forests and rich soil of the Susitna Valley, 80 miles north of Anchorage.

* * *

The Alaskan wilderness was too much of a hurdle for most of the 59ers, and they have long since drifted away, many back to the city life they once found distasteful.

Those who have managed to stick it out found their days filled to the brim with work, improving their homesteads and trying to make financial ends meet in a country where there are few available jobs.

Under the Homestead Act the 59ers get their land free provided they build a dwelling on it, cultivate at least an eighth of their land (usually 120 acres) and live on it at least seven months a year for three years.

* * *

Sik, lean and hard, is one of those still in the valley, along with his wife, young Lindy and Dino, who was born after Sik homesteaded on the Susitna.

* * *

Also remaining from the original group are Gerald and Bertha Donaldson; Ray and Bernice Kula; Nick Rubino, his wife and son; Steve Panewicz, his wife and son; Bill Orzechowski; Art Puchlik; Eric Eckland, and Bob Watkins.

The 59er homesteads lie on the west side of the Susitna River some five or six miles west of Talkeetna.

There is no bridge over the meandering stream. During the summer months, it can be crossed only by boat or by bush aircraft. During the winter, heavy ice acts as a natural bridge.

Reminiscing in his trim, comfortable log home, Sik said he wouldn't recommend homesteading to every one.

If you have the will to win a homestead, you can win one," Sik said, "but it's going to take hours and hours of sweat and work.

* * *

"If you haven't the will, you're wasting your time even thinking about it."

Sik's day is an example.

JUST ONE DAY

Morning chores precede an eight-hour day on a highway maintenance crew and the evenings are spent improving the homestead.

* * *

During the long, sunlit summer days, Sik works an average of 19 or 20 hours.

The Siks have some 50 chickens, 10 rabbits and a cow and a calf.

All demand daily attention, particularly during the bitterly cold winter months, when the temperature often skids to 40 or 50 degrees below zero.

Disappointments can come thick and fast in a country where the barest necessities, to a city dweller, are luxuries to the homesteader.

* * *

In 1960 Sik planted a half acre in potatoes, figuring to raise an adequate crop for his family, with enough left to sell for some extra money.

* * *

The potatoes grew fast and plump in the rich loam of the valley.

"I could have sold every spud I grew," he recalled.

* * *

"I started harvesting one evening after work. I got eight sacks out of the ground before it got dark.

"The temperature took a sudden, unexpected drop and by morning there was so much snow on the ground that I lost the rest of the crop."

But last summer the Siks had a healthy looking garden in a fenced-off patch of ground.

Tomatoes, radishes, lettuce and peas provided fresh vegetables for their table during the late summer and early fall. What couldn't be used was canned for winter by Sik's pretty wife—Carol.

The other 59ers planted small gardens, too, and Mrs. Donaldson also had a flower garden boasting snapdragons of hot house quality.

Moose and caribou meat also find their way into the diets of the 59ers, along with grouse, salmon and trout.

Mrs. Rubino, who operates a small grocery store in Talkeetna with her husband in addition to attempting to develop their homestead, said the new life has been good to them.

"I do get a little homesick now and then," she admitted, however.

"The most important thing, to me, is that the move was good for the children. They can spend their time doing a hundred and one things outdoors now. They don't have to be on the streets or take in a movie for recreation."

Asked if he'd do it again, Sik, a veteran of naval service in the South Pacific during World War II, nodded, then added:

"But, I'd do it a little differently.

"When we left Detroit, we brought enough staples—flour, sugar, spaghetti, rice, beans and macaroni—to last for what we thought would be at least a year. We still have some of that stuff left.

"Of course, it comes in handy from time to time, but had I only known what I was going to run into, I would have cut down on the staples and packed in a welder or perhaps a small crawler tractor.

"Those were the things we needed when we got here and they are the kind of things we still use.

"You can't clear ground without them. We brought too many things we couldn't use."

MINISTER AT HOME — Y. B. Chavan, India's new defense minister, plays with his pet Alsatian in his New Delhi home. He was sworn in this week. Chinese conditions for a cease fire were, in effect, rejected yesterday by Indian Prime Minister Nehru.

400 Students See 'Science' at MSUO

About 400 outstanding science students from high schools within a 75-mile radius Tuesday night got a preview of college science at Michigan State University Oakland.

Addressed by Dr. Lawrence Hafstad, vice president of research laboratories, General Motors Technical Center, they were told:

"Science today is one area where you'll get paid to play.

"In science you can select the exact type of job you want, select the area and climate in which you want to live, and your employer will provide your toys.

"Science today is like chess or mountain climbing. It is hard work but it is great fun."

Dr. Hafstad also told the students he was very much impressed with a series of lab demonstrations put on by MSUO science students for the high school students.

He said MSUO provided a first-class opportunity for a topnotch science education.

The conference was called to acquaint high school students with the science program at MSUO and will be followed with a similar program for languages and social sciences.

80,000-Acre Spray for Beetle Finished

LANSING (UPI) —An aerial treatment of 80,000 acres of land in Monroe and Lenawee counties to eradicate the Japanese beetle was finished yesterday, State Agriculture Director G. S. McIntyre said.

Four converted B25 bombers were used to apply 1.6-million pounds of dieldrin pellets to the area, the largest single project for eradication of the crop pest ever attempted in this country, McIntyre said.

Millions for Wrapping

The studies also show that the annual national gift wrapping market is $200 million plus.

Communism Is Studied but Teaching Distorted

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The study of communism is spreading rapidly in the public schools but the instruction is often distorted and even dangerous.

★ ★ ★

That warning to the nation's top school officials was voiced by Richard I. Miller, who conducted a nationwide survey for the National Education Association.

NOT PREPARED

Teachers are not prepared properly to teach their students about foreign affairs, and the materials available to them "leave much to be desired," Miller told the Council of Chief State School Officers.

There is need for more realism in teaching about the Soviet Union, Miller said in a prepared speech.

★ ★ ★

"Comparison of the highest American ideals with selected Soviet realities is distorted education, and dangerous besides," Miller said.

Students not properly equipped to question those comparisons, Miller said, may find themselves, "as did many U.S. prisoners of war in Korea, unable to cope with brainwashing."

Miller said teaching about communism in the public schools "has become fashionable—in fact it has become a fetish in some minds."

STATE LAWS

Miller noted that Florida passed a detailed law last year showing exactly how the study of communism should be presented. New York and California have laws permitting but not requiring the subject, and the Georgia and Louisiana legislatures passed resolutions requesting that class time be given to a study of communism.

Miller said it is not wise for the state legislatures to pass specific laws on teaching about communism.

"Action by the state legislatures should be confined to general education policies," he said. "Program planning should be left to the educators."

K Drastically Shakes Communist Party Organization

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

News Analysis

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev, a tireless tinkerer with the organization of his Communist party and government, has embarked on one of the most drastic shakeups since he took command of the Soviet Union.

The Soviet leader unveiled a blueprint for new, tightly centralized controls of this country's ailing economy at a meeting of the Communist party Central Committee Monday.

The scheme appeared to mark a long step backward from earlier Khrushchev experiments with decentralization. In his new proposals, little of the limited freedom for initiative he once touted as the key to economic development appears to have survived.

Most of all, it exposed Khrushchev's faith in the traditional Communist belief that the right organizational setup will cure all problems.

In the top-to-bottom reorganization the lowest Communist party administrative organs, called district committees, are to be abolished. These units, mainly in rural areas, will be replaced by about 1,500 party committees called agricultural production directorates.

Similar directorates were set up last spring to supervise collective and state farms. It appeared that these would now become the basic rural administrative unit of the party.

SPLIT COMMITTEES

Proceeding up through the party hierarchy, existing committees would, in effect, be split into two —one to supervise agriculture, the other industry.

This division would be carried to the highest level—the Central Committee.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev asked that two new bureaus of the Central Committee be formed. One would run agriculture committees at the lower levels and the other industrial organs.

2 NEW BUREAUS

In addition, he called for the creation of two bureaus to handle industrial and agricultural affairs in the Russian Republic, the Soviet Union's largest.

★ ★ ★

The new organs would appear to leave the already existing Russian Republic Bureau stripped of most of its responsibilities. This bureau is now headed by Khrushchev and is run for him by Gennady Voronov.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev also proposed the establishment of a bureau of the Asia to take charge of developing the economically backward republics of Uzbekistan, Tadjikista Kirghizia and Turkmenistan.

K TRAVELED

Khrushchev spent two weeks this fall traveling through central Asia and came away with glowing reports of its untapped potentialities.

Implementation of the reorganization plan would involve large-scale reapportionment of duties and power among Communist party leaders as well as the rank-and-file.

★ ★ ★

Unless Khrushchev elects to head the most important of the new Central Committee bureaus himself, the assignment of these posts to other presidium members could reflect important shifts in the Kremlin power structure.

State Senator in Line for Post

McNamara May Head Public Works Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most influential positions in the Senate may go to Michigan Democrat Pat McNamara when the 88th Congress convenes in January.

With the death Sunday of New Mexico Democrat Dennis Chavez, the 68-year-old McNamara moved into a commanding position from which to succeed Chavez as chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee.

PORK BARREL

This committee—whose output sometimes is called pork barrel legislation — authorizes federally financed public works projects.

The friendship of its chairman, therefore, is earnestly courted — by Senate colleagues seeking approval of public works projects for their states.

Thus the chairman of the public works committee is in the enviable position where he can (A) do some profitable legislative horse trading, and (B) do a barrelful of good for his own state.

Few public works committeemen will oppose a project backed by their leader.

The influence wielded by the chairman extends far beyond the limits of the public works committee.

For instance, if McNamara were chairman, he would be in a position to attract votes of interior committee members for the Sleeping Bear Dunes national lakeshore bill that bears the McNamara name.

In turn, he could promise support for vote-getting public works projects in the home states of the interior committee senators who agreed to help him.

Ordinarily, the seat vacated by Chavez would fall automatically to the second-ranking Democratic member. McNamara is No. 3.

But the man above him, Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, already is chairman of the Senate Space Committee.

By tradition, no senator holds more than one major committee chairmanship at the same time.

48 Counties to Be Told of U.S. Funds

LANSING (UPI) — Representatives of 48 counties in the outstate area will be informed in a series of public workshops of the federal grants available under the Accelerated Public Works Program, state economic development director, Robert J. Byers, said yesterday.

Byers said no workshop was planned for the Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair and Monroe counties area because communities in the southeast metropolitan area have technical staffs familiar with the federal program.

The state economic development department will conduct the workshops in cooperation with the Chicago regional office of Community Facilities Administration, the Detroit Regional Office of Area Redevelopment administrations and the Michigan State University Extension Service.

The state and federal officials will assist local representatives in filing applications for the federal grants, Byers said.

"Thus far, workshops for representatives from communities of all 15 Upper Peninsula counties have been held," Byers said. "During the week of Dec. 4, there will be a series for representatives from communities in 25 counties in the northern lower peninsula."

Forty per cent of farm family income in the United States is from nonfarm sources.

Pictures Help Us Preserve Pleasurable Moments

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Some of our most pleasurable moments are at the theatre when we see plays, concerts or other live entertainment and at our clubs, churches, schools or other organizations which present shows, skits or other talent.

* * *

As spectators we are left with happy memories and perhaps a playbill or program.

Unfortunately our memories are short - lived and the program is soon discarded or vanishes into a drawer or box along with other forgotten mementos.

Why not utilize our hobby of photography to take pictures of these events?

With color slides we'll have a permanent record of colorful costumes and artistic settings along with the show's personalities and dramatic highlights.

Black - and - white pictures can be put into a photo album along with the printed program where they make a ready reference record, easy to find and talk about at any later date.

FEW TABOOS

There are rarely any taboos on picture taking except in some legitimate theaters in some big cities.

Even then the regulations which prohibit taking pictures are theatrical union rules intended to regulate the commercial use of the pictures.

Today, with high speed films in both color and black and white, it is fairly easy to capture the natural illumination of stage settings.

In fact, it would be a mistake to use accessory flash or strobe light because it would tend to destroy the authenticity of the stage lighting or dramatic effect of a spotlight.

High speed Ektachrome Type B (for artificial light) is the fastest (ASA125) color film available for both 35mm and 120 roll film cameras.

* * *

Super Anscochrome Type B is also available in both sizes and is just a bit slower (ASA 100).

An exposure of 1-50 at f-4 with high speed Ektachrome has proved satisfactory on many previous occasions.

This can be used as a starting guide because it is almost impossible to take accurate light meter readings from a spectator's seat.

A possible exception is the Heiland Pentax spot meter which pinpoints an area of only three degrees for a reading, even from a distance.

In black - and-white, Tri-X film, with a speed of ASA 400, has proved very effective in capturing available light stage action with exposures of 1-100 at f-5.6.

Super - Hypan film, though rated at ASA 500, is a bit slower than Tri-X in actual use, I've found.

Royal-X pan film is the fastest roll film available (ASA 1600) but it fogs easily and is limited to the developer recommended by the manufacturer for best results.

Many private organizations are glad to have their shows photographed and may possibly arrange front row seats for the purpose.

In other cases, a seat in the center of the first row balcony or mezzanine of a theater offers many advantages.

It will not attract the attention of the actors, eliminates any possibility of heads bobbing up in front of the lens and commands a good view of the entire stage.

If your seat is not near the stage, it's an advantage to use a 35mm camera with interchangeable lenses.

Telephoto lenses will fill the frame fully or get close-ups. The normal 50mm or a wide-angle lens will show the complete stage setting.

A tiny penlight flashlight is a useful accessory when it comes inconspicuously in the dark.

Needless to add, all of your picture-taking actions should be as inconspicuous as possible.

* * *

To round out the picture story, you should add views of billboard posters advertising the show and the theater marquee. These make good title slides or a cover picture for the photo album.

ON STAGE — Exotic costumes and peak action make this a prized memory in our columnist's front-row scrapbook. It recalls the first time Roy Benson and Connye did an act in the Burmese manner for the Society of American Magicians in New York City. Using manual control on a Rolleimagic camera, the exposure was 1-50 at f6.3 with Tri-X film.

Floods Cause Damage

BELGRADE (UPI)—The flood-stricken province of Macedonia suffered damage estimated to exceed $13 million and several hundred acres of cultivated land still are under water, the official news agency Tanjug reported yesterday.

Albania has a population of 1,581,000 living in an area a little larger than the state of Maryland.

Yule Spending at $161

The average American family will spend $161 on Christmas presents this year, according to a study of the nation's gift-giving habits.

Tax Appeals Force Look at Community's Budget

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS (AP) — City Manager Donald Ziemke says Muskegon Heights must re-examine its budget in the wake of state tax commission rulings which struck some $800,000 from the tax rolls.

The commission cut $605,000 from the assessment on the defunct Norge plant and upheld portions of appeals by operators of Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry and Consumers Power Co. units, the latter two bringing community losses of approximately $100,000 each.

Urges Liberal Labor Rules

Pennsy VP on Stand in Merger Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Pennsylvania railroad vice president urged the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday to adopt its "most liberal" labor protection conditions in approving the proposed Pennsylvania - New York Central merger.

Guy W. Knight, vice president for labor relations, took the witness stand after Walter O. Patchell, Pennsylvania vice president for special services, completed 10 days of testimony and cross-examination on financial aspects of the merger before ICC hearing examiners.

Knight said the two railroad favored "fair and adequate protection for employes affected by the merger, more liberal in scope and generosity than any available in other major segments of the industrial economy."

He said the lines supported use of the so-called "New Orleans conditions, the most liberal of those prescribed by the commission in the past." But he suggested two revisions of the conditions to provide for:

—"Binding arbitration where special arrangements implementing the merger cannot be worked out with the unions involved."

—Authority for the railroads to fill vacancies in particular crafts or classes with qualified employes whose comparable positions were abolished by the merger, rather than hiring new employes and paying dismissal indemnities to permit them to stay unemployed.

★ ★ ★

Both Pennsylvania Board Chairman James M. Symes and Central President Alfred E. Perlman testified when the hearings opened in August that a net of 7,800 jobs would be eliminated by the merger, while strengthening the employment security of the remaining 120,000 employes of the combined line.

Let Children Sing to Record Music

As every adult who pretends to understand children knows, youngsters love to sing.

When planning a Christmas "sing" party, first decide on the songs and assemble a group of records for the children to follow.

Traditional Christmas songs that most children learn early should be chosen.

The group will naturally enjoy the occasion more if they are familiar with the songs. It would be a good idea then to give their mothers a little advance warning to enable them to familiarize the children with the music selected.

If the children are old enough to read, you can have the songs run off on a mimeograph.

Singing along with records will make it easy for them to follow the carols. The music should be tuned fairly low so that it will not overwhelm their voices.

For very young fry, records such as "Jingle Bells," "Away in a Manger," and "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," all on one side, would be good choices.

★ ★ ★

On the other side of this RCA record are "Under the Stars," "I Saw Three Ships," and "Once in Royal David's City."

Reds, Americans Woo Primitive Viet Nam Tribesmen

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —Americans in South Viet Nam are learning some lessons their forefathers knew by heart when the Indian and white man clashed for control of the North American continent.

BACKGROUND — UP SPECIAL REPORT — OF THE NEWS

Dotting the remote, jungle-covered highlands of central Viet Nam are hundreds of small forts and outposts, where Vietnamese troops and their American advisers base operations.

These operations are not intended to kill. They are to make friends and influence people.

Outside the posts are dark-skinned tribesmen, who dress in brilliant, hand-woven fabrics or loin clothes. They are silent, simple people, who hunt with spears and cross bows. Their arrows sometimes are tipped with deadly strychnine-based poisons extracted from native plants.

FIGHT BOTH SIDES

Some are fighting on the side of the Saigon forces. Some are fighting for the Vietnamese Communist rebels. Most are content to be left alone by all outsiders.

There are 700,000 of these highland mountaineers, divided into about 34 main tribal groups and dozens of sub-groups. Few of the tribes speak common languages. Only a minority speaks Vietnamese, the national language.

★ ★ ★

Yet they are the dominant inhabitants of a sparsely-populated area making up about two-thirds of South Viet Nam's land area.

As such, they are key elements in the deadly war between the Viet Cong and the government, whether they like it or not.

The problem for the government is to win their allegiance and persuade them to help strangle the Communist enemy working among them.

ISOLATED PEOPLE

For many years, outsiders—including the Vietnamese—have had little contact with the Montagnards, as they are called. Any contact was rarely cordial. Merchants from the lowlands selling the Montagnards cheap trinkets and beads often left cheated and embittered tribesmen behind.

In French colonial days, which ended only eight years ago, Montagnard workers often were exploited by highlands plantations.

As in the early days of the American Indian, liquor plays an important role in community relations, and outsiders have to get used to the idea. A common greeting in the highlands is "Nam lu," meaning "Let's get drunk together."

In recent months, the pressure of war and blandishments in the lowlands have pushed more than 100,000 of these tribesmen away from their ancestral homes toward areas controlled by the government. The movement has created an enormous feeding problem for the government, but it is regarded as progress toward eventual victory in the highlands.

SLOW WORK

Saigon forces and U.S. advisers with them are cutting into Viet Cong influence, but the work goes slowly.

The Viet Cong, realizing years ago the importance of Montagcampaign, has been working hard among the tribes, sometimes marrying into them to strengthen ties.

Saigon forces are still trying to overcome the tendency to refer to the Montagnards as "Moi." That means savage and the tribesmen don't like the word.

★ ★ ★

Americans and Vietnamese are learning side by side how to avoid violating important taboos. One does not enter certain parts of houses, and one does not cut wood in certain places. The spirits inhabiting certain streams must not be offended by dumping refuse into the water.

ARM TRIBESMEN

The anti-Communist forces have taken a big risk, but so far it seems to be paying off. They are arming many of the more reliable Montagnards with weapons better than arrows — rifles and tommy guns. It is a vote of confidence in the tribesmen, and it apparently is appreciated.

The bitter memories of the Indochina war still are reminders that the Montagnard can be a deadly enemy if he is not on your side.

The soft-spoken hunters played an important role supporting Viet Minh forces in North Viet Nam, especially in the closing months of the war at the battle of Dien Bien Phu. Now the West is trying to avoid making the same mistake a second time.

AP Photofax

YANK WITH MONTAGNARDS — An American officer serving with the South Viet Nam forces poses with a group of Montagnards in front of one of their provisionary huts in a military camp in central Viet Nam. There are about 700,000 Montagnards in the highlands of central Viet Nam and the government is trying to win their alliance in the war with the Communist Viet Cong.

Turks Won't Talk Turkey on Turkeys

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Don't talk turkey — at least the gobble-gobble kind — with the Turks. They don't like it.

"Why do you call those dumb birds turkeys?" One irate Turk asked an American. "Do you regard the Turks as stupid?"

How did the turkey get its name, anyway? Most experts, while admitting the true answer is dimmed by time and myth, believe it happened this way:

The star of American Thanksgiving dinners originally came from North America and was introduced to Europe by returning Spanish explorers.

Earlier, the guinea had come to Europe from Africa via the Middle East and Turkey. It was then known as the Turkey. When the American bird arrived in England, it erroneously was tagged with the same name. And it stuck.

The bird is known in Turkey as the hindi — the Turkish word for India.

Tackled in Church

DARLINGTON, England (UPI) —John Raw, 19, a thief ran into a church here for sanctuary, a court was told. Inside, Raw was pursued and tackled by the Rev. John Timney.

14th District Elects Durant

DETROIT (AP) — Fourteenth District Republicans have taken another slap at George Romney, GOP Governor-elect.

They have elected Richard Durant, who resigned from the John Birch Society under prodding by Romney, to chairmanship of the district Republican organization to replace Stanley Baldwin, who resigned.

Over Romney's opposition, Durant, although he couldn't be elected a committee delegate, was elected vice chairman of the 14th District Republican organization.

While Durant was losing his bid for election as an organization delegate, Baldwin was winning a seventh two-year term in August. Baldwin said he quit because of the pressure of outside work.

Romney, vacationing in California, was unavailable for comment.

U.S. Copters to Bring Fuel to Antarctica

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — U.S. helicopters will be used as emergency fuel carriers at McMurdo Sound station in Antarctica, where oil reserves are critically low.

The shortage is due to a fire five week ago at the McMurdo nuclear power plant. The plant was shut down for about a month, forcing men of Operation Deep Freeze to use diesel generators for electrical power.

Operations officers say the helicopters will fly 450 drums of fuel from a storage area established several years ago at Marble Point, 45 miles from McMurdo.

★ ★ ★

When that is exhausted, they will flyl fuel from the tanker Chattahoochee, which is making slow progress toward McMurdo through ice heavier than usual. The ship is now 45 miles from McMurdo.

No More Welfare, Department's Broke

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Kent County's Welfare Department said yesterday it was "broke" and payment on all hospital bills for welfare recipients was suspended until a solution is reached.

County Controller Leonard V. Andrus said the Welfare Department had a balance of less than $25,000 and bills totaling $73,747 have been processed for payment.

He also said the department has no way of meeting its administrative payroll.

'X15 Crash Due to Gear Failure'

Structural Defect Is Blamed in Probe

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has reported a structural failure in landing gear apparently caused the X15 rocket ship to crash during an emergency landing Nov. 10.

NASA said a preliminary investigation of the crash indicated some part of the ship's landing gear might have collapsed after a perfect skid-landing on a dry lake bed.

Space agency pilot John McKay, 39, escaped with only minor injuries although the X15 lurched sideways on its ski-like landing skids for several hundred feet on the Mud Lake emergency landing area before flipping over. The landing gear tore loose from the ship.

NASA said exact cause of the mishap could not be determined until later and that a full investigation of the crash was still being made.

The Air Force, a contributor to the X15 program, said one of the ship's skids was believed to have struck a crack on the dry lake surface.

McKay said he ran into trouble as soon as the X15 was dropped from the B52 mother ship at 45,000 feet. He said he could not get enough pressure in the ship's jet engine chamber to make his climb. He was forced to circle down for a landing at the emergency landing point.

NASA said the ship was not as badly damaged as first suspected. However, officials said it still had not been determined whether to try to salvage the $13-million craft.

Workers to Get Annual Salary —a Union First

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — United Auto Workers Local 55 and a Buffalo machine company have signed a contract putting the plant's production and maintenance workers on an annual salary — something usually reserved for white-collar workers.

A UAW spokesman in Detroit said the contract was the first of its kind in the union, which has more than 1,000 labor contracts throughout the nation.

Under the three-year contract, the 25 workers at Sabo Machine & Tool Workers, Inc., will draw annual salaries of $6,240 for skilled status; $5,760 for limited-skilled; and $5,510 for unskilled.

The salaries will be increased $180 in 1963 and another $180 in 1964.

The workers formerly were paid by the hour.

GI Families in New Area

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese government turned over a new housing project outside Tokyo to the U.S. security forces yesterday to accommodate their families moving out of Washington Heights.

Washington Heights is being returned to Japan for use as the Olympic Village in 1964.

A huge sign at the entrance of the new project called "Kanto Mura" read "Welcome Americans to Your New Home."

Wrap That Gift in Pretty Way and Have Fun

The true traditions of the Yuletide, the beauty of the season, and the gaiety of the holiday are reflected in Christmas gift wraps.

The trend is away from the sophistication of recent years. It seems Christmas gift-wrappers are becoming more nostalgic about Christmas in this era of outer space. They want to give gifts that look as festive as the season.

More and more wraps this year are featuring the Christmas tree, Santa Claus, Christmas bells and other traditional symbols.

Some papers spell out greetings like "Merry Christmas" in sparkling letters. Red is the predominant color, with gold and silver following closely. Many wraps feature whimsical children and animals.

Inspired by the current revival of cut-glass collecting, diamond dust, black jet and gold sparkle abound to give wraps a glittering appearance. Other patterns like green velvet are flecked to resemble rich Victorian damasks.

In the contemporary area is "Jewel Trees," a gift wrap with sequin trees in large gold and white squares.

Colors and glitter also combine brilliantly in one of the most frequently used motifs — the snowflake. Gold and silver snowflakes appear in many variations on gold backgrounds, against purple and green squares, or on textured white paper.

STRIPED DESIGNS

Others are in striped designs interspersed with glittering foil bands in bright blues and reds.

Accompanying the galaxy of gift wraps are matching ribbons, many of which stick to themselves to simplify bow-tieing.

New are spun ribbons, luster effects and shadow stripes.

As for wrapping gifts, use gift wrap paper with a dainty design for small packages, paper with a bold design for large packages.

Solids can be used for any size, but vary width or ribbon — narrower for small boxes, wider for large ones. Select a paper appropriate to the gift and the recipient.

Postcard Gets Red Tape Trip

PARMA, Italy (AP) — It took two months and a trip to the Soviet Union for a postcard sent from here to reach a village only 10 miles from Parma.

The postcard was addressed to the village of Felino in the district of Mosca.

* * *

Mosca is the Italian name for Moscow, and the card went off to the Soviet capital. The Moscow postoffice sent it back.

Is Gramps an Indian giver? Statistics have long shown that grandparents are the number one buyers of gift bikes for children at Christmas. Current figures indicate a new trend that puts Grandpa's motives in a new light!

Jewelry Plays Big Gift Role

Fashions Simpler, So Accessories Needed

Jewelry has traditionally been an ideal gift and this season its importance as a fashion accessory is stronger than ever before.

* * *

Dress, coat and suit fashions are simple, and as necklines lose their collars and sleeves become shorter, the importance of necklaces, longer drop earrings and bracelets becomes a significant fashion point.

* * *

Some of the season's most striking jewelry fashions have combined the traditional pearl necklace with contemporary designs to create the "soutoir," a favorite jewelry accessory.

Any woman is going to welcome a pair of drop earrings this season. Collarless necklines and shorter hair styles have given the longer earrings new fashion importance.

The visible drop earrings in simple gold or beads are now a daytime fashion. For evening, the more dramatic earrings are worn. There are long skinny drops, ladylike tear drops and glorious shower drops in crystal, pearl and stone.

VERSATILE PIN

The big, beautiful pin is the most versatile gift of all. There are new imaginative ways to wear pins — in pairs high on the shoulder, at the waistline to accent the lowered waist, or combined with a necklace, fastened in front.

* * *

And a new idea in bracelets is a big charm worn on a single rigid bracelet. This year's jewelry will bring pleasure to all.

Fossil Findings Clue to Inland Australian Sea

DARWIN, Australia (AP)—Fossilized remains of a crocodile have been found near Alice Springs, in the center of Australia, 1,000 miles from the sea.

The find is regarded as further evidence that a vast inland sea once covered most of the Central Australian desert.

Watch It . . . Don't Use False Set of Vocal Cords

NEW YORK (UPI) — In addition to true vocal cords there are false ones in every human throat, and when the false gets mixed up with the true it can only cause trouble as in other fields of activity.

Medical science has had its attention called to this fact by Dr. Herbert L. Fred of Baylor University, Houston, Tex.

The trouble is a persistent hoarseness which can be mistaken for laryngitis.

Physicians make this mistake often, he said. It is easy to make. He told of one man who had been speaking with his false cords for 20 years and had been hoarse all that time.

The false cords are actually the "ventricular bands" of the throat. They're bands of elastic connective tissue intermingled with a few muscle fibers.

The act of speaking brings them toward one another while it is bringing the true cords together in front of the amplifying sound box, the larynx.

If these bands should come together they'll vibrate and give off sounds for the larynx to send forth. In this way they can take over from the true vocal cords.

VOICE CRACKS

When they do the results can be voice-cracking and occasional momentary inability to form words, in addition to hoarseness.

* * *

Fred noted that this unhappy condition has been recognized from time to time. It even has a name — "Dysphonia plicae ventricularis." His point was that it isn't recognized nearly as often as it should be.

* * *

In most cases, he continued in reporting to a technical organ of the American Medical Association, the cause of this strange false is unknown.

There must be psychological things at work which permit some people to learn to use these bands to form their words rather than using the cords designed for that purpose, he said.

What these are is unknown but once the switch is made the switcher needs help to switch back to the true.

He lumped them under the term, "psychologic stress." Abuse of the voice could do it, too — too much talking at too high a pitch without pause for vocal-cord rest. And a co-existing disorder of the larynx could cause some cases.

* * *

He urged physicians to find out if the false was being used for the true whenever they look down the throat of a hoarse person. It can be done with that familiar mirroring medical instrument called the laryngoscope.

* * *

With the instrument in place, you have the hoarse person say, e-e-e-e-e. Then you can see the false cords come together while the true cords do not meet. In normal speaking it works the other way.

To return the person to the true way of speaking from the false, voice rest may be enough, he said. Restraining in speaking techniques often helps. In some cases nothing much can be done.

At least, he said, the condition is benign. Its only penalty is persistent hoarseness.

Aim for Value in Buying Toys

Want a grade A rating as a good Santa? Then put toys first on your Christmas shopping list.

UNDERTAKE a careful check on how old the children on your list are.

DON'T RELY on hazy memory when you don't often see the children for whom you buy toys. Your mental picture of a chubby toddler can be completely inappropriate as a gift guide for junior who is trying to make the Little League.

TAKE A FEW minutes to read the roundups on what children's play interests are at different age levels.

DON'T EMULATE Scrooge and delay your toy buying to the eleventh hour, rush into a toy department and make a haphazard choice of eye-catching items that really appeal to you.

COMMUNICATE with parents on special bents evidenced by junior and his sister.

The first requisite of a toy is fun value. However, playthings are literally the child's tools of learning. A well balanced choice of toys can be an immeasurable inspiration and aid to every youngster in making the most of his capabilities and preparing for a career.

The new scope of science-beamed toys, for example, has substantially extended the age appeal of toys into the teen bracket.

Safety is, of course, a prime requisite of the good Christmas toy. It is a wise Santa who reads labels and instructions of toy kits carefully to check on age suitability.

* * *

What is safe for a 10-year-old may be quite undesirable for a three-year-old. Toys purchased for babies require a special double check to be sure there are no rough edges or loose parts.

All baby toys should be safe if put into the mouth and easy to keep clean.

The United States is one of the few countries left in the world where railroads are still owned and operated by private enterprise.

EVERY LITTLE miss likes to arrange her doll's hair into pretty and different hair styles, often with disastrous results to the new Christmas doll. This year, ther'es new delight for junior hairdressing artists. A special process gives this doll's blonde tresses an extra special wave that lasts despite shampoos and experimentation. She can have a curly top, a smooth bouffant or a pony tail. How she wears her hair depends on the whim of her petite mama.

Call It 'Anti-Fascist Defensive Rampart'

Communist Propagandists Finally Mentioning the Wall

BERLIN (AP)—For over a year the Communists shied away from direct mention of their wall through Berlin. Now they are losing some of their inhibitions on the awkward subject. They are starting to build it into their propaganda.

When the wall was begun, Communists writers went into verbal contortions to avoid naming it.

Instead of calling a wall a wall they said it was "the protection of our national frontier" or "the defensive measures of Aug. 13"—clumsy expressions for anyone in a hurry.

The controlled newspapers of East Germany never printed pictures of it.

At first they said the defensive measures were taken to keep out "Fascist agents" and "slave traders." The agents, the Reds said, were trying to subvert or spy on East Germans.

The "slave traders" were trying to lure them to the West. That was the explanation for the departure to the West of up to 3,000 refugees a day.

Later the Communists put up steel tank traps and asserted the defenses were to stop "western aggression" against the Soviet bloc.

In private some Communists admitted they found the wall embarrassing. But they pointed out that it was serving its main purpose—to hold back refugees and prevent the economy being bled of essential manpower.

Now the propagandists have changed their line. They have found a suitable term to describe the wall. They call it "our anti-Fascist defensive rampart." Oddly enough, the German word for rampart or dike is "wall."

Hardly a day passes without ADN, the official East German news agency, reporting a group of distinguished visitors inspecting the "rampart."

Once they would have been kept away. But now they are taken up to the Brandenburg gate to gaze at the wall, the wire and tank traps and peek into West Berlin.

The Communists appear to steer their visitors away from such heart-rending sights as Bernauerstraase, where apartment blocks are bricked up and the Potsdamerplatz, where the once busy heart of downtown Berlin has been turned into a concrete desert.

Poland's Communist leader, Wladyslaw Gomulka, was taken to see the wall on his official visit. He said the right things to please his hosts—that the East German troops were guarding peace and protecting the whole Soviet block.

RECENT SIGHTSEERS

A French Communist senator, an Australian labor leader and a group of Lutheran bishops from Eastern Europe were among recent sightseers on the East side of the wall.

Usually they are quoted as making statements like that of the French senator, Georges Cogniot:

★ ★ ★

"In the name of the working population of Paris I can say that this rampart pleases them. The French people are for peace and this rampart is a rampart of peace."

Pictures of them are taken and published in the Communist-run press. Usually, however, these shots do not show the wall itself—an ugly object in anyone's picture.

But the distinguished guest is shown with the Brandenburg gate in the background. The photographer stands with his back to the wall.

Foreign visitors to East Berlin get a brightly colored propaganda leaflet handed out in the customs hut at the checkpoint. Its title: "What you ought to know about the wall."

★ ★ ★

German visitors get a somewhat tougher version, entitled: "What I must know about the wall." Both of them frankly use the German word for wall—"Mauer."

'NO LOVE FOR WALLS'

"We have no special love for walls, either," the leaflets say, somewhat apologetically.

They go on to argue that the "real wall" has been put up by West Germany, a wall of "anti-Communist provocation" and "atomic rearmament."

The reason for the Communist propaganda line is not clear. It may have been decided that the wall was so obvious that the Communists only made themselves ridiculous by ignoring it.

The West Germans have been exploiting its propaganda value to the hilt by flying in official visitors from all over the world. Representatives of newly independent nations are specially prominent.

It seems the Reds want to at least convince their own sympathizers of the rightness of their cause.

Since the wall looks like it will be there for some time, they may have decided they had better to make people live with it.

★ ★ ★

The propaganda carefully avoids mentioning any conditions under which the wall might be torn down.

Photograph Single Fallout Particles

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK — Four scientists have both looked at and photographed individual radioactive particles in the fallout from nuclear explosions. That's a scientific feat for the books, brother!

Because they're radioactive, such particles are easy to locate, if you have a radiation detector. But picking them up and separating them into individual entities one from another and from ordinary atmospheric dust particles, is something else again.

The scientists discovered that radioactive particles come in colors — golden, reddish brown, yellowish brown, and dark brown as well as in black and without color. Not all are spherical. Some of the captured 50 were oval, rod-like or lopsided.

All were extremely tiny and had to be magnified many times before they became visible. Capturing them and finally photographing them took months of tedious and elaborate labors.

The particles were all Russian visitors in Japan. They originated in Russia's test nuclear explosions of September and October 1961, and fell to earth in Osaka in November.

The four scientists of the Osaka Prefecture Radiation Laboratory detected them on their roof, in their rainwater collectors and on the leaves of their trees. It rained Nov. 17 and the scientists were distressed. The outdoor dust containing particles was washed away.

Then it occurred to them to go over the dust which had been blown into buildings and had settled on floors and furniture. It turned out to be an abundant source.

SEPARATE PARTICLES

Now they had the task of separating radioactive particles from nonradioactive particles which in all other respects are exactly alike since all are dust.

★ ★ ★

They finally got them confined in tiny drops of cedar oil. This permitted them to be measured for individual radioactivity which in all cases was extremely high but diminished into small fractions of the original strength by June 1962, seven months later.

These drops went onto microscopic slides and magnification revealed their sizes, shapes and colors. As could be expected, the radioactive strength was directly related to size.

Laboratory experiments have indicated that radioactive particles are subject to being broken up into smaller particles. The Japanese scientists — T. Mamuro, A. Fujita, T. Matsunami and K. Yoshikawa — found this seemed to be so with only two of their captured 50.

★ ★ ★

But they suspected that in both cases they had merely separated closely adjacent particles. When they jabbed their other particles with a needle, they "seemed to be so hard that even the impact of a needle could not crack them into two or more particles."

They reported their findings to the technical journal, "Nature."

Yule Music Important as Holly

Music is as important to Christmas as holly, mistletoe and gaily wrapped packages. Even more important, music recreates the true meaning of the holiday season for all who listen.

★ ★ ★

Of course, Christmas is celebrated musically in different ways in different parts of the country.

For instance, bells have a special Christmas meaning in Boston. On Christmas Eve, the Beacon Hill Bell Ringers present their special Christmas concert for thousands of Bostonians who visit Louisburg Square.

One of the country's most unusual musical groups the bell ringers lead large groups of carolers from home to home on Beacon Hill, playing traditional carols.

One of the most ambitious musical Christmas celebrations is held in Redondo Beach, Calif., where instrumental and choral music, ballet and pantomime are combined.

GROW EACH YEAR

These programs began in 1952 with musical settings for pantomime reproductions of Christmas paintings. More recent presentations have included "Hansel and Gretel," and "Cinderella."

The entire production is performed by members of the South Orchestra, St. Cecila Choir, and amateur singers, dancers and actors from the surrounding area.

Perhaps the largest gathering of yuletide music makers is in Detroit, where more than 3,200 singers from church choirs in the area gather to sing carols and relive the Christmas story.

Gaudy, 'Dry', Tijuana Cries Out for Water

(Editor's Note — You can still get a drink in Tijuana, but don't ask for water; it's getting more precious than booze. The town's reservoir dried up two years ago.)

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The Tijuana River, which once crossed the international border here into California on its way to the sea, dramatically typifies the curse plaguing this tourist-oriented city of 200,000. The "river" is dry as a bone.

Water still seeps under the caked mud in the riverbed and is being pumped up, but even that underground trickle now is giving out.

Officials say prospects are so desperate Tijuana — long a mecca for U.S. tourists — could turn into a ghost city in a few years.

Ironically, the problem does not directly concern the hundreds of thousands of Americans who come across the border each year for the horse races, bullfights and gaudy night life.

For them, there is always a plentiful supply of beer and hard or soft drink in bottles.

But the Mexican townspeople are acutely aware of the prolonged drought that has killed most plant life in their sun-bleached city.

Only 20 per cent of the 48,000 homes have plumbing and only 20 per cent of these get water from their faucets. For some it runs once a week, for others, more fortunate, three times a week — but for all only during certain hours.

It is not fit to drink.

The only source of drinking water for this entire city — holding more people than Salt Lake City or Providence, R.I. — is in bottles delivered by truck and costing 17 cents a five-gallon jug. It is brought in from California or distilled in Mexico.

Water for cooking and washing for the great majority of homes is delivered by tank trucks to great concrete neighborhood vats. Housewives stand in line, sometimes for hours, to dip the water out with washtubs, pails and cooking utensils.

NEVER ENOUGH

There is never enough, and officials foresee more shortage until a permanent supply can be obtained from the Colorado River across the desert to the west — the same river that above the border has saved much of Southern California from disaster.

An emergency aqueduct from wells at La Mision, 48 miles south of Tijuana, is almost completed but has become entangled in lawsuits over who is to be taxed for the costs. It is hoped that it will soon provide the water officials say will have to carry the city through for three years.

That is the time estimate set for completion of two 100-mile aqueducts from the Colorado.

But Jorge Ruiz, president of the Federal Water Commission, says he is very much concerned because the Colorado project has not started yet.

"The temporary aqueduct from La Mision," he warns, "is good for only three years or less. If the permanent aqueduct is not completed by the time La Mision runs dry, Tijuana faces the prospect of becoming a ghost town."

The Tijuana shortage is compounded by a mushrooming population, drawn to the border in large part by the American tourist dollar. There has not been a normal rainy season here since 1952.

The reservoir behind Rodriquez Dam dried up in August 1900. Rationing of water began in the summer of 1961. A bottled water strike last spring underscored the seriousness of the shortage.

Two hundred union and 40 independent bottled water distributors wanted to increase the price of a five-gallon jug from 15 to 18 cents. When the Mexican Federal Department of Industry and Commerce denied their petition, they struck.

For three days the people were denied their only source of drinking water.

Some 200 of them stormed a bottling plant and took what they could drink. The following day about 300 persons tramped down a Tijuana street, disrupting traffic and chanting, "We want water."

2-CENT RAISE

The strike ended when the government consented to a two-cent price rise.

"Even if they raise the price two pennies," said policeman Arnfuno Perea, father of three, "We must pay. People have to have water."

For a neat way to stuff the turkey, use a small sugar scoop to insert the dressing.

Waves Carry Billets-Doux

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Some Mobile children have dispatched letters of friendship to Cuba—in bottles via ocean waves.

★ ★ ★

The project came to light after a red, white and blue bottle washed ashore at Pompano Beach, Fla. It contained an American flag and a note written on stationery from St. Paul's Episcopal church in Mobile.

★ ★ ★

The church said the note and 50 others like it were drafted by children during summer Bible classes. The bottled letters were given to a steamship captain, who dropped them in the Gulf of Mexico.

Virginia's Staking Claim for Founding of Thanksgiving

BACKGROUND OF THE NEWS — AP SPECIAL REPORT

BERKELEY PLANTATION, Va. (AP)—At about the time the Pilgrims were wondering if the Mayflower was safe to travel in, 39 colonists knelt on the sandy banks of the James River here to offer the first Thanksgiving.

It was Dec. 14, 1619, and the small band had just arrived in the struggling colony of Virginia after a 2½-month journey aboard the ship Margaret from Bristol, England.

With breastplates glinting in the low autumn sun and halberds at the ready, the colonists watched as Capt. John Woodleaf opened the company's charter and read its instructions.

★ ★ ★

"Impr wee ordaine that the day of our ships arrivall at the place assigned for the plantacon in the land of Virginia shall be yearly and perputually keept holy as a day of thanksgiuing to Almighty God."

(Editor's Note: Above spelling correct.)

This is the view held in Virginia, a state rarely known to be modest about its history.

In proclaiming Thanksgiving this year Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. ignored the long-accepted Plymouth Rock version and said the day would serve as a memorial to the Virginians "who gathered at Berkeley near Richmond in 1619 to observe America's first Thanksgiving ceremony."

RECENT CLAIM

Virginia's claim on the first Thanksgiving has been raised only in recent years, although the landing and the services at Berkeley are documented.

As an annual holiday, the state has celebrated Thanksgiving only for the past 77 years. In the years before and after the Civil War Virginia was only too happy to give all the credit to New England and ignore the whole affair.

Historians believe the settlers at Berkeley Hundred commemorated the landing again in 1620—the year the Pilgrims set foot on Plymouth Rock—and again in 1621.

Correspondence from the parent company in England reminded the colonists in August 1620 that the Thanksgiving was to be observed each year.

Plans for a fourth observance were ended by Chief Opechancanough when he led an Indian uprising on Good Friday in 1623 and slew 350 settlers along the James.

The Virginia General Assembly set aside the date of the colony's deliverance from the "bloudie massaker" for commemoration and it was observed for a number of years.

Thereafter followed another series of Thanksgivings in Virginia's history. Between 1692 and 1705 the legislature proclaimed nine days of Thanksgiving for events ranging from survival of a caterpillar plague to English victory at Blenheim.

RELIGIOUS IN NATURE

Essentially, historians noted, Virginia's Thanksgivings were religious in nature and had little of the social overtones found in the Pilgrim holidays.

In the last century, particularly for a time when Thanksgiving became linked with the abolition of slavery, Virginia rejected the observance completely.

The first Virginia governor to call upon the state to observe Thanksgiving as a national holiday was Gov. Gilbert C. Walker, who served from 1869 to 1874.

The Richmond Dispatch noted at the time "there was with many a feeling of indignation that in the light of then recent events he (Gov. Walker) was trying to set this New England plant in our sacred soil."

Thanksgiving was not celebrated in the state again until 1885, when the Dispatch reported that a gubernatorial proclamation was enthusiastically received.

Even without a claim on the first Thanksgiving, the Berkeley plantation has a firm place in the nation's history. Here was born Benjamin Harrison V, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and his son, President William Henry Harrison.

PORTRAITS BURNED

Benedict Arnold sacked the mansion for the British in the Revolutionary War and burned the portraits of the Harrisons on the front lawn.

In the Civil War it became the birthplace of Taps and headquarters of Union Gen. George B. McClellan. President Abraham Lincoln came here in 1862 to see McClellan and he landed at approximately the same place as did the 39 colonists 243 years earlier.

And, in one of those quirks of history, it was President Lincoln who set aside the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving Day.

The landing at Berkeley has been re-enacted several times—last year in a driving rain—but there is no rush to make it an annual production. There is already fear that it would become commercialized.

★ ★ ★

Virginia can be expected to continue to assert its claim to the first Thanksgiving as it joins the rest of the nation in celebrating the holiday—perish the thought—Plymouth Rock style.

Stock Stocking With Stocks

Children (Adults, Too) Can Use Gift Shares

A thoughtful and thought-provoking Christmas gift for all children—from toddlers to teen-agers—is a stock certificate.

Giving youngsters ownership in American industry through gift securities is becoming increasingly popular.

Stock gifts have educational as well as materialistic value. They provide the child with a lesson in business, finance and civics.

★ ★ ★

For the young child, stocks with long-term growth possibilities can provide a base for college savings.

For the student, stocks arouse curiosity and provide first-hand training in how our capitalistic system works.

For the young adult, a gift of stock is a welcome addition to a savings program.

Careful selection can make the gift mean more.

If possible, select an industry related to the work, hobby or particular field of interest of the child.

Ideal securities for this purpose are growth stocks—those of companies that promise to grow at a faster rate than the general economy. The actual purchase can be handled quickly and easily by any reputable brokerage house.

Film of Soap Halt Dripping of Candle

There may be "fire," but there needn't be any smoke when your candles glow this Christmas!

If you take precautions, you can enjoy the soft cheer of candlelight without the nuisance of smoke and dripping wax.

★ ★ ★

The preventive measure is as simple as soapsuds.

Just work up a light lather on your hands.

Then roll the entire taper (but not the wick) of each candle between your palms until it is coated with creamy suds.

When the suds dry, they will not be noticeable.

But actually, at Christmas time, there's no reason why they shouldn't be noticeable, because very thick suds dry to look like snow.

For this seasonal effect, whip up stiff meringue-like suds by beating a lot of soap (or detergent) and a little water with an egg beater or electric mixer.

Roll each taper, as before, in this thicker mixture, and then add a second coating to produce a textured effect with little "drifts" along the shaft.

Angling for a hint about what to give the sportsman in the house? Why not a rod and reel. Winter or summer, week-end or holiday week, a spinning rod and reel promises thrills from beach and boat.

Labor Board Aims for Common Sense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board, created as a watchdog against unfair labor practices, has spent much of the past year deciding such things as which worker should push a button on a plaster-mixing machinge.

Or whether mailers or delivery men should straighten piles of newspapers coming off the press.

These issues, trifling on the surface, were dumped onto the board by a 1961 Supreme Court ruling that it must decide jurisdictional disputes between unions on their merits.

★ ★ ★

Before the edict, the board had interpreted the Taft-Hartley Labor-Management Act to mean it would back up an employer's allocation of tasks — right or wrong — if an interunion clash developed over job rights.

★ ★ ★

The task of deciding which union has jurisdiction — thus more jobs—is increasingly difficult. Most of the disputes involve conflicting claims for work when a technological change makes it possible to reduce crew sizes or allow one man to do work that once took two.

In one case, for example, a group of machinists at P. Lorillard Co., a cigarette manufacturer, wanted the right to operate and maintain automatic boxing machines at the firm's Louisville, Ky., plant.

But after Lorillard had assigned the repair work to production employes represented by the tobacco workers international union, the board ruled for the tobacco workers on grounds that highly skilled machinists no longer were needed on the newer, simpler boxing devices that had replaced more complex equipment.

NO SWEEPING RULES

The board made it clear it would make its decisions on a common-sense, case-by-case basis rather than adopt sweeping precedents.

Since then the five board members have had to devote about one day out of 10 to decisions like these:

—Laborers and not operating engineers should be entitled to start, stop, grease and oil power-driven plaster mixers. This dispute had tied up construction of a new school when the engineers picketed to back up demands for the work.

—Mailers and not delivery-men on the New York Times should pat the sides of newspaper bundles as they move on a conveyor belt to waiting delivery trucks. This dispute had shut down a major New York newspaper for a week.

—Yardmen in the shipbuilders' union, not stevedores represented by the Longshoremen's Association, are entitled to move private autos from a parking area to a spot on the dock for loading aboard ship.

NLRB experts assert that many of the cases involve really significant labor-management problems. In the more than 30 decisions issued so far, the board has followed the employer's wish in every case. But a spokesman said this probably was more of a coincidence than policy.

The employer's recommendation is one of many factors the board has adopted in making its decisions.

Many jurisdictional disputes are now settled voluntarily, partly because of fear of the board's decision. The AFL-CIO building trades unions, especially, hope to preserve their own peacemaking formula although it has shown signs of breaking down.

Outgo Tops Income $19 Million Last Week

LANSING (AP)— Michigan took $19 million into its treasury and had expenditures of $37.8 million during the week of Nov. 12, Treasurer Sanford A. Brown reports.

The general fund income was $4.4 million, of which $1.1 million from sales taxes was the largest single item. The state paid $21.2 million into the primary school interest fund.

Youngsters who like to make their own gifts can use ice cream containers for a button box and coffee cans for an odds-and-ends holder. Supply the children with blunt scissors, glue, construction paper, ribbon, crayons, sequins and brilliants and leave them on their own.

Japanese Escapes Gallows by Appeals

TOKYO (UPI) — In a Japanese version of the Caryl Chessman case, a man condemned for the slaying of 12 persons has escaped the gallows for seven years.

As was the case with Chessman, a controversy is raging around the doomed man, Sadamichi Hirasawa, who was sentenced to be hanged for the murders committed during one of history's most fantastic crimes.

Powerful forces have lined up for and against him as they did in the case of Chessman who was executed at California's San Quentin Prison in 1960 after spending 12 years in death row.

On one side is the Japanese ministry of justice, determined to hang Hirasawa.

* * *

On the other side are an assortment of politicians, opponents of capital punishment, and Hirasawa's lawyer.

The case began on a chilly winter morning in 1948 when a shabby but erect man of about 45 pounded on the door of a neighborhood bank in Tokyo.

A 'HEALTH OFFICER'

Admitted by the doorkeeper, he proved to be at once polite and officious in the manner of an old-style Japanese bureaucrat, with an air that hinted at trouble if his directions were not carried out.

He told the bank manager that he was from the Tokyo health department, with orders to administer antityphus medicine to all the bank's employes.

It was an era when postwar Tokyo was still a bombed-out ruin. Health and sanitation standards were low. Japanese and American technicians ranged through the city, giving vaccinations and spraying disinfectants from door to door.

Without a second thought, the manager summoned his little flock of tellers, bookkeepers and guards. They broke out the tea kettle and tea cups such as are found in all Japanese offices.

EVERYONE DRANK

The gray-haired "health official" poured a teaspoon of powder from an official-looking bottle into each cup. Water was added. There was some kind of a joking office toast, and everybody drank up.

* * *

Within minutes, 12 of the 15 employes of the bank lay dead on the floor, and the remaining three had collapsed in agony. The fact that they were still alive foiled what was to be a robbery without witnesses.

The robber fled, either empty handed, or with little money. It was never determined for sure.

Police arrested Hirasawa a short time later. He says now that he always denied his guilt. Police, however, produced a confession in court, which they said bore his signature. Hirasawa now says it was a forgery.

Japanese trials are subject to time, and Hirasawa strung his out until 1955, when the death sentence was passed.

* * *

Like an American under sentence of death, Hirasawa had the right of appeal to higher courts. He also can appeal for a new investigation by the police if evidence of faulty work can be turned up.

USED EVERY APPEAL

Hirasawa and his attorney Tsuneharu Isobe have used this route with great skill. Hirasawa's three-page confession carried his signature on each page, but attorneys showed that he signed the last page first, then the second and later the first.

When this literary gimmick was ironed out, Hirasawa was able to prove that the police's chemical analysis of the poison had been faulty.

He has bombarded Japanese notables with appeals for help, often accompanied by his paintings.

Among those who came to his aid recently was Bamboku Ono, a prominent leader of Japan's ruling conservative party.

* * *

A "society to aid Sadamichi Hirasawa" has been formed, and is rapidly raising money for his defense. It has about 35 members.

* * *

The defense tactic is to establish a doubt that he is guilty, not to prove his innocence. If this is done, Hirasawa can possibly leave jail a free man.

FACES OVERHAULING—"Old Ironsides" to friend and foe alike is the USS Constitution, tied up at her berth at the Charleston Navy Yard in Boston Harbor. In foreground is a sign disclosing the ship's history. A million-dollar overhaul is under way to spruce it up.

Yuletide Displays Made Easy

Colorful illuminated Nativity scenes, or rooftop Santas complete with sleigh and reindeer may be easily and economically fashioned from translucent fiberglass reinforced plastic panels cut to the forms desired in the display.

These and other multifigured displays may be created and styled to individual tastes, in durable and permanent forms which may be disassembled and conveniently stored between Yuletide seasons.

It just takes a handy man around the house, who has a saber saw or coping saw to cut the desired figures out of the easily workable plastic panels.

Artistic ability can be negligible if patterns are available for tracing outlines on the panels prior to the cutting of the figures.

Once the figures are cut, they may be mounted on wooden or metal frames or bases, as desired, or even attached to the rooftop itself.

Glass fiber reinforced plastic panels of good quality may be easily cut, drilled, nailed or sawed with ordinary household tools and with a minimum of time and effort.

For night illumination, small floodlights obtainable in most drug or department stores will fill the bill.

Colors are provided by the Filon panels themselves, which come in a wide variety of colors, types and weights at most neighborhood building supply stores, hobby shops, department stores, and many other retail businesses.

1,500 4-H Youths to Open Congress

CHICAGO (UPI) Fifteen hundred 4-H kids, not all of them from the farm, open their annual five-day club congress here Sunday.

The delegates were chosen to attend the congress, with all expenses paid, as a reward for excellence in state 4-H programs.

Although the membership age in 4-H is 10 to 21, delegates were selected from the 15 to 21-year-old group.

Of the 1,500, national 4-H honors will go to more than 200. During the congress, some 240 boys and girls will be given scholarships totaling more than $105,000.

* * *

In addition, six fellowships of $3,000 each are awarded annually to county and state extension service workers. These funds are provided by 55 companies, foundations and individuals.

* * *

National winners are selected by the national judging committee of state extension leaders from the 4-H records submitted by the 1,500 top-ranking boys and girls.

On Nov. 28, delegates will visit the International Live Stock Exposition, where they will see a special horse show featuring the Palomino horse of entertainer Arthur Godfrey.

Also attending the congress will be 300 state and federal extension service personnel, who are in charge of 4-H programs at state or national levels, and more than 200 representatives of 4-H award donor organizations.

OVER 2 MILLION

The 1962 enrollment of 4-H members is 2,285,000. Half of this number live on farms, and nearly 30 per cent live in rural, non-farm areas. The remaining 20 per cent live in urban homes.

The University of Illinois college of agriculture said the idea for 4-H clubs began when farm leaders became concerned about the number of boys leaving the farm to work in the city.

Others found that young people working in groups would more readily try improved methods of growing crops, which their elders were slower to accept.

* * *

The objective of the organization was expanded to include leisure time activities of farm youths. The 4-H symbol stands for head, heart, hands and health.

* * *

The theme of this year's congress is "Citizenship in Action." Speakers at the session will include: Tennessee Gov. Buford Ellington, a former 4-H member, Dr. Glenn Olds, president of Springfield College, Mass., and Dr. Malcom D. Ross, of the General Motors defense research laboratories.

Pipers' Plan Scotched After Council Sounding

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—The August Royal Scottish Piper's Society wanted to turn a large house in the swank part of Edinburgh into club rooms but the town council won't have any of it.

The town council said the din would be insufferable for the neighbors. Town planning officer James Hewitson said the Pipers' Society had admitted their club activities would include bagpipe playing.

'Glass Menagerie' Taken Out of Production

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennessee Williams has withdrawn his prize-winning play "The Glass Menagerie" from all production for an indefinite period.

"He would like to rest it for a while," explained his agent, Audrey Wood. The piece, which won the 1945 Critics Circle Award as the year's best drama, has been frequently revived by stock and community groups.

Indiana Town Called Mulitude of Names

CARROLLTON or FINLY, Ind. (AP) — Travelers who pass this spot can take their pick as to where they've been. Signs heralding this small town on U. S. 52 say "Carrollton or Finly," but that's just half the story.

The U. S. Post Office calls it Finly and the bus lines designate it as Carrollton. To the railroads it's Reedville, James Whitcomb Riley called it Tailholt and occasional old-timers remember it as Kinder.

County Drivers Lose Licenses

Revoke, Suspend 22 for Bad Road Records

Drivers' licenses of 22 Oakland County motorists were either suspended or revoked recently by the Michigan Department of State.

Ordered to show proof of financial responsibility after convictions of drunken driving were:

Charles W. Kester, 89 Oak Hill St.; Deomond V. Aldrich, 725 S. Manitou St., Clawson; Allan C. Blumberg, 1528 Owana St., Royal Oak; Charles E. Fulmer, 21705 Colgate St., Farmington; Peter Mikulik, 1219 E. Elza, Hazel Park; and Claude J. Pickett, 1520 S. Main St., Royal Oak.

Unsatisfactory driving records caused the following to lose their licenses:

* * *

Ordered to show proof of financial responsibility due to unsatisfied financial judgments against them were:

William G. Adams, 201 W. Ann Arbor St.; Gilbert L. Daws, 2311 Howland St., Royal Oak; James H. Iago, 2927 Gardner St., Berkley; and Tommy D. Jones, 21688 Gilcrest Court, Ferndale.

Others were Eleanor M. Murrick, 9359 Gale Road, Waterford Township; Lemuel W. Shipp, 21051 Parkside St., Ferndale; and Alex W. and Deloris Sova, 4769 Cass Elizabeth Lake Road, Waterford Township.

Patrick J. Cauley, 120 Henry Clay St. was ordered off the road for driving with a suspended license.

Bootblacks Dying Off So Why Not Start Stand

NEW YORK (UPI) — Youngsters looking for a business which isn't overcrowded might consider opening a shoe-shrine parlor, according to Irving J. Bottner, president of a shoe polish firm.

Bottner said a survey showed there are less bootblacks in the United States than at any time in the last 30 years. "The old bootblacks are dying off and aren't being replaced," he said.

MERRY MORSE CODE Christmas to the young scientist who receives this Code Broadcaster, an Add-Venture assembly kit for youngsters seven years or older. Messages can be broadcast up to 300 feet without connecting wires to any AM radio. Assembly teaches the principles of code transmission. This combination of fun and instruction distinguishes all the kits in this new series, which includes a weather station, astro-scope and motor generator.

No Need to Iron the Tablecloth

Christmas means many things to many people. To the housewife, the holiday often means constant entertaining, mostly centered around food.

How does one keep a fresh-looking table ready for invited guests and the many who arrive unexpectedly just to exchange holiday greetings?

The problem has been solved by the recent introduction of a complete selection of fleur-de-lis table cloths and napkins which do not have to be ironed.

They can be washed between meals, tumble-dried and put right back on the table without even a touch-up pressing.

COLORFUL RAYON

Corval rayon tablecloths come in a wide range of colors to coordinate with every room setting.

A light sand-colored cloth will be pretty decorated with pine cones and evergreens, while pink can be soft and gay with silvery angels fitted in candles and pastel colored balls nestled in greens.

Entertaining is more fun with the assurance that spills and spots can be quickly and effortlessly removed without hours spent at the ironing board.

Comes From Denmark

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Denmark, which had a starter in the Washington, D. C., International last year for the first time, has a jockey-trainer. H. Bech-Holm trained and rode Tinto for his victory in the June 24th Danish Derby.

Plan Snow Ball During Holidays

It's holiday time and things are really jumping with the teen-age set. The coming of the Yuletide season keynotes the start of a round of holiday dances.

The thought of planning a dance can sometimes throw even the most competent dance chairman into an absolute tailspin.

* * *

One paper company has the welfare of all those busy planners at heart. Its experts offer the following suggestions for a Holiday Snow Ball, cautioning them to keep in mind the decorating area involved and the money allocated for the project.

Don't go overboard; remember, addition is much easier than subtraction.

Walls, especially those rather formidable and uninspiring ones so often found in school gyms, are a real challenge to begin with. So start by covering the wall area with giant size folds of midnight blue crepe paper, cut into free form mountain shapes and staple to the wall, using tape to fasten to the top and bottom.

TRY SWAGS

Drape colorful ice blue and white flameproof streamers together along the cornice of the ceiling, making swag effects at intervals and over doorways.

Make icicles by cutting silver metallic foil paper into one-inch strips, curl and hang in clusters.

Carry out the snowball theme by suspending chicken wire balls, 15 inches in diameter, from the ceiling, tuck 10x10 inch squares of white flameproof crepe paper handkerchief fashion into each hole in the chicken wire and finish by spraying with silver glitter.

Make a snowman for a table or floor decoration by fastening two wire balls of the desired size together. Decorate in the same manner as the snowballs.

Top with a hat borrowed from Dad, and cut features from colored gummed crepe paper. A scarf may be fashioned from a length of crepe paper.

Take care of the refreshment area by covering tables with white paper cloths, sprinkled with silver stars, and finish off the evening in a blaze of glory by crowning a Snow Queen with a tiara of sparkling snowflakes.

Hotel's Name Plaque Goes Way of Towels

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The Dreyfus Hotel here wishes people would go back to the old practice of just stealing towels.

The hotel's bronze name plaque, which has been on the building since 1915, has joined the list of souvenirs carried off.

Union Members Use Shorter Work Week Intelligently

(Editor's Note — A shorter work week is the next big professed goal of the American labor movement. But not for Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. They already have it.)

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK — Like many another industrious young American, John George worked his way through college.

After seven and a half years of parttime school, winter and summer, he got his degree in electrical engineering.

But he also acquired a wife and four kids along the way and the inevitable demands on time and paycheck that go with such a collection.

Graduate school would seem, under the circumstances, clearly out of the question.

But when the new semester begins in February at City College of New York, John George will be back at the books.

He has the time. His family lives comfortably.

25-HOUR WEEK

John George, 35, is a member of a unique body of laboring men — Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the only labor union in the land to negotiate successfully a basic 25-hour work week.

In practice, Local 3 electricians still work a six-hour day, or even seven. But after the first five hours they receive time and a half pay.

For this reason some of their employers call the five-hour contract a sham, a pure and simple and clumsily disguised way to wrangle more money.

The union insists its motives are far nobler. In its view the contract is a logical answer to automation and worthy of eventual nationwide imitation if the country is to enjoy "a full employment economy."

No matter how you interpret Local 3's aims, there's no denying its results. It has won what most working men — for whom the 48-hour week is still a memory and the 35-hour week yet a dream — must regard as the pinnacle of leisurely living.

Local 3 members look at it differently.

There's more to a short work day than getting off at 2:30, they insist.

FOR CLASS 'A' ONLY

The 25-hour contract and certain other benefits cover only the "Class A" division, the 8,000 skilled workers employed by the 600 contractors in New York's $1.25-billion construction industry.

They earn $4.96 an hour, and guarantee their employers they will work a sixth hour every day, if needed, but no more than 15 hours of overtime a week.

Formerly they worked a basic six-hour day plus a seventh at time and a half.

Thus the basic 25-hour weekly paycheck is $124. With an hour of overtime daily it would be $161.20, and with the maximum 15 hours $235.

This doesn't include fringe benefits which make a $161.20 paycheck actually worth more than $200.

The benefits are administered by a Joint Industry Board which is the pride of Local 3 as well as their employers, and the envy of other industries where labor-management relations are not so smooth.

LIST OF BENEFITS

The board, made up of 10 representatives of management and 10 union members, handles the funds which provide pensions of $220 a month (including Social Security) at age 65, free dental care, a variety of diagnostic services, up to 120 days hospitalization for every member of the family, full wages for the first 15 weeks in the hospital for any man injured on the job, plus paid vacations, a revolving fund that provides interest-free loans, an annuity plan that grows at the rate of $4 a day, and scholarships which so far have sent 277 children of Local 3 members to colleges and graduate schools.

Local 3's efforts to steer members toward productive use of their off hours are as elaborate as its welfare benefits.

There's a perpetual round of parties, baseball games, bowling tournaments and turkey raffles, and the union sponsors 13 Boy Scout troops — not for members' children, but for boys in underprivileged neighborhoods.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

But these are only incidental diversions. An educational program, presided over by a full time (eight-hour) paid official and promoted by committees in each of the 19 divisions, focused attention on Local 3 among students of the labor movement long before the 25-hour week put the union in the headlines.

★ ★ ★

"I know of no other local union with a program like Local 3's," said Prof. Maurice F. Neufeld of the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations.

"I'm convinced the educational program is what accounts for the high morale, the sense of solidarity and of obligation to one another and to the community that seems to be typical of Local 3 members."

The union offers about a dozen courses directly related to job improvement, (blueprint reading, wire splicing and the like), plus others, such as "current labor problems," "contract analysis" and "automation," designed to prepare members for more intelligent union participation.

Probably the most intriguing course the union offers is one which bears the imposing title "critical thinking in human relations," but is known familiarly as "the Bayberry course."

Bayberry is a 314-acre estate on Great Peconic Bay, Long Island, which the Joint Industry Board bought with pension funds in 1950 to use as a convalescent home for elderly members.

The estate, once the summer playground of millionaire tennis cup donor Dwight F. Davis, has a mile of beach, rolling lawns, an eight-room chauffeur's cottage and a manor house with fireplaces in its 16 bathrooms.

★ ★ ★

The need for a convalescent home failed to materialize and so Harry Van Arsdale Jr., the union's business manager and guiding genius, proposed turning Bayberry into a school.

"Nobody in this union has read anything since television came out," snorted Van Arsdale five years ago. He asked Dean Carman to devise a program "which would teach our men how to think."

Each week 30 Local 3 members pack their grips and travel to Bayberry for six days of discussions and lectures on the rudiments of psychology, logic, semantics, economics and history, all aimed at giving them a more questioning attitude, developing their critical faculties, making them more analytical in their judgments.

Van Arsdale realized his own educational shortcomings early, set out to improve them, and now is numbered among the city's cultural elite. He is a director of the Lincoln Center for the performing arts and a trustee of Carnegie Hall.

A standing feature in his union's newspaper is titled "A City of Noble Culture," and points out places for members to visit with their families during off hours.

Random interviews with electricians on the job and in their homes showed intense loyalty to Local 3 almost to a man, and esteem for Van Arsdale bordering on the veneration given a patron saint.

When Van Arsdale was elected in 1960 to his eighth term as the union's top paid official the vote was 19,147 to 892.

LONG WORK WEEK

On an hourly basis, Van Arsdale earns far less than his Class A members. His salary was frozen five years ago at $200 a week plus $77 for maintaining his own car. Normally he puts in close to 100 hours a week.

He scoots around town either in his own Chrysler sedan or on the rear seat of a motor scooter belonging to Local 3 newspaper editor Arnold Beichman.

He bounds up flights of stairs in two-step leaps and jogs down sidewalks at a gait that is more hop than walk.

He usually winds up at midnight, signing checks at union headquarters with a shiny purple pen—a keepsake given him when he signed the certificate as a New York elector for John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Every expenditure, from $2 to $200,000, passes Van Arsdale's scrutiny and, in turn, is reported meticulously to the members at monthly union meetings.

The local, incidentally, has a 50 to 60 per cent turnout at every meeting with no more incentive than a 50-cent fine for those who fail to show up.

Van Arsdale considers a surplus in the union treasury as an unnecessary temptation, and so Local 3 operates at a deficit. At the end of the year the members vote special assessments to make up the losses.

Their regular dues range from $28 to $80 a year, depending on salary, and those who earn less than $1.50 an hour pay no dues at all.

The economic effects of the shorter work week remain to be judged.

Contractors still are opposed to the shorter week, some of them bitterly so, and a few are disenchanted with the union which many had openly admired.

"They just went too far this time," said one general contractor who preferred not to be identified.

"This cost increase is going to be passed all down the line — not just in the construction business, but to everybody. Why didn't Kennedy make Local 3 hold the line like he did the steel industry?"

★ ★ ★

Most observers, however, and all but a handful of the participants, feel any unpleasantness between the union and management is only temporary.

"It's like a marriage," said a key executive of the city's biggest contractor's association. "We have our spats, but we can't hate one another after it's over. One thing about Harry, it's always better to deal with a bright man than with a dope."

New Electronic Gadget to Beep You to Sleep

MEMPHIS (UPI) — A new instrument to electronically induce anesthia has been developed by Dr. William H. L. Dornette, chairman of the division of anesthiology of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine here.

The idea dates back to 1910, but was first successfully tested only about a year ago. The compact model, the first commercially manufactured equipment of its kind, will soon be on the market.

Wax Protects Your Furniture

When you make plans for Yule festivities, make a resolution to be kind to your furniture.

Wax protection will go a long way toward preventing water rings, scratches and similar damage to table tops. As any homemaker knows, an ounce of wax prevention is worth a pound of repair and makes cleaning up much simpler.

★ ★ ★

Any of the new easy-to-use spray waxes will help guard table tops against damage from spilled liquids and surface scratches, according to Roy M. Carter, professor of wood technology at North Carolina State College.

★ ★ ★

Push-button waxes that contain silicones have "high water repellency that permits removal of spilled liquids before damage to the finish," he says.

★ ★ ★

Floors, too, need special attention before the holidays so they will look their best and be protected against the stepped-up traffice they will get.

A new type of protection for a kitchen floor is a coat of self-polishing wax that can be washed and buffed a number of times before a new coat is necessary.

For the wood floors a liquid polishing wax with a built-in cleaner not only will prove simple to use, but also will provide the well-cared-for look that is a silent witness to your virtues as a housekeeper.

Kefauver May Have Fostered 'Safe' Sleeping Pill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirteen years ago Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., suggested a way of preventing death from an overdose of sleeping pills. Kefauver's way proved wrong. But the suggestion led scientists to discover another way that may prove right.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Theodore Koppanyi says Kefauver's lead prompted research at the Georgetown School of Medicine into making barbiturate sleeping pills suicide-proof and accident-proof. Koppanyi heads the school's department of pharmacology.

Koppanyi said the method involves incorporating into sleeping pills another drug called metrazole which acts as a stimulant — thereby providing an antidote to a barbiturate overdose.

★ ★ ★

And, he told a reporter, research still is under way—with promising preliminary results—to improve on the method and eliminate one possible physiological drawback to it.

★ ★ ★

Kefauver, in 1949, gave national publicity to an idea—credited originally to German scientists—to incorporate into every barbiturate tablet a small quantity of ipecac, a drug commonly used in medicine to promote vomiting.

Kefauver wrote:

"Take a little ipecac and it doesn't act at all—you don't even feel it . . . increase the dose beyond a certain point, however, and it will make you vomit. You bring it up, together with anything else you've swallowed.

"Used in sleeping pills, therefore, it acts as a perfect safety valve."

Kefauver was so enthused he introduced legislation "that would make it compulsory to include ipecac in all commercial preparations containing . . . barbiturate." His bill was referred to a committee but never reached the Senate.

The senator's article, and subsequent speeches, intrigued Koppanyi.

"It seemed like a great idea," he recalls. "But, unfortunately, it didn't work out."

"For one thing, research revealed, the barbiturate tends to depress the body's vomiting mechanism as controlled by the brain—thus obviating the vomiting-promoting powers of the ipecac.

★ ★ ★

"Moreover, it was found through animal tests that small, daily doses of ipecac, taken over a long period of time could cause damage to the liver and the bone marrow, and possibly even to the heart."

NEW APPROACH

But the Georgetown researchers, and colleagues elsewhere, decided then to explore other possible avenues.

Finally, they came up with an entirely new approach.

They fashioned sleeping pills containing, in addition to the barbiturate, a quantity of "metrazole" — a drug often used in the treatment of schizophrenia, a mental illness, to stimulate certain centers of the brain.

In experiments with animals and human volunteers, it was found that:

★ ★ ★

While the normal, sedative effect of one or two pills was not prevented by metrazole, there was a distinct "antagonistic" effect against the barbiturate when overdoses were purposely employed.

That is, in the case of an overdose, the metrazole automatically stimulated the same brain area that barbiturate usually depresses.

★ ★ ★

"Thus," said the scientist, "the individual given such an overdose would not go down so deep into a coma. Also, the metrazole in some cases promoted vomiting."

He said such pills were actually placed on the market in the United States and Canada during the mid-1950's.

"But they have enjoyed only a limited use," he said, "probably because they are more expensive than ordinary sleeping pills, and probably because of the general feeling of the medical profession that for 99.99 per cent of the population such precautions are not necessary—and that would-be suicides would get regular barbiturates from illegal sources anyway."

Meanwhile, he said, research is going ahead at Georgetown and elsewhere to find additives that would prove "physiological antidotes" to barbiturates without any possibility of causing undesirable side-effects of their own.

The most promising one so far is one called "ethyl di-methyl-butyl barbital."

Pooch's Bed Comfortable?

Give Him Yule Gift of Metal or Wicker

A man's home may be his castle or, at times, his dog house, but a pup's bed is a place of refuge when he wants to snooze or just be alone to contemplate the world.

What better gift for the family pup than a cozy bed and mattress for his repose?

Bob Bartos of a large research kennel says that it's best to know just what type of bed to give your dog.

If he's a young puppy, the best idea is to give him a metal bed. They're available in sizes for every dog, from a toy breed to a Great Dane.

Puppies, like babies, go through a gnawing period when they're teething and will generally make shavings out of a wicker bed.

However, the wicker variety is most attractive and will blend well wherever they are placed in the home. For the older dog, these are a good choice.

OFF THE FLOOR

Another point to make sure of is that the bed is raised off the floor.

Look for a bed with high enough sides and back to prevent the dog from being exposed to drafts which may result in colds.

A zippered cover for the pillow is best, as it is easily cleaned by washing and, in the long run, will be less expensive than a cushion that will have to be disposed of once it's soiled.

The size of the bed should definitely be suited to the size of the dog.

Although dogs usually curl up when they nap, they still like some stretching room.

The first large vineyards in Canada were planted in Beamsville in Ontario's Niagara peninsula in 1859.

U.S. Folk in Venezuela Stay Calm Amid Bombs

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — During the tension created by the arms blockade of Cuba a form letter appeared in mail boxes of many of the 7,000 U.S. residents of Caracas.

★ ★ ★

"For each Cuba-bound ship sabotaged by you we will answer with drastic action that will make you reconsider your decision," said the letter.

"In the case of a direct invasion of Cuba we will invoke a decree of war to the death until not one single American remains alive in our territory."

The letter, signed "National Forces of National Liberation," caused little stir in a country that has attracted United States investments and residents for decades.

★ ★ ★

The strongly pro-U.S. government of President Romulo Betancourt dismissed it as a sign of frustration in pro-Castro elements among Venezuela's 40,000 Communists, many of whom advocate overthrow of the government.

★ ★ ★

"Letters never hurt anyone," said a U.S. citizen who has lived in Caracas eight years. "You get used to things like this."

But precautions have been taken by dozens of U.S. firms operating in this city of skyscrapers and packed highways.

A typical front office boasts a shotgun guard as well as a pretty receptionist. Calling cards will not get visitors past the guard. Escort or other formal identification is required.

The guards began appearing after a series of incidents involving United States establishments: A bomb went off in a bathroom of the U.S. Embassy; another bomb injured five persons at a hotel operated by a U.S. company; and five gunmen shot up offices of the English language newspaper.

The most damaging blow came Oct. 27 when four substations of a U.S. petroleum company were dynamited.

Betancourt angrily declared the substations were blown up on direct orders from Havana. He has asked the Organization of American States to act.

There is little sign of flight by U.S. business interests which have some $4 billion invested in Venezuela, more than in any other country except Canada.

The U.S. businesses could not easily withdraw, even if they wished. Their interests have become closely allied with Venezuela's during the many years in which American capital has flowed into this country. U.S. oil companies alone have $3 billion invested here.

Operating on a basis of 70 per cent of proceeds to the Venezuelan government, U.S. developers have made this one of the largest oil exporting countries.

They provide the Betancourt government more than $1 billion yearly, about 60 per cent of its total income.

The Betancourt government wants more, rather than less, foreign investment, and some U.S. capital is still coming in. A Ford assembly plant is among a half dozen enterprises under construction.

Measures have been taken to protect investors. After the hotel bombing the government suspended constitutional guarantees and began a roundup of terrorists.

★ ★ ★

When the oil stations were dynamited army reservists were called up and marines were sent to patrol petroleum fields.

The president has asked the Supreme Court to outlaw the Communist party. Arrests seem likely even for Communist members of Congress. Many terrorists are in prison.

Caught in the middle, the American community has generally maintained its composure, but few U.S. citizens lack some story.

One was at a lawn dinner party when a homemade bomb rolled from a nearby cliff. The bomb came apart and failed to explode. Another resident had just left a bathroom when a bomb exploded in a water closet. Bombs or noisemakers are heard almost nightly in districts where Americans live.

GO PHILOSOPHIC

A few Americans wear pistols but most display philosophic calm.

★ ★ ★

"The president is determined to control the situation and things are getting better every day," said one. "People on the streets are friendly to Americans and you always have the feeling the police are on your side."

Others acknowledge a growing sense of insecurity.

"I get letters from the States saying I should bring the children home," said one housewife. "When I am left alone I get to thinking my parents may be right."

Sinks His Teeth Into Election

TRURO, Mass. (AP) — Chew this problem over for Al Bettencourt. For Bettencourt isn't doing any chewing for himself nowadays.

★ ★ ★

His false teeth are in a ballot box. He accidentally lost them election night while helping to count precinct votes.

But the ballot box is locked — and will stay locked, says Police Chief Harold M. Berrio — until the town begins a recount in a few days.

★ ★ ★

The recount was asked by Republican Gov. John A. Volpe of Massachusetts, who lost a re-election bid to Democrat Endicott Peabody by 3,091 votes.

Forgotten Tragedy of Ole Miss Strife

OXFORD, Miss. (UPI) — Ray Gunter was a shy, soft-spoken young man who never looked for trouble. He was, as they say in Mississippi, "just a good ole boy."

★ ★ ★

But there was another side to the slightly-built jukebox repairman. His friends said he was "full of curiosity and liked excitement." This aspect of his make-up proved his undoing.

★ ★ ★

For curiosity led Gunter to the University of Mississippi on the last Sunday night in September, to watch a campus gone mad. Death claimed him there. A bullet fired during the rioting touched off by the admission of Negro student James H. Meredith struck Gunter in the head, killing him instantly.

His obituary was only a couple of paragraphs buried in the reams of copy flowing from the bloody campus, but it shattered the dreams of an 18-year-old pregnant girl who became a widow.

Pretty, dark-haired Virginia Gunter gave birth to the couple's first child nine days after her 22-year-old husband was killed. Gunter had picked her name, Debra Jane. Friends say she "favors" him.

THE GOOD LIFE

Gunter, who did not finish high school, was a jukebox repairman. It was a job he liked. The pay was just $50 a week, but he got to drive a new pickup truck, and he had made a lot of friends on his service route.

★ ★ ★

Like most young men in Mississippi, Gunter liked to hunt and fish, but what he really liked was drag racing on a strip just outside town.

The day Gunter walked out of his new four-room shell home to drive to a service station to work on some hose connections in his car, it would have been hard to convince him that he did not have a corner on the good life.

Virginia was happy too. She had quit high school in her first year to marry Ray. Her father had balked at the idea of his daughter marrying at the age of 15, but in the years that followed her father and Gunter became close friends.

★ ★ ★

Until a few months ago, Virginia had worked in an Oxford garment factory. She was proud of what she and her husband had accomplished. Both had come from large families with low incomes and their future looked good.

Gunter ran into a couple of friends down at the gasoline station. By this time the word was out that the rioting had started. Gunter and his friends left to watch the excitement.

ONLY A SPECTATOR

Investigation shows that Gunter and his friends did not participate in the rioting. They watched from a spot several hundred yards away. When the bullet struck Gunter, he slumped to the ground dead. The shot had pierced his brain. The killer has not been found.

George Tidwell, a school bus driver and the father of Virginia, talked to his daughter by telephone that night.

"Daddy, Ray's gone and I'm worried to death," she told Tidwell.

A short time later, a Memphis newsman told Virginia that her husband was dead.

When Tidwell arrived at his daughter's house, she was distraught.

"She was standing outside wringing her hands," he said.

Virginia is staying with her father and mother now. In the living room of the rickety old house are a bed and a television set. A picture of Ray and Virginia and a New Testament lie on the television set.

"I don't know what's going to happen to her house," Tidwell said.

"Seems like she's going to lose it. They didn't have their furniture paid for either," he said.

★ ★ ★

Virginia doesn't talk about the night a bullet shattered her future.

"Every once in a while she'll say something about Ray," Tidwell said sadly. "She'll mention some of the things they used to do together."

Feels Landscaping Accident Deterrent

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Proper roadside landscaping can reduce fatalities from noncollision highway accidents, a Virginia Polytechnic Institute horticulturist believes.

Planting of shrubs between opposite traffic lanes will reduce or eliminate headlight glare, a frequent cause of accidents, says Dr. J. H. Tinga.

Landscaping will also reduce the monotony of travel and provide restful shady turnouts for tired motorists.

Buffer plantings of shrubs to reduce the impact of cars going off the roads should be used, he urges, and plants and trees can be used to mark the roadway ahead and serve as traffic guides.

What's in a Name?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donut King, named for owner Verne Winchell's string of doughnut and coffee shops, refused to eat a crullet when photographers tried to get him to do so at Belmont Park.

Boy Scout Wins Dollar but in a Dirty Manner

PERRY, Iowa (AP) — Mrs. Tom McDonnell of Perry promised her Boy Scout grandson $1 if he brought his suitcase home from camp as neatly packed as it was when he left.

The boy won the $1.

How? He confessed he'd worn the same clothing all week at camp, and hadn't even opened the suitcase.

Preserve Precious Poinsettia

Each Christmas several million plant lovers receive the traditional and beautiful poinsettia as gifts. But very few of those who get them realize that with a little care the luxurious red plants can be preserved for the following year.

★ ★ ★

The two main points to consider in preserving poinsettias are protection against sudden temperature changes, and keeping the plant in the proper containers.

Most poinsettias are grown and sold in red clay flower pots, and should be kept in those containers to help maintain the constant moisture and temperature conditions under which they flourish.

Procedure in caring for poinsettias is quite simple. When the leaves begin to turn yellow, gradually withhold water until the soil in the clay pot is quite dry. Then store them indoors, without watering, in a 60 degree temperature.

★ ★ ★

When all danger of frost is passed, cut the plants down to a height of six inches and repot them in clay pots in new soil. Place them outdoors, plunging the pots into the soil in a sunny spot, with a three-inch layer of clinkers below the pot.

Water plants during periods of drought, turn them occasionally, and give them about three applications of cottonseed meal at intervals of about six weeks.

Before the first frost of fall, and before artificial heat is used in your home, bring the plants into the house and keep them in a sunny spot at a temperature of about 65 degrees.

★ ★ ★

When buds begin to show color, the plants may be brought into ordinary room temperatures. They will last longer if kept cool and not exposed to sharp changes in temperature.

Wassail Bowl Key to British Christmas

Christmas, to quote Charles Dickens, "is a season of hospitality, merriment and open heartedness" and what better way to celebrate the season in this spirit than to revive the old custom of the wassail bowl?

In the England of Dickens' day, Christmas without the wassail bowl would have been lacking its most honored custom — a time when the lord of the manor threw open his doors to neighbors from miles around and the great bowl, usually of silver, was filled with a potent brew for the 12 days of the Yuletide celebration.

So important was the wassail bowl to the observance of the holiday that games grew up around it, songs and carols commemorated its importance.

One game that was played around the festive bowl for centuries was Snap, Dragon!

★ ★ ★

For this game a handful of raisins was placed in a shallow dish, brandy was poured over them and set aflame.

SING ALONG

Then, while each member of the group took his turn trying to pick up the raisins through the flame, the others sang the song that the dragon (the flame) would take his toll.

Washington Irving describes the ancient custom of the wassail bowl as it was observed in old New York.

After dinner the serving man brought in a huge silver bowl which he placed before the squire, who had prepared the punch in advance according to a treasured recipe, and served it to assembled guests with pride.

Many spices were used and bobbing apples floated in the bowl. For those who would revive the custom this Christmas here's the recipe:

Juice of six lemons and six oranges, two cups cold tea, one bottle Dubonnet Red, one bottle Dubonnet Blonde, eight ounces Cherry Herring, sugar to taste. Ice the punch and serve with Christmas cookies.

Baby Girl Presented With Library Card

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Sharon Marie Turk won't have to apply for a library card when she gets old enough to read.

She became the youngest holder of an Elizabeth Public Library card at the age of one month. It was presented to her father, Chester F. Turk, president of the board of trustees of the library.

Joiners Have Choice

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas teachers who are "joiners" can find an organization to fit their needs during all stages of their careers. The state has a Future Teachers Association for youngsters, a Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Classroom Teachers Association, and, for teachers no longer teaching, a Retired Teachers Association.

You May Find Whale's Tooth Under Tree in South Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If you should happen to be in the Fiji Islands for Christmas and that present under your palm tree turns out to be a whale's tooth, consider yourself flattered.

* * *

That's because a Fiji Islander couldn't pay you a greater compliment than to give you a whale's tooth for a Christmas present. It's the most priceless gift he knows of.

But that's only one of the exotic customs that surround the Christmas season in the South Pacific.

Matson Lines has done some research on the subject and came up with some curious bits of information.

* * *

Fijians celebrate Christmas Day beginning at 2 a.m. with carol singing in the villages.

BURE TO BURE

Groups go from bure to bure — the thatched hut homes — and don't stop until every villager is awake and joining in song. Comes morning, everyone goes to church in shifts.

* * *

Those who stay at home tend the special pit ovens where the community feast of suckling pig is being roasted.

Christmas in Tahiti has a French touch. Sidewalk cafes are trimmed with greenery and Yuletide toasts are drunk in French wine.

Along the Papeete waterfront, there's a Christmas carnival every year, complete with a roulette wheel.

* * *

Christmas Hawaii-style features caroling — barefoot, if you please — from hotel to hotel.

And you won't find many people serving hot drinks in that climate either.

PUNCH TOASTS

You'll probably drink your Yule toasts in passion fruit punch.

* * *

A traditional Christmas Eve service is held at Kawaiahao Church, only the hymns are sung in Hawaiian.

Since the language is phonetic and easy to pronounce, anyone can join in.

In New Zealand and Australia, Christmas comes during the hottest days of summer.

* * *

Grass court tennis championships, surf carnivals and yachting regattas are some of the holiday attractions.

DINNER ON BEACH

And you might find yourself eating your turkey dinner and plum pudding out of a picnic hamper at the beach.

In Samoa, Christmas is popular, but New Year's is the big holiday.

Heads of the family traditionally rush outdoors at midnight and fire shotgun blasts into the air.

* * *

Song and "siva-siva" dance troupes make the rounds, collecting refreshments at their frequent serenade stops.

Slippers Solve Gift Problems

Warm Whole Family With Indoor Footwear

Does Christmas shopping give you cold feet wondering if you'll choose the right gift for everyone? This year, there's a happy, warm solution that fits the whole family — leather slippers for everyone from Junior and Sis to Mom and Dad.

* * *

There are feminine slippers of glove-soft smooth and grained leathers, as well as handsome textured suede slippers that sparkle in bright reds, blues and green.

They're a gift with a lift for a woman who wears colorful brunch coats, hostess gowns, or fancy lounge wear.

For ladies who dress up to relax, you will find a dazzling array of "at home" shoes in sparkling jewel tones. There are mules, wedges and sandals in soft gold and silver, as well as springolators in amethyst, ruby and sapphire hues.

SLIPPERS FOR TEENS

Slippers for the teen-age set effect a Persian influence, with upturned toes trimmed with matching beads or jewels in exotic blues and reds.

* * *

Wafer thin flexible leather soles offer adequate support indoors without unnecessary bulk and weight.

One of the most elegant new styles for the man about the house is a deep brown smooth leather slipper with gleaming patent cuff trim.

It puts the correct fashion base under his elegant new Christmas lounging jacket.

During the holidays, when the family spends so much time at home, slippers make a welcome personal, practical and fashionable gift.

Want to Know How to Buy Hi-Fi Outfit?

Planning to play Santa Claus to the music lovers of your family this Christmas? If so, you may be wondering whether to buy a packaged high fidelity set or separate components.

It's hard to tell the difference these days, as you read the conflicting claims of various manufacturers.

Here are some of the advantages of components:

* * *

1. A component system generally provides more faithful reproduction.

2. You can juggle the combination of components to meet the qualifications of performance and price you desire.

3. Components permit you to build your system gradually.

4. Any modifications or improvements can be made easily by adding a new unit or replacing a unit.

5. Components offer greater variety of installation.

6. Spatial separation of the loudspeakers gives you better sound reproduction.

On the other hand, package sets have advantages, too.

* * *

1. Package sets save you the trouble of choosing and connecting components.

2. Some of the better package sets (those equipped with magnetic phonograph cartridges) utilize the same or similar components that you would buy separately.

3. A package set in a good cabinet eliminates the need to make special arrangements to install components.

* * *

One important element that both component assemblies and package sets should have is a magnetic cartridge.

FROM PIONEER DAYS — Pirogue cut from a walnut log, 21 feet long, was found in a bayou in Knox County, Ind. The dugout is believed to have been made by either an Indian or a pioneer French trapper. Local sportsmen say the pirogue was used in the area more than 100 years ago.

Snacks Go International for Holiday Open House

If you would make your Christmas open house unusual, serve appetizers from many nations.

This is the suggestion of Margaret Spader, home service consultant for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assn.

Italy, China and Mexico might be represented in the appetizers your guests will enjoy with their punch.

The decoration for the buffet table might also carry out the all-nations theme with flags of the countries represented.

For Christmas pizza, roll the pizza dough into a long rectangle, big enough to cover an 11x25-inch baking sheet. Make three varieties on one sheet by arranging slices of sausage along one side, mozzarella cheese down the center and rows of anchovies along the other side.

Instead of the customary pie-shaped wedges, serve the pizza in small strips. The giant pizza should be baked in an oven preheated to 450 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Then cool the oven and turn the control to 225 degrees until serving time.

For Chinese shrimp balls, shell, devein and mince a pound of shrimp. Mix with a slightly beaten egg, one teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon sugar. Heat two cups of oil in a small saucepan.

The temperature for frying in deep fat should be 375 degrees. Use a teaspoonful of shrimp mixture for each ball.

Fry until golden brown and drain on absorbent paper. Set the oven at 175 degrees to keep hot until served.

In Mexico, a popular dish is a spread made of black beans. Combine a can of black bean soup with an eight-ounce can of tomato sauce, one cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese and one-half teaspoon chili powder.

Cook over medium flame until cheese is melted. Pour into a serving bowl, surround with corn chips and hold in oven at 175 degrees until serving time.

Crayfish Rank Third as Australian Export

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Crayfish are now Australia's third largest export to the United States, ranking after meat and wool.

* * *

Minister for Primary Industry Charles F. Adermann announced crayfish earned Australia $13,300,000 in the year ended June 30.

Christmas candles will last longer and burn without smoking or dripping if they are coated, except for the wicks, with soapsuds. Let them dry in candle-holders before lighting.

3,000 College Students Expected at N.Y. Twist To-Do

NEW YORK (UPI)—The prospect of a single wiggling mass of college students — perhaps 3,000 of them — all doing the twist at the same time in one big ballroom is a thing to stagger the mind. Not to mention the sensibilities.

But Stan Rubin, a dance band man who plays at 60 to 70 college functions a year and knows all the tribal rites, believes the circumstances are right for it. This would occur at a to-do he is throwing for the college trade during the coming Thanksgiving weekend.

This is the period when college students converge on New York. Estimates are that around 30,000 of them charge into Manhattan each year during the Thanksgiving vacation — the reasoning being that if you're going to go home for Christmas, why not go Gotham for Thanksgiving?

Rubin's "Thanksgiving-in-New York Ball," which in past years has drawn swarms, will be held Friday night in the Americana Hotel, the new skyscraper hostelry which has a ballroom big enough to hold the 3,000 that Stan is hoping will show up.

The advance sale of tickets ($12 a couple, $8 stag) has ranged into such far places in Louisiana, Florida, Michigan and Indiana. Nearly a score of professional and college band, singing, and instrumental groups were scheduled to entertain.

The grand-scale twist spectacle is possible because the twist is very big in colleges, now Rubin said. And whoever put out the word a couple of years ago that rock 'n' roll was on the decline did not speak for the college crowd.

"In my opinion, rock 'n' roll is stronger than ever," he said, with a sigh of resignation. "In 1958, when I held the first of these balls here, we didn't have any rock 'n' roll at all. We had only my band plus Dixieland guest stars plus Dixieland bands from colleges — about 10 to 12 bands in all.

ONE OF LAST

"Now the Williams College 'Root Toot Tooters'—which we're having in to help us Friday night —is one of the last of the college Dixieland bands. In 1958, we had no folk music. This year we're having a lot of folk groups. Dixieland college outfits are getting scarcer and the singer-geetar-drum groups are on the increase.

"The students sit down and listen to folk music. They're up and twisting to rock 'n' roll — that's the leading music in colleges for dancing. The twist is really a rock 'n' roll derivation. And it's an asocial thing; you don't get together with your partner. It's a calisthenic."

Besides his own band, the evening will feature Gene Krupa and his band plus many jam-session greats such as Bobby Hackett, Buck Flayton, Cutty Cutshall, Roy Burnes, Joe Hart and Wilbur de Paris.

Hank Davis, a senior at Columbia, Ivory Jim Hunter, a former Princeton athlete and Susi Reid, a Bennett College junior, are among the entertainers, plus such singing groups as the Princeton "Tigertones," the Cornell "Cayuga Waiters," the Vassar "G-Strings," and the Skidmore "Sonneteers."

Dress is very optional. Persons under 18 will not be admitted.

The gravy sauce you pour over slices of holiday turkey and dressing will have a rich brown color if you brown the flour in the oven before blending it with the meat juices.

This Sail Craft Bound to Please Old 'n' New Salt

The nautical-minded sportsman will be delighted this Christmas if St. Nick leaves a new-type sailing craft under the tree.

The rudderless keelless craft is a watertight hydrofoil, 4 by 8 feet. It is steered by trimming its 86 square feet of nylon sails and by crew weight.

Only 108 pounds, the craft, can carry three crew members. It can be rigged for sailing in five minutes ashore to give a full day of pleasure to both the aspiring sailors and old salt.

Solons' Junkets Clipping U.S. Taxpayers

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON — This is the time of year for congressional junkets to far-away places, and even the lame ducks are on the wing.

RUTH

During the last session, congressmen passed a new tax bill that sharply clips the wings of taxpayers who have been enjoying free sailing on expense accounts, but their own soaring is uncurtailed.

"I think expense-account living is a thing of the past," Commissioner Mortimer Caplin of the Internal Revenue Service recently declared, as he smacked his lips over the new tax law.

But ha-ha, Mr. Caplin—not for the lawmakers! Sometime after Congress convenes in January, the scores of junketeering legislators who are currently poking their gay noses into the bright lights of Paris and Hong Kong will submit vouchers which read something like this: Airline travel, $1,762, hotels and food, $871; miscellaneous, $2,128.

The reimbursement will be dutifully paid, with no questions asked.

By contrast, no businessman will be able to get away with miscellaneous items, or even with estimates of what he spent for taxis and food.

Actual receipts must be produced, plus proof that the trip or entertainment was directly related to a bona fide business deal.

Well, you can't do that to Congress! Two senators and six representatives are on a trip around the world in a U.S. military transport plane, with lots of interesting stop-overs.

A baker's dozen of senators are in Paris to exchange ideas with legislators from other NATO countries, and a large delegation of House members is also enlivening the City of Light.

WAY DOWN SOUTH

West Berlin is proving a heady tourist attraction for touring congressmen, and a group from the House Foreign Affairs Committee is visiting Vienna, Bonn, Copenhagen, Moscow, Warsaw and Lisbon as well.

Another large group from the same committee is touring seven Latin American countries, where it's summertime down south.

A ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee is joining four of his colleagues on a down-under trip to the South Pole, with stopovers in Hawaii, New Zealand and the Fiji Islands.

When stay-at-home taxpayers occasionally muster enough nerve to question some of this congressional flitting at public expense, the lawmakers suavely assure their constituents that such trips help them to vote wisely on next year's appropriations.

This fails to explain, however, why at least a half-dozen solons who will not be returning to the House and Senate next year should be taking the grand tour at public expense.

Neither does it explain why these worthy gentlemen should be allowed to dip into U.S. counterpart funds at our various embassies, without giving an accounting of how they spent it.

One group now making a complete tour of the world consists of Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, Senators Clairborne Pell, J. Caleb Boggs and Benjamin A. Smith II. A White House jet is transporting them.

HAVING NICE TOUR

Smith is the former Harvard roommate of President Kennedy who affably agreed to warm JFK's old Senate seat until the Kennedys decided who should run for it. Having promised not to try for it himself, he is now off the public payroll, and Senator-Elect Teddy Kenndy is on, but Smith is touring at government expense.

Among the subcommittee members now traveling through Latin America are two other lame ducks: Rep. Laurence Curtis, who tried vainly for the GOP Senate nomination in Massachusetts, and Rep. Marguerite Stitt Church of Illinois, who declined to run for re-election.

* * *

Republican Senator John Marshall Butler, who did not seek re-election from Maryland, is on a three-week tour for the Senate Commerce Committee in England and West Germany.

Just how the observations of these retiring legislators will help their voting since they no longer have a vote is somewhat unclear.

All we know for sure is that Congress should demand a strict accounting from all of its junketeering members on exactly how the taxpayers' money is being spent. It only takes a few bad apples to make a whole barrel smell.

Teens Deserve Some Thought

Make Theirs a Gift to Reflect Personality

Do the teens on your Christmas list usually get "gypped" out of a terrific gift?

It's easy enough to get another pair of slippers for Aunt Maude, but many people ignore the fact that teen-agers have definite likes and dislikes, too.

* * *

Teens are acutely aware of their appearance. For example, you can delight a teen-ager with her own adjustable electric shaver in gold, orchid or blue, that will whisk away unsightly leg fuzz at the flick of a button and adjust for underarms, too.

For a lad with peach fuzz, a shaver designed to adjust to his tender skin would be ideal.

Records are always in order, or, if you wish to make a big splash, a tiny transistor radio.

Another question leading to the perfect gift choice is: What's the teen's personality like? If you're shopping for a shy, quiet girl, sports equipment is probably the last thought in your mind, but it's a good bet.

* * *

The reason? A tennis racket may inspire a gal to get out and learn the game — and make new friends at the same time.

Outgoing teens, on the other hand, may be extremely pleased with a gift that shows they have depth: books, art reproductions, classical recordings.

For a boy whose pride and joy is a battered jalopy, you can buy auto accessories. A gal who collects stuffed animals will appreciate an addition to her menagerie.

On the 12th Day After Christmas...

"On the twelfth day of Christmas my mommy gave to me . . ." Your little girl will carol with glee as she opens the twelfth door of this delightful gift innovation.

No sudden letdown after Christmas for children who receive a house of 12 doors, with a surprise to be found behind each door during the 12 days following Christmas.

Historically, the "Twelve Days of Christmas" lie between Dec. 25 and Epiphany, Jan. 6. It was on Jan. 6 that the three Magi brought presents to the Christ Child in the manger — the first Christmas gifts.

You can make this Twelve Days of Christmas house easily, and then save it from year to year, stocking it with a new selection of favors.

The basis of the house is the bottom of a suit box, about 18x25 inches. First reinforce with masking tape, then form three shelves by cutting cardboard strips (you can use the top of the box) to fit the box and hold them in place with cellophane tape.

Make the front of the house from a piece of heavy cardboard about four inches larger around than the box is, with a point cut at the top to form the roof.

Cut 12 doors in rows of three across the front of the house, making sure they are on a level with the shelves in the box. And outline each door with bright red Christmas tape.

Doorknobs are formed from small tucks of the same tape.

The front of the house is affixed to the box with cellophane tape, and a red peaked roof is added.

To make the roof, cut a strip of cardboard six inches wide, and long enough to fit over the pointed shape.

Cover the strip with red paper, fold in half to crease, then tape in place. A small red chimney tops it all.

New Holiday Games Emphasize Strategy

Strategy is outpointing sheer chance in the roster of new games this Christmas and represents a significant new trend in family recreation.

* * *

Play objectives range from Civil War command decisions and Napoleonic era field marshals' maneuvers to the intricacies of a full scale summit meeting, steeped in 1961 politics.

CIVIL WAR

Sure to enlarge the whole family's knowledge of our country's history is the American Heritage Game of the Civil War, most ambitious of the new board game presentations of the Union-Confederate conflict.

This "command decision" game includes a 32-page outline of Civil War events and gives armchair generals a chance to reverse history by winning battles for the South.

* * *

Most topical game is Summit, which gives players the opportunity to impersonate the great powers.

All-out atomic war is ruled out; strategy is concentrated on manipulating economic power, developing cold war threats, increasing consumer goods and other political maneuvers fresh from the headlines.

KING OF CHEESE

Most fanciful of the new game crop is King of Cheese, which bases play on a facsimile of a hunk of Swiss cheese with playing pieces that are mice.

Object is to slide the mice through the holes.

* * *

Game boards double for furniture, too. A hassock design by Toymaster of tough fiberboard has a board game on each of its four sides, and opens for storage of all the component parts for the different games.

Nurse's Blood Pressure Could've Used the Pills

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — The emergency room at Morton F. Plant hospital was busy with an attempted suicide, a knifing victim and a patient frantic with the hives. The telephone rang.

"I don't know what to do and I thought you might be able to advise me," the caller said. "You see our little dog has chewed up my husband's blood pressure pills and I'm unable to contact my vet."

The emergency room nurse's advice was short and to the point:

"Call another vet."

Men's Clothes Start to Get a 'Full' Look

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Having gone about as far as they could go in one direction, designers of men's clothing have started the other way.

The International Association of Clothing Designers noted during a convention here that suits were narrowed down "to the absolute limit" about five years ago.

Now, a spokesman said, "men's fashions have again started to fill out to proportions that are mansized without being oversized."

Virginia Boy, 5, Reads 15 Books a Month

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—If you want a young man who reads, then Jamie Osborne is your fellow.

Jamie is only 5 years old but his mother says he reads 15 books a month. He began teaching himself to read at the age of 2 and now reads from the third and fourth grade books at the Richmond Public Library.

Mrs. James D. Osborne, his mother, says she first realized Jamie was reading when he read highway signs aloud.

This year's favorite Christmas picture may well make next year's Christmas card. Photographic greetings are one of the most individual, intimate ways to send holiday sentiments. So get out that camera and start shooting!

Firms Using Initials Such as TASTE

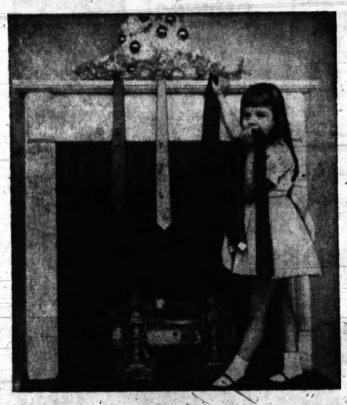
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The SHAPE of things to come may have been foreseeable in World War II when this acronym was coined as short for Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers, Europe.

* * *

Names formed from initial letters soon became widely used in military designations, viz. WAC, WAVE, WREN, etc.

And in recent years it has spread into the realm of politics in such terms as CARE, CORE and the like.

Science and industry also are using it. For example, TASTE is the acronym for a new machine of a firm that concentrates orange juice or other liquid foods before canning or freezing — the full name being Thermally Accelerated Short-Time Evaporator.



This pretty miss has come up with a new decorative idea for Christmas. She hangs dad's Christmas ties on the mantel. They'll make a hit with him, too, for with mom's help, she made her selections from a new collection that includes a tie for every taste, from the senior executive who has made it to the man who is on the way up. When the yule log is lighted, the "decorations" will have to come down, but until then, they lend a festive air to the room.

Parochial-Public School Experiment May Solve Problem

By The Associated Press

BACKGROUND OF THE NEWS — SPECIAL REPORT

In a number of communities scattered throughout the land, pupils from Roman Catholic parochial schools for years have been attending occasional classes in public schools.

From Connecticut to Oklahoma, public schools here and there have opened their doors to parochial students for classes that require special equipment—for the most part home economics and industrial arts.

The system lately has acquired the designation—"shared time."

Now, a Pittsburgh suburb is expanding this idea in what may be the first wholesale sharing of tax-supported schools by public and parochial students.

Some think the outcome may have an eventual impact on the current national debate over federal aid to parochial schools, and perhaps point to a way out of the impasse.

* * *

The experiment is being made in Monroeville, about 10 miles east of Pittsburgh. Some 35 boys and girls from the 11th grade of a Roman Catholic high school are spending half of each school day in advanced science classes at the new Forbes Trail Area Technical School.

The rest of the day they study religion, social science, English and related subjects at their parent school, the St. Thomas School in North Braddock Borough.

So far, the program has met with little publicized resistance.

Of the 9,778 "nonpublic" Pennsylvania school children who used public school facilities part time last school year, 8,793 were located in Alleghany (Pittsburgh) County, 5,744 of them in the city of Pittsburgh.

Normally, the time these students spend in public schools does not exceed an average of 50 minutes a day.

IN OTHER STATES

This pattern has shown up in other states, where public schools have offered help to private and parochial schools, unable to buy expensive technical equipment. Generally, the public schools benefit by this through subsidies on a pro-rata basis for the time the "nonpublic" students spend in the public schools.

In Connecticut, major cities in the state have been opening public schools to students from Catholic schools for some classes for some time, as long as 20 years in Hartford. Industrial arts classes are offered 7th and 8th grade boys, and home economics to 7th and 8th grade girls.

In the upper Midwest, communities have used the shared time system for years.

At Bird Island, Minn., for example, the helping hand is extended in both directions. St. Mary's High School and the public high school face each other across a street. The public school gives Catholic students classes in home economics, industrial arts and agriculture. St. Mary's handles Latin for students of both schools.

Each school allows students from the other to attend any additional class that fits his schedule.

No money changes hands between the schools.

At Wabasha, Minn., Catholic students study band, shop and agriculture in the public school. In Austin, Minn., Catholic schools have taught Latin and French to public school students, while the public schools have taught auto body work and cosmetology to students from the Catholic schools.

A Minnesota education official said the shared-time plans, while not widespread, were known to state officials, and "can be done if there is space in the schools."

The official, T. C. Engum, elementary and secondary education section chief in the Minnesota Department of Education, said:

"So far we have not run into any legal obstacles and whatever has been done has been cleared with the attorney general's office."

In Kansas City, Mo., public schools have had shared time arrangements with Catholic parochial schools since 1940. At the end of last school year, there were 289 such boys and 270 such girls in public school industrial and homemaking courses.

* * *

In Springfield, Mo., St. Agnes High School is carrying out a similar plan for the first time this year in cooperation with a vocational high school.

* * *

In Topeka, Kan., Catholic schools for many years have used classrooms of nearby public schools for home economics and manual training.

In Oklahoma, the German community of Okarche has a similar plan. For years Holy Trinity School has sent four classes a day —shop and home economics — to Okarche High School.

IN OTHER CITIES

The shared time idea has been discussed in other cities including St. Louis and San Francisco.

In Monroeville, some Protestant and Catholic authorities see the experiment there as a possible eventual solution to the conflict over use of government funds to aid parochial schools.

For this reason, the Monroeville test is being watched carefully.

* * *

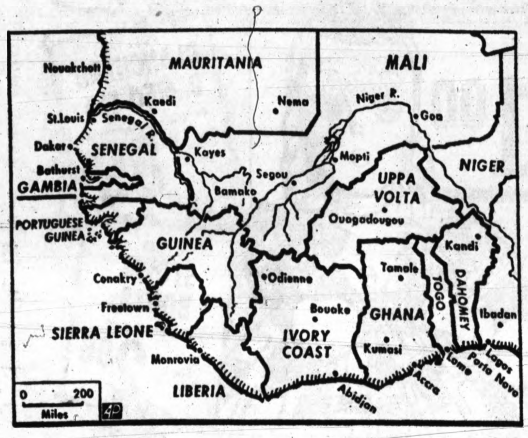
The shared-time idea is based on the principle that a school district's schools are supported by all of its residents, and therefore all of their children should get to use them if they so desire.

There is general agreement in the Pittsburgh area on the constitutionality of the program. The Forbes Trail test may tell church and school authorities whether the plan is workable.

* * *

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John B. McDowell, diocesan superintendent of schools, who was in charge of working out details with the county, commented: "As a Catholic educator I think if it is accepted it can eventually mean we can give formal religious instruction to more children."

Power Play Developing in British African Colony



AP Photofax

TEST SITE—Map locates Gambia, British colony in West Africa, which has the makings of a test site in power politics. Neighbor Senegal wants Gambia to join her. Some believe Ghana is angling for a union with Gambia, as well as Guinea and Mali.

BATHURST, Gambia (AP) — This West African colony, Britain's oldest and poorest on the continent, has the makings of a test in power politics.

* * *

Neighboring Senegal would love to have Gambia join it. Some Gambian politicians say Ghana, far down the coast, is angling to have Gambia link up in a union involving Ghana, Guinea and Mali.

The bulk of Gambia's predominantly Moslem peasant farmers, struggling to make a living from growing peanuts, are not greatly interested in such things. They are more concerned with feeding their families and giving their children the education many of them lack.

Gambia, with 4,000 square miles, is smaller than Connecticut and has a population of only 300,000. The colony pokes into Senegal like a long finger, and geography suggests that union with Senegal would be logical. But Senegal is French-speaking and its administrative system and currency are different.

Senegal, though independent, keeps very close to metropolitan France if for no other reason than to insure continued economic assistance. Political leaders in Gambia, where the official language is English, are close to Britain, relying on it to prop up the country's shaky economy.

IN NO HURRY

Gambian leaders do not seem in a hurry for full independence. They suggest two to three years of their present internal self-government before facing up to the hazards of independence.

* * *

British officials hope Gambia will not delay too long. They want to avoid possible international criticism that they are holding on to their last West African colony.

Nine out of 10 Gambians live on bare subsistence level, with the lowest per capita income in West Africa. Until less than 10 years ago farmers plowed with primitive tools, a kind of Dutch hoe and a sock-sock (hand trowel). Efforts are being made to encourage ox-plowing.

A byproduct of this type of farming is ox-cart transportation to get rice from the fields and to carry building bricks and firewood.

The peanut crop accounts for all but $434,000 of $10 million in annual exports.

SELF-GOVERNMENT

Since the introduction of internal self-government in May, the country has been run by a premier and seven ministers. The British governor is still responsible for security, external affairs and the civil service.

* * *

Premier David Jawara, 38, a qualified veterinary surgeon, gave up his good job as a government veterinary officer because he believed that only through political leadership could the lot of his countrymen be improved.

* * *

He and his wife, a nurse, formed the People's Progressive Party, which at this year's elections won 18 of the seats in parliament against 13 for Pierre N'Jie's United party.

Both Jawara and N'Jie support closer economic and cultural ties with Senegal while retaining Gambia's association with the British Commonwealth.

* * *

Neither wants to see Gambia swallowed up by Senegal, but they are not very clear how this can be prevented as things are going now. Both hope that somehow British aid will be continued after independence, whatever arrangements are made with Senegal.

Rail Wonder Runs in Obscurity

WASHINGTON — A jungle railroad in Brazil was hailed as one of the world's great wonders when it was hacked out by North Americans 50 years ago. Today, the line operates in casual obscurity.

The 228 miles of track were built to open a large part of Brazil's wild interior to the rubber trade, the National Geographic Society says.

The road pierced dense jungle, traversed swamps, and spanned turbulent streams to connect the Madeira and Mamore rivers.

Men came from 30 countries to work on the project. Hundreds were to die from malaria and other fevers. Hostile Indians showered arrows on surveying parties. Heavy rains washed out miles of track, and vast columns of army ants devoured the wooden railroad ties.

* * *

Before the railroad was constructed, Bolivian rubber was shipped down the Madeira and Mamore in large batelones, or canoes, to reach the Amazon. The boatmen had to make difficult portages around rapids, and the round trip took months.

In 1898, an effort to lay track failed because of the appalling mortality rate among workers. An American firm began work on the line in 1907, instituting strict sanitary controls.

All workmen were vaccinated and required to take 10 grains of quinine a day. Doctors made daily rounds in small track cars, treating the ill and sending serious cases to a specially built hospital near Porto Velho. In four years, the hospital admitted 30,000 patients.

After five rigorous years, the railroad was completed, and the first train rattled over its entire length on July 15, 1912. But the road had been finished too late.

The South American rubber boom had collapsed under competition from Asian rubber. Other Bolivian products could pass more cheaply through the Panama Canal, which was just being finished.

Now the road carries nuts, hides, woods, and 4,000 tons of rubber a year to Porto Velho. It brings back food, petroleum products, and construction materials to peoples of the interior.

To Send Wire, Cable

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Twenty five tons of wire and four miles of electric cable will be sent to Cuba from Moscow for use in new factories and electrical equipment Havana radio said Tuesday.

Pep Up Baubles for That Tree

No matter how bright and beautiful Christmas tree ornaments may be when brand new, by the time you bring them out for their third or fourth Christmas, they look a bit shabby.

But all is not lost! With only a bowl of whipped-up soap suds, glitter or other trim, and creative zeal, you can turn out ornaments that will make your tree a conversation piece.

Pour a generous amount of packaged soap (or detergent) into a large mixing bowl, add enough water to whip it with a hand or electric beater into a rather "loose," meringue-like substance.

* * *

There's no exact recipe; simply add more water to make it thinner, more soap to thicken it. Gather an assortment of trim: sequins, silver or gold sparkles from the dime store, a handful of corn flakes, raisins, chocolate bits, or candy drops.

* * *

Dip each ornament into the whipped-up suds "snow," letting it drip in a free-form design, or smoothing it off into a perfect round ball. Sprinkle or press on your choice of trim, and it will adhere firmly as the snow dries. If you add candies as trim, wait until the snow is almost dry.

How to Make Felt Tablecloth

To make a sparkling felt Christmas tablecloth, measure across the center top of the table. Add to this 12 inches for overhang. Then double the overhang measure.

* * *

Fold resulting large rectangle in half crosswise and then in half lengthwise.

Now, to a pencil, tie a string that is exactly one-half the diameter of the finished cloth.

Secure other end of string with a thumb tack to folded corner of cloth. (This would be exact center of cloth.) Use pencil to mark a curve along edge of cloth.

Cut through four thicknesses along this pencilled curve. Open cloth.

DRAW PATTERNS

Draw on brown wrapping paper, patterns for holly leaf, poinsettia petals and candles.

Transfer to green and red felt for leaves and petals and yellow felt for candles.

* * *

Cut out, allowing one-inch seam allowance around candle and baste in position on cloth.

Set your sewing machine for a narrow satin stitch and applique candles in position; cut off excess fabric at stitching line.

Stitch petals through the center. Cut small slits where Christmas lights are to sparkle, and on wrong side of cloth secure light cords with masking tape.

UAW Retirees Enjoy Union Hall

They Say Thanks... Twice Monthly

By DICK SAUNDERS

Thanksgiving is a day when the whole world smells like a newborn pumpkin pie, or a hot crusted loaf of bread.

It is the sound of wishbone snaps and moist turkey falling from a drumstick.

It's the memory of a cupcake or tart, born from a secret flime long since snuffed out.

Thanksgiving is a day when humble people stop to reflect on their fortunes and give thanks.

And it's a day that belongs to grandma.

This is the day when grandma goes to the kitchen to create things from a formula known only to her and God.

* * *

In much the same manner, Thanksgiving comes twice monthly for the male members of a retirees group at United Auto Workers Pontiac Local 594.

They are grandpas and they belong to grandmas. The combination produces a potluck luncheon the second and fourth Thursday each month.

These meals are being duplicated at family gatherings throughout the nation today.

The UAW retirees, former employes of GMC Truck & Coach Division, eat like kings so often that one might expect it to take the edge off Thanksgiving for them.

In the contrary, they have something to be particularly thankful for this year — a new union hall.

On the contrary, they have something to be particularly thankful for this year — a new union hall.

They've been meeting regularly at the new, modern and spacious Local 594 hall, 525 S. East Blvd., since it opened last summer.

The old hall at 90 Mount Clemens St. was a bit cramped for space. The 55-years-old-and-up group had to eat in a long, slender basement room that left them with little breathing room.

There were times when the room wouldn't hold the crowd, and there certainly wasn't much space for after-dinner pleasantries such as card playing and dancing.

* * *

This year the union saw many years of planning and saving culminated with the birth of a new home complete with off-street parking lot.

For Andy Wilson, local president, and other officials it means more space in which to hold important meetings and conduct union business.

For the younger UAW membership, it's a long-sought-after center of activity near the plant.

But there aren't any who appreciate it more than the retirees. They make us of the modern facilities with gusto.

LOTS OF SPACE

The dining hall is four or five times the size of that former basement room. In addition, there's a separate room for cards, bingo and shuffleboard.

Possibly most important, those twice-a-month "Thanksgiving" dinners taste better than ever coming from a new, bigger and better-equipped kitchen.

Aside from the fact that there are more customers to feed now, grandma's job has been made easier by the new facilities.

To these senior citizens, the taste of Thanksgiving may be familiar, but the meaning is fresh and new.

MAIN ATTRACTION — On the second and fourth Thursday each month, food is the main attraction at Pontiac UAW Local 594. A member of the world's most experienced kitchen staff, Mrs. Fern Sallee, (left) 65, of 582 Le Baron St., hands some home-cooked meals to "visiting waitress" Mrs. Sybil Berndt, 65, of Durand.

SHUFFLIN' ALONG—Enjoying a little shuffleboard are UAW Local 594 retires Charles Kokotek (left), 66, of 580 Melroe and Bruce Sheppard, 73, of 3136 Midvale St., Aovn Township. It's the only shuffling you'll see when this springhtly group gets together.

ELBOW ROOM — The scene presented by the regular potluck luncheons of retired GMC Truck & Coach Division employes at Pontiac UAW Local 594 didn't always look like this. Until last summer, the retirees met at the former 594 hall on Mt. Clemens, in a cramped basement room. Now they're able to sit back and stretch a little in the local's new hall on S. East Boulevard. This crowd turned out last week for the group's Thanksgiving luncheon.

Launder Luxuries With Care

Christmas gifts are often special — luxurious, sometimes impractical, but charming.

* * *

With the wide range of luxury items available, it's really fun to select a special gift that will please the most discriminating lady.

The completely feminine girl will welcome a frilly, lace-trimmed nightgown or peignoir; a slip or petticoat in one of the season's exciting new shades; a lovely embroidered or lace-trimmed blouse, or even a soft, luxurious cashmere sweater.

For those with a more tailored preference, there are the bulky knits in any one of the popular synthetic fibers, the delightful new stretch pants or a smart tailored blouse.

* * *

You can select any one of the above items and know that your gift will be practical as well as lovely.

SYNTHETIC FIBERS

Frilly garments, for example, display a hardiness in the automatic washer that completely belie their delicate appearance.

* * *

A garment of almost any of the synthetic fibers will perform well when laundered for three minutes in warm water with gentle agitation.

Sweaters, even those precious cashmeres, can be safely laundered in the automatic washer by following directions for washing wool.

Select cold water, a cold water soap and gentle agitation. Then wash for about two minutes, alternating periods of agitation with soaking to avoid shrinkage.

A fabric conditioner added to the final rinse will keep sweaters soft through many launderings. Block to original size and shape on flat surface. Air dry.

USE MESH BAG

If you intend to launder any delicate article with a mixed laundry load, the Maytag Home Service department suggests you place it in a mesh laundry bag to avoid snagging.

Pigeons Fly by Plane

LONDON (UPI) — Eleven British homing pigeons that got lost and flew to Germany by mistake came back yesterday in an airliner.

Local Salvation Army Plans Annual Holiday Aid Program

The Salvation Army Christmas Clearing House Service will open Monday to receive applications for holiday baskets and for clearing with other groups.

Applicants for Christmas aid must apply in person at the clearing house office in the basement of the Salvation Army citadel, 29 W. Lawrence St. Telephone requests cannot be accepted, Lt. Gary B. Crowell said.

Registration cards from the Michigan Employment Security Commission office must be available from all unemployed while Social Security cards or other positive identification must be shown by all other applicants.

Townships and mailing address must be known by applicant, Crowell stated.

The office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until Dec. 14. No applications will be taken after this date unless submitted by some cooperating agency or group.

All organizations or individuals giving Christmas aid of any kind are requested to call the clearing house. Drawing families' names from the pool or clearing names already decided upon, will assure each donor an unduplicated family.

"All groups including churches should appoint a representative who can be contacted by phone," Lt. Crowell said. "He should know how many families the organization will be responsible for.

"With all families cleared through the Salvation Army Clearing House we will be sure no one is missed and there will be no duplications."

Clergymen Protest Leader's Detention

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Fifteen exiled archbishops and bishops of the Ukrainian Byzantine Rite issued a statement yesterday protesting the dentention of their leader in Siberia by the Soviet government.

The 15, who are in Rome for the Ecumenical Council but normally live in Europe, Australia and America, said their metropolitan Josef Slipyj has been exiled in Siberia for 17 years.

They said 11 bishops of the Ukranian Rite have died in prisons, others still are jailed and asked they be released to resume their work.

* * *

"Only after these conditions of justice are met will there be signs of sincerity," the statement said.

Beta Sigma Phi Meets at Home in South Lyon

Mrs. George Thurber of South Lyon was hostess to members of Xi Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Tuesday evening. A dah Shelly, honorary member of the sorority, was a guest.

A program from "Festival of Life" was presented by Virginia Luther, Mrs. Howard Shaw and the hostess.

The annual Christmas party will be Dec. 18 in the home of Mrs. Carl L. Leedy on Tilden Avenue.

Pick Gourmet Delights for Festive Yule Fare

One of the nicest things about the holiday season is the abundance of special foods not seen at other times.

* * *

The season's gaiety is reflected in these festive delicacies. Perhaps it's the nippy air during the holidays that makes them taste so good.

Whatever the reason, food is as much a part of the year-end season as Christmas trees, caroling and family visits.

With the wide choice available, you can select what you need for eighter children's or grown-ups' parties.

GOURMET FOODS

Many of these are known as "epicure" or gourmet" foods. Don't let the names scare you.

* * *

Americans have learned that French is not a requirement for the enjoyment of these specialities.

You'll find many of the holiday-type foods in designated sections of department stores and particularly in specialty food stores.

* *

One traditional favorite is fruit cake. Its serving can be traced back to early civilizations when it was made as a thanksgiving offering to the gods.

Our present day tradition appears to date from English Christmas celebrations, and one firm, Grace A. Rush, Inc., Cincinnati, still uses a 130-year-old British recipe to prepare a dark cake of fruits and nuts aged in brandy.

* *

They added to the fruit cake idea by making a white type somewhat lighter in texture, and also by baking bite-size miniatures.

CHILDREN'S COOKIES

Since children always seem to have the most fun at Christmas, you can delight them with special mint or lace cookies.

* * *

The light-textured lace can be served as a holiday snack with milk or for dessert. The mint is a pleasurable companion to a hot drink.

Another treat are small individual pecan pies.

While you're doing your Christmas shopping, look for unusual foods.

Christmas Day Always Same but Different

The custom of giving gifts at Christmas is an old one. It began during the first Christmas, when the three Kings came to Bethlehem bearing gifts for the Christ child.

* * *

Today, to children in the United States, Santa Claus plays the role of gift bearer.

And youngsters all over the world have their own version of this same kindly gent, though his name may be different.

In Czechoslovakia, Svaty Mikulus, the patron saint of children, descends from heaven on a golden cord, escorted by a white angel, to bring gifts to the children who recite their prayers properly.

ON WHITE HORSE

In Holland, St. Nicholas comes on a white horse, with his faithful servant, Black Peter.

Children stuff their wooden shoes with hay for the horse, and in the morning, they find the hay replaced by gifts.

St. Lucia, wearing a crown of candles and carrying a tray of cakes and coffee, comes at dawn in Sweden to awaken the family, and a sheaf of grain is tied to a pole in front of each house as a special Christmas gift for birds.

'Safe Cracker' Lauded by Police Who Watch

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Police cheered as Louis Schwab used a high speed drill and deft manipulation of tumblers to crack a safe.

TV Actress Asked to Be Less Glamorous

DARTMOOR, England (UPI)—Television actress Glenda Bell, 27, was asked to wear less glamorous clothes when she went to Dartmoor prison to make a film.

"It might unsettle the prisoners if you turned up like that," an official said, eying her low-cut neckline.

Is Agency Shop Legal Practice?

High Court to Decide if Employes Must Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court will hear arguments next spring on whether an employer can lawfully sign an agreement requiring that all his workers pay the equivalent of union dues even though they may not belong to a union.

The high court this week agreed to rule on the legality of the agency shop, as it is called. The union argument for such a shop rules that the union is entitled to financial recompense from non-members who benefit from union bargaining.

The high court's newest member, Associate Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, was chief counsel for the steelworkers in 1960 when they signed the contract that gave the biggest boost to the agency shop.

The 1960 steel contract provided that in the 19 states having right-to-work laws, employes would be required to pay a service charge each month as a contribution toward the administration of the agreement. This charge was equal to union dues.

Right-to-work laws prohibit any requirement in union contracts that a worker must belong to a labor union to get or hold a job. The federal Taft-Hartley law ruled out the closed shop, which requires union membership before employment, but permitted the union shop, which requires the employe to join the union to hold his job.

In announcing that it would consider the agency shop issue, the court set aside two hours for arguments on two cases from Indiana and Florida rather than the usual four hours. It also gave the AFL-CIO permission to be heard as "a friend of the court."

The date for the arguments will be set later.

Interview 17 for Waterford School Head

Waterford Township's Board of Education personnel committee has interviewed 17 candidates to date for the superintendent of schools position vacated August 18 by William S. Shunck.

"We expect to talk with additional prospects in the near future," committee chairman, Elden C. Rosegart said. He added that it would be difficult at this time to say when a decision might be reached.

James DenHerder, former assistant to the superintendent, became acting superintendent when Shunck assumed duties as superintendent of Wayne County Schools.

Serving on the personnel committee with Rosegart are Mrs. Dorothy B. Barningham, Norman L. Cheal and Duane M. Lemaux.

Food Costs Increase for Americans in '62

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The average American will spend $398 for food this year, compared with $392 in 1961, according to government figures.

The higher food bill will reflect more marketing services such as packaging and precooking and slightly higher prices paid to farmers.

Man Bags a Big Buck, but it Costs Dearly

LITCHFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Henry Byron Howell of Mesa, Ariz., killed a 275-pound, 9-point buck here, but he won't spend any money to have his trophy mounted.

Instead he'll pay to have his car repaired. It received damages estimated at $525 when he struck the deer as it ran across the highway directly in front of his car.

Daughter Beards Daddy in Her (Play) Pen

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — When Walter Golby, Bradenton city tax clerk, grew a beard for a local celebration, his 5-month-old daughter found good use for it.

When papa would lean over her crib, baby would grab the beard firmly with both hands and hang on until he pulled her into a slightly wobbly standing position.

Campuses Love That Button-Down Mind

BY VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Newhart, who won an Emmy and lost his show simultaneously last season, has gone back to college this fall and made a fortune.

In the past two months the comedian appeared before uncounted thousands of collegians at 20 universities across the country.

College kids forgot about pep rallies and panty raids long enough to dig Newhart's incisive comments on the current scene, convincing Bob that they are truly hip audiences.

During his year as a weekly video funnyman Newhart discovered the bulk of his viewers were between the ages of 18 and 42. It figured, then, that he would be appreciated on campus.

NOT CYNICAL

"College students come to a performance to have a good time," Newhart said on his return from the tour. "They're not cynical and jaded, and they're brighter than the average audience.

"You're dead if you try to give them broad comedy because they want intellectual stimulation and a challenge. Those kids are on the ball — they have to be, just to meet the entrance requirements."

Bob's style remains the same for students as it was on video, but he does add special material with appeal for young people.

"I do a bit about old grads holding a reunion and another hanging the football coach in effigy. Their favorite is the one about a professor's travelogue," he said.

★ ★ ★

"I gauge the audience by its response to my first routine. If the lines go over their heads I play it a little broader, but if it plays well then I use more understatement."

Newhart averaged 4,000 students a night. In too nights at Purdue he collected 18,000 paying customers. The crowds provide him with a bigger income than he was drawing on television.

★ ★ ★

"Playing colleges is much better than the nightclub circuit," he said. "There's more money in it and you don't have to put up with distractions and drunks."

STILL CLOSE TO TV

The natty little entertainer remains close to television, however, with an appearance on "The Andy Williams Show" (NBC) Nov. 29. There also is a possibility that he will crank up another weekly show of his own for the 1963-64 season.

"We're still talking about a deal," he admitted. "It might be a situation comedy series or something along the lines I did last year.

"Despite the fact that it went off the air I was proud of my program. Maybe we got too many awards."

Snow Tires Gaining Popularity in State

BY ROBERT IRVIN
UPI Automotive Editor

DETROIT — Sales of snow tires in Michigan already are up 25 per cent over last year, it was reported today.

In the heavy snow area of Western Michigan, a rush of early snow tire buying has accounted for more winter tires than during all of last year, a rubber company official said.

John Blottie, assistant district manager for Goodyear in Grand Rapids, said that more people want snow tires apparently because "we now are doing more to prevent accidents than just placing the burden for safety on law enforcement and leaving the rest to chance."

Snow tires also appear to be getting more popular around the country. Goodyear predicts that nationally 19 million cars will be equipped with snow tires this winter.

This is about 30 per cent of all cars in the country and three times the total just nine years ago.

REQUIRED BY LAW

Winter tires are still optional in Michigan, but are required by law in California, Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, Nevada, Alaska and in Kansas City and Omaha.

In fact, in California tires with chains are required in some areas. In the San Bernadino Mountains, for example, when you get above about 4,000 feet you see signs saying that it's unlawful to drive without chains on at least the rear wheels.

Michigan State Police in Lansing report that all their patrol cars in the northern areas now have winter tires and that about 75 or 80 per cent of all state police cars are equipped with them.

★ ★ ★

"The ease of movement, plus the added safety factor, make winter tires an important addition to our cars," a state police spokesman said.

"Under adverse snow conditions, the number of accidents skyrocket," he said. "We are sure snow tires are making helpful contributions to safety. . ."

MORE TRACTION

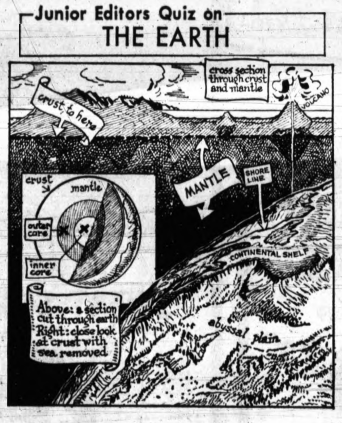
Rubber company officials say that winter tires provide 51 per cent more traction on snow and 28 per cent more grip on ice than regular passenger tires.

"The tread design of a good winter tire features hundreds of sharp, cleat-like edges that can dig in and brace in snow to provide traction a conventional tire can't," Blottie said.

Blottie also said that the good winter tire of today provides a ride impossible on older snow tires or chains.

"Interlocking tread elements provide a continuous road-contacting surface," he added. "This makes the quality winter tire a true 'all-weather' tire that is rumble-free during periods of bad road conditions or on clear pavement."

Junior Editors Quiz on THE EARTH



QUESTION: What's inside the earth's crust?

ANSWER: Considering the size of the earth, its crust or outer shell is very thin, averaging about 25 miles in thickness. Geologists speak of two different parts: that under land, that under sea. Under the continents the crust is thicker, from 20 to 37 miles deep and is made of light granite rock.

The crust under the ocean is only 3 to 5 miles thick and is made of the rock caller "basalt." The earth's crust rests on its "mantle". Scientists don't know exactly what the mantle is like, although they say it is about 1800 miles thick and is denser rock than the crust (so we don't have to worry about the crust suddenly caving in). In places, the crust is supposed to strike down into the mantle; it is thought there are deep pockets below on which the mountains rest.

★ ★ ★

"Faults," or cracks in the earth surface, come up through the mantle, along the fault lines earthquakes often appear. Volcanoes are mountains connected with some underground source of molten rock, or "magma."

★ ★ ★

There is a good deal of activity going on inside the earth, scientists say. Once it was thought that the earth had a hot beginning and has been cooling off. Now, experts are wondering if perhaps the earth was once cool and is getting hotter, due to radioactivity.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: Study the shore of northern America with the water removed. There are two interesting words for you to learn. "Continental shelf" is the land leading out from the shore line underwater. Then the land drops suddenly to the ocean floor. This is the "abyssal plain."

Yule Carol Just Grew and Grew

The word "carol" is often used to describe any of the music at Christmas. But there is a difference between carols and hymns.

A brief look at the history of carols will show that the difference between the two lies in the origin of the carol.

The old French "carole" was a round dance, during which the leader sang, and the other dancers joined in at the chorus.

Probably because of its association with dancing, which was considered pagan and immoral, the carol was frowned upon by the church as early as the seventh century.

But carol singing could not be completely suppressed. It was part of the people's desire to express themselves in forms and rhythms less stately than the hymns sung in churches. And in the 1200s, the joyous songs again rang clear.

With the Christmas Crib at Greccio, Francis of Assisi "visually" brought home to his countrymen the birth of Christ.

★ ★ ★

And in the resultant tide of religion, much of Europe blossomed forth with heartfelt song.

★ ★ ★

By the 15th Century, carols rang out in England. The chief way of instructing people in the Christian faith became a cycle of "mysterious plays," presenting in a simple way, episodes from the Bible. Carols were sung to describe events.

The famous Coventry Carol was sung in a "mystery play" by the women of Bethlehem just before Herod's soldiers came to massacre the children.

The Puritans worked at taking the joy out of carol singing, and when they named Christmas "the true Christian man's fasting day," the joyous carol was a sinking ship.

It survived by going underground and living only in memory, which accounts for the many versions of words and music we find in these old carols today.

★ ★ ★

In 1871, a book called "Christmas Carols New and Old," was published in England. It made popular over 20 traditional carols and marked the revival of carol singing in church.

Today, the Christmas carol, as well as the Christmas hymn, is an integral part of the celebration of the season.

Bank Robber 'Most Wanted'

FBI Adds Soviet-Born Undeportable to List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI has placed a Russian-born bank robber, turned away by more than four nations, on its list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

★ ★ ★

The FBI described David Stanley Jacubanis, 52, as a "man without a country." He is wanted for robbing a Dedham, Mass., bank of $6,004 last March 27.

Jacubanis was put on the most wanted list to replace another man wanted for bank robbery — Albert Frederick Nussbaum — who was arrested two weeks ago in Buffalo, N.Y.

The FBI also wants Jacubanis for violating parole, and he is charged in Rhode Island with the robbery of a North Smithfield bank.

Jacubanis, a stocky, sporty dresser, was first convicted in November 1925 for carrying an unlicensed weapon.

A string of subsequent armed robbery convictions culminated in his escape in 1953 while he was being taken to federal prison.

★ ★ ★

He was quickly recaptured and put in Alcatraz. He was paroled in April 1961.

He was reported born July 10, 1910 at Baku, Russia, the FBI said. U.S. authorities tried to deport him to Russia in 1946, but Russia wouldn't take him.

Later efforts to deport him to Canada, England, France and several other countries also met with failure when the nations refused to accept him, the FBI said.

A soft-spoken man with a big vocabulary, he likes big cars, drinks in moderation, favors cigars and steaks and likes to bet on boxing matches and races.

The FBI said Jacubanis is considered extremely dangerous.

Spiced-Up Relishes Nice Gift

People dote on relishes, the whole spicy, snappy, fruity, sweet, sharp, hot, lovely family of savory delights. They enjoy them for the way they pep up plain-Jane dishes and enhance the flavor of many others. And they've even been known to use them piled high on bread just for their sheer zest.

So for a delightful Christmas gift, a "different" gift, why not give relishes that you make yourself. They are a pride to produce, a pleasure to receive. They cost little, which is something to consider, too.

Now for the relishes themselves. Here are recipes for three—easy to make and glorious to eat. Since they are no-cook relishes include a little note with your Christmas greetings to "keep in the refrigerator."

★ ★ ★

SWEET CURRANT APPLE RELISH

Two cups canned apple sauce, one eight-ounce jar currant jelly, two tablespoons prepared mustard.

Combine apple sauce, currant jelly and mustard; mix well. Chill. Makes about three cups. (Sweetly tart.)

SNAPPY HORSERADISH RELISH

Two cups canned apple sauce, one cup finely diced celery, two tablespoons prepared horseradish, two tablespoons minced onion.

Combine apple sauce, horseradish, celery and onion; mix well. Chill. Makes about three cups. (Zesty and sharp.)

CRAN-APPLE RELISH

Two cups canned apple sauce, one cup ground cranberries, one tablespoon grated orange rind, one-half cup sugar, one-third to two-thirds cup of toasted almonds.

Combine apple sauce, cranberries, orange rind, sugar and toasted almonds. Mix well, chill. Makes three cups.

51 Girls Form First City Club

Bethune's 4-H Bees Are Buzzin'

By DICK HANSON

The Bethune Bees are really buzzin'.

The busy bees are 51 sixth-graders at Bethune School on Lake Street, who make up the first 4-H Club in the city's school system.

They typify the continuing trend of 4-H clubs moving into the cities as their traditional rural areas become more and more urbanized.

The youngsters already are well on their way with food, clothing and handicraft projects which are intended to help make them top-grade citizens of tomorrow.

They are learning that they can produce worthwhile things through their own efforts.

ADULT LEADERS

These efforts, guided by adult leaders, haven't gone unnoticed. The school's principal, Mrs. Mary Killian reports the Bees' parents are showing an increasing interest in the projects, and fifth-graders are planning to start the second 4-H Club in the school system.

Four volunteer leaders are guiding the Bees in three project areas, Mrs. Marshall Lee of 297 Branch St. and Mrs. Florine Hardin, 327 Branch St., are working with youngsters in the foods project.

Mrs. Laymond Eanes of 301 Branch St. is teaching sewing to another group, and 17 boys are working in woodcraft under the direction of school engineer George Vosburg.

A garden project is being planned for next summer under the guidance of Roy McAfee, executive director of the City Housing Commission.

He hopes to find enough vacant land to enable each child to have his or her own garden to tend.

★ ★ ★

Officers of the new club are Armelia Miles of 73 Florida St., president; Linda Williams, 458 Branch St., vice president; and Joan Lee, 297 Branch St., secretary-treasurer.

Pamela Glenn of 32 Clovese St. is recreation leader; Grover Heard, 444 Vermont St., song leader; and Mona Reynolds, 332 Howard McNeil St., news reporter.

BUSY BEES — A new sense of accomplishment is evident in these smiling faces of young girls using a sewing machine for the first time at Bethune Elementary School. They are members of a new 4-H club, the Bethune Bees. From left, they are Diane Keel, 18 Clovese St.; Linda Smith, 322 Branch St.; and Loveda McDough, 9 Utah St.

NEW SKILLS ACQUIRED — Learning the secrets of woodcraft are Bethune School sixth-graders George Rush, 44 Lull St., and Joe Carl Willis, 479 Orchard Lake Avenue. They are members of a new 4-H club at the school, first in the city school system, and dedicated to developing good character in youngsters by teaching them new skills with tangible results.

See Shoals for JFK's Wheat Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent congressional elections raised storm signals for the Kennedy administration's new wheat control program.

While authorized by the last Congress, this program must be approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in a referendum to be held next spring. It would go into effect for the first time on the 1964 crop.

The new program provides for a dual price system and a potentially smaller national planting allotment that permitted under the old program. Top price would go to each farm's allotted share of the domestic wheat food and subsidized export market.

A lower price would prevail for wheat grown for nonfood uses, such as livestock feed, seed and industrial uses and for that portion of the export market not covered by government export subsidies.

Under the present programs, a single price prevails. The old law sets a minimum national planting allotment of 55-million acres. Under the new program that might well be reduced to 45 - million acres.

Storm warnings indicating possible difficulties in getting the new program accepted at a grower referendum were seen in wheat - area victories of a number of congressmen who opposed the program when it came up for legislative action.

The referendum on the new wheat program will be held at a time when agriculture is in the throes of a family argument over government regulation of farming. The American Farm Bureau Federation, the largest of the national farm organizations, has been waging a long campaign to get government out of farming.

The referendum also will be held at a time when the Kennedy administration is thanking its stars that it was able to win, by the narrowest of margins, grower approval of a wheat control program for the 1963 crop.

In that referendum, held in August, only 67 per cent of the growers voted for it, just a thin margin over the necessary two-thirds. Never before had the margin been that small.

Yet, there are factors in the situation that are expected to favor the new program. One is the alternative program that would take over should the administration plan be defeated.

Under the Kennedy program, the support price for that portion of the crop assigned for domestic feed use and for subsidized export would be at least $2 a bushel or about 80 per cent of the parity price goal of farm programs.

But under the alternative program, the support would drop to 50 per cent of parity or about $1.22 a bushel. Even then, the support aid would be limited to those farmers who complied with planting allotments given them under the Kennedy program.

JFK, Reporters End Courtship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conflicts over the official information policies during the Cuban crisis have marked the end to President Kennedy's "honeymoon" with the press, according to a prominent Washington newsman and a journalism professor.

Chalmers M. Roberts, manager of the Washington Post's national bureau, and Penn T. Kimball, professor at Columbia University's graduate school of journalism, said correspondents appeared to be enthusiastic about the news climate when Kennedy assumed the presidency almost two years ago.

But recent conflicts over official information policies during the Cuban crisis have changed that feeling, they said in a network radio broadcast.

★ ★ ★

"Now, it seems to me, the honeymoon is really over and it's the case of the husband and wife getting irritated," Kimball said, with Roberts agreeing.

Gift-Giving Goes On All Year Long

While Christmas is the nation's single most important gift giving occasion it represents less than half (43 per cent) of the total estimated yearly gift giving markets of $18,526,000 according to a continuing study of the U. S. gift market.

★ ★ ★

Biggest non-Christmas gift spending is done for birthday presents with a yearly total of $3.5 billion for 545 million presents. Two other gift giving occasions are in the billion dollar category — wedding ($1.3 billion) and Mother's Day ($1 billion). Next in importance come Father's Day ($900 million), anniversary gifts ($870 million), shower gifts ($420 million), Easter ($350 million), Valentine's Day ($200 million). Other occasions, such as graduation, house gifts, party favors, going away presents, etc., account for another $1.2 billion.

Bay rum is made by steeping leaves and berries of the bay tree in unadultered new rum and distilling the mixture.

Medic Links Lung Cancer and Smoking

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Smoking has increased in the past three decades along with the incidence of lung cancer, according to Dr. Morton Loeb Levin of New York.

★ ★ ★

Levin, of the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, said scientific evidence reveals that tobacco smoking and lung cancer are linked.

Cigarette smoking in the last 30 years has increased about 700 per cent, he said. There has been a "marked increase in the incidence of lung cancer" in that period, he said.

"This statistical increase has not been the chief basis for linking the two (cancer and smoking)," Levin said, "it is merely collateral evidence."

★ ★ ★

He cited research figures showing the mortality rate before age 65 in male nonsmokers in the United States is about 23 per cent. The rate is almost doubled for smokers of at least one package of cigarettes per day, he said.

Housewives Protest— Lock Selves in Auto

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI) — Four housewives locked themselves in the mayor's limousine to protest a plan to raze their homes for a new highway.

"I think it was a little bit disrespectful," said Reg Livemore, the mayor's chauffeur.

Yorktown Feels She'll Get Through to Them

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP)—The Yorktown Town Board appointed a woman Tuesday night to serve as the township's dog enumerator. Her job will be to count the township's dogs, at a salary of 30 cents per canine head.

The new appointee's application was the only one received by the board. Her name is Anne Barker.

Unsanitary Market Gets Owner Fined

LANSING (AP) — Roy Gilkerson, operator of a slaughterhouse and meat market near Marlette, has been fined for the second time in a year for allowing unsanitary conditions to exist.

Gilkerson was fined $100 after being found guilty on a complaint brought by Michigan Department of Agriculture inspectors, who said they found unsanitary conditions and moldy meat at the market.

Justice Harry Balhoff of Sandusky suspended a 90-day jail term but said it would be invoked if inspectors find similar conditions again during the next two years.

★ ★ ★

Gilkerson paid a $25 fine last March after being found guilty on a similar complaint.

Soviet Craft Will Be Able to Photograph Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet spaceship speeding toward Mars will come close enough to take pictures, radio them back to earth and then continue its flight as an artificial planet, Tass said yesterday. It is now four-million miles from earth.

The spaceship, launched Nov. 1 on its seven-month journey, was reported traveling according to schedule. The announcement did not say how far it would miss Mars.

★ ★ ★

The route being taken was described as hazardous—"traveling through unfathomed reaches of the universe where anything may happen, for instance possible collisions with meteorites."

Trans World Settles Long Crew Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trans World Airlines and its pilots and flight engineers signed an agreement yesterday settling their long dispute over the make-up of jet cockpit crews.

President Kennedy expressed hope it will set an industry pattern.

The President also commended the bargaining process that produced the settlement, as an example not only for the airlines but for other industries in working out the problems of technological change.

In essence, the new pact gives presently employed members of the Flight Engineers International Association priority for the third seat in jet airliner cockpits in cutting the crews from four men to three. After those men are out of the picture a third pilot takes over.

It was the first package settlement on the point among all the parties involved—the airline, the engineers and the Airline Pilots Association.

REPORT TO PRESIDENT

It was signed at the Labor Department and Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz then led the participants to the White House to report to Kennedy.

Kennedy, noting the very difficult problem involved, said he hopes the agreement will encourage other industries to sit down to settle the problems of technological change that affect many hundreds of persons not only in airlines but in many other industries.

It was a difficult problem settled satisfactorily, Kennedy said in brief remarks as he posed for photographs with the group.

Wirtz said "this brings to a conclusion one of the finest examples of collective bargaining."

He said it shows how the government can help out in private collective bargaining, with the parties ironing out their own agreement.

Dr. Nathan Feinsinger of the University of Wisconsin, who headed a special presidential commission which made recommendations in the airline dispute was among those in the President's office.

Officials made a point of the fact that agreement was reached without going to arbitration.

Adult Safety Guards to Attend Session

Waterford Township's 39 adult school safety guards will attend a two-hour training session 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at Airway Lanes, 4825 Highland Road, Waterford Township.

Conducting the program on safety procedures will be Det. Arthur Holmes and Sgt. David Putnam of the Waterford Township Police Department and John E. Hills, assistant to the superintendent of Waterford Schools.

The police officers, who attended a traffic safety workshop yesterday in Royal Oak, said white belts will be issued to the guards to make them more conspicuous on dark mornings.

UAW Local Votes Strike at Chrysler Mack Plant

DETROIT (AP) — Members of United Auto Workers local union 212 have authorized a strike at Chrysler Corp.'s Mack Avenue stamping plant over grievances on working conditions.

Local President Tony Czerwinski said the vote was 5,593 to authorize a strike and 408 against.

Airline Seeks Open Hearing

CHICAGO (UPI) — An injunction suit by United Air Lines (UAL) will be heard here Friday in UAL's efforts to require pilots to practice jet landings with 100-foot ceilings.

The Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) maintains the 100-foot requirement is a "suicide mission." Some of its pilots have refused to observe it.

George E. Keck, vice president of operations for United, said the airline's suit seeks an open hearing on the propriety of the ALPA action.

Keck said 65 per cent of United's pilots eligible for the training have taken the course. But on Nov. 5, the other 35 per cent "refused due to ALPA's sudden decision that the Federal Aviation Agency regulations were unsafe," Keck said.

"United is being unfairly penalized pending resolution of the association's complaint by the FAA," Keck said. "If ALPA considers the regulations unsafe, there is an orderly way to ask for review."

'Kindly' Thief Steals Away

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Authorities granted Johnny Ray Smith's request to tell his wife privately of his conviction on a burglary charge.

Smith stepped into the hall outside Madison County Circuit Court where his wife was supposed to be waiting.

He never came back.

They Both 'Don't Pay'

PARIS, Tex. (UPI) — A truck passing through here bore two signs on its mud flaps. One said: "crime don't pay;" the other said: "Trucking don't either."

Rumor Has Peking Lining Up Pals

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Notes from the foreign news cables:

RED SCHISM:

East European diplomatic sources in Tokyo said the word from Peking is that Communist China is toying with the idea of creating a sort of "bureau of information" linking advocates of its "hard-line" communism.

The nucleus of this rival to Moscow's propaganda outlets — an outgrowth of the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute — would include China, North Korea, North Viet Nam and Albania.

Others "friendly" to Peking's views would be included later.

NO CHANGE:

President Charles de Gaulle, according to officials in Paris who should know, plans to name Georges Pompidou premier of France again after the parliamentary general elections which will be completed next Sunday.

Pompidou headed the last cabinet and is currently the lame-duck premier.

De Gaulle is said to be hopeful that Pompidou would get support from enough popular republicans and conservative independents to form a coalition government with the Gaullist Union for the New Republic (UNR) even if, as expected, the UNR loses heavily.

MARKET MUDDLE:

Observers in Brussels say the Common Market talks are in serious trouble and the chances for Britain's early entry into the European Economic Community do not look too good.

There has been a marked stiffening by France and some of the other member nations, and in attitude it may prove impossible for Britain to join the common six in the coming year.

But Britain cannot take indefinite delay because of the uncertainties it would cause to industrial, economic and even political planning. The expectations are that it will turn to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to try and soften the French.

PEACE OFFENSIVE:

Observers in Moscow look for an acceleration of the Soviet peace offensive in conjunction with the Communist party central committee meeting under way in the Soviet capital city.

They noted that the expected end of the Soviet atomic bomb tests tomorrow could open a drive for conclusion of a test ban treaty — but there has been no indication yet that Moscow had changed its opposition to on-site inspection.

The observers also said the reopening of the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva next week also should bring an upsurge of propaganda pressure on the question of U.S. military bases abroad.

YANKEE GO HOME:

One of the largest hotel chains in the United States is trying to nudge the U.S. military out of its only major billet left in the downtown Tokyo area. So say sources close to military in the Japanese capital.

The reason: The chain wants the choice space occupied by the military hotel for a civilian hotel it plans to build. The military may lose, but it won't give in without a fight.

Poker-Face Polk to Hold Cards in Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Gen. James H. Polk is known as a man who plays a steady game of poker—a man who can't be bluffed.

And that, said an Army comrade, "may be what's needed in Berlin" where Polk will take over in January as U.S. Military Commander.

It's a job calling for cold nerve and an ability to spot Russian diplomatic and military feints.

* * *

The White House announced Monday that the 50-year-old Commander of the 4th Armored Division will replace Maj. Gen. Albert Watson, who is returning to a higher command in the United States.

Polk, a horse cavalryman in his early Army days, took command of the 4th Armored in West Germany 14 months ago—just as last year's Berlin crisis was at its hottest.

This was a return to some of the battlefields of World War II where Polk won three medals for gallantry while leading a tank regiment spearheading Gen. George S. Patton's 3rd Army.

When he received the Legion of Merit on 1945 Polk was lauded for tactical brilliance and the citation told this story:

BREACH SIEGFRIED LINE

"In March, he breached the Siegfried defenses, raced to the Rhine, crossed it and hammered his way across Germany to the Danube River. Bridging it, he soon crossed into Austria, capturing hundreds of towns in his onrush."

On the last day of World War II in Europe, Polk's command ran into a nest of 50 Nazi SS troopers who put up a fanatical, last-gasp defense.

* * *

"With gallant disregard for his own safety, Col. Polk rallied his men and led them in an overwhelming attack which completely overran the enemy," said the citation which accompanied a Silver Star conferred for this exploit.

The Korean War found Polk once again in a key post, this time as Intelligence Chief of the 10th Corps along the fighting front.

Here, Polk was awarded another Legion of Merit. The citation told why:

* * *

"In the Battle of the Syoyang River, his accurate and timely appraisal of the situation was of utmost value in enabling corps and Army commanders to deploy effectively their forces to meet a major Chinese Communist thrust and to launch rapidly a decisive counteroffense."

* * *

The tall, slim general with greying hair and black, bushy eyebrows is still a pretty fair polo player, probably a carryover from his days as a cavalryman after graduating from West Point in 1933.

He stood 61st in a class of 347 at the point.

Polk was born in the Philippines on Dec. 13, 1911. His father, the late Col. Harding Polk, was a professional Army officer stationed there at the time.

In his nearly 30-year Army career, Polk has held a variety of staff jobs and has passed through a number of the professional armed services colleges, including the National War College.

Just before being sent to take command of the 4th Armored Division, Polk was Director of the Policy Planning Staff in the International Security Affairs Office of the Pentagon.

Polk has been married for 26 years to the former Josephine Leavell of El Paso, Tex. They have a son and daughter, both grown.

Tie CD Setup to State Police

Reorganization Links District Posts

LANSING (AP) — The eight district headquarters posts of Michigan state police will serve as command posts for civil defense emergency operations under a reorganization announced Tuesday.

* * *

Capt. Richard L. Nicolen, deputy civil defense director, said the reshaping of operational control areas for civil defense to coincide with state police districts is basic to the program of combining state police and civil defense functions.

The new plan abolishes the six control areas set up for civil defense under the 1959 state survival plan. They were to be located at Ann Arbor, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, Muskegon, Gaylord and Escanaba.

Under the reorganization, state police district commanders will act as civil defense officers during emergencies resulting from enemy attack or natural disaster, conducting operations from the state police posts at Detroit, East Lansing, Jackson, Bay City, Rockford, Paw Paw, Traverse City and Marquette.

Head of Poor Brazilian State Denies He's a Revolutionary

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — Miguel Arraes de Alencar, newly elected governor of Brazil's misery-bitten northeast state of Pernambuco, does not look like the revolutionary his political opponents say he is.

He looks more like a kindly father, which he is. He has eight children—3 to 16 years old—whose mother died two years ago.

But one of his sharpest opponents, Joao Cleofas, moderate, who lost the election to him by a handful of votes—264,616 to 251,707—has accused Arraes of wanting to "Cubanize" Brazil.

"The entire country," said Cleofas, "is in danger, because Miguel Arraes is a revolutionary."

Arraes, a stocky 46-year-old graying man whose eyes and lips smile easily but who is seldom moved to outright laughter, denied that. He also denied that he is an extreme leftist.

"I am a democratic nationalist," he said, and as for "Cubanizing" Brazil, he told a questioning Argentine newsman, "It would be just as easy to imagine Brazilianizing Argentina."

Arraes, mayor since 1959 of this city of one million on the banks of the slow-moving Capibaribe River, has also been accused of packing city hall with known Communists.

He acknowledges that he thinks Fidel Castro is a good leader for Cuba and adds as counterpoint he also thinks President Kennedy is a good leader for the United States.

One of Arraes' first actions after the announcement of his victory at the polls was to assail the Alliance for Progress.

He said its accords with the state of Pernambuco were illegal and that he would—after taking office as governor—refer them back to Brazil's federal government.

That, he said, is the only authority that can make agreements with foreign powers.

ALLIANCE AID

Through the Alliance, the United States has already poured more than $134 million into the eight-state Northeast, a good portion of it to Pernambuco and Recife itself.

In Pernambuco, where illiteracy is a major problem, the Alliance has begun remodeling 125 schools, built 2 new schools and has plans for 11 additional new ones.

Illiteracy is a problem Arraes recognizes. He has announced he will call upon all ranks—from professors to soldiers—in city and country to participate in a massive assault on illiteracy.

He has promised a big program for adult education in a state whose more than four-million population has less than 650,000 qualified voters. Illiteracy excludes one from the polls in Brazil.

State Will Receive Highway Aid in '64

LANSING (AP) — The State Highway Commission says Michigan will receive more than $354,000 during the 1964 fiscal year for improvement of highways in its national forests.

The Michigan allotment will come from $33 million authorized by Congress for use in federal forest highways. Michigan is one of 41 eligible states that will share in the program.

Michigan's apportionment is the second largest for all states east of the Mississippi, the highway commission said. Minnesota will receive the largest share in the eastern half of the nation.

The largest apportionment for the entire country — some $4.7 million — will go to California.

Men Buy in Europe

NEW YORK (UPI)—The woman may be supreme in consumer America, but in Europe the husband still wears the economic pants, according to a management consultant who just returned from Germany.

Ludwig von Kleydorff, told the International Executives Association that "men buy or make the decisions on virtually all buying in Europe."

He noted that American wives buy 95 per cent of ordinary goods here and often have the final say in the purchase of the family car or other large items.

* * *

But in Europe, he said, "Women are afraid to buy labor saving services, for their husbands will think they're lazy. It's the considerate husband who must be sold on something to save his wife's time and complexion."

Only two kinds of animals engage in organized physical conflict between groups of the same species, according to biologist Julian Huxley. They are ants and men.

Miami Thinks, Dreams, Frets About Weather

(Editor's Note — Jim Becker has traveled to many corners of the world as an Associated Press newsman. He is now on temporary assignment in Florida during the Cuban crisis.)

By JIM BECKER

MIAMI (AP) — The weather isn't a topic of conversation in Florida — it's a way of life.

★ ★ ★

The bustling city of Miami, now a million strong where a total of two hardy families lived 70 years ago, spends most of its waking time thinking about weather. It probably dreams about it too.

No one can do anything about the weather here, either. But they sure worry about it.

Most American cities seem to have an obsession of one sort or another.

In Los Angeles, it's population, and how fast the city is growing. (Also Smog.)

San Francisco spends almost all of its time assuring itself that it is not provincial.

CITIES WORRY

Kansas City worries about being unsophisticated.

Chicago has a second - best complex.

New York is superior, often without good reason.

New Orleans works at being picturesque.

★ ★ ★

Dallas works at being Texas, Boston at being Boston.

Honolulu worries about looking like Miami Beach.

Miami thinks about the weather.

"It's a beautiful day," a taxi driver says, on a beautiful day in Miami. "This should bring the tourists down."

Or, "It's not a very nice day. This won't bring the tourists down."

Mostly, it is a nice day in Miami. This brings questions about where all the tourists are. Or when they will come.

But all weather interests Miamians.

"Getting cold up North," a bartender says. "The tourists should be coming down any day."

The television weather shows give a list of the low temperatures in the northern cities, along with the Florida highs, every night.

SPECIAL ATTENTION

Special attention is paid to the coldest spot in the nation each day, usually some place like Nothing Much, Mont.

California's weather comes in for scrutiny. The two states, of course, are winter tourism rivals. Much of Florida's economy is based on tourism.

★ ★ ★

Miami also goes in for a lot of self-congratulation on weather.

With the holiday season approaching, most comments start like this:

"We wouldn't know snow flakes from soap powder, but we'll have that white Christmas spirit just the same."

Rarely, it turns up a little raw and rainy here.

The standard way to greet a Miamian on a morning like this is this:

"I had to get out a blanket last night. But those poor people up North must have been sleeping under four or five."

It is important to keep your terms straight, on a day like that. In south Florida, it is not "PARTLY CLOUDY." It is partly sunny," if you please.

Then you wait for the skies to clear completely, and start looking North for the tourists.

Latin America Urging JFK to Get Tough With Cuba

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON — It has been learned on highest authority that Latin American members of the Alliance for Progress are pressuring the United States to serve a "time limit" ultimatum on Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

RUTH

A majority of the hemispheric nations are urging that we set a "brief" time limit on the removal of all offensive arms including Russian bombers from Cuban soil, and also for on-the-spot inspection.

If Castro fails to comply with the terms of the ultimatum, they want the plainly stated alternative to be armed invasion.

Every one of the six "neutral" nations which last January refused to vote with the U. S. to expel Cuba from the inter-American system has cabled a request that we intensify the blockade and prepare for a Cuban invasion unless Russia bombers are immediately removed and inspection permitted.

Only five Latin countries still maintain embassies in Havana—Brazil, Mexico, Bolivia, Chile and Uruguay. All have urged a "time limit" ultimatum to Castro, and have agreed to break diplomatic relations if the terms are not met.

★ ★ ★

This is a far cry from the kind of news we had been hearing from Latin America in recent years.

No more dramatic proof of our success — and Russia's diplomatic boo-boo in Cuba — is needed than to cite recent votes in the Organization of American States.

At the Costa Rican foreign ministers conference in 1960, although it was known that Castro had been exhorting revolution to Nicaragua, Panama and Haiti, the OAS declined to take any action against Cuba despite our urging.

Last January at the Uruguay Foreign Ministers Conference, we succeeded in winning a two-thirds vote to expel Cuba from the inter-American system, but Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, Chili, Bolivia and Ecuador abstained.

The "big three" were thus among the neutrals, since Mexico, Brazil and Argentina together have a population of 128 million.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, confronted with the obvious fact that the Western Hemisphere was sharply divided, dared to move into Cuba.

By so doing he united the OAS as never before, and in last month's meeting in Mexico City the organization voted unanimously to order the dismantling of Cuban missile bases and removal of all offensive weapons.

More importantly, it voted to invoke Articles 6 and 8 of the Rio Treaty branding Cuba an aggressor, and authorizing individual or collective action "including the use of arms" to remove that threat to the peace.

GIVES U. S. POWER

Thus, the U. S. is empowered by unanimous vote to invade Cuba if necessary to rid the island of offensive weapons. This is a legal weapon which we never before possessed.

Much of the credit, of course, goes to President Kennedy for his dramatic action in imposing a quarantine and demanding removal of weapons which our planes had actually photographed on Cuban soil.

Credit should also go, however, to the firm and patient negotiations of De Lesseps Morrison, whom President Kennedy appointed as our ambassador to the OAS.

"Chep" Morrison steadfastly refused to buy the appeasement line that the way to win cooperation from Latin America was to compromise with the neutrals.

★ ★ ★

"Chep" has consistently championed the hard line, believing that the Latinos respect strength and crave real leadership. He was in Mexico City during the tense days last month when JFK declared the blockade, and the world stood at the brink of war.

★ ★ ★

When radios subsequently flashed the news that five Russian ships were turning back from Cuba, "Chep" felt that his 18 months of determined effort to thwart neutralism had paid off. A Mexican cabdriver turned to him and said in Spanish:

"The d— Reds chickened out."

Greeting System Not Very Friendly

'Poor' Customs Inspections Hurt 'Visit U.S.A.' Plan

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA)—With our "Visit the U.S.A." program now getting foreign tourists (and their money) here, the beacon of welcome is beginning to illuminate a host of problems along our shoreline—including a real crisis in salami.

★ ★ ★

Basically, the trouble is in the greeting we extend to a half-million visitors and our own returning citizens who arrive by ship at our greatest port, New York.

Despite a half-century of improvement in travel, New York piers still offer the same bleak smile they wore during World War I.

Rarely, for example, can an incoming passenger find a bench to sit on while he waits an hour or more for his luggage to come up from the hold.

★ ★ ★

Rarely are there sanitary facilities in these antiquated piers. Or information offices. Or, for that matter, tables on which to open luggage before customs inspectors.

PREFERS AIRLINES

"Boy, give me airline duty anytime," a customs man said. "Moving belts for the luggage. Warm in the winter. Cool in the summer. A place to sit down between flight arrivals."

★ ★ ★

Most New York piers, on the contrary, are dirty concrete floors covered overhead in corrugated metal but open on the sides for gangways, snow, rain and heat.

Only in few piers are there even crude air-blowing systems for circulating tepid air on icy days. And not until later this year will luggage examining tables be installed "on a trial basis" at one pier.

To compound the other dislocations in arrival, passenger liners frequently are scheduled to dock at the same hour and sometimes at the same pier.

★ ★ ★

With 2,000 passengers and their luggage to be assembled, processed by immigration and health officers and then examined by customs inspectors, a three-hour sojourn on the grim pier is frequently a visitor's first greeting from the U.S.

CAN TAKE TIME

If the ship is a vintage model and has only one hatch to the hold, getting all luggage onto the pier can take a long, long time. By contrast, an air arrival can be cleared in 15 minutes and on his way.

Well, what can be done about it?

Curiously modernization is only part of the answer. Most of New York's "luxury liner row" of piers is owned by the city and leased to ship lines and agents at rents from $250,000 per year for an old structure to well over $1 million for newer piers.

Despite this revenue, an impartial engineering estimate for pier modernization foresees work extending into the next century.

There are, however, interim steps that can be taken, in addition to heating systems, plumbing, benches, luggage tables and easing the traffic jam surrounding each pier at arrival time.

A task force for the U.S. Treasury Department—governor of the Bureau of Customs—has recommended among other things:

RECOMMENDATIONS

A smile and a very cordial greeting by customs men to passengers arriving in an attempt to create an immediate climate of goodwill.

A training program, especially in language, for inspectors so that they can both extend the greeting and facilitate the clearing of arrivals.

A good stiff fine for people who bring in items in violation of agricultural prohibitions — one of the biggest bottlenecks in the arrival scheme.

It turns out that many foreign visitors from sunny lands feel it is their duty to bring reminiscences of the old country to friends now settled here in the form of preserved delicacies, especially meat.

"It's quite a nuisance," an agriculture inspector said. "Visitors know it is against the law. So they hide these meats and salamis in false bottoms of trunks, sewn into the linings of their clothes or strapped to their bodies.

"It is a lot of work to recover these items. They can carry African swine disease or hoof and mouth disease. They must be burned immediately in the city incinerator.

"But despite warnings, visitors continue to bring such things in."

From an average passenger list on a capital ship, he said, the day's work usually amounts to a ton-and-a-half of confiscated meat.

Tourists struggle through ordeal of customs at New York pier.

VICTIM RECOVERS — John Lee Steger, 7, smiles from the hospital in Portland, Ore., where he is recovering from burns that seared 85 per cent of his body 14 months ago. He received 30 pints of blood, 15 pints of plasma, but now is able to walk. Doctors say it is the first time to their knowledge that a person burned so badly has lived.

Name Mayor Chairman

MUSKEGON (AP) — Muskegon Heights Mayor Kenneth Heineman has been named general chairman of the third annual Greater Muskegon Seaway Festival next summer.

The event salutes the area as a summer resort center and is built around the annual Miss Michigan Pageant as the feature attraction.

Grand Rapids to Get Land?

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Two petitions seeking annexation of 480 acres of Paris Township to the city of Grand Rapids have been approved for placement on the Feb. 18 ballot in Kent County.

The County Supervisors' Committee on Legislation and Annexation recommended the ballot placement. Final action will be taken by the full board of supervisors.

★ ★

The petitions cover an area which includes some light industries, population of approximately 300 persons and total equalized valuation of slightly more than $5 million.

The joint committee voted to delay action on three petitions which propose annexation of suburban Wyoming land to Grand Rapids pending a State Supreme Court decision.

Wyoming officials led a fight to keep the three petitions off the ballot until the Supreme Court decides how votes cast in an earlier annexation of the present Kent County airport from Wyoming to Grand Rapids should be counted.

The suburb claims its votes should have been counted separately.

Circuit Court Judge Fred N. Searl ruled they should be counted together with those cast in Grand Rapids, and Wyoming has appealed his ruling to the Supreme Court.

Higher Education Bursting at the Seams

(Editor's note—There just isn't much time for raccoon coats anymore. Today's college students go to school all year long—if there's room—and study everything from conversational Tibetan to aerospace engineering.)

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON —Higher education is bursting at the seams all over the country, and nowhere more than in the public colleges and universitites.

★ ★ ★

From the smallest private colleges to the great, sprawling state universities, the current academic year has been marked by change and innovation.

★ ★ ★

The nation's first Tibetan center at the University of Washington . . . the world's most powerful electron accelerator, a joint venture of Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) . . . a $3-million art gallery at the University of Wisconsin . . . a new college of dentistry at the University of Kentucky . . . a new department of aerospace engineering at Texas A&M . . .

★ ★ ★

The one, main, overriding reason is the force of numbers.

According to a New York Times survey, 58.6 per cent of all the 1962 high school graduates had planned to enter college this fall, including a fantastic 70.7 per cent of the young men and 47.4 per cent of the young women.

When all the figures are in, total college enrollment for 1962-63 is expected to reach 4,729,000. This includes 450,000 in two-year junior colleges and 790,000 taking college courses without credit toward a degree.

In the face of such pressure no college, public or private, can remain static; all will have to change to meet the changing times.

Generally speaking, there are two approaches to the problem: (1) Restrict enrollment and become increasingly selective, and (2) Expand as fast as funds and facilities will allow.

By their very nature, it is the public colleges and universities which are committed to expansion. Large private institutions can become more selective (and this is not necessarily bad), but city and state-supported schools have an obligation to make higher education available to all who can profit by it.

A recent survey by the joint office of the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges and the State Universities Association indicates the extent of this expansion.

The University of Wisconsin, for instance, has 15 new buildings under construction at a cost of $28 million — $1,000 for each of its 28,000 students.

Wayne State University in Detroit has just completed a $3.5-million medical research center, the University of Florida is finishing a $2.4 million nuclear research center and the University of Hawaii is completing six major buildings this fall for its east-west center.

The leisurely pace that mom and dad knew when they went to college is as out of date as the raccoon coat and the model T Ford. On many campuses, classes start as early as 7:30 a.m. and extend into the evening hours, even on Saturdays.

The University of Florida and Florida State University this year have swung over to the trimester system, which permits full-scale, year-round operation.

With the trimester system, a student may complete the traditional four-year undergraduate course in two years and eight months if he wishes to attend continuously.

★ ★ ★

Wayne State and North Carolina Agriculture and Technical College have adopted the quarter system to accomplish the same end and will have a continuous academic year of four consecutive quarters.

★ ★ ★

In other attempts to handle the flood of education-hungry students on their campuses, many schools are turning to mass teaching techniques.

A dozen other colleges and universitites are expanding their use of television teaching.

The University of Michigan, for instance, will pipe local courthouse proceedings into its law school lectures.

Ohio University at Athens, Ohio, and the University of Washington put new television stations on the air this fall, and the University of Idaho has applied for a TV license.

One of the strongest trends noted nationwide is increased encouragement to the superior student.

Motorized Cleric Does Double Duty

ROME (AP) — A monsignor on a motor scooter dashes daily through Rome's tangled traffic and down the wide and lovely Via Della Conciliazione to the Vatican.

★ ★ ★

He is trying — against clock and traffic — to do two full-time jobs at once. Thanks to the scooter, plus unlimited energy and a sturdy constitution, he is succeeding.

★ ★ ★

The motorized monsignor is James I. Tucek, a Texas tailor's son who wears two hats.

He is at once a Roman Catholic priest, held in highest esteem by his church, and a thoroughly professional journalist held in equal regard by his colleagues and the hundreds of papers he serves.

Msgr. Tucek — "Father Jim" to a sizeable part of the Roman community — is chief of the Rome bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service (NCWC).

He and his staff, normally three assistants, handle the file of vatican news for NCWC's 600 diocesan weeklies in the United States and for its other church and lay subscribers in 73 countries.

This is a full-time job at any time, but right now is doubly so. Msgr. Tucek's staff has been doubled and his work trebled by the historic Roman Catholic ecumenical Council.

To be sure none of the monsignor's considerable energy is wasted, the Vatican has simultaneously given him a second full-time post — director of the English language section of the Vatican Press Office.

This makes him teacher, interpreter, translator, guide and nursemaid of scores of English-speaking newsmen here for the council.

Msgr. Tucek refrains, understandably, from elaborating on what his troubles are.

But in connection with the Ecumenical Council the Vatican is making its first major effort in the field of public relations. Some newsmen complain information is in short supply and difficult to get at.

★ ★ ★

Having done his best to help them, Msgr. Tucek races back through Roman traffic, cassock billowing behind his scooter to his regular NCWC office and the job for which he was borrowed seven years ago.

Michigan's Oldest Trio Is Honored by Corps

Bicycle Perfect for Boys' Gift

But Teach Him Rules for Safe Pedaling

What is Christmas without a spanking new bike under the tree?

★ ★ ★

What parent can enter the living room on Christmas morning and feast his eyes on the gleaming two-wheeler standing under the tree without a pang for his childhood?

Yes, a bike is an important holiday gift, but it is more than that.

To a boy or girl, the two-wheeler means that their parents are presenting them with out-of-doors fun, a prime means of transportation, and more important, the belief that they can be trusted with an important mechanical unit.

If the Christmas gift is to be kept a secret, there is a quick rule-of-thumb method to buy a bike for children of average height.

RULE OF THUMB

The four-to-five year old should have a bike with 16-inch wheels; the six-to-eight year old can handle a 20-inch wheel; from eight to 11, a 24-inch wheel is right and riders over 11 are ready for a 26-inch wheel.

★ ★ ★

Most children have learned to ride a bike, probably a friend's before owning one of their own. But if your youngster is unable to ride, don't let that deter you from giving him the most popular of all Christmas gifts.

Most riders master the two-wheeler adequately with only one or two lessons.

Once balancing ability has been acquired, it's merely a matter of practice to become a master cyclist.

TWELVE RULES

All new riders should know and obey the 12 official rules of safe riding:

Observe all traffic regulations — red and green lights, one-way streets, stop signs.

Keep to the right and ride in a straight line. Always ride single file.

Have white light on front and danger signal on rear for night riding.

Have satisfactory signaling device to warn of approach.

★ ★ ★

Give pedestrians the right of way. Avoid sidewalks.

Look out for cars pulling out into traffic.

Never hitch on other vehicles or race in traffic.

Never carry riders or parcels that obstruct vision.

Be sure your brakes are operating efficiently.

Slow down at intersections and look before crossing.

Use proper hand signals for turning and stopping.

Don't weave in or out of traffic.

London Pubs Still Fulfill All Traditions

BACKGROUND 4p SPECIAL REPORT OF THE NEWS

LONDON (AP)—The British local, or neighborhood pub, stands like Winston Churchill as an enduring monument against the inroads of time.

It continues to fulfill its traditional role of poor man's club with hardly a change down through the years, except it may have television today.

★ ★ ★

One such local is Tony Watson's place, known as the Eagle—a modest grog shop on the edge of swanky Maida Vale, an area of high-priced apartments on the city's near west side.

The apartment dwellers contribute little to the prosperity of the Eagle. It caters in the main to the working classes more modestly housed in its immediate environs. It is thus typical of hundreds of such neighborhood saloons in and around London.

HAS TWO BARS

The Eagle has two bars, with separate entrances. The beer costs two pennies a pint less in the bar with the television set.

This is not a criticism of television—the set is in the bar called the public bar, and beer prices always are lower in a public bar than on the other side, known as saloon bar.

To compensate for the higher price of beer on their side of the Eagle, the saloon bar customers have a fireplace and newer leather on the seats.

Top grade draft beer costs 25 cents a pint in the public and 27 cents in the saloon. Spirits cost the same on both sides—27 cents a shot for gin (called mother's ruin by the old-timers), 30 cents for whisky, 38 cents for brandy. The shots are on the small side by U.S. standards; the order for a "double" is heard often in England.

The Eagle has two barmen and a barmaid—all Irish.

Backbone of the Eagle's trade are a handful of regulars who never miss a day. Many of them have what Tony calls "the starling syndrome."

★ ★ ★

"As no doubt you know," Tony explains, "every starling in a flock settles down on his own special spot at the nightly roosting place. The other birds honor his right to it, to the point where they will leave it vacant for a week or two if he fails to appear.

★ ★ ★

"It's the same with my regulars. Nobody but a stranger would occupy a spot at either the public bar or the saloon bar which is a regular's by custom."

THE WIDOW

Thus one end of the Eagle saloon bar is normally anchored by an old fellow on crutches and the other by a trim little white-haired woman known as The Widow. If somebody is occupying their chosen sectors of the bar, they stand patiently behind him until he gets an uneasy feeling and moves.

★ ★ ★

The Eagle is usually a fairly quiet place but it is necessary from time to time to chuck somebody out for such antisocial behavior as overdrinking. Tony does this personally and with great amiability.

★ ★ ★

One regular expects to be chucked out once a week. A few months ago Tony let a couple of weeks pass without ousting the fellow. The customer was so put out by this neglect that he took his trade to another pub for a fortnight.

MAD JILLY BELL

No local is complete without a pet cat. The one at the Eagle is a ginger-and-white beast named Jilly Bell.

★ ★ ★

Jilly Bell makes a dramatic daily entrance as soon as there is a good crowd in the saloon bar. She leaps up on the bar and does a broken field trot through the drinks, sneering at each customer as she passes.

★ ★ ★

Then she goes and curls up on the nearest black overcoat or black-trousered lap. Since Jilly Bell seems to shed her hair in all seasons this has caused a certain amount of grumbling, but Tony declines to give up the cat.

★ ★ ★

"Jilly Bell is a bit mad," he says, "but no madder than many of the customers."

Community Saves Taxes by Planning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One advantage of "packaged" housing developments is that the foresighted builder can anticipate older communities' problems and save taxes for the new communities.

★ ★ ★

The planner of a new development in suburban Loudon County, Va., found that 10 per cent of the county school budget went to transportation expenses. So Sterling Park was laid out to put all homes within five blocks of an elementary school.

★ ★ ★

Recreation is another problem in exploding suburbs. For the Sterling Park project, builder Marvin T. Broyhill Jr., allocated 75 acres out of a total 1,765 for swimming pools, golf course, tennis courts — and Little League ball fields.

Mushroom Boosters' Plans Burgeoning

NEW YOUR (UPI) — Big business soon may make the mushroom as familiar on the dining table as potatoes and tomatoes.

Major concerns have recently acquired mushroom plantations this year is estimated at nearly 132 million pounds, up 6 million from last year and triple 30 years with a total capacity yield of one million pounds a year. U.S. output ago.

Care for the Hair of Santa Claus

Whiskers and wigs make the Santa! And wise Mrs. Santas choose sets made of nylon "hair" which is fireproof — and can be kept fluffy and sanitary by washing in warm suds and rinses.

These sets can even be machine-washed and dried if put in a protective mesh bag.

When dry, brush or comb both wig and whiskers to keep Santa well-groomed.

The kids will never recognize "you know who" in these snowy, fluffy head and chin trimmings.

The long, thin cigars known as "stogies" got their name because they were designed for the needs of the Conestoga, Pa., wagon drivers who wanted a large inexpensive cigar.

N.Y. Clan Speaks Yiddish With a Brogue

NEW YORK (AP) — Shamrocks are green, stars of David are blue. But, sure, you can be Irish and Jewish too.

Thirty Jews who were born in Ireland proved that Tuesday night by organizing and holding a charter meeting of a group they call the Loyal League of Yiddish Sons of Erin.

The Irish-Jews or Jewish-Irish said they are dedicated to "banding together in a fraternal clan those persons who wish to observe and celebrate both the traditions of their faith and the land of their birth.' '

One question raised at the charter meeting was: "Shall we solemnly and sincerely request that the St. Patrick's Day parade committee grant the Loyal League of Yiddish Sons of Erin permission to march in the grand parade up Fifth Avenue next March?"

VISIT TO 2 LANDS

Another proposition seriously debated in soft Irish brogues: "Shall we charter a plane for a trip back to our native land of soft mists and sweet winds, a 19-day tour that will take us on to Israel too?"

The Loyal League of Yiddish Sons of Erin already has an official song called, "Erin Go Bragh and Shalom."

★ ★ ★

The chorus goes:

"Erin go bragh and shalom, Ireland for ever and peace.
Erin go bragh and shalom, May goodwill and brotherhood increase.
Erin go bragh and shalom, Always means good news.
Erin go bragh and shalom, Here comes the Irish and the Jews."

("Erin go bragh" — "Ireland forever" in Gaelic. "Shalom" — a Hebrew greeting meaning either "Hello" or "Goodby."

HARP AND STAR

The membership card of the organization shows a harp superimposed on a star of David.

Why did the Irish Jews organize?

Larry Lewis, a Brooklyn heating engineer who once played soccer for the Talmud Torah School in Ireland's County Armagh, answered:

"Well, you know the Irish are very clannish and we like to get together and we have fun being with other Irishmen."

The group elected Michael Mann, the AFL-CIO's regional director for New York-New Jersey, its president. He came here from Dublin 25 years ago.

The league's first vice president is attorney, Lewis John Goldberg. He came here from Cork City, County Cork, Ireland, two weeks ago.

To Stop Further Tax Exemptions?

Probe Stock Dealings by Foundations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are studying figures in an effort to determine whether dealings by tax-exempt foundations helped trigger the stock market plunge earlier this year.

H. A. Olsher, director of the House Small Business Committee's foundation study, said information gathered so far tends to support a demand by Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., for a moratorium on granting further tax exemptions.

Olsher said Patman has requested details from more than 50 foundations on their stock market transactions from Dec. 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962.

"The purpose," Olsher said in a memo made available to newsmen, "is to assess the role of the tax-free foundations in the market tumble of 1962 — in other words, to determine to what extent, if any, foundation professionals helped trigger the stock market plunge of 1962 and profited later by purchasing stocks at lower prices."

So far, he said, 38 foundations have responded. This inquiry is part of a larger study the committee is making on foundations, which Patman contends are virtually unregulated and sometimes used "as a vehicle of trading in securities and dodging the capital gain tax."

The inquiry so far shows that the 38 foundations sold $146,135,000 worth of stocks during the seven-month period, with total capital gains of $73,442,000.

The largest single transaction to come to light was sale of a million shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey common stock on Feb. 23, 1962, by the Rockefeller Foundation. The price was $52.25 million and the foundations capital gain was $47,013,083. It had held the stock since 1919.

The big transaction was hitherto unpublicized, and a Rockefeller Foundation spokesman in New York explained the stock was sold by the foundation directly to the Standard Oil Co. itself. No sale was made in accordance with brokers were employed and the transaction was not handled through a stock exchange, he said.

The foundation spokesman noted that the big sale took place more than three months before the big stock market break of May 28.

He said the stock represented .0046 of 1 per cent of the company's outstanding stock and was part of a gift received by the foundation from John D. Rockefeller in 1919.

The spokesman added that the foundation's policy of diversifying its investment portfolio.

Of the proceeds of the sale, $15.4 million was reinvested in corporate stocks, he said, and all but $1 million of these were bought before the market plunge of May 28. The balance was invested in bonds or deposited in savings accounts, he said.

After the sale, the foundation's remaining holdings of Standard Oil (N.J.) amounted to 3,924,500 shares, or 2.27 per cent of the company's total outstanding stock, the spokesman said.

The committee's figures showed that five Carnegie-controlled foundations sold $22,600,000 worth of stocks during the period, with a capital gain of $8,739,000. Five Mellon-controlled foundations sold $8,469,000, for a gain of $2,039,000.

Olsher drew no conclusions from the available figures, but cited Patman's previous statement that tax exempt foundations "should not be permitted to use public funds for speculation in the stock market. Their mistakes or misfortunes are too likely to have a disastrous effect on millions of our citizens."

★ ★ ★

Olsher told a reporter the Rockefeller Foundation has not been audited by the Internal Revenue Service during the period the committee has under study, starting in 1952. He said this seemed a long time for such a major foundation to go without check from the government agency that grants its tax exemption.

Psychiatry Professor Blasts Overemphasis on Statistics

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oh, that scientific psychiatry will never go down the statistical primrose path where the science of psychology has long since gone, beseeched Dr. Max Levin. He was telling fellow psychiatrists that statistics are ill-suited for investigations of the mind.

★ ★ ★

He is a professor at New York Medical College and was displeased by increasing signs that young physicians in psychiatric training are being encouraged to rely upon statistical methods of studying minds rather than upon insights and direct observations.

He gave two examples to prove his point that statistical methods, which essentially measure quantity, can't do much in furthering the understanding of the workings of the mind which essentially are matters of quality.

★ ★ ★

One was a statistical testing of racial consciousness in small Negro children with brown-faced and white-faced dolls and statistical tabulations.

"What man with eyes to see and ears to hear must undertake research like this to discover that Negro children as they grow up become conscious of their color?" Levin asked.

"One is appalled by the unconscious brutality of intelligent and educated men who subjected Negro children of tender years to mental torture in an investigation which, as they should have foreseen, would add nothing to existing knowledge."

His other example was psychiatric training programs which encourage beginners to undertake studies of "psychotherapy with schizophrenics" and "family relationships in schizophrenia," as though those were easy subjects. In truth, they're extremely difficult.

But they appeal, Levin said, for the one reason that they can be given the statistical treatment.

"You take 50 young schizophrenics and a control group of 50 healthy college students, and you see which group has the highest incidence of unloving mothers."

The results may be statistically valid but they mean absolutely nothing, he continued.

"It is widely believed (in science) that if any investigation leads itself to satistical treatment, it is 'scientific' and 'objective.' Otherwise it is 'subjective' and relatively worthless."

Defense Facility Continues Move to Battle Creek

BATTLE CREEK (AP)—Another division has set up operations at Battle Creek Federal Center in the relocation of the Defense Logistics Services Center from Washington to this city.

★ ★ ★

The material Inter-Servicing Division, designed to seek maximum use of excess and long-supplied defense materials in the Department of Defense, has finished its moving, reported Col. Edward L. Burchell, commander of the advance elements of DLSC.

★ ★ ★

He said the material division will employ 51 persons when hiring is completed. DLSC headquarters expects to employ a total of 600 civilians and seven military personnel after completing its move by January.

Often wasted corner space in the kitchen is perfect for the little lady's "workshop." A place for everything—lazy susan storage to accommodate canned foods and spices, plus a meal planning center, office and sewing counter all in one unit . . . and so easily constructed.

Revolutionary Ideas Lose Appeal to Some

Cuba Creating Crisis for Communism

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

A wave of uneasiness seems to be plaguing the entire world Communist movement in the wake of the Cuban showdown.

The arguing, bickering, explaining and excuse-making now going on hint that confusion is building up toward a crisis for world Communism.

RYAN

One cause appears to be the anxiety of the Khrushchev leadership to keep Communist cold war maneuvers from getting beyond the point of no return and touching off a hot war.

Another source of burgeoning crisis seems to stem from a dilemma which will be brought strongly into focus when the Soviet party Central Committee meets tomorrow.

News Analysis

Its agenda stresses the need for radical industrial and agricultural reforms. This suggests that to make the Soviet system function, Khrushchev must undermine some basic revolutionary theories.

* * *

All this has impelled Red stalwarts in the West to search for excuses for a Soviet policy, which, to many of the rank and file, must appear to be outrageous surrender of opportunities to advance the cause.

MOVEMENT FLOUNDERS

Thus, a veteran of Moscow's policy flipflops, Italian boss Palmiro Togliatti, told his own party than "uncertainties and ambiguities have become apparent" in the movement. These ambiguities must include:

* * *

—The ideological wrangle with the Chinese and Albanian Communists. It is growing in violence. The Soviet Party denounces Albania, and the Chinese by implication, as modern-day Trotskyites, which in itself is confusing. Trotsky was the enemy of Stalin, and the Chinese today, in defiance of Khrushchev, cling doggedly to Stalin as a hero and to his dogma.

* * *

—The Chinese armed attack on India. This has alienated many in Asia and Africa who might have been easy prey to Red blandishments. It has set back what Red jargon calls "The National Liberation Movement," meaning revolutionary movements subject to infiltration and capture by the Communists.

* * *

—Red China's insistence that Khrushchev is "denying the revolutionary character of Marxism-Leninism," and thus harming the world movement. It blasts "concessions" to the West, and the Kremlin admits it made concessions in the Cuban crisis.

The Red Chinese and Albanians insist there is only one way to deal with Capitalism: "By imposing victory on it, grabbing the power."

* * *

Inside the U.S.S.R., Khrushchev's attitude toward doctrine must be painfully obvious to the Communist world.

Khrushchev's trouble is that while he would like to support revolution outside Red borders, the U.S.S.R. no longer has a revolutionary system. Today it is a world power with an entrenched regime.

Inside the Soviet Union there is a turning away from revolution. The old guard Communists complain Khrushchev is "losing touch with the masses." They mean that the Soviet Union is losing its revolutionary spirit.

* * *

And that can create a challenge from the violently revolutionary regime of Mao Tze-tung in China.

RIDING HIGH — Spotty, 2½-year-old terrier belonging to Mary Helen Roberts, 7, of Phoenix, Ariz., fell about 40 feet while climbing a mountain on a family outing. No bones were broken, but the dog's hind quarters were paralized. Spotty now gets around with the help of a wheeled brace.

Finn Yule Season Starts Last November Sunday

Tucked away in a small village in Finnish Lapland lives an elderly gentleman who is known by many names. To the Finns he is Joulu Pukki, Japanese youngsters call him Daifuku, and here in America he answers to Santa Claus.

Having Santa as a year round resident might make one think that the Finns more or less take him for granted, but nothing could be further from the truth.

Starting on the last Sunday in November, Finland celebrates "Little Christmas," the beginning of the long-awaited Yuletide season.

* * *

Sturdy spruce trees are cut from the vast forests and decorated and store windows transform into dazzling displays of lights and tinsel.

BEST PART

But perhaps the best part of "Little Christmas," at least from the children's viewpoint, is the first sampling of Joulupuuro, the traditional Finnish Christmas porridge.

No Christmas celebration would be completed without a family visit to the sauaa, the Finnish heat bath.

After the sauna comes the Christmas feast. The typical Finnish yule table is laden with hams, several varieties of fish, puddings and stews.

* * *

A special dish is the rice pudding in which an almond has been hidden. The finder of this buried treasure is assured of good fortune.

BIG MOMENT

The big moment for the youngsters is "Santa's" arrival. The tinkle of sleigh bells outside the house sends the children rushing to the door to receive their gifts.

Church services on Christmas day begin at 7 a.m. with the family usually spending the rest of the day at home.

The day after, when most of the world is resting after the festivities, the Finns celebrate St. Stephen's Day.

* * *

Parties begin all over, and along the country roads farmers race their prize horses.

*

Some might say that they just love a good party, but in fact, the Dec. 26 celebration is all for Santa's benefit.

After all, being a Finn, doesn't he deserve to join in the fun after his international travels the night before?

A bow attached to the built-in antenna is a gala way to present your gift of a portable TV set.

Who's 'Tampering' With the Mercury?

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — It should be explained at the outset that weather forecasts for this part of Florida come from the U. S. Weather Bureau office in Tampa.

Now, recently at an Arcadia lunch counter, a local character was reading his newspaper.

* * *

"What's the weather look like for tomorrow, Charlie?" asked a friend.

"Dunno," said Charlie without even looking up. "Used to be able to tell when the Good Lord was in charge, but since they gave it to that Tampa feller, I'd hate to make a guess."

Dad will be handsome and comfortable in a Christmas robe of polyester and cotton fibers in bold batik print.

'Run' on Bank Creates Rather Soggy Situation

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — Customers in Danville's Southern Bank of Commerce had to use umbrellas to transact business.

Workers were taking a valve off a fourth-floor water supply pipe when a second valve, unable to stand the increased water pressure, popped.

* * *

Water gushed out and dripped into lower floors. It was a foot deep in the board meeting room in the basement.

No soggy money, however. Employes managed to cover or put all the bills in vaults.

The first glass tree ornaments were made in central Germany by glass blowers in the 1850s.

'Junior' Gets the Votes, but 'Senior' Gets the Job

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Wilford F. Pickard Sr. won election as county surveyor with two write-in votes, despite 57,514 votes cast for William F. Pickard Jr.

Both Pickards are the same man. His name appeared wrong on the Nov. 6 general election ballot. Pickard, who was unopposed, and his wife wrote in the correct name just to be safe.

BANANA BOAT — Make a Banana Boat for a bon voyage party! Or for a birthday party! Or just for fun! No matter what the occasion, this luscious strawberry gelatin topping has a wonderful new flavor of fresh fruit! Match the number in each section to the directions for assembling the cake.

Cake, Banana Boat Glazed With Gelatin

Fruit-flavor gelatin has a wonderful new fresh fruit taste and fragrance these days! All 12 fruit flavors have a new flavor formula and a new package design, each flavor better and more fruity than before.

Here's an exciting new cut-up cake recipe made with gelatin — a Banana Boat with a layer of gelatin over a layer of cake and sliced bananas. It's no trick at all to make with these step-by-step directions.

Match the flavor of gelatin you use to the color scheme of any special occasion menu. It will be right in style to have bright sails this year . . . and there are enough colors in fruit flavor gelatin to complement any color scheme.

Banana Boat

1 baked 9-inch square white cake layer
2 regular size packages (3 ounces each) or 1 large size package (6 ounces) strawberry flavor gelatin
2 cups boiling water
2 cups cold water
12 large firm bananas
Prepared dessert topping mix

Steps in making Banana Boat.

Line a 9-inch square baking pan with waxed paper, letting paper extend in 2-inch tabs on either side of pan. Place cake layer in pan top side up. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Then stir in cold water. Chill until almost set. (Stir gelatin to insure even chilling but avoid stirring in air bubbles.)

1. Meanwhile, mark a straight line from one corner of cake to opposite corner with toothpicks or by drawing point of knife along line. Slice one banana; place banana slices in 3 rows on cake at right angles to the line.

2. Carefully spoon gelatin over cake and banana slices. Chill until firm.

3. Remove cake from pan by lifting with paper tabs. Cut along the lines formed by the ends of the rows of banana slices.

4. Assemble the pieces to resemble a boat, using triangles for sails and remaining cake for the boat. Split the remaining banana lengthwise and place between sails as a mast. Frost cut edges of cake with prepared dessert topping mix. Makes 8 servings.

Cut Meat for Freezing into Boneless Portions

When freezing meat, roasts and pot-roasts should be cut into convenient sizes for family use, and whenever possible bones should be removed. The number of chops, steaks and cutlets packaged together should be determined by the number of persons to be served. Ground meat should be shaped into patties or packaged in amounts for loaves or other dishes.

Biscuits That Please

How does your family like biscuits: Crusty sides? Place biscuits on baking sheet with spaces between. Soft sides? Place biscuits close together on baking sheet or in pan.

Jellied Cabbage Dotted With Figs

A colorful and refreshing salad that can be made in a standard loaf pan as well as an interesting mold.

10 dried figs
2 packages lime flavored gelatin
3 cups boiling water
1 8-oz. can crushed pineapple, not drained
2 cups shredded cabbage
3 or 4 drops mint extract

★ ★ ★

Cover the dried figs with water in saucepan; simmer 10 minutes. Drain and chop. Dissolve gelatin in 3 cups boiling water. Pour over figs and chill until syrupy. Add pineapple, cabbage and mint. Pour into 2-quart mold. Chill until firm. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Chill These Crimson Cranberry Treats

This year make a frozen cranberry relish for the festive holiday dinner. All sorts of interesting shapes are possible with items already on your kitchen shelves. Cupcake papers, for example, can be used to freeze a colorful cranberry ice. Put the fluted cups in muffin pans, fill with the cranberry mixture and freeze. The papers peel off easily at serving time.

For cranberry ice cubes, pour the mixture into an ice cube tray to freeze. Empty food cans will freeze the ices to cut into small or large rounds, depending upon sizes desired.

Only two ingredients are necessary to make this frozen relish . . .

Cranberry Ice

1 lb. can jellied cranberry sauce
¾ cup gingerale or a lemon-lime carbonated beverage

Beat cranberry sauce until smooth. Add gingerale or lemon-lime carbonated beverage (may be measured by filling empty cranberry sauce can ⅓ full). Mix well.

Pour mixture into 1½ dozen, double-thick cupcake papers set in cupcake tins. Freeze until firm. Peel off cupcake papers to serve.

★ ★ ★

Frozen Cranberry Fruit Rounds can be served as a relish or on lettuce as a frozen salad.

Frozen Cranberry Fruit Rounds

1 1-lb. can jellied cranberry sauce
1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple, drained (1½ cups)
½ pint soured cream
¼ cup chopped pecans

★ ★ ★

Combine above ingredients, reserving cranberry sauce and pineapple cans. Lightly grease the cans and spoon in the salad mixture. Cover tightly with foil and freeze for several hours or overnight.

To serve, cut open the still-sealed end of the can and use to press out the salad. For even servings, press out ½-¾ inch portion from can at a time and slice, steadying the knife against the rim of the can. Makes 12-16 servings.

★ ★ ★

Here's a frozen salad for a crowd. The recipe will make 20 to 24 servings.

Frozen Cranberry Waldorf

1 lb. fresh cranberries
3 red apples
1 cup sugar
1 10-oz. package miniature marshmallows
1 cup evaporated milk (undiluted)
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts

Wash and drain cranberries. Quarter and core apples. Grind cranberries and apples into a bowl. Stir in sugar and let set one-half hour. Chill evaporated milk until ice crystals form. Add lemon juice and beat at high speed until stiff. Mix in sugar and fold into cranberry mixture with chopped nuts.

★ ★ ★

Pour into 2 9x3-inch pans and freeze until firm. Cut into squares and serve on salad greens. Makes 20 to 24 servings.

Tuna Souffle Is Elegant Dish

Light and fluffy and delicate are certainly appropriate adjectives to use when describing souffles. While most women love souffles for these qualities . . . in addition to their wonderful flavors . . . men somehow shirk from them unless they are on the hearty side. To remedy this, the very next time you're in a souffle-making mood, try one using canned tuna.

★ ★ ★

Not only is tuna hearty and nutritious . . . providing ample protein and vitamins . . . it's also economical. And that pleases the men, too, because after all, they are the ones who provide your food budget.

Tuna Souffle

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon thyme
Pinch pepper
1 cup light cream or milk
4 eggs, separated
2 can (6½ to 7 ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked

Melt butter in saucepan; blend in flour and seasonings; gradually mix in cream. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Stir a little of hot mixture into egg yolks; stir back into saucepan then add tuna.

★ ★ ★

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold in tuna mixture. Turn into greased 1-quart souffle dish and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 35 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Tang of Lemon Betters Crab

Lemon juice is the flavor secret in this casserole. With a little preparation time but a lot of satisfying flavor and imagination, this dish is ideal all year round.

Crab Corn Casserole

1 can cream of celery soup
2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
2 cups flaked crab meat
1 cup whole kernel corn
2 teaspoons minced onion
½ teaspoon tarragon
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup bread crumbs
Parsley (optional)

Blend soup and lemon juice; add crab, corn, onion and tarragon. Place in individual ramekins or shells. Melt butter and stir in crumbs; sprinkle over crab mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes. Garnish each serving with parsley sprigs. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Take a Soup Break to Renew Energy

We use up more than average energy in the busy holiday period, and spirits may lag in the middle of a morning or afternoon. For a quick pick-up, try a revitalizing beef broth break—it takes just a few minutes to heat a cup of this steaming amber liquid.

★ ★ ★

Pour condensed beef broth straight from the can; add ½ to 1 soup can water; flavor with a dash of cinnamon, Worcestershire or lemon juice for added tanginess.

CRANBERRY RELISHES — This year freeze cranberry relishes for the holiday table. Pictured are individual servings of cranberry ice and slices of creamy Cranberry Fruit salad. Mix and freeze day before serving.

Edible Thanksgiving Favors Fun for Kids

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Holiday decorations the children enjoy most and remember longest are the edible variety. Be sure suggestions are simple and supplies bountiful, to allow for some on-the-spot consumption.

* * *

With Thanksgiving coming up, we might encourage artistic efforts toward Pilgrims, turkeys and Indians. Whether it's cookies to decorate or candy to string on toothpicks, I've found muffin tins the handiest trays for separating the variety of tidbits.

Do have ready gumdrops and soft dime store candy of assorted sizes, toothpicks, pipe cleaners, poster paper, (black, white and gray) whole cloves, paste or staples.

If I were going to have this as a treat for several youngsters, I would have the basic paper shapes cut in advance.

The Pilgrim girl is made of a five-inch half circle of gray paper rolled into a cone shape (staple or tape shut); a white circular (1¾ inches in diameter) collar; pipe cleaner arms poked through the cone and a pink gumdrop head with clove features.

* * *

The head is steadied by a toothpick or pipe cleaner "neck" poked into the top of the cone. Her hat is a three-inch white paper triangle anchored by toothpick bits.

BOY

Her companion Pilgrim boy is made by first rolling a cylinder of black paper five inches long. Fix a pink gumdrop with cloves for the head and cut a circle. (1¾ inches in diameter) from black paper to make hat brim, add a gumdrop crown and secure with toothpicks.

* * *

Insert pipe cleaner at base of head. Twist another pipe cleaner at proper height to form arms.

Add a jacket cut from a four-by-two-inch piece of black paper, folded in half crosswise and cut in rough "T" shape. Slit in front and place over the body base. Collar is a white paper square, folded and slit in the center.

An orange Tom Turkey boasts a fan-shaped tail of long gumdrops speared on with toothpicks.

Muslin Will Do

If you're boiling plum pudding the old-fashioned way, a greased thickly-floured square of unbleached muslin may be used for holding the pudding instead of a mold. Room must be left for the pudding's expansion and the cloth must be tightly tied.

Chemist Developed Worcestershire

The origin of Worchestershire sauce seem to be shrouded in mystery. Historians have found vague traces of such a sauce being used in ancient Babylon and Egypt as a tonic for jaded appetites.

But nothing definite was recorded until more than a century ago.

At that time an English nobleman returned from several years in India with a secret formula for a tangy sauce. This sauce was prepared for him exclusively by a chemist's shop in the County, or Shire, of Worcester.

Almonds Add Zest to Holiday Food

Holiday-time is eating-time, and your holiday eating will be ever so pleasurable if you stuff the turkey — or chicken — with "Holiday Almond Stuffing."

Convenience foods such as seasoned stuffing mix, instant minced onion and almonds already roasted and diced take practically all of the labor out of preparing this tasty orange-flavored stuffing.

In addition to roasted diced almonds, toasted slivered almonds and unblanched whole almonds are now packed in attractive cans. Smokehouse cocktail almonds, surefire hits at any holiday party, are also found these days in tins.

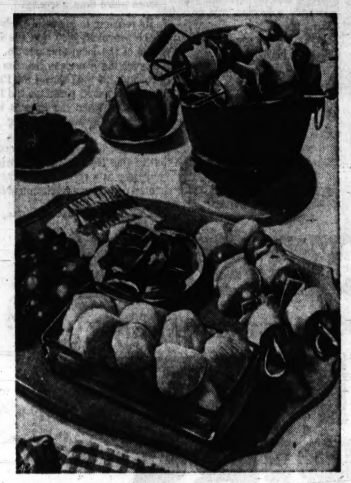
If you wish to smoke your own almonds, combine ½ teaspoon liquid smoke and 2 teaspoons water, then toss with 1 cup unblanched whole almonds. Cover and let stand overnight. Roast in flat pan in 300-degree (slow) oven 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned, stirring often. Sprinkle with salt.

Holiday Almond Stuffing

1 cup roasted diced almonds
1½ cups thinly-sliced celery
½ cup finely-chopped celery leaves
3 quarts seasoned stuffing mix
3 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
2 large oranges, pared, sectioned and diced
1 cup chicken broth or giblet stock
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup melted butter or margarine

Toss together in a large bowl, all ingredients except broth, lemon juice and butter. Heat broth; stir in lemon juice and butter. Drizzle over stuffing mixture and toss to mix thoroughly. Pack lightly into turkey.

Makes 4 quarts stuffing (enough for 16 lb. turkey.



SKEWERED SCALLOPS — Broil them in the oven range or over charcoal.

FUN THINGS — Simple Thanksgiving decorations of gumdrops and paper are fun for youngsters to make. Muffin tin holds variety of candy shapes to string on toothpicks.

'Invisible Americans' Fit in Well With Holy Loch Scots

HOLY LOCH, Scotland (NEA)—After the Quiet Americans and the Ugly Americans come the "Invisible Americans." These are the 1,250 officers and enlisted men who man America's Polaris submarines in this remote corner of Scotland.

★ ★ ★

And invisible they are, for as soon as the Yankee submariners come ashore they seem to melt into the landscape—"like the wee folk," as the ticket-taker on the pier remarked to me.

Some head for the bright lights of Glasgow as soon as they get liberty, some stay behind to court the local girls.

Not for nothing has Holy Loch been nicknamed "Holy Wedlock;" more than 100 of the U.S. Navy boys have married Scottish girls since the first Polaris submarine arrived here in March 1961.

Others have brought their families over from the States. Still one scarcely notices that the Americans are here at all, so well have they become integrated with the local population.

SUBS ONLY REMINDER

The only reminders of the American presence are the nuclear-powered submarines that glide in and out of the Firth of Clyde, their black rudders cutting the water like the fins of huge Loch Ness-type monsters.

These and the 19,000-ton submarine tender, USS Proteus.

★ ★ ★

Invisibility is a deliberately chosen policy, for the U.S. Navy cannot afford to antagonize the Scots.

Too much is at stake in this case, which is the first Polaris submarine base (the Navy calls it a "depot") to be located outside continental United States.

And the Navy is profiting by the mistakes made by the United States Air Force in Germany and France. In contrast to the "golden ghettoes" built for USAF personnel in such places as Wiesbaden and Chateauroux, the Navy doesn't own a single building in Holy Loch.

Far from encouraging them to live apart from the local population, the Navy urges the submariners and their families to "muck in" with the Scots, to use the local expression.

★ ★ ★

American children go to the local schools, wearing the same navy-blue blazers and "beanie" caps as their Scottish friends.

On Saturday nights the Americans line up for the one movie house in the Holy Loch area, and on Sundays they attend services at the High Kirk in Dunoon, or at St. Ninian's.

WIVES SHOP LOCALLY

Navy wives are encouraged to do their shopping locally. The nearest post exchange is at Prestwick airport, 40 miles away.

★ ★ ★

The Navy will authorize treatment in a British hospital when it is required but the Navy reimburses the British government for such treatment.

It will not allow its personnel to sponge on Britain's free national health service.

After 18 months the invisibility policy is beginning to pay dividends. The local inhabitants have developed a genuine affection for and loyalty to their American guests.

For example, when the ban-the-bomb crowd descended upon Holy Loch this summer they were treated with nothing but contempt by the townpeople.

At present Submarine Squadron 14 here consists of seven Polaris submarines. There will be 10 by the end of 1962.

Each submarine is equipped with 16 missiles with an effective range up to 1,500 nautical miles. (Polaris A-3, now being tested at Cape Canaveral, will extend this range to 2,500 nautical miles.)

SUBS HAVE 2 CREWS

Submarines spend two months on deterrent patrol, then one month in the depot here.

Each submarine has two crews, known as Blue and Gold, of about 130 men and officers each. The crews alternate, one taking leave and refresher training while the other is on patrol.

★ ★ ★

The arrival of the submarine squadron was viewed with some misgivings here because their presence made Holy Loch a prime target. But these misgivings have since been dissipated.

"In a population of 9,000 there are perhaps five people who are actively opposed to the submarines being based here," says J. W. Anderson, the town clerk.

Helping to melt the opposition have been the off-duty activities of the U.S. bluejackets.

★ ★ ★

The engine room gang of the Proteus, for example, recently went shopping for pink ballet slippers.

Six pairs went as gifts to a local orphanage, for girls who would have been unable to take dancing lessons without them.

GIRL ADOPTED

And the 140 men attached to the floating drydock here have "adopted" homeless Anne Burns of Greenock.

★ ★ ★

They chip in $128 a month for a trust fund to buy Anne clothes and pay for her education.

The 1,250 officers and enlisted men stationed here appear to be a hand-picked group. And before leaving the U.S., they and their dependents were given a thorough orientation on what to expect and how to behave.

Wives trying to make up their minds whether to join their husbands at Holy Loch are urged to ask themselves such questions as:

"How could I help my husband by going with him to Scotland?"

"Could I adapt myself to a way of life which would require additional time for such things as keeping fires, washing and drying clothes, having tea with neighbors?"

"Could I accept a house without central heating and some of the other conveniences of life?"

'DO'S AND DON'TS'

Typical "Do's and Don't's" which the submariners and their families are asked to observe include:

"Do not refer to persons from Scotland as 'Scotch.' They are 'Scots.'

"Though the kilt may look like a skirt to you, don't say so. You will find that the kilt-clad soldier is usually a he-man and resents this forcibly.

"Always stand when the British anthem is played.

"Watch your language. The word 'bloody' is one of their most uncouth expressions.

"In a pub don't barge in and spread yourself all over the place. If there's a dart game going on wait until you are asked to play."

★ ★ ★

By observing these and other small courtesies the Americans, despite some provocation, have made themselves popular here.

★ ★ ★

The provocation has come entirely from the ban-the-bomb crowd, none of whom are locals. From as far away as London, demonstrators poured in all summer to protest the presence of the Polaris subs.

★ ★ ★

Some of the nuclear disarmers tried to board the submarines by paddling out to them in kyaks.

Others lay down in front of Ardnadam pier in order to obstruct American seamen trying to reach their ships.

Despite the taunting, the Americans here treated the situation with good humor, looking upon the anti-bomb crowd as more weird than alarming.

By refusing to allow themselves to be provoked they won the respect of the local townspeople.

As for the American reaction to Scotland, 120 men aboard the Proteus have asked permission to remain here when the Proteus returns to the States next spring.

★ ★ ★

They are hoping to join the crew of the USS Hunley, which is being sent here as a replacement. There can be no better advertisement for Scotland than this.

U.S. Sailors Quietly Watch Protest for Nuclear Disarming in Holy Loch

Pass Pickled-Plovered Eggs

Here's Unusual Success Story

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The other evening at a cocktail party I found myself sharing a plate of pickled-plover eggs with a chap who introduced himself as Clyde Prim.

★ ★ ★

As is usual at such gatherings, we got into a discussion of the Mansholt plan for integrating European agriculture and other factors affecting the U.S. balance of payments.

Then, before I had time to demonstrate my famous disappearing act, Prim was telling me the story of his life.

"I am what you could call an average American" he said. "I have been married 1.8 times, I own 2.3 automobiles, I have 3.7 children and carry 4.5 credit cards.

★ ★ ★

"In short, I have everything it takes to be a success, and yet for years I was a dismal failure. I either couldn't hold a job or else was always passed over for promotion.

CAN YOU GUESS?

"Can you guess what my deficiency was?

"You weren't using the right underarm sprays and creams?" I asked.

"No, it was something far more serious than that," Prim said. "I didn't like dirty jokes."

He paused and reached for another plover egg while I pondered the significance of his revelation.

"It wasn't that I necessarily objected to them," Prim continued. "Dirty jokes didn't offend me. I just didn't care for them. I didn't think they were very amusing.

"A fellow would stop by my desk and tell me the latest story making the rounds and in the time it took to walk to the water cooler I would forget the punch line.

★ ★ ★

"In other words, I was the missing link in the circulation of smutty yarns. You can't imagine what a handicap that was.

'WHAT'S WRONG?'

"After I had been on the job a few days, my co-workers would begin asking each other 'What's the matter with Clyde? Is he some kind of antisocial nut or something?'

★ ★ ★

"The next thing I knew the boss would call me in and tell me that I didn't seem to be fitting in very well and that I might be better off if I found a new job. It was very discouraging."

"You appear to be doing all right now," I observed. "How did you conquer your problem?"

"Naturally I went to an analyst," Prim said. "I spent hours on the couch while he rummaged around in my subconscious. Finally he tracked down the trouble. When I was a baby my brother hit me on the head with a copy of 'Lady Chatterly's Lover.'"

★ ★ ★

"Did that discovery remove your mental block?" I inquired.

"Completely," Prim said. "Have you heard the one about . . . ?"

There will also be 16 round dance leaders from Michigan and Ohio. Dot and Date Foster, of Decatur, Ill., will direct this phase of the convention.

SHE SEEKS DIVORCE — Mrs. William G. Giesse, Mayfield Heights, Ohio, housewife who won the Mrs. America title in 1958, has sued for divorce on grounds of incompatibility. Married in 1945, and a mother of three, she is 36. This picture was taken not long after she won the title in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Be Thankful . . . Turkey Is Hot . . . War Is Cold

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK—Millions of Americans furiously screamed out against Abraham Lincoln when, on an August day 99 years ago, he proclaimed the first national Thanksgiving.

But then, millions of Americans protested anything he might do in that year. It was the height of the Civil War.

Even some Northerners, however, felt the time was inappropriate. In a time of national horror and carnage—was this a time to give thanks? They wanted to know.

Yet President Lincoln persisted.

He declared that, even in the midst of "a civil war of unequaled magnitude," the country had been given a full share of "blessings of fruitful fields and healthful skies."

And, he went on, "No human counsel hath devised nor hath any mortal hand worked out these great things."

Though Lincoln's first Thanksgiving Proclamation is the most famous of any (including Franklin D. Roosevelt's 12 successive poetic speeches), it is one of the few speeches that Honest Abe ever "farmed out" to a ghost writer.

He was busy with the affairs of war, and his own personal prayers. So he asked Secretary William H. Seward to compose the declaration; and Seward was one of the few men, apparently, of sufficient literary bent and clarity of thought to write a masterpiece worthy of Honest Abe.

Lincoln read his friend's composition on Aug. 6, declaring the first Thanksgiving for Nov. 26, 1863.

But that was the official, lasting Thanksgiving; Lincoln has won the title of "thankfullest" president of all time by declaring two other unofficial thanksgiving days in that same year.

The first came on July 15, when the President asked the people to give thanks for Gettysburg and the fall of Vicksburg. He proclaimed it a day to give homage to the Divine Majesty for "the wonderful things he has done in . . ."

* * *

The third Thanksgiving plea came Dec. 7, when Lincoln asked his citizens to thank God after the expulsion of Confederate armies from East Tennessee.

The "official" day, between these two, was long known unofficially as the "Godey's Lady's Book Thanksgiving Day;" this, because the editor of that fashionable magazine, Sara Josepha Hale, had persuaded President Lincoln to declare it.

It took this dogged woman 35 years of badgering presidents to win her point and proclamation. And she might never have clinched her crusade if there had not been a war.

Lincoln was in a "thanksgiving" mood of prayerfulness.

Today, all Americans should feel in a thanksgiving mood of prayerfulness. President Kennedy, in his proclamation, could not sincerely refer, as Lincoln did, to our country's "healthful skies."

Never in history have our skies been so heavy with potential peril.

Yet, even in the face of the great nuclear threat, the persistent crises, the unsettled state of the earth—we can be more thankful than ever before that we still are here, that our turkey is hot and our war is cold . . .

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Only one of more than 100 letters sent to the Columbus City Commission has been critical of a newly adopted ordinance levying a special $1,000 license fee on stores selling Communist imports, the commission said.

The letters, from all over the United States, describe the license action as admirable, inspiring, terrific, pro-American and as the best news ever to come out of the South, the commission announced.

The dissenter was a student who said he felt the ordinance is an infringement on free enterprise.

Publishers Can Stage Shutdown

WASHINGTON (AP)—An agreement by 10 New York newspapers to shut down if any of them are threatened with an unauthorized grievance strike has been upheld unanimously by the National Labor Relations Board.

The board voted 5-0 Tuesday to dismiss the unfair labor practice suit brought by two of the nine craft unions which bargain with the Publishers Association of New York. In so doing, the NLRB overruled its trial examiner who found that the publishers' agreement amounted to unreasonable force.

* * *

In finding that the agreement did not violate the National Labor Relations Act, the board said the pact "was intended to discourage, and did discourage the series of unauthorized work stoppages which experience had shown to pose a continuing threat to the publishers.

DEFENSE ACTION

"Thus the agreement was, in essence, not an offensive weapon utilized to punish or lessen the legitimate effectiveness of the unions, but rather a defensive measure utilized to combat unauthorized work stoppages in the plants of the publishers involved, and, in the long run, in the entire unit," the board said.

The board found that newspapers "were particularly vulnerable to such sudden announced stoppages because of the perishability of their commodity, and the strict time schedules necessary in the publishing business."

* * *

The trial examiner had ruled in favor of the New York Mailers Union Local 6 of the International Typographical Union and the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union.

He found unlawful the informal 1958 agreement between the 10 newspapers to quit publishing in event of a strike threat which they deemed in violation of the contract. The examiner held that such an agreement violated the rights of nonstriking employes.

Health Official Won't Give Up His Cigarettes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anthony J. Celebrezze, the new secretary of health, education and welfare, said he has not given up smoking because of the cancer scare.

Celebrezze, whose department is conducting a study to determine any relationship between smoking and lung cancer, was asked why he has not given up smoking if he thought there was a chance it was injurious to health.

"Because I enjoy it," Celebrezze said.

As he spoke, cigarette smoke hung heavy in the room.

"Smoking is a voluntary act of the individual," Celebrezze said. He explained he thought it was a function of government to find out whether smoking is harmful.

"But I don't think it is a function of government to tell you to stop," he said.

SESAME SEED USES — A plate of Rolled Sesame Seed Wafers; Sesame Butter for green vegetables and a Sesame-Cheese Cocktail Ball — all enhanced with the almond-like flavor of toasted sesame seeds.

Fabled Sesame Seeds Dress Up Foods

"Open, Sesame!"

Had it not been for yarn-spinning Queen Scherazade, who created Sinbad and the robbers' treasure trove to entrance her difficult king, most of us would not, since childhood, have known the magic word "sesame."

Sesame is the same tiny, nutrich seed we find in the Near-East confection, halvah; on loaves of Italian bread, delicately golden. Today we also meet it in an ever increasing number of cocktail crackers, cookies, rolls and other bread products.

Less than a decade ago, sesame seeds were the distinctive ingredient of a recipe which won a national baking contest. (Actually, this was by no means a brand-new idea, for a drawing on the tomb of Rameses III, Egypt, 1167 B.C., shows a slave adding sesame seeds to a pastry mixture!) But the contest drew new attention to sesame and helped increase its distribution in the U.S.

Sesame is one of the world's oldest spice and oil-seed crops. It has been used as a food in the Near East, the Orient and Africa for many centuries.

In the United States the whitest, most flavorful sesame seeds are treasured for their delicate aroma. Sesame seeds can be used whenever one might ordinarily use very finely chopped nut meats.

If they are to be stirred into a mixture, used in a filling or stuffing, showered on salad greens or buttered noodles, they should be toasted. About 20 minutes in a moderate oven, thinly scattered in a baking dish, toasts them pale brown and brings out their best flavor.

If they are to be sprinkled on cookies, breads or rolls, they will turn golden as the dough bakes.

Sesame seeds are becoming increasingly popular on the spice shelf as women realize how very easily they can add delicious flavor and richness to their own favorite recipes. Just shake them in, without worrying much about measuring; "the more the better."

Rolled Sesame Seed Wafers

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
2 large eggs
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup toasted sesame seed

Soften butter or margarine. Gradually blend in sugar and pure vanilla extract. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in flour and 3 tablespoons of the sesame seed.

Drop a rounded ½-teaspoon of dough at a time onto ungreased cooky sheets, about 2 inches apart to allow room for spreading. Flatten to 1-16-inch thick with a glass covered with waxed paper or a wet towel.

Sprinkle each with toasted sesame seed. Bake in a preheated slow oven (325 degrees F.) 5 minutes or until wafers have browned lightly around the edges.

As cookies are removed from the pan, roll wafers around the index finger or the handle of a wooden spoon, sesame seeds to the outside. If cookies cool before rolling is finished, return to oven to heat about ½ minute. Store airtight. Yield: 5 dozen wafers.

Sesame-Cheese Cocktail Balls

4-ounce package cream cheese
4-ounces (1½ cups) grated mild American cheese
1 tablespoon cooking sherry
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground basil leaves
2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds

Combine cream cheese, American cheese, cooking sherry, salt and basil. Mix well and shape into one large ball. Roll in toasted sesame seed. Chill.

Shortly before serving, place on serving tray. Surrounded with crackers and serve as an hors d'oeuvre. If desired shape cheese into ¾-inch balls.

Roll each in toasted sesame seed. Serve with toothpicks as hors d'oeuvres.

TO FREEZE: Wrap cheese balls in waxed paper, then in foil. Place in freezer until ready to serve. These may be kept in the freezer 3 months. Yield: 3 dozen ¾-inch balls.

Sesame Seed-Lemon Butter

1/3 cup butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds
Salt to taste
1/16 teaspoon ground black pepper

Combine all ingredients and heat. Serve on hot cooked Brussels sprouts, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, potatoes, or asparagus. Yield 1/3 cup or enough for 6 servings vegetables.

Top Turkey Sandwich With Flavorful Sauce

When a whole roast turkey has been whittled down to the last few slices of light and dark meat, it is time for Turkey Supper Sandwiches. They are open-face, layered with tomato and cheese, then broiled. The topper is a hot mushroom sauce flavored with Sherry.

* * *

If you slice the meat, tomatoes and cheese in advance, there's very little last minute preparation necessary to produce these sandwiches. Even the sauce can be made ahead of time and reheated while the sandwiches broil. If there is leftover turkey gravy, by all means use it along with, or in place of, some of the cream sauce which the recipe calls for.

* * *

This final appearance of the turkey can be as festive as the first if you serve a dry white wine, such as a California Sauterne or Chablis, as the accompanying beverage. Be sure to chill it well, about two hours in the refrigerator.

Turkey Supper Sandwiches

Toast 6 slices of bread on one side. Cover untoasted sides with thinly sliced, cooked turkey or chicken; top turkey with thin slices of tomato; cover with thinly sliced process Cheddar cheese. Broil slowly until cheese melts. Serve at once accompanied by the following mushroom sauce:

1 (4-oz.) can mushroom stems and pieces
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup evaporated milk
1 chicken bouillon cube
¼ cup sherry
¼ teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper

Drain mushrooms, reserving liquid. Melt butter and stir in flour. Add milk, mushroom liquid and bouillon cube. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils and thickens and bouillon cube is completely dissolved. Add sherry, paprika, salt and pepper. Stir in mushrooms. Serve piping hot with the sandwiches.

African Word

How did the banana get its name? The word "banana" is undoubtedly of West African origin, being found in various forms along the Gulf of Guinea and derived from the languages of that region. The name "banana" came into rather general use because the Portuguese—who were great navigators — carried this and other plants around the world.

Cold Turkey Is for Sandwiches

A large-breasted 15-pound or more turkey is an economical buy for the family Thanksgiving dinner. There are bound to be some delicious nuggets of meat left for the second or third day after the feast of thanks.

* * *

Served cold in tempting slices, cubed in well-seasoned casseroles or used in elegant club sandwiches together with ham and cheese, the Thanksgiving bird can give several delicious encores.

Note: There is an excellent new canned condensed turkey and vegetable soup on the market. Just heat and add diced or minced pieces of leftover turkey for extra enjoyment.

Club Sandwich

3 slices buttered toast
2 thin slices turkey
1 slice crisp-cooked bacon
Crisp shredded lettuce
Mayonnaise
1 thin slice baked ham
1 thin slice Swiss cheese
Prepared mustard
2 slices tomato
Stuffed olives
Radish rose

Between 2 slices of toast, tuck turkey, bacon, lettuce and mayonnaise. Top this sandwich with ham and cheese, spread with mustard. Cap with third piece of bread.

Cut off crusts. Cut 2-layered sandwich into 4 small triangles. Hold each together with a wooden pick. Arrange on serving plate.

Cereal Takes Place of Bread in Stuffing

Turkey has become so reasonable many homemakers are developing entire repertoires of stuffings so that the family won't tire of it. New Old-Fashioned Stuffing is so quick that Mother will think of turkey as one of the easiest meats to prepare.

The most time-consuming part of making stuffing is cubing and toasting the bread. New Old-Fashioned Stuffing substitutes bite-size shredded wheat biscuits and cooked rice. Simply pour the tasty cereal into the measuring cup and combine it with the seasonings.

It doesn't take any time to cook rice. (You know, of course, that 1-3 cup uncooked rice makes one cup cooked). Do this while the onion, celery and green pepper are cooking.

Rice and Wheat Stuffing

2 cups cooked rice
1½ cups bite-size shredded wheat biscuits
¾ cup hot chicken bouillon or stock
¼ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon ground thyme
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Mix together rice, cereal and bouillon. Cook celery, onion and green pepper in butter until tender. Add to rice mixture with parsley and seasonings. Stuff bird, allowing 1 cup stuffing for each pound of bird. Or, bake in covered casserole.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 20 minutes. Uncover. Bake 10 minutes longer or until brown. Yield: 4 cups.

Fluffy Desserts Are Orange Flavored

Orange fluffs are frothy, eye-appealing treats.

Use thawed orange juice concentrate as the liquid when preparing unflavored gelatin. Chill until slightly thickened, then:

For Orange Whip: Beat mixture until light and fluffy and double in volume. Spoon into individual molds or custard cups and chill until firm. One package of gelatin yields 4 servings orange whip.

For Orange Snow: Add 2 unbeaten egg whites for every package of gelatin. Beat with an electric mixer until gelatin holds its shape. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill until firm. One package gelatin yields 6 servings orange snow.

Cinnamon Walnuts

Toast perfect walnut halves in a little butter and sprinkle with cinnamon sugar; use as a garnish for squash, pumpkin or sweet potato pie.

Canned Bartlett Pears, Sour Cream Make Filling for Giant Tart

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Are we dreaming? Or does your tasting experience confirm ours: canned Bartlett pear halves are firmer than they used to be. And this is all to the good.

So many ways to use these pears, but none of them more delicious than giving them pastry as a partner. Bake individual pear turnovers, bake a pear pie, or try this new recipe for a delectable pear tart.

This tart is baked on a cookie sheet, its filling a luscious combination of sour cream, lemon and spices.

When we tried this recipe in our kitchen, we used the pale yellow lard-type shortening that comes in cans because it makes the sort of "short" pastry that rightfully belongs to this dessert.

Pear Tart

2 cans (1 pound each) Bartlett pear halves
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup sugar
¼ cup flour
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup commercial sour cream
Pear Tart Pastry

Drain pear halves thoroughly; cut each pear halve in quarters. Sprinkle grated lemon rind and lemon juice over pears. Stir together thoroughly the sugar, flour, cinnamon and nutmeg; mix with quartered pear halves. Fold in sour cream.

Place a Pear Tart Pastry round on a cookie sheet; turn up edge; spread pear and sour cream mixture over pastry round. Cover with the second round of pastry. Flute and seal edges. Prick top of tart to make vents for steam to escape.

Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 30 to 35 minutes. Top pastry will be pale; for more color brush with egg wash before baking. Cool; serve when filling has set but tart is still warm. Or refrigerate tart and reheat in oven just until warm through.

Pear Tart Pastry

2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup yellow lard-type shortening (chill before using)
5 to 6 tablespoons ice water

Mix flour and salt; with a pastry blender, cut in half the shortening until particles are fine; cut in remaining half of shortening until the size of peas. With a fork, gradually stir in just enough water to hold pastry together.

On a prepared pastry cloth roll out one half of the dough at a time; out of each half cut a 9-inch round; refrigerate rolled-out rounds while preparing filling for Pear Tart.

Chilling Is OK

When bananas have reached the stage of ripeness which you prefer it is quite permissible to place them in the refrigerator for a few days. The outside skin may become discolored but the pulp of the fruit will remain creamy and sweet.

Gentle Boiling

When steaming puddings, the water should boil gently and continuously. Replenish the water bath as necessary, adding boiling water each time.

Barbecued Beef Sauce Is Baked With Navy Beans

Proof that Americans love their baked beans is the fact that we eat nearly a billion and half pounds of them a year. They're a mainstay for countless budget-minded homemakers . . . and you'll find them, as well, in restaurants and homes where good eating is the important thing and cost doesn't matter a bit. There are almost as many ways to prepare beans as there are cooks and you'll find special favorites in all parts of the country.

An interesting taste treat is this casserole dish that combines beans with ground beef and piquant herbs and spices.

Baked Bean Barbecue

Crumble into cold skillet:
1 pound ground beef

Cook over moderate heat until pink color disappears.

Then add:
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 medium onion, finely chopped (about ½ cup)
½ cup thinly sliced celery

Cook 5 minutes longer, until vegetables are limp but not browned.

Stir in:
1 can (8-ounce) tomato sauce
½ cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon ginger
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of Tabasco

Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer 5 to 10 minutes. While sauce is simmering, divide between 4 individual casserole dishes:

4 cups baked beans OR 1 can (1 pound, 12-ounce) pork and beans

Spoon hot meat sauce over beans, dividing equally between casserole dishes. Bake uncovered in moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with:

1 cup shredded sharp cheese

Return to oven until cheese melts. Serve very hot. Makes 4 generous servings.

Check on Your Spices Before Holiday Baking

Homemakers who take pride in their holiday baking and cooking should make sure they give their spices a pre-holiday check for freshness, advises the Research Committee of the American Spice Trade Association. Tired spices aren't worth shelf space.

★ ★ ★

Traditional holiday recipes inspire a greater use of spices during November and December than at any other time of year, the industry reports. This is why it is particularly important right now to see that your spices have the same fresh vibrant aromas as those used in developing the recipes you will be following.

The flavor strength of spices is amazingly durable, but it definitely does lessen during long storage on the shelf, according to the experts. No hard and fast rules are possible because the rate of loss varies according to the spice and the storage conditions. The best answer, therefore, is periodic sniff tests and visual inspections.

Here are some points to remember:

★ ★ ★

1. Gorund spices lose strength more rapidly than whole spices and therefore need more frequent checks.

2. To be good, ground spices should have a fresh, bright appearance and an aroma which fairly leaps out of the container as you bring it to your nostrils.

3. Ground herbs are particularly fragile and for this reason many people prefer to buy them in the leaf form and crumble them just before use.

4. Keep your spice shelf handy, but away from direct heat, sunlight and excess dampness. Never place it above the range, because high heat dissipates spice strength more quickly.

5. Be sure to close all containers tightly after each use.

Coffee Break Kept His Memory Alive

Until the 1700's, most English physicians regarded coffee mainly as a medicine, but an earlier British doctor foresaw coffee's future, not in the medical kit but on the dining table. Doctor William Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood, left a legacy of coffee when he died in 1657.

With the statement, "This little bean is the source of happiness and wit!", he bequeathed fifty-six pounds of coffee to the London College of Physicians, directing that his friends gather once a month to drink coffee in his memory.

Meat Ball Stew Served as Pie

Quick and easy is the luncheon theme. A can of meat ball stew and a package of pie crust mix will make the most delicious and the most quickly prepared individual meat pies you have ever made.

★ ★ ★

Hot and moist, the pies are filled with tender meat balls, carrots, potatoes, and a well seasoned brown gravy. Served with a crisp green salad and fruit for dessert, lunch will be hearty and satisfying and prepared in just minutes.

Quick Luncheon Pies

2 (10 oz.) packages pie crust mix
1 teaspoon instant minced onions
1 (12 oz.) can meat ball stew

Set oven at 425 degrees F. Make up pastry mix according to package directions, softening the instant onions in the water called for in the directions. Roll pastry out on lightly floured board to about ⅛" thickness.

Cut into 4, 5" squares and 4, 6" squares. Cut out center of each 6" square with 2½" biscuit cutter. Store any extra dough in refrigerator.

Open cans of stew. Divide stew among 4, 5" squares of dough, allowing 3 meat balls for each square.

Prick the 4, 6" squares with a fork. Place 6" dough squares over stew covered square. Fold under edges and press edges with tines of fork. Bake 20-25 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 4 pies.

Salt and Pepper Seasons Pork Before Roasting

This combination of seasonings gives roast pork loin a delicious mouth-watering coating.

Mary's Roast Pork

1 pork loin half (about 5 pounds)
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon savory
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon medium-coarse black pepper

Make sure that backbone is sawed nearly free of roast for easy carving. Mix together the salt, savory, garlic salt and pepper; rub mixture over fat side of pork. Place meat fat side up on rack in a shallow roasting pan; insert meat thermometer if used.

Roast in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until meat thermometer reads 185 degrees — 30 to 35 minutes per pound.

Shrimp and Pineapple Alternate on Skewer

"En brochette" is the French term meaning broiled and served on a skewer. It is a very good and practical method of preparation, and one you'll be seeing more of with the current emphasis on broiling food for better health.

If you don't own any skewers, many handsome metal ones are available. Or better yet, you may want to buy a package of the disposable bamboo variety — you'll save money and dishwashing, too!

Broiled Shrimp Hawaiian
En Brochette

1 pound large shrimp or prawns
3 large green peppers, cut into 1 inch squares
1 can (1 lb., 4½ oz.) pineapple chunks, drained (reserve syrup)
¾ cup prepared mustard
½ cup syrup drained from pineapple
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup corn flake crumbs (optional)

Cook the shrimp in boiling water for 5 minutes. Remove shells, then use tip of either pointed knife or iced tea spoon to remove black vein down the back. Pour boiling water over green pepper and let stand 5 minutes; drain.

Combine mustard, syrup drained from pineapple and brown sugar to make a sauce. On long skewers, alternate shrimp, pepper squares and pineapple chunks. Turn in sauce, then in corn flake crumbs, if desired.

Broil 3 minutes on each side. Serves 6 to 8, 3 brochettes each.

Braised Beef Is Tender Eating

When you want meaty, satisfying fare, braised beef round steak is a good choice. The round may be sold as "full cut" round or divided into the top or bottom round sections.

Braising — browning, then cooking slowly in moist heat — results in meat that is tender and juick. Braising brings out the full flavor of the meat, a flavor which can be extended to vegetables cooked with it and, to the gravy served as an accompaniment.

To make 5 to 6 servings of braised round steak, purchase 2 beef top round steaks cut about ¾ inch thick, or a "full cut" beef round steak of the same thickness.

Cut steak into 5 or 6 pieces. Combine ¼ cup flour with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper and pound this seasoned flour into the steaks. Brown steaks on both sides in ¼ cup lard or drippings.

If desired, steaks need not be dredged in seasoned flour. They are then seasoned with salt and pepper after browning. Pour off drippings. Add ½ to ½ cup water, bouillon or vegetable juice.

Cover the pan tightly and cook slowly 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender.

Vegetables, such as onions and green beans, may be cooked with the meat. Vegetables cooked whole will require about 45 minutes cooking after meat has cooked 1 hour.

When meat and vegetables are done, place them on a warm platter. Add sufficient water to the cooking liquid for gravy. Thicken the liquid with flour, using 2 tablespoons flour for each cup of cooking liquid.

Really Red Apples Sell Fastest

Had you ever thought about how color influences you? A bright sunny day seems to be gayer than a gray cloudy day. You have favorite colors when choosing clothing and home furnishings. Food color also influences you, relates Mrs. Josephine Lawyer, Marketing Agent.

Do you like Red Delicious apples to be red? You are a typical shopper if your answer is "yes." Researchers have found that although there is little or no difference in taste or nutritive value, customers are likely to purchase more apples when they are full red in color.

A six-week experiment in the Atlanta, Georgia metropolitan area showed that sales of partial red apples were 33 per cent less than full red apples. Sales of a combination of full red with partially red apples were 14 per cent less.

The apples were considered as full red color when 75 to 100 per cent of the apple was good red color; partial red when 50 to 75 per cent were good-red color; and a combination when 50 to 100 per cent were good-red color.

This is a vintage year for Michigan apples, for weather cooperated to develop fine red color. Most retail stores display three and four pound bags of apples, and you can count on 3 medium size apples in each pound.

Even though apples by the bushel are less than half the price of small units, don't buy unless the family can use that quantity and unless there is proper storage. Proper storage means a cool dark place between 32 to 55 degrees when the humidity is high.

Keep apples away from foods such as onions and potatoes, for there will be some exchange of aroma and flavor.

Ginger Pears

Heat canned pears in their syrup with a little lemon rind; serve hot with some strips of syrup-preserved ginger in each cavity.

Fortify Goblins With Punch

Before the ghouls and ghosties pounce at your house, fortify one and all . . . family friends and whoever is brave enough to venture out on Allhallows Eve . . . with a hot and bracing punch.

The recipe is Swedish Spiced Halloween Punch . . . an ancient Scandinavian brew designed to see generations of small Swedes snug and warm through the most harrowing night of the year . . . until the morning breaks, safe and serene, upon All Saints' Day.

Swedish Spiced Halloween Punch

Spice bag*
4 oranges, sliced
4 lemons, sliced
½ cup red maraschino cherries, (about 20 cherries)
½ cup maraschino cherry juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
6 cups water
2 quarts apple juice
2 cans (6 ounces each) frozen lemonade concentrate
1 cup sugar
½ cup sour cream
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Combine in deep saucepan: spice bag*, sliced oranges and lemons, cherries, cherry juice, ⅛ teaspoon salt and water; simmer 1 hour. Strain through coarse sieve; then strain through cheesecloth. Return to saucepan with apple juice, lemonade concentrate and sugar. Heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally.

Fold sour cream and ¼ teaspoon salt into whipped cream; spoon onto hot punch.

To make spice bag. Combine in piece of cheesecloth: 12 whole cloves; 12 whole allspice; 1 whole nutmeg, cracked; and 3 cinnamon sticks. Tie cheesecloth together with string.

Try Cranberry Orange Punch

Treat guests to a cup of fresh cranberry-orange punch.

Wash 1 pound of fresh cranberries. Place in saucepan with 4 cups of water and ⅛ teaspoon of salt. Cover and cook slowly, 10 to 12 minutes, or until skins pop. Strain.

Add 1 1-3 cups of sugar and cook 2 to 3 minutes, to dissolve sugar. Cool.

Stir in 1 cup of fresh orange juice and ½ cup of fresh lemon juice. Chill and serve over ice. Or serve chilled, without ice, as an appetizer. Makes about 5½ cups.

Raisin Conserve

Start with a jar of peach preserves to make this elegant meat accompaniment. Add about ½ cup each coarsely chopped golden raisins, and slivered almonds. Stir well. Excellent with roasts of pork, beef or lamb.

HOT DOGGITIES — They look like lollypops. They're really hot dogs rolled in corn flake crumbs after being dipped in catsup. A brief baking and you have delightful finger food.

Pizza Turnovers Easy and Quick to Bake

Try a new version of the ever-popular pizza—Pizza Turnovers. They're made with a spicy combination of deviled ham, tomato sauce and mozzarella cheese "pocketed" in triangles of basic hot roll or pie crust mix and baked. Particularly the teenagers will go for these turnovers with the new pizza twist, especially when they're topped off with grated cheese.

Oregano is the special spice, of course, that adds its own special pizza-like flavor to the "devilicious" sauce that's really new and different.

Pizza Turnovers

1 package hot roll mix or pie crust mix
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 4½ ounce can deviled ham
½ teaspoon oregano
½ cup diced mozzarella cheese

Prepare mix according to directions on package. Roll into an 18x12 inch rectangle; cut into 6 inch squares.

Combine remaining ingredients and spoon about 2 tablespoons of mixture on half of each square. Fold and make a triangle and seal edges with a fork. Prick tops.

Bake on greased cookie sheet at 425 degrees F. about 15 minutes or until golden-brown. Serve plain with additional sauce or grated cheese. Makes 12 turnovers.

Add Cheese Spread to Fresh Carrots

By the addition of pineapple cheese spread to sliced fresh carrots, you can serve a distinctive new vegetable dish.

Tangy Glazed Carrots

3 cups sliced fresh carrots
1-3 cup orange juice
2-3 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves (optional)
¼ teaspoon salt
½ 5-oz. jar pineapple cheese spread

Cook carrots until just tender in a small amount of salted, boiling water. Drain.

Combine orange juice, sugar, cloves, salt, and cheese spread. Pour over carrots, and continue cooking over low heat, stirring until cheese melts and mixture thickens. Do not boil. Makes 6 servings.

Crusty Hot Dogs Appeal to Kids

It doesn't take a national survey to convince parents that just about every youngster loves frankfurters. But teens and pre-teens are like their parents—when it comes to parties, they go for refreshments that have a festive look.

Next time you're entertaining the younger set, try a new trick with frankfurters called Hot Doggities. Hot Doggities are party fare frankfurters skewered, rolled in catsup and corn flake crumbs, then baked.

Combine several of these crisply crusted franks on a plate with potato chips and pickles, and you'll have an elegant party meal that requires no knives or forks to eat.

For adult parties, miniature versions of Hot Doggities make delicious hot hors d'oeuvres. To make them, use tiny cocktail frankfurters, substitute tooth picks for skewer and shorten baking time to 10 minutes.

Hot Doggities

2 cups corn flakes or ½ cup packaged corn flake crumbs
10 4½-inch wooden skewers
10 frankfurters (about 1 lb.)
½ cup catsup

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Insert skewers lengthwise into frankfurters, leaving about 2 inches for a handle. Score surface of frankfurter lightly, spiraling from end to end. Roll frankfurters in catsup, then coat generously with corn flake crumbs.

Place in foil-lined shallow baking pan. Do not crowd. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 15 minutes. Serve with additional catsup and mustard, if desired. Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

Meringue Topping

An extra couple of egg whites in the refrigerator? Make them into a meringue (as you would for pie) and pile the meringue over mashed and flavored sweet potatoes in a baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven about 20 minutes to heat the potatoes and fleck the egg whites with gold.

Satisfy Your Taste Say Wine Experts

"Which wine shall I serve with turkey?" Every year the question puzzles people who often enjoy wine with their meals, but who want to be sure of the "right" one on a special occasion like Thanksgiving.

They ask the Wine Institute of California by the hundreds, and receive this answer: Either a red or white dinner wine is complimentary with turkey.

For the reds, choose Burgundy, Claret or one of the varietals (a wine named for the grape from which it is made), Pinot Noir, Cabernet Sauvignon or Zinfandel, among others. For the whites, choose Sauterne, Chablis or a Rhine wine type. Pinot Chardonnay, Dry Semillon and Riesling are some of the white varietals.

The red wines are usually served at cool room temperature, the whites well chilled. Allow about two hours in the refrigerator to bring them to a pleasant coolness.

Some hostesses offer both red and white wines, and let guests make their own choice. Others serve Rose, the light, dry pink wine produced in California, because it goes well with all kinds of food.

On such a festive occasion as Thanksgiving, sparkling wines are sure to be served in many homes as the before-dinner beverage, and right on through the turkey course as well. Champagne, labeled "Brut" to indicate its dryness, Pink Champagne or Sparkling Rose, or the slightly sweeter Sparkling Burgundy are other appropriate choices.

In fact, the same advice holds true on Thanksgiving as any other day, serve the wine you like best. That's the word from the men who produce most of our own country's wine.

They Please Children

The preferences of Michigan school children dictated the contents of a recipe book now ready for distribution to Oakland County school lunch room managers.

Bound in blue, with Michigan's two golden peninsulas stamped on the cover, the book is a memorial to Norman E. Tellar, former chief of the school lunch division for the state of Michigan, who died in May, 1960.

Recipes include such Michigan specialties as Copper Country pasties and venison burgers. They were compiled from the favorites of 1,100 school lunch managers and tested in school lunch kitchens in Ann Arbor, Dearborn and Oakland County.

Memorial donations from Tellar's colleagues provided funds for publishing the book and distributing one copy to every school district in Michigan. Copies for individual school lunch room managers are available at a nominal cost.

Recipe portions are a little cumbersome for the average homemaker, since each recipe is designed to provide from 96 to 200 portions.

The selection of favorite main dishes indicate that this generation of Michigan children have developed cosmopolitan palates. Such international treats as Shanghai Casserole, made with bean sprouts and diced pork, goulash, skillet green bean chili and pizza are included in the collection.

The list of 17 different hot breads are a testimony to efforts of lunch room managers.

GOP to Fight N.Y. Conservatives

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The conservative thrust in New York State toward a power position in the GOP jolted liberal, moderate and Eisenhower Republicans. There probably will be more jolts.

Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) instantly proposed countermeasures. Case would organize libmod-Ike Republican office holders in a national alliance.

This alliance would be directly opposed to the newborn New York Conservative Party, Inc. (CPI). CPI was organized by Republicans resentful of party policy in New York State and nationally.

★ ★ ★

CPI polled more than 126,000 votes for governor in New York Nov. 6 with its politically unknown candidate bucking the Republican and Democratic nominees. The CPI plan is to establish itself in command of 200,000 or more conservative votes in New York.

Then it would warn moderate Republicans that these votes would be withheld in New York State from any presidential or state candidate who did not meet minimum conservative standards.

The left-wing Liberal party in New York bargains that way to persuade Democrats to nominate left-of-center national and state tickets.

When the Republican party is convinced it needs those thousands of Conservative party votes in New York to win nationally or in the state, the policy posture of Republican national and state nominees is likely to change.

ON BALLOT BY PETITION

CPI got on the New York state ballot by petition, a difficult technique. It will remain on the ballot so long as it polls at least 50,000 votes for a statewide candidate. A newspaper headline reported: Conservative party vexes the GOP.

Vexes? The word is too weak. Case's proposal better suggests the Republican reaction to conservative rebellion. Case believes his proposed liberal Republican alliance would mobilize party support for such projects as medicare, federal housing and urban renewal.

He believes, also, that his alliance would influence selection of a 1964 presidential nominee. Republican conservatives unhappily feel that their party already is too much mobilized for the projects Case favors and that the liberals long since seized control of Republican national conventions.

Republican conservatives and liberals are on a collision course. The conservatives have going for them the enthusiasm of the abused. Their polling performance in New York on Nov. 6 was impressive.

Having escaped the nest of their party's eggheads, the New York conservatives should do well if they can fend off the pin heads of the far right.

The conservatives should pay more attention to platform policy than to Republican presidential personalities. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) could be their personality and their prophet. But Goldwater was just heard in California suggesting that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller might not be so bad in 1964, after all. The New York CPI thinks Rocky is very bad indeed.

Perhaps the CPI leaders should have a talk with Goldwater. Perhaps again, if Case's alliance prospers and promotes Rocky for president, Goldwater might reconsider to decide after all that the governor would be pretty bad in 1964.

"LOOK WHAT I FOUND" — Fourth grader Wayne Trosclair of Baton Rouge, La., points out a mistake in a newly published arithmetic book. Wayne notified the editor, closing his note with "If I find anymore mistakes, I'll let you know." He received a thank you letter from the publishing firm.

Frenchmen Obsessed With Love of Death?

PARIS—Are Frenchmen driving themselves to destruction — and secretly liking it? A growing number of maximum-destruction, fatal highway accidents has led experts to think that the French have substituted love of death for love of the opposite sex.

★ ★ ★

Consider, say psychiatrists, the way in which prominent young citizens seem intent on hurtling themselves to their doom:

Recently a well-known author, 34-year-old Roger Nimier, killed himself in his Aston-Martin racing roadster.

He took with him to his death a promising young woman novelist, Sunslare d' Larcone, 25. The impact of the crash against a stone wall was so great that the car was literally disintegrated.

A week before that, another young writer, Jean-Rene Huguenin, died behind the wheel.

Nobel literary award winner Albert Camus was a high-speed accident victim, as well as Aly Khan and the two sons of Minister of Culture Andre Malraux.

Francoise Sagan, author of the best-seller "Bonjour Tristesse," suffered a brush with death in her sports car, but recovered in the hospital.

SMITTEN WITH LOVE

Psychiatrists are trying to fathom the modern relationship of man and his automobile.

They are delving into the wilderness of the subconscious in an effort to discover why so many young men are smitten with love for their cars.

"It is commonly accepted," said one expert, "that sons of wealthy fathers love their racing cars better than their mistresses."

WRAPPED UP — The car in which Francoise Sagan nearly died rests in a garage following her accident.

Dr. Paul Huchard stated that the No. 1 cause of death among the under-30s age group was speeding.

"This is the modern equivalent of the romantic spirit of their grandfathers and fathers," he said.

★ ★ ★

Others point out that contemporary novels and motion pictures exalt the great god Speed. The leading character in Miss Sagan's "Tristesse" dies in an auto accident—similar to the one which almost eliminated her creator from the literary scene.

In Roger Vallant's novel, "La Fete," there is a long, sadistic scene in which a driver amuses himself by risking his life and the lives of others on a highway.

And Tristan Renaud, a 25-year-old novelist, ends his "Death of Another," with a head-on collision between a Gordini and a Mercedes.

The high point of the successful film "Breathless," starring Jean Seberg and Jean-Paul Belmondo, is Belmondo's lengthy monologue during a solitary ride in a stolen car.

And in Jules Dassin's "Phaedra," actor Tony Perkins caresses the auto of his dreams as he would a sweetheart—before killing himself at the wheel.

A commission on road casualties, meeting at the Paris Faculty of Medicine, was informed by psychiatrists that the steering wheel can transform ordinary men into violent, primitive aggressors.

The high-powered engine can impart a sense of superiority.

★ ★ ★

So, it seems likely that the French will continue to commit violent suicide — until someone brings love back into the scene as a replacement for the thrill of the 100 m.p.h. motor ride.

WMU to Seek $2-Million Hike

KALAMAZOO (UPI)—Western Michigan University President James W. Miller has announced the school will seek $9,782,000 in appropriations for the 1963-64 school year, an increase of nearly $2.5 million over the budget for the current school year.

Miller said Western Michigan is asking for the increase in funds because of the greater number of students and the increase in per student education costs.

He said enrollment has gone up 168 per cent in the past decade and the per student operating cost has increased 18 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Miller said part of the additional money requested would be used to hire 162 additional teachers.

The faculty increase would make the teacher-student ration one to 20. The ratio presently is one teacher for each 23.4 students.

Would Warn Smokers

BOSTON (UPI) — State Rep. Joseph E. Brett has filed a bill in the Massachusetts House to require that cigarette packages and cartons bear the warning: "Excessive Use of This Product May Cause Damage to Lungs."

The Quincy Democrat also filed a companion bill which would set up a special state commission to investigate the relationship of cigarette smoking to lung cancer.

Court 'Let's George Do It'

New English Alphabet Debuts

LONDON (UPI)—The English alphabet meets competition today when Shavian makes its debut.

★ ★ ★

Shavian is the result of one of the late playwright George Bernard Shaw's last wishes. It is an alphabet of 48 letters instead of 26 and uses phonetic spelling.

It officially makes its appearance in a new edition of Shaw's own "Androcles and the Lion," where the standard English text also will be printed.

The alphabet originally was the idea of an Englishman, Kingsley Read.

★ ★ ★

Read, now 74, first worked on it in 1941, while waiting out Nazi air raids under his kitchen table, and showed it to Shaw.

Shaw liked it so much he decided to provide for a new alphabet in his will. After seven years of legal squabbles, a trustee for the estate offered a $1,400 prize for a new alphabet.

There were more than 400 entries, but Read won—possibly because it was his idea that first set Shaw off.

Shavian's lines and scrawls look like a mixture of Arabic and shorthand. But there are those who claim it will trim the time it takes a child to read by at least a year. For that matter, it cuts the spelling of "Bernard Shaw" from 11 to seven letters.

There also are those who are

sceptical of Shavian. William Barkley, Daily Express parliamentary reporter, said the system of phonetic spelling has its drawbacks—500 of them.

★ ★ ★

These are the 500 pairs of words in English which are pronounced alike but spelled differently and have different meanings. Sometimes, Barkley said, it is impossible to identify them by the context.

He listed a few like "plane, plain, through and threw."

But the biggest question surrounding Shavian at the moment is where more funds will come from for furthering the new alphabet. The courts only permitted $23,240 from Shaw's estate to develop an alphabet and more than half that has been spent.

Earl Still No. 2 Quarterback for 7 Years

Morrall Best No. 1 Reliefer

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

Football fortunes looked great for Earl Morrall when he left Michigan State in 1956 after leading the Spartans to a Rose Bowl victory.

He was picked No. 1 in the draft by the San Francisco 49ers that year, but he was just a No. 2 quarterback behind veteran Y. A. Tittle.

In 1957 he cost the Pittsburgh Steelers a high price. The 49ers gave him up for all-pro linebacker Marv Matuszek and the first two Steeler draft choices.

At Pittsburgh he was still just a No. 2 quarterback and in 1958 Steeler's coach Buddy Parker sent him to Detroit for Bobby Layne and two draft choices.

TRADED AGAIN

This made four high draft picks, the Steelers had to give up to get and then get rid of Morrall. When Morrall left the Steelers coach Parker wasn't very complimentary. "He'll never make this league," said Parker.

With the Lions, Morrall's status was still No. 2 and this time behind Tobin Rote for two seasons.

When Rote left the Lions it appeared that Morrall would finally get his chance to be a No. 1 quarterback. But, fate hadn't meant it that way.

The Lions made a deal with Cleveland and brought Jim Ninowski to the scene. It seemed ironical that a quarterback who was Morrall's sophomore understudy while at MSU in 1956 was to become the No. 1 field general, and he again would be just a "relief quarterback."

That's the way it was for most of the 1960 season, with Ninowski getting the starting nod. But Morrall had his great days as a "reliefer."

He got into the last four games of the season early enough to get "credit" for the victories over the Colts, Packers, Bears and Browns.

The 20-15 victory over the Colts was probably one of the most spectacular in Lions' history and for Morrall. It came in the last eight seconds when he threw a 65 yard scoring pass to Jim Gibbons just 10 seconds after Lenny Moore's great run gave Baltimore a 15-13 lead.

STILL NO. 2

Throughout 1961 he was still No. 2 behind Ninowski, even though Morrall had several great "relief" performances, including the second half against Minnesota when he completed 13 of 17 passes for 254 yards and three touchdowns.

Another season is now nearly over and for the 5th time Morrall finds himself to be a reliefer. This time the No. 1 man is Milt Plum.

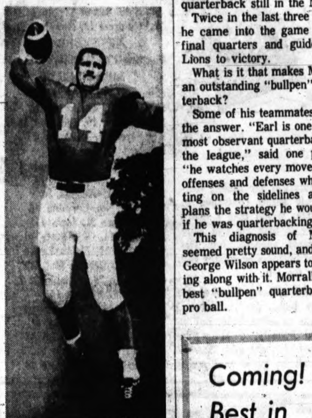
In the few starting assignments he has had through seven pro years, Morrall hardly caused anyone to take notice, yet he has had more headlines for his "relief" duties than any quarterback still in the NFL.

Twice in the last three games he came into the game in the final quarters and guided the Lions to victory.

What is it that makes Morrall an outstanding "bullpen" quarterback?

Some of his teammates found the answer. "Earl is one of the most observant quarterbacks in the league," said one player, "he watches every move of the offenses and defenses while sitting on the sidelines and he plans the strategy he would use if he was quarterbacking."

This diagnosis of Morrall seemed pretty sound, and coach George Wilson appears to be going along with it. Morrall is the best "bullpen" quarterback in pro ball.



TOP RELIEVER—The Yankees had Louis Arroyo, the Pirates had Elroy Face but in pro football the Lions have Earl Morrall, the best "bullpen" quarterback in the NFL. For seven years, the former MSU star has been No. 2 behind five different quarterbacks.

NFL Statistics Close Between Lions-Packers

Comparing season statistics of the Detroit Lions and the Green Bay Packers would hardly tip anyone off as to the winner of their annual Thanksgiving Day battle, but the figures do show how close the two teams rate against each other.

The Lions are as potent passing as the Packers are rushing. Green Bay holds the rushing edge with 1896 yards. The Lions have the same identical yardage by passing, 1896.

In crossing the goal line, the Packers have the ground power and the Lions the air power.

★ ★ ★

The two teams are neck and neck in punts and kick returns and they both show alertness in recovering opponent fumbles. Green Bay has covered 12 enemy fumbles and the Lions 11.

DEFENSES CLOSE

The defensive totals are the close figures. Each team has given up 129 first downs, the Lions only 45 by rushing and 74 by passing, while the Packers have allowed 60 by rushing and 61 by passing.

Only eight yards separate the yardage allowed opponents, Green Bay giving up 2,128 and the Lions 2,136.

Green Bay's biggest edge is in interceptions with 26 to 14 for Detroit.

But in the biggest statistic of them all, Green Bay is 10-0 for the season and Detroit 8-2 officially up to noon today.

These are the way National Football League statistics tell the tale of two great teams.

Bowlerama Time Closer

Six Days Before 1st Deadline

Time's A'wasting!

Only six more days before the first deadline of The Pontiac Press Bowlerama!

Next Wednesday midnight is the last chance for bowlers to enter the Bowlerama if they wish to try their qualifying round at Howe's Lanes and Nor-West.

The advantages? Be among the top 12½ per cent who will qualify and then sit back and wait for the finals, Dec. 23rd or be sure of another chance the following weekend if the bowler fails to make the grade the first week.

Trophies and money prizes go to all top qualifiers and to all top scores in high game and high series totals.

QUALIFIERS ALL WIN

Every qualifier is assured at least $15 plus whatever he wins in the big prize list in the finals.

High averages and good actual scores also put the bowlers in line for invitation to the Actual's tourney with more prizes and money opportunities.

Bowlers with averages as low as 108 and as high as 204 have shared the purse in past tournaments and this year the opportunities are even greater.

HOUSE TROPHY

Establishments are naming their house teams to compete for The Press "House Trophy" and individual money pizes.

★ ★ ★

Westside has entered Jack Chambers, Bob Richards, Don Stone, Jerry Perna and John Casper.

Airway's team consists of Pat Tinson, Arnie Osta, Ed Gibbs, Jerry St. Souver and Bill Leigh.

Wonderland Lanes five men include Kerry Reetz, Art Grissom, Larry Sevigny, Bud Marhon and Paul Horie.

The Lakewood team, defending "house champ" has a new name in its group. Bill Crawford replaces Carl Behrick and joins Bob Kuklinski, Bill Bull, Bob Lowry Jr. and Gary Thompson as the team.

From 300 Bowl a strong team is made up of Monroe Moore, Les Rothbarth, George Chicovsky, Don Martell, and Joe Puertas.

Teams from Cooley, North Hill, Nor-West, Howe's, Montcalm, Huron Bowl and others are expected to vie for big feature house ward.

This feature has no bearing on the handicap portion of the Bowlerama.

Time is drawing near for the first Wednesday night deadline.

Gophers' Defense Faces Stiff Test

CHICAGO (AP) — The grand finale of the Big Ten football season—the title-deciding Minnesota at Wisconsin game Saturday—marks the third time of the campaign that the conference's top offensive team tangles with the No. 1 defensive outfit.

Minnesota has been a partner in this battle all three times as the leading defensive club.

In the Gophers' third game of the season and opening Big Ten contest they met the No. 1 offensive unit of that time, Northwestern, and were defeated 34-22.

Three weeks later they took on the top ground-gaining team, Michigan State, and defeated the Spartans 28-7.

RUBBER GAME

The Wisconsin-Minnesota clash thus becomes the rubber game of offense vs. defense for the Gophers.

Here is how they compare, according to Big Ten statistics released today (averages a game):

Wis.	Off.	Minn.	Def.
Points	30.8		7.8
First Downs	20.3		11.8
Net Yards	356.7		178.8
Rushing Yds.	184.4		54.0
Passing Yds.	172.3		124.8
Yards a Play	5.2		2.7
Rushing	4.3		1.3
Passing	6.6		5.0

In Big Ten individual statistics, Larry Ferguson of Iowa gained the rushing lead with 333 yards in 72 trips for a 4.6 average. But his conference bid is over since Iowa winds up at Notre Dame Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Indiana's Marv Woodson and three Michigan State runners—George Saimes, Dewey Lincoln and Sherm Lewis—are in a position to aim for the rushing title.

Great Opportunity --- Schwall

DENVER (AP)—Don Schwall, 24-year-old right-handed pitcher, said Wednesday, "It is a great opportunity for me" to be traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates by the Boston Red Sox.

He said he also is glad his catcher, Jim Pagliaroni, is going with him to the National League city. They were traded for first baseman Dick Stuart and pitcher Jack Lamabe.

AFTER STUART

"I had a feeling right along that this trade might come off," Schwall said. "There were rumors last summer the Red Sox were after Stuart and that I might be traded for him.

"I think the trade will help both ball clubs. I know it is a great opportunity for me to land with a first division team. Pittsburgh has a good offensive club and that certainly should help a pitcher.

"I certainly intend to make the most of this opportunity."

★ ★ ★

Schwall, a native of Wilkes Barre, Pa., said he will be married Jan. 12 to a Pittsburgh girl, Pattie Plate: "We met at a ball game in Boston," he said.

Now that the Boston Red Sox have acquired the right-handed power they have needed for so long—slugging first baseman Dick Staurt—two questions remain.

1. What do the Red Sox do with their present first baseman, who happens to be Pete Runnels, the 1962 American League batting champion?

2. And will Stuart, a controversial fellow, use Fenway Park's notoriously chummy left field wall (315 feet) to advantage or disadvantage before Boston's often hypercritical fans?

RUNNELS ON BLOCK

Though Johnny Pesky didn't say so while commenting on Wednesday's trade with Pittsburgh, the newly named Red Sox manager left the impression that Runnels will be traded away this winter.

The 35-year-old Runnels also plays second base but Boston has young Chuck Schilling well installed there. Thus, Runnels' trading value might be more than his worth as a utility man.

Stuart, 30, had a horrendous year with Pittsburgh in the National League last season. But he said he expects to return to his 1961 form now that he's in a smaller park. Two years ago Stuart hit 35 home runs and drove in 117.

"I was happy with the Pirates," Stuart said, "but I wasn't happy with that deep outfield in Forbes Field. It's going to be much easier on me mentally in Fenway Park.

★ ★ ★

"I've always thought that potentially I can be a great home run hitter, but I'd never realize that potential in a big park like Forbes Field.

"I won't predict how many home runs I might hit in Fenway but it'll be much easier to put the ball out there."

Stuart said he is a much better hitter if he doesn't try to "pull" the ball.

"But if you don't pull in Forbes Field, you're dead," he said. "It's 457 feet to center field there."

Boston fans hope "The Wall" as it's known hereabouts, doesn't prove to be the nuisance it has for other right-handed sluggers. Many have joined the Red Sox and swung for the left field fence on practically every pitch—until their average dropped to a low enough point that they were traded away.

NEW PIRATE — Detroiter Don Schwall, 24-year-old righthander, reads about the trade which sent him to the Pittsburgh Pirates from the Boston Red Sox. Schwall, American League rookie of the year in 1961, was traded along with Jim Pagliaroni for Dick Stuart and Jack Lamabe. He was visiting his brother in Denver when the trade was announced yesterday.

Alas, the high school grapevine is bare except for today's Flint intra-city battle between Flint Northern and Flint Central.

The college and pro picking is also getting thinner but another two weeks will determine the New Swami President.

Swami Vogel still holds a two game lead over Swami Craig and last week Swami Kearns made a big jump by picking up four games.

There are some big rivalries on tap this Thanksgiving Day and for the weekend.

Maj. Hoople's Picks Strictly for Birds

Talented Turkey Taster

Hail and farewell, gentle readers.

Here we are once again at the end of the football season. As usual, traditional clashes dominate.

The top Thanksgiving Day tussle will feature those intrastate rivals, Texas and Texas A. and M. The Aggies can be expected to give a good account of themselves but will fall before the relentless crunch of the Longhorns. I predict a 15-12 conquest for Texas.

On Saturday the fabled Harvard-Yale series continues in Cambride. Would that I could be there to lend the Old Blue my moral support, but the press of business precludes my making the trip.

It is with a heavy heart that I cast my ballot for Harvard. I would like to select Yale, but intellectual honesty, a Hoople trademark, I might add, decrees that I call the game as I see it —a 17-10 triumph for the Crimson.

* * *

In other notable traditional battles I prophesy victory for Michigan over Ohio State, Tennessee over Kentucky, Oregon over Oregon State and Indiana over neighboring Purdue.

Egad, friends, I've run out of space and time.

Hannibal Wottaburp joins me in wishing you and yours a happy Thanksgiving. And don't forget to count your blessings along with your calories—heh-heh!

Watch for the Hoople forecast of the big Bowl games.

HOOKED — Rod Gilbert (7) of the New York Rangers, hooks his stick under the jersey of Boston Bruins' Tom Williams just after Williams scored in the first period of their game in New York last night. Ranger goalie Lorne Worsley is spread out on the ice after an attempt to make the save. The Rangers won, 4-2.

Bruins Show Spirit in Loss

NEW YORK (AP)—"We expected them to be fired up," New York Coach-General Manager Muzz Patrick said, "and we believed we were ready for it. But we didn't expect that."

Patrick was commenting about his Rangers' 4-2 triumph over Boston's suddenly-aggressive Bruins in Wednesday night's only National Hockey League game. The Bruins, however, looked like anything but a team that hasn't won in 14 consecutive games.

"We did just about everything but score enough," ruefully admitted new-old Boston Coach Milt Schmidt. "We made a few mistakes, but I thought we skated well."

DEBUT FAILS

The Bruins, mounting a concerted effort to make Schmidt's newest debut a successful one, hustled well, checked with authority and kept New York under constant pressure. They outshot the Rangers in every period and forced Ranger goalie Gump Worsley to make 43 saves, 18 in the first period.

"I was rather worried in that first period," Muzz said. "We were kind of spotty and they were really hustling. But, then, we expected them to be fired up with Schmidt back."

* * *

Schmidt, a member of hockey's Hall of Fame, was named to replace Phil Watson as Boston coach early this week. It's the second session at the Bruins' head for the one-time center on Boston's Kraut line. He was Bruin coach for seven years before moving to a front office job two years ago.

STEADY

Only a three-goal burst by New York's No. 1 line of Earl Ingarfield, Andy Hebenton and Andy Bathgate in the second period and Worsley's steady work in goal pulled it out for the Rangers.

"Boston's power play was the best I've seen in the league this year," commented New York assistant general manager Emile Francis. "They were really giving us fits."

* * *

Ingarfield, Hebenton and Bathgate each scored once in the decisive middle period, building a 4-1 lead that stood up.

Hebenton, who also got an assist, was credited with the winning goal when he steered in Larry Cahan's blazing slap shot from the right point. The veteran Hebenton was honored in a pregame ceremony as he went into his 506th consecutive game, tying a club record.

* * *

New York's Camille Henry and Boston's Tom Williams matched first period goals. Don McKenney, who was robbed of two others by outstanding saves, finished the Boston scoring with a rebound in the last period.

Black Hawks Can Tie for Lead if Detroit Loses Tonight

DETROIT (UPI) —The Detroit Red Wings will parade a quartet of pacesetters in five National Hockey League departments tonight at Olympia in a Thanksgiving clash with the Montreal Canadiens.

* * *

Captain Alex Delvecchio leads the NHL in points (20) and assists (15), while left wing Parker MacDonald is the top goal scorer with nine.

Terry Sawchuck fronts league goaltenders with only 30 misses, a 1.87 average, and three shutouts.

Defenseman Howie Young heads the bad men parade with 54 penalty minutes, or at least one a game. Despite this, Young is credited with livening the Wing defense and has cut down needless visits to the box which troubled him last year.

A large holiday crowd is expected to see the important game. The Wings just completed a six-game road trip.

Detroit clings to a two-point first place margin over the persistent runnerup Chicago Black Hawks. The Hawks entertain Toronto and New York at Boston in other NHL games tonight.

TWO IN HAND

While a Wing loss combined with a Chicago win would pull the Hawks into a first place tie, Detroit still has two games in hand over Chicago.

The Wings have won 10, lost three and tied three, while the Black Hawks have won eight, lost five and tied five.

Tonight's game also will mark the 35th anniversary of the first hockey game played at Olympia. The Grand River arena first opened its doors to pro hockey on Nov. 22, 1927.

* * *

The Detroit Cougars, forerunners of the Wings, lost 2-1 to the Ottawa Senators, defending Stanley Cup champions.

Rain-Shortened Work

LONG REACH — Syracuse National Hall Greer (15) has control of the rebound in his battle with Don Ohl (10) of the Detroit Pistons. The teams played last night in Detroit's Cobo arena and the Nats won, 122-120.

Syracuse Tops Pistons in Game Tied 22 Times

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Pistons fought gamely yesterday but lost a cliff-hanger to the Syracuse Nats, 122-120, in a National Basketball Association contest that was tied 22 times.

Larry Costello provided the impetus for the Nats by pouring in 30 points for his high game of the season.

It was the closest-fought game of the season for both clubs as the see-saw battle saw the lead change hands about as many times as in a square dance.

The score was deadlocked at 117-117 with only 1:19 to go in the game when Bob Ferry put the Pistons ahead 118-117 on a free throw. But the Detroiters lost the lead on fouls to give the game to the Nats. The Nats got their final five points on foul shots.

* * *

Hal Greer and Dolph Schayes each put in a pair of free throws and Costello got the final marker to put Syracuse ahead while Detroit missed three chances on the basket in the interim.

HALFTIME LEAD

The Pistons led, 69-67, at the half but at the end of the third quarter the score was tied 91-91.

Walter Dukes and Don Ohl contributed 23 points each in the losing cause and former University of Detroit star Dave DeBusschere looped 18.

The Pistons are now 3-12 on the season while the Nats are 10-3.

NBA Rookie Newest Hero in Boston

By The Associated Press

It wasn't enough that National Basketball Association rivals had to fret about Bob Cousy, Bill Russell, Frank Ramsey, Tom Heinsohn, Tom Sanders, the Jones boys and Jungle Jim Loscutoff. Now there's John Havlicek, a new Boston Celtic standout.

* * *

Havlicek, a rookie from Ohio State, tossed in 22 points, set up plays, rebounded in spectacular fashion and ignited a second half rally that brought the defending champion Celtics a 115-106 decision over St. Louis Wednesday night.

TWINBILL

New York beat Chicago 137-106 in the first half of the Boston Garden doubleheader, while veteran Dolph Schayes sparked Syracuse to a 122-120 victory over Detroit and Cincinnati downed San Francisco 143-139 with some neat foul shooting by Adrian Smith in the other NBA games.

* * *

Boston trailed 63-49 at the half and 68-57 when Havlicek made his first appearance in the second half. The Celtics finally tied it at 87-87. Then the rookie connected wittr a hook shot, followed with a 3-point play and fed Cousy for another basket. The Celtics didn't trail again.

Russell led Boston scorers with 26 points and hauled in 29 rebounds. The Hawks' Bob Pettit paced all scorers with 30 points.

Gene Conley and Willie Naulls headed a second period New York run of 16 straight points that built a 60-44 lead and settled the issue against Chicago. The Knicks eased in the rest of the way.

Richie Guerin led New York scorers with 27 points while Chicago rookie Terry Dischinger got 37.

Conservation Officers Expect Anything

Are Anti-Deer Missiles on Pads?

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's conservation officers are just waiting for the day when an exceptionally clever fellow fires a homebuilt guided missile from a portable launching pad and brings down a deer.

★ ★ ★

It hasn't happened yet — perhaps because the space age hasn't been upon us long enough — but experience suggests that sooner or later, it will happen.

That portion of state law concerning illegal advices and methods for hunting, trapping and fishing grows ever longer as would-be outdoorsmen seek newer and more efficient methods of bringing home their quarry.

Some devices, like nets used for capturing wildfowl, are illegal because they are too efficient. A skillfully used net could catch several years' supply at one time.

But Everett E. Tucker, chief of field administration for the conservation department, said the serious thing is that many illegal methods don't work as well as the legal ones.

UNEXPECTED RESULTS

"As a rule the Rube Goldberg inventions don't turn out to be what their inventors expect," said Tucker, who learned the enforcement trade as a River Rouge police lieutenant chasing prohibition bootleggers on the Detroit River.

"But somebody's always trying something new."

Tucker recalls the case of one hunter who tried to bag his deer during the archers' season by firing an arrow from a .410 shotgun. "That one worked," said Tucker, "but he got caught, as most of them do."

The list of illegal devices and methods runs from A (for arbalest, a type of metal crossbow) to W (for weasel, which has great skill in flushing rabbits and other small game from their burrows).

In the days before the automobile moving along remove backwoods roads gave the surreptitious hunter cover and mobility, it was a relatively popular practice to dig pits. Some were concealed, like a Malay tiger trap without the sharpened stakes at the bottom.

Section 312.10 of the Laws Relating to Conservation defines among illegal hunting methods and devices the use of raised platforms, scaffolds, artificial light, snares, drugs, poison, salt and other bait, chemicals, smoke, gas and explosives.

THE 'FITCHEW'

It says the hunter may not use the aforementioned weasel, its cousins the ferret and fitchew, guinea pits or rodents of any kind, either as bait or to flush the quarry.

Tucker remembers an Oakland County man who was caught selling ferrets to hunters. He insisted the animals were fitchews, being raised for the commercial fur market. To solve the problem, the word "fitchew" was added to the list.

The crossbow came into use by hunters shortly after hunting with bow and arrow gained popularity. It was declared illegal after the "purists" who stuck to the longbow decided a medieval weapon of war wasn't very sporting and voiced their objections.

★ ★ ★

Tucker says automatic weapons turned up in the woods shortly after World War II, but the federal alcohol and tobacco tax division (the revenooers) confiscated enough to discourage their wide use.

★ ★ ★

Still turning up with relative frequency are gun silencers, some of them home-made.

One item not yet found in Michigan — and not included in the list — is that favorite hunting weapon of the Australian plains, the boomerang.

It doesn't fit into any present category and probably wouldn't be illegal anyway, says Tucker.

★ ★ ★

"It's like the slingshot," he said. "There probably isn't one boy in 1,000 who can use a slingshot and come home with something — so who's to object?

Fight Canceled Also

'Big D' Matchmaker Suspended

MUSKEGON (AP)—State boxing commissioner David Gudelsky has cancelled a scheduled fight card at Battle Creek and announced temporary suspensions for several officials of the Big D Boxing Club of Detroit.

Light heavyweight Ed Zaremba of Jackson had been scheduled to fight Willie Barbio of Toronto Saturday at Battle Creek under the auspices of the Big D Club.

Gudelsky said yesterday the bout had been cancelled along with the rest of the Battle Creek card.

"I'm not in 100 per cent agreement with what's going on," Gudelsky said here in disclosing that Jim Riley, Big D's matchmaker, had been temporarily suspended and placed on 90 days probation.

"The suspension takes in the promoters also."

Elisha Gray and Leon Saddler, both of Detroit, are the Big D's promoters.

Gudelsky said Riley had been under suspension in Illinois stemming from a boxing program in Chicago and added that Michigan recognizes this suspension. But the Michigan commissioner added that he disapproved of Riley billing himself as a co-promoter in certain fights in the state while also serving as a matchmaker.

The commission is making a thorough investigation of the situation and should complete it in 10 days, Gudelsky said.

DENIES CHARGES

Riley denied Gudelsky's charges.

"I think the commissioner was wrong in involving me," Riley said, "I never had anything to do with promotion. I'm just a matchmaker. I never had anything to do with the handling of tickets."

Parker Wants Steeler Win at Cleveland

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Coach Buddy Parker of the Pittsburgh Steelers was optimistic today about the Steelers' chances of beating the Browns in a National Football League game at Cleveland Sunday.

We have a might good chance of taking the Browns this tme around," Parker said.

The Browns trounced Pittsburgh 41-14 in a game here last month. But Parker blamed that loss on four Steeler fumbles plus the fact that linebacker John Reger and end Preston Carpenter were on the sidelines.

Red Threat Rebuffed

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — The Windsor Bulldogs put an end Wednesday night to the hopes of the Russian National hockey team for an undefeated sweep on its current tour by trouncing the visitors 9-2 in an exhibition game.

It was the Russians' first loss in five games of their 9-game Canadian tour.

DeWitt Named Trustee

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Charles W. DeWitt, former vice president of the old St. Louis Browns baseball club, was named trustee of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League Wednesday.

He was appointed following the resignation of Edward B. Arthur, a motion picture theater executive, who was appointed trustee Monday by Circuit Court Judge James F. Nangle.

Not Very Patriotic

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jess Richardson, 265-pound defensive tackle for the Boston Patriots, was fined $500 Wednesday for intentionally bumping an official in last Sunday's Boston-Houston American Football League game at Houston.

★ ★ ★

Richardson was ejected from the game, which carries an automatic fine of $50, but Foss considered the nature of the offense so severe that he made it 10 times as high.

Richardson argued over a decision too vociferously.

West Whips East, 12-8 in Annual Gem Bowl Game

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — The West beat the East 12-8 Wednesday night in the fifth annual Gem Bowl football game here, taking its first victory in four years.

Johnny Pont, head coach of Miami of Ohio, guided the West to victory, while Alex bell, head coach of Villanova, directed the East.

The game's standout performance was easily that of Frank Baker of Toledo University, who won a trophy as the game's most valuable player. The 6-foot-2, 218-pound fullback carried the ball for 110 of the 131 yards gained by the West team, and scored the winning touchdown.

★ ★ ★

Baker was the key figure in the first quarter as he rolled up 58 yards, including a 17-yard run, during the West's 72-yard march that was climaxed by a 2-yard touchdown run by left halfback Andy Timura of Dayton University.

The East snapped back in the third quarter with a touchdown on a 56-yard play as quarterback Ron Giordano of Bucknell hurled a 28-yard pass to end Jerry Bejbl of Slippery Rock, who ran 30 yards for the score. The Giordano-Bejbl pass combination clicked again for a 2-point conversion, putting the East in the lead.

Another Giordano pass backfired, however, when Western tackle Jerry Wasserman of Findlay College intercepted it on the East's 32 and returned it to the 19. Baker carried it to the 8 in three plays, Timura took it to the 3, and Baker carried once more for the winning TD.

Pros Draw Battle Lines; LSU Tackle Waits Offers

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Another bitter scramble between the rival American and National Football Leagues for a talented collegian is in the offing.

This time it will be for the services of big Fred Miller, Louisiana State's 240-pound All America tackle candidate. Miller, red-shirted one year, was drafted last year by the NFL's Baltimore Colts and the AFL's Oakland Raiders, who traded him to Dallas.

Miller, a 6-foot-2 handsome, blue-eyed resident of Homer, La., is going to sit back and wait for the best offer.

FLUNKED

If Fred David Miller hadn't flunked an English course in high school in 1957, he'd be playing for the Tulane football squad instead of being an outstanding lineman on LSU's two-way White team.

* * *

The very thought of it sends a shudder through Miller, who signed a grant-in-aid with Tulane after his high school football squad finished as runner-up in the state prep championships in 1957.

After graduation, Tulane discovered he needed additional credits in English. Miller went to summer school but couldn't pick it up in time and Tulane released him.

"I was bitterly disappointed then. But then I came to LSU. I don't want to even think about Tulane now."

FINAL GAME

Miller goes to the Tulane campus in New Orleans Saturday for his final regular season game.

The Tigers, 7-1-1 for the season and seemingly headed for the Cotton Bowl, play winless Tulane in the season finale for both schools.

* * *

LSU Coach Charlie McClendon says Miller, who stepped up to the White team this season after two years on the Chinese Bandit defensive unit, will "make a fine pro player."

* * *

"He's going to grow some more. He should hit 250 or 260 in another couple of years."

McClendon calls Miller the most powerful man on the LSU team. Miller is fast, too. He runs the 100 in 11 flat, which is pretty good time for a big man.

Miller, a forestry major who who will graduate in January with just a shade under a B average, attributes his strength to outdoor work.

Soviets Sweep Cage Program

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Aleksandr Petrov poured in 21 points Wednesday night to pull the Russian Men's team to a 66-63 victory over the U.S. All-Stars and give U.S.S.R. teams a sweep of a basketball doubleheader before 9,600 fans.

In the opener, 6-foot-6 Ravela Saimova came off the bench to tally 19 points as the Russian women defeated the Hutchinson Flying Queens of Wayland College from Plainview, Tex. 50-40.

The Soviet men now lead their U.S. series tour 4-2 and the Soviet women stand 6-0.

The U.S. men's team took a 37-30 halftime margin, but with 5:10 left, Petrov sank a layup, giving the Soviets a 52-50 margin. The game rocked back and forth during the final minutes with Pete McCaffrey and Larry Pursiful banging in field goals to keep the U.S. close.

The 11th Frame

A bowling break for the leaders in the Huron Bowl Classic and the Pontiac Traveling Classic resulted in one team losing its lead and the other in a good position to build its winning streak with the resumption of play Sunday.

At Huron Bowl, Eamon Electric jumped into first place last Friday by sweeping Veterans Disposal, 8-0, while Pontiac Window Cleaning had a postponement. The window washers trail the electric squad by three points.

Pacing the new leaders' efforts were Jim Csizmadia and Bill Landry with 680 and 620 series.

The evening's top score, however, went to Ron Rothbarth with a 711 series. He, coupled with Jim Walker (658) and Pat Sweeney (636), enabled Calbi Music to win six of eight points from West Side Mobil. The Music men had a 3062 team series.

There was a new third place team in the league as Frayer's slipped ahead of the house team.

The league's high individual game was a 268 by Buck McDonald and Rothbarth had a 266. In all there were 18 games of 225 of better, and 11 series that surpassed 615.

TRAVEL CLASSIC

The leader in the travelling league is 300 Bowl and, after having a bye in last Sunday's action, it is ready to improve its 6-0 mark as the league teams begin their second trip around the circuit.

The pace setting 300 Bowl team will visit Westside, presently tied for third place with a 3-3 mark, at 1 p.m. Sunday. Westside built a 4-1 halftime margin and rode it to an 8-3 triumph over visiting Wonderland Lanes last Sunday. Jerry Perna's three points topped the winners.

Huron Bowl moved to within two games of the leaders with an 8-4 win at Cooley Lanes. Ray Brancheau packed up four points for the winners with 211-214. Huron will play host to third place Airway Lanes at noon Sunday.

* * *

The Airway team registered a high-scoring 15-10 victory at Howe's last time out. Pat Tinson picked up five points for the Airway team with 200-235 and Ed Gibbs added four with a 225-192 combo. Jim Walker scored five points for the winners with a 247 game and Ed Avadenka hit a 224 for three more.

Last place Wonderland travels to Cooley for a 1 p.m. match Sunday, also. Howe's Lanes, tied with Cooley for fifth position, has a bye.

In the Ladies All Star League, the house team tops the field with 31½ points. The 300 Bowlers lead second place Calbi Music by 3½ points after dropping a point last Friday to the music women who swept four games from Drayton Inn.

* * *

Teammatese Nancy Majeski and Martha Foster rolled 235 games for Team No. 5 to lead the league Friday. The latter's 601 series also was tops. In all, thirteen women rolled 500 series.

Six of the loop's ten teams have winning records to date.

Match Game Bowling Enters Second Day With 32 Finalists

CHICAGO (AP)—Two veterans of the bowling lanes, Don Carter and Marion Ladewig, led the finalists today into the second round of match-game competition in the $48,000 World's Invitational Bowling Tournament.

Carter, 36-year-old St. Louis sharp-shooter who has won four of the five previous world's championships, topped the 16 man finalists in Wednesday's first head-to-head competition. He won 9 of 12 games and totaled 61.40 Petersen points. He averaged 220 for the 12 games and knocked down 2,640 pins.

PAST CHAMPION

Mr. Ladewig, the Grand Rapids, Mich., grandmother who won the world's title in 1957 and 1961, also won 9 of her first 12 games and had 57.471 points.

* * *

But Mrs. Ladewig, who averaged 203 a game, was pressed for the lead by a teen-age shooter from Kansas City, Judy Audsly. Miss Audsley, 18, finished in second place, also with 9 wins and 3 losses but with 57.05 points. She had a total pinfall of 2,405, compared to 2,441 for Mrs. Ladewig.

Bob Strampe of Detroit, who won 8 of 12 games and had 59.14 points, was runner-up to Carter after the first day's match games. He was followed closely by Ray Bluth of St. Louis, who was runner-up to Carter in last year's tourney. Bluth also won 8 of 12 games an had 59.11 points.

Carter, with his familiar shuffl-shot, had the best series, shooting 917, while Strampe posted the top single game, 279.

TODAY'S MATCHES

Four-game matches are on today's program on the new lanes in McCormick Place, with the same schedule Friday and Saturday. The final two, including position, will wind up the tourney on Sunday.

Carter won all three of his matches from Pat Patterson, St. Louis; Bill Lillard, Dallas, and Dick Weber, the qualifying leader from St. Louis.

In the women's division, which is scored under the same Petersen point system , Mrs. Ladewig and the other 15 finalists bowled four of their 16 three-game matches.

Shirly Garms of Chicago, Bowler-Of-The-Year in 1961 and 1962, was in third place with 55.09 points.

Memphis State, 7-1

Titans Close Season

DETROIT — The University of Detroit football Titans are playing "Hold That Tiger" this week but it's definitely not the musical variety as they prepare to close out the 1962 season in Memphis, Tenn., against the high-scoring Tigers from Memphis State University, Saturday at 2 p.m. CST.

Here are some unfriendly facts the Titans of coach John Idzik are living with. Memphis State is 7-1, losing only to undefeated Mississippi back in September.

Coach Billy Murphy's charges have walloped four of their seven victims — Louisville (49-0), Mississippi State (28-7), The Citadel (60-13) and Arlington (Tex.) State, 50-0, last Saturday. Eleven different Tigers have scored touchdowns totaling 33; their opponents have scored just nine TDs.

Top rusher and scorer for MSU is fullback Dave Casinelli, a 5-10, 200-pound junior from Follansbee, W. Va. Casinelli has 753 rushing yards in 153 carries, a 4.9 average and has scored ten TDs, six in his last two games, for a team leading total of 60. Tailback Charles Killett, another junior from Helena, Ark., is second in rushing yards with 262 in 71, a 3.7 average.

Second in scoring is leading passer, quarterback Russ Vollmer, a third junior but of the homegrown variety. Vollmer has scored 59 points via six TDs and has kicked 21 of 24 conversion attempts plus a successful conversion run. He has completed 31 of 74 passes for 435 yards and five TDs and has picked up an additional 235 ground yards in 70 attempts, 3.4. In all, MSU has gained 1,771 rushing yards to its opponents' 652.

If there's a ray of hope for the Titans, other than quarterback Jerry Gross, it's in an infant precedence established last season. The Villanova Wildcats came to Detroit with Sun Bowl aspirations a year ago and bowed to Detroit 20-6. It's no secret that Memphis State is a prime Sun Bowl candidate for this season.

Gross, of course, is Detroit's real chance for an upset. The 5-10, 175-pound Bay City, Mich., star raised his career total offense to 3,999 with 126 yards against South Carolina last Saturday.

WEIGHT FOR AGE

Until our children were old enough to have their own bowling balls drilled to their personal measurements, Don and I were always careful to see that they selected bowling balls of a proper weight. We can tell when a ball is too heavy because there is a tendency to drop it too soon. When the ball is too light, the youngster will fling, rather than roll the ball. Bowling centers have all the house balls numbered according to weight and finger span. The counter man is available to assist you and your child in selecting the right bowling ball.

Parents See Fatal Game

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A 17-year-old basketball player for Nathan Hale High School in suburban West Allis died Wednesday night after being taken out of a game with West Allis Central.

* * *

He was Frank Kostan, whose parents, brother and sister saw the game at the Hale Gym.

* * *

Police reported Kostan fell backward after going for a rebound in the first half. Principal George Riedel said Kostan came to the sidelines and complained of a headache.

Donald Galles, an assistant coach, said he took the youth to the coaches' room where Kostan lay on a couch.

"He just quit breathing," Riedel said.

* * *

Police said a doctor was called and artificial respiration was applied but Kostan was pronounced dead in the room.

* * *

An investigator for the county medical examiner's office said an autopsy will be performed to determine the cause of death.

Kostan was a senior guard on the team.

Flies, Heat Hamper 7th Empire Meeting

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Sweltering heat and sticky footed bush flies plagued the advance guard of the expected 50,000 spectators who poured into the glistening new Perry Lakes Stadium today for the opening of the seventh British Empire and Commonwealth Games.

As spectators flowed into the stadium, lines of cars choked most of the roads leading to the arena.

HOT

The temperature had reached 92.7 degrees in the shade, but cooling afternoon breezes known as "The Fremantle Doctor" began sending the mercury down as time for the official ceremonies approached.

Meanwhile it was reported that athletes were being sprayed with disinfectment as a protection against the tenacious black flies, which are typed as "musca sorbens."

★ ★ ★

Small bush fires broke out a few hundred yards from the stadium but were quickly brought under control.

The outdoor-loving Australians made the game opening an occasion for bush picnics. Families settled under gum trees and in the shadows of the huge stadium and hauled out food hampers.

★ ★ ★

Some fans sought shelter from the blistering sun by parking on the beams beneath the stands. Many brought along fly swatters to ward off the pesky bushflies which infest this picturesque isolated seaport on the Indian Ocean.

A cordon of khaki-clad Army men was thrown around the stadium to police the area for the arrival of Prince Philip, who was officially opening the Games.

Spivey Leads Long Beach to Victory

By The Associated Press

A change of scenery has worked wonders for the Long Beach Chiefs of the American Basketball League.

A year ago they were the Hawaii Chiefs and seldom were in contention. Back on the California mainland this year they are unbeaten in four starts and lead the league.

No. 4 came Wednesday night on their home court in a nip and tuck battle with the Oakland Colts 89-87 with Big Bill Spivey, the former Kentucky All-American, the high scorer with 22 points. He got seven field goals and 8 of 9 free throws.

The game was late starting because the plane, carrying the Oakland team, had to come down at Ontario, Calif., because of a dense fog at Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh moved into second place with a 2-1 record by beating the Philadelphia Tapers 124-118 at Philadelphia. Connie Hawkins, 6-foot-8 star who led the league in scoring last season, popped in 42 points on 13 of 19 field goal tries and 16 of 20 free throws.

Elliot Quits Running, Snell Takes Spotlight

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Percy Cerutty, eccentric kingmaker of milers, says his boy Herb Elliott would have run Peter Snell into the ground if the two had come together next week in the British Empire Games.

"I was heartsick when Herb announced he did not plan to race again," the white goateed physical training fanatic from Melbourne said today. "I was looking forward to a great race."

Snell powerfully built New Zealander whose time of 3 minutes, 54-4 seconds last January shaved a tenth of a second off Elliott's world mile mark, is favored to win both the half mile and mile in the games, which open here today.

JOINS SENATORS — Washington Senator president Pete Quesada (left) announces the appointment of former New York Yankee outfielder George Selkirk to the position of general manager. Selkirk received a two year contract replacing Ed Doherty.

General Tabs Chief Aide

Selkirk Senators' New GM

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Selkirk, best known as the man who replaced Babe Ruth in right field for the New York Yankees, is the new general manager of the Washington Senators.

Selkirk, 54, signed a 2-year contract Wednesday. His salary wasn't announced.

Senators' President Elwood R. (Pete) Quesada announced that Joe Burke had been given a pay raise and a new job as business manager of the American League baseball team.

Burke served as assistant general manager under Ed Doherty, fired after the Senators finished last two years in a row. He had been acting general manager since Doherty's departure.

★ ★ ★

Quesada said Selkirk will be in charge of the baseball side of the operation with Burke handling business details.

★ ★ ★

Selkirk, who left a post as field coordinator with the Baltimore Orioles, scheduled a meeting Friday to prepare the Senator choices for the major league draft sessions next week.

"We should come to some agreement over the weekend as to what we need most," he said.

Selkirk played nine seasons with the Yankees and compiled a .290 major league batting average. He managed 10 years in the minor leagues and for the past half dozen years has been involved in player development for Kansas City and Baltimore.

Former Iowa QB Shines as Bombers Even Series

WINNIPEG (AP) — Former Iowa quarterback Kenny Ploen scored one fourth period touchdown and set up another Wednesday night as Winnipeg Blue Bombers whipped the Calgary Stampeders 19-11 and squared the Western Conference final series in the Canadian Football League at one game apiece.

With Calgary leading 11-7, Ploen scored the winning TD on a 5-yard run on a pass-option play. Late in the period, Ploen's passing and running moved the Bombers the length of the field, the drive capped when Leo Lewis cracked over for the clinching score.

Turkey Day in Southwest Has Strong Cotton Scent

By The Associated Press

Texas goes after its ninth undisputed Southwest Conference football championship, carrying with it a ticket to the Cotton Bowl, as it closes the season against bitter enemy Texas A&M today.

Those ancient foes, playing in a nationally televised (CBS) tilt at Austin, can make some sharp decisions — all for or against Texas.

★ ★ ★

Texas needs only a tie to win the Cotton Bowl host spot but that might mean the Longhorns would be tied for the championship by Arkansas. Then all Arkansas would have to do is beat Texas Tech at Lubbock Saturday.

But while it would give Arkansas its fourth straight conference title or tie for it, Texas still would go to the Cotton Bowl since it clipped Arkansas in regular season play.

Texas is better than a two-touchdown favorite to win and to sew up everything, including its first undefeated season in 39 years.

A Texas victory would make the rest of the conference race a lackluster affair although it still has another week to run after this.

SATURDAY GAME

Baylor and Southern Methodist clash at Dallas Saturday with nothing riding on the outcome except which team finishes sixth or seventh.

Southern Methodist, which has won only two conference games out of five but gave the best of them a mighty tussle, is a mild favorite.

★ ★ ★

Rice and Texas Christian, fighting for third place, tangle at Houston. The Owls are a touchdown choice but with a wild offensive struggle anticipated it could be a matter of the last team with the ball.

Arkansas is a three-touchdown pick over Texas Tech, which is trying for its second victory of the waning campaign. Tech is having its worst season in history—or it will be that way if Arkansas wins.

The season record for picking is 23-13-2. Here's how they look this week:

TODAY

Texas vs. Texas A&M at Austin—No hesitation here; Texas by three touchdowns.

SATURDAY

Baylor-Southern Methodist at Dallas—Others will take SMU but here's a vote for Baylor.

★ ★ ★

Rice-Texas Christian—Rice can match Texas Christian in offense and should be stronger defensively, so the choice is Rice.

★ ★ ★

Arkansas—Texas Tech at Lubbock—Oh, come now. Why make a choice in this one; it would only make Texas Tech feel worse.

Pistons' Cage Clinic at Cobo Arena Friday

Arrangements have been completed for the fifth annual Detroit Pistons basketball clinic at Cobo Arena on Friday.

An all-star panel of instructors will appear on the program which will begin at 5:00 p.m. and run for approximately two hours.

Coaches Dick McGuire and Earl Lloyd will represent the Pistons. From St. Louis Hawks, who will oppose the Pistons that evening, will come Coach Harry Gallatin and the team's two stars, Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagan.

Representatives of the basketball staffs at Michigan, Michigan State, the University of Detroit, Wayne State University and Detroit Tech also will be present along with Lofton Greene of River Rouge and Chuck Hollosy of Grosse Pointe, two of the state's leading high school mentors.

Members of all organized schoolboy teams in the state are being invited to the clinic and the game that follows.

"We invite all grade school, junior high and high school teams to attend," Piston Director of Staff Fran Smith announced.

A special team ticket plan has been arranged for the clinic. Each school will be permitted 12 free tickets. Extra tickets will be available for 75 cents each in the $3 reserved seat sections.

Coaches should make their requests immediately to the Detroit Pistons, Cobo Arena, Detroit 26, Michigan.

Table Net Teams Take a Breather

Teams in the Pontiac Table Tennis Association are taking a week's breather this week due to the holiday and hope to devise a method to stop the hot streaks of Perc Secord's Capitol Barber Shop squad and the league's four unbeaten individual performers.

The shave-and-a-haircut players have amassed an 11-game margin over their nearest competitors, Dorris Realty. Capitol has a 38-4 record.

X-Country Run by Federation

Nine universities had 5-man teams entered for the jaunt of about 6¼ miles over Ohio State University's golf course.

They included Ohio State, Ohio University, Bowling Green, Central State of Ohio, Indiana, Penn State, North Carolina, Massachusetts and Houston.

Central State, led by Hungarian refugee Les Hegedus, came in fresh from winning the NCAA Small College championship the weekend before last. Ohio University won the Central Collegiate Conference event in Chicago the same weekend.

Expecting Spartans to Be After Revenge

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Coach Pete Elliott is reminding his Illinois football squad in practices this week that Michigan State, Saturday's season-ending foe, will be seeking a strong measure of revenge in Memorial Stadium.

★ ★ ★

The Spartans, out of Big Ten title contention with two losses, have played only twice here and were defeated both times. In 1956 they were ranked the No. 1 team in the country and were upset by the Illini 20-13. In 1958, Illinois won 16-0 with another surprise that was MSU's first setback in 40 games.

But hopes of pulling another upset have been dimmed for the Illini, whose only victory in two years was 14-10 at Purdue Nov. 3. Since then they have lost to Michigan and last week were Dismantled 35-6 by Wisconsin.

Fullback Dave Pike and No. 1 pass-receiver Thurman Walker missed the Wisconsin game with injuries and also have been ruled out for Saturday along with sophomore guard Archie Sutton, a 250-pounder. Questionable is halfback Trenton Jackson, a speedster hobbled with a bad ankle.

★ ★ ★

Hopes must rest with the running of Ken Zimmerman, Mike Summers, Jim Warren and Norm Willis, and with the main threat of all, quarterback Mike Taliaferro. He is one of the team's best ball-carriers with 129 yards in 64 trips. The average gain is not high, but it combines nicely with his aerial work which has produced 74 completions in 202 attempts for 1,067 yards and 4 touchdowns. However, 17 of his passes have been intercepted.

MAY PASS

Scout Dean Stauber, who has watched the Spartans three times, including their 31-7 rout of Northwestern last week, had this to say:

"Although they are a great running team, Illinois should prepare for more passing. They used a sophomore quarterback, Rober Hailey, out of a spread against Purdue and he was a surprise starter against Northwestern. It looks as if he has won the No. 1 quarterback job. He hit on 6 out of 11 against the Wildcats.

"The Spartans are hard to pass against because they put on a hard charge with a big line and have fast defense backs. They have a defensive end, who has been listed on the second team, Dan Underwood, who is about as good a player as I've seen.

"There is about only one thing that might help us. MSU has a tendency to fumble. In eight games they've lost the ball 28 times."

Buckeye Scout Is 'Dismayed' Over Stories

Sarkkinen Feels 'M' Much Improved Team Since Early Games

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Esco Sarkkinen, Ohio State's No. 1 football spy, is having a tough time trying to convince the Columbus press corps that Michigan is a menacing foe in Saturday's season final.

★ ★ ★

Comment by the scribes has been to the effect that the Buckeyes, after Saturday's 26-7 win over Oregon's Webfoots, would find the Wolverines a soft touch in view of their 2-6 record and a flock of injuries.

A year ago Ohio was a 50-20 victor over Michigan as the Buckeyes completed an unbeaten season and then shunned a Rose Bowl bid. The writers indicated they thought this year's margin might not be that big, but that it would be a comfortable one over the long-treasured foe.

But Sarkkinen, who watched the Wolverines beat Illinois 14-10 and lose 14-28 to Iowa (the Hawkeyes beat Ohio by the same count), said:

★ ★ ★

"I am dismayed at the way you write about an undismayed opponent who is coming here with undisguised ambitions to ruin us. This game isn't settled — not by a long shot.

SETTLED DOWN

"Michigan, after a lot of early season changes, has settled down and is improving. It could be a whale of a contest."

The writers gave "Sark" credit for one thing. He didn't unveil the old, familiar observation that "you can throw away the record books — they don't mean a thing when Michigan and Ohio meet."

This time the statistics look too heavily weighted in Ohio's favor to be thrown very far. In eight games Ohio has scored 177 points to Michigan's 70, and has held the foe to 98 while Michigan has given up 186.

★ ★ ★

Ohio has outgained the Wolverines 2573 to 1,440 — including a huge 2,180 to 817 on the ground. Neither poses much of a passing threat, for the Wolverines have scored only once through the air and Ohio three times.

Puerto Rican Loop Suspends 2 Players

PUERTO RICO (AP) — Five members of the Arecibo Wolves, including pitcher John Boozer and catcher Johnny Orsino, were fined Wednesday for their actions in games in the Puerto Rican Winter Baseball League Sunday and Monday.

Boozer, property of the Philadelphia Phillies, and Orsino, reserve catcher for the San Francisco Giants, also drew suspensions. Boozer was fined $150 and suspended for a week. Orsino was fined $200 and drew a two-day suspension.

★ ★ ★

Commissioner Rafael Ydrach Yordan took the action after receiving an umpire's report that said Boozer and Orsino threw bats and batting helmets during an argument over a decision.

Carlos Bernier was fined $50 and Jedan Figueroa $25 for protesting a decision in a game Sunday against San Juan.

Cliff-Hangers Mark Kansas-Missouri Series

Close, Dramatic Contests

By The Associated Press

The decisive play in the storied Missouri-Kansas football game came in the final minute five times in the past 10 years and six points or less separated them in eight of the 10 games.

This means there may be some new heart patients in a crowd of 47,000—largest ever to see a Kansas-Missouri game—when they unwind the 71st renewal of the nation's fifth oldest football feud at Columbia Saturday.

CLIFF HANGERS

One of the eight cliff-hangers was a 13-13 tie in 1958. Missouri's 41-18 victory in 1954 and Kansas' 23-7 victory in 1960 were the only decisive victories.

The 1960 game was a scoreless tie at half time. The Tigers were rated No. 1 nationally before the game and were undefeated. Kansas won the game and the Big Eight championship, later fortified both by conference decree in the celebrated Bert Coan case.

The favorite hasn't won in the past five years. And no team has won on its home field in four years. Mizzou leads the series 32-30 with 8 ties.

Mizzou, 5-1 in the Big Eight and 7-1-1 for the year, is favored over the Jayhawkers, who stand 4-2 6-3. The Tigers could get a three-way championship tie, should Nebraska trip Oklahoma.

TIGHT GAMES

Here is the rundown on the tight ones in the past decade:

1961—Missouri 10, Kansas 7. Tigers halt KU just short of first down at Missouri 16 in last minute. Bill Tobin scores all 10 points.

1959 — Missouri 13, Kansas 9. Mizzou halfback Ron Toman stops John Hadl a yard short of touchdown with 3:54 left. Phil Snowden's safety preserves victory.

1958—Kansas 13, Missouri 13. An 80-yard pass with 30 seconds left, Larry McKown to Homer Floyd, ties it for Kansas but Dale Pidcock, Mizzou end, blocks extra point attempt, preserving tie.

1956—Missouri 15, Kansas 13. Tiger tackle Chuck Mehrer tackles Bobby Robinson of KU in end zone for winning safety with 39 seconds left.

1955 —Kansas 13, Missouri 7. Kansas scores twice on passes, stops Mizzou on 18 and 13 in last quarter for victory.

1953 — Missouri 10, Kansas 6. Only Kansas TD in last minute on pass.

★ ★ ★

1952 — Missouri 20, Kansas 19. End Jerry Bogue jarred loose from pass in end zone with 35 seconds left by Tiger halfbacks Bill Fessler and Ed Merrifield. Gil Reich then misses field goal try from 23.

Michigan Scoring Crown Eyed by Two MSU Backs

By the Associated Press

Michigan's 1962 college scoring derby will be decided Saturday at Illinois—with two players in the same backfield competing for the honor.

★ ★ ★

Capt. George Saimes and his Michigan State teammate Sherman Lewis can claim the title against the defensively weak Illini.

Saimes goes into the final game with a two-point lead on Lewis. The Spartan captain and fullback has 54 points on nine touchdowns. Lewis has 52 points on eight touchdowns and four extra points.

Actually Pontiac's Tom Nesbitt of Olivet College is tied this week with Saimes. But Nesbitt has completed his season and can only win a share of the individual title if both Saimes and Lewis fail to score.

Kalamazoo, the state's only unbeaten team, has won first place in the Michigan all-college standings for the season with an 8-0 record. Detroit, Michigan and Michigan State are the only teams with a game remaining.

Catapult and Grasshopper

Two New Weapons Use Old Principles

NEW YORK (UPI)—The principle of the catapult, the siege artillery of the Roman Empire and of the Middle Ages, is revived in one of two new weapon designs being submitted to the U. S. military authorities.

The catapult is intended to throw a 300- to 400-pound load, such as a jellied gasoline fire-bomb to attack a strong enemy position or to hurl packages of ammunition, food or other supplies or an anchor and a cable to friendly troops pinned down by enemy fire or a natural obstacle.

The other weapon, the "grasshopper," looks like a small flying saucer and would be used to catapult one or two soldiers carrying assault weapons over a low hill, a small river or a swamp or from ice floe to ice floe in Arctic warfare.

It would be capable of traveling in leaps of 150 feet or more for 150 miles or even more.

★ ★ ★

The grasshopper will take troops in a hurry many places that cannot be penetrated by ordinary vehicles and where the use of helicopters would be subjected to undue risks.

DESIGNED BOTH

The grasshopper is the more revolutionary of the new weapons, but its potential uses have not been fully explored, according to J. J. Mascuch, president of the Breeze Corporations, designer of both systems.

On the other hand, he said the broad usefulness of the small catapult, especially in terrain like Korea, Laos or Viet Nam for counter-insurgent or what military men call "low yield warfare," should be apparent to every military man.

MAKES COMPARISON

"The catapult of the Romans and the medieval armies was a huge ungainly affair of massive beams, counterweights and twisted ropes that had to be dragged by huge gangs of men," he explained.

"The 'breeze long range stores delivery device,' as the catapult is technically labeled, is a neat precision machine that weighs less than 1,000 pounds and folds up into a small trailer rather like the 'haul-it-yourself' trailer you rent from a neighborhood gas station."

Yet this tiny catapult will throw a 350-pound object 450 feet forward or up and over a hill almost 250 feet high.

This great power is obtained from a modified 37-millimeter explosive cartridge. Instead of driving a projectile from a cannon barrel, the explosive drives a piston mechanism.

★ ★ ★

The piston actuates an ingeniously designed system of strong levers and springs that hurls the load just as the ancient catapult did but with a range and accuracy the medieval engineers didn't dream of.

★ ★ ★

Mascuch is a veteran inventor of military devices. He developed the first radio shielding for aircraft and the first body armor for military aviators.

Breeze makes many military and aerial devices, including the rescue hoists and winches used to retrieve our astronauts from the sea after their successful flights in orbit.

State to Rank 7th in U.S. for Highway Use Income

LANSING (UPI) — Michigan is expected to rank seventh nationally in highway user tax revenues during 1962, the State Highway Department says.

★ ★ ★

Michigan will acquire more than $153 million this year from state motor fuel taxes, another $68.5 million from license plate sales.

Sentence Murderer to 12 to 20 Years

MUSKEGON (UPI)—Philip C. Snuffer, 22, who pleaded guilty of second degree murder in the death of a 15-year-old girl friend, was sentenced yesterday to 12 to 20 years in Southern Michigan Prison.

Circuit Court Judge Henry L. Beers said he would recommend to authorities that Snuffer be aided in seeking higher education while in prison, Snuffer had indicated such a desire earlier.

The respondent pleaded guilty in the Sept. 4 death of Judy Kay Malotke. He brought her body to the Muskegon County Jail and told officers he strangled the girl in an argument.

Ex-Israeli Envoy to U. N. to Be Honored in Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Abba Eban, former Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, will be honored at a banquet here next Monday.

★ ★ ★

Eban, currently minister of education and culture, headed his country's U.N. delegation for 11 years. The dinner will highlight the 1962 Israel Bond campaign.

Start Campaign Against False Toy Advertising

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission has launched a "vigorous campaign to combat misleading toy advertisements."

The commission said its advertising reviewers were ordered to intensify their monitoring efforts and "report suspicious representations immediately to staff attorneys."

The Jacoby Transfer can be used handily in slam bidding after an opening no-trump. One method is to transfer and continue with a bid of six or seven. Another is to follow with a Blackwood four no-trump. In the JTB if responder transfers any later four no-trump is Blackwood — not a strong no-trump raise.

JACOBY

Thus, North's bidding by responder started proceedings two diamonds. South bids two hearts as requested. North might jump to six hearts, but he checks for aces first. There is a chance that South holds only one ace.

After South shows two aces, North goes to six hearts and there is no trouble making the contract.

East takes his ace of clubs and returns a spade. South rises with the ace, draws trumps, discards a spade on the king of clubs and spreads his hand.

South would also make six no-trump, but if North plays the hand in hearts he will go down if a spade is opened.

Of course, South could also make six no-trump, but such a bid would be a real gamble on North's part. It would be easy to set up a lot of South hands that would produce the slam in hearts, but would not make one in no-trump.

A—Bid five no-trump. If partner shows two kings you will bid seven no-trump. If he shows no kings you will settle for six hearts.

Underneath, We're All Adventurers

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The newspaper ad offered a whale safari to Alaska for the man who wanted to "be the only Dallasite to have a whale head mounted (lengthwise) in his den."

* * *

It was a gag by David Wade, travel agency executive, but Wade said yesterday public reaction was serious.

The tour was to be arranged by "enthusiastic academic Eskimos" and the cost was to be $32 to Misery, Alaska, "location 40 degrees below zero, Alaska."

Travel would be by air icicle, dog sled and heated canoes.

* * *

Wade recently advertised a "Cuban fortnight" trip featuring a tour of missile bases. He says he got more than 200 inquiries.

"What we're really trying to do is to see just how people read the newspapers and how they react, and we're certainly finding out," he said.

English Serves Variety of Uses

Over 300 Million in World Speak It

WASHINGTON — When Greek tourists, Russian sailors, and German businessmen haggle with the merchants of Yokohama, the transactions probably are in English.

No other language has served a greater variety of needs, or comes closer to the mythical goal of a world tongue, the National Geographic Society says.

As the speech of civil aviation, it has reached the far corners of the earth. Half the world's newspapers and scientific journals are published in English.

The adaptable language has even touched the Stone-Age innocents of New Guinea. A tribesman sampling the amenities of civilization instructs a barber to "cut 'im grass belong head belong me."

300 MILLION SPEAKERS

Some 300 million people speak English, making it second only to Chinese. Hindustani comes next; yet India, its homeland, retains English as an official language.

The international appeal of English lies in its flexibility. While precise enough to be a tool of science, it possesses the delicate shades of meaning required for literary purposes.

Foreign speakers appreciate the abundance of short, punchy words.

English has been aptly symbolized by an oak tree. The trunk and bare branches represent the native language forms —direct, simple, forceful. Words adopted from other tongues lend graceful, ornamental foliage to the speech.

Today, the English vocabulary has grown to more than a million words, of which 75 per cent are derived from foreign sources.

In turn, few foreign languages have failed to draw on the colorful linguistic reservoir that is English. Probably the most widely used and widely understood word on earth is English's amiable "Okay."

Class of '02 Recalls Red Schoolhouse

LIMA, Ohio (AP)—Helping welfare recipients get off relief is the aim of a series of "family living" classes being offered here.

Instruction is given in budgets, menus, family recreation, health and managing children. Graduates will receive certificates of achievement.

"The purpose of the classes is to help people in deprived areas find ways to increase their abilities and to better conditions under which they live," explains Cleo Vaughn, special welfare project case worker.

The search was scheduled to start at dawn for the 49-year-old actor, reported overdue last night in heavy fog.

LIVES ON — The Sliverton, America's last narrow-gauge passenger train, travels along roadbed blasted out of solid rock 500 feet above the Animas River in southwestern Colorado.

Narrow Gauge Railroad Saved From Extinction

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — America's last narrow-gauge passenger train, the Silverton, is safe from a journey to oblivion.

Instead of being consigned to the rusty scrap heap, The Silverton is on the threshold of a new era.

The Helen Thatcher White Foundation, organized to preserve Colorado's historic assets, has purchased the railroad from the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad for $250,000.

The 45-mile long railroad snakes its way through precipitous canyon walls between Durango and Silverton, two mining towns in Southwestern Colorado.

* * *

Built in 1882, the little train once was the principal means of transporting precious ores mined in the remote mountains.

For the past few decades it has operated solely as a tourist attraction, but total revenues have been insufficient and the operation has been unprofitable.

Amid rumors the Rio Grande was going to abandon the line, William M. White, a Pueblo, Colo., banker and industrialist, announced his plan to save the railroad.

* * *

He is president of the non-profit Helen Thatcher White Foundation, named for his wife.

White said he plans to make the narrow gauge a showpiece to stimulate tourist travel to southwestern Colorado.

The area includes some of the most spectacular mountain scenery in America, the Great American Sand Dunes, Mesa Verde National Park and the Four Corners — where Colorado, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico touch each other.

Rolling stock included in the purchase is a steam locomotive, built in 1923, a baggage car, a baggage-buffet car, seven coaches, three maintenance cars, two box care, four flat cars, two coal cars, three track motor cars and two track push cars.

* * *

The narrow gauge track, built in 1881, is only three feet wide but was a practical economical solution to railroad construction in the mountains in those days.

Three Burglaries Committed; One in Baptist Church

A burglar broke into the Liberty Baptist Church at 250 Fisher St. and stole a cash box containing $30, it was reported to Pontiac police yesterday.

The burglary was one of three reported to police. It was not determined how entry to the church was gained. The theft was discovered by Rev. Samuel Edwards.

* * *

A radio, a check protector and a check book were taken in the two other break-ins reported.

The radio, valued at about $30, was taken from Acme Auto Parts, 986 Oakland Ave. The burglar broke in through an overhead garage door.

Kaiser Coal Co., 702 S. Paddock St., lost the check protector and checkbook to a burglar who ransacked the firm's offices after removing a window from the south side of the building.

Former Holland Queen Reported in Ill Health

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Former Queen Wilhelmina, who reigned over Holland for 50 years. was reported by an official court spokesman today to be sick, suffering from the "ills of extreme old age."

The spokesman said the condition of the 82-year-old onetime monarch "is giving cause for concern, but no unexpected developments are feared by her doctors."

Up Poultry Prices?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Housewives soon may have to pay more for broiling chickens and eggs as poultry farmers cut back on production in a move to lift depressed prices. Growers have reduced purchases of chicks for broilers by 3 per cent from last year and chicks for eggs by 7 per cent.

NEWEST CANDIDATE for doll stardom is this minature Cleopatra who will bow on the Christmas scene this season. See is garbed in an ankle length iridescent, Nile green sheath, topped with a metallic gold cape. Her sandals are gold, too, and her hairdo is elegantly teased into the bouffant style of ancient Egypt. Cleopatra, as a final touch of historic realism, carries an asp on her arm. Her glittering beauty should appeal to all little girls.

Gooney Birds Cover Midway

WASHINGTON —The modern mariner on Midway has thousands of albatrosses around his neck.

* * *

The so-called gooney birds seem to share the United States Navy's conviction that the tiny isle in the mid-Pacific is an ideal spot to rest after an oversea flight. Birds and airmen have long engaged in simultaneous landings and takeoffs with feasome possibilities.

Midway, a vital naval air station despite its 1.9-square-mile size, is the home of some 280,000 albatrosses. They comprise about 35 per cent of the world's population of the Laysan species and about 16 per cent of the black-footed species, the National Geographic Society says.

The large, heavy-bodied birds lay their eggs in sand alongside runways and rise in clouds as if to welcome homecoming planes. They endanger propelelrs, radomes and tails of the craft.

Crash landings have occurred, but no lives have been lost thanks to good flying and good luck.

For almost a decade, the Navy has waged a colorful and frustrating battle to dislodge the enemy. The weapons have varied, but the results have been uniformly discouraging.

* * *

For enlisted men on lonely Midway, the odd antics of goonies are about the only live entertainment available. Even the Navy admits that despite the nuisance, goonies are a real factor in maintaining morale there.

Aussie Kids Play Toady to University

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — The giant cane toad (Bufo Marinus), a native of Central and South America, is bringing pocket money to the children living near the sugar canefields of Queensland.

* * *

The toads were imported to control the gray-back beetle on the canefields. They did a good job, and multiplied in thousands.

Today they are sought by Australian universities for medical and other research work.

* * *

The other day a call came from the University of Perth to the town of Ingham for 1,400 live toads, each seven inches long.

Within a few hours the local kids had delivered the toads to a collection center and received 3 pence (3 cents) for each toad.

Scotland Yard Digs, Maps Cover-Up Job

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard is being partly dismantled. But don't worry. The 75 tons of Dartmoor granite being removed will be put back.

It's all part of a program of building an underground (subway) station in the area.

Each stone is carefully marked before being moved.

* * *

It is intended that when completed Scotland Yard will look exactly as it has done since constructed more than 50 years ago.

The work is expected to last about a year.

Man Safely Piles Up One Plane Each Week

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Edward Allen crashes one plane a week here right on schedule and walks away from every crackup without a scratch.

Allen is a products tester and one of his jobs is to deliberately crash one ready-to-fly model airplane each week to make sure the little planes will withstand the roughest treatment from kids.

Farms Are Disappearing; Farmers' Daughters, Too

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — At this time of year—"around the holidays"—the farm always seems so attractive to those of us who don't live on farms . . . and we just love to sit in a big city penthouse or in a plush night club and tell how we adore the old homestead.

WILSON

"I'd just love to live on the farm again," we're likely to say as we sip champagne and tug our French cuffs neatly into place.

Well, we're not going to have to prove that statement, evidently, because it appears that the farm is disappearing.

"What!" you say. "No more farms—no more farmers' daughters, no more traveling salesmen! Nobody saying 'You can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy.'"

★ ★ ★

A father trying to tell his young son of his glorious days on the farm will be startled to hear his son say: "What's a farm, Daddy?" He'll say it's a place out in the country.

"What's 'country,' Daddy" will come next.

★ ★ ★

That's the danger—we're going to lose the locale for the stories of life on the farm. Shouldn't all us ex-farm boys form a society to preserve the farm?

We could explain how desperately we miss it, slopping the pigs, milking the cows, all that. A little lie like that never hurt anybody.

Listen, I loved the farm . . . the green apples that gave us the bellyache, the big feasts they served the threshing rings, the cider-makings and butcherings, the frosty fall mornings, the dishpans heaping full of popcorn.

★ ★ ★

And anyway, I think the best part of the farm was the farmers' daughters.

And now all the farmers' daughters have fled to New York or Los Angeles to try to get a job doing TV commercials and the farm probably isn't as exciting as it was once.

I want to make it clear that despite all this I would buy a farm if I could get the location I want.

I go along with Damon Runyon who said years ago that he would love to live on a farm, and all parties owning farms at 42nd St. and Broadway, New York City, please write to him immediately with complete description of their farmland there.

I would need about 80 acres, please.

★ ★ ★

WISH I'D SAID THAT: At 20 the average man thinks he can stick to his ideals: at 40 he just hopes he can stick to his budget.

There's a super-secret project at Capt Canaveral, reports Bob Orben. It's a screwdriver with a handle 5,000 miles long—for fixing missiles with second stages that don't work. . . . That's earl, brother.

Aussies Welcome Philip

PERTH, Western Australia (AP)—A crowd of about 3,000 gave Prince Philip a restrained welcome yesterday at Perth Airport. It was his first visit to West Australia since 1954. Suntanned, the prince smiled and acknowledged cheers from the crowd.

Nicky Bird Gabs Himself Back Home

CADILLAC (AP)—Nicky was back at his Cadillac motel home yesterday, talking enough to please his family but unable to squeal on the birdnapers who caused him to vanish for a week.

★ ★ ★

A myna bird valued at $500 because of his glib tongue, Nicky was imported recently from Hawaii by motel owners Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Vincent. He was stolen last week by two unknown deer hunters.

Nicky was passed along for $25 to two Detroit men.

The Detroiters took their prize with them to a restaurant in their home town where they were celebrating the lucky purchase.

In the same restaurant was Bruce Withers of Detroit, a close friend of the Vincent couple. He overhead Nicky gab and recognized the voice.

★ ★ ★

Withers identified himself and offered to pay $25 for Nicky's return to his owners. By telephone call, Withers notified Vincent that Nicky was safe and the original owners motored to Detroit to reclaim him.

Air Force 'Mace' Missile Blows Up Before Firing

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—An Air Force tactical missile, the Mace, blew up yesterday during a training exercise at this space center. No one was hurt.

The Air Force gave no reason for the mishap which occurred while the slender, winged Mace was being prepared for firing.

Yule Budget Bursts

Most families spend more than they intend to on presents each Christmas. One-third of the families actually budget their holiday expenditures but 33 per cent of them exceed this budget.

Better Hide That Bill

Thirteen per cent of the country's husbands are living on dangerous ground. They paid more for a business gift than they did for their wife's Christmas present.
