HABIT PAYS OFF — Queenie, a pup owned by J. N. Black, of Fargo, N. D., likes to scurry around town and bring home bits of paper. This week the bit of paper she chased was in a higher bracket... she padded in carrying this $5 bill in her mouth. "I'd like to have a whole kennel of dogs like her" says Black.

Child Killed, 20 Injured

Fireworks Factory Explodes

Early Morning Blast Levels Area

TWO BUILDINGS RAZED — Two fireworks storage buildings occupied the space shown above, covered with smoking debris, in Portland, Ore. The buildings blew up at 1:45 a.m. today, for reasons not immediately determined. Houses and stores in the area suffered heavy damage from the blast.

Blast Wrecks Many Homes in Portland Area

Loud Roar Awakens
Most of Oregon City
in Early Hours

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A fireworks plant exploded with the fury of a bomb on the outskirts of Portland early today. One child was killed, at least 20 persons were injured, and a score of homes were wrecked by the blast.

The charred body of a child, first believed to be a girl, was found in the wreckage of the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Howe. The Howes, who lived directly behind the big storage plant, were hospitalized for treatment of cuts and burns. A minister at the hospital said they had been asking about a missing child.

Of those hospitalized, eight — including the Howes — were held for treatment. The others were given first aid and released.

The Signal Fireworks storage plant — two buildings 100 feet long — blew up with a thunderous roar that awakened most of the city at 1:45 a.m.

The explosion smashed doors and windows of a nearby motel and lifted off part of the roof. Debris from the wreckage of the plant and houses covered the streets around them.

The heaviest damage was confined to a two-block area around the plant, but smashed windows were reported 30 blocks away.

Elderly residents of a nursing home a block away were removed temporarily from the building. Some were in a state of shock.

Fire Marshal Dale Gilman said there was no way of knowing immediately what caused the explosion. Howard Grohs, Portland, owner of the plant, could not be reached immediately.

More Rain Predicted After Sunny Respite

Pontiac area residents can expect even more rain tonight. The U.S. Weather Bureau predicts evening thundershowers, partly cloudy and cooler with a low near 60 degrees.

Sunday and Sunday evening will be partly cloudy and cooler. The high Sunday will be near 77 and the low near 60.

The outlook for Monday is partly cloudy and cool.

Small-craft warnings have been issued on Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair.

The lowest recorded temperature in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. was 66. The reading at 2 p.m. was 88.

Federal Employees Advised to Return 'Gifts' to Goldfine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two House investigators said today White House and congressional employees should return any gifts from Bernard Goldfine which the Boston textile tycoon wrote off as business expenses on his income tax forms.

"Goldfine's motive is quite clear — he's trying to buy influence," Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo.) charged. Moulder is a member of the influence-investigation subcommittee probing Goldfine's relationship with presidential assistant Sherman Adams.

Goldfine testified on Thursday that his income tax returns listed Christmas checks to 43 employees at the White House and Capitol Hill as business expenses, the same treatment accorded various favors to Adams.

Moulder called upon Adams to return at once the expensive Oriental rug which Goldfine testified he loaned the White House aide.

"It's about time the rug goes back," Moulder said. Goldfine had acknowledged he deducted the cost of the rug as a business expense.

Goldfine set off a political bombshell Thursday by stating he sent the Christmas gifts to the White House and Capitol Hill employees. Some received checks of up to $150 and many were on the Christmas list for seven years, the subcommittee said. One of Adams' secretaries was on the list.

Subcommittee members John E. Moss (D-Calif.) and John B. Bennett (R-Mich.) said they want fuller explanations of what Goldfine had in mind.

Moss said public officials should ship Goldfine gifts right back to the sender if they were listed as deductible items.

Leaving Washington for a weekend in Boston, Goldfine told newsmen yesterday he expected to go on playing Santa Claus to "poor" federal workers. He said he was not a bit sorry for what he's given so far.

The subcommittee wants to find out if Goldfine's presents to Adams, including $2,000 worth of hotel bills and a costly vicuna coat, resulted in favored treatment from federal agencies.

Goldfine, for his part, expressed nothing but good will toward the subcommittee he has accused of attacking him for political reasons.

"I think very well of the committee," he said before flying to Boston yesterday. "I'm looking forward to my return very much."

Goldfine may be headed for tax troubles in his own state.

Columbia Broadcasting Sys.

tem reporter Ellis Mott said yesterday in a radio-TV broadcast that he had learned that Goldfine had failed to file state income tax returns for 1954 and 1957.

Mott added that the textile tycoon had been granted an extension of the deadline for completing his 1957 return "presumably until July 15."

He also said in his broadcast that the Strathmore Woolen Co. of Boston, of which Goldfine is a principal officer, had not filed a certificate of condition as required by law for the years 1950, 1953, 1955, and 1956.

Says Owner Responsible

Insurance Firm Charges Fraud in Caribou Fire

The Finnish Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Calumet, has implicated the owner of the Caribou Inn in Clarkston in the fire that damaged the building four months ago.

The company charges the owner, Ernest Felice, "intentionally set" the fire or "caused or procured" it to be set.

The company also charges Felice with overestimating the amount of damage, claiming he is "guilty of fraud and false swearing" in this respect.

The charges are contained in the insurance company's answer to Felice's suit demanding that Finnish Mutual and two other firms pay him insurance for the blaze.

Felice claims the damage amounted to $37,000, but Finnish Mutual claimed this figure was "greatly more than the true cash value" of the loss and damage.

The company listed one other reason why it should not pay off a $14,000 policy it issued on the building in Dec., 1956 and a $2,000 policy on the contents.

It maintained the building had not been occupied for at least two months before the March 4 fire and therefore it is not liable because of a 60-day occupancy clause in its policy.

State police have called the fire arson, but no criminal charges against anyone have been drawn up in the case.

Finnish Mutual also filed notice that it wants a jury trial if the suit goes to court. The two other insurance firms have not yet filed answers to the suit.

The Inn and its grounds were condemned by a Circuit Court jury last month for a village parking lot, but Felice has served notice he will move for a new trial Monday. The motion is scheduled to be before Circuit Judge George B. Hartwick.

Death Is Taking No Holiday, Toll Zooms Upward

Heavy Traffic Claiming
Many; Safety Council
Appalled by Record

Holiday traffic deaths zoomed upward along the nation's highways today.

The National Safety Council, fearing a toll of record proportions, issued a fresh appeal to drivers to slam on the brakes during the remainder of the three-day Independence Day observance.

The NSC has forecast a record high of 410 deaths during the 78-hour period. But, as the half-way mark approached, the weekend toll was running far ahead of estimates.

The mounting toll also was leading similar tabulations for the three-day Memorial Day holiday period.

"Unless there is a definite improvement on traffic safety, the nation is headed for a new three-day July 4th weekend record," said Ned H. Dearborn, NSC president.

"We are appealing again to the nation's drivers to slam on the brakes."

Earlier, apparently distressed by the record clip, Dearborn called the toll "an alarming figure."

The previous three-day weekend toll for a July Fourth observance was 407 deaths in 1955. A four-day holiday period claimed a record 491 in 1950.

With a forecast of hot and muggy weather, State Police expected record crowds to jam into lakes and parks. The peak accident period is expected Sunday night when motorists head for home.

Last year 20 persons were killed over the Fourth of July weekend in Michigan. In a comparable three-day non-holiday weekend last month, the state counted 21 accidental deaths including 8 in traffic and 11 drownings.

Pontiacs 1st, 2nd, in Pike's Peak Climb

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Nick Sanford, of Cascade, Colo., driving a Pontiac, won the stock car class in the annual Independence Day race to Pike's Peak.

His time for the 13½ mile climb was 15 minutes 49.7 seconds. The race was up the 14,000 foot mountain.

Bob Kert, Dayton, Ohio, also driving a Pontiac, was second, while Dale Reick, of Colorado Springs, in a Chevrolet, was third.

May Parley With Castro Today for Release of 45

HAVANA (UPI) — U.S. Consul Park Wollam was expected to return today to the mountain hideout of rebel leader Raul Castro in another effort to free 45 Americans and Canadians kidnaped last week.

It was Wollam who flew into rebel territory by helicopter last week and won the freedom of four Americans and one Canadian.

Naval Base imposed a tight black-out on kidnap negotiations but the Navy relaxed the rule sufficiently to say Wollam would return to the rebels in "the very near future."

It was understood he was leaving today.

Wollam flew to Havana yesterday for talks with Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith and returned to Guantanamo Bay last night. He refused to talk with newsmen on his return and embassy sources said the State Department had ordered the secrecy rule.

"Things are cooking but the lid is still on," the American source said. This was taken to mean that negotiations with the rebels continued and that none of the prisoners actually had started walking back to freedom as expected earlier.

County Has No Deaths Thus Far; Heavier Travel Expected

Cloudy skies and scattered showers have kept traffic flow below expectations on county highways during the first half of the three-day Independence Day weekend, area law enforcement authorities reported today.

State Police and Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies reported no major traffic tie-ups since noon Thursday.

Trooper Lyle Tucker, at the Pontiac Post, said today that "even the parks and recreation areas have been relatively uncrowded."

"Traffic has been moving steadily and no bumper-to-bumper conditions have been reported," he added.

Although there have been several injury accidents reported, none have been serious and there have been no traffic fatalities recorded since Thursday.

State Police at the Redford Post said traffic began picking up considerably this morning on U. S. 16 and will continue to get heavier if the weather remains sunny today.

Authorities expect the homeward rush to create the weekend's heaviest traffic tomorrow afternoon and night. They urge vacationers to leave early for home and avoid rushing.

Scour Pacific for Survivors

Three Airmen Rescued,
Recover One Body, Five
Men Still Missing

HONOLULU (UPI) — Planes and ships scoured a patch of Pacific Ocean 600 miles southwest of here today for the plane mates of three Air Force men who were plucked from the water yesterday after their C124 went down.

The three rescued survivors said at least one other man was alive in the water after the crash. They said they heard his cries and saw a light flashing in the distance. But they never made contact with whoever it was.

The rescued airmen said two others got out of the plane alive but died in the water before the rescue.

Besides the three survivors, one body was recovered and five men were missing.

"It doesn't look too good for the others now," an officer said when they were not located among the floating debris where the three survivors were found.

The three crewmen pulled out of the water by a helicopter from the carrier USS Boxer were being treated for shock and minor injuries in the flat-top's sick bay.

The Navy's amphibious squadron seven, including the transports Cavalier and Cavallero and cargo ships Mathews and Merrick, was diverted to the search.

The destroyers Ingersoll, Sprouton and Ammen, and the Coast Guard cutter Winniebag were also in the area.

Numerous Air Force and Coast Guard planes from Hawaii and Johnston Island criss-crossed the water along with the Boxer's helicopters and planes. The weather was good.

MSUO Announces Center for Continuing Education

The establishment of the Michigan State University Continuing Education Center at Michigan State University Oakland was announced today by D. B. Varner, Michigan State University Vice President for Off-Campus Education, and H. R. Neville, Director of the Continuing Education Service.

At the same time, Varner announced the awarding of a contract to Frank Rewold and Son from Rochester for modifying one of the farm buildings on the Meadow Brook Estate to serve as a Continuing Education Center classroom.

Modifications will also be made in the seven-room frame home on the southeast corner of this estate at the intersection of Adams road and Butler road. This former residence will serve as headquarters for the Continuing Education program and will be ready for occupancy by August 1 this year.

The program will be headed by Lowell Eklund, formerly of Pontiac, who has accepted the post of coordinator.

"Surveys taken in the Oakland-Macomb area revealed a surprising interest on the part of adults for greater opportunities to continue their education," said Nevill.

"This center will seek to fill the great backlog of demands for post-high school education programs in the area, offering graduate courses for teachers and school administrators, and providing both credit and non-credit courses for engineers, businessmen, and others."

"Informal courses for men and women interested in improving their understanding of the community in which they live and the world of which they are a part — including extension offerings in the humanities — will also be made available," Nevill added.

Michigan State University has other Continuing Education offices at Saginaw for the tri-county area; Benton Harbor for southwestern Michigan; Grand Rapids for western Michigan; Traverse City for northwestern Michigan; and at Marquette for the Upper Peninsula.

Find Tot's Body Floating in Lake

Son of Detroit Family
First Holiday Drowning
Victim in County

Michael Parrino, 2 years old, of Detroit, drowned this morning in Commerce Lake.

His body was found floating in shallow water by a sister along the south shore of the lake at about 9:30 a.m.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Parrino, of 5556 Chististancy Rd., Detroit, was one of five children. He was the first drowning victim in the county this holiday period.

The family was swimming near their cottage at 2840 Woodbury St., Oakley Park, when the tot was discovered. Attempts by sheriff's deputy Robert W. LaLonde and members of the Commerce Township Fire Department to revive the boy failed.

He was dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital at 10:20 a.m. Death was officially listed as due to drowning by Deputy Coroner Dr. H. L. Riggs, although marks on the boy's head indicated he may have fallen into the water and struck his head on some object.

Rain Didn't Keep Them All Home

BUT THERE WAS PLENTY OF ROOM — Parks and beaches in the area attracted many groups for Friday's holiday, but the frequent rains discouraged others, and the usual capacity crowds did not materialize. Above scene, typical of many around the county, was taken at the Pontiac Recreation Area, on the north side of Pontiac Lake.

Rebels in Tripoli Hit for 3rd Day

United Arab Republic Officials Expelled by Lebanese Government

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Government batteries bombarded rebel positions in the port city of Tripoli for the third straight day today in an effort to flush out Syrians the army said were hiding in No Man's Land.

In Beirut, the government—angered by United Nations reports denying "massive" Syrian infiltration—retaliated by expelling seven United Arab Republic embassy officials and employees.

The Tripoli fighting was concentrated again in the No Man's Land separating the rebel-held old parts of the city and the government-held new city. Bombings in between were being reduced to rubble by the tank and mortar fire.

United Press International correspondent Robert Egby, who has watched the fighting from the Hotel Hakim headquarters of the U.N. observer teams, quoted rebel leader Rashid Karami as describing the barrage as "the worst since the war started."

Egby himself narrowly escaped injury when a stray bullet whizzed into his hotel room and embedded itself into a wall.

Tries to Sail Wood Raft to Hawaii

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Devere Baker is a hard man to discourage.

After 12 years and three failures he leaves again today for Hawaii on a drifting wooden raft, the Lehi IV.

"I'm trying something different this time," the 42-year-old former shipyard owner said yesterday. "The Lehi will be towed 150 miles offshore to the Humboldt Current that oceanographers know will take us straight to Honolulu."

That has been his trouble on the three previous attempts, he said. "We never got into that current." He planned to leave about noon today.

Why is he making the trip? To help prove his theory that early inhabitants of this hemisphere drifted on other currents across the Pacific from Asia.

The Hawaiian voyage will be only a shakedown cruise for the big expedition: To drift from the Persian Gulf across the Indian and Pacific oceans to Central America — showing that people from the Middle East could have settled Central America.

Baker's other raft efforts were flops. Lehi I is still drifting. It was last reported 400 miles off Tahiti. Lehi II drifted to Mexico and Lehi III never really got started.

He sold his shipyard 12 years ago to finance his ocean trips and to prove his theory.

Canadians Have 3.8 More Babies Than Americans

OTTAWA, Ont. (AP) — The four-child family is becoming common in Canada. This is in contrast with the 1930s when a two-child family was the vogue.

Latest available figures show Canada has 28.7 births every year for every 1,000 of population against 24.9 in the United States.

Really large families are on the wane, but the middle-size family is taking up the slack.

Canada's edge over the United States comes partly because Canadian women continue to bear children into mature years.

In 1954, there were 232.4 births in the United States for every 1,000 married women aged 20-24, and 114.7 in the 30-34 age group.

The comparable figures for Canada in 1955 were 222 among women aged 20-24, slightly lower than the American figure, but 158.2 among the 30-34 group.

Youths Arrested Near Accident

Narrowly Miss Deputy, Charged With Having Beer in Auto

Three area youths were arrested by Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies on charges of possession of beer last night as their auto barely missed striking a deputy at the scene of an injury accident, the department reported today.

The youths were identified as William T. Cochran, 19, of 325 E. Shadbolt St., Lake Orion; Donald H. Sweeney, 17, of 569 Valencia St.; and Ralph W. Chittick, 18, of 3301 Baldwin Rd., Orion Township.

Deputy James W. Stites was directing traffic around the overturned car of a Detroit man, Michael E. Tasker, 80, of 2405 E. Nichols Rd., on Orion road, a mile east of Adams road, in Oakland Township.

As he flagged down westbound cars with his flashlight, he said a car driven by Cochran bore down on him not heeding his signal.

"At the last moment I jumped to the road shoulder," Stites said. The car swerved to the shoulder and when it came to a stop I had one hand on the hood."

The accident victims, Tasker and his brother, Stanley, 55, were treated for injuries at Pontiac General Hospital and released.

Repaving Will Close Elizabeth Lake Road

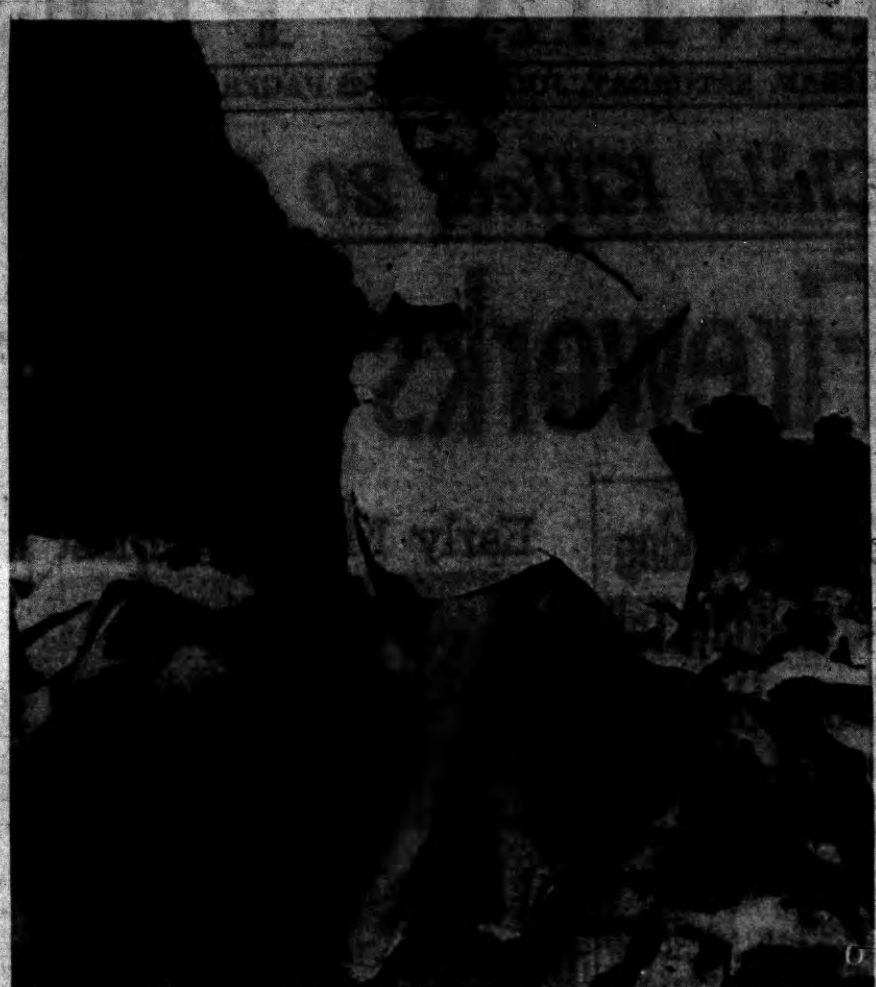

Beginning at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday, Elizabeth Lake road will be closed to traffic for at least five days for repaving.

Traffic Engineer Theodore M. Vanderstempel said that motorists should use W. Huron street as a detour.

Affected will be that portion of Elizabeth Lake from Telegraph road to Johnson street, Vanderstempel said.

The $40,000 repaving job is to be undertaken by the A & A Asphalt Paving Co., of Birmingham as part of the city's 1958 improvement program.

Vanderstempel believed the job would be completed Saturday.

No Longer Facing Electric Chair

Confession Frees Father of 7

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP) — For the first time in nearly two years the shadow of the electric chair no longer darkens the life of a slim, mild-mannered South Carolina house painter and father of seven children.

James Fulton Foster, 40, of Greer, S.C., is still in jail at Jefferson, but now he can count the days until his release.

Authorities say it will be perhaps 10 days before legal technicalities are cleared up.

The door to freedom was opened for him yesterday when Charles Paul (Rocky) Rothschild, a 33-year-old former Cairo, Ill., patrolman, confessed killing a Jefferson merchant.

Foster twice was sentenced to die in the electric chair for that crime — in September, 1956, and again this June. Both times appeals delayed his execution.

Rothschild signed a 2,500-word statement at Columbia, S.C., where he is serving a 5-year burglary conspiracy sentence. In the statement he detailed how he planned the robbery that resulted in the slaying of 66-year-old Charles Drake in June 1956.

The former patrolman said Foster's death sentence "has been constantly on my mind and conscience."

"What Foster means to me can be stated from the following Bible verse: St. Matthew, 5:10, 'Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: For their's is the kingdom of Heaven.'"

"Foster has definitely been persecuted," he continued. "May God return him to his wife and family and may he live a long and happy life."

Rothschild named A. D. Allen, a used car dealer at Winder, Ga., as the finger man in the case. Allen now is in Federal Prison at Atlanta in the first year of a 5-year liquor case sentence.

Alfred Quillian, solicitor general (prosecutor) of the Piedmont Judicial Circuit, said he would seek indictments against Rothschild and Allen at the August term of the county grand jury.

Foster appeared dazed when brought into a news conference at which Rothschild's confession was announced.

Drug Salesman Poisons Four

Executive Then Takes Hypodermic Injection; Police Find Note

GLEN RIDGE, N. J. (AP) — A drug salesman, perhaps brooding over his mother's death, poisoned her and the three members of his immediate family yesterday. Then he killed himself with a hypodermic injection.

Authorities said Thomas MacDowell, a drug company sales executive, apparently had let his Brazilian-born wife in on plans to wipe out his loved ones.

She, their two young sons, MacDowell and his mother were found dead in their modest home in this wealthy, suburban community. All but MacDowell were dressed in night clothes and were lying on beds.

"I am sorry for what I'm doing," said a note from MacDowell found on a living room desk.

"I love my wife and children dearly but I think in the long run they'll be better off."

A note, asked God's forgiveness. But police would not say whether it gave any motive for the killings.

MacDowell was discharged by the Royal Air Force for mental instability said today he signed his name and address to a letter saying a U. S. pilot would drop an A-bomb near England.

But the photostatic copy which the Soviet embassy released two days after receiving the letter was signed only "W."

British newspapers suggested the Russians had pulled a political trick in publicizing the letter while knowing it to be a hoax in order to serve their propaganda campaigns.

In reporting it, Soviet officials said it was "probably a hoax" but didn't mention knowing the writer's name and address.

A small-town British reporter tracked down the letter writer yesterday. He was William Stanley Whales, 34, of Ipswich, who hasn't been near a warplane for almost a year.

When police questioned Whales today, he denied any political motive but said he only wanted to attract attention to his grievances against the British government.

Police let him go home without bringing any charges against him.

Whales told newsmen he wrote Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik three letters. One was the threat to drop an A-bomb, another protested his failure to get a gratuity after the RAF discharged him and the third complained that the government had requisitioned his father's farm, Whales said.

Hoover Recalls
Job in Belgium

Returns to the Room
Where He Ran Food
Relief Program

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Herbert Hoover returned today to the room where he administered food relief for a starving Belgium during World War I and praised the relief operation as a pioneer in saving off great famines.

Hoover recalled the "devotion and courage" of his 60,000 fellow relief workers in Belgium and France.

They later directed relief for Europe and took their methods into worldwide relief organizations, including the present U. N. group for helping children, Hoover said.

Visiting here as President Eisenhower's personal representative at the Brussels World Fair, Hoover read a message from the President paying tribute to Belgium as a bastion of free men. The former president added that an unparalleled affection and understanding exist between the United States and Belgium.

At the fair auditorium yesterday, Hoover said Americans died in three wars to help other countries fight aggression and willingly paid "back-breaking taxes" to help protect freedom.

Yet, vicious propaganda and false legends about the United States have in the past forced America into isolationism, he said. "I have little fear of such retreat today. But the danger signal is up."

Misrepresentations are inciting physical attacks on Americans, Hoover said, discouraging those at home and increasing opposition to foreign cooperation in defense and relief.

Hoover said propaganda that the United States is controlled by wicked exploiters is not borne out by such things as anti-trust laws, wide distribution of the stock ownership in large corporations, heavy taxes on large incomes and heavy inheritance taxes under which large fortunes "tend to fade away."

Sale of Desert Mile Means Fortune for Tribe

Real Estate Gold Beckoning to Indians

It's not unusual for an Indian tribe to own a square mile of desert land. But when that mile happens to lie in the heart of a booming resort and is worth up to $2,500 a foot, it means big wampum for an impoverished tribe.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The American Indians have learned a lot about real estate since they sold Manhattan Island for $24 worth of costume jewelry.

One of the biggest real estate deals cooking in the country is a multimillion dollar transaction involving a square mile of desert land owned by the Agua Caliente Indians, an amazing tribe with a lady chief.

MAY MAKE FORTUNES

If the deal goes through, every member of the tribe—and there are only 92 (of which 60 are children)—stands to make a fortune.

"Right now, we're just dirt rich," admits Mrs. Vyola Olinger, who serves as chairman of the all-woman Tribal Council of five. The dirt on which the Agua Calientes hope to reap a blanketful of wampum lies in the heart of this booming desert resort, just a block from the main street where property runs as high as $2,500 a foot.

Actually the tribe owns 31,000 acres of desert and mountain land, 6,616 inside city limits. But the reservation is laid out in a checkerboard pattern of alternating one-mile squares, and it is on the intervening privately owned squares that the town's development has taken place.

RESORT SQUEEZED IN

Squeezed in between a 10,000-foot mountain and the surrounding Indian lands, Palm Springs has no place to grow except onto the tribe's holdings. The most prized Indian parcel is Section 14, a square-mile collection of Negro and Mexican shacks that separates Palm Springs' downtown section from its administrative section and lies between its main resort hotels and the airport.

The Indians might have sold long ago but they have never been able to find their way out of a jungle of red tape thrown up by the government.

The most serious obstacle to development of their lands has been a five-year limit on leases. But now, thanks to vigorous campaigning by Mrs. Olinger, Congress has lengthened the lease term to 25 years with an option for another 25. The tribe now seeks 99-year leases to make financing easier.

Mrs. Olinger, who has a comfortable home with swimming pool in a Los Angeles suburb, has been ruling the Tribal Council since 1956. The tribe did away with the title of chief in the early 1930s when the reigning chief died and his son declined on the grounds that the job wasn't what it used to be.

He may have had a point, now that the squaws have taken over. The absence of men on the council doesn't mean that the Agua Calientes are a matriarchy. It was democracy that got the big bonnet for the girls. Of the 32 adults in the tribe, only nine are men.

The Agua Calientes are a loosely knit tribe that over the years have adapted themselves to the specialized society of a winter playground for movie stars and in the process have lost most of their identity as Indians. Most marry non-Indians.

If the over-all plans for Section 14 ever materialize, the Agua Calientes should have the most modern reservation this side of the happy hunting ground.

A master plan prepared by architect Victor Gruen calls for a shopping center, convention hall, luxury hotels and apartments, golf course and other recreational features.

Ownership of the section is divided up among individual Indians, but the tribe can strike a better bargain if members stick together and lease through an integrated plan. This Mrs. Olinger has persuaded them to do.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs reports that most live on an income of less than $1,000 a year and some have no income at all. The highest had an income of $11,000 a year.

But at last, things are looking up. A 1956 appraisal of their property fixed their average per capita assets at $339,577, or $764,049 per family.

There's real estate gold in that thar' desert.

Lebanon Expels
7 From U. A. R.

CAIRO (AP) — A United Arab Republic spokesman was quoted today as saying there will be no retaliation for Lebanon's expulsion of six U. A. R. diplomats and an Egyptian teacher.

The pro-Western Lebanese government yesterday ordered the seven out of the country within 48 hours on charges of inciting the Lebanese to revolt and paying money to foment revolution.

It was the first such action against U. A. R. diplomats, although Lebanon has been accusing President Nasser of inciting, arming and partially manning the eight-week-old rebellion.

Presidential Affairs Minister Aly Sabry was quoted in the newspaper Al Shaab as calling the action provocation by Lebanon to "increase tension in order to be able to press the West for foreign interference."

And what does he attribute his long life to?

"Plenty of good food and lots of tequila," he said in Spanish with a chuckle.

When asked what food he likes best, he replied with another laugh: "Tequila."

Mata said he was born in the Mexican state of Guanajuato and came to Texas in 1909. He said he once had papers that would prove he was 116 but lost them.

He said he worked as a "canal rider"—riding along canals to inspect them—for 41 years before retiring a few years ago.

A spokesman for the Hidalgo County Water and Improvement District said the present water association took over from Louisiana-Rio Grande Canal Co. in the early 1920s and Mata came along with the equipment.

"I have had a wonderful, happy life and have never been in trouble," Mata told a newsmen through an interpreter.

He has five dogs and a horse which he uses to help round up the cattle. Five of the cows belong to him and the others belong to neighbors in the area.

Flood Menaces
Town in Iowa

Recover Bodies of All but One of 19 Persons
Who Perished Earlier

HAMBURG, Iowa (AP) — The levees of the Nishnabotna River at Hamburg in the extreme southwest corner of Iowa were piled high with sandbags today to hold back the flood crest that wrought havoc in the upper reaches of the watershed.

Sheriff Al Christopher and the crews under him were confident the 27-foot wall of water rising nine feet above flood stage would be mastered and the town would be protected.

About 100 miles north in Audubon County rescue workers had recovered the bodies of all but one of the 19 persons who perished earlier in the week when cloudbursts sent branches of the Nishnabotna on a rampage.

In that county search continued for the body of Miss Lenora Parsons who was swept to death last Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Parsons, of Exira.

Mrs. Parsons had been taken from the river earlier and the receding water gave up the body of the father yesterday. Then later in the day two more bodies were recovered.

They were those of Mrs. Mads Marcussen and Mrs. Charles Wilkins, of Exira, whose husbands also perished.

Rolling down the Nishnabotna also was a second crest created by heavy rainfall which followed in the wake of downpours that measured up to 12.35 inches last Tuesday night and early Wednesday. However, rain had practically ceased over the state and no danger was expected from the second rise.

There are one-third more married women from 15 to 44 years in the U. S. today than there were in 1933.

The POWER of FAITH by Howard Brodie

ST. MATTHEW: When Christ said, "come, follow Me," Matthew, the tax collector, "rose and followed Him." With this tremendous affirmation of faith, Matthew became one of the 12 apostles and the author of the first gospel. He was present on the Mount of Beatitudes when Christ preached the Sermon on the Mount.

His account of it is considered one of the most magnificent passages in the New Testament. Matthew died a martyr to his fate in far off Parthia, where he had gone to preach Christ's message.

Some Will Honor Isaiah as Saint

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

In some parts of the Christian Church the Old Testament prophet Isaiah is considered a saint and is honored Sunday. It is, of course, completely impossible to say why July 6 should have been selected as his day.

Isaiah was the greatest of the prophets, at least from the point of view of Christians. His writings are full of predictions about the Messiah (Christ) to come, and of insights that were important in preparing the ancient world for the coming of Jesus.

Tradition says he was martyred — sawn in two by order of the King of Judea and buried under an oak tree. This was in the seventh century B.C., and the supposed location of his grave was still venerated as a holy place as late as the fifth century A.D.

Scholars say Isaiah wrote only chapters 40 to 66 of the book that bears his name.

MORAVIANS' FOUNDER

Also Sunday is the anniversary of the burning, in 1415, of John Huss, or Hus, a Czech who was one of the most famous and effective forerunners of the Protestant Reformation.

The present Moravian church can be traced back directly to him. The details of Huss's conflicts with the theology and government of the Church in his time would be hard to understand and pretty uninteresting now, but the Moravians have made and are still making a great contribution to the quality of Christian life and thought, and this contribution stands as a monument to the troublesome Czech who just couldn't accept things as they were.

Huss as a college boy in Prague became attracted to and finally steeped in Wycliffe's philosophical and theological writings, and as soon as he could he set out to do something about putting them into practice.

He founded an organization which he called The Unity of Brethren. Actually it amounted to a new church, for its principles were such that no one could hold them and still stay in the church as it was. The Unity of Brethren held four main tenets:

1) The Bible is the only authentic source of Christian doctrine. This was a denial of the church's power to add to original doctrine.

2) Public worship should be as it was in the times of The Apostles. This was a protest against the elaborate ceremonial developed by the church.

3) The Lord's Supper is received in faith. This meant that it is the faith of the receiver, rather than the action of the priest, that makes the bread and wine the body and blood of Christ.

Dr. William Brady's Mailbag

Learns to Wiggle Ears Doing Facial Exercises

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

"It is perhaps too early to report progress in the grimace exercises for deafness and head noises but I am encouraged for I find I can wiggle my ears." (K.R.S.)

Answer — Any one who has a reasonable ambidexterity should be able to wiggle his ears and his scalp.

"I maintain angioneurotic edema is due to lack of some essential constituent of the body. My friend maintains it is an allergic condition." (J.B.)

Answer — Otherwise known as giant hives, it is probably allergic, though this is only my opinion. For pamphlet on hives and angioneurotic edema send stamped envelope bearing your address. If you want also the pamphlet on allergy enclose 25 cents for both.

"Eleven-year-old son has but one testicle. Is this accountable for abnormal tendencies when manhood develops? (B.M.W.)

Answer — No. A few injections of gonadotropic hormone may bring the undescended testicle down into scrotum. At least you should have your physician examine the boy to determine where the undescended testicle is and whether surgery can correct the delayed development.

"How to cure ingrown nail? I think I got it from wearing boots made in England — they make 'em flat on top, so there isn't enough room for the toes." (G.M.)

Answer — Go barefoot, or cut out the toe of shoe or boot, or wear only sandals. Beware of tight stockings, particularly stretch socks. If you sleep on your back, use crossed half-hoops to keep weight of bed covers off your toes. If the groove is granulated ("proud flesh") keep it covered or filled constantly with powdered alum. Scrape upper surface of nail with lavastone or pumice, almost to the quick. Then hook a string of silver or aluminum bent on the flat, under front and edge of nail and keep it

4) Christian living is evidence that a man has a saving faith. All this means is that "by their fruits ye shall know them."

The Brethren went through two centuries of cruel persecution, but they weathered it and within three centuries they were off the defensive and engaged in missionary projects of their own.

Huss himself was burned for heresy.

Sins of Omission Wreck Marriage

A wife's sins of omission may be just as much a cause of her divorce as her husband's unfaithfulness. So get wise to the facts of life, as explained below. And send for the "Sex Differences" booklet which will clear up many misunderstandings between husband and wife. It is really easier to stay happily married than to feud and obtain a divorce!

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE Y-354: Lena J., aged 29, is the fuming wife mentioned yesterday who insisted on a divorce because of incompatibility and mental cruelty.

Millions of happy wives put up with occasional affronts to their pride that are just as serious as any divorce charges of "mental cruelty."

Yet these wives shrug off such episodes, knowing that when husband is under great pressure, he may explode on anybody around him.

But he happy wives also realize that their mates will soon get over their ire and act like civilized men again.

Besides, the successful couples have learned to love and argue and still remain in love.

Part of marital love is distinctly a spiritual matter, transcending time and undimmed by the ravages of advancing years.

But part of marital love is physical and often the least understood aspect of human relations.

America Means Different Things to Two Readers

It is likely that only a handful of people know Alaska wasn't purchased from Russia for $7.2 million. Human creatures have accepted this statement like sheep from childhood days and it's not the only thing they accept like sheep from their own nationals who will betray them at the drop of a hat.

Americans are far from being the most wise, intelligent and honest people on this sphere. Soft living has, however, made them willing to accept things though they growl and resent their self-inflicted torture.

The thing called legality has made our government what it is today — hypocritical, false, double talking and caused its nationals to be filled with fear at something they contribute toward and uphold because they lack the courage to investigate.

Reprisal and threats also go on in this nation the same as other nations that we regard as veritable devils. This is of no interest to you, but being the old type American, not the later breed, I still like facts and a little truth now and then instead of constant hypocrisy.

Offers Suggestion on Pigeon Problem

The Courthouse is truly a beautiful building, and now it's being cleaned, more people are aware of it. Controlling pigeons is a problem, and perhaps this is a solution.

A national magazine said pigeons were selling the war memorial in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and department of public works employees whittled out three green painted wooden snakes and placed them atop the monument. Now pigeons perch in the trees.

This suggestion might merit a letter to Saratoga Springs to see how successful the plan was and whether they found a better solution. Let's try to keep our Courthouse beautiful.

Says Faith a Help for All Problems

I graduated recently and found it means a lot to me and other girls like me. I thought I was alone, but you know that someone is with me. That made me feel better because I know someone cares for me. And I'm trusting in the Lord that he will be with me always.

Some people have to learn to help themselves, but if you have faith you'll come out on top. I've learned I must have an education. This is the key to my life. We must have faith and determination and a forward push. I pray I may ever be true to do my humble best. If we expect to get ahead, we must learn not always to look for someone to carry us along. We must try until we succeed and try again.

We citizens must have pride and determination and work together. We have a wonderful country under God. Let's stand true and not listen to those soap box speakers on our corners. Let's be real Americans, work together for a real education and under God defend our children. Let's be Americans.

Foreign Vessels to Have Advantage on Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Maritime Administration said a new study indicates foreign flag ships will have a decided advantage over U.S. flag operators when the St. Lawrence Seaway opens up to ocean-going vessels.

An engineering study made for the agency by H. C. Downer & Associates, Inc., Cleveland, also forecast competitive difficulties for many of the types of ships now plying the Great Lakes.

The study predicted that lower operating costs of Canadian and other foreign flag vessels would give them an edge in trade generated by the seaway which will link the Lakes with the Atlantic.

Downer & Associates said dry bulk cargo vessels, principally grain and ore carriers, now operating on the Lakes will be subjected to stiff competition from larger capacity ships.

The firm said the present bulk carriers may eventually be limited to taking on loads from larger vessels which might want to lighten their cargoes so they could navigate the seaway channels.

Freighters carrying packaged cargoes will be less affected by the seaway because competition for them is expected to develop more slowly, the study said. It added that such specialized vessels as crane ships and auto carriers will be least affected.

Downer said any vessel designed specifically for service on both the Lakes and the Atlantic would be at best a compromise. It emphasized restrictions on dimensions because of the size of the proposed seaway locks.

The Maritime Administration said annual seaway traffic averaging 50 million tons has been predicted by 1970. The report indicated there will be a big increase in imports of iron ore from Labrador and other Canadian sources which will have a major impact on present Great Lakes traffic.

It Seems to Me....

Perimeter Road No. 1 Project in Planning Pontiac's Future

Downtown Pontiac is on the move.

Merchants here recognize that all over the United States today cities are working out new programs that meet modern conditions and modern demands. We don't propose to sit idly by and die on the vine. The retail and civic race will go to the swift and the strong.

It always has.
"The devil takes the hinder-most."

More than half a hundred local business men, City Commissioners and various planning groups attended a meeting Wednesday evening at which the possibilities were outlined by experts who have studied the problems.

Today, no plan is worth the paper it is written on, unless it looks far into the future and anticipates the conditions that will prevail later.

The proposed Perimeter Road is the basis of the current plan. It circles Pontiac and handles all manner of traffic to the best advantage of the entire city. It favors no area. It will be a big, broad, one-way highway.

Downtown Pontiac could undergo a modest face lifting, but by the time this was completed, the nation would have swept on ahead and again we'd be outdistanced.

Local citizens placed the planning in the hands of tried and trusted experts who devote their lives to this business. They have studied the city in detail, looked into the future and then forecast the problems that will arise and offered solutions.

One of the things I liked most about Wednesday's meeting was the fact the entire group seemed tremendously enthused over the prospects. Everyone expressed a determination to "get going" at once.

There are still preliminaries that must be followed. The City Planning Commission must review the suggestions and the City Commission must take official action. Also, the City Commission wants assurance that the plans meet with the approval of the businessmen whose places will be directly affected.

This is a very old city. The Press is in its 117th year. Pontiac has followed a leisurely evolution with a bad traffic situation as a by-product. We followed the original paths of the first settlers who moved in with the Indians and as a result there is no plan of traffic flow.

That means a major operation. It requires a far seeing program.

State and Federal aid will be forthcoming as the plan is already tailored to fit Michigan and Federal requirements for financial aid. Other cities are doing this and unless we dig in and get our share, we will find ourselves helping pay for modernization of towns from coast to coast without reaping any of the benefit. We send millions in tax dollars to Lansing and Washington. Here's a chance to get some back.

There are no secrets about the plans and reports, and they will be publicized as rapidly as possible so that everyone can "know what's cooking." We need support from all sides.

This is the most heartening step forward that Pontiac has taken in many, many years. Orchard Lake and Auburn would be connected by a gradual curve instead of two narrow right angles. Huron would be made modern and east of Saginaw might sweep gradually north on a broad basis. Both of these require the elimination of many buildings which is a part of all successful municipal improvements today. New York City has swept away block after block after block of sub-standard structures and replaced them with modern buildings and broad boulevards. The Government assists liberally eliminating sub-standard stuff as a part of its own program to rebuild America.

Widespread enthusiasm greeted the proposals Wednesday evening. The greatest anxiety centered in the delays that might ensue. Everyone wanted action to start immediately. A. C. GIBARD started the move and he has an army behind him now.

This Perimeter Road is Project Number One in Pontiac's future. That's for sure.

And in Conclusion
Jottings from the well thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

June administered a stiff jolt to Michigan's tourist trade, our second biggest industry. Kago-hara, Japan, took pride in signs reading, "Yanks, Go Home" and "Leave Japan to The Japanese" etc. Well, U.S. troops moved out three months ago and Kago-hara is flat broke and becoming a ghost town. Now the Japs are waiting to their ancient and honorable ancestors. Other U.S. bases are following suit and hostility to the U.S. has abated all over Japan. Nips, you overplayed your silly hands.

Van Patrick goofed the other day when he said, "A foul landed in the box used by Mr. L. C. Goad of GM. Fortunately, he isn't here. There's something he couldn't handle. Ha, ha, ha." Well, ha, ha yourself, Van Patrick. Cliff still ranks as an all-time University of Illinois infielder where he showed major league promise. And furthermore, my real good friend, a straight "E" to you for pronouncing Ty Cobb, "the greatest Tiger of them all." Patrick, Patrick, Patrick! He's the greatest BALL PLAYER OF THEM ALL, irrespective of teams. I suppose you'd label Caruso "the greatest tenor that lived in New York." And finally, Van, quit calling every pitch "over the corner." The plate has a middle and despite pitcher's best efforts, pitch after pitch sails right across the center. As the boss boy (H. H.) used to say, "right down Woodward Avenue." P.S. Van, I think you're a swell announcer.

Some of the people can't see Zsa Zsa GABOR very well on TV. They can't get her 21 inch mouth on a 17 inch screen. A granddaughter of the BILL Yaw's was picking strawberries for dinner with the gardener. "Look," said he, "you're just picking little ones." The youngster flashed him a winning smile and shook a glorious head of hair. "I eat the big ones."

Rock 'n' Roll Going

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rock 'n' roll dancing is on its way out, says Arthur Bergh, president of the National Assn. of Dance and Affiliated Artists.

Youth, Bergh said, is turning to "modified swing" involving some rock 'n' roll steps but eliminating the rollers' ritualized body movements.

New Czar of Musicians

Plays Diplomatic Fiddle

PORTLAND, Ore. (NEA) — It will have to be admitted that the violin gives forth a little softer music than the cornet or trumpet. This perhaps best illustrates the difference between Herman D. Kenin, new president of the American Federation of Musicians, and James Caesar Petrillo, the musicians' overlord for 18 years.

Herman Kenin is a violinist. Petrillo made music with a horn.

Here in Portland, Kenin's home town, they are pretty sure that in the future you won't be hearing a public service music program on the radio as "courtesy of Kenin." Such was not the case with hard-fisted Petrillo.

The new 56-year-old president of the 264,000-member union also is a practicing attorney. He is known as being "diplomatic with not an enemy in the world." Mrs. John C. Watkins who "sided up" with the Kenins when they were married here is a Kenin booster.

"Herman's always been the same," she praises. "He's always taken time out to discuss things day or night. He's a real family man."

KNOWN AS DIPLOMAT

It perhaps was Kenin's reputation as a diplomat that gained him early favors with the undiplomatic Petrillo. Anyway, he was Petrillo's choice as a successor. For many years, Kenin was a member of the union's five-man executive board, first appointed to fill a vacancy in 1943.

In 1956, the Kenins moved to Los Angeles to head up a new West Coast office, to serve 100 Western local musicians' unions. One of the chief jobs was to smooth out relations with the large Los Angeles local which had threatened to bolt the international.

In leaving Portland, Kenin was forced to resign as president of Portland Local No. 99, a job he had held for 22 years.

Prior to that he had held several important national and international honors. In 1947, Petrillo appointed him to head a union public relations department, and in 1949 President Truman named him to be a U. S. delegate to the International Labor Organization in Geneva. In 1954 Petrillo sent him to Europe to confer with European musicians' unions.

After high school and several years at Reed College here, Herman and brothers, Harry and Frank, operated dance bands.

Then Herman and the well-known George Olson, also a Portlander, had a hand in a hotel. Later Herman Kenin's own orchestra played for some years at Portland's Multnomah Hotel, until he left for Pittsburgh to play with the Ben Bernie band.

After that, he returned to Portland in 1931 to study law at the Northwest School of Law and play in a theater orchestra. He completed his course and was admitted to the Oregon Bar and to practice before the U. S. Supreme Court. It was while practicing law that he became Northwest representative for ASCAP, American Association of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Kenin's wife, Maxine, a former Radio City Rockette, also is a Portlander. They have two sons, David, 16, and Jimmy, 14. The Kenins also have a lot of musical-minded brothers and sisters in Portland, as well as Kenin's mother, Anna.

Seaway Locks Inaugurated in New York State

MASSENA, N. Y. (AP) — A Canadian cargo ship and an American canoe moved through Seel and Eisenhower locks into "no-name lake" yesterday to formally inaugurate the United States seaway ship channel here.

Opening of the 900-foot long locks near this northern New York State city means that three of the St. Lawrence Seaway's seven locks are operating now.

The other four — St. Lambert, Cote St. Catherine, and two structures at Deschambault, Que., are to open next April, creating a deep ocean route from the Atlantic to the lakehead, a 2,000 mile channel.

The 2,357-ton Hamberdoc, a Fort William, Ont., ship carrying Canadian newsprint from Port Alfred, Que., to Chicago and Milwaukee, entered the U. S. locks and the Wiley-Dondore canal to go into seaway records as the first commercial ship in the American section of the 135-mile seaway channel.

Find Minister Hanged in Tower of Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — A minister who feared a second nervous breakdown was found hanged yesterday in the tower of his downtown church.

The body of Dr. Carl Neath Kapf, 56, was suspended from a 50-foot length of clothes line. A wrapper torn from the rope bore the words "God forgive me." The district coroner, after an examination, issued a certificate of suicide.

Hard to Make a Buck

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A fully-clothed man wearing a life preserver came swimming out of the sea here, waded ashore under the round eyes of sunbathers, took off the preserver and his socks. He explained he had been working on a shrimp trawler out beyond the horizon. "The sun was hot and I wasn't making enough money," he said. "So I just decided to take off."

Reflections

4th of JULY

It's early in the morning July 4th, 1776. Though exhausted, physically and mentally, Patriots are eager to sign the document laying on the table before them. It is titled Declaration of Independence. That document was the first tiny cry of a baby Nation, to be.

That tiny infant has grown to be the richest Nation in all history, given you and me a freedom the envy of half the peoples on earth. If these patriots could have read a Jules Vern Fiction Story of what that infant would become they would have fallen far short of reality. You and I have inherited all the wonders of that birth: we own a land-mass far greater than their most ardent imagination could conceive, wealth in excess of their most fantastic conception, commodities that even now stagger our own mental image of luxury—churches, schools, clubs, organizations, planes, trains, automobiles—you name it, we have it.

Your flag is a visual symbol of your pride in our United States. Display it, proudly.

P.S. One of our freedoms is the right of choice, we will try to merit it. VOORHEES-SIPLE FUNERAL HOME

A Summer Treat For Pontiac Press Readers

2-Minute Mystery

by Donald J. Sobol

STARTS MONDAY JULY 7th In The PONTIAC PRESS

A daily two-minute mystery based on the cases in Maledjian's career will appear in this newspaper beginning July 7. Watch for it. Whodunit fans have a summer treat in store for them.

Maledjian is no parlor detective. You'll ride up a mountain with him in the case of "The Bushwhacker" and learn what happened to Ringo Charlie. You'll walk with Maledjian through a tropical garden "When Death Blows In" on the skirts of Hurricane Liza.

Maybe Maledjian will trip you on the case of "The Suicide Note." You'll go backstage on Broadway to gather the clues on this one.

And, there's the reluctant sheriff who didn't want to "bust in and accuse an old friend of selling stolen automobiles."

There's a change of pace, a change of scene, a change that will perk you up.

The two-minute mystery is written by Donald J. Sobol who has been writing whodunits for a decade. His stories have appeared in national magazines and he is well known for mystery novels like "The Double Quest" and "The Lost Dispatch." His TWO-MINUTE MYSTERY series are in the best tradition for whodunit fans.

European Trips, Visits Spark Social News

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Yansen of Chippewa road left Pontiac Wednesday for Montreal, Canada, where they will sail aboard the R.M.S. Ivernia for Europe.

Their tour of the continent will take them to Paris and the Riviera in France; Monaco; Genoa, Florence, and Venice, Italy; Lucerne, Switzerland; the Rhineland of Germany; Amsterdam, Holland; and finally on to Brussels, Belgium and the World's Fair. They will return to Pontiac Aug. 16.

While touring abroad their daughter, Johanna Lynn, will spend her summer at Judson Collins Camp and with her grandparents, Mrs. Walter Cryer of North Baltimore, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Yansen of Maynard, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Hogue of Franklin are at their summer home at Lake Huron on Sand Point near Caseville. This weekend their guests are their son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Donald B. Hogue and their children, Mark and Carey of Holland.

Jane Schimmel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Schimmel of West Iroquois road, who is teaching in Denver, Colo., is home for the summer. Jane and Joan Mack of Galena, Ill. who also teaches in Denver, have been on a wind-jammer cruise off the coast of Maine this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Foster of Perkins street are leaving Sunday for New York City from where they will sail on the Queen Elizabeth to England.

They will visit Mr. Foster's father whom they have not seen for 38 years. They also will make trips to Paris, Rome and to the Brussels Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald I. Card of Jameson street have had as houseguests, Mrs. Card's cousin, Herman Wehmeier, Detroit Tiger pitcher, Mrs. Wehmeier, and the couple's five children. Mr. Wehmeier's mother, Mrs. Mae Wehmeier of Cincinnati and Mrs. Card's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Carter of Wyandotte also were guests.

Blanche Meidlein of Charlotte avenue has been visited by her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meidlein of Alhambra, Calif., Mrs. Henry Stortz of Clifford, and Mrs. Stortz's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Katsner of Livonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Perkins held an open house Friday for their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Perkins (former Pontiac residents) who are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary.

The affair was held at the couple's home in St. Johns. They have six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Gerald Patrick, June 23 are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Humphreys of Drayton Plains.

Grandparents are Mrs. Blanch Ople of Sylvan Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Humphreys of Whittemore street.

Announcing the birth of a daughter, Barbara Kay, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Enichen (nee Helen McDougall) of Rockford, Ill. Mrs. William McDougall of Lincolnshire road is the infant's grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hillman and sons, Robert and Richard, of San Francisco, Calif. left for their home Thursday, after spending two weeks with Jessie Brewer of Norton avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brewer of Leonard. While here Mrs. Hillman and Miss Brewer attended the wedding of Catherine Bowlby and Proctor Holbert in Detroit.

Four of the usherettes for the Water Follies to be held at Wisner Stadium Friday, Saturday and Sunday are Susie Van Tassel, Nancy Donaldson and

Miss Freeman Is Honored at Bridal Shower

Joyce Freeman, bride-elect of Jack Greer, was honored at a bridal shower given at the home of Mrs. Robert Shaver on Parkinson drive. Cohostesses for the event were Rae Marie Shaver and Ruby Lawrence.

Miss Freeman took this occasion to announce attendants for her July 19 wedding. Ruby Lawrence will be maid of honor, with Miss Shaver and Janet Deem as bridesmaids. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Freeman of Alberta street, and her fiancé's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Greer of DeSota place.

Guests at the Wednesday shower included Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Greer, Mrs. Shaver, Mrs. Charles Widner, Miss Deem, Betty Anderson, Janet Stait, Mrs. Paul Giglio, and Estelle Rognoldson.

Man, 57, Shouldn't Chase Maiden—Abby

Cross the Tracks, Boy!

DEAR ABBY: I am a widower of 57 and have no one to look after but myself. I get kind of lonesome when I come home in the evenings and pretty soon I will reach the age of retirement. All the old ladies let me know they are sweet on me but I have been thinking a lot about a certain young girl who comes in to houseclean for me. Should I show my feelings for her? She is in the neighborhood of 22.

ABBY

DEAR LONESOME: If you want "companionship" — you are looking for it in the wrong neighborhood. Get those ideas out of your head and find somebody your own vintage.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to have your opinion of the following situation. My sister is 23. She lies down on the living room couch every evening and falls asleep. Nobody else ever gets to use it. She refuses to go to her bedroom to sleep. She wakes up about ten and decides to wash her sweaters, or blouses or something else in the bathroom sink, tying up the bathroom for about an hour. She doesn't care how late she keeps us up. Mother doesn't say boo.

LAWRENCE

DEAR LAWRENCE: Your sister obviously was never taught to respect the rights of others. If this selfishness reflects in other facets of her personality your mother is going to have company in her old age.

DEAR ABBY: My brother's wife comes to our house and starts kissing our parakeet on his head. The parakeet's head gets full of lipstick and he looks ridiculous. My mother says I can't shampoo the parakeet's head because I might hurt him, but I don't want to see a red-headed parakeet. How can I get the lipstick off his head without killing the parakeet?

DIANNE (age 9)

DEAR DIANNE: No shampoo for parakeets! Better a red-headed parakeet than a dead one.

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of a problem child, only he is no "child" anymore. He is 22 and has given his girl an engagement ring. We know her parents (not well) and from what they tell us, our son has told their daughter some pretty tall tales. He told her he had $2,000 in the bank and he doesn't have a dime. He also said his car is paid for, and it isn't. He made some grand promises to this girl about a honeymoon trip and a lot of other things he can't afford. He borrowed the money for a down-payment on the ring. Should we tell the truth about these things, or do you think it would be interfering? This little girl is a darling and deserves better than him.

AN HONEST MOTHER

DEAR HONEST: A "man" who would lie to his girl about his finances is too immature for marriage. Tell him he must tell his girlfriend the whole truth immediately—or you'll do it for him.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped, envelope.

Allow Yourself Time to Think and Be Lazy

Keeping your social life on the relaxed side is an important part of having a serene and lovely look. Wrinkles and tension and often poor sleep spring from too many evening activities jammed into too few days.

When you find your calendar getting full, slow down. Take a rain check on a date or two. If you or you and your husband are seeing friends or dining out too often, cancel some of your dates.

Arrange for quiet evenings at home in which you can read and listen to music and soak in a hot bath.

Give yourself space in which to breathe, think and possibly contemplate. This is a sure way to take out the kinks and keep both physical and emotional health.

Miss Sheppard Given Showers in Area Homes

Barbara Lee Sheppard who is engaged to marry Ralph Ensworth July 12 was honored Tuesday at a miscellaneous shower at the Barrington road home of Mrs. Arthur Heinz.

Janet Jolley of Grosse Pointe was hostess at a linen shower and Virginia Townsends of Birmingham was hostess at a kitchen shower for the bride-elect.

Barbara is the daughter of Mrs. Bernice Sheppard of Birmingham and Denzil T. Sheppard of Seminole avenue. Her fiancé is the son of Mrs. Ralph Ensworth and the late Mr. Ensworth of Niagara avenue.

All set to sail Monday for Italy are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haskins and children, Nanette and Bobby of Spring road. They will visit Mrs. Haskins family in Borgo a Buggiano near Florence. She has not seen members of her family since coming here 12 years ago as a war bride.

You May Share Portions

By EMILY POST
"Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper when two people dine together in a restaurant where the portions served are very large, for only one person to order a dinner and divide it? I have a very small appetite and couldn't possibly eat a whole dinner and it would be a waste to order it and leave most of it uneaten."

Answer: You may ask your waiter to serve one portion for two. This is not an unusual request for vegetables, potatoes or salad, and in many restaurants that serve very large portions, they will serve even the entree for two.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My fiancé received an invitation to the wedding of a friend of his. Although I have never met this friend, he knows that we are engaged. However, I was not sent an invitation.

"My fiancé has suggested calling his friend and asking if he might take me to the wedding. I do not think this the proper thing to do as it puts the person asked on the spot and he cannot say other than "yes." Will you please give me your opinion as to the correctness of this?"

Answer: He may properly ask his friend if he will send you an invitation. He will then either send one to you or explain that the wedding is to be so small that he can invite no extra guests.

"Dear Mrs. Post: We are a family of four married children, sons and daughters both, and a father. We've recently lost our mother and as we received some hundred messages of sympathy as well as floral pieces, we'd like to know how to acknowledge them all so as to include everyone.

Answer: The one who is the most intimate friend of each donor should write the note of thanks. This "note" need be no more than the fewest words written on a visiting card. It is entirely proper that one of the sons or daughters write thanks for the father.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me, please, if there is any rule of etiquette against placing a slice of bread on one's plate and pouring gravy over it and eating it with knife and fork? I enjoy this very much but my wife thinks it is "perfectly awful." I can't for the life of me see what's so "awful" about it."

Answer: You may do this when you are eating alone or with your wife, but not with company, or even when your children are at the table because you would be setting a bad example for them to follow.

Never Too Late for Exercising

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
It would be ideal if women, and men, too, would begin exercise in their youth and continue it faithfully and regularly all through their lives, adapting it to the progressive ages. Actually it is never too late to begin. You can do so into middle age and later by simply playing lower sets. If you have not kept up this sport, it is not wise to begin past early youth.

If you haven't exercised in years, begin again with an easy one as pictured. She clasps the knee with the hands, then returns leg and arms to the floor.

Confident Living They Sometimes Hide Gruffly Behind Barriers

Do you want to be popular? Well here's how. Learn that there is a way to reach every person. Then deal with each one on that basis.

Sometimes people gruffly hide behind barriers, but there is a key that will open them up. But you must exercise patience and send out genuine good will toward them. Just the other day I got into a taxicab in New York City and was struck immediately by the fact that it was one of the dirtiest cabs I'd ever been in. I thought to myself that the driver might at least sweep the floor once in a while.

Then I studied the driver himself. He was an oldish man, maybe 65. He was a huge person and quite obese; the folds of his neck hung low over his dirty collar. He needed a shave and a haircut.

And, just because I could feel some criticism of the man and his cab welling up inside me, I made a forced effort to say in as pleasant and cheerful a voice as I could muster, "Good morning."

"So what?" was his spirit-chilling reply. I tried a few more conversational passes and each time was repelled by grunts and obvious lack of courtesy. I struggled against it yet my feeling of annoyance toward him increased.

I had to remind myself that I am always urging people to regard their fellow-men as children of God and to think of each other with esteem and good will. So I sat back and concentrated on this boorish and ill-mannered fellow as a child of God, too.

I tried to find something attractive, something I could respond to about him. I looked for some way to reach and communicate with him. But I just couldn't until I looked up at his name on the card.

It was a long Italian name and I tried pronouncing it to myself. It had a melodic quality. Then I asked him, "That your name up there?"

"Why do you think it's there?" he answered.

"Yes," he said still surly, "I was born in Italy, but why are you interested?"

"I've been in Italy a number of times," I told him. "I wish I could learn the language. Sometimes I think it's the most beautiful language I have heard; take the names of towns, for example, what music in their soft beauty of sound—Salerno, Sorrento, Amalfi, Padua, Capri." I rolled the vowels out as musically as I could.

He turned around and looked at me for the first time. "Yes, they are pretty names. I came from near Sorrento."

"That's one of my favorite places . . . washed by the blue Bay of Naples," I said.

"Your name," I went on, "also has the music and sunlight of Italy in it. Really it has."

That finally got him. He turned around again and gave me a smile that lighted up his big face. His personality came out and looked at me timidly, but suddenly I had the feeling that the glory of his immortal soul shone forth.

It occurred to me after leaving his cab that the attractive personality which I had encountered had been waiting for recognition as an individual, as a human being.

I often think of the significant statement of William James, the great psychologist, that, "One of the deepest drives in human nature is the desire to be appreciated." The longing for self-esteem and appreciation; for love, if you please, is the key that unlocks the human heart. If you want to be liked, simply like people.

As you talk to people or think about them, try seeing them not as problems that annoy you, but as children of God, as immortal souls full of charm and dignity. As you give them the respect and appreciation to which their true qualities entitle them, they will become finer persons than you can imagine.

Go about looking for the good in people and you will find it in abundant measure, just as you will find the bad if you view men with suspicion and hostility.

It is this art of appreciating others, this recognition of the greatness in man, that is the secret of your own true popularity. Look for lovable qualities in others, and they will surely find the same in you.

Billy Graham Praised Will Mark Seventh Parochial Year

LONDON (AP)—Four years after Evangelist Billy Graham held his crusade in Great Britain, the Most Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, offers this appraisal of the results: "A good many more church people are more alive than they were before, and that's the most permanent value."

Woman's Auxiliary President Mrs. C. E. Hoffmann is heading a hostess committee for a public reception to be held on the church lawn following the 10 a.m. service to celebrate the anniversary. Services will be at 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. with special memorial prayers at each service in honor of the Church's first sponsors.

Lutheran Church Plans Vacation Bible School
Vacation Bible School will be held at St. Stephen Lutheran Church at the VFW Hall, 4680 Walton Blvd., Drayton Plains. All boys and girls, age three to 14 are invited. The Bible school will be held Monday through Friday for two weeks beginning July 7. The daily program, to be held from 9 to 11:45 a.m., will include Bible stories, singing, games, films, and handicrafts.

He Treasures Ancient Bible

Cadillac Man Owner of Holy Bible Printed in Dutch in 1618

CADILLAC (UPI)—A 340-year-old Bible, containing the Old and New Testaments and the Apocrypha, is a prize possession of Peter Elenbaas.

Printed in Dutch, the Bible's now-yellowed pages provided comfort to Elenbaas' grandfather, a Dutch farmer who read from it in moments of peril while sailing from Amsterdam to New York in 1800.

The Bible was printed in Dordrecht, the Netherlands, in 1618 at a time when Christendom was quarreling over the Apocrypha.

The Apocrypha was included as part of the Sacred Word by Catholics and includes the Third and Fourth Books of Esdras, and the Books of Tobit, Judith, Wisdom of Solomon, Ecclesiastical and Three Books of Maccabees.

Some Protestant denominations regarded the Books of the Apocrypha as of secondary importance and included them in some Bibles as matters of interest, but lacking in canonical value.

Rare book experts said Elenbaas' Bible, if in good condition, would be worth several hundred dollars. But the eight-inch thick volume has become yellow with age and the back of the book is gone, exposing the cord, glue and stitching. Experts said the ruined cover cuts the value.

To Elenbaas, 63, the chief value of the Bible is in the history it recalls. "We can't read it," he said, "but it always will be a family possession we'll prize highly."

Jets Outroar Preachers, Church Finds New Site

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—A minister and those who use the heavens reached an agreement. The U.S. Air Force gave the Rev. Bob Jackson—under certain circumstances—the right to tell it when its planes could fly and when they couldn't.

The little, rural Community Baptist Church didn't mind at first when Dyess Air Force Base aimed its runway at the small, long-established church building. After all, propeller-driven planes don't make too much noise.

College Students Leading Worship in National Parks

NEW YORK—As vacationers Americans converge on the national parks this summer they will find awaiting their services of worship under the stars or as dawn breaks over the shores of mile-high mountain lakes. Their children will be able to attend Bible classes and vacation church school with the sky as their canopy, too.

Young college students lead these services, carrying out the unique Christian ministry in the National Parks.

As the ministry marches into its seventh year sponsored by the National Council of Churches, 125 young men and women will provide pastoral services in 24 national parks from Big Bend, Texas, to the snowy fastnesses of Mt. McKinley where caribou roam and giant glaciers move down the slopes of the Alaskan range.

Scheduled services will be held this summer in the following parks: McKinley, Alaska; Grand Canyon (North and South rims), Arizona; Death Valley, Dev's Postpile, King's Canyon, Lassen Volcanic, Sequoia and Yosemite, Calif.; Mesa Verde and Rocky Mountain, Colo.; Isle Royale, Mich.; Glacier, Mont.; Crater Lake, Mt. Hood, Oregon Caves, Ore.; Black Hills and Mt. Rushmore, S.D.; Big Bend, Texas; Bryce and Zion Canyons, Utah; Mt. Rainier and Olympic, Wash.; and Devil's Tower, Grand Teton and Yellowstone, Wyo.

Religion, Psychiatry Called Reconcilable

NEW YORK (AP) — Religion and psychiatry are "thoroughly reconcilable," says Dr. Abraham N. Franzblau, professor of pastoral psychiatry and dean of the school of education at the Hebrew Union college-Jewish institution of religion.

He told a rabbinical ordination class that although Sigmund Freud, the father of modern psychiatry, remained an atheist all his life, "Freud has much to teach us if we do not blind ourselves to his evidence or bind ourselves to his conclusions."

6,000 Baptist Youths Gather for Conference in Toronto, Canada

Ten young people from Bethany Baptist Church who attended the Fifth Baptist World Youth Conference held in Toronto will discuss some of the spiritual highlights of the meeting at the 8:45 a.m. and 11 a.m. services Sunday.

Their theme will be "Things to Remember." Those attending from Bethany Baptist along with 6,000 other young people from 60 different countries were Mary Foren, Judy Cantarella, Julia Dove, Diane Garrett, Karen and Ralph Bergemann.

Also attending were Jim Fair, Jerry Ryan, Gary Relyea and William Crawford.

The Lord's Supper will be observed at both services. Assisting the pastor at the first service as youth assistant will be Robert Joyner. Kenneth Young will sing a solo.

The youth assistant at the 11 o'clock service will be Gay Ann Cornell. Jean L. Hilton will sing "Trust Ye in the Lord," by Scott.

Sunday afternoon the Senior High BYF will continue their summer program with the first of a series of three discussions on "Baptist Beliefs" to be led by Dr. Joseph I. Chapman.

The quarterly business meeting of the church will be held this 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the church. Maynard Johnson, moderator, will preside.

Ben Wilton will give a report on the church's long term planning commission. The board of trustees will review the financial program of the church. The first draft of a proposed constitution revision will also be considered.

Dr. Chapman, recently elected to second vice president of the American Baptist Convention, will be in Philadelphia for a special meeting of the long term planning committee of Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, the institution from which he received his theological degree.

Christian Meet Nears in Tokyo

Delegates Will Gather From Many Nations for August 6 Opening

Preparations for the World Convention on Christian Education, which opens August 6 in Tokyo, are now in full swing. Dr. Nelson Chappel reported on his recent return from Japan.

A minister of the United Church of Canada, he is general secretary of the World Council of Christian Education, sponsor of the meeting which is to be held at Aoyama Gakuin University.

Fifteen hundred Japanese delegates have registered already, he reported, and 2,000 hotel rooms — most of them air-conditioned — have been reserved for overseas guests. Among them, about 700 from the United States and more than 125 from Canada have registered to date. Hundreds of others are expected from Europe, Asia and Africa.

Cooperating closely in the plans, the National Christian Council of Japan is preparing a resource book on the conference theme, "Jesus Christ, the Way, the Truth and the Life." About 80 per cent of all Christians in Japan are represented on the Council, Dr. Chappel said.

PROCESSION LEADERS — Riverside Seventh-Day Adventist Church Vacation Bible School began with a procession every morning during

Over 200 Children Attend Bible School

More than 200 children between the ages of seven and 14 attended the daily session of the Riverside Seventh-Day Adventist Church Vacation Bible School. The program ran from June 16 to June 27.

"God's Holy Book" was the theme of the morning classes directed by Mrs. Joyce A. Aldea and Don A. Hellman. More than 35 of the children's parents assisted.

Children of all denominations attended the Bible study and handicraft program.

School Approves Compromise Religious Training OK'd

OMAHA (AP) — Next fall suburban Westside High School will give another trial to a compromise religious program falling somewhere in between "released time" and no official public school recognition whatever of religion.

Under the "released time" formula, schools frequently allow students to spend one hour of school time a week studying religion at classes held by Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic organizations off the school premises.

Development of the procedure has been studied with friction in and out of courts, with opposition based on claims it encroaches on the traditional separation of church and state.

Since a Supreme Court decision in 1962 upholding it, however, the method has become increasingly popular, with an estimated 3½ million pupils taking part. Much of the program's growth has occurred in the Eastern states.

The compromise system at Westside has cleared the way for some religious training for its students and at the same time won praise for firmly maintaining separation of church and state.

It works this way: Wednesday is "church day" at Westside, a rambling school in a rapidly growing Omaha area. There are services in nearby churches before classes and Westside teachers are asked to keep Wednesday evenings free of activity. They are also asked to keep Thursdays free of tests that would require Wednesday night study.

"What we are doing is being sure that there is one day a week that students will have a chance to attend their own religious activities if they want to," Supt. C. L. Retelsdorf explains. "We are being very careful that we are not participating in what the churches do with that time."

Executive secretary Sol Littman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith feels "school authorities are to be congratulated for the scrupulousness with which they maintain separation of church and state."

Gen. Gruenther, Ike Bridge Partners

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Grandchildren, golf and bridge were the order of the day for President Eisenhower, spending the Independence Day weekend at his country home here.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross and a favorite bridge partner of the President, arrived late yesterday to be a house guest.

Eisenhower was expected to play an early round of golf with one or more of his neighbors.

Three Eisenhower grandchildren are spending the three-day holiday at the farm with him—David, 10, Barbara Anne, 9, and Susan, 6. The first lady remained in the capital.

Opera Soprano Callas Sues Paper for Libel

MILAN, Italy (UPI)—The fiery "Tigress" of Italian opera soprano Maria Meneghini Callas has filed libel charges against a Milan newspaper critic.

The newspaper's critic wrote a blistering attack on Miss Callas' recent singing in the opera "Anna Bolena" at a Scala. Miss Callas, who personally filed the libel charges in a Milan court, said that the critic's article had "hurt her reputation as an artist."

Mamie, Anthony Quit

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Mamie Van Doren and bandleader Ray Anthony are ending their three-year marriage because of conflicting careers. Miss Van Doren said she and Anthony will try to work out an amicable divorce and property settlement when she returns from making a film in Italy. They married in Toledo, Ohio, in 1955, and have a son, 2.

Earl Discovers Details of Ava's Success Story

By EARL WILSON

ROME—Ava Gardner has gone from sharecropper's daughter to millionairess.

At least that's the way her success story is described here after Ava's six years of devotion to Europe. I, for one am in favor. She gave me a big hello out at her studio and even asked me back—an invitation I accepted. She was so friendly that I asked her a very personal question.

"Oh, you're not going to bring that up again!" she was sitting in her dressing room having a gin-and-orange.

I'd asked whether she was going nude in her film, "The Naked Maja," in which Anthony Franciosa plays the Spanish painter, Goya. She made clear she wasn't.

"That's as nude as I'm going to get!" she said later when she looked at some rushes—and she was up to her neck in clothes.

Before Frank Sinatra here until 5 a.m. a few days before but there'd been no reconciliation. Frank had told a friend, "She still looks more beautiful than any of them." Somehow, though, when they get in the same room together, something explodes—usually them.

"You're leaving M.G.M. finally?" I said.

"Isn't it about time—after 17 years?" She was bouncing around the dressing room, showing us the boots she wears, the black Spanish dresses that are very hot these days.

"But you can still do an M.G.M. picture if they get a script you like?"

"That would be unusual if they did," she shrugged.

But the great M.G.M. hair stylist Sydney Guilaroff was here from Hollywood with her. And she seemed to be blending well with Tony Franciosa. "Well, now back to some huggin' and smoochin'," she said as she excused herself to do another love scene.

Ava lives in a 10-room, 5-bathroom apartment overlooking the famous "Spanish Steps." Fontana's dress house is also near. Ava's Cadillac's often out front; Walter Chiari, the young comedian who resembles Sinatra structurally, is frequently in the neighborhood, too.

"I'm going to sell my home outside Madrid," Ava volunteered.

"I've suddenly been surrounded by the American Air Force. They're right outside my window."

"The property value's increased. Oh, I'll stay in Spain, sure."

A friend told me her money has been shrewdly invested and that she's stacked as much financially as physically. She speaks good Spanish, and operates on "Madrid hours"—cocktails around 10 or 11, and dinner at midnight.

It was her enthusiasm for the country's tastes that led her into a bull-fighting experiment last October which could have cost her life when either the bull, the horse—or the ground—hit Ava.

"I burst a blood vessel here," Ava had me feel the little blood clot under the surface of the skin on her right cheek.

"It was about four days before I got to London to see the surgeon, Sir Archibald MacIntoe. He and Dr. John Converse in New York both told me not to let anybody touch it with a knife. The heat and massage treatment will have it back to normal inside of a year."

Ava bravely allowed them to shoot her right profile in this film although that's where she was hurt and was also her "chocolate" (better) side.

"It's amusing that after all your concern, you come out looking even more beautiful," Guilaroff said after seeing the first film of the new movie.

I asked Ava what her next picture would be.

"Where can we go from here?" she laughed. "We've done 'The Barefoot Contessa,' and now 'The Naked Maja.' What comes next—'The Skinless Queen'?"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Forty years ago it took only 100 horsepower to keep a plane in the air. Today it takes 250 horsepower to carry a 110-pound woman to the grocery.

That's Earl, brother. (Distributed 1958 by The Hall Syndicate, Inc.) (All Rights Reserved)

Nuclear Scientists Hold 4th Meeting

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet and Western atomic experts got together today for their fourth meeting on how to detect violations of any nuclear weapons test ban.

The secret session was the first morning meeting of the conference. Previous sessions had been held in the late afternoon.

Now that the conference has gotten past the opening preliminaries and agenda problems, the sessions are being stepped up. Yesterday's meeting, the first to cover the study of technical reports, lasted 2 1/2 hours, the longest so far.

Buys School Bus for Trip

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Peter Ziebell will move his wife, two sons and household belongings to Flint, Mich., with plenty of traveling room. Ziebell, 27, has purchased an old school bus from which he is removing most of the seats. He will receive his masters degree at University of Colorado next month, and take up a job with the University of Michigan.

Not So Tough as Dad

MANILA (AP)—Red Cross units at the Philippine Independence Day celebration helped revive a 64-year-old man who fainted in the muggy heat. The man later explained he passed out while waiting for his father, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, to walk by in the parade.

Hollywood Headlines

Dean Insists It's a Lie, Points Proudly at Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I'm not lazy. Never was. That was a misconception circulated by a certain fella."

Dean Martin was blasting another Hollywood legend. Dean is supposed to be so lazy that he makes Perry Como seem like a jackrabbit.

"Here I am, making two pictures a year, doing four or five shows for my own company on television, playing eight weeks at the Sands in Las Vegas, plus other dates, making 24 records a year and running a restaurant," said Dean. "And they call me lazy!"

Right now Dean is making his second serious film role. He plays a sympathetic drunk in "Rio Bravo."

"It's a whale of a part," he said. "I play a former sheriff, and I'm terrific on the draw. I can't hit a thing, but I'm terrific on the draw."

There are more dramas in the offing, he said.

"No musicals for me right now," Dean vowed. "But roles like this one are hard to come by. If he seems happy with his new-found career, it's understandable. The sharpies all figured that Jerry Lewis would be the one to prosper when the team broke up. They had me scared," Dean admitted. "I was all ready to get out the cards and start dealing again."

He referred to his earlier occupation as dealer in sub rosa gambling joints in the Midwest. He reported he's making five times the money he earned when he and Jerry were a team.

Among the other things Dean has to be happy about: he has been invited to return to Ohio as an honored guest at a statewide celebration. Ohion Martin made this comment:

"And the odds in Steubenville were eight to one that I'd make the electric chair!"

Celebrate Christmas

DENVER (AP)—When it was Independence Day all over the nation the Darrel Lents had a Yuletide celebration, complete with gifts and a lighted Christmas tree. The reason? The Lents' four daughters—ranging in age from 3 to 13—never have spent Christmas with their grandparents, who are visiting here now.

MAIL FOR NINE HELD GILS

BERLIN (UPI) — An American Red Cross representative yesterday handed over to an East German counterpart the first batch of letters the nine U.S. soldiers held behind the Iron Curtain have received since their Army helicopter was forced down June 1.

LAUNDRY UP — A sick person entering a mental hospital in Michigan must surrender his civil rights as if he were the worst kind of criminal.

When he is pronounced cured, he must go through the equally embarrassing procedure of a court hearing to have these rights restored. Though mental hospital authorities are in a much better position to do so, probate judges must determine whether the patient has been "restored to soundness of mind."

In other instances, the patient or a relative pays part or all the cost.

Some judges bear down and assess as much as the patient or relative can afford — sometimes even more. Others are lenient to the point of excusing all payments.

In one instance a father whose son was a patient complained he was unable to continue paying half the cost of hospital care. The judge excused him from all payments, whereupon the man left the courtroom and drove away in his new Cadillac.

In the fiscal year 1955-57, the state collected from mental patients or their families an average of $160. The cost per patient was reckoned at $2,400.

In state training homes and schools patients paid an average $55.20 toward an average yearly cost of $1,425.

It seems doubtful that patients and those legally responsible for them could pay no more than this without having to suffer undue hardship.

Michigan law requires county social welfare departments to determine whether the patient can contribute toward his care. But most such departments are understaffed and can't handle this as-

Freedom Needed

We know now that the great majority of patients are not dangerous, that proper treatment requires that they have a certain degree of freedom. We know also that many suffer further distress if they are led to believe they are dangerously unbalanced.

Any declaration concerning mental incompetency should safely be dealt with by the probate court upon petition by the patient's relatives and interested parties — with recommendation of hospital officials as a guide. Legal machinery should be geared so the court can act as a "court of protection" where the patient needs a guardian to run his affairs and manage his property.

Civil rights should be suspended only temporarily for the period of treatment and possibly only those that medical authorities believe the patient incapable of exercising.

Clearly, the revenue department could have full authority to determine the extent of payments and to collect them. Obviously this would entail enlargement of the department staff, but in view of the negligible amount the state now collects, the cost would be fully justified.

Background for LIVING

Your Neighbor's House

Ray Mattson Home Built on Hilltop

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Using a monotone color scheme throughout the house and letting the accessories provide bright color is a modern way of decorating. The Ray Mattsons have done this in their new home on Wabek road.

Built on a hilltop and surrounded by two acres of woodland, the Mattson house has a view of Island Lake and access to it via canal. Although they have neighbors, their house is so situated that the other houses are not visible from their windows.

A circle drive brings the visitor right up to the front door. At the left is an enormous carport. The exterior of the house is gray textured brick. Creosoted redwood is used on two sides of the house as well as for the carport. The roof is a butterfly type.

We mentioned the monotone color scheme. Walls throughout are either painted white or paneled in walnut. The floors are gray, black and white terrazzo.

Also, Against this neutral background, any color looks good.

A balcony extends around three sides of the house. Next to the master bedroom this becomes a sheltered little porch. There is a similar patio below this porch, accessible from the basement.

WALL OF DOORS

The wall at the left of the entry is paneled in walnut. But this "paneling" turns out to be cupboard doors and doors to the kitchen and laundry, respectively. At the right is the stairway to the lower level. Tall black poles have plants climbing up them. The entire front wall in this area is a window.

The living room has floor to ceiling windows on the lake side. This has the effect of bringing the outdoors right into the house. At one end a glass door opens onto the balcony.

Double doors at the left give access to the outdoor dining room. The rest of the wall on this side has accordion type paneling. Against this wall is an oak bookcase with drawers at the top. A gray sofa is placed so that anyone sitting on it can look out into the tree tops. Nearer the windows are two white canvas chairs with black frames. The tables are white with saw horse legs.

One end of the room contains the fireplace. Above it and extending to the front door is recessed lighting. Made of gray brick, the fireplace is framed in black and has a black slate suspended hearth.

In the family room matchstick bamboo curtains can be drawn across the windows and the sliding glass doors that open to the screened outdoor dining room. A corner desk fits neatly between doors and windows.

INSIDE CHIMNEY

At the opposite end of the room is a large closet. This serves not only as a pantry, but as housing for the hi-fi and TV sets. There are sliding shelf cupboards for place mats, silver and trays. There's a barbecue fireplace in the gray brick chimney; around the corner is the wall oven.

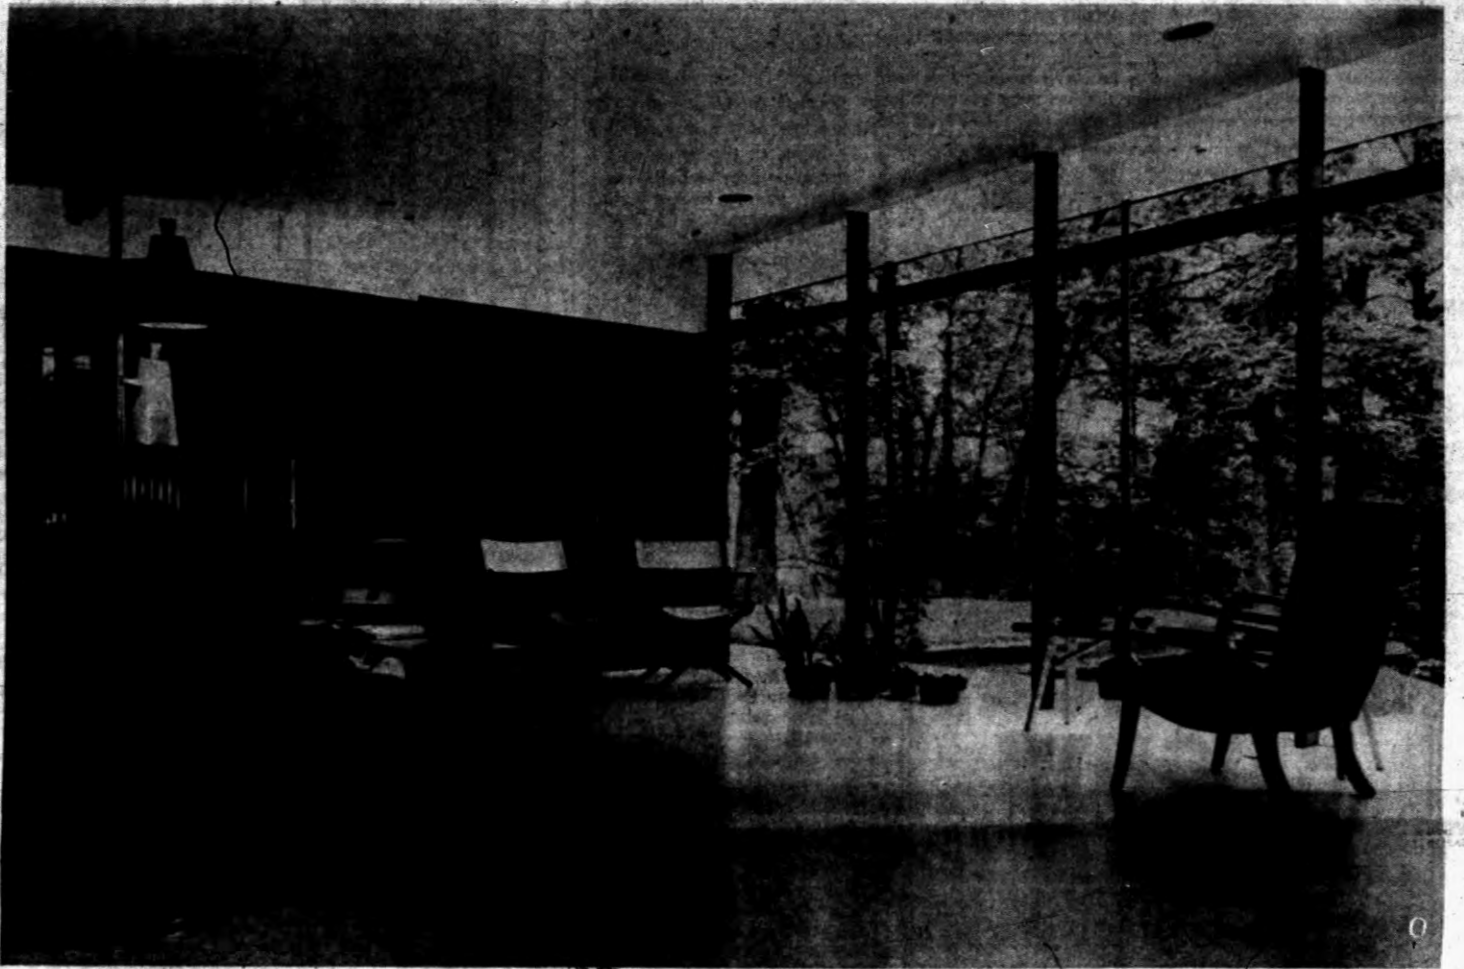

A sturdy oak table and match-

is the carport. A balcony extends all around the house. Windows at the right are in the master bedroom. Ed Johns of Detroit was the builder and James W. Conn AIA of Southfield the architect.

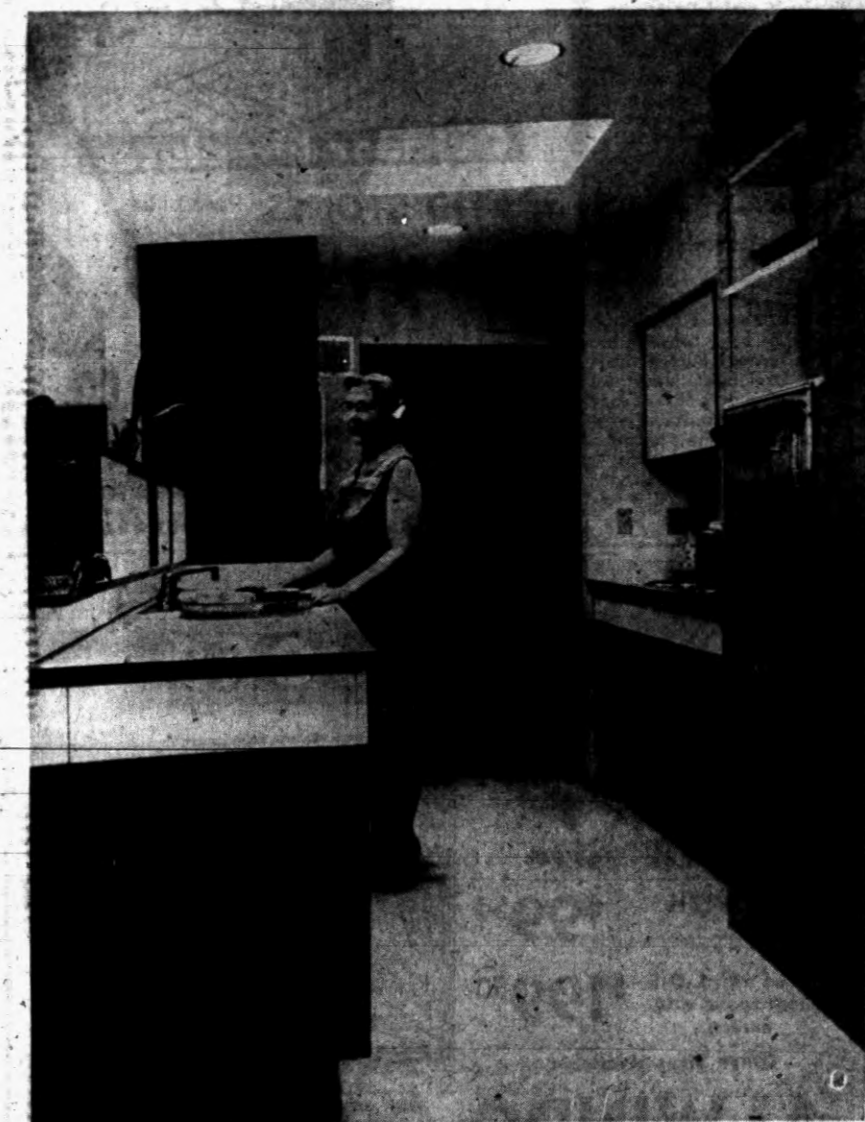

NO CURTAINS WANTED — In this glass-walled living room there is no need for curtains. The house faces Island Lake, but is situated on a hilltop with woods all around. The wall at the left is accordion paneled walnut with two large doors opening onto the outdoor eating area. Other walls and the ceiling are white. The floor is black, gray and white terrazzo. Mrs. Mattson's display of African violets is effective in front of the window wall. The sofa is gray. Magazine tables are painted white.

FAMILY ROOM — This family room is adjacent to the living room, the kitchen and the outdoor dining room. From the windows at the left there is a tree-screened view of Island Lake.

Furniture in this room is sturdy oak. Chairs are upholstered in brown. Matchstick bamboo draperies can be pulled across all glass areas.

SKYLIGHTED KITCHEN — Mrs. Mattson makes ready to serve mid-morning coffee in her brown and white kitchen. In the ceiling there are three recessed light fixtures and a skylight. The wall at the left is only a half wall so that anyone working at the sink can look out through the living room windows. Above the wall oven there are marble shelves, perfect to hold hot dishes. The range is surrounded by a cutting board. Cupboards at the left front hold sliding trays for table linen. A door at the back opens to the front entryway.

NEW DESIGN IDEA — Brick veneer and wood shingles are used as exterior materials for this house which combines the structural technique of split level planning with ranch design. The studio is over the garage.

Ranch-Split Technique
Creates Studio Level

By JOHN O.B. WALLACE

A cheerful and practical union of ranch and split level planning distinguishes design X-13 in the House of the Week series. An architect's desire to break from the traditional location of the recreation or family room in ranch house designs was responsible for its creation.

Heretofore, Architect Herman H. York says, conventional locations for a recreation room or family room in ranch homes have been either the basement or, more recently, those areas adjoining the kitchen, dining room or living room.

To lift this room from its conventional setting and place it in a position of greater utility, the architect incorporated some structural techniques of split level planning into basic ranch design.

From this combination came a studio room, located over the garage. High above the ground level,

House of the Week design X-13 has a total of 12 rooms, counting the baths, on two levels as follows: main floor — living room, dining room, kitchen-dinette, three bedrooms and two baths; attic floor — two bedrooms, bath and studio room. The overall dimensions of the house are 52 feet 4 inches by 63 feet 10 inches. A minimum plot 70 by 100 feet is recommended. The habitable area of the main level has 1,895 square feet. The studio level has 1,112 square feet.

The studio or family room has a cathedral-type window wall arrangement, a wood-burning fireplace, a built-in bar and liquor cabinet and a high cathedral ceiling.

STUDIO ON SEPARATE LEVEL By creating a higher but uniform roof line and locating the garage several rises below the main living level, the architect was able to achieve a split level structure above the garage and the main living area.

This arrangement puts the studio room on a separate level, half a story above the main living quarters. The arrangement also provides an expansion area on this level.

The architect believes his planning has resulted in "one of the most interesting innovations in ranch design in recent years." The expansion area includes two extra bedrooms, four additional closets and a third bath.

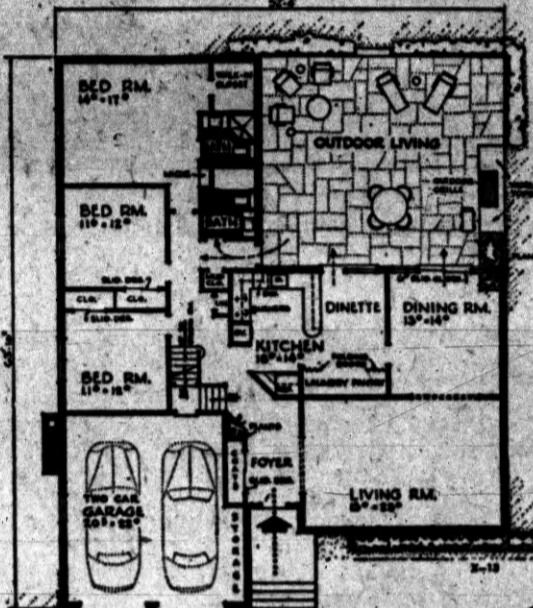

Located as it is away from other areas of the house, the studio room could be used for a variety of activities—by children or as a recreation room, by teenagers for parties and games, and by adults for both informal and formal entertaining.

"It also affords," says the architect, "excellent accommodations and maximum natural light for the growing army of amateur painters in this country who long have dreamed of a room of this kind."

The studio is only one of many features enhancing this new design.

The main level has a living room, dining room, kitchen with dinette, three bedrooms, two baths and a garage. An outdoor terrace occupies a prominent part of the main area.

structural technique of split level planning with ranch design. The studio is over the garage.

MAIN LEVEL — The main level of design X-13 is shown in this floor plan. The studio-attic area, not shown, has two bedrooms, a bath, fireplace, storage area, four closets and the large studio room.

The outdoor patio is directly accessible from the dining room, the kitchen-dinette and the bedroom wing. The main bath is adjacent to the patio entrance so that it may be conveniently reached from the outdoor area as well as the secondary bedrooms.

This area also has a mud closet. The outdoor living area is shielded by the house itself on two sides and a high hedge on the open sides.

Occupying one corner of the patio is an outdoor grill, complete with work tops and cabinet storage space. The grill joins a planter unit which projects itself into the dining room.

The kitchen-dinette is a model of efficient planning. A window over the sink provides a clear view of the rear terrace for supervision of children at play. The U-shaped arrangement of the units sets the work area apart from the dinette.

The laundry-pantry area is only a step away from the kitchen; yet it can be concealed by folding, louvered doors.

For the studio, the architect suggests wood paneling in pecky cy-

Local Builder Receives
Award for 'Best House'

Ron Patterson, builder of Orchard Lake was awarded an American Home magazine citation recently for the model home his firm (Patterson-Sharley, Inc.) has built.

The home, open to the public at Briar Hill, a subdivision at Farmington and 13 Mile roads is a four-level, four bedroom colonial model. The award stated that this home, priced at $19,950 on the buyer's lot, is the "best home for the money."

Mattson Home Is Contemporary Style

Although the kitchen is in the center of the house and has no windows of its own, it is an extremely light room. Recessed ceiling lights and a skylight make it that way. The day we took pictures was rainy, but the room wasn't dark.

This corridor type kitchen has a number of unusual features. Like the rest of the house, it is brown and white. Walls and Formica counters are white. Cupboards and doors are walnut. The cupboards have white peg-board fronts. Above the oven are two marble shelves for hot dishes.

Under the built-in range there are pull-out shelves for cooking utensils. There's a special drawer for sugar and flour. All around the range is a cutting board. Next to the refrigerator, where it gets heat, is a towel dryer.

When Mrs. Mattson works at the double sink, she can look out over the low cupboards and right through the living room windows. This view from her kitchen was a must when the house was in the planning stages. On the living room side of this divider wall there are more cupboards for hobby supplies.

Behind the kitchen is a skylighted laundry. One wall of this room is lined with cupboards and storage closets. The sink is built into a Formica topped unit.

SEPARATE AREA

The bedroom area can be closed off completely from the living area. It contains two bedrooms, one for thirteen-year-old Merry Ann and nine-year-old Sherry, the other for Mr. and Mrs. Mattson.

The girls have their own bath. It is all white with turquoise accessories.

Their bedroom can be two rooms. It has two doors and a folding wall. Stationary walls are white. Closets have walnut doors. The curtains which serve merely to cut the glare of the sun are blue with a seascape design.

Their windows have the same wooded view as the living room. Window sills are marble. Merry's half of the room shows that she loves horses. Sherry's half is devoted to the ballet.

The master bedroom has high windows on the street, curtained in white. On the other side of the room are sliding glass doors to the owners' private porch. Spreads on the twin beds are gray and yellow plaid.

They have a large dressing room with a skylight and their own private bathroom.

The lower level of the house is unfinished. There are three large rooms which give ample space for storage, a hobby room and a recreation room. Outside the glass wall of the latter room is a stone patio. This is the room where the Brownies meet during the fall and spring.

Mrs. Mattson has a tiny greenhouse in one section of this level. A portion of the south wall juts out and has a glass roof. She has a way with plants, especially African violets, and loves her little greenhouse.

Ed Johns of Detroit was the builder of the Mattson house. James W. Conn, A.I.A. of Southfield was the architect. The Mattsons have lived in their house since March of 1957.

Believe It or Not!

A kitchen stove of hardwood plywood is one of the many unusual features of a "House of Tomorrow" built recently near Long Beach, Calif. The plywood kitchen range houses magnetic coils which set up eddy currents in the cooking utensils. This does the actual cooking. The utensils are suspended two inches above the surface of the stove by means of magnetic repulsion, and the wood range never gets hot.

Up to Date Suggestions

Scores of tips on how home buyers can get greater value for their housing dollars are contained in a new 32-page booklet, "Better Homes Are Built of Wood," available free from the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, Washington 6, D.C. The booklet also offers suggestions for home remodeling and modernization projects.

Maybe One Coat Will Do

Perhaps your neighbors can't see it, but you are in a position to know whether or not your house needs painting. Do it before defects begin to show. This way you eliminate need for scraping, sanding and other expensive, time-consuming, pre-painting preparation. Likely one coat will do it at this time, instead of two coats required for weather-worn surfaces.

ADDED BEDROOM — The Dodge Melkonians of Ascot road, Elizabeth Lake Estates, needed an extra bedroom. Mr. Melkonian tackled the job even though he had never done any such work before. He hired workmen to put in footings and do the rough work; then he took on the longer job of finishing. Measuring about 15x13, the room has painted dry walls. Connecting the new room to the rest of the house with a hallway proved almost as big a job as the room itself.

May Building Figures Start Climb Upwards

NEW YORK — Construction contracts in the United States in May totaled $3,402,375,000, the largest figure ever reported for any single month, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation.

The May total was only a small fraction of one per cent above the previous record set in May, 1957, but it exceeded the third highest month (June, 1957) by 5 per cent.

Commenting on these new figures, Thomas S. Holden, Dodge vice chairman, said it was now evident that "construction is well past the bottom of the relatively mild recession it was experiencing in late 1957 and early 1958."

The May construction contract total for non-residential building was reported by Dodge as $1,124,067,000, up a fraction of one per cent from May, 1957. Contracts for commercial buildings and factory buildings were down sharply, and educational buildings were off slightly, but other non-residential building types increased.

Contracts for residential buildings in May totaled $1,346,170,000, an increase of 4 per cent over May, 1957. The number of dwelling units covered by the May contracts was 104,048, the highest monthly total in two years and 2 per cent above May, 1957. The number of single family units was one per cent ahead of May, 1957, and the number of units in apartment buildings was up 14 per cent.

Heavy engineering contracts in May were $932,318,000, down 5 per cent from the same month of last year. Public utility contracts were down 33 per cent, but this was partially offset by a 9 per cent increase in public works contracts.

Cumulative construction contract totals for the first five months of 1958, with percentage changes from the corresponding period of last year, are as follows: non-residential building, $4,538,896,000, down 5 per cent; residential building, $5,145,117,000, down 3 per cent; heavy engineering, $3,298,511,000, down 8 per cent; total construction, $12,983,524,000 down 5 per cent. While these cumulative figures show the current year lagging behind 1957, the spread between the two years has narrowed considerably during the past three months.

Room Too Small? Make It Look Big

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—If you have space problems around the house, here are some tips from home economists at Michigan State University:

Draperies extending from floor to ceiling give the illusion of vertical space, adding height to a room. For more horizontal space, use curtains like café curtains. horizontal draperies or casement. You also can create a feeling of spaciousness by treating two windows near each other as one large unit, instead of draping them separately.

Carpets which extend from wall to wall seem to make a room look larger. One center of interest in a room helps create the illusion of space. Using few pictures will make walls look roomier. So will solid colors.

Home Fountain Offered

Now you can easily have a small fountain in your living room. Fred Roberts Co. of San Francisco offers the flora fountain, made of plastic with a circular flower holder surrounding its top. Using a six-foot waterproof cord and a lightweight compact power unit with four flashlight batteries it delivers from a small spray to a spurt 14 inches high. The firm says it also serves as a room humidifier.

New Way Found to Install Floor

A simplified, more economical method for protecting floors against moisture infiltration from concrete slab foundations has been announced by the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association.

The method is described in a recently published free folder, "How to Install Hardwood Strip Floors Over Concrete."

The procedure calls for a one-course moisture barrier consisting of a layer of 15-pound asphalt saturated felt between two applications of hot asphalt mastic. The barrier is placed on top of the slab after the concrete has dried thoroughly, has been swept clean and primed with asphalt primer.

Heretofore the approved practice had been to install a two-course membrane either on top of the slab or under it before the concrete was poured, or in both locations.

The new method, which saves time, labor and material, has been tested by the association and is recommended to assure a trouble-free flooring installation in any area of the country, the folder explains.

It adds that hardwood, noted for its insulating quality and resiliency, makes the most practical and satisfying floor for slab-constructed houses just as it does for homes of joist-and-subfloor design.

For a free copy of the folder write the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association, 814 Sterick Bldg., Memphis 3, Tenn.

Chilled Water Cools Big House at Low Cost

Got a large house—a ranch house or a rambling house that covers a large area? Wondering how to cool it without spending a fortune on long runs of ducts?

Chilled water may be the answer because chilled water can be piped easily through small insulated pipe to remote locations at extremely low cost. A chilled water cooling system is very simple in its construction and in its operation.

It is because the water chiller may be located at any desired distance from the room cooling units that this type of a system is so well adapted for use in large or rambling houses.

Frequently, in houses heated with hot water, the chilling equipment is installed alongside the hot water heating boiler in the basement or utility room.

From here the chilled water is pumped by a circulator through small insulated pipe to one or more compact fan-coil units located in dropped ceiling plenum or air mixing chamber.

From the plenum the cooled air is shuttled to surrounding rooms through high wall registers. The fan-coil units are not bulky and they can be located in different areas or on different floors and all operate off one remotely located dark by tapping a spare fuse inside the fuse box. It'll be available when an emergency arises.

Stained Tile a Problem

Sure, it's possible to paint tile, but who in his right mind would want to do it? Sometimes, though, a family moves into an older home in which bathroom ceramic tile appears stained beyond recall. Usually, a good cleaning job with a fiber scrub brush and a detergent will do the job. On very dirty floors, a weak solution of muriatic acid (in skilled hands) is the answer — but never use acid on glazed tile. Ask your local contractor for advice.

Of the $12 billion spent last year in improving homes, $4 billion went for additions and alterations.

What Is a Contract?

Practically every business transaction involves a contract in some form—oral or written—expressed or implied. A contract is a meeting of the minds of persons in agreement to do certain things. It is, in general, an agreement or covenant in which two or more parties bind themselves to do or forbear some act and each acquires a right to what the other promises.

A contract does not always need to be in writing, although that is advisable in any important transaction because oral agreements are sometimes difficult to prove or may not be enforceable.

Nailing Floors Precision Job

Proper nailing of hardwood flooring, according to the Maple Flooring Manufacturers Association, simply refers to rigid adherence to high standards of workmanship embodying the following principles:

NAIL LENGTH — For 25-32-inch flooring a nail of sufficient length to penetrate subflooring and joists to a depth of 3/4 to 1-inch into the joist should be used. A 7d nail is sufficient to 25-32-inch strips.

NAIL ANGLE — Effort should be made to maintain a nail angle of 50-55 degrees in order to insure maximum nail penetration into the subfloor and joist. If the prevalence of grain variations causes undue splitting of the tongue, the nail angle may be reduced to 45 degrees.

SPLITTING — Where splitting of the tongue occurs, the strip should be removed and relocated over other joist crossings. If splitting occurs after relocation, the strip should be discarded. A floor, like a chain, is only as dependable as its weakest component.

NAIL SETTING — All nails should be set to insure proper fit of tongue and grooves.

Moisture content of joists and subflooring — Since it is common knowledge that the holding power of nails is materially reduced by subsequent drying of sub-flooring and joists, it is important that these framing materials be purchased thoroughly air dried and maintained in this condition during construction.

A cheerful new way to fence in a patio or swimming pool is to surround it with translucent plastic panels. The colorful panels admit light but cut down on glare and peeping toms.

ALL-IN-ONE-CORNER—Family rooms can be a joy and delight, easy to keep clean and easy to furnish. Here is one that has an all-in-one corner with most furniture built right into the wall. The day-environment is permanently a part of the wall, made of sturdy Douglas fir lumber, and so are the bookcases immediately above and within easy arm reach. The paneling is a wide pattern, fir bungalow siding style which works well indoors because of its interesting texture and shadow lines.

Good Thing Window Tax Went Out of Use in 1800's!

American colonists were forced to pay taxes to their British governors for every window in their homes, reports William B. Lloyd, associate professor of forestry at Michigan State University.

In a series of lessons on millwork prepared for use by the university, Prof. Lloyd explains that windows were taxed in Colonial days because they were considered to be a luxury. The more windows a family owned, the more taxes they were considered able to pay. In England, windows remained a taxable item until the middle of the 1800's.

“Today,” Prof. Lloyd adds, “it is well that this taxable item has disappeared from our tax rolls, inasmuch as today's homes are window personified.”

“There is little doubt that the treatment of windows in the home of today is one of the most important considerations in planning, both from an appearance and utilization standpoint.”

Besides being tax free, windows today cost less, are better, and are available in a wider range of types and styles than they were in Colonial days.

A good example is a new style window of ponderosa pine that has the appearance of a Colonial-style double-hung window, yet which opens like a modern, swing style, swinging upward and out.

Other window styles of ponderosa pine include double-hung and awning types, and hopper, casement, sliding, and fixed sash models. All of these are available in a wide range of sizes, and are carried as stock items by building material dealers.

One of these stock windows that is rapidly gaining in popularity with builders and home owners alike is the versatile awning-hopper-casement style. This window of ponderosa pine can be installed three ways. Fitted in place one way it is an awning window, opening upward and out. Turned over, it becomes a hopper window, opening downward and in. On its side, it is a casement style, swinging outward to either side.

White Wallboard Is Easily Repainted

The use of insulation wallboard and ceiling tiles to finish basements or attics economically need not give these rooms a functional or “whitewashed” appearance.

Insulation board, planks and ceiling tiles are ideally suited for repainting in color schemes that suit individual decorating tastes. Insulated finishing materials are delivered pre-painted in white with planks in white or standard colors, and repainting over the initial coat is relatively simple.

A wide choice of decorator shades is available when repainting insulation material because oil-rubber or water-base paints may be used with equal effectiveness. Application may be done by brush, roller or spray.

Many oil burner dealers are offering a combination package deal which includes a thorough vacuum cleaning of the boiler, flues, combustion chamber, and base of the chimney; cleaning and lubricating the oil burner as well as checking controls, circulating pump; and also all labor necessary to maintain the burner for the entire coming heating season.

This is a boon to the homeowner because it relieves him of all responsibility for keeping his heating plant in good operating condition and also protects him with emergency service, should this be required.

Even the best of oil burners, like your automobile, require service now and then to obtain the highest efficiency. That's why an annual overhaul is a good investment for the owner.

Staple Gun Saves Time

A staple gun saves time and trouble when batts or blankets of mineral wool are installed in a wall, ceiling, or floor. The gun is operated with one hand, leaving the other hand free to hold the insulation in place. Staples should be no more than 6 inches apart.

Modernize to Up Safety

Home is where the hurt is. More accidents happen in the home each year than in any other place outside the family castle, and many of them are serious.

Modernization of two of the most perilous areas, the bathroom and kitchen, can help reduce home accident tragedies measurably.

The Tile Council of America advises a check for danger spots. Add a grab bar beside the tub or shower; put all electrical outlets and light switches out of reach of the tub or shower; replace outdated carved-bottom tubs with safer flat-bottom ceramic tile surfaces; enclose radiators to prevent burns; and keep medicines out of the reach of children.

Reduce fire hazards in the kitchen by replacing peeling wallpaper or paint with moisture-proof and fire-resistant ceramic tile wainscots. Work areas adjacent to the oven and range will not be subject to fire from popping grease if surfaced with a fire-proof material, such as ceramic tile.

Falls make up a great part of the home accident toll each year. Slipproof floors, such as those afforded by non-skid quarry tile, should be provided for kitchen and laundry areas where water and other liquids may be spilled.

Add a list of home safety rules to the family bulletin board, with frequent reminders to the members of the household, and home accidents can be eliminated.

Plastic Stays Flexible

A plastic insert made to “squeeze” against the bottom of a closed door is part of a new window strip. Eliminating the need for proof, weather-tight threshold mortised edges and interlocking hook strip, the vinyl plastic insert remains flexible under wide temperature extremes. Wheels and castors can be rolled across the threshold without trouble.

Annual Overhaul of Oil Burner Good Investment

No other equipment in your home is so important to the essential health and well-being of your family as your oil burner. It is a faithful family friend and will serve you well. To get the best out of your oil burner, you should have it conditioned and adjusted at least once a year.

This is the time of the year to make arrangements with an oil burner service man to have the burner and boiler or furnace cleaned and checked.

Many oil burner dealers are offering a combination package deal which includes a thorough vacuum cleaning of the boiler, flues, combustion chamber, and base of the chimney; cleaning and lubricating the oil burner as well as checking controls, circulating pump; and also all labor necessary to maintain the burner for the entire coming heating season.

This is a boon to the homeowner because it relieves him of all responsibility for keeping his heating plant in good operating condition and also protects him with emergency service, should this be required.

Even the best of oil burners, like your automobile, require service now and then to obtain the highest efficiency. That's why an annual overhaul is a good investment for the owner.

Regular Loans Rise as VA Lending Drops

Conventional mortgages were attached to 70 per cent of the homes started last year, the highest proportion since World War II. Conventional lending took up the slack that developed when the fixed rates of VA and FHA mortgages caused the government programs to dry up and this prevented a serious slump in home building.

The drop off in VA lending left an especially large gap to be filled. VA-guaranteed loans accounted for only 13 per cent of total starts in 1957 compared with 30 per cent in 1955, the peak year.

Just Bad Video Drama Dead, Producer Insists

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK — "Television drama isn't dead," says David Susskind. "Just bad television drama is dead."

Susskind, a TV producer of boundless energy, has absolute faith in the magic and power of live, adult drama. He'll be even more active as the head of Talent Associates, Ltd., next season.

Next season Talent Associates will produce seven live dramas for "Show of the Month."

It also will offer at least nine special programs, including "The Swiss Family Robinson" and "Little Women," 26 live "Circle Theater" productions, and it has two live series up for option.

Susskind believes there are three reasons for the decline of live drama:

1. "The hour shows on the air have slipped badly in quality and excitement. For a long time they've been going down hill in scripts and production and the public is becoming relatively bored with them."

2. "We're in an economic recession. Because a live drama series carries a big price tag, advertisers are looking for cheaper shows."

3. "Television has become psychotically conformist. When a trend begins, the boys leave their psychiatrists' couches and rush about, following the trend to western or quiz series or a private eye series of whatever it may be."

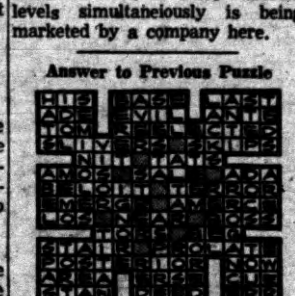

Susskind feels, however, "A first-rate drama still is the best sales medium for an advertiser. It puts over a message. A sponsor who stakes out new grounds on television stakes out new customers for his product."

Original drama on the home screen began to decline about 1955,

Valve Does Triple Job

MISSOURI CITY, Tex. — A "three-in-one" valve assembly that permits oil or gas to be pumped from one well at three different levels simultaneously is being marketed by a company here.
