'Riot Report OK, but...'

WASHINGTON (U) — Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley praises the bulk of a presidential commission staff report on violent demonstrations at the Democratic convention, but expresses "some reservations" about a section characterizing the violence as a "police riot."

"My only basic criticism is the summary, which, if used alone would mislead the public and be a disservice to those who prepared the report," Daley said yesterday.

The report accused officers of "unrestrained and indiscriminate police violence" by responding in kind to obscene and physical harassment by antiwar protesters.

The report was so earthy and explicit that the Government Printing Office refused to print it because an obscene four-letter word appears 82 times.

Related Stories, Pages A-2, A-7

"Over-all it is an excellent study," said Daley.

David Dellinger, a leader of the antiwar protests, said the study had "some gratifying aspects."

Daley said the bulk of the Chicago police force reacted with responsibility during the five August nights of disorder in darkened parks and downtown streets.

He said some policemen have been suspended for their part in the violence and still others face dismissal.

PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION

A special task force compiled the report for the President's commission on violence, which made it public without comment.

The White House was silent on its reaction to the report.

The task force said some police struck down innocent bystanders and peaceful protesters as well as taunting antiwar antagonists.

"To be sure, demonstrators threw things at policemen and at police cars," the report said, "but the weight of violence was overwhelming on the side of the police."

POLICE MAJORITY

More than 10,000 demonstrators — actually outnumbered by the police force and National Guardsmen — converged on Chicago for the week of wild brawling that erupted, ironically, out of a protest for peace.

The report said the demonstrators showered police with obscenity and hurled objects at them.

The response, said the report, "was unrestrained and indiscriminate police violence."

Nixon Names Harvard Prof as Security Aide

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon announced today he is making Harvard Prof. Henry A. Kissinger his assistant for national security affairs to oversee the foreign and defense policy machinery of the White House.

Nixon, at a news conference, said the 45-year-old Kissinger, a native of Germany, will revamp the entire security planning machinery at the White House with an aim to preventing global crises rather than simply dealing with them as they arise.

The president-elect said he was concerned that, after inauguration day, he gets a broad spectrum of news on foreign policy problems and is "not presented with a paper that represents a consensus—the least common denominator."

He said he was calling on Kissinger, a professor of government at Harvard, to bring in new men and promote new ideas so he will have the benefit of diverse views.

'NO COMPETITION'

Asked if Kissinger might overshadow the man Nixon eventually appoints as secretary of state, the incoming chief executive said, "I intend to have a very strong secretary of state." But he insisted he has not decided on nominees for either the state or defense cabinet posts.

Kissinger said he foresaw no prospect that he would be in competition with the men who eventually get those cabinet jobs.

Snow Is Expected to Go Away Today

About one-half inch of snow carpeted the Oakland County area yesterday, putting residents in the mood for the approaching Christmas season.

The snow, however, is expected to disappear today as temperatures bounce into the low 40s and cloudy skies bring threats of occasional light drizzle through tomorrow.

Little temperature change is expected tonight with the low due to be in the 32-34-degree range.

The weatherman predicts that skies will remain cloudy Wednesday as the mercury drops.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are: today and tonight 20 and tomorrow 50.

Shoppers Flock To Pontiac Mall To Start Buying For Christmas

U.S., Hanoi Air Santa Seen as Everyone Expanded Talks Makes the Shopping Scene

PAPUA (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators met privately today on arrangements for starting the expanded Vietnam peace parley.

No date was set for the opening of these new talks, but they are expected to get under way soon after the arrival late this week of a delegation from Saigon.

At this morning's session, U.S. and North Vietnamese delegates were also said to have traded complaints involving alleged departures from the understanding under which President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam.

Hanoi delegate Ha Van Lau was said to have protested that U.S. planes last Wednesday staged bombing attacks deep inside North Vietnamese territory.

"I saw Santa, I really did."

This phrase was uttered by hundreds of children who accompanied their parents shopping at area stores over the weekend. Some parents stood in line with their children for more than an hour to see the jovial man of the season.

The hundreds of shoppers who turned out Friday and Saturday at Pontiac Mall, Miracle Mile and Tel-Huron shopping centers and downtown and other area stores started the onrush of Christmas buying for this year.

"It's all busy, all over the whole store," remarked Cindy G. Ellis, a clerk at J.L. Hudson's at the Mall on Saturday. "I don't know whether it was busier Friday or Saturday," she added.

FRIDAY, SATURDAY 'HECTIC'

Veda Schumacher, who works in the wrapping department at Montgomery Ward, said: "We have been doing Christmas wrapping for over a month but these two days have been terrifically hectic."

Officials at the main office of the J. C.

Penney Department Store at Miracle Mile predicted this year's sales volume will exceed last year's judging from business over the weekend and for the last month in general.

The Christmas buying season is four days shorter than a year ago because Thanksgiving comes four days later, but downtown merchants are anticipating an increase in sales this year.

Waterford School Vote Nears

Waterford Township School District voters will go to the polls Saturday to decide two school issues, one of which will raise their taxes.

Approval of a $10.8-million bond issue for school construction will not increase taxes, but okay of a 9-mill operating tax will.

The 9-mill tax hike will cost taxpayers $9 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (SEV) for two years in addition to the current 32.7 mills being levied.

Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe says the tax hike will:

- Increase the staff of the learning improvement center, which helps children with learning disabilities.
- Provide funds to offer remedial reading help to all elementary children who need it.
- Continue to provide money for the school district to give students a reasonably adequate educational program.
- Improve school maintenance and provide money for teacher salary demands.

'CAN'T MAINTAIN LEVEL'

If the millage fails, the school district would not even be able to operate at its current level next year, according to the superintendent.

Tatroe explains that if the SEV of the property is $6,000 per year the cost of the tax hike would be $54 a year or 15 cents per day. A $9,000 SEV would be 22 cents per day.

The tax increase is being asked for two years because "it's very difficult to look beyond two years with any degree of accuracy as to what the situation will be with respect to salaries and finance," explains Tatroe.

Waterford Township school taxes are not high, says Tatroe.

"Our operating tax rate is 18th among Oakland County's 28 school districts."

"We have moderate taxes but our low tax-raising ability, due to the absence of substantial industry in the community, produces relatively fewer dollars to operate the school system."

Victim of Cave-In Is in Fair Condition at Pontiac Hospital

A 23-year-old Pontiac Township man was reported in fair condition today at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, after being trapped in a construction cave-in Friday.
Woodrow Fling of 145 Oakmont and another worker, Richard Donner, 35, of 714 E. Mansfield, Pontiac, were caught briefly by the cave-in while making a sewer connection at a new home on Spinning Wheel Drive in Fox Hills subdivision, Bloomfield Township.
Donner was able to free himself, but Fling was buried to the waist in the heavy clay, township Fire Dept. Lt. Carl Dumas reported.
Workers labored for 15 minutes to free the trapped man, Dumas said.

Law on Transporting Yule Trees Explained

Transportation of Christmas trees and evergreen boughs is illegal in Michigan without a bill of sale or proof of property ownership.

But an exception to the law is made during the month of December when not more than two trees may be transported without any bill of sale if they are legally obtained.

Michigan residents planning trips to the north country before the holidays, such as deer hunters, were reminded of provisions of the Christmas tree law by Dean Lovitt, chief of the plant industry division of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Lovitt said necessary legal forms are available from the department office, State Police posts, conservation offices, county extension offices and county courthouses.

Film on Alaska Set in Rochester

7 Property Owners Assail Severing of Sewer Lines

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A small group of township residents are protesting a county road improvement project that has left them suffering from alleged "considerable inconvenience, damage and expense."

Seven property owners in Herndon's Walnut Lake Estates at the corner of Inkster and Walnut Lake recently presented a letter of complaint to the Township Board.

Their complaint is the destruction of their sewer system through the severing of lines from basement drains and septic tank overflows. They claim they have received no word of replacement from the Oakland County Road Commission and may not until the improvement of the intersection at Walnut Lake and Inkster is completed.

Inkster Road is the boundary line separating West Bloomfield and Bloomfield townships, and part of the improvement lies in West Bloomfield. The improvement of the intersection is being financed completely by the road commission.

ONE-MILE PROJECT

However, Walnut Lake Road is being improved for one mile from Franklin to Inkster through a matching-funds project financed by the road commission and Bloomfield Township.

West Bloomfield Township Supervisor John N. Doherty listened to the protests, then said the project is being handled by Bloomfield Township.

Homar Case, Bloomfield Township supervisor, said the road commission has complete jurisdiction over the project.

When Bloomfield Township went into the matching funds project, the request was only for improvement of Walnut Lake to the east side of Inkster and he was not consulted otherwise, Case said.

NORMAL INCONVENIENCE

William Mercer, chief assistant engineer at the Oakland County Road Commission, said the inconvenience for the residents at the intersection is not abnormal. He explained that their individual sewer systems hooked up to a storm drain and now this is illegal.

However, when the hookup occurred, it was legal, he added.

Project engineers are attempting to hook the sewage system back up to the storm drain temporarily until a proper sanitary sewer system is installed, Mercer said.

Mrs. Elaine T. Calder of 2010 Walnut Lake, spokeswoman for the group of protesting residents, said they see no immediate end to their troubles because road officials have informed them completion date for the project is June 1969.

They raise the question as to why the particular corner of Walnut Lake and Inkster was selected at this time for improvements because the property is expected to be torn up in the near future with water and sewer installations.

The area under consideration is part of a special assessment district for a sanitary sewer to be constructed in the near future.

Mercer said it is impossible to wait for all future service projects to be completed before necessary road improvements take place.

Farmington Twp. Board OKs Rezoning for YMCA Building

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — The Township Board has approved a rezoning request for a proposed YMCA building at Farmington and Market roads.
The request was previously delayed when the board asked a revision in the zoning proposal to allow for a buffer area between present homes and the YMCA building site.

The board's recommendation, incorporated into the plan finally approved, was that lots facing the 12-acre parcel to be rezoned at Farmington and Tulipwood be left residential.

The zoning change will alter the parcel from residential to special purpose use.

OTHER REQUESTS OK'D

Also approved were requests to deepen business zones facing Orchard Lake Road in shopping center at Orchard Lake and 13 Mile, and to rezone a parcel near Orchard Lake and 14 Mile roads from single-family residential to multiple.

Planning Commission Chairman Charles Lorion said commercial zoning in the area of the shopping center was extended about half a block west on property as far north as Bond Road.

The land involved was vacant, Lorion said, adding, "We will have residential property backing up to the center as it stands now, instead of facing it as it was previously."

A rezoning proposal for a medical clinic at Gill and Freedom, however, was turned down by the board on the planning commission's recommendation.

Lorion said the commission was wary of opening property along Freedom, a service drive for I-96, to any sort of commercial venture, aside from traffic problems which such a development might create.

Objections to the proposal were received from many homeowners in the residential area nearby, he added.

SLEEPING CARS — Resting after 40 years of hauling screaming children and stouthearted parents, cars of the once high-flying roller coaster now are idle on their siding at the former Walled Lake Amusement Park. They're awaiting their turn to be demolished by workmen now tearing down the Ferris wheel, the rocket ships and other rides in the park, which closed last September.

Reuther Honored by Israeli Institute

REHOVOT, Israel (AP) — U.S. labor leader Walter Reuther received the Weizmann Institute award for science and the humanities here Sunday.

ty of workers throughout the world and eloquent proponent of humanity.

Worldwide Effort In a ceremony attended by U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, Reuther called for a worldwide commitment of nuclear arms race to no arms race. No one can win the nuclear arms race," Reuther said.

"We need to shift...to a positive contest between our competing social systems to see which social system can best harness man's creative genius in the field of science and technology and relate that great power to man's peaceful purposes."

Coeds Live at Frat House

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The girls, however, are not of Coeds at Stanford University have probably achieved the ultimate equality in the fight for women's rights. They've moved right into a fraternity house.

The novel living arrangement is the work of Lambda Nu, a Greek letter fraternity that obtained university approval for the experiment this fall.

Despite some suspicion that the combination of 32 college men and 23 women in the same house means certain trouble, the Lambda Nu's themselves deny it.

Dan Williams, Stanford assistant dean, said the mixed fraternity is an "extension of what has proved successful in our other coed residence halls."

VISIT ROOMS Under the present arrangement, the girls occupy one wing of the split-level fraternity, and the boys live in the other. They are allowed to visit in each other's rooms and there are no rules that doors must be left open or a third person be present.

What do the Lambda Nu men think of the arrangement? "I think it's great," said Christopher Murlas, president of the fraternity. He believes it is the first fraternity house in the world with live-in coeds.

Road Commission Chairman Sidesteps M59 Responsibility

An editorial in The Pontiac Press on the shameful neglect of Highway M59 has resulted in comments from many citizens, most are in agreement. A few appeared in The Voice of the People and others have been vocal.

In answer to these taxpayers, Frazer W. Staman, Chairman of the Board of County Road Commissioners, has replied but he provides very little satisfaction. He suggests we take the matter up with Governor Romney. He also suggests the taxpayers place the matter before the four-man State Highway Commission. Also, he believes the support of the State Legislators from this district should be enlisted. His statement concluded by saying the Highway Commission expects "to meet the State Highway Commissioners on another matter and would welcome the opportunity to include several

It's a combination question mark and exclamation and has officially been christened. It's the "interrobang."

And in Conclusion . . .

Jottings from the well-thumbed notebook of your peripatetic reporter:

RICHARD NIXON will be our second Quaker president. HENRY HOOPER was the first. Episcopalians lead with nine, followed by the Presbyterians with seven. Overheard: "For every woman that yearns for a schoolgirl complexion, there's a man who yearns for a schoolboy's digestion." These are sound ideas, but the Commissioner entirely overlooks the main point.

This is his job. He sought the place.

The finger's squarely on him.

The taxpayers are giving him a salary to do these very things. He should lead the way. He should move first. What does Lansing say to him when he makes a strong presentation of this M59 case? What did the Governor do? What do his fellow commissioners in Oakland County suggest?

Chairman Staman, 850,000 taxpayers in Oakland County await your action and your decisions. They are all anxious to find out what you propose to do yourself in your own job.

Here is a direct quotation from an "oration" of his:

"We need a lawyer today who has a law book in one hand and a gun in the other, so that if he goes to court and it doesn't come out right, he can pull out his gun and start shooting. I hope you people will carry guns and shoot judges and police."

A speaker like this gets a hearing at the University of California! What an institution!

Sheer Force of Willpower!

David Lawrence Says:

Chicago Probe Misses the Point

WASHINGTON—Informative as is the special report just submitted to the National Commission on Violence — which defines last summer's disturbances during the week of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago as a "police riot" and seeks to blame the police as well as the "demonstrators" — the real issue has not been met.

The question is not who is responsible for a riot but why city authorities permit a "demonstration" — obviously intended to produce trouble — to be held under circumstances that threaten the lives of innocent persons.

Ever since the march on Washington a few years ago which was carefully guarded by troops and police, the impression has become widespread that dissenters may use the streets for their demonstrations irrespective of whether they block traffic and incite people to riot.

The theory has prevailed that any organization has the right to demonstrate, as this is supposedly allowed by the First Amendment to the Constitution as freedom of speech.

"FREE SPEECH" But the Supreme Court of the United States has in its decisions upheld the rule that it is not free speech to shout "fire" falsely in a crowded theater and cause a panic. Incitement to violence is not sanctioned.

There are plenty of ways to give organizations an opportunity to demonstrate to their heart's content in stadiums, auditoriums, meeting halls, churches, and even in public school buildings so long as other proceedings are not interrupted.

Such gatherings would not infringe on anybody's rights or produce incitement to violence.

It is when the parades and marches occur on the streets or when demonstrators engage in "sit-ins" or "die-ins" in public buildings or on the streets that disorder is generated.

CLEAR INDICATION

The national commission, incidentally, released without approval or disapproval the report of the investigating task force which was under the direction of Daniel Walker, a prominent Chicago lawyer.

Verbal Orchids

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Lane of Springfield Township; 51st wedding anniversary.

John E. Teschke of Union Lake; 33rd birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sherwood of Oxford Township; 51th wedding anniversary

But the investigation indicates clearly that the national commission obtained enough evidence that it was a mistake for the government of the City of Chicago to give a permit in the first place to the various organizations to carry on their crusade in a public park under circumstances which were certain to bring about a riot.

The Walker report says that there were "some Communists and revolutionaries" among those who participated in the protest marches, but that a "majority of the demonstrators were intent on expressing by peaceful means their dissent either from society generally or from the administration's policies in Vietnam."

Actress Pens Open Letter Addressed Simply to Man

NEW YORK — Jill Miller, the actress, recently wrote an open letter addressed simply to Man.

"I am Woman."

"I am your wife, your mother, your daughter, your sister, your friend, your friend."

"I NEED YOUR HELP."

"I was created to give the world gentleness, understanding, serenity, beauty, and love."

"I am finding it increasingly difficult to fulfill my purpose."

"Many people in advertising, motion pictures, television and radio have ignored my inner qualities and have repeatedly used me only as a symbol of sex."

AN EXAMPLE

"This humiliates me; it destroys my dignity; it prevents me from being what you wanted me to be: an example of beauty, inspiration and love. Love for my children, for my husband, of my God and country."

"I need your help to restore me to my true position, to allow me to fulfill the purpose for which I was created. I know you will find a way."

Aristotle Onassis was and probably still is a rugged physical specimen. Some years ago he lunched at Spyros Skouras' estate at Rye, N.Y. He arrived in an intrepid manner that impressed Skouras, the head of 20th Century Fox.

Another Greek millionaire named Embiricos had towed Onassis across ten miles of choppy Long Island Sound on water skis at high speed. It had been a hazardous and grueling trip.

HIGHLY IMPRESSED

Skouras was highly impressed. He said, in effect, "Aristotle, that's a wonderful thing you just did, coming all the way across the Sound on water skis. You are a great athlete. You are what we would call a Joe DiMaggio!"

Onassis was not impressed. "Who?" he asked.

"Joe DiMaggio, the great baseball player," Spyros explained.

"I never heard of him,"

Onassis said. Two weeks later, Skouras got a long distance phone call from Onassis, by then in Hollywood. Onassis said, "Spyros! Thank you very much for comparing me to Joe DiMaggio. I have just learned about him. Marilyn Monroe is stuck on him."

Pace Setter

Editor and Publisher

The newspaper industry is a "growth pace setter," according to a Department of Commerce study, "whose soaring sales and growth rates set them high above the national average" for all industries.

"Unprecedented growth by every measurement has characterized the newspaper industry during the past 10 years," the Commerce Department says. "Employment grew by more than 18 percent to a total of over 350,000. Circulation of all newspapers — daily, weekly and Sunday — increased by 13 percent over the decade, while advertising revenue rose 54 percent."

Voice of the People:

Waterford School Millage Discussed by Taxpayer

Time is here again when Dr. Tatroe has his usual opportunity to have five days of carefully worded questions and answers in The Press.

KENNETH FOX
2672 RAVENGLASS, WATERFORD

The Waterford Jaycees never engage in political controversies, nor do we support candidates or issues which are political in nature. We are, however, vitally interested in programs which we believe will result in a benefit to our community and will help to make Waterford Township a better place to live. Three of our members served on the Citizens' Advisory Council which examined the basic financial needs of the Waterford School System.

Their findings were presented to the Waterford Jaycees and after thorough discussion and consideration the Jaycees voted overwhelmingly to support the proposed millage. We hope voters will join the Waterford Jaycees in our efforts to help provide our children with an adequate education. In return we pledge our efforts to ease an ever-increasing tax burden by working for you through our state legislators.

BOBBY J. GRIDER
WATERFORD JAYCEES
P.O. BOX 97, DRAYTON PLAINS

Dr. Tatroe puts up some fine-sounding arguments for the sale of bonds to build more schools, etc. in Waterford Township. According to him, a tax increase will not be required. A letter I received from the Waterford Township School District Board of Education states, "This year our expenditures will be $612 per pupil. The average in the County is $761 per pupil. It would take 16 mills more (a 50 per cent increase in our school taxes, to bring us to the average. We aren't planning on that large an increase, but a local tax increase along with substantial State help is the only way we will be able to bring our children the kind of education they need. No one likes the thought of higher taxes and some families on fixed incomes will find these a hardship. But we believe there is no alternative and that we taxpayers and parents must, once again, step up to our responsibility. As your representatives on the Board of Education, we assure you that your tax dollars will be carefully managed." Does that sound like no raise in taxes? How fan we afford to still live in Waterford Township?

THEO DOEBLER
837 LEDYARD

As a future student of Mott I am greatly concerned over the outcome of the upcoming millage election. Even though it wasn't our fault that the millage was defeated last spring, we junior and senior high students have had to suffer. This year teachers were forced to take courses not in their major subject area and for which they have less training, classes are overcrowded, we are on split shifts, and have one hour less of class. If the millage is defeated it will mean Mott will not be an accredited high school, thereby making it even more difficult for these students to get into college. Voters of Waterford, it's up to you to vote on December 7.

Question and Answer

I see the Chairman of the Board of Auditors is slated for a $5,000 raise. How does this compare with other cities the size of Pontiac?

WIDOW WITH $66 MONTHLY S S

REPLY

The $5,000 raise will bring the Chairman's salary to $31,500 after Jan. 1. The job is County, not City. While comparisons aren't too valid because the job may differ from county to county, we checked Macomb (no Board of Auditors), Washtenaw (Chairman gets $11,000 to be raised to something over $12,000 but less than $15,000) and Wayne ($20,000 to be $22,500 after Dec. 1).

Question and Answer

My husband died July 15, and I applied for the Bronze Plaque for his grave marker. I paid Perry Mount Park for it Aug. 5. So far it hasn't been installed. Could you please find out about it for me?

MRS. WAYNE WHITEHEAD

REPLY

It's in now. Mr. Losee said he's sorry about the delay, but they have to wait until there are quite a number that can be done all at once. Then there has been an unusually large number of funerals to be handled, so the markers couldn't be done as fast as Mr. Losee would have liked.

We believe that if all the new publishing techniques and devices on the drawing boards and the horizon fulfill the promises now being made for them the newspaper business will experience an unprecedented growth in the next decade.

Detroit Seeks Excise Tax OK

Key Goal in Program Set for Legislature

DETROIT (AP) — Restoration of Detroit's authority to levy excise taxes is the major plank in a legislative program the city is preparing for the 1969 Legislature.

"Going through the requests," says City Controller Bernard F. Klein, "our biggest need is still financial."

In addition to restoration of the excise tax authority, which the city lost in 1964, Klein says Detroit is asking for authority to borrow up to five mills on the tax rate each year for city construction projects and a greater slice of the state's annual taxes on intangibles.

Klein said the state now provides funds to most Michigan cities for inspection services covering elevators, boilers, weights and measures and industrial hygiene. But Detroit has to finance its own inspections, Klein said.

Klein said city officials also may ask for more state money to run the Detroit House of Corrections, which operates the only women's prison in Michigan. The state does not pay enough to cover the cost of housing female inmates from outside the city in DeLoCo. Klein said.

A police and public health laboratory should be established in Detroit, at state expense, said Klein. Also, he said, the state should finance a new general hospital facility.

"Why shouldn't the state build a hospital for Wayne State as for the University of Michigan," Klein asked.

Klein said the city's demands will be presented when the Legislature convenes in January.

Rudd to Carry His Revolt to Army Ranks

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Rudd, the student rebel, plans to carry his revolt into the U.S. Army.

"I will enter the Army as many other revolutionary students are now doing in order to help in whatever way I can another section of Americans who are being oppressed daily," he said at a news conference Saturday.

Rudd, 21, was a leader of Students for a Democratic Society and of the campus rebellion at Columbia University last spring. He appealed his 1A classification on grounds that he is a revolutionary, an occupation he contended was vital to the national interest. The appeal was rejected, and he was ordered to report today for his physical examination at New York, N.J.

Angola Rebels Kill 9 in Week's Fighting

LISBON (AP) — Increased guerrilla activity in the Portuguese African territory of Angola resulted in nine dead and 27 wounded among soldiers and loyal natives last week, a government communique said Sunday.

Twenty-six guerrillas were killed, the largest number since the first week in October, when 44 were killed.

The step-up in the African nationalist campaign prompted a two-week inspection trip by the Portuguese army minister, Brig. Gen. Jose Bettencourt Rodrigues, who left Lisbon Sunday.

Government communiques in recent weeks have spoken of intensified action and casualties in Angola's eastern provinces which border on Zambia, an independent country sympathetic to guerrilla movements in neighboring Mozambique, Angola and Rhodesia, all white-controlled.

PORTUGUESE CASUALTIES

In the first week of November, Portuguese forces suffered one of their highest one-week casualty tolls in recent months, six dead and 28 wounded.

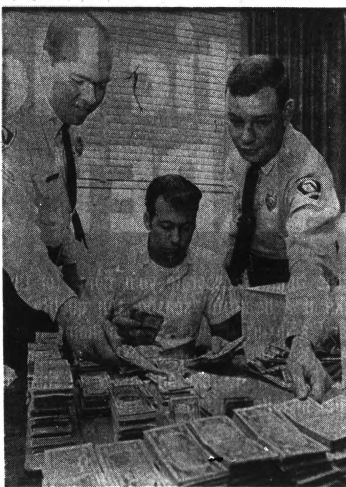

Authorities also reported 20 terrorist assassinations among pro-Portuguese natives in the second week of November.

Bettencourt's trip came after an extraordinary weekend meeting of Portugal's highest military body, the Superior Council of Defense, to discuss overseas operations. The council has been meeting with unusual frequency since Marcello Caetano replaced Premier Antonio Salazar on Sept. 27.

Bettencourt is not scheduled to visit two other territories where the Portuguese have been fighting nationalist guerrillas for the past seven years, Mozambique and Guinea.

Angola is Portugal's richest territory, with valuable coffee and diamond exports and a wealth of mineral and oil deposits.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia accused the Portuguese of bombing his country and warned: "We will retaliate in no small way." He said Portuguese planes dropped 18 incendiary bombs on a village near Chipata, formerly Fort Jameson, close to the Angolan border.

Police Count Cache of Cash

Dead Woman Worth $1 Million

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Melvin G. Faris, of suburban Miami, Mrs. MacMahon's niece, said the news that her aunt kept that much money on hand was a shock.

"All the relatives knew that Aunt Mary had enough money to be comfortable and that she did not have to worry," Mrs. Faris said. "I wouldn't have been surprised if they found $10,000 in cash in the house, but even I was shocked when I heard the sum mentioned."

"I guess to Aunt Mary, that money was cash on hand. It all depends on the yard stick you use to measure money."

INVITED TO DINNER

Mrs. Faris said she last talked to her aunt Wednesday when she invited Mrs. MacMahon for Thanksgiving dinner. "She said she wasn't feeling too well," Mrs. Faris said. "It was nothing to be concerned about, she said, but she didn't quite feel up to it. I think she may have thought she would be a burden."

HUNDREDS OF 'RELATIVES'

Police received hundreds of calls from all over the country Sunday from persons claiming to be relatives of Mrs. MacMahon. The calls were referred to her attorney, Linwood Cabot.

Mrs. MacMahon's jewelry will be appraised, and her bank accounts and stock holdings examined today.

How the money will be divided among the potential heirs, including Mrs. Faris and Mrs. MacMahon's two sisters, remains to be determined. No will has been found.

Won't Listen to Doctor; What Can This Wife Do?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 60 years old and I am 40. The doctor just told me that I am going to have a baby and my husband is absolutely furious! He says a man HIS age can't father children, and he has accused me of having relations with another man. I swear to God this is not true.

Abby, will you please tell my husband that a man his age CAN father a child. He won't listen to my doctor.

FRANTIC

DEAR FRANTIC: Maybe he won't listen to me either, but tell him that I said men have been known to father children at age 60, 70, and even older. And you can also tell him that most men who become fathers at age 60 are pretty proud fathers, so he ought to be ashamed of himself for his ugly accusations.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and my problem is my mother. She's the world's biggest snooper. No matter where I hide my diary, she finds it. I think I should be able to have some privacy, but I don't have any.

I guess my mother doesn't trust me. It doesn't do any good to keep a diary if you can't put down the true facts, but now I'm afraid to. I don't DO anything I'm ashamed of, but I also put down some of my "thoughts" which might upset my mother.

Please put your advice in the paper. If a letter ever came to this house, my mother would "accidentally" open it.

NO PRIVACY

DEAR NO: Many mothers "snoop"

out of curiosity. Some feel they can be better mothers if they know everything there is to know about their children. I'm for 100 per cent privacy. You and your mother need to have a better understanding. Give her a chance to be a friend by telling her more. And maybe she'll snoop less.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the 46-year-old woman with the 52-year-old friend who won't tell her he "loves" her:

I could shed gobs of tears for her. I have been married for 38 years, and my wife has never once told me in so many words that she loved me. But she has cooked my meals and washed my clothes, bore our children, fed the chickens, gathered the eggs, and she has even carried in the wood and built the fire to keep us warm.

She has managed the family spending so that we won't have to beg in our old age, or be beholden to money-lenders.

Now if that isn't love, I don't know what love is.

(Signed) R. H. M.; "LOVED"

Susan Ninotti W3d in Satin

Attired in a satin gown with lace accents, Susan Joyce Ninotti was escorted to the altar of St. Benedict's Catholic Church Friday to become the bride of David Richard Barber. The daughter of the Paride R. Ninotti of South Josephine Street held one long stemmed white rose.

Maid of honor was Kathy Devereaux with Cindy Howlett, Marilyn Barnett, Margaret Opie, Jan Bergstrom and Marjorie Ninotti as bridesmaids. Laurie Rogers was flower girl.

Ronald G. Barber Jr. was best man for his brother. They are the sons of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Barber of Birmingham.

Ushers were Thomas Stokes, Robert Carry, Jerry Cibraise, Michael Ninotti and George and George and John Barber. John Ninotti was ring bearer.

The newlyweds were feted in the church parlors.

Young Housewife Likes to Clown in Spare Time

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Part of the time Mrs. Wesley Rowley is a wife and mother of four children. The rest of the time she is Jingles, a combination "of every funny clown I've ever seen."

The young housewife, a member of the Richmond Alley of the Clowns, puts on her clown outfit and makeup and performs for various functions as a non-talking, bell-clanking, benevolently smiling clown.

"Just before my daughter was born 12 years ago, I broke my foot, and that's when I started reading about clowns," she explains. "I've always laughed at them. My Jingles is just funny; he has no messages. I just want to make people laugh."

Now one room of her home is completely "clown." It has walls covered with clown portraits, shelves and tables holding clown dolls, lamps and books of every description.

Skimpies OKayed for Femmes Only

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A man was hauled up before a Denver judge charged with walking down a city street in his underwear.

He told the judge he was merely demonstrating against some girls who were appearing in very brief bikinis at a carnival establishment. The judge found the man guilty of a "disturbance."

Why Grow Old?

This is Group Therapy. I am using my column to bring a lot of my readers together in order to consider a mutual problem—overweight.

Today I am printing a success story from one of the women who lost overweight successfully with my help. This letter will inspire those who have been procrastinating and make all of you feel part of a group. I think my readers who do not need to lose pounds will also find the letter interesting.

Gather around! DEAR MRS. LOWMAN, In the last week of 1967 I made a personal, FIRM NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION to diet. I am short, small boned, and I weighed 135 pounds. I had lost my mouth in my fat face and my large eyes looked medium. In truth, I never gave myself a clear sharp look in the mirror because it grieved me. It was hard to believe that it was me!

Then, like a surprise from the blue, one of your articles about reducing appeared almost on the day I had pledged to myself so earnestly to rediscover the lost and hidden me. I read it over and over again. I held my calorie intake to 1200 a day. I have gained 113 pounds. I am "with it" now and plan to stay that way.

It's been an experience! I have been through all of the various phases and was discouraged by the slowness of weight loss at times, but you kept pitching in the local paper, and I kept pitching too. Through the weeks I've about pinpointed my appetite down to my size. AND THANK GOODNESS, I have gained knowledge about my motivation for food!

I can hardly believe it now when I look into the mirror at my image and see me really there.

I think there are two important points made in this letter. In the first place, it is a good idea to remember how you looked before gaining weight. The eye becomes accustomed to anything it sees often enough. Thus, a woman becomes accustomed to the way she looks. She may forget how much more attractive she could appear.

Self image is very important! It is certain to influence you either one way or the other, for better or for worse.

Second, it is most helpful if a reducer discovers why she overeats. Is it when you are worried or unhappy for some

Polly's Pointers

Good for Scratches

DEAR POLLY — To remove scratches from my table tops, I spread mayonnaise on them, leave it set, then remove it and rub the table top hard with soft, old rags. Old tables will look like new.

I even scratched my watch

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Patty, whose husband's crutches blacken the armpits of his white shirts. She could cover the tops of the crutches with women's sock footies that come in white terry cloth or nylon. They could be taken off and washed to look nice all the time.

I plan to make a scrapbook of Polly's Pointers for a bride-to-be and also one for myself. I so often forget ideas I think I will remember. Wish the column were longer. — MRS. N.G.

DEAR MRS. N.G. — Perhaps it would be easier for you to buy the paperback edition of my Polly's Homemaking Pointers. — POLLY

HIPPY?

So what's a girl to do if she's "hippy"? Use her Relax-Acizor to reduce the size of the hip and thigh area, that's what!

NO WORK! NO WEIGHT LOSS!

Relax-Acizor is the modern way. You use it while you rest at home! (No weight loss!)

It's a fact! Many adult women lack good muscle tone because they don't get enough exercise. Relax-Acizor gives effortless, concentrated exercise to such trouble areas as hips, waistlines, thighs and abdomens. Regular use causes these areas to reduce in size — a result of the exercise of these muscles. Lack of tone because of insufficient exercise. And the less the muscle tone, the greater the degree of size reduction.

The illimitable imagination of The Brothers Grimm is demonstrated again in Henry K. Martin's Children's Theatre presentation, "The Brave Little Tailor," to be given at The Community House in Birmingham Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and again at 1:30 p.m. Ralph Valatka Jr. (left), plays prime minister to David Pellman's king. Tom Aston of Oakland University's Student Theatre is the technical director. Adult chaperones will be present. Tickets for both performances are available at The Community House.

Clip Hem Lines

When hemming a garment, mark the hemline with tailor's chalk. Use hair-clips to hold the fold in place. As you sew the hem, remove the clips. If you have to leave the sewing for some other chore, the hair clips serve as a convenient marker until you are ready to resume. It's a quick and easy method of hemming that does away with pinning and basting.

Jet Hijacker Was Possibly Tuned In on It

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The man who hijacked an Eastern Air Lines jet to Cuba over the weekend—the 17th commercial airliner hijacking of the year—may have listened to the performance on a transistor radio held to his ear.

"The man was carrying two pieces of expensive radio equipment," said a passenger, Gene McGill, Alva, Okla., rancher. "One was small with a long antenna and he kept the radio to his ear."

Eastern officials surmised the radio was tuned to the VHF frequency over which the pilot, Capt. R. J. O'Gorman of New York, was talking to Miami and Havana control towers.

The hijacker, listed as "J. Sanchez," stepped from a washroom, pointed a pistol at stewardess Phyllis Howton and commandeered the Miami-to-Dallas jet 11 minutes out of Miami Saturday night, the crew said.

HE KNEW COCKPIT

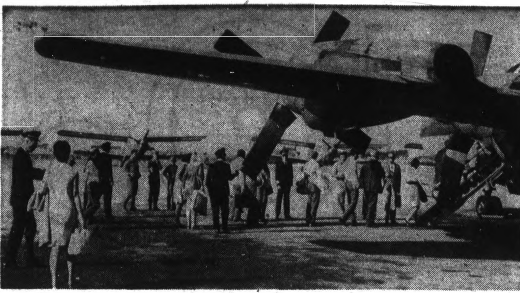

O'Gorman said the hijacker was "definite in knowing exactly what he wanted. It was well-planned and he seemed to have a knowledge of the cockpit."

Cuban officials permitted the crew of seven to fly the plane back to Miami early Sunday. The 38 passengers were taken by bus from Havana to Varadero, where they spent the night in a hotel. One passenger said it was full of "Russians and Chinese."

"It seemed to be a vacation spot for them," said passenger Shelly Placy, 18, a Southern Methodist University sophomore from Miami.

"I wouldn't have missed it for the world."

The passengers returned to Miami Sunday on a chartered flight.

Senate Antitrust Group Hearings on Auto Repairs Near

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, seems like such a minor thing — a broken taillight on your new car. But it could cost $41 to repair because of the car's design.

Or maybe a $141 repair bill for that grille that was dented when you were going less than five miles an hour.

The cost of car repairs — a $26 billion per year industry — is going to come under close scrutiny tomorrow by the U.S. Senate Antitrust subcommittee one spot.

Hart's subcommittee plans three days of hearings this week. It will hear the head of a Denver diagnostic clinic who examines cars that were supposed to have been fixed and a New York auto body expert who has information on garage rebates to insurance companies.

Little-noticed price increases in the cost of replacement parts — at a rate three times greater than the increase in the cost of the 1969 models — may also have added an additional $1 billion to repair costs in the past year, Hart said.

The hearing this year and next will climax a nine-month staff investigation of the auto-repair industry that has produced a bulging file of outraged letters telling of high repair bills for squeaks and other malfunctions which never seem several thousand repair jobs, able to cut in half the time of a private publisher of the books, repair job, but the customer Hart said, tend "to be quite would still be charged the full so-called 'flat-rate books' used allow because this makes the book.

Hart also complained about generous in the times they time rate as recommended in mechanics how much time owners and thus easier to sell." "The rate books, then, might be found dangerous because summer, and here it does not."

Flooded Sealab May Take Three Weeks to Repair

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Seawater flooded into the Sealab 3 elevator Sunday, damaging the container designed to take aquanauts to a large capsule 600 feet below the ocean's surface to conduct the Navy's third undersea living experiment.

The unmanned container was

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgling, nose-licking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. Ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 8 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jay's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First — a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jay's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work — kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jay's P-W Vermifuge — small, easy-to-take tablets — special sizes for children and adults.

The Navy has not announced a starting date for the undersea work.

Tomsky said the capsule is pressurized with an oxygen-helium breathing gas mixture when it is used to transport aquanauts. The capsule was not pressurized when it flooded.

Five crews of aquanauts will spend 12 days each in a large capsule resembling a giant railroad tank car on the ocean floor near San Clemente Island.

In a 1964 experiment, four men lived 11 days in Sealab 1 at a depth of 193 feet near Bermuda. Three teams of 10 men each spent 15 days in Sealab 2 in 265 feet of water off La Jolla, Calif., in 1965.

No Severance Pay Balm for Ousted Appointees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The with the realization that he will be subject to separation with a change of administration, or a change of superiors," the commission said in a memorandum to the agencies. POSTS TO BE FILLED
Saturday, it was disclosed that President-elect Richard M. Nixon has sent down orders that he wants all major policy positions in his administration filled by the time he takes office Jan. 20.

More than 2,300 policy positions in the government are expected to be filled by the new administration, indicating that a number of Johnson administration appointees will leave voluntarily or be ousted by the Republican administration.

Nixon himself is selecting about 200 of the highest-echelon officials, including members of the cabinet. He has not yet announced any cabinet appointments.

Harry S. Fleming, Nixon's personal chief, said "Traditionally, the more than the cabinet and perhaps subcabinet has been filled when past presidents moved into office. The goal is to have every policy job in the government filled by inauguration day," he said. "This may be difficult but we're trying to do it."

HEADED AWAY
Brenda formed June 21 some 300 miles east of Jacksonville in the Atlantic and headed toward the Northeast, away from the U.S. mainland.

Two days after Brenda was born, Candy came to life in the Gulf of Mexico and whirled into Texas, causing damage of $273,000.

Dolly, Edna and Frances, formed between Aug. 12 and Sept. 26, never reached land.

Hurricane Gladys, a killer like Dolly, formed Oct. 15 about 450 miles south of Miami between Swan Island and the Isle of Pines south of Cuba.

FIVE WERE KILLED
Gladys hit the Tampa Bay area Oct. 18 and swirled across the state toward St. Augustine. It left five dead and damage estimated at $6,700,000.

Although the June storms caused the earliest intensive activity since 1886, Weather Bureau records show that only Abby, Gladys and Gladys caused property damage and this amounted to a total of $7,423,000.

Walter Davis, acting director of the National Hurricane Center, said Pacific-borne storms took over in 1968 and left the Atlantic relatively quiet.

We've noticed over a period of many years that a great deal of storm activity in the Pacific generally means a deficiency of activity in the Atlantic.

WIND PATTERNS
Davis said part of the reason the wind patterns were so quiet, told officers the man he first asked for change, then he pulled the pistol.

He said the bandit demanded every all the money, then fled "if these don't develop, you southeast on Dixie Highway on just don't have the criteria for foot.

Bandit Takes $55 at Service Station

A man armed with a pistol made off with about $55 in cash from a Waterford Township service station about 11:15 p.m. Saturday after posing as a customer. It was reported to township police.

John Hamblin of 39½ Tregent, who was the attendant on duty at the B and J Gulf Station, 2228 Dixie, when the robbery occurred, told officers the man he first asked for change, then he pulled the pistol.

He said the bandit demanded every all the money, then fled "if these don't develop, you southeast on Dixie Highway on just don't have the criteria for foot.

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Despite disasters such as the explosion that trapped 78 miners deep in a coal shaft, the miners of West Virginia remain convinced that their world is as good as any and better than most. In this report, they tell how they live there, and why they'll stay.)

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
NUMBER NINE, W. Va. — This place doesn't exist on any map except a geologist's, but it's real. People live at Number Nine, work at Number Nine and die at Number Nine.

They go to school, church and the community center at Number Nine. They buy food, furniture and clothes there.

Twelve days ago a fearsome rumbling shook the lumpy landscape of northern West Virginia and 78 men were entombed in Number Nine.

News reports placed that coal mine explosion at Farmington or Mannington because these towns were on the map. But it happened at Number Nine — the mine and the community.

THEY'RE INSEPARABLE

The two are inseparable. From the time a coal miner buys his son's diapers from the company store to the retirement years when he buys his chewing tobacco there, life in a community like Number Nine is a constant reminder that coal is what it's all about.

The mine overshadows everything.

From the playground of the elementary school, the coal miner's child can watch the conveyor belts carry the product of his father's labor to railroad cars.

BUILDING OVERSHADOWS

The miner's wife, shopping for groceries, getting gasoline in her car or selecting a new television set, can see the brick building where her husband dons his work clothes before going deep into the earth.

The family's home, probably bought from the coal company in years past, likely sits on a hillside with a panoramic view of the mountains — and the mine.

Since 1906, more than 90,000 men have lost their lives in the coal mines. Yet in places like Number Nine there are teenagers looking forward to the day when they can wear the blue-gray coveralls and hard hat of the miner.

When times are good there is a full week's work at $33 a day for a miner, plus time and a half for overtime on Saturday, good money.

I'VE GOT A JOB

"Why should I relocate when I've got a job right here," said a blond 25-year-old miner. "My parents live here. My wife's parents live here."

And John Simon, who hasn't left the mines since 1921 when an accident cost him most of his eyesight, looks back to those days with nostalgia. "In the wintertime it was nice and warm. In the summer it was nice and cool. That's good work down there."

Even in 1921 the pay was good. Simon was making $6.84 a day as a track man when farm workers in the neighborhood were being paid $2.15.

But it isn't just the money that keeps people in the coal mining country.

A WAY OF LIFE

It's walking out of your house and leaving the door unlocked without worrying about burglars. It's keeping a coon dog, or a pack of 'em, in your back yard. It's friendly gatherings at the company store and the neighborliness of neighbors who don't live so close that they're on top of you all the time. It's those things and more.

"You tell people that West Virginia is a nice place to live," said Mrs. Frank Matish. "You tell them that we like it here."

Mrs. Matish's husband is one of the 78 trapped in the mine. Nobody talks much of the danger. Even after an accident like the one at Number Nine, few consider moving away.

IT'S NOT FOR HER

"I've gone west visiting — as far as Oklahoma," said the wife of John Simon. "The flatland is not for me."

The Consolidation Coal Co.'s Number Nine mine, one of the best producers in the state, has been worked since 1950.

It has had one previous major explosion — in 1954 when 16 men were trapped underground. At that time, the former owners waited three days, then sealed the entrances to shut off the oxygen that fed the raging fires within.

There was a haunting thought that the 16 men might not have been dead when the mine was sealed. Not until four months later did crews reenter the underground maze, and then the whispers began: rumors that notes were found on the bodies, rumors that rats had eaten at the flesh. No amount of denial would dispel them.

DIDN'T STAY AWAY

Almost everyone in the area knew one of those trapped 16. But the rumors didn't move people away, or keep them out of Number Nine.

Matt Menas, whose father was killed in the '54 accident, was one of the 21 who made it safely from the mine after the explosion Nov. 20.

News reports placed that coal mine explosion at Farmington or Mannington because these towns were on the map. But it happened at Number Nine — the mine and the community.

"I'm not afraid to work in those mines," he said. "I should be, I guess, but I've looked forward to it all my life."

ALWAYS WANTED IT

"It's exciting. I go down there and get excited all over. I've always wanted to work in a mine."

Mrs. Mercia Dunmire, widowed in the 1954 blast, teaches at the elementary school where the view of the mine is a constant reminder of her loss.

She and the other two teachers, Mrs. Vivian Askew and Mrs. Celine Beuglas, had planned to hold parent-teacher conferences on Nov. 20. Not surprisingly, only nine parents out of 76 showed up.

Mrs. Askew's husband, who has a mine job elsewhere, went to work the day after the explosion.

WOULD YOU?

"If someone got hurt at your place," Mrs. Beuglas asked a reporter, "would all of you stay away?"

The school at Number Nine closed for only two days.

"I remarked to the teachers that the children would be irritable and nervous and that we should be more tolerant than usual," said the principal, Orven Powell. "But you know how it turned out? They were more calm than usual and very eager to go to work."

Some people say coal miners are fatalists and seekers of danger, much as a parachutist or a submariner. But people at Number Nine don't say that out loud. Their stock reply to questions about fear is that you can get hit by a car in the quietest of neighborhoods.

OUTWARDLY PASSIVE

Women whose husbands have spent a quarter-century or more in the mines are outwardly passive about their husbands' occupations. But some of the younger ones — daughters of "coal" miners — don't seem that way.

"When I was dating," said Mrs. Bob Friend, "if a boy told me that he worked in the mines I'd quit him right there. I just wouldn't go with a coal miner."

His brother, Emilio Megna, is one of the 78. She came from Parkersburg, W. Va., with her husband, a lawyer, to take up the vigil at Number Nine.

"I knew I couldn't do any better here, but I felt better being here," she said. "What if they came out. What if they got to him. I want to be here."

TALKED A LITTLE

She talked a little bit about Emilio.

"They're a different breed, these men," she said. "They talk together. They fish together. I know that the reason Emilio went to work here was to be with his closest friend."

The knowledge that they are standing over the mine is hard one for families of men trapped underground.

"When I arrived here after the explosion, my first thought was: am I walking on my brother's grave?" said Mrs. Friend.

A MINER'S DAUGHTER

She is the daughter of a miner who died of a heart attack in Number Nine. As a child she lived in a company house, was treated by a company doctor and shopped at a company store.

"I know what kind of life this is," she said, "and my brother knew what kind of life it is before he went into it. But something drew him to it. He worked for a while in New York, but he came back here."

There are areas of West Virginia — the well-publicized poverty areas — where the opening of a three-chair barber shop is hailed as new industry. The people in Number Nine want it made clear theirs is not one of those.

In the crush of publicity that befell the Number Nine area after the disaster, one pregnant young woman, Barbara Toler — whose husband Dennis was one of the trapped miners — told a reporter they owed the company store and other merchants so much that her husband got only two pay checks in two years.

TAKEN OUT AHEAD

"The last check he got was for $7.32," she said. "All the rest from his work in the mine was taken out ahead to pay our debts."

She said that to cut expenses her husband "takes cabbage sandwiches to lunch in the mines."

That upset the people of Number Nine.

"Cabbage sandwiches, indeed," said Mrs. Simon. "There isn't a man around here who can't take a good lunch to work. That husband of hers makes $270 every two weeks. If she can't do better than cabbage sandwiches, something is wrong with them — not with West Virginia."

STORE A RELIC

The company store is a still-present relic of days when the company owned everything and the miner owed everything.

The miner can charge everything from food to furniture at the store and payments are taken automatically from the next pay check. But the company store long ago ceased to be the miners' only alternative.

Worst Tragedy Since '51

By the Associated Press
The Mannington, W. Va., mine sealed up Saturday with 78 miners lost is the worst coal mine disaster in the United States in nearly 17 years.

Four days before Christmas in 1951, 119 men perished at West Frankfort, Ill., in what was then the world's largest coal shaft.

Other mine disasters since then include:
Dec. 6, 1962 — explosion killed

37 in a coal shaft at Carmichael, Pa.
April 26, 1963 — 22 lost in coal explosion, Dola, W. Va.
Aug. 27, 1963 — 18 killed in potash mine explosion near Moab, Utah.

The highest toll in a U.S. mine accident was the 361 lost at Monongah, W. Va., Dec. 6, 1907.

The worst known anywhere this century was the death of 1,549 at the Honkeiko colliery in Manchuria on April 26, 1942.

Portugal Reaches for a Modern Image

LISBON (AP) — Portugal has begun to stir after 40 years of dictatorship. A mood of change and excitement has taken hold in a country that somehow had gotten through most of the 20th century without sampling many of its thrills or frustrations.

In two months Prime Minister Marcello Caetano has cautiously projected the possibility of greater political freedom and the kind of economic expansion the rest of Western Europe has seen since World War II.

But he has by no means reversed the past. Portugal today is in a sense two Portugals: the old and the new, uneasily coexisting side by side. There is much uncertainty as to how the new times will end.

Little of this is evident on the surface. If Portugal is living through a revolution, it is doing it as tranquilly as it lived through four decades of one-man rule by Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

QUIET YEARS

Salazar's rule was repressive, sometimes ruthless. There was widespread poverty with seemingly the makings for violent dissent. It may be the greatest tribute to his rule that nothing happened during one of the most unusual transitions any authoritarian-ruled country ever had to live through. With the 79-year-old autocrat in a lingering coma, neither the extreme left nor the extreme right found the means or inclination to make trouble.

Nothing was changed outwardly in this city with its curiously mixed European-Arabic-African flavor, but most Portuguese seem to sense that an era has ended.

Culturally as well as geographically, Portugal has lived on the fringe of Europe. It became an extremely close-knit society, self-reliant, proud, somewhat narrow — with one of the lowest standards of living in Europe. Two generations of men had come of age without political freedom, many of them living in constant fear of snappers, informers, jail and exile.

And for the last seven years, the country has been sending young men to fight black nationalist guerrillas in its African territories.

Salazar had not named a

'Animal Life Not Predictor of Weather'

NEW YORK (AP) — The behavior of animals reflects the past six months of weather rather than predicting the weather in store for the future, a noted naturalist says.

Hai Borland, in a recent issue of Audubon, the magazine of the National Audubon Society, says that the old-timer who said, "Squirrels hidin' away lots of nuts—goin' to be a long winter" had it all backwards.

When bees put away an extra large supply of honey, he explains, when geese have extra thick down feathers, when there's a plentiful harvest generally—these are natural consequences of a fine summer, not a prediction of the weather ahead.

Borland did a study of the woolly-bear caterpillar, whose bands have been said to prophesy the weather. For a number of years he ran a tally of the markings.

He found that, according to the markings a third said the winter would be long and hard, another third said it would be short and easy and the rest, with stripes of equal size, were undecided.

successor, perhaps characteristically in this patriarchal society where even in family businesses, fathers tend to remain in charge until they die.

With Salazar's condition hopeless, President Americo Thomaz, a tough, 72-year-old retired admiral finally announced he was naming a new prime minister. Into office the next day, Sept. 27, came Caetano, 62, an educator and lawyer. A drafter of the Portuguese "corporate state" constitution, he was once Salazar's apparent protegee but in recent years had established his independence from the regime.

Overnight, the strictly censored press became more free. It began asking for a better life aligned with the rest of Europe for political amenities, for less government secrecy.

Days after entering office, Caetano promised a press law abolishing most forms of censorship. He increased the flow of information from the government to the press.

He has returned exiled opposition leader Mario Soares from an equatorial island where Salazar had sent him. This seemed to herald a freer role for the opposition, possibly the right to unobstructed campaigning in next year's National Assembly elections.

AUTONOMY

By giving more autonomy to ministries but demanding more work of them, Caetano shook up a government accustomed to existing in the shadow of an absolute rule.

He named one of the country's ablest managers, Alfredo Vaz Pinto, as his No. 1 cabinet member. Vaz Pinto, former head of TAP Airlines, served notice that Portugal must set out to build an industrial society.

The business community is optimistic that Caetano will mean modernization and more emphasis on economic growth. The government already has promised more public investments to offset a serious lag in private investment and to implement a six-year development plan that came nominally into force Jan. 1.

Indeed, some Portuguese feel that the Salazar-Caetano transition has somehow begun an evolution that will bring the kind of economic boom and freewheeling society seen elsewhere in Western Europe.

NO TAKEOFF PERIOD

But economists agree it is not time to talk of boom yet, with the African wars still draining the economy and defense accounting for 40 per cent or more of the budget. Caetano is re-evaluating the situation in Africa.

On the home front, Caetano has courted labor with promises of a national minimum wage and freedom for unions to elect their own officers.

He has launched an investigation into the educational system covering everything from cramped grammar schools to inadequately staffed universities. Two important student associations were given the right to choose their leaders: under Salazar these were appointed by the government.

Evolving along with civil life is the religious community in this predominantly Roman Catholic country.

LAY INFLUENCE

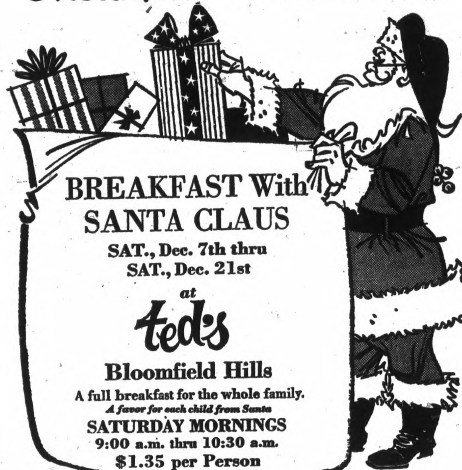

Dissident laymen are openly denouncing a conservative hierarchy they associate with Salazar's time. Their faction may be the making of a powerful political instrument.

But the old Portugal is still here, too.

Hard-liners did not hide their bitterness over Salazar's removal from office, even though he was incapacitated.

Censorship itself has become erratic. The over-all effect is of a now-you-see-it-now-you-don't kind of liberalization. There is evident confusion even among officials.

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following is the first in a six-part series detailing major problems facing Richard M. Nixon when he takes office. This one deals with foreign affairs.)

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Three dangerous situations threaten President-elect Richard M. Nixon's program for giving the United States new direction in world affairs.

They are the possibility of fresh outbreak of full-scale war between Israel and the Arab states, a complete breakdown of the Paris talks on ending the Vietnam war and some Soviet power play against West Germany.

RICHARD M. NIXON

The Nixon foreign policy program, sketched in only broad outline during the campaign, set forth three early major goals: reduction of U.S. involvement in Vietnam; assignment of top priority to European over Asian problems; and creation of a position of strength for summit negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The new president thus will be confronted with the interlocking tasks of striving for achievement of these goals while at the same time trying to avert crises which could block or seriously hamper such achievement.

MIDDLE EAST

Senior diplomats rate the danger of a Middle East crisis as the greatest and most urgent situation. Prolonging United Nations peace efforts, under way for more than a year, appear to be collapsing. The peace talks could pose extremely serious issues for Nixon, especially the question of whether to resume bombing North Vietnam.

And yet in the long run the most perilous situation may well involve Germany. The Czech crisis points that way.

Soviet leaders blamed West Germany for making trouble in Communist Czechoslovakia which led to the Soviet invasion in August. Now U.S. authorities foresee more Czech-style cracks in the Soviet political system in Eastern Europe. They expect West Germany to be blamed by the Kremlin and a slow accumulation of tensions to result. The Soviets could, of course, turn the heat on West Berlin at any time as a diversionary tactic. But a more serious assessment in official Washington is for a slow buildup of East-West crisis over Germany during the next three or four years.

PEACEMAKER

Nixon's sense of the urgency of such foreign policy problems in relation to his general foreign and domestic goals is evidently great. He has broken a fundamental tradition of isolation from an outgoing administration to buy extra time for his own peacemaking hopes. The unique grant of authority he gave Johnson administration leaders Nov. 11 to speak on foreign affairs for the incoming administration along with the outgoing president country and said he removed himself as a candidate for reelection to strengthen his hand in peace negotiations.

Vietnam Strategy

Nixon has two ways of handling detachment from Vietnam and a third way, beyond his control, could develop.

During the campaign he said that "the national interest, the interest of our fighting men and the interest of peace in the world require that this war be brought to an honorable conclusion as quickly as possible." By such statements he committed himself to a negotiated peace in Vietnam if that is possible. It is thus evidently the preferred way for him to bring about U.S. disengagement.

The second way available to Nixon is to continue the Johnson policy of building up South Vietnamese military forces, now said to number about a million men, and to shift the burden of fighting to them. Nixon himself said during the campaign that as the South Vietnamese become more effective "the de-Americanization of the war can begin."

A third possibility, which some of the best informed U.S. officials foresee, is that the war may simply fade away. The concept that North Vietnamese forces might be pulled out of South Vietnam without fanfare and that the flow of supplies to the Vietcong guerrillas might quietly dry up is an old one. U.S. officials base it on two assumptions: That hanoi will never sign agreements committing itself to a truly independent South Vietnam and that Hanoi may realize eventually it is suffering military defeat.

NO SPECIFICS

Most of the foreign policy changes which Nixon talked about during the campaign were either expressed in very general terms or represented essentially tactical alterations to promote some of his main objectives.

Thus he called for a shake-up in the State Department to make it more effective. He said foreign aid should be reorganized to reduce commitments to some countries and increase them to others—with an implication that the cost might be less in the long run. He declared that the nations of Asia should develop their own all-Asian alliance to give themselves the ability "to make the initial response to any new aggression in their area." Nixon also promised on many occasions that he would give the United States "a new foreign policy." He said it is his goal to prevent war for the rest of this century.

Nixon is not expected to spell out before taking office how he as greater danger than Vietnam in terms of its potential for world war, saying that next to Berlin it was a "major flash point."

The Soviet Union, Nixon said, "must be made to understand that a renewed war in the Middle East could lead to a nuclear confrontation which neither side desires."

Soviet leaders have been building their present strong position in the Middle East since the mid-1950s when they began giving arms to Egypt.

In an effort to maintain some leverage and traditional contact on the Arab side, the United States has sold arms to Jordan.

But the major U.S. arms shipments have gone to Israel along with the armaments sold or supplied to Israel by other Western powers. Thus the strategic region, historically a crossroads of the world, has seen for more than a decade an arena of competition between the United States and Russia—and the Russians have been increasing their stake and their power.

Fire Chief, 97, Is Retiring Today

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Michael J. Fleming, whose 76-year career spanned the changeover from horse-drawn equipment to modern fire wagons, retires today as Albany's fire chief. He is 97.

Fleming joined the fire department in 1892 as a call boy. He was chief for 45 years. He supervised fighting of major fires until 1963, when he entered a nursing home.

OLSM, Troy Fives to Debut Tuesday

A couple of league scraps plus a handful of choice non-conference tilts are on tap tomorrow night as area high schools continue to usher in the 1968-69 basketball campaign.

A big one from a league standpoint comes at Orchard Lake St. Mary where the Eagles, winners of the Northwest Catholic League championship last year, will play host to Farmington Our Lady or Sorrows.

LEADS SQUAD

The veteran OLSM squad is led by guard Tim Megge, who won the Oakland County scoring championship last year. Another in the league category is in the Oakland A. loop where Madison will visit Troy. Both are of the darkhorse variety in the preseason lineup.

OTHER GAMES

In the top local contests with nothing at stake but prestige, Waterford Mott's young Corsairs open at Clarkston Milford plays host to Waterford Bloomfield Hills Andover is at city rival Lahser and Rochester goes to Ulica Stevenson.

Elsewhere, Birmingham Groves, a 58-53 loser Friday, journeys to Royal Oak Kimball, Lapeer is at Romeo, Northville has a date at South Lyon and Southfield Lathrup entertains over Marysville, and the Warren.

BIG SCRAP NEAR

Rochester's Falcons were the pre-season choice to take the Oakland A. title, so Coach Wayne Case will be trying to set his lineup against Stevenson in preparation for Friday's showdown at Lake Orion.

Lake Orion and Romeo shared the O-A title last year and both figure to give the Falcons a run for the prize. Romeo has one victory under its belt, an impressive 73-40 nod over Marysville, and the Bulldogs will be anxious to find out how much they have since they'll entertain Rochester Dec. 17.

Hopes are high at Waterford and coach Bob Taylor will be trying to iron out the wrinkles at Milford. A fellow the Waterford defenders will have to stop is high-scoring Mark Giegler.

Mott figures to have its hands full in taking on Clarkston's Wolves. The Wolves are expected to challenge for the Wayne-Oakland crown.

Cage Play Set in Waterford

Men's recreation basketball opens in Waterford Township tonight. There are 22 teams divided into four leagues.

Tie Foils Top Ranking Bid

Do-or-Die for USC in Rose Bowl Tilt

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Southern California Trojans, choking on a tie, will have to wait until New Year's Day now to get their do-or-die wish—No. 1 ranking.

The Trojans missed a chance last Saturday to retake the top spot from Ohio State when they wound up with a disappointing 21-21 tie against ninth-ranked Notre Dame.

"I wish we could go into sudden death instead of settling for a tie," muttered a disheartened O. J. Simpson, USC's Heisman Trophy winner, who had the worst day of his two-year varsity career.

His coach, John McKay, felt the same way. "We didn't start the game playing for a tie. Let's play until midnight if we have to."

WANTED OVERTIME

Even Ara Parseghian, who knows about ties and No. 1 ranking, would have liked a sudden death overtime.

"Sure, let's go," quipped the Notre Dame coach, who had his team run out the clock in the final moments against Michigan State several years ago in a memorable tie that kept Notre Dame's top ranking that day.

Now the Trojans, who entered the game ranked second, could drop to third behind idle Penn State, which winds up its season Saturday against Syracuse before an Orange Bowl date with Kansas.

However, Southern Cal could get it all back in that do-or-die battle against Ohio State in the Rose bowl. There will be a final Associated Press poll after the bowl games.

Several other ranking teams had their troubles on college football's last big regular season weekend while Army had to go all out to edge underdog Navy 21-14 in their classic.

Tennessee, No. 7, and headed for the Cotton Bowl, needed Karl Krensmeyer's 23-yard field goal late in the third quarter to get by Vanderbilt 10-7 in one of the many rivalries that highlighted the day.

Alabama, No. 15 with a Gator Bowl date, got by 18th ranked Auburn 24-16, while Arizona, No. 19, lost a chance at the Western Athletic Conference title by losing to Arizona State, No. 20, 30-7.

Georgia, No. 4, readying for the Sugar Bowl, belted Georgia Tech 47-3, and Oklahoma, No. 11, tuned up for the Bluebonnet Bowl with a 41-7 rout over Oklahoma State.

Houston, No. 10, fell to Florida State 40-20 Friday night.

TAKE LEAD

Southern Cal, 0-0-1, took a 7-0 lead on Sandy Durko's 21-yard run with an intercepted pass, but we still haven't lost," said Simpson, who by Hanratty's fill-in, the Irish managed only 55 yards in 21 to a 21-7 halftime lead.

Then USC came alive with Simpson scoring in the third quarter and Steve Sogge throwing 40 yards to Sam Dickerson. The Irish, F-2-1, had chances to win, but Scott Hempel missed field goal tries from 47 and 33 yards in the closing minutes.

JARVIS JOLTS NAVY HOPES—Fullback Charlie Jarvis (33) of Army dashes past the reach of three Midshipmen Saturday for a 10-yard scoring jaunt that handed the West Pointers a hard-earned 21-14 victory over Navy at Philadelphia. Chip Estey (40) of Navy tumbles to the ground, the victim of a key block on the decisive run, while pursuing Jarvis in vain are Jeff Lammers (49) and Bill McKinney. Jarvis scored three touchdowns as the game's outstanding performer in front of more than 102,000 fans at John F. Kennedy Stadium.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jarvis got a second chance and he made the most of it.

That was story of the 69th annual Army-Navy football classic won by the Cadets 21-14 before 102,000 fans at John F. Kennedy Stadium Saturday.

Jarvis scored three touchdowns, the last for nine yards breaking a 14-14 tie and giving Army its 33rd win against 30 wins for the Middies.

It was Jarvis who offered the second chance angle after he became the latest in a long line of Army-Navy game heroes. In the 1967 game, the 205-pounder fumbled in the late minutes and Navy recovered to save a 19-14 victory.

"I've thought about it (the fumble) for 365 days, said the 6-foot-2 Jarvis.

"That was the most humiliating day of my life. This (the three touchdowns) and Army victory will ease the pain although it never will erase the memory."

SHATTERS RECORD

Jarvis gained 88 yards to shatter the three-year record of Cadet immortal Glenn Davis for yards gained in a career at West Point. He wound up with 2,334 to 2,323 for Davis.

Navy Coach Bill Elias said his two-touchdown underdogs played "way over their heads." Elias said Army came up with a new offense and it took his team almost the entire first half to adjust. "In the meanwhile, we neglected our offense," said the Middies' coach.

Army scored first, taking a 7-0 lead in the first period on Jarvis' five-yard run off tackle. Arden Jensen converted the first of three conversion attempts.

The Cadets, who finished their season 8-3, made it 14-0 in the second quarter, Jarvis diving into the end zone from the one.

Navy finishing at 5-7, came to life late in the second period after Army's Bill Hunter fumbled a punt and Middle Captain Mike Clark recovered at the Cadets' 34.

Dan Pike of Army slid off a pileup at the one into the end zone and Tim Cocozza converted.

In the third period, Navy again capitalized on a big break. Defensive end Mike Lettieri hit Army quarterback Steve Lindell's arm on a pass attempt.

The ball flopped in the air and was intercepted by defensive tackle Tom LaForce, who returned 36 yards for a touchdown. Cocozza converted to tie it 14-14.

Army Coach Tom Cahill pulled Lindell in favor of second-string quarterback Jim O'Toole in the fourth period. He felt Lindell wasn't sustaining the attack.

O'Toole responded with a 64-yard completion to the Navy 14. Jarvis capped the drive with his nine-yard scoring burst.

LONDON (AP) — As the gray winter days settle over Britain and the nights grow longer, Londoners no longer retreat to those bright, blazing coal fires of their ancestors.

London now is a smokeless zone. The thick, choking fogs are gone and after a century you can breathe easily again. Long-unseen birds have returned to Hyde and St. James' being blocked up. Now there is the dull evening prospect of feet, divested of rain-soaked shoes, propped up before a ghastly gas fire, a soulless central heating radiator or, at the best, a sorrowful electric heater into which some London Electricity Board designer has built a revolving flicker that supposedly simulates the oil flames of old.

COLETON
(BY) KUCHI

QUESTION: "Who is the thinker?"

ANSWER: By "the thinker" our questioner refers to the famous statue by August Rodin which is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. Rodin was born in Paris in 1840. He was commissioned by the French government to do a series of sculptures representing figures from Dante's famous book, the Divine Comedy.

The statue we now call The Thinker was one of these, and was intended to represent Dante himself, perhaps brooding over the story told in the book. The statue has acquired a greater meaning than to be a figure of any one man.

We love it because it seems to embody man's effort to use the divine gift of thought, which sets him apart from other living creatures.

Rodin died in 1917 with some of his commissions uncompleted, but he is famous because he managed to infuse such a living, breathing quality into his statues.

It's a bit irreverent, perhaps to show our little friend Charlie copying The Thinker's pose and deciding that his favorite ice cream flavor is chocolate. But there you have our artist's sense of humor. He just insists on slipping a bit of it in.

ELK OUTING

Elk don't always know what is good for them. Sometimes, in fact, they have to be pushed into it—literally. In Star Valley, Wyoming, each spring, on the first Sunday after Mother's Day, they are kindly but firmly dislodged from their winter feeding grounds in the valley and sent up to higher ground to spend the summer. The occasion has become an annual social event for the local people, a great, happy, rambling picnic on horseback, a mixture of spring festival and country fair.

The originator of this benevolent maneuver is Newel Gardner, game warden at Afton in the Star Valley. When he took over, 12 years ago, he realized that the elk should be moved from winter to summer feeding ground before calving time—after calving the females are reluctant to move, stay on in the wintering area and eat up winter food during the summer. So, in 1956 Gardner and five companions carried out the first drive. Since then it has developed into the opening outing of the season for the community.

Early in the morning, cars and trailers bring horses and riders to the site, the Salt River and Greys River valleys about 30 miles north of Afton. The drive itself is not exactly a testing ordeal. After saddling and mounting, the crowd of riders move off in the direction of the herd. The elk cooperate, oddly enough, against the whole spirit of the day, by being downright anti-social. As soon as they catch sight of the riders they willingly scamper off towards the high ground where they spend the summer.

The riders carry on happily over the mountains to Greys Valley where a very welcome feed has been prepared: elk stew, moose hamburgers (mainly meat confiscated from game law violators), and trimmings. The open air is the finest appetizer, and the whole party is seasoned with high spirits and good company. There is the knowledge that a useful job has been done in the cycle of natural life—with all the pleasure of a neighborly get-together.

Hosts and organizers, game warden Newel Gardner and his wife, Blanche.

The game warden is responsible for a herd of over 1,000 elk.

This year, there were 640 riders of all ages—most of whom hardly saw even one elk.

Many Britons Have a Touch of Whimsy

(EDITOR'S NOTE — From Lord Cranbrook was quoted as saying: "I keep the bats for about three months, feed them well and let them go. My recipe for a dinner that bats like is equal parts of egg yolk, cream cheese and banana.")

LONDON (AP) — The Earl of Cranbrook exercises bats in his bathroom.

Sir Wilstan Dixie had a beer drinking contest with a pony.

Leonard Lowry often sits on the floor of a crowded bus so the family dog can have his seat.

Eccentrics are dotted over the English scene, constantly amazing more mundane people with their weird and wonderful notions. For more than 30 years the London weekly New Statesman has been noting such individual and national peculiarities in a column called "This England."

Water Buffalo Dies; Tourist Lure on Oahu

HONOLULU — Tourists in buses and rented cars making a circuit of Oahu island seldom resisted the impulse to take a picture of a scene that seemed to plunge them into Southeast Asia.

Focal point of the scene was a water buffalo, which for seven years has been residing near the roadside in the Iao fields of the Waihole Pio Factory.

That water buffalo, known as "Boy," has died.

Boy's greatest love was to stand in the shade near the roadside banana stand of his owner, Tokujiro Arashiro, and pose for pictures. Besides the chore, his other favorite pastime was to take the neighborhood children out for a ride on his brawny back.

Boy was rented out to the poi factory to work in the water-covered taro fields and also worked in Arashiro's banana and papaya groves.

Boy's death has decreased the water buffalo population in Hawaii by a sizable percentage. The only other water buffalo on Oahu is one at the Honolulu zoo. It is believed the only others in the state are two or three on Kauai Island.

A Byzantine church with colored mosaics, vaults and chambers dating back to A.D. 640 has been uncovered by archeologists in Jordan.

Jim: "One of the most spectacular falsecard plays is to win a trick expensively rather than inexpensively."

Oswald: "The play is spectacular because there are times when it costs the falsecarder. It is usually made by declarer but can be used by a defender."

Jim: "Here is a hand defended by Bobby Wolff that shows this maneuver at its best. South studied the hand at great length before playing to the first trick."

Oswald: "He was trying to find nine tricks. He counted two spades and three hearts and needed four tricks in the minor suits. He wasn't going to get his nine if East held the ace and queen of diamonds and the king of clubs, otherwise he would sit there with the queen of diamonds. He won the spade return and took another diamond finesse. Bobby took the queen and cashed three spade tricks."

Jim: "Bobby thought along with South and recognized his problem. He also figured out just how South planned to play the hand."

Oswald: "South must have led the jack of diamonds at trick two and let it ride. This would give him three diamond tricks if West held the queen. If East won the trick with the queen, South planned to fall back on the club finesse."

Jim: "That is exactly what South did and the diamond play worked, to all appearances. The jack lost to Bobby's ace!"

Oswald: "If South could have looked into Bobby's hand that falsecard would have cost Bobby three overtricks that he had no reason for South to think anything except that West was very conservative. In that case give to three spades."

CHAPTER 2

Hippieville

Edgar the elf went to see Henry Wetherston who called himself Ding Dong.

Ding Dong was lying on his back on his bedroom floor playing with his toes. It was the middle of the night and his folks thought the sound of the zither was Ding Dong snoring in his bed. It was that kind of a sound.

Edgar slipped in the open window and grabbed Ding Dong by the toes. Twang Clang! went the zither as two strings broke and popped Ding Dong on the nose.

Ding Dong sat up and stared at Edgar. "I'm dreaming! Man! What a dream!"

REAL ENOUGH

"You're not dreaming," snapped the elf. "I'm Edgar, and though I'm an elf I'm real enough. I've come to tell you that Santa Claus is not at all pleased with the way you have been acting."

Ding Dong rocked with laughter. "Who cares?" he said disdainfully.

Edgar glared. "Your Mother and your Father are not pleased either."

"So what?" snorted Ding Dong.

"If that's the way you feel," said Edgar, "perhaps you'd like to go to Hippieville. A lot of boys and girls live there who are just like you. They don't study. They don't take baths. They stay up all night."

HERE'S HOW

"Wonderful!" cried Ding Dong. "How do I get to Hippieville?"

"Follow me," said Edgar and shooting popguns at the added with a sigh. "I hope you won't be sorry." He pulled himself up the bedroom curtains and slid out the window.

"Wait!" cried Ding Dong rushing to the window. "I can't see you!"

"Just come!" shouted Edgar. His voice sounded miles away.

A LONG CORRIDOR

Ding Dong wiggled out the window but when he dropped to the ground he wasn't outdoors at all but in a long corridor that went on and on as far as he could see.

"Wait!" he shouted again. He couldn't even hear Edgar's reply. He thought of climbing back into his bedroom but the window wasn't there. There was nothing but the long, long corridor.

He began to run. Now he wasn't at all sure he wanted to go wherever it was he was going but there didn't seem to be anything else to do except run as fast as he could to get there.

Actually it wasn't a terribly long way. Ding Dong was hardly out of breath when the corridor ended. He was in a dirty street of tumbled-down houses. He went to the nearest house and knocked on the door. There was a lot of noise inside but no one came to the door. Ding Dong pushed it open and went in.

PACKED WITH KIDS
The house was packed with kids. They were dancing on the mantel and banging on dishes and painting on the walls and

Edgar glared. "Your Mother and your Father are not pleased either."

"So what?" snorted Ding Dong.

"If that's the way you feel," said Edgar, "perhaps you'd like to go to Hippieville. A lot of boys and girls live there who are just like you. They don't study. They don't take baths. They stay up all night."

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover urges the nation's motorists to use extra caution during December.

"Most automobile drivers recognize the need for strict traffic laws, but many do not want the laws enforced strictly — except, perhaps for other drivers," said the man who is normally associated with the apprehension of major criminals.

Hoover wrote in the December issue of the FBI's Law Enforcement Bulletin that most accidents are caused by "irresponsible and careless drivers."

He urged motorists to observe traffic laws as the holidays approach, and told local and state authorities to see that regulations are realistically enforced and violators — particularly drunk drivers — properly punished.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Officials of the Atlanta Humane Society decided last week that about 100 animals at the society's animal shelter would have to be "put to sleep" to alleviate the shelter's overcrowded conditions.

The Atlanta Constitution published a story about the decision. As a result, many people showed up at the shelter Sunday and claimed new pets.

"We've released more than 100 dogs," Ralph B. Roberts, the society director, said Sunday night. "It has put us over the hump and we won't have to kill any."

Highway Patrol to Test Steam Car

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Highway Patrol says a steam engine will be tested in a patrol car early next year.

The engine was developed by Lear Motor Corp. of Reno, Nev., whose engineers say it can produce 450 horsepower and reach 130 miles an hour.

London Bridge Will Carry Arizona Town's Tourists

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — Huge bulldozers and earth movers are gouging into the desert landscape here to make a waterway for London Bridge, which will be moved here and rebuilt as a tourist attraction.

The first shipment of stones, carefully numbered and catalogued, rests in a locked enclosure nearby, awaiting completion of engineering plans and the laying of the foundation for the huge structure.

State Election Totals Show the Power of 'One Vote'

LANSING (AP) — "Why should I take the trouble to vote on election day? I've only got one vote, and that won't change anything."

A fairly common sentiment, that, but not altogether accurate—as results of the Nov. 5 general election reveal.

The official canvass of votes, completed recently, shows for instance that in statewide voting, Daylight Savings Time was defeated by just 413 votes out of some 2.8 million cast.

"Just one vote" in each of Oakland County's 463 precincts alone would have been more than enough to overturn that outcome. As it is, the vote was so close that fast-time backers are expected to seek a recount.

JUST SIX VOTES

Just six votes in each of the state's 5,576 precincts Nov. 5 could have overturned the result of the State Supreme Court race which saw Appeals Judge Thomas G. Kavanaugh, the Democratic nominee, out Republican-nominee, incumbent Justice Michael O'Hara.

Three votes per precinct in the 40th Judicial Circuit, Lapeer and Tuscola counties, would have been sufficient to give a circuit court judgeship to George Lutz, who lost to Norman Bagley by 161 votes. Lutz has petitioned for a recount.

In the 107 races for the seats in the State House of Representatives—there were no contests in three others—more than 10 per cent, or 13, were decided by margins of fewer than 3,000 votes.

The closest House race was in the five-county 109th District, where incumbent Rep. Jack Ginngrass, D-Iron Mountain, was defeated by John D. Payant of Kingsford by 318 votes.

A change in four votes per precinct in the Upper Peninsula district would have saved Ginngrass. As it is, he is expected to request a retabulation of the ballots.

Races for $18,000-a-year seats on the new district courts proved even tighter in many cases. Of 76 contested positions, 22 were awarded by margins of fewer than 1,000 votes.

In the 72nd District, St. Clair County, William V. Simpson lost out by seven votes, although more than 84,000 were cast for the six candidates in the race. Simpson wants a recount.

So does Charles Edward Silkey of Muskegon, even though he won a judgeship in the 59th District. Silkey ran third in a field of six, winning a four-year term. But he missed second place and a six-year term by 14 votes out of some $3,000 cast.

ONE IS CONTENT

But Terrence Richard Thomas of Bitley apparently is content to accept his 45-vote defeat at the hands of John P. Riley of Baldwin in the 78th lower court district, Lake and Newaygo counties. Thomas did not seek a recount before last week's deadline. The state House elections returned a slim 57-53 Democratic majority Nov. 5, but they could have gone the other way with just a few changed votes.

Democrat Jack Legel needed only 12 more votes per precinct to defeat former state workmen's compensation director Weldon Yeager in Detroit's 17th district. Fifteen votes per precinct would have ousted five-term Rep. Russell Hillman, D-

Dollar Bay. Another 18 votes per precinct would have saved Rep. Johannes Kolderman, R - Wyoming, who lost to Democrat Jelt Sitema by 693 votes. And 19 votes per precinct would have replaced Rep. James Callahan, D-Mount Morris, with Republican Harold Post.

Director Starts, 20 Years Late

Yale University 20 years ago, has finally gotten around to practicing what he studied.

THOMAS

Pakula is directing as well as producing "The Sterile Cuckoo" for Paramount with Liza Minnelli and a no-star cast. It is a departure for Pakula, who is accustomed to producing films with the likes of Gregory Peck, Natalie Wood and Steve McQueen.

"Look—I just turned 40 this year," he said. "A man has only so much time to do what he wants with his life. I wanted to direct when I was 20. I would hate to let another 20 years go by and look back and say, 'Gee, I wish I had directed back there when I could have.'"

And so, despite a highly successful partnership with director Robert Mulligan, Pakula decided to take a chance and do it himself. He chose important for them to know

"The Sterile Cuckoo," he said, "because I related to the material." The novel by John Nichols concerned the romance of a student from an all-male Eastern university and a girl from a nearby girls' school.

NATURAL LEAD

"Nichols actually wrote about Hamilton College, but the situation was very similar to what I had known at Yale," said Pakula.

Liza Minnelli was a natural choice for the girl—"She had read the book and had a strong feeling for it." For the boy Pakula chose Wendell Burton, a San Francisco State College student who had played only one previous professional role—the title character in the San Francisco company of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

"Liza and Wendell and I rehearsed for four weeks before shooting," said Pakula, "and I've never heard of a picture rehearsing that long. But I felt it was necessary. Liza and Wendell had a chance and I had never met, and I branch out on his own. He chose important for them to know each other. Eighty-five per cent of the story concerns the growth of their relationship."

HOLLYWOOD CAREER

A clean-cut fellow who resembles a college senior himself, Pakula started early in the movie business. While directing at a Little Theater in Hollywood, he was discovered by producer Don Hartman, who made him a production apprentice at MGM. When Hartman became studio head at Paramount, Pakula was appointed his assistant.

He still yearned to direct although many told him he should become a producer. Finally he accepted Hartman's counsel: "If enough people tell you you're drunk, lie down."

Pakula began by producing the Jim Piersall story, "Fear Strikes Out," with Mulligan directing. After a fling at producing on Broadway, Pakula joined with Mulligan in such films as "To Kill a Mockingbird," "Love with the Proper Stranger," "Baby, the Rain Must Fall," and "Inside Daisy Clover."

MUSICAL DICKENS

The two maintain their partnership and a musical version of "Great Expectations" is in the works. "But I want to direct more pictures," said Pakula.

PRODUCER TURNS DIRECTOR—Alan Pakula, who studied to be a director at the Yale University Drama School but jumped into producing instead, sits in the spot he's always wanted, the director's chair. He's both producer and director of "The Sterile Cuckoo," which features Liza Minnelli and a no-star cast.

Paper Streamers a Safety Device for Crop-Dusters

MELBOURNE (AP)—Toll-paper streamers thrown across high tension power lines have been suggested as a means of reducing low-flying aircraft accidents.

The State Electricity Commission of Victoria is considering the idea in an attempt to stop the 30 to 40 crop-dusting accidents that occur each year in the state.

Some crop-dusting teams already use these paper streamers to mark power lines on properties they fly over. Lines which vary in height from 20 to 60 feet can often be missed by pilots flying into the settling sun.

Will Consumers Spend?

Rule Buying a Puzzle

NEW YORK — While almost everyone was all wrapped up in the elections, the pre-Christmas shopping season was slipping quietly and unnoticed as Santa Claus brought his sleigh to rest on a snowy roof.

The problem of consumer behavior is less likely to be solved through any effort of the merchants. It depends instead on what merchants already are more than how people view the surtax on three weeks to their own part in their incomes, how they feel about Christmas season. And it's about the Vietnam war, how worried they are about inflation and so on.

For several months the consumer has maintained his high rate of spending by dipping into his savings. Before the surtax, for instance, he was saving 7.5 percent of his take-home pay. The rate is now down nearly to 5 percent and, it past figures are a gauge, won't go much lower.

There is also the question now about how long the consumer will be willing to dip into savings before calling a halt. Some or later he is bound to be disturbed by his receding reserves.

Meanwhile, so long as he dips into savings, the consumer is well supplied with buying power, and he has access to what must be considered an amazing and treely offered supply of credit. The wherewithal is there, whether it is used is quite another matter.

White House aides said during the long Thanksgiving weekend that Johnson was still considering calling the Senate back to vote on ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Presumably the chief executive will have to make up his mind this week in order to get senators rounded up and back in the capital with time for debate before the Christmas holidays.

Due in Washington today for an expected conference this week with Johnson was Ambassador Averell Harriman, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

Issues Are Analyzed in NY Teacher Strike

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League
The recently settled teachers' strike in New York City has attracted nationwide attention, and rightly so, because the issues behind it will affect most large cities sooner or later.

YOUNG

Albert Shanker, head of the United Federation of Teachers local that called the strike, says the main issue involved the transfer of some 79 teachers from the Ocean Hill-Brownsville school district, an experiment in community control.

Since teachers have always been transferred, it seems strange that the UFT would shut down the schools over this issue. When the district indicated it would be willing to let the teachers, who were transferred because they weren't in sympathy with community control, back into the classrooms, the UFT switched to another line of attack.

Shanker dug up some anti-Semitic leaflets and charged that the local district was responsible for them. The work of a handful of haters was distributed throughout the city by the UFT, releasing ugly racial antagonisms in a vain attempt to smear the local board.

The proof of the falsehood of the charges is that half the new teachers hired by the board are Jewish, and the UFT charges were denied and condemned by Jewish leaders in the city.

ANOTHER SHIFT

Now the issue was harassment, the UFT said. Teachers had been threatened. This is deplorable, but they should also have mentioned the threats received by nonstriking teachers who had to force their way into locked school buildings to teach.

The buildings were locked because the custodians, principals and supervisors were backing the UFT. Incredible, isn't it, that these managers would also strike? It's as if the top executives of U.S. Steel were to walk out in support of a steelworkers strike.

Their action is the tip-off that the real issue of the strike has nothing at all to do with transfers or harassment. The real—and only—issue is the attempt by the vested school interests in the city to kill any attempt to decentralize a system swollen with bureaucrats more concerned with security than with educating the children.

Community control threatens these people. It means that they will have to be accountable to parents for the first time. Black kids fall farther and farther behind in their reading and math, and nobody cares. Community control attempts to reverse the vicious cycle that turns the schools into failure factories.

SAW FOR HIMSELF

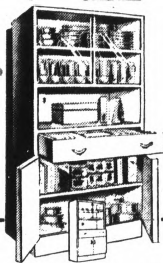

I went into the Ocean Hill-Brownsville district to see for myself whether the experiment was working. Contrary to UFT charges, I didn't see any "extremists" there. Instead, I saw dedicated young teachers who told me of the joy of teaching in a community that trusted them and supported their efforts.

I saw children making progress in reading for the first time in their lives; kids who came to school eager to learn. I met administrators like Rhody McCoy, who talked of the problems of sabotage by the central board of education last spring and the UFT this fall. But he also told me of the commitment of his teachers and the spirit of the community.

Peni Frisch—Waterford Township's Junior Miss

Waterford Girl Wins Junior Miss Cheers

Peni Frisch is a cheerleader, but the cheers were for her Saturday night when she was crowned Waterford Township's Junior Miss.

The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Frisch of 324 Durham accepted her title from last year's winner, Sheri Siebert, after competition with seven other finalists at Mason Junior High School.

In addition to earning the right to compete in the regional Junior Miss pageant at Redford Township Dec. 13-15, Peni won a $350 scholarship and 30-days use of a new automobile.

First runner-up Carol Richmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Richmond of 3895 Lakefront, was awarded a $150 scholarship.

SECOND RUNNER-UP

Patricia Arakelian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Arakelian of 4007 Crocus took second runner-up honors.

The girls were judged on the basis of personality, poise, talent, scholastic achievement and appearance. Events were individual interviews, talent competition, a youth fitness demonstration and competition in evening gowns and streetwear.

Peni, whose talent presentation was a pompon routine, carries a 3.5 scholastic average at Waterford Township High School, where she is a senior and a member of the National Honor Society.

Her pompon ability stems from her activities as captain of the school cheerleaders. In fact, she won a second place in competition at Camp All American, a cheerleaders' camp held each August in Hartland.

CAREER PLANS

Peni plans to attend Central Michigan University, with an eye on a subsequent career as an interior decorator.

Daley: Report on Strife Generally Praiseworthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley praises the bulk of a presidential commission staff report on violent demonstrations at the Democratic convention, but expresses "some reservations" about a section characterizing the violence as a "police riot."

"My only basic criticism is the summary, which, if used alone would mislead the public and be a disservice to those who prepared the report," Daley said yesterday.

The report accused officers of "unrestrained and indiscriminate police violence" by responding in kind to obscene and physical harassment by antiwar protestors.

The report was so earthy and explicit that the Government Printing Office refused to print it because an obscene four-letter word appears 82 times.

Related Stories, Pages A-2, A-7

"Over-all it is an excellent study," said Daley.

David Dellinger, a leader of the antiwar protests, said the study had "some gratifying aspects."

Daley said the bulk of the Chicago police force reacted with responsibility during the five August nights of disorder in darkened parks and downtown streets.

He said some policemen have been suspended for their part in the violence and still others face dismissal.

PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION

A special task force compiled the report for the President's commission on violence, which made it public without comment.

The White House was silent on its reaction to the report.

The task force said some police struck down innocent bystanders and peaceful protestors as well as taunting antiwar antagonists.

"To be sure, demonstrators threw things at policemen and police cars," the report said, "but the weight of violence was overwhelming on the side of the police."

POLICE MAJORITY

More than 10,000 demonstrators — actually outnumbered by the police force and National Guardsmen — converged on Chicago for the week of wild brawling that erupted, ironically, out of a protest for peace.

The report said the demonstrators showered police with obscenity and hurled objects at them.

The response, said the report, "was unrestrained and indiscriminate police violence."

LBJ to Ponder Senate Session, Meet Harriman

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A decision on whether to call a special session of the Senate and a probable briefing by his No. 1 peace negotiator await President Johnson in Washington as he ends a six-day ranch holiday.

White House aides said during the long Thanksgiving weekend that Johnson was still considering calling the Senate back to vote on ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Presumably the chief executive will have to make up his mind this week in order to get senators rounded up and back in the capital with time for debate before the Christmas holidays.

Due in Washington today for an expected conference this week with Johnson was Ambassador Averell Harriman, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

LADY BIRD HONORED TONIGHT

One of the first things on the presidential agenda, however, was a social event. The Johnsons both have been invited to a women's National Press Club dinner tonight, honoring Mrs. Johnson.

It was a quiet, mostly rainy, relaxing holiday at the LBJ Ranch for the President.

The major item of White House business over the weekend was issuance of a statement by the President Saturday, expressing sorrow over the West Virginia coal mine disaster, where 78 men were entombed. Johnson urged passage of two mine-worker safety bills he has proposed.

Shoppers Flock To Pontiac Mall To Start Buying For Christmas

Snow Is Expected to Go Away Today

About one-half inch of snow carpeted the Oakland County area yesterday, putting residents in the mood for the approaching Christmas season.

The snow, however, is expected to disappear today as temperatures bounce into the low 40s and cloudy skies bring threats of occasional light drizzle through tomorrow.

POSSIBLE RAIN

Little temperature change is expected tonight with the low due to be in the 32-34-degree range.

The weatherman predicts that skies will remain cloudy Wednesday as the mercury drops.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are: today and tonight 20 and tomorrow 50.

U.S., Hanoi Air Santa Seen as Everyone Expanded Talks Makes the Shopping Scene

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese diplomats have begun private meetings in Paris looking toward the opening soon of the expanded Vietnam peace conference, informed sources said today.

The preliminary U.S.-North Vietnamese discussions are being held in anticipation that the South Vietnamese delegations will arrive late this week.

The American and North Vietnamese representatives are reported working on arrangements for a preliminary procedural meeting attended by representatives of the four groups who will sit at the conference.

U.S. diplomats expect a double-track negotiation when the conference gets under way.

One of the tracks would deal primarily with the military situation and ways to scale down the fighting. The United States would be deeply involved in this bargaining, which could produce limited agreements at an early stage.

The other track would involve political affairs in South Vietnam, would be handled mainly by the Vietnamese and would probably move at a slow pace for months.

"I saw Santa, I really did."

This phrase was uttered by hundreds of children who accompanied their parents shopping at area stores over the weekend. Some parents stood in line with their children for more than an hour to see the jovial man of the season.

The hundreds of shoppers who turned out Friday and Saturday at Pontiac Mall, Miracle Mile and Tel-Huron shopping centers and downtown and other area stores started the onrush of Christmas buying for this year.

"It's all busy, all over the whole store," remarked Cindy G. Ellis, a clerk at J.L. Hudson's at the Mall on Saturday. "I don't know whether it was busier Friday or Saturday," she added.

FRIDAY, SATURDAY 'HECTIC'

Veda Schumacher, who works in the wrapping department at Montgomery Ward, said: "We have been doing Christmas wrapping for over a month but these two days have been terrifically hectic."

Officials at the main office of the J. C.

Penney Department Store at Miracle Mile predicted this year's sales volume will exceed last year's judging from business over the weekend and for the last month in general.

The Christmas buying season is four days shorter than a year ago because Thanksgiving comes four days later, but downtown merchants are anticipating an increase in sales this year.

Waterford School Vote Nears

Waterford Township School District voters will go to the polls Saturday to decide two school issues, one of which will raise their taxes.

Approval of a $10.8-million bond issue for school construction will not increase taxes, but okay of a 9-mill operating tax will.

The 9-mill tax hike will cost taxpayers nine cents per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (SEV) for two years in addition to the current 32.7 mills being levied.

Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe says the tax hike will:

• Return junior and senior high school students to full-day sessions.

• This would enable Mt. High School to be accredited by the time of its graduating class next year," Tatroe says.

• Increase the staff of the learning improvement center, which helps children with learning disabilities.

• Provide funds for other remedial reading help to all elementary children who need it.

• Continue to provide money for the school district to give students a reasonably adequate educational program.

• Improve school maintenance and provide money for teacher salary demands.

'CAN'T MAINTAIN LEVEL'

If the millage fails, the school district would not even be able to operate at its current level next year, according to the superintendent.

Tatroe explains that if the SEV of the property is $6,000 per year the cost of the tax hike would be $4 a year or 15 cents per day. A $9,000 SEV would be 22 cents per day.

The tax increase is being asked for two years because "it's very difficult to look beyond two years with any degree of accuracy as to what the situation will be with respect to salaries and finance," explains Tatroe.

Waterford Township school taxes are not high, says Tatroe.

"Our operating tax rate is 18th among Oakland County's 28 school districts."

"We have moderate taxes but our low tax-raising ability, due to the absence of substantial industry in the community, produces relatively fewer dollars to operate the school system."

Russians Believed in S. Viet as Red Advisers

From Our News Wires
DA NANG, Vietnam — U.S. intelligence sources said today the Marines have evidence Russian troops may be advising North Vietnamese Army units around Da Nang.
No Russian troops have been confirmed as having been spotted in South Vietnam. There have been occasional reports of Chinese Communist army officers being noticed.
The U.S. sources said a Vietnamese farmer walked into a Leatherneck camp and said North Vietnamese troops had captured him and led him blindfolded to a mountain hideout after he had refused to carry wounded Communist troops.
FOUR BLOND MEN
The farmer, in the hideout 10 days, noticed four men who were "blond and fair-complected." He took them for Americans.
He said they also wore a strange insignia on the right breast pocket. On request, the farmer sketched the insignia. He drew a hammer and sickle.
Shown a book of military uniforms from around the world, the farmer pointed out the picture of a Russian army officer as the uniform worn by the four men in the mountain camp.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said yesterday on television that the Soviet Union has an obligation to make a "maximum effort" to help end the Vietnam war now that the United States has stopped bombing North Vietnam.
TALKS NEXT WEEK
Rusk said he expects the Vietnam talks in Paris to resume next week. He said "we expect during this next week" that members of South Vietnam's delegation will arrive in Paris for the expanded talks.
Meanwhile, President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam has ordered a 24-hour Christmas-New Year's ceasefire, a government spokesman said today.
There was no word if the Vietcong and North Vietnamese would observe the pause, to be the 12th since 1961, and to run from 6 p.m. Christmas Eve until 24 hours later.
He said it would honor both Christmas and New Year's appearing to rule out separate cease-fire for each.

U.S. PLANES HIT DMZ
U.S. planes and artillery yesterday attacked a North Vietnamese position in the demilitarized zone after two U.S. reconnaissance planes were fired on, the U.S. command said.
It was the first incident of enemy activity reported since Tuesday in the zone separating North and South Vietnam.
The U.S. attacks in the zone destroyed four bunkers and 100 yards of trenches and set off secondary explosion. The American planes were not hit.
U.S. headquarters also reported 717 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops were killed in heavy fighting on three sides of Saigon in the past week. U.S. casualties were put at 37 dead and 142 wounded, while South Vietnam a few casualties were described as light.
In the air war, six waves of American B-52s dropped more than 1,000 tons of bombs yesterday and today along an arc north of Saigon.

Many Risk Health, AMA Board Warns

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — All too many Americans are endangering their health through dissipation while laboring under the illusion that miracles of medicine alone will keep them well, some leaders of organized medicine report.
The board of trustees of the American Medical Association, in a special report to the AMA's 22nd clinical convention yesterday, said:
"Our affluence has reduced physical exertion and increased overeating, excess drinking, smoking, late hours and drug consumption."
"Advice of the physician is too often ignored and slighted. The sense of well-being resulting from our progress leads many people to assume that illness can

A staff report of the President's Commission on Violence, released in Washington yesterday, details clashes between police and demonstrators during the Democratic National Convention.

Birmingham Lunch Is Held After Opening of Parking Site

BIRMINGHAM — Businessmen here were hosts to a luncheon for construction workers in Birmingham's new parking structure on Pierce Street following grand opening ceremonies last week.
The $1.7-million structure is being built by the parking authority at the corner of Merrill and Pierce streets. When completed it will hold 736 automobiles.

The structure was originally scheduled for completion well in advance of the 1968 Christmas shopping season. However, due to work stoppages during the summer months, the scheduled completion date was delayed.
Prospects for any spaces being available in the structure for the Christmas season looked grim earlier this fall. However, 250 parking spaces were made available last week for Birmingham shoppers. A. J. Elkin, Inc., the contractor, said he anticipates making available an additional 125 spaces within a week.
With Birmingham's traditional men's night set for the many hundreds of stag shoppers expected to visit the stores tonight, the extra parking facilities will be welcomed.
The City Commission and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce decided the men responsible for this achievement should be saluted and thanked.

Temperatures Higher

November Not as Wet as Usual

Gardeners and home owners should check their evertrees before the hard freeze of winter hits to make sure they have had enough moisture because November precipitation was below normal.
In an average November, Oakland County residents can expect between 1.77 and 2.73 inches of precipitation. Last month the accumulation totaled 1.66 inches plus one inch of snow.
This compared to 48 one-hundredths of an inch in November 1967 plus 1 1/2 inches of rain and 13 inches of snow.
HIGH OF 74 DEGREES
High temperature for the month was a summer-like 74 degrees on Nov. 1. This compared to the November 1967 high of 56 degrees. Last month's low of 22 degrees (reached on Nov. 10) was six degrees warmer than the previous November low.
The month's mean was 39.25 degrees as compared to last November's 34.7 degrees. The area's average mean temperature for November is 40.4 degrees.

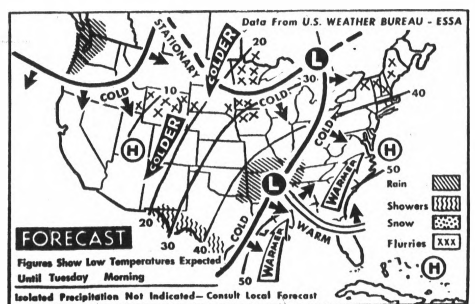

Sun worshippers basked in their idol's warming rays only 15 days during November, one more day of sunshine than the previous November.
No sleet storms troubled motorists during the month, adding a bright spot of hope that perhaps this winter will follow the Farmer's Almanac's predictions and be warmer.

Snow clouds brought showers of silvery white on four days during the month, just enough to put early-bird shoppers in the mood for their buying for Christmas.

Violence Laws Chairman's Aim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee looking into disorders in Chicago during the Democratic National Convention hopes hearings that resume today will lead to legislation aimed at preventing similar outbreaks.
Democrat Richard Ichord of Missouri also said that he will not tolerate circus-like antics that plagued an early subcommittee hearing and inquiries conducted by the parent House Committee on Un-American Activities.
The hearings, expected to last a week, come after the President's commission on violence released a report saying Chicago police, although under tremendous strain, were to blame for most of the convention disorders.
Ichord, said Chicago Mayor Richard Daley "definitely will not appear." He said Daley's representatives "have adequately represented his views."

RETURNING TO COMBAT — Capt. Joe Marn, a Medal of Honor winner, is going back to Vietnam. Marn, 27, gave up a desk job as a general's aide to head an airborne unit. He is the first of 61 Vietnam winners of the nation's highest award for bravery to return to combat.

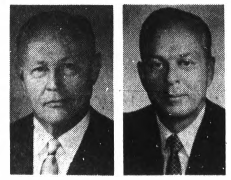

Conviction of Ex-Supervisor Voided, Says County Judge

The conviction two years ago of former Royal Oak Township Supervisor Edward L. Kennedy for perjury before a grand jury has been voided by the Michigan Court of Appeals, according to an Oakland County Circuit Judge.
Judge Frederick C. Ziem said it is his opinion that the Appeals Court, in reversing his court order remanding the case back to a lower court, has in effect dismissed the conviction.
The Appeals Court ruled Friday that Ziem did not have the jurisdiction to send the case back to the Justice Court when it set aside the conviction last February on another legal technicality.
At that time the Appeals Court reversed the conviction because at the preliminary examination in Justice Court, the prosecution had failed to have a witness testify that Kennedy was under oath when he allegedly made false statements to the grand jury.
COURT ERROR
Testimony providing the perjury was given at the trial before Ziem, however. Kennedy was sentenced to 1 1/2 to 15 years in prison. He never served the sentence since the case was being appealed.
The latest upset apparently resulted from the fact that the Appeals Court, in ruling on the first appeal, did not order that the case be remanded back to Ziem to be corrected.
Kennedy, who is still facing bribery charges stemming from the grand jury of Oakland County Circuit Judge Philip Pratt, was found guilty in November, 1966 of lying when he testified that he had not accepted a bribe and that no other township official had accepted an illegal payoff.
Since the grand jury that issued the perjury indictment against Kennedy is no longer in existence, chances are that there are no further steps that can be taken against Kennedy in the perjury case, Ziem said.

The report concludes the police involved in the violence were a minority of Chicago's 12,000-man force, but it says the taint falls on all.
The report also notes that police training forbids the use of nightsticks except when absolutely necessary. And it points out that police are ordered never to hit a person on the head with the club.
Daley said yesterday 10 policemen have been suspended for failing to wear identification during the disorders and four others "face dismissal proceedings for the use of excessive force."
The violence broke out on the eve of the convention Aug. 25 as police invoked a curfew to clear demonstrators from a park.
Police chased retreating protesters through the streets of Chicago's Old Town, a nightclub and Bohemian area. The scene was repeated the next night with even more fury.

Exec Is Retiring, 2 Are Promoted

Pontiac Motor Division today announced the retirement of one executive and the promotion of two other area men.

Harold E. Milliken, 420 N. Glenhurst, Bloomfield Township, will retire at the end of this month under the provisions of the General Motors retirement program.
William W. Harris of Madison Heights will replace him as assistant general sales manager, central and western regions.
Milliken, a 33-year sales veteran with the division, joined Pontiac in 1935 as a district manager in the Cleveland area. He moved from there in the same capacity to the Washington zone and was named assistant zone manager in New York, followed by a promotion to zone manager in Cincinnati.
Milliken was later named manager of the Chicago zone and in 1956 became manager of the Pontiac zone. He was promoted to Central regional manager in 1963 and assistant general sales manager two years ago.
Gerald J. Schulte of 1185 Westwood, Birmingham, has been named assistant general sales manager in charge of Central Office administration, a new position.
He will be in charge of the fleet sales, organization and analysis, dealer survey, business management, used car sales and car distribution departments as well as the Pontiac Retail Store, the staff systems analyst and office manager.
His appointment will be effective Jan. 1.
Schulte joined Pontiac 32 years ago. From 1936 through 1946, he was a member of the Pontiac sales staff. He has been zone manager in Kansas City, Pontiac and Chicago.
In May, 1957, he was promoted to Midwest regional manager and became Central regional manager two years ago.

Israel Air, Land Raids Are Claimed by Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Israel pounded Jordan with air strikes, commando raids and artillery barrages yesterday and today, a Jordanian spokesman said.
Admitting only a raid by land forces and an artillery exchange, an Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv said commandos cut a highway and railroad between Jordan's capital and its only port, yesterday, by blowing up two bridges 40 miles inside the Arab country.
The Jordanian spokesman said Israeli jets bombed a convoy of trucks on a desert highway yesterday, destroying six. During the night, he continued, jets returned to bomb the village of Kfar Yuba in northern Jordan, killing two soldiers and wounding a third.
The spokesman said helicopters brought the Israeli commandos who blew up 100-foot road and rail bridges on the highway between Amman and the port of Aqaba.
He said two civilians were killed and four were injured, and the helicopters took the commandos out before Jordanian troops arrived.
The Israeli spokesman said the raid was in retaliation for at least 50 Arab sabotage attacks from Jordan since Nov. 16, when King Hussein and the sabotage groups were reported to have reached an agreement restraining the saboteurs.
The Jordanian spokesman also charged that Israeli gunners precipitated a three-hour artillery duel yesterday by shelling the town of Irbid from the occupied Golan Heights in Syria. He said two children and an adult civilian were wounded.
The Israelis said the Jordanians started it by shelling a number of farm settlements in the Beisan Valley, causing slight damage and injuring one person.
Meanwhile Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban prepared to resume talks in Cyprus today with Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden, the U.N. peace officer for the Middle East. Jarring then flies to Egypt Wednesday and to Jordan Saturday.
In a television interview yesterday, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan called for a "more intensive and radical effort toward integrating the West Bank and the Gaza Strip into Israel — economic integration not political."

Young Housewife Likes to Clown in Spare Time

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Part of the time Mrs. Wesley Howley is a wife and mother of four children. The rest of the time she is jingles, a combination "of every funny clown I've ever seen."

The young housewife, a member of the Richmond Alley of the Clowns, puts on her clown outfit and makeup and performs for various functions as a non-talking, bell-clanking, benevolently smiling clown.

"Just before my daughter was born 12 years ago, I broke my foot, and that's when I started reading about clowns," she explains. "I've always laughed at them. My jingles is just funny; he has no messages. I just want to make people laugh."

Now one room of her home is completely "clown." It has walls covered with clown portraits, shelves and tables holding clown dolls, lamps and books of every description.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

This is Group Therapy. I am using my column to bring a lot of my readers together in order to consider a mutual problem—overweight.

Today I am printing a success story from one of the women who lost overweight successfully with my help. This letter will inspire those who have been procrastinating and make all of you feel part of a group. I think my readers who do not need to lose pounds will also find the letter interesting.

Gather around! DEAR MRS. LOWMAN, In the last week of 1967 I made a personal, FIRM NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION to diet. I am short, small boned, and I weighed 135 pounds. I had lost my mouth in my fat face and my large eyes looked medium. In truth, I never gave myself a clear sharp look in the mirror because it grieved me. It was hard to believe that it was me!

Then, like a surprise from the blue, one of your articles about reducing appeared almost on the day I had pledged to myself so earnestly to rediscover the lost and hidden me. I read it over and over again. I held my calorie intake to 1200 a day. I now weigh 113 pounds. I am "with it" now and plan to stay that way.

It's been an experience! I have been through all of the various phases and was discouraged by the slowness of weight loss at times, but you kept pitching in the local paper, and I kept pitching too. Through the weeks I've about pinpointed my appetite down to my size. AND THANK GOODNESS, I have gained knowledge about my motivation for food!

I can hardly believe it now when I look into the mirror at my image and see me really there.

I think there are two important points made in this letter. In the first place, it is a good idea to remember how you looked before gaining weight. The eye becomes accustomed to anything it sees often enough. Thus, a woman becomes accustomed to the way she looks. She may forget how much more attractive she could appear.

Self image is very important! It is certain to influence you either one way or the other, for better or for worse.

Second, it is most helpful if a reducer discovers why she overeats. Is it when you are worried or unhappy for some

No Severance Pay Balm for Ousted Appointees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The balm of a fair severance pay check isn't in store for politically appointed federal employees who will be fired by the incoming Nixon administration.

The U.S. Civil Service Commission yesterday has advised all federal agencies that they cannot provide severance pay to any political appointees not protected by Civil Service laws.

The commission said it changed its regulations to prevent a "windfall" of severance payments to such noncareer employees.

"When an employee accepts an appointment to a schedule C position, or a noncareer executive assignment, he does so with the realization that he will be subject to separation with a change of administration or a change of superiors," the commission said in a memorandum to the agencies. Severance pay is not designed to aid an employee who is serving under an appointment which does not have indefinite tenure."

POSTS TO BE FILLED

Saturday, it was disclosed that President-elect Richard M. Nixon has sent down orders that he wants all major policy positions in his administration filled by the time he takes office Jan. 20.

More than 2,300 policy positions in the government are expected to be filled by the new administration, indicating that a number of Johnson administration employees will leave voluntarily or be ousted by the Republican administration.

Nixon himself is selecting about 300 of the highest-echelon officials, including members of the cabinet. He has not yet announced any cabinet appointments.

Harry S. Fleming, Nixon's personal chief of staff, said "traditionally, little more than the cabinet and perhaps subcabinet has been filled when past presidents moved into office."

"The goal is to have every policy job in the government filled by inauguration day," he said. "This may be difficult but we're trying to do it."

'68 Hurricane Season Ends

Heavy Damage Toll, 11 Dead Since June 1

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — After howling up seven storms that left 11 persons dead and caused millions in property damage, the 1968 hurricane season slid into the record books Sunday with a bang and a puff.

As the National Hurricane Center at Miami declared an official end to the storm season, temperatures over the areas where the tropical tempests are spawned were in the 80s and only breezes were recorded.

However, on the first day of the season, June 1, Hurricane Abby formed off Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and roared across western Cuba. The storm, whose winds never exceeded 75 miles per hour, slashed ashore near Punta Gorda, Fla., and crossed Florida near Cape Kennedy, causing minor damage.

In Cuba it left six dead and caused damage estimated at $450,000.

HEADED AWAY

Brenda formed June 21 some 300 miles east of Jacksonville in the Atlantic and headed toward the Northeast, away from the U.S. mainland.

Two days after Brenda was born, Candy came to life in the Gulf of Mexico and whirled into Texas, causing damage estimated at $273,000.

FIVE WERE KILLED

Gladys hit the Tampa Bay area Oct. 18 and swirled across the state toward St. Augustine. It left five dead and damage estimated at $6,700,000.

Although the June storms provided the earliest intensive activity since 1886, Weather Bureau records show that only Abby, Candy and Gladys caused property damage and that amounted to a total of $7,423,000.

WIND PATTERNS

Davis said part of the reason lies in the wind patterns and that there weren't enough easterlies over the tropics this year.

"If these don't develop, you just don't have the criteria for storm development," he said.

BASHFUL FLOWER CHILD

BATS IN HIS BATHROOM

Many Britons Have a Touch of Whimsy

(EDITOR'S NOTE — From lords to commoners, many Englishmen have a most whimsical way about them. Their odd, unconventional notions surprise their more staid and steady countrymen.)

BY RONALD THOMAS
LONDON (AP) — The Earl of Cranbrook exercises bats in his bathroom.

Sir Wistan Dixie had a beer-drinking contest with a pony.

Leonard Lowry often sits on the floor of a crowded bus to the family dog can have his seat.

Eccentrics are dotted over the English scene, constantly amazing more mundane people with their weird and wonderful notions. For more than 30 years the London weekly New Statesman has been noting such individual and national peculiarities in a column called "This England."

POPULAR FEATURE

It's one of the most popular features in British journalism, contributed largely by the weekly's own readers.

The Earl and his bats in the bathroom figure in a new collection of gems from the column. Lord Cranbrook was quoted as saying: "I keep the bats for about three months, feed them well and let them go. My recipe for a dinner that bats like is equal parts of egg yolk, cream cheese and banana."

Sir Wistan's beer drinking contest was with a chestnut pony also named Dixie. The aim was to establish which of them could drink a pint of ale faster. The pony won in 6½ seconds.

Lowry the dog-lover said in a letter to an English newspaper:

"When we travel together on a crowded bus it has proved impossible for the dog to stand in the gangway without being brutally kicked. So I always give the dog my seat and at times on long journeys I sit on the floor ignoring the callous laughter of other passengers."

Fondness for animals is a recurring theme. One lady complained to a policeman: "When my Alsatian dog saw a girl in a topless dress he hung his head in shame."

There was a despair in a letter published by the Communist Daily Worker after it announced that it was changing its name to the Morning Star.

"A year ago," the writer said, "I bought a mynah bird and after months of hard work I am proud to say I got it to shout: 'Read the Daily Worker.' Ye merry gods, now you're changing the paper's name."

One London housewife outlined a highly individual concern:

BOWLS HER OVER

"My husband is a shy man, and whenever he brings flowers home to me he conceals them under his bowler hat. As a result they have to be little flowers and tend to smell of hair cream."

"Surely there must be some other way in which self-conscious men cope with this problem."

Water Buffalo 'Schools Need Humanist View' Dies; Tourist Lure on Oahu

HONOLULU — Tourists in buses and rented cars making a circuit of Oahu island seldom resisted the impulse to take a picture of a scene that seemed to plunge them into Southeast Asia.

Focal point of the scene was a water buffalo, which for seven years has been residing near the roadside in the taro fields of the Waialeale Pio Factory.

That water buffalo, known as "Boy," has died.

Boy's greatest love was to stand in the shade near the roadside banana stand of his owner, Tokujiro Arashiro, and pose for pictures. Besides the chore, his other favorite pastime was to take the neighborhood children out for a ride on his brawny back.

Boy was rented out to the poi factory to work in the water-covered taro fields and also worked in Arashiro's banana and papaya groves.

Boy's death has decreased the water buffalo population in Hawaii by a sizable percentage. The only other water buffalo on Oahu is one at the Honolulu zoo. It is believed the only others in the state are two or three on Kauai Island.

Small Fire Hits Governor's Home

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A fire in the governor's mansion damaged the second-story bedroom of Nina Laxalt, 11-year-old daughter of Gov. Paul Laxalt. No one was hurt.

A family spokesman said Nina and several friends were playing with a Christmas candle Saturday night before a drapery caught fire. Besides the drapery, one wall was damaged slightly.

Writer Discusses European Needs, French Obligation

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Jacques Servan-Schreiber, French author and publisher, says President Charles de Gaulle's successor "must do a big thing, which is to build the economic unity of Europe."

Servan-Schreiber said Sunday the 78-year-old French president's weakness was his strong sense of nationalism.

The author added, "I am very optimistic of what will happen after De Gaulle."

He was interviewed on the NBC-TV program "Meet the Press."

continue on the "road to excellence."

This is the view of Dr. Percy Julian, chemist and founder of the Julian Research Institute in Chicago. He expressed his ideas during a lecture at the Northern Illinois University campus.

He said today's educators are "the most sophisticated but... the most confused society of scholars ever to inhabit the earth."

He called on the nation's educators to provide a new definition of morality and restore humanism in man's search for truth and knowledge.

He said unless educators can overcome the emphasis on development of marketable skills, "it is doubtful our educational system can develop in abundance those scholars who can hear and feel the throbbing heart of men."

Trading Is Heavy

Stock Market Continues Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued its rally today, trading was heavy.

The ticker tape was late as gains outnumbered losses by around 250 issues on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average was less than 10 points away from its closing high as it rose nearly 3 points on its first trading.

Gulf & Western, up about a point, and National Airlines, up a fraction, were early volume leaders, thanks to big blocks.

Steels and motors were generally higher, rubbers and building materials mixed.

Ling-Temco-Vought and another U.S. deficit in foreign trade.

Loew's Theatres climbed about 2 points. Gains of around a point were posted for Boeing, GAF Corp., Chrysler, Du Pont, C.I.T. Financial and Polaroid.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS

American Smelting lost more than a point, down fractionally were Jones & Laughlin, United Aircraft, U.S. Gypsum and Southern California Edison.

When trading began, the market had a background of encouraging economic news which included a rise in construction prices and spreading price increases in the steel industry. This appeared to outweigh news.

Impact Looms in Utility Strike

New York Is Bracing for Big Industry Drain

NEW YORK (AP) — The real impact of the strike against Consolidated Edison Co. affecting nine million users of electricity and gas was expected to be felt beginning today, the first weekday of the walkout. State Station Board Chairman Vincent D. McDonnell, after meeting with both sides Sunday night, said there had been no movement. "It could be a long strike."

The weather in parts of the country helped set the mood. Three snowfalls in a bit more than a week buried the fall in some northeastern communities. And heavy snows along the Canadian border came on time.

But in most ways the early onset of the Christmas season was predetermined by merchants hoping to have a big year and feeling they must catch the consumer while he was in a spending mood.

NO WEEKEND PRESENTATIONS

The company's 4,000 supervisors, manned the installations, and the weekend presented no major problems.

Work days are another matter, with the use of industrial power going into high gear. The company has urged customers to limit use of electricity during peak load hours of 4 p.m. and 9 p.m.

William J. Ronan, head of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, said the subway can keep running unless there is a complete loss of power. He said the system has alternate power sources.

Last Wednesday, the employees, members of the AFL-CIO Utility Workers Union, voted down a tentative two-year contract agreement worth $59.2 million.

$17.48 SPREAD

The contract would have given the workers, who received an average of $14.3 a week, increases ranging from $17 to $48 a week.

The men reportedly objected to provisions involving pensions, paid vacations and premium pay for holiday work.

To avoid confrontation with pickets over the weekend, the company provided food, brought in by trucks for those in the plants, and sleeping facilities.

Police said more than 85 pickets lay down in a truck exit at the Astoria, Queens, plant early Sunday but were cleared by 40 police who made no arrests.

Rebels Vow More Unrest at SF State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Student demonstrators say they plan more disruptions at the opening today of San Francisco State College. Authorities pressed swift reaction.

The new president, Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, said he would keep the school open. He said this was the wish of the "vast majority" of the 18,000 students, and 1,000 faculty members who want to go with education.

The Black Student Union, joined by the Third World Liberation Front, called a strike Nov. 6, demanding the reinstatement of a militant Negro instructor, more courses on Negro subjects and the admission of all Negro students, regardless of qualifications. After class boycotts by students and teachers and some disorders, the school was closed Nov. 22.

The Third World Liberation Front represents non-Caucasians other than Negroes.

On Saturday, Hayakawa declared a state of emergency, saying those who were not nearby if needed, and students and faculty members disrupting classes can be dealt with quickly.

A biochemist believes that in the future it will be possible to remove the bitter taste from some foods, making certain protein-rich but presently unpalatable food available for better nutrition.

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — While almost everyone was all wrapped up in the election, the pre-Christmas selling season slipped into town as quietly and unnoticed as Santa Claus bringing his sleigh rest on a snowy roof.

In some areas the black and orange colors of Halloween and rustic mood of Halloween were even dispelled when the red and green trimmings of Christmas went up. Election loudspeakers sometimes vied with carols.

The weather in parts of the country helped set the mood. Three snowfalls in a bit more than a week buried the fall in some northeastern communities. And heavy snows along the Canadian border came on time.

But in most ways the early onset of the Christmas season was predetermined by merchants hoping to have a big year and feeling they must catch the consumer while he was in a spending mood.

MUCH ANXIETY

There's a lot of anxiety about this season, even though the popular forecasts call for a seven per cent sales increase over a year ago. Merchants aren't relaxing.

First, there are four fewer shopping days this year between Thanksgiving and Christmas. If buyers aren't motivated to buy early, this shorter season could be reflected in disappointing receipts.

William J. Ronan, head of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, said the subway can keep running unless there is a complete loss of power. He said the system has alternate power sources.

Last Wednesday, the employees, members of the AFL-CIO Utility Workers Union, voted down a tentative two-year contract agreement worth $59.2 million.

A biochemist believes that in the future it will be possible to remove the bitter taste from some foods, making certain protein-rich but presently unpalatable food available for better nutrition.

Yule Buying a Puzzle

Secondly, there's the usual question this year about the consumer. It's in a poor mood, as many merchants have learned he has been for the past two Christmas seasons, receipts could fall below estimates.

OUTSIDE EFFECTS

The problem of consumer behavior is less likely to be solved through any effort of the merchants. It depends instead on how people view the surtax on their incomes, how they feel about the Vietnam war, how worried they are about inflation and so on.

For several months the consumer has maintained his high rate of spending by dipping into his savings. Before the surtax, for instance, he was saving 7.5 per cent of his take-home pay. The rate is now down nearly to 5 per cent and, if past figures are a gauge, won't go much lower.

Close Election in Venezuela

Slim Presidential Lead

CARACAS (AP) — Rafael Caldera of the opposition Social Christian party lengthened a slim lead this morning over five other candidates in early returns from Venezuela's presidential election.

MONEY'S NOT ENOUGH

As tests of consumer behavior indicate, today's buyer doesn't go out and purchase merely because he has the money available. Those days ended little by little during the past couple of decades.

A Caracas television station announced unofficial returns from 1.5 million votes giving Caldera a 72,000-vote edge over Barrios.

Nixon Meets Again With Brain Truster

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon meets today with Henry Kissinger, a Harvard brain trust, to their fourth public appearance since the election.

This coincides with reports around the Nixon headquarters that an important noncabinet appointment would be announced today.

SMALL LEAD

In the congressional elections, the Nationalist Civic Crusade, a party faithful to ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, had a small 2,000-vote lead over Accion Democratica with 100,000 votes tallied.

A huge security force was on guard during the voting Sunday, but only one incident of violence was reported. A military source said unidentified gunmen fired on an army patrol in Caracas slum suburb early in the morning.

The unusually peaceful election day came after a hard-hitting but also peaceful campaign estimated to have cost $22 million.

The campaign lacked emotional overtones. The opposition stressed a need for change, while the Accion Democratica party ran on its record compiled since it assumed power in 1958. Romulo Betancourt was elected president in 1958.

The six presidential candidates pledged that they would abide by the election results, and so did President Raul Leoni, who is constitutionally ineligible to succeed himself. His term expires in March.
