

Ford, Griffin Hit Safety 'Sensationalism'

GERALD R. FORD

It would be a serious mistake to make auto designers out of federal bureaucrats, Michigan's newest U.S. Senator, Robert P. Griffin, declared today.

Griffin and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford claimed the sensationalism of the Senate hearings on auto safety tend to distort the problem.

"It is essential that the role of auto design and manufacture in traffic safety be kept in perspective," said Griffin.

The new senator said the consequences could severely jolt the entire economy.

He urged Congress to "go slow in this area . . . and allow the industry time to do a better job of regulating itself."

SAME THEME

Ford, the House minority leader, sounded essentially the same key as his GOP colleague.

"There is danger in the sensationalism," added Ford.

Both Michigan legislators saw a usefulness in the auto safety hearings.

Said Ford: "I am not trying to minimize the seriousness of a development of this kind. But I do believe there is a temptation under the circumstances to try to pin most automobile accidents on the manufacturer, saying he simply isn't engineering enough safety into his product."

MANY FACTORS

"Of course, we want safety built into our cars, but we must not lose sight of the fact that auto accidents are caused by a variety of factors — and it is highly unusual to find the kind of potential hazard in new automobiles which GM is now taking steps to eliminate in 1.5 million of its cars."

Commenting on a potential hazard reported in reference to possible accelerator sticking on certain 1965 Chevrolets and 1964 and 1965 Chevelles, Ford said:

"Testimony making GM out to be a villain is obscuring the fact that GM knows of only five incidents resulting from this potential hazard."

"Also drowned out by the shouting is the fact that no injuries occurred in any of the five incidents."

Ford added that he thought the House, slated to begin auto safety hearings later this month, would pass highway safety and tire safety bills in some form this year.

The GOP House chief pointed out that the drop in car sales may be an indicator of potential trouble with the economy and the sensational nature of the hearings certainly had not helped car sales.

"The auto industry is the bell-

Foes Attack College Plan for Osteopaths

Expansion of existing medical schools rather than establishment of a Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine was last night labeled the cheapest and best way to meet the need for more doctors.

This is what opponents, mostly medical doctor representatives and the heads of existing medical schools, told state legislators last night at a hearing in Lansing before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The projected osteopathic college is planned for a 164-acre site at Auburn and Odyke.

College advocates contended it is discrimination for the state to support the training of medical doctors but not of osteopaths.

Osteopaths, they said, serve one-third of the state's population and make a unique contribution to health care.

WITNESSES TALK

A dozen witnesses appeared before the committee in a four-hour hearing on a Senate-passed proposal to create a State Osteopathic College Authority.

The bill, already approved by the House Senate Affairs Committee, would commit the state to help pay operating costs of the proposed osteopathic college at Pontiac, said Rep. Elmer Eriksen, D-Escanaba, ways and means chairman.

The bill would create an authority to govern the new medical school, but an appropriation provision was deleted when the measure passed the Senate.

Deans of the medical colleges at the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and Michigan State University argued medical education must be centered at universities, which

Districting Bill for Counties Clears House

A compromise bill that would reduce the number of members on the Oakland County Board of Supervisors from 86 to between 25 and 35 was passed in the State House of Representatives yesterday.

The bill calls for the one man-one vote districting to start with the 1968 election.

The Senate has yet to act on the proposal, worked out by a House-Senate conference committee.

Backers of one man-one vote county apportionment had hoped for redistricting this year. But House Republicans blocked immediate effect for apportionment measures.

The House adopted the conference committee version 72-24 with no debate.

House Minority Leader Rep. Robert Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe, tried, however, to have the vote delayed until after the House decided on a county home rule proposal.

Some Republicans have contended the apportionment measure violates a constitutional provision that every township must have a representative on the board of supervisors.

POW WOW — Kindergarten pupils (from left) Edward Perez of 1039 LaSalle, Marie Walsh of 345 Scott Lake and Thomas Ott of 1124 Holbrook, all of Waterford Township, are performers in Donaldson Elementary School's PTA program in observance of Michigan Week.

Students Extra Busy M-Week

Although today is "Education Day," students in the Waterford Township School District aren't limiting their Michigan Week events to a single day.

They've been placing emphasis on the township in various programs and exhibits all week. Township history, places of interest and unique products are in the spotlight.

Scheduled this week are breakfasts and luncheons featuring Michigan products, musical salutes to the state, displays by pupils, open houses, assemblies, field events and other activities.

Typical of the events scheduled in the elementary schools are programs at Donaldson, Waterford Village, Cooley and Burt Schools.

Highlight of secondary school activities was Monday night's Michigan Week honors banquet at Mason Junior High School in which 94 outstanding senior students were honored.

Theme of Donaldson School's activities is "Festivals of Michigan." Pupils of all grades have prepared festival displays for an exhibit in the school's gymnasium.

The kindergarten pupils of Mrs. Gail Authier and Mrs. Barbara Ruelle presented a program entitled "An Indian Pow Wow" at the school's PTA meeting today.

Other festivals also were presented at the program which included singing and dancing.

The school band, orchestra and chorus performed and 18 fifth graders demonstrated physical fitness.

SCHOOL THEME

At Waterford Village School, the theme is "Creativity of Michigan People—Both Pioneer and Contemporary."

Displays are on exhibit in the school lobby throughout the week. The school chorus presented a program at 1:15 p.m. yesterday.

Today, fourth graders competed in a track and field demonstration at 1 p.m., following a luncheon for parents.

At Burt School, the 175 members of the chorus are participating in a Michigan Week "Salute to Our State in Music and Pictures."

At Cooley School, fourth and fifth graders prepared meals featuring Michigan products for breakfast and lunch Tuesday.

Plant Closing Curbs Urged

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The president of the United Steelworkers of America says his union should join forces with the United Auto Workers to halt "unilateral action," by industry in closing obsolete plants and throwing veteran workers out of their jobs.

I. W. Abel told the UAW's 20th constitutional convention yesterday the two giant unions should "join forces and work together . . . to see what we can do jointly, rather than working separately on problems we can solve together."

"The mere decision of a company to go out of business is insufficient," Abel said at a news conference afterward.

Both labor contracts and federal legislation should provide for phasing out of plants and equipment, he said.

A union official said it seemed likely negotiations might be reopened for skilled tradesmen in the auto industry to obtain higher wages before new contract talks in 1967.

Buddhists Shun Cong Efforts to Exploit Turmoil

Monks Ask World Leaders to Seek End to Viet Civil Strife

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's troops surrounded rebel headquarters in Da Nang today after more than four hours of heavy shooting around the Buddhist stronghold.

The government appeared trying to choke off the dissidents rather than wipe them out in a direct attack.

In an attempt to exploit the turmoil, the Viet Cong's underground Liberation Army threw Communist support behind the rebels and urged all South Vietnamese troops to "rise up" against the government.

Buddhist leaders in Saigon and the northern provinces sent pleas for intervention to end the civil strife to world leaders, but significantly the monks avoided any association with the Viet Cong overtures.

The Buddhists also canceled all rallies today to avoid the impression that they might be in honor of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh's 76th birthday today.

ONE MAJOR ACTION

In the war against the Communists, only one major ground action was reported and monsoon rains held U.S. Air Force and Navy planes to 23 missions against North Viet Nam.

The U.S. command announced the loss, apparently to ground fire, of an Air Force C-123 cargo plane on a mission 26 miles northwest of Qui Nhon.

Bodies of two crewmen were found in the wreckage, and the other three were listed as missing.

Both loyalist and anti-government forces took casualties as the eruption of fighting in Da Nang, South Viet Nam's second largest city, created the danger of a war within a war.

2-HOUR OUTBURSTS

The shooting came in two-hour outbursts during the morning and in the afternoon as Ky's forces closed in on three Buddhist pagodas where an estimated 1,000 troops and Buddhists had collected in a three-block square pocket of resistance.

Kidnaped Girl Reported OK

Who Fired Fatal Shot Still Not Cleared Up

SHADE GAP, Pa. (UPI) — For Peggy Ann Bradnick, 17, the ordeal is over.

Her doctor said today she is in excellent condition despite seven days of captivity in chains at the hands of a crazed gunman.

William Hollenbaugh lay dead. And this mountain hamlet which had known him as a timid town character — "Bicycle Pete" — was called "Bicycle Pete" because the bullet which killed him also ended the greatest terror it had known since the Indians pilaged the westward moving wagons two centuries ago.

The kidnaping of Peggy Ann, the killing of an FBI agent and the wounding of a deputy sheriff during his flight were the last violent episodes in the murky life of Hollenbaugh, who for the last two years, had stalked the Tuscarora hills as a sniper, wounding two persons and pot-shooting at scores of pedestrians and motorists.

Hollenbaugh, 44, was hunted down by a posse of almost 700 men and shot yesterday on a mountain farm. Peggy Ann, disheveled and bruised, was freed.

Not Raped
It remained unknown today who killed Hollenbaugh and why he seized Peggy Ann and dragged her through the rugged, lushly forested mountains for a week. She was not raped.

Larry Ruback, 15, a farm youth, said he killed Hollenbaugh. He shot a pumpkin ball from a shotgun through a window at his home at the approaching man, who also was under fire from state police converging on the Ruback farm.

The FBI and state troopers said their investigation also showed young Ruback's pump-kn ball — a steel projectile used for deer hunting — killed Hollenbaugh.

But the Fulton County coroner, Dr. Russell C. McCluskey, said an autopsy revealed Hollenbaugh died from a single bullet which pierced the tip of his left shoulder and emerged from his neck above the collar bone.

The trajectory of the shot showed it could not have been fired by Ruback, Dr. McCluskey said, because the boy was firing from a window above Hollenbaugh.

McCluskey said only a ballistic test could determine who fired the fatal shot. This was impossible because the bullet passed through the sniper's body and was not found.

Avon Hospital Bows on Sewage Problem

An Avon Township hospital, whose faulty septic system has resulted in a flow of sewage to nearby areas, has agreed to correct the problem, an Oakland County Health Department employee said yesterday.

Cited as the source of the sewage flow was the Haven Hospital and Psychiatric Clinic, 1850 University.

The problem was reported about a week ago, according to the health department.

"We took samples of the flow and established in laboratory testing that it was sewage," Goldman said.

He added that the hospital owner, Graham Shinnick, has agreed to take immediate steps to install a new septic system. "It's a serious problem," Goldman said. "But many other areas of the county are faced with similar problems."

Goldman reiterated what other health department personnel and County Department of Public Works officials have been saying — that sanitary sewers are the only solution to the sewage disposal problem.

Home owners in the Lochmoor Estates Subdivision near the hospital have threatened legal

Cavanagh, Griffin Due at Area Event

Political opponents J. C. Cavanagh, mayor of Detroit, and newly appointed United States Sen. Robert Griffin are among candidates slated to attend an open-house reception Saturday sponsored by the non-partisan Oakland Citizens League.

The reception, being held at the Community House in Birmingham from 2 to 5 p.m., represents an effort on the part of the league to better acquaint the public with political issues and candidates.

No speeches are included in the program as candidates will discuss their viewpoints with interested citizens in answer to specific questions.

Gov. Romney and Senatorial candidate G. Mennen Williams have also been invited but have not accepted as yet.

Others who will attend are Senators Sander Levin, D-Berkeley, and Robert Huber, R-Troy; Congressman Billie S. Farnum, D-19th District; State Rep. William Hampton; State Sen. Parrell E. Roberts and Royal Oak attorney Maurice Merritt, candidates for circuit judge; and candidate for the 19th District congressional post.

2 Fail to File Expense Costs

Statement Deadline in City Vote Poses

Two candidates—one of whom was elected—had not filed campaign expense statements for the April 18 city election by yesterday's deadline, according to city and county officials.

George Grba, unsuccessful District 4 City Commission hopeful, and Municipal Court Judge Maurice E. Finnegan, re-elected to a six-year term, are the two who have not filed the required expense statements.

According to the City Charter, those elected in the general election must file expense statements within 30 days of the election.

Mrs. Julia Maddock, chief deputy clerk in the county clerk's office, said all candidates whether or not elected must file expense statements.

She said those who have not filed would be notified to do so. If there is no reply, the clerk's office will notify the county prosecutor, she added.

14 STATEMENTS

Of the 14 candidates that have filed statements or had a committee file in their behalf, only one candidate — Cecil B. McCallum—reported no election expenses.

McCallum, re-elected to a similar six-year term, is Finnegan's colleague on the municipal court bench.

The largest expenditure, $4,690, was reported by the Citizens Committee for a Better Pontiac, which supported the re-elected incumbents.

Two candidates spent $400 or more in bids for election to the seven-member City Commission.

$900 IN EXPENSES

District 3 hopeful, William J. Winters of 230 Ottawa Mills reported expenses of $900, while Mrs. Charles W. Neidert of 82 Mariva reported $800.

Next in line on total expenditures was District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson, who reported expenses of $591.

According to the city clerk's office, a candidate's expenses could not exceed $1,000, which would mean that no one who has filed an expense statement so far has exceeded the amount stipulated.

Contract Let for Bloomfield Hills School

An $11,000,000 school building program authorized by Bloomfield Hills voters last month has been put into motion by the board of education with the awarding of a contract for a 21-room elementary school. Construction for the George P. Way School, to be located on Long Lake just east of Telegraph, is expected to begin next week, with completion scheduled before September 1967.

Four contracts totaling $741,380 were approved by the board Tuesday, the largest being awarded to the J. C. Nelson Co. of Royal Oak for its low bid of $500,000 for general contracting.

Options were taken on several school sites and an architectural committee was appointed for reviewing plans, construction and final payments to contractors.

Serving on the committee are board members Henry Haberborn, Donald Hyde and Dr. Charles Bowers. The men were cautioned by board president Richard McGraw that the committee's only function was to make recommendations and not take final action.

SWIMMING POOL

A swimming pool for Bloomfield Hills High School is scheduled to be the new committee's first project.

Completion of the pool by the close of the 1967 school year is anticipated, making it available for recreational purposes the following summer.

Option for future school sites at Middle Belt and Fieldbrook and on Orange Lake were accepted at a cost of $104,500.

The purchase of a lot adjoining Pine Lake School for $5,000 was also approved.

School architect Charles McMahon made a presentation on the use of "computerized time" scheduling of construction on the proposed new $1,405,000 high school.

Completion for the new school is scheduled for February 1967.

already are equipped to teach biological and social sciences.

"The State of Michigan cannot afford to support a college of medicine outside of the framework of a university," said Dr. Ernest Gardner, dean at Wayne.

The witnesses included three from California, where medical doctors and osteopaths recently amalgamated.

Dr. Warren Bostick, dean of the University of California Medical School at Los Angeles, testified, "I'm not certain merger is inevitable nationwide, so why not take the right step at this moment."

Dr. C. John Tupper, formerly associate dean of the University of Michigan and now with the University of California, said "a new osteopathic school will perpetuate the needless, even senseless duplication of facilities that now exist and are growing."

MEDICAL LEADER

Dr. C. Allen Payne of Grand Rapids, president-elect of the 10,000-member Michigan State Medical Society, said passing the osteopathic college bill will "surely require you to face up to... whether or not the taxpayer's money will be spent to maintain and operate a college which, not being affiliated with the rich academic resources of a major university, cannot expect to measure up to the caliber of the Michigan medical schools..."

Floyd Brooker, executive officer of the Michigan Osteopathic College, told the committee osteopaths never have opposed the expansion of the three state medical schools.

"But we say there is a need for an additional school," he said. "We would establish a college for the sole purpose of meeting the health care needs of the state."

Dr. Philip Adler, president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, said of the five existing osteopathic colleges in the nation, only the one in Philadelphia now receives state funds.

Michigan M.D.'s and osteopaths have been pulled by the House State Affairs Committee on the merger question. M.D.'s favored amalgamation and osteopaths opposed it.

Youth for Griffin Group Is Formed

Two Oakland County college students have formed a Youth for Griffin Club to support Robert Griffin, a Republican, in his bid for a four-year term in the U.S. Senate.

They are Robert Smart, 555 W. Walley Lake, Walley Lake, and Mike Renner of 1404 Eaton, Berkley, both students at the University of Michigan.

The group will distribute campaign materials, and its first project will be to escort Griffin during his appearance at the Village Fair in Birmingham Saturday.

Griffin, appointed recently to temporarily fill the vacancy created by the death of U.S. Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, is seeking election to the post in November.

weather of the entire American economy. Millions of jobs depend on it," concluded Ford.

Griffin said the hearings could be good for the auto industry, "but government regulation is not automatically the best answer for every problem."

Directly or indirectly, the auto industry provides jobs for one out of every seven workers in the nation, he added.

"Surely, we cannot afford to allow such a vital industry to become the center of a political hassle," said Griffin.

GI Dead Again Top S. Viets

SAIGON (AP) — American combat deaths exceeded those of South Viet Nam's armed forces last week for the third time this spring, a period of political unrest.

The U.S. Command announced today 86 Americans were killed, 556 wounded and three missing in action May 8-14.

A Vietnamese spokesman, after first reporting a total of 91 Vietnamese servicemen dead or missing, later broke down the figures: 72 dead and 19 missing. The Vietnamese do not list their wounded.

Three battle deaths were reported among Australian, New Zealand and South Korean units.

In all, Allied Forces lost 161 men killed and 22 missing while listing 998 Communists killed and 192 captured.

LANSING (AP) — The House had plenty of advice for the Civil Service Commission at its meeting today, including a controversial proposal that state job openings be filled only by the top scorer on a civil service test.

State divisions now are allowed to choose from among the top three scorers on an examination, but some legislators argued this permits discrimination by race and against handicapped persons.

The measure "urgently requesting" the Civil Service Commission to scrap its "rule of three" for a "rule of one" was one of three resolutions passed by the House Wednesday for forwarding to the commission meeting today.

The others requested "equal opportunity for women in appointments and promotions" and encouraged adoption of time-and-a-half overtime pay for state employees.

CAN ONLY URGE

The Legislature can only urge, since the Constitution makes the Civil Service Commission independent of legislative control.

Rep. James Del Rio, D-De troit, chief sponsor of the "rule of one" resolution, argued the change is "needed to give civil service a true merit system. His resolution passed 60-31 after a half-hour's debate."

Opponents argued examination grades are not everything, and factors such as personality and attitude can be important in employee selection.

The top scorer is passed over in slightly less than one-half of the appointments, Franklin DeWald, state personnel director, told a newsman.

"We feel that the (rule of one) is cumbersome, puts square pegs in round holes and increases dismissals and grievances," he said.

India's foreign trade has more than doubled since it achieved independence in 1947, rising from $1,730 million to over $3,900 million.

Key Segments of Proposed Police Code Take a Pounding

WASHINGTON (AP) — A civilizing process that is running strong, Judge J. Skelly Wright of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia argued Wednesday as he lashed proposed rules for station house questioning by police.

"This is not in the trend of the law, goes before the American Law Institute again today.

"In 30 years, American Law Institute members will look back with dismay."

Much of the fire centered on proposals to give police latitude to question suspects for up to 22 hours before taking them before a magistrate.

Wright, Judge George Edwards of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and four law professors, Jack Weinstein of Columbia, Lewis H. Pollak of Yale, Louis B. Schwartz of the University of Pennsylvania and Robert Braucher of Harvard, took turns attacking the proposals.

Defenses were entered by Judge Henry J. Friendly of the 2nd Circuit Court, Judge Charles D. Breitel of the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court, and others. Later, the proposals were reconsidered and resubmitted to the institute next year.

Paul M. Bator, a Harvard law professor who played a key role in framing them, said after the institute completes discussion of the proposals, they would be in a month—a point that was stressed both by opponents of the proposals who suggested caution in strengthening police power and by Bator in withdrawing the questioned proposals.

Legislature Heads Into Homestretch

After dealing with an all-time record number of bills, the State Legislature, pushing toward a June 10 adjournment, still has some important legislation dangling.

The No. 1 item is the budget. The $945-million package ($126.6 million more than a year ago) proposed by Gov. ROMNEY would have cut the current surplus in half. The remainder would presumably have seen the State through another fiscal year without going into the red.

But spending proposals originating in both houses would add another $88 million — sending the budget above the $1 billion level for the first time and entirely depleting the treasury surplus.

Statehouse observers think, however, that this excess will be halved before the budget is adopted. But it will still represent unsound fiscal policy that will unquestionably put the State in financial hot water unless a tax reform program is soon adopted. That, of course, is out of the question before the November election.

Another measure that is hanging in the balance is a pay raise for legislators. It zipped through the Senate with strong Democratic support but faces tough going in the House.

The bill's fate is still a question mark.

The principle of Increased Property Tax Relief for Veterans is supported by both parties, but has been batted back and forth between the Governor's office and the legislature like a badminton shuttlecock. Romney would base the relief on the realistic basis of need, whereas the Democrats call for a flat across-the-board increase. Fate of the legislation is still uncertain, but there's a good chance it will pass in the form close to the Romney concept.

Another requisition on State funds will result from a package of House-passed bills, for which Senate passage is expected, that commits the State to medical assistance for the aged and indigent. This will cost Michigan taxpayers $35 million annually.

A regrettable fatality of the 1966 legislature is meaningful traffic safety measures. Killed were bills to get drinking drivers off the roads, tighten up the point system on violations and provide periodic motor vehicle safety inspection.

If you have any strong convictions on any of these important issues, now, as the saying goes, is the time to speak up to your elected representatives "or forever hold your peace."

Drivers' Test Negative in Oregon Check

The Oregon Department of Motor Vehicles has released statistics showing that 63 per cent of 70 motorists who failed to produce licenses when stopped at roadblocks had no legal right to drive.

Nearly 29 per cent of the drivers had no driver's license; 17 per cent were driving while suspended; 10 per cent had no Oregon driver's license, but had records on file as result of previous accidents or violations; and seven per cent had allowed their licenses to expire.

The remaining 37 per cent had valid licenses, but did not have them in their possession when stopped.

Maybe the all-knowing RALPH NADER can rationalize this shocking flouting of the law as due to mechanical defect.

Merchandising Loopholes — 19th Century Style

In view of all the current pro and con about legislation against mismerchandising, including such gimmicks as "cents-off" sales, this sign posted by a St. Louis wholesale house seems particularly pertinent:

"One price for goods will be strictly adhered to. And to those in the habit of cheapening when purchasing, the following is respectfully suggested. Before dealer can fall in his price he must have raised it; before he can take it off he must have put it on."

Congress please note.

P.S. The notice was originally quoted in Ward's Natural Science Bulletin—in 1884.

Fulbright's Fulminations Foggy

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON—Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., has had something critical to say about American foreign policy ever since he first spoke in the Senate with his maiden speech there in 1945.

And his attempt Tuesday to explain his criticism of President Johnson's foreign policy is not the first time he tried to explain what he said after being criticized for saying it.

In that speech 21 years ago, just a few months after election to the Senate, he complained that for more than two decades American foreign policy had been "improved from day to day."

As chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee now, his words get more attention. But through the years he managed to get attention, and never more so than with his suggestion about President Harry S. Truman in 1946.

As soon as the Republicans gained control of Congress in the elections that year, Fulbright suggested that Truman, who had no vice president, should appoint a Republican to succeed him and then resign.

Fulbright got such a bad reaction that within four days he issued a five-page explanation, saying he had been misunderstood and misinterpreted.

But the explanation was only a repetition of the original statement.

Fulbright was critical of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's foreign policy, much less critical of President John F. Kennedy's, and then really went to town on Johnson.

Johnson still hasn't gone after Fulbright directly, but last week in a speech at Princeton he jabbed at the senator indirectly, saying in this century American use of power has meant "arrogance but agony for all Americans."

The President took another dig the next night at a Democratic dinner with Fulbright sitting nearby. Johnson said he was delighted to be there with so many friends and "some members of the Foreign Relations Committee."

Then once again Tuesday at the National Press Club, Fulbright undertook to explain some of the things he had said, "Because they lent themselves to interpretations I did not intend."

He suggested the press had not accurately conveyed his ideas.

But as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Fulbright has an enormous responsibility when discussing foreign affairs to take the trouble to express himself so clearly that there is little chance for misunderstanding.

Such is not the case. Historians of the future, if they examine some of Fulbright's recent speeches, will find in them some high-sounding phrases in a vast prairie of vagueness.

Party Pooper!

Plan to Up Red Trade Incredible

WASHINGTON — It seems incredible that the administration should be asking Congress to pass a bill permitting expanded trade relations with Communist countries.

The measure is labeled as a "clear-cut act of peace," but many members of Congress feel it is a move that weakens the American position in world affairs.

Indeed, one of the principal reasons why the United States has not made more progress with world opinion in connection with the Viet Nam war is that it has not come out in a positive way and designated the governments of the Soviet Union and Red China as the real enemies of the United States in Southeast Asia.

Historically, "trading with the enemy" is usually forbidden. Failure to use the power of an economic embargo to cut off trade with North Viet Nam has lately been the subject of much criticism.

If the United States now opens up more trade with the Communist-bloc countries in Europe, it will be difficult to explain away this further concession.

The proposed measure faces much hostility in the House of Representatives as well as in the Senate, but the mere fact that it is being sponsored by the administration in the midst of a grave situation in Viet Nam has aroused considerable curiosity hereabouts.

DISCRETIONARY USE

Sen. Mansfield, Democratic leader, in a prepared speech defended the bill on the ground that it is, in a sense, an authorization to permit the President to use his own discretion.

The senator says that "if the occasion arrives to promote better and more stable relations by adjustments in peaceful trade with these nations," the President would be able to take advantage of such an occasion.

But it is not the eventual improvement in economic relations with the Communist-bloc countries that is at present the main issue before the American people.

There's a war going on, and the Communists are feeding arms and ammunition and planes to the North Viet Nam government to carry on a conflict in which the United States has nearly 300,000 sailors and soldiers and airmen.

The diplomats of the world have never appreciated the importance of the economic weapon as an effective means of dealing with an enemy, especially if neutral countries can be lined up in a common front against the aggressors.

If the United States, moreover, approves a measure at this time — in the midst of the Viet Nam war — which allows the Communist governments to do more trading with this country, it will certainly deal a body blow to the expressions of idealism which the United States has been proclaiming over the years and now is emphasizing as the main purpose of its mission in Southeast Asia.

Capital Letter:

Veep Answers Critics of His Viet Nam Stand

By RUTH MONTGOMERY
WASHINGTON — The Liberal edgeheads, who in attacking our Viet Nam policy claim that Hubert H. Humphrey would also be doing so if he were not vice president, are barking up the wrong tree.

In an exclusive interview, Humphrey declared: "I believe what I say! If I thought our government was wrong where men's lives are involved against it, or keep my silence."

"As it is, I'm not only speaking out, but in top-level consultations I have actively supported the steps taken to reach these decisions on Viet Nam."

Commenting on the criticism leveled at him by former associates in the left-wing Americans for Democratic Action, former ADA Chairman Humphrey declared:

"Taking an unpopular stand is the price of leadership. If a man in high position is afraid of being unpopular, then he is holding his office for personal vanity rather than the public good."

Asked about charges by Senate Foreign Relations Chairman William Fulbright that American GIs are turning Saigon into a "brothel," and that the U.S. is guilty of "arrogance of power," Humphrey said:

"We didn't send angels to Viet Nam, we sent men. No military establishment in history has done as much good as ours is doing there. Our men are human."

CHARGES RIDICULOUS

"The charges of 'arrogance of power' are ridiculous. 'We're so lacking in arrogance that we lean over backward.'"

Musing about critics of our Viet Nam policy, Humphrey said he wonders if they realize what would happen to the Vietnamese who have resisted aggression, if the Communists were victorious there.

"Our principal objective in Viet Nam is to prove that the price of aggression is too high," he said.

Humphrey expressed "absolute confidence" that Viet Nam will have elections and a civilian government, as promised.

PAINFUL EVENT

Reminding that our own Constitution was adopted only after rioting, rebellions against taxation by the new central authority, and secession movements, he said this was natural in the birth of a nation.

The birth of a nation is always a painful event, Humphrey concluded, but the new baby is worth the effort.

Songs Enlist Peasant Support

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Fifteen years ago, young Pham Duy stood on a steep mountain slope singing new strength into sweating peasants dragging artillery, food and ammunition over "impassable" mountains for Ho Chi Minh's armies.

The French CROMLEY had said Ho couldn't move these guns and supplies in that rugged terrain and based their strategy on this logic. But Ho commanded 50,000 peasants and teams of singers—to do the job.

"Without the singing the guns would never have gotten over the mountains," says Pham Duy.

Where the troops went, Ho sent the singers.

"We went with the soldiers when they moved into the hamlets and when they attacked the French outposts. I remember five minutes before one attack I sang for the soldiers. After the attack one soldier told me, 'I could still

Answers Recent Question on Johnson Policy

In answer to a recent question "What is wrong with the Johnson policies?" the briefest answer is "the way they are administered." In times of maximum prosperity it is well to embark upon select additional programs, but not on a deficit basis unless we care to look upon our children knowing that we are mortgaging their future for our own present benefits.

We would not do this in our families and it is the obligation of our elected representatives to maintain similar standards in Congress. A task that we respectfully suggest has not been fulfilled by Mr. Farnum. We believe that Mr. Richard Kohn would better represent this over-all view.

Two Discuss Problems in Divorce Matters

State laws pertaining to divorce should be reviewed and revised by new and fair legislation to protect equally the man as well as the woman. Our taxes support the Friend of the Court and their attorneys. Why don't they represent both the man and woman?

Laws should be made and complied with concerning proof of use of child support checks, repeated investigation of the mother's fitness, use of charge accounts after divorce is started and strict adherence to visitation rights.

RFR
CLARKSTON

How does the Friend of the Court go about collecting doctor and dentist bills from a man who is legally responsible? My ex-husband has paid none of the doctor bills I have turned in for the last three years. I am ashamed to take my son to the doctor. I am far fairer for men and women but when it comes to men not paying what they are ordered by the judge why won't the Friend of the Court help? Do we have to hire a lawyer at a high fee to get what is rightfully ours?

Reward Added in Kidnaping

Family Will Pay Even if Son Has Been Killed

SURFSIDE, Fla. (UPI) — The parents of Danny Goldman, although saying they felt their kidnaped son was still alive, offered a "major reward" yesterday for information on where to "reclaim his body" in the event he has been killed.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Goldman talked informally to newsmen in their home for the first time since March 28, when a masked gunman entered the wealthy contractor's house and fled with their 18-year-old son.

They said their belief that the boy was still alive was based on their impression of the stocky kidnaper, and on their conviction that he may be in hiding with the boy because of extensive press coverage that has made him fearful to make contact.

They said a $25,000 reward for his "safe return" was still standing.

Mrs. Goldman said the kidnaper showed a "feeling of gentleness and courtesy" to them when he bound them in their bedroom the morning of the kidnaping.

'HOPE AND PRAY'

"I only hope and pray he has shown the same gentleness and courtesy to Danny," she said.

Goldman said that "if the man has Danny, he will do anything to get him back. If the man killed Danny, we think it's very cruel of him not to tell us where we can reclaim his body."

He said "we would pay, let's say, a minor reward if someone could tell us where to reclaim his body."

Nurses' Accord in NY Averts Hospital Crisis

NEW YORK (UPI) — City officials and nurses employed by the city's 21 municipal hospitals settled their differences last night.

The sudden agreement ended a dispute which threatened to erupt in mass resignations and leave thousands of patients without care.

Under the terms of the two-and-one-half-year contract, the nurses will receive across-the-board salary increases retroactive to last Jan. 1 and numerous fringe benefits, including improvements in working conditions.

The annual minimum salary for a staff nurse was raised $900 to $6,650. As of Jan. 1, 1967, the minimum salary will jump to $6,400. The maximum salaries will be $7,400 and $8,200.

Improvements in working conditions included an increased shift differential, additional educational assistance after one year of service and an increment of $300 annually for a B. S. degree and $500 for an M. S. degree.

Most Britons Enjoy Driving

LONDON (AP) — Despite jam-packed roads only one in 10 British motorists gets no pleasure at all out of driving, according to a report by the British Automobile Association. After a detailed survey over the last year, the AA says even the overwhelming majority of the motorists still claim a certain zest out of driving. Britain now has seven million drivers.

Black Not in Fashion in Automobile Tires

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Women's Service Bureau of Goodyear has discovered at least one place where basic black is no longer in fashion — automobile tires. Four out of five tires made today are whitewalls. This compares with one of four as recently as 1952.

Claymore Mine Is Favorite of Cong

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong are making increasing use of mines in the Viet Nam war, not only for terrorist attacks in the cities but also against American troops in the field.

The favorite type of mine is the Claymore.

The Claymore was developed by American experts and introduced into Viet Nam as a defensive weapon.

This directional charge finds extensive use as part of the defenses of remote outposts. Special Forces camps and perimeter positions. In the event of a Communist attack, the mines can be set off, spraying the attackers with steel.

The Viet Cong were quick to find additional uses for the Claymore.

TO GOOD EFFECT

They ingeniously constructed a variety of directional-type charges, which are now all referred to as Calymores, and put them to good use as an offensive weapon, especially against Americans.

Claymores were widely publicized after the Viet Cong used them in terrorist bombings in Saigon.

The My Canh floating restaurant was the scene of a particularly brutal Claymore attack last year.

One Claymore set up on the bank of the Saigon River opposite the restaurant exploded, sending metal fragments screaming through the open, crowded dining room. As the victims staggered out and people raced to help them, another mine was set off, killing many more.

Mines have continued to be used in terrorist incidents in SAIGON and other towns in Viet Nam.

Some have been captured American Claymores but most have been homemade Viet Cong versions; some very sophisticated and others made simply by filling the frame of a bicycle with explosive and steel fragments.

But it is in the field, out on operations, that American troops have learned to fear Viet Cong mines.

Every American combat unit combing the jungles and rice paddies of Viet Nam has suffered numbers of casualties from cleverly concealed mines and booby traps.

More recently the Viet Cong have taken to crawling to within a few yards of U.S. perimeter positions, setting up their mines and sitting back to wait for the dawn. When the Americans get out of their foxholes to have breakfast or move out on patrol, the mines are detonated.

TRIP WIRES

One booby trap was constructed with trip wires running down both sides of a trail, not across it. As an American patrol moved cautiously down the path, a sniper sent a single shot smashing through the trees. Everyone dived for cover at the side of the trail — and triggered the trap.

In another deadly booby trap encountered recently by troops of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division near the Cambodian border 60 miles northwest of Saigon, two Claymores were set up, one at ground level and the other in a tree eight feet up.

The mines were a few yards apart and went off within a few seconds of each other, raking the lead sections of a patrol with steel fragments and inflicting heavy casualties on the small unit.

The result of the new Communist emphasis on hit-and-run tactics and the use of mines and accurate sniper fire from Soviet or Red Chinese sniper rifles with telescopic sites has been to push up American casualty figures without a corresponding increase in the number of Viet Cong killed (by body count).

Dominican Order Curbing Armed Forces Placates Bosch Party

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Ex-President Juan Bosch's party Wednesday night withdrew its threat to boycott the Dominican presidential race after the government confined the armed forces to quarters until the June 1 election is over.

The executive committee of Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party — PRD — said in a statement that provisional President Hector Garcia-Go-day's orders had resolved the crisis. Bosch and the PRD had charged the armed forces and national police were persecuting party workers.

day said the government thoroughly had investigated all complaints of persecution and election violence. Where necessary, he said, all guilty parties have been punished but many complaints have turned out "to be inexact."

Speaking after the president, Bosch said the PRD emphasized the "political position" of the military. The order confining the troops to quarters went out shortly after the president spoke, he said, and "will be complied with rigidly."

Bosch had threatened to pull out of the elections by noon today if the government did not crack down on the armed forces and national police. Bosch charged they were carrying out clandestine campaigns to help his chief rival, Balaguer, the Reformist party candidate.

Bosch repeatedly has charged the political climate stemming from the April 1965 revolution is too heated to permit peaceful elections.

Pear of assassination has made Bosch a virtual prisoner in his suburban Santo Domingo home, and he campaigns by broadcasts of recorded speeches.

Recent opinion polls show Bosch and Balaguer running neck and neck, with Bosch slightly ahead but Balaguer gaining steadily in recent weeks.

Observers say PRD strength may have suffered because of Bosch's failure to leave his home to campaign and Balaguer's hard-driving campaign in rural areas where about 70 per cent of the voters live. Radios are scarce in the interior. Bosch's top lieutenants and his vice-presidential running mate, Antonio Guzman, have done most of the PRD campaigning there.

Unofficial polls suggest no single party will be able to dominate the new Congress to be elected June 1.

One of the smaller parties, or a group of them, is expected to hold the balance of power. Dominican and inter-American officials are privately pleased by this prospect because they feel the still explosive situation requires broad political representation in Congress.

There are some fears of post-election violence if the losing parties do not accept the results quietly. Many civilians remain armed, but military and police chiefs are confident they can maintain order.

Now a Hindu Land

India Saves Buddhist Heritage

NEW DELHI (AP) — India, the spiritual homeland of Buddhism, is taking steps to preserve its Buddhist heritage even though it now is a predominantly Hindu land.

An archaeological museum has been opened in Nagarjunakonda in the southern state of Andhra Pradesh to save and display Buddhist art and edifices dating from ancient times.

Nagarjunakonda first became archaeologically important in 1927-31 when extensive excavations uncovered Buddhist sites and many stupas (stone pillars), shrines, monasteries and sculptures.

Work was continued in 1939 and 1940 but not until 1953 was it speeded up.

In that year, it became apparent that a dam being built across the Krishna River would cover the Nagarjunakonda Valley and its priceless relics with deep water.

WORKED FAST

The Indian government in a recent announcement said that in 1954-60, archaeologists worked fast, uncovering much more than what had been known about Buddhist edifices and also the prehistoric archaeology of the valley.

The relics that could be saved will be placed in the museum. Others will be patched together from bits and pieces that have been found.

Many, however, will be reconstructed out of original material on one hill site.

One original, titled "Stupa Worship," is a detailed relief depicting Buddhists in ancient times worshipping a stupa, or stone pillar which represents a god or goddess.

LORD BUDDHA

Another outstanding work shows the Lord Buddha, astride a horse and surrounded by worshipful retainers, riding off to renounce the world and all worldly things.

Lord Buddha, a wealthy, self-indulgent prince, gained enlightenment in India. He renounced all his worldly belongings and took to preaching.

His followers subsequently spread his teachings throughout Asia and Buddhism became one of the world's great religions.

Ironically, Buddhism all but died out in India. Of the nation's 465 million people, about 445 million are Hindus. Nearly 50 million are Moslems. Christianity, Buddhism and other religions also are present.

THE OUTSIDERS. By Robert Carson. Little, Brown, $6.95. Carson has written the kind of historical novel about Los Angeles often written about places in the Deep South. Four generations of one family, living through it, relate — to them — current events. To us, it's history.

Writing with the hindsight of the now, Carson is able to make his fictional family named Brennan, guess right about the future as they go along.

From generation to generation, starting in 1881, the Brennans have the financial foresight to get in on the development of some of California's longest-lasting and best-known booms — real estate, consolidated banks, big gaudy graveyards, the building of airplanes.

And the present generation, rather than sell to builders of crackerbox houses, donates the still-intact family Spanish rancho — where the TV Westerns shoot film — to the city for a park. (An early Brennan had married a Villanueva.)

But Carson has a fault, and it's a major one. His characters are the most stilted conversationalists this side of a sacred amateur theater group putting on a 19th Century melodrama.

THE BEST IS YET TO BE. By Benzt Plagemann. Morrow, $4.50.

This is a nice quiet little novel that doesn't attempt to be profound, a pleasantly humorous story.

Backing Given to Overtime for State Employees

DETROIT (AP) — A recommendation that state workers be paid time-and-a-half for overtime instead of straight time or compensatory time off goes to the State Civil Service Commission today.

A poll of the 19 major state departments showed 13 in favor of the time- and -one-half pay idea, five opposed and one neutral.

Opposed were the Conservation, Treasury, Public Health, Licensing and Regulation, and Attorney General's Departments.

the age when their son Cameron abruptly decides to get married to his Nancy. After getting the young couple settled, the parents decide to have a "middle-aged fling on a trip to Europe.

There are some amusing and gently touching scenes as the parents try to be helpful — without interfering — as the newlyweds set up housekeeping in a low-budget apartment.

Then the adventure abroad. In Italy the Wallaces just can't seem to detach themselves from the habit of shepherding the younger generation.

There also is a sly picture of one of their American friends who had married an Italian businessman, not exactly to her advantage. And of course there are the comic maladjustments that tourists find in lands to which they are unaccustomed.

It's a nice relief to have this story. No black humor, no bitter satire, no social significance, no grotesque caricatures. Just a satisfying glow, some appreciative chuckles and apt turns of phrasing that create pleasure.

THE SUM AND TOTAL OF NOW. By Don Robertson. Putnam, $4.95.

There's this kid, named Morris Bird III. He's 13 years old in this, the summer of 1948, and he lives in Cleveland.

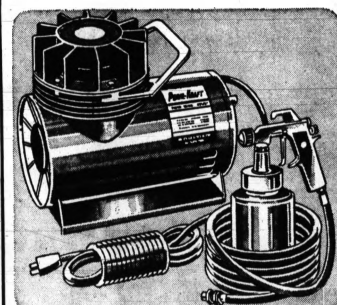

He is the same Morris who had a great adventure one day when he was 9, and the story of that great day was told in Robertson's previous novel.

So his deal. If you've read the other book, you'll enjoy this one more.

This would be the summer, of course, that Morris had started — but just started — changing from boy to man. Suddenly there's this girl, named Julie Sutton, who is a shy in school, but knows Morris is there.

There's also this world where adolescent fantasy seems real. Like Morris' dreams of movie types, and baseball heroes; and Julie's collection of ducks and her lovely conversations with an imaginary Clarence.

Robertson is remarkably good at two things. He knows how to recreate a time and place with an extraordinarily vivid skill. And he captures the essence, the chimera, the tender confusion of boyhood in a bright, style that is indelible and convincing.

MARINES IN CONTROL — This is the bridge across the Da Nang River now in the hands of U.S. Marines after antigovernment troops yesterday threatened to blow it up if loyalist forces tried to cross. The U.S. commander cited the strategic importance of the bridge as a link between the city and American installations on the outskirts.

20-Year War Scars Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Across a wide street of Saigon, someone had scrawled "hoa binh" — peace. But few people bothered to look.

Ramshackle taxis, pedicabs and heavy military trucks rolled over the sign and women from crowded shacks emptied their garbage pails on it.

The war is with the city — as it has been for the past 20 years. For many it seems a war without hope.

The smell of decay, of hopelessness, of fear and of stubborn struggle for survival dominates the life of Saigon.

GRENADERS EXPLODE

Every day, two or three grenades explode. Almost every day men are stabbed or shot.

By estimate, 3,000 hard-core Viet Cong terrorists are in the capital, capable of striking anywhere, any time.

It is a many-faced city of 2½ million — many of them hungry.

At night, flares illuminate the sky over the wide plain outside Saigon and the sound of exploding bombs comes clear to diners in elegant restaurants.

In grimy doorways, skinny children huddle wearily for another night without a home.

When the day begins, with its heavy, oppressive humidity of the tropics, the streets fill with thousands of expressionless men and women heading for work.

Bars open early — the most booming business of the capital of a nation at war. About 30,000 American troops and civilians are here with their dollars, cigarettes and canned goods.

The signs are gaudy and blunt: "Lucky Love Bar," "Save Time With Our Hostesses."

There are thousands of girls to entertain the foreigners. Some earn 10 times as much as Vietnamese teachers.

PILES OF REFUSE

Along the streets, piles of refuse wait for garbage trucks that seldom come. The city pays 12 piasters — 15 cents — a day to its garbage men. American construction firms pay many times more.

Men and women wait patiently in front of air-conditioned American offices that administer the construction of air-bases, ports, compounds and installations for the war.

A sign on a wall says "Spitting on the floor will cause immediate discharge."

In a school courtyard, neatly dressed children in white, pajama-like uniforms line up while a loudspeaker blares "Yankee Doodle." Overhead, a flight of U.S. Caribou transport planes roars toward a jungle battle field.

Outside, beggars stretch grimy hands and life goes on — despite everything.

Lodge Visits Korea to Discuss Viet Nam

SEOUL (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador to Saigon Henry Cabot Lodge arrived here today for talks with South Korean government officials on the situation in Viet Nam.

Lodge flew into nearby Kimpo Airport from Washington, where he had conferred with President Johnson and other American officials. He is scheduled to return to Saigon tomorrow.

The ambassador said he came here to "exchange views on the Viet Nam situation with Korean officials."

Civilian Manipulators

Yanks Face Probe for Viet Profiteering

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department and the Treasury Department are teaming up to go after American civilians who have returned from Viet Nam with small fortunes made through money manipulation in Viet Nam, officials said today.

"These people will be pursued," one defense official told a reporter.

He said 28 Americans, most of them past and present employees of U.S. contractors in Viet Nam, have been under investigation since returning to this country. Their files have been forwarded to the Treasury for tax scrutiny, he said.

The Pentagon and the Treasury have begun working closely on means to choke off money profiteering and black marketeering in Viet Nam. A Treasury agent will go to Saigon to survey the situation, and an official said the agency may eventually station people there.

70 IN PROBE

Overall, it was learned, 70 U.S. civilians have been the subject of probes. One American netted about $42,000 by money speculation, officials said, and several pocketed profits in the $16,000-$18,000 range.

Officials also said 41 U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam have been court-martialed or given lesser punishment in the crackdown on black marketeering and currency manipulation.

Offenders in money speculation were said to have been chiefly U.S. civilians. Servicemen were involved for the most part in selling post exchange goods on the black market.

Asst. Secretary of Defense Thomas D. Morris and Frank Bartimo, a senior Pentagon lawyer, flew back to Washington last weekend after an on-the-spot check on the situation.

FIRM ACTION

Officials familiar with their findings said firm action by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, has cut down the problem.

Flourishing of the Battle of Trafulgar occurred on Oct. 21, 1965.

blamed by officials on the hectic conditions which prevailed in Saigon last fall and early winter when supplies were being rammed into the country under a high-speed buildup.

Town Makes It Illegal to Leave Child in Car

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) The City Commission has passed an ordinance making it illegal to leave youngsters under 10 years of age in a car without proper supervision for a period of more than five minutes.

A similar ordinance is being drafted to cover pets in parked cars.

Beer Cans Empty Fund

CALAIS, Maine (AP) — The local Lions Club has launched a cleanup campaign that may well clean out its treasury.

President Leonard Scott said that as part of a beautification campaign, the club offered to pay one cent for each beer can collected along municipal highways by Friday.

But he said yesterday some 9,500 cans already have been collected — and club members feared that the total may climb astronomically by the end of the week.

Scott said the club plans to continue the project despite the cost "but we may have a treasury full of beer cans."

But Few in Tycoon Class

Professors' Salaries Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — College professors may not be in the industrial tycoon class in salaries yet, but they are moving up.

Although there still are some "poverty cases" on the higher education scene, generally things are getting rosier every year for college and university faculties.

There have been a couple of recent appointments in New York State that even a tycoon might blink at in surprise.

The legislature has established some special chairs for both state and private universities that carry a $100,000 annual price tag. It wanted to provide an "apex of excellence" for the state educational structure.

NOT ALL SALARY

Not all of this is salary. The professor must use it for travel, staff and research assistants.

Dr. C. N. Yang, Chinese-born Nobel Prize-winning physicist, was named to one of these professorships at the State University at Stony Brook. In his case, the personal salary component has been reported to be $45,000 a year.

Arthur Schlesinger Jr., who won the Pulitzer Prize for his "A Thousand Days" portrait of the years he spent in the White House with the late President John F. Kennedy, has just signed a contract for the $100,000 Albert Schweitzer Chair in Humanities at City University of New York.

These are exceptional cases, but the over-all picture isn't bad either.

The recent annual salary survey of the American Association of University Professors showed that Harvard University again led the nation with an annual average salary for all full-time faculty members of more than $17,500 a year.

That average includes not only full professors, but associates, assistants and instructors.

Ranking second was the University of Chicago, in the $16,000 to $16,500 class. And right behind them at the same level was Parsons College of Fairfield, Iowa.

Parsons? Yes indeed. This once-flourishing college had 212 students and paid its professors an average of $3,800 a year when a new president took over in 1955. Now it ranks with the top institutions of the country in salaries.

PRESIDENT'S MOTTO

Parsons' president, Millard G. Roberts, has a motto: "Buy a good faculty. This costs money. Pay it. This means raising other faculties. Do it."

That, in a nutshell, is why college salaries are rising. The competition is fierce for distinguished scholars. Institutions that have them want to keep them. The professor, especially if he is an outstanding one, is operating in a seller's market.

The association study, based on figures voluntarily supplied by 905 universities and colleges, showed an average yearly salary of $9,816 for all faculty members combined. This is a nine-month salary for the academic year and does not reflect what other income a teacher might earn in summer employment, consulting fees and so on.

Perhaps more significant, the association said this was 7.5 per cent higher than in the previous year — a rate of climb high enough for the first time to achieve a doubling of faculty salaries in a decade.

In a separate study, the National Education Association reported a median salary for full-time teachers in colleges and universities of $9,081—an 11.3 per cent jump from two years ago.

Study of Pain Is Shocking

By Science Service
WASHINGTON Electric shock is not pleasant under any circumstances, but it is easier to take if one knows exactly when it is coming. And knowing when is more important than knowing how bad the shock will be.

Some 50 undergraduate students each endured about 40 electric jolts to illustrate the theory that knowledge about future pain reduces anxiety.

In other words, the students could relax until shock time. Some tensed their muscles to offset its effect, but more important to the students were those assured moments of peace.

Authors of the experiment, Dr. Austin Jones of the University of Pittsburgh, P. M. Bentler of the University of California at Los Angeles, and Georgia Petry of the Psychological Service of Pittsburgh, gave to each student in the jolt chamber a button which he could press for information on the coming shock.

Most of the students pressed the buttons, reported the researchers. And the more uncertain they were (the more erratic the time sequence of the shocks), the more often they pressed it.

SHOCKS VARIED

The shocks also varied in strength, but evidently this information was not particularly useful to the worried students.

Giving them the opportunity to know both the time and intensity of shock did not significantly reduce their button-pressing rate, reported the experimenters.

Pentagon Probes Senator's Charges of Navy Dealing With Red China-Owned Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says it is investigating Sen. Ernest Gruening's charge that the Navy has unwittingly done business in Hong Kong with companies controlled by Communist China.

The Alaska Democrat called for tighter control procedures to make sure the armed forces do not violate the Trading With the Enemy Act.

"We are looking into this matter," Asst. Secretary of Defense

Paul R. Ignatius told Gruening during a Senate hearing on supply policies Wednesday.

Gruening's assertion grew out of an investigation his staff conducted in Hong Kong.

Joseph Lippman, staff director of the Senate subcommittee on foreign aid expenditures, went there in March to make sure that discarded military equipment was not finding its way into Red Chinese hands.

Gruening said Lippman

"learned that the U.S. Navy, which operates a procurement office in Hong Kong, had been making substantial purchases of electronic or other equipment from two firms which were owned or controlled or otherwise affiliated with Communist China."

The senator made that statement April 21 in a letter to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. At that time, Gruening wrote that the Navy was un-ware of Red Chinese involvement because the two firms were subcontractors. The Hong Kong firm which held the Navy contract had been cleared by the U.S. consulate, the senator added.

The Pontiac Business and Professional Women's Club traveled to Selfridge Air Force Base, Tuesday, for a briefing as part of this year's educational program.

Col. George Pittman Jr., 1st Fighter Wing Deputy Commander, for Materials received the group at the Officers' Club where dinner was served.

In reviewing the program at Selfridge, Col. Pittman explained that all of the commands in the military, there are but THREE statutory commands.

They are the Strategic Air Command (SAC), the Tactical Air Command (TAC) and the Air Defense Command (ADC) of which Selfridge is a part.

DEFENSE COMMAND

The function of the ADC operation with headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., is to organize men and train units for employment by the North American Defense Command.

Selfridge AFB has assets of more than 300 million dollars, one-half of which is in airplanes and the remainder in real estate, equipment and supplies. A payroll of over 15 million for the 4,000 personnel makes the operation the largest industry in Macomb County.

Colored films of Superonic Thunderbirds shown by Airman John Lyons and Sgt. William Bishop, and a conducted tour of the base, completed the evening.

Members of the National Security Committee of the BPW club responsible for the program were Mrs. Clifton Gier, Jewell Burchwell, Margaret Harsh and Bonnie Davidson.

Hostesses included Mrs. Lola Sandage, Mrs. Ronald Kunse, Margaret Wilmot, Mrs. Janet Dow, Ruth Rogers and Roberta A. Rapoport.

Set Table for Guests Beforehand

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a very small apartment with my dining table at one end of the living room. I would like to know if, when I entertain, I may set the table ahead of time, or would it look strange to have it all set while the guests are having a cocktail before dinner?—Sally S.

Dear Sally: Yes, a thousand times yes! Not only may you set the table ahead, you must.

No one minds the sight of an attractively set table, and the important thing is to do everything possible ahead of time so that you may devote every moment you can to your guests.

Of Course, Inform Parents; This Child Could Be Sick

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My daughter goes to school with a girl who telling all the boys if they want anything (material) she can get it for them. She brags that she has $3,000 worth of clothes, jewelry and things she has shop-lifted from stores.

She is a pretty girl and comes from a very nice family. Her parents can buy her anything she wants. She is a junior in high school. Abby, Should I tell her mother?

I'm afraid she might hurt her parents, or herself if this continues. No name, please.

WINSLOW, MAINE
DEAR WINSLOW: The child could be sick. Of course you should tell her mother. If it were YOUR daughter, wouldn't you appreciate the information?

DEAR ABBY: My husband seems to think I'm a magician. He wants this house spic and span, but if I'm dead tired at night he tells me not to work so hard. He's a great one for inviting crowds of people home for drinks and supper, but when the grocery and liquor bills come he says I am trying to send him to the poorhouse.

He nagged me for years to become "active" in community projects, but if he calls the house and I'm not home he raises the roof. If we've had a late evening he tells me not to get up early, but he growls like a bear if he has to make his "own breakfast. How can I tell him in plain language that I am no magician?

NO MAGICIAN.
DEAR NO: He knows it. If you were, you'd have made him disappear a long time ago.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that young lady whose baby was a few days overdue with her husband gone nine months and three days that she need not be concerned. The courts of most of our states, and most countries of the world recognize the legal gestation period as 11 months for humans.

It is a medical fact that a child can be carried that long. My sister-in-law carried a baby a full 10½ months, and she had been married five years at the time.

MRS. O. G. S., GULFPORT, MISS.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DU-ANNE: Start crying when she does. If there's one thing that's more effective than a woman's tears, it's a man's. Don't underestimate your own water power.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "RIGHT OR WRONG?" IN MEMPHIS: Any animal can have a SEX life. Your wife is talking about a LOVE life. That takes understanding, patience and unselfishness.

Troubled? Write to Abby, care of The Pontiac Press. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

At the spring meeting of the Janet Stuart Association (mother's club) of the Convent of the Sacred Heart Wednesday, plans for the Oct. 5 fashion show were presented. Mrs. Ray A. Altalo, Mill Spring Road, (center) is general chairman of "Hemlines and Horsepower '67." Mrs. John J. Riccardo, Tottenham Road, (left) and Mrs. John T. Higgins, Birmingham, are committee heads for the event at Bloomfield Open Hunt.

Slate Strawberry Festival

Mrs. Peter J. Russ Jr. and Mrs. John H. Forshaw are co-chairmen for the sixth annual Strawberry Festival of the Bloomfield Country Day School on Saturday.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the festival will feature games, a boutique gift shop, the traditional geranium sale, a flea market and home baked goods, all in a country fair setting.

Retired Teachers

The Retired Teachers Club will hold its annual meeting Friday at 6 p.m. in the First Federal Savings of Oakland Building. There will be a cooperative dinner with program following.

Save Sewing Time on Trouser Legs

To save sewing time, use cotton iron-on tape to hem trousers for growing boys.

Turn under pants legs to the desired length and iron strips of tape over raw edges. When you need to let out the hem, just press the cotton tape with a warm iron and pull it off.

About one-half of annual cotton consumption goes into the production of clothing.

Youth Groups Prepare Camp Oweki

Camp Oweki, owned and operated by the Pontiac Area Council of Camp Fire Girls, had its face lifted over the past weekend.

At the annual work bee, members of youth groups volunteered their services. High School students from area schools and church groups worked all day to ready the grounds and buildings for the summer program.

Adult members of the board of directors and camp development committees assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Floyd, the Charles Cupps, E. A. Hollister, Mrs. John Fitzgerald and Dorothy Hollister.

Others were Richard Jarvis, Don DeVoe, Willis Schnekenburger and staff members, Mrs. Judith Davison, Mrs. Deanne Hensel and Mrs. Ruth Plew.

YEAR-ROUND

Camp Oweki is used all during the year by the Camp Fire Girls and other organizations for group camping. During the summer, both day and overnight camping programs are conducted.

Day camp which begins July

5 will have two two-week sessions open to all area girls. Applications are also now being accepted from high school girls for camp aide positions. Further information may be obtained from the local Camp Fire office.

A second recent event at the camp was the annual Council Fire. This is an awards' event. Mrs. Donald Campbell directed activities, assisted by Mrs. Roscoe Hunt, Mrs. Albert Krueger, Mrs. Jack Pelton and Mrs. John Vanderlind.

Machine Dry

After washing items trimmed with cotton ball fringe, machine-dry them to restore the fluffiness of fringe. If you don't have an automatic dryer, you can soften line-dried fringe by holding it over a steaming kettle.

A single-row mechanical picker can harvest about 1,200 pounds of cotton an hour.

Teen-Age Style Show Presented at School

Charmaine Reeb of Simplicity Pattern Co., Inc. who's in Pontiac all week, has been showing teens the latest in sew-it-yourself wardrobes. Pontiac Central High School viewed the young styles Wednesday afternoon with students from Jo Leino's home economics classes modeling.

Thursday and Friday will see presentations at other area schools.

Exclamations of, "Oh no" filled Central's auditorium when the commentator remarked that saddle shoes are finding their way back to the school scene.

One piece of advice given the girls was, "if in doubt about skirt lengths, sit down in front of a full mirror and relax. If you don't like what you see, lower that hem."

Most of the fashions shown were made from the mad mod collections of prints so much in evidence with the young set. The wandering waistlines produced silhouettes calling attention to the hips, bustline and, for that matter, everything but the waistline.

Today some Londoners are wearing hemlines four to five inches above the knee, but Miss Reeb reports that the end to shorter skirts is around the corner. The July Paris showings forecasts the look of 1930 with lengths coming down to mid-knee.

Another tip for young seamstresses is to cover clear plastic head bands with fabric matching the outfit you're making. Just attach with clear tape.

Silk Getting a New Finish

Silk, which has become a forgotten fabric since the advent of man-made easy care materials, is about to stage a comeback — thanks to researchers who are developing a chemical treatment that sounds like the answer to a silkworm's prayer.

When silk has been treated with the new finish, it can be laundered in your washer without shrinking or wrinkling. Normally, silk is extremely difficult to free of wrinkles when home washed and tumble dried, as you probably know all too well. Textile World says that the new treatment for silk is based on the use of blocked urethane resins. Now why didn't they think of that sooner.

The longer the fiber, the better the quality of cotton.

Illicit Affair Means Bondage.

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I am 28. I am having an affair with a man who is separated from his wife.

I wouldn't have called it this a year ago but I do now as he gets angry if I mention the divorce he promised to get. He wants me to spend my coming vacation with him as man and wife as I did last summer.

When I try to tell him I was frightened of someone recognizing us the whole time, he says this wouldn't matter if I loved him. I do love him but...

ANSWER: But you want more advantage from your love. That's it, isn't it?

But there are thousands of people who can't allow us any advantage from loving them. They just want an endless supply of our love dished out to them as invalids want hot soup.

This isn't just true of neurotic men. It's true of those neurotic mothers, too, who demand endless supplies of love in return for giving us birth. If we are involved with a neurotic man like yours, it's helpful to realize how closely he resembles the undeveloped mother.

He regards the love-making he gives us exactly as she regards her giving birth — the act that entitles them both to such appreciation that we must remain fixed in this appreciation and never want anything else.

It's a helpful realization because it destroys his "romantic love" glamour. You just can't see yourself as the heroine of romance once you see its hero's likeness to irrational mothers.

Tell such a mother, "I've fallen in love and want to get married" and she has a tantrum at the idea we could want to love someone else. So does he. He goes wild at the mention of divorce that would open our way to marriage, a home and babies.

Girls like you don't see the similarity of growth-denying men to growth-denying mothers because your "romantic love" notion says to you, "Sexual relationship is different from all other human relationships. It's special."

Well, it isn't. It's no more glorious to remain forever content with love-making than it would be to remain forever content with mommy. If we are not allowed to grow in any human relationship, we begin to hate it as bondage.

Can Be a Lifesaver

Teach Tact to Young

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.
CASE Y-475: Fritz K., aged 17, is a high school senior.
"Dr. Crane," he said, "I ran for president of our senior class."
"But I did not get the job. In fact, I was beaten by a vote of 189 to 14, so I feel disgraced."
"Yet I am DR. CRANE as good looking as the fellow who won. And we have both been in the same classes for almost four years."
"So how could he win such a lopsided victory?"
Fritz was the type of teenager who is blunt and tactless. His opponent had been reared by a mother who was deft and tactful in any group.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Beauty is made up of many parts, and these are within the reach of every woman. A clear complexion, shining hair, a lovely figure, and a good posture form the foundation upon which beauty is built. I haven't mentioned health because if you have the first five ingredients, you are very apt to have fine health also.

Add to these meticulous grooming, well-cared-for and becomingly styled hair, know-how about clothes and make-up, and a sparkling personality, and you have a knockout! Many women are worried about skin blemishes. Something can be done about most of them. It is surprising how many women allow warts or moles to mar their good looks. These can be safely and easily removed by a dermatologist. Do not follow a friend's advice and try to treat them yourself.

Large pores are often a handicap to an otherwise lovely complexion. These usually accompany an oil skin. The face should be washed several times a day with soap and water. A complexion brush is helpful because the stimulation it provides tends to normalize the little oil glands in the skin. After rinsing the face well apply an astringent. It is sometimes very effective to pat the face with a cube of ice which is wrapped in a soft cloth after rinsing it and before using the astringent. The face should be thoroughly dry before patting the astringent on.

It is possible to have large pores even when the complexion would be classified as dry. The face may be dry as a whole but be oily in the areas where the enlarged pores occur. If you have this kind of "combination skin," treat it that way. Use soap and water on the oily sections and cream on the dry parts.

A skin specialist can prescribe a drying lotion which helps contract the pores. A visit to one might be worthwhile if you have this problem.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Clear The Way For Beauty" (about skin blemishes), send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address: Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

(c) "Oh, excuse me, Sir." When I inserted that problem in my newspaper Quiz Column, it swamped the switchboards of the Chicago TRIBUNE and the New York NEWS.

For thousands of chemists, accountants, physicists and even introverted clergymen phoned to report that there must have been an error in the answers given!

There wasn't!

The correct answer was (c). It indicated tact.

But introverts often haven't a sense of tact, for tactful people also have a keen sense of humor, since they are more extroverted.

So send for my "Vocational Guidance Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents in care of The Pontiac Press for its 5 subbooks include a "Test of Tact."

how to slim an hourglass Figure . . .

Like the skilled musician who forgets a bar of music but can improvise a few measures that harmonize, so the boy or girl reared on tact can automatically say the right thing in a crucial situation.

Problem 22: A butler accidentally opens the bathroom door while the lady of the house is bathing. He should say:

(a) "Oh, excuse me, Madame. I didn't know you were in here."

(b) "You should have locked the door."

Here are some tips for care of textured acetate knits from the National Institute of Dry-cleaning.

If you press your garment between its trips to the cleaner, remember to turn it inside out and press on the underside of the fabric. Do not tug, pull or manipulate while the fabric is damp with steam and avoid using too much pressure. This can cause a shine or leave marks. If there is a wet spot on the garment let it dry before you press it. You may dull the fabric.

For the best in care and to assure that well-groomed look, entrust your textured acetate knits to your professional dry-cleaner.

Cong Give Him a Pain in the Leg -- Often

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
BIEN HOA, Viet Nam (NEA) — Enough is enough.
It wasn't so astonishing when Efrain Davila was shot in the leg the first time. One might even shrug off the second wound. And the third... well, stretching the proposition, that too, could conceivably be accepted as simply the way the bullet bounces.
But how about the rest?
It's downright weird.
The man is whammed. And enough is enough.
It all started last year when Davila, a 24-year-old sergeant from Placiosa, Tex., was crawling through a war zone, slipping at skelters and gun-flicking gracefully whenever enemy snipers opened fire.
The order that day was for every man to be stone still... but Davila, son of a sergeant-major, graduate of a military academy, and normally disciplined to a fault, reluctantly disobeyed.
"Nuts!" he shouted suddenly.
HOLE IN LEG
Then he fell, blood rushing from a large hole in his leg. He had been drilled through by a 50-caliber machine gun shell.
They evacuated him immediately. Hospital people washed his leg, filled the wound, closed the hole, slopped on gauze, gave him a Purple Heart and a pat on the shoulder and sent him back to the war.
Things passed quietly for awhile.
Then he got it again.
This time the sergeant stopped a 9mm slug. It punctured the fatty part of his upper left leg... not far from the first hole.

First Hint of Change Heard on Japan N-Arms Attitude

TOKYO (AP) — A growing debate in Japan over its relations with the United States and Red China is bringing forth the first vague hint that the general Japanese attitude toward nuclear arms may be changing.
The debate, centered on the Japan-U.S. security treaty and Communist China's atomic weapon potential, had focused attention on controversial proposals for a Japanese military buildup.
In this country, that suffered the world's only atomic bombings, the whole idea of rearmament — especially with nuclear weapons — has been shunned for two decades.
Now the government is proceeding more boldly with plans for a defense buildup. It also is taking a subtle stand on the question of a nuclear proliferation treaty, leaving the way open for Japan to have its own atomic weapons as long as others do.
The government is considering strengthening the submarine and missile forces. Japan's space program is pushing ahead, and the country may become the fourth in the world to launch its own satellite with its own rocket later this year. The space program is for peaceful purposes, but its rockets easily could become missiles.
And the Japanese government says it can make a nuclear bomb if it wants to. Probably the Japanese could produce a nuclear ballistic missile in a year — and keep in the race with Red China. Japan likely is ahead of China in missile technology while trailing the Chinese on nuclear weapon development.
Japan renounced the use of nuclear weapons after World War II. Developments — particularly Communist China's nuclear tests — have produced second thoughts. This month, after China's third test, several Japanese papers suggested Japan might be forced to reconsider its nuclear policy. The government pledged anew to avoid nuclear armament.
Yet the government has been involved in a debate over Japan's policy toward a proposed treaty on proliferation of nuclear weapons. The govern-

Checks Hole Made By Slug He Fired At Killer

Teen Tells of Firing at Killer

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Larry Ruback, 15, fired on kidnaper-killer William Hollenbaugh, 44, yesterday on the front porch of the Ruback farm home. In the following dispatch, young Ruback tells his story.)

By LARRY RUBECK
(As told to United Press International)

FORT LITTLETON, Pa. — I was afraid the whole time.

I was pitching hay and fooling around in the barn when I saw the car coming up.

I saw him and I saw the girl and I knew right away who it was.

I had seen him around before and I had seen his picture.

I ran to the house and got the gun and yelled to my mother, "hit the floor, Mom, that crazy mountain man is on the porch."

She didn't listen though. She went with me to get the gun and then stood beside me the whole time. It was only three or four minutes.

I saw him at the window and I didn't have time to hesitate.

HE FELL OVER

I knew he would either keep us as hostages or maybe kill us. I fired and he fell over.

I'm a hunter and I've killed animals, but I just don't know how I feel about this. I haven't had time to think.

(Ruback was sure he had killed Hollenbaugh, and a state police and FBI investigation concurred. However, the county coroner said an autopsy indicated Hollenbaugh was killed by a rifle bullet, not the pumpkin ball Ruback fired, and that the trajectory of the slug through Hollenbaugh's body showed the boy could not have fired it from the window. The fugitive was under fire by police when he was hit on the Ruback porch.)

People around here seem to think I'm a hero but I don't know.

I didn't know the girl because we don't go to the same school. And I had never really talked to him (Hollenbaugh).

I'm glad the girl is all right and I'm glad it's over.

Artificial Heart Is Taken Out

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A patient to receive an artificial heart within a month, Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, international heart surgeon, performed a similar operation April 21 on Marcel L. DeRuder, 65, an Illinois coal miner.

DeRuder lived nearly five days but never regained consciousness. His death was attributed to a rupture of the left lung. DeBakey said the artificial heart was performing satisfactorily when DeRuder died.

LUNG FUNCTION

The hospital's advisory Wednesday night said removal of the chest fluid caused improvement of lung function and treatment was initiated toward control of a hemorrhagic bleeding tendency.

Tests during the removal of chest fluid indicated McCans' heart condition had improved sufficiently to assure normal function without assistance of the pump and with no evidence of heart failure, the hospital stated. The device therefore was removed, it said.

McCans and DeRuder required operations to replace different major heart valves. Both McCans, who entered the hospital May 8, and DeRuder, who died April 26, were described as "high risk" cases with long histories of heart ailments.

The artificial heart includes a plastic pump about the size of a tennis ball and two tubes about six inches long and an inch in diameter. The pump remains outside the chest with the tubes implanted. It can be removed at any time without major surgery.

The hospital would not confirm that DeBakey performed the McCans operation. It referred only to a "cardiovascular team" which is known to include DeBakey and others capable of performing the surgery.

Hunt Intensified for New Music Camp President

INTERLOCHEN (UPI) — The search for a successor to the late Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, president of the National Music Camp here, has been intensified, according to the chairman of the executive committee.

The board of trustees will screen candidates to succeed Maddy, who founded the camp, during commencement week in June, a special committee handling applications.

Roscoe O. Bonisteel, Ann Arbor, chairman of the executive committee, said the search for a successor is still being carried on.

It's a Long Row to England

BOSTON (AP) — Would you believe a rowboat race across the Atlantic Ocean? Four Britons do.

David Johnstone, 34, Farnham, Surrey, and John Hoare, 28, Leicester, leave Virginia Beach, Va., today or tomorrow in a 15-foot boat equipped with a small cabin and a kerosene stove.

Capt. John Ridgeway, 27, and Sgt. Shay Blyth, 26, both attached to a parachute troop stationed at Aldershot, England, plan to shove their 22-foot dory into the waters off Cape Cod, Mass., next week for the long haul to Lands End in England. Their dory is equipped with life rafts, lifejackets and radios.

Both teams hope to make the 3,000-plus mile trip in less than 30 days and break a record they said was set by two seamen in 1895.

Boyer City School Vote Set on Extra Millage

BOYNE CITY (UPI) — The Boyne City Board of Education will ask district school voters June 13 to approve an extra three-mill tax for operational expenses. The three mills would replace two expiring mills and add an extra mill.

East Jordan voters, also in Charlevoix County, will be asked to continue an expiring six-mill tax with a new nine-mill levy for extra operating funds.

The Mind-Changer.

(Rambler Rebel)

Ron and Loretta Armstrong had it in their heads that they wanted just a car. Now they have a Rebel on their minds (and one in their garage). What changed their minds? First, they took a reading on Rebel's Hialeah Plaid interior. Then he slipped behind the wheel, and sank into the comfort of coil-spring bucket seats. But the clincher came when he slipped it into low, let it go and felt the mind-changing difference a 327 cubic inch V-8 makes. * Rebel is bigger, bolder... and now more powerful than ever. So why not see your American Motors/Rambler Dealer? This could be the day you get carried away and end up with your Mind-Changer. Every minute of every working day, two more families make their choice a new American Motors car.

Double U.S. Space Spectacular Set Starting on Memorial Day

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The United States hopes to take another big step toward an astronaut on the moon by 1969 with a two-day space spectacular beginning on Memorial Day.

Space agency officials yesterday scheduled the rerun of Gemini 9's orbital extravaganza—featuring a rendezvous and spacewalk—for May 31.

The preceding day, the first operational Atlas-Centaur rocket is to hurl a Surveyor spacecraft toward America's first soft landing on the moon.

Such a landing is necessary to determine the makeup of the moon's surface for manned explorations.

To set the stage for the Gemini 9 rerun, teams of technicians are working 24 hours a day to get a new Atlas rocket ready for launching the substitute rendezvous target that astronauts Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan will chase in space.

"This is a very difficult task," said Dr. George E. Mueller, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned space-flight program.

1980 Is Here as Far as Traffic Planning Goes, Says Expert

DETROIT (AP)—A transportation expert says there is a finding that 1980 arrived last year.

Rubin reported Tuesday to members of Sigma Delta Chi, a journalism society, on findings of the Detroit Regional Transportation and Land Use Study, of which he is director.

And, said Irving J. Rubin, "when our tabulations are complete, we may very well volume of 7.5 million vehicle trips a day."

But, he said, a "conservative analysis" of a study under way this year shows there are now more than 7 million vehicle trips a day.

He attributed the big increase in travel to "striking changes in our way of life" and said "these changes are increasing travel totals out of all proportion to population growth."

TRAFFIC STUDY

He cited a 1953 study of traffic in the Detroit metropolitan region which predicted a 1980

Changes include more two-car households and more one-car households. Automobile availability has been increased, he said, by "the shortened workday and weekwork, increased real and disposable income, the increasing urbanization and expansion of our metropolitan areas and the larger number of young people."

Rubin said metropolitan areas must solve the problem of streets clogged with traffic through "the proper 'mix' of public transportation service and highway capacity."

"And in order that each metropolitan area can freely choose the best 'mix' to meet its needs, we need a separately and adequately financed Mass Transportation Act (from Congress) as a companion to a new, expanded Federal Highway Act."

In the Detroit region, he said an area which in 1953 was "urbanized or rapidly urbanizing" generated 5.5 million person trips per day.

Last year, a study showed 9.9 million person trips per day, "an increase of 80 per cent in the number of trips per day in the area of metropolitan concern — out of all proportion to the 33 per cent increase in number of households."

Road Unit Hits Relocation Bill

Senator Raps Stand; Committee Gives OK

LANSING (AP) —The Highway Department declared Wednesday a bill requiring the department to guarantee housing for persons displaced by highway would halt state highway construction.

But the Senate Highway Committee approved the bill and a senator accused the department of "bluffing like they always are."

The House - approved measure would prohibit the Highway Department from letting a contract "until it certifies to the State Administrative Board that persons living in the area of such highway projects have been relocated in suitable housing."

Department spokesman William Davis told the Senate committee that delays brought on by such legislation could on danger the 90 per cent federal financing the state receives for some highway construction.

Sen. Michael O'Brien, D-Detroit, said the department was bluffing. "It's been a road builders' holiday," he declared to a newsman. "The Highway Department can devote some time to relocating people...."

Quiet Diplomacy Results in Malaysia-Indonesia Talks

By ARTHUR L. GAVISON
LONDON (AP) — After a phase of quiet diplomacy, Britain and Malaysia are ready to take the calculated risk of making peace with a sobered Indonesia.

This is the meaning of the Malaysian government assignment Wednesday that sent Deputy Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak to meet with Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik.

More is at stake than an end to the three-year undeclared war between Indonesia and Malaysia. The stability of South Asia is involved, and with it American-British plans to block Red Chinese expansionism in the area.

An end to the war is all-important for Britain at this critical stage in the Labor government's economic recovery program. Britain has 50,000 air, land and sea forces in Malaysia to defend its Commonwealth partner.

MUCH SPADEWORK

British representatives in Jakarta have done much spadework in informal exchanges with the new Indonesian regime of Lt. Gen. Suharto.

The outline of a settlement has begun to shape up, according to diplomats of the three countries concerned.

The starting point for any political reconciliation, by common consent, seems likely to be a tacit truce. This would mean an end to Indonesian raids on Malaysian territory and shipping and a cease-fire along the jungle frontier dividing Malaysian and Indonesian Borneo.

If all goes well, this would be followed by a quiet withdrawal of forces from the Borneo frontier. Binding political agreements could follow.

NO DESIGNS

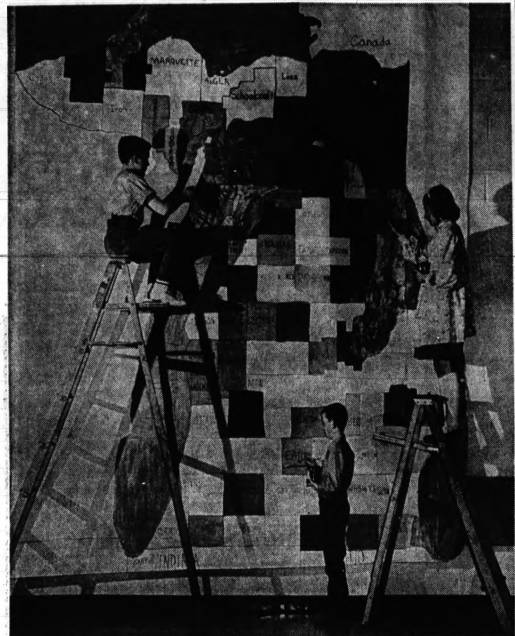

The Indonesians have given the British the impression that:

1. The Suharto regime has no designs on present territory of the Malaysian federation.
2. It is concerned much more with reorganizing Indonesia's near-bankrupt economy. Aid for reconstruction is likely to be sought from the United States, Britain, Australia, Japan and the Netherlands.
3. Indonesia intends joining no military alliances or blocs but will follow true nonalignment.

President Sukarno was committed nominally to nonalignment but Westerners considered him to be in Peking's pocket.

The Indonesians also have let it be known that for the continued stability of the Suharto regime the Indonesian-Malaysian confrontation must be ended with no loss of Indonesian honor or dignity.

British and Malaysian authorities seem to have taken the point. They are aware Sukarno scored a great political coup by securing West Irian — New Guinea — from the Dutch without fighting for it. They realize Suharto could be exposed to fierce political attack and worse if it seemed to Indonesian nationalists he surrendered his national objectives or interests.

Psychiatric Patient Canadian Blows Self Up in Parliament

OTTAWA (AP) — A mad bomber who blew himself up in the washroom Wednesday was Paul Joseph Chartier, 45, Toronto.

The washroom is near the offices of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and Foreign Secretary Paul Martin. It was the first such bombing in the 99-year history of the Canadian Parliament.

Chartier once had been a psychiatric patient and left writings in his Toronto rooming house which indicated he felt "the world hadn't done right by him and there were injustices to correct," Pennell said.

Prof Disputes Mansfield on Europe Pullout Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Harvard professor today challenged Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield's proposal that the United States withdraw all but a token force of its troops from Europe.

Dr. Thomas C. Schelling, former consultant to the State and Defense departments and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, told a Senate inquiry the United States must keep a strong force there "whatever else happens" to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"What we still have and must keep is the physical presence of American troops in Europe in sufficient numbers to make clear that they are a real force, not a token force, and that in case of military action they are there to fight and not merely to sound the alarm," he said in testimony prepared for the National Security subcommittee.

Mansfield had said in an interview Monday the United States "could maintain our presence in Europe with only a token force. One division should be enough."

PHYSICAL GUARANTEE

Schelling did not refer to Mansfield by name. But he said NATO "has provided since 1950 a physical guarantee that any significant military engagement in central Europe will involve the United States in an unmistakable way. Whatever else happens to NATO, it must continue not only to express, but physically to embody, this American guarantee."

He said although Soviet aggressiveness has been the security problem of the past 15 years, "the problem of the next

U.S. Travelers Get Warning on British Smallpox

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Public Health Service is warning travelers — particularly those returning from England — to be alert for symptoms of smallpox.

Dr. Louis Jacobs, chief of the Division of Foreign Quarantine, said 10 confirmed cases of smallpox have been reported in Staffordshire in central England and there are another 13 suspected cases.

Travelers should consult a physician if they have a fever and a rash within two weeks of their arrival in the United States, Jacobs said.

MOVIED ADJOURNMENT

As smoke rolled through the third-floor halls from the washroom, Pearson moved adjournment until the incident could be investigated.

Parliamentary messenger Rene Soulieres, 30, said he had directed a man to the washroom shortly before the blast.

The man had been sitting in the public gallery of the house and asked in English whether his seat could be saved while he was away briefly, Soulieres said.

Two members of Parliament who are medical doctors, Hugh Horner and P.B. Rynard, were among the first to reach the washroom.

HOLDING BOMB

Horner said it appeared Chartier may have been holding the bomb when it went off.

The heavy wooden door of the washroom withstood the force of the blast. But one panel was pierced by a chunk of marble.

Chartier's landlady in Toronto, Joan Lapalme, said he moved in about five weeks ago and had recently been somewhere in the United States. She described him as a "nice, quiet man" and said she'd had little conversation with him.

Guard Duty Lonely on Reef

CHARLEVOIX (AP) — "The living quarters are about 27 x 27 feet," smiles Coast Guardsman Dan Dicianno, "and as each day goes by, it gets smaller and smaller and smaller."

Thirty miles out into Lake Michigan north of here and 18 miles west of the Mackinac Bridge is Gray's Reef Light.

Located at the reef's "elbow," it is one of more than a dozen such installations manned by the U.S. Coast Guard to make shipping lanes safe where winds are wont to howl through the Straits of Mackinac in an area menaced by shoals, reefs and shallows.

Hermits live on Gray's Reef but they are a far cry from "The Hermit of Shark-Tooth Shoal," who, legend has it, "lived by himself on a sea lion's shelf in lonely iniquity."

MODERN HERMITS

The modern hermits of Gray's Reef have TV.

They live in the 30-foot-high lighthouse on a 60 x 80-foot concrete "crib" sunk solidly into the reef 25 feet below water. And instead of fighting loneliness, they guard against getting on each other's nerves.

"We've been pretty lucky," up as far as 70 miles away.

Dicianno says. "We've had no squabbles. In fact," he adds with a wink, "you can't hardly pick an argument around here just to pass the time."

"I ask Wade what he wants to watch on TV and he says 'It doesn't matter to me.'"

TWO SEASONS

Elwood Wade, bosun's mate first class from Traverse City, is in charge of the light. A tall, thin, soft-spoken man, he has served there two seasons.

"We keep busy to pass the time," Wade says. "We get up at 7 a.m., eat breakfast and turn to for station work at 8 a.m. We 'secure' from work at 1:30 hours (4:30 p.m.) and then are pretty much on our own."

"That's week days. Saturdays and Sundays we don't have regular work but we can work if we want to."

The work includes maintaining the 1,000-watt, 9,000-candlepower red light which is visible up to 17 miles away under good conditions; operating the air-powered fog horn when visibility is five miles or less; and keeping a 24-hour radiobeacon on the air which can be picked up as far as 70 miles away.

The light is on four seconds and off two seconds as seen from a passing ship. The fog horn is turned on by hand when visibility falls and operates on a 20-second cycle, with two seconds of melancholy warning followed by 18 seconds of silence.

The dash, dot, dot, dash of the radiobeacon (No. 9 in Morse code) is continuous.

Just off the small living, dining and recreation room which also serves as a galley, three identical grandfather-type pendulum clocks stand side by side. Two keep time and operate automatic equipment and the third keeps check on the others and stands by as a spare.

Time is important to the men on Gray's Reef. In the two small rooms with double bunks, in the engine room and at other strategic locations are calendars with big X's through each passed day.

Lighthouse duty is generally on a volunteer basis, according to Wade, though if there aren't enough volunteers, men are drafted. Crews serve three weeks on duty and one week off in most cases but may choose to serve six weeks straight with two weeks off.

Lights are generally opened about mid-March and kept in operation into December, depending on the shipping season. When lights close for the year, men who have served on them are given their choice of Coast Guard stations where they may serve in the off season.

Warrant Officer James C. Seidl is group commander of the 9th Coast Guard District and makes his headquarters at the Charlevoix station. His group includes a station at Mackinac Island and a substation on Beaver Island. Chief Otis McKeithan is in charge of the Charlevoix base.

In addition to Gray's Reef, the Charlevoix station operates lights at White Shoals, Lansing Shoals, Forty Mile Point, Presque Isle, Alpena, Thunder Bay Island, Fox Reef, Spectacle Reef, Martin Reef and the Cheboygan River. The lights are spread around the top of the Michigan "mitten" in Lakes Michigan and Huron.

GRAY'S REEF LIGHT — In the distance is Gray's Reef Light, manned by the United States Coast Guard from March to December to warn ships of shoals and shallows. The light is located 30 miles out into Lake Michigan from Charlevoix and 18 miles west of the Mackinac Bridge.

Birth Control Project Is Tried on Seagulls

MUSKETGET ISLAND, Mass. (AP) — Twenty-four thousand seagulls on this sandy island took part in an experiment in family planning recently.

U.S. Winning Back Gabon Friendship

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (AP)—was no American ambassador mountain of almost pure iron ore is believed to contain reserves of up to two billion tons.

NOT TRYING The new ambassador, career diplomat David M. Bane, arrived last August and, by patient diplomacy, has succeeded in convincing Gabonese and French officials that the United States is not trying to replace French influence in the country.

The president was saved at the 11th hour during the 1964 coup by the arrival of French troops which still are the most solid prop of his regime.

French military and civilian advisors have a bigger role in Gabon's administration than in most other former French colonies in Africa. The Gabonese army and police still are under command of French officers.

Albert Bongo, Mba's defense and information chief, an impassioned supporter of French policies in Gabon, is the gray eminence of the regime and is widely tapped as the 64-year-old president's eventual successor.

The 1964 coup was directed partly against French influence. Former U.S. Ambassador Charles Darlington was suspected by many Gabonese politicians of maintaining close contacts with its leaders. For more than a year after that, there

IRON MOUNTAIN At Belinga, 300 miles inland, a

Bethlehem Steel Corp., in collaboration with French interests, is planning to develop the area. Experts say the ore can be scooped off the surface with a bulldozer.

At Moanda, some 200 miles inland from Belinga, there is the largest known deposit of manganese ore outside the Soviet bloc.

Moanda is probably the only town in the world where the manganese. Here, too, a large-scale development is planned jointly by French and American interests.

OIL PRODUCTION Oil production of coastal and offshore wells is soon expected to reach six million tons annually.

"The investment needed to develop all these immense resources is so great that the French realize they cannot handle it without the help of American interests," Bane said.

"This may explain why we and the French are moving closer and closer together."

If French diplomats ever felt any suspicion of American intentions in Gabon, they seem ready to bury the hatchet. French and Gabonese officials praise what they call Bane's "discretion."

In practice, this means allowing the French to exercise certain exclusive prerogatives in advising the Mba regime.

America's Hinge Generation

Middle-Aged Need a Boost

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — A "Great Society" should recognize its real heroes.
Since this is so, isn't it about time that President Johnson and the Congress formulated a program to pay tribute to the overlooked generation — America's middle-aged population?
There are unsung millions of people in this age bracket — between 40 and 65 — who are literally starved for a kind word and a friendly pat on the back.
The federal government provides free lunches for kids, college scholarships for the talented young, and medical care for the elderly.
But what does it send to the middle-aged? Just tax bills.
They are the most taken-for-granted generation in all history — and the least rewarded.

HINGE GENERATION
Yet they are the hinge generation of America. It all depends on them. If every middle-aged man and woman went on strike and refused to do his duty for a single week, the conduct of civilization would cease.
Factories and business offices would shut down, railroads grind to a halt, schools close, department stores and restaurants shutter their doors, theaters ring down their curtains.
The middle-aged not only do most of the nation's work, but also are chief keepers of the nation's pocketbook. When they don't spend, the economy is punctured.
Yet the middle-aged person is the patsy of the times. Everybody else depends on him, but he gets less credit than anybody.
HANGOVER FROM PAST
He is gibed at, mocked, and treated by the juniors as a hangover from the Neanderthal past.

Governments tend to regard him as something like a two-legged cow — to be milked morning and evening.
You can win a deal on a battlefield in five minutes. But no medals are awarded for those who quietly and unspectacularly fight the long 25-year daily grind that stretches between their 40th birthday and final victory — retirement.
Why not a national day honoring them? Why not give medals to the middle-aged? Certainly today any man or woman who admits being over 40 deserves a medal — for courage, if not for valor.
Everybody loves a parade, why not vast parades once a year — perhaps it could be held on April Fools' Day — at the end of which all the new 40-year-olds would get a brass or leather medal, pinned on by the mayor?
At 45, 50, 55 and 60, each middle-aged cluster could be given an Oak Leaf Cluster, provided he still were employed and not a tax delinquent.
Then, at 65, the President and the Congress could issue him a brass sundial — a gold watch might be overdoing it — and a parchment scroll reading:
"A grateful nation salutes you, John Doe, for a good job well done. You have served your country faithfully and well by raising a family, buying a home, staying out of jail, refraining from bearing your wife in public, and contributing to the moral welfare of the U.S. Treasury."
Now, take it easy, John. Do your harness and enjoy the green pastures of old age. And remember, if you ever need help — don't call us. We'll call you.
An allergy is not contagious.

A large, stylized, black and white graphic of the word "SALE". The letters are thick and blocky, with decorative elements like small triangles and lines. The 'S' and 'A' have a gothic or medieval feel, while the 'L' and 'E' are more modern but still stylized. The overall effect is bold and eye-catching.

Cookies Layer Ice Cream Slice

A birthday celebration, a winning streak for the local sandlot nine, a doll's tea party or an after-school or day camp session are all reason enough for Mom to make these very special Brownie Sandwiches.

The brownies — made from a mix — are baked in two pans so that they're slim and crispy, just like cookies when cut. To the mix, are added rich and tempting pecans that make the sandwiches wonderfully crunchy to bite into.

After the brownies are baked and cut into cookie-size pieces, slices of ice cream are put between two brownies, and each treat is wrapped and frozen till serving time.

Brownie Sandwiches

1 15-ounce package brownie mix
1 cup chopped pecans
3 pints vanilla ice cream

Prepare brownie mix as directed on package for cake-type brownies. Pour half of mixture into a greased 15x10x1/4 inch pan. Sprinkle with 1/2-cup chopped pecans. Repeat with remaining batter and pecans. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes.

While still hot, cut each pan of brownies into 18 3 1/2 x 2 1/4 inch cookies. Remove from pan and cool on rack.

Cut each pint of ice cream into 6 slices. Put a slice of ice cream between two cookies. Wrap in saran or waxed paper and keep frozen until serving time. Makes 18 sandwiches.

Area Women Participate in Consumer Panels

Consumer preferences are important to Michigan agricultural producers, food processors, wholesalers and retailers state consumer marketing agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawyer. For this reason, Michigan State University's Consumer Marketing Program annually stages statewide consumer preference panels.

Approximately 125 Oakland County residents participated in such a research project in Pontiac last week at the County Board of Education.

Mary Zehner, Marketing Specialist and Mrs. Lawyer arranged five groups of panelists to study nine different foods and packages of interest to Michigan's food industry.

Briefly the products tested included:

- The point or price at which consumers will switch from buying 2 1/2-gallon containers to buying a gallon container.

- Determine consumer preference for three types of gallon milk containers — the plastic milk bottle, paperboard gallon carton, and twin-pack (2 1/2-gallon gallons sold together).

- Consumer packaging preference for three types of dry (whole) onion bags — paper with mesh window polyethylene, and vexar (nylon mesh).

- Consumer color preference for vexar bags for dry (whole) onions (red, white, and blue).

- Taste test with regular fruit cocktail and low calorie fruit cocktail.

- Test consumer understanding of the difference between butt portion and butt half of ham, as specified by Michigan law.

- Determine consumer attitude toward gallon paperboard milk cartons in respect to ease of carrying, economy, ease of pouring, how it fits in refrigerator, and general convenience.

- Test the market potential for pure maple products in new forms and packages.

- Taste test with coated and uncoated dry roasted peanuts.

Results of the state-wide study will be reported to producers, processors and sellers of these respective products. Such information will assist various segments of the food industry provide consumers with more convenient, more satisfactory food products and packages.

Meat Loaf Recipes Have New Twist on Old Subject

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Meat loaf can be as interesting a main dish as any other meat. The meats to use and the ways to vary the trimmings are endless.

Being a dish that is good either hot or cold, meat loaf is good for picnic and patio meals. It can be wrapped in aluminum foil and cooked on an open grill.

Just a word of warning: because ground meat is always quicker to spoil than larger pieces, meat loaves must be kept refrigerated after baking. It is wise to use any leftovers within a day or two.

For a quick and easy loaf with delicious flavor, try this Burgundy Beef and Olive Loaf.

BURGUNDY BEEF AND OLIVE LOAF

¼ cup coarse cracker crumbs
¼ cup Burgundy wine
¼ cup chopped stuffed olives
2 pounds lean ground beef
2 tablespoons meat loaf seasoning blend
Stuffed olive slices

Combine cracker crumbs and wine in a large mixing bowl. Stir to moisten. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Pack into a 9x5-inch loaf pan and bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Garnish with stuffed olive slices. Serves 8 to 12.

Lamb makes an interesting meat loaf. This one has a ribbon of apple stuffing between two meat layers.

LAMB LOAF WITH APPLE FILLING

Meat Mixture:
2 pounds lean lamb, ground
¼ cup packaged corn flake crumbs
¼ cup wheat germ
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon rosemary
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten

Filling Mixture:
2 apples, cored, pared and diced
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten

Combine all ingredients for meat mixture; mix well. Spread half in greased loaf pan 8 by 5

BURGUNDY BEEF AND OLIVE LOAF

by 3 inches. Combine filling ingredients; spread evenly over meat mixture in pan. Top with remaining meat mixture.

Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Remove loaf from pan. Keep warm.

Pour off all but 4 tablespoons fat. Add 4 tablespoons flour to remaining fat and brown drippings; blend. Stir in 2 cups apple juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring until thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve with the meat loaf. Makes 8 or more servings.

Sometimes it's fun to glaze a meat loaf. The following one is glazed just before serving.

SPICY GLAZED MEAT LOAF

1½ pounds ground beef
¼ cup ginger snap cookie crumbs
¼ cup chopped onion
2 eggs
¼ cup (small can) undiluted evaporated milk
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Combine beef, cookie crumbs, onion, eggs, evaporated milk and seasonings; mix well. Turn into a 1½ quart loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree oven one hour. Drain off drippings. Cool 5 minutes in pan.

Unmold; spread Peach Glaze over top. Garnish with peach slices, red marshmallow cherries slivered almonds, and ¼ teaspoon mace in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine until onion is peach preserves and ¼ cup water in saucepan; cook and stir over low heat until thick. Heat; stir now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Leaf:

40 butter crackers
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cracked pepper
¼ cup minced onion
1 egg, beaten
¼ cup milk
3 pounds ground round steak

Stuffing:

20 butter crackers
¼ cup minced celery
¼ cup minced onion
½ cup minced green pepper
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup minced parsley
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese

To make loaf: Crush crackers with hands into coarse pieces. Place in large bowl. Stir in nutmeg, salt and pepper. Mix onion with beaten egg and milk; stir into crumbs. Add meat, mixing gently but well. Pat mixture to form a rectangle about 9"x14" on a double thickness of foil.

To make stuffing: Crush crackers as above. Set aside. Sauté celery, green pepper and onion in butter over moderate heat until tender but not brown. Stir in crumbs, parsley and mixture evenly over meat, leaving about 1 inch uncovered at one end.

Starting from the other end, roll as you would a jelly roll. Gently press final edge down

Bake in 450 degree oven for about 45 minutes. Carefully open foil and cook about 15 minutes longer or until brown. Yield: 6 servings.

When there is a large crowd assembled, you'll want a big recipe. Everyone likes a ham loaf.

ROLLED MEAT LOAF

Put Creamy Orange Filling in Meringue Pie Shell

This recipe for a luscious orange pie with a meringue-and-crushed-crust is based on one that actually did win a Florida orange dessert contest several years ago.

Florida's prized Valencia oranges, now a good low-cost fruit choice in your local market, are perfect for this pie as they are simple to section and juice.

Valencias are large in size, with a smooth, thin skin, oval shape, and deep orange color. They are usually seedless or have not more than six small seeds.

Valencia-type oranges make up nearly half of the Florida crop. They came to the state from Southern Europe about a hundred years ago, and have been the standard late variety Florida orange during this century.

Should you notice green tinges on the outside of Valencia oranges, don't be alarmed; all Florida citrus is tree-ripened. The green merely indicates that the tree produced chlorophyll while it was in bloom this spring and some of it colored the already ripe fruit on the tree. The inner color, the flavor and rich supply of vitamin C are not affected.

Florida Orange Grove Pie Meringue

1 cup sugar
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
finely crushed walnuts

Heat oven to 275 degrees. Beat egg whites until foamy, and cream of tartar and beat to stiff peaks. Gradually add 1 cup sugar and continue beating to very stiff peaks.

Spread over bottom and up side just to rim of well-greased 9-inch pie plate, making bottom ¼-inch thick, side 1-inch thick. Sprinkle edge with crushed nuts. Bake 1 hour, or until light brown and crisp to touch. Cool.

Filling

4 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons grated orange rind
¼ teaspoon salt
5 Florida oranges, sectioned
1 pint heavy cream
Beat egg yolks slightly in top of double boiler; add sugar, lemon juice, orange rind and salt. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until thick, 8 to 10 minutes. Fold in 2 oranges which have been sectioned and diced. Cool.

Whip 1 cup of the cream and fold into filling mixture. Pour this mixture into center of meringue shell and smooth over. Chill 12 hours or longer. Just before serving, whip remaining 1 cup cream; spoon in mounds on top of pie. Fill center with remaining 3 oranges which have been sectioned. Top cream with grated orange rind and decorate with orange slices. Yield: 1 9-inch pie.

Meat Cookery Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef top round steak.

Q. Where does it come from? How is it identified?

A. It comes from the hind-quarter of beef known as the "round." This is a boneless piece of meat with a very narrow edging of fat around one side. Beef top round can be distinguished from the bottom round because it is one muscle as compared with the bottom round which has two muscles. The top round occasionally does have a small piece of the sirloin tip muscle, as shown in the illustration, since this cut lies next to the sirloin section.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By braising. This means browning the meat in a small amount of lard or drippings, then adding a small amount of liquid. The utensil is covered tightly and the meat is cooked slowly, either on top of the range or in the oven, approximately 1½ hours for a 4-inch thick steak, or until tender.

Soup for Dinner

In saucepan, cook ¼ cup chopped onion, 2 tablespoons slivered almonds, and ¼ teaspoon mace in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine until onion is peach preserves and ¼ cup water in saucepan; cook and stir over low heat until thick. Heat; stir now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Paint the Cookies

Sometimes let your children paint their favorite raisin cookie, rather than trying to decorate with frosting. Simply thin egg yolk with a little water and mix with food coloring. The paint dries right away leaving an oil paint effect.

Variety Meats Are Valuable

If you want to add variety to your menu, try beef variety meats. They're full of flavor as well as nutritive value.

• Kidney: Beef kidneys are usually braised or cooked as stew.

• Tongue, smoked or fresh: Cover with water, cover and simmer allowing about one hour per pound. Remove skin after cooking. Slice and serve hot or cold with horseradish or mustard.

• Sweetbreads: Cook in simmering water about 15 minutes. Remove membranes; then fry, broil or use in creamed dishes.

Cook in water about four hours or until fork-tender; slice and serve hot or cold with horseradish or mustard.

• Liver: Pan-fry to medium or well-done as desired. Or coat slices with flour and pan-fry to medium or well-done; serve with sautéed onion rings or crisp bacon. Use the bacon fat for pan-frying the liver.

• Heart: Braise slices or whole with or without stuffing. Cook slowly on range or in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 2½ to three hours or until tender.

Rich and luxurious sauce for liver cream: caramels melted with heavy cream and topped with salted pecans.

Danish Cheese Fine in Salad

Salad days are here again, and the markets are blooming with young spring vegetables to tempt salad lovers. Make a point of serving very important salads this spring, for your family's pleasure and good health—salads of cooked or raw vegetables, or a combination of both.

And don't forget to serve them with a very important salad dressing, for irresistible appeal—a salad dressing made with Danish Blue Cheese.

You can serve these vegetable salads before the main course, California style. Tender-crisp asparagus, chilled in an oil and vinegar dressing made tangy with Danish Blue Cheese is an excellent appetizer. Or you can serve crisp sliced cucumbers or tomatoes with a tartly fresh yogurt dressing bolstered with creamy Danish Blue, as an accompaniment to the main course, Eastern style.

On the Continent, salads of cooked green beans, asparagus or artichokes, served with Danish Blue Cheese, often have an important place on the menu as a separate course that precedes the dessert.

ASPARAGUS SALAD

DANISH STYLE
2 ounces Danish Blue Cheese (½ cup, crumbled)
¼ cup salad oil
¼ cup wine vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
24 cooked asparagus stalks
Combine Danish Blue Cheese with oil, vinegar, sugar, salt, and pepper. Blend with a whisk or rotary beater. Chill.
Drain cooked asparagus on a towel. Transfer to a serving dish and cover with dressing. Chill well before serving.

DANISH CUCUMBER SALAD
2 ounces Danish Blue Cheese (½ cup, crumbled)
1 container (8 oz.) plain yogurt
1 cucumber
Fresh dill, if available
Crumble cheese finely, blend with yogurt. Wash cucumber and scrape wax from skin, if necessary. Slice thinly. Arrange on salad plate, top with Danish Blue Cheese and yogurt dressing. Garnish with dill.
If desired, the cucumber slices may be marinated for several hours in the dressing, serve topped with more dressing. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

1 can (6 ounces) frozen concentrate for lemonade
1½ cups water
2 bottles (7 ounces each) soda water
Ice cubes

Press strawberries through a sieve or ricer, or blend until smooth in an electric blender. Discard or strain seeds.

Place fruit puree in a small punch bowl. Add lemonade and water; mix well. Just before serving, add soda water and ice cubes.

Add the ice cubes along with the lemonade and water, mixing well.

Chill thoroughly before putting into the bottle and carry the unopened bottles of soda along, to be added to each cup according to taste.

ICE CREAM TOPPING—The crunchy oat crumble topping strewn over ice cream here is a rich, nutty flavored mixture. Keep it handy for dressing up ice cream treats this summer.

Bake a Sugary Oats Mixture for Ice Cream Sundaes, Cones

Do you like to add a fancy touch to the kids ice cream cones, our serve company sundaes with a sprinkling of some good crunchy topping? Here is a nutlike topping that surprisingly is not really very nutty at all.

It is a crumble made of rolled oats, sugar, and pecans, into which butter or margarine is blended. After a brief toasting in the oven, the crispy, sweet concoction is ready to be trickled over butter pecan, peach, or plain vanilla ice cream.

It is a wonderfully handy, wholesome topping to keep on hand in airtight containers for youngsters quick refreshments. Not only does it taste good, but cereals make nutritional contributions of protein, important B vitamins, essential minerals, and food energy.

OAT CRUMBLE TOPPING

1 cup rolled oats, uncooked, quick or regular ¼ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup flour

Pills Aren't the Answer

EAST LANSING—Man isn't going to live on pills alone. Banish the idea that man will be sitting down to two pills on a plate in 1975... or in 2075, for that matter.

Energy requirements, alone, make it impossible, Dr. Bernard Schweigert, chairman of the Michigan State University Department of Food Science, told an MSU Seminar on Changing Patterns in the Market Place.

Man's energy requirements call for more than 2,000 calories a day, he said. Proteins and carbohydrates provide about 4 calories per gram, and fat about 9 calories per gram, he added.

This would mean that the pills would have to weigh nearly one-half pound apiece, the scientist reasoned in answer to a restaurateur's query.

When a recipe calls for a cup of chicken broth, you can use a chicken bouillon cube dissolved in a cup of hot water.

Romney Hit on Veteran Bill

LANSING (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Ray Dandzel, D-Detroit, told Gov. George Romney Wednesday he should have cooperated earlier if he wanted veterans tax benefits increased this year.

Romney wrote Legislature Tuesday that action would have to come this week if the amount of property tax exemption for veterans and their widows were to be increased this year.

Dandzel cited two earlier vetoes of benefit increases and wrote the Republican governor: "Your continual resistance to legislative initiative in this vital area causes me to wonder about your recent request for immediate legislative action on this matter."

Dandzel also disputed Romney's contention that tax deadlines still permitted action in time for 1966 benefits to increase.

For Jimmy Brown

From Football to Footlights

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-Television Writer

LONDON — Football great Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns is in London to make a movie, and football's loss may be film-dom's gain.

Jim was strolling along the Thames on a day off from MGM's "The Dirty Dozen," in which he plays a murderer — "but a nice murderer."

He's part of a wartime squad of soldier criminals assigned to a risky mission that doubtless saves World War II for the allies.

Acting is nothing new for Brown, and I don't mean the villainous work he does against the Los Angeles Rams, etc. He made his debut as a thespian in a Hollywood western, "Rio Conchos."

"It was a good break-in for me because I had a lot of action and not too much dialogue," he recalled. "I ride a horse pretty good, although my style is unconventional. But then, I'm that way in most of the things I do."

His work in "The Dirty Dozen" will be more demanding. Producer Kenneth Hyman is convinced Brown can keep up with the stellar cast that includes two Oscar winners, Lee Marvin and Ernest Borgnine.

AN EXPLORATION "We'll see," said Brown realistically. "At any rate, this acting is something that I would definitely like to explore."

"It seems to me that there are not many Negro actors in Hollywood right now, and yet the roles for Negroes are becoming more frequent. The only star nowadays is Sidney Poitier, who has wide acceptance and won himself an Academy Award. He has made a couple of pictures that have been successful and present him in roles that afford him different opportunities."

"Sidney can't do them all. So maybe there's a chance for me."

What about his football career?

MAY NOT PLAY When that question comes up, Brown becomes an all-American in circumlocution. After a period of open-field running, he provided this answer: "I would like to play my final season in football, but circumstances may prevent me from doing so."

You can make whatever you want of that, with Jim's blessing. At any rate, Brown, 30, is looking for other fields, although last season was one of his best. Coming up is his 10th year in pro ball, and how long can a fellow go on in that bone-rattling profession?

"Yet I don't feel creaky after games," he said. "There's a good feeling of accomplishment when you have the confidence of management and of your fellow

Northwestern Texas Buffeted by Heavy Rain, Hail and Wind

Heavy rain, hail and destructive winds raked sections of northeastern Texas today.

At Henderson, a community of about 10,000 persons some 100 miles east of Dallas, the storm had tapered down to a light rain, but earlier more than four inches of rain fell in the area in an hour. There also were 50 mile winds and hail.

At Shreveport, La., east of the Texas line, nearly two inches of rain fell in an hour.

Thunderstorms hit other sections of the South and portions of the Appalachians Wednesday night and today.

Clear skies dominated the weather pattern elsewhere in the country. Temperatures were slightly lower than normal, except in the Deep South, where conditions generally were hot and humid.

Student Has Meningitis

Grand Rapids Case Puts College on Alert

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—A 19-year-old Grand Rapids Junior College student was in serious condition at a hospital today, suffering spinal meningitis.

Health Commissioner Dr. Winston B. Prothro of Kent County said a precautionary notice was posted on the bulletin board at the college to alert any possible epidemic of the disease.

He said the hospitalized student is David Groeters, whose condition was diagnosed by a private physician.

Spinal meningitis is an infection by bacteria of fluid in the spinal column, causing an inflammation of the outer covering of the brain.

CAN BE TREATED

The disease can be treated with drugs but sometimes has been fatal, Prothro said. "We're not unduly alarmed about it," he said. "There are no other suspected cases. There's double very seriously whether there will be one."

The public health notice at the college warned students to see a doctor if they displayed symptoms of meningitis, such as a sore throat or respiratory infection, severe headaches or fever. Prothro said "We've had about nine cases in a year's time" in the county but they apparently did not come from a single source.

"We had a case or two of meningitis that died," he said, but Prothro did not recall whether the death resulted from spinal meningitis or from other types of meningitis.

Murder Suspect Hospitalized

An 18-year-old youth facing jail since his Circuit Court arraignment Nov. 10, when Judge James S. Thorburn entered a plea of innocent on behalf of the youth, who stood mute.

Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson said the seizures and hospitalization would be "no bar to Sleeper's prosecution."

Trial date in the case has been set for June 9.

William D. Sleeper of 2019 Pearl, Farmington Township, was admitted to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after what deputies said was the fifth in a series of seizures over a five-hour period.

Rusk said the South Vietnamese are being told that "their own attitude, their own solidarity, their own efforts are crucial elements in the combined (American and Vietnamese) determination" to get on with the fight against Communist conquest.

Air Support Called In

Cavalrymen, Reds Still Locked in Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American air cavalrymen called in more air strikes today on the fourth day of their fight to root out a Communist battalion from a mountain area in central Viet Nam.

U.S. military headquarters said the three battalions of helicopter-lifted cavalrymen still were locked in combat against 350 or more of the enemy.

The fighting swirled in rugged mountain terrain and tall elephant grass about 15 miles northeast of An Khe and 250 miles northeast of Saigon.

This was the only large-scale combat reported on the ground or in the air as fighting erupted between loyalist and rebel troops of the Vietnamese army in Da Nang.

TWICE AS MANY

Spokesman announced that allied dead and missing last week remained at the level of the week before but more than twice as many of the enemy were killed.

The U.S. command said 86 Americans were killed in action last week, while a Vietnamese government spokesman said government forces lost 91 killed or missing in action. This was an increase of four for the Americans over the week before and nine for the South Vietnamese, American wounded totaled 566; there were 615 the previous week.

It was the first time the Vietnamese dead and missing had been reported together, without specifying the number killed.

Enemy casualties were put at 988 killed, compared to 456 the previous week, and 192 captured, compared to 121.

3 BATTLE DEAD

Other allied forces—Australia,

Indian, Korean and New Zealanders—reported three battle dead and 14 wounded.

The week's report brought the number of U.S. battle deaths since Jan. 1 to 1,472 by unofficial count. Since the United States became involved in the Vietnamese war, 3,330 Americans have been killed by enemy action, according to an unofficial tabulation.

Army May Discharge Former Heart Patient Who Collapsed

FT. KNOX, Ky. (AP) — An Army officer said Wednesday a medical board will consider possible discharge of a Warren, Mich., youth who was described by his parents as drafted despite a history of heart trouble.

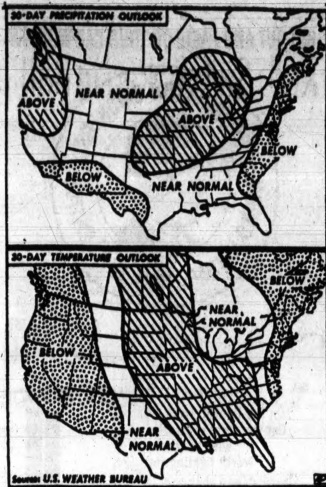

Col. John Calhoun, a spokesman for Ft. Knox, said the board will consider whether to discharge Joseph N. Sandone, 20, who collapsed during basic training.

Calhoun said Sandone fainted May 12 during training. He said an examination disclosed Sandone had rheumatic heart disease with aortic insufficiency.

at Ft. Wayne in Detroit he gave them a letter from our family doctor, warning of his condition."

The Sandones said they were told by the Army doctor the government would not be responsible for their son's present condition or for medical bills if he is discharged.

Calhoun, however, said the Army hospital reported no medical basis for performing such an operation.

Zoologist to Track Snakes With Radioactive Method

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A 33-year-old zoologist is causing a bit of uneasiness among lethal rattlesnakes in western Utah's vast desert this spring.

Dr. Harold F. Hirth of the University of Utah is using an ingenious new method of studying the migration and wanderings of rattlesnakes in the mountains surrounding Great Salt Lake.

Hirth's project — the first of its kind in the country — is being backed by an Atomic Energy Commission research grant. He tags the reptiles with radioactive wires and follows them with Geiger counters.

Soapy Barred From Monroe Ford Plant

MONROE (AP) — G. Mennen Williams was barred from a Ford Motor Co. plant gate here Wednesday in his campaign for Democratic nomination for U.S. senator.

A guard turned away Williams and John VanSlambrouck, a Monroe commissioner. A Ford spokesman said Williams would have been allowed to campaign had he requested permission from the company.

The spokesman was asked whether eviction of Williams was connected with a recent endorsement of Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh by Ford Chairman Henry Ford II. Cavanagh is Williams' major opponent for the Democratic nomination.

The spokesman replied that Ford's "normal company rule was enforced" that political candidates greet Ford workers on company property. He added, "Gov. Williams is welcome to return to the Monroe plant and campaign on the premises."

Radioactive tags, Geiger counters, an infrared sniper — scope, special hypodermic needles, and a 600-pound lead brick wall are all part of the equipment the Utah zoologist is using in his study.

Assisted by two graduate students — Arthur King, a 24-year-old ecologist and Richard Downward, a 35-year-old radiological health specialist, Hirth has set up a small-mesh wire fence around the snake den. It is a 300 square-foot area which contains four rock piles.

WIRES INJECTED

As the reptiles — rattlers, western racers, whip and gopher snakes — emerge from the den in the spring, Hirth and his assistants capture them, then inject wires with radioactive tantalum 182 into their tails. "It's like a small piano wire," Hirth explained. "One millimeter in diameter and five millimeters (1/5 inch) long."

The injections are made with specially-designed hypodermic needles and syringes. About 300 will be tagged during the next three or four weeks. The snakes will be "hot" until the fall, when the Tantalum 182 is scheduled to expire.

"We plan to follow them day and night all summer," Hirth said. The Geiger counters will track the snakes 33 feet away on the surface and 20 feet away 18 inches underground.

An infrared sniper-scope will be used to observe them up to 100 feet away at night.

Some of the questions the Utah scientist hopes to answer are:

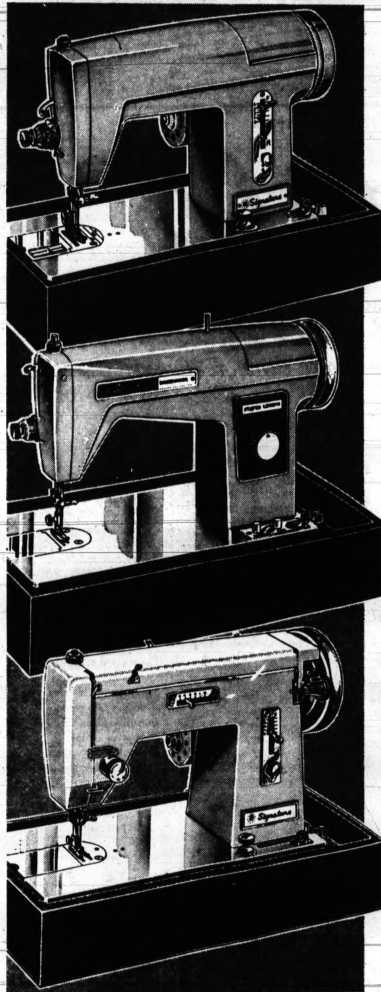

How far do snakes move each day? Where do they go? How long do they spend in a particular area? What makes them leave the den or start back for it in the fall? Are they equipped with some kind of biological clock? What is the effect of radiation on cold-blooded animals and to what extent do snakes act as disease carriers?

Science for You

by BOB BROWN

PROBLEM:
A Water Puzzle.

NEEDED:
A water hose with adjustable nozzle, a table tennis ball.

DO THIS:
Adjust the water so that it comes out of the nozzle in a gentle solid stream. Place the ball on the stream of water and it tends to remain there seemingly in defiance of gravity.

HERE'S WHY: This is a variation of the Bernoulli principle, in which the lateral pressure of a moving fluid — such as air or water — is less than that of the still or more slowly moving fluid around it. Here the pressure of the faster moving water is less, and as the ball tends to move to the right (in the drawing) faster moving water on the left exerts less pressure than the slower water on the right. The greater pressure of the slowly moving water tends to push the ball back into the stream. The stream coming from the nozzle upward pushes against the lower side of the ball to keep it from falling straight down.

Talmadge Bid Stuns Georgia

ATLANTA (AP) — Everyone agreed in the smoldering ruins of Gen. Sherman's bonfires that Georgia's Reconstruction Era political situation was a mess.

Four score and a couple of years later, in 1947, chaos reigned again when three "governors" laid conflicting claims on the state house.

Today, Georgia's political structure is askew once again. While the Yankees invariably are blamed for the original "mess in Atlanta," responsibility for the later situations must rest upon the man with the magic name in Georgia politics — Herman Talmadge.

Talmadge, who started the "three governors" ruckus nearly 20 years ago, dropped a bombshell yesterday by announcing from Washington that he would give up his U. S. Senate seat to run for governor "if the people of Georgia desire me to serve as their chief executive."

Almost simultaneously, former Gov. Ernest Vandiver, considered the front-runner in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor, said in Atlanta he would not be a candidate because of recurring heart trouble.

CREATES SHAMBLES

The statement made a shambles of what had shaped up as a routine Democratic primary building toward a strong challenge by the Republicans in the general elections.

Vandiver's major opposition had been expected to come from former Gov. Ellis Arnall, and the GOP was predicting that Rep. Howard (Bo) Callaway, R-Ga. — boosted by "Goldwater Democrats" — would defeat either one of them in November.

However, Talmadge as a gubernatorial candidate substantially alters the picture. And while both Arnall and Callaway say they are ready to take on Talmadge, sources close to each man admit they are seriously reassessing their chances.

Callaway, considered a shoo-in for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, accused the Democrats of "sending the king home" in an attempt to keep Republicans from gaining control of the capital. "They're scared to death," he said.

He expressed amazement that Talmadge would give up 10 years of seniority in the Senate to run for governor.

Talmadge said he would not resign the Senate post until after he was elected governor.

Insurers Oppose Bill on High-Risk Drivers

LANSING (AP) — Insurance company representatives objected Wednesday to parts of a bill which would require them to insure high-risk drivers not only for liability, but also for damage to their own cars.

The bill, already passed by the Senate, would require all Michigan auto insurers to participate in an assigned risk plan in which they would divide up the business of insuring high-risk drivers.

In a hearing before the House Insurance Committee, company representatives argued the present voluntary assigned risk plan is working well in providing liability insurance for high-risk drivers.

David Dykhouse of the State Insurance Department said the standard insurance companies refuse to accept about 10 to 15 percent of the auto insurance market involving high risks.

But, he said, these high-risk drivers demand physical damage coverage, often because financial institutions require such coverage to protect their interest in financed autos. To meet this demand, he said, companies specializing in high-risk insurance tend to "write too much business for their financial structure to sustain over time" and a number of firms thus go insolvent.

The bill, Dykhouse said, would take the pressure of these companies and keep fly-by-night companies out of the market.

William Gibson of the American Insurance Association said the industry is trying to put voluntary plans for high risk physical damage coverage into effect, but has been having difficulty winning approval for its rates.

Red Fishing Fleet off U.S. Reduced to 5

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A federal fisheries official says all but five of 62 Soviet Union fishing vessels seen operating a week ago off the Virginia-North Carolina coast apparently have left.

Charles L. Philbrook of the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries at Gloucester, Mass. said he did not know where the Russian vessels had gone but said apparently they moved out in the last two or three days.

Philbrook has been keeping tabs on the fleet because of U.S. officials' concern the Russians might deplete the fishing ground.

He said Wednesday five 280-foot stern trawlers still in the area may be scout ships and could bring about the return of the others if they find substantial schools of fish.

Junior Editors Quiz on SPIDER'S WEB

QUESTION: How does a spider spin and build its web?

ANSWER: A group of little organs, the spinnerets, lie under the spider's abdomen. These connect with silk glands inside the body.

To spin its web, the spider presses the spinnerets down on some object and squeezes out silk in liquid form. This hardens in the air, forming a delicate thread which can be either dry or sticky.

Spiders can spin a number of fine threads in this way or combine them into a stronger one.

Webs are made in a number of ways. We illustrate that of the orb spider. This spider perches in some likely spot and presses one of its legs to the spinnerets, drawing out a long sticky single thread (a).

Air currents blow this around until the sticky end attaches itself to something else.

Then the spider fastens its end, passes over the line with more thread to strengthen it and then goes to the middle where it fastens the thread, drops down and fastens another.

It keeps coming back to the center carrying new dry circles (2) until there is a strong foundation. Then the spider starts from the center and begins to carry spirals of sticky thread around.

It attaches a long cable to the center and waits (3). When the cable vibrates, the web-or trap-is working.

FOR YOU TO DO—Guess the meaning of the little picture at lower right. Is a spider trying to catch insects in the air? No, this is a spider—or, tiny newly-hatched spider. It climbs up somewhere, spins a single thread and lets go. The thread carries it like a balloon to some new place where it can start spidering on its own.

U.S. River Patrol Boats Ideal in Viet Nam Deltas

VUNG TAU, Viet Nam (UPI) — "Anything that moves on this river at night is fair game," Chief Boon's Mate Theodore Wilson whispered grimly.

The burly boatwain officer from Baltimore, Md., glanced at the suspicious looking spot on the radar screen and turned to scan the deeper dark of the mangroves lining the river bank upstream.

Boat Master Leo Pearson of Chicago, Ill., swung the quietly purring PBR (for patrol boat, river) from side to side trying to relocate the tell-tale bright spot on his radar.

In the boat, Seaman Frank L. Foster, also from Chicago, hunched tensely behind his twin 50-caliber mounted machine guns. In the stern, Gunner Oscar Cloninger of Belmont, N.C., swung the single rear 50 to point diagonally upstream. The click of the bolt as he checked the weapon sounded unnaturally loud.

Assistant Gunner Gerald Nolan of Wilmington, Del. reached for his M16 automatic and moved flash jackets.

SLIP THROUGH WATER

PBR 48 slipped through the water with hardly a sound except the low drone of the sound-proofed twin 230 horsepower diesel engines. Those engines powered twin pumps sucking in water and expelling it at high-speed through movable five-inch nozzles to give the vessel its thrust.

TT hydro-jet propelled 11-foot fiber glass patrol boats have been operating in Viet Nam for little more than three weeks and have proved to be ideal for river work in the many deltas of Viet Nam.

The dot on the radar screen turned out to be a false alarm that time. It could have been a sampan infiltrating Viet Cong agents, arms or supplies.

PBR 48 and her sister boat

PBR 47, under the command of Boat Master Wilfred O'Keefe of Key West, Fla., were patrolling a six-mile stretch of the main shipping channel up to Saigon.

LIFELINE TO SAIGON

The channel is the lifeline to Saigon, and the Viet Cong have already tried to block it by sinking a small freighter with recoilless rifle fire. They have also tried setting mines in the channel.

The channel is now patrolled night and day by American and Vietnamese naval units. It is a thankless, sometimes dangerous, often boring task and the lion's share falls to the U.S. Navy's PBR's which were designed especially for such work in Viet Nam.

Auto Dealers Had Merry First Quarter

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT — Cash registers jingled a merry tune in auto dealerships in the first quarter of this year as sales and profits ran ahead of the 1965 pace.

The big question was what would happen to dealer profit in the second quarter in view of a sales dip in April and early May.

The National Automobile Dealers Association said the opening three months profits were the best openers since 1955.

They were based on record first quarter sales of 2,206,970 cars, up over five per cent over the old mark set last year.

FIRST QUARTER

NADA said first quarter 1966 profits figured out to 2.6 per cent of sales, compared with 2.1 per cent for all of 1965.

The opening months of 1966 also saw a 2.6 per cent profit ratio.

Because of slightly higher total volume this year, however, the average profit per new unit retailed figured out to $126, up $1 over last year's initial 90 days.

Tell by the Smell It's Not Petunia

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — An odor lingers in the back yard of Mrs. Lloyd Files and Petunia is still missing.

Police got a report recently that Petunia — Mrs. Files' missing, deodorized, pet skunk — had been found.

Mrs. Files put the skunk in a pen in the back yard and left. When she returned the skunk convinced her it wasn't Petunia.

Republican Switches

ANN ARBOR (AP) — George Sallade, former three-term Republican representative from Ann Arbor, said today he will seek the Democratic nomination for state senator from the 18th District. The seat is now held by Sen. Gilbert Bursley, Republican.

average showed dealers got 62.6 per cent of all their revenues from sales of new cars and trucks. Used car sales accounted for 23.2 per cent and service and parts accounted for the remaining 14.2 per cent, NADA said.

GROSS INCOME

NADA said gross income from sale of new and used cars averaged $431 per new unit, just about the same as last year's first quarter but above the $406 for entire 1965.

One aspect of NADA's report which attracted attention was disclosure that used car prices dropped in the first three months of this year. Dealer figures showed the average used car sold at $917, compared with $932 at this point a year ago and $938 for all of 1965.

The average NADA dealer had 34 used cars in inventory as of March 31, or a 41 day supply at current selling rates. NADA pointed out that dealer expenses rose slightly in the first three months of 1966. They amounted to 12.32 per cent of total sales, compared with 11.94 per cent in the similar period last year.

'GOOD OR BETTER'

In a supplemental survey, the trade publication Automotive News said 80 per cent of the dealers it queried reported April profits were as good or better as in the first quarter. About two-thirds said their April profits were as good or better than in April a year ago.

The paper added:

"Despite this, there was less optimism this year than last on the profit outlook for the remainder of the year."

Tony Ritz, president of the Detroit Automobile Dealers Association, summed it up this way, "It simply means we all have to get out and work a little harder. The business is still there."

Local 653 Housewarming in the Works

New Union Office At Joslyn And Tennyson Has Low, Modern Look

Plans are under way for an open house at the new home of Pontiac Motor Division United Auto Workers Local 653 at 990 Joslyn. Bert Henson, financial secretary of the local, said the affair will be held as soon as landscaping around the building is completed, probably in July.

Formerly located at 386 East Kennett, the records and equipment of the local were moved into the new facilities March 21.

Built at a cost of more than $250,000, the building contains 12,000 square feet. Acquisition of the 200-by-110-foot lot on which the facility is located brought the total cost to $317,000.

Construction was started last June. Robert Savoda of Detroit was the architect and the Ernest Hollick Construction Co. of Detroit was the general contractor.

SEATING CAPACITY

In addition to record offices and committee rooms, the building contains an auditorium with a seating capacity of nearly 500 and a kitchen and dining room capable of feeding 500 at one time.

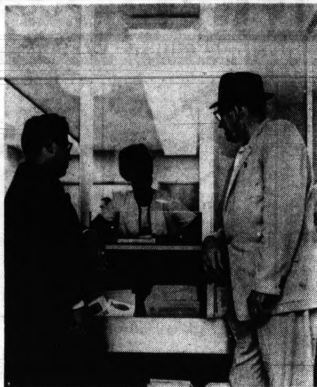

Henson said the building is constructed so that a second floor can be added if necessary.

Parking facilities for 50 cars will be provided adjacent to the building as soon as blacktopping is complete.

President John Maye said the local has also been given permission to use Pontiac Motor Division property across the street for parking.

City Firm Offers New Process

By JOE MULLEN
A Pontiac firm is one of only two in the state utilizing a relatively new process to imprint permanent photographic reproductions on aluminum.

"We began this processing procedure last year," said Eugene E. Jones, assistant to the manager of Chief Pontiac Photo Engraving Co.

"Our firm is already equipped to handle a larger volume than the company in Detroit that performs the same service," Jones added.

The company also prepares offset plates for multilith and lithographic reproduction, ready-to-use pictures and typeset copy for the cameras and prepares headline composition.

But, the darling of the ultra-modern engraving plant is the anodized aluminum photo process.

"The significance of this process is its permanency," Jones said.

He explained that photographs, nameplates, and numerals for dials are reproduced permanently on photo-sensitized anodized aluminum by actually being sealed below the surface of the metal.

"The product of the process is both waterproof and weatherproof," Jones added.

AT CHRYSLER

Jones and Roy E. Lester, general manager of Chief Pontiac

The highly technical inner workings of the process, however, are confidential.

A "no admittance" sign serves notice that only authorized personnel are allowed in the area of the plant where the process is performed.

NOVELTY ITEMS

Besides providing such items as electronic dials and identification plates for industry, the firm is busy imprinting cuff links, tie-bars and other novelty items.

Permanent placement of photographs on metal is in growing demand both from business concerns and individuals.

A related process performed in the air-conditioned plant adjoining The Pontiac Press is that of imprinting images on the surface of aluminum rather than sealed below the surface.

Called Scotchcal, this process is long lasting but not permanent.

A main use of the Scotchcal process is in preparation of instructional charts used, for example, in manufacturing plants or on trains.

Oil and grease can easily be wiped from the chart and both the metal composition of the chart and its surface image can endure years of use.

Products of Chief Pontiac Photo Engraving Co. have been approved for government use. Bids now are being prepared for some military contracts.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Mothers on Juniper Drive believe in direct action to protest speeding in front of their homes. About a dozen of them with many of their children parked themselves on lawn chairs and bicycles in the street so there was no traffic at all.

Director Is Given Authority in Antipoverty Nurse Issue

Oakland County Health Director Dr. Bernard D. Berman yesterday was given the power of discretion by the board of health in providing nurses for the county antipoverty program.

The Oakland County Office of Economic Opportunity (OCEO) had complained that the health department has not yet lived up to a contractual arrangement to provide a public health nurse at both the Pontiac and Royal Oak Township antipoverty action centers.

Berman told members of the County Board of Supervisors yesterday that he felt the action center programs were not sufficiently developed to warrant nurses.

Berman cited the shortage of nurses and said that he couldn't assign any to a duty when needs were more vital elsewhere.

The health committee then supported Berman's position in not assigning nurses to the action centers and authorized him to withdraw from the agreement.

if the OCEO is not satisfied with his decision.

NOTED FAILURE

A letter noting the failure of the health department to assign a limited basis even though the nurses were sent by Charles A. Mentzer, health coordinator for the county, was sent to the county board of health.

Mentzer said that he would be satisfied to get the nurses on a limited basis even though the nurses were sent by Charles A. Mentzer, health coordinator for the county, was sent to the county board of health.

Honors War Dead Poppy Sale Launched

A three-day sale of poppies began today with auxiliary members of two Pontiac American Legion posts taking part in the annual program to pay tribute to America's war dead.

Directing activities locally are Mrs. Donald Richmond of Chief Pontiac Post No. 377, and Mrs. Ayres Miller of Cook-Nelson Post No. 20.

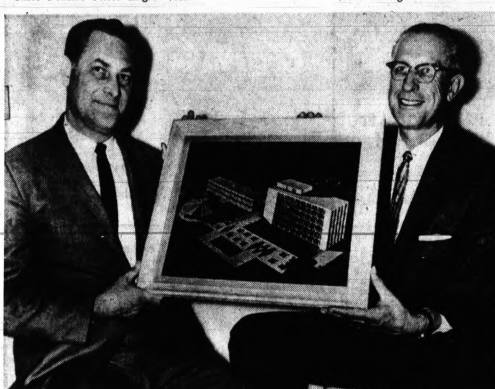

The memorial flowers are handmade by disabled veterans who are paid for their work by the auxiliary, whose members volunteer services in distributing them.

Contributions collected during Poppy Days are used to carry out the auxiliary's programs of rehabilitation and child welfare.

The small red flower was adopted as symbol of sacrifice shortly after World War I.

Kosygin Is Back From Successful Visit in Egypt

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin soon will report to his Kremlin colleagues on the apparent success of his mission to Egypt to establish a Russian diplomatic beachhead in the Middle East, diplomatic sources said today. Kosygin, smiling and sun-tanned, returned yesterday from a state visit to the United Arab Republic (U.A.R.) and a full round of talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The talks produced enough agreement to fill a 2,000 word communique ranging from Viet Nam and the Middle East to the United Nations.

Royal Physician Dies

LONDON (AP) — Sir Daniel Davies, 68, physician to the royal family, died Wednesday. He was physician to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth II and a consultant to many hospitals.

An Italianologist, Giovanni Grassi, was the first to discover in 1896 that the mosquito carried malaria.

Entries are presently being accepted by Mrs. Shearer, 2930 Orangegrove, Waterford Township, or at the Community Activities, Inc., building, 5640 Williams Lake, Waterford Township.

Single girls, aged 14 to 19, who live in northern Oakland County, are eligible to enter the contest. Eleven of the entrants live in Waterford Township, while the other two are from Oxford and West Bloomfield Township.

A dinner for candidates and their parents will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the CAI building.

The winner of the contest will be determined by the most penny votes collected in canisters to be placed in local stores.

NEW QUEEN

The new queen will be crowned June 19, the third and final day of the fair. She and a companion will be awarded a one-week vacation at the Gay El Rancho in Gaylord.

Several other prizes also will be awarded the queen and runners-up, according to Mrs. Shearer.

Mrs. Shearer, the former Jeanne McCaffrey, reigned as the fair's first queen in 1952.

The fair, formerly known as the CAI fair, will be held June 17-18-19 on the CAI's property on Williams Lake Road. Fair officials say this year's event will be largely revamped and enlarged.

Viet War Affects Dollar Drain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The aid, the secretary said, it also has adversely affected the historically favorable U.S. trade balance.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler indicated this much Wednesday. Although ending the deficit in the U.S. balance of payments in 1966 is still the goal, he said, the administration may have to settle for something else.

"It may well be that we will have to settle for an interim objective of equilibrium exclusive of the costs of Viet Nam," Fowler added.

He made the comments in reporting a disappointing $82-million deficit in the payments position for the first three months of this year.

'NOTORIOUSLY UNRELIABLE'

But he cautioned against projecting this into an annual rate. Quarterly figures, although adjusted for seasonal variations, are "notoriously unreliable guides to future performance," he said.

Fowler said he could give the dollar and cent estimate of the effects of the war on the net dollar outflow but added that since the buildup began last August "we have been little more than holding our own."

Not only has the war meant a net outflow for direct military

Most likely to succeed?
...Michigan.

This week—Michigan Week—seems an appropriate time to salute the scholars you see here. All of them were awarded Edison Scholarships last year.

Most of the scholarships are for undergraduate work, with others awarded to students interested in advanced work in electrical, mechanical or nuclear engineering. One, the Alex Dow Fellowship, is given to a qualified graduate engineering student to help further his studies. Another is the Edison Power Fellowship, awarded to a graduate student for continuing studies in the field of electric power. Your son or daughter could well be one of the Edison Scholarship winners in the future. Interested students can get full information about these scholarships from their high school counselor or principal. This scholarship program demonstrates Edison's confidence in the future of Michigan and its youth.

Russian: Space Will Benefit All

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — "It does not matter which country is first able to send an expedition to the moon or is responsible for some other success in space," a Soviet space scientist has declared.

"The important thing," said Anatoly Blagonravov, "is the benefit it will bring to people; this is the real purpose of all these achievements."

Blagonravov, chairman of the commission for the exploration and use of cosmic space in the Soviet Academy of Sciences, made the statement in an article written for the May issue of the UNESCO Courier, a publication of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

The magazine also carried statements by Soviet and American astronauts urging peaceful development of outer space.

SEEKS ACTION

The United States is pressing for action by the next U.N. General Assembly on a proposal by President Johnson for a treaty to guarantee peaceful exploration of the moon and other celestial bodies.

Blagonravov said "Soviet scientists are convinced that rockets and spaceships must serve the cause of peace and the progress of humanity."

"The history of science," he said, "shows that when outstanding scientific discoveries are made in any country, their further development is due to the joint effort of the scientists of the whole world. The conquest of space will be no exception."

Arnold W. Frutkin, assistant administrator for international affairs at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the U.S. space agency has carried out cooperative space activities with some 70 countries and jurisdictions.

He said the United States "has steadfastly sought to open new opportunities for space cooperation with the Soviet Union," and that a limited success has been achieved.

Foreign News Commentary

Nasser Back in Form, Swipes at U.S.

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

There is a story about the Middle East that goes like this: One day, a scorpion and a frog met at a river bank. The scorpion asked the frog to carry him across, and then you'd sting me and I'd die."

"Not me," said the frog. "I'd get half way across and then you'd sting me and I'd die."

"Don't worry," replied the scorpion. "I can't swim and if you were to die, I'd drown."

So, convinced, the frog started across with the scorpion on his back. Halfway across, the scorpion stung his host. As he began sinking beneath the surface, the frog said:

"That was very foolish of you. Now you'll drown. Why did you do it?"

"You forget," said the scorpion. "This is the mysterious Middle East."

In Port Said's Martyr Square at the first of this week, U.A.R. President Abdel Gamal Nasser and his distinguished guest, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, placed wreaths at the memorial to fallen Egyptian heroes, exchanged mutual expressions of high regard and resumed their attacks upon Western imperialism.

U.S. EMPHASIS

For Nasser, it was a continuation of a campaign that began shortly before Kosygin's arrival with particular emphasis on the United States.

It was noteworthy for two reasons. It sent U.S.-U.A.R. relations plummeting again after several months of improvement.

It came at a time when the U.A.R. was seeking vast new sums in U.S. aid.

It also came at a time when Kosygin, with around $2 billion already invested in the U.A.R. military establishment and in the Aswan dam, came with little more to offer, in fact might be coming to ask a partial payment for his facilities for Soviet warships.

ON FOOD AID

From the United States, Nasser wanted an expansion of U.S. food aid—$150 million for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

This would be in addition to the $55 million agreement running to June 30 signed last January. By this agreement Egypt got wheat, tobacco, chickens and other farm products.

Nasser also was reported to want some $100 million in U.S. credits to help finance a nuclear power reactor for desalting seawater, for grain storage silos and for another generator for a power station being built near Cairo.

All of these projects have been under consideration.

HESITATION

Understandably, however, has been U.S. hesitation—for one thing to gauge results of the Kosygin visit.

This is one cause of Nasser irritation.

Others have been the U.S. sale of F104 supersonic fighter-bombers to Jordan, and a $400-million U.S.-British deal with Saudi Arabia to buy British lightning jets, American HAW anti-aircraft missiles and a Western air defense communications system.

Also bothering Nasser is U.S. support for Saudi Arabia against Nasser's threat to bomb Saudi Arabian border towns in retaliation for Saudi opposition to Nasser's military campaign in the Yemen.

There are other reasons but these illustrate the point.

Nasser is a gambler and he is gambling now that the importance of the U.A.R. in the Middle East will force the United States to come to terms.

Racial Climate in Michigan - 3

Ghettos Focal Point of Resentment

By GENE SCHROEDER
Associated Press Writer

Is a house a home? Not necessarily, say Michigan's Negro leaders, when that house is part of a slum "ghetto."

Despite prosperity and high employment—which has helped keep the lid on potential racial strife in the state—the No. 1 civil rights complaint still is the inability of Negroes and other minorities to live where they want in the kind of house they want.

Findings of the State Civil Rights Commission show 50 percent or more of the housing units rented by whites in virtually all of Michigan's largest cities are dilapidated or deteriorating.

Saginaw, Jackson, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids have Negro slum "ghettos" described as pitiful by Jim Rose, the commission's housing director.

FREEWAY PROJECTS

In Lansing, Flint, Saginaw and Detroit, freeway projects have added to relocation problems.

A recent door-by-door inspection in Saginaw resulted in a tightening up of previously lax and allegedly unequal enforcement of health and building codes.

According to Malcolm McCrea of the Saginaw News, a close observer of the racial scene, the City Council has an enlightened leadership which endorses open occupancy and civil rights.

Church members have been urged by the Saginaw Area Religious Council on Human Relations to accept any persons who want to be good neighbors and to discourage panic selling and moving.

These efforts "have changed Saginaw's atmosphere from stiffed resentment to wary encouragement," McCrea reports.

There are many other facets to the racial picture in Michigan.

KLAN COLLECTION

In Flint, for example, a collection was taken up for the defense of the accused slayers of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, a Detroit housewife who was murdered on an Alabama highway while helping the Selma-to-Montgomery freedom marchers. The defendants were KKK members.

Black Muslim rallies in Flint have attracted sizable crowds. According to Allan Wilhelm of the Flint Journal, the situation is relatively calm, however.

"Prosperity and high employment in the Flint area probably account to a great extent for the fact that ripples are not becoming waves," Wilhelm reports.

PONTIAC SHARE

Pontiac has had its share of racial problems, and city officials have clashed with the Civil Rights Commission over the seriousness of the picture.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. accused the commission of listening to only one side of the story, but a spokesman for the agency said complaints of widespread discrimination aired at a monthly meeting were allegations only, not commission findings.

According to the Michigan Chronicle, a Negro newspaper, Pontiac's situation can be summarized as "housing, schools, jobs, voicelessness—the same old problems, but intensified."

The Pontiac Press doesn't agree the city is the powder keg it has been painted in some quarters.

WHITES PROTEST

Editor John Fitzgerald reports the Board of Education has gone so far with mixing Negro and white children from different schools in joint functions that there are protests about it.

claiming forced integration.

582-Mile Walk Near End

PORTLAND, Ind. (AP) — Three hikers from Michigan strode into Portland yesterday, only 42 miles from the end of a 582-mile walk from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to Richmond, Ind.

They took off then on a side trip to the old home of one of them, Earl Robson, 66, Wyoming, Mich., who once lived on a farm southeast of Portland.

Duane Smith, 54, Wyoming, said he was in his 32nd day without food. He said he has lost 26 pounds on the march.

The third hiker is Conrad VanHoven, 45, Zeeland, Mich. The trip is intended to publicize a rodeo at Wyoming in August.

received written confirmation from the local governing body that residents have been relocated in suitable dwellings.

Whether the bill will become law is anybody's guess.

Monkey Gets Pair of Contact Lenses

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Louis Y. Bardfield, an optometrist, has fitted his pet monkey, Chi Chi, with a pair of contact lenses to correct farsightedness.

"I could see that he was tasting his food to see what it was before he ate it," Dr. Bardfield said.

He said he made about 50 lenses before he found the right ones.

Yes!

Yes, you'll like the great new taste and rich aroma of Half and Half... and that's putting it mildly.

Man Ride Rails?---Scoff, Scoff

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Pennsylvania Railroad recently announced plans to inaugurate a high-speed service between New York and Washington.

Carrying passengers by train! Imagine that! It may sound pretty far-fetched, but WEST you never know. It just might work. In 20th century America, anything is possible.

In fact, I'm surprised someone didn't think of it sooner.

The project already has advanced to the point where the Budd Co. this week held a preview showing of the 30 self-propelled cars it is building for the railroad.

I always enjoy being associated with the birth of a new idea and so I dropped by to see the display.

It was, of course, only a model. Scoffers pointed out that nobody has actually ridden in one. But don't forget that people laughed at the Wright brothers, too.

When Henry Ford first made his motorcars, people used to shout, "get a horse!" I dare say that the rail cars also will be ridiculed when they first appear.

ALL WILL SHOUT

People probably will shout, "get an airplane!"

Nevertheless, the concept of transporting human beings from place to place by rail is a thrilling one.

A company press release said the cars will be capable of speeds up to 160 miles per hour and will cover the 226 miles between New York and Washington in less than three hours.

Admittedly, press releases are frequently more visionary than realistic. In this case, however, I am convinced that the dream will come true.

Some of us may live to see the day when rail travel will be almost as common as highway and air travel.

This may tax your credulity, but if the trial operation between the two East Coast cities proves successful, it is conceivable the time will come when people will travel all the way across the continent by train.

As I was inspecting the model car with its reclining seats for up to 80 passengers, a daring thought crossed my mind.

Might it not be possible, I mused, to outfit some of the cars with beds so that people could sleep during their journey?

SOUNDS FANTASTIC

I'm just thinking off the top of my head now, but perhaps the cars could be equipped with some sort of device that would fold down from the wall at night to provide sleeping space.

Anyway, there is no denying the Pennsy, as it says in the press release, is attempting something revolutionary.

When you heat draft beer in the 140 bottling process, it's not draft beer any more.

Introducing the only way to bottle draft beer.

Most draft beer never even leaves the brewery.

While being bottled, it gets heated to 140° fahrenheit—and that's the end of it. Draft beer loses its draft taste when heated, and becomes "bottled" beer. (Bottled beer is good beer; but it's not draft beer.) There's only one way to bottle draft beer: get rid of the heat. And Drewrys found out how. That's why Drewrys new draft beer tastes the way draft beer is supposed to taste. As though it came right out of a tap.

Open up a bottle of Drewrys draft beer. Draw off a glass.

Test Driver Likes Turbine in '500'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "If we can get the turbine qualified," he said today, "we'll win the race."

The race is the Golden Anniversary 500-mile May 30.

Cheesbourg has been working with two cars, one owned by Norm Dangler of Niagara Falls, N.Y., with a 1,400-horsepower General Electric turbo shaft engine, and a novel dreamed up by Albert H. Stein of Orinda, Calif., with two 2-liter German Porsche engines.

Great!

That's what you'll say when you light up a Half and Half. It tastes rich...and so mild, too. Pipe tobacco does it.

The kerosene-burning turbine has been started down to about 900 horsepower.

TOO POWERFUL.

"I never thought I'd say a race car was too powerful," Cheesbourg said, "but this one spins the wheels all the way down the straightaways in spite of the torque."

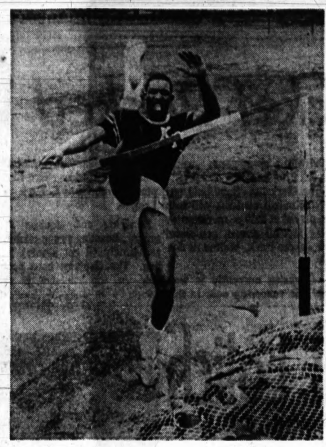

Cards Switch Players

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals optioned outfielder Alex Johnson to the Tulsa farm club Wednesday night and brought up Bob Tolani, an outfielder-first baseman.

"I know one thing," Cheesbourg said. "There is no way in the world for any other car here to pass this one on the straightaways."

The two-engine car has been a disappointment. The six-cylinder engines, each with six carburetors, have not reached more than 7,500 revolutions a minute. They need more than 6,000 to give the car a chance to qualify as one of the 33 starters.

Cheesbourg, 38 and with seven children, has handled such monsters as the V-8 super-Tulsa farm club Wednesday night and brought up Bob Tolani, an outfielder-first baseman.

GOING UP—If his injured knee is all right, Don Lavalais of Pontiac Central is expected to be a strong challenger for State Class A high jump honors Saturday at the University of Michigan. Lavalais set the school record earlier this spring by clearing 6 feet, 4 inches.

Chiefs Eye Marks, State Track Crown

Records are made to be broken and Pontiac Central's track team has come up with its share this spring.

The Chiefs are counting on adding a state record to the list Saturday at the University of Michigan in the Class A finals.

PCI's nine-man contingent also is casting covetous looks at the team championship.

Oxford is another team that has a state record in mind the same day in the Class B finals at Michigan State, but the Wildcats don't appear to have the depth to earn the crown.

The Class C and D finals also will be run Saturday at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant. Starting times at the three sites are the same.

Preliminaries will get under way at 10 a.m. and the finals at 1:30 p.m.

wiping the hurdle marks off the Pontiac Central books last Saturday in the regional at Clar-enceville when he stepped over the low sticks in 19 seconds flat.

His winning time of 13.9 in the high hurdles lowered a school standard he had set early in the season.

Tipton is a heavy favorite to win the state high hurdles crown and break the record of 14.2 set in 1963 by Ernie Long of Flint Central. He is a co-favorite in the lows and will be aiming at Rex Cawley's 19-second record set in 1958.

The weather, of course, will play a dominant role. If it is warm and dry no record will be safe. But if rain or cold weather set in, performances will suffer.

PCH high jumper Don Lavalais will be hoping for good weather because of his ailing knee. If the injury is healed sufficiently by Saturday, Lavalais will be a contender.

He will be the school record by clearing 6'4" in the Mansfield Relays. The state record is 6'7 1/2" by Ken Dyer of Ann Arbor in 1964.

Art Wiggins is expected to place in the long jump where the record of 23-8 1/2 set by Hayes Jones in 1956 is the second oldest.

George Hester of Detroit Northern set the 100-yard dash standard of 9.8 in 1925. It has been tied five times since. Ken Franks and Earl Folk in the pole vault and Larry Platt in the high jump could pickup valuable points.

Bill Hollis, who set a PCH record of 1:58.3 while placing third in the regional 800 faces a major task. Class A ranks are loaded with top half-miler this spring.

Coach Dean Wilson combined Hollis, Wiggins, Larry Lewis and Bruce Turpin for the mile relay in the regional and came up with a pleasing result. The quartet not only won but set a school record of 1:55.4.

Wilson is hoping this foursome will get into a fast heat in the finals because relays are run against time and teams in the speediest heats usually wind up with the points.

"If the points are fairly well spread I feel we have a chance for the team championship," said Wilson. Saginaw Valley Conference champion Flint Southwestern is rated a slight edge.

Nick Ochow of Pontiac Northern in the 440 and long jumper Dick McDowell and shot put Dave Farris of Waterford qualified for the finals.

Oxford is expected to win one event and place in four others.

AFTER RECORD

Mike Lantry is after the state Class B shot put record of 36-5 1/2 set last year by Bob Johnson of Vassar. The 196-pound Lantry fired the 12-pound ball 60-7 1/2 in the regional last week.

He will be competing in the low hurdles, too, but will have to improve his winning 20.45 clocking in the regional if he is to place in the top five.

Tim Kelley is expected to place well in the 100 and 220. Oxford's 860 relay team and Mickey Cummings in the high jump are given an outside chance of earning points.

Ontonville shot putter Ron Walker has been improving rapidly and could challenge for the Class C title. Wayne Wells of the Black Hawks should do well in the 800.

NFL Players Talk With Club Owners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 20 players representatives moved into the National Football League meetings today to talk turkey with the owners now that seven cities have completed their pitch for the 16th franchise in 1967.

There were no prior reports of problems between players and owners, and no word of what might go on between the two groups.

The league still was beaming over the attention showered upon it Wednesday by governors, senators, congressmen and mayors in the scramble for the 16th franchise.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle planned to summarize the presentations made by Houston, New Orleans, Seattle, Cincinnati, Boston, Phoenix and Portland, Ore., so that the owners can begin to evaluate the candidates.

Thornton Facing Torres in Battle for Ring Title

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Wayne Thornton will move out of his fight camp at the Concord Hotel Friday and heavyweight contender Doug Jones will move in. Thornton meets champion Joe Torres in a light heavyweight title bout at New York's Shea Stadium Saturday night.

Jones will meet Ernie Terrell the World Boxing Association's heavyweight champion, in a title fight at Houston, Tex., June 28.

Miss Chandler Wins WMGA Title

Triumphs With 88 at Romeo CC

Phyllis Chandler of Hamtramck carried a 44-44-88 at Romeo Country Club yesterday to capture the weekly Women's Metropolitan Golf Association outing.

The field of 60 players was slowed early in the day by rain and the scores soared with the fairways wet on the 7,000-yard course.

Miss Chandler totaled six pars in her 88. She stayed ahead of the pack with sharp fairway woods and putting. She needed only 30 putts for the round.

Mrs. Max Evans of Southfield carded a 90 to finish in the runner-up spot, and Mrs. George Schade of Detroit turned in a 95 for a third place finish.

Defending Loop Titles

Wilson Pitches, Bats Boston Past Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Which was more important to Earl Wilson as he pitched and batted the Boston Red Sox to a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles? The loading or the unloading?

In baseball parlance, Wilson unloaded a home run into the right field bleachers off Jim Palmer Wednesday night to nail down the decision. That much was evident.

But the Orioles claimed that, just as important to victory was Wilson's not-too-subtle job of loading his pitches with moisture. Or, in more uncouth language — that he was throwing spitballs.

The Orioles requested umpire John Flaherty to check the ball about four or five times during the game, the last two times while Frank Robinson was batting in the 10th inning with the potential tying run on third base.

NOT IMPRESSED

Flaherty returned the ball to Wilson each time and play resumed without a hitch. But the Orioles were unimpressed.

"Wilson was loading up for the next pitch while Flaherty was checking the ball," Billy Hunter, the Baltimore third base coach, said.

"As soon as Wilson got the ball back, he put it in his glove and rubbed on the spit," Hunter said. "It was very evident what he was doing. If he didn't load it, he sure deceived the hell out of me."

Robinson, who hit a foul pop in a 3-2 pitch to end the game, was asked if he thought Wilson was throwing a spitball.

"I don't think it," Robinson said. "I know it."

Veteran Benefits Sam McDowell

Too Old? Del Crandall Valuable

NEW YORK (NEA) — Each of the last three years supported by was the last for Del Crandall in the major leagues.

First Milwaukee told him he was too old... then San Francisco... Last winter it was Pittsburgh. So Del Crandall packed his catching gear — and his dignity — and switched leagues.

The switch may become one of the most important in the history of the Cleveland Indians. The Indians own Sam McDowell. And it seems, Del Crandall owns Sam McDowell.

At 32, the left-handed McDowell is considered the finest young pitcher in baseball. He led the American League in strikeouts and earned-run average last season and this year is pitching even better.

Wherever McDowell goes the reporters are close behind and Sam has been telling everyone how much credit Del Crandall deserves for his (McDowell's) success.

Crandall is 36 and has been around the major leagues since 1940, so he just smiles and talks softly about McDowell's remarks.

"I appreciate Sam's remarks," Crandall said, "but don't make too much of it. Remember, I'm not pitching."

"It's just that I've caught all his games," I suppose," Crandall added, smiling, "when he loses, I'll get fired."

It would never happen. Crandall is playing too important a role in McDowell's pitching education.

Supply Bowlers Become Champs in Huron League

Herk's Auto Supply pulled away to win the Huron Bowl Classic championship with a resounding eight-point sweep of Moose Lodge No. 182 on the final night of bowling.

Felice Quality Market also took eight on the final night to climb from third to second place, but still was eight points behind the champion.

Greendale Screw Products nabbed a share of third place with the Moose by climbing past Hartford Roofing and Siding which fell to fifth.

Athletics Win Twice

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City completed knocking California from the American League's first division here last night by beating the Angels, 7-1 and 7-4 in a doubleheader.

The Athletics also topped the Angels Tuesday.

Leaping Catch Aids Senators

CLEVELAND (AP) — Don Lock's leaping catch of Duke Sims' liner preserved Washington's 4-3 victory over Cleveland Wednesday night and snapped the Senators' three-game losing streak.

Senators' starter Pete Richert took a four-hit shutout into the ninth but with one out Fred Whitfield singled and Max Alvis reached base on an error. One out later, Rocky Colavito smashed a pinch-hit homer, bringing the Indians to within one run.

With reliever Casey Cox pitching, Sims drove one to the 406-foot sign in center field, but Lock leaped up and grabbed the blast for a game-saving catch.

Cincinnati Rising; Astros Surprising NL

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds are beginning to rise to the surface but the big question in the National League is whether the Houston Astros are in over their heads.

Expected to be among the pennant contenders, the slow-starting Reds continued their climb from the tail-end section of the standings Wednesday night, moving to within one victory of the 500 level by beating the New York Mets 4-2. The Reds now have won 10 of their last 12 games.

At the same time, the Astros, expected to be down where the Reds were, reeled off their 14th and 15th victories in the last 19 games by sweeping a double-header from the Chicago Cubs 5-1 and 4-2. Houston has inched to within 2½ games of front-running San Francisco.

And, the Astros have been getting some solid individual performances. Second baseman Joe Morgan is hitting at a .342 clip, outfielder Jim Wynn is among the runs-batted-in leaders with 23 and shortstop Tony Jackson is the runner-up in stolen bases with 12 to 14 for Maury Wills of Los Angeles.

STILL LEADING

The Giants, meanwhile, remained at the head of the standings with a .697 percentage to Houston's .625, by downing the third-place Dodgers 6-4. Philadelphia climbed into fourth by edging St. Louis 4-3 and Atlanta whipped Pittsburgh 4-2.

Wynn smacked a two-run double and Lee Maye and Rusty Staub hit homers in support of Dave Guisti's seven-hit pitching in the Astros' opening game victory.

Catcher John Balemian homered for Houston in the eighth but the key plays were two errors by the Cubs' Ernie Banks that led to three unearned runs.

Robin Roberts needed relief help from Claude Raymond and the slow-starting Reds continued their climb from the tail-end section of the standings Wednesday night, moving to within one victory of the 500 level by beating the New York Mets 4-2. The Reds now have won 10 of their last 12 games.

PORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Ben Hogan, showing his age (53) in his walk but not in his golf game, started another four-day trudge down "Hogan's Alley" today in search of an unprecedented sixth Colonial National Invitation golf tournament title.

It will be the 19th time the who rejoined the tour here after his long rest at home, or Player's Nicklaus declined his invitation fellow countryman, Harold Hen-

There are such successful winners as Gay Brewer, No. 3 among the money winners; Frank Beard, now the No. 4 ranking wage earner after his $20,000 victory last Sunday in the New Orleans Open; Gary Nicklaus, are not in the field. Player, the little South African Palmer withdrew after injuring himself in a golf accident at New Orleans and Player's Nicklaus declined his invitation fellow countryman, Harold Hen-

Hogan is not actually the pick of the writers here. That honor went to Doug Sanders, the colorful Georgian who is wearing a deep tear to the bank with the $74,268 he has earned so far this year.

But, there are plenty of others in the 72-player field capable of upstaging Hogan or Sanders.

B. Hills Posts Track Victory

Barons Don League Thincled Crown

Bloomfield Hills recorded six firsts Tuesday in taking the Wayne-Oakland League track championship with 63 points.

Chaseville (61½) placed second, followed by Milford (38), Northville (21½), Clarkston (14½), Brighton (8½), West Bloomfield (3) and Holly (1).

Brett Griffin of Hills won the broad jump with leap of 20 feet 6 inches, breaking the record of 20-2 set in 1962 by another Hills jumper, Art Treganza.

A second record fell in the shot put where Keith Granham of Milford tossed the ball 55 feet, ½ inch, erasing the mark of 51-5½ set by Chuck Andrews of Milford last year.

Cassius Calls for Press Huddle

LONDON (UPI) — Cassius Clay, never one to keep anything to himself, scheduled a "very special" meeting with "all the world's press" this morning to clear his mind prior to defending his world heavyweight title against Henry Cooper.

He refused to give even a hint as to the content of his talk.

Ship Crash Suit Lawyers Confer Claims for Damages Exceed $2 Million

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys representing claimants to multimillion-dollar damages in the collision of the freighter Cedarville with a Norwegian ship last May met today in U.S. District Court.

Claims against the owners of the two ships exceed several million dollars, a court spokesman said.

The Cedarville collided with the Topdalsford on May 7, 1965, in the fog-bound Straits of Mackinac, with the loss of 10 lives.

Fifteen attorneys representing 30 claimants met with U.S. District Judge James Connell. The court is attempting to ascertain the total of all claims and present the figures to the owners of the vessels.

DETROIT ATTORNEY

Victor Hanson of Detroit is representing five suits involving deaths and 10 personal injury suits.

A second group of suits, involving three death and seven personal injury cases, is represented by Abraham Freedman of Philadelphia.

Lee Hinsale of Cleveland is representing U.S. Steel Co. as the owner of the Cedarville and Thomas Murphy is representing the owners of the Topdalsford.

Following the disaster, the captain of the Cedarville, Martin Joppich of Rogers City, Mich., pleaded guilty to negligence before a U.S. Coast Guard hearing and his license was suspended for one year.

Reader Clinic Chief Leaves for NY Post

Dr. Lawrence Gold, director of the Oakland Schools Reading Clinic, has been appointed Project coordinator for a two-year research project to be conducted through the City University of New York.

Succeeding Dr. Gold as director of the reading clinic will be Dr. Daniel A. Briggs, professor of education of Glasboro State College, Glasboro, N.J.

The project is funded by the U. S. Office of Education to utilize the findings of 72 research projects conducted throughout the United States last year and to determine areas in which further research is needed.

One of the projects was the study in 38 Oakland County first grade classrooms of the effectiveness of three different approaches to teaching young children how to read.

Dr. Gold has been a member of the Oakland Schools staff for one year. He was formerly on the faculty of Hunter College in New York.

LBJ Loan Shift Plan Heads to Conference Committee After House OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson appeared assured today of congressional authority for a venture into the private capital market designed to hold the 1967 budget deficit to his predicted $1.3 billion rather than a possible $6 billion.

While the Senate and House still must negotiate some details, the House removed the last big doubt Wednesday by voting 206-190 for Johnson's bill.

participations in these pools, principally to large investors—such as pension funds and insurance companies.

The proceeds would go to the agencies whose loans were in the pool. They could then make new loans without receiving any public spending.

Republicans hammered at the bill in the long run would help the ordinary borrower because it would be drawing on investment reserves for which he does not compete. He opposed, and the House defeated, an amendment that would have placed a 4% per cent ceiling on interest on the participations.

GUILTY OF MURDER — Gertrude Baniszewski, 37, breaks into tears beside her attorney, William C. Erbecker, as a jury convicts her of first-degree murder in the torture slaying of Sylvia Likens, a neighbor girl. The jury, which recommended a sentence of life in prison, convicted two of Mrs. Baniszewski's children and two neighbor youths of lesser charges in the killing.

Five Are Guilty in Torture Death

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — An Indianapolis mother of seven was convicted of first-degree murder today and four teen-agers, two of them her children, were found guilty of lesser charges in the torture slaying of Sylvia Marie Likens.

The jury recommended life in prison for Gertrude Wright Baniszewski, 37. It convicted her daughter, Paula, 18, of second-degree murder.

Mrs. Baniszewski's son, John, 17, and two neighbors, boys Richard D. Hobbs, and Coy Hubbard, both 15, were convicted of manslaughter.

The panel of eight men and four women deliberated eight hours.

Second-degree murder is punishable by life imprisonment. Manslaughter carries a 22½-year sentence. Criminal Court Judge Saul I. Rabb set sentencing for Tuesday.

All five defendants were charged with first-degree murder. The state asked the death penalty for all, charging they subjected Miss Likens, 16, to nearly two weeks of torture before her death last Oct. 28.

150 WOUNDS

Testimony indicated the girl's body bore 150 wounds, and that she had been burned, beaten, scalded, branded and starved.

Sylvia was boarded in the Baniszewski home while her parents managed a food concession at carnivals.

Mrs. Baniszewski, dressed in a black dress, burst into tears when Judge Rabb read the verdict at the end of the 23-day trial. When her son's conviction was announced, she cried, "Please, I want to see my son."

They embraced, both in tears, before Mrs. Baniszewski and Paula were whisked to their cells.

Cost to State for Pontiac Facility Hit at Lansing Hearing

Expansion of existing medical schools rather than establishment of a Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine was last night labeled the cheapest and best way to meet the need for more doctors.

This is what opponents, mostly medical doctor representatives, and the heads of existing medical schools, told state legislators last night at a hearing in Lansing before the House Ways and Means Committee.

The projected osteopathic college is planned for a 164-acre site at Auburn and Odette.

College advocates contended it is discrimination for the state to support the training of medical doctors but not of osteopaths.

Osteopaths, they said, serve one-third of the state's population and make a unique contribution to health care.

WITNESSES TALK
A dozen witnesses appeared before the committee in a four-hour hearing on a Senate-passed proposal to create a State Osteopathic College Authority.

The bill, already approved by the House Senate Affairs Committee, would commit the state to help pay operating costs of the proposed osteopathic college at Pontiac, said Rep. Elmer Erlendson, D-Essex, ways and means chairman.

However, the bill would create an authority to govern the new medical school. An appropriation provision was deleted when the measure passed the Senate.

Deans of the medical colleges at the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and Michigan State University argued medical education must be centered at universities, which already are equipped to teach biological and social sciences.

HITS COST

"The State of Michigan cannot afford to support a college of medicine outside of the framework of a university," said Dr. Ernest Gardner, dean at Wayne.

The witnesses included three from California, where medical education is centered at the University of California, San Francisco.

Students Extra Busy M-Week

Although today is "Education Day," students in the Waterford Township School District aren't limiting their Michigan Week events to a single day.

They've been placing emphasis on the township in various programs and exhibits all week. Township history, places of interest and unique products are in the spotlight.

Scheduled this week are breakfasts and luncheons feature Michigan products, musical numbers, to the state, displays by pupils, open houses, as well as other activities.

Typical of the events scheduled in the township schools and township's at Donelson Waterford Village, Grosse Pointe Woods and Burt Schools.

Highlight of secondary school activities was Monday night's

FESTIVAL DISPLAY

Thomas L. Donelson School's activities in "Festivals of Michigan." Pupils of all grades have prepared festival displays for an exhibit in the school's gymnasium.

The kindergarten pupils of Mrs. Gail Authier and Mrs. Barbara Ruelle presented a program entitled "An Indian Pow Wow" at the school's PTA meeting today.

Other festivals also were presented at the program which included singing and dancing.

The Chippewa band, orchestra and chorus performed and 18 4-H FFA boys demonstrated physical fitness.

SCHOOL THEME

At Waterford Village School, the theme is "Creativity of Michigan People — Both Pioneer and Contemporary."

Displays are on exhibit in the school lobby throughout the week. The school chorus presented a program at 1:15 p.m. yesterday.

Today, fourth graders competed in a track and field demonstration at 1 p.m., following a luncheon for parents.

At Burt School, the 175 members of the chorus are participating in a Michigan Week "Sakute to Our State in Music and Pictures."

At Oakley School, fourth and fifth graders prepared meals featuring Michigan products for breakfast and lunch Tuesday.

Cong Radio Urges Support for Ky's Foes

Only 1 Major Ground Action Reported in War; Plane Downed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's troops surrounded rebel headquarters in Da Nang today after more than four hours of heavy shooting around the Buddhist stronghold.

The government appeared trying to choke off the dissidents rather than wipe them out in a direct attack.

In an attempt to exploit the turmoil, the Viet Cong's underground Liberation League third Communist support behind the rebels and urged all South Vietnamese troops to "rise up" against the government.

Buddhist leaders in Saigon and the northern provinces sent pleas for intervention to end the civil strife to world leaders, but significantly the monks avoided any association with the Viet Cong forces.

The Buddhists also canceled all rallies today to avoid the impression that they might be in honor of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh's 76th birthday today.

ONE MAJOR ACTION

In the war against the Communists, only one major ground action was reported and monsoon rains held U.S. Air Force and Navy planes to 23 missions against North Viet Nam.

The U.S. command announced the loss, apparently to ground fire, of an Air Force C-130 cargo plane on a mission 35 miles northwest of Qui Nhon.

Bodies of two crewmen were found in the wreckage, and the other three were listed as missing.

Both loyalist and anti-government forces took casualties as the eruption of fighting in Da Nang, South Viet Nam's second largest city, created the danger of a war within a war.

2-HOUR OUTBURSTS

The shooting came in two-hour outbursts during the morning and in the afternoon as Ky's forces closed in on three Buddhist pagodas where an estimated 1,000 troops and Buddhists had collected in a three-block square pocket of resistance.

Ky's airborne commander, Brig. Gen. Da Quoc Dong, declared his move toward the pagodas was only intended to open the roads and was not a drive on the Buddhist compound. He said the rebels opened fire first.

The Marines took control yesterday of a disputed bridge over the Da Nang River.

INSPECT TRUCK — Lt. Frank Randolph (kneeling) and Chief William Stokes of the Waterford Township Police Department inspect one of the township fire trucks as Fire Chief Lewis Goff (center) looks on. Township residents can have their vehicles inspected from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Pontiac Mall. Vehicle safety check lanes will also be operating in Pontiac and Warren on Saturday.

Kidnaped Girl Reported OK

Who Fired Fatal Shot Still Not Cleared Up

SHADE GAP, Pa., (UPI) — Peggy Ann Brundick, a pert brunette of 17, the ordeal is over.

Her doctor said today she is in excellent condition despite seven days of captivity in chains at the hands of a crazed gunman.

William Hollenbaugh lay dead. And this mountain hamlet which had known him as a timid town character — "Bicycle Pete" he was called — rested assured that the bullet which killed him also ended the greatest threat it had known since the Indians pillaged the westward moving wagons two centuries ago.

The kidnapping of Peggy Ann, the killing of an FBI agent and the wounding of a deputy sheriff during his flight were the last violent episodes in the murky life of Hollenbaugh, who for the last two years, had stalked the Tuscarora hills as a sniper, wounding two persons and pot-shooting at scores of pedestrians and motorists.

Hollenbaugh, 44, was hunted down by a posse of almost 700 and shot dead yesterday on a mountain farm. Peggy Ann, disheveled and bruised, was freed.

NOT RAPED
It remained unknown today who killed Hollenbaugh and why he seized Peggy Ann and dragged her through the rugged, lushly forested mountains for a week. She was not raped.

Larry Ruback, 15, a farm youth, said he killed Hollenbaugh. He shot a pumpkin ball from a shotgun through a window at his late father, the approaching man, who also was under fire from state police converging on the Ruback farm.

The FBI and state troopers said their investigation also showed young Ruback's pumpkin ball, which the boy said he used for deer hunting — killed Hollenbaugh.

But the Fulton County coroner, Dr. Russell C. McLucas, said an autopsy revealed Hollenbaugh died from a single bullet which pierced the tip of his left shoulder and emerged from his neck above the collarbone.

The trajectory of the shot showed it could not have been fired by Ruback, a Michigan resident, because the boy was firing from a window above Hollenbaugh.

McLucas said only a ballistic test could determine who fired the fatal shot. This was impossible because the bullet passed through the sniper's body and was not found.

Avon Hospital Bows on Sewage Problem

An Avon Township hospital, whose faulty septic system has resulted in a flow of sewage to nearby areas, has agreed to correct the problem, an Oakland County Health Department employee said yesterday.

Cited as the source of the sewage flow was the Haven Hospital and Psychiatric Clinic, 1850 University.

The problem was reported about a week ago, according to the health department.

Cavanagh, Griffin Due at Area Event

Political opponents Jerome Cavanagh, mayor of Detroit, and newly appointed United States Sen. Robert Griffin are among candidates slated to attend an open-house reception Saturday sponsored by the non-partisan Oakland Citizens League.

The reception, being held at the Community House in Birmingham from 2 to 5 p.m., represents an effort on the part of the league to better acquaint the public with political issues and candidates.

No speeches are included in the program as candidates will discuss their viewpoints and interested citizens in answer to specific questions.

Gov. Romney and Senatorial candidate G. Mennen Williams have also been invited but have not accepted as yet.

Others who will attend are Senators Sander Levin, D-Berkley, and Robert Huber, R-Troy; Congressman Billie S. Farnum, D-19th District; State Rep. William Hampton; State Sen. Farrell E. Roberts and Royal Oak attorney Maurice Merritt, candidates for circuit judge, and candidate for the 19th District congressional post.

7 Millionth Car Rolls Off Line, Ahead of 1965

DETROIT (UPI) — The 7 millionth 1966 model car rolled off the assembly line yesterday, according to Automotive Industries.

The milestone was achieved 14 days earlier than the old record set last year, the trade news said.

The industry would assemble 194,256 passenger cars this week, making a year-to-date total of 4,244,852, compared to 4,650,586 at this time last year, Automotive Industries said.

2 Fail to File Expense Costs

Statement Deadline in City Vote Passes

Two candidates—one of whom was elected—had not filed campaign expense statements for the April 18 city election by yesterday's deadline, according to city and county officials.

George Grba, unsuccessful District 4 City Commission hopeful, and Municipal Court Judge Maurice E. Finnegan, re-elected to a six-year term, are the two who have not filed the required expense statements.

According to the City Charter, those elected in the general election must file expense statements within 30 days of the election.

Mrs. Julia Maddock, chief deputy clerk in the county clerk's office, said all candidates "whether or not elected must file expense statements."

She said those who have not filed would be notified to do so. If there is no reply, the clerk's office will notify the county auditor, she added.

14 STATEMENTS

Of the 14 candidates that have filed statements or had a committee file in their behalf, only one candidate—Cecil B. McCallum—reported no election expenses.

McCallum, re-elected to a similar six-year term, is Finnegan's colleague on the Municipal court bench.

The largest expenditure, $41,690, was reported by the Citizens Committee for a Better Birmingham, which supported the re-elected incumbents.

Two candidates spent $900 or more in bids for election to the seven-member City Commission.

$900 IN EXPENSES

District 3 hopeful William J. Winters of 293 Ottawa reported expenses of $900, while Mrs. Charles W. Nodgett of 82 Maria, a District 6 candidate, reported expenses totaling $946.

Next in line on total expenditures was District 4 Commissioner Leslie H. Hudson, who reported expenses of $981.

According to the city clerk's office, the candidate's expenses could not exceed $1,100, which would mean that no one who has filed an expense statement so far has exceeded the amount stipulated.

Emphasize Driver, Roads in New Laws

State Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, said yesterday he favored legislation for traffic safety that would emphasize making things tougher on the driver and correcting bad road conditions instead of stressing the automobile manufacturer.

O'Brien is a member of the Senate Highways Committee that has held three traffic safety public hearings during the 1966 legislative session — the most recent on May 17 dealing with highway design.

"From conclusions drawn from the hearings, I take the position of Gov. Romney and others on the subject," O'Brien said.

"I feel from what I have learned at the hearings that the majority of our traffic problems are caused by the driver and environmental conditions."

"I disagree with the tone of the current congressional hearings before the House Commerce Committee which seems to be that the auto manufacturer should assume the major burden of guilt," O'Brien added.

PHILOSOPHY WRONG

"I also feel that such a philosophy, which is being put forth by some of my legislative colleagues and the writer Ralph Nader, is wrong."

O'Brien said to cope with the situation "we may or may not" need new traffic laws, "but for certain we must enforce as much more strictly the myriad of statutes we already have on the books."

He concluded, "Sure, there is a problem with vehicles, but I think a program of sound motor vehicle inspection is the answer to most of it."

"We have an excellent start this year through a bill, which has passed the Senate and waits House action, allowing the State Police to establish highway safety check lanes," O'Brien said.

GI Dead Again Top S. Viets
SAIGON (AP) — American combat deaths exceeded those of South Viet Nam's armed forces last week for the third time this spring, a period of political unrest.

The U.S. Command announced today 86 Americans were killed, 556 wounded and three missing in action May 8-14.

A Vietnamese spokesman after first reporting a total of 91 Vietnamese servicemen dead or missing, later broke down the figures: 72 dead and 19 missing. The Vietnamese do not list their wounded.

Three battle deaths were reported among Australian, New Zealand and South Korean units.

Youth for Griffin Group Is Formed

Two Oakland County college students have formed a Youth for Griffin Club to support Robert Griffin, a Republican, in his bid for a four-year term in the U.S. Senate.

They are Robert Smart, 555 W. Walled Lake, Walled Lake, and Mike Renner of 1404 Estate, Berkley, both students at the University of Michigan.

The group will distribute campaign materials, and its first project will be to escort Griffin during his appearance at the Village Fair in Birmingham Saturday.

Griffin, appointed recently to temporarily fill the vacancy created by the death of U.S. Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, is seeking election to the post in November.

Dominican Order Curbing Armed Forces Placates Bosch Party

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Ex-President Juan Bosch's party Wednesday night withdrew its threat to boycott the Dominican presidential race after the government confined the armed forces to quarters until the June 1 election is over.

The executive committee of Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party — PRD — said in a statement that provisional President Hector Garcia-Godoy's orders had resolved the crisis. Bosch and the PRD had charged the armed forces and national police were persecuting party workers.

Garcia-Godoy said the government thoroughly had investigated all complaints of persecution and election violence. Where necessary, he said, all guilty parties have been punished but many complaints have turned out "to be inexact."

Speaking after the president, Armed Forces Minister Maj. Gen. Enrique Perez y Perez reiterated the "political position" of the military. The order confining the troops to quarters went out shortly after the president spoke, he said, and "will be complied with rigidly."

Bosch threatened to pull out of the elections by noon today if the government did not crack down on the armed forces and national police. Bosch charged they were carrying out clandestine campaigns to help his chief rival, Balaguer, the Reformist party candidate.

Bosch repeatedly has charged the political climate stemming from the April 1965 revolution is too heated to permit peaceful elections.

Recent opinion polls show Bosch and Balaguer running neck and neck, with Bosch slightly ahead but Balaguer gaining steadily in recent weeks.

Observers say PRD strength may have suffered because of Bosch's failure to leave his home to campaign and Balaguer's hard-driving campaign in rural areas where about 70 per cent of the voters live. Radios are scarce in the interior.

Bosch's top lieutenants and his vice-presidential running mate, Antonio Guzman, have done most of the PRD campaigning there.

Unofficial polls suggest no single party will be able to dominate the new Congress to be elected June 1.

One of the smaller parties, or a group of them, is expected to feel the still explosive situation requires broad political representation in Congress.

There are some fears of post-election violence if the losing parties do not accept the results quietly. Many civilians remain armed, but military and police chiefs are confident they can maintain order.

Now a Hindu Land

India Saves Buddhist Heritage

NEW DELHI (AP) — India, the spiritual homeland of Buddhism, is taking steps to preserve its Buddhist heritage even though it now is a predominantly Hindu land.

An archaeological museum has been opened in Nagarjunakonda in the southern state of Andhra Pradesh to save and display Buddhist art and edifices dating from ancient times.

Nagarjunakonda first became archaeologically important in 1927-31 when extensive excavations uncovered Buddhist sites and many stupas (stone pillars), shrines, monasteries and sculptures.

Work was continued in 1938 and 1940 but not until 1953 was it speeded up.

In that year, it became apparent that a dam being built across the Krishna River would cover the Nagarjunakonda Valley and its priceless relics with deep water.

WORKED FAST

The Indian government in a recent announcement said that in 1954-60, archaeologists worked fast, uncovering much more than what had been known about Buddhist edifices and also the prehistoric archaeology of the valley.

The relics that could be saved will be placed in the museum. Others will be patched together from bits and pieces that have been found.

Many, however, will be reconstructed out of original material on one hill site.

One original, titled "Stupa Worship," is a detailed relief depicting Buddhists in ancient times worshipping a stupa, or stone pillar which represents a god or goddess.

LORD BUDDHA

Another outstanding work shows the Lord Buddha, astride a horse and surrounded by worshipful retainers, riding off to renounce the world and all worldly things.

Lord Buddha, a wealthy, self-indulging prince, gained enlightenment in India. He renounced all his worldly belongings and took to preaching.

His followers subsequently spread his teachings throughout Asia and Buddhism became one of the world's great religions.

Ironically, Buddhism all but died out in India. Of the nation's 495 million people, about 445 million are Hindus. Nearly 50 million are Moslems. Christianity, Buddhism and other religions also are present.

Guard Duty Lonely on Reef

CHARLEVOIX (AP) — "The AP Business News Writer 27 feet," smiles Coast Guardsman Dan Disciano, "and as each day goes by, it gets smaller and smaller and smaller. Thirty miles out into Lake Michigan north of here and 18 miles west of the Mackinac Bridge is Gray's Reef Light."

Located at the reef's "elbow," it is one of more than a dozen such installations manned by the U.S. Coast Guard to make shipping lanes safe where winds are wont to howl through the Straits of Mackinac in an area menaced by shoals, reefs and shallows.

Hermits live on Gray's Reef but they are a far cry from "The Hermit of Shark-Tooth Shoal," who, legend has it, "lived by himself on a sea lion's shelf in lonely iniquity."

MODERN HERMITS

The modern hermits of Gray's Reef have TV.

They live in the 80-foot-high lighthouse on a 60 x 80-foot concrete "crib" sunk solidly into the reef 25 feet below water. And instead of fighting loneliness, they guard against getting on each other's nerves.

"We've been pretty lucky,"

Disciano says. "We've had no squabbles. In fact," he adds with a wink, "you can't hardly pick an argument around here just to pass the time."

"I ask Wade what he wants to switch on TV and he says 'It doesn't matter to me.'"

TWO SEASONS

Elwood Wade, bosun's mate first class from Traverse City is in charge of the light. A tall, thin, soft-spoken man, he has served there two seasons.

"We keep busy to pass the time," Wade says. "We get up at 7 a.m., eat breakfast and 'turn to' for station work at 8 a.m. We 'secure' work at 1:30 hours (4:30 p.m.) and then are pretty much on our own."

"That's week days. Saturdays and Sundays we don't have regular work but we can work if we want to."

The work includes maintaining the 1,000-watt, 9,000-candlepower red light which is visible up to 17 miles away under good conditions; operating the air-powered fog horn when visibility is five miles or less; and keeping a 24-hour radiobeacon on the air which can be picked up as far as 70 miles away.

The light is on four seconds and off two seconds as seen from a passing ship. The fog horn is turned on by hand when visibility falls and operates on a 20-second cycle, with two seconds of melancholy warning followed by 18 seconds of silence. The dash, dot, dot, dash of the radiobeacon (No. 9 in Morse code) is continuous.

Just off the small living, dining and recreation room which also serves as a galley, three identical grandfather-type pendulum clocks stand side by side. Two keep time and operate automatic equipment and the third keeps check on the others and stands by as a spare.

Time is important to the men on Gray's Reef. In the two small rooms with double bunks, in the engine room and at other strategic locations are calendars with big X's through each passed day.

Lighthouse duty is generally on a volunteer basis, according to Wade, though if there aren't enough volunteers, men are drafted. Crews serve three weeks on duty and one week off in most cases but may choose to serve six weeks straight with two weeks off.

Lights are generally opened about mid-March and kept in operation into December, depending on the shipping season. When lights close for the year, men who have served on them are given their choice of Coast Guard stations where they may serve in the off season.

In addition to Gray's Reef, the Charlevoix station operates lights at White Shoals, Lansing Shoals, Forty Mile Point, Presque Isle, Alpena, Thunder Bay Island, Poe Reef, Spectacle Reef, Martin Reef and the Cheboygan River. The lights are spread around the top of the Michigan "mitten" in Lakes Michigan and Huron.

Teacher Plan to Be Eyed in Waterford

The Waterford Township Board of Education tonight will consider school district participation in an elementary teaching internship program, operated by Michigan State University since 1958.

Under the program, fourth-year university teaching students would be employed as regular instructors in elementary classrooms in the school district at a salary of about $3,500.

The number of interns allowed by a participating district is limited to five. Interns would be supervised and coordinated by a university staff member.

In other business, the board is expected to approve the calendar for the 1966-67 school year.

Also on the agenda is a recommendation of Supt. of Schools Dr. Don O. Talroe regarding staff appointments.

Birth Control Project Is Tried on Seagulls

MUSKETGET ISLAND, Mass. (AP) — Twenty-four thousand seagulls on this sandy island took part in an experiment in family planning recently.

They were fed tons of fish treated with a birth-control agent. It's a project of the University of Massachusetts to ease the gull population crisis on the island.

Housewarming in the Works

Mrs. Charles Frazier Handles Clerk Duties

Plans are under way for an open house at the new home of Pontiac Motor Division United Auto Workers Local 653 at 990 Joslyn. Bert Henson, financial secretary of the local, said the affair will be held as soon as landscaping around the building is completed, probably in July.

Formerly located at 386 East Kennett, the records and equipment of the local were moved into the new facilities March 21.

Built at a cost of more than $250,000, the building contains 12,000 square feet. Acquisition of the 200-by-110-foot lot on which the facility is located brought the total cost to $317,000.

Construction was started last June. Robert Savoda of Detroit was the architect and the Ernest Hollick Construction Co. of Detroit was the general contractor.

SEATING CAPACITY

In addition to record offices and committee rooms, the building contains an auditorium with a seating capacity of nearly 500 and a kitchen and dining room capable of feeding 500 at one time.

Henson said the building is constructed so that a second floor can be added if necessary.

Parking facilities for 50 cars will be provided adjacent to the building as soon as blacktopping is complete.

President John Maye said the local has also been given permission to use Pontiac Motor Division property across the street for parking.

City Firm Offers New Process

By JOE MULLEN
A Pontiac firm is one of only two in the state utilizing a relatively new process to imprint permanent photographic reproductions on aluminum.

"We began this processing procedure last year," said Eugene E. Jones, assistant to the manager of Chief Pontiac Photo Engraving Co.

"Our firm is already equipped to handle a larger volume than the company in Detroit that performs the same service," Jones added.

But, the darling of the ultra-modern engraving plant is the anodized aluminum photo process.

"The significance of this process is its permanency," Jones said.

He explained that photographs, nameplates, and numerals for dials are reproduced permanently on photo-sensitized anodized aluminum by actually being sealed below the surface of the metal.

"The product of the process is both waterproof and weatherproof," Jones added.

AT CHRYSLER

This experience, modern techniques in coating and buffing and special equipment are the basics that led to Chief Pontiac Photo Engraving's emergence as a leader in the anodized aluminum photo process.

The highly technical inner-workings of the process, however, are confidential.

"A no-admittance" sign serves notice that only authorized personnel are allowed in the area of the plant where the process is performed.

NOVELTY ITEMS
Besides providing such items as electronic dials and identification plates for industry, the firm is busy imprinting cuff links, tie-bars and other novelty items.

Permanent placement of photographs on metal is in growing demand both from business concerns and individuals.

A related process performed in the air-conditioned plant adjoining The Pontiac Press is that of imprinting images on the surface of aluminum rather than below the surface.

Called Scotchcal, this process is long lasting but not permanent.

A main use of the Scotchcal process is in preparation of instructional charts used, for example, in manufacturing plants or on trains.

Oil and grease can easily be wiped from the chart and both the metal composition of the chart and its surface image can endure years of use.

Products of Chief Pontiac Photo Engraving Co. have been approved for government use. Bids now are being prepared for some military contracts.

OCC Summer Schedule Set

Evening Classes Will Begin on June 28

Oakland Community College's second eight-week summer evening session has been scheduled from June 28 to Aug. 19.

Counseling and course selection for the new term will be held June 1-20 at both the Highland Lakes and Auburn Hills campuses or at the OCC administration office. Registration is scheduled June 27 and 28 from 6 to 10 p.m.

Courses will be offered at Highland Lakes in the following general categories:

Art, English, foreign languages, general science, mathematics, music, political science and social science.

Curriculum at Auburn Hills will include accounting, business, English, foreign language, general science, landscape technology, mathematics, political science, psychology and secretarial.

All but the foreign language courses, which offer four semester hours credit, are three-hour credit programs.

The foreign language courses are scheduled from 6 to 10 p.m.

All other courses are slated from 7 to 10 p.m. except basic mathematics and physical science which will be conducted from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Highland Lakes Campus.

Walter J. Fightmaster, director of the OCC continuing education program, anticipates an enrollment of 1,200 to 1,300 for the new term.

Approximately this same number of students is enrolled in the first summer evening session that began May 4 and will end June 24.

Director Is Given Authority in Antipoverty Nurse Issue

Oakland County Health Director Dr. Bernard D. Berman yesterday was given the power of discretion by the board of health in providing nurses for the county antipoverty program.

The Oakland County Office of Economic Opportunity (OCEO) had complained that the health department has not yet lived up to a contractual arrangement to provide a public health nurse at both the Pontiac and Royal Oak Township antipoverty action centers.

Berman told members of the health committee of the County Board of Supervisors yesterday that he felt the action center programs were not sufficiently developed to warrant nurses.

Berman cited the shortage of nurses and said that he couldn't assign any to a duty when needs were more vital elsewhere.

The health committee then supported Berman's position in not assigning nurses to the action centers and authorized him to withdraw from the agreement.

if the OCEO is not satisfied with his decision.

NOTED FAILURE

A letter noting the failure of the health department to assign nurses was sent by Charles A. Mentzer, health coordinator for the OCEO, to Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the County Board of Auditors.

Mentzer said that he would be satisfied to get the nurses on a limited basis even though the contract between the two agencies calls for full-time nurses.

Poppy Sale Launched

A three-day sale of poppies began today with auxiliary members of two Pontiac American Legion posts taking part in the annual program to pay tribute to America's war dead.

Directing activities locally are Mrs. Donald Richmond of Chief Pontiac Post No. 377, and Mrs. Ayres Miller of Cook-Nelson Post No. 20.

The memorial flowers are handmade by disabled veterans who are paid for their work by the auxiliary, whose members volunteer services in distributing them.

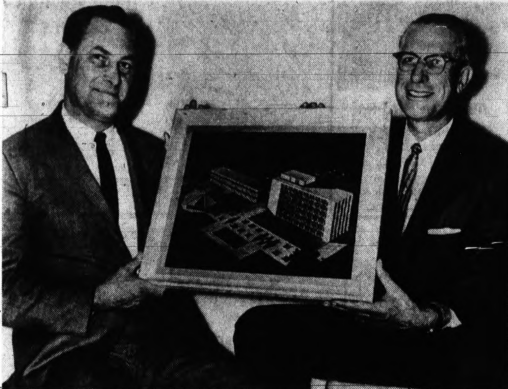

Contributions collected during Poppy Days are used to carry out the auxiliary's programs of rehabilitation and child welfare.

The small red flower was adopted as symbol of sacrifice shortly after World War I.

The dinner will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Pontiac Northern High School. Mrs. Marguerite Phelps, librarian for Oakland Schools, is in charge of reservations.

Included among the books illustrated by Dennis are "King of the Wind," "Misty of Chincoteague," "Brighty of the Grand Canyon," "Orphan of Chincoteague" and "Justin Morgan Had a Horse."

He also has written some books, including the "Flip" series about a flying horse and "A Crow I Know" which he illustrated.

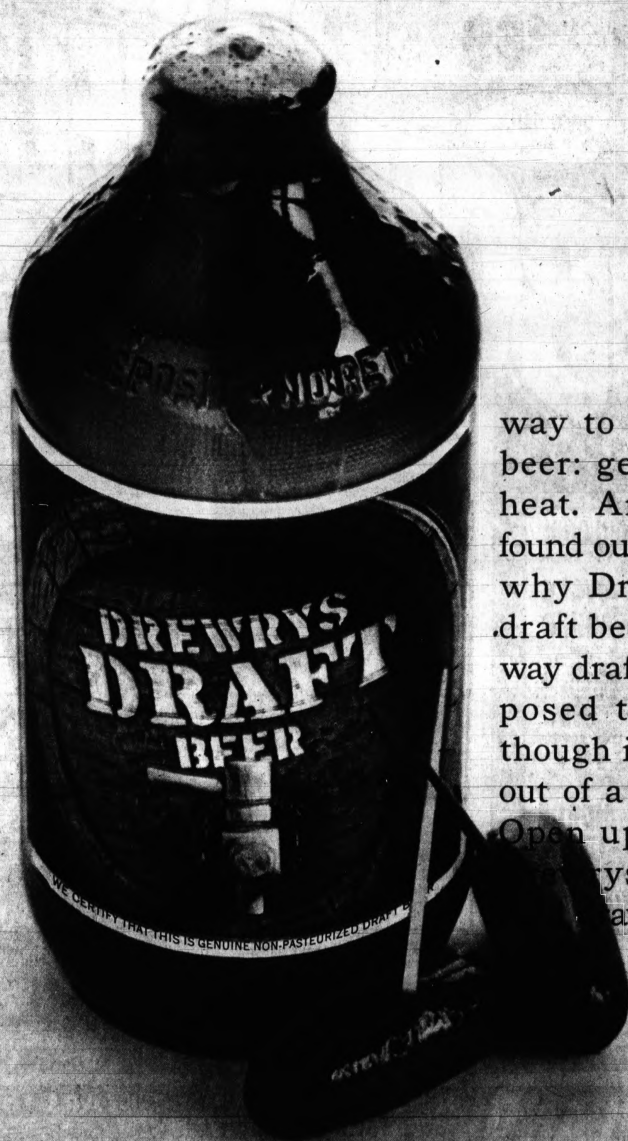

When you heat draft beer in the 140 bottling process, it's not draft beer any more.

Introducing the only way to bottle draft beer.

Most draft beer never even leaves the brewery.

While being bottled, it gets heated to 140° fahrenheit—and that's the end of it. Draft beer loses its draft taste when heated, and becomes "bottled" beer. (Bottled beer is good beer; but it's not draft beer.) There's only one way to bottle draft beer: get rid of the heat. And Drewrys found out how. That's why Drewrys new draft beer tastes the way draft beer is supposed to taste. As though it came right out of a tap.

Open up a bottle of Drewrys draft beer. Draw off a glass.

Stock Market Worried

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK—When the economy is rising fast some call it "overheating." When the pace slows down, some call it "cooling down." But the stock market is worried about the possibility of a "hard landing" that would mean a sharp drop in economic activity.

SAM DAWSON

Either a way to find out if the economy is really as strong as it seems, or a way to worry about it and others who just relax and enjoy it.

Right now the stock market is worried about the possibility of a "hard landing" that would mean a sharp drop in economic activity. The dictionary calls over-heating "an overabundance of heat." The stock market is worried about the possibility of a "hard landing" that would mean a sharp drop in economic activity.

The administration economists say this means that some of the economy's surpluses have faded. And presumably the need for higher taxes is more questionable now.

But the stock market takes a second definition from the dictionary, which also calls over-heating "an abundance in good spirits."

And when auto sales and production slipped a bit, and the prospects for profits in general continuing their record climb, Wall Street was no longer abounding in good spirits.

Exuberance went out of the market for many glamorous high flyers. Prices of the conservative blue chips also started down, and down, and down. Then why aren't business leaders as jittery as stock traders?

PERSONAL INCOME

One reason can be found in the breakdown on the personal income figures. In March the annual rate rose by $4 billion. In April it rose by only a billion. To stock traders that could be bearish.

But that "only" still carried the annual rate of personal income to a record high of $563.1 billion.

Even more indicative of business health could be the factory payroll rate. This rose by $700 million in April, the same amount by which it had risen in March.

Increased payrolls were reported in the electrical, machinery, transportation equipment, rubber, apparel and ordnance industries. And the annual rate for all factories came to $124.4 billion.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

(Q) "I am 40 years old, have four children. My husband is a wounded veteran—having undergone five major operations since his return from Iwo Jima. His illness is considered fatal, and we have had no chance to save. My mother wants to invest $10,000 for me. What would you suggest?"

H. L.
(A) If $10,000 is to be given by your mother to represent your entire capital, as seems apparent, I believe that, at least, should go into a savings account and good bonds.

I suggest that $2,000 be placed in a savings institution and that $2,000 be invested in public utility bonds.

Telephone 5445 of 8/1/1960, selling to yield 5.15 per cent. The balance of $6,000 might be distributed equally among the following: Commercial Credit, offering a six per cent return; Norfolk & Western Ry., selling on a 5.4 per cent basis; and one lower-yielding stock for growth and some inflation protection—such as Corn Products, currently offering a 3.4 per cent return.

(Q) "You recently advised a 72-year-old widow who had $10,000 to invest to buy a straight life annuity. I am in the same position, with $8,000 to buy an annuity. Would you name a reliable company I should buy from? I am 75 years old."

H. R.
(A) I cannot recommend one insurance company against others to persons seeking an annuity. I believe, however, that any major insurance company licensed to do business in your state would be satisfactory.

$8,000 is your entire capital, you should retain a proportion of that sum as a savings reserve. I cannot tell you exactly what you would receive on a straight life annuity, because this amount is figured closely to your date of birth. I am confident, however, that you would get at least $3 a month on each $1,000 of consideration.

Sales, Profits Firm Records

Farmington Company Gives Yearly Report

Robert G. Begle, president of Farmington, Inc., Farmington, and chairman of its board of directors has reported record earnings and sales during the year ending March 31.

Farmington's sales of machines, cutting tools and allied products for the year ending March 31 rose 45 per cent to $1,959,245 compared to $1,346,665 for the same period in 1964-65.

The net profit of $344,282 was up 25.9 per cent compared to $273,353 in profits from the year ending March 31, 1965.

The per-share earnings was $1.55 compared to $1.23 for the preceding 12-month period, after giving retroactive effect to stock dividends paid during the fiscal year.

Begle noted that several major activities of the company prevented the percentage of profit increase from balancing with the percentage ratio of sales increase.

These included the cost of moving into a new plant, a change in product mix and higher costs of training and supervision incident to an employment increase of 73 per cent during the year.

He reported incoming orders remain strong with an order backlog 70 per cent above the same period in 1964-65.

Youth Service Plan Clarified

Aides Say McNamara Sees Voluntary Effort

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is thinking of a voluntary effort—not compulsion—in his proposal that every young American devote two years to service either in uniform, the Peace Corps or some other help-making program.

Associates of the defense chief said today after McNamara returned from Montreal, where he offered his proposal in a wide-ranging speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

John Fitzgerald, editor of The Pontiac Press, is attending the Montreal conference with American and Canadian editors.

Sources familiar with McNamara's thinking said the secretary envisions both young men and young women taking part.

Officials cautioned against jumping to any conclusions that the Pentagon would send implementing legislation to Congress. They did not rule out the possibility, however.

McNamara's associates also sought to draw attention to other facets of the speech. These included the secretary's call for "building bridges" toward Russia and his emphasis on the international peace-keeping as a hoped-for pattern of the future.

It was understood that McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have reviewed together the foreign policy aspects of the speech before the Pentagon chief went to Montreal to deliver it.

His service for all youth proposals came after he spoke of the need for a worldwide community of effort.
