MARIA CALLAS

Report Singer Gives Up U.S. Citizenship

PARIS (AP) — Opera singer Maria Callas has renounced her American citizenship in an attempt to end her marital and financial difficulties with her Italian husband, reliable sources disclosed today.

Miss Callas was not available for comment. The sources said she renounced her citizenship in the American Embassy in Paris March 18. The embassy would make no comment on the case.

Miss Callas was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1923.

Her birth in New York gave her American citizenship, but because both her parents were Greek she also has Greek nationality.

The sources said Miss Callas told the embassy orally that she was giving up American citizenship because this would end her marital and financial complications with Milan industrialist Giovan Battista Meneghini, who launched her on her career.

Miss Callas and Meneghini separated legally in 1959, following the start of her much-publicized attachment to Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis. Since then they have been involved in a continual legal battle over money.

CHILDREN IN PROTEST — Teachers led South Vietnamese school children in an orderly antigovernment and anti-American demonstration in Hue yesterday. It was the third straight day that thousands marched in such protests in the central Vietnamese capital city.

New Demonstrations Rock 2 Viet Cities; Ky Confident

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — New antigovernment demonstrations rocked Saigon and Hue today, but Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime appeared to be making some headway toward ending the grave political crisis that has threatened to tumble it.

Ky called the situation still serious but said he is confident the difficulties with dissident military men in Da Nang can be resolved peacefully.

A few hours after his optimistic statement, 1,000 demonstrators surged through the center of Saigon a tonight, wrecking a Vietnamese newspaper office on the way.

The youths moved out from a student headquarters at whistle commands from a group of young Buddhist monks.

The mob gathered strength as it surged downtown and attacked the ground floor office of the paper Song, smashing machinery and furniture with knives and sticks.

REPORT FACT

The demonstrations came on the heels of a report of a pact between Saigon authorities and militant student leaders to ease tensions in the capital.

Renewal Plan Is Questioned

City officials last night learned, if they didn't know it, that downtown redevelopment is a top campaign issue for the April 18 City Commission election.

On the eve of a Chicago trip to present a redevelopment proposal by A. Alfred Taubman, federal authorities, five of the seven candidates to unseat members of the present commission appeared to ask questions about the proposal.

Also, Charles J. Nasstrom, chairman of the Citizens Committee on Taxation, a group active against the defeated city income tax, denounced his committee as being reactivated.

Nasstrom, 38, E. Iroquois, said by A. Alfred Taubman, the effect of the downtown redevelopment proposal on the city's financial structure.

Despite the discussion, however, there was nothing new revealed about the Taubman plan.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. said details of the plan remain to be worked out. All that could be revealed has been revealed, he added.

"There's nothing hidden," said Taylor, "if I had all the answers, you would have them."

Among those asking the questions last night were candidates Kenneth H. Cumberworth, District 2; George Grba, District 4; William Hine, District 5; Mrs. Charles W. Neldret, District 6; and former Pontiac mayor Robert A. Landry, District 7.

County Committee Adopts 1967 Budget

A tentative Oakland County budget of $23.2 million for 1967 was adopted yesterday by the way and means committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

The budget will be presented to the full board for approval later this month and then referred to the county allocation board.

Big Three Hit on Auto Safety

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two senators demanded today that American auto makers be compelled to notify the public of safety defects in their cars.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., charged that the Big 3 of the auto industry failed to warn of such defects in the past.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., asked the auto companies to issue a complete list of car defect warnings they have issued to their dealers since 1960.

Mondale specifically singled out General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and the Chrysler Corp. for being remiss in notifying car owners that safety dangers had been found in their vehicles.

He said case histories involved 40,000 Lincoln Continentals for 1965; 750,000 Chevrolet Corvairs of the 1960-63 models; thousands of the 1961 Buick Roadmasters; 30,000 Fords for 1965; a large number of 1965 Chryslers, Plymouths, Dodges and about 500 of the 1965 Buick LeSabres.

DRAFTING AMENDMENTS

Ribicoff announced that he was drafting amendments to the administration's auto safety bill, including a requirement that the makers submit to the government all bulletins sent to dealers and owners involving defects.

The government would be authorized to issue warnings of its own.

At a hearing of the Senate Commerce Committee which has already admitted admissions of alterations of cars after they had gone on the market, Teamster President James R. Hoffa and the head of the American Automobile Union (AAU) joined in urging that the administration bill be toughened.

Hoffa and AAA President George F. Kachin Jr. said proposed federal safety standards should be made mandatory rather than left to the discretion of the secretary of commerce.

TAX RATE

A tax rate of 6.09 mills would be required to meet the local tax need in the preliminary budget.

This requirement would be even higher, 6.42 mills, when three carry-over deficit items are considered.

These include a $388,885 budget deficit as of Jan. 1 of this year, a $97,000 Royal Oak Drain deficiency and $435,937 to adjust an overestimate of tax delinquency revenue.

Last year at this time the tentative 1966 budget of $19,428,057 was based on a tax rate of 5.92 mills.

The allocation board, however, allowed only 5.30 mills to the county when it apportioned the 15-mill limitation between the county, school districts and townships.

DEATH BEGAN

Now the slow, tormenting death began, one of the cruellest forms of execution ever devised, crucifixion.

It had been originated by the Carthaginians and adopted by the Roman Empire for use on Roman criminals in subjugated lands, chiefly on runaway slaves and native revolutionists.

Jewish law prohibited such torture, but not the western conquerors.

THREE CROSSES

On the three crosses, Jesus of Nazareth, the "friend of sinners" and companion of the lowly, the rejected and the lost, hung between two of that same miserable lot, a pair of robbers.

Ancient tradition identifies the two brigands, as Dysmas and Gestas, tough, violent Jews, plunderers of trade caravans, despoilers of the rich, guerrilla fighters against oppression who had turned to wanton pillage.

It's No Secret: Pontiac Press Is Impressive

Area secret agents read the impressive Pontiac Press. It's very effective.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—In the climactic emergency of his career, Jesus was abandoned by his regular friends. His only record of support during the period of his arrest, trial, execution and until after His Resurrection came from astonishing sources—some leading Pharisees, some women, a soldier and a convicted felon. This, the third part of a five-part Easter series tells of the bandit who honored Christ while the reputable world killed Him.)

It was a stinking rock heap, littered with bones and crawling with vermin and reptiles.

At the top, Dysmas eased the spit log off his shoulder and let it tumble behind him, hoping it slammed against some cursed Roman legionnaire.

They stripped the clothes off him and the two other doomed men, then shoved the three flat on their backs and bound their outstretched arms to the timbers.

Dysmas stared up narrowly at the helmeted, shaven faces bending over him, and above of the skull "outside Jerusalem's walls, where Rome flaunted its mortal mastery over insubordinate Jews.

This was Golgotha, the "place of the skull" outside Jerusalem's walls, where Rome flaunted its mortal mastery over insubordinate Jews.

Several soldiers held him down as they drove spikes through his wrists to secure his arms in place. His body jerked with each blow of the mallet.

Then he lay quivering, vaguely hearing the howls from his outlaw cronies, Gestas, as they nailed him to the wood.

The third fellow didn't even whimper.

At the top of the uprights, the crossbeams dropped into the notch with an excruciating jolt to his suspended weight.

plotted, the infiltration of worshiped by ten thousand times ten thousand... forgive my sins."

And Jesus said, "Truly, I say to you, today you will be with Me in paradise."

The Roman centurion, in charge of the soldiers, put a sponge soaked in myrror wine on the end of a javelin and held it up to Jesus, a potion to deaden pain. It touched Jesus' lips, but He turned His face aside.

Dysmas watched, puzzled at his new reactions, but not confused, even though the confusion kept coming and going, but not now, and he, too, the forgiven, now could forgive and love.

It was the sixth hour, noon; the sky darkened and tremors shook the earth. The eclipse lasted until the ninth hour (3 p.m.).

Although crucifixion normally takes two or three days the legionnaires were under orders to conclude it before nightfall, because of the start of the Passover festival.

They broke the legs of the two thieves, so they could no longer lift their bodies, thus bringing on speedy asphyxia.

Jesus, weakened by the earlier flogging, already was dead. So His legs were not broken. But with a finishing stroke, a soldier ran a spear into His side, which drained water and blood, indicating He died of a ruptured heart.

(Tomorrow: Joseph of Arimathea)

Turning his head slightly Dysmas looked blurry at this final companion, a pitifully forlorn fellow, a terrible sadness in his eyes, but also a flaming tenderness, an incredible loving submissiveness.

But He was falling fast. His body having been previously torn and mutilated by flogging. A convulsion seized Dysmas and even as he fought through it, his mind stormed with anger.

"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

WORDS OF JESUS
The words of Jesus, the startling magnanimity, came bounding at Dysmas, breaking into his agony and anger, into the pounding ache in his head. He raised himself, paning, and sank again.

Again, voices reached him, this time the raging, begging, mocking fury of Gestas. "Are you not the Christ?" he yelled. "Save yourself and us."

The taunt went on, as old non-Biblical accounts have it. "Why callest Thou Thyself Son of God and canst not help Thyself? ... I behold Thee, not as a man, but as a wild beast caught and perishing along with me."

Dysmas, in that extremity, suddenly saw something more. The onrushing rings of pain whirling at him took on dark images, and straining, blinking, he turned his head and gasped, "I know Thee Christ ... Son of God. I see Thee, Christ, that the defect be corrected."

Mrs. Virginia Craig, 45, of 280 Cranbrook has decided to accept the post to which she was elected as write-in candidate when former Constable Homer Murphy chose not to seek the post because of a busy schedule.

"Of course I'm going to accept the job," she said. "I feel a definite responsibility to my community."

Mrs. Craig explained that she became a candidate at the request of her husband, Robert.

"My husband asked me on the day of the election, if I would like to run for constable," said Mrs. Craig. "My answer—why not?"

Mrs. Craig's duties will be confined to civil matters.

He added that the Supervisors Inter County Committee (SICC) representing six southeastern Michigan counties, including Oakland, has recommended a five-member group.

"This would include a representative of each political party, a township government representative, city government representative and the chairman of the county board of supervisors," Hamlin said.

Prior to the SICC proposal for makeup of the apportionment committee, the Oakland County Board of Supervisors had recommended a five-member committee of two Democrats, two Republicans and a fifth member selected by the first four.

Oakland County's present clerk, treasurer and prosecutor all are Democrats.

Under the recently passed House bill, maximum membership of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors would be 35. Presently it is 36.

AWAITS ACTION
The measure awaits Senate action.

Yesterday's high court voting followed party lines with four Democratic justices voting for equal population and the three Republicans voting against.

The court's other member, Democrat Justice Eugene Black, wrote an opinion but did not vote either on the apportionment issue or the right of townships to have a board of supervisors representative.

Usually, five votes are required for a majority but Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh said that four would constitute a majority in yesterday's decision because one justice did not vote.

Master of Many Subjects

Principal Is in a Class by Himself

By BILL EASTHAM
Asst. City Editor-Suburban
FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP

This country isn't exactly overpopulated with school principals. name band trombone players, choir directors, authorities on Lincoln, composers or arrangers.

Rare indeed is the individual who fits all these categories — and his name is Weldon Petz.

Petz, 43, of 5845 Middle Belt, West Bloomfield Township, is principal of Bond Elementary School at 15 Mile and Orchard Lake, a position he has held since 1963.

His career in education spans nearly 30 years, the first five years of which he was Weldon Petz, schoolteacher, by day and Tommy Weldon, orchestra leader, by night.

His choice between a career in music or education was made for him in the early 1950s, when television began to sound the death knell for the big band business.

KNEE PANTS
Son of a wholesale druggist, Petz' musical training began when he was still in knee pants on Detroit's east side.

In deference to his mother, who was a concert violinist and music teacher, he started on the violin. But like many small boys, he didn't like it and switched to the trombone when he was in the eighth grade.

It was a smart switch. Although he never became a recording star, he achieved enough ability to rub shoulders with the great and near-great in the jazz world of the early postwar years.

After graduation from MacKenzie High School in 1949, Petz entered Wayne University as an instrumental music education major.

FIRST BREAK
His first break in the professional music field came in 1943 when he went on the road with Clyde Lucas and the California Dons.

After a summer tour of the mid-South circuit which included many nationwide radio broadcasts, Petz returned to school and a job in the orchestra of the downtown Michigan Theater.

He continued to attend classes at Wayne and obtained his bachelor's degree in 1946.

While working with the Michigan pit orchestra, Petz often filled vacancies in the trombone sections of name bands which came to town frequently in those days.

POPULAR BAND
This is how he met Johnny Long, leader of one of the most popular dance bands of the late 40s and early 50s.

Petz joined the Long band in June of 1944 in Youngstown, Ohio. After a string of one-nighters, the band went on location for six months at the New Yorker Hotel in New York City.

For the next two years, Petz was in the big leagues, musically speaking.

Johnny Long's hit recordings of "Shanty Town" and "Blue Skies" were made while Petz was a member of the band.

BACKGROUND
The group also provided the background for numerous vocal stars, gave many broadcasts on the NBC radio network and spent a month on location at the famous Blue Room of the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans.

The band also teamed up with popular stage shows of the day and played most of the major theaters from coast to coast.

The band's contribution to the effort was made as a team with the Les Brown band under the Special Services Command, which sponsored appearances of the two groups at dozens of military installations.

When the country began to return to normal after the war, Petz decided to go back to Detroit to begin teaching and continue his education.

FORMED OWN BAND
Reluctant to leave the professional music field, however, he formed his own 17-piece band under the name of Tommy Weldon — a combination of his own first name and that of another trombone player named Dorsey.

WELDON PETZ

TOMMY WELDON

The band was an immediate success, and for the next five years Petz booked it in ballrooms, theaters and colleges throughout Michigan and Ohio.

Although the group was sometimes booked as much as five nights a week, Petz somehow found time to hold down a full-time teaching job and do graduate work at Wayne.

At least one accomplishment during that period Petz can point to with pride was the formation of the Skylarks, a vocal group which made the "big time" and can still be seen on nationwide television.

MASTER'S DEGREE
Combining his musical background with an interest in history, Petz obtained his master's degree in musicology in 1951. His thesis was titled, "Music and Abraham Lincoln."

In researching material for his thesis, Petz found a whole new field of interest. He has since become a widely recognized authority on Lincoln, collaborating with Carl Sandburg in some of his research.

By 1950 the popularity of big bands began to wane. Even the top name bands began to find it difficult to sustain regular bookings on the road, and it was obvious that less well-known, local bands like the Tommy Weldon Orchestra were doomed.

Petz kept the group together until 1952 but gave it up when television became more popular than dancing.

NOT ENTIRELY
He still hasn't quit music entirely, however.

In 1958 he became music director of Puritan Heights Lutheran Church in Detroit as a sideline. He still directs the 40-voice church choir, and his wife is the organist.

This is no ordinary church choir. "They swing," Petz says happily.

They "swing" so well, in fact, that he bearded the group up to 60 voices and put on five shows at the Masonic Auditorium over a 10-year period to raise money for the church.

Backed by a 16-piece orchestra, the group presented music with a historical theme which Petz wrote and/or arranged. The house was packed for all five shows.

When Petz' daughter was confirmed two years ago, he searched the choir library for a suitable confirmation anthem. He couldn't find one, so he wrote one. It was so well received it's being published.

A logical question to ask an "old pro" like Petz is, "What do you think of the popular music of today?"

"It has a good beat," he said, "but lacks musical form."

UP TO US
"It's up to us as parents and teachers to arouse the youngsters' interest in better music," he said.

Educators have placed much emphasis on science in recent years, Petz noted, with the result that school music programs sometimes suffer.

"I'm not altogether against this, of course. We need scientists and mathematicians as we've never needed them before. But even scientists can learn to appreciate good music," he said.

He is optimistic about current trends in education, which he said are placing more emphasis on the humanities.

ROCK 'N' ROLL FAN
Petz admits that his 16-year-old daughter is a typical rock 'n' roll fan. "But she's singing in my choir now, and she's beginning to realize what good music is."

He also has a 9-year-old son who is about ready for his first trombone lesson.

Petz spent 17½ years teaching at all levels in the Detroit school system before coming to the Farmington Township. He spent the past six years working toward an educational specialist degree in administration which he will receive next June.

Popular with teachers, students and parents alike, Petz is described by his boss, district Supt. Gerald V. Harrison, as a "very fine educator."

"It's unusual to find a principal with such a wide range of interests," Harrison said.

Avondale High Eyes Athletic Additions

Bleachers and a field house are among the improvements to Avondale High School athletic facilities planned by the Avondale High School athletic department.

To finance the improvements, the department is going to ask permission from the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission to sell revenue bonds to raise $36,000.

Acting Schools Supt. Charles Johnson stresses that the bonds will in no way affect taxes. He said they will be paid off with gate receipts from football games.

Plans are to build a field house just off the football field which will house locker rooms, concession stands, ticket booths and storage facilities.

Bleachers, seating 1,000 spectators would be built on the west side of the football field.

Other improvements include a wrestling mat for the high school, a new fence around the baseball diamond, and a control fence around the football field.

St. Paul's to Hold Pre-Easter Service

ROCHESTER — A Maundy Thursday Communion service will be held at St. Paul's Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

A three-hour Good Friday service will be held with seven local churches participating.

On Easter Sunday, a sunrise service will be held on 11th church lawn at 5:30 a.m., followed by an Easter breakfast served at 6:30 a.m. by the youth of the church.

Good Friday Services

TROY — The Troy Baptist Church will hold Good Friday services from 1 to 2 p.m. Friday. Rev. Marvin V. Turner will give the sermon.

Holly Schools Fight 'Failure Syndrome'

HOLLY — Many students attending the five schools in the Holly district will soon be taking part in a special educational program established last year for students from low-income families.

Known as Title I, the program was established by the federal government under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to encourage initiate its program aimed at eliminating the failure syndrome.

Harrower explained that each school district is allowed to establish an individual program designed to fit the needs of students in the district.

TUTOR-COUNSELORS
The local district has set up a program wherein four of the teachers from the local schools have been trained as tutor-counselors. They will be assigned in this capacity to work with groups of students.

The primary mission of these tutor-counselors will be to guarantee that the student comes to class prepared to start the day. Students from the 7th to 12th grades will be tutored during study hall hours and elementary students at the discretion of their classroom teachers.

After studying with the student, the tutor-counselor will refer the student to specialists for additional work in the weakest areas. The classroom teacher will also be consulted to see if there has been a change in the performance of the student.

The program is slated to begin during the spring semester. A summer program will be in operation for a six-week period, June 27-August 5.

During this time, 16 classroom teachers will instruct classes of 10 students each in the areas previously identified as weak.

The students will receive instruction in the morning but will be divided into four special groups in the afternoon. Each special group will have a unique mission.

There will be a sports group designed to enhance the physical ability of the student; a swimming group stressing safety and body development; an arts and crafts group to aid the student in expressing individual creativity and an experience group which will participate in field trips.

The underlying motive in the formation of these four groups is to encourage confidence in individual ability and to help the student develop social ease and make available to the district to a sense of expression.

Tests at State Game Farm

Pheasants Unaffected by Beetle Spray

Ringneck pheasants subjected to massive doses of malathion at the Mason Game Farm last year suffered no ill effects, according to a report released today by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

The experiments were conducted in an effort to determine effects of malathion on wildlife when used to control spread of the cereal leaf beetle.

Teams of biologists have studied the spray areas in Michigan from the first cereal leaf beetle spray in 1963.

They've watched closely for effects on wildlife and have discovered no unusual effects upon birds or animals on land treated.

The intensive experiments with pheasants at Mason confirmed earlier studies which gave malathion a clean slate with wildlife on the land.

NORMAL YOUNG
The massive overdoses used experimentally seemed to have absolutely no effect on the ringnecks, even when their food supply was intentionally raised normal young.

In fact, the report shows, some pheasants in untreated pens suffered heavier chick losses than those sprayed.

Penned pheasants and a month's supply of corn were sprayed with an overdose up to 40 times the normal spray rate for beetle control.

The research was conducted by the Michigan Department of Conservation in connection with the U.S. Department of Interior.

BIG POTENTIAL
The cereal leaf beetle, red-headed, one-quarter inch long and harmless looking, has the potential of ruining the major portion of the grain supply in America's "breadbasket" states.

First discovered in the United States in 1962 in Berrien County, it has been sprayed, quarantined, researched and for the time being slowed from spreading through the grain belt.

More than 600,000 acres in southwestern Michigan will be treated with malathion for beetle control this spring.

Private contractors using large aircraft will do the spraying, under a cooperative program of the Michigan Department of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Oakland County is not included in the program.

Board OKs Budget for Oakland Twp.

OAKLAND TOWNSHIP — A $60,418 operating budget which includes increased election expenses, has been adopted by the Township Board.

The new budget is about $15,000 more than the 1965-66 budget because of anticipated expenses for the August and November township elections.

Anticipated fire protection expenses have also been increased about $3,000 over last year's figure of $4,000.

Township Clerk Mrs. Lucy Alt said an increase in grass fires is contributing to the expense.

Kelley Orders Inquiry Into Police Invasion of Home

DETROIT (AP) — A state investigation is pending into the erroneous police detention of a Dearborn Heights family mistakenly suspected as bank robbers.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley ordered an inquiry Tuesday of the police invasion of a home in pursuit of robbers, who meanwhile escaped. Kelley said he sought to determine if the officers' action was reasonable.

"It was a comedy of errors, all right," Dearborn Heights Police Chief Ingvald Paulsen said. "But had we been on the right track we'd be heroes."

Remarked Mrs. Louise Wanamaker, one of the victims of mistaken identity, "we're all very angry. I've never heard of anything like this happening before."

LOAD OF GROCERIES

What happened was this: Mrs. Wanamaker, 30, and her father-in-law, Arlie Wanamaker, 59, drove out of a shopping center with a load of groceries yesterday at about the same time a branch of the Bank of Dearborn at the center was robbed of $2,000.

A bank employee mistook the Wanamaker car for the getaway car and gave its license number to police.

At Mrs. Wanamaker's home, she, her husband, Art, 31, on crutches or a cane with a broken leg, and her father-in-law were unpacking the groceries when police cars pulled up to the house.

The Wanamaker men went

Victims Of Police Comedy Of Errors

out and were met by officers came in the house without saying anything. They only identified themselves as police officers and FBI agents and one started questioning me. The others ran around the house like a bunch of maniacs.

ON CRUTCHES

Art Wanamaker said the officers wouldn't tell him what was going on.

"They just kept pointing rifles, shotguns and pistols at me, and telling me to stand still," he said. "Being on crutches, I wonder how far they thought I could get if I wanted to flee."

Then, his wife said, "they just told us of the holdup and said they had to come in this way because it just happened."

HOOR OF QUESTIONS

She said officers questioned her husband and his father for more than an hour.

Art Wanamaker said that during the search of his home other officers went to the nearby home of his aunt, Mrs. Leon Wanamaker.

The aunt said the officers asked permission to search her home and after she gave it "they were inside like a swarm of bees, moving furniture, even looking under beds. They said they had a right to do it because 'We are in hot pursuit.'"

Paul H. Stoddard, FBI agent-in-charge of Detroit, said his men "did not search any person or home." He said his men arrived after the local police had searched and only interviewed the persons involved.

"The real tragedy," said Chief Paulsen, "is that attention was focused on the wrong automobile and the bandit got away."

Stolen Painting Traced

RIETI, Italy (UPI) — Police have traced a stolen 12th century painting valued at $25,000 to a Swiss art collection. The painting, which depicts a "Madonna and Child," was stolen from a parish church at Cosio di Amatrice in 1964.

An acre is equivalent to 4,840 square yards.

Holy Cow, Three Twins

WHITE RIVER, S.D. (AP) — The odds of a beef cow having twin calves are one out of 227. But the figure went berserk on the Fred Ellis ranch near here.

Three Hereford cows gave birth to twins — all on the same day.

The six calves — five bulls and a heifer — are coming along fine, Ellis says.

One of the cows that had twins nearly died as a result of the early March blizzard that killed thousands of cattle in South Dakota.

PLUMBER'S A PEACH — Janet Peach, a blonde, blue-eyed 15-year-old, shoulders a wrench as she leaves for work as an apprentice plumber in Peterborough, England. Janet says she decided to follow in the footsteps of her father, who is also her boss.

Hairline Call Tangles Candidate

California's GOP gubernatorial candidate, RONALD REAGAN, could well amend the old ballpark chant "You can't tell a player without a scorecard" to "You can't tell a man by the looks of his locks."

Addressing a political rally recently, the campaigning actor pointed to a male student with a Beatle hair-do and asked "Young lady, what is your question?"

The ensuing laugh, probably exceeding any Reagan ever evoked in theatrical roles, brought his quick apology, and, we suspect, an inner resolve to bone up on male vs. female coiffure against future boners.

Moreover, the incident points up one more occupational hazard facing a politician. Long accustomed to answering questions "off the top of his head," he'll no longer dare asking questions off the top of his audience's head.

'50 Million Frenchmen Can't Be Wrong'

First there is DE GAULLE, and then there are the French.

Polls conducted by the "Institute Francais d'Opinion Publique" indicate the attitudes of Frenchmen toward America and Americans have not altered fundamentally by the examples of President DE GAULLE.

A recent sampling asked: "In case of war, do you believe that America would intervene to defend Europe?" DE GAULLE says "no," but 69 per cent of the Frenchmen interviewed said "yes." Only 8 per cent said "no." Twenty-three per cent "abstained."

To the question of what comes immediately to mind when the United States is mentioned, replies varied from "I think of their economic and industrial power" to "A very rich country, but also a very egotistical one."

Other comments of the Frenchman in the street: "A young and fresh people with a great future" — "Tremendously organized economic power" — "An exuberant race" — "Skyscrapers and the Statue of Liberty."

A Paris preacher was quoted: "We imitate Americans so much that if our subconscious really doesn't like them, we are the greatest race of hypocrites on earth."

Apparently, to paraphrase an old Gallic saying, the more DE GAULLE tries to change the French, the more they remain the same.

'Service to Others' Now U.S.'s Top Product

It may not be possible to base an economy on a system whereby everybody takes in everybody else's washing, but the United States seems to be moving toward something not too different from that.

According to a report from the National Bureau of Economic Research, more Americans are engaged in performing services for others than are employed in the actual production of tangible products. The figures at present are 55 per cent of the working force in service industries, 45 per cent in production industries.

While some argue that the labeling of certain occupations as service and others as production is often arbitrary and questionable and that there is much overlapping, the fact remains that because of modern technology fewer and fewer people are turning out more and more goods every year.

We are the first nation in history to reach this stage and it is a revolutionary achievement.

Baseball Contest Odds No Oddity

When you come to think of it, making yourself the winner of the Annual Press Baseball Contest and singly and individually eligible for the $500 U.S. Savings Bond award shouldn't be so taxing. After all, that's for the government.

Although the 10 American League clubs will muster 280 assorted athletes the day the baseball season opens on the contest's deadline, April 11, how many of them have a Chinaman's chance to lead the league in batting at the end of May 15?

Well, figure it out. There were just three players who finished the 1965 season hitting .300 or better. So, unless you believe in miracles like, maybe, flying saucers, the winner of our contest will likely be one of the three.

In one fell swoop, you've cut the odds from 280 to one to three to one. Holy To-tion — against which male wisdom is powerless.

After this briefing, there is nothing to deter you longer from putting pencil to entry form (or copy) and transmitting same to The Press. Be sure, though, you've read over the rules and aren't about to commit a faux pas. (We just stuck that in as literary ungrading of "boner.")

CONTEST RULES

1. Everyone is eligible to enter contest except Press employees and members of immediate families (newspaperboys are not excluded).

2. All members of families may submit entries, but are restricted to one each.

3. LEADING BATTER must be the AMERICAN LEAGUE player, officially at bat 50 or more times, who leads the league at conclusion of games played Sunday, May 15.

4. Please do not enclose entries in envelopes. Attach them to post cards or cards of similar size, address to newspaper's Baseball Contest and mail or deposit in The Pontiac Press Huron Street drop box. (A bonus bond of $50 will be awarded the winning entry that fully complies.)

5. Deadline for entries is Monday noon, April 11, and they must be on hand at The Press. Those arriving later, even though carrying prior postmark, will not be considered.

6. Entries will not be disqualified should players chosen change clubs after submission.

7. Should one or more tie for the award, it will be split accordingly.

8. Decisions of judges will be final on all questions relative to contest.

David Lawrence Says:

Profit Margins Not Unanimous

WASHINGTON — If a business sells $1,000 worth of goods, and after deducting expenses, comes up with a net profit of $40, this is called a 4 per cent profit margin.

Yet there are lots of companies which are not achieving this or a higher margin of profits.

If there is a drop from 4 to 3 per cent, this could mean a considerable difference in the earnings of the companies and in the return to the stockholders.

It is being widely asserted today that corporations have at last reached a point in profit margin on sales per dollar comparable to the 1950s.

But it has taken 10 years to get back to the levels of the 1950s, and some businesses have by no means accomplished it even now.

Presidential "guidelines" for wages in big industries are being criticized by various labor leaders as inadequate and as not very realistic in view of the supposedly large increase in profits of many companies.

But nobody in government has as yet come up with any "guidelines" for profits.

Again and again, businessmen read the statistics about how earnings have increased. But, when they look at their own financial statements, they realize that there has not been anything like the percentage of profit margins that is experienced by other businesses or industries.

The April issue of the Monthly Economic Letter of the First National City Bank declares that, for all nonfinancial corporations which report sales figures, the average profit margin increased in 1964 from 6.2 cents per sales dollar to 6.7 cents in 1965 — the highest figure since 1959.

But there are lots of businessmen who will view such a statement with envy because no such percentages of the sales dollar have been attained in their own case.

BY NO MEANS

Particularly iron and steel, petroleum production and refining, and chemical products have by no means attained their profit-margin levels of 10 years ago.

Labor economists merely take the generalized profit figures and say that, because the total profits of the country are increased numerically, this means that wage levels can be raised all along the line.

The time has come for some "guidelines" that will protect the investor.

Unless there can be assurances of a fair return, it may be difficult to raise capital

SYSTEM'S IN DANGER

As long as labor costs can be increased arbitrarily without regard to their impact on the rate of return to the investor, the whole free-enterprise system in the United States remains in danger.

Return to Alma Mater Eases Concern for Youth

By RUTH MONTGOMERY
WASHINGTON — Novelist Thomas Wolfe to the contrary, you can "go home again."

Having just done so, this writer believes that we are worrying unduly about the current generation of college students.

Because of Ruth Montgomery's headlines about student demonstrations, integration problems, dope addiction, and hopped-up LSD parties on various college campuses, I felt some qualms in accepting an invitation to address a convocation of students at the annual woman's day at my alma mater, Baylor University.

Fortunately I went anyway, and the warm glow of it is with me yet. For two days I lived on the college campus, strolled the familiar quadrangle, breakfasted, lunched and dined with co-eds.

Before each meal a member of the Laurel Society, the senior women's honor group, sweetly returned thanks while we reverently bowed our heads.

Integration came to Baylor two years ago. Although it is a Southern university deep in the heart of Texas, not so much as a ripple disturbed the campus calm.

REQUESTED PRIVILEGE

Each semester since then, a Baylor girl has requested the privilege of rooming with the only Negro coed who applied for admission.

Her first roommate was a white girl who was born and bred in race-conscious Alabama.

A number of Negro men students live and study with their white counterparts in the male dormitories.

Baylor has no bearded beatniks, no stringy-haired females, no dope addicts or rioters. The students dress like the ladies and gentlemen they are.

Every generation of youths must sound off about something, to demonstrate their independence of the preceding generation.

In the depression, some students joined Communist cells in protest against our economic system.

Having survived the flagpole sitters and panty raiders, do we fret too much about the beatniks?

We are prone to judge all youth by the few rabble-rousers who make the headlines; yet we resent foreigners who judge us as a people by the occasional strident tourist who makes unpleasant scenes abroad.

If Baylor students are even remotely typical of today's college campus, we have nothing to fear but fear itself. Our future is safe in such steady heads as theirs.

Raped Again

The Richmond News Letter

A few weeks from now, when "Law Day" rolls around, members of the bench and bar will arise to chant their ritual litany to one of the great American myths, that our system of government rests securely upon a foundation of "rule by law."

The proposition is simple bunk. It is as hollow as Paddy's leg as of late on Sunday morning. At the highest level of our jurisprudence, the Supreme court of the United States, are ruled not by law, but by the personal whims, caprices, and prejudices of the men who make up that tribunal. In the Virginia case, we were ruled by the distaste of six men named Douglas, Warren, Clark, Brennan, Fortas, and White for the payment of a poll tax as prerequisite for voting. So the poll tax goes.

This newest rape of the Constitution differed from previous assaults only in degree. This was a little more brazen. Until high noon yesterday, the constitutional question had been settled as positively as any constitutional question could be settled, by unanimous decision of the court in the Breedlove case in 1937. In Breedlove, the issue was presented squarely for the first time. Members of the court had before them in 1937 precisely the same 14th amendment. They could have ruled either way in 1937, that Georgia did have the power to impose a poll tax, or that Georgia did not. Then there was no question in the court's

Voice of the People:

'Proposed Insurance Bill Will Cause Rate Increase'

The pending bill to take from insurance companies the right to cancel policies of potentially poor risks will in time cost the majority of policyholders more money. The ones who urge passage of this law are mostly those whose policies have been canceled.

The law would make the canceling of a policy impossible until after the driver had gotten into serious trouble. The insurance companies would have to carry them at the same rates as the more careful drivers. All rates would have to be raised to pay for the added risks involved.

The sponsors of this legislation may face irate voters come election time. The great number who will have their insurance premiums raised to pay for the results of this law are more likely to remember than the relatively few who will benefit.

'Campaign Is for Freedom From Religion'

"Freedom of Religion" is the clarion call of a small group of Americans who don't believe in God. What they ought to be saying is "Freedom From Religion," for that has been the net effect of their campaign. In a Nation where the vast majority of citizens profess faith in God, the minority has managed to remove prayers and even Bible reading from the public schools.

Senator Everett Dirksen, of Illinois, has proposed a Constitutional Amendment to restore voluntary prayer to the classroom. He would give back to the people their right to pray—even if they happen to be in a public classroom. What is incredible is that it is necessary to amend the Constitution to allow children to worship God during the day.

That was yesterday's Constitution. Today the talisman, the magic word, is "equality!" And whenever a case can be dragged into the reach of "equal protection of the law," the court's egalitarian instincts will prevail. In the Virginia case, a constitutional amendment intended to obliterate distinction between white and black was twisted to obliterate distinction between rich and poor. And Mr. Justice Douglas scarcely gagged in describing the "affluent" as those with $1.50 and the poor as those without.

Given these particular six men on the high court, the decision was bound to come. We postpone to another day a consideration of what the decision may mean to the politics of Virginia. It suffices today to voice outrage and despair at what the decree does to the Constitution of the United States.

The new power hookup will mean greater efficiency and economy for the utilities, and each utility is expected to help any other in case of emergency.

Utilities spokesmen were quick to point out how the linked power systems of four states would be advantageous to the utilities.

The unstated message behind the formal announcement is that the new hookup is also a fail-safe device to lessen the chances of a power blackout similar to that which affected the nation's Northeast last November.

City Youth Gets Stabbing Sentence

A Pontiac youth was sentenced yesterday to 2½-10 years in the state prison at Jackson for a stabbing last December.

Convicted by a jury last month, Ronnie P. Kester, 18, of 89 Oakhill was sentenced by Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

Kester was found guilty by a jury March 17 of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder.

The victim of the Dec. 11 stabbing at the Italian-American Club was Arthur S. Swartz, 21, of 67 S. Princeton. He was stabbed in the chest.

The aerospace industry in the United States employed about 1,117,000 workers last year. Sale of approximately $20.6 billion were mainly for aircraft, missile and space vehicle products.

U.S. Agencies Agree to Work Closer on Protecting President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department and the Secret Service have agreed formally to stay in close touch "to insure the timely exchange of information" on possible dangers to the life of a president.

The agreement was signed last Dec. 14, about 15 months after publication of the Warren Commission report recommending such an action, among others, to prevent a recurrence of an assassination like that of President John F. Kennedy.

The pact came to light today when copies were bound into a batch of routine orders. The document still bore the stamp "For Official Use Only."

The Pentagon gave no explanation as to why the agreement had not been made public officially and said, "It still is for official eyes only."

INFORMATION PLAN
As spelled out in the document, the purpose of the De-found there was an information gap between the FBI and the Secret Service prior to the assassination of Kennedy. It criticized no other agency of government, but urged Secret Service agreements with each federal agency to insure receipt of vital information bearing on possible peril to the life of a president.

Other categories include:

— Individuals or groups who have made threats of bodily harm or have advocated assassination of the President or other officials.

— Military and civilian personnel of the Defense Department discharged with or because of an abnormal mental condition which "is deemed to constitute a threat to the safety of others."

— Defectors from the U.S. armed forces "and other military personnel, including de-triation or whose acts reflect an attitude of hostility which might be directed toward the President."

— Present and former military and civilian personnel "who are believed to have collaborated with the enemy or to have committed treasonable acts."

Persons who have been discharged from the armed forces or fired from civilian employment in the Defense Department on security or suitability grounds.

for JFK Death Site

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Park Board has voted to retain descriptions of other historical events on the marker to be placed on the spot where President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

The board, rejecting objections of a group which wanted the site to be a memorial only to the late president, said other historic events on the site were also important.

Expenditures for housing average about one-fifth of the total capital spending in the U.S. annually.

Sale of Pontiac-Owned Land in Avon OK'd

An offer to purchase 72 acres of city-owned land in Avon Township for $190,000 was accepted last night by the City Commission.

The offer, made by an Oak Park couple in behalf of the Star-Batt Development Co., was the highest of four bids received on the property located on Crooks.

Terms of the purchase on a five-year land contract included a $50,000 down payment and 6 per cent interest on the balance.

City Manager Joseph A. Warren said the city had no use for the vacant property, which was acquired by the city in 1929 as a possible site for a sewage treatment plant.

APPROVE APPLICATION

In other business last night, the commission approved an application to the State Highway Department setting down conditions for a pedestrian bridge on West Huron in front of Webster School.

Construction of the proposed overpass had been stalled while city officials negotiated with the state on conditions for erecting the pedestrian walkway.

Also last night, City Engineer

City Affairs

Joseph E. Neippling presented and had approved by the commission a contract for constructing a projected storm trunk sewer.

Forming a portion of the Hamilton drain project proposed by the Oakland County drain commissioner, the trunk sewer would service major apartment developments on the east side of Woodward, south of the future East Boulevard extension.

REIMBURSEMENT

The contract provides for the city to do the work now and be reimbursed later by the drainage district to be established.

Neippling, who could not give a cost estimate on the construction, said the storm drain work would enable the development of the Bloomfield Townhouse Apartments to proceed.

The apartment construction, located across from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, has been held up because of the storm water problems.

Neippling said the Hamilton drain, a county drain project, had been stalled due to problems on negotiation of the right-of-way involving Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

VIRTUALLY SOLVED

These right-of-way problems have virtually been solved, he added.

As a county drain project, costs of the Hamilton drain to city taxpayers probably won't appear on tax bills until December 1967, according to Neippling.

The drain, or the city's portion, runs on the east from Square Lake Road and the Grand Trunk tracks to the apartment property, then in a northerly direction across this parcel to the East Boulevard extension. It connects with existing storm drains there.

In still other business last night, the commission was informed by Warren that the application for intern housing for Pontiac General Hospital has been returned by the federal government.

Easter Egg Hunt Is Set for Saturday

The hunt is on—sunshine, rain, or snow.

The annual Easter Egg Hunt will be held Saturday at four locations in the city and one in Waterford Township.

Sponsored jointly by the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department and four civic organizations, the city's egg hunt for youngsters ten years old and under will be at 1:30 p.m.

The township's egg hunt, sponsored by the Waterford Township Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be held at 11 a.m. at the Waterford Township Athletic Field.

City Recreation Supervisor Dick Cain urged parents not to bring their children to the four selected parks before 1:20 on the day of the hunt.

HUNT SITES

Egg hunts will be conducted at Bonadette Park, sponsored by the Community Organizations of Pontiac; Oakland Park, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of North Pontiac; Jaycee Park, sponsored by the Pontiac Area Junior Chamber of Commerce; and Murphy Park, sponsored by the Pontiac Optimist Club.

The Waterford hunt is open to all children up to nine years old, according to Whitney Carnahan, president of the Waterford Jaycees.

Once again, the Jaycees will visit children's wards at local hospitals to distribute eggs and candy.

Program chairman is Dave Winburn.

Officials in Chicago, Will Resubmit Plan

City Manager Joseph A. Warren will meet his critics face-to-face today at the Chicago regional office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Warren and Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. head a contingent of Pontiac officials that will personally resubmit the city's 1966 Workable Program for Community Improvement for reconsideration.

HUD authorities returned the bulky document last week, asking for further information on two specific points.

Recertification of the program is necessary for communities where there are federally financed projects such as urban renewal.

Federal funds can be withheld until the program receives the annual federal approval.

JUST FORMED

HUD officials requested:

- Minutes of meetings of the city's citizens committee on minority group housing, which was just formed Feb. 24.
- The city hire a full-time person for the systematic code enforcement program.

On the latter question, city officials are to report they expect to employ a building inspector and assign him full-time to the systematic housing code program.

The city had been seeking an additional sanitarian in the health department to assign to this program, but has been unsuccessful in recruiting since Dec. 6, 1965.

City officials are generally optimistic that the workable program will be recertified with presentation of the additional information.

Waterford Girl Hurt in Crash

A two-car crash yesterday at Cass Lake and Elizabeth Lake roads in Waterford Township resulted in the hospitalization of a 19-year-old girl.

In fair condition in Pontiac General Hospital is Loretta Regan, 19, of 2051 Briggs, Waterford Township.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Linda L. Marvin, 22, of 42 Theda, Waterford Township.

The driver of the other car was Donald J. Biles, 21, of Route 2, Champaign, Ill.

The Navy had 1,969 ships in its fleet a year ago. In 1960 the fleet totaled 2,202 craft.

Word War Goes On Over Greek Ship Which Britain Fears Has Oil for Rhodesia

LONDON (AP) — An international war of words continued today over a Greek tanker which the British government fears may unload 18,000 tons of oil for Rhodesia in Portuguese Mozambique.

The tanker Joanna V anchored Tuesday off Beira, the Mozambique port which normally feeds oil to the rebellious British African colony by pipeline. Portugal's Lusitania news agency said the tanker was expected to dock today, but the South African Press Association reported that she was still anchored two miles from the tanker berth this morning.

The Joanna V is under charter to the South African firm of A. G. Morrison in Cape Town. Her skipper claims his cargo is destined for Djibouti, French Somaliland, and that he put in at Beira only to get supplies.

The British consul at Beira, John Taylor, reported to London that the Beira port captain "has stated categorically the Joanna V will stay anchored in the stream until she sails." But Ronald Rowlands, managing director of the British-Portuguese company that operates the pipeline to Rhodesia, said the company's board of directors would vote in Lisbon today whether to pump the Joanna V's cargo.

Rowlands said the four British directors are expected to vote against handling the oil but the five Portuguese on the board are expected to approve it. One of the British directors is Angus Ogilvy, husband of Queen Elizabeth II's first cousin Princess Alexandra.

After Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's white minority government declared independence from Britain in November to preserve white rule, the British government launched a campaign of economic restrictions to bring it to heel. The U.N. Security Council in December called on all U.N. members to stop supplying oil to the colony.

Portugal and South Africa declined to cooperate but, so far, have not openly defied the sanctions. The British government fears if the Joanna V's cargo gets to Rhodesia, the economic campaign against Smith's government will break down.

The British navy reported it is trailing another Greek tanker, the Manuela, which is believed to be carrying oil for Rhodesia. A British frigate intercepted the Joanna V off Beira Sunday, but the Greek captain insisted he had to go into the port for provisions.

Britain told Portugal Tuesday that a breakdown in the oil embargo might result in U.N. military action against the Rhodesian government.

A-Smasher Bid Is Withdrawn

Illinois Community Prefers Peace, Quiet

SOUTH BARRINGTON, Ill. (AP) — There are people in South Barrington, a wealthy community of 300, who would rather live in peace and quiet than with a $375-million atom smasher.

And apparently they will.

Not everyone is against the 200-million volt nuclear reactor — a political plum sought by more than 100 communities. But there are enough to make Gov. Otto Kerner withdraw the community from consideration by the Atomic Energy Commission for the research facility. They are afraid that construction of the nuclear accelerator would destroy the quiet atmosphere of the residential area.

'SELFISH REASONS'

"We moved out here for privacy and fresh air and that's about it," said Arthur J. Hogfelt, village president. "You might say they're purely selfish reasons, but what else is here?" Most of South Barrington's residents and those from the surrounding communities of Barrington and Barrington Hills are well-to-do.

Zoning regulations in the area prohibit anyone from putting a house on less than a five-acre tract. Unimproved lots range in value from $2,000 to $5,000 an acre.

Many of the leading citizens in the area are executives who commute 30 miles to Chicago.

SOMEWHERE ELSE

Typical of the reasons is that of Don McNeill, host of the daily radio program, the Breakfast Club, who said from his 45-acre estate:

"There must be a lot more desirable places than this for this particular project. As in the old story, I'm in sympathy with the movement, but let 'em go somewhere else."

Illinois political and business leaders hope "somewhere else" is Weston, another Chicago suburb.

Weston also has some 300 residents but few, if any, are as well-off as their counterparts in South Barrington. They want the atom smasher and the $60 million it is expected to pump into the economy annually.

AMONG 6 SITES

South Barrington and Weston are among six sites from which the AEC has said it will make its final selection.

Businessmen in the Barrington area began a move this week to have the AEC reconsider South Barrington as a site, but the attempt seems doomed to failure.

Roy Crumrine, a Barrington real estate agent, said Tuesday that owners of more than 5,600 acres in South Barrington have agreed in writing to sell their land to the AEC for the smasher.

Gene Graves, director of the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development, has said the AEC would need only 3,000 acres for construction of the facility although it likely would want another 2,000 acres for future development.

Graves conceded there is little hope, however.

Unexplained UFOs Due Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force told Congress yesterday it probably will name shortly a panel of scientists to investigate in depth some of a small percentage of flying saucer reports not already explained.

Secretary Harold Brown said, however, the military is not worried about security aspects of the 646 sightings not satisfactorily explained out of 10,417 such reports it has investigated since 1947.

He said there is no reason to think any of the unexplained sightings represent either extraterrestrial vehicles, security threats, or any development "beyond present-day scientific knowledge."

However, Brown said an advisory group set up last fall to study "Project Blue Book" — the continuing Air Force investigation of UFOs — has recommended further intensive study, by a nonprofit scientific organization, of some of the unexplained sightings.

FAVORABLE

"I believe I will probably act favorably on this recommendation," Brown said.

First indications were that the outside investigators might check into about 20 of the more baffling sightings.

AP Photo/Asa

SIGN OF THE TIMES — If any flying objects care to make a landing, here is their chance. This sign in Brewer, Maine, is probably the first official welcome to be given to the unidentified flying objects which have been reported over Maine in recent weeks. There have been no takers as yet.

These include reported UFOs man L. Mendel Rivers, D-S C., could be something to some of the saucer reports.

Robs Allen Park Bank

ALLEN PARK (AP) — A stocky bandit pulled a revolver from a blue folder and forced a Security Bank teller to hand over an estimated $2,000 Tuesday, the FBI said. Witnesses described the robber as about 40 years old, stocky, white and wearing a tan raincoat and tan shoes.

The hearing first was supposed to be closed but it was later opened to reporters. The flurry of UFO sightings in Michigan prompted the tentative committee inquiry. House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford, a Michigander, had asked for a full-dress congressional investigation. Ford said he thought there was

Griffin Raps Tactics on Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.) said Tuesday the Johnson administration has tried to weaken a "freedom of information" bill and he fully expects attempts to kill it.

The Senate-passed bill would require agencies of the federal government to open their records, with some specific exceptions, promptly upon request. If an agency refused a request, the matter could be taken into court.

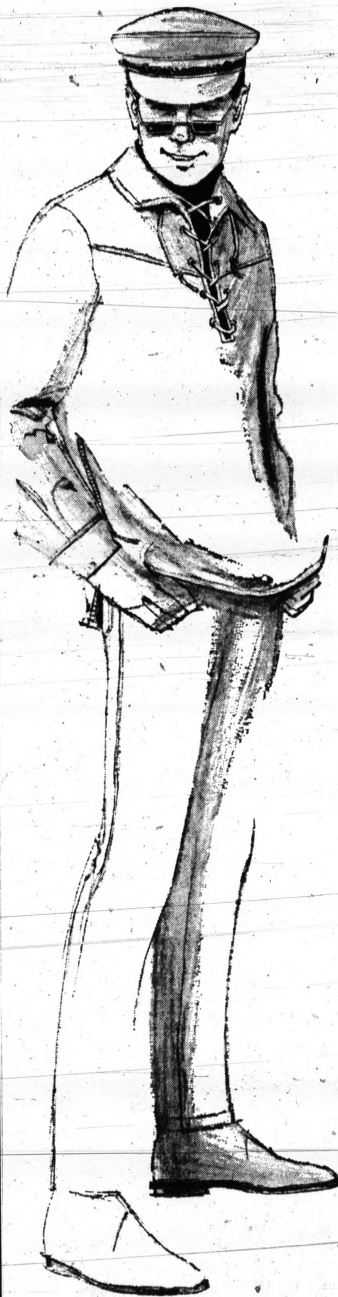

"If the Johnson administration makes any further moves to weaken or block the passage of a pending 'freedom of information' bill this year, the bipartisan supporters of this vital legislation should take the issue to the people," Griffin said.

Griffin is the senior Republican on a House Government Operations subcommittee which recently approved the bill and sent it to the full committee for consideration.

"This bill strikes at the very heart of bureaucratic secrecy and cover-up," Griffin said. "Yet, it does not open records that would endanger national security or foreign relations. There is no reason in the world why anyone who is truly interested in the public's right to know should oppose this legislation. Yet the Johnson administration has already tried to weaken this bill, and I fully expect future attempts to kill it."

U.S. Firepower Packs Mighty Wallop in Viet Nam

By JOHN T. WHEELER
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A thunderous explosion buffeted the American squad lying in ambush. Thick black smoke billowed over them. The blast was from a mine—one of theirs.

Fifty yards in front of the American position, five Viet Cong fell dead. Three others were so wounded they couldn't escape.

The lethal mine was a claymore, a Viet Nam war innovation now used by both sides. The Americans had it first. But the Viet Cong captured a few and have since obtained copies from both their own jungle army plants and Red China.

American combat troops are armed or supported with an awesome array of weapons—some new, some old.

OLDEST IS KNIFE

The oldest is the knife, which kills without sound and is handy for poking holes in the top of an occasional beer and which comes a GI's way.

At the other end of the spectrum is the B52, an eight-jet bomber built to carry nuclear weapons and missiles and seeing its first combat in Viet Nam with conventional bombs. Each B52 carries up to 37,000 pounds of explosives.

Recent estimates of the morale of North Vietnamese troops indicate they were prepared for arduous conditions in the South, but not for the tremendous firepower of the Americans.

That, together with malaria, short rations and swelling casualty lists have hampered Communist morale far more than American authorities were prepared to believe at first.

MILLIONS SPENT

The United States has spent hundreds of millions of dollars on developing the arms now in use here. Most worked out fairly well. Some are rated so-so, and some are little more than just so much more extra weight.

The claymore, a curved mine that can be aimed like a scatter gun, bursts out hundreds of steel pellets, each capable of killing a man. It blasts death to the rear as well, since it has no backing.

DISPOSABLE BAZOOKA

The .72 disposable bazooka has its fans, also on a weight consideration. Its rival is the more powerful 3.5-inch rocket launcher. But the 4.5-pound rocket from the .72 can whoosh up to 3,200 yards and has proven devastating against Communist bunkers.

A big factor in the awesome American firepower is artillery. Some of it is airborne in UH1 helicopters armed with mixers or machine guns, rockets and grenade launchers.

MORE AMMUNITION

A GI can carry about three times as many rounds of the "varmint" ammunition as he can of the conventional 7.62mm, roughly 30-caliber. Many Army units are getting rid of their M14s and Marines are moving toward adoption of their own 223-caliber weapon system which includes machine guns.

Long proved in the field is the M79 grenade launcher. It looks like a stubby, large gauge shotgun and fires a 40mm round that has a bursting radius of about five feet. Snipers make M79 men prime targets. The weapon is accurate up to about 300 yards, with a maximum range of 410.

The M60 machine gun, capable of spewing 550 rounds a minute with a maximum range of 3,200 yards, wins the nod over the old 30-caliber machine gun, mainly on a weight factor. The slugs are about the same, but the M60 only weighs 31 pounds.

SELF-PROPELLED GUNS

The 175mm and eight-inch self-propelled guns look something like prehistoric monsters in silhouette, pack a tremendous wallop and can move themselves to keep up with the troops—terrain permitting. They are seeing their first combat duty in Viet Nam.

The Air Force has had possibly more trouble than any other service coming to grips with the Viet Nam war. One fighter pilot said a year ago he spent so much time training for nuclear warfare that he had all but forgotten tactical air support tricks. They are excellent now, as the Navy and Marine air wings have been pretty much all along.

More than one American unit emerged from vicious fights with Viet Cong units, to praise the air support.

Most were the conventional mix of 750 pounds, 250s, 500s, 1,000s and a few 3,000 pounders.

The Pentagon has come up with two new devices for the war—the Lazy Dog and the CBU. The former is a container with 10,000 shell bomblets about the size of a 50-caliber slug. When the container is dropped from the plane, it opens and the bomblets, stabilized by razor-sharp fins, spread over an area about twice the size of a football field.

Flame throwers are too heavy and again there are too few targets worthy of them.

Tanks and armored personnel carriers have done well on dry land, but neither can survive in rice paddies or the deep jungle.

where Viet Cong strongholds.

Waterford Jaycees Claim 'Smut' Back on Newstands

Alleged obscene literature, reportedly wiped off Waterford Township newstands last year through a joint effort of the Waterford Township Junior Chamber of Commerce and police department, is reappearing before the public eye, according to Jaycees.

Jaycees have pointed out the recurrence of the problem to township board members.

The board has supported a further study of the matter by Jaycees, board members and police.

Residents, familiar with the former Jaycee project, had contacted members of the organization for action.

The previous project was regarded as highly successful because of the cooperation of store owners who agreed to keep smutty literature out of access of youths.

Safety's the Word for Diving Deputy

By DAVID J. COOK

Medward Tessier is 33, owns a waterfront home on Wolverine Lake, and spends hot summer weekends in the waters of every lake in the county but his own.

A deputy with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department since 1957, Tessier heads the sheriff's squad of divers, a group annually challenged with the task of keeping safe the county's 470-odd lakes.

Tessier, at 6 feet 2 and 185 pounds, is unofficially the "No. 1" diver in the department. Since inception of the department's safety division, he has personally supervised training of other deputies in diving techniques.

In addition, each summer he coordinates with Lt. Donald K. Kratt the 30 special deputies assigned to water patrol.

Tessier lives at 829 Laguna, Wolverine Lake, with his wife, Marilyn, and their three children, Deborah, 11; Dennis, 9; and Douglas, 4.

NEVER ENDS

The task of policing thousands of boaters, swimmers, and fishermen virtually never ends during the summer months.

When disaster strikes, Tessier's job can be a grim one. "I love diving," he said, "but when we're called out to go under, it's usually to get the body of a person who's drowned."

"On very rare occasions we get a call quickly enough so that with proper first aid we can save somebody's life."

"In most cases, however, if we're not on the scene and out of the water with the victim within four or five minutes, we don't have a chance."

BEST EQUIPMENT

This slender time factor has prompted Tessier and Kratt to seek the latest and best in rescue and diving equipment.

Into the department's $15,000 rescue van, donated by GMC Truck & Coach, goes a half dozen chrome-plated oxygen tanks, an experimental portable compressor imported from England, an outboard motor, a generator, and two high-powered spotlights.

Deputies used on diving missions have been trained in use of the equipment in an indoor pool and then exposed to special lake situations.

"With the lakes in this county, we've got to be ready for everything," Tessier said.

ALL TYPES

"We've got deep, cold, spring-fed lakes; shallow waters with four or five feet of silt on the bottom and virtually no visibility, and really big lakes where a body could just disappear."

"Our divers have to be prepared to work in any one of these situations."

Just as the functions of the safety division have been broadened from its original water patrol status, Tessier's work does not end when he climbs out of the water.

Lost children, crowd control, criminal tracking and exposure of the public to safety needs are also part of his schedule.

SPECIAL DOG

Giving Tessier assistance in all these areas is "Thor," a 125-pound German Shepherd specially trained in police work.

"We (Tessier and Thor) were at a meeting recently with about 20 Boy Scouts and 15 parents," Tessier said.

"First Thor went through his routine — keeping a suspect at bay, scent-tracking and then actually grabbing onto an arm (Tessier's) and holding a fugitive."

"When that was over I gave him the signal and he went and played with the kids."

PUBLIC CONTACT

It is through this type of contact with the public that Tessier believes law enforcement in general and safety consciousness in particular can be helped.

"We go out on a speaking engagement or demonstration," he said, "and people want to know what happens in a certain situation and who takes care of it."

"We don't beat around the bush with them. We just tell them who handles it — us — and how we do it."

"With the equipment we've got, the manpower, our training program with deputies in diving and other phases of water safety work, we're in a position to back up what we say."

VALUABLE MEMBER

Sheriff Frank W. Irons, who was a 10-year police veteran when Tessier was born, considers the deputy a valuable member of the department.

Medward Tessier: Man Of Many Lakes

"He's a good boy," Irons said. "The people of this county are lucky to have him."

Westacres: Subdivision That's Different

By HUDSON WILLSE

Westacres is a subdivision in West Bloomfield Township with a deceiving history.

It looks like a neighborhood developed for the above-average income family.

But Westacres is a child of poverty.

It was a Depression housing project.

It was low-cost housing built for the low-income factory worker 30 years ago.

These elements, plus 30 years, should equal slum. But Westacres was immunized from the beginning by large doses of an antislum vaccine — open space.

In this respect, it stands as a model of community planning.

Located along Commerce Road about midway between

Union Lake and Green Lake roads, Westacres is seemingly far removed and apart from its neighboring communities.

Nestled on the northeast shore of Middle Straits Lake, the subdivision is characterized by the community-mindedness of its residents, quiet streets and an amazing organization.

KEY FEATURE

However, the most noticeable feature is that all but a few of its homes are situated on one-acre parcels of land.

If planning had always been laid out with such foresight, the number of slum areas in this country would be cut drastically.

Westacres was set up in 1936 by Oakland Housing, Inc., an independent and nonprofit corporation formed by the State of Michigan.

When Oakland Housing constructed 150 low-cost homes at $4,439 each on the 874-acre tract of land in that depression year, its aims were:

- To provide well-built, low-cost housing for industrial workers earning $1,200 to $1,800 a year and subjected to seasonal unemployment.

- To provide a large enough lot for each house so that the owner could grow enough vegetables to supply his family.

- To encourage residents by financing their enterprises to supplement their earnings during periods of unemployment or after work.

- To encourage and assist residents to develop a satisfactory community life.

It was commonplace in the 1930s for the production worker to be laid off his job two or three months a year.

The original homes built in Westacres are all two-story dwellings of cinder block and frame construction.

In the early 1950s, 20 additional homes were built by Oakland Housing on one-half acre parcels.

However, the restrictions set up by Oakland Housing in 1936 are still in effect.

LOT PURCHASE

No one can purchase a lot and build a home in the subdivision.

Also, building along the subdivision's lake front area is forbidden.

The Westacres Community Association, consisting of recreation, civic, dance, clubhouse, beach and waterfront committees, maintains a budget for community improvements and activities.

Dues are $24 a year per family.

RENTAL FEES

In addition, revenue is obtained through rental fees from users of the subdivision's large clubhouse. The subdivision rents the building from Oakland Housing and, in turn, rents it out to groups.

Westacres must be one of a few subdivisions with its own volunteer fire department, credit union, weekly publication (The Westacres Weekly) and women's association.

And the fire department, boasting its own truck, is called into action occasionally, usually to fight grass fires.

The clubhouse is the center of numerous activities, including rummage sales, scouting events, dances, parties and even blood banks.

SUMMER EVENTS

During the summer, activity is centered on Middle Straits Lake. The highlight is an annual two-day aquacade and field day in June.

Swimming events and other contests are held for both youths and adults. Stands are erected for spectators to view the proceedings.

Two lifeguards are on duty at the beach three months each year.

In 1964, residents had the lake bottom and shore lines cleaned in a dredging operation that cost about $7,400.

SHARE COSTS

Oakland Housing paid two-thirds of the cost and residents the remaining one-third.

Beach facilities include a large raft, slide, beachhouse and parking lot.

Future plans call for construction of two tennis courts near the waterfront at a total estimated cost of $2,000.

The subdivision also includes a large play area for youth, featured by two baseball diamonds.

SOME RETURN

Indicative of Westacres' popularity as a place to live is that some residents who spent their childhoods in the subdivision have eventually returned there to reside.

A survey taken five years ago showed that 41 original owners (1936) and 32 other families, who have lived in Westacres 20 years or more, still resided in the subdivision in 1961.

WESTACRES CLUBHOUSE — Overlooking a lagoon, this clubhouse serves as the center of activity for residents of Westacres Subdivision in West Bloomfield Township. Dances, parties, scouting events, rummage sales and other activities are held in the large building, which the subdivision rents from Oakland Housing, Inc.

Space Age Mother, Lab Is Her Kitchen

By JEANNE NELSON
"What's a nice kid like you doin' in a place like this?" That's probably the most popular question asked of Mrs. Barbara Gordon while she goes about her work as a staff biologist and technical librarian at the Space Research Corporation in Birmingham.

Upon first meeting Barbara it would stretch the imagination of most to realize that under that facade of beauty and charm lies an astute mind geared to the wonders of science.

Tossing off terms like "accelerative load of 500 Gs with a two-pound payload" is second nature to this attractive mother of four. And she is just as much "at home" in the lab testing the respiration of a monkey as any homemaker in her own kitchen.

WELL VERSED
A University of Michigan graduate with a B.A. Degree in zoology and now just three weeks away from a Masters in Library Science, Mrs. Gordon was the first supervisor of the Children's Zoo at Belle Isle following her graduation. Since the tots could only visit the animals during the summer, she decided to take the zoo to the children in the winter months. This was accomplished with live animal talks and slides taken to area schools.

When we asked Mrs. Gordon what had prompted her interest in science she replied "Easy, an inspiring biology teacher in high school." What she failed to add was her own determination and ability to conquer a difficult program in the sciences.

LOVES ADVENTURE
In love with adventure for its own sake, she and her brood of four recently wheeled over 2,000 miles in a rented Camper soaking in the sights of Michigan, Georgian Bay and the Great Lakes.

She adds that on the next trip, son "Bing" will be able to relieve at the wheel. Just 16, her eldest son is presently attending his second year on a scholastic scholarship at Cranbrook.

Her two other sons, Andy 13, and Peter 9, attend Birmingham schools as does her young daughter, Katy, age six, who loves pretty clothes almost as much as her mother.

It wasn't until 1962, after 16 years of being a homemaker exclusively, that Mrs. Gordon undertook the work of a master's degree in library science. It has taken three years of 110 mile round trips daily, along with caring for her family and working part time as a biologist; but the end is only three weeks and ten or so pages of a thesis away from her goal.

Although free time is still at a premium, the League of Women Voters manages to attract a good deal of her time, along with a medical librarians' group and the Special Library Association.

SPACE RESEARCH
Under the heading of just fun Barbara admits to a love of parties, skiing and doing things with her family.

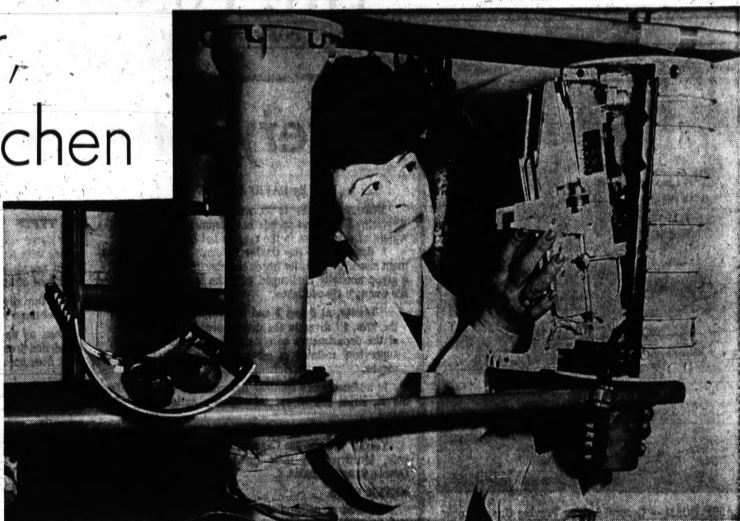

At present her work encompasses both lab duties and library cataloging. In connection with the experimental segment she is involved with preparing squirrel monkeys with a mild anesthesia preparatory to their flight in the Mark I Space Flight Acceleration Profile Simulator, and noting the physiological changes in the animal while in motion.

During the acceleration experiments, data painstakingly must be compiled and reported on special biomedical instruments for further reference.

In connection with her library work, she must catalog each paper submitted by the corporation along with thousands of periodicals, reports and pamphlets published by government agencies, such as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and all armed forces compiled data.

According to Mrs. Gordon, even the lowly potato is under close scrutiny. Now there is an experiment in progress to determine its "biological clock." Even at this writing "Spudgie" sits encased in a special potato space cabin in the lab awaiting its fate.

Mrs. Barbara Gordon of Birmingham illustrates how the electrically programmed holder (which usually contains a monkey) is placed inside the Mark I Space Flight Acceleration Profile Simulator (SFAPS) machine. Changes in the cardiac activity, brain wave currents, temperature and respiration of the animal caused by the acceleration experiment, are observed and reported.

Working hours at the Space Defense Corporation in Birmingham are not all spent in the lab by Mrs. Gordon. Recently she has taken on the task of technical librarian as well as staff biologist. Here she relaxes for a moment with one of her coworkers while more experiments are conducted by others.

Wife Right to Speak Out on Illness

By The Emily Post Institute
Question: Last evening some friends of ours dropped in unexpectedly to pay us a visit. I had a terrible cold and was not fit to entertain guests.

I had planned to "doctor" my cold and go to bed early. I explained this to our friends when they arrived. They said they were sorry and left.

My husband thinks I was wrong to have said anything to them. Will you please tell me if I was wrong?

Answer: You were very definitely not wrong in telling your visitors about your cold. In fact, it would have been inconsiderate not to mention it and risk their catching it.

However, I don't think you should have added that you wanted to go to bed as this was tantamount to asking them to leave. I am sure they would have had the perception to do so without your suggesting it.

Details concerning the announcing and christening of a baby are described in the Emily Post Institute booklet entitled, "The New Baby."

Niblicks Back Again
Plans for a breakfast on May 3 were discussed by members of the Niblick Golf Club at Tuesday's meeting in the Elks Temple.

Mrs. Ernest Mallory announced that the official golfing season of the club will begin at 10 a.m. May 10.

Getting Down to Basics Today

CHAPTER 15

Before beginning a run-down on makeup and its application, let me add a word of caution. Although cosmetics are made with pure ingredients and are pre-tested, test them before applying, especially if your skin is sensitive or if you have any allergies.

If, after testing a product on the inside of your wrist or behind your ear, you find the least bit of irritation (in the form of redness, rash or blotching), switch immediately to a special hypoallergenic product.

- How to select cosmetics:
 1. Cosmetics must agree with your skin.
 2. The color must harmonize with your skin.
 3. The price should be in line with your budget and the quality unquestionable. (Many reasonably priced products have much the same ingredients as the higher-priced ones — the difference is perhaps in the packaging.)

There you are, standing in front of the mirror. In your hand is that gorgeous new foundation you just bought, and you're just dying to try it out. But wait — first you have to cleanse your face thoroughly to be sure every bit of grit and grime is removed. Makeup never, never goes on anything but a scrupulously clean face!

To keep your hair out of the way while making up, you can use a hair band, shower cap or an Ace bandage.

Sit yourself down in front of a good three-way mirror in natural daylight or in really good light.

Protect your clothes with a scarf, plastic makeup cape, or towel fastened at the back with clips.

Now you color a pretty self-portrait. First you prepare the canvass (your face) with a make-up base.

Then you add subtle color — to the cheeks, to the eye area, to the mouth — to bring out each feature.

Next you add a fixative in the form of powder. And every step of the way, you have to work with the skill and precision of an artist to produce that final work of art.

- Base makeup (liquid or cream):
 1. Shake bottle (if liquid).
 2. Dab base sparingly on nose, cheeks, forehead.
 3. Blend in evenly with fingertips.
 4. Don't forget to blend base to hair and chins — you don't want any obvious color changes.
 5. Blot with tissue to remove any excess.

Not too many girls use cake makeup bases these days. Liquids are much more natural-looking and less drying. If you're a cake fancier, however, here's how to apply it without acquiring a heavy, mask-like effect.

1. Wring out a flat sponge in cool water.
2. Dab it on the cake base.
3. Stroke sponge lightly over your face, using even, upward strokes.
4. Blot off any excess with a tissue.
5. Don't use powder — it isn't necessary.

Choose a base that harmonizes with your actual skin tone; otherwise the effect will be artificial.

- Dark or deeply tanned skin: Choose a shade in dark rachel to tan range.
- Sallow skin: Choose a slightly pinky base.
- Too-pink skin: Choose a

You've Got the "Big Picture" It's Costly Repair Job

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My TV set went on the blink so I called my neighbor's brother-in-law because he was in the TV repair business.

He came over and looked at the set. I told him I didn't want him to fix anything until I knew how much the job would cost. He said the "cost" would depend on how nice I was to him. I thought he was kidding. Well, I let him take the set to his shop and after a week I didn't hear from him so I called him and asked him when he was bringing my set back. He replied, "When you tell me your husband isn't home."

I told him I paid my bills in cash and that he had better get that set back in a hurry. That was three days ago, and I still don't have my set. What should I do?

NO SET
DEAR NO: Call the Better Business Bureau and report the bum. His mind is running in channels for which respectable women have no use.

DEAR ABBY: When I met my wife, 18 years ago, I had a mustache. I kept it for five years after that, then I shaved it off. Every year for the past 13 years, once a year we have a celebration in town called CHARRRO DAYS.

Every man is compelled to wear either a full beard, a goat-tee or a mustache. Each year I go thru the same thing. My wife refuses to kiss me, love me, or have anything to do with me while I have this mustache.

Mrs. Hines Shows Egg Decorations
Sugar Egg molds were made and decorated by Mrs. Robert Hines at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Opt-Mrs. Club of Pontiac.

Mrs. G. L. Herrington of Waterford Hill Trail opened her home for the event.

Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Buhl Brant and Mrs. Charles Crane.

The Pontiac Boys' Club on East Pike will be the scene of the May meeting.

It takes a good two weeks to get it going, and I wear it for a month.

This is a long time to go without a kiss. What should I do?

THE MUSTACHE KID
DEAR KID: Where's your imagination? Get a false mustache at a costume house. It can be glued on and ripped off easily.

That way you can participate in the CHARRRO DAYS without missing anything at night.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JANITOR'S DAUGHTER: Hold your head high, honey. Your daddy is making an honest living. Tell them, "The work may be dirty but the money's clean!"

Defeated Efforts Deserve Praise Also

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I have always been an overly sensitive person. My mother died when I was five and I grew up in an aunt's family where I was always made to feel I wasn't wanted. I know that it was this cruel childhood of mine that makes me so sensitive I can't open my mouth again at a party if someone has snubbed me. My 7-year-old girl is developing the same sensitiveness and as I don't want her to suffer as I have...

ANSWER: Do you know why self-pity is so cruelly unjust to us? Because it only tells us half the story of our hurt past. Take yours. It's constantly hounding you with bitter memories of the meanness inflicted on your childhood by your aunt and cousins. But never does it restore recollections of your struggles to gain their good will—those hopeful and persevering efforts you made as the unprotected, lonely little girl you were. That is the evil of self-pity.

for you. Because your relatives SUCCEEDED in hurting you, their success is all you can think about and the defeated efforts of that brave and lonely little girl have gone down the drain of your memory as useless stuff.

That's the moral deficiency in self-pity, its absolute contempt for unsuccessful human struggle.

It's poet T. S. Eliot who writes, "For us is only the trying; the rest is not our business." Myself, I think we never recover from self-pity until respect for human trying is given top priority in our moral values. So my counsel is that you begin to counter every memory of a successful cruelty done to your lonely childhood with a memory of your defeated effort to change it into kindness. I beg you to start telling the whole story to yourself and begin to balance the record of your relatives' successful meanness with what you did about them. Yes, the problem is much too much respect for the successors and none at all for those of us who fail.

Says Teen-Agers Need Education in Family Living

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Dr. John Beeson, director of the Cleveland Health Museum, calls for sex education in the schools. He sees such education as the best chance to cure the rising tide of venereal disease, especially in the young.

Beeson told of a 1962 national study of 1,000 men which showed the average of their first case of venereal disease was 16. "Dozens of surveys have shown American young people are tragically ignorant of most matters concerned with human reproduction," the doctor said. "We need school programs in sex education and education for family living."

It will allow us only to remember other's success in hurting us. Always, it must erase all recollection of our efforts to change their ill will into something better. And so self-pity gains its purpose of making us seem terribly pathetic, worthless people to ourselves.

Our real problem is success worship. Because your little-girl efforts to make yourself wanted FAILED, those efforts don't ex-

OU Chamber Group to Present Program

Oakland University's award-winning Meadow Brook Chamber Orchestra will present one of its most ambitious programs of the season, at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, in the Gold Room of the Oakland Center Building.

Soloists under Albert Tipton's direction will include Mary Norris, piano; Arno Mariotti, oboe; Alfred Belknap, trumpet; and Italo Babini, cello.

PROGRAM
First Detroit performances include Barber's "Capricorn" Concerto for Flute, Oboe, Trumpet and Strings; Boccherini's Concerto for Cello and Strings; and Albinoni's Concerto for Oboe and Strings. Shostakovich's Concerto for Piano, Trumpet and Strings is also programmed.

On April 17, at 3:30 p.m. the University will present "An Afternoon of Baroque Opera" staged and directed by Dr. David Di Chiara.

With subtle humor, Di Chiara traces the development of opera from its beginnings in Italy through its European development to the end of the Baroque period.

Performing will be sopranos Doralene McNelly Davis and Roma Riddell; Edward Kingins, tenor; Russell Smith, baritone; and Lawrence LaGore, pianist.

TICKETS
Single tickets for both performances are available through the Meadow Brook Festival office at the university.

Fri. and Sat., 9 to 5Now, Help for Middle-Income Families*By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

The most uncomfortable place you can be sometimes is right in the middle. I'm talking now about the middle-income family—the family in the financial middle with a little too much money to expect or ask for anything for free, but not quite enough money to pay FEELEY for what it may need any day.

in any week is help around the house in a family emergency. Let's say, for instance, that the mother is rushed to the hospital with nobody to look after the children. Where can she get help? Professional practical nurses may either be too scarce in her community, or too costly—or even unnecessary in their specific role.

Welfare agencies are already burdened with the non-paying needy. And maybe there's not a single able-bodied family relative within 500 miles to come to the rescue of this middle-income family.

Then there's the emergency when the father of the family is ill and the mother finds it necessary to take on a temporary job outside the home in order to meet the bills.

Who is to help around the house, look after the small children, do the grocery shopping? These are real emergencies that can and do happen in average households all around the country. So today I want to tell you about a service for middle-income families that's building up. Call it "homemaker service."

It isn't any one organization—rather it's a lot of agencies, privately operated, who offer help for middle income families similar to that which has always been offered to needy families by local welfare agencies. There are now some 500 agencies, both private and public—this time last year there were only about 300—which are offering "homemaker services" in all 50 states.

If you've got the money to pay for help when you need it, you don't ask for help for free. But until these homemaker service agencies came into existence the family with just barely enough money got squeezed.

They weren't welfare cases, and didn't want to be—but they didn't have the money for high-priced help. But now that the need exists for moderate scale pay for homemaker service, the solution is shaping up.

With so many families uprooted by job changes and moving from one part of the country to the other, they can find themselves strangers in a community when household problems arise.

This is when a homemaker service can step in, and for a moderate price, take over the distraught family and put it back on an even keel.

ALTERNATE ARRANGEMENTS

Now, what does it cost? A number of people closely concerned with this type of family help tell me that there is considerable variation in fees in different sections of the country.

For example most agencies have the sliding scale which allows the client to pay the agency almost nothing up to $2 an hour, depending on income and the ability to pay.

The assumption is that a reliable homemaker will be there when needed during the day, and then turn things over to the father or mother when he or she comes home in the evening.

Of course, in special cases, the homemaker may "live in" for a specified period at a specified rate of pay. You discuss this with the agency, who supervises the homemaker.

Where do you find this homemaker service when you need it? Look in your phone directory under Social Service and Welfare Organizations. Some of these will be public and some will be private agencies.

Doctors Suggest Cervical Cancer Tests Regularly

MIAMI, Fla. — Since the sooner cervical cancer is detected the greater the chance it can be treated successfully, three University of Miami School of Medicine physicians recommend that "Pap" smears be made part of the regular check-up of women in their twenties, as well as in older women.

Dr. Dennis Cavanagh and associates reported in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association that almost 30 per cent of young women in their twenties whose Pap smears indicated abnormality proved to have cancer of the cervix. The doctors wrote that the truer incidence was probably closer to 40 per cent since many women with suspicious smears failed to return for additional checking.

Every year about 14,000 women die of this form of cancer. Yet such deaths could be reduced drastically, according to the American Cancer Society, by widespread use of the Pap test for early detection.

May Be Some Wrinkles With No-Press Process

There may be a wrinkle in permanent press or durable press after all.

The process — there are at least five techniques of eliminating wrinkles and introducing a permanent crease in garments — that started as a ripple in the ready-to-wear field in 1964 is now a gigantic wave.

However, the consumer must rely completely upon the integrity of the manufacturer and of the retailer, according to Larry Phillips, head of Phillips-Van Heusen. His point: "You can't tell how well a processed shirt, slacks or dress will wear simply by looking at it."

Called the greatest step forward in clothing since synthetic fibers were introduced during World War II, the chemical and heating process for fabrics is an economic shot in the textile industry's arm. Its successful application in slacks, for example, also proves a delight to busy mothers who see the end of ironing just a few permanent press purchases away.

STILL PROBLEMS

Hopefully everyone will benefit. But there are still problems the industry is working to eliminate. Many have been worked out since the Koratron process put permanent-durable press on the market extensively last year. And worked out they must be, for in 1966:

• At least 80 per cent of all men's casual trousers will be permanently pressed and creased.

• The process will be introduced in men's dress shirts, sports shirts and rainwear.

• Nearly 80 per cent of all women's casual slacks will be treated.

• The process is being used in women's skirts, pants, shorts and jackets, Bermuda shorts, blouses and evening dresses and bras.

• The 60 per cent sales of all boys' slacks in permanent press is expected to grow and spill over into other children's wear.

• Curtain, drapery, bedspread and linens manufacturers are tiptoeing in to permanent press.

It extremely high standards and quality control are not maintained by manufacturers, then millions will be lost to the consumer who gets an inferior product that does not wear as long as a non-processed garment.

The use of resins, hot-head pressing and over-curing to make clothes permanently wrinkle-resistant and creased can damage the fibers, makers admit. Some mothers of rugged chaps found the slacks splitting at the knee and crotch, for example, after short wear.

The fear that some manufacturers will rush a batch of clothes through to get their share of business can lead to inferior permanent press clothes. Such a move could kill the golden goose and the industry is moving to prevent this to protect investment in expensive equipment.

Say 'Chocolate'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A photographer, weary of the set grin when clients say "cheese" in front of the camera, now asks them to say "chocolate."

The Chocolate Manufacturers Association of the United States of America, which says so, offers this explanation: "It seems that mouthing the word that represents America's favorite flavor results in happier, more relaxed smiles."

After 47 Years, It's Steady Job

WALTERS, Okla. (AP)—It took Mrs. Effie Boyer a long time to gain recognition as a regular official in the Methodist Church here. She took the office of secretary of the Sunday school on a temporary basis until a permanent selection could be made. She was recently honored by the church for her 47 years of service in that capacity, and the position was given to her for good.

Couple Will Live in Denver

A dinner-reception in Ted's Restaurant, Bloomfield Hills, followed the marriage of Linda Suzanne Clancy to Michael R. Carier, Saturday, in St. Benedict's Catholic Church.

Their parents are the James P. Clancys of Ruth Avenue and the John E. Cariers of South Genesee Avenue.

With her two-piece white knit suit styled with lace collar and cuffs, the bride wore a white pillbox with short veil.

Her all-white shoulder corsage for the rite performed by Rev. Richard Thomas included miniature roses and carnations.

Did You Ever Think of Getting Your Easter Bonnet From A&P?

We don't sell Easter bonnets but... we suspect many an Easter hat has been paid for with money saved by shopping A&P.

Are we implying that A&P has the lowest prices on all items all the time?

No!

There is no store that can make that claim.

What we are saying is:
if you're interested in your total food bill, if you're looking for the best values for your food dollar,
A&P is the store for you.

It's a little late for this year's Easter bonnet, but start shopping A&P this week, anyway.

It won't be long before somebody in the house will need a new pair of shoes.

Is this a good reason for shopping A&P?

'Poor Little Rich Girl' Is Far From Blue Nowadays

NEW YORK (AP) — Ringed in white leather, very stylish. After all, she is on the world's best-dressed list. Here is the studio where she paints, yellow with sunshine; red with whimsical canvases; vivid with plump needlepoint pillows; charming with old dolls slumped spiritlessly over the blue now, though. Paint her very stylish. The engine red Courreges suit fireplace mantel and small lately enchanted with my work. And when he criticizes, it does not hurt my feelings. Not in her dress — which is always vividly colorful — and not in personality — which is as bubbly as champagne. — There are any sign that this Gloria Vanderbilt was once the sad little child in the middle of a custody dispute between an aunt and her mother. The aunt won. However, her oils painted in her early 20s are gloomy, Gloria says, not cheerful and fanciful as they are today.

MARITAL PHASE

There also have been marital phases in her life. At 17, she wed theatrical agent Pat di Cicco. Gloria then married white-haired symphony conductor Leopold Stokowski. From this 10-year May-December union are two sons, Chris, now 14, and Stan, now 15. The Stokowskis were divorced in 1955. There was a brief marriage to stage and screen director Sidney Lumet. Then Wyatt. Last year, the couple had son Carter.

The door bell signals twice again. Gloria admits the photographer, tugs her suit jacket smooth over her trim figure, wets her lips and smiles, dimpling her cheeks. Her brown, slightly eased hair falls softly around a perfect oval face with puckish mouth and brown eyes dancing with enthusiasm for art, love, children, life. Paint her happy.

Must Play New Role

Glory of French Foreign Legion Fades

PARIS (UPI) — The days of glory are gone, the desert forts are no more, but the French Foreign Legion lingers on — a glorious but dying anachronism.

The days when the legionnaires bore the brunt of France's foreign wars are over. In the new France of Gen. Charles de Gaulle there are no foreign wars to fight, and precious few foreign possessions to defend.

The famed garrison town of Sidi-Bel-Abbes in Algeria, home of the Legion from 1884 until July 3, 1962 — the day of Algerian independence — has been handed back to the Algerian army.

Now the legionnaires are headquartered at Aubagne, just outside Marseille in southern France, the first time they have ever been based on the mainland itself. But the legionnaires themselves are spread across three continents.

At Mers-el-Kebir, the naval base France has on lease from Algeria until next year, are the 2nd Parachute and 1st Cavalry armored regiments.

DESERT GUARDS

The 2nd Infantry Regiment has been guarding the French rocket testing site in the Sahara, now phasing out.

Infantry companies are stationed at Djibouti, in French Somaliland — the last outpost of French colonialism on the continent — and in Madagascar.

In the Pacific, Legion engineers are building the site for France's first H-bomb test in the Society Islands next year.

And in Corsica, the training base, formerly at Sidi-Bel-Abbes, is turning out new legionnaires from the hundreds of foreigners who apply each year.

LOSE IDENTITY

Recently more and more Frenchmen — often posing as Belgians or Swiss — have applied to join the Legion. It's "no questions asked" policy of recruitment is a lure for those who, for one reason or another, want to lose their identity.

But the number of recruits each year is small. From a peak enrollment of 35,000 at the time of the Indochina war, the Legion is down now to 9,000 men. Its numbers are unlikely to increase.

The emphasis now is on turning the Legion away from the jungle battles and desert skirmishes of the past and making it over in a new image.

There has been some speculation that de Gaulle would like to use the Legion as the hard core of some future "fire brigade" of the French army, always on call to put out brush-fire wars.

FUTURE ROLE

Many Legion officers speculate on its use as the nucleus of a European army in a politically united continent. But Paris has yet to spell out the role it envisages for the "new" Legion.

Meanwhile, the old legends are being speedily dispelled. Gone are the tough punishments, the brutal sergeants, the penal companies. Now the legionnaires are reminded of their rights: living quarters are comfortable and families are encouraged to visit their legionnaire sons.

But the training remains tough. In one exercise, legionnaires lie in the path of an oncoming tank with their arms extended in front of them.

MIXED GROUP

The Legion's manpower remains as mixed as ever, with Germans making up the hard core. Perhaps 40 per cent of the legionnaires are German, including many of the NCO's.

But the average age of the Germans in the Legion is 25, thus arousing doubt to tales that many former Nazi war criminals have found refuge there.

Few Britons and Americans now join. To someone brought up on "Beau Geste" the tough training of today is hard to stomach.

But most of the Americans now in the Legion joined out of a spirit of romanticism rather than to get away from something or somebody — or say they have.

FORMER SOLDIERS

Several former mercenaries from the Congo fighting are now legionnaires. So are former members of the OAS, the secret army organization which fought, and lost, to keep Algeria French.

Algeria remains a sore spot for the Legion, for a variety of reasons.

Not only was it the home of the force for 80 years, but it was the scene of one of the most glorious episodes in Legion history — the revolt by the First Parachute Regiment in support of the rebel French generals in April, 1961.

The end of French rule in Algeria still ranks in the minds of some officers and there is much talk in the officers club of Mao Tse-tung's theories on guerrilla warfare — which formed the basis of Legion operations against Algerian guerrillas.

But the officers talk of Europe, too.

In the new military scheme of things, the legionnaires, almost all of whom are European may find themselves fighting for the very countries they gave up when they signed on for France.

Detroit Trial Is Set in Housing Loan Case

DETROIT (AP)—U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Thornton Tuesday set April 19 for the trial of Ben Levitson, financier, and four other Detroit area men on charges of fraud in obtaining Veterans Administration and Federal Housing Administration home mortgages. The five were accused as officers and employees of a number of firms through which the government alleges a fraud was perpetrated.

Brazilian Chief a Traveler, Busy Promoting 'Miracle'

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — President Humberto Castello Branco has announced a Brazilian economic miracle of sorts. He's blitzing across his sprawling nation to prove it to skeptics.

Commuting by presidential plane to new ports, plants and power dams, Castello Branco is calling attention to the investments of his two-year-old, coup-born government.

"Today, with two years gone by, we are convinced that, considering the truly chaotic situation into which Brazil had fallen, it would be impossible to do more than what has been done — which constitutes practically a miracle," he said last week.

He set the keynote for a round of opening ceremonies in a speech at a 500,000-ton government steel mill near Sao Paulo.

ANOTHER PLANE

The 65-year-old retired army marshal signed a $46-million loan with the Inter-American Development Bank the next day, then took a plane for another opening ceremony.

Shortly after noon, he was blinking as a hot wind stirred iron ore dust from the first railroad carload dumped onto a conveyor belt at a new $25-million automated ore port.

Two days later, Castello Branco, who steps down in March next year, flew deep into the Brazilian interior to watch ground being broken for a huge hydroelectric dam.

By the time the celebrations commemorating the 1964 overthrow of President Joao Goulart are over, the president will have spent more than 18 hours in the air.

FORGET SQUEEZE

All this presidential activity is designed to take people's minds off the squeeze of a continuing antinflationary policy and focus attention on new economic development projects.

Many of the new development projects were begun under Goulart or before and completed under Castello Branco.

For example, the opening date for the ore port of Tubarao, near Vitoria, was set three years ago. Castello Branco has tried to make contact with the working men who may not understand the economic causes for a rising cost of living which outstrips salary increases.

IS CRITICIZED

The austere military administration has been criticized, even by some of its top officials, for aloofness and lack of communication with the 80 million Brazilians it governs.

The president, who answers applause with a salute, has not had much success in efforts to make contact with the small crowds at the anniversary events.

All were honored that he had come to their town or plant, but few understood his words.

Most were evasive when asked their opinions of his government.

An older man was forthright. "The revolution is like a strong medicine that Brazil had to take," he said, "and it's honest too."

SAID WELL?

His companions, laughing and clapping him on the shoulder, thought his expression was apt.

But a speech by the president on labor law reform 15 minutes before had gone over their heads.

Many Factors Part of Latest Viet Crisis

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Two months ago today, President Johnson welcomed Premier Nguyen Cao Ky to their Honolulu conference. Now the Ky government finds itself in a crisis which could change the outlook for both Vietnamese and Americans. What is behind it all? Here is an informative appraisal by two Associated Press correspondents.)

BY EDWIN Q. WHITE AND PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Four weeks of political unrest in Viet Nam's cities has brought a dangerous new crisis to this unstable country, threatening the war effort.

Ironically, the political unrest has come as American arms have stabilized the war front and averted the outright defeat which seemed imminent in 1965.

What has caused the outbreaks in the streets of Saigon, Da Nang and Hue? What do the Buddhists want? What do the students want? Are Communists behind the outbreaks? Why the anti-Americanism?

There is no one answer. If there were, the problem might be more easily solvable.

SOME FACTORS

Here are some of the factors: The people involved in demonstrations represent a small fraction of the population, perhaps no more than two or three percent, but the numbers do not control the danger. Fewer students and Buddhists have topped earlier governments. Perhaps four-fifths of the population is apathetic; particularly in the countryside, but they also are war-weary to their bones after years of conflict. Even victories by government and American troops don't seem to encourage them. This leaves political leadership to others.

Perhaps most significant and dangerous of all has been the appearance of South Vietnamese soldiers and civil servants among the demonstrators in Da Nang. Wholesale defection by soldiers and officials could destroy the entire war effort.

Undoubtedly, Communist infiltrators have had a hand in the demonstrations. How much no one knows, but they would be ineffective alone. Professional agitators have played a hand, as they have in every political coup in Saigon. Men like Le Quy Viet, who tells proudly of arrests going back to 1945, and claims at 39 that he has at least 20 years of politicking ahead.

CROWDS GROW

Refugees driven from the countryside, with little hope and nothing to do, and restless and delinquent children from the streets have swelled the crowds. The Buddhists and the stu-

Moderate and extremist wings of the Buddhist hierarchy appear to be divided over the timing.

"Moderate" is a comparative term to describe the Buddhist group headed by Thich Tam Chau, chairman of the Buddhist Institute in Saigon. He desires a civilian government eventually. There was a feeling that Tam Chau and his followers would be prepared to wait several months for the "political congress" Ky has proposed to determine a national constitution. After this, elections would be held, and the Buddhists feel they would win. Now Tam Chau wants elections in three months.

Extremists, headed by the mysterious Thich Tri Quang, want the government overthrown now and a civilian government formed.

Tri Quang has been credited with masterful planning in Hue and Da Nang.

When 18,000 people took to the streets of Hue in a protest march, that was one-third of the city's population. Tri Quang's Buddhists dominate officialdom in that old imperial capital, and the sailor, enigmatic monk obviously has support. U.S. officials believe the situation is worse now in Hue than in Da Nang.

The Buddhists have far less influence in Saigon than in Hue. But the sight of 10,000 people sitting quietly with upturned faces any evening at the Buddhist Institute, listening to their favorite Buddhist orator, impresses students of power politics. No other group can gather a large crowd so easily in Saigon.

The Buddhists have power also in the coastal cities of Hue, Trang, Qui Nhon and Quang Ngai, because they have no competition.

HAVE FREEDOM

Only the Viet Cong has the scope and the organizational ability to compete. The Viet Cong army keeps the Viet Cong out of the cities, leaving the Buddhists freedom of operation.

Young Buddhist monks clad in gray or brown robes are seen with increasing frequency in demonstrations. It is in the streets that the Buddhists and the "fringe" groups — the politicians — cooperate.

Civilian politicians discredited themselves early in 1965 when they deliberately collapsed a nonmilitary government because of political rivalries. The military had no choice but to take over again.

This does not dissuade the die-hard politicians from trying. Political agitators were quickly on the scene after the ruling junta split with Thieu's ouster.

CATHOLIC ROLE

The Catholic role in the current crisis has been extremely low-keyed.

Father Hoang Quynh, a Catholic extremist, has issued several statements partly supporting the Buddhist demand for a civilian government. But Catholic influence in Da Nang and Hue is small.

The Catholics have the potential of influencing events in Saigon. Several Catholic refugee villages are on the outskirts of the capital, and in the past they have proved a fertile ground for the raising of mobs. But reliable Catholic sources say there are no immediate plans to bring Catholics into the streets.

Aside from the leaders, how far has the dissension spread among the army and the civil service?

2,000 SOLDIERS

As many as 2,000 soldiers at a time demonstrated on the streets of Da Nang against the government, almost all the troops in Da Nang at the time.

in Hue, the situation appears to have repercussions among the public.

JEEP BURNED

But U.S. officials did not expect to see it become manifest in such scenes as a mob burning a U.S. Army jeep and the roughing up of a uniformed American soldier — two incidents that occurred in Saigon.

Most of the anti-Americanism seems to have been initially based on the political posture of the United States.

Banners read "Down with U.S. obstructionism," not "Yankees go home."

American servicemen have been remarkably well-behaved in Viet Nam. But this is ignored by the mobs who joyfully seize on an issue, any issue, to aid their cause.

OFFICIAL FEAR

U.S. officials fear that anti-Americanism may become an accepted platform for opponents of the government. This would play into the hands of those who would like to see some sort of exclusive settlement with the Viet Cong to end the war.

There seems little doubt that the man in the middle in Viet Nam, the peasant, wants the war to end. Bigger armies and bigger guns have engulfed him in a conflict that has more weapons firing larger shells than during the peak of the French Indochina war. Hundreds of thousands of refugees are fleeing from the fighting.

All sides claim they want peace in Viet Nam.

The question is what side will be in a position to bring that peace and what form will it take.

B52 Use May Be Stepped Up

WASHINGTON — The United States plans unrelenting and perhaps stepped-up B52 attacks against the Viet Cong during South Viet Nam's approaching rainy monsoon season, sources said today.

American forces are expected to lean heavily on the big jets when the Communists launch their expected offensive timed with the arrival of bad weather.

The Communists last year used the monsoon rains to advantage, striking while muddled roads and clouded skies limited defensive operations.

This year the B52s are available—they entered the war last June—and can be used on a daily basis to support ground forces and knock out enemy bunkers, tunnels, storage facilities, supply dumps, munitions caches and resting areas.

Defense Department spokesmen say the multimillion-dollar B52s are expected to encounter no problems from thunderstorms which brew over South Viet Nam in late April and May.

USE RADAR

For one thing, they said, while the B52s have visual sighting capability, its pilots generally prefer radar for locating targets even in clear weather.

In severe storms, B52 pilots might choose to skirt towering cloud formations and thus forego a target, they said, but such cases would be rare.

In any event, the jet could be diverted to another mission.

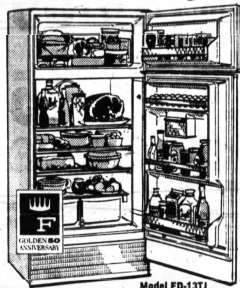

The Air Force may put jets with expanded bomb capability to use in the next few weeks.

Bake Duckling With Sweet Fruit Sauce

Landing on these shores way dry. Split in half lengthwise, back in 1720 in the custody of a whaling captain, the Long Island duckling has gone a long way in popularity and availability since that time. Now, packaged frozen, it is possible to enjoy a duckling wherever you live.

The secret of a deliciously roasted bird is the seasoning and the flavor spark of golden seasoning and broth is the trick. Rub the duckling cavity and the skin with the seasoning and broth before roasting and then let the flavor bake right in.

Duckling Cantonese

1 4½-5 duckling
3 envelopes golden seasoning and broth
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon cornstarch
If duckling is frozen, thaw completely. Wash; drain and pat smooth consistency. Add to mixture in saucepan and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens.

After 1½ hours, remove duckling from oven and pour off all drippings and the vegetables. Spoon half the thickened orange juice mixture over the duckling and return to oven for 30 minutes.

Place celery and onion in bottom of shallow roasting pan. Place duckling halves on top of vegetables. Bake, uncovered, for 1½ hours.

Meanwhile, mix together orange peel, orange juice, remaining 1 envelope seasoning and broth, honey in a saucepan. Make a paste of cornstarch and sufficient water for a Spoon remaining sauce mixture over duckling and continue to bake for 30 minutes longer or until fork tender. Garnish with orange sections. Makes 4 servings.

DUCKLING: CANTONESE—For a handsome and deliciously glazed duckling, prepare an orange-soy sauce-honey mixture and spoon over the duckling before it is completely roasted.

Pile High the Fixings

Big, beautiful sandwiches can serve as a full course luncheon or supper if they're hearty enough.

Try this, for instance: as a base use a slice of large rye bread or pumpernickel. Top with lettuce or fresh spinach greens, then a slice of Swiss cheese. Place "boiled" ham or several thin slices of baked ham right next to the cheese. Cover with twin slices of tomato, then sliced, hard-cooked eggs.

Garnish with strips of crisp, cooked bacon. Pass with Thousand Island Dressing.

Mint Patties Are Easy to Make at Home

To make mint patties: mix three cups of powdered sugar with a piece of butter the size of a walnut, a drop or two of oil of peppermint and enough milk to make the mix workable. Tint any color you wish by adding a few drops of food coloring.

Drop from a teaspoon and flatten beneath a piece of waxed paper. Allow to stand overnight. Decorate if you wish with icing roses.

Put pep into your casseroles with wheat germ topping. Saute one half cup wheat germ in four tablespoons of butter and sprinkle over casseroles.

Baked Peach Dessert

Arrange canned peach halves, cut side up, in a shallow baking pan. Fill each center with a little chutney. For each ½ cup of peach juice, add ¼ teaspoon kitchen bouquet, the bottled brown sauce, and pour over peaches. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven until hot, about 20 minutes. Baste now and then with syrup.

Raisins for Dessert

Raisins and coconut in rice does a lot for rice. When it is hot and buttery, shape it in a ring mold and fill the center with curried chicken and shrimp.

CARROT COOKIES

What's for Dessert - Tarts, Shortcake or Cookies?

By JANET ODELL

Pontiac Press Food Editor

Golden yellow is the color of three Easter desserts we're suggesting for your Sunday dinner. We hope you'll like the ideas well enough to use them throughout the year.

Orange Easter Baskets are really little tarts with an orange cheddar filling.

ORANGE EASTER BASKETS

Filling:

- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 3-oz. package orange gelatin
- 2 oranges
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 egg whites
- 3 tablespoons sugar

Pastry Baskets:

- 1 10-oz. package pie crust mix
- Add boiling water to gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Cut oranges in half; squeeze to make one cup juice. Add lemon juice to gelatin mixture with lemon juice.

Inverted custard cups; make four pleats to shape basket. Prick bottom and sides.

Bake on cookie sheet in 425 degree oven 10-12 minutes. When cool, gently remove baskets and fill. Make eight.

Golden Shortcake Nests are another dessert you can make early. Think how pretty they'll be, served on a big glass plate or white platter.

GOLDEN SHORTCAKE NESTS

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 1/4 cups pineapple juice
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- 4 teaspoon salt
- 8 individual sponge cake shells
- 8 canned peach halves
- 1/4 cup chopped pecans or flaked coconut
- Dissolve cornstarch in pineapple juice. Add lemon juice, grated lemon rind and salt. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Cool slightly. Place 1 tablespoon of pineapple glaze in each cake shell. Top with a peach half, cut side down. Pour pineapple glaze over peach and cake. Garnish edge of cake shell with chopped nuts or flaked coconut. Yield: 8 servings.

Youngsters don't always want to sit still for dessert. If you include egg-shaped carrot cookies in their Easter baskets, they can leave the table happily before the grown-ups settle down to more coffee and animated conversation.

Just a suggestion: Be sneaky! Don't tell the children about the carrots in the cookies.

CARROT COOKIES

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup soft shortening
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 cup cooked carrots, mashed
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla flavoring
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon or orange extract
- 1 cup bran flakes
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- 2 tablespoons orange juice on greased baking sheets. Bake in moderate-oven (350 degrees) for 18 minutes.

Note: Grated raw carrots may be substituted for cooked carrots. Decrease baking time to 10 minutes.

Seafood Gumbo Full of Good Ingredients

Among the famous regional specialties of this country, gumbo is a special favorite. This thick soup-stew of Creole origin varies tremendously from household to household and from one making to the next.

Seafood, alone or in combination with chicken or turkey, frequently is the foundation of the stew. Bay leaf, thyme, onion, green pepper and hot red pepper are typical seasonings. Tomatoes are used to contribute richness, flavor and color.

But, the ingredient that gives unique character to gumbo is the tapering green vegetable which early Louisiana settlers called kingombo and which we know today as okra. Another unique ingredient which appears in many recipes is file powder or powdered sassafras leaves.

Now that all kinds of seafood as well as okra are standard items in frozen food cabinets at supermarkets everywhere, a superb gumbo can be produced any time of the year in any part of the country.

And, if you want to be adventurous as you want to be authentic, file powder can be purchased at fancy food stores.

When using file powder, it is advisable to put a small amount in each soup bowl at serving time, then add the gumbo and stir well. If added directly to the stew, there is a possibility of developing a bitter flavor from overheating.

Rice always accompanies a gumbo. Place a generous mound in the center of each serving bowl, then surround it with the fragrant stew. In the following recipe, a small amount of raw rice thickens the stew as it cooks.

- Frozen Seafood Gumbo
- 3 tablespoons corn oil
 - 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
 - 2 cups frozen chopped onion
 - 1 cup frozen chopped green pepper
 - 2 cans (16 ounces each) whole peeled tomatoes
 - 3 cups water
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
 - 2 to 3 drops Tabasco or 1/4 pod dried hot red pepper, seeded and crushed
 - 1 bay leaf
 - 1 package (10 ounces) frozen whole baby okra, partially thawed and cut into 1-inch pieces
 - 1/4 cup raw rice
 - 1 package (1 pound) frozen, shelled deveined shrimp
 - 1 package (7 ounces) frozen cooked crab meat thawed
 - 1 can (7 ounces) frozen oysters, thawed
 - 3 tablespoons chopped parsley
 - File powder (optional)
 - Hot cooked rice

Heat corn oil in Dutch oven or heavy kettle. Add garlic, onion and green pepper; cook until soft. Add tomatoes, water, salt, pepper, Tabasco, bay leaf, okra and raw rice. Bring to boil. Cover. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes.

Add frozen shrimp and stir to distribute evenly. Return to boil; cover and simmer 5 minutes. Add crab meat, oysters and parsley; simmer until heated (about 3 minutes). Remove bay leaf.

If used, place about 1/4 teaspoon file powder in each soup bowl. Add a mound of hot, cooked rice. Ladle the gumbo into each bowl and stir gently to mix all ingredients. Sprinkle with remaining parsley. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Grapefruit, Shrimp Satisfy the Dieter

Plan on half a grapefruit and six cleaned cooked shrimp for each serving. If you can get the pink grapefruit, so much the better. But the regular grapefruit will make a pretty dish, too.

Halve the grapefruit and remove the seeds. Carefully loosen the segments with a sharp knife. Then take out every other segment. In each empty segment, place a shrimp, with the tail end sticking up toward the center. Chill. Pour a low-calorie Italian-style salad dressing over the grapefruit just before serving.

Garnish with watercress, curly endive or other leafy greens.

For a different taste, fold strawberry preserves into a boiled cake frosting.

Tip for Shrimp

The problem in shrimp cookery is how not to overcook, rather than how to cook enough. Two to five minutes' boiling time is all that is needed, depending upon the size of the shrimp. Start timing when water comes to a boil after the shrimp have been added.

Fish Sticks Garnish Green-Gold Salad for Lenten Menus

A luncheon main-dish salad ideal for Lenten menus comes your way with "Fish and Fruit Salad." Fish sticks are arranged spoke-fashion on top of a mound of chopped western iceberg lettuce tossed with a tasty peach sauce for this salad treat.

The sauce is a tangy mixture of chopped canned cling peach slices, salad dressing, dill pickle, onion and Romano cheese.

Fish and Fruit Salad
1 head western iceberg lettuce

1 package (9 oz.) frozen fish sticks
1 can (1 lb.) cling peach slices, drained
¼ cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
½ cup chopped dill pickle
½ cup chopped onion

½ cup grated Romano or Parmesan cheese
Salt
Pepper
Core, rinse and drain lettuce. Chill in plastic bag or saran. Prepare fish sticks as label directs; season to taste. Reserve

5 peach slices; coarsely chop remainder. Combine salad dressing, pickle, onion, cheese and salt and pepper to taste; mix in chopped peaches.

Reserve a few lettuce leaves for garnish, then cut head lengthwise into halves. Place cut-sides down and coarsely shred then chop enough to measure 5 cups. Gently toss lettuce with peach sauce.

Heap on serving plate and arrange fish sticks on top spoke-fashion. Garnish with reserved peach slices and lettuce leaves.

Serve Some New Kinds of Fish Dishes to Please Your Family

Does your family put up a fuss whenever you spring a fish dinner on them? Possibly you're using the same old fish dishes, prepared in the same old way. The trick, say home economists, is to prepare fish and seafood in new and interesting ways.

They offer these recipe suggestions:

OYSTER CORN CASSEROLE
2 tablespoons butter
1½ cups milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1½ teaspoon salt

2 tablespoon steak sauce
¼ cup light cream
3 eggs (beaten)
1 can creamed-style corn (17 oz.)
¼ cup chopped oysters
Melt butter in pan, and add milk until scalded. Remove from heat. To milk and butter, stir in sugar, salt, A. 1., cream and eggs. Fold in corn and oysters, and mix well. Pour into greased baking dish. Place in pan of warm water and bake uncovered at 325 degrees for about one hour. Serves 4-6.

SCALLOPS AND RICE
2 lbs. sea scallops, frozen
1 cup mushrooms, sliced
1 cup celery, sliced
¼ cup onion, diced
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt

1 cup white rice
2 cans consommé (undiluted)
¼ cup sherry
2 lbs. sea scallops, frozen
Defrost scallops. Cook mushrooms, celery, onion in butter until onion is light golden brown. Mix together salt, rice, consommé, sherry and A. 1. with cooked vegetables. Place all ingredients in casserole with scallops, tossing lightly, and bake, covered, in moderate oven (325 degrees-350 degrees) for approximately 45 minutes. Serves 6.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

TB Is Often Merely Arrested, Not Cured

Q—With the present treatment of tuberculosis is there any hope of eventual cure?
What precautions should be taken to prevent reactivation of an arrested case?

BRANDSTADT

to feel better, discontinuing treatment even though the disease is not arrested.

When the disease is arrested, however, the tissues wall off the tubercle bacilli, isolating them completely.

They may then live in a state of suspended animation for decades or until the victim dies of some other cause.

INSUFFICIENT REST

Reactivation, when it occurs, is usually the result of a chronically run-down condition brought on by insufficient rest, inadequate diet and not enough outdoor exercise or by an acute debilitating disease.

Alcohol would not be likely to reactivate this disease unless it was accompanied by late hours and provided that by moderation you mean one drink a day and not a "double" at that.

A positive tuberculin reaction means that a person has had contact at some time in his life with the tubercle bacillus.

His tuberculosis may be active or arrested. Treatment will not cause a reversal of the reaction.

Q—How does one get tuberculosis of the kidneys?

A—Tuberculosis of the kidneys usually results from the tubercle bacilli entering the blood stream from a tuberculous focus in the lungs and settling in the kidneys.

They may remain there for many months or years before progressing sufficiently to produce symptoms such as painful urination with blood in the urine.

This used to be a reason for removal of the infected kidney, but with modern antituberculous drugs this is now rarely necessary.

Can such a person still live a normal life?

Once the disease is arrested throughout the body, the victim should be able to live a normal life.

New College Official

ANN ARBOR (AP)—President Harlan Hatcher of the University of Michigan has announced appointment of controller Gilbert L. Lee to the newly created post of U-M vice president for business affairs.

'M' Alters Draft Policy

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The University of Michigan, in a reversal of policy, said yesterday it will not give a student's class standing to the Selective Service without the student's permission.

Selective Service intends to reexamine student draft deferments on the basis of current scholastic grades and on tests to be given the students in May and June. Students are not required to take the tests. However, their deferments could be influenced if they do not take them.

Ernest Zimmerman, assistant to the vice president for academic affairs, said the university adopted the new policy because it was felt any student had the right to object.

Drug 'Factory' Raided

NEW YORK (UPI)—Federal and city authorities burst into a tenement narcotics "factory" last night, arrested 20 persons and seized $100,000 in raw heroin bound for pushers in Harlem and the Bronx.

Two kilos, or 4½ pounds, of uncut heroin was found on processing tables as the raiding party broke into the three-room section of the Bronx, authorities said.

Federal narcotics agents and New York police found six women and three men in the apartment when they moved in, according to Robert Hickey, Bronx assistant district attorney.

Hickey said the men were cutting the raw narcotic while the women were putting it into small packets for street sale.

He said the two kilos probably cost the ring $35,000 and would bring $100,000 on the streets.

CHANGED SHIFTS

Shortly after the nine suspects were arrested, ten other women and one man straggled in, Hickey said, as they "changed shifts."

Felony charges, of possession of narcotics with intent to sell were brought against 10 of the suspects. The other 10 were booked on misdemeanor charges.

Authorities searched the apartment for possible hidden caches of narcotics but it was not reported immediately whether any were found.

One detective said the processing operation was "in full swing" when the raiding party arrived.

TUNA FISH PIZZAS — Sometimes all you need to put variety into meal planning is a new idea with a favorite food. Here are pizzas served in the shape of fish. They have tuna added to prepared pizza mix which makes them just right for Lent.

Franks and Kraut Are Tomato Sauced

Here's a casual but savory main dish that even a novice in the kitchen can prepare.

Franks with Tomato Kraut
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 medium onion, cut in thin strips
1 can (14 ounces) sauerkraut, drained and rinsed in cold water
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce with cheese
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ cup dry red wine
6 to 8 (1 pound) frankfurters

In a 10-inch skillet, melt the butter; add onion and brown lightly. Stir in the sauerkraut, tomato sauce, sugar and wine. Bring to a boil.
Place frankfurters over sauerkraut mixture. Cover and let bubble gently for about 5 minutes; turn frankfurters; cover and continue cooking for another 5 minutes or until frankfurters are hot through. Makes 8 to 4 servings.

Try Banana Treat for Hungry Kids

Children will love to prepare and eat this dessert. Peel bananas; dip in slightly beaten egg white. Roll in ground unblanched almonds to coat completely.
Bake in oven-proof dish in hot oven until almonds are toasted and bananas hot. Serve with ice cream.

Congress approved appropriations of about $2 billion in 1965 for 140 rivers and harbors projects in 41 states.

Cook Cheese Mixture, Put on Toast

There is no definite food pattern for lunch as there is for breakfast. But, through the years, sandwiches have evolved as popular lunch-time fare.
Cheese appears frequently in sandwiches either alone or in combination with other foods. And, many cheese sandwiches are served hot — an extra nice treat on a cold winter day.

This recipe for Hot Roquefort Cheese Sandwiches would be good for both your youngsters or for friends that you have over for lunch. When with tomato slices, carrot sticks, butter cookies, fruit and milk.

Afternoon activities, whether at school or at home, are sometimes strenuous. Be sure lunch at your house helps your youngsters refuel and refresh.

Hot Roquefort Cheese Sandwiches
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup milk
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (¼ lb.)
2 ounces Roquefort cheese, crumbled
8 slices white bread, toasted

Make Pizza in Shape of Little Fish

Any time is pizza time but the popularity of fish 'n pizza grows brightest during the Lenten hours. Whether you use canned, fresh, or frozen fish or seafood makes little difference as long as it pleases your taste. Also, when you decide to make it, has no time limit, either.

The makings for the pizza are complete in one package and all you add is the fish. So let neither the time or season keep you from enjoying a pizza snack whenever you want it.

Tuna Fish Pizzas
1 package complete cheese pizza
1 (6½-7 oz.) can tuna fish
2 pimiento stuffed olives
Grease 2, 14"x17", baking sheets. Preheat oven to 425 degrees.
Remove pizza dough mix, can of pizza sauce, can of grated cheese from package. Open can of tuna fish; drain. Flake into small pieces. Set aside.
Make cardboard pattern of a fish, 8½"x5". Draw 2 fish outlines on each baking sheet. Prepare dough as directed on package.

Divide dough into 4 equal parts. Press out each part of dough to fit into boundaries of fish pattern, turning up edges ¼". Add tuna fish to canned sauce and mix well. Divide between four fish shaped pizza doughs. Cut each olive in half and make an eye on each fish.
Sprinkle each sauce topped fish with packaged can of grated cheese. Bake 18-20 minutes. you serve it, accompany it. Makes 4 servings.

Try Cream Cheese Richness in Cake

This cake is like pound cake, but not so rich.

Family Cake
3 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
8 ounces cream cheese
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 large eggs
½ cup milk

On wax paper, sift together the cake flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter, cream cheese, sugar and vanilla. Thoroughly beat in eggs, one at a time. Stir in flour mixture in 4 additions, alternately with milk — just until smooth each time.
Turn into greased and floured 10-inch tube pan. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 70 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on wire rack to cool.

Strawberry, Coconut Make Fine Tart

For the easy-to-give dessert party serve strawberry-coconut tarts. For eight, prepare a package of strawberry gelatin, using only 1½ cups boiling water and refrigerate until slightly thick. Meanwhile, combine a 3-ounce package of cream cheese with 1-3 cup milk and a cup of crumbled coconut cookies. Spread 2 tablespoons of this mixture in the bottom of each sponge cake shell.

Top with halved fresh strawberries. Ladle gelatin over filled shells and chill until firm. Just before serving, garnish with whipped cream.

KIDNEY/BLADDER DISCOMFORT

Even if you think it only temporary, see your doctor. He may tell you to drink more water. Many doctors recommend six to eight glasses a day.
Tests prove Mountain Valley Water's gentle, kidney-flushing action. Drink recommended amounts, to help dilute excess acids in the urinary system.
Excellent as needed extra fluid doctors often recommend for kidney/bladder conditions.

Offer Guests Choice of Dressings

Having a buffet dinner? "Pick-Your-Dressing Iceberg Salads" will cater to the varying taste buds of your guests in highly versatile fashion.

The recipe offers three delightfully different dressings. Make them all and let your friends select the one they will enjoy the most. Husky, firm, spring-green wedges of western iceberg lettuce become taste treats extraordinary with any of the trio of dressings.

"Creamy Blue Cheese Dressing" and "Fruit Confetti Dressing" both have a base of real mayonnaise. In the first, yogurt, crumbled blue cheese, chopped parsley and seasonings provide flavor dividends.

In the latter, dairy sour cream, canned fruit cocktail and wine vinegar give a new look and taste to a mayonnaise salad dressing.

The third dressing, "Avocado-Caraway Dressing," is perked up with lemon juice.

Core, rinse and drain 2 heads of iceberg lettuce. Chill in plastic bag or saran. Cut each head of lettuce lengthwise into 4 or 5 wedges. Place on salad plates. Serve Creamy Blue Cheese,

Fruit Confetti and Avocado-Caraway Dressings in stemmed glasses or bowls, letting each

Liver Dish Is Oniony

Try an old favorite made by a new method — liver and onions prepared with soup mix instead of fresh onions.

Dust 1 pound of calves liver, sliced with ¼ cup of flour. Shake off excess flour and brown liver quickly on both sides in skillet in 2 tablespoons of butter or margarine.
Remove liver from skillet. Add 1½ cups of water and (1½-ounce) can of onion soup mix. Bring to boil; cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Return liver to skillet long enough to reheat. Garnish with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Orange Sundaes

Cut fresh oranges into bite-size pieces, place in a bowl and sprinkle with sugar, about 2 tablespoons for every orange. Allow to sit 12-15 minutes, until juice collects, then spoon atop mounds of vanilla ice cream.

person choose his favorite. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Creamy Blue Cheese Dressing
½ cup real mayonnaise
½ cup plain yogurt
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Blend mayonnaise, yogurt, salt and pepper. Stir in cheese and parsley. Makes 1 cup.

Fruit Confetti Dressing
½ cup real mayonnaise
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup drained canned fruit cocktail
Blend mayonnaise, cream, vinegar and salt. Fold in fruit cocktail. Makes about 1½ cups.

Avocado-Caraway Dressing
1 cup mashed or sieved avocado (1 or 2 avocados)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon caraway seed
Mix all ingredients. Serve at once or cover tightly and chill until serving-time. Makes 1 cup.
Radio and television transmissions directly into homes from 30,000-watt satellites has been predicted.

DINER'S CHOICE—Three different and equally flavorful some dressings come your way for "Pick-Your-Dressing Iceberg Salads." Let your guests decide which one to spoon over crisp wedges of western iceberg lettuce.

Pear Sandwich

Tired of sandwiches for lunch? Halve and core a fresh Anjou pear. Fill centers with a bit of chicken or seafood sandwich spread. An interesting combination and a delightful luncheon for work-at-home mothers.

That Explains It

The principal difference between Blue cheese and Roquefort cheese is the kind of milk used. Blue cheese is made from cow's milk. Roquefort cheese is made from ewe's (sheep's) milk.

Home Life Is Getting Hectic for U.S. Tax Commissioner

WASHINGTON (AP) — With 10 hectic days left to file income tax returns, home life at the Sheldon S. Cohens is "getting wilder all the time."

Cohen is the internal revenue commissioner.

"Pressure starts about the first of the year," says Faye Cohen, who has striking brown eyes and red hair. "It gradually builds up until April."

"To spend time together, we run our home like an office. It sounds terrible, but if we didn't we'd be squeezed."

The deadline is April 15 — Friday of next week.

LITTLE TIME

Fortunately, Cohen filed their 1040 form March 18—they owed $71.65. There would be little time, for it now.

Phones ring frequently in the three-bedroom brick house with black shutters. Mail is piled high, many taxpayers from Hawaii to Maine want personal consultations.

In the morning Cohen gets up at 6 with the youngest of his four daughters—Sharon, 2,—and by 7 has fed and dressed Sharon, read the newspaper and prepared breakfast for the rest of the family. The other children are Melinda, 9, Laura, 6, and Jonathan, 4.

NIGHT BEFORE

"We set the table the night before," says Faye. "My husband is very good in the kitchen and the children love it."

"He figures we still have to eat and it's a good time to be together. I think if you're going to let your job interfere with your home completely, it isn't worth it."

"He never comes home without a briefcase, but he has a great capacity for watching television, looking over paper work and listening to me on the telephone all at the same time."

INTO CIGAR BOX

Each bill or prescription receipt — already 28 this year that will figure in the Cohen's tax records is slipped into a cigar box in a kitchen cupboard, recorded separately on a green stenographer's pad and tallied weekly.

Yearly, the bills are put in one box and sent to an Army surplus desk in the basement. The Cohens have been married 15 years and there are that many cigar boxes.

Faye Cohen has to listen to criticism, as well as compliments, about her husband. She says he remains "thick-skinned, but it still boils me a little."

Pilot of Burning Jet Fights Clock to Cheat Death

By TOM TIEDE
LAI KHE, Viet Nam (NEA) — Regardless of the importance placed on it, time is such that it is seldom sacred to men at war... unless they haven't much of it left.

Capt. Pat McCallum is an example.

Time almost ran out on him the other day.

But he used what appeared to him to be his final two minutes to save his own life.

He was in the air at the time, the pilot of an Air Force jet fighter which was slipping and sliding through enemy ground fire.

FLYING BLOWTORCH

His ship was an F100 Super Sabre, a 38-by-47-foot, 700 m.p.h., $800,000 flying blowtorch stuffed with 7,800 pounds of kerosene in the body, and carrying an additional 3,000 pounds of propellant in pods strapped under the wings.

Gis call them supersonic gas tanks.

And when they crash, it's like the Fourth of July.

McCallum had made two passes over the enemy before his tank sprung a flaming leak. Flying at 300 feet, he felt three thuds in the rear of the craft... direct hits from a 50-caliber machine gun.

FLASHING RED

The pilot glanced automatically at the network of dials and directions on his panel. The engine fire indicator was flashing red. No doubt about it. The jet's tail was badly burning.

The pilot's mind was in 'verigo. A thousand things crowded through it... danger, mostly, but also the wretched lessons of eight years of flying and $58,000 worth of government instruction.

Time was of precious essence now.

He figured he had two minutes to go... to live or to die.

EMERGENCY BUTTON

Immediately he pushed his emergency jettison button, thus freeing the ship of the fuel tanks, pylons and the external apparatus which added to the drag of the 36,000-pound vehicle.

Then he climbed to 1,500 feet, leveled off, and studied his instruments again. They were wavering.

The oil pressure, which should have been at 40, was down to 10 and dropping rapidly. The exhaust temperature gauge was not functioning.

By this time the cockpit was heating up. The wires on the air-conditioning unit had burned through.

McCallum began to sweat and at 400 miles per hour, frantically fumbled with his indicators to determine the rest of the damage.

But, suddenly, the stick wobbled involuntarily. A moment later his right controls were dead. Seconds were ticking away. There was no hope of saving the plane now... there was only hope of saving the pilot.

"How bad is it?" a voice on the radio asked.

"The controls are frozen," McCallum answered.

"Anything you can do?"

SET TO EFFECT

"No, I'm going to eject."

At that McCallum reached down on the side of his seat, grabbed the compartment's eject lever and pulled up.

The maneuver blew the cockpit canopy off and the harsh force of the outside air snapped the pilot violently back against his headrest.

Then he reached again, this time squeezing the trigger that ignited a 37-mm. cannon under his seat.

The explosion blew him out of the plane like a bomb fragment, the force ripping the helmet from his head, spitting his lips, draining the blood from his brain and, momentarily, increasing his body weight to several thousand pounds.

COTTON CLOUD

Two hundred feet of space later, the virtually unconscious pilot began to tumble over and over, into and out of a large cotton cloud.

Then his parachute popped open.

And the groggy captain began to realize what had happened. And for the first time he felt fear.

What if the ship had exploded? What if the eject hadn't worked? What if the parachute hadn't opened?

He felt his arms, his legs and his head. All were O.K.

The two minutes had passed and he lived. But he was shaking and uneasy.

And why not? Now he had all the time in the world to worry.

Girl Who Aided Pilgrims Serves as Inspiration

By Sheila Stewart Campbell
Massachusetts Housewife

According to the calendar, it was January. But I'm a New Englander, and anytime in Mexico City is spring to me.

I'd been in the city about two months and though I loved it, that morning I was wallowing in self-pity. I was sick of eternal spring; I wanted to throw a snowball.

Slowly I became conscious of music. I called my maid to find out what it was; she said it was the peregrines. Out came the tattered dictionary; the word meant pilgrims.

She explained carefully, well aware of my language problem, that each year people from the state of Toluca passed by the apartment on their pilgrimage to the Shrine of Guadalupe.

LENTEN GUIDEPOSTS

Their march took nearly a week, sometimes more, as they came from every village in the state to pay homage to the Dark Virgin whose image was found on the cloak of a poor Indian over 400 years ago.

FROM ALL OF MEXICO

Since the enshrinement of the cloak in the basilica at Guadalupe, pilgrims have walked there from all parts of Mexico.

The music became louder. I went out on the balcony of the apartment. The street was alive with the pilgrims of Toluca.

To get a better view, I went down to the corner. People were everywhere. Vendors sold tortillas, frijoles, ice cream. Women hurriedly bought food and scurried back to their places in line.

They ate as they walked; some carried food in the shawls that all Mexican Indian women wear. Others carried babies in the shawls.

Some carried their shoes; others had no shoes to carry. All were dirty and tired. But in the hours that followed, I never saw an unhappy face.

In fact, the pilgrims gave the street an aura of gaiety and of something deeper — of joy.

I don't know how long I'd stood watching the pilgrims when I first noticed the young girl. She'd come out of one of the apartment houses and was talking rapidly with her maid.

The contrast between the girl's Parisian dress and the clothes of the pilgrims made her stand out.

The girl and her maid disappeared and then returned. They brought a table, glasses and jugs of water to the corner. And they started giving water to the pilgrims.

It was such a simple thing to do. Guilt hit me. I'd seen the tiredness, the dirt. But, concerned with my own self-pity, I'd just stood there watching.

Foreign Policy Topic

ANN ARBOR (AP) — John Kenneth Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard University, will speak on "Foreign Policy, Politics and the University" at the spring commencement of the University of Michigan April 30.

The bucket brigades kept up as long as the pilgrims came. And the pilgrims came for hours. Each rapidly took a drink, spoke a few words of gratitude and rushed back to the line. It seemed as if every Christian in the world was walking to Guadalupe that day.

It wasn't until nearly the end of the passing of the pilgrims that I had a chance to notice the girl who'd first had the idea. Her hair was in shambles; the dress from Paris was soaked; her stockings were torn; her face was as radiant as a pilgrim's.

I noticed something else about the girl. Around her neck was a gold chain; from it hung a Star of David.

I didn't speak to the girl. Even if my Spanish had been good enough, I couldn't have told her what I felt.

New Englanders have trouble, even in English, when they talk about faith, dignity and love. But whenever the world seems full of hatred and destined for destruction, I remember the pilgrims and the girl who gave them water.

Next — Atlantic City. She is a housewife, tells how her mother's faith and eternal optimism helped her overcome adversity all her life.

Poverty War Program Aids All Schoolchildren

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.

What is called "compensatory" education shows promise of helping to provide equality of opportunity for all children. As a phase of the War on Poverty, it is intended to compensate for what life and circumstances have denied many children.

DR. NASON

The effort to reach this goal has focused attention on how schools are meeting the needs of children. The result is that all children will benefit from changes originally designed with only some in mind.

At the preschool and primary levels, the effort shows the most promise. It is now realized that the need for a special lift during their venture into school-learning is not confined to the children from impoverished homes.

Children from all areas enter school with widely varying backgrounds of experience and development.

As an example of the rapid growth of the compensatory education idea, this year a third of a million children in California alone will be in programs designed to help them catch up with their more fortunate schoolmates.

The state has a separate Office of Compensatory Education to review projects proposed by local school districts. Hundreds of locally prepared programs are now pouring in which usually include a combination of the following:

Special classes for preschool children; more individualized counseling; closer home-school ties; remedial corrective efforts in basic areas such as reading; after-school centers and tutoring services; retraining of teachers; reduction of class size; and cultural enrichment programs.

Similar efforts are being made in every state.

SEEMS WASTED

At first thought, it may seem wasteful to spend money for separately developed programs in thousands of school districts rather than one centrally developed program.

Actually, this process is essential to the ultimate success.

Educational programs are always more successful when the personnel who must eventually carry them out are involved in their planning and development.

Studying Red China Difficult

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — For American scholars, the task of studying Communist China is a little like watching a baseball game through a knothole — they can keep track of the score but miss some of the atmosphere and details.

Barred from mainland China, the Americans rely on what Prof. John K. Fairbank calls "minimum contact but maximum reading matter."

PRINTED MATTER

The center receives all the printed matter available out of Communist China — "more than we can absorb," one staffer said.

Some of the material — the Chinese news service and leading papers and periodicals — is translated.

But much of it is read in the original Chinese by researchers. Another source of news about events in mainland China are persons who have just returned from the country — tourists, businessmen, diplomats and scholars from other nations.

NO ONE TALKS

Many people who return from China express frustration at their failure to get people to say anything beyond the official government line, Vogel said.

One researcher, Dr. Ezra Vogel, a sociologist, said that given a choice he would rather go to Hong Kong than mainland China.

Vogel explained that even in China, permitted American scholars within her borders "it's still a closed society. The people are afraid to tell you too much. You just don't have contacts with people."

Fairbank, a history professor and director of the East Asian Research Center at Harvard University, recently was a principal witness at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on China.

Many of the witnesses were described as "China experts," a phrase Fairbank rejects.

DIFFERENT TERM

"I prefer the term China specialist, rather than expert," Fairbank said in an interview. The term expert, he said, would imply the ability to draw definite conclusions.

Fairbank and his colleagues maintain that the lack of access to Communist China is less of a handicap to forming an accurate picture of life in that nation than is often assumed.

In their testimony at the Senate hearings, China specialists often stated with apparent confidence that Chinese Communist leaders "believe" this or that.

Fairbank and Vogel said there is no problem for a researcher to discover what the Chinese government leaders believe. Their beliefs are rigidly reflected in every paper and periodical published in China.

FLOW LIMITED

One problem of lack of access to the mainland, is that the Chinese Communists can limit the flow of printed matter and also could cut off some of the best outside listening posts whenever they wish.

Even without access to the mainland, the modern China specialist is better qualified than the old China hand, Fairbank claimed.

The old China hand often was a journalist, diplomat or missionary who spent a lot of time in China and accumulated a large store of information about the country.

Today's China specialists usually are highly trained in a specific field aside from China. Among the researchers working at the East Asian Center are sociologists, economists, historians and legal experts.

FOUNDATION FUNDS

The center, set up with financial help from the Ford Foundation and Carnegie Corporation, occupies a floor in an apartment building near the Harvard Yard.

In the same building are the centers for Soviet studies and middle East studies.

In the backroom of the building, the China, Soviet and Middle East specialists get a chance to compare notes. Fairbank wishes he had as easy liaison with China specialists of other countries.

"We should have more contact with the Russians," he said. "They have a China problem and so do we."

Injury Ends Bid for Crown

Pontiac jeweler and Optimist Club president Glenn Whitcroft had a pulled leg muscle spoil his and partner Tony Crociata's bid for a second straight state squash championship.

The two were tied with Ed Hahn and Rick Austin of the Detroit Uptown Athletic Club at two games apiece last Saturday when Whitcroft was forced to quit the final game after suffering his injury.

Their championship series had seen the Whitcroft-Crociata team win twice by 15-12 scores while dropping 18-14 and 15-14 matches before the concluding game default.

In Spring Debut Dodger Aces Belted

By The Associated Press

Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale bowled over the baseball odds makers without throwing a pitch. All they have to do now is catch up with the National League hitters.

San Francisco sabotaged the Los Angeles ace's spring debut Tuesday, roughing them up in a 7-2 exhibition victory over the Dodgers. Koufax and Drysdale were clipped for six runs and 10 hits in their first competitive appearances since they ended a 33-day salary holdout last Saturday.

In Tuesday's other exhibition play, the Chicago White Sox edged Cincinnati 2-1 on Gene Freese's run-scoring single in the 17th inning. The New York Mets blasted Detroit 11-2, Baltimore outslugged Boston 11-6, Atlanta nipped Pittsburgh 5-4, Cleveland trimmed the Chicago Cubs 8-5 and Philadelphia blanked St. Louis 2-0.

Jim Hart drove in four runs with two homers, leading the Giants past the Dodgers at Mesa, Ariz. Drysdale, who pitched the first three innings, yielded four runs on five hits, including a three-run homer by Hart. Tom Haller homered off Koufax, who worked the middle three innings and gave up two runs on five hits.

LEAD STANDINGS
The White Sox, who lead the exhibition standings with a 19-6 mark, rallied with two out in the 17th against Cincinnati, breaking the 1-1 tie on a walk to pitcher Bruce Howard. Tom McCraw's single and Freese's hit.

The Hawks, who finished first, will meet the runner-up in a two-game, total goals series at 7 p.m. Friday and 12:30 p.m. Saturday. Lakeland had a 7-3 goal. The game consumed 4 hours, 21 edge in the Warren series.

Lakeland Sews Up Puck Finals Berth

The Lakeland Hawks finished eliminating Warren from the Southeast Michigan Hockey Association's midweek division play-offs with a 4-2 win Tuesday night at Port Huron.

Ron Young and Robbie Hall goals had the winners in a 2-2 tie in the second period, then Bruce Strohm and Randy Smith boosted Lakeland in front, 4-2, as the Hawks sewed up the finals berth opposite St. Clair Shores Friday night.

The Hawks, who finished first, will meet the runner-up in a two-game, total goals series at 7 p.m. Friday and 12:30 p.m. Saturday. Lakeland had a 7-3 goal. The game consumed 4 hours, 21 edge in the Warren series.

County Boys Help Sextet to Loop Title

Seven Oakland County youths will receive championship trophies at the Tri-County Squirt Ice Hockey League banquet in Livonia's Roma Hall April 21. They were members of the Big Bill's Sporting Goods team of 8-10 year olds and were 20-1 in league play to take the regular season and playoff championships.

They also captured the runner-up laurels in this winter's Michigan Amateur Hockey Association Lower Peninsula state squirt tournament.

Leading the county participants receiving the trophies will be Bobby Ries of Waterford, who was the league's top scorer with 42 goals and 16 assists in the 25 games.

His brother Mark also is on the team which is coached by their father Richard and George Finn of Livonia. A third brother, Dick played for the runner-up Pee Wee League team. Bobby, 10, is moving up to the Pee Wee League this weekend to play for the Marquette Machinery team in a spring league.

Others from the county on the sporting goods team are Paul Olsek, Waterford; Dave Casillas, Rochester; brothers Hugh and Pete Peterson, Franklin; and Ed O'Mara, Farmington.

Detroit Red Wing center Norm Ullman's son Gordie (of Livonia) also played for the champions.

Cassius a Loser in Court

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cassius Clay, who boasts of the money he makes as heavyweight boxing champion, has until 5:30 p.m. Thursday to come up with $26,250 or go to jail for 30 days. He was found in contempt of court Tuesday after he failed to show up in court and make at least an installment on the money he owes his pretty ex-wife, Sonji.

At first Clay's lawyer had told Sonji's attorneys he had two checks for part of the money Clay owes—$22,500 in fees and $2,500 for two months' alimony. One of the checks was written on Islam Temple 2 in Chicago. "We are timorous of accepting such a check," said Lawrence Hoffman, one of Sonji's lawyers.

ONE BOUNCED
"You bet we are," said Leonard McMillen, the other. "Cassius already bounced one on her for $1,250. We're not taking any checks signed by Omar Khayyam or somebody."

So they went to court. Clay did not. "It's not the money," said Circuit Judge Harold Spatt. "He didn't show up for this hearing. That is the contemptuous part. If he had come in with only a $5,000 check I would not have issued the order."

Property Deals Lead Agenda of Commission

Gifts, Purchases Up for Approval; Platte Parcel Sought

The Conservation Commission will be wheeling and dealing in land during its monthly meeting Thursday and Friday in Lansing.

In several instances, private interests will be dealing land in the form of gifts and the commission will be wheeling it away to the large, but slowly growing, stockpile of state-owned lands.

Other lands, particularly a 508-acre parcel adjoining the Platte River, may be purchased. Conservation Department land experts are recommending that the commission approve the deals.

Besides hoping to save the area's waters for public fishing and to protect their trout-carrying capacity, the department wants the Platte river lands to insure adequate water supply for its rearing station.

This facility is slated to play a key role in rearing coho salmon and steelheads to promote Great Lakes fishing.

Also aimed at the interests of fishermen are proposals to acquire pike marsh areas at Sleepy Hollow state park, Clinton County, and Long Lake, Barry County.

Some 28 acres are eyed at the Clinton County area where the department is moving ahead with plans to develop a major lake-state park complex for multiple recreation.

The parcel in Barry County, involving 12 acres of low-lying marshland, is being offered as a gift by the Long Lake Improvement Association of Cloverdale.

COST SHARING
It represents the association's cost-sharing end of a cooperative project which the department which is being worked out to improve fishing in Long Lake.

Another gift offer scheduled for action involves 67 acres located on Bolton Point of Lake Huron in Presque Isle County. The parcel, valued at more than $22,000 and featuring one-half mile of Lake Huron shoreline, is offered for use as a part of a natural area by Jesse H. Besser of Alpena.

It lies adjacent to a 150-acre area of wilderness which was donated to the State recently by Besser.

Also high on the docket are a gift proposal, recommended purchase, and series of exchanges focused on lands needed for major development of the Ionia recreation area.

Boat Registrations Due

Michigan motorboat owners must re-register their pleasure craft before they start plying the state's waters this spring.

All previous registrations expired at the end of last year.

By late March, only about 30,000 of the state's 400,000 motorboats were signed up for the new three-year period which runs through Dec. 31, 1968.

Fishermen, water skiers and other motorboat owners may re-register their craft for $3, same fee as before, at branch offices of the Secretary of State. In applying, they should present their old registration certificates.

Upon re-registering, owners will be issued yellow decals which are to be affixed to the bow of their boats. Serial numbers originally assigned to their boats remain valid.

Senate Deer Bill Faces Rough Road

LANSING (AP) — A Senate proposal to ban most antlerless deer hunting in Michigan for two years appears headed for rough treatment in the House.

By a bare minimum of 20 "yes" votes Tuesday, the Senate took away most of the Conservation Department's discretionary power over antlerless deer hunting. But Rep. Joseph Snyder, D-St. Clair Shores, chairman of the conservation committee, said he detected little sentiment for the bill in the House.

Under terms of the senate measure, the department could issue only 20,000 antlerless deer permits a year, and those for camp consumption only.

The Senate refused to increase deer license fees to raise

A change to a Nov. 15 opener for the entire state was backed in the Senate.

Many hunters disappointed with last season's deer kill said antlerless hunting should be banned so the herd can build up. The conservation department contends the deer will starve during the winter in any event.

The House conservation committee has reported out its own deer bill—one that gives game experts freedom to make their own conclusions but still gives the Legislature more control over department deer quotas than ever before, Snyder said.

Snyder said he "wouldn't be surprised if the House passes our bill instead of the Senate version. The sentiment I get here is that the members know they are looking for the solution for both a biological and a political problem."

The Senate measure, he said, limits the Upper Peninsula antlerless permits to 5,000. "That leaves 15,000 for the Lower Peninsula, and where can you spread them?" he asked. "I'm a little concerned with the arithmetic involved here."

They are also needed by non-residents who use motorboats on Michigan waters for more than 90 consecutive days.

Fish, Game Talks Planned by LCSC
A discussion of the Conservation Department's fish and big game management programs is scheduled April 12 at the Lapeer County Sportsmen's Club.

Thomas B. Durling, regional fish division supervisor, and William E. Laycock, assistant regional director, head the program which will get under way at 8 p.m. at the clubhouse, 1213 Lake George.

Durling will discuss the new fish management program with emphasis on plans for Southeastern Michigan. Laycock will get into the deer management issue. The meeting is open to the public.

Launching Sites Open
Boat launching facilities at Kensington and Stony Creek parks are now open, according to officials of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority. Free launching permits must be obtained at park offices.

2nd Is Charged With Extortion

'Sent Letter to Family of Kidnaped Youth'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A second man has been arrested on extortion charges in connection with the March 28 kidnaping of Daniel Goldman, 18, from his home near Miami Beach.

FBI agents arrested 60-year-old Clyde Daniel Phelps of Clearwater yesterday after he allegedly sent a letter to the Goldman family April 1 demanding $25,000.

The FBI said an investigation showed the letter to be a hoax, and agents arrested Phelps when he appeared at a post office here.

He told the Goldmans to place the ransom money in a baggage locker at Tampa International Airport and mail the keys to a fictitious name at the St. Petersburg Post Office.

He was placed under $2,500 bond after a preliminary hearing before a U.S. commissioner.

STARTED AS JOKE—He told officers the letter started out as a joke and that he wanted to see "if they would catch me."

The first man to be arrested on a similar charge Sunday was Gaston Genereux, 51, a chef at Boca Raton, Fla., who telephoned the Goldman family asking for the ransom money. His bond was set at $4,000.

The Goldman youth was taken from his home during the early morning hours by a stocky, middle-aged gunman who demanded $20,000 in cash from the wealthy elder Goldman.

So far no word has been heard from the kidnaper, police said.

Claim Sukarno Has $60 Million Stashed—HONG KONG (AP)—Indonesian President Sukarno has piled up a personal fortune of more than $60 million in Swiss and Japanese banks, according to sources in Hong Kong with Indonesian and international banking contacts.

Although the reports are impossible to confirm here, some responsible Western experts believe them.

Much of the money was directly deposited to Sukarno's foreign bank accounts by persons buying business favors from him, sources said.

Pontiac Pedestrian Injured by Car—There were no serious injuries, and no arrests.

The troopers moved to disperse the throng after about 175 National Guardsmen arrived on campus with bayonets fixed to rifles for reinforcements.

GUARDSMEN—Three companies of Guardsmen were marched to the north gate after patrolmen ordered 1,500 Negroes who sought to stage a protest march on the campus.

In this earlier confrontation, held in the glare of floodlights, officials again warned Negro leader Charles Evers that a Chancery Court injunction bars him from the college grounds and forbids such a march.

At his campus home, Boyd denied Evers' charge that he had suspended students who took part in civil rights work and had refused to allow students and faculty to campaign for civil rights on or off the campus.

"There was no dispute on this campus until Evers brought those children in," Boyd said in reference to the youngsters from Negro public schools in Claiborne and Jefferson counties, where a boycott in sympathy with Alcorn students has greatly lowered attendance.

"I think civil rights can be approached from more than one angle," Boyd added. "I am trying to help the child prepare for opportunities to come."

Charging Burglary Ring—LANSING (UPI)—Nine persons, including four teenagers, were arrested yesterday and charged with operating a burglary ring responsible for 11 break-ins here.

Detectives Robert Spaulding and William Ryan said the nine took at least $2,400 in cash and goods in the break-ins, most of which occurred at local stores. Police declined to disclose the names of those arrested.

Waterford Board to Eve School Proposals Defeat

The Waterford Township Board of Education tomorrow night will take a long look at the March 28 election defeat which thwarted the school district's proposed $13 million building program.

Board members are expected to discuss probable reasons why the people turned down the two propositions on the ballot, possible alternatives and present needs of the district.

School officials today were to have sent out approximately 500 questionnaires to a representative sampling of township voters in an effort to find out reasons for the election setback.

New proposals, probably revised, could be presented to township voters again at the regular June 13 school election.

In other business, the board will consider a recommendation of Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe to purchase the annual Mayor's Exchange Day next month.

The exchange of mayors previously had been slated to be between Pontiac and Constantine, a village located in St. Joseph County near the southern Michigan border.

Mayor Exchange Pairs City, Highland Park—The City Commission received word last night that Pontiac was being paired with Highland Park for the annual Mayor's Exchange Day next month.

The exchange of mayors previously had been slated to be between Pontiac and Constantine, a village located in St. Joseph County near the southern Michigan border.

Negro College Gates Blocked—LORDMAN, Miss. (AP)—A shield of National Guardsmen and state troopers defended the gates today at Alcorn College, where tear gas clouds choked 2,000 angry demonstrators in retreat during the night.

Student protests seeking to depose Alcorn President J. D. Boyd boiled into violence again Tuesday night when patrolmen tried to clear a highway leading out the campus.

The two men struggled. Another patrolman slugged the Negro on the head with a billy-club. The crowd roared.

HURLS BOTTLE—Leaping onto the hood of a parked car, a Negro youth hurled a soft drink bottle into the face of the officer who wielded the nightstick.

Troopers pushed quickly into the crowd, lobbing volleys of tear gas, blowing volleys of gas, screaming, cursing, the crowd scattered into the darkness.

There were no serious injuries, and no arrests.

FRANK SINATRA

Singer Barred From Mexico

Officials Claim Film Presents False Image

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Frank Sinatra, once the guest of a Mexican president, has been barred from Mexico by authorities who claim a recent movie he made depicts the country as a land of quickie divorces and shabby officials.

The Interior Ministry said Sinatra has been declared persona non grata because "Marriage on the Rocks," a film he produced and starred in, is "injurious and denigrating" to Mexico.

The ministry said no immigration documents will be issued to the showman and he will not be permitted to enter the country unless authorized in advance by the Immigration Department.

The ministry said Sinatra has been informed of the ban, which does not apply to members of his family.

In Los Angeles, a spokesman for Sinatra denied a report he had been halted by Mexican authorities at Tijuana, on the California frontier.

He has also been reported planning an Easter vacation in Acapulco, where he owns property.

The ministry said it had decided to bar Sinatra after receiving a report from its director of cinematography.

It said the film "presented a false image of a filthy Mexican border town where quickie divorces and marriages were performed by a shabby mayor."

It said a protest was sent to Warner Bros. First National Pictures S.A. of Mexico City with the request that half the film's footage be cut. The request was not complied with, it said.

Plant Could Provide Answer to Leukemia

By Science Service

WASHINGTON — A simple plant may provide the key to leukemia if the right one can be found, the American Cancer Society reported.

Research by a Virginia scientist has revealed that some plants produce antibody like substances.

"These will force particular white blood cells to clump together with all the selectivity of an antibody fighting a virus,"

Somewhere there may exist a plant sensitive to leukemic cells which can be used both to detect the disease and to search for its cure.

Dr. Ali A. Hossaini, assistant professor of clinical pathology at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, Va., has isolated, in all, 24 substances called lectins.

SEARCHING FOR ONE

One of these lectins, while it clumped together all normal white cells, would not work on the leukemic cells of three patients and the pathologist is now searching for one that will.

He told Science Service that if such a lectin is found, it should be possible to use this to discover what chemical differences exist between normal cells and leukemic cells.

"When you get to that stage," he said, "you can probably find an antidote."

The lectin itself would attack diseased cells, but a cure could only come from understanding the chemical nature of leukemia.

FROM SEEDS

Dr. Hossaini did not wish to name the plant used in his latest finding, but he did say what was meant by "substance." It is a kind of "coffee" made from seeds.

The seeds were first ground in a coffee machine set at "drip." Then a saline solution was added and the liquid left to set overnight in the refrigerator.

Dr. Hossaini either used the sediment itself or took the extract by centrifugation.

OK 1 Man-1 Vote County Districting

The Michigan Supreme Court yesterday upheld the one man-one vote basis for apportionment of county boards of supervisors.

On the same 4-3 vote the high court also nullified the provision of the Michigan Constitution that each incorporated township is entitled to one representative on its county legislative body.

Justice Theodore Souris in his 42-page opinion deferred the actual question of re-districting to the Legislature and suggested an 18-month working period.

"We believe that it is the wise exercise of judgment to defer to the Legislature until the end of the 1967 session for corrective legislation or constitutional amendatory action," he said.

The court ruling on apportionment had been pending for over a year. It served to uphold the population-only ruling of Kent County Circuit Judge Fred Searl.

RULING ANTICIPATED

Delos Hamlin, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, said today that he had anticipated a ruling upholding the one man-one vote concept.

He was hopeful that a pending House bill, passed last month in anticipation of the Supreme Court ruling, would be amended to increase the apportionment committee membership from three to five.

"The House bill calls for the county clerk, treasurer and prosecuting attorney to serve as the apportionment body as the apportionment committee," Hamlin noted.

He added that the Supervisors Inter County Committee (SICC) representing six southeastern Michigan counties, including Oakland, has recommended a five-member group.

"This would include a representative of each political party, a township government representative, city government representative and the chairman of the county board of supervisors," Hamlin said.

Prior to the SICC proposal, for makeup of the apportionment committee, the Oakland County Board of Supervisors had recommended a five-member committee of two Democrats, two Republicans and a fifth member selected by the first four.

Oakland County's present clerk, treasurer and prosecutor all are Democrats.

Under the recently passed House bill, maximum membership of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors would be 35. Presently it is 86.

AWAITS ACTION

The measure awaits Senate action.

Yesterday's high court voting followed party lines with four Democratic justices voting for equal population and the three Republicans voting against.

The court's other member, Democrat Justice Eugene Black, wrote an opinion but did not vote either on the apportionment issue or the right of townships to have a board of supervisors representative.

Usually, five votes are required for a majority but Chief Justice Thomas Kavanagh said that four would constitute a majority in yesterday's decisions because one justice did not vote.

In upholding Judge Searl's ruling, the high court overturned the ruling of Muskegon Judge Henry Beers who ruled against the one man-one vote approach.

MARIA CALLAS

Report Singer Gives Up U.S. Citizenship

PARIS (AP) — Opera singer Maria Callas has renounced her American citizenship in an attempt to end her marital and financial difficulties with her Italian husband, reliable sources disclosed today.

Miss Callas was not available for comment. The sources said she renounced her citizenship in the American Embassy in Paris March 18. The embassy would make no comment on the case.

Miss Callas was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1923.

Her birth in New York gave her American citizenship, but because both her parents were Greek she also has Greek nationality.

The sources said Miss Callas told the embassy orally that she was giving up American citizenship because this would end her marital and financial complications with Milan industrialist Giovanni Battista Meneghini, who launched her on her career.

Miss Callas and Meneghini separated legally in 1959, following the start of her much-publicized attachment to Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis. Since then they have been involved in a continual legal battle over money.

Calvin J. Werner, vice president of General Motors and general manager of the division, said today that the three-month figure eclipsed last year's mark of 29,776 by 10 per cent.

He attributed the record principally to a selling surge in March when 12,450 trucks and buses were delivered to the domestic market.

This total made last month the best March in GMC Truck & Coach Division's history, topping 1965's figure of 19,929 by 14 per cent.

Just a Home-Body

NEWARK, England (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy was sent to reform school after admitting he broke into 369 homes in 15 months and stealing a total of $6,720 in goods.

CHILDREN IN PROTEST — Teachers led South Vietnamese school children in an orderly antigovernment and anti-American demonstration in Hue yesterday. It was the third straight day that thousands marched in such protests in the central Vietnamese capital city.

New Demonstrations Rock 2 Viet Cities; Ky Confident

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — New antigovernment demonstrations rocked Saigon and Hue today, but Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime appeared to be making some headway toward ending the grave political crisis that has threatened to tumble it.

Ky called the situation still serious but said he is confident the difficulties with dissident military men in Da Nang can be resolved peacefully.

A few hours after his optimistic statement, 1,000 demonstrators surged through the center of Saigon tonight, wrecking a Vietnamese newspaper office on the way.

The youths moved out from a student headquarters at whistle commands from a group of young Buddhist monks.

The mob gathered strength as it surged downtown and attacked the ground floor office of the paper, smashing machinery and furniture with knives and sticks.

REPORT FACT
The demonstrations came on the heels of a report of a pact between Saigon authorities and militant student leaders to ease tensions in the capital.

About 10,000 Vietnamese demonstrated peacefully earlier in the day in Hue, 400 miles northeast of Saigon.

Because of the continuing agitation in the northern Buddhist stronghold, some 70 foreign civilians—half of them Americans—were evacuated to nearby Marine bases at Phu Bai and Da Nang.

The U.S. Embassy, which canceled its first evacuation order yesterday, decided to act after it was told by Vietnamese authorities they could not assure the safety of American installations in Hue.

Most U.S. advisers with the Vietnamese army's 1st Division in the Hue area also were called into U.S. Command compounds in Hue and elsewhere, but some American advisers remained in the field with Vietnamese troops.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., charged today that the big three of American auto making have failed to warn millions of owners their cars had safety defects.

The charge was leveled against General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and the Chrysler Corp.

Mondale's case, histories of the charges involved 40,000 Lincoln Continentals, the 1965 model; 750,000 Chevrolet Corvairs, the 1960-63 models, and thousands of Buick Roadmasters, the 1961 model.

He also cited figures in 30,000 1965 Fords, a large number of 1965 Chryslers, Plymouths, and SAIGON demonstrators again defied the 9 p.m. curfew.

About 2,000 of them converged on the Buddhist Institute headquarters where several battalions of paratroopers attempted to keep them confined to a narrow area where they could be controlled.

The soldiers threw tear gas grenades at the crowd. The doors of the institute were locked.

Apparently the demonstrators had no intention of entering the institute but rather hoped to break out of the cordon to move downtown for further demonstrations.

Mondale's charges followed yesterday's disclosure that GM was attempting to repair 80,000 1961 Pontiac Tempests.

The Minnesota Democrat has introduced legislation that would force auto makers to notify owners—not merely dealers—of safety defects in their products.

'67 Budget Adopted by County Unit

A tentative Oakland County budget of $23.2 million for 1967 was adopted yesterday by the ways and means committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

The budget will be presented to the full board for approval later this month and then referred to the county allocation board.

Revision of preliminary budget will begin after the county is advised of its tax rate next month by the allocation board.

The final 1967 county budget will be approved by the board of supervisors next fall.

After a two-day review of the preliminary 1967 county budget proposed by the County Board of Auditors, the ways and means committee boosted expenditures by $300,000, from $22,907,852 to $23,207,852.

Committee members added $200,000 to the $100,000 contingency fund suggested by the auditors and specified an expenditure of $100,000 next year to begin numbering each of the some 300,000 land parcels in the county.

The numbering procedure, expected to take four years, and cost a total of $400,000, was called necessary for data processing procedures.

As revised by ways and means committee members, the preliminary budget calls for nondepartmental appropriations of $4,340,940, departmental expenditures of $10,920,101 and $7,948,811 in salaries.

In order to balance expenditures, the county must raise $15,295,702 through local taxes. Receipts for county services would make up the balance.

TAX RATE
A tax rate of 6.09 mills would be required to meet the local tax need in the preliminary budget.

This requirement would be even higher, 6.42 mills, when three carry-over deficit items are considered.

These include a $38,895 budget deficit as of Jan. 1 of this year, a $97,000 Royal Oak Drain deficiency and $435,937 to adjust an overestimate of tax delinquency revenue.

Last year the tentative 1966 budget of $19,428,037 was based on a tax rate of 5.92 mills.

The allocation board, however, allowed only 5.30 mills to the county when it apportioned the 15-mill limitation between the county, school districts and townships.

THREE CROSSES
On the three crosses, Jesus of Nazareth, the "friend of sinners" and companion of the lowly, the rejected and the lost, hung between two of that same miserable lot, a pair of robbers.

Ancient tradition identifies the two brigands as Dymas and Gestas, tough, violent Jews, plunderers of trade caravans, despoilers of the rich, guerrilla fighters against oppression who had turned to wanton pillage.

Such underground turbulence was common under the Roman occupation. Israel seethed against the grinding taxes, ex-pliotation, the infiltration of worshiped by ten thousand times ten thousand... forgive my sins."

And Jesus said, "Truly, I say to you, today you will be with Me in paradise."

The Roman centurion, in charge of the soldiers, put a sponge soaked in myrrer wine on the end of a javelin and held it up to Jesus, a potion to deaden pain. It touched Jesus' face and he died.

Dysmas watched, puzzled at his new reactions, but not confused, even though the confusion kept coming and going, but not now, and he, too, the forgiven, now could forgive and love.

It was the sixth hour, noon, the sky darkened and tremors shook the earth. The eclipse lasted until, the ninth hour (3 p.m.).

Although crucifixion normally takes two or three days the legionnaires were under orders to conclude it before nightfall, because of the start of the Passover festival.

They broke the legs of the two thieves, so they could no longer lift their bodies, thus bringing on speedy asphyxia.

Jesus, weakened by the earlier flogging, already was dead. So his legs were not broken. But as a finishing stroke, a soldier ran a spear into His side, which drained water and blood, indicating He died of a ruptured heart.

So ended the worldly career of Jesus, friend of the underdog, advocate of the outcasts, healer of lepers, champion of the despised, the illiterate and lawless sinners, confederate in death as in life of the same lowly company — the least, and lost and forgotten.

And in his direst moment, it was one of them, a thief, who saw and acclaimed his saving sovereignty, while respectable society turned its back.

TAUNT HIM
"Aha!... He saved others; He cannot save himself... He trusts in God; let God deliver Him now... If He is the King of Israel, let him come down from the cross, and we will believe Him."

Turning his head slightly Dysmas looked briefly at this final companion, a pitifully forlorn fellow, a terrible sadness in His eyes, but also a flaming tenderness, an incredible loving submissiveness.

But He was failing fast, His body having been previously torn and mutilated by flogging. A convulsion seized Dysmas and even as he fought through it, his mind stormed with anger.

"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

WORDS OF JESUS
The words of Jesus, the startling magnanimity, came bounding at Dysmas, breaking into his agony and anger.

He raised himself, panting, and sank again.

Again, voices reached him, this time the raging, begging, mocking fury of Gestas, "Are you not the Christ?" he yelled. "Save yourself and us!"

The taunt went on, as old biblical accounts have it. "Why callest Thou Thyself Son of God, and canst not help Thyself... I behold Thee, not as a man, but as a wild beast cowering and perishing along with me."

Dysmas, in that extremity, suddenly saw something more. The onrushing rings of pain whirling at him took on other images, and straining, blinking, he turned his head and gasped.

"I know Thee, Christ... the Son of God. I see Thee, Christ, the Son of God."

Woman Constable Says 'Yes'

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — For the first time in its history, the city will soon install a woman constable.

Mrs. Virginia Craig, 45, of 280 Cranbrook has decided to accept the post to which she was elected as write-in candidate when former Constable Homer Murphy chose not to seek the post because of a busy schedule.

"Of course I'm going to accept the job," she said. "I feel a definite responsibility to my community."

Mrs. Craig explained that she became a candidate at the request of her husband, Robert.

"My husband asked me on the day of the election, if I would like to run for constable," said Mrs. Craig. "My answer—why not?"

Mrs. Craig's duties will be confined to civil matters.

Russell made the disclosure after critic Ralph Nader attacked the Tempest during Senate Commerce Committee hearings on President Johnson's proposed traffic safety legislation.

Nader's charges also led to GM confirmation of its attempt to modify 1.5 million 1964-65 Chevelles and 1965 Chevrolets with "powerglide" automatic transmissions.

THROTTLE STICKS
Snow and slush forming on the accelerator linkage of these cars caused the throttle to stick after the driver lifted his foot from the accelerator.

At a cost of $2 each, Russell said, GM had installed splash guards over the linkage of 31,000 of the cars.

But the GM official said he did not know how many 1961 Tempests had been modified. The car's front end crossmember has a pointed edge that snags on road obstacles.

Nader said that the American Association of Railroads had received more than 100 reports from members of Tempests becoming snagged at hilly grade crossings. He accused Pontiac of trying to curtail news of the defect.

DEALERS NOTIFIED
But Russell said 19 "communications" were sent to dealers between 1961 and 1963 urging that the defect be corrected.

He also said that the press was notified about the Chevelle and Chevrolets on March 30.

Mondale also listed the Chevrolets and Chevelles in his list. He said dealers were notified of the sticky accelerator several months ago and that GM announced it because of growing public pressures.

Under the legislation he introduced yesterday Detroit would be required to notify owners by registered mail and by public notice in newspapers. Failure to comply could mean $1,000 fine for each car involved, and five to six years imprisonment.

Two Fugitives Turn Selves In

Two Pontiac men sought by federal authorities for alleged illegal sale of narcotics surrendered themselves this morning to vice squad officers at the Pontiac police station.

They were identified by police as Roy White, 30, of 173 Bagley and Lewis Cummings, 39, of 240 W. Lessen.

Police said the two were booked through the Pontiac department prior to being turned over to U.S. marshals.

White and Cummings were among a score of persons sought in a narcotics raid the past weekend, but had not been located during the 14-hour dragnet operation.

MAKE OVER PAGES
Sale of Pontiac-Owned Land in Avon OK'd

An offer to purchase 72 acres of city-owned land in Avon Township for $180,000 was accepted last night by the City Commission.

The offer, made by an Oak Park couple in behalf of the Star-Best Development Co., was the highest of four bids received on the property located on Crooks.

Terms of the purchase on a five-year land contract included a $50,000 down payment and 6 per cent interest on the balance.

City Manager Joseph A. Warren said the city had no use for the vacant property, which was acquired by the city in 1929 as a possible site for a sewage treatment plant.

The bids ranged from $115,136 to the high bid of $180,000.

APPROVE APPLICATION

In other business last night, the commission approved an application to the State Highway Department setting down conditions for a pedestrian bridge on West Huron in front of Webster School.

Construction of the proposed overpass had been stalled while city officials negotiated with the state on conditions for erecting the pedestrian walkway.

Officials in Chicago Will Resubmit Plan

City Manager Joseph A. Warren will meet his critics face-to-face today at the Chicago regional office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Warren and Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. head a contingent of Pontiac officials that will personally resubmit the city's 1966 Workable Program for Community Improvement for recertification.

HUD authorities returned the bulky document last week asking for further information on two specific points.

Recertification of the program is necessary for communities where there are federally financed projects such as urban renewal.

Federal funds can be withheld until the program receives the annual federal approval.

JUST FORMED

HUD officials requested:

- Minutes of meetings of the city's citizens committee on minority group housing, which was just formed Feb. 24.
- The city hire a full-time person for the systematic code enforcement program.

On the latter question, city officials are to report they expect to employ a building inspector and assign him full-time to the systematic housing code program.

The city had been seeking an additional sanitarian in the health department to assign to this program, but has been unsuccessful in recruiting since Dec. 6, 1965.

City officials are generally optimistic that the workable program will be recertified with presentation of the additional information.

Joseph E. Neippling presented and had approved by the commission a contract for constructing a projected storm trunk sewer.

Forming a portion of the Hamilton project proposed by the Oakland County drain commissioner, the trunk sewer would service major apartment developments on the east side of Woodward, south of the future East Boulevard extension.

REIMBURSEMENT

The contract provides for the city to do the work now and be reimbursed later by the drain-age district to be established.

Neippling, who could not give a cost estimate on the construction, said the storm drain work would enable the development of the Bloomfield Townhouse Apartments to proceed.

The apartment construction, located across from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, has been held up because of the storm water problems.

Neippling said the Hamilton drain, a county drain project, had been stalled due to problems on negotiation of the right-of-way involving Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

VIRTUALLY SOLVED

These right-of-way problems have virtually been solved, he added.

As a county drain project, costs of the Hamilton drain to city taxpayers probably won't appear on tax bills until December 1967, according to Neippling.

The drain, or the city's portion, runs on the east from Square Lake Road and the Grand Trunk tracks to the apartment property, then in a northwesterly direction across this parcel to the East Boulevard extension. It connects with existing storm drains there.

In still other business last night, the commission was informed by Warren that the application for intern housing for Pontiac General Hospital has been returned by the federal government.

Easter Egg Hunt Is Set for Saturday

The hunt is on—sunshine, rain, or snow.

The annual Easter Egg Hunt will be held Saturday at four locations in the city and one in Waterford Township.

Sponsored jointly by the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department and four civic organizations, the city's egg hunt for youngsters ten years old and under will be at 1:30 p.m.

The township's egg hunt, sponsored by the Waterford Township Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be held at 11 a.m. at the Waterford Township Athletic Field.

Recreation Supervisor Dick Cain urged parents not to bring their children to the four selected parks before 1:20 on the day of the hunt.

HUNT SITES

Egg hunts will be conducted at Beaudette Park, sponsored by the Community Organizations of Pontiac; Oakland Park, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of North Pontiac; Jaycee Park, sponsored by the Pontiac Area Junior Chamber of Commerce; and Murphy Park, sponsored by the Pontiac Optimist Club.

The Waterford hunt is open to all children up to nine years old, according to Whitney Carnahan, president of the Waterford Jaycees.

Once again, the Jaycees will visit children's wards at local hospitals to distribute eggs and candy.

age and the alleged lack of effort to improve local bus service.

SUGGESTS ROUTES

He suggested that new bus routes, which would tie the city's shopping centers together on a single line, be tried.

City Manager Warren pointed out that the city's contract with Pontiac Transit Corp., through which the bus firm receives a subsidy from the city of more than $20,000 a year, expires in three weeks.

Also last night, the resignation of Leon H. Hubbard, 69 Bagley, from the Human Relations Committee was accepted.

Mayor Pro Tem Leslie H. Hudson last night renewed a proposal to modify the routes of bus lines in the city.

Hudson has repeatedly objected to the drop in bus patron-

Safety's the Word for Diving Deputy

By DAVID J. COOK

Medward Tessier is 33, owns a waterfront home on Wolverine Lake, and spends hot summer weekends in the waters of every lake in the county but his own.

A deputy with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department since 1957, Tessier heads the sheriff's squad of divers, a group annually challenged with the task of keeping safe the county's 470-odd lakes.

Tessier, at 6 feet 2 and 195 pounds, is unofficially the "No. 1" diver in the department. Since inception of the department's safety division, he has personally supervised training of other deputies in diving techniques.

In addition, each summer he coordinates with Lt. Donald K. Kratt the 38 special deputies assigned to water patrol.

Tessier lives at 829 Laguna, Wolverine Lake, with his wife, Marilyn, and their three children, Deborah, 11; Dennis, 9; and Douglas, 4.

NEVER ENDS

The task of policing thousands of boaters, swimmers, and fishermen virtually never ends during the summer months.

When disaster strikes, Tessier's job can be a grim one.

"I love diving," he said, "but when we're called out to go under, it's usually to get the body of a person who's drowned."

"On very rare occasions we get a call quickly enough so that with proper first aid we can save somebody's life."

SPECIAL DOG

Giving Tessier assistance in all these areas is "Thor," a 125-pound German Shepherd specially trained in police work.

"We (Tessier and Thor) were at a meeting recently with about 20 Boy Scouts and 15 parents," Tessier said.

"First Thor went through his routine — keeping a suspect at bay, scent-tracking and then actually grabbing onto an arm (Tessier's) and holding a fugitive."

"When that was over I gave him the signal and he went and played with the kids."

PUBLIC CONTACT
It is through this type of contact with the public that Tessier believes law enforcement in general and safety consciousness in particular can be helped.

"We go out on a speaking engagement or demonstration," he said, "and people want to know what happens in a certain situation and who takes care of it."

"We don't beat around the bush with them. We just tell them who handles it — us — and how we do it."

"With the lakes in this county, we've got to be ready for everything," Tessier said.

ALL TYPES

"We've got deep, cold, spring-fed lakes; shallow waters with four or five feet of silt on the bottom and virtually no visibility, and really big lakes where a body could just disappear."

"Our divers have to be prepared to work in any one of these situations."

Just as the functions of the safety division have been broadened from its original water patrol status, Tessier's work does not end when he climbs out of the water.

Lost children, crowd control, criminal tracking and exposure of the public to safety needs are also part of his schedule.

Waterford Jaycees Claim 'Smut' Back on Newstands

Alleged obscene literature, reportedly wiped off Waterford Township newstands last year through a joint effort of the Waterford Township Junior Chamber of Commerce and police department, is reappearing before the public eye, according to Jaycees.

Jaycees have pointed out the reoccurrence of the problem to township board members.

The board has supported a further study of the matter by Jaycees, board members and police.

Residents, familiar with the former Jaycee project, had contacted members of the organization for action.

The previous project was regarded as highly successful because of the cooperation of store owners who agreed to keep smutty literature out of access of youths.

Westacres: Subdivision That's Different

By HUDSON WILLSE

Westacres is a subdivision in West Bloomfield Township with a deceiving history.

It looks like a neighborhood developed for the above-average income family.

But Westacres is a child of poverty.

It was a Depression housing project.

It was low-cost housing built for the low-income factory worker 30 years ago.

These elements, plus 30 years, should equal slum. But Westacres was immunized from the beginning by large doses of an antislum vaccine — open space.

In this respect, it stands as a model of community planning.

Located along Commerce Road about midway between

Union Lake and Green Lake roads, Westacres is seemingly far removed and apart from its neighboring communities.

Nestled on the northeast shore of Middle Straits Lake, the subdivision is characterized by its residents, quiet streets and a charming organization.

KEY FEATURE

However, the most noticeable feature is that all but a few of its homes are situated on one-acre parcels of land.

If planning had always been laid out with such foresight, the number of slum areas in this country would be cut drastically.

Westacres was set up in 1936 by Oakland Housing, Inc., an independent and nonprofit corporation formed by the State of Michigan.

When Oakland Housing constructed 150 low-cost homes at $4,439 each on the 874-acre tract of land in that depression year, its aims were:

- To provide well-built, low-cost housing for industrial workers earning $1,200 to $1,800 a year and subjected to seasonal unemployment.

- To provide a large enough lot for each house so that the owner could grow enough vegetables to supply his family.

- To encourage residents by financing their enterprises to supplement their earnings during periods of unemployment or after work.

- To encourage and assist residents to develop a satisfactory community life.

COMMONPLACE

It was commonplace in the 1930s for the production worker to be laid off his job two or three months a year.

The original homes built in Westacres are all two-story dwellings of cluder block and frame construction.

In the early 1950s, 20 additional homes were built by Oakland Housing on one-half acre parcels.

However, the restrictions set up by Oakland Housing in 1936 are still in effect.

LOT PURCHASE

No one can purchase a lot and build a home in the subdivision.

Also, building along the subdivision's lake front area is forbidden.

The Westacres Community Association, consisting of recreation, civic, dance, clubhouse, beach and waterfront committees, maintains a budget for community improvements and activities.

Dues are $24 a year per family.

RENTAL FEES

In addition, revenue is obtained through rental fees from users of the subdivision's large clubhouse. The subdivision rents the building from Oakland Housing and, in turn, rents it out to groups.

Westacres must be one of a few subdivisions with its own volunteer fire department, credit union, weekly publication (The Westacres Weekly) and women's association.

And the fire department, boasting its own truck, is called into action occasionally, usually to fight grass fires.

The clubhouse is the center of numerous activities, including rummage sales, scouting events, dances, parties and even blood banks.

SUMMER EVENTS

During the summer, activity is centered on Middle Straits Lake. The highlight is an annual two-day aquacade and field day in June.

Swimming events and other contests are held for both youths and adults. Stands are erected for spectators to view the proceedings.

Two lifeguards are on duty at the beach three months each year.

SHARE COSTS

Oakland Housing paid two-thirds of the cost and residents the remaining one-third.

Beach facilities include a large raft, slide, beachhouse and parking lot.

Future plans call for construction of two tennis courts near the waterfront at a total estimated cost of $2,000.

The subdivision also includes a large play area for youth, featured by two baseball diamonds.

SOME RETURN

Indicative of Westacres' popularity as a place to live is that some residents who spent their childhoods in the subdivision have eventually returned there to reside.

A survey taken five years ago showed that 41 original owners (1936) and 32 other families, who have lived in Westacres 20 years or more, still resided in the subdivision in 1961.

Doctor Keeps Police at Bay

Home Is Surrounded; 4 Children Said Safe

ROARING SPRING, Pa. (UPI) — Barricaded in his home with his four small children, an armed county doctor held state troopers at bay for the third day today.

Dr. Patrick M. Boccagno's standoff with the law began Monday when the local chief of police, an acquaintance he once treated for a heart attack, came to quiet a domestic row between the doctor and his wife.

Chief Eugene L. Smith said he backed off when Boccagno, 38, drew a gun.

The doctor's 28-year-old wife, who Smith said had been strangled at least twice, was rescued by police from the roof of the family home where she had taken refuge.

Four state troopers took up posts around the home at the outskirts of this small central Pennsylvania community.

"No attempt will be made to force the doctor from his home," Smith said. "We will take no action that would endanger the children."

The besieged doctor said he would keep the children, all under six, "out of harm's way."

"I'll put the children in a safe place if anybody starts shooting," he told United Press International in a telephone conversation.

Boccagno, charged with surety of the peace and pointing a gun, was conferring with his

Bronson Lawsuit Is Taken for Advisement by Judge

The question of whether or not Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson is legally allowed to run the office of circuit judge yesterday by Circuit Judge William J. Beer.

He told opposing attorneys following a two-hour hearing on the matter that he needed time to study their briefs, but that he would inform them immediately when he was ready to render an opinion.

It is expected that no matter what ruling he makes, the ruling will be appealed to higher courts.

Bronson has challenged the constitutionality of a state law that prohibits an elected official involved in a grand jury investigation from seeking a job post other than the one he is holding until one year after the inquiry ends.

The 36-year-old prosecutor announced his candidacy for a fifth year term on the bench last month, and then followed up with the suit against the county clerk, election commission and the secretary of state.

ATTORNEYS ARGUE

Two attorneys, Carlton Roesser and Theodore Sachs, argued in Bronson's behalf, while three lawyers, including another circuit court candidate, defended the constitutionality of the statute.

They were Russell A. Searl, assistant state attorney; Robert Allen, county corporation counsel; and Maurice Merritt, a circuit court hopeful who was permitted to intervene in the case.

It was the contention of Roesser and Sachs that the legislature in adopting the grand jury law had set qualifications which it had no authority to do because the courts are created by the constitution.

They said this violates the doctrine of separation of powers.

ELIMINATE ABUSES

"One must recognize that the legislature took the action to eliminate abuses, or the probability of abuses," Sachs said.

"The law pertains to judges, not to the legislature," he said.

The planning official said that by 1970, the end of the new five-year plan, the national income will rise to $294 billion of credit to the 1965 figure of $210 billion.

The five-year plan calls for a 38 to 41 per cent growth in national income. The planned target for this year is about 6.4 per cent.

"It was not intended to set up qualifications for circuit judge."

During his argument, Merritt said "the law was created to keep participants from capitalizing on publicity during the investigation."

Soviet Aide Admits Slip in Growth

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia's top planner today admitted that the nation's economic growth rate had slipped almost 2 per cent in the past five years.

Nikolai Baibakov, chairman of the state planning committee, told the 23rd Communist party congress that "national income" went up at the average rate of only 6 per cent compared to 8.2 per cent in the previous half-decade—1956-1960.

The falling-off in Russia's economic advance could be easily seen in recently published statistics. But Baibakov made the first direct admission.

American officials, however, claim that the rate of Soviet economic growth is running at approximately 4.5 per cent.

Baibakov blamed the trend on a "certain decline in the efficiency of social production in recent years," an apparent reference to former Premier Nikita Khrushchev's alleged bungling in economic management.

LAMBASTES NIKITA

Premier Alexei Kosygin lambasted Khrushchev yesterday (although not by name) for "errors, miscalculations and amateurism" and said this constituted a great deal to the economic development.

The planning official said that by 1970, the end of the new five-year plan, the national income will rise to $294 billion of credit to the 1965 figure of $210 billion.

The five-year plan calls for a 38 to 41 per cent growth in national income. The planned target for this year is about 6.4 per cent.
