Divided Berlin: Hottest Spot of Cold War

Consensus Is 'No'

Is Berlin Fuse of A-War?

Editor's Note: Modern Berlin is a tale of two cities, one Communist and one free. In the following dispatch the general European news manager of United Press International examines the divided city, its people, its leaders, and the latest Communist line, and building up toward a showdown in the cold war.

By HARRY FERGUSON

BERLIN (UPI)—Let's face up to the big question right away. Is something about to happen here that will start World War III? A nuclear war, that is, with missiles raining death on New York and Moscow, Leningrad and London, Kiev and Paris? Is the awesome prophecy in the Book of Revelations about to come true, that the armies of the world are assembling at Armageddon for the ultimate battle in which "the cities of the nations fell" and every island fled away and no mountain was to be found?

When you put the question of whether there is going to be a big war directed to West Berlin, you get this answer: "I do not think so. But it would be tragic not to realize that this crisis carries some risks."

What risks? There are two big ones:

—That by accident or design, local war fought with conventional weapons would break out, but with sides holding back, their hydrogen bombs temporarily.

—That the Western powers could be bluffed or maneuvered out of Berlin, leaving the West Berliners deserted and disillusioned.

If the West is forced out of Berlin, Russia will have won the Cold War.

No American pledge of moral support or military assistance to small or neutral nations relating communism would be worth a dime. One by one, like ripe plums, they would fall into the lap of Nikita Khrushchev.

So much for what the statesmen and politicians think. What about the average man living in West Berlin?

Q. Do you think the Western nations will desert Berlin?

A. No. The West is gathering its strength.

The customers come and go. Hermann Tech jokes with them.

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

WASHINGTON — The Air Force has alerted 28,000 men in 71 Air National Guard and Air Reserve units for a possible call to active duty as a part of the defense build-up to meet the Berlin crisis.

The announcement Tuesday came after President Kennedy signed legislation authorizing him to call to active duty up to 250,000 reservists and extend active duty tours and enlistments by one year.

Final Congressional action on the measure stamped its OK on the measure Friday.

The alert notice follows Air Force announcement Monday that four Air Force bases, slated to be retired from active use, would remain on active status to provide facilities for continued operation of B-47 jet bombers which will be retained in service.

Some 200 bombers and tankers slated to give way to larger model aircraft will continue in use instead of being deactivated.

The 64 Air National Guard and 7 Reserve units alerted Tuesday fly tactical fighters, reconnaissance planes and transporters. About 750 aircraft are involved, including about 100 transports.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara publicly opposed Senate efforts to maintain production of heavy jet bombers with a $25-million addition to Kennedy's defense requests.

There was little doubt the bill would be approved. The Senate

Case history: Name, Hermann Tech, Age, 53. Married with one child. Owns a butcher shop. Works 12 hours a day and makes a fairly good living. Was an infantry man in the German army during World War II. Wounded a total of four times. Captured by the Russians in a battle near the Don River. Three years of hard labor in the Soviet Union. Made his way back to Berlin in 1947. Worked as a scrap metal collector during the Berlin blockade in 1948.

Q. Mr. Tech, do you think there will be a war?

A. There will be no war. The Russians cannot afford a war with nuclear bombs. If there is a war with conventional weapons, the Russians will lose it because they don't have enough materials.

Q. Do you ever get worried about a plan to leave Berlin?

A. I will never leave Berlin. If the Russians should take over Berlin, there is a lot more of the world than would become Communist.

Q. How do you think this crisis will end?

A. Khrushchev must give way and he will give way. A big war would have too many risks for him.

Q. Then you think Khrushchev is bluffing?

A. Not exactly. But he is asking for a lot in the hope he will get a little of what he wants.

Sheriff's deputies identified the drowned son as Steven Seninger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Seninger.

His older brother, John, 17, described Steven as a poor swimmer.

Mr. Seninger said, "He said they were skin diving in shallow water about 34 feet deep when he lost sight of Steven."

He towed his brother's body to shore after finding it minutes later, farther from shore.

Attempts by the brother, Wisnom Fire Department and Sheriff's Department rescue unit to revive the boy failed.

The family had rented a nearby cottage on Flamingo Road for the summer.

Police Find Driver in Market for Ticket

TORRINGTON, Wyo. (UPI)—The Torrington Police Department put on a vigorous campaign to get people pay overdue parking tickets.

After a thorough check of records, officers informed Terrell Rasmussen he had no tickets and didn't owe a thing.

"Owe," Rasmussen responded. "I want to buy a parking ticket — so I can park in Torrington all year."

Workers Told to Find Jobs in East; Threaten to Shut Iron Curtain

MOSCOW (UPI) — Italian sources said tonight that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told Italy's Premier Amintore Fanfani that he does not expect a war over Berlin but that talks must be held to solve the vital Berlin issue.

From Our News Wires

BERLIN — The Communists today opened an angry campaign against the thousands of East Germans who work in West Berlin.

Many of the 53,000 so-called "border crossers" failed to report for work today.

Reports reaching here said hundreds of them were pulled off commuter trains and buses and told they must find jobs in the East.

Placards denouncing them as "traitors" who sold their labor to the "bourgeoisie" were posted in their neighborhoods.

Some were evicted from their homes for refusing to give up their Western jobs.

Others were ordered to report to their local police stations and explain why they worked in the West.

"Some day we will lead all Germany, even if you do not understand that today," wrote Gerhard Eisler, top East German propagandist, in the Berliner Zeitung.

Eisler's editorial in the East Berlin newspaper declared:

"Our flat to those who believe their reactionary backwardness gives them the right to treat our security and the interests of our citizens disgracefully."

Communist-sponsored resolutions passed in factories demanded "measures be taken" against the border-crossers.

Communist boss Walter Ulbricht threatened to slam the Iron Curtain shut on the refugees fleeing his regime.

Rep. Maxine Young Is Accused of Forging Names on Petitions

DETROIT (UPI)—Rep. Maxine Young, D-Detroit, today was charged with forging signatures on primary election petitions in a warrant issued by Recorder Judge Joseph A. Gillis.

She was accused of forging signatures on petitions seeking to place former Lt. Gov. Eugene C. Keyes on the Democratic primary ballot for lieutenant governor a year ago today.

Keyes was indicted last month by a one-man jury on charges of election fraud. The grand jury charged official misconduct on the part of Mrs. Young. Her case was turned over to the Wayne County prosecutor.

Samuel Brezner, Wayne County chief assistant prosecutor, recommended the warrant.

He said if charges had not been filed today the statute of limitations—one year from the election in this case—would have expired.

Brezner said he was able to ask for the warrant on the basis of additional information he received late Tuesday.

Charter Township's Benefits Explained

Louis A. Schimmel of Pontiac told members of the Greater Waterford Community Council last night that Waterford Township will have to become a charter township before it can finance large scale public improvements of quality, at a reasonable cost to township residents.

The Michigan public finance expert spoke to the council at John D. Pierce Junior High School, explaining the methods of financing a master sewer system for the township.

"Waterford is now under an ordinary township form of government," Schimmel said. "It represents the chance to make a giant step forward."

The council has been investigating for several months Waterford's need for a permanent master sewer system.

Schimmel, former president of the Pontiac Board of Education, estimated that the whole sewerage project would cost a maximum of $10 million.

He said the easiest and cheapest way to finance such a project was through general obligation bonds paid off over a period of 30 or more years.

"The same general obligation bonds on a long term basis at low interest rates, you must give the interest on Page 2, Col. 8."

Tammy Kay, 3; Timothy Lee, 14 months, and Teddy James, 2 months, all have cystic fibrosis, one of the world's most relentless killers of children and a disease for which there is no known cure.

Mrs. Jenney, 24, confesses: "You just have to live with it. Your only hope is that they will find a cure."

Cystic fibrosis is a disease which leads to long months of coughing, leading foods combined with medication and equipment in a sea of thickening lung secretions.

Twyla Rae, 4, and Terrence, 2, apparently have escaped the disease which was first detected in Tammy a year ago.

Luckless Family Suffers Tragedy

Parents of Accidentally Slain Boy Were Just Shaking Off Mishaps

By DICK HANBON

The young William LaRose family of 284 Osburn St. was struggling back from a series of hard-luck mishaps when yet another tragedy struck yesterday.

Their 5-year-old son was fatally shot in the face while a playmate was showing him the stolen revolver his step-father had obtained "for protection."

Mark LaRose died at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital an hour after he was shot as he stood in the back yard of Lewis Freeman, 11. Mark was watching him load the gun.

Lewis told Pontiac police he had asked Mark if he wanted to see his stepfather's gun. Lewis got it from the house, he said, adding that he had unloaded it and was reloading it when the 38-caliber revolver went off by accident.

Following the shooting, Lewis son of Mr. and Mrs. Knox Williams, 280 Osburn St., took the weapon back into the house, finished reloading it, and replaced it under the mattress of his parent's bed.

Special Meeting Slated to Discuss Tennis Courts

The Waterford Township Board of Education will hold a special meeting Thursday night at 7:30 at the board offices, 2102 W. Main Blvd., to discuss the construction of tennis courts at township schools.

It is estimated the courts needed will cost $3,000, with $4,500 of this coming from the Greater Waterford Community Council.

The council announced at its meeting last night that its drive to raise the needed funds has fallen about $223 short.

Council officers reported pledges and donations totaled $4,726. A final decision on the tennis courts is expected at tomorrow night's meeting.

Council officers also reported they will buy a school bus from the board of education at a nominal fee for use in the township this fall as a bookmobile.

HEAR SHOTS

Neighbors said they heard two shots and found the boy lying on the ground. One of the neighbors phoned the police.

The second shot went off in the Williams' kitchen, according to Lewis, while he was putting the gun back.

The young victim had been left in the care of his grandmother, Mrs. Raymond LaRosa.

Mark's mother, Mrs. William LaRosa, 33, was in the kitchen at the time of a shooting. She said she saw her son, 25, an unemployed truck driver, had taken a job for the day.

"Things were just looking up for my brother and his family," said Mrs. LaRosa. "With this shooting, it's all over."

"I've got a job. I've got a job," she said LaRosa told her happily when he called.

The LaRosa's have a second child, a 2-year-old daughter, Christa.

Police arrested Williams for investigation of having stolen property in his possession, after tracing the revolver to Detroit where it had been reported stolen Sept. 29, 1955.

Williams told Pontiac police he had bought the gun from a man he didn't know July 14. He said he didn't know it was stolen.

The transaction was negotiated in Detroit, just the other side of Eight Mile Road from Royal Oak Township, Williams said.

Williams told officers he bought the gun "for protection from a couple of guys who threatened to get me."

Lewis was placed in the custody of Oakland County Juvenile authorities pending further investigation.

"This looks like an unfortunate accident, but we have to cover all the angles," said Detective Lt. John DePaul.

President Pledges Support of Nationalist China in U.N.

From Our News Wire
WASHINGTON — President Kennedy today pledged firm U.S. support for Nationalist China's membership in the United Nations and opposition to the admission of Communist China into the world body.

A joint communique issued by the White House summed up two days of consultations between Kenedy and Chinese Nationalist Vice President Chen Cheng on the thorny representation issue.

The statement said Kennedy and Chen agreed that while both nations are "confronted with world situations, this problem can be evaluated only against the background of the worldwide Communist challenge."

It was agreed that the continued presence of two world forces is required in West Berlin.

On the question of Outer Mongolia's bid for admission to the United Nations, the statement said only that there was a "candid and comprehensive exchange of views on all relevant issues."

CONCERNED ON LAOS
As Asian trouble spots, the joint statement said the two leaders are concerned over the future of Laos, and that the United States is determined that South Viet Nam "shall not be lost to the Communists for lack of any support" from the United States.

In Saigon, meanwhile, the government ordered the mobilization of all men between the ages of 25 and 35 in a move to build up South Viet Nam's armed forces against increasing Communist terrorism.

The mobilization order came shortly after the Communist Viet Cong rebels made one of their boldest moves in the heart of Saigon.

"Nevertheless," he went on, "it is worth recalling that in every period when the world has been in danger from a tyrant or aggression, Britain has abandoned isolationism."

Despite opposition from a number of the ruling Conservatives as well as many Laborites, the trend on both sides of the House was clearly in favor of the principle of British membership in the European Economic Community.

Macmillan was expected to announce a vote of approval at the end of the two-day wrangle.

The way will then be clear for Macmillan's government to start negotiations with the Common Market members — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The British will demand tariff concessions for their Commonwealth partners whose economies are dependent on the British market and possibly exemption from the trend toward political unity that is slowly developing within the Continental Six.

For Britain to Face Red Threat

'Join European Market'

LONDON — Prime Minister Macmillan today declared Britain must abandon its traditional isolation and unite with the European Common Market to face the challenge of communism.

"Our right place is in the vanguard of the movement toward the greater unity of the free world," he told the House of Commons. "We can lead better from within than from outside. I am persuaded we ought to try."

Macmillan's speech marked the opening of a two-day debate on the British declaration, announced last Monday, to apply for membership of the six nation common market.

Macmillan noted that Britain had long entertained a tradition of isolation and suspicion of foreigners.

National Weather Changes Slightly, Rain to Continue

By The Associated Press
The nation's weather pattern showed only minor changes today with more showers in many areas and the prospect of thunderstorms and heavy rain during the afternoon and evening.

Temperature changes were slight. Some cooler weather moved into the Northeast, with readings ranging from the 40s in northern Maine to the lower 60s in eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, about 15 degrees lower than Tuesday.

Fair heavy rain fell during the night and early morning from western Illinois across Missouri and Kansas into southeast Colorado, northeast New Mexico and the Oklahoma-Texas Panhandle.

See Bizerte Debate Despite U.S. Stand

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Despite U.S. opposition to General Assembly debate on the Tunisian crisis, Asian-African leaders expressed confidence today they could line up enough support to call an emergency session.

Tunisia's allies said they had 32 of the 50 signatures needed to request a session on the deadlocked French-Tunisian dispute over the Bizerte naval base. They were certain of support from Cuba and the nine-nation Soviet bloc which meant they were only eight votes short of their goal.

Chief U.S. delegate Adlai E. Stevenson, back from Paris where he discussed the crisis with President Charles de Gaulle, expressed belief French-Tunisian differences would be settled by direct negotiation.

"No meeting of the general assembly is necessary or desirable," Stevenson said.

Stevenson told reporters both governments should be able to agree on the pullback to their respective positions requested by the Security Council in its July 22 cease-fire resolution. Concerning French evacuation of the naval base, the U.S. secretary declared that the French "don't intend to stay in the base forever" but want to settle the matter "promptly and harmoniously."

Stevenson scheduled a conference with Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim today before going on to Washington to report to President Kennedy on his talks with de Gaulle and other West European leaders.

Tunisian Defense Minister Rabi Ladgham arrived in Washington Tuesday night to confer with Kennedy.

President Habib Bourguiba, hitherto a staunch ally of the West, is bitter over U.S. failure to support his attempts to oust the French from Bizerte base. The United States, unwilling to offend France with the Berlin crisis brewing favored neither side but called for negotiations. Bourguiba dispatched emissaries to the Soviet Union, Latin America, Asia and Africa to seek support for his campaign against the French.

Close Iron Curtain on Berlin Workers

Despite the unprecedented checks, about 1,000 more East Germans made it to West Berlin today and asked for political asylum.

How many East Germans were caught while attempting to flee could not be determined. The number might have been as high as 500.

They faced trial under a law forbidding flight to the West or "preparations to flee."

A political storm was raging meanwhile over Sen. J. W. Fulbright's suggestion that the city's role as an escape hatch from East Germany is a point that can be negotiated with the Communists.

The Arkansas Democrat, chair of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, made the suggestion Sunday in a television interview. He was bitterly criticized in West Berlin and praised for his "realistic understanding" by the official Communist daily Neues Deutschland.

By contrast, General Motors brought its net income for the April-June period, the first three months of the year, to $121.7 million reported for the similar period of 1960. But the figure for the first six months of the year to date was $85.3 million below the $191 million.

The second-quarter figure for 1961 was $9 per cent above the $121.7 million reported for the similar period of 1960. But the figure for the first six months of the year to date was $85.3 million below the $191 million.

OK Selling Sewer Branch for Sanitary Interceptor

BIRMINGHAM — An 85-foot section of city-owned sewer line will be sold to the Evergreen Sanitary Sewer Interceptor following completion of an agreement with the Oakland County Department of Public Works.

The City Commission has approved selling the 30-inch line to the county for $7,515, a price set seven years ago when methods of allocating construction costs of the Evergreen interceptor were being studied.

The section of sewer line is located on the 10th block of 10th Ave. N. E. near the intersection of 10th and 11th Aves. N. E.

"There has been some question as to whether the price set for this section of the interceptor is a proper one," City Manager L. R. Gare said in a statement to commissioners.

"However, it must be borne in mind that a price had to be agreed upon for the sale of the sewer and, when the estimates of cost were being made in 1954, this price was considered a fair one," Gare said.

The city manager said the purchase price was determined by placing a value of $12 per foot on the 30-inch line less depreciation of 25 per cent for 20 years.

The sewer crosses the intersection of Lincoln Avenue and Shirley Drive. It continues 200 feet north of Lincoln Avenue on the west side of Shirley Drive and 2 1/2 feet south of the intersection.

Over 1,100 children are registered in the district supervised by the city's six playgrounds, the Birmingham Recreation Department announced today.

Crash projects completed by youngsters taking part in the program are on display at ShowCase, Inc., 138 Brownlee St.

The city's dance scheduled for last Friday was postponed due to rain. It will be held instead from 9 to 11:30 p.m. Aug. 25 at Elton Park, according to the department.

Upholds Transfer of Negro Students
NEW YORK — The U.S. Court of Appeals today upheld a lower court order authorizing public schools to desegregate by the predominantly Negro Lincoln school in New Rochelle, N.Y., to transfer to other schools in the city.

The Appeals Court vote was 2 to 1. The court refused to grant a stay of the lower court decree. The student body of the school is 94 per cent Negro. The court decision was instituted by some of the parents, who contended the school district had been gerrymandered to concentrate Negro children in the Lincoln school.

"Naturally, any general obligation bond issue will still have to be approved by a public vote before it can be put into effect," he said.

He also stated that the township would most likely never need an additional tax levy to pay for the project.

"If finances are properly structured, I feel the project can be completed without a tax levy," he said. "Earnings and revenues from the project alone could pay for the master sewer system over a 30 year period."

The council will sponsor a town hall meeting to discuss and explain the charter township proposal Sept. 5 at the Pierce Junior high school.

Sonny Liston Faces New Bout in Court
PHILADELPHIA — Charles (Sonny) Liston, heavyweight boxing contender, was held in $500 bail today charged with turning off his automobile lights to avoid identification by a police officer.

The fighter appeared before Judge Victor J. Blane in a pre-arrest hearing at city hall.

Liston, currently under indefinite suspension by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission for actions detrimental to boxing, was arrested last June 12, but discharged later by a magistrate.

He was charged then with impersonating an officer, conspiracy, and turning off his car lights, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Dow Declares Dividend
MIDLAND (AP) — The Dow Chemical Co. declared a 40 cents dividend payable Oct. 14. The board of directors raised the dividend Tuesday from the 35 cents it has been paying.

NIAGARA FALLS DRAWS ONE
NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — Niagara Falls hasn't lost its charm for the traveler, according to the Niagara Parks Commission.

In its annual report to the Ontario Provincial Legislature, the commission said two million automobiles and six million people passed through the parks in 1960.

Berlin—Germany's Modern Tale of Two Cities

as he slices and wraps the meat. They laugh at his jokes. Nobody mentions the current crisis. Nerves are steady. People who live in houses on the slope of a volcano are unlikely to have a nervous breakdown worrying about an eruption. And, like Hermann Teich, they never plan to run away from it.

American reporters in Berlin still like to tell the story of a United States senator who came here several years ago on a junket. He was well informed on such matters as irrigation, mining and land reclamation, but very shaky on foreign affairs. In the course of a press conference it suddenly dawned on him that Berlin was in Communist territory, and he exploded:

"Do you mean we are surrounded here by the Reds?"
"Yes, senator."
"Do the American people know this?"
"I don't know, senator."

"Then I'm going home and tell them so."

Geography and vital statistics: Berlin is 124 miles inside of Communist East Germany. The city is divided into four sectors—American, British, French and Russian. West Berlin is made up of the British, American and French sectors and has a population of 2,500,000.

East Berlin is the Russian sector and has a population of 1,100,000. The area of West Berlin is 135 square miles. East Berlin, 155 square miles. There is no physical barrier between the cities. Only a jagged line, blood red on the Berlin maps, shows where the city stops and another begins. Unless you are carrying a map you can cross a street and, without knowing it, be in a different city and a different world.

There is a cafe on the borderline where the back door is in East Berlin and the front door in West Berlin. Fifty thousand Germans live in Communist Berlin but work in West Berlin. Twenty thousand persons live in West Berlin and work in East Berlin.

There is a subway and an elevated railroad running between East Berlin and West Berlin, and anybody can ride on them. How and why this crazy-quilt arrangement was made is something we will deal with later, but let us turn now to the subway and the elevated train.

They are the holes in the iron curtain, the escape routes to the West, the freedom trains into brave new world. All you need is a nickel and plenty of nerve.

"Berlin," said Khrushchev, "is a bone in my throat. Here is why: Since July 1 an average of one person every 90 seconds has been fleeing from Communist Germany into West Berlin. Communist statistics are suspect, but the best estimate is that between 1949 and 1959 the East German population declined by 2,600,000. Now it is declining faster than ever.

This is an intolerable situation to the Communists. Here in Berlin the two rival political systems of our time are in a show window, side by side, for everybody to see. A German can go window shopping any time and size up the rival systems like a housewife examining the vegetables in a supermarket. Every day recently about 1,000 Germans have made up their minds in favor of the West.

Once a man has made up his mind what does he do?

Case history: Ulrich Guntard, 20, and his wife Gundula, 23. He comes from East Prussia and is a skilled craftsman specializing in construction of small boats and yachts. Two and a half years ago the Communists drafted him into the East German army. Assigned to the Ninth Armored Division and rose to the rank of sergeant at a salary equivalent to $53 a month.

When his military service term expired, Communist officials turned up at the camp and offered Ulrich and several of his friends jobs with the East German police force. He decided to accept the job rather than continue his military career because he was getting weary of the constant political indoctrination to which he was subjected in the army.

Every Thursday for eight hours he and his friends were forced to attend lectures on the virtues and glory of communism. He was told that in event of war he would have to fight the West Germans and shed the blood of his countrymen revolted him. ("They are my fellow Germans; I do not want to fight them").

After he joined the police force he was invited to become a member of the Communist Youth Organization. He joined, but then told he never would get anywhere in his career unless he became a full-fledged member of the Communist Party.

Ulrich kept his mouth shut, but right here is where he drew the line mentally and began thinking of escaping to the West. He turned down the offer to join the Communist Party and started trying to negotiate his way out of the police force.

FREEDOM'S SHOWPLACE—Surrounded by Communist East Germany on all sides, West Berlin remains prosperous and thriving despite crisis after crisis. Busy traffic moves along the Kurfuerstendam—one of its busier thoroughfares. Modern buildings show the extent of rebuilding in West Berlin since World War II.

The fact that he was a skilled boat builder helped and finally he was allowed to resign. He immediately looked up Gundula, who was working as a seamstress in the East German police could not question all of them. The price of the trip was 20 pfennigs each—five cents.

"Right away," said Ulrich, "we began planning to escape. We had to be very careful and only whisper to each other about it. We made all our plans to do it carefully. A friend of mine took two suitcases full of clothing over to West Berlin and hid them for me."

Ulrich and Gundula had not chosen any exact date on which to make their flight from East Berlin. It requires thought because you can get three years in prison for trying to escape. During the first week in July the tension began to build up and Ulrich told Gundula it was now or never.

They selected July 14 as the day for their flight. They chose the morning rush hour because there would be so many people on the train that the East German

They must have caught some important people in our car because at the last stop before we crossed into West Berlin the three detectives got off and took three men with them. Then I breathed easier and so did Gundula. We got off at the Neukoenig station in the American sector of West Berlin and we were free."

Ulrich said, "and went to the Schoeneweide elevated station in East Berlin. We crammed into one of the cars and I got a place for myself and Gundula close to the door. That was so we could Ulrich and Gundula carried their five inches tall, hair combed straight back, rumpled brown trousers, white shirt with no necktie, gray sweater and brown shoes.

With him is a pretty blonde girl, five feet one, blue dress, blue coat, white slingback shoes that have seen better days. Ulrich and Gundula are at the second stage of their journey into freedom.

The chairman of the committee points to Brockdorff and asks Ulrich: "Do you object to the presence of these two gentlemen?" They are reporters. Ulrich flashes a friendly smile at him and says, "No, sir."

The committee already has all the information about Ulrich and Gundula on questionnaire sheets. It has been studied and checked. Ulrich is asked where he would like to go in West Germany, and he replies Bavaria. He thinks there are jobs for boat builders there.

What is making Ulrich and Gundula nervous now is that they are worrying about how the committee will classify them. They will either be political refugees or ordinary refugees. If they get the political classification, the West German government will pay their transportation and temporary living costs anywhere in West Germany, and it will last until Ulrich is able to find a job.

If they are ordinary refugees,

It is his temporary home and there may be five other persons sleeping with him in the same room. Here is where he is examined by a board of three West German officials who have his future in their hands.

Cay Brockdorff of the United Press International staff and I are sitting in a bare room with beaver board walls. Three men are at a desk and facing the desk are two chairs. A name is called out. In comes a young German, five feet they will go to a camp in West Germany and live on a subsistence basis until their future can be worked out. No East German, except an obvious spy, is ever turned back into the Communist camp. A political refugee is one who has been persecuted or threatened by the Communists.

The committee asks Ulrich and Gundula to step out of the room for a moment. There is a whispered conference and they are called back. They are told they have been classified as political refugees because Ulrich took a hard look at the situation months ago and decided to join the Communist Party.

Now they will go to another building and get their airplane tickets which will take them to Bavaria. We ask the committee if we can speak with Ulrich and Gundula outside the room and permission is given.

Standing on a stair landing, Ulrich smokes an American cigarette and holds a press conference while Gundula watches him proudly.

Question: Ulrich, why are so many people fleeing from East Germany?
Answer: I think there is a panic over there. People are afraid. They think perhaps all of East Berlin will be closed off soon and no one can any longer escape.

Q. Do they think there will be a war?

A. They don't know, but they are worried about the crisis.

Q. What would happen if the West gave in to the Communists and got out of Berlin?

A. It would be bad. Then all people in East Germany would lose hope.

Q. (To Gundula) Mrs. Guntard, can you tell us how you lived in East Berlin, what kind of apartment did you have?

A. One small room with a little kitchen. No bathroom.

Q. How about food?

A. It was hard. You stood in line sometimes all day and when your turn came there was no food. I never got any meat. But sometimes but very scarce. Vegetables and fruit I never saw hardly at all. About the only thing we could buy every day was bread.

Q. (To Ulrich) Do you have relatives left in East Germany? Would they be in danger if we used your name and Gundula's?

A. We have no relatives in East Germany, and we have nothing to hide. Use our names if you like.

Outside the building we said goodbye to Ulrich and Gundula. It was a gray, wet day, but they didn't seem to notice the weather as they walked away, hand in hand through the rain. They had sunshine in their hearts. (To be continued tomorrow).

Astronauts Begin Series of Routine Physical Exams

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—America's seven astronauts began a 2½-day series of what the federal space agency called routine physicals today at Lackland Air Force Base Hospital here.

Their personal flight surgeon, Dr. William O. Douglas of Langley Air Force Base, pronounced them "in excellent condition" at the start of the tests.

Douglas will undergo the same physical checkup so as to evaluate the results more effectively, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Newsmen were not allowed to talk to the astronauts today and no photographs were permitted inside the hospital.

The NASA spokesman, John Peterson, said results of the examinations will be announced Friday.

The physicals, described in a NASA statement as similar to those given top government and military leaders, are the third such group of checkups for the astronauts since they were selected for the manned space flight program.

House Chamber for Con-Con

Capital Sessions Could Save State $250,000, Legislator Declares

LANSING (AP)—A legislator suggested today that the forthcoming constitutional convention hold all its sessions in the House chamber of the capitol, saving an estimated $250,000 in rental and equipment costs.

Sen. Clyde M. Geertings, R-Holland, outlined his proposal in letters to the governor's Convention Preparatory Commission and to a House interim committee on the convention.

Geertings said the Legislature could restrict its 1961 session in three weeks, re-pass the 1961-62 budget and recess until the convention has completed its work by May 1.

The Legislature then could reconvene and pass any supplemental appropriations that may be necessary and other legislation that could not be held over until 1963, Geertings said.

During the three weeks the legislature was in session, he explained, the convention could not hold public hearings at night when the House chamber was not being used.

'One-Third of Planes Operating Illegally'

LANSING (AP)—The Michigan Department of Aeronautics warned today that about one-third of the airplanes in the state may be operating illegally.

The agency said that more than 1,000 of 3,164 aircraft in Michigan were not registered after the July 1 midnight deadline passed. In addition, it pointed out, to comply with the law, registration decals have to be placed on the tail of the plane.

Orders Meat Thief to Pay

Seven Persons Injured in Three Area Crashes

Three separate traffic accidents in Oakland County yesterday sent seven persons to the hospital. Three were admitted and are reported in satisfactory condition today.

Lizzi Patterson, 15, of 1308 Clearwater Road, Commerce Township, suffered a broken jaw and arm when a car in which she was a passenger smashed into a tree alongside E. Grand Traverse Road near her home. She is in Pontiac General Hospital.

Taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after a two-car crash at Auburn and Opdyke Roads in Avon Township were John Stunk, 20, of 28 Artillery Drive, Utica; Stephen L. Slater, 29, of 739 Great Road, Pontiac Township; and Mrs. Allison McLean, 44, of Caprol, Ontario.

Stunk was admitted with scalp cuts. The others were treated for minor injuries and released.

David Auerbach, 14, of 2074 Lake Angelus Shores, Pontiac Township, has a possible concussion and a broken right arm at Children's Hospital in Detroit.

The boy was a passenger in a car driven by William E. St. Clair Jr., 17, of Newark, Ohio, when it crashed into a utility pole in front of the Auerbach home.

The driver was treated and released at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. He told sheriff's deputies another car ran him off the road and kept going.

Slater's car collided with a car driven by David H. MacLean, 17, of Caprol, Ont.

According to the deputies' report, MacLean was attempting a left turn off Auburn Road when his car collided with Slater's oncoming car. Neither driver was held.

The Patterson girl was a passenger in a car driven by Gerald E. Grayden, 17, of 808 Mallock St., Milford. Grayden told deputies the car's steering mechanism failed.

Grayden was unhurt. A second passenger, Donald Phelps, 17, of 2600 Newton Road, Commerce Township, was treated and released at Pontiac General Hospital.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Secret Service agents, postal inspectors and local police raided a North Side home Monday night and arrested Robert J. Manning, 35, Ball of $10,000 was set for him Tuesday on a charge of making a negative of one-cent postage stamps.

Matthew M. Corry, a U.S. attorney, said Manning had been taking pictures of the stamps which commemorated the 1953 Chicago World's Fair. Manning denied he had intended to sell the negatives.

N.Y. Shotgun Gang Wounds 3 Youths

NEW YORK (AP)—A five-man juvenile gang roaming Brooklyn streets with a sawed-off shotgun wounded three youths Tuesday night in apparently aimless attacks.

Two of the youths, James Lee, 16, and his cousin, Wilbert Holland, 17, were in fair condition in a hospital today. The third, Andrew Shaw, 14, was released after treatment.

All are Negroes. Police, who pressed a search for the five, said there appeared to have been no provocation for the attacks.

Corn Is Still King Among Local Farmers

Recent rains in the Pontiac area appear to have rescued our farmers.

Corn, potatoes, beans and other spring crops were suffering. Long faces, prevalent among our farmer friends for several weeks, have changed to smiles.

On a national basis in the agricultural line, for many years corn has been the king crop. And it still reigns as such in the Pontiac vicinity. When its conversion into pork and other meats is considered, its great value is appreciated.

Also it has a strong bearing on our dairy production through silage and otherwise. But right at this season it is a primary direct food for ourselves. This is green corn time, when a lot of good corn goes to waist — and that's the way to spell that word when you're talking about green corn.

Now's the time when we lavish on the butter, put our elbows on the table, forget about good manners, grab the corn with both hands, chase our dentures across it as a harmonica, dig the loose kernels out of our ears, ask for extra helpings, and then are ashamed to look the bathroom scales in the face.

Yes, wheat may be the staff of life, potatoes and beans and other garden sass may help our fruits to keep the doctor away, but when everything is considered, corn is king.

Polio Cases Declining; at New Low in 1961

The war against polio is being won. The tragic cases involving paralysis could become even fewer in number this summer if everyone had taken the shots, but even without this complete cooperation by the public, officials report an encouraging reduction in the disease.

The U. S. Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta lists only eleven polio cases, six of them paralytic, for the week ended July 22. It listed twenty-eight cases, eighteen of them paralytic, in the preceding week.

For the past six weeks there have been 96 cases, including 55 paralytic, compared with 374 cases, of which 275 were paralytic, during the same six weeks one year ago.

This marked reduction in polio is indeed encouraging. It shows that medical science has provided preventive means which can bring about the virtual elimination of this disease. Like smallpox, it is rapidly retreating to the status of a rare ailment. Universal participation in the prevention program can still further hasten the arrival at this most desirable goal.

Through CARE Program Americans Still Helping

One kind of foreign aid that never seems to become embroiled in controversy is the justly famed CARE program. On a recent trip through the Middle East we made inquiries and in most instances the program was well thought of.

New 15 years old, this program has seen Americans volunteer 35 million aid packages worth $408,500,000 to needy persons in more than 50 countries. Included, of course, are foodstuffs, textiles, toys and other items.

While food represents 90 per cent of the CARE aid, it would be wrong to think of the program as a relief effort and nothing more.

For instance, with the help of men and boys have been trained and equipped to make improvements in their villages and earn a living as carpenters.

Both classroom materials and items useful in school construction have helped one million children get a better education.

CARE today is a going operation in every continent outside North America except Africa, and even there service may soon begin.

Americans by the millions prove daily that this country's tradition of help to needy people everywhere is very much alive.

With reference to the new 40-year loans on houses, in many a case it would be about an even bet as to which would fall down first: The house, or the owner on the payments.

Just a Reminder

Of What We're to Have Here in Super Highway

Optimist: He who thinks the robins in his cherry tree are after worms.

This tour takes you out of Oakland County its primary object is to show you what we're to have in the Pontiac area, only on a more glissade scale.

Drive out West Huron St., which merges into Highland Road, and follow this for 28 miles from our courthouse corner.

This takes you past the Pontiac Municipal Airport and Pontiac Lake, both on your right. Oxbow Lake on your left, through the Highland Recreational Area, under the C&O Ry viaduct, across Millford Road, (amber flag), just beyond, and three miles further into Livingston County, with a few more lakes.

At the 26 mile point you reach Lemon's Corners, where you turn right into the new 23 Freeway, our principal object for sending you on this tour.

You follow this four-lane freeway for 40 miles, to its junction with the Dixie Highway, northwest of Flint.

While you'll encounter some new construction in the early part of this 40 miles, you are to get a good idea of the convenience, time saving and life saving of the freeway system.

There isn't a grade crossing or traffic light. The two lane strips in each direction are generally separated by a few rods.

You skirt Pontiac, Flint, Mt. Morris, Clio and other towns, and have a feeling of safety that makes the auto a pleasure vehicle, both for the driver and passengers.

You'll enjoy returning by the same route, getting an idea of what the freeway means in both directions. Or leave it at the Plant, Grand Blanc or Fenton cloverleaves, and fight your way through two-way traffic back to Pontiac via the Dixie and its connections.

Or you might switch over to the east ten miles at the Clio's cloverleaf to M-15, into which you turn right, through Oquawville, Davison, the edges of Goodrich and Orionville, and through Clarkston, just south of which M-15 merges into the Dixie which you follow ten miles into Pontiac.

When the new 75 six-lane Freeway, which comes out of Detroit and skirts Pontiac on the east, is completed through Oakland County next year, where it now is well under construction, it will merge into this 23 Freeway just southwest of Flint, and carry a much larger traffic.

Its ultimate goal of 288 miles is the Straits of Mackinac, but it will not be completed there until a couple of years later.

'What's the Matter—Can't You Read?'

David Lawrence Says:

Diplomacy Batters Public Bluster

IN EUROPE — Oddly enough, "diplomats" get going, there is more hope for peace than from all the public statements, speeches and propaganda exchanges put together.

Two episodes in the realm of "quiet diplomacy" are attracting worldwide attention. First, John McCloy went to Moscow primarily to discuss, on behalf of the United States, the vague and ponderous subject of arrangements for more international conferences on disarmament but he was suddenly invited by Soviet Premier Khrushchev to visit him at his Black Sea vacation home, and seemed to have been warmly entertained.

In the midst of this, McCloy was given a personal message for President Kennedy about the Berlin crisis. The Soviet ambassador brushed aside his own speeches and threats about Berlin, and, in effect, exclaimed: "Why all the war talk, anyhow?"

Second, Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, who happened to be in Europe last week on a roving mission, was invited by President de Gaulle to come to Paris to confer on the Berlin crisis.

Under instructions from the Department of State, for several days he discussed the situation in Tunisia with the French foreign minister, Couve de Murville, one of the ablest diplomats of the West. On his return to the United States he said that it should be possible for France and Tunisia to arrange for quick talks and agree to pull back forces of both sides to their preflight positions, thus paving the way for a speedy settlement of the Berlin dispute.

As long as there is talk in critical situations, there is always hope, though a clearing of the air isn't helped by public demonstrations of hostility or by threatening speeches.

So, while Khrushchev and McCloy talked intimately and the personal message that the Soviet premier gave has been transmitted now to President Kennedy, it would be a mistake to assume that a basis for settlement has been reached.

SEEK COMPROMISE. The significance in all this lies rather in the fact that private talks are being held. This means that the art of reconciliation is being employed in what is sometimes called a search for "compromise," but in reality it can turn out to be a means for the abandonment of rigid positions previously held by both sides.

The trouble with having so many public propaganda statements is that they are often contradictory. For instance, there are few errors of such magnitude as that which holds that "colic" is a specific disease entity, requiring special treatment and special medicine.

Here are some of Dr. Smith's knowledgeable explanations for the confusion: "Parental panic due to lack of preparation for their responsibilities. Led to expect a 'restful, happy, sleeping angel' and 'a bundle of joy.' They find themselves joint proprietors of a 'crying, straining, struggling, sulky, wet, fretting, hiccuping, bundle of flesh.'"

Emotionally unprepared for the personal sacrifices required for their infant's survival they cry wolf too often when the shadow they see is a neighbor's pussy cat or pet dog.

THEY'RE UNSURE. Insecure in their grasp of "the day-to-day mechanics of caring for an infant," the inexperienced are apt to misinterpret the numerous variations of infant cries.

In Dr. Smith's opinion, it takes time and experience to understand the infant's pointing at something, and to interpret the numerous variations of infant cries.

And, until this understanding is achieved, the parents of the first-born may be "easy prey for the recurring suggestions from relatives and friends" that their child has "colic."

ments in a crisis is that this makes face-saving devices difficult to work out.

Yet the Berlin issue may be simpler than it appears. Lord Home, the British foreign secretary, has stated to a British television audience that there are three essential points as a possible basis for negotiation.

He named these as the right of West Berlin to determine its own future, the right of Allied troops to be in Berlin, and the right of uninterrupted access to the city. He declared: "We're willing and ready to talk and negotiate on this question."

The preliminaries in the discussion will soon be under way as the foreign secretaries of the United States, Britain and France start this week their conferences in Paris. Maybe Khrushchev himself is pondering considerably a formula of negotiation.

But, in the meantime, what has been happening in Moscow? An Ambassador Stevenson was arriving in Paris to work out the details.

Although he had a chance to muddy the waters, the Soviet premier chose to avoid any embarrassing move. Instead, though expressing sympathy with the Tunisians over their losses at Bizerte, he told the nine African representatives that there was no need for the Soviet Union to make any broad statement on the Bizerte problem since the shooting had ceased and the matter was under negotiation.

Dr. Thomas Hyman Says:

'Colic' More Frequently a Myth Than an Affliction

By HAROLD HYMAN

Written for NEA

Is "colic" real or "fancy and fiction"? The child's Hospital in Thibodaux, La., raises these questions.

How is it that the diagnosis of "colic" is frequently made in private practice when it is conspicuously absent from the thousands each year in great institutions such as the Charity Hospital of New Orleans?

And how is it that "colic" never appears in the newborn nursery of a hospital despite its prompt appearance almost immediately after the child's arrival at home? Especially if the baby is a first-born?

Not one to dodge an issue, Dr. Smith concludes that "colic" is high on the list of the "fancy and fiction" which circulates with regard to "well baby care of the newborn infant."

For, he insists, there are few errors of such magnitude as that which holds that "colic" is a specific disease entity, requiring special treatment and special medicine.

Here are some of Dr. Smith's knowledgeable explanations for the confusion:

Parental panic due to lack of preparation for their responsibilities. Led to expect a "restful, happy, sleeping angel" and "a bundle of joy." They find themselves joint proprietors of a "crying, straining, struggling, sulky, wet, fretting, hiccuping, bundle of flesh."

This is to "I'm laughing" who so stupidly remarked about the cost of Jacqueline Kennedy's hairdo while she was in Paris. Don't you think that's quite her own business? You certainly aren't paying for Mrs. Kennedy's hairdo and why gripe? I suppose you prefer Mrs. Khrushchev's hairdo.

'Letters Support Teacher's Fund'

"I agree about Miss Anton's dedication to the New Citizen League. I've worked with her and want to state again my gratitude for her making an unforgettable trip to Washington possible for me. If old students can't afford to participate in the drive, they aren't forced. It's a free country, so let's all take the advantages it offers."

New American Citizen

The City Commission is to be commended for supporting Mr. Donaldson's drive for Miss Anton. I heard his explanation of the fund and didn't think it a joke. It's an opportunity for former students and friends to express their appreciation. She receives no compensation except her student's gratitude. May I suggest "An Old Student of English and History Classes" do some soul searching?

Answers Question on Con-Con Listing

Con-Con candidates were listed politically because the Legislature passed a bill stating they must be nominated by party primary election. The union endorsed some because they had qualifications previously agreed upon that candidates must subscribe to. Both parties did the same. The delegate who goes to Con-Con believing the combined thinking of many minds can evolve a good constitution is the one I want. Politics, horse-trading, deals, etc., have no place in Con-Con.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 2, the 214th day of the year, with 151 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

On this day in history: In 1824, the city fathers of New York opened a new street, designed to link the city with the world's most celebrated thoroughfares — Fifth Avenue.

In 1923, President Warren Harding died in a San Francisco hotel on his return from a trip to Alaska.

In 1936, German President Paul von Hindenburg died and Adolf Hitler proclaimed himself Reichsfuhrer of Germany.

In 1939, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Hatch Act into law. It limited expenditures in national political campaigns and restricted the roles of civil servants in political conventions, campaigns and elections.

A thought for today: Franklin Roosevelt said, "The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have little."

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Broken Marriage Can Be Mended

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE J-457: Nora L., aged 32, is an attractive legal secretary.

"Dr. Crane, I was divorced a year ago," she began, "following five stormy years of marriage."

"But I have learned a great deal since my divorce, partly through your columns and your sex readings."

"And my experience here in the law office, where I am employed. My husband hasn't been reading your sex readings."

"I believe I could have salvaged my marriage had I known what I do now. So is it ever possible to win back a divorced mate?"

"My husband hasn't been reading your sex readings. What steps should I take to rebuild my romance again?"

Yes, love can develop; then be wrecked by sins of omission or commission, and then be rebuilt again.

Nora can start the process by sending her former husband a birthday card or some other appropriate remembrance. If a holiday or special event is soon approaching.

Or she can drop him a note inviting him to dinner or giving him a belated compliment for some good deed which she now appreciates but failed to acknowledge when he performed it years ago.

she can then use the "Compliment-Club" technique upon him.

Very liberal with honest compliments for his many good points. And please remember, nobody is totally devoid of merit. Even your latest enemy possesses some good points.

The secret of rebuilding love, as well as of building the original romance, involves your realizing that the other person has an invaluable talent across his chest which reads: "I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT."

If Nora will consistently keep that in mind, she will praise her former husband, both with her words and her actions.

A smile is an example of a non-verbal compliment. It tells him, "You are pleasant to me and make me happy. You are a V.I.P. (Very Important Person), etc."

So a smile alone starts the process of complimenting. But don't stop there. Nora should give him bits of praise for his new tie or suit or his best way of threading traffic while driving his car.

Cook his favorite meal. Be giddy and give him a "I love you" one of your former quarrels, admit you were in error, and apologize, even though belatedly.

CUPID COMPLIMENTS

The greatest weapon of Cupid is not his bow and arrow; it consists of compliments.

For love develops out of continual friendly contacts that are founded on compliments. And love flourishes without daily nurture by fresh compliments.

So the word "compliment" is more important than "love," for it can make or break love.

Nora's husband will then begin to think she is wonderful once more.

For it is an axiom of Applied Psychology that you can think of it anybody who shows that she thinks well of you!

By her smile and jolly banter and her praise, Nora will prove to her former husband that she thinks well of him. So he will automatically begin to think well of her.

Actually, in just three months, Nora had won her husband back again by this strategy and they are now happily reuniting.

Hope College Students Glad They Went to Prague

See Hard Communist World at First Hand

VIENNA, Austria (AP). — Should U.S. tourists in Europe try to include a Communist country on their vacation schedule?

A group of U.S. students from Michigan's Hope College who have just returned from a stay in the Czechoslovak capital of Prague think so, but with some reservations.

"I was glad I went, because the visit cured me of a wild idea that Czechoslovak capital of Prague with machine guns, agents and Communist police. It just wasn't like that at all."

"The force of the regime can be felt, but it is indirect."

"The pressure on the people of Czechoslovakia is not apparent on the outside, only if one talks to them and breaks the ice, then they sometimes reveal how they really feel," said Jack H. Jenner, 19, a sophomore from Altamont, N.Y., at the Hope College summer school here.

The summer school is attended by about 50 students this season. The students, after touring Western Europe, settle down here for several weeks of arts and language courses.

Recently two buses packed with the youths rolled from Vienna to neighboring Czechoslovakia to give the Americans a weekend taste of the Communist world.

"The Communist border police were friendly, but very thorough. They went through all our bags, inspected our cameras and portable radios. Going to Prague, which is more than 130 miles from the Austrian border, we saw, for the first time, people queuing outside food stores. 'We knew we were inside a Communist country all right,' said Gladys Bandstra, 19, of Chicago.

In Prague the students went on the usual guided tours in their own buses but also had time to tour the city on their own — unaccompanied by either their instructors or official Czechoslovak guides.

"The hardest thing was to get to talking to the Czechoslovaks. They stared at us, especially at our clothes, which were so different, and our shoes," said Bonnie Becker, 20, of Deerfield, Ill.

"Prices were very high — about the same level as in the United States. But one had to realize that these people here earned a sixth of our usual salaries," she added.

WOULDN'T TALK BACK

"We walked about for hours, rode the electric trolley buses and tried to strike up conversations. Of course, there was the language difficulty and many of the Czechs simply would not answer back, once they realized we were Americans. We used to come back to the hotel and say 'I've talked to a teacher, or a student' like tourists usually say 'I've bought a bargain'."

She added that some of the girls struck up an acquaintance with several Turks, members of a commercial delegation, who invited them out for dinner.

"Suddenly, we were in another world, the world of the new class. Big luxury hotels, fashionable dancing spots and plenty of rich food — no queues. We saw the well-to-do Communist officials and party members living it up, while outside the people walked by wearing clothes which looked about 10 years old," the Hope College junior said.

"When we finally got back to Vienna, we were all quite glad, One of the boys on the bus told me, 'I'm glad I went. Now I would be ready to fight to defend what we have,'"

Walt Gerrit, 20, of Northfield, Ill., had this advice about trips to a Communist country:

"It's nothing for relaxed, middle-aged tourists, for Southern belles or society women. The Communists won't show the real country and chances are high the relaxed American won't meet any real people, beside his guides and party officials."

"But the trip is certainly worthwhile for Americans eager to see for themselves — not just the monuments and outside facade of the Communist system, but the extreme, naked poverty both economically and spiritually of the world beyond the Iron Curtain."

May Continue to Ask Deduction for Blue Cross

LANSING (AP). — Michigan's 30,000 civil service workers may authorize payroll deductions for Blue Cross-Blue Shield medical and hospitalization coverage even after a state-contributory plan with another company goes into effect this fall.

The State Administrative Board decided Tuesday that that has been its position all along, although there apparently had been some confusion among state employees.

Blue Cross lost out in a bid to become the agency benefiting from the state contributory plan when the Civil Service Commission selected the Aetna Insurance Co.

On the basis of the ad board action, state employees who want to subscribe to Blue Cross must pay the full fee. Those subscribing to the insurance company plan will share premium payments with the state.

Blue Cross currently has about 18,000 state employee subscribers.

July Road Toll Down From '60

State Records Fewer Deaths Than Last Month for 2nd Straight Month

LANSING (AP)—July traffic deaths in Michigan showed a sharp reduction from last year, state police reported Tuesday.

It was the second month in a row that fewer fatalities were recorded. The July toll was 126 deaths, 22 fewer than in the same month last year and a reduction of 29 per cent.

The highway kill for the first seven months of the year is 835, still 16 above the 819 deaths in the same period of 1960.

Latest figures for June show a count of 119 deaths, 14 below the same month last year. January was the only other month to show a decrease from last year.

"Encouraging as the latest reductions are, motorists and pedestrians should remember that traffic accidents in the last five months of the year account for nearly half of the annual death toll," said State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs.

"This means there must be protective driving and walking if the cost in lives and injuries is to be reduced," Childs said.

Borg-Warner Corp. Sales Down in 1st Half of '61

CHICAGO (AP). — Sales and net earnings of the Borg-Warner Corp. were down for the first half of 1961 as compared with the same period last year.

But "June sales and earnings were better than a year ago, indicating the upward trend and confirming our belief that the business upturn is continuing," said Roy C. Ingersoll, board chairman, in a half-year report to stockholders.

Despite the June upsurge, however, sales for the period overall dropped to $289,067,216 from $323,068,661 for the first half of 1960. Earnings came to $8,826,016 or $1.07 a share compared with last year's net of $13,229,075 or $1.68 a share.

DISTRICT NO. 1

Consumers, Industry Go Easy on Buying

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK — Both consumers and business are playing the Berlin crisis cool.

The stock market, with its eyes traditionally focused six months ahead, has placed its bets on an expected big rise in business activity. Traders figure the build-up in U.S. defense spending caused by Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threats will give the economy an extra surge along an uptick path it's already taking.

But businessmen themselves haven't rushed to place new orders. They are still playing it safe on inventories, although the cut-back in stocks which marred the recession has ended and been replaced by a very moderate upturn.

The possibility of price rises later from higher labor costs hasn't affected business ordering plans apparently.

NO CONSUMER PANIC
Nor are consumers rushing to buy. Most are sophisticated enough to know that goods are plentiful and, what's more, that the capacity to make more goods is far from filled.

For many the Berlin crisis is just another in a seemingly endless string of crises that the Reds stir up. Much more close at hand is what the new military build-up here might do to plans of individuals and companies if reservations are called up and more youths drafted.

While businessmen are not rushing to place new orders, they are keeping an eye on several developing domestic conditions.

One is the outcome of the wage negotiations in the auto industry. This will affect not only that major industry, but also to some extent the business of the many industries that supply it—and also the individuals and firms that buy autos and trucks.

Another is the current uncertainty in the steel industry. Output is lagging, as it usually does at this time of year because of summer vacations and the change-over in the auto industry.

NO STEEL BURN
Steelmen are disappointed that new orders for August haven't lived up to advance ballyhoo. They thought their customers would rush to order because steel labor costs rose after Oct. 1—and prices will, too, if the steel companies can swing it.

Most observers hold, however, that the present disinclination of consumer and businessman to be swayed by the Berlin crisis or by threats of price and wage increases here doesn't dim the prospects for a general, if orderly, rise in the economy the rest of the year.

The arms buildup with its attendant Treasury deficit will be pouring several more billion dollars into the economic stream. This promises more orders for many industries, both those in defense work and those who furnish the needed materials, as the stock market already has noted. It also means more dollars in circulation at payroll time.

Steelmen, for example, feel sure that the defense build-up and general business increase will assure them steady rising production through the fall and winter. It may rise enough to make their price increase feasible. And by next spring there is another possibility—a build-up in steel stocks before the 1961 steel labor negotiations start.

Expansion plans of business are expected to be beefed up also by the general rise in activity and the stimulant of government deficit spending.

Some fear all of this will mean another surge of inflation. But the calmer view is that inflation won't amount to much until present excess capacity for production is absorbed.

'62 Model Cars Will Roll Off S-P Lines Next Week

By BEN FLEIGAR
AP Automotive Writer
DETROIT — Production of 1962 model passenger cars will begin in less than a week.

Studebaker-Packard, which was the first to end its 1961 model run, will be the first to get its '62 rolling. Plans call for the South Bend automaker to build 66 cars per hour, its fastest rate since last fall.

Oldsmobile, Pontiac and American Motors plan to start their new models Aug. 14. Close behind will be Buick, Cadillac and the Chrysler Corp. cars.

Chevrolet, which will build its final 1961 models this week, will be back before the end of the month.

Ford Motor Co., as usual, will delay its changeover the longest. Several of its plants have closed and more will end this week and next. But at several locations production is scheduled past the middle of the month.

Ford, which will be in at least limited production of 1962 models by the fourth week of the month.

This will put all of the automakers back to work before the first of the labor contracts expire. Ford, General Motors and Chrysler have a midnight Aug. 31 deadline on their pacts with the United Auto Workers. The American Motors' contract doesn't expire until Sept. 6 while Studebaker's runs through October.

Camp Oakland Director Proud of His 'Family' of 36

Mark 8th Year of Area Camp

Camp Oakland was opened eight years ago this summer when William Matus, resident director, moved to the 330-acre farm on M24, 12 miles north of Pontiac between Lake Orion and Oxford.

The rural frame home was shared with 16 underprivileged boys and girls and a resident medical attendant. Every two weeks a new group of children arrived.

Oakland County service clubs paid summer camp salaries and general operating expenses. The property was purchased by a group of citizens who sought a permanent campsite for an outdoor program initiated by James Hunt, current head of the Juvenile Division, Oakland County Probate Court.

The citizens' group incorporated in 1951. Two years later they purchased the farm property which surrounds a 30-acre private lake for $118,000. They had $16,000 on hand at the time, and in less than three years they had paid the entire purchase price.

In addition to the two permanent buildings that house Boys' Ranch and Girls' Ranch where long-term wards of the Oakland County Probate Court live, the camp has six cabins, a large dining hall, campcraft shelter, sanitary buildings and a new home for girls.

One of Camp Oakland's most loyal supporters, "Laddie" gets a grateful handshake from camp director William J. Matus. "Laddie" stays faithfully near his 16 young charges at Girls' Ranch, while an identical young collie watches over Boys' Ranch.

When school starts this fall, William J. Matus will send approximately 36 of his young charges off to classes. And he's proud of every one of them.

As resident director of Camp Oakland, Matus is responsible for each of the 20 boys and 16 girls who are year-around residents at the 330-acre camp near Oxford.

Besides watching over an endless trail of administrative details, Matus pays frequent visits to his feminine charges at Girls' Ranch and the young male occupants of Boys' Ranch. The children are long-term wards of Oakland County Probate Court, who remain at the homes until they find a permanent home, or can go to work, or in the case of the boys, into the armed services.

SPECIAL VISITS

The camp's 38-year-old director stops at Girls' Ranch and Boys' Ranch twice monthly for dinner. He pays special visits to talk over their problems with the youngsters.

He makes certain that they are kept reminded of the importance of good manners, and introduces them to visitors who tour the camp's property to view summer camp and other facilities.

Matus asks teen-agers at Girls' Ranch to introduce their masculine friends to him. The boys must get Matus' stamp of approval before girls are permitted to make dates with them.

The young director tells each of "his" girls, "I want to be sure he's good enough for you."

ENROLLS IN COLLEGE

This year, for the first time since Camp Oakland was started in 1953, Matus took one of his young charges to enroll in a college.

The father of two children, Matus is admired and respected by the young residents at Camp Oakland. He instills each child with a sense of personal responsibility for his or her own behavior and good conduct.

A teen-ager at Girls' Ranch said recently, "Mr. Matus is strict, but we're glad he cares."

Her favorite panda bear is proudly placed on 10-year old Louise Hack's bed. Each of the girls makes her own bed and is responsible for keeping her belongings in apple-pie order.

ing pat on the arm from Mrs. Jesse Allen as she joins Louise Hack, 10, in the conversational exchange.

As Matus talks to Louise Hack, Sherry Hartle gets an affectionate chin-nestling from Girls' Ranch supervisor Mrs. Jesse Allen while Joy Neiger watches. Love and understanding are important ingredients in the home life at the ranch.

Stay Together, Says Abby

He's All Sewed Up, Honey

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: One day last week a very attractive man came to my door selling magazines.

I invited him in because I was interested. We talked a few hours and I fixed him coffee. I found him very appealing.

He has a wife and children, but is having trouble at home and needed someone to talk to. When he left, he forgot his necktie and a large envelope with some business papers in it.

I have his name and telephone number. Should I call him up and tell him to stop by and pick up his belongings?

I would like to see him again. I am married, but my husband travels.

DEAR TEMPTED: Phew, his "belongings" into an envelope and you shouldn't have encouraged him to make himself as much at home.

You apparently found each other "appealing," which is the way people who are already "sewed up" become unraveled. Forget him.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old, and my problem is this: My boy friend asked me to kiss him and I told him no because it wasn't a real date—he was just walking me home. Did I do the right thing? I like this boy very much, but am not allowed to date yet.

DEAR NOT: You did the right thing. But don't get the idea that when you are on a "real" date, you have to kiss every boy who asks you.

DEAR ABBY: We were married three years ago. We had a large wedding. My husband was still in the Service. Many of our friends offered to buy us dishes and glassware, but we had no place to store these things, so we didn't select a pattern.

Now we are settled in an apartment, and would like to have these gifts. The friends who offered the glassware and china have never given us anything. We know their intentions were good. Would it be proper to let them know we could use their gifts now?

DEAR REGRETS: Nope.

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers to you for saying a kind word about the girls in girly shows.

A generation ago I bumped (and ground) out enough money to buy my parents a little home. I also put my brother through law school. I was never ashamed of the way I made my living because I always lived right.

I went to church every Sunday morning, which is more than you could say for a lot of people who sat in the front row every Saturday night. Sincerely yours,

Moral Labels on Child's Actions Cowardly

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Editor/Editor

When Martha's mother went to the hospital to have her baby brother, grandma came to look after Martha and her father. Martha didn't like her much. If she dropped her appleauce spoon, grandma would say, "That wasn't a very nice thing to do."

Instead of saying in a clear-cut way, "Get out of your bath now... wait for your sweater... pick up your spoon," she leveled all her orders with little moral options.

She would say, "It's not very thoughtful to jump up on daddy's leg when he's trying to read his paper... Only silly little girls forget to set their shoes straight under the chair... Good little girls do what they're told when grownups tell them to get out of the bathtub..."

So Martha started to suffer corruption by the moral confusion that could well be the problem of us all. She began to equate goodness with accommodating other people and badness with inconveniencing them.

These are inaccurate moral equations.

People who inconvenience us are often presented at goodness including doctors who operate on us to preserve our lives, psychoanalysts who tell us disagreeable truths about ourselves we need to know, theologians who preach our Sunday religion.

If George Washington had not been a British colony and if Jesus had not discomfited the Pharisees, the chances are we would have no written record of the Sermon on the Mount.

Perhaps the most important statement for parents to be made was "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

The business of attaching moral labels to the actions of little children is not only pedantic but cowardly.

Those who go in for it are generally people who are deeply frightened of any opposition. So they do not possess the courage to risk opposition by saying, "Get out of your bath now" just they dislike—and required to establish their authority.

So what they do is to exploit moral words to get what they want. Uncertain of their own right to be listened to, they pad their "bad" and "silly" and "selfish" wisdom with words like "good" and to big compliance they can get no other way.

I should feel sorry for them. I don't. I think that their moral pretensions may be the bane of this world, and that the muds they create are too many.

Internationally known designer, weaver Marianne Strengell, will leave Cranbrook Academy of Art this fall after an association of 24 years. Her first commission in the East, she says, will be the house she and her husband architect Olav Hammarstrom will build in Sherman, Conn.

Famous Weaver to Leave Post

Marianne Strengell, internationally famous weaver and one of the world's most outstanding textile designers, is leaving her position as head of the weaving department of Cranbrook Academy of Art.

Marianne, who has been associated with the Academy of Art for over 24 years, 18 of them as department head, will move in the fall to the East with her architect-husband, Olav Hammarstrom, and her two children, Sandra and Chris.

There Mrs. Hammarstrom will continue to conceive and construct the fabulous textile designs for which she has become famous. Hammarstrom has accepted an architectural commission in the East.

Born in Helsinki, Finland, Marianne's father, Gustav Strengell, was a famous architect, writer and critic. Her mother, Anna, is still a well-known interior decorator.

Following her grade and her equivalent of high school training, Marianne's family sent her to art school where her mother suggested she concentrate on weaving.

"At school there were weeks and weeks of theory," Marianne recalled. "Finally we were assigned to make plain white towels. Later we progressed to white towels with blue borders and still later, white towels with red borders."

BLEWS UP

Marianne literally blew up and with the explosion came a decision to create new designs and at the same time a new method of teaching. Consequently, it isn't the least unusual for a new class Cranbrook Academy of Art to be weaving early on the first day.

The late, renowned architect Edsel Saarinen was first President of the Academy of Art, and his wife, Loja, who still resides in Bloomfield Hills, was head of the weaving department. In Finland, the Saarinens and Strengells were old friends and Marianne had been closely watching Marianne's progress. He is 1937 when he needed a new weaving instructor he sent for Marianne. Marianne succeeded Mrs. Saarinen as department head in 1948.

It has always been the emphasis of the Academy of Art that the art produced, whether it be fine or practical, should be integrated with the contemporary social and industrial needs of the community.

Not only does Marianne enjoy the highest of reputations as a teacher, but for all the time she has been at Cranbrook she has worked with and acted as a consultant to architects, interior and industrial designers plus textile manufacturers all over the country.

In hotels and automobiles, on trains and ships can be found Strengell decorative fabrics, bed spreads, floor coverings and table linens. She has traveled and lectured extensively in Europe, Asia, the Far East and throughout the United States.

Group shows and major exhibitions have included her work. She has won many awards and prizes and has held dozens of one-man shows both in this country and abroad.

One of her most gratifying experiences in addition to teaching at Cranbrook (Cranbrook graduates come close to dominating the best textile jobs in teaching and industry) was in 1951 when she and her husband, together with another textile designer, a ceramist and a sculptor, became part of the Cottage Industry Project in the Philippines.

Marianne was selected by the United States and Hammarstrom by the United Nations to redesign the traditional handicrafts of the country into modern, marketable products.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,
"My children and I have been having lots of fun this summer making flannel jackets out of sweat shirts. These are the jackets that are worn over bathing suits and serve as light weight jackets for any occasion."
"Our problem is this: After we have machine stitched the many, many rows of braid and rick rack on them, the front and lower edges become stretched and ruffled looking. Is there any way to prevent this?"
Mrs. J.L.R.

Dear Mrs. J.L.R.:
It is very easy to stretch a knit type fabric without knowing it until it is too late. I would suggest you knit a piece of firm cotton fabric on the wrong side of the front and the lower edges of your jacket. This will keep the jacket from stretching.

You may now machine stitch all the rows of trimming on and if any of the cotton extends beyond the last row of stitching from the wrong side, cut it off.

ROPE BELTS POPULAR
"Dear Mrs. Farmer:
"Is a covered rope belt used on sun dresses and formals made the same as spaghetti straps?"
Mrs. M.M.

Dear Mrs. M.M.:
Yes, these covered cord or rope belts are very popular today and can be made for children. They are especially attractive when made out of solid colors to go with the colors in a print, also as contrasting colors for plain fabrics. I just have prepared a new leaflet which gives detailed instructions for making them and some of the methods of using them. You may get it by sending 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 4, "Spaghetti Straps and Rope Belts," to Eunice Farmer in care of The Pontiac Press.

COVER UP MISTAKE
"Dear Eunice,
"Is there any way to fix a dress that is about an inch too small through the bust? It is a plain white sheath with a small collar and a zipper in the side. I have a strip of material left."
Mrs. J.J.

Dear Mrs. J.J.:
There are many creative touches you could use to cover up your mistake. Actually, interesting designs can come out of such situations.

Cut your bodice down the center front, add a band of at least one inch at the center front. This could be done very attractively by applying a navy blue or red cording in the seam and it would look like it was intentional.

Don't forget that the neckline will now be too large. You could take two darts on each side of the center front, stitching them on the outside instead of the inside to make them look more decorative.

If you are an advanced seamstress, you might add an embroidered "arrow" at each point of the darts.

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of The Pontiac Press.

Don't Eat Alone With Fiance

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: My fiance lives alone in a two-room apartment. His hobby is cooking, and rather than go out to a restaurant to dine he prefers to prepare and serve dinner in his apartment. This brings me to my question: When he invites others in, I do not hesitate to go, but I do not think it is proper for me to dine alone with him in his apartment.

A: A young woman dining alone in a man's apartment is still frowned upon, and talked about, by Mrs. Grundy and even though you are engaged, it is wise to avoid dining alone in your fiance's apartment.

Q: Having recently come to the United States from a foreign country, I have some questions of etiquette that are bothering me and I wonder if you would be so kind as to answer them for me. When a man entertains a woman in a restaurant, does he help her out of her coat if she wears it to the table? Does the man hold her chair while she seats herself?

A: He should help her with her coat, and if the head waiter or whoever shows them to their table fails to do so, he should hold her chair for her.

Q: I was a guest at my cousin's wedding last Saturday. I wore a white dress, pink shoes and pink gloves. I was criticized for having worn a white dress. I was told that a white dress is improper at a wedding for anyone except the bride. Will you please tell me if I was wrong?

A: The addition of colored shoes and gloves made your white dress acceptable to wear to the wedding.

Alternate Chores With Rest

Be Homemaker, Not Worker

By RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Editor—Ann Arbor

"Face yourself. Do not kill yourself doing housework. Be a homemaker instead of a houseworker."

That advice to the American housewife comes from Dr. Janet Travell, personal physician to President Kennedy.

Dr. Travell gives a nod of approval to the woman who performs her household chores slowly, calmly and with frequent periods of rest. She isn't impressed with the woman who rolls up her sleeves and attacks housework with a grim determination to get as much done as fast as she can.

But sound as her advice is, Dr. Travell won't be able to sell it to the eager beaver housekeepers who pride themselves on how fast they can work or how hard they have to work.

These women are the direct descendants of the women who used to complain about standing over a hot stove all day and who were fond of quoting the old line that a "woman's work is never done."

Now that modern home equipment has eased their work they could slow their pace. But they don't want to. They get their job satisfaction out of working fast and furiously and then talking about how hard they work and how exhausted they are.

If their husbands timidly imply that perhaps they are making a harder job of housework than it need be, they say indignantly, "I just wish you would try taking over my job for a week."

So if they won't listen to their husbands — they aren't likely to listen to an expert of their own sex. Walling about how hard they work does more to build up their egos than pacing themselves so that at the day's end they are relaxed and rested instead of "dead beat."

It's a rare woman who gets as much satisfaction out of doing housework easily as of working herself to death.

Taking Stock of Yourself?

Accept Own Weaknesses

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

By the time folks reach middle age, they should know what their constitutional weaknesses are, that is if they have observed themselves intelligently and correlated any past physical disabilities with conduct.

It is a good idea to take stock of yourself at middle age and admit those weaknesses to yourself so that you may guard against them from this period in life on. Up to this time extreme youth may have glossed over any little warnings you may have had.

Some people are prone to head aches or backaches. Others struggle with allergies, have jumpy digestion, constant colds, repeated bronchitis or stiff joints. If you think it over, you probably know things about yourself which your doctor can't know only if you tell him.

INDIVIDUAL AILMENTS

Perhaps you break out in a rash after eating certain foods. Maybe a sore gland in your neck is always the first symptom of an approaching cold. Perhaps you have a sore shoulder or an irritated bladder following emotional stress. Even those in good health have these highly individualistic little eccentricities.

Those probably have not proved to be especially important in the past, but they are signs, and it is well to take care of your weak spots from middle age on. Add to this periodic checkups, which are so thorough that they amount to preventative medicine, and you have a fine shot at prolonged vitality.

Many of those who live vibrantly into old age were semi-invalids at middle age, or at least had some weakness which they had to protect. They had to stick to a health routine and follow medical directions in order to survive. As a result they outlived many of their healthier friends, and enjoyed life in the process.

Those who have wonderful health are always in danger of abusing it. They must always stay aware of the madness of a superlative health!

If you would like my leaflet "Vitamins in Your Diet" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 8. Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Adequate health routine is encouraged among those who have little physical irritations they must pamper.

Old Shirt Has Many Uses

It's nice to have a man who gives you the shirt off his back — but what can you do with the shirt? To cut off the buttons and use it for a dust rag is too obvious. A panel of housewives brainstormed the problem recently and came up with dozens of livelier, more useful ideas for old shirts:

Red jackets for hospital patients, shoe bags, shortie nightgowns for little girls, long boozie covers, pot holders, work aprons for children, and many others.

"Exciting things happen when the techniques of creative problem solving are applied to everyday living," said the leader of the group that attacked the shirt problem.

She is Catherine Ready, a faculty member of the Creative Problem Solving Institute at the University of Buffalo. She works in New York City as Director of Health and Beauty Services for the Buffalo Division of Bristol-Myers.

TRANSLATES IDEAS

Miss Ready went right home and translated several of the panel's bright ideas into reality on her sewing machine. The results:

OVERBLOUSE: A button-up-the-back blouse that is particularly attractive if made from a figured sports shirt. After the shirt sleeves, collar, and yoke are removed, the now bolero-length garment is given a new, feminine neckline and is bordered with gay ball fringe.

CHILD'S SMOCK: Just the thing for young painters and sculptors. Again, the buttons go in back, and across the front marches a railroad track with buttons that serve as useful pockets. The transformation is achieved via press-on tape, and ingenuity.

BUFF THE CLOWN: A gay laundry bag or a stuffed toy, depending on the whim of the seamstress. The shirt becomes the body of the clown, with the addition of head, arms and legs cut from felt.

Miss Ready, who travels the country lecturing to women's audiences on the fruitful use of leisure time, took the old-shirt creations on the road to demonstrate how her procedures can be put into practice. The response was overwhelming.

"The first time I showed the articles during a television interview, 729 women wrote in and asked for instructions," Miss Ready said. "We hadn't planned to go into the pattern business, but we hated to disappoint anybody."

As an ardent and active brainstormer, Miss Ready is delighted with the continuing demand for the patterns.

"A coffee break with the neighbors can be an occasion for the exchange of ideas," she says. "Such get-togethers can give the housewife a lift, and give you ideas you can use."

"When an old, wearing household chore is tackled in a new way and with enthusiasm, life becomes easier, time is saved, tension dissolves, and there is a desire to wake up and live!"

Wives Just Ignore Views of Husbands

By RUTH MILLET

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. A psychologist has proved by scientific tests that we doubt our own judgment more if a stranger disagrees with us than if someone we know well does.

Maybe the tests were necessary to prove that the rule applies to men.

But any husband could vouch for the fact that wives rarely waver in a belief just because their nearest and dearest (that is, their husbands) dispute their judgment.

If a husband looks dubious about his wife's decision to put purple draperies in the living room, his wife just figures that he doesn't know anything about decorating. But let another woman raise her eyebrows at the mention of purple curtains and the wife begins to lose her serene self-assurance. Maybe, she begins to think, purple curtains would be a little too much.

A husband can tell his wife until he is blue in the face that she is spoiling the children and she doesn't pay the slightest attention.

But let her come across an article by a stranger who voices the same ideas that her husband holds out child-rearing and she begins to fret and worry over the way she has been handling the job.

Papa's comments on politics and world events as he reads his daily newspaper make scant impression on his wife. But let her go to a lecture and hear the same kind of critical comments and she rushes home to tell her husband exactly what he has been telling her for years.

That's why, of course, that husband who is well broken into by the years go by when their wives make positive statements or announce plans that have drawbacks to an inexperienced husband would be quick to point out.

Announcing the engagement of their daughter Sharon May to Marine PFC Angus S. Hinds Jr., are the Herbert E. Darlings, Lake Orion. His parents are the Angus S. Hinds, South Shirley Avenue. Her fiancé is stationed in Quantico, Va. December vows are planned.

Refrigerator Rolls Are Boon to Homemaker

Pontiac Press Home Editor

Hot rolls always add a distinctive touch to any meal, no matter how simple the rest of the food may be. If you have roll dough in your refrigerator, you're all set.

Mrs. Curtis Cheek shares with us her favorite recipe. The day we talked with her she was house cleaning and making rolls was the last thing she was thinking about. The Cheek family enjoys camping. In fact, that's how we met them—out camping.

NO KNEAD REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

By Mrs. Curtis Cheek

3 cups warm water, 110-115 degrees

2 packages dry yeast

2 eggs

1 1/2 cups cold flour

1/2 cup shortening

Dissolve yeast in warm water in mixing bowl. Add sugar, salt, half the flour and beat thoroughly for 5 minutes. Add egg and shortening and beat. Add rest of flour gradually, beating until smooth.

Cover bowl with a damp cloth and place in refrigerator. As dough rises, punch it down.

Two hours before you need rolls, cut off what dough you need and leave the rest in the refrigerator. Shape and place rolls on greased baking sheet. Let rise 1 1/2 to 2 hours, depending on size. Bake 13-15 minutes at 400 degrees.

This recipe makes about 4 dozen medium rolls. It will keep about 5 days in the refrigerator.

If you like, you can glaze the rolls with milk or slightly beaten egg white, dust the tops with sugar and return to the oven for a few more minutes.

It takes 150 days of drilling to sink an oil well below 15,000 feet.

To Survive Nuclear Blast in Mid 1960s

Americans Must Prepare for War Now

LAYOUT — This is the floor plan of basement fallout shelters. Details on construction may be obtained from your nearest civil defense headquarters or from the federal office at Battle Creek, Mich.

HOME WARNING — The National Emergency Alarm Repeater (NEAR) would be plugged into wall socket in all U. S. homes.

(Editor's Note: This is the third of four reports on the new meaning and importance of civil defense as a deterrent against nuclear war.)

By RAY CHOMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—To make it 45 per cent sure that you and your family would live through an all-out atomic war in the mid 1960s or after, you must start work now. This is the advice of the Administration's civil defense research men.

You already have read that with a little preparation and planning you have a good chance of living through a war if one should occur this year over Berlin.

The Russians are relatively weak now in their ability to make heavy intercontinental nuclear attacks. Most of the strikes would be with not-too-fast airplanes. For such planes, U.S. defenses are not bad. But by the middle and late 1960s, the strikes would be with intercontinental missiles of high-speed planes.

Relatively, U.S. defenses would be much weaker then unless there is a major breakthrough.

The Russians in the middle and late 1960s, however, would have more and tougher military targets to hit before they would be able to spare missiles and planes wanted to destroy large numbers of American cities.

MEANING IS SIMPLE

All-out Russian strikes in the middle and late 1960s could still kill only a small proportion of Americans by blast. Yet 100 to 140 million more could be killed by radioactive fallout unless Americans were prepared.

The government has plans to help.

If Congress approves President Kennedy's new civil defense program, the first step will be to identify every possible natural shelter in office buildings, schools, churches, basements, subways — in every building near population centers. The experts say they expect to find natural shelters for 45 million to 50 million people, not including caves and mines.

The Defense Department will then mark all these shelters. This marking is expected to be completed by the end of 1962.

The next step would be to supply these shelters with the minimum in government buildings to provide shelter space wherever possible. They will encourage the building of fall-out shelters in all new federal buildings.

Civil defense experts expect that this forced air ventilation, other improvements in second, third and fourth-rate shelters, the changes in government buildings, will combine to more than double the adequate shelter space. They say these improvements would mean total marked shelter spaces eventually for 100 million Americans.

State, county and city governments will be encouraged to provide for fallout shelters in all new office buildings. There may eventually be federal aid on a 50-50 basis.

The Pentagon will rush a nationwide home buzzer system for warning every household in the country that an attack is imminent. This National Emergency Alarm Repeater system — NEAR — has already been tried out in one town. Within the next few months, NEAR will be tried out statewide in Michigan. Then it will be organized, area by area, through the nation.

The experts say that $30 million will transform the nation's electric power stations for NEAR. After his local power station has been equipped, a local householder will be able to buy a buzzer about the size of two cigar packs for $8 or so. The one plug it into any household electric outlet, move it from the living room or kitchen to the bedroom at night. Or he can have one in every room.

In case of an alert, the buzzer will sound in every plugged household over the nation. A householder would then turn on his radio for instructions. This NEAR buzzer system will help remedy one of the worst weaknesses of today's civil defense system.

Next step will be neighborhood shelters. The old plans called for pushing communities to build special 300-man or 350-man fallout shelters in the suburbs. That's apparently out. The new plan is to encourage churches, neighborhood super markets and stores to make the changes necessary for emergency use as fallout shelters for the neighborhood.

School districts will be encouraged to transform school rooms into fallout shelters where possible, and to build the auditoriums and cafeterias in new schools so they can also be used as fallout shelters.

At the same time, the Defense Department is developing a priority plan for the defense of top military sites against Russian attack. Intercontinental missile sites are already being hardened. New studies are being made on the feasibility of protecting the big strategic air command bomber bases by some way other than expensive air alerts. There's a belief in Pentagon military circles that some of these planes should be put in bombproof shelters, perhaps underground, as in Sweden. (NEXT: The state of Soviet civil defense.)

Canada's gold mines employ about 10,000 workers. Four of eight Americans live under daylight saving time.

Name McGregor Head of Hospital Fund Drive

ROCHESTER — Howard L. McGregor, president of National Twist Drill and Tool Co., has been named general campaign chairman of the forthcoming building fund drive for the Rochester Unit of Crittenton General Hospital.

Announcement of the appointment was made today by Ormond S. Wiest, president of the Detroit hospital's board of trustees.

A goal of $250,000 has been set for the drive to be raised in 1962.

He cited the population increase in the municipalities surrounding the hospital site he donated last week on the north side of Auburn Road, west of John R. in Avon Township.

McGregor also pointed to the congested traffic on highways leading to hospitals in metropolitan areas as a major reason for locating new hospital facilities closer to the Rochester-Union-Troy area.

TO ANNOUNCE COMMITTEE

Members of the campaign executive committee, most of whom will be residents of the new hospital service area, together with representatives from the Rochester Project Committee of Crittenton's board, will be announced in the near future.

The proposed 200-bed Rochester Unit is planned to be expandable to 450 in 1970. It is estimated it will take six to eight months to complete the fund drive, a year to develop the architect's plans and a year to build and equip the facility.

The American City Bureau has established hospital camps at 124 Tenth Avenue Drive where work is already under way on the drive.

McGregor has served his home community of Rochester as president of the board of education and currently is serving as treasurer of the township library and president of the Community Chest.

He resides at Great Oaks Farm on W. University Drive with his wife Kay and daughter Karen, who attends Kingwood School, Bloomfield Hills.

The general campaign chairman is vice president of the Crittenton General Hospital board and chairman of the board of the Metal Cutting Tool Institute.

He also belongs to the Detroit Board of Commerce, Engineering Society of Detroit, American Gear Manufacturers Association, and the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers.

2,000 Expected for Annual State Farm Tour

ALMA (UPI)—Some 2,000 people were expected in this Gratiot County area today for the annual State Farm Management tour.

The tour, started by farm management specialists at Michigan State University, called for three teams in the county. One is a beef farm, one a cash crop operation and the third a certified seed business.

During a noon lunch, Russell Garst of Coon Rapids, Iowa, was to outline what he sees ahead for the American farm future.

NEWS OF THE AREA

Policeman Performing Duty

A coroner's jury of six men yesterday ruled that the shooting of a 23-year-old Detroit man in a police chase through the streets of Oak Park and Ferndale July 24 was an accidental death.

The jury reached the verdict in a brief deliberation following the testimony presented by six witnesses before Coroner Dr. John P. Monroe in the Oakland County Courthouse.

The death of Arthur W. Himmel, a passenger in a car which was attempting to escape pursuing policemen, occurred accidentally while Oak Park Patrolman Roland M. Hughes was performing his duty, the jury said.

Hughes, 25, a graduate of Michigan State University school of police administration, fired the bullet which killed Himmel and slightly injured another passenger, Stephen Maczynski, 21, of Detroit.

Scheduled for examination at 9 a.m. tomorrow in Ferndale Municipal Court is Robert J. McFarlen, a 23-year-old parolee who had served three years in prison for breaking and entering.

McFarlen, who is charged with felonious assault, was the driver of the car which was being chased by the Oak Park patrolman.

The chase ended when the car McFarlen was driving spun around on Eight-Mile Road in Ferndale, struck Hughes' patrol car and then hit a Ferndale police car.

Hughes claimed McFarlen tried to run him off the road.

Hes. Howard E. Short and Rev. D. P. Claypool, grandfather of the bride, performed the rites.

The bride is the former Judith Ann Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Britton Wheeler of 1061 N. Commerce Road. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clark E. Waters of 2412 Duck Lake Road, Highland Township.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor length, white organza gown decorated with Oriental lace and featuring a round, scalloped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. A rhinestone tiara held her fingertip veil, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white Fuji chrysanthemums.

Gifts. Aileen Wheeler, arrived as maid of honor for her sister.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Clark B. Waters Jr. of Pontiac, as best man, with Stephen Newman and Duane D. Mueller, both of Millard, as witnesses.

A reception was held in the church parlor immediately after the ceremony.

Upon returning, the newlyweds will reside at 1650 Pleasure Drive, Millard.

He Can't Bear Bear's Breath, Sues Government

DETROIT (AP) — "The worst part, I think, was the awful smell of her breath," said Joseph L. Williams, 21, Farmington, about an attack by a bear.

Williams testified Tuesday in his $450,000 damage suit against the U.S. government for injuries allegedly suffered when a bear attacked him in Glacier National Park in Montana in the summer of 1958.

Williams is suing the government in U.S. District Court. He said the bear seized his head in her jaws and he fought her until park rangers shot her.

He stated that the bear attacked him without provocation while he was on a hike. Williams' home is at 1870 Farmington Road.

One-third of the cancer deaths in the United States could be avoided by early detection and treatment.

Win Model Car Awards

DETROIT (AP) — Boys from Livonia and Detroit won awards in the 1961 Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild national model auto competition. Richard Held, 30, of Livonia, won a $3,000 college scholarship in the senior division. Marvin, 16, of Detroit, won a $1,000 scholarship in the junior division.

Walled Lake Council Deadlocked

No Decision on Manager

WALLED LAKE — Temperament that exists between various Council districts last night as the City Council members

CITIZENRY EMPLOYERS

Criticism also was leveled at the city's current staff of employees by Watkins, who said Walled Lake is "too small to afford a full-time manager."

City Clerk Harold Millsap still holds the post of acting city manager today after the council failed to name a successor to George A. Shaw who resigned the managership July 15 to take a position in Three Rivers.

The council could not agree upon whether to appoint Millsap as full-time manager, or wait a new man for the job or abolish the position.

The absence of Councilman Robert M. Thibodeau resulted in several tie votes on the issue between the other six members of the council.

Councilmen Clyde Mottor, Harold Ackley and Richard Watkins, all of whom sit on the right side of the council table, favored retaining Millsap as acting city manager for the balance of the fiscal year.

COUNTERMOVES

The motion was defeated when Councilmen Robert L. Wilste and Waldo C. Proctor and Mayor Marshall E. Taylor voted against it.

A motion to interview two men from a list of 14 applicants for the vacant city manager's job was defeated in another tie vote.

This motion was supported by Taylor, Wilste and Proctor. It was opposed by Mottor, Watkins and Ackley.

Mayor Taylor accused Mottor of lying about his intentions when Mottor said that Millsap could be retained in the manager's post on a temporary basis, until the council could find out if the clerk could handle both jobs.

"I don't believe you," Taylor told Mottor when the matter was being discussed. Taylor withdrew his remark from the record.

Mottor later said Taylor had publicly criticized him at a meeting he did not attend.

"I think it behooves a man in your office to criticize a councilman publicly only when he is there to defend himself," Mottor said to Taylor.

Mottor then suggested that the councilmen be seated at the table in alphabetical order instead of in the present arrangement to eliminate some of the "obvious friction."

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — Richard L. Pifer, son of Edwin E. Pifer of 608 Cooley Lake Road, has received a B.S. degree in business administration from Eastern Michigan University.

A member of Kappa Phi Alpha Fraternity, he will enter the Army in December as a second lieutenant.

He was associated with Pierre Meneses in France, with Max Reinhardt in Germany, with Victor de Sabata in Italy, with Eric Kleiber in South America.

Mrs. Dolores Ruth, formerly in charge of ballet at the conservatory, has accepted a teaching position in Florida.

Classes will begin Sept. 22 and registrations can be made any weekday at the conservatory office, 49 S. Main St.

Flint Girl, 5, Killed Playing With Gun

FLINT (AP) — Carla Kelly, 5, died Tuesday night from a gunshot wound in the head police said she received while playing with her father's pistol.

Detective Hans Neuman said the girl walked upstairs at her home and took the pistol from a cabinet her father had left unlocked when he removed some papers.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Kelly.

Save Worker Buried Alive

Good Guess, Pocket of Air Combine in Rescue of Man in Cave-In

ROMEO — A 26-year-old sewer construction worker was buried in a cave-in yesterday but came out of it with nothing worse than a broken collarbone and a fractured rib.

Two factors meant the difference between life and death: Jerry Solinsky of 7074 Melton St. who was trapped under the loose earth for 16 minutes until the hoose was uncovered.

Authorities said that because he was able to form an air pocket around his head with his arms and became a local fireman made a good guess in telling him, he escaped serious injury — even death.

Solinsky was digging a sewer off Milnot and Chandler streets when the walls of the 10-foot trench suddenly gave way covering him with clay, sand and stones.

Fellow workers immediately began digging and the emergency unit of the Romeo Fire Department arrived shortly to assist with the rescue operation.

FIREMAN GUERRAS

On of the firemen, Glenn Dietlin, of 200 Crowell St., guessed about where the worker would be below the surface and in about 10 minutes Solinsky's head was uncovered.

When asked how he felt, the accident victim said, "I thought I was a goner."

He said he could hear the rescuers trying to reach him and shouted, but they said they never heard a sound.

It took another 25 minutes to get Solinsky out, and then he was rushed to the Community Hospital near Almont where he was treated and released.

Solinsky is employed at Carl Woods Septic Tank Service, 6721 Van Dyke.

The cave-in occurred shortly before 6:30 a.m.

Agree on Outbacks in Grain Production

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Senate House conference committee Tuesday reached agreement on programs to cut surplus wheat and grain production next year.

However, the committee still must work out other differences in Senate and House versions of the bill, including a plan which could open the way to chicken production control.

The wheat program would force 10 per cent cut—amounting to 5.5 million acres—in government planting allotments on the 1962 crop. Farmers would get government payments for diverting the land to conservation crops.

Fallout Shelter Firm Hoping to Sell Again

The Pontiac area company that used to sell underground, corrugated steel family fallout shelters doesn't sell them anymore but hopes to again.

James Rains, president of Family Shelters, Inc., 2383 Orchard Lake Ave., West Bloomfield Township said sales were voluntarily halted in April because the units that had been sold up to then tended to leak.

The principal manufacturer, Armac Steel Co., is presently trying to find a way to stop the leaking without putting the total cost of the shelter beyond the reach of the average household, Rains said. Armac makes the steel shell which is supposed to shelter for a couple weeks, in event of radioactive fallout from a nuclear explosion.

As a franchised dealership, Family Shelters sold 18 of the shelters to families in Southern Michigan and several other states, Rains said. Design of the shelter had been approved by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization (OCDM).

One of them was sold for $1,300 to Mr. and Mrs. William Majer, 3030 Woodcrest St., Avon Township, and it was their complaint that has led Congressman William S. Bromfield to call for an explanation from the OCDM about why a leaky design was approved.

Mrs. Majer said there were 3 feet of water in her shelter.

MAY REPLACE SHELTER
Rains said he would replace the Majer's shelter if one that doesn't leak is developed.

He said that he has to pump his own out after a heavy rainfall.

One of the early commercial ventures into the area of fallout shelters, Rains expressed concern last the public loss faith in the fallout shelter program.

"I've been busy night and day since President Kennedy emphasized the importance of shelter," he said. "This is the first time the Pontiac area has waned in the need for shelters. But this could kill it."

The fallout shelter program being developed by private business is still in its early stages, Rains emphasized.

He said more research and experimenting are needed and federal matching funds should be made available to help pay for them.

Rains said that he thinks full protection against radioactive fallout can come only from an underground shelter.

But until one is perfected, Family Shelters will probably be selling prefabricated steel shelters for basements, Rains said.

Costing $480, uninstalled, the basement shelters will be put on the market if a prototype by Family Shelters in Southgate proves today, said Rains.

HAS SUGGESTIONS
It was with reluctance that Rains gave his own view of the overall family fallout shelter program with some suggestions about how government action could speed it up.

"There's not a fully suitable family shelter in this country at this time. Really, we stand naked in event something happens."

To help get the fallout shelter program off the ground, the federal government should take a number of steps towards reducing costs for the average family, said Rains.

In addition to the 20-year terms just approved in Washington for shelter loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration, families with shelters should get income and property tax relief, Rains said.

Business and home modernization companies should be stimulated to enter the picture with loans and installation programs, he continued.

If the cost factor becomes more acceptable to the public, there to greater guarantees that licensed builders will do the construction, working under building permits with local inspection, Rains said.

Prohibitive costs could lead to persons building shelters on their own without permits and without inspection, Rains agreed.

"Some kind of check out" is needed after every shelter is finished to make sure it will give protection, he said.

Wakes Up Suddenly

LONDON (UPI) — Maureen Grimes, 22, charged with stealing 3 shillings, sixpence (about 30 cents) worth of groceries from a store, explained she was getting married soon and was "waking about in a dream." The judge fined her $17.64.

Economic Reaction to Berlin Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How civil defense preparedness measures the President and Congress are taking fall far short of the degree of the 1950 mobilization. Although the President has spoken of the possibility of war, most Americans probably doubt it actually will occur.

Secondly, memories of wartime shortages are dimmer than they were when the Korean War started. The youngest of today's married couples and unmarried adult shoppers are too young to remember well the shortages of 1942-48.

That happened in 1950, after the United States joined in the defense of South Korea. Then, consumers, amidst of World War II shortages of everything from sugar in gasoline, rushed to stock up.

One result was that the shortages in fact developed. Another was that the consumer price index jumped 9 per cent from June 1950, when hostilities erupted, to June 1951.

The same thing could happen again, presidential advisers say, although they add there are several reasons why it is much less likely.

One is that the military and

Franco Hosts Royalty of Belgium on Yacht

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain — Generalissimo Franco had the king and queen of Belgium as luncheon guests Tuesday aboard his yacht Azor off San Sebastian. It was the first meeting for the Spanish chief of state and his wife with King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola since they came here last week for a month's vacation.

Envoy Calls Red Boss 'Damned Shrewd'

'K' Knows How to Retreat Gracefully'

By BOB CONSIDINE
NEW YORK — The ambassador (who said it would hurt him if I mentioned his name) put it this way:
"Khrushchev will find some way to back down on Berlin. He differs from Hitler in that basic respect."

"I knew Hitler, had to deal with him, and he was absolutely demoted about attempting to carry out public statements, or pledges, he had made in the earshot of others."

"No matter how balmy the statement, pledge or program might be, Hitler would try to go through with it — though it might mean his death and the death of his reich."

"He lived that way, died that way, and so did his rule and his nutty ideology."

"He never understood that Nazism could not be a way of life the conquered states might some day learn to live with — as Poland, let's say, lives with communism."

"His Nazism tried to wipe out, find a 'final solution' for peoples basically opposed to it. He conquered nothing, politically, though his geographical conquests were enormous."

"Khrushchev has been compared to Hitler a lot lately, but it's a shallow parallel."

"Khrushchev is a damned shrewd politician, one with a much broader scope than Hitler."

"He makes sounds like a man going out on the end of a limb — as in the case of Berlin — but he never kicks away the ladder which will enable him to climb down from that limb."

"Hitler used to kick the ladder away, and order the execution of those who tried to put it even tentatively back in place."

"Khrushchev has a pretty good idea about how the rescue ladder will be supplied long before he goes out on the limb," the veteran American diplomat said.

"Matter of fact, he'll probably put it up himself. He'll climb down, but in a face-saving way."

"He'll suddenly make loud sounds about some other part of the world — so loud, in fact, that the average person will be so alarmed he won't notice that Khrushchev has chickened out once more in trying to push us out of Berlin — which we should have captured in the first place."

"I can see and hear him now, as the time comes when he either must put up or shut up. He'll turn his propagandists loose in the world where they'll attract the most attention."

"Suppose, for example, he gets that crackpot Castro to accept a Soviet-built ICBM base in Cuba and threatens to supply the 1,000-mile range missiles with atomic warheads?"

"We'll be so aroused over a thing like that that we'll never hear him descending from the preposterous limb he finds himself on in the Berlin matter."

"Suddenly, we won't give a damn about Berlin — where now we'd go to war over it — and we'll go through the soul searching on whether the Monroe Doctrine is valid, and the pang of being reminded by Khrushchev (with a big, innocent blue-eyed indignation) that we have planted missile patches in the soil of our friends who happen to be within ICBM range of the Soviet Union."

Police Can Give Tickets Outside Bailiwicks

Arm of Law Has Long Reach, Indeed!

By DICK SAUNDERS
Recently, a West Bloomfield Township woman was ticketed by Sylvan Lake police for speeding. The ticket was issued in the township.

She demanded a jury trial, claiming police wrote the ticket a mile out of her jurisdiction. She also complained she got an all-Sylvan jury.

The jury found her guilty.

Her argument concerns two points that many people question: police jurisdiction and jury selection.

In the particular case in question, Sylvan Police Chief George McTavish stated the defendant was paced at a speed over the limit on Orchard Lake Road in Sylvan Lake.

"We followed her to her home and issued the ticket. Traffic cops do not come as from stopping her sooner," he said.

FRESH PURSUIT
Michigan police law calls this fresh pursuit.

According to the law, any peace officer may arrest or arrest anyone outside his bailiwick for violation of a state or local law committed inside his area.

In fact, most city, village or township policemen have the power to enforce state laws outside their bailiwick.

If a speeding violation occurs on a state trunkline, it is a violation of state law, Orchard Lake Road is a state trunkline.

But what power does a policeman have if he sees a law broken outside his city, village or township?

This depends largely on what type of policeman he is and what kind of law has been broken.

A city, village or township policeman may stop the violator and make a local law officer. The outside policeman signs a complaint. The local officer issues the ticket and the case comes before a justice of the peace or judge in the area where the offense takes place.

BROAD POWER
Sheriff's deputies may cross county lines in fresh pursuit and become complainants in other counties, as well as make arrests or issue tickets for violation of state laws anywhere in their county.

State police have this power anywhere in their county. State police have this power anywhere in Michigan and may pursue cases in fresh pursuit.

This means that a deputy or state trooper could issue a ticket to someone for running a red light in Pontiac without calling in Pontiac Police.

But authority changes with the law. While authority to enforce state laws is wide, enforcing local ordinances is limited to local police.

Sylvan Police, for example, can only enforce Sylvan Lake ordinances. They cannot enforce ordinances of a neighboring community, even though they may pursue and ticket someone in another community who has violated a Sylvan ordinance.

State police are limited to state law. Troopers cannot ticket someone for speeding where the speed is governed by a local ordinance.

JURY SURVEY
As for jury trials, a spot survey shows that most justice and municipal court juries consist of people from the city or township where the court is located.

However, Michigan law makes it difficult to choose a jury that might be prejudiced for or against the defendant.

First it states that the arresting officers shall have nothing to do with the selection of the jury.

Secondly, it states the judge must order a constable or sheriff's deputy to select the names of 18 persons qualified for jury duty from rolls at the county clerk's office.

Third, both the prosecuting and defense attorneys are given the right to each strike six names from the list.

Finally, the remaining six who are called for jury may be challenged by either attorney and replaced if found unqualified or prejudiced.

The best rule is not to ignore a policeman from another community. In most cases, his authority is much the same as your local police — only the markings on his car are different.

Optical Firms Face Charges

Two Largest Equipment Companies Indicted for Monopoly, Price-Fixing

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A federal grand jury Tuesday filed charges of monopoly and price-fixing against the world's two largest optical equipment manufacturers who issued emphatic denials.

Indicted were American Optical Co. of Southbridge, Mass., and Bausch & Lomb, Inc., of Rochester, N.Y. Also indicted were an executive of each company.

The grand jury said that in 1959 the two firms had combined sales of $152 million, compared with $33 million for their next four competitors.

A spokesman for American Optical said in Southbridge that the charges "are not justified. The allegation of conspiracy between American Optical Co. and Bausch & Lomb are not true. The American Optical Co. vigorously denies that it or any of its officers in any way violated the antitrust laws. Its business has been conducted independently and without collusion with any competitor."

Alton K. Marsters, vice president of Bausch & Lomb, said, "We categorically deny having engaged in either such activity."

Mother in Jail as Girls Kept From Seeing Dad

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—This is the tangled tale of an effort by two sisters, Denise, 15, and Barbara Douglas, 14, to visit their father—who is in Paris—over the objections of their mother, who now is in jail.

The girls were picked up Sunday at the home of their mother, Eileen D. Henderson, at nearby Berkeley, on a court order obtained in behalf of their father, William J. Douglas, Paris osteopath. The couple is divorced.

Tuesday the court ordered the girls placed on a plane for Paris. But their mother informed the court she had mailed their passports to her attorney in Boston. She was jailed for contempt of court.

Now Denise and Barbara are in care of a welfare home, awaiting disposition of the case.

Goodyear Ups Earnings Despite Sales Falloff

AIRON, Ohio — The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. said Tuesday it increased its earnings in the first half this year even though sales volume was lower than last year's.

E. J. Thomas, chairman, said net income for the first half was $38,471,877, equivalent to $1.13 per share of common stock, compared with $37,684,223, or $1.11 per share, in the first half of last year.

Sales for the first half amounted to $726,151,829, compared with $735,808,985, a decline of 11 percent from first half 1960 sales.

She'll Do 'Road' Comedy

Joan Gets What She Wants

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
LONDON — "When a girl knows what she wants, she should go after it."

This is Joan Collins' secret of success in liberating the savings of Dorothy Lamour as leading lady of Bob Hope and Bing Crosby in the seventh of their costarring films, "Honor to Hong Kong."

To be accurate Joan isn't using the slogan.

"I wear very sleek, high fashions in the picture," she reports.

Joan told how she got the cherished role.

"Last year I saw 'The Facts of Life' and I thought it was one of the funniest films I'd seen in years. Then I heard that Norman Panama and Mel Frank, who made it, were planning to do 'Road to Hong Kong' with Bing and Bob."

"I called them up and said I would love to be in the picture."

Meanwhile she was embroiled with her home studio, 20th Century-Fox for turning down movie after movie. She didn't want to be cast in a siren.

WANTS COMEDY
"I tried unsuccessfully to convince them I wanted to do comedy," she said. "The trend is to comedy now, but there are no young comedienne to match the great ones of the '30s and '40s. Like Joan Arthur, Claudette Colbert, Rosalind Russell and Carole Lombard. I wanted a chance."

She's getting it. Joan won freedom from Fox by promising to do two more films.

"The role is actually better than the ones Dorothy Lamour had," she remarked. "I'm not just in and out of the plot; I work practically every day."

"I've already worked with Bob. I'll marry an American and become a citizen."

The American? He's Warren Beatty, brother of Shirley MacLaine on a TV show. And I've met Bing. I know I'm going to have a ball. My only worry is that I'll break up so often that they'll have to fire me."

The film brings Joan back to her native London, where she admitted is not popular with the press.

"I've been in America six years and I love everything about it. That's why they hate me. I think Laine and fast becoming a star in his own right.

"We've been engaged a year," she said. "Both of us like long engagements. I once got married fast and it was a disaster."

Soviet Program May Irk China

Proposed Party Plan Seen as Source of New Friction Between Two

WASHINGTON (AP)—The proposed Soviet Communist party program just published in Moscow is seen by authorities here as a possible new source of irritation and dispute between the Soviet Union and Red China.

Authorities who have studied the voluminous document say that its emphasis on a need for avoiding war and for Premier Khrushchev's policy of "peaceful coexistence" is sharply at variance with the more aggressive policy of the Communist Chinese leaders.

Furthermore, in the view of Washington authorities, the program sets up 20-year goals for the Soviet Communist system which the Soviets may at least dream of achieving but the Chinese Reds with their more backward and underdeveloped country have no hope of realizing in such a relatively short period.

The statement of Soviet Communist aims and doctrine, the first such massive doctrinal work in more than 40 years, was published in Moscow Sunday.

2,800-Member Guild Threatening Strike

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The 2,800-member Engineers and Architects Guild is threatening to strike next Monday against one of the nation's key defense contractors, Lockheed California Co. Guild president Olivia Ignatowski said Tuesday that members had approved the strike by an 86 per cent vote because of a deadlock in contract negotiations. The old contract ended Monday.

The case has been assigned to federal mediator Lester L. Huling, who is to meet with negotiators Friday. The firm has asked Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg to assist in "arriving at an equitable solution."

The Lockheed California Co. produces F104G jet fighters and P3V1 and P3V1 antiaircraft patrol planes at Burbank and Palmdale, Calif.

Michigan Week to Stand on Own in May 1962

LANSING (AP)—The annual Michigan Week, a husky 9-year-old, will be standing on its own feet next year.

The legislature made the decision to take the Michigan Week promotion out from under the wing of the State Economic Development Commission.

It was done by taking $10,000 from the commission budget and earmarking the money for the promotion by the Greater Michigan Foundation.

Some legislators have said the department should be devoting more effort to trying to attract new industry to Michigan instead of spending time on Michigan Week.

Dan Gerber, chairman, said the foundation will hold a board of directors meeting in Detroit Aug. 22 to make plans for sponsorship of the ninth annual Michigan Week May 29-30, 1962.

Police Shoot Heifer After Wild Escapade

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—This cow just wasn't contented. Police Tuesday were forced to shoot to death a 900-pound heifer after she broke away while being loaded onto a truck.

During her wild escapade she noted up traffic on a suburban street, knocked down a man trying to catch her, and chased a police officer over a fence. Police may be in for more of the same. Still missing was another heifer that escaped.

Shell suggests 12 ways to beat the heat when you're on the road

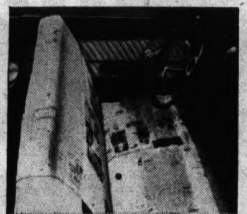

These tips come from the files of Shell's veteran Touring Manager. They will help you protect your car and yourself from the wear and tear of hot-weather motoring.

Shell Touring Manager "Mac" MacLaggan

THERE'S no reason to let hot weather spoil your fun when you're on the road," says Shell Touring Manager H. S. "Mac" MacLaggan.

"These tips will help you beat the heat—and get more pleasure out of your pleasure driving."

- 1. Cover car seats when you park in the sun. Then they won't be scorching hot when you return. A newspaper (above) or a towel will do the trick. On the road, a ventilated seat cushion with back—like the ones truck drivers use—lets the air circulate around you and helps keep you cool.
- 2. Increase idling speed occasionally when you're in hot, heavy traffic. You'll turn the fan faster, speed up the flow of engine coolant—and reduce temperatures under the hood. This can help keep your car from overheating.
- 3. Don't pump the accelerator if your car won't start after a short stop. The engine is probably flooded. On a really hot day, flooding can actually take place even when your engine is turned off. Pumping only makes it worse.

The right thing to do is wait a few minutes, press the accelerator pedal all the way to the floor, and hold it there while you work the starter. This should get you started.

NOTE: You're not likely to have this problem in the first place, if you keep Super Shell gasoline in your tank. In summer, Shell scientists revise Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula to produce a special Hot Weather Blend.

Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend fights flooding and other hot weather troubles. Gives you top performance even when highways sizzle.

- 4. Break up your trip. Summer heat drains your energy. Stop frequently to rest, stretch your legs, and have a look at the scenery. You'll feel better when you get back on the road. And you'll probably drive more safely.

NOTE: Carry a thermos of ice water to quench your thirst between stops. And to freshen up, just pour a little ice water on a washcloth and bathe your face. You'd be surprised what a difference it can make.

- 5. Keep meals, clothes and suitcases light. You need less food in hot weather. Heavy meals can make you feel hot and drowsy. As for clothes, you'll be more comfortable if they're light and loose-fitting. Better air circulation.

And pack only things you think you'll really need. Who wants to wrestle with heavy suitcases at the end of a hot day?

- 6. Keep your radiator clean. Debris in your radiator can cut cooling efficiency drastically. A whisk broom will help you clean obstructions you can see. But for a really complete job, let your Shell dealer use compressed air from his tire hose (see picture) to blast debris out.

NOTE: Inside your radiator, rust can interfere with efficient cooling. To help prevent rust from forming, have your Shell dealer put in a dose of Shell's special Cooling System Protector.

- 7. Plan to reach your overnight stops before 4 o'clock. You'll avoid the local rush-hour traffic and the late afternoon heat. And by arriving early you'll have your pick of hotels and motels. You'll be able to find one with air-conditioning. Maybe even with a swimming pool. What better way to beat the heat?

- 8. Make sure your tires are in tip-top condition before you leave home. Summer heat can increase the risk of blow-outs. And high speeds on sizzling roads wear tires out fast. At 80 miles an hour you get only one-fifth of normal tread wear. WARNING: Never "bleed" hot tires. They're built to take the extra pressure heat causes.

- 9. Kill windshield glare. Did you ever notice how much summer sunshine can bounce into the windshield off the shiny shelf above the dashboard? That glare can be plenty irritating. Our picture shows how Shell's Touring Manager kills glare. He simply drapes a dark cloth across the shelf. Any cloth will work, just as long as it's dark.

- 10. Have your oil level and battery water checked every time you stop for gasoline. These two checks are especially important when you're driving in hot weather. Here's why:

[A] A full crankcase of oil helps cool your engine as it lubricates. Suggestion: Next time you need oil, try Shell X-100® Premium, the remarkable new oil that fights 5 unseen threats to engine life.

- 11. Be sure your heater is completely off. Some heaters "leak" heat all summer. Let your Shell dealer check the heater valve and close it tight.

- 12. Get Shell's personalized Touring Package free. A typical Touring Package includes an up-to-date map with both scenic and direct routes clearly marked; accommodation information; sightseeing information; guides to cities and states; even ferryboat schedules. All the information you need to avoid the time-consuming problems that make a hot day seem even hotter. And all absolutely free. See your local Shell dealer for full details.

IDEA: Keep this page in your glove compartment as a check-list and a reference—to help you get more fun on every trip you take this summer.

Here are the 9 ingredients in Super Shell—and what they do to give your car top performance.

- #1 is TCP® for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups.
- #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all kinds of knocks.
- #4 is Alkylate to control "high-speed knock."
- #5 is Butane for quick starts.
- #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for power.
- #7 is an "anti-ice." (Added in cold weather.)
- #8 is gum preventive to keep carburetors clean inside.
- #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

*Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Gasoline containing TCP is covered by U. S. Patent 2859212.

May Pave Way for West Summit

Foreign Ministers to Meet in Paris on Berlin Crisis This Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Western foreign ministers meeting which opens in Paris at the end of this week may lay the ground work for a Western summit conference on the Berlin crisis in the fall.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Tuesday that a meeting of President Kennedy and other allied government chiefs is "certainly possible" before the end of the year.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk is scheduled to leave late Thursday night for Paris. He will confer with French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville, Foreign Secretary Lord Home of Britain and Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano of West Germany on diplomatic and military measures for meeting the Soviet challenge to the West over Berlin.

Several reasons for a follow-up session of Western chiefs of government could emerge from the Paris talks. The ministers may find some problems they cannot solve or some problems which require top level sanction for final agreement. They may also decide that any diplomatic initiative undertaken by the West as the Berlin crisis grows grimmer would be more effectively launched from a Western summit conference.

There has been some speculation that the next round of top-level allied talks might be held on this side of the Atlantic, possibly at Bermuda. Kennedy met with French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in London when he visited Europe two months ago.

Found on Brown's body was a late driving certificate showing that in 14 years of driving he had driven 72,149 miles without an accident.

Pontiac City Affairs

No Opposition to Sewer Project

There was no public opposition last night to the biggest neighborhood sewer project of the year, the proposed $27,500 installation on Clark, Fuller and Peacock streets in northeast Pontiac.

Four persons appeared during a public hearing before the City Commission. All favored the sewer.

The prospect of added treatment plant capacity makes the new sewer acceptable to the State Health Department, which had held back new sewers in Pontiac until a new plant ending Clinton River pollution was started.

The project covers Clark Avenue, Arlene to Joelyn, Fuller Street, Clark to Peacock, and Peacock Avenue, Fuller to Joelyn.

City Clerk Olga Bankley was given a pay raise pending her decision whether she wants the job permanently. The raise from $5,300 a year to $7,100 was retroactive to July 27, date of Mrs. Ada R. Evans' retirement from the post.

TO SIGN BONDS—Mrs. Barkley, former deputy clerk, was promoted on the spur of the moment July 11 so that a fulfilled clerk could certify sale of the $12 million sewage treatment bond issue and sign the bonds next week with Mayor Philip E. Rowan.

As expected, a 42-year-old pact was killed by mutual agreement.

Dulles' Resignation Gives Reds Delight

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said today the coming resignation of Allen W. Dulles as chief of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was an admission of bankruptcy of America's positions of strength policy.

"Allen Dulles' stay in office during the first months of President Kennedy's administration discredited the United States in the eyes of the world," the Soviet radio said in a broadcast beamed to North America.

"Allen Dulles and the Central Intelligence Agency he headed have compromised themselves so much that it seems the White House has decided to get rid of such an odious personage."

Kennedy Pushing Foreign Aid Hard

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is turning over every political rock on Capitol Hill in the most intensive campaign a president ever put on for a foreign aid bill.

Members of the Senate and House accustomed to being lobbied for their support of legislation say they have never seen anything like the energy Kennedy is investing in his drive to get approval of a long-range development loan program.

In groups and singly the President has had members in to make his case in behalf of his $3.8-billion request for development lending over five years to struggling new nations. Of this, $1.3 billion would come in borrowing from the Treasury without year-by-year congressional approval. The rest would come from repayments of postwar loans.

This adds up to a heap of presidential authority to ask from Congress, always jealous of its control of the purse strings.

The Kennedy campaign has been mapped carefully and pursued vigorously. He got a Citizens Committee for International Development to work drumming up popular support. The AFL-CIO shipped in with a letter-writing campaign.

CALLS BOTH PARTIES

While Senate and House committees were in the process of considering the administration bill, the presidential charm was exercised on all of the members, Republicans as well as Democrats, in White House visits.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon were directed to write all of the senators and representatives urging support for the President's plan.

But from experience in both the House and Senate, Kennedy knows there is no lobbyist like the president himself. So key legislators still are trooping daily to the White House.

So far, Kennedy is described as having played his cards close to his shirtfront. He has offered no compromises while probing his relations for suggestions on how the bill might be changed to attract more votes.

Platform Launching Faces More Trouble

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The oft-postponed attempt to orbit a satellite "space platform" has encountered more trouble and probably will not be tried again for two weeks.

Scientists had hoped to launch the Atlas-Agena booster rocket today, the final day of an optimum eight-day period which was determined best for placing the payload, Ranger I, on the desired course.

The effort was called off Tuesday night because of technical problems. The next favorable period starts in about two weeks.

The experiment will attempt to place a satellite in orbit and from it launch the Ranger spacecraft deep into space to test techniques for sending future vehicles to the moon and beyond.

Michigan Blueberries Tops in Good Eating

Michigan blueberries come late in the season. Berries in the South-west Michigan area become plentiful in mid-July. The peak of the Michigan crop usually is in early August.

Fifty per cent of Michigan's blueberry crop is marketed fresh. The other half goes to sixteen processing firms.

Ninety-five per cent of the frozen blueberries go into the 30 pound bins for institutional use. Sixty to seventy per cent of the processed berries go into pies. Only 5 per cent of the processed berries go into retail size packages for consumers.

The berries for fresh market are packed in special 12 cup flats or trays. They are primarily shipped by truck. Berries are processed by forced air only if they are to be shipped more than 100 miles to market.

Although no cultivated blueberries are grown under contract, the Michigan Blueberry Grower's Association, a cooperative organization, sells about 95 per cent of the crop. It has established grades and standards which all members must meet in order to market through the association.

The blueberry growers market fresh blueberries under the "Great Lakes" and "Lake States" label. The "Great Lakes" contain a count of 16 or less berries per cup. "Lake States" allow 16 berries or more per cup. Most processors prefer the smaller berry, so a large proportion that might be sold under the "Lake States" label go into processed products.

A little goes a long way with blueberries. Use a half cup of blueberries in muffins. Serve on cereal with lots of cream. Pile a half cup in the center of a melon ring for an easy dessert.

Use 1 cup of blueberries with 2 cups of sliced pineapple and 1/4 cup of orange juice. Serve in sherbet glasses with a sprig of mint. This will serve 6.

Add blueberries to a colorful fruit plate. Top big scoops of ice cream with blueberries. Make a batch of fresh blueberry jam.

Spiced Fresh Blueberry Compote: 1/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon fresh lemon juice, 1/2 stick whole cinnamon, Dash of salt, 1 pint fresh blueberries. Boil first 6 ingredients together

3 or 4 minutes. In a small saucepan. Remove spices. Cool. Pour over washed fresh blueberries. Chill 2 to 4 hours. Serve in sherbet glasses. Yield: 4 servings.

Spinach-Shrimp Salad: Wash and shred into salad bowl 1 lb. fresh spinach and 1 head romaine lettuce; chop and add tops of 1 bunch green onions; add 2 lbs. cooked, deveined shrimp and 1 tablespoon capers; mix a dressing of 1/4 cup soy sauce, 1/4 cup salad oil and 1/2 teaspoon pepper; mix salad beforehand, garnish with onions and refrigerate; add dressing when ready to serve.

Meat for Grilling Should Be Thick: Are you buying meat for the outdoor grill? Then ask that steaks and chops be cut at least 1-inch thick, says Josephine Lawler, Marketing Agent. Thin steaks and chops will dry too much during outdoor cooking. In the case of steaks, a thickness of 2 or even 3 inches is best.

More flavor and juiciness are retained when a thick steak is carved, at serving time, into several portions, than when individual thin steaks are broiled and served. When any steak is cooked to the "well-done" stage, natural flavors are cooked out and steaks will become dry and leathery.

The United States Department of Agriculture reports that steaks make up just one-fourth of the 500 pounds of retail cuts coming from a live 1200 pound steer. This means, a live steer weighing 1000 pounds provides only 140 pounds of tender steaks: 40 pounds cut into sirloin steak; 35 pounds retail as T-bone or Porterhouse steak; and 65 pounds from a whole carcass goes to round steak.

Beef cattle being cut in the mid-west average 575 to 650 pounds dressed weight. Since a steer can produce only "so many" steaks, and since warm sunny days call so many to the outdoor grill, steak prices vary only a little downward at this time of year.

You May Dislocate Jaw Biting This Sandwich: One scrumptious way to serve turkey is to combine it with fruit and ham in a very colorful and tempting sandwich called fruit ham and turkey club sandwich. Each sandwich uses 3 slices toasted raisin bread, each spread with butter or margarine, and a thin layer of cranberry sauce.

On the first slice of toast, arrange thinly-sliced cooked turkey, spread with mashed bananas and add a slice of Swiss cheese. Close with the second slice of toast. Add thin slices of baked ham, a drained pineapple ring, and a crisp lettuce leaf. Close with the third and final slice of toast, spread side down. Secure with wooden picks before cutting into quarters for serving.

What About Vitamin B?

In addition to its high content of the better known B-vitamins, such as thiamine, riboflavin and niacin, wheat germ also is a good dietary source of vitamin B₆ and B₁₂. Swainson Sides With Senator

Denies He Would Quit as Governor to Take Senate Post

LANSING (UPI)—Gov. John B. Swainson today was aligned with Sen. Patrick J. McNamara, D-Mich., against the recommendation of President Kennedy that former Republican state chairman John Felken be confirmed as a federal judge.

Swainson also denied he has any aspirations to the U.S. Senate. "A man has been recommended to the President as a replacement for Felken," Swainson told newsmen Tuesday.

"The Democratic party position in Michigan is that Felken should not be confirmed (by the Senate) and that (Congressman Thaddeus) Machrowicz (D-Mich.) should be confirmed," said the Democratic governor, who is a member of the party's patronage committee.

Machrowicz has long been acknowledged as the Michigan party choice for the lifetime judgeship but the appointment was delayed.

Yelken was first appointed to the federal bench by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, but failed to get confirmation in the U.S. Senate because of McNamara's opposition.

Michigan's junior senator in Washington, Philip A. Hart, also a Democrat, had indicated he would go along with the President's recommendation.

Swainson claimed he was not actually involved in the appointment controversy because it is a matter for the Senate, but agreed that his position as a member of the patronage committee and leader of Michigan Democrats gave him an interest.

The governor also flatly stated for the first time that he would resign as Michigan's chief executive to accept appointment to the U.S. Senate, should a vacancy occur.

The statement apparently ended speculation along these lines that has been rife for a long time.

"I am the governor of Michigan. I enjoy being the governor of Michigan, and I am looking toward no other position," Swainson said.

Pontiac Fire Chief Writes for Magazine

Pontiac Fire Chief James R. White is the author of an article in the July issue of the Municipal Review, published by the Michigan Municipal League.

White discusses the reciprocal aid pact among fire departments in Pontiac and four south Oakland County communities.

Too, in the July issue of Public Management, published by the International City Managers Association, there is favorable notice of the "Homeowners Handbook," recently published by the city to encourage home improvements.

Russ Scientists Show Suture Machine in Hague

THE HAGUE (AP) — Three Russian scientists of the Moscow Surgical Institute Tuesday demonstrated a surgical stapling machine in operation at a Roman Catholic clinic.

Here at the invitation of a Utrecht firm for medical instruments, the three are Dr. M. G. Aalder, director of the surgical institute, Prof. S. A. Houtman and Prof. N. S. Gervin.

Aalder said reporters the machine makes surgical stitching which previously could only be made by hand.

Winning Motto for August Full of Frankness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Let's Have Better Mottoes Association today selected as the winning motto for August: "All I Want is an Unfair Advantage."

The association voted membership to a man who submitted two mottoes but forgot to sign his name. His mottoes: "I Have as Much Fun as Normal People," and, "How Did This Company Ever Grow Before It Hired Me?"

Another contributor signed only the initials E. S. after his motto: "Most Accidents Happen in the Home, so Never Drive Your Car in the House."

Association directors liked one motto but didn't understand it: "The Taller the Bamboo Grows, the Lower It Bends."

Ford Statement Used by UAW

Union Points to Article in Support of Contract Bargaining Position

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union is using a statement by Henry Ford II in support of its own position in contract bargaining.

Accusing the Ford Motor Co. of "corporate double-talk," the UAW Tuesday pointed to a Harvard Business Review article by Ford's president on the subject "stock options" in the public interest.

Sam Bannan, head of the UAW Ford negotiating team, said the article supported the union's position in seeking "good things of life" for workers.

Under stock options, company executives normally are given the privilege of purchasing company stock at below market prices as a supplement to fixed salaries.

Bannan quoted Ford as saying in his Harvard Business Review article that "certainly our whole economic system is based upon people wanting more and more, and beyond that, on their being able ultimately to get many of the things they want."

"CONDEMNED WORKERS" At the same time, Bannan said, company executives "have condemned their workers for daring to ask more of the good things of life."

Bannan added that the UAW "feels that Mr. Ford did not mean to imply that the natural desire for a better life and greater security stops and begins with company executives."

General Motors served notice Tuesday that it is terminating its contract with the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) Sept. 1, its expiration date.

The IUE represents 25,000 of GM's 325,000 hourly rated workers. The UAW represents the bulk of other GM employees paid by the hour.

As it did in its similar notice to the UAW, General Motors told the IUE it hoped that its notice would not provide limited contract extension if the parties were near agreement on the termination date.

Pontiac AF Officer Gets Medal for Saving Crew

The Air Medal for distinguished and meritorious achievement in aerial flight recently was presented to Air Force Maj. Donald W. Vollett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Vollett, 1274 Brambles Drive, in ceremonies at McGuire Air Force Base, N.J.

Maj. Vollett is credited with bringing his crew back safely after an accident during a refueling mission over the Atlantic Ocean.

On Nov. 15, 1959, Maj. Vollett and his crew left Lackhorne AFB, Columbus, Ohio, on a bomber refueling mission for the 8th Air Force, Strategic Air Command.

As contact was made, the bomber came in "too fast and too close," the Air Force stated, forcing open the bottom of Vollett's plane.

The right wheel housing was cut open, and the blades of the No. 3 and 4 engines were severed, scattering large pieces of metal which punctured the aircraft like shrapnel.

"A tremendous vibration was encountered due to the uneven propeller," stated a report from the Air Force. "Batteries had to be shut down before this excessive buffeting tore the engines off the wing."

A wash of air followed the bomber's passing, causing Maj. Vollett's plane to flip on its back and into a spin.

"Through technical knowledge and many hours of flying experience," Maj. Vollett "skillfully managed to right his aircraft after a loss of some 14,000 feet," the report continued.

He had only 4,000 feet of altitude left. After flying on two engines for an hour and losing another 3,000 feet, Maj. Vollett landed successfully at Bangor, Maine.

Brig. Gen. Robert D. Foreman of the 151st Air Transport Wing Command presented the medal at a ceremony in which the Military Air Transport Service passed in review and some 1,200 officers and airmen paid respects.

Maj. Vollett is expected home for a leave the last three weeks of August.

Passenger Cars Fall in Output

July Production Total Was 399,038, Compact Sales Hit Record

DETROIT (U) — Passenger car production dropped to a total of 399,038 in July, its lowest point since February, the auto companies reported Tuesday.

The figure was 100,000 below that for June, high point for the year, and 35,000 under last year's July figure of 434,377.

Compact cars took a record 30 per cent, or 124,000 units, of the July production. A year ago compacts accounted for only 28.4 per cent of the July output.

The two biggest producers, General Motors and Ford, experienced the two major changes from a year ago. GM built 73,000 fewer cars this past month than in July, 1960. Ford built 61,000 more this year than last.

So far this year the five auto companies have built 3,335,842 cars, compared with 4,343,828 in the first seven months of 1960. Ford leads by 84,000 units over second-place Rambler among the compacts. Corvair is a close third followed by Comet, Valiant, Tempest, Special, F-60, Lark and Lancer.

Kills 3 Children, Then Himself

Enraged by Pending Divorce, Father Also Wounds Wife

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — "I love the kids and you so much I can't live without you." That was a note written by a father who had just shot to death his three children and wounded his wife Tuesday. A little later the man, Clyde Newhart, 36, of nearby Morristown, took his own life, officers said.

Deputies said Newhart, apparently enraged by a pending divorce by his wife, picked up the children at the home of relatives, drove to a dump north of the little eastern Ohio village and killed them with blasts from a shotgun.

FIND BODIES
Bodies of the youngsters, twins Randy and Candy, 18-months, and Bobby, 2½, were found by officers after the father left a note telling where he had killed them. Officers said Randy still held a toy truck in his hand.

After killing the children, Newhart drove to his home where he shot his wife, Peggy, 33, in the chest and left the note. A little later, a woman called the sheriff to report that she had seen a man shoot himself. The man was Newhart.

Mrs. Newhart was reported in fair condition.

than if they try to continue their clutch of it.

There are those who say that age cannot stand a change of medicine or survive a new viewpoint.

My observation has been that the elderly can well sustain any change except a change of weight.

NEW ATTEMPTS
Those who retire early do not perish from nonperformance.

Their appetite endures, they refresh themselves by new attempts. Science has its purpose, but it also has its frustrations.

Suburb Commuters Endure Bus Strike
DETROIT (U) — Approximately 100,000 suburban commuters went into their second day without bus service today in the Interven Suburban Lines strike.

Federal and state mediators met Tuesday to decide what steps to take next in the contract dispute between the bus company and Local 1265, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees.

The contract covering 120 Detroit and 81 maintenance employees expired at midnight Tuesday.

The union struck a short time later when negotiations were broken off.

Commuters in the West Detroit suburbs served by Interven Suburban got to work Tuesday at best they could. Little employee absenteeism was reported by business and industry.

Maj. Gen. Liebel Dies
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Maj. Gen. Willard K. Liebel, 60, former chief of the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in Portugal, died Tuesday.

Liebel, who retired in 1957, had been hospitalized since he suffered a heart attack July 18.

I recall the sad face of a physician doctor in the field of gerontology—the study of old age. He worried himself to death in his 90s. I must suppose, in an attempt to figure how people could live longer.

My mother, who got only through the third grade in Ireland before she came over here and bore five children, never had time to study gerontology. She'll be 74 this year.

Sometimes I feel like I ought to let go, and give this old world a rest," she says placidly. She is 60-70 pounds above her arrival weight, and America has been for her just one child and a chore after another.

All her five children—the silver

They all feel the need of her undividedly, now as when young.

"But sometimes I get so tired," she continues unabashed and unbroken—denies her this choice. I'd just like to quit."

Talk, woman talk. There are plenty of statistics to show—I hope—that men who retire younger live longer than those who don't. It's good for them.

But not for mothers. Mothers can't retire. They can't quit, can they? A mother's best pension is the reward of the need of her eternal presentment.

Italian Leader Lands in Russia

Arrives With Group to Discuss Trade With Soviets, Maybe Issues

MOSCOW (UPI) — Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani arrived from Rome today for a three-day visit to Moscow and talks with Soviet leaders which he hoped would be "mutually beneficial."

Fanfani, accompanied by Italian Foreign Minister Antonio Segni, was welcomed at the airport here by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and a host of other Soviet officials.

"There are no controversial questions between the Soviet Union and Italy which cannot be solved amicably," Khrushchev said in a welcoming address.

Fanfani made a brief reply, saying that "We are here for practical talks at this delicate moment and we hope that our frank exchange of opinions will be mutually beneficial."

The Italian delegation is here primarily to discuss Italian-Soviet trade. But it is most probable world issues dividing East and West inevitably will come up for consideration.

In addition to Khrushchev, Fanfani and Segni were greeted by First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, hundreds of Soviet citizens waving Russian and Italian flags and a 200-man honor guard.

Yuri Says Reds Will Keep Trying in Space Race

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Spaceman Yuri Gagarin said Tuesday Russia will "keep on trying to run away" from U.S. efforts to catch the Soviets in the space race.

Gagarin spoke to newsmen after receiving a tumultuous welcome from about 500 Soviet students and workers in this southern industrial metropolis.

Reporting his historic space flight, Gagarin said it was "somewhat frightening but there is no danger of going mad." He added that the first trip to the moon would be more difficult.

"It is difficult to say which is harder" — the purely technical task of bringing a manned rocket to the moon, or the achievement of adequate psychological preparation for the man who is to do the job," he said.

The Air Force announced that the flights from Okinawa would make meteorological studies and measure "concentrations and types of material to be found at extremely high altitudes."

It said U2s had carried out similar flights from the United States, Argentina and Australia in recent years.

Dies of Complications
DETROIT (AP) — Lee A. Montgomery, 50, public relations director for Goodwill Industries, Inc., died Tuesday of complications arising from a hip fracture. He was the son of the late Henry A. Montgomery, former editor of the Detroit Times and a brother of Harry T. Montgomery, assistant general manager of The Associated Press. He was born in Detroit.

Start Cooking, Men, This Contest's for You

Women all over the country now have an official excuse to leave the kitchen and cooking to their husbands: the Second Annual Men's National Cooking Championship was opened today.

Homenaughts are gladly turning over their aprons and cooking utensils to their "better halves," encouraging them to create wonderful new recipes which might win a free trip for them to the West Coast next winter.

To compete in the nationwide competition, men must submit recipes for an original main dish using potato chips as an ingredient. They can submit as many as they wish. Recipes should be mailed to the Men's National Cooking Championship, 11 East 41st Street, New York 17, N.Y., before December 15, 1961.

"Both married and single men can enter the championship," Harvey F. Moss, executive vice president of Potato Chip Institute International, sponsor of the Championship, said. However, wives are not allowed to submit recipes in their husbands' names and professional chefs cannot compete. This is strictly for amateurs. All who entered last year's championship are welcome to try again.

A week's free vacation for two in Los Angeles will be awarded to the top recipe in each of four geographical regions of the nation plus the privilege of competing for the title. A $1,000 grand prize, in addition to being crowned Men's National Cooking Champion, goes to the winner. Additional cash awards will be given to the three runners-up.

WOMEN JUDGES

Recipes will be judged for taste, neatness and imagination by women food experts. The best recipe for each state will be named State Champion, which automatically becomes eligible to compete for a Regional Championship.

The four Regional Champions will then visit a free week's vacation for two at the famous Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, California, near renowned Hollywood stars' homes, Disney Land and other fabulous attractions.

The four finalists then will prepare their recipes in Los Angeles under actual kitchen conditions, using brand new stoves, utensils and other necessities. The completed dishes will be taste-tested and judged by women food experts.

The current champion, Bernard L. Troup, an electronics specialist with the Army Ballistic Missile Agency in Huntsville, Alabama, prepared the winning recipe, Potato Chip Lasagna. Mr. Troup represented the South in the 1961 competition.

The three runners-up, representing the North, East and West were: Dr. Henry Brandelover, Manhattan, N.Y., for his Crunchy-Chip Chicken; mortician Art Butler, Scottsdale, Arizona, for Seafood Scallops; and Reverend Arnold G. Wang, Dr. Louis III, for Cheesy Beef and Chip Casserole.

The four winning recipes were selected from thousands submitted during the Championship competition. These ranged from "Pagoda Pancakes" to "Tuna Pie" and "Fire Chief's One Dish Meal." In fact, the potato chip main dish recipes included virtually every type of entrée possible, and the men exhibited a marked degree of originality and imagination in their creations.

Spices Don't Stay

To make real good beef and vegetable stew, add at the beginning of the period cooking a bay leaf and about 1/4 teaspoon whole allspice (tied in a bag) to the meat and water. Cover and cook until meat is almost tender. Add vegetables and 1/4 teaspoon each thyme and marjoram leaves 30 minutes before cooking time is up. Remove spice bag when serving.

Serving chilled creamy cucumber soup? Chopped chives make a savory topping for it.

Vegetables Are Easily Served and Varied

Those colorful, good looking summer vegetables now at your produce counters are your invitation to add zest and variety to your summertime menus. The list of these vegetables is a long one, although supplies may vary.

However, you'll usually find a big enough selection of these vegetables for use singly and in combinations to delight your entire family.

As appetizing tidbits, for example, you can serve celery sticks, cabbage strips, cucumber slices, tomato wedges or green pepper slices on toothpicks, in salads or as garnishes.

A little butter, salt and pepper are, of course, all you need for appealing cooked vegetables. And you can serve creamed vegetables over rice for variety.

Another delight is molded vegetable salads, prepared simply by using fresh or cooked vegetables in gelatin as a salad, topped with a dollop of mayonnaise.

Crispy Bread Cubes

Brown tiny cubes of bread in butter and sprinkle with grated cheese; use as a crisp and flavorful topping for an omelet, scrambled eggs, split pea or other vegetable soup.

Wife to Return to DC3 Gunman

Would Be Hijacker Sent on Spree After Getting Message Wrong

OROVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—The hijacker aboard spree of a construction worker on a Chico-to-San Francisco airliner became all the more meaningless today with word that his wife planned to drive back to California to see him.

Bruce McRae Britt told police he attempted to commandeer the airliner at the Chico Airport Monday night because he wanted to fly to San Francisco, Ark., to be with his wife and daughter.

But Mrs. Martha Britt said she had talked to her husband Monday night on the phone and told him she would return but bring their infant son George with her.

Britt apparently misunderstood her. He jumped into his car and roared the 30 miles from Corning to Chico at speeds of over 100 miles an hour.

Once aboard the plane, a Pacific Airlines DC3, Britt, 40, started firing, seriously wounding two persons, including the pilot, Oscar Williams, 42.

He was taken to DelRitt State Hospital for a mental examination Tuesday and then returned to jail here. Held for investigation of the attempted murder, he faces a possible grand jury indictment.

Size of Crowd at CD Meeting Is Overwhelming

WACO, Tex. (AP)—When local civil defense leaders met a series of meetings her this month to educate the public on atomic warfare, they arranged to seat about 500 persons per meeting.

Increased world tension, they reasoned, would more than double last year's crowds of about 200.

Tuesday night, more than 2,000 persons showed up for 1961's first meeting and Ray Barnes, deputy director, said, "We're totally surprised."

Asks for Limit to Gas Stations

Proposes Moratorium on Building in Hearing Into Price Jump

DETROIT (AP)—A spokesman for gasoline station operators called for a limit on the number of service stations and a gasoline industry spokesman defended the industry's pricing policies Tuesday at a City Council hearing.

The hearing was called in the wake of last week's eight-cent increase in the retail price of gasoline in the Detroit area.

Cash E. Hawley, general manager of the Retail Gasoline Dealers Association of Michigan, said: "Much of the tension which leads to destructive price wars and the evils which go with these wars comes from too many stations competing for too few customers."

He proposed a five-year moratorium on building of service stations in Detroit.

Hawley said that major brand suppliers and independent chains were responsible for fluctuations in gasoline prices.

"Retail marketing is the stick part of this industry," he added.

Minnesota has 11,007 recognized and named lakes.

Detroit Physician Calls AMA Stand Very Misleading

WASHINGTON (AP)—A physician from Detroit has accused the American Medical Association of issuing "shockingly misleading" material against President Kennedy's health program for the aged.

Dr. Allan M. Butler, representing the Physicians Forum, challenged the AMA's claim that its opposition to a social security-based program of hospitalization and other care represents "exactly where we doctors stand on the question of medical aid for the aged."

He said the Physicians Forum has a membership of more than

Plane Stuck in Mud With 95 Passengers

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—An airliner with 95 passengers aboard slipped off a taxiway, and one wheel sagged deep into mud Tuesday night.

For an hour and 45 minutes, a big tractor-truck tugged at the Western Air Lines plane—to no avail.

A burst of horsepower finally freed the turbo-prop plane.

"Another six inches deep and the propellers would have stuck," said Capt. John Barclay.

The passengers stayed in the terminal building at Stapleton Airport until the plane resumed flight 472 from Minneapolis to Los Angeles.

They built a small concrete dam across a drainage ditch to keep water from their nearby big neighbor, Houston, spilling on them.

But county officials ruled that the dam spoiled a flood control pattern and ordered the dam destroyed.

Tuesday as a demolition crane started knocking it down, a jeering, hooting crowd of 480 was on hand to vent its feeling.

Lary's Arm Trouble Causing Latest Headache

Tigers Reaching in All Directions for Bench Help

DETROIT AP—Help wanted. If you're not a member of arm and body, apply to the Detroit Tigers. And hurry. Otherwise, it may be too late.

The faltering Tigers, their last cern for manager Bob Schefling. But don't get the idea Schefling is pushing the pause button. He's not.

He thinks the Tigers, who've fallen from first place four times since July 4, are in the American League pennant race to stay.

The Tigers have lost their last three games and trail the New York Yankees by 1½ games.

PRESSURE APPLIED

"There's pressure, but we're not feeling any more of it than New York or Baltimore," said Schefling. "We're hurting, that's all."

"This has been what we've been afraid of all season, our B-E-N-C-H."

The Tigers' latest problem is pitching. Their one clear-cut superiority over the Yankees, specifically, is Lary, ace of the Detroit staff with 14 victories.

Dr. Russell Wright, the team physician, said Lary has been pitching regularly with an inflamed right elbow for five or six weeks. The Yankee-killing right hand has won only four times since recording his 18th victory June 14.

Meanwhile, Terry Fox, Schefling's most effective reliever, is not indefinitely with a sore elbow.

"As I've said all along," remarked Schefling, "we'd be all right if we stayed healthy. We haven't and it's obvious to anyone what has happened."

The drain on the Tigers' bench started in mid-July with the disabilities of catcher Dick Brown and third baseman Steve Boros. Both were major factors in Detroit's early slump to the top. Now they're sidelined for at least another month, possibly for the rest of the season.

Boros has a badly fractured finger, Boros a broken collarbone.

SURVEY MARKET

The Tigers have turned to the walver market for help and so far none has been forthcoming. Schefling said Detroit has negotiated for catcher Sherman Lollar and third baseman Andy Carey of the Chicago White Sox without success. Carey's name now is understood to have been withdrawn from the waiver list.

"But I don't believe the deal has a chance of going through now," Schefling said. "We're still looking around for help."

Known to be available are third baseman Rene Bertola of Kansas City and Eddie Yost of Los Angeles. Both are ex-Tigers. Detroit will overbid to get them back.

The Tigers expect to have their third injured regular, shortstop Dick McAuliffe, back today for a two-night doubleheader with Washington. His return will permit

Clint Fernandez to fill in at third base until help arrives.

George Ahluft, a reserve out-pitcher, will join the Tigers today to add to the right-handed pitching strength.

Tigers Attract One Million Fans

Los Angeles Dodgers Only Other to Reach Figure So Far

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit Tigers have boosted their home attendance to 1,010,408, joining the Los Angeles Dodgers as the only two teams to reach the million mark.

The New York Yankees, San Francisco Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates are also closing in on this figure. The Yankees drew 923,528 last week and lifted their home attendance to 972,537. The Giants have played before 911,330 in Candlestick Park and the Pirates to 904,682 in Forbes Field.

RAIN DAMPENS CITY BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Rain put a damper on city adult baseball last night as the Class A-B game between Talbot Lumber and Oxford Merchants at Jayce Park was rained out in the fourth inning.

Two junior league games were stopped by the weather, but several were completed.

A three-run homer by Gary Wheeler and a solo blast by Paul Bowers highlighted Three-Sister Market's 10-1 triumph over Giants in Class D. In the same class, Pontiac Central defeated two runs in the last of the fifth to edge West Suburban Boys Club, 2-1.

Ron Lewis and Milford Hillie hit back-to-back home runs in the first inning to start West Kiwanis to a 15-0 rout of Weinberger in Class E.

EHL Rejects New Entry

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Eastern Hockey League Tuesday rejected an application by Jacksonville, Fla., for an EHL franchise this season.

EHL officials ended a three-day business meeting here Tuesday but, failed to adopt a 1961-62 schedule. Directors of the EHL will meet again in New York again at which time a schedule will be finalized, a spokesman said.

WAITING FOR CHALLENGE? — The Minnesota Vikings' coaches get in a little practice doing what they tell their charges. These three men recently completed their playing careers, Norm Van Brocklin fires a pass to Darrell Brewster as Walt Yowarski blocks. Any challengers?

Youngest Staff in League

Viking Coaches Demonstrate Play

BEMIDJI, Minn. (AP) — When a professional football player retires and turns to coaching, it is generally conceded he would have had a hard time making the team the next year.

Not so with several of the coaches on the Minnesota Vikings staff.

Three players — head coach Norm Van Brocklin, offensive line coach Walt Yowarski and end coach Darrell Brewster — all reported in as good or better shape than many of the players when the National Football League's newest club opened pre-season practice early in July.

In fact Brewster, who completed his ninth year in the NFL last season with the Pittsburgh Steelers, was selected to lead the team in calisthenics before each practice session. And, he was still going strong when many of the players began putting.

Van Brocklin, 35, the league's youngest head coach, was one of the game's greatest quarterbacks during his 12 years in the big time — nine years with the Los Angeles Rams and three with the Philadelphia Eagles.

He also retired at the end of the 1960 season, but could still be one of the best signal-callers in the business.

Although retired, Van Brocklin is still actively engaged in the playing part of the game. He not only tells his quarterbacks what to do, but shows them, many times getting right into the thick of the action.

Van Brocklin is very proud of the staff he has to work with. "Not only is this one of the youngest coaching staffs in the AFL," he said, "but it is also one of the best. Everyone of these coaches knows his business and is able to get out there and actually show each man what to do."

With Van Brocklin at quarterback, Brewster, 30, at end and Yowarski, 33, at tackle the Viking coaching staff has the makings of quite a team in itself. Throw in Stan West, 34, defensive line coach who retired after the 1957 season, and Harry Gilmer, 35, defensive backfield coach, and watch out.

But, when another year of competition is mentioned to them, the Viking coaches just smile and say: "We had our day, now let the younger guys have theirs."

Ex-Pro Boxer Stabbed

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Satterfield, 38, former professional boxer, was slashed with a knife in an altercation Tuesday and suffered slashes on his left side, neck and back and was taken to county hospital, where his condition was described as good.

James Carson Jr., 33, was held in connection with the incident, charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Collegian Heroes of Past

Who Is Next Star?

CHICAGO (U) — It's College All-Star football week and time for another swing down memory lane, recalling heroes of the past.

Remember such names as Sammy Baugh? Gaynell Timley? Tommy Harmon? Jackie Robinson? Otto Graham? Elmer Hirsch? Buddy Young? Charley Justice? Tad Leem? Bobby Conrad? Bobby Mitchell?

When the All-Stars take on the champion Philadelphia Eagles in Soldier Field Friday night who knows but there may be another name or two to add to the illustrious list of past heroes.

Going way back to 1937, a skinny passer from Texas Christian, Sammy Baugh, hurled a touchdown pass to Gaynell Timley of Louisiana State providing the All-Stars with their first victory in the series, a 6-0 decision over the Green Bay Packers.

The following year the All-Stars, led by Purdue's Cecil Isbell, creamed the Washington Redskins, 28-16. Phil Dougherty of Santa Clara intercepted a pass and returned it 40 yards for a touchdown. Andy Uram of Minnesota pulled off a similar feat.

In 1941 the Chicago Bears defeated the all-stars, 57-13. But those among the crowd of 89,500 cheering for the collegians were not too disappointed.

Tommy Harmon of Michigan fired a 22-yard touchdown pass to George Franck of Minnesota and Charlie O'Rourke of Boston College threw another touchdown pass to UCLA's Jackie Robinson who later became the first Negro to play Major League baseball.

In 1946 and 1947, the All-Stars dominated the game and pulled off 16-0 victories over the Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Bears, respectively.

Elmer Hirsch of Wisconsin ran 63 yards for a touchdowns in 1946 and added another score by taking a 38-yard pass from Otto Graham who is now coaching the Collegians.

In 1947, it was speedy Buddy Young of Illinois, Notre Dame's George Ratterman and Georgia's Charley Trippi who hung defeat on the mighty Chicago Bears.

Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice of North Carolina ran the Eagles' tragedy in 1950 to lead a 17-7 All-

Star victory and in 1955 little Tad Weed of Ohio State booted three field goals to help subdue Cleveland, 30-7.

The last All-Star victory over the National Football League champions came in 1958 but it was a 35-19 pounding of the Detroit Lions. That was the year when Bobby Conrad of Texas

A&M booted four field goals and Illinois' Bobby Mitchell came up with second quarter touchdown runs of 84 and 19 yards.

The All-Stars are boasting a powerful team this year and are given an excellent chance of upsetting the Eagles. And there are plenty of candidates for the halo list.

Houk Outguessed Himself in Dispute With Umpire

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ralph Houk, a clever, calculating thinker, starts paying the price today for trying to outguess an umpire.

Houk, freshman manager of the New York Yankees, was suspended for five days and fined $500 by American League president Joe Cronin yesterday for his run-in with umpire Ed Hurley last Sunday.

The incident developed in the second game of a doubleheader with the Baltimore Orioles. Houk flared when the umpire from the long-lost era, 4-6, and was abroad, 3-1, in the ninth inning of the night game when the Yankees loaded the bases with one out.

Cletis Boyer, taking on a 3-1 pitch, was called out on strikes by Hurley and then pinchhitter Hector Lopez grounded into a double play to end the game.

At this point Houk charged out to home plate and started shouting at Hurley about the called third strike on Boyer. Hurley, in his report to Cronin, claimed that Houk jostled him.

Asked after the game why he hadn't protested the decision at the time Boyer was called out, the alert-thinking Houk, referring to only comment that he thought the rule which calls for immediate ejection on a protest of a ball-strike decision, had replied, "What good is a manager in the clubhouse?"

At all times, the former major in the majors had tempered his strain to avoid dismissal at a crucial time. And yet he still was tagged with the stiffest penalty ever inflicted by Cronin in his office of league president.

Houk, out on a fishing trip all day yesterday, was glum when he arrived home last night and would only comment that he thought the penalty "pretty tough in view of the offense."

Yankee general manager Roy Hamey, who oddly enough was a house guest of Cronin the night of Houk's outburst, also appeared grim today while commenting: "I think the suspension is too severe for a first-time infraction."

Houk's suspension started at 12:01 this morning and runs through Aug. 6. Because of Yankee doubleheaders both today and Sunday, the major will sit out seven games.

Cronin, in Boston, said he decided on the severe penalty after reading reports submitted by the four umpires.

In addition to Hurley, these included John (Red) Flaherty, Jim Houschick and Bill Kinnaman.

Hurley quoted Houk as yelling at him: "Are you trying to get the game over with?" to which Hurley said he replied: "How did the others get on base?" Hurley was referring to two other Yankees who had walked in that inning.

A Yankee victory in the disputed contest would have given them a fairly substantial 2½ game lead over second-place Detroit, instead of the 1½ game margin they had to settle for.

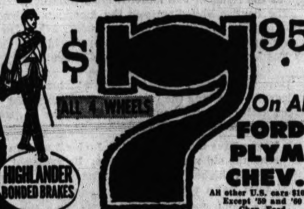

As for Houk, the one thing he's learned from this affair is that any time is fair time for baiting the umpire — as long as you're willing to pay the consequences.

NATIONAL CHAMPION — Dave Keaggy Jr., 3807 Aquaria St., Drayton Plains, won the National Junior Boys Target Archery team crown in Fort Worth, Tex., last week. While the stars were going through their paces, a 14-year-old Drayton Plains boy was breaking archery records in Chicago.

Drayton Plains Boy Sets Archery Marks

By DON VOGEL

Pontiac Press Outdoor Writer

Oakland County has moved into the limelight in the last ten days as the result of two national championships.

The Pontiac Rolladium won the American Roller Skating team crown in Fort Worth, Tex., last week. While the stars were going through their paces, a 14-year-old Drayton Plains boy was breaking archery records in Chicago.

Dave Keaggy Jr., 3807 Aquaria St., broke all previous marks while capturing the junior championship of the National Target Archery Tournament. His father, Dave Sr., was proud to take a back seat to his son.

Young Dave fired a 776 in the Junior American Round to better the old mark by 17 points. He averaged 781 for four rounds, higher than any previous single round. His 3,444 total was a record.

In the wand shoot, the left-hander hit a two-inch wide stake 12 times at 80 yards. This was five better than before. He piled up 280 points in the cloud shoot from 120 yards, a new record.

Dave senior placed sixth in the men's amateur division and 11th in overall competition against amateurs and professionals. There were 100 archers from 12 states competing in the overall division.

MORE HONORS POSSIBLE
There is a good chance that the county can claim more national honors before the week is over. Skeet shooters from the area are turning in top performances in the National shoot at Reno, Nev.

Pike being reared in the special trout pond at Davisburg are going to be released in area streams.

The original plan had been to plant the northern in Lake St. Clair. But sportsmen's groups didn't go for the move, claiming because money was used to raise the fish.

The sportsmen argued that releasing the fish in Lake St. Clair would mean non-licensed anglers or Canadians could take the pike. No license is required to fish the Great Lakes. Conservation officials report portions of the Huron River in the Highland recreation area is fast becoming filled with silt and several stretches will be declared unsafe for wading.

FLOW OF WATER SLOWED
The flow of water has been slowed considerably in recent years because of new dams and private lakes. This slowing of the current allows more silt to settle to the bottom.

Fishing in these portions, once very good, is now rated poor by department officials.

The 600,000 mark has been reached for production of the Winchester Model 70 centerfire rifle, according to Winchester-Western Division of the Olin Matheson Chemical Corp.

The Model 70 still has a long way to go before it catches the famous Model 94. Over 2,500,000 Model 94 have been produced.

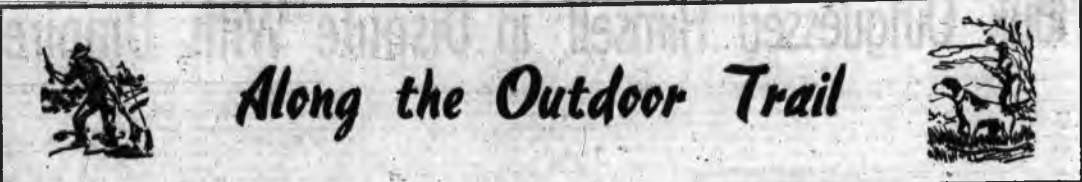

A one-hour stop just before dark in the Orionville recreation area this week produced this count of wildlife: six black ducks, four mallards, nine green-wing teal, three blue-wing teal, two blue herons, seven green herons, two cock pheasants and one Canada goose.

Keg Group Seeking Pontiac Tourney Site
The Greater Detroit Bowling Association is seeking a Pontiac bowling establishment to host part of its annual tournament during the coming season.

A decision will be made Aug. 8 by the group on the locations for the meet which will be divided into sections. Pontiac is in the North position starting at Eight Mile Road.

The GDBA is also looking for a man to work a few nights as a representative at Pontiac area leagues.

Any proprietor interested in having his "house" considered as a possible tournament site or any man desiring to apply for the representative position should contact either Leonard Dillias of Pontiac an association officer, or secretary Herb Ours at Detroit.

Commission Studies 'Any Deer' Areas

"any deer" seasons are being proposed for 1961.

The Conservation Commission will consider recommendations for the fall deer season at its meeting at Higgins Lake Aug. 15-17.

The Conservation Department has recommended no change in the bow and arrow season, which extends from Oct. 1-Nov. 15 in all counties except Allegan, Emmet, Menominee and Chippewa. In Allegan County the bow season recommended is from Oct. 1-Dec. 15.

In keeping with a December commission resolution, the department recommended special seasons only where they were requested by residents because of crop damage.

The two areas where such special seasons have been requested to date include a 14-square-mile section of northwestern Ocea and a County and a nine-square-mile block in east-central Mason County.

"There is a possibility that the summer develops other 'hot spots' may appear and it may be necessary to include them before final action is taken," said Game Division Chief Harry D. Ruhl.

The regular Nov. 15-30 firearms season recommendations were unchanged from last year.

Migratory bird regulations also were to be considered at the commission meeting, although the state regulations depend largely on the results of an Aug. 16 meeting of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

The department said, however, it could not anticipate any liberalization from the season and bag limits which were in effect last year. The 1960 season on ducks was 60 days long and the daily bag limit was four.

Legislation the Conservation Department hopes to propose in 1961 will also be on the commission's long agenda.

Included in the proposed 1961 season of legislation was a revision of hunting seasons in the fish and game protection fund by $1,024,000.

The department proposed increasing the Stalking Season fee from $3 to $5, requiring a Stalking License for the Great Lakes and a separate license for women.

Similar proposals failed to gain approval during the 1961 legislative session.

A test case on the lowering of the water level in the Marquette Lake while flooding has been postponed until the normal water level of the Meosota County lake can be determined, the department said.

Judge Harold Van Doremel of Meosota County Circuit Court called for the postponement, stating the normal water level should be considered along with pros and cons of the drawdown.

The action was taken to avoid a double trial in the question, the department said. Under the terms of a new state law, the plaintiffs could petition the Meosota County Board of Supervisors to launch action to determine the normal lake level.

Conservation experts said the scope of the state's wildlife flooding program may be determined by the case.

The department sought to lower the level of the flooding to build up wildlife food and cover, but was opposed by two local boat livery owners.

Sports-A-Rama Sunday at DSC

Demonstrations Planned for Sportsmen, Others Who Attend Program

The Detroit Sportsmen's Congress announced plans today for the 16th Annual Sports-A-Rama to be held at the Congress Club House and Grounds, 6800 Dequindre Sunday, starting at 10 a.m.

The purpose of the free event, which is open to all, is to stimulate interest in many of the century old and modern sports events enjoyed by too few Americans.

Among the events will be: skin diving demonstrations; shot gun shell re-load; Michigan State Conservation Exhibits; fly tying and casting; dog obedience and field trials; large and small bore reloading; slug shot for rabbit hunting; crow calling; boat safety; skeet shooting; deer preservation; championship archery.

Art of camping; famous antique guns will be demonstrated; there will be dancing porcupines; "Smoke the Bear" will talk about forest fire prevention and there will be a demonstration of trap and skeet shooting.

The huge 68 acre camp which is owned and operated by the Conservation Club is a fine place for those who wish to make their own picnic baskets.

Ex-Wolverine Halfback Tries Out With Raiders

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—Jim Pace, the former Michigan backfield star who once ignited football hopes in the hearts of the San Francisco 49ers, is going to try professional football with the Oakland Raiders.

Michigan's Waterfowl Population Shows Rise

Michigan's 1961 crop of native ducks topped up as the best in the last 10 years, according to final findings of the Conservation Department's annual breeding ground survey.

Favorable weather conditions, coupled with a record production of potential breeding birds, produced the highest breed count registered in this state since 1952.

Breed count appears to be somewhat smaller than in 1960, but they closely paralleled the 12-year average dating from 1949 when the Department started its breeding ground survey.

Department men noted a near 50 percent drop in bachelor birds this year, another sign that a good percentage of the ducks has a successful nesting season.

Most of this year's production is in blue-winged teal, mallards, and black ducks which made up nearly 81 percent of the state's spring breeding population.

Department estimates indicate that Michigan's production of native ducks accounts for about 40 per cent of the birds bagged each fall by the state's waterfowl hunters.

Although the local picture is brighter than in recent years, Michigan's duck hunting prospects for this fall remain clouded by drought conditions in the Canadian provinces which produce the largest share of birds available to the state's hunters.

Half Acre of Park Land Per Resident in Ontario

By The Associated Press
Just how much recreational land constitutes a pleasant optimum, like a wife's idea for her husband's salary, is a subject that escapes much serious discussion on the fairly reasonable grounds that it isn't going to be obtained anyway.

However, the Canadians, who are in the position of being the good Lord's favorite nephew when it comes to available wilderness lands, are not so reticent about average and usage.

In Ontario, for instance, there now is half an acre of provincial park space for every person in the population, and the program is still expanding.

J. W. Spooner, Ontario's lands and forests minister, points out modestly in a current progress report that this is four times as much space as the United States national and state parks provide, and the United States' ratio is not in any imminent danger of getting any better.

The Canadians, as a matter of fact, did not have much spare time when it came to catching the heat on land acquisition. Six years ago, Ontario had only six provincial parks. Now it has 100, and some 200 more. Park use jumped from about two million in 1953 to 3 1/2 million last year and probably will hit seven million this season.

And, to answer the question of how much park facilities were serving the home folks and how much tourists, a check of fully serviced parks showed that more than three-quarters of last year's campers, hikers and picnickers were Ontario residents. Only 17 per cent were visitors from the United States.

However, Ontario is looking for more of the latter, what with the camping and general outdoor boom south of the border already overtopping U.S. park facilities. Opening of the international bridge at Sault Ste. Marie will put the 1,483-mile link of the trans-Canada highway and more pressure will come to bear immediately on public areas from Lake Erie to Kenora.

In preparation for this, the Lake Superior provincial park has been boosted from 54 camping units to 400, and whole new parks are being brewed at White Lake and other once comparatively inaccessible sites.

Old Quebec hands, of course, will be pleased by the expansion, but not necessarily overwhelmed. Any half-acre with a Quebec-Superior beer in it is still mighty crowded.

Critch topped Michigan shooters in the substantial gauge shoot with 56. Thiele's was second, with two less hits.

Ken Sedleky of Baldwin and Alan Burstock of Washington teamed to win the two-man suball event.

Lt. James Clark of Fort Benning, Ga., had to go into a special shootoff but emerged as the 28-gauge world's champion.

Is Berlin Fuse of A-War?

Editor's Note: Modern Berlin is a city of two cities, one Communist and one free. In the following dispatches the United Press International examines the divided city, its people, its leaders, and the 60-year-old tensions that are building up toward a showdown in the cold war. This report is the first of two parts.

By HARRY FERGUSON

BERLIN (UPI)—Let's face up to the big question right away. Is something about to happen here that will start World War III? A nuclear war, that is, with missiles raining down on New York and Moscow, Leningrad and London, Kiev and Paris? Is the awesome prophecy in the Book of Revelations about to come true—that the armies of the world are assembling at Armageddon for the ultimate battle in which "the cities of the nations fell" and "with islands flying away and mountains were to be found?"

NOT LIKELY

The answer is probably not. At least not for some time.

leas, no responsible person familiar with the complicated problem of Berlin with whom this correspondent has talked thinks any such thing is likely. One of them said "the odds against a nuclear war would have to be at least 500 to one."

When you put the question of whether there is going to be a big war direct to Willy Brandt, the tough mayor of West Berlin, you get this answer: "I do not think so. But it would be tragic not to realize that this crisis carries some risks."

What risks? There are two big ones.

—That by accident or design a local war fought with conventional weapons would break out, but with both sides holding back their hydrogen bombs temporarily.

—That the Western powers could be bluff or maneuvered out of Berlin, leaving the West Berliners deserted and disillusioned.

If the West is forced out of Berlin, Russia will have won the Cold War.

No American pledge of moral support or military assistance to small or neutral nations replacing communism would be worth a dinner. One by one, the ripe plans, they would fall into the lap of Nikita Khrushchev.

So much for what the statesmen and politicians think. What about the average man living in West Berlin?

We must make a careful search for him. We want a man old enough to have lived through several crises in Berlin. He must not be too rich or too poor. Not a pessimist and not an optimist. A man with his feet on the ground.

Our search goes on until we come to the corner of Martin Lutherstrasse and Mohrenstrasse, turn into a small shop and shake hands with a tall man wearing a white rap.

Case history: Name, Hermann Tech, age 32. Married with one child. Owns a butcher shop. Works 12 hours a day and makes a fairly good living. Was an infantry man in the German army during World War II. Wounded a total of five times. Captured by the Russians in a battle near the Don River. Three years of hard labor in the Soviet Union. Made his way back to Berlin in 1947. Worked as a scrap metal collector during the Berlin blockade in 1948.

Q. Mr. Tech, do you think there will be a war?

A. Answer: There will be no war. The Russians cannot afford a war with nuclear bombs. If there is a war with conventional weapons, the Russians will lose because they don't have enough materials.

Q. Do you ever get worried and plan to leave Berlin?

A. I will never leave Berlin. If the Russians should take over Berlin then a lot more of the world also would become Communist.

Q. How do you think this crisis will end?

A. Khrushchev must give way and he will give way. A big war would have too many risks for him.

Q. Then you think Khrushchev is bluffing?

A. Not exactly. But he is asking for a lot in the hope he will get a little of what he wants.

FROM OUR NEWS WIRE

WASHINGTON — The Air Force has alerted 28,000 men in 71 National Guard and Air Reserve units for a possible call to active duty as a part of the defense build-up to meet the Berlin crisis.

The announcement Tuesday came after President Kennedy signed legislation authorizing him to call to active duty up to 250,000 reservists and extend active duty tours and enlistments by one year.

Final Congressional action on the second part of Kennedy's national defense build-up is expected today.

A roll-call vote in the House was likely this afternoon on the President's request for nearly $1 billion worth of extra uniforms and planes.

There was little doubt the bill would be approved. The Senate stamped its OK on the measure Friday.

FOLLOWS ANNOUNCEMENT

The alert notice follows Air Force announcement Monday that four Air Force bases, alerted to be retired from active use, would remain on active status to provide facilities for continued operation of B-47 jet bombers which will be retained in service.

State Air Guard Alerted in Case of Mobilization

LANSING — An alert for possible mobilization has been issued to the Michigan Air National Guard.

Gov. Swainson was notified of the alert Tuesday afternoon through a telegram from Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau's air division.

The guard said full details will be sent later to Maj. Gen. Ronald B. McDonald, state adjutant general.

The Michigan Air Guard, based at Detroit and Battle Creek, has a strength of about 2,000 officers and men.

Units were given authority to recruit to full strength and to enter an intensive training program to bring the wing to combat readiness as soon as possible. Flying hours will be increased and additional technicians employed.

The Michigan units alerted the 127th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, 10th and 12th tactical reconnaissance squadrons and supporting units, all based at Detroit, and the 172nd Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron and 127th Reconnaissance Technical Squadron of Battle Creek.

Nab Member of Top Ten

CHICAGO (UPI)—FBI agents today arrested escaped convict William Schutte, one of the nation's 10 "most wanted" men, and he congratulated his captors. "You fellows sure do a good job," Schutte said.

Search Trains, Buses to Curtail Work in West

Many Fail to Report at Regular Jobs as Iron Curtain Closes

From Our News Wires

BERLIN — The Communists today opened an angry campaign against the thousands of East Germans who work in West Berlin.

Many of the 53,000 so-called "border crossers" failed to report for work today.

Reports reaching here said hundreds of them were pulled off commuter trains and buses and told they must find jobs in the East.

Placards denouncing them as "traitors" who sold their labor to the "imperialists" were posted in their neighborhoods.

Some were evicted from their homes for refusing to give up their Western jobs.

Others were ordered to report to their local police stations and explain why they worked in the West.

"Some day we will lead all Germany, even if you do not understand that today," wrote Gerhardt Eisler, top East German propagandist, in the Berliner Zeitung.

Eisler's editorial in the East Berlin newspaper declared:

"Our fist to those who believe their reactionary backwardness gives them the right to treat our security and the interests of our citizens disgracefully."

Communist-sponsored resolutions passed in factories demanded "measures be taken" against the border-crossers.

Just last night East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht threatened to slam the Iron Curtain shut on the refugees fleeing his regime.

Trains searched

Communist police also combed trains and buses traveling to Berlin in a move to catch refugees.

Eyewitnesses said many hundreds of East Germans were refused passage in the largest Communist police action since the mass exodus of refugees from the zone began early last month.

At checkpoints surrounding the city the Eastern police checked all pedestrians, cyclists and motorists bound for Berlin from East Germany.

Commuter trains and buses were halted at stations near the city border.

Despite the unprecedented checks, about 1,000 more East Germans made their way to West Berlin today and asked for political asylum.

How many East Germans were caught while attempting to flee could not be determined. The number might have been as high as 300.

Luckless Family 3 of Five Tots Dying of Incurable Ailment

By DICK HANSON

The young William LaRose family of 284 Osmon St. was struggling back from a series of hard-luck mishaps when yet another tragedy struck yesterday.

Their 5-year-old son was fatally shot in the face while a playmate was showing him the stolen revolver his stepfather had obtained "for protection."

Mark LaRose died at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital an hour after he was shot as he stood in the back yard of Lewis Freeman, 15. Mark was watching him lead the gun.

Lewis told Pontiac police he had asked Mark if he wanted to see his stepfather's gun. Lewis got it from the house, he said, adding that he had unloaded it and was reloading it when the 38-caliber revolver went off by accident.

Following the shooting, Lewis son, Mr. and Mrs. Knox Williams, 289 Osmon St., took the weapon back into the house, finished reloading and replaced it under the mattress of his parent's bed, where he had found it.

His parents were not home.

NEAR SHOTS

Neighbors said they heard two shots and found the boy lying on the ground. One of the neighbors phoned the police.

Cystic fibrosis is a disease which starts in infancy and leads to years of disabling lung infection. It slowly suffocates a child in a sea of thickening lung secretions.

Twylla Rae, 4, and Terrence, 2, apparently have escaped the disease which was first detected in Tammy a year ago.

Cystic fibrosis can only be slowed, not stopped. There is only temporary help by employing special, heating foods combined with medication and equipment in skilled, professional hands.

Doctors in Minneapolis told the couple there is no history of a person living past 21 with cystic fibrosis.

Their physician in Rapid City has predicted Tammy will be lucky to get through grade school and Timmy has a chance of making it through high school. More tests are needed to determine the severity in the baby.

Also termed fibrocystic disease of the pancreas or mucoviscidosis, cystic fibrosis is found once in every 600 to 1,000 births.

Needed Improvements Tied to Upcoming Vote

Louis A. Schimmel of Pontiac told members of the Greater Waterford Community-Council last night that Waterford Township will have to become a charter township before it can finance large scale public improvements of quality, at a reasonable cost to township residents.

The Michigan public finance expert spoke to the council at John D. Pierce Junior High School, explaining the methods of financing a master sewer system for the township.

Waterford is now under an ordinary township form of government at the administrative level, but the advantages of the charter township form of government are all financial," Schimmel pointed out.

"You would still maintain your present form of township government at the administrative level, but you would have the financing power of a city."

The proposal to become a charter township will be voted on in the Sept. 12 Council election.

"GIANT STEP"

This is probably the most important thing ever put before the council.

Schimmel, former president of the Pontiac Board of Education, estimated that the whole sewerage project would cost a maximum of $10 million.

He said the easiest and cheapest way to finance such a project was through general obligation bonds paid off over a period of 30 or more years.

"The issue general obligation bonds on long term basis at low interest rates, you must give the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Dearborn Pair Robbed at Light

Two Bandits Get $18 After Asking Directions as Rule

A Dearborn couple reported being beaten and robbed of $18 by two men early today while waiting for a traffic signal to change.
Robert V. Voback, 23, and his wife Brenda, 20, told officers that the two men in a car pulled up alongside their car on N. Perry Street at Madison Avenue.
Voback said one of the men asked for directions to Detroit. He asked Voback to move to the side of the road when the light changed so they would not interfere with traffic.
One of the two men walked to his car, then suddenly reached through the window and snatched him, Voback said.
The other hit his wife in the left eye. Voback told police.
He said one of the robbers ordered: "Give me your money." Voback gave the bandits $18 from his wallet.
He said he and his wife were on their way home after visiting friends in the area. The robbery occurred at 5:15 a.m.

They were certain of support from Cuba and the non-aligned Soviet bloc which meant they were only left with short of their goal.

Occupancy Boom Gives Hospital's Finances Boost

An unexpected boom in occupancy during the second half of July has added a bright note to Pontiac General Hospital's marginal financial operation this year.
Harold B. Paier said the peak for beds was so great that half-holiday beds were in use on several occasions and a number of less serious cases.
He said occupancy averaged over 92 per cent, whereas the hospital expected only about 83 per cent.
The hospital is now back to a near-normal 84 per cent, he added.

The Day in Birmingham OK Selling Sewer Branch for Sanitary Interceptor

BIRMINGHAM — An 835-foot section of city-owned sewer line will become part of the Evergreen Sanitary Sewer Interceptor following completion of an agreement with the Oakland County Department of Public Works.
The City Commission has approved selling the 30-inch line to the county for $7,515, a price set seven years ago when methods of allocating construction costs of the Evergreen interceptor were being studied.
The section of sewer line is located on city-owned property in the southeastern portion of Birmingham. Easements will be granted by the city after the sewer is transferred from Birmingham to the Department of Public Works.
"There has been some question as to whether the price set up for this section of the interceptor is a proper one," City Manager L.R. Gare said in a statement to commissioners.
"However, it must be borne in mind that a price had to be agreed upon for the sale of the sewer and, when the estimates of cost were being made in 1954, this price was considered a fair one," Gare said.

Pros and Cons of Split-Level

CHICAGO (UPI) — Split-level homes have much to recommend them.
But they have their drawbacks, the Small Homes Council of the University of Illinois Building Research Council advises in a new publication. Here are the chief pros and cons.
— Split-levels have more usable and accessible space than two-story houses with the same total area.
— Living, sleeping and recreation-utility areas in the split-level are definite and separate compared with those in a ranch house.
— Good interior circulation patterns eliminate most cross-traffic in a split-level.
— Split-levels require less lot space than comparable one-story houses without basements.
— Construction economies result from the less roof area, foundation and exterior wall in a split-level than in an equivalent one-story house.
— Stair climbing is reduced in a split-level over that in two-story houses with basements, but not enough to be ideal for elderly or handicapped persons.
— Split-levels look fine on a sloping site, but only fair to poor on a flat lot. Small split-levels with less than 1,500 square feet rarely look attractive from the outside.
— Construction savings on split-levels are reduced by building difficulties, specifically the problems of interconnecting staggered levels, which don't lend themselves to mass production techniques.

buyer assurance of your ability to pay."
"Under your present form of government, you do not have enough local taxing power to give this assurance. Under the charter form, you could lay up to four mills more than you can now," Schumacher explained.
"Naturally, any general obligation bond issue will still have to be approved by a public vote before it can be put into effect."
He also stated that the township would most likely never need an additional tax levy to pay for the project.
"If finances are properly structured, I feel the project can be completed without a tax levy," he said. "Earnings and revenues from the sewerage plant could pay for the master sewer system over a 30 year period."

NEW YORK (AP)—A five-man juvenile gang roaming Brooklyn streets with a sawed-off shotgun wounded three youths Tuesday night in apparently senseless attacks.

Two of the youths, James Lee, 18, and his cousin, Wilbert Rolland, 17, were in fair condition in a hospital today. The third, Andrew Shaw, 14, was released after treatment.

All are Negroes. Police, who pressed a search for the five, said there appeared to have been no provocation for the attacks.

Focus on Health

Bits of Insects in Air Cause Hay Fever

By The Associated Press

Insect allergy, hazards in partially classified cigarettes, and new sedatives are items in the medical news:

INSECT DUST

Bits and pieces of common insects floating in the air are an important cause of hay fever and asthma, says an allergy specialist.

House flies, May flies, aphids, beetles, mites and other creatures contribute to the dust which humans inhale.

Some people are allergic only to the insect dust, while others get their troubles from a combination of the dust, molds, and pollen. The insect allergy is more common in Southern than in Northern states.

Many victims can be desensitized with antiallergy shots. Dr. Samuel M. Feinberg, of Northwestern University writes in Consultant magazine.

RELIGHTERS

The habit of relighting half-consumed cigarettes may double a smoker's chances of getting lung cancer, say three British physicians.

They checked on 700 patients in Manchester hospitals. Among persons smoking 10 to 19 cigarettes daily, there were twice as many cases of lung tumors among those who relit cigarettes. The same held true for persons smoking 20 to 29 cigarettes daily, but differences were less clear among those smoking 30 or more. Drs. John Dark, M. Pemberton and Marion Russell write in The Lancet.

It relighting is a factor in lung cancer, it might go part way to explain the much greater incidence of the disease in Britain than in the United States where, since cigarettes are cheaper, there may be less temptation to relight half-smoked "dimpies" or partially consumed cigarettes, they said.

SAFE SEDATIVES

Barbiturates are estimated to account for 800 to 900 suicides a year. But now researchers tell of two new sedatives which they claim induce sleep but are safe regardless of overdose. One is a synthetic developed in Germany, the other a barbiturate combined with a restorative which takes over if the person takes too many pills, says World Medical News.

WHIPFLASH INJURIES

Auto accidents frequently jerk a person's head backward and forward or from side to side, causing what is known as whiplash injury.

And these can produce brain disturbances and abnormalities very comparable to injuries sustained by direct blows on the head, two Minneapolis neurologists find. Both types of injury can produce headaches, nervousness, insomnia, difficulty in concentration, dizziness, and other effects.

NERVE GRAFTS

Nerve grafts largely averted paralysis of face muscles in 12 of 17 persons who had radical operations for mastoids or for removal of parotid glands, three Mayo Clinic physicians report.

The operations had to cut gaps in the facial nerves. At the time of surgery, small lengths of nerve were taken from the patient's neck and used to bridge the gap. Later, the facial nerve frequently regenerated to overcome or mask much of the paralysis, they said.

Hickman Brothers All Out for Education

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI)—If TV on a Tuesday night in August doesn't go all-out to entertain, let's at least credit it with being informative.

Tuesday night, NBC-TV's "Special for Women" repeated "The Trapped Housewife," a mournful study in domestic frustrations; CBS-TV's "Playhouse 90" again offered, "Target for Three," an intense look at bullet-riddled political affiliations. And the Hickman brothers, Dwayne and Darrell, offered a few thoughts on education. They're for it—within reason.

Dwayne's statement came as part of his "Dobbs Gililla" exercise on CBS-TV and was immediately followed by Darrell's view in a "Comedy Applique" rerun called, "Love Came Late."

First, the Gililla gleam: Dwayne and his pal, Maynard, were asked by their English teacher to persuade Paul, a belligerent, discouraged classmate, to stay in school and shun a group of black leather-jacketed "drop-out" advocates.

When a direct buttering-up approach failed, Dwayne brought Paul's ex-girl into the project. Linda was put through a severe test as she realized that Paul was well-off, intellectually speaking, but was underprivileged, financially speaking.

CHANGES MIND

Realizing that Linda cared about him, Paul changed his mind about becoming a drop-out and stayed in school. The final scene showed Paul and Linda seated side by side in their English class. And holding hands, yet.

No sooner did Dwayne Hickman complete this message than brother Darrell came along to offer some campus problems. Darrell portrayed a student who had no idea of dropping out of school. He was about to be humored out.

A Korean War vet who lived in a trailer with his wife and infant son, Darrell couldn't adjust to campus life. Melvyn Douglas, as a stuffy professor, was down on him. He was unable to realize that Darrell was unlike his other pupils and required special understanding. The question raised by these two shows is: Don't our educators have enough problems?

Arrest Milwaukee Man With Stamp Negative

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Secret Service agents, postal inspectors and local police raided a North Side home Monday night and arrested Robert J. Manning, 38. Bail of $10,000 was set for him Tuesday on a charge of making a negative of one-cent postage stamps.

Matthew M. Corry, a U.S. attorney, said Manning had been taking pictures of the stamps which commemorated the 1933 Chicago World's Fair. Manning denied he had intended to sell the negatives.

Fallout Shelter Firm Hoping to Sell Again

The Pontiac area company that used to sell underground, corrugated steel family fallout shelters doesn't sell them anymore but hopes to again.

James Ralston, president of Family Shelters, Inc., 2383 Orchard Lake Ave., West Bloomfield Township said sales were voluntarily halted in April because the units that had been sold up to then tended to leak.

The principal manufacturer, Armco Steel Co., is presently trying to find a way to stop the leaking without pushing the retail cost of the shelter beyond the reach of the average homeholder. Ralston said, Armco makes the steel shell which is supposed to shelter for a couple weeks, in event of radioactive fallout from a nuclear explosion.

As a franchised dealership, Family Shelters sold 18 of the shelters to families in Southern Michigan and several other states, Ralston said. Design of the shelter had been approved by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization (OCDM).

One of them was sold for $1,200 to Mr. and Mrs. William Maier, 3030 Woodcrest St., Avon Township, and it was their complaint that led Congressman William S. Brownfield to call for an explanation from the OCDM about why a leaky design was approved. Mrs. Maier said there were 3 feet of water in her shelter.

MAY REPLACE SHELTER
Ralston said he would replace the Maier's shelter if one that doesn't leak is developed.

He said that he has to pump his own out after a heavy rainfall. One of the early commercial ventures into the area of fallout shelters, Ralston expressed concern that the public lose faith in the fallout shelter program.

"I've been busy night and day since President Kennedy emphasized the importance of shelters," he said. "This is the first time the Pontiac area has walked to the need for shelters. But this could kill it."

The fallout shelter program being developed by private business is still in its early stages, Ralston emphasized.

He said more research and experimenting are needed and federal matching funds should be made available to help pay for them.

Ralston said that he thinks full protection against radioactive fallout can come only from an underground shelter.

But until one is perfected, Family Shelters will probably be selling prefabricated steel shelters for basements, Ralston said.

Costing $480 uninstalled, the basement shelters will be put on the market if a prototype by Family Shelters in Southgate proves okay, said Ralston.

RAS SUGGESTIONS
It was with reluctance that Ralston gave his own view of the overall family fallout shelter program, with some suggestions about how government action could speed it up.

"There's not a fully mature family shelter in this country at this time. Really, we stand naked in event something happens."

To help get the fallout shelter

program off the ground, the federal government should take a number of steps towards cutting costs for the average family, said Ralston.

In addition to the 35-year term just approved in Washington for shelter loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration, families with shelters should get income and property tax relief, Ralston said.

Banks and home modernization companies should be stimulated to enter the picture with loans and installation programs, he continued.

If the cost factor becomes more acceptable to the public, there is greater guarantee that licensed builders will do the construction, working under building permits with local inspection, Ralston said.

Prohibitive costs could lead to persons building shelters on their own without permits and without inspection, Ralston agreed.

"Some kind of check out" is needed after every shelter is finished to make sure it will give protection, he said.

Wakes Up Suddenly

LONDON (UPI) — Maureen Grimes, 22, charged with stealing 3 shillings, expense (about 50 cents) worth of groceries from a store, explained she was getting married soon and was "walking about in a dream." The judge fined her $17.64.

Economic Reaction to Berlin Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How civil defense preparedness measures the American consumer and businessman respond to the Berlin crisis may be decisive in determining whether President Kennedy asks Congress for higher taxes or price controls.

The President's top economic and fiscal advisers have told him that the chief danger of inflation lies in the possibility that businessmen and consumers, jittery over the strengthening of U.S. military might and the chance of war, may embark on a scare buying spree—hoarding.

That happened in 1950, after the United States joined in the defense of South Korea. Then, consumers, mindful of World War II shortages of everything from sugar to gasoline, rushed to stock up.

One result was that the shortages in fact developed. Another was that the consumer price index jumped 9 per cent from June 1950, when hostilities erupted, to June 1951.

The same thing could happen again, presidential advisers say, although they add there are several reasons why it is much less likely.

One is that the military and
