Reigns at Western Michigan

City Plants Boost Gift

Campaign Official Says Sum Tremendous Boost Toward $672,500 Goal

A $128,000 check from the General Motors Corp. divisions in Pontiac — the biggest single contribution to date—has helped boost the 1960 Pontiac Area United Fund closer to its goal.

The gift, representing a 4.1 per cent increase over last year's $123,000, is the corporate contribution of Pontiac Motor, General Motors Truck & Coach and Fisher Body plants in the city.

The contribution does not include donations from plant employes.

Presenting the check to the United Fund today was the man heading this year's drive — Semon E. Knudsen, Pontiac Motor general manager and vice president.

The GM gift represents 19 per cent of the 1960 campaign goal, which got under way Oct. 6.

In expressing his thanks to the corporation, Nelson called the contribution a "tremendous boost" toward the UF's $672,500 campaign goal.

"The entire community is grateful to General Motors," Nelson said.

ALL-TIME HIGH

Also present at the presentation were Calvin J. Werner, General Motors Truck & Coach general manager and a GM vice president, and Thomas F. Wiethorn, Fisher Body plant manager. Werner is chairman of the Industrial Division in this year's drive.

The check represents an all-time high for GM's corporate gift to the campaign.

Knudsen, in presenting the check, said the contribution was a symbol of GM's deep interest in the residents of the Pontiac area.

Seventy Years Old Today

Ike Full of Vim and Vigor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower is a record-breaking 70 today—the first man ever to serve to that age as President of the United States.

★ ★ ★

Happy birthday greetings flooded in from around the world, and the District of Columbia government invited the President's neighbors from the entire Washington area to a mid-day party on the White House lawn. Officials predicted quite a turnout.

The program for the gala affair features Eisenhower turning the first spadeful of earth for the planting of a memorial oak tree. It is a birthday gift of the people of the nation's capital.

Well-wishers scheduled to call at the White House in advance of the big party included a delegation from the Republican National

The Eisenhower Years See Page B4

Another round of greetings was a certainty at a morning conference the President arranged with representatives of 15 African nations and Cyprus, all newly independent and all recently admitted to United Nations membership.

During the afternoon the President and Mrs. Eisenhower plan to travel to their farm at Gettysburg, Pa., for a family observance of his birth anniversary. On hand for dinner there will be his four grandchildren and their parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Eisenhower.

STARTS ANOTHER TOUR

On Monday Eisenhower, who has traveled hundreds of thousands of miles in this country and abroad as President, will be off on another long tour—a nine-day, 6,728-mile trip will take him coast to coast.

Eisenhower became the oldest man ever to serve as president 11 days ago, on Oct. 3. At that time he broke a record which had been held by another old soldier, Andrew Jackson, who was 69 years, 11 months and 19 days old when he completed his term as president.

The President turned to baseball jargon when he was asked at a recent news conference how he managed to maintain such apparent good health after a heart attack, surgery for ileitis and a minor stroke since 1955, and despite the burdens of the presidency.

"I believe it's a tradition in baseball," Eisenhower laughed, "that when a pitcher has a no-hitter going, no one reminds him of it."

Now, in the sense of having reached three score and 10 years, Eisenhower has his no-hitter in the bag. And he seems more full of zest and bounce than many a younger man.

Many White House visitors remark these days that the President seems to be as chipper as they have ever seen him. They also report what is generally obvious—that he is looking forward to retirement to private life Jan. 20 after nearly a half century of service to the nation. He knows, all the time, just how many more months, weeks and days he has in office.

Say Ike Will Serve as Envoy for Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower has agreed to serve as a roving ambassador if Vice President Richard M. Nixon is elected, it was reported today.

The story said Eisenhower's role would be that of "roving ambassador to the world," and his first assignment would be a world-wide tour of some of the nation's principal allies and of the newly independent nations.

Candidates, in 3rd Debate, Clash on Quemoy, Labor

By The Associated Press

A wide-ranging third television argument found the two major presidential candidates agreed today on only two subjects: Defending Berlin and condemning religious bigotry.

Separated by the width of the continent but brought to a single screen, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy flailed at each other Thursday night on the issues of war and peace, how to stop national emergency strikes, the state of American prestige and the cost of farm programs.

JACK AND PAPERS

Both sides—thought they had won.

Kennedy, whose wife called his appearance "the best yet," told reporters: "I thought we touched on important matters that are at issue in the campaign."

QUEMOY SHARP ISSUE

One of their sharpest disagreements was over defense of Quemoy and Matsu, two small islands garrisoned by Nationalist China but located within a few miles of the Red Chinese mainland. The issue has mushroomed since their second debate a week ago.

Both agreed the islands should not be yielded under threat of Communist guns.

But Kennedy, who has urged efforts to get a Chinese Nationalist withdrawal from the islands, said Nixon was going further than the Eisenhower administration in advocating defense of them.

Nixon contended that withdrawal would damage this country in the eyes of Asia, and said Kennedy's position would encourage the Reds to push to the point "where war is inevitable."

That brought a Kennedy charge that Nixon was distorting the record.

The din was hardly over before Nixon launched a couple of new barbed shafts at his Democratic opponent.

★ ★ ★

The vice president said he was "shocked" that Kennedy had referred to written material in the

'No Notes' Just Stack of Papers

NEW YORK (UPI)—There stood Sen. John F. Kennedy, smilingly shuffling a thin pile of stationery-size papers on the podium before him while the moderator in Los Angeles announced that here was the start of the third presidential campaign debate on TV-radio.

★ ★ ★

Before the night was an hour and a half older, those papers were the subject of a hot controversy.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, on the other end of the debate, in Los Angeles, said he was shocked that Kennedy had violated the ground rules of "no notes."

A Kennedy spokesman shot back that there had been no previous agreement between the two sides about notes —"as there is no agreement on makeup."

PAPERS OR NOTES?

Kennedy said he hadn't used any notes, anyway; that what he quoted from in the debate was a public letter from President Eisenhower about Formosa and when a president is quoted he should be quoted accurately.

Whether the sheaf he placed before him was notes, documents, or plain note-paper — and whether or not there was any agreement — Kennedy made no bones about the presence of the papers.

During most of the time when he wasn't speaking, he patted them, smoothed them, squared them neatly, picked out single ones from the pile and peered at them.

The Kennedy press secretary, Pierre Salinger, later said they included photostats of a letter from Eisenhower to Sen. Theodore

80-Degree Weather Matches City Record

The weatherman says there's a chance of showers tonight and tomorrow with the low dropping to 60 tonight, the high about 70 Saturday.

Temperatures for the next five days will average near the normal high of 59 to 62 and normal low of 39 to 43. Saturday will be a little cooler followed by day to day changes. Temperatures will slowly warm again about Tuesday or Wednesday.

Morning southwesterly winds at 12 miles per hour will become northwesterly 10 to 18 miles tomorrow.

Sixty was the lowest recording in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. The mercury reading at 2 p.m. was 78.

Leaves Odd Memories at U.N. From 25 Days of Jolting World

He was greeted by thousands, many of whom poured out on the airport highway and onto the airfield itself from trucks which carried them from their jobs and homes fully an hour earlier.

The Soviet premier left behind the memory of a bulgy, a vulgarian, a pile-driving debater, an expert propagandist and a Jekyll-and-Hyde who talked peace out of one side of his mouth and nuclear war out of the other.

He also was a badly beaten man, whipped on all but one of the great controversial issues that came to a vote in the General Assembly.

Clutching at straws before his departure Thursday night, Khrushchev claimed a "victory" on the single point in which the assembly went along with him—the

He boarded his giant Soviet turboprop plane at Idlewild Airport just before midnight. In his customary departure statement he said: "We are leaving in a good mood."

Khrushchev said there were signs "which allow us to hope for solutions of the major international problems through the United Nations organization, and through this session of the General Assembly."

Much of what followed echoed the positions he took on various issues while he was here.

There are three groups in the U.N. now, he said, "imperialists, Socialists and neutralists." There-

Jack Tells Michigan: 'I'll Beat Nixon Here'

IN MICHIGAN WITH KENNEDY (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy opened a 10-city whistle-stop campaign through Michigan today by expressing confidence that state voters will defeat Duke University's "favorite son and alumnus" just as the University of Michigan football team defeated Duke.

Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon is a graduate of the Duke law school. A crowd of about 6,000, including many university students, was gathered at Ann Arbor to see Kennedy off on his train tour and they cheered when he said:

"Last Saturday Michigan beat Duke (31-6) and I think that on Nov. 8 Michigan will defeat Duke's favorite son and alumnus."

From Ann Arbor the Kennedy special moved to Jackson where a crowd of about 7,000 was on hand for his speech from the rear platform of the train.

★ ★ ★

At each stop, Lt. Gov. John B. Swainson, running for governor, and Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, running for re-election, were introduced to the crowds along with Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

Kennedy didn't get much sleep last night but he started out

Dem Chairman Answers Charge

Repudiates Claim That 'Mockery' Is Made of Voter Drive by Union

All of the electorate—including labor unions— have the right to vote and should exercise it in voter registration drives, Democratic County Chairman James M. Ginn said today in a reply to his Republican counterpart.

Ginn was answering a charge by Arthur G. Elliott Jr., Republican chairman of Oakland County, that unions participating in such drives recently had made a "mockery" out of their claims of nonpartisan political action.

"I had always thought that the success of a democratic society and government was based on the participation of all of the electorate," Ginn said.

"Evidently the Republican does not agree and feels that the success of his party in an election is determined by the fact that the electorate remain small so that his minority may continue to control the county offices."

Ginn said Elliott's attitude was "selfishly appalling."

Moving Day Is Tomorrow

Library Has New Home

Say goodbye to the old Main Library.

The door will close on library service at 47 Williams St. at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

Monday morning the staff of 15 will begin the two-weeks move to the new Pontiac Public Library Building at Parke and East Pike streets in the Civic Center.

There are 50,000 books to be packed, loaded, shipped, unloaded, unpacked and shelved in the new $500,000 edifice.

Phyllis Pope, Pontiac librarian, is using library carts for the moving. These are the two-shelf, rolling units that librarians use to push books around from one bookcase to another.

To supplement Pontiac's 11 carts, the library is borrowing 6 from Michigan State University Oakland, 12 from Wayne State University, 10 from Detroit Public Library, 2 from Oak Park Library and 2 from the North Oakland County Library Project.

★ ★ ★

The books will be loaded onto the carts and wheeled into the moving van. At the new building, they'll be wheeled out of the truck and through the corridors to the particular shelf they will be placed on permanently.

fore, he continued, the structure of the U.N. should be altered to accommodate all three at the top.

Finally, he said he would like to thank the people of New York for the kindness they had shown him. He didn't elaborate.

As for those who picketed him, Khrushchev called them "hired hands" and the "dregs of society."

Then, smiling and clasping his arms over his head in the victory gesture of a prize fighter, he went up the ramp and entered his plane.

The Soviet premier is scheduled to go to Communist North Korea soon. Observers generally believe he will visit Peiping as well for conferences with Mao Tze-tung, Chou En-lai and other top Chinese leaders.

His next major moves in the international arena, he indicated repeatedly at the United Nations will come after the presidential elections in the United States. He said he did not believe American officials could fully participate until then in "the question of questions," disarmament.

Khrushchev's last day in the assembly was typical of most of the others, a mixture of rocket-rattling and amiability.

He was on the rostrum three times.

He told the United States, "If you want war, you'll get war."

He referred to "fools like Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold."

He accused President Eisenhower of lying and of being "on a leash" of American military leaders.

As for the Security Council, he said it was "worse than a spittoon—a cuspidor."

He also presented an omnibus proposal to combine his "general and complete disarmament" proposal with his demand that the office of secretary general be replaced by a three-man commission. Otherwise, he said, the Soviets would not work in disarmament committees or in the assembly political committee's disarmament debate.

today and more is expected next week.

The bookcases are already there — they came with the building.

The two branch libraries at 251 E. Rundell St. and 6 S. Sanford St. will remain open their regular hours, as will the school branches. The bookmobile also will operate.

"After all, the library has been in the Williams Street building since 1924; it's been our home for a long time," observed Miss Pope.

But crowded conditions have made 47 Williams St. not too happy a home in recent years.

"Naturally we're all overjoyed that we're finally headed for the beautiful, new building."

Forty-seven Williams, a big barn of a building that once was a theater, won't remain vacant long, after the library moves out.

City Hall already has cost estimates for remodeling it into a recreational center for retired folks.

The United Auto Workers Union is cooperating in plans for the center.

Clarify Bar Operation

The Pontiac Press Wednesday incorrectly stated that the Gridiron Bar, 21 E. Pike St. was operated by Charles Gersten. The tavern is owned and operated by George P. Pratt, Peter A. Pratt and James P. Marinos. Gersten owns the building in which the tavern is located.

Fire Prevention Festivities Set

Parade, Demonstration End City Observance of Week Tomorrow

A gala downtown parade followed by a fire prevention demonstration and field day program tomorrow afternoon will climax Pontiac's 1960 observance of Fire Prevention Week.

* * *

Beginning at 1 p.m., the parade will start at Lafayette and Saginaw streets and continue down Saginaw Street to Auburn Avenue.

Fifty-two pieces of fire equipment from 20 Oakland County fire departments will be shown off at the annual affair.

Other features will include eight bands, four drill teams and baton twirler units, clowns, Smokey the Bear, and the Detroit Edison calliope.

10,000 LAST YEAR

Also marching will be a posse from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and a U.S. Navy color guard.

A crowd of 10,000 lined the streets last year to witness the colorful spectacle.

The fire prevention demonstration and fire fighters' field day program is to get under way at 2 p.m., shortly after the parade ends.

The program will be at the General Motors Athletic Field, East South Boulevard and Opdyke Road.

Ample parking space will be available for spectators, said Sherwin M. Birnkrant, chairman of the fire safety committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, the group sponsoring local fire prevention week activities.

The industrial fire safety committee, headed by Ross Luxon, Pontiac Motor Division fire chief will present a half-hour demonstration of how industrial fires are controlled and extinguished through use of new scientific chemical applications.

Field supervision of the demonstration will be in the hands of Henry Coin, Fisher Body Division plant protection chief.

The demonstration will be followed by the annual competition in fire fighting skills by county fire departments.

Nine of the county's best fire fighting teams will climb ladders, struggle over barriers, aim hose streams at targets and try to better last year's record in this annual county "Olympics" of fire fighting skills.

Highlight will be the clash between the Walled Lake and Waterford Township departments for the annual water battle championship.

Walled Lake firemen earned the right to challenge the Waterford unit, last year's champions, by emerging as victors in runoffs against 15 other departments the past six months.

The best team will receive the Harvey M. Johns Trophy, while winners of the hose evolution and ladder evolution contests will get trophies from the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce and radio station WPON.

The water battle champions will receive the Shaw's Jewelers trophy. Teams finishing second and third will receive trophies from the chamber.

To speed up the program this year, Birnkrant said, units on the field will use walkie-talkie units to communicate with the announcer's stand and each other.

He added that extensive preparations have been made to provide safeguards for communities whose departments are participating.

"Arrangements have been made for departments remaining at home to cover those areas in case of emergency," Birnkrant said.

He added that a special emergency communications system would be erected to relay emergency messages onto the field in case help is needed.

Kennedy, Nixon Clash Over Quemoy, Labor

third of their TV debates. Nixon said there was an agreement neither would resort to memoranda.

The Republican nominee also challenged in a statement Kennedy's denial that he had advocated compulsory arbitration as one of the methods of settling a strike such as the paralyzing steel walkout that ended last January.

Kennedy fired back that he hadn't used any notes. He said he read from a photo copy of a letter from President Eisenhower, which he contended undermined Nixon's position that the islands of Quemoy and Matsu off China must be defended from Communist attack as a matter of principle.

Nixon's post-debate statement on labor disputes followed up Kennedy's TV assertion that "I never suggested that compulsory arbitration was the solution for national emergency disputes."

* * *

Nixon contended that at Fayette City, Pa., on Oct. 9, 1959, Kennedy had urged that the President be given a variety of powers for settling labor disputes and had added:

"These measures should include mediation, fact-finding, seizure, compulsory arbitration, injunctions with or without retroactive clauses and the right not to interfere at all."

Kennedy's press aide, Pierre Salinger, said that a speech draft including the words compulsory arbitration was given out by mistake, that Kennedy "spotted this, and we pulled back all the copies we could get our hands on." He said Kennedy did not use the reference in his speech.

* * *

Nixon found in Los Angeles the kind of lighting and makeup that delighted his supporters.

The issue of Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion was brought into the debate for the first time. A reporter quoted Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, New York Negro congressman, as saying that, "The Ku Klux Klan is riding again in this campaign" in opposition to Kennedy.

The newsman said Gov. Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, a Roman Catholic, was saying much the same thing. DiSalle said he was not quoted correctly. He merely reported, he said, that the head of the klan had said he would vote for Nixon.

* * *

Kennedy said he had seen a similar report. He said he didn't suggest in any way that the vice president has any sympathy with or involvement with the klan.

"That is absurd," Kennedy said. "I don't suggest that. I don't support it. I would disagree with it."

Nixon, a Quaker, said he welcomed the chance to join Kennedy in repudiating the klan or anybody who uses the religious issue.

In Tampa, Fla., W. J. Griffin, head of the state klan, said: "I don't give a damn what Nixon said. I'm still voting for him."

Green when Green was Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, a page from a book by Gen. Matthew Ridgway, former Allied commander in the Far East. And some quotations from the late John Foster Dulles.

When Nixon was answering the first direct question put to him, about whether he'd launch a war over Quemoy and Matsu, he said, "I've often heard President Eisenhower, in discussing this question. . ." and Kennedy picked up the papers and consulted one of them.

Answering his next question, Nixon mentioned a Dulles press conference. Kennedy took out a sheet from underneath the pile, put it on top and examined it.

* * *

Nixon went on talking, and Kennedy stirred the pages around several times until the time came for his rebuttal and he started out: "I don't think it's possible for Mr. Nixon to distort the record more . . ."

An American Broadcasting Company representative, commenting on the issue of whether or not notes were permissible, said "this is an area for further discussion and detailed understanding between the candidates' representatives."

Several times he scribbled on them. Whether he was writing notes, or observations, or doodling, was not discernible from the table where three reporters sat, about 40 feet away.

The Day in Birmingham

Plan Commission Voids Bloomfield Zone Board

BIRMINGHAM — The Bloomfield Township Zoning Board has been abolished with the appointment of a seven-member planning commission.

The planning commission assumes the duties of the zoning board, plus additional powers set up by a state law that went into effect last year.

Recommended by the supervisor and confirmed by the township board, the terms of the new commissioners will run one, two or three years.

* * *

Appointed to three-year-terms were Edward Proctor and A. J. Snively, both former zoning board members.

Howard Preston, who served on the zoning board, Stewart Schultz, and Samuel Reeve were named to one-year-terms.

Carl Renodin, who will be a year old Sunday, died several hours after the accident. The others were killed instantly in the Taylor Township collision with a milk truck.

The other dead are Carl's mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Renodin, 26, and Mrs. Colleen M. Zachery, 28, and her son John, 3½. They lived in Romulus Township.

Scharnhorst's brother-in-law and part-time helper, Brian A. Scherz, 17, of Harper Woods, said, "We were just driving along. The front tire blew out. That was all there was to it. We didn't have a chance to turn." Scherz suffered serious injuries.

Fond of public competition, the Welsh people stage an Eisteddfod each year. This is a week-long series of contests in poetry, music and drama.

Police Have This Crash to Settle by Themselves

A car driven by South Tucson Police Sgt. Paul Varela, 54, smashed into the side of a Tucson City Police paddy wagon. Varela was cited by sheriff's deputies for failure to yield the right of way.

Grandma, 49, on Way to Being a Champion

Mrs. Brahic, only 49, already has 19 grandchildren. She is the mother of nine children, four of them still unmarried.

But Leaves U.N. Happy and Satisfied

Khrushchev Counts One Win, Six Losses

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) —Nikita S. Khrushchev wound up his diplomatic season today with one win and six losses but as optimistic as ever over the Soviet bloc's chances.

Soviet sources said the Russian leader left the United States satisfied with his efforts. He himself praised the "victory" he won by getting the U. N. General Assembly to debate colonialism. He said his visit here had been "useful."

No U. N. delegates doubted that he was sowing the seeds for the future and preparing the Soviet bloc for what he believes will be a summit conference next year with the next American president.

"We gave hell to the Americans and the British," said Khrushchev before departure.

This was the record:

—Khrushchev backed a Czech candidate, Jiri Nosek for office of assembly president. The job was won by Frederick H. Boland of Ireland. The Soviet candidate came in third behind Thor Thors of Iceland. The vote was 45 for Boland, 25 for Thors and 9 for Nosek.

—Khrushchev demanded a seat for Red China and opposed a U. S. resolution that would shelve the Red China seat issue for another year. He lost, but the vote was close: 42-34 with 22 abstentions in favor of the American proposal.

—The Soviet bloc fought to prevent inclusion of the Hungarian anti-Communist revolution on the assembly agenda. It went on the agenda by a vote of 54-12 with 21 abstentions.

—The Soviet bloc tried to prevent inclusion of debate on the Red Chinese rape of Tibet. It was approved for debate: 49-13 with 35 abstentions.

—The Soviet premier demanded direct assembly debate on the "question of questions" — disarmament. He lost by a vote of 54-13 with 31 abstentions, the assembly referred it to committee.

—Khrushchev called on the U. N. Assembly to debate Soviet charges of "aggression" against the United States for the U2 and RB47 plane incidents. The vote went against it 54-10 with 32 abstentions.

On the plus side for Khrushchev was his demand for direct assembly debate on "independence forthwith" for all colonial areas of the world. The United States went along with this proposal and it was approved by acclamation.

Perhaps the worst defeat for Khrushchev never came to a vote and thus cannot be counted. It was his demand, made in his maiden address to this session of the assembly Sept. 23, for the ouster of Sec. Gen. Dag Hammarskjold and his replacement with a three-member presidium. He also wanted the U. N. headquarters moved to a friendlier city than New York.

Hammarskjold resisted the demand for his job. And on Oct. 3, in a dramatic moment, Hammarskjold defied the Soviet premier with the declaration: "I shall remain in my post."

Hammarskjold won the greatest ovation in U.N. history but Khrushchev said he would keep on fighting for all the goals he lost out on.

His goal, he said, was an assembly to discuss disarmament, attended by all heads of government or member U. N nations and held in Geneva, or in Moscow or Leningrad sometime next spring.

He also wanted a public apology from the United States, an expression of "regret" for the U2 spy plane incident. He did not, and would not get it.

Moving to State Post Guiding Urban Renewal

LANSING (AP)—Sanford S. Farness, executive director of the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission, will take a position in the building division of the State Department of Administration.

State Controller Ira Polley said the building division has been named to carry out the federal urban planning assistance program in the state.

The program makes matching federal funds available for community planning in cities, villages, townships and counties of less than 50,000 population.

NY Police Relieved to See Nikita Go

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police breathed a heartfelt sigh of relief today and went back on a normal work schedule with the departure of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev signaling the end of the biggest security job in peacetime history.

The casualty toll included a 9-year-old girl, Magdalena Urdaneta of Venezuela, who was shot to death accidentally by supporters of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro fighting anti-Castroites, one detective who died of troites, one detective who died of a heart attack while guarding Khrushchev, 16 other policemen injured on duty and 12 civilians hurt in picketing disputes.

But no heads of government were harmed and there was amazingly little violence in view of the massive 25-day security job thrust upon the city's 25,000-man police force by the record gathering of national leaders for the United Nations Security Council.

★ ★ ★

The cost of the operation is expected to be several million dollars by the time all the bills are in. The city hopes the federal government will help it meet some of the expenses.

Khrushchev and Castro were by far the most troublesome to protect.

The Russian chief required at least 300 policemen guarding his Park Avenue residence when he was there, and many more when crowds gathered or he moved about the city.

Castro required a minimum of 240 policemen and at times 500 standing shoulder-to-shoulder two deep.

He caused the most trouble when he moved to the Hotel Theresa in Harlem on a moment's notice.

Both Castro and Khrushchev complained about security restrictions being too tight, but later Khrushchev complimented the force by saying "the police are doing what police ought to do."

Russian Lt. Gen. Nicolai Zakharov, however, heatedly tried pushing a few patrolmen around until a burly police captain pinned his arms behind his back and lifted him off the floor until he calmed down.

There were several clashes between opposing groups of demonstrators, but police, especially the effective mounted patrolmen, kept the disputes under control.

★ ★ ★

There also were several bomb scares and at least four reported plots to kill Khrushchev.

GOODBY, AMERICA! — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev waves from the top of the ramp just as he boards the Russian airliner at Idlewild Airport Thursday night.

Jackson Mayor Nichols Dies During First Term

JACKSON (UPI) — Harold E. Nichols, mayor of Jackson, died here Wednesday after a brief illness. He was 69.

★ ★ ★

Nichols, elected to a two-year term last November, started his first term on Jan. 1. He previously served 16 years on the City Commission.

He had been hospitalized since Saturday, but the nature of his illness was not disclosed.

A native of Jackson, Nichols owned a paper company and was active in the Moose and Elks as well as the Republican party. He is survived by his wife Inez.

Butler Thinks Kennedy Will Win Women's Vote

NEWARK, N. J. (UPI) — Paul M. Butler, former national chairman of the Democratic Party, said Thursday night the women's vote will decide the presidential race this year.

"The women of America will send John F. Kennedy to the White House, and not just because of his charms. They see in him the qualities of heart, mind and soul to lead the world," Butler told a women's rally and fashion show here.

Politics is the art in which politicians get campaign contributions from the rich and votes from the poor on the pretext of protecting each from the other . . . Money is like teeth — there's nothing like having your own. — Earl Wilson.

Nixon Generalizes; Jack Specific

Debate Tactics Growing Clear

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three "great debates" on TV the tactics — or the techniques — of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy begin to show through.

Nixon is a generalizer who makes frequent use of that old-time debating tactic: The big needle. When he thinks he has a good thing going, he won't let go. He gets sentimental and, like a name-dropper, identifies himself with President Eisenhower.

Kennedy, who evidently does his homework, is much more specific and detailed than Nixon, but lets himself lose a lot of time trying to extract the Nixon needle. Recently he became quite a needler himself.

For example: As TV watchers could see for themselves he had gotten under Nixon's skin by an earlier remark calling him "trigger-happy."

TALKS TOO FAST

But Kennedy talks too fast, throwing out facts, names and dates as if he assumed all the millions of TV viewers were as familiar with these things as he himself is. And he seems to lack a dramatic sense.

Before the campaign ever got under way Nixon told newsmen he'd go heavy on generalizations, light on details. He has followed that course. For instance, Thursday night, instead of going into detail on defense plans, he said he would make a major speech about it.

Nixon uses the needle various ways: By accusing Kennedy of reversing himself, talking one way now and another before; of wanting to spend too much; of getting facts mixed.

On questions in general, this writer believes, Kennedy would be much more effective if, instead of pouring out facts and statistics, he emphasized in a dramatic or figurative way the points he is mainly interested in getting across.

Nixon repeatedly uses the phrase "all Americans" but Thursday night got downright sentimental when, finding fault with language of former President Truman, he reminded Kennedy little children get exposed to political talks and that whoever is president is a man "that all the children of America will either look up to or down to. . . ."

His typical tactic in linking himself with Eisenhower, as displayed Thursday night, goes like this: "I have often heard President Eisenhower discussing. . . ." and, "Now, as far as President Eisenhower is concerned, I have often heard him discuss. . . ."

Wake Island Search for Flier Called Off

HONOLULU (AP)—The Wake Island air-sea search for a missing flier, Lt. Duane Stirling, 28, of Fargo, N.D., was called off Thursday night, the Navy announced.

The North Dakota Air National Guard pilot was attempting to fly nonstop from Oakland, Calif., to Manila—7,698 miles—when his single-engine plane plunged into the Pacific near Wake Island Wednesday night, Wake time.

Stirling's Mooney Mark 20 aircraft hit the ocean near a reef three miles north of Wake. Stirling had flown 14 miles beyond Wake and was returning to Wake when he crashed. His last message was that he could gain no altitude.

Stirling's companion on the long flight, Capt. Charles Finnegan, also of Fargo, landed his Mooney Mark 20 aircraft on Wake without incident.

Viscount Astor to Wed Leading British Model

LONDON (AP) — Viscount Astor, eldest son of Virginia-born Nancy Astor, today announced his engagement to a leading British model, Bronwen Pugh.

It will be Lord Astor's third marriage. Miss Pugh's first. He is 53, she 29.

Lord Astor has two children—William Waldorf, 8, by his first wife, and Emily Mary, 4, by his second.

Penobscot Bldg. Tower Becomes Hawks' Eatery

★ ★ ★

Paul Kraska, a maintenance man, says the hawks perch on a tiny platform near the top of the tower to devour ducks.

Kraska said he found a half-eaten duck on the platform Thursday, and piles of bones on the platform in the past.

The building management says it has no plans for getting rid of the hawks.

French Badly Divided Over Algerian Problem

The Algerian war drags on and on. Gen. DE GAULLE has been driven to taking restrictive measures against critics on both the right and left who are questioning his policy in Africa.

Reports leaking out of France despite censorship and distortion of newscasts tell of 10,000 opponents of DE GAULLE's Algerian policy being prevented by riot police from marching to his palace. Organized by war veterans, they wanted sterner measures for putting down the rebellion.

★ ★ ★

On the other side, some 200 French intellectuals recently signed a manifesto appealing for an end to the six year war and declaring "we respect and consider justified the refusal to take up arms against the Algerian people." Former officers and conscripts have been protesting the terrorism and torture they witnessed in Algeria and young Frenchmen drafted for war service have been deserting.

★ ★ ★

What is even more important, the socialist party now headed by Guy Mollet, a former premier who had pushed the war in Algeria in 1956 and 1957, now wants an end to it.

The Algerian rebels want to resume the peace talks broken off three months ago and have reduced some demands. But DE GAULLE, while promising self-determination at some future time, threatens partition if the Moslem Algerians should actually vote for independence. The rebels want to know in advance how self-determination will be carried out and they can't be blamed for that.

Pres. de Gaulle finds himself in an impossible situation besieged on the right by those who want nothing short of unconditional Algerian surrender and being chided by the left because he is not moving fast enough toward Algerian independence.

Looming over all this is the forthcoming discussion of the problem in the United Nations. No matter how disdainfully DE GAULLE speaks of that body, what takes place there will have repercussions in both France and Algeria.

Labor Leader Gaitskell Defends NATO Policy

Led by left-wing trade union delegates, British laborites meeting at at Scarborough, overrode party leader HUGH GAITSKELL and went on record as favoring complete nuclear disarmament and neutrality in the Cold War.

Speaking for left-wingers and pacifists FRANK COUSINS, head of the powerful Transport and General Workers union, would have Britain give up nuclear testing permanently and unilaterally and close British air bases to all craft armed with nuclear weapons. This would mean British withdrawal from NATO.

Gaitskell told the conference that he would stand by the policy of collective security and membership in NATO and would "fight and fight and fight again" to reverse its decision on foreign policy. His argument that this would lead to U.S. withdrawal from Europe or to development of West Germany as the strongest European power in NATO armed with nuclear weapons, went unheeded.

★ ★ ★

The labor leader, however, did succeed in talking the party's conference into a fundamental change in its aims. It spoke no more of nationalization of industries but put greater emphasis on welfare measures. The official statement read that "the British Labor Party is a democratic socialist party. Its central idea is the brotherhood of man. Its purpose is to make this ideal a reality everywhere."

★ ★ ★

There is a possibility that the able Mr. GAITSKELL will resign. But this would not be because of his defeat at the party conference as he is elected by Labor members of the two Houses of Parliament, but because he has said that he would not continue to lead neutralists. He has tried to unite his party but continuous in-fighting is sapping its strength and it no longer is feared by the Conservatives.

ASKED what he thought of Dan Cupid, the sorely overworked stork replied, "Please don't mention that (deleted, deleted) to me!"

Autumn Foliage Show Good Over the Coming Weekend

Advice: What, in a political way, we're all getting filled up with.

Better than last year, but not as good as in many former years, is the present autumn foliage dispay in the Pontiac area. It will be at its best during the next few days.

Any highway in the suburbs is well worth the drive. This also is true of many streets in the city. While in many cases the colors are not so vivid, the kaleidoscopic display rivals the rainbow.

The yellow and pink of the maple, the brilliant red of the sumac, the predominant yellow of the ash, hickory, elm and sassafras among the trees, and the varied colors in the hedgerows, all blend into a landscape that is well worth seeing.

No particular drive in our area has any distinct advantage over the others. The hues around our many lakes seem to take on a beauty of their own. The view from any of our hills adds to the pleasure of the drive.

Through it all, the stubborn oak, (for which our county was named), remains generally green, holding its somber hue until most of the other leaves have fallen.

The Big Red Wolf

David Lawrence Says:

K Throws Rule Book Out Window

WASHINGTON — Nikita Khrushchev has defied all the rules of fair play in diplomacy — he has deliberately interfered in a national political campaign inside a foreign country.

LAWRENCE

By coming to the United States in the midst of a presidential contest and carrying on a sustained attack against the policies of the Eisenhower administration, he has endeavored to arouse the American people to repudiate their own government at the polls.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Khrushchev knows well that all over the world the American presidential election is being watched by foreign governments and peoples, and that the outcome of the contest is being awaited to learn primarily whether the American people have given a "vote of confidence" or have voted "no confidence" in the present administration.

Mr. Khrushchev in his speeches has dwelt on various aspects of the foreign-policy issue that is being debated by the supporters of Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy.

★ ★ ★

He keeps emphasizing the U2 issue and goes out of his way to embrace Fidel Castro at a time when opposition speakers in the campaign are blaming Communist ascendancy in Cuba on the Eisenhower administration.

He knows full well Democratic party speakers in the campaign have begun to hint that Red China eventually will be admitted and that the United States will soon start appeasing the Peiping government through negotiations that plead for concessions to this country in return for a willingness to admit Red China to the U.N.

At a time when there is discussion of the subject of admission of Red China to the U.N. — the recent vote on which has been referred to by Democratic party speakers as a defeat for the United States — the issue of defending Quemoy and Matsu is brought up by Sen. Kennedy.

There is naturally a good deal of confusion about it, and plenty of demagoguery.

The United States has never taken the position that Quemoy and Matsu in and of themselves are strategically important and worth defending by our forces. Nor has Vice President Nixon modified in the slightest degree the position taken by the Eisenhower administration, which is that America will defend the offshore islands only if a military operation is begun that can threaten Formosa.

For, since nobody knows just how far the Red Chinese will go if they attack the islands, the American military judgment has been and is today that it is better not to be explicit about what the United States will or will not do militarily.

As a matter of fact, there have been several intermittent bombardments of the islands for the past several years, and the United States has not become involved in any counterattack or defense of the islands themselves.

U.S. WEAKENING?

To say now that the islands will not be defended means telling the enemy that it is all right to begin an all-out attack on them and that perhaps the United tSates is weakening in her determination to defend Formosa, too.

It is also of great advantage to Mr. Khrushchev to have American speakers debating just now whether Quemoy and Matsu are to be defended.

It tells the people of Formosa and the people of the Philippines that, if Sen. Kennedy is elected, there may be a change in American policy.

This tends to weaken the alliance in the Far East between the United States, Formosa, the Philippines and South Korea, and has subjected it to new strains, which the press dispatches from those countries have revealed in the last few days in commenting on the American campaign speeches.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Hemorrhoid Operation Not So Bad These Days

"Dear Dr. Brady:" (writes a Tennessee reader)

"I fooled along with severe hemorrhoids for years because of your repeated description of the operation for hemorrhoids as an atrocity and the fact that I couldn't find anyone who knew anything about the injection treatment you suggest.

"Finally I developed fissures and a fistula and the hemorrhoids were bleeding like mad. So I went to a reputable surgeon with an "I'll try-anything" attitude. Though braced for a dreadful ordeal of pain, I'm pleased to say it just didn't materialize.

"Twelve hours after the surgery I was able to do without hypodermic injections — I had no discomfort to speak of. Next day I was walking around feeling good.

"I'm no stoic. I found normal childbirth horrible. I'd rather have half a dozen hemorrhoid operations than one more baby.

"Now, don't you think you should qualify in some manner your description of hemorrhoidectomies? Some persons may find it difficult but there may be many like myself who find it as easy as you say your appendectomy was. I would have had the hemorrhoid operation years ago if I had realized how easy it would be.

"In case you are worried lest I charge to your account all the woe I suffered between the time you scared me away from surgery and the time that in desperation I finally gave up and went to the surgeon, I want you to know that I think in general your advice is sound and your column is quite interesting reading. You have been wrong only once that I am certain of, and that's a pretty good average."

Very truly,
Mrs. ——

★ ★ ★

I plead guilty. In the past years probably as many readers who have had the radical operation for hemorrhoids (piles) have reported that they suffered little discomfort in the days after the operation as have reported they suffered more discomfort or pain than they had ever had from the piles.

With skillful use of improved anesthetics, general and local, this operation or any other operation may be made quite painless in the days and nights immediately following surgery.

I shall no longer characterize operation for hemorrhoids as atrocious. Still, if I had internal hemorrhoids, I'd use injection treatment, which gives as good results as radical surgery yet does not detain one from bowling.

The term "blind piles" is sometimes applied to internal, bleeding piles which do not prolapse with straining and require replacing after defecation. Sometimes the term "blind piles" is applied to external, non-bleeding piles.

The term "itching piles" has no definite significance. Generally patients complaining of "itching piles" have no piles but one or another condition for which pile remedies are of no use at all.

Bagwell, the professor and teacher with experience in communications, as governor could effect better understanding between labor and business and bring jobs and prosperity back to Michigan.

"Bob, our 18 - year - old son, seemed to be jinxed for I was forever needing to have a doctor sew him up somewhere. It seemed as if he grew with a plaster cast on him.

"So you can imagine the emphatic 'No' when he asked to play football in Junior High. But he finally talked me into it. First thing, however, he broke his foot!

"So that ended his football career, I thought. But one day in July I read your column where you advised a mother to let her son engage in sports.

"You said boys were actually safer and better off in supervised athletics than in gangs on the streets or drag racing their cars.

"And you said modern coaches offer splendid character training to the boys which make those athletes better equipped for success in later life.

"Well, Bob was now entering senior high, and he hesitantly broached the subject of whether he could play. 'Please, Mother,' he began, 'May I play football?'

"Well, I told him I had secretly hoped he wouldn't ask me again, but since he had, I had decided to give him my consent.

"So he played for the past 3 years. Last fall he was co-captain. He had acquired many traits of leadership and his teammates liked him and respected him.

"And these past 3 years he has been hurt less than he ever had been! For the careful training under his coach's close supervision hardened his muscles and taught him how to avoid danger.

"He was 6 feet 3 and weighed 160 at that time. Now, as he leaves for college, he weighs 195.

"We have four girls and two boys. I just hope the next one wants to play ball, too!

"And we all thank you for this very valuable 4-year all-expense scholarship."

College tuition in many schools runs well over $1,000 per year, not to mention the additional cost of board, room, books, clothes and incidentals.

So Bob won the equivalent of $6,000 to $8,000 as a result of his football scholarship.

Some college professors have taunted me for writing for newspapers, apparently failing to realize the newspaper's vast educational significance.

But Bob's case is just one of thousands that have been brought to my attention, showing how newspapers have helped widen the thinking of parents and also stimulate them into setting good examples before their children.

Mice Getting Slower Voyage

30 Minutes on Rocket, Now Trip to Take 5 Days by Ship

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Three black mice today are on a five-day return trip over a 5,000-mile distance they traveled yesterday in 30 minutes.

★ ★ ★

The three — Sally, Amy and Moe —were hurled the 5,000 miles down the Atlantic missile range aboard an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile, whose nose cone landed in the South Atlantic near Ascension Island, off the west coast of Africa.

The nose cone soared more than 650 miles above earth at a speed of 17,000 miles an hour.

The mice were part of an experiment to test the effects of deadly space radiation on living tissue.

The cone was retrieved about 3½ hours after landing in the ocean, but it was several hours before medical scientists pulled back the last of the heavy shielding to find the animals squealing heartily.

IN GOOD CONDITION

"All three are alive and in good condition," said an official announcement that spelled another U. S. space triumph — the longest flight ever recorded in American rocket experiments with animals.

It also signaled the start of a new series of rocket tests with animals.

Within the next three months, U. S. scientists hope to fire monkeys into orbit aboard Discoverer and Atlas satellites.

The test also marked a big step forward in the U. S. program to send a human astronaut into an earth orbit aboard the Atlas next year.

Scientists said the mice will be mated to test the effect of space radiation on off-spring.

The mice were from the School of Aviation Medicine at Brooks AFB near San Antonio, Tex.

Congo Soldiers Free Lumumba

Mobutu Changes Order and Deposed Premier Is Back Politicking

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese soldiers holding Patrice Lumumba a prisoner in his residence were withdrawn today and the deposed premier went back to politicking.

★ ★ ★

There was no immediate explanation for the end of the four-day blockade that the Congo army's commander, Col. Joseph Mobutu, said would be maintained indefinitely. Mobutu had said the soldiers would arrest Lumumba if he dared leave his house.

★ ★ ★

Mobutu was at his own villa in Camp Leopold II celebrating his 30th birthday and not immediately available for explanations.

100 Called Throughout Nation

Debate Poll Rates 'Em Even

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spot check of voters across the country indicated today that neither presidential candidate has forged ahead on the strength of his showing in three television debates.

★ ★ ★

After Thursday night's debate, the third between Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Associated Press bureaus in 10 cities sampled the opinions of viewers and found little difference in their estimates of the two candidates' influence.

About the same number thought Kennedy had gained the most from the debates as thought Nixon had.

The survey was made by AP newsmen in Little Rock, Baltimore, Miami, Newark, Denver, San Diego, St. Louis, Detroit, Milwaukee and New Haven.

From each bureau, they phoned residents at random until 10 were found who had seen Thursday night's debate in its entirety and were eligible to vote. In all, the survey covered 100 voters.

3 QUESTIONS

They were asked (1) which candidate they intended to vote for, (2) if the debates had affected their choice, and (3) which candidate they thought had gained the most from the debates.

Of the 100 interviewed, 40 said they were likely to vote for Nixon, 33 said they were likely to vote for Kennedy, and 27 said they still were undecided.

Commenting on the effect of the television debates, 41 said their choice or lack of one had not been affected at all.

Three said the debates had caused them to switch from Nixon to Kennedy, and 22 said the debates had influenced their preference for Kennedy.

Another 22 said the debates had strengthened their preference for Nixon. Two said the debates had influenced them but would not say toward which candidate.

And, in Milwaukee, 10 persons would not say whether the debates had affected their judgments. Interviewers, however, felt most of the choices had not been changed by the debates.

★ ★ ★

Asked which candidate had gained the most from the debates, 33 said Kennedy, 32 said Nixon, and 35 said neither. The answers indicated that some of those interviewed were basing their judgment mainly on Thursday night's debate rather than on all three.

The AP newsmen had to call 287 persons before they found the 100 who qualified for the survey.

Some viewers had praise for both Nixon and Kennedy.

"Looking at these debates," said Howard Hayden, a manufacturer's agent in Detroit, "has made me proud that we have two such brilliant young men in the United States."

Farmington May Dig the Grave for Southfield

Raking leaves off Farmington High School's front lawn might be a little unnerving this fall.

Top Nigerian Praises MSU

Credits Institution With Playing Major Role in International Education

NSUKKA, Nigeria (AP) — Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, who in November becomes this newly independent country's first Nigerian governor-general, paid public tribute Thursday to the role in international education played by Michigan State University.

★ ★ ★

The Nigerian Nationalist leader, who was educated in America, spoke at a convocation marking the opening here in Eastern Nigeria of the University of Nigeria. When completed, it will have cost $30 million.

★ ★ ★

Zik, as he is known generally, was cheered by students when he entered the convocation hall with the university principal, Dr. George Johnson, who with his wife has come from Michigan State to lead a team of educators from America, Britain, India and West Africa in setting up the first full-scale university in this country.

A large part of the new institution's teaching staff has been recruited from Michigan State, and among the guests wishing the university well on opening day were President John A. Hannah of the Michigan institution and Connor Smith, chairman of its board of trustees.

Zik, wearing a flowing white national costume and a small black velvet cap, agreed with Johnson's description of the university project as "an illustrious adventure in higher education."

"Here we have a galaxy of devoted men and women who have dedicated their talents to education in this part of Africa," the Nigerian leader said.

★ ★ ★

The visiting Michigan State University party is scheduled to leave Nigeria Saturday for a two-day visit to Cairo and a 36-hour stop in Zurich before returning to Lansing.

Legal Men Differ on Status

Quemoy, Matsu Dilemma Fogged in Fuzzy Wording

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The campaign dispute over the defense of Quemoy and Matsu centers on two documents that will govern in part what the next president legally could do in case of Red Chinese aggression.

Further complicating the bitter argument is the fuzzy wording of the documents — a 1954 treaty between the United States and Nationalist China, and a 1955 congressional resolution.

Legal authorities differ over what action these papers would require the United States to take in case the Red Chinese attacked Nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu islands, only a few miles off the Communist mainland.

This government deliberately has kept its intentions unclear. Military leaders say a big factor in deterring a Communist attack so far has been this uncertainty about what action the United States would take.

In the second presidential television debate, Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy termed the islands indefensible. He said the United States should not risk being dragged into a war by promising to fight for them.

GOP candidate Richard M. Nixon said the islands should be defended as a matter of principle because they are outposts of freedom. He said abandonment of the islands would only whet the Communists' appetite for further grabs.

In last night's third TV encounter, Nixon seemed to move closer to the administration's position that defense of Quemoy and Matsu would hinge on whether this country considered a Red attack as a first step toward an invasion of the Nationalist stronghold of Formosa.

LAST OUTPOSTS

The whole problem began in 1949 when nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek was driven from the mainland by the Communists and fled with his forces to Formosa, 100 miles off the coast.

In retreating, Chiang left garrisons on a 300-mile-long chain of islands near the mainland. He later abandoned or was driven from all but the Quemoy and Matsu groups.

The Communists first tried to capture Quemoy in late 1949 but were repelled with heavy losses.

In 1950, President Truman ordered the U.S. Seventh Fleet to patrol the Formosa Straits and block any attack on Formosa.

On Sept. 3, 1954, the Red Chinese launched a heavy artillery bombardment of Quemoy from the mainland. The islands have been shelled repeatedly since then.

In December 1954 the United States signed with Chiang the Republic of China Mutual Defense Treaty. This country pledged to defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadores Islands. The pledge did not specifically cover Quemoy and Matsu.

The next year, president Eisenhower asked and got from Congress a resolution formally establishing his authority to use U.S. troops to protect Chiang. The resolution authorized defense of Formosa and the Pescadores, and "such other measures" as the president considered necessary to protect them.

Some legal scholars have said this did not authorize the president to use troops to defend Quemoy and Matsu. Others said he could use American forces if an attack on the offshore islands was considered a prelude to an attack on Formosa.

This latter view became the Eisenhower administration's official position. The president never has said whether an attack on Matsu and Quemoy would be considered the first step in an attack on Formosa.

With K Gone, U.N. Is Settling Down to Normal

With Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other international headliners gone, members of the U.N. secretariat and newsmen will not be asked to show a passport-type identification card as many as a half-dozen times between the gate and their place of work in the eight-acre international enclave.

Those with brief cases will get a nod instead of a search from the guards.

Planting New Elms Poses Real Problem

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — The time has come to take another look at the common practice of planting elm trees for shade in our cities, says Dr. Donald M. Coe of Minnesota's Division of Plant Industry.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Coe says Dutch elm disease now poses a real threat to such trees.

He says planting different types of shade trees will help, and that present elm trees should be pruned and fertilized. Old elm wood should be cleaned up and trees sprayed when they are in infected areas.

PNHS Reporter Looks at Ford's '61 Truck Line

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Pontiac Northern High School Senior Richard Pointon of 229 Victory Drive, is The Pontiac Press representative at the Ford Motor Company's three-day Teen-Age Press conference. Here is his first story on the new Ford line.)

By DICK POINTON

The unveiling of two completely new series of trucks is expected to set the pace for an exceptional year in 1961 for the Ford Motor Company.

"One out of three trucks sold in the United States will be a Ford truck," was the statement of Wilbur Chase, truck marketing manager for Ford, regarding the increased range of Ford truck models offered this year.

An all new economy pickup field with three completely different models should be the drawing card for the average business man seeking the ultimate in fuel economy, load capacity and versatility, Ford officials said.

The new Econ-o-line includes a bus delivery truck and pickup. Ford has also met the demand for an economical heavy duty highway tractor by offering a diesel-powered truck line engineered for long distance heavy hauling.

The big trucks also have V8 or V6 gasoline engines from 206 H.P. to 266 H.P., also a space saving tilt-type cab.

In the standard pickup series the outspoken feature is an integral cab and box. This unity allows more rigidity, a smooth clean appearance and longer life.

The 1961 Style Side pickups have nine cubic feet more cargo space than last year's model and also a 13-inch widening of the tail gate. Loading, a difficult problem for the pickup owner, is greatly simplified by a low 28-inch bed height and 48-inch sides.

Smallest, but most economical, is the Falcon Ranchero with a maximum load capacity of three-quarter ton.

Standard this year on all Ford trucks are dual electric windshield wipers, double sun visors, a new electrical system including two single 7-inch headlights and theft resistant ignition.

She Blows Up but—in Wrong Direction

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Many mothers were annoyed by the delay in "no school" announcements on the day Hurricane Donna arrived.

One mother decided to do something about it.

She called former Mayor Joseph Morelli and demanded to know what he was going to do about the situation.

After listening to the mother's complaint Morelli informed her he had been out of office since last April.

NEW YORK (AP)—Imagine a house without windows and doors that swell, plaster cracks, and termites . . . an all-steel house.

Such a house is a prospect for the future.

Steelways, publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, says a new process in which sections of the house are stamped out of steel has made the mass production of all-steel prefabricated homes economically feasible.

Inside, the home would have textured and patterened steel walls.

Interior walls would be mounted on wheels, making room shapes as easy to rearrange as furniture. Exterior walls, says Steelways, can be etched and sprayed with a stucco-like material.

Says Weary Wadsworth 'Bon Voyage' Khrushy,

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—The United States had two words for the Khrushchev departure for home.

Said U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth in the U.N. General Assembly yesterday: "Bon Voyage."

Blind Woman Rested Leg on Live Bomb for 8 Years

BRISTOL, England (AP) — A blind woman learned Thursday she has been propping up a leg of her work bench for eight years with a live bomb. She had tied the bomb to a leg of the table in Bristol's workshop for the blind. A worker who had been a World War II bomb expert spotted it while he was working on a rebuilding project. Workshop officials said the bomb must have been brought in with pieces of knitting machinery.

Small Crowd Greets Gomulka in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Communist chief Wladyslaw Gomulka returned home by plane Thursday night from the United Nations assembly session in New York. He told officials and a small crowd that had come to welcome him Poland will continue to strive for peace and Poland's security.

Pet Turtle's Body Found, Delivered 23 Years Later

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Dewitt D. Phillips Jr. was 15 years old in 1937 when he solemnly placed the body of his pet turtle in a box, put it on a rafter in a neighbor's attic and left this note:

★ ★ ★

"If this corpse should be found please notify me. Or in case this is found later than 2037 please notify Dewitt D. Phillips III."

Twenty-three years later, Z. C. Hubay, remodeling the house, found the turtle's skelton and contacted Phillips, now a doctor.

★ ★ ★

Phillips had no recollection of the turtle but he said, "I must have done it." As for Dewitt III, the doctor isn't married yet.

Bridegroom Certain of Bride, for Awhile

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Arthur Brown of Des Moines was about to get married to Martha Mikesell, also of Des Moines. He heard about a prankster's plot to "kidnap" the bride after the ceremony.

So to make sure it didn't happen to his bride, he spent $10.30 for a pair of handcuffs.

He snapped them on his bride's wrist immediately after the wedding ceremony. And he kept them on about two hours.

Former Child Film Star Fined $52.50 by Judge

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Former child actor Bobby Driscoll was fined $52.50 today for disturbing the peace. Driscoll, 23, now a car salesman, was placed on probation by Judge Arthur C. Miller of Malibu Justice Court. Judge Miller said a condition of the probation will be that Driscoll not use narcotics or associate with users. The complaint against Driscoll was brought by Lauri S. Maurow of Los Angeles, who charged Driscoll struck him with a pistol last June 17 during an argument. Driscoll pleaded guilty.

'Great Debate' Footnotes

Shock Wave Spreads Fast

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Arthur Edson was one of three reporters in the studio with Vice President Nixon Thursday for his third TV debate with Sen. Kennedy. He is the only reporter who was also inside the studio with the candidates at their earlier meetings in Chicago and Washington.]

By ARTHUR EDSON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What a remarkable campaign this has turned into.

Away with the big, complex, tedious issues.

Our presidential candidates can not even agree on whether they had an agreement that no previously prepared notes should be brought along for a big television debate.

And, by the way, what is a note anyway?

★ ★ ★

To explain this properly, step with me into the American Broadcasting Co. studio, and we'll set the scene as it looked here Thursday before the two met in the third round of their TV debate.

All is quiet.

MEANWHILE . . .

Kennedy is 3,000 miles away in New York. Suddenly he is picked up on the monitor in the studio here.

Horrors, are those papers in front of him? He seems to have dropped one, and is busily retrieving it.

But before you can say Quemoy or even Matsu, the show has begun—and, as it turns out, so has the argument.

As the two men pound away at each other, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, sidles up to the three reporters in the studio to whisper that bringing in notes is hootleg stuff and a violation of ground rules.

★ ★ ★

With this forewarning, one of the first questions put to Nixon when the debate was over was: How about those notes Kennedy used?

"I'm not going to say anything," Nixon said, "but I was shocked."

It was not in the agreement at all, Nixon said, and though he twice said, "I'm not complaining," he said he will make sure it doesn't happen in the fourth debate.

CROSSCOUNTRY RETORT

Naturally this was quickly relayed to Kennedy's camp, and the reply came back that there was nothing like this in any agreement. And anyway Kennedy was not reading from notes but from a photostat.

Kennedy himself called The Associated Press to say:

"If I'm going to quote the President of the United States in a matter involving national security, he should be quoted accurately."

Since Nixon is, as he puts it, "a heavy sweater," the broadcasting studio was kept at 58 degrees.

★ ★ ★

Furthermore, it develops that Nixon likes to jab his opponent without having to look him in the eye. He reminded reporters that in Washington last week he carefully avoided looking at Kennedy. Incidentally, if it seemed to you that Nixon was on camera more than Kennedy, you're right. Some broadcasting statistician reported that Kennedy talked for 20 minutes and 8 seconds while Nixon had 24 minutes, 8 seconds. The moderator and panelist used up the rest.

Maine became the first state to vote dry, approving prohibition in 1846.

Club Preparing for Halloween

Kiwanis at Rochester to Package Flares at Monday's Meeting

ROCHESTER — Kiwanis Club members will make final preparations Monday for their annual Halloween celebration, a colorful event which literally lights up this village every Oct. 31.

★ ★ ★

At 7 p.m. on Halloween the Rochester Fire Department sounds a shrieking alarm. The sound is a signal for all residents to light special flares and set them in their front yards.

★ ★ ★

Dances and parties with doughnuts, cider and other refreshments being served to children in the area are held the same night.

★ ★ ★

The entertainment is financed by the Kiwanis Club through its sale of the flares. These will be packaged, with complete instructions, at the Monday meeting.

CONTRIBUTIONS ACCEPTED

Contributions also are received for the annual project from the village of Rochester and Avon Township, in addition to donations from local businessmen.

★ ★ ★

Ervin Schilke is head of the club's flare committee which also includes Fred Houghten, Henry and Jack Mitzelfeld and George Globe.

Chairman of the party committee is Russell Williams.

★ ★ ★

Kiwanians also sponsor special training for young people at Wolverine Boys State and Interlochen. They help needy and handicapped children.

★ ★ ★

But the Halloween celebration gives the club a chance to benefit all children in the Rochester area, according to Kiwanis President Robert Smitha.

Rowston, Willman Head for West Coast

Mayor Philip E. Rowston accompanied by Mrs. Rowston, was headed towards San Diego, Calif., and an international conference of mayors.

City Manager Walter K. Willman and Mrs. Willman were headed toward San Francisco, Calif., where Willman will wind up his term as president of the International City Managers Assn. at the association's annual convention.

The Willmans plan a 1½-week trip to Hawaii before returning to Pontiac Nov. 7.

★ ★ ★

Commissioner John A. Dugan, mayor protem, will be acting mayor in Rowston's absence and Robert A. Stierer, assistant city manager, will fill in for Willman.

KATHERINE SHERBY

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherby of 336 Ferndale St., Rochester, announce the engagement of their daughter Katherine Anne to Ralph Bourdeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephrem Bourdeau of Cheboygan. The wedding will be in February.

Sacred Heart Festival Will Feature Dinner

AUBURN HEIGHTS — A feature of the 17th annual Fall Festival sponsored by Sacred Heart Parish Sunday will be a roast beef dinner with all the trimmings, served family style.

In addition, there will be pony rides, movies, games, amusements and booths where baked goods, candy and handiwork will be sold — over 25 attractions in all.

The festival will be held on the parish grounds on Adams Road, between South Blvd. and Auburn Road, from 1 to 6 p.m.

All proceeds will go toward furnishing the new Sacred Heart School.

Schalm School Session to End With Box Social

CLAWSON — The membership drive of the Paul A. Schalm School Parent-Teacher Association will climax Oct. 21 with a box social.

★

PTA members will meet in the multipurpose room of the school at 8:30 p.m. to receive instructions for a 30-minute scavenger hunt.

They are asked to bring their own lunches to be eaten upon their return to the building.

Coffee and soft drinks will be available.

In case of rain the party will be confined to the building.

Rochester to Discuss Two-Family Dwellings

ROCHESTER — A request to allow two-family homes on Ludlow Street between West University Drive and Seventh Street will be discussed at a public hearing here Nov. 14.

A city ordinance now permits only single unit dwellings on the street. A petition signed by all but one property owner on the block requests the zoning change.

Troy Church Planning Harvest Fete Tuesday

TROY — A turkey dinner, candy sale and doll display will be highlights of a Harvest Festival Tuesday sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of Troy Methodist Church.

★ ★ ★

Dinner will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. at the church on E. Square Lake Road near Livernois Road. An afternoon tea will be held prior to the dinner.

Quake Rocks Chile City

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Valdivia, a Chilean city some 550 miles south of Santiago, was shaken late Thursday by an earthquake of medium intensity. Valdivia was hard hit by last May's disastrous Chilean quakes.

Driving Instructions Thrill Dutch Girl Studying in Area

By DON FERMOYLE

A slight Dutch accent is noticeable in her speech and she's only a little more than a month removed from her home town of Velsen in the Netherlands.

But 17-year-old Henrietta Knippen, a foreign exchange student studying at Avondale High School, has an ambition common to every American teen-ager.

She wants to drive the family car.

Henrietta — or "Hetty" as she is known to her classmates — hopes to know how to drive her father's German-made Opel by the time she returns home next August.

Although soft spoken and a little shy, Hetty glows at the thought of being able to take a driver's training course at Avondale next semester.

"We do not have practical subjects like this at home," she said, "most Dutch girls do not drive unless they come from wealthy families. There are many more bicycles in Holland. But here, everyone drives."

Hetty also finds a difference in American and Dutch educational systems. She said classroom discipline in her own country is much stricter. It annoys her to see a student chew gum in school here.

In the United States everyone goes to high school, but at home children have to attend school only between the ages of 6 and 12, she explained. After that they continue in school or take up a trade, depending on their abilities.

STUDIED LANGUAGES

In Holland, Hetty studied Dutch, English and French each for five years. She said that the Dutch student must be able to speak these languages after five years.

She is studying American history, government, literature, typing and speech at Avondale.

Hetty likes her teachers in school here. "They are more personal. You see them as your friends," she said.

She concluded that the American and European school systems each "have their advantages."

Hetty also is a member of the school debating team, the girl scouts, the student council and plans to join the French Club. She likes to play tennis in Velsen but hasn't had a chance to get in a game here.

Hetty is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Runser at 597 Nawaka Road, Avon Township. The Runners have three daughters, one the same age as their Dutch visitor.

Hetty has a brother, 14, and a sister, 5, in Velsen, which is about 15 miles from Amsterdam.

* * *

She displays an excellent command of English but admits that slang terms and colloquialisms presented a language problem the first few weeks in the country.

Words like "baby shower" and "pajama party" she still finds amusing. And she remains confused by stores she refers to as "super food markets."

* * *

On Sunday there will be a reception in her honor from 2 to 4 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stone, 2552 South Blvd.

* * *

And a week from today Hetty will be able to find out what one of those unfamiliar American teenage expressions mean. Her girl friends have invited Hetty to her very first "pajama party."

Pontiac Press Photo

DUTCH DEBATER — Henrietta Knippen, a foreign exchange student from the Netherlands, had a little trouble expressing herself when she first started attending Avondale High School last month. But she doesn't have that problem any more. Now she's even a member of the school's debating team.

To Probe Needs Before College

Three Top University Officials Have Pointers for High Schoolers

ROCHESTER—Problems facing high school students planning to enter college will be discussed by three top university officials in a special program at Rochester High School.

* * *

The meeting, at 8 p.m. Thursday, is open to all area high school students and their parents, according to George Stringer, director of guidance services at the school.

Dr. Clyde Vroman, University of Michigan admissions director, will speak on requirements for admittance to college.

"What Chance Do I Have for a Scholarship?", is the topic for Dr. Harry McKinney of the office of admissions and scholarships at Michigan State University.

TO DISCUSS BACKGROUNDS

The third speaker will be D. B. Varner, chancellor of Michigan State University Oakland.

He will discuss the qualities and backgrounds necessary for success in college.

Following the presentations, the meeting will be opened for a public question and answer session. A social hour will follow.

Billy Graham Film to Be Shown in Utica

UTICA — Evangelist Billy Graham's new feature-length motion picture, "Africa on the Bridge," will have its Utica premiere at the Harvest Baptist Church on 23-Mile Road today at 7:30 p.m.

Ex-NBC Official Dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donald Withycomb, 63, a former official of the National Broadcasting Co. and of the Voice of America, died Wednesday at a hospital here.

To Serve Village, Township

Oxford Plots Civic Center

OXFORD TOWNSHIP—Lee H. Clack, township supervisor, will work with the Oxford Village Planning Commission on the study of a civic center which would serve both the village and township.

Tentative plans call for location of township and village offices, police and fire department and a library in the civic center.

The decision to join in study of the development was made by the Township Board following a request by Lowell Prescott, a member of the planning commission.

Prescott appeared before the board to ask for joint effort in project development. The board then passed a resolution, appointing Clack as township representative.

* * *

In another resolution, the board turned over complete control of water system to be built in Red Barn Subdivision to the Oakland County Department of Public Works.

Only two homes presently are in the subdivision, near M24 midway between Lake Orion and Oxford.

Ground-Breaking Rite to Be Held at Noon Sunday

OXFORD — Ground - breaking ceremonies for the new $80,000 educational and social wing at Immanuel Congregational Church will be held at noon Sunday.

Following the 11 a.m. service at the church, the entire congregation will be on hand for the turning of the first shovel full of earth for the new two-story addition.

Eino Kainlauri of the architectural firm of Kainlauri, MacMullen and Associates, Ann Arbor, and a representative of the construction company, Frank Stewart and Sons, Inc., of Drayton Plains will be special guests.

The two firms are handling design and construction of the addition.

Announce Engagement

HADLEY—The engagement of Lynne Claire Jennings to Frederick J. Sinclair is announced by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Jennings of 5800 Island Drive.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sinclair of Attica. A November wedding is planned.

Women usually have higher pitched voices than men because their vocal cords are somewhat shorter.

Canada's first newspaper, the Halifax Gazette, was published early in 1751. It was circulated about 20 years.

Khrushchev Planted Seeds for the Future

Nikita's Losses May Be Temporary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

On paper, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may seem to have lost more than he won during his United Nations stay. But the paper losses may be short-term only, still capable of being turned into Communist victories.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev failed to:

—Win anywhere near majority approval of his plan to reorganize the office of the secretary-general into a Communist-weighted three-man presidium.

—Oust or obtain the resignation of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

—Turn the U.N. General Assembly into a world summit meeting on disarmament. Before he made his bit pitch for disarmament most world leaders already had gone back home.

★ ★ ★

But he did:

—By his own initiative draw more world leaders than ever before assembled under a single roof.

—Establish himself as a relaxed leader who could stay away from home as long as he wished, meanwhile reaping a propaganda harvest.

—In his own words, "plant seeds" for the future.

As for his failures, many observers at the U.N. believed that this would be one of the last years the United States and its Allies successfully could prevent the entry of Red China as a full-fledged U.N. member.

★ ★ ★

More important than those who voted for or against Red China this year were the 22 nations which abstained. They included nearly all of the newly-admitted African nations.

A switch by less than half of these in next year's voting would do the trick.

As for reorganizing the U.N. to turn it into an arm of the Kremlin it is probable that here Khrushchev employed a time-honored Communist stratagem. He asked far more than he expected, and any compromise would be a Communist gain.

SEED IS PLANTED

While such prominent leaders as Prime Minister Nehru of India oppose any plan which would paralyze the office of the secretary-general, nevertheless the "seed" has been planted. The Afro-Asian group is dissatisfied with its present U.N. representation, particularly in the Security Council, and may be expected to press for some sort of U.N. representation.

It is probable that Khrushchev will have to bear with Hammarskjold until the latter's term runs out in 1963. Then will come the big Soviet push and a moment of decision for the United States.

Meantime, the United States and its Allies must decide whether reorganization of the U.N. is inevitable and come up with a plan of its own or elect to fight it out on the basis of the Khrushchev demands.

As for disarmament, the big powers themselves eventually must decide. But Khrushchev's demand for immediate destruction of arms draws strong support from small nations who believe money spent on guns much better could be spent on their own development.

State Medical Leader Will Retire Saturday

LANSING (UPI)—The state chief of the hospital consultation and licensing section of the public health department is retiring after 15 years in the position, said Dr. Albert Heustis, state health commissioner.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Fanny Kenyon, former medical director of the Chrysler Corp. DeSoto plant in Detroit, will retire from her state post Saturday.

East State Tourist Group Marks 50th Anniversary

BAY CITY (UPI)—The golden anniversary convention of the East Michigan Tourist Association was held here Thursday.

The association, which represents 29 countries in East and Central Michigan, was founded 50 years ago as the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau.

DINOSAUR SKELETON — This 30-inch femur (thighbone) of an Allosaurus, ferocious dinosaur which lived millions of years ago, is pieced together at the University of Michigan Museum by Director Irving G. Reimann (right) and L. Grant Stokes, foreman of the scientific crew which unearthed the specimen from the remains of a prehistoric water hole near Cleveland, Utah.

Kennedy Receives Intellectual Backing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Henry M. Jackson today named a 250-member national committee of arts, letters and sciences in support of Sen. John F. Kennedy for president.

★ ★ ★

Jackson said the group included five Nobel and 19 Pulitzer Prize winners and their endorsement of Kennedy "is an obvious indication of the respect with which he is regarded in the intellectual world."

★ ★ ★

U.S. Souvenirs Replace Nikita as Baltika Sails

NEW YORK (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's private liner Baltika, sailed back home today with a lackluster passenger list and an empty bunk in the fo'c'sle.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev and the five satellite leaders who joined him on the voyage to New York chose to return home by other transportation.

Although the place cards at the captain's table will be less glittering as the Baltika steams eastward, the small, white-hulled liner at least has some extra cargo in her hold.

★ ★ ★

Two busloads of heavy goods — souvenirs — were loaded onto the vessel by her crewmen Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Among the souvenirs the Communists are sending home by sea are several portable television sets, a small air conditioner and three new American cars (a Cadillac, an Oldsmobile and a Comet).

Do-It-Yourself Talk Heard by Squadron

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP)—The 552nd Airborne Early Warning Squadron at McClelland AFB Force Base made a logical choice in asking the Rev. Lester J. Maitland, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Parish, to be speaker at its dining-in night.

The clergyman is a retired Air Force brigidier general, took part in the first crossing of the Pacific Ocean by airplane from Oakland to Hawaii, was an aide to Gen. Billy Mitchell and was the first pilot to fly 200 m.p.h. back in 1922.

Bay County Agrees to Airport Allocation

BAY CITY (UPI) — The Bay County Board of Supervisors has agreed to allocate $15,947 as its initial share of an improvement and expansion project at Tri-City Airport.

The money will be made available as the county's share of a matching fund if Saginaw and Midland counties take similar action allocating money for the project.

A long-range program calls for construction of a control tower, expansion of runways to facilitate jet aircraft and enlarging of the administration building.

BOMBER SUSPECT — This is a sketch, drawn from the description of a 16-year-old girl victim of Thursday's Time Square subway station explosion, of the man who may be the bomber. The man was described as lame, wild-haired, between 30 and 40 years old, between 5 feet 2 and 5 feet 4 inches tall and wearing a corrective, built up shoe on one foot.

ORCHARD'S
VANDALISM SALE

Let our misfortune be your gain. Two weeks ago vandals broke into our store. The next day we discovered a mess that was worse than imaginable. Sofas, chairs, end tables, lamps and many other items were covered with mustard, ketchup, paint, soup, crackers and coffee. All of this merchandise has been cleaned as well as possible. Now in order to sell these items and many other soiled and imperfect items we are holding a vandalism sale, where all of these items will be marked down at tremendous discounts, many items at wholesale cost or below. First come first served. Many one-of-a-kind items.

Children's Play to Open Friday

Schedule One Evening, Five Daytime Shows for Kids, Oct. 21-29

By BARBARA GRIFFIN

As curtain time draws near for the Children's Theater play, "The Princess and the Swineherd," pressure builds up on the committee chairmen as well as the cast.

The play could never be presented without the production staff. Committee Chairman Sue Costantino and assistant Pat Rahja are in charge of all ticket sales and publicity.

Nadine Morris and Betty Boone make, fit and distribute all costumes. The supervision and construction of all stage sets is done by Jim Bank and Sue Dawe. Willie Prentis collects all needed props.

Kaye Gaddes will supervise the make-up, and lighting arrangements will be handled by Dave Hunt.

Matinee performances of the "Princess and the Swineherd" for the elementary schools will be given Oct. 21, 24, 25, 26 and 27. The only evening performance will be Oct. 29 in the Pontiac Central Auditorium.

★ ★ ★

Preparations are also under way for the 1960 Pontiac Central Homecoming. The event will be held Oct. 28 and will be known as the "Harvest Festival."

This week every senior homeroom nominated one candidate for princess and one for chief. The Student Council will eliminate all but three nominees for chief and three for princess.

Final selection will be made by a special committee of Student Council officers and five faculty members.

BEGINS WITH PARADE

The "Harvest Festival" will begin with a parade, led by the PCHS band. Following will be about 16 orange and black decorated cars representing various clubs, and one float for the chief and princess.

The parade will leave from the Crofoot School parking lot and travel down Huron to Saginaw and out Oakland Avenue to Wisner Stadium.

Pontiac Central Chiefs will host Flint Southwestern for the gridiron battle. During half time the chief and princess will be crowned in the traditional coronation ceremony.

★ ★ ★

After the game the "Harvest Festival" dance will be held in the boys' gym. Dress for this dance will be dressy, but not formal. Previously homecoming has been held only once every three years, but starting next year, it will be an annual event.

Pontiac Press Photo

Mark Civil War at Farmington

Guided by faculty members George Barrons, Donald Nichols and Lee S. Peel, Farmington Senior High this year will celebrate a year - long observance of the Civil War Centennial.

★ ★ ★

Approximately 12 interested students including Ardis Devroy, Karen LaLonde, Bob Kidder, R. Dianne Stokosa, Arden Patrick and Alice Bassette, will work with these teachers on various projects throughout the year.

The committee for the centennial observance of the Civil War hopes to generate among Farmington Senior High students a better understanding of the causes of the Civil War, its continuing effects and encourage a tolerance for the southern point of view.

Many projects have been tentatively outlined. Some of these include: Periodic exhibits in the showcases with relics and mementos loaned yb students and faculty; speeches by outside people such as the one on Nov. 17 by Dr. Richard Mudd; and trips to local historical museums and historical points of interest through sponsorship by social studies classes.

★ ★ ★

Other projects are exhibits in the Farmington High Library of Civil War books; a book review forum at which a number of war related books would be reviewed and discussed; special articles in the school paper on Civil War incidents; and student panels or forums on some aspects of the war, headed by Douglas Race.

★ ★ ★

In commenting on the observance, faculty chairman Lee S. Peel stated, "Farmington's observance is an attempt to emulate, on the local level, the observances to be held on the state and national levels.

★ ★ ★

"We do not have $100,000, such as was appropriated by the state legislature for the state's observance, but, with enthusiasm and work and organization we shall have a memorable program."

All Students Busy Working on Waterford Homecoming

By BARB SECAN

Homecoming activities are at last under way at Waterford Township High School.

Anxious students began last week to get their various committees organized and to start work on their individual projects.

Underclassmen beat the seniors in the recent campaign for the sale of Waterlogs. Fizbee, the sophomore and junior candidate, defeated Chief, the senior candidate, for commissioner of manholes.

★ ★ ★

College night Wednesday at Farmington drew a good turnout of students from Waterford. Those who attended found it very beneficial and enlightening.

★ ★ ★

Sophomore candidates for class offices were announced Tuesday. They are Dave Patterson and Chuck Cole, president; Joanna Lovett, Mary Hickman and Liza Venie, vice president; Pat Williams, Carl Methner and Margaret St. Dennis, treasurer; and Gail Bingel, Barb Secan and Sue Grile, secretary. Elections will be Monday.

★ ★ ★

Waterford's PTSA will have its first meeting, "Preview to Homecoming," Wednesday at 8 p.m.

★ ★ ★

The program for this meeting was designed for greater parent-student participation. A brief business meeting will open the program. Afterward a variety of activities will take place in the gymnasium.

★ ★ ★

Appearing will be the WTHS marching band, the varsity football squad, the varsity cheerleaders and candidates for homecoming king and queen.

★ ★ ★

Students at Walled Lake Get Out Travelin' Shoes

By SHARON MURDY

Walled Lake High School students will be off to different parts of Michigan this weekend.

A select number of yearbook and newspaper students will attend the annual Journalism Day at Michigan State University tomorrow while members of the Future Teachers of America will convene in Detroit.

Those slated to make the trip to East Lansing are Sandra Huntala, Sharon Murdy, Sandra Greniewicke, Mike VanderVelde, Reib Bryle and an unannounced member of the photography staff.

Sponsors accompanying the group will be Mrs. James Lobdell and William Hermanson.

A full schedule from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. is in store for the journalists including an address by Dr. Charles D. Kenny, professor of social science at MSU.

A display of publications brought by the students will provide ideas, and a question and answer period is expected to prove helpful.

The Future Teachers will convene at the University of Detroit for an area workshop.

Students attending from Walled Lake are John Clark, Rochelle Dovey, Sandy Intihar, Mary Nelson, Dodie Duckwitz, Susan Millspaugh and Sandy Intihar. Mrs. Paul Kirk, sponsor, and Mrs. Albert Intihar will attend the conference with the group.

They will listen in on panel discussions and see movies based on various phrases of teaching as a career. In addition, they will talk with representatives of the other clubs and hear suggestions for a more effective organization.

Walled Lake journalists will also attend the teen-age conference with Abigail Van Buren which the Pontiac Press is sponsoring at Pontiac Northern High on Oct. 18.

Expected to be at this event are Margie Galbreath, Linda Gentry, Jo Harlow, Rosemary Ronayne, Susie Hueblur, Rick Fessler and Sharon Murdy.

At this year's first National Honor Society meeting the officers elected were Ray Hoffmann, president; Ken Wentzel, vice president; Lynne Ashby, secretary; and Judy Slinker, treasurer.

Members of this group have maintained better than a B average and were also chosen for their leadership, service and character. DeForest McIntyre, a counselor, is the group's sponsor.

★ ★ ★

They will do this work during study halls and before and after school.

Barb Linton and Kathy York have been selected to cheer on the United States Cheerleading Association Precision Squad. Pauline Hess, cheerleading director at Michigan State University, judged the girls on spirit, leadership, fitness and cooperation.

The girls will travel with Miss Hess to schools in nearby states to demonstrate types of cheers and motions.

Seniors Pick Class Motto at St. Mike's

By PAT BURNS

The seniors have stepped into the spotlight this week at St. Michael's High School by officially choosing as their class motto, "When things go wrong, don't go with them."

★ ★ ★

St. Richard was chosen as the class patron, gold and white are the class colors, and the rose is the class flower.

The auto show in Detroit has attracted the more mechanical minded students. They will spend Oct. 22, viewing the newest cars at Cobo Hall.

Wednesday the student body was privileged to attend a mission film and lecture given by Harry Bojarski from the Detroit School Office.

Representatives to the Catholic Student Mission Crusade organization have been selected for the year by each homeroom. Representing the seniors is Art Robak.

The Teen Club held a membership meeting Monday. Gary Kraft acted as chairman and Judy Lamphere, secretary. Plans for a Recollection Sunday, Nov. 13 and days for the following meetings were discussed. A dance followed the meeting.

Plans for the homecoming festivities next week are getting well under way.

Actors, Singers Open Rehearsals at W. Bloomfield

By CAROLYN MAVIS

The West Bloomfield High School senior play cast has been announced and rehearsals are underway.

★ ★ ★

The play is "The High School Mystery" by Robert St. Clair. It will be presented Nov. 9 in the high school gym.

West Bloomfield's vocal group, the Triple Trio, had tryouts last week and the members were announced. Returning singers are Sue Sansom, Marilyn Dreyer, Sharon Fleming and Anita Simmoneau, all seniors.

Star-Studded Event for Falcons Tonight

By JIM WAGNER

Tonight will be a star-studded one in Rochester as Rochester High School celebrates its 1960 homecoming.

Although only one will be selected as homecoming queen, Tillie Enghel, Judy French and Penny Gray will all share in the honors to be presented during half-time at tonight's game.

The remaining two senior girls, along with Sue Morgan and Lynn Fralling, representing the junior class, Georgiana Dufour and Annette Minchella representing the sophomore class, will make up the queen's court.

Rochester will play host to Roseville. The students hope their athletes can score as high as several classmates did on a recent National Merit Honor Test.

High scorers Mary Ann Maledon and Neal Deunk have become semi-finalists in the nationwide competition. Scoring high on further tests may lead to the finals, and possibly a scholarship award.

If you like a fast-moving, humorous play set in the deep south, plan to be on hand Nov. 17 or 18 when the senior class brings to the stage "A Thread That Runs so True," by Jessie Stuart.

Lead characters Jessie Stuart and Naomi Deans will be portrayed by Jack Curtis and Charlotte Zubal.

The supporting cast includes Susan Harrell, Ross Frantz, Judy Eldred, Hank Way, Judy French and Dave Prior in major roles with several other seniors in minor roles.

Varsity Club Organizes, Names Officers at PNH

By DIANE M. WALTER

Pontiac Northern's Varsity Club has elected its new officers.

The Varsity Club members are all varsity letter winners and also must maintain good scholastic standards for eligibility.

The club provides a school service club, promotes athletic interest in school, establishes a good sense of sportsmanship and strives to secure the benefits of interscholastic sports for all students.

Besides the responsibility of electing officers, members are presently adopting a constitution and running a membership drive.

Members usher at all school events. They are supervised and sponsored by the Northern coaches, and athletic director, Eldon Johnson.

The main office has a new staff of student assistants. They are Sue DeWeise, Geraldine Pfeifer, Beatrice Stephens, Karen Classon and Judy Johnson.

Their main activity is operating the switchboard. They also run occasional errands.

Assisting them are Rebecca Hichs., Lenora Oltesvig and Karlene Walton. All gain office experience and learn to deal with the public.

Members of the art department are making a homecoming float for Oct. 22 and working on scenery for the operetta, "Pirates of Penzance," scheduled for Oct. 27 and 29.

One artist, Sharon McWethy, has constructed two figures for the show. They are on display near the senior lounge.

The Junior Secretaries Club, sponsored by Mrs. Margaret West, recently elected its officers. Jeanette Whitlock is president; Janet Bunch, vice president; Barbara Terry, secretary; and Carolyn Vance, treasurer.

The club attends lectures and tours concerning the field of office work, stenographic careers and activities of secretaries. They also have social events occasionally.

Dutch Exchange Pupil Likes U.S. 'Space' Program

By KAREN VOGEL

Henrietta Knippen is Avondale's foreign exchange student from Velsen, Holland. Hetty arrived in New York on Sept. 12.

When asked about her impressions of America she replied, "Everything seems so wide and broad and free."

"The houses are so far from each other. In Holland there are long rows of houses side by side," she said.

Hetty, 17, has a brother, Dolf, 14, and a sister, Elsbeth, 5. Her father is a medical aid.

In Holland she studied geography, history, and music appreciation. She knows five languages including her own.

A reception will be held this Sunday between two and four o'clock at the home of Hugh Stone for Hetty and her counterpart, Karen Vogel, who went to Norway this summer.

Students Parade to Homecoming at Oxford High

By LINDA JACOB

Tonight's gala parade of floats, shiny new cars, pretty girls, and the marching band will signal the beginning of Oxford High's 11th annual homecoming celebration.

The parade will begin at 7 at the junior high school and will travel through town to the football field.

Floats assembled by the clubs and classes will be entered in the parade. Among those entering are the Latin Club, Art Club, Classes of '61, '62, '63, and the Student Council, whose entry will be the queen's float.

The Oxford "Wildcats" will meet Imlay City "Spartons" at 8. Oxford is pulling for its first victory of the season.

Trophies will be presented to the winning floats which are being judged in three classes: funniest, prettiest, and most original.

Following the game a dance will be held in the student center of the high school. It will be sponsored by the student council.

Milford Homecoming Game Tonight

By LEE MORGAN

Tonight in their homecoming game, the Milford Redskins will be host to the Barons of Bloomfield Hills.

Preceeding the game, at 7 p.m., the Milford High School Band will lead the annual homecoming parade. Following the band, will be the Queen candidates, Bonney Schuett, Xenia Walik, Leslie Evans, Sue Banish, Bonnie Ashton and Nancy Cece.

The queen will be announced during half-time. Last year's queen, Jude Burton, will be on hand to crown her. Also in the parade will be floats made by various classes, centered around the theme "Bury the Barons."

After the game a dance will be held in the high school cafeteria at which the new queen will reign. Music will be supplied by the high school dance band directed by Paul Miller.

ONE IS A QUEEN — Who do you think it will be? One of these four beauties will reign as Homecoming Queen at Brandon High School in Ortonville tonight. The hopeful candidates are (from left) Julie MacAlpine, Connie Kassuba, Linda Phipps and Nancy Kesler. All the plans have been made for a big homecoming celebration, but the queen won't be announced until today.

'Tempest to Add 1,000 Jobs Here'

Pontiac's new Tempest will help create about 1,000 more jobs at Pontiac Motor Division this production year, it was predicted today by Charles A. Beach, president of Local 653, UAW.

* * *

At peak production time, Beach predicted, there will be more than 10,000 union members on the job at the factory, compared to about 9,100 last year.

"I hope to see all our seniority members called back because of the small car," Beach said.

He said the division at present is calling back some auto workers laid off since 1958 and 1957.

* * *

Additional jobs, Beach said, are developing both on the Tempest line and in affiliated operations, such as parts production for the fledgling auto, introduced this month.

Divisional spokesmen declined comment on Beach's prediction.

Because the Tempest doesn't go on sale until Nov. 3, "it is too early to make an accurate prediction," one spokesman said.

New Bedford Paper Backs Kennedy, Johnson

She told sheriff's deputies someone had evidently stolen the radiator from her car when it was parked in the Avon Tube Co. lot in Rochester earlier in the day, while she was at work.

Firemen Fight Two —Trailer and Owner

WILLIAMS, Ariz. (AP) — Volunteer firemen had to fight both a trailer fire and the trailer's owner.

Fireman Fred Augenstein asked W. W. Hamilton to get out of the way of firemen. Hamilton refused and socked Augenstein.

Hamilton was fined $200 for simple assault and interference with the firemen.

He also had an expensive repair bill. Fire damage to the trailer was estimated at $1,500.

Each Plan Would Cost $2 Billion More

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Each presidential candidate estimates his party's program, if adopted in full, would cost the federal government at least $2 billion to $3 billion more in the first fiscal year, says Steve Stahl, chairman of the National Taxpayers Council.

Stahl said Thursday in a statement he asked both Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate, to estimate how much additional money will be needed to carry out their campaign promises.

Stahl says the council represents taxpayer organizations in 37 states.

Vicious Viet Nam War Lord Meets His Match in Religious Phu So, Leader of Buddha Sect

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last installment in a 15-part series on international crime condensed from "Journey Into Crime," a new book by Don Whitehead, two-time Pulitzer Prize winner.)

By DON WHITEHEAD

Crime is unusually ugly and violent in many southeast Asian countries, where the struggle for life itself is violent and primitive. Too often the full story of major crimes are exposes of official corruption.

Our story is set against the background of the struggle for independence that swept southeast Asia after the surrender of Japan in 1945, the Communist move to conquer all of Viet Nam, and the emergence of South Viet Nam as a free country.

It was in this turmoil that the winning cutthroat Ba Cut terrorized villages and established himself as a war lord. But Ba Cut at last collided with a man with whom he could not make a deal.

On a stormy night in 1929, as legend has it, a 20-year-old Vietnamese youth named Hunyh Phu So awoke from a deep hypnotic sleep in the village of Hoa Hao in West Viet Nam and startled his parents and neighbors by advocating a religious philosophy which was to influence tens of thousands of his countrymen.

He announced he was an apostle of Nguyen Van Huyen, a 19th Century prophet. Word of his teachings spread through the countryside and superstitious and curious natives began to make pilgrimages to listen to the "new prophet."

Phu So, who had been taught self-hypnosis by a holy hermit, gained quite a reputation as a faith healer. Soon his admirers were calling him Buddha Vivan—the living Buddha.

Around him grew the Hoa Hao sect, estimated to have at least a million followers. By 1940, French colonial administrators began to fear he was becoming a political problem. A doctor declared him mentally unstable. The French interned him in Saigon, but the internment only made Phu So a martyr and more of a hero than ever.

When the Japanese invaded Viet Nam, they sought to use Phu So to gain support. They sent him on speaking trips around the country. But Phu So secretly sent runners ahead to the villagers to warn them not to believe the words he would speak.

At the end of 1943, Phu So eluded the Japanese and started to organize an armed force of his own to oppose both the French and the Japanese. To dramatize the creation of his army, he decided on a human sacrifice.

★ ★ ★

A terrified old beggar was led to an altar and stripped of his clothes. Then a black-garbed Hoa Hao "priest" plunged a dagger blade into his heart.

The hundreds of people who watched understood the real meaning of this pagan rite: a similar fate awaited any one who opposed the Hoa Hao.

THE THREE FINGER SIGN

Among those who sat on the river bank watching the drama was a 23-year-old peasant named Le Quong Vinh. His small eyes glittered with pleasure.

He was a soldier in the Viet-minh Communist Army, who knew nothing of Communist ideology. He was a professional fighter who found killing and looting more exciting than back-breaking work in the rice fields.

After the sacrificial ceremony, Phu So joined forces with Ho Chi-Minh, the Communist guerilla leader, and together their armies fought against the French and the Japanese.

When the great war ended in the Pacific, Phu So fell out with Ho-Chi-Minh, and their troops began fighting each other as well as the French.

Le Quong, deciding his future looked brighter with Phu So than the Communists, slipped into Phu So's headquarters.

"I wish to join your army," he told the religious leader.

Phu So said, "How am I to know you can be trusted?"

The peasant drew a dagger from his belt and with one slash cut off his left forefinger. "This is my proof of loyalty. I pledge you my body and my soul."

From that moment on, LeQuon Vinh was known as Ba Cut—Three Fingers. Phu So was so impressed he made him a squad leader.

Ba Cut was one of the most skilled fighters in the army, but he brooded over his lowly rank. His first chance for advancement came in 1947 when the Vietminh captured Phu So and, it is believed, executed him.

Soon after, Ba Cut's general made a deal with the French and brought his troops into the French camp. But Ba Cut waited for two months before he marched into French military headquarters — and only after he had made his own deal with the French commander.

During the formalities of his "honorable surrender," he was made a lieutenant.

This was in June 1947. In October, Ba Cut and his men deserted. They began to prey on the countryside as tough a little band of cutthroats as Vietnam had ever seen.

DOUBLE, DOUBLE CROSS

At this time, the French were desperately trying to keep their hold in Indochina. They were fighting the Vietminh Communist forces and also a strong nationalist movement.

In a desperate effort, they made a deal with the Binh Xuyen Society, which was nothing more than a powerful and wealthy crime syndicate.

In return for its support, they gave the society complete police power and a monopoly over underworld rights in Saigon.

Ba Cut prospered in this atmosphere of corruption, using the double cross with peasant cunning. In January, 1948, he again pledged his allegiance to the French, and was made a captain.

In May, he deserted. In June he returned again and was promoted to the rank of major. In October he deserted.

In August 1950 he returned to the French and became a lieutenant colonel. And then he betrayed them again. The enragd French sent an armed column in pursuit, but the Hoa Hao guerillas cut it down.

When he rallied to the government's side for the last time in 1953, he brought 3,000 men with him. This time the puppet ex-Emperor personally bestowed on Ba Cut the rank of major general.

His men admired him not only because he had outsmarted and outfought the French but because he had made the Emperor look a fool.

For almost a year, Ba Cut remained with the French army while his troops were epuipped with American-made rifles, machine guns, mortars, trucks and jeeps, supplied from the American military program.

★ ★ ★

But after the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu and the partition of Viet Nam, giving the Communists control of North Viet Nam, Ba Cut ordered his men to return to the jungles.

They slipped away to the area he regarded as his domain, where he was a virtual king. The peasant had at last achieved the pinnacle he had dreamed of.

Once Ba Cut came back to Saigon. Walking the streets, he saw a 19-year-old girl whose beauty made his heart pound. He went directly to her father and paid the old man 500,000 piasters for permission to marry her. When she learned of the bargain, she was horrified.

★ ★ ★

But she could not bring herself to disobey her father. She and Ba Cut were married and she followed him into hiding. A few months later a friend implored her to return to Saigon—but she refused.

"I'm happy," she said, "because I am in love."

In the political upheavals that shook Viet Nam after the Communists won control of North Vietnam, the puppet emperor was ousted, and South Viet Nam proclaimed a republic. Ngo Dinh Diem was elected president.

THE RIGHTEOUS ONE

Diem was incorruptible. He knew if South Vtet Nam was to be truly independent there could not be a state within a state such as the Binh Xuyen Society. He ordered his army against the society, and in a short, vicious war the gangsters' army was defeated.

In the summer of 1955, he decided to move against Ba Cut. His army waded through rice paddies, cut their way through the jungles, and maintained steady pressure on the guerillas.

At the end of 25 days, the army was destroyed, although Ba Cut escaped.

Six months later, Ba Cut sent an emissary to Saigon. With brazen insolence, he offered to support Diem on condition he retain his rank of general and control over the provinces where he had built his empire.

President Diem retorted by ordering the beginning of "Operation Ba Cut." Ba Cut and 11 of his aides traveled in sampans along the streams and canals, working their way toward the mountains.

At Chac Ca Cao, where Ba Cut planned to get food, a squad of Nationalist soldiers was hiding. They opened fire. Finally, Ba Cut and his men threw up their hands in surrender.

Ba Cut was sentenced to death for armed rebellion, treason, kidnaping and murder. At dawn on July 13, 1956, he was led to a cemetery on the bank of the muddy Cantho River where a guillotine had been set up.

He died only a short distance from the spot where he had sat almost 12 years earlier and watched with pleasure as a dagger was plunged into the heart of an old beggar.

President Undramatic in Peace Quest— While Waiting for Communist Fumbles

(Last of Three Dispatches)

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — More than anything else, President Dwight D. Eisenhower wants to go down in history as a man who helped bring lasting peace.

He has gone about this in typical Eisenhower fashion.

He has not set himself up as the crusading leader of the Free World. He hasn't developed a Marshall Plan, a NATO, a Point Four program. He has not created any dramatic programs.

Some say this has been good. Critics say it has left the West without leadership at a crucial time, allowing the Communists to take the initiative.

But good or bad, President Eisenhower has tried, in his own way, to create stability and what he conceives of as a climate of world peace. He has done a little thing here, a little there.

Certainly he has not used well some of the tools at hand for influencing men's minds — space, science and quick, dramatic aid. The Russians have stolen marches in these lines. There have been charges that for all the money spent, the aid programs were pedestrian, bureaucratic, sometimes inclined to cause resentment abroad.

RELIES ON EXAMPLE

Mainly, Mr. Eisenhower has tried to set a personal example. He believes that if he as president, and the United States as a whole, try to show the way, the world will follow.

These have been his examples:

Stopping our allies, Britain, France and Israel, when they advanced into Egypt.

Moving into Lebanon when it was threatened from without. And then getting out.

★ ★ ★

Sharing fissionable materials in a United Nations organization rather than under U.S. management.

Refusing to intervene militarily in Cuba or the Congo.

Inviting Nikita Khrushchev to visit the U.S.

Refusing to answer in kind Khrushchev's provocative, warlike statements.

It has been an old-fashioned, cowboy movie type of foreign policy. The "hero" is good, very good. Finally his goodness is apparent to everybody. The "villian," however attractive and successful he may be at the beginning, and however devious and hidden are his deeds, finally shows his true colors and his real nature becomes apparent to everyone.

★ ★ ★

So Mr. Eisenhower has personally done his best to act correctly and honestly. Then he has waited for Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung to make mistakes.

★ ★ ★

And they have made them— along the Indo-China border in Hungary, East Germany, Tibet, the Congo, the United Nations.

But Khrushchev has begun a counterattack. He has started a systematic program to destroy Eisenhower's honesty and purity in the eyes of the world.

★ ★ ★

He used the U2 incident as a chance to yell "dirty play." He used Castro in Cuba to paint Eisenhower as a big, rich man picking on a poor, little nation of Cubans. He stirred his agents in Japan to picture Eisenhower as a wicked man forcing the Japanese to let the U.S. use Japan as a base for our warplanes.

Khrushchev apparently is trying to destroy the concept of President Eisenhower as a good man and thus kill off whatever the president's gains have been.

With this kind of attack mounted against him, how far has President Eisenhower gotten with his policy? How far in uniting the Free World and in winning wavering neutrals?

POINT IS DEBATABLE

There are arguments on both sides.

★ ★ ★

Eisenhower's policy seems to be paying off in India, Argentina, and, partially, in the United Arab Republic.

★ ★ ★

There's a question whether it works in Indonesia. It certainly has not paid off in Cuba and Hungary. Certainly it hasn't worked very well in Iraq to date.

It may end up promoting a politically and economically united Western Europe. But it may not provide the push for Western Europe to arm itself to the extent many think necessary.

It has kept the loyalty of Japan, Turkey, Iran, Greece, Pakistan, the bulk of Latin America and much of Southeast Asia. It's not clear yet whether it has paid off in Africa.

★ ★ ★

These are the pros and cons of Dwight Eisenhower's balance sheet in the 70th year of his life and in his eighth year as President.

CALM VS. STORM — President Eisenhower, shown here as he appeared with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at Camp David in September 1959, is undramatic in his approach to peace. Nikita, on the other hand, is given to pounding desks, waving shoes and insulting delegates in his effort to dominate the world.

Russian Ship Unloads Rice Delivery to Cuba

HAVANA (AP)— The Soviet freighter Ivan Sechenov is unloading 3,750 tons of rice in Havana. Cuba formerly imported rice from the United States to augment its small production. The Agrarian Reform Institute said last year Cuba would have a surplus for export by the end of 1960.

The world's proved petroleum reserves total about 60 billion barrels of which more than 20 billion barrels are in the United States.

Area Committee Eyes Jet Effect

Group to Develop Rules Governing Land Around Airports

Waterford Township clerk James E. Seeterlin has been appointed chairman of an advisory committee to develop a set of rules governing land conditions around airports using jets.

Nine officials from Wayne and Oakland counties make up the advisory committee, which will attempt to determine the accoustical and vibration levels created by jet and aircraft operations.

The committee will determine which areas surrounding an airport are mostly adversely affected and make a report on the potential development of the affected areas.

The group will also study specialized zoning techniques that may be needed to solve peculiar problems arising out of the combination of land uses and jet airport operations.

At the conclusion of the compilation of the report, recommendations will be published and distributed to airport officials that will have or do have jet dirplane service.

A two-year demonstration program will then get underway at the Wayne County Airport and results of the project will be used as an example for all future jet airports in the United States.

At the present time the Pontiac City Airport does not have regular jet operations, but with the expansion program now in effect, and the fact that smaller jet planes are being manufactured, airport officials say there may be jet service established here in the near future.

Steam-Threshing Machine Sports Odd Ancestry

PONTIAC, Ill. (AP) — The old-fashioned steam threshing machine that Floyd Kenyon and his son, Franklin, displayed at the annual Central State Threshermen's Reunion was a machine from many parts.

The boiler came from a Canadian model Port Huron engine. The double cylinder engine was salvaged from a steam shovel. The flywheel came from an old hay baler.

The whistle came from Eureka College where it once announced opening of school each morning. A second whistle is a retired village fire siren.

N-Ban Conferees Agree on Member Privileges

GENEVA (AP) — The nuclear test ban conference took a small step forward today on a treaty by agreeing that members of a global test control system would have the same privileges and immunities as United Nations officials. But chief Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin made it clear the British, Americans and Soviets are still deadlocked on a research program to improve detection of sneak atomic explosions.

why your electric laundry needs a flameless

ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

HOTTER WATER AND PLENTY OF IT.

Laundry experts and fabric manufacturers agree that for most fabrics "the hotter the water, the cleaner the wash." An electric water heater goes on and on delivering really hot water without danger of burning out. Team it with your automatic washer and electric dryer for the brightest, cleanest laundry possible.

INSTALL IT WHERE YOU WANT IT.

Put it next to your washer for greatest economy of hot water. Because it's electric, there's no flame. No flue is needed to vent fumes. And heavy insulation all around keeps the outside shell cool to the touch, top to bottom. It's the safest water heater you can own.

OPERATING COSTS ARE AMAZINGLY LOW.

For less than 15¢ a day (estimated operating cost for the 50-gallon size) you can have hot water for all your needs —laundry, baths, dishes. The popular 50-gallon size supplies 8 out of 10 families. Prices begin at $99.95.

They're so compact, so good looking, you'll want one right next to your washer. Many homemakers have their electric laundry handy in the kitchen, and a tabletop water heater fits in beautifully. It's great near your sink or dishwasher, too.

CUBAN RECUPERATES — Cuban Consul Abelardo Leon Blanco is shown at a Miami, Fla., hospital being checked and questioned after his government's consulate offices were attacked by 30 Cuban exiles, Thursday. The attackers wrecked the interior of the offices. Blanco's condition was described as "fair." A number of passport forms were taken from the offices which would be invaluable in aiding other Cubans to escape their native country.

U. of M. Honor Students Offer Note-Taking Service

ANN ARBOR (UPI)—A small group of ambitious honor students at the University of Michigan has started a note-taking classroom service which permits subscribers to cut classes.

Four honor students joined forces to establish the University Study Service.

They take detailed notes in nine different courses and sell the notes to subscribers for $10 a semester.

The honor students said Thursday nearly 200 students have already subscribed to the service.

Dean Roger M. Heyns of the literary college said he knows of no reason why the honor students shouldn't proceed with their plan, but he pointed out that the notes provided to subscribers "cannot possibly substitute for one's own study notes."

The honor students divided up the nine courses on which they provide notes so that two attend each of the classes.

Their notes are turned over to three fellow students for preliminary editing and the final editing is done by the honor students.

To drum up business, the honor students distributed free copies of notes from classes held last week.

They set up booths around the campus yesterday to accept subscriptions.

Students who subscribe to three or more courses receive a reduced rate of $8 per course. A trial plan is also offered — four weeks for $5 with an option to renew for the final seven weeks for $7.

Prof. Frederick Smith of the zoology department was skeptical of the plan.

* * *

"I don't think this thing is going to last very long," he said. "It has happened every two or three years previously."

Smith said past results were always the same. Students cut classes, showed up for examinations and habitually wound up flunking the course.

Test Garden Knowledge

How well do you know your gardening? Take this little quiz and check yourself. This is the fifth in the series.

INSTRUCTIONS:

Underline all answers you feel to be COMPLETELY TRUE. Do not mark those you think are IN ANY WAY FALSE.

HOUSE PLANTS:

1. Most house plants do best in a night temperature of: 40 degrees; 85 degrees; 50 to 60 degrees; 90 degrees; 70 degrees.

2. Plants should be watered: Every day; weekly; evenings; semi-weekly; when needed.

3. Plants that normally bloom in winter indoors are: African violet; aspidistra; poinsettia; orchid cactus; bird of paradise; Norfolk Island pine.

4. All house plants like: Lots of sun; moist atmosphere; giberellin; radiator nearby.

5. Feeding may be done: From below; at planting; on top of soil; through leaves.

CUT FLOWERS:

6. For best results arrange flowers: In brass; deep vases; glass; ceramics only; shallow bowl; anything that holds water.

7. After picking, flowers should be: Covered with water; frozen; put in a cool place; kept from heat; kept from draughts.

8. The best time to select flowers such as roses for indoor use is: Dawn; noon; late afternoon; night.

9. Soft-stemmed flowers are best picked by: Scissors; knife; machete; broken by hands.

10. Which of the following are really useful in prolonging the life of cut flowers: Sugar; aspirin; copper penny; new chemical preparations; salt; copper napthenate.

PROPAGATION:

11. African violets may be multiplied by: Seeds; rooting leaves; division; tubers.

12. The following plants are generally propagated by bulbs or corms: Perennial phlox; poinsettias; gladiolus; scarlet verbenas; scillas; Dutch iris; petunias; hardy cyclamen.

13. Bearded iris are increased by: Tubers; rhizomes; bulbs; offsets; stolons.

14. To germinate most seeds need: Moisture; high heat; light; a little warmth.

15. Camellias may be increased by: Layering; grafting; air layers; cuttings; stolons.

PRUNING:

16. Pruning is practiced for the purpose of: Training growth; thinning; reducing fruit crop; enlarging of fruiting wood; removing damaged portions.

17. When cutting back roses in spring cut the weaker stems back: More than the strong ones; less than the strong ones.

18. Trees often pruned by cutting back the lead shoot are: Peaches; dwarf pears; date palms; plums; spruces; Joshua tree.

19. Trees often pruned in summer to avoid excess bleeding are: Pinyon pine; maples; albizzia; European larch.

20. The following are normally cut in late spring or summer: Rose of Sharon; lilac; azalea; crape myrtle; bridal wreath; hypericum.

ANSWERS:

1. 50 to 60 degrees
2. When needed
3. African violets, poinsettia, bird of paradise
4. None
5. All
6. Anything that holds water
7. Put in a cool place, kept from heat, kept from draughts
8. Late afternoon
9. Knife
10. New chemical preparations
11. Seeds, rooting leaves, division
12. Gladiolus, scillas, Dutch iris, hardy cyclamen
13. Rhizomes
14. Moisture, a little warmth
15. Layering, grafting, air layers, cuttings
16. Training growth, thinning, reducing fruit crop, enlarging of fruiting wood, removing damaged portions
17. More than the strong ones
18. Peaches, dwarf pears, plums
19. Maples
20. Lilac, azalea, bridal wreath

SEEDING PLAN — Woking, Surrey, England: Seeding is believing for pretty Mrs. Yvonne Colton, framed by slender stalks topped by leek seed pods at Woking, England. Mrs. Colton was admiring the full-blooming leek seeds at the Fogwills Trial Grounds.

Wintering Geraniums

Yes, it's true what they say about geraniums. You can shake the soil from their roots, hang them upside down in a cool part of the attic or cellar and, come spring, put them in the garden again for another period of bloom. However, if they are potted up, they'll bloom in a sunny window during the fall months.

Fall's the Time to Put Garden Tools in Order

Garden tools don't grow on trees —and neither does the cash with which to purchase them. Thus it is essential to take good care of the tools you have.

About this time of the year, you've probably stacked most of your spades, hoes, cultivators, trowels and the like. The lawnmower is over in a corner of the garage. About the only tool that's in use is the rake for leaves, and perhaps the wheelbarrow.

This coming weekend, take a look at those garden tools. Are they full of caked earth, rusty all around, and perhaps a split handle here and there?

Why not put them to bed for the winter clean and oiled, so they'll be bright and serviceable come Spring?

The first step is to wash off all of the caked earth from your digging tools, hoes and the like. Get the metal parts as clean as a well-scrubbed kitchen pot.

Then take a rag soaked in some linseed oil, and give the metal parts a rubdown. This will provide a protective coating against rust and will prevent rapid deterioration.

Check the wooden handles. If they are sound, wipe them too with the linseed cloth to keep the wood from rotting.

Store the tools in a clean, dry place, such as an unused corner of the cellar or in the rafters of the garage, with a few planks beneath to hold them.

If handles need replacing, drop by the hardware store and pick up your needs, replacing them now. There's so much to do in the spring, that a little delay to repair or replace a tool on a bright morning brings a frustrated feeling.

The lawn mower is an expensive piece of equipment, be it hand or power. After a long summer and fall of usage, the blades probably need sharpening and resetting.

There's never a waiting list for this service in the fall...or early winter. Get your mower serviced, oiled and coated with protective oil. When you return it to the storage place at home, cover it well to keep dust from filtering into the mowing parts.

If your hedge clippers have dulled from usage, or the pruning shears need sharpening, get it done now.

And while you're at it, how about making a tour of the neighborhood to collect all the tools that were borrowed from you during the growing season?

If you're saving for a rainy day, the chores of preparing your tools is a good rainy day chore, and the results will help boost your financial rainy day efforts.

Now Is Time to Destroy Japanese Beetle Grubs

The destructive Japanese beetle, a pest familiar to most gardeners in states east of the Mississippi, can now be effectively controlled. Discovered as a result of intensive research by U.S. Dept. of Agriculture scientists, Milky Disease Spore Powder, a practical microbial insect powder, attacks and kills the grubs from which the beetles emerge to carry on their vicious destructive activities.

Fruit trees, especially peach and plum, as well as roses and other decorative plants, are their chief targets. Harmless to beneficial insects, humans, pets or plants, these milky disease spores do not upset the balance of nature.

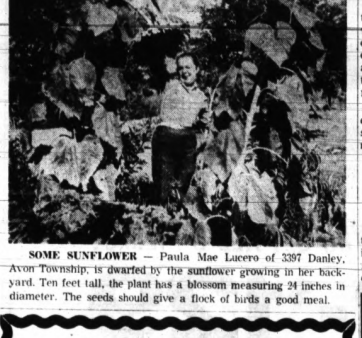
Now commercially manufactured under USDA license, DOOM for Japanese Beetle Grubs is easy to use. It comes in white powder form and may be applied to lawns or grounds with a spoon at any time of the year except when the ground is frozen. Early fall is really the best time, for DOOM is then able to infect the newly-hatched grubs, during the weakest link in their life, causing them to die.

Each grub of the Japanese beetle that dies leaves sometimes a billion or more of the living spores of the disease producing organism in the soil, thereby establishing another fatal focus of the disease to infect and kill succeeding generations year after year. It is thus a one-shot, self-perpetuating control.

First discovered in New Jersey in 1916, Japanese beetles have since spread so that they now infest wide areas in the eastern and midwest states. Eggs laid by the intruders during the summer months hatch into grubs during August and September. These grubs feed on grass roots near the soil surface for about ten months, often completely destroying lawns. The following June the grubs pupate and adult beetles emerge to begin their destructive attacks.

The adult Japanese beetle is easy to recognize — it is about the size of a little finger nail and having an iridescent green color all over, except the wings, which are bronze. It has twelve tiny tufts of hair around the edges of the wings — the only beetle in the United States having this characteristic.

Japanese beetles have been discovered feeding on 274 different plants but, in its native Japan, it is not a pest.



SOME SUNFLOWER — Paula Mae Lucero of 3397 Danley, Avon Township, is dwarfed by the sunflower growing in her backyard. Ten feet tall, the plant has a blossom measuring 24 inches in diameter. The seeds should give a flock of birds a good meal.

Get Together to Plant Trees

So says M. W. Staples, field supervisor of the Davey Tree Expert Co., who points out too many mushrooming areas are planting the wrong kinds of trees and overplanting as well. This is apt to hurt not only civic pride but the community exchequer, as well.

For more eye appeal and less financial strain, a five-point program is suggested:

1. Organize a civic group to draft a planting and maintenance program. If a professional tree man or landscape architect from your own group isn't available to serve as an advisor, contact the state's department of forestry or that of the local public utility.

2. Demand that building developers provide roads 60 feet wide to accommodate the utilities lines that compete with trees for ground space.

3. Take advantage of the smaller types of trees for planting in areas where conflict with utility wires is anticipated. There are special semi-dwarf varieties of maples, flowering cherries and apples, ash, magnolias and others not too well known by the average home owner.

4. For safety's sake, insist upon authority to remove hazardous trees and to prune to facilitate vehicular and pedestrian traffic.

5. Develop an annual program for removals, planting, spraying, pruning, feeding and maintaining the trees.

Test Soil Now for Better Spring Start

CHICAGO — Testing your soil is like checking your gas gauge before starting on an auto trip, says Dr. Paul Carson, South Dakota State College agronomist.

Farmers who take soil samples from their fields this fall and have them processed by the testing laboratory, are actually checking their land to see how much "fuel" or fertilizer they will need for next season's crops, according to Dr. Carson.

"Fall is an ideal time to collect soil samples," he says in a statement summarized by the National Plant Food Institute. "Farmers who act now will have the jump on those who wait until spring."

Dr. Leo Walsh, University of Wisconsin extension soils specialist, lists two very good reasons for testing soils this fall.

"First, lime should be spread in the fall—and the only way to know how much lime to apply is to get a soil test," he reports. "Second, it's easier to get a good representative soils sample in the fall than in the spring.

"In fall, the soil is usually drier and much easier to handle. A better composite sample for testing usually results from fall sampling."

Slow Move Indoors

House plants, which have enjoyed a summer's vacation outdoors, should be moved by degrees back inside. First they go from the garden to a shaded porch area and finally back into the sunny window. It's a good time to repot some of those which have overgrown their containers—but check the reference books on growth habits before trying to stimulate them into continued growth or new bloom.

Keep Grass Mowed

Do not fail to mow the lawn as long as the grass continues growing. It will be very difficult to handle next spring if it is matted down. So mow regularly at a height of one and a half to two inches—until Jack Frost arrives.

Introduce Fall Color With Various Shrubs

EAST LANSING — Nature's magic will soon begin to paint Michigan's forests the brilliant reds, golden yellows and bronzes of autumn. The colors have been present in plant foliage throughout the growing season, but it takes the coming of the winter period of dormancy to bring the colors out.

Jack Frost often gets credit for coloring the leaves, but the color change would take place whether there have been frosts or not, said Professor Clarence E. Lewis of Michigan State University's horticulture department.

During the summer, green chlorophyllin masks the other pigments present in the leaves so that they can't be seen. In the fall, when the plants slow down production of chlorophyllin, the other colors in the foliage show through, he explained.

Home gardeners can bring some of nature's color magic into the yard by their selection of trees and shrubs for the garden. There are a variety of shrubs available to Michigan gardeners that produce colored foliage and fruit in the fall.

An ornamental shrub can extend garden color into the late fall and even into the winter. Some shrubs retain their fruit into the winter, adding color to otherwise stark black, gray and white winter scenes in the yard.

The Japanese barberry is a common Michigan shrub that has fall foliage of shades of red and retains its bright red berries through the winter. It is one of the most versatile shrubs and is probably used more than any other.

Another barberry that has good fall color is the Mentor barberry. It has a good green color in the summer which turns bronze-red in the late fall.

The cotoneasters make up another group of shrubs that have attractive red foliage and berries in the fall. The Spreading Cotoneaster, the Rock cotoneaster and Early cotoneaster produce red berries and foliage in the fall, Lewis said.

Cotoneasters range in height from low bushes to nearly 20 feet. They like the wind and sun and thrive when exposed to the elements.

Witchhazel can provide variety in a garden with its golden yellow fall foliage. It is best used as a background shrub or in large scale plantings because of its height. It occasionally grows to be about 20 feet high in Michigan.

The Common Witchhazel produces yellow flowers that appear in October even after the leaves have fallen. The flower petals are narrow ribbons that open and close with weather changes. It grows best in sandy or gravelly soils in partial shade.

Dig Tender Bulbs

Have all tender bulbs dug before frost comes — cannas, caladiums, tuberous-rooted begonias to mention a few — label and store in a cool place. Look out for mice. Amaryllis should be brought inside after a light frost, permitted to dry until foliage can be cut away, then stored in pots in a cool dark place, watering every three weeks.

OK to Prune Maples

Maple trees which need pruning can be safely worked over for the next couple of months. After that they are progressively less dormant and will lose sap from the wounds.

A group of shrubs known as euonymus is valued for its red fall foliage. The foliage of most of this species turns shades of red and purple in the fall. The Dwarf winged euonymus and the Winged euonymus have brilliant red fall leaves, Lewis said.

But Only in Non-Soviet 'Colonies'

Red Proposal Covers 40 Million

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —There are an estimated 40 million persons living in more than 100 colonies, protectorates, trust territories or enclaves who would come under a Soviet resolution before the General Assembly today for independence "everywhere forthwith."

* * *

The West also would count the 110 million living in the "peoples' Socialist republics" of Communist East Europe, but Russia does not.

The non-self-governing or dependent areas in question range from wind-swept atolls less than one mile square to great land masses rivaling the size of Alaska.

Their populations vary from less than a score to close to those of New Jersey, Ohio or California. Some are cosmopolitan. Many are stone-age primitive.

PURPOSELY VAGUE

But upon its endorsement by the General Assembly the Communists and more militant neutrals would have a good point for demanding that the United States immediately give up the strategic bastions of Okinawa and Guam and possibly the Panama Canal Zone.

All three, acquired through World War II, purchase and treaty, respectively, are administered by nonelected officials assigned by the Pentagon or Interior Department.

* * *

Britain quite likely would be pressed to abandon Hong Kong, its crown colony and strategic port on the China mainland, as well as Gibraltor, its free world safety lock on the Mediterranean.

Denmark could be asked to grant "freedom" to Greenland, site of a key U.S. Strategic Air Command bomber base.

The independence roll call, if some U.N. members wanted to press a point, also could include the American-administered Virgin Islands in the Atlantic and Marshall and Mariana Islands in the Pacific; British-run Bermuda and British Honduras; and the lush resorts in the French and Dutch West Indies.

X ray inspection of grain is sometimes used to find hidden insect infestation.

Slight Price Hikes Revealed by AMC

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. announced prices will be slightly higher than current models for its 1961 Rambler American series but slightly lower for the Rambler Ambassador series.

* * *

Roy Abernethy, vice president of distribution and marketing, said the American two-door sedan, lowest priced car in the Rambler line, will be $1,845 or $50 higher than its 1960 counterpart.

The American station wagon price will be $2,080 or $60 above the comparable 1960 model. The new American convertible will sell for $2,369 with standard equipment.

The Ambassador V-8 prices have been reduced $40 to $50 with the four-door sedan listing at $2,357.

Rambler Classic six-cylinder prices are unchanged in the super series, except for a $10 increase in the station wagon price, and prices have been increased $30 to $40 in the Classic Custom series.

Scripps-Howard Press Backs Nixon and Lodge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Scripps-Howard newspapers today endorsed the Republican ticket of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Y-Teen Clubs in Pontiac Locality Busy on Roll Call

Pontiac Press Photos

Packing the red hots that they sell at the football games are Pontiac Central Y-Teen members of the Young Women's Christian Association: From left, Candy Luchenbach of Willard Street, Cinda Nurek of Michigan Avenue and Kay Evans of Willard Street. Proceeds of their sales finance the club's numerous service projects.

The annual Y-Teen Roll Call this week is having the response of 6,000 clubs throughout the United States and Canada. Among the groups enrolling members are the eight clubs in junior and senior high schools in the Pontiac area.

★ ★ ★

Theme for the week was "Discover with others—join the Y-Teens." Local accent was on enrolling members in the adult program of the Young Women's Christian Association.

★ ★ ★

Working with teen-agers since 1881 with the founding of the first Little Girls' Christian Association in Oakland, Calif., the YWCA provides teen-agers the opportunity of working democratically with adults in developing programs.

Service projects rate high on the list of activities of the girls according to Mrs. Judith Hewett, acting teen-age program director. Projects range from serving at banquets to establishing a scholarship financed by the girls' candy sale.

★ ★ ★

Visiting elderly residents of nursing homes, filling Thanksgiving food baskets and Easter "fun baskets' keep the 400 local girls busy.

★ ★ ★

With units at Pontiac Central, Waterford, Clarkston, Avondale and Lake Orion High Schools, the Y-Teens are operating in a broad geographical range. Clubs are also active at Washington, Jefferson and Madison Junior High schools.

Service project this year for many Y-Teen clubs is a "get out the vote" drive. Placing posters in strategic spots are (from left) Sharon Spurlock of the Waterford club; Carole Gorkie of East Mansfield Street, a Madison Junior High Y-Teener; and Pat Platz of the Waterford club. They are among members of 6000 clubs throughout the country observing annual Y-Teen Roll Call, a membership campaign.

Abby Tells Worried Parents:

It's Their Problem... Not Yours!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We gave our daughter consent to be married and now we are sorry. Her husband is nothing but a kid himself, and they are not getting along. She is home with us now and wants to divorce him, but his parents are trying to talk her into going back to him. We don't know what to do. We found out after she married this boy that he had been in a mental hospital. His parents never mentioned this to us before he married our daughter.

ABBY

I think they were trying to get rid of him. There are no children involved. Should we try to convince her to go back to him and stay married, or not? She is 16 and he is 19.

TROUBLED PARENTS

★ ★ ★

DEAR PARENTS: You gave your consent to this marriage, now it's up to the married couple. They should talk to their clergyman or a marriage counselor. If he feels the marriage is hopeless, perhaps an annulment is in order. All the parents should stay out of it.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I have over $3,000 in Confederate money. I understand it's worth something. Where do I find out how much?

FROM GEORGIA

DEAR FROM GEORGIA: Write to Office of the Director, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Treasury Department, Washington 25, D. C. — but in the meantime don't try to buy anything with it.

MILKMAN'S LAMENTS

DEAR ABBY: I am a milkman's wife with three major complaints. I hope you print this because other milkmen's wives have told me they feel the same way.

(1) Women who ask the milkman to put the milk right in the refrigerators. This is time consuming. Don't they know all dairies have milk boxes for the asking that would keep the milk ice cold until removed?

(2) Women who walk around their kitchens dressed as if they thought a mechanical man delivered the milk.

(3) Women who run up bills and act insulted if asked to pay.

"FEELS BETTER"

DEAR ABBY: We've lived in this apartment four years. The landlady is very nice to our faces but she is robbing us blind. She used my hot water until I put a lock on it.

My son threw a ball in the basement window and when I went to get it, I saw her machine plugged into my socket. She has a key to my locker and I know she has helped herself to my canned goods and my husband's liquor. Don't tell me to "talk to her" because she'd deny everything. And don't tell me to move because my kids like living across the street from their school, and my husband is within walking distance from work.

ROBBED BLIND

DEAR ROBBED: Put new locks on everything you can. Check frequently and let the landlady know that you know what has disappeared in the past.

Complete Plans for Ingathering

Pretend You're Home When Out in Public

By RUTH MILLETT

In a recent interview the executive housekeeper of a large hotel said wistfully:

"I wish more people would pretend that they are at home when they stay in a hotel."

She had in mind, I'm sure, the people who burn holes in carpets and furniture with cigarettes, who use towels to polish their shoes, who let a TV set blast out late at night, who scorch bedspreads using a bed for an ironing board and so on.

But her formula for a considerate hotel guest, pretending that one is at home when one is away from home, applies to behavior in all kinds of public places and even in the houses of one's friends.

Because so few seem to make a habit of pretending they are at home when they are away from home, restrooms are often filthy; highways and parks and camping spots are made ugly by litterbugs; fires are started by careless vacationers; dresses tried on by careless shoppers are often smeared with lipstick, and cigarettes are stamped out on any kind of floor in public buildings.

We are shocked that so many of today's children and teenagers seem to have so little respect for the property of others.

But what can we really expect when so many adults take no pride at all in protecting property that doesn't belong to them.

* * *

If adults remembered to "pretend they are at home when they are away from home" and taught that standard to their children, we could cut down on useless waste and destruction and unsightly clutter.

And we would have a working formula for behaving like ladies and gentlemen wherever we are.

GM Girls Open the Fall Season

The General Motors Girls' Club of Pontiac opened the fall season at a dinner Monday in the Kingsley Inn, with 119 members present. Mrs. Margaret Mitchell gave the invocation.

Dr. Norman D. Smith of Holly, a dentist, gave an illustrated lecture on grapho-analysis.

Mrs. Jean Poos, president of the Detroit Club and Mary Jo Gabriels, past president, were guests.

Mrs. O. L. Brookshear, dinner chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Donald DeLong and Mrs. Joy Johnson.

Member employes of the Fisher Body Division will be in charge of the mid-November business meeting.

Fashion Your Figure Club members met at Adah Shelly Library Thursday evening to rehearse for their yearly fashion show.

* *

October in the Hills

By RUTH SAUNDERS

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — A typical October weekend has been planned in the Hills which will occupy residents in several ways.

Cranbrook School's traditional Homecoming will include a football game followed by tea for alums. Kingswood School will present its annual Autumn Festival in the evening.

The Michigan - Northwestern game will attract several groups of friends who will probably picnic en route to Ann Arbor.

One group will include the J.A. Frosts Jr., and their brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs. Mark Jung, graduates of Northwestern. The Jungs will be hosts at dinner after the game in their home in Yosemite Avenue.

Their other guests will be Mr. and Mrs. John W. Drummond and Mr. and Mrs. James DuBois.

Also going to Ann Arbor will be Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mills whose guests at dinner Saturday following the game will be Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Dr. and Mrs. James Barrett.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. James O. Wright flew to Paris Tuesday where they will stay at the Bristol Hotel during the Paris Automobile Show. They will go to London for a stay at Grosvenor House before returning home.

Mrs. Otis T. Gregg of Hackensack, N.J. will come next Tuesday for a visit with Mrs. Ralph L. Polk of Lone Pine Road.

The two met on a world cruise and will spend a day with Detroit friends who were on the same trip.

In Bloomfield Mr. and Mrs. John H. Fitch will be hosts at dinner one evening. Mrs. Albert L. LeGro will give a luncheon Oct. 22 and Mrs. Polk has planned a buffet supper party for her guest on the 23rd.

* * *

St. Dunstan's Guild is in rehearsal for its opening play, "The Girls in 509," which will be presented Oct. 28, 29 and Nov. 3, 4 and 5.

The Nov. 3 performance is a benefit for the Junior Auxiliary of the Village Woman's Club.

Opening night will be a gay formal affair with several dinner parties preceding the performance.

* * *

Among dinner hosts will be Mrs. Weslau Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Bawden and James Schneider.

CHAMPAGNE PARTY

The Robert Raisches are entertaining and after the Oct. 28 show Mr. and Mrs. James Crabb Jr. will give a champagne party honoring Mrs. John Warner and Mrs. Martin H. Strandbargh, members of the cast.

* * *

Mrs. George A. Bee will arrive home Saturday from three weeks in Europe.

Willing Workers Elect Officers

The Ladies Willing Workers' Band of the East Pike Church of God elected officers Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Estel Moore of Ottawa Drive.

Serving with Mrs. Lawrence Bragg, president, will be Mrs. Moore, vice president; and Mrs. Robert King, secretary-treasurer.

Suggestions for new projects from the 26 members present were submitted.

Extensionists Eye Time and Energy

Mrs. H. D. Nicholie and Mrs. Wayne M. Cook gave a lesson on "Effective Use of Time and Energy" at The Extensionists' Tuesday meeting.

Mrs. Charles Hauser of Otsego Drive was hostess.

* * *

The group will attend a Christmas workshop Oct. 28 at Clarkston High School.

Play Court Whist

The Past Noble Grands Club of Pontiac Rebekah Lodge No. 450 played court whist Tuesday in the Murphy Avenue home of Mrs. Viola Hopp.

At the Nov. 8 meeting in the home of Mrs. Fredrickh Schwark on Ludlow Street, Rochester, arrangements for a Christmas party will be made.

You Don't Have to Send Cards

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Two of my friends gave me a surprise 25th wedding anniversary luncheon at one of our fine restaurants. Quite a large group was present.

They all paid for their own lunch and also contributed toward a gift which was presented to me. At the luncheon I got up and made a short speech thanking them all and also telling them how wonderful it was to have such dear friends.

I also stood at the door as they were leaving and thanked each and everyone individually. Now, after a month there are comments going around that I should have sent each one a note of thanks.

Will you please tell me if I was wrong not to have written notes, and if so how can I rectify it.

Answer: You were not wrong. Thanking each one individually was all that was required of you.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and was wondering if it would be proper for my fiance's parents to give us a small reception after the wedding?

My parents do not approve of our marriage and therefore will not be present. Or, would it be better, under the circumstances, if my fiance and I were married very quietly?

Answer: Although it is not considered proper for the bridegroom's parents to give the wedding reception, it is not unheard of for them to do so.

Very certainly it will be better than having neither of your families standing back of you.

* *

Dear Mrs. Post: What does one do about persons who go to the funeral of a relative and who do not have cars of their own?

It is the obligation of the family of the deceased to provide transportation for them to the cemetery, or do they make arrangements with the funeral director for this themselves?

Answer: The family should provide this transportation, making any necessary arrangements with the funeral director.

Secretaries Told About Con-Con

Laura Belz, presdent of the League of Women Voters, spoke on "Constitutional Convention" before Pontioak Chapter of the National Secretaries Association International Wednesday.

Hostesses for the meeting at Devon Gables were Doris Walker and Mrs. John Duncan.

'Players' Show Set for Oct. 28

St. Dunstan's Players presentation of the Broadway hit "The Girls in 509" will open Oct. 28.

In the Broadway tradition first nighters will appear in formal gowns, tuxedos or tails, and opera hats.

★ ★ ★

Several dinner parties are planned in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area to precede the opening night performance at the theater on Lone Pine Road. Members entertaining will include Mrs. Wesslau Wright, the Robert H. Scotts, L. James Schneider, the Garvin Bawdens and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Raisch.

Following the performance Mr. and Mrs. James Crabb Jr. will entertain at their home in a formal reception honoring two members of the cast, Mrs. John Warner and Mrs. Martin H. Strandbergh.

St. Dunstan's Players also will present the show on Oct. 29, Nov. 3 (a benefit performance for the Village Women's Club Junior Auxiliary) and Nov. 4 and 5.

She's Hurt by Husband

Should Gain 10 Pounds

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. "I read your column every day and am wondering if you can help me with my problem. I am 33 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weigh 140 pounds. My bust measures 37 inches, waist 28 inches and hips 40 inches. I have a large frame and feel and look skinny. My face looks haggard all the time, even though I get at least eight hours sleep.

"Is there anything I can do to improve my looks. I am so unhappy. My husband is always making nice remarks about other women and their beautiful looks and figures."

A. It is not very thoughtful of your husband to make such remarks, but perhaps he is teasing you or trying to make you jealous. Perhaps he just plain does not realize that it makes you unhappy. Don't let it "get you down." If you do so it will damage your personality and take the sparkle from your eyes. That is the last thing you need to do at this time.

Your weight would be just about correct for you if your frame were medium. Since you have a large build you are thin. Try a gain of 10 pounds. I think it will be quite becoming. Also, take hip-slimming exercises.

Q. "I am 18 years old and since I am overweight I have tried to go on a diet. Every time I start losing weight it is from my bust. How can I prevent this?"

A. When you count calories you lose weight all over, from the bust as well as from the rest of the body. Exercise can speed the loss in inches.

In your case, I suggest that you take exercises to increase the bust measurement while losing weight. If you, or any of my other readers, would like to have these exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 7. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Q. "I am wondering what can be done for nail biting. I am 30 years old and for the last six months have bitten my nails terribly. It may be because I am nervous. Maybe I smoke too much. I smoke all the time.

"I have three children under 6 years old, the youngest is 20 months old. I wish I could do something about this bad habit. I never used to have it. I feel awful about it."

A. Nail biting is usually a nervous habit. Your excessive smoking is probably also partly due to nervousness. You have a big job with the three small children. Why not cut down on your smoking and try in every way to build up your health?

I suggest that you have a manicure once a week. This will help you remember not to bite your nails because they will begin to look better and you will be ashamed to go for your next manicure if you have chewed them off again. Also there are some bitter products which can be applied to the nails which will help you avoid biting them.

The state of Maine appropriated $50,000 in 1959 to restore eight of its 10 ancient covered bridges.

This exercise will help increase bust measurement: Bend the elbows slightly. At the same time clench the fists, HARD, and turn the elbows in toward the face a little.

Needleworkers Get Together for a Brunch

The Grace Branch of Auburn Heights Needlework Guild met for brunch and a business meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. Lester Snell, president, on Auburn Road.

The branch was named in recognition of Mrs. H. H. Thatcher of Cherokee Road, honorary president, and the late Mrs. Harry Y. Fitzgerald, founders of the group.

Directors present were Mrs. Walter Mehlberg, Mrs. George Granger, Mrs. Earl Kaul, Mrs. C. L. Ralph, Mrs. Edward Miller and Mrs. Arthur Lewis.

Others attending were Mrs. William Porter, Mrs. Max Wilson, Mrs. C. V. Lamphere and Mrs. Edwin Brooks.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Oscar Bouck and Mrs. Louis Lessard were guests.

The group's annual ingathering is slated Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. in the Community Club, Auburn Heights.

Mrs. Ernest Howell of Auburn Heights is treasurer and vice president of the branch.

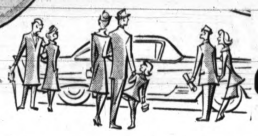
BURMEISTER'S

NORTHERN LUMBER CO.
7940 COOLEY LAKE RD. We Deliver EM 3-4171

with a MIGHTY FANFARE we announce the 1961 auto show



The Pontiac Press presents here a special, information-packed section of the newspaper devoted to the newest, the finest, the greatest array of automotive creativeness for 1961.

To more fully enjoy the National Automobile Show beginning tomorrow at Cobo Hall read the stories in this section. You can then look for and more fully appreciate the engineering, styling, and advance developments offered by the American Automobile Industry for 1961.

GMC to Display Results of Development Program

A colorful lineup of trucks, ranging from the compact GMC Junior Van to various heavy-duty highway tractors, will headline the GMC Truck & Coach Division exhibit at the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit Saturday through Oct. 23.

★ ★ ★

Besides six display trucks, the GMC space in the southwest portion of Cobo Hall will feature a new GM transit coach, the world's largest portable color transparency and seven supporting transparencies, and four show engines.

CALVIN J. WERNER

Calvin J. Werner, vice president of General Motors and general manager of GMC Truck & Coach, said the exhibit will feature the results of GMC's vast product development program.

"We are proud to display in the National Automobile Show a representative segment of the most advanced line of trucks ever developed by our Division," he said.

"Visitors will see our exclusive V-6 engines and other design and engineering concepts that add a new dimension of dependability and efficiency to motor truck transport."

★ ★ ★

JUNIOR VAN THE SMALLEST

The smallest display model will be the Junior Van, a unit shorter than American-made compact cars yet having the bulk load capacity of a one-ton stake truck.

★ ★ ★

At the other end of the scale will be the DF7105. Powered by a V-8 diesel engine (8V-71) developing 236 gross horsepower, this highway tractor has a gross combination weight rating of 76,800 pounds compared with the Junior Van's 7,500-pound rating.

★ ★ ★

Glamour in sleek styling is designed into the GM transit coach (Model TDH-5301) that will be shown. It seats 53 passengers and gives them a better view through increased use of glass. Total glass area is 93 per cent greater than in former models.

Other coach features include a new heating and ventilating system, fluorescent lighting, improved air suspension, a hydraulic shifting V-drive and V-6 diesel engine power.

Powerplants similar to those running many of the show trucks will be displayed separately.

★ ★ ★

Heading the engine exhibit will be a 702 cubic-inch gasoline V-12, the first of its kind in the trucking industry. Complementing the V-12 display will be an animated cutaway 401 cubic-inch V-6, and two other show engines.

★ ★ ★

While going through a complete cycle, every moving part of the 401 V-6 is activated and highly visible to onlookers. It fully dramatizes the exclusive V-6 principle of GMC's gasoline engine line.

★ ★ ★

The photographic display features a giant 6x20-foot backlighted transparency depicting a typical truck scene. Pictured is a heavy-duty GMC truck at Inspiration Point in Yosemite National Park in California.

The seven supporting backlighted transparencies show GMC trucks in typical vocational applications, with emphasis placed on interesting and colorful trucking operations.

Improved Brakes Key to Safety

Good brakes, which assumed a leading role in highway safety when the internal combustion engine replaced the horse, have become increasingly important as the measure of U.S. motor travel has soared from thousands to millions, and now to billions of miles a year.

Modern four - wheel hydraulic brakes, many of them power-assisted, permit safe highway movement under conditions in which the brakes of 1910 would be an intolerable hazard.

Early brakes used external contracting brake shoes. Open to water, oil dripping and grit, both linings and drums wore rapidly. Worn linings often left exposed rivet heads to gouge deep grooves into brake drums, which then had to be machined smooth or replaced.

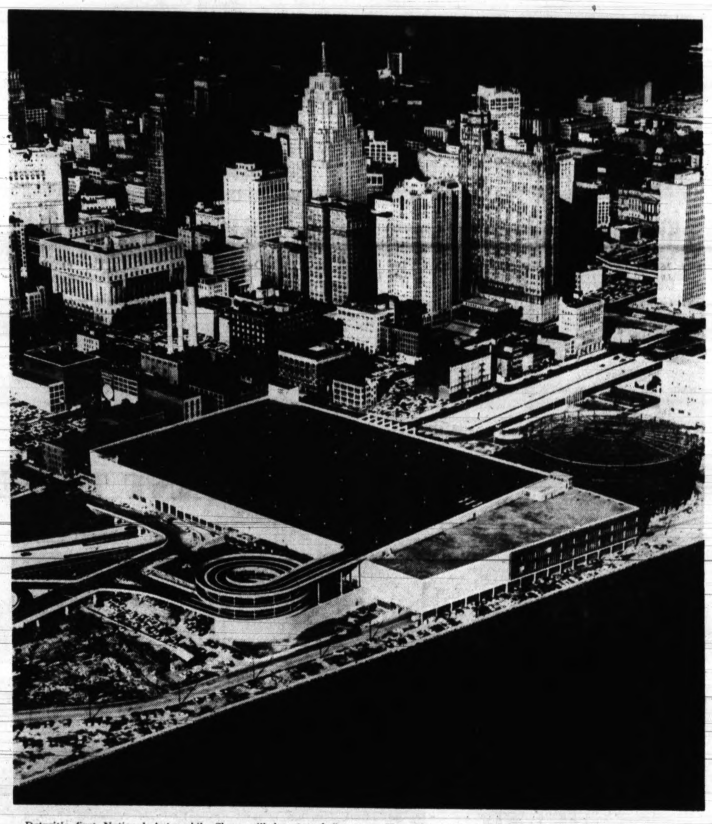
Lining materials were improved steadily, but brake drum metal continued soft until after World War I, when new carbide cutting tools permitted use of tough, centrifugally cast drums. A long series of major braking improvements started in this period that led to today's efficient brake systems.

★ ★ ★

It was in this period, also, that a rapidly increasing number of cars and trucks began to fill the nation's roads and streets.

Resultant traffic jams not only placed an extra premium on good drivers, but on good brakes as well.

New Home of National Auto Show



Detroit's first National Automobile Show will be staged in a spectacular $54 million exhibition building (bottom of photo) on the city's riverfront. The edifice is named "Cobo Hall."

Sponsored by the Automobile Manufacturers Association, this initial showing of 1961 American cars and trucks will raise the curtain on the new model year. Cars and trucks are to be displayed on the 300,000-square-foot main exhibit floor of Cobo Hall, while a special integrated institutional exhibit of unusual interest will be created on the 100,000-square-foot river level. A colorful stage revue will be presented periodically during show hours on the main floor.

The "aerial view" of an architect's model of the huge exhibit building shows the circular Convention Arena in the foreground. The 1,150-car roof-top parking deck of the 10-acre, three-story exhibit hall is reached by the spiral ramp at left. Parking for an additional 5,200 cars will be provided by indoor, underground and surface areas. The newly-completed John C. Lodge expressway runs beneath the building.

The show will be the first major public event for the new structure. Dedication ceremonies will be combined with the show's opening. Only the Convention Arena will not be ready for use until March, 1961.

National Automobile Shows were annual events in New York City from 1900 to 1940. Only one was held in the postwar years — in 1956 at the New York Coliseum. The construction of Cobo Hall has made it possible for the first time to stage a National Show in Detroit, traditional symbol of U. S. auto production.

The new building was designed by the internationally-known Detroit architectural firm of Giffels and Rossetti, Inc. It is named after Detroit's late Mayor Albert E. Cobo, under whose administration plans for the riverfront Civic Center grew to fruition. Cobo Hall ranks as the finest, most completely equipped indoor exhibit center in the world. Included among its features are a banquet hall of 2,800 seating capacity, a cafeteria seating 1,500 persons and more than 30 meeting rooms ranging in capacity from 65 to 1,250 persons.

Feature Talent, Glitter of Broadway Production

Host of Stars in Show's Musical Revue

"Wheels of Freedom," a 30-minute revue created for the 43rd National Automobile Show, has all the talent and glitter of a smash Broadway musical.

Backed by nearly a year of planning and preparation, the revue is being staged four times daily through the run of the Auto Show.

In the troupe of 60 artists are singers Julius La Rosa and Betty Ann Grove, the June Taylor Dancers, the Ray Charles Singers, and Neal Hefti and his Orchestra. The producer is Tom DeHuff and the director Arthur Knorr.

The production is designed to provide exciting entertainment for every show visitor. It will be a highly visual type of show, suitable for the large hall, with brilliant costumes and props, action, color and lively music.

Performances at 2, 4, 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. are on the specially built stage in the upper exhibit hall, where the new cars and trucks are on display.

Tempest Debuts at Auto Show

Every model in Pontiac's dynamic new line of 1961 automobiles and the unique Tempest series will be on display at Cobo Hall in Detroit when the 43rd National Automobile Show opens there Saturday.

Finished in a brilliant array of magic-mirror acrylic laquer colors, the 1961 Pontiacs will be shown in each of 15 different body styles offered in the Bonneville, Star Chief, Ventura and Catalina series.

The premiering Tempest series will go on public display for the first time when Saturday's curtain goes up on the show.

In conception and in styling, the Tempest offers an entirely new personality for the motoring public, yet it is unmistakably Pontiac. The 112-inch wheelbase family-size series possesses traditional Pontiac spacious styling, along with features which can be classified as firsts in concept and production in the industry.

"The new 1961 Pontiac line unquestionably represents the finest and the most exciting new cars ever made by our Division," said S. E. Knudsen, General Motors vice president and Pontiac general manager.

Pontiac's display in Detroit's new Cobo Hall will consist of 21 new wide track models in five different series and will make the first public showing of the Division's exclusive new Tempest, Knudsen revealed.

"We are confident that the outstanding styling and performance characteristics of these new cars will make them an immediate success," he continued. "With the new regular size Pontiac we intend to strengthen our position of leadership and, we feel we have reason to expect similar success from our new companion car—the Tempest."

Pontiac has led the medium price field for the past two years and is the only automobile in this class in 1960 to increase its business over 1959, Knudsen said.

Among new Pontiac features cited by Knudsen are: crisp styling detail, increased passenger space, a new perimeter frame, new suspension systems, and a lighter-weight, but higher performing Trophy V-8 engine.

"Our new Tempest series is an entirely new automobile personality. Its new engineering features including a unique front mounted engine-rear mounted transmission arrangement are now being hailed as industry firsts."

Knudsen also listed a high performing and economical four-cylinder engine, family-sized passenger compartment and luggage space, clean-cut styling, independent four-wheel suspension, fully unitized bodies, and wide track wheels among other features which contribute to big car appearance, handling feel and ride.

1 Business in 6 Is Dependent on an Auto

One business in every six in this country is dependent on the manufacture, distribution, servicing and use of motor vehicles.

These add up to 796,169 automotive businesses or 17.2 per cent of all the 4,635,000 establishments of all descriptions in the United States.

No Floor Hump in the Tempest

Pontiac Compact Has Flexible Driveshaft to Transaxle

A major headache for automobile designers, the space-eating floor hump housing the driveshaft has been virtually eliminated from Pontiac's new compact car, the Tempest.

Power is transmitted from the Tempest engine to the transaxle by a newly-developed flexible driveshaft. This cuts the floor hump down to where it is barely noticeable, increasing leg room and comfort in the compact car.

The four-cylinder Tempest engine is adapted from Pontiac's big, V-8 and is standard with either a synchromesh transmission or an automatic transmission. A light-weight V-8 engine may be selected at the customers option.

With a wide selection of 195 cubic inch, four-cylinder Tempest engines, exceptional economy of operation becomes reality. Inclined at 45 degrees, this husky short stroke four is available in five different versions, ranging from a one-barrel, regular fuel engine developing 110 horsepower with synchromesh transmission, to a four-barrel, premium fuel engine rated at 155 horsepower for either synchromesh or automatic transmissions.

Also available in the Tempest will be a 215 cubic inch, regular fuel V-8 engine for use with both synchromesh and automatic transmissions. This engine has a two-barrel carburetor and develops the same amount of horsepower as the top rated four.

The standard Tempest transmission is a manual shift, three-speed conventional synchromesh, while an automatic transmission is offered as an option. Both are mounted at the rear wheels with the differential carrier to give perfect balance to the entire car.

Spectacular Show-Within-Show Tells Entire Auto-Making Story

Visitors to the 43rd National Automobile Show will see the complete story of motor vehicle manufacturing—from planning through production—told in exhibit form for the first time.

The spectacular show-within-a-show, called Auto Wonderland covers 104,000 square feet on the first floor of Cobo Hall, Detroit's new 10-acre exhibition building.

Auto Wonderland depicts the role played by hundreds of the nation's major manufacturers in the job of keeping the nation supplied with motor vehicles. Included are producers of basic materials and suppliers of vehicle components.

The show is designed for spectators of all ages—it has enough color to hold the attention of a baby, enough excitement and self-testing devices to please the child, it is educational and entertaining for the teen-agers, and shows the adult why the new cars are better and safer to ride in.

★ ★ ★

Upon entering Auto Wonderland, visitors will first encounter the consumer research exhibit where they may fill in cards stating likes and dislikes in automobiles. The cards are then run through computing machines and answers are tabulated. Each day of the show the questions on the cards will be changed.

STYLING STUDIO

Visitors then move on to a fully-manned and operating automobile styling studio, replete with stylists at their drawing boards turning out renderings of futuristic dream cars, and working on a full scale clay model of a car that is a composite of five 1961 model automobiles.

★ ★ ★

Next to hold the visitors' attention are interior renderings, such as seats, upholstery, interior trim and fiberglas reproductions of instrument panels and other interior accessories.

Across the way from the interior exhibit is the product planning area covering the "When," "What" and "How" that goes into the advance planning for a new car model. Included are all the "paper" work, charts, blueprints, and selections of materials that will go into the new automobile.

The following area comprises engineering, testing and depicts the actual manufacturing processes. The engineering exhibit is particularly designed to interest young people in following automotive engineering careers. Here also are unveiled the complexities of the automobile and the terrific punishment cars and their component parts are subjected to in testing laboratories and under actual road conditions at the proving grounds.

Here in the engineering area is a car on a treadmill undergoing a simulated road test; nearby a car body and an axle are being put through the torture test. There is also an animated car the body of which lifts off, revealing the cross-sectioned innerworkings of the engine, transmission, differential and rear axle.

Also on display are "life" tests for light bulbs, turn signals, turn signal flashers, windshield wipers, as well as an impact test for an instrument panel.

In the same area is the proving ground exhibit, showing the locations of testing areas and proving grounds on a large diorama. Also depicted are the methods for training auto mechanics in special schools operated by the automobile manufacturers.

"WORKING" ASSEMBLY PLANT

Then there is a working scale model of a complete assembly plant. The 12 by 30-foot display shows in sound and motion every assembly line operation from the bare chassis to the finished car being loaded in haulaway trucks bound for the dealers and ultimate owners.

In the research area are the cars and highways of the future—a car that floats on a film of air and an electronically - controlled highway. Also on view are power sources of the future, the gas turbine and thermo-electric, and the conversion of waste heat from the exhaust back into power.

Here also are displayed such auto industry's contributions to medical science as a mechanical heart.

In the research area there also is a machine that the auto owner can operate and compute the actual gasoline mileage he should be getting from his present car.

The great advancements in motor trucks are depicted in the display titled "Contributions of Special Vehicles." Here is a dump truck that doubles as a snow plow and road leveler through the use of hydraulically - controlled attachments.

Here also is one of the newest pieces of fire-fighting equipment—a combination pumper and ladder truck. The pumps on this truck can feed 750 gallons of water per minute to the hose nozzles.

Then there is a truck tractor attached to a trailer which is the official post office of the National Automobile Show. Here visitors can purchase the show's "Wheels of Freedom" Commemorative stamps and their cards and letters stamped with the special cancellation for the occasion.

Already in use on the toll roads of the nation on an experimental basis is the "Turnpike Cruiser," which can haul the payload formerly requiring two tractor-trailer combinations. It is 98 feet long and eight feet wide.

Included in the exhibit is a vehicle that the United States Information Service uses to tell the story of America to undeveloped countries. The vehicle is specially designed for use where roads are poor or non-existent, and where the facilities to tell the story must be taken along.

The next area of interest in Auto Wonderland is the development of materials that go into an automobile. There is a miniature steel rolling mill in operation and visitors can watch the actual building of an automobile tire.

There are exhibits covering the fields of aluminum, plastics, petroleum products, glass, electricity, malleable castings, paints and protective coatings. All of them are colorful, exciting and entertaining.

A steering wheel tree in a Swiss Chalet setting leads the visitors into the "Role of Component Manufacturers"—those who produce the batteries, headlamps, generators, spark plugs, wheels and brake drums, fuel systems, bearings, pistons and rings, and thousands of other parts that go into the automobile.

PHANTOM CAR

There is an exhibit showing how the electrical system of one present-day car could power 10 automobiles of an early vintage. There is a phantom car that shows all the metal trim hanging from wires at the exact places where it would be on the automobile.

A seating display demonstrates the comfort level for passengers in automobiles and shows the materials and fabrics used in auto seat construction.

A display of components demonstrates the strength of the frame and body parts, the hardware and exterior and interior trim.

There are cutaways of transmission-final drives from the time of early cars through the '61 models. Four major type of bearings relate the story of motion and its victory over friction.

In the Allied Industries area the is a theater-size television screen hooked up to cameras focused on the Detroit expressways and monitoring traffic situations as they occur throughout the day.

This is a preview of an experimental television traffic control system now under construction for the Motor City's crowded expressway system.

'Wheels of Freedom' Latest Auto Song

Songwriters have been turning out lyrics about automobiles since the first gas buggy scared a horse. Now another has been added to the roster. It's called "Wheels of Freedom."

★ ★ ★

According to an archivist for the auto industry, Hefti and Mammie's contribution, which eulogizes the automobile in a swinging march tempo, brings the total number of auto songs well above the 600 mark.

One of the first bore the rather ponderous title, "Cheers for the Automobile because Fun Has Come with It."

Wipers Came Far in 40 Years

Still Go Swish-Swish, but Design Advances Are Continuous

Deceivingly simple in appearance, modern automobile windshield wipers are the product of continuous engineering and improvement over a period of more than 40 years.

★ ★ ★

These small mechanical devices are assigned a vital job—to keep the driver's vision clear under all conditions of weather and road. But, little has been said about them or the problems designers and engineers encountered in making them efficient.

The crowning achievement of the windshield wiper industry is the ingenious blade that effectively cleans both flat and curved glass surfaces.

The first crude wiper, believed to have been introduced about 1917, was a simple rubber blade and handle operated manually through the gap between the upper and lower halves of the then popular two-piece windshield.

Shortly after World War I, a pivoted wiper arm mounted at the top of the windshield was introduced.

In 1922, this device was standard equipment on practically every U.S. car. In that same year, the first automatic wiper driven by manifold vacuum made its appearance.

As automobiles improved and increased in numbers, new problems in windshield wiping arose. Faster speeds made good driver vision more imperative. Road muck splashed against the glass in crowded traffic on sloppy pavement became a hazard.

Many blade types were tried—the "scraper," the "towel," the "balloon," the rider," and the "squeegee." All, except for the true "squeegee," however, proved faulty in one way or another.

Designing an effecient automatic wiper for curved glass required particular ingenuity and engineering skill. Much of the development was accomplished during the war, when devices were needed to wipe variously curved aircraft windshields.

Wipers finally perfected for automobile use, work effecientl on flat glass or on surfaces curved both longitudinally and vertically. In addition, automotive engineers have greatly improved the wiper action through the use of vacuum boosters and small electric motors,

Station Wagon Gains Steadily in Popularity

The adaptability of the station wagon and perhaps the prestige that got rubbed onto it from its predecessor the estate wagon makes it a favorite family vehicle across the country today.

Last year more than 14 per cent of all the motor vehicles produced were station wagons — 955,453 out of a total of 6,728,629 cars, trucks and buses. This compared with a tiny two-tenths of one per cent in 1935 and seven-tenths of one per cent in 1941.

Editorial representatives of Vogue and Harper's Bazaar will give the commentary.

The Vogue fashion expert will participate during the first three days of the style show, Monday through Wednesday, while the Harper's Bazaar editor will appear during the final three days, Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 22.

The designers and the date of their appearances are: Larry Aldrich, Monday; Ben Reig, Tuesday; Howard Greer, Wednesday; Jane Derby, Thursday; Vera Maxwell, Friday; and Bill Blass (for the House of Maurice Reutner), Saturday, Oct. 22.

Performances will begin at 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday on the giant stage in the 1961 model car exhibition area. The final show on Saturday, Oct. 22, will start at 11:30 a.m.

Models will display the latest fashions to the accompaniment of live music. They will show a full range of daytime, sports and evening wear keyed to the theme of "fashions for women on the go."

Automobile Responsible for New Endeavors

The auto age is responsible for motels and tourists courts, drive-in theaters, trailer parks and automobile race tracks.

At the latest count there were 41,332 motels and tourists courts, 4,063 drive-in theaters, 8,110 trailer parks and 600 auto race tracks doing a fluorishing business in the U.S.

8,000 Miles of Music Wire in Brakes

Eight thousand miles of music wire and not a piano, violin or guitar in the house.

That's the score at the Delco Moraine Division of General Motors, where enough music wire to stretch from United States through the center of the earth to China is used every year in the manufacture of automotive brakes.

The music wire is used in the production of springs necessary for the operation of wheel and master brake cylinders. A spring for a one-inch bore cylinder takes 27 inches of wire.

Besides piston springs for wheel and master cylinders, the division uses hold-down springs and adjustable screw springs. A power brake booster takes five different springs.

Delco Moraine produces most of the nearly five million springs it uses each month. In an eight hour day an operator of spring coiling machines uses 12 to 15 miles of music wire. And that could make a lot of banjos.

HEAVY DUTY FORD T-850 — Maximum gross vehicle weight of Ford's 1961 extra heavy duty T-850 is 45,000 pounds. New-type springs are intended to give the T-850 a smoother ride. Ford trucks in this line have Super Duty V-8 engines, ranging from 206 to 266 horsepower.

Elegant Bonneville Leading Classic '61 Line of Pontiacs

New 1961 Pontiac customers with a taste for elegance may select from four custom designed Bonneville models: a two-door sport coupe, four-door Vista hardtop, a convertible, and a four-door, six-passenger Safari station wagon.

Standard equipment on Bonneville includes electric clock, instrument panel cushion, passenger assist rail, courtesy lamp, and dual ash trays; luxurious interior fabrics of wool, Jeweltone Morrokide, and genuine leather with deep pile carpeting; new custom steering wheel, deluxe wheel discs, and aluminized tail pipes.

The new Star Chief series is available in stylish four-door sedan and four-door Vista hardtop body styles.

Spacious seats covered with beautiful nylon faced cloth and Jeweltone Morrokide bring living room comfort to Star Chief interiors. Other standard "extras" include: two-speed electric windshield wipers, distinctive instrument panel decor, custom steering wheel, electric clock, dual ash trays, deluxe wheel discs, and aluminized tail pipes.

Comprising Pontiac's Ventura series are a two-door sport coupe and four-door Vista hardtop.

New electric, single speed, tandem type windshield wipers, custom steering wheel, electric clock, dual ash trays, and deluxe wheel discs head an imposing list of standard items.

The versatile, lower priced Catalina series, distinctive in its styling simplicity, includes a two-door sport sedan, four-door sedan, two-door sport coupe, four-door Vista hardtop, convertible, and four-door six and nine passenger Safari station wagons.

Among new features are: electric tandem type windshield wipers, three speed Hydra-Matic transmission, distinctive instrument panel, new hub caps, and a wide selection of attractive seat fabrics to match with loop pile carpeting.

Renowned for its superb performance, efficiency, and reliability, the 389 cubic inch Pontiac "Trophy 425" is offered in a broad selection of standard and optional versions with major design advances and improved economy.

Standard with all models using synchromesh transmission are regular fuel V-8's with 8.6:1 compression ratios. Premium fuel V-8s with 10.25:1 compression ratios are available with all models equipped with Hydra-Matic transmission.

Pontiac's popular economy engine with 8.6:1 compression ratio and two-barrel carburetor operates on regular fuel and is a no extra cost option with models utilizing Hydra-Matic.

Contributing largely to the increase in passenger compartment space is a new perimeter frame with parallel side rails that completely encircle the passenger compartment. Five cross bars mount engine and chassis components and add structural rigidity.

Pontiac's reputation for excellent ride characteristics are further enhanced by new and improved suspension systems. A stronger lower control arm is swept backward for anti-drive control and new springs and shock absorbers of maximum softness are employed in the front suspension.

★ ★ ★

New lower control arms, addition of another upper arm, and extended use of sound absorbing rubber bushing highlight the new four-link rear suspension system.

Display Money at Auto Show

Unique Bank Collection Will Tell the Story of American Currency

Detroit Federal Reserve Bank's unique collection of paper currency is on display in the Auto Wonderland exhibit at the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit.

The exhibit, including a Brink's money truck and guards, tells the story of American currency from the wildcat banking days to modern times.

It was not until the Civil War that this country had a national currency or "greenbacks" as they came to be known. Prior to that banks printed their own notes that were supposed to be redeemable in gold or silver, but in some instances more notes were printed than were redeemable.

Bank notes were printed in many denominations, including ones for three and seven dollars. Some of the notes in the six-panel display were printed by cities and private companies, indicating the lack of a stable currency in this young and growing nation.

By 1863, National Banks were formed which could issue their own notes secured by United States Government bonds. Since there were no specific rules or the design of the notes some of them used reproductions of famous paintings such as The Baptism of Pocahontas, Embarkation of the Pilgrims and Landing of Columbus.

With the victories of the Confederate armies during the early stages of the Civil War, silver coins went into hidden hoards. People had to resort to using postage stamps for small change and the government finally issued "shinplasters" ranging from three to fifty cents.

In addition to old currency the display includes specimens of all the paper money in current use, from $1 bills through $5,000 and $10,000 federal reserve notes.

FORD STATION BUS — The eight-passenger station bus is one of Ford's three new Econoline commercial vehicles. They are powered by a modified version of the 85-horsepower Falcon engine, and have a 90-inch wheelbase and an over-all length of 168.4 inches. The bus weighs 2,659 pounds and has a payload of more than half its own weight according to specifications. Other Econoline models are the pickup truck and the delivery truck.

Steering Wheels Make Advance

From Wooden Rims to Plastic and Rubber Through the Years

Automobile steering wheels have advanced through the years from the time when the rims were composed of eight wooden segments sometimes more than 18½ inches in diameter to today's slim, rubber or plastic turning devices usually about 16½ inches across.

A pioneer in this steering wheel progress was the Inland Manufacturing Division of General Motors and its predecessor, the Wright Airplane Co. In 1921 the Wright firm made steering wheel rims from a continuous strip of laminated veneer. Chevrolet and Cadillac were the first users of this type of wheel.

In 1924, about a year after the company had been renamed Inland Manufacturing and had become a part of GM, rubber steering wheels with metal reinforcement were first put into mass production.

In 1936, following development of newer plastic materials, plastic steering wheels were made and became available as optional equipment on General Motors cars.

Today, Inland produces more than 3½ million steering wheels a year in its Dayton, O., plant. About 70 per cent of them are rubber and the remainder plastic.

Nearly 66 million Sealed Beam headlamps for motor vehicles were purchased last year. In addition, more than 304.8 million other automotive lamps were sold.

Almost All Prefer Automatic Shifts

Automatic transmissions are saving American motorists a lot of elbow grease. Today all Cadillacs have automatic transmissions as standard equipment.

Automatic units are chosen by 98.9 per cent of Oldsmobile buyers, 98.7 per cent of Buick buyers, 96.3 per cent of Pontiac buyers, and 65.7 per cent of Chevrolet buyers.

Since 1939 when the first fully-automatic transmission was produced by General Motors, various divisions of the company have made a total of more than 24 million automatic transmissions for cars and commercial vehicles.

General Motors is a decentralized organization with 129 plants in 19 states and 71 cities of the United States, five plants in Canada, and assembly, manufacturing and warehousing operations in 19 other countries.

Easily Tell Car by Hub Caps

Also Keep Dust, Snow and Rain Away From Grease Caps, Nuts

Hood ornaments and hub caps — that was the way many people identified the numerous makes of automobiles on the road in the early motoring days. These parts, more often than not, carried the manufacturer's trademark or insignia.

* * *

Most hood ornaments have disappeared. But the hub cap or wheel disc continues as one means of recognizing which car is which.

Identification is only a secondary advantage of the hub cap. Its first purpose years ago was to keep the wheel grease inside the hub.

Today automobile wheels have grown smaller and the hub cap has changed to a disc covering the entire wheel. It now keeps dust, snow and rain away from the grease cap and the nuts that hold the wheel on the car.

Wheel covers come in various forms. Some are simulated wire wheels. Others are complete wheels of chrome or other metal. Some consist of a cap that partially covers the wheel, plus a trim ring that adds to the beauty and gives the illusion of a solid disc. This combination allows air to flow freely to the brake drums and aids in preventing overheating.

* * *

The Brown-Lipe-Chapin Division of General Motors, with plants in Syracuse, N. Y., and Elyria, O., started making hub caps and other automotive trim in 1936. Since then it has made more than 150 million wheel covers.

Fussy Over Loot

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—City Recorder John I. Rice fined two men $25.50 each for stealing tires — spare tires from used cars they took to try out.

More than half of all U. S. passenger cars are less than six years old.

LARK REGAL — Seventeen Studebaker Lark models are offered for 1961. These include four-door sedans, two-door hardtops and a two-door convertible, all powered with either a six or eight-cylinder engine. Over-all length is 175 inches, with a 108.5 inch wheelbase.

Harding First to Use Motor Car

The motor car had more than come of age before the White House was able to break with tradition and use it in place of the usual "carriage and four" in the presidential inaugural ceremony for Warren G. Harding in 1921.

* * *

Although 11 presidents have served the U. S. in the automotive era, Richard Nixon or John Kennedy will be only the seventh to ride in a car instead of a carriage in the inaugural parade.

Grover Cleveland was president in 1893 when the first American-made gasoline-powered motor vehicle was built by Frank Duryea. But Cleveland never rode one of the new contraptions while occupying the White House.

* * *

The first president to ride in a motor vehicle while in office was Cleveland's successor, President William McKinley. The July 18th, 1901, issue of Motor Review carried the following interesting account of the president's experience as a passenger in an automobile:

"CANTON, O., July 13—President McKinley varied his usual programme to-day by a little spin in an automobile. Zib Davis, an old Cantonian, who makes automobiles in Cleveland, passed the house, and the President accepted his invitation to "jump in" and take a turn about the city. The President seemed to enjoy the "straight away" part of the ride, but when corners were turned short his backbone stiffened perceptibly, and it was noted that he took a firmer hold of the arm and of the seat. It was his first experience in a horseless carriage on the public highway."

Less than two months later, President McKinley took another ride in a motor vehicle under tragic circumstances. He was rushed to a hospital in a motor ambulance after an assassin's bullet wounded him fatally at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, Sept. 6, 1901.

Nearly 6 million trucks, or 31.7 per cent of those in operation today are less than eight years old. The average age of trucks is 7.6 years.

Beautifully proportioned to the CLASSIC FORD LOOK

An honor to be proud of, this is the medal presented by the international fashion authority, Centro per L'Alta Moda Italiana, to the 1961 Ford for functional expression of classic beauty.

You are looking at the trend-setting car of our times, the '61 Ford . . . a car whose clean and classic profile is unmatched by any other in the world. Just one glance at the Big Circle taillights and sculptured rear deck, one look at the crisp, fresh front-end design and you'll know the '61 Ford is the classic style of the Nineteen Sixties.

Here is a Ford that is not only new in looks and ride and comfort, but new in its entire concept. The '61 Ford is actually built to take care of itself! It lubricates its chassis . . . cleans its own oil . . . adjusts its own brakes . . . protects its own body.

Indeed, here is a car that will save you valuable time and money by doing away with many stops for service.

BEAUTIFULLY BUILT TO TAKE CARE OF ITSELF

'61 FORD

HERE'S HOW THE '61 FORD TAKES CARE OF ITSELF . . .
THE FIRST 1961 CAR DEALER-WARRANTED FOR 12,000 MILES OR ONE FULL YEAR

Lubricates Itself. You'll normally go 30,000 miles without a chassis lubrication.

Cleans Its Own Oil. You'll go 4,000 miles between oil changes with Ford's Full-Flow oil filter.

Guards Its Own Muffler. Ford mufflers are double-wrapped and aluminized—normally will last three times as long as ordinary mufflers.

Protects Its Own Body. All vital underbody parts are specially processed to resist rust and corrosion, even to galvanizing body panels beneath the doors.

Warranty. The '61 Fords are built to meet three principal goals: finest quality, greatest durability, most reliable operation. Expressing their complete confidence that this has been accomplished, Ford Dealers led the industry in extending their warranty on '61 Fords to 12,000 miles or one full year, whichever comes first. See this warranty at your Ford Dealer's now.

Reliability Tours Enthused Public

Early Cars Blazed Trails on Muddy Paths

When the automobile appeared on the scene, it was somewhat like a ship on the desert.

* * *

Before the turn of the century America was virtually a roadless land. By 1900, all of the hard-surfaced roads in the United States would not have linked New York and Boston.

RIVERS OF MUD

A few carriage routes went beyond the cities and town. But, in wet weather, they turned into winding rivers of mud. When dry, they were deeply rutted and dusty. Under any conditions, they offered little encouragement to pioneers of the dawning motor age.

But, the motoring enthusiasts of that early day were a hardy, adventurous lot. By 1903, one had even managed to drive an automobile coast to coast, across virtually roadless land.

The first motorist-inspired campaign for better roads began in 1904, a year in which automobile sales reached 22,130, almost double the total of any previous year. By then there were about 50,000 U.S. car owners, who needed cross-country routes over which to drive their new vehicles.

Car owners took it upon themselves to prove to the doubting world that the automobile was worthy of better roads. "Reliability tours," became one of the popular sports of the day. Convincing performances had been registered by test cars and racers, but these tours were designed to show what ordinary stock cars could do.

The St. Louis World's Fair of 1904 offered a convenient publicity tie-in for the first long distance reliability tour, which covered the distance from New York to the fairgrounds—a third of the way across the continent. It was a tremndous trip for those days. Those contestants, appropriately called "Mudlarks," that finally chugged over the finish line, were a bit of the fair.

The following year, wealthy auto enthusiast Charles J. Glidden offered a trophy to the winner of a reliability tour that was to become an annual affair bearing his name. For the next 10 years, Glidden Tours were among the most widely publicized automobile events in the country.

The mud-covered cars entered towns along the way en masse, with pennants flying from windshield posts and engines sputtering. Routes were laid out along the unmarked wagon roads by advance cars serving as "Pathfinders." Rules were complex and final scores were tallied only after each car had been torn down for inspection.

By 1915, reliability tours became a thing of the past. But motoring enthusiasts had won their point, and automobiles were here to stay. Good roads, still were far from realization, although more progress was to come from the Lincoln Highway program, which was then underway, and from the great "Get Out of the Mud" campaign of the Twenties.

But, America today might still be a "roadless land," if it had not been for such hardy pioneers as those who chugged from New York to St. Louis, through axle-deep mud and choking dust, in 1904.

How Competitors Work Together Will Be Seen

BY HARRY A WILLIAMS
Managing Director, Automobile Manufacturers Assn.

In everything they see and hear and sense at the National Automobile Show, visitors will witness how competing members of a great industry work together in the common good.

Here in on tremendous exhibit—jointly sponsored, jointly planned, and jointly managed — are presented the new products of the entire industry.

These new models are offerd primarily as dynamic symbols of a good today and a better tomorrow, and not as merchandise in the market place.

This collective show recurringly brings a new understanding to the key role played by the motor vehicle in the life of every citizen of every community in the civilized world.

National and international attention is centered by the Show upon the many values which accure to individual citizens and to communities and nations through improved transportation and communication, upon the direct and measurable economic and social gains that result from the production and use of the motor vehicle.

The National Show, by demonstrating continuing progress in the development of the motor vehicle, is an implicitted promise of greater growth in the transportation oriented economies of individuals and nations . . . a promise that the one invention which more than any other has generated so much economic activity can continually become more productive.

Since the first National Show in 1900, each of the 42 subsequent ones including this one has provided case examples of a cooperative effort to tell the story of an industry which is of fundamental importance to individual and national well being.

* * *

This, the 43rd National Automobile Show, both enriches and enlarges the long tradition.

Not only have the manufacturers of cars and trucks combined their efforts to stage the largest, most spectacular and most informative exhibit of motor vehicles in history—their efforts have been joined by supplier industries and allied groups throughout the country in the production of the unique "show-within-a-show," Auto Wonderland.

Because this is the first time the National Show has been held in Detroit, heartland of the industry; and because it is the dedicatory public show of the city's great new exhibition building, whose designers had in mind the difficult show requirements of the industry, this national event also has taken on the color and warmth of a community project.

Thus the joint efforts of members of the industry, of supplier industries and allied organizations have been augmented by city, county, state and civic groups and business and public agencies of many kinds.

* * *

Numerous special events, meetings, presentations, entertainment attractions, each of them as unusual in its way as the National Automobile Show, have been planned in the city to coincide with and to supplement the Show itself.

To all of the groups and organizations voluntarily working in their several ways to make a great national event even more of a gala occasion, the Automobile Manufacturers Association owes its thanks and appreciation.

And, to all of those who in one way or another have contributed to the success of this unique national exposition of the products of one of the country's major industries, the thanks and appreciation of the Automobile Manufacturers Association is herewith publicity expressed.

* * *

Above all, the Association—as the mechanism through which the industry works to effect its cooperative endeavors—hopes it has achieved its primary objections: To satisfy the show visitor, representing the users of motor vehicles all over the country, that the industry once again has shown it is alert to today's and tomorrow's needs for all kinds of highway transportation.

Car Brands Come, Go With Years

The story of the automobile industry is one of many starts, but few finishes. Close to 3,000 "brands" of cars have chugged from backyard garages or assembly lines; only a small number are still to be seen on the nation's highways.

Oldtimers remember such cars as the Welch, the Cartercar, the Elmore, the Randolph. GM produced the Welch for a short time in 1909 here in Pontiac.

Companies producing the Cartercar and Elmore were purchased by General Motors that same year and produced autos in very limited numbers until the two holdings were disposed of a few years later. The Randolph car was produced briefly in 1910.

A few Scripps-Booth automobiles were produced in 1918-18 after General Motors purchased that company. The Sheridan was a GM product in 1920-21.

Total production of the Welch, Cartercar, Elmore, Randolph, Scripps-Booth and Sheridan, plus a few trucks and tractors, reached 74,179 vehicles, a microscopic per cent of GM's total production of cars through the years.

Today's Pontiac came on the scene in 1926 as a light, low-priced six, offered by Oakland as an addition to its line. It was so popular that in 1931 the plant discontinued Oakland production and concentrated on Pontiac.

Three other GM divisions during the years offered companion cars that are not seen today. Cadillac manufactured the highly successful LaSalle from 1927 to 1940. In 1929-30, Buick produced a Marquette and Oldsmobile built the Viking in limited numbers.

Your New Car Shows Your Personality Traits

That new '61 car you're about to buy can help you make those dreams come true. Whether you realize it or not, both styling and the colors you select when purchasing a car subtle extensions of your own personality.

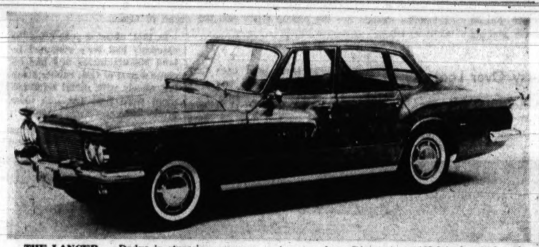
Today's cars offer a variety of colors and styles designed to appeal to every personality—and give any woman that "grand and glorious" feeling when she drives off in one of the new models.

The man of the household is the deciding factor—usually—in the make of the car, but the woman has the stronger voice in model, color and interiors.

To make the woman feel the car of her choice is truly hers and extends her personality, the customer is offered a variety of fabrics and interior colors so that she may "custom design" her own, or the family car. But there's a built-in "control" too.

* * *

In selecting a car woman, more and more the automobile researchers say, is influenced not so much by what might impress the neighbors, but what will give her a color lift, a sense of well-being and confidence, and what will best project what she wants, or would like, her "public image" to be.



THE LANCER — Dodge is stressing maneuverability in its new short-wheelbase compact. A six-cylinder engine is standard in the hardtop, sedan and wagon. The sedan and wagon come in either two or four-door models. The hardtop is a two-door. Dimensions: 188.8 inches in length, 106½ inch wheelbase, develops 101 horsepower with standard engine and 145 horsepower with an optional engine.

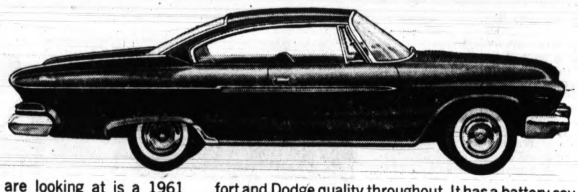
AT THE DETROIT AUTO SHOW

1 A CUSTOM DODGE CALLED POLARA

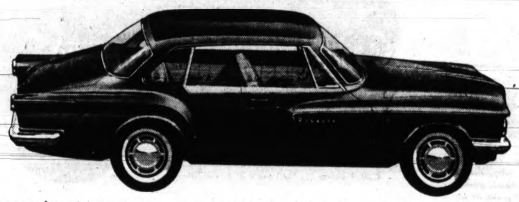
This is the 1961 Polara—the best of everything Dodge. You will respect its masculine authority. You will enjoy its obvious advantages of performance, interior spaciousness, and riding comfort. Polara has been put together with extraordinary care and good taste. With Polara, you feel the deepest satisfaction of car ownership a man can have—complete and authoritative control of a precision machine. Yet, it is not a costly automobile. Seemingly a paradox, the price of the Dodge Polara is one of the lowest in the medium-price field.

2 A FULL-SIZE DODGE CALLED DART!!



The new automobile you are looking at is a 1961 Dodge called Dart!! It is upsetting automotive applecarts all over the place. Why? Because Dart is a full-size Dodge priced model for model with Ford and Chevrolet. It is complete with Dodge room, Dodge comfort and Dodge quality throughout. It has a battery saving alternator-generator. It rides beautifully. It is just about the most economical family-size car going. The 1961 Dart has many other good things: twenty-three models for instance. That's Dart!! And that's value.

3 A COMPACT DODGE CALLED LANCER



Lancer: One hardtop, one 2-door sedan, two 4-door sedans, two wagons. What kind of cars are they? This kind: two feet shorter, many pounds leaner, a couple of hundred dollars less in cost than usual automobiles. Lancer welcomes a family of six lavishly. Has plenty of trunk. Its fully unitized body is very quiet, very tough. Lancer corners decisively, takes any road with aplomb. Parks obediently. The interiors are rich, but simple. The engine is highly spirited, but extremely light on regular gasoline. One more thing, Lancer is built by Dodge.

See all three at the auto show. Then drive the one that suits you best at your nearest Dodge Dealer!!!

Car Industry Major Key to Economy

Automotive manufacturing is big business, but compared to its actual size the amount of business it generates throughout the American economy is tremendous.

The production of cars, trucks, buses, trailers, tires and tubes, batteries, and petroleum products could be likened to the inverted base of a pyramid.

At that base there are approximately 1,000,000 workers and 3,298 business establishments engaged in putting motor vehicles together and furnishing the power for their locomotion.

But as the sides of the pyramid widen you pick up another nine million or so who are employed in U.S. highway transit industries. They work in some 800,000 establishments that are entirely dependent of the manufacturing, distribution, servicing and use of motor vehicles.

These concerns represent 17.2 per cent or one-sixth of the total of 4,635,000 companies doing business in this country.

The automotive category, besides manufacturing, includes retail and wholesale sales, repairs, parking, services and miscellaneous enterprises such as auto courts, drive - in theaters and trailer parks.

The inverted base of the pyramid keeps widening to a point of near infinity when adding such items as the products of 26,000 suppliers needed by just one automobile company and the people employed in all the businesses that are either directly or indirectly concerned with motor vehicle manufacturing.

Not least among the industry's suppliers are farmers. In a recent year, car and truck makers used more than 460,000 bales of cotton (from 763,000 acres) and 21,600,000 pounds of wool

Don't Forget Your Goggles'

Today's Motorists Don't Require Special Gear, but Grandma Did

Motoring today is just a matter of getting in and going whether the driver is wearing a swimming suit or a formal gown.

But in grandma and grandpa's day an automobile trip required special attire.

The early cars had no roof, windshields or heaters. Some didn't even have fenders. That meant that the driver and his passengers were fair game for rain, dust, or cold.

To meet these challenges, clothes designers developed a large assortment of motoring styles—most of which weren't too pretty but did offer some measure of protection against the dirt and dust of unpaved roads and the elements.

Both driver and passengers usually were outfitted with goggles. Often these were incorporated into a cap or hat and even were available as part of an all-over face mask. If worn today these masks might bring the comment that the wearer might have come from Mars.

Women protected their faces with many ingenious types of veiling attached to the large hats of the day. Some of the trim was actually labelled a dust curtain. One design could easily be mistaken for a beekeeper's habit.

Long coats of leather, suede, rubber, linen, fur or other materials were fashionable and vital for both men and women. Women of today might be willing to wear these garments—if the prices were the same. Some of the fur coats could be bought for as little as $50.

With the modern car's roof, windshield, heater, air-conditioning, and virtually dust proof interior, this special auto garb is no longer necessary.

Two items that could be put to good use even now are the old-fashioned fur foot muff and one of the various types of masks which covered the entire face. The muff would be a good piece of equipment for a late fall football game.

Where Would We Be Without the Wheel?

Wheels turn and our economy marches on.

One of man's greatest inventions — the wheel — is taken for granted by most people today.

But what if all the wheels stopped?

Life in over 50,000 towns, villages and cities in the United States alone would grind to a near halt, as the people reverted back to conditions of the prehistoric man.

It is wheels that continue to carry civilization to greater heights.

In 1959 wheels carried more than 10,500,000 trucks on the road. Thousands of American communities depend on this fact; their products and needs were transported exclusively on these trucks.

Another example of an American who depends on the wheel for his existence is the suburban commuter. As he moves farther and farther out from the heart of the big city, he comes to depend on the wheel more and more to the extent that nearly every family in the United States has an automobile at its disposal.

38 MILLION A YEAR

This business of the wheel has become such big business that more than 50,000 people are employed in the manufacture of wheels, drums and hubs for automobiles and trucks alone, excluding wheels used by agriculture, aircraft, earth-moving and other specialized fields.

Presently, the wheel industry manufactures in an average year more than 38,000,000 wheels.

The total world production of motor vehicles in 1958 was 11,724,651 and more than 150,000,000 people are now licensed to drive.

This role that the wheel plays in our modern way of life is not newly won. It has been obtained through an evolutionary process that began more than 5000 years ago when the Elamites, an ancient tribe from the Tigris - Euphrates Valley, located in what is now Iraq, first fashioned a wheel that revolved about its own axis. Prior to this, log rollers had been in vogue.

The initial step toward the wheel came when these rollers were notched near each end to permit retaining pins to keep them captive beneath the vehicle, instead of rolling out the back only to be hand-carried around to the front again.

With this method, the notches soon wore down letting the center of the roller rub against the bottom of the vehicle. To overcome this, the center of the roller then was carved or burned down to a very small diameter while either end of the roller was left its original size to act as wheels. The last step, then before the wheel became a wheel, was freeing these solid discs from their axle.

This was the work of the Elamites. And their wheelwrights soon added metal bands to the outside of the disc for use as "tires" to prevent rapid wear.

ENTER, THE RIM

All forms of the wheel, from the earliest Elamite wheel through the first wheels of the Egyptians in about 1500 B. C., were merely refinements of the basic cross-section of a tree. This wheel was the strongest type known then, but its enormous weight canceled out some of its advantage. Later Egyptian wheels around 1300 B. C. used the spoke and rim method to overcome weight and yet retain some strength.

Improvements were made on this wheel such as increasing the number of spokes and reducing the diameter of the individual spoke. But in one form or another, the spoked wheel remained in use for the next 3400 years or so! The return to the disc wheel began in the 1920's although wooden spoked wheels were used on some cars up until the 1930's.

Modern history of the wheel began right after the turn of the century when in the decade after 1909 wheel hubs and brake drums began to be made of steel. Prior to this, the conventional buggy wheel was made entirely of wood, excepting the use of metal for tires. The first demountable rims appeared in 1904 and by 1905 a universal rim had been developed. Wire wheels became standard equipment on all cars by 1912, as did demountable rims by 1915.

Disc wheels with demountable rims first appeared in 1927 as the trend toward smaller wheels began. At this time riveted wire wheels were prominent also. During the late 1920's, signs began to appear that the wood wheel was to fade completely from the automotive scene.

Disc-type all steel wheels were perfected by 1940 and were used extensively on trucks. This type wheel was standard equipment on trucks of World War II.

The early 1950's saw stylists return the wire wheel to limited use for styling purposes and the late 1950's marked the beginning of the present trend toward lighter and smaller metal disc wheels.

Transformation Still Under Way

Motor Travel Revamps U.S. Cities

Transportation progress has brought many changes in American city life, and the transformation is still under way at a rapid pace.

Cities are opening up and spreading out.

Broad parkways and expressways are slicing through their tight-packed central districts. Sprawling new residential and shopping developments are cropping up and around their outskirts.

More and more of the people who work in city factories, shops or offices are living miles away in the suburbs.

In a word, cities are being decentralized.

This is not merely a recent trend. It is a continuing one that started imperceptibly some 60 years ago when "horseless carriages" began to appear on city streets.

For example, the 1960 census showed that the suburbs of the nation's 189 largest metropolitan areas had grown 47 per cent in population since 1957, while the central cities gained only 8.2 per cent.

PARALLEL TREND

Paralleling this trend has been a rapid rise in the use of motor vehicles throughout the nation. Vehicle registrations have increased by 125 per cent since 1950 to a present national total of nearly 72 million.

Significantly, motor vehicle use has grown faster than population. The ratio between population and motor vehicles in the nation's metropolitan areas averaged about 4.4 to 1 in 1940. Today, the average is approximately 2.5 persons per vehicle.

Transportation has been closely linked with the establishment and growth of cities throughout history. Before the age of steam power, there was no efficient overland transportation. Slow moving animal-drawn carts, wagons and carriages were the best freight and passenger haulers available on land.

Depending for existence upon a heavy flow of commerce, cities could flourish only on sea coasts or rivers. When cross-country railroads were built during the last century, sizeable inland cities grew up along their routes.

With the advent of motor vehicle travel, city growth no longer was bound to fixed transportation centers.

EVOLUTION IN TRAVEL

Cars, trucks and buses replaced buggies, wagons and coaches, bringing new concepts of mobility and flexibility to the city. They added another link to the chain of transportation progress that began with the steamship and the steam locomotive a century before.

Motor transportation has allowed American cities to break out from their old constricted boundaries and spread over the surrounding countryside. In the process it has brought about profound changes in every aspect of city life.

★ ★ ★

By the historian's measure, these changes have been swift. But, for the ordinary city dweller, the transformation has been gradual enough to come as a matter of course. He now accepts the daily service of motor vehicles without awe or wonder.

Bad Headlight Aim Handicaps Drivers

Three out of four drivers give themselves a night driving handicap because their automobile headlights are not properly aimed, reports AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors.

Checking headlight aim was tried as an experiment during a portion of the safety lane inspection program in Flint recently. Of 290 cars checked in one day of operation, 219 had improperly aimed headlights.

Most car owners probably don't realize the importance of properly aimed headlights, AC engineers say. Lights aimed only two degrees low can mean the loss of as much as 35 per cent of lighting effectiveness.

General Motors is owned by a total of more than 800,000 holders of common and preferred stock, giving the company the broadest ownership of any individual organization in the world. Holders of GM stock reside in every state in the U. S., all provinces of Canada and some 80 countries abroad.

Eisenhower Will Speak at Auto Dinner Monday

President Eisenhower will be the honored guest and speaker at the National Automobile Show Industry Dinner in Detroit Monday at Cobo Hall.

A black-tie, stag affair, the dinner will be attended by more than 2,200 automotive industry executives and other business leaders of the nation, civic leaders, government officials, educators, and press, radio and television representatives.

Such dinners, always held in connection with National Automobile Shows, have been a tradition of the automotive industry for more than 50 years.

The great size of the Cobo Hall banquet room overlooking the Detroit River and neighboring Canada will make possible the largest attendance in the dinner's long history.

The last National Automobile Show banquet was in December, 1956, at the New York Waldorf-Astoria hotel, with Vice President Richard M. Nixon the speaker. Nixon made an important foreign policy address on that occasion.

One other president — Herbert Hoover — has addressed a National Show Dinner. Hoover spoke at the 1931 dinner, and also in 1926, when he was Secretary of Commerce.

Other speakers at the dinners have included senators, cabinet members and prominent personalities of the day, such as Will Rogers and Knute Rockne, the famed football coach.

100,000 Firms Keep U.S. Vehicles Rolling

Some 100,000 business places in the nation are devoted exclusively to keep the 72 million trucks and automobiles in good repair.

The breakdown includes 70,407 engaged in general automotive repairs, 1,899 battery and ignition repair and service, 1,349 glass replacement and repair, 2,991 paint shops, 3,147 radiator repairs, 4,009 tire repairs, 14,349 top and body repairs, 1,080 brake repairs, 1,239 wheel, axle and spring repairs, and 3,254 engaged in miscellaneous automotive repairs.

Tech Center Heart of GM Research

The center is the workshop of approximately 5,000 engineers, researchers, stylists, designers, mechanics, machinists and other specialists who use science and technology to consistently improve GM products.

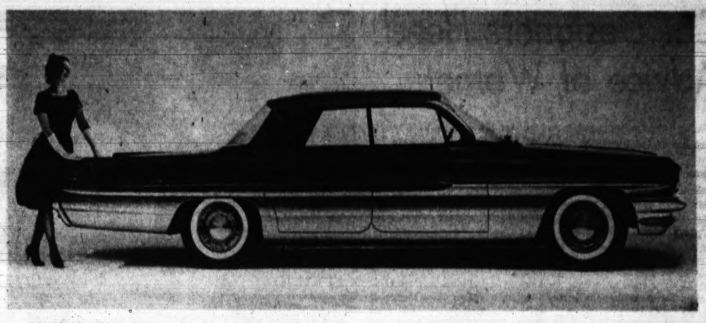
TEMPEST STATION WAGON—Both Pontiac Tempest models, the four-door station wagon and sedan, feature a four-cylinder engine with a 110 horsepower rating at 4,400 rpm's. Pontiac's entry in the compact car field, the Tempest has an overall length of 189.3 inches and a 112 inch wheelbase. Curb weight is 2,910 pounds.



PONTIAC'S STAR CHIEF — Pontiac's stylish new Star Chief four-door sedan conveys a custom appeal with sweeping side sculptures and a new hardtop roof design which eliminates the rear side third window. The popular family car is built on a 123-inch wheelbase and offers such standard extras as: luxurious seat coverings of nylon faced cloth and Jeweltone Morrokide, two-speed electric windshield wipers and distinctive instrument panel decor. The roomy four-door sedan also is available in Pontiac's lower-priced Catalina series.

New Fashions Play Big Role in Interiors

The influence of current fashion and home furnishing trends is reflected dramatically in the 1961 automobile interior styling.

Many of the '61 automobile fabrics, for example, are direct adaptions of textures and colors which can be found in some of the loviest homes and on some of the "best dressed" backs in America.

Nydon and nylon blends are used exclusively for most interiors, with the exception of the grained leathers. But the pattern emphasis is on a new sophistication and a new richness of detail.

Testing Proves Fabrics' Value in New Models

The fabrics and upholstery used in that new 1961 car you're contemplating represent months of research, testing and selection to bring you the best materials in the right colors for greatest serviceability.

★ ★ ★

What you finally see in a car's interior marks the culmination of years of work by some of the nation's top stylists, fabric and upholstery suppliers and a car manufacturer's own staff of specialists.

★ ★ ★

Most upholstery used is nylon or nylon blends. That's because nylon passes rugged tests better than other materials — tests for "slideability", washability, durability, seam strength, raveling, sagging and bagging, open sun proofing, salt air proofing, "breathability" and cracking.

★ ★ ★

The "slideability" test results in materials that provide enough slide to get in and out of a car easily; yet not so much that you lose your seating when going around curves or stopping.

Tempest Styling Achieves Good Looks, Practicality

A consistent styling theme of simplicity prevails throughout the Tempest, Pontiac Motor's 1961 entry into the compact car field, blending attractiveness with practicality.

Keynoting the dynamic frontend is an eye-catching twin grille with dual headlights skillfully integrated with a sweeping bumper. A gracefully styled hood and sculptured body combine to create a bold and distinctive appearance.

The Tempest series combines the Pontiac wide track conception with independent suspension at all four wheels and equal weight distribution through the front engine-rear transmission arrangement, thus providing the best in performance.

Fifteen exterior colors are available in a durable acrylic lacquer, with a total of 57 possible two-tone combinations.

A reflection free instrument cluster dominates the modernistic instrument panel of the Tempest. Recessed within the hooded portion of the panel are telltale indicator lamps for parking brake, temperature indicator and oil pressure indicator.

An automatic transmission control lever and indicator are built into the instrument panel within easy reach of the driver. A spacious panel compartment and right and left fresh air ventilator controls are also provided.

The upper part of the panel is painted a darker color with non-reflective paint for driving comfort. An instrument panel cushion for added protection and attractiveness is available.

Other Tempest accessories include windshield washers, dual speed wiper blades, air conditioning, power steering, radio, heater, back-up lamps and a luggage carrier for station wagons, to mention only a few.

THE FALCON — Except for a new grille, the Ford Falcon styling remains the same for 1961 models. A six-cylinder engine provides 85 horsepower at 4,200 rpm's. The Falcon is 181.2 inches long, has a 109.5 inch wheelbase and weighs 2,422 pounds.

Plenty of Parking Space for National Auto Show

There are 10,000 parking spaces within easy walking distance of Cobo Hall, site of the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit.

When the first National Auto Show was held 60 years ago in New York City, there were not as many as 10,000 automobiles in the entire country.

Approximately 4,000 public parking spaces are available in the new Civic Center area of which Cobo Hall is the dominant building. An additional 6,000 spaces are located in privately-operated parking lots nearby.

The public parking areas in the Civic Center include the Cobo Hall roof with 1,200 spaces; the underground garage in the north section of the hall accomodating 606 cars; the parking lot west of Cobo Hall with 500 auto parking spaces; 418 underground parking spaces immediately east of Cobo Hall! 750 spaces under the Ford Auditorium, and 600 surface parking spaces east of the Veterans Memorial Building.

The privately-operated parking is on lots and in garages throughout the downtown area—many adjacent to Cobo Hall.

Detroit police have assigned extra patrolmen to assist in traffic control, and making it more convenient for National Auto Show visitors to park.

The heaviest show traffic also is expected during the hours and days when most store and office workers are out of the downtown area. These are the evening hours and Saturdays and Sundays.

Chartered buses are also being used to take the pressure off downtown parking facilities, show officials said. Such chartered trips are being arranged for some 185,000 school children who will be guests of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, sponsor of the show.

Service clubs in and around Detroit and many women's groups are also planning to come to the auto show in chartered buses instead of driving their own cars.

Trend Toward Lower Cars Halted in '61

The trend to lower and lower autos has been halted in the 1961 lines, generally, as the increasing length was halted last year.

★ ★ ★

Some of the new 1961 models have actually "grown" a little taller, and are proudly announcing "more head room" to customers who tired of knocking their hats off when entering.

A space ship motif is employed by the Chrysler-Imperial display at the Auto Show.

Nine Chryslers and eight Imperials will be displayed with a circular stage in the 10,300 square foot exhibit area.

★ ★ ★

Chrysler's new standar economy car, the Newport, will be shown also.

Buick Styling Is Influenced by Women

Women have been on the mind of the men at Buick. (And the women there too. Buick's styling staff includes four young women under 36 who are graduates of art schools in four different sections of the country.)

★ ★ ★

This year, more than ever before, the Buick styling staff stated, Buick exterior lines and inside fabrics have been created with women in mind.

The chief reason: The number of women drivers has increased from 19.5 million to 30.8 million in the past five years, a gain of 56 per cent.

A second reason: Men decide the make, but the women decide the model, the color, and the interior fabrics.

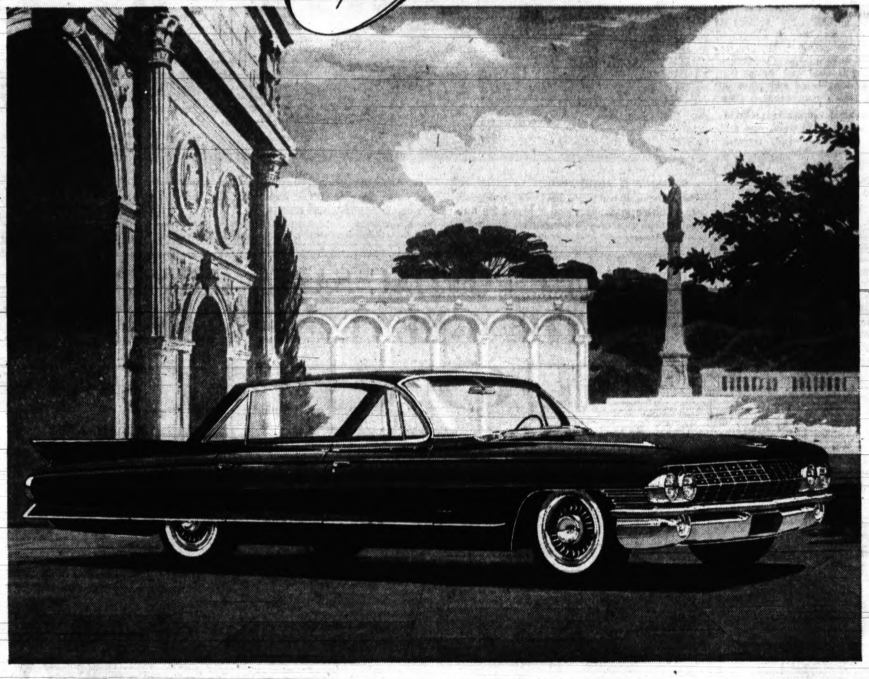
The third reason: Women, more than ever, are buying their own cars—working bachelorettes, working wives, and even housewives. Automobile dealers in all parts of the country report that car purchases by women have been accelerating annually, particularly in the past three years.

'OPEN WIDE' — Pontiac's unique "Alligator Jaw" Tempest display is shown in final construction stages preparatory to exhibit in the National Automobile Show in Detroit. Mounted on an oval-shaped platform, the Tempest's hood and body will raise from the front on a rear pivot, exposing the four-cylinder engine, drive shaft, rear-mounted transmission and underside of the unitized body.

Cadillac



The unmistakable stamp of Greatness!

In commerce, as in art, it is rare indeed that a creation emerges so inspired in concept and so flawless in execution that it is destined, at the outset, for certain greatness.

And yet, it seems not too soon to say that the Cadillac car of 1961 will take its place among the most memorable achievements of the automotive craft.

Its clean, classic form introduces a new look for the world's motor cars to emulate. There's a new proportion of glass to steel . . . a new "oneness" of contour and shape . . . a new relationship of interior to silhouette.

Inside, the story is equally remarkable. Here is new roominess in every dimension. Head room, seat height, and entrance room, for example, have been notably increased with impressive results in greater comfort and luxury for driver and passengers.

And as its beauty is . . . so its performance does—incredibly nimble and quick . . . smooth and floating . . . quiet and obedient.

Cadillac's new engine is the very essence of controlled power . . . steering is feather light and sure . . . and Cadillac's new ride seems to make the roadway literally vanish beneath the wheels.

This is one car you must see and drive for yourself. The facts are simply too numerous and too exciting to accept second hand.

It's the 1961 Cadillac—and we know that you'll agree that true greatness is written all over it.

Car Designers Heed Advice of Women

Having long ago secured her position behind the wheel the "little woman" has been turning her considerable talents towards dictating many of the changes and mprovements that make the automobile easier to operate, such a comfort to ride in and more beautiful to look at.

Without a doubt, she has helped bring about the increasing popularity of the compact-economy car which is fast becoming the family "second car."

Automotive stylists say feminine interest in the family transportation facilities has been receiving close attention for some time, particularly since one driver in every three today is a woman.

Manufacturers have increasingly been "bending an ear" to suggestions stimulated by the women's practical as well as fashion-conscious instincts.

Efforts to please the distaff side go back to such early innovations as the glove compartment, assist straps, inside lighting, carpeting, ample luggage space, the cigaret lighter and the arm rest.

★ ★ ★

More recent years have brought along the automatic transmission to do away with gear shifting, and the many power assists for steering, braking, adjusting seats and operating windows.

Cars also have been built lower, lighter and sleeker looking in recent years, with the woman much in mind.

Some other existing automotive improvements suggested by women are:

Wider doorways for more graceful entry and exit, decorative and easily-cleaned upholstery, more adjustable sun visors—and a mirror on the back of the visor — larger backup lights, glove drawers to replace the conventional compartment, and two ash trays on the dash, so that the woman—as a driver or passenger—will not have too far to reach.

The automobile companies employ teams of skilled market research analysts who almost read milady's mind before she forms the budding thought.

For instance, a door-button was redesigned to eliminate the possibility of its breaking a ladylike fingernail. Steering wheels were lowered and slanted and "picture" windows added to allow the smaller woman more vision. Instrument panel controls were regrouped, bringing them nearer for the shorter feminine arm.

An important safety feature was adjustment of the power brake to the same level as the accelerator pedal, enabling the attractively shod foot to pivot easily on its high heel from one pedal to the other, reducing reaction time by 29 per cent and stopping distance by an average of 13 feet at 30 miles per hour.

To aid her in the role of mother, stylists and engineers equipped cars with safety locks on doors, padding on the dashboard, seat belts, electrical outlets for baby bottle warmers, and rubber plastics and other materials from which she can easily clean away the tiny foot and hand prints on floor, seat, and sidewall.

Some of these developments were demanded by women, such as the adjustable driver's seat; some were offered by the knowing manufacturer, such as the delicately-shaded names given to car colors; and still others were evolutionary products of the industry, such as turn signals and window washers. All of them appeal to women, and help drive home the fact that the little woman has her foot planted firmly in the garage door.

The menfolk don't seem to mind at all, and the manufacturers' attitude is summed up in the Spanish proverb: "Women's advice is of little value, but he who does not take it is a fool."

5-Year Program Showing Results

Michigan Busy Building

LANSING (AP)—Some of the busiest stretches of Michigan highway are still closed to traffic.

These are the sections indicated by broken lines on state highway maps and marked "open to traffic by . . ."

At any given spot along these lines there is likely to be a 25-man crew working almost frantically to stretch concrete to some other point on the map.

—The nine-mile-long Midland bypass.

—The 35-mile, $22-million Fenton-Clio Freeway.

—The proposed route of Interstate 75, linking downtown Detroit with Sault Ste. Marie.

—The $10-million, 14-structure Ford-Lodge interchange.

—Most of the Detroit-to-Chicago Freeway, running from Cobo Hall in Detroit to the Lake Michigan shore.

—The proposed route of Interstate 96, connecting Benton Harbor with Holland, and U.S. 31 heading on north to Muskegon.

—The nearly completed link between Grand Rapids and Lansing, U.S. 16, or Interstate 96.

From the air Michigan is a patchwork of green and gold-brown fields, interrupted by lines and groves of trees—many of them still green; the rest red, gold and brown.

Long silver ribbons of concrete tie the patches together. Where the concrete ends the "frantic" activity starts. Long brown scratches in the green outline the road, and gradually fade out into a cleared area.

Back on the ground, crews are pouring concrete at the rate of one cubic yard per minute. They average about 3,000 feet per day, although competing contractors have egged each other on to set records of 8,000 feet in 12-hours.

$500,000 PER MILE

It's costing the state an average of about $500,000 per mile — although in urban areas the cost has run as high as $17 million per mile.

In 1957—when Michigan's five-year roadbuilding program started—the state had 101 miles of freeways. The longest stretch was the 51 miles from Detroit to Ann Arbor.

By the middle of December the mileage will reach more than 800. Michigan has moved up to first place among all states in the construction of interstate highways. By 1962, the state is scheduled to have in operation 1,074 miles of interstate freeways.

A freeway can be defined as a limited-access highway, clear of all cross-traffic and traffic signals.

One exception is a stop light on U.S. 20 where it crosses the Saginaw River. A $4 million double-leaf draw bridge was completed there this week. This type of bridge was the only practical answer, engineers said, to the conflict between land - traffic and ocean-going and lake freighters plying the river.

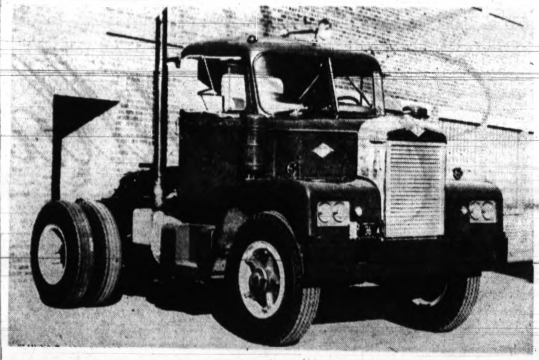
Many of the states' new freeways are part of the interstate system—set up by the Federal Government to provide a national network of limited-access, traffic signal-free roads. Thus, Interstate 75 starts in Tampa, Fla. and ends in Sault Ste. Marie—with not a traffic signal or stop sign anywhere along the way.

Michigan's five-year program — partially under the interstate system — means that every major city in the Lower Peninsula, and Sault Ste. Marie in the upper, should have nothing between them but "clear sailing" by 1962.

U. S. truck and trailer producers used 715,000 more tons of steel, 23 million more pounds of copper and 17 million more pounds of aluminum last year than in 1958.



DIAMOND T LIGHTWEIGHT — Diesel engines ranging in size from 180 to 250 horsepower are available in the Diamond T Model 990 tractor. The cab measures 90 inches from bumper to back. Aluminum parts include the radiator shell and tanks, bumper, hood, fuel tanks, flywheel housing and transmission case.

Factory Skills Being Learned

Service Technicians Are Offered Special on the Job Training

Service technicians of authorized automobile and truck dealerships in the U. S. will receive more than 3½ million hours of special factory training in 1960.

★ ★ ★

More than 228,000 technicians are enrolled in such training programs. Training is conducted during regular working hours and takes up about 344,000 man hours a year.

Individual courses range from one day to a full week, and are held in specially built training centers, mobile shops, or on the job. In many cases, on-the-job instruction is not included in the count of total training hours.

In the training centers, for example, advanced techniques assuring understanding and competence are used. Films, charts, models, and expert instructors all play a part in providing skills for service.

One manufacturer now takes a specially equipped shop-on-wheels to the dealer's service shop for technician instruction and refresher courses. All of the technicians involved in the industry's programs are already qualified mechanics; these millions of hours are devoted to advanced work.

This combination of schools, representatives, and other forms of communications make today's service technician the most highly skilled in the history of the industry, according to the manufacturers' service directors.

There are 9,089 parking lots and 1,908 parking structures or storage garages in the country.

Most Urbanites Travel by Car

Small Communities Are Even More Dependent on Automobile

Nearly two-thirds of intra-city travel is by passenger car, post-war traffic surveys reveal.

★ ★ ★

The studies, conducted by city and state traffic engineers in co-operation with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, also showed that small cities are more dependent upon automobiles than larger ones.

Automobiles and taxis, with drivers included, carry 50 per cent of the passenger traffic in surveyed cities with more than 1,000,000 population.

This mode of travel, however, accounts for 87.2 per cent of the load in the smallest communities studied, with less than 50,000 population.

The average is 78.5 per cent for cities in the population range of 100,000 to 250,000 group.

The studies which were conducted in 50 cities disclosed that most auto trips are of an essential nature.

Compiled results showed that 55 per cent of automobile drivers were at work or on business missions. Another 15 per cent were shopping while the remainder were driving for social-recreational and miscellaneous other purposes.

Show Stage Longer Than Grid Field

A stage longer than a football field has been built in Cobo Hall for the National Automobile Show in Detroit.

The unique stage area and theme center — 350 feet long by 90 feet deep — is on the gigantic main exhibit floor of the new exhibition building.

★ ★ ★

The stage area is big enough to accommodate a 750-foot continuous conveyer of cars as well as the Auto Show musical revue "Wheels of Freedom" with 60 singers, dancers and musicians.

Cars on the conveyer move over pools of vari-colored water, with tires just skimming the surface. The carousel stops moving while the musical revue is on, four times daily. This also applies to the once-a-day style show on the stage.

WATCH THE CARS GO BY

The conveyer of cars, a complete auto show in itself, enables the show visitor to stand in one place and watch the 1961 models move by.

The pool area constructed of heavy masonry block and reinforced concrete covers 10,000 square feet. Pool liners of bright colors and underwater lighting complete the dramatic effect.

The huge theme symbol carries the "Wheels of Freedom" message on three silver elliptical forms mounted on three golden wheels, each 18 feet in diameter.

Construction of the symbol required 4,000 square feet of plywood, 2,000 lineal feet of clear spruce lumber, 1,200 square feet of masonite, 575 feet of three-inch steel tubing, 30 feet of ten-inch I beams, 1,500 square feet of fabric, 10 gallons of glue, 5 gallons of putty, 30 gallons of paint and a keg of nails.

2,500 U.S. Firms in Automotive Business

When we talk about automobile and truck manufacturing something like a dozen or so of the well known company names generally come to mind.

But actually there are more than 2,500 companies throughout the U.S. that are engaged in producing motor vehicles and equipment.

These include 1,220 firms turning out motor vehicles and parts; 607 making motor truck and bus bodies; 155 engaged in manufacturing motor truck trailers, and 528 building automobile trailers.

Nearly Third-Million Firms in Retailing

There are nearly one-third of a million retail automotive establishments in the country.

Some 38,000 of them are franchised passenger car dealers and another 25,000 are nonfranchised. Tire, battery and accessory dealers account for another 21,000, while gasoline service stations actually lead the list with a total of 206,302 places where the motorist can drive in for oil, gas, service and minor repairs.

Household trailer and miscellaneous auto dealers account for another 4,000 establishments.

GREENBRIER SPORTS WAGON — A new addition to the Corvair line in 1961 is the Greenbrier Sports Wagon. A nine-passenger bus, it is easily converted for camp use or into a light cargo vehicle. The wagon is powered by a six-cylinder engine capable of 80 horsepower at 4,400 rpm's. Over-all length is 179.9 inches, and it has a 95 inch wheelbase. Curb weight is 3,005 pounds.

Radio manufacturers produced more than 5.5 million radios, or 35 per cent of their total output for automobile use.

4-Cent Stamp Will Honor 1961 Show

A 4-cent commemorative stamp honoring the automobile industry will be placed on first day sale Saturday in conjunction with the opening of the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit's Cobo Hall.

★ ★ ★

The stamp, the fourth ever issued honoring an industry, was designed by New York artist Arnold J. Copeland. Featuring the Auto Show theme, "Wheels of Freedom," the blue stamp carries illustrations of a passenger car, truck and tractor centered in a symbolic steering wheel.

As a background, and linked by the central subjects, are globes showing the eastern and western hemispheres.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has announced an initial printing of 120 million.

★ ★ ★

The stamp is being issued in sheets of 50 and sold at a special branch post office in the Auto Wonderland section of the Auto Show as well as at regular post offices.

'40 Auto Show Last Till '56

National Event Had Run Without a Break Since 1900

The 41st national show, held Oct. 12-20, 1940, at Grand Central Palace in New York City, was the last of a series that had run without break from 1900.

★ ★ ★

Before the doors were opened on this event, AMA directors announced that all manufacturers had shelved plans for the 1941 show and new model introductions so that time and attention, as dictated by the emerging needs, could be devoted to production for national defense.

President Roosevelt hailed the recision thus, in a letter to the directors:

"It is a tribute to this nation's productive ability that the automobile companies, now joined in production of armaments for defense, at the same time are providing improved vehicles to meet the needs of our population."

THE NEXT SHOW WAS HELD IN 1956

Because 1940 was the 50th anniversary of the Pan-American Union, the show emphasized Western Hemisphere unity. The decorative scheme was Latin-American, and a feature event was the banquet celebrating the completion of three-fourths of the road linking the nations of North and South America.

The automobile was now old enough to begin to have a following of sentimental "fans" concerned about its history. For such, there wa sa fourth floor exhibit of 40 restored antique automobiles. This space, dedicated to recollection, was a fitting farewell to a tradition.

Most '61 Designers Scaled Down Width

Several states have 80 inch width laws, which require that any vehicle wider than 80 inches must have special identifying lights, such as the big trucks do.

The drop in width is in keeping with the trend to cut the general size, both length and width, of the major cars.

The Tempest four is basically the right hand bank of Pontiac's big, V-8 engine, proven by years of research, development and operation. The design of this engine makes thte best possible use of underhood space, resulting in easy servicing of all components.

1961 Pontiac Is 'Tailor Made'

"We took a look at what we thought the public really wanted," said Pontiac Motor Division Chief Engineer E. M. Estes, "and did the best job we knew how to come up with a package having practical and sensible interior proportions and the kind of seating comfort that gives one a secure homelike feeling.

"As a result, there are increases in headroom, rear seat leg and toe room as well as a more natural and comfortable sitting position which results from greater seat chair height.

"Yet, 1961 Pontiacs are four inches shorter and two and one-half inches narrower on the outside than the 1960 models.

"There are fifteen newly styled bodies ranging from the Catalina and Ventura series on 119-inch wheelbase to the 123-inch wheelbase top line Star Chief and Bonneville models.

"Each model is distinctive with sculptured bodies accented with fine lines of chrome and identifying series names. Interiors are completely new and as rich looking as we could make them.

"From a structural standpoint, heading the list are rugged new perimeter type frames, improved front suspension and new four-link rear suspension that means a softer, more luxurious ride and new measure of stability.

"Refined 389 - cubic inch 'Trophy' engines are lighter, more economical to operate and have improved performance. Carburetors are improved, and intake manifolds are better.

"There are many other new engineering features in the 1961 Pontiac, but the true story can only be told if you look them over yourself. Take a ride in one and we think you will agree that we have a right to be proud of this car," Estes concluded.

All Firms Adopt Plan

12-Month Warranty on '61s

A written 12,000 mile, 12-month warranty will cover all 1961 automobiles and some trucks.

The departure from the traditional 3,000-mile, 90-day policy was initiated by Ford Motor Co. Its lead was quickly followed by American Motors, General Motors, Chrysler Corp., and Studebaker-Packard.

Following Henry Ford II's announcement, AMC President George Romney said the company also would officially adopt the 12-12 plan for '61 models.

Romney also announced that beginning with the 1961 Rambler models all mufflers and tailpipes, which have been among the fastest deteriorating parts, will be guaranteed for the lifetime of the car while in the hands of the original owner.

The new cars will be equipped with ceramic-armored muffler-tailpipes, which, Romney said, should resist acid, salt and rust indefinitely.

★ ★ ★

GM said its extended policy would apply to both '61 cars and trucks. S-P followed with a similar announcement.

Later Chrysler added its cars and trucks to the 12-12 program.

In Canada, both GM and Ford announced identical programs to those at the parent plants in the United States.

THE COMET — A new grille and minor ornamental differences are the only change in the 1961 Comet styling. In addition to the standard 85 horsepower economy engine, an optional 101 h.p. six-cylinder engine is available. Over-all length is 194.8 inches; wheelbase is 114 inches; and the Comet weighs 2,539 pounds.

Four Seasons All in Show

Auto Displays Offering All Types of Weather for Spectators

No matter what their favorite season, visitors to the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit will find the weather to their liking.

★ ★ ★

Within minutes, show-goers visiting the combined Plymouth and Valiant display will be able to walk through all four seasons—winter, spring, summer and fall.

★ ★ ★

In the middle of the 13,330 square foot display area located in the center of the exposition hall are four fiberglass shell-shaped stages ten feet high and 18 feet wide. Each forms the setting for a different season.

A white 1961 Plymouth or Valiant will be the center of attraction in each of the scenes. Cars to be used are: Plymouth Fury Convertible; Plymouth Fury 2-door hardtop; Valiant V-200 2-door hardtop which is being introduced for the first time this year; and a Valiant V-200 station wagon.

★ ★ ★

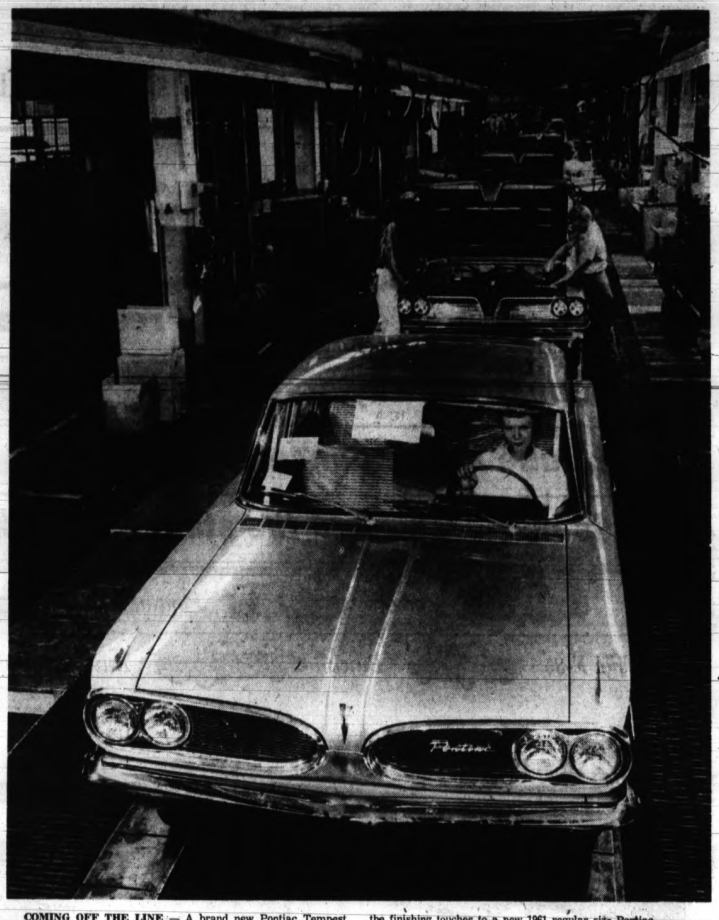
Spread throughout the entire exhibit will be 14 other Plymouth and Valiant cars in a multi-array of colors and body styles.

Production of five new Corvair models required 2,600 additional people in 14 cities and five states, according to the Chevrolet Division of General Motors.



COMING OFF THE LINE — A brand new Pontiac Tempest Sedan is driven from the assembly line as assembly workers apply the finishing touches to a new 1961 regular size Pontiac.

Like Dependable 'Old Dobbin'

Motor Truck Is Sometimes Neglected

"Old Dobbin" the workhorse was a dependable beast of burden but he rarely got the praise and favored treatment of a blooded harness or saddle horse.

Likewise, today, the hard-working truck sometimes plays second fiddle to its more glamorous cousin—the passenger car.

During the past 50 years the truck has revolutionized the transportation of goods and materials as much as the passenger car has changed the life of the individual American. The effect of the truck on the U.S. economy is incalculable.

For instance, there are 11 million trucks in operation in the U.S. today and they provide employment for more than 7,300,000 persons. Indirectly, they create millions of other jobs as well.

Trucks carry practically all of the nation's farm products at least part way to the market and annually they carry about 240 tons of goods per family, or 70 tons for each individual.

★ ★

Historians of the auto age have neglected the truck. There is scarcely a book to be found that thoroughly traces its beginnings and development.

Perhaps the reason for this apparent neglect was that in the early days of the motor vehicle, trucks were only vaguely distinguished from other types of motor vehicles.

★ ★ ★

The term "automobile" was not universally used in this country until many years after "horseless carriages" first appeared. And, while the word today denotes "passenger car," it once applied more generally to all self-propelled road conveyances. The word "truck" was of later coinage.

STARTED WITH TRUCK

The origins of the truck could be traced back to the first cart, or perhaps just back to the steam vehicles of the French Captain, Nicholas Cugnot, and the American, Oliver Evans, at the dawn of the 19th century.

Cugnot's cumbersome creation was designed to pull artillery which would make it a tractor in today's terminology. Evans' vehicle, a barge that moved to the waterfront of Philadelphia on its own steam-powered wheels, was what we would now call an amphibious truck.

The great revolution in transport, however, did not get underway until the end of the century when lighter weight steam, electric and gasoline-powered road vehicles were invented.

Looking back only that far, it still is hard to tell exactly when and how the truck emerged—whether it developed from or preceded the passenger car.

★ ★

In Germany, both Benz and Daimler turned out commercial vehicles about as early as they made automobiles. The same was true of such French pioneers as Lavassor and Panhard. And, in the United States, the early Duryea vehicles were officially called "motor wagons" and were intended to carry both passengers and goods.

★ ★ ★

Many early commercial motor vehicles used in this country were only passenger car chassis equipped with various types of truck bodies. As early as 1901, such "trucks" were being used for local deliveries.

Three smaller turntables atop a 47-foot turntable will be featured in the Ford display at the Auto Show.

Three cars on this will be the centerpiece of the Ford display. Fifteen cars will be used in the exhibit, and eight trucks.

The only compact with fine-car styling A spirited sense of proportion gives Comet the most successful styling in the compact-car field. New rustproof aluminum grille, exquisite new interior fabrics, new fine-car appointments everywhere.

The first family-size compact Comet's 114" wheelbase (longer than any other compact's) provides spacious comfort other compacts sacrifice. There is room for six grownups and a family-size load of luggage besides.

Big-car ride—small-car handling The refined suspension (plus the 114" wheelbase) makes Comet's ride steadier and smoother than many standard cars. And you'll find that Comet turns, parks and handles almost as easily as a baby carriage.

Priced with or below compacts of other makers For all its fine-car flair, family size, big-car ride and value features, Comet's priced with or below compacts of other makers.

New Thrift Power 170 engine for '61 Comet now offers two economy engines—the standard Thrift Power Six plus the new optional Thrift Power 170, for 11% faster highway passing, 22% better acceleration on hills.

THE VALIANT — Plymouth has added two new body styles to its 1961 line of compact Valiants. The four-door sedan and the four-door suburban are available in both the V-100 and V-200 series. The two-door sedan is offered only as a V-100 and the two-door hardtop only as a V-200. All models are powered by a 101 horsepower six-clinder engine, and have an overall length of 183.7 inches.

building projects to expand and modernize its facilities," Cole said. "Included are propects which will add 2.5 million square feet of space to its plants and 1.7 million square feet to its parts warehouses," he added.

Minnesota has 10 million acres of marshland.

Brazil is the largest U. S. motor vehicle export market. The South American country bought 46,600 vehicles last year — 43,000 were trucks.

More than $18 billion was extended for consumer installment credit on automobiles last year. During the same period $15.7 billion was repaid.

Fashion and Auto Designers Have Influence on One Another

American fashion designers and automotive designers apparently are in complete agreement on one point — they definitely have an influence on one another.

Visitors to the 43rd National Automobile Show in Cobo Hall will have an excellent opportunity to observe this relationship.

In addition to the dazzling display of American-built 1961 car models there will be a style show staged each day by the J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit's largest department store. During the six days of show — Oct. 17 through 22 — outstanding fashion designers will present their own creations.

What do some of these outstanding personalities in the realm of women's fashions have to comment on the relationship of cars and gowns?

Bill Blass, chief designer for the House of Maurice Rentner, comes right out and says that "automotive design has a great effect on women's fashions."

Blass contends that the bright colors now in vogue started with automobiles, "especially the brilliant jewel tones being shown this fall." He adds:

"The simplicity of design, which is part of contemporary American Life, began in Detroit and has carried over to fashion with the casual, simple and sleek designs."

GEARED TO TRAVEL

Blass feels that this fall, more than ever, fashion design has been geared to travel "and to automobile driving." He cites the prevalence of knit dresses, shorter skirts and culottes, and more casual and loose fitting clothing designed to add to auto riding comfort.

Vera Maxwell, well known for her fabric designs and use of color, believes the automotive designers take their cues more from fashion designers than the other way around.

"Fashion design influences automotive design with its preponderance of color," she declares, "The textures and colors of the fashion designer influence the patterns and color combinations in use on automobiles."

Miss Maxwell then makes quite a concession to the auto industry's latest innovation — the compact car.

"Automotive design, with its new small cars, has in many ways influenced fashion with its short coat effects," she asserts. Miss Maxwell cites the car coat, tapered slacks and culottes — "all of which make getting in and out of the automobile so easy."

* * *

Larry Aldrich has this to say: "American designers have made tremendous strides in the creation of clothes for American women. The simplicity of line and newness of design which is the true test of elegance, has affected all commercial design in every field — the home as well as the automobile. The fashion industry has taken the lead in designing soft goods, and the automotive industry has particularly followed through in stressing newness of design and simplicity of line."

WOMEN DO SELECTING

A widely known and independent automotive designer and stylist was asked for a dispassionate viewpoint from the Detroit side of the fence.

William M. Schmidt, president of William M. Schmidt Associates, says the biggest consideration from the automotive designers viewpoint is the fact "that women select most of the cars sold in the United States."

* * *

While the husband or boy friend may have the final say on the choice of a car's mechanical features, Schmidt says the women decide more often than not the body style and color, the interior appointments, and upholstery fabrics.

"Since women follow the fashion trends, so do the automotive designers," Schmidt said. "That's why most of the auto designers go to Europe to see the fashion shows. They watch for trends in both colors and fabrics so that the new model cars will be equally in fashion with the well dressed women."

General Motors' support to higher education includes undergraduate scholarships, fellowships, grants-in-aid to private colleges, and contributions for research projects and educational conferences. Cost of the entire program, which benefits over 380 colleges, is more than $5 million annually.

Chevy Choice Is Wide—Cole

'61 Range of Products Allows Competition in 90 Per Cent of Market

Styling and engineering improvements in American automobiles are big news at auto shows. In the same manner that the ladies look forward to new fashion styles, the whole family gives close attention to the new offerings of the automotive industry about this time of the year.

In its 1961 line, Chevrolet offers the widest customer choice in its history, according to E. N. Cole, Chevrolet Division. We estimate that our 1961 range of products allow us to compete in about 90 per cent of the entire U.S. car and truck market," Cole said.

But behind the expansion of car lines and the increasing demand for automotive products in America is an equally significant — and often overlooked — story of the impact which the auto industry makes on the nation's economy.

Adding new products or increasing production usually calls for new facilities in which to build them. This requires new construction people and later more men to man the expanded production lines.

"Between now and the end of 1961, for example, Chevrolet will have under construction throughout the United States, a total of 30

National Auto Show Last Staged in 1956

While the National Automobile Show being staged in Detroit's spanking new Cobo Hall is the 42nd such event, the shows have not been presented annually.

The first National Auto Show was held in New York's Coliseum Dec. 8, 1956. At that time the show was the first major public event in the then-new Coliseum.

More than 300,000 square feet of exhibition space on three floors were filled with 1957 car and truck models, and a colorful, fast-moving musical revue was presented at intervals on the show's huge stage.

Keyed to the theme "America on the Move — A Salute to a Car — Travelling People," the show ran for nine days of mostly blustery and wet winter weather, but it nevertheless drew capacity crowds on two week-ends.

The main pre-show event was the industry's traditional banquet at the Waldorf on Thursday, Dec. 6. The "black tie" affair was attended by 1,200 leaders of business and industry, publishers, civic leaders, government officials and members of the press. The principal speaker was Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who delivered the first major foreign policy address ever made by a vice president of the United States.

Previewed by the press Friday night, the show opened at noon Saturday, when Robert Wagner, Mayor of New York, and six executives of vehicle manufacturing firms simultaneously blew a battery of motor horns mounted on steering wheels in the foyer, and the doors swung open to admit the first visitors from the long lines that had formed in the morning.

All American passenger car makes were shown: Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Chrysler, Continental, De Soto, Ford, Hudson, Nash and Rambler, Lincoln, Mercury, Oldsmobile, Packard, Plymouth, Pontiac and Studebaker. In addition, there were 11 truck and bus exhibits showing: Chevrolet, Diamond T, Dodge, Ford, GMC, International Harvester, Mack, Reo, Studebaker, White and Willys. The display included 124 passenger cars and 66 trucks and buses.

To present the 30-minute musical show, as well as the afternoon fashion shows, one of the largest stages in New York had to be built. It was 90 feet wide and 72 feet deep, and an orchestra stand, weighing more than 16 tons, towered above it. Stage and stand were donated to the Coliseum when the show ended.

The Coliseum's ground floor was devoted to displays that portrayed dramatically how the nation was now being served by a fleet of ten-million trucks. On the third floor, a special cinema theatre was built to show a new motion picture, "Your Safety First," which used the animated cartoon technique to tell the history of the modern automobile's emergence from the flimsy horseless carriage as a series of evolutionary steps in the improvement of vehicle safety.

In a congratulatory telegram to AMA President George Romney, President Eisenhower said: "America has a vital interest in the products and progress of the automobile industry. Our economy and our way of life depend to a considerable degree upon the traffic from our automobile factories and upon our highways."

Never before had so many people seen a national automobile show. An estimated 21,600,600 people, in 115 communities across the land, "visited" this show in their own homes, a feat achieved by means of an hour-long nationwide telecast over the Columbia Broadcasting System on Sunday afternoon, December 9. Seven camera and recording crews worked on three floors simultaneously as a battery of 75 reporters escorted the armchair visitors on a full tour of the exhibits.

★ ★ ★

Up to now, the national shows had all been staged in New York City, although several of the early ones "went on the road" to Chicago.

Oddly enough, Detroit, the industry's heartland, had never had a national show, although civic leaders had clamored for years for such an annual event as the logical thing for the Motor City.

Then, in 1960, with the country's most modern and most flexible exhibition building, Cobo Hall, available in the city's new riverfront Civic Center, the show came home to Detroit.

★ ★ ★

The show was fittingly designed as a first for Cobo Hall and the dedication of the model exhibition structure was planned as the opening feature for the national show's home-coming.

'61 Auto Field Has Variety

Hard to Find Any Clear-Cut Trend in Design, Engineering

"You name it, we've got it!"

This might be the slogan of the American automobile manufacturers exhibiting their 1961 cars and trucks at the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit's Cobo Hall Oct. 15-23.

It would be a hopeless task for anyone visiting this exciting display of American-built vehicles to find a clear-cut single trend of design and engineering.

Probably not since the early days of the automobile when automotive engineers and motorists were still debating the pros and cons of gasoline, steam or electric power, has there been such a wide choice in car size, appearance or engineering features.

The most noteworthy passenger car development of the year, no doubt is the introduction of four new nameplates to add to the six introduced last year. Eight of these ten new makes are in the lighter economy, "compact" class—now enjoying a burst of popularity. All of them are distinctively American in appearance.

★ ★ ★

The whole gamut of engine choices are represented for the first time in the compacts, from four cylinders, through the various sixes, to an all-aluminum V-8.

The rear-mount engine first introduced last year in an American car is joined in 1961 by an engine in front with transmission in the rear.

Some of the new compacts are slightly larger than last year's crop and are more highly-styled. Conversely, some of the standard-sized cars are somewhat shorter, narrower, and more economical to operate than in previous years.

★

Styling runs the gamut from the free-flowing look, with sculptured body effects, to what is being called a return to the American classic look.

Models in the medium price range are more elegantly designed and styled than ever before, yet they also emphasize economy.

An important development in the truck field has been the introduction of new small models related to the compact cars, for city pickup and delivery service or other light duty.

All the truck lines displayed at the auto show are modern in looks as well as performance. Some truck lines bear close resemblance to their related passenger lines.

Military vehicles also will be in the Show, including a truck that can swim in water using only its wheels for propulsion as on the highway.

Modern Fabrics Boon to Wearer of Mink Coats

That mink coat of yours will look mighty good in one of the new 1961 automobiles. And it won't wear or pull needlessly on the car's upholstery.

★ ★ ★

How come? Seems that some fabrics will expand when sat upon, contract when the body rises. This action can and often does "clip off" the precious guard hairs on your mink fur piece.

But take heart, ladies. Your mink's safety was considered in the interior decoration of Buick's new 1961 models. Designers for Buick give this assurance because of Squirming Irma, an unusual fabric-testing machine that spells greater safety for your furs.

Squirming Irma was designed specifically to test pieces of fur, especially mink, on car seats, covered with various types of fabric. If the fabric pulls the mink guard hairs or wears them unnecessarily, Irma knows and promptly identifies all offending material.

★ ★ ★

A fabric that was selected for 1961 LeSabre Buicks, for instance, was given a pre-test in the laboratory and given the green light—until it met up with Squirming Irma. She got all worked up when she found this fabric to be a mink shedder — and you can guess what happened to it.

And, girls, you can bet your fur coats will be all the happier for it!

Ford's Lincoln Continental line has introduced a four-door convertible the first of its kind available in several years.

GMC'S TRANSIT COACH — A main attraction at the GMC Truck and Coach Division exhibit in the National Automobile Show will be this new GMC Transit Coach. The coach, which seats 53 passengers, has 93 per cent more glass area than former models. The expansive, low windshield area enables the driver to easily see pedestrians crossing in front of the coach.

Ninth Show First Designed for Public

The ninth National Auto Show was the first designed with the public in mind. Hitherto, the aim had been to attract dealers.

This, the fourth show sponsored by the Association of licensed Automobile Manufacturers, drew a full house on opening night, despite a howling snowstorm.

Next day there was an organized tour for the industry's engineers. They were give time to examine construction details of chassis, engines, transmissions and so on.

Forty-eight exhibitors showed 216 vehicles. These included 117 complete gasoline-powered passenger cars and 28 chassis; 37 complete electric passenger cars and five chassis; two White steamers; 19 complete commercial cars and five chassis; and three Thomas taxicabs.

Almost every manufacturer had at least one chassis on display: Lozier, Sterns, Matheson and Chalmers each had one. In that era it was not uncommon to buy a chassis and have a fine carriage-builder fit a custom body on it.

The exhibit erea was carpeted uniformerly in green, outlined in white. Lamp posts at the corners of each stand carried the manufacturer's name on all four sides. A triumphal arch 87 feet wide and 48 feet high filled the Fourth Avenue end of the main arena.

White bunting hung from the balcony, and the new ALAM emblem —an eagle and a wheel—appeared for the first time.

There seemed to be more dignity surrounding the 1900 show than at past automobile shows, newsman reported. Decorations were not offensive; there were no blaring horns; aisles were roomy, and "salesmen were not pressuring so much." No catalogs were distributed. There were no demonstrations.

Of gasoline cars exhibited, 71 per cent were four-cylinder and 27 per cent were six-cylined. There were only two single-cylinder cars. Ninety-five per cent had water-cooled engines.

★ ★ ★

The Waltham Model 17, at $350, was the lowest-priced car. This runabout had a one-cylinder four h.p. engine. The Peerless 25s, at $7,000 for the limousine and $7,200 for the landaulet were the most expensive cars exhibited.

Progress Made Throughout the Years

Engineers Still Searching for Ideal Transmission

From the infancy of the automotive industry engineers have hunted for an ideal transmission. The requisites: Eliminate the clutch pedal and had gear shifting, make driving safer by making it easier, automatically provide the ideal gear ratio for every driving demand, and so take full advantage of the engine's inherent economy while providing top-flight performance.

★ ★ ★

While continuing engineering development inevitably will bring improvements over today's automatics, the first three basic requisites of the ideal have been met. Great progress has been made toward providing the answers to the last two.

Over the years, many types of transmissions have been tried. There were sliding gear transmissions, over-gear transmissions, synchronized, constant mesh and planetary transmissions. Variable throw, inertia, hydraulic and electric transmissions were all subjected to searching laboratory and road tests.

Some of the more significant recent developments include slimmer and lighter designs, smoother shifting pattern and the introduction of the "transaxle" which combines the transmission with the differential.

Among the most promising seemed to be the hydraulic and electric mechanisms, but lack of materials in the early days proved their undoing.

As early as 1895, the battery-powered Dey-Griswold sought to use a fluid drive. The electric motor was to drive two pumps, forcing oil to turbines on the rear wheels. The car never reached production. Chief among the "bugs" was lack of tubing strong enough to carry the necessary pressure.

Several early autos used a friction drive, with Cartercar undoubtedly the most popular. In the first decade of the century the Cartercar offered the motorist an infinitely variable gear ratio, but selection was still manual and not automatic.

In the same period, the Columbia used an electric transmission with seven speeds and a little later the Owen Magnetic, "the car of a thousand speeds," used its gasoline engine to drive an electric generator which in turn powered an electric transmission.

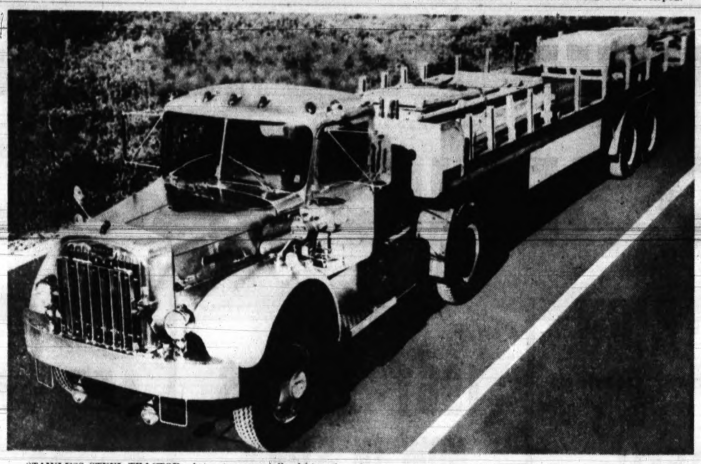
Manley, the engineer who helped Langley with his first airplane, designed a hydraulic transmission that worked, but proved far too expensive for production. In the late 20s and early 30s, a major automotive firm spent several years in designing, building and road-testing a fully automatic friction transmission.

It gave more than 300,000 miles of excellent road service and piled up another 115,000 miles of satisfactory laboratory tests.

This transmission provided a maximum efficiency range from 87 to 91 per cent with drive ratios ranging up to 8 to 1. On cross-country trips, it delivered fuel mileage gains up to 20 per cent — but was not adopted.

With materials and manufacturing methods then known, it would have weighed 250 pounds and pushed the cost of an automobile into the luxury class.

These years of research and experiment were not wasted, however. When better materials and production methods were developed, automotive engineers had a wealth of information on which to draw. The results are the finest transmissions ever developed.



STAINLESS STEEL TRACTOR—A tractor especially designed for use when corrosion may be a problem from the standpoint of atmosphere or product condition will be displayed by the Autocar Division of the White Motor Co. at the Auto Show. Utilizing stainless steel for hood, cowl, fenders, radiator shell, bumper, bumper aprons, exhaust stack and guard, this model also has a chrome-plated radiator guard.

Car Production Continues Up

Compacts Set Record for a Week at 45,035; Trucks Drop Off

DETROIT (AP) — Auto production in the United States continued to move upward this week with compact cars setting an all time record, Automotive News reported today.

The trade paper estimated total output at 149,322 passenger cars, compared with 140,984 last week and 133,611 in the similar week of 1959.

Of the total 45,035 were the smaller cars. The previous high was 43,894 last week.

Truck production continues to run below last year with 19,146 assemblies this week, compared with 23,965 in the similar week of 1959. Last week's truck production totaled 17,718 units.

★ ★ ★

Canadian factories produced 5,995 cars and trucks this week, down from 6,246 a week ago but ahead of last year's 5,320.

Auto Show Moved Out to Sticks, Nobody Comes

In 1924 the 24th National Automobile Show moved from its customary spot, The Palace in New York. As the result, sponsors nearly failed to attract anyone.

Under the slogan, "The Big Show in a Bigger Place," the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce moved the show to the 258th Field Artillery Armory, nine miles, or 30 minutes ride, from the heart of Manhattan in the Bronx.

The Palace, so recently commodius, was no longer big enough to exhibit the products of 73 auto firms and 221 parts and accessories manufacturers.

Sam Miles, show manager, did all he could to direct the visitors to the Armory. Streets and highways leading to it were posted. Parking was provided for 3,000 cars. Hotel menus in Manhattan directed subway rides to the Armory, as did department store window displays.

The first few hours brought a shocking disappointment; nobody came.

In the cavernous hall salesmen shouted to each other, 'Who's buried under your tombstone?" pointing to the white, sculptured exhibit area markers.

Later, it was discovered that subway wrecks, the first in years, had halted the flow of visitors from mid-Manhattan. Still later that evening, a drop in temperature to zero further curtailed attendance.

Four-wheel brakes and balloon tires drew most attention. The Essex coach, priced under $1,000, attracted great crowds. There was great interest, too, in the quick-drying, finishes which permitted baking of bodies with wood frames.

★ ★ ★

Show visitors were happy to discover one of the Armory's advantages: several thousand balcony seats that afforded an unbroken view of the largest show arena in the world. A restaurant seating 800 attracted others.

While Manager Miles fretted about the lack of visitors during this show's opening night, Walter P. Chrysler was packing people into the lobby of the Hotel Commodore, where his Maxwell-Chalmers Corporation unveiled that year's outstanding automotive sensation—the first Chrysler car, a light six, featuring a high-compression engine, a seven-bearing crankshaft, four-wheel hydraulic brakes, a replaceable cartridge oil filter, and body styling that pleased almost everyone.

Economy of Nation Important in Color

Whether you know it or not, the economic state of the nation plays a big role in determining the color of the car you buy.

Sounds crazy, but it's a fact. Two other factors, besides personal color tastes, affect your choice: the climate in your particular part of the country and technological developments.

About the state of the nation bit. Color specialists tell us that when our economy is high, the public's taste favors light colors. From this we can surmise that if times are bad, we prefer darker, more sombed tones. White has been the most preferred color in 1960 models and is expected to hold the No. 1 spot.

And the weather? Folks in warmer climates want their cars in light or pastel shades. Those who live in colder areas prefer darker colors. But again white rates high — an indication that prosperity is a stronger influence than climate.

Research to improve paint and create new colors goes on constantly, and new achievements in that field brings the prediction that maroon will be a "hot" color in 1961.

Early Owners Often Injured

It usually meant the wearer of the cast was the proud—if injured —owner of a horseless carriage.

The Badge of Distinction disappeared with the advent of the self-starter for automobiles. That began in the year 1910 when the late Charles F. (Boss) Kettering, who became GM research director, devised the electrical apparatus which today is accepted as "any other part of the car."

In the early days of motoring there was affixed to the forward engine mounting an "S" shaped piece of iron which could be slotted into an extension of the the crankshaft.

By grasping the end of the "S" handle and performing a rotary motion of hand and arm (accompanied by bending of body, weaving of head and sweating of brow), it was possible, on most occasions, to "generate" enough electricity to cause a spark in the plugs and thereby fire the gasoline in the cylinders and start the engine.

★ ★ ★

Also, in those early days, the "spark was adjusted by hand." This was a term meaning to preset the ignition contacts so that the engine would fire when the rotation of the engine coincided with that of the pre-set "timer."

This often inadvertently caused the engine to fire before the piston had reached the top of the stroke and thereby revolve in a reverse cycle.

With crank firmly affixed to the crankshaft, such backward revolution brought the crank handle back into the arm of the "cranker," dealing the forearm a severe blow. Often both arm bones were shattered.

With the "self-starter," first introduced on a Cadillac in the year 1911, motorist doctors' bills for repair of broken arms were virtually eliminated.

Engineering improvements on starter motors manufactured by the Delco-Remy Division of General Motors have been made constantly since the first "Boss Ket" production. Today an 18-pound electric motor on a modern car will develop 162 horsepower and is designed to revolve a 348 horsepower gasoline engine at 100 revolutions per minute.

Starting motors usually run as long as a car is in use; today's models have a record of better than 20,000 "starts" on testing blocks. It is designed to cause the engine to fire in less than 30 seconds.

Pontiac and Tempest on Common Line

In manufacturing the 1961 Pontiac and Tempest, Pontiac Motor Division utilizes a common assembly line for both cars. Four-cylinder and eight-cylinder engines also are machined, assembled and tested on a common line, resulting in higher efficiency.

Of the 118,885,000 motor vehicles registered in the world, 65 per cent are in the U. S. Americans own 64 million, or 70 per cent of the passenger cars in the world; 49 per cent of the world's motor trucks; and more than 33 per cent of the busses.

Kaleidoscope of Models Now on Market

Our Changing Tastes Dictate Trends

The story of the American automobile in its design and styling is one of varying trends dictated by the imagination and changing tastes of a free people.

The streets, highways and expressways of America today are filled with nearly 60 million cars—a kaleidoscope of shapes and sizes and colors that can be seen nowhere else in the world.

★ ★ ★

But the real phenomena of the motor car today has its basis at the average American home where the car in the garage is duplicated by another in the driveway and oftentimes by a third vehicle in front of the house.

It is not too important whether the cars are new or used or whether the tailfins point up, sideways or at a rakish angle or there are no tailfins at all.

★ ★ ★

What matters most is that the cars are in good operating condition and ready at a moment's notice to carry dad to the office or golf course, daughter or son to school or the beach, and mother to the shopping center or her appointment with the hairdresser.

★ ★ ★

This is the age of personal transportation, a situation peculiar to the United States and Canada. Americans constantly are on the go and they don't want to lose any time getting there. It didn't happen all of a sudden—it has been in evolution ever since the first automobile was built here in 1893.

In the first cars they merely replaced the horse with a one or two-cylinder gasoline engine and it took a few additional years for the inventors to find out that the rear wheels need not be any larger than the front ones.

By 1900 the automobile began to assume its own peculiar shape but the large wheels and high body suspension still had to conform to the roads of those days—unpaved and muddy.

The first Glidden tour of 1905 put the automobiles to their first rugged test. Many of them bogged down in the mud and had to be pulled out by horses. This same year cars were first sold on the installment plan.

The first four-cylinder gasoline engine appeared in 1902 and by 1905 the car designers were making it possible for back seat passengers to board an automobile from the side instead of the rear.

Six-cylinder engines were introduced in 1906 and they were getting around to installing front bumpers on cars—at extra cost to the buyer.

The first automobiles even sacrificed the weather-protecting buggy top. The touring car with its folding top and windshield began appearing by 1907, the roadster and enclosed sedans by 1913. The first closed cars were boxy looking until the 20's when more attention was given to graceful styling.

★ ★ ★

The American automobiles began taking on the so-called "classic" look in the early 30's and have steadily improved in every way—design, styling, comfort, performance and safety.

The transition in the design and styling of the American automobile probably has been as great in the past decade as it was in all of the 50 previous years.

The trends in design and styling also were absent in the early decades, principally due to the fact that car makes were limited to one or two body styles.

There were more than 250 different makes of cars being built in the United States in 1908, compared with the 29 being shown at the 43rd National Automobile Show in Detroit's Cobo Hall beginning Oct. 15 and four of the 29 are new makes being offered to the public for the first time.

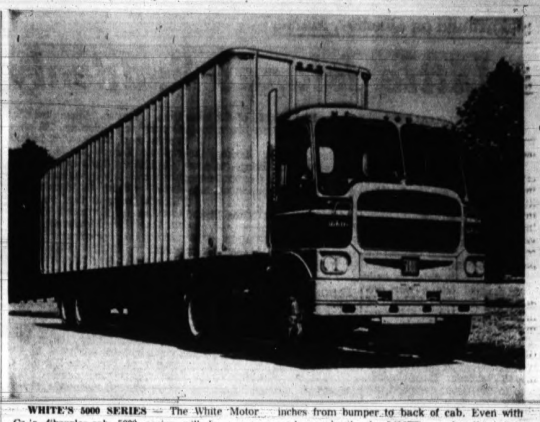
But the combined assortment of different models being offered in the 29 makes of cars would equal or exceed the number of makes of cars back in 1908. The total number of cars produced that year were 63,500 compared with over 6 million passenger cars produced during the 1960 model year.

The trend for 1961 still leans to the compact-family car, although so far this year the standard-sized car has been outselling the smaller editions by the ratio of 3 to 1. Some of the larger standard-sized cars also have been shortened while one or two of the currently-marketed compacts have been lengthened.

But the increasing appeal of the compact-family car still is considered more of a trend than a revolution in the making by the automotive experts.

One need only watch the procession of car makes—from new models to those manufactured 10 years ago—on the streets and expressways to comprehend the lack of alarm one way or the other.

Performing excellent service for their owners are the cars of all sizes and designs—the whole transition of a decade from the "fastbacks" of 1950 to the much wider selection of the present day.



WHITE'S 5000 SERIES — The White Motor Co.'s fiberglas-cab 5000 series will be represented in the National Auto Show by the 5400TD shown above. This diesel tractor measures 50 inches from bumper to back of cab. Even with a sleeper berth, the 5400TD can legally pull a 40-foot trailer in states where over-all length of 50 feet is maximum.

Debut for New Convertible

Unveil Buick 'Flamingo'

The Buick "Flamingo," a custom designed Electra 225 convertible, will make its debut at the National Automobile Show in Cobo Hall, Detroit, October 15-23.

★ ★ ★

Introduction of the "Flamingo" at the Detroit show, according to Edward D. Rollert, general manager of Buick and vice president of General Motors, "will help us evaluate public reaction to its advanced styling concepts."

It will be shown with 14 Buick production models, including four Specials, the new entry in the small car field.

Finished in flamingo color tones, the custom-built Buick features a pearlescent exterior and an interior of genuine, top-grain leather combined with a silk paisley brocade fabric designed in France in cooperation with Buick stylists. The carpeting is of mouton.

Another highlight of the "Flamingo" is its front bucket seats. The passenger seat can be converted to face the rear by sliding its back rest forward.

The "Flamingo" will be seen on a revolving turntable in Buick's 10,920 square foot display area.

Mounted on the auto show's 750-foot "carousel of cars" at the stage and theme center will be an Arctic White Special Deluxe four-door sedan and a Bimini Blue Electra 225 production convertible with bucket seats.

A feature of the Buick exhibit will be the Special's 155 horsepower, aluminum V-8 engine, first ever built in the United states, and its new lightweight transmission.

A standard-size Buick chassis with its new cruciform frame for greater safety and riding comfort and a visitor-operated power steering exhibit will also be at the Buick display.

★ ★ ★

The Custom series, available in Invicta two and four-door hardtops, couples a sports car flavor with family car space and comfort. The four-door models feature rich leather interiors.

The standard Tempest transmission is a manual shift, three-speed conventional synchromesh, while an automatic transmission is offered as an option.

Plymouth to Feature Its New Sports Car

The Plymouth XNR, a two-passenger sports car featuring an entirely new departure in styling, will be displayed at the National Auto Show in Cobo Hall October 15-23.

The sleek roadster will be the centerpiece of the exhibit sponsored by the American Iron and Steel Institute in the Auto Wonderland section of the show. It is the most recent in a line of Chrysler Corporation "Idea Cars" which have had a profound effect on the styling of American passenger cars over the past decade.

The XNR was developed for the Plymouth-De Soto-Valiant Division and named for its designer, Virgil M. Exner, vice president and director of styling for Chrysler Corporation.

OLDSMOBILE F-85 — An aluminum V-8 engine powers Oldsmobile's entry into the compact car field in 1961. The engine has a maximum horsepower rating of 155 at 4,800 rpm's. A station wagon model is also available. Other dimensions are 188 inch over-all length, 112 inch wheelbase, weight 2,695 pounds.

PITTSBURGH — Years from now when they look back at the 1960 World Series, they won't believe it.

They'll look at the statistics and all the records that were smashed and they won't be able to understand how the Pittsburgh Pirates ever managed to defeat the New York Yankees, four games to three.

They'll thrill at the final game heroics, climaxed by Bill Mazeroski's home run in the bottom of the ninth inning that won the most dramatic finale in series history, 10-9, and sent all Pittsburgh into one of the wildest and noisiest celebrations ever staged.

They'll admire the courageous comeback of the underdog "Beat 'Em Bucs," but they'll also wonder how a team that was humiliated by such lopsided scores as 16-3, 10-0 and 12-0 could take the proud and mighty Yankees into the seventh game and then beat them with their own weapon—the home run.

They'll look with awe at the all-time record totals of 55 runs and 91 hits by the Yankees, and then note that the Pirates scored less than half as many runs and collected less than two thirds as many hits, and were out homered 10 to 4, yet were able to end 35 years of frustration with a world championship.

"It's not the number of runs you make," said winning manager Danny Murtaugh during a lull in the wild clubhouse celebration, complete with champagne, "it's the number of games you win. And we won more than they did."

"I've said all along that this is the fightingest ball club I've ever seen," chimed in captain Dick Groat. "Our guys never know when they're licked. Nobody gave us a chance after the third game but us. I knew we'd do it because that's the way we've done it all year—coming from behind to win after everybody counted us out."

That's the way it was yesterday. Pittsburgh had staked Vernon Law, two-time conqueror of the Yankees, to an early 4-0 lead against Bob Turley, and Bill Stafford but the American league champs bounced back with a run on Bill Skowron's homer in the fifth and shelled Law from the mound in the sixth with a four-run assault, featured by Yogi Berra's three-run homer off relief ace Elroy Face.

It looked as if it was all over but the weeping and wailing in Pittsburgh when the Yankees clubbed Face for two more runs in the eighth to open up a 7-4 lead.

But the Pirates, having gone thus far on pitching, defense, timely hits and breaks, refused to be pronounced dead, handcuffed by Bobby Shantz, through 5 innings, during which they managed but one hit, the Bucs strung together three successive hits to get one run back and drive the little lefthander from the mound in their half of the eighth.

With Jim Coates on the mound Roberto Clemente drove in another run with a two out infield single and reserve catcher Hal Smith drove a three-run homer over the left field wall to regain the lead for Pittsburgh 9-7.

The Yankees, showing comeback qualities of their own, rallied for two runs off Bob Friend, making his second appearance — in two days, and Harvey Haddix, winner of the fifth game last Monday. With the score tied at 9-9 Mazeroski teed off on Ralph Terry's second pitch in the bottom of the ninth and crashed it high and far over the left field wall to send the crowd of 36,683 into a delirious state.

It was Mazeroski who hit the Bucs' first series homer, a two-run blast that provided the winning runs in the 6-4 first game victory, and it was Mazeroski who doubled home two runs in the 5-2 fifth game triumph.

It took a break to keep the Bucs alive in the eighth and pave the way for Shantz' departure. After pinch hitter Gino Cimoli singled, Bill Virdon, the defensive hero of the series, rapped a hard grounder to short. It looked like a sure double play and the partisan crowd groaned. The ball took a bad hop, however, struck Tony Kubek in the throat, and went for a single. The shortstop was taken to a hospital for treatment and the Buc rally was in full bloom.

HAPPY PIRATES — Happiest Pirates of them all were Bill Mazeroski and Hal Smith. Mazeroski's 9th inning homer won the game. Smith's home run in the 8th inning with two men on base pushed the Bucs into a 9-7 lead. The Yanks led 7-4 going into the inning. Mazeroski hit Ralph Terry's second pitch over the left field wall.

Local Baseball Fan Can't Find 'K' on Scorecard

Busby celebrated the Pirates' victory over the Yankees yesterday and he says that he is going to frame the score card he kept of the 10-9 Pittsburgh triumph.

★ ★ ★

He is treasuring the score card, not because he is a Pirate or Yankee fan, but because he has noted that for the first time he can remember, yesterday's game did not produce a single strikeout.

Busby produced his card and pointed to the fact that not a single "K" denoting strikeout) had been marked.

Probably very few people realized this in the excitement of the final score.

"They talk about all the records which were set but this is the greatest record of them all," said Busby.

JUMPS WITH JOY — Roberto Clemente, Pirate outfielder, jumped with joy all the way down the third base line to plate in the 8th inning after catcher Hal Smith hit the 3-run homer which put the Pirates ahead 9-7. He is greeted by Dick Groat.

CITY GOES WILD — Downtown Pittsburgh was in hysteria yesterday after the Pirates defeated the Yankees, 10-9, to win the World Series. Fans started a celebration which continued throughout the night. It was the first World Series victory celebration in 35 years and Pittsburgh fans are making up for lost time. Horns were jammed to blow all night, as bells rang continuously and people sang and danced without letup.

They're going crazy in Pittsburgh.

Not even the end of World War II is producing the hysteria and pandemonium which is now taking place in this Western Pennsylvania city.

It's been a long time, 35 years to be exact, since Pittsburghers could call the World's Baseball Championship theirs.

I, myself, a native Pittsburgher, couldn't possibly recall the events of that day in 1925 when they won or even in 1927 when the Pirates lost in the World Series.

But, back in 1938, I do remember standing in line at Forbes Field.

The Pirates had just lost the pennant to the Chicago Cubs. Gabby Hartnet blasted one of Mace Brown's pitches in near darkness to break the hearts of hundreds of thousands of Pittsburghers.

During the preceeding months, like any typical youngster cheering for his home team, there was no team for me greater than the Pirates.

★ ★ ★

Of the 30 and more games I used to watch every season, half of them would be through the courtesy of Paul Waner, the "Big Poison" of baseball.

Waner used to help the kids over the short right-field wall and then give them a boost into the stands before the stadium cop got there.

The Pirates were sure they were going to win the flag that year. They sold World series tickets. They added the right field stands which eliminated the low fence and forced the kids to pay their way into the park.

★ ★ ★

But then came that eventful final series with the Cubs. Only one victory was needed to celebrate. But it never happened.

The Cubs won the pennant and I must say Pirate fans were so dejected there was hardly any sad feeling for Chicago when the Yanks beat them four straight.

Like any boy that day who had to give up four World Series tickets to get his money back, it was the saddest day of my life.

That day I promised my uncle and brother in the refund line that someday the Pirates would be back in the Series and I would get the tickets, as they got them for me, and they would see the Bucs win the World's championship.

Well, that was 22 years ago. Yesterday, I fulfilled my promise. Just a few hours before the game I received a phone call informing me that the couple tickets I had been attempting to get for the final game were available.

The 10-9 hair-raiser of yesterday is now history, but it was worth the wait and promise of every one of those 22 years.

Millions who watched it on their TV sets, most of whom accepted the Pirates as sentimental favorites, will remember it for another 22 years.

The Bucs took some bad beatings from the Yanks in three games and ironically it was the big Yankee weapon —the home run— which did it for Pittsburgh.

If Bill Mazeroski was running for president today, it would be the first time in the history of the world that the voting from one city would be unanimous.

Smith, Ex-Redford Star, Helped Pirates to Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Hal Smith opens a night club act here next week but he admits his guitar will never make the pretty music that his three-run homer did in the World Series finale.

★ ★ ★

Smith, a former Detroit high school and sandlot star, and relief pitcher Elroy Face both play guitars and sing hill-billy ditties. They have been signed to do a one-week stand at the Holiday House here.

"The sweetest music I ever heard was when I hit that homer in the eighth inning to put us ahead," the balding Smith said. "Oh sure, I've had other thrills but nothing to compare with this."

The 29-year-old Smith was born in southern Illinois, but moved to the Detroit suburb of Redford as a youngster. He was an All-City quarterback for Redford High School in 1948.

He liked baseball better than football and could play nearly every position. Signed by the Yankees in 1949, Smith spent five years in the minors before reaching the big time.

★ ★ ★

A regular catcher for the Baltimore Orioles in 1955, Smith was traded to Kansas City the following season. He has never been known as a home run hitter.

Smith, who came to the Pirates in a winter trade with the Athletics, stepped to bat in the eighth with teammates Dick Groat on third and Roberto Clemente on first. The Pirates were trailing, 7-6.

"I hit a low fast ball and when I connected I knew it was gone," Smith said. "It paid off for some pretty lean years."

Smith's home run put the Pirates out in front, 9-7, for one of the great comebacks in World Series history. How did Hal feel when the ball went over the left field wall just to the right of the scoreboard?

'Maz' Blasted High Fast One

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Mazeroski began swinging a bat ever since he was big enough to walk.

"I was born in Wheeling, W. Va.," he said, "but the family moved to Adena, Ohio. It was a pretty hard life. But dad was determined that I become a major league ball player and he used to play with me by the hour."

As for the hit which won the seventh and climactic game of the Series—a prodigious blow over the 406-foot brick wall in left field—Mazeroski said he never once doubted that it would go all the way.

"I came to bat intending to go for the long ball," he said. "The first pitch by Ralph Terry was a slider, a ball. The second was a high, fast one.

"I caught it on the fat of my bat. I knew immediately it was a good hit ball. I watched it sail over the fence as I rounded the bases.

"I touched every base. As I rounded second, I saw people coming out to meet me, but I kept going.

"What did I think? I was too excited and too thrilled to think. It was the greatest moment of my life."

The Pittsburgh second baseman, who homered in the fourth inning of the opening game, said the Pirates never once despaired in the long, up-and-down game which at one stage saw the Yankees lead 7-4.

"We kept telling each other we could do it. All year we've been a fighting, come-from-behind ball club. We always felt we could pull it out—even after the Yankees tied it up in the ninth—but I didn't think I'd be the guy to do it."

Mazeroski, 24, a slender 6-footer, was a right-handed pitcher in high school, but his coach converted him into an infielder to take advantage of his hitting.

"I was 18 when I broke in with Williamsport in the Eastern League as a shortstop," he related. "It wasn't until I went to Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League in 1955 that I was made into a second baseman.

"I was with Hollywood before I came to Pittsburgh in 1956. I batted all right in 1957 and 1958, but I had a bad year last year. I hit only .241 and batted in only 59 runs.

"Maybe these two Series home runs will sort of balance things out."

The Pirates infielder said two things—loss of 10 pounds—193 to 183—and a changed batting philosophy—helped snap him out of the slump.

"I tried to pull too many balls and I found there were too many pitchers who could fool me that way. So I started just trying to meet the ball naturally."

Mazeroski, whose family consists of a widowed mother, a sister and a bride, has an exhibition game scheduled in Atlantic City, N.J., Friday and in Syracuse, N.Y., on Sunday.

Nothing Matches Wild Celebration in Pittsburgh

(From Our Wire Services)

PITTSBURGH — Nothing in history of the city or in the history of baseball has ever produced the celebration which is still going on in Pittsburgh.

It's been 35 years since Pittsburgh has won a World Series and Pirates fans are making up for lost time.

Downtown Pittsburgh and main streets in nearby communities were scenes, all through the night, of the wildest celebrations ever staged in this Pennsylvania city.

Confetti and paper was a foot deep on the streets. People jammed their horns and let them blow all night long. Bells rang all through the night.

Musicians played and people sang and danced all night.

Dressed in "Beat 'Em Bucs" hats, and clothes, people paraded the streets with beer mugs. Hotels never had New Year celebrations which matched this.

Absenteeism in factories and schools was the greatest than at anytime in history of the city.

In short simple words— Pittsburgh has gone nuts.

CELEBRATION STARTS — Second baseman Bill Mazeroski is mobbed at home plate by players and fans in the 9th inning of the World Series after he hit the homer over the left field wall to win the championship for the Pirates, 10-9, over the Yankees. The drive cleared the 405 foot mark.

Polo Match This Sunday Between Stars-Ramblers

The annual charity polo match between the Allied Veteran All-Stars and the Birmingham Ramblers will be played Sunday afternoon at 2:00 at Roy's Ranch, Maple and Haggerty Roads.

The game, sponsored by the Allied Veterans Council, is played for the benefit of the four veteran hospitals in Michigan.

The money is used to make possible Christmas gifts for families of hospitalized veterans.

Special guest at the game will be Lt. Governor John Swainson who is a veteran of World War II. He lost both legs in combat. Another guest will be National Commander of the Amvets, Harold Russell.

Benjamin Levinson, chairman of the Hospital Committee, will captain the All-Stars' team. Rich Gibson of Birmingham will captain the Ramblers.

★ ★ ★

On the All-Star team roster are Jack Stefani, Jack Ivory, Gordon Miller, Franklin Levinson and Benjamin Levinson. The Ramblers have Gibson, Wendell Smith, Gwen Brown, Tom Young, Hugh Dean and Bob Jubelt. R. D. Bond and George Benjamin will be the referees.

A special attraction will be the Detroit Mounted Police Drill Team who perform between chukkers.

Wins Pole Position Driving '60 Pontiac

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Four more drivers won starting positions Thursday for the 400-mile, $65,000 "National 400" stock car race here Sunday. Eight have now qualified, and more time trials were scheduled today. Fifty cars will start the race.

★ ★ ★

Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., led qualifiers Thursday averaging 130.081 m.p.h. in his 1960 Ford. He will start at the No. 2 position in the second row.

The pole position was won by Glenn Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., Wednesday. He averaged 133.464 m.p.h. in his 1960 Pontiac.

Others who won starting positions Thursday in the second and third rows were Bobby Johns of Miama, Fla., 130.073 in a 1960 Pontiac; Jim Paschal of High Point, N. C., 129.901 m.p.h. in a 1960 Plymouth; and Curtis Turner of Charlotte, 129.551 in a 1960 Ford.

Richardson Selected Outstanding Player

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Richardson, New York Yankee second baseman, Thursday was named winner of Sport Magazine's award as the outstanding player of the 1960 World Series.

Chiefs at Saginaw Tonight

PCH Awaits Aerial Attack

By BILL CORNWELL

SAGINAW — Pass defense, which has been one of Pontiac Central's greatest strengths during the 1960 football season, will be severely tested here tonight when the Chiefs battle Saginaw high in a Saginaw Valley Conference game.

The Trojans of Jim Blenkhorn have encountered their difficulties this year, but they have been able to gobble up yardage through the air and the PCH forces can expect to see the pigskin flying at Saginaw's Alumni Field.

Saginaw gained 145 yards via the overhead route in last week's Saginaw Valley opener against Flint Northern at Flint's Atwood Stadium.

Blenkhorn's gridders absorbed a 34-6 licking from the Flint Vikings, mainly due to their inability to move the ball in scoring territory plus a failure to put together an effective offensive on the ground.

Bob Herweyer is the main cog in the Trojan attack. Herweyer runs the Saginaw offense from the quarterback position and passes well in addition to being a threat on keepers, rollouts and bootlegs.

As it developed, Herweyer is actually a substitute QB. The 150-pound, 5-foot-9 senior was a talented halfback a year ago, but Blenkhorn switched him to QB this fall at the last moment when Bob Ursuy, who was being groomed for the quarterback spot, broke his ankle just before the opening game.

Ursuy is probably lost for the season, but the way Herweyer has progressed, the Trojans may not miss him too much.

The Chiefs have a better record so far this fall, but the Saginaw outfit has played tougher competition. This makes tonight's game look more like a tossup than the won-lost mark would indicate.

Dellerba has announced that two Chiefs are doubtful performers in tonight's contest. Fullback Tony Rubio and guard John Skelly may not see action because of injuries sustained in last week's scrap with Arthur Hill. Otherwise, the Chiefs are in sound physical shape.

PCH owns victories over Waterford and Wyandotte by 13-6 and 47-0 scores, respectively, in addition to last week's 20-20 deadlock with Arthur Hill at Saginaw in the Chief's Valley opener.

Prior to the loss to Flint Northern, Saginaw defeated Alpena, tied Bay City Handy, and bowed to Midland.

★ ★ ★

The PCH-Saginaw contest gets under way at 8 p.m. The Chiefs, slim favorites, are shooting for their 1st SVC triumph.

★ ★ ★

Bay City Central, pre-season Valley favorite, will be a heavy choice to trounce Arthur Hill at Bay City in tonight's only other scheduled league battle.

Severe Bruise of Vocal Cord Kubek's Souvenir

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Shortstop Tony Kubek of the New York Yankees suffered a severely bruised vocal cord in the seventh game of the World Series Thursday and will remain in Pittsburgh's Eye and Ear Hospital overnight for observation.

★ ★ ★

Kubek was hit on the left side of the neck by a hard hopping ground ball off the bat of Pittsburgh's Bill Virdon in the eighth inning.

★ ★ ★

"He's resting comfortably and is in real good shape," said Dr. Henry Sherman, who treated Kubek. "There was a little internal bleeding, but not much, and there is some swelling around his neck. But there's nothing to worry about. He'll be okay."

★ ★ ★

Dr. Sherman said Kubek should be ready to go home by Friday afternoon.

★ ★ ★

"One thing though, he's going to have a hard time talking for awhile," the doctor said. "Right now, he shouldn't talk anymore than he has too."

Whitewater Passer Breaking Records

By The Associated Press

Roger Johnson of Whitewater State is setting NCAA small college records with pin-point passing.

★ ★ ★

The six-foot, 190-pound senior from the Wisconsin school has completed 68 passes in 104 attempts for an astounding .654 percentage and 752 yards in four games.

★ ★ ★

The number of completions is an NCAA small college record for four games, according to the NCAA's Service Bureau which released the official statistics today.

League Battles Highlight Area Prep Schedule

PNH and Rochester Host Important Tilts; Vikings Eye Romp

By CHUCK ABAIR

Big ball games which could determine the way some of the area leagues are going to finish headline another big high school football schedule this weekend.

Most of the action will be tonight on the 5th Friday of the grid year with the spotlight on Waterford - Pontiac Northern, Rochester-Roseville and West Bloomfield-Northville.

It should be a big one at Wisner Stadium with the Skippers and Huskies as evenly matched as two teams could be. The winner will be a strong candidate 2nd place in the Inter-Lakes with Walled Lake apparently on the road to another championship.

The Vikings of Dave Smith have averaged 31 points a game and will likely increase that mark as host to Berkley. The Bears have beaten only Farmington in four games despite the steady scoring of Phil Krumm. Southfield was at Farmington this afternoon.

West Bloomfield is out to break its past habit of losing to Northville in key games. A victory would make the Lakers mighty hard to catch. Clarkston and Brighton tangle, Bloomfield Hills goes to Milford and Clarenceville hosts Holly rounding out the Wayne Oakland schedule.

Rochester would be in a commanding position by downing Roseville. The new Tri-County team has a line averaging 185 pounds led by Tom Klein at 235 and Bill Frazho, 225. The other loop game will have Lapeer Homecoming guest of Romeo.

It will be do-or-die night for Birmingham Seaholm at Ferndale. The Maples need an upset to stay in the Eastern Michigan race facing passer deluxe Mike Brown. East Detroit faces Hazel Park and Port Huron visits Mt. Clemens.

There will be two more games in the unpredictable Oakland B League. Lake Orion is at Clawson and Oak Park vs. Avondale. Avon should be "hungry" after its thumping at Cranbrook.

Imlay City should continue to dominate the South Central title run by taking Oxford as Millington plays scoreless North Branch. The Southern Thumb has New Haven at Almont, Capac at Anchor Bay, Brown City vs. Dryden and Memphis at Armada.

Pontiac Emmanuel met Whitmore Lake this afternoon at Isaac Crary Jr. High. Country Day plays Harper Woods and Lamphere meets Huron in the Central Suburban loop, South Lyon vs. Lutheran West, Dearborn Haston is at Birmingham Groves which will use Seaholm field, Utica battles Warren Lincoln, Grosse Pointe is at Royal Oak Dondero, Kimball and Fitzgerald clash, and L'Anse Creuse goes to Cherry Hill in other games.

Saturday, powerful Cranbrook faces probably its toughest foe yet in a home Inter-State tilt against University School.

The area parochial schools will have their usual full Sunday. St. Frederick plays its 3rd of four straight home games at Wisner against Ferndale St. James. The Rams are still looking for that elusive initial win as are St. Michael and Orchard Lake St. Mary.

St. Rita is expected to keep the Shamrocks losing. The Eaglets could snap out of it as host to St. Benedict.

Mazeroski Lets Schoolboy Keep Home Run Ball

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The home run ball which beat the New York Yankees 10-9 Thursday for the 1960 World Series title becomes the souvenir of a 14-year-old Pittsburgh schoolboy.

★ ★ ★

Later the boy brought the ball to the Pittsburgh dressing room to present it to the Pirate second baseman.

★ ★ ★

Mazeroski autographed it and turned it back to the boy. "You keep it, son," Mazeroski said. "The memory is good enough for me."

Wolverines Set for 'Must' Game

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan's hopes of survival as a serious contender in the wild and wooly Big Ten race will be at stake tomorrow when the Wolverines play host to the twice-beaten Northwestern Wildcats.

★ ★ ★

Michigan's only conference skirmish to date was the 24-17 loss to Michigan State two weeks ago and a second Big Ten defeat would virtually eliminate Michigan from the scrambling title chase.

But the Wolverines are reportedly "ready" for Northwestern.

Their confidence, damaged somewhat by the Spartan setback, was vigorously restored by last week's 31-6 thumping of Duke and coach Bump Elliott has his forces in shape for the big push. Northwestern will be the first of six straight Big Ten opponents on the Michigan schedule.

★ ★ ★

The only casualty for tomorrow's game is halfback Denny Fitzgerald who contracted a virus last Tuesday. He will be out of the lineup indefinitely.

Fitzgerald has been a starter since the opening game with Oregon but his position was thrown in jeopardy last week when Dave Raimey, subbing for the injured Bennie McRae, put on a one-man running show and led the rout against Duke.

McRae's sprained ankle is healed and fullback Ken Tureaud, who missed last week's game because of a hip injury, is also ready to go against Northwestern.

Northwestern hopes to use Michigan as the first lap on the road to recovery.

The Wildcats opened the season with an impressive win over Oklahoma but were humiliated the following week by Iowa's 42-0 drubbing. Minnesota handed them their second loss in a row last week, 7-0.

The man to watch in coach Ara Parseghian's offense is Dick Thornton, the celebrated quarterback whose college career has been beset by injuries.

A broken ankle sidelined him for almost the entire season in 1959 and he missed the Iowa slaughter because of a torn thigh muscle.

Thornton also wasn't in top shape for the Minnesota game last week but reports from Northwestern indicate he will be completely healthy tomorrow.

Wings Fail Again, 4-3

MONTREAL (UPI) — With the National Hockey League season five games old, the Detroit Red Wings are still winless.

★ ★ ★

Last period goals by Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion and Dickie Moore gave the Montreal Canadiens a 4-3 victory over the winless Wings last night.

★ ★ ★

The defeat moved the Canadiens back into undisputed possession of first place and left the Wings with a season record of no wins, two losses and three ties.

Moore, twice the National Hockey League scoring champion now off to the fastest start of his career, scored the winning goal on the prettiest play of the game.

Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard put Moore in the clear at the Detroit blue line and Moore skated in alone. He made one feint to pull Terry Sawchuk out of position, then backhanded the puck past the Detroit goalie.

★ ★ ★

Earlier in the period, Geoffrion broke a 2-2 tie with a hard, rising 65-footer that sailed high into the net as Sawchuk stood by, screened by big Jean Beliveau.

★ ★ ★

Montreal scored in the first and second period on goals by Beliveau and Claude Provost, while Val Fortejyn picked up two second period scores for the Wings.

Alex Delvecchio got the final goal in the last minute of play, as Detroit pulled Sawchuk out of the nets in favor of five attacking forwards.

Sawchuk made 32 saves for Detroit while Canadien goalie Jacques Plante stopped 30.

★ ★ ★

Two casualties of the game were Detroit lineman Murray Oliver, who was stunned in the final period and sat out the rest of the game, and referee Dalton McArthur.

McArthur suffered a bruised back and pinched nerve when he was checked into the boards in the first period. He was carried off the ice on a stretcher and the period was halted at that point.

The remaining 1:57 was added onto the second period.

Seaholm Wins Harrier Crown

Birmingham Seaholm won its 8th straight Eastern Michigan cross country championship while Walled Lake was finishing its 3rd consecutive unbeaten dual season Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Seaholm had 36 points, Mt. Clemens 61, Hazel Park 69, Royal Oak Kimball 99, Ferndale 115 and East Detroit 173. Jim Dow of Mt. Clemens won in 10:25. Maple places were Ted Egner (2), Jock McPhee (3), Mide Geer (5), Bill Haydon (10), Scotty Purvis (16), Murray Stewart (17) and Doug Roberts (22).

★ ★ ★

Birmingham also won the reserve meet taking five of the top seven places featuring co-winners Greg Frontier and Dave Chambers.

★ ★ ★

Walled Lake, with Joe Butler 1st in 11 minutes, tripped Farmington 19-43 boosting its stock as favorite for the Inter-Lakes event Oct. 20. Dave Helmer of Farmington was 2nd followed by Vikings Dave Janeway, Paul Lawson and Dave Parrish.

Irish Planning Upset

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—It is no secret that twice-beaten Notre Dame is girding for an upset over Michigan State Saturday.

Signs proclaiming this as "Beat Michigan State Week" are plastered all over the campus. In addition to the usual Friday night rally, rallies also were staged by students earlier in the week.

Coach Joe Kuharich knows he faces a terrific job after successive losses to Purdue (51-19) and last week to North Carolina (12-7).

"We just couldn't make the big play against North Carolina and we blew plenty of scoring opportunities," he says. "But we've learned a lot in our first three games, and with fewer mistakes we may give Michigan State a game.

"The Spartans have speed, size and depth. They were unlucky in losing to a great Iowa team in the last three minutes."

Notre Dame continues to be plagued with injuries but there are a couple of bright aspects to the casualty list. Dan Griffith, senior fullback who hurt his ankle the first day of practice and was believed out for the season, is back in uniform. Chuck O'Hara, sophomore left half who has missed the last two games with a leg injury, also is ready to go again.

Some Notre Dame followers think the law of averages caught up with the Irish last week. They had won 10 straight over North Carolina before the Tarheels turned the tide. The Irish boosters think it may now be time for Notre Dame to defeat MSU. The Spartans have won in the last four meetings.

Notre Dame's ground attack has done well in its first three games as far as statistics are concerned. The Irish have gained 600 yards, averaging 4.14 a play. The opposition has been held to 391 and an average of 2.81.

★ ★ ★

It's a different story in the air. Notre Dame has completed 21 of 67 attempts and 9 passes have been intercepted. Opponents have completed 25 of 42 shots and the Irish have stolen only 2.

No Seat for Howard

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Injured catcher Elston Howard of the New York Yankees wore a uniform and sat in the dugout during the seventh World Series game, although there was no chance of his playing. The reason: He couldn't get a seat in the stands.

DU PONT Telar antifreeze & summer coolant

Du Pont announces the first and only
NEVER DRAIN ANTI-FREEZE & SUMMER COOLANT
Telar
Nobody wants to drain anti-freeze—and with Du Pont "Telar" you no longer have to!
"Telar" is the first and only anti-freeze you can safely leave in as long as your car's cooling system is mechanically okay. "Telar" is a summer coolant, too. And it contains patented Color Check to watch your cooling system for you.
Aren't there other anti-freezes you don't have to drain? None! Manufacturers of all other anti-freezes recommend draining.
Why doesn't "Telar" need draining? "Telar" is a patented new formula exclusive with Du Pont. It stands up and stays fresh where others break down. When mixed with ordinary water, it rust-proofs every engine metal—even the new aluminum alloys—with a chemical armor. This chemical armor is not just a film that can wear off; it becomes part of the metal surface, preventing rust from forming.
How does "Telar" maintain cooling in summer? "Telar" has a higher boiling point than water. "Telar" prevents rust clogging, chief cause of engine overheating; it keeps the cooling system clean and free flowing. It's ideal for cars with air conditioning.
What is Color Check? It's an exclusive feature of "Telar". If mechanical cooling system failure contaminates the solution of "Telar", Color Check tells you so by changing the solution's color from red to yellow. It is the only time you drain and replace "Telar". In Du Pont's five years of tests this rarely happened.
What about cost? "Telar" saves you money. It lasts year after year. You buy only the degree of anti-freeze protection your climate requires. Any make-up occasionally needed to replace normal loss is slight.
See your servicing dealer now! There's no reason to wait because "Telar" goes in for keeps, protects in warm weather as well as cold.
Only $5.00 per gallon for the ultimate cooling system protection!

BETTER THINGS FOR BETTER LIVING...THROUGH CHEMISTRY

Nikita Was Loaded With Party Diplomacy

By ALINE MOSBY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nikita Khrushchev's "cocktail diplomacy" on the canape circuit will live on behind him here.

After a hard day pounding his desk at the United Nations, the No. 1 Communist still managed to whirl through two or three diplomatic parties between 6:30 and 8:30 every night.

On his last night in New York, despite three U.N. speeches, Khrushchev had plenty of energy left to lead his entourage of exhausted security men and aides to an Iraqi reception.

Khrushchev got more out of these parties than a free drink. The Iraqi affair was in honor of the rebel Algerian government and he assured them the Soviet Union "recognized" them and sympathized with their fight for independence.

The United States delegation turned down its invitation to the party.

"We soon will send a representative to Moscow," an Algerian declared. "We'll never forget the support they are giving us."

I saw U.S. delegation chief James Wadsworth at two parties during K's visit, President Eisenhower at none and lesser American officials at a couple. But Khrushchev treated this night work among the martini sippers with as much care as his speechmaking.

At the Cambodian party he invited the prince of Cambodia to Moscow; he kissed African children at the Guinea reception. He obviously pleased his Indian hosts by bringing his hands together at the forehead and bowing, as Indians do.

A REAL CRIBFUL — This set of triplets has doubled the number of children in the Raymond L. Watkins family — and they're all under 4 years of age. Two of the triplets born to Mrs. Mary Watkins, 30, in the Akron City Hospital in Ohio, were taken home Thursday. The third, Joseph, can't go home until he gets his weight up to 5 pounds. The first two-thirds of the trio, daughters Johanna and Judith, will join three other girls at the home of Watkins, an Akron plumber.

Will U.S. Press Case on Mack?

Doubts Arise After the Acquittal of Whiteside in Conspiracy Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acquittal of Thurman A. Whiteside raised questions today whether the government will press related charges against former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack.

A Justice Department decision on that point will be delayed at least for several days, officials said.

Whiteside, a Miami attorney, was found innocent by a federal court jury Thursday on both counts of an indictment against him.

One count charged that he and Mack had conspired to rig the award of a Miami Channel 10 television permit in favor of Public Service television, a United Airlines subsidiary. The other charged that Whiteside corruptly had influenced Mack's vote as a Federal Communications Commissioner.

Mack and Whiteside were tried together last year, but the trial ended in a hung jury. Whiteside was tried separately this month because Mack is ill in a Florida hospital.

Oliver Dibble, the chief government attorney in the Whiteside trial, told a reporter there wasn't much point in pressing the conspiracy count against Mack after Mack's alleged coconspirator had been found innocent.

Dibble said higher Justice Department officials would make the decision whether to proceed against Mack on a second count against him. This charges that he corruptly influenced the proper administration of law by receiving money from Whiteside in consideration of which he voted for public service.

★ ★ ★

In the trial which ended Thursday, the government contended that Whiteside gave Mack money to influence him to vote for Public Service.

Will Pump Water From the Clinton

Plan to Beautify Watkins Lake

Watkins Lake residents are in ry was contacted, engineers surthe home stretch of an effort to veys were studied and solutions to save their water-starved lake the problem were discussed. from complete ruin.

With the exception of a couple of court hearings, all red tape has been cut for bringing the water back up the once-scenic beaches along the 24,000 feet of shoreline.

About six years ago when the Watkins Lake water level began to drop, residents did not become alarmed, as they felt the seasonal rains would again raise the water level as it had in previous years.

However, this was not the case. Sturdy docks were left high and dry, and in some instances there was from 15 to 20 feet of weed-choked soggy muck between the beaches and the water's edge.

Not only had the once beautiful lake view of the 300 property owners become a sorry sight compared to a few years previous, but there was a tremendous loss of recreational facilities. Property values dipped as the lake continued to go down.

★ ★ ★

In January, property owners organized in an effort to determine the cause and clarify the mystery of the 230-acre receding lake. Drain Commissioner Daniel Barden was contacted, engineers surveys were studied and solutions to the problem were discussed.

Whether to drill special wells and fill the lake or pump water from the Clinton River, one-half mile west of the lake, was pondered.

Since that time various types of tests and studies have been made and final recommendations from the drain commissioner's office have been sent to every property owner.

NO WATERCOURSES

The report shows that there are no natural watercourses bringing water into Watkins Lake; that the major source of water replenishment has been from natural springs, and some 30 inches of rainfall annually, and that this is inadequate.

Surface water runoff has diminished due to new housing developments in the area, where builders are required by law to make storm drain installations before a plat is approved.

Residents have accepted the recommendations to construct a pumping station at the Clinton River near M59 and install a water line from the river to Watkins Lake.

Water would be pumped from the river only in the springtime after the snow had melted, thus keeping the river at a normal level the rest of the time. Total cost of the project will be about $40,000 with each property owner paying $1.68 per front foot.

Petitions have been filed in Circuit Court and after the hearings have been held, the court probably will establish the Watkins Lake water at the engineer's recommended level of 1950. This is about the same level as it was in 1952 when the lake began to shrink away from the shoreline, according to the commissioner's report.

HOLLAND (AP) — Plans have been set for construciton of a new Ottawa County Red Cross Chapter headquarters building near Holland Hospital. A work start is expected next year on the proposed two-story structure estimated at a cost of $40,000.

Officials say it will be financed through chapter reserve funds and a bequest from the estate of Grand Haven industrialist J. Edgar Lee.

Greetings From One Chisenhall to Another

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Imagine Fred Chisenhall's surprise when he telephoned the home of Andrew Florida, Osceola, Ark., millionaire, and a secretary answered saying, "This is Mrs. Chisenhall."

For a moment, the Chisenhall of Memphis couldn't speak. He was so surprised to find another Chisenhall—not his relative.

Opposes Sales Tax Rise

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Table-Top Licensees' Congress, composed of bar and tavern owners, has gone on record as unanimously opposed to a sales tax increase to 4 per cent. If passed, the bar owners said, their tax payments would be raised to a new high.

RECEIVES AWARD — John A. Orr (center), 243 W. Cornell Ave., receives a civilian suggestion award certificate from Maj. Forrest A. Walker, United States Army Reserve subsector commander. Looking on is Capt. Claude H. Reed, advisor of the Pontiac USAR Center. Orr, an administrative technician, suggested submitting a form letter to employers of reservists working nights or hours incompatible with weekly reserve meetings.

Just Like a Cat

Start Initial Segment of New Ferris Dorm

BIG RAPIDS (AP) — Construction starts this week on the first phase of a $2.3 million Ferris Institute dormitory complex designed to accommodate an additional 500 students next fall.

The structure, self-liquidating and geared to proposed new classroom facilities, includes two 250-bed residence halls and a food-service area.

Fortune Spent Gagging Sound of Space Age

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Space Committee decided today that silence is golden or, put another way, that research to reduce the din of 20th Century machinery is going to cost a lot of money.

Without so much as a mention of the neighbor's blaring television set or the booming increase in transistor radios, the committee urged three separate federal agencies to step up their research into the problem of lessening noise.

The committee, in a report on the effect of noise on man and machine, called on the National Aeronautics & Space Administration (NASA) the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) and the National Science Foundation to solve "the noise problem of today's jetliners" and to investigate "the anatomy of noise."

But the committee's suggestion may fall on deaf ears. Both government and industry already are spending a good deal of money looking into the mysterious problem of decibels, sound level pressure and the frequency spectrum.

The Navy, Air Force and NASA, for example, have spent about $30 million since 1953 doing "noise and bioacoustics research," according to the report.

Industry is doing its best, too. The report estimated that noise suppressors now being used on jet engines cost somewhere between $30 million and $50 million to develop.

It also estimated that the suppressors—which reduce a jet engine's power along with its noise—now cost the various U.S. airlines about $1,700,000 a month in smaller payloads, reduced ranges, and increased fuel consumption.

The problem of noise, the committee noted, is staggering. "In the technological age we live in," it said, "noise is a by-product of man's desire to move faster on the ground, in the air and on the sea."

More cars, bigger and faster airplanes and the growing number of power boats are making the search for quiet an increasingly difficult job, the report said.

But if noise is a staggering problem today, how about the future when man penetrates the boundaries of space?

There the problem seems downright hopeless. Conversation between two people, the committee reported, would be impossible if they happen to be within five miles of a relatively small space rocket.

Housing Funds OK'd for Kundig Center

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has formally approved the first housing project to be built under a new program which provides direct loans for construction of dwellings for the elderly.

A loan of $135,850 to Kundig Center, Inc., in Detroit for a 25-unit, two-story building, in the Catholic operated Kundig "campus" area has been approved by the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

It is the first loan approved under funds provided by Congress this year for grants to non-profit organizations which sponsor low-rent housing for the elderly.

The Kundig Center is a day-care center operated on a non-sectarian basis and is used by 80 elderly persons. They live in single room lodgings in the area but come to the center for their meals and social life.

A hose connected to the helmet carries the bacteria or droplets outside the operating room atmosphere.

Settle Location Feud Over Newaygo Hospital

WHITE CLOUD (UP)—A controversy over location of the proposed $400,000, 50-bed Newaygo County Medical Facility apparently was settled by the county board of supervisors Wednesday in favor of White Cloud.

The board voted 22 to 6 for White Cloud after hearing Fremont Mayor J. C. Jordon offer a Fremont site with city improvements, plus $5,000 toward construction. The facility will replace the present county hospital at Fremont, now condemned as a fire hazard.

Ballot-Proof Vest Latest Campaign Argument Gadget

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manny Ress, the political button maker, began turning out Thursday his latest campaign whimsy, the "ballot-proof vest."

It is a red, white and blue affair with a big Nixon sign on the right breast and a big Kennedy sign on the left, enabling the wearer to lift either lapel of his jacket for purposes of dodging an argument or currying favor with rabid partisans.

He said he was hoping for a brisk sale among independents who frequent bars and salesmen who sweet-talk customers.

State Sales Tax Boost Opposed by Voters

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit News poll Thursday indicated Michigan voters are opposing a one-cent increase in the state sales tax by a margin of nearly 2 to 1.

The proposal ot boost the maximum on the sales tax from three cents to four cents will be on the Nov. 8 ballot.

The News poll showed 33.4 per cent for the increase, 62.0 against and 4.6 not expressing an opinion.

Filipino Backs Quemoy, Matsu

His Republic Fears Giving Them Up Will Encourage Commies

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Philippines feel strongly that Quemoy and Matsu must be held, Diosdado Macapagal, vice president of the island republic, said here Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Macapagal said he was commenting without reference to the current debate between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates.

Macapagal, himself an announced contender for the Liberal party nomination for president of the Philippines, said:

"To give those islands up would encourage the Communists and be a setback to the cause of democracy.

He said he is sure the Philippine public would support the defense of the Nationalists-held islands in the event that the Chinese Communists launched an all-out effort to seize them.

GRAVE MENACE

Loss of the islands, he said, might lead to a Communist takeover of Formosa which in turn would gravely menace the security of the Philippines, only a few hundred miles away.

★ ★ ★

Macapagal is here for talks with President Eisenhower and other U.S. officials.

Gandhi's Friend Offering to Pay for Peace Center

NEW DELHI, India (UP) — A U.S. businessman has offered to finance the opening here of an international "Gandhi Center for Peace and Plenty."

★ ★ ★

Dr. David Paul Joffo, 70, a lifelong friend of Mohandas K. Gandhi, said the center would conduct research into Gandhi's nonviolent philosophy and techniques which, he said, were extensions of Jesus' teachings to modern conditions.

★ ★ ★

An Indian official spokesman said the government was interested in this scheme and details were being worked out.

Joffo lives at Flint, Mich. But while in Washington, D.C., works in the office of Congressman Louis C. Rabaut, D-Mich., and stays at the Continental Hotel.

An Indiawide national committee to work out ways and means to put Joffo's offer into effect is being formed with food minister S. K. Patil as president and Delhi Mayor Shamnath as executive secretary.

PET DOCTOR

By A. W. Moller, D.V.M.

Q. Our dog's behavior has us ready to give up. Why is it so destructive?

A. Dogs feel many of the emotions experienced by humans, and the first corrective step is finding WHY your pet behaves this way. The female dog will tear things to make a bed for expected puppies. It's natural instinct. Puppies chew on furniture to relieve teething distress.

Dogs will eat flowers and other strange items when there is a diet deficiency. Even a placid, older dog who is used to constant companionship may become spitefully destructive when left alone.

★ ★ ★

I once owned an otherwise well-behaved dog who would remove and hide every piece of fruit from the dining-room table when we were out.

★ ★ ★

Be sure your pet's diet is adequate; confine him and keep temptation out of reach when he's unchaperoned. Supply him with toys of his own, and remember that he understands stern tones and correction as well as praise and affection.

Polio May Reach Low Mark in State

PORT HURON (AP)—State Health Commissioner Albert E. Heustis said today that crippling polio may fall off to a record low in Michigan this year.

Dr. Heustis said only 35 paralytic polio cases were reported in the first nine months of 1960, compared with a total of 164 for the full year of 1959, 557 in 1958 and more than 1,000 in 1954.

Salk antipolio vaccine was released for general use in 1955.

"Unless we have an unexpected outbreak," Dr. Heustis said, "the number of Michigan people getting paralytic polio this year will be the lowest on record."

Polio has not been conquered, he cautioned, since "There always will be new babies to be vaccinated, as well as youngsters and young adults who need booster shots to keep their guard up."

Check State to Add Civil War Markers

LANSING (AP)—A survey of Michigan's Civil War-related sites is under way, says Dr. George S. May, chairman of the historical marker committee of the Michigan Civil War Observance Commission.

May, director of the state historical markers program, said the group has decided to check out all present markers and all sites important to the state's Civil War activity.

"We know that a number of the camps where Michigan regiments were organized have not yet been marked," he said, "and these will rank high on our list."

Has Been Called Millionaire

Ike Pretty Well Set for Old Age

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower told a group of Veterans Administration officials here the other day:

"Some of you people, some day are going to have to take care of me," he admonished the group with a grin.

Well, that will be the day.

The happy fact is that Eisenhower won't have to worry when he leaves the White House, even if he hasn't managed to save a dime from his $150,000 annual salary and expense account as President of the United States.

A newspaper man who studied his financial situation three years ago, concluded that Ike then was a millionaire. The President was asked about this at a press conference. He scoffed that anybody who offered him a million to sell out his holdings would make a deal in a hurry.

Maybe that was so, but actually the President doesn't really know how much he's worth.

By his own account during the 1952 election campaign, he paid $217,082 in federal taxes on $888,303 income in the 10 preceding years. That should have left a nice little nest egg to take with him into the White House.

His take during that pre-White House period, included $635,000 from the sale of rights to his book "Crusade in Europe" on which, as an amateur author, he was allowed to pay $158,750 tax as a capital gain rather than two or three times as much had the sum been charged up as ordinary income.

Eisenhower as President, put all his assets into an irrevocable trust to be managed by a group of his friends, so that he doesn't know now what has been done with his money. In general though, they have done all right with their own money, and presumably they have not done so bad with his either.

His known assets include a 400-cattle farm at Gettysburg, Pa., complete with a 14-room, 8-bathroom air-conditioned farm house. So you can be sure Ike never will have to seek space in an old soldiers' home.

And, even in the unlikely event that all his investments turn sour and his farm fails to pay, he still won't lack for three-meals a day, tleto spare on such other nec And, he can even count on a little to spare on such other necessities as club membership and a continuing supply of golf balls.

That is because Congress, in 1958, decided that our ex-presidents never should have to go out and hunt for a job. It voted to pay them $25,000 a year for as long as they live. Their widows then get $10,000 yearly.

Salary of the President of the U. S. originally was $25,000 a year. It was raised to $50,000 in 1875; to $75,000 in 1900; to $100,000 in 1949.

Market Posts Sturdy Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels, chemicals and other industrials paced a pretty good stock market rise in moderate trading early this afternoon.

The market was advancing for the second straight session and the nature of the leadership was regarded as "constructive" by some market analysts.

The rise of the steels was accompanied by predictions of some leaders of the industry that the current quarter would witness an increase in production.

Statistics on auto assemblies and rail freight were on the upbeat.

The market was higher from the start in a burst of active trading, then prices continued at a higher level as dealings slackened.

As the session wore on some of the better gains were trimmed.

Airlines, autos, rubbers, oils, utilities, tobaccos and rails also showed a higher trend; but the drift was mostly lower among electronics, drugs and aircrafts.

Gains exceeding a point were held by Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet. U.S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin were ahead about a point while Bethlehem advanced fractionally.

Eastman Kodak advanced well over a point. DuPont and Union Carbide were around a point higher. American Cyanamid and Air Reduction rose fractionally.

Texaco's gain of more than a point was outstanding among the major oils.

Polaroid wavered at the start as the firm reported lower third quarter earnings but a gain in the nine-month period.

Ex-Turkish Leaders on Trial for Lives

YASSIADA ISLAND, Turkey (AP)—Former Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and ex-President Celal Bayar today went on trial for their lives, charged with a long list of grave crimes against the state.

On trial with Menderes, 61, and Bayar, 76, were 16 ministers of Menderes' ousted Cabinet and 377 former members of Parliament from Menderes' disbanded Democratic party.

Most of the lesser defendants faced prison sentences of 5 to 15 years if convicted.

3-Month Dow Income Nets 68 Cents a Share

MIDLAND (UPI) — Dow Chemical Co. said today net income from the three months ended Aug. 31 was $18,517,982 or 68 cents per share on common stock outstanding. Sales for the period totaled $202,099,704.

★ ★ ★

For the corresponding three months of 1959, net income was $22,327,471 or 84 cents a share on common stock outstanding and sales totaled $191,681,368.

Dow had 27,393,317 shares of common stock outstanding on Aug. 31 this year compared with 26,448,087 on the same date a year ago.

Cuba Recalls Consul

Range Is Narrow for Grain Dealings

CHICAGO (AP) — Grains traded within a narrow range in mostly quiet dealings on the Board of Trade today.

Price changes early in the session were held to minor fractions. New lows were established in March and May corn futures on fractional declines.

★ ★ ★

Wheat started mixed with a little buying that was believed to be hedge-lifting by exporters against foreign sales. Volume was very small around the opening.

Soybeans started lower on offerings by local traders and brokers who usually represent elevator and export interests. This was believed to be anticipatory hedging against country purchasers over the weekend. Trading in corn was a seesaw affair.

Worst Crash of Year Claims Fourth Victim

Oakland County's worst highway accident of the year to date claimed its fourth victim last night.

Willie Bryant, 33, of Detroit succumbed at Pontiac General Hospital to injuries received in a two-car head-on collision on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township Saturday evening.

Oakland Highway Toll in '60

Last Year to Date: 64

He was driving south when his car apparently swerved into the path of an oncoming auto driven by Dr. Simeon Blinn, 44, a dentist at Flint.

Clero Smothers, 34, Billy Johnson, 3, and William Hodges, 7, all of Detroit and passengers in the Bryant car, remained at the hospital today.

Smothers is still in critical condition. The two boys are listed as satisfactory.

Last 2 Debates Behind First in Viewer Totals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sixty million Americans in 24 million homes watched last night's Nixon-Kennedy debate, according to a survey made by Trendex, the American Broadcasting Co. said.

★ ★ ★

The sampling, taken in 25 cities, indicated that 57.7 per cent of the TV sets in the nation were in use and of those turned on, 50.4 per cent were tuned to the debate.

The number of viewers was about the same as the number tuned in on the second debate, but six million less than on the first debate, ABC said.

The A. C. Nielsen Co. reported that 38 per cent of the TV sets in the New York area were turned on for the debate, roughly equal to the 39 per cent in the second debate, but less than the 54 per cent in the first debate.

Anyone in the U. S. may change his name at will, without legal complications, if he does it in good faith and for an honest purpose.

THE '61 THUNDERBIRD — The 1961 Thunderbird which makes its public debut tomorrow in the National Auto Show at Cobo Hall, has undergone its third major styling change, the Ford Motor Co. announced today. The new model is slightly shorter and narrower than the others, but has more interior room. Offered in the hardtop (above) or convertible, the Thunderbird will go on display in November and may be seen then at Beattie Motor Sales, 5806 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township; Eddie Steele, Inc., 2705 Orchard Lake Road, Keego Harbor; and John A. McAuliffe, 630 Oakland Ave.

Make-Up Couldn't Hide Fatigue of Candidates

NEW YORK (AP)—Neither lighting nor make-up could conceal Thursday night that the two men who are campaigning for the presidency of the United States were tired.

Actually, their fatigue showed even more in their voices than in their faces during their third debate.

African States Get Ike's Assurance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today assured the leaders of 15 new African states and Cyprus that whoever succeeds him in the White House will follow through with strong American efforts to help the new nations build free democracy.

In an unusual White House conference, he assured the delegation that the United States seeks no domination—military, political or economic—over them.

"We want only willing partners," he said, "that's all we want."

$25 Fine or 5-Day Term for Stealing 2 Shirts

An 18-year-old who pleaded guilty to stealing two shirts from Osmun's Men's Wear, 51 N. Sagiaw St., Thursday was ordered to pay a $25 fine or serve five days in Oakland County Jail, and placed on three months probation.

Dennis M. Michalski, 100 N. Berkshire Rd., was sentenced by Municipal Judge Maurice E. Finnegan.

Michalski was arrested by Pontiac police in the Oakland County Courthouse after a store customer noticed him walking off without paying.

Proclamations Honor Five-Year-Old FEPC

The fifth anniversary of creation of the Michigan Fair Employment Practices Commission today was the subject of proclamations by Gov. Williams and Mayor Philip E. Rowston.

Both urged continued progress in employment practices without regard to racial or religious backgrounds.

Waterford Man Killed by Car

Driver Admits Visiting 5 Bars Before Accident, Police Say

A gas station attendant, walking home from work early this morning in Waterford Township, was killed by a motorist who police say admitted having visited five bars before the accident.

Township police said they would take the driver of the car, Burl L. Gullett, 24, of 9510 Portage Trail, Waterford Township, to the Prosecutor's Office this morning to make a statement.

Gullett told police that he had left his shift at the General Motors Truck & Coach factory in Pontiac at 3 p.m. Thursday and had spent the night and early morning hours at five township bars.

The accident occurred shortly after Davis closed up the station at 2:30 a.m., police said. The victim was walking on the shoulder of Highland road toward his home.

Gullett said he suddenly realized he was on the shoulder of the road, driving about 50 m.p.h., when he spotted Davis. He swerved to miss him but it was too late, he told police.

★ ★ ★

His car then careened across the road striking a sign and rolling over twice. He was treated at the hospital for abrasions and held by police.

Both Gullett and the victim are unmarried.

Showers Cloud Nation's Weather Picture Today

By The Associated Press

Showers dampened wide areas in the West and middle sections of the country today as severe thunderstorms in the Plains diminished.

Generally fairly mild weather continued in much of the eastern half of the nation. It was a little cool in many northern areas from New England to the northern Rockies.

One shower belt covered areas in the middle Mississippi Valley and Upper Great Lakes region while isolated showers sprinkled New England.

Bulls Take Revenge

Two irate bulls, horns lowered, charged his car and demolished it. One of the bulls suffered fatal injuries. McHugh was treated for a minor scalp cut.

MEMORIES ARE MADE OF THIS — World War II airplane parts were used to build this touring car being polished by owner Bud Cohn in Los Angeles. The auto was built by RAF Flight Commander Kenneth Wallis. Engine: 7.5 liter Rolls Royce fire truck; headlamp cowlings: starter motor housings from German jet aircraft; engine magneto: from Spitfire fighter; inside door handles: throttle levers from a Lancaster bomber. The entire coachwork, frame and skin of the car are constructed of unused aircraft materials.

Unmarked Cuba Grave His End

HAVANA (UPI)—The bullet-riddled body of Anthony Zarba lay today in an unmarked grave near Santiago and only eight persons knew first hand how the American soldier-of-fortune faced the guns of the Cuban firing squad.

Before leaving Miami on his ill-fated adventure, the 27-year-old Zarba left a letter in which he expressed confidence that "God would give me the necessary strength and courage to die with honor and pride if this is necessary . . . in front of a Red firing squad."

Zarba, of Boston, Mass., was executed a few hours after being convicted by a military court on charges of trying to overthrow the regime of Premier Fidel Castro by armed revolt. He was one of 13 men—the others were Cubans—who died before firing squads Thursday.

A personal plea from U.S. Ambassador Philip W. Bonsal for clemency or a stay of execution went unheeded.

The last person Zarba saw were the six men of the firing squad, revolutionary tribunal secretary, Adolfo Aloma, as official witness and Dr. Carlos Pardon, the medical examiner.

Two Districts Refuse Carver

Oak Park and Ferndale Say They Can't Afford R.O. Twp. Students

The Oak Park and Ferndale school boards Thursday made it clear to the Oakland County Board of Education that they could not afford to absorb the Carver School District of Royal Oak Township.

The two boards met with the county board at 5 p.m. in the County Board of Education headquarters, 1025 Telegraph Road.

★ ★ ★

Both of the South Oakland boards emphasized they were already hard pressed for classroom space and outlined results of an added burden.

Alton Mavon, president of the Ferndale school board, asserted that 766 Royal Oak Township students are already enrolled in Ferndale district schools.

About half of the township has been in the Ferndale district for some 40 years.

Mavon said further additions of students in his district would impair the tax rate hike in a community with an already decreasing tax base.

NO OBLIGATION

"We believe the historical, geographical, mathematical, financial and sociological considerations should relieve Ferndale of further obligations to the residents of Royal Oak Township," he said.

He emphasized that Ferndale residents took a quiet pride in helping their neighbors in the past, "but now seriously question the equity of accepting a major — I might say almost catastrophic — tax burden."

★ ★ ★

The county board has received petitions with the signatures of some 3,700 Oak Park residents protesting annexation of the Carver District.

"We don't want to dodge our responsibility. We want to help, but we also want to assure our people that their sacrifices are not going to damage the type of education their children are getting," Parkillan said.

"We don't have enough space for our junior high students now and expect more problems next year," explained Pepper.

The Carver board resigned last month. If a new board is not elected Oct. 26, the district will be dissolved and attached to neighboring communities.

Cuba Nationalizes 382 Industrial Firms

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's regime took a huge step today toward complete state control of Cuba's basic industries by nationalizing 382 firms, including all Cuban banks and 105 sugar mills.

★ ★ ★

This was the first nationalization of Cuban-owned property. The government previously had nationalized the bulk of U.S. investments in this country, including 36 sugar mills and banks, estimated to be worth a total of a billion dollars.

★ ★ ★

The new nationalization decree was signed by the prime minister and President Osvaldo Dorticos. It included 50 textile factories, 8 railways, 11 movie chains, 13 department stores, 16 rice mills, 6 distilleries and 11 coffee companies. Many had been taken at least partially under government control previously.

Commerce Twp. Man Is Beaten and Robbed

A 14-year-old Commerce Township man told Pontiac police he was robbed at knifepoint by three men who jumped into his car when he stopped for a traffic light at Orchard Lake Avenue and Bagley Street early today.

Glatt said the robbers took a watch valued at $100 and $23 in cash. He said the robbery occurred at 4:30 a.m.

Therapy Clinic, Airport Project Near Completion

While the spotlight is on the new Pontiac Public Library Building, two other city projects are nearing completion.

At Pontiac General Hospital, equipment was being moved today into the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation physical therapy clinic.

Harold B. Euler, hospital administrator, said moving would continue next week, with dedication of the $35,000 center early in November.

The center is being finished and equipped at no cost to the hospital under an agreement that will see the hospital treating polio patients, and the center general care patients who need physical therapy.

It is the first such unit sponsored by the foundation in any general hospital in the country.

★ ★ ★

At Pontiac Municipal Airport, paving contractors turned attention to a 1,300-foot extension of the 4,000-foot-long east-west runway.

The runway has been recapped this fall. Pavers have built an M59 entranceway to the new terminal building and laid a 120-car parking lot for terminal users.

Still to be accomplished, besides the extension, are taxiways and the parking ramp for aricraft loading and unloading in front of the terminal.

Homer D. Hoskins, airport manager, said he expects terminal completion towards the end of the month.

An average motorist takes three-fourts of a second to apply his brakes when he sees a need to stop.

Woman Dies of Eating 'Mushrooms' at Farm

READING, Pa. (AP) — Virginia Showers, 29, one of five persons who became ill Sunday after eating what they believed to be mushrooms, died Thursday in St. Joseph's Hospital. Mrs. Showers picked the plants in a wooded area near her father's farm. The father, Harvey Leininger, 61; his wife, Mabel, 56; their son, Charles, 14, and Jean Reber, 28, of Reading, all became ill after eating them. All except Charles Leininger still were in the hospital Thursday. Physicians said the others were in satisfactory condition.

Sunbathing Bricklayer Picks 5th Floor Ledge

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Walter Saxon stretched out for a bit of sunbathing Thursday and police and firemen rushed to the scene. Saxon, 58, a brickworker, chose a five-foot ledge on the edge of a 13-story center-city building for his sunbathing. Several passers-by saw him. Firemen sent their rescue unit and police rushed to the roof, thinking they might prevent the man from jumping. Saxon was amazed by the commotion. He returned to work.

9-PASSENGER WAGON
Now here is the favorite of the Station Wagon Set. You will admire "all new" condition of this unit that reflects its Birmingham origin. Local executive used it only for conducted tours of his estate. It has never been exposed to rain or snow. Full complement of power equipment of course! If you appreciate the unusual you must see this one. We have no sacred cows so SCHUTZ prices it many hundreds under the market at only

Second Largest Michigan Crop

Major Field and Fruit Expected to Fall Short of All-Time '59 Record

LANSING (UPI)—The 1960 crop production in Michigan was expected to be the second largest output on record, the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service said Thursday.

★ ★ ★

The service said this year's output of major field and fruit crops would probably fall about five per cent short of the 1959 record, but would top the average for the last 10 years by 15 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Prospects during the last month were up slightly from the previous month, the service said.

Higher forecasts during the last 30-day period on corn, sugar beets, dry beans, grapes and peaches offset decreases for hay, soybeans, apples and plums.

Fruit prospects declined during September, the service reported, and the total tonnage of six major tree fruits and grapes was estimated at 511,000 tons for the year.

★ ★ ★

This was 11 per cent below the 1959 record, but 13 per cent above the average for the years since 1954.

★ ★ ★

Across the nation, the service said, prospects remained favorable for a record total crop production.

No M.D. After Name; He's Found Guilty

MOUNT CLEMENS (AP)—John A. Barg, 62, a Sterling Township farmer, was found guilty Wednesday of practicing medicine without a license. No date was set for sentencing by Circuit Judge James E. Spier.

Barg was arrested last March by state police trooper Harold Schuster. Schuster said Barg charged him $2 for treating a sore neck.

Distance Made the Hearts Grow Bolder for Debate

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI)—The third in TV's series of instant whistle stops did its two stars a big favor last night.

The favor has nothing to do with make-up, lighting or staging.

The so-called "Great Debate," the season's most important, most talked-about and most dramatic TV series, put 3,000 miles between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon. The separation seemed to benefit both presidential candidates.

Nixon, stationed in stage "A" of ABC-TV's Hollywood studio, and Kennedy, in the network's New York studio TV-1, were less self-conscious than usual. Or, as TV announcers would put it, they were freer on the draw, nonfiltered and fully packed with homework.

Can it be that being near each other, physically, muffles the directness of their dialogue by intensifying the pressure? Does electronic apartheid tend to give them more room in which to swing?

In last night's hour, the candidates were more willing than ever to trade roundhouse swings. Said Nixon of his rival: "He simply doesn't know what he is talking about."

Said Kennedy of his rival: "I have always had difficulty recognizing my positions when they are restated by the vice president." They let loose other barbs of that sort all through the hour.

Both men seemed especially eager to tangle on the issue of the Quemoy and Matsu islands, which came up at the start. However, the panel of reporters — Douglass Carter, Roscoe Drummond, Frank McGee and Charles Von Fremd — stuck to their prepared questions and, with one exception, avoided follow-ups to Quemoy-Matsu. The sparks that were struck at the outset subsided.

★ ★ ★

Nixon and Kennedy, however, kept going back to that issue on their own initiative. I found myself hoping that moderator Bill Shadel would say to the panel, "I think these fellows want to have it out on that Quemoy-Matsu matter, so let's butt out for a while and see what happens."

The camera work did not match the easy assurance that characterized the demeanor of the candidates. In fact, the camera work was unnecessarily stodgy and scared.

There were no reaction shots. The camera merely stayed on the speaker. No split screen inserts to round out the picture for us. Last Friday's "debate" included some simple, informal studies of the candidates that were extremely captivating and dramatic.

★ ★ ★

Regardless of minor quibbles, these programs continue to change the pattern of the campaign. The candidates now spend their time between "debates" boning up for the next one. All week long, for example, we waited for last night's session to hear more about the Quemoy and Matsu issue, which emerged as an issue last Friday night.

★ ★ ★

Several times last night Nixon said he would deliver major speeches next week in time to be questioned about them during next Friday's "debate." The boys are catching on to the "tune in again next week" pitch that comes at sign-off time in broadcasting.

AN EYE ON HAITI

While concern mounts over Cuba, a half-hour ABC-TV documentary, "Paradise in Chains," last night reported on the stifling conditions in Haiti, which also is facing Communist infiltration.

★ ★ ★

It was a valuable little study, unsparing in its criticism of the Haiti government and sincere in offering a program for remedying conditions in the island republic.

THE CHANNEL SWIM: A series of full-hour programs dealing with America's musical heritage is being prepared for next season's schedule by Donald Hyatt, director of NBC-TV's special projects division. Titled, "America's Music," the series will range over all phases of musical expression in America with the aid of dramatic recreations and motion picture film.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is scheduled for an appearance on the Monday, Oct. 31 "Jack Paar Show"

Milton Berle assumes the role of straight man when he visits CBS-TV's "Jack Benny Show" on Sunday, Oct. 30.

700 State Librarians to Meet Oct. 19-22

LANSING (UPI) — A four-day session expected to attract some 700 Michigan librarians, trustees and friends and libraries has been planned for the 69th annual conference of the Michigan Library Association, officials said today.

★ ★ ★

The meeting will be held Oct. 19-22 at the Civic Center in Lansing.

Frederick H. Wagman, director of the University of Michigan library and president of the Michigan Library Association, said the group would consider a plan that would organize public library service in Michigan.

Under the proposal, a network of library services covering the state would be set up, Wagman said.

★ ★ ★

"In short, it proposes that all public libraries in the state become a part of a statewide system of libraries based on local, area and state levels to provide total library service for all of Michigan," a spokesman for the group said.

The Kiwanis Club of Pontiac has elected B. R. Eastridge president of the club for 1961. He is manager of the J.C. Penney department store in Pontiac. Jerry Bax was elected vice president, and new board members are Burton Clark, Ben Hawkins, Cecil McCallum and Bob Swanson.

Warning Sirens Very Outmoded

Secret Report to Army Says Air Raid Alarms Needed in Homes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has received a hush-hush report which says the nation's air raid warning system is badly out of date, it was learned today.

★ ★ ★

The report says that neither the nationwide radio warning system known as Conelrad nor the network of air raid sirens is sufficient to warn the American population of an impending attack by intercontinental ballistic missiles.

It recommended the development of a low-cost alarm system which could be triggered by a special impulse in an area's electric current. It said such alarms should be placed in every house and building in the United States.

The report, entitled "Air Raid warning in the Missile Era," was prepared for the Army by the operations research office of Johns Hopkins University.

According to reliable sources, the research group found that the sirens in American cities and towns generally are not loud enough to give effective warning.

The report noted that a large majority of the American people usually are indoors and that the sounds of the sirens are not loud enough to reach them.

The study also concluded that even when the average American hears a siren he usually ignores its warning. The report blamed the large number of practice alerts and siren tests for this general reaction.

Concerning Conelrad, the report noted that the radio system—besides providing warning—had the purpose of presenting enemy aircraft from using high-powered commercial radio beacons for navigation.

In the report, given to the Army on Aug. 3, the researchers said such defense warning systems against manned bombers in the age of missiles are inadequate.

A House government information subcommittee spokesman said he had requested the report from the Army but had been told it was not available to the public and press.

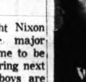
Wilson Talks to Tailor About Kennedy, Nixon

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Never you mind now how Pat Nixon and Jacqueline Kennedy argue about their clothes . . . what do Dick and Jack wear . . . what do the boys spend on their finery?



WILSON

In my tireless pursuit of footnotes for history books, I found that the male Elizabeth Arden in Sen. Kennedy's life, Mr. H. Harris, who has a tailory at 43 E. 59th St., comes right out and states that Jack's a fussy dresser. He might spend $225 for a suit. Mr. H. Harris also asks:

"Have you noticed that Nixon's coat collars are air-conditioned? They're too big . . . they stick out from his neck."

Mr. H. Harris isn't partisan . . . he's just a tailor . . . and tailors, like barbers, prefer their own handiwork.

I'll prove that he isn't partisan. In 1949, Mr. H. Harris had a wardrobe ready for the White House which didn't quite get there.

Mr. H. Harris was tailor then for Mr. T. Dewey.

"Vice-President Nixon likes vests. Does Sen. Kennedy wear vests?" I asked Mr. H. Harris.

"He doesn't wear a weskitt!" Mr. H. Harris frigidly replied.

Kennedy — who long ago gave up the London tailor he employed when he was young, careless and non-presidential—finds now that his clothes are being ripped, yanked and torn off him by his fans—this year he might require a dozen new suits. Ten days ago he got a couple of new ones and a light topcoat (he wears topcoats winter and summer).

REGINA

"Will he need more before election?" I asked.

"Depends on how many they rip off his back!"

Nixon's office promises me his "fashion secrets" in a few hours. I trust they won't be worried by Mr. H. Harris' unflattering words.

FURTHER REMARKS TO ALL YOU READERS: I have tried to be neutral and non-political in the aforesaid piece. When I started writing a Broadway-New York column, one of my old Ohio editors said if I ever wrote political opinions, he would preface my column with this note: "The opinions expressed here are strictly those of Earl Wilson and are not necessarily intelligent."

★ ★ ★

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

President Eisenhower showed Bob Hope and son Tony, 20, through the White House, remarking that as an Army man, "I never lived anyplace else this long!" (Bob wondered what Ike'll do: "He's too old to re-enlist") . . . Cute Wilson girl Regina Groves, 15, of Boston, landed a dancing part and a speaking line, in the new Phil Silvers Broadway show.

Inside story via Sardi's: Bob Preston will "positively" do "The Music Man" movie . . . Singer Connie Francis gets the keys to Newark on her 22d birthday Dec. 12 . . . Comedian Marty Allen and Pirate Pitcher Vernon Law have homes on the same Pittsburgh street. Marty's mother put up a sign, "Visit the Street of the Stars."

★ ★ ★

EARL'S PEARLS: Pity the 1961 motorist who folds his road map—only to remember that his new "compact car" was inside.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: President Eisenhower has a birthday due: "At last," notes Ivan Bunny, "he'll be in the low 70s." . . . That's earl, brother.

Army Engineers Award Saginaw Channel Pact

BAY CITY (UPI)—The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers has awarded a $4,396,000 contract to Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Co. of Chicago for the first phase of a multimillion-dollar Saginaw River channel improvement project.

A contract will be awarded later on the second phase of the project.

The initial phase, scheduled for completion in June 1962, calls for dredging a new seven-mile harbor entrance, deepening the river to 24 feet to the Detroit and Mackinac railroad bridge and creation of a turning basin at Essexville.

Has Been Tough Product to Sell

1st Foreign Sale Looms for U. S. Voting Machine

NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the two American companies that make voting machines said today it has high hopes that in this presidential year it will make its first foreign sale.

★ ★ ★

Shoup Voting Machine Corp. declined to say what country it is dickering with. The company has been showing its machines in West Germany, Switzerland, France and other lands.

If you think your business finds the export market tough, consider the voting machine people. In spite of the fact there are no competing foreign voting machines anywhere in the world, the Americans have not sold a single machine abroad in almost 60 years of trying.

The older firm, Automatic Voting Machine Co., which is a subsidiary of Rockwell Manufacturing Co., tried for years without success to crack the Latin American market.

Shoup, founded in 1932, has been trying in Europe and Latin America and has designed a cheaper, simpler machine for this market than the ones used in the United States . . . but so far, no sales.

"Josef Stalin talked of buying voting machines for the Soviet Union a few years before his death," said a Shoup official, "but never got around to it. The West Germans have showed the most interest of any European so far."

For that matter, the voting machine industry's growth was painfully slow in the United States. The first machines were introduced at Lockport, N.Y., in 1892, but they spread so slowly that, of 40 firms which tried making and selling them, only two, Automatic and Shoup, have survived.

★ ★

The industry began to grow in the United States just before World War II, and a Shoup official said that, in the coming presidential election, Los Angeles and Milwaukee will be the only big American cities to vote by paper ballots.

In the smaller cities and rural precincts, though, appear ballots still will predominate, so there's a big market for voting machines waiting to be tapped.

Michigan, 2 Other States in Bohn Corp. Expansion

DETROIT (UPI)—Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corp. Thursday announced expansion is under way at three plants in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan.

President Terry W. Kuhn said the major expansion will increase by 20 per cent the area of the Danville, Ill., plant, which makes heat transfer equipment for the heating, air conditioning and commercial refrigeration industries.

Production facilities for permanent mold castings are being enlarged at Butler, Ind., while a new engineering building will be added to the South Haven plant, which makes aluminum pistons and castings.

Employment at the Butler plant will be about doubled by the end of the year through additional hiring plus the transfer of some people from Bohn's Detroit factory, he said.

U.S. Helped Mix Lunch Counters

Atty. Gen. Rogers Says Negroes Were Allowed After Talks in 90 Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers said today that Justice Department mediation had opened chain store lunch counters to Negroes in 90 Southern and border state cities since June 1.

Rogers issued a 3,000-word review of Republican administration civil rights actions in a report ranged from proposed legislation through litigation to the mediation method.

★ ★ ★

He announced on Aug. 10, after scores of lunch counter "sit-ins" in Southern cities, that he had been calling in executives of variety chains to enlist their help in ending the demonstrations.

MOVE QUIETLY

He said then that store managements, "in conjunction with local authorities and other interested groups," had quietly brought about desegregation of lunch counters in 69 communities.

The same program has been carried out in 21 additional communities, he reported today, bringing the total to 90.

Rogers said that the entire 1957 civil rights act was conceived and drafted by his department and that, "with minor exceptions," the same was true of the 1960 act.

"Both acts were thought of, proposed by, and passed with the vigorous support of the administration," Rogers said. "They provide meaningful and effective methods of dealing with civil rights problems."

Anaconda's New Price for Copper Is 30 Cents

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Anaconda Co. has announced that effective with shipments Oct. 12, its price for electrolytic copper is 30 cents a pound, delivered to United States consuming points.

This conforms to prices established earlier this week by Kennecott Copper and Phelps Dodge.

Custom Smelters, which account for a considerably smaller amount of copper by refining purchased ores and scrap material, also are charging 30 cents a pound, effective today.

★ ★ ★

This group had lowered its price to 31 cents a pound Oct. 3 after American Smelting and Refining Co. cut from 33 to 31 cents. Asarco is the largest firm which does custom smelting, but it pointed out when the reduction was made that the cut applied to all Asarco copper including that from its own mines.

GM Gives $128,000 to UF

GM BOOSTS FUND — Semon E. Knudsen (center), Pontiac Motor Division general manager, presents a $128,000 check to Robert S. Nelson (right), president of the Pontiac Area United Fund Board of Trustees, on behalf of the three General Motors Corp. divisions in the city. On the left is Calvin J. Werner, GM Truck & Coach Division general manager. Knudsen is chairman of this year's UF campaign, and Werner is head of the Industrial Division of the drive. The campaign goal is $672,500.

3 Plants in City Provides Drive With Big Boost

Gift Is 4.1 Pct. Hike Over Last Year From Pontiac, GMC, Fisher

A $128,000 check from the General Motors Corp. divisions in Pontiac — the biggest single contribution to date—has helped boost the 1960 Pontiac Area United Fund closer to its goal.

The gift, representing a 4.1 per cent increase over last year's $123,000, is the corporate contribution of Pontiac Motor, General Truck & Coach and Fisher Body plants in the city.

The contribution does not include donations from plant employes.

Presenting the check to the United Fund today was the man heading this year's drive — Semon E. Knudsen, Pontiac Motor general manager and vice president.

The GM gift represents 19 per cent of the 1960 campaign goal, which got under way Oct. 6.

In expressing his thanks to the corporation, Nelson called the contribution a "tremendous boost" toward the UF's $672,500 campaign goal.

"The entire community is grateful to General Motors," Nelson said.

ALL-TIME HIGH

Also present at the presentation were Calvin J. Werner, General Motors Truck & Coach general manager and a GM vice president, and Thomas F. Wiethorn, Fisher Body plant manager. Werner is chairman of the Industrial Division in this year's drive.

The check represents an all-time high for GM's corporate gift to the campaign.

Knudsen, in presenting the check, said the contribution was a symbol of GM's deep interest in the residents of the Pontiac area.

★ ★ ★

"Those are much-needed dollars, dollars which will help many children and adults in this community to enjoy a better and fuller life," Knudsen said.

The campaign runs through Oct. 27.

Frazzled Nikita Home After Jolting World

Collection of Strange Memories Lingers Over Antics at U.N.

He was greeted by thousands, many of whom poured out on the airport highway and onto the airfield itself from trucks which carried them from their jobs and homes fully an hour earlier.

The Soviet premier left behind the memory of a bully, a vulgarian, a pile-driving debater, an expert propagandist and a Jekyll-and-Hyde who talked peace out of one side of his mouth and nuclear war out of the other.

He also was a badly beaten man, whipped on all but one of the great controversial issues that came to a vote in the General Assembly.

Clutching at straws before his departure Thursday night, Khrushchev claimed a "victory" on the single point in which the assembly went along with him—the unanimous agreement for a hearing, in plenary session, on his proposal to demand immediate independence for all colonies.

He boarded his giant Soviet turboprop plane at Idlewild Airport just before midnight. In his customary departure statement he said: "We are leaving in a good mood."

Khrushchev said there were signs "which allow us to hope for solutions of the major international problems through the United Nations organization, and through this session of the General Assembly."

Much of what followed echoed the positions he took on various issues while he was here.

3 GROUPS IN U.N.

There are three groups in the U.N. now, he said, "imperialists, Socialists and neutralists." Therefore, he continued, the structure of the U.N. should be altered to accommodate all three at the top.

Finally, he said he would like to thank the people of New York

Main Library Moving to New Center Home

Say goodby to the old Main Library.

The door will close on library service at 47 Williams St. at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

Monday morning, the staff of 15 will begin the two-weeks move to the new Pontiac Public Library Building at Parke and East Pike streets in the Civic Center.

There are 50,000 books to be packed, loaded, shipped, unloaded, unpacked and shelved in the new $500,000 edifice.

Phyllis Pope, Pontiac librarian, is using library carts for the moving. These are the two-shelf, rolling units that librarians use to push books around from one bookcase to another.

To supplement Pontiac's 11 carts, the library is borrowing 6 from Michigan State University Oakland, 12 from Wayne State University, 10 from Detroit Public Library, 2 from Oak Park Library and 2 from the North Oakland County Library Project.

★ ★ ★

The books will be loaded onto the carts and wheeled into the moving van. At the new building, they'll be wheeled out of the truck and through the corridors to the particular shelf they will be placed on permanently.

Jack Trains Through State

Tells U. of M. Students He'll Top Nixon Way Footballers Beat Duke

IN MICHIGAN WITH KENNEDY (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy opened a 10-city whistle-stop campaign through Michigan today by expressing confidence that state voters will defeat Duke University's "favorite son and alumnus" just as the University of Michigan football team defeated Duke.

★ ★ ★

A crowd of about 6,000, including many university students, was gathered at Ann Arbor to see Kennedy off on his train tour and they cheered when he said:

"Last Saturday Michigan beat Duke (31-6) and I think that on Nov. 8 Michigan will defeat Duke's favorite son and alumnus."

80-Degree Weather Matches City Record

The weatherman says there's a chance of showers tonight and tomorrow with the low dropping to 60 tonight, the high about 70 Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Temperatures for the next five days will average near the normal high of 59 to 62 and normal low of 39 to 43. Saturday will be a little cooler followed by day to day changes. Temperatures will slowly warm again about Tuesday or Wednesday.

Precipitation will average less than one-half inch in showers tonight, possibly tomorrow and again about Tuesday.

Morning southwesterly winds at 12 miles per hour will become northwesterly 10 to 18 miles tomorrow.

Sixty was the lowest recording in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. The mercury reading at 1 p.m. was 79.

Fire Prevention Festivities Set

Parade, Demonstration End City Observance of Week Tomorrow

A gala downtown parade followed by a fire prevention demonstration and field day program tomorrow afternoon will climax Pontiac's 1960 observance of Fire Prevention Week.

★ ★ ★

Beginning at 1 p.m., the parade will start at Lafayette and Saginaw streets and continue down Saginaw Street to Auburn Avenue.

Fifty-two pieces of fire equipment from 20 Oakland County fire departments will be shown off at the annual affair.

Other features will include eight bands, four drill teams and baton twirler units, clowns, Smokey the Bear, and the Detroit Edison calliope.

10,000 LAST YEAR

Also marching will be a posse from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and a U.S. Navy color guard.

A crowd of 10,000 lined the streets last year to witness the colorful spectacle.

Seventy Years Old Today

Ike Full of Vim and Vigor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower is a record-breaking 70 today—the first man ever to serve to that age as President of the United States.

Happy birthday greetings flooded in from around the world, and the District of Columbia government invited the President's neighbors from the entire Washington area to a mid-day party on the White House lawn. Officials predicted quite a turnout.

The program for the gala affair features Eisenhower turning the first spadeful of earth for the planting of a memorial oak tree. It is a birthday gift of the people of the nation's capital.

Well-wishers scheduled to call at the White House in advance of the big party included a delegation from the Republican National

The Eisenhower Years
See Page A4

★ ★ ★

Another round of greetings was a certainty at a morning conference the President arranged with representatives of 15 African nations and Cyprus, all newly independent and all recently admitted to United Nations membership.

During the afternoon the President and Mrs. Eisenhower plan to travel to their farm at Gettysburg, Pa., for a family observance of his birth anniversary. On hand for dinner there will be his four grandchildren and their parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John Eisenhower.

STARTS ANOTHER TOUR

On Monday Eisenhower, who has traveled hundreds of thousands of miles in this country and abroad as President, will be off on another long tour—a nine-day, 6,728-mile trip will take him coast to coast.

★ ★ ★

Eisenhower became the oldest man ever to serve as president 11 days ago, on Oct. 3. At that time he broke a record which had been held by another old soldier, Andrew Jackson, who was 69 years, 11 months and 19 days old when he completed his term as president.

The President turned to baseball jargon when he was asked at a recent news conference how he managed to maintain such apparent good health after a heart attack, surgery for ileitis and a minor stroke since 1955, and despite the burdens of the presidency.

"I believe it's a tradition in baseball," Eisenhower laughed, "that when a pitcher has a no-hitter going, no one reminds him of it."

Now, in the sense of having reached three score and 10 years, Eisenhower has his no-hitter in the bag. And he seems more full of zest and bounce than many a younger man.

★ ★ ★

Many White House visitors remark these days that the President seems to be as chipper as they have ever seen him. They also report what is generally obvious—that he is looking forward to retirement to private life Jan. 20 after nearly a half century of service to the nation. He knows, all the time, just how many more months, weeks and days he has in office.

Candidates, in 3rd Debate, Clash on Quemoy, Labor

By The Associated Press

A wide-ranging third television argument found the two major presidential candidates agreed today on only two subjects: Defending Berlin and condemning religious bigotry.

Separated by the width of the continent but brought to a single screen, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy flailed at each other Thursday night on the issues of war and peace, how to stop national emergency strikes, the state of American prestige and the cost of farm programs.

Both sides thought they had won.

Kennedy, whose wife called his appearance "the best yet," told reporters: "I thought we touched on important matters that are at issue in the campaign."

QUEMOY SHARP ISSUE

One of their sharpest disagreements was over defense of Quemoy and Matsu, two small islands garrisoned by Nationalist China but located within a few miles of the Red Chinese mainland. The issue has mushroomed since their second debate a week ago.

Both agreed the Islands should not be yielded under threat of Communist guns.

But Kennedy, who has urged efforts to get a Chinese Nationalist withdrawal from the islands, said Nixon was going further than the Eisenhower administration in advocating defense of them.

Nixon contended that withdrawal would damage this country in the eyes of Asia, and said Kennedy's position would encourage the Reds to push to the point "where war is inevitable."

That brought a Kennedy charge that Nixon was distorting the record.

The din was hardly over before

'No Notes' Just Stack of Papers

NEW YORK (UPI)—There stood Sen. John F. Kennedy, smilingly shuffling a thin pile of stationery-size papers on the podium before him while the moderator in Los Angeles announced that here was the start of the third presidential campaign debate on TV-radio.

★ ★ ★

Before the night was an hour and a half older, those papers were the subject of a hot controversy.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, on the other end of the debate, in Los Angeles, said he was shocked that Kennedy had violated the ground rules of "no notes."

A Kennedy spokesman shot back that there had been no previous agreement between the two sides about notes —"as there is no agreement on makeup."

PAPERS OR NOTES?

Kennedy said he hadn't used any notes, anyway; that what he quoted from in the debate was a public letter from President Eisenhower about Formosa and when a president is quoted he should be quoted accurately.

Whether the sheaf he placed before him was notes, documents, or plain note-paper — and whether ornot there was any agreement — Kennedy made no bones about the presence of the papers.

During most of the time when he wasn't speaking, he patted them, smoothed them, squared them neatly, picked out single ones from the pile and peered at them.

As for those who picketed him, Khrushchev called them "hired hands" and the "dregs of society."

Then, smiling and clasping his arms over his head in the victory gesture of a prize fighter, he went up the ramp and entered his plane.

The Soviet premier is scheduled to go to Communist North Korea soon. Observers generally believe he will visit Peiping as well for conferences with Mao Tze-tung, Chou En-lai and other top Chinese leaders.

His next major moves in the international arena, he indicated repeatedly at the United Nations will come after the presidential elections in the United States. He said he did not believe American officials could fully participate until then in 'the question of questions," disarmament.

Khrushchev's last day in the assembly was typical of most of the others, a mixture of rocket-rattling and amiability.

He was on the rostrum three times.

He told the United States, "If you want war, you'll get war."

He referred to "fools like Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold."

He accused President Eisenhower of lying and of being "on a leash" of American military leaders.

As for the Security Council, he said it was "worse than a spittoon—a cuspidor."

He also presented an omnibus proposal to combine his "general and complete disarmament" proposal with his demand that the office of secretary general be replaced by a three-man commission. Otherwise, he said, the Soviets would not work in disarmament committees or in the assembly political committee's disarmament debate.

After which, he said farewell, adding that he hoped he hadn't offended anyone.

Main Library Starts Move to New Home

today and more is expected next week.

* * *

The bookcases are already there — they came with the building.

The two branch libraries at 251 E. Rundell St. and 6 S. Sanford St. will repain open their regular hours, as will the school branches. The bookmobile also will operate.

"After all, the library has been in the Williams Street building since 1924; it's been our home for a long time," observed Miss Pope.

But crowded conditions have made 47 Williams St. not too happy a home in recent years.

Forty-seven Williams, a big barn of a building that once was a theater, won't remain vacant long, after the library moves out.

City Hall already has cost estimates for remodeling it into a recreational center for retired folks.

The United Auto Workers Union is cooperating in plans for the center.

Clarify Bar Operation

The Pontiac Press Wednesday incorrectly stated that the Gridiron Bar, 21 E. Pike St. was operated by Charles Gersten. The tavern is owned and operated by George P. Pratt, Peter A. Pratt and James P. Marinos. Gersten owns the building in which the tavern is located.

'WELCOME TO PONTIAC' — Dr. John R. MacPherson (center), district governor of Rotary from Highgate, Ont., chats with Pontiac Rotary Club officers, Ivan H. Long, president, at left, and Berkeley Voss, vice president, following his address here. Rotary members heard Dr. MacPherson discuss international projects of the club, including plans to try to raise the scholarship fund to $1 million in 1961. The meeting was held in the Waldron Hotel.

100 Called Throughout Nation

Debate Poll Rates 'Em Even

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spot check of voters across the country indicated today that neither presidential candidate has forged ahead on the strength of his showing in three television debates.

After Thursday night's debate, the third between Sen. John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Associated Press bureaus in 10 cities sampled the opinions of viewers and found little difference in their estimates of the two candidates' influence.

About the same number thought Kennedy had gained the most from the debates as thought Nixon had.

The survey was made by AP newsmen in Little Rock, Baltimore, Miami, Newark, Denver, San Diego, St. Louis, Detroit, Milwaukee and New Haven.

From each bureau, they phoned residents at random until 10 were found who had seen Thursday night's debate in its entirety and were eligible to vote. In all, the survey covered 100 voters.

3 QUESTIONS

They were asked (1) which candidate they intended to vote for, (2) if the debates had affected their choice, and (3) which candidate they thought had gained the most from the debates.

Of the 100 interviewed, 40 said they were likely to vote for Nixon, 33 said they were likely to vote for Kennedy, and 27 said they still were undecided.

Commenting on the effect of the television debates, 41 said their choice or lack of one had not been affected at all.

* * *

Three said the debates had caused them to switch from Nixon to Kennedy, and 22 said the debates had influenced their preference for Kennedy.

Another 22 said the debates had strengthened their preference for Nixon. Two said the debates had influenced them but would not say toward which candidate.

And, in Milwaukee, 10 persons would not say whether the debates had affected their judgments. Interviewers, however, felt most of the choices had not been changed by the debates.

* * *

Asked which candidate had gained the most from the debates, 33 said Kennedy, 32 said Nixon, and 35 said neither. The answers indicated that some of those interviewed were basing their judgment mainly on Thursday night's debate rather than on all three.

The AP newsmen had to call 287 persons before they found the 100 who qualified for the survey.

Some viewers had praise for both Nixon and Kennedy.

"Looking at these debates," said Howard Hayden, a manufacturer's agent in Detroit, "has made me proud that we have two such brilliant young men in the United States."

Kennedy, Nixon Clash Over Quemoy, Labor

* * *

The vice president said he was "shocked" that Kennedy had referred to written material in the third of their TV debates. Nixon said there was an agreement neither would resort to memoranda.

* * *

The Republican nominee also challenged in a statement Kennedy's denial that he had advocated compulsory arbitration as one of the methods of settling a strike such as the paralyzing steel walkout that ended last January.

Kennedy fired back that he hadn't used any notes. He said he read from a photo copy of a letter from President Eisenhower, which he contended undermined Nixon's position that the islands of Quemoy and Matsu off China must be defended from Communist attack as a matter of principle.

Nixon's post-debate statement on labor disputes followed up Kennedy's TV assertion that "I never suggested that compulsory arbitration was the solution for national emergency disputes."

Nixon contended that at Fayette City, Pa., on Oct. 9, 1959, Kennedy had urged that the President be given a variety of powers for settling labor disputes and had added:

"These measures should include meditation, fact-finding, seizure, compulsory arbitration, injunctions with or without retroactive clauses and the right not to interfere at all."

Kennedy's press aide, Pierre Salinger, said that a speech draft including the words compulsory arbitration was given out by mistake, that Kennedy "spotted this, and we pulled back all the copies we could get our hands on." He said Kennedy did not use the reference in his speech.

Nixon found in Los Angeles the kind of lighting and makeup that delighted his supporters.

The issue of Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion was brought into the debate for the first time. A reporter quoted Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, New York Negro congressman, as saying that, "The Ku Klux Klan is riding again in this campaign" in opposition to Kennedy.

The newsman said Gov. Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, a Roman Catholic, was saying much the same thing. DiSalle said he was not quoted correctly. He merely reported, he said, that the head of the klan had said he would vote for Nixon.

* * *

Kennedy said he had seen a similar report. He said he didn't suggest in any way that the vice president has any sympathy with or involvement with the klan.

"That is absurd," Kennedy said. "I don't suggest that. I don't support it. I would disagree with it."

Nixon, a Quaker, said he welcomed the chance to join Kennedy in repudiating the klan or anybody who uses the religious issue.

In Tampa, Fla., W. J. Griffin, head of the state klan, said: "I don't give a damn what Nixon said. I'm still voting for him."

Festivities to End Fire Safety Week

program is to get under way at 2 p.m., shortly after the parade ends.

The program will be at the General Motors Athletic Field, East South Boulevard and Opdyke Road.

Ample parking space will be available for spectators, said Sherwin M. Birnkrant, chairman of the fire safety committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, the group sponsoring local fire prevention week activities.

The industrial fire safety committee, headed by Ross Luxon, Pontiac Motor Division fire chief will present a half-hour demonstration of how industrial fires are controlled and extinguished through use of new scientific chemical applications.

Field supervision of the demonstration will be in the hands of Henry Coin, Fisher Bory Division plant protection chief.

The demonstration will be followed by the annual competition in fire fighting skills by county fire departments.

Nine of the county's best fire fighting teams will climb ladders, struggle over barriers, aim hose streams at targets and try to better last year's record in this annual county "Olympics" of fire fighting skills.

Highlight will be the clash between the Walled Lake and Waterford Township departments for the annual water battle championship.

Walled Lake firemen earned the right to challenge the Waterford unit, last year's champions, by emerging as victors in runoffs against 15 other departments the past six months.

The best team will receive the Harvey M. Johns Trophy, while winners of the hose evolution and ladder evolution contests will get trophies from the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce and radio station WPON.

The water battle champions will receive the Shaw's Jewelers trophy. Teams finishing second and third will receive trophies from the chamber.

To speed up the program this year, Birnkrant said, units on the field will use walkie-talkie units to communicate with the announcer's stand and each other.

He added that extensive preparations have been made to provide safeguards for communities whose departments are participating.

"Arrangements have been made for departments remaining at home to cover those areas in case of emergency," Birnkrant said.

* * *

He added that a special emergency communications system would be erected to relay emergency messages onto the field in case help is needed.

The Day in Birmingham

Plan Commission Voids Bloomfield Zone Board

BIRMINGHAM — The Bloomfield Township Zoning Board has been abolished with the appointment of a seven-member planning commission.

The commission was established by township voters in the Aug. 2 primary election.

The planning commission assumes the duties of the zoning board, plus additional powers set up by a state law that went into effect last year.

Recommended by the supervisor and confirmed by the township board, the terms of the new commissioners will run one, two or three years.

* * *

Appointed to three-year-terms were Edward Proctor and A. J. Snively, both former zoning board members.

Howard Preston, who served on the zoning board, Stewart Schultz, and Samuel Reeve were named to one-year-terms.

William B. Brown

Service for William B. Brown, 85, of 788 E. Lincoln Road, will be 1 p.m. Monday at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Burial will be in Roseland Park Cemetery, Berkley.

Mr. Brown died yesterday in Detroit Osteopathic Hospital after a short illness.

He was a retired florist.

Brown was a member of the Scottish Rite of Detroit, and a life member of the Oriental Lodge 240, Detroit.

* * *

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Harry Winborn of Troy; and two sons, Bennett M. of Birmingham; and Richard R. of California.

George E. Thomas

Service for George E. Thomas, 72, of 541 Bennaville St., will be 1 p.m. tomorrow at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Burial will be in Roseland Park Cemetery, Berkley.

Mr. Thomas died yesterday in Veterans Hospital, Dearborn, following a short illness.

A veteran of World War I, he was a member of the Polar Bear division of the VFW, Birmingham.

* * *

Surviving are daughter Mrs. Robert Seager and son Carl F., both of Birmingham.

Mrs. Isaac W. Parris

Service for Mrs. Isaac (Zetta B.) W. Parris, 80, of 733 Hanna St., will be 11 a.m. Monday at the First Presbyterian Church, Birmingham. Burial will be in White Chapel Memorial Cemetery, Troy.

* * *

Mrs. Parris died today in St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, after a long illness.

A former school teacher, she was a member of the Missionary A Society of the Presbyterian Church.

Her husband, the late Rev. Isaac W. Parrish, was pastor of Presbyterian churches in Clarkston, Milan and Linden.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. P. K. Seymour, Mrs. J. L. Mazur and Mrs. W. H. Pateman, all of Illinois; three sons, Allen of Birmingham, Earl of Milford and I. W. Parrish of Illinois; two sisters, two brothers, 21 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

* * *

Her body will be at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home until 10 a.m. Monday.

Head-On Crash Kills 2 Mothers, 2 Sons

DETROIT (AP)—A head-on traffic crash Thursday killed two mothers and their two sons, including a boy being taken to a studio for his first birthday picture, near here Thursday.

* * *

Carl Renodin, who will be a year old Sunday, died several hours after the accident. The others were killed instantly in the Taylor Township collision with a milk truck.

The other dead are Carl's mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Renodin, 26, and Mrs. Colleen M. Zachery, 28, and her son John, 3½. They lived in Romulus Township.

* * *

Scharnhorst's brother-in-law and part-time helper, Brian A. Scherz, 17, of Harper Woods, said, "We were just driving along. The front tire blew out. That was all there was to it. We didn't have a chance to turn." Scherz suffered serious injuries.

Fond of public competition, the Welsh people stage an Eisteddfod each year. This is a week-long series of contests in poetry, music and drama.

But Leaves U.N. Happy and Satisfied

Khrushchev Counts One Win, Six Losses

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) —Nikita S. Khrushchev wound up his diplomatic season today with one win and six losses, but as optimistic as ever over the Soviet bloc's chances.

Soviet sources said the Russian leader left the United States satisfied with his efforts. He himself praised the "victory" he won by getting the U. N. General Assembly to debate colonialism. He said his visit here had been "useful."

No U. N. delegates doubted that he was sowing the seeds for the future and preparing the Soviet bloc for what he believes will be a summit conference next year with the next American president.

"We gave hell to the Americans and the British," said Khrushchev before departure.

This was the record:

—Khrushchev backed a Czech candidate, Jiri Nosek for office of assembly president. The job was won by Frederick H. Boland of Ireland. The Soviet candidate came in third behind Thor Thors of Iceland. The vote was 45 for Boland, 25 for Thors and 9 for Nosek.

—Khrushchev demanded a seat for Red China and opposed a U. S. resolution that would shelve the Red China seat issue for another year. He lost, but the vote was close: 42-34 with 22 abstentions in favor of the American proposal.

—The Soviet bloc fought to prevent inclusion of the Hungarian anti-Communist revolution on the assembly agenda. It went on the agenda by a vote of: 54-12 with 31 abstentions.

—The Soviet bloc tried to prevent inclusion of debate on the Red Chinese rape of Tibet. It was approved for debate: 49-13 with 35 abstentions.

—The Soviet premier demanded direct assembly debate on the "question of questions" — disarmament. He lost by a vote of 54-13 with 31 abstentions, the assembly referred it to committee.

—Khrushchev called on the U. N. Assembly to debate Soviet charges of "aggression" against the United States for the U2 and RB47 plane incidents. The vote went against it 54-10 with 32 abstentions.

(On the plus side for Khrushchev was his demand for direct assembly debate on "independence forthwith" for all colonial areas of the world. The United States went along with this proposal and it was approved by acclamation.

Perhaps the worst defeat for Khrushchev never came to a vote and thus cannot be counted. It was his demand, made in his maiden address to this session of the assembly Sept. 23, for the ouster of Sec. Gen. Dag Hammarskjold and his replacement with a three-member presidium. He also wanted the U. N. headquarters moved to a friendlier city than New York.

Hammarskjold resisted the demand for his job. And on Oct. 3, in a dramatic moment, Hammarskjold defied the Soviet premier with the declaration: "I shall remain in my post."

Hammarskjold won the greatest ovation in U.N. history but Khrushchev said he would keep on fighting for all the goals he lost out on.

His goal, he said, was an assembly to discuss disarmament, attended by all heads of government or member U. N nations and held in Geneva, or in Moscow or Leningrad sometime next spring.

He also wanted a public apology from the United States, an expression of "regret" for the U2 spy plane incident. He did not, and would not get it.

Moving to State Post Guiding Urban Renewal

LANSING (AP—Sanford S. Farness, executive director of the Tri-County Regional Planning Commission, will take a position in the building division of the State Department of Administration.

State Controller Ira Polley said the building division has been named to carry out the federal urban planning assistance program in the state.

The program makes matching federal funds available for community planning in cities, villages, townships and counties of less than 50,000 population.

NY Police Relieved to See Nikita Go

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police breathed a heartfelt sigh of relief today and went back on a normal work schedule with the departure of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev signaling the end of the biggest security job in peacetime history.

The casualty toll included a 9-year-old girl, Magdalena Urdaneta of Venezuela, who was shot to death accidentally by supporters of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro fighting anti-Castroites, one detective who died of trolles, one detective who died of a heart attack while guarding Khrushchev, 16 other policemen injured on duty and 12 civilians hurt in picketing disputes.

Seventy persons were arrested during demonstrations.

But no heads of government were harmed and there was amazingly little violence in view of the massive 23-day security job thrust upon the city's 25,000-man police force by the record gathering of national leaders for the United Nations Security Council.

★ ★ ★

The cost of the operation is expected to be several million dollars by the time all the bills are in. The city hopes the federal government will help it meet some of the expenses.

Khrushchev and Castro were by far the most troublesome to protect.

The Russian chief required at least 300 policemen guarding his Park Avenue residence when he was there, and many more when crowds gathered or he moved about the city.

Castro required a minimum of 240 policemen and at times 500 standing shoulder-to-shoulder two deep.

★ ★ ★

He caused the most trouble when he moved to the Hotel Theresa in Harlem on a moment's notice.

Both Castro and Khrushchev complained about security restrictions being too tight, but later Khrushchev complimented the force by saying "the police are doing what police ought to do."

Russian Lt. Gen. Nicolai Zakharov, however, heatedly tried pushing a few patrolmen around until a burly police captain pinned his arms behind his back and lifted him off the floor until he calmed down.

★ ★ ★

There were several clashes between opposing groups of demonstrators, but police, especially the effective mounted patrolmen, kept the disputes under control.

★ ★ ★

There also were several bomb scares and at least four reported plots to kill Khrushchev.

Jackson Mayor Nichols Dies During First Term

JACKSON (UPI) — Harold E. Nichols, mayor of Jackson, died here Wednesday after a brief illness. He was 69.

★ ★ ★

Nichols, elected to a two-year term last November, started his first term on Jan. 1. He previously served 16 years on the City Commission.

He had been hospitalized since Saturday, but the nature of his illness was not disclosed.

A native of Jackson, Nichols owned a paper company and was active in the Moose and Elks as well as the Republican party. He is survived by his wife Inez.

Butler Thinks Kennedy Will Win Women's Vote

NEWARK, N. J. (UPI) — Paul M. Butler, former national chairman of the Democratic Party, said Thursday night the women's vote will decide the presidential race this year.

"The women of America will send John F. Kennedy to the White House, and not just because of his charms. They see in him the qualities of heart, mind and soul to lead the world," Butler told a women's rally and fashion show here.

Politics is the art in which politicians get campaign contributions from the rich and votes from the poor on the pretext of protecting each from the other . . . . Money is like teeth — there's nothing like having your own. —Earl Wilson.

Nixon Generalizes; Jack Specific

Debate Tactics Growing Clear

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — After three "great debates" on TV the tactics — or the techniques — of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy begin to show through.

Nixon is a generalizer who makes frequent use of that old-time debating tactic: The big needle. When he thinks he has a good thing going, he won't let go. He gets sentimental and, like a name-dropper, identifies himself with President Eisenhower.

Kennedy, who evidently does his homework, is much more specific and detailed than Nixon, but lets himself lose a lot of time trying to extract the Nixon needle. Recently he became quite a needler himself.

For example: As TV watchers could see for themselves he had gotten under Nixon's skin by an earlier remark calling him "trigger-happy."

TALKS TOO FAST

But Kennedy talks too fast, throwing out facts, names and dates as if he assumed all the millions of TV viewers were as familiar with these things as he himself is. And he seems to lack a dramatic sense.

Before the campaign ever got under way Nixon told newsmen he'd go heavy on generalizations, light on details. He has followed that course. For instance, Thursday night, instead of going into detail on defense plans, he said he would make a major speech about it.

★ ★ ★

Nixon uses the needle various ways: By accusing Kennedy of reversing himself, talking one way now and another before; of wanting to spend too much; of getting facts mixed.

On questions in general, this writer believes, Kennedy would be much more effective if, instead of pouring out facts and statistics, he emphasized in a dramatic or figurative way the points he is mainly interested in getting across.

Nixon repeatedly uses the phrase "all Americans" but Thursday night got downright sentimental when, finding fault with language of former President Truman, he reminded Kennedy little children get exposed to political talks and that whoever is president is a man "that all the children of America will either look up to or down to. . . ."

His typical tactic in linking himself with Eisenhower, as displayed Thursday night, goes like this: "I have often heard President Eisenhower discussing. . . ." and, "Now, as far as President Eisenhower is concerned, I have often heard him discuss. . . ."

Wake Island Search for Flier Called Off

HONOLULU (AP)—The Wake Island air-sea search for a missing flier, Lt. Duane Stirling, 28, of Fargo, N.D., was called off Thursday night, the Navy announced.

The North Dakota Air National Guard pilot was attempting to fly nonstop from Oakland, Calif., to Manila—7,698 miles—when his single-engine plane plunged into the Pacific near Wake Island Wednesday night, Wake time.

Stirling's Mooney Mark 20 aircraft hit the ocean near a reef three miles north of Wake. Stirling had flown 14 miles beyond Wake and was returning to Wake when he crashed. His last message was that he could gain no altitude.

Stirling's companion on the flight, Capt. Charles Finnegan also of Fargo, landed his Mooney Mark 20 aircraft on Wake without incident. . . .

Viscount Astor to Wed Leading British Model

LONDON (AP) — Viscount Astor, eldest son of Virginia-born Nancy Astor, today announced his engagement to a leading British model, Bronwen Pugh.

It will be Lord Astor's third marriage. Miss Pugh's first. He is 53, she 29.

Lord Astor has two children—William Waldorf, 8, by his first wife, and Emily Mary, 4, by his second.

Lobster Tops Tower Becomes Hawks' Eatery

★ ★ ★

Paul Kraska, a maintenance man, says the hawks perch on a tiny platform near the top of the tower to devour ducks.

Kraska said he found a half-eaten duck on the platform Thursday, and piles of bones on the platform in the past.

The building management says it has no plans for getting rid of the hawks.

French Badly Divided Over Algerian Problem

The Algerian war drags on and on. Gen. DE GAULLE has been driven to taking restrictive measures against critics on both the right and left who are questioning his policy in Africa.

Reports leaking out of France despite censorship and distortion of newscasts tell of 10,000 opponents of DE GAULLE's Algerian policy being prevented by riot police from marching to his palace. Organized by war veterans, they wanted sterner measures for putting down the rebellion.

★ ★ ★

On the other side, some 200 French intellectuals recently signed a manifesto appealing for an end to the six year war and declaring "we respect and consider justified the refusal to take up arms against the Algerian people." Former officers and conscripts have been protesting the terrorism and torture they witnessed in Algeria and young Frenchmen drafted for war service have been deserting.

★ ★ ★

What is even more important, the socialist party now headed by Guy Mollet, a former premier who had pushed the war in Algeria in 1956 and 1957, now wants an end to it.

The Algerian rebels want to resume the peace talks broken off three months ago and have reduced some demands. But DE GAULLE, while promising self-determination at some future time, threatens partition if the Moslem Algerians should actually vote for independence. The rebels want to know in advance how self-determination will be carried out and they can't be blamed for that.

Pres. de Gaulle finds himself in an impossible situation besieged on the right by those who want nothing short of unconditional Algerian surrender and being chided by the left because he is not moving fast enough toward Algerian independence.

Looming over all this is the forthcoming discussion of the problem in the United Nations. No matter how disdainfully DE GAULLE speaks of that body, what takes place there will have repercussions in both France and Algeria.

Labor Leader Gaitskell Defends NATO Policy

Led by left-wing trade union delegates, British laborites meeting at at Scarborough, overrode party leader HUGH GAITSKELL and went on record as favoring complete nuclear disarmament and neutrality in the Cold War.

Speaking for left-wingers and pacifists FRANK COUSINS, head of the powerful Transport and General Workers union, would have Britain give up nuclear testing permanently and unilaterally and close British air bases to all craft armed with nuclear weapons. This would mean British withdrawal from NATO.

★ ★ ★

Gaitskell told the conference that he would stand by the policy of collective security and membership in NATO and would "fight and fight and fight again" to reverse its decision on foreign policy. His argument that this would lead to U.S. withdrawal from Europe or to development of West Germany as the strongest European power in NATO armed with nuclear weapons, went unheeded.

★ ★ ★

The labor leader, however, did succeed in talking the party's conference into a fundamental change in its aims. It spoke no more of nationalization of industries but put greater emphasis on welfare measures. The official statement read that "the British Labor Party is a democratic socialist party. Its central idea is the brotherhood of man. Its purpose is to make this ideal a reality everywhere."

★ ★ ★

There is a possibility that the able Mr. GAITSKELL will resign. But this would not be because of his defeat at the party conference as he is elected by Labor members of the two Houses of Parliament, but because he has said that he would not continue to lead neutralists. He has tried to unite his party but continuous in-fighting is sapping its strength and it no longer is feared by the Conservatives.

ASKED what he thought of Dan Cupid, the sorely overworked stork replied, "Please don't mention that (deleted, deleted) to me!"

Autumn Foliage Show Good Over the Coming Weekend

Advice: What, in a political way, we're all getting filled up with.

Better than last year, but not as good as in many former years, is the present autumn foliage dispay in the Pontiac area. It will be at its best during the next few days.

Any highway in the suburbs is well worth the drive. This also is true of many streets in the city. While in many cases the colors are not so vivid, the kaleidoscopic display rivals the rainbow.

The yellow and pink of the maple, the brilliant red of the sumac, the predominant yellow of the ash, hickory, elm and sassafras among the trees, and the varied colors in the hedgerows, all blend into a landscape that is well worth seeing.

No particular drive in our area has any distinct advantage over the others. The hues around our many lakes seem to take on a beauty of their own. The view from any of our hills adds to the pleasure of the drive.

Through it all, the stubborn oak, (for which our county was named), remains generally green, holding its somber hue until most of the other leaves have fallen.

By coming to the United States in the midst of a presidential contest and carrying on a sustained attack against the policies of the Eisenhower administration, he has endeavored to arouse the American people to repudiate their own government at the polls.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Khrushchev knows well that all over the world the American presidential election is being watched by foreign governments and peoples, and that the outcome of the contest is being awaited to learn primarily whether the American people have given a "vote of confidence" or have voted "no confidence" in the present administration.

Mr. Khrushchev in his speeches has dwelt on various aspects of the foreign-policy issue that is being debated by the supporters of Vice President Nixon and Sen. Kennedy.

★ ★ ★

He keeps emphasizing the U2 issue and goes out of his way to embrace Fidel Castro at a time when opposition speakers in the campaign are blaming Communist ascendancy in Cuba on the Eisenhower administration.

He knows full well Democratic party speakers in the campaign have begun to hint that Red China eventually will be admitted and that the United States will soon start appeasing the Peiping government through negotiations that plead for concessions to this country in return for a willingness to admit Red China to the U.N.

★ ★ ★

At a time when there is discussion of the subject of admission of Red China to the U.N. — the recent vote on which has been referred to by Democratic party speakers as a defeat for the United States — the issue of defending Quemoy and Matsu is brought up by Sen. Kennedy.

There is naturally a good deal of confusion about it, and plenty of demagoguery.

★ ★ ★

The United States has never taken the position that Quemoy and Matsu in and of themselves are strategically important and worth defending by our forces. Nor has Vice President Nixon modified in the slightest degree the position taken by the Eisenhower administration, which is that America will defend the offshore islands only if a military operation is begun that can threaten Formosa.

For, since nobody knows just how far the Red Chinese will go if they attack the islands, the American military judgment has been and is today that it is better not to be explicit about what the United States will or will not do militarily.

★ ★ ★

As a matter of fact, there have been several intermittent bombardments of the islands for the past several years, and the United States has not become involved in any counterattack or defense of the islands themselves.

U.S. WEAKENING?

To say now that the islands will not be defended means telling the enemy that it is all right to begin an all-out attack on them and that perhaps the United tSates is weakening in her determination to defend Formosa, too.

It is also of great advantage to Mr. Khrushchev to have American speakers debating just now whether Quemoy and Matsu are to be defended.

It tells the people of Formosa and the people of the Philippines that, if Sen. Kennedy is elected, there may be a change in American policy.

This tends to weaken the alliance in the Far East between the United States, Formosa, the Philippines and South Korea, and has subjected it to new strains, which the press dispatches from those countries have revealed in the last few days in commenting on the American campaign speeches.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Hemorrhoid Operation Not So Bad These Days

"Dear Dr. Brady:" (writes a Tennessee reader)

"I fooled along with severe hemorrhoids for years because of your repeated description of the operation for hemorrhoids as an atrocity and the fact that I couldn't find anyone who knew anything about the injection treatment you suggest.

"Finally I developed fissures and a fistula and the hemorrhoids were bleeding like mad. So I went to a reputable surgeon with an "I'll try-anything" attitude. Though braced for a dreadful ordeal of pain, I'm pleased to say it just didn't materialize.

"Twelve hours after the surgery I was able to do without hypodermic injections — I had no discomfort to speak of. Next day I was walking around feeling good.

★ ★ ★

"I'm no stoic. I found normal childbirth horrible. I'd rather have half a dozen hemorrhoid operations than one more baby.

"Now, don't you think you should qualify in some manner your description of hemorrhoidectomies? Some persons may find it difficult but there may be many like myself who find it as easy as you say your appendectomy was. I would have had the hemorrhoid operation years ago if I had realized how easy it would be.

"In case you are worried lest I charge to your account all the woe I suffered between the time you scared me away from surgery and the time that in desperation I finally gave up and went to the surgeon, I want you to know that I think in general your advice is sound and your column is quite interesting reading. You have been wrong only once that I am certain of, and that's a pretty good average."

Very truly,

★ ★ ★

I plead guilty. In the past years probably as many readers who have had the radical operation for hemorrhoids (piles) have reported that they suffered little discomfort in the days after the operation as have reported they suffered more discomfort or pain than they had ever had from the piles.

With skillful use of improved anesthetics, general and local, this operation or any other operation may be made quite painless in the days and nights immediately following surgery.

I shall no longer characterize operation for hemorrhoids as atrocious. Still, if I had internal hemorrhoids, I'd use injection treatment, which gives as good results as radical surgery yet does not detain one from bowling.

The term "blind piles" is sometimes applied to internal, bleeding piles which do not prolapse with straining and require replacing after defecation. Sometimes the term "blind piles" is applied to external, non-bleeding piles.

The term "itching piles" has no definite significance. Generally patients complaining of "itching piles" have no piles but one or another condition for which pile remedies are of no use at all.

'Michigan Would Prosper With Bagwell as Governor'

After listening to John Swainson and Paul Bagwell on TV and radio, I think their talents are different.

★ ★ ★

Swainson could help the working man by offering his services to the UAW at Solidarity House in an executive position, such as "collective bargaining."

★ ★ ★

Bagwell, the professor and teacher with experience in communications, as governor could effect better understanding between labor and business and bring jobs and prosperity back to Michigan.

'Motion Was Tabled to Lift Ban at Wayne'

The article or advertisement appearing in the Oct. 5 Press concerning the endorsement by young Democrats of Wayne State University lifting the ban on Communist speakers on its campus is a complete untruth.

At the Sept. 27 Young Democratic State Central meeting, a motion was made to approve the lifting of the ban, but was tabled until a study group could bring in its findings.

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY

To bring back his soul from the Pit, that he may see the light of life.—Job 33:30

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Sports Participation Recommended

Bob won at least $6,000 just because his mother read this column faithfully and got a new idea. Imitate the doctors, teachers and business executives who scrapbook these practical cases in everyday psychology. And keep a folder for the various Rating Scales or Psychological Tests like those offered below, for this newspaper serves as your "University in Print."

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

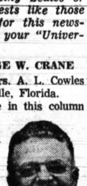
The cases I use in this column are generally office patients, but once in a blue moon I employ a letter, so here is Mrs. Cowles' recent missive:



DR. CRANE

"Dr. Crane, tomorrow we leave to take our son to the University of North Carolina for four years of college.

"But I just can't depart without first writing and thanking you and our newspaper for his wonderful 4 - year scholarship, which pays all expenses, including tuition, room, board, books, etc.

"Maybe you are wondering how you came into the picture? Well, we have 6 children ranging from one year to 22. And I have learned a lot about children but I haven't done so alone.

"Through the help of God and your Worry Clinic column, I have found it much easier to rear my children.

★ ★ ★

"Bob, our 18 - year - old son, seemed to be jinxed for I was forever needing to have a doctor sew him up somewhere. It seemed as if he grew with a plaster cast on him.

"So you can imagine the emphatic 'No' when he asked to play football in Junior High. But he finally talked me into it. First thing, however, he broke his foot!

"So that ended his football career, I thought. But one day in July I read your column where you advised a mother to let her son engage in sports.

"You said boys were actually safer and better off in supervised athletics than in gangs on the streets or drag racing their cars.

"And you said modern coaches offer splendid character training to the boys which make those athletes better equipped for success in later life.

★ ★ ★

"Well, Bob was now entering senior high, and he hesitantly broached the subject of whether he could play. 'Please, Mother,' he began, 'May I play football?'

"Well, I told him I had secretly hoped he wouldn't ask me again, but since he had, I had decided to give him my consent.

"So he played for the past 3 years. Last fall he was co-captain. He had acquired many traits of leadership and his teammates liked him and respected him.

"And these past 3 years he has been hurt less than he ever had been! For the careful training under his coach's close supervision hardened his muscles and taught him how to avoid danger.

"He was 6 feet 3 and weighed 160 at that time. Now, as he leaves for college, he weighs 195.

"We have four girls and two boys. I just hope the next one wants to play ball, too!

"And we all thank you for this very valuable 4-year all-expense scholarship."

College tuition in many schools runs well over $1,000 per year, not to mention the additional cost of board, room, books, clothes and incidentals.

So Bob won the equivalent of $6,000 to $8,000 as a result of his football scholarship.

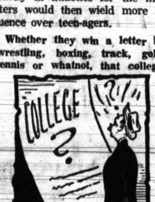
Some college professors have taunted me for writing for newspapers, apparently failing to realize the newspaper's vast educational significance.

But Bob's case is just one of thousands that have been brought to my attention, showing how newspapers have helped widen the thinking of parents and also stimulate them into setting good examples before their children.

★ ★ ★

It would be smart if pre-seminary students also indulged more heavily in athletics for the ministers would then wield more influence over teen-agers.

Whether they win a letter in wrestling, boxing, track, golf, tennis or whatnot, that college letter immediately zooms their rating as "he-men" and preachers need more masculinity.



Mrs. Cowles is obviously a wonderful type of mother. To rate like her, send for the 200-point "Tests for Good Parents," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20c.

U.N. Warned on Guantanamo

U.S. Predicts Possible Violence at Naval Base as Castro Grumbles

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) —The United States today alerted the United Nations for possible violence at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, warning that Premier Fidel Castro's government seemed intent on "provoking an incident" there.

★ ★ ★

The United States addressed a statement to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in sharp rebuttal to Castro's 4½-hour anti-American attack in the General Assembly Sept. 26.

"The war of nerves launched against Guantanamo by the Cuban leaders can have no result but to incite Cuban elitizens against the United States and against the naval base itself," the 27-page document warned.

It accused Castro of encouraging "growing intervention in Cuban affairs by the Soviet Union and Communist China" and charged the bearded premier with killing his country's economy by Sino-Soviet barter agreements which were "politically" motivated.

SHATTERING FRIENDSHIP

The statement, delivered to Hammarskjold by U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, accused Castro of "many unfounded accusations, half-truths, malicious innuendos and distortions of history—all aimed against the historic friendship between Cuba and the United States, a friendship which he seems anxious to destroy."

It said the most dangerous distortion was Castro's charge that the big naval base on the eastern end of Cuba was being used by the United States "as a means of self-aggression, to justify an attack" against Cuba.

Counted Noses by Presents and Ink Marks

WINDHOEK, South West Africa (AP)—A census taker has got to learn tricks fast when he is assigned to count African bushmen, Koot Theron learned.

Theron figured the best way to get the bushmen to co-operate was to take along gifts of tobacco and light liquor.

But the gift-giving inspired a lot of the population to come around to be counted several times.

So Theron resorted to making a mark with indelible ink on the arm of each bushman he counted. It worked. Not only was the ink practically impossible to remove but water is too precious in arid South-West Africa to use for washing.

Legal Men Differ on Status

Quemoy, Matsu Dilemma Fogged in Fuzzy Wording

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The campaign dispute over the defense of Quemoy and Matsu centers on two documents that will govern in part what the next president legally could do in case of Red Chinese aggression.

Further complicating the bitter argument is the fuzzy wording of the documents — a 1954 treaty between the United States and Nationalist China, and a 1955 congressional resolution.

Legal authorities differ over what action these papers would require the United States to take in case the Red Chinese attacked Nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu islands, only a few miles off the Communist mainland.

This government deliberately has kept its intentions unclear. Military leaders say a big factor in deterring a Communist attack so far has been this uncertainty about what action the United States would take.

In the second presidential television debate, Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy termed the islands indefensible. He said the United States should not risk being dragged into a war by promising to fight for them.

GOP candidate Richard M. Nixon said the islands should be defended as a matter of principle because they are outposts of freedom. He said abandonment of the islands would only whet the Communists' appetite for further grabs.

In last night's third TV encounter, Nixon seemed to move closer to the administration's position that defense of Quemoy and Matsu would hinge on whether this country considered a Red attack as a first step toward an invasion of the Nationalist stronghold of Formosa.

LAST OUTPOSTS

The whole problem began in 1949 when nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek was driven from the mainland by the Communists and fled with his forces to Formosa, 100 miles off the coast.

In retreating, Chiang left garrisons on a 300-mile-long chain of islands near the mainland. He later abandoned or was driven from all but the Quemoy and Matsu groups.

The Communists first tried to capture Quemoy in late 1949 but were repelled with heavy losses.

In 1950, President Truman ordered the U.S. Seventh Fleet to patrol the Formosa Straits and block any attack on Formosa.

On Sept. 3, 1954, the Red Chinese launched a heavy artillery bombardment of Quemoy from the mainland. The islands have been shelled repeatedly since then.

★ ★ ★

In December 1954 the United States signed with Chiang the Republic of China Mutual Defense Treaty. This country pledged to defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadores Islands. The pledge did not specifically cover Quemoy and Matsu.

The next year, president Eisenhower asked and got from Congress a resolution formally establishing his authority to use U.S. troops to protect Chiang. The resolution authorized defense of Formosa and the Pescadores, and "such other measures" as the president considered necessary to protect them.

Some legal scholars have said this did not authorize the president to use troops to defend Quemoy and Matsu. Others said he could use American forces if an attack on the offshore islands was considered a prelude to an attack on Formosa.

This latter view became the Eisenhower administration's official position. The president never has said whether an attack on Matsu and Quemoy would be considered the first step in an attack on Formosa.

With K Gone, U.N. Is Settling Down to Normal

With Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other international headliners gone, members of the U.N. secretariat and newsmen will not be asked to show a passport-type identification card as many as a half-dozen times between the gate and their place of work in the eight-acre international enclave.

Those with brief cases will get a nod instead of a search from the guards.

'Great Debate' Footnotes

Shock Wave Spreads Fast

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Arthur Edson was one of three reporters in the studio with Vice President Nixon Thursday for his third TV debate with Sen. Kennedy. He's the only reporter who was also inside the studio with the candidates at their earlier meetings in Chicago and Washington.)

By ARTHUR EDSON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What a remarkable campaign this has turned into.

Away with the big, complex, tedious issues.

Our presidential candidates can not even agree on whether they had an agreement that no previously prepared notes should be brought along for a big television debate.

And, by the way, what is a note anyway?

★ ★ ★

To explain this properly, step with me into the American Broadcasting Co. studio, and we'll set the scene as it looked here Thursday before the two met in the third round of their TV debate.

All is quiet.

MEANWHILE . . .

Kennedy is 3,000 miles away in New York. Suddenly he is picked up on the monitor in the studio here.

Horrors, are those papers in front of him? He seems to have dropped one, and is busily retrieving it.

But before you can say Quemoy or even Matsu, the show has begun—and, as it turns out, so has the argument.

As the two men pound away at each other, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, sidles up to the three reporters in the studio to whisper that bringing in notes is bootleg stuff and a violation of ground rules.

★ ★ ★

With this forewarning, one of the first questions put to Nixon when the debate was over was: How about those notes Kennedy used?

"I'm not going to say anything," Nixon said, "but I was shocked."

It was not in the agreement at all, Nixon said, and though he twice said, "I'm not complaining," he said he will make sure it doesn't happen in the fourth debate.

CROSSCOUNTRY RETORT

Naturally this was quickly relayed to Kennedy's camp, and the reply came back that there was nothing like this in any agreement. And anyway Kennedy was not reading from notes but from a photostat.

Kennedy himself called The Associated Press to say:

"If I'm going to quote the President of the United States in a matter involving national security, he should be quoted accurately."

Since Nixon is, as he puts it, "a heavy sweater," the broadcasting studio was kept at 58 degrees.

★ ★ ★

Furthermore, it develops that Nixon likes to jab his opponent without having to look him in the eye. He reminded reporters that in Washington last week he carefully avoided looking at Kennedy. Incidentally, if it seemed to you that Nixon was on camera more than Kennedy, you're right. Some broadcasting statistician reported that Kennedy talked for 20 minutes and 8 seconds while Nixon had 24 minutes, 8 seconds. The moderator and panelist used up the rest.

Maine became the first state to vote dry, approving prohibition in 1846.

20th Anniversary Sunday for Selective Service

LANSING (AP)—State headquarters of the selective service commission is preparing for its 20th anniversary, — Sunday.

On Oct. 16, 1940, the first peacetime draft registration in U.S. history started, designed to supply men 21-35 for one year of training in the pre-World War II buildup of manpower.

Club Preparing for Halloween

Kiwanis at Rochester to Package Flares at Monday's Meeting

ROCHESTER — Kiwanis Club members will make final preparations Monday for their annual Halloween celebration, a colorful event which literally lights up this village every Oct. 31.

★ ★ ★

At 7 p.m. on Halloween the Rochester Fire Department sounds a shrieking alarm. The sound is a signal for all residents to light special flares and set them in their front yards.

★ ★ ★

Dances and parties with doughnuts, cider and other refreshments being served to children in the area are held the same night.

Parties are staged during recess in the schools for the younger children and dances are held at the junior and senior high schools.

★ ★ ★

The entertainment is financed by the Kiwanis Club through its sale of the flares. These will be packaged, with complete instructions, at the Monday meeting.

CONTRIBUTIONS ACCEPTED

Contributions also are received for the annual project from the village of Rochester and Avon Township, in addition to donations from local businessmen.

★ ★ ★

Ervin Schilke is head of the club's flare committee which also includes Fred Houghten, Henry and Jack Mitzelfeld and George Globe.

Chairman of the party committee is Russell Williams.

★ ★ ★

Kiwanians also sponsor special training for young people at Wolverine Boys State and Interlochen. They help needy and handicapped children.

★ ★ ★

But the Halloween celebration gives the club a chance to benefit all children in the Rochester area, according to Kiwanis President Robert Smitha.

To Get Homecoming Crown

Sacred Heart Festival Will Feature Dinner

AUBURN HEIGHTS — A feature of the 17th annual Fall Festival sponsored by Sacred Heart Parish Sunday will be a roast beef dinner with all the trimmings, served family style.

In addition, there will be pony rides, movies, games, amusements and booths where baked goods, candy and handiwork will be sold — over 25 attractions in all.

The festival will be held on the parish grounds on Adams Road, between South Blvd. and Auburn Road, from 1 to 6 p.m.

All proceeds will go toward furnishing the new Sacred Heart School.

Troy Church Planning Harvest Fete Tuesday

TROY — A turkey dinner, candy sale and doll display will be highlights of a Harvest Festival Tuesday sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of Troy Methodist Church.

★ ★ ★

Dinner will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. at the church on E. Square Lake Road near Livernois Road. An afternoon tea will be held prior to the dinner.

Quake Rocks Chile City

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Valdivia, a Chilean city some 550 miles south of Santiago, was shaken late Thursday by an earthquake of medium intensity. Valdivia was hard hit by last May's disastrous Chilean quakes.

Schalm School Session to End With Box Social

CLAWSON — The membership drive of the Paul A. Schalm School Parent-Teacher Association will climax Oct. 21 with a box social.

★ ★ ★

PTA members will meet in the multipurpose room of the school at 8:30 p.m. to receive instructions for a 30-minute scavenger hunt.

They are asked to bring their own lunches to be eaten upon their return to the building.

Coffee and soft drinks will be available.

In case of rain the party will be confined to the building.

West Bloomfield School Is Site for Polio Shots

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Polio vaccine inoculations will be given Monday and Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the West Bloomfield High School.

The clinic is sponsored by the township health committee.

All shots in the series will be given during the two days. A fee of $1 will be charged for each inoculation.

Catholic Vet Head Dies

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Max H. Sorensen, 65, national commander of the Catholic War Veterans in 1946 and 1947, died Wednesday in Germantown hospital. Sorenson owned Sorenson Industries, Inc., of Darby, Pa.

Joins Free Press Staff

DETROIT (UPI) — Mark F. Ethridge Jr., son of the publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, joins the Detroit Free Press Monday as assistant to Associate Editor Royce Howes. Ethridge, 36, was publisher of the Star Publishing Co. at Ravenswood, W. Va., before joining the Free Press.

Rochester to Discuss Two-Family Dwellings

ROHESTER — A request to allow two-family homes on Ludlow Street between West University Drive and Seventh Street will be discussed at a public hearing here Nov. 14.

A city ordinance now permits only single unit dwellings on the street. A petition signed by all but one property owner on the block requests the zoning change.

Rowston, Willman Head for West Coast

Mayor Philip E. Rowston accompanied by Mrs. Rowston, was headed towards San Diego, Calif., and an international conference of mayors.

★ ★ ★

City Manager Walter K. Willman and Mrs. Willman were headed toward San Francisco, Calif., where Willman will wind up his term as president of the International City Managers Assn. at the association's annual convention.

The Willmans plan a 1½-week trip to Hawaii before returning to Pontiac Nov. 7.

★ ★ ★

Commissioner John A. Dugan, mayor protem, will be acting mayor in Rowston's absence and Robert A. Stierer, assistant city manager, will fill in for Willman.

KATHERINE SHERBY

Mr. and Mrs. John Sherby of 336 Ferndale St., Rochester, announce the engagement of their daughter Katherine Anne to Ralph Bourdeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephrem Bourdeau of Cheboygan. The wedding will be in February.

DINOSAUR SKELETON — This 30-inch femur (thighbone) of an Allosaurus, ferocious dinosaur which lived millions of years ago, is pieced together at the University of Michigan Museum by Director Irving G. Reimann (right) and L. Grant Stokes, foreman of the scientific crew which unearthed the specimen from the remains of a prehistoric water hole near Cleveland, Utah.

Kennedy Receives Intellectual Backing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Henry M. Jackson today named a 250-member national committee of arts, letters and sciences in support of Sen. John F. Kennedy for president.

★ ★ ★

Jackson said the group included five Nobel and 19 Pulitzer Prize winners and their endorsement of Kennedy "is an obvious indication of the respect with which he is regarded in the intellectual world."

★ ★ ★

The five Nobel Prize winners on the committee are: Arthur Kornberg, Stanford University, 1959 prize in medicine and physiology; Polykarp Kusch, Columbia University, 1955 physics prize; Fritz Lipmann, New York City, 1953 prize for medicine and physiology; Edward M. Purcell, Brookhaven National Laboratory, N.Y., 1952 physics prize; and Dr. Selman A. Waksman, New Brunswick, N.J., 1952 prize in medicine and physiology.

U.S. Souvenirs Replace Nikita as Baltika Sails

NEW YORK (UP)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's private liner Baltika sailed back home today with a lackluster passenger list and an empty bunk in the fo'c'sle.

★ ★ ★

Khrushchev and the five satellite leaders who joined him on the voyage to New York chose to return home by other transportation.

Although the place cards at the captain's table will be less glittering as the Baltika steams eastward, the small, white-hulled liner at least has some extra cargo in her hold.

★ ★ ★

Two busloads of heavy goods — souvenirs — were loaded onto the vessel by her crewmen Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Among the souvenirs the Communists are sending home by sea are several portable television sets, a small air conditioner and three new American cars (a Cadillac, an Oldsmobile and a Comet).

Do-It-Yourself Talk Heard by Squadron

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP)—The 552nd Airborne Early Warning Squadron at McClelland Air Force Base made a logical choice in asking the Rev. Lester J. Maitland, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Parish, to be speaker at its dining-in night.

The clergyman is a retired Air Force brigidier general, took part in the first crossing of the Pacific Ocean by airplane from Oakland to Hawaii, was an aide to Gen. Billy Mitchell and was the first pilot to fly 200 m.p.h. back in 1922.

Bay County Agrees to Airport Allocation

BAY CITY (UPI) — The Bay County Board of Supervisors has agreed to allocate $15,947 as its initial share of an improvement and expansion project at Tri-City Airport.

The money will be made available as the county's share of a matching fund if Saginaw and Midland counties take similar action allocating money for the project.

A long-range program calls for construction of a control tower, expansion of runways to facilitate jet aircraft and enlarging of the administration building.

BOMBER SUSPECT — This is a sketch, drawn from the description of a 16-year-old girl victim of Thursday's Time Square subway station explosion, of the man who may be the bomber. The man was described as lame, wild-haired, between 30 and 40 years old, between 5 feet 2 and 5 feet 4 inches tall and wearing a corrective, built-up shoe on one foot.

ORCHARD'S
VANDALISM SALE

Let our misfortune be your gain. Two weeks ago vandals broke into our store. The next day we discovered a mess that was worse than imaginable. Sofas, chairs, end tables, lamps and many other items were covered with mustard, ketchup, paint, soup, crackers and coffee. All of this merchandise has been cleaned as well as possible. Now in order to sell these items and many other soiled and imperfect items we are holding a vandalism sale, where all of these items will be marked down at tremendous discounts, many items at wholesale cost or below. First come first served. Many one-of-a-kind items.

PET DOCTOR

By A. W. Meller, D.V.M.

Q. Our dog's behavior has already to give up. Why is it so destructive?

A. Dogs feel many of the emotions experienced by humans, and the first corrective step is finding WHY your pet behaves this way. The female dog will tear things to make a bed for expected puppies. It's natural instinct. Puppies chew on furniture to relieve teething distress.

Dogs will eat flowers and other strange items when there is a diet deficiency. Even a placid, older dog who is used to constant companionship may become spitefully destructive when left alone.

★ ★ ★

I once owned an otherwise well-behaved dog who would remove and hide every piece of fruit from the dining-room table when we were out.

★ ★ ★

Be sure your pet's diet is adequate; confine him and keep temptation out of reach when he's unchaperoned. Supply him with toys of his own, and remember that he understands stern tones and correction as well as praise and affection.

Polio May Reach Low Mark in State

PORT HURON (UP)—State Health Commissioner Albert E. Heustis said today that crippling polio may fall off to a record low in Michigan this year.

Dr. Heustis said only 35 paralytic polio cases were reported in the first nine months of 1960, compared with a total of 164 for the full year of 1959, 557 in 1958 and more than 1,000 in 1954.

Salk antipolio vaccine was released for general use in 1955.

"Unless we have an unexpected outbreak," Dr. Heustis said, "the number of Michigan people getting paralytic polio this year will be the lowest on record."

Polio has not been conquered, he cautioned, since "There always will be new babies to be vaccinated, as well as youngsters and young adults who need booster shots to keep their guard up."

Check State to Add Civil War Markers

LANSING (UP)—A survey of Michigan's Civil War-related sites is under way, says Dr. George S. May, chairman of the historical marker committee of the Michigan Civil War Observance Commission.

May, director of the state historical markers program, said the group has decided to check out all present markers and all sites important to the state's Civil War activity.

"We know that a number of the camps where Michigan regiments were organized have not yet been marked," he said, "and these will rank high on our list."

Has Been Called Millionaire

Ike Pretty Well Set for Old Age

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower told a group of Veterans Administration officials here the other day:

"Some of you people, some day are going to have to take care of me," he admonished the group with a grin.

Well, that will be the day.

The happy fact is that Eisenhower won't have to worry when he leaves the White House, even if he hasn't managed to save a dime from his $150,000 annual salary and expense account as President of the United States.

A newspaper man who studied his financial situation three years ago, concluded that Ike then was a millionaire. The President was asked about this at a press conference. He scoffed that anybody who offered him a million to sell out his holdings would make a deal in a hurry.

Maybe that was so, but actually the President doesn't really know how much he's worth.

By his own account during the 1952 election campaign, he paid $217,082 in federal taxes on $888,303 income in the 10 preceding years. That should have left a nice little nest egg to take with him into the White House.

His take during that pre-White House period, included $635,000 from the sale of rights to his book "Crusade in Europe" on which, as an amateur author, he was allowed to pay $158,750 tax as a capital gain rather than two or three times as much had the sum been charged up as ordinary income.

Eisenhower as President, put all his assets into an irrevocable trust to be managed by a group of his friends, so that he doesn't know how what has been done with his money. In general though, they have done all right with their own money, and presumably they have not done so bad with his either.

His known assets include a 400-cattle farm at Gettysburg, Pa., complete with a 14-room, 8-bath-room air-conditioned farm house. So you can be sure Ike never will have to seek space in an old soldiers' home.

And, even in the unlikely event that all his investments turn sour and his farm fails to pay, he still won't lack for three-meals a day. tleto spare on such other nec And, he can even count on a little to spare on such other necessities as club membership and a continuing supply of golf balls.

That is because Congress, in 1958, decided that our ex-presidents never should have to go out and hunt for a job. It voted to pay them $25,000 a year for as long as they live. Their widows then get $10,000 yearly.

Salary of the President of the U. S. originally was $25,000 a year. It was raised to $50,000 in 1875; to $75,000 in 1900; to $100,000 in 1949.

Industrials Forge Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — Industrials moved ahead nicely as the stock market resumed its rise in fairly active early trading today. Gains of key stocks went from fractions to more than a point.

The major steelmakers were ahead unanimously at the opening apparently responding to a prediction by Board Chairman Roger M. Blough of U.S. Steel that steel production will show improvement in the current quarter.

Republic Steel and Jones & Laughlin were up around a point and Bethlehem gained a fraction. U. S. Steel nudged ahead at the start, then eased.

Big three autos all scored fractional gains and General Motors was up ¼ at 43¾ on a block of 4,800 shares.

Polaroid, which has been rebounding vigorously in recent sessions, dipped at the start as earnings were reported lower for the third quarter but higher for the nine-months period. It steadied and showed a net gain exceeding 2 points.

Union Carbide and Eastman Kodak advanced well over a point each. Up about a point were International Telephone, General Dynamics and Goodrich. Schering and DuPont lost about a point each.

Moderate gains were scored by Texas Instruments, Zenith, Pfizer, Lorillard, Eastern Air Lines, American Telephone, Phelps Dodge, Douglas Aircraft and General Electric.

Range Is Narrow for Grain Dealings

CHICAGO (AP) — Grains traded within a narrow range in mostly quiet dealings on the Board of Trade today.

Price changes early in the session were held to minor fractions. New lows were established in March and May corn futures on fractional declines.

★ ★ ★

Wheat started mixed with a little buying that was believed to be hedge-lifting by exporters against foreign sales. Volume was very small around the opening.

Soybeans started lower on offerings by local traders and brokers who usually represent elevator and export interests. This was believed to be anticipatory hedging against country purchasers over the weekend. Trading in corn was a seesaw affair.

Worst Crash of Year Claims Fourth Victim

Oakland County's worst highway accident of the year to date claimed its fourth victim last night.

Willie Bryant, 33, of Detroit succumbed at Pontiac General Hospital to injuries received in a two-car head-on collision on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township Saturday evening.

Oakland Highway Toll in '60

Last Year to Date: 64

He was driving south when his car apparently swerved into the path of an oncoming auto driven by Dr. Simeon Blinn, 44, a dentist at Flint.

Clero Smothers, 34, Billy Johnson, 3, and William Hodges, 7, all of Detroit and passengers in the Bryant car, remained at the hospital today.

Smothers is still in critical condition. The two boys are listed as satisfactory.

THE '61 THUNDERBIRD — The 1961 Thunderbird which makes its public debut tomorrow in the National Auto Show at Cobo Hall, has undergone its third major styling change, the Ford Motor Co. announced today. The new model is slightly shorter and narrower than the others, but has more interior room. Offered in the hardtop (above) or convertible, the Thunderbird will go on display in November and may be seen then at Beattie Motor Sales, 5806 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township; Eddie Steele, Inc., 2705 Orchard Lake Road, Keego Harbor; and John A. McAuliffe, 630 Oakland Ave.

Make-Up Couldn't Hide Fatigue of Candidates

NEW YORK (AP)—Neither lighting nor make-up could conceal Thursday night that the two men who are campaigning for the presidency of the United States were tired.

Actually, their fatigue showed even more in their voices than in their faces during their third debate.

Mice Getting Slower Voyage

30 Minutes on Rocket, Now Trip to Take 5 Days by Ship

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Three black mice today are on a five-day return trip over a 5,000-mile distance they traveled yesterday in 30 minutes.

★ ★ ★

The three — Sally, Amy and Moe —were hurled the 5,000 miles down the Atlantic missile range aboard an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile, whose nose cone landed in the South Atlantic near Ascension Island, off the west coast of Africa.

The nose cone soared more than 650 miles above earth at a speed of 17,000 miles an hour. The mice were part of an experiment to test the effects of deadly space radiation on living tissue.

The cone was retrieved about 3½ hours after landing in the ocean, but it was several hours before medical scientists pulled back the last of the heavy shielding to find the animals squealing heartily.

IN GOOD CONDITION

"All three are alive and in good condition," said an official announcement that spelled another U. S. space triumph — the longest flight ever recorded in American rocket experiments with animals.

It also signaled the start of a new series of rocket tests with animals.

Within the next three months, U. S. scientists hope to fire monkeys into orbit aboard Discoverer and Atlas satellites.

★ ★ ★

The test also marked a big step forward in the U. S. program to send a human astronaut into an earth orbit aboard the Atlas next year.

Scientists said the mice will be mated to test the effect of space radiation on off-spring.

The mice were from the School of Aviation Medicine at Brooks AFB near San Antonio, Tex.

Waterford Man Killed by Car

Driver Admits Visiting 5 Bars Before Accident, Police Say

A gas station attendant, walking home from work early this morning in Waterford Township, was killed by a motorist who police say admitted having visited five bars before the accident.

★ ★ ★

Township police said they would take the driver of the car, Burl L. Gullett, 24, of 9510 Portage Trail, Waterford Township, to the Prosecutor's Office this morning to make a statement.

Gullett told police that he had left his shift at the General Motors Truck & Coach factory in Pontiac at 3 p.m. Thursday and had spent the night and early morning hours at five township bars.

The accident occurred shortly after Davis closed up the station at 2:30 a.m., police said. The victim was walking on the shoulder of Highland road toward his home.

Gullett said he suddenly realized he was on the shoulder of the road, driving about 50 m.p.h., when he spotted Davis. He swerved to miss him but it was too late, he told police.

★ ★ ★

His car then careened across the road striking a sign and rolling over twice. He was treated at the hospital for abrasions and held by police.

Both Gullett and the victim are unmarried.

HOT UNDER THE COLLAR — Model of a missile nose cone sweats it out during a heat test at National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Center in Virginia. Heat that reaches 3,100 degrees F. — a third as hot as the surface of the sun — is generated by the cylindrical radiator of General Electric quartz infrared lamps. The lamps simulate the heating conditions which a space vehicle encounters when it enters the earth's atmosphere.

Therapy Clinic, Airport Project Near Completion

While the spotlight is on the new Pontiac Public Library Building, two other city projects are nearing completion.

At Pontiac General Hospital, equipment was being moved today into the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation physical therapy clinic.

Harold B. Euler, hospital administrator, said moving would continue next week, with dedication of the $35,000 center early in November.

The center is being finished and equipped at no cost to the hospital under an agreement that will see the hospital treating polio patients, and the center general care patients who need physical therapy.

It is the first such unit sponsored by the foundation in any general hospital in the country.

At Pontiac Municipal Airport, paving contractors turned attention to a 1,300-foot extension of the 4,000-foot-long east-west runway.

The runway has been recapped this fall. Pavers have built an M59 entranceway to the new terminal building and laid a 120-car parking lot for terminal users.

Still to be accomplished, besides the extension, are taxiways and the parking ramp for aricraft loading and unloading in front of the terminal.

Homer D. Hoskins, airport manager, said he expects terminal completion towards the end of the month.

Moderator Has Cast to Remind of Dem Session

★ ★ ★

"I'm the only man who was awarded a purple heart at the Democratic National Convention," said Shadel, who kept the hand hidden during the telecast.

He fell on a pop bottle and cut two tendons during the floor demonstration for Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Feikens Nominated to U.S. Court Post

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John Feikens, former chairman of the Michigan Republican State Central Committee, has been named by President Eisenhower to a recess appointment on the Federal Court for the Eastern District of Michigan.

His appointment was one of three made Thursday. In each case the President's appointee had been nominated during the last session of Congress but had failed to win Senate confirmation.

Feikens' appointment was blocked by Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., as a result of charges Feikens made while McNamara was running for the Senate in 1954. At that time Feikens, a Grosse Pointe attorney, was the state GOP chairman.

No Housing so 200 Rejected at U. of I.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The University of Illinois denied admission this fall to 200 women undergraduate students because no approved housing was available in Urbana.

Dean Charles W. Sanfor says the school's doors opened to a record breaking enrollment of 22,500 over the estimated enrollment by 900.

The student body hadn't been expected to reach 22,500 until Septmber 1961.

Ex-Turkish Leaders on Trial for Lives

YASSIADA ISLAND, Turkey (AP)—Former Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and ex-President Celal Bayar today went on trial for their lives, charged with a long list of grave crimes against the state.

★ ★ ★

On trial with Menderes, 61, and Bayar, 76, were 16 ministers of Menderes' ousted Cabinet and 377 former members of Parliament from Menderes' disbanded Democratic party.

Most of the lesser defendants faced prison sentences of 5 to 15 years if convicted.

3-Month Dow Income Nets 68 Cents a Share

MIDLAND (UPI) — Dow Chemical Co. said today net income from the three months ended Aug. 31 was $18,517,982 or 68 cents per share on common stock outstanding. Sales for the period totaled $202,099,704.

★ ★ ★

For the corresponding three months of 1959, net income was $22,327,471 or 84 cents a share on common stock outstanding and sales totaled $191,681,368.

Dow had 27,393,317 shares of common stock outstanding on Aug. 31 this year compared with 26,448,087 on the same date a year ago.

Last 2 Debates Behind First in Viewer Totals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sixty million Americans in 24 million homes watched last night's Nixon-Kennedy debate, according to a survey made by Trendex, the American Broadcasting Co. said.

★ ★ ★

The sampling, taken in 25 cities, indicated that 57.7 per cent of the TV sets in the nation were in use and of those turned on, 50.4 per cent were tuned to the debate.

The number of viewers was about the same as the number tuned in on the second debate, but six million less than on the first debate, ABC said.

The A. C. Nielsen Co. reported that 38 per cent of the TV sets in the New York area were turned on for the debate, roughly equal to the 39 per cent in the second debate, but less than the 54 per cent in the first debate.

Showers Cloud Nation's Weather Picture Today

By The Associated Press

Showers dampened wide areas in the West and middle sections of the country today as severe thunderstorms in the Plains diminished.

Generally fairly mild weather continued in much of the eastern half of the nation. It was a little cool in many northern areas from New England to the northern Rockies.

One shower belt covered areas in the middle Mississippi Valley and Upper Great Lakes region while isolated showers sprinkled New England.

Bulls Take Revenge

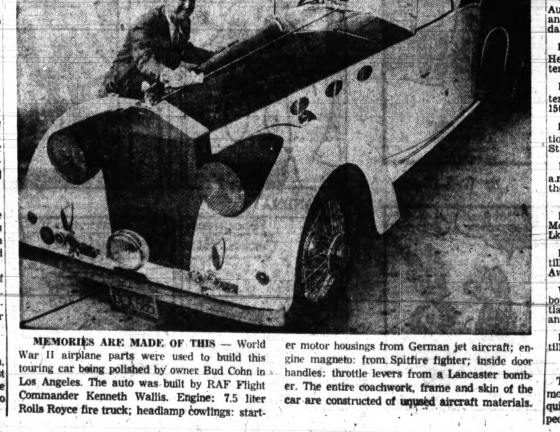
Two irate bulls, horns lowered, charged his car and demolished it. One of the bulls suffered fatal injuries. McHugh was treated for a minor scalp cut.



MEMORIES ARE MADE OF THIS — World War II airplane parts were used to build this touring car being polished by owner Bud Cohn in Los Angeles. The auto was built by RAF Flight Commander Kenneth Wallis. Engine: 7.5 liter Rolls Royce fire truck; headlamp cowlings: starter motor housings from German jet aircraft; engine magneto: from Spitfire fighter; inside door handles: throttle levers from a Lancaster bomber. The entire coachwork, frame and skin of the car are constructed of unused aircraft materials.

Dem Chairman Answers Charge

Repudiates Claim That 'Mockery' Is Made of Voter Drive by Union

All of the electorate—including labor unions— have the right to vote and should exercise it in voter registration drives, Democratic County Chairman James M. Ginn said today in a reply to his Republican counterpart.

Ginn was answering a charge by Arthur G. Elliott Jr., Republican chairman of Oakland County, that unions participating in such drives recently had made a "mockery" out of their claims of nonpartisan political action.

★ ★ ★

"I had always thought that the success of a democratic society and government was based on the participation of all of the electorate," Ginn said.

"Evidently the Republican does not agree and feels that the success of his party in an election is determined by the fact that the electorate remain small so that his minority may continue to control the county offices."

Ginn said Elliott's attitude was "selfishly appalling."

Although Elliott deplored labor support of Democratic candidates, Ginn said, he "ignores the efforts of corporation officials who aid the Republican party on company time."

★ ★ ★

"The Democratic party has always welcomed and will always welcome the activities of any group —Republicans or Democrats, business or labor, civic or professional that will increase the size of the electorate and the number of voters who cast their ballots," he said.

Elliott's concern, Ginn said, was to perpetuate the long-standing control of Oakland County by Republicans by not providing the opportunity to everyone to vote.

Cuba Nationalizes 382 Industrial Firms

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's regime took a huge step today toward complete state control of Cuba's basic industries by nationalizing 382 firms, including all Cuban banks and 105 sugar mills.

★ ★ ★

This was the first nationalization of Cuban-owned property. The government previously had nationalized the bulk of U.S. investments in this country, including 36 sugar mills and banks, estimated to be worth a total of a billion dollars.

The new nationalization decree was signed by the prime minister and President Osvaldo Dorticos. It included 50 textile factories, 8 railways, 11 movie chains, 13 department stores, 16 rice mills, 6 distilleries and 11 coffee companies. Many had been taken at least partially under government control previously.

Pretend You're Home When Out in Public

By RUTH MILLETT

In a recent interview the executive housekeeper of a large hotel said wistfully:

"I wish more people would pretend that they are at home when they stay in a hotel."

She had in mind, I'm sure, the people who burn holes in carpets and furniture with cigarettes, who use towels to polish their shoes, who let a TV set blast out late at night, who scorch bedspreads using a bed for an ironing board and so on.

But her formula for a considerate hotel guest, pretending that one is at home when one is away from home, applies to behavior in all kinds of public places and even in the houses of one's friends.

Because so few seem to make a habit of pretending they are at home when they are away from home, restrooms are often filthy; highways and parks and camping spots are made ugly by litterbugs; fires are started by careless vacationers; dresses tried on by careless shoppers are often smeared with lipstick, and cigarettes are stamped out on any kind of floor in public buildings.

We are shocked that so many of today's children and teenagers seem to have so little respect for the property of others.

But what can we really expect when so many adults take no pride at all in protecting property that doesn't belong to them.

★ ★ ★

If adults remembered to "pretend they are at home when they are away from home" and taught that standard to their children, we could cut down on useless waste and destruction and unsightly clutter.

And we would have a working formula for behaving like ladies and gentlemen wherever we are.

October in the Hills

By RUTH SAUNDERS

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — A typical October weekend has been planned in the Hills which will occupy residents in several ways.

Cranbrook School's traditional Homecoming will include a football game followed by tea for alums. Kingswood School will present its annual Autumn Festival in the evening.

The Michigan - Northwestern game will attract several groups of friends who will probably picnic en route to Ann Arbor.

One group will include the J.A. Frosts Jr., and their brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs. Mark Jung, graduates of Northwestern.

Their other guests will be Mr. and Mrs. John W. Drummond and Mr. and Mrs. James Du-Bois.

Also going to Ann Arbor will be Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mills whose guests at dinner Saturday following the game will be Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Dr. and Mrs. James Barrett.

★ ★ ★

Mr. and Mrs. James O. Wright flew to Paris Tuesday where they will stay at the Bristol Hotel during the Paris Automobile Show.

They will go to London for a stay at Grosvenor House before returning home.

Mrs. Otis T. Gregg of Hackensack, N.J. will come next Tuesday for a visit with Mrs. Ralph L. Polk of Lone Pine Road.

The two met on a world cruise and will spend a day with Detroit friends who were on the same trip.

In Bloomfield Mr. and Mrs. John H. Fitch will be hosts at dinner one evening, Mrs. Albert L. LeGro will give a luncheon Oct. 22 and Mrs. Polk has planned a buffet supper party for her guest on the 23rd.

★ ★ ★

St. Dunstan's Guild is in rehearsal for its opening play, "The Girls in 509," which will be presented Oct. 28, 29 and Nov. 3, 4 and 5.

The Nov. 3 performance is a benefit for the Junior Auxiliary of the Village Woman's Club.

Opening night will be a gay formal affair with several dinner parties preceding the performance.

★ ★ ★

Among dinner hosts will be Mrs. Weslau Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Bawden and James Schneider.

CHAMPAGNE PARTY

The Robert Raisches are entertaining and after the Oct. 28 show Mr. and Mrs. James Crabb Jr. will give a champagne party honoring Mrs. John Warner and Mrs. Martin H. Strandbargh, members of the cast.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. George A. Bee will arrive home Saturday from three weeks in Europe.

Willing Workers Elect Officers

The Ladies Willing Workers' Band of the East Pike Church of God elected officers Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Estel Moore of Ottawa Drive.

Serving with Mrs. Lawrence Bragg, president, will be Mrs. Moore, vice president; and Mrs. Robert King, secretary-treasurer.

Suggestions for new projects from the 26 members present were submitted.

Extensionists Eye Time and Energy

Mrs. H. D. Nicholie and Mrs. Wayne M. Cook gave a lesson on "Effective Use of Time and Energy" at The Extensionists' Tuesday meeting.

Mrs. Charles Hauser of Otsego Drive was hostess.

★ ★ ★

The group will attend a Christmas workshop Oct. 28 at Clarkston High School.

Play Court Whist

The Past Noble Grands Club of Pontiac Rebekah Lodge No. 450 played court whist Tuesday in the Murphy Avenue home of Mrs. Viola Hopp.

At the Nov. 8 meeting in the home of Mrs. Fredrickh Schwark on Ludlow Street, Rochester, arrangements for a Christmas party will be made.

You Don't Have to Send Cards

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Two of my friends gave me a surprise 25th wedding anniversary luncheon at one of our fine restaurants. Quite a large group was present.

They all paid for their own lunch and also contributed toward a gift which was presented to me. At the luncheon I got up and made a short speech thanking them all and also telling them how wonderful it was to have such dear friends.

I also stood at the door as they were leaving and thanked each and everyone individually. Now, after a month there are comments going around that I should have sent each one a note of thanks.

Will you please tell me if I was wrong not to have written notes, and if so how can I rectify it.

Answer: You were not wrong. Thanking each one individually was all that was required of you.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and was wondering if it would be proper for my fiance's parents to give us a small reception after the wedding?

My parents do not approve of our marriage and therefore will not be present. Or, would it be better, under the circumstances, if my fiance and I were married very quietly?

Answer: Although it is not considered proper for the bridegroom's parents to give the wedding reception, it is not unheard of for them to do so.

Very certainly it will be better than having neither of your families standing back of you.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Post: What does one do about persons who go to the funeral of a relative and who do not have cars of their own?

It is the obligation of the family of the deceased to provide transportation for them to the cemetery, or do they make arrangements with the funeral director for this themselves?

Answer: The family should provide this transportation, making any necessary arrangements with the funeral director.

RAMBLER AMERICAN — A two-door convertible has been added to the 1961 Rambler American line. All models are 5.2 inches shorter and 3 inches narrower, with luggage space increased 50 per cent. The custom six engine develops 125 horsepower at 4,200 rpm's. Models are all 173.1 inch long and have a 100 inch wheelbase.

Car Industry Major Key to Economy

Automotive manufacturing is big business, but compared to its actual size the amount of business it generates throughout the American economy is tremendous.

The production of cars, trucks, buses, trailers, tires and tubes, batteries, and petroleum products could be likened to the inverted base of a pyramid.

At that base there are approximately 1,000,000 workers and 3,398 business establishments engaged in putting motor vehicles together and furnishing the power for their locomotion.

But as the sides of the pyramid widen you pick up another nine million or so who are employed in U.S. highway transit industries. They work in some 800,000 establishments that are entirely dependent of the manufacturing, distribution, servicing and use of motor vehicles.

These concerns represent 17.2 per cent or one-sixth of the total of 4,635,000 companies doing business in this country.

The automotive category, besides manufacturing, includes retail and wholesale sales, repairs, parking, services and miscellaneous enterprises such as auto courts, drive - in theaters and trailer parks.

The inverted base of the pyramid keeps widening to a point of near infinity when adding such items as the products of 26,000 suppliers needed by just one automobile company and the people employed in all the businesses that are either directly or indirectly concerned with motor vehicle manufacturing.

Not least among the industry's suppliers are farmers. In a recent year, car and truck makers used more than 460,000 bales of cotton (from 763,000 acres) and 21,600,000 pounds of wool.

'Don't Forget Your Goggles'

Today's Motorists Don't Require Special Gear, but Grandma Did

Motoring today is just a matter of getting in and going whether the driver is wearing a swimming suit or a formal gown.

But in grandma and grandpa's day an automobile trip required special attire.

The early cars had no roof, windshields or heaters. Some didn't even have fenders. That meant that the driver and his passengers were fair game for rain, dust, or cold.

To meet these challenges, clothes designers developed a large assortment of motoring styles—most of which weren't too pretty but did offer some measure of protection against the dirt and dust of unpaved roads and the elements.

Both driver and passengers usually were outfitted with goggles. Often these were incorporated into a cap or hat and even were available as part of an all-over face mask. If worn today these masks might bring the comment that the wearer might have come from Mars.

* * *

Women protected their faces with many ingenious types of veiling attached to the large hats of the day. Some of the trim was actually labelled a dust curtain. One design could easily be mistaken for a beekeeper's habit.

Long coats of leather, suede, rubber, linen, fur or other materials were fashionable and vital for both men and women. Women of today might be willing to wear these garments—if the prices were the same. Some of the fur coats could be bought for as little as $50.

With the modern car's roof, windshield, heater, air-conditioning, and virtually dust proof interior, this special auto garb is no longer necessary.

Two items that could be put to good use even now are the old-fashioned fur foot muff and one of the various types of masks which covered the entire face. The muff would be a good piece of equipment for a night baseball game.

Where Would We Be Without the Wheel?

Wheels turn and our economy marches on.

One of man's greatest inventions — the wheel — is taken for granted by most people today.

But what if all the wheels stopped?

Life in over 50,000 towns, villages and cities in the United States alone would grind to a near halt, as the people reverted back to conditions of the prehistoric man.

It is wheels that continue to carry civilization to greater heights.

In 1959 wheels carried more than 10,500,000 trucks on the road. Thousands of American communities depend on this fact; their products and needs were transported exclusively on these trucks.

Another example of an American who depends on the wheel for his existence is the suburban commuter. As he moves farther and farther out from the heart of the big city, he comes to depend on the wheel more and more to the extent that nearly every family in the United States has an automobile at its disposal.

38 MILLION A YEAR

This business of the wheel has become such big business that more than 50,000 people are employed in the manufacture of wheels, drums and hubs for automobiles and trucks alone, excluding wheels used by agriculture, aircraft, earth-moving and other specialized fields.

Presently, the wheel industry manufactures in an average year more than 38,000,000 wheels.

The total world production of motor vehicles in 1958 was 11,724,651 and more than 150,000,000 people are now licensed to drive.

This role that the wheel plays in our modern way of life is not newly won. It has been obtained through an evolutionary process that began more than 5000 years ago when the Elamites, an ancient tribe from the Tigris - Euphrates Valley, located in what is now Iraq, first fashioned a wheel that revolved about its own axis. Prior to this, log rollers had been in vogue.

The initial step toward the wheel came when these rollers were notched near each end to permit retaining pins to keep them captive beneath the vehicle, instead of rolling out the back only to be hand-carried around to the front again.

With this method, the notches soon wore down letting the center of the roller rub against the bottom of the vehicle. To overcome this, the center of the roller then was carved or burned down to a very small diameter while either end of the roller was left its original size to act as wheels. The last step, then before the wheel became a wheel, was freeing these solid discs from their axle.

This was the work of the Elamites. And their wheelwrights soon added metal bands to the outside of the disc for use as "tires" to prevent rapid wear.

ENTER, THE RIM

All forms of the wheel, from the earliest Elamite wheel through the first wheels of the Egyptians in about 1500 B. C., were merely refinements of the basic cross-section of a tree. This wheel was the strongest type known then, but its enormous weight canceled out some of its advantage. Later Egyptian wheels around 1300 B. C. used the spoke and rim method to overcome weight and yet retain some strength.

Improvements were made on this wheel such as increasing the number of spokes and reducing the diameter of the individual spoke. But in one form or another, the spoked wheel remained in use for the next 3400 years or so! The return to the disc wheel began in the 1920's although wooden spoked wheels were used on some cars up until the 1930's.

Modern history of the wheel began right after the turn of the century when in the decade after 1909 wheel hubs and brake drums began to be made of steel. Prior to this, the conventional buggy wheel was made entirely of wood, excepting the use of metal for tires. The first demountable rims appeared in 1904 and by 1905 a universal rim had been developed. Wire wheels became standard equipment on all cars by 1912, as did demountable rims by 1915.

Disc wheels with demountable rims first appeared in 1927 as the trend toward smaller wheels began. At this time riveted wire wheels were prominent also. During the late 1920's, signs began to appear that the wood wheel was to fade completely from the automotive scene.

Disc-type all steel wheels were perfected by 1940 and were used extensively on trucks. This type wheel was standard equipment on trucks of World War II.

The early 1950's saw stylists return the wire wheel to limited use for styling purposes and the late 1950's marked the beginning of the present trend toward lighter and smaller metal disc wheels.

Transformation Still Under Way

Motor Travel Revamps U.S. Cities

Transportation progress has brought many changes in American city life, and the transformation is still under way at a rapid pace.

Cities are opening up and spreading out.

Broad parkways and expressways are slicing through their tight-packed central districts. Sprawling new residential and shopping developments are cropping up and around their outskirts.

More and more of the people who work in city factories, shops or offices are living miles away in the suburbs.

In a word, cities are being decentralized.

This is not merely a recent trend. It is a continuing one that started imperceptibly some 60 years ago when "horseless carriages" began to appear on city streets.

★ ★ ★

For example, the 1960 census showed that the suburbs of the nation's 189 largest metropolitan areas had grown 47 per cent in population since 1957, while the central cities gained only 8.2 per cent.

PARALLEL TREND

Paralleling this trend has been a rapid rise in the use of motor vehicles throughout the nation. Vehicle registrations have increased by 125 per cent since 1950 to a present national total of nearly 72 million.

★ ★ ★

Significantly, motor vehicle use has grown faster than population. The ratio between population and motor vehicles in the nation's metropolitan areas averaged about 4.4 to 1 in 1940. Today, the average is approximately 2.5 persons per vehicle.

Transportation has been closely linked with the establishment and growth of cities throughout history. Before the age of steam power, there was no efficient overland transportation. Slow moving animal-drawn carts, wagons and carriages were the best freight and passenger haulers available on land.

Depending for existence upon a heavy flow of commerce, cities could flourish only on sea coasts or rivers. When cross-country railroads were built during the last century, sizeable inland cities grew up along their routes.

With the advent of motor vehicle travel, city growth no longer was bound to fixed transportation centers.

EVOLUTION IN TRAVEL

Cars, trucks and buses replaced buggies, wagons and coaches, bringing new concepts of mobility and flexibility to the city. They added another link to the chain of transportation progress that began with the steamship and the steam locomotive, a century before.

Motor transportation has allowed American cities to break out from their old constricted boundaries and spread over the surrounding countryside. In the process it has brought about profound changes in every aspect of city life.

★ ★ ★

By the historian's measure, these changes have been swift. But, for the ordinary city dweller, the transformation has been gradual enough to come as a matter of course. He now accepts the daily service of motor vehicles without awe or wonder.

Bad Headlight Aim Handicaps Drivers

Three out of four drivers give themselves a night driving handicap because their automobile headlights are not properly aimed, reports AC Spark Plug Division of General Motors.

Checking headlight aim was tried as an experiment during a portion of the safety lane inspection program in Flint recently. Of 290 cars checked in one day of operation, 219 had improperly aimed headlights.

Most car owners probably don't realize the importance of properly aimed headlights, AC engineers say. Lights aimed only two degrees low can mean the loss of as much as 35 per cent of lighting effectiveness.

General Motors is owned by a total of more than 800,000 holders of common and preferred stock, giving the company the broadest ownership of any individual organization in the world. Holders of GM stock reside in every state in the U. S., all provinces of Canada and some 80 countries abroad.

Eisenhower Will Speak at Auto Dinner Monday

President Eisenhower will be the honored guest and speaker at the National Automobile Show Industry Dinner in Detroit Monday at Cobo Hall.

A black-tie, stag affair, the dinner will be attended by more than 2,200 automotive industry executives and other business leaders of the nation, civic leaders, government officials, educators, and press, radio and television representatives.

Such dinners, always held in connection with National Automobile Shows, have been a tradition of the automotive industry for more than 50 years.

The great size of the Cobo Hall banquet room overlooking the Detroit River and neighboring Canada will make possible the largest attendance in the dinner's long history.

The last National Automobile Show banquet was in December, 1956, at the New York Waldorf-Astoria hotel, with Vice President Richard M. Nixon the speaker. Nixon made an important foreign policy address on that occasion.

One other president — Herbert Hoover — has addressed a National Show Dinner. Hoover spoke at the 1931 dinner, and also in 1926, when he was Secretary of Commerce.

Other speakers at the dinners have included senators, cabinet members and prominent personalities of the day, such as Will Rogers and Knute Rockne, the famed football coach.

100,000 Firms Keep U.S. Vehicles Rolling

Some 100,000 business places in the nation are devoted exclusively to keep the 72 million trucks and automobiles in good repair.

The breakdown includes 70,407 engaged in general automotive repairs, 1,899 battery and ignition repair and service, 1,349 glass replacement and repair, 2,991 paint shops, 3,147 radiator repairs, 4,009 tire repairs, 14,349 top and body repairs, 1,080 brake repairs, 1,239 wheel, axle and spring repairs, and 3,254 engaged in miscellaneous automotive repairs.

Tech Center Heart of GM Research

The center is the workshop of approximately 5,000 engineers, researchers, stylists, designers, mechanics, machinists and other specialists who use science and technology to consistently improve GM products.

MAKE OVER PAGES

Progress Made Throughout the Years

Engineers Still Searching for Ideal Transmission

From the infancy of the automotive industry engineers have hunted for an ideal transmission. The requisites: Eliminate the clutch pedal and hand gear shifting, make driving safer by making it easier, automatically provide the ideal gear ratio for every driving demand, and so take full advantage of the engine's inherent economy while providing top-flight performance.

★ ★ ★

While continuing engineering development inevitably will bring improvements over today's automatics, the first three basic requisites of the ideal have been met. Great progress has been made toward providing the answers to the last two.

Over the years, many types of transmissions have been tried. There were sliding gear transmissions, over-gear transmissions, synchronized, constant mesh and planetary transmissions. Variable throw, inertia, hydraulic and electric transmissions were all subjected to searching laboratory and road tests.

Some of the more significant recent developments include slimmer and lighter designs, smoother shifting pattern and the introduction of the "transaxle" which combines the transmission with the differential.

★ ★ ★

Among the most promising seemed to be the hydraulic and electric mechanisms, but lack of materials in the early days proved their undoing.

As early as 1895, the battery-powered Dey-Griswold sought to use a fluid drive. The electric motor was to drive two pumps, forcing oil to turbines on the rear wheels. The car never reached production. Chief among the "bugs" was lack of tubing strong enough to carry the necessary pressure.

Several early autos used a friction drive, with Cartercar undoubtedly the most popular. In the first decade of the century the Cartercar offered the motorist an infinitely variable gear ratio, but selection was still manual and not automatic.

★ ★ ★

In the same period, the Columbia used an electric transmission with seven speeds and a little later the Owen Magnetic, "the car of a thousand speeds," used its gasoline engine to drive an electric generator which in turn powered an electric transmission.

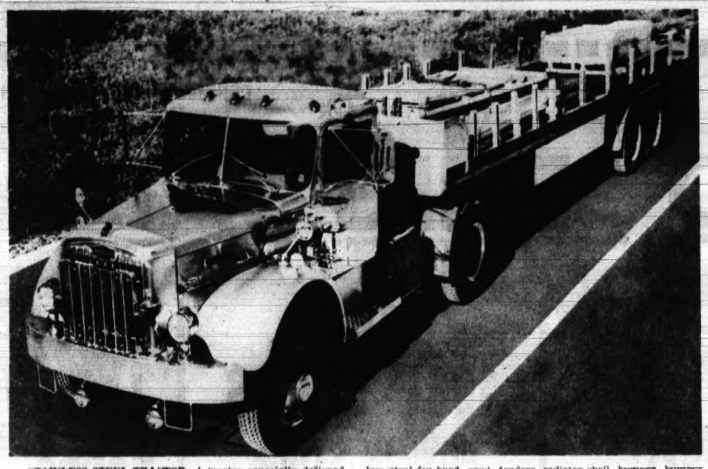
Manley, the engineer who helped Langley with his first airplane, designed a hydraulic transmission that worked, but proved far too expensive for production. In the late 20s and early 30s, a major automotive firm spent several years in designing, building and road-testing a fully automatic friction transmission.

It gave more than 300,000 miles of excellent road service and piled up another 115,000 miles of satisfactory laboratory tests.

This transmission provided a maximum efficiency range from 87 to 91 per cent with drive ratios ranging up to 8 to 1. On cross-country trips, it delivered fuel mileage gains up to 20 per cent — but was not adopted.

With materials and manufacturing methods then known, it would have weighed 250 pounds and pushed the cost of an automobile into the luxury class.

These years of research and experiment were not wasted, however. When better materials and transmissions ever developed, production methods were developed, automotive engineers had a wealth of information on which to draw. The results are the finest



STAINLESS STEEL TRACTOR—A tractor especially designed for use when corrosion may be a problem from the standpoint of atmosphere or product condition will be displayed by the Autocar Division of the White Motor Co. at the Auto Show. Utilizing stainless steel for hood, cowl, fenders, radiator shell, bumper, bumper aprons, exhaust stack and guard, this model also has a chrome-plated radiator guard.

Economy of Nation Important in Color

Whether you know it or not, the economic state of the nation plays a big role in determining the color of the car you buy.

Sounds crazy, but it's a fact. Two other factors, besides personal color tastes, affect your choice: the climate in your particular part of the country and technological developments.

About the state of the nation bit. Color specialists tell us that when our economy is high, the public's taste favors light colors. From this we can surmise that if times are bad, we prefer darker, more sombed tones. White has been the most preferred color in 1960 models and is expected to hold the No. 1 spot.

And the weather? Folks in warmer climates want their cars in light or pastel shades. Those who live in colder areas prefer darker colors. But again white rates high — an indication that prosperity is a stronger influence than climate.

Research to improve paint and create new colors goes on constantly, and new achievements in that field brings the prediction that maroon will be a "hot" color in 1961.

Early Owners Often Injured

It usually meant the wearer of the cast was the proud—if injured—owner of a horseless carriage.

★ ★ ★

The Badge of Distinction disappeared with the advent of the self-starter for automobiles. That began in the year 1910 when the late Charles F. (Boss) Kettering, who became GM research director, devised the electrical apparatus which today is accepted as "another part of the car."

In the early days of motoring there was affixed to the forward engine mounting an "S" shaped piece of iron which could be slotted into an extension of the crankshaft.

By grasping the end of the "S" handle and performing a rotary motion of hand and arm (accompanied by bending of body, weaving of head and sweating of brow), it was possible, on most occasions, to "generate" enough electricity to cause a spark in the plugs and thereby fire the gasoline in the cylinders and start the engine.

★ ★ ★

Also, in those early days, the "spark was adjusted by hand." This was a term meaning to pre set the ignition contacts so that the engine would fire when the rotation of the engine coincided with that of the pre-set "timer."

This often inadvertently caused the engine to fire before the piston had reached the top of the stroke and thereby revolve in a reverse cycle.

With crank firmly affixed to the crankshaft, such backward revolution brought the crank handle back into the arm of the "cranker," dealing the forearm a severe blow. Often both arm bones were shattered.

With the "self-starter," first introduced on a Cadillac in the year 1911, motorist doctors' bills for repair of broken arms were virtually eliminated.

Engineering improvements on starter motors manufactured by the Delco-Remy Division of General Motors have been made constantly since the first "Boss Ket" [illegible] Today an 18-pound modern ca[illegible] 162 horsepower and [illegible] to revolve a 318 horse[illegible] engine at 100 [illegible] minute.

Starting motors usually run as long as a car is in use; today's models have a record of better than 20,000 "starts" on testing blocks. It is designed to cause the engine to fire in less than 30 seconds.

Pontiac and Tempest on Common Line

In manufacturing the 1961 Pontiac and Tempest, Pontiac Motor Division utilizes a common assembly line for both cars. Four-cylinder and eight-cylinder engines also are machined, assembled and tested on a common line, resulting in higher efficiency.

Of the 118,885,000 motor vehicles registered in the world, 65 per cent are in the U. S. Americans own 64 million, or 70 per cent of the passenger cars in the world; 49 per cent of the world's motor trucks; and more than 33 per cent of the busses.

Car Production Continues Up

Compacts Set Record for a Week at 45,035; Trucks Drop Off

DETROIT (AP) — Auto production in the United States continued to move upward this week with compact cars setting an all time record, Automotive News reported today.

★ ★ ★

The trade paper estimated total output at 149,322 passenger cars, compared with 140,984 last week and 133,611 in the similar week of 1959.

Of the total 45,035 were the smaller cars. The previous high was 43,894 last week.

★ ★ ★

Truck production continues to run below last year with 19,146 assemblies this week, compared with 23,965 in the similar week of 1959. Last week's truck production totaled 17,718 units.

★ ★ ★

Canadian factories produced 5,995 cars and trucks this week, down from 6,246 a week ago but ahead of last year's 5,320.

Joining the Tempest's engine to the transmission is a curved torque tube that houses the flexible drive shaft, making possible the nearly flat floor and serving to support drive shaft bearings. The ⅝ inch diameter drive shaft is manufactured of high grade alloy steel and is specially manufactured for high fatigue life.

Auto Show Moved Out to Sticks, Nobody Comes

In 1924 the 24th National Automobile Show moved from its customary spot, The Palace in New York. As the result, sponsors nearly failed to attract anyone.

Under the slogan, "The Big Show in a Bigger Place," the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce moved the show to the 258th Field Artillery Armory, nine miles, or 30 minutes ride, from the heart of Manhattan in the Bronx.

The Palace, so recently commodius, was no longer big enough to exhibit the products of 73 auto firms and 221 parts and accessories manufacturers.

Sam Miles, show manager, did all he could to direct the visitors to the Armory. Streets and highways leading to it were posted. Parking was provided for 3,000 cars. Hotel menus in Manhattan directed subway rides to the Armory, as did department store window displays.

The first few hours brought a shocking disappointment; nobody came.

In the cavernous hall salesmen shouted to each other, "Who's buried under your tombstone?" pointing to the white, sculptured exhibit area markers.

Later, it was discovered that subway wrecks, the first in years, had halted the flow of visitors from mid-Manhattan. Still later that evening, a drop in temperature to zero further curtailed attendance.

★ ★ ★

Four-wheel brakes and balloon tires drew most attention. The Essex coach, priced under $1,000, attracted great crowds. There was great interest, too, in the quick-drying finishes which permitted baking of bodies with wood frames.

★ ★ ★

Show visitors were happy to discover one of the Armory's advantages: several thousand balcony seats that afforded an unbroken view of the largest show arena in the world. A restaurant seating 800 attracted others.

★ ★ ★

While Manager Miles fretted about the lack of visitors during this show's opening night, Walter P. Chrysler was packing people into the lobby of the Hotel Commodore, where his Maxwell - Chalmers Corporation unveiled that year's outstanding automotive sensation—the first Chrysler car, a light six, featuring a high-compression engine, a seven-bearing crankshaft, four-wheel hydraulic brakes, a replaceable cartridge oil filter, and body styling that pleased almost everyone.
