Slippery Roads Cause of Five Accidents Here

Crews Busy With Salt and Sand to Keep Main Arteries Open

Auto accidents were held to a minimum after almost an inch of snow and rain made Oakland County highways slippery hazards for motorists.

Local law enforcement agencies, who said drivers slowed to a creep during the day, reported only five accidents that could be blamed on conditions.

Meanwhile, Oakland County Road Commission crews are busy salting and sanding main arteries. Extra men are being called to work in an effort to remove slippery spots from main and side roads.

Spokesmen said side roads will remain slippery if the snow continues.

Pontiac Dept. of Public Works officials said most main city streets are being sanded but conditions are still hazardous. The situation can be handled easily if not more than another inch of snow falls, they said.

A spot check of AAA towing services turned up only a few stalled and stuck motorists.

State Highway Department spokesmen said most state trunk lines are slippery and warned drivers that the condition will prevail if the snowfall continues.

The snow, which started about 1 a.m. today, is expected to continue until tonight, diminishing into flurries.

Following a 38 degree high this afternoon, the mercury is expected to dip to between 26 and 30 degrees tonight, according to the United States Weather Bureau.

Forecasters predict continued snow flurries Sunday with accompanying temperatures between 32 and 35 degrees.

Yesterday the mercury rose from an 8 a.m. 30-degree low to a high of 38. Snow, turning to rain fell in the afternoon.

Today in downtown Pontiac the mercury stood at 30 degrees at 8 a.m., climbing to 34 by 1 p.m.

President Paul V. Sangren announced the dismissals, which had been recommended by a faculty committee on student discipline.

Names of the three weren't disclosed, although Sangren said one was from Detroit, another from Dearborn and a third from LaPorte, Ind.

One of the three, dressed as the "Hunchback of Notre Dame," swung about the campus, a hood over his head and his arms held grotesquely. A pillow in the back of his coat provided the hunchback.

The other two, dressed normally, accompanied him on his coed-frightening forays at night.

Some coeds were so frightened they sent a representative to a city council meeting to demand better police protection on the campus.

At the time the three were caught, the hunchback told police he was a fraternity pledge and his proudest part of his initiation. Police said it turned out he wasn't a pledge.

Pontiac Unit Hopes to Raise $6,000 in Drive This Year

Buy your Pontiac Press today from your favorite newsboys.

"A happy holiday for needy families on Christmas!"

That's the goal in today's Goodfellow newspaper drive in Pontiac, White Lake Township and Oxford.

Pontiac Police Sgt. Walter Bearwolf, chairman of the year's drive here, said 45 Old Newsboys are on the streets today, selling the Press in an effort to raise $6,000 to aid needy families on Christmas.

The annual Goodfellow sales got underway at 1 p.m. today when members of the Pontiac Metropolitan Club, Spirit Six, and White Lake Township's Spirit 78, began soliciting donations in downtown buildings, schools, and on strategic corners.

The drive for funds to aid needy families started with a $100 donation in advance from the Pontiac Press and $20 from Barnett's Clothes Shop, said Bearwolf. An additional two dollars were donated anonymously.

Consisting of local mail carriers, fire and policemen, the Metropolitan Club's present drive dates back to 1919 when the Old Newsboys promised:

"No child without a Christmas."

"We have never failed yet in our paper sales. Our goal has been reached every year so far," said Bearwolf.

The proceeds from the paper sale will furnish the needy with food baskets, fuel, clothing, and other necessities.

Army Charges New 'Mata Hari' Got Top Secrets

BERLIN (AP)—An East German beauty was accused today of delivering the U.S. Army's "order of battle" in Berlin to the Russians.

The charge was one of three drawn up against 25-year-old Irina Margarethe Schmidt, who allegedly made love to two U.S. intelligence officers in Berlin to get the information.

The U.S. High Commission said she would be arraigned here on the three counts Tuesday.

The top secret "order of battle" details the identity, strength and deployment of U.S. troops in Soviet-occupied Berlin.

"She was paid by the Russians for whatever information she transmitted," an official said. She got about $375, he said.

Foreman Says Intruder Tried to Enter Room

Deliberations Continue on Doctor's Fate After Visitor Flees

CLEVELAND (INS)—A mystery woman tried today to invade the room where a jury is deadlocked for the second day of deliberation on the fate of Dr. Sam Sheppard.

The buzzer signal from the locked room at first was believed to be a notification that the jury of seven men and five women had decided the life or death question for the accused wife killer.

Bailiff Edward Francis rushed one flight up to the jury door to bring down the notification to the judge.

Instead, he was met by the foreman, who told him a young lady had attempted to get into the chamber.

The woman fled from the unguarded door after the foreman ordered her to leave, Francis said.

The bailiff said "no harm was done" by the incident. The court appointed "guardian" of the jury said: "The woman didn't hear anything or get in. The foreman warned her to get away or he would have her arrested. He then rang the buzzer for us."

Police could find no trace of her by the time they arrived.

The incident occurred at 10:09 a.m., one hour and five minutes after the jury resumed its effort to reach a verdict today.

The panel has had the case since 10:13 a.m. yesterday when Judge Edward Blythin told them they must return a verdict of innocent unless they were convinced "beyond a reasonable doubt" of Dr. Sam's guilt.

Their pondering could mean freedom, life imprisonment or death in the electric chair for the baby-faced defendant.

The group renewed their effort to blend their 12 ideas into one unanimous decision at 9:05 a.m. this morning.

The seven men and five women appeared fresh and in good spirits in contrast to the manner in which (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Someone May Be Watching

Firing of MSC Physician Spotlights Saucer Fans

CHICAGO (UP)—Dr. Charles Laughead's prophecies of earthquakes, floods and the end of the known world have brought to light a strange cult of fellow believers.

The 44-year-old doctor, ousted from a Michigan State College post because of his dire predictions, is apparently not alone in believing that space creatures in flying saucers are watching us all the time.

He is currently a guest at the home of the high priestess of the cult, a frail suburban housewife, as he searches for a new job.

His hostess, 33-year-old grandmother Mrs. Dorothy Martin, says she receives extra-sensory messages from the creatures in outer space.

She said they have told her that Chicago can expect a tidal wave next Tuesday, along with "cataclysmic" events elsewhere in the country. Even worse disasters, including a worldwide flood, are likely for 1955, she said.

A University of Iowa student, Darold Powers, 19, revealed that he and others meet every month to discuss Mrs. Martin's messages from the creatures she calls "con-ners."

There are several similar groups elsewhere in the country, Powers said.

Laughead meanwhile stuck to his predictions and found time to attend a meeting of 100 Chicago flying saucer enthusiasts.

"Some sound tapes were run off," he said. "Nobody understood them, but it was obvious that an organized attempt at communication with the earth had been captured on the tape."

Despite Laughead's warnings, most Chicagoans were inclined to regard next Tuesday as just the fourth shopping day before Christmas.

Asked what he would do if he really thought a tidal wave was coming, Joseph Stiezeff said he wouldn't be too worried.

"I'm not burdened with sin, anyway," he said. "Being married, you can't do much."

Senate was drafted by the chiefs of staff of the member countries. The United States is known to favor consultation before resorting to atomic warfare but has been opposed to a binding commitment which might be unworkable in emergencies.

A NATO spokesman said yesterday the ministers had agreed who should decide when atomic weapons would be used and also how the decision would be reached. All details of the agreement were withheld.

Chapter 12 — 'Suspect'

—By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

Mrs. Gelstrap Found Drunk, Kit Carlson Is Drugged

THE STORY: Private Detective Jim Dunn and his bride Mary are posing as caretakers for their client, Mrs. Kit Carlson, who needs some detective work to clear her of suspicion of murder. They are living at the Spire, part of the Carlson estate, in Colorado. When he goes to make a fire in the morning, Jim notes the couple's of his secretary, Miss Wister, whom he supposed to be in Denver, outside the cabin and in the basement on an elevator used to haul wood to the upstairs fireplace is a dead woman's body. The dead woman is Mrs. Angelica Jones, sister-in-law of his client.

Remembering the vulnerable kitchen door, Jim ran around the main house, climbed up the steep bank to the back porch.

The door swung open. It was unlocked.

Mrs. Gelstrap sat at the kitchen table, her head resting on one fat arm stretched out on the porcelain surface. Jim touched her cheek gingerly, found it warm.

He could hear her heavy wheezy breathing and noticed now the reek of liquor which filled the room. An empty bottle lay on its side on the floor and shards of a glass were scattered.

Jim shook the cook's fat shoulder. "Snap out of it! Come on. Wake up."

She opened one small, bloodshot eye. "What's that?" She closed the eye again.

Jim left her, hurried through the butler's pantry, the dining room, into the large living room. A night-time gust of wind had funneled down the stone chimney and puffed light wood ashes out into the room. The hearth and the near-by floor were covered evenly. Even the lid of the woodbox-window seat was smoothly covered with the fine ash. Nowhere was there evidence of any disturbance.

Jim found two unused bedrooms and Kit Carlson in the third. On the night table was a small round bottle with a plastic top. Inside were many small, brightly colored capsules.

Jim muttered under his breath. "One drunk and the other drugged." He pushed at her covered shoulder.

She rolled toward him, and her soft snoring stopped. Her smile widened. The movement uncovered a shoulder and Jim noticed she considered a very sheer nightgown appropriate wear for the mountains. The skin of the shoulder was silky, resilient. "Mrs. Carlson! Wake up." He interspersed shakes with the insistent words.

She sat up, eyes still tightly shut. The coverlet slipped away and she held up her arms. "Pety! Pety!"

Jim Dunn evaded her arms, shook her until her eyes opened.

"You remember me," Jim said quickly. "Jim Dunn. You hired me."

She pulled the coverlet around her, shook her head from side to

4 Die on Glazed State Highways

Drivers Warned Storm Will Continue Over Weekend

By UNITED PRESS
Michigan motorists, who seldom get through a weekend without counting a dozen or so of their fellow drivers dead, were warned today to prepare for a snowy pre-Christmas weekend.

Flurries and a cold rain teamed up to produce slippery driving conditions yesterday south of a line from Bay City to Ludington.

Michigan rolled up a traffic death toll of four during the early hours of the weekend.

Among the dead was Hugo C. Croll, 50, of Au Gres in Arenac County. He was killed near Saginaw last night when his car skidded into a truck on M15.

The death of Theodore Swiercan, 32, Flint, was believed to be a hit-run case. Two motorists found him lying on a street and he was dead on arrival at Flint's Hurley Hospital.

The first reported traffic fatality of the weekend was Miss Genevieve Kells, 66. She died last night after she was struck by a truck while crossing a street in Grosse Pointe Park.

Mrs. Mary Shippey, 32, Birmingham, was killed and four other persons injured shortly before midnight in a two-car collision in Detroit.

General Manager Leo J. Nowicki of Detroit street railways urged Saturday shoppers to avoid congestion and possible accidents by leaving their cars at home and using the transit system.

Nowicki said all available DSR equipment would be pressed into service today to handle the traditionally heavy influx of downtown shoppers on the final Saturday before Christmas. He said 100 extra buses and streetcars would be on a standby basis in the loop areas.

Recently we received a request to print a recipe for Squaw Corn. The writer assumed—and rightly—that it is a dish Boy and Girl Scouts make for outdoor meals. We asked an authority on outdoor cooking for her version of Squaw Corn and got the following recipe from Mrs. Jay Bendall of Four Towns. You may want to use this quick dish for supper or lunch during these rushed days.

Four school age children don't keep Mrs. Bendall busy enough, it seems. She has long been a trainer for outdoor activities in the Girl Scouts and is Day Camp Chairman for the same organization. To round out her civic duties she is a PTA mother vice president and the secretary of the Elizabeth Russell Guild of her church.

SQUAW CORN

By Mrs. Jay Bendall

4 slices bacon, cut into small pieces
2 cans whole kernel corn
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 large onion, finely chopped (optional)
1 green pepper, finely chopped (optional)
Salt and pepper

Fry bacon in skillet until crisp, draining off most of the fat. Add the corn and allow to cook until some of the liquid has been absorbed. Add the eggs and cook until the mixture thickens. Makes 6-8 servings.

If the onion is used, let it brown with the bacon. Add the green pepper with the corn. Cream style corn may be used if desired.

Janis Paige Is Selected Broadway Gal of Year

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK —(And a-way we go... with our 1934 "Broadway Bests.")

Red-haired Janis Paige of Tacoma, Wash., star of "The Pajama Game," is undoubtedly the Broadway Gal of the Year because of the way she acted either in or out of pajamas.

Kitty Kallen and Betty Madigan were the Top Girl Singers, Eddie Fisher was once more the Top Boy Singer, Victor Mature regained the "Leading Wolf" title which he lost for a while due to marriage, and as for the Biggest Blowup of the Year.

That award was indubitably and undisputedly won by Marilyn Monroe's skirt.

It was back in '44 that we decided there should be an Earl-American Show Business Team as well as All-American football teams.

We picked Vic Damone, then 18, as Best New Crooner that year, Peter Lawford as Best New Pin-Up Boy, and Glenn Davis as Greatest Athlete.

On this, our 8th Annual Earl-American, we wish to state flatly that the Great-McCarthy and Stevens.

est TV Team of the Year was: Ernest Hemingway, Most Outs: Sammy Davis Jr. Best Birthdays: Truman's 70th and Churchill's 80th. Most Promising New Politician: Oh, phlubb, they're all promising something.

TV COMEDIAN OF THE YEAR: Jackie Gleason. Best New TV Comic: George Gobel. (America went from Global Thinking to Gobel Thinking.)

BEST COMEBACKS: Frank Sinatra and Lillian Roth. Most Quoted Speechmaker: Charles E. Wilson, who's still dog-eared. Biggest Upset: The Giant-killing of the Indians. Flattest Flop: Christian Dior's best balcony.

This was the year of Eddie and Debbie, the Sheppard trial, crew cuts, Italian hairdos, "Medic," the Mambo, Scrabble, CinemaScope, Tri-X film, "The Morning Show," and the DC-7.

BEST NEW MOVIE GAL: Kim Novak. Best Bust: Gene Stone of the Blackburn Twins act. Best Athletes: Willie Mays, Ducky Rhodes and Hopalong Cassidy. Most Forgotten Woman of the Year: Your Wife ask her.

Very Rude to Take Call Elsewhere

Should Have Said She'd Discuss the Subject Later

By EMILY POST

A letter tells me: "The other afternoon while a neighbor of mine was visiting me, I received a telephone call regarding a very personal matter which I did not wish to discuss in front of this person. I excused myself and took the call on an extension telephone in another room.

I understand my visitor thinks me very rude for doing this. I would like to know if I was wrong and if she is justified in feeling that I was rude to her."

I do think it was impolite to your visitor to leave the room and take the call elsewhere. It would have been much better to have said to the person calling, "Oh, let me think about that and I'll call you back later."

Dear Mrs. Post: A few days after my nephew became engaged, he and his fiancée came to visit my husband and me. She made no attempt to show me her engagement ring and so I did not ask to see it. Now I understand my nephew thinks I acted very indifferent by not asking to see the engagement ring. I think it was up to her to show it to me without my asking. What is correct in this situation?

It was up to you to recognize the ring by saying, "Oh, is that your engagement ring?" and then she would have held up her hand for you to see it.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me the correct way to eat beef or chicken pot pie? In most of the restaurants it is served in a small baking dish which is placed on a dinner plate. Is it proper to eat directly from the baking dish, or should it be emptied onto the dinner plate and eaten from there?

You may eat it directly from the baking dish if you wish or you may lift it a little at a time on to the dinner plate and eat it from there — whichever you prefer.

Cozy Furniture Is New Idea

A cozy "Kaffee Klatsch" furniture grouping idea from Europe makes a nice addition to American room decor. It consists of a small sofa or love seat, three chairs and a small table of dining height.

Decorator Beverly Reitz, who showed the arrangement at the National Home Furnishings Show, placed the table directly in front of the love seat and grouped the chairs around in bridge style.

She pointed out that the idea is suitable for snacks, games, or gab sessions, and that the chairs can always be moved elsewhere in the room when needed.

Her Interest in Dancing Proved Profitable Later

By ANNE HEYWOOD

"I have an interesting part-time job," a young woman writes, "and I got it in the strangest way!"

"I used to be in business, and I worked hard and dated a lot, and got in lots of dancing and tennis and bowling. But after I got married, I wasn't nearly so active. Sure, I do my own housework, but, in spite of that, I began to get kind of 'dowdy and plump.'"

"I decided that exercise was a must, but frankly, I haven't the will power to just turn on the radio and do dancing exercises. It was too boring."

"So," she continues, "I decided to try to find a place where I could go, maybe just once a week, for real exercise and dancing. I combed the neighborhood, in fact, our whole city, and finally found a very good dancing school, run by a nice woman."

"I signed up, and went once a week for my lessons. My figure got much better, and it was such fun to have a real workout. Also, the fee was very small."

"But one day the lady announced, sadly, that she was going to have to close, because there just weren't enough customers. It broke my heart, because she was so good at it, and it meant so much to me."

"Well, believe it or not, I blurted out something to the effect that I thought maybe I could scare up some customers for her, and to please hold off for a while. Now, I am not a salesman type at all, but this woman had such a good service, at such a reasonable price, and I had benefited from it so much — well, I just felt that anyone who didn't go to her for dancing was crazy!"

"I contacted all the housewives I knew, and the woman's club, and told them how wonderful this was, and how they should all join up. Then I went to some of the business offices, and told them about it, and how it would prevent 'stenographer's spread,' and so forth. I guess my enthusiasm rubbed off, because, believe it or not, I got a great many takers!"

"So," the letter concludes, "I still take my dancing lessons, and I get a nice percentage for every new customer I bring; the lady is staying in business, and I have a nice nest egg building up!"

Learn Trick of Makeup at Start

One hazard of wearing a real job of make-up is that it needs to be tended even more carefully than a naked skin.

A smear or a streak, a sharp line under the chin or a neglected spot can turn hours of work into a harlequin mask, ugly and unbecoming.

If you need make-up that starts with the foundation, covers with powder and accessorizes with eyeshadow and rouge, you know it by now. It may be because you have had skin coloring or because your skin has flaws.

But once you've decided, don't do a halfway job. Get a good strong light for your dressing table and survey your work from all angles.

Learn all you can from cosmetics specialists about application for your individual skin. Keep a watchful eye on a mirror all day, even if you have to duck out of the room. Make sure you don't smear it on your gloves or rub it into your eyebrows.

Work, check and work again is the assignment to keep this real make-up job looking natural.

A new asset to a woman who sets herself on this path is the arrival of a foundation in a plastic squeeze bottle. It can be easily carried in the smallest of purses for frequent repairs or as an overhaul, if necessary.

The drop-by-drop release of this liquid from its bottle means less fear and smear when you're doing a patch job in a powder room.

Resilient Floors Easy to Install

Here's a tip on laying resilient flooring. Getting just the right amount of adhesive is very important, but sometimes hard to do.

The edge on the trowel can make all the difference in the world.

He recommends a smooth-edged trowel in putting down adhesive for vinyl tile and 3-gauge rubber tile.

For laying 3/16th-inch and 1/8-inch rubber and asphalt tile he uses a trowel with a notched edge. The notches should be 1/18-inch deep and 3/16-inch apart.

Leather Gloves Need Good Care and leather accessories like belts if you remember to suede it at the first sign of soil and never let it get really wet.

Go over the surface with thick soapuds, wipe with a clean damp cloth, and then with a dry one. Be sure to put leather to dry away from heat.

Washable leather gloves can be immersed in lukewarm soapuds, gently "massaging" the sues into the leather with your fingers. Rinse, blot lightly in a towel, blow the fingers open, and dry over a towel or on glove frames. While gloves are still slightly damp, work them gently onto your hands and they're ready to wear.

Care for Trim on Fur Coat

You should treat a fur-trimmed coat with the same care as you do a fur coat.

Fur-trimmed garments—no matter whether the trim is merely a pocket or a collar—should be hung in the coolest closet in the house, just like a fur coat.

The fur-trimmed coat should not be jammed against other clothing, because this will mat or break the fur.

The trim should not be brushed or combed, but just shaken before and after each wearing.
