

Army Engineers Fight Oil Scum on Upper Mississippi

ALMA, Wis. (AP) — The Corps of Engineers today ordered men and equipment to take up a battle against an ugly film of oil, which spread for 25 miles from a wrecked barge along the scenic upper Mississippi River.

Col. Richard J. Hesse, head of the corps' St. Paul, Minn., division, ordered a survey team into the area.

Also dispatched was a vacuum truck. Col. Hesse said the machine will be used to suck up the oil where possible, probably into barges. Booms will be used to contain the oil, where that can be done, to keep the film from spreading.

Hesse said the quantity of oil which leaked from the wrecked barge was not as great as originally feared. He said it amounted to about 40,000 gallons — about one-tenth of the first estimate.

The oil was several inches deep in some backwater areas, Hesse said, and it will be in those places that the vacuum truck will be useful. More trucks will be brought in if they're needed, Hesse said.

Elsewhere, where the oil is only a thin film atop the water's surface, removal will be difficult. Hesse said that rain had helped to dissipate the film.

Minnesota and Wisconsin conservationists wrung their hands over the impact on wildlife.

"It's like living in a refinery," said James Everson, a Wisconsin conservation warden. "All of a sudden we get a big slug of petroleum right in the middle of some of the clearest water on the Mississippi."

BARGE WRECKED MONDAY

Everson estimated the film covered 75 per cent of the river's surface along the 25 miles.

Houghland Towing Co. of Paducah, Ky., operator of the barge, was charged by Everson with violating state pollution statutes. The pilot, George Stroube of Godfrey, Ill., was charged with careless operation of a tow.

The firm posted bond in Buffalo County Court. The cases were adjourned to June 30.

POLICEMAN DOWNED—An injured policeman is aided by other officers after he was knocked down by a thrown object during a fracas with an estimated 1,500 persons in Ann Arbor last night. At least 25 officers and demonstrators were injured in the disturbance which saw the arrest of 45 persons.

'M' President Hits Police for Smoke, Tear Gas Use

From Our News Wires

ANN ARBOR — The president of the University of Michigan today attacked police use of smoke and tear gas bombs in breaking up a disorder on the school's campus last night.

Forty-five persons were arrested—23 of them on felony charges—in the disorder which began as a street dance on a business street near the campus and spread to the central campus area.

"In the initial clearing process some police squads used smoke and tear gas bombs," said President Robben W. Fleming. "I thought this was unfortunate, because in the one case to which I was immediately exposed, there was no resistance and the use of those weapons tended to excite the crowd perhaps more than it helped."

The disorder began when a group of young people took over three blocks of South University Street for the second straight night. Police merely stood by and watched Monday night as people danced in the streets, ran motorcycle stunts and reportedly performed the sex act.

But when barricades went up on the street last night, a force of about 200 policemen moved in on the 1,500 who had gathered. It was not clear how many of those involved were university students.

The police force repeatedly swept the street and later moved onto the university campus when groups gathered there. Gas — including the irritant gas — was used both on the street and on the campus.

At least 25 demonstrators and police were injured, apparently none of them seriously.

Of those arrested, 23 were charged with felonies. Two were charged with "malicious and willful destruction" of a police car windshield. The other 20 were charged with felonies under the Michigan riot statutes, which carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in jail a $10,000 fine or both.

Deputy Ann Arbor Police Chief Harold Olson said a juvenile attempted to stab him just after he ordered the crowd to disperse or face arrest. The youth was arrested and charged as a juvenile offender. Two other juveniles were also arrested.

Between 400 to 500 state police, sheriff's deputies from Washtenaw, Monroe, Macomb and Oakland counties, and local police were used in dealing with the disturbance.

Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny blamed two hippie groups — the White Panther Party and Trans-Love Energies — for instigating the trouble.

They had been passing out leaflets for several days urging young people to take over a section of the street which runs south from the University campus through rows of fashionable shops with student housing located on the side streets, he said.

About 50 County Deputies Help Put Down Disturbance

About 50 Oakland County sheriff's deputies spent the night in Ann Arbor last night, listening to jeers of "Pigs, go home" and dodging flying bottles and bricks.

They joined 400 to 500 other law enforcement officers from four counties in an effort to subdue young persons who were "trying to take over" a main street in downtown Ann Arbor, according to County Undersheriff Leo Hazen.

The deputies were called to work at 10 p.m., when the disturbance was building up. They returned home early this morning. They estimated 1,500 persons were involved in the disturbance.

None of the deputies were injured, but all were targets of rock-throwers in the crowd. Hazen said the young people, mostly "hippie-types," threw rocks, bricks, cement blocks, bottles and cherry bombs at all the police on the scene.

'WOULDN'T LISTEN

"They wouldn't listen to pleas from University of Michigan President Robben Fleming, so we just had to move them off the street," Hazen said. He said several windows were broken in the melee.

Ten officers from the Pontiac Police department left this morning to replace other lawmen who left around 3 a.m., when the disturbance finally broke up.

The county's tactical unit was not activated.

Weather Refrain: It May Rain Again

The weatherman was overheard repeating himself today. His forecast, just like yesterday, is for showers and thundershowers.

There's a chance of rain late today, tonight and tomorrow with little change in temperature, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau's forecast. The outlook for Friday is partly cloudy.

The mercury is expected to register a low near 52 to 58 tonight and a high of 73 to 75 tomorrow.

Morning winds east to southeast at five to 10 miles per hour will become southeast to south at 10 to 15 miles tonight.

Probabilities of precipitation are 40 per cent today, 50 per cent tonight, 30 per cent tomorrow.

A misty 54 was the low thermometer reading before 8 a.m. The temperature had climbed to 69 by 2 p.m.

Chemical-War Probe Hailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new organization of scientists critical of the nation's supersecret chemical and biological warfare arsenal has reacted with unrestrained enthusiasm to President Nixon's order for a full review of all CBW programs.

"I think that's one of the best things that's happened in a long while," Yale University biologist Dr. Arthur W. Galston said after the White House yesterday announced a sweeping reappraisal of whether development and testing of CBW agents is necessary and proper.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also announced that the 1925 Geneva protocol designed to curb chemical and biological warfare will be reexamined. The United States promoted the document 44 years ago but still has not ratified it.

Nixon's review, to be conducted by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the State and Defense departments, came after a rising congressional and public outcry. The concern was spurred by the death of some 6,000 sheep near a nerve gas testing ground in Utah last year and the Army's plans—since delayed—to ship 27,000 tons of obsolete chemical-laden bombs overlaid by train and dump them into the sea.

ONE-MAN CRUSADE

The congressional chorus of protest began as a one-man crusade by Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, a third-term Democrat from Buffalo, N.Y. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee then held hearings, and Ziegler said the entire subject was explored in past National Security Council meetings.

The NSC will receive the results of the new study.

McCarthy said he was pleased with the review plans and said he thought they would lead to a resubmission of the Geneva protocol, which he, Sen. J. W. Fulbright and 35 congressmen are requesting in a resolution.

Scientists worried about chemical-biological warfare formed the Scientist's Committee on Chemical and Biological Warfare last December during a professional meeting in Dallas.

DETROIT (AP)—Councilwoman Mary Beck, long a political foe of Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, today announced her candidacy for mayor on a law-and-order platform.

After Face-Building

Deborah Sits Up—and Smiles

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Deborah Fox sat up in bed for the first time since a 13½-hour operation to rebuild her face, and she smiled.

"They keep shooting me with those needles," she said—her biggest complaint. "But soon I'll be able to get up and walk around."

Deborah is the 13-year-old Tennessee girl, born virtually without a face, who was operated on by six surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital last Wednesday. Using some techniques for the first time, they literally changed the configuration of her skull bones, moving her eyes from the sides to the center of her face, and began rebuilding her nose.

5TH OPERATION

It was the 37th—and by far the most major—operation for Deborah, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fox of near Chattanooga.

"Did you read my poetry?" she asked a newsman Tuesday at the hospital.

"Yes."

City Gets $800,000 Windfall

The City Commission — receiving a revised 1969 budget — was informed last night an unexpected windfall of about $800,000 has come to the city's treasury.

The extra money, results mostly because of overtime-swollen pocketbooks of employees at General Motors facilities here, it was explained.

With the three large local GM plants setting production records, the city income tax is expected to gross some $5 million in 1969 as opposed to a projected $4,159,000.

The commissioners set a public hearing on the revised budget for July 1 at 8 p.m. at City Hall.

The budget has been delayed this year due to protracted contract negotiations with city employees. After long negotiations — and some strikes — contract settlements were reached last month with unions representing police, firemen, clerical and blue-collar workers. Wage increases averaged about 10 per cent.

The city tax rate remains at 7 mills ($7 per $1,000 assessed value), the same as last year. However the total tax base decreased and equalization factor increased (to 1.43 from 1.33). This means an approximate increase of eight per cent in the average tax bill.

In the proposed budget, examined by the commission at last night's meeting, most of the extra funds were relegated to capital improvements, including many street paving projects.

Residents of several of the streets recently had complained about not having their projects proceed in spite of the fact the residents were paying their share. They were told the city could not afford the projects.

However, in the light of the improved financial picture, some $200,000 of these were added to the tentative budget.

Added were: Eastway, Auburn to M59; West Iroquois, Menominee to Marquette; Cameron, Featherstone to University; Kenilworth, Featherstone to University; Piersall, and Linfere, Brush to north end.

Added storm drainage work is the Eastway Drive trunk sewer and Earlmere relief sewer.

TWO WINNERS AND A LOSER—New York City Mayor John Lindsay is flanked by two running mates, Fioravante Perrotta (left) and Stanford Garelik. Lindsay was defeated in yesterday's primary in his bid to be Republican mayoral candidate. Perspectively, Lindsay can still run in the fall since he has been nominated by the Liberal party. Lindsay's Loss Echoes Conservative Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — In a mayoral primary that echoed a trend in Los Angeles and Minneapolis, conservatives yesterday wrested the Republican nomination from Mayor John V. Lindsay and wrecked former Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner's comeback bid.

Lindsay, who will be on the November ballot as a Liberal party candidate, was narrowly defeated by a state senator from Staten Island, John J. Marchi, who has the Conservative party nomination. The final official count was 111,725 to 106,358.

Wagner lost to Italian-born City

Comptroller Mario A. Procaccino, who rejected the label of "law-and-order candidate" but was the most conservative in a five-man Democratic field. He won with only about a third of the vote.

Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo, who was born in Puerto Rico, ran a close third. Author Norman Mailer and Rep. James H. Scheuer trailed.

DEMOCRATIC TALLY

The vote was Procaccino 252,283; Wagner 221,005; Badillo 215,381; Mailer 41,136; Scheuer 38,631.

The commissioner of the Board of Elections, Maurice J. O'Rourke, ordered a police guard placed on all voting machines this morning because of the closeness of the vote.

O'Rourke said the action was requested by Wagner and some candidates for lesser office. Badillo charged there were a large number of voting machine breakdowns in the South Bronx, where he felt he was strong. He said this indicated a "fix" to deprive him of votes.

Lindsay assailed the "forces of reaction and backlash" in the vote that he said had taken "temporary" control of both parties in the city.

Wagner also deplored the election results, commenting: "We hope we do not have here another Los Angeles or Minneapolis."

IN L.A., MINNEAPOLIS

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles won reelection over Negro Councilman Thomas Bradley after a campaign which stressed the "law and order" issue.

In a mayoral election in Minneapolis last week, former police Detective Charles Stenvig defeated liberal Republican Dan Cohen. Stenvig had focused his campaign on the "law and order" issue.

The defeat was a severe blow to the GOP prestige of Lindsay, who last year was considered a possible contender for the national ticket.

However, it did not knock the 47-year-old mayor out of contention for reelection to a second term in November. In a city that is 7-2 Democratic in voter registration, he will be the most liberal candidate in the three-man field.

Marchi, also 47, is the son of an Italian sculptor who came to New York to build movie sets and became a wax fruit manufacturer.

A soft-spoken man, Marchi has been in the state legislature since 1956 and has a strong civil rights record.

Procaccino, 59, is the son of an Italian shoemaker who moved to New York and set up shop in Harlem. The son went to City College and Fordham Law School, and rose through the ranks in city service.

Young Want Work but Job Offers Short

The demand for summer jobs for hundreds of disadvantaged Pontiac-area youths still far exceeds the supply offered to six agencies in the city.

The Pontiac Area Urban League, Manpower Inc., Youth Power Inc., Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC), the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce and the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) have been contacting area employers in an effort to help youths get jobs.

The agencies are asking that businessmen not only fill vacancies with the disadvantaged or handicapped youngsters, but create jobs for them.

"We are asking businessmen to make a social investment in their community and in the future of its youths by giving them a meaningful experience in the world of working," explained William H. Clark, director of the Urban League.

Some 450 youngsters are seeking jobs through the agencies, but only about 150 job pledges have been received thus far.

The agencies recently sent out letters to over 1,000 area businesses. Not one single response has been received, said the Rev. Tom Wilson, Manpower coordinator.

PHONE SOLICITATION

About eight Pontiac businessmen also spent hours last week in a telephone solicitation campaign. They contacted 444 local businesses and came up with 80 job pledges, 56 of which already have become real jobs.

General Motors Corp. has pledged 100 jobs to the disadvantaged youths, promising to fill them at a rate of six per day.

The agencies appeal for jobs for both boys and girls. Young people aged 14-21 have inquired for jobs, but unless a youngster is 16 it is difficult to place him. General Motors cannot hire anyone under 18. However, the Michigan Department of Labor is working to help adjust age requirements in certain cases, Wilson said.

The agencies have been separately seeking jobs for disadvantaged youths for the past few summers, but are combining their efforts this year to share in developing jobs and placing youngsters from minority and poor families, those with physical handicaps and those living in poverty target areas.

CENTRALIZED EFFORT

This summer the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) is helping combine the efforts so that they can become centralized and to reduce the repetition in contacting prospective employers.

The NAB solicits employers in the greater Detroit metropolitan area, obtaining pledges to hire a certain number of youths for summer employment. It is a national program financed by the U.S. Department of Labor.

This is the first year Pontiac area companies and businessmen will, under the NAB plan, receive federal funds for hiring and training disadvantaged young persons.

Employers who want to contribute to the community and its disadvantaged youth by creating jobs are asked to contact Earl Kreps, manager of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, or Clark at the Urban League.

Michigan Bell Asks to Boost Rates 10 Pct.

LANSING (UPI) — Officials of Michigan Bell Telephone Co. yesterday said the company needs to increase customer billing by about 10 per cent to maintain a healthy financial position during these times of spiraling inflation.

In testimony before the Michigan Public Service Commission, which screens public utility requests for rate increases, company treasurer Kenneth L. Moore said the 10 per cent increase would yield $28 million more income for the company and $33 million more for federal, state and local taxes.

"This amount of increase would place our return on investment in the range of 8.5 per cent — a range we feel is as essential as it is justifiable under today's economic conditions," Moore said.

Other officials cited increased inflation as the need for a rate hike.

CAUGHT IN MIDDLE

"We have been caught between the pounding hammer of rapidly rising costs and the unyielding anvil of our fixed prices," declared Jack Shuler, the company's attorney.

Shuler said the cost of communication services had risen steadily throughout the past nine years when the last rate hike was granted by the commission.

Kenneth L. Abbott, assistant controller, said Michigan Bell's current 6.25 per cent rate of return "is not likely to attract needed capital."

"In the last three years, the increased pace of inflation has changed our financial position a great deal," Abbott told the three-man panel.

Testimony will continue throughout the week on the issue.

Utility Accord Is Reached

JACKSON (UPI) — Bargaining teams for Consumers Power Co., and striking Michigan Utility Workers reached tentative agreement early today on a new contract to end a 72-day strike marked by bitterness and occasional violence.

About 220 Pontiac District employees are affected.

Terms were not disclosed, pending ratification.

Agreement was reached after two days of intensive bargaining in both separate and joint meetings under the mediation efforts of Ronald W. Haughton of Wayne State University. Haughton entered the strike after talks had ceased between officials representing the 5,200 strikers and the giant utility.

"I say without reservation that this settlement is fair and equitable to all concerned," Haughton said after agreement early today. "Speaking for the public interest, I urge acceptance of this contract by the concerned employees."

The utility workers struck Consumers April 8 after inability to agree on a new contract. The utility serves one million electricity and 800,000 natural gas customers in 67 of Michigan's 88 Lower Peninsula counties. Service has been maintained by supervisory personnel.

Company officials claim property destruction and vandalism occurred early in the strike, as well as unauthorized picketing. The firm had the National Labor Relations Board obtain a federal court order to stop picketing at construction sites.

Pulled from the lake by police at 7:10 p.m. was Pvt. Harold Elrod, 18, of 2051 Orpington. Police said he was swimming with a male friend who said he didn't know what happened to cause the "excellent" swimmer to drown.

Antidues Drive Starts

DETROIT (AP)—A campaign to encourage Detroit teachers not to pay dues to the Detroit Federation of Teachers was announced yesterday by the rival Detroit Education Association (DEA).

DEA President Robert Johnson said the campaign is aimed at overturning the agency shop clause in the new two-year teachers contract agreement between the federation and the Detroit Board of Education.

"Did you like it?"

"Yes."

She referred to a poem she wrote and titled, "Spring."

One verse goes:

"The breath of spring
"Is like a ball that rings
"The crouch and tulip rare
"Spring from the ground so bare."

HOME STUDENT

Deborah, who has an IQ of about 120, never has attended classes a day in her life, but will be in the 8th grade this fall. She has been taught at home.

Dr. Milton Edgerton, chief plastic surgeon on the case and one of the six who performed the operation, said later that Deborah's vision was all right, and Deborah began reading a book that was given to her Tuesday.

"You mean it's mine? I can keep it?" She asked. She was told that she could.

Deborah was asked by her father if she had received one of her daily medical treatments yet.

"No, but the next time they come around, I'll tell them to do it," she replied.

WORK WITH HANDICAPPED

Deborah faces more operations, on her nose and mouth.

She hopes to resume her schooling this fall, toward her goal of eventually working with handicapped children.

But, like a typical teen-ager, she laughed with glee when told that children in Baltimore don't get out of school until the end of this week—and Deborah's school already is out for the year.

First U.S. Unit to Leave Viet July 8

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the first American unit to leave South Vietnam under the plan to withdraw 25,000 troops will be the 3rd Battalion, 60th Infantry, part of the 2nd Brigade, 9th Infantry Division.

Headquarters spokesmen said the battalion will be moved out by air on or about July 8 and will return to the United States for inactivation.

"The remainder of the 2nd Brigade, which includes the brigade headquarters company, the 3rd Battalion, 47th Infantry, and the 4th Battalion, 47th Infantry, will move to the continental United States at a later date. These units also will be inactivated," the announcement said.

KEY GROUND FORCE
It had been announced earlier that one battalion would be airlifted from the 9th Division, but the specific unit was not disclosed until today. The 1st and 2nd brigades of the 9th Division will leave Vietnam, while the 3rd will remain.

The 9th Division is the only major U.S. ground force in the Mekong Delta. The U.S. Command also identified four nondivisional Army units, totaling about 2,000 men, that will be redeployed by the end of August.

They are the 86th Engineer Battalion (Construction); 6th Battalion, 56th Artillery (air defense-Hawk missiles); 70th Engineer Company, and the 109th Transportation Company (medium boat).

RESERVE, GUARD
The command said their destination in the United States will be announced later.

The announcement said these units make up the remainder of the 4,000 nondivisional Army personnel to be withdrawn. The other 2,000 are in Army Reserve units—3,000 men, to be sent to the United States and inactivated.

The command gave the following strengths of forces to be pulled out of Vietnam and their destinations:

2nd Brigade, 9th Division—4,000 men to be sent to the United States and inactivated.
Headquarters, 9th Division and 1st Brigade—7,400 men, to be sent to Hawaii.

Army Reserve and Army National Guard units—2,000 men, to be sent to the United States and demobilized.

Nondivisional Army support units—3,000 men, to be sent to the United States and inactivated.

Four Navy vessels and Navy support personnel—1,800 men, to be sent to the United States and the Pacific Command.

Marine Regimental Landing Team 9—8,000 men, to be sent to Okinawa.

A Marine tactical fighter squadron—400 men, to be sent to Japan.

Public spending for medical care has nearly doubled since the passage of Medicare and Medicaid in 1965.

Mother Waddles Promotes Houses

DETROIT (U) — After 12 years of running a one-woman Salvation Army on a shoestring, Detroit's Mother Charlesetta Waddles is moving into the low-cost housing business.

She has convinced a Detroit builder to help her put low-cost prefabricated homes on five of her lots. She expects the Federal Housing Administration to come through with guaranteed 3 per cent mortgages for the houses.

California's total area of 1.2 million acres is larger than 92 countries, including Japan and Italy.

Buddy Maneuver Dittod

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Twenty-seven years ago, two Comstock Park High School buddies enlisted together and served in the Marine Corps during World War II.

They made it to boot camp together and then were split up. Both returned home safely.

A generation passed, but history is being repeated.

The fathers are Howard Woodward and Elwin Moerman.

The Woodworths also have an older son, Bruce, 23, who is at Camp Lejeune, N.C., and is a veteran of 13 months service in Vietnam.

Moerman said that he and Woodward were separated after they were in boot camp in World War II, and "It was the kids that brought us together again."

"Last year, Jack used to talk about his friend, Tom Woodward, a schoolmate. We started to put two and two together and realized his father was my old friend with whom I enlisted," Moerman said.

Oxford Twp. Landowner Rift Continues

OXFORD TOWNSHIP — Fifty families in Red Barn subdivision No. 1 have been waiting patiently for two months for conclusion of a legal land ownership battle. Their homes are at stake.

Early in April, the families received letters of eviction from homes they were purchasing on mortgages. Developer Villa Homes Inc., Oak Park, had defaulted on some $4,300 of back installments on a land contract for the home lots.

The landowner, Marion Building Co. of Detroit, became impatient with slow-paying Villa Homes, went to Oakland County Circuit Court, paid off the $4,300 balance and legally claimed ownership of the entire subdivision — homes and all.

The "homeowners" were not informed of the Circuit Court sale and, for the most part, had no title insurance to protect their properties.

BLAME PLACED

The Detroit office of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) placed the blame for the property ownership dispute squarely on the shoulders of the mortgage holder, James T. Barnes Co. of Detroit.

Robert T. Guiles, attorney for the Barnes Company, said May 1, "We should have significant information Friday (May 2)." Guiles has had no information.

Guiles also said April 26 that "the whole matter should be resolved in a week to 10 days."

Jerome C. Gropman, attorney for Marion Building Co., sent the original eviction notices, informing residents that they were to begin paying $100 monthly rent for their homes.

The first letter did not tell residents when to begin making rental payments. Mrs. Jack E. Barwig, 1383 Red Barn, who formed a subdivision association to battle the question legally, said the residents have never received the second letter from Gropman.

"We were advised by our attorney (H.

Malcolm Kahn, Pontiac real estate lawyer) to continue making mortgage payments as usual. We are still making our mortgage payments, just as if we legally owned our homes," Mrs. Barwig said.

Defense attorney Kahn declared today that the sticky matter "will be settled very soon — perhaps in two to three weeks."

LIKE DIVORCE CASE

Kahn defended his actions thus far, noting that he has prevented the second letter and has blocked any legal action against the homeowners.

Kahn described the situation as "prosaic" and "entangled," likening the progress to that of a Michigan divorce case.

"In Michigan, we must wait six months to make a judgment on a divorce case after all evidence is heard. In this case, too, there is a waiting element, compounded by the fact that the other attorneys are often out of town," Kahn said.

Kahn stressed the fact that the matter should be settled out of court, adding, "Even if we have to go to court, I believe our position is justifiable and that my clients are protected quite well from the loss of their homes."

BANKRUPTCY CHECK

It would appear, based on the spotty information revealed, that the dispute centers around the payment of $4,300 by Villa Homes to Marion Building Co.

Villa Homes' record was checked in the bankruptcy division of Federal Court. Neither its owners nor the corporation was found to be in a state of bankruptcy.

Asked why, then, it has taken more than two months thus far toicker over $4,300, Kahn said there is a "larger issue" but would not elaborate.

DEMAND FOR 'FIREWORKS'

Kahn said he recognizes the residents are becoming restless with the case's delay but objected to a demand for "fireworks" by some residents.

"I'd love to say that I won a big lawsuit and have it plastered all over the front page, but for the good of my clients' I'm working to settle the matter quietly and out of court," Kahn said.

Meanwhile, Red Barn front yards are going unattended, paint jobs are being postponed and the people aren't talking about their common plight as fiercely as they were two months ago.

"Most of us are rather uncertain of our future and we don't want to invest in home improvements until this matter is settled," said Mrs. Barwig.

COURT RULING

According to former County Circuit Court Commissioner Vern Hampton, there is a 25-year-old State Supreme Court ruling that originated in Oakland County whereby the sale of property on which homes or buildings are attached must be an agreement "by all parties involved," which appears to mean that residents should have been represented in the Marion-Villa sale in Circuit Court.

U.S. Congressman Jack McDonald (R-19th District) called together Congressional attorneys to question the responsibility of FHA in approving mortgages for homes on which a lien for the lots were in effect.

McDonald has not reported his findings. Mrs. Helen Theofillis, assistant to the Detroit FHA director, declared that FHA "has no responsibility in making sure the mortgaged properties have clear titles."

Spurred by Protesters

Troy Lifts Minifarm Ban

TROY — Barnyard fans won their battle with city hall.

City Commissioners have repealed a stringent ordinance against the keeping of cattle, horses, mules, sheep, goats or similar beasts on lots smaller than two acres.

Early this month, the commission unanimously voted to pass the ordinance on the basis of complaints from "cited" residents tired of the howling of farm animals.

Although no opposition from livestock owners was voiced during two public considerations of the ordinance, individual commissioners received a storm of protest telephone calls after the measure was adopted.

Complainers were particularly piqued by the ordinance provision that would find petting animal owners guilty of violating the new ordinance if their property sizes did not conform with the new standard.

Commissioners then voted to repeal the ordinance in full, but instructed Assistant City Manager Pay Hynes to draft a new ordinance—less stringent—and submit it for future consideration.

Details Revealed for Merger of Architect Firms

BIRMINGHAM — Carl Luckenbach, president of Luckenbach Durkee & Associates, has acquired control of the O'Dell, Hewlett and Luckenbach architectural firm at 950 N. Hunter.

Luckenbach will become president of the merged firms which will retain the O'Dell, Hewlett and Luckenbach corporate name.

O'Dell, Hewlett and Luckenbach drew up the plans for a $20 million-plus school building project for the Pontiac Board of Education.

The fee on the project which includes a $15.8 million high school, is five per cent of the project cost.

A spokesman for the Pontiac Board of Education said the board is considering dividing "some further architectural work on the project among other firms."

CAP Squadron to Honor Cadets in Clarkston Rites

CLARKSTON — Cadets of Clarkston Composite Squadron Civil Air Patrol were to be honored for their progress in the CAP's cadet program at an awards presentation ceremony today at the Squadron headquarters, 8407 Ortonville, Clarkston.

Cadets who have completed the Phase I training of the program will be awarded the Gen. J. F. Curry Achievement Ribbon and appointed to the rank of cadet. Scheduled to be named cadets are Rodney Johnston, Beverly Moore and David Wright.

Kevin Campbell, James Chad, Tom Cornell, Ed Crotty, Robert Hunter, Mark Peters, Mike Sallie, David Topinski and Greg Weber will receive ribbons and promotions for achievements in Phase II of the CAP Cadet Program.

Michael Exterkamp will receive the Gen. Billy Mitchell Award and will be promoted to the rank of cadet warrant officer.

The Amelia Earhart Award, signifying progress in Phase III of the CAP cadet program, will be presented to two Clarkston cadets. They are Capt. Robert Klann and Lt. Ruth McDermott.

Rochester High Hunting Grads for Big Reunion

ROCHESTER — Old grads of Rochester High School will gather, appropriately, during Rochester's centennial celebration.

General chairman George Ennis says class lists are incomplete for the years 1942-43 and 1946-47. Otherwise, graduates' present addresses have been compiled, and notices of the Aug. 9 reunion at the high school have been mailed.

Anyone having information on the whereabouts of aforementioned graduates — or the addresses of favorite teachers — is asked to contact Ennis, 800 Ironstone, Avon Township, or either of the following: Mrs. Lee Johnson, Rochester, 313 Main; Mrs. Mary Lee (nee DeBanne), Kowalczyk, 144 W. Maryknoll, Avon Township.

All graduates, teachers and administrators of Rochester High School — from 1899 to 1969 — are invited to attend the all-class reunion, the first since 1950.

Chrysler to Give Troy a Skyline

TROY — This city has taken its first step toward gaining a skyline.

City Commissioners recently gave Chrysler Realty Corp., a division of Chrysler Corp., the green light for construction of an 11-story general office complex at 1-75 and Long Lake Road.

Although no completion date or cost estimate accompanied Chrysler's request for the height variance, city officials noted that the project dramatically depicts Troy's zooming land values and business location desirability.

When firms began expanding vertically rather than horizontally, the indication is that the potential property tax expense of one-floor expansion is prohibitive, the commission pointed out. This, is apparently, happening in Troy.

Even so, Mayor Jule Famularo noted that business firms are vitally interested in locating in Troy—even to the point of building expensive high-rise structures.

Chrysler officials said that the office complex will not house Chrysler operations but will be available for general business leasing. The property abuts Chrysler Realty headquarters.

Oxford Church Plans Old-Fashioned Fair

OXFORD — An old-fashioned country fair will be held on the lawn of Oxford United Methodist Church Saturday, from 12 noon to 7 p.m.

Festivities — open to the public — include booths, games, a bake sale, book stall, white elephant sale and a beef barbecue dinner starting at 5 p.m.

All proceeds of the fair will be used to send church youngsters to summer camp.

Summer Classes Near in Rochester

ROCHESTER — Required and elective courses at the high school, junior high and elementary levels begin tomorrow as the summer school program gets under way.

Additionally, a comprehensive summer activity program for special education students will begin at Woodward Elementary School June 23.

Registration for all programs — high school, junior high, elementary and special education — will continue through opening days at the board of education office, Fourth and Wilcox.

Complementing the required courses, this summer's electives include typing, shorthand, vocational training, dramatics, sewing, speed reading, leadership training, creative writing, art and instrumental music.

Survey, Planning Grant to Wixom

WIXOM — This city has received a $125,579 federal grant for survey and planning activities in the 53-acre central business and urban renewal area, it was announced today.

Making the announcement were Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., and Rep. Jack McDonald, R-19th District.

Fifty-one of the 60 buildings in the downtown area are structurally deficient according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development which authorized the funds.

The area is to be cleared for redevelopment.

W. Bloomfield School Board Endorses Plan to Combat Reading Deficiencies

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — A plan to spot reading deficiencies in the early grades and then to show teachers ways to combat the problems has been endorsed by the West Bloomfield School Board.

School Supt. Dr. Anthony Witham labeled the program "the most significant instructional improvement for the 1969-70 school year."

Oakland School consultant Dr. Roy Butz outlined the program to the school board this week.

The first portion of the two-pronged program involves using standardized tests to produce a diagnostic skills schedule for each class and school.

"Cumulatively this will produce a district-wide profile of reading skills mastered and existing deficiencies," said Dr. Butz.

MIRA, a computerized item analysis of the Iowa Reading Achievement Tests for grades 3-8, will be used to produce the profile.

Then, based on the raw data, teachers will attend a series of in-service activities devoted to developing insights, skills and activities to use in correcting reading deficiencies noted in children in grades 3-6. The teachers will attend a series of 12 two-hour sessions beginning next September.

Butz also told the board of a new approach called "dual curriculum," wherein an attempt is made to maximize children's listening comprehension in kindergarten through the 3rd grade.

The focus will be on increasing recognition of words and language and concept development to provide greater immediate intellectual strength and better prepare students for the intermediate grades. This would involve the use of taped materials.

Pupils in grades 1-3 are largely recognizing words they are already familiar with, but are seeing on paper and must visually label them for the first time. Pupils in grades 4-6, however, must begin to learn completely new words, seeing the symbols and learning their meanings all at once, according to Butz.

TEXT ASSESSMENT

Also endorsed by the school board was a new procedure, developed by Butz, to assess the classroom utility of existing

Farmington Gets U.S. Funds for 4 New Safety Officers

FARMINGTON — The salaries of four new safety officers and the cost of a new ambulance for the city will be covered by a $42,800 federal grant from the Office of Highway Safety Planning.

The officers will be utilized in the field of accident control and prevention while the ambulance and necessary first-aid and rescue equipment will remain on a standby basis, according to City Manager John Dinan.

"This increases the Farmington police department by 25 per cent, and it will increase the patrol coverage from three to four cars," Dinan said.

The officers, who are currently being hired, should be working by July 1 according to Dinan.

ONE-YEAR PROGRAM

The grant is for a one-year program which may be extended, upon application, for up to three years.

"At the end of three years we feel that the city will be in a position to afford this personnel because of expected growth," said Dinan.

The City Council has authorized Dinan to draw up a one-year option to sell 1.8 acres of city land to the federal government for a post office site. The remaining portion of the 150,000-square-foot site, on Farmington north of Freedom, is owned by C. R. Kelly of 23231 Cass.

The Post Office department asked for the land after a study was conducted to find an appropriate site within city limits.

County Budget Hearings Near

Taxpayers will have an opportunity to speak on county spending at two hearings tomorrow.

The board of supervisors will open one hearing at 1:30 p.m. and a second at 7 p.m. in the Court-house auditorium.

Due for discussion is the county's tentative 1970 budget of $31 million. Supervisors, because of a cutback in allocated millage, must pare $2.5 million from that figure. How to do it and still meet the needs of the people is what members hope to learn from the hearings.

The hearings tomorrow mark the first time the budget has been put forward for public discussion until after final determinations have been made.

By law, the final budget has to be adopted on the first Monday in October.

Grand Jury Probe Set

Acting on the request of the State attorney general and the director of the Michigan State Police, a one-man grand jury investigation of charges made by a former member of the Mafia was authorized by the Oakland County Circuit Court judiciary. Many believe that the State's action was considerably overdue.

Since last fall, PETER LAZAROS, the underworld informer, has been under protective custody while feeding law enforcement agencies information in support of his charges that County officials were involved in a wide range of criminal activity with members of the Mafia. Ironically, one of those accused is State Appeals Court Judge S. JEROME BRONSON, former county prosecutor.

Meanwhile, delay in implementing the grand jury has given rise to a growing miscellany of rumor and suspicion which only a thorough airing of LAZAROS' charges can substantiate or dispel, while absolving the innocent and indicting the guilty.

Although the accuser's credentials are not of the best, his accusations are not to be taken lightly, and merit an exhaustive investigation of them.

Because the grand jury apparatus is the only investigative agency that can subpoena witnesses and guarantee them both anonymity and immunity from criminal culpability, it is the proper agency to undertake the job that plainly needs doing.

'What Percentage Of 500,000 Is 25,000?'

David Lawrence Says:

Business Upset by Tampering

WASHINGTON — Businessmen who are trying to make plans, either long-range or short-range, are having a hard time. They really don't know how much tampering with the economy the government is going to do. They read about efforts to "curb inflation."

LAWRENCE

They see the interest rates for loans going up and up. They wonder whether the government itself knows how far it can move without precipitating a recession that will be painful.

The House Ways and Means Committee has just voted to recommend a repeal of the 7 per cent investment tax credit, and also has approved an extension of the income-tax surcharge of 10 per cent.

Corporations that have been relying upon the investment credit will have to complete projects that are under way, but the durable-goods industries probably will feel the impact of the loss of the 7 per cent tax credit on certain expenditures for new equipment. The continuance of the income-tax surcharge, on the other hand, is not likely to be harmful because the planning for this year and next has been based on the assumption that current tax rates will be maintained.

HARD TO MEASURE
Unfortunately, there is no machinery for measuring coincidentally day by day the way economic factors are working. Usually statistics come in a month or two later when already some other developments may have occurred to affect the trend in another way.

Broadly speaking, businessmen are deeply concerned about the future. They may condemn inflation in theory but, on the whole, they think it is far better to function under a slow cure from month to month than to precipitate a period of "recession" or "depression." For both these terms imply damage to a large part of the economy, and it takes a long time to bring a recovery.

Again and again in past years reliance has been placed on the Federal Reserve Board's power to move interest rates upward and thus prevent an undue increase of borrowing.

But, unfortunately, when many of the projects involved in a national economy with a gross national product of more than $900 billion are directly affected, there is a risk that expansion plans will be deferred and current projects reduced in volume.

CURE WORSE?

Inflation is a bad thing, but attempts to cure it by drastic or ill-timed measures can sometimes be worse. The big question is whether public confidence can be maintained while the government tries various forms of restraint.

Why Not Give S. Viets Arms of Departing GIs?

NEW YORK — Why on earth should it cost $3.2 billion to provide the hardware that will enable the South Vietnamese forces to take over a bigger share of the fighting? If it does, it will have been witness to the most outrageous example of the military-industrial menace.

Why not let them have the weapons and provisions of the departing U.S. troops, the best-armed forces in the world?

Vice President Fy, who has been curiously quiet of late, told us earlier in the year in Paris, "You throw an old M1 rifle at our feet and say, 'There, now go out and fight.' Give us something good to fight with and we'll show you!"

If the South Vietnamese are now going to get the good stuff, either left behind by the departing Americans or bought for all those billions of dollars, will we also give them something more to say about how the war should be administered?

BITTER ABOUT LIMITS

Quoting Ky again, he was bitter about the wraps put on his countrymen to hold them in tight rein, and that have kept them from fighting any other but the same kind of limited war endorsed by the last three American administrations.

Ky was all for stepping it up. He argued that it was insane to have to sit by and take daily shelling and mortar attacks on South Vietnamese cities and supply complexes and not retaliate in kind.

At that time, he wanted us to unleash his air force, such as it is, and let it hit Hanoi, Haiphong and the untouched hydroelectric plants every time the North Vietnamese and their creatures, the Vietcong, hit Saigon, Hue, Da Nang and other choice targets inside South Vietnam.

"If you want to fight a

Local Campers Question County Park Practice

We read the article on Paradise, now called Groveland-Oaks. We feel it is unfair that campers are turned away from sites with electricity because a caravan is expected to come in.

There are about 100 choice sites unavailable to the public because of private clubs making advance reservations. The sites are empty all week.

We called County Parks and Recreation and were informed that this practice is a carry-over from when it was a private park. Why isn't it on a first-come, first-served basis like it is in the State parks?

Urges Taxpayers to Write to Washington

The time has come for every abused taxpayer in the United States to write President Nixon and his Congressmen and scream that unless Congress reduces spending, ends the surtax, and stops foreign aid, there will be a tax rebellion—and some new faces in Congress.

Passage of the surtax was supposed to halt inflation. Instead it has accelerated. Foreign aid is continuing to cause inflation and is ruining our dollar.

'District Residents Should Make Choice'

There is nothing wrong with returning to the District election of City Commissioners. Those who know, realize the Jaycees were out to get one particular commissioner a few years ago. Thus, they changed our way of electing commissioners.

I'm tired of having the people of my district voting for one man only to have people on the other side of town vote for the opposite, thus depriving the people of the district of the candidate they choose.

Let's back Mr. Oliver in his campaign to return Pontiac to electing commissioners from districts. The district lines should also be redrawn on an equal population basis.

Question and Answer

How do we get a culvert across Briscoe Blvd? The drainage has washed away the road, making huge holes that are a hazard. We've presented a petition to the Waterford Board, but they say it's a County matter. The County says the resident who is draining the water must pay for the culvert and the won't pay. Can you tell us what our next step should be?

I own a Singer sewing machine patented in 1887. It's still in good condition and sews. I'd like to know if it is of any value as an antique.

REPLY

We talked to the Singer company and several antique dealers. All indicated it has little antique value unless a particular buyer happens to want that particular item. Most old sewing machines are bought for their cabinets, which can be converted to other uses. You might consult some antique dealers to get an estimate of its worth for this purpose.

France Looks to Pompidou

The election by a comfortable margin of GEORGES POMPIDOU as new president of France is graphic demonstration that what most Frenchmen desire most of all is continued stability in government. As the phrase has it — "Gaullism without DE GAULLE."

To be sure, deep-seated dissatisfaction continues as well. The unrest which erupted in France's universities and factories last year and which led to the resignation of CHARLES DE GAULLE still festers. The Communists boast that they persuaded a third of the electorate to boycott the election. The weakened franc remains in danger.

But nothing short of a disaster like complete economic or social collapse, leading to full-scale revolution, could plunge France into the kind of political chaos that has so often marked its history.

POMPIDOU is constitutionally guaranteed a term of seven years. The ruling Gaullist party will retain its commanding majority in the National Assembly for at least four more years.

The French have given the Gaullists a massive vote of confidence—but it is confidence rooted not so much in past accomplishments as in the belief that it is only within the framework of stable political rule that the grave and pressing problems of the nation can be met in the future.

That future, at least in the immediate years ahead, augurs well for France, and by extension, for all of Western Europe.

Election Tie Seen 'Costly'

It was GEORGE HERBERT, an English man of letters who, a few centuries ago, came up with the philosophical projection whereby a rider was lost because a horseshoe nail was first lost.

The learned one's premise can be aptly applied to the importance of a single vote in any election and, in confirmation of it, area residents need look no further than the recent Brandon Township school election that saw a tie vote, 410-410, on a $3,675,000 bonding proposal.

With 2,120 qualified voters, but 820 exercised their right of ballot—less than 39 per cent.

Obviously, had but one stay-at-home appeared at a polling booth, the result would have been decisive.

As a result, Township taxpayers will pay a heavy price for the indifference of the majority of electors when and if the proposal is passed at another election, six months hence (it can't legally be held sooner).

Because building costs are rising at the rate of 1 per cent a month, the principal amount of the bond issue would actually net for construction purposes a quarter of a million dollars less than had the proposal been passed now.

Riots Cast Doubt on Malaysia's Future

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

Only a little more than a month ago, Prime Minister Abdul Rahman could call his land "happy Malaysia."

He had led Malaysia, or Malaya as it became later, to peaceful independence from Britain and, in the dozen succeeding years, had welded its Malay majority and a powerful minority of Chinese and Indians into a Southeast Asian model of political stability and economic health.

But a month ago, the storm clouds which always had lain just below the horizon released a torrent of hate and, in bloody communal rioting, more than 100 persons, most of them Chinese, died.

The outbreak raised unexpected doubt about Malaysia's future and will weigh heavily upon this week's conference among the leaders of Malaysia, Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, Britain to chart the future when Britain will have completed her withdrawal of troops east of Suez in 1971.

The withdrawal has been going on steadily over the last year, and a British force of 100,000 men at the peak of Malaysia's confrontation with Indonesia now has dwindled to about 39,000.

In February, Australia and New Zealand agreed to maintain a combined force of about 1,500 men in Singapore, along with two squadrons from the Australian air force and support aircraft from New Zealand. Light naval vessels from both countries will conduct operations with Singapore and Malaysia.

Nonaggression pacts with other nations will be sought to promote regional stability. A special concern to Australia and New Zealand is that their forces not become involved in a war of subversion or in local politics, a possibility brought sharply into focus by the communal riots.

SINGAPORE CONCERNED
Singapore, with a population predominantly Chinese, has considerable anti-Malay sentiment, also is concerned by the riots, and the question is raised whether Singapore and Malaysia can cooperate effectively in a defense organization. Without it, any agreement becomes meaningless.

In a broader sense, the United States also must be concerned because of its defense agreement with Australia and New Zealand through ANZUS.

BITTER ABOUT LIMITS

Quoting Ky again, he was bitter about the wraps put on his countrymen to hold them in tight rein, and that have kept them from fighting any other but the same kind of limited war endorsed by the last three American administrations.

Ky was all for stepping it up. He argued that it was insane to have to sit by and take daily shelling and mortar attacks on South Vietnamese cities and supply complexes and not retaliate in kind.

At that time, he wanted us to unleash his air force, such as it is, and let it hit Hanoi, Haiphong and the untouched hydroelectric plants every time the North Vietnamese and their creatures, the Vietcong, hit Saigon, Hue, Da Nang and other choice targets inside South Vietnam.

Before the dissemination on university campuses turned into rebellion, it was fashionable to argue that young people were merely reflecting the alienation of a new generation growing up in a fast-changing society.

It was all planned that way and there are suspicions now that we are witnessing repeat performances in other fields, the church and the military.

We have seen recently how the sins and failings of mankind are being fastened onto organized religion, by militants, and this is excused by their sympathetic defenders who wonder if perhaps religion should not become less a spiritual force than an instrument for some social change.

The real purpose of the radicals, of course, is to destroy, in the conscience of youth, all moral teachings.

We note with interest that the Glen Alden Corporation has announced plans to deposit $1 million in Negro-owned banks in major cities over the country. The cities include Atlanta and Savannah.

The money will be made available to some 20 banks belonging to the National Bankers Association. Glen Alden President Paul A. Johnston, says his firm is moving in this direction after conversation with Robert J. Brown, special assistant to President Nixon.

We don't feel — or suggest — that such a move will decisively affect racial problems in this country. But we like Johnston's further comment. The Glen Alden president said that the $1 million pledge came from "a deep conviction that American industry must actively help to open new doors for Negroes — doors leading to new jobs, new business and new affluence." Gunman Forces Jet to Take Him to Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — An armed Negro carrying literature of the militant Black Panthers forced a Trans World Airlines jet with a crew of seven and 80 passengers to fly to Cuba.

The gunman, tall, well-dressed and bespectacled, took control of the scheduled Oakland-to-New York nonstop flight Tuesday over Wilson Creek, Nev.

Except to describe himself as "a desperate man who had to get to Havana," he gave no reason for his action. Eldridge Cleaver, a Black Panther leader who is a fugitive from U.S. justice on a parole violation charge, is reported to be living in the Cuban capital.

passenger, took moving pictures of him as he left the plane in Havana. Bell said the film was taken from him by an FBI agent when the plane reached Miami.

Nora Hampton, fashion editor of the Oakland Tribune and a passenger aboard the Boeing 707, said the hijacker left his luggage at his seat after being admitted to the flight deck at gunpoint.

In it, she said, "He had some of the Black Panthers' shiny black suits, an African shirt, and two black sweaters; also a sheath knife with a six-inch blade."

Nan Schwager, a stewardess making her final run before going home to St. Paul, Minn., for her marriage next week, said the hijack began when the man showed her a gun and pointedly ordered her to have the plane diverted to Cuba.

Aimed at Major Bottleneck

Street-Widening Deal OK'd

A property deal to permit the widening of a downtown Pontiac street which is considered a major bottleneck was approved by the City Commission in a brief (one-hour) meeting last night.

The commission agreed to a $1 pact to permit widening of East Huron between Mill and Wide Track.

The agreement is with the State Highway Department. The state has acquired the necessary property to widen the street from Fleet Ambulance and the First Congregational Church, it was announced.

The city is to provide its 12-foot right-of-way for the token dollar payment. No an-bidding was Ajax Asphalt Inc. at $134,471. Approval was delayed a week for study of the bids.

• Authorized construction of a water main on Brooks from Joslyn to the east end of Brooks cost $14,600 with $9,500 assessed to benefiting property owners.

• Appointed Willard L. Lewis of 639 E. Madison to a five-year term on the Police Trial Board.

• Approved a $15,670 repair job to water mains on Bagley between Arthur and Ditmar and Alton and Fildew.

• Heard the city was being sued for $250,000 by Dr. Dennis Ormond. His suit is based on the purchase of the medical building on the southeast corner of Huron and Johnson next to Pontiac General Hospital. The building was added to the hospital's facilities. Dr. Ormond is claiming his lease in the building was violated. The matter was referred to the city's legal staff.

• Referred to the planning commission on a request to rezone three lots on North Perry and Glenwood (541, 547 and 549 N. Perry) to allow a gas station.

PEACEFUL SCENE — An unidentified delegate speaks at a peace rally at the American Legion-sponsored Boys' State at Michigan State University yesterday. Only about 80 of the 1,236 youths at the weeklong convention attended.

At Legion-Sponsored Confab

Boys' Peace Rally Uneventful

EAST LANSING (AP) — A patriotic ending provided by Stoddard. Page and other youthful sponsors of the rally said they were not inspired by Students for a Democratic Society. "We don't have anything to do with that group," they said. AT SAME TIME Last year, the Boys' State convention was held on the MSU campus at the same time as the national SDS convention. "We had some trouble with them coming over and trying to talk to our boys," one Legionnaire said. * * * The young delegates to the Boys' State learn about government by electing their own city and state officials, including legislature and governor.

A Legion official also had the last word.

Harold Stoddard, chairman of the Legion committee sponsoring the Boys' State took over the rally at the windup. Stoddard is a Grand Rapids police lieutenant.

PRAYER FOR GIs

He led the youths in a silent prayer for GIs who died in the wars or who are now in the hospitals and in the recting of the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

The idea of the peace rally originated in the Boys' State Legislature but was killed in its House of Representatives.

Although the Legion generally condemns antiwar demonstrations as destroying the morale of U.S. fighting men, Legion officials decided to allow the rally.

"We could have said no," said Stoddard. "But the American Legion is for peace, as stated in the preamble of our constitution."

'WANTED REACTION'

"They wanted us to react against it and perhaps stir up some trouble," commented Clarence Carlson of Whitehall, a vice president of the sponsoring committee.

"I think allowing them to hold it was the best way of handling the whole thing."

Carlson said the idea came from "three or four" of the high schoolers. He said he thought the rest just attended out of curiosity.

The rally sponsors first wanted to hold it outdoors, at the foot of a flagpole in the Brody Dormitory complex.

'OUTSIDERS' BANNED

Legion officials decreed it must be held in an indoors auditorium so "outsiders" would not be able to attend.

The vast majority of the Boys State delegates ignored the rally. They were more interested in playing a pickup game of baseball, relaxing and sunning themselves outdoors.

The rally featured readings from "On Civil Disobedience" by Henry David Thoreau, readings from singer Joan Baez and the singing of the war protest song, "Where Have All the Flowers Gone."

There were no hecklers or signs.

ORGANIZER OBJECTS

Joseph Page of Grand Rapids, one of the organizers of the rally objected "It would have been more effective if we had ended it with the song."

He was referring to the Private School Savings Cited

Parochial Backers Renew Funds Push

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Association for Nonpublic Schools has cited a taxpayer saving of $80 million in a new drive to revive parochial.

The association said the more than 16,000 students graduating from nonpublic schools this month saved Michigan taxpayers an estimated $80 million.

Dr. John Choitz of Detroit, association president, said this represents only operating costs and does not include what it would have cost to build and equip additional facilities for the 16,224 students graduating from 177 nonpublic schools.

Choitz asked that the nonpublic schools be "given consideration when the Legislature considers educational reform this fall."

"Just as public education is having serious financial problems, our schools, too, are facing a financial crisis," he said.

"We believe the governor and the Legislature recognize this and will take steps to provide the necessary financial assistance to enable us to make a significant contribution to the education of Michigan's future citizens."

The association is composed of the Michigan Catholic, Lutheran, Jewish and National Union of Christian Schools.

House Panel OKs Nixon Surtax Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has scored a (substantial) gain in his drive for a House, then in the Senate. The House Ways and Means committee Tuesday gave its approval to the Nixon anti-inflation package, practically intact.

KITTEN TURNS CHICKEN — A curious kitten (top) watches a mother hen and her brood of chicks feeding in the barnyard of Sacramento's William Land Park Zoo in California. The kitten ventures too close for the hen's liking (center) and is immediately challenged. The kitten momentarily arches its back (bottom), but then turns flat, heading for a safer spot.

State Note Issue Okayed to Back Up School Bonds

LANSING (AP) — The State Administrative Board has authorized the issuance of $42 million in notes to guarantee payment of bond issues by local school districts.

State Treasurer Allison Green and Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley were given authority to prepare formal resolutions to permit the issuance of a series of notes to back the bond issues through 1971.

Ira Polley, state superintendent of public instruction, asked the board Tuesday to authorize the issuance of $20 million for state school aid advances.

Polley said a previous $20-million advance authorized by the board in April had been used up.

LOAN MONEY SHORT
The school districts need the advance aid, Polley said, because loan money is in short supply and most districts will receive no new tax money until January.

The board authorized the issuance of $5 million to meet immediate needs and said it would consider advancing the remaining $15 million at a later meeting.

The board approved an agreement between the State Highway Commission and Grand Rapids for distribution of bond money remaining in the 1954 and 1960 Grand Rapids expressway funds.

The highway department will receive $1,210,507 and the city $583,782.

FINAL DISPOSAL
The distribution marks the final disposal of money remaining from bonds sold for the construction of the U.S. 131 freeway between the south Kent County line and the north limits of Grand Rapids.

Other convertible assets such as unused excess property, rental income from leased excess property, interest income on investment of surplus funds and adjustments of federal aid will be settled in later agreement.

Also approved was a cost

Seaway Fete Set

DETROIT (AP)—The 10th anniversary of the St. Lawrence Seaway will be observed in Detroit July 7 with a dinner. Governors of eight states and three Canadian provinces adjoining the Seaway are expected to attend. The dinner will be sponsored by the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce and the Economic Club of Detroit.

It includes continuation of the surtax at its present 10 per cent rate through Dec. 30, with the rate halved for the last six months of fiscal 1970, tax relief for low income taxpayers, repeal of the investment credit and postponement of scheduled reductions in automobile and telephone excise taxes.

The House will vote next week. Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., acting chairman of the committee, pledged support and cited endorsement of leaders of both parties in the House. But he predicted a tough fight and would not claim victory in advance.

TREASURER OPTIMISTIC
Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy, however, said he expects Congress to pass the bill.

The committee was unofficially reported to have voted 15-10 against an amendment to cut back the surtax extension to Oct. 31.

Five Democrats out of the 15 on the committee joined all 10 Republicans in defeating the shorter period, sources said. Thus the measure goes to the Democratic-controlled House with its key provision endorsed by only one-third of the committee Democrats.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D. Ohio, a committee member who is pushing for a shorter extension, promised to continue the fight in the rules committee and the House. He and his associates fear leverage for early tax reform will be lost if the surtax is extended for a long period.

RECORD FOR SENATE
One of the group conceded to a reporter chances are not bright in the House. But he added, "We will keep the issue hot and build up a record for the Senate." Senate rules make it easier to offer amendments there.

The provision benefiting low-income persons—a "sweetener" that did not satisfy many liberal Democrats—was calculated to relieve about 2 million poverty-level families of all tax and in all benefit about 13 million persons.

Problem Hovers Over Airports

Clerk Leaves Pilots Up in Air

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Aviation Administration recently adopted a system under which airlines and private planes at five of the nation's most crowded airports are required to make reservations.

Making reservations is old stuff to passengers, but it is something new for pilots. To see how the system is working, let us wiretap one of the airport phone lines:

"National Airport reservations. I'm sorry, all of our lines are busy now. Please wait a moment and someone will help you. And thank you for calling National Airport . . ."

"National Airport reservations. Thank you for waiting. May I help you?"

"WANT RESERVATION?"

"Yes. I would like to make a landing reservation for 11 a.m. on July 4."

"Very well sir. Will that be commercial or private?"

"Commercial."

"Hold the line a moment, please . . . thank you for waiting. I'm sorry, sir, our 11 a.m. landing has already been reserved for July 4."

"Could you book me for a later landing?"

"One moment, please . . . thank you for waiting. We have nothing available at all on the 4th, sir. Our runways are booked solid for that date."

"Well, I've got to land somewhere."

"Have you tried one of the other airports?"

"Not yet."

"HOLD THE LINE . . ."

"If you will hold the line a moment I'll see if I can locate landing space for you somewhere else in the vicinity . . . thank you for waiting. There is an 11 a.m. landing available at Midway Airport in Chicago. Would you like us to confirm for you?"

"I'm afraid that won't do. My passengers will be expected to land in the Washington area. Can you suggest anything else?"

"We can put you on stand-by, sir."

"How does that work?"

"You fly to Washington on the 4th and if there has been a landing cancellation in the meantime, we will have a runway for you."

"What happens if there isn't a cancellation?"

"That depends on whether your plane is equipped with parachutes."

OTHER ARRANGEMENTS

"Well, thanks for your help, but I guess I had better try to make some other arrangement."

"You're very welcome, sir. And thank you for calling National Airport."

Odd 'New' Film Studio Dates Back to Silent Era

BY VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD — A "new" motion picture studio has arisen in the land of the palm and the orange and, fittingly, it's a bit wacky.

It is called Beverly Hills Studio Inc.

However, it is located in downtown Culver City.

One of its founders is actor Hugh O'Brien, the catalyst who brought together the elements that form a studio.

The word "new" in this case is a misnomer.

BORN ABOUT 1915

Beverly Hills Studio Inc. was born physically about 1915 as the Thomas H. Ince Studios, where silent movies were ground out.

It was purchased by David O. Selznick in the 1930s and became known as Selznick Studios.

Most of "Gone With the Wind" — currently in rerelease — was filmed on the lot.

Thereafter Selznick sold the aging property to RKO, which Howard Hughes once owned.

Then along came Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball, who bought the RKO properties and renamed the lot Desilu Culver. When Paramount bought out Desilu it became Paramount Culver.

Now O'Brien, along with businessman Lou Chester — who put up more than $9 million — and Martin Leeds, president of the company, own the 40-acre property and 11 sound stages.

Asked why he named the property Beverly Hills Studio when it is in Culver City, O'Brien fired back, "What else would you call it?"

Pressed further, the actor said, "Beverly Hills is a recognizable name. Anyhow our corporate offices, legal staff, accountants and tax people are in Beverly Hills."

"We hope to start three pictures on the lot before the end of the year," O'Brien said.

Brazil expects to grow some 100 million tons of jupe by 1971, double the present average production.

2 Area Men Unfold Idea

Lunar Peace Flag Proposed

Congressman Jack McDonald, R-19th District, yesterday called for a special peace flag to be placed alongside the American flag when astronaut Neil Armstrong steps on the surface of the moon July 20. The peace flag would honor the five men killed in space experiments.

McDonald told the House of Representatives such a flag has been conceived and designed by two of his constituents, Bruce L. Thompson, 3520 Woodland, Highland Township, and James R. Saile, 6290 S. Main, Clarkston.

The suggested design for the flag would bear the likenesses of Russian cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin and Vladimir Komarov and American astronauts Virgil Grisson, Roger Chaffee and Edward White.

McDonald said he would urge members of the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee to include in their version of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) authorization bill the provision for the peace flag.

HOUSE PASSAGE

As passed by the House, the NASA authorization now contains an amendment permitting only the American flag to be placed on the moon.

Thompson said he obtained the idea for a second flag from an editorial appearing last week in The Pontiac Press.

The design, as executed by Saile, places the dead space explorers against a background of the world, surrounded by orbit trails.

It bears the word, "Peace," both in

COOPERATION CITED

McDonald, in his presentation to the House, attributed the quick success of space exploration to the cooperation of thousands of men and women dedicated to the conquest of space and noted it "has not been a totally American effort."

"Men and women in many other countries have contributed to every one of our space probes whether they have been operators of tracking stations or meteorologists."

He said their work will be rewarded July 20 with the moon landing, but a "very special way" to honor them would be afforded by placing a flag in tribute to the five men who gave their lives to make this event possible.

Exam Is Set for Man on

Raid Charge

A Pontiac man charged with operating an illegal liquor establishment in the basement of his home pleaded innocent at his arraignment in District Court yesterday.

A pretrial examination for Dewey Jones, 68, of 151 Bagley was set for next Wednesday by Judge Cecil B. McCann.

Jones has been free on $500 bond since he was arrested in a raid at his home about 3 a.m. last Saturday.

Thirty-one persons charged in the raid failed to appear for trial. They include three accused lotteries and two Detroit girls, 19 and 20 years old, charged with soliciting as prostitutes. The Detroit girls had been free on $100 bond.

Two persons charged with possession of betting slips were found guilty and paid $8 fines.

$33,000 Goes to MCOM

The Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine (MCOM) has received a $33,000 National Institute of Health Training grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The funds will be used for upgrading the instructional program in behavioral sciences and ecological medicine, and for purchase of audiovisual equipment.

"This is certainly an indication of confidence in our program. This is the first federal grant we have received, and we hope to get more. The grant is typical of the interests of the federal government in the need to support medical research," said MCOM Dean Dr. Myron S. Magen.

Surviving are his wife, Gertrude, and three sisters, including Mrs. Mary Kate Mills of Bloomfield Hills and Mrs. Harold Granger of Waterford Township.

ADC Mothers Tell How They Combat Food Prices

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Complaints about the rising cost of food are increasing daily. But the plight of the average homemaker is minor compared with that of families on Social Security, welfare and ADC. Their budgets are already pared to the bone and there's little flexibility.

There's a great deal of talk about wiping out the hunger in America, but so far, it's not much more than talk. JANET

Many individuals simply refuse to believe that anyone in this great country is actually not getting enough to eat.

The right kind of food, because their finances will not permit it.

We've been talking with ADC mothers, finding out how they spend their food money and what they consider their greatest problems.

On July 1, ADC payments are being increased by $3 a month per person. Even if all this increase were to go into the food budget, it would not allow any of the women to set a luxurious table.

All of the women we talked with buy food stamps and consider them a valuable addition. These women are highly conscious of what their children should be fed and are concerned when essential foods are lacking.

Mrs. W. who has three boys, aged nine, seven and five, says she always runs out of meat by the end of the two-week period. Most of the women work on a two-week plan, even though the ADC funds are dispersed by the month. So some months, they have even more of a struggle.

Mrs. W. who is taking a course in the ADC program to update her skills, worries because she can't afford enough fresh fruit and vegetables. She gets $48 twice a month for food.

One of her children is allergic to whole milk so Mrs. W. is happy to use powdered milk. She buys four quarts of fresh milk weekly from the milkman and supplements it with the powdered.

With no public transportation and no car, shopping is a problem. She brings her groceries home from the supermarket in a child's wagon. An injured arm prevents her carrying much.

SNACKS

We asked all the mothers what they do for snacks, since that can wreck any food budget. Mrs. W. had just discovered popcorn and was delighted. "I never realized it was so cheap," she said.

Other snacks are milk, fruit sometimes and a bag of potato chips bought on sale and carefully doled out to make it last.

Latest figures from USDA say a family of Mrs. W.'s size and ages needs $26 a week to insure an adequate diet on the lowest cost list.

Mrs. C. has another kind of problem.

She gets $77 in cash and food stamps the first and 15th of the month. With this amount she must feed five boys and one girl and her husband and herself. USDA says a family of this size needs a minimum of $44 a week.

Mrs. C.'s husband is disabled with a rare blood disease and can't eat fats. But there are no special allowances for unusual diets and she must get his food from her budget.

"There is never enough meat, nor enough fresh vegetables and fruit. Our diet is heavy with starches."

Mrs. C. mixes powdered milk with fresh which she buys at her regular store. She is able to borrow a car, but lives away from town and has to go long distances to shop.

A treat in the C. household may be candy or cake made from a mix. Popcorn is used as part of the regular menu. She does very little baking.

Mrs. C. would like to garden, but there is no money allotted for plowing or plants.

On the other hand, a Pontiac mother receiving $54 twice a month says milk is her biggest problem. One of her children who has a calcium deficiency must have fresh whole milk. Mrs. P. has no car so she gets milk from a milkman; this costs $15 to $20 every two weeks.

There are four children under six in the family. Mrs. P. would like to give them more salads and more fruit. They do get lots of vegetables and are heavy potato eaters. Meat takes about half her food money each week.

Pancakes are served several times a week and eggs are used as the protein course at dinner. Cereal appears at breakfast and is used for snacks.

Mrs. P. would like to be part of a co-op buying group. She and several friends do pool part of their food money and buy staples and some fresh food in larger quantities at a saving.

"But," says Mrs. P., "We would like a hand instead of a handout." She wishes she could spend $40 a week for food, including all that milk.

LAST PENNY

Mrs. S. has it figured right down to a penny. "We get 83 cents per person a day to spend on food," she says. When two of her four children eat lunch at school, that takes 90 cents right away.

With boys 17, 15 and 11 and a girl, 14, Mrs. S. needs $40 a week for a minimum adequate diet. She gets $125 a month.

Mrs. S. is an expert at fixing inexpensive meat dishes. But she can't get the kids to drink powdered milk. She uses a lot of tomatoes and canned citrus juices and keeps salad fixin's in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.

Her older son is working which relieves the financial strain a bit. Furthermore, he has a car which he needs for his job and can take his mother shopping. Mrs. S. is better off than some of the women we talked with.

"They've gotta have protein." But Mrs. S. was the most optimistic of all the mothers interviewed.

She had heard me talk at a food discussion early in May and took my suggestion about using powdered milk. She finds it cuts her milk bill $3 a week.

She has also just started to buy food stamps which ease food problems a little. Before, there just wasn't any money for food extras.

Fortunately, she says, her boys like spaghetti and goulash because they get both at least once a week. For snacks, they get apples, pretzels or popcorn. She gets a ride to do her shopping.

Mrs. S. comes closest to spending the suggested minimum for food for her size family — $30.

Mrs. K. was one mother who mentioned using peanut butter for snacks. She watches for large packages of cookies on sale, makes popcorn and sometimes cake.

Her five children drink lots of milk, all of it fresh. Mrs. K. uses buttermilk for cooking and baking. Her children lived for a time in the south with their father and existed on a meager, monotonous diet heavy with beans, powdered milk and molasses. Not surprising is their aversion to such foods now.

Mrs. K. gives them cereal, egg, toast and bacon for breakfast and a meat sandwich or some kind for lunch. Vegetables and cornbread appear on the dinner table.

Mrs. K. helps pay for the gas and her son-in-law takes her food shopping. She watches for sales and buys in quantity with her neighbors whenever possible.

For her four boys and a girl, who range in age from seven to 13, she gets $124 a month for food, including stamps. $37 a week would be the USDA suggested figure.

To see what women not on welfare spend for food, we talked with two other mothers.

Mrs. Mc and her husband, a Fisher Body employee, have four children under six years. The family spends $25 a week for food in the supermarket, plus eggs, milk, bread and some fruit bought separately.

Mrs. Mc watches for sales; she has transportation. She likes to cook. She plans her meals ahead and usually cooks meat dishes that can be served two different days.

She compares notes with her neighbors and thinks she is doing a good job. She realizes costs will rise as the children get older. But she does not anticipate problems.

Two of Mrs. V.'s children are away from home. But three boys who love to eat still sit down to three meals a day. Mrs. V. spends $40-45 a week, for groceries, plus milk.

The boys are great meat and bread eaters. They snack on potato chips, ice cream fruit or homemade cake or cookies.

Mrs. V. loves to chase down a bargain. She may shop several stores each week, ignoring the fact that gas costs money too. We suggested she might call it her recreation and she agreed.

The Vs spend about what the USDA plans allow for a week's meals on the liberal plan.

Many others are less fortunate. And hungrier.

Mrs. Richard Nixon and her daughter Julie visit the Forest Grove, Ore., Day Nursery and look in on a painting class Tuesday. The party has visied projects where volunteer efforts help solve local problems.

Old Hide-Seek Game Makes Widow Uneasy

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old widow who recently met a very charming and attractive 54-year-old widower. He is delightful company and we really hit it off together very well, but there is one drawback.

He has two married daughters (whom I have never met) who want to run his life. They are so afraid that someone is going to "take Mother's place" that they can't stand it. She died three years ago.

When this man takes me out we have to go places where his daughters will not find out about it. Also when he comes to my home he takes a taxi so no one will see his car parked in front of my house.

How can I convince him that he should live his own life and quit worrying about what his daughters think? Or do you think I should insist on meeting his daughters and try to make them like me?

the lodge ring. When I tried to explain how I felt about it, he emphatically told me he didn't want to hear any more about it.

Soon after this he got another very heavy ring for his right hand, also with the lodge emblem on it. He wears both rings every day. I think it is nice that he is so proud of his affiliation with this lodge that he wears a symbol of it on each hand, but that wedding band is also a very important symbol to me. It was a constant reminder of love, our home, and our children. Do you think he is trying to tell me something? HURT

DEAR HURT: I think he has indeed TOLD you something. I also think he is either incredibly insensitive, or needlessly unkind. One wonders if his left hand knows what his right hand is wearing.

Award Winning Girl Engineer Says, 'It's Fun'

DETROIT — Carol Sue Wodkowski is competing in a man's world and not only enjoys it, but by engineering standards of excellence, she's doing pretty well at it.

Carol's first "female engineer" ever to compete in the "Outstanding Young Engineer of the Year" Awards Competition, sponsored for the 17th straight year by The Engineering Society of Detroit. What's more, in a field of competition dominated by her male counterparts, she came in second.

Single, just 22, smart, and on her way to the top in a man's world, Carol frankly admits "it's fun."

One of ten female engineers at the Ford Motor Company, Carol's presently working as a research engineer in the Powertrain Systems Research Department, and is responsible for chemical measurements of emissions for her department.

Just a mere enumeration of her responsibilities singles Carol out from most 22-year-old girls, but her list of accomplishments even further makes her "unique."

The Outstanding Young Engineer of the Year award came as a surprise to Carol, but she's not a stranger to excelling or to receiving awards... she's been doing both for years.

my own through night courses," she said.

Now that she's out in the working world, Carol considers it a decided advantage to be able to work with men. "Not only being paid a man's salary for a man's job, but the work is both interesting and challenging," Carol says.

The only problem Carol encountered since venturing into the automotive world, was upon first taking on the research position at Ford. "I wanted to talk with women for a change," she said.

"Now the tables have turned. The uniqueness of being a woman chemist in a predominantly male department has kind of worn off, and I find that I truly enjoy both working and conversing with men. I'm treated both as an equal and as a woman, a happy blend of both, and it's kind of nice," Carol says.

Carol S. Wodkowski, Dearborn Heights, won second prize in this year's "Outstanding Young Engineer of the Year" contest, sponsored by The Engineering Society of Detroit.

TOP STUDENT

She attended the University of Detroit with a Ford Motor Company Fund Scholarship and also received the University of Michigan Regents Alumni Scholarship. A National Merit Competition finalist, Carol graduated from Dearborn Heights' Riverside High School at just 16.

She graduated magna cum laude from the U. of D. in 1967 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry, and received the "Outstanding Chemistry Student of the Year" Award from the American Chemical Society, Detroit Section, having carried an impressive 3.5 average while at the U. of D.

Carol also reached the halfway point in work toward her master's degree in chemistry from Wayne State University "partly on company time and partly on

HELPS IN DATING

The conversational advantages of being a woman in a man's world also come to the front in the dating world.

"When I'm out with an engineer, the conversation invariably turns to 'shop talk.' My dates usually find it equally amusing to be able to converse with a woman in the engineering arena. In fact, I think I can safely say I rather enjoy getting into conversations where other girls simply can't compete... but I don't make a practice of it after hours," Carol says.

Like father, like daughter, engineering runs in the Wodkowski family. Carol's father is also an engineer at Ford, in the Metal Stamping Division. She has one older, married brother, and lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Wodkowski, in Dearborn Heights.

John F. Dudas, Wife Honored at Party in Country Club

BY SHIRLEY GRAY

John F. Dudas of North Williamsbury Road in Birmingham, and his wife, were honored guests at a dinner dance at Bloomfield Hills Country Club last Saturday. The occasion was Dudas' recent promotion to general manager of Fisher Body Division in Pontiac.

Co-hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fitzgerald II and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Elberman, all of Bloomfield Hills.

Other than the ballet, the Chicago weekend was devoted to the Planetarium, the Aquarium and the Museum of Science and Industry, unusual fare for the Lewises, who go to plays whenever possible. That's because the three little Lewises were along — Terry, 10, Geoffrey, eight and David, four.

Mrs. Russell Strickland of Bloomfield Hills recently had a surprise birthday party for her mother, Mrs. Richard F. Connell of Detroit. Mrs. Connell was doubly surprised when in walked her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Hanson of Portland, Oregon.

The Hansons spent a long weekend with the Stricklands before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Flanders recently hosted the annual meeting of Arts Unlimited, a three-year-old group devoted to pursuit of the arts in their Bloomfield Hills home. Dinner and cocktails preceded the work session.

Balletomanes Mr. and Mrs. Horatio (Peggy) Lewis of Birmingham spent last weekend in Chicago because that's where the Royal Ballet is at the moment. The Lewises have several friends in the ballet corps and since the company skipped Detroit this year, that's the only place they can see them. They went to New York earlier this spring for the same purpose.

Officers for the Soroptimist Club of Pontiac will be installed Tuesday evening at a dinner in Devon Gables.

Assuming office will be Mrs. William Hutton, president; Lucy S. Veier, vice president; Mrs. Harold Crozier and Mrs. Stanley McClellan, secretaries and Mrs. Roy Maxwell, treasurer.

Delegates will be Mrs. Richard Paschke and Talmea Surala.

Numerous Area Couples Choose June Saturday for Wedding

Biggs-Beier

Mary Katharine Beier chose St. James Episcopal Church, Birmingham for her wedding Saturday to Stephen Randall Biggs. Sally Hodgson attended the bride who was gown in ivory silk organza. John B. Biggs Jr. assisted the groom. Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Dean G. Beier of Pine Street, Bloomfield Township and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Biggs of St. Louis, Mo.

Kondratenko-Johnson

Shrine of the Little Flower was the setting Friday for vows uniting Patricia Anne Johnson and Eric George Kondratenko of Lake Orion. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson Jr. of Lake Angelus was a Galina gown of white organza with Valley Lily appliques. Her nosegay was made up of roses, daisies and lily of the valley.

Mrs. John Douglas of Anandale, Va., and James Billy of Clairton, Pa., led a wedding party of 12. The son of the George P. Kondratenos of Clairton, and his bride, were feted at the Raleigh House in Southfield. They will make their home in West Haven, Conn., following a honeymoon trip to Miami, Fla.

Shallcross-Gerrish

Married recently in New York City were Patricia Gerrish and John Post Shallcross. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gerrish of Madison, Conn. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Clifford B. West of Bloomfield Hills and John Shallcross of Ellicott City, Md. Carol Banker and George House were honor attendants.

45 Beauties in Pageant

MUSKEGON (AP) — An 82-unit parade, including floats and bands and 45 beautiful girls, officially launches the Miss Michigan Pageant today. Michigan's Miss America of 1969 Nancy Ann Fleming, will be mistress of ceremonies, and Emmet Kelly Jr., son of the world renowned circus clown, will be grand marshal. Miss Michigan 1969 will be chosen Saturday from among the five finalists picked from the field of 45 competitors, which includes both the first and second runners-up in the 1968 competition.

The theme of the 1969 pageant is "A Birthday Party" and winners of 10 of the previous 20 Miss Michigan contests have accepted invitations to participate, including last year's choice, Darlene Kurant of Muskegon, who will crown her successor Saturday night.

PAST WINNERS

Other winners returning will include Janice Somers, 1954; Shirley Swanson, 1956; Patience Pierce, 1958; Ann Marston, 1959; Carol Jean VanValin, 1960; Kathleen McLaughlin, 1963; Sally Nobel, 1964; Esther Smith, 1965 and Toni Jo Abbenante, 1967.

A Children's Night program follows the parade. Misses Fleming and Kurant will appear in two production numbers during the pageant, "We Got Us" and "Miss Michigan Sisters."

Soap 'n' Water Clears Pores

Medical writers seem to agree that soap and water are among the best weapons against acne. To prevent blemishes, tiny skin glands should not be allowed to become plugged. How to do it? Washing. But this must be done properly. Soap and water, and the use of a soft brush, NOT a harsh one which will irritate the skin, to be followed by copious rinsing with fresh running water.

One American Medical Association pamphlet on acne advises that "Frequent washing is good because it removes the oil and unplugs the glands." Discussing persons who do not develop acne until they are at least age 30, one medical writer suggests seeking medical advice to see if there is any disturbance in body chemistry. "In the meantime," he adds, "a good treatment is scrubbing the face three times a day with soap, so as to open pores."

The couple will make their home in California where he will work on his doctorate at the University of California, Berkeley.

Ladd-Hibbard

Carrying a bouquet of carnations and roses, Barbara Ann Hibbard was escorted to the altar of United Presbyterian Church Saturday where she married John Melville Ladd.

For the evening rite, the daughter of the Leola E. Hibbards of Woodmere Street wore a chiffon-over-taffeta sheath. George Ladd was best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mrs. Gordon Ladd of Sashabaw Road and the late Mr. Ladd.

Other members of the wedding party were Linda Hibbard, Marie Molliassa, Thomas Sayles, Dallas Hibbard and Lester Ladd.

The couple, who were feted in the church parlors, are honeymooning in Canada.

Loney-Walton

Gowned in an ensemble of peau de soie with Venetian lace accents, Jennifer Hannah Walton exchanged vows Saturday evening with Thomas Lee Loney in Kirk of the Hills Church.

She carried a bouquet of Amazon lilies, roses, Stephanotis and baby's breath. Honor attendants, Mrs. Daniel Oldham, sister of the bride, and Kenneth Pugh, led a bridal party of ten.

The daughter of the Otis N. Waltons of Willow Road, West Bloomfield Township and the son of the Donald E. Loney of Berkeley were feted in the church parlors following the rite.

The newlyweds will make their home in Ypsilanti after a northern Michigan honeymoon.

Absher-Johnson

Following an exchange of vows Saturday in First United Methodist Church, Clarkston, newlyweds, the Michael Jerome Abshers (Susan Diane Johnson) were feted at a reception at Pine Knob Resort.

Joining the newlyweds were their parents, the Charles W.

Johnsons of Pleasant Lake Drive, Mrs. Della Absher of Percy King Court and Frank Absher of Wallsend Drive.

For the evening ceremony, the bride wore a gown of silk organza with Venetian lace accents. She held a bouquet of garden glowers.

Mrs. Rudolph Peltola was matron of honor with James Absher as best man. The couple is honeymooning in Acapulco and the Mayan Peninsula.

Helzer-Campbell

Linda Gail Campbell became Mrs. Paul Mickel Helzer Saturday at St. Trinity Lutheran Church.

Their parents are Eugene F. Campbell Oxford Road, Oxford, Mrs. Josephine Campbell of Andersonville Road, Independence Township and Mr. and Mrs. George Helzer Sr. of North Perry Street.

The newlyweds' sister and brother, Veronica Hughes and Harry Helzer, assisted the couple.

Thomas-Chapel

Attired in an A-line organza gown, Diana Lynn Chapel was escorted to the altar of Emmanuel Baptist Church Saturday where she exchanged vows with Lance Cpl. Dennis Gene Thomas, USMC.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in northern Michigan.

Mrs. Lyle Cooper was matron of honor for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Chapel of Shoman Street.

Bud Chapel performed best man duties for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Thomas of Waltham Street, White Lake Township.

A reception feted the newlyweds in the church parlors.

Irish-Powley

First Baptist Church, Lake Orion, was the setting Saturday for vows of Elizabeth K. Powley and Norman C. Irish. Attired in a satin gown with seed pearl accents, the bride carried a cascade of carnations with an orchid center.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Eldon F. Powley of Cole Road, Orion Township, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Newton Irish of Lake Orion.

Jeanette M. Powley and Gary Irish were honor attendants.

Following a reception in the church parlors, the newlyweds departed for a northern Michigan honeymoon.

Miller-Kishpaugh

Newlyweds, the James Edward Millers (Deanna Marie Kishpaugh) are honeymooning in northern Michigan.

The couple exchanged vows Saturday at an afternoon ceremony in Berean Baptist Church, Adrian.

Attended by Jo Anne Kishpaugh, the daughter of the Dean Kishpaughs of Sand Creek was gown in peau de soie and Chantilly lace. She held white daisies, carnations and roses.

Best man for the son of the Edgar Millers of Richwood Street was Steve McGlothlin.

Knirk-Nawracaj

The former Susan Florence Nawracaj of Lake Angelus and Carl F. Knirk II of Florence Street, exchanged vows Saturday afternoon in St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Rochester.

Parents of the newlyweds, the Walter Nawracajs of Hamtramck and the Carl H. Knirks of Marion, Ohio, joined the couple at the reception at the American Legion Hall, Rochester.

The bride's candlegown featured lace appliques and Empire waist. Ivory roses, Stephanotis and ivy comprised her bouquet.

Doreen Ozana and Richard Bradley were honor attendants.

Following their western honeymoon, the Knirks will reside in Seattle, Wash.

Roy-Knox

Kristine Knox, daughter of former Pontiac residents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry C. Knox of Imlay City, was wed Friday to William Roy in the First Baptist Church, Imlay City.

Gowned in a dress featuring a lace cage overlay, the bride carried carnations and roses. The bridegroom is the son of the Henry Roys, also of Imlay City.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I honestly couldn't believe my eyes when I saw the kind of bathing trunks and pants my son would like to buy. They look so "nifty" by the boys and they could certainly be copied very easily. I have noticed that most of the swim trunks have a pajama type tie closing (in fact, I think they are actually called "jams"). Search around for an abstract type colorful print cotton and be sure it is pre-shrunk and you are in business.

Mrs. R. S.

Dear Mrs. R. S.:

I know exactly what you are talking about since only a week ago my son came home from college for a visit and brought the brightest swim pants I have ever seen, but they are considered "nifty" by the boys and they could certainly be copied very easily. I have noticed that most of the swim trunks have a pajama type tie closing (in fact, I think they are actually called "jams"). Search around for an abstract type colorful print cotton and be sure it is pre-shrunk and you are in business.

The long cotton print trousers I have checked into are much more complex and require a bit more skill. They are actually made just like tailored wool slacks and would you believe — they cost more than most wool slacks, some of them as much as $40 a pair. If you aren't too sure about your sewing, I would suggest you stick with the swim jans and forget the tailored slacks.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. D. K. Jones, Burlington, Iowa is the winner this week of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her following suggestion:

"Most teen-age girls these days need more than one bathing suit and they are so expensive that I tried making the two-piece type with a matching cover up. They turned out so well I doubt if I will ever have to buy one again. My tip worked so well for me, I am sure it will be of interest to your other readers. I used a piece of polyester knit as an interfacing in the front of both pieces of the suit. It added just enough padding for a smooth, unwrinkled fit without looking bulky."

Mrs. L. J.

Dear Mrs. L. J.:

You can make almost any scarf for a fraction of the cost of one that is ready-made with the exception of the exclusive prints used by designers. For the fringed ends, you are probably trying to insert the fringe and sew the ends in one operation which would definitely cause the fringe to slip because of the consistency of the fringe itself.

To make one of the new long scarves with the fringed ends, allow approximately six feet in length and about 20 inches in width. Since the scarf will be double, the finished width will be approximately nine inches. Before sewing the long sides together, carefully place the woven edge of the fringe on the seamline at each end with the loose ends of the fringe away from the ends. Next, stitch the woven edge of the fringe to the single layer of silk very accurately and avoid pulling. Now when you place the two right sides of the scarf together to machine stitch the ends and the long side seams, you have a perfect guide line to follow and the fringe should look neat and perfect.

Stripes are getting around.

Why Grow Old?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. Does it matter when I eat if I do not go over the number of calories I am supposed to have? Will it make any difference in how much I lose?

A. No, not so long as you stay within the allowable calorie count every 24 hours. However, most people find that it is better not to skip a meal.

Q. Can bunions be operated on?

A. Yes. See a podiatrist.

Q. Isn't it strange that at middle age I am now having pimples just as I did as a teenager? In between these two periods my complexion was fine. Why? What to do?

A. Perhaps this comes from some infection or body malfunction of some sort. I suggest that you talk to your family physician about it or see a skin specialist. Although it is not the usual experience, some women do have skin problems during menopause.

Q. Does everyone need eight hours sleep a night? I never have more than about seven, many nights only six. I feel all right but wonder if I am hurting my health.

A. People vary greatly as to the amount of sleep they need. If you feel peppy and well you are probably getting enough "shut-eye." The average person requires about seven hours. Teen-agers can profit by nine hours.

Q. I like big hats. They are so pretty with their broad brims and their flowers. However my friends tell me that I am too short to wear them. I am only 5 feet tall. What do you think?

A. Sorry, I have to agree with your friends. A big hat will make you look mashed down, or like a mushroom.

Q. Is it dangerous to have your ears pierced?

A. No, but it is best to let your doctor do it.

Bentley Vows Are Spoken

Kathleen Ann Bell chose First Congregational Church, Royal Oak, for her recent marriage to Regional John Bentley.

Attended by Nancy J. Tallman, the daughter of the William A. Bells of Royal Oak wore a Bianchi gown of silk organza and held a nosegay of roses and daisies.

Performing the duties of best man for the son of the Clyde W. Bentleys of Lapeer was Michael J. Levi.

Following a reception at the Kingsley Inn, Bloomfield Hills, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon trip to the Eastern states.

Junk Is Boyled Distillation of Man's Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — I cannot understand people who like to throw things away.

A friend of mine, as soon as he gets this week's issue of a magazine, immediately takes last week's issue and thrusts it into the incinerator, whether he has finished reading it or not.

Another friend, when he buys a new pair of shoes, BOYLE discarding an old pair. He follows the same policy with suits, neckties, hats and girl-friends.

When I ask him why, he says in surprise:

"Why not? Who wants to clutter up his life?"

Well, for one, I do.

IT'S MEANINGFUL

I believe that clutter is one of the few things that make life meaningful. I believe that the clutter a man makes is the chief monument of his being, his only insurance against unbeing.

It is my philosophy that when a person throws away anything that has belonged to him, he is discarding his own immortality.

I haven't been able to save much money, a commodity I admire, and I haven't got around yet to saving string. But one of the happiest men I ever met was a string collector.

He wound it into a great ball several feet thick and put it on display outside a filling station he ran in a small Kansas town.

SECONDS BIGGEST

"People think I'm a bit odd," he said cheerfully. "But so far as I know, this is the second biggest ball of this particular kind of string on the whole wide world."

"The only guy who has a bigger ball is getting pretty well up in years, and I think in time I'll beat him. Meanwhile folks who have heard about my ball of string come from miles away to see how much it's grown, and while they're here they usually have me fill up their gas tanks, so it's good for business."

"If this ball were made of dollar bills, I'd have to hire somebody to guard it. But since it is only string, nobody envies me or tries to steal it. They're all rooting for me to make this ball the biggest in the universe—and I will."

So far I haven't become a specialist in saving like that string collector. I save just about everything—old friends, old enemies, old love letters, old menu cards, and old clothing.

HE SHOWED HER

I still keep and wear a sweat shirt I bought in 1939. I still keep and wear an overcoat I bought in Canada in 1941. I still have one of the good luck combat boots I wore through Korea. The reason I don't have both of them is that the other one was stolen from me by a housemaid in Tokyo who thought that, if one was missing, I'd leave the other behind. Well, I didn't.

Now and then my daughter Tracy complains about the mounting debris in our apartment.

"Dad," she says, "you can't save everything."

Why can't I? I just jumble some of it together in a big paper box and put it in storage in the basement. I've got 22 boxes there now, and getting my 23rd one ready.

"It's nothing but junk, Dad," says Tracy, who is nearer than most teen-agers.

NOT JUNK, HIM

Junk? Nonsense. That's not junk—it's me. It's living history, a cross-section of one man's life. One of these days when Uncle Sam does his duty by me and puts me on the Social Security rolls, I'll move it all to a small house in the country and spend the rest of my years pawing through it and live again the world I once knew.

There is an old saying that familiarity breeds contempt. That is one of the greatest lies ever uttered. Familiarity breeds contempt only in contemptible minds.

Familiarity breeds love, and no one with a proper sense of values ever willingly lets go of anything he has loved. A man is not measured by what he has lost or discarded—but by what he has struggled to keep.

Aussie Riches Difficult to Tap

PERTH, Western Australia (UPI) — Western Australia is a big country with a big problem: immense mineral wealth has been discovered within its borders in the last decade, but the government of the thinly populated state is short of the cash needed to develop the discoveries.

Here the familiar problems of the Australian subcontinent are reproduced on a magnified scale — vast distances, an acute shortage of water, some of the world's hottest and loneliest deserts and a shortage of people, money, housing and such essential services as power supply and sewerage, transport and communications.

The huge iron ore projects have necessitated construction of whole townships. State resources, backed by such a small taxable population, and comparatively diminutive secondary industry, are so inadequate to the task of providing services that the government often rejects any suggestion that it be involved in the expense of providing services to the towns which are the key to the unlocking of the very wealth which the state needs.

TAKE OVER TASK

Thus the giant companies themselves take over the task. Of the 200 million Australian dollars spent on the Mount Newman iron ore project, $60 million went for construction of the 265-mile railway.

This will carry more freight a year than the entire state railway system, of the roughest country in the world.

State Will Sell Six Properties in Oakland County

Six pieces of property in Oakland County will be sold by the State Department of Highways at auction June 24 in St. Clair Shores.

Also offered will be property in Macomb and St. Clair counties. The sale will be conducted in two parts, at 11 a.m. and at 2 p.m., at the St. Clair Shores Recreation Center, 24800 East Jefferson.

Minimum bids have been determined by recent appraisals, the department said. Parcels bid to $2,500 or more may be purchased on land contract.

The Oakland County properties include one in Farmington Township at the northwest corner of I-696 and Incker Road and one in Rochester on the southwest corner of Main Street and West Division.

was encountered by the railway builders; they overcame it with 25 steel span bridges of between 106 and 700 feet.

Demands on capital and labor resources are enormous. In areas like the big new Kwinana industrial complex near Perth, where industries with towns, ports and railways have to be set up, partly because of the distances the raw materials and labor have to traverse.

On the Mount Newman railway, a peak work force of 1,350 men labored over nine million cubic yards of rock and earth and lay 62,000 tons of rails.

WAGE COSTS

Working conditions, in temperatures up to 120 degrees, are such that wage costs in the initial stages of such an undertaking are enormous. Mount Newman's great achievement has been repeated elsewhere, compounding the problems — and the benefits.

Four other iron ore giants are now in production (Western Mining, Goldworthy Mining, Hamersley Iron and Dampier Mining). Cliffs Western Australian plans to start construction at its Robe River undertaking in late 1969. Three more companies are to follow suit (Sentinel Mining, Hamrill Iron and Mount Bruce Mining).

The iron ore industry has brought about construction of 1,200 track miles of railway within the state in just over six years.

New townships already built include Tom Price, Dampier, Goldworthy, Newman, Cockatoo and Koolan Island. The economy is almost splitting its sides to keep up the pace of the mineral finds.

SOMETHING TO ROOT FOR—This bikini-clad model appears to have lost her head in a cluster of balloons as she strolled down Chicago's Michigan Avenue yesterday. In case you haven't noticed, the balloons are puffing National Root Beer Week. We'll drink to that.

2nd Chance Just a Goof

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hay-wire computing machine at Georgetown University sent spirits soaring among rejected applicants for next fall's incoming freshman class. It headed: "Dear Member of the Class of 1973."

The machine, which processes mail to successful candidates for admission got its signals crossed, a university employee said, and sent out instructions to previously rejected applicants to report to class.

Science Is Bringing Modern Gold Rush

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — The Association, said the initial colorful prospectors of the Old West knew there was gold in "them thar hills." And they found it, too. Scores of ghost towns mark the spots where mining towns once flourished.

But the pick-and-shovel prospector who trudged the bleak desert with his faithful burro would be no match for today's geologists, who map likely mineral areas from airplanes and "dig" with test tubes and electronic equipment.

Scientists are experimenting with a new process for recovering gold particles so small they can't be seen by the naked eye. These deposits are carbonaceous ores in a "belt of gold" 50 miles wide stretching 200 miles across northeastern Nevada.

Carbonaceous ores have been considered worthless in the past because there was no practical means of extracting their gold content.

TESTS UNDERWAY

Paul Gemmill, executive secretary of the Nevada Mining

Association, said the initial testing program is under way at the Newmont Mining Co. gold mine at Carlin. The mine is on the "belt of gold" and already has become the nation's second-largest gold producer by using modern technology to mine low-grade oxidized ore.

Newmont invested $10 million in its Carlin operation. A vast open pit revealed an ore body containing only a third of an ounce of gold per ton. But by using huge power shovels and trucks, along with the latest mill equipment, the company processes 2,200 tons of ore a day which yields about 250,000 ounces of gold a year.

Carlin and a new mass production open-pit venture at nearby Cortez have pushed Nevada, once famed for silver bonanzas at Virginia City and Tonopah; into second place among the states in gold production.

W. S. Porter, better known as O. Henry, developed his ability as a writer while serving a term in a penitentiary.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS AND NOT KNOW IT

Picking, nose-picking, a tormenting red rash are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it. To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W Tablets do... and here's how they do it: First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily. Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and 2-1/2-1/2.

Onetime Film Star Now Full-Time Detective

By SOB THOMAS

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Recently a burglary suspect peered into the face of the investigating detective and inquired, "Say — aren't you that actor on TV?"

"Nah, I just look like him," said the detective, and he continued his interrogation.

Such inquiries are sometimes put to Ventura County Sheriff's Deputy Michael O'Shea, but most people never suspect that an actor would be doing actual police work. He usually introduces himself as Michael Shaw to forestall recognition.

Film fans and students of the late, late show will recall

O'Shea as the bustling, fast-talking star of "Lady of Burlesque," "Mr. District Attorney," "Captain China," "Fixed Bayonets" and a few dozen other films. He also starred with James Dunn and Bill Bishop in a television series, "It's a Great Life."

OCCASIONAL ACTOR

O'Shea now lives in this hilly community 30 miles north of Hollywood with his wife, actress Virginia Mayo, and their daughter Mary, 16. He still takes an occasional acting job, but his principal activity is working full time for the Ventura County Sheriff's Department.

"I've been on the night shift from 4 to 12, but now I'm going on 8 to 4 in the morning," he said. "I work with a younger man, and we travel all over the county on burglaries, robberies, murders—whatever can't be handled by the black-and-white (patrol) cars.

"Sure, I pack a gun and I sometimes have to draw it. Thank God, I've never had to drop the hammer. I hope that never happens. As soon as it does, an officer has to turn himself in and undergo an investigation himself."

What's an actor doing in police work? O'Shea explained that it's the fulfillment of an ambition that dates to his New York childhood.

TURNED DOWN

"Four of my uncles were on the NYPD," he said, "and it was the despair of my father that I never made it. I tried. I went to Delahanty's school for prospective policemen, and I applied for the force year after year. But I was a runt—5 feet 9 and 130 pounds. They always turned me away. 'Try the Fire Department,' they told me."

He turned to acting on the Broadway stage and then in films, but his ambition to be a cop never died. One night he met the Los Angeles County sheriff at a party and told him of his offstage interest. The next day the actor was sworn in as a deputy, and he put in duty in the tough Firestone and East Los Angeles districts.

During his television series, O'Shea had dropped 40 pounds from his previous 178, presumably from overwork. But his health worsened, and doctors found a lump over his heart; they believed to be cancer. Later it proved to be a distended aorta which O'Shea thinks was caused by a rodeo spill. An operation cured the condition and also remedied four ulcers and two hernias, but left him permanently slim.

A chance meeting at the Ventura courthouse with a former colleague on the Los Angeles sheriff's staff led to his present assignment.

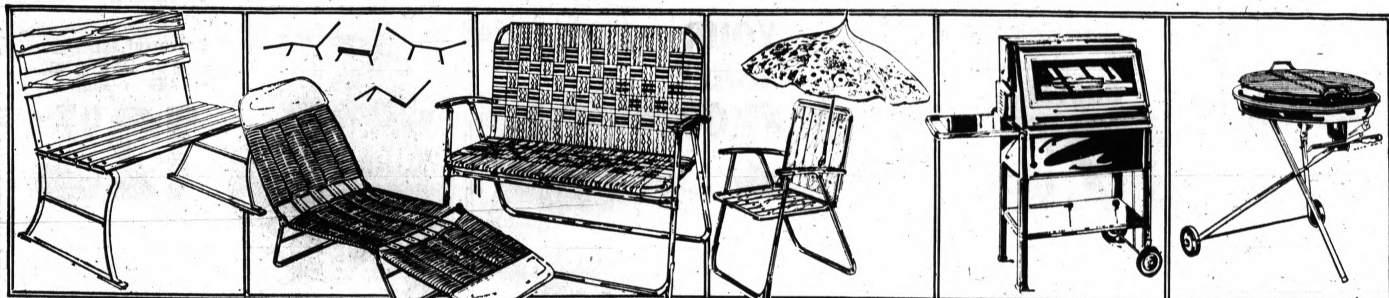

Ex-Chevy Exec's Funeral Is Today

MOUNT DORA, Fla. (AP) — Funeral services will be held today for William E. Holler, a former Chevrolet Division sales manager, who died at his Florida home Monday. He was 89. Holler retired from Chevrolet in 1945, leaving Chevy firmly entrenched as the country's No. 1 auto seller.

He will be buried in Mount Dora.

Typical Murder: Set of Grim Statistics

By TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Before you finish reading this article, three Americans will have been murdered, raped, robbed or assaulted.

According to records compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a violent crime takes place in the nation every 60 seconds. By the end of the day, 1,400 will have been so victimized. By the end of the month, 43,000. By the end of the year, more than 500,000.

This is the story of one of these crimes—one murder.

It happened the other evening on the East Side of Manhattan, in the ballroom of the 23rd police precinct. Statistically, this figure is not unusual. Most murders happen in the northeast part of the country, most murders happen in large cities and most murder happen at night.

Detective Gaspare Bruno got the original complaining call. He was having coffee when his phone rang. The caller said that shots had just been fired in the vicinity of 109th Street and Park Avenue.

Bruno went directly to work. Police were instantly dispatched to the area. It was a small, fenced-in playground by a school. Two young men were found there, both with bullet wounds.

Like the location and time of the shooting, the victims were statistically predictable. They were nonwhites, as are the majority of homicides in this country, and they were in the most vulnerable age group—20 to 45 years.

Within minutes after the victim, a stocky, sweating suspect was discovered and arrested a few blocks away.

The suspect was brought handcuffed to the station house where he was relieved of a small, recently fired .22 caliber pistol.

The pistol, too, was statistically telling. FBI records indicate more than 60 per cent of all homicides in the nation are by gunshot. Knives are second; then follow blunt instruments, poison and arson.

Detective Bruno took the suspect to the second floor of the station house and began preliminary questioning.

The suspect, like the victims, was young—24. Thirty seven per cent of all homicide arrests are under 25. Numerically, people up to 24 have the heaviest homicide involvement.

DIDN'T RESPOND

At first, the young suspect did not respond to any questions.

Then the precinct telephone rang again. This time it was the hospital calling. One of the victims, shot in the neck, had just died.

"That," said Bruno, "makes it murder." Quickly, the suspect was hustled out of the precinct house and over to the hospital.

There in an antiseptic room with nurses, doctors, attendants and some people from the street looking on, Bruno pushed the suspect in front of the second victim.

HE DID IT

"That's him," the wounded man said. "He did it."

The victim went on to say that the suspect's wife had been involved with the dead man and this led to the blood-letting.

This version of the motive was, like most aspects of the shooting, statistically commonplace. According to FBI data, one out of every 10 criminal homicides have

British Brass Losing Batmen

LONDON (UPI) — An economy drive is robbing British military officers of their batmen.

The government said Monday it will save $6.6 million in doing away with the officers' enlisted men servants, called batmen.

Henceforth, all officers will have to pay out of their own pockets for enlisted men to shine their shoes, lay out their clothes, pour the tea and whisky and do the other valet chores of the batman.

Defense Minister Denis Healey told the House of Commons military salaries will go up. He said the aim is to halt the rise in enlisted men quitting the army. There is no draft in Britain.

The cost of a full-time batman will be more than the salary increases for officers.

Chicago for Mohawk

Air Route Supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner recommended yesterday that Mohawk Airlines be granted a route to Chicago.

Examiner Louis W. Sornson said the Board should grant Mohawk's application for an extension of its system beyond Erie, Pa., to Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Mohawk serves Erie on a route between Boston and Detroit, by way of intermediate cities including Albany, Utica, Rome, Binghamton-Endicott, Johnson City, Elmira-Corning, Ithaca-Cortland, Syracuse-Rochester and Buffalo-Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The examiner said conditions should be imposed to prevent Mohawk from performing direct service, without change of the board.

HIT BY LIMITATIONS

These limitations would prevent Mohawk from operating direct service between Chicago and such cities as Boston; Burlington, Vt.; Hartford, Conn.; New York City; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh, Providence, R.I.; White Plains, N.Y.; and Washington, D.C.

Using British-built BAC111 jets, Mohawk plans to provide two daily round trips in each direction between Utica, Syracuse, Erie and Chicago, and between Albany, Binghamton, Elmira and Chicago.

If no petitions for review are filed within 25 days, the examiner's findings may be adopted by the board.

Jumps Into Swimming Pool

Gov. Reagan Rescues Child

ALICIA BERRY

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, a life guard in his youth, jumped fully clothed into his swimming pool and rescued a 7-year-old girl in water over her head, his office said yesterday.

Reagan saved Alicia Berry, daughter of a file clerk in his office, in the Sunday incident. The clerk, Mrs. Marlene Murphy, was among 200 attending a staff party at the Reagan home.

Mrs. Murphy said Alicia, who doesn't swim, was at the side of the pool, reached to get onto a plastic raft and went down in four feet of water.

"He dived in, clothes and all," Mrs. Murphy said of the governor. She said her daughter came out "just gasping and spitting water," but wanted to go right back in.

Reagan advised that Alicia should return to the pool, Mrs. Murphy said, so the girl wouldn't develop a fear of water.

Reagan was a life guard at a river park in Illinois during summers while he went to high school and college.

Money for Metro in Nixon's Plan

DETROIT (AP) — A proposed $5-billion federal airport aid program would bring about $4 million annually to Detroit Metropolitan Airport, James M. Davey, managing director of the Wayne County Road Commission, said Tuesday.

President Nixon proposed the dividend aid plan to Congress Monday.

'68 Divorce Rate in U.S. Was 2nd Highest Level

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The divorce rate in the United States rose in 1968 to the second highest level ever recorded, the national Center for Health statistics said yesterday.

Early indications are that the figures for 1969 will be even higher.

An estimated 582,000 divorces and annulments were granted in 1967, the center reported. This brought the provisional 1968 rate to 2.9 per 1,000 population.

However, the provisional rate for the 12-month period ending in March, 1969 is even higher at 3.0 per 1,000, a divorce statistician said.

The highest divorce figures ever compiled since divorce reporting began in 1947 were in the postwar years 1945-47. The divorce rate shot up to 3.5 in 1945.

Rhodes Scholar Views Unrest

OXFORD, England (NEA) — Dr. Samuel Johnson once remarked that nothing clears a man's head so quickly as the knowledge that he is about to be hanged. Rhodes Scholar William J. Clinton feels that the same is true of his year at Oxford.

It has permitted him to get the American political scene. In perspective, particularly as regards the struggles now going on in American colleges and universities.

"The American university is neither a tyrannical institution, nor is it the lever by which students can tear our society apart. The university is the most humanizing, the most civilizing institution in our midst, and that is because it makes people think," he said.

Clinton, whose views are echoed by other Rhodes Scholars, blames both student extremists and university authorities. "The authorities made the great mistake of allowing what should have been a limited war to escalate.

PURELY NEGATIVE

"As for the Students for a Democratic Society, they are bad Marxists who are muddled in their thinking, for the most part, and purely negative in their approach.

Clinton is attached to University College, Oxford, which was founded in the 13th century, and which claims to be the oldest of all Oxford colleges.

Like all other Oxford students, Clinton enjoys privileges which are unheard of in American universities. For example, a servant, known as a "scout," brings his tea to him in the morning, makes his bed, empties the wastebasket. He is not required to attend lectures, the accent here being on individual instruction by highly qualified tutors.

All is not stuffy tradition at Oxford, but students are allowed a great amount of personal freedom as compared to most American universities. For example, they are allowed to entertain guests — male or female — in their rooms, or "digs," as they are called, until 2 a.m.

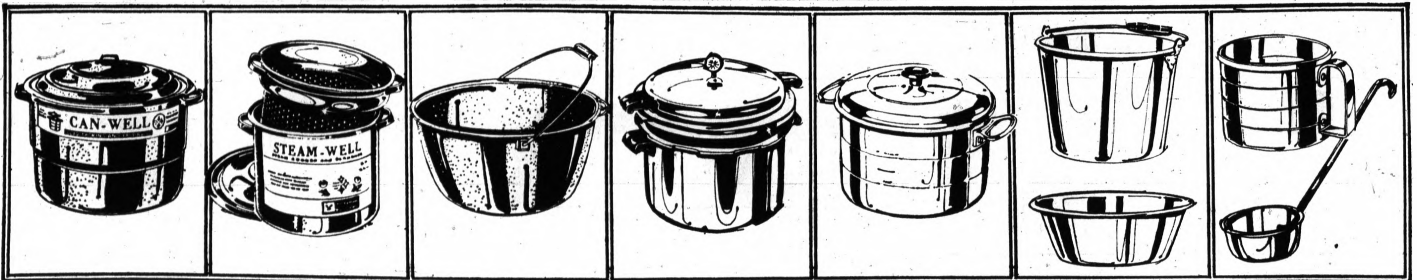

MORE TIME

"I find that I have more time for reading and writing than I did at Georgetown," Clinton declares. "I've even found time to play the saxophone, which I gave up after nurturing ambitions to become a serious jazz musician."

Like other Rhodes Scholars, Clinton sometimes undertakes speaking engagements, in an effort to further Anglo-American relations. During the presidential elections, for example, he explained all about the American electoral system to high school seniors at Derby. "I found I didn't have to do much explaining," he concedes. "They knew as much about the subject as American high school seniors."

With all the study, research, and extracurricular activities, this has been a troubled year for Rhodes Scholars at Oxford, and the end is not yet in sight.

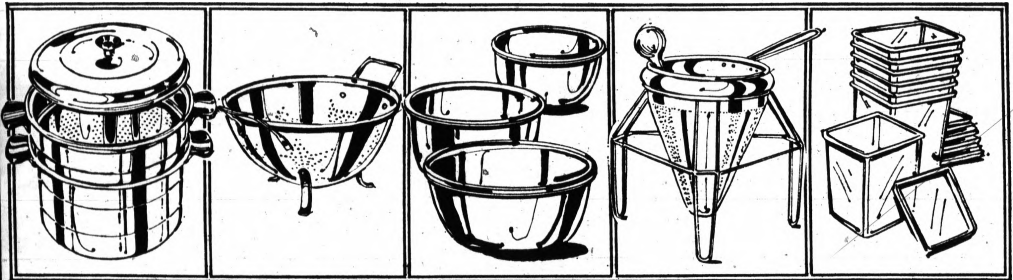

The university itself will be glad when it can get on with the job of helping to mold the intellects of the promising Yanks who come to it, without the competition of such distracting influences as war and campus violence.

European Aloofness to U.S. Violence Fades Out Due to TV

BY TOM A. CULLEN

European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — Thanks to television, Europe can no longer remain aloof from American violence, but is very much involved with what is happening in Los Angeles and Detroit.

The average European is concerned, and in recent years he has been spared none of the family tragedies of the Americans living next door. Via Telstar, he has ridden in the fatal motorcade with President Kennedy. He has stood on the balcony of that motel in Memphis with Martin Luther King Jr.

Men in Brussels and Florence have been able to see the flames licking the store fronts in Watts, heard the police sirens, the shots, the tinkle of falling glass.

Last August viewers in Stockholm and Rome watched Mayor Daley's stalwarts lose their cool and flail with their nightsticks. And watching the eruption of violence in America, these same Italians, Belgians and Swedes have asked themselves, "Can the same thing happen here?"

MIMIC IN EUROPE

What happens in America today has a way of repeating itself in Europe tomorrow. This has been true of hippie culture, student demonstrations, the drug scene.

At the same time it is recognized that certain phenomena — notably the black power movement — are peculiarly American, and not likely to be duplicated elsewhere. Britain's colored problem, for example, is decidedly of the mini variety, dating from the late 1950s when large numbers of Pakistanis and West Indians arrived here in search of jobs.

Although these Commonwealth immigrants tend to form ghettos in large industrial cities like Birmingham, there is none of the racial tension here in Britain one would find in America.

Student power is something else again. The virus of the student disturbances that infect most European colleges stems directly from the University of California and the Free Speech Movement on the Berkeley campus in the early 1960s.

SIT-INS COPIED

The sit-ins at Columbia University in Manhattan have been slavishly copied by students at the London School of Economics and at Nanterre University, just outside Paris.

Black power and student power are not the only facets of American violence that worry Europeans. There is gun power.

The frontier nation theory trotted out as an explanation why Americans like to carry guns has added to, rather than dispelled, the confusion in European minds.

Another phenomenon which the average European does not understand is gratuitous or senseless violence, better known as "mugging." Mindless crimes are not unknown to Europe, but they are exceedingly rare, particularly in Italy and France, where avarice or love and hatred are usually involved.

STREETS SAFE

The fact remains that the streets of most European cities are safe at night. Nor is it necessary to have one's house wired for burglar alarms, or to leave the lights going when one goes out for the evening.

The European reads that 27 million Americans own guns, which means that half of all American homes have a firearm stashed away somewhere. He also reads the crime statistics — 6,500 Americans are murdered every year by gunfire, as compared to only 30 in Great Britain. The correlation between gun ownership and crime seems obvious.

"If the police and the National Guard in America do not constitute a well-regulated militia, they should be reinforced," I was told by a Scotland Yard spokesman. "Arming the people is no solution to the problem."

Britons are mindful that the 22 Iver Johnson that killed Senator Robert Kennedy changed hands four times since it was purchased in 1965.

College Education Must Be Open to All

BY WHITNEY M. YOUNG
Executive Director
National Urban League

To hear the fuss some people are making about various proposals to open the colleges to all, you would think it was a revolutionary idea. But in fact, it's an old one.

Most state universities are land-grant colleges, established to provide higher education for any state resident with a high school diploma.

New Yorkers worried about "lowering the standards" of City College by admitting youngsters who have grades below the current high required levels conveniently forget that until fairly recently, City admitted any high school graduate. And those were the years in which it won its reputation as a top school.

Too often "standards" really mean convenience. It's more convenient for teachers to lecture middle-class white kids than it is for them to meet the challenges of teaching ghetto youngsters.

SPECIAL EFFORT

And it is more convenient for administrators not to have to make the special effort of setting up remedial classes and makeup courses for the victims of inferior ghetto schools.

And, of course, it is far more convenient for parents of college-age children to have less competition for the available classroom places.

Many schools have made a special effort to recruit black students, but the results are still disappointing. A recent study reports that less than 2 per cent of the students in the major state universities are Negro.

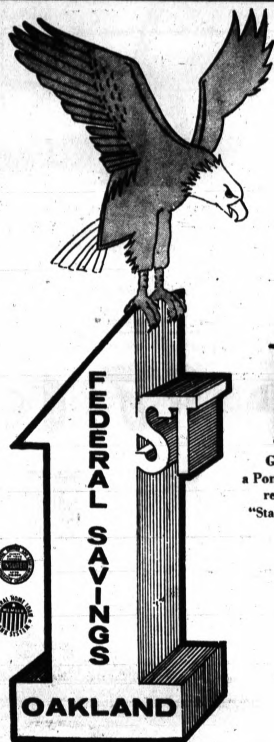

It also found that last year there were more foreign students in American colleges than there were black students; that black enrollment at the University of Alabama, of all places, is about the same as the Big Ten schools; and that 18 predominately Negro colleges enrolled almost twice as many black students as the 80 predominately white land-grant colleges and state universities.

'MERIT STANDARDS'

This situation can't go on. Black youngsters are deprived of the chance for higher education because of "merit" standards that don't take into account the inferior schools of the slums and the resulting lack of motivation. Many bright youngsters just don't believe they can go to college, and are trained to expect failure.

If black citizens are to aspire to the "equal opportunities" we hear so much about, they'll have to have the academic credentials so basic to success in our technological society.

Nova 4 sale.

This means new little domestic cars seem like small potatoes. For a limited time you can get a specially equipped Nova 4 at never-before savings.

That's any Nova 4 coupe or sedan—equipped with Torque-Drive transmission, pushbutton radio and whitewall tires—all sale priced.

With Torque-Drive you never clutch. It's like a fully automatic except you shift once during acceleration.

You'd pay almost twice the money for a similar transmission even in little imports. And that's at Torque-Drive manufacturer's suggested retail price. Before Nova 4 sale savings.

So Nova 4 won't cramp your budget or anything else. The coupe carries five adults and the sedan, six. Which means Nova is also better for carting around than those little 4-passenger cars.

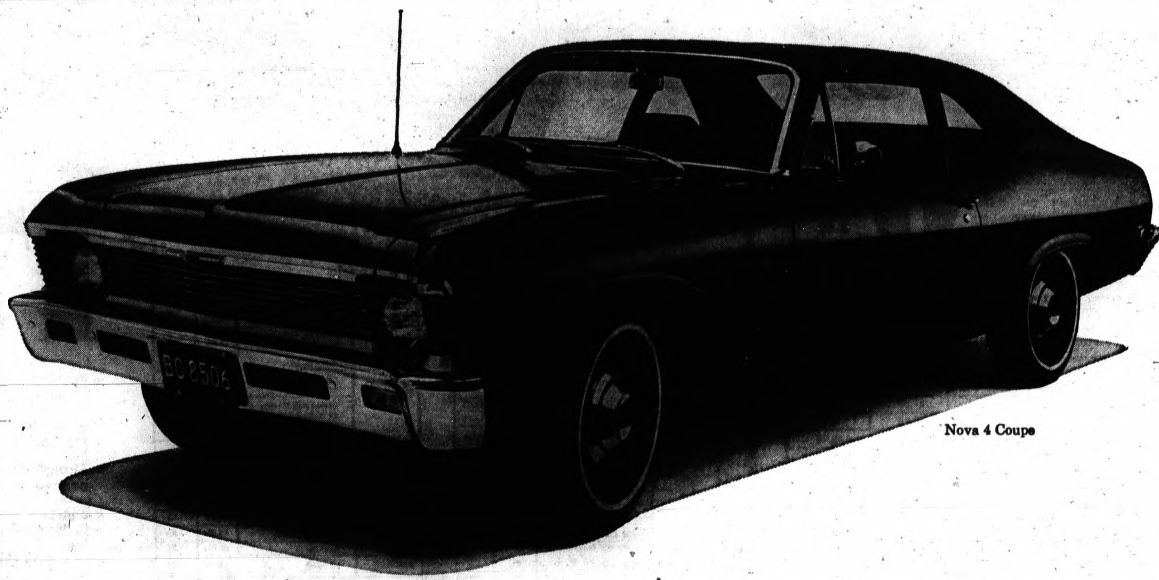

The trunk is big enough for complete travel luggage, not just your souvenirs.

As for styling, that's one of the biggest reasons why Nova is America's most popular economy car. Along with wide tread and 111-inch wheelbase for stability. And solid body by Fisher quality, of course.

See your Chevrolet dealer during his Nova 4 sale. He's putting the squeeze on prices, not people.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

Nova 4 Coupe

Alliance Unit Joins Plea for 'Peace Plane'

The Michigan Partners of the Alliance, of which Oakland University Chancellor Durward B. Varner is chairman, today joined other groups from other states in requesting a U.S. Air Force plane for use in peace missions to Central and South America.

The Michigan Partners and 37 similar groups petitioned President Nixon to free an American plane for a Plane-for-Peace program.

Varner explained that the idea of the Plane-for-Peace originated at the Fourth Inter-American Conference of Partners of the Alliance, in Salt Lake City.

The plane would be used to transport donated goods, materials, expert personnel and equipment in support of the People-to-People program of the partners.

Michigan's Partner in Latin America is the Central American country of Belize.

Rocket Watch Puts VC Gunners on Spot

SAIGON (AP) — Sixty feet in the air on a 9-by-9 foot platform with nothing to do but keep his eyes peeled for 12 hours at a stretch, Spec. 5 Thomas Painschab may have one of the Vietnam war's most boring jobs.

That is, until he spots the red flash on the horizon that means a Vietcong rocket has been fired and will hit somewhere nearby within 15 seconds.

In that brief period of time, Painschab—and others like him, on duty in similar towers—will have already put in motion the wheels of retaliation.

Like forest rangers getting a fix on a fire, the tower crews draw azimuths on the rocket flash and phone them to a command post which plots them on a map. Where the lines cross, the launch site is pinpointed.

REACTION FORCE

If it is a populated area, an order goes out from the Capital Military Assistance Command for a reaction force of troops to be sent into the area. If it is not populated, artillery is called in on the site. The whole procedure takes two to three minutes at the most.

Painschab of Waverly, Minn., is one of a group of Americans who man the 11 towers around Saigon 24 hours a day.

One man is on duty in the daytime, when rockets are seldom launched by the enemy—only one daylight attack on the capital has occurred this year. The flashes are virtually invisible anyway, but the lookout spots fires and other signs of unusual activity.

At night five or six men occupy each tower, scanning the horizon in all directions, but concentrating on those areas from which the Vietcong customarily fire missiles.

FAVORITE WEAPON

The favorite enemy weapon is the Soviet-built 122mm rocket, a six-foot long, 100-pound missile that can travel up to 6½ miles.

Its launch flash is visible—under good conditions—for two seconds or less.

The 11 towers around Saigon were established last August, after the capital city had undergone five months of rocket attacks that killed 104 people and wounded 738 more.

The attacks ceased for a while but since Feb. 23, there have been 12, killing 63 persons and wounding 171.

U.S. officers believe the swift retaliation system has seriously affected the Vietcong gunners' efficiency by driving them farther out into the rice paddies, so that many of their missiles fall short, and by forcing them to fire their rockets by clever but less reliable remote control methods.

Lt. Lee Romos, Cameron, Wis., platoon leader of the rocket watch group, tries to give the men a change as often as possible to keep them alert, "and we don't keep anyone out there who doesn't like the job."

AP Wirephoto

LOOKING FOR ROCKETS — Sixty feet toward the Saigon area. The tower on which he is posted is one of 11 in the Saigon area and is manned 24 hours a day.

OU Teacher Workshops to Utilize New Technique

Extemporization — a new supplementary-teaching technique for developing critical thinking — will be utilized in a Michigan State University extension course at Oakland University this summer.

“Workshops in Education: Extemporization,” also called “Creative Dramatics,” will meet on the OU campus Mondays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to noon, June 23 - July 7.

UAW Starts Work on Regional Center

MADISON HEIGHTS (AP) — Ground was broken today for a $1-million United Auto Workers union regional headquarters in Madison Heights.

The building is one of three such headquarters being built in the Detroit area to house regional staffs currently working out of Solidarity House.

UAW spokesman Paul Silver said the facility will include 30 offices, conference rooms, an auditorium and a kitchen equipped to serve 500. Silver said the union foresees use of the building as a community center.

Through this teaching technique, the classroom becomes a laboratory for the learning process and for providing new insights in dealing with the outside world.

Interested teachers can register for this course today and tomorrow at the MSU Graduate Center in 364 S. Foundation Hall, Oakland University.

3 Brothers, Vietnam Vets, Ponder Protests, Prejudice

By DIANNE DUROCHER

Recollections of South Vietnam:

Steamy jungles, rice paddies, ravaged villages, intermittent bombing attacks, death, hastily built bars and strong people.

These are some of the vivid memories of brothers Ira, Paul and Corey Jackson of 575 Paddock. Each has served at least one year in Vietnam since 1964.

Last week Ira, 21, arrived home after completing two years in the Army, the second with a support unit in Vietnam. He hung up the specialist 4 uniform in the upstairs closet next to the Marine Corps uniforms of his two older brothers.

Sitting in their living room, the three brothers were alternately reflective and boisterous as they smoked, drank coffee and discussed their personal feelings about the war and their individual experiences in the service and in Vietnam.

"I come back to the States and one of the first things I hear is people protesting against the war," said Ira. "I wanted to tell them to save their protests until after they had been there."

"Let's face it. To dig war is not too normal, but our country has a purpose for this war — to stop communism," interjected Corey, who served in Vietnam in part of 1966 and 1967 with an armored unit and who now works at Pontiac Motor Division. He was a sergeant when he was discharged in February 1968.

He added, "Sure, some people are getting fat wallets because of the war and if everybody is so interested in peace, why isn't the war over? Maybe because the South Vietnamese people aren't ready to stand alone against communism."

But they are a strong people, he said, "I saw people in Vietnam live on two pounds of rice for two months — that's strength."

South Vietnamese males are drafted between the ages of 15 and 40 and they play a big part in the war, added Ira.

"Sure we'd all like to see the war end. The people who are protesting against it have a right to do so; but the protests could be tempered with a little better understanding," said former Lance Cpl. Paul, who was in Vietnam during 1965 and who is now working as a switchman for the Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

Questioned about prejudice in the service, each of the brothers had different reactions, but they all agreed that there is prejudice in the armed forces, as in many other organizations.

"All of us were fighting on the same side and stood the same chance of dying and sometimes depended on each other just to stay alive. I could never understand prejudice when I encountered it," said Ira, pensively.

He quickly added that he made many friends in the Army, many of them white.

Ira continued, "The Vietnamese people called me 'soul,' short for soul brother. That's how they referred to black people."

"I never heard the people use the terms Negro or nigger," Ira said.

Paul and Corey said they had encountered prejudice in some form or other all their lives but "People are people, only some are more hard-headed than others," whether they wear a uniform or not.

Mrs. Dorothy Jackson, who had been listening to the conversation from the kitchen, came into the room smiling and commented on her sons.

"I'm very proud of all my boys," she said. "I loved them before they went into the service and I still do, even though after a while each of them quit writing."

She added, "They changed while they were in the service, but it shaped them up in a lot of ways. I'm just glad to have them all home again."

Tapes Okayed in Mafia Trial

DETROIT (UPI) — A Wayne County Circuit Judge ruled Tuesday 75 per cent of tape recordings allegedly implicating accused Mafia chiefs in a loan shark ring could be admitted as evidence.

Judge Cornelia Kennedy made the ruling in the extortion conspiracy trial of Anthony and Vito Giacalone and four other persons. The defense had asked the tapes be barred.

The trial was to continue today.

The recordings allegedly cover conversations between Roark Hogan, 39, a bail bondsman, and Leo Mocerl, 47, a defendant in the case facing separate trial.

Besides the Giacalone brothers, who were named as Detroit Mafia leaders in U.S. Senate hearings, Bernard Marchesani, 44, Clarence Stephan, 43, James Katala Jr., 34, and Michael Katranis, 29, are charged with conspiracy to extort money at exorbitant rates using threats.

Seventeen of the 20 largest Sunday schools in the United States are Baptist.

Workingman's Plight Worsens in Peru's 'Underemployment'

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Peru's workingman is having trouble finding a job, and his plight grows worse by the day.

The Peruvian government prefers to classify the problem as underemployment rather than unemployment. But the symptoms are the same.

Recent study by the Peruvian military junta said that unemployment was only 5 per cent in Peru, but that underemployment was 35 per cent.

EARN LESS THAN $45

According to the study, an underemployed person is one earning less than 2,000 soles, about $45 per month, or who is working less than 40 hours per week.

In 1967, a similar government study placed the unemployment figure at 4 per cent and the underemployment figure at about two-thirds of what it is estimated now.

"The ones that are hurt the worst are in construction, commerce and agriculture," a diplomatic source said.

"If you figure the figures for unemployment, and underemployment together, it adds up to about 40 per cent," one government source said. "And that is startling."

OTHER WAYS

But, he said, the Peruvians, like all men, had to eat, and when they didn't have one kind of job, they found other ways to employ themselves, "even to selling pencils on the corner," the government source said.

The uncertainty over the future of U.S.-Peruvian relations, brought on by the deliberations over Peru's expropriation of the International Petroleum Co., has resulted in much of the job scarcity, a diplomatic source said.

But an independent survey of labor unions, businessmen and workers showed that the Peruvians do not necessarily blame their work problems on the government, "but on the whole big picture," the diplomatic source said.

A government source said that the studies which had been made were based on the estimated working force in Peru of about 4 million persons, "and this doesn't even include some of the people in the mountains who never have jobs."

But he said that with 40 per cent of Peruvian labor either unemployed, or making less than $45.00 per month as underemployed persons, "the situation is serious."

Soviet Scientist Hails as Effective Antiflu Drug U.S. Rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — A Soviet scientist says an anti-flu drug on which U.S. authorities turned thumbs down has proven highly effective in tests on 10,000 Soviet citizens.

The drug, amantadine hydrochloride, is manufactured by the E.I. du Pont de Nemours &

Co. and sold under the brand name Symmetrel.

Parasite Noted

Raw eggs and raw meat are not good for pregnant women. Both carry a parasite that transmits eye and brain disease to the unborn child.

The United States Public Health Service's advisory committee on immunization practices recommended against use of the drug during last winter's epidemic of Hong Kong flu and during an expected epidemic next winter.

The committee held that the extended use of the drug necessary for immunization against the flu virus a month or more — would increase the incidence of side effects such as insomnia, nervousness and lightheadedness.

TELLS OF TESTS

Dr. Anatoli A. Smorodintsev, director of the All-Union Research Institute of Influenza in Leningrad, described the Russian tests Monday at a conference on antiviral drugs sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences.

He said half of the more than 10,000 persons involved in the tests were given amantadine daily for 30 days in pill or syrup form, the other half receiving fake medication or nothing.

Plenty of Seats

The New York Public Library's central research library can seat 1,658 researchers at one time in its 16 reading rooms.

There were only half as many Hong Kong flu cases in the treated group as in the untreated group, he said, and those in the treated group who contracted flu usually had milder cases.

William McKiley was the first U.S. president to ride in an automobile in 1899.

Berry-Good Recipes in Season

By JANET ODELL
The Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

It's fresh strawberry time again. Berries from warmer parts of the country have been coming into the stores for some months. But now we can get our own wonderful Michigan berries. At our house I can foresee a daily demand for shortcake.

If you get a group together and start discussing shortcake, you'll get controversy. Those who have always had biscuit shortcake can't stand spongecake shortcake, and vice versa. We are the biscuit type.

A slightly different version of biscuit shortcake makes a ring to fill with strawberries and whipped cream.

Berry Go-Round Shortcake

1½ cups all-purpose flour ¼ cup sugar
¼ cup sugar 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 teaspoons baking powder* 4 cups (1 qt.) sweetened strawberries, halved or sliced
½ cup shortening ¼ cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten Whipped cream
2 tablespoons melted butter

Spoon flour into dry measuring cup and level off. Pour into mixing bowl. Add ¼ cup sugar, baking powder and salt to flour. Stir to blend. Cut in shortening with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk and egg, stirring only enough to moisten all ingredients.

Turn out onto lightly floured cloth-covered board. Knead gently about 20 times. Roll into an 8x15 inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter. Combine ½ cup sugar and orange rind. Sprinkle mixture on dough.

ROLL AND CUT

Roll up beginning with 8-inch side. Cut into 8 one-inch slices and flatten slightly. Arrange cut-side down around edge of greased 9-inch round pan. Bake at 425 degrees for 15-18 minutes. Remove from pan and cool slightly on rack.

Fill ring with whipped cream. Garnish with sweetened berries. Serve slightly warm, with additional strawberries and whipped cream if desired. Makes 1 shortcake (8 servings).

*If you use self-rising flour omit baking powder and salt.

For a new strawberry dessert, make a pudding that requires no cooking. Furthermore, a pint of berries will serve at least nine people.

Michigan Strawberry Ice Box Pudding

1 cup vanilla wafer crumbs 1½ cups whipping cream 1½ cups sifted 1½ cups toasted coconut confectioners' sugar
¼ cup butter, softened
2 eggs

Butter well a 9" x 9" x 2" cake pan. Spread ½ cup crumbs evenly in the pan. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Spread this mixture on top of crumbs in

pan. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on butter, sugar and egg mixture.

Whip cream until stiff and gently fold on 1 cup of the toasted coconut and the quartered strawberries. Spread whipped cream and strawberry mixture on top of crumbs in pan. Sprinkle remaining ½ cup of toasted coconut on top of this mixture.

Place in refrigerator and chill for 24 hours. Serves 9-12.

GOLD RUSH

In the days of the California gold rush, strawberries were literally worth their weight in gold. But successful miners had gold to fling around in extravagant fashion. They liked to eat and drink well.

Saturday night called for exotic food, champagne and strawberry punch. Here is today's version of that punch.

Saturday Nite Strawberry Punch

2 pints fresh strawberries ½ teaspoon grated orange peel
4 eggs, separated 1 Red food coloring, as desired
¼ cup sugar 2 tablespoons sugar
1 pint (2 cups) half-and-half 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 cup milk
¼ cup Grand Marnier, orange liqueur or orange juice

Puree strawberries in electric blender at high speed; strain through fine sieve to remove seeds. Set puree aside.

In large mixing bowl, beat egg yolks and ½ cup sugar together until light and fluffy. Blend in half-and-half, milk, Grand Marnier, orange peel and pureed strawberries. Add coloring.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add 2 tablespoons sugar gradually and beat until egg whites are slightly glossy. Reserving a few tablespoons of meringue and whipped cream, blend in the remainder thoroughly.

Pour into a 4-quart punch bowl. Spoon reserved meringue and cream on top and swirl gently with a flat knife or spatula. Makes 24 punch cup servings.

Homemade strawberry ice cream. How does that appeal to you? Be it made in the refrigerator, in a modern electric freezer or in an old-fashioned hand cranked freezer, it's described in just one word—good.

In order not to have icy pieces of fruit or irritating seeds in here will give you a dessert so stable it can be thawed and refrozen without loss of flavor; the ice cream recipe given improves on keeping.

California Strawberry Ice Cream

REFRIGERATOR METHOD
2 cups sugar
1 cup water
4 pints fresh strawberries
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
2 cups heavy cream, whipped

In saucepan, combine sugar and water; boil 5 minutes; cool. Puree strawberries in electric blender or force through sieve. Strain to remove seeds. Combine puree, orange and lemon juices with sugar syrup; fold in whipped cream and pour into refrigerator trays; freeze until firm. Makes about 2 quarts.

CHURN METHOD
6 egg yolks
2 cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups scalded milk
1 tablespoon vanilla
¾ cups heavy cream

boiling until temperature reaches 238 degrees. In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites with salt until stiff peaks form. Slowly pour syrup over egg whites, while beating; continue beating until mixture is thick and shiny. Fold whipped cream into strawberry puree. Fold this mixture into egg whites until well blended. Pour into four freezer trays and freeze until firm. Remove from freezer and beat with electric or hand mixer until smooth. Return to trays and freeze until firm. Makes 2 quarts.

Strawberry Cream Ice

REFRIGERATOR METHOD
4 pints fresh strawberries, pureed
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Combine sugar, corn syrup, water and lemon juice in saucepan; stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves. Bring to boil without stirring; continue seconds. Chill thoroughly before serving on salad or cubes of gelatin. For a slightly richer dressing, substitute 1 cup sour cream for the yogurt and 3 tablespoons sugar for the artificial sweetener.

Michigan Berries Rate High, Deserve Care

In southwestern Michigan, means strawberries, picked at dawn and shipped dewy fresh to arrive at your market the next morning.

The Earldawn variety is at the height of its season, ready to "turn on" winter appetites as the piece de resistance of shortcakes, fruit salads, jams, puffs, parfaits or what have you. Buyers at the Benton Harbor Fruit Market, the world's largest cash-to-grower-market, report that texture and color are at their finest this year.

You can enjoy the full, succulent flavor of Michigan strawberries by observing a few simple precautions. The tender fruit should be placed in the refrigerator, covered, in its store container until ready for use.

Wash and cull just before incorporating the fruit into your favorite dish. To avoid losing juice or flavor, remove the green cap last.

Both Earldawns and the later Midways are all-purpose strawberries for cooking, eating fresh, or freezing. To retain the rich, red color, freeze with sugar: a 50 per cent syrup (4 cups of sugar to 4 cups of water) or add one cup of sugar to four cups of fruit. Frozen berries keep for 8 to 12 months.

FRENCH DESSERT

The French have an unusual dessert that is called a sweet omelet. Prepared like a puffy egg omelet, it is filled with fruit, jam, or a sweet sauce. A special version of the French specialty is this Pear Strawberry Dessert Roll.

PEAR STRAWBERRY DESSERT ROLL

1 (1 lb.) can Bartlett pear halves
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup fresh strawberries, sliced
Rusy Jewel Sauce
Powdered sugar

Drain and slice pears, reserving syrup for sauce. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold in egg yolks beaten with sugar, flour and salt.

Melt butter in a 10-inch skillet. Pour in egg mixture, spreading evenly. Cook over medium heat until browned on bottom. Place under broiler a few minutes to set top.

Roll up omelet and turn out on plate, seam side down. Cool. To serve, unroll omelet. Place pear slices and strawberries along center third.

Spoon Rusy Jewel Sauce over fruit and roll omelet. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar.

BRAND IT

Make grill marks with metal skewer, heated over hot burner. Dipping skewer in corn syrup before heating gives better impression. Accompany with remaining dessert sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

ROSY JEWEL SAUCE:

Soften 1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin in pear syrup plus water to measure 1½ cups. Heat until dissolved. Stir in 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons sugar and a few drops red food coloring. If desired, add 2 tablespoons rum or kirsch. Chill several hours until thickened. Before serving, stir to soften slightly.

One, Two, Three

For a quick dessert, fold together thick sweetened applesauce and beaten white of egg; serve with a sauce made from packaged instant vanilla pudding.

SING FOR THEIR SUPPER—The Lennon Sisters, (from left) Peggy, Dianne, Kathy and Janet, say they have been prodded to show business success by a simple desire — earning money. They have been singing together professionally since 1955, when Janet, the youngest, was only 11 years. This fall they will have their own weekly television show.

Singing Sisters to Get Own Series

Show 'Biz' Just Lennons' Job

(EDITOR'S NOTE — They married and have a total of nine children. The Lennon saga began in the summer of 1955 when the family then only eight children, mother and father—lived in Venice, a Los Angeles suburb. Bill Lennon, their father, had sung tenor in a professional quartet, and both parents had a resistance to the charms of show business.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — There may be no business like—show business for a lot of starry-eyed youngsters. But for the Lennon Sisters, a quartet that has literally grown to womanhood before the eyes of the American public, show business is about as glamorous — and just as necessary — as a trip to the neighborhood supermarket.

The singing sisters are part of a musical family of proportions that would make the King Sisters green with envy—there are still seven younger Lennon siblings at home. The four oldest have made the long climb to a television series of their own prodded by a simple desire: to earn money.

Next fall, the four girls will be appearing weekly in an ABC variety hour titled temporarily, it is to be hoped "Jimmy Durante Presents the Lennon Sisters." Their ABC special, the pilot for the projected series, was taped last August and was broadcast on the network May 6.

There are four of them, all four are well known. All four are married and have a total of nine children.

SERVICE CLUB DATES

The Lennon saga began in the summer of 1955 when the family then only eight children, mother and father—lived in Venice, a Los Angeles suburb. Bill Lennon, their father, had sung tenor in a professional quartet, and both parents had a resistance to the charms of show business.

"Our father was a milkman at that time," recalled Peggy, usually the spokeswoman for the family. "We were living—all of us in a two-bedroom house. His boss heard us sing and that led to some dates with local service clubs, like the Lions."

"All we wanted to do was make enough money singing so that we could build a one-room extension on the house."

Lawrence Welk Jr., a schoolmate of Dianne, heard them and arranged an informal audition with his father. They made their national debut on the Welk Christmas show.

SAME AIMS

Their basic aims have never changed next season's series is based on the same motive as their debut.

"It's just a job that we do because we have responsibilities for helping the family," said Peggy, adding that "the family is now really five separate units."

Dianne, now 29, left the group in favor of housewifery when she married a nonprofessional in 1960. She returned four years later when her husband's company was hit by a long strike and has remained with the group since.

The separation from the group's original base, the Welk show, was made with the kind of impersonal calm that characterizes the sister team. The cause of the separation: money.

LENNON SENTIMENT

They acquired their own manager and formed a production company. It is called Mayco Productions, named with typical Lennon sentiment after a sister who died when she was very young.

Three of the girls live within a few minutes drive of each other in or near Venice, and Peggy and her family are established in Studio City in the San Fernando Valley. Peggy is married to one of Welk's musicians.

The girls have been singing together since childhood. Thus they can work out new material with a minimum of trouble.

"None of us reads music, so we just get together and work it out in our heads," she said. "Most of the time, Dianne sings the lead; I sing higher and Kathy lower. Janet works in something else. Actually our voices are all in about the same range so it just works out that way."

PRIVATE LIVES

As soon as the team had a new manager, they started appearing on more of the networks' top variety shows—activity that is largely Hollywood-based and which does not upset the routines of their important private lives. Occasionally, however, they do hit the road, but the girls arrange their schedules carefully so that they'll fly off on a busy and long weekend of appearances, but then will be able to stay home with their families for at least three weeks without interruptions.

Peggy is as sanguine about the success of the forthcoming series as she is about anything else that has happened to the Lennons.

"We found that there was something right about the chemistry of working with Mr. Durante in the special," she said. "So we're happy about that. And the series will help take care of our responsibilities which is all we want."

Experiments this last year indicate that areawide mosquito control at reasonable cost is within sight, through application of insecticide by aircraft.

'Adventist Men Outlive Others'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Statistical science has revealed a group of males with longer life expectancies, up to the age of 70 years, than females of the general population.

That's a startling reversal of the statistical norm that women generally have longer life expectancies than men.

The reversers are male members of the Protestant sect the Seventh-day Adventists (SDAs). Female SDAs have longer life expectancies than the men do, but their advantage is not nearly as great as that of females over males in the general population.

Drs. Frank R. Lemon and Jan W. Kuzma, public health scientists, have been compiling health statistics of 34,217 SDAs since 1958. They have not put the statistics to exacting of "life-table" analysis and compared the SDA life table to that of the general California population.

6 YEARS LONGER

At age 35 the male SDA can statistically expect to live 42.4 more years while the male in the general population is statistically justified in expecting 36.2 more years.

The 35-year-old female in the general population can expect 41.45 more years and the SDA female can expect 45.06 more years. These ratios of life expectancies remain about the same up to 70 years.

Statistical differences between SDAs of California and the general California population reflect differences in ways of life.

SDAs do not smoke cigarettes — or anything else. They are "virtual" abstainers from alcoholic beverages. They are "somewhat less resident in metropolitan counties." They practice "modified vegetarianism to an unmeasured extent" and may have "an above-average interest in health matters."

In their report to the American Medical Association, Lemon and Kuzma said the longer life expectancy of SDA males was one more statistical proof of the "biologic cost of smoking."

U.S.-Backed Project Ends

(EDITOR'S NOTE — A theatrical experiment in Providence, R.I. — they call it Project Discovery — is ending a three-year test. Originally conceived as part of a theatrical-educational program, it's now going out on its own.)

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The big answer to a $2-million theater experiment won't be available for a while.

"We know it has worked fantastically well with school pupils," reports Adrian Hall, "but that immediate success won't mean a thing if the venture doesn't pay off in years to come."

As artistic director of the Trinity Square repertory company, Hall has bossed Project Discovery, which in three years has exposed 120,000 secondary school students to a cross-section of drama from classics to contemporary.

The program was one of three pilot ventures by the federal government into the use of professional theater as an education device. It is now winding up.

TRANSFER LEARNING

"There's a vital need," says Hall, "of transferring what we've learned here to other parts of the country."

The end of grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the U.S. Office of Education poses a major problem of survival for Trinity Square quite apart from any evaluation of the scholastic merits. To Hall, however, they are linked because ticket buyers of the future must be drawn from the teen-age audiences shows free.

That is why he feels the true worth of Project Discovery cannot become apparent for perhaps half a dozen years. By then, "We'll know if any of these students have become real fans."

Hall, a lean, 40-year-old Texan who waxes evangelically eloquent over the potential of regional theater, rues intensely the fact that the general theater-going audience "is actually still only 1 per cent of the population." So much for a culture explosion.

AMATEURS FIRST

Trinity Square started with some enthusiastic amateurs six years ago, enlisted Hall soon afterwards to supervise transition to semipro status. The company went fully professional with the advent of Project Discovery for the 1966-67 season.

Since then the troupe has received $134,000 in direct operating aid from the federal agency, with the balance of funds going for in-school and transportation expenses. Students from all of the state's 39 districts were bused to four plays a season, performed here at the Rhode Island School for Design auditorium.

The other federal programs are the Inner City company, in its second year at Los Angeles, and New Orleans Repertory, which like Providence is now completing the three-year test. Both the other groups were started from scratch. Here it was decided to work the school program into the agenda of an enterprise mainly geared to development of an adult audience.

Hall reports that "The school program has definitely stimulated adult attendance," giving Providence an edge in this regard over New Orleans.

where there has been disappointment over attendance at public performances.

THINKING REVISED

Ending of federal support is prompting a thorough revision of thinking in the business department headed by Barton H. Emmet.

"It's going to be difficult, but I don't want to sound glum," says Emmet, who is budgeting next season's operations at the present $500,000 level.

A voluntary continuation of some of the student program is under discussion with most of the state's school boards, but Emmet expects that phase of activities will be at about one-third the existing scale. The public box-office scale also will probably go up $1 from $4.50, and an effort to up subscriptions above the present 5,000 total is planned.

In several ways next season will be a holding operation. By 1970-71, Trinity Square expects to have completed a major expansion, and moved into a new 1,100-seat facility at Pawtucket, 10 minutes up the highway from present quarters. That should end Trinity's space dilemma.

SKILL SHOWN

In its comparatively short existence, the company has achieved an impressively high technical skill and shown determination to avoid programming monotony.

As Hall puts it: "I feel very strongly that a theater must lead the way artistically. We

Petula Learns Sticky Lyric After Hypnotist 'Necks' Her

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — "He would sit there for hours stroking my neck," singer Petula Clark said.

"For four days he stroked my neck."

This intriguing conversation concerned an Italian hypnotist endeavoring to put her in a trance so she could memorize a difficult French lyric. Miss Clark, the star of a remake of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," told all about it here.

In the presence of her husband Claude Wolfe who enjoyed the tale.

"I would sit there giggling, thinking it was the funniest thing because I wasn't in a trance. I had decided to do it because I was desperate to learn the lyric. The fifth day, he said, 'You are now in a trance.'"

"I couldn't feel anything different except I was more relaxed. He said, 'Now you study the song for half an hour and you'll have it for the rest of your life.' Half an hour later I had it."

The hypnotist Roberto Rizzelli has since got publicity about controlling her life through hypnosis which she denies but she said he did teach her some tricks of self-hypnosis which assisted her in difficult emotional scenes in the movie.

"How do you self-hypnotize?" we asked. "Do you stroke your own neck"

"Neck-stroking has nothing to do with it. I guess every actor goes through that. I had one Stanislaus teacher who made me imagine myself a milk bottle on a doorstep to convey loneliness. He had me sitting on a doorstep in the middle of the night."

"By the way," we thought to ask, "how much did the hypnotist charge you?"

"I don't remember," she said.

"You really were in a trance," we mentioned.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

Joe Namath's Bachelors III will add a "security man," a Namath aide says that if any undesirable enter, the security man "will explain to them that their names will go on a report which may go to the D.A. and Commissioner Rozelle."

Peter Fonda (now in "Easy Rider") will co-star with sister Jane in "Spirits of the Dead" . . . Robert Hooks said he'll produce and star in the film of the off-Broadway hit, "Ceremonies in Dark Old Men."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A prom youngster tipped his waiter $2, and saw his friend leave a $5 tip. "Boy," he said, "your father's a bigger spender than my father."

Kennedy Staking Out Position as Nixon's Opposition Voice

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after the assassination of his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is emerging as the chief spokesman of President Nixon's Democratic opposition in Congress.

His brief but pungent Senate speech in May, attacking the "senseless and irresponsible" battle in Dong Ap Bia—"Hamburger Hill"—marked the beginning of a series of blasts at U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen ultimately tangled on the Senate floor over Kennedy's criticism of military strategy in Vietnam—Mansfield defending the right of any senator to criticize, Dirksen attacking the wisdom of home-front sniping at battlefield decisions.

"I shall speak out again and again, and speak freely," Kennedy declared in a commencement address in which he attacked South Vietnam's President Thieu. "For this matter is too vital for partisanship, too tragic for silence."

STAKING A POSITION

Increasingly, Kennedy has been staking out a position to the left of Nixon. After several relatively quiet months learning the ropes of his new Senate position—assistant majority leader—he has begun to speak out more boldly, on a wider range of issues.

On the same day that he attacked the Hamburger Hill strategy, Kennedy took on the oil lobby by denouncing "all this scare language about national security" and urging a relaxation of oil import restrictions.

Even as Apollo 16 astronauts were heading for a close-up look of the moon, Kennedy nettled the space establishment with a speech calling for a cutback on space exploration after the current series of moon probes, so that money can be diverted to hunger, housing, and environmental problems on earth.

MARJORIE MONOHAN

She Worked 15 Years for WSU Degree

DETROIT (AP) — Although it took her 15 years, a Detroit mother of five who never attended high school has been graduated from Wayne State University.

Marjorie Monohan received her diploma Monday night at the school's annual spring commencement. She enrolled in a degree program at the school in 1954 and said she was prepared to spend 25 years earning a degree.

Mrs. Monohan, 59, completed requirements for her bachelor's degree with a 3.5 A—average when she was elected to the Wayne State chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the national academic honorary fraternity.

"This is my very first graduation," said Mrs. Monohan, who quit school after the eighth grade to go to work. "I didn't graduate from high school, so this is my first chance to wear a cap and gown."

She said she would like to substitute teach.

Locusts Ebbing

ROME (AP) — The desert locust plague which threatened crops on the shores of the Red Sea and in East Africa has ebbed, a senior official of the U.S. Food and Agricultural Organization says.

Kennedy also has attacked what he termed the corruption of the Saigon government, called for a more generous policy toward Communist China, attacked racial discrimination in employment, demanded cuts in defense spending and, one memorable day on the Senate floor stunned Dirksen by quietly accused him of demagoguery. FAMILY SPOKESMAN

He merely grinned and looked delighted when Dirksen, shaking his tangled locks and jabbing a finger under Kennedy's chin, thundered, "The senator from Massachusetts ... doesn't know what he's talking about! That's the long and short of it!" Kennedy also has been the family's chief spokesman, when it chooses to be heard. To him fell the task of composing the moving letter to California authorities, urging mercy for the assassin of his brother.

"He would not have wanted his death to be a cause for the taking of another life," Kennedy wrote on the family's behalf. It was in vain. Sirhan Sirhan was condemned to die.

Anyone trying to dope out what Edward M. Kennedy is going to do in 1972 must cope with a totally unpredictable decision-making process.

On May 11, in a candid discussion of his future, he said: "So where do you go? Does it mean anything for me to run out and carry a sign and march with the grape pickers?

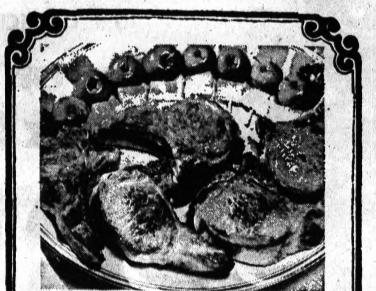

Is that helpful? I'm not so sure."

The following Saturday, on a last-minute impulse, Kennedy hopped a plane for California and marched with the striking grape pickers at Caladonia. Robert Kennedy, he reminded them, had called their leader, Cesar Chavez, "my brother," and Edward Kennedy said, "The brother of my brother is my brother."

The memory of Robert Kennedy, and his duty to that memory, is much on his mind as he contemplates the future.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Penicillin Can Be Taken for Long Period

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D., daily for five years after an attack of rheumatic fever but for most infections prolonged use is not necessary.

Q—Can penicillin be taken for a long period?
A—Yes. It is sometimes given.

Q—What effect could a penicillin shot have on a person who was allergic to the drug?

A—The effects vary from a mild case of hives to severe shock. The reaction is less severe when the drug is given by mouth than when it is injected into the muscles.

Q—What is the cause and appearance of acne rosea? Can it be cured?
A—The cause of this disease, also called rosacea, is unknown but it is often aggravated by emotional upsets, exposure to heat or cold, alcohol, spices and drinks that contain caffeine. It is characterized by redness of the center of the face which may be associated with oily skin and pimples. Most victims outgrow it but, meanwhile, the best treatment is strict avoidance of aggravating factors and the application of an astringent lotion that contains sulfur. For severe cases, a skin specialist may use electrolysis to destroy the dilated blood vessels in the skin.

A Junior Editors Quiz About BLUE SKY

QUESTION: Why is the sky blue?

ANSWER: The sky is light because the earth is covered with a dense layer of atmosphere in which are countless specks of dust and other tiny particles. The sunlight glancing off from these specks makes the sky look light.

The sky may appear green; it often does when the warm sunset hues change its color. It is blue at other times on sunny days because the blue rays are flashing off from the dust particles, not changed by the sunset colors.

The white light from the sun holds within it all the rainbow colors. The particles in the air bend or refract this light and so scatter the rainbow colors.

Blue is the color which, because of its short wave length, is more widely scattered than the other colors. This is why the sky looks blue on a sunny day. This is also the reason why Phyllis notices that the distant mountains look so blue. She is looking through layers of bluish air.

This air has changed the color of the distant leaves on the mountain from bright green to a light, distant blue green. The farther away the mountains are, the bluer they look.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Year-book if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Here's a Real Good Tip: Dime, Wine and Cadillac

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—She had only served the man a salad and a glass of milk, but waitress Esmeralda Lucero received a tip a dime, a case of wine, and a 1969 dark green Cadillac.

"Here are my keys," the man told Miss Lucero as he paid his check. "Call me a cab. I'm going to Phoenix."

After the dark-eyed lass managed to close her gaping mouth, she called her father and informed him of the good fortune. Legally minded, the girl's father called the state patrol, who intercepted the man at the Pueblo airport.

He identified himself as James P. Riel of Parkersburg, W.Va., and told the patrolman he gave the 17-year-old girl the car because "she was nice."

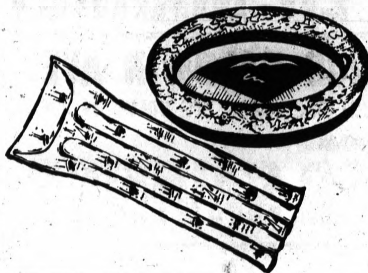

The patrolman confirmed the ownership and called in a notary public, who made the transaction legal.

Miss Lauer Tops WPGA

Teen-Ager Captures Second Event

Teen-ager Bonnie Lauer has proven she's no green horn at the game of golf.

Miss Lauer, 18, of Edgewood, recent graduate of Berkeley High School, fashioned a 39-41-80 yesterday at Flint Golf Club to capture her second weekly title of the season in the Women's District Golf Association activity.

The 80 enabled Miss Lauer to slip in ahead of four other players.

Sharing the runnerup spot were Sue Barie of Indianapolis, Mrs. Paul Keller Jr. of Oakland Hills, Mrs. John Hume of Birmingham and Mrs. Bruce Hilkene of Indianapolis.

Collegiate Title for Pacific Crew in Sailing Event

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Collegiate sailing crews of the Pacific Coast region made it three-in-a-row as they sailed away with the Walter O. Wood Trophy.

However, a sudden Tuesday afternoon calm prevented the start of the individual team competition in the National Intercollegiate Yachting Championships.

The individual teams, led by defending champion San Diego State, were to begin sailing Wednesday for the Morse Trophy.

Bruce Carlson twirled two-hit, seven-strikeout baseball Tuesday night and Waterford Mott handed newcomer Madison Heights a 7-0 whitewashing to drop it from the District 18, American League baseball league lead.

Jim Lee's two-run single started the Mott scoring parade. Bill Poe also had a pair of runs batted in with two hits, and Bob Marshoff rapped a single and double.

The win ties Mott with Madison Heights for fourth place with a 1-1 mark. The only teams in the 11-team league without a loss after four playing dates are Pontiac and Berkeley, both still awaiting their first decisions, and they play each other tonight at Wisner Field.

Mott Wins 1st in Legion Loop

Boston (UPI) — The Boston Bruins will play 11 exhibitions before the 1969-70 National Hockey League opens, General Manager Milt Schmidt said today.

Rivals now teammates — Bill Poe (left) who pitched and played the infield this spring for Mott High School, and Bruce Carlson, whose mound work was a big factor in Waterford Township High School's 24-victory season, now are teammates on the Mott American Legion team. Last night Poe backed Carlson's shutout hurling with two hits and two runs batted in and Mott registered a win over Madison Heights. Both teams are new in the league.

The Rev. Robert Shelton of Drayton Plains carded a hole-in-one yesterday at Bald Mountain. Rev. Shelton used a 9-iron on the 110-yard, par three No. 4 hole and ended with a nine hole score of 34.

Two-Run 8th Puts Indians Past Boston

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ken Harrelson singled home the winning run in the eighth inning to give the Cleveland Indians a 4-3 victory over Boston Tuesday night.

Harrelson's blow scored Dave Nelson, running for Richie Scheinblum who led off with a single, after Nelson advanced on a wild pitch and an infield out. Harrelson then scored on Cap Peterson's sacrifice fly.

TALL PROBLEM — Russia's 7-foot-2-inch Vladimir Andreyev proved too much for the rookies of the Denver Rockies in an exhibition game in Denver, Colo., last night. The U.S.S.R. National team won the game, 7-2. Watching Andreyev push in this shot are Roy Hinton (40) of Central Ohio State and Greg Wittman (42) of Western Colorado. The Russians are on an eight-game tour of the United States.

320 Seniors in Tournament

Age was no handicap for some 320 of Michigan's seniors who kicked up their heels at Father Time yesterday in the first round of their two-day 39th annual Spring Golf Tournament at Port Huron.

At the head of the pack as they opened this morning in the second round were lefty George Haggarty of Detroit and Angelo V. Lotti of Birmingham.

Several area players were on top or near the top in their respective divisions. The tournament is divided into six classes according to age.

Haggarty, (65-69 age group) former national champion, managed a 38-36 for his 74, while Lotti, playing in the 55-59 age group, reversed that with a 36-38. Both played their first round on Black River. Today, they were scheduled to tour the final 18 holes at Port Huron Golf Club.

TOURNEY'S OLDEST

The oldest player in the field, W. Custer Hammond, 80, of Kalamazoo, carded a respectable 104 and closed with a net 78.

In Class A (75-79), C. J. Farley of Rockford carded an 81 for a three-stroke lead in the class, while the threesome of J. A. O'Brien of Plum Hollow, H. C. Kline, and R. J. Rigney, all of Detroit, were tied at 82.

Golf 'King' Puts Second Title on Line

Invitational golf king Chuck Byrne of Birmingham lost one of his crowns this past week and he now has the task of defending still another against some formidable opposition.

Byrne teamed with Glenn Johnson of Grosse Ile to win the Red Turf title last year. Johnson couldn't make it this year, so Byrne and Joe Brissan, also of Grosse Ile, will be battling the field when the tournament opens Thursday.

EARLIER VICTORY

The Byrne-Brissan team isn't new, however. The pair put their shots together back in 1963 to claim the championship.

It'll be the 28th renewal of the popular invitational that began back in 1938 and has been played annually except for the three years when the Motor City Open was held there.

Among the opposition Byrne and Brissan are likely to face is the team of Mike Jackson and Bud Badger, both of Red Run, who took the runner-up spot last week in the Pine Lake Invitational.

The tournament runs through Sunday.

Namath Agrees to Meet Rozelle

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, the controversial New York Jets quarterback, has agreed to meet with pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle but whether there'll be a meeting of the minds remains to be seen.

The meeting will probably be next week. Rozelle is fishing off the coast of lower California and Namath will be out of town until next week, too.

Namath and Jets President Phil Iselin had their first face-to-face meeting Tuesday since June 1, when Namath announced he was quitting football rather than follow Rozelle's orders to give up his half-interest in a Manhattan restaurant allegedly frequented by undesirable characters.

Angels' Hurler Shows Twins Better Form

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Andy Messersmith was determined to last past the first inning Tuesday night against the Minnesota Twins.

The last time Messersmith started against the Twins, he gave up five runs and failed to retire a man in the first as the Angels fell 12-1.

But it was Messersmith's turn to show their artillery Tuesday night.

The 23-year-old Messersmith pitched a three-hitter and the Angels bombed five Twins pitchers for 13 hits and a 1-1 victory.

Service Stars Pass AAU Test

Seven Earn Berths in National Event

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Seven service athletes qualified for the National Amateur Athletic Union track meet at the Interservice Track and Field meet at Sheppard Air Force Base Tuesday.

Athletes from the Army, Navy Air Force and Marines are participating in the two-day meet, seeking a berth in the AAU meet.

James Kemp of the Army, a member of the 1968 Olympic team, led the qualifiers with a 46.1 clocking in the 440-yard dash.

Other qualifiers included: Donald Stanley, Donald Army, 191 feet, 9 1/4 inches; 440-yard hurdles—David Adkins, Army, 50.6; Jeff Vanderstock, Army, and Valgene Scherling, Navy.

High jump—John Gilder, Air Force, both 6 feet 11 inches. The 110-yard dash and the mile will highlight today's session. Mel Pender, the Olympic gold medal winner, will try to qualify in the 100 and Olympic veteran Bob Day will run in the 1-mile.

Detroit Hank Loses Decision

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Mark Tessman scored a unanimous decision over Henry Hank of Detroit in a 10-round lightweight bout Tuesday night before 2,500 home town fans.

Tessman defeated Hank with a jab and three cat-quick combinations.

Hank spent most of the bout fighting the first and last 30 seconds of each round. The 34-year-old astrologist did not match Tessman's speed and reflexes.

Defensive Strategy Misfires as Cubs Drop Pair to Bucs

By the Associated Press
Four outfielders didn't keep Richie Allen from going for the home run, and three outfielders certainly weren't going to stop Hank Aaron from doing the same. So how could the Chicago Cubs expect to keep Richie Heber from hitting singles?

The Cubs tried the commonplace defense of four infielders and three outfielders against Heber and failed miserably—twice—when the Pittsburgh rookie singled in the winning runs in both games Tuesday as the Pirates swept the Cubs 1-0 and 4-3 in a two-night twinnin'.

The New York Mets were most imaginative with four outfielders against Allen in the ninth inning of their opener against Philadelphia. And while the strategy had little effect on Allen, he did strike out going for a tying homer and the Mets won 1-0, and then dropped the nightcap 6-3.

HOMER DOES IT
Houston probably wishes it had tried the unusual defense against Aaron. It couldn't have done any harm because Aaron hammered a homer in the ninth inning to give Atlanta a 6-5 victory over the Astros.

In other National League games, nothing could stop Los Angeles as the Dodgers swept San Diego 7-3 and 11-0, Juan Marichal pitched San Francisco by Cincinnati 4-0 and St. Louis tripped Montreal 2-0 behind Steve Carlton.

Heber, one of the surprises of the league with a .319 average, has only three home runs among his 67 hits, but singles were enough to drop the West Division leading Cubs twice.

Big Hits Fly in Slowpitch Softball Play

Art & Lil's walloped Valwood Realty, 15-0, yesterday in the city industrial slowpitch Morning League.

In other action, the L. J. scored three runs in the seventh inning in a come-from-behind effort to nip the Hornet's, 7 to 5, and Tucker Realty scored seven runs off seven hits in the second and coasted to an 18-7 win over the Tigers.

The Gophers trimmed Seaman's, 10-3; the Rejects outgassed the Green Dragons, 11-5; and four runs in the final inning handed the Filthy Few an 11-4 conquest of Perry Drugs.

Consecutive doubles by Hugh Sizemore, Santa Quintana and Dennis McLaughlin in the last inning enabled the Hornets to overcome the L. J.'s; while Mike Howard and Mike Jostock had clutch two-baggers in the Filthy Few's winning rally.

Charles Cardwell topped a 6-4 base five straight times, scored three runs and drove in four runs for Tucker. Tom Smarch had a home run and scored three times while reaching base five times in a row during Art & Lil's victory.

Denny Kain homered twice and had five RBIs in the Rejects' win, while Bob McGuire's two-bagger capped a decisive five-run spree for the Gophers in their fifth inning.

The City Industrial Slowpitch League will begin its third round of play using the second round schedule but reversing playing sites tomorrow morning.

Lombardi Praises Redskins' Speed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Coach Vince Lombardi said Tuesday he is impressed with the overall speed of the Washington Redskins.

"They have more speed...offensively and defensively...than any team I've coached," Lombardi said after the National Football League Redskins completed the second day of a special pre-training camp orientation.

"I'm not saying we couldn't put 11 men on the field at Green Bay that was as fast as these, but I'm saying the overall speed is faster than other teams."

After Matty Alou, the league's leading hitter, doubled in the ally to fill the bases and Heber delivered another single to the seventh inning of the opener against loser Ferguson Jenkins, break a 3-3 deadlock.

Heber decided the contest with a run-scoring single.

Bob Veale, 4-7, relieved by Bruce Dal Canton in the eighth, got the victory.

Then, in the ninth inning of the nightcap, Heber rubbed salt in the Chicago wound when 6-5, of the Mets, proved more effective than Manager Gil Hodges' strategy as he stopped the Phillies' five-game winning streak with a two-hitter. When Hodges chose to move second baseman Al Weis into the outfield with two out and none on in the ninth and the slugging Allen at bat, Gentry responded by striking out Allen on three pitches.

Don Kessinger, Willie Smith and Billy Williams in the third.

Another rookie, Gary Gentry, Ken Boswell's single, a balk

Oddly, Allen homered his first time up in the second game and rookie Larry Hise hit two behind Grant Jackson's six-hitter as the Phillis salvaged a split.

ANOTHER HOMER
Houston, in contrast, stuck with three outfielders and Aaron led off the ninth of a 5-5 game with his 18th homer for it (a Braves' fourth consecutive victory.

Cincinnati nine straight times since Sept. 22, 1965, stopped the Reds on five hits for his third shutout.

Carlton, 7-4, yielded only four hits before Horner relieved with one out in the eighth and preserved his shutout and the Cardinals' triumph. Curt Flood doubled in both runs in the seventh inning.

Marichal, 8-2, who has beaten

STORMS-ANGLE IN PUTTING

IN DETERMINING THE BEST VANTAGE POINT FOR STUDYING PUTTS, CONSIDER WHICH ANGLE PRESENTS AN OVERALL PICTURE OF THE LINE TO BE TRAVELED.

LYING FLAT ON THE GROUND, GETTING A "WORM'S-EYE" VIEW, MAY SEEM LIKE THE BEST IDEA, BUT IT MAY HIDE MORE THAN IT REVEALS. YOU SEE ONLY WHAT'S IN THE FOREGROUND. STAND TOO HIGH, OR ERECT, AND YOU MAY SEE LITTLE OR NOTHING.

I FIND THAT SQUATTING AFFORDS THE BEST OVERALL VANTAGE POSITION.

Conservation Clubs Hold Annual Confab

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An error almost cost the Toledo Mud Hens the International League lead Tuesday night as three Syracuse runs which snapped a 5-5 deadlock at Toledo in the top of the 10th inning were unearned.

A wild throw by reliever Gary Taylor with two men on base and one out let in the tie-breaking run and Steve Demeter's single and a wild pitch accounted for two more in an 8-5 loss to the Chiefs.

But the best second-place Louisville could was split with Richmond, winning the first game 8-4 and losing the second 4-3, and the Colonels picked up just half a game and now trail by three percentage points.

In other action, the Rochester Red Wings whipped Buffalo 7-3 and Columbus romped over Tidewater 7-1.

Gaines served for a time as a field representative for MUCC and is living in retirement in Grand Rapids now, still a militant conservationist.

The organization is a congress of local clubs, mostly sportsmen's groups, but including also 42 associated conservation organizations such as the Michigan Parks Association, Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, the Michigan and general local Audubon Societies, Ducks Unlimited; the Lower Michigan Paddling Council, Michigan Association of Conservation Ecologists, Michigan Field Archery League, Michigan Family Camping Association, Michigan Federation of Humane Societies and the National Campers and Hikers Association. There's even a chapter in Windsor, Ont.

This is only a partial list, but it indicates the scope of participation covered by the statewide congress of conservationists.

Run Production Is Heavy in City Softball Activity

There were hits flying all over the city softball diamonds Tuesday night and the runs crossed the plate at nearly as rapid a pace.

The top production came at Bob and Ken's Bar upended the First Christian Church team, 19-7, with each team collecting 16 hits. Bill Shepard of the winners and the churchmen's Dave Book each posted four safeties.

Also amassing 32 hits were Ducky's Bar and Reliable Transmission and the barnmen registered a 12-9 upset win, hanging on after taking 8-1 lead in the first three innings.

UNDEFEATED

Con's Clothes, the only unbeaten team in any of the city's four leagues, escaped with a scare by cracking eight home runs over Beaudette Park's close fences and beating Johnson and Anderson, 13-9, as the two clubs totaled 25 hits.

There were 25 hits as Pontiac Pistori ripped the Press B unit, 16-4. John Day hit for the cycle—a single, double, triple and two-run home run—in the winners' 17-hit onslaught.

In the only "pitcher's battle" the Pontiac Police scored four times—Walt Patton's home providing the tying and go-ahead tallies—in the sixth inning for a 5-3 victory over the Eagles Lodge No. 1230.

Morgans in July Show

DETROIT — Michigan's 17th All-Morgan Show, featuring more than 300 of the finest park and pleasure Morgan horses in the country, will be July 12-13 in the Michigan State Fair Coliseum in Detroit.

Governor William G. Milliken has proclaimed that weekend as Justin Morgan Horse Days in Michigan.

This spectacular show will have 79 classes and $2,100 in prize money for 600 participants ranging in age from three to 60 years. Besides Michigan, entries will come from a dozen States and Canada.

Show times are 8 a.m., 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday, and Sunday at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

ALL PHASES

"At the Michigan All-Morgan Show, the public can see the Morgan horse in every possible competition including in-hand, English, western and fine harness," commented David Barton of South Lyon, president of the Justin Morgan Horse Association.

The Morgan is the first American bred horse and was developed in this country in 1789 by Justin Morgan, a Vermont school teacher-farmer, from whom the breed derives its name.

For the Morgan Show, Ed Earhart of Northville and Basil Hines of Novi are co-chairmen. Hudson Ticket Centers, Grinnells, and through the General Motors Girl's Club.

Good Fishing Along Shores of Michigan

As soon as winds calm down to let them back on the big waters, fishermen striking out for Lake Michigan along this state's western shores should find action on salmon and lake trout much to their liking all the way from South Haven north to at least Pentwater.

Latest creel censuses by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and netting studies aboard its survey boat, the "Steelhead," show that large concentrations of coho, chinook, and lake trout are feeding close to shore in the South Haven-to-Pentwater area.

Best areas for catching coho are 1/4 to 3/4 of a mile off South Haven, 1/2 to 1 mile out from Grand Haven, and 1/2 to 1 1/2 miles off Muskegon—in that order. All of the fish landed in these waters recently have been taken fairly shallow (20 to 30 feet) by anglers using 4 to 6 pound lead weights. Fluorescent baits seem to be producing the best results on coho.

Argonauts Continue Grid Camp Boycott

TORONTO (AP)—Veteran members of the Toronto Argonauts continued to boycott pre-season training camp for the second day Tuesday while the Canadian Football League club's president began to talk of finding a method to replace the unhappy players.

The players are boycotting training camp over the refusal of the club to agree to pay $40 a week for each member of the team who makes the final roster, in addition to $60 a week expense money during the training season.

Slowpitch '10' Drops First in Loop Play

The Walled Lake Industrial Slowpitch softball circuit has no undefeated teams today: Carpentry Engineering (3-4) handed Imperial Molded Products (8-1) its initial defeat last night when seven runs in the seventh inning sewed up a 13-8 victory.

Penny Manufacturing dominated Mobil Temp, 16-0, in the other contest for the league's biggest shutout of the campaign. A six-run opening inning helped Penny reach the 8-2 level in the "B" league play

The New Hampshire Legislature has voted to name a mountain after the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower. A bill changing the name of Mt. Pleasant in the White Mountains to Mt. Eisenhower was adopted yesterday by the House. It had already passed the Senate. Peaks in New Hampshire already named after presidents include Mt. Washington, Adams, Monroe, Jackson and Jefferson.

Bandleader Kenton Sued for Divorce

Bandleader Stan Kenton's wife, Jo Ann, has sued him for divorce and asks the court to prevent Kenton from molesting her.

Mrs. Kenton, 28, said her 37-year-old husband is living at Synanon House, a private drug rehabilitation center in nearby Santa Monica. She told the court Tuesday she feared for her life.

The Kentons were married 23 months ago in Las Vegas, Nev. They have no children.

In her suit, Mrs. Kenton asks the court to award her all community property, estimated at $225,000.

Communications Workers Reelect Head

Joseph A. Beirne has been reelected president of the Communications Workers of America, a union he has headed since 1943.

Returns announced yesterday in Kansas City, Mo., gave him votes representing 279,417 CWA members against 70,073 for Phil C. Padgett, president of Local 3290 in Atlanta, Ga.

Judy Garland's Ex-Husband Found Guilty

Michael Sidney Luft, Judy Garland's former husband, has been convicted by a jury in Freehold, N.J., of passing a $2,630 bad check.

The jury acquitted Luft yesterday of a second charge of passing a $1,000 bad check.

Luft, who is still Miss Garland's business manager, wrote the checks to a hotel in Asbury Park last June to cover her bill while she was performing at a nearby theater. He said, "I thought I had the money in the bank, but apparently I was overdrawn."

Luft, who said he would appeal, faces a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Lana's Husband Arrested on Grand Theft Warrant

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Lana Turner's seventh husband was jailed early today, police said. He later was released on bond and said a grand theft warrant against him was a mistake.

Earlier in the night the husband, Ronald Dante, 49, said a gunman fired five shots at him as he parked his car in an underground garage at his apartment house. Richard Walls, a Los Angeles county sheriff's investigator, said the warrant came to light after the gunfire was reported, but the incidents were otherwise unrelated.

Walls said Dante was arrested at his suite in the Sheraton Universal Hotel. Miss Turner, also 49, and her daughter Cheryl, 25, were also in the suite, deputies said.

Dante, a nightclub hypnotist, posted $12,500 bail and was released after spending several hours in the West Hollywood jail.

The left front window and a side mirror of his car were shattered. Deputies found five spent cartridges behind a garage piled 15 feet from Dante's car.

Miss Turner, who was married to Dante last May 8 in Las Vegas, Nev., was at her Beverly Hills home at the time.

Bar Hearings in Misconduct Case Open

DETROIT (AP) — A grievance committee of the State Bar of Michigan heard public testimony Tuesday on professional misconduct charges filed by a real estate broker against a Detroit attorney.

It was one of the first open hearings to be conducted under new rules adopted by the State Supreme Court.

The charges were leveled by Robert Alder, a real estate dealer, against William Grey, who said he retired from law practice a couple of years ago.

Alder accused Grey of keeping part of the 10 per cent commission on the $153,400 sale of property owned by Grey.

Alder said the commission should have been split two ways, between himself and another real estate broker, rather than three ways with Grey included.

"We thought it not only immoral but probably illegal for an owner to retain a portion of the commission," Alder said.

Hoover Warns Union on SDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has warned the International Association of Machinists union to resist a "sinister and dangerous" plan by the Students for a Democratic Society to infiltrate organized labor this summer. In an article in the union's weekly newspaper, Hoover asked the membership not to be "fooled by their diabolical double-talk, their attempts to paint a distorted picture of this country. The SDS previously announced plans for a summer 'work-in' to win rank-and-file labor support for its goals.

COURT VS. CONGRESS?

HARVARD Prof. Robert G. McCloskey expressed the fear yesterday that the U.S. Supreme Court is "on a collision course with the Congress" by its decision in the Congressmen Adam Clayton Powell case. McCloskey is an authority on courts and government who lectures at the John F. Kennedy School of Government.

McCloskey said the Supreme Court is "on a collision course with the Congress" by its decision in the Congressmen Adam Clayton Powell case. McCloskey is an authority on courts and government who lectures at the John F. Kennedy School of Government.

A Look at TV

'Public Is Final Censor'

By RICK DUBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television censorship is the subject of the latest issue of the Journal of the Producers Guild of America. One of the articles, written by novelist-producer David Levy, a former NBC vice president, deals with censorship, politics and the new comedy.

A moderate man, Levy, DUBROW notes that "What today's generation finds refreshing, challenging, and irreverent these days on television, an older one sometimes finds sophomoric, cliché, old hat."

Mentioning such shows as "Laugh-In" and the canceled Smodders Brothers hour, Levy points out the vast political and social satire that has gone before. "The debunking of pretentious quacks and the deflation of pompous Colonel Blimps; the pointed ridicule and sharp jibes that reveal the sometime amorality, venality, and complicity of elements of big business, of Congress, of the professions."

Levy recalls how "CBS, in a shrewd analysis of its Sunday night schedule, slotted the Smodders Brothers opposite 'Bonanza,' a program in which the virtues and the moralities of traditional America have been symbolized by the character and homilies of the Cartrights for nine years ... their success helped prompt NBC to launch 'Laugh-In' against the virtues of the morality of middle-class life, Lucille Ball."

BROTHERS SMOTHERED
Levy goes on: "The decline of the Smodders Brothers may be, in part, due not only to the formidable competition of 'Bonanza' but also the emergence of 'Laugh-In,' which managed to cover everything the brothers had to offer plus a lot more by the flashy style of its presentation."

Not only does the speed of its form allow for much more comedic material, but that very speed itself guarantees more freedom, since something that can flash by in seconds can be more acceptable to censors and public than the same subject handled in a longer routine."

"The public has the final say, not the comedians, not the censors, not even the targets. The public, by its choice of viewing, sends its own chilling—or warming—message."

In 1967, her proclivity for minikits brought out the ire in one grandmother who told her she should get a good kick in the behind for wearing such a short, skirt—and then provided it.

She also was one of eight teachers in the school district who had refused to pay $100 to the Taylor Federation of Teachers because of an agency shop clause in the union's contract.

Ocean covered a vast part of southern Maryland in the mid-Miocene, 15 to 18 million years ago, the National Geographic Society reports.

Her firing Monday night was a routine procedure by the school's board of education since the young teacher failed to request a hearing within 45 days of formal charges being lodged against her.

Miss Palmer, whose four years at the school have not been quiet ones, said she had no plans to appeal her dismissal.

Rocky's Trip Gets Tangled With Local Politics in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (U) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's visit to Montevideo this week is becoming deeply enmeshed in the Uruguayan government's campaign to impose unpopular "hard line" economic policies, despite violent opposition from students and labor.

The purpose of the visit—a fact-finding mission for President Nixon—has been shunted into the background. Instead, the New York governor's stay has become a test of President Jorge Pacheco Areco's ability to maintain order.

"Mr. Rockefeller's security will be assured," a presidential spokesman says.

Rockefeller is due Friday from Asuncion, Paraguay.

ARMY ALERT

The army may be called out to prevent or to minimize the violence that has been promised by the National Labor Convention and the University Student Center.

Student sources say a giant demonstration is planned near Rockefeller's downtown hotel Friday night in memory of Liber Arce, a student killed by police during a demonstration last August.

The National Labor Convention, with 100,000 members, paralyzed the country last week with a 24-hour strike to protest the government's new regulations for meat workers.

The strike did not convince the president to change his mind about canceling the meat bonuses received daily for years by workers in packing plants. In place of the daily allowance of choice cuts, the government has granted a slight wage increase.

TRADE DIFFICULTY

The meat allotment was one of the many social welfare practices that made this country for years one of the world's most tranquil and progressive nations. But difficulty in selling meat, wool and mutton, the nation's major export items, started Uruguay early in the decade on the road to economic crisis.

Most meat workers have been on strike for two months, forcing a reduction in exports. In other fields, there have been short strikes to protest the government wage freeze, or Pacheco Areco's efforts to reduce the federal payroll, or failures to meet payroll.

There has been scattered violence with various strikes.

Pacheco Areco, an ex-boxer and newspaperman, came through one of his severest tests last month when Congress censured one of the presidential ministers responsible for economic planning. Some of Pacheco Areco's Colorado party associates joined in the censure vote. The minister was forced to resign, but Pacheco Areco publicly refused to accept the censure vote and to change his economic policies.

Church in Nixon Hometown Offers Haven From Draft, Military

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — With blessings from its mostly young congregation, the Unitarian church in this town President Nixon once called home is offering sanctuary to draft resisters and military deserters.

They are helped by a support group of young people, ranging in number from 8 to 20, who have formed a peace commune at the church.

Twice the old gray structure has given "symbolic sanctuary" to AWOL Marines who were arrested and now face courts-martial. Trustees voted last month to continue the three-month-old refuge and approved admission of another Marine.

The pastor is the Rev. Richard Weston, 33, long-haired and bearded. "The purpose of coming here is not to avoid arrest," he says. "The idea is to confront the government and make a public statement. The persons who choose sanctuary sacrifice anonymity to speak out against the Vietnam war."

PRESIDENT'S HOME
Nixon lived in this peaceful

Los Angeles suburb as a boy, but was not a Unitarian. He comes from a family of Quakers.

The national board of the Unitarian Church urged last year that its 1,100 member churches and fellowships provide sanctuary to a person being arrested while having a forum for his dissenting statement. But fewer than a dozen churches have granted "symbolic sanctuary."

Rev. Weston says a small minority of his congregation opposes the amount of money and church resources that are expended for antiwar dissenters. However, he says it is doubtful whether there are any objections to the principle of non-violent protest among his flock.

Whittier church members—300 registered, 120 active, most between 25 and 35—voted approval by 4 to 1 of "the rights of conscience and the freedom to dissent." They appointed a trustee sanctuary committee "to consider requests."

POSITIONS EVALUATED
Graham White, 40, chairman of the 20-member panel, says it decides whether a young man should get sanctuary by evaluating "whether we think this is really a conscience position with him and whether we feel he is sufficiently mature to be responsible for a decision of this magnitude."

When an applicant is accepted and moves in, Rev. Weston immediately informs military authorities.

Legal aspects remain hazy.

Two young men stayed seven weeks before military officers entered the church.

A spokesman for the U.S. Marine Corps at Camp Pendleton insisted that a Marine in sanctuary "becomes a matter for the civilian police. Crimes committed off base are no longer military concern."

CONFLICTING VIEW
However, Robert Brosio, chief of the criminal division of the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles, said that, applies only to nonmilitary men—draft resisters. Of deserters, he said, "It is the responsibility of the Marines to apprehend them."

Brosio added that his office ordered one draft resister arrested in a church. "If you're asking whether we recognize any right of sanctuary," he said, "the answer is no."

The "support group" living at the church is made up mostly of young college students—boys and girls with long hair, bare feet and peace symbol pins.

ALMA, Wis. (AP) — An ugly film of oil spread from a wrecked 5 miles of the scenic upper Mississippi River today. Minnesota and Wisconsin conservationists wring their hands over its impact on wildlife.

"It's like living in a refinery," said James Everson, a Wisconsin conservation warden. All of a sudden we get a big slug of petroleum right in the middle of some of the clearest water on the Mississippi."

The diesel oil slick began floating downstream between tree-clad bluffs Monday from a barge which struck a current-diverting wing dam about a mile above Alma.

The barge carried 567,000 gallons of oil. Its captain, Chester Forkum, said about 400,000 gallons escaped into the river.

STRANDED IN STILL WATER

The river current thinned the film in the main channel. But winds pushed the slick into bays and left it stranded in still water containing plant and insect life needed by fish, waterfowl and other wildlife.

"There is no way to determine in just a few days what the loss of food sources will do to the life cycles of fish and ducks that need that food," Everson said. "We already have one biologist talking about the impact two years from now."

The film glistened brownish red, green and yellow as it glided through locks of the Alma dam and spread downstream. When it encountered obstructions, it wrinkled into a sludge-like layer up to four inches thick.

Everson estimated the film covered 75 per cent of the river's surface along the 25 miles.

NO DEAD DUCKS

"It's not thick enough in most places to harm an adult bird. In fact, we haven't yet found a dead duck," he said.

"But a young duck would be doomed if coated. Even a thin film could suffocate fish, and the loss of insect and other food sources could be tremendous."

Houghland Towing Co. of Paducah, Ky., operator of the barge, was charged by Everson with violating state pollution statutes. The pilot, George Stroebe of Godfrey, Ill., was charged with careless operation of the barge.

The firm posted bond in Buffalo County Court. The cases were adjourned to June 30.

POLICEMAN DOWNED—An injured policeman is aided by other officers after he was knocked down by a thrown object during a fracas with an estimated 1,500 persons in Ann Arbor last night. At least 11 police officers were injured in the disturbance which saw the arrest of 39 adults and three juveniles.

Chemical-War Probe Hailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new organization of scientists critical of the nation's supersecret chemical and biological warfare arsenal has reacted with unrestrained enthusiasm to President Nixon's order for a full review of all CBW programs.

"I think that's one of the best things that's happened in a long while," Yale University biologist Dr. Arthur W. Galston said after the White House yesterday announced a sweeping reappraisal of whether development and testing of CBW agents is necessary and proper.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler also announced that the 1925 Geneva protocol designed to curb chemical and biological warfare will be reexamined. The United States promoted the document 44 years ago but still has not ratified it.

Nixon's review, to be conducted by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the State and Defense departments, came after a rising congressional and public outcry. The concern was spurred by the death of some 6,000 sheep near a nerve gas testing ground in Utah last year and the Army's plans—since delayed—to ship 27,000 tons of obsolete chemical-laden bombs overlaid by train and dump them into the sea.

ONE-MAN CRUSADE

The congressional chorus of protest began as a one-man crusade by Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, a third-term Democrat from Buffalo, N.Y. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee then held hearings, and Ziegler said the entire subject was explored in past National Security Council meetings.

The NSC will receive the results of the new study.

McCarthy said he was pleased with the review plans and said they would lead to a resubmission of the Geneva protocol, which he, Sen. J. W. Fulbright and 35 congressmen are requesting in a resolution.

Scientists worried about chemical-biological warfare formed the Scientists' Committee on Chemical and Biological Warfare last December during a professional meeting in Dallas.

After Face-Building Deborah Sits Up—and Smiles

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Deborah Fox sat up in bed for the first time since a 13½-hour operation to rebuild her face, and she smiled.

"They keep shooting me with those needles," she said—her biggest complaint.

"But soon I'll be able to get up and walk around."

Deborah is the 13-year-old Tennessee girl, born virtually without a face, who was operated on by six surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital last Wednesday. Using some techniques for the first time, they literally changed the configuration of her skull bones, moving her eyes from the sides to the center of her face, and began rebuilding her nose.

37TH OPERATION

It was the 37th—and by far the most major—operation for Deborah, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fox of near Chattanooga.

"Did you read my poetry?" she asked a newsmen Tuesday at the hospital.

"Yes."

City Gets $800,000 Windfall

The City Commission — receiving a revised 1969 budget — was informed last night an unexpected windfall of about $800,000 has come to the city's treasury.

The extra money, results mostly because of overtime-swollen pocketbooks of employees at General Motors facilities here, it was explained.

With the three large local GM plants setting production records, the city income tax is expected to gross some $5 million in 1969 as opposed to a projected $4,150,000.

The commissioners set a public hearing on the revised budget for July 1 at 3 p.m. at City Hall.

The budget has been delayed this year due to protracted contract negotiations with city employees. After long negotiations — and some strikes — contract settlements were reached last month with unions representing police, firemen, clerical and blue-collar workers. Wage increases averaged about 10 per cent.

The city tax rate remains at 7 mills ($7 per $1,000 assessed value), the same as last year. However the total tax base decreased and equalization factor increased to 1.43 from 1.33. This means an approximate increase of eight per cent in the average tax bill.

In the proposed budget, examined by the commission at last night's meeting, most of the extra funds were relegated to capital improvements, including many street-paving projects.

Residents of several of the streets recently had complained about not having their projects proceed in spite of the fact the residents were paying their share. They were told the city could not afford the projects.

However, in the light of the improved finance picture, some $230,000 of these were added to the tentative budget.

Added were: Eastway, Auburn to MSP; West Iroquois, Menominee to Manito; Cameron, Featherstone to University; Kenilworth, Featherstone to University; Piersall, and Linlere, Brook to north end.

Added storm drainage work is the Eastway Drive trunk sewer and Earlmore Relief sewer.

Police, Mob of 1,500 Battle in Ann Arbor

From Our News Wires

ANN ARBOR — Police using rifle butts, nightsticks and tear gas cleared a mob of hippies and University of Michigan students from what youngsters called a "liberated peoples street" early today after a seven-hour confrontation. Police reinforcements remained on alert for any further violence tonight.

1,500 high school and college-age youngsters were estimated to have gathered on South University Street near the U-M campus for the second night in a row to occupy a street they claimed as their own.

On Monday night, police allowed a three-hour beer bust and partylike demonstration to continue. There was no trouble that night.

At least 11 policemen were injured by thrown rocks, bottles and debris. One officer, hit by a homemade fire bomb was hospitalized and Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas Harvey was treated for a cut hand. One other officer suffered a cracked kidney.

42 ARRESTED

Thirty-nine adults and three juveniles were arrested, 37 adults and the juveniles charged with disorderly conduct. Two women were charged with felonies for malicious destruction to police cars.

Between 400 to 500 state police, sheriff's deputies from Washtenaw, Monroe, Macomb and Oakland counties, and local police were used in dealing with the disturbance.

Police at first used restraint in dispersing the crowd of youngsters, but used rifle butts and clubs more freely as the taunts continued and they were pelted by the crowd.

"It was started by the mere fact that they wanted to block the street. In fact, they wanted the street," said Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny. "The order was given for them to disperse, but they wanted to confront the police."

BLAMES HIPPIES

Krasny blamed two hippie groups — the White Panther Party and Trans-Love Energies — for instigating the trouble.

They had been passing out leaflets for several days urging young people to take over a section of the street which runs south from the University campus through rows of fashionable shops with student housing located on the side streets, he said.

When the police order to disperse was met by jeers and thrown objects, officers moved in a smog gun — a weapon that looks like a fire hose carrying over the shoulder of a policeman and that fires a stream of tear gas.

At first, only a pepper fog that envelops a person and is so thick that it in fact blinds him, was used. But police later switched to tear gas that permeated university buildings and even the home of University President Robben W. Fleming.

About 50 County Deputies Help Put Down Disturbance

About 50 Oakland County sheriff's deputies spent the night in Ann Arbor last night, listening to jeers of "Pigs, go home" and dodging flying bottles and bricks.

They joined 400 to 500 other law enforcement officers from four counties in an effort to subdue young persons who were "trying to take over" a main street in downtown Ann Arbor, according to County Undersheriff Leo Hazen.

The deputies were called to work at 10 p.m., when the disturbance was building up. They returned home early this morning. They estimated 1,500 persons were involved in the disturbance.

None of the deputies were injured, but all were targets of rock-throwers in the crowd. Hazen said the young people, mostly "hippie-types," threw rocks, bricks, cement blocks, bottles and cherry bombs at all the police on the scene.

'WOULDN'T LISTEN'

"They wouldn't listen to pleas from University of Michigan President Robben Fleming, so we just had to move them off the street," Hazen said. He said several windows were broken in the melee.

Ten officers from the Pontiac Police department left this morning to replace other lawmen who left around 3 a.m., when the disturbance finally broke up.

The county's tactical unit was not activated.

DETROIT (U) — Councilwoman Mary Beck, long a political foe of Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, today announced her candidacy for mayor on a law and order platform.

TWO WINNERS AND A LOSER—New York City Mayor John Lindsay is flanked by two running mates, Fioravante Perrotta (left) and Stanford Garelick. Lindsay was defeated in yesterday's Republican primary in his bid to be mayoral candidate. Perrotta and Garelick were named comptroller and council president candidates, respectively. (Story, page A-2.)

Lindsay's Loss Echoes Conservative Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — In a mayoral primary that echoed a trend set in Los Angeles and Minneapolis, conservatives yesterday wrested the Republican nomination from Mayor John V. Lindsay and wrecked former Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner's comeback bid.

Lindsay, who will be on the November ballot as Liberal party candidate, was narrowly defeated by a state senator from Staten Island, John J. Marchi, who has the Conservative party nomination. The final unofficial count was 111,725 to 106,358.

Wagner lost to Italian-born City

Comptroller Mario A. Procaccino, who rejected the label of "law-and-order candidate" but was the most conservative in a five-man Democratic field. He won with only about a third of the vote.

Bronx Borough President Herman Badillo, who was born in Puerto Rico, ran a close third. Author Norman Mailer and Rep. James H. Scheuer trailed.

DEMOCRATIC TALLY

The vote was Procaccino 252,283, Wagner 221,605, Badillo 215,381, Mailer 41,136, Scheuer 38,631.

The commissioner of the Board of Elections, Maurice J. O'Rourke, ordered a police guard placed on all voting machines this morning because of the closeness of the vote.

O'Rourke said the action was requested by Wagner and some candidates for lesser office. Badillo charged there were a large number of voting machine breakdowns in the South Bronx, where he felt he was strong. He said this indicated a "fix" to deprive him of votes.

Lindsay assailed the "forces of reaction and backlash" in the vote that he said had taken "temporary" control of both parties in the city.

Wagner also deplored the election results, commenting: "We hope we do not have here another Los Angeles or Minneapolis."

IN L.A., MINNEAPOLIS

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles won re-election over Negro Councilman Thomas Bradley after a campaign which stressed the "law and order" issue.

In a mayoral election in Minneapolis last week, former police Detective Charles Stenvig defeated liberal Republican Dan Cohen. Stenvig had focused his campaign on the "law and order" issue.

The defeat was a severe blow to the GOP prestige of Lindsay, who last year was considered a possible contender for the national ticket.

However, it did not knock the 47-year-old mayor out of contention for re-election to a second term in November. In a city that is 72 Democratic in voter registration, he will be the most liberal candidate in the three-man field.

Marchi, also 47, is the son of an Italian sculptor who came to New York to build movie sets and became a wax fruit manufacturer.

A soft-spoken man, Marchi has been in the state legislature since 1956 and has a strong civil rights record.

Procaccino, 59, is the son of an Italian shoemaker who moved to New York and set up shop in Harlem. The son went to City College and Fordham Law School, and rose through the ranks in city service.

Young Want Work but Job Offers Short

The demand for summer jobs for hundreds of disadvantaged Pontiac-area youths still far exceeds the supply offered to six agencies in the city.

The Pontiac Area Urban League, Manpower Inc., Youth Power Inc., Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESCC), the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce and the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) have been contacting area employers in an effort to help youths get jobs.

The agencies are asking that businessmen not only fill vacancies with the disadvantaged or handicapped youngsters, but create jobs for them.

"We are asking businessmen to make a social investment in their community and in the future of its youths by giving them a meaningful experience in the world of working," explained William H. Clark, director of the Urban League.

Some 450 youngsters are seeking jobs through the agencies, but only about 150 job pledges have been received thus far.

The agencies recently sent out letters to over 1,000 area businesses. Not one single response has been received, said the Rev. Tom Wilson, Manpower coordinator.

PHONE SOLICITATION

About eight Pontiac businessmen also spent hours last week in a telephone solicitation campaign. They contacted 446 local businessmen and came up with 80 job pledges, 56 of which already have become real jobs.

General Motors Corp. has pledged 100 jobs to the disadvantaged youths, promising to fill them at a rate of six per day.

The agencies appeal for jobs for both boys and girls. Young people aged 14-21 have inquired for jobs, but unless a youngster is 16 it is difficult to place him. General Motors cannot hire anyone under 18. However, the Michigan Department of Labor is working to help adjust age requirements in certain cases, Wilson said.

The agencies have been separately seeking jobs for disadvantaged youths for the past few summers, but are combining their efforts this year to share in developing jobs and placing youngsters from minority and poor families, those with physical handicaps and those living in poverty target areas.

CENTRALIZED EFFORT

This summer the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) is helping combine the efforts so that they can become centralized and to reduce the repetition in contacting prospective employers.

The NAB solicits employers in the greater Detroit metropolitan area, obtaining pledges to hire a certain number of youths for summer employment. It is a national program financed by the U.S. Department of Labor.

This is the first year Pontiac area companies and businessmen will, under the NAB plan, receive federal funds for hiring and training disadvantaged young persons.

Employers who want to contribute to the community and its disadvantaged youth by creating jobs are asked to contact Earl Krepes, manager of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, or Clark at the Urban League.

Larry Williams, FFH cochairman; and Mrs. Lella E. Lindsey, also a Harambee director. Jackson said the check would be used to provide summer jobs for youth in the Harambee offices and for other youth projects.

Michigan Bell Asks to Boost Rates 10 Pct.

LANSING (UPI) — Officials of Michigan Bell Telephone Co. yesterday L. Moore said the 10 per cent increase customer billing by about 10 per cent "to maintain a healthy financial position during these times of spiraling inflation."

In testimony before the Michigan Public Service Commission, which screens public utility requests for rate increases, company treasurer Kenneth L. Moore said the 10 per cent in crease would yield $28 million more income for the company and $33 million more for federal, state and local taxes.

"This amount of increase would place our return on investment in the range of 8.5 per cent — a range we feel is as essential as it is justifiable under today's economic conditions," Moore said.

Other officials cited increased inflation as the need for a rate hike.

CAUGHT IN MIDDLE

"We have been caught between the pounding hammer of rapidly rising costs and the unyielding anvil of our fixed prices," declared Jack Shuler, the company's attorney.

Shuler said the cost of communication services had risen steadily throughout the past nine years when the last rate hike was granted by the commission.

Kenneth L. Robt, assistant comptroller, said Michigan Bell's current 6.25 per cent rate of return "is not likely to attract needed capital."

"In the last three years, the increased pace of inflation has changed our financial position a great deal," Abbott told the three-man panel.

Testimony will continue throughout the week on the issue.

Utility Accord Is Reached

JACKSON (UPI) — Bargaining teams for Consumers Power Co., and striking Michigan Utility Workers reached tentative agreement early today on a new contract to end a 72-day strike marked by bitterness and occasional violence.

About 220 Pontiac District employees are affected.

Terms were not disclosed, pending ratification.

Agreement was reached after two days of intensive bargaining in both separate and joint meetings under the mediation efforts of Ronald W. Haughton of Wayne State University. Haughton entered the strike after talks had ceased between officials representing the 5,200 strikers and the giant utility.

"I say without reservation that this settlement is fair and equitable to all concerned," Haughton said after agreement early today. "Speaking for the public interest, I urge acceptance of this contract by the concerned employees."

The utility workers struck Consumers April 8 after inability to agree on a new contract. The utility serves one million electrically and 800,000 natural gas customers in 87 of Michigan's 83 Lower Peninsula counties. Service has been maintained by supervisory personnel.

Company officials claim property destruction and vandalism occurred early in the strike, as well as unauthorized picketing. The firm had the National Labor Relations Board obtain a federal court order to stop picketing at construction sites.

GI, Home on Leave, Drowns in Area Lake

A Troy soldier home on leave drowned last night in Emerald Lake when he attempted to swim back to shore from 50 yards out in the water.

Pulled from the lake by police at 7:10 p.m. was Pvt. Harold Elrod, 18, of 2051 Orpington. Police said he was swimming with a male friend who said he didn't know what happened to cause the "excellent" swimmer to drown.

Facts Corrected on Area Drowning

It was incorrectly reported in the June 13 edition of The Pontiac Press that a 21-year-old drowning victim was "hanging around" just prior to his drowning.

Witnesses to the death of Russell E. Trim of 9131 Crosby Lake told Oakland County sheriff's deputies at the scene of the drowning that they mistakenly thought he was "teasing" in the water.

Trim apparently was drowning when the witnesses thought he was only teasing.

"You mean it's mine? I can keep it?" She asked. She was told that she could.

Deborah was asked by her father if she had received one of her daily medical treatments yet.

"No, but the next time they come around, I'll tell them to do it," she replied.

WORK WITH HANDICAPPED

Deborah faces more operations, on her nose and mouth.

She hopes to resume her schooling this fall, toward her goal of eventually working with handicapped children.

Dr. Milton Edgerton, chief plastic surgeon on the case and one of the six who performed the operation, said later that Deborah's vision was all right, and Deborah began reading a book that was given to her Tuesday.

2 Area Men Unfurl Idea

Lunar Peace Flag Proposed

Congressman Jack McDonald, R-19th District, yesterday called for a special peace flag to be placed alongside the American flag when astronaut Neil Armstrong steps on the surface of the moon July 20. The peace flag would honor the five men killed in space experiments.

McDonald told the House of Representatives that such a flag has been conceived and designed by two of his constituents, Bruce L. Thompson, 3520 Woodland, Highland Township, and James R. Salle, 6290 S. Main, Clarkston.

The suggested design for the flag would bear the likenesses of Russian cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin and Vladimir Komarov and American astronauts Virgil Grissom, Roger Chaffee and Edward White.

McDonald said he would urge members of the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee to include in their version of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) authorization bill the provision for the peace flag.

HOUSE PASSAGE

As passed by the House, the NASA authorization now contains an amendment permitting only the American flag to be placed on the moon.

Thompson said he obtained the idea for a second flag from an editorial appearing last week in The Pontiac Press.

The design, as executed by Salle, places the dead space explorers against a background of the world, surrounded by orbit trails.

It bears the word, "Peace," both in English and Russian, and contains the date July 20, 1969.

COOPERATION CITED

McDonald, in his presentation to the House, attributed the quick success of space exploration to the cooperation of thousands of men and women dedicated to the conquest of space and noted it "has not been a totally American effort."

"Men and women in many other countries have contributed to every one of our space probes whether they have been operators of tracking stations or meteorologists."

He said their work will be rewarded July 20 with the moon landing, but a "very special way" to honor them would be afforded by placing a flag in tribute to the five men who gave their lives to make this event possible.

Teens Quizzed in Crime Spree

Suspects in Wave of Auto Thefts, Break-Ins

Waterford Township detectives today are questioning two teens who could be responsible for a recent wave of auto thefts and break-ins in the county.

The boys, aged 14 and 15, have already admitted to at least three auto thefts and two township break-ins, officers said. Both are already on probation for auto theft and breaking and entering.

The young pair was apprehended at 3:10 a.m. today by Patrolman Daniel Coakley, who said they "looked suspicious."

They were driving an auto that they said they had stolen late last night from the driveway of Cecil H. Franklin of 6480 Pine Knob, Independence Township. When officers called Franklin early this morning, he didn't even know the car was missing.

ADMIT CYCLE THEFT

The boys also admitted to stealing a motorcycle and chain saw from a garage Monday night and another auto Sunday night, according to Waterford officers.

They also admitted to a break-in last night at a home at 7809 Easton, Independence Township, where they took money, food and clothing, officers added. One of the suspects had a cut on his wrist, which he said he suffered when he broke a window in the home.

The pair also said they stole an auto about two weeks ago that they rolled over and abandoned on a back road near Rochester, according to officers.

The car has not been located or identified.

After Waterford detectives finish questioning the boys, they will be turned over to Oakland County sheriff's deputies for further questioning that could lead to other charges, police say.

Police today did not know whether a waiver would be sought to try the youths in juvenile court.

Fire Bomb Does Little Damage

A fire bomb was tossed through a window into a Pontiac business early this morning, but caused little damage, police said.

A flaming beer bottle contained a wick burned a small portion of paint on a truck in a garage at Forum Engineering Inc., 435 S. Sanford, before going out shortly after midnight, police said. Total damage was estimated at $15.

Man Found Dead

A 66-year-old Holly Township man was found in his home yesterday afternoon with apparent self-inflicted bullet wounds in his chest and head. Oakland County sheriff's detectives said. An autopsy is to be performed today on John Hunsinger, 2285 Houser. A 22-caliber pistol was found near the body.

Virtually every irrigated crop grown in California receives at least part of its water from a Federal Bureau of Reclamation project.

3 County Units Air 'Crippling' Legislation

Pending legislation both at the state and federal level could put the county out of the hospital business and, "within eight years," hamper local sale of municipal bonds, according to Oakland County supervisors.

The squeeze on county finances was the subject of a special meeting yesterday between the finance, human resources and legislative committees of the board of supervisors.

The meeting preceded a discussion of future building needs by the finance committee and the chairman of future building supervisor committees.

Some doubt was cast on what the county will be able to finance in the discussion.

AFFECTS SANATORIUM

The group voted to prepare a position paper on the effects of State House Bill 2055 now in the Senate Appropriations Committee. The bill would reportedly cut $2 million from funds used to operate the sanatorium and to provide medical care for the indigent.

Daniel T. Murphy, chairman of the county board of auditors, charged that the State Department of Social Services, reportedly pushing the bill, "is in bed with the nursing homes."

He said the bill would leave only the nursing homes capable of continuing to care for terminal cases, and that "they can't do it on $15 to $17 a day."

BOND LEGISLATION

Notification that Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., intends to vote for legislation to end tax exemption for municipal bonds also concerned county officials.

Murphy predicted that the bill will hurt 40 million people who need water and sewer services, financed by such bonds.

Murphy predicted passage of the bill would, within eight years, put the county in the Almost 10 per cent of all new news lives with in-laws 20 years ago but presently the fig-position of being no longer able projects.

FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITY

The tight bonding situation which Murphy said would result from the legislation, would put funding responsibility on the federal government, he predicted.

Whether building needs for the county as presented yesterday by committee chairmen will be affected was the question.

Those needs include a new $3.3-million north wing on the Courthouse in 1972-73 and a new $7.3-million court tower needed by 1974-75.

Nearly $2 million in improvements at the Children's Village were presented with top priority given to construction of a girls' rehabilitation cottage.

AIRPORT IMPROVEMENTS

Another $1 million for construction of a parallel east-west runway and taxiways was cited for Oakland-Pontiac Airport, the county's share being nearly $300,000.

Alos pointed out as a major need was a 4-H Youth Activities Camp at Davisburg, estimated to cost $25,000.

No figures or time limit were put on solid waste disposal program which supervisors feel they must soon initiate.

Exam Is Set for Man on Raid Charge

A Pontiac man charged with operating an illegal liquor establishment in the basement of his home pleaded innocent at his arraignment in District Court yesterday.

A pretrial examination for Dewey Jones, 48, of 151 Bagley was set for next Wednesday by Judge Cecil B. McCallum.

Jones has been free on $500 bond since he was arrested in a raid at his home about 3 a.m. last Saturday.

Thirty-one persons charged with loitering in an illegal liquor establishment were found guilty yesterday and paid a fine of $28 or are spending four days in jail.

Five persons charged in the raid failed to appear for trial. They include three accused loiterers and two Detroit girls, 19 and 20 years old, charged with soliciting as prostitutes.

The Detroit girls had been free of $100 bond. Two persons charged with possession of betting slips were found guilty and paid $8 fines.

MAKE OVER PAGES

Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Complaints about the rising cost of food are increasing daily. But the plight of the average homemaker is minor compared with that of families on Social Security, welfare and ADC. Their budgets are already pared to the bone and there's little flexibility.

There's a great deal of talk about wiping out the hunger in America, but so far, it's not much more than talk. Many individuals simply refuse to believe that anyone in this great country is actually not getting enough to eat.

Our concern and our knowledge is limited in this article to the Pontiac area. We know that there are many families that are not getting enough of the right kind of food, because their finances will not permit it.

We've been talking with ADC mothers, finding out how they spend their food money and how they consider their greatest problems.

On July 1, ADC payments are being increased by $3 a month per person. Even if all this increase were to go into the food budget, it would not allow any of the women to set a luxurious table.

All of the women we talked with buy food stamps and consider them a valuable addition. These women are highly conscious of what their children should be fed and are concerned when essential foods are lacking.

Mrs. W. who has three boys, aged nine, seven and five, says she always runs out of meat by the end of the two-week period. Most of the women work on a two-week plan, even though the ADC funds are dispersed by the month. So some months, they have even more of a struggle.

Mrs. W. who is taking a course in the ADC program to update her skills, worries because she can't afford enough fresh fruit and vegetables. She gets $48 twice a month for food.

One of her children is allergic to whole milk so Mrs. W. is happy to use powdered milk. She buys four quarts of fresh milk weekly from the milkman and supplements it with the powdered.

With no public transportation and no car, shopping is a problem. She brings her groceries home from the supermarket in a child's wagon. An injured arm prevents her carrying much.

SNACKS

We asked all the mothers what they do for snacks, since that can wreck any food budget. Mrs. W. had just discovered popcorn and was delighted. "I never realized it was so cheap," she said.

Other snacks are milk, fruit sometimes and a bag of potato chips bought on sale and carefully doled out to make it last.

Latest figures from USDA say a family of Mrs. W.'s size and ages needs $25 a week to insure an adequate diet on the lowest cost list.

Mrs. C. has another kind of problem.

She gets $77 in cash and food stamps the first and 15th of the month. With this amount she must feed five boys and one girl and her husband and herself. USDA says a family of this size needs a minimum of $44 a week.

Mrs. C.'s husband is disabled with a rare blood disease and can't eat fats. There are no special allowances for unusual diets and she must get his food from her budget.

"There is never enough meat, nor enough fresh vegetables and fruit. Our cost is heavy with starches."

Mrs. C. mixes powdered milk with fresh which she buys at her regular store. She is able to borrow a car, but lives away from town and has to go long distances to shop.

A treat in the C. household may be candy or cake made from a mix. Popcorn is used as part of the regular menu. She does very little baking.

Mrs. C. would like to garden, but there is no money allotted for plowing or plants.

On the other hand, a Pontiac mother receiving $54 twice a month says milk is her biggest problem. One of her children who has a calcium deficiency must have fresh whole milk. Mrs. P. has no car so she gets milk from a milkman; this costs $15 to $20 every two weeks.

There are four children under six in the family. Mrs. P. would like to give them more salads and more fruit. They do get lots of vegetables and are heavy potato eaters. Meat takes about half her food money each week.

Pancakes are served several times a week and eggs are used as the protein course at dinner. Cereal appears at breakfast and is used for snacks.

Mrs. P. would like to be part of a co-op buying group. She and several friends do pool part of their food money and buy staples and some fresh food in larger quantities at a saving.

"But," says Mrs. P., "We would like a hand instead of a handout." She wishes she could spend $40 a week for food, including all that milk.

LAST PENNY

Mrs. S. has it figured right down to a penny. "We get 83 cents per person a day to spend on food," she says. When two of her four children eat lunch at school, that takes 90 cents right away.

With boys 17, 15 and 11 and a girl, 14, Mrs. S. needs $40 a week for a minimum adequate diet. She gets $15 a month.

Mrs. S. is an expert at fixing inexpensive meat dishes. But she can't get the kids to drink powdered milk. She uses a lot of tomatoes and canned citrus juices and keeps salad fixin' in a plastic bag in the refrigerator.

Her older child is working which relieves the financial strain a bit; furthermore, he has a car which he needs for his job and can take his mother shopping. Mrs. S. is better off than some of the women we talked with.

"They've gotta have protein." But Mrs. X. was the most optimistic of all the mothers interviewed.

She had heard me talk at a food discussion early in May and took up my suggestion about using powdered milk. She finds it cuts her milk bill $3 a week.

She has apples, just started to buy food stamps which ease food problems a little. Before, there just wasn't any money for food extras.

Fortunately, she says, her boys like spaghetti and goulash because they get both at least once a week. For snacks, they get apples, pretzels or popcorn. She gets a ride to do her shopping.

Mrs. X. comes closest to spending the suggested minimum for food for her size family — $30.

Mrs. K. was one mother who mentioned using peanut butter for snacks. She watches for large packages of cookies on sale, makes popcorn and sometimes cake.

Her five children drink lots of milk, all of it fresh. Mrs. K. uses buttermilk for cooking and baking. Her children lived for a time in the south with their father and existed on a meager, monotonous diet heavy with beans powdered milk and molasses. Not surprising is their aversion to such foods now.

Mrs. K. gives them cereal, egg, toast and bacon for breakfast and a meat sandwich or some kind for lunch. Vegetables and cornbread appear on the dinner table.

Mrs. K. helps pay for the gas and her son-in-law takes her food shopping. She watches for sales and buys in quantity with her neighbors whenever possible.

For her four boys and a girl, who range in age from seven to 13, she gets $124 a month for food, including stamps. $37 a week would be the USDA suggested figure.

To see what women talk on welfare spend for food, we talked with two other mothers.

Mrs. Mc and her husband, a Fisher Body employee, have four children under six years. The family spends $25 a week for food in the supermarket, plus eggs, milk, bread and some fruit bought separately.

Mrs. Mc watches for sales; she has transportation. She likes to cook. She plans her meals ahead and usually cooks meat dishes that can be served two different days.

She compares notes with her neighbors and thinks she is doing a good job. She realizes costs will rise as the children get older. But she does not anticipate problems.

Two of Mrs. V.'s children are away from home. But three boys who love to eat still sit down to three meals a day. Mrs. V. spends $40-45 a week, for groceries, plus milk.

The boys are great meat and bread eaters. They snack on potato chips, ice cream fruit or homemade cake or cookies.

Mrs. V. loves to chase down a bargain. She may shop several stores each week, ignoring the fact that gas costs money too. We suggested she might call it her recreation and she agreed.

The V's spend about what the USDA plans allow for a week's meals on the liberal plan.

Many others are less fortunate. And hungrier.

Mrs. Richard Nixon and her daughter Julie visit the Forest Grove, Ore., Day Nursery and look in on a painting class Tuesday. The party has visited projects where volunteer efforts help solve local problems.

Old Hide-Seek Game Makes Widow Uneasy

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old widow who recently met a very charming and attractive 54-year-old widower. He is a delightful company and we really hit it off together very well, but there is one drawback.

He has two married daughters (whom I have never met) who want to run his life. They are so afraid that someone is going to "take Mother's place" they can't stand it. She died three years ago.

When this man takes me out to have to go places where his daughters will not find out about it. Also when he comes to my home he takes a taxi so no one will see his car parked in front of my house.

How can I convince him that he should live his own life and quit worrying about what his daughters think? Or do you think I should insist on meeting his daughters and try to make them like me?

IN DOUBT

DEAR IN: If you can meet his daughters and make them "like" you, it would be ideal. But a grown man who is "hiding" from his daughters in the manner you describe has a lot of growing up to do. I certainly wouldn't hide with him much longer.

DEAR ABBY: Why should the men have all the fun? They seem to enjoy PLAYBOY magazine so much. How about women getting the same break?

There are a lot of guys with beautiful bodies who wouldn't mind being photographed for the pleasure of women who can appreciate them.

I think a PLAYGIRL club would do a great business. After all there are more girls than men around; and why shouldn't they be able to go to a club and have good-looking, well-built men waiting on them? It's an idea, Abby. What do you think of it?

PLAYGIRL

DEAR PLAYGIRL: Not much. In the first place there are plenty of muscle men magazines around if a girl wants to get her jollies looking at paper dolls. But what man in his right mind is going to take a girl to a PLAYGIRL club so she can ogle good-looking MEN?

DEAR ABBY: My husband came home one day with a ring bearing the emblem of his lodge. He had removed the gold wedding band I had given him and replaced it with this lodge ring. I expressed my hurt and disappointment, but it did no good. He continued to wear the lodge ring. When I tried to explain how I felt about it, he emphatically told me he didn't want to hear any more about it.

Soon after this he got another very heavy ring for his right hand, also with the lodge emblem on it. He wears both rings every day. I think it is nice that he is so proud of his affiliation with this lodge that he wears a symbol of it on each hand, but that wedding band is also a very important symbol to me. It was a constant reminder of love, our home, and our children. Do you think he is trying to tell me something? HURT

DEAR HURT: I think he has indeed TOLD you something. I also think he is either incredibly insensitive, or needlessly unkind. One wonders if his left hand knows what his right hand is wearing.

Award Winning Girl Engineer Says, 'It's Fun'

DETROIT — Carol Sue Wodkowski is competing in a man's world and not only enjoys it, but by engineering standards of excellence, she's doing pretty well at it.

Carol's first "femal engineer" ever to compete in the "Outstanding Young Engineer of the Year" Awards Competition, sponsored for the 17th straight year by The Engineering Society of Detroit. What's more, in a field of competition dominated by her male counterparts, she came in second.

Singel, just 22, smart, and on her way to the top in a man's world, Carol frankly admits "it's fun."

One of ten female engineers at the Ford Motor Company, Carol's presently working as a research engineer in the Powertrain Systems Research Department, and is responsible for chemical measurements of emissions for her department.

Just a mere enumeration of her responsibilities singles Carol out from most 22-year-old girls, but her list of accomplishments even further makes her "unique."

The Outstanding Young Engineer of the Year award came as a surprise to Carol, but she's not a stranger to excellent or to receiving awards... she's been doing both for years.

TOP STUDENT

She attended the University of Detroit with a Ford Motor Company Fund Scholarship and also received the University of Michigan Regents Alumni Scholarship. A National Merit Competition finalist, Carol graduated from Dearborn Heights' Riverside High School at just 16.

She graduated magna cum laude from the U. of D. in 1967 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry, and received the "Outstanding Chemistry Student of the Year" Award from the American Chemical Society, Detroit Section, having carried an impressive 3.5 average while at the U. of D.

Carol's also reached the halfway point in work toward her master's degree in Chemistry from Wayne State University "partly on company time and partly on my own through night courses," she said.

Now that she's out in the working world, Carol considers it a decided advantage to be able to work with men.

"Not only being paid a man's salary for a man's job, but the work is both interesting and challenging," Carol says.

The only problem Carol encountered since venturing into the automotive field was, upon first taking on the research position at Ford, "I wanted to talk with women for a change," she said.

"Now the tables have turned. The uniqueness of being a woman chemist in a predominantly male department has kind of worn off, and I find that I truly enjoy both working and conversing with men. I'm treated both as an equal and as a woman, a happy blend of both, and it's kind of nice," Carol says.

HELPS IN DATING

The conversational advantages of being a woman in a man's world also come to the front in the dating world.

"When I'm out with an engineer, the conversation invariably turns to 'shop' talk. My dates usually find it equally amusing to be able to converse with a woman in the engineering arena. In fact, I think I can safely say I rather enjoy getting into conversations where other girls simply can't compete... but I don't make a practice of it after hours," Carol says.

Like father, like daughter, engineering runs in the Wodkowski family. Carol's father is also an engineer at Ford, in the Metal Stamping Division. She has one older, married brother, and lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Wodkowski, in Dearborn Heights.

Carol S. Wodkowski, Dearborn Heights, won second prize in this year's "Outstanding Young Engineer of the Year" contest, sponsored by The Engineering Society of Detroit.

John F. Dudas, Wife Honored at Party in Country Club

BY SHIRLEY GRAY

John F. Dudas of North Williamsbury Road in Birmingham, and his wife, were honored guests at a dinner dance at Bloomfield Hills Country Club last Saturday. The occasion was Dudas' recent promotion to general manager of Fisher Body in Pontiac.

Co-hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fitzgerald and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Elserman, all of Bloomfield Hills.

Mrs. Russell Strickland of Bloomfield Hills recently had a surprise birthday party for her mother, Mrs. Richard F. Connell of Detroit. Mrs. Connell was doubly surprised when in walked her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Hanson of Portland, Oregon.

The Hansons spent a long weekend with the Stricklands before returning home.

Balletomanes Mr. and Mrs. Horatio (Peggy) Lewis of Birmingham spent last weekend in Chicago because that's where the Royal Ballet is at the moment. The Lewises have several friends in the ballet corps and since the company skipped Detroit this year, that's the only place they can see them. They went to New York earlier this spring for the same purpose.

Other than the ballet, the Chicago weekend was devoted to the Planetarium, the Aquarium and the Museum of Science and Industry, unusual fare for the Lewises, who go to plays whenever possible. That's because the three little Lewises were along — Terry, 10; Geoffrey, eight and David, four.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip R. Flanders recently hosted the annual meeting of Arts Unlimited, a three-year-old group devoted to pursuit of the arts in their Bloomfield Hills home. Dinner and cocktails preceded the work session.

Soroptimist Club Sets Date for Installation

Officers for the Soroptimist Club of Pontiac will be installed Tuesday evening at a dinner in Devon Gables.

Assuming office will be Mrs. William Hutton, president; Lucy S. Veler, vice president; Mrs. Harold Crozier and Mrs. Stanley McClellan, secretaries and Mrs. Roy Maxwell, treasurer.

Delegates will be Mrs. Richard Paschke and Taimae Suroia.

Berry-Good Recipes in Season

The Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

It's fresh strawberry time again. Berries from warmer parts of the country have been coming into the stores for some months. But now we can get our own wonderful Michigan berries. At our house I can foresee a daily demand for shortcake.

If you get a group together and start discussing shortcake, you'll get controversy. Those who have always had biscuit shortcake can't stand spongecake shortcake, and vice versa. We are the biscuit type.

A slightly different version of biscuit shortcake makes a ring to fill with strawberries and whipped cream.

Berry Go-Round Shortcake

1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour* 1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup sugar 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 teaspoons baking powder* 4 cups (1 qt.) sweetened strawberries, halved or sliced
1 teaspoon salt* 1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup milk Whipped cream
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons melted butter

Spoon flour into dry measuring cup and level off. Pour into mixing bowl. Add 1/4 cup sugar, baking powder and salt to flour. Stir to blend. Cut in shortening with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk and egg, stirring only enough to moisten all ingredients.

Turn out on lightly floured cloth-covered board. Knead gently about 20 times. Roll into an 8x15 inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter. Combine 1/2 cup sugar and orange rind. Sprinkle mixture on dough.

ROLL AND CUT

Roll up beginning with 8-inch side. Cut into 8 one-inch slices and flatten slightly. Arrange cut-side down around edge of greased 9-inch round pan. Bake at 425 degrees for 15-18 minutes. Remove from pan and cool slightly on rack.

Fill ring with whipped cream. Garnish with sweetened berries. Serve slightly warm, with additional strawberries and whipped cream if desired. Makes 1 shortcake (8 servings).

*If you use self-rising flour omit baking powder and salt.

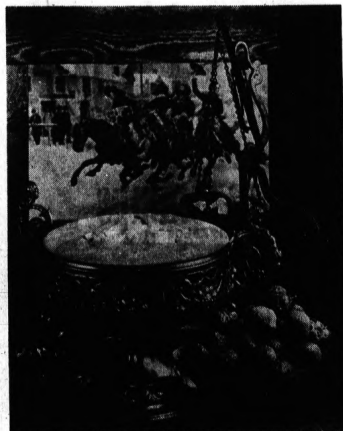

For a new strawberry dessert, make a pudding that requires no cooking. Furthermore, a pint of berries will serve at least nine people.

Michigan Strawberry Ice Box Pudding

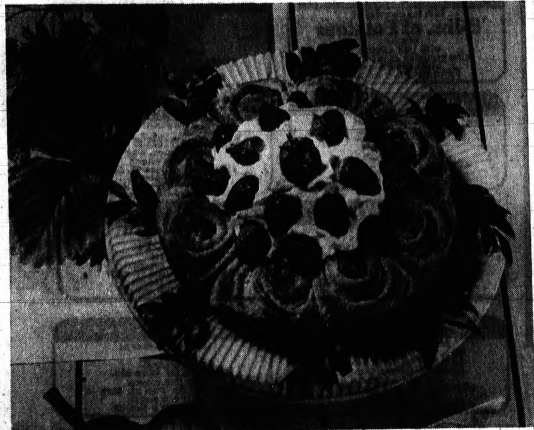

1 cup vanilla wafer crumbs 1 1/2 cups whipping cream
1 1/2 cups sifted 1 1/2 cups toasted coconut confectioners' sugar 1 pint fresh strawberries,
1/4 cup butter, softened washed, hulled and cut
2 eggs into quarters

Butter well a 9" x 9" x 2" cake pan. Spread 1/2 cup crumbs evenly in the pan. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Spread this mixture on top of crumbs in

SATURDAY STRAWBERRY PUNCH

BERRY-GO-ROUND SHORTCAKE

pan. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on butter, sugar and egg mixture.

Whip cream until stiff and gently fold on 1 cup of the toasted coconut and the quartered strawberries. Spread whipped cream and strawberry mixture on top of crumbs in pan. Sprinkle remaining 1/2 cup of toasted coconut on top of this mixture.

Place in refrigerator and chill for 24 hours. Serves 9-12.

GOLD RUSH

In the days of the California gold rush, strawberries were literally worth their weight in gold. But successful miners had gold to fling around in extravagant fashion. They liked to eat and drink well.

Saturday night called for exotic food, champagne and strawberry punch. Here is today's version of that punch.

Saturday Nite Strawberry Punch

2 pints fresh strawberries 1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
4 eggs, separated orange peel
1/2 cup sugar Red food coloring,
1 pint (2 cups) half-and-half as desired
1 cup milk 2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup Grand Marnier, 1 cup heavy cream, orange liqueur or whipped orange juice

Puree strawberries in electric blender at high speed; strain through fine sieve to remove seeds. Set puree aside.

In large mixing bowl, beat egg yolks and 1/2 cup sugar together until light and fluffy. Blend in half-and-half, milk, Grand Marnier, orange peel and pureed strawberries. Add coloring.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add 2 tablespoons sugar gradually and beat until egg whites are slightly glossy. Reserving a few tablespoons of meringue and whipped cream, blend in the remainder thoroughly.

Pour into a 4-quart punch bowl. Spoon reserved meringue and cream on top and swirl gently with a flat knife or spatula. Makes 24 punch cup servings.

Homemade strawberry ice cream. How does that appeal to you? Be it made in the refrigerator, in a modern electric freezer or in an old-fashioned hand cranked freezer, it's described in just one word—good.

In order not to have icy pieces of fruit or irritating seeds in your finished product, puree the fruit in a blender and strain it. The ice cream recipe given here will give you a dessert so stable it can be thawed and refrozen without loss of flavor; it improves on keeping.

California Strawberry Ice Cream

REFRIGERATOR METHOD
2 cups sugar
1 cup water
4 pints fresh strawberries
1/2 cup orange juice
1/4 cup lemon juice
2 cups heavy cream, whipped

In saucepan, combine sugar and water; boil 5 minutes; cool. Puree strawberries in electric blender or force through sieve. Strain to remove seeds. Combine puree, orange and lemon juices with sugar syrup; fold in whipped cream and pour into refrigerator trays; freeze until firm. Makes about 2 quarts.

CHURN METHOD
6 egg yolks
2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 cups scalded milk
1 tablespoon vanilla
3 1/4 cups heavy cream

boiling until temperature reaches 238 degrees.

In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites with salt until stiff peaks form. Slowly pour syrup over egg whites, while beating; continue beating until mixture is thick and shiny.

Fold whipped cream into strawberry puree. Fold this mixture into egg whites until well blended. Pour into four freezer trays and freeze until firm. Remove from freezer and beat with electric or hand mixer until smooth. Return to trays and freeze until firm. Makes 2 quarts.

Combine sugar, corn syrup, water and lemon juice in saucepan; stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves. Bring to boil without stirring; continue

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM

LOW CALORIE DRESSING — Wash and hull one pint strawberries; place in blender. Add 1 cup plain yogurt, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon liquid artificial sweetener. Blend on high speed for 10 seconds. Chill thoroughly before serving on salad or cubes of gelatin. For a slightly richer dressing, substitute 1 cup sour cream for the yogurt and 3 tablespoons sugar for the artificial sweetener.

Michigan Berries Rate High, Deserve Care

In southwestern Michigan, June means strawberries, picked at dawn and shipped dewy fresh to arrive at your market the next morning.

The Earldawn variety is at the height of its season, ready to "turn on" winter appetites as the piece de resistance of shortcakes, fruit salads, jams, pies, parfaits or what have you.

Buyers at the Benton Harbor Fruit Market, the world's largest cash-to-grower-market, report that texture and color are at their finest this year.

You can enjoy the full, succulent flavor of Michigan strawberries by observing a few simple precautions. The tender strawberry should be placed in the refrigerator, covered, in its special version of the French specialty is this Pear Strawberry Dessert Roll.

Wash and cull just before incorporating the fruit into your favorite dish. To avoid losing juice or flavor, remove the green cap last.

Both Earldawns and the later Midways are all-purpose strawberries, for cooking, eating fresh, or freezing. To retain the rich, red color, freeze with sugar: a 50 per cent syrup (4 cups of sugar to 4 cups of water) or add one cup of sugar to four cups of fruit. Frozen berries keep for 12 months.

FRENCH DESSERT

The French have an unusual dessert that is called a sweet omelet. Prepared like a puffy egg omelet, it is filled with fruit, jam, or a sweet sauce. A special version of the French specialty is this Pear Strawberry Dessert Roll.

PEAR STRAWBERRY DESSERT ROLL

1 (1 lb.) can Bartlett pear halves
3 eggs, separated
3 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons flour
Dash of salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup fresh strawberries, sliced
Rosy Jewel Sauce
Powdered sugar

Drain and slice pears; reserving syrup for sauce. Beat egg whites until stiff. Fold in egg yolks beaten with sugar, flour and salt.

Melt butter in a 10-inch skillet. Pour in egg mixture, spreading evenly. Cook over medium heat until browned on bottom. Place under broiler a few minutes to set top.

Roll up omelet and turn out on plate, seam side down. Cool. To serve, unroll omelet. Place pear slices and strawberries along center third.

BRAND IT

Make grill marks with metal skewer, heated over hot burner. Dipping skewer in corn syrup before heating gives better impression. Accompany with remaining dessert sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

ROSY JEWEL SAUCE:

Soften 1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin in pear syrup plus water to measure 1 1/4 cups. Heat until dissolved. Stir in 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons sugar and a few drops red food coloring. If desired, add 2 tablespoons rum or kirsch. Chill several hours until thickened. Before serving, stir to soften slightly.

One, Two, Three

Singing Sisters to Get Own Series

Show 'Biz' Just Lennons' Job

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — There may be no business like show business for a lot of starry-eyed youngsters. But for the Lennon Sisters, a quartet that has literally grown to womanhood before the eyes of the American public, show business is about as glamorous — and just as necessary — as a trip to the neighborhood supermarket.

The singing sisters are part of a musical family of proportions that would make the King Sisters green with envy — there are still seven younger Lennon siblings at home. The four oldest have made the long climb to a television series of their own prodded by a simple desire: to earn money.

Next fall, the four girls will be appearing weekly in an ABC variety hour titled temporarily, it is to be hoped "Jimmy Durante Presents the Lennon Sisters." Their ABC special, the pilot for the projected series, was taped last August and was broadcast on the network May 6.

There are four of them, as viewers of "The Lawrence Welk Show" know well. All four are married and have a total of nine children.

SERVICE CLUB DATES

The Lennon saga began in the summer of 1965 when the family then only eight children — mother and father — lived in Venice, a Los Angeles suburb. Bill Lennon, their father, had sung tenor in a professional quartet, and both parents had a resistance to the charms of show business.

"Our father was a milkman at that time," recalled Peggy, usually the spokeswoman for the family. "We were living — all of us in a two-bedroom house. His boss heard us sing and that led to some dates with local service clubs, like the Lions."

"All we wanted to do was make enough money singing so that we could build a one-room extension on the house."

Lawrence Welk Jr., a schoolmate of Dianne, heard them and arranged an informal audition with his father. They made their national debut on the Welk Christmas show.

SAME AIMS

Their basic aims have never changed next season's series is based on the same motive as their debut:

"It's just a job that we do because we have responsibilities for helping the family," said Peggy, adding that "the family is now really five separate units."

Dianne, now 29, left the group in favor of housewifery when she married a nonprofessional in 1960. She returned four years later when her husband's company was hit by a long strike and has remained with the group since.

The separation from the group's original base, the Welk show, was made with the kind of impersonal calm that characterizes the sister team. The cause of the separation: money.

LENNON SENTIMENT

They acquired their own manager and formed a production company. It is called Mayco Productions, named with typical Lennon sentiment after a sister who died when she was very young.

Three of the girls live within a few minutes drive of each other in or near Venice, and Peggy and her family are established in Studio City in the San Fernando Valley. Peggy is married to one of Welk's musicians.

The girls have been singing together since childhood. Thus they can work out new material with a minimum of trouble.

"None of us reads music, so we just get together and work it out in our heads," she said. "Most of the time, Dianne sings the lead; I sing higher and Kathy lower. Janet works in something else. Actually our voices are all in about the same range so it just works out that way."

PRIVATE LIVES

As soon as the team had a new manager, they started appearing on more of the networks' top variety shows — activity that is largely Hollywood-based and which does not upset the routines of their important private lives. Occasionally, however, they do hit the road, but the girls arrange their schedules carefully so that they'll fly off on a busy and long weekend of appearances, but then will be able to stay home with their families for at least three weeks without interruptions.

Peggy is as sanguine about the success of the forthcoming series as she is about everything else that has happened to the Lennons.

"We found that there was something right about the chemistry of working with Mr. Durante in the special," she said. "So we're happy about that. And the series will help take care of our responsibilities which is all we want."

Experiments this last year indicate that areawide mosquito control at reasonable cost is within sight, through applications of insecticide by aircraft.

SING FOR THEIR SUPPORT—The Lennon Sisters, (from left) Peggy, Dianne, Kathy and Janet, say they have been prodded to show business success by a simple desire —

earning money. They have been singing together professionally since 1965, when Janet, the youngest, was only 11 years. This fall they will have their own weekly television show.

'Adventist Men Outlive Others'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Statistical science has revealed a group of males with longer life expectancies, up to the age of 70 years, than females of the general population.

That's a startling reversal of the statistical norm that women generally have longer life expectancies than men.

The reversers are male members of the Protestant sect the Seventh-day Adventists (SDAs). Female SDAs have longer life expectancies than the men do, but their advantage is not nearly as great as that of females over males in the general population.

Drs. Frank R. Lemon and Jan W. Kuzma, public health scientists, have been compiling health statistics of 94,217 SDAs since 1968. They have not put the statistics to exacting of "life-table" analysis and compared the SDA life table to that of the general California population.

6 YEARS LONGER
At age 35 the male SDA can statistically expect to live 42.4 more years while the male in the general population is statistically justified in expecting 36.2 more years.

The 35-year-old female in the general population can expect 41.45 more years and the SDA female can expect 45.06 more years. These ratios of life expectancies remain about the same up to 70 years.

Statistical differences between SDAs of California and the general California population reflect differences in ways of life.

SDAs do not smoke cigarettes — or anything else. They are "virtual" abstainers from alcoholic beverages. They are "somewhat less resident in metropolitan counties." They practice "modified vegetarianism to an unmeasured extent" and may have "an above-average interest in health matters."

In their report to the American Medical Association, Lemon and Luzma said the longer life expectancy of SDA males was one more statistical proof of the "biologic cost of smoking."
