Deaths Show Marked Increase in Areas

By The Associated Press
Influenza cases in the United States continue to increase and medical authorities are urging vaccinations to combat the spreading outbreaks.

The Communicable Disease Center of the U.S. Public Health Service said today information compiled weekly from its 108 reporting cities across the nation show 759 pneumonia-influenza deaths through the week during Feb. 16. That is 54 deaths over the previous week.

The death toll is showing a continued marked increase in the South and Middle Atlantic states, the center said.

The flu outbreaks reached epidemic proportions in areas along the Atlantic seaboard Jan. 15, and then moved westward.

FIRST MICHIGAN DEATH
Michigan has had its first Asian flu death of the year.

A 54-year-old Detroit man was the victim. He died in a hospital in Detroit yesterday.

The death certificate said the man died of "pneumonia resulting from Asian flu." A spokesman for the city health commissioners' office said it would be proper to call this a death from Asian flu.

Only a few cases of Asian flu in Detroit have been reported, officials say.

A "marked rise" in absenteeism in both schools and industry was reported yesterday by state health officials who said the late outbreak of flu continues to spread in Michigan.

Hospital to Limit Visitors to Curb Influenza Bug

Pontiac General Hospital today announced it will begin limiting visitors to immediate families of patients tomorrow, in the face of a possible Asian flu epidemic. "The action is being taken in an attempt to look after the welfare of our patients," said Dr. John J. Marra, medical director. Other Pontiac hospitals said they planned no visitor restrictions at this time, but urged persons with flu symptoms to refrain from visiting patients.

State GOP Leader Discusses Goals

By JIM DYBERT

LANSING — To sell one of the nation's most populous states on a political idea long dear to his heart while working closely with a governor he helped elect.

That's the opportunity and challenge facing Arthur G. Elliott Jr. in his new post as chairman of the Michigan Republican party.

Elliott, of 160 E. Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills, discussed his outlook and plans in an exclusive interview this week with The Pontiac Press.

More citizen participation in party affairs and government is the goal.

Ever since he entered politics as a precinct delegate from Pleasant Ridge 11 years ago, Elliott has been selling it. He used it to build the Oakland County GOP organization into one of the state's most powerful.

when he was county chairman from 1957 to 1961. Now, he will travel about the state promoting it, "trying to develop enthusiasm for it among party leaders."

While doing so, he will maintain an "extremely close liaison" with Gov. George Romney, an Oakland County citizen he sold on participating.

Elliott was manager of Romney's victorious gubernatorial campaign and was the governor's closest political associate.

Romney has consistently advocated more citizen participation in political and governmental affairs. He has advocated the idea as the pattern for rejuvenation of the Republican party throughout the nation.

Contemplating the future, Elliott said he "expects to work hard."

"Thousands of others will work hard with me," he said. "We will broaden the party." (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Icy weather gripped Michigan again today, driving the mercury five below zero in Pontiac, and 35 below in Pellston in northwest Michigan, one of the coldest spots in the nation.

Relief from the bitter cold is on the way, however.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said temperatures will moderate to a possible high of 20 above in the Pontiac area tomorrow.

The low will dip to near five above tonight.

Temperatures will continue in the low 20s above the weekend, then turn colder Monday and Tuesday, the bureau said. A few light snow flurries are forecast for the period.

Today's southwesterly winds at 8 to 15 miles per hour will continue tonight.

Mental Facility Sought in State

Dental School on List of 'Top Priority' Items

LANSING (UP) — A $10-million mental hospital in western Michigan and an $8-million dental school at the University of Michigan head the list of some 27 "top-priority" building projects for which Gov. George Romney has asked lawmakers to provide planning and land-purchase funds.

The governor, in his budget message last month, asked for $1,008,500 from the general fund to lay groundwork or a long-range, $60.6-million program.

In a follow-up announcement Thursday, he outlined the projects, more than half of which will be on state college and university campuses, with the rest concentrated in mental health facilities.

Seven of the projects are included in the 1963-64 budget proposal and details of these, the governor said, already are in the hands of legislative appropriating committees.

Capital outlay money for final plans and construction of the other 20 projects is scheduled to be available starting with the 1964-65 budget.

State Controller Glenn S. Allen said the projects on the list have been deemed "top priority" by agreement of the administration and the schools or state agencies involved.

Introduce Bills to Finance '68 Olympic Site

Romney, Legislators Back Plan to Hike Pari-Mutuel Take

LANSING (UP) — A proposal to finance a $25-million Olympic Games stadium in Detroit through an increase in the tax on pari-mutuel horse race betting was given the green light today by Gov. George Romney and legislative leaders.

Immediately after the governor held a meeting with legislative leaders and members of the Detroit Olympic Games Committee, two vehicle bills were introduced in the House of Representatives to boost the race track betting tax from 13 to 15 per cent.

Rep. Allison Green, R-Kingsford, the House speaker, introduced the bills on behalf of the entire membership of the House.

Eight per cent of the take would go into the state's general fund, and the other 7 per cent returned to the racing industry for horse breeding and purse supplements for Michigan-bred horses. The current split is six and one-half per cent to each.

Romney said the extra revenue—totaling nearly $15 million a year—would be used to underwrite the bonds to be issued for construction of the 100,000-seat stadium.

ROMNEY, CAVANAGH MEET

The governor met in his office this morning with Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley and both Democratic and Republican legislative leaders.

"There was unanimous support in principle that we must defeat the effort to destroy the idea that Michigan cannot meet financing needs such as this one," Romney said.

The program for financing the stadium was suggested by a special committee of financial experts appointed by Romney to study the problem.

Red Warns Fighting Would Hit America

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union warned the United States today that any attack on Cuba would start World War III.

Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky also said that Russia and its allies would regard a war against Cuba as a war against all of them.

"This war will be waged not only in Cuban territory but on the territory of the United States too," Malinovsky said in a major speech at ceremonies marking the 45th anniversary of the Soviet armed forces.

Malinovsky issued his warning at a time when Soviet ships were reported en route to Cuba to remove several thousand of the estimated 17,000 Russian troops stationed there.

Congress Impatient for Cuba Troop Exit

WASHINGTON (UP)—Angered by a MIG fighter foray against an American shrimp boat, Congress is waiting impatiently for word of Soviet troop withdrawals from Cuba.

President Kennedy made it clear Thursday at his news conference the United States is prepared to react forcefully to any future attacks on its ships or planes.

But the President said "we will have to wait and see now in the coming months" what the Soviets do about pulling out their uniformed men and technicians. He predicted a start on this in the next three weeks.

About the only aspect of the President's report that was encouraging to congressional leaders was his statement that he had ordered the Defense Department "to insure that action will be taken against any vessel or aircraft of the United States over international waters in the Caribbean."

This seemed to approximate the "shoot to kill" orders proposed by several senators. But Kennedy did not make it clear whether U.S. fighters would engage in "hot pursuit" of any attacking Cuban planes—a follow-up action he said he would take as suggested by Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Armed Services Committee.

Russell suggested in an interview today that Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro may have ordered his MIG pilots to fire at the shrimp boat "in hope of stirring things up while the Russians are still in Cuba."

Wagner will announce "within the next 24 hours" his next step in trying to end the blackout, a city hall spokesman said.

Fasting Has Benefits and Pitfalls

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In the Bible, prayer and fasting are mentioned repeatedly in the same phrase, as if they were twin features of a devout life.

This Biblical habit of speech has a quiet ring to many modern Christians. They recognize the importance of prayer. But they look upon fasting as an out-worn custom.

With Lent beginning next Wednesday, this is an appropriate time to re-examine the ancient practice of fasting. What is it? What does the Bible say about it? What are its benefits and pitfalls?

Fasting is defined in Webster's unabridged dictionary as "voluntary abstinence from food, or from certain types of food, for a space of time as a spiritual discipline."

The most rigorous kind of fasting is to take no nourishment whatever. But the person who "gives up candy for Lent" is also fasting, after a fashion.

From a religious viewpoint, the significant thing about any fast is that it is a voluntary act of self-denial.

There are many references to fasting in the Old Testament. From the time of Moses, Jews fasted on special occasions as an expression of humility, repentance or sorrow.

CONTROLLED BY LAWS

At the start of the New Testament era, fasting had become a prescribed ritual, bound up with other religious duties in an intricate system of laws.

The Pharisees fasted every Monday and Thursday, and made sure that everyone knew it.

Many Christians today seem to have the impression that Jesus criticized the Pharisees for fasting. But this is a serious misreading of the Scripture. His criticism was aimed at the ostentatious way in which the Pharisees paraded the piety.

In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus told his disciples: "When you fast, do not look dismal, like the hypocrites, for they disguise their faces that their fasting may be seen by men—but avoid your head and wash your face, that your fasting may not be seen by men but by your father who is in heaven."

These words clearly imply that Jesus expected his disciples to fast. They also seem to say that fasting, when done as a secret act of devotion, is pleasing to God.

The New Testament records that Jesus himself fasted, at the start of his ministry, when he was wrestling with the temptation to win men to his side the easy way.

EARLY CHRISTIANS FASTED

The early Christian church followed his example. Passages in the Book of Acts and St. Paul's letters indicate that fasts were observed especially in times of crisis, when the apostles felt a particular need of divine guidance.

No one could be more articulate than Paul in asserting that Christian living is a matter of responding to God's love, rather than merely keeping the law.

But it was also Paul who insisted on the need for "bringing the body under subjection" by deliberate acts of self-discipline, such as fasting.

The apostle warned that men and women who are slaves to their own appetites are not free to hear and obey the voice of God.

Fasting has its pitfalls. The main one, as Jesus pointed out, is pride.

It can take the crude form of bragging about what you've given up for Lent. Or it can take the subtler and more dangerous form of secretly feeling superior to those who aren't fasting.

But nonfasting can equally be an occasion of spiritual pride. The person who says that he doesn't need to fast during a special period like Lent because "I practice Christian self-denial all year round" is not far from the Pharisees.

CONFUSED IDEA

Fasting also can do more spiritual harm than good if it is undertaken in the belief that its main purpose is to "strengthen will power."

This may indeed be a by-product of fasting, but the person who makes it his chief objective is apt to forget that Christians rely not on their own strength, but on the grace of God.

"The purpose of Lent is not self control," says Peter Day, editor of the Living Church magazine, "but the giving over of self to the control of God."

"Fasting is not so much for the growth of strength of character as it is a getting out of the way of those things which, though good in themselves, obscure the leading of the Holy Spirit in our lives."

Each person must decide for himself which bodily appetites and pet pleasures have gained such a hold on him that they obscure the leading of the Holy Spirit."

Others may conclude that they need this form of self-discipline at least as much as Jesus did.

Wixom Landowner Pursues Secession

WIXOM — Thanks to a Michigan statute which city officials here describe as antiquated, secession did not end with the Civil War.

Vernon Spencer, who owns a dairy on the outskirts of the city, has stirred up a hornets' nest by again trying to secede from the city.

"Wixom has nothing to offer me," Spencer said. "It's loaded with taxes."

The law in question permits people on the outer borders of a city to disconnect their farm lands. However, it also stipulates that the property must be strictly agricultural.

In his previous attempt to disconnect in 1959, Spencer withdrew his petition when it appeared it would be turned down by Oakland County Circuit Court because his property contained an air strip.

Since that time, his property has been divided to exclude the air strip. It is at 51225 W. Pontiac Trail.

BILL ON FILE

Spencer's attorney, Clarence Smith, noted that a bill has been filed in Circuit Court to disconnect the farm lands. He added that city officials have been notified.

City attorney Gene Schmelz said yesterday: "We intend to fight it."

"The city," he said, "wants the property in the city."

"You can't properly run your city if everyone's going to disconnect."

house Rhubarb Growers Association, the Utica Rotary Club and the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service.

The official opening by state dignitaries at 1:30 p.m. will follow a noon luncheon at La Honda Lounge. Tours of rhubarb houses are scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m.

Prize-winning rhubarb will be auctioned off on the main floor at 3 p.m. From 1:30 to 4 p.m., cooking demonstrations are planned to interest area home-makers.

The grower of the top prize-winning rhubarb will be crowned king of the festival during the evening ceremonies which begin at 8.

Also at that time, Queen Cynthia Wales, 18-year-old Utica High School graduate, and her two maids of honor will be presented.

The awarding of prizes will precede the dance which climaxes the day's activities.

Proceeds from the event will be contributed to the Oakland County Crippled Children's Society.

Zoning Plans Up for Airing

Rochester Proposal Has Been Changed

ROCHESTER — Proposals calling for rezoning of the central business district and Walnut Street will be rehearsed at Monday's council meeting. Lively discussion is expected among the council members.

Changes have been made in the plan since it was presented on Jan. 28 by George Vilcan of Vilcan-Leman & Associates, Inc., of Southfield, planning consultants for the village.

However, the rezoning of Walnut Street from business to general office use is retained in the proposal.

This was challenged by businessmen at the previous hearing, on grounds that Walnut Street would eventually be needed for commercial development, being so close to the central business district.

At that time Vilcan pointed out that the zoning plan was flexible and if needed it could be amended for the general good of the community.

He also maintained that to zone something before a physical plan is available is not good policy.

Walnut Street could be changed back to a business zone if in the future this appeared to be a sound move, according to Vilcan.

The meeting will take place at the Municipal Building, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Constitution Topic at Milford Church

MILFORD — The pros and cons of the proposed state constitution will be discussed at an open meeting at the Methodist Church here March 9.

Thomas Sharpe, a Republican delegate to the constitutional convention from Howell, will explain the document and answer questions.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

SHARON ANN JOHNS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Johns, 9877 Coledale Court, Union Lake, announce the engagement of their daughter Sharon Ann to Clarence C. Cassidy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shyril Cassidy of 9471 Portage Trail, Union Lake. An August wedding is planned.

State Clergy to Speak for Lenten Series

OXFORD — A series of special Lenten programs featuring Methodist ministers from throughout the state will be presented weekly beginning Feb. 27 at the Oxford Methodist Church.

Speaker at the first meeting will be Dr. Glenn M. Frye, University Methodist Church, East Lansing.

Other scheduled speakers include Rev. Bernus Warfield of Kalamazoo, March 6; Rev. Carl Adams, Pontiac, March 13; Rev. Elsie Johns, Farmington, March 21; Russell Beck of Bay City, March 27; and Rev. Roland Liesman of Wyandotte, April 2.

A potluck dinner starting at 6:30 p.m. will precede each meeting.

Area Church Will Show Movie on Evolution

DAVISBURG — A color film entitled "Monkey Business" will be shown to the public at the First Baptist Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the church auditorium.

The film deals with a high school student searching for the truth about evolution.

Before Lake Orion, Oxford Event

Well-Wishers Swamp Rotary Clubs

The Lake Orion and Oxford Rotary clubs are receiving congratulatory messages from around the world, as they complete preparation for their joint 25th anniversary celebration Monday.

Some 250 well-wishing letters and telegrams have been received so far, from Calcutta, India, to Nova Scotia, Canada.

The unique celebration, the first in Rotary history, is to be staged at the Indianwood Country Club, Orion Township, beginning with a dinner at 7 p.m.

The program following will feature guest speaker Jack Minnoch, executive director of the National Hide Association.

Minnoch, a journalist, has spoken to businessmen across the country for the past 18 years.

TOASTS FLAGS

Also included in the program will be an exchange of toasts between the two groups. Toastmaster will be William O'Brien of the Lake Orion Club.

Rep. William Brownfield, R-Oakland County, has sent United States flags, which have been flown over the Capitol, to each of the clubs. They will be presented as a part of the program.

Past Rotarians of each club and Rotary dignitaries from throughout the state and Canada will be on hand to take part in the festivities.

The Oxford club officially received its charter in January 1938 and took on as its first project the organization of the Lake Orion club.

Since then both groups have been active in public service, sponsoring everything from scholarships to a brownie troop.

Southfield Man Bound Over on Sniping Charge

NOVI TOWNSHIP — Gary S. Goodrum, 22-year-old church organist, yesterday was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court on the charge of assault with intent to murder.

The Southfield man accused by police of the Jan. 31 sniping at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Race, was examined by Township Justice of the Peace Robert K. Anderson.

Police said Goodrum had admitted firing a shot from outside the Race home at 2900 Dixon Road, narrowly missing Mrs. Race who was in a bedroom. Arraignment is set for Monday at 9 a.m.

Auto Production Slips This Week

DETROIT (AP) — Passenger car production in the United States slackened slightly this week with assemblies totaling an estimated 146,435 cars, Automotive News said yesterday.

This compared with 149,566 units last week and 134,750 in the similar week of 1962.

Part of the drop was accounted for by Chrysler Corp., which closed one Detroit assembly plant for inventory adjustments this week and which experienced sporadic production due to labor disagreements at its St. Louis plant.

To Dedicate West Jr. High

Open House to Follow Rochester Ceremony

ROCHESTER — Dedication of the new West Junior High School here—opened and fully occupied on Oct. 29—will take place at 3 p.m. Sunday.

An open house will follow at 4 p.m.

Oakland University Chancellor Durward B. Varner will deliver the main address of the dedication ceremonies for the $13-million educational facility.

Peter Kjolhede, president of the student council, will emcee the event.

The one-story, charcoal-gray brick building was constructed with funds provided by a $3.1-million issue approved by voters on May 9, 1961.

It contains 11 classrooms and two rooms each for science and home economics, as well as rooms for typing, shop, drafting, art, band and vocal music, a library and a language laboratory. Planned for 600 students, the structure already holds 43 more than it was scheduled to accommodate.

Pythian Units Mark Birthday

Two Pontiac Knights of Pythias lodges joined together this week to celebrate the 99th anniversary of the founding of the order.

Pontiac Lodge No. 19 and Fellowship Lodge No. 277 were accompanied by their respective auxiliaries, Pythian Sisters' Fannie Tompkins Temple and Mizpah Temple, in the Tuesday event, held at Castle Hall, 183 W. Huron St.

Chancellor Commanders Randall Wilson of No. 19 and Reine Perko of No. 277 were in charge of the program, which included an after-dinner talk by Past Grand Chancellor Edmund Unger of Oxford.

China Trade Official to Confer in Britain

LONDON (AP)—A Red Chinese trade official has accepted a British invitation to visit his country for talks on expanding business.

The Board of Trade announced Thursday night that Lu Hsiang-chang, deputy minister for foreign trade, will arrive late in March.

Britain's policy, according to statements by Prime Minister Macmillan and other government leaders, is to encourage normal development of trade with China, excluding British export of war-potential materials to the Chinese.

Walls and Futuna Islands, French Protectorates since 1877, became French Overseas Territories in 1959.

Washington Deserving of Reverence Paid Him

In honoring the birthday of GEORGE WASHINGTON, we recognize one of the most illustrious figures in history.

Citizens of our happy land might well ponder the course of events had not the dedicated patriot and leader appeared in his fated role. It is conceivable that our country might today be no more than a satellite of the United Kingdom.

That any others among the protagonists of the rebellion might have filled the hero's place is unthinkable. He alone possessed the qualities of leadership, diplomacy and spiritual strength needed to draw the jealous colonies into a semblance of unity and guide them through eight years of bitter warfare to the establishment of a free republic.

Washington was sorely tested during those desperate years as he coped with opposing sympathies among the colonists themselves, apathy and exploitation on the part of those in the forefront of the struggle, and military bungling by his staff that many times threatened disaster.

When independence was won, with a president to be chosen for the emergent nation, GEORGE WASHINGTON received a unanimous vote of the electors of both factions that had arisen over the struggle for ratification of the Constitution.

The reverent designation, The Father of His Country, was not and is not an empty title.

First U.S. Astronaut Still in Space Field

It was just a year ago, that JOHN H. GLENN JR. took what JAMES RESTON of the New York Times described as "the greatest American ride since PAUL REVERE."

The whole nation watched or listened from lift-off to pick-up as the astronaut circled three times around the earth to become the first American to make an orbital flight. The Soviet Union's Gagarin and Titov had done it earlier, of course, but not in front of the klieg lights.

Later Project Mercury flights by MALCOLM SCOTT CARPENTER (three orbits on May 24) and WALTER SCHIRRA (six orbits on Oct. 3) were so much icing on the cake. That the United States still trails in the manned flight field was made clear last August.

Two Soviet cosmonauts, Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich, orbited simultaneously, circling the earth 64 and 48 times, respectively, in separate space ships and were able to maneuver their craft within a few miles of each other.

Next on the agenda for the American space program is the 22-orbit flight of L. GORDON COOPER JR., originally scheduled for April 2. Troubles with the electrical system of the Atlas rocket vehicle have delayed the trip until at least mid-May.

After that comes Project Gemini—a rendezvous in space between a two-man space craft and a space station, as a prelude to the moon shot.

Glenn, meanwhile, has been assigned to serve as overall leader and supervisor for the Apollo Project, as the lunar shot is known. A big space craft will be flown to the vicinity of the moon, and a small space craft will be launched from it to make the actual moon landing.

The assignment does not imply that GLENN himself will pilot the space craft involved. Indeed, he is probably considered a bit old at the ripe age of 41, but his over-all conduct and accomplishment of the first flight certainly should make him a contender.

The Man About Town

A Historic Date

First President Honored by a Grateful Republic

By HOWARD HELDENBRAND

No one is better versed on the "little known about the well-known" than my Lake Orion friend and genealogist Wilbur J. Seger

Reminiscing at lunch the other day, he had some timely bits about the Father of Our Country:

● That now familiar term was first applied to the great patriot in 1799 in a German almanac, "Nord Americanische Kalender," published in Lancaster, Pa. The publisher was Francis Bailey, a brigadier general who served under Washington at Valley Forge.

● George Washington never delivered his famous "Farewell Address." Instead, it was published in Claypoole's "American Daily Advertiser" in Philadelphia, Sept. 17, 1796.

● The most unusual inaugural gown ever worn by a First Lady adorned Martha Washington. Of salmon pink fabric, doubtless imported from London, it was hand-painted with a gray-white ribbon chain forming medallion spaces. In the larger medallion, the decorations include native wildflowers, violets, butternuts, daisies, morning glories and arbutus — and native insects like grasshoppers, flies, ladybugs and wasps.

Those envious feminine readers with ideas of copying the gown may have a gander — that's about all that isn't on it — at the Smithsonian Institution.

And concludes Mr. S. George Washington was never licked until he got on a postage stamp — and then only when his back was turned!

One of the most active performers on his feet (speaking, not running) is MSU's Holy Toledo! I mean Oakland University's — Chancellor Durward B. (Woody) Varner — Not only is he at home discussing on most any subject, but the column's protruding ears have heard few equals at introducing other speakers.

In fact, those members of society who frequently have no alternative than to expose themselves to the vocal vagaries of others have been heard to say that the most agreeable outcome would be for the program speaker not to show up — and just let Woody keep on introducing him in absentia.

From Edward Wright Supt. Dist. No. 2, Oakland County Road Commission — The MAT's best wishes for the program held this evening at Davidsburg Township Hall for Leon W. Clark The retiree's service spans 34 years... The MAT's best wishes for many years of enjoyable leisure and good health.

A well-merited pat on the back comes from a kind-hearted lady for her neighbor George Kern of 45 W. Chicago.

It seems that a water main burst Wednesday, and a city crew of four arrived around 4 p.m. to make repairs.

They went down about ten feet — not easy in the frozen ground and freezing weather — to get the trouble... finished and got the water flowing five hours later.

The thoughtful Mr. K. thereupon invited the foursome in for a warm snack and coffee — which, needless to say, was warmly received.

A deep bow of commendation for this fine bit of solitude.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Cold War Credo

David Lawrence Says:

U.S. Could Deal Blow to Medicine

WASHINGTON — It's going to be harder to get a doctor when you are sick, harder to get into a hospital, and harder to take care of the young as well as the old who become ill in the future — if the federal government intervenes in the field of medical care as just recommended to Congress by President Kennedy.

Time was LAWRENCE when, if you were sick, you could get a doctor to come to your home. Today most patients have to go to the doctor's office except when gravely ill.

There simply aren't enough doctors now. This is primarily because medical aid is covered in part by private insurance plans that make it less costly. Persons who used to take care of minor ailments themselves of ten seek medical aid nowadays.

The insurance idea itself is a good one. But until the shortage of doctors produced by the existing plans is overcome, the proposed intervention by the federal government with free medical care for certain age groups will only intensify the problem for almost everybody.

Elderly persons require individual care and continuous observation, but if there is a shortage of physicians, these patients will be neglected no matter how much of the bill the government is willing to pay.

It's good politics, of course, for any president to champion social-welfare legislation, but free medical attention for millions of citizens will constitute in the field of welfare benefits the biggest single expense imposed on all the people.

Taxes are to be raised to finance the medical plan proposed by the President. Not only will everybody's social security rates go up, but the tax will be imposed on the first $5,000 of salary instead of the current figure of $4,800 a year.

TURNING INTO TAX HIKE

The purpose, of course, is to collect about $10 billion more over the next five years. Just what this does to the administration program for a "tax cut" is not readily calculated, but it is another example of how the much-talked-about "tax cut" is rapidly turning into a tax hike.

With the objective of the President's plan — to provide medical care for the aged — there will be little dissent. But the question really is whether those families which can afford to take care of their own aged members shall be required to pay taxes to support a plan in which their own relatives — though able to afford the medical care — would get it at government expense.

The "medical care" agitation will, moreover, raise false hopes. The proposed plan doesn't cover medical treatment but mostly the charges for hospitalization and related services.

The political value, however, of proclaiming "medical care for the aged" will continue to be there, and it's politics that's really back of the whole crusade.

The members of the profession are men and women who know medical conditions in this country and are familiar also with what "socialized medicine" has meant in various other countries.

They fear that the new plan someday will result in "socialized medicine" — a scheme in which the government runs the medical-care program, pays the fees of doctors, and standardizes their incomes.

The administration denies that its plan will ever bring "socialized medicine," but the doctors know that, if the medical profession is overwhelmed with cases due to the free service programs provided by the government, the demand on the time of all doctors will be so great that the government will have to step in to try to bring order out of the chaos that will ensue.

Nobody objects to better medical care for the aged, as well as for everybody else, but there are serious differences of opinion as to whether those who seek to make political capital out of the issue will produce frustration in the medical profession and a lowering of the high standards of medical care which have long prevailed in America.

Bob Considine Says:

Pope John XXIII a Hero; Decorated in World War I

NEW YORK — People... places... events... The memoirs of Adm. "Cat" Brown, retired commander of the Sixth Fleet, will contain a footnote on the history of the papacy, if "Cat" ever records his adventures.

The intrepid American admiral paid Pope John XXIII a courtesy call not long after the pontiff's election. Brown appeared in formal dress, wearing his medals rather than his ribbons. He checked his sword outside the Pope's study.

A pleasant visit ensued. When it came time for the admiral to leave the Pope accompanied him to the door, giving the faintly tinkling medals.

"I looked up and beheld a great number of Italian troops bearing down on me with bayonets fixed to their rifles. They were attacking a position somewhere beyond me. But I couldn't be sure. So I charged in that direction also, just a little ahead of their bayonets."

"What happened then?" Pope sighed, "and when the medals were handed out they gave me one, too."

Wonder how President Kennedy got along with President Betancourt linguistically. The Venezuelan's English is, if anything, worse than the American's Spanish. But Betancourt prefers to struggle along with it.

The Herald staff force was invited to lunch with him a couple of years ago in Caracas. We were chomping away tentatively at an omelet-like dish when one of us asked the host what was in it.

"It has got flowers in it," Betancourt said. All chomping ceased instantly. We sat there with our mouths filled.

One of Betancourt's aids sighed. "He means 'flavors,'" he assured us.

Reviewing Other Editorial Pages

New Leader

of British Labor Party

"The British papers take their lead at the political scene since Mr. Harold Wilson's election to the Labor Party leadership."

The Observer (independent) says that his election and the government's failure to get into the Common Market has created an entirely new situation. In spite of the European failure, the paper says, it is still premature to write Mr. Macmillan's political obituary, and the government's popularity may rise again. The Labor Party's credentials for power need careful examination:

"Labor reckons on exploiting discontent, its hopes could be disappointed, and Mr. Wilson's reputation as a brilliant parliamentarian may not be enough to fill the gap left by Mr. Gaiskell's death. The contrast between the government and the Labor Party is not as clear-cut as the opposition would like. It is at its sharpest in defense matters where Labor spokesmen can openly advocate the policies which the government can introduce only ambiguously. Thanks to Mr. Gaiskell's efforts the Labor Party can point out that its defense policy would strengthen the Western Alliance and is in line with the Kennedy administration's policy."

The Sunday Telegraph (Conservative) recalls that no one under twenty-five remembers at all what a Labor government is like.

Voice of the People:

New Yorker Concerned About Labor Disputes

Why are we troubled with an increasing number of labor disputes for which there seems to be no apparent solution? Remember the 119-day steel strike which started a recession? It will take many, many years for the workers to make up their losses from the gain in their pay.

Look at the tugboat strike in New York; the airlines flight engineers' problems; the newspaper shutdowns in Cleveland and New York; the dock-workers' strike just ended; the coming railroad problems with the diesel firemen; the transit strike in Philadelphia; and the next round of steel-labor negotiations.

The answers are a product of expediency created under conditions of complete crisis and now we live in an Allee-in-Wonderland world. The Secretary of Labor was working nights and weekends to bring agreement between airlines, many of which are losing money, and the organized pilots, who already make more money than the labor secretary! Union plumbers make more than high school principals. A bulldozer operator makes more than the president of a small college.

Somewhere the idea of getting something for nothing developed shortly after leaving school. It is the gist for the mill of labor organizations — to do less and receive more.

'Interest in Safety Is Commendable'

In reference to the recent editorial, it was pointed out that the nation's traffic fatality toll is much higher than the airline fatality rate. It was shown that this loss of life costs ten days a day without the public getting too excited or worried.

The editorial brought out facts that we in safety know only too well. It is encouraging to see the editorial staff of this paper recognize the facts and bring them to public attention. The Pontiac Press is again to be congratulated for its fine contribution in the interest of public safety.

Resident Favors Proposed Airport

I am 100 per cent for the proposed Oakland County Airport to be built in the area of the present Allen Airport.

People against the airport only look on the dark side and don't weigh all the facts. Those who live near the airport are afraid that some day the average pilot will be flying jets. They are afraid of jets because of the airline crashes. The light jet that the private pilot would fly, if and when he does, is just as safe as the light aircraft, which is as safe as a bicycle.

The FAA rejected the proposed jet airport in 1961 because of lack of air space. The traffic pattern of the proposed county airport would be a lot smaller and would not interfere with any other airport any more than the Allen traffic pattern now.

Britain, to insist that this country is determined to preserve its independence and take orders from no one? If only the Conservatives would proclaim this message, the votes would come flooding back."

The Sunday Times (Conservative) says a main hope for the Conservatives in looking towards youth, and it points to President Kennedy's success. The paper suggests the threat of this idea is undoubtedly operating against Mr. Macmillan himself and writes:

"Yet, the idea that the Conservative Party needs a new dynamic and must have it cannot really be denied. Mr. Macmillan will take a realistic view of the possibilities of Conservative leadership. He will have to reckon with the call for youth."

A political commentator in The People (left-wing) sees the election of Mr. Wilson as a unique opportunity to rejuvenate not only the Labor Party, but British politics generally. The commentator suggests Mr. Wilson will probably become Prime Minister before he reaches his forty-eighth birthday and says the country would welcome a younger man.

Belgians Sue U.N. for $12 Million-Plus

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgians are claiming more than $12 million in damages from the United Nations as a result of the fighting in Katanga.

Deputy Foreign Minister Henri Fayat told Parliament Thursday 1,010 claims collected at the Belgian Embassy in Leopoldville will be forwarded to U.N. headquarters. He indicated more will be submitted.

U.N. and Katanga forces battled in Elisabethville, capital of Katanga, in September and December 1961, and again last month. A number of Belgian residents were killed, injured or lost property in the fighting.

Dems Say Hopes False on Jobless

LANSING (AP) — A top Democratic leader says Gov. George Romney has raised false hopes and played loosely with the need for jobs in Michigan.

The criticism was leveled yesterday by Democratic State Chairman Zelon Perency, who said Romney "is just beginning to reap the harvest of his March 16, 1962 deal with conservative Republicans at the constitutional convention."

Perency said he agreed with House Democratic Leader Joseph Kowalski of Detroit that a major part of Romney's economic program probably is unconstitutional because of a provision in the finance and taxation article which says "the credit of the state shall not be granted to, nor in aid of any person, association or corporation, public or private."

The Democratic chairman contended that the prohibition against municipal bonding for private purposes was stronger in the proposed new constitution than in the present constitution.

Emphasizing that Democrats are not opposing the economic program that Romney has presented, Perency said:

"We want to make it crystal clear that the Democratic party will support all honest and practical efforts at creating more jobs for our people...."

"If the governor is sincerely interested in quick implementation of the program he has proposed, he should support a simple amendment to the constitution which would remove the restriction."

"The con-con proposition will require a major patching-up to all municipal bonding for private purposes."

Kowalski has asked Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley for an opinion on whether pending legislation, which has Romney's backing, is constitutional under both the present document and the proposed constitution.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times Co. omitted yesterday any action on the quarterly dividend on common stock that would normally have been paid during March.

The newspaper, one of nine in New York closed by a labor dispute since early December, paid $1.25 in previous quarters.

The board of directors did declare the regular quarterly dividend of $1.37 1/2 cents per share on 5 1/4 per cent cumulative prior preferred stock. This is payable April 1 to holders of record March 14.

Still Fear Friendly Giant

Canada Isn't So Anti-U.S. After All

By WILLIAM NEVILLE
OTTAWA (UPI) — Despite recent differences, there is little sign of genuine anti-American sentiment in Canada.

Fears of the "little guy living beside the friendly giant," always close to the surface here, remain, however.

And there was widespread criticism of the U.S. State Department for the tone and handling of the John Diefenbaker's stand on the explosive nuclear defense issue.

economic pressures from south of the border.

In recent months, Canadian politicians have given more and more prominence to the Kennedy Trade Expansion Act as the key to this country's future in the shifting international economic pattern.

Less inhibited private businessmen now talk openly of formal action to bring the Canadian and U.S. economies into even closer interplay.

What evidence is available indicates, rather, that American stock in this country is at a new high.

The personal popularity of President Kennedy, buoyed anew by his handling of the October Cuban crisis, is unabated. Even amid the government's criticism of an "inept and heavy-handed" State Department on the nuclear issue, Canadians applauded an air of leadership and decision in Washington that they found lacking in their own politicians.

Public and press reaction to the specific nuclear defense controversy seemed conditioned by the desire for leadership and by two other factors that have tended to give this country's relations with the United States a new place in Canadian thinking.

First, from the Cuban crisis came a previously unexpressed recognition of "our common perils."

At the height of the October crisis, the majority of criticism in this country was directed not at Uncle Sam for his stand on Cuba, but at Canada's political leaders for their tardiness in lining up solidly behind Washington.

Secondly, Britain's strong desire to join the "new" Europe has been interpreted in this country as at least the beginning of the end of the traditional commonwealth association.

Canada has relied on this to balance the powerful social and and the Canadian political crisis that followed.

The politicians had the stage and Diefenbaker claimed the spotlight with his charges of "unwarranted intrusion" by the United States into Canadian affairs.

It was comments like this that made news in the United States, and Americans concluded, understandably, that their northern neighbor was seething with anti-American feeling.

Segments of the Canadian press and public now are trying to set the record straight. The influential Montreal Star, for example, said: "Americans are feeling much too sensitive."

The Montreal Gazette saw the situation this way: "The blame lies not entirely on one side . . . it must be fairly admitted that Canadian policy on defense has long been incoherent."

"The United States has shown remarkable patience and forbearance over a long period of time in this most vital issue," the Winnipeg Free Press said.

A poll conducted by the Ottawa Citizen showed only two critical of the United States out of 16 questioned.

Sample comment: "Today there are only big fish and little fish. As a big fish, the U.S. has a perfect right to tell us what she thinks."

UNWELCOME—Marine Col. Robert Debs Heim, chief of a $9-man U.S. Naval mission, has been declared unwelcome in Haiti and given until today to leave the country.

Hits Proposal on Weighing of Meats

LANSING (AP) — A proposal to allow consumers to weigh prepackaged meats would cost them money and would not insure accurate weights, a chain store spokesman contends.

But Sen. Raymond Dzendzel, D-Detroit, said the proposal requiring grocers to make a retail food scale available to meat-buying consumers was intended "to protect the general public in the weighing of meats."

John Rose, representing the Michigan Chain-Store Council presented a case against the proposal at a public hearing yesterday in the Senate.

Rose said adoption of the bill would eliminate the marketing of meat through prepackaging and thus would add costs which would be passed on to the consumer.

In addition, the consumer has more protection under the present system, Rose said, because meats are weighed to the nearest one-hundredth of a pound and wholesalers package some surplus to allow for shrinkage on the shelves.

Rose and other grocery store spokesmen said the bill was highly impractical because in order to check the net weight of a package of meat, the consumer would have to unwrap the package before weighing it.

The grocersmen agreed that consumers would be unable to weigh meats as accurately as prepackaging firms do.

N-Sub Launches Polaris Missile Off Cape Coast

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The nuclear submarine Thomas Jefferson successfully launched a Polaris missile yesterday while submerged off the Florida coast.

The Jefferson is the 10th submarine to launch a Polaris in test and training exercises here. The earlier craft are on patrol in North Atlantic waters.

The firing occurred about 30 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral. In keeping with a long-held secrecy policy on Polaris submarine launchings, the Defense Department did not report the shot to newsmen.

Wisconsin's cigarette tax is expected to raise $50 million by 1972 for wildlife conservation.

Labor Leaders Decide to Rake JFK's Domestic Policies

By NORMAN WALKER
Associated Press Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Top labor leaders, it was learned today, have decided after much soul searching to file a bitter protest direct with President Kennedy on his domestic economic policies.

The biggest demonstration yet at AFL-CIO winter meetings here is a secret session held on the Kennedy economic program. The labor leaders left the President's proposals, including his tax reduction plan, are too feeble even if enacted by Congress to effectively curb unemployment.

The question was how far labor wanted to go, as a political ally of the President and the Democratic party, in voicing criticism of Kennedy's policies.

The decision—after thorough debate, the details of which are yet unknown—is that the AFL-CIO has prepared statements for week-end release that will hit only mildly at Kennedy tax and general economic policies. The statements will not mention, however, that George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and other top federation leaders, including Walter Reuther, United Auto Workers Union president, have agreed to convey personally much stronger objections to the White House.

From talking with union chiefs, it is obvious that they are disappointed at the domestic economic results during the first half of Kennedy's administration. Acutely aware of the President's troubles with a balky Congress, they nevertheless feel that he could have done more.

On the other hand, they decided not to say as much publicly. Reuther wanted to hit much harder at Kennedy personally in statements drafted for public consumption outlining labor economic views. Reuther proposed language that was bitter and caustic against Kennedy, it was learned. Meany, however, reportedly urged a more diplomatic approach. He was said to have told Reuther that he agreed with every word Reuther wanted to say but questioned the wisdom of saying it publicly.

Free on Bond in Shooting

Victims of Gunplay Said Improving

A wealthy Troy businessman is free on $5,000 bond today. He is charged with shooting and critically wounding his wife and her 26-year-old companion early yesterday.

Howard W. Mordue, 32, was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Police say he admitted firing six shots with a .25-caliber revolver at his wife Barbara, 33, and Nelson Hartman.

The two stepped out of her car, in a Troy bowling alley parking lot, when they saw Mordue drive up about 2:30 a.m., police said.

Both are reported slightly improved today at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak. Yesterday they were listed in critical condition.

Mordue told Oakland County Asst. Prosecutor Robert L. Templin Jr. that he located the pair after being telephoned at his home, 4016 Chestnut Hill Drive, by a private detective he had hired to follow his wife.

After the shooting he summoned Troy police. He surrendered and turned over the revolver to them when they arrived.

Hartman and Mrs. Mordue, a mother-of-two, were rushed to the hospital.

Hartman, who lives at 105 Cutting Blvd., Troy, was shot in the left arm, leg, ear and abdomen. Mordue's wife was hit in the back.

Arraigned yesterday before Troy Justice of the Peace Charles Losey, Mordue demanded examination, which was set for 1:30 p.m. March 11.

Mordue is owner of the Medical Arts Building, Highland Park, and other real estate in the area. Following the arraignment Mordue was admitted to St. Clair Hospital, Detroit, a private psychiatric hospital on the advice of his physician, Dr. Emanuel Tarnay.

Plan Search for Housewife

BROOKLYN (AP)—Police and volunteers from seven Michigan counties are to take part in a massive search tomorrow for a missing Brooklyn housewife.

Mrs. Joan Watkins, 28, mother of a baby girl, has been missing since she drove to a landmark after midnight last Saturday to wash clothing.

A state police plane and a tracking dog searched the Brooklyn and Columbia Township areas yesterday without success.

Some 600 to 700 volunteers and state police and sheriff's deputies from seven surrounding counties, plus a U.S. Air Force auxiliary patrol expected to include 200 men, will participate in the search tomorrow, beginning at 9 a.m.

The search will be concentrated on the cottages and lake front homes around Brooklyn, a community of 1,000 population about 20 miles southeast of Jackson.

Rewards totaling $350 have been offered for information which could lead to the discovery of Mrs. Watkins' whereabouts.

Plan Comb Sea Lane for Ship Debris

MIAMI (UPI)—Five Coast Guard planes search the blue-green waters of one of the world's busiest sea lanes again today, seeking an answer to the disappearance of a 534-foot chemical tanker and her 39 crewmen.

A cutter also participated in the "little hope" search for survivors of the Marine Sulphur Queen—spurred on by the finding of lifejackets and other debris in the Gulfstream near the Florida Keys and Miami.

The Marine Sulphur Queen sailed out of Beaumont, Tex., 21 days ago bound for Norfolk, with a cargo of molten sulphur heated to 265 degrees in special tanks.

She was last heard from 19 days ago via a personal radio message from a crewman. There was no hint of any trouble aboard.

In Washington, President Kennedy said yesterday the government had no information indicating that the Sulphur Queen was the victim of a Cuban MIG attack like the one against an American shrimp boat.

Accused in Fishing Boat Raid

Cuba Nabs 8 Trying to Land

HAVANA (AP)—The Cuban Navy said today it captured eight men trying to land on Cuba's north coast and accused them of attacking and stealing two Cuban fishing boats. The Navy said it recovered the fishing boats.

The announcement called the men pirates and claimed they worked for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The navy said the arrests were made Thursday night as the men attempted to land on Cuban soil from the two stolen fishing boats.

The Armed Forces Ministry said Thursday Cuban Air Force jets had been looking for the missing boats and that two days ago they sighted a small non-Cuban boat in the Gulf of Mexico but did not attack.

Havana newspapers said the arrested men told Cuban authorities that they were CIA agents. The papers said the men carried weapons, documents, money and "uniforms of the American army."

A government communique said the men were based on a tiny British island identified as Key Elbow, about 30 miles off central Cuba. The announcement reported a protest would be made to the British Embassy.

Italy, with 50 million population, has 3.5 television sets, one for every 14 persons.

Big 3 N-Test Ban Talks Rejected by Soviet Union

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union today rejected any Big Three nuclear test ban talks and said the issue must be hammered out by the entire 17-nation disarmament conference.

Chief Soviet delegate Vasily V. Kuznetsov said Moscow wants the test ban question handled in one package along with the entire subject of general and complete disarmament.

Kuznetsov also indicated that unless the West accepts the Kremlin's take-it-or-leave-it offer to withdraw their "concession" for any on-site inspections at all.

But, in line with American desires to keep negotiations flexible, authoritative sources said the United States has offered to lower to seven the number of yearly on-site policing inspections if the Soviet Union meets other Western terms for a nuclear test ban treaty.

BARGAINING TOOL
The sources said the United States made the move not as a "binding offer," but as a bargaining tool to get the Soviet stalled test ban talks going again.

Up to now, the United States has insisted on a minimum of eight to 10 on-site inspections a year.

Reports from Washington Wednesday that the United States was prepared to lower its terms for a test ban agreement were flatly denied here at that time.

The sources said today the United States made the offer to the Russians before chief American delegate William C. Foster flew to Washington Wednesday to report to President Kennedy.

The sources said the British backed the U.S. offer.

Farrell Gresham said the train car, laden with high volatile ammonium nitrate fertilizer was smoldering. He said pressure within the car may be down enough to prevent an explosion.

Specialized chemical firefighters rushed to the scene. The tiny, rural Arkansas town was imperiled for more than five hours. Three persons were injured.

The Civil Defense official said the danger was believed over at 10 a.m. CST.

However, the danger of toxic fumes from the ammonium nitrate continued and the area remained blocked off.

There was no indication when the families would return to their homes.

The Missouri Pacific freight train and the truck owned by Southern Transport Co. of Shreveport, La., crashed about 5 a.m.

Firemen from El Dorado, eight miles north of Norphlet on Arkansas highway 7, and Monstano Chemical Co. and American Oil Co., fought the fire.

Wants to Start Plans for Oakland U. Plant

Among 27 state building project plans Gov. Romney wants to start immediately are those for a proposed $1.75 million heating plant at Oakland University.

If the legislature approves a $1,000,000 appropriation sought by the governor, $10,000 would be earmarked for a long-range study of Oakland's future heating requirements.

The existing plant is deemed adequate only to meet the present needs of the school.

There are no plans to add any more buildings at Oakland University this year.

Spain Bargains Hard on U.S. Bases

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Despite official Spanish assurances that no great problems should arise, it's a fairly safe bet that Spain will place a high asking price on continued United States use of Spanish bases.

These bases were acquired by an agreement signed Sept. 30, 1953, for a period of 10 years in return for U.S. military and economic assistance.

The renewal date comes up this year and preliminary talks on terms already have been held.

The bases involved include three for the Strategic Air Command from which nuclear attack against the Soviet Union might be launched, and an important supply-base at Rota, near Cadiz, for the Mediterranean 6th Fleet.

Neither Madrid nor Washington has divulged the Spanish asking price, but a suspicion that all was not going smoothly arose when U.S. Deputy Defense Secretary Roswell Gilpatric abruptly canceled plans to arrive in Madrid on Feb. 15 to begin on-the-spot discussions.

Although the growing family of U. S. intercontinental ballistic missiles tends to downgrade the importance of the Spanish air bases, the Naval base at Rota is taking on increasing significance in U. S. defensive plans.

The United States phases out its Jupiter and Thor missile bases in Turkey, Italy and Great Britain. Its offshore defenses against the Soviet Union will depend more and more upon the more efficient and mobile Polaris missile carried by the 41 Polaris submarines expected to be at sea by 1967.

With access both to Atlantic and Mediterranean sea routes, an expanded base at Rota occupies an important part in these plans.

Increased economic aid. More modern weapons, including those with nuclear capabilities.

Greater U.S. support for Generalissimo Francisco Franco's hopes to integrate more fully with Europe, including associate membership in Europe's Common Market.

And perhaps a whopping rental bill for the use of the bases.

No such rent is paid now, although in the last year U.S. military and economic aid amounted to about $100 million.

Since the agreements were made in 1953, the United States has supplied $1.6 billion in such funds.

Spain's comeback in the family of Western nations, after existing for years under the cloud of her past association with Hitler's Germany and Mussolini's Italy, dates from her bases agreement with the United States.

Since then, she has become a member of the United Nations and the world general agreement on tariffs and trade.

A start has been made toward economic recovery and the grip on Spain's internal freedoms has been relaxed somewhat.

Spain's relations with Britain have improved, and President Charles de Gaulle is making friendly gestures.

With the Kennedy administration, relations have been correct and in some cases friendly, but nothing as compared to the Eisenhower administration which made the original deal.

The Spaniards have suspected Washington of downgrading Spain's importance as an ally.

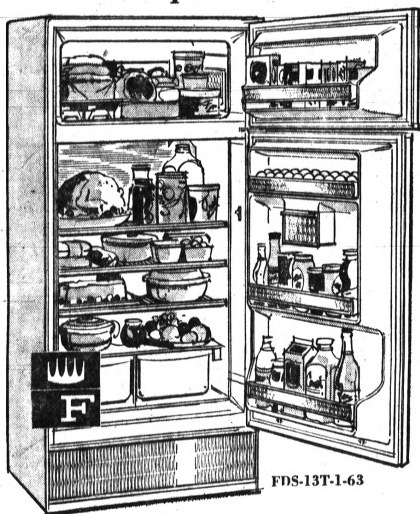

The Persian monarchy, probably the oldest political institution on earth, will mark its 2,500th anniversary this year.

Four different ways to make going more fun than getting there

You can see why one of America's favorite outdoor sports is driving Chevrolets, with four entirely different kinds of cars like these to choose from. There's the Jet-smooth Chevrolet, about as luxurious as you can go without going overboard in price (has lots of new lower upkeep features, too, like a flush-and-dry rocker panel ventilating system that helps remove rust-causing salt and slush); the new low-cost Chevy II, a good-looking, fun-loving car that would send any family packing; another perennial family favorite, the sporty Corvair, whose rear-engine traction will make you think that ice and snow are strictly kid stuff; and for pure driving adventure, America's only homegrown sports car, Corvette—now in two all-new versions with looks that can stop traffic like a rush-hour blizzard. If driving any one of them at your Chevrolet dealer's doesn't have you thinking of places to go, you'd probably rather spend what's left of winter just having yourself a ball around town!

Do Blood Type Tests at Kettering

By BARB SECAN
Biology students at Waterford Kettering High School are performing blood type tests with the circulatory system.

Other projects include the dissection of animal hearts, an outdoor tree study and a tour of a local hospital.

In preparation for the science fair to be held April 4, 5, and 6 in the Kettering gym, individual semester projects are also under way.

The Waterford Kettering Cooperative Education Club hosted a district meeting of over 200 members.

Under the co-op program, students are afforded the opportunity to get on-the-job training. Other schools participating were Birmingham Seaholm, Birmingham Groves, Grosse Pointe, Milford and L'Anse Creuse.

Also participating were Pontiac Central, Pontiac Northern, Waterford Township and Madison Heights.

Following a welcome by James

Frederick, Kettering principal, guest speaker John Brickner summarized plans for the annual co-op meeting to be held at Western Michigan University in March.

Vote on Court at Rochester

Student Jurors Would Render Discipline

By BARBARA DUNFORD
Students will vote today on a controversial subject at Rochester High School: the adoption of a student court by the student council.

Results will be announced Monday.

Acceptance of the court would mean that discipline problems and various cases would be taken to a student judge and jury instead of to the administration. The administration would make final decisions.

Results of a pro and con discussion by the debate club were in favor of the court.

The student consensus, however, seems slightly to the contrary.

LIJOP

Rochester High School's junior class will present its annual J. Hop Saturday at 8 p.m. Dance theme is "Stardust," and decorations will be in the class colors, silver and blue.

The Paxton-Clark Band will be featured at the semiformal affair. Open to all classes, the dance is a tribute to the seniors.

SENIOR PROM

Preparations are now under way for the senior prom May 24. Seniors have finished ordering their announcements and are making final plans not only for the prom, but for graduation activities.

It also will satisfy the demands of the Catholic Youth Organization movement to install physical fitness programs in all Catholic schools.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Retirement Must Be Laced With Usefulness

With the vast improvements in living conditions and modern medicine, there is no choice for most of us but to exceed the Biblical three score years and ten.

The problem is how to do this without being a burden to ourselves and a nuisance to everyone else.

Dr. R. P. Beaty in his treatise, "The Senior Citizen," (Chas. C. Thomas, Springfield, Ill., 1962), points out quite correctly that financial security, although important, is not enough to insure a peaceful old age.

It is important for a person at any age to feel needed; to feel that someone depends on him for some kind of service, no matter how small.

This brings to mind a prominent Chicago lawyer I knew who on reaching 64, announced he was retiring.

He said gleefully that he would move to Florida and do what he had always wanted to do — go fishing.

Well, he did move to Florida and he did go fishing. But what he had not realized was that a hobby is like dessert, something to be taken in small doses, or it loses its savor.

After three weeks of fishing he became bored and after three weeks of boredom he started coming apart emotionally.

Fortunately for him, an alert doctor was able immediately to put his finger on the trouble.

This man was doubly fortunate because there was a lectureship open at the law school of a nearby university.

So he embarked on a second career and was very happy. By the time it was necessary for him to retire from the lectureship, he had made some plans that were realistic for his declining years.

CLUBS FOR AGED

Clubs for the aged are growing in popularity. They foster such activities as discussion groups, movies, lectures, study groups (it's never too late to learn), outings, and various hobbies.

These are fine, but we must never lose sight of the fact that no group of any age should be segregated from persons of other ages.

Life consists of youth, middle age, and old age. Persons of all body, and to maintain a clean, well-groomed appearance.

One of the most constructive activities of some of the clubs for the aged is an employment service which helps to find full-time and part-time paid and volunteer work for those willing and able to do such work.

It is a great mistake for the elderly to think that no one cares about them. The fact that government, churches, universities, welfare agencies, labor unions, and industrial management are all busy working on some phase of the problem shows that society as a whole does care.

After all, everyone who has not yet reached 65 is potentially a senior citizen. It is just a matter of time.

The key to a successful life after retirement depends on starting early in life to build up an adequate retirement income, and a group of interests that will keep you in the mainstream of the life of your community.

In addition to this, it is essential to keep as physically fit as possible by not neglecting your age, and old age. Persons of all body, and to maintain a clean, well-groomed appearance.

Junior Editors Quiz on — FISH

QUESTION: Does a starfish have eyes? How else could he find the animals on which he feeds?

ANSWER: Starfish belong to a very ancient and primitive group of animals called "echinoderms," rated by scientists as lower than mollusks (such as clams and snails) but higher than worms.

These simple creatures do not possess well developed sense organs of higher animals. They don't have real eyes, even if there is a tiny spot on the tip of each arm which is sensitive to light. Probably these sensitive arm tips help a starfish to crawl away from light, which it doesn't like.

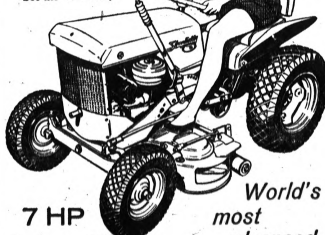

Starfish eat bivalves such as oysters and clams. Having located one of these, the star wraps his arms around and gets a grip with the little "tube feet" or suckers he can push out from underneath.

The clam or oyster will resist for awhile but at last must open its shell. Then the starfish pushes out his stomach through a kind of mouth where the rays join and gets in between the shells where he digests the soft part of the mollusk.

Starfish locate their food, not with their "eye spots," but by a mysterious chemical reaction to an outside stimulus. Many of the more primitive animals instinctively turn toward food and away from danger.

FOR YOU TO DO: Look up starfish the next time you are in a natural history museum. There are many weird varieties, some with arms 24 inches long.

News Policy Airing Set by Administration

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House is inviting representatives of all news-gathering media to an unprecedented April conference that could turn into a donnybrook over the Kennedy administration's public information policies.

The session will be held at a private retreat near Warrenton, Va., April 5-6, it was learned today. Arrangements are being made by Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary.

This does not mean, however, that the meeting will be a one-way affair—with newsmen leveling all of the criticism. There is reason to believe the administration hopes not only to rebut the anticipated criticism but to let loose with some complaints of its own—against the press.

FAMILIAR GROUND

The meeting will be held at Airline House, a retreat in the Virginia hunt country which often has been the site of high-level "brainstorming" sessions involving private groups.

Criticism of the Kennedy administration's information policies was heightened last Oct. 30 when Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, told reporters the Pentagon controlled news as a weapon during the Cuban crisis.

"News flowing from actions taken by the government is part of the weaponry," said Sylvester, who will be one of the participants in the Warrenton meeting. Following this statement, the phrase "managed news" gained wide currency. It came up Thursday at President Kennedy's news conference.

May Craig, Washington correspondent for several Maine newspapers, asked Kennedy to define it and to "tell us why you find it necessary to practice it."

Kennedy replied that he was being charged with something and then asked for a definition. "Let me just say we have had very limited success in managing the news, if that is what we have been trying to do," the President said.

He then asked Miss Craig for her definition. "Well, I don't believe in managed news at all," she replied. "I thought we ought to get everything we want."

Kennedy provoked a round of laughter with this retort: "Well, I think that you should, too, Miss Craig. I am for that."

The President, an avid reader of newspapers, is known to feel that the various news media sometimes are unfair to the administration. A recent news conference, for example, he cited one unnamed newspaper as printing an antiadministration Cuban story on the front page while displaying a proadministration story on the same subject on an inside page.

In a similar connection, it is known that Salinger can cite the number of column inches of space various newspapers have devoted on particular days to what he considers pro and antiadministration stories.

Against this background, it is not difficult to envision a heated battle between administration officials and media representatives at the Warrenton session.

SCOUTING'S HIGHEST AWARD — The rank of Eagle — has been received by two members of Troop 5, Pontiac Congregational Church, Ronald Edwards, 15, of 2825 Otsego Road (left) and Donald de Beauchamp, 15, of 4772 Riverview Road, Waterford Township. Both boys have been scouting since January 1959.

To Be Tried for Hoarding

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Burma's military government has arrested eight leading Rangoon businessmen on charges of hoarding automobile spare parts to sell at huge profits.

Police said the men will be tried by special tribunals set up under a recent edict empowering them to give sentences of between 10 years and life imprisonment.

The police said the businessmen were hoarding the spare parts to create a shortage and planned to sell them at much higher than the 25 per cent profit allowed by the government.

Seize Contraband Gold

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Customs officials seized 244 bars of gold flown in from Hong Kong and consigned to a fictitious person, the newspaper Bangkok World reported yesterday. It estimated the value at 1.5 million baht ($750,000).

Must Be Used Properly

Seat Belts Can Injure

CHICAGO (UPI) — It isn't enough that seat belts are used in cars, a medical magazine said yesterday. They must be used properly.

Dr. William M. Cocke, Jr., and Kenneth K. Meyer, both of the American Medical Association, told of internal injuries suffered by a woman who didn't wear her seat belt properly.

The seat belt, they said, was worn loosely and high across the abdomen and lower rib cage by the "short stocky, 62-year old woman."

The car she was riding in struck another vehicle at 35 miles per hour.

The impact was transmitted by the belt to internal organs resulting in a severely ruptured spleen. The woman was thrown against the windshield and dashboard and suffered fractured ribs and other minor injuries.

Her spleen was removed and she recovered.

The doctors said the belt should be placed snugly over the bony structures of the hip and pelvis with the buckle in the center.

Washington More Like De Gaulle Than JFK?

By RUTH MONTGOMERY
WASHINGTON — If George Washington were alive today to celebrate his 231st birthday, it would be interesting to see whether he feels more kinship with his current successor, President John F. Kennedy, or with President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Like de Gaulle, Washington had been the undisputed military hero of his countrymen, before becoming the first American president, and de Gaulle is the first French president who MONTGOMERY has real powers to govern.

Both Washington and de Gaulle visualized their nations as dominant continental powers, whose foreign entanglements should taper off at the water's edge.

Actually, the father of our country went the nationalist-minded de Gaulle one better, by declaring in his farewell address:

"It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

Although de Gaulle blocked Britain's admission to the Common Market on the grounds that she is not a part of the European continent, he has concluded a strong treaty with neighboring Germany, and he was the first to support our position in the recent Cuban crisis.

Today's commentators make much of de Gaulle's frosty and haughty demeanor, but 170 years ago the American antifederalists were accusing Washington of conducting himself "like a king."

Nearly every historian, in fact, has referred to his "cold and reserved manner."

The Encyclopedia Britannica tells us that Washington "returned no calls and shook hands with no one, acknowledging salutations by a formal bow."

This sounds even more standoffish than the cheek kisses which de Gaulle heakly bestows on visiting dignitaries in lieu of a handshake.

Both de Gaulle and Washington were reared from semiretirement at their beloved country estates to assume the burden of the presidency.

Each gave of himself unflinchingly at a time of great national peril, and managed through outstanding qualities of leadership to establish his nation on a firm and respected footing.

Nowadays, many of us are critical of de Gaulle's apparent ingratitude toward Britain and America, who rescued France from German occupation during World War II.

We bristle indignantly because he fails to live up to all the terms of the NATO alliance.

HISTORY REPEATED
History has a way of repeating itself. Under the treaty of 1778 by which France came to our rescue in the fight for independence, the U.S. promised to help France defend her remaining American possessions, in the event of a French-British war.

As soon as the war between France and Britain broke out in 1793, President Washington was confronted with the terms of that treaty. Deciding that his own self-interest dictated otherwise, Washington, after consulting with Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, proclaimed U.S. neutrality in the conflict. It was a long time before France forgave us our "ingratitude."

Nowadays when we think of Washington's farewell address, we are apt to remember only his warning against foreign entanglements. Actually, he spoke with equal vigor against a big public debt, and a large military establishment.

At this moment of history, when our military budget is at an all-time peacetime high, and our public debt is the greatest in world history, Washington's presidential successor is throwing the great weight of his office behind a deliberately unbalanced budget.

This would entail a sharp increase in the national debt, which already totaled an astronomical $304,636,682.86 at last accounting.

Farewell yourself, dear general Washington. Sometimes we taxpayers miss you.

Blood Thicker Than Drippings of Pork Barrel

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — "There's a story about it I got this job but a lot of people don't believe it," Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver said here Thursday.

Shriver, President Kennedy's brother-in-law, said he received a telephone call in Chicago from the President.

Kennedy wanted Shriver to head the Peace Corps.

Shriver said he replied he knew nothing about the organization and suggested that the President pick a political friend.

The President insisted, related Shriver, on the grounds that "if the Peace Corps blows up, it will be easier to fire a relative than a political friend."

RS70 Bomber Nears Flight as Technical Flaw Solved

By RALPH DIGHTON
LOS ANGELES (AP)—The technical problem that has kept the RS70 bomber grounded months past its original flight date has been solved, its builders say, and the weird-looking monster should fly late next month or in April. When—or if—it flies, the huge bomber is expected to fan to new heights the flames of controversy ignited when the administration decided the RS70 has been outmoded by missiles.

The problem that delayed the RS70's first flight, scheduled for last December, was a fuel tank leak that showed up in tests simulating the stresses of flying more than three times the speed of sound.

Such acceleration would throw the jet fuel against the rear of the tanks with a pressure several times greater than that experienced in conventional aircraft.

In conventional jet aircraft a slight leak probably would not be dangerous. The fuel—a highly refined kerosene—would evaporate before it became a problem.

COULD MEAN DISASTER
In the RS70 the slightest leak could mean disaster.

The buffeting of air molecules at high speed is expected to heat some areas of its skin to 800 degrees Fahrenheit. If its jet fuel, or even fumes, came in contact with these super-heated areas fire or explosion could result.

"We have solved the problem—found the right materials for the job," said a spokesman for North American Aviation, Inc.

"The actual repair work is being done right now. When you see the RS70 roll out of its hangar in the next few weeks you will know the leak has been whipped."

Even when it has been brought up to design specifications, made capable of carrying 50 megatons of nuclear destruction to any point on the globe at twice the speed of today's fastest U.S. bomber, the RS70 faces a gloomy future.

Defense planners say the RS70 is obsolete, that its job can be done better and more cheaply by missiles, and that the real need is for an advanced craft that can fly both in the air and in space.

Supporters of the RS70 insist that it would be useful for at least another 10 years and that failure to put it into production will leave the United States lagging behind the Soviet Union in a vitally needed type of aircraft.

Because of this controversy there may be no public ceremony when the RS70 sticks its pointed nose out of its hangar at Palmdale, Calif.

INFORMATION LEAK
Here again leakage will be a factor—leakage not of fuel but of information.

"It's quite possible," says a source close to the RS70 program, "that if the roll-out could be kept secret there are some who would want to do so."

"A public roll-out would give opponents another reason to attack the administration's decision, but at the same time everybody knows you can't keep a thing like the RS70 hidden."

For more than a year 1,000 engineers and technicians have been hand-crafting three RS70s in a huge hangar 70 miles north of here on the Mojave Desert. Only one is close to completion. When it rolls out for preflight tests of its six 30,000-pound thrust engines, it will be visible from a major highway.

The first flight will be no secret, either. The RS70 will fly only 30 miles, from Palmdale to the Air Force Research Center at Edwards Air Force Base, but its noise and its shape will alert thousands.

There will be a ground-shaking roar as the JS3 engines, each the size of an automobile, rev up for take-off. As residents of this aircraft-conscious area begin scanning the skies, there will soar into view an apparition out of science fiction: 250 tons of titanium and steel, fabricated into a pencil-bodied vehicle 185 feet long with a triangular wing, 100 feet across, where the tail normally is.

If the RS70 performs well on its first flight the administration can expect new demands to put it into mass production.

When the huge airplane was conceived it was designated the B-70, with the B standing for bomber. Recently it was downgraded to RS70. The RS stands now being built will become flying built."

for reconnaissance-strike, a mission currently assigned to pursuit craft.

Industry sources hold little hope that the RS70 will be mass produced. They say the three prototypes are already

His Suggestion Hits Jack 'Pot' for Mailman

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Florida mailman who suggested the use of cooking pot lids as mail truck mirrors to get rid of blind spots got a $3,000 bonus yesterday.

The bonus, given to Harry M. Knarr Jr. of Sarasota, was the biggest suggestion award ever granted by the Post Office Department.

Knarr, a superintendent of vehicle maintenance, suggested that pot lids be attached to the upper front windshield frame of trucks as a safety measure.

Unlike conventional mirrors, the curved surface of a polished pot lid enables a driver about to leave a parked position to check the area around both front wheels and other blind spots where children might be playing.

2 Children Suffocate in Detroit Home Fire

DETROIT (AP)—Two children died of suffocation yesterday in a fire in their home in the Parkside housing project on Detroit's East Side.

The victims were Robert Terry, 2, and his sister, Norlice, 2. Their mother, Mrs. Flora Terry, 27, told police she left the home to go to a grocery store and discovered the fire upon her return.

Smoke prevented her from entering the house, she said. A third child, Vedda, 5, escaped.

Australia to See Rise in British Migrants

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies predicted yesterday the British migrant flow to Australia in the 12 months ending next June 30 will be the biggest in a decade.

He said the immigration target for 1962-63 of 125,000 arrivals would be exceeded, and that there has been a flood of applicants in Britain for assisted passages to Australia.

A SAD STORY

FOR SALE

Behind many "For Sale" signs there is a sad story. A family borrowed more than they could afford to pay for a home or payments and interest rates were too high; the home had to be sold . . . often at a loss. This tragedy could often be avoided if the families would seek help from a home loan specialist . . . such as our Association. We work with you to arrange for a loan that's as easy to handle as monthly rent.

Prayers to Link Women of World

Pontiac and Waterford area church women will join hundreds of thousands of other women throughout the world on March 1 for the 77th World Day of Prayer.

The United States will be one of 150 areas on six continents where a group will be gathering at some time during the entire 24 hours to girdle the world with prayers. In addition to prayers, the women offer money and their services in many fields to help put into tangible form their concern for the needy.

Some of the programs supported are 12 women's colleges in Africa, Asia and the Far East, religious publications, hospitality for students from overseas and the "migrant ministry". Michigan women have been particularly concerned with the latter.

This year those in Waterford are channeling their gifts into a fund to furnish the chapel at the Oakland County TB Sanatorium.

Avoid Future Grief

Get Rid of Souvenirs

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why do people hang on to letters and pictures of a dead romance?

I had a friend who was killed recently in an accident. When her employer came to her wake he brought a box of her personal things that had been locked in her file at work.

He gave them to her husband.

When the husband opened the box, he found letters and pictures from a fellow he had suspected his wife was in love with during the early years of their marriage.

I knew about this affair and knew it had been over for years.

The husband didn't know this. He went to pieces and did not attend her funeral.

He was located months later, a broken man, in Skid Row.

Even in death it's the innocent ones who are hurt the most. Write something about this in your column, Abby. It could spare others that kind of misery.

A FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: You expressed it very well. Let this be a warning to all who have such souvenirs locked in files, vaults and drawers. Dig them out—for the sake of the living who love you—and give them a private burial.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when a girl writes a boy's initials all over her notebooks, school books and even on her arms in red and black ink?

I am the boy and I don't like it one bit. She never was my girl and never will be. The whole school thinks I am her boy friend. Please print this so the kids at school will get it straight.

S.O.S.
DEAR S.O.S.: The girl is childish and there is nothing you can do about it. If you make a fuss, she'll have attracted your attention, which is what she is trying to do. Ignore her and she'll go away.

DEAR ABBY: My father died a few months ago leaving my mother alone. In order to supplement her income she decided to rent her downstairs. She asked me to help fix it up, so I agreed.

My wife screamed bloody murder.

She said I never painted or repaired our house and had no business doing it for my mother. She said, "Let the old hag rot up there!"

Abby, my wife's attitude has torn me to shreds inside. I am the only son and my mother could not afford a professional decorator.

I'm wrong in helping my mother? What's wrong with my wife?

HEARTSICK
DEAR HEARTSICK: You were not wrong to have helped your mother and I think your wife is headsick.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine has nothing to do all day but stay on the telephone and collect news of other people's troubles, then she uses me as a dumping ground. She calls me first thing in the morning to tell me who is sick or who is dying. It upsets me for the entire day. Most of these people I don't even know, but when she gives me the details of their sad stories I get depressed. Abby, I have troubles of my own, and I can read plenty of tragic stories in the newspapers. This has been going on much too long. How do I turn her off?

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR NERVOUS: Tell her in plain language that you would not hear about the troubles of people you don't know. If you make it emphatic enough, she'll get the idea.

JUDITH ANN YEAGER

Fall vows are planned by Judith Ann Yeager, daughter of the Reinold Yeagers of East Howard Street, and George Thomas Paulson, son of Mrs. George Quigg, Union Lake, and the late Mr. Paulson.

Square Dance Club Plans Its 'Parade'

By BARBARA GRIFFIN

The final week of fraternity and sorority rushing and the University Shakespeare Festival have left area students at the University of Michigan little time for class work this week.

The Shakespeare Festival which began last week in Lydia Mendelsohn Theater, features many of Shakespeare's greatest plays, including "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Merchant of Venice" and "King Richard III." Students have been given a special admission price for all performances.

Working with the Ann Arbor Association of Producing Artists on this festival is Betty Verspan of Lakewood Drive, a junior majoring in speech. She will appear this week in "The Merchant of Venice" and also is featured in "King Richard III," to open next Thursday evening. For her dramatic talents, Betty has been initiated into Zeta Phi Eta, a national speech arts fraternity for women, and was elected treasurer of the chapter. She is also affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta social sorority.

FORMAL CEREMONIES

Both men's and women's rush will be completed this weekend as each house claims its new pledge class. Formal pledging ceremonies for the sororities will be Sunday afternoon.

Fraternities have been extending bids since Sunday, after having entertained rushees at dinners, smokers and sports events for the past two weeks.

Helping to give the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house a spring cleaning for rush are Dick Reynolds of Illinois Avenue, Ken Shaw of Delaware Drive, Douglas Roeger of Neome Drive and Jeff Longstreth of St. Jude Court.

Dick Jackson of James K Boulevard has been rushing rushees at dinners, smokers and sports events for the past two weeks.

rushing for their respective houses are Ted Gaensbauer of Hammond Lake Drive, Phi Gamma Delta; Mark Berg of Orchard Lake, Alpha Epsilon Pi; and Bruce Wigent of Mohawk Road, Sigma Nu.

Next Saturday night the Inter-Quadrangle Council and Assembly Association will present the popular folksing group, Peter, Paul and Mary.

This is the annual spring fundraising concert of these two organizations representing students who live in the quadrangles and dormitories.

Nylon Protects Elbows

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — When anyone of us purchases a new sweater, I cut out a circle from an old nylon stocking, large enough to cover the elbow, and stitch this to the inside of the sleeve at the elbow.

It is skin-colored and does not show but prolongs the life of the sweater in a place that is always the first to need mending.

I, too, need help and hope someone has an answer for me. Dust and lint settle in areas behind buttons and seams on a man's shirt. This problem makes a perfectly good shirt look soiled. Others must have this same problem.

A GRATEFUL READER

DEAR POLLY — To get the lint out from the fold and from around the buttonholes in men's white shirts and girls' blouses, I use a crochet hook. One can dig the lint loose and pull it out. No more lumpy edges and corners.

M. L. S.

DEAR POLLY — Tie a bright tag on the furnace door noting the date on which the filters were last changed. This way you can check the date instead of pulling the filters out unnecessarily.

H. J. H.

DEAR POLLY — Cut a slit in the top of a cork and glue it to the top of your recipe file box. It makes a fine holder for the recipe card you happen to be using.

MRS. A.

DEAR POLLY — Recently in aiding a bedridden patient to swallow liquids without coughing, I provided a baby's weaning cup.

The patient could then drink in a partially reclined position without exertion and help herself without fear of spilling anything on the bed covers.

Make-Up Can Help

Minimize Size of Nose

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. "In relation to my other features, my nose is too long and thin. It is also much too narrow, especially between the eyes. I have large eyes which are neither round nor narrow."

A. Yes, there are many things you can do. In the first place, to minimize the length of my nose and at the same time make it look wider?

A. Yes, there are many things you can do. In the first place, to minimize the length of my nose and at the same time make it look wider?

Apply make-up a shade darker on top of your nose than that you use on the sides. Also, pluck your eyebrows a bit at the inside corners so that they do not come so close together.

Do not pull your hair back from your face in a severe manner. Wear it soft and rather full. Fluffy bangs will be becoming.

Q. "Please tell me if it is a 'must' to go about thanking people for their Christmas cards. I always feel badly when others thank me and I have not thanked them."

A. It is not necessary to thank friends for their Christmas cards. It is a pleasant thing to do if you run into the person, but if everyone thanked everyone else for the cards they received, it would take the entire month of January.

I know how you feel because it seems too bad not to thank another for their thought of you, but it just isn't practical as a general rule. It is not obligatory.

If someone thanks you, then tell them how much you also appreciated his card.

Q. "I am a terrible dancer. I love to dance but I cannot seem to follow my partner. I can't afford to take dancing lessons."

A. Is there something I can do by myself to gain self-confidence and learn to relax enough to follow?

A. The fact that you are self-conscious and tense is probably the reason you cannot follow your partner.

Press the fingers of left hand firmly against his shoulder when you dance. Then relax and try to follow his steps.

Some men lead very poorly. If you know your partner well enough, ask him to lead you a bit more firmly.

Isn't there someone in your family or among your closest friends who will practice with you?

Caution: don't dance with girls and do the leading yourself.

Q. "How thin should a girl make her eyebrows?"

A. The thin, extremely arched eyebrow is out of style now. Keep the natural line but pluck the stray hairs.

If you have any eyebrow defects, you can at least partially remedy them with an eyebrow pencil.

Boy Friend Is Selfish

Girl Caught in Dilemma

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE 0465: Lydia M., aged 16, is a high school junior. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I started dating last year. And now I have been going steady for two months with a very popular boy. "He is a senior so I feel flattered to be his steady girl. "But he retires constantly. And on our last few dates he has been demanding that I give in to him sexually. "My parents have taught me that it is wrong to have such affairs but this boy threatens to jilt me.

"For he says all the other girls give in to their boy friends. So he argues that I am old-fashioned and silly. "Dr. Crane, I don't know what to do! How can I hold him if I don't give in to him?"

TEEN-AGE DILEMMA

This is a widespread dilemma of teen-age girls nowadays.

Lydia's boy friend is simply using a bold generosity when he tells her that all girls give in to their teen-age boy friends.

That's malarky. The smart girls do not do so! The stupid ones often imitate Biblical Esau and thus sell their virtue in a vain attempt to hang on to a juvenile escort temporarily.

And I use the word "temporarily" advisedly, for when the girls get pregnant, then the boys either skip town, join the military service, or ditch their former "easy mark" for a more stimulating female.

Girls, whenever a boy strains abnormally to adopt the "status symbols" of liquor, cigarettes and sexual conquests, he is doubly juvenile.

Boys with severe inferiority complexes then strain unduly to mimic the "image" of a supposed big shot, he-man.

Actually, the real he-men in high school are leaders in debate or on the honor role or out on the athletic field or gym floor helping win fame for their school.

It is usually the wallflower boy, often short of stature, who grabs at such status symbols as liquor, cigarettes, gambling, and sexual conquests.

Among adult males, too, the Don Juan, who boasts of his many sexual conquests, is generally a man with a sexual inferiority complex.

HARBORS FEARS

He fears impotence or sexual inadequacy. So he seduces women as a tonic to his own sexual inferiority.

Remember, it is thus the scared kid who whistles to raise his own courage as he passes the cemetery. Brave folks don't need to adopt such status symbols!

Actually, boys and men are not interested so much in sex itself as in the inflation of their own ego.

"I want to feel important!" is the indelible tattoo on their chests. So when they can coerce a girl and bend her will to their own dictates, this makes them feel important.

Joint Checking Accounts Avoidable Evil

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

Married couple who want to start a fast fight can follow this simple formula: have a joint checking account.

Many a family squabble starts over who made what mistake in that tangle at the bank. Why didn't she ask him before she wrote that check? Why didn't he deposit as much as he said he was going to? Why didn't she fill out the check stub, for pity's sake?

The trouble with money quarrels is that the bitterness they arouse between husband and wife seeps into every other subject that comes up for discussion.

'HIS' and 'HERS'

Since 90 per cent of the money transactions in the average family are in checks, checking accounts are necessary and desirable. But in my opinion 'his' and 'hers' at the bank are a lot more to the point than 'his' and 'hers' on the bathroom towel rack!

Two separate checking accounts and one joint savings account can do a lot to keep a marriage running smoothly. The extra service charge that may be involved will be money well spent.

I believe more women should learn to manage money. Women are often accused of being haphazard about finances — when actually they have little chance to develop responsibility. Many a tear has dampened my shoulder, shed by wives who are suddenly faced with handling the family funds, with nothing but good intentions to help them.

PLAN OF ACTION

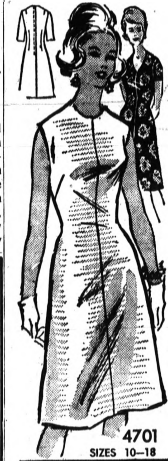

If you're already in a budget hassle, here's how you might set up a plan of action: Look at your family pattern of expenses.

Under His' list: mortgage or rent, including utilities; insurance, doctors and dentist bills, education, car operating, his personal expenses, clothes, running money on the job, outside entertainment.

Under Hers: food, children's clothes, and her clothes, children's allowances, gifts, church, and other donations, her running money such as beauty shop, home entertainment and household operating.

This last item, household operating, can have all the finendish aspects of a Chinese puzzle — simply because it covers such a multitude of little expenses.

Laundry equipment, repairs and supplies; cleaning supplies; small household replacements such as china and glassware; kitchen utensils; small accessories for the home such as linens or new pair of curtains. You just have to figure this out from your own experience.

Light, not tight is the fitting story for Spring. Sew fashion's easy shape in a bouquet of colors. Just 3 main pattern parts — easy!

Once these lists are totaled, adequate funds should be deposited in each of the checking accounts on regular days of the month. And each partner should feel responsible for managing that specific account.

After fixed needs are provided for, include a sum to go into the joint savings account regularly. Savings should never be last in anybody's budget. In setting up your living expense scale, savings must be figured in, right at the beginning.

Once you've covered your actual needs, let the surplus keep busy earning interest in a savings account. You will have to draw on it, of course, for major expenses from time to time. But these don't come up every day.

You can write Mary Feeley in care of The Pontiac Press enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Social Planned by Circle 479

Daughters of Isabella Circle No. 479 will hold a cooperative social and "show-down" party Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Phillip Tschirhart.

Assisting them will be Mrs. Thomas J. Kanaley, Mrs. John Seveaney, Mrs. Loretta Quinlan, Mrs. Russell DeLongchamp, Margaret O'Connor, Marie Schimmel, Mrs. Floyd Sanchez, Mrs. Frank O'Neill, Mrs. Edward J. Duffy and Mrs. John Denihan.

Sorority Unit Makes Plans

Alpha Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Wednesday evening at the Arizona Street home of Mrs. Donald DeVoe.

Mrs. J. Douglas Parker gave the program.

Final plans were made for the style show and card party to be held March 20 at the 300 Lounge.

Next meeting will be March 6 at the home of Mrs. George Pudduck.

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD — All eyes were on Jane Powell as she sang, danced and twirled her way through the 14-minute finale of three persons in the audience.

The applauders were Jack Lee, her pianist-conductor; Jack Regas, her choreographer; and Stan Erwin of the Sahara Hotel, on hand to assure himself that Jane's act was all he had hoped for.

Jane is making her ninth appearance in the desert resort, her first in four years.

Immediately after Jane's bow Erwin and Regas fell into hushed conversation, and Lee mopped his brow. He'd been pounding the piano for almost an hour without a break.

It was a bleak little interlude, but Jane's beauty and enthusiasm lighted up the hall like a hundred sparklers.

"HARDEST THING"

"That's the hardest thing in the world," she said, out of breath. "I hate to rehearse for an audience. It's much harder to perform for three people than it is for 300 or 3,000."

"Believe it or not I get self-conscious. A lot of performers do. I can't look anyone in the eye when just a few people are watching. It makes them nervous and it upsets me. So I just pretend I'm working to an audience of thousands."

Soviet Boasts of Space Arms

Claims Rocket Launch Possible From Satellite

MOSCOW (UPI) — The commander-in-chief of Soviet strategic rocket forces said yesterday the Russians can launch rockets from satellites at a command from Earth.

In a Radio Moscow interview commemorating the 45th anniversary of the Soviet army and navy Feb. 22, Marshal S. S. Biryuzov also claimed that the Soviets have developed an anti-missile missile.

"It has now become possible at a command from Earth to launch rockets from satellites at any desirable time and at any point of the satellite's trajectory," he said.

"The successful development of Soviet weapons and their high qualities, reliability and precision are demonstrated by the rockets used in the exploration of the cosmos."

"It must also be said that the problem of destroying enemy rockets in flight has been successfully solved in our country."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in an interview with a group of United States newspaper editors and publishers last summer boasted that the Russians had a missile that could "hit a fly in the sky."

Western observers also pointed out that Soviet interplanetary probes of Mars and Venus have been "launched" from "piggy back" rockets fired from satellites, put in orbit around the earth.

Biryuzov said Soviet rocket troops possess enough equipment "to be able, if need be, to sweep any aggressor from the face of the Earth at whatever point of the globe he may be and whatever military power, territory or economy he may possess."

Jane, dressed in tan slacks and matching blouse, looked slender and fit. Her voice was perfect and she remembered every word of the 18 songs she has prepared for her opening next Tuesday.

"I'm grateful my little audience here was composed of three men," she sighed. "It would have been impossible if they were women."

"Even with a big audience, a female crowd is murder."

"Women are very critical, and when they applaud it usually with their gloves on — and very lightly. Some merely click their knitting needles together. They can be very cruel."

"MEN WONDERFUL"

"Men are wonderful. They applaud and cheer for anything you do, and they're much more attentive during a show. They aren't comparing your outfit to their own wardrobe or making catty remarks."

"In a mixed audience women try to impress the men with their attentiveness, so they become better listeners, too."

Confessions OF AN Opium Eater

"The causes of my horror lie deep"

DE QUINCEY

CHICAGO (UPI) — There's more difference between the smoker and nonsmoker than just the smoke, a medical study revealed today.

There's a significant difference in physique too, the current journal of the American Medical Association said.

What's more, there are differences in physiques among cigarette, cigar and pipe smokers as well, according to the study which suggests that a biological factor is involved.

Dr. Carl C. Seltzer, a Harvard research fellow in physical anthropology, said that in a study of 922 members of the Harvard class of 1946, smokers proved to be taller and heavier than nonsmokers.

The puffery also had larger heads, faces, shoulders, chests, hips, legs and hands.

Differences in physical characteristics between cigar smokers and nonsmokers were greater than between pipe smokers and nonsmokers. Differences between pipe smokers and nonsmokers were greater than between cigarette smokers and nonsmokers, Seltzer said.

The primary significance of the findings, Seltzer said, was the implication that genetic factors are involved in smoking.

"It is becoming increasingly clear," Seltzer said, "that the smoking habit, the form of smoking adopted and abstinence from smoking are not simply superficial behavior patterns resulting from environmental influences."

"On the contrary," he said, "smoking behavior appears to be a response to a wide variety of personality and behavioral characteristics which have their origin, in part, in the biological or genetic make-up of the individual."

Robert Taylor a Real Hollywood Gentleman

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — Robert Taylor is just about the nicest gentleman ever to dignity, and lend reality to, the tinsel town of Hollywood.

PHYLLIS BATTELLE conceived to be an "incurable" ailment. The father refused to accept this diagnosis. He promptly threw aside his business, and began to study medicine. By the time Bob was a preteen, his father was one of Nebraska's most prominent physicians — and his mother one of its healthiest women.

Coming from this rather heroic parentage, young Taylor thought he'd be a doctor too. "That's standard equipment, comes with the car," he says. "If you admire your dad, you want to be like him."

But, fortunately for movie and television, he found he didn't care for hygiene, science, biology or mathematics. He decided instead to become a musician. Played the cello, because "The high school orchestra needed one — and there wasn't another cello player in that part of the Midwest."

OFF TO COLLEGE
Bob went off to Pomona College, with his cello. But he was persuaded to take a role in the senior class play, and, in one significant evening, the symphonic world lost him as the medical world had. An MGM scout was in the audience. The next week, Bob Taylor was in movies.

That's why he can't help calling acting "a racket." It came so easily. It continued to be easy. It's still easy.

There's one aspect of it, however, that he's always found difficult. "That's looking at the rushes, or watching myself on late-late shows," he says, shuddering modestly. "I never look at myself. Haven't seen a foot of 'White Stallions' (his new film, for Walt Disney.)"

Taylor doesn't ascribe this un-narcissistic attitude to embarrassment, exactly. "I'm just not a good judge of myself, so what good does it do me to analyze my performance? My opinion wouldn't be any good."

Ursula Theiss, Bob's wife for nine years, interjected the news that their two youngsters — Terence, 7, and Tessa, 3 — feel quite the opposite of their father. "They like to see his old movies. 'There was a tense moment the other night, though. They were showing an old film on TV, and Ann Blyth was the girl. When Tessa saw her, she was suspicious. 'That's not Mommy!' she cried. 'Terry sensed there would be trouble, so he came to my help immediately. He said 'Sure, that's Mommy.' She believes anything he says, so the happy home life was saved."

Bob grinned. "Gee, I must have been doing some things I shouldn't have been. Did I kiss her?"

"You did," said Ursula. "And in front of your children." "You can't trust those old Nuns," repeated Bob. He added, thinking about the children, "It's fun to be in New York, but I sure miss those two squirrels."

ville Canyon, Calif., to publicize "Miracle of the White Stallions," an exciting war film made in Austria. But somehow or other during this interview, they kept coming back to conversation about their home, their happy way of life.

After 30 years as a movie star, Robert Taylor doesn't have to be a salesman. His acting wares are proven high quality.

He can afford to act what he is, a genuinely gentle gentleman.

To Vote on Loan Bill in State
LANSING (AP) — A controversial proposed amendments were systematically voted down. The bill, a bipartisan measure similar to proposals which failed to become law in 1959 and 1961, was the subject of a 1 1/2-hour debate on the House floor yesterday. Sufficient support was mustered to defeat seven proposed amendments plus a move, that would have sent the bill back to the State Affairs Committee for further study. The bill had emerged from that committee without change from its original form which, in addition to raising the ceiling on small loans, would make changes in interest rate structure and permit finance companies to sell or act as agents for credit life insurance. Proponents of the bill contend the state's approximately 600 finance companies need the increased maximum and interest rate changes to improve their competitive position in the loan field. Rep. Edson Root, R-Bangor, principal sponsor of the measure, said the rate changes would result in interest rate decreases except in the $400 to $500 range in which loans most frequently are sought. This was disputed by opponents of the bill, and Rep. Joseph Gillis, D-Detroit, said the rate structure adjustments might result in Michigan having the nation's highest combined ceiling and interest rates. The amendments, defeated one after the other, would have set the ceiling at $705, exempted household goods from being used as collateral, required finance companies to pay for credit life insurance, reduced interest rates and barred persons from obtaining multiple loans.

The bill was roughly similar to one which was voted in 1961 by former Gov. John Swainson after passing both houses of the legislature.

In 1959, another bill to raise the ceiling and make other changes in the state small loans act passed the legislature and reached the desk of former Gov. G. Mennen Williams, but was withdrawn before the governor took action.

Truck farming and sports have gone hand-in-hand with the Kobayashi family of Capac.

For Minoru Kobayashi, father of four well versed athletes, and a daughter, fate hasn't always been kind in his farming endeavors.

Born in Portland, Oregon, where he was a talented baseball player, Minor (as he is known to his Capac neighbors) just got into the truck farming business when the war broke out.

The U. S. government evacuated Japanese-Americans from the coast into Camps. Minor, along with his wife and two eldest children George and Joan, were put into a camp in upper California just after the Oregon border.

It was here that Ken the present basketball, football and baseball star at Capac high school was born.

Trying to save his truck farm, Minor borrowed $6,000 and employed three men to operate the farm, but in his absence everything failed.

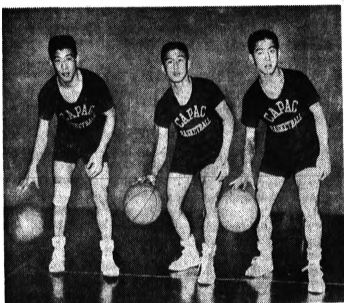

He lost his farm, his house and all of his possessions and when the conflict ended there was nothing for Minor but to accept the invitation of some friends to go to Ohio where he started all over again.

Twelve years ago he came to Michigan and now in Capac he has 450 highly productive acres of cucumbers, sugar beets, soybeans and cauliflower.

During the Ohio residence, twin boys Robert and Albert were born.

SPORTS FAMILY

For the past six years Capac has had the Kobayashi boys engaged in the school's highly successful athletic program. George is now a part time student at MSU and spends the remaining time helping on the farm.

Ken has been the regular quarterback, starting basketball guard and regular infielder for four years and it will be at least another three years before Capac finds itself without a Kobayashi. The twins are freshmen.

"I never miss an athletic event if I can help it," says Minor "and I'm certainly proud of the boys."

"Of course they wouldn't be playing sports if it wasn't for fine coaches at the school," he added.

At 5-foot-7, Ken is the biggest male of the family. "I think basketball is their best sport," said the father, "although a lot of people tell me Ken would do well in baseball when he leaves school."

Having a house full of sports minded boys could be a problem for Minoru. When the school year ends, George, Ken, Robert and Albert turn to truck farming and it isn't unusual to see cucumbers passed for touchdowns or cauliflowers being banked into a basket.

But, Minoru loves the football, basketball and baseball atmosphere. It has been more than 20 years since the Oregon farming disaster and the Kobayashis are happy again, playing ball and truck farming in Capac.

Fullmer Hampered in Last Tiger Bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Gene Fullmer will be in the finest condition of his life, both physically and mentally, for his return bout with world middleweight champion Dick Tiger tomorrow night.

Fullmer said today that this bout rates as the most important of his career. He lost his crown to Tiger, the bruising Nigerian in a San Francisco bout last October.

"I'll retire if I fail to regain the title," said Fullmer. "And I have no intention of retiring. So that means I've just got to win."

It was disclosed yesterday that Fullmer was suffering seriously from dysentery at the time of his defeat—a bout in which he was rocked and socked all over the ring and rarely hit back.

Odds dropped slightly to 3-1 favoring Tiger after manager Marv Jensen confirmed the story that Fullmer had dysentery before the bout, still had stomach cramps just before he went into the ring and that he was weak as a kitten during the battle.

NEVER TOLD

"He never told me a thing about it until five minutes before he went into the ring," said Jensen, "then he warned me to be ready in case he had another attack in the ring."

"It was too late to stop the bout then. Fullmer went and lost his title. But he never has

Red Wings' 3 Goals Too Little Against Hawks

Mikita Equals Detroit Total in 5-3 Win

DETROIT (UPI)—Chicago Black Hawk goalie Glenn Hall, who shutout the Detroit Red Wings in his last appearance at Olympia, was picked for three goals by the Wings last night.

But that was no indication of the sensational job the one-time Detroit goalie turned in while pacing the league-leading Hawks to a 5-3 National Hockey League win over the Red Wings.

Stan Mikita scored his second hat trick of the season and Bobby Hull added a pair of goals for the Hawks. That's all Hall needed.

He dived around the nets all night while kicking out 42 Detroit shots, 31 in the first two periods, to damage the Detroit hopes of finishing higher than fourth place in the NHL standings.

One of the three goals off Hall was picked up by Gordie Howe and, along with an assist, put him in first place in the NHL scoring standings with 60 points.

It was his 29th goal of the year, his 531st of his career and leaves him just 13 behind the all-time record set by the now retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard. Val Fonteyne and Andre Provenzo collected the other two goals for the Wings.

Putting the puck in the net has been Detroit's problem all year—the Wings are the lowest scoring club in the NHL. They had enough chances for a dozen goals but Hall repeatedly fell on or kicked out "sure" shots.

BACK TO WORK

With eight minutes left in the game, Detroit's Larry Jeffrey rammed into him during one wing rush at the net and knocked the wind out of Hall. But after a short time out, Hall got back up off the ice and went back to work.

It was a hard game all the way. Three minutes before ramming Hall, Jeffrey was knocked out and had to be helped off the ice after he got Bob Turner's elbow in his face during a collision on the boards.

Red Wing manager-coach Sid Abel was disappointed about the failure of the Wings to capitalize on one of their many opportunities.

"We could really have used a win tonight if we're going to move up," he commented.

Despite Mikita's hat trick, Detroit was in the game all the way until Hull scored into an empty net with 41 seconds remaining after Abel pulled Detroit goalie Hank Bassen.

Fonteyne put Detroit ahead, 1-0, at 14:49 but Mikita and Hull scored at 15:56 and 16:39 and the Hawks held the one-goal margin the rest of the way.

Par Round for Gajda

SINGAPORE (P)—Bob Gajda of Birmingham, Mich., was among the first round leaders Thursday in the $11,300 Singapore Open. Gajda shot a par, five strokes behind Tono Ishii of Japan, who broke the course record with a 5-under-par 68.

"I was 17 years in the big leagues as a player and I never took a drink. But I went with the gang to the night spots. I know the hours they kept. If they were fatigued, it was their own fault. Usually it's the player who complains about flying all night who keeps the latest hours when he has a chance to rest."

Dismissing the use of bed checks, Tabbetts said:

"I'll tell them the rules, then it's up to them. I'll also tell them they had better not be caught by me. I'll be popping up here and there in various spots. I'd better not find any of my players."

"Wynn is hoping to find that elusive victory, No. 300. At 43, he has no contract with the White Sox after a 1962 season in which he posted a 7-15 record that brought his lifetime mark to 239-243.

"This is no rag," assured Wynn. "I wouldn't want to go through this training grind if I didn't think I could make it."

BASSEN NICKED — Goalie Hank Bassen of the Detroit Red Wings goes to the ice in a futile effort to stop a goal by Chicago's Stan Mikita (right) at Olympia last night. It was the first of three goals for Mikita who led the Black Hawks to a 5-3 win.

Spoiler Role for Also-Rans

By The Associated Press

Big Ten teams which are apparently out of the running for the basketball title will have a chance for the role of spoilers Saturday as they tangle with the four leaders.

Wisconsin's Badgers, who handed Illinois its first conference loss earlier, will be entertained by the Illini in a regionally televised afternoon game.

It will be Illinois' last contest in Huff Gym. After games at Minnesota and Michigan next week, the Illini return home for closing games with Northwestern and Iowa in the new Assembly Hall.

TIED FOR LEAD — Illinois currently is tied with Ohio State for the lead, each with 7-2 records. Minnesota with 7-3 and Indiana at 6-3 are next in the race.

In the only other afternoon engagement, Michigan is at Purdue.

At night, Iowa is at Ohio State, Michigan State at Indiana and Minnesota at Northwestern.

After Wisconsin broke Illinois' winning spell, the Illini lost 103-100 at Indiana despite Dave Donovan's record 53 points. But they got back on the victory track Monday with an 87-79 victory at Purdue.

Minnesota's Gophers, who beat Wisconsin 72-48 Monday, could find Northwestern tough at home. The Wildcats, who tripped Michigan 63-62 this week, have a pair of consistent scorers in Rich Falk, with a 24.1 point average, and Rick Loposka, with 15.6.

Minnesota, led by Eric Magdanz and boasting the conference's No. 1 defensive record, returns home after the Northwest game to finish the season against Illinois, Indiana and Ohio State.

Carrying Indiana's title hopes is the best 1-2 scoring punch in the league — Jimmy Rayl and Tom Bolyard with averages of 26.1 and 24.9, respectively.

"Since losing 81-74 at Iowa, Ohio State has compiled a five-game winning streak in the Big Ten. The surge into title contention has been headed by Gary Braddis, the conference's top scorer with a 31.3 average.

O'Neill's Widow Dies — CLEVELAND (P)—Funeral service for Mrs. Stephen O'Neill, widow of the late major league baseball player and manager, will be held Monday in Scranton, Pa. Mrs. O'Neill, 69, died of a heart ailment here Thursday.

13 months after her husband's death. O'Neill managed Detroit from 1943-1948.

The other Class C game saw Town & Country hold off a Columbia Avenue Baptist rally to upset the churchmen for the second time by one point, 46-45.

Two fast break baskets by Bruce Reynolds enabled T&C to take off Columbia which has trailed by 19 points earlier.

"I'll tell them the rules, then it's up to them. I'll also tell them they had better not be caught by me. I'll be popping up here and there in various spots. I'd better not find any of my players."

Kaline Reports Arm Is All Right

LAKELAND, Fla. (P)—Al Kaline pointed to his collarbone—the one he broke last year when off to his greatest start—and said his injury was forgotten.

"You'd never know I'd ever broken it," said the Tiger right fielder.

Scratch one off the Tigers' big-gest concerns.

Looking not much older than he did as a skinny 19-year-old rookie in 1954, Kaline arrived at Detroit's campsite yesterday. He planned to start spring training for the 10th time today, four days ahead of schedule.

"I feel fine," Kaline said. "I weigh 180 and that's only three pounds over my playing weight."

Although he played only 100 games — fewest since he became a regular in his first full season — Kaline had an outstanding year in 1962. He hit 29 homers, his career high. He drove in 94 runs, the most he had since 1959 when he played 136 games. His batting average was a healthy .304.

But Kaline was heading for his best year when he made a game-saving catch in New York last May 25. He was leading the American League in homers and RBIs and was high in the batting race.

His broken collar bone ended him for two months. When he returned in late July all hopes for the triple crown were gone.

His powerful arm, one of the strongest and most accurate in baseball, was weak.

"I couldn't throw hard when I got back," he recalled. "I was afraid to. I just didn't try to cut loose until the last game of the season."

"But I'm sure my arm's as good as ever now. I threw real good when we went to Japan."

after the season, better than ever did in my life.

"There'll be no problems throwing now. It hurt me to swing a bat for awhile, too, when I got back. But then it was okay and I'm not worried about that either."

The Tigers' pitchers and catchers went through their second practice session yesterday.

hander, cut the little finger of his pitching hand when a car door was slammed on it.

The battery men were given Asian flu inoculations after practice.

Detroit's list of unsigned players was cut to eight when outfielder Purnal Goidy and pitcher Alan Koo agreed to terms.

Jake Wood got his first trial at shortstop in an exhibition game with the Hanshin Tigers, won 4-2 by the Japanese. Wood, who lost his regular second base job last season, made one error and belted a homerun.

Little Bit of Everything in Baseball Camps

By The Associated Press

Cleveland Manager Birdie Tebbetts announced his itinerary for the baseball season includes hoping into a few night clubs. Early Wynn strolled into the Chicago White Sox camp. Ken Retzer walked out of Washington's dians' teepee, put his foot down right at the start, warning he didn't want any players belly-aching about fatigue caused by night games or cross-country travel. Revealing his playing day habits, Tebbetts had this to say:

"I was 17 years in the big leagues as a player and I never took a drink. But I went with the gang to the night spots. I know the hours they kept. If they were fatigued, it was their own fault. Usually it's the player who complains about flying all night who keeps the latest hours when he has a chance to rest."

Parental Guidance Needed

Change to New School Is Bumpy Period

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.

Dear Dr. Nason: Because of a change in employment, my husband and our 10-year-old son and I have moved from our home town to another city. Considering that our son has spent all his life and his first four school years in the same neighborhood, a new school without any problems in studies or social life, is it normal for him now to have problems in both?

He dislikes school and seems bewildered and unhappy. How can we help?

Mrs. C. Salt Lake City

Answer: If the parent gives the child proper support during the change and provides guidance until the child is confident in the new situation, the problems will never become serious.

Living in different places can be a distinct advantage for a child whose parents help him gain the most from the experience. Such a child gains a background for the study of government, geography, economics and history. He usually acquires more than the usual number of social contacts, too.

Without parental help, he may have a bad time. There are techniques of entering new situations which can smooth the way, and the wise parent sees that his child knows them.

Tell him not to talk about how things were done in the last school. It's far better for him to ask how they are done here. Asking for help is a good way to meet new people.

The simple statement, "I'm new here. Could you please help me?" will usually bring out the best in others.

He should be reminded that a person isn't accepted by a group. Acceptance comes from individuals within the group.

To help him learn the mechanics of life at the new school, have him get a handbook, meet the counselor and get details on rules.

Above all, he should seek out a new friend to lean on for help.

Dear Dr. Nason: I'm taking college preparatory subjects, and find French very difficult to grasp.

I study faithfully and write out verb conjugations when it's required. Our teacher is teaching French on a new basis. We are to hear all the French before we see it written.

I have a problem distinguishing different sounds as the teacher pronounces them.

R. D., Colonia, N.J.

Answer: Hearing the French before you see it written is an excellent approach to learning the subject.

Train your ears to distinguish the sounds. Repeat the sounds again and again in your room.

Get another student to practice with you repeating the same words and sentences. Picture the meanings of the words rather than the English translation.

(Dr. Nason will welcome your question addressed to him in care of this newspaper. Those of most general interest will be answered in his column.)

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

Study the bidding, then look at the East hand only. Your partner opens the four of diamonds against South's three no-trump contract. If South would be generous enough to play dummy's jack you would have no problem, but South plays the six.

Should you go up with the king or should you play the eight?

The first step in your reasoning should be to count a few points. Dummy has eight. You have 11. Probably South has 17 since he rebid to three no-trump. That leaves exactly four points for your partner. Some of those points will be in diamonds since he probably has led from something. If he has the queen of diamonds and another queen, a lit-

Health Decision Probably Won't Come Until '64, Experts Agree

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress won't decide on President Kennedy's health care program for the next year, key supporters and opponents agreed today.

The President is hopeful of quicker action on his renewed plea to provide care for the aged through an increase in Social Security taxes. At his news conference Thursday he said, "I think we might get the bill by this year."

But clearly aware of the long road ahead Kennedy also remarked that the measure "has the problem of coming out of the Ways and Means Committee."

This committee is just getting into stride in its work on the complex and higher-priority Kennedy program—the tax reduction and revision bill.

Public hearings on this measure are expected to run through next month and committee consideration through May.

There is no prospect whatever, reliable sources said, that the measure will be brought to the House after the House acts on the tax measure, perhaps in June.

King said he hopes the Ways and Means Committee and the House will act favorably this year. This would leave the struggle in the Senate still to come.

WONT REPEAT

In the Senate, there is no disposition to try again this year of a reversal grow better with time—especially as the 1964 presidential and congressional election approaches.

This year's bill has been modified to broaden its appeal, especially to minority Republicans who favored some form of Social Security health program in the past. Notable changes include provision for 2.5-million old persons who do not have Social Security coverage and inclusion of options on available benefits.

As expected, the proposal drew the fire of the American Medical Association. "Unwise and economically unsound," said AMA President George M. Fister in a statement Thursday.

The proposal, he said, would force increased taxes on wage earners and employers to buy limited hospitalization, nursing home and home care for millions of people over 65 who are financially able to take care of themselves.

Schools OK Citizens Group

Master Plan Sought by Waterford Board

Establishment of a citizens' advisory committee to come up with a master school plan for the community was approved by the Waterford Township Board of Education last night.

As proposed by Dr. Don O. Tatroe, superintendent of schools, the committee would explore the needs of the school district and submit recommendations to the school board.

Committee members would also review more immediate matters such as a possible bond issue proposal for school construction and site purchases, according to Tatroe.

Present school buildings will be adequate through the 1963-64 academic year, he said, but additional classroom space will be needed.

The proposed committee could include as many as 100 members. Invitations will be sent to all civic, fraternal and religious groups in the school district. Each group will be asked to send at least one representative to the March 7 organizational meeting of the committee.

A special school board meeting will precede the 8 p.m. committee session. Board members expect to name a committee chairman then.

County Could Gain Seats

House Gets Redistricting Bill

LANSING—A bill that would increase Oakland County's representation in the House from six to nine was introduced yesterday in the House.

Sponsored by Rep. Martin D. Buth, R-Comstock Park, the measure would reapportion the House if the proposed new state constitution fails to pass April 1.

It was referred to the House Apportionment Committee chaired by Rep. Henry M. Hogan, R-Bloomfield Township.

The apportionment plan would take away four of Wayne County's 38 seats in the House and one each in the Upper Peninsula, the northern Lower Peninsula and the Thumb area.

Macomb County would gain two seats for a total of five and Genesee County would pick up one more for a total of five.

Republican backers of the bill said it would meet requirements of the present constitution that the House must be reapportioned this year to allow for population changes between 1950 and 1960.

If the proposed new constitution is approved by voters, an equal representation from the Democratic and Republican parties would be required by the House.

Buth's bill would cut the total number of House seats from 116 to 109, thus precluding the possibility of an even split such as occurred four years ago.

Hogan indicated that Oakland County can expect to get three new House seats because of its population increase regardless of whether reapportionment is done.

Next Mayor Won't Stop Cleaning Up The Town

STAMFORD, England (UPI)—Mrs. Gladys Wincup, 57, who soon will become this community's mayor, has declined to give up her job as a scrubwoman.

"I've been doing it for 20 years and I'm certainly not giving it up now," she said.

Actor Heston'll Keep Head in 'John the Baptist' Role

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Charlton Heston, who wears a beard to play John the Baptist, and Peter Ustinov, who wears a beard just to be Peter Ustinov, lunched at Sardi's East about a picture deal — and Heston later said:

"It must have seemed like a lot of underbrush for just one table!"

Heston — though being seen clean-shaven in "Diamond Head" currently — is keeping on the beard to finish playing John the Baptist in "Greatest Story Ever Told" in Page, Ariz., next week.

"I love this beard," Heston said. "I'd wear a beard all the time if I weren't an actor. Only Phil Foster, who's been kissing a porcupine."

Remembering what happened to John the Baptist in the Bible (about the time Salome was doing the Dance of the Seven Veils), we asked Heston about the haircut he's supposed to get from the throat up. "Don't worry," he said. "I'll keep my head."

Anthony Quinn — who's liked by men and simply ADORRED by women — is a favorite to cop an Oscar for "Requiem for a Heavyweight" — at least around Broadway where he's enormously popular. They also expect Tony to get a Tony (the stage award) for "Tchin-Tchin."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

Andy Griffith will soon be able to retire — if he wants to — providing CBS, which already signed him for next year, decides to rerun his old shows on a daily afternoon basis. — Jason Roberts Jr. and Lauren Bacall were at a "Lawrence of Arabia" matinee so they can't be splitting up: that's practically a year they spent together right there. — Lena Horne, confirming reports she'll give up night clubs after finishing the Waldorf and playing the Camden Latin Casino, said she'll do a TV series in London for Hugh Downs.

Phil Foster, who's been kissing Mayor Wagner, says until Hinzoner stepped into the newspaper strike, the two sides weren't getting anywhere — but at least they weren't mad at each other.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "A Texan had been discovered who has an inferiority complex. He doesn't think he's better than every body else."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "A little boy asked his mother, 'Can we go out and listen to Daddy put the tire chains on?'"

REMEMBERED QUOTES: "Let us all be happy, and live within our means, even if we have to borrow money to do it." — That's earl, brother.

Local Guard Is Renamed

The Pontiac National Guard unit has been renamed.

Beginning March 15 Co. E, 2nd Battalion, 125th Infantry, will be known as Co. A, 2nd Battalion, 125th Infantry.

Col. Robert C. McCall, commander of the 2nd Battle Group, 125th Infantry, with headquarters in Flint, said the name change is part of a statewide reorganization of the Michigan National Guard.

"Under the plan, the unit, as part of a battalion, will eventually have more flexibility than it does as a battle group," said McCall.

No major changes in the makeup of the unit are foreseen in the immediate future, according to the commander.

The Pontiac unit will continue to be a rifle company with no revision in authorized strength of 134 officers and enlisted men.

Mrs. Smith taught at Stewart School in the Lakeshore School District. Her husband is a Berrien Springs car dealer.

Disease Up 28 Pct. in County

Teen-Age VD Jump Noted Here

A local health official today expressed alarm over the frequency of venereal diseases among teenagers in Oakland County last year and the increase of the diseases in general.

Reported cases of venereal diseases in the county increased 28 per cent last year, reported Dr. Bernard D. Berman, deputy director of the county health department.

Pontiac contributed more cases by far than any other Oakland community.

There were 670 cases reported in the county in 1962 compared to 520 the year before, Berman noted.

The biggest increase 59 per cent — was in syphilis with 190 cases reported last year against 119 in 1961.

Gonorrhea cases climbed from 401 in 1961 to 400 last year.

"The most alarming fact about this increase," Dr. Berman commented, "is that over 22 per cent of the cases treated are among children and young adults between the ages of 10 and 20."

"And these figures are probably low," he added, "because we know that many infected teenagers try to treat themselves or visit physicians who don't always report cases."

Of the 670 cases of VD reported, 332 or almost 50 per cent were in Pontiac. This is partly due to better reporting by Pontiac physicians, according to Dr. Berman.

Other areas include Royal Oak, 41 cases; Royal Oak Township, 30; Pontiac Township, 19; Hazel Park, 17; Birmingham, 15; and Waterford Township, 15.

The trend upward in VD is not peculiar to Oakland County. Since the late 1950's a national increase in VD, particularly syphilis, has been noted by public health officials.

Studies revealed, among other things, an unwarranted apathy on the public's part toward venereal disease Dr. Berman said.

Teen-age VD has surged upward throughout most of the nation. The American Social Health Association estimates an annual VD infected population of teen-agers in the United States of over 300,000.

"More disturbing, only about 50,000 of these cases are reported. No one can say for sure how many of these cases go untreated," Dr. Berman noted.

"It is wonderful that we have safe and easy treatments available, but it is dangerous to take VD lightly," he warned. "Undetected and untreated syphilis can lead to insanity, paralysis, blindness, heart failure and death."

Flu Continues to Rise in U. S.

Deaths Show Marked Increase in Areas

By The Associated Press
Influenza cases in the United States continue to increase and medical authorities are urging vaccinations to combat the spreading outbreaks.

The Communicable Disease Center of the U.S. Public Health Service said today information compiled weekly from its 108 reporting cities across the nation show 759 pneumonia-influenza deaths during the week ending Feb. 16. That is 54 deaths over the previous week.

The death toll is showing a continued marked increase in the South and Middle Atlantic states, the center said.

The flu outbreaks reached epidemic proportions in areas along the Atlantic seaboard Jan. 15, and then moved westward.

ABSENTEEISM UP

In Michigan, a "marked rise" in absenteeism in both schools and industry was reported yesterday by state health officials who said the late outbreak of flu continues to spread.

Asian flu has been confirmed in Maryland, Michigan, Kansas, North Carolina, New York, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

A spokesman for the center said there is no cure as such for Asian flu, only treatment. The health agency is urging prevention through vaccination. No figures are available for comparing the current epidemic with that of 1957, when Asian flu first hit this nation.

Hospital to Limit Visitors to Curb Influenza Bug

Pontiac General Hospital to day announced it will begin limiting visitors to immediate families of patients tomorrow, in the face of a possible Asian flu epidemic. "The action is being taken in an attempt to look after the welfare of our patients," said Dr. John J. Marra, medical director.

Other Pontiac hospitals said they planned no visitor restrictions at this time, but urged persons with flu symptoms to refrain from visiting patients.

State GOP Leader Discusses Goals

By JIM DYBERT

LANSING — To sell one of the nation's most populous states on a political idea long dear to his heart while working closely with a governor he helped get elected.

That's the opportunity and challenge facing Arthur G. Elliott Jr. in his new post as chairman of the Michigan Republican party.

Elliott, of 169 E. Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills, discussed his outlook and plans in an exclusive interview this week with The Pontiac Press.

More Citizen participation in party affairs and government is the goal.

Ever since he entered politics as a precinct delegate from Pleasant Ridge 11 years ago, Elliott has been selling it.

He used it to build the Oakland County GOP organization into one of the state's most powerful.

ELLIOTT when he was county chairman from 1957 to 1961.

Now, he will travel about the state promoting it, "trying to develop enthusiasm for it among party leaders."

While doing so, he will maintain an "extremely close liaison" with Gov. George Romney, an Oakland County citizen he sold on participating.

Relief from the bitter cold is on the way however.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said temperatures will moderate to a possible high of 20 above in the Pontiac area tomorrow.

The low will dip to near five above tonight.

Temperatures will continue in the low 20s over the weekend, then turn colder Monday and Tuesday, the bureau said. A few light snow flurries are forecast for the period.

Free on Bond in Shooting

Victims of Gunplay Said Improving

A wealthy Troy businessman is free on $5,000 bond today. He is charged with shooting and critically wounding his wife and her 26-year-old companion early yesterday.

Howard W. Mordue, 32, was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Police say he admitted firing six shots with a .25-caliber revolver at his wife Barbara, 33, and Nelson Hartman, when he found them about 2:30 a.m. in her car at a Troy bowling alley parking lot.

Both are reported improved today at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak. Yesterday they were listed in critical condition.

Mordue told Oakland County Ass't. Prosecutor Robert L. Temple Jr. that he located the pair after being telephoned at his home, 4016 Chestnut Hill Drive, by a private detective he had hired to follow his wife.

After the shooting he summoned Troy police. He surrendered and turned over the revolver to them when they arrived.

Hartman and Mrs. Mordue, a mother-of-two, were rushed to the hospital. Hartman, who lives at 105 Cutting Blvd., Troy, was shot in the left arm, leg, ear and abdomen. Mordue's wife was hit in the back.

Mental Facility, Dental School Sought in State

Romney Reveals List of 27 Top-Priority Building Projects

LANSING (UP) — A $10-million mental hospital in western Michigan and an $8-million dental school at the University of Michigan head the list of some 27 "top-priority" building projects for which Gov. George Romney has asked lawmakers to provide planning and land-purchase funds.

The governor, in his budget message last month, asked for $1,000,000 from the general fund to lay groundwork for a long-range, $90.6-million program.

In a follow-up announcement Thursday, he outlined the projects, more than half of which will be on state college and university campuses, with the rest concentrated in mental health facilities.

Seven of the projects are included in the 1963-64 budget proposal and details of these, the governing said, already are in the hands of legislative appropriations committees.

Capital outlay money for final plans and construction of the other 20 projects is scheduled to be available starting with the 1964-65 budget.

State Controller Glenn S. Allen said the projects on the list have been deemed "top priority" by agreement of the administration and the schools or state agencies involved.

In addition to the $1,000,000 for preliminary planning, studies and land purchase, the governor has asked a $200,000 appropriation as a grant to jump-start and community colleges.

This combined total could come from current operating surplus to provide planning for what Romney termed "our avalanche of building needs" in the years just ahead.

"Sound and efficient planning of capital outlay programs requires that adequate attention be placed on developing and refining the scope of the programs and estimated costs of the completed facilities," he said.

'Stay Out of Cuba or...'

From Our News Wires

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union warned the United States today that any attack on Cuba would start World War III.

Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky made the threat in a strongly worded speech marking the 45th anniversary of the Soviet armed forces.

"We want to admonish the aggressive circles," he said, "that an attack on the Cuban republic would mark the beginning of a third world war."

Malinovsky's stern words came a day after President Kennedy laid down an unmistakable warning that U.S. firepower will blast any Cuban-based warships or planes that dare attack American vessels or aircraft.

Malinovsky said that in the event of any attack on Cuba, the Soviet Union would be in the forefront of those to help Fidel Castro's nation.

"It is impossible to intimidate us," he said, "We have the power to burn up the aggressors in the first hour of attack."

He also charged that U.S. submarines were menacing Soviet ships in the Caribbean.

BROAD THREAT

Malinovsky added that the Soviet Union "will wipe out civil and military objects of the United States and annihilate countries which have U.S. weapons" in the event of an attack on Russia.

Kennedy indicated yesterday that, for the time being at least, American jet fighters and Navy aircraft will be restrained from chasing attackers back to Cuba to punish them.

But if Wednesday's straining of a wallowing shrimp boat develops into a pattern of attacks, the President may then give the signal for "hot pursuit."

REJECTS CHARGE

Several hours after Kennedy uttered the warning at a news conference, the Cuban government "rejected and denied categorically" the charge that its jets poured rocket fire near the disabled shrimp boat Ala in the Florida Straits Wednesday afternoon.

And Prime Minister Fidel Castro was expected to have something to say about it in a televised address tonight.

The United States disclosed today it has demanded a "prompt and unequivocal explanation" from the Cuban government of the Wednesday attack by Soviet-built MIG fighters on the disabled shrimp boat in the Florida straits.

The State Department released the text of a note delivered last night to Castro's government protesting in strong terms "this flagrant and deliberate violation of international law."

The note was delivered to the Castro government by the Swiss Embassy in Havana, which has handled U.S. affairs in Cuba since the break off of relations between the two countries in January 1961.

Malinovsky claimed in a major address that Russia would reply with a salvo of three (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Congress Impatient for Cuba Troop Exit

WASHINGTON (UP)—Angered by a MIG fighter foray against an American shrimp boat, Congress is waiting impatiently for word of Soviet troop withdrawals from Cuba.

President Kennedy made it clear Thursday at his news conference the United States is prepared to react forcefully to any future attacks on its ships or planes.

But the President said "we will have to wait and see now in the coming months" what the Soviets do about pulling out their uniformed men and technicians. He predicted a start on this in the next three weeks.

About the only aspect of the President's report that was encouraging to congressional leaders was his statement that he had ordered the Defense Department "to insure that action will be taken against any vessel or aircraft of the United States over international waters in the Caribbean."

This seemed to approximate the "shoot to kill" orders proposed by several senators. But Kennedy did not make it clear whether U.S. fighters would engage in "hot pursuit" of any attacking Cuban planes—to follow them back to their bases—as suggested by Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Armed Services Committee.

Russell suggested in an interview today that Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro may have ordered his MIG pilots to fire at the shrimp boats "in hope of stirring things up while the Russians are still in Cuba."

Sens. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., vigorous critics of the administration's Cuban policies, said the shrimp boat incident demonstrated that what the President has called defensive weapons can be used offensively.

Chemical Train Hits Gas Truck

Evacuate Town While Firemen Await Blast

EL DORADO, Ark. (UPI) — A train carrying highly volatile chemical materials and a gasoline truck burst into flames today at nearby Norphlet.

Police began evacuating the 1,200 town residents and specialized chemical fire fighters rushed to the scene.

First reports said at least three persons were injured.

A Missouri Pacific Railroad spokesman said there was no indication how long the tiny rural Arkansas town would be imperiled by a burning carload of volatile ammonium nitrate fertilizer on the train.

The El Dorado fire department and special chemical fire-fighting units from Monsanto Chemical Co. and American Oil Co. sped to Norphlet, eight miles north of El Dorado on Arkansas highway 7.

Ammonium nitrate was the cargo aboard the SS Grandcamp when it exploded in the harbor at Texas City in 1947, killing 512 persons and injuring 3,000.

Ambulances were rushed to the town to stand by in case the volatile cargo exploded.

Firemen could not use water to fight the blaze because it might ignite the chemicals.

The Missouri Pacific pulled the rest of the 74-car train away from the burning car. The train was en route from El Dorado to Little Rock.

The injured were identified as C. J. Kessinger of El Dorado, driver of the gasoline truck; David F. Young of Little Rock, the train engineer, and F. E. Avery of Little Rock, the train fireman.

Kessinger suffered from a back injury. An El Dorado hospital said Young was "shook up," and Avery sustained second degree burns on his arms and legs.

HONORING FIRST PRESIDENT—American school children honored the country's first president, George Washington, on his birthday today. Above are Tom Richardson and Diane Wiecek of the Union, Lake Elementary School, listening to their teacher Mrs. Helen Beam read how young George cut down the cherry tree and told the truth about it.

Lent Series to Start

Teamwork at Keego Fire

Two Firemen Injured

Battle Keego Restaurant Blaze

Two West Bloomfield Township firemen were injured today in a battle with a fire that destroyed the Keego Restaurant, 3020 Orchard Lake Road, Keego Harbor.

Fire Chief Herbert L. Morgan estimated the damage at $7,000. He is still investigating the cause, but said the fire started in the kitchen area, and spread to the dining room.

Two firemen were injured fighting the fire, which completely destroyed the roof of the building, damaged the floor, and caused smoke damage in adjacent buildings.

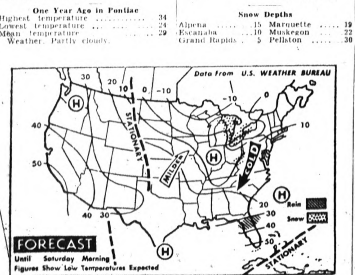

Fireman Rex Woodworth, who fell from the roof, was taken to Pontiac General Hospital where X-rays were taken. He was later released.

James Stragea, also injured, did not require hospitalization.

New Quakes Hit Libya Town

Follows Shock That Killed at Least 80

BENGHAZI, Libya (AP)—Two more earthquakes struck Al Marj today following a shattering tremor Thursday, destroying more than 80 per cent of the coastal town. Eighty known dead were reported but U.S. Air Force estimates ran as high as 250.

Hospitals in Al Marj and Benghazi, 55 miles to the southwest, were filled with injured. The U.S. Air Force gave the number of injured as at least 500.

Rescue workers dug through the debris for others feared trapped or killed. U.S. and British military forces and Libyan soldiers and police rushed food and tents to survivors.

The quakes centered in an area of 20 square miles in and around Al Marj, which has a population of 50,000.

SHOCK AT SUNDOWN

The first shock struck at sundown Thursday as most persons were sitting down for their evening meals.

People fled into the streets. Buildings and houses toppled, trapping many in the ruins.

A second shock came at 7:30 a.m. as relief workers toiled in the ruins. The third came an hour and a half later.

British troops took charge of rescue operations after an appeal for help from local Libyan authorities.

British aid was flown from the Benghazi area and from Cyprus. A British-American control center was established in Al Marj. U.S. relief supplies were flown in from the Air Force's Wheelus base near Tripoli, 300 miles west of the quake area.

GOP Leader Lists Goals

Romney has consistently advocated more citizen participation in political and governmental affairs. He has advocated the idea as the pattern for rejuvenation of the republican party throughout the nation.

Contemplating the future, Elliott said he "expects to work hard."

"Thousands of others will work hard with me," he said. "We will broaden the party and bring more people into it than ever before."

"If we maintain the present degree of citizen participation, expand it and make sure it isn't abused by direction of a few, the party is very bright for the Republican party."

"It will strengthen in numbers, ideas and ideals. With all his attributes, Elliott is a salesman. He was active in the sales of real estate and insurance before turning his attention to a political idea.

Citizen participation has increased, he said, but there is still a long way to go.

While "our party is the party of growth," growth also is the GOP's biggest challenge, he said. To meet it, Elliott plans to reach and expand existing GOP State and Local Committee programs and inaugurate some new programs "when the time is right."

Most important of the existing programs, he said, is the increasing emphasis on communication the party's philosophy "to all areas of the state — urban, suburban and rural."

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

"Whether a citizen lives in Peabody or Madison Heights," he said, "it's our responsibility to reach him with a clear, concise message of political ideologies."

"Opening up the lines of communication will overcome the misleading labeling of Republicans as ultraconservatives or anything else," added Elliott, who does not subscribe to the validity of political labels.

Lack of information has been responsible in the past for the failure to meet the challenge of citizenship, he said.

People thought they could not accomplish anything as individuals, he said. "It's our job to let them know that they can," he said.

"The theory built up that there is no place for the individual in the political arena unless he wants to become a power politician," Elliott said, "But this just isn't the case."

JFK Asks Settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy, saying the 77-day New York newspaper blackout "has long since passed the point of public tolerance," urged quick appointment of an impartial umpire to settle the dispute.

Kennedy's call for an end to the impasse, at his news conference in Washington Thursday, was echoed by members of the New York Newspaper Guild, AFO-CIO, in a stormy session Thursday night.

Local 6 of the AFL-CIO international Typographical Union struck four of the city's nine major newspapers last Dec. 8, and the others shut down.

Guild members voted overwhelmingly a resolution asking Mayor Robert F. Wagner to recommend a settlement by next Thursday.

A spokesman for Wagner, who has been trying to resolve the dispute since Jan. 26, said the mayor will study the resolution and "comment on it at an appropriate time."

New York publishers accepted President Kennedy's umpire idea.

Kennedy told newsmen concerning the negotiations: "Collective bargaining has failed."

"In my view," the President said, "one solution of this prolonged strike, if no immediate progress is made, would be for the striking printers, companies, and other involved unions to submit their differences to independent determination of some kind."

"It is clear in the case of the New York newspaper strike that the local of the International Typographical Union and its president, Bertram Powers, insofar as anyone could understand his position, are attempting to impose a settlement which can shut down several newspapers in New York and throw thousands out of work."

The strike has idled 20,000 newspaper employees, including 3,000 printers and 6,800 guidelines.

Powers' response was: "I think the President has been ill-advised. I know he is a busy man and I do not know the source of his information concerning the negotiations but he apparently has been ill-advised. Nobody can tell me there is anything in our demands that is unreasonable."

In Cleveland Thursday, no progress was reported toward settling an 85-day strike against the Plain Dealer and Press & News, that city's two major newspapers.

Five unions are on strike in Cleveland with one, the Newspaper Guild, due to vote today on a tentative two-year contract agreement. Wages are among the main issues in the Cleveland strike.

There was some hope of slight moderation in the icy Midwest belt but no immediate relief was indicated in the southeast and northern sections of the country. Temperatures were near or above normal in the western third of the nation.

The mercury plunged to 33 below zero in Lowell, Mich., one of the nation's lowest marks. In the Northeast, the 23 in Old Town, Maine, was the coldest spot. But below zero readings were reported in many sections of New England and upstate New York.

Beyond that remark and some kind words for the way Powell's Education and Labor Committee has handled administration legislation, the President steered clear at his news conference yesterday of the Harlem congressman's running dispute with Sen. John J. Williams, R-De.

Besides, the President remarked, "Congressman Powell has proved in his life that he is well able to take care of himself."

Report Tempest for '64 to Have 6-Cylinder Model

The 1964 model Pontiac Tempest is slated to take on a six-cylinder engine, a national automotive publication announced this week.

An article in the current issue of Ward's Automotive Reports states the new six-cylinder engine will be of a slightly larger cubic-inch displacement than the present Chevy II six-cylinder engine.

These rockets, he said, would irresistibly reach their targets and deliver their lethal cargo.

Officials at Pontiac Motor Division declined to comment on the report.

Ward's went on to say that it isn't known what the change would mean for the present Tempest four-cylinder engine, but that the Chevy II is being groomed for a V-8 next year and its four-cylinder engine will probably be dropped.

From Our News Wires

KEY WEST, Fla.—A crewman of the American shrimp boat attacked Wednesday by Cuban MIG jet fighters says the planes fired machineguns, not rockets, at the drifting vessel.

"I could see the bullets hitting the water, maybe a couple of hundred yards away," said Benjamin Washington, 27. "It was a machinegun. It wasn't a rocket."

The Defense Department, in announcing the attack, said the U.S. pilots who observed it reported that the Cuban-based jets fired rockets. The department conceded later, however, that the flyers may have been mistaken.

Radio Havana said the United States "invented" the attack on the shrimp boat Ala to cover up refugee raids on Cuban vessels.

The transmitter said the Russian-made MIGs, which "flew over" the U.S. craft were "trying to locate two Cuban fishing boats which were attacked a few days before."

Premier Fidel Castro regime has blamed Cuban refugees living in the United States for the alleged "attack" on Cuban fishing boats.

60 MILES FROM CUBA

Washington and Paris Jackson, 44, skipper of the two-man Ala, said the attack occurred about 60 miles north of the Cuban coast.

"We hit the deck and lay there," Jackson told newsmen here after he and Washington arrived aboard a Navy destroyer escort.

Both men said they were certain there were no rockets.

"It sounded to me like machineguns," said Jackson, who is boyish-looking despite his 44 years.

"I think it was machineguns," Washington said. "They didn't fire any rockets. We could have seen them spraying. The bullets went straight down in the water. It couldn't have been a rocket. If it had been, it would have hit the boat."

STAY ON DECK

The two stayed on deck while the MIGs circled for 15 minutes, passing low enough for the men to see the pilots' faces and to spot an emblem which "looked like a big round thing with an eagle in it."

"No use to go in the wheelhouse," said Washington. "They'd have thought we had weapons and they'd have sunk us right then."

Were we scared?

"Yes, sir," Jackson said he still hadn't recovered from the fright.

Neither man was sure if the attackers wanted to hit the Ala or were trying with the craft.

The boat's engine failed Sunday. That made the radio and pumps useless and all the two crewmen could do was wait for help.

Guerrilla Warfare

Guerrilla Warfare Shaping Up Amid Cuban Tension?

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States may be watching a period of virtual guerrilla warfare in the Caribbean area around Cuba.

Whether this dangerous possibility develops appears to depend primarily on how Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro decides to use the extensive arms, including jet fighter planes, supplied to him by the Soviet HIGHTOWER Union.

President Kennedy, as he made clear at a news conference Thursday, is watching the situation closely and with several unanswered questions in his mind about the fighter plane attack late Wednesday on a U.S. shrimp boat in the Florida Straits about 60 nautical miles off the Cuban coast.

Kennedy and his military and diplomatic advisers are not sure what was behind this assault on a small unarmed vessel in international waters. The President said he was watching to see whether a pattern develops, meaning a pattern of attacks against surface and aircraft traveling in the region around Castro's stronghold. If it turns out that the strike at the shrimp boat was an isolated incident without Cuban government sanction, concerns felt in the top levels of the administration here will ease off somewhat. The Cuban government said Thursday night it was not responsible for the attack.

What the shrimp boat affair has dramatized for the moment is Castro's ability to make trouble if he wants to.

CUBAN ISOLATION

Cuba is almost completely isolated economically and diplomatically by the Western Hemisphere nations and is under surveillance by U.S. aircraft.

Kennedy told the news conference that Castro's economy is in bad shape and is being subsidized by the Soviet Union. He said various forms of Soviet assistance to Cuba now cost Moscow about $1 million daily.

Castro's capacity to carry out a campaign of harassment is provided at the moment primarily by MIG fighters. But as Soviet forces are withdrawn from the island under Premier Khrushchev's promise to Kennedy, other types of weapons may fall into Castro's hands.

Those include highly developed antiaircraft missiles, capable of shooting down this country's high-flying U2 reconnaissance planes; coastal defense rockets capable of striking ships about 25 miles at sea, and naval patrol boats also armed with short range rockets. Beyond the shrimp boat incident and the issue of the withdrawal of Soviet forces lies the long range problem of what the United States should do about a well armed Communist base in the Western Hemisphere.

The President's policy has been one of isolation aimed at putting Cuba under heavy economic pressures internally.

But the impression in official quarters here at the moment is that if a Castro pattern of harassment of U.S. or other ships and aircraft does develop Kennedy will take much more vigorous and decisive action than that which he has so far been willing to order in the situation that now exists.

Remnant of Former European Opulence

Jewel of African Tourism Now Deserted Ghost Town

KISENYI, Rwanda (AP)—This celebrated resort area of the Belgians, surrounded by the spectacular beauty of Lake Kivu, now reminds the visitor of a scene from "Gone With The Wind."

In empty splendor many of the great mansions and hotels look down on the lake from brilliant tropical settings. Broken windows and tall grass around them are reminders of a faded era that may never return.

Only a few Europeans remain to run hotels and restaurants. Once there were 500 European families, mostly Belgian, living in luxury by African standards. Now approximately 20 European families remain.

The Goma area is made up of two resort communities on Lake Kivu, the lake that divides the Congo from Rwanda. Goma is in the Congo. Kisenyi, one mile to the east, is in Rwanda. The Congo received its independence from Belgium in 1960. Rwanda, a U.N. trust territory administered by the Belgians, received its independence last year.

For all practical purposes the Congo and Rwanda were nearly considered as one by the Belgians. Whatever happened in one affected the other.

So, when independence came to the Congo, the residents and hotel owners of Kisenyi, in Rwanda, fearing that the violence might spread here too, packed their belongings, left their homes and farms and headed back to Belgium.

FEW RETURNED

Not many have returned. A hardy few stayed on, running their amidst great difficulties.

"There was never any real trouble here," said one of the store operators who stayed.

"But the people feared there would be violence from the Africans, as in Bukavu. So they left and most have never come back."

Bukavu, in the Congo, at the southern end of Lake Kivu, was the scene of great violence at the time of independence. European missionaries were killed there.

State Jobless Rate Down Over 1961

EAST LANSING (AP)—The state's unemployment was 5.3 per cent of the labor force in December compared to 7.2 per cent in December 1961, Michigan State University economists report.

All major labor areas except Flint had more unemployed in December than in November, when the state's jobless rate was 4.9 per cent.

The Upper Peninsula showed 11.7 per cent of the labor force without jobs, up from the 9.3 per cent jobless in November but better than the 14.7 per cent rate in December 1961.

Contact Mars for 1st Time

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Scientists say they established first radar contact with the planet Mars by transmitting a 25-billion watt signal.

By the time the signal finished its 125-million-mile round trip, all that returned was one billionth of one trillionth of a watt. The rest was dissipated in space.

But what remained was enough to indicate Mars has both rough and smooth surfaces, similar to those of the earth and moon.

Director to Quit Blue Cross Post

Ends Board Squabble Over Rate Increases

DETROIT (AP)—Sumner H. Whittier, 51, executive director of Michigan Blue Shield, says he will not seek renewal of his contract, which expires in one week.

Whittier's decision was announced last night. It had been reported earlier that the board of the nonprofit, prepaid medical insurance plan had decided not to renew Whittier's contract.

Whittier reportedly had been at odds with board members since last September when Blue Shield and its companion hospitalization insurance plan, Blue Cross, failed in a bid to have rates increased for individual senior citizen subscribers.

Dr. Alfred H. Whittaker, president-elect of the Wayne County Medical Society and a Blue Shield board member, publicly rebuked Whittier for taking it upon himself to seek the rate hike without formal action on the move.

"No authorization was given anyone to ask for raising its rates for Blue Shield," Dr. Whittaker said.

"We give our staff a great deal of latitude but not the authority to go out and ask for a rate increase without our permission."

It was reported at that time that Whittier offered to resign, but his offer was refused and he was held to the balance of his contract.

Dr. Sidney Adler, chairman of the Blue Shield board, said last night Whittier's decision not to seek renewal of his contract was "accepted with regret."

Whittier formerly served as head of the Veterans Administration under former President Eisenhower.

Tourist Council to Decide on Its Next Director

LANSING (AP)—The Michigan State Tourist Council will make a decision at a meeting in March on appointment of a new director, reports Rev. Louis Cappel of Ramsay, chairman.

The tourist council will be without a director when Robert Furling leaves to take the position of executive secretary of the State Conservation Commission, succeeding Cliff Ketchum, retired.

The tourist council post now pays $12,000 a year. Gov. George Romney has asked that it be upped to $14,000. The conservation post now pays $13,000, and $15,000 is recommended for the next fiscal year.

Father Cappel said four top candidates were interviewed at a preliminary screening. He asked that the names not be used.

Ski Team Captures Honors

By TERI SEIBERT
Bloomfield Hills School ski team captured first and third-place honors in the Inter-scholastic Invitational Ski Meet held Saturday at Mt. Holly.

The boys' team topped some 16 Detroit area participating schools in the meet.

Two of the team members, sophomores Geoff Smith and Dick Wood placed first and second respectively in the individual standings. Geoff had a combined time for the two runs of :49.2 seconds.

Of some 14 participating girls teams the Bloomfield Hills High School girls' team composed of three seniors, Joan Gray, Diane Hubert and Pamela Waggar, placed third in the competition. Joan Gray also placed third in the individual girls standings.

Don Gregory is the team sponsor. The Forum, the Latin Club, under the direction of teachers Cramer Perival and Mrs. Audrey Zahowsky are sponsoring a book drive to aid the Peace Corps.

In a letter to former Bloomfield student Thomas Hiffman, William Donohoe of Huntington Woods, presently in Ethiopia with the Peace Corps, expressed the great need for all types of books in Ethiopia and requested they be sent to the country.

Upon hearing about the request from Hiffman, H. S. Perival arranged for Bloomfield Hills students to participate in a book drive.

WINS AWARD

Jason Hall, BBHS senior has won the National Council of Teachers of English Achievement Award for 1962. Jason was selected to enter the contest by the school's English department last year.

The purpose of the N.C.T.E. award is to give recognition to some of the outstanding students in the United States.

Although the award carries no direct cash value, it has helped past recipients to gain scholarship aid and admission to college.

The contest consists of a written English test, an impromptu piece of writing by the nominee on a subject designated by the N.C.T.E., a sample of the nominee's composition that represents the best writing of the student, and a written autobiography of the nominee.

To Present Concert at Walled Lake

By SHERI JACKSON

Almost 200 voices will join an 86-piece band as Walled Lake Senior High presents its midwinter concert Tuesday, Feb. 26 at 8 p. m. in the high school auditorium.

Three choruses, girls, boys, and mixed, will sing under the direction of Alexander Zerbán. Accompanying them will be the concert band led by Helmut Holland-Moritz.

Walled Lake students viewed the annual talent show Wednesday. The student council sponsored the show which was narrated by the council's vice president, Johnna MacDonald.

The variety of acts included instrumental solos, a dance band and a humorous skit. Helmut Holland-Moritz's stage band opened the assembly.

Soft shoe and Charleston numbers revived memories of the past.

The championship round saw Sarah Tripp and Janet Morgan eliminate Elsie High School, runner-up in the tournament. Other schools that participated in the tournament included Imlay City, Flint Bendle, Owosso St. Paul, and Laingsburg.

Oxford High School will now go into the regional debate tournament.

The team will compete against another district winner, Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart Academy which was the state winner last year.

This tournament will be held at Oxford.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Tanner entertained at a birthday luncheon at the Wamert's City Club honoring her mother's 82nd birthday.

Today at the Village Woman's Club there will be dinner for 12—another birthday celebration.

And what a surprise it was for Mr. and Mrs. Ezra H. Frye of Detroit last Friday when they walked into their son and daughter-in-law's home, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frye of Trowbridge Road, and found some 50 guests there ready to celebrate Mr. Frye's 75th birthday.

Their daughter, Mrs. Scott Harkins, came from Prestonsburg, Ky., for the party.

Relatives and friends came from Detroit, Dearborn and Grosse Pointe. Among local friends were Dr. and Mrs. Roy E. Hawkinson and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gilles.

Arriving home last Friday from a week of skiing at Osego, Mr. and Mrs. R. Jamison Williams of Yarmouth Road quickly repacked their luggage and headed for New York where their son, Tod, participated at the New York Athletic Club track meet.

On Saturday, they headed for Princeton to see their son Rick in a swimming meet against the Harvard team. Both sons attend Princeton.

Avoid Future Grief

Get Rid of Souvenirs

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why do people hang on to letters and pictures of a dead romance?

I had a friend who was killed recently in an accident. When her employer came to her wake he brought a box of her personal things that had been locked in her file at work.

He gave them to her husband. When the husband opened the box, he found letters and pictures from a fellow he had suspected his wife was in love with during the early years of their marriage.

I knew about this affair and knew it had been over for years. The husband didn't know this. He went to pieces and did not attend her funeral.

He was located months later, a broken man, in Skid Row.

Even in death it's the innocent ones who are hurt the most. Write something about this in your column, Abby. It could spare others that kind of misery.

A FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: You expressed it very well. Let this be a warning to all who have "junk" souvenirs locked in files, vaults and drawers. Dig them out—for the sake of the living who love you—and give them a private burial.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when a girl writes a boy's initials all over her notebooks, school books and even on her arms in red and black ink?

I am the boy and I don't like it one bit. She never was my girl and never will be. The whole school thinks I am her boy friend. Please print this so the kids at school will get it straight.

S.O.S.
DEAR S.O.S.: The girl is childish and there is nothing you can do about it. If you make a fuss, she'll have attracted your attention, which is what she is trying to do. Ignore her and she'll go away.

DEAR ABBY: My father died a few months ago leaving my mother alone. In order to supplement her income she decided to rent her downstairs. She asked me to help fix it up, so I agreed. My wife screamed bloody murder.

She said I never painted or repaired our house and had no business doing it for my mother. She said, "Let the old bag rot up there!"

Abby, my wife's attitude has torn me to shreds inside. I am the only son and my mother could not afford a professional decorator. Was I wrong in helping my mother? What's wrong with my wife?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: You were not wrong to have helped your mother and I think your wife is headsick.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine has nothing to do all day but stay on the telephone and collect news of other people's troubles, then she uses me as a dumping ground. She calls me first thing in the morning to tell me who is sick or who is dying. It upsets me for the entire day. Most of these people I don't even know, but when she gives me the details of their sad stories I get depressed. Abby, I have troubles of my own, and I can read plenty of tragic stories in the newspapers. This has been going on much too long. How do I turn her off?

NERVOUS WRECK
DEAR NERVOUS: Tell her in plain language that you would rather not hear about the troubles of people you don't know. If you make it emphatic enough, she'll get the idea.

Big 'Rush' On at U. of M.

By BARBARA GRIFFIN

The final week of fraternity and sorority rushing and the University Shakespeare Festival have left area students at the University of Michigan little time for class work this week.

The Shakespeare Festival which began last week in Lydia Mendelsohn Theater, features many of Shakespeare's greatest plays, including "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Merchant of Venice" and "King Richard III." Students have been given a special admission price for all performances.

Working with the Ann Arbor Association of Producing Artists on this festival is Betty Vernon of Lakewood Drive, a junior majoring in speech. She will appear this week in "The Merchant of Venice" and also is featured in "King Richard III," to open next Thursday evening.

For her dramatic talents, Betty has been initiated into Zeta Phi Eta, a national speech arts fraternity for women, and was elected treasurer of the chapter. She is also affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta social sorority.

FORMAL CEREMONIES

Both men's and women's rush will be completed this weekend as each house claims its new pledge class. Formal pledging ceremonies for the sororities will be Sunday afternoon.

Fraternities have been extending bids since Sunday, after having entertained rushes at dinners, smokers and sports events for the past two weeks.

Helping to give the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house a spring cleaning for rush are Dick Reynolds of Illinois Avenue, Ken Shaw of Delaware Drive, Douglas Roeder of Neome Drive and Jeff Longstreth of St. Jude Court.

Dick Jackson of James K Boulevard has been rushing potential pledges for Chi Psi fraternity, of which he is treasurer. Other students rushing for their respective houses are Ted Gaenshauer of Hammond Lake Drive, Phi Gamma Delta; Mark Berg of Orchard Lake, Alpha Epsilon Psi; and Bruce Wigent of Mohawk Road, Sigma Nu.

Next Saturday night the Inter-Quadrangle Council and Assembly Association will present the popular folksing group, Peter, Paul and Mary.

This is the annual spring fundraising concert of these two organizations representing students who live in the quadrangles and dormitories.

Nylon Protects Elbows

By POLLY GRAMER

DEAR POLLY — When anyone of us purchases a new sweater, I cut out a circle from an old nylon stocking, large enough to cover the elbow, and stitch this to the inside of the sleeve at the elbow.

It is skin-colored and does not show but prolongs the life of the sweater in a place that is always the first to need mending.

I, too, need help and hope someone has an answer for me. Dust and lint settle in areas behind buttons and seams on a man's shirt. This problem makes a perfectly good shirt look soiled. Others must have this same problem.

A GRATEFUL READER

DEAR POLLY — To get the lint out from the fold and from around the buttonholes in men's white shirts and girls' blouses, I use a crochet hook. One can dig the lint loose and pull it out. No more lumpy edges and corners.

M. L. S.

DEAR POLLY — Tie a bright tag on the furnace door noting the date on which the filters were last changed. This way you can check the date instead of pulling the filters out unnecessarily.

H. J. H.

DEAR POLLY — Cut a slit in the top of a cork and glue it to the top of your recipe file box. It makes a fine holder for the recipe card you happen to be using.

MRS. A.

DEAR POLLY — Recently in aiding a bedridden patient to swallow liquids without coughing, I provided a baby's weaning cup.

The patient could then drink in a partially reclined position without exertion and help herself without fear of spilling anything on the bed covers.

A. The fact that you are self-conscious and tense is probably the reason you cannot follow your partner.

Press the fingers of left hand firmly against his shoulder when you dance. Then relax and try to follow his steps.

Some men lead very poorly.

If you know your partner well enough, ask him to lead you a bit more firmly.

Isn't there someone in your family or among your closest friends who will practice with you?

Girl Caught in Dilemma

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE 0465: Lydia M., aged 16, is a high school junior.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I started dating last year. And now I have been going steady for two months with a very popular boy."

"He is a senior so I feel flattered to be his steady girl."

"But he drinks and smokes cigarettes constantly. And on our last few dates he has been demanding that I give in to him sexually."

"My parents have taught me that it is wrong to have such affairs but this boy threatens to jilt me."

"For he says all the other girls give in to their boy friends. So he argues that I am old-fashioned and silly."

"Dr. Crane, I don't know what to do! How can I hold him if I don't give in to him?"

TEEN-AGE DILEMMA

This is a widespread dilemma of teen-age girls nowadays.

Lydia's boy friend is simply using a bold generosity when he tells her that all girls give in to their teenage boy friends.

That's malarky. The smart girls do not do so!

The stupid ones often imitate Biblical Esau and thus sell their virtue in a vain attempt to hang on to a juvenile escort temporarily.

And I use the word "temporarily" advisedly, for when the girls get pregnant, then the boys either skip town, join the military service, or ditch their former "easy mark" for a more stimulating female.

Girls, whenever a boy strains abnormally to adopt the "status symbols" of liquor, cigarettes and sexual conquests, he is doubly juvenile.

Boys with severe inferiority complexes then strain unduly to mimic the "image" of a supposed big shot, he-man.

Actually, the real he-men in high school are leaders in debate or on the honor role or out on the athletic field or gym floor helping win fame for their school.

It is usually the wallflower boy, often short of stature, who grabs at such status symbols as liquor, cigarettes, gambling, and sexual conquests.

Among adult males, too, the Don Juan, who boasts of his many sexual conquests, is generally a man with a sexual inferiority complex.

HARBORS FEARS

He fears impotence or sexual inadequacy. So he seduces women as a tonic to his own sexual inferiority.

Remember, it is thus the scared kid who whistles to raise his own courage as he passes the cemetery. Brave folks don't need to adopt such status symbols!

Actually, boys and men are not interested so much in sex itself as in the inflation of their own ego.

"I want to feel important!" is the indelible tattoo on their chests.

So when they can coerce a girl and bend her will to their own "dictates," this makes them feel important.
