State Schools Get 53 Pct. of Budget

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's schools, colleges and universities will divide a whopping $797.4 million in the year beginning next July 1 if the Legislature adopts the budget proposals of Gov. William Milliken.

The executive budget proposals, signed by both outgoing Gov. George Romney and incoming Gov. Milliken, boosts state funds for school aid by $84.9 million.

No provisions are made in the $1.51-billion budget, however, for state aid to nonpublic schools, a $40-million proposal soon to be introduced in the Legislature.

Milliken told a news conference that he had indicated "concern and sympathy for the problems of nonpublic schools." But, he added, if the Legislature adopts a measure to give financial assistance to private and parochial schools, it "would have to find the revenues to support that program."

The budget as submitted, he said, would end the 1969-70 fiscal year with a $12.9 million surplus, which he considered "none too large."

Asked if funds from that surplus might be earmarked for state aid to nonpublic schools, Milliken said:

"There is no question that when you're talking about a budget the size of ours, $13 million is hardly a sufficient margin or cushion."

Of the increase, $48.9 million is for membership allowances for elementary and secondary education, adding $4-$35 per pupil under the present state aid formula.

BUYING TIME

"Very candidly, we're buying time until we can do a decent job" of setting up a new state aid formula, Milliken said.

Milliken said his office and legislative committees are working now on such a formula.

The state aid increase also includes $24.6 million for special education program grants and $11.3 million for retirement funds. An additional $1.45 million is earmarked for aid to environmentally disadvantaged children.

In higher education, the 1969-70 budget sets aside $1.5 million for previously authorized expansion of dental and medical programs at the University of Michigan and Wayne State University and provides a $200,000 grant to Michigan State University for planning the clinical years of a full four-year medical school.

"Every effort should be made to encourage the two established medical schools and the new school of Michigan State University to provide training options for both allopathic and osteopathic professions," the budget message said.

Pontiac Postman Has New 'Bag': Pup's Best Friend

By DIANNE DUROCHER

A cold-nosed canine orphan found a home yesterday as a result of a surprising set of coincidences.

When postman George Woody opened the mail pickup box located at Huron and Saginaw yesterday he found a 6-week-old puppy among the out-of-town letters.

Near the frisky puppy, who seemed delighted to see the surprised Woody, was a brown paper bag in which someone stealthily deposited him in the box sometime between 5:15 and 11:45 a.m.

Mrs. Dale Wiltse of 6265 Clarkston, Independence Township, was watching the unusual scene from her car and offered to take the puppy and provide a home for him.

★ ★ ★

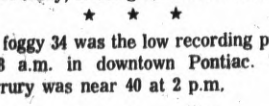

With her new puppy wriggling in her arms, Mrs. Wiltse explained, "I couldn't resist taking him, I'm an animal lover from way back."

Woody collected the rest of the mail, patted the puppy's head and drove away smiling to himself.

11 Cabinet Members Are Sworn In Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven members of President Nixon's Cabinet were sworn in today and, at one point during the 20-minute ceremony, Nixon raised his own right hand — almost forgetting he'd done that two days ago.

Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oaths individually to the 11 at an 8 a.m. nationally televised ceremony in the East Room of the White House.

★ ★ ★

Also taking the oath because they will sit in on Cabinet meetings were Budget Director Robert P. Mayo and Charles W. Yost, ambassador to the United Nations.

The 12th Cabinet appointee, Republican Gov. Walter J. Hickel of Alaska, did not participate. His nomination as secretary of the interior has hit at least a momentary snag in the Senate, where some members question his devotion to the cause of conservation.

EARLY MORNING HUMOR

In brief remarks prior to the oath-taking, Nixon noted that in the past some presidents referred to their department heads as members of a kitchen cabinet, tennis cabinet or medicine ball cabinet.

Because of the hour, he said, he'll call his "a working cabinet."

When President Nixon introduced his Cabinet appointees to the nation last December, he introduced each by name —except Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans.

Nixon recalled the incident today during swearing-in ceremonies for 11 of his department heads. But again he failed to mention Stans by name, introducing him only as secretary of commerce.

After the oath was administered, a grinning Nixon sought to make amends by loudly and firmly proclaiming: "I congratulate you, Mr. Stans."

Army to Delay Pick of County Site for ABMs

The Department of Defense has agreed to a request from two Michigan congressmen for a delay in the selection of a Sentinel Antiballistic missile site in Oakland County.

In a letter to Congressman William S. Broomfield, R-18th District, outgoing Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford said "Tentative site selection would be postponed until mid-February.

Broomfield and Congressman John Conyers Jr., D-Detroit, requested a 60-day delay in mid-December so that the issue could be aired publicly.

Clifford said in his letter that formal announcement of the Army's choice would be sent to Congress by Feb. 28. According to law, that selection must rest in the Armed Services Committee for 30 days before the Army can move to acquire property.

BUYING IN APRIL

If the selection is approved, the Army would then begin property acquisition in April, Clifford said.

The Army has under consideration a half dozen sites in Oakland County, two of which may be selected. One would house the Spartan and Sprint, antiballistic missiles and the other a radar installation, all of which make up the Sentinel system.

Broomfield and Conyers also have asked the House Armed Services Committee to conduct public hearings on the site choices. Committee Chairman L. Mendel Rivers has promised hearings will be held in Washington. The Army has promised hearings in Oakland County, once a tentative site choice has been made.

Broomfield and Conyers also are working to set up a meeting of members of the scientific community to learn their views on the ABM programs.

OPPOSITION MOUNTS

A number of community organizations in Oakland County have mounted campaigns in opposition to specific sites.

In addition, Broomfield said that Congressman Elford Cederberg, R-Bay City, has indicated that he will raise questions about specific site locations next week at a meeting of the Military Construction sub-committee of the House Armed Services Committee.

Cederberg told Broomfield he is concerned about the high cost of buying land for ABM sites near heavily populated areas. He said it was his understanding when the committee authorized funds for the program that the sites would be located away from population centers.

White House Still Expects Hickel OK

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON—The White House says it is confident Walter J. Hickel will win Senate confirmation as interior secretary, although opponents succeeded in blocking him from joining 11 other Cabinet appointees at swearing-in ceremonies today.

Hickel was left out of the ceremonies for the 11 other appointees in the East Room of the White House because an unnamed Democrat demanded a printed record of his testimony before the Senate Interior Committee.

★ ★ ★

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said the Government Printing Office couldn't deliver the trascript until today at the earliest.

Despite pressure from fellow liberals and conservationist groups, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., gave notice today that he will vote to confirm Hickel's appointment.

Milliken Takes Reins of State

LANSING (AP) — Asserting that "I'm ready for the job and eager to get started," 46-year-old William Grawn Milliken took the oath of office today as Michigan's 44th governor.

Placing his left hand on a Bible held by his wife, Helen, Milliken was given the oath at 12:03 p.m. in his new Capitol office by Chief Justice John Dethmers of the Michigan Supreme Court.

The ceremony followed by about 3½ hours the resignation of Gov. George Romney, who left after six years in the executive office to become secretary of housing and urban development in President Richard Nixon's cabinet.

Romney's resignation was submitted shortly after 8:30 a.m. to the secretary of state, Milliken and the speaker of the State House of Representatives.

5th TIME IN HISTORY

It was only the fifth time in Michigan history that a lieutenant governor succeeded a governor without being popularly elected.

Secretary of State James Hare became next in line for the governor's post since Michigan's Constitution makes no provision for replacing a lieutenant governor.

After taking the oath, Milliken pledged "a total commitment on my part" to attacking pollution and urban problems and stressing public order, social justice, welfare, health and traffic safety.

He called also for reform of the state's educational system— its structure, its financing and its quality.

★ ★ ★

"I don't know if Michigan is ready for Milliken," the new governor concluded, "but I can assure you that I'm ready for the job and eager to get started."

Mayor Is Optimistic About State of City

By ED BLUNDEN

Pontiac Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. gave a glowing appraisal of the city's progress in 1968 and its future hopes in his annual State of the City message at last night's City Commission meeting.

In all aspects the mayor found positive growth, vitality and promise.

★ ★ ★

"This commission witnessed the spirit of a new Pontiac take form and grow," he said. "The people of this community . . . have suddenly gotten involved in Pontiac," Taylor said.

The mayor found encouragement from the city's financial picture, greatly improved with the city income tax which began last January, and with all the departmental functions.

MAYOR TAYLOR

He found satisfaction with public and private development and in social relationships in the community.

★ ★ ★

In examining the year, he said: "There's a new sense of awareness among the citizens of this community — a new sense of understanding of each other's problems.

Related Stories, Page A-10

"In 1967 Pontiac was one of many cities across this nation that suffered the turmoil of riot. In 1968 the citizens went to the voting booth and passed a fair-housing law designed to end discrimination in the sale or rental of housing.

"Our people — white, black or Mexican-American — are beginning to learn the meaning of involvement.

"I'm confident that the victories achieved in human understanding in 1968, will continue into this new year. And I'm certain that the spirit of Pontiac will nurture and grow in 1969 as more and more of our citizens begin to take an active role in determining the future course of our community," Taylor said.

'ON THE MOVE'

He saw in the accomplishments of the year evidence that "Pontiac is on the move," and cited the activity of such organizations as Harambee, a black development corporation, and the Pontiac Area Planning Council, an advisory group.

In his item-by-item review, Taylor pointed to $2.7 million brought into the city's revenue by the city income tax as especially progressive.

'BOON TO SERVICES'

He said it has allowed the city to maintain and expand all its services. He particularly cited the police force, to which 31 new men were added during

Downtown Huron Parking Is Banned

Parking will be prohibited by Monday on Huron Street in downtown Pontiac, it was ruled by the City Commission last night.

Joseph E. Neipling, director of public works and services, said signs would be corrected by Monday, but lane striping and related work would come later.

★ ★ ★

The commission was acting on directives by the State Highway Department. Huron (M59) is under state jurisdiction.

The parking ban will be on Huron between east and west Wide Track except the north side of Huron between Mill and Perry where the street is wider. Parking also will be banned on Pine north of Huron, across from the parking lots.

S. Viet Premier Predicts Paris Peace Talk Failure

PARIS (UPI) — Premier Tran Van Huong of South Vietnam today predicted the peace talks opening here Saturday will fail.

Huong, talking to newsmen in Saigon, was asked if he believed the negotiations by South and North Vietnam, the United States and the Vietcong would succeed. "No, not at all," he replied.

In Paris, American diplomats led by Henry Cabot Lodge expressed hope the talks will plunge quickly into the major issues of war and peace without lengthy debate over such procedural matters as the conference agenda.

The Americans announced yesterday that the full negotiations would open Saturday, following 10 months of intensive U.S. efforts here.

AGENDA ISSUE

U.S. officials said they and the South Vietnamese have agreed to try to avoid any fight with the Communists over the agenda.

The North Vietnamese and the Vietcong last week said they would demand that the first topic of discussion the withdrawal of U.S. forces from south Vietnman.

But the Communist diplomats also said they were eager to open discussion of major issues on a Vietnam settlement quickly.

Sources said the United States and South Vietnam want to have the conference adopt a flexible schedule of discussion rather than restrict the diplomats to a point-by-point agenda that could delay progress.

U.S. officials announced agreement on a Saturday opening date for the talks following a conference yesterday between Lodge, the new American delegation leader, and Phan Dang Lam, head of the South Vietnamese delegation.

DAILY MEETINGS

Lodge and Lam were to meet daily until Saturday to discuss allied strategy for the opening of the negotiations.

RIVER HIGHWAY — A man in a rowboat inspects a submerged auto on the banks of the Sacramento River yesterday after the area was flooded by heavy rains. Levee breaks along the Sacramento could flood rich California farmlands. The flooding has brought a declaration of emergency by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Feared Dead in California

10 Lost in Flooded Creek

From Our News Wires

SANTA PAULA, Calif. — Ten persons fleeing a torrential rainstorm in rugged mountain country were swept from a rescue bulldozer "one by one" when it stalled in a swollen creek.

Authorities said all of them, including six children, were presumed drowned.

★ ★ ★

The Ventura County sheriff's office first learned of the tragedy late yesterday from the sole survivor who was picked up by a helicopter near the raging Sespe Creek in the Los Padres National Forest.

The dead included six youths from Canoga Park, Calif., and a man who took them for an outing in the forest last Friday just before a series of violent rainstorms hit the state.

3 SEARCHERS LOST

The three other victims were members of a search party which was bringing them out of the lonely area Monday night about 35 miles north of here.

The survivor was Scott Eckersley, 28, a housefather at Live Oak School in the Ojai Valley, who met the boys at a campground on Saturday.

★ ★ ★

As the drenching rain continued in California, an official state of emergency was proclaimed.

For the first time in history, the U.S. Weather Bureau said, every one of its California stations reported rain yesterday.

As flood-stricken cities called for aid, Gov. Ronald Reagan signed a declaration of emergency enabling the state to release funds and seek federal money.

Major concern centered on Sacramento and San Joaquin Valley rivers where levee breaks could flood rich farmlands. High flows were reported in the Sacramento, Cosumnes and Stanislaus rivers.

Sherman Island, which 200 residents left Monday night when a levee broke, was about two-thirds under water.

Judge Dismisses Suits Contesting Route of I-696

Three lawsuits contesting the route of I-696 through Pleasant Ridge and Lathrup Village were dismissed yesterday by Oakland County Circuit Judge Arthur E. Moore.

★ ★ ★

Moore ruled that there was nothing unconstitutional about an arbitration panel's selection of a route through the two south Oakland communities.

★ ★ ★

The two communities and a Lathrup home owners' group had contended that the arbitration board, established at an extra session of the Legislature in 1967, deprived the municipalities of reasonable control of its highways and streets.

★ ★ ★

Moore, in his 35-page opinion, disagreed, saying "No proof of unreasonable or unnecessary vacating or altering of local streets or denial of reasonable local control has been shown."

CHALLENGE EXPECTED

The decision of Moore is expected to be challenged in the State Supreme Court.

The arbitration board was named by Gov. Romney to counteract years of disagreement over the proposed route through several communities in south Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

The route selected by the arbitration board would generally follow 10 Mile Road in Pleasant Ridge and 11 Mile Road in Lathrup.

While having no immediate bearing on the situation, Moore did suggest that the State Legislature take note of the possibility of awarding damages to affected home owners.

★ ★ ★

Only when condemnation actions are brought will such questions of damage be involved, said Moore.

VW Sales Backed Up

Dock Strike Stalls Imports

NEW YORK (AP) — Enough "beetles" to produce a mammoth traffic jam waited aboard 11 strike-idled ships in East and Gulf coast ports yesterday as efforts continued to end a strike of 75,000 longshoremen in its 33rd day.

The West German Volkswagen Co. said about 16,500 of its compact export cars were stranded aboard the vessels and undeliverable to dealers in the eastern and central sections of the nation.

Volkswagen, as the largest exporter of cars to the United States, with about one-third of its 1,175,000 units shipped to this country, said the strike had turned back the clock to when buyers had to wait up to 10 months for delivery. A spokesman said customer impatience could cost the firm the loss of numerous sales.

Other foreign auto manufacturers who normally supply the remainder of the 900,000 yearly imports were in similar straits. These included, in order of import volume, Opel, Toyota and Datsun, Volvo, Fiat, Mercedes-Benz, English Ford and Renault.

the year. He also noted the department's improved salaries.

Also discussed were:

● Capital Improvements: Almost seven miles of city streets improved at a cost of $800,000; — 3½ miles of storm and sanitary sewers added; four miles of water mains; 229 new street lights; and over 900 trees planted.

★ ★ ★

● Parking: Malls on Saginaw downtown brought a reported upswing in business. In addition, parking at Pontiac General Hospital has been increased from 293 spaces to 600 and 100 more are planned.

● Computers: New installations have resulted in better financial and budgetary control.

● Homes: More than 1,000 new single and multiple-dwelling-unit permits were issued.

● Hospitals: An emergency and physical therapy addition was opened and 20 units of intern housing begun at Pontiac General and at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital a major expansion got under way.

Looking to the future, Mayor Taylor saw greater possibilities. He expressed hopes for the Pontiac Plan for development of the 27 acres of vacant urban renewal land downtown. The plan calls for a development of a multiple-use center on which $100 million is expected to be spent for construction.

COULD GET STARTED

The city adopted the plan early this year and actual construction could be well under way in 1969.

He also cited the impact expected from the beginning of construction this spring of the $4-million Human Resources Center southeast of the city municipal buildings. The board of education facility will replace several elementary schools and provide other community educational facilities.

Taylor also pointed out that construction of the Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine got under way in 1968 and by the fall of this year students are expected to be admitted.

He also cited the completion of the $4-million Consumers Power building on Featherstone.

Hopes still remain strong for a huge, domed stadium to be built on the east (I-75 and M59) to house the Detroit professional sports teams, Taylor indicated.

★ ★ ★

From all reports the teams still intend to move and the Pontiac site is still in the running.

The city has appointed a Stadium Authority with the power to go ahead with negotiations and construction.

DR. THEODORE H. PAULI

Pontiac Doctor Dies at Age 64

Dr. Theodore H. Pauli, 64, Pontiac physician and surgeon for nearly 30 years, died yesterday.

Requiem Mass will be 11 a.m. tomorrow in St. Benedict Catholic Church with burial in Mount Hope Cemetery by Voorhees-Siple Funeral Home.

★ ★ ★

The family suggests any memorials be made to the Michigan Heart Association.

Surviving are his wife, the former Josephine Devereaux of Saginaw; a daughter, Mrs. John Landry of Birmingham; a son, Dr. Francis J. Pauli of Ann Arbor; and a granddaughter.

OTHER SURVIVORS

Also surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Arthur Leh of Royal Oak and Mary Pauli, Mrs. Ardel Pierce and Mrs. William O'Reilly, all of Pontiac.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Dr. Pauli received his medical degree from Loyola University School of Medicine, Chicago, in 1930.

After residences in St. Joseph Mercy and Pontiac General hospitals, he started his practice in Pontiac at the Riker Building July 15, 1934.

Later he served as chief of staff at Pontiac General Hospital and was active on the staff of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. He was a member of St. Benedict's Catholic Church.

CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Dr. Pauli had served as chairman of the board of directors of Oakland County Catholic Social Services and as treasurer of Oakland County Medical Society.

During World War II, he was the chief medical officer on the U.S. Army hospital ship, Seminole.

★ ★ ★

While the ship was in service in the Mediterranean, Dr. Pauli often encountered the late Ernie Pyle, the renowned American war correspondent.

Birmingham

School-Issue Vote Slated for March 24

BIRMINGHAM—School district voters will decide two ballot questions at a special millage election set for March 24, by the school board last night.

One will be an 11-mill tax proposal, 7.5 mills renewal and a 3.5-mill increase, while the second will be an about $4.5-million bond issue. The exact bond figure is still to be set.

★ ★ ★

Board members trimmed both amounts in approving the ballot proposals. The initial figures had come from a citizens committee.

The committee had recommended a 5-mill increase in the operating tax levy and a $5.5-million bond issue. The bonds are to finance additions to the city's two high schools.

REASONS FOR TRIM

The board revised plans for the school additions to cut the amount to be spent on construction. The operating millage request was trimmed on the basis of projected increases in property valuations, which would provide the school district with added income.

COMAC Co., locally based management consulting firm, plans to open two offices in the Far East within the next few months. The firm recently opened a new headquarters office building at 1500 N. Woodward here.

★ ★ ★

COMAC opened an office in Washington, D.C., last year. Future plans also call for the opening of an additional office in New York.

The announcement was made by Thomas H. Wagner, COMAC president.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS—Sam Sharako of 146 Barrington has been elected vice president of Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., Detroit based whiskey distilling firm.

Sharako joined the firm as a salesman in 1940. He is a member of the firm's board of directors.

NATIONAL WEATHER—Rain and snow are predicted tonight in a belt from the Rockies to the central Pacific coast. Snow or freezing drizzle is expected across the northern Plains and the upper Midwest, turning to rain over the central Plains and the lower Mississippi Valley. Rain will also fall in the Middle Atlantic states.

Huge VC Cache Seized by Yanks

SAIGON (AP) — American air cavalrymen leapfrogging along the Cambodian border north of Saigon by helicopter uncovered a major Vietcong supply base yesterday and, with out firing a shot, seized the second-largest munitions stockpile captured in the war, military spokesmen reported today.

The U.S. Command also announced that three more million-dollar jet fighters were shot down in South Vietnam Monday and yesterday. Two of the pilots were rescued; the third was killed.

A spokesman said the air cavalrymen pulled 30 tons of rockets, mortars, recoilless rifle shells and explosives from a complex of 30 bunkers 60 miles north-northwest of Saigon and only seven miles from the Cambodian border.

Previously, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have captured more than 600 tons of enemy weapons, ammunition and food up and down the country in the last three weeks, enough to feed 27,000 troops for three weeks and to equip 1,000 Vietcong soldiers fully.

MAJOR FACTOR

The capture of supplies and munitions northwest of Saigon is believed to have been a major factor in the failure of the Vietcong and North Vietnamese to mount a winter offensive against the South Vietnamese capital.

A spokesman said most of the ammunition found yesterday was in crates stacked up in bunkers 40 feet long, 6 feet deep and 6 feet wide. It included Chinese 107mm rockets, which weigh 50 pounds each and have a range of about five miles.

The spokesman said there were no enemy troops guarding the stockpile.

He said there could be several reasons for this — that the Vietcong hadn't distributed it quickly enough, that they took a chance that it might never be found, or that they fled when they realized they were outnumbered.

Czech Locksmith 3rd to Set Himself Afire

PRAGUE (AP)—Prague Radio said that a 23-year-old locksmith set himself afire during the night in the town of Brno, at a square where a memorial to Jan Palach had been erected.

It was the third attempt by a Czech at suicide by fire within a week, but Palach's is the only one so far for which a political motive has been established.

The locksmith, Miroslav Malinka, suffered second-degree burns over about 12 per cent of his body and is in good condition, the broadcast said.

Palach, a 21-year-old student, set himself afire in Prague last Thursday to protest the reversal of the country's reform program as a result of the Soviet occupation. He died Sunday.

Weather Cancels Tonight's Ski Class

Pontiac Press Ski School classes have been canceled for tonight at Mt. Holly in Groveland Township, due to rain, and poor skiing conditions.

Beginner lessons for Press Ski School ticket holders will be held as usual tomorrow night if temperatures drop below freezing.

A makeup night for lessons will be announced as soon as weather conditions permit.

Court Maneuvers Threaten Delay in Seating Sirhan Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense and prosecution in the Sirhan Bishara Sirhan murder trial were locked today in courtroom maneuvering that could delay seating a jury for another week or more.

The use of peremptory challenges was started unexpectedly Tuesday, the day on which it had been indicated a tentative jury would be accepted.

Sirhan is accused of fatally shooting Sen. Robert F. Kennedy last June.

Both sides had hinted earlier they might waive the 20 challenges allowed them to remove a prospective juror without citing a reason. But as the trial entered its third week Tuesday, each side used one such challenge.

The prosecution last Friday accepted a tentative panel of jurors "as now constituted." The defense was to give its decision Tuesday.

Then one tentative juror, Helen L. Woodworth, was excused for medical reasons. She was replaced by Geraldine Scherer, retired antique dealer from nearby Whittier, and defense attorney Grant B. Cooper said the defense would accept the jury, including Mrs. Scherer.

* * *

At that point, Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. Lynn D. Compton withdrew the prosecution's acceptance of the jury, saying it wasn't the same jury as was seated Friday. He used a peremptory challenge to remove from the panel Dora Jacobi.

The legal result: Since the prosecution had to challenge first, the defense thus gets the last challenge.

The defense indicated it considered the move a triumph of maneuvering to keep the prosecution from "getting ahead of us." But Compton noted in court: "I am not playing games with Mr. Cooper."

Cooper later used a peremptory challenge to remove Leslie H. Laney, a postal employe.

Henry Miller, a civilian employe of the Long Beach naval shipyard, was tentatively seated.

* * *

Judge Herbert V. Walker excused one prospective juror after she announced: "I am unequivocally opposed to capital punishment, whether done by an individual or the state."

Looking at the 24-year-old Sirhan, she said: "I would have difficulty finding this man innocent. He performed an execution."

* * *

Walker also excused two women who objected to being sequestered in a hotel for months. They both said their sons are returning home from Vietnam.

"I can't think of a better reason," said Walker.

'He Swears a Lot'

Dog Wags His Tongue

DETROIT (AP) — Not only does his 5-month-old dog talk, but "he swears quite a bit," says Robert Turner of Detroit.

"One time my wife hit him with a broom and told him to go outside and he said: 'Hell, no.'" Turner said.

The dog, named Pat, however, refused to talk to reporters who were summoned to the Turner home Tuesday by a neighbor, James Farley.

"They told me he talked, but I just couldn't believe it," Farley said. "I was sitting in the kitchen this morning with Robert and, just fooling around, I asked the dog if he wanted to go home with me.

SWEARS ITS REAL

"And he said 'No.' I almost fell off the chair. It's hard to believe, but it happened. I swear it," Farley said.

Mrs. Turner was somewhat reluctant to discuss the whole affair, but said "Yeah, he talks. He started when he was young. He's the smartest dog I've ever seen."

She said the dog, half spaniel and half spitz, overheard her arguing with her husband the other night, "and Pat walked up to Robert and said 'Shut up.'"

When the dog declined comment to newsmen Tuesday, Turner said "I suppose he just doesn't talk much to reporters."

He's probably afraid of being misquoted.

Detroit Panel Airs 'Bias' at Yacht Clubs

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Parks and Recreation Commission meets in executive session today to discuss ending alleged discriminatory practices at two all-white yacht clubs which use city property on Belle Isle.

Robert Reese, city corporation counsel, is expected to tell the commission it has the authority to evict the clubs with or without payment for their clubhouses and other facilities valued at $2 million.

However, the commission also could set a deadline for compliance with nondiscriminatory practices.

The commission told the Detroit Yacht Club and Detroit Boat Club a year ago that they had to take affirmative action to ensure that their membership and employment policies were carried out without regard to race, color or creed.

Detroit's Commission on Community Relations recently told the parks commission that the clubs had not met the standards.

Hiring of Attorney, Statements Heat Pontiac Twp. Planning Unit Dispute

By TOM GRAY

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP—From all indications, next Monday night's Township Board meeting may be a donnybrook.

More fuel has been added to the fires of the planning commission controversy, with the hiring of an attorney and the release of public statements by the board's four majority members.

The board last week voted to retain legal counsel to resolve a month-old dispute which has left the planning commission four members short.

Both factions on the board were authorized to retain counsel under the resolution, but so far only the majority—Treasurer Mrs. Goldie Mailahn and Trustees Robert Grusnick, John Richardson and Walter G. Smith—has done so.

'APPEALING TO WAHL'

Their attorney, State Rep. William P. Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, said the four are "appealing to Mr. Roy Wahl to submit new names for the planning commission appointments at the board's next meeting."

Added Hampton, "If not, then legal action will most likely be taken."

* * *

Asked this morning whether he intended to submit fresh appointees, Wahl declined comment.

The supervisor previously has offered the names of former Trustees Claude Arnett and Ronald E. Drake and Trustee Mrs. Ronald E. Drake, who defeated her husband by 52 votes in the November election, for the commission.

ALL REJECTED

All have been rejected by the board, with only Mrs. Drake and Clerk Mrs. Greta Block voting in favor of the appointments.

The members of the majority have been accused of political maneuverings by members of the public, since they are Republicans, while Wahl, Drake and Arnett are Democrats.

* * *

However, the four denied political motivations in their public statements, concentrating instead on legal and personal reasons for turning down the appointments.

Richardson commented unfavorably on what he called a "concentration of power" resulting from Arnett's previous service as planning commission chairman while a township trustee.

'UNHEALTHY SITUATION'

By virtue of his (Arnett's) election as chairman, Richardson explained, Arnett became by law, a member of the zoning board of appeals, creating a situation which Richardson termed "unhealthy."

Responding to the statement, Arnett verified that he had held the positions simultaneously, but added, "In a situation like this, it's impossible to do anything detrimental to the township without getting hung.

* * *

"Members of the commission approached me and asked if I would serve as chairman, because of my long experience on the zoning board," Arnett said. "I told them I would take it for a year—that's in the commission minutes."

Richardson also noted that Arnett and Drake had received campaign contributions from land developers. "I feel that it would be imprudent of me to approve his (Arnett's) appointment as a commissioner to sit in judgment" of those developers, the trustee declared.

DONATIONS REJECTED

Arnett said his campaign committee had received contributions from township businessmen, but that he and Drake had rejected any donations "with strings attached." The two have photostatic copies of letters involving one such contribution, which was returned, Arnett said.

The four members of the majority concurred in citing alleged inexperience as a principal reason for rejecting Mrs. Drake as an appointee.

* * *

They also agreed in stating that there are many other citizens in the township who would be well qualified for appointment to the commission, and in suggesting that additional names should be offered by Wahl.

Fuel-Oil Strike Foes Talk Today

DETROIT (AP) — Adversaries in the 19-day-old fuel-oil strike affecting Detroit open negotiations today.

Humble Oil was scheduled to reopen talks with the striking Local 7-389 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers. But another struck oil company, Gulf, was set to take on the OCAW in a Wayne County Circuit Court hearing over charges the union has been harassing nonstrikers at two Gulf plants.

* * *

Negotiations seemed to be doing better elsewhere than in Detroit. Though most of the union's 50,000 nationwide personnel were still on strike, two oil refineries in Texas reached tentative agreements yesterday with the union.

In Detroit, Shell, Sinclair, Boron and Texaco remain struck, in addition to Humble and Gulf. Shell is scheduled to appear in court Thursday with charges similar to Gulf's.

MOBIL CASE

Mobil Oil Corp. meanwhile will appear before the Michigan Public Service Commission in regard to ticket violations it has received for allegedly using an unlicensed trucking firm, T.K.S., to haul gas and oil during the strike.

Mobil has denied any wrongdoing and will appear at a hearing in about 10 days.

White Lake Creates Panel to Buy Parcel Next to Township Hall

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — The Township Board created a five-man building authority last night to issue revenue bonds to buy property adjacent to the Township Hall.

The township will then lease the property from the building authority with an advance down payment of $10,000. Total cost is $39,500 and the land ownership reverts to the township when that price is paid.

* * *

The 10-acre parcel has a house and two other buildings. One structure will be used for a fire station.

A public hearing on a special assessment district for street lights in the Twin Shores subdivision was also held last night. Estimated cost for the total project is $432 with an average of $8.31 to be paid by owners of each buildable lot, according to Supervisor James L. Reid.

Walled Lake Asks Meeting on Sanitary-Sewer Plan

WALLED LAKE — An amendment to this city's sanitary sewer agreement, first signed in 1966, was held over last night until the City Council can arrange a joint meeting with the Novi Council.

The amendment would have increased the sewer's total cost from $6 million to $9 million, the latest estimate.

* * *

Disagreement between the cities, which are building the sewer system jointly, stemmed from the number of tap-ins allowed each.

The new estimated cost includes a $1-million Housing and Urban Development grant. Walled Lake also is one of the first cities being considered for grants from the recently passed state clean water bonds bill, according to City Manager Royce Downey. An additional $1.3-million is possible from this source.

CITIES' COSTS

Walled Lake would pay an estimated $4,354,350 and Novi about $2,344,650 for the new system if both grants are received.

* * *

A presentation on water meters was given by representatives of the Neptune ARB System. Downey recommended that the council adopt the firm's billing systems.

Since the meters, are installed outside the home, callbacks and estimated bills are eliminated. Records, which can be tape recorded, can be sent to a data processing firm where bills will be prepared for less cost than the city would have to spend to do everything itself, according to Downey. Each unit would cost about $48, adaptation of units would cost around $18.

The council members also received copies of the proposed revenue bond issue to cover a new building wing and parking lot at city hall and purchase of the property next door. The total cost is an estimated $185,000.

STATE TRAFFIC CODE

An ordinance adopting the state uniform traffic code was passed. Another, pertaining to regulations and rights of inspection by the city for installation of water service lines, also was passed.

The council also decided to open bids for comprehensive workman's compensation and liability insurance for city employes and equipment at its Feb. 4 meeting.

* * *

The city last night also agreed to assume responsibility for snow removal and flooding of the Jaycee skating rink, which is open to the public. The rink is on Gamma behind the Walled Lake Shopping Center.

Councilman Harry Carlson commented that despite rumors, recent increases in state equalized valuation of property would not effect property taxes.

DEPENDS ON BUDGET

The amount of tax levied is governed by the amount of mills needed to meet the total city budget, he said.

Downey also reported on last week's meeting with the State Water Resources Commission, in which the city was given a deadline of June 1, 1970, to cease polluting nearby Walled Lake.

Hart Will Keynote Annual Meeting of COG on Saturday

Michigan Democratic Sen. Philip A. Hart will keynote the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) General Assembly during its second annual meeting Saturday at Cobo Hall, Detroit.

Hart's talk is scheduled at 1:15 p.m. following luncheon in Room 3037.

* * *

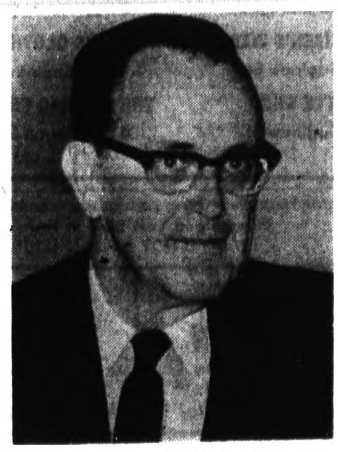

The daylong session will feature the election of officers. William L. Mainland of Milford Township is the current chairman.

* * *

Several national recognized experts, acting as panelists, will address members on the aspects of comprehensive health, public schools, law enforcement, purchasing management, purchasing management in government, and solid-waste disposal.

* * *

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

SEN. PHILIP A. HART

Two OU Profs Get Fellowships

Two Oakland University faculty members will attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology next year under National Science Foundation faculty fellowships.

Robert M. Williamson of 315 William, Rochester, professor of physics, will study solid state physics. Henry Rosemont Jr. of 461 Adams, Avon Township assistant professor of philosophy, will concentrate on linguistics.

* * *

They were among 212 selected from 1,048 applicants for the awards.

Leaves of absence for both, along with leaves for three other OU faculty members, were approved by the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

The other leaves are for Robbin R. Hough of 1213 N. Main, Rochester, professor of economics, to study at home for the winter term; Jack R. Moeller of 937 Ironstone, Rochester, associate professor of modern languages, to study in Germany; and Gottfried Brieger of 93 Cherokee, Pontiac, assistant professor of chemistry, for next year to study at Harvard University.

Hospital Staff Execs

AVON TOWNSHIP—Medical staff officers have been announced by Crittenton Hospital, 1101 W. University.

Chief of staff is Dr. Karl K. Latteier, vice chiefs are Drs. Sidney J. Hillenberg and Edgar J. Geist Jr. and secretary-treasurer is Leonard S. Linkner.

Troy Judge, Commission Candidates File

TROY — Candidates have filed in this city for two judgeships and two City Commission seats, to be filled in the April 7 municipal election.

Only three hopefuls filed petitions for the City Commission spots, to be vacated by incumbent Commissioners Glen H. Houghten and Ben S. Jones. Houghten and Jones had previously announced that they did not intend to seek reelection.

Candidates for the commission are Sherwood E. Shaver, 345 W. Square Lake; Anthony Pallotta, 6484 Elmoor; and James J. Damman, 2751 Lake Charnwood.

Shaver, Troy postmaster, was an unsuccessful commission candidate last spring.

Filing for the judgeship, currently occupied by Judge Charles H. Losey, were six candidates, including Gerald R. Hershberger, 285 E. Long Lake; Robert J. Bromley, 2895 Somerset; William E. Wilson, 3282 Oakhill; Raymond J. Hand, 1900 Golfview; Bruce W. Franklin, 3730 Beach; and W. D. Bollinger, 6158 Glyndebourne.

Bollinger is presently associate judge. Running for the seat which he is leaving are Leo J. Hinch, 2251 Chalgrove and William E. Bolle, 644 Jamaica.

Losey is not seeking reelection because he is past the state age limit of 70 for judicial candidates.

The races for municipal and associate judge are complicated by the fact that several candidates have filed their petitions on the strength of a recent ruling by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Templin.

Wilson sued the city after City Clerk Kenneth Courtney refused his petitions, citing a two-year residency requirement in the city charter.

However, Templin ruled the charter provision invalid, basing his opinion on several state laws, including one that declared justice of the peace candidates must only be a resident of a county for three years, and one which equates municipal judges with justices.

Wilson, Bolle, Franklin and Hand have filed under the ruling, which the City Commission has decided to contest in the State Court of Appeals.

The large number of candidates for municipal judge will necessitate a primary election, scheduled for Feb. 17. However, there will be no primary for commission or associate judge.

Neighbors' Cooperation Is Needed

Bloomfield Twp. Drain Plan Is Clogged

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—The township may have to delay plans for what a local official labels "a badly needed" relief drain system, unless either neighboring Bloomfield Hills or Birmingham agree to help share the cost.

James Scott, head of the township's sewer and water department, said past flooding has proved the $4.4-million relief drain—East Relief Trunk—is needed immediately.

"The project will have to be done eventually, and it would be much more expedient to begin the project now," Scott said.

* * *

No official word, for or against, has been received from either Birmingham or Bloomfield Hills, indicating to township officials that they have little current interest in the drain proposal.

The estimated $4,445,000 East Relief Trunk would provide a new drain for the eastern portion of Bloomfield Township and smaller sections of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills.

PETITIONS NOT FILED

Scott said the cost to the individual taxpayer could not be released until petitions for the drain have been filed. The usual public hearings on the project would be scheduled once petitions are filed.

* * *

Need for the new storm sewer line became apparent during extensive flooding last June and July in heavy rainstorms.

* * *

Scott explained that it would be virtually impossible for the township to assume the cost for the entire project.

In order to effectively lay out the proposed system, he said, a 1,200-foot section would have to be run through Birmingham. An approximate 500-foot extension would cut across a portion of Bloomfield Hills.

PARTICIPATION ASKED

Scott's office requested Birmingham's participation at a commission meeting Jan. 6. A Birmingham city official said yesterday the fact the commission has not acted on the request indicates little or no interest in the project now.

* * *

Bloomfield Hills also has not responded to the proposal. Scott said he has strong doubts that Bloomfield Hills would contribute to the financing.

* * *

State regulations concerning drain petitions require that at least two of the three communities involved agree to participate in the financing before approval can be obtained from the County Drain Commissioner.

Even if cooperation is agreed to by at least two of the municipalities, Scott said, modifications and final approval by the county drain commissioner will take an undetermined period of time, possibly more than a year.

PAYING OFF BONDS

Upon final approval, the drain commissioner's office would sell bonds in the name of the county and sign a contract with the concerned municipalities covering paying off the bonds through general tax funds over an extended period of time.

The proposed relief drain varies in size from 90 to 48 inches and would have a total length of nearly 3½ miles.

* * *

The sizable cost of the sewer line is primarily due to the considerable tunneling that would have to be done. Most of the line would run through established and improved areas, already well saturated with landscaping and utility lines, Scott said.

The line would extend on Cranbrook from 14 Mile north to Quarton, with a 2,000 foot extension south of Quarton west to Darcy and Halla Lane. The line would continue west on Quarton about 500 feet to Sandringham Way.

OTHER SECTIONS

Another section would extend east on Maple, for 450 feet from Cranbrook. The Birmingham portion would run south of Maple on Argyle Blvd. for approximately 1,200 feet.

In addition to providing relief for existing storm drains in the concerned Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham areas, the line also would support existing sewers in the Westchester Village subdivision of Bloomfield Township, south of Maple Road.

* * *

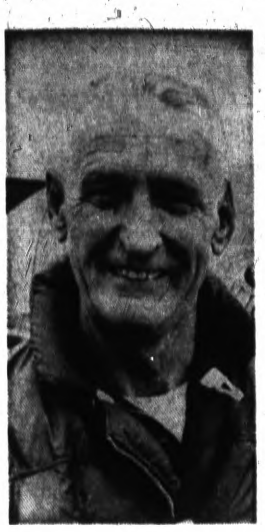

Scott added that the new relief drain would supplement an existing 30-year-old line.

Detroit Nightclubs to Change

DETROIT (AP) — The Act IV, a Broadway-type showplace, Tuesday became the second Detroit nightclub offering big name talent to close its doors in four days, but both promise to reopen soon under new concepts.

The name "Act IV" will fade offstage during a six-week redecoration period and will be reborn as "The Steering Wheel." Its owners say it will be "primarily a restaurant."

★ ★ ★

The Roostertail, overlooking the Detroit River, closed Saturday night, as its management says it will reopen in a couple of weeks as a "fun palace."

"It's a bore to go to a nightclub nowadays," said Jerry Lee Schoenith, vice president of the Roostertail.

PROMPT ARRIVALS

"You have to be there at 7:30 or 8 o'clock. You order dinner. At exactly nine comes the sound of the rolling of drums. And for one hour you got a performer on stage. After an hour, you leave," Schoenith said.

Officials of both clubs admit that monied, middle-aged suburbanites are not going out as much any more, making it difficult to support many big name acts.

★ ★ ★

The kiss of death fell on the Act IV, located near the General Motors Building, a year ago when high school students began taking prom dates there.

The management was pleased at first, because there would be one less empty table, but the young people didn't order escarot or other expensive dinners. So, lower-priced meals were provided, bringing in less money.

POLICY NOT SET

Lawrence H. LoPatin, one of the new owners of the $300,000 restaurant-nightclub, said future entertainment policy has not been determined.

It will have an auto racing decor in keeping with the interests of LoPatin, who is president of the Michigan International Speedway, the big, new, professional auto race track in Michigan's Irish Hills.

Schoenith said the Roostertail will adopt a Las Vegas-type concept toward entertainment.

It also will feature Dixieland sing-along shows, dancing in some sections, a quiet cocktail lounge, and places on the terrace for people who want to sit outside in the summer.

He also said there would be boat rentals during the summer. He even plans to install a beauty salon.

"People want a more fun evening, not the pressures of a nighclub per se," he said.

Means Sought to Ground Skyjacking

Skyjacking is becoming so much a part of the pattern of our times that the wise traveler may be the one who, in packing for a flight to Labrador, tosses in a few items of tropical clothing, just in case.

Unscheduled stops in Havana can almost be counted on to provide a continuing supply of front-page stories and fresh material for gag writers.

Not everyone is laughing, however. Particularly not the airlines. Helpless themselves to come up with any sure way of protecting their passengers from the inconvenience, and the very real danger, posed by the airborne seizures, they are now asking the United Nations to take action.

★ ★ ★

The International Air Transport Association, a nongovernment organization representing 103 scheduled airlines, almost all those operating on international routes, wants skyjacking to be declared an international crime in a class with piracy and genocide.

★ ★ ★

International action is certainly called for. But declaring skyjacking to be an international crime would not in itself be enough. This would be merely formalizing what is already generally recognized. Punishment must also be fashioned to fit the crime. And better than punishment would be prevention.

What might turn the trick in both respects would be a binding international agreement obligating governments to take immediate and severe punitive action against skyjackers landing in their territories, thus removing any prospect of asylum at the end of the line.

★ ★ ★

But this would be difficult if not impossible to achieve since some governments, notably the one most immediately involved, Havana, are not inclined toward international cooperation.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, we fly on luck. So far there have been no injuries or worse. But luck can run out at any time. Until some means of applying international brakes to airborne lawlessness is found, potential disaster will continue to be an unlisted passenger.

President's Salary Increase Beats Deadline

Unlike private enterprise whose appraisal techniques evaluate top executive posts and compensation for those filling them, there is no such measurement for the ability and salary of the President of the United States.

Whether a President is worth $100,000 a year or double that, in light of the recent increase voted the office by Congress, must remain pretty much of an abstract question.

But a comparison of presidential salaries from the first to the 37th of the Country's Chief Executives would indicate that $200,000 a year for the biggest job in the world, with headaches to match, is not unreasonable.

★ ★ ★

Effective in 1789, President George Washington was paid $25,000 a year, with no travel allowance. In 1873, the presidential salary was upped to $50,000, and a travel allowance of $25,000 established. Another boost of $25,000 was voted in 1909, while the travel allowance went to $40,000. President Harry Truman on taking office in 1949 was the beneficiary of a salary increase to $100,000 a year with the travel allowance unchanged. Now, as stated, President Richard Nixon will receive annual compensation of $200,000, with the Government picking up a travel chit of $50,000.

★ ★ ★

Those inclined to eyebrow-raising over Nixon's apparent windfall might consider that GEORGE WASHINGTON'S salary of $25,000, not subject to income tax, was actually worth more than the new President's $200,000. The 1789 dollar was worth about four times that of today's, and NIXON'S salary will not only be subject to heavy Federal income tax but to the District of Columbia income tax and all other normal tax levies—most of which were unknown in WASHINGTON'S day. NIXON, it is said, will net no more than $25,000 of his $100,000 salary increase.

Atlanta Negroes' Progress in Jeopardy

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Atlanta's incredible construction boom keeps going on and on, serving still as the safety valve that has kept the city's unemployment levels lower than most cities and generally minimized the strife that plagues the others.

BIOSSAT

Unique as a kind of "headquarters city" for the whole South, Atlanta nevertheless has been moving rapidly toward the physical and social pattern of typical northern cities.

Its black ghetto is enlarging as rural folk pour into the magnet center with its promise of better work. Its quotient of militants has grown, and it has had its modest share of riot troubles.

Yet the substantial proportion of moderate blacks, raised in a setting where their own educational institutions and economic enterprises are much more a fact of life than in most cities, have sought steadily to achieve their goals short of militancy and violence.

They have been aided up to now by an uncommon political condition that allowed them, in coalition with Atlanta's more moderate North Side whites, to elect relatively progressive mayors who have shown consistent concern for their problems.

DIFFICULT TIME

But that coalition, supported in action by a "downtown leadership" acutely anxious to maintain Atlanta's image as a forward-looking, expanding city congenial to new economic development, is this year in difficulty on two counts.

Aging Mayor Ivan Allen Jr., widely heralded as a progressive who has labored doggedly to solve his city's racial and other problems in a temperate atmosphere, has decided not to run for a third four-year term.

At the same time, the black community, increasingly aware of its political power and inescapably urged on by the young militants, talks this year of running a black leader for mayor.

Outstanding prospects are State Sen. Leroy Johnson, first Negro in the Georgia Legislature, and Vernon Jordan, respected director of the Voter Education Project which played a big role in the greatly increased black registration in recent elections.

LACK OF SUPPORT

It is considered certain that a serious bid for either man would bring him most of the city's black voter support but not enough white backing to elect him. Some observers say he would need 30 per cent of the white vote to win.

Unlikely to win, a black candidate nevertheless would destroy the long-functioning coalition of black and North Side whites.

The judgment is that it would produce a run-off election between the black choice and a more conservative white candidate with strong appeal to the city's South Side whites.

In such a test, the foregone conclusion is that the white candidate would win in 1969 and give Atlanta, the supposed model of a progressive southern city, a conservative leadership roughly comparable to that provided at the state level by Gov. Lester Maddox.

If It Takes 80 Days To Climb Over A Table—

David Lawrence Says:

Prayers at Inaugural Significant

WASHINGTON—Millions of people who listened to the inaugural ceremony on Monday heard Earl Warren, the chief justice of the United States, ask Richard M. Nixon to repeat the words of the presidential oath as written in the Constitution, and then added: "So help you God." The new President, of course, repeated those words in this way: "So help me God."

LAWRENCE

The words "So help me God" were spoken by George Washington when he was inaugurated, and have supplemented the oath taken by every president since.

If it were not for the Supreme Court decision in 1962 which bans any prescribed prayer in the public schools, and for the 1963 ruling which forbids schools to start the day with the Lord's Prayer, there would be no significance to the added words.

★ ★ ★

But many who stood in front of the inaugural stands or who viewed the proceedings on television wondered whether the children in public schools throughout the country are being denied something which is officially recognized at the most important ceremony of our government every four years.

Similar words of prayer, moreover, are spoken by the chaplains of the Senate and of the House of Representatives at the beginning of each day's session.

FIVE CLERGYMEN

The references to religious and spiritual beliefs were not confined at Monday's inauguration to the four words spoken by the chief justice and the President.

Five clergymen from different religions said prayers at the same ceremony on the steps of the Capitol.

All these utterances presumably come under the head of what might be called "voluntary" prayers.

They are solemn expressions of the faith of different individuals who do not ask others to adopt their particular sectarian views but merely reflect their own feelings of fidelity to spiritual principles.

NOT YET INSTITUTED

Unfortunately, the public schools have not yet instituted a way to give the students the benefit of "voluntary" prayers.

It has been suggested that parents or groups might write prayers for those of their own faith and let the students read to themselves these prayers in a few moments of silence at the beginning of every day.

★ ★ ★

But no such organized movement has been developed in the field of education.

Bob Considine Says:

Presidents' Human Side Revealed in Anecdotes

WASHINGTON — Presidents sometimes turn out to be just ordinary people.

The first time the paymaster from the Treasury Department called on President Coolidge, to present him with his pay check and get a receipt, there wasn't a sound from Silent Cal throughout the little ceremony. But just as the man was departing, Coolidge spoke.

CONSIDINE

"Come again," he said.

FDR was an atrocious punster. One day his press secretary, Steve Early, gave him a tip on a horse that was entered at Laurel. The plug's name was Nylon.

★ ★ ★

The President said no, he wouldn't bet on it.

"Nylon won't run," he said, breaking himself up.

President Kennedy led a couple of us toward the French doors that opened out on what had been the White House putting green. The carpeting of the oval office did not reach to the wall.

★ ★ ★

There was a foot or two of waxed parquet showing. It was pocked with hundreds of little indents that could have been made only by someone wearing golf shoes.

★ ★ ★

JFK paused, looked at the floor, grinned and shook his head. "He really had it bad," he said.

On Herbert Hoover's 80th birthday, which he celebrated at his birthplace, West Branch, Iowa, I asked him on the return flight to New York if he still had any bitterness about the way he was cruelly pilloried during and even after his White House years.

"No," he said. "I have no hatred for anybody, anymore. But your question reminds me of the story of an old fellow about my time in life who attended a prayer meeting at which the preacher spoke of brotherly love.

"When the preacher asked if there was anyone in the congregation who could honestly say that he did not have a single enemy, this old fellow stood up and said 'Right here, parson. I don't have one enemy.'

★ ★ ★

"The preacher commended him on the exemplary life he must have led and then asked him to explain how he had achieved his great distinction.

"'I outlived the bastards,' the old party shouted."

President Johnson made a list of his tormentors and his champions among the Washington correspondents and columnists.

★ ★ ★

"I've got 31 biased against me and four biased in favor of me," he said.

Voice of the People:

State Hospital Conditions Are Result of Negligence

Conditions of the Pontiac State Hospital buildings qualify our State to be among the ranks of slum landlords. Gaping holes, falling plaster, unheated rooms and poor ventilation are results of long neglect. Building codes and safety regulations were established by the same lawmakers who are the law breakers. Dismal living conditions have been recognized as potential contributors to depression and even mental illness. Treatment in such surroundings would hardly be the best way toward a cure.

While our legislators are still busy investigating morality in other forms of institutions, they might look into the moral aspect of willful neglect of the most unfortunate, voiceless brothers who are denied the basic comforts of our society. They cannot walk in protest. Their lives of despair depend entirely on your compassion. If we remain silent to their plight, we are as guilty as those who permit such conditions.

Question and Answer

Why aren't the large auto manufactures (GM and Ford) spending more time developing a practical steam car, as they are with an electric car, for an answer to the air pollution problem?

L. C.

REPLY

We talked with both Joe Karshner at GM Tech Center and Mike Davis, Ford Motor Co. Both companies are doing experimental work with steam cars. For more detailed information on their projects, we suggest you write to them. Concerning air pollution, Mr. Davis says that pollution-producing emissions have already been reduced by two-thirds in cars now being produced.

On the contrary, assuming he's been admitted to the bar, his activities are encouraged by the American Bar Association. Oakland County Bar ethics chairman tells us many activities of the Association are directed toward giving aid to the indigent and those who require help.

Look Ahead

The San Diego Union

The onset of a new year is a traditional time for introspection and look where we might be going.

The United States stands strong and confident.

A change of administration in Washington gives rise to the hope that a new tone in government will reflect more accurately the mood of the nation.

The economy is sound. More than 14 million Americans left what is considered the ranks of the poor in the last half decade. The Gross National Product, a reflection of prosperity or problems, has increased more than $250 billion since 1960.

Five million more Americans own stock today than did in 1963 symbolizing the faith in the private enterprise system. America with less than 7 per cent of the world's land area or population produces more than one third of the globe's goods.

More than half of all Americans have finished high school. No nation in the world begins to match that figure, or the fact that nearly 7 million other Americans are in college — 3.3 per cent of the population.

There are serious problems of health, employment and education. But no nation can match our collective effort to solve those problems. We are spending $30 billion a year at home to help persons with low incomes, the ignorant or the ill, and billions more abroad.

Apollo 8 is a dramatic symbol of the scientific and technological capacity of the United States, which also is without peer in the world.

★ ★ ★

Our military might, for example, is also the strongest in the world. Nevertheless, we have hobbled it with political restrictions to permit a war to drag on in Vietnam.

★ ★ ★

At home there is the growth of a noisy excrescence — anarchists who take the law into their own hands to trample the rights of the majority of Americans. It was highly visible during the 1968 political campaigns when some candidates were not even allowed to speak.

The trampling of rights also has been visible on college campuses where terrorism by a handful of exhibitionist faculty members and students is hurting the nation.

★ ★ ★

A majority of the people in the United States are moral, decent, law-abiding and charitable. Out of a seeming exaggerated sense of fair play they have allowed the strength of the nation to sit idle in many cases instead of using it to stamp out sickness.

This year — 1969 — is the year of crisis in which our strength should be put to full use.

Scrappers . . .

Atlanta (Ga.) Journal

Will the mountain of rusting automobiles piling higher and higher in junk yards across the nation each year ever be cut down to size? This affluent pollution seems to be out of control.

★ ★ ★

As Detroit prepares to turn out a new crop of 9 or 10 million autos next year, other Americans are abandoning their old cars on city streets in record numbers.

★ ★ ★

The answer presumably could be a gold mine for a firm willing to build a batch of scrap steel crushers similar to that used in the famous movie "Goldfinger." Where's that great spirit of American enterprise?

'SHOW FOLDS' — Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois announces yesterday that the "Ev and Gerry Show" has folded. Dirksen told reporters that he and Rep. Muskie Starts Drive: Banquets a la Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, lifting a page from the Nixon handbook of political campaigning, takes off today on a meat-and-potatoes banquet blitz he thinks could lead to the White House in 1972.

Speeches to the Democratic party faithful in Dallas and Fort Worth are the first stops on a tour that by March will have taken him to 12 states with time out for prestige-building visits to Japan and England.

★ ★ ★

The Maine Democrat and defeated 1968 vice presidential candidate says, of course, that he hasn't decided at this early stage whether to seek his party's presidential nomination in 1972.

★ ★ ★

But he admits interest in the idea and readily acknowledges that he'll be testing the winds and stashing away IOUs from local Democrats as he ranges from coast to coast.

NIXON'S EXAMPLE

"That is what Nixon did so much of—and so well—during the years the Republicans were out of office," Muskie told an interviewer.

"Whether there will be a personal payoff for me, as there was for him, I don't know. But I think the effort is worthwhile," he added.

Muskie sees his role as opening a dialogue between local Democrats and the national organization and giving party workers "the feeling that their efforts are recognized by the national leadership."

★ ★ ★

By taking the Nixon route, Muskie has definitely determined to make the banquet circuit his main platform, instead of the Senate floor. And he has some misgivings.

POSSIBLE REGRETS

"I have decided to postpone for the moment at least strengthening my position in the Senate," he said. "In time I may regret that I put aside an opportunity to advance in the Senate."

★ ★ ★

"But if that is true, I may even regret having run for vice president," he added. "But I don't think so. I think that in this business you have to go where the fates take you—as long as you make progress.

Enrollment Cut Sought

Strife-Beset NY School Shut

NEW YORK (AP) — An overcrowded Brooklyn high school, beset by racial conflict, will be closed for the rest of the week as teachers and city officials seek to work out plans for reducing its enrollment.

The action, ordered Tuesday, came one day after a chemistry teacher at Franklin K. Lane High School was beaten and his clothing set afire in the most recent of a series of attacks.

★ ★ ★

In a related development the High School Principals Association of New York City said in a report that the increasing number of student disorders threatened the very educational process in the high schools.

★ ★ ★

The principals charged that the board of education "has virtually abdicated its responsibilites for the safe and orderly conduct" of the schools. They urged officials to "act firmly, quickly and courageously."

1,832 RESIGN

The Council of Supervisory Associations said threats and harassment contributed to the resignations of 1,832 teachers and supervisors in the city last year—five times the normal number.

In the closing of Lane High School, officials said the aim would be to reduce enrollment to 4,300 so all students could attend school during a single session by Feb. 3. This would enable the faculty to exercise better supervision, it was said.

★ ★ ★

The school, located in a predominantly white neighborhood, was designed to serve 4,000 pupils but has a current enrollment of 5,200. Of these 65 per cent are Negro or Puerto Rican.

At present, the school conducts multiple sessions with students arriving and leaving in waves. Morton Selub, the principal, said the difficulty stems "not from the kids we have but because of the number."

At a meeting of about 200 parents, Selub said "other schools are as crowded or even more" but that the difference at Lane was "a dramatic and lasting change in ethnic ratio in a very short period, five or six years."

★ ★ ★

Mayor John V. Lindsay said in a statement, that overcrowding was "at the core of the trouble" and promised Lane would get more male aides to preserve order, "special programs for destructive pupils" and more youth workers.

★ ★ ★

Albert Shanker, president of the United Federation of Teachers and a frequent foe of the mayor's, praised Lindsay's handling of the problem saying "He used his good offices to avoid an explosive situation."

Selub, in announcing the three-day closing, said "This term at Lane and other schools was a disaster."

U-M Opens Black Capitalism Class

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The University of Michigan inaugurates a new course in black capitalism tonight with a speech to about 80 students by James Farmer, a founder and the first national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality.

★ ★ ★

Some 25 students already are enrolled in the experimental course; an adjunct research course is offered to the black capitalism students in which they are encouraged to purse ghetto market research, consultations and related activities in the field.

Towne & Country FURNITURE

January Thaw is on.

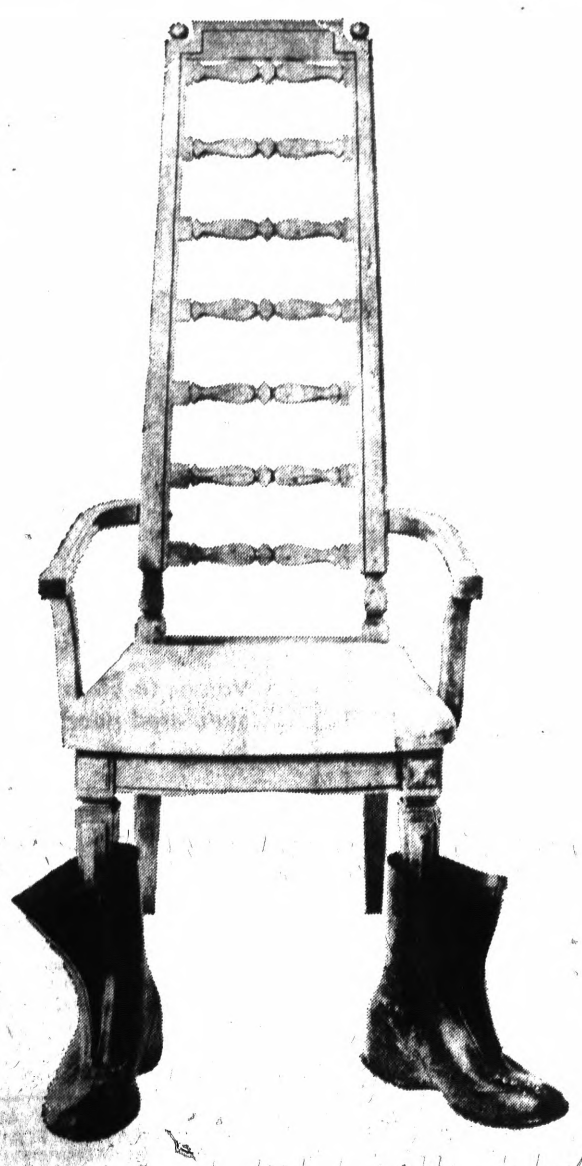

Come bask in the comfort of our melted prices.

This is our traditional furniture sale month. It is also our modern furniture sale month. And our Italian Provincial furniture sale month, to boot. By an interesting coincidence, these wonderful sales are all happening at exactly the right time. Now. Right along with our Mid-Winter sale of Spanish, Early American, English, Mediterranean, Colonial and Contemporary furniture.

Since all of these styles are available here for every room in your house, you might reasonably conclude that this is a very good time for buying furniture at a Towne & Country store.

You'd be right, of course. And then you could take your own good time paying for it. Two whole years, in fact. How's that for a housewarming present?

So scan the list, note what you'd like to see, and come in (And please remember, this is only a partial listing. There are many more bargains where these came from.) □ Custom Selig and Hickory-Fry Sofas, Contemporary, traditional, Colonial, $199 . . . □ 11 lounge and decorator chairs, $79 . . . □ Cigarette tables with genuine imported marble tops, $29 . . . □ Only 17 table lamps, $17.88 . . . □ Serta Fold-o-Beds, sleeps 2 comfortably, innerspring mattress included, $219 . . . □ Craft lounge chairs, $87.50 . . . □ Odd chests, in maple, pine, oak, yellow, white, teak, $69 . . . □ Spanish-Mediterranean game table and 4 chairs, $399 . . . □ Only 9 La-z-boy Reclina-Rockers and Continental recliner chairs, $149 . . . □ Only 10 framed pictures and paintings, $7.95 . . . □ Serta hollywood bed ensemble, innerspring mattress, fully covered box spring, headboard and frame, just $79 . . . □ 41 Serta and Simmons innerspring mattresses and box springs, full or twin size, each, $38 . . . □ Thomasville 6-piece Italian Provincial dining room suite, $479.70 . . . □ Kiddies' rockers, only 36, $3.99 . . . □ Only 700 yards Quality 100% Nylon carpeting, your choice of colors installed over white foam padding just $7.95 sq. yd., complete . . . □ Spanish bookcase room dividers (31½" wide x 88" high), $99, only 12 . . . □ Mediterranean 3-piece bedroom suite, only 7, $377 . . . □ Only 7 odd buffets and hutches, in Colonial maple or contemporary walnut, $99 . . . □ Thomasville Italian Provincial bedroom suite, $431.80 . . . □ Early American, maple traditional, contemporary love seats love you back, at only $147 . . . □ To be continued at Towne & Country Furniture, 23600 Michigan Avenue in Dearborn and 4107 Telegraph Road (just South of Long Lake Road) in Bloomfield Hills.

Look for the big, green and white sale tags when you come in. Convenient credit terms are available. And you may choose immediate delivery or delayed delivery with free storage. All items are subject to prior sale. To you if you hurry. Sale hours: Monday through Saturday, 10 A.M. to 9 P.M.

Come see us. Coffee is free. Parking is free. The furniture, only slightly higher.

No Pay for Jurors Slows Shaw Trial

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Hard financial facts of life complicated the picking of a jury today in the trial of Clay Shaw, charged with conspiring to murder President John F. Kennedy.

Who could afford to be a juror? That was the question. The trial, the prosecution said, could last up to two months. Jurors draw no pay from the state.

★ ★ ★

Just two jurors met all tests at the opening session and were seated. Of 18 dismissed, about half were excused because their employer wouldn't continue their pay during jury confinement.

Criminal District Court Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. repeatedly sent prospective jurors back to his quarters to telephone the boss and confirm the matter of pay.

CHAIN SMOKER

Shaw, 55, chain-smoked as he watched the proceedings—and often gazed impassively into space. He was flanked by four defense lawyers, headed by F. Irvin Dymond.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison dropped in briefly during the first day, but left things to Asst. Dist. Atty. James L. Alcock, 35.

The trial looms as the courtroom test of Garrison's claim that President Kennedy's assassination in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, was done by a gang of conspirators—not just one lone sniper.

This conflicts head-on with the Warren Commission's official report that Kennedy was shot by former New Orleans resident Lee Harvey Oswald, working alone and for reasons unknown.

Garrison's case against Shaw contends he conspired with Oswald and others in New Orleans, some weeks before the assassination.

Shaw, free on $10,000 bond since his arrest in March 1967, flatly denied any knowledge of the slaying, other than news reports.

The first juror seated was Irvin Mason, 48, a machine operator at a sulphur company, later joined in the jury box by Oliver M. Schultz, 39, a truck driver.

Under questioning, both men were apparent paragons of open-mindedness. Each testified he had read little about the case, seldom talked about it, saw few television reports on it, had no opinions and didn't care how long the trial lasted.

"You want to be a juror in this case, do you not?" Dymond asked Mason, regarding him with a perplexed frown. Judge Haggerty blocked any answer. Asked the same question by Alcock, Schultz smiled and said, before the judge could intervene: "Not necessarily."

★ ★ ★

Dymond expended the first of his 12 peremptory challenges in dismissing one man accepted by the state before Schultz was seated.

During interrogations, Dymond said the tall, craggy-featured defendant definitely will testify before the defense rests its case.

★ ★ ★

As for jurors, despite the long trial ahead, they found that rank has its privileges. Judge Haggerty, after they were sworn, informed them they were now among those permitted to smoke in the courtroom.

Ex-Students Fined for Violating Tombs

KALAMAZOO (UPI) — Two former Western Michigan University students were fined a total of $200 yesterday after pleading guilty to destroying or injuring tombs in the 100-year-old Comstock Township Cemetery.

★ ★ ★

The two were originally charged with disinterment of human bodies but allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge.

★ ★ ★

Police said Robert Schumacher, 21, Bay City, and David L. Clough, 24, Anandale, Va., said when they were arrested last August they were looking for a skull for classwork.

PAPC Accused of Illegal Acts; Funding Challenged

The Pontiac Area Planning Council (PAPC) came under City Commission fire at last night's meeting.

A report was adopted which cites alleged illegal proceedings and also challenges monetary actions.

★ ★ ★

Making the report, on request of the commission, was City Attorney Sherwin Birnkrant. His opinion indicated PAPC was acting incorrectly in its budgetary matters and would be acting wrongly if a proposed reorganization report was acted upon.

★ ★ ★

Birnkrant explained the PAPC had been set up in October 1967, by joint resolution of the City Commission and the Pontiac Board of Education, to act as an advisory body.

He said the enabling resolution required the PAPC to submit its budget and proposed expenditures to the two bodies for approval. This was not being done, it was indicated.

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., who is also chairman of the PAPC, said "Things are not being done right . . . we are going off base."

★ ★ ★

The mayor expressed his support for, and appreciation of, the value of the PAPC but indicated it was not following guidelines set up originally.

At its last meeting, the PAPC received a report from a study committee which recommended several changes in its structure. Among the changes would be calling for a vote of the PAPC on who should fill the chairmanship and vice chairmanship (rules state the mayor and school board president, respectively) and other key positions.

★ ★ ★

PAPC Director David Doherty told the commission from the audience that thus far operations have been carried on with funds from private sources and that neither the school board nor the city had contributed.

Birnkrant was directed by the commission last night to prepare an opinion on the legality of spending city funds to support the PAPC.

The city lawyer's findings on the other matters were directed to the PAPC for consideration at its next meeting, Feb. 13, 7:30 p.m. at the Board of Education Office, East Wide Track at Auburn.

Code Enforcement for Housing Hailed

City Affairs

Pontiac's expanded housing-code enforcement program is bearing fruit, city commissioners were told last night.

City Manager Joseph Warren commented in a report, "Pontiac is very much on the way toward having the best housing-code enforcement operation of any city in the state."

★ ★ ★

The stricter code enforcement, begun last June with the creation of a special enforcement division, calls for either improvement or demolition of substandard housing units.

In the six months since, some 77 cases had been resolved, 50 of them resulting in structures being demolished and the others being brought up to the code.

77 OTHER CASES

Some 77 other cases are on the division's books, either undergoing improvement or on the way to demolition.

In other business the commission:

- Approved drawings and site plans for a new fire station on the north side of South Boulevard, west of Motor, to cost $200,000.
- Set a public hearing for Feb. 4 at 8 p.m. at City Hall for a $4,347 sidewalk construction project on the north side of Whittemore between Sanford and South Francis and, at the same time, a hearing on presentation of a special assessment roll for pavement and curb on Bradford from South Boulevard to Ferry.
- Directed to the planning commission requests for zoning changes: a lot on the south side of Walton at Galloway Creek to manufacturing from single-family residential requested by Linney Construction Co., and a lot on the southwest corner of Auburn and Peacock to commercial from multiple dwelling, requested by the Cook-Nelson Post, American Legion.
- Approved sale to the low bidder, Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago and First Boston Corp., of $1,034,000 in preliminary loan notes at a rate of 4.2 per cent. The funds are to be used in the city's ongoing urban renewal programs.
- Okayed hiring of Urban Technical Staff Associates to carry out accounting duties in connection with urban renewal at $4,200 for the year.
- Advised the city staff to join with the county in taking part in the "topics" program of the federal government in regards to traffic safety and efficiency.

Insanity Plea for State GI

Premeditated Murder of 4 Viets Is Charged

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Counsel for a Michigan Marine accused of premeditated murder opened a defense of insanity today at a general courtmartial at 1st Marine Division headquarters.

The prosecution, in opening the trial, said Pvt. Martin Alvarez, 20, of Highland Park killed four Vietnamese civilians with his M16 rifle and hand grenades in two incidents May 5-6 about two miles east of Hue.

★ ★ ★

Defense counsel Marine Capt. Thomas King of Syracuse, N.Y., called on Alvarez' company commander and platoon leader to describe the private's environment at the time of the killing.

The commander, Capt. James C. Panther of Fairfax, Va., said Alvarez' platoon had been hit hard three weeks before, losing 11 dead and twice as many wounded.

CONSTANT STRAIN

The platoon leader, Lt. Roger Charles, said Alvarez and the other men were in nearly constant action and under strain.

He said he noticed a distinct change in Alvarez and understood this was because the private had received a "Dear John" letter from his fiancee.

★ ★ ★

A Vietnamese army captain, Nguyen Khao Lai, was presented by the defense as a psychiatrist who said Alvarez suffered from an acute anxiety syndrome.

The last witness in the 1½-hour session was an American psychiatrist, Dr. C. L. R. Pearman of Grosse Ile, Mich. He testified that in his opinion Alvarez was suffering from an "acute anxiety reaction.

"To an extent he was not able to tell right from wrong. He was unable to associate with reality."

Man Is Charged in Mother's Murder

HASTINGS (AP) — John D. Borton, 21, of Hastings was charged in district court Tuesday with first-degree murder in the shotgun slaying of his mother.

Borton asked for a court-appointed attorney and demanded examination, which was set for Jan. 29. He is being held in Barry County Jail without bond.

★ ★ ★

The youth's mother, Mrs. Constance Borton, was found dead Saturday of shotgun wounds in her home four miles south of Hastings.

Authorities later apprehended Borton in Kalamazoo. He was driving his mother's car.

A 20-gauge shotgun, believed the murder weapon, was found along a road between Kalamazoo and Richland, police said.

3 Reappointed to Zone Appeals, Review Boards

Three reappointments to city boards were made by the City Commission last night.

Renamed to two-year terms on the board of review were Gordon W. Rice of 235 Nelson and Faustin Dobski of 275 S. Tilden.

★ ★ ★

The board meets in March and April to review the city assessment roll. The reappointments were part of commission compliance with new state laws. A board of review seat remains open, for which nominations are to be considered later.

★ ★ ★

Renamed to the board of zoning appeals for a three-year term was Erwin Slater of 436 University.

3rd Party Delays State Convention Until Feb. 22

DETROIT (AP) — The state convention of the American Independent Party has been postponed from Saturday until Feb. 22, Wayne County AIP chairman William Mahon said Tuesday.

The postponement of the state meeting, which will be held in Battle Creek, was necessary, he said, because all counties have not held their conventions so far. The Wayne County convention is scheduled Feb. 8.

★ ★ ★

The party had no local candidates for office last year, but devoted all its efforts for the presidential candidacy of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Their Hopes Sank

LAKE MEAD, Nev. (AP) — Police are holding two men on charges of attempted burglary of the Collinville Bay general store, situated on a pier.

★ ★ ★

When a watchman spotted the men, they dashed off in the darkness. Both ran off the end of the pier and fell into the lake, where they were easily captured by police.

PIN-WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR
Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms...ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.
To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:
First a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then — Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Puzzled FBI Hunts Mystery Man

Nazi Relics Cache Found in NY

NEW YORK (AP) — Who is Dr. Galvez and why did he in 1963 store a mysterious cache of Nazi flags and literature, photos of Hitler and an assortment of weapons in a Manhattan warehouse?

The materials were found packed in about 15 cartons, trunks and suitcases in the warehouse in Yorkville, New York City's German-American section.

Among the items were two Thompson submachine guns, two automatic rifles and about 25 handguns, most of them Lugers and Mausers.

There were three large swastika flags, a leather-bound edition of "Mein Kampf," photos of Nazi leaders and Nazi magazines yellowed with age. There was a Nazi colonel's uniform and an enlisted man's uniform and helmet.

The Morgan-Manhattan Storage Co. said the materials were left by a man who identified himself as Dr. Jose Galvez of Cali, Colombia. But the South American remained a mystery to authorities.

★ ★ ★

An agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said Tuesday, "We are going to have to try to find this man. A determination must be made if he exists, is dead or perhaps a fugitive. We just don't know."

★ ★ ★

The cache was discovered when the warehouse owners decided to auction the materials because the storage bill had not been paid for more than a year. The cartons and trunks were opened Monday by Manhattan Galleries, the auctioneers.

Arthur Morgan, an executive of the warehouse firm, said all mail to Galvez in Colombia had been returned as address unknown.

COLUMBIA STUDENT

A letter dated 1942 in a suitcase notified Dr. Galvez that he had been accepted for study in what was then the Extension School, now the School of General Studies, at Columbia University in New York. The university said Tuesday night that a Dr. Jose Galvez had been registered in 1943-44.

Among the materials were photos of the man who identified himself as Galvez. The cartons also contained nudist magazines, false teeth, dental chrts and a passport issued by Colombia in 1954 in the name of Georgina Beatriz Castro Gonzalez.

★ ★ ★

There also was a 10-pound cake of potassium cyanide, spare parts for weapons and ammunition. The weapons were turned over to the firearms division of the Internal Revenue Service, which investigates unregistered weapons.

★ ★ ★

"Nothing will be done with the other stuff for a while," said George Moeckel, manager of the warehouse. "I guess we'll have to wait until the matter is cleared up and they find out who or where Dr. Galvez is."

Bogged Down

SANTA SUSANA, Calif. (AP) — Kris Cottingham, 7, got stuck in the mud while going to school Tuesday. Firemen had to build a plank runway to rescue him. Kris had taken a shortcut in a heavy rainstorm through a new subdivision site and sank up to his thighs. After a change of clothes, he arrived for classes —a bit late.

Senate Filibuster Foes Giving Up the Fight for This Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the Senate antifilibuster forces have given up, for this Congress at least, efforts to ease the rule requiring a two-thirds vote to limit debate.

★ ★ ★

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said in an interview that he and several allies will not push farther the drive started when Congress convened Jan. 3 to substitute a three-fifths vote to end filibusters.

★ ★ ★

Defenders of the present stiffer rule, led by southern Democrats, have been filibustering against taking up the proposed amendment to halt debate by a three-fifths majority of those voting.

Last Thursday the Senate voted, 51 to 47, to close out the debate on the motion to consider the three-fifths proposal. This was 15 votes short of a two-thirds majority.

But Hubert H. Humphrey, who as the then vice president was presiding officer, ruled that only a simple majority was necessary to cut off the debate. But the Senate refused, 53 to 45, to sustain Humphrey's ruling.

Humphrey's ruling was based on the claim that the start of a new Congress the Senate has a constitutional right to adopt new rules of procedure by a simple majority.

Church now says this issue will not be raised with the new vice president, Spiro T. Agnew.

Instead, Church said, a second attempt will be made next week to cut off the debate under the existing rule requiring a two-thirds majority of senators voting.

AGREED ON COURSE

Church said he and other leaders in the fight for a tighter antifilibuster rule, Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Jacob K. Javits, and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., had agreed on this course.

In view of the vote overriding Humphrey's ruling, he said, they are willing to accept for this Congress that the debate cannot be halted by less than a two-thirds majority.

Church said that while they don't expect to get two-thirds—and thus will lose the fight—they are hoping to show that a substantial majority of the Senate is being denied a chance to change the rules.

He also said that the vote on Humphrey's ruling showed that the antifilibuster forces are gaining ground.

★ ★ ★

Church noted that two years ago the vote was 61 to 37 against Humphrey's position.

2 Fail to Tie Patrolman to Beating Case

DETROIT (AP) — Two witnesses failed to pick out the defendant Tuesday in a Police Trial Board examination of police accused of beating and cursing Negro youths at a church dance in November.

A third witness did not connect defendant patrolman Frederick Ingles of the Precinct Support Unit with any wrongdoing, but twice identified a Trial Board member as the "man in blue" who pulled a gun on him.

★ ★ ★

Ingles pleaded innocent to charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, neglect of duty and making a false report to a superior officer.

The examinations follow a fracas between off-duty policemen attending a dance on the first floor of Detroit's Veterans Memorial building and youths attending the church dance on the sixth floor.

7 SUSPENDED

Ingles is one of seven officers suspended after the incident and is the first Detroit policeman accused of brutality to face a trial board.

★ ★ ★

Witnesses James S. Evans, 19, and Derrick C. Tabor, 17, couldn't recall ever having seen Ingles, and witness Grady Stallworth, 18, said he had seen Ingles but did not see him taking part in the disturbance.

Judge Assails Vito's Lawyer in Trial Denial

DETROIT (AP)— In denying reputed Detroit-area Mafia leader Vito Giacalone a new trial for possessing an illegal blackjack, Wayne County Circuit Judge Victor J. Braun Tuesday strongly criticized Joseph Louisell, a top Detroit defense attorney.

The judge alleged in a 90-page opinion that Louisell used a hospital stay in November as a subterfuge to try to delay the trial.

★ ★ ★

Giacalone was convicted in November and at a trial in Centreville and is serving a sentence of 4¾ to 5 years.

The judge said Louisell claimed Giacalone was entitled to a new trial because his right to obtain counsel was violated in the blackjack trial.

The attorney had entered University Hospital in Ann Arbor and sent a message to the judge Nov. 12 that he would have to remain in the hospital longer than expected and could not attend the Nov. 14 trial.

The judge said if he had allowed Giacalone a delay the "case would have been delayed at least a quarter of a year."

★ ★ ★

Louisell answered that "I went to the hospital with the full knowledge and consent of Judge Baum. It was not any subterfuge."

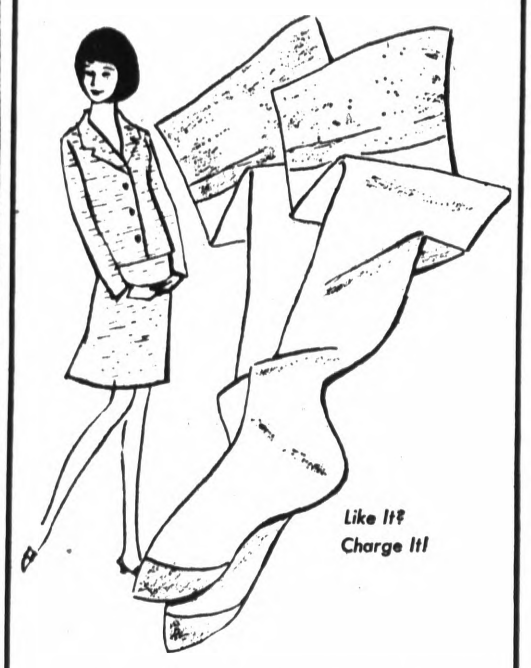

Louisell said his doctors had strongly recommended the hospitalization and it had involved a heart attack he suffered some years ago.

Bandit Hunted

Aloof Sen. McCarthy Bewilders, Frustrates Followers

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Far from the snow and cold of New Hampshire, where it all began a year ago, he drifts in a detached, puzzling way through the warmth and comfort of the U.S. Senate.

The quest is over, and Gene McCarthy—"He stood up and something happened")—shows no passion for resurrecting it. He cares more about his poetry.

He continues to bewilder, frustrate, and even anger those who stood by him in one of the most sensational presidential campaigns in history.

A new president has taken office. For Eugene Joseph McCarthy and his followers, the ceremony merely confirmed the triumph of orthodoxy over political heresy and the impregnability of The System.

RETURNED TO ACADEMY

McCarthy's youthful legions have scattered across the nation, most of them to resume academic careers joyously dropped last year for The Cause. If bitterness and disillusionment toward man or system have supplanted in many the high hopes that sustained them during seven incredible months, countless others still flaunt their faded blue and white daisies, their tattered bumper stickers.

★ ★ ★

McCarthy has turned from them now. He makes no effort to acknowledge that the dream ever existed. He sent them his "Leave me alone now" message loud and clear, when he:

• Supported Russell Long, who represents, to McCarthyites, the worst of the establishment, over Edward M. Kennedy in the contest for the assistant majority leadership of the Senate.

• Abruptly yielded to a Vietnam war hawk, Sen. Gale McGee, his seat on the prestigious foreign relations committee, a forum for the opposition to the Vietnam war that made him a presidential candidate in the first place. He then compounded the mystery. Free to choose any committee in the Senate, he opted for government operations, a committee distinctly of the second rank.

• Refused to become Richard Nixon's ambassador to the United Nations, where he could have expounded the peace philosophy that rallied the young around him.

CRYPTIC STATEMENT

Moreover, McCarthy won't explain himself, to his followers or anyone else. He announced last fall, in an ostensibly serious moment, that "I will not be a candidate of my party for reelection to the Senate from the state of Minnesota in 1970. Nor will I seek the presidential nomination of the Democratic party in 1972."

Did that mean he was dropping out of politics? Or that he might run under a new party banner?

"Oh, I just wanted to give you fellows something to think about," he beamed to reporters who caught him in a Capitol corridor; he now refuses to grant press interviews.

★ ★ ★

Why did he give up his foreign relations seat, which he had assured his supporters he would use to continue opposition to the war?

McCarthy: "It was an act of magnanimity and benignity."

By that he meant that McGee wouldn't have made it unless he had given up the seat, but McCarthy never explained abandoning the place to an outspoken opponent of his own views.

★ ★ ★

But why government operations, whose function has nothing to do with the stated goals of McCarthyites? He cleared up that question with a masterpiece:

"If the medium is the message, as McLuhan says, then, extending it to Congress, the operation is the policy."

SADDENED BY PROSPECT

His people were sad but proud when their man offered to throw his support to Edward Kennedy at the Democratic National Convention. So they were taken aback when he voted for Long, chairman of the finance committee on which McCarthy sits, over the same Kennedy, who won.

Without mentioning the long-standing political feud between him and all Kennedys, McCarthy said Kennedy's election would retard Senate reform by giving only the semblance of reform.

Long-time supporters reacted harshly. Washington columnist Mary McGrory, who foresook even her old friend Robert Kennedy in her enchantment with the McCarthy crusade, wrote: "Last year's shining knight became this year's old politician with his vote against Teddy." McCarthy "diminished himself with the young and the idealists who stood with him in 1968."

Since the battle of Chicago, McCarthy, 52, has evidenced nothing but a desire to retreat from the limelight. He doesn't talk about the new politics any more. His stated reason for turning down the U.N. post was that there was no assurance his Senate seat would go to a Democrat.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, asked what role McCarthy might now play in the Senate, allowed that "I've only seen him once or twice."

Meanwhile, former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey already has set up a transitional office and dropped happy hints that he may seek to return to the capital in 1970—in Gene McCarthy's Senate seat.

In Washington, McCarthy may be seen at lunch in the Assembly, a Washington restaurant, "mourning the Republic," as he told one passerby.

He seems relaxed in private conversation, likes to poke fun at himself. But his brown eyes are never quite as mirthful as the words that escape his lips.

"You are looking at a man," said one who knows him well, "who is suffering extreme disappointment, frustration, resignation, and a feeling of futility. You are not looking at a good loser."

★ ★ ★

Gen. Abrams' Son Leads Unit in War Zone

FIREBASE BLACKHAWK, Vietnam (AP) — 1st Lt. John N. Abrams, 22-year-old son of Creighton W. Abrams, Jr., American commander in South Vietnam, has taken over a command of his own in the rugged central highlands.

★ ★ ★

He is commanding officer of Troop C., 2nd Squadron, 1st Cavalry, 4th Infantry Division, after serving 18 months as a platoon leader and executive officer.

★ ★ ★

Officers and men at this base 20 miles east of Pleiku describe the slightly built Abrams as a tough, aggressive military man.

"He is a damn good officer," said Lt. Col. Richard A. Miller, 38, Lindsey, Ohio, the 1st Cavalry commander. "He knows this area like the back of his hand."

On a recent operation, Abrams watched from his helicopter as his troop carried out a search and cordon move. He spotted one Vietcong running from a village with a weapon.

"Fire a few warning shots," Abrams said to his gunners, adding, "The idea is to capture him."

★ ★ ★

The Vietcong vanished into the brush and Abrams ordered his chopper to land. With a handful of men, he took off in pursuit. The man couldn't be found, and the young officer shook his head in disappointment.

★ ★ ★

"That's one of the most difficult things about this war," he said. "You are never sure who's who."

WORD TO A MEDIC

Going back to his helicopter, Abrams passed one of his medics treating a wounded Vietcong.

"Keep trying to save him doc," he said.

An older brother, Capt. Creighton W. Abrams 3rd, was here as a battery commander and now is stationed at Ft. Sill, Okla.

A third Abrams son, 8, is in school in the States.

Latest Red Space Feat May Save NASA's Budget From Cuts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Russia's link-up of two manned spaceships in orbit Thursday may serve to bolster the U.S. space agency's budget against cuts in Congress and by President Nixon.

This is exactly the same effect, ironically, expected on the budget as a result of the historic Apollo 8 Christmas flight around the moon. Neither the Russian nor the American space spectacular is expected to help the U.S. space agency get a budget increase.

★ ★ ★

The Russian feat-first of its kind in history — came just one day after ex-President Johnson presented his budget for fiscal 1970, with $3.878 billion earmarked for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Looking at the timing of the two events, one space agency official commented only half in jest: "Russia couldn't have been nicer to us if she had tried."

2-PRONGED PROGRAM

The Russian link-up and the transfer of two cosmonauts from Soyuz 5 to Soyuz 4, another space first, underlined the fact that the Soviet Union has a strong man-in-space program with two prongs — creation of space stations in earth orbit, and flying men to the moon.

Russian commentators hailed the Soyuz 4-5 link-up as the "world's first experimental space station." Considering that their Thursday link-up lasted only 4½ hours, the claim stretches the point.

But the Russians did demonstrate the capability to create space stations in this manner — stations which could have enormous military and economic impact as observation posts, and which might serve as launching platforms for manned flights deeper into space.

Russia earlier demonstrated with Zond 5 and Zond 6 that it could fly a ship around the moon and return it to earth. Neither of these flights, one in September and the other in November, carried men or orbited the moon, as America's Apollo 8 did with three astronauts at Christmas.

DESIGN CLEAR

But Soviet Academician Boris Petrov said Dec. 30 that the Zonds "were designed for manned flights."

U. S. officials would not disagree.

★ ★ ★

"They have had the same goal that we have in regard to the lunar landing," Dr. Edward C. Welsh, President Johnson's chief space adviser, said in a recent interview. "They just haven't publicized it much."

Welsh said he does not think the race to the moon is close. His own guess is that the Russians would be unable to land men on the lunar surface until about a year after the first U.S. landing, providing that America can put men on the moon in July as now is planned.

CAUGHT OFF GUARD

Other officials share this view and say that the Soviet Union — caught off guard by Apollo 8 — abandoned plans to fly men around the moon without landing at this time because they would have been second and would not have had as impressive a feat as the U.S. moon flight.

Overall, however, Welsh viewed the Soviet space program, manned and unmanned, as stronger than that carried out by the United States.

★ ★ ★

"The trend of activity in the United States is slightly downward, and the trend in the Soviet Union is upward," he said.

One indicator Welsh cited to support this was the number of flights each country has made in the past two years. In 1967, he said, the United States held an 87-67 edge. But in 1968 the edge went to Russia, which flew 73 to America's 64.

'PRETTY SIGNIFICANT'

"That's pretty significant," Welsh said.

The United States seems to have a clear field in the moon race, if nothing goes wrong in the Apollo program, but stands little chance of setting up the first space stations.

The first NASA space station will be an embryonic affair, created in the empty top stage of a Saturn I rocket. Current plnas call for astronauts to spend 30 days setting it up in late 1971 and to revisit it twice in 1972.

The Air Force is planning a smaller space station called the Manned Orbiting Laboratory (MOL) for studies of the usefulness of manned military observations from space. This station could fly in 1970 or 1971.

SOVIET LEAD

That gives the Soviet Union some two or three years of lead time in working on space stations — not because the United States lacks the ability, but because it has delayed its space station efforts by slowing down funds.

The $3.878 billion which Johnson earmarked for the space agency in the coming budgetary year marked the first time in four years that the agency had not suffered a budget cut. It barely held the line with the current budget.

★ ★ ★

But the budget Johnson submitted must go through Congress, and then faces probable revision by Nixon and another trip through Congress.

Congressional sources say even after the Russian and American space spectaculars it faces tough sledding, partly because of Vietnam and partly because space is one of the few areas easily cut.

Brazilian Port Loses Smuggling Title

BELEM, Brazil (UPI) — This port at the mouth of the Amazon River, once the smuggling capital of Brazil, isn't any more.

There's no longer a fleet of contraband boats dropping their cargo into shallow water in plastic sacks or unloading at remote sawmills.

★ ★ ★

There are no longer any shops in this city of 900,000 dealing exclusively in contraband merchandise.

The main reason for Belem's demise as a center of smuggling has been the granting of free port status to Manaus, the old rubber capital 1,000 miles up the Amazon.

"It's a pity that smuggling has ended," said one of the city's leading citizens. "It was good for Belem."

Smuggling indeed was a revenue-maker for Belem as 80 per cent of the illegal goods were transshipped to southern Brazil, with the profits remaining in the city.

Most of the goods were smuggled into Belem from Paramaribo, the capital of nearby Dutch Guiana, aboard a fleet of fast boats. Several organizations were involved in the illicit business.

The smuggled goods ranged in value and size up to automobiles, but the most popular items were U.S. cigarettes, scotch whisky and French perfumes.

One Belem resident ingeniously brought in 30 U.S. cars for resale at profits ranging up to 100 per cent.

Before shipping the cars, he removed all the doors and such vital parts as the carburetors, then advising customs officials they were illegally entering the country and buying them back at low prices at public auction after they had been seized.

Then he put back the doors and other parts and sold the cars.

Belem's smuggling hey-day was 1961-63. The revolution of 1964 discouraged such activities and Manaus' free port status, which became effective last year, pretty well finished off the business.

Travelers from Manaus can take out $100 worth of goods duty free each trip. But some smuggling has developed, especially through airline personnel who fly regularly into the city.

Belem hasn't suffered too much from the loss of its big smuggling business. The opening of a highway to Brasilia, the national capital 1,300 miles to the south, has been a spur to legitimate business.

Miniquakes Are Created to Study Soils' Reaction to Shock

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Miniquakes are being created in a University of Washington laboratory to identify characteristics of various soils when subjected to seismic shocks.

Among other things, the answers will aid in designing structures and in picking building sites to prevent or minimize earthquake damage.

★ ★ ★

An instrument capable of simulating earthquake action at any given level has been designed especially for the project, which is being financed by a $103,900 National Science Foundation grant.

★ ★ ★

Soil is placed in a cylindrical cell about 6½ inches long and 3 inches in diameter and the instrument measures strees in three directions. Readings taken from the machine indicates what the response of the ground would be in an actual earthquake.

CONDITIONS RECREATED

From records of previous quakes, it is possible to recreate exact conditions of seismic actions on the soil.

★ ★ ★

Another phase of the research is measurement of microseismic ground responses. This involves measuring the normal ground movement at a specific site. The scientists hope this will give them information on potential abnormal movement that would be caused by a quake.

★ ★ ★

Initially, soil taken from freeway excavations was used in the tests. The investigators hope to develop seismic zones throughout the State of Washington in terms of seismic destructive capabilities and damage expectation.

★ ★ ★

By translating the soil and geologic response, the scientists plan to develop design requirements for the various zones. Architects and engineers, of course, would find this information extremely valuable.

PROJECT HEADS

Principal investigators for the project are Dr. Melmet Sherif, an assistant professor of engineering, and Dr. Robert C. Bostrom, associate professor of geology.

Dr. Sherif explaned that different soil react differently to earthquate stresses.

"In some cases," he said, "the soil is turned into boiling liquid, causing a building to sink or tilt. In other cases, the soil densifies, causing a hardening that results in uneven settling and produces cracks and failures in the structure. A third effect is loss of strength in the soil. This causes slides."

★ ★ ★

He said that a high proportion of the damage is caused by foundation failure.

★ ★ ★

"We believe it is possible to forecast the localities which would be prone to severe earthquake damage and recommend ways to reduce such damage," said Dr. Sherif.

Militarism Straining U.S.-Brazil Relations

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Relations between the United States and Brazil, previously among the best in the Western Hemisphere, have become strained as a result of the indefinite closure of the Brazilian congress last month by President Arthur Da Costa e Silva.

The strain is likely to continue, at least until the new direction of the Brazilian government becomes clearer and until the United States finishes its "reconsideration" of its massive foreign aid program to Brazil.

Resentment is obvious on both sides.

It came as a shock to the United Statss with Costa e Silva carried out his "revolution within the revolution" on Dec. 13 by closing the congress indefinitely, suspending the right of habeas corpus, arresting political opponents censoring the press and assuming broad powers to rule by decree.

MAJOR RECIPIENT

Brazil is the largest reciplent of U.S. aid under the Alliance for Progress. Although the United States has been giving aid to a military government here since 1964, its new direction raised the problem of how far it should support Latin American military regimes.

★ ★ ★

The shock in Washington was reflected in its decision to "reconsider" aid, in the talks of American diplomats with their Brazilian colleagues and in newspaper editorials.

Gen. Alfonso Albuquerque Lima, minister of interior and one of the hard-liners in favor of the tough action last month, holds Brazil not responsible to any outside country or opinion, and said outside labels were of little importance.

"It is we who must decide our destiny, and news about suspension of economic aid will not sway the Brazilian revolution from its goals," he said.

ARMY SURPRISED

In private conversations, army officers have expressed surprise that Americans should be critical of them, "friends of the United States."

Officers have reiterated Costa e Silva's statements that "subversives" among the students and even in the Catholic church are threatening the stability of Brazil and that it was necessary to step in to avoid civil war.

★ ★ ★

When he left in early January after 2½ years as U.S. ambassador here, John Willis Tuthill admitted in his farewell statement that relations were going through a period of "pressure and tension."

"Nevertheless, I feel that our common reserves of good will, high aspirations and bravery will guide us in the challenging days ahead," he said.

For both sides, it may be a challenging task to restore the former relations.

Junior Editors Quiz on SCALLOPS

QUESTION: Why are some shells called scallops?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: The shape of the gay, delicate-looking little seashell called a scallop (upper center) has attracted artists and craftsmen for thousands of years.

The fluted shape and undulating edge have inspired countless workers in lace as well as silversmiths and master painters.

During the Crusades, the scallop shell became the symbol of those knights who had fought in the Holy Land; later, many knights used it as a heraldic symbol on their shields (1).

Did you ever know that a scallop had eyes? When scallops open their shells, the eyes appear between as blue dots. And did you realize that scallops can swim? They click their shells together forcing out jets of water which send them forward.

We show the location (4) of the bit of delicious meat, the adductor muscle, which is the only part of the scallop which we eat.

The name scallop comes from an old French word for this kind of shell, escalope. We often speak of any undulating edge resembling this shell as a scallop.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Area Girl's Question Wins

SALLY MONROE

Sally Monroe, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Monroe Jr. of 2737 Wixom, Milford Township, submitted the question for today's Junior Editors' Quiz.

★ ★ ★

Her winning question was: "Why are some shells called scallops?"

★ ★ ★

Sally will receive $10 in cash and an Associated Press Yearbook as prizes for her entry.

★ ★ ★

Sally, who submitted the question months ago, after spotting the daily column in The Press, is "just the type of girl who likes to read a newspaper," according to her mother.

Cooking School Attracts More Males

Pontiac Press Photos

Mrs. William Davidson of Spokane Villa receives an orchid from Bernard Salvatore, assistant advertising director of The Pontiac Press, at Tuesday's Cooking School. Her distinction is the grandmother in the audience with the most grandchildren. Mrs. Davidson has 42.

The Pontiac Press Cooking School is two-thirds over. The first two night sessions and both the afternoon sessions are now past history.

Consumers Power Company home economists, Ellen Tallis and Fredricka Hoxie, chose the Hawaiian theme for this year's food demonstrations. Their recipes feature colorful fruits and vegetables, along with two meat dishes at each session.

Each year, there is an increasing number of men in the audience. In the afternoon, these are usually retirees. At night, they are often young men who come with their wives because both like to cook.

It takes three assistants back stage to help keep the show moving smoothly and on time. Mrs. Roy Overbaugh, the regular kitchen assistant at Consumers Power, is joined by two women hired just for Cooking School. Both also worked last year: Mrs. E. H. Everett and Mrs. James Shover.

At the end of each program, some three dozen persons line up to receive the prizes they have won. These range from cartons of soft drinks and bags of potato chips to TV sets and gas stoves. Local merchants contribute all but a few of the prizes.

Tonight and Thursday night, there will be the final two programs, beginning at 7:30. Individuals without tickets will be seated just before the sessions start.

Free drinks for all who attend Cooking School. It's diet ginger ale served in the lobby to those who are waiting. Frank Rose of Canada Dry serves Mrs. Farres Rosberg (center) and Mrs. Clare DeLauder (right), both of Berkley Drive.

Tuesday's grand prize winners at The Press Cooking School received a variety of household items. Skip McIlroy of Coleman Furniture shows Mrs. Thomas Ainge, Otsego Street, her new dishwasher (upper left). Darwyn Dunkelberg of Consumers Power Co. explains the gas-fired barbecue to Mrs. Jerry Rush, Eston Road, Independence Township (upper right). At the bottom left, Mrs. Frank Datsko of Linwood Drive and Dave Marsac of Consumers Power Co. discuss water heaters. Jim Hampton of Hampton Electric presents Mrs. Marcelle Rapin, of Union Lake with her new portable TV set.

Mrs. Willie Ferguson, of Esther Street, is offered coffee and cookies by Camp Fire Girls Gretchen Crelley (left) of North Shirley Street, and Kirti Mathura of Valencia Street. The organization's annual meeting was held last evening in First Federal Savings of Oakland, at which Mrs. Ferguson was elected president of the Pontiac Area Council.

Roses Are His Hobby Now as Bachelor Points Out

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Time has passed too fast. I am an old bachelor (now 70) but I'm in good health, have a nice home, automobile, and my hobby is raising roses.

Sometimes I get a little lonesome for female companionship (not sex, I'm all through with that) and I'm wondering if maybe I shouldn't marry one of those old widows who has been after me.

I know I'm not perfect, but there always seems to be something wrong with the women I meet. Either they are looking for a meal ticket or they talk too much.

What do you think! CONSIDERING

DEAR CONSIDERING: Why not? But be sure you get a quiet woman who's not looking for a meal ticket, wants only male companionship, and is also "through with sex," or you'll have a bigger problem than loneliness.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently had a lovely dinner party in our home. One of the couples asked us in advance if they could leave a little early because they'd left their child at home. Naturally we said yes.

Well, almost immediately after the dinner this couple put on their coats and made the rounds of all the guests saying goodnight. Needless to say, they broke up the party as others started leaving right after they did.

My husband said he didn't see anything wrong with their saying goodnight to everyone, that if they just sneaked off it would have shown worse manners. I think he is wrong and told him so. What do you think? ELSIE

DEAR ELSIE: I think guests who depart "early" should do so as inconspicuously as possible. (I also think your husband was probably glad to call it a night and get to bed himself.)

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I think your definition of "KARMA" needs to be clarified. It is not merely the calm acceptance of one's "destiny." It is the belief that whatever good or evil a person does during his present lifetime will be returned measure for measure in some future life. To make it more simple, "As ye sow, so shall ye reap." Sincerely, A BELIEVER

★ ★ ★

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN IN CLEVELAND": Your husband could be going through the male counterpart of "change of life." A man who has worked hard for 27 years, and has been a good husband and father, is not likely to go off the deep end permanently.

Almost every man after 50 becomes a little worried about growing old, and losing his appeal. His ego needs a boost, and there is always that predatory female around, ready to flatter him and make him feel "young" again. He falls like a ton of teakwood; then the big thrill wears off and he comes trotting home to mama, feeling a little ashamed, but with a nice warm glow inside, knowing there is life in the old boy yet.

The smart wife doesn't put on an academy award scene. She swallows her pride, accepts a little "blame" for not being as affectionate and reassuring as she might have been. And above all, she never mentions it again and she tells NO ONE.

If the woman above is you, and the man is your husband, follow this advice, and your man will spend the rest of his life knocking himself out trying to make it up to you.

Handy Guide Is Printed on Bridal Costs

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: Who pays for what in regard to weddings? Should the bride-to-be's parents pay for everything, or are costs divided between both parents?—A bride-to-be.

I receive so many letters on this question that a column on the subject is in order.

There are, of course, exceptions to the following list, and in certain areas and among certain ethnic groups other customs are the rule. You will know of the exceptions if they are current in your community. For the majority of us, in most parts of the country, these are the guidelines to follow:

BRIDE'S FAMILY

- The invitations and announcements.
- Decoration of church and place of reception.
- Music.
- Photographs
- Awning (Optional).
- Food and beverages.
- Flowers of bride's attendants, and usually the bride's bouquet.
- Presents to bride's attendants, as well as their hotel accommodations (if necessary).
- Bridegroom's ring if he is to have one. Also his present if one is given.
- If desired, limousines for transporting bride and groom and/or bridesmaids to church and reception.

BRIDEGROOM

- The wedding ring.
- Marriage license.
- A present for his bride.
- A present for each of his ushers and the best man; boutonnieres for all of them.
- Gloves and ties are often given also.
- Clergyman's fee.
- The hotel expenses of his ushers (if necessary).
- Possibly the bride's bouquet (this depends upon custom of particular community).
- Corsage for her to wear starting off on the honeymoon.
- All expenses of the wedding trip

RETURN ADDRESSES

Dear Mrs. Post: In your column you state: "Envelopes should have return addresses on the back flap." Section 123.2 of the Postal Manual says that the proper place for the return address is "in the upper left corner" of the address area.—Normal Krochmal

★ ★ ★

Dear Mr. Krochmal: All return addresses should be in the place you indicated WITH THE EXCEPTION OF ENGRAVED ADDRESSES. It would be extremely difficult to engrave through two or three thicknesses of envelope. Therefore, for very formal invitations it must be done on the back flap.

Founders Day Luncheon Set

The 15th annual Founders Day Luncheon of PEO Sisterhood, Oakland County Cooperative, will take place Jan. 29 at the Birmingham Community House. Time is 12:30 p.m.

At that time, the philanthropic, educational group will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the organization's founding in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa and the 50th year of PEO in Michigan.

James Parker, dean of admissions of Cottey College in Nevada, Mo., will be the speaker. Cottey College, a liberal arts college for women founded in 1884, is owned and operated by the PEO organization.

PEO also provides scholarships for foreign women to do college study in the United States.

Michigan has 116 chapters with a new one being formed in the Rochester area.

Chairman of the luncheon is Mrs. Leonard Jones of Royal Oak. Past presidents of Oakland County Cooperative will be honored guests. Mrs. William Rudell of Bloomfield Hills is this year's president.

Sunday's Concert Preview for Women's Association

Mrs. Walter Schmitz presented a preview of Sunday's Pontiac Symphony Orchestra concert to members of the Women's Association of the Orchestra at Monday's meeting.

Featured soloist for the 3 p.m. event in Pontiac Northern High School, will be Frank Kaderabek of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. He will perform Hummel's "Concerto for Trumpet."

FRANK KADERABEK

Kaderabek, a native of Chicago, attended the Chicago Musical College as a scholarship student. While in the Army he played solo cornet with the West Point band. Then came five seasons as first trumpet with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

★ ★ ★

In 1958, he became associate first trumpeter with the Chicago Symphony under the direction of Fritz Reiner.

He is presently completing his third season as first trumpeter with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

★ ★ ★

Kaderabek has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Chamber Orchestra, the Grant Park Orchestra, the Chicago Symphony, the Detroit Symphony and the Bach Festival at Cranbrook.

The Orchestra will play "Roman Carnival Overture," by Berlioz; The Introduction and Bridal Procession from Rimsky-Korsakov's "Le Coq d'or Suite"; Mozart's "Il Seraglio" overture and "Afternoon of a Fawn" by Debussy.

Mrs. Richard Fitzgerald opened her Crescent Drive home in Bloomfield Township for the Association meeting. She was assisted by Mrs. Nelson Hunter, Mrs. W. O. Roeser, Mrs. C. A. Scott and Mrs. J. Q. Waddell.

Newlyweds to Reside in Regina

A Canadian honeymoon in Niagara Falls and Montreal followed the wedding Saturday of Loretta Young and Dr. Gonzalo Solis Maldonado.

MRS. GONZALO SOLIS

★ ★ ★

For the early evening ceremony in St. Michael's Catholic Church, the bride wore an A-line satin gown encrusted with reembroidered Alencon lace and seed pearls. Crystals accented the petals which secured her tiered illusion veil, and she carried a cascade of gardenias.

★ ★ ★

Clara Callahan was maid of honor for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Young of Oliver Street. Diana Epley and Linda Willis were bridesmaids.

The bride's brother, Douglas, was best man for the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gonzalo Solis G., of Mexico City, Mexico. John Callahan and Wayne Young ushered.

★ ★ ★

The couple was feted with a reception at the Holiday Inn. They will reside in Regina, Saskatchewan.

Ribbons Are 'In'

Hair ribbons are in for all. One, two, three or more ribbons placed artfully in the hair will be the order of the day and night. All it takes is a good hairbrush, a little imagination and a large selection of ribbons.

Set Workshops for Double-Knits

Consumers Power auditorium will be the setting for two workshops on sculptured double-knit fashions this Saturday and next (Jan. 25 and Feb. 1.)

The two events, which begin at noon, will feature the unlined method of famous designers. Sewing, fitting and trim details will be demonstrated. There is a nominal charge for each session.

Give your mop a non-slip handle by putting a bicycle handlebar grip onto the handle. This makes it far easier to hold onto the mop handle when your hands are wet.

Pontiac AAUW Shows Film on Explosion of Arts

Lady Plumber Finds Treasures in Family Drains

VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Ardeene Lacka spends a lot of time in the kitchen, but not at the stove. She doesn't cook, but she does know how to fix a leaky sink. She is a plumber.

★ ★ ★

The 4 foot 8 redhead has owned her own shop for the past 13 years. As the only local woman plumber, she admits she takes her share of kidding. "I have to know more than the men," she says.

★ ★ ★

Children are largely responsible for plumbing problems. Mrs. Lacka points out. Items she has salvaged include swim fins, goggles, false teeth, rocks and toothbrushes. One thrifty youngster even turned a lavatory into a piggy bank. "She said she did it because her older brothers and sister could not get the coins out of there. She was right."

Honeymoon in New York for Lemanskis

A honeymoon in New York followed a reception at the Metropolitan Club of Pontiac, Saturday, honoring newlyweds, the John Theodore Lemanskis (nee Catherine Mary Smith).

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Smith of Second Avenue and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan J. Lemanski of Northfield Street exchanged vows that afternoon in St. Michael's Catholic Church.

★ ★ ★

Venetian lace highlighted the satin ensemble chosen by the bride and she held a bouquet of white roses.

★ ★ ★

Kathleen Lemanski, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor with Sheila Smith, Janet Lemanski and Mrs. Michael Myers as bridesmaids. Vicki De Brabant was flower girl.

Best man was James Mix with ushers Michael T. Myers, Thomas Smith, and Gary Lambert. Jeffery Smith was ring bearer.

Guard Ski-Knees

Veteran or novice, if you skate or ski regularly you're bound to have an occasional spill. Protect against "ski knees" by covering each knee with Band-Aid extra-large bandages before you don skating outfit or ski pants. The extra-soft bandage pad cushions a fall, yet is lightweight and comfortable to wear.

Single Pink Rose Carried by Bride for Saturday Vows

St. Michael's Catholic Church was the setting Saturday for an exchange of vows uniting Frances Kaye Dionne and Larry Alfred Wood.

For the afternoon vows, the daughter of the A. F. Dionnes of Parkwood Street wore a satin gown with a nylon overlay. Lace rose appliques highlighted her ensemble and she held a single pink rose.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Daniel M. Scott Jr. and James R. Wood, brother of the bridegroom, were honor attendants with Carolyn Sibary as bridesmaid and Ray Callahan as usher.

The bridegroom is the son of Harold P. Wood of Melrose Street and Mrs. Forest Groves of College Drive, Pontiac Township.

The newlyweds were feted of the home of the bridegroom's father prior to their West Virginia honeymoon departure.

Woman Gets Manager Post With Railroad

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Miss Jean E. Gilpatrick, who has worked for railroads since the age of 16, has become the new regional sales and service manager for the Maine Central Railroad. She will be dealing with the traffic departments of northern New England industries.

The railroad believes women "have a definite place in the present-day railroad executive picture," says George H. Ellis, assistant vice president in charge of marketing and sales.

Miss Gilpatrick started her career in 1945 while she was still a high school student, working at the snack bar and newstand in the former Portland Union Station. She became clerk for the Boston and Maine Railroad here in 1952, and in 1955 accepted a supervisory post in the Main Central's ac-

Two Couples United in Recent Ceremonies

St. Hugo of the Hills Catholic Church was the setting Saturday for the wedding of Pamela Susan Waggoner and John Carter Kroeger.

Carrying a colonial bouquet of Sweetheart roses encircled with carnations, the bride was attired in an A-line gown of ivory satin. Appliques of Alencon lace accented her gown and matching ivory Cathedral train.

★ ★ ★

Honor attendants for the noon ceremony were Janet DeVlieg and Ronald Kroeger, of Fontana, Wis.

Bridesmaids were Geraldine Clark, Mrs. Carl Robie of Drexel Hill, Pa., Lynne McCarroll of Sothboro, Mass., Anne Wissink of Ann Arbor and Mrs. John Fabinski of Okemos.

ATTENDANTS

On the esquire side, Henry F. Kroeger Jr. of Elk Grove Village, Ill., Joseph Kane of Fontana, Wis., Lt. Thomas Schmidt, USA, Ft. Hood, Tex., George Short of Grosse Pointe and Michael Milliken of Utica, ushered.

Following a reception at the Kingsley Inn, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon trip to Vail, Colo.

★ ★ ★

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Waggoner of Groton Road, Bloomfield Township. Parents of the bridegroom are the senior Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Kroeger of Williams Bay, Wis.

Currier-Ahlgrim

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Ahlgrim of Orchard Lake announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Sandra Kay, to Gary Frederick Currier. Vows were spoken in Grace Lutheran Church.

★ ★ ★

Maid of honor for the ceremony was Mrs. E. Sidney Rhind, sister of the bride, with Frederick Currier as best man for his son. The bridegroom's parents reside on Arlington Street, White Lake Township.

The newlyweds were feted with a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Iron Pattern, Too

When the final pressing is being done on a garment that you have made yourself, give the pattern a quick pressing too. This makes the pattern much easier to fold and fit into the envelope, and it is much handier when you want to use it again, for it is smooth and ready for instant use.

Winter Sports Increase Appetites

CHEESE AND WINE

SAUCY FONDUE DIP

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Don't be misled by the weather we've been having. Old Man Winter hasn't thrown his last blizzard or icy blast at us yet. There will be more weather for skiing and skating.

When that comes again, you'll want to entertain at after-ski or after-skating parties. You may invite the gang home on the spur of the moment. Or your teenagers may want to bring a group home.

If it's the teenage crowd, they'll need more food than even athletic adults. Hamburgers are always popular, as is pizza. But why not give them Sauced Meatball Sandwiches?

Coffee, tea, hot chocolate, even spiced cider go well with these sandwiches. Let your teen decide which drink it will be.

SAUCED MEATBALL SANDWICHES

1 pound ground beef
1 envelope (1½-oz.) seasoning mix for Sloppy Jones
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon oil
1 cup water
¼ cup pickle relish or hamburger relish

Combine ground beef, 2 tablespoons of the season mix, and egg; mix lightly with a fork. Form into a roll 16 inches long; slice into 1-inch pieces. Heat oil in skillet; add meat slices and brown on both sides. Drain off excess fat.

★ ★ ★

Add water and remaining seasoning mix; stir to mix well. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend in pickle relish. 4 servings. Serve on toasted hamburger or frankfurter buns.

CHEESE AND WINE

For a more sophisiticated menu, put out a variety of cheese dips and bottles of chilled wine. Serve with bread sticks.

CHILI PEPPER DIP

1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
½ cup milk
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped red chili pepper
¼ teaspoon onion powder

Combine softened cream cheese and milk, mixing until well blended. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Makes 1 cup.

BASTOGNE DIP

2½ oz. cubes Bastogne process cheese spread
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped mushrooms

Combine softened cheese spread with remaining ingredients; mix well. Makes 1 cup.

PINE NUT CHEESE BALL

1 8 oz. pkg. cream cheese
2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons chopped pimento
Dash of cayenne
½ cup pine nuts or toasted slivered almonds

Combine softened cream cheese with remaining ingredients except nuts. Mix well. Chill. Shape into a ball; garnish with nuts.

★ ★ ★

Soup is always welcome after several hours in the cold air. Prepare Mushroom Turkey Soup before you go out on the slopes or the ice and heat to serving temperature when you return. Serve in mugs with crusty French bread.

MUSHROOM TURKEY SOUP

3½ cups turkey broth or 2 cans (13¾ oz. each) chicken broth, undiluted
½ cup raw, regular cooking rice
¼ teaspoon tarragon leaves, crumbled
1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) sliced mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups slivered cooked turkey
1 cup milk
Salt
Ground white pepper

In a medium saucepan bring broth to boiling point. Stir in rice and tarragon. Reduce heat and cook covered 15 to 20 minutes or until rice is tender.

Meanwhile, slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 5 cups) or drain canned mushrooms, reserving liquid. Heat butter in a medium skillet; add mushrooms and saute until golden brown.

★ ★ ★

Stir mushrooms into broth along with turkey, milk and reserved mushroom liquid if canned mushrooms were used. Heat thoroughly. Season with salt and white pepper, if necessary. Makes 6 servings.

Another soup which is definitely out of the ordinary is Beer Soup. In other countries, beer is used more as a food than it is in America. You might try it, once anyway.

BEER LOVERS SOUP

6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon grated onion
6 cups beer (1½ quarts)
2 envelopes dehydrated chicken broth
3 egg yolks
½ pint heavy cream
Salt to taste

In a large heavy kettle, melt butter and gradually stir in flour. Add onion and slowly stir in beer. Sprinkle on dehydrated chicken powder and let dissolve. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally, until soup thickens slightly. Reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes.

★ ★ ★

Beat egg yolks and cream together. Beat in some of the hot soup. Beat this mixture into remaining soup. Add salt if necessary. Reheat, but do not boil. Serve hot.

Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, if desired. Yield: 6 servings.

DIP SHRIMP

For lots of impromptu fun, have a fondue-like dip into which your guests can dip cooked shrimp. This can be eaten with toasted rye bread. For more formal occasions, pour the dip over shrimp covered toast.

MUSHROOM TURKEY SOUP

SAUCY SWISS SANDWICH DIP

1 cup milk
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups grated Natural Gruyere Cheese, or Switzerland Swiss Cheese
Dash of garlic powder
Salt
½ lb. lump crabmeat
½ lb. small shrimp, cooked and deveined
4 slices rye bread, toasted, cut in halves
Butter
Dash of Worcestershire or soy.

In saucepan stir milk into flour, cook until milk is hot but not boiling. Gradually stir in handfuls of cheese, stirring until cheese is melted. Season to taste with garlic powder and salt. Add Worestershire or soy if desired. Stir, reduce heat to lowest.

★ ★ ★

Saute shrimp and crab briefly, just to warm. Make toast, butter slices. Top with shrimp and crab, allowing half-slice portion of each per person. Spoon hot sauce over open sandwiches and serve immediately.

Alternately, or if sauce and sea-foods are left-over from sandwiches, serve sauce at table in small fondue-pot or chafing dish over heat, provide extra forks for spearing seafood, dunking in sauce, eating fondue-style.

Garlic Flavor Comes in Handy

You can always give your special dishes that touch of garlic if you keep it prepared ahead. Use an ordinary fruit jar with a tightfitting screw on lid.

Crush several cloves of garlic, and cover with salad or olive oil. Let it stand in the refrigerator for several days or until ready to use. It steps up the flavor of salads, salad dressings or meats.

Discover Delight of Indian Pudding

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Dear Cecily: Do you have a really good recipe for Indian Pudding — the kind that doesn't curdle? I've tried half a dozen recipes for this New England dessert, but I've always been disappointed.

I grew up in Ohio and didn't eat Indian Pudding until I met up with it at Durgin Park restaurant in Boston, where it definitely wasn't curdly. I fell for the pudding with a bang and started trying recipes for it.

Some of these produced a pudding that was too thin and curdled, some a pudding that was too spicy-strong. I'd appreciate your recommendation. —M.M.

Dear Miss M: You got the wrong word, baby. Indian Pudding doesn't curdle, it wheys. And the wheying is okay. Fannie Farmer herself, in the first edition of her famous cookbook, warned cooks that this pudding "if baked too rapidly will not whey," implying of course that the wheying was desirable.

★ ★ ★

However, we get the message. Apparently New England custom differs, because as you say, Durgin Park's pudding isn't wheyed.

We happen to have the Indian Pudding recipe that the Durgin Park people distribute — supposedly the recipe they use — but we're sorry to say that in our experience their home rule doesn't turn out a pudding similar to the restaurant version.

This may be due to the fact that in cutting the restaurant-size recipe to home-size proportions, necessary adjustments weren't worked out.

Be that as it may, we do have something good to recommend. The best non-wheyed Indian Pudding recipe we have tried to date comes from "What To Cook For Company" by Lenore Sullivan (Iowa State University Press).

LENORE SULLIVAN'S BAKED INDIAN PUDDING

1 quart milk
½ cup yellow corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup molasses
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter

Scald 3 cups of the milk; pour over corn meal to which salt has been added. Add molasses, sugar, cinnamon and butter. Mix thoroughly.

Turn into butter 1½-puart casserole. After pudding has been in oven 20 minutes, pour in the remaining cup of cold milk and stir carefully.

Bake in very slow oven (250 degrees) 5 to 6 hours. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Note: To insure proper consistency, stir carefully four or five times during first 1½ hours of baking. The pudding is very thin when put in the oven, but don't be alarmed — it will thicken and caramelize as it bakes.

★ ★ ★

The long slow baking is the secret of success with this old-fashioned New England pudding. It brings out the smooth caramel flavor and a texture like velvet.

Hurried cooking at high temperature fails to develop the delicate flavor and the product will be syrupy and tasteless.

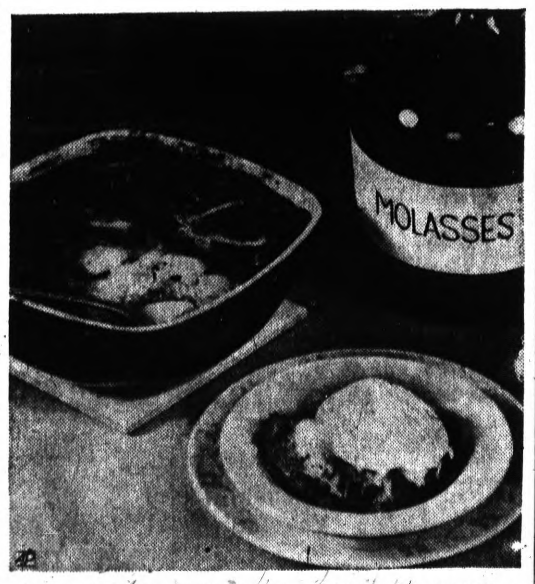

Olives Give Zest to Potato Cakes

Pimiento-stuffed olives lend color and flavor to fried potato cakes.

Combine 2 cups of seasoned mashed potatoes, ⅓ cup of chopped pimiento-stuffed olives, 1 egg and ¼ cup of minced onion. Blend well and chill, if necessary, to shape into 8 patties. Coat potato cakes with dry bread crumbs.

Heat ⅓ cup of solid vegetable shortening in heavy skillet, add potato cakes and saute until browned on both sides. Makes 4 servings.

Using instant rice, make a ring mold by letting the cooked rice sit in an oiled mold while you heat canned chili to serve in the center.

INDIAN PUDDING — Controversial New England Dessert — Should Indian Pudding have a smooth texture that doesn't separate or should it whey?

SAUCED MEATBALL SANDWICHES

Q. What are the names of these meat cuts?

A. To the left, brains; to the right, sweetbreads.

Q. Where do they come from? How are they identified?

A. Both are variety meats. Most sweetbreads are lobes of the thymus gland from veal and young beef since the gland disappears with maturity. Both brains and sweetbreads are soft in consistency, tender and delicate in flavor.

★ ★ ★

Q. How are they prepared?

A. Highly perishable, they should be used at once. Precook by simmering 20 minutes in water to cover, adding one tablespoon of lemon juice for each quart of water used, to firm and keep them white. After precooking, remove membranes, then break into pieces to scramble with eggs, use in salad, serve in a sauce, dip in melted butter or margarine to broil or coat with egg and bread crumbs to panfry. To braise without precooking, wash and remove membraine. Dip in flour or crumbs, brown in a small amout of fat, cover and cook 20 minutes. To panfry, follow braising directions, but do not cover; turn occasionally until lightly browned.

Chop Beans, Add Cheese for New Pie

Americans, both north and south of the border, like beans. Pea beans, black beans and kidney beans; toasted, fried, baked and boiled are all favorites with us and with our southern neighbors.

Beans or frijoles are a part of nearly every Mexican meal and most often are boiled and served in a thick broth or drained, mashed and fried.

Frijoles pie is adapted from a Mexican recipe and was designed for north-of-the-border bean lovers. Canned kidney beans are drained, chopped and mixed with cheese and onions. Quick-cooking rice cereal is added so the mixture will hold its shape when cut into wedges.

FRIJOLES PIE

2 cans (15 oz. size) kidney beans
2 cups coarsely shredded cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 egg
2 tablespoons quick-cooking rice cereal
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Drain beans reserving liquid for sauce recipe. Coarsely chop beans. In a bowl, combine beans, cheese, onion and egg. Mix well. Sprinkle with rice cereal, salt and pepper and parsley. Mix again.

Place in a lightly greased 9-inch pie pan. Spread mixture to edge of pie pan. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 45 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve topped with mushroom sauce. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Raising School Enrollment Seen as Big Task Facing Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Figures supplied by Prime Minister Fidel Castro show that 22 per cent of Cuban youth ages 6 to 16 do not attend school.

"Possibly the biggest battle that we have to win in education is to see that 100 per cent of the children and youth are in the schools," Castro said recently in detailing some of the country's educational problems.

He said Cuba currently has 1,702,139 primary and secondary students in the classrooms. But he noted Cuba has 2,182,000 youth between 6 and 16, meaning that 479,861 youths in this age bracket are not in school. Of these half are between the ages of 12 and 15.

"What are they doing?" Castro asked. "What does this mean for the future generation of this country?"

ATTENDANCE UP

The prime minister gave no enrollment figures before his government came to power 10 years ago. But a Cuban report last August to the United Nations said the government had increased all school attendance 122 per cent above pre-Castro days. Another figure published here said that in 1965 school attendance of children between 5 and 19 was 66.8 per cent.

Castro indicated that the government's immediate solution to the attendance problem will be to make attendance compulsory through high school. It is now compulsory through the sixth grade. A new law is expected to go into effect this year after being ratified at hundreds of mass assemblies.

The Cuban leader also took up the problem of students who are behind the rest of their classmates.

Without specifying if these are slow learners or just started their education late, he reported that from the first through the sixth grade Cuba has 621,510 such students; from the seventh through the 10th, 76,506 and from the 11th through the 13th, 4,646.

SEPARATE GROUPS

He said, in the future, slow or "delayed" students would be put in separate groups. It is not uncommon now, especially in rural areas recently developed, to find students 12 and 13 in the same class with students three or four years younger. Many of the older students live in areas where there were no schools before.

The disparity in figures on these students at low and higher educational levels, however, points to another Cuban education problem: the dropout, in Communist terms "desertion."

Although no official figures are given, it is believed the dropout rate is highest at the break between grade school and junior high. Castro said last year 137,440 students quit school.

Part of Cuba's school attendance and dropout problem undoubtedly is due to its geography. The government has built schools in remote areas of the country without sufficient roads or transportation facilities.

SCHOOL VANDALISM

But it is noted that a recent outbreak of school vandalism at the teen-age level occurred mostly in urban zones.

★ ★ ★

In an effort to solve both the attendance and dropout problems, the government has cracked down on parents and is concentrating on building boarding schools which have tighter control over student life.

★ ★ ★

In these schools, students are housed, fed and clothed free. The average school can handle 300 to 600 students. Hundreds of such schools will be needed, especially when the new compulsory education law brings in the one-fifth of the school-age youth now absent from the classrooms.

Pedestrians 'Obstacles' in Sao Paulo

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Pedestrian right-of-way is an unknown concept in this industrial city where many walkers are considered "obstacles which impede the normal flow of traffic."

Such is the official position of Sao Paulo's secretary of public security, and the unofficial position of thousands of motorists who often gleefully aim for the "obstacles" to see how close they can come without damaging their cars.

In a recent crackdown on pedestrians—well-known for their agility—Secretary of Public Security Hely Lopes Meirelles issued orders to traffic police to "repress any pedestrian activities which tend to prejudice the free circulation of traffic in public streets."

★ ★ ★

Besides the run-of-the-mill jaywalker, the order referred especially to pedestrians involved in some way or another with the soliciting of motorists stopped for red lights.

These culprits include "people collecting money for charities or benefits, merchants of any kind, and pesrons washing windshields."

The latter consists of ragged young boys armed with equally ragged cleaning gear who naturally pick the city's busiest intersections for their enterprise, which nets them about the equivalent of a penny per car . . . if they are lucky.

★ ★ ★

The order also singled out persons in the advertising business, such as "men on stilts, persons wearing sandwich boards, comic groups, musical groups and sign carriers."

Such people are fair game for Sao Paulo motorists, as are well-dressed businessmen and especially pretty girls.

SHE'S 'BETTER OFF"

One recently arrived resident of the city remarked that his wife, a shapely redhead, couldn't get used to the uninhibited—and somewhat obscene—display of admiration, though she considered herself "better off than the males caught in the middle of an intersection when the light changes." The latter are usually bombarded with a wealth of local slang which is far from affectionate in nature.

★ ★ ★

Taxi drivers are, of course, the real experts on the subject of pedestrian pool, since they view the "obstacles" as impediments on their livelihood.

Some 70 per cent of the cows in France are artificially inseminated.

Hearing Slated on Bid for Pardon

LANSING (AP) — The State Parole Board plans a public hearing Tuesday on the application for pardon submitted by John E. Meisinger of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Meisinger was sentenced in 1959 to one to two years on a charge of violating the check law. He was paroled in 1960.

Astronauts will use Idaho's lava flows for geology field training. The fields studded with cinder cones resemble the moon's surface.

She Willed Animal Care

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI)—Eleanor Elizabeth Ritchey liked football and dogs.

The combination resulted in a $2.5-million bequest to Auburn University when she died in 1968. The money is to be used for research in small animal diseases.

Miss Ritchey loved dogs and took care of 150 animals on her Broward County, Fla., ranch near Fort Lauderdale.

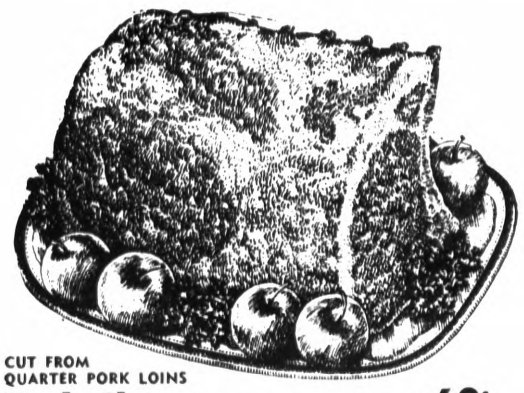

Her veterinarian was Dr. Ivan C. Frederickson, father of Auburn football great Tucker Frederickson who played high school football in Broward County and went on to star in professional football.

Miss Ritchey's will provided that her dogs would be taken care of until they have died or been placed in suitable homes.

NASA Will Leave Key New Decisions to Nixon Administration

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency's budget request for fiscal year 1970 includes several new programs, but major new decisions are being left to the incoming administration of Richard M. Nixon.

In presenting the budget briefing last week, Dr. Thomas O. Paine, acting administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, termed it a "holding budget."

★ ★ ★

"It does not," he said, "make full use of the aerospace capabilities that this nation has developed in government, in industry and in universities . . . it does permit a balanced program of useful work in critical areas."

Paine said the Nixon administration will have to make early decisions on "manned lunar exploration, on future space station development and, after further studies are completed, on an unmanned expedition in 1977 or 1979 to the outer planets — Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune."

NASA PROPOSALS

The $3.88-billion budget request, matching what NASA received in fiscal 1969, includes new programs to develop large stationary weather satellites, two satellites to survey the earth's resources, a spacecraft to probe both Venus and Mercury in 1973 and five small satellites to orbit Venus and Mars in the early 1970s.

The Apollo program, which hopes to land men on the moon next summer, is budgeted for $1.65 billion. This is down from $2.03 billion this fiscal year and reflects the program's approaching end.

★ ★ ★

Apollo applications, the follow-on program, is slated for $308.8 million, more than double what is received this year. The first Apollo applications mission, a modest three-man space station, is scheduled for launching late in 1971.

Decreasing Apollo costs means more money for research for such programs as development of the Nerva nuclear rocket engine. More than $27 million has been earmarked for Nerva in the budget.

10 MISSIONS PLANNED

The schedule of manned space flights calls for five Apollo missions in calendar year 1969 and five more in 1970. After the first moon landing, additional landing flights will be scheduled at three-to-four-month intervals until astronauts have planted at least three lunar surface experiment packages on the moon. These packages contain a great array of scientific instruments to relay data long after the astronauts return to earth.

The 1970 budget includes $11 million for plotting exploration of the moon. Dr. George Mueller, NASA associate administrator for manned space flight, said a number of decisions must be made, including the length of time men can stay on the lunar surface during the planned flights.

He said 48 hours is believed to be the maximum and is dictated by the storage of supercritical helium on the landing craft. He said "We won't know how precise this figure is until the first lunar landing."

The 1970 budget for the first time asks funds for an advanced space station. The $9 million would be used to study what type station is needed and a shuttle system to take astronauts to and from it.

NASA is considering a station that will stay up a year or more and carry six or more men, with the crew switched from time to time. They would conduct scientific and engineering experiments.

Bill Aids Hirers of Hard-Core

McDonald Proposal Offers Tax Credits

Business hiring hard-core unemployed would receive tax credits under a bipartisan bill introduced in the House, according to Congressman Jack H. McDonald, R-19th District.

McDONALD

The bill, H.R. 112, cosponsored by McDonald and 36 other members, is similar to a plan introduced by McDonald in the 90th Congress.

★ ★ ★

"The legislation was reintroduced because of a growing feeling that the best way to attack poverty is by creating jobs for the hard-core unemployed," said McDonald.

★ ★ ★

Government cannot create permanent employment for all Americans and should not try, the Republican added. "But government can help in solving the problems of the two million permanently unemployed in our country."

LIKE EQUIPMENT CREDIT

The bill, like its predecessor, is patterned after the law allowing tax credits to businesses investing in new equipment.

"Jobs are the key to the poverty revolution in our country," said McDonald. "Manpower training programs, which I have supported, cannot create jobs. Neither can government create jobs on the vast scale required.

★ ★ ★

"Businesses must be given the incentives to create new jobs and to train the hard-core unemployed."

Businesses have already played a vital role through the National Alliance of Businessmen, the Urban Coalition and other groups, McDonald pointed out, adding that legislation for tax credits would supplement these efforts.

EARLY HEARINGS

H.R. 112 is pending in the House before the Ways and Means Committee, whose chairman, Wilbur Mills, has been asked to hold early hearings.

President Nixon has supported the idea of tax credits and incentives to attack urban problems and Mills has indicated he will give serious consideration to such legislation, McDonald noted.

India's Jewish Colonies Are Staging Exodus to Israel

COCHIN, Kerala State, India (AP)—Birthdays are hardly the time to think about extinction. But the 78 Jews of Cochin, remnant of a once-flourishing community, had their own disappearance from India very much in mind as they celebrated their syngogue's 400th anniversary.

★ ★ ★

"We want to say thank you to India and then say goodby," remarked Nappy Koder, a young engineer who plans to transplant his wife and family to Israel within a year.

★ ★ ★

"We are not happy here," Nappy's uncle, Elias Koder, added. "The government is taking too much for taxes—and yet they won't let us take our property to Israel."

The government's policy is anything but clear, though a family head is allowed to take out less than $5,000 in rupees and no property. The Cochin Jews want to remove their synagogue's holy scrolls, books, relics and religious ornaments.

2,500 ALREADY THERE

The young are going to Israel to join 2,500 Cochin Jews already settled there; the middle aged, like Uncle Elias, are tied to their sometimes considerable property here; the elderly are dying off.

Three Cochin girls in their early 20s, interrupting themselves with bursts of self-conscious laughter, explained that there is only "one eligible man" in the community, a 22-year-old who seems to be holding out for an Israeli bride.

★ ★ ★

"Of course, there are several permanent bachelors in their 30s," said one girl, dressed like the others in western clothes. "And there are three boys under 20, all 17."

They refused to commit themselves to any marital strategy —but nodded that, yes, they would probably wait until they settled in Israel.

GENETIC REASON

One unspoken reason for their patience is the genetic fact that the Cochin Jews are dangerously intermarried and, as several privately admitted, in serious need of fresh blood for their unborn children.

★ ★ ★

"We are all related to one another in some way," explained one member of the Koder family, with a wave of his hand down "Jew Street," the narrow, extremely tidy, whitewashed enclave where almost all of the Cochin Jews live.

★ ★ ★

With only three real families left—the Koders, the Hallegueas and the Robys—and assorted members of six others, the Cohcin Jews are aware that Jew Street and its lovely synagogue will be a lifeless museum within a generation.

Still, they continue to lead their closely knit life, which is built around Sabbath worship. The community has no rabbi, and the responsibility for leading prayers rotates among the members of the "minyan"—men over 13 who have had their Bar Mitzvah.

NO PRIVATIONS

Happily, the Cochin Jews will suffer no privations while in India.

Many have done well on their own, and the leader of the community, Satto Koder, employs many of his relatives in his seven department stores and the Cochin Electrical Co.

★ ★ ★

In the nearby town of Ernakulam lives a far more ancient community known as the Black Jews for their dark complexions —in contrast to the light-skinned Cochin Jews. The 168 member community has melded itself so completely and inconspicuously into Keralan society that Ernakulam taxi drivers, police officers and self-appointed tourist guides are unaware of its existence.

★ ★ ★

"You want see Jews?" asked a knowing Ernakulam taxi driver in minimal English. "No Jews here. You go Cohcin side."

LANGUAGE DIFFERENT

Unlike the Cochin Jews, who usually speak both English and Malayalam, the language of Kerala, the poorer Black Jews by and large speak only Malayalam.

They are mainly small merchants. Partly because they are less tied down by property than the Cochin Jews, they are leaving even faster for Israel.

★ ★ ★

"We have only to pay for our ticket to Bombay. Jewish agencies pay for our ticket to Israel," explained a banana merchant.

One of the two synagogues in Ernakulam stands right next to a mosque. Speaking of the 1967 war in the Middle East, Elias Thiferth, a 20-year-old college student, said: "The older Moslems have forgot the war, but the young ones know the political reasons for it that is making it a little difficult."

BLACK MAY BE FIRST

The Black Jews may be the first to disappear from Kerala —though they probably arrived in India well before their more publicized, light-skinned coreligionists.

It is traditional, though most likely incorrect, to date the arrival in Kerala sometime after the second destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem in 70 A.D.

★ ★ ★

Walter J. Fischel of the University of California at Berkeley, a scholar on the subject, says the first wave of Jews probably arrived in the 11th century, though conceivably as early as the 8th.

This community, an offspring of one of many migrations from the Middle East, eventually intermarried with the local population— and became the Black Jews.

THEY FLED PERSECUTION

With the opening of trade to India by the Dutch East India Co., in the 16th century, another wave of Jews—perhaps fleeing persection in Portugal and Spain—came to Kerala.

Until about 20 years ago, White Jews here admit, a genuine color bar existed between the two communities, despite their common faith.

★ ★ ★

Now, with both groups destined for Israel, the color bar is down. Black Jews today occasionally worship in the White Jews' synagogue, though there have been no instances of marriage between the two groups.

The word "Cochin" will outlive these communities. In Malayalam, it means "Jew."

Apartheid More Than Political Issue in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Interest in sports runs high in South Africa, and the man in the street has been disappointed recently to find that politics and sports mix in about the same manner as oil and water.

Political waves churned up by apartheid swamped several events, and national pride was badly bruised.

★ ★ ★

There are other problems being kicked around by South African whites.

The cost of living is creeping up. Black servants have trouble with the authorities over work-residence permits. Traffic jams seem worse than ever. University students promise more protests in 1969. Africans and Asians in the United Nations are denouncing South Africa again. Expert auto mechanics are hard to find.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

But sports are something special.

Swimmer Karen Muir and sprinter Paul Nash equaled or broke world records in 1968. Political meddling banned South Africa from the Mexico Olympic Games and kept Muir and Nash from demonstrating their prowess, say the fans.

★ ★ ★

South Africa was about to show the world what top-class cricket was when politicians canceled a tour here by Britain because a nonwhite named Basil D'Oliveira was added to the visiting team.

As the national game, rugby is a form of mania. South Africans fear political busybodies may upset the 1970 visit by New Zealand, which will undoubtedly have a few Maoris on its team. Nobody seems quite sure how Maoris would be racially classified in South Africa, but it's important

OCCIDENTALLY WHITE

Everybody is classified by color here. Maybe they could be honorary "whites" like the Japanese who are granted this special status because they buy a lot of South African iron ore.

South Africa's galazy of modern heroes was peopled mostly by athletes until the world's first human heart transplant was performed in Cape Town by Dr. Christiaan Barnard.

★ ★ ★

South Africa is a land rich in minerals, about the size of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Most of inland South Africa is dry plateau more than 4,000 feet above sea level. Rugged escarpments drop to the Indian Ocean on the east and the south Atlantic on the west.

PORTUGUESE DISCOVERY

It was discovered by Portuguese explorers in 1468 and first settled by the Dutch about the same time as the first European settlements in the United States.

Many whites now explain their right to the country—blacks outnumber them 4 to 1—by pointing out that there was no tribal opposition to the pioneers until they had trekked hundreds of miles into the uninhabited interior. Only then did the Boer settlers of Dutch, German and French desent, clash with blacks moving down from Central Africa.

★ ★ ★

A series of bloody battles, akin to the Indian wars in the U.S. West, were fought before white control was firm.

Two rural republics were established in what are now the Orange Free State and Transvaal provinces. The present Natal and Cape provinces remained in British hands, and the stage was set for South Africa's equivalent of the American Civil War.

MINERAL WEALTH

The discovery of diamonds and gold in Boer territory attracted thousands who wanted to get rich quick. Friction between the weak Boer republics and such British figures as Cecil Rhodes sparked the Boer War of 1899-1902.

The resourceful Boers introduced the commando to modern warfare but were worn down to defeat. The conflict left a residue of mistrust which, in part, explains modern South Africa's split national personality.

★ ★ ★

English and Afrikaans, a guttural tongue heard nowhere else in the world, are the two official languages. There is a variety of African tribal vernaculars as well.

Everywhere are neatly lettered signs in both official languages. Many specify the human skin color permitted through a doorway, on an elevator, a bus or park bench.

The religious aspect of Afrikanerdom is striking. "Die Bybel" told whites they were to do the work of God by ruling the dark-skinned children of Ham, whose ordained role was that of hewers of wood and drawers of water.

There are more than 3½ million whites here, and among them Afrikaners have a 60-40 majority. There are 12.7 million Africans, 560,000 Asians and 1.8 million persons of mixed blood officially classified as "colored." Basil d'Oliveira, now a citizen of Great Britain is a "colored" born in this country.

Only the whites have power.

★ ★ ★

This is a modern industralized nation fast expanding away from almost total economic dependence on gold mining and arming. Except for oil, it is one of the world's most self-sufficient countries.

This self-sufficiency, a strong rural influence, vast distances to America and Europe and a race segregation policy abhorred by many nations, make for an insular citizenry.

Afrikaners feel that this is their only home.

Many white South Africans are convinced that they are misunderstood and maligned by foreigners who don't know the facts. The basic fact that reinforces this feeling is that South Africa is the only important country where strict separation by color is the law of the land.

APARTHEID DEFINED

The word "apartheid" was coined in 1948 and has no equivalent in English. The government now prefers the term "separate development" and, in general, defines it as the "separate but equal" doctrine espoused by segregationists elsewhere.

The machinery of segregation keeps grinding in two general areas: So-called "petty apartheid," and whether whites are prepared to make the personal sacrifices necessary for complete race separation.

Petty apartheid distinguishes the grand ideology, with its master plans to resettle blacks in tribal "homelands" away from whites, and regulations designed to keep the races apart in offices, restaurants, trains, sports stadium and other public places.

★ ★ ★

Africans can be "endorsed out" to a homeland they may never have seen if their mandatory internal passport is not in order. Blacks must have passes with them at all times, and produce them whenever a policeman asks. They ask often.

COULD BE EASED

Some whites contend that petty apatheid could be eased without changing the basic segregation of races. Apartheid purists say that to weaken any part would be to threaten the whole structure.

"We have solved our color problem, "says Prime Minister John Vorster. "We have not solved the problem in theory, we have solved the problem in practice."

The problem actually continues, with many built-in contradictions.

★ ★ ★

South Africa's economy rests on a foundation of readily available, cheap black labor. Complete segregation enforced hastily could yield industrial chaos.

The country's split personality extends to government functions. Cape Town greeted the original settlers and Parliament sits there in the shadow of Table Mountain. Pretoria, a placid and modernistic city 25 miles north of Johannesburg, is the administrative capital.

'AMERICAN' CITY

Johannesburg's the nearest nearest thing in Africa to a prosperous American Midwest city. The streets are clogged with traffic and bustling with shoppers. Numerous new buildings are under construction.

NY Decentralization of Schools at Stake

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League

YOUNG

The fight to decentralize New York's mammoth school system has now entered a new phase.

The first phase was a stormy one—the establishment of three experimental locally controlled school systems and the joining together of the teachers' union and school administrators to try to kill meaningful decentralization.

★ ★ ★

The next phase promises to be just as stormy. The board of education released its plan to decentralize the schools, and after public hearings the plan will go to the state legislature for approval.

The teachers, who mounted a massive lobbying campaign to kill previous decentralization plans, including threats to defeat legislators who vote for decentralization, will probably be on the attack once more.

The whole country is watching what happens in New York since decentralization of the schools and perhaps other city services will be a major issue in every large city.

★ ★ ★

It would be tragic if people assume from New York's experience that decentralization can only come about through turmoil and bitter struggle.

Some experiments in community control of the schools have been achieved without such upheavals.

Washington, D. C., for example, has one such successful experiment in its Morgan Community School.

FULL SUPPORT

While there was some opposition in the early days of the experiment, it has proved itself by getting full community support and by improving the education of the youngsters attending the school.

It now looks like the experiment will be expanded to the other schools in the Washington system.

It is interesting, too, that Washington teachers support decentralization. They endorsed it by a vote of more than two to one at the same time that New York's teachers, who belong to the same national union, were striking against decentralization last fall.

★ ★ ★

It's too bad that the whole concept of decentralization in New York has become bogged down in vested interests and bureaucratic sabotage.

The focus really should be on the kids; the present system has failed them and the schools have to be made accountable to their parents.

The Morgan Community School gives evidence that when parents have a voice in running the schools, children achieve more.

It was one of the few schools in Washington where pupils' scores on standardized tests rose markedly last year. Habitual truants are back at their desks and vandalism is at a new low.

It is clear that the school is now a part of the community, not just in it.

EXHAUSTIVE STUDY

Last year the U.S. Office of Education released a report that was the most exhaustive study of public schools ever made. It concluded that the biggest factor in determining a child's success in school was his sense of control over his environment.

When a child sees that his school respects his parents and allows them to make their voice heard; when he sees that his school's teachers and administrators believe in his potential and seek to develop his skills; when he sees his school as a living, vital, full-time part of his neighborhood, he will feel a greater sense of his own importance and will achieve better in his studies.

As the well-known Bundy Report which first suggested a decentralization plan for New York put it: "There is an intimate relation between the community and the ability of public education to function effectively . . . (If) the community regards the school as an agency in which they have an investment, which acknowledges a responsibility for pupil achievement—in short, as their own—children will enter the school with positive expectations."

That's what decentralization is all about—making the schools work better for our children.

A SALE IS ONLY AS GOOD AS THE SIZES.

As far as you're concerned, the greatest sale in the world is a bust if you can't find anything in your size.
But Osmun's is putting both its merchandise and inventory figures on the table so you can tell whether or not our annual storewide clearance sale is worth coming to.
It is, from a price standpoint. Examples: $125 cashmere topcoats for $99.90; $110 Eagle suits for $89.90. And there are reductions of 20% and more on clothing and furnishings by Eagle, Petrocelli, Fashion Park,
Alfred of N.Y., Stanley Blacker, Esquire, Phoenix, Florsheim and French Shriner.
Check the inventory box-score and see if there's something for you at our sale.
If so, come on over. If not, don't.
The last thing we want you to get at Osmun's is nothing.

Search Is On for Authentic and Exotic Settings for TV Ads

(EDITOR'S NOTE — They're not quite ready to film on the moon, but producers of television commercials are leaving few other places out in seeking actual locales for their TV sales pitches. But the search for reality in the backgrounds is not the only reason for location shooting. Higher production costs are another factor.)

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Clubs and torches in hand, an angry mob storms the gates of an eerie castle on a craggy hill in Germany. Inside, a man scientist, his monster and his helpers furiously gather up their equipment for an escape.

Another Frankenstein movie? No, just a 60-second automobile commercial filmed on location for American television.

★ ★ ★

The scientist and his crew load everything into a small station wagon touted for its roominess and speed off, leaving the mob in their dust. The announcer then says the car has room for everything and everybody, no matter what your business is.

Location shooting in the United States and abroad is becoming as important to television commercials as it is to the movie industry. It's estimated that nearly half the commercials now being produced are being made on location.

AUTHENTICITY

Advertising agencies are traveling from Tahiti to Yugoslavia and from Tel Aviv to Nairobi for authentic backgrounds and exotic settings. Mostly, however, they film in their own backyard, in and around New York City and other production centers.

You'd expect automobile and cigarette commercials to be made on location, but they're abondoning the studio to plug everything from spaghetti to ball-point pens.

★ ★ ★

"You go on location because you want a certain geological, archeological or architectural aspect or for a certain type of people germane to a concept," says Herb Strauss, a producer for Doyle Dane Bernbach Inc.

"If you wanted the Irish Sea Coast, you would go to the Irish Sea Coast. You wouldn't simulate it in New England."

Carl E. Sturges, director of TV production for Young Rubicam, says, "It used to be that if a commercial called for an exterior scene you'd shoot it inside and it looked phony. I think increasing standards have put a stop to that.

"What makes it exciting, as the audience becomes more sophisticated, you're constantly striving for better visuals and that's what's leading us to more exotic locations," he said.

The need for a location has to be instrinsic to the concept of the commercial, Sturges days. "I don't think anybody's writing himself to Europe."

Just as the advertisers are joining the movie makers abroad in a search for exotic locations, they're also being motivated by another reason that sent the movie makers traveling: soaring production costs.

It's cheaper to fly to Rome and hire a local crew and local actors than it is to build a set and to do it here. Besides, it also means there are no residuals to pay the actors everytime the commercial is shown.

Not surprisingly then, the advertising agencies are being hit by the unions with the same charges of "runaway" productions.

★ ★ ★

Finding just the right location has become a major occupation — and preoccupation — of the agencies and the production houses. Most approach it as part of the job, but some admen have turned it into a hobby and scout for sites on weekends. Several companies have sprung up in recent years just to search for locations.

When Patrick Boyriven, a producer for Doyle Dane Bernbach, set out for Germany to find the castle for the automobile commercial, he knew exactly what he was looking for.

He started out his search in a rather ordinary way. "I began by asking my friends who travel in Europe for ideas," he said. "Then I got tips from the chambers of commerce in Europe. And as I travelled around I asked every tourist I saw and every hotel keeper."

★ ★ ★

For two weeks he tramped from castle to castle, but none was suitable. "Then a tourist told me he had just found a fantastic castle near the Rhine. I drove straight for it and it was nightfall when I got there. It was exactly what we were looking for. It was a piece of luck," he said.

A Hot Lunch

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — The Massachusetts Fire Chiefs Association luncheon meeting was interrupted Tuesday when fire broke out in the restaurant. The blaze was touched off by welders' torches on the roof, firemen said.

India Has Trunk Line for Control of Births

At a time when elephants in the United States are the symbolic center of attention, a 25-year-old female pachyderm has begun a lifelong walk through India's often inaccessible villages to spread the message of family planning.

This elephant, strictly nonpolitical, made her debut before 500 excited residents of this rural community 100 miles northeast of New Delhi.

Purchased for $780 by 60 private individuals who donated $13 each, the elephant is to walk about 20 miles and visit five villages a day, dispensing contraceptives via its trunk at government-subsidized prices—less than one cent for three contraceptives—and distributing handbills and literature urging the various birth-control methods.

Her name is Lal Tikon, meaning Red Triangle, the symbol of the government's family planning program which is seeking by various means to slow down the increase in the country's population—now estimated at 530 million and increasing by 30,000 a day.

Although she has about 60 years of walking left, no one expects Lal Tikon to visit all of India's 560,000 villages in her lifetime.

Instead, her owners hope she will demonstrate a new and economical communications medium for family planning.

One of the walk's organizers explained that many villagers have no access to the radios or newspapers that are used extensively to publicize the family planning program.

As Lal Tikon enters a village, she will be recognized easily. A huge inverted red triangle is painted on her forehead.

SIGNS OF FLANKS

On her flanks are two bright red and yellow cloth signs, one bearing the four faces of a happy Indian family and the other a triangle with the message "Lal Tikon Mera Nax. Khushi Batna Mera Kax." It means "My name is Lal Tikon. My job is to spread happiness." The elephant walk is a nongovernmental affair, and its organizers have insisted on personal anonymity. Many, however, work for the Ford Foundation and the U.S. Agency for International Development.

★ ★ ★

An Indian farmer with sizable property holdings has donated the services of a mahout, the elephant's attendant. Bharat, the 40-year-old mahout, has four children, one more than the limit the government sets for an ideal family. But Bharat promises to have no more.

★ ★ ★

Lal Tikon has had a favorable effect on the village of Ratangarh. Since her arrival a week ago, five persons have volunteered for sterilization operations—three more than were performed in the last two years.

British Author Knows What Western's All About

JOHN T. EDSON

MELTON MOWBRAY, England (AP) — "A bit of sex, a bit of sadism and plenty of people getting shot — that's what a western is all about," said John T. Edson.

Edson, a bluff, red-haired Britisher, has never seen an Arizona cactus patch or a Colorado saloon but he speaks with authority. Fifty-one of his western pulp novels have been published and he quit his mailman's route recently to turn out more.

★ ★ ★

Some day, he said, he really must go to the United States and visit the Red River Valley, the Kansas cattle trails and all those other places he's been writing about.

At 40, Edson has reached the big time as a freelance fiction writer—his publisher estimates nearly two million paperback copies of his books have been sold, 850,000 of them in 1968. but the road to success was long and devious.

DEVELOPED TASTE

Edson left his birthplace in the mining community of Worksop before he was 21 to become an Army dog trainer and serve 12 years in Germany, Kenya, Hong Kong and Singapore.

Off duty, he developed his taste for the Old West, a place where, in his view, life was simple, men were strong and the good guys won out, usually after a satisfyingly bloody brawl.

He spent hours watching Hollywood horse operas — "I saw every movie John Wayne ever made" — reading westerns and finally, because he thought he could do better, writing them.

★ ★ ★

He modeled one of his characters, Dusty Fog, a small Texan, after Audie Murphy, the war hero and actor.

In "The Making of a Lawman," Dusty becomes marshal of a Kansas town, engages in a series of fights and shoot-outs with rowdy railroad men and contentious cowhands and winds up with a gun battle in a nunnery.

Out of the Army in 1960, Edson opened a fish-and-chips shop in Melton Mowbray, a midlands market town known for its meat pies and cheese.

Later he worked in a pet-food factory and kept on writing.

A DOUBLE JOLT

Unpublished westerns piled up around Edson's home until he got a double jolt — from his wife ("She said either send the manuscripts to a publisher or she would burn them") and from a correspondence writing course that led to a competition. Edson's "Trail Boss' won second prize.

Edson received about 16 pounds ($38.40) for his first book in 1961. He devoted two years to writing full-time and as his word output grew, so did his weight.

★ ★ ★

"I was sitting down happily banging away at the typewriter all day," he said. "I got up to 280 pounds. The doctor sent the undertaker to see me and it struck me he was trying to tell me something.

"So I decided to get some exercise and the only way I could do that and get paid for it was by walking a mail route."

Edson brought his weight down to 238 pounds but he was "never what you might call a very civil servant." When the job began to interfere with wirting, he quit and bought a fishing rod for exercise.

9-TO-5 DAY

Now Edson works 9-to-5 at a small desk wedged in among the plastic flowers and scuffed, blonde furniture in his bedroom. He completes a book in six weeks, shutting the door against the noise created by his children.

His novels are very much the man — blunt, no-nonsense, with an air of more-or-less good-humored violence. "Calamity Spells Trouble" climaxes in a four-way hair-pull involving Calamity Jane and three other women following a number of armed robberies.

★ ★ ★

Details of weapons, cowboy slang and customs of the Old West come from shelves of reference books.

Edson has been called the Ian Fleming of westerns, a comparison that annoys him. But he shares Fleming's passion for gadgets.

He equipped Belle Boyd, a Confederate spy appearing in several books, with a poison ring, a parasol billy club and a perfume sprayer full of ammonia.

Edson's new publisher, Corgi Books, is expanding sales into Norway and, next year, the Netherlands and the United States.

He appears on the verge of becoming wealthy and famous but if the prospect bothers him, he doesn't show it.

Prairie dogs, squirrellike animals with a barking cry, are gregarious and usually live in colonies.

Oral Vaccine Found to Fight Fish Blight

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — An oral vaccine to prevent a bacterial disease fatal to large number of salmon and steelhead trout in the Columbia and Fraser river systems has been developed by a bilogical scientist at Battelle Northwest Laboratory.

The disease, C. columnaris, erodes gill filaments and causes body lesions. It is known to occur when water temperatures of streams rise above average and in areas where large numbers of migrating fish congregate, such as at the base of fish ladders.

In 1961, C. columnaris virtually wiped out the Horsefly River sockeye run in British Columbia. In 1963 in another tributary of the Fraser, the Chilko River, 720,000 of an esgimated 800,000 sockeyes died without spawning because of the disease.

Because of its association with unnaturally warm waters, the disease has become a problem not only for fishermen but also for the operators of nuclear reactors, steam power plants and hydroelectric dams.

PROBLEM SOURCES

Waters discharged from nuclear and steam plants at the Hanford Atomic Works are boosting the Columbia's temperatures, and, of course, dams force fish to use ladders, causing them to congregate.

For these reasons, Battelle Northwest undertook the project to combat columnaris, and M.P. Fujihara came up with an answer. He developed a vaccine that can be mixed with fish foods.

★ ★ ★

"The oral vaccination of juvenile salmon against columnaris has been successful under controlled laboratory conditions," explained Fujihara. "However, successful application of the vaccine to large-scale production hatchery use will require several years of continued study."

While Fujihara was cautious in claiming victory, there was no doubt that the vaccine works.

NEW SURVEY METHOD

Through an effective, sensitive technique, developed under sponsorship of the Atomic Energy Commission, Fujihara and a Battelle technician, R.L. Tramel, have used the ability of fish to develop antibodies against the columnaris as a new method of surveying fish to determine disease exposure.

Juvenile salmon were examined on their downstream migration, and adults were examined during their journey from the mouth of the Columbia to their spawning grounds.

Blood serum and other samples were taken from hundreds of coho, sockeye and spring and summer run Chinook. Similar serum samples were taken from yearling rainbow trout in the labortory. None of the fish was harmed.

County GOP's Essay Contest Is Open to Students

County — high school students have been invited to enter the annual Oakland County Lincoln Republican Club essay contest.

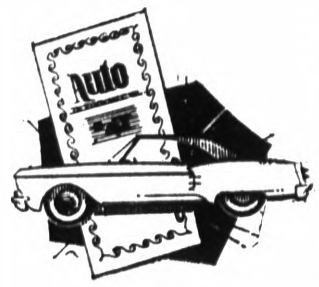

Topic for the 500-word essay this year is "Would Lincoln Change the Election Process from the Nominating Convention System to a Direct Presidential Primary?"

★ ★ ★

Barry M. Grant, vice president of the club, said all entries mailed to him not later than Jan. 31 at 21751 W. 11 Mile, Southfield, will be considered.

Judges of the contest are Circuit Judges James Thorburn, Frederick Ziem and Phillip Pratt. U.S. Savings Bonds of $100, $75 and $50 denominations will be awarded as prizes.

How to Select a College—2

Burden of Choice Must Be Student's

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of 12 articles on the dos and don'ts to observe in choosing the right college for you. The series will run daily in The Pontiac Press.)

By ELLA MAZEL
NEA Publications

"The burden of choice," says John C. Hoy, dean of admissions and freshmen at Wesleyan University, "must inevitably be the student's. . . . "Counselors, admissions officers, parents and friends may advise, but the applicant must weigh all counsel —good, bad, and irrelevant. Parents in particular should restrain themselves from exercising undue influence."

True, you will be paying all or part of your child's college expenses—and you may be sacrificing a great deal for this purpose—but it is he, not you, who is going to be living those four precious years.

If you take the attitude that because you are paying you are entitled to dictate the terms, you are laying the groundwork for a dropout situation.

HE KNOWS BETTER

Just as I have always been convinced that a child at any age knows better than you do when he is hungry, when he is cold, or when he is tired, I also believe strongly that a teenager knows better than you do how well he is capable of performing and how hard he is willing to work to achieve goals that are important to him rather than to you.

Did you know that, according to widely quoted nationwide statistics, some 50 per cent of freshmen do not graduate from the colleges they originally entered?

★ ★ ★

There may be as many different reasons for this as there are students switching or dropping out, but many can be traced directly to parents who have pushed and squeezed their children into colleges that just don't fit.

The bane of the high school counselor's existence is the parent who refuses to look realistically at the student's ability and potential.

MANY ARE AVAILABLE

Actually there are many fine colleges available at every academic level, and perhaps it is comforting to know that the more "average" your child is, the more doors are open to him.

It is sad but true that the better the student is, the rougher the road he must travel. The statistics are against him in the relatively few highly competitive and most sought-after institutions.

★ ★ ★

No matter how outstanding he is, he must be prepared for the traumatic experience of rejection by the very colleges he has every reason to believe are looking for students like him.

Back in the 'thirties when I went to college it was really a simple matter of "you pays your money and you takes your choice."

A MATTER OF COURSE

No money, no problems. You went to your local municipal institution as a matter of course if you went to college at all. Now the tables are turned.

All the king's horses and half his treasury won't get your son into the Ivy League if he does not measure up academically, while the bright little girl from the wrong side of the tracks may turn up with the enviable "problem" of choosing between Vassar and Smith.

★ ★ ★

As one admissions director describes it, this is a "horrendous period of having to reject so many well-qualified students, many of whom are children of our alumni."

What can you do to take the "horrendous" out of what is at best a difficult situation? Let your child decide how "hungry" he is for a college.

Irish Political Wars Surround Ex-Soldier

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Terence Marne O'Neill, the reformer in the hot seat of Irish politics, is a seasoned ex-soldier at the center of a battle he detests.

This is his sixth year as prime minister of the six counties that make up Northern Ireland. It promises to be as turbulent as any in the country's troubled history.

★ ★ ★

Despite the appeals of church and political leaders, the old divisions of Catholic and Protestant once more are stirring the 1½ million people.

O'Neill, 54, bases his hope for betterment on the middle ground of men of both religions interested in civic peace.

PREJUDICE FANNED

They are, he says, the great majority. But in Ireland, where prejudice is easily fanned by extremists of both religions, and political agitators of none, the road to conciliation is hard.

O'Neill is leader of the predominantly Protestant Unionist party which has ruled in Northern Ireland without a break since the province was formed in 1921.

★ ★ ★

The party is dedicated above all to maintaining Northern Ireland's union with Britain and to fighting off those who seek union with the largely Catholic republic to the south.

The Unionists are allied to the British Conservative party. Unlike the Conservative party, they draw their main voting strength from the working class.

PROTESTANT VS. CATHOLIC

Belfast's shipyard workers voted Unionist because they are Protestants. The opposition Nationalist and Labor parties are identified with the Catholic cause.

The Unionist government holds 37 of the 52 seats in the provincial Parliament in Belfast but is under pressure from all sides.

★ ★ ★

The Catholic-oriented civil rights movement is stepping up demands for reform in local government systems which it says discriminate against the Roman Catholic minority.

Protestant extremists denounce any concession to the Catholics as weakness and treachery. People stand ready for riot every weekend and Britain's Labor government, which retains a supervisory voice in Northern Irish affairs, is pressing for evidence that promised reforms are on the way.

WAR VETERAN

O'Neill, at the center of the whirlpool, is an English-educated aristocrat who fought with the Irish Guards in World War II when two brothers were killed.

Like most Irishmen who fought in the British army, he retains his military designation in private life and is always called Capt. O'Neill.

★ ★ ★

After the war, O'Neill followed his father into politics. By the time he reached the premiership he had 17 years of parliamentary experience.

These years included a spell as minister of home affairs, controlling the Royal Ulster Constabulary, whose riot police are themselves under accusation of rioting in Londonderry.

O'Neill later was minister of finance, an experience which underlined for him how much Northern Ireland's living standards depend on the millions of pounds poured in by the British.

O'Neill, married with a son and a daughter, is a shy and dapper man with a nervous laugh.

★ ★ ★

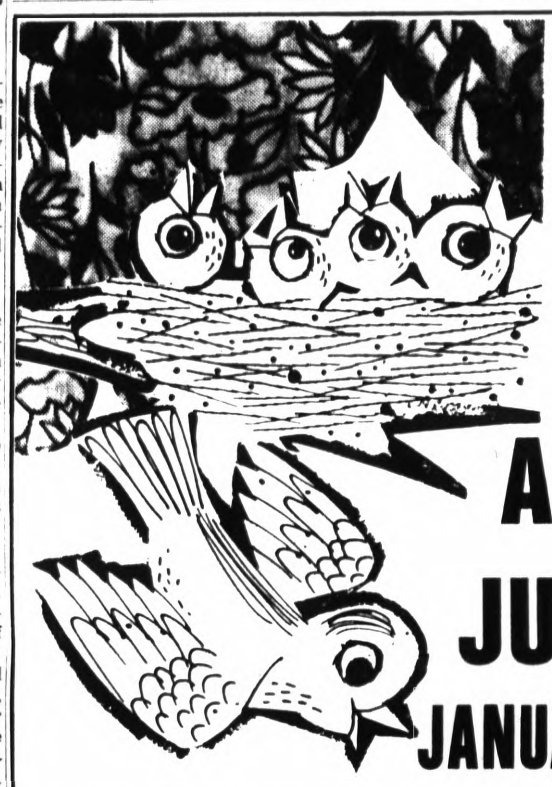

The charge of weakness is hurled at him from two sides.

Extreme Protestant supporters of the union with Britain cry "O'Neill must go" as their battle slogan. They maintain he should crack down more strongly on civil rights marches.

WEAKNESS CHARGED

The civil rights movement itself charges that O'Neill is weak in failing to override objections inside his own party and give a concrete pledge of "one-man, one-vote" in local elections where votes now are tied to property.

O'Neill has never shirked action in fighting off right-wing Unionists who would like to see him broken politically.

Japan 'Technocracy' Meshes the New and the Old

(EDITOR'S NOTE — It is now 100 years since the first of the emancipated emperors sat on the throne of Japan. Since then, the West has had a tremendous influence on the tiny island which has become one of the industrial giants of the world. Yet, for all the progress, the Japanese remain basically serene and aloof.)

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — A century after becoming a modern nation, the Japanese continue to baffle, astonish, amuse and charm. In the words of U.S. Commodore Matthew Perry, they remain "a singular and isolated people."

Perry jotted down his reaction to the little-known Japanese on 9 July 1853, just before his black ships forcibly opened the misty islands of the mikado to the colonial realities of the Victorian Age.

* * *

The pent-up energies of 250 years of self-imposed aloofness unloosed by Perry burst upon Japan's neighbors with a force which has yet to die out. The resultant explosion at home led to the overthrow of the Tokugawa Shogunate and the restoration of the imperial family to the ancient power and prerogatives the Tokugawa generals had usurped.

Japan this year is celebrating the "Meiji Centennial"—the 100th year of the accession to the throne of the first of the emancipated emperors, a young man later known to history as Meiji: enlightened rule.

OLD, NEW MIX

The Japan of 1968 is a bewildering mix of the ancient and the modern, of youth and age, of freedom and constraint.

American Prof. Marshall E. Dimock, in a just-published book called "The Japanese Technocracy," sums it up:

"The paradox of Japan, one of the world's leading nations, is that in management and government reliance is placed upon both modern and medieval ideas and techniques that at first glance seem totally incompatible.

"Yet these contradictions have not hampered the nation in its drive to become one of the foremost nations of the world, and there is some justice in concluding that the conflicts produced by having to accommodate the old to the new and the new to the old contribute some share to the dynamic energy that is so characteristic of the Japanese people today."

Until Perry came along, Japan's fate had been anchored solidly in its rice fields; it was a nation of peasants supporting feudal overlords who lived off their labor.

FARMERS GO TO CITY

Thrust into the industrial age overnight, freed from the old restrictions of movement, the farmers slowly, then at breakneck speed after World War II, poured into the burgeoning cities. Today the nation's lifeblood is pumped through a half-dozen big metropolises, dominated by Tokyo with its 11.3 million inhabitants.

The Japanese, aided by their ancient Shinto nature beliefs and their deep roots in the earth, have resisted the city's tendency to de-humanize, level and absorb them. For them, the city is a temporary solution, a place to make quick money to return to the countryside. They identify not with Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe or Yokohama but with their "inaka," the home province or town. Each new year millions desert the cities to return to the countryside for a brief renewal of the old ties with earth and family.

* * *

The result is that Tokyo—the world's biggest city—is one of the most ugly.

It is unplanned because no one feels he belongs in the hodge podge of good, bad and largely indifferent architecture, smoking factories, narrow streets, inadequate parks and congested traffic.

LIKE HOME TOWN

This feeling of temporariness has prodded the Tokyoite into making his own neighborhood as much like the old home town as he can.

* * *

The result is a child's delight: winding alleys lit by overblown paper lanterns; modern sky scrapers in which basement floors have been invaded by restaurants, bars, coffee shops decorated in the "mingei" style of the country; tiny wooden shrines sandwiched between enormous buildings.

* * *

Tokyo, in fact, is not a city in the true sense but an amalgam of villages where one can feel marveously at home.

The big-city Japanese not only re-creates part of his home country but carries with him many old customs and taboos which date back to feudalism.

MODERN ON SURFACE

On the surface, he may seem the most modern of humans, well dressed, driving smart new automobiles, patronizing expensive restaurants, drinking martinis at fashionable bars. But whether rich, poor or part of the spreading middle class, he wears a straitjacket he cannot shrug off: obligation.

For the Japanese of city and country, obligation, duty, responsibility weigh him down, in the words of the late anthropologist Ruth Benedict, like a stone.

They are part of a system which springs from Confucianism, which spells out the duties one owes ones parents, brothers, sisters, friends, and masters, and community.

* * *

The Japanese economic, governmental and educational systems are built on the recognition that these ethical relationships exist; they fit like molds over Japanese life, channeling energies in ways unknown to the West.

NO HIGH EXPECTATIONS

A Japanese who enters a big business firm does so without the expectation of a spectacular rise based on brilliance, hard work or personality. In a system which emphasizes respect for the boss, seniority and teamwork rule, playing the game, bowing to authority, making no missteps are prime virtues. The reward is benevolent paternalism: the company is home away from home, the chief executive a father substitute. In time, the obedient employe also can expect to become an executive, to have an office car, an expense account, membership in a company golf club.

* * *

Since promotion is more on merit than on individuality, each Japanese must keep abreast of his advancing age group. The process begins in kindergarten where examinations weed out those who cannot stay afloat, continues through to the "hells" of university entrance exams. Those who fall by the wayside get the inferior jobs; the winners move through university with little difficulty: the system rarely expels its own.

Though it produces few individually brilliant men — Japan has had only two nobel scientists, and one laureate in literature — the system works remarkably well.

The reason lies in the mass industriousness of the Japanese, an industriousness which has made the nation first industrially in Asia, third in the world with a gross national product in 1967 of $115,700 million up 13.5 per cent over the previous year and still rising.

RECKLESS DRIVERS

The economy is growing at almost breakneck speed; but Japan's per-capita national income is 21st in the world; housing, sewerage, water and paved roads are in shockingly inadequate supply; industrial accidents —6,000 dead, 640,000 injured in 1967—are high, and automobile deaths and injuries probably proportionally greater than those of any other nation.

The stresses and strains of being on a slow-moving escalator through life, always looking up and being obedient to the one above, are enormous. Emotions which must be restrained come out in aggressions against society or one's self. This helps explain the bad driving and the high rate of suicide.

As a nation, Japan finds itself in a dilemma. For its first 75 years it gained international power and respect by military conquest. Humiliated and reviled for its last apocalyptic effort to grab all Asia, it now has decided to express itself in the more peaceful—if still competitive—arena of world trade.

It is able to do so because its former enemy, the United States, paid out some $5.5 billion for its defenses between 1953 and 1964 while covering it against attack with its own nuclear umbrella.

Hard-pressed by the cost of the Vietnam war, the U.S. now wants Japan to assume more of the defense burden and would like to see it fill in the vacuum created by its own future withdrawal from some areas of Asia.

U.S. military men concede privately, however, that so deep is the Japanese feeling of pacifism and noninvolvement that it may take another 25 years before Japan begins to assert itself militarily.

'Notorious' Label Undeserved, Swiss Banks Claim

GENEVA (UPI) — Money hidden away in Switzerland's famous numbered bank accounts is confidently believed to run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

And renewed charges that the accounts are used for massive tax evasion in other countries have been strongly rejected by Swiss bankers.

★ ★ ★

Banks do not deny that 20 years and more ago the anonymous deposit system attracted large amounts of dubious money, most often that of exiled dictators.

The accounts do not deserve to be called notorious today, they say.

LATEST CHARGES

The latest charges that the accounts are used to hide money which should have been paid in taxes came from Fred Vinson, deputy U.S. attorney general, and Robert Morgenthau, U.S. attorney for southern New York.

The two men said the accounts make it difficult for federal authorities to track down tax evaders.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Alfred Hartmann, head of Switzerland's Union Bank, was the only Swiss banker ready to comment openly on the charges.

"This story of secret, nameless numbered accounts hiding millions of dollars is a modern fairy tale," Hartmann said.

EXAGGERATED?

"The importance given to numbered accounts by Americans is unreasonably exaggerated. The share these accounts take in our balance sum is merely 1 or 2 per cent, and Americans are far from being our best clients in numbered accounts."

Five other leading bankers questioned by UPI agreed with Hartmann, but none would consent to the use of his name.

"A certain amount of tax evasion must exist, that's obvious," said one of them. "But the charges being made and which have been made — and which no doubt will continue to be made — are certainly exaggerated."

"Tax evasion exists in every country, and I do not think it is higher in Switzerland either on the part of the Swiss or foreigners than in most other countries," said another top banker.

'CAREFUL SCREENING'

"It is of course tempting for any banker if someone comes along with a great deal of money, but for a long time we have looked very carefully at the source of the money and if there is any doubt, we refuse to take it.

"If Al Capone came along with a few millions and wanted to open a numbered account, we would definitely turn him down. It wouldn't be worth the trouble," the banker said.

★ ★ ★

Numbered accounts are in fact the same as any other bank account in Switzerland, with the major exception that the identities of the owners are known to only a few key bank officers.

★ ★ ★

In most cases, only the three leading men in a bank know the name behind the number.

CAN BE OPENED UP

Like other accounts, however, the numbered deposits must be opened up to federal investigators if criminal proceedings are involved.

However, Swiss banks are not required to disclose their secrets unless there has been a violation of Swiss law. What happens in other countries does not affect this country's banking secrecy laws.

★ ★ ★

There has been some discussion of the possibility of changing the laws so that foreigners being investigated abroad risk having their accounts revealed by Switzerland. This would help Swiss authorities investigating Swiss citizens elsewhere. But no quick decision is expected.

It is far from easy to open a numbered account.

The very minimum requirement demanded by some of the the smaller banks is the equivalent of $25,000. But the bigger banks probably would not open one for less than $100,000.

No interest is paid on the accounts, and many banks have a small handling charge, although this differs from bank to bank.

The numbered accounts system began during World War II to give people being persecuted by the Nazis a chance to hide their money to prevent its confiscation.

Some people claim that leading Nazis took advantage of the system as well. This is always denied by Switzerland and its banks. There has never been evidence to prove or disprove the charge.

★ ★ ★

Several Latin America politicians are believed to have put away millions in the accounts. Cuban strongman Fulgencio Batista and ex-Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron are always mentioned.

Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo is known to have done so because for years his heirs have been fighting over the money — $800 million.

3 Teens Held

DETROIT (UPI) — Three 16-year-old boys are being held by juvenile court authorities in Detroit in the attempted purse-snatching and beating of Mamie Bledsoe, 67, the mother of Recorder's Court Judge Geraldine B. Ford. Mrs. Bledsoe suffered bruises but declined hospital treatment. A fourth youth is being sought by police.

Mound Dated at 800 B. C.

Pyramid New World's Oldest?

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — University of California anthropologists have uncovered what may be the oldest pyramid in the New World.

Dr. Robert F. Heizer, professor of anthropology, said carbon-dating techniques indicate the pyramid was built about 800 B.C. by farmers in tropical southeastern Mexico.

★ ★ ★

The structure, shaped somewhat like an inverted gelatin mold with at least 10 regularly alternating valleys and ridges running symmetrically down the slopes, is unlike any other pyramid in America.

Heizer and his colleagues, together with graduate students and Mexican workers, discovered the significance of the giant clay mound located on the island of La Venta.

AGRICULTURAL FERTILITY

Located near the coastal plains of the Tonala River, La Venta has been known to scientists for more than 30 years for its agricultural fertility religion.

Over the years, students and scholars have unearthed colosal stone heads, jade offerings, altars and other aritifacts.

★ ★ ★

But until the latest expedition's findings about the size, shape and age of the pyramid, no one fully appreciated the skill, artistry and energy of the grain farmers who flourished on the plain.

Although much smaller than the great rectangular pyramids of other Mexican cultures, the Olmec circular clay mound is 100 feet tall and 420 feet in diameter.

Mrs. Knox, a drill press operator at GMC Truck & Coach Division, was a member of Order of Eastern Star, Joseph C. Bird Chapter, Clarkston.

Surviving are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. George Johnston of Orlando, Fla., and Mrs. Dale Gulliver of Saginaw; two sons, Lloyd H. of Waterford Township and Harry G. of Pontiac; a sister, Mrs. Clyde Liskey of Waterford Township; and seven grandchildren.

Mrs. Emmanuel Napliotis

Mrs. Emannuel (Panagiota) Napliotis, 84, of 300 S. Tilden died this morning. Arrangements are pending at Voorhees-Siple Funeral Home.

She was a member of St. George Greek Orthodox Church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Louis Stamas of Pontiac; a son, James of Chicago, Ill.; two grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; a brother, John Sousanis of Pontiac; and a sister.

The family suggests any memorial tributes be made to the building fund of St. George Greek Church.

Peter Russelvan

Service for Peter Russelvan, 57, of 152 W. Lawrence was to be 11 a.m. today at the Huntoon Funeral Home.

Mr. Russelvan, a roofer, died last Thursday.

Surviving is a half-brother.

Area Man Charged in One-Car Crash

A 22-year-old Waterford Township man was charged with being drunk and disorderly last night after the car he drove snapped off a utility pole and hit a stop sign.

There was no interruption to service, and repairs were made this morning, a Consumers Power official said today.

Arrested was General E. Hensley, 4091 Chenlot, who first was treated for injuries at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital and released.

He told police another car passed his on State Street near Henderson and cut back in too soon.

Hart Urges Joint U.S.-Canada Push for Clean Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., urged Tuesday that the U. S.-Canadian Joint Commission move promptly to stop pollution in waters common to both nations.

Only a concerted basinwide approach, he said, would clean up three rivers on the Canian-Michigan border. The rivers are the St. Mary's, the St. Clair and the Detroit.

Hart said U. S. action to abate pollution in the three rivers could be completely lost without similar action on the Canadian side.

Bribery Trial Is Adjourned

The Circuit Court trial of four men accused of bribery in a Royal Oak Township grand jury case was adjourned yesterday until March 17 by Judge Frederick C. Ziem.

An improperly prepared legal document was responsible for the delay.

★ ★ ★

The defendants in the case are former Royal Oak Township Trustee Marshall Taylor; Tatum Eason, chairman of the township's poverty program when the indictments against them were issued in June 1966; and two officers of the Atlas Sand Co., Carmen Jacoboni and Angelo Delesanto, both of Detroit.

Former Township Supervisor Edward Kennedy pleaded guilty last week to accepting a bribe, and is expected to testify as a state's witness when the trial resumes.

★ ★ ★

Jacoboni and Delesanto are accused of paying four township officials $2,650 in return of favors.

Detroit Seeks Explanation for Firms' Loss

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit's Common Council Tuesday decided to call the city's chief business promoter to explain why he couldn't prevent the move of S.S. Kresge and other firms from Detroit.

Kresge last week announced its decision to move its corporate headquarters to suburban Troy.

Councilman Mel Ravitz said he intends to question Thomas F. Ashcraft, coordinator for the Mayor's Committee for industrial and commercial development, on the exodus of large firms from the city.

★ ★ ★

Ravitz said he was particularly upset over the Kresge move —which he said transplants 1,500 employees—and moves involving Massey-Ferguson, Hy Grade, Kerr and Federal-Mogul employees totaling about 1,000.

Supervisors' Chief Public Works Head

Charles B. Edwards Jr., chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, has been elected chairman of the county's board of public works for a one-year term.

He replaces Delos Hamlin, who was elected to serve as secretary for one year.

★ ★ ★

Alexander C. Perinoff is the new vice chairman and Helen Achenbach continues as deputy secretary.

George N. Grba and Hamlin were named to three-year terms on the board by the supervisors last week. Grba replaces Homer Case, who became ineligible for membership when he no longer served on the county board of supervisors as of Jan. 1.

★ ★ ★

Daniel Barry, drain commissioner, is automatically a member of the board.

A vacancy still remains to be filled on the board. Howard Powers became ineligible by not continuing as a county supervisor. His term lasts another two years. No one has been named yet to complete it.

Blaze Damages Waterford Home

A Waterford Township home sustained damage estimated at $4,000 when a fire broke out in a bedroom closet yesterday.

The owner of the home at 1149 Holbrook was identified by firemen as Bobelle Hardenburg. Firemen said that no one was home when the fire started.

An open can of paint thinner was found in the closet, according to firemen. Damage was estimated by firemen at $2,500 to the home and $1,500 to the contents.

Police Action

Pontiac police officers and Oakland County sheriff's deputies investigated 81 reported incidents and made eight arrests the past 24 hours.

A breakdown of causes for police action:

- Loitering—1
- Traffic offenses—10
- Annoying phone calls—2
- Property damage accidents—20
- Larcenies—15
- Auto thefts—3
- Disorderly persons—8
- Burglaries—5

Radicals Protest at Trial in City of 2 in Pop Group

A recently formed radical group, the White Panthers, turned out in force with peace signs and clenched fists yesterday for the trial of pop-group manager John Sinclair in downtown Pontiac yesterday.

Sinclair, 27, and Fred smith, 20, were to be tried in Circuit Court at 1 Lafayette on charges of assaulting a police officer last July in a nightclub in Leonard. The trial was postponed without date because Sinclair's attorney is ill.

★ ★ ★

Smith, lead guitarist of the MC5, a rock group, and Sinclair, the group's manager, were supported in large part by member of the Ann Arbor commune where they live.

Several of their supporters wore White Panther badges and carried banners. One leader said, "White Panther is an assault on the American culture by any means necessary."

3 Youths Rob Tavern of $240

Three teen-agers took $240 in a holdup at a Pontiac tavern early this morning. The robbery was announced when one youth reportedly pulled a gun when asked for proof of his age and said "This is proof enough."

★ ★ ★

Four people were in the Auburn Bar, 378 Auburn, when the holdup occurred, including the night barmaid, Betty Covington, 40, of 212 S. East Boulevard.

★ ★ ★

She told police the trio came in and went into the men's room. When the three came out and asked for a drink she asked to see their proof.

★ ★ ★

One of the youths then ran out of the bar, while a second pulled a pistol and the third took the money from the cash register, according to the barmaid.

★ ★ ★

She said the two youths both left by the front door and headed south on Shirley.

★ ★ ★

Witnesses described the two as Negroes about 5 feet 11, with slim builds and in their late teens.

★ ★ ★

The gunman wore green pants and a maroon-and-gray sweater and had busy hair and a moustache, they said. The youth who grabbed the money wore a short leather jacket, black hat and had bushy hair.

Ex-LBJ Aide Gets Post on D.C. Paper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul R. Ignatius, secretary of the Navy in the Johnson administration, has been named president of the Washington Post, only morning newspaper in the nation's capital.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Frederick S. Beebe, chairman of the board, and Katherine Graham, president of the Washington Post Co.

Ignatius, 48, who left the Pentagon Monday with the change in administrations, also becomes executive vice president of the Washington Post Co., a director and a member of its executive committee.

Besides the newspaper, the Washington Post Co., owns Newsweek Magazine, Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., and other interests.

ASSUMES TITLE

Mrs. Graham, the announcement said, assumes the title of publisher of the Post.

Ignatius, who will assume his new job March 1, was born in Los Angeles. He was named secretary of the Navy in 1967 after six years in various defense posts, including under secretary and assistant secretary of the Army and assistant secretary of defense.

He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Southern California and a Navy carrier veteran of World War II.

Opening lead—♥7

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

It is mighty hard to get an absolute top score in a continent-wide game but we think that East-West's plus 500 on hand seven will come close to doing the job.

East and West were playing the Landy convention in which the two club overcall of an opening no-trump shows both majors. We don't approve of Easts' two-club call. He only held four spades and he was woefully lacking in high cards.

★ ★ ★

Connecticut bridge teacher Sally Johnson, who sat West, was not happy being asked to bid a major but she responded with two spades without histrionics to imply that she didn't really have a spade suit.

As a matter of fact, two spades would not be a very bad contract and she might even have made it but South got into the bidding with a three-diamond call.

★ ★ ★

This was Sally's cup of tea and she doubled. East looked over his collection of nothing and finally decided to pass and hope that Sally could set three diamonds all by herself. After all, he saw no future in taking out the double.

Sally had an easy opening lead, the seven of hearts. South let this ride to his king, then played a diamond. Sally ducked and North was in with the king.

★ ★ ★

He played a club next, whereupon Sally took her ace and led a spade. South finessed dummy's jack and East collected a trick with his king.

He promptly led a heart which Sally ruffed for the third defensive trick. Since she still held three good trumps, South was down two.

A—Bid four spades. Your partner is trying for a slam. You have more than you have shown and can afford to cue bid the ace of spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to four no-trump. What do you do now?

Astrological Forecast

SYDNEY OMARR
For Thursday

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mate or partner may appear extravagant. Take hold of reins. Direct affairs without being arrogant. Take charge! Your cycle is high. Your judgment apt to be correct. Be independent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get boost which helps break roadblock. There remain certain limitations. But outlook brightens. You continue with concern over family harmony. Yet, recent adjustment is promising.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your business income needs attention. Study ARIES message. Don't be fooled by one who appears to know all answers. Key is your own perception. See persons, situations as they actually exist.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be sensitive to needs, suggestions of parent or one in authority. Necessary that you prove good intentions. Otherwise, room at top becomes narrow — you are squeezed. Understand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good lunar aspect today coincides with favorable news from a distance. You receive communication, call — your desires get a lift. Some of your own writings, views get excellent reception.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Where tax, estate affairs are concerned — be conservative. You have some definite ideas. But today it is wise to let associates express views in complete manner. Wait. Absorb. Gain strength.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Review alliances. Be sure you are with the people who represent your viewpoint. Follow through. Rely upon past experience. Don't buy "pig in poke." Be confident — loyal to principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People who depend upon you make known their needs. Element of confusion is obvious. Be versatile. You no longer are afraid. Unknown becomes bright with light. Step forward with confidence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cultivate hobby, creative activities. You can break through restrictions. Now is time to seek change — plan to travel and welcome variety. You have luck when it comes to speculating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Practical affairs dominate. Surprise in financial area highlights day. Promotion or business opportunity is indicated. Study available information. Be familiar with regulations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be gracious host. Welcome visitors. Realize neighbor or relative wants to confide problem. If sympathetic — you gain. Stress family harmony. Cement relationships.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Priority should be given income potential. Be perceptive. Read between the lines — study fine print. Element of deception exists. Find out the WHY of events. Then act accordingly.

★ ★ ★

IF THURSDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you possess intellectual curiosity. You are attractive to opposite sex. Your charm radiates — but not everyone understands your goal, motives. Some restrictions are in effect — but, with persistence, you overcome them.

★ ★ ★

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for ARIES, TAURUS, GEMINI. Special word to SCORPIO: one who doubted you now is confident of your ability.

New Automated Techniques Take to the Trees

AP Wirephoto

TREE SNIPPER—Mounted ahead of a tractor is the latest in tree-felling equipment, a pair of hydraulically powered scissors, which has replaced the ax and crosscut saw in American forest operations. It can handle trees up to 18 inches in diameter and fell them in exactly the spot desired.

L'ANSE (AP) — Grandpa never would believe it, but the day of the ax and crosscut saw is long gone.

And Dad might have a hard time believing that revolutionary gadget of a few years back, the chain saw, may be nearing its end as a timber-harvesting tool.

* * *

Automation has gone to the woods.

Modern woodsmen are snipping off trees with scissors—kind of like Mama cutting flowers for the vase.

EASY OPERATIONS

Gigantic, mobile and virtually automatic machines can handle a whole tree stem, de-limbing, de-barking, cutting it into log lengths and loading it in one continuous operation.

There also are mobile machines for converting trees at their stump sites into chips used as paper - mill feed. These also de-bark and automatically fling chips into a special tractor-trailer van for direct transport to mill.

* * *

Virtually all trucks now used in log hauling have hydraulic forks which permit a driver to load and unload without ever touching a log. Some trucks have three - axle drives and pull trailers of equal tonnage.

Most woodland vehicles now will traverse mud and snow so deep a man scarcely could make his way through it afoot.

MICHIGAN PRODUCER

Much of this modern day machinery is made in Michigan. Pettibone Michigan Corp. of Baraga, Gafner Automotive & Machinery Inc. of Escanaba and Morbark Industries Inc. of Winn are among major manufacturers.

Lynn Sandberg, L'Anse forest manager for the Mead Corp., estimates that with ax and mules, Grandpa could harvest a cord of wood a day.

* * *

Portable power saws upped an individual's capacity to two to three cords a day; hydraulic loaders boosted it to four cords, and snippers and slashers have raised it to nine cords a day.

Incidentally, it takes a stack of logs 4 x 4 x 8 feet—128 cubic feet—to make a cord.

SELECTIVE CHOPPER

The modern forest harvests selectively, taking only what trees are ready and reseeding for a perpetual supply.

* * *

Mead is among practitioners of selective cutting on its 238,000 Upper Peninsula acres. So is Copper Range Corp., which recently opened a new woodworking complex at Houghton, and other major Upper Peninsula land owners.

* * *

Modern, go - anywhere harvesting machinery is permitting woodsmen to do much more work per year. But a problem is getting in as much as 10 months a year. Winter is an ideal time for harvesting, frozen ground giving excellent support to heavy equipment. But during springtime thaws the woodlands must be abandoned, and rain-made washouts often complicate transportation.

* * *

A problem which the modern-day logger has and one about which grandpa had little worry is capital investment.

DEAR 'SCISSORS'

A pair of hydraulic-powered scissors, which will snip off soft woods up to 18 inches in diameter and take down frozen hardwoods up to 14 inches, represent an investment of something like $5,000.

* * *

They have another advantage in addition to being faster than a saw, they permit the operator to drop the tree in exactly the location he wishes for easier, quicker pickup by the skipper, which can drag three, four or more trunks out simultaneously.

* * *

If you are going into chip-making for the paper industry and wish to cut 12 normal operations to five, you'll likely want a "Chiparvester" from Morbark Industries, an item in the $100,000 range. But it will produce enough chips daily to make 45 tons of paper.

* * *

A Pettibone skipper, with attachments, may cost as much as $15,000; a slasher debarker, saw and automatic loader, $40,000.

* * *

A complete trucking rig, with hydraulic loader and trailer, runs up to approximately $42,000. The driver gets 75 cents a cord, but he can carry up to 20 cords a trip on private roads and load a railroad car on each of the four trips he'll likely be able to make daily. Such a four-load day would net him $60.

Horsing Around Foaled First Example of Circus

LONDON (UPI) — Philip Astley left the 15 Light Horse cavalry division in 1767 with no money but two important assets — a horse and his skill as a horseman.

Within a year he had parlayed those possessions into wealth and fame and, almost in passing, had given the world the first example of what it now knows as the circus — an entertainment as universal as television is now.

* * *

Astley's first horse was a gift from Gen. Elliott, later Lord Heathfield, in recognition of his bravery and distinguished service in the cavalry.

With this presentation horse and another bought at the Smithfield market he first set up in business in fields at Halfpenny Patch near what is now London's Waterloo Station.

TRICKS IN CIRCLE

The acrobatic Astley soon discovered one important fact: he could attract and entertain larger corwds — and hence collect more money — if he performed his equestrian tricks while his horse cantered in a circle.

After his initial success Astley decided to open a more permanent place of exhibition. In another section of London he rented a large piece of land on which he built the first sawdust ring.

From then on Astley's success was assured. From contemporary accounts, Astley's show was not much like the Circus of the 20th century.

It consisted only of equestrian and musical performances designed to astonish rather than amuse.

Astley's fame spread to the continent and he opened a Circus in Paris—on the site of the present Cirque d'Hiver—and another in Dublin.

The great days of the Circus came in the latter half of the 19th century, notably with the "Grestest Show on Earth" of Barnum and Bailey but also with the spectacular shows produced at the London Hippodrome and the theater of the same name in Paris.

The Circus today is a dying art form, killed by high costs and by other entertainment media.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By John Carter

Of all the sports events ever held in America, which one drew the most requests for tickets? . . . It was the Notre Dame - Army football game of 1946 . . . More than 1-MILLION ticket requests were received for that game to set the all-time record.

* * *

What's the farthest a man can throw a football? . . . There's no official record but most experts say that under game conditions the farthest a pro quarterback can throw the ball in the air is about 70 yards . . . But in practice sessions, without any linemen charging and with plenty of time to get set, some passers in football history such as Jack Kemp and Kenny Washington have been reported as being able to throw more than 80 yards . . . And some players say quarterback Rudy Bukich once threw a ball 100 yards in the air.

* * *

Did you ever stop to think that the sport with the strangest name in the world is our sport of football . . . A football is carried and thrown much more often during a game than it is ever kicked . . . On three out of every four plays, on the average, there is no foot applied to the football . . . Football got its name in the last century when it more closely resembled soccer, and even though football changed over the years, its name has not.

* * *

I bet you didn't know . . . in spite of all the big ads hawking cheap tires — a basic truth shines through — they're a poor buy for today's crowded high speed highways. We won't drive them on our cars and won't recommend them to you.

Flint Visitors Hand Huskies Second Loss

By FLETCHER SPEARS

The handwriting was on the wall and coach Dick Hall of Pontiac Northern knew it.

"I'm worried about this one," said the usually optimistic Hall as the PNH squad warmed up for its game against Flint Northwestern. "We're flat."

And so it went. The visiting Flint quintet grabbed a big early lead and then held off PNH in the final moments of a tense contest to post a 73-70 victory last night.

CAME CLOSE

Despite their sag at the onset, the Huskies, now with a 5-2 record, almost pulled this one out.

★ ★ ★

Northern trailed at halftime, 40-28, but it looked like a PNH win when the Huskies moved from a 57-53 deficit to take a 59-57 lead with 6:14 left.

TRIGGERS SURGE

Triggering that surge was forward Charles Moncrief who bagged two buckets with Ed Williams netting the go-ahead basket. But the spurt ended moments later when Moncrief, who scored 17 points and picked up 10 rebounds, left with five personal fouls at the 5:28 mark.

★ ★ ★

Still, the outlook was good with 3:00 remaining and PNH leading, 68-65. But two baskets by senior guard Bob Chipman, who led all scorers with 26 markers, plus a two-bagger by Mike Roland gave Northwestern a 71-68 lead with 53 seconds left.

SLOWS GAME

After Joe Bradley of PNH cut the deficit to one point, 71-70. Chipman slowed the game and the Huskies were forced into a foul at the 44-second mark.

★ ★ ★

Chipman missed, but Flint gained the rebound and ran off 31 more seconds before PNH fouled the sharp-shooting guard again. This time Chipman didn't miss. He made both on a one-and-one situation to ice the game. For the evening, Chipman canned 12 of the 14 shots at the charity line.

REVIVES HOPES

The triumph revived hopes of Northwestern followers, who have watched the squad drop close decisions to Ypsilanti (top ranked Class A team) and River Rouge (top ranked Class B team).

★ ★ ★

"I think it was just a matter of getting over the hump," said coach Al Gricius. "We're putting it together now."

LATE SAG

And about those losses to Ypsilanti and River Rouge. "We were close to both late in the game but ran into foul trouble. Part of it is just lack of experience."

★ ★ ★

The victory raised Northwestern's record to 3-6. The team visits the area again Feb. 1 to take on Rochester's Falcons.

TOP PNH SCORERS

Helping Moncrief in the scoring column were Ernie Crawford (15), Ed Williams (12) and Bradley (11).

★ ★ ★

Roland finished with 17 as backup to Chipman while teammate Harold Walsh added 16.

DOMINATE BOARDS

The Wildcats dominated the backboards early in the game and wound up with a 52-34 edge for the evening. From a shooting standpoint, PNH made 34 of 69, while the 'Cats managed 26 of 69.

★ ★ ★

The difference came at the free throw line. Over-all, Flint made 21 of 28 shots, while the Huskies managed 6 of 11.

PNH ran into foul problems early in the game and Flint made the most of it with some accurate shooting. Sixteen of the 'Cats points in the first half came at the charity stripe. Moncrief had picked up his third foul midway in the second period.

MAKE MOVE

After leads of 2-1 and 4-2, PNH trailed until Moncrief's basket at 2:35 boosted the Huskies into a 49-47 lead. The surge started earlier in the third when the Huskies, trailing 42-28, pushed in 10 points in a row.

The Huskies, unbeaten in Inter-Lakes League play at 4-0, entertain conference foe Southfield Lathrup Friday evening.

Deer Starvation Threat Increases

LANSING (UPI) —Like most other animals of the forest, the deer requires plenty of natural vegetation to stay alive in the cold winter months.

But unlike the squirrel or the bear, he doesn't store food to get him through. He counts on seedlings, shrubbery and other foliage being there in time of need.

★ ★ ★

So when it snows heavily, like it has been this winter in Michigan's rugged northland, the deer faces death by starvation because of an inability to roam through drifts in search of food.

The state Natural Resources Department said Tuesday thousands of deer may die this winter in the northern Lower Peninsula and Upper Peninsula unless food supplies are airlifted and snowmobiled into record snowfall areas to help the stranded animals.

The result could be poor hunting next fall.

CRITICAL SITUATION

"As many as 50,000 to 75,000 deer could starve to death," said Dave Arnold, big game biologist for the state. "It's a real critical situation."

Conservation officials hope to save some of the trapped deer by dropping bales of hay from light aircraft and shipping feed grains overland by snowmobile into the hardest-hit areas.

★ ★ ★

Bulldozers will be sent into the woods to cut down trees for the deer to feed on. Crews will hand-cut vegetation.

Even the federal government has been asked to help by releasing stored grains.

FAWNS HARD HIT

"Undoubtedly, we'll lose some deer to starvation in spite of every effort — perhaps we'll lose a lot of them," said department director Ralph A. MacMullan. "Almost certainly part of next spring's fawn crop will be lost."

The last massive deer kill occurred in Michigan's northern herd range due to winter conditions was 1956 when 74,000 animals perished.

There are about 500,000 deer in the range, considered one of the best hunting spots on the North American continent. Arnold said they are presently feeding on about 10 per cent of the range area.

Lakers' Ski Units Defeat Andover

West Bloomfield's boys narrowly squeaked by a determined Bloomfield Hills Andover ski unit Tuesday afternoon in a prep league ski race at Mt. Holly.

The highly regarded Laker boys captured four of the top six places in gaining a 1.8 seconds victory over Andover.

The West Bloomfield girls handily downed their Baroness counterparts, 121.9-159.2, as April Welch, Cindy Oldenburg and Marti Stevens of the winners placed one-two-three.

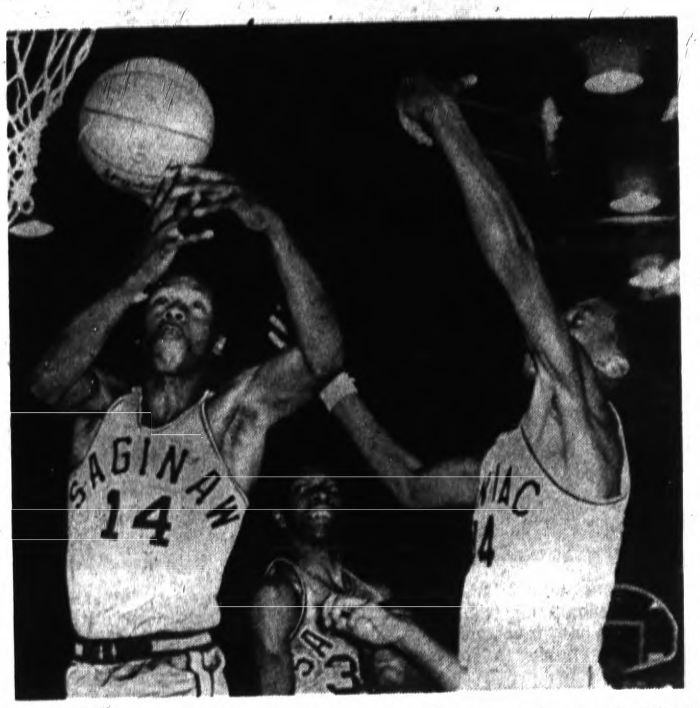

★ ★ ★

Andover's Scott McLean captured the boys' combined time top spot with a :29.6 effort, just nipping Rick Stanker of the Lakers by two-tenths of a second.

Kim Woodruff of West Bloomfield beat out Andover's Rich Reininger for third place by one-half second, and the Lakers placed Alan Musser and Jeff Swarbrick fifth and sixth.

ELUDES TROJAN — The basketball slips past the grasping hands of Saginaw's Leonard Reed (14) after Pontiac Central's Campy Russell deflected it back toward the Chiefs' basket early in the third quarter last night. Saginaw's Matt Robinson is in the background.

Pontiac Press Photos by Ed Vanderworp

'CATCH ME IF YOU CAN' — Elusive guard Ed Roberson (right) of Saginaw seems to be teasing his Pontiac Central pursuers Tuesday night with his ball control antics. Clayton Burch (10) and Jerry Ratliff are chasing Roberson during this first half action when the visiting Trojans frequently did more dribbling than shooting. At one point in the opening quarter Saginaw drew a warning about stalling from referee Casey Lapata. PCH overcame the delaying action for a 42-34 victory.

Saginaw Tries Slowdown, but PCH Perseveres

By JERE CRAIG

There's not much chance of "controlling" the Chiefs of Pontiac Central when they're on a hot streak.

Saginaw's Trojans, who handled the PCH quintet convincingly twice last season, found they could slow down this year's edition last night but they couldn't stop it.

The surging Chiefs overcame Saginaw's surprisingly deliberate attack to record their seventh straight conquest, 42-34.

They now await tonight's Flint Central-Flint Northern result to see if their streak will put them atop the Saginaw Valley Conference standings. PCH is 6-1 in the circuit, while Flint Central stands 5-0. Flint Northern is 4-1.

Bay City Handy broke into the SVC win column with a 55-49 triumph over winless Flint Southwestern, while Midland was a 79-61 winner at Bay City Central in the other games.

Saginaw, off to one of its worst starts in many seasons, led Central only at 1-0. Now 2-5, the Trojans ran a deliberate offense that didn't net them a field goal until 2:10 remained in the first period.

They needed another six minutes before they got their next basket, but PCH was only ahead at the time, 41-7. The Chiefs — after setting a school scoring record with 98 points at Bay City last Friday, found themselves ahead, 14-9 at the half.

UPSWING

The visiting Trojans had only three field goals in the first half and doubled their total in the third quarter.

But Central picked up steam, too. Following their 5 of 17 shooting in the opening half, the Chiefs zeroed in on 4 of 8 attempts in the third period and pulled to a 25-15 margin at the buzzer.

The Trojans then had to speed up in an effort to gain ground but never came closer than six points. It was 28-16 for the winners before a streak of three baskets made it 28-22 at the 5:47 mark of the fourth period.

With 3:29 remaining the Chiefs held a 34-24 edge and Saginaw managed a free throw and field goal in the next half minute. But the homesters then spurted for three straight baskets.

Their 40-27 advantage was the biggest of the game and put the decision out of Saginaw's reach.

STRONG UP FRONT

The PCH front line of Monte Herring, Jerry Ratliff and Campy Russell took over all the scoring in the final half except for a field goal by guard Anthony Styles in the third quarter.

Ratliff also pulled down all but one of his game-high 11 rebounds in the last half. He hit 5 of 7 field goal tries — several coming deep from the left corner — and Russell hit all nine of his points in the final half.

They offset an inspired closing effort by junior guard Ed Roberson, Saginaw's returning speedster from last year's title team. He hit five baskets in the last period to finish with 14 points.

PCH was led by Ratliff's 15 points. However, for the first time this season the Chiefs failed to put at least three players in double figures. Ratliff hit on 7 of 12 tries from the field.

★ ★ ★

Neither team shot well. Central hit only 16 of 44 tries for its lowest point total since its 1963 district tournament loss to Pontiac Northern. During the 1959-60 campaign, PCH scored only 41 points in losing to Saginaw Arthur Hill.

Saginaw, who had a slight rebounding edge on the winners, shot 33 per cent — making 14 of 42 tries. It also made less than 50 per cent at the foulline.

Turnovers were important in the outcome, although there wasn't an abundance of them due to Saginaw's tactics. PCH turned the ball over without a shot 11 times, while the Trojans had 14 errors.

RESERVES SPARKLE

The fans found plenty of excitement in the reserve contest. Pontiac's junior varsity pulled out a 97-95 victory in overtime as Mike Arnold drove for a layup with one second to go.

Big John Ray of the PCH reserves forced the overtime with a rebound basket at the buzzer for a 91-91 tie. He finished with 24 points and teammate Bill Glover had 35. PCH is 4-5.

Saginaw, now 5-2, was led by Sam Williams' 41 points. The 97 points set a new PCH jayvee record. They had 94 Friday at Bay City Handy.

In Big Ten Play 'M' Falls to Wildcats

CHICAGO (AP) — Northwestern came out of the doldrums and warmed up for its meeting with top-ranked UCLA Friday night by scoring a 100-85 victory over Michigan in a Big Ten basketball game Tuesday night.

The victory broke a three-game losing streak for the Wildcats who still retain hopes for the Big Ten championship.

★ ★ ★

Jim Sarno, playing with an injured knee, led the Wildcats with 26 points but scoring honors went to Michigan's Rudy Tomjanovich with 27.

It was the only Big Ten game of the night and left both teams with 2-3 records in the conference.

PULLED AWAY

Northwestern broke ahead of a see-saw first half to take a 45-43 lead. Early in the second half, the Wildcats sped to a 68-60 advantage and never again trailed although Michigan came within four points at 85-81 in the late stages.

Northwestern will face UCLA in part of a Chicago Stadium doubleheader Friday night while Loyola takes on Marquette. Illinois faces Notre Dame Saturday night while UCLA takes on Loyola.

★ ★ ★

In between the UCLA meetings, Ohio State will take on Cornell at Cleveland Friday night.

The Western Open, previously announced, will be June 5-8 at Midlothian, Ill. Country Club.

Baldwin in 8th Victory

BALDWIN (AP) — Sam Henderson hit 26 points and four other teammates scored in double figures as Baldwin defeated Freesoil, 85-71, in a high school basketball game Tuesday night.

Baldwin now has an 8-0 record, Freesoil 4-4.

NHL West Camp Not Complaining Over Tie Contest

MONTREAL (AP)—They say getting a tie is like kissing your sister—nice, but not very exciting. But Scotty Bowman, coach of the National Hockey League's West Division All-Stars, wasn't complaining about his team's 3-3 deadlock against the power-laden East in the 22nd annual All-Star game Tuesday night.

★ ★ ★

That's because the West wasn't supposed to get a victory or a tie in this game. Bowman's team was made up of the cream of the expansionist division, who in real life are the castoffs of the older East Division.

★ ★ ★

But the West scrambled all night long, led for most of the game, and finally gained the tie on a goal by Minnesota's Claude Larose in the final three minutes of play.

"The tie was good for hockey in general, and certainly good for the teams in our division," said Bowman, coach of the St. Louis Blues. "We got good performances from a lot of players."

EIGHT BLUES

Most of them—until Minnesota's line of Larose, Danny Grant and Danny O'Shea combined for the tying goal—were Bowman's own Blues. He had eight of them in the West lineup.

The first two West goals were strictly St. Louis productions. Red Berenson's backhander got the expansionists off in front five minutes into the opening period with Noel Picard and Doug Harvey, Berenson's teammates with the Blues, assisting.

★ ★ ★

Frank Mahovlich of Detroit tied the score with the first of his two goals but Bowman's Blues struck again in the second period when Picard and Berenson sent Jimmy Roberts in alone against Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers, who had taken over for starter Ed Giacomin of New York. Roberts caught the upper right-hand corner for a 2-1 West lead.

Southfield Beats Back Bears' Bid

Free throw accuracy in the fourth quarter brought Southfield from behind Tuesday night and the Blue Jays repulsed Berkley's bid to tie them in the Southeastern Michigan cage race, 76-73.

In a nonleague outing, Royal Oak Kimball regained its scoring power and outlasted Warren Mott, 77-69, for its seventh win in eight starts.

★ ★ ★

Visiting Southfield trailed Berkley after each of the first three quarters, down by 53-46 with one period remaining. The Bears (1-4) needed the victory to climb even with Southfield at 2-3.

Instead the Blue Jays stand 3-2 today and only a half game behind coleaders Kimball and Ferndale, each of whom has only lost once in four SEMA starts.

CHARITY TOSSES

Southfield pulled out the win by making 14 of 18 free throws in the fourth quarter and outgunning the Bears, 30-20. Three of the home team fouled out.

Roger Ovink led the Blue Jays' charge by hitting 20 of his 22 points in the final half. Dave Chalmers also tallied 22 and retrieved 16 rebounds for the winners (8-3 over-all).

Jack Benning of Berkley led the sharpshooters with 27.

★ ★ ★

Kimball shot past Mott in the third quarter and widened its lead in the last eight minutes. Five of the winners finished in twin figures.

The Knights — who only scored 45 points while losing its only game Friday — upped their season scoring average to nearly 74 p.p.g. with five players in double figures and a 32-28 edge in buckets.

Guard Fred Shellnut led the way with 18 points. Jay Brown hit 12 and grabbed 14 rebounds. Steve Hebold had 11 of each. Mott's scoring was led by Tim Poplowski, their football All-State tackle, who posted 20.

Talkative Ol' Case Hasn't Lost Touch

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — The doctor gave strict orders. The news conference was to last 15 minutes. No more.

Thirty minutes went by and the old boy still was going strong. It took hospital attaches a little more than oral persuasion to end it and get him out of the room.

★ ★ ★

Casey Stengel, it may be reported today, is back in excellent health.

He also was back in his handsome home in Glendale.

The switchboard at Glendale Memorial Hospital and its mail room can rest easier.

INTENSIVE CARE

Stengel, who belies his 78 years, underwent recent surgery for closure of a perforated ulcer. While never in serious condition, he was placed in the intensive care ward because of his age. This was a galling situation.

Nurses insisted he appear at this news gathering in gown and robe. Casey argued. He wanted to don street clothes.

★ ★ ★

"People will get the idea I'm sick if I go down there in my nightgown," said Casey. The nurses won out.

Night shirt or whatever, Casey erased any doubts as to his physical and verbal shape.

STENGELESE ROLLS

"The Mets never had a Hall of Fame player until I got in but Seaver is a fine pitcher which if he hasn't had a winning season yet he will have this year, meaning he'll win more than he loses, and Hodges was a great first baseman who could move his foot quick off the bag and he's a good teacher for our young ball players ... and those New York Mets, terrific." Get the idea?

"Return to the dead baseball? Well, if I was managin' which I did for many years it would depend on the type of ball club I had and the condition of the playin' field like the wet up in San Francisco and it was hard at Dodger Stadium ..."

Casey is back in midseason form and the season hasn't even started.

Wings' Big M Scores Twice in Tie Game

Bernie Parent of Philadelphia, who had replaced St. Louis' Glenn Hall in the West goal for the second period, shut-out against Bobby Hull, Gordie Howe, Phil Esposito and the other old division stars.

Then Jacques Plante of the Blues took over in goal for the final period with the West hanging on tenaciously to the one-goal edge.

★ ★ ★

But Mahovlich's second goal of the night and another by Bob Nevin of New York turned the game around and gave the East the lead for the first time.

"The only time I enjoyed the game," said Toe Blake, who returned from retirement to coach the East stars, "was when we led 3-2."

Ski Matches End in Draw

Kettering and Rochester traded slim decisions on the ski slopes of Mt. Holly yesterday.

The boys of Kettering upped their record in league competition to 2-0 by edging Rochester with a combined time of 175.1 to 175.6. The Rochester girls won, 106.8 to 115.2.

Gary Willis of Rochester was first in the boys division with a clocking of 32.4 Teammate Dan Snyder was third. Kettering's Gary Moyer (33.7) was second and Hank Longo (36.2) fourth.

Wendy Willis (32.4) and Cheryl Luther (34.4) were one-two for Rochester in the girls class. Sue Riley, Nancy Stoppert and Sue Sayers took third, fourth and fifth for Kettering.

The wife of Terry Sawchuk, Detroit Red Wings backup goaltender, has been granted temporary support payments for their seven children after filing for divorce in Oakland County.

Anchor Bay, Rockets on Top; Almont Victor

Southern Thumb League basketball has taken on a frantic look this season as no one team to date has been able to take charge in the tight title battle.

Anchor Bay bounced back after its first loss last Friday to upend Capac, 71-68, last night and knock the Chiefs out of a three-way tie for the lead.

New Haven ran its winning streak to seven in a row with an 88-59 victory over Memphis and joins the Tars atop the standings at 6-1. Capac is 5-2.

★ ★ ★

Armada, who won its first four league games, lost its third in a row to a suddenly improved Richmond quintet. The Tigers' 70-55 loss leaves them in fourth place and temporarily out of the running.

Almont climbed to 3-4 by trimming Dryden, 93-75, in the Raiders' best scoring outburst of the season. It is their fifth straight hoop conquest of the arch-rival Cardinals.

CLOSE START

At New Baltimore, Host Anchor Bay and Capac swapped baskets in the opening quarter with the visitors holding a 21-20 edge at the buzzer despite 10 points by guard Jerry Genso of the Tars.

A change in their zone defense helped the winners slow down the Capac attack in the next two periods and take a 48-43 lead into the final quarter.

Husky pivotman Jerry Martin, who grabbed 20 rebounds for Anchor Bay, scored 12 of his 24 points in the last quarter to offset a 13-point spree by the Chiefs' Jim Seidell who finished with 21 markers.

Genso tallied 19 for Anchor Bay, while Capac's Brian Shull posted 17.

FAST TAKEOFF

Richmond, winning its second game after five Thumb League defeats in a row, burst into a 33-16 first half advantage. Scott Scofield hit 10 of his 14 points for the Blue Devils in the early going.

He also grabbed 20 rebounds in the game. Scofield had scoring help from John Hicks who had 17 points. Two other Richmond players were in twin figures.

All five New Haven starters were in double figures as Eli Sims topped the list with 20 and Roy Lee had 19.

★ ★ ★

At Almont, the Bacholzky twins put defensive pressure on Dryden and also combined for 29 points. John hit 12 of his 18 points in the first half.

He, Carmen Alampi and twin brother Frank scored 22 of the 27 points when the Raiders took a 19-point lead in the first eight minutes. Almont had 12 field goals to Dryden's 3 in the opening quarter.

The winless Cardinals only managed five baskets in the next session and the host team—sparked by Art Currey and Roger Hunt — added 10 more buckets in a 24-point effort that gave it a 51-23 lead at the intermission.

Chief Tankers Down Saginaw

Pontiac Central swimmers picked up six firsts last night in a balanced team effort to knock off Saginaw's Trojans, 55-50.

★ ★ ★

Ed Chovanec (50 freestyle), Jeff Bisanz (100 freestyle), John Preston (400 freestyle) and Mark Sharpe (100 breaststroke) picked up individual wins for the Chiefs and the squad won both relay events.

★ ★ ★

Coach Jerry Beckner had some praise for sophomore Rhys Parker, who placed third in the 200-yard individual medley and second in the breaststroke.

Central's next meet is a home outing against Flint Southwestern Jan. 28.

CAZZIE INJURED — New York Knicks scoring ace Cazzie Russell buries his face in his trainer's shoulder as he is carried off the court at New York's Madison Square Garden last night with a broken ankle. Russell was injured late in a National Basketball Association game with the Seattle Sonics when he collided with Seattle's Joe Kennedy. Seattle trainer Jack Curran is at left and New York trainer Danny Whelan is at right. New York won 113-106.

Knicks Lose Russell With Broken Ankle

By the Associated Press

Baltimore and Los Angeles easily padded their division leads, but the New York Knicks established themselves as the hottest team in the National Basketball Association—and the hurtingest.

The Knicks made it 17 victories in 19 outings with a 113-106 decision over the less than super Seattle SuperSonics, but the triumph was a painful one. The Knicks lost scoring star Cazzie Russell, their second casualty in the last five games.

Russell suffered a broken ankle at the end of the third period in a scramble for a loose ball and will be in a cast from six to eight weeks. Phil Jackson, a reserve forward, was lost last week to a back injury.

Baltimore, meanwhile, breezed past the host Chicago Bulls 116-93 for a four-game lead in the Eastern Division, and visiting Los Angeles crushed Milwaukee 122-105 for a three-game bulge in the West as second-place Atlanta lost at San Diego 124-113.

Cincinnati rallied for a 113-107 overtime triumph over San Francisco on the West Coast in the other game.

In the only American Basketball Association game Minnesota dropped the New York Nets 113-104 in Duluth, Minn.

Elvin Hayes scored eight straight points in a 14-point San Diego run midway through the final period that made the Hawks the second hottest team in the NBA as they lost for only the third time in 21 games. Hayes finished with 27 points.

★ ★ ★

Cincinnati, playing the final three periods minus Oscar Robertson, out with a leg injury, were eight points behind with two minutes left before John Tresvant climaxed a furious rally with a free throw that tied the game at 100 with 24 seconds left. Tom Van Arsdale scored six of his 28 points in the overtime for the victory. Rudy LaRusso finished with 37 for the Warriors.

Holly, Lapeer Tumble Again in Tight Ones

Holly and Lapeer, two sagging Flint Metro League members, ventured outside the circuit Tuesday night but once again found basketball a frustrating game.

Both suffered close defeats that extended their current losing streaks to five straight. Lapeer bowed to Port Huron Northern, 83-81; and Holly lost to Flint Bendle, 74-71.

★ ★ ★

The Panthers and Broncos each have lost four games this season by five points or less.

At Port Huron, the Huskies surged to a 45-29 lead at the intermission, then held off a Lapeer comeback that produced 50 points in the last half but never brought it even with Northern (6-3).

Holly led Bendle at the half, 40-36, but was outscored 21-11 in the third quarter. Down 63-51 early in the final period, the Broncos (2-8) fought back to a 65-61 deficit but failed to come any closer until the final minute of action.

Grafton Moore's 26 points and 16 by Jeff Leece led Holly. Bendle, bouncing back for its seventh win after its lone loss last week, had three players in double figures and amassed a 33-28 advantage in field goals.

Football Aide at OSU Takes Miami Post

By the Associated Press

Miami University of Ohio reached out for one of its own Tuesday and plucked Bill Mallory off the Ohio State staff to return to his alma mater as head football coach.

★ ★ ★

Mallory, 33, has been an assistant to Woody Hayes at Ohio State for three years and previously was an assistant coach at Bowling Green and Yale.

★ ★ ★

He succeeds Glenn "Bo" Schembechler, who resigned recently to take the head coaching job at the University of Michigan.

Miami has not had a losing season since 1942 and Mallory said, "I'm going to try to do everything I can to continue that tradition."

BUCKNELL-BOUND

In other college coaching changes Tuesday, Fred Prender left Juniata, where he had been head coach and athletic director, to assume the coaching reins at Bucknell. He succeeds Carroll Huntress, who took an assistant's job at Kentucky.

★ ★ ★

Prender, 37, spent four years as backfield coach at Bucknell before going to Juniata in 1963.

★ ★ ★

Seven head coaching jobs remain open—Cincinnati, Holy Cross, Louisville, Pitt, Princeton, Southern Mississippi and Wichita State. Ten others have been filled since the end of the 1968 season.

Sub Goalie Sparking Wings

DETROIT (AP) — It took the patience of Job and a few "plagues" to finally give Roy Edwards a real chance with the Detroit Red Wings, and now the 31-year-old goalie is like manna from Heaven to the once lifeless team.

Last year, at the age of 30, Edwards was a National Hockey League rookie with Detroit. But in the last two years he has been up and down many times between the Motor City and the Wings' Fort Worth farm club.

★ ★ ★

"My family was getting tired of moving around and I think that if I had to make one or two more moves I might have decided to retire," said the handsome, dark-haired netminder.

But the Wings were plagued with goalie problems. Last season first-string goaltender Roger Crozier surprised the hockey world by retiring, only to return after a brief absence. This season Crozier was hit with the flu and backup man Terry Sawchuck suffered a broken finger. Even when the two were healthy, the Wings couldn't manage to put together a string of victories.

MIRED IN CELLAR

Detroit had nothing to lose. It was mired in last place of the Eastern Division of the NHL and chances of gaining a playoff berth seemed more remote as time went by. So why not use Edwards?

Red Wing management took the "chance" and Edwards responded with nine victories and three ties in 14 games. The Wings, meanwhile, are tied for Chicago in fourth place with 49 points and a win in Detroit against Boston Thursday night could put the team in third spot.

Edwards came to the Wings early last season after registering four shutouts during a nine-game unbeaten string at Fort Worth of the Central Hockey League. He finished the season with Detroit and played in 41 games.

★ ★ ★

The Red Wings facts book refers to Edwards' goalie work thus: "While his style isn't as spectacular as Crozier's, the 5-foot-8, 165-pound Edwards has shown he can turn in steady, dependable netminding."

SHIPPED OUT

But despite the reliability Detroit found him expendable early this year after having acquired veteran Sawchuck from the Los Angeles Kings.

"I didn't know whether Detroit would carry three goaltenders or not," he said.

★ ★ ★

"I felt I had a pretty good training camp," he added. "Things went pretty good there and I felt I deserved to play in the first part of the season, at least. If I had played bad I wouldn't have minded going to the minor leagues."

★ ★ ★

But that's what happened. Edwards was sent to Fort Worth. But Dec. 11 after Sawchuck broke a finger Edwards was recalled and turned in two sparkling performances as a replacement for flu-bothered Crozier.

After his 5-2 win over Minnesota Dec. 15 he said he still didn't expect to remain in Detroit.

"I've got to talk to Sid (general manager Sid Abel) yet but he said I was going back tomorrow," he said at the time.

However, Edwards didn't go back and indications are no one wants to send him.

Two Tankers Spark Lahser

Rick Amann and Kevin Trimmer won two events apiece last night in leading Bloomfield Hills Lahser to a 61-35 swimming victory over Southfield Lathrup.

Trimmer won the 200 (2:06.9) and 400-yard freestyle (4:28.2) events, setting a pool and varsity mark in the latter, while Amann checked in with a victory in the 200-yard individual medley (2:27.5) and set a pool and varsity mark of 54.5 seconds in taking the 100-yard freestyle. The win upped Lahser's record to 5-4.

Surtax Hurts Park Development

Boost, Setback in Pictured Rocks Area

By KEN LOWE
Marquette Mining Journal Writer

MUNISING (AP) — Congress has given Michigan's only national lakeshore area a boost and a boot.

★ ★ ★

Separate actions by Congress last year resulted in both a windfall for the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore and a setback.

On one hand, an amendment to the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act brought an unexpected $1,957,000 for purchasing private land within the 65,568-acre area stretching for 35 miles along the Lake Superior shore from Munising to Grand Marais.

The will advance the park land acquisition program by a full year and a half.

DELAYING ACTION

But another action by Congress led to a delay of at least two years in the lakeshore development program. This was the enactment of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

In exchange for passage of the tax bill, the executive branch of government absorbed a $6 billion cut in governmental expenditures. And one of the agencies hardest hit by the slash in budget was the National Park Service, which administers the Pictured Rocks Lakeshore area.

Hugh P. Beattie, superintendent of the Pictured Rocks Lakeshore, said it was anticipated over a year ago that moderate construction programs would be undertaken in 1969.

Because of the economy measures, however, no construction funds were made available for 1969 and only limited funds for construction planning will be available in 1970.

CUSTODIAL CARE

"We are anticipating no significant appropriations for about three years," Beattie said. "Meanwhile, we'll just be holding the line—attempting minimum maintenance and custodial care of existing facilities the Park Service will acquire within the lakeshore area from state, county, city, township and private owners."

These facilities include state forest campgrounds at Little Beaver Lake and Au Sable Point, picnic areas, access sites and short scenic trails to Miners Falls and Au Sable Falls. The Park Service also will attempt to maintain public beach areas at Sand Point and Au Sable Lake.

★ ★ ★

The Pictured Rocks Lakeshore Bill was signed by President Johnson Oct. 15, 1966. It set aside one of the most scenic areas on the Lake Superior shore for public recreation.

Included within its boundaries are the Pictured Rocks—a rainbow of sandstone unfurled along 15 miles of Lake Superior—and the famed Grand Sable Dunes. The interior is generously sprinkled with picturesque lakes, striking waterfalls and vast stands of maple, birch, pine and hemlock.

Judge Makes Decision

Father Loses Ring Showdown

By DON VOGEL

"I'm proud that Eric is out there, but I would be fibbing if I didn't say I wish it was me."

Hal Wainwright was watching the terrier group judging Sunday at the Pontiac Kennel Club show from the sidelines. He had been put there by his son.

★ ★ ★

Eric, 13, and his wire fox terrier Halcar Sweet N' Sassy whipped Hal not once, but twice in the breed competition.

"I wasn't too concerned when he beat me in winners bitch because I figured my open dog (Halcar Jack Frost) would win best of breed," Hal related. "You know what, he beat me." It was Eric's first big win.

BETTER LOOKING

William Ackland, who judged the breed, commented: "I don't know who looked better, the father or son, but I know who had the better looking dog."

★ ★ ★

Although Sweet N' Sassy didn't place in the group judging, the Wainwrights returned to their home at Allenton — near Capac — with the best of breed ribbon and a couple of placements in junior showmanship.

★ ★ ★

Jean, 11, was second in graduate novice and David, 10, placed third in Novice A. Both showed wire fox terriers. Anne, 8, is the other member of the family.

And where was Mrs. (Carol) Wainwright while all this was going on. She was grooming the dogs and watching with interest from the sidelines.

NOT UPSETTING

"We are a very competitive family," she said. "However, things don't get upset because one member does better than another."

The Wainwrights formerly lived in Romeo where Carol directed classes in dog training for the Southern Michigan Obedience Training Club. They moved to Allenton last July.

★ ★ ★

"The Romeo village ordinance said we had too many dogs," she explained, "and one person in the neighborhood complained. It wasn't a case of the dogs barking or being a nuisance by running around the neighborhood.

"Most of our neighbors were interest in how the dogs would do at a show and would call us when we returned home. But there was one complainer."

Two of the five dogs had to go. "But nobody wanted to get rid of one," said Carol. "So we moved."

KENNEL OWNERS

The Wainwrights purchased a kennel and renamed it Halcar. There are eight terriers and one Afghan hound plus a steady stream of canine boarders.

Other best in breed winners from the area included Ch. Waldmann's Valdis, a German wirehaired pointer owned by Charles Lowe of Clarkston; Alice F. Swiderski's parti-colored cocker spaniel, Rexpointe Frostee Dutchess, from Troy; Cardinal Aramis De Montbleu, a Great Pyrenees, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Duncan G. Wright of Walled Lake; and Judy Russell's Siberian huskie, Ch. Karnovanda's Ivan Grozyni, from Troy.

★ ★ ★

Also taking breed honors was a Dalmation, Ch. Waggin' Tails' Sir Oliver, owned by Herbert F. Cromwell of Birmingham. This dog placed fourth in the non-sporting group.

Pontiac Press Photo

ONE HAD TO LOSE — When the judging gets down to two entries in a dog show, one has to lose. At Sunday's Pontiac Kennel Club event, the final verdict in wire fox terrier competition said Hal Wainwright had to congratulate son Eric, 13, who is holding the winner, Halcar Sweet N' Sassy.

Rare Visitor Draws Interest

West Coast Thrush at Proud Lake

Something went wrong with the little bird's built-in navigation system . . . much to the delight of bird watchers living in this area.

A veried thrush has strayed 2,500 miles off course and is currently wintering at the Proud Lake recreation area. It is a normal habitant of the West Coast.

★ ★ ★

Audubon people and other interested bird watchers are going to the area to observe the thrush.

FISHING REPORT

Fishing interest in the area is on the upswing because of the mild weather. But the action has been inconsistent.

★ ★ ★

Union Lake is about the only one producing bluegills. Some crappies are being caught at Kent and Cass lakes and a few pike are showing up on Pontiac Lake.

★ ★ ★

Perch fishing is fair on Lake St. Clair. Fish ranging from seven to eight inches are being caught on wigglers and minnows in six feet of water at Anchor and Conger bays. Pike spearing is good about a mile from shore, but the ice is tricky.

★ ★ ★

The Department of Natural Resources reports that commercial fishermen have been picking up a few coho salmon since early this month in Lake Huron.

State Men Study Korean Pheasants

Two game men for the Department of Natural Resources are in Missouri gaining insight on Korean pheasants, their living requirements and ways and means of trying to establish them in this state.

Missouri is expected to provide Michigan with up to 1,000 Korean pheasant eggs in each of the next two years for experimental game bird introductions.

★ ★ ★

Upon returning to Michigan, game men Victor Janson and Keith Heezen will outline their findings to the department's wildlife officials for a program of test releases.

Exact size of those releases will depend on how many eggs are available and how many birds can be reared from them. Present plans, subject to what game men learn in Missouri, call for stocking the birds in parts of Huron and Sanilac counties where there is sufficient pheasant cover but few of Michigan's own ringnecks.

★ ★ ★

This falls in line with the department's thinking that small-scale releases of Korean pheasants should be made in areas where ringneck numbers are low to prevent problems of inter-breeding which could cloud results of the experimental program.

Ferris '5' Slips By

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Ferris State withstood a late 14-point splurge by Pat Ryan to defeat Aquinas College 90-86 in a basketball game Tuesday night.

Scholle Named Chairman

August Scholle of Royal Oak is the new chairman of the Michigan Natural Resources Commission.

SCHOLLE

Scholle, president of the Michigan AFL-CIO Council, succeeds Harry H. Whiteley of Rogers City, who chaired the commission for the past year.

The labor leader has been a member of the current five-man Commission since December, 1965. He was elected chairman at the last meeting and his term runs through Dec. 31, 1970. He previously served on the former seven-member commission on an interim basis from April, 1961, to June, 1962.

Scholle is a member or former member of a large number of organizations, including the State Economic Expansion Commission, the Upper Midwest Research and Development Council and the Committee on Michigan's Economic Future.

Solunar Tables

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's SOLUNAR TABLES. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

'Show Dog' Class Planned in Pontiac Area

A class in "how to show a dog at a bench show" is being arranged in the Pontiac area.

The sponsoring Oakland 4-H Canine Club will hold a demonstration in conformation Tuesday, Feb. 4, at 8:30 p.m. in the block building on the 4-H Fairgrounds.

★ ★ ★

The eighth-week course will begin the following week. A health certificate for the dog is required. Registrations will be taken after the demonstration and interested persons are requested to leave their dogs home that night.

★ ★ ★

Additional information is available from the 4-H office or by phoning FE 5-7296.

Pistons Sending Forward to Farm

DETROIT (AP) — For the second time in his two-year National Basketball Association career the Detroit Pistons have farmed out forward Sonny Dove.

★ ★ ★

Dove was sent Tuesday to Scranton, Pa., in the Eastern League after having appeared only briefly in 29 of Detroit's 47 games. The Pistons sent Dove to Pontiac of the North American League for part of last season.

Film Is Entitled 'Marooned'

Space Epic Is a Real Chiller

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Supposing something on the Apollo 8 mission had gone awry and astronauts Anders, Borman and Lovell hadn't been able to return to earth.

THOMAS

That chilling possibility is the subject of a new movie called "Marooned," produced by M. J. Frankovich and directed by John Sturges, an expert in adventure ("The Great Escape," "Ice Station Zebra"). The scope of the Columbia film is so immense that it is being shot on MGM stages, the biggest in Hollywood.

★ ★ ★

Sturges describes the situation:

"Three astronauts have been working in a manned space lab for about six months. Their physiological and psychological systems begin to deteriorate, so it seems prudent to return them to earth. But the routine firing to send them back fails, and they are marooned in space.

72-HOUR PERIOD

"The picture describes what happens in the 72 hours that are left for the astronauts. A rescue craft is sent to save them.

Sturges was directing a scene that seemed terrifyingly real. Actors Jim Franciscus and Gene Hackman were floating uncontrollably in their derelict space capsule, the weightless illusion provided by camera booms which they straddled out of camera range.

★ ★ ★

The third member of the space team, Richard Crenna, was missing. Sturges explained that Crenna had been zapped by the Hong Kong flu, and added darkly: "We lose him on the trip."

The trio never meet their costar, Gregory Peck, who directs the rescue operation from the ground. Nor do they have any direct contact with David Janssen, who pilots the rescue craft.

APOLLO 8 REPLICA

During the lunch break director Sturges escorted a visitor to another stage which was filled with things to delight the heart of any space nut. The place had everything from a three-foot Russian space capsule—yes, the Russians get into the act, too—to a full-size replica of the Apollo 8.

"We have full Air Force and NASA cooperation," reported Sturges. "We showed them the script, and they found it to be honest and credible. They have given us all the help we need—at no expense to the taxpayer."

★ ★ ★

The help includes films of launchings from Cape Kennedy and access to whatever equipment isn't secret. Everything has an authentic air, including the suits worn by astronauts Franciscus, Crenna and Hackman. They are completely functional, and the actors' lines are recorded by radio within the helmets. To protect the performers from roasting under the hot lights, their suits are piped with air cooled by carbon dioxide.

'Fiddler' Plays Twice at U-M Next Week

ANN ARBOR — "Fiddler on the Roof," is the second Play-of-the-Month scheduled this season by the University of Michigan Professional Theatre Program. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in Hill Auditorium.

Now in its fifth season on Broadway, "Fiddler" is based on Sholom Aleichem's short stories of Tevye, a poor dairyman with five marriageable daughters at the turn of the century in a Russian village.

★ ★ ★

Joe Cusanelli, who played the role of Tevye in New York and with the national touring company, will lead the large cast. Playing his sharp-tongued wife, Golde, will be Susan Willis.

Tickets are available through Hudson's and Grinnell's ticket agencies in Detroit.

Like Nixon, China's Mao Striving for Unity

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Communist party Charman Mao Tse-tung is striving for one of the same domestic goals set by American President Richard M. Nixon — unity.

★ ★ ★

There's a significant difference in the type of unity each is seeking. There's also a big difference in the means each is able to use to achieve it.

★ ★ ★

Nixon has stated that he wants to achieve national unity, a togetherness and common sense of purpose and direction of the diverse groups that make up the American society.

He must rely on friendly persuasion and sound policies in pursuing this elusive goal.

LEADERSHIP CORE

In Communist China, Mao is striving to unify his backers and consolidate the dictatorial hold over the world's most populous nation by a tiny core of leadership called the "proletarian headquarters."

Mao is mixing a heavy dose of coercion with persuasion in trying to achieve the unity he seeks.

★ ★ ★

Parallel to this theme of unity among the "revolutionaries," as Mao's supporters are described, is a concerted campaign to stamp out the "revisionists," the liberal elements which do not go along with Mao's hardline policies.

★ ★ ★

Mao's propaganda machine was hammering away on these dual themes — unity and repudiation — long before the end of last year. It still is going strong in the new year.

★ ★ ★

"In order to fulfill the glorious and arduous tasks of 1969," a major policy editorial on New Year's Day said, "the most fundamental thing is . . . to unify our thinking and actions. We must rally closely round the proletarian headquarters with Chairman Mao as its leader and vice chairman and defense minister Lin Piao as its deputy leader, conscientiously put into practice democratic centralism. . . ."

Trading Fairly Active

Moderate Advance by Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a moderate advance early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.31 at 931.13.

Gains extended their lead over losses to about 200 issues on the New York Stoc Exchange.

★ ★ ★

The market's action followed two days of quiet irregularity, with the trend a bit lower as Wall Street pondered the possible financial effects of the Nixon administration. The initial doubt appeared to be replaced by a little more confidence.

★ ★ ★

Motors, electronics and tobaccos were generally higher, while steels were narrowly mixed. Airlines retreated fractionally as they faced the prospects that its system of fare discounts may be abolished.

Slight losses were taken by American Airlines, Eastern, United and Pan American.

★ ★ ★

INA Corp. was far ahead on volume as it dropped more than 2. The reported bid for control of INA by Levin-Townsend Computer was withdrawn under pressure by the Securities & Exchange Commission. Levin-Townsend lost more than a point in trading on the American Stock Exchange.

British Pound Price Soaring

Value Highest Now Since Money Crisis

LONDON (AP) — The pound sterling soared on the London exchange today, reaching its highest level since the international monetary crisis last November.

Most of the buying Monday and Tuesday came from New York. Today continental exchanges followed suit.

The pound reached $2.389 Tuesday, a 26-point rise in two days, to close at $2.3886. It opened today at $2.3898 and quickly jumped to $2.391, a rise of nearly one cent since the November crisis.

Dealers had various reasons for the sudden show of strength. Some said it was a sign of returning confidence in Britain. Others noted heavy selling of sterling in New York in December and early January and said they believed American operators against sterling were now covering their short positions.

★ ★ ★

A heavy demand for spot sterling was reflected in the forward market where the pound rose sharply.

Dealers said orders to buy pounds were flowing in from all major exchanges and one added: "Sterling now seems undervalued, judging by the increasing demand."

2 State Senators Tackle Reform of Abortion Laws

LANSING (AP)—Abortion law reform — an issue that could rival state aid to nonpublic schools as one of the hottest topics of the legislative session —is expected to be introduced soon in the state Senate.

Two bills calling for liberalization of Michigan's abortion law are in the preparation stages.

One, being put together by Sen. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, chairman of a special Senate committee studying abortion law reform, would outline specific circumstances under which pregnancies could legally be terminated.

The second bill, called for by Sen. John McCauley, D-Wyandotte, would permit legal abortion if a woman and her physician felt a pregnancy would "for any reason" cause mental or physical harm.

CIRCUMSTANCES

In Michigan today, legal abortions may be performed only to save the life of the mother.

Bursley said his proposal would permit legal abortions:

- In case of rape or incest.
- When the physical or mental health of the mother is seriously involved.
- When there is reasonable evidence that a child would be born defective.

* * *

Decisions on specific cases, he said, would be made by the woman and her physician in consultation with others.

The measure is similar to one introduced two years ago by McAuley.

BARRAGE OF MAIL

That bill touched off a barrage of mail from proponents and opponents and never got out of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

This time, McCauley said, he is "taking a more puristic viewpoint.

* * *

"This should be a question strictly between the physician and the woman," he said, "so long as the abortion is performed by a licensed physician in a hospital accredited by the state.

"It's up to doctors to decide whether they perform appendectomies," he added. "They decide and they perform the operation," he said. "I think they should have the right to make that judgment in cases of abortions."

WIDE SUPPORT

McCauley admitted his proposed measure would be "tougher to get passed" than the previous bill, but said he has found wide support among constituents for liberalized abortion laws.

Bursley said his committee found, at public hearings and through surveys, that there is such citizen support for a liberalized law.

* * *

"There are a great many illegal abortions committed in Michigan each year," he said, "and there were three bungled illegal abortions last year in Washtenaw County that resulted in the death of a mother.

"By legalizing abortions under the justifiable circumstances suggested in this bill, we can probably save the lives of many mothers and prevent the heartaches attendant upon the birth of defective children."

HOPEFUL FOR DIALOGUE

Bursley said he hoped introduction of two different abortion reform bills in the Senate would "provide as much public dialogue as possible on the subject.

"This type of subject matter three or four years ago just simply was not discussed, like sex education," he said. "That took several efforts on the legislative level to get something passed."

* * *

If the measure fails in this session, he said, proponents would "fight until it does get through."

Senate President Pro Tem Thomas Schweigert, R-Petoskey, said he considered prospects for passage this year dim. "The idea is too new," he said.

* * *

Senate Minority Leader Sander Levin, D-Berkley, said passage was "possible but not probable" during the current session.

Experts Sift Radio Data in Missile Fizzle

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Experts are analyzing radio data to learn why a Poseidon missile shot off course during a test flight Tuesday.

Seventeen seconds after the 34-foot submarine weapon darted away from a land launching pad, trouble developed in the first stage, and the range safety officer flashed a radio signal that blew it apart.

Flaming pieces fell into the Atlantic Ocean about three miles offshore, and two secondary explosions spewed smoke and seawater several hundred feet into the air. A piece of the shattered rocket fell on a remote area of Cape Kennedy.

The first two test flights of the Poseidon, in August and November, were classified by the Navy as successful.

Poseidon, developed as successor to the Polaris submarine missile, will be capable of carrying up to 10 nuclear bombs in each warhead package.

Lion Breaks Loose at Red Skelton Rehearsal

Comedian Red Skelton was rehearsing a skit in Hollywood with a 550-pound performing lion when the animal's chain snapped yesterday.

SKELTON

"The trainer was yelling, 'Don't move! Don't move!' but no one heard him," said Red. "Everyone was trying to find a safe place to exit."

The lion bumped Skelton aside in a charge across the stage — to the backstage area, where he curled up quietly.

The skit — for the Red Skelton show on CBS Television — was rewritten quickly. Skelton engaged in a prizefight: with a man in a gorilla suit.

Reward of $10,000 in Murder Offered

DETROIT (AP) — A $10,000 reward, the largest yet offered under a "secret witness" program of a Detroit newspaper, has been put up after a supermarket holdup in which the manager was shot to death Friday.

* * *

The reward was offered by Borman Food Stores Inc., in the death of James Vlisides, 28.

* * *

According to the newspaper, $17,500 has been paid in seven cases, including four solved murders. Tips made through the newspaper have reportedly assisted in the solution of at least six others.

Legislature Gets Bill That Would Rewrite State Criminal Code

LANSING (AP) — A massive 252-page bill which would completely rewrite Michigan's criminal laws was introduced in the Senate Tuesday.

The measure, one of the largest ever proposed, was written by a committee of the State Bar Association and is intended chiefly for legislative study, said chief sponsor Robert Richardson, R-Saginaw.

* * *

Richardson said the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which he is chairman, "at this point hasn't endorsed one word of it. We introduced it to study it and see if we can get some public support."

Richardson also filed a 16-page committee report on a study of New York State, which revised its criminal code in 1967 and discovered several problem areas.

HEARINGS PLANNED

He added his committee would conduct hearings and studies in those and other areas before reporting out the bill, and said the measure probably could not be acted on this year unless the Legislature returns in the fall.

Problem areas uncovered in the New York study, he said, include:

- Murder. The New York law did away with distinctions among different degrees of murder, a move some New York officials now feel was a mistake. The Michigan bill would make murder punishable by from 10 years to life in prison.

* * *

- Prostitution. New York has a maximum penalty of 15 days in jail and a $250 fine and is considering an increase. The Michigan bill provides a 90-day maximum or two years' probation, with similar penalties for men who patronize prostitutes.
- Use of force by police. The Michigan bar believes existing law gives officers the right to use "deadly physical force" to halt any fleeing felon, and argues that power is too broad. The Michigan bill allows it only against a person who has himself used or attempted use of deadly force, and against any burglar, robber, rioter or insurrectionist.

POLITICAL STORM

- Sex between consenting adults and abortion. The Michigan bar committee originally recommended legalized abortion in cetrain cases and abolition of penalties for consensual sex.

But experience in both New York and Michigan suggest the political storm such proposals create may threaten to scuttle the entire bill, and liberalization of sex and abortion laws is missing from Richardson's bill.

* * *

- Minimum sentences. "This could become the most controversial part of the code," Richardson said.

The New York law sets maximum sentences for various classes of crimes and permits a judge in a particular case to set a minimum sentence up to one-third the length of the maximum. The minimum may be appealed by the defendant.

Richardson said his committee is considering a similar provision for the Michigan criminal code.

House GOP Feels Slighted

Makeup of 2 Panels Stirs Partisan Battle

LANSING (AP) — Press releases flew thick and fast Tuesday as House leaders tangled in a partisan battle over the make-up of two of the chamber's major committees.

* * *

"Grossly unfair," charged a GOP leader. "Small and narrow thinking," countered the Democratic chief.

The controversy centered around the partisan makeup of the House Appropriations and Taxation committees, announced late Monday by Democratic Speaker William Ryan of Detroit.

* * *

Ryan gave the minority GOP only four seats on the 15-member, budget-writing appropriations committee, while on the other hand increasing the bi-partisan character of the taxation committee.

COMPARISON OF RATIOS

The majority-minority ratio of both committees in the Republican-dominated 1967-68 House was 8-5. Under the 1969-70 arrangement, Democrats dominate appropriations 11-4 but have only a 7-6 edge on taxation.

* * *

Republican leaders charged the move was intended to give Democrats free rein to spend state money, while forcing the GOP to share the blame if a tax increase must be voted to pay the bill.

"It looks like big spending ahead," said Minority Leader Robert Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe. "I can only conclude that the Democrats want to spend but don't want to take the responsibility for the taxation that will be absolutely necessary — if their spending plans succeed — to achieve a balanced budget."

* * *

"As I see it," echoed Minority Floor Leader William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, "this appropriations committee is stacked to allow unlimited spending."

EYING FLOOR FIGHT

Hampton said he was considering a floor fight when the House reconvenes next Monday, hoping to lure support from dissident Democrats to overturn Ryan's committee structure.

Ryan countered with a release of his own, saying: "The Republicans' partisan and petty bickering is not in the best interest of the state."

* * *

He said that although the appropriations committee is heavily weighed in favor of Democrats, it is balanced between liberals and conservatives.

"The appropriations committee," he said, "is a better balanced combination of attitudes and ideas than any such committee ever established in the House."

* * *

Concluded Republican Hampton: "I frankly don't see how the Democrats in the House can expect much cooperation when they make appointments to committees that ignore our responsibilities to our constituents."

Concluded Democrat Ryan: "It is to be hoped that the Republicans will cease their petty partisan bickering and get down to the important problems facing the people of the state."

300 Protest Guard Troops

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — About 300 demonstrators wound their way through Wilmington's rainy streets Tuesday to protest the 10-month presence of National Guard troops. The guard was no longer there. Newly installed Gov. Russell W. Peterson removed the troops, promising to bring them back if needed.

The protest march was organized by Project Communications Network and the People Against Racism. The two groups termed Wilmington the "first military police state in the United States."

Negroes in this community of 95,000 did not participate in the march. Wilmington is 40 per cent black.

The guard was activated last April 8 by Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. to help quell racial unrest which followed the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and had patrolled predominantly Negro sections of the city since the assassination.

The watch reportedly cost the state an estimated $600,000.

58th Birthday Is Near, but the Wheelchair Isn't

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — My 58th birthday is on the horizon, and already solicitous friends are inquiring if I plan to make a down payment on a wheelchair.

BOYLE

No sir, not yet. No wheelchair — but I might consider investing in a sporty cane. A stout cane gives an appropriate air of dignity to a man who has reached the age where he acquires an authoritative touch of gray at his temples.

* * *

At 58 a fellow can use all the prestige symbols that will gain him respect, for at this time of life the best he can hope for is respectability. He no longer has the strength to win widespread admiration for the spectacular energy with which he pursues his vices and bad habits.

However I have rejected out of hand a suggestion by an acquaintance that I grow a beard. I have a pretty good idea what color it would come in—a depressing, mottled white and gray—and who wants to go around looking like a strolling, soot-stained snowstorm?

WONDERFUL?

"What's so wonderful about being 58?" a fellow in the office asked when the subject of my coming antiquity was discussed.

Well, now, that's a reasonable question and deserves a reasonable answer.

Perhaps there isn't anything truly remarkable in being 58. To a man of 80 that is mere child's play.

Offhand, I can't recall a president who was inaugurated on his 58th birthday, or anyone who wrote an immortal sonnet, knocked a home run, scored a touchdown, or built a better mousetrap on this occasion in his career.

MINOR ADJUSTMENT

Yet, in a way, it is hardly fair to derogate one's 58th birthday. If it is not a major feat, it can still be accounted a minor achievement. There were a lot of people who were 57 last year who won't make it around the next lap of the track this year.

Frankly, I think that anyone who, at any age, by any means, manages to survive another 365 days in this perilous, accident-prone universe has done something meritorious, deserving of at least passing notice if not permanent accolade.

* * *

After 50, for some reason or other, the perils of life's obstacle course seem to grow more numerous. Therefore, the accomplishing of another year of existence, which a young person takes for granted, is to an older man truly wonderful and well worth praising. To him each new birthday is a marvelous milestone.

So it is that, with no mock humility, I feel entitled to reach around, pat my own back, and say to myself with a feeling of warm congratulation and a touch of sentimentality, "Well, you've done it again, old-timer. Want to try for one more?"

STILL ONE MORE

Why not? One more, and one more after that, and still one more after that one—as long as you can make it. Life was made to be lived, and at 58 most people find, sometimes to their mild surprise, that there are many, many more things worth living for than are worth dying for. It is only the brooding young that have a very long list of things worth dying for.

* * *

Custom demands that on notable occasions one makes historic remarks. Unfortunately, at the approach of my 58th birthday, I don't feel any new wellspring of wisdom fountaining inside me. It is my theory that you don't get particularly wiser as you age. But you're pretty dumb if you don't get more grateful—and more cautious.

Psychiatric Clinics for Courts Proposed

LANSING (AP)—Rep. Warren N. Goemaere, D-Roseville, announced Tuesday he will introduce bills to create and pay for psychiatric clinics for probate, circuit and district courts.

* * *

"It is time we tempered the arbitrary and unproductive punishment now required by law with psychiatric care," he said.

The clinics would be established in counties with a population over one-half million persons.

* * *

A companion bill would permit county boards of supervisors to levy an excise tax on motels, hotels and entertainment, Goemaere said.

Two Hearings on Road Work

LANSING (AP) — Proposed federal-aid highway projects will be subject to two public hearings instead of one, State Highway Director Henrik E. Stafseth said Tuesday.

The rules provide that two hearings must be held for a new highway, to be financed partly by federal funds, which creates "a substantially different social, economic or environmental effect."

* * *

Low-density roads are exempted, said Stafseth.

WE WISH TO express our deepest appreciation for all the help and donations given to us after the fire Jan. 6. Especially the First Baptist Church of Milford for donating the parsonage to use as a home. Mr. and Mrs. James Wagner.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF our Husband, Father and Grandfather, Raymond C. Sneed who passed away January 22, 1967.
Always in our memory.
Sadly missed by His Wife Helen, Children and Grandchildren.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY of Raymond C. Sneed, who passed away Jan. 22, 1967.
Gone is the face,
We loved so dear;
Silent is the voice,
We loved to hear.
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sadly missed by Clarence, Judy, and children.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF our Father-in-law, George H. Lance, who passed away January 22, 1968.
We miss you Dad, and days are long.
It's not the same since you've been gone,
Our love for you still shines bright
We'll love you when the time is right.
Sadly missed by Denny and Bob.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF our husband and father, George H. Lance who passed away January 22, 1968.
If all the world were ours to give
We'd give it all and more
To see the face we loved so dear
Come smiling through the door.
To hear his voice, to see his smile
To sit with him and chat awhile.
So you who have your husband and dad
Cherish him with care
For you'll never know the heartache
Till you see his empty chair.
Sadly missed by his wife and four children.

HOLLY OFFICE

WASH FOR PROFIT
Own your own business where your customers do all the work. Here is a self-service laundromat which is showing a good profit now and the potential is great. The business is good, but the owner must retire due to poor health. Included in the price is the building, lot with city water and sewer and all equipment which would cost $20,000 new. The business is located in a rapidly growing area only blocks from 2 large apartment complexes and 2 trailer parks. Call today for more information on this excellent investment opportunity!

A Look at TV

Shows Slip Sermons In

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — Had William Shakespeare been around 350 years later, knocking out material for what is known as "The media," it is very probable that his line about "sermons in stones" would have rolled out of his electric typewriter as "sermons in situation comedies."

By order of the television code, the lesson that "Crime doesn't pay" is implicit in every program involving crooks and the law. There also seems to be some unwritten rule about packing a neat little lesson in everyday living in among the laughs of our people—next-door comedies.

★ ★ ★

On a single night—Tuesday—viewers learned painlessly from "Julia" that pride must never be confused with self-righteousness, and, 30 minutes later, "The Doris Day show" was a demonstration about interfering parents.

All things considered, NBC's "Julia" and its helpful hints are considerably easier to take than CBS's homilies wrapped around the person of Miss Day. For one thing, the former is a wittier, more urbane half hour which, while hardly a realistic portrait of the home and office life of a registered nurse, still has plenty of spirit and that elusive quality called charm.

TIRED STORIES

Miss Day can handle broad comedy with the best of them—she survived several undignified knocks in the seat of her tailored slacks and was thoroughly smeared with raw eggs in the most recent outing. But the series is beset by the kind of bucolic, tired stories that were predictable as far back as "The Donna Reed Show." It is further afflicted by a loud and misbegotten laugh track.

One of the great pluses of "Julia" is, of course, its forthright handling of Negro-white relationships. In the Tuesday night show, the attractive character played by Diahann Carroll encountered a touchy, militant football star obviously on the lookout for slights and putdowns. At the climax, Julia read the young man off, of course, and changed his life.

Somehow Miss Carroll's winning ways and the persuasive writing permit what could be pretty sticky stuff to come off nicely. "Julia" week in and week out, remains a bright new series that really deserved its niche among the top 20 shows.

CBS hopes to provide young audiences the same type of entertainment treats that its "Playhouse" has given adults. The network plans to start a "Children's Playhouse" with one or two specials on Saturday mornings during the 1969-70 season. The shows will consist of original scripts or adaptations of books and according the programming vice president Michael Dann, the network will spend between $200,000 and $300,000 for each production.

The network does not expect to make money on its uplift effort, but the announcement comes at a time when the Saturday morning schedules of cartoons have been under heavy critical fire.

Jack, the Night Club Cutup, Cuts Up Audience and Self

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Fat Jack E. Leonard opened at the Copacabana — in the new era without chorus girls — and I took Joey Adams, author of the smash new book, "Encyclopedia of Humor," with me to dissect Jack E.'s insult jokes.

WILSON

"No comedy is really funny unless it hurts somebody and especially today in this period of violence," Joey warned me.

And, sure enough, Jack E. got pretty personel—and the crowd adored it. "I see Paul Burke over there, it's 12 o'clock and already he's high . . . There's Dick Shawn. He's had several flops. Dick, you look like a Jewish pineapple with that hair. Folks, he's one of America's greatest unknows . . . Who's that? Yul Brynner?" (It was baldish Donald Pleasence.)

"I used to work for Howard Hughes in Vegas," Jack E. continued. "You should see his apartment. It has four area codes."

Leonard closed with a fitting tribute to Ed Sullivan: "Ed, see you at Riverside."

That's the way night club comedy seems to be today. The star cuts up the audience or himself. A guy who learned half of the jokes in Joey Adams' great gag collection book could probably become a comic. Incidentally, Joan Rivers returned to Downstairs at the Upstairs and she was having a go with the audience too.

Claiming that she was on Ed Sullivan's show and had to follow an elephant, she complained that she and the elephant had to share the same dressing room. But, she said, Ed came to the dressing room and apologized.

"Oh, that's all right," Joan said she answered — and Ed said, "I wasn't talking to you!"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Liz Taylor lies on boards in her bedroom scenes with Warren Beatty in their London picture, "The Only Game in Town" because of her spinal-disc trouble which may require another operation and a considerable rest from filming . . . Dionne Warwick, expecting a baby next month, turned down an invitation to the Inaugural.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "I remember," sighs Pic Larmour, "when a skirt 'halfway to the knees' meant from the ground up, not from the shoulders down."

EARL'S PEARLS: We'd like to see the kind of world in which Bob Hope could spend Christmas at home.

Clothier Cye Martin made up six suits for Liberace, for $2,000. "That's not much," someone pointed out, "when you consider that the price includes batteries." . . . That's earl, brother.

British Writer Sees 'Breakdown' for U.S.

LONDON (AP) — One British writer predicts that by 1972 "the American nation will be in a state of nervous collapse—somewhat like the French in May 1968 but with the illness more deep-seated and with no great white father to reestablish sanity."

Other foreign comment about America this week touched on President Nixon's intentions in controlling the nuclear arms race and on the U.S. and Soviet space programs.

★ ★ ★

Tom Stacey, writing in London's Daily Telegraph, described "symptoms of manic depressiveness" in the United States.

"The extremes of right and left are now gathering emotional force like polar opposites," Stacey continued.

"The pace is a little terrifying. The New Left, however, cannot win beyond a brief blaze of anarchy; they can never command money, never capture the massive organizational machine or the forces of order.

'NO CONVICTION'

"In the middle lies the depressiveness; the mania floods in from the extremes. In the lumpen middle there is no longer any conviction, courage, hope; no strength or direction at all. What is left of these things in the U.S. belongs to the extremes."

The Observer in London said there was good reason to believe Nixon will not lose sight of "the main problem which should occupy every American president—the inescapable necessity of trying to cooperate with Russia in controlling the nuclear arms race."

★ ★ ★

The paper said the "present tentative efforts at restraint are threatened with collapse by the prospect of a greatly accelerated arms race between the two superpowers themselves, if they both decide to undertake large-scale antimissile programs.

"Yet it is encouraging that despite Soviet-American differences in other matters, both Nixon and the Soviet leadership have shown some interest in early talks on the missile question before any fateful decisions are taken."

★ ★ ★

The Sunday Telegraph in London said while America was shooting for the moon, "the Russians have brought off the much more practical achievement of laying the foundations of a colony in space.

"It projects the contest into a new and sinister dimension turning science-fiction into reality as an element in the struggle for terrestrial power. Mr. Nixon would do well to regard the space race as matter not only of scientific advancement and prestige but of sheer survival."

Theater Group: Cautious Dare

2nd Season in Toronto Seeks Sturdy Audience

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

TORONTO — In its drive to build a sturdy audience, Theater Toronto is trying a policy of cautious daring.

"We found that a lot of people pulled back from too much novelty," says Administrative Director Raymond Wickens of box-office results during the initial season last year.

★ ★ ★

So to launch this crucial survival semester, the young company decided to flavor repertory display with classic substance that is also very ultrafashionable in theme.

Instead of going for something by the old reliable of all struggling troupes, William Shakespeare, Theater Toronto opted for the bard's noted rival, Christopher Marlowe, and "Edward II."

PAGEANT OF BOMBAST

Premiered a few nights ago, the much-neglected pageant of florid bombast neatly avoids the peril of museum stuffiness by forthrightly facing that very chic stage subject of the moment-homosexuality.

The story of a wayward 14th century English king demonstrates that even black comedy isn't new—his barons rebel not because of offbeat regal dalliance, but only because his favorites are of foreign or lowly birth.

★ ★ ★

Clifford Williams, the company's artistic director, stages the affair with low-keyed, stiffly costumed decorum—no doubt so that each spectator can accept it in accordance with his own preference for historic tableau or masked modernity.

Wickens, discussing the overall season prospects, notes that the upcoming schedule seems to be drawing the desired interest.

TAB IS SPLIT

Theater Toronto is budgeted at $450,000 for a four-play agenda through March. Of that sum, $125,000 is provided by the Federal Arts Council, $40,000 by the province, $10,000 by the city. An anticipated $60,000 deficit between total costs and these items plus box office is pledged by the board of governors.

Originally five plays were planned, but rising costs caused Wickens and Williams to revert to four plays. The others are to be Shaw's "In Good King Charles' Golden Days," Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters" and—as proof that the troupe isn't going to abandon completely the policy of exploring new works—Gunter Grass' "The Plebeians Rehearse the Uprising."

TV Station Forced off Air by 'Missiles'

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — Station WPBN-TV was knocked off the air Tuesday by a missile bombardment of its transmitter at Harrietta, about 40 miles south of here in Wexford County.

The missiles were actually icicles, and they rained down from the station's fog-shrouded tower, where new ones formed as others let loose.

★ ★ ★

The falling ice knocked out regular power lines, forcing the station to resort to auxiliary power sources late Monday. The auxiliary system, unable to withstand the continued high-voltage use, went out at 12:15 p.m. yesterday.

Falling ice also smashed microwave power discs atop the transmitter building, knocking out a relay from Traverse City studios of WPBN-TV.

★ ★ ★

The station may be back on the air Wednesday night, but officials said workmen would not be allowed in the area until the danger had subsided. The Weather Bureau forecast more thawing and fog around the transmitter site.

Emphasis on Revival of Gaelic Language Gets Their Irish Up

By DENIS O'CONNOR

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—The Irish are engaged in a lively row over how Irish they should be.

Some protest that the government is putting too much emphasis on trying to revive their ancient language in the republic.

★ ★ ★

The leading campaigner for keeping Gaelic alive to make Ireland a truly bilingual nation is New York-born President Eamon de Valera. He is running into increasing opposition.

The 82-year-old patriot, once condemned to death by the English in Ireland's fight for independence, regards the native tongue as the hallmark of Ireland as a distinct nation among the peoples of the world.

'GREAT SHAME'

"It will be a great shame for this generation if we let the Irish language die," he warns. "We should strive as earnestly now to revive the language as we strove in the past to win our freedom.

"Those who fought for the freedom we enjoy today desired that the Irish nation should live. But without the language, the nation they had in mind will not live."

★ ★ ★

Probably a majority of Irishmen, even those who know no Gaelic, go along with De Valera that the restoration of the mother tongue is a commendable ideal.

What more and more don't like is the extent of the government program to make revival of the "dead" language national policy. It's a compulsory subject in school, and all students must pass their Irish test or fail the entire examination.

MUST KNOWN GAELIC

You have to know Gaelic to get a government job, teaching post, join the army or air force. Fluency in the language helps gain promotion in state-run enterprises.

Yet English remains the everday language for the mass of the 3 million people.

★ ★ ★

Almost all the work of the law courts, the Dail (Parliament) and even the civil service is conducted through English though official documents—and street signs, too—are printed in both English and Irish.

Dublin lawyer Christopher Morris heads the Language Freedom Movement, which is waging a campaign to remove official compulsions to learn Gaelic, especially in schools.

"What economic, technical, political and cultural advantage have we to gain by replacing English with Gaelic?" he asks. Morris denies his movement is aimed at killing the language.

One exasperated Dublin housewife, Mary O'Reilly, who has five children at school, sums up the feeling of the movement:

"How can my kids learn a difficult subject like algebra if it is being taught through Irish, a language they do not really understand?

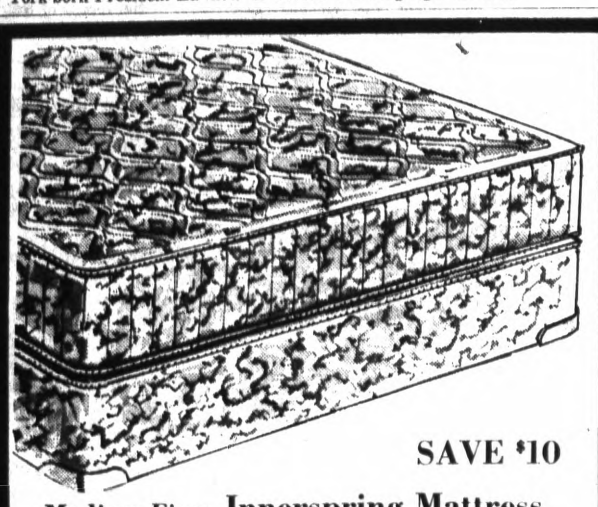

And John B. Keane, a publican-playwright from Kerry, claims: "We believe that a man can be a good Irishman without knowing the Irish language." Keane says knowledge of English gives Irish emigrants, especially to the United States, a head start over emigrants from other European countries.

The Gaelic League, which recently celebrated its 75th anniversary, estimates the country has about 700,000 fluent Irish speakers. One million others have a nodding acquaintance with the language.

EVERYDAY TONGUE

Along the remote western seaboard and on a few islands off the coast are little nests of people whose everyday tongue is Irish. This gaeltacht—Irish-speaking—area takes in the picturesque Connemara region of Galway, the Aran Islands and the Dingle Peninsula in Kerry.

POOCH FOR THE POSTMAN—Postman George Woody opened the mailbox at Huron and Saginaw yesterday and found a small puppy among the out-of-town mail. The pup had escaped from a brown paper bag bearing neither postage nor an address.

$1.5-Billion Budget Proposed for State

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's incoming and outgoing governors today jointly proposed a balanced state general fund budget of $1.5 billion which would push total state spending in fiscal 1969-70 over the $3-billion mark.

The annual budget message, signed this year by both Gov. George Romney and Lt. Gov. William Milliken, adds the spending program can be financed without higher taxes and will leave a $12.9-million treasury surplus in mid-1970.

★ ★ ★

The budget contains no recommended appropriation for aid to nonpublic schools — a $40-million proposal soon to be on the legislative agenda. Public schools would receive an $84.9-million aid increase.

The Romney-Milliken budget adds it will be necessary to spend some $23 million more than anticipated in the current fiscal year, bringing the total 1968-69 general fund budget to $1.36 billion.

$149.5-MILLION INCREASE

Thus the new budget announced today amounts to a $149.5-million increase over the projected spending total for the year ending next June 31.

General fund revenues — mostly supplied by taxes — will amount to $1,453,200,000 in the coming year, a gain of $77.7 million or 5.6 per cent, the budget message to the Legislature adds.

★ ★ ★

Democrats, who control the State House of Representatives, were thought likely to try to boost the proposed spending totals. Republicans, the majority party in the Senate, were more likely to stick close to the Romney-Milliken figure.

The treasury surplus when the current year ends in June is estimated at $70 million — third highest in state history.

EDUCATION FUNDS

Education — including public schools, colleges and universities — accounts for more than half of the new general fund spending proposal. The suggested figure is $797.4 million, some 52.8 per cent of the total.

Mental health would receive $171.5 million, or 11.4 per cent and social services welfare would be in line for $261.4 million, or 17.3 per cent.

★ ★ ★

"Through the constant pursuit of fiscal integrity and efficiency," Romney and Milliken said, "we have in this administration moved from deficits to surpluses at the same time that we have been providing greater services than ever before."

Pontiac Postman Has New 'Bag': Pup's Best Friend

By DIANNE DUROCHER

A cold-nosed canine orphan found a home yesterday as a result of a surprising set of coincidences.

When postman George Woody opened the mail pickup box located at Huron and Saginaw yesterday he found a 6-week-old puppy among the out-of-town letters.

★ ★ ★

Near the frisky puppy, who seemed delighted to see the surprised Woody, was a brown paper bag in which someone stealthily deposited him in the box sometime between 5:15 and 11:45 a.m.

Mrs. Dale Wiltse of 6265 Clarkston, Independence Township, was watching the unusual scene from her car and offered to take the puppy and provide a home for him.

★ ★ ★

With her new puppy wriggling in her arms, Mrs. Wiltse explained, "I couldn't resist taking him, I'm an animal lover from way back."

Woody collected the rest of the mail, patted the puppy's head and drove away smiling to himself.

Weather Outlook Is Foggy but Mild

Cloudy, foggy and continued mild weather, with occasional drizzle or very light rain, is forecast for the Pontiac area through tomorrow.

Temperatures are expected to reach a low of 34 to 38 tonight and climb to near 44 tomorrow.

FOG

Friday's outlook is little change with temperatures possibly turning colder by evening.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are 10 today, 20 tonight, and 30 tomorrow.

★ ★ ★

A foggy 34 was the low recording prior to 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury was near 40 at 12:30 p.m.

Huge VC Stockpile of Munitions Seized

SAIGON (AP) — American air cavalrymen leapfrogging along the Cambodian border north of Saigon by helicopter uncovered a major Vietcong supply base yesterday and, with out firing a shot, seized the second-largest munitions stockpile captured in the war, military spokesmen reported today.

The U.S. Command also announced that three more million-dollar jet fighters were shot down in South Vietnam Monday and yesterday. Two of the pilots were rescued; the third was killed.

★ ★ ★

A spokesman said the air cavalrymen pulled 30 tons of rockets, mortars, recoilless rifle shells and explosives from a complex of 30 bunkers 60 miles north-northwest of Saigon and only seven miles from the Cambodian border.

Previously, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have captured more than 600 tons of enemy weapons, ammunition and food up and down the country in the last three weeks, enough to feed 27,000 troops for three weeks and to equip 1,000 Vietcong soldiers fully.

MAJOR FACTOR

The capture of supplies and munitions northwest of Saigon is believed to have been a major factor in the failure of the Vietcong and North Vietnamese to mount a winter offensive against the South Vietnamese capital.

A spokesman said most of the ammunition found yesterday was in crates stacked up in bunkers 40 feet long, 6 feet deep and 6 feet wide. It included Chinese 107mm rockets, which weigh 50 pounds each and have a range of about five miles.

★ ★ ★

The spokesman said there were no enemy troops guarding the stockpile.

He said there could be several reasons for this — that the Vietcong hadn't distributed it quickly enough, that they took a chance that it might never be found, or that they fled when they realized they were outnumbered.

HIT ON STRIKE MISSION

The loss of the three Air Force F100 Supersabres raised to 333 the number of American planes downed in combat over the South.

One plane was hit on a strike mission yesterday near Saigon and crashed while making a landing approach outside Bien Hoa air base, 15 miles north of the capital. The pilot did not eject.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, U.S. forces tightened a cordon 65 miles south of DA Nang, trying to flush out an enemy force they have been battling for two days.

11 in Cabinet Sworn Into Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven members of President Nixon's Cabinet were sworn in today and, at one point during the 20-minute ceremony, Nixon raised his own right hand — almost forgetting he'd done that two days ago.

Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oaths individually to the 11 at an 8 a.m. nationally televised ceremony in the East Room of the White House.

★ ★ ★

Also taking the oath because they will sit in on Cabinet meetings were Budget Director Robert P. Mayo and Charles W. Yost, ambassador to the United Nations.

The 12th Cabinet appointee, Republican Gov. Walter J. Hickel of Alaska, did not participate. His nomination as secretary of the interior has hit at least a momentary snag in the Senate where some members question his devotion to the cause of conservation.

EARLY MORNING HUMOR

In brief remarks prior to the oath-taking, Nixon noted that in the past some presidents referred to their department heads as members of a kitchen cabinet, tennis cabinet or medicine ball cabinet.

Because of the hour, he said, he'll call his "a working cabinet."

★ ★ ★

When President Nixon introduced his Cabinet appointees to the nation last December, he introduced each by name —except Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans.

Nixon recalled the incident today during swearing-in ceremonies for 11 of his department heads. But again he failed to mention Stans by name, introducing him only as secretary of commerce.

After the oath was administered, a grinning Nixon sought to make amends by loudly and firmly proclaiming: "I congratulate you, Mr. Stans."

White House Still Expects Hickel OK

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

WASHINGTON—The White House says it is confident Walter J. Hickel will win Senate confirmation as interior secretary, although opponents succeeded in blocking him from joining 11 other Cabinet appointees at swearing-in ceremonies today.

Hickel was left out of the ceremonies for the 11 other appointees in the East Room of the White House because an unnamed Democrat demanded a printed record of his testimony before the Senate Interior Committee.

★ ★ ★

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said the Government Printing Office couldn't deliver the trascript until today at the earliest.

Despite pressure from fellow liberals and conservationist groups, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., gave notice today that he will vote to confirm Hickel's appointment.

Milliken Ready to Take Oath

From Out News Wires

LANSING — William Grawn Milliken prepared today to become only the fifth lieutenant governor in Michigan's 132-year history to ascent to the governor's office through a nonelective route.

He was to take the solemn 40-word oath of office making him the state's 44th governor as soon as resigning Gov. George W. Romney completed swearing-in ceremonies in Washington as U.S. Secretary of housing and urban development.

★ ★ ★

Romney officially resigned as governor shortly before 9 a.m. today.

Milliken, who describes himself as progressive Republican, wasted no time in serving the connections that have tied him tightly to Romney for so long.

CHALLENGING STATEMENT

"Although we have made great progress during the past six years, I don't think our problems are static," he declared.

"I don't think the people expect a caretaker government—and they are not going to get that kind."

AWESOME MOMENT

The oath of office was one of the most awesome moments in the 46-year-old Milliken's life and that of his state.

It officially signaled transfer of the often crushing, never ending responsibilities of the governship from Romney to Milliken, making the latter, in an instant, the head of a vast, complex, confusing state government machinery.

★ ★ ★

His stewardship ends two years hence, unless he should decide to seek and win outright election to the office in 1970.

Yale-educated Milliken is a close personal friend of Romney's.

Mayor Is Optimistic About State of City

By ED BLUNDEN

Pontiac Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. gave a glowing appraisal of the city's progress in 1968 and its future hopes in his annual State of the City message at last night's City Commission meeting.

In all aspects the mayor found positive growth, vitality and promise.

★ ★ ★

"This commission witnessed the spirit of a new Pontiac take form and grow," he said. "The people of this community . . . have suddenly gotten involved in Pontiac," Taylor said.

The mayor found encouragement from the city's financial picture, greatly improved with the city income tax which began last January, and with all the departmental functions.

MAYOR TAYLOR

He found satisfaction with public and private development and in social relationships in the community.

★ ★ ★

In examining the year, he said: "There's a new sense of awareness among the citizens of this community — a new sense of understanding of each other's problems.

Related Stories, Page A-10

"In 1967 Pontiac was one of many cities across this nation that suffered the turmoil of riot. In 1968 the citizens went to the voting booth and passed a fair-housing law designed to end discriminatination in the sale or rental of housing.

★ ★ ★

"Our people — white, black or Mexican-American — are beginning to learn the meaning of involvement.

"I'm confident that the victories achieved in human understanding in 1968, will continue into this new year. And I'm certain that the spirit of Pontiac will nurture and grow in 1969 as more and more of our citizens begin to take an active role in determining the future course of our community," Taylor said.

'ON THE MOVE'

He saw in the accomplishments of the year evidence that "Pontiac is on the move," and cited the activity of such organizations as Harambee, a black development corporation, and the Pontiac Area Planning Council, an advisory group.

In his item-by-item review, Taylor pointed to $2.7 million brought into the city's revenue by the city income tax as especially progressive.

'BOON TO SERVICES'

He said it has allowed the city to maintain and expand all its services. He particularly cited the police force to which 31 new men were added during

Downtown Huron Parking Is Banned

Parking will be prohibited by Monday on Huron Street in downtown Pontiac, it was ruled by the City Commission last night.

Joseph E. Neipling, director of public works and services, said signs would be corrected by Monday, but that lane striping and related work would come later.

★ ★ ★

The commission was acting on directives by the State Highway Department. Huron (M59) is under state jurisdiction.

The parking ban will be on Huron between east and west Wide Track except the north side of Huron between Mill and Perry where the street is wider. Parking also will be removed on Pine north of Huron, across from the parking lots.

S. Viet Premier Predicts Paris Peace Talk Failure

PARIS (UPI) — Premier Tran Van Huong of South Vietnam today predicted the peace talks opening here Saturday will fail.

Huong, talking to newsmen in Saigon, was asked if he believed the negotiations by South and North Vietnam, the United States and the Vietcong would succeed. "No, not at all," he replied.

In Paris, American diplomats led by Henry Cabot Lodge expressed hope the talks will plunge quickly into the major issues of war and peace without lengthy debate over such procedural matters as the conference agenda.

The Americans announced yesterday that the full negotiations would open Saturday, following 10 months of intensive U.S. efforts here.

AGENDA ISSUE

U.S. officials said they and the South Vietnamese have agreed to try to avoid any fight with the communists over the agenda.

The North Vietnamese and the Vietcong last week said they would demand that the first topic of discussion the withdrawal of U.S. forces from south Vietnman.

But the Communist diplomats also said they were eager to open discussion of major issues on a Vietnam settlement quickly.

Sources said the United States and South Vietnam want to have the conference adopt a flexible schedule of discussion rather than restrict the diplomats to a point-by-point agenda that could delay progress.

U.S. officials announced agreement on a Saturday opening date for the talks following a conference yesterday between Lodge, the new American delegation leader, and Phan Dang Lam, head of the South Vietnamese delegation.

DAILY MEETINGS

Lodge and Lam were to meet daily until Saturday to discuss allied strategy for the opening of the negotiations.

Judge Dismisses Suits Contesting Route of I-696

Three lawsuits contesting the route of I-696 through Pleasant Ridge and Lathrup Village were dismissed yesterday by Oakland County Circuit Judge Arthur E. Moore.

★ ★ ★

Moore ruled that there was nothing unconstitutional about an arbitration panel's selection of a route through the two south Oakland communities.

★ ★ ★

The two communities and a Lathrup home owners' group had contended that the arbitration board, established at an extra session of the Legislature in 1967, deprived the municipalities of reasonable control of its highways and streets.

★ ★ ★

Moore, in his 35-page opinion, disagreed, saying "No proof of unreasonable or unnecessary vacating or altering of local streets or denial of reasonable local control has been shown."

CHALLENGE EXPECTED

The decision of Moore is expected to be challenged in the State Supreme Court.

The arbitration board was named by Gov. Romney to counteract years of disagreement over the proposed route through several communities in south Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

The route selected by the arbitration board would generally follow 10 Mile Road in Pleasant Ridge and 11 Mile Road in Lathrup.

Whie having no immediate bearing on the situation, Moore did suggest that the State Legislature take note of the possibility of awarding damages to affected home owners.

★ ★ ★

Only when condemnation actions are brought will such questions of damage be involved, said Moore.

VW Sales Backed Up

Dock Strike Stalls Imports

NEW YORK (AP) — Enough "beetles" to produce a mammoth traffic jam waited aboard 11 strike-idled ships in East and Gulf coast ports yesterday as efforts continued to end a strike of 75,000 longshoremen in its 33rd day.

The West German Volkswagen Co. said about 16,500 of its compact export cars were stranded aboard the vessels and undeliverable to dealers in the eastern and central sections of the nation.

★ ★ ★

Volkswagen, as the largest exporter of cars to the United States, with about one-third of its 1,175,000 units shipped to this country, said the strike had turned back the clock to when buyers had to wait up to 10 months for delivery. A spokesman said customer impatience could cost the firm the loss of numerous sales.

Other foreign auto manufacturers who normally supply the remainder of the 900,000 yearly imports were in similar straits. These included, in order of import volume, Opel, Toyota and Datsun, Volvo, Fiat, Mercedes-Benz, English Ford and Renault.

'You Can Live With Cancer'

DETROIT (AP) — Cancer can be lived with, a University of Minnesota professor told an audience of doctors yesterday in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

Basing his talk primarily on experience with one woman patient, Dr. B. J. Kennedy told a cancer conference of the American College of Physicians and Surgeons "I want people to know that you can live with cancer, just as you may live with diabetes or tuberculosis or arthritis."

★ ★ ★

Dr. Kennedy said too many persons feel cancer and death are synonymous, that since there are so few definite cures, many don't even bother seeing their doctors when they think they may have the disease.

But Dr. Kennedy told of one patient whom he first treated 16 years ago. Now 77, she was initally treated for breast cancer, and then received X-ray treatment for bone cancer a year after that.

SPINAL CORD

Dr. Kennedy said he first saw her two years after the bone treatments, when cancer began to affect her spinal cord.

Then cancer reappeared and her pituitary gland was removed. "That was 13 years ago," Dr. Kennedy said, "and she's been free of cancer ever since."

★ ★ ★

Dr. Kennedy added that while "living with" cancer obviously isn't pleasant, "If you can't cure your disease, you still may certainly live with it very well."

Feared Dead in California

10 Lost in Flooded Creek

From Our News Wires

SANTA PAULA, Calif. — Ten persons fleeing a torrential rainstorm in rugged mountain country were swept from a rescue bulldozer "one by one" when it stalled in a swollen creek.

Authorities said all of them, including six children, were presumed drowned.

★ ★ ★

The Ventura County sheriff's office first learned of the tragedy late yesterday from the sole survivor who was picked up by a helicopter near the raging Sespe Creek in the Los Padres National Forest.

The dead included six youths from Canoga Park, Calif., and a man who took them for an outing in the forest last Friday just before a series of violent rainstorms hit the state.

3 SEARCHERS LOST

The three other victims were members of a search party which was bringing them out of the lonely area Monday night about 35 miles north of here.

The survivor was Scott Eckersley, 28, a housefather at Live Oak School in the Ojai Valley, who met the boys at a campground on Saturday.

★ ★ ★

As the drenching rain continued in California, an official state of emergency was proclaimed.

For the first time in history, the U.S. Weather Bureau said, every one of its California stations reported rain yesterday.

As flood-stricken cities called for aid, Gov. Ronald Reagan signed a declaration of emergency enabling the state to release funds and seek federal money.

Major concern centered on Sacramento and San Joaquin Valley rivers where levee breaks could flood rich farmlands. High flows were reported in the Sacramento, Cosumnes and Stanislaus rivers.

Sherman Island, which 200 residents left Monday night when a levee broke, was about two-thirds under water.

Mayor Gives Glowing Report on State of City

the year. He also noted the department's improved salaries.

Also discussed were:

● Capital Improvements: Almost seven miles of city streets improved at a cost of $800,000; — 3½ miles of storm and sanitary sewers added; four miles of water mains; 229 new street lights; and over 900 trees planted.

★ ★ ★

● Parking: Malls on Saginaw downtown brought a reported upswing in business. In addition, parking at Pontiac General Hospital has been increased from 293 spaces to 600 and 100 more are planned.

● Computers: New installations have resulted in better financial and budgetary control.

● Homes: More than 1,000 new single and multiple-dwelling-unit permits were issued.

★ ★ ★

● Hospitals: An emergency and physical therapy addition was opened and 20 units of intern housing begun at Pontiac General and at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital a major expansion got under way.

Looking to the future, Mayor Taylor saw greater possibilities. He expressed hopes for the Pontiac Plan for development of the 27 acres of vacant urban renewal land downtown. The plan calls for a development of a multiple-use center on which $100 million is expected to be spent for construction.

COULD GET STARTED

The city adopted the plan early this year and actual construction could be well under way in 1969.

He also cited the impact expected from the beginning of construction this spring of the $4-million Human Resources Center southeast of the city municipal buildings. The board of education facility will replace several elementary schools and provide other community educational facilities.

★ ★ ★

Taylor also pointed out that construction of the Michigan College of Osteopathic Medicine got under way in 1968 and by the fall of this year students are expected to be admitted.

He also cited the completion of the $4-million Consumers Power building on Featherstone.

Hopes still remain strong for a huge, domed stadium to be built on the east (I-75 and M59) to house the Detroit professional sports teams, Taylor indicated.

★ ★ ★

From all reports the teams still intend to move and the Pontiac site is still in the running.

The city has appointed a Stadium Authority with the power to go ahead with negotiations and construction.

DR. THEODORE B. PAULI

Pontiac Doctor Dies at Age 64

Dr. Theodore B. Pauli, 64, Pontiac physician and surgeon for nearly 30 years, died yesterday.

Requiem Mass will be 11 a.m. tomorrow in St. Benedict Catholic Church with burial in Mount Hope Cemetery by Voorhees-Siple Funeral Home.

★ ★ ★

The family suggests any memorials be made to the Michigan Heart Association.

Surviving are his wife, the former Josephine Devereaux of Saginaw; a daughter, Mrs. John Landry of Birmingham; a son, Dr. Francis J. Pauli of Ann Arbor; and a granddaughter.

OTHER SURVIVORS

Also surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Arthur Leh of Royal Oak and Mary Pauli, Mrs. Ardel Pierce and Mrs. William O'Reilly, all of Pontiac.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Dr. Pauli received his medical degree from Loyola University School of Medicine, Chicago, in 1930.

After residences in St. Joseph Mercy and Pontiac General hospitals, he started his practice in Pontiac at the Riker Building July 15, 1934.

Later he served as chief of staff at Pontiac General Hospital and was active on the staff of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. He was a member of St. Benedict's Catholic Church.

CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Dr. Pauli had served as chairman of the board of directors of Oakland County Catholic Social Services and as treasurer of Oakland County Medical Society.

During World War II, he was the chief medical officer on the U.S. Army hospital ship, Seminole.

★ ★ ★

While the ship was in service in the Mediterranean, Dr. Pauli often encountered the late Ernie Pyle, the renowned American war correspondent.

Czech Locksmith 3rd to Set Himself Afire

PRAGUE (AP)—Prague Radio said that a 23-year-old locksmith set himself afire during the night in the town of Brno, at a square where a memorial to Jan Palach had been erected.

It was the third attempt by a Czech at suicide by fire within a week, but Palach's is the only one so far for which a political motive has been established.

The locksmith, Miroslav Malinka, suffered second-degree burns over about 12 per cent of his body and is in good condition, the broadcast said.

Palach, a 21-year-old student, set himself afire in Prague last Thursday to protest the reversal of the country's reform program as a result of the Soviet occupation. He died Sunday.

School-Issue Vote Slated for March 24

BIRMINGHAM—School district voters will decide two ballot questions at a special millage election set for March 24, by the school board last night.

One will be an 11-mill tax proposal, 7.5 mills renewal and a 3.5-mill increase, while the second will be an about $4.5-million bond issue. The exact bond figure is still to be set.

★ ★ ★

Board members trimmed both amounts in approving the ballot proposals. The initial figures had come from a citizens committee.

The committee had recommended a 5-mill increase in the operating tax levy and a $5.5-million bond issue. The bonds are to finance additions to the city's two high schools.

REASONS FOR TRIM

The board revised plans for the school additions to cut the amount to be spent on construction. The operating millage request was trimmed on the basis of projected increases in property valuations, which would provide the school district with added income.

COMAC Co., locally based management consulting firm, plans to open two offices in the Far East within the next ftw months. The firm recently opened a new headquarters office building at 1500 N. Woodward here.

★ ★ ★

COMAC opened an office in Washington, D.C., last year. Future plans also call for the opening of an additional office in New York.

The announcement was made by Thomas H. Wagner, COMAC president.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS—Sam Sharako of 146 Barrington has been elected vice president of Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., Detroit based whiskey distilling firm.

SHARAKO

Sharako joined the firm as a salesman in 1940. He is a member of the firm's board of directors.

Weather Cancels Tonight's Ski Class

Pontiac Press Ski School classes have been canceled for tonight at Mt. Holly in Groveland Township, due to rain, and poor skiing conditions.

Beginner lessons for Press Ski School ticket holders will be held as usual tomorrow night if temperatures drop below freezing.

A makeup night for lessons will be announced as soon as weather conditions permit.

Hiring of Attorney, Statements Heat Pontiac Twp. Planning Unit Dispute

By TOM GRAY

PONTIAC TOWNSHIP—From all indications, next Monday night's Township Board meeting may be a donnybrook.

More fuel has been added to the fires of the planning commission controversy, with the hiring of an attorney and the release of public statements by the board's four majority members.

The board last week voted to retain legal counsel to resolve a month-old dispute which has left the planning commission four members short.

Both factions on the board were authorized to retain counsel under the resolution, but so far only the majority—Treasurer Mrs. Goldie Mailahn and Trustees Robert Grusnick, John Richardson and Walter G. Smith—has done so.

'APPEALING TO WAHL'

Their attorney, State Rep. William P. Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, said the four are "appealing to Mr. Troy Wahl to submit new names for the planning commission appointments at the board's next meeting."

Added Hampton, "If not, then legal action will most likely be taken."

* * *

Asked this morning whether he intended to submit fresh appointees, Wahl declined comment.

The supervisor previously has offered the names of former Trustees Claude Arnett and Ronald E. Drake and Trustee Mrs. Ronald E. Drake, who defeated her husband by 52 votes in the November election, for the commission.

ALL REJECTED

All have been rejected by the board, with only Mrs. Drake and Clerk Mrs. Greta Block voting in favor of the appointments.

The members of the majority have been accused of political maneuverings by members of the public, since they are Republicans, while Wahl, Drake and Arnett are Democrats.

* * *

However, the four denied political motivations in their public statements, concentrating instead on legal and personal reasons for turning down the appointments.

Richardson commented unfavorably on what he called a "concentration of power" resulting from Arnett's previous service as planning commission chairman while a township trustee.

'UNHEALTHY SITUATION'

By virtue of his (Arnett's) election as chairman, Richardson explained, Arnett became by law, a member of the zoning board of appeals, creating a situation which Richardson termed "unhealthy."

Responding to the statement, Arnett verified that he had held the positions simultaneously, but added, "In a situation like this, it's impossible to do anything detrimental to the township without getting hung."

* * *

"Members of the commission approached me and asked if I would serve as chairman, because of my long experience on the zoning board," Arnett said. "I told them I would take it for a year—that's in the commission minutes."

Richardson also noted that Arnett and Drake had received campaign contributions from land developers. "I feel that it would be imprudent of me to approve his (Arnett's) appointment as a commissioner to sit in judgment" of those developers, the trustee declared.

DONATIONS REJECTED

Arnett said his campaign committee had received contributions from township businessmen, but that he and Drake had rejected any donations "with strings attached." The two have photostatic copies of letters involving one such contribution, which was returned, Arnett said.

The four members of the majority concurred in citing alleged inexperience as a principal reason for rejecting Mrs. Drake as an appointee.

* * *

They also agreed in stating that there are many other citizens in the township who would be well qualified for appointment to the commission, and in suggesting that additional names should be offered by Wahl.

Walled Lake Asks Meeting on Sanitary-Sewer Plan

WALLED LAKE — An amendment to this city's sanitary sewer agreement, first signed in 1966, was held over last night until the City Council can arrange a joint meeting with the Novi Council.

The amendment would have increased the sewer's total cost from $6 million to $9 million, the latest estimate.

* * *

Disagreement between the cities, which are building the swer system jointly, stemmed from the number of tap-ins allowed each.

The new estimated cost includes a $1-million Housing and Urban Development grant. Walled Lake also is one of the first cities being considered for grants from the recently passed state clean water bonds bill, according to City Manager Royce Downey. An additional $1.3-million is possible from this source.

CITIES' LOSTS

Walled Lake would pay an estimated $4,354,350 and Novi about $2,344,650 for the new system if both grants are received.

* * *

A presentation on water meters was given by representatives of the Neptune ARB System. Downey recommended that the council adopt the firm's billing systems.

Since the meters, are installed outside the home, callbacks and estimated bills are eliminated. Records, which can be tape recorded, can be sent to a data processing firm where bills will be prepared for less cost than the city would have to spend to do everything itself, according to Downey. Each unit would cost about $48, although other units would cost around $18.

The council members also received copies of the proposed revenue bond issue to cover a new building wing and parking lot at city hall and purchase of the property next door. The total cost is an estimated $185,000.

STATE TRAFFIC CODE

An ordinance adopting the state uniform traffic code was passed. Another, pertaining to regulations and rights of inspection by the city for installation of water service lines, also was passed.

The council also decided to open bids for comprehensive workman's compensation and liability insurance for city employes and equipment at its Feb. 4 meeting.

* * *

The city last night also agreed to assume responsibility for snow removal and flooding of the Jaycee skating rink, which is open to the public. The rink is on Gamma behind the Walled Lake Shopping Center.

Councilman Harry Carlson commented that despite rumors, recent increase in state equalized valuation of property would not effect property taxes.

DEPENDS ON BUDGET

The amount of tax levied is governed by the amount of mills needed to meet the total city budget, he said.

Downey also reported on last week's meeting with the State Water Resources Commission, in which the city was given a deadline of June 1, 1970, to cease polluting nearby Walled Lake.

Fuel-Oil Strike Foes Talk Today

DETROIT (AP) — Adversaries in the 19-day-old fuel-oil strike affecting Detroit open negotiations today.

Humble Oil was scheduled to reopen talks with the striking Local 7-389 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers. But another struck oil company, Gulf, was set to take on the OCAW in a Wayne County Circuit Court hearing over charges the union has been harassing nonstrikers at two Gulf plants.

* * *

Negotiations seemed to be doing better elsewhere than in Detroit. Though most of the union's 50,000 nationwide personnel were still on strike, two oil refineries in Texas reached tentative agreements yesterday with the union.

In Detroit, Shell, Sinclair, Boron and Texaco remain struck, in addition to Humble and Gulf. Shell is scheduled to appear in court Thursday with charges similar to Gulf's.

MOBIL CASE

Mobil Oil Corp. meanwhile will appear before the Michigan Public Service Commission in regard to ticket violations it has received for allegedly using an unlicensed trucking firm, T.K.S., to haul gas and oil during the strike.

Mobil has denied any wrongdoing and will appear at a hearing in about 10 days.

Hart Will Keynote Annual Meeting of COG on Saturday

Michigan Democratic Sen. Philip A. Hart will keynote the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) General Assembly during its second annual meeting Saturday at Cobo Hall, Detroit.

Hart's talk is scheduled at 1:15 p.m. following luncheon in Room 3037.

* * *

The daylong session will feature the election of officers. William L. Mainland of Milford Township is the current chairman.

* * *

Several national recognized experts, acting as panelists, will address members on the aspects of comprehensive health, public schools, law enforcement, purchasing management, purchasing management in government, and solid-waste disposal.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

Two OU Profs Get Fellowships

Two Oakland University faculty members will attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology next year under National Science Foundation faculty fellowships.

Robert M. Williamson of 315 William, Rochester, professor of physics, will study solid state physics. Henry Rosemont Jr. of 461 Adams, Avon Township assistant professor of philosophy, will concentrate on linguistics.

* * *

They were among 212 selected from 1,048 applicants for the awards.

Leaves of absence for both, along with leaves for three other OU faculty members, were approved by the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

The other leaves are for Robbin R. Hough of 1213 N. Main, Rochester, professor of economics, to study at home for the winter term; Jack R. Moeller of 937 Ironstone, Rochester, associate professor of modern languages, to study in Germany; and Gottfried Brieger of 93 Cherokee, Pontiac, assistant professor of chemistry, for next year to study at Harvard University.

White Lake Creates Panel to Buy Parcel Next to Township Hall

WHITE LAKE TOWNSHIP — The Township Board created a five-man building authority last night to issue revenue bonds to buy property adjacent to the Township Hall.

The township will then lease the property from the building authority with an advance down payment of $10,000. Total cost is $39,500 and the land ownership reverts to the township when that price is paid.

* * *

The 10-acre parcel has a house and two other buildings. One structure will be used for a fire station.

A public hearing on a special assessment district for street lights in the Twin Shores subdivision was also held last night. Estimated cost for the total project is $432 with an average of $8.31 to be paid by owners of each buildable lot, according to Supervisor James L. Reid.

Troy Judge, Commission Candidates File

TROY — Candidates have filed in this city for two judgeships and two City Commission seats, to be filled in the April 7 municipal election.

Only three hopefuls filed petitions for the City Commission spots, to be vacated by incumbent Commissioners Glen H. Houghten and Ben S. Jones. Houghten and Jones had previously announced that they did not intend to seek reelection.

Candidates for the commission are Sherwood E. Shaver, 345 W. Square Lake; Anthony Pallotta, 6484 Elmoor; and James J. Damman, 2751 Lake Charnwood.

Shaver, Troy postmaster, was an unsuccessful commission candidate last spring.

Filing for the judgeship, currently occupied by Judge Charles H. Losey, were six candidates, including Gerald R. Hershberger, 285 E. Long Lake; Robert J. Bromley, 2895 Somerset; William E. Wilson, 3282 Oakhill; Raymond J. Hand, 1900 Golfview; Bruce W. Franklin, 3730 Beach; and W. D. Bollinger, 6158 Glyndebourne.

Bollinger is presently associate judge. Running for the seat which he is leaving are Leo J. Hinch, 2251 Chalgrove and William E. Bolle, 644 Jamaica.

Losey is not seeking reelection because he is past the state age limit of 70 for judicial candidates.

The races for municipal and associate judge are complicated by the fact that several candidates have filed their petitions on the strength of a recent ruling by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Templin.

Wilson sued the city after City Clerk Kenneth Courtney refused his petitions, citing a two-year residency requirement in the city charter.

However, Templin ruled the charter provision invalid, basing his opinion on several state laws, including one that declared justice of the peace candidates must only be a resident of a county for three years, and one which equates municipal judges with justices.

Wilson, Bolle, Franklin and Hand have filed under the ruling, which the City Commission has decided to contest in the State Court of Appeals.

The large number of candidates for municipal judge will necessitate a primary election, scheduled for Feb. 17. However, there will be no primary for commission or associate judge.

Neighbors' Cooperation Is Needed

Bloomfield Twp. Drain Plan Is Clogged

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP—The township may have to delay plans for what a local official labels "a badly needed" relief drain system, unless either neighboring Bloomfield Hills or Birmingham agree to help share the cost.

James Scott, head of the township's sewer and water department, said past flooding has proved the $4.4-million relief drain—East Relief Trunk—is needed immediately.

"The project will have to be done eventually, and it would be much more expedient to begin the project now," Scott said.

* * *

No official word, for or against, has been received from either Birmingham or Bloomfield Hills, indicating to township officials that they have little current interest in the drain proposal.

The estimated $4,445,000 East Relief Trunk would provide a new drain for the eastern portion of Bloomfield Township and smaller sections of Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills.

PETITIONS NOT FILED

Scott said the cost to the individual taxpayer could not be released until petitions for the drain have been filed. The usual public hearings on the project would be scheduled once petitions are filed.

* * *

Need for the new storm sewer line became apparent during extensive flooding last June and July in heavy rainstorms.

* * *

Scott explained that it would be virtually impossible for the township to assume the cost for the entire project.

In order to effectively lay out the proposed system, he said, a 1,200-foot section would have to be run through Birmingham. An approximate 500-foot extension would cut across a portion of Bloomfield Hills.

PARTICIPATION ASKED

Scott's office requested Birmingham's participation at a commission meeting Jan. 6. A Birmingham city official said yesterday the fact the commission has not acted on the request indicates little or no interest in the project now.

* * *

Bloomfield Hill also has not responded to the proposal. Scott said he has strong doubts that Bloomfield Hills would contribute to the financing.

* * *

State regulations concerning drain petitions require that at least two of the three communities involved agree to participate in the financing before approval can be obtained from the County Drain Commissioner.

Even if cooperation is agreed to by at least two of the municipalities, Scott said, modifications and final approval by the county drain commissioner will take an undetermined period of time, possibly more than a year.

PAYING OFF BONDS

Upon final approval, the drain commissioner's office would sell bonds in the name of the county and sign a contract with the concerned municipalities covering paying off the bonds through general tax funds over an extended period of time.

The proposed relief drain varies in size from 90 to 48 inches and would have a total length of nearly 3½ miles.

* * *

The sizable cost of the sewer line is primarily due to the considerable tunneling that would have to be done. Most of the line would run through established and improved areas, already well saturated with landscaping and utility lines, Scott said.

The line would extend on Cranbrook from 14 Mile north to Quarton, with a 2,000 foot extension south of Quarton west to Darcy and Halla Lane. The line would continue west on Quarton about 500 feet to Sandringham Way.

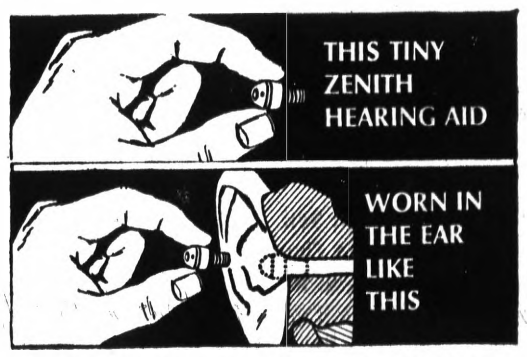

OTHER SECTIONS

Another section would extend east on Maple, for 450 feet from Cranbrook. The Birmingham portion would run south of Maple on Argyle Blvd. for approximately 1,200 feet.

In addition to providing relief for existing storm drains in the concerned Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham areas, the line also would support existing sewers in the Westchester Village subdivision of Bloomfield Township, south of Maple Road.

* * *

Scott added that the new relief drain would supplement an existing 30-year-old line.

Single Pink Rose Carried by Bride for Saturday Vows

St. Michael's Catholic Church was the setting Saturday for an exchange of vows uniting Frances Kaye Dionne and Larry Alfred Wood.

For the afternoon vows, the daughter of the A. F. Dionnes of Parkwood Street wore a satin gown with a nylon overlay. Lace rose appliques highlighted her ensemble and she held a single pink rose.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Daniel M. Scott Jr. and James R. Wood, brother of the bridegroom, were honor attendants with Carolyn Sibary as bridesmaid and Ray Callahan as usher.

The bridegroom is the son of Harold P. Wood of Melrose Street and Mrs. Forest Groves of College Drive, Pontiac Township.

The newlyweds were feted of the home of the bridegroom's father prior to their West Virginia honeymoon departure.

Woman Gets Manager Post With Railroad

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Miss Jean E. Gilpatrick, who has worked for railroads since the age of 16, has become the new regional sales and service manager for the Maine Central Railroad. She will be dealing with the traffic departments of northern New England industries.

The railroad believes women "have a definite place in the present-day railroad executive picture," says George H. Ellis, assistant vice president in charge of marketing and sales.

Miss Gilpatrick started her career in 1945 while she was still a high school student, working at the snack bar and newstand in the former Portland Union Station. She became clerk for the Boston and Maine Railroad here in 1952, and in 1955 accepted a supervisory post in the Main Central's ac-

India's Jewish Colonies Are Staging Exodus to Israel

COCHIN, Kerala State, India (AP)—Birthdays are hardly the time to think about extinction. But the 78 Jews of Cochin, remnant of a once-flourishing community, had their own disappearance from India very much in mind as they celebrated their syngogue's 400th anniversary.

★ ★ ★

"We want to say thank you to India and then say goodby," remarked Nappy Koder, a young engineer who plans to transplant his wife and family to Israel within a year.

★ ★ ★

"We are not happy here," Nappy's uncle, Elias Koder, added. "The government is taking too much for taxes—and yet they won't let us take our property to Israel."

The government's policy is anything but clear, though a family head is allowed to take out less than $5,000 in rupees and no property. The Cochin Jews want to remove their synagogue's holy scrolls, books, relics and religious ornaments.

2,500 ALREADY THERE

The young are going to Israel to join 2,500 Cochin Jews already settled there; the middle aged, like Uncle Elias, are tied to their sometimes considerable property here; the elderly are dying off.

Three Cochin girls in their early 20s, interrupting themselves with bursts of self-conscious laughter, explained that there is only "one eligible man" in the community, a 22-year-old who seems to be holding out for an Israeli bride.

★ ★ ★

"Of course, there are several permanent bachelors in their 30s," said one girl, dressed like the others in western clothes. "And there are three boys under 20, all 17."

They refused to commit themselves to any marital strategy —but nodded that, yes, they would probably wait until they settled in Israel.

GENETIC REASON

One unspoken reason for their patience is the genetic fact that the Cochin Jews are dangerously intermarried and, as several privately admitted, in serious need of fresh blood for their unborn children.

★ ★ ★

"We are all related to one another in some way," explained one member of the Koder family, with a wave of his hand down "Jew Street," the narrow, extremely tidy, whitewashed enclave where almost all of the Cochin Jews live.

★ ★ ★

With only three real families left—the Koders, the Hallegueas and the Robys—and assorted members of six others, the Cohcin Jews are aware that Jew Street and its lovely synagogue will be a lifeless museum within a generation.

Still, they continue to lead their closely knit life, which is built around Sabbath worship. The community has no rabbi, and the responsibility for leading prayers rotates among the members of the "minyan"—men over 13 who have had their Bar Mitzvah.

NO PRIVATIONS

Happily, the Cochin Jews will suffer no privations while in India.

Many have done well on their own, and the leader of the community, Satto Koder, employs many of his relatives in his seven department stores and the Cochin Electrical Co.

★ ★ ★

In the nearby town of Ernakulam lives a far more ancient community known as the Black Jews for their dark complexions —in contrast to the light-skinned Cochin Jews. The 168 member community has melded itself so completely and inconspicuously into Keralan society that Ernakulam taxi drivers, police officers and self-appointed tourist guides are unaware of its existence.

★ ★ ★

"You want see Jews?" asked a knowing Ernakulam taxi driver in minimal English. "No Jews here. You go Cohcin side."

LANGUAGE DIFFERENT

Unlike the Cochin Jews, who usually speak both English and Malayalam, the language of Kerala, the poorer Black Jews by and large speak only Malayalam.

They are mainly small merchants. Partly because they are less tied down by property than the Cochin Jews, they are leaving even faster for Israel.

★ ★ ★

"We have only to pay for our ticket to Bombay. Jewish agencies pay for our ticket to Israel," explained a banana merchant.

One of the two synagogues in Ernakulam stands right next to a mosque. Speaking of the 1967 war in the Middle East, Elias Thiferth, a 20-year-old college student, said: "The older Moslems have forgot the war, but the young ones know the political reasons for it that is making it a little difficult."

BLACK MAY BE FIRST

The Black Jews may be the first to disappear from Kerala —though they probably arrived in India well before their more publicized, light-skinned coreligionists.

It is traditional, though most likely incorrect, to date the arrival in Kerala sometime after the second destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem in 70 A.D.

★ ★ ★

Walter J. Fischel of the University of California at Berkeley, a scholar on the subject, says the first wave of Jews probably arrived in the 11th century, though conceivably as early as the 8th.

This community, an offspring of one of many migrations from the Middle East, eventually intermarried with the local population— and became the Black Jews.

THEY FLED PERSECUTION

With the opening of trade to India by the Dutch East India Co., in the 16th century, another wave of Jews—perhaps fleeing persection in Portugal and Spain—came to Kerala.

Until about 20 years ago, White Jews here admit, a genuine color bar existed between the two communities, despite their common faith.

★ ★ ★

Now, with both groups destined for Israel, the color bar is down. Black Jews today occasionally worship in the White Jews' synagogue, though there have been no instances of marriage between the two groups.

The word "Cochin" will outlive these communities. In Malayalam, it means "Jew."

JOHN T. EDSON

British Author Knows What Western's All About

MELTON MOWBRAY, England (AP) — "A bit of sex, a bit of sadism and plenty of people getting shot — that's what a western is all about," said John T. Edson.

Edson, a bluff, red-haired Britisher, has never seen an Arizona cactus patch or a Colorado saloon but he speaks with authority. Fifty-one of his western pulp novels have been published and he quit his mailman's route recently to turn out more.

★ ★ ★

Some day, he said, he really must go to the United States and visit the Red River Valley, the Kansas cattle trails and all those other places he's been writing about.

At 40, Edson has reached the big time as a freelance fiction writer—his publisher estimates nearly two million paperback copies of his books have been sold, 850,000 of them in 1968. but the road to success was long and devious.

DEVELOPED TASTE

Edson left his birthplace in the mining community of Worksop before he was 21 to become an Army dog trainer and serve 12 years in Germany, Kenya, Hong Kong and Singapore.

Off duty, he developed his taste for the Old West, a place where, in his view, life was simple, men were strong and the good guys won out, usually after a satisfyingly bloody brawl.

He spent hours watching Hollywood horse operas — "I saw every movie John Wayne ever made" — reading westerns and finally, because he thought he could do better, writing them.

★ ★ ★

He modeled one of his characters, Dusty Fog, a small Texan, after Audie Murphy, the war hero and actor.

In "The Making of a Lawman," Dusty becomes marshal of a Kansas town, engages in a series of fights and shoot-outs with rowdy railroad men and contentious cowhands and winds up with a gun battle in a nunnery.

Out of the Army in 1960, Edson opened a fish-and-chips shop in Melton Mowbray, a midlands market town known for its meat pies and cheese.

Later he worked in a pet-food factory and kept on writing.

A DOUBLE JOLT

Unpublished westerns piled up around Edson's home until he got a double jolt — from his wife ("She said either send the manuscripts to a publisher or she would burn them") and from a correspondence writing course that led to a competition. Edson's "Trail Boss' won second prize.

Edson received about 16 pounds ($38.40) for his first book in 1961. He devoted two years to writing full-time and as his word output grew, so did his weight.

★ ★ ★

"I was sitting down happily banging away at the typewriter all day," he said. "I got up to 280 pounds. The doctor sent the undertaker to see me and it struck me he was trying to tell me something.

"So I decided to get some exercise and the only way I could do that and get paid for it was by walking a mail route."

Edson brought his weight down to 238 pounds but he was "never what you might call a very civil servant." When the job began to interfere with wirting, he quit and bought a fishing rod for exercise.

9-TO-5 DAY

Now Edson works 9-to-5 at a small desk wedged in among the plastic flowers and scuffed, blonde furniture in his bedroom. He completes a book in six weeks, shutting the door against the noise created by his children.

His novels are very much the man — blunt, no-nonsense, with an air of more-or-less good-humored violence. "Calamity Spells Trouble" climaxes in a four-way hair-pull involving Calamity Jane and three other women following a number of armed robberies.

★ ★ ★

Details of weapons, cowboy slang and customs of the Old West come from shelves of reference books.

Edson has been called the Ian Fleming of westerns, a comparison that annoys him. But he shares Fleming's passion for gadgets.

He equipped Belle Boyd, a Confederate spy appearing in several books, with a poison ring, a parasol billy club and a perfume sprayer full of ammonia.

Edson's new publisher, Corgi Books, is expanding sales into Norway and, next year, the Netherlands and the United States.

He appears on the verge of becoming wealthy and famous but if the prospect bothers him, he doesn't show it.

Prairie dogs, squirrellike animals with a barking cry, are gregarious and usually live in colonies.

Oral Vaccine Found to Fight Fish Blight

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — An oral vaccine to prevent a bacterial disease fatal to large number of salmon and steelhead trout in the Columbia and Fraser river systems has been developed by a bilogical scientist at Battelle Northwest Laboratory.

The disease, C. columnaris, erodes gill filaments and causes body lesions. It is known to occur when water temperatures of streams rise above average and in areas where large numbers of migrating fish congregate, such as at the base of fish ladders.

★ ★ ★

In 1961, C. columnaris virtually wiped out the Horsefly River sockeye run in British Columbia. In 1963 in another tributary of the Fraser, the Chilko River, 720,000 of an esgimated 800,000 sockeyes died without spawning because of the disease.

Because of its association with unnaturally warm waters, the disease has become a problem not only for fishermen but also for the operators of nuclear reactors, steam power plants and hydroelectric dams.

PROBLEM SOURCES

Waters discharged from nuclear and steam plants at the Hanford Atomic Works are boosting the Columbia's temperatures, and, of course, dams force fish to use ladders, causing them to congregate.

For these reasons, Battelle Northwest undertook the project to combat columnaris, and M.P. Fujihara came up with an answer. He developed a vaccine that can be mixed with fish foods.

★ ★ ★

"The oral vaccination of juvenile salmon against columnaris has been successful under controlled laboratory conditions," explained Fujihara. "However, successful application of the vaccine to large-scale production hatchery use will require several years of continued study."

While Fujihara was cautious in claiming victory, there was no doubt that the vaccine works.

NEW SURVEY METHOD

Through an effective, sensitive technique, developed under sponsorship of the Atomic Energy Commission, Fujihara and a Battelle technician, R.L. Tramel, have used the ability of fish to develop antibodies against the columnaris as a new method of surveying fish to determine disease exposure.

Juvenile salmon were examined on their downstream migration, and adults were examined during their journey from the mouth of the Columbia to their spawning grounds.

Blood serum and other samples were taken from hundreds of coho, sockeye and spring and summer run Chinook. Similar serum samples were taken from yearling rainbow trout in the labortory. None of the fish was harmed.

County GOP's Essay Contest Is Open to Students

County — high school students have been invited to enter the annual Oakland County Lincoln Republican Club essay contest.

Topic for the 500-word essay this year is "Would Lincoln Change the Election Process from the Nominating Convention System to a Direct Presidential Primary?"

★ ★ ★

Barry M. Grant, vice president of the club, said all entries mailed to him not later than Jan. 31 at 21751 W. 11 Mile, Southfield, will be considered.

Judges of the contest are Circuit Judges James Thorburn, Frederick Ziem and Phillip Pratt. U.S. Savings Bonds of $100, $75 and $50 denominations will be awarded as prizes.

Opening lead—♥7

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

It is mighty hard to get an absolute top score in a continent-wide game but we think that East-West's plus 500 on hand seven will come close to doing the job.

East and West were playing the Landy convention in which the two club overcall of an opening no-trump shows both majors. We don't approve of Easts' two-club call. He only held four spades and he was woefully lacking in high cards.

★ ★ ★

Connecticut bridge teacher Sally Johnson, who sat West, was not happy being asked to bid a major but she responded with two spades without histrionics to imply that she didn't really have a spade suit.

As a matter of fact, two spades would not be a very bad contract and she might even have made it but South got into the bidding with a three-diamond call.

★ ★ ★

This was Sally's cup of tea and she doubled. East looked over his collection of nothing and finally decided to pass and hope that Sally could set three diamonds all by herself. After all, he saw no future in taking out the double.

Sally had an easy opening lead, the seven of hearts. South let this ride to his king, then played a diamond. Sally ducked and North was in with the king.

★ ★ ★

He played a club next, whereupon Sally took her ace and led a spade. South finessed dummy's jack and East collected a trick with his king.

He promptly led a heart which Sally ruffed for the third defensive trick. Since she still held three good trumps, South was down two.

What do you do now?

A—Bid four spades. Your partner is trying for a slam. You have more than you have shown and can afford to cue bid the ace of spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to four no-trump. What do you do now?

Astrological Forecast

SYDNEY OMARR
For Thursday

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mate or partner may appear extravagant. Take hold of reins. Direct affairs without being arrogant. Take charge! Your cycle is high. Your judgment apt to be correct. Be independent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get boost which helps break roadblock. There remain certain limitations. But outlook brightens. You continue with concern over family harmony. Yet, recent adjustment is promising.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your business income needs attention. Study ARIES message. Don't be fooled by one who appears to know all answers. Key is your own perception. See persons, situations as they actually exist.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be sensitive to needs, suggestions of parent or one in authority. Necessary that you prove good intentions. Otherwise, room at top becomes narrow — you are squeezed. Understand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good lunar aspect today coincides with favorable news from a distance. You receive communication, call — your desires get a lift. Some of your own writings, views get excellent reception.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Where tax, estate affairs are concerned — be conservative. You have some definite ideas. But today it is wise to let associates express views in complete manner. Wait. Absorb. Gain strength.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Review alliances. Be sure you are with the people who represent your viewpoint. Follow through. Rely upon past experience. Don't buy "pig in poke." Be confident — loyal to principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): People who depend upon you make known their needs. Element of confusion is obvious. Be versatile. You no longer are afraid. Unknown becomes bright with light. Step forward with confidence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cultivate hobby, creative activities. You can break through restrictions. Now is time to seek change — plan to travel and welcome variety. You have luck when it comes to speculating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Practical affairs dominate. Surprise in financial area highlights day. Promotion or business opportunity is indicated. Study available information. Be familiar with regulations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be gracious host. Welcome visitors. Realize neighbor or relative wants to confide problem. If sympathetic — you gain. Stress family harmony. Cement relationships.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Priority should be given income potential. Be perceptive. Read between the lines — study fine print. Element of deception exists. Find out the WHY of events. Then act accordingly.

★ ★ ★

IF THURSDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you possess intellectual curiosity. You are attractive to opposite sex. Your charm radiates — but not everyone understands your goal, motives. Some restrictions are in effect — but, with persistence, you overcome them.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for ARIES, TAURUS, GEMINI. Special word to SCORPIO: one who doubted you now is confident of your ability.

End to Seaway Tolls Urged

OTTAWA (AP) — A leading Canadian industrialist Tuesday called for the abolition of tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Albert L. Fairley, president of Hollinger Mines, said failure to do so would "have a serious effect on Canadian business, including the shipping industry."

★ ★ ★

Fairley accused the Canadian government of holding a "rather foolish and ridiculous" position in support of seaway tolls, "which are hurting the iron ore industry in Canada and actually helping the U.S. industry."

He made his remarks at the annual conference of the Dominion Marine Association and the U.S. Lake Carriers' Association, the two organizations which represent the inland fleets on both sides of the border.

Harry N. Cook, executive vice president of the U.S. National Waterways Conference, said the Canadian government apparently doesn't share the U.S. government's belief in the overriding public value of the seaway to the economies of the two countries.

The attacks on tolls and lockage charges came after a speech by R. R. Cope, research commissioner for the Canadian transport commission, saying Great Lakes shipowners should concentrate on getting more out of their vessels and keep their operating costs down.
