Commies Fire on U.S. Planes in Tachen Area

All Civilians Removed From Northern Island in Evacuation Project

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Tachen islanders carrying fishing nets and a few treasured belongings streamed aboard Nationalist landing craft and U. S. transports today from rocky beaches under protection of a mighty American naval and air armada.

AP Correspondent Jim Becker reported from the amphibious flagship Estess that two carrier-based American planes were fired on by Red anti-aircraft batteries on Yikiangshan last night and another one this morning. None of the planes was hit. Yikiangshan is eight miles north of the Tachens.

"The two planes last night were flying north of the Tachens at 2,000 feet. Naval officers said the planes fired on today had strayed 'out of bounds' over Yikiangshan. It was immediately ordered out of the area. (Further details were not disclosed.)

Warships of the U.S. 7th Fleet were under orders not to drop anchor or steam at slow speeds in darkness to avoid possible torpedo attack.

Two U.S. attack transports, the Henrico and the Lenawee, began loading civilians. The first U.S. evacuation ship probably will arrive in Keelung, a north Formosa port, tomorrow.

There was no sign of interference from Communist artillery on nearby Yikiangshan or from the hundreds of Russian-built jets based within close range on the Red China mainland.

American jets swooshed overhead and U.S. 7th Fleet warships plowed through the choppy waters of the East China Sea off the Tachens as the Nationalist evacuation moved into high gear.

The Navy announced the evacuation of civilians from North Tachen Island had been completed.

First Fatality in Institution History

Blind Student, Leader Dog Are Killed on Road Near Rochester School Today

A 54-year-old blind man and his leader dog were killed this morning when they were hit by a car on Rochester road in front of the Leader Dog for the Blind School.

Charles E. Sailer, of Mackinaw City, a student at the school, was dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital after he was struck by a car driven by James Farrell, 54, of 3438 Mt. Elliott, Detroit.

Officials said it was the first fatality in the school's history.

Authorities at the school theorized that Sailer gave his dog, Prince, the wrong command and ended up on Rochester road rather than the relief area he intended to reach.

Harold Pocklington, executive director at the school, said that each morning students are required to take their dogs to the relief area on awakening.

An instructor stands at the door of the dormitory to see that the students are properly sated.

"Sailer must have given the dog a 'left' rather than a 'forward' command," Pocklington said.

Pocklington said the dog had been trained for traffic. But, he added, because there is no speed limit in the area, the road could have been clear when the dog started and the car could have come along when the animal was half-way across.

"The road must have been clear when the dog started across," Pocklington said.

He added that the dog, an 18-month-old German shepherd, had been trained for six months and the road unless it were clear."

Farrell told assistant Prosecutor Edward H. Shigley this morning that he was on his way to work at the Crucible Brass Foundry in Rochester when the accident occurred.

He said he was traveling about 40 m.p.h. and did not see the blind man or his dog because of the lights of oncoming traffic.

Farrell was released to the custody of his employer, Clarence McMillan, pending further investigation by the prosecutor's office.

Sailer had enrolled for the school's four-week course Jan. 30

State May Back Financing

New School Building Plan Will Help Crowded Areas

By HAZEL A. TRUMBLE

LANSING—The Schimmel plan for a "pay-as-you-use" school building financing program for Michigan appears assured of bi-partisan support in capitol circles today.

Governor G. Mennen Williams said Monday that the constitutional proposal drafted by Louis H. Schimmel of Pontiac is "ingenious... sound... provides for school districts and affords aid for distressed and rapidly growing areas with low valuations."

The Schimmel Plan provides:

1—Local levy for taxpayers annually shall not exceed 13 mills for school building purposes. The state will loan the district whatever amount is necessary to pay principal and interest due annually above the 13 mill building limit.

In return the district agrees to continue to levy the full 13 mills until it has repaid the state the amount borrowed. Thereafter the district's levy will drop to whatever figure is required to meet the annual payments on principal and interest on its outstanding building bonds.

2—For the lifting of the maximum time limitation on bond payments from the present 8 to 12 years to 30 years.

"School buildings," declares Schimmel, "are designed and built to be used for 50 years, yet according to our restrictive laws in Michigan we now have to pay for them in from 8 to 12 years. Hence the people under this long-term (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

New GM Stock Tagged at $75

One Share of the Issue May Be Purchased for Every 20 Held Now

NEW YORK (AP)—Stockholders of General Motors Corp. may buy one share of new stock for $75 for every 20 shares of their old stock.

The price of the new stock was announced yesterday, when General Motors common closed on the New York Stock Exchange at $102. It continued to trade thereafter on the Los Angeles Exchange and finally closed at $99.

GM directors set the price of the new stock at a meeting at which they also declared a $1 dividend payable March 10 to holders of record Feb. 14.

This dividend is the same as that paid during each of the first three quarters of 1954. A $2 dividend was declared in the final quarter of last year.

The new stock, through which General Motors expects to raise 325 million dollars in new capital, will not participate in the March dividend.

Certificates known as "rights," entitling holders to buy the new stock at $75, will be mailed out to GM stockholders today following approval of the new issue by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Trade in the "rights" will be followed after the expected SEC approval is given.

The new issue is the largest common stock financing ever attempted by an American industrial firm. The decision to raise new capital through sale of common stock was a sharp departure from the usual practice of corporate borrowing through low-interest bonds.

Sale of the new shares will be handled by a nationwide syndicate (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Hint Williams to Up Budget

LANSING (UP)—Gov. G. Mennen Williams is expected to submit a supplemental budget request of nearly $10,000,000 to the Legislature this week.

Williams already has submitted a $292,000,000 general fund budget request for the 1955-56 fiscal year. The supplemental request will include funds to pay off various bond issues, administrative officials said.

The annual supplemental request usually is between one and two million dollars, but an official hinted this year's request would be "just about $10,000,000."

$1 Billion Loans for Education Proposed by Ike

Asks Congress to OK Federal Aid Program for Nation's Schools

WASHINGTON (INS)—President Eisenhower proposed a million dollar program of federal loans and emergency grants today to help relieve the acute shortage of school classrooms across the nation.

In a special education message to Congress, the President outlined a program of federal aid which, he said, will enable local communities to put seven billion dollars into building of badly needed new schools in the next three years.

Eisenhower asked Congress for 200 million dollars for outright grants to communities which are unable to obtain school construction funds in any other way.

He requested another 900 million dollars for use in loan programs which will make it easier for communities to finance new schools, through direct borrowing from the federal government in some cases.

The President noted there is a national shortage of more than 300,000 classrooms, and declared the situation requires "immediate and effective action."

He emphasized that the primary responsibility for building and maintaining schools must remain with the states and local communities, but said the emergency situation requires federal action.

Of the 900 million dollars proposed for loans, Congress was asked to appropriate 750 millions for federal loans to local communities which are unable to borrow money for new schools at a reasonable interest rate. The White House said the "reasonable" interest figure has been set at 3 1/2 per cent.

Commonwealth Chiefs Hold Last Session as Britain Maneuvers

LONDON (UP)—British Commonwealth prime ministers today shaped a new diplomatic strategy for a Formosa cease-fire in the windup of their nine-day conference.

As they gathered for their last secret session, the British government awaited official U.S. reaction to its appeal for the evacuation of Quemoy and the Matsu Islands by the Chinese nationalists.

British diplomacy reportedly was concentrating on convincing the United States that the withdrawal of Chiang Kai-shek's troops from all other coastal outposts was an essential first step toward reaching a tacit standstill in the Formosa fighting.

The prime ministers discussed the Formosa problem for almost three hours yesterday. They planned to issue a communiqué on their talks late today.

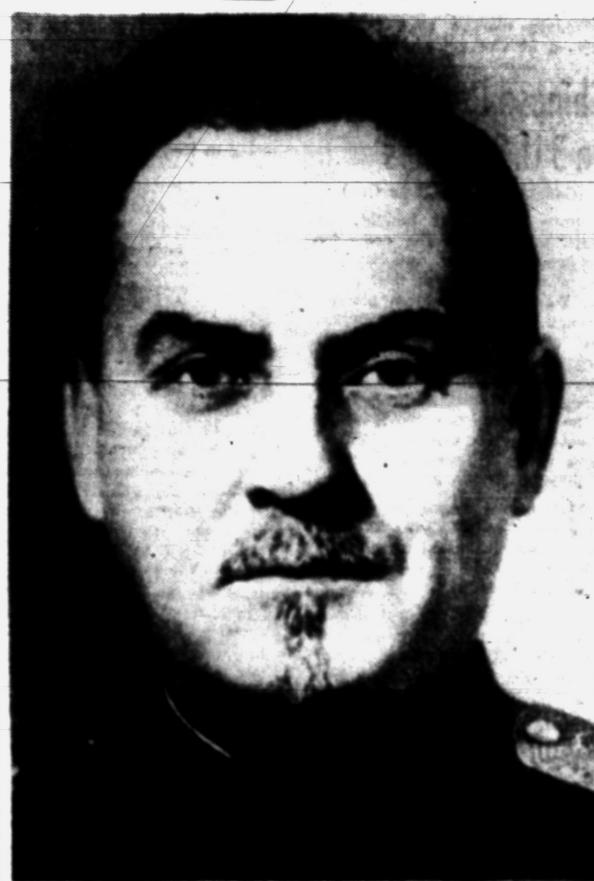

Indian Prime Minister Nehru will remain here until next Monday, giving him an opportunity to continue his efforts for a cease-fire.

Suggestions for a Geneva-type conference to arrange a permanent settlement between the two Chinas have been shelved until after the fighting dies down.

The opposition Labor party put Prime Minister Churchill's government under heavy pressure in the House of Commons yesterday to declare publicly that Quemoy and the Matsu chain should be evacuated along with the Tachens.

But Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden refused to commit the Cabinet. He insisted that secret diplomacy must be given a chance to try for a settlement.

New Soviet Premier

NIKOLAI A. BULGANIN

Hero of World War II, and Russian minister of defense since Stalin's death, Nikolai A. Bulganin today was named Soviet Prime Minister upon the resignation of Georgi Malenkov.

Quit Because of Failure to Aid Economy: Malenkov

From Our Wire Services

MOSCOW — Premier Georgi Malenkov resigned suddenly as head of the Soviet government today with a dramatic confession of "guilt for shortcomings in agriculture" and was succeeded by defense minister Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin.

Nikita A. Khrushchev, deputy premier and Communist Party first secretary, succeeded Bulganin as defense minister in the sensational shift of power which may have far-reaching consequences in Soviet internal and foreign policy.

Malenkov, who at 53 was the youngest of the top Soviet echelon, stepped down in favor of Bulganin, who is 59 years old. Khrushchev is 60.

The pudgy, 250-pound Malenkov in his letter of resignation read for him offered his continued services to the Soviet Union. He said that if given a new post he would do his best to serve the state.

But no announcement of acceptance of this offer was made.

A month ago minister of trade, Anastas Mikoyan, who had been long identified with the campaign to produce more consumer goods for the Soviet people, resigned his post. He also was present at the momentous session today.

Malenkov's letter said the premiership required "great experience in state work," and added: "I am conscious of my inadequate local experience and the fact I never had any experience of management."

Malenkov's position before he became Premier was that of first secretary of the Soviet Communist Party. It was the post which Stalin held before he succeeded Lenin.

Malenkov turned the secretary's job over to Khrushchev after Stalin's death.

Unlike some in the past who have simply disappeared when relieved of their posts, Malenkov and Mikoyan were present at today's session.

Mikoyan sat behind Khrushchev. After the death of Stalin just short of two years ago, Malenkov became Premier and immediately adopted a "soft" line.

The two main features of this line were emphasized on con- (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Former Defense Head Is Picked for Higher Post

Veteran Communist, 59, Gets Unanimous Okay From Parliament

MOSCOW (AP)—Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin has been named the new prime minister of the Soviet Union succeeding Georgi Malenkov.

Malenkov resigned today, saying his "lack of experience" had held back economic development of the country.

Bulganin, white bearded and 59, was nominated for the post of premier by the Communist party's boss, Nikita S. Khrushchev, in a meeting of the Russian Parliament this afternoon.

The Supreme Soviet Parliament had received the resignation of Malenkov three hours earlier.

This was the scene as the Supreme Soviet reconvened in the afternoon session:

The government leaders walked onto the stage led by Malenkov who was greeted by great applause.

Malenkov was followed by Khrushchev and the rest of the government. As soon as they took their seats, Khrushchev arose and walked to the rostrum, where he nominated Bulganin.

Khrushchev was greeted by a standing ovation when he began the nominating speech. He said Bulganin was the unanimous choice of the Central Committee of the Communist party and of the Council of Ministers.

Immediately after he finished speaking delegates to the two houses meeting in joint session in the great Kremlin palace unanimously approved Bulganin.

Marshal Nikolai Bulganin is the man whom Stalin and Stalin's heirs trusted to administer for many years the gigantic Soviet war machine.

With his iron gray hair, his carefully trimmed Vandyke beard, and close cropped mustaches, dressed in an immaculate and well-pressed uniform with great marshal's stars gleaming from his shoulder boards, Bulganin looks the personification of military dignity and precision.

In reality, though he had once been given a crash-course course of military education, Bulganin is no more a veteran military man than Generalissimo Stalin was.

Bulganin was put in charge of the Soviet armed forces as the Communist party's political policeman. It was a tribute to him that he held this difficult and exacting job so long—from 1944, when Stalin made him first deputy minister of defense, without interruption for more than a decade. During this period he had various titles: Minister of the armed forces, minister of defense, and for several years he held no official title but was (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

GOP Names Sutton to Head County Delegation at Meet

Oakland County Republicans last night elected Robert A. Sutton, of Pontiac, chairman of their 124-member delegation to the GOP state convention Feb. 18-19 in Detroit.

The group held its county convention in the County Office Building, 1 Lafayette St.

The only dispute of the otherwise smooth-running event arose over the endorsement of Sarah Van Hoosen Jones, of Rochester, in her bid to win nomination at the Detroit meeting for a third term on the State Board of Agriculture.

Harry W. Horton, of Royal Oak, objected to a motion to support Miss Jones, saying the matter should be settled by the delegates at the state convention.

The delegation "should have its hands free," said Horton, so it could work with other groups with a view to winning an Oakland County person's nomination to run for a major state post in 1956.

Horton said he knew Miss Jones to be qualified for the post on the body which governs Michigan State College, but feels she could have been more active in campaigning for the party "at the grass roots level" during her tenure in office.

Wilson Severance, of Rochester, said "Miss Jones has always taken her list of names to call before every election, which is more than most state officers do."

Willman Backs Chief's Order

Will Not Ask Change in New Schedule of Leave Days

City Manager Walter K. Willman today informed the Pontiac Police Officers Assn. that he is backing a recent decision by Police Chief Herbert W. Straley who invoked a new departmental leave day system last month.

Willman's reply came in form of a letter three weeks after the association's liaison committee appealed to the city manager's office for reconsideration of the new 28-day changeover system.

A petition, signed by 100 of 107 of the police department's officers, had been turned over to Straley, expressing dissatisfaction with the system. The policemen contended that the system was unfair to officers with many years of seniority and would deprive them of preferred days off.

Willman, who said in the letter that he has discussed the situation with the chief, calls the officers' attention to the department's rules and regulation, specifying the authority of the chief of police to establish a working schedule he believes to be in the best interests of the department.

Straley told the Press today that he made final decision on the controversial system after six months of study, for the best working interest of the department and personnel. He said other police department's have adopted a similar system.

At a recent meeting with the association's three-man committee, Willman told the men that they had his permission to carry the matter further to the city commission if the results of his decision was unsatisfactory to the group.

Committee members today said they would decide further action at the group's regular meeting Wednesday night.

Willman's letter also reassured the association that the matter of overtime "has been adjusted and now under certain controls this overtime will be paid as agreed upon by myself and your committee."

school building agencies. Such agencies issue bonds and build schools for lease to local school districts.

Eisenhower also asked for 20 million dollars to permit the federal government to pay half of the administrative costs of state programs to meet the emergency school problem.

The total cost of the President's recommendations would be $1,120,000,000, but 900 millions in loan authority eventually would be returned to the federal treasury with interest.

The President stressed that, fundamentally, the remedy in the school crisis lies with the states and local communities, declaring:

"We believe that to take away the responsibility of communities and states in educating our children is to undermine not only a basic element of our freedom but a basic right of our citizens."

"Federal aid in a form that leads to federal control of our schools cripples education for freedom."

The special presidential message promises to touch off one of the most stormy debates of the year on Capitol Hill. Battlelines have already drawn on the issue of how much the federal purse strings should be relaxed to meet the problem of overcrowded schools in many parts of the nation.

Eisenhower favors leaving the prime responsibility at the state and local level, with the federal government in the role of "catalyst" in bringing action on the problem.

A White House conference on education will convene later this year, after completion of state conferences, but Eisenhower decided the problem was so acute that immediate action was required.

Delaware Court Reverses Ruling on Negro Pupils

DOVER, Del. (AP)—The Delaware State Supreme Court ruled today that the Milford Board of Education had "no legal right" to admit 10 Negro pupils to tenth grade classes at a previous all-white school last September.

The court's ruling today said that the Negro pupils were admitted by the board without prior approval of the Delaware State Board of Education and therefore had no legal authority.

The decision reversed a finding by Vice Chancellor William Marvel in Chancery Court last Oct. 19 that said the Negro pupils were entitled to attend classes at the Milford school.

Their admission and attendance touched off a boycott by a majority of the white pupils and caused the Milford board to resign. Another board was subsequently appointed and the Negro pupils were ousted from the school in that south-central Delaware town and are now attending classes at all-Negro schools at Georgetown or Dover.

continue throughout tonight. He said "progress of the operation has been satisfactory thus far."

Civilians were given first priority. Women and children plodded through the mud of their villages, past cackling fowl, down to the rocky, tide-swept beaches of Lower Tachien. Men, some old and feeble, joined in the migration.

The Nationalist outpost, abandoned under U.S. pressure, lies 200 miles north of Formosa and only 14 miles from the Red mainland.

Most of the 15,000 or more civilians were on Lower Tachien and 15,000 Nationalist troops and guerrillas were on its sister island just to the north.

The Nationalist Central News Agency in a Hong Kong dispatch said the Chinese Reds were strengthening forces near the Nationalist-held coastal island of Quemoy, 350 miles south of the Tachien.

Nationalists repelled a Red invasion attempt there in October 1949, inflicting thousands of casualties on the Communists.

(While Red China's military arm was quiet, its propaganda voice clamored that U.S. participation was a "pretext to invade the Chinese coastal islands and expand its aggression against China.")

The evacuation was expected to take a week or longer, even with U.S. ships joining in the operation. Tides as high as 18 feet and rocky beaches cut loading time to six hours daily.

In addition to the Tachien, two other island groups were to be cleared. They are the Yu Shans, 35 miles northeast, and Pishan, 32 miles southwest of the Tachien. In all, about 40,000 troops and civilians will be moved.

Khrushchev Wheels Reds Back to Stalin's Policies

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

The resignation of Georgi Malenkov as premier of the Soviet Union signals the end of the post-Stalin "collective leadership." The dead Stalin has triumphed, and the Soviet Union henceforth can be expected to express Stalinism both in domestic and foreign affairs.

The continuing Kremlin struggle for power does not yet seem to have been fully resolved. There are ominous portents on the horizon. But today's developments are bound to have severe repercussions.

For the European satellite governments they mean a complete reversal of the "new course" which, after Stalin's death, had promised to ease the lot of the man in the street. For the Chinese they seem to mean closer collaboration and dovetailing of policies between Peking and Moscow in a joint political assault on the non-Communist world.

Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, the new premier, looks like a figurehead. Bulganin, who has held the title defense minister, has a military title, but always has been a Communist party politician, schooled in Red discipline.

Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary of the Communist party, looks like the big boss who will be giving the orders. He made this fairly clear Jan. 25 in a rugged speech to the Communist party Central Committee which carried in it the threat of a new purge.

Despite Malenkov's abject confession of error and promise to cooperate, things look bad for Malenkov. Eventually, it seems likely, he will fall into further disgrace.

While the announcement to let rubber-stamp Supreme Soviet (Parliament) was sudden and dramatic, the change was months in coming about. Its first evidences could be noted as long as last June, when the European satellite countries began veering away from their much-touted post-Stalin "new course."

From 1925 to 1930 Malenkov was in "responsible work in the apparatus of the Central Committee of the Communist Party." Such work often carries more actual authority than official cabinet rank.

Malenkov was soon assigned to one of the most responsible spots — Stalin's personal secretariat. Reputedly he was in charge of Stalin's own secret file on party and government personalities.

From the very start, Malenkov apparently was a key man in selection of top-level personnel in the U.S.S.R.

From 1930 to 1934 he was "in leadership work in the Moscow Committee of the Communist party," a key party organization of the Soviet Union at a key period.

At this time there were emerging in the Soviet capital those young men destined to move shortly afterward into top spots in the Soviet setup. Malenkov was the head of the Moscow Communist party's personnel department.

"From 1934 to 1939 he headed the section of leading party organs of the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party," the official biography states. Those were the years of Stalin's blood purge.

Throughout it, Malenkov was responsible to Stalin for recommending dismissals of men from leading positions and promotion of other men to fill their jobs. One authority on the Soviets has said that Malenkov was one of a three-man committee under Stalin to purge the party.

He played a leading role in the 1937 purge of nearly the entire top layer of Communist party and government posts in order to fill them with new men owing all to Stalin.

In 1939, Malenkov was elected to the party Central Committee and that March was elected a secretary of the committee, a member of the organization bureau, and chief of the administration of committee personnel. These key positions made him one of the four or five most powerful men under Stalin.

During World War II Malenkov served as a member of the key state defense committee. He was sent to various key fronts throughout the war and also was a leader in supply work and in the reconstruction of areas occupied by the Germans.

In March, 1946, he was elected a full member of the ruling politburo. By then he was secretary of the Central Committee and deputy premier.

After the war he allied himself with Soviet POLICE Chief Lavrenty Beria and by late 1949 the two were riding high.

But Malenkov's quick rise apparently disturbed Stalin, who feared having anyone accumulate too much power under him. In December, 1949, Stalin called Khrushchev from the Ukraine to Moscow to become a Central Committee secretary and the head of the Moscow Communist party organization.

With Stalin's help, Khrushchev began rapidly to accumulate authority, becoming a kind of counterweight to Malenkov.

In October, 1952, Malenkov gained worldwide attention when he reported on the work of the Central Committee at the 19th Soviet Communist party Congress. At the previous party Congress, Stalin had made this report.

Stalin died thence etnahts and just before midnight the next day the new Soviet government was announced. Malenkov was premier and Beria No. 2 man. But a little sumer goods production to the Russian people and a vigorous propaganda campaign abroad for "peaceful co-existence."

Both of these campaigns have been simmering out in recent months. As the China crisis grew, and as the West pushed ahead with plans for Western European Union and the rearmament of Western Germany, the Russians switched back to an emphasis on heavy industrial production and soft-pedaled their earlier campaign to give the Russian people more of the good things of life.

At the same time the propaganda for "peaceful co-existence" diminished and the Soviets went back to the old Stalinist line of a harsh front in foreign affairs.

From 1925 to 1930 Malenkov was in "responsible work in the apparatus of the Central Committee of the Communist Party." Such work often carries more actual authority than official cabinet rank.

In March, 1946, he was elected a full member of the ruling politburo. By then he was secretary of the Central Committee and deputy premier.

After the war he allied himself with Soviet POLICE Chief Lavrenty Beria and by late 1949 the two were riding high.

But Malenkov's quick rise apparently disturbed Stalin, who feared having anyone accumulate too much power under him. In December, 1949, Stalin called Khrushchev from the Ukraine to Moscow to become a Central Committee secretary and the head of the Moscow Communist party organization.

With Stalin's help, Khrushchev began rapidly to accumulate authority, becoming a kind of counterweight to Malenkov.

In October, 1952, Malenkov gained worldwide attention when he reported on the work of the Central Committee at the 19th Soviet Communist party Congress. At the previous party Congress, Stalin had made this report.

Stalin died thence etnahts and just before midnight the next day the new Soviet government was announced. Malenkov was premier and Beria No. 2 man. But a little later, on March 15, Malenkov surrendered his party post to Khrushchev. Why had it happened?

Perhaps Malenkov had to give up the leadership of the crucial party apparatus because of a strong upsurge of feeling in top party levels against any one man having Stalin's immense authority. But Malenkov and Beria still held the top two government posts.

Beria was arrested on June 25, 1953, apparently because Malenkov feared the police chief more than he valued his support. But in getting Beria, Malenkov undermined his own position. From September, 1953, on, Malenkov seemed to lose ground steadily to Khrushchev.

Soviet newspapers had much to say about what Khrushchev was saying and doing but little about Malenkov. He was even omitted from a list in one magazine of those Soviet leaders who collaborated most closely with Stalin and Lenin in the civil war. The list contained Khrushchev's name although Khrushchev had been just as far away from the Soviet leadership in those days as Malenkov.

Some Western observers said there was more than just personal rivalry at stake between Malenkov and Khrushchev. They maintained that there were fundamental issues involved—the question of the supremacy of party over state, the relative priority for heavy industry over consumer goods. On the latter issue, Khrushchev emphasized the heavy industries while Malenkov seemed more inclined toward building up consumer goods output.

Another possible friction point was the question of relations with the outside world. Khrushchev appeared more inclined to continue in the Stalin path of toughness and Malenkov to smooth down more of the conflicts with the Western world.

School Plan to Aid Fast Growing Areas financing program will be paying for them as they use them."

Members of the Michigan Builders' Association, the Michigan Real Estate Association and the Michigan Education Association have pledged their support to the Schimmel Plan.

Republican leaders in Lansing indicated last week they would back this new plan.

Governor Williams has called a meeting Wednesday at the Detroit Athletic Club summoning labor, banking interests, industry and representatives of education to review the Schimmel Plan.

The builders and realtors, meeting in Lansing Monday with Schimmel and Secretary of State Hare, held a six-hour session to study the Schimmel Plan in detail.

They are the original supporters of the Broomfield Senate Joint Resolution D, which calls for the state establishment of a fund not to exceed $200,000,000 for the purpose of advancing funds to school districts. The Builders said Monday they would be glad to "put their weight behind the Schimmel Plan."

At a previous meeting, Senator William Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) offered to make the Schimmel Plan a substitute for the bill he had presented. Broomfield's bill, stated the builders, does not provide for extension of time on the present borrowing system.

The differential in interest rates now being paid by school districts ranges from one and a half per cent to nearly four per cent, it was revealed Monday.

Lower interest rates will result for all districts under the Schimmel Plan. With the backing of the full faith and credit of the state behind all millage in excess of 12 mills, even lower valuation districts will enjoy a more stable credit rating with bond buyers.

A refunding clause has been inserted in the Schimmel Plan which will aid districts now heavily taxed with recent bond issues. Administration of the "pay-as-you-use" plan will be under the State School Building Board to be established by the legislature with the Department of Public Instruction to give its stamp of approval to all loan projects.

Cost of administration and the interest the state must pay on money it loans will be pro-rated to borrowing districts.

Tracing the history of Michigan's present school financing predicament, Schimmel said:

"Although we are supposed to be able to spread our financial planning out for 30 years, we can't sell credit over a 30 year period under the present constitutional restrictions. We have a so-called 20 years borrowing period which we can't use for more than 15 years (16 in some instances) because we have to establish a 'cushioning period' of five years. Due to added restrictions, we are forced to raise the money within 5 to 12 years although we had originally started out on a 30-year basis."

Schimmel estimated that if the state had operated under his proposal for the past 10 years, it would today have one and a-half to two times as many school buildings at a lesser burden to the local taxpayer.

In order to get this proposal on the April ballot, Secretary of State Hare warned that it must be printed and receive legislative approval within the next two weeks.

Former Defense Head Picked for High Post

unofficially the politburo member in charge of armed forces policy.

The change of names did not change his real job.

He held the assignment on the one hand of keeping the army in line for the Communist party, crushing any dissidence among the officer corps with swift ruthlessness, keeping career officers and generals from uniting on a common platform or plotting or politicking among themselves. On the other hand he also had the contradictory job of keeping the marshals and generals and other veteran military officers contented, of representing their interests and on occasion their views in the higher party councils, and of watching closely over armed forces morale in general.

Bulganin's considerable administrative and diplomatic ability contributed to his success. Before he donned a uniform in World War II Bulganin had lent this dignity of his to other high offices of various sorts. He had accumulated a distinguished record of service in varying fields—more so than any other member of the Kremlin ruling clique.

Bulganin was born in 1895 in Nizhni Novgorod (now Gorky) on the Volga River. His official Soviet biography does not discuss it, but it is abundantly apparent that his background is middle class. In those days Nizhni Novgorod was a center of commerce for all Russia. Its annual fair was famous throughout the whole world. It was natural therefore that young Bulganin should go to a commercial secondary school and graduate from it.

Bulganin, however, was swept up in the revolutionary currents which dominated Russian life before and during the war. He joined the Bolsheviks before the revolution.

Shortly after the revolution the young Communist regime found it necessary to establish a secret police in order to terrorize its many enemies. This institution which later evolved into such infamous institutions as the GPU (Gay-Pay-Oo) and the MVD (Ministry of Internal Affairs) was then known as the Cheka (from the two Russian letters "Ch" and "Ka" standing for Russian words meaning "extraordinary commission").

Young Bulganin was one of the first Communists named to work in this weapon of the Bolsheviks.

He became an expert in intelligence, counterintelligence, terror and the other functions of Soviet police dictatorship right at its start. He worked in the Cheka for four years.

In 1922 Bulganin went over to work in the organization in charge of Soviet economic developments and planning—the Supreme Council of the Economy. At the same time he managed to continue his schooling and acquire a technical education.

This engineering training led to the appointment which was to change his whole career. In 1927 Bulganin was made director of the Moscow Electric Factory. This was the period of the first five-year plan. Bulganin made his factory a model. He spearheaded the party drive to overfulfill the five-year plan in four years. He gained prominence and attracted the attention of the big men of the U.S.S.R. including Lazar Kaganovich, party boss of Moscow, and Stalin.

As a result he was made mayor of Moscow (chairman of the Moscow Soviet) in 1931. This involved responsibilities both administrative and ceremonial. The real bosses in the city were the party chiefs first Kaganovich and later Nikita Khrushchev, and Bulganin worked under them.

In the mid-1930s, Bulganin was in a group of Communist party career men selected to go to advanced military school, to get a rudimentary military education, and thus to be prepared for military responsibilities in event of war.

In 1937 Bulganin was named premier of the Russian republic (R.S.F.S.R.) to replace a man Stalin purged.

In 1938 he was advanced again—this time to become a deputy premier of the U.S.S.R. and chairman of the board of the State Bank.

Bulganin nevertheless held firmly to one career—in the leadership corps of the Communist party. He never became a veteran financier, a veteran engineer, a veteran municipal politician nor a veteran economist or secret policeman. He was one thing only at heart—a veteran Communist. And so it is today that he is first and only a Communist.

The military phase of Bulganin's work came with the war. In 1941 the Kremlin sent him to represent it in command of the most important Soviet army group. His title was "Member of the Military Council of the Western Front." This meant he gave the politburo's orders to generals and marshals on this council.

Maestro Trying to Atune End Costa Rica Fight, U.S. to Nature's Noises

By PHYLLIS BATTLE

NEW YORK (INS)—Andre Kostelanetz, the maestro who is married to music and Lily Pons, has figured out why we Americans are so disturbingly restless.

"We listen too much to the telephone," he says, "and we listen too little to nature."

He was lounging in a brocade chair before the fireplace of his Manhattan apartment. He looked placid, from his shiny round face to his shiny leather shoes. Suddenly he leaned forward.

"You hear?" he said.

We listened. A stray wind was wheezing and sighing somewhere up in the chimney.

"That's one of my sounds. A lonely sound, perhaps, but soothing. Everybody should have his personal sounds to listen for—sounds that will make him exhilarated and alive, or quiet and calm. Much better than the telephone."

"Telephones!" Kostelanetz growled melodically.

The maestro, along with his bosom-batonist Leopold Stokowski, is a pioneer in the field of high fidelity recording, and has always had an ear for a nice noise. However, he is particularly hip on the subject, having just returned from a tour of the Far East, accompanied by a highly competent tape recorder.

Together, they picked up all the strange, exotic noises to be heard, and a year or so from now these noises for the ear will be converted into a long-playing record to be called "Sounds of the World."

Among them was the mystic ritual sound of a Buddhist festival, the scream of mynah birds, the squawks of Bangkok lizards, the tooting of the Singapore water-front, the hooting of floating junks, the wild sounds of the Cambodian jungle as it wakes up at dawn.

"I may be a bit sound-wacky at the moment, you see," Kostelanetz concedes, "but basically I think I have a solid philosophy here."

"People look and feel and smell—but if they would listen more, a whole new world would open up to them and add another dimension to living."

For example, maestro?

"The most important time of day to listen perhaps is the morning because—if your mind is attuned to the idea—a familiar morning sound can be your harbinger of a good day."

"For people who live in the country, it may be a rooster crowing." (This would be a harbinger of wrath where I come from, but Mr. K. is an early riser.) "and in the city there are a variety of bird and children playing and wind sounds." (Turn off the alarm clock, friend, and dig that wind.)

Mr. Kostelanetz's own favorite morning sounds are the tooting of boats on the East River when he's in New York, and the clanging of the cable cars in San Francisco, and "a certain kind of special silence" when he's in Paris.

"As a matter of fact," he maintains, "one of the greatest sounds of them all—and to me it is a sound—is utter, complete silence."

"Turn your phonograph to screaming pitch and then abruptly shut it off. Even if it is a Kostelanetz record you were playing, Kostelanetz will tell you—"the ensuing silence is bliss."

So pick your sounds, he advises, and listen for them. If you stop hearing the jangling telephone and start hearing nature, you'll be a richer person.

Right you are, maestro. Think of the money we'll save in phone bills alone.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (U)—The leader of last month's unsuccessful revolt to oust Costa Rican President Jose Figueres urged his followers last night to "cease all armed resistance."

Former Costa Rican President Rafael A. Calderon Guardia, a political refugee in Nicaragua, said in a statement continuation of the fighting "will only serve Figueres to intensify his sadistic reprisals."

Calderon Guardia issued his statement after rebel remnants captured the north Costa Rican town of Los Chiles last week, then were driven out by airborne government troops.

The majority of the estimated 500 rebels had fled across Costa Rica's northern border and been interned in Nicaragua, but in Washington yesterday the Organization of American States Commission investigating the revolt said captives from Los Chiles had told OAS observers that some of their comrades, after being released from internment, had re-entered Costa Rica and resumed fighting.

Identify Suitor of Slain Student

Married Man Quizzed
in Vicious Sex Murder of NYU Coed

NEW YORK (U)—A married student, identified as a former boy friend of slain Anne Yarrow and one of the few persons who knew the location of her hideout flat, has been recalled by police for renewed questioning today.

A police official said, however, that the student is not a suspect.

Tall, 30-year-old Ernest Jackson was sent home early today after being closeted for eight hours with investigators assigned to the vicious murder of the 23-year-old woman graduate student.

Twice married and the father of a child, Jackson was a classmate of the murdered girl at a New York University postgraduate workshop on human relations.

Police said Jackson was the boy friend with whom Miss Yarrow broke recently and from whom she sought to hide in borrowing a friend's apartment. The secrecy of her hideout was given away, however, when she asked Jackson to come to the cheap, sixth-floor tenement last Tuesday to remove a dead cat, police said.

Miss Yarrow, an honor student and reportedly a sensitive, idealistic girl, was slain Sunday in the barely furnished apartment she borrowed from her friend Herta Payson, 22, who had left town for a 10-day visit home in South Carolina.

Miss Yarrow's body, found sprawled on a mattress on the floor, was stripped of all clothing but a sweater. She had been stabbed 37 times, strangled and sexually abused.

Miss Yarrow was described to police as a devout and gentle member of the Quaker faith.

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—A Michigan ex-Marine, missing since his discharge from the Marine Corps on Treasure Island three months ago, was found working in San Francisco at a gasoline station for $75 a week.

Last Oct. 27 Melvin D. Sharrar,

23, telephoned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Sharrar of Breckenridge, Mich., that he would be discharged Oct. 30 and would be home Nov. 5. He shipped his sea-bag and gear ahead and got an airline reservation.

"Then I changed my mind," Sharrar said. "I intended to write," he added, "but it just kept slipping my mind. I'm going to wire mother tonight."

Authorities from Michigan have been trying to locate the man, who received a hardship discharge from the Marines so he could help his ailing father on the family farm.

After Sharrar's picture was published in the San Francisco Examiner, one of the paper's reporters yesterday located his present home—501 Bay St.—through Marines who had served with him.

Sharrar told reporters he didn't want to go back to Michigan and become a farmer.

House to Pass Draft Extension

Four-Year Continuation Expected to Meet No Organized Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to extend the military draft for another four years was called up for House action today with no concerted opposition in sight and passage assured.

Secretary of Defense Wilson has described the draft as essential to maintain the strength of the armed services. The measure was approved 32-0 by the House Armed Services Committee last week.

The present draft law expires next June 30. The Senate has yet to act on an extension. Draft quotas are currently running around 11,000 men monthly.

The measure would continue until mid-1959 the government's authority to draft young men of 18½-26 years for two years active service, followed by six years obligation in the reserves.

Another of the Eisenhower administration's military manpower measures was taken up, meanwhile, by a House Armed Services subcommittee headed by Rep. Brooks (D-La.).

One provision is designed to insure that draftees keep up with their reserve obligations after completing active service. Another feature, a kind of test for universal military training, would provide that an annual quota of 100,000 volunteers be given six months' training, instead of two years' service as draftees, on condition they agree to another 9½ years' reserve obligation.

The Armed Services Committee

STRAW SCULPTURES—A Paris girl looks at a group of straw creations, flower basket, heron and peacock, made by Mme. Arlette Puget, wife of author Claude-Audre Puget.

proposed two changes in the draft law extension:

1. Youths who join the National Guard before the age of 18½ and serve continuously in it until they are 26 would be exempt from subsequent draft. They are liable now until 35.

2. Those serving six months or more in the uniformed services or 24 months in the public health service since September 1940 could not be inducted for a second tour of duty.

Spurned Suitor Held in Slaying

Charged With Shooting Man Who Tried to Stop Quarrel With Girl

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A spurned suitor surrendered himself meekly to police last night to climax a daylong hunt that followed the fatal shooting of one person and the gunpoint abduction of the suitor's ex-girl friend.

Russell Winterbottom, 33, surrendered after telephoning from a relative's home in nearby Turtle Creek for authorities to "come and pick me up." With him was Lorraine Rodgers, 20, whom witnesses said they saw forced into a car at gunpoint by Winterbottom.

He is charged with murder in the shooting of Walter W. Henry, 49, who lived in the same hotel as Miss Rodgers.

Police Supt. James W. Slusser said Henry was shot yesterday morning as he attempted to end a quarrel between Winterbottom and Miss Rodgers, Winterbottom's former girl friend.

Miss Rodgers told police and reporters afterwards that Winterbottom once threatened to kill both her and himself. She said, however, that she was unharmed during their ride over back roads. Late yesterday afternoon, she said, they heard a broadcast announcing Henry's death and she asked Winterbottom to surrender. She is held as a material witness.

Now, more than ever before, our people are on the move. Most frequently a newcomer has not personally selected our community. Business usually dictates his arrival. But our own people can make them glad they came. Welcome—and be helpful to newcomers. This Christian duty will make us many fine friends.

Only Car at its Price*...

So Smart! So Big! So Powerful!

*You can buy a big, powerful Pontiac for less than many models of the lowest-priced cars!

Whatever you want most in a car—beauty, size or performance—you get it in extra measure in a Pontiac. In fact, when you choose Pontiac the decision comes very easily—because Pontiac alone, at its price, gives you everything!

For example, take Pontiac's distinctive smartness. Certainly there is no question on this point. Pontiac is the one car that stands apart from all the others.

If it's size and big-car sure-footedness you want—Pontiac's your car! Pontiac's long wheelbase—124 inches in the Star

Chief, shown here, and 122 inches in the 860 and 870 series—is the plus wheelbase that provides the roominess, the comfort, the satisfying road-hugging security that only a big car can give.

As for performance—once you get behind the wheel you have all the proof you need that Pontiac is way ahead in this department, too. Pontiac's spectacular performance starts with the most modern engine of all—the powerful new Strato-Streak V-8—specifically designed for Pontiac's all-new chassis to give you balanced performance. That means smooth, eager getaway in traffic; power to spare on the open road; and even more of Pontiac's traditional economy, dependability and long life.

All this adds up to a wonderful car and—with Pontiac's remarkably low price tag—a very wonderful buy. Come in soon and talk dollars and cents. If you're in the market for any new car, you'll discover you can easily afford all the pride and pleasure of a big, powerful, luxury-loaded Pontiac.

YEARS AHEAD IN STYLE

Pontiac's unique twin-streak front-end beauty is only a hint of its years-ahead styling—smartness that teams exclusive Vogue Two-Tone colors with luxurious interior fabrics and appointments.

YEARS AHEAD IN POWER

Here is the most modern engine on the road, Pontiac's powerful new Strato-Streak V-8, a compact, beautifully designed power plant that gives you spectacular performance at all speeds—for years to come!

Support of Beating Probe Disrupts Carver Meeting

ROYAL OAK TOWNSHIP — A motion to support the investigation into the beating of the school board secretary sparked a meeting of the George Washington Carver school board last night.

Until board member James Harrison offered a motion to support the probe of the Jan. 12 beating of Mrs. Loretta Baker the meeting was quiet and orderly.

Catcalls sounded from residents attending the meeting when board member Rev. Chester Carter alone voted against the motion.

Mrs. Baker has told police she was beaten by three hooded assailants who demanded petitions seeking the recall of board member Harrison.

Mrs. Baker and Rev. Carter have been named in recall petitions filed by Harrison, and other board members with Mrs. Baker have filed a counter recall petition against Harrison.

Mrs. Baker said the petitions seeking to oust Harrison were the subject of the search of her assailants.

After Rev. Carter's veto, residents Otis Eaton and Rev. C. C. Bates demanded that Rev. Carter take a lie detector test in the controversy, which he refused to do.

Board members then voted to increase the bond on the board treasurer, Rev. Carter, from $30,000 to $150,000. Rev. Carter alone voted against this increase.

Set Hearing for Boy in TNT Threat Case

ARMADA — A Feb. 17 hearing has been set for an Armada juvenile who was taken into custody here Friday by Macomb County sheriff's deputies after he threatened to blow up his foster parents with a secret cache of dynamite.

A ward of the Macomb County Probate Court, the 16-year-old boy had threatened to blow up the Armada boarding home where he was staying, according to officers. Sheriff's deputies were called in, after another boy reported to the foster parents that the youth was in possession of dynamite.

Three sticks of dynamite and two one-pound containers of TNT subsequently were recovered by Sheriff's Det. Richard DeKietlaere and James P. Rocco, juvenile probation officer. Rocco said the dynamite apparently was fused to be set off.

Earlier in the week the boy had run away from the boarding home. Returning last Tuesday, he threatened to "blow up anyone who bothered him," the foster parents said.

The boy is being held at the Wayne County Juvenile Detention Home, pending the hearing. The case will come up before Macomb County Probate Judge Joseph V. Trombly at 10 a.m. on Feb. 17.

Woman Says One Is Never Too Old to Venture Into Something Different

Her Courage Pierced Age Barrier

By ANNE HEYWOOD

Some weeks ago we mentioned in this column a woman who felt that her life was over because she had just celebrated her fortieth birthday. She was completely convinced that she was too old for anything, too old to start a new venture, too old to enjoy life.

Well, in response to that woman some wonderful letters have come in, of which my favorite is from

Mrs. P. H., in Goshen, Indiana.

Here is what Mrs. P. H. writes: "In regard to the lady of 40, who felt that she was too old to venture into new activities, I felt that I would like to share my experience with others who feel as she did."

"I was left a widow at the age of 30, with three single daughters, the youngest of whom was nine.

We owned our little home which was very much in need of repair. I received an insurance check for the sum of $1,000.

"After paying funeral expenses the rest went toward obligations that had piled up during my husband's illness and other debts that had been incurred.

"The youngest daughter had an emergency operation seven weeks after the death of her father. You can imagine what we went through. But after a year of struggle I secured a job in a doctor's office as a cleaning woman.

"Now, after nearly 11 years I am still in the same office as bookkeeper, nurse, and general assistant.

"I feel one is never too old to venture into something new and different."

Isn't that a wonderful letter? Next time you find yourself alibiing because you're "too old," pause a minute and consider Mrs. P. H., who proves that life can begin at 50. And if you or any of your relatives or friends, have made a new start after your fortieth birthday, do write and let me share it with other women.

Use Lemon as Flavor in Pudding

Mrs. Donald Yerkes Makes Light Dessert for Entire Family

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Here is a recipe for a dessert that can be given to the children in the family as well as the adults. Mrs. Donald Yerkes shares her Lemon Pudding recipe with us today.

The wife of a teacher in Walled Lake High School, Mrs. Yerkes is another active young mother. She has one small daughter for whom she likes to sew and knit. Cooking is an activity she enjoys. The Commerce Home Extension group counts her as an interested member.

LEMON PUDDING

Mrs. Donald Yerkes

1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
2 eggs, separated
1/2 cup lemon juice
Rind of one lemon
Salt

Cream butter, add part of the sugar. Mix flour with remaining sugar and add to creamed mixture. Add egg yolks, then milk. Add salt, lemon juice and rind. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased 8x8-inch pan. Set pan in hot water and bake about one hour in a 350-degree oven.

Air Ducts Get Rid of Cold Mass

By HUBBARD COBB

We got talking the other day to a man in the heating business who told us that cold air flows just about like water.

He said that in a two story house that was heated by warm air it wasn't at all unusual to find a great mass of cold air flowing down the stairs from the second floor and then across the floors of one or more rooms on the first floor until it finally found a cold air return register. It then dove down this register and eventually got back to the furnace or to the basement.

He also said that in a well designed system, cold air return registers were located just to avoid allowing this cold mass of air to make downstairs rooms drafty and uncomfortable.

If you have a home where this condition occurs there are several things that can be done and some of them you can do yourself.

One easy trick is to install a floor register right at the bottom of the stairs. This will allow the cold air coming from upstairs to get back to the basement and not create drafts in downstairs rooms.

Another trick is to install floor registers in upstairs rooms directly over rooms below that have cold air return registers. This will allow the cold air from upstairs to get back to the basement in a hurry without having to travel all over the house.

Naturally, the best remedy of all is to install cold air ducts where necessary to carry the cold air back to the furnace but this is a job that usually requires the services of a professional.

Communication Problem Concerns Babbling Bore

By MARY MARGARET McBRIDE

Apparently it's not (as I thought and said in a recent column) getting conversation started that's the real communication problem. It's controlling the excess flood without giving offense.

At least that's what the mail indicates. A typical sample: "I can find subjects to talk about all right if only I can stop the other person's mouth long enough to get anything said."

Wishing to be helpful, I have consulted authorities and evolved a method. Suppose it's a story-repeater you want to stop. "Did I tell you the story about Charles and the horse-meat?" she asks. If she has, say loudly, "Yes, you did." If she persists anyway, interrupt and insist firmly, "you did tell me." And if she still goes on, simply tell her about Charles and the horse-meat—in detail.

Maybe it's the long-winded bore, the one whose specialty is recounting in gruesome minutiae motion picture plots, trips over the Mohawk Trail or why Alice isn't on the school honor roll.

The most effective treatment here, I'm assured, is for the listener to keep his eyes painstakingly darting about the room, concentrating attention now on a hangnail, now on a crooked picture which he straightens. Occasionally, too, he breaks in with irrelevant remarks ("Aren't those peanut butter sandwiches good?" "Did the bank finally get hold of you about the overdraft?")

If all these fail, then create a diversion. Say you think you hear the telephone or the doorbell or inquire if the furnace isn't making a funny noise. Then before the long-winded one can resume, ask a question far removed from his or her subject ("Say, wasn't it too bad about the pastor's wife and the burglar in Bermuda shorts?")

I do believe the anecdote-addict is the most deadly of the non-stop talkers. "Of all bores whom man in his folly hesitates to hang," said Thomas De Quincey, "the most insufferable is the teller of good stories"—a nuisance that should be put down by cudgeling, by submerison in horse ponds or any other mode of abatement. Especially the one, usually a man, who tells stories with accents.

One of the worst of these in my experience was a gentleman with a reputation for Texas stories. The very best way to combat this type is to wait until he's finished his first, and while he's breathing deep before launching his second, you leap in and do one in his accent.

If you do it badly enough he may drop the whole thing. Or of course he may settle down patiently to coach you. In this case, better remember an engagement you'd forgotten and walk right out of there.

If you can't because you're unfortunately the host—well, bores, like everybody else, hate to be bored. So if you can bring yourself to it, there's one unfailing rule: Just be more boring than he is!

From its formation until March 3, 1871, the United States government entered into 371 treaties with American Indian tribes.

Pin Corsage on Formal on Arrival

Girl Can Drop Hint for Beau's Gifts on Many Occasions

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

"Dear Miss Woodward: I'm attending my first big dance and I'd like to know if it is proper to pin on my corsage after I get there. I don't want to crush it under my coat. Would it be proper to wear it on my shoulder right instead of my left?"

You can carry your corsage in its box (after you've opened it enthusiastically at home and tried it against your shoulder before his admiring eyes).

That would protect the flowers until you get to the dance. Or you could pin your corsage to your coat. Your right shoulder is the safest place to wear it to avoid crushing it while dancing.

"Dear Miss Woodward: Is it customary for a man to give a girl he's been going with for five years, and is supposed to love, gifts for Christmas, Valentine's Day and birthdays? He can afford it."

It's normal and customary for a man to want to shower gifts upon his love if he can afford it. But whether he does or not is a different matter.

Some men are forgetful, others are thoughtless, others are stingy, and some just don't even think about such things. If your man doesn't crash through on occasions when you think he should, you can show your disappointment and raise quite a ruckus. Or you can give him gifts at important times and show him by your example how very sweet it is to be remembered.

"Dear Miss Woodward: I'm thinking of having a surprise birthday party for a boy I like and I need your help. His birthday comes on a Monday, and that night he collects for his papers, so should I have the party that day or at some other time near the date?"

How could I get him over to my house? What could I serve for refreshments and what are some games we could play?"

A surprise party can be a delightful surprise—or a pain in the neck. It's the later if the guest of honor fails to show up. You'd better be sure he'll come to the party before you invite anybody else. Plan it for the Saturday night before, instead of his birthday, which is a school night.

And use the game and refreshment ideas in my Games booklet which I'm rushing off to you to help with your planning. Anyone else who'd like to have a free copy can have one by writing me for it, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

When you go into a restaurant alone and see two friends having lunch together, don't assume you'll be wanted by saying, "Do you care if I join you?" They may be having lunch together in order to discuss private matters. So just say "Hello" cordially and if they ask you to join them you will know you are welcome.

Some people are put out when others butt in.

Her Family Responsible for Wedding

Criticism Won't Be Directed Toward His Parents

By EMILY POST

The mother of a bridegroom asks: "Does the man's family have any say at all about the wedding arrangements? Our son is going to marry a girl who has had very little social advantages and from what I have heard of the wedding plans so far, knows nothing whatever about how a wedding should be conducted."

"I am very anxious that this wedding be perfect in every detail as there will be many important people present and I do not want them to think that we do not know any better."

"The bride is a perfectly nice person and I do not want to hurt her feelings, but, on the other hand, neither do I want our friends to criticize. Will you tell me how I can tell her in a tactful way that certain details are wrong?"

You are not in any way responsible for the details of the wedding. That is entirely the concern of the bride's family and everyone knows it and therefore no one will criticize you for anything about the wedding which may not be perfect. If something is being very badly done, perhaps you can say to the bride, "Don't you think it would be nicer if it were done this way instead?"

Dear Mrs. Post: Does one have to buy an item that typifies a particular wedding anniversary? Don't you think it would make more sense to buy something you know for sure would be more acceptable, regardless of what year the couple are celebrating?

I certainly agree that it makes far more sense to buy something you know the anniversary couple will like rather than something they would not like just because it typifies the particular anniversary.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is one ever expected to tip the doorman and elevator man in an apartment house of a friend whom one goes to visit often?

Doormen, yes—now and again—if he goes out to call you a taxi, or help you get into your car (or to get others to move their cars and let you move out of a block). You might also tip the elevator man on less frequent occasions.

He who hesitates has lost the last seat on the bus.

Berlin Orchestra Plans U.S. Tour

Both Cultural, Political Significance in Visit, Manager Says

BERLIN (AP)—The Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra is going to the United States this month for a tour of 19 cities. The trip may show whether music lovers there are willing to forget about the tainted past of some of its members.

"We consider it significant, both culturally and politically, that 10 years after the war we have a chance to go to America," says the orchestra manager, Gerhart von Westernman.

The orchestra's temporary conductor Herbert von Karajan was a Nazi party member. So were Von Westernman and some of the orchestra's 103 members. Roughly half of them played in the orchestra during the war. In return, they received the supreme favor from Adolf Hitler — exemption from military duty.

"It is possible there will be no objections to us," Von Westernman conceded in an interview. "If there are, we hope we can win over the objectors through our music."

"We must prove that music has nothing to do with politics."

The tour opens Feb. 27 in Washington. Other cities to be visited are New York; Chicago; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Cleveland; Cincinnati; Lexington, Ky.; Bloomington, Ill.; Milwaukee; Ann Arbor, Mich.; Columbus, Ohio; Detroit; Rochester, N.Y.; Syracuse, N.Y.; Boston; Hartford, Conn.; Baltimore; and Newark, N.J.

Wants Pickle Packers to Pack More Pickles

DES MOINES, Iowa (UP)—State Rep. Don Petrucci introduced a new bill in the Legislature yesterday which is likely to identify him with an old nursery rhyme.

The bill would make it illegal for pickle packers to put more juice than pickles in pickle jars.

A new escape device being installed at siphons on the big Gateway Canal in Utah by the Bureau of Reclamation will skim men or animals off the surface of the fast moving water before they can be sucked into the tunnel-like siphons.

Salk Vaccine Results Not Due for While Yet

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., head of the Salk polio vaccine evaluation center at the University of Michigan, says no one now has more than a "limited view" of the data being compiled from last year's field tests.

Dr. Francis said yesterday that extreme precaution is being taken to safeguard against premature disclosure of the results of the field tests.

Some two million children took part in the nationwide tests to try out a substance that polio fighters hope will provide immunity against infantile paralysis. Ten Michigan counties participated.

Some of the children were given the vaccine. Others were given a harmless control substance, as useless against polio as water.

Only the vaccine evaluation center knows which children received the Salk vaccine and which received the control substance.
