All Dressed Up for Birthday Celebration

Pontiac Press Photo

ONCE UPON A TIME—There were two little boys and two little girls and they happened to be four years old on the same day—Jan. 10. Happy, healthy youngsters, the Rosebush quads of Oakwood will celebrate their fourth birthday Monday at a quiet family party. Left to right, Kristine, Kenny, Keith and Krystal are showing how they have learned to read from pictures. Five days a week they watch the school bus pick up their older sister, Dorothy, and wish for the day they can go off to kindergarten. Meanwhile they attend the nursery class of their Sunday School each week.

Army Says John Adams, Gen. Weible OKed Honorable Discharge for Peress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said last night final approval of an honorable discharge for Maj. Irving Peress—an action opposed by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis)—came from Army Counselor John G. Adams and Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, a deputy chief of staff.

The Army announcement sparked preparations by McCarthy for a new probe of the case.

Adams and Weible made the final decision to discharge Peress, the Army said, because a review indicated "there existed no basis for reconsideration of the case" and that the discharge was the best and quickest way to remove him in the absence of evidence he had engaged in subversion on active duty.

In a 10,000-word chronology of the case, the Army noted, however, that the 1st Army intelligence division had reported nine months earlier it had "sufficient evidence of disloyal and subversive tendencies to warrant removal of Peress from the service."

The Army also reported Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, a frequent target of McCarthy during the senator's initial study of the case, had several times urged Peress be discharged because his retention was "clearly not consistent with the interest of national security."

Zwicker was commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., where Peress was stationed.

McCarthy, swinging quickly back into action, called a Monday meeting of the Senate Investigations subcommittee and said he would demand new hearings, possibly Tuesday, with subpoenas for some Army officials concerned. McCarthy said he is still acting as chairman of the committee until it is reorganized under Democratic control.

Peress is the New York dentist whom McCarthy has called a "Fifth Amendment Communist" and who was discharged after he had refused to answer questions about Communist affiliations in an appearance before McCarthy's subcommittee.

Adams and Weible were among 62 persons named in the Army chronology as having had a part at one time or another in the promotion and discharge of Peress. Adams was the only civilian. Others ranged from warrant officers who signed papers to a four-star general, Charles L. Bolte, vice chief of staff, who approved an officers' board finding that Peress should be discharged.

Adams declined to comment beyond saying "the chronology

Mother's Suicide Casts Shadow on Appeal Fight

Dr. Sam in New Cell Under Constant Watch After News of Death

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard was given permission today to attend the Monday afternoon funeral of his mother, Mrs. Ethel Sheppard, who committed suicide yesterday by shooting herself.

Grief and hope were companions to Sheppard today in his county jail cell—grief over his mother's suicide and hope he would win freedom on bail and an appeal from his life sentence for murder.

The cell was not the same one where the handsome, 31-year-old osteopath has spent all but four weeks since July 4 when his wife, Marilyn, was clubbed to death in her bed. A jury convicted Sheppard of the crime Dec. 21.

After he got the news that his white-haired mother had shot herself to death, Sheppard was moved, in spite of his protests, to the jail's observation cell where he will be under constant watch.

Prisoners are put in the observation cell when it is feared they may commit violence to themselves.

Members of his family who told Sheppard of his mother's death yesterday afternoon said he had "broken down completely," but he regained his composure before transferring to the new cell.

"Mother was very proud," said Sheppard's oldest brother, Richard, one of those who visited the jail. "She had complete faith in Sam's innocence, but all of this was just too much for her."

Her husband of 39 years, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, is hospitalized with pleurisy. In a carefully penned two-sentence suicide note she wrote: "I can't manage without dad. Thanks for everything."

Although Sheppard telephoned his 64-year-old mother from the jail, he did not want her to see him in those surroundings and she did not visit him or attend the trial. Much of the time she was ill with a heart ailment. She suffered a stroke two months ago.

She last saw her youngest son when he was released on bail Aug. 16, meeting him with open arms on her front porch. A grand jury indictment returned him to jail after 30 hours freedom.

Just about the time yesterday morning that Sheppard's mother

Rebates Coming for Users of Gas

Consumers Power Ups Rates to Offset Boost Granted Supplier

DETROIT (UP)—Michigan gas users will get rebates on bills paid prior to last April as soon as the Federal Power Commission determines the exact amounts involved, James H. Lee, corporation counsel, said yesterday.

Lee said the refund, part of a $29,000,000 fund held in escrow by the Panhandle Pipeline Co., will be returned through Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., Consumers Power Co. and other Panhandle affiliates.

The fund was amassed when Panhandle overcharged the subsidiary firms last April, Lee said.

Panhandle was allotted a rate increase by the FPC but the increase was smaller than the one the company had sought. It was allowed to collect rates at the increased rate until April.

Lee said the refund is being held up by a dispute between Panhandle and the FPC on the amount involved in the overcharging.

Meanwhile, Consumers Power Co. yesterday said it would increase rates about $1,500,000 Feb. 1 to offset the boost by Panhandle.

The move would mean a 2 or 3 per cent increase for Consumers' 390,000 Michigan customers.

Company spokesmen, who plan to file the new rate schedules with the Michigan Public Service Commission, said the increase is above present rates but lower than rates existing before May 1954.

Some Motorists Wouldn't Be Able to See for Flags

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Mayor Abe Aronovitz proposed today a "psychological approach" to the problem of reckless driving on city streets.

His solution would be to make every convicted violator carry a flag on his automobile, of various colors to show the degree of the offense.

"We could make it a little green flag for a first conviction," he said. "For a second one, the driver would have a yellow flag on his car.

"For drunken driving, we'd make the flag red. It would have to stay on the car for a given period, say a year or two."

Aronovitz said he was making the proposal to the Miami traffic engineer and "I'd want him to talk it over with a couple of psychiatrists."

He said he realized "it sounds a little crazy."

Rosebush Quads to Mark Fourth Birthday Monday

Time marches on in the Rosebush home up at Oakwood.

The days between Jan. 10, 1951 and Jan. 10, 1955 are recorded in memories of diapers and pins, bonnets and rattles, kiddie cars and an over-sized perambulator plus warm bottles for four every three hours.

Today it's Bermuda socks, saddle shoes, bow ties and cuff links on white shirts for a healthy pair of boys and a pretty pair of girls who will each blow out four candles on four cakes Jan. 10.

Keith, Kenneth, Kristine and Krystal Rosebush, whose arrival four years ago was anxiously awaited by their parents and three big sisters, are growing up.

They spend long hours in the fresh air chasing a make-believe football, or, if the weather permits, shaping snow men and snow women in their own image (and there are always four.)

Today, too, its hours in front of the television learning new stories and songs, memorizing verses and reciting their ABCs. They've learned to count via TV and their fingers.

Their mutual concern, the quartet reveals, is that school is a year and a-half away and

Two Americans Freed by Reds

John H. Noble, Detroit, Released in Berlin After Years in Captivity

BERLIN (AP) — Two Americans held for years in Soviet captivity were released in Berlin today.

The men are Pvt. William T. Marchuk, 38, of Brackenridge, Pa., and John H. Noble, 31, of Detroit. Marchuk has been missing since February, 1949, when he crossed the frontier in Germany with a buddy, Pvt. William Verdine, of Starks, La.

Noble was arrested, with his father, in Dresden when the Russians stormed into the collapsing Third Reich.

The elder Noble, a camera manufacturer, had come to Germany in 1938 and was trapped by the war. He was released in 1952 after seven years in Soviet zone jails.

American authorities said both men appeared in good health but that they will be given an extensive physical examination in the Army hospital here.

In the meantime, they are being questioned by Intelligence authorities.

Noble, a slightly built man, was cheerful as he arrived at the headquarters of the U. S. Army's provost marshal. He told U.S. Consul Norman K. Pratt that he was "delighted" to cooperate with any interrogators and added:

"I have a lot to tell."

Marchuk, still wearing the little dark moustache he affected as a soldier in West Berlin, lapsed into sullen silence.

GOP Gets Bids for Convention

Philadelphia Supported by Sen. Martin; Dems Name Aug. 27 Date

WASHINGTON (UP) — A Republican committee which will select a site for the 1956 GOP national convention heard bids today from Chicago, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

While the Republicans considered sites for theig national meeting, the Democrats pulled a surprise by choosing Aug. 27 as the opening date of their 1956 convention.

It will be the first time in 29 years the Democrats have held a national convention later than July. The Republicans have not yet selected a date for their convention.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said the later date was fixed after consultation with the executive committee and party leaders and will be recommended to the full national committee at its next meeting.

Butler said the Democrats have not selected a site for their convention but will do so soon.

At today's meeting of the GOP site committee, Sen. Edward Martin (R-Pa) urged that Philadelphia be selected. He pointed out that 1956 will mark the 100th anniversary of the first Republican convention and that that meeting was held in Philadelphia in June, 1856.

He said Philadelphia also would make an appropriate site for the convention because it is "the birthplace of American freedom."

At Automobile Show

New Pontiacs, GM Trucks Top Attractions in Chicago

By JOHN W. FITZGERALD
Assistant Editor

CHICAGO—The 1955 Pontiacs and GMC Trucks were among the top attractions at a special Friday night preview of the 47th annual Chicago Automobile show.

The show is being held in the International Amphitheatre and opens to the public at 2 p.m. today. The show includes 1955 production passenger cars, over 40 trucks and 55 displays of accessories.

"Color" is the keynote of this year's show which catches everyone's eye as they view the $10,000,000 exhibit which includes some of the fanciest dream-cars ever designed by the world's great automobile engineers.

On display are 18 makes of passenger cars which include: Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Chrysler, DeSoto, Dodge, Ford, Hudson, Kaiser, Lincoln, Mercury, Nash, Oldsmobile, Packard, Plymouth, Pontiac, Studebaker, and Willys.

The eight truck lines represented are Chevrolet, Dodge, Ford, GMC, Hendrickson, International Harvester, Studebaker and Willys.

Jerry H. Cisek, chairman of the show committee, expects the attendance to run well over last year's total of 467,000. With the competition running at an all time high between manufacturers this year they have come up with some terrific automobiles, both in the stock line and cars of the future.

The setting for this colorful show in the large Chicago arena is neutral tones of gray, silver and off white. In displaying their cars, the manufacturers have the latest models, many just off the production lines, in the fanciest array of colors one can imagine. Two and three tone cars starting with a brilliant red and covering the rainbow are the style for the 1955 automobiles.

Top executives of the automobile companies, truck companies, and

$101 Billion Seen in Roads Report

Highway Advisers Will Recommend Huge Sum for Updating Routes

WASHINGTON (AP)—A presidential commission is prepared to recommend a 101-billion-dollar state and federal highway program to run over the next 10 years.

The five-man advisory commission headed by retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay agreed yesterday to recommend to President Eisenhower federal sponsorship of a 54-billion-dollar addition to the 47 billions which state and federal governments normally would spend in the 10-year period.

Eisenhower is expected to stay pretty close to the group's line of reasoning when he submits his highway program to Congress Jan. 27.

It wraps up (1) Eisenhower's own "grand plan" for additional expenditure of about 54 billions to modernize American highways for maximum use in a possible national emergency, and (2) present plans calling for spending of 47 billions on highway improvements.

All but 10 billion of this latter amount would come out of the state coffers. No definite figures were given on the added amount the states would be expectd to provide under the expanded program.

As outlined by Turner, the commission proposal calls for the federal government to pay "substantially all" of the approximately 24-billion-dollar cost of updating the 40,000 mile "strategic network" of interstate highways.

It was considered likely the highway bonds would not be charged against the national debt, but would be incorporated into a separate fund.

Slain President's Brother Will Get Panama Post

PANAMA (AP)—The younger brother of assassinated President Jose Antonio Remon has been tapped for the job as government minister in Panama's Cabinet to take over the six-day-old hunt for the slayers.

President Jose Ramon Guizado, who was sworn into office shortly after his predecessor was machinegunned to death last Sunday, was expected to announce the appointment of Alejandro Remon to the key cabinet post later today. The government minister controls the National Guard, Panama's only armed force, and the nation's secret police.

Despite the continuing nationwide hunt for the slayers no major developments were reported.

State Will Spend $3,500 to Put Up Snow Fences

LANSING (AP) — Michigan will spend about $3,500 this year to keep motorists from getting snowed under on state trunklines.

State Highway Department crews are preparing snow fences for installation along roadways, where they will prevent snow from drifting into the path of traffic.

The job will require 251 miles of wire. The wire will be used to fasten the snow fence to steel stakes in the ground.

Hammarskjold, Chou Complete Five-Hour Talks

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio reported Dag Hammarskjold and Premier Chou En-lai met for more than five hours this evening regarding the 11 U. S. airmen imprisoned by Red China as "spies."

It was the longest closed-door session of the three held thus far. The broadcast gave no details aside from those attending the session but said another meeting would be held Monday.

Today's meeting between the secretary general, and the Chinese Communist leader began at 3 p.m. and continued until 8:10 p.m.

There has been no hint of a possible stalemate. Notably absent from the broadcasts since Hammarskjold's arrival three days ago have been the usual old charges of U.S. "espionage."

Grandchildren Visit President

Ike Calls Time Out for Relaxing at Lodge After Work on Legislation

THURMONT, Md. (AP)—President Eisenhower called time out today from preparation of legislative messages to Congress and relaxed with his grandchildren at his Catoctin Mountain lodge here.

The President's favorite weekend retreat reportedly was noisier than usual because of the presence of the children, but he always looks forward to having them around.

Barbara Anne, 5, and Susan, 3, accompanied him from Washington by car for the 70-mile drive to Camp David.

Also along are the President's wife; the children's mother, Mrs. John S. Eisenhower; and the First Lady's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, who went first to Gettysburg for a look at the Eisenhowers' new home nearing completion on the Civil War battlefield there.

Shortly before leaving Washington, the President completed work on a foreign trade message he will send to Congress Monday. Awaiting final touches when he returns to the White House are two other messages which will go to the Capitol next wek.

One of them, to be submitted Tuesday, will call for pay raises for civil service and postal workers, and for a hike in postal rates. The other message, going to the lawmakers Thursday, will set forth the administration's new manpower-reserve program and recommend selective pay increases for members of the armed forces.

The three messages scheduled for next week will be the first of a series detailing the 1955 legislative program the President outlined in general terms in his State of the Union message last Thursday.

The President and his party plan to return to Washington tomorrow evening.

Fisher Workers Approve Strike

Local 596 Spokesmen Charge Production Speed-Up

A strike which could close down the Fisher Body plant here within 35 days has been approved by 93 per cent of 2,913 union members who cast votes Thursday, Fisher Body Local 396 (UAW-CIO) officials said yesterday.

The locally authorized walkout would also shut production at the Pontiac Motor Division, for which Fisher produces bodies.

William Medlock, Local 596 president, has indicated UAW-CIO International headquarters in Detroit will be asked to sanction the strike now that the workers have approved the work stoppage.

The local contends company management has speeded up production and established "higher production standards than we can give."

By union by-laws, 66 per cent of the votes cast must be in favor of a strike before one can be called. Local 596 has approximately 5,000 members, according to Medlock.

The walk-out could take place 35 days after headquarters in Detroit was notified and following five days of negotiations, he said.

Pontiac Motor Local Seeks Strike Vote

Pontiac Motor Local 653 (UAW-CIO) will ask permission of its membership tomorrow to take a strike vote.

A meeting for the local's 12,000 members will be held at 2:30 p.m. in the union hall at 386 Kennett Rd.

The union charges that Pontiac Motor division managment, in trying to meet stepped up production schedules, is not supplying enough manpower to do the job without creating speedups.

Michigan Court Ruling Snags Parking Lot Plan

BIRMINGHAM—Parks and parking are problems plaguing the City Commission. Having just come up with a controversial plan to move Shain Park one block south and use the old landmark for a parking area, the city has also been notified that the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled against it in a lawsuit concerning Baldwin Park.

City Manager Donald C. Egbert said an appeal will be made in the case between the city, Baldwin Manor, Inc. and others, since the court had reversed a previous decision. The city proposed two years ago to cut Merrill street across Southfield and the park to join West Maple avenue.

Both the Oakland County Circuit Court and State Supreme Court ruled that the city's proposal violated the terms under which the property was deeded Birmingham by the late Martha Baldwin.

The reversal, in which the court said heirs and property owners adjacent to a park have certain rights and should therefore receive the cost of damages, would seriously hinder not only Birmingham, but other cities in their park operations, Egbert stated.

Williams Drops Split Bond Idea

Advisory Unit Convinces Governor $500 Million Needed on Main Routes

LANSING (AP) — Gov. Williams' highway advisory committee apparently has persuaded him to drop his theory that a 500 million dollar highway construction bond issue should be divided between the state, the cities and the counties.

But it did not make any apparent headway in convincing him he was wrong in insisting the half-billion dollar bond issue could be financed without an increase in gas and weight taxes.

Williams, pushing hard to get the bond issue plan on the April election ballot, seemed to give way before the almost unanimous opinion of the committee that the money should be earmarked for main trunklines of the state which carry the most traffic.

The same group hammered at the theory that the bond issue could not be financed out to present revenues without taking money which must be spent to maintain and build secondary roads.

Williams told the group "not all the taxpayers are represented here, so I won't push that question now. You gentlemen might agree that a five-cent increase in the gas tax is all right, but what does the fellow with the 1939 jalopy think? I want to talk to more people about this."

The committee insisted that the public would be willing to add one cent to the present 4½ cent a gallon gas tax if they could get better roads.

Williams leaped at a suggestion from William Palmer, secretary of the petroleum industries committee, that the 500 million dollar bond issue was only an "interim" solution to a much bigger problem.

He seized on this as a method of surmounting the obstacle created by the legislative-automotive safety foundation survey which will not be completed until next fall. The Michigan Good Roads Federation and others have been arguing that the bond issue should not be pushed until the complete survey of Michigan road needs is completed.

Soviet Sending Youths to Till Siberian Farms

MOSCOW (AP)—Kicking off a government drive to send thousands of youths to till virgin lands in Siberia, Nikita Khrushchev told Soviet young people last night to settle down and raise families for the good of the country.

The government hopes to bring previously untilled lands in central and northern Asia into production, particularly for grain to feed the population. A leader of Komsomol, the Communist Youth League, said more than 3,000 youths in Moscow alone had volunteered for such work.

Firemen Barred as Homes Burn

8 Houses Just Outside Town Boundary Denied Protection by Law

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Eight families lost their homes early today in an unprotected area just outside Little Rock only two blocks from city fire protection.

Twenty-five men, women and children huddled in cold, damp night air watching the flames lick the charred foundations of their homes. Only two houses in a 10-home settlement escape the blaze.

There were no injuries.

Mrs. Francis Robinson, who said she and her father, W.P. Stanford, owned the frame houses in the settlement, was unable to estimate the loss. She said the fire apparently started in an empty house and soon spread to seven dwellings.

A hundred volunteers fought the blaze in a bucket-brigade. There were about 300 spectators.

A spokesman for the Little Rock fire department said a city ordinance forbids sending equipment outside the city limits.

"Within half an hour our telephone jangled with at least 25 calls reporting the fire," the spokesman said.

Rosebush Quads Four Years Old

they know they are ready for kindergarten now.

"I can read," says Keith.

"I can sing," says Krystal.

"I can count," says Kenneth.

"And I like to play with other boys and girls," proudly boasts Kristine who feels she is socially ready for this experience.

Look-alikes, the Rosebush quads who used to laugh at the same time and cry in unison have broken the shackles of uniformity and are now complete individuals.

Keith, particularly, says Mrs. Rosebush, strives to be different.

"It seems to be awfully important to him to refuse to go along with what the other three want to do. Parents of other quads we correspond with tell us that they find, too, that one of the group will go to great lengths to prove his individuality, she continued.

It has already become part of the boys' manly code not to cry. The girls shed tears when the occasion seems fitting, states Mrs. Rosebush, but the boys merely watch and help them dry their eyes

Kenny explains that the girls' idea of games generally is playing house, but he says that he and brother Keith get awfully tired of playing "Daddy."

"It is more fun to be cats or dogs or cowboys. You can make more noise and don't always have to be so nice," he says.

Their fourth year, according to their mother, has been a healthy one.

"With the exception of a rare cold, they have been well and happy youngsters."

On the scales today Krystal and Keith hit tops at 36 pounds with Kristine following at 34½ pounds and Kenny the lightweight at 33.

put a snub-nose revolver to her right ear and ended her life in a locked bedroom at the home of her other son, Dr. Stephen Sheppard, new legal maneuvers were started by Atty William J. Corrigan.

Corrigan did this yesterday:

(1) Filed notice of intention to appeal to a higher court the conviction that ended the 10-week trial. Because of the heavy docket and the two-million-word record of the trial, the three-judge Appellate Court here is unlikely to rule on the appeal for at least six months.

(2) Asked the Appellate Court to continue a stay of execution of sentence and to release Sheppard on bail, pending a decision on the appeal. These requests will be heard Jan. 17. The state contends Sheppard is not bailable under a 1953 Ohio law which will be meeting its first challenge.

(3) Withdrew "without prejudice" a motion for a new trial on the basis of "newly discovered evidence," Corrigan gave no reason for asking dismissal of the motion and would not discuss it. He still has 100 days left to reintroduce it, however.

Under his second - degree - murder conviction, Sheppard is eligible for parole 10 years after he is transferred to Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus.

Ziegler, Ex-Aide Swap Charges

Blame Each Other for Attempt to Pay 'Illegal' Claim to Pontiac Couple

LANSING (AP) — State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler and a former subordinate blamed each other today for a Highway Department attempt to pay a $4,996 damage claim declared illegal by the attorney general's office.

The conflict arose out of the report by Atty. Gen. Thomas M. Kavanagh that the Highway Department was prevented a year ago from paying $4,996 to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C. Newstead of Pontiac.

Ziegler said the claim was prepared and approved by Asst. Atty. Gen. James M. Kane, then head of Ziegler's land and legal division.

Kane told Kavanagh that Ziegler "ordered me to put through the voucher despite the objection of the attorney general's office."

Kavanagh quoted Kane as saying the claim was presented directly to Ziegler by Glenn C. Gillespie, Pontiac attorney for the Newsteads.

Ziegler said that Kane first presented him with a claim for $12,500 and then had "additional contacts and discussions with Gillespie as a result of which the claim was reduced to $4,996. The voucher has Kane's stamp of approval on it, dated Dec. 16, 1953."

Kavanagh said he had copies of letters written Oct. 5 and Nov. 27, 1953, from Asst. Atty. Gen. Eugene Townsend to Ziegler advising him the state should not pay the claim.

The voucher was issued Dec. 15, Kavanagh said, and stopped Dec. 29 by the auditor general.

Ziegler said he never saw the Townsend letters.

The damage claim arose over state attempts to stop a building being erected on land which the Highway Department claimed belonged to the state.

Army Names Two in Peress Discharge speaks for itself."

Gen. Weible was not immediately available.

Peress could not be reached for comment.

The chronology was released after a copy was furnished to Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass), who had asked Secretary of the Army Stevens for it. Stevens said the full details were being made public because confidential handling of an earlier list of 30 names "has been misinterpreted in some places."

McCarthy said he would demand the subpoena, possibly for appearance on Tuesday, of Stevens, Adams, Weible and Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker. The latter, who was commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., where Peress was stationed, was questioned sharply by McCarthy at hearings early last year.

McCarthy said he wanted to know why Stevens "didn't give this information" (in the chronology) to the committee headed by Sen. Mundt (R-SD) which investigated the McCarthy-Army controversy last summer

McCarthy told newsmen "a great deal of perjury apparently was committed" during the Mundt committee hearings. The senator contended also the new list of 61 names was "completely different from a list of 30 names given him last year.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), who is to succeed McCarthy as chairman of the Senate Investigating subcommittee which inquired into the Peress case, commented "it is strange that it has taken this long to disclose the facts, if these are the facts in the case."

In offering the new and detailed explanation of the Peress case, the Army took pains to defend Gen. Zwicker. It said Zwicker had urged upon several occasions, that Peress be discharged because his retention was "clearly not consistent with the interests of national security." Zwicker also opposed Peress' promotion to major, the report said.

McCarthy's sharp questioning of Zwicker after Peress was discharged brought Army charges McCarthy had mistreated the general, and was a major factor in bringing on the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Marian Anderson Greeted by Tears, Applause at Met

NEW YORK (AP)—Amid applause and cheers — and a few tears—American contralto Marian Anderson became last night the first of her race to sing with the Metropolitan Opera.

And the warm welcome given the first Negro singer in the Met's 70-year history proved but the prelude to an artistic success by the famed concert performer. Critics were unanimous in praise of her rich and moving voice, heard in the second scene of Act I of Verdi's 'Un Ballo In Maschera".

W.G. Rogers, associated press arts editor, had this to say:

"The only color that counted was the color of her voice, which has been one of the richest and most moving in her generation . . . She evaded none of the vocal responsibilities of her part . . ."

Music Festival Popular in State

4-Day Extravaganza at U. of M. Features Top Entertainers

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Probably no musical performance gains more widespread attention in Michigan than the annual May Festival "extravaganza" at the University of Michigan.

It rivals television's "spectaculars" for its selection of musical stars and it runs a good deal longer—four whole days.

Heading this year's festival is the Philadelphia symphony orchestra, conducted by Eugene Ormandy, mezzo-soprano Rise Stevens, conductor Thor Johnson, pianist Rudolf Serkin.

Besides these, there are contralto Nell Rankin, violinist Jeanne Mitchell, baritone William Warfield, tenor Leslie Chabay, pianist Grant Johannesen and two Canadian singers, soprano Lois Marshall and baritone Morley Meredith.

The festival which begins Thursday, March 5, will feature six concerts by the Philadelphia Symphony, Beethoven's "Misse Solemnis" by the 330 voice University Choral Union and selections by the 400 voice Festival Youth Chorus.

Four members of the Philadelphia Symphony; John DeLancie, oboe; Anthony M. Gigliotti, clarinet; Sol Schoenback, bassoon; and Mason Jones, horn, will present Mozart's "Symphonia Concertante."

The festival in its 62nd year, is the highlight of a fall to spring program of top musical performances at the university.

MSC Mulling New Test Area

40 - Acre - Farm Willed by Recluse Considered for Agriculture Station

EAST JORDAN (AP) — The inheritance of a 40-acre farm, willed to Michigan State College by Frank H. Foote, may bring a long awaited agricultural test station to northern Michigan.

Foote, 78-year-old Charlevoix County recluse who died last December, bequeathed cash and securities to charity, his body to medical research and his farm to the college.

Arthur K. Rouse of Boyne City, a member of the state Board of Agriculture which governs the school, said yesterday two attorneys have been assigned by the college to attend a Feb. 2 hearing on the will.

Rouse said the college hopes to obtain the farm for a northern Michigan agriculture experiment station. He said farmers in the area long have sought an experimental farm near East Jordan.

Rouse indicated the main obstacle to the move in the past has been a lack of funds, the distance from East Lansing and lack of personnel.

The Foote farm is located three miles north of East Jordan on M66 in South Arm Township of Charlevoix County.

Rouse said the area is considered one of the best farming areas in the county. He said two officials from the college will survey the property next week.

Foote's will also directed that an undetermined amount of government bonds in his possession be burned and the government's debt to him be canceled.

Dunn Fund Swells to $5,018 Within 12 Days

Deposits made into the Bobbie Dunn Fund bank account yesterday brought the total of the fund for the young teen-ager who lost both legs under a train Christmas Day to $5,018.

The fund, started 12 days ago with $20, has snowballed thanks to hundreds of mailed contributions from all over Michigan and donations by local industrial, business and other employe groups.

Three local pastors are administering the fund until a suitable organization can be found to direct the use of the money for the 13-year-old's medical and educational needs.

Contributions may still be sent to the fund, care of Mayor, City Hall, Pontiac, Mich.

Pontiacs, GM Trucks at Chicago Showing

parts and equipment makers converged on Chicago Friday noon. Many of the companies are scheduling national and regional meetings.

From Pontiac, Robert M. Critchfield, general manager of the Pontiac Motor Division and vice president of General Motors, was on hand with H. E. Crawford, Pontiac sales manager, along with other representatives of the company.

From GMC Truck Division, Philip J. Monaghan, general manager, and vice president of General Motors, was in town for a preview and regional meetings. Also attending the show from GMC Truck was R. C. Woodhouse, general sales manager.

Highlighted by a two tone bright red and black convertible, the Pontaic Motor Division display featured nine different models and one rotating, cut-a-way car.

Pontiac's cut-a-way model of its new 180 horse power V-8 engine was one of the striking displays of the exhibit. The engine rotates in such a manner that all working parts are visible.

In the dream car of cars of the future, the green Pontiac Bonneville Special with the new V-8 engine was attracting much attention.

Other automobiles attracting crowds were the two new hard top 4 door models by Buick and Oldsmobile. The Chevrolet station wagon was a front runner for crowds along with the ever popular Cadillac.

All exhibits including General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, American Motors, Studebaker-Packard and Kaiser-Willys were outstanding in color and design. An attempt to single out any one display would be difficult.

Eighteen Pontiac-made GMC trucks were on display, ranging from an animated cut-a-way engine to a stripaway cab-over-engine tractors. Monaghan termed the display one of the most complete ever prepared by the division.

Focal point of the display was 10 GMC trucks, including 3 cab-over-engine (C.O.E.) models.

One exhibit shows how smoothly and efficiently a Hydramatic transmission automatically changes gears, and another one points up the new stripaway system used in all GMC cab-over-engine trucks.

Both automobiles and trucks have reached a new peak in style and efficiency in the new 1955 models. If crowd enthsuiasm is any indication, certainly the automotive industry is in for another good year and that includes Pontiac.

'Suspect'—Chapter 29

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

The Argyle Hotel was closed and locked. Jim pounded on the glass-paneled front door. He could make out the dim figure of Toby Argyle sitting alone at a back table. Toby looked around, made a vague gesture of dismissal. He got up when Dunn kept up his racket.

Toby opened the door a crack and apparently came to the conclusion that since he had gone so far he might as well go farther. He swung the door wide, said, "Come on in then. We're closed up though." He walked the full length of the building and sat down again at his chosen table.

Jim shut and relocked the door, followed. He sat down at the little table. "I'm very sorry about your daughter, Mr. Argyle."

That had the desired effect, penetrated the whisky haze for a moment. "Sorry? So you know. That's right, I remember now. Aggie phoned and said you knew. Said you might be along to see me. I'm to cooperate, Mrs. Oswald said so. What you want?"

"A couple of things," Jim said. "First, did you deliver any pitch wood to the Carlson place recently?"

"Never did," Toby said. "Tried to once or twice. Old Mrs. Oswald she wouldn't have any pitch around. Wanted nothing but dry pine and maybe a little heavy aspen. Says pitch is too dirty."

"About your daughter," Jim said quickly. "Tell me, did you or your wife ever give her a doll?"

Two fat tears rolled down Toby's face. "We never gave her anything. Except away. That's it. We didn't have her long enough, and we didn't have anything anyway. No, all we gave Angelica was away."

Agnes could have given the daughter a doll without Toby's knowing. But Argyle had been insistent there was no gift.

Jim turned that thought over in his mind as he drove through the sagging wings of the wrecked gate.

He wondered what his hurry was, decided he had better give up the practice of automatic driving, particularly on mountain roads. It wasn't like him to drive so fast, even though he had been thinking of other things.

It came to him suddenly that there was an increasing tension, an unrational, yet insistent demand for speed.

He gave in to it, drove as fast as he dared. He zoomed past the fork in the road, rushed across the last of the level ground and skidded into the first turn of the road down to the Carlson Castle. He slammed gears into low, used both acceleration and the steadying power of compression to negotiate the hairpin turns.

His tires slid and left marks as he slammed on the brakes at last in the Carlson driveway. Puma Lake rippled in the faint wind which preceded the daily thunderstorm. Philip and Mrs. Hilton sat on one corner of the glassed-in patio, sipping from tall glasses. Agnes Argyle walked out to greet him.

Jim relaxed. Nothing was wrong. Nothing could be wrong. He started framing a question for Agnes.

But the woman was looking past him, looking for something, looking for someone.

"Where's your wife?" Sheriff Agnes asked.

"Nancy? What do you mean? Isn't she here?"

"No. Don't see how you missed her though. She started off about an hour ago. Said she was going to take a walk and meet you on your way back."

The now familiar road up toward the plateau had never seemed so long. Each bend held a hope that Jim would find Nancy sitting comfortably on some rock, each empty bend exploded that hope. He cursed himself for the speed with which he had whipped along in his most recent trip. There was a possibility he had passed Nancy.

A possibility, but a very slim one indeed.

He reached level ground, drove more slowly along the curves which twisted toward the fork in the road. The apparent evenness of the plateau's surface was deceptive. Jim knew a small army could have been hidden in imperceptible folds and gullies. He stopped, got out at the fork. He called, and his voice was tiny in the empty space. Yet there was a path of small footprints leading down toward The Spires. Only Nancy had small enough feet to make those marks in the dust.

Jim felt a little better. Aside from Sheriff Agnes' pickup which was parked at the Castle, his jeep was the only car available at the Carlsons', for no servant had as yet returned with another vehicle. And there was no sign of other prints. He would find Nancy safely in the company of the irritable deputy. He drove down the road quickly, left the jeep at the lakeside.

Both the deputy and his car were gone.

The Spires was deserted, doors now locked tightly. The honeymoon cottage Nancy had liked so much was tightly closed; it had a forlorn and empty air as if disappointed at this last desertion.

He called again, and the slight touch of fear in his voice frightened him still more.

He drove more slowly back up the road, looking over each inch of the nearby rocky ground. At the wide part, where Mrs. Oswald had caught her trout, nearly to the point where the creek gushed from the high arch in the rock, he caught the glint of sun on metal.

Idaho Pioneer Gives Oration at Own Funeral

IDAHO FALS, Idaho (AP)—James Martin Dyer, 84, pioneer resident of nearby Birch Creek, several years ago made records for his funeral rites.

The final word on the last record said simply: "Farewell."

He wanted no other speaker because they always "told good things about the deceased and then got carried away and tell better things and the relatives lean forward and wonder if the speaker is talking about the right person."

Dyer died Jan. 2 in an Idaho Falls rest home. He was born in Ontario, Canada, Oct. 2, 1870. Much of his recorded talk at his funeral yesterday outlined his life, which included mining in Colorado, Utah and Nevada.

But it also included his philosophy:

"Always wear a smile, it was made to fit your face and doesn't cost anything."

Under ideal water conditions adult Pacific salmon has been known to leap 8 to 10 feet in the air during upstream spawning migrations.

This year may give us answers to many riddles: complete control of cancer, an honorable way to peace, awareness of better relations between all men, the ruled and ruler; these questions can be solved and 1955 may bring the correct solution.

Each of us in our small way have big problems; may they be resolved to give us more happiness and greater prosperity. Good hunting during 1955.

Housing Project Approved

Acting to make good its contract with the Federal Housing Administration, Pontiac City Commission has voted approval of a 300 unit low rent public housing project.

This action came after Pontiac Housing Commission reminded the City Fathers of their contract with FHA. The local housing body also advised the Commissioners that there is a waiting list of 300 families seeking homes in the existing 400 unit Lakeside Housing project completed in 1952.

It was in February 1951 that the city and FHA signed the contract for a second development to supplement the Lakeside facilities. Later the Commission called off the start of construction in the belief that there was no need for it. The vote approving the second program was based on the Commission's current opinion that need now does exist.

There is no doubt about that need. The urgency of it will increase as the city's rate of growth is accelerated. Wisely, the City Commission has retained the right to approve the location of this $3,500,000 development which is to be financed entirely by revenue bonds.

Ladejinsky Goes to FOA

Thanks to the quiet intervention of President Eisenhower, the embarrassing confusion of the complicated Wolf Ladejinsky case has been resolved.

More important, this has been done in a manner that enables our Government to retain the valuable services of this internationally known agricultural expert. His case came to public attention because a new law required that he be transferred from our State Department to the Department of Agriculture.

Under State, Ladejinsky had been given several clearances and had distinguished himself by his work in aiding Japanese land reform. Agriculture, however, denied him security clearance because he "lacked technical qualifications" and has three sisters still in Russia.

Six months ago Foreign Operations Administrator Stassen tried to get Ladejinsky transferred to his department but State insisted that it could not spare its Tokyo agricultural attache.

Despite Agriculture's stand Mr. Stassen found the naturalized Russian a sound security risk and has hired him to help South Viet Nam with its land reform problems.

The Ladejinsky case emphasizes that there still are inconsistencies in our Federal security program. The confusion attending the case of this man, famed in Asia as a foe of Communism, suggests the need for Administration re-examination of that program.

Keeping Up With Joneses

People in many lands, including our own, have peculiar ideas about what qualifies them as social leaders.

Here, in America, it may be the kind of car one drives, the type of house he occupies or even a mink coat in the family, which is considered a mark of social leadership.

Not so long ago a typical American family couldn't honestly consider itself in the swim until it had a piano. There was a time, too, when an overstuffed davenport was considered a mark of distinction.

Now, however, in India the task of keeping up with the Joneses is on a much simpler and less expensive scale, at least in less affluent circles. Custom there has decreed that the fountain pen is the mark of social and cultural leadership.

But for many this relatively inexpensive accessory is beyond their financial means. Their way of keeping up with the Joneses is to buy a fountain pen cap with pocket clip to make them look important.

Peculiar custom?

Yes.

But already it has netted one American fountain pen company an order from India for 3,000 fountain pen caps with clips, for social use only.

Many a person with weak ammunition makes the mistake of aiming too high in life.

The People's Business

More Taxes Due

Governor Williams Faces Bigger Budget During 1955

By JACK I. GREEN

LANSING—If Gov. Williams can avoid asking for new taxes this year he will be as much a financial wizard as he is a political wizard.

The betting in governmental circles is that the governor will be forced by economic pressures and his own expanding programs to ask for more money.

The executive office staff, struggling in the waves of red ink washing over from the budget office, says no final decision has been made yet. But it must be made soon, because at least a summary of the budget should be presented to the Legislature when it meets Wednesday and the law requires the completed budget to be submitted 10 days thereafter.

Of course, when the Capitol thinks of new taxes in relation to Williams it immediately thinks of the corporation profits tax which he has tried for six years to get through the Legislature.

The tax issue is heightened even more strongly this year because the life-saving business receipts tax, which the Legislature produced as an alternative to the profits tax, expires on March 15.

Obviously, this tax must be renewed or a substitute found for it.

Williams has always been hostile to the business receipts tax. Now he must decide whether to ask for or permit its renewal or whether to fight for a different tax.

The pressure for more taxes comes from this combination of events:

Just plain economics, the cost of goods and salaries, has forced some agencies to ask for more cash. As a matter of fact, the departments have asked for $448,000,000-plus against this year's appropriations of $366,000,000. No one expects them to get anything like that amount, but the budget office is finding it hard to trim the requests back to this year's level.

New state hospitals and additions have opened in the past years and money must be provided for operations and staffs. Other functions of government have expanded also.

So the governor would have a squeak to hold the budget at its present level even if there were no other factors in the picture.

But Williams has committed himself deeply to expansion of education and highway facilities. He appears to be making that the theme of his fourth term.

Dr. Clair L. Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction, has suggested that the public schools need twenty million dollars more next year—the first request for a direct appropriation since the sales tax diversion brought the schools a bonanza. Williams so far seems to be accepting this figure as a basis for consideration.

Williams has received proposals for about thirty million dollars more a year for five years from the presidents of state-supported colleges. He has virtually committed himself to do something for them.

Thus, if he is going to do something noticeable for education he is going to have to dig down in the taxpayers pocket.

He has backed the proposal for a 500 million dollar bond issue to build more roads. So far he has clung to the idea that this can be met without raising highway taxes, but few in state government think that is feasible.

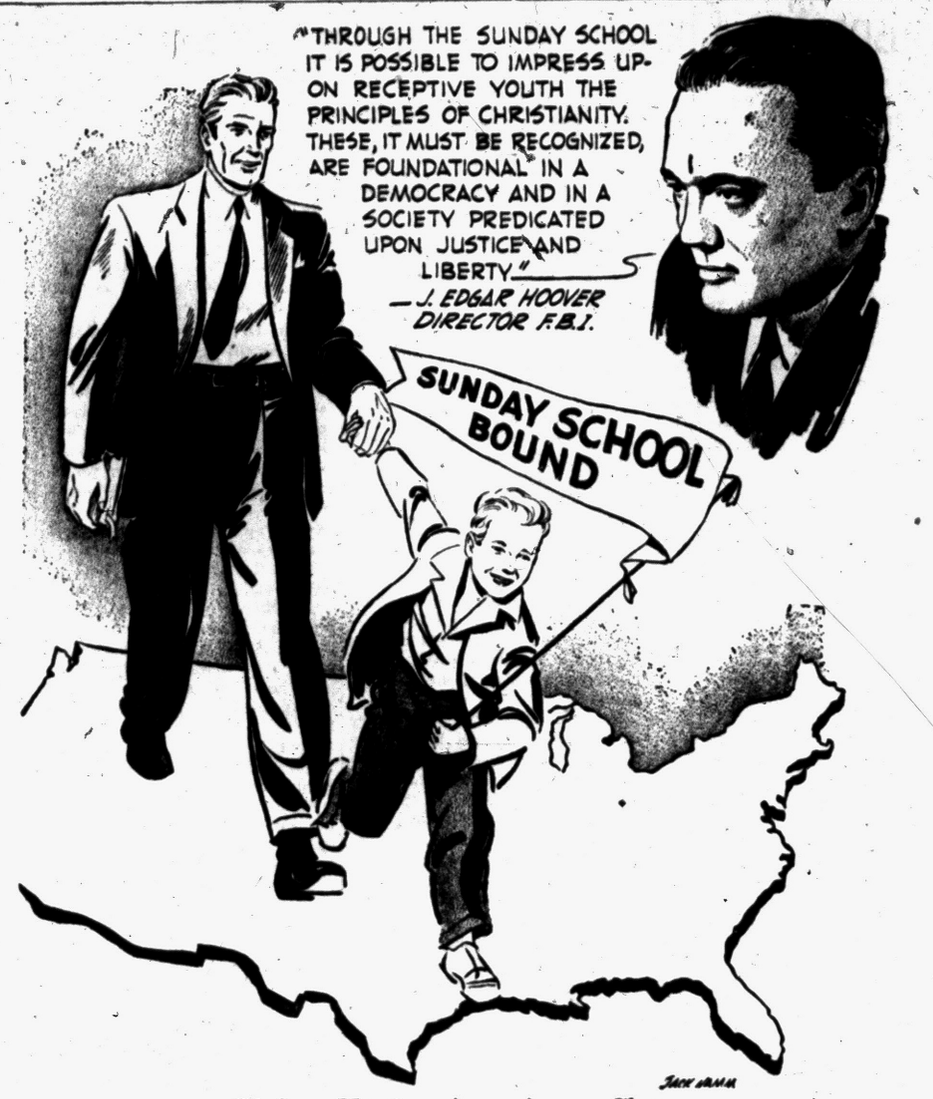

The easiest thing for Williams to do politically seems to be to cancel the business receipts tax and the corporation franchise tax and replace them with the corporation profits tax to the big fellows and adjust the business receipts tax to hit the little fellows.

Or another tax might be trotted out, unpopular as that always is.

Or the governor, who has shown a liking for mortgaging the future to finance today's delights, might go for a bond issue to help the colleges. But a multiplicity of bond issues is apt to spell the defeat of all of them.

All of these ideas are being kicked around in the last-minute rush to prepare a budget of many millions for 1955-56.

So don't be surprised if the result is a well-reasoned, adroitly explained, smoothly polished nudge from the tax collector for some more money.

City Water Softener More Advantageous to Most Than Fluoridation, Says 'L. M. C.'

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.

If the City Commission can find away to finance fluoridating the city water supply that may help only the children's teeth to a small degree, why can't they finance a water softener that will help everyone?

The water is so hard, it's sticky but no effort is made to rectify it. We were promised one ten years ago but all is forgotten now as a new project arises which we don't know much about. Maybe it will do more harm than good. We do know it will destroy the good flavor of our water.

Why did some of these other cities throw out the fluoridating system after using it for a short time?

Let us hear what some other citizens have to say. Wouldn't it be to more advantage to have a softener?

Newly Organized Club Doing Just Fine

In reply to the letter signed "Waiting," I would like to inform the writer that the Widows and Widowers Club meets every Friday evening at the Hotel Waldron at 8 p.m. in the Green Room.

We have a lovely group of people, 16 in number, who have met now for two weeks. We have had lots of good, clean fun and hope to have many more nights of enjoyment.

Many of us are enjoying life a lot more now that we have made so many friends who have been as lonely as we have been.

So come on, lonely folks, to the Green Room this Friday evening and I'll guarantee you a good time.

State Police Action Admired by Citizen

I think our State Police are to be commended for their fast, courteous way of taking care of things, even on holidays.

A man, who apparently has no eye for beauty, had the nerve to dump a pickup load of garbage, tin cans, bottles, building scraps, etc. on the shoulder of one of our county roads.

His name was found amid the junk and a call was placed to the State Police. It took them less than two hours to apprehend the culprit, fine him, and make him clean up the entire mess, which I consider a good job, well done.

Let's all keep our eyes open for these who dump refuse along our road sides.

Teenagers Advised to Choose College Not Farther Away Than 300 Miles

Betty wants to know where to go for college. And her Daddy asks about the merits of big universities vs. colleges of less than 1,000 students. Save this case record for discussion at high school, for it answers a lot of questions on this subject.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case N-318: Betty J., aged 17, lives in California.

"Dr. Crane, I want to go to college next term," she began.

"My daddy suggests I attend here at home, but I'd like to go to a college back in Ohio.

"He thinks that's too expensive. But I tell him Mother attended there and I'd like to go to the same school.

"So what would you advise me to do?"

Thousands of you teenagers or your parents write to me every year asking "Which college would you recommend?"

That's about like asking "Which drug store should I patronize?"

For all liberal arts colleges teach about the same things and of about the same quality.

Wouldn't it be silly for Betty to want to come back to Ohio to patronize a certain drug store just because her mother patronized that same pharmacy 25 years ago?

Well, the analogy is fairly accurate between drug stores and colleges, as regards their standardized offerings to the public in their specific fields.

There are a few colleges which haven't succumbed to the modern "rah-rah" social stampede about having fraternities and sororities, but except on this one point, there is scarcely any significant difference between a California college or one in Ohio, New York or Vermont.

As a rule, therefore, I recommend a college within reasonable distance from your home town, say 300 miles.

For you will get homesick and want to return during the various school holidays. It costs too much to be commuting from a college 1,000 to 3,000 miles away.

Furthermore, private colleges now charge $500 to $600 per year tuition, in addition to the other board, room and book costs.

Your state schools give you the same courses with much less tuition, maybe $150 against $500, so you save $350 there each year.

If you attend college in your home town, you can live at home and save money in that manner. But you miss the very valuable experiences of being away from Mamma's apron strings.

So it is worth living away from home for at least one year, just to be thrown on your own.

Then you must make your own friends and fend for yourself, which is the most important single thing you can learn from that first year in college, anyway.

"Dr. Crane, what about the merits of a small college (under 1,000) to a big university (10,000 students)?" others will ask.

This is a debatable question. I've had my training at big universities and have taught therein. But my children have tried both.

And I believe, as a general rule, the professors in the smaller colleges are more unselfish. By that, I mean they take more personal interest in the welfare of their students.

In the bigger universities, students are often regarded impersonally as just numbers on a class roll book, while the professor is trying to advance himself financially.

Professors at small colleges thus mingle with the students more informally and show more school spirit. They go out to games and root for the team more ardently, which is the proper attitude of any good prof.

Send for my "Test for Good Teachers," enclosing a stamped, return envelope, plus a dime. It will let you rate the teachers in high school or at college.

Days of All Faiths

Feast of the Holy Family Observed by Catholics

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Every year in the Roman Catholic Church the Sunday after Epiphany (January 6) is devoted to special honor to the Holy Family. Although each of the three members of the sacred household at Nazareth has always been venerated as an individual, there also has always been a special regard in men's hearts for the family life they must have lived there.

Artists and poets have found it one of their favorite subjects over the centuries. The home life of Jesus, Mary and Joseph is thought of as the perfect pattern of what family relationships should be. It was only natural that a Feast of the Holy Family should find its way into the Christian calendar.

It was not until the 17th Century that the veneration of the Holy Family as a family began to appear, and the feast itself was not officially instituted until 1921. But the growth of the idea in popularity has been world-wide within the Roman Church.

There are now several orders of Sisters under the patronage of the Holy Family, besides an organization known as the Confraternity of the Holy Family in which membership is open to any Roman Catholic—man, woman or child.

You don't hear much about St. Fillan any more. He has become so obscure that there is now only one church named for him even in his native Scotland. But there was a time when the wonders of this Seventh Century abbot were known far and wide.

Fillan had so much holiness in him that he just couldn't help performing miracles — without even seeming to notice that they were miracles, or that he was performing them. For example, when the oil in his lamp went dry he simply went on reading and writing by the light given off by his left hand—and thought nothing of it.

He had a great reputation as a healer of the insane. This, too, was accomplished with no effort on Fillan's part. People brought the insane to his cell, tied them on his bed for the night, and in the morning they were normal.

Stories of this sort always mean that the real saint has been buried somewhere under folklore and peasant superstition. But never forget that such stories are not told about average men.

And when it is said that Fillan unconsciously worked wonders with the mentally disturbed, one thing you can count on is that all men felt a peace and serenity when they were near this godly abbot.

Seven centuries after his death, Fillan's shrine was still so popular that the great warrior Robert Bruce went there to spend the night in prayer before the battle of Bannockburn. What happened to Bruce's English foe next day on the battlefield is a matter of record.

Fillan's name is still attached to a holy well at a place in Scotland called, in his honor, Strathfillan. The waters are reputed to be particularly soothing to the insane.

Some do and some do not. The Old Testament refers in many prophecies to a Deliverer (Messiah means "annointed one") who would come from God and lead the world into a wonderful new age in which God should rule.

Orthodox Jews still hold to the belief that these prophecies are to be fulfilled by a Person. Reformed Jews, however, have abandoned the expectation of a personal Messiah.

They believe that mankind by applying religious ideals to daily life will bring in an era of peace, brotherhood and righteousness which will be the Messianic Age, but they do not expect that any one Person will be the divinely appointed leader of this development.

Because this ideal was first revealed to Israel, Jews consider that it is their special mission and duty to work for its fulfillment.

Baering Down

Adlai Stevenson and Tomasso Dewey are law partners. But not with each other.

That law business is a pretty good racket. In America it doesn't make any difference which side you're on.

We were reasonably established during the campaign when Franklin Delano the twice said he was head swiveler in a law office of thirty partners.

That's an echelon of influential squaddage. But Darrow, Earl Rogers, Hummel and Fallon would spot you twenty-nine if you gave 'em one partner on the jury.

We were at the Dayton, Tennessee, monkey trial and we're not certain whether Clarence had one on that jury or not. It might have been two.

There are doubtful elements in the scheme of things. A scalded cat and a bigamist's brothers-in-law.

Tomahawk Dewey goes into law practice because he wants to stack up some moola for his family. Governor Tom's Albany hideaway in Albany is the second biggest job in America. The first is opening mail for Liberace.

We have watched the twilight careers of our biggies when the shadows fall the wrong way. Cal Coolidge and Al Smith got to be presidents of insurance companies. Well, so did Mr. Pickett who led that charge at Gettysburg. Jim Farley enjoys the payday pause that refreshes.

Stassen became a college president. So did Ike but he snapped out of it. Whatever those boys do they make certian life starts at ten in the morning.

Both Adlai and Tom talk their best off observation platforms. If they ever get elected to Supreme Court they'll move the joint over to Union Station.

We wish the boys a non-partisan happy new year, good pickings and guilty clients.

If they ever meet on the same case the air will be full of fur, claws and esteemed colleagues.

Quit Dwelling on Difficulties of Digestion —Find Something Else to Occupy Mind

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE MAIL BOX

Sources of Protein

I don't eat meat, due to a nervous stomach. And since I read about salmonella in eggs I don't eat eggs, which were my only source of protein. Will lack of protein harm my body or result in illness? (Miss C. H.)

Answer — Both ideas are wrong. Lack of protein will make you look, feel and be like a dodo. Quit dwelling on your digestion, your food and yourself — find something to do for other people to occupy your mind. Salmonella may me present in almost any food. So on that basis it's not safe to eat at all. Milk and milk products, whole wheat, peas, beans, nuts and fish, as well as meat and eggs, are good sources of protein.

Father Permitted to Be Present

We have found a hospital that permits the prospective father to be with his wife while their baby is being born—Allegheny General, in Pittsburgh . . . (Mrs. W. T. M.)

Answer — Well, of all places!

How Do You Sleep?

What's wrong with a person who insists on sleeping with one hand stretched out above his head? (Mrs. M. C. J.)

Answer — No accounting for the postures some persons prefer for sleeping — that's the best way to sleep. Except suggestion of a posture that favors relaxation, I say nothing about this in the pamphlet How to Sleep Well available on request if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope.

To Strengthen Heart Muscle

Please tell me what exercises you recommend to strengthen the heart muscles? (R. H. S.)

Answer — There is only one heart muscle and that is the heart itself. No particular exercise will strengthen the heart, but various kinds of exercise may be required to restore efficiency to the heart, once the heart has become weakened. The best of all exercises for the purpose is walking, I believe. Send twenty-five cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope for the booklet C-V-D, which deals with heart and artery diseases.

Expensive Cough Medicine

Children 10 months and 4 years old have whooping-cough. Doctor gave 'em shots and a 2-oz. bottle of cough medicine ($10) which we have to have refilled every three days . . . (Mrs. B. H.)

Answer — $10 would be fair enough for whooping-cough "vaccine" (bacterin) to immunize or at least moderate the severity of whooping cough. I know of no medicine that will do a child with whooping cough more good than being outdoors most of the time.

Anybody May Have 'Em

Could a child pass worms resembling earth worms. . . (D. L. W.)

Answer — Yes. Round worms (Lumbricoid), pinworms, tapeworms — children may harbor such parasites. Send 25 cents for Little Lesson 13, Unbidden Guests, which deals with worms, cooties, spiders, fleas, moths, flies, mosquitoes, bedbugs, ants, chiggers, etc.

Signed letters not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self addressed envelope is enclosed, etc.

Schedule Trial of Korea POW

Major Faces 13 Counts of Collaborating While Captive of Reds

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP)—Maj. Ambrose H. Nugent, 44-year-old career officer, will go on trial by court-martial Thursday on charges of collaboration with his Communist captors during the Korean war.

Nugent, of Merrill, Wis., is the fifth American to be accused of collaboration while a prisoner in Korea. He faces trial on 13 separate counts.

The most serious charge alleges he offered intelligence to the enemy—an offense which the Army says is treasonable.

The other counts involve impeding the escape of fellow prisoners, permitting use of his photograph and signature on surrender leaflets and making propaganda broadcasts charging the war was started by "capitalistic Wall Street warmongers."

Nugent has denied the charges. He declared that anything he might have done during his imprisonment from July 5, 1950, to Sept. 1, 1953, was designed solely to save his men from abuse or execution.

Store Heir's Wealth Climbs to $15 Million

CHICAGO (AP) — Deaths of her grandmother and an uncle in less than a month have made a comely Chicago brunette sole heir to an estimated 15½ million dollars, perhaps more.

She is Mrs. Mollie Netcher Bragno, 28. She and her husband, wine manufacturer Edward Bragno, already were wealthy in their own name.

The fortune which now passes to Mrs. Bragno was amassed through operation of the old Boston Store, a State Street department store founded by her grandfather, Charles Netcher Sr.

TODAY'S ASSIGNMENT FOR:

MOTHER GOOSE—6

Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet
Eating her curds and whey.
Along came a spider and sat down beside her
And frightened Miss Muffet away.

One of the favorite stories from Mother Goose is about Little Miss Muffet. This little girl was frightened by a spider, and spilled her curds and whey—something like cottage cheese. Here's an action toy you can make showing this famous nursery rhyme event.

3. Slip the arm through the sleeve opening from behind, as shown in the small sketch. Put a small brass paper fastener through the holes so the arm moves up and down. When it is raised, the spider appears. When it is slapped down the spider is out of sight.

4. If you want the cutout to stand, fold back the picture of the spilled curds and whye along the dotted line.

25 Kin to Share $1 Million From Pastureland Estate

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in 1850, a struggling young lawyer from the sticks nervously and reluctantly took the plunge of signing a note for $200 to buy a mid-Manhattan farm.

The city grew rapidly northward, and the property was worth seven million dollars before he died.

A rags-to-riches chain of events since John M. Bixby's flyer in Gotham pastureland has made $1,471,203 available for distribution among about 25 heirs.

In the list of 25 possible heirs are descendants of Pocahontas, the Indian maid; poet-author Edgar Allen Poe; and members of nobility living around the world

The group—most in their 70s and some in their 80s—have been weeded out of more than 600 possible claimants to shares in the bonanza.

The culling process has been going forward for more than five years and has required search of family Bibles, newspaper files going back to the 1820s, and records of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic societies.

Surrogate (Judge) William T. Collins, who has been hearing the long story, may wind up the case soon.

He has gotten the facts from lawyers who searched for the heirs of the late Countess Grace Sterling Bixby Mankowski, daughter of John Bixby.

Bixby's grandson Count Robert Conrad Mankowski died June 29, 1947, in Los Angeles, leaving $1,471,203 of his 7½-million-dollar fortune to descendants of his mother, the Countess Mankowski.

The count said in his will that he thought some of the fortune should revert to Bixbys, and he stipulated that they should include "seventh-degree next of kin" on his maternal side.

The daughter of lawyer Bixby was married to Count Casmir Ignace Mankowski of Poland, who became a naturalized U.S. citizen. The countess died May 7, 1929.

The Surrogate Court records tell of a story related by Bixby as to how he accumulated his fortune from the farm, which ran along the present 39th Street from Broadway to 5th Avenue.

"I should be as poor as a church rat but for one incident in my life," Bixby related. "I had wealth forced upon me and didn't know.

"I had come from the backwoods of New York, and a dollar looked like a big sum to me. I was a raw and struggling young lawyer, and paid $4 a week for my board and washing and found it hard to make ends meet. It looked as if I should starve at the law, so I was looking for work outside it.

"Just then a friendly lawyer in the office where I had desk room said to me: 'Here's a chance for you to buy a farm.' He offered it for the appraised value of $200.

"I refused, saying, 'I have no money.' He offered to take a note on the farm and I agreed, even though I felt very nervous about giving my note for such a large amount.

"I made several renewals and New York grew so fast northward that I was able to sell a small part of the farm for more than enough to pay the note and interest and taxes.

Fog Forces Jet to Set Records

Covers 21,000 Miles in 47 Hours Waiting for Weather to Clear

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—"The fog was so thick that even the cars were grounded."

That, explains Col. David A. Burchinal, is why he flew a B47 jet bomber 21,000 miles nonstop, staying in the air 47 hours 35 minutes.

The flight, disclosed this week, set a series of records for jet-powered aircraft.

"We weren't out to break any records," said Col. Burchinal, commander of the 43rd Bomb Group at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, in an interview. "It was just a routine flight extended because of weather."

The B47 took off from Africa, headed for its home base in England. England was covered by fog.

"We couldn't refuel there, so we went on to Africa, completing the planned training we were told to do on this leg of the fight. We refueled over Africa. We were told we could probably land in Britain the next morning.

"So we went back, but the fog was still there, so we flew again to Africa and returned a third time to England. That time we landed."

Asked why he didn't land in Africa where the weather was good, he commented:

"That wouldn't have got us home."

Mistake on Tax Blanks Affects 100,000 Retirees

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service says about 100,000 persons may save a little on their income tax bill if they correct an error just discovered in the printed forms for 1954.

The error deals with retirement income, and may affect two groups of taxpayers. They are persons under 75 years of age who earned more than $900 from working last year, and persons with retirement income of less than $1,200 who also got some tax-exempt pension or annuity income.

Both groups, by correcting the error on the form, may use $1,200 as the basis for computing their retirement income credit. Under the form, they would receive credit for less than that amount.

Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews said the forms were outmoded by "a more liberal interpretation" of one provision of the 1954 tax law.

Tests Scheduled for Siamese Twins

CHICAGO (AP)—Tests will be started after Jan. 15 to determine how extensively the Andrews Siamese twins are joined at the tops of their heads.

The 3-months-old girls, Deborah Marie and Christine Mary, are in Mercy Hospital for studies which will determine whether surgical separation is possible. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Andrews of Chicago.

Msgr. John W. Barrett, archdiocesan director of hospitals, said brain wave and K-ray tests will be carried out to study their circulatory and nervous systems.

The girls are connected in somewhat similar fashion to the famed Brodie twins who were separated in a historic operation in Chicago Dec. 17, 1952. Rodney Brodie survived and is awaiting further surgery to provide a hard top for his skull. His brother, Roger, died several weeks after the separation.

Germany's 1st Postwar Liner Renamed 'Berlin'

BREMERHAVEN, Germany (AP)—Germany's first postwar passenger liner, the 19,100-ton Gripsholm, today was renamed Berlin.

The vessel was chartered from the Swedish-America Lines last year by the North German Lloyd Shipping Co. She now provides accommodations for 1,000 passengers and is to leave for New York tomorrow.

Marine Recruiters Named Outstanding

The two-man Marine Recruiting Team in Pontiac, which for four months has led other similiar sized teams in Michigan has been named as the outstanding team of its size in the nation for November.

In "Marine Recruiting Notes," a Marine Corps publication, M-Sgt. Ishmeal Powers, who heads the local station, and T-Sgt. Leroy H. Meisner, were named as the top two-man team in the United States with 23 enlistments.

These same men led other Michigan recruiting teams during August, September, October and November. Their "commendable record of outstanding recruiting effort," was praised in a recent letter of congratulation from Col. P. E. Wallace, in charge of recruiting for the Ninth Marine Corps Reserve and Recruitment District.

Famous Trichologist Tells Truth About Saving and Improving Hair

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Pontiac, Michigan, Sunday ONLY, January 9, 1955. These private demonstrations will be held at the Pontiac Hotel on Sunday ONLY, January 9, 2 P. M. 'til 9 P. M.

CHICAGO (Special)—In an interview here today Mr. E. V. Safranski, internationally famous trichologist and director of the Millard Hair and Scalp Specialists said "There are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Millard firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Safranski said.

Once a person avails himself to the Millard treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee: "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days your money will be returned."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED

First, the Millard specialists are quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Only if a man is completely shiny bald is he in this lost category.

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin, or colorless, the Millard people can perform wonders.

Every one is given a complete, private examination to determine the condition of his scalp, and cause for his hair trouble.

FREE EXAMINATIONS

This examination is very thorough and highly technical, it requires 20 to 30 minutes. There is no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After examination he is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, he makes regular reports to the Millard firm in Chicago, and a trichologist will return to check his progress periodically.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, the Millard firm is sending specialists to various cities throughout the United States to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL

"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Safranski emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Safranski wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR LIFETIME

"If client follows our direction during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Safranski said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

HOW'S YOUR HAIR?

If it worries you call Trichologist E. J. Gallagher at the Pontiac Hotel in Pontiac, Michigan, on Sunday ONLY, January 9, 2 p. m. to 9 p. m. The public is invited. You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Today's Pattern Reflects Master Designer's Highly Honored Reputation

It's Not Running Away

By ELIZABETH WOODWARD

Is what they say about him true? I, personally, have never seen the creature bend his ungainly neck to hide his eyes in the sand. But there are those who claim he figures danger will go away if he can't see it.

Like the ostrich, some of us squinch our eyes tight so we can't see our problems. Some of us turn our backs on our puzzles in the hope that they won't be there when we turn around again. Some of us put on our ten-league boots and start traveling in the hope that we can outrun the things that plague us.

While, actually, the only thing to do is stand stock still and face the issue. Then decide whether there's anything we can do about it. And if so, what.

Here's a girl who is not one to run away from her problems, yet it's almost more than she can bear to stand still and look her biggest one right in his own two brown eyes every day. But here's how she writes it:

"Dear Miss Woodward: Last spring I started dating a boy who took my heart completely—and a few weeks ago I was jilted. He is unquestionably the most wonderful person I've ever met, and I can't seem to forget him.

He works part time at the same office I do, and it's the bitterest pill I ever had to swallow to realize that he doesn't now and probably never did care for me. Seeing him frequently is doing my health and spirits no good. And I wonder if going away would ease the heartache.

"But I'm not one to run away from my problems. Sometime, somehow I suppose this pain will dissapear. But some advice for right now would help a great deal. I have planned to be an airline stewardess or a dental technician, but I wonder if I could put my heart in it. What do you think? Incidentally, I'm 22."

I think following through on your own original plans is really facing the issue. Leaving that office and making a start at a new career is hardly running away. Granted, you'd be putting him out of your sight. But it would help the wound to heal. And give your heart, mind and spirits something new to tackle.

Your disillusionment and heartache can't be run away from, though. The blow to your pride will color your relationships with other men you meet. You're sure to take your time about giving your heart to anyone else for quite a spell.

But in time it will wear off. And until then, you have yourself to think of. How best to occupy yourself these next few years? Which career would suit you best? Which would give you the greatest satisfaction? Which would make you really self-sufficient?

You're on your own now—with some pieces to pick up. Breaking with the old routine and starting some congenial new work or study would give you new steam. Running away? No, I call that just plain getting going!

'Lunatics and Lovers' Features Buddy Hackett

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Buddy Hackett, a fat Brooklyn night club comedian, was downing some gin one night in Miami Beach, and planning to make this his life work.

"How'd you like to be in a Broadway show?" Playwright Sidney Kingsley asked him.

"You mean show up every night, and no booze? Nah!" shrugged Hackett.

★ ★ ★ ★

"That's March '53, about two yizz ago," says Hackett now. Now he's the biggest new Broadway comedian of the year, playing "Kewpie," a vice-peddler, in "Lunatics and Lovers," with Hollywood calling, though Hollywood tossed him out once not so long ago.

★ ★ ★ ★

"I took it," says Buddy, "when I saw a description of the guy he wanted me to play.

BUDDY HACKETT

"It says 'A round fat face with beady brown eyes, wearing pink polka dot shorts, eatin' breakfast toward evening.' That's me. I live this way. How could I miss?"

As a night club comic working Florida, the Catskills and California, he had usually slept all day, and he still does—furthermore, just playing himself doesn't seem like work.

★ ★ ★ ★

"Except rehearsin'," he says. "To rehearse for Kingsley, it's easier to get mugged.

"Rehearsin' is with me just like marriage. I don't believe in it.

"I gave Kingsley my word I'd be completely cooperative till after we opened. Then I wouldn't be cooperative no more.

"Rehearsals! I had it already! I don't see no reason to get up early, showin' up when my eyes hurt."

★ ★ ★ ★

Kingsley and Buddy have both been praised for the "true Broadwayese" they speak. It happens to be Buddy's natural speech. In the show, Buddy's supposedly sipping scotch throughout. Actually, he is, although it's heavily diluted with water.

"If I was to take a few real belts, I'd think I was the greatest," he says. In one scene, he talks to Sheila Bond, who's seemingly sitting nude in a bathtub.

"She's got on these little skins stripteasers wear," Buddy told me. "But it's hard not to keep lookin'!"

★ ★ ★ ★

This show could be a rebirth of Buddy. A few seasons ago, while he was playing the Bandbox in Hollywood, Bob Goldstein of the movies walked in, began laughing—and signed him for Universal.

Goldstein and his late twin brother, Leonard Goldstein, left the studio, Hackett remained to do two pictures.

"One day they called me inta the studio," Buddy remembers. "They said 'You're the greatest comedian in the world.' Then they said, 'But we don't know what to do with you.' So I left."

★ ★ ★ ★

Now it appears that he'll be out there again. Buddy, who has five automobiles—a hot rod in Chicago, one in Miami, one in Hollywood and two in New York—is not titillated about the money he may make.

"What can I get out of it—only more cars. Then I'll have to take out a fleet license."

Calvin Coolidge Had Formula

Calvin Coolidge was no insomniac! Revealing his formula to elude wakeful nights, the Chief Executive once stated:

"I go to bed and I say to myself: 'The government is in pretty good shape, the American people are in pretty good shape, and there's nothing more I can do about them tonight.' Then I shut my eyes and go to sleep."

Anyone who shuts out his problems as he closes his eyes to lie down on a good, comfortable bed will find sleeping difficulties vanish.

Employer Greets Boss' 'Young' Son Who's Grown Up

By EMILY POST

A letter tells me: "I have been working for my employer for 15 years. I have known his family for a long time but only in a business way. Before he went away to boarding school, my employer's son used to come into the office quite regularly and I always called him Jack.

I haven't seen him for quite some time but he is now grown up and out of college. When he comes into the office to see his father, should I call him Jack as I used to, or should I call him Mr. Jones? Or would Mr. Jack be correct?"

It would be best to call him Mr. Jones, and then if he tells you to call him Jack, you continue calling him by his first name.

Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening while at a bridal shower the word vase came up for discussion. One of the girls pronounced it vase and immediately she was corrected and told that the correct pronunciation is vaze. Will you please tell me which is correct and also if the value of the vase has anything to do with the pronunciation.

I prefer vase (to rhyme with "daze"), In any case the value of the vase has absolutely nothing to do with the pronunciation.

Dear Mrs. Post: My 17-year-old daughter will be graduated from high school shortly and I woul dlike to know how her name should be engraved on the personal cards to be enclosed with the graduation announcements. Should it be Miss Mary Smith or Mary Smith?

Girls old enough to graduate should have their names prefixed by Miss.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am 16 years old and have an older married sister. When introducing her to friends of my own age, do I introduce her as "My sister Eileen" or as "Mrs. Jones."

You introduce her as "My sister Eileen, who is Mrs. Jones."

Monte Sano Knows His High Style

Princess Fashion Greatly Enhanced With Petticoat

In any fashion and fashionable conversation, the name Monte Sano is synonymous with high style and fine quality. Today's pattern for a dress coat and-or coat dress is a particularly magnificent reflection of this master tailor-designer's reputation in the field.

Cut on princess lines in center front and back, he has cleverly manipulated the side gores with a hip line break and bodice darts that deliver beautifully the new long torso and high bosom look. The neckline and collar are meant to be away from neck, for you to fill in with jewelry or a frothy bit of organdy.

Make it in faille, shantung, alpaca or wool and if you wear it as a coat dress, buy an especially pretty embroidered petticoat to show off as you walk.

This pattern is cut in Designer measurements, not Standard Pattern Measurements.

Her Special Typing Job Brings in Extra Income

By ANNE HEYWOOD

"I AM a very fast and very accurate typist," a young mother writes, "and I have a little business—I guess you'd call it that—which I though you might like to hear about.

"I had tried to get typing to do at home—envelopes and things like that—but I never made much money at it.

"Then, one day my husband, who knew what I was trying to do and approved of it, said that I would have to face the fact that this is an age af specialization. He said if I could get some typing specialty, so to speak, I might do much better.

" 'Think it over,' he said, and then, just like a man, dropped the subject.

"Well, I thought it over, but for a lang time I couldn't come up with anything.

"A while later, a friend and I were having lunch at a small restaurant after a shopping spree. The menu was written out in longhand, and awfully hard to read. We had asked the waitress if she would translate some of it for us.

"That gave me an idea.

"As we were leaving the restaurant, I told the owner, who also acts as cashier, the trouble we had had, and asked her if I couldn't make a deal with her to type her menus daily. She said she'd think it over and let me know.

"That evening she called to say she would accept my offer if my fee were right. I checked hastily with my husband, and we set a weekly fee for typing all her menus. I use carbons, of course, and every day I deliver the batch of menus for the day, and she gives me the longhand copy for the next day's.

"It's fun, and it brings in nice pin money and one of these days I think I'll take on another restaurant and devote still more time to it. When our youngest is in school, I may even hire an assistant, and really expand into a good menu-typing service for all the small restaurants in our town.

"My husband was right; specializing does pay!"

Neckline Gives Mature Woman Real Problem

It's her neckline that gives a mature woman as much trouble as any single aspect of her looks. She peers in the mirror and feels as though she were looking at the rings of a tree—she can count her years there. And she doesn't want to have to do this.

Much of the preaching today about overweight is aimed at men and women of mature years. And, as she loses weight, a mature woman's neckline takes on years as it grows slack.

For a woman who has not lost a lot of weight, the problems of the neckline go with the problems of posture. If a woman walks upright with a good head carriage, she should not have a dowager chin.

But for a woman who has peeled off many pounds, the problem becomes more difficult.

She should massage the loose skin that used to cover all that flesh with a camphor tissue cream. Work from the tip of the chin firmly down onto the chest.

Then dash on cold water to tighten the skin. If she has time, a dieting mature woman should do this twice a day.

PETUNIA!

To liven the fish
I served the Boss,
I made a luscious
SIMPLE sauce!

And if it was tomato ketchup with a generous amount of horseradish added, Petunia, it was delicious indeed.

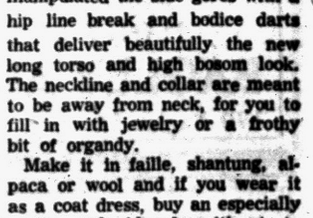

IF too, too thin—

Long, unfitted suit jacket is not good. Soft neckline, loose sleeves, diagonal closing, belted waistline, very good.

Miss T. T.—Soft suits have the character of 2-piece dresses, especially in the new featherweight tweeds and silks. Tall girls are in fashion now, but not the skinny look in clothes that comes from too many straight, unbroken lines.

Manners MAKE FRIENDS

The thoughtful acts of others can often teach you ways in which you can be more thoughtful. When that happens kindness becomes a living thing, with one thoughtful act inspiring another.

The courtesy of others touches you and your courtesy touches many others.

Diamond Real? Here's Proof

LONDON (AP)—Here's a handy tip for girls who want to know if their engagement rings contain real diamonds.

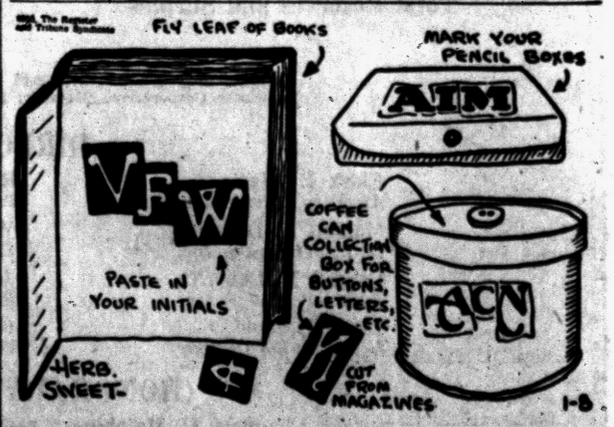

All you do, says Dr. Mary Waller, leading British physicist, is touch the gems with a piece of solid carbon dioxide—"dry ice."

If you hear a squeak, the stones are real. Glass or paste produce no sound.

Dr. Waller dropped the hint in a lecture on the vibrations excited by carbon dioxide.

A fellow never realizes how smart you are until you begin to tell him how good he is.

Try It

Use Your Own Initials

Do you like to have your name on things that belong to you? I guess that everyone does for then things can be returned to you.

Here is a way to mark all of your belongings with your initials, and it should not cost anything. You can look through newspapers and magazines to find the initials in your name, and you will be surprised to see what nice letters you will find.

Too, look at all the different types of letters used. Did you know that there were many different kinds? After you have found your initials, paste them to your books, collecting boxes, pencil cases, and anything else you want to make. Look at the drawing to see that there are different ways to set the letters, too.

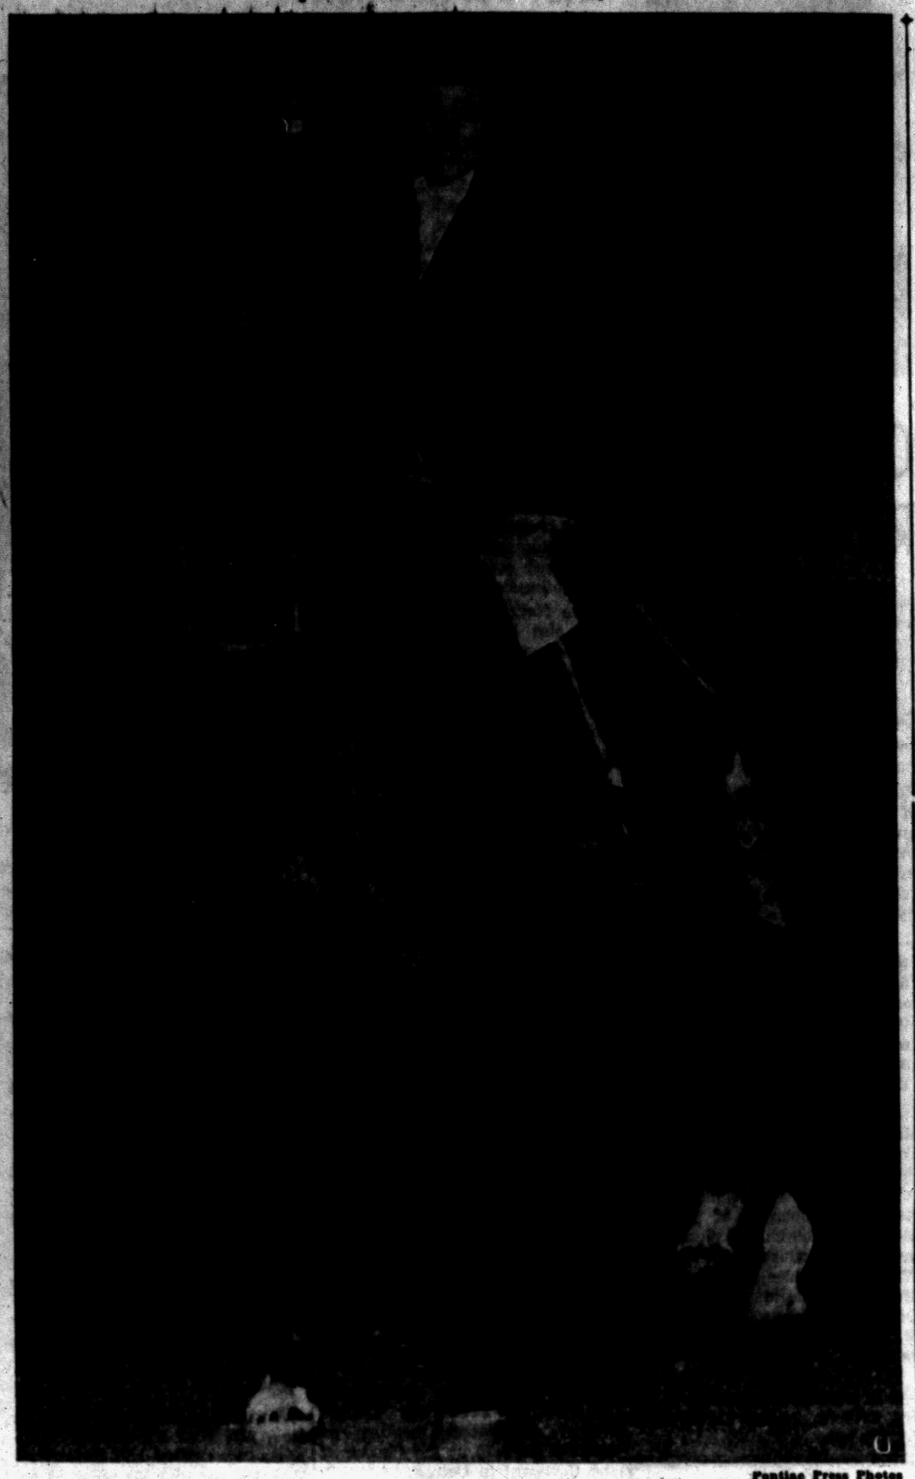

If you find some very large letters you might want to use them on the mirror in your room. Do your initials spell a word?

The bodice of the bride's ballerina length gown was fashioned with an illusion yoke and lace peter pan collar trimmed with seed pearls. The skirt was finished with a flounce and accordian pleating. A lace crown trimmed with seed pearls secured her veil of French silk illusion which was bordered with lace. The bridal bouquet was a crescent arrangement of gardenias.

However, they pay the price in lowered mental productivity, irritability, and greater susceptibility to disease.

One may spend a sufficient amount of time in bed nightly and still not get proper rest if one's bedding is in poor condition, for lumps, bumps, and sags will keep muscles and nerves working overtime.

Dr. Blake Hails U.S. Servicemen

Armed Forces Doing Good Job Maintaining Goodwill in Far East

By Religious News Service

TOKYO — Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, president of the National Council of Churches, said here he was "particularly impressed" during his three-week visit with American servicemen in the Far East by the way they are "serving America in a political sense as ambassadors and in a religious sense as missionaries."

Dr. Blake made the comment as he boarded a plane to return to the United States.

"Our servicemen are doing the best possible job in the difficult task of maintaining goodwill while on duty in a foreign land," he said, adding that they could "improve or undo a hundred years of missionary work" but that he saw "repeated evidence of their positive influence."

The National Council president, who also is Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., cited in particular the "multi-million dollar effort to shelter orphans and build churches and schools through armed forces aid to Korea."

Communion Service Is Observed Sunday

The New Year Communion Service of the First Presbyterian Church will be observed Sunday, Jan. 9. The Rev. Edward D. Auchard, associate pastor, will preview adult Church School lesson materials at the Detroit Presbytery Church School Association meeting on Monday Jan. 10 at the Church of the Covenant in Detroit.

Bible Society Record Enters 100th Year

By Religious News Service

NEW YORK—The Bible Society Record entered its 100th year of publication with the January 1955 issue.

The issue, Vol. 100, No. 1, went to some 325,000 readers all over the world.

Actually the American Bible Society periodical, longest continuously published house organ in the United States, is 137 years old. First appearing in 1818, two years after the founding of the society, it underwent several name changes, finally becoming the Bible Society Record in November 1843. However, the present numbering system was not adopted until January 1856.

Labor Leaders Sit With Clergy

Laboring Man's Religion Discussed at Breakfast in Des Moines

By Religious News Service

About one hundred labor leaders and clergy from the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths sat down together around the breakfast table one day last week in Des Moines, Iowa, to discuss the laboring man and his religion. As nearly as can be determined the meeting is the first of its type ever held.

Purpose of the breakfast, which was sponsored by the Des Moines Trades and Labor Assembly and composed of representatives of about 100 American Federation of Labor locals in the area, was to get the clergymen's reactions to a new idea for drawing more of the rank and file of union members into religious activities.

Goal of the program is to have every union local select a clergyman who would serve as its chaplain and attend meetings, give help to members in times of sickness, death or other troubles.

The background of the plan was outlined by Dr. Roy H. Mills, Methodist pastor and chaplain of the Des Moines Trades and Labor Assembly.

The idea for the breakfast, he said, arose from a recent meeting of the Labor Assembly in which he had told them "that the heads of the union are doing their best to lift working men socially and economically. I suggested," he reported, "they should also work to help them in a spiritual way and they jumped at the chance."

Catholic Conference Will Aid Children

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Through the cooperation of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the American Joint Committee, 15 Japanese youngsters soon will be brought to the United States for adoption.

The State Department announcement said the children would find homes with 11 families in eight states. All 15 youngsters, who range in age from two to eight years, have American fathers and Japanese mothers. But their parents have been either unable or unwilling to care for them and all have spent their lives so far at Our Lady of Lourdes Baby Home in Yokohama, a Catholic institution, the department said.

Residents Flock to Worship in Rustic Chapel

CEDAR MOUNTAIN, N.C.—Summer residents of this mountain resort worship on 11 Sundays each year in picturesque, rustic Faith Chapel here.

Although the chapel was founded by an Episcopalian, its pulpit has been occupied by Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Lutherans and a Moravian.

But, whether the speaker be a layman or a bishop, the chapel's 200 seats are always filled, with additional worshippers usually standing outside under the pines and hemlocks that shade the sanctuary.

Faith Chapel is the last of eight churches built during his 62-year ministry by Dr. Alexander R. Mitchell, who died at Greenville, S.C., in 1949 at the age of 88.

In 1936, when he was 75, Dr. Mitchell called together a number of vacationers one Sunday for a worship service on the front porch of a summer home here.

After several well attended front-porch services, Dr. Mitchell told the group he would help them build a chapel but warned them "you've got to work—there must be action with prayer and faith, and I don't mean lip service."

In the next two years, residents of the summer colony quarried rocks, felled and trimmed logs and with their own $5 and $10 contributions, bought other materials they could not themselves provide to bring the chapel into being.

Some of the building fund came from the sale of the remains of an old chapel, in disuse for many years, built here 70 years ago by Ellison Capers, a Confederate general who entered the Episcopal ministry after the Civil War and later became a bishop. The old chapel's pews, hand-hewn by Bishop Capers and mountaineers of this area, also were transferred to Faith Chapel which was dedicated on July 10, 1938, to Bishop Capers' memory.

Oust Gold Prospectors

QUESNEL, B. C. (UP) — Gold fever was revived in this town recently when a bulldozer opened a trench for a water pipe and prospectors started panning the gravel. Everyday Religion

By DON D. TULLIS

If Any Man Hear—

Many of the world's great never make Who's Who or get first page write-ups in the daily press. Greatness is modest. It never seeks publicity. It chooses to serve without blare of trumpets or blat of bass bassoons.

Recently, there died in England a truly great man, who, in his later years, was unknown to the public forum or the high class clubs. He was known as Rev. Woods. Who was he? Reuters, the British news agency gives us the answer, which in turn is recorded in the Christian Century.

Woods was for many years Vice-Admiral of the Royal Navy. He received the D.S.O. for his heroism in the battle of Jutland. It was in the fire and blood of this battle that he received "An interposed signal from no earthly captain, but from a HIGHER COMMAND."

For some years after the war he remained in the Navy, but finally he answer that "higher command" and went into the ministry. At his own request he was sent to one of the most poverty stricken districts of London.

He found a church with seven members. It was soon filled to overflowing. His people named him the "shy parson." He lived a life of near-poverty along side of his parishioners. His people did not know of his past glory. He forgot himself in his response to the "higher command."

To every man there comes this order from on high if he will but hear it. Before every man God places a burning bush, if he will but see it. Who obeys this higher order may die in poverty but he shall live again in wealth immeasurable. Admiral Woods knew that the service of Brittania, who for a limited time ruled the waves was not comparable in lasting glory to the service of God who forever rules the worlds.

When Robert Louis Stevenson was sailing for the leper colony in far off Molokai, in 1889, his fellow passengers were Catholic nursing sisters. He wrote, "When I found one of them crying, poor soul, under her veil, I cried a little myself. Then, as we were approaching the desolate island I said to them, "Ladies, God himself is here to give you welcome."

Who hears above the call of earth the high command of God, and goes where duty calls, no matter how lowly the task, will find HIM WAITING THERE.

Confident Living

American Family Learns Secret of Facing Future

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

As we face the New Year, I find inspiration in reading about a fine American family who learned the secret of successfully facing difficulties in past years. This family has become quite well known of late, for one of their sons is President of the United States. Elizabeth Logan Davis tells their story in her book, "Mothers of America."

She says that David and Ida Eisenhower were not prosperous people. David was a fine man, but his earnings were always small. One hundred and fifty dollars a month was the most he ever made. He worked in a creamery; then he opened up a small business and failed. Discouraged, he moved to Texas for a short while.

PEALE

Ida followed him a little later with one baby and there, in Denison, she gave birth to the present President of the United States. Finally they moved back to Kansas and the six Eisenhower boys grew up in Abilene.

The Eisenhowers belonged to a religious group called River Brethren, a very spiritual people who had moved west from Pennsylvania because they thought it had become too worldly. The entire Eisenhower family, including all the boys, went to church every Sunday. They came home after church and the boys cooked Sunday dinner, giving their mother her only rest of the week.

There was a Bible in the Eisenhower, home, of course, and every boy had to read it through once every year and commit some favorite passages to memory. It they weren't rich in worldly goods, they were rich in spirit, which is more important.

They raised their own vegetables; the boys sold the surplus so that the family might have the extra cash. They were reared to be self-reliant boys. They didn't think of themselves as underprivileged; that word hadn't even been coined!

They were good, clean, honest American people. Indeed they felt they had wonderful privileges, for think of the happy family life they had; the pleasant town in which they lived; the church and schools they attended; they had the blessing of a free country and the guidance and love of God. Underprivileged? These boys? Not at all.

And when the day came for one of them to be made President of the United States, he must have thought of this Christian and American background, because as he looked out over the great throng, he said, "Before I take the oath of office, I ask you to join me in prayer." He delivered a simple, but sincere prayer that moved the nation to its depths as it had seldom been moved before.

And, more recently, in a statement made for the Committee on Religion in American Life, which is conducting a campaign to deepen the spiritual life of the nation, he said, "I should like to feel that, in every American family, some place is made for an expression of our gratitude to Almighty God, and for a frank acknowledgement of our faith that He can supply that additional strength which, for these trying times, is so sorely needed."

There is much trouble in the world as the New Year dawns. Yet we can face this New Year with strength and with confidence if we turn to these same great sources of inspiration which nourished the Eisenhower family and many other Americans since our country began.

Faithfully practicing your religion, going to your church or other place of worship, reading the Bible and committing its passages to memory, trying in all things to live according to the Lord's guidance, you will have in your life the constructive influences that enable you to better yourself and the world around you. You will be well able to face this New Year and the many more that are to come with fresh courage and enthusiasm.

Grocery Chain Bans All Comics

Safeway Stores Stop Selling Books Dealing With Crime

By Religious News Service

DENVER — The sale of comic books and pocket novels has been discontinued in 137 Safeway stores in six western states because officials of the grocery chain don't feel they are "qualified" to eliminate those dealing with violence, sex, horror and crime.

T. W. Henritze, manager of Safeway's six-state Denver division, said officials of the firm decided to stop selling the publications after trying for several months to "weed out" books which could be considered objectionable.

The stores involved are located in Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and New Mexico.

The Safeway action was the latest in a series of moves in this area to ban lurid comics and pocket books. The drive is being sponsored by church and PTA groups.

New York Cracks Down on Harmful Comic Books

By Religious News Service

NEW YORK — Mayor Robert F. Wagner has ordered Corporation Counsel Adrian P. Burke to seek court injunctions against the publication or sale of "comic books" that tend to inculcate "lust, violence, perverted sex attitudes and disrespect for law and order."

A City Hall spokesman said that letters and requests for action of this sort had been received from many sources, including some from clergymen and church - related groups, but it was prompted primarily by the administration's determination to combat juvenile delinquency.

It was stressed that no attempt to set up any sort of censorship would be made and that the drive against objectionable literature would be carried out under the authority of existing laws.

"Recent crimes committed by juveniles," Mayor Wagner said in announcing the action, "clearly indicate that such publications are responsible in a great measure for the alarming upward trend in juvenile delinquency, particularly in the fields of violence and sex crimes."

This view was concurred in by Police Commissioner Francis W. H. Adams who said that many "terrible crimes" committed in recent weeks were the direct result of the influence exerted by the type of comics the courts will be asked to purge from newsstands and bookstores.

The mayor reiterated that the administration "definitely" does not intend to take on the function of censorship but is "moving ahead in every reasonable and legal direction to curb and combat crime and juvenile delinquency in our city."

Burke explained that he would have to move carefully in preparing cases adequate for presentation to the courts because most of the objectionable books and magazines are published in secret.

"These fellows have their offices in their hats," he said, "and their books are probably published in the back of luncheonettes. We have to work with a great deal of secrecy because they're fly-by-nights.

U.S. Starts Probe of Milk Monopoly Charges

Romeo Group Told of Action

Inquiry on Necessity for Grand Jury Probe Now Under Way

John Neville, Detroit chief of the antitrust division of the U. S. Attorney General's Office told Romeo area milk producers that the Justice Department is investigating the Michigan Milk Producers Assn. (MMPA).

Meanwhile the Cost of Production Committee of the Romeo area milk producers will report the findings of their cost analysis at a meeting scheduled for Jan. 21 in the Romeo High School. All Michigan dairy farmers are invited to attend.

Nville said the Attorney General's Office asked for the investigation following the demand of Romeo area dairy farmers for a grand jury probe of the cooperative. The Justice Department inquiry will determine if a grand jury probe is needed, Neville said.

Romeo area farmers, headed by Harold Fritz, president of the Romeo MMPA local, claim there is evidence of monopoly and possible collusion within the cooperative. They are supported in their charges by MMPA farm delegations from six southeastern Michigan counties.

The farmers also charge possible bribery extortion and boycotting of producers "who dared to protest against monopolistic practices."

They said it is nearly impossible for a producer to sell milk unless he is an MMPA member.

Howard Simmons, MMPA secretary-manager, said of the Justice Department injury:

"An investigation is all right as far as we're concerned. I don't think there's anything to it but as long as the question has been raised it's probably a good idea to clear it up."

Samuel T. Angott, president of the Detroit Milk Dealers, Inc., said:

"I know of nothing to investigate but we don't fear it."

MULTIMILLION DOLLAR SNOW—Farmer A. D. Brown looks prayerfully skyward as he scoops up a double handful of the crop-saving snow which covers his farm near Columbia, Mo. Falling in the wake of last year's drought which was so severe that it parched the subsoil, the white blanket has been termed a "multimillion dollar snow" by the Missouri Farmers' Association.

Water Pump Now Installed at Marlette

MARLETTE — A new 15-horsepower water pump has been installed here, replacing a smaller pump which had proved inadequate.

The new unit, which pumps 350 gallons of water per minute, is expected to provide suffiecient quantity to prevent a recurrence of the water shortage which Marlette experienced last summer, officials said.

But the old 10-horsepower pump won't be discarded. It will be overhauled and returned to service, it was stated.

Engineers expect the two pumps to give an adequate water supply. They said that the present wells have a sufficient capacity to meet the needs of the village.

Huron Valley Educators Invite Parents to Confer

MILFORD — Supplementing regular report cards, parents of elementary and junior high school pupils in the Huron Valley schools have been invited to confer with the teachers regarding the progress of their children during the first semester.

Conferences with parents are being scheduled by the teachers on Jan. 20 and 21. The semester ends Jan. 21.

Arthur Burklund, elementary supervisor, stated that this is the time for the teachers and parents to take into account the progress the child has made, and to arrange to strengthen weaknesses and study strong points.

The conferences are designed to bring mutual understanding between the teacher and the parent, whose mutual interest is the student, according to school officials.

A letter of explanation entitled "What Parents and Teachers Bring to a Conference" has been sent to parents this week.

Burklund added that the conference will be more successful if the parents come prepared with their own thoughts and questions, instead of leaving all the talking up to the teachers.

Don O'Connor Very Serious in Private Life

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Donald O'Connor is about as serious a fellow as anyone who makes his living from getting laughs.

This is the impression you get from the sorrow of his personal life. Or maybe it's because success comes from a great amount of serious work. Occasionally his face brightens and he delivers some of the delightful O'Connor wit. But usually he discusses things with a sober air.

We talked about his future, and he said it is now tied up with equal portions of TV and movies. When we last conversed, he said that TV was uppermost in his plans.

He has maintained a high quality of entertainment on his "Here Comes Donald" programs, which alternate with Jimmy Durante and the spectaculars over NBC. Tonight, for example, he features some topnotch routines with Mitzi Gaynor, one of his co-stars in "There's No Business Like Show Business."

There's no sign of a letup in the demand for Donald's services. He is tied up for two more seasons with the TV show, which he produces for his own company. He finishes his first season's quota of 19 shows in a few weeks and then goes right into a new "Francis" epic. Immediately following, he joins Bing Crosby, Mitzi Gaynor and Jeanmaire in "Anything Goes."

The Francis film will mark the end of Donald's deal with Universal-International, which began back in 1941. This will be virtually the first time in his life he has been free of commitments. During most of his years he has been engaged in vaudeville tours or under contract to studios.

Mrs. Ty Cobb Asks Property, Alimony

RENO (AP)—The second wife of baseball immortal Ty Cobb yesterday asked equitable division of community property and "suitable" alimony in filing for divorce from the 66-year-old "Georgia Peach."

Mrs. Frances C. Cobb, 45, who married the millionaire ex-baseball star in 1949, charges cruelty. They have no children.

They were married two years after Cobb divorced his first wife in Reno after 39 years of marriage and five children.

Congress Beats Solon to Punch on Tax Slash

WASHINGTON (INS)—Congress was asked Thursday to do something it did last year.

Rep. Victor Wickersham (D-Okla) introduced legislation to repeal the war-time tax rate on admissions to theaters. This bill, reducing the rate from 20 to 10 per cent, became law last spring.

BRANDO AS BONAPARTE—Known as one of the world's most exciting actors, Marlon Brando portrays the great Napoleon in "Desiree," which starts today at the Oakland. This story of one of the loves of Napoleon is not found in history books, and has never been told on the screen until now. Brando, Jean Simmons, Merle Oberon and Michael Rennie are starred in 20th Century-Fox CinemaScope picture.

Although the evidence is inconclusive, many students believe the horse was domesticated in the Bronze age.

Some wasps are as much as three inches long.

Compromise Looms in NCAA Video Battle

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK —A new television committee will be chosen by the NCAA today and entrusted with the delegate task of mapping out a football video program that will please some factions and appease others.

* * *

The committee, to be selected by the college groups freshly appointed council, was given a "blank check" by the convention Friday to settle one of the NCAA's "thorniest problems," as Father Edmund P. Joyce of Notre Dame put it.

In the next couple of months the committee will have to devise a program that will be satisfactory to the numerically powerful Eastern groups, which want some kind of a national "Game of the Week" schedule again, and the influential, threatening Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference alliance, which desires a combination of a regional and national program.

There was every indication as the convention adjourned Friday that a compromise might be effected. When the committee has completed its deliberations, it will send out its program for a mail vote by the members. A two-third vote is required for passage.

"The Big Ten probably will do nothing until a new plan comes down," said Michigan's H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, leading spokesman of the Western Conference on the floor of the convention. It was the tall, gray-haired former coach who stirred up a tempest on Thursday when he said the Big Ten might strike out on its own if a more liberal TV program was not forthcoming.

"We are open to any other plan as long as it is not last year's (national Game of the Week program) plan," said Crisler. "We are not adamant. We are willing to compromise. After all we are all dealing with the family's jewels."

"I think the matter will be settled and we'll have a 1955 television program beneficial to all," remarked Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the 101-member Eastern College Athletic Conference.

If the applecart is kicked over before the TV group outlines its plans, it probably will be done by a maverick member of the Big Ten under the pressure of a state legislature. Illinois, Minnesota and Ohio are the states where the legislators' pressure is heaviest for state-wide TV of the games of the state-operated schools.

An Illinois representative said he didn't believe the university officials would be able to hold the line much longer.

That was behind Crisler's Thursday statement and points up the significance of his remark that the nine other schools "would stand by the school affected and accept the consequences."

The Big Ten-Pacific Coast combine and its supporters didn't enjoy the parliamentary hassle on the floor Friday which wound up in a standing vote by the members on which of the listed TV plans they preferred.

By a whopping 4 to 1 margin the delegates expressed a preference for some kind of a national "Game of the Week" program over the Big Ten sponsored national-regional (nine regional, four national programs) proposal.

Dr. Albert Moore of Alabama was succeeded by Clarence P. Houston of Tufts College of Medford, Mass., as president. Los Angeles was approved as the site for the next convention in January 1956.

Shrine Only Unbeaten Area 5

By JACK SAYLOR

Three of Oakland County's four unbeaten basketball teams were defeated and league standings underwent a wholesale shuffling following Friday night's action on the prep cage front.

No less than four teams now share first place in the Inter-Lakes Conference and there are 2-way ties in the Wayne-Oakland and Oakland-B loops.

Birmingham scored a 52-40 victory over Ferndale to hand the 'Dales their 1st loss and make the Maple record 6-1. Dick Sheldon potted 8 of 15 field goal attempts and was the leading scorer with 18 points.

Ferndale held a 12-7 lead at the 1st quarter, but the Maples grabbed the advantage just before the half and never were headed thereafter.

Joining the 'Dales in losing for the 1st time were Hazel Park and Keego Harbor. Mt. Clemens downed the Parkers, 54-46, and hold top spot in the Eastern Michigan League with two wins.

Shrine now remains the lone unbeaten team. The Knights clipped Redford St. Mary, 51-41. Keego's setback was another thriller for fans in the Presidents' gym.

After a close 1st half, Clarkston surged ahead after intermission and led by 13 points with only a minute and a half left. Sam Minard's team applied a full-court press and with Tom McLellan's 8 points sparking the attack, cut the margin to 66-63 with seconds remaining.

Keego added a foul shot, but Clarkston kept possession until the final buzzer. Bob Yahnke and Dick Johnston each turned in 20-point efforts for Clarkston, while Frank Rogers had 17 points for Keego.

Milford rolled to its 4th win in 5 games by lacing Brighton, 88-38. Jim Davidson and Tom Gould each tossed in 19 points and Fred Baker added 18 for the Redskins. Northville downed Clarenceville, 69-50, to tie Clarkston for the Wayne-Oakland lead.

In the Inter-Lakes, Walled Lake spilled league-leading Van Dyke, 50-42. This, coupled with Berkley's 59-43 verdict over Southfield, and Farmington's 66-42 win over Waterford left all but Southfield and Waterford tied for the league lead.

Berkley split scoring chores as the Bears hit over 50 per cent of their shots. Farmington grabbed an early lead and was never threatened by the Skippers. Waterford's Jerry Kruskie was the game's top scorer with 14 points.

Walled Lake trailed for three periods, but took over in the 4th quarter as Bob Hess dropped in six straight foul shots. Myrel Taulbee collected 18 points for the Vikings.

Oxford and Lake Orion gained identical 55-53 victories over Lapeer and Romeo in a similar manner. Lapeer's long shots bit deeply into Oxford's early lead, but Mike Benedict broke a 53-53 tie with a 20-foot push shot in the final five seconds.

Orion lost all but one of a 14-point lead in the 4th quarter as Dick Johnson meshed a free throw in the final moments to preserve the 55-53 edge. Rod Wiley had 14 for Orion, but Romeo's Bill Krohn looped in 24.

Fred Bergin was high in the Oxford triumph with 16 points. Dwight Spiker added 14 and Larry Spencer 12.

In other games, Madison tripped Troy, 73-61; Fitzgerald nipped Avondale, 52-51; and Roseville polished off Clawson, 56-39, in the Oakland-B. Imlay City drubbed Ortonville, 83-50, in the South Central.

Pontiac's parochial basketball teams split in two Suburban Catholic League games last night.

St. Michael remained in a 3-way deadlock for 2nd place after turning back St. Rita, 44-38, at Hazel Park. Mikes, outshot from the floor 15 goals to 14, sank 16 of 27 chances from the foul line.

Coach Bob Mineweaser's crew built up a commanding 39-26 lead at the end of three quarters. They failed to connect for a single field goal in the final period, however, scoring only one point while St. Rita was piling up 12.

Marty Keller and Joe Wilhelm each sank two free throws in the final minutes to enable the Shamrocks to pull away from a shaky 40-38 lead. John Keller, 6-foot-1 junior forward, led the scoring with 21 points.

St. Frederick fell before St. Benedict's undefeated Ravens, 54-43, here. Bens overcame an 11-7 1st-period deficit with a 16-point outburst in the 2nd quarter and never again were headed.

Capt. Don Philion pumped in 22 points to spark the Raven attack. Ram's Dick Doyon and Lionel Bradley accounted for 15 points apiece.

Pete Ziebron, senior forward who missed the 1st three games because of a shoulder injury, returned to Orchard Lake St. Mary's lineup last night to play a key role in the Eaglets' 62-44 victory over Center Line St. Clement. Ziebron scored 13 points to back up teammate Vince Pernicki's 16.

St. Mary outscored the Clems in every period and never were threatened.

Royal Oak St. Mary handed St. James its 3rd league setback, 48-36, to round out the full night's schedule.

Dickinson, Monti Share Lead in LA Open at Halfway Mark

LOS ANGELES —A former captain of the Louisiana State University links team, Gardner Dickinson, fired a second round 66 and Eric Monti of Los Angeles a 67 to deadlock at 6-under-par 136 as the $32,500 Los Angeles Open reached the halfway mark.

Two strokes behind Friday came former U. S. Open champion Julius Boros who had the best round, 65. At 139 were youthful Gene Littler with 72-67, and Johnny Bulla, winner here in 1941, who put a 69 with his first round 70.

The bulky field of 131 professionals was cut to 66 with only those with scores of 146 or better qualifying for continued play. They'll be joined by 34 leading amateurs headed by Eddie Draper of Seattle, who has 72-74—146.

Dickinson, a 130-pounder who hits like a heavyweight, says he has started using the psychology he majored in at college to help his own game over the 6,308-yard Inglewood Country Club Course.

The 27-year-old resident of Panama City, Fla., now playing out of St. Andrews, Ill., says, "I'm trying a new attitude this year. I'm going to control my temper. I probably whipped myself more than anybody who ever lived. My putting would go bad and I'd let it get me down."

Gardner, 27, bought a new putter on the way here and also stopped off to talk with Ben Hogan for whom he worked at the Tamarisk Club in Palm Springs last year.

"Ben gave me a little talk," he said. "He wanted to know where I'd been," meaning he hadn't lived up to Hogan's expectations.

And after arriving in Los Angeles he got some driving help from U. S. Open champion Ed Furgol and Jerry Barber, one of last year's top money winners.

It paid off. His drives were long and straight, and he sank putts for birdies from 12, 16 and 17 feet.

Smith, Gonsalves on TV

MIAMI (UP)—Wallace (Bud) Smith, 6th ranking lightweight, matches his prowess as a puncher against the flashy boxing of Johnny Gonsalves tonight in a nationally televised 10-round fight (ABC-9 p.m. EST).

Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., who admits he fights best when being pushed, has been rated a 7-to-5 underdog.

Steve Owens' Outfit Rated a TD Edge Over Brown's Northerners

MOBILE, Ala. —Selected North and South squads meet in the sixth annual Senior Bowl football game at Ladd Stadium today. The kickoff is set for 2:45 p.m. (EST).

Imposing Array of Grid Stars for Hula Bowl

HONOLULU (AP)—The Hawaii All-Stars—an imposing collection of pro football artists led by Cleveland's Otto Graham—and the College All-Stars top off workouts today for Sunday's ninth annual Hula Bowl game.

The pros scheduled limbering up exercises. The collegians, fresh from last week's play in the Rose Bowl, Cotton Bowl and East-West Classic, planned to work out kickoff assignments.

Prospects were for a balmy day and a near capacity crowd of 25,000. The game starts at 2 p.m. (7 p.m. EST).

Graham, who paced the Cleveland Browns to the National Football League crown, is among five professionals from the mainland teamed up with talent from Hawaiian town teams and military stars.

Patterson Too Much for Troy

Ex-Olympian Hands Bad Beating to Willie in Bout Halted in 5th

NEW YORK, — Everybody faults Floyd Patterson except the ring record book which shows 19 gaudy victories in 20 pro starts after Friday night's fifth round technical knockout over Willie Troy.

"He missed too much" said Troy, sixth-ranked middleweight contender from Washington, D.C. as he sat in his dressing room with a tightly closed left eye and an "egg" over the right lamp.

"He couldn't knock out a middleweight," said a fight manager. But that was strictly a technicality for the ex-Olympic champ battered Troy with his quick, violent hands so that even Al Weill, the loser's manager, asked them to stop it.

It was strictly no contest at Madison Square Garden where two officials, referee Al Berl and judge Artie Aidala had it a 5-0 shutout until it was stopped.

Richard Fined $250 for Hitting Linesman

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said an automatic $50 fine for the two misconduct penalties Richard received at the time was included in the $250 total.

Richard hit Hayes in the face with his glove when the linesman restrained him from resuming a battle with the Leafs' Bob Bailey.

Top-Ranked Kentucky Wildcats End Seven Days of Idleness Tonight, Entertain Georgia Tech

The Associated Press

After watching various pretenders to its throne batter each other the past week, the University of Kentucky steps on the basketball court tonight after seven days of leisure.

Kentucky entertains Georgia Tech at Lexington in a Southeastern Conference game. Duquesne, currently the top independent and No. 2 to Kentucky in this week's Associated Press poll figures to roll on to its ninth victory of the season when it takes on little St. Francis of Loretto, Pa.

New York University and Notre Dame, which not long ago attracted packed galleries in New York Madison Square Garden have their annual date in the big arena, but it won't be like the old days. NYU no longer is a power and the Irisih show a mediocre 5-4 record.

The Big Ten will show a nationally televised game when Wisconsin meets Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich. Indiana, still hoping to pull itself to a third straight title, goes against Illinois, while Ohio State sends Robin Freeman, the nation's leading scorer with 34.6 points per game, against Michigan.

In the Ivy League all eyes are on Dartmouth, a club which probably has surprised itself by going undefeated in eight games. Coach Al Julian will use four sophomores against Cornell, unbeaten in three league games. Penn, the league favorite, plays Princeton.

Missouri, the heir apparent to the Big Seven throne, is host to Nebraska in the top game, while in the Atlantic Coast Conference, surprising Maryland, battles Clemson. In the Southwest conference, Arkansas at Texas A and M, Rice at Southern Methodist and Texas at Baylor (favorite Texas Christian is idle), And in the Missouri Valley, veteran-laden Wichita plays Houston while Detroit battles Oklahoma A&M.

Takes Charge

NY Ring Czar Adopts 'Get Tough' Policy

NEW YORK (AP)—Make no mistakes about it, Julius Helfand, new chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, has adopted a "get tough" approach on his new beat.

The racket-busting former assistant district attorney took complete charge at his first commission meeting Friday, denying licenses, throwing out a complete fight card and declaring war on undercover managers.

When Irving Cohen, fight manager, was approved as a new 15 per cent partner in two young boxers Ray Grillo and Al McQueen, Helfand warned "If I find there are any hidden partners in your case or any other, the manager and boxer never will get contracts again as long as I am chairman."

When a Brooklyn middleweight, Joseph Paci, applied for a license, he was turned down after Helfand read from the court records on convictions.

The chairman disapproved an entire card, supposed to be held tonight at Springville, N. Y., because of its "mediocre quality." As a result, the show was cancelled.

Soviet OKs Travel for Jap Wrestlers

TOKYO (AP)—The first ordinary passports for travel in the Soviet Union since World War II were issued Friday to 13 wrestlers invited to Moscow.

FINNISH BIRCH FOR DINING—Part of the new Focus dining group, the table and buffet of this contemporary styled ensemble are in Finnish birch. Chairs have seats and back of saddle leather, plywood or fabrics. All pieces come packaged ready to be assembled with a few simple tools.

PROVINCIAL WITH MODERN TOUCH—Called the classics of Provincial, the dining room pieces illustrated are in walnut with a soft contemporary finish. Brass is used for effective accents; decorative knobs on chair tops, medallions on table corners, ferrules and for the simple round circlets which form the drawer pulls.

Modern, Traditional Stage 'Get Together' at Grand Rapids Mart

By HAZEL A. TRUMBLE

GRAND RAPIDS — The Great Compromise has formally been witnessed and acclaimed a great success at the 154th Grand Rapids Furniture Market.

Contemporary has bowed graciously to traditional and mellowed its rigid lines; traditional has taken another long and lingering look at contemporary and decided there is beauty in simplicity and this year dropped much of its old "gingerbread."

Furniture buyers who have heretofore felt themselves torn between loyalty for the old and intrigue for the new are happy that the designers and artists of this furniture Capitol have promoted the merger.

Buyers and the press inspecting exhibit after exhibit in the Waters Building, the Exhibitors Building and the showrooms of the various furniture factories found something to interest and fit the taste and pocketbook of the buying public and their readers, too.

Even the continental French have influenced this fabulous market as evidenced by the beauty of fruitwoods in the provincial stylings with the Italians, also offering their provincial, coming in for praise with new painted finishes in a variety of blues, pinks and antique whites. Cane accents highlight the French provincial and polished pewter trim notes are used.

Greece, Rome and the Far East, always the source of original ideas for furniture design, have cast their shadow on the furniture soon to be seen in your local furnishing stores.

Still keeping its top popularity is the early American with its hand-rubbed pines, beautifully grained cherries and mellow maples.

The timeless beauty of this period of our history has been emphasized in new pieces which are exact reproductions of the originals but have been given the modern comfort of foam rubber upholstery and the durability of coverings made of nylon that simulate chintz.

Manufacturers report that the demand for foam rubber exceeds the supply and they are constantly seeking new sources of this modern material.

Followers of the hair upholstery method have found new ways to coat the hairs with rubber giving it a resiliency that is unsurpassed for comfort and endurance.

In colors, charcoal, pink and turquoise (sometimes with names such as camellia, gunmetal and ocean blue) are the mass-demanded shades. But always metallic threads are woven through (now guaranteed not to tarnish) giving a touch of real elegance.

Manufactorers and buyers alike conceed that these colors, although extremely popular with the buying public, will bow out in a few years to the warm earth tones such as terra cotta, brown, green and yellow.

Again the merger of traditional and contemporary is evident in the multitude of superb fabric designs which the artist has searched into age-old history and given Egyptian hieroglyphics, Occidental symbols and early American oil lamps the contemporary touch in line, color and arrangement.

Note to home architects: The dining room is to again become part of the American home. Many of manufacturers have put their designers to work on furniture for this room which offers pine, maple, cherry, fruitwood, walnut (with a new gray treatment) and light mahogany woods. Tables, mostly, are drop leafs with extension sections and one house did a beautiful pine trestle table with matching full-length benches.

Chairs run the gamut here with a Chair Fair featured by one house on a colorful carousel. Besides the natural woods, many have wood sections lacquered in dramatic black with vivid plain and printed corduroy holstering. Others have rich metallic embroidered covers and still others have a combination silk shantung upholstering which has both color and texture to give them interest.

Rocking chairs have been given a modern treatment in that the base is camouflaged and they look like an ordinary arm chair. Skirts of the upholstery fabric help to achieve this.

Sofas are big, little and middle-sized, depending upon the scale the home or apartment can handle. Many are extremely contemporary in line and covering, but they are extremely comfortable due to studied contouring.

Both in dinette, bedroom and living room furniture, the buyer can obtain a truly "packaged deal." The delivery man drops off a few medium sized boxes and your house is furnished.

Quickly and easily assembled without tools, nails or glue, the wood is Honduras mahogany and 13-ply Finland birch. It comes with a complete factory finish.

More than a wood product, the chairs have various seats in leather, fabric or plywood.

Savings to customers in price is phenomenal. Sold by the unit or in separate pieces, this furniture cost is kept down by the savings to the factory in assembly and packaging and even in shipping.

Leather has truly come into its own here in Grand Rapids this week with exhibits that show this natural material being used in everything from floor tile to wall covering. Combined with other natural products including cork, paper, cotton, ceramic, tiles, brass, brick, glass, linen and paint, it has also teamed up with pewter, rubber, silk, silver, stone, wood and wool.

And the colors follow the rainbow.

One kitchen floor is done in red, with the wall in pink leather and a refrigerator with a black leather slipcover.

Other "news" drawing oh's and ah's from the buyers and press this week included the new Dow silicone finish for fabrics and floor coverings. This treatment renders all materials impervious to spots and stains. Ink, grease, lipstick and juice spots can be removed with a whisk of a cloth.

A truly elegant kitchen combined the living, dining and kitchen area with pink, green, red and navy blue in a fascinating combination.

Pink steel cupboards and a barbecue pit and copper hooded fireplace which extends into the dining area are on display. This same copper provides the accent pieces for the rooms with a row of planters and shade of the drop-lamp.

Screens were staging a come back at this market showing the Chinese influence. Others were conversation provoking pieces covered with maps, bird prints, old music selections and popular reproductions of the masters. Many were lacquered in different colors, some were framed in natural warm woods, and still others had fine maneuverable louvers.

Tops for tables, dining, and occasional, seem to have an affinity for formica and micarta. Even the most elegant of the bleached and natural mahoganys now have this plastic topping.

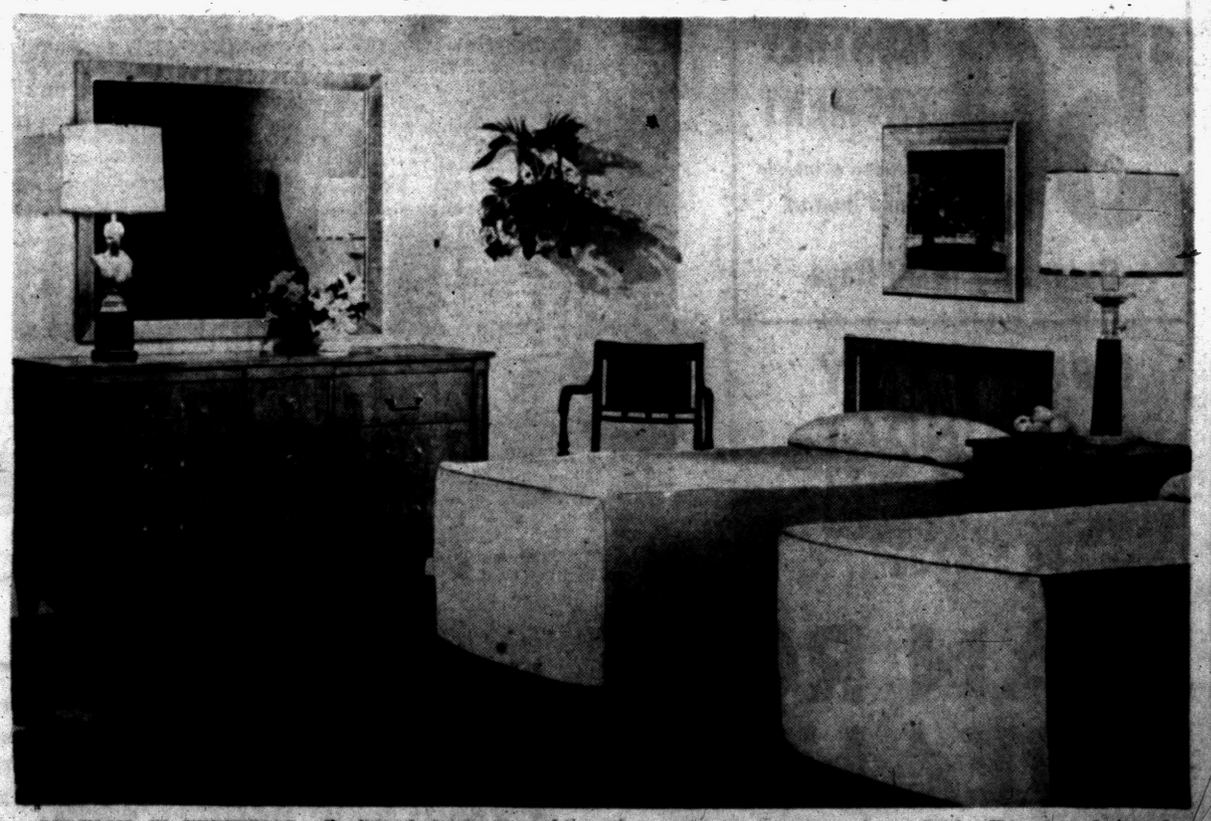

BREAKFAST MAGNIFIC ENT—Buffet base and top deck combine to form a superb breakfront from the French collection of designs at the current Grand Rapids Furniture Market. Three large drawers and two roomy compartments in the base; grille doors at either side of the top may be replaced by wood panels if desired. Base is also available without top.

HITCHCOCK TABLE—Illustrated console table is one of the many designs shown at the current market and it is offered in 29 colors and three other finishes such as black and gold, antique maple and gold and antique cherry with gold finish. Called the dressing table in "olden days," it is equally adapted for use as a vanity, a living room console or a dining room server.

IRON WING CHAIR—Handsome wing chair from the new symphony group of wrought iron furniture shown at the mid-winter market in Grand Rapids is available in a wide range of decorator colors. Guaranteed against rust for 8 years, foam rubber is used for the upholstering.

BEDROOM IN FRUITWOOD—Traditional furniture can be smartly adapted to the needs of today as demonstrated in the above bedroom ensemble. Emphasizing the clean, classical lines of the French Directorate period in furnishings, this suite is done in fruitwood with the new embassy finish. This gives fruitwood a greyish cast. Heavy cast brass drawer pulls are specially designed for use on pieces in the new collection.

Warm Baby's Formula and Keep in Thermo Bag

Here's a way to get almost a full night's sleep and still give baby his middle-of-the-night bottle at just the right temperature: Warm the formula before retiring and put the heated bottle in a thermo-keep insulated bag.

B. F. Goodrich company says the bag is lined with koroseal and insulated with fiberglas so that the bottle will stay warm until baby's ready for the parent to feed him.

FROM FAR EAST — This extremely versatile piece of furniture provides storage space anywhere you need it. This group is called "Tung-Si," which means "east-west" in Chinese, and is made of walnut finished in a light color. Note the metal bands which are silver colored. This piece is part of a complete grouping of bedroom and dining room furniture.

Pruning Trees in Winter

One very common misstatement that home gardeners make is that early spring is the only time for pruning fruit trees.

Unfortunately, springs in many parts of the country can be most miserable. Before the gardener realizes it, spring has come and gone, and the trees are so loaded with blossoms that pruning is forgotten. Much pruning can be done now and on mild days during the winter.

Every amateur plant propagator has his favorite rooting medium, but almost everyone is looking for a better mixture or material.

Some folks prefer sharp mason's sand; some like peat moss; some vermiculite, and some, a mixture. The material used probably will depend upon the plants to be rooted.

Plants such as African violets that need a higher moisture content in the soil or that are kept wet in pots usually foot better in a mixture of peat moss and sand. Plants that customarily are kept on the dry side usually root best in sharp sand.

Vermiculite is a good medium, but it requires much less frequent watering, and, when it is watered, it absorbs tremendous quantities of water.

The old gardener's criticism of vermiculite is in the danger of overwatering, a habit common to home gardeners.

African violets do not require a rich soil as is the common belief. A porous, sandy, humusy soil is ideal. Likewise, contrary to what we may hear from the "expert," African violets can be repotted when in full bloom. Always shift to a pot one size larger, and one with a drainage hole in the bottom.

A little fertilizer and some charcoal added to the soil mixture will insure better growth and continued bloom. Once you understand them, African violets are a joy to grow and require a minimum of care.

The exacting requirements of the beautiful gardenia are a challenge to the indoor gardener.

It is a challenging plant not only because of its need for carefully regulated temperature and humidity, but for the additional reason that it is susceptible to several diseases and insects pests which are difficult to control in the home.

Insufficient sunlight, overwatering, poor drainage, too low a soil temperature, iron deficiency, or disease in the roots or stems are causes of poor foliage and failure of the buds to develop into blooms.

In the opinion of the old gardener the place for the gardenia is in the greenhouse where controls can be easily regulated and sunlight is not a problem.

Antique Colors Go With Modern

Convenience, Comfort Go Hand in Hand With New-Old Soft Shades

CHICAGO (INS) — This year's new furniture will give housewives antique colors along with modern comfort and convenience.

Old golds, subdued greens and off-shades of blue are being shown as companion color mates for off-white at the winter home furnishings market which opened Monday in Chicago.

The color palette in sofas and upholstered chairs is a carry-over and re-affirmation of 1954's return to elegance in American home decor. It's abetted by a renewed attention to foreign places.

There's furniture adapted to modern living that reminds you of castles in Spain, the Roman Empire and the Far East.

But whatever the influence, most of the furniture can be mixed right into all but the most ultra-modern of homes. It has lower, simpler lines, sofas in sectionals and multi-purpose features.

Much wood is finished in a weathered patina in parchment shades with accent pieces in dark lacquer or hand-rubbed natural tones.

Beside the antique color schemes, there is a trend toward a monotone look in room settings with various shades of green and aquamarine, violets and blues, or brown, beige and white.

These variations on a single color are helped along by colored wood finishes, which are available in both modern and traditional styles. The most attractive are in pastel French provincial furniture for the bedroom or dining room.

Although most furniture is low-slung, a few designers at the exhibition are introducing "leggier" pieces for contrast in a room.

The little round table, which reappeared last year, isn't alone anymore. Circular tables are being shown for everything from holding a lamp, cocktails or dinner. Several firms are emphasizing more formal dining rooms; notably directoire in antique white etched in French blue floral motifs.

Brass is still the most popular accent for tables and chests, which quite often are topped with marble, slate or glass.

More occasional chairs and sofas have removable back and seat cushions. And leathers of various hues are being widely used for pullup chairs.

Finely Finished Furniture Wisest Buy in Long Run

Attractive finishes play a predominant role in creating the sales appeal of a fine piece of furniture. Actually, the finest type of furniture finish represents only a very small per cent of its total cost.

Consequently, it is wisdom to make sure that the furniture you buy is expertly finished with the best quality materials. The best costs little — the mediocre may cost you the price of the furniture itself.

Dining Room Comes Back

The dining room is returning to modern homes, but with some significant modifications that reflect new trends in modern living. It is no longer a room set apart solely as eating quarters as it was a generation ago.

Today's dining room is multi-purpose, serving also as a study, sewing center, TV or music room. Creative use of standard materials such as durable tile for flooring serve to integrate the entire space. Tile has been chosen because it can withstand the greatly increased activity now centered in today's dining room.

Cedar Closet Is Clean

Many homemakers favor cedar closets as much for their easy upkeep as for their moth repellency. The only maintenance required is occasional dusting, plus a light sanding about once a year to renew the strength of the cedar fumes. No varnish or other finish should ever be applied.

Good News for Farmers

No Payment for a Year on Improvement Loans

Farm buildings can usually be re-roofed without removing the old roofing material if asphalt shingles are used. Under its Title I program, the Federal Housing Administration insures loans for farm property improvements.

The farmer who wants to put a new roof on a barn or other building gets a break in terms for repaying a Title I loan guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration. He has up to 12 months to make the first payment after borrowing the money.

This provision in the loan regulations enables a farmer to produce and market his crops at least once before any payment is due. The urban dweller, who presumably has a more regular income, isn't able to do this.

The farmer-borrower may repay a Title I property improvement loan in annual, instead of the customary monthly, installments if at least 51 per cent of his income is "derived directly from the sale of agricultural crops, commodities, or livestock produced by him."

A property improvement loan may be as high as $2,500, with up to three years to pay. The FHA itself does not lend money. It insures loans made by banks or other lending institutions under the FHA program.

Timely repairs financed by Title I loans are good business because farm buildings are a means of livelihood to the farmer. Money spent on their upkeep is an investment that can pay off in increased business and profits.

For example, a barn may have a worn, battered roof. If allowed to deteriorate further, the old roof will expose the barn's contents, as well as its structure, to the weather.

Protecting the barn with a new roof of weathertight, fire-resistant asphalt shingles—and doing it before leaks start—will safeguard the farmer's investment in the building, equipment, livestock, and crops.

Check That New Home for Electrical Set-Up

Be sure to check a home's electrical set-up before you put your name on the dotted line. Faulty wiring, not uncommon even in some new homes, can cause fires and serious accidents. Kitchens carry an extra-heavy electrical load and a fireproof surfacing for countertops, walls and floor is really an essential precaution.

Here's a quick way to check for faulty or inadequate wiring: 1. Will you need long cords to string around the room for lamps and appliances? 2. Will electrical outlets hamper varied furniture arrangements? 3. Will it be necessary to enter a room or hall in the darkness because of the absence of wall switches?

Drain Washer Pump if in Unheated Room

If you leave your washing machine in an unheated room in winter, be sure to drain the water out of the pump after use.

If you don't the water in the pump may freeze and crack the pump. And by the way, freezer units should not be left out in unheated rooms.

Recreation Area Can Be Gleaned From Small Lot

Wise landscaping can change your narrow building lot into one perfect for recreation and relaxation. Most important of all, plan for variety and privacy. You can install an easy-to-clean quarry tiled terrace at the rear of the house for outdoor entertaining. With shrubs or a flower bed, you can divide the smallest lot into formal and play areas.

Surround the formal area with a narrow walk and plant an herb garden at the far end. A small vegetable garden is fine for the far end of the play area. As for play, badminton or croquet requires very little space. Finally, surround the entire lot with high shrubbery for privacy.

Slightly rusted sewing needles can be made workable again by pressing them into a cake of soap.

To keep a mixed green salad crisp, place a saucer upside down in the bowl before filling with salad. The moisture from the dressing will run underneath and the salad will stay fresh and crisp.

Do you desperately need additional closet space in your bedroom but fear that the addition of a wardrobe will give you a feeling of claustrophobia because the room will then seem so small?

Use the old magician's illusion trick—do it with mirrors.

Install a free standing wardrobe or build one up to the ceiling and panel the front of either one in plate glass mirrors.

This eliminates the necessity of finishing the outside surface and disguises an old or ready-made wardrobe. In addition, the mirrors give the illusion of space and provide daily reassurance that your seams are straight and your slip doesn't show.

New Top Shelters Old Inn

A century older than the United States, historic Wayside Inn in Sudbury, Mass., stands as a fine example of the sturdy colonial architecture of old New England.

Built in 1688, only 60-odd years after the Mayflower landed, the famous tavern was immortalized by the poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in his "Tales of a Wayside Inn" in 1862.

The pre-Revolutionary inn has seen plenty of American history, and has entertained famous guests, including Washington and Lafayette.

Wayside Inn is a large frame building with simple lines and numerous windows. It is two stories high, with additional rooms in the dormered attic. To protect the priceless antique from fire, fire-resistant asphalt shingles were chosen for the present-day roof.

Although asphalt shingles are young compared with the inn itself, their quiet but colorful appearance and neat, regular pattern are in keeping with the architectural principles of the early colonists.

Fireplace Front Appeal Recaptured With Tile

If your living room is really too small for the fireplace try moving the mantel to reduce that overstuffed appearance. Most mantels serve only as a catch-all for forgotten items. In its place install recessed shelves above the fireplace for the display of family heirlooms, ceramics, delicate china, or beautifully bound old volumes.

When fireplace fronts are unappealing, cover them with fireproof decorative tile and extend the tilework the width of the wall. Remember, even a small room needs a highlighted area to which attention is first directed.

Tip to the Handyman

Did you know that a good way to ruin a good chisel is hitting it with a steel hammer. Always use a wood mallet or one with a leather face.

Back-Siphonage Threat to Health

Dangers of Defective Plumbing Disclosed in Recent Event

The dangers of defective plumbing in multiple-story buildings were recently emphasized by an incident in San Diego, California, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

Thirty cases of jaundice in a housing project in San Diego were traced to back-siphonage in the plumbing system.

It all started when a housewife in a second floor apartment filled her washing machine with a hose attached to the faucet of the kitchen sink.

One end of the hose was under water in the washing machine. The housewife placed the clothes of a jaundice victim into the machine while it was being filled with water.

Downstairs tenants suddenly increased the amount of water they were using. An air pocket formed in the water supply lines going to the fixtures on the upper floors. Some of the water from the washing machine was siphoned into the water lines and emerged from faucets on other floors.

Commenting on the outbreak of jaundice among occupants in the building, Dr. J. B. Askew, county public health officer said: "Faulty plumbing in a multiple-story building can be a dangerous threat to health.

Plumbing in such buildings should be planned and installed with extreme care in order to avoid the possibility of contaminated water being siphoned into the water supply lines."

Carport or Garage Converts to Living

If you're building a new home you are perhaps wondering whether to have a carport or garage. In some climates the carport is sufficient. In others it is quite impractical. In favor of the carport is economy of construction, but with a garage there are extra facilities for storage.

In either case, the space can be converted to living quarters as the family expands. To provide for that time, use versatile quality materials such as quarry tile floors that can "take it" and remain attractive.

Winter Bouquets Made at Home Add Beauty Note

Many homemakers are discovering that it's fun to make their own winter bouquets. Their seeking eyes now find beauty in interesting branch formations, in dried seed pods and even in weeds they thought prosaic before.

With the aid of colorful paint in aerosol spray cans, weeds, seed pods and branches take on added glamour and inspire decorative arrangements that add new beauty and variation to the household.

As for the spraying itself — it's merely a matter of finding or contriving a suitable working place where the overspray will not add color where you do not wish to have it. Just aim the nozzle of the can at your branch or pod and press the button. That's all there is to it!

Application of a good penetrating sealer finish on a newly laid hardwood floor will seal the pores of the wood, keep out dirt and resist soil stains.

Hardwood Tests Show Varied Wearing Quality

Your hardwood floor should wear evenly. Ask your architect to state in the specifications that the floors shall be of one species only—not a mixture of the species.

The hardness tests for hardwoods used for flooring rank northern hard maple, first; beech, second; birch, third. A mixture of these species will, therefore, not wear evenly.

Treat dust cloths by soaking them in a solution of six parts of hot water and one part kerosene. Let dry before using.

Air Conditioning Seen for Million

One Out of 8 Homes to Have Air-Condition in '55 Is Prediction

One out of every eight homes built in the United States in 1955 will be centrally air-conditioned in keeping with growing desires of the American people for greater comfort and livability, a spokesman for the nation's leading automatic control manufacturer predicted recently.

Richard M. Locke, air conditioning market director for Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co., said studies by his firm indicated the number of air conditioned homes to be built in 1955 would be about double the 75,000 erected this past year. The building industry has estimated that 1,300,000 new homes would be built in the next 12 months.

"By 1958, Locke said in a year-end statement, "the total number of air conditioned residences in America should top 1,000,000 for the first time. The increases will continue at a rapid rate in subsequent years until air conditioning will be as common as central heating in all but the lowest-priced homes in nearly all parts of the country."

Improvements in central cooling equipment are keeping pace with public interest in air conditioning and may be expected to continue to do so in the next decade.

U.S. Plumbing Superior

Travelers returning from Europe comment on the superiority of American-made plumbing fixtures as compared with European equipment found in hotels abroad. Only the newer European hotels approach the American standard of a bath with every bedroom.

Today's Kitchen Built-Ins Prove Big Sales Booster

Builders are concentrating value in kitchens today as never before. Most recent advance has been the widespread introduction of built-in appliances. Ranges, ovens, refrigerators, wash-dryer combinations are being built right into countertops, walls and overhanging cabinets.

Surrounding surfaces are lined with a modern durable material to match the workability of these built-in features. The combination of colorful, easily cleaned tile surfaces and built-in appliances is proving a major sales booster in the current housing boom.

Glass Room Divider

Room dividers of patterned glass mark separate areas in a room but do not create a crowded, chopped-up appearance. Colors and light pass freely through the glass, but sharp images are obscured.

Steam pipes should be covered with insulating material in order to keep the steam hot.

Double-Pane Cuts Noise

Street and traffic noises often account for much of the noise in a "noisy household." Double-pane insulating glass admits 44 per cent less outside noise than a single pane of glass.

Early American Bench Serves as Table, Chair

By STEVE ELLINGSON

In earlier days, before people had radios and television, there was hardly a home that didn't have some sort of a musical instrument. It was usually a piano, but sometimes it was a pump organ, a guitar or a "fiddle." Often times the only thing available was a mouth organ.

Evenings, after the work was done, someone would unlimber whatever instrument was handy and everyone in the family would sing. Frequently the whole neighborhood would join in, and the evening would wind up with coffee and homemade cake.

As I remember, in our neighborhood there wasn't anyone who could really sing, but that didn't stop us from trying. We did our best on the old favorites such as "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," "Down By The Old Mill Stream, (we really pulled out all the stops on that one), and sometimes we livened up the party with some close harmony on "You Made Me Love You."

In a way it's a shame that the old custom of family singing has gone the way of the horse and buggy. It was an ideal way to keep a family together and make home a happier place. Maybe some of our notes were sour, but the memory of those evenings is mighty sweet.

Another thing we miss is that rugged furniture we had back on the farm, the kind pictured here with television actress Ricky Barr.

Certainly this early American coffee bench is a handy piece of furniture. You can sit on it; it will hold several ash trays, magazines, highballs and, when the occasion arises, it will hold a coffee pot, some sandwiches or homemade cake. It's a good place to put your feet when watching television. In the wintertime, pull it up in front of the fireplace and use it as a dining table. Believe me, that can be real cozy. If you happen to be short of chairs when company comes for dinner, this piece will meet the emergency. It's a rugged piece of furniture and more character it has, the more it gets banged up the

Anyone can own a coffee bench like this and for practically no cost at all, just build it yourself. It's very easy when you use the full size pattern. all you need do is trace the pattern on wood, then saw it out and finally put it together. You'll probably wish to make it the same length as your couch. The pattern lists the required materials, along with easy to read directions that any child can understand. Simple hand tools are all you need.

To obtain the full size coffee bench pattern No. 79 send 25 cents in coin to Steve Ellingson, The Pontiac Press, Van Nuys, California. (For prompt service, be sure to send to the California address.)

5,700 Hours Buys House

The average U. S. worker puts in 5,700 hours to earn enough to buy a $9,000 house says the National Association of Home Builders.

In England the comparable figure is 23,000 work hours; France, 30,000 hours; Russia, 40,000 work hours.

Spring's Ahead, Editor Reminds

Now's the Time to Read, Write and Get Ready for Gardening

Forget about the thermometer and think about your garden for just one minute. Do you realize that another spring is due to roll around?

Admittedly, January is still too early to get out and break ground, but there is a lot of preparatory ground work that can be done by way of getting ready for the first warm spell.

On the subject of getting ready for spring gardening, there's an article in the current issue of The American Home called, Get a Jump on Spring. It's written by the magazine's Garden Editor, Ned Seymour . . . an expert in the field . . . and he catalogues his advice under the headings: "Readin', Ritin', Repairin' and Replenishin'."

"Now is the time," advises Mr. Seymour, "to catch up on garden reading in books, catalogues, magazines, newspapers, etc." And it's also a good idea to distribute that reading between explanations of basic principles—and practical directions as to the "whats, whens and hows."

Hand in hand with the study of the catalogues, goes the writing for seed and plant orders and the repairing of worn garden tools. And, it's only one step from there to an inventory of supplies of plant food, lime and the like. When the spring rush starts, dealers are much more likely to run short.

In his article, Mr. Seymour covers all these points in detail, along with specific instructions to be "young in heart." Good advice whether one is preparing for spring gardening or not.

Lumber Looks Ahead to 1955

Today's Home Buyers Turning More to Wood for Distinction

By JUDD GREERMAN

Look for greater use of wood in new home construction next year!

You'll see more of it on the outside of new homes and more of it on the inside. What's behind this trend? Public demand.

Today's home buyers are demanding the beauty, warmth and dignity that only wood can offer. They want a home of functional, advanced design that fits their needs and has a cheerful, friendly and comfortable atmosphere.

Today's home buyers are turning more to wood paneling—to relieve the glare from picture windows, to lend variety to their rooms, to cut down redecorating costs.

They're turning more to wood windows—to escape the starkness of aluminum and steel, to minimize condensation, to avoid drafts.

They're turning more to wood floors—to give their homes lasting, practical beauty and the tread-resilience missing in most floor substitutes.

They're turning more to wood furniture—to accent style and durability in their home furnishings and because the desire to "touch wood" is ingrained in all of us.

They're turning more to wood siding and wood shingles—to give their homes individuality and distinction, to save on construction costs, to cut down their heating and cooling expenses.

The demand for lumber in all types of new construction should continue to be brisk next year. But home building is lumber's brightest spot in the construction picture.

Recent studies indicate that the average U. S. dwelling unit contains approximately 10,500 board feet of lumber.

New Synthetic Drapes Practical and Stylish

Here's a trick that can make drapes of koroseal film look as luxuriant and stylish as expensive fabrics, and at the same time eliminate some dry cleaning bills and ironing problems: Instead of just trimming the film and hanging it, hem the sides and bottoms and weight them as you would other drapery material.

Because koroseal is fadeproof and can be easily cleaned with soap, and water, the marker suggests using delicate decorator patterns and colors that would be impractical in other types of fabrics.

United States pressure preserving plants produce approximately 22,000,000 treated wooden fence posts annually.

Builders Equip New Homes Completely

Builders equip 997 new homes out of 1,000 with kitchen cabinets. They install water heaters in 828 houses, kitchen ventilating fans in 627, and garbage disposal units in 415.

These statistics resulted from a survey by American Builder magazine, which calls them evidence of an "increasing trend among builders to provide complete equipment in the new houses they build for sale."

The survey showed that 37.9 per cent of new houses come equipped with automatic dishwashers, 30.8 per cent with refrigerators, and 22.5 per cent with automatic washing machines.

Use Experts' Advice Installing New Glass

Here are some tips on replacing broken window glass. They come from an association of lumber producers and manufacturers of wood windows, panel doors, and cabinets.

1—Be sure window sash is properly dried before applying putty. Do not glaze when temperature is below freezing.

2—Remove all traces of the old putty from the sash.

3—Overlap paint or varnish on glass to seal the putty-glass joint.

4—Avoid cleaning glass until putty and paint are thoroughly set. Be sure not to break the paint seal between glass and putty.

Take the creak out of a creaking floor by working moist soap into the cracks between the boards.

Vacuum Sprayer Perfect for Spraying Closets

Keep alert for "silver fish," the thin, silvery insects found in closets and bathrooms. They may ruin starched curtains and clothing, and can cause excessive damage to clothes in closets. Places where they are found should be sprayed once or twice a month with a liquid insecticide.

The vacuum cleaner sprayer is perfect for the purpose. Pay particular attention to dark places, cracks in baseboards and behind shelves and damp places in bathroom and kitchen. Where a spray is practical, resort to powder and the vacuum cleaner blower — always use spray and powder made by a well known concern.

Fan Distributes Warmth

If you have trouble heating certain areas of a room or certain rooms in the house, try setting an electric fan up on a bookshelf or other moderately high object so that it can push the heat into the area where it is needed.

Rig Up Fire Alarm in Your Own Home

NEW YORK (UP) — The do-it-yourself enthusiast now can rig up a fire alarm for the home—and test it by holding a lighted match under the detector.

Basic part of the unit is a two-inch-deep metal box covered by an aluminum plate and mounted on a wall close to a bedroom.

The electrically operated alarm sounds a bell—located inside the box along with a transformer—when activated by the heat of a fire.

The bell is designed to rigg when the temperature within a 400-square-foot area climbs above 140 degrees Fahrenheit.

New Ideas Best in Mixed Groups

Research Shows Varied Background Fertile Soil for Innovations

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—New educational ideas and farming methods are accepted more rapidly by communities of mixed national and religious backgrounds than by those with a common heritage and faith.

That conclusion was reached by a University of Wisconsin professor who sent workers into 38 Wisconsin neighborhoods to find what effects religious and racial heritage had on general progress.

Prof. Burton Kreitlow and his helpers studied 19 areas where backgrounds of faith and culture were similar and 19 other neighborhoods where there was a wider mixture of ancestry and religion.

Mixed neighborhoods, they found, take more kindly to such school practices as complete hot lunches, modern art, music, recreation and adult evening classes. They are more eager to adopt improved farming practices and to join groups promoting them.

"Our research in Wisconsin shows that both farmers and farmers' wives in mixed background neighborhoods have had more years of schooling than like groups in common background neighborhoods," Kreitlow said.

"They believe also that boys and girls should complete more years of formal schooling than are considered desirable by those in homogeneous neighborhoods," he said.

Good Catches of Trout Seen for Lake Ontario

WATERTOWN, N. Y. (UP) — Trout fishing in the eastern section of Lake Ontario should be better than good next spring.

An airlift deposited some 20,000 young trout in the area between Stony and Galloup Islands as part of a joint American-Canadian project. The Canadians contributed a like number.

A spokesman said the project is to determine if such a plan is feasible to replenish lake trout, the population of which has dropped off considerably in recent years.

Bob Hope's Thule Show on TV Tomorrow Night

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Between telephone calls, Bob Hope relaxed and talked of the triumphs and tribulations of entertaining huge crowds in gyms, airplane hangars and baseball parks.

He had lately returned from Greenland, where he filmed a TV show which you will see tomorrow night. Hope, Bill Holden, Anita Ekberg (the smorgasbord Marilyn Monroe), and other members of his troupe reached Thule, 600 miles from the North Pole, at 11 a.m., the day before New Year's.

At 3 p.m., they did a show before 2,500 Air Force men in a gymnasium. Miss Ekberg wore a tight sweater which brought so many howls and whistles the lines were completely lost in the noise. For the evening show, which was filmed, Hope ordered a costume change. That's why you won't see the sweater.

They went on again that night at 8:30, played right through midnight and took off at 1:30 a.m. On the way back, they landed in a swirling snowstorm at Goose Bay, Nfld., and performed for 2,000 men in a hangar where the heating system was so noisy it had to be turned off. Hope reached New York elated but sniffling.

As he told about the trip, he was continually interrupted by the phone. Hope answered the calls in a variety of accents—British, French, Viennese and several I couldn't place—and a variety of jokes. But in less than an hour he had promised to call at least two dozen people back.

To one friend on the phone, he said: "Why don't you give yourself up and to to Bellevue (the mental ward)? They're holding an outside suite for you."

We talked about the times Hope almost "died" or laid a "big bomb" before large audiences.

"About four years ago I did a big July Fourth show before 175,000 people in a park at Buffalo," he recalled. "They haven't heard a line yet. The mike went dead. I pounded it. I soft-shoe danced. I screamed. But only about 100 people heard me."

At Cleveland, his home town, once gave him a big day at the ball park. Some 80,000 people, he recalls, were in the stadium. He got a big introduction and a big hand as he approached the mike.

"That public address system may be fine for baseball announcers," he said, "but it laid a big egg for me. Just as I was doing the punch line, the straight line was reaching the crowd. It was so bad my relatives were grumbling that I must have been stealing the money all these years."

Once, during the war, he was playing a small provincial town in Australia. Material which had proved sure-fire elsewhere for the comic was now laying a monumental egg.

"When that happens," he said, "you get worried, of course, but you don't get panicky. You try to diagnose the trouble. In this case, in this little place in Australia, I simply broadened the humor and it worked."

The gag which won the Australians over was: "I stopped in Brisbane and saw a woman standing in the rain. She had her dress up over her head. I said, "Madame, you're getting your legs all wet." She said, 'What do I care? My legs are 50 years old but my hat is brand new.'"

We talked about writers. Hope now employs five for his TV shows and two for radio. He used to have 13 writers for a half-hour radio show. Each man wrote for the same scenes. Then they would all assemble and read their competing material before each other. Hope would make the selections.

"You know," Hope said, "some people think it's some kind of a disgrace for a comedian to have writers. I don't know why. If I could get good ones, I'd have more today—20 if I could get them.

"President Roosevelt used four great writers and he wasn't making nearly what I was making and he used up much less material."

BOARDING HOUSE

Town to Keep Plant 3 Years

Minority Stock Group Blocks Removal of Mill From Virginia

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va. (UP)—The steelworkers of Follansbee and the townspeople who depend on their jobs settled down today to the prospect of at least three more years of regular pay days.

Not long ago it looked as if pay days at the Follansbee Steel Corp. plant, the economic heart of this community of 4,500, would soon end forever. The plant was to be sold and most of its equipment moved to Georgia.

But the townspeople—and 47 minority stockholders of the company—won a long hard fight to keep the plant where it is for at least three years.

Yesterday they threw a rip-snorting, all-day party to celebrate the victory.

The steel plant employed 740 persons and paid by far the biggest share of tax money required to keep the community alive. Residents argued that without it, Follansbee would be a ghost town. Their argument was heard by 47 minority stockholders who successfully blocked the proposed sale.

Frederick W. Richmond, a New York financier who owned a controlling interest in the plant, originally planned to dispose of it to Republic Steel Corp. Republic wanted to move the equipment to its Gadsden, Ala., operation.

The delaying legal action by the minority stockholders brought a Federal Court opinion and switched the sale to a group headed by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus S. Eaton. The terms include a promise to operate the plant here for at least three years.

Eaton was given a standing ovation for more than five minutes at the victory banquet attended by 1,200 last night.

6 Die in Two-Car Collision in Virginia

FINCASTLE, Va. (UP)—Two autos collided near this southwest Virginia town late last night, killing six persons and injuring two others.

State police tentatively identified the dead as:

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Wills, each about 55, and Wilmer Rea Wills, 39, all of Fincastle.

George Vincent Brown, 21, of Fincastle and William Henry Clay Jr., about 20, and Gilbert Wiley, 21, both of nearby Troutville.

State police said the autos met at the foot of a hill on U.S. Route 220 about two miles southeast of Fincastle. One car turned upside down and came to rest atop the other vehicle, officers said.

Meet Jan. 17 to Discuss Hazel Park Hospital

Dr. Leon Simon, city physician and member of the hospital commission, will report the committee's findings. The meeting will be open to the public.

There's No Use Going When You Don't Win

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (UP) — William Doenges, Democratic national committeeman and unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate, told this story on himself:

His 14-year-old son, Bobby, asked to be taken to a basketball game next Monday but his father refused, explaining he wanted to attend the governor's inaugural at Oklahoma City.

Recalling his dad's defeat at the polls, Bobby exclaimed:

"What! You mean you're going over there anyway?"

County Annex Still Has Roof Despite Report

Local law enforcement authorities were primed for a catastrophe yesterday when an excited switchboard operator reported the fourth floor roof of the Oakland County Annex Building at 1 Lafayette St. had collapsed.

About 30 police officers and firemen rushed to the scene to find—not a collapsed roof but two painters on the floor amid scaffolding, paint, buckets and equipment. Neither man was hurt seriously.

The men, county maintenance workers, plunged about 25 feet after their scaffold collapsed while they were painting the ceiling of the supervisor's meeting room.

Reported in good condition at Pontiac General Hospital today are Clarence Brown, 25, 3438 Fort St. who suffered bruises and a sprained ankle; and Richard Overmyer, 18, 3671 Mann Rd., Waterford Township, admitted for chest injuries.

The phone operator and others in the building said the noise of the falling men, equipment and scaffolding sounded like the roof had fallen in.

County Communities to Get Detroit Water

Detroit Council President Louis C. Miriani today told nine southeastern Oakland County communities they would get a contract for water service from Detroit before Jan. 29.

The communities have banded together into the Southeastern Oakland County Water Authority to provide mains, reservoirs and pumping stations for the area.

However, they still must get water from Detroit.

May Use Helicopters to Keep Tabs on Deer

LANSING (UP)—Michigan conservation officers may soon be able to count deer and study their movements from helicopters.

The conservation department has asked the Coast Guard to let conservation officers ride along on helicopter patrols from the Coast Guard station at Traverse City.

The officers would count deer, check the condition of the range and study deer movement as part of the department's deer herd management program.

If the permission is granted, the department said, the helicopters could be used in tracking down lost hunters in the area.

Worker's Condition Fair

A young construction worker, helping tear down the old farmer's market on 54 Mill St. suffered possible concussion yesterday when he plunged 12 feet onto a concrete floor head-first.

Daniel Spisak, 26, of Novi was reported in fair condition today. He also suffered a broken right wrist and back injuries.

Pontiac Police Detective James LaPonsie said that Spisak fell from a steel girder when a beam snapped, knocking the worker down.

Authorities said Spisak might have been killed during the fall, had it not been for the steel helmet he was wearing.

David pleaded guilty yesterday in the theft of 4,000 nickels from a car at a parking lot where he worked. He was given a probated two-year term.

Auto Producers Have Big Week

173,481 Vehicles Made; Total Output for 1955 Models Is 1,464,000

DETROIT (UP) — U. S. Producers of cars and trucks opened 1955 this week by producing 173,481 units, only 352 units short of the 84-week record of 173,833 set in mid-December, Ward's Automotive Reports said today.

The trade statistical agency said the week's volume averaged 24 units each minute of a 24-hour day. Last week's output was 142,384.

Assembly of passenger cars alone, said Ward's, was scheduled at a 216-week high of 152,221 units, increasing the industry's output of 1955 cars to 1,464,000 (M). This is against 124,250 cars put out last week. This week's truck production was 21,260 against 18,134 last week.

Ward's said last time domestic output reached the current week's level was in 1950 when 154,270 units were produced at the close of October.

Prospects for continued car output in January at December's 50-month peak level of 641,973, was described by the statistical agency as favorable. It said:

"A buying surge of surprising proportions pushed December new car sales up above the 1954 peak of 560,000 units retailed last June holding dealer inventories on Dec. 31 fully 25 per cent below a year ago."

Lapeer Moonshiners Raided by Revenoors

An 8-man raiding party from the U.S. Treasury Internal Department's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit in Detroit raided a still at a Lapeer County farm five miles east of Lapeer yesterday, arrested two men and confiscated over 30 gallons of moonshine.

Held in Detroit today on charges of illegally operating a still are the farm owner, Jessie Cunningham, of 2044 S. Lake Pleasant Rd., and Lowell Brown, who agents said was operating the still when the raiders arrived.

Neil Gass, Lapeer County undersheriff who accompanied the agents, said the still was located in a shed surrounded by pigs, and from the highway it looked like any ordinary pig pen.

The still produced 10 gallons a day, Gass said, and most of the liquor was shipped to Detroit for consumption.

Faces Circuit Court on Assault Charge

Arlie L. Baker, 40, of 3063 Grove, Keego Harbor, accused of the Jan. 1 stabbing of his brother-in-law, waived examination on an assault charge when arraigned yesterday before West Bloomfield Township Justice Elmer C. Dieterle.

A $5,000 bond set by Dieterle was not furnished by Baker, who is being held in Oakland County Jail until his arraignment in Oakland County Circuit Court Jan. 10.

The Keego Harbor resident is charged with stabbing his brother-in-law, Cordice Newport, 31, of 93½ Orchard Lake Ave., in the stomach with a hunting knife at Baker's home during an argument, according to West Bloomfield Police Chief William Van Meter.

Newport has been on the critical list at Pontiac General Hospital since the stabbing but attendants said today that his condition is improving.

Two cars in the garage for repairs were damaged slightly. Firemen said the estimate includes $1,000 damage to the building and $2,500 on the contents. Damage on the two autos was estimated $125.

Woman Pleads Innocent to Firearms Charge

Mrs. Thornhill, arrested last week on a warrant charging that she pointed a shotgun at her husband, Edward, is being held in Oakland County Jail. She was unable to furnish a $500 bond. Examination was set for Jan. 13.
