Pontiac Press Photo

The fate of a proposed city income tax was being decided by Pontiac voters today.

Early reports from polling places indicated a "good" turnout, according to City Clerk Olga Barkeley.

The proposition facing voters ask for authorization to levy a 1 per cent tax on the income of residents, corporations and businesses in Pontiac and a half per cent on income of nonresidents earned in the city.

Acting under state law, the city commission approved the income tax last October. Citizens then petitioned for a referendum election before the tax was to have gone into effect Jan. 1, thus forcing a public vote on the issue.

The city commission has promised to reduce property taxes by 3 mills if the proposal is accepted.

$1 MILLION

City officials have estimated the income tax would provide $1 million in new revenue annually.

On Tuesday, voters in Jackson and Muskegon turned down similar income tax proposals by 3 to 1 margins.

Cities that already have income taxes include Detroit, Saginaw and Flint.

With 33,489 registered voters in the city, Mrs. Barkeley said a turnout of one-third would be considered large.

12,236 VOTERS

The city clerk said 127 absentee ballots were requested for that election and that she had issued 103 such ballots for today's vote.

Polling places in Pontiac's 43 precincts opened at 7 a.m. and will remain open until 8 p.m.

Anyone in line at 8 p.m. will be able to vote, Mrs. Barkeley said.

OPPOSITION

Several organizations and area governmental units have come out against the proposed tax, the most vocal being a self-appointed Citizens Committee on Taxation, headed by Charles Nasstrom.

In favor of the proposal is the Citizens Committee for Tax Reform, with Joe G. Benson as chairman.

Nasstrom's group opposes the income tax on the grounds that a state level income tax with property tax relief and a rebate to cities would be more equitable and feasible.

★ ★ ★

Proponents say the tax will provide funds to improve city services and provide adequate salaries for city employes, and offer considerable tax relief to senior citizens living on low incomes.

Hatchery Sale OK'd

Sale of the 82-acre former fish hatchery site in Waterford Township was approved yesterday in the State Legislature.

Senate Bill No. 50, relating to the sale of the state-owned Drayton Plains Fish Hatchery to a private group for nature studies, was passed by the House of Representatives.

It will go immediately to Gov. Romney for signing, according to Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, who introduced the bill.

Purchaser of the site in the central part of Waterford Township is the Drayton Plains Nature Center Inc. It offered $42,000 for the property.

The site has not been used as a hatchery for about three years.

Robert W. Schmuck of Dearborn Township, president of the purchasing organization, said his group intends to use the property as a study center for school children.

Funds for the site purchase are being raised by grants as well as from donations by members, Schmuck noted. Membership of the organization includes some 50 persons from the metropolitan Detroit area.

Will Appeal March Order

Alabama Hopes to Block Capital Hike

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An attorney for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace will ask the U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals today to stop a federal court order allowing civil rights advocates to march from Selma to Montgomery, the court clerk said.

Federal District Judge Frank M. Johnson last night ordered Alabama officials to permit and protect the march.

The clerk's office here said Alabama attorney Maury Smith telephoned that he would arrive today to file the appeal.

The clerk's office also received word from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) that Jack Greenburg, director counsel of the NAACP legal defense fund would arrive to file objections to the Alabama move.

★ ★ ★

The Alabama action would ask for an immediate stay of Judge Johnson's order, and a later hearing on an appeal of the order.

★ ★ ★

In Montgomery, Ala., civil rights workers were heartened by the sanction of the march and by the establishment of ground rules for parades and demonstrations in the Alabama capital.

Profs Cancel U-M Protest of Viet Policy

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A group of University of Michigan professors today backed down on its plan to cancel classes for one day to protest United States policies in Viet Nam.

The 46 protesting teachers had planned to suspend their classes March 24, but after a more than eight-hour meeting which ended early today they decided not to go ahead with the plan.

"We find that our intended action has turned attention to issues irrelevant to our deepest concern. We find this among many whom we respect and whose affiliation we desire. We have decided to suspend the moratorium and start again with an action which makes our concern completely clear."

He said the moratorium would be replaced on March 24 with an 8 p.m. to midnight "educational conference" and an all-night vigil from midnight to 8 a.m. which he called a "teach-in."

Test Outside of Craft May Be Step in Red Moon-Trip Program

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet rocket hurled two cosmonauts today into man's highest orbit and one of them spent 10 minutes outside the spaceship.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said he was "in condition of outer space" for 20 minutes, "including 10 minutes outside the ship." This indicated he spent 10 minutes in an airless chamber attached to the pressurized main cabin before going outside.

BOCHUM, Germany (AP)— The head of Bochum Space Observatory said tonight a space rendezvous of two Soviet space satellites seems imminent. Observatory director Heinz Kaminski said it appears "a second space probe is in the neighborhood of Voskhod 2."

There were indications that the new space venture was intended as another step toward a trip to the moon by experimenting with the techniques needed to join spaceships together.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, 30, copilot of the spaceship called Voskhod 2, went 16 feet from the space capsule. He appeared to be attached to the ship by a lifeline.

Soviet television stations showed a film of Leonov floating outside the spaceship, with the curve of the earth and the blackness of space visible in the background.

20 MINUTE STAY

Tass said Leonov spent about 20 minutes inspecting the surface of the ship, taking pictures with his camera, and conducting visual observations of the earth and outer space.

Walk in Space Is Key Moon Technique

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)— When Lt. Col. Alexi Leonov stepped into the cold vastness of space, as announced by the Soviet news agency Tass, today, he practiced one of four major techniques which still must be perfected before either a Russian or an American ventures to the moon.

If a man is to step onto the moon, he must have a space suit and personal life support system capable of sustaining him and protecting him from the hostile elements of space—including fast-flying meteoroids and the extremes of heat and cold on the lunar surface.

The other three techniques which must be developed are a maneuverable spacecraft, the sustaining of man for long periods in space and rendezvous and docking with other satellites.

The United States does not intend to expose an astronaut to the elements of space until late this year. Neither the U.S. nor Russia has attempted the other three procedures.

All four are goals of the U.S. Gemini program, which is to set sail here Tuesday with the three-orbit flight of astronauts Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom and John W. Young.

'GEMINI 3'

Their "Gemini 3" capsule has been billed as the world's first maneuverable spacecraft, and it will be unless Voskhod 2 can change its course.

There was no immediate official comment from the astronauts or flight controllers on the latest Russian feat. However, officials contacted said unofficially the flight showed the United States still trails the Soviets by at least two years in the man-in-space race.

EX-KING FAROUK

Former Ruler of Egypt Dies

Fun-Loving Playboy Collapses in Rome

ROME (AP) — Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, the fat, fun-loving playboy exiled by military revolution in 1952, collapsed in a Rome restaurant early today and died on the way to a hospital. He was 45.

★ ★ ★

A doctor tried to stimulate Farouk's failing heart with injections and oxygen, but he died as the ambulance pulled up at the gate of Rome's San Camillo Hospital.

He had been one of the more colorful kings of modern times, a lusty bon vivant who spent fortunes on pleasure when he wore the crown in a land of poverty.

The revolution that threw him out after 15 years eventually brought Gamel Abdel Nasser to power. Farouk left Egypt aboard the white and gilt royal yacht "Mahroussa," but he had to return it to the revolutionary government.

★ ★ ★

Farouk was dining after midnight with a woman at a plush French restaurant on the edge of Rome. He had just finished a rich meal of oysters, roast lamb, cake and fruit when he pitched forward on the table.

CARRIED PISTOL

At the hospital attendants found on his person a 6.35mm Italian automatic pistol and a pair of the dark sunglasses that he habitually wore. On his finger was a gold wedding ring and in his wallet 97,000 lire ($155).

Farouk was married twice.

Research Plant Planned in Area

Plans have been announced by a major computer systems manufacturer to build a $1-million research and development plant in Avon Township, adjacent to the Village of Rochester.

The announcement was made at a press conference by Robert C. Hall, president of Holley Computer Products Co., a division of Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis, Minn.

Plans call for the immediate construction of a 60,000-square-foot plant on nearly 13 acres north of the village limits bounded by Rochester Road on the west and Tienken on the north.

The stage was set for construction of the new unit last night as the Avon Township zoning board approved changing the classification of the property from general farming to light industrial.

★ ★ ★

The rezoning request will next be considered Tuesday night by the Regional Planning Commission, and then go to the Avon Township Board for final action Wednesday evening.

LOADING ENTRANCE

Hall outlined expansion programs for the facility, which is expected to grow to 160,000 square feet eventually, with two additions to the initial plant.

Hall said the plant will be used by the Peripheral Equipment Group of Holley Computer Products, now located in cramped quarters in Warren.

The basic activity will be re-

Tornadoes Hit N. Carolina

Blizzard Due in State

By the Associated Press

Parts of Michigan were under a blizzard warning and residents were urged to avoid unnecessary travel and stay indoors.

The U. S. Weather Bureau posted blizzard warnings for the entire Upper Peninsula this afternoon as well as for the west and north portions of Lower Michigan.

Hardest hit section of the nation was eastern North Carolina where tornadoes and heavy winds killed an infant, injured about 40 persons and caused an unofficial $1 - million property damage. Many homes were demolished.

Winds up to 95 miles an hour were reported near New Bern and Pollocksville, the sites of most of the damage.

Heavy snows were reported in New York State and Maryland.

The Midwest was struck again by heavy blizzards as a storm that started on St. Patrick's Day began to move south.

The leading edge of the cold weather was reported early today in extreme southern Texas and northern Florida.

* * *

It was 37 this morning at Waco, Tex.

COLD FRONT

The Weather Bureau said the cold front was swirling in a southeasterly direction from the Midwest and Plains states.

A record low temperature was reported at Lewiston, Idaho, where it was 14, and records were tied at Spokane, Wash., where it was 11, and Salt Lake City, Utah, which recorded a low of 14 degrees.

Only slightly warmer temperatures were reported throughout the Midwest. It was 16 at Chicago and 12 at Rockford, Ill.

At least 30 other persons were injured in tornadoes that slashed across areas in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Illinois and Indiana.

ACROSS EDGE

The twister that skipped across the edge of New Bern, a town of about 15,000, reportedly touched down three times.

Twenty-six airplanes were damaged at the New Bern airport, and damage there was estimated at $250,000.

Get Go-Ahead to Build Bloomfield Hills School

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The board of education today was given the go-ahead to build a new $2.3 million high school on Lahser Road. Construction had been delayed by court action.

* * *

Permission to begin construction was granted by Circuit Judge Philip Pratt in refusing to sign a restraining order.

Bloomfield Hills Mayor Louis J. Colombo Jr., 3635 Lahser, brought suit aginst the school board on the grounds that the new facility would increase traffic and make the narrow road hazardous.

Colombo and his wife were joined by four other couples on Lahser in requesting an injunction on the school construction until the road was improved.

* * *

Schools Supt. Eugene Johnson said ground will be broken for the school soon.

'READY TO MOVE'

"We are ready to move and move fast," he said.

"Even then," Johnson said, "we will be three to five months behind schedule."

He noted that preliminary planning of the school has been going on during the court delay, however.

* * *

Colombo said he did not know if he would take further action until he was able to read Pratt's 13-page opinion.

Colombo had claimed the plan of the board to construct a school on the 40-acre site between Long Lake and Hickory Grove roads was "arbitrary, capricious and an abuse of discretion."

Pratt said he did not find the conduct of the school board unwise.

* * *

The urgent need of school facilities outweighs the other factors in the case, according to Pratt, and that the inconvenient situation to the complainants is only temporary.

SOME HAVOC

"This is not to say that no hazards will result . . . and it must be rare indeed that any school, commercial or industrial construction does not wreak some havoc on adjacent roads and cause grave consternation to neighbors," Pratt said.

* * *

He said the school board itself admits some degree of inadequacy of the road, but it should be able to rely on the Oakland County Road Commission or the City of Bloomfield Hills to provide safe streets and roads.

* * *

"Even though the road may not be immediately improved. . . certainly the responsible agency will cooperate and do these things necessary to prevent or lessen the possibility of dangers," Pratt said.

Race Violence Closes School

Police Halt Outbreak; No Serious Injuries

Dozens of fist fights broke out before more than a hundred policemen, some of them on horseback, broke up the demonstration which stemmed from a weekend of racial incidents on the East Side.

Earlier Story, Page F-4

Police said apparently nobody was hurt seriously although two boys were taken to a hospital for X rays.

The situation was tense at noon, hours after the fighting had been broken up. People milled around in the streets, booing the white-helmeted policemen.

* * *

EARLIER FIGHT

Authorities said it did not involve the school as such but stemmed from a fight that occurred last Friday night.

Six white boys said they were beaten by Negroes as they walked in front of a YMCA a Negro group rented for a dance.

Police responding to an emergency alert found about 800 white students milling around the school grounds and the five streets which intersect near the school.

SMASHED CHAIRS

Some of the Negro students got through the crowd into the building.

The Negro boys were led out by police and the school's football and basketball players under the direction of football coach Joe Trivisonno, a former fleet halfback at Ohio State.

Cong Tries to Stir Up Anti-U.S. Protest

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Villagers from a nearby hamlet today attempted to use the bodies of 16 children killed by Vietnamese fighter-bombers to stir up a mass anti-American demonstration. Government troops broke up the crowd, on the Da Nang waterfront.

The villagers, stirred by Viet Cong agents who said Americans had carried out the attack on the hamlet Tuesday, came in sampans from Man Quan, five miles south of Da Nang.

* * *

They had wrapped the bodies of the children, killed when bombs and rockets from two Vietnamese Skyriaders hit a schoolhouse, in rugs and smuggled them into Da Nang.

Reports said Vietnamese soldiers broke up the gathering crowd without casualties.

IMPOSED CURFEW

Friday is an important North Vietnamese holiday known as "Hate America Day." The day has not been used by the Viet Cong in past years for anti-American terrorism, but authorities were taking no chances.

KILLED 32

U.S. officials said Americans were in no way involved in the attack on Man Quan.

Vietnamese government officials went to Man Quan today in an attempt to cool feelings. Two companies of government rangers —about 200 men — also were sent to the area.

* * *

A Vietnamese officer in close touch with the situation at Man Quan said the attack killed 32 persons, 20 of them children at the school where a Viet Cong flag was allegedly flying.

Newsmen flying over the hamlet late today could see families burying their dead.

* * *

Vietnamese sources said the children were sent into bunkers in the schoolyard but one bomb made a direct hit on a bunker, burying the children.

"The pilot did not know it was a school," said the Vietnamese officer. "All he saw was the Viet Cong flag above the building. It was a great tragedy but the village was controlled by the Viet Cong."

PAY DAMAGE

He said the government would pay damages to the villagers, including payments to the families of the children.

* * *

Reports said the peasants insisted no one from their hamlet had fired on the Skyraider and that no Viet Cong had entered the schoolhouse.

Man Quan is along the approach to Da Nang airbase and planes often draw fire from the area as they prepare to land. The hamlet was described by one source as "sympathetic to but not dominated by" the Viet Cong.

* * *

South Vietnamese forces today claimed 64 Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and 16 captured in three actions in the northernmost 1st Army Corps area.

Recover 240 Stolen Checks

Ex-Janitor Implicated in Area Firm's Loss

Detroit police last night recovered 240 of 500 payroll checks stolen March 5 from a Waterford Township printing company when a woman tried to pass one of the checks at the downtown Detroit Hughes-Hatcher-Suffrin store.

The woman said she had stolen the checks from H. R. Heinz, according to police.

A janitor at Division Printing Co., 1179 Sylvertis, Heinz disappeared March 5, the same day the Waterford printing firm discovered that the checks were missing.

Earlier yesterday banks began calling Oakland County police departments reporting that the stolen checks with serial numbers from 7501 to 8000 were coming in. A total of 78 checks were cashed in Oakland County.

* * *

Waterford Township Detective Jerry St. Souver said that 16 of the checks were cashed in Waterford business places.

STAMPED AMOUNTS

A company-owned paymaster was used to stamp the amounts on the checks, St. Souver said.

A police broadcast is out on Heinz, 35, who was on parole from the State of Washington after serving a prison sentence for forgery, according to St. Souver.

Sgt. James Johnson of the Detroit police check squad said that all the checks in the possession of the woman arrested last night were in amounts either of $67.81 or $96.18 and made out to H. R. Heinz.

The checks are drawn on the Pontiac State Bank.

The arrested woman gave her name as Margaret Epacs, 47, no address, Johnson said.

* * *

Mrs. Epacs told police she met Heinz a few days ago and had been staying with him in a downtown Detroit hotel where she stole his checks.

Spaceman Steps Out of Craft

scribed as a special "autonomous life-support suit." On television, the suit appeared bulky. The helmet was heavy. What appeared to be oxygen containers were strapped to his back.

The 30-year-old cosmonaut did somersaults in space and floated in a loose, relaxed manner in the weightlessness, Tass said.

* * *

Tass said the venture into space—the first time man has trusted himself outside the protective shell of his space ship—came at the end of the first orbit.

SAFELY RETURNED

Leonov "successfully carried out the range of prescribed studies and observations and safely returned to the ship, Leonov felt well."

The operation outside the spacecraft was transmitted to the earth by the ship's television system, Tass reported.

With Leonov was Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, flight commander. Tass said a powerful rocket sent them into orbit at 10 a.m. Moscow time.

The orbit was described as ranging from 107.5 miles to 307.5 miles above the earth. The previous high for man was the 254 miles reached by the three cosmonauts in Voskhod 1.

* * *

The blastoff came five days before the United States is scheduled to launch its first Gemini two-man satellite. The U.S. program also has scheduled a "walk around in nothingness" but at a later day.

There was speculation that the Soviet launch was designed to take some of the wind out of the American sails.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, said:

"The degree of achievement of the Russian scientists and engineers can be gauged by placing the exploit in relation to the American Gemini program, which is unlikely to achieve a similar exercise until later this year."

ESSENTIAL STEP

Lovell said the experiment by Leonov was "an essential step in the task of joining units to form large orbiting space platforms."

Belyayev radioed to the Soviet space center that "the assignment of leaving the ship and returning to it has been carried out in full."

"The parameters (constants) in the cabin are within normal limits," he said. "Further work is proceeding in strict accordance with the flight program."

No indication was given of how many orbits were planned.

SUGGEST LANDING

But a suggestion that, having accomplished the feat, the cosmonauts would land before long was contained in another Tass dispatch.

It quoted Belyayev in a pretakeoff statement as saying the flight "is a new, important stage in the exploration and conquest of space. For the first time in history, a man in the orbit of an artificial satellite will be able to look at the earth otherwise than through the portholes of his ship.

"Until we meet again soon on our native land, dear comrades," Belyayev concluded.

* * *

A later television broadcast from Voskhod 2 showed the two cosmonauts lying side by side, one's feet by the other's head.

Pontiac Schools to Start on Antipoverty Program

Pontiac school officials have decided to begin a portion of their proposed antipoverty program, even though federal funds for the project have not as yet been granted to the school system.

The Board of Education decided last night to start the remedial reading section and part of the preschool section of the program.

Also, two community school directors will begin working in the school district.

School district administrators resubmitted their antipoverty program to the federal government early this year after their original $400,000 plan had been turned down.

* * *

Shortly after resubmission the federal government notified school administrators that they would receive federal funds to cover the resubmitted $150,000 plan.

ASK APPOINTMENTS

At that time the school board asked Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dana P. Whitmer to fill some of the antipoverty posts in the school district.

This week, however, the federal government reversed itself and told Whitmer during a meeting in Chicago that the school would have to cut more from the proposal — that they would be unable to finance the entire $150,000 plan.

The school was told to resubmit the new proposal and that it would be funded within two to four weeks.

* * *

Since the school has already filled six teaching posts and the two community school directorships, the board of education thought it would be good policy to begin the program now, using funds, and then reimburse the school budget when the federal funds arrive.

TIME IS FACTOR

Whitmer also said that if the school waited until the middle of April to start the program, there would not be enough time to evaluate its benefits before school is out in June.

The cost to the school for three weeks operation of the program will be about $3,500.

The school originally requested six proposals in their plan.

Of the six, the government said they would approve the school library program, remedial reading program, and a counseling program.

SUMMER SCHOOL

The elementary summer school plan is to be resubmitted in May. Officials in the Office of Economic Opportunity, which holds the purse strings on the antipoverty program, said they have not yet made a decision on whether the community school directors should be included in the plan.

The preschool centers proposal, which was also in the original plan, must be resubmitted under a new federal program called "Head Start."

The reason for the delay in funding, according to the government report in Chicago, was composition of the Oakland County Commission, the group which processes applications from schools for antipoverty funds.

The Office of Economic Opportunity said it had received many protests from county officials that the composition of the group did not represent all factions of the county.

The commission has been enlarged since the protests were made.

Denies Charge He Assaulted IRS Agent

DETROIT (AP) — Jack W. Giacalone, 21, of Grosse Pointe Park, pleaded innocent Wednesday to a federal charge of assaulting an Internal Revenue Service agent. He was freed under $5,000 bond. No trial date was set. Giacalone is alleged to have slugged IRS agent Albert DeBiasi during a raid March 2 at the home of the defendant's uncle, Vito (Billy Jack) Giacalone in Grosse Pointe Shores.

* * *

The Michigan Junior Miss won her title in Pontiac in February.

Local Junior Chamber of Commerce officials said that by winning the trophy, Patrice has a good chance of making the finals of the pageant and even winning the event.

search and development of input-output computer system units, which serve as the "ears" and "mouth" of a computer system.

Hall said the Rochester area was chosen for the plant site because of its uncongested, rural atmosphere, which would aid in recruiting highly-skilled professional employes from all over the country.

* * *

Some nonprofessional employes will be hired from the local area, he said, and eventually may number 100 to 150.

TOTAL EMPLOYMENT

Total employment at the plant is expected to reach 350 in 18 months.

Control Data Corp. is the third largest computer manufacturer in the United States in terms of the value of equipment installed in the field, and has been judged one of the 13 highest growth potential firms in the nation.

Among present projects are a computerized traffic control system for the John Lodge Freeway.

Hall said the firm hoped to be in its new building by early August. Construction will begin as soon as rezoning is approved.

Hearings Start on Voting Bill

Less than 24 hours after President Johnson sent the bill to Capitol Hill, Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach was to go before the House Judiciary Committee to explain its sweeping provisions.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., in moving the hearings up from their scheduled opening next week, said "the continuing shameful and tragic events in Alabama" make speedy action essential.

Long and careful preparation of the bill by the Justice Department and congressional leaders of both parties appears to have smoothed the way for passage.

SENDS LETTER

In a letter accompanying the bill, Johnson asked the Senate and House to make sure "no voting qualification or procedure shall be imposed or applied to deny or abridge the right to vote on account of race or color."

Ex-King of Egypt Is Dead in Rome

His first marriage to Farida Zulfikar was dissolved in 1948 after she bore him three daughters but no sons. Only males could succeed to Moslem Egypt's throne.

In 1951 Farouk married Narriman Sadeki 19, the daughter of an Egyptian civil servant. He had seen her first in a jewelry store when she was shopping for a wedding ring with her fiance, Zaki Hashem, an Egyptian employe at the United Nations.

* * *

Queen Narriman in January, 1952, bore a son who was proclaimed King Fuad II six months later after his father abdicated. Farouk took the baby into exile with him, and the monarchy ended a year later when Egypt became a republic.

Colonel Who Triggered Guard Inquiry Will Testify

LANSING (AP)—The National Guard officer whose accusations led eventually to suspension of two generals was to testify today at Gov. George Romney's hearing for the generals.

State attorneys planned to call Lt. Col. John Brown, whose name has come up often during the eight-day-old hearing.

* * *

At one point in the hearing, Romney said it was accusations by Brown which led to the auditor general's investigation of the Michigan military establishment.

SUBSTANTIATED

A Romney aide, Walter Devries, testified that the auditor general's report substantiated 75 per cent of the charges Brown made in 1963 against Maj. Gen. Ronald McDonald and Brig. Gen. Carson Neifert.

Brown, who had been fired Oct. 8, 1963, by Neifert, was reinstated by Romney Oct. 8, 1964 —the day McDonald and Neifert were relieved of duty.

* * *

Romney said the auditor general's report, legal advice from the attorney general's office and recommendations of the State Military Board prompted him to relieve the generals of duty. They are charged with gross neglect of duty, misfeasance and malfeasance.

MORE SPENDING

Testimony also was expected today on policies of the Quartermaster General (QMG) regarding armory spending.

Romney raised the question Wednesday saying "what they (the generals) are supposed to comply with are policies and procedures."

* * *

At issue was the matter of the QMG's office purchasing material for Camp Grayling and Lansing headquarters and sending the bills to various other armories for payment.

CONCEALMENT?

The charges contend this was done to conceal true nature of the expenditures.

McDonald's attorney, Thomas McAllister, called for judging the payments on the basis of common sense because military personnel spend more time at Camp Grayling than they do at their local armories.

* * *

"Government operates by law, not common sense," Romney replied.

PROCEDURE

"It is not a question of whether men spent so many hours here or there, but a matter of procedures, and the matter of where the men spent their time is not going to affect my decision," he added.

Romney and McAllister clashed later Wednesday when the governor said some of McAllister's questions were too broad and were confusing the witnesses.

"Sharpen them up," Romney said.

SHARP REPLY

"I'll question as I see fit," McAllister replied.

"They (the questions) don't fool me," Romney told him.

"I assume you know more law than I do," said McAllister.

"No," said Romney, "but I can follow questions and their meanings."

* * *

Brown's name was injected Wednesday by two disbursing officers, who said he told them to make payments for equipment for Camp Grayling and Lansing headquarters.

* * *

Brown was fiscal officer in the QMG's office. Both Neifert and McDonald have served as QMG. McDonald was State Adjutant General at the time of his suspension.

Santa Maria Hijacker Said Executed

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)— A group of Venezuelan congressmen says Portuguese rebel leader Gen. Humberto Delgado, who masterminded the hijacking of the liner Santa Maria, has been executed.

The congressmen told the Chamber of Deputies' Foreign Policy Committee Wednesday that Delgado and four companions were captured on Feb. 14 by Spanish authorities at Badajoz, a town on the Spanish-Portuguese frontier, and were handed over to Portuguese guards.

Delgado, they said, was immediately executed by a firing squad without a trial. The congressmen said they had no information on the fate of the others.

The Spanish Information Ministry said Delgado had never been in Spain.

Romney's Budget Is Back Again

LANSING (AP) — Part of Gov. George Romney's 1965-66 budget was back before the House today, slightly reshuffled but substantially the same as first presented.

Bills to enact $484,108,761 of Romney's $788-million general fund budget were introduced by Rep. Einar Erlandsen, D-Escanaba, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. They were referred back to that committee Wednesday.

The bills cover general government, regulatory functions, conservation, recreation and agriculture, restricted funds, public safety and defense and welfare. Measures covering such areas as education, mental health and capital outlay were expected to be introduced in the Senate.

House Democrats followed the Senate's lead and killed Romney's budget bills last week. The action was to meet constitutional about $254,500 were made, said requirements and clear the way for consideration of other appropriations measures, they said.

Only four substantial changes amounting to an increase of about $254,500 were made, said Al Ballard, aide to the ways and means committee.

Salary increases of $2,500 each for the attorney general and secretary of state—$20,000 a year jobs — were blue penciled "because they violate the Constitution, which prohibits these salary increases during a man's term of office."

A $15,500 salary appropriation for a deputy state controller was deleted from the general government bill, Ballard said, "because the position has been vacant for a year."

The largest change was a restricted fund budget increase of about $375,000, "because there is a gentleman's agreement between the House and Senate committees and the secretary of state that he will be allowed to issue full-sized plates next year, while the governor's recommendation contemplated the issuance of tabs."

New Spacemen to Be Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today it plans to select 10 to 20 scientists to start a year of astronaut flight training this summer.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, NASA deputy administrator, told a meeting of the American Astronautical Society that the group will be chosen from among more than 900 applicants.

* * *

Current astronauts, drawn from the ranks of military and civilian jet pilots, are receiving some science training but lack specialized scientific backgrounds.

Dryden said the Mercury astronauts demonstrated man's ability as a sensor, as a manipulator, and to some extent as an evaluator, in orbit.

George Wasserberger

Death relieved GEORGE A. WASSERBERGER of his earthly mission and ushered him into the eternal world of the spirit.

WASSERBERGER

One of Pontiac's foremost businessmen and an active figure in the City's civic and fraternal circles, his friendly and enjoyable personality will be profoundly missed by a host of personal friends and business associates.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Wasserberger's business career spanned a quarter-century as head of General Printing and Office Supply, which he established in 1928. Previously, he had been identified with a Wisconsin newspaper and, after settling in Pontiac in 1922, served on the faculty of Pontiac High School.

He was an interested observer of all phases of life with many hobbies and interests, and delighted his fellows with dissemination of printed observations reflecting philosophic and humorous sidelights on the times.

★ ★ ★

Arithmetic Is Faulty on School Aid Divvy

Under increasing attack is the distribution formula of the Administration's $1.3 billion aid-to-education bill.

In effect, counties in the wealthier states would benefit more than those in the poorer ones, where the funds are needed most.

★ ★ ★

Thus, the 10 richest counties in the U.S. would receive a total of $8.9 million, while the 10 neediest would get only half that.

At fault, say critics, is the allocation concept.

This starts with the number of school children in each school district who come from families with less than $2,000 annual income, excluding certain welfare payments. That figure is then multiplied by one-half the average amount of support per pupil by the State in which the district is located. The answer is the amount of Federal money the district will get.

To polarize the inequality, New York's wealthy Westchester County would be in line for $2.2 million for its 6,210 "deprived" children, while Sunflower County in Mississippi with about the same number of disadvantaged pupils would receive only $745,173.

★ ★ ★

If the school aid program is to fill the gap in the Nation's educational system envisioned by President Johnson, a little more homework should be indulged in on the method of more realistically putting the program's dollars where they'll do the most good.

Prolonged Life Seen for Automobile Bodies

Deliverance may be at hand for motorists long plagued by auto rust resulting from salt used in the winter treatment of streets and highways.

After laboratory and field tests covering four years, a Midwest firm has readied a rust inhibitor. Applied to the de-icing rock salt, it provides 80 to 87 per cent protection against rust, depending on the form of metal surfaces exposed.

In Minneapolis, where it is estimated that 500,000 cars daily use the streets, the product cost per car averages 16 cents per year. This contrasts with corrosion-engineering estimates of $100-per-car damage from rust for the same period.

Scientific tests showed that as much as one ounce per square yard of metal can be lost to rust from untreated salt during a single winter, says the developer, with the assurance that "the new product has no harmful effects on auto paints or on shoes, clothes or rugs."

★ ★ ★

From all indications, the inhibitor is just what the doctor ordered and a treatment every motorist will enthusiastically undergo.

"YOUNG boys make noise to convince themselves that they exist," says a psychologist. Efforts should be made to train them to pinch themselves instead.

2 Crucial Steps Nine Years Ago

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The two most powerful individual forces helping the Negroes' struggle for civil rights laid their foundation stones nine years ago: President Johnson and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

MARLOW

In 1956, still boiling over the Supreme Court's 1954 decision outlawing segregation, Southerners in both houses of Congress signed a "manifesto" in which they denounced the court action.

They pledged themselves to use "all lawful means" to undo the decision. Only three Southern senators didn't sign it: Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, and two Tennessee Democrats, Estes Kefauver and Albert Gore. Kefauver died in 1963.

If Johnson had signed, almost certainly he could never have been chosen the Democratic party's vice presidential candidate in 1960 or its presidential candidate in 1964.

By not signing, he left the way open both to his political future and to one action after another in support of civil rights.

★

On Dec. 1, 1955, a 43-year-old seamstress, Rosa Parks, was arrested for refusing to give up her seat to a white man and move to the back of a bus in Montgomery, Ala.

27-YEAR-OLD UNKNOWN

King at the time was a 27-year-old unknown pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist church in Montgomery. The night after Mrs. Parks' arrest, 50 Negro leaders of the city met at the church to discuss her case.

The decision was momentous although it may not have seemed so much then: the whole Negro community of Montgomery should boycott the buses in mass protest. Out of that mushroomed all the Negro protests and demonstrations since.

Negroes walked to work or formed car pools. They crippled the bus company, 65 per cent of whose passengers had been Negroes. The boycott continued into 1956. The eloquent King, now one of the leaders, became a spokesman for Negroes' aspirations.

He was arrested in 1956 by Alabama authorities on a charge of conspiring in an illegal boycott, with the state arguing that once the boycott began, King found he had "started a fire he couldn't stop." It was an amazing prophecy.

STRONGER THAN EVER

The spreading fire is stronger now than ever, as events of the past 11 days showed in Selma and Montgomery. Later in 1956 the Supreme Court knocked out Montgomery's bus segregation as unconstitutional.

By now King had become leader and national hero for millions of Negroes, preaching "Nonviolence" as the turmoil grew, and receiving as a reward the Nobel Peace Prize last year.

David Lawrence Says:

Voting Bill Ignores Constitution

WASHINGTON — Emotional hysteria — the unthinking mood which has destroyed many a free governmental system in the history of the world—is about to sweep aside some of the vital provisions of the Constitution of the United States.

LAWRENCE

For this document specifically provides that the federal government cannot exercise any powers which have not been delegated to it by the Constitution.

President Johnson and his attorney general have presented to Congress a bill whereby any "test or device" established by the states to qualify voters can be brushed aside and federal registrars — appointed by an agency of the executive branch of the government — would then register any voters they please.

Actually, the Constitution, under the Fifteenth Amendment, gives Congress only the power to pass laws forbidding any state to deny the right to vote on the basis of race or color.

But it is one thing to stipulate a form of punishment for an injustice proved to have been committed by a state, and it is quite another to deprive the states of their power to say who shall or shall not vote on the basis of any qualification they may desire to set up so long as it doesn't discriminate on account of race or color.

MAY USE TESTS

The Supreme Court of the United States, which interprets the Constitution, declared unanimously in the famous Lassiter case in 1959 that the states may, without violating the Constitution, use literacy tests as a prerequisite to eligibility for voting.

Yet the bill submitted by the White House and the Department of Justice would permit the attorney general to ignore any state laws on voter registration.

Nothing more would be required than the filling out of a form for an applicant to be registered and given a certification of "eligibility to vote."

★ ★ ★

50 PER CENT

It is also proposed in the new "voting rights" bill that the federal government will intervene in any state wherever 50 per cent of its residents of voting age have not been registered in the past.

Some Negro leaders have pointed out that this will not take care of situations in districts where there are enough whites registered to fulfill the 50 per cent rule without any registration of the Negro population. So there is likely to be considerable controversy on this point.

The proposed legislation is a conspicuous example of an effort to accomplish a reform under the doctrine that "the end justifies the means."

But, in the long run, constitutional government cannot be maintained or preserved if the men who are sworn to uphold it feel that they can change the Constitution at will, without going through the regular process of amendment, which requires not only the affirmative vote of two-thirds of both houses of Congress but also ratification by three-fourths of the state legislatures.

WILL INSIST

There are some members of Congress whose consciences will bother them and who will insist upon at least a thorough debate of the bill's provisions and a discussion of the constitutional issues involved.

The American people have not yet been told the whole story, and it looks as if it will take a long time for the facts to reach them.

The truth is that if, by the passage of a single law of Congress, the rights of the states can be taken away from them with the excuse that it is merely desired to prevent some possible abuse of power, then the United States will no longer be governed by a written constitution.

Capital Letter:

Clergy in Dramatic Switch on Civil Rights Activity

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON—A highly significant development in the civil rights movement is the American clergy's remarkable advance, within two years' time, from passive support to active involvement in the Negroes' quest for equality.

RUTH MONTGOMERY

Last year its assistant pastor asked permission to go to Mississippi to join the protest movement against segregation.

His minister granted approval only on condition that he give no interviews, assume no leadership role, and in no way involve his church.

★ ★ ★

Last week the head minister himself was in the forefront of the Selma march, praying in the line and making public statements in behalf of the movement.

TWO YEARS AGO

Two years ago James Baldwin and other prominent Negroes insisted that Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy should go to Birmingham to see for himself what was passing for "law and order."

Many churchmen as well as government officials shrugged off the suggestion as the work of "radicals," and RFK did not go.

Last week such prominent clergymen as Bishop John Wesley Lord of the Washington area of the Methodist Church, and Rev. Dr. George M. Docherty, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church where Abraham Lincoln worshiped, publicly called for President Johnson to go to Selma. Both had been there personally for the march.

★ ★ ★

The Right Rev. Paul Moore Jr., suffragan bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, urged at a mass meeting opposite the White House last Sunday that murder connected with civil rights demonstrations be made a federal crime.

INTO LIVING ROOMS

He further said: "The television pictures of Selma brought into the living rooms of the nation for five minutes the fear and horror and terror that have been in every Negro's living room for 300 years."

★ ★ ★

Without rallies or mass meetings to whip up feeling — but rather through a mysterious process of osmosis — white clergymen by the hundreds began pouring into Selma the next afternoon from every part of the nation.

Wide Track Drive has been mishandled. Not in design, but communication. Wide Track is a good concept. It may be failing in a few details, but they will be solved before long.

The concept is that of circulating freely and smoothly outside and quickly dipping into the center to your destination. Driving time is shortened but not necessarily driving distance. Yet, some people persist in beating their heads against the wall and driving through the center of town.

Information on Pay of State Employes

It is obvious that Mr. Henry is sadly misinformed when it comes to state employes. Hundreds of state workers are paid little more than $70 per week before taxes and deductions. The taxpayer gets more for his money in work, quality and educational background than many private businesses get.

★ ★ ★

Our mental hospitals are badly understaffed. Does Mr. Henry propose that we turn retarded people and those who are mentally ill out in the streets? How many times has Mr. Henry used our interstate highways? This system of rapid defense highways has been built at an astonishingly low cost considering the conditions under which they were built. What about conservation? Should we eliminate this program which has saved Michigan's natural beauty and wealth?

A welfare state is one run for the benefit of everybody but the taxpayer. It is tragic when the welfare staters abolish the property owner's right to sell or rent his own property as he sees fit. The collectivists do this in the name of civil rights, a perverted example of semantics.

BROTHERS MEET — Diek (right) and John Bader of Akron, Ohio, met in Omaha last night with John (Fritz) Johnson (center), identified as their brother, Lawrence Bader, who disappeared in 1957. House 'Pays Back' High Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The associate justices of the Supreme Court apparently will have to make do for a while on their present $39,500 a year.

★ ★ ★

And the chief justice had better adjust his standard of living to $40,000, which is what he will continue to draw for maybe another couple of years.

A proposal to give each of them an extra $3,000 yearly came before the House yesterday.

The bill's sponsors didn't argue that the justices were having a hard time making the rent — the idea instead was to make up for the treatment Congress gave the court last year.

★ ★ ★

Pay raise legislation enacted during 1964 passed out $7,500 increases to lawmakers, cabinet members and all federal judges except those at the top. All the high court got out of that bill was $4,500 per man.

NOT IN MOOD

But the house yesterday just wasn't in a mood to apologize to the court.

Member after member rose to hurl additional barbs at the justices, and in the end the pay raise was rejected on a 177 to 205 vote.

Looking back on the defeat, the bill's sponsors admitted they probably couldn't have picked a worse time to ask the House to do something nice for the judges.

★ ★ ★

It's customary to be displeased with the court for one thing or another, but House members lately have been downright mad.

ADOPTED BILL

Only two days ago they pushed through a bill to try to recapture for Congress authority over the drawing of congressional districts.

The court last year had held that since Congress hadn't acted to equalize districts, the court would. And it did.

In another outbreak of this "one man, one vote" ruling, the court also has steamed up the lawmakers with a finding that state legislatures, too, must be fairly apportioned.

House members even now are working themselves up to a constitutional amendment to knock out this ruling at least as applied to state senates.

BOILING AGAIN

Also the civil rights issue is boiling again, and some members never have got over blaming the Supreme Court for that.

So it wasn't surprising that members on both sides of the aisle laid it on the justices yesterday for everything from incompetence to multiple marriages.

Their summer vacations (and mountain climbing on taxpayers time) also came under fire.

★ ★ ★

About the best prospect the justices now have for a raise lies in the prospect that the lawmakers may be working up to another one for themselves.

They have just set up a joint committee to study what, if anything, is wrong with the Congress.

Claims U.S. Comptroller Destroyed Bank

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the defunct San Francisco National Bank charged today the institution was "destroyed" by Comptroller of the Currency James J. Saxon to restrain competition.

The free-spending former bank official, Don C. Silverthorne, also accused Saxon's West Coast deputy, Arnold E. Larsen, of assuring a loan broker the bank was "safe and in good condition" to receive a $10 million deposit certificate only five and a half hours before it was ordered closed.

Silverthorne made his charges in testimony prepared for the Senate investigations subcommittee, which is investigating a rash of recent bank closings.

Also scheduled to appear today was William S. Bennett, whose name was connected with Silverthorne's yesterday in testimony of alleged fee-splitting. Subcommittee aides indicated Bennett would refuse to answer questions.

* * *

In his prepared testimony, Silverthorne said that "I charge the comptroller's office with the destruction of this bank and their unlawful attempt to besmirch my record and good name."

SEVERE ATTACK

In addition to fee splitting, he has been accused of taking fees and commissions from borrowers, putting loan proceeds in his own account, selling bank stock to borrowers at inflated prices and loading the bank with poor-risk loans and too many certificates of deposit.

His critics have also pictured Silverthorne as a man who spent huge sums gambling in Las Vegas, on art, jewelry and cars and who "auctioned" jewelry in his office.

The investigation has also prompted statements that jealousy between Saxon's office and other federal agencies responsible for policing the banks had been responsible for a "non-cooperation" policy among them.

* * *

Silverthorne said that Larsen had given assurances of safety for deposit of a $10 million certificate of deposit to a loan broker at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 22. The bank was shut at 7 p.m.

ASSURANCE

He said the annual stockholder's meeting was scheduled for four days later and told the investigators "I had the assurance of the many friends who owned bank stock that I would be returned to the bank presidency . . .

"Why did he (Saxon) leave this bank open to take deposits if he knew of its insolvency or even questioned the bank's solvency. Could it be that our bank's competitors knew I was returning to give them their first real taste of competition in the Bay District?

"There is no other conclusion than that the San Francisco National was destroyed by the comptroller, acting in the interest of restraint of competition and not upon the grounds he now protests.

"Accepting deposits, knowing the bank was insolvent, is a criminal offense and the comptroller must answer for this," Silverthorne said.

'DERELECTION'

He added if the bank was in the condition that Saxon and Larsen claim "they stand without excuse, charged with dereliction of their duty and accomplices to a serious crime of accepting deposits knowing the bank insolvent."

Silverthorne said excessive brokerage fees and high interest rates occurred after he was stripped of his authority and the bank was being run by Larsen, "who became a daily drinking companion of the chairman of the board of directors."

The former president said J. W. Erlich, chairman of the board, illegally voted himself a $25,000 attorney fee at this time although for the previous two years he had received $500 a month.

Silverthorne also said that the bank paid $117,000 to a Detroit broker and $50,000 to another broker but there is no record of any money being deposited.

Japan Blast Kills 9; 20 Houses Destroyed

TOWADA, Japan (UPI) — At least nine persons were killed today when an explosion of stored acetylene gas destroyed 20 houses in this northern Honshu city and set 27 others on fire.

Police said more than a dozen persons were injured and another was missing. The cause of the explosion, which occurred in the basement of a pipeline repair firm, was not immediately known.

Governor to Resume Sessions With Citizens

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney has announced he will resume his meetings with citizens on Thursday mornings starting March 25.

Citizens will be heard by the governor in his executive office from 10 a.m. to noon. They will be able to meet the governor on a first come, first served basis.

Ask Picture Displays

The Privacy Invaders—II

Business Tests Probe Into Personal Lives

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Every person who applies for a job is subjected to some sort of invasion of privacy. Sometimes the tests are simple. Others include detailed questions and investigations the applicant never hears about. The practice is discussed in this second of three dispatches on the violations of privacy.)

* * *

By HARRY FERGUSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anybody aspiring to a job in a large American business concern had better reconcile himself to having his privacy invaded. He is likely to be put through tests that probe into every corner of his life and be asked questions he would not expect to encounter anywhere outside a psychiatrist's office.

The other day the Wall Street Journal told of the adventures of John D. Maine, who was graduated last spring from Dartmouth and now works for a New York brokerage house.

Ten prospective employers put him through 25 hours of personnel testing and one firm flew him to New York for a full day of playing questions and answers. Among the thousands of questions Maine answered were "How much is two times three?" and "Are you troubled by nightmares?"

Testing has become big business and hundreds of firms have sprung up all over the country and take in millions of dollars annually with examinations that claim to evaluate accurately the shortcomings nd potentials of all job applicants.

Many big firms are reticent about their testing programs because a storm of criticism has blown up in the last two years.

The favorite story of the opponents of testing is about the president of a giant firm who was persuaded to take the test given to all job applicants.

* * *

The test indicated he was totally unfit for the job in which he has been performing brilliantly for 15 years.

MUST FIGHT

If a man wants to protect his privacy, he has to fight against persons seeking to invade it. But who is going to fight if, like John D. Maine, he is actively out looking for a job?

Millions of Americans voluntarily submit every year to deep probing of their private lives and, as Maine says, regard it as "part of getting a job these days."

One of the first and most effective protests against excessive invasion of privacy by big business was delivered in 1956 when William H. Whyte Jr. wrote a book called "The Organization Man."

* * *

His disapproval of personality testing was so strong that he came up with this advice to all persons forced to take tests: Cheat as much as you can. He went a step further and told exactly how to cheat.

AVERAGE WORKER

Whyte's thesis is that what business firms are looking for is a man who is closest to the normal, or average, in every respect.

Therefore, he suggests that it is foolish to answer the questions honestly. The trick is to figure out how the average man would reply and then put that down as your answer.

Some firms test persons who have been working for them for years. Whyte tells about an engineer who had been doing well in his work, but suddenly was asked by management to take a series ot tests. Whyte urged the man to cheat and he did with this result:

"To his surprise, he shortly received quite a promotion. The company had found unsuspected depths of normalcy in him. As one executive later confided to him the tests had eliminated certain doubts about his personality. He has, incidentally, done very well in the new job."

A man may pass his test with a high grade and still not get the job because his wife also has been investigated, especially if the job at stake pays more than $18,000 a year.

"One sleuth whose job it sometimes is to investigate the distaff side of the family said: 'My clients want to know what she's like in her present community. They want to know how she will get along with all the other executives and their wives if her husband is hired. They want to know if she's hubby's little helpmade.'

POINTS CHECKED

"Among the other points he checks for is who runs the show in the family? Do the neighbors like her? Is she sociable? Is she too sociable and has a man problem?

"What are her drinking habits? Is she outspoken or the quiet type? Does she feel very strongly about any social or political problem? What clubs does she belong to?"

The opponents of business testing usually refuse to take an objective position about it. Obviously, an employer has to know something about a man so that he won't be trying to fit square pegs into round holes. What seems to cause the controversy is whether the test should include a psychiatric examination.

Photos Detail N. Viet Targets

No Complaints So Far on U. S. Overflights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Months of careful photo-reconnaissance of Communist North Viet Nam by Air Force and Navy have given U.S. officials detailed knowledge of all targets worth hitting there, sources said today.

★ ★ ★

The North Vietnamese and the Communist Chinese have not complained openly about these activites.

It is known that Air Force RF101 Voodoo jets have flown over North Viet Nam at both high and low altitudes, their high-speed cameras taking thousands of pictures.

They have collected shots of troop barracks and training centers, ammunition and fuel dumps, gun positions, roads, railroads, airfields, power installations, industrial complexes and the like.

Navy F8 crusaders RA5C vigilantes have taken off from U.S. carriers in the South China Sea to range along the North Vietnamese coast photographing port facilities, torpedo boat bases and other potential targets.

Pictures brought back for study by skilled photo interpreters have included possible targets in the Hanoi area and the main port of Haiphong.

U.S. reconnaissance planes are equipped with sensitive color or black and white film that can reveal camouflage, infrared film of piercing darkness, and electronic censors able to detect warning radar or gunpointing radar.

AUTOMATIC CAMERAS

Aircraft can take clear shots from 30,000 feet aloft and higher or from close to the ground at 400 miles an hour or faster.

★ ★ ★

The 37-mm antiaircraft guns, the most common weapons used by the North Vietnamese, can reach up only about 10,000 feet, experts say.

On low-level photo missions, the U.S. planes rely on speed and surprise to get their job done before radar can lock on and direct the enemy guns at them.

NEW PROBLEM

If the Russians or Red Chinese should sent antiaircraft missiles — like the batteries in Cuba — to North Viet Nam, that would present a new and grave problem for American aircraft. These missiles can range up to very high altitudes, as they demonstrated in knocking down U2s.

So far, there is no sign that any such missiles have emplaced in North Viet Nam, sources said, although the Russians have promised military aid.

Movie Scriptwriter

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — William M. Rankin, motion picture scriptwriter for such films as "Pennies from Heaven" and "Boys Town," is in the Veterans Hospital here for treatment of lung cancer.

Rankin, 63, said he came to the hospital three weeks ago from Los Angeles. Rankin was born in St. Louis.

U.S. Willing to Stop Strikes if Hanoi Halts Cong Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is willing to halt its bombing attacks on North Viet Nam if Hanoi will stop sending troops and arms into South Viet Nam, State Department authorities have told a conference of private citizens meeting here the past two days.

The officials said the security and independence of South Viet Nam are not negotiable, but that if North Viet Nam will abandon its assistance to the Viet Cong guerrillas fighting in the South, the United States will cease air strikes against northern bases.

So far the Vietnamese have given no indication they are willing to deal on any such terms. The prospect, therefore, is said to be that the bombing attacks will not only continue but will hit targets progressively closer to Hanoi.

The policy conference brought together several hundred representatives of private organizations with membership in all parts of the country. Such meetings have been held periodically at the State Department for several years.

POLICY OFFICIALS

The conference this time was addressed by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other policy officials and intelligence experts.

Only Undersecretary of State George Ball spoke on the record; all the others spoke "for background," meaning that what they said could be reported but not attributed to them or specifically quoted.

Out of the meetings came these other major points about the Vietnamese war:

1. Despite fears to the contrary the crisis in Southeast Asia has so far widened the split between the Soviet Union and Red China. Some authorities in the administration and in Congress have expected that as the war expanded the Soviet Union and China might be driven closer out of a common concern for defending Communist North Viet Nam.

2. The United States needs and should have greater support from its Western European allies in carrying out its strategy of resisting Communist conquest in Southeast Asia. Ball, in his public speech to the conference, charged in effect that critics who demand that the United States make peace now on whatever terms it can get are undermining the U.S. policy of defending South Viet Nam.

3. The United States sees no opportunity for the United Nations to play an effective role in the conflict at present. If and when peace is made, the United Nations might undertake to police the settlement.

★ ★ ★

4. There are signs that the Communists may mount an offensive against Thailand, a U.S. ally in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, similar to the guerrilla war against South Viet Nam. The Chinese Communists have made repeated statements since last fall about action in Thailand by a liberation movement. The Thais are preparing for such a development and have been working on a counterinsurgency program with U.S. help.

★ ★ ★

5. The United States does not have any plan for putting large bodies of American troops into South Viet Nam, although ground force units could be sent in for specific purposes, just as 3,500 Marines were sent in last week to guard the big American air base at Da Nang.

6. Administration officials have ruled out proposals to establish a boycott of North Viet Nam by moves to get non-Communist countries to cut off all trade. Officials said studies show there is little non-Communist commerce with North Viet Nam of strategic importance.

Road Workers Protest Firing of Employe

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan State Employes Union reports its Washtenaw County Road Commission local will set up a picket line starting Monday at the commissmon's Zeeb Road Garage near Ann Arbor. The union said it is protesting the firing of Herbert Linke, a nine-year employe, for allegedly being "unsatisfactory and uncooperative. The union contends he was fired because of his union membership.

Recording Machine for Voting Proposed

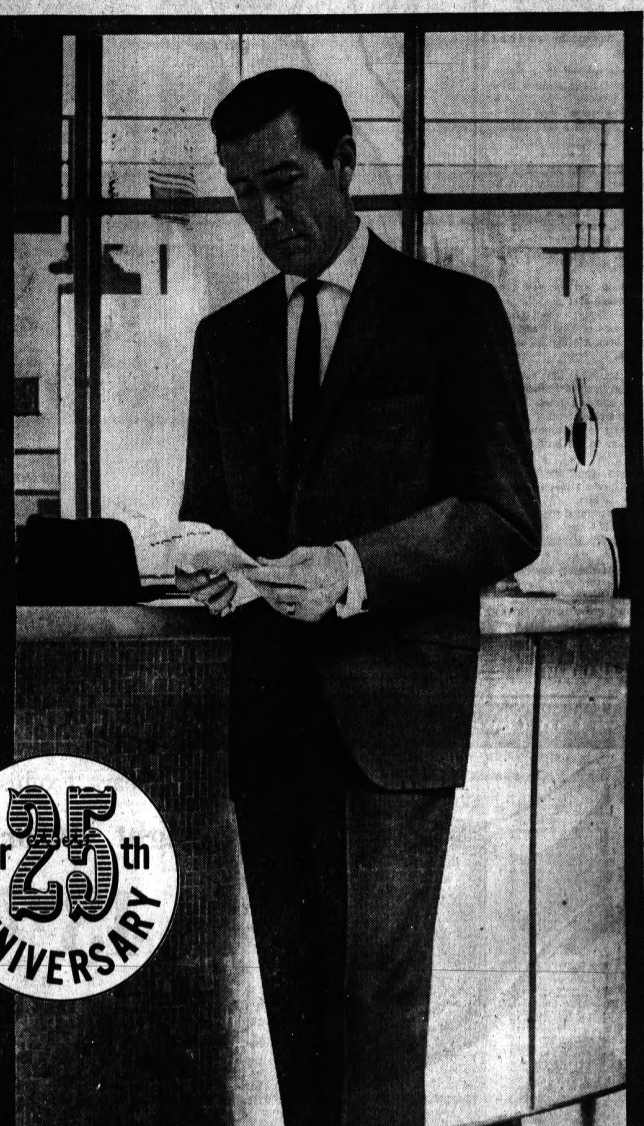

LANSING (AP) — Legislation permitting the use of electronic data processing in voting has been introduced by Rep. Russell Strange, R-Mount Pleasant. The new system, which Strange said is "strictly permissive", involves the use of a recorder instead of a voting machine. The voter inserts a punched card and marks it with a small stylus. The punched ballot cards then are tallied electronically by a high speed computer.

Tells of Ordeal Hunting Kin

Used Bicycle to Flee From Cong Attackers

SAIGON (AP) — A young Californian searching for his missing Army pilot brother said yesterday he escaped by bicycle when the Viet Cong attacked the village where he was staying.

* * *

Don Dawson, 25, who has seached for four months for his brother Dan, or Dan's body, said the Communist guerrillas burned the protective fence around the village of Thai Hung, north of Bien Hoa, last Friday.

Then, Dawson said, the Viet Cong distributed propaganda leaflets that capitalized on the series of coups that have beset Saigon in recent months.

Dawson said he and a platoon of popular force soldiers made off on bicycles when the Viet Cong approached, then fired into the air from a safe distance until the guerrillas left.

* * *

Asked if there had been any progress in the hunt for his brother, who failed to return from a flight in an Army L19 reconnaissance plane last November, Don replied:

"Well, I'm still alive. That's progress."

Dawson said the Viet Cong have taken over the village of Chanh Hung, about three miles east of Thai Hung, and have been closing in on his village.

But he said the guerrillas have not harmed Father Doan, the Vietnamese priest who is Dawson's chief contact with the Viet Cong in the quest for information on his brother.

* * *

Dawson said the guerrilla activity doesn't mean they are looking for him.

"If they wanted me that bad, they could have taken me months ago," he said.

* * *

Reports reaching Dawson indicated the Viet Cong may have moved his brother's body from its orginal grave in the jungles of "D" zone, a Viet Cong sanctuary north of Saigon. Thai Hung lies at the edge of the zone.

Key House Committee Votes on Medicare May Come Today

Dems Rally Behind Tax Relief Bill

LANSING (AP)—House Democrats worked today to hammer together a united front on an $18-million senior citizens property tax relief bill before Republicans could start tearing it apart.

Democrats met in a near-two-hour caucus Wednesday but were unable to reach a concensus on the bill which reached the House floor Tuesday.

The bill would exempt over-65 home owners from the taxes on the first $2,500 of a state-equalized valuation of a home with a valuation of no more than $7,500, provided they have lived in the state five years or more.

The most controversial aspect of the measure is a provision for a direct grant to aged renters who live in dwellings with a maximum valuation of $7,500. The grant would be the equivalent of the tax on the first $2,500.

* * *

It would affect an estimated 190,000 homesteads in the state, said Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, chairman of the taxation committee in which the new measure was drafted by amending an earlier relief bill. An estimated 25 per cent of these would be dwellings inhabited by renters, he said.

"According to our best estimates — and these are rough—the exemption will average $100 per homestead." The state would be required to appropriate funds to reimburse local units of government for tax losses.

Democratic caucus chairman William Ryan of Detroit explained the failure to reach an agreement by saying "this is the kind of area in which everybody has his own ideas.

* * *

"There are several controversial areas in it, such as: the five-year residence limitation, the extension to renters, the lack of an income ceiling for elibibility — and even the question of how much relief to grant," he said.

The substitute measure reportedly was first presented to the committee by Kowalski.

"We just hadn't much time to study the bill, and there were questions of fact that some of the freshmen Democrats were embarrassed to ask in front of the Republicans," he said. "We went to the speaker's office to get clarification."

Lunar Building Said Feasible

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Army engineers and map experts believe it will be possible to build living quarters and other structures both on the surface of the moon and below it.

This view was made public today by Brig. Gen. E. Wilhoyt Jr., assistant chief of engineers for support of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Wilhoyt, along with other Army experts, has been studying thousands of photographs of the moon sent back by the Ranger lunar probes. He disclosed the conclusions of the study today in the current issue of the Army Information Digest, an official publication.

"Ranger VII photos have greatly increased our knowledge of the moon; they indicate that there are many more craters, many very small, in the lowlands than was first believed," Wilhoyt wrote.

* * *

"The surface of the moon is probably made up of low density rock covered by a few inches of dust with 'drifts' up to several feet deep in some places," he said.

DISAGREED WIDELY

Scientists have disagreed widely since the Ranger VII flight last August on the probable depth of the dust. Opinions have ranged from a few inches to more than 100 feet. Ranger VIII photographs obtained last month did little to clear up the differences.

RIDING, NOT DRIVING — Former West Virginia Gov. William C. Marland prepares to enter a taxicab in Chicago, as a passenger, not a driver. Marland faded from sight for some years, went through a period of alcoholism and recovery, and was discovered driving a hack in Chicago. After his story came out, Marland received several job offers. He plans to give up driving cabs.

Ex-Governor Taxi Driver Tells of Anguished Years

CHICAGO (AP) —William C. Marland's journey from the executive mansion of West Virginia to a taxicab in Chicago was marked by drinking which became a "24-hour-a-day proposition."

A lawyer, Marland became at the age of 34 the youngest governor in West Virginia's history. Some five years after finishing a four-year term as chief executive, he was driving a taxicab in Chicago.

Here, as told exclusively to the Associated Press, are some of the highlights of Marland's story during the eight years since he stepped out of the governor's office.

LOST ELECTIONS

After failing twice in bids for the U.S. Senate, the former Democratic governor became director of sales in January 1959 for the Western Kentucky Coal Co. in Chicago.

"Shortly after I arrived in Chicago, within seven or eight months, my drinking had resolved itself into a 24-hour-a-day proposition, with all the attendant evils and a significant reduction in ability to handle my duties," he said.

* * *

Having little success with "sporadic attempts to go on the wagon," in July 1961 Marland quit his job and "sought refuge in the alcoholic ward of a mental institution."

"At the end of 30 days I was able to walk out of the hospital with some conviction and hope that there might be a chance for me to arrest the march of this disease called alcoholism," he said.

TOOK NEW JOB

Marland took a traveling job, then, late in 1961, he returned to practicing law.

"During that winter and spring my ability to do without alcohol increased considerably. But still, to me, my character and personality left much to be desired if I was to compete in the give-and-take of business affairs," he said.

* * *

"It was at this time that a firm conviction settled upon me that I must, as it were, begin from the beginning. It occurred to me that a certain anonymity and retirement could be achieved best by handling a taxi on the streets of Chicago. I qualified as a public chauffeur and went to work in the summer of 1962."

Meanwhile, the drinking problem faded further and further into the background "until it seemed to have no part in my conscious picture. It was like an unarmed bomb," he said. "It seemed to have lost its capacity to gather enough strength to plant its own fuse."

THINK OF FUTURE

In time, Marland said, he began to talking of leaving his job as a taxi driver for something more challenging.

Marland said his discovery by a newsman "called for some rather swift adjustment. But from the very first moment I had complete confidence in my ability to effect the necessary adjustment."

Marland, married and the father of four children, has quit driving a cab. He has received more than 60 offers of jobs ranging from legal work to a partnership in a cosmetics business.

"How well my confidence is justified will only be apparent as I attend assiduously to the present, mindful of the future," he said.

Draft Bill Is Set for Last Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee may begin taking decisive votes late today on comprehensive legislation to help pay most of the health expenses of aged Americans.

As the bill now stands, accepted for final discussion by the committee but not approved by it, some of the highlights are:

1. Everyone 65 and older would be covered by a hospitalization plan, basically providing 60 days in a hospital and 20 in a nursing home. The patient would pay the first $40.

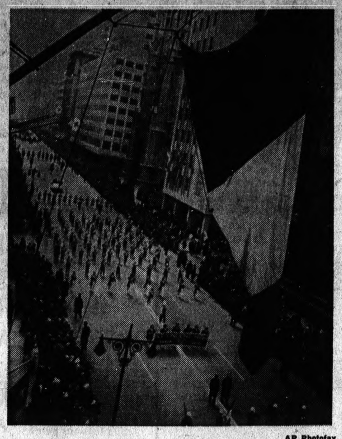

If the full hospitalization quota was not used up, the patient would be entitled to additional nursing home time at the rate of two days for one of unused hospitalization, up to a maximum stay of 100 days in a nursing home.

2. The aged could, at their option, enroll in a supplemental plan. This would provide 100 doctor calls, some special medical services such as those of radiologists and anesthesiologists, home nursing care and drugs administered in hospitals and nursing homes — but not medicines prescribed by doctors in connection with home treatment.

This would cost each participant $3 a month, which the government would match. Moreover, the patient would have to pay 20 per cent of the bill, while the plan paid 80.

3. Existing state-federal legislation intended to care for the indigent and those who, while not impoverished, could not pay heavy medical bills, would be revamped and liberalized. Automatically, much of the load would shift to the new plans.

For those remaining under what is now known as the Kerr-Mills Act, the federal government would step up its contribution. The government puts up from 50 per cent for the wealthier states to 80 per cent for the poorer. This range would be stepped up to 55 to 83 per cent.

Khrushchev Return Ruled Out

MOSCOW (UPI) — Competent diplomatic observers today dismissed as "fantasy" speculation of a possible return to office by Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The western speculation began last Sunday when Khrushchev made his first public appearance since he was ousted as Soviet premier five months ago. Khrushchev showed up to vote in local elections.

"If such speculation is sound," one veteran ambassador asked, "why not suggest that former Premier Vyacheslav Molotov and former Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov are also being considered for political rehabilitation?"

Molotov and Zhukov as well as former presidium member and vice-premier Mikhail Pervukhin and other fallen leaders also showed up to vote, within a few minutes after Khrushchev and at the same polling station.

* * *

"If Khrushchev's first public appearance since his ouster last October was intended to test popular reaction to his possible return to power, as has been reported abroad, why was not the fact or his photograph published in the Soviet press," observers were asking.

Only a small group of Khrushchev's neighbors showed up at his Moscow residence and a few more at the polling station.

To the overwhelming masses of Soviet citizens, other than those who listen to foreign broadcasts, Khrushchev has been and remains an "unperson." His name has not been mentioned in the Soviet press once since Oct. 15.

Reynolds Service to Be Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — Funeral service will be conducted here tomorrow for Quentin Reynolds, 62, the war correspondent and author.

Reynolds died yesterday at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., of cancer. He became ill while on a writing assignment in the Philippines and was flown back to the United States by military plane.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola in Manhattan. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery in Brooklyn, the borough where Reynolds was raised.

A New York newspaperman and foreign correspondent before World War II, Reynolds gained wide recognition for his reporting from the war zone. He wrote primarily for Collier's Magazine.

SPORTS WRITER

Reynolds started his writing career as a sports writer on the old New York World. He went to Europe in 1933 as Berlin correspondent for the International News Service.

He also wrote some two dozen books, many of them based on the events he reported as a newsman. The first was "The Wounded Don't Cry" in 1941 and it was followed by "Convoy," "Dress Rehearsal" "The Curtain Rises," and others.

One of his later books became what he cheerfully admitted to be his biggest boner as a reporter. It was "The Man Who Wouldn't Talk," the supposed account of a Canadian "war hero" who claimed to have been tortured as a prisoner of the Germans.

Science Study Deadline Near

The deadline for recommendations by local science teachers for applicants for the 1965 Summer Science Scholarship program of the Michigan Cancer Foundation is tomorrow.

According to Mrs. John Peterson, 3375 W. Walton, Waterford Township, public education chairman for the Foundation's North Oakland Unit, a supply of applications has been sent to science teachers in all Oakland County high schools.

The program involves a nine-week science course conducted in geographically convenient high schools in the four-county area served by the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

But Vietnamese Supplies Get Through

Trip on Cong-Infested River Is Perilous Journey

THU DAU MOT, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Saigon River winds north from South Viet Nam's capital in a sweeping curve. A ride on this waterway with a Vietnamese navy convoy can provide a scenic excursion or a prime target for the Communist Viet Cong. This time it provided both.

A 19-boat supply convoy moved out of Saigon after dark. The boats sailed without lights.

After daylight the convoy passed Thu Dau Mot, 10 miles north of Saigon. Beyond this point, the river, in the official descriptive, is not considered secure.

The official descriptive was right. Shortly after leaving Thu Dau Mot, a monitor river assault boat hit a Viet Cong mine. The convoy spread to the banks of the river and both it and the Communists opened fire. Aboard the monitor, the front machine gunner was wounded seriously. Six other men suffered lesser wounds.

★ ★ ★

Helicopters swooped in and raked the river bank. The Viet Cong fire halted.

Other boats edged over to the craft that had been hit and men began unloading arms, ammunition and other materiel.

The boat's engine suddenly quit, water poured in and the boat went down. Two sailors plunged into the river and attached buoys to the sunken vessel to mark the spot. The convoy moved up on the river.

In late afternoon the Viet Cong guerrillas set off another electrically detonated mine, but this time there was no damage to the 18 boats left.

About seven miles from the convoy's destination, the river became narrow, with overhanging trees almost forming a tunnel.

A machine gun opened up from the river bank. A Vietnamese aboard one boat slumped over his gun dead. Three others fell wounded. Weapons on all other boats opened up and the convoy moved on.

Shortly before midnight the boats reached the supply area of Dau Tieng. Loads were quickly put ashore and in their place were loaded empty gasoline barrels, empty boxes, a truck, a bulldozer and some Vietnamese troops.

It was time for the run back down the river. This time the current and the lighter loads enabled the boats to move faster.

At one point mortar shells swooshed into the sky, but the Viet Cong gunners were off target and the shells fell about 50 yards away.

As the convoy moved past the spot where the boat had been lost the day before, another mine exploded and another boat was damaged. This time it could be quickly patched, and the convoy went on.

GOP's Treating Me Fine, Says Thurmond

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, conservative Southern Democrat turned Republican, says his new role fits him just fine.

* * *

He is listed as a Republican in the new Congress.

* * *

How has the change affected him and his fortunes?

"The Republicans have treated me very nicely," says Thurmond. "The Democrats have shown no ill-feeling."

President Johnson didn't even mention it when they met recently at a White House reception to which Johnson invited him and other legislators of both parties, Thurmond reported.

* * *

"I looked him right in the ball of the eye," Thurmond said, adding that he would have talked back if the President had reproached him.

"I would have told him that if he was standing by the principles of the Constitution he ought to stand for, it would have been different."

FAR TO LEFT

It's his feeling, the militant South Carolinian continued, that his switch was "more a case of the Democratic party leaving me, than for me leaving it."

He meant, Thurmond explained, that he believes the Democratic party has swung far to the left of the principles for which it stood when he joined it in his youth.

* * *

This wasn't his first real break with the titular Democratic leadership. In 1948 he was the States Rights party's nominee for president, in a break with President Harry S. Truman, the Democratic standard bearer. Thurmond carried South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The senator now predicts good prospects for the GOP in the South. He said he finds the Republican party "more in accord with my own thinking" and he feels comfortable in it.

In the Senate, he said, "the Republican party and I voted the same 70 to 75 per cent of the time. It would have been easier if I could have voted 75 per cent with the party with which I was affiliated," but he said he couldn't do that conscientiously.

Any chance he might switch back to the Democratic party in the future?

* * *

"I see no chance in the world," the senator replied.

The change of parties involved both gains and losses for him, Thurmond said.

LOST SEAT

He lost his seat on the Commerce Committee as its 4th ranking majority party member, and the chairmanship of its surface transportation subcommittee. He also wound up with less patronage, that is, jobs to fill.

But he gained a seat on the Banking and Currency Committee as its third ranking minority party member, and would keep that rank if the GOP again becomes the Senate's majority party. His GOP colleagues also made him the senior minority member of that committee's securities subcommittee.

The Republicans let Thurmond retain his membership on the Armed Services Committee and on its investigative arm, the preparedness subcommittee. They assigned him as a voting ex-officio member of the defense appropriations subcommittee, a place of vantage the Democrats never gave him.

Thurmond retired as a major general in the Army Reserve in January.

U.N. Studies New Outbreak of Cyprus Trouble

AMBELIKOU, Northwest Cyprus (AP) — The young Turkish Cypriots of Ambelikou have been standing 24-hour guard duty in the surrounding hills since last Friday when Greek Cypriot forces occupied two heights overlooking their homes.

The Greek move shattered the cease-fire in the area. In sporadic shooting from fortified dugouts manned by the rival sides, one Greek and one Turk have been killed and one Greek wounded.

* * *

The U.N. peace force commander, Indian Gen. K. S. Thimayya, flew by helicopter to the area Wednesday. He did not visit Ambelikou but landed on a 1,000-foot peak about half a mile west of the village, where Irish troops of the U.N. peace force maintain a position to observe developments.

The muhtar — headman — of Ambelikou met Thimayya there to discuss the situation and to demand withdrawal of new Greek positions menacing his village. The U.N. reported Greek positions less than 50 yards from rival Turkish Cypriot posts.

CHECKS SITUATION

Thimayya said he didn't find the situation as bad as it had been reported to him.

U.N. officers in the area said there were no signs of a military buildup.

* * *

A Turkish Cypriot leader said until last Friday Ambelikou got its supplies from the large Turkish Cypriot enclave of Lefka two miles away over a mountain track. The trouble started when the Turks attempted to improve this track with a bulldozer and the Greeks occupied two points near the village to prevent completion of the roadwork.

As a result, the only way Ambelikou can now be supplied is via the main road passing through Xeros — and a Greek checkpoint.

SUPPLIES ARRIVE

A Turkish Cypriot truck with 50 sacks of flour reached the village along this road Wednesday without being stopped by the Greeks. The Turkish leader said the village was running short of meat, vegetables and cigarettes.

He said villagers were unable to go out into their fields to procure vegetables for fear of being shot by Greeks occupying the heights nearby.

* * *

The leader said that 2,500 of the village's 3,000 sheep had been lost since last Friday. The Greeks were using them to make kebab — meat roasted over charcoal on a spit, he claimed.

The Greek Cypriot National Guard commander of the Xeros area denied Turkish claims in Nicosia that Ambelikou was under siege. He added he had informed the Ambelikou villagers they were free to come and go as they pleased without fear of being shot.

* * *

In New York, the six nonpermanent members of the 11-nation U.N. Security Council worked on a resolution to be submitted to the council expressing concern at the lack of progress toward normal conditions in Cyprus. The main object of the resolution is to prolong the 6,100-man U.N. peace force for a fifth three-month period ending June 26.

Cool-Minded Eskimos Buy Air-Conditioner

NOME, Alaska (AP) —Robert Giersdorf, vice president of Alaska Airlines, has heard all the old cracks about selling refrigerators to Eskimos.

* * *

So he did a double take Wednesday when checking supplies being requisitioned by King Island villagers.

* * *

There it was in big, black print — an air-conditioning unit for the village community hall.

Tot Attacked, Killed by Dad's Hunting Dog

CARMEL VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — A 22-month-old boy was attacked and killed in his yard yesterday by a dog which his father recently acquired to use in hunting wild hogs.

Monterey County Coroner Christopher Hill Jr. identified the victim as Vincent Scardina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter T. Scardina. He said the child was bitten about the neck and face.

No Sign That Argentine Military Is Giving Ground to Peronists

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Despite this week's showing of Peronist strength, the Argentine military gives no sign of letting the backers of Juan D. Peron assume any important jobs.

In Sunday's election, the Peronists gained second-place power in the Chamber of Deputies and scored a popular victory in Buenos Aires Province. They made it look as if they could win the governorship of that province in the 1967 election. They won the governorship there in 1962 but the military canceled the result.

* * *

It seems doubtful as of now that the military will permit a Peronist to enter the governor's office in 1967 unless the movement cuts down its allegiance to the exiled former dictator and moderates its efforts to overthrow the current national government.

In 1962, the military tossed out President Arturo Frondizi after Peronists won nine of 22 provincial governorships.

ECONOMIC FACTOR

Military intervention also might come in the wake of a major economic crash. Argentina has an enormous budget deficit, a falling peso, growing inflation, and a burdensome bureaucracy.

But economists don't believe it will come.

The government of President Arturo Illia has strengthened its hand in the lower house. Before Sunday's election, Illia's People's Radical party had 70 seats. It gained two.

BIG RALLY

Small parties of neo-Peronists, who want to use Peron policies but not the man himself, captured seven new seats, running their total to 17.

Inevitably the politicians looked at the total vote as some indication of trends in gubernatorial elections in 1967 and the presidential election of 1969.

This gives rise, naturally, to a question: Will the military permit a Peronist president?

REALIGNMENT

Peronism basically has about one-third of the national vote in its pocket. If fear of Peron attracts splinter parties into the People's Radical fold or into some equally massive grouping, the Peronists can't elect the president.

On the other hand, if Peronism gains prestige or the country runs into a Brazilian-type inflation, it might attract more than one-third of the vote.

The Peronists are engaged in the customary cut-throat game of all heirs of dictatorship: the push for personal power. Augusto Vandor, head of the metal workers, held the top power in this campaign for the Peronists, but he has stiff opposition from Andres Framini, head of the textile workers who won the governorship of Buenos Aires in 1962.

Patricia Neal Goes Home

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Academy Award winner Patricia Neal was released to her home from UCLA Medical Center last night, one month to the day after she underwent brain surgery following two strokes.

A hospital spokesman said Miss Neal was conscious when her English writer husband, Roald Dahl, took her from the facility in a wheel chair. The couple then drove to their rented Pacific Palisades area home.

"She has been talking some," the spokesman said. "She is quite a bit better."

Actress Mildred Dunnock, who had visited the 39-year-old star frequently during her month-long hospital stay, told United Press International that she saw her several days ago and she was conscious.

* * *

Another source close to Miss Neal said "she regained consciousness the other day, opened her eyes and squeezed a friend's hand." The source said doctors had told a friend that they were "Optimistic that within a year she would be normal again."

DAILY BULLETINS

The same source said director John Ford — for whom Miss Neal came to this country from her home in Buckinghamshire, England, last January to star in "Seven Women" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios — had been posting daily bulletins on the actress' condition on the set.

* *

"Everyone was rejoicing about her improvement," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

The hospital and Miss Neal's doctor had been tight-lipped except to say last week that her condition had improved and her name had been removed from the critical list.

AP Photofax

Where All Others Failed

He Wed Love Goddess Kim

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD — British actor Richard Johnson accomplished this week what many another male has tried to do and failed: he married Kim Novak.

THOMAS

The Chicago-born blonde has been linked romantically with famed figures since the time she was tapped by the late Harry Cohn to be Rita Hayworth's successor as Columbia Pictures' love goddess. None of the swains could get Kim to agree to matrimony until Monday, when she wed Johnson in a grassy glade near Aspen, Colo.

* * *

It was a civil ceremony, but the actor said afterward that he and Kim may marry again in the Roman Catholic Church. She is a Catholic, he is not.

Johnson said he and his bride would spend the rest of the week in the ski country, "then we'll drive to Los Angeles so she can show me some of America." They may have a reception for their Hollywood friends, then go to Kim's home near Carmel, Calif., before visiting her parents in Chicago. He met the Novaks at Christmas.

WHERE'S HOME?

Where will home be?

"I have a house in London, and Kim has two in California," he said. "I imagine we'll go back and forth, since the centers of the motion picture industry are Hollywood and London."

* * *

So at 32 Kim Novak has abdicated her position as Hollywood's No. 1 bachelor girl. How come? Obviously she was smitten with the darkly handsome Johnson, who played opposite her in "The Amorous Adventures of Moll Flanders." But she has been smitten before.

Once she opined: "Why can't people stay in love without getting married? Marriage frightens me. It seems to destroy love, not enhance it."

SOUNDS DEFENSIVE

More recently she sounded defensive: "I'd be a terribly frustrated woman today if I'd married any of the men I ever loved."

Her first big Hollywood romance was with a builder named Mac Krim. For several years Kim and Krim were inseparable, but new interests like Frank Sinatra and Aly Khan managed to separate them. A longtime beau was Richard Quine, who directed her in "Bell, Book and Candle," "Notorious Landlady" and other films She nearly married him, but not quite.

* * *

Another interest was Dominican Republic's Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., but the romance cooled when she discovered he had a wife and six children. Two years ago she confessed to being "madly, deliriously, tempestuously in love" with British newsman Roderick Mann.

Now she has wed Richard Johnson in a single-ring ceremony to symbolize who is boss of the household.

Crash Fatal to Teen

FLINT (AP) — Michael Jamieson, 19, of Mount Morris died Wednesday in a Flint hospital from injuries suffered in a car accident March 3 near Flint.

Wind Gust Tips Plane on Wing; No Injuries

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A gust of wind tipped a Trans World Airlines jet as it was landing at Municipal Air Terminal Wednesday night, and the left wing was damaged when it scraped along the runway.

None of the 90 persons aboard was injured. The Boeing 727 was en route from St. Louis to San Francisco.

Gets Degree in Hotel Room

Southern Senator Stirs Oklahoma Rights Rift

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., received an honorary law degree in a hotel room Wednesday after a civil rights demonstration at Oklahoma City University had resulted in cancellation of his scheduled campus appearance.

The civil rights leaders objected to the degree conferred on the Southern senator because he had threatened to filibuster against President Johnson's voting rights bill.

* * *

Dr. John E. Olson, university president, called off a convocation after pickets had appeared and distributed pamphlets signed by students attacking Ellender's stand on the voting-right measure. Olson said the convocation had been canceled because he feared the guest would not receive a courteous welcome.

Ellender later addressed a joint session of the state legislature and said he hoped foreign-aid spending can be cut so more money can be channeled into domestic projects.

* * *

He also spoke before the City Chamber of Oklahoma and discussed an Oklahoma water project.

Reffering to the campus incident, Ellender said he was not perturbed and added, "I feel sorrier for the people who generated this. It shows the extremes to which they will go — in Selma."

Steel Strike Talk Keeps Pittsburgh Abuzz

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In the rolling mills and around the blast furnaces, in the taverns, bars and union halls of this steel capital, workers today are talking about a strike.

"No contract by May 1, I say we go out," said a younger worker from U.S. Steel Corp.'s national tube division.

"A strike never helped anyone," said an older man from Jones & Laughlin's big South Side works who remembers the bitter 116-day shutdown in 1959.

Steel negotiators are hard at work in Pittsburgh rewriting the basic industry contract on a company-by-company basis. They have until May 1 before the United Steelworkers Union is free to strike.

ACCORDING TO AGE

Strike talk appears to be divided with older workers being cautious, younger ones more militant.

"We definitely don't want a strike, but we don't want to extend the contract," said Chester Obie, 45, a worker at the Jones & Laughlin plant.

Obie recalls the 1959 strike, longest in the industry's history.

"We're still paying for it. I had money saved to buy a bar. Then when the strike came it all went — to eat, to live, to clothe my family, myself. I had nothing when it was over," he said.

READY TO GO

A younger worker, unmarried during the 1959 shutdown, said: "At National Tube we're ready to go May 1, no questions asked."

Most steelworkers feel it is too early in negotiations to assess the possibility of a strike. Talks resumed last week after a two-month recess for the union's quadrennial election, still unresolved.

So far, the talks have centered on local problems at separate plants, but workers seem to feel it's progress just to finally have these on the bargaining table.

As for the bigger issues:

"Pensions are the most important. We need pensions after 30 years regardless of age so as to get the older workers out of the plants and let the younger ones move up. No pensions, no contract," said Anthony Tomko, president of the 1,100-member local at National Tube in nearby McKeesport.

"Total job security," said Obie. "If I'm laid up with a heart attack for nine months I want to know my money is coming in."

"Wages are what we want. A flat pay raise," said Ronald Smith, grievance chairman at U.S. Steel's big Fairless Works near Philadelphia.

★ ★ ★

"If they improved the incentive program we wouldn't need a pay increase," said Manuel Stoupis, a grievance man from National Tube.

"Give us a pay increase and a good one," said another worker from U.S. Steel's Duquesne Works in Pittsburgh.

Opinion is just as divided over the impact of the union's election in which Steelworkers President David J. McDonald reportedly is trailing Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel by several thousand votes.

Prize Was Unwise

SALISBURY, England (UPI) — Cigarettes were offered as prizes in an anticancer campaign raffle here. They were later withdrawn following complaints that the prizes were hardly appropriate.

Good trump management is most essential when you don't have many trumps to manage.

JACOBY

Thus, everyone tries to avoid playing a hand with only four trumps, opposite three in dummy, but you can't have everything. Sometimes you will find yourself in that uncomfortable position.

North wanted four spades for his raise and South wanted five spades for his jump to game, but the cards had not been dealt that way and South had to struggle with what he had.

At first glance there seems to be no problem in the play. South can win the first heart with his ace and not worry too much about the rest of the play. After all, it is dummy with the three trumps that is short in hearts and South cannot be forced to ruff in his own hand.

All this is an optical illusion. If South does win that first heart lead and if the defense plays perfectly from then on South will not make his contract.

South does not know this because he is looking only at his own hand and dummy but if South is a good, careful player, he will protect himself against all normal poor breaks by the simple expedient of letting East hold the first trick.

If he does, there will be no way to beat him and if East leads a second heart at trick two South will make five odd. He will ruff in dummy, cash dummy's king and queen of trumps and lead a diamond toward his hand. Eventually he will pull West's trumps and discard clubs on dummy's long diamonds.

♥♣CARD Sense♠♦

Q—The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dble.	Pass	2 N.T.
Pass	?

You, South, hold: ♠K 9 7 6 ♥A 10 8 4 ♦K J 6 5 ♣5 2

What do you do now?

A—Pass. It is tempting to try to find a 4-4 major suit fit but if you bid one your partner is all too likely to raise you with only three trumps. Your hand is minimum in high cards and you should let your partner struggle with his no-trump contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two no-trump your partner bids two clubs over your double. What do you do now?

For Friday

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Financial position needs to be clarified. Consult one with experience. Don't permit personal problems to affect business judgment. Let word to the wise be sufficient!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): If you depend too much on fellow worker you could suffer loss. Be SELF-RELIANT. Stress independence, originality, FIGHT project. Say NO to wild scheme!

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): Necessary to take more PRACTICAL view. View events with wide-awake eye. Some disillusionment may "set in." Don't worry. Instead, attack problem with humor. ENTHUSIASM.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22): Some restrictions vanish. You feel more free to act. But this brings with it added responsibility. Resist tendency toward hasty judgment. Member of opposite sex may not have all facts.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22): Pressure lifts. Obtain hint from today's CANCER message. Be flexible. Display versatility. Accept alternatives. Avoid being obstinate. Accept aid from one who cares much for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Realize some changes are necessary. Family members make statements which are puzzling, inspire feeling of confusion. Be AMUSED. Then situation is clarified. You will understand!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Cycle remains high. But there are financial questions which need to be answered. Best course is one of LEAST RESISTANCE. Mental don't rock the boat! WAIT AND SEE.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You will be surprised in PLEASANT MANNER. One you thought was out of your life . . . may make reappearance. Be cheerful, optimistic. Stick close to home base.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be PERCEPTIVE. Look beyond surface values. Search for answers. Cooperation forthcoming. Hold off on investments. Day to study, prepare, plan.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Be attentive where career, work details are encountered. If you attempt to shirk duties, you lose. If you are aware of responsibility, you win. Choice is yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): You are apt to feel pulse of public. Your judgment is apt to be correct. Present ideas, programs. Excellent for displaying special talents, projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Be conservative where borrowing, lending enter picture. What currently appears a pressing problem may soon vanish. Know this . . . act accordingly. New contact proves worthwhile.

MUSIC TO DINE BY — Verland M. Anding, 1767 Beverly, Sylvan Lake, will provide organ music for the PTA pancake supper at Roosevelt Elementary School, Keego Harbor, Tuesday. Serving pancakes are Mrs. Anding (center), who will play several piano numbers at the 5:30-7:30 p. m. event, and Mrs. Fay Ealy, Roosevelt principal. Also, in the school's gymnasium, a baked goods table will be located from which patrons can purchase dessert or items to take home.

Walled Lake Parcel Is Rezoned for Concrete Plant

WALLED LAKE — The City Council has rezoned a parcel of West Maple property for construction of a concrete plant.

Basic Ready Mix Co. of Southfield requested the change from light to general manufacturing and has indicated it will build a ready mix concrete plant there.

Planning commissioners for the city had recommended the reclassification.

* * *

In other action Tuesday night, the council held first readings of two proposed ordinances — one which would establish a parks and recreation committee and the other to provide a pension plan for the city's employes.

RECREATION NEEDS

The planning commission is seeking establishment of a committee to study the city's recreation needs and to plan ways of meeting them.

As proposed, the committee would consist of seven members.

Matchbox Race Set March 27

ROCHESTER — Under the close scrutiny of six human judges and an infallible computer, 75 or more boys will compete March 27 in the third annual YMCA Indian Guides Matchbox Derby, at 1 p. m.

On a 33-foot sloping ramp at West Junior High School, the boys will race their unpowered car models, designed with the help of their fathers and decorated by themselves.

At stake in the affair are 12 trophies and a chance to compete on the state level with boys from all over Michigan.

Six trophies will be awarded in each of two divisions, one for boys five through eight, the other for nine-year-olds and older.

In each division, three trophies will be given for styling, three for racing.

DERBY JUDGES

Keeping an eye on styling, ingenuity and execution will be judges Warren Fitzgerald, manager of the advanced styling studio of General Motors Corp.; H. N. Koto, executive stylist for the Lincoln-Mercury studio of the Ford Motor Co.; and Cliff Voss, manager of the forward styling studio of the Chrysler Motor Car Co.

Determining race winners on the basis of size, weight and speed will be T. E. Kashmerick, assistant staff engineer of the GM Chevrolet Division; Paul Neher, automotive engineer of Firestone Industrial Products Co.; and Ken Wright, general manager of Design Products Co.

Wright is the designer of the small, transistor-laden computer, which is capable of determining speeds to within six millionths of a second.

AREA NEWS

While the cars entered in the race are constructed of various materials, the wheels will be standardized for the first time this year.

The location of the state derby has not been chosen yet. Rochester is bidding for the honor of hosting the event.

Strict rules govern the construction and racing of the cars. While fathers and sons may work together in designing and building the cars, only the boys are permitted to decorate and actually race them.

The expert judges of styling weed out any car which shows definite indications that the father had much more to do with it than his son.

* * *

Interest in racing will be stimulated during the derby program by a film on the 1964 Indianapolis 500, and another on the breaking of a land speed record.

Voting Rights Law Urged in Petitions

ROCHESTER — The Rochester Area Human Relations Council is urging residents to sign petitions being circulated by the council, to be sent to Sen. Patrick V. McNamara and Philip A. Hart and Rep. William S. Broomfield.

The petitions urge new legislation to "implement the Constitution and constitutional guarantees providing for the voting franchise to all citizens of the United States without regard to race or color."

Council members, including eight carloads of Oakland University students, recently went to Washington at their own expense to demand immediate action by the Congress on the proposed legislation.

The next meeting of the council will be March 25 at the Municipal Building.

Bonds Get Approval

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — The State Municipal Finance Commission has approved the issuance of $64,000 in special assessment bonds by Farmington Township.

The bonds are to finance sewer construction.

Weather Postpones Water Plan Meeting

Due to poor driving conditions last night, a meeting of Genesee Valley Utilities Authority representatives and municipal officials from north Oakland County was postponed.

No new date was set immediately for the session, to be held at the Independence Township Hall.

'Keeping Johnny Good' Is PTA Meeting Theme

WALLED LAKE — "Keeping Johnny Good" will be the theme of the Decker Elementary School PTA meeting Monday.

Speaker for the 8 p.m. program will be Dr. Paul Holler, who will base his talk on his experience as an Oakland County Juvenile Court case worker. He will explain methods for curbing juvenile delinquency and list agencies available to help families when problems arise.

2 Teens Held in Area Holdup

Masked Bandits Rob Oxford Twp. Store

OXFORD TOWNSHIP —Two 19-year-old boys, one of them from Oxford Township, are being held in Oakland County Jail today for investigation of an armed robbery of a township grocery store last night.

Bruce Yerkes of 2480 Drahner and Mark Boyse of Fostoria were apprehended by Lake Orion police shortly after Neuer's Groceries & Meats at 2487 Oakwood was held up by two youths armed with a rifle.

Mrs. Claude Neuer, alone in the store when the boys entered at about 7:45 p.m., said one of them pointed the rifle at her demanding money. Both had handkerchiefs over their faces.

She told them she had no money, and that she did not know how to open the cash register.

* * *

The boys left with $3 when Mrs. Neuer told them a sheriff's car was parked at the side of the isolated store.

CALLED POLICE

She then called the Pontiac State Police post, describing the getaway car and its direction with the help of a neighbor who observed them driving away.

Oxford police observed the car going south on M24 and radioed ahead to Lake Orion, where the car was stopped by Officer James Leach and Auxiliary Officer John McComb in a patrol car.

Leach found a loaded 22-caliber rifle in the trunk of the car and turned the subjects over to State Police.

* * *

Taken back to the store, the youths were identified by Mrs. Neuer as the ones who had held her up.

They will be arraigned today, according to State Police.

Reading Consultant Will Address PTA

AVON TOWNSHIP — Philip G. Hilaire, reading consultant for the Oakland schools, will be the guest speaker at tonight's meeting of the Stiles Elementary School PTA.

Hilaire will discuss the I.T.A. (Initial teaching alphabet), the new approach to teaching reading and writing developed and in widespread use in England.

* * *

He organized the first I.T.A. workshop in this country for teachers and is still engaged in research along these lines.

Election of officers will also be conducted at the meeting which begins at 8 p.m.

Arab World Torn Over Retaliatory Measures Against Germany

By ROY ESSOYAN
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO — The Arab world appears to be split wide open over Gamal Abdel Nasser's demands for all-out sanctions against West Germany.

But Nasser still seems the main leader of the Arab world — admired, respected or feared by the heads of the other 12 Arab states.

The Arab foreign ministers' meeting last weekend was torn by dissension over the drastic retaliatory measures against Bonn that Nasser demanded. Nasser obviously failed to rally the Arab world solidly behind him.

But his prestige does not appear to have been visibly damaged. And his fiery words can still strike sparks — such as Tuesday's attack on Bonn's embassy in Baghdad.

★ ★ ★

COULD NOT AGREE

The 13 nations could not agree unanimously on an issue affecting their archenemy, Israel, one of the few issues on which most Arabs have been able to agree in the past.

Conference sources reported that 10 of the 13 foreign ministers refused to back Nasser's demands for an all-out economic boycott of Bonn if it recognizes Israel.

They said seven of the 13 would not go along with Nasser's threat to recognize Communist East Germany.

★ ★ ★

Three nations — Morocco, Tunisia and Libya — referred to their heads of state a decision on severing diplomatic relations with West Germany.

A Moroccan spokesman said later the three couldn't break relations.

The government-controlled newspaper Al Gumhourriya said Nasser's proposal to recognize East Germany provoked "violent discussions."

The vague attitude of some of the Arab states "at this decisive point in Arab history has aroused consternation," another Cairo paper reported.

The foreign ministers who opposed Nasser's proposals were reluctant to discuss their position publicly.

OVERRIDING NEED

"Unity is our overriding need and we do not want to publicize our differences," an Arab source said.

Apparently only a hard core of three Arab states—Egypt, Iraq and Yemen—favored an all-out economic boycott of Bonn, according to conference sources.

Algeria, Sudan and Kuwait reportedly joined these three in backing recognition of East Germany. Saudi Arabia and Lebanon were described as "dragging their heels" on both issues.

★ ★ ★

The debate over some of the proposals became so heated, according to Cairo press reports, that at one point Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad accused Saudi Arabia's Deputy Foreign Minister Oman El Thakkaf of "repeating Zionist and imperialist propaganda."

The Saudi minister had blamed the crisis on Nasser's invitation to East German President Walter Ulbricht to visit Egypt, according to this report.

'Pentagon Fighting Military Pay Hike'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department is working overtime to "scuttle and discredit" a billion-dollar military pay raise bill, according to the Armed Forces Journal.

The independent service publication said yesterday that "top Defense Department officials are working out details for a concerted drive in demolishing" the bill, proposed by Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., of the House Armed Services Committee.

It said the Pentagon favors a more moderate "skimmed-milk" pay increase.

Charge Embezzlement

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Lawrence Haycock, 34, of Albion, officer manager of Hayes-Green-Beach Hospital here, was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of embezzling about $2,000. Haycock posted $5,000 bond and examination was scheduled for March 24.

Test Plane Crash Blamed on Nose Gear Collapse

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Collapse of a nose gear is blamed for the crash landing of the Charger, an experimental model of a General Dynamics-Convair plane designed for possible use in counterinsurgency warfare.

The accident occurred at Lindbergh Field Wednesday.

★ ★ ★

The Federal Aviation Agency said the pilot escaped injury and damage to the aircraft was superficial. A Convair spokesman said a drag link on the tricycle landing gear failed to latch.

★ ★ ★

North American Aviation Co. at Columbus, Ohio, was awarded a multimillion-dollar contract to develop a similar plane. Convair is seeking government acceptance of the Charger in competition with the North American model.

Enforce Equality in Jobs--Catholics

LANSING (AP) — A program for strict enforcement of nondiscrimination clauses in building contracts was adopted Wednesday at a meeting of the board of directors of the Michigan Catholic Conference.

The nondiscrimination clause for inclusion in all Catholic Church building contracts has been in effect since Jan. 1.

"This new program is an effort on our part to make sure we are doing everything we can to insure job equality within our own sphere of influence," said Archbishop of Detroit John F. Dearden, conference chairman.

The Treasury Department maintains big vaults at West Point, N.Y., where large deposits of silver are stored. Most of the nation's gold supply is kept at Fort Knox, Ky.

C'mon, Bake Some Yeast Bread

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

In weather like this, one of the nicest things to do is to bake bread. The fragrance when your family walks in the door will be the best welcome you can give them.

If it's a day when the children are home, let them help with the baking. They'll be fascinated with the way yeast grows and makes the dough rise.

A free 8-page booklet for children who want to work with yeast dough is yours for the asking.

Pop-up Orange Rolls

¼ cup milk
¼ cup warm water (105-115 degrees F.)
1 package of cake yeast, active dry or compressed
⅓ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup margarine, softened
2 eggs
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
2 cups unsifted flour
2 to 3 tablespoons sugar

Scald milk; cool to lukewarm. Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir until dissolved. Stir in ⅓ cup sugar, salt, softened margarine, eggs, grated orange peel and flour. Beat until thoroughly blended.

Stir batter down. Spoon into 12 large greased muffin cups. Sprinkle about ½ teaspoon sugar over the top of each roll. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until slightly more than doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) about 12 minutes, or until done. Makes 12 rolls.

POP-UP ORANGE ROLLS

When you're entertaining, it's fun to offer your guests a variety of breads. Here's an easy recipe that can be baked with four different toppings.

Braid-A-Bread

2 cups warm water (105-115 degrees F.)
2 packages or cakes yeast, active dry or compressed
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
¼ cup peanut oil
6½ cups unsifted flour (about)

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add sugar, salt, peanut oil and 3 cups flour. Beat until smooth. Blend in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn onto lightly floured board.

Knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Punch dough down. Turn out onto lightly floured board; divide into 4 equal parts. Divide each fourth into 3 parts.

Shape into strands of equal length, about 10 inches long. Place on greased baking sheet.

* * *

Top with half of one of the mixtures listed below. Braid. Then top with remaining half of mixture.

1. Combine 2 tablespoons poppy seed and 2 tablespoons honey.
2. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon caraway seeds and ½ cup grated Chedar cheese.
3. Sprinkle with ⅓ cup cubed Swiss cheese and paprika.
4. Combine 1 tablespoon dry salad dressing mix (garlic cheese, French or Parmesan) and 1 tablespoon peanut oil.

Repeat with remaining 3 pieces of dough and toppings. Cover, let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes.

Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 minutes, or until done.

With Easter only a month away, consider baking some Raisin Easter Bread.

Many countries have traditions concerning bread for this spring holiday.

In Greece, the eggs must be dyed red on Holy Thursday and the bread baked on Good Friday to insure a happy fortune for the household.

Raisin Easter Egg Braid

1 package or cake yeast, active dry or compressed
2 tablespoons warm water
⅔ cup boiling milk
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cardamom
3 cups sifted flour
1 beaten egg
⅔ cup chopped seedless raisins
6 hard cooked eggs
Melted butter for top

Soften yeast in warm water in small warm bowl. Combine milk, sugar, butter, salt and cardamom. Add half of flour and egg. Beat until smooth.

Add softened yeast, remaining flour and raisins. Mix to moderately stiff dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead gently to smooth out and round up dough.

Place in lightly greased warm bowl. Cover and let rise until double about 1 hour 45 minutes. Punch down, turn out on board, cover and let rest 10 minutes.

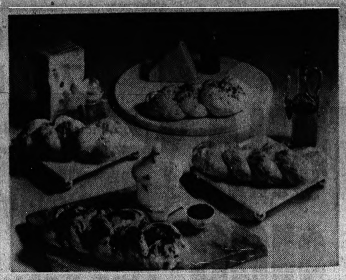

Divide dough in half. Shape each piece into rope about 25 inches long. Twine ropes loosely together on greased baking sheet; pinch and shape ends together to join and shape into ring.

Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Makes 1 loaf.

* * *

NOTE: To give loaf a deep, rich brown glaze, brush with 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water, instead of butter.

BRAID-A-BREAD

Wheat Germ as Coating

Wheat germ makes an excellent breading for oven baked fish fillets, fresh or frozen.

* * *

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees. Dip fish in well-beaten mixture of 1 egg, 1 tablespoon milk or water, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Then roll in toasted wheat germ flakes.

* * *

Place in greased baking pan and brush with melted butter. Bake 20-25 minutes.

HOSPITAL GIFT — Representatives (from left) Alice Foutain, Diane Wark, Elaine Humphrey and Shirley Dew of the Detroit Edison Girls Club present a $931 check to Dr. Julius Rutzky, director of clinical laboratories at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. The money, a result of several fund-raising projects by the 400-member girls club, will be used to purchase laboratory equipment.

Some new model European cars will appear with a new type of headlamp. These contain vaporized iodine which increases brightness and prevents blackening. Since it is not possible to make these lamps with double filaments, four headlights will be required.

Pontiac School Affairs

Receive Unbudgeted Requests Totaling $137,924

The board of education last night heard staff studies from the administration of the Pontiac schools on unbudgeted financial requests.

The total amount of the unbudgeted requests was $137,924.

It is school board policy to hear the requests now, and then if funds remain after the budget is set, to use the extra monies to finance some or all of the unbudgeted proposals.

The larger requests came in the area of vocational education.

★ ★ ★

Included were plans for a general metals and power mechanics room at Pontiac Central High School and additional electronics equipment for both high schools.

OTHER REQUESTS

Other requests were for additional appropriations for musical instruments, a food service program at Wilson Elementary and a proposed driver training area adjacent to Wisner Stadium.

In other action at the meeting the board approved an administration request for the appropriation of $11,500 to purchase new band uniforms and choir robes at Central High School.

The old uniforms and robes dated as far back as 1938, and no new purchases had been made since 1946.

★ ★ ★

The students at the school will attempt to pay $3,000 of the cost over a five-year period.

★ ★ ★

The school board was also informed that a request to the federal government for a grant to finance a vocational educational need study in the school district has been turned down.

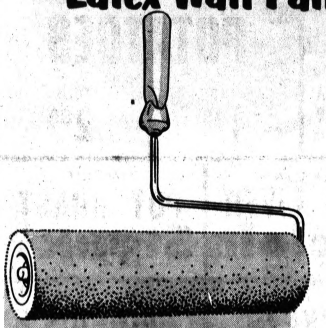

No explanation for the refusal was given in the letter from Washington, Superintendent Dr. Dana Whitmer said.

★ ★ ★

However, the school system will participate in a similar study being instituted by the Oakland School District and financed partially through federal aid.

All Types of Lettuce Delicious in Salad

Have you ever wondered why the inside of a head of iceberg lettuce is so completely free from grains of sand or soil, so fresh and spotless that you need never wash it? There's a simple reason, botanists tell us.

When the young lettuce plant begins growing, it cups some of its large outer leaves to form a sort of canopy over the space which will be filled by the tender inner leaves pushing up from the heart of the plant.

The great consumer demand for head lettuce makes this the most commercially important of the 2.9 billion pounds of lettuce and romaine needed to fill the American salad bowl each year.

Head lettuce thrives on cool nights and low cool temperature, low humidity and irrigation water, all available in large areas of California and Arizona.

There are four other types of lettuce — butterhead, cos or Romaine, leaf or bunching and stem. They are grown in various warm areas in the winter, and some, such as leaf and Bibb, in northern greenhouses.

Big Boston and White Boston are examples of the soft-headed butterheads with their silky-smooth leaves. Bibb, the little darling of the gourmet salad tosser, is a junior size butterhead.

Cos or romaine is distinguished by its long head, stiff leaves and upright growth habit, while leaf lettuce is characterized by loose leaves which never form a head. This is the kind of lettuce most successful in home gardens.

Celtuce is a stem lettuce and here the stem is the best part and may be eaten either raw or cooked.

The easiest way to keep on hand a variety of ready-to-use salad greens, says the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, is to wash the lettuces as soon as purchased, drain thoroughly and tuck them into film bags for storage in the refrigerator.

The cool bath crisps the leaves and washing the greens well in advance gives them time to "drip dry." Washing nice fresh salad greens ahead of time does not cause them to show rusty discoloration.

Anchovy Head Lettuce Salad

2 cans (2 oz. each) anchovy fillets
2 large tomatoes, cut into strips
1 large cucumber, sliced
1 cup green pepper, cut into strips
⅔ cup sliced ripe olives
¼ cup olive or salad oil
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 large head lettuce, broken into bite-size pieces

Drain oil from anchovy fillets into a large mixing bowl. Separate and chop fillets and add to oil in bowl. Add next 4 ingredients and mix well.

Combine olive or salad oil with vinegar, lemon juice, sugar and ground black pepper and beat with a rotary beater until creamy.

Pour over mixture in bowl and chill in the refrigerator at least 1 hour. Before serving, add lettuce and toss to mix well. Yield: 8 servings.

Red Domino Head Lettuce Salad

3 tablespoons red caviar
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 head "Iceberg" lettuce

Combine caviar, sour cream, lemon juice, sugar and ground black pepper. Refrigerate. Immediately before serving, cut lettuce into serving - size pieces. Spoon dressing over individual servings. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Spicy Dressing for Beets, Onions

Store any leftover spicy beets and onions.

Spicy Beet and Onion Salad

1 can (1 pound) medium whole beets
¼ cup sugar
⅓ cup cider vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
6 whole cloves
6 whole allspice
½ stick cinnamon
1 small onion, sliced thin and separated into rings

Drain and quarter beets. Heat to boiling ½ cup beet liquid, sugar, vinegar, salt, cloves, allspice and cinnamon; pour over beets and onion in a jar; cover and refrigerate overnight.

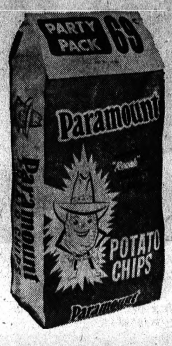

* * *

Serve drained beets and onions on salad greens. Store leftover in marinade in refrigerator.

As cake dough usually doubles or triples its bulk, never fill pans more than half full of the batter.

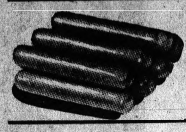

Welsh Rarebit Varied

Western Flavor for Rice Dish

Ripe olives and artichokes have gained a special and important place in menus. They are grown almost exclusively in California, so dishes made with them have Western Character.

Almost all of America's olives are grown and processed in California's Central Valley. Ripe olives add mellow flavor, appealing texture and color to salads and casseroles, such as this shrimp and rice bake.

The cool, foggy weather of mid-coastal California and the Mediterranean are the only areas where artichokes are grown commercially.

Frozen artichoke hearts are used in our recipe as they are more convenient and readily available than the fresh.

Tiny Pacific shrimp or other varieties — fresh, frozen or canned—can be used for this casserole.

A pound of green shrimp yields 1½ to 1⅔ cups (½ lb.) after cooking and shelling. They cook in just 3 to 5 minutes, depending on size.

All these ingredients are blended with convenient canned tomato sauce with mushrooms for bright color and flavor. Top with cheese for a glamorous main dish with a Californian accent.

Baked Rice and Shrimp, Gourmet
(4 servings)

1 cup rice
1 cup sliced ripe olives
2 cups cooked, cleaned shrimp
2 (8-oz.) cans tomato sauce with mushrooms
1 (9-oz.) package frozen artichoke hearts, cooked and drained
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon onion salt
¾ cup grated cheddar cheese

Cook rice in boiling salted water. Drain. Combine with remaining ingredients except cheese. Pour into 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle cheese on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Hostess Impolite This Time

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: The other evening my husband and I were invited out to dinner and the hostess prepared a special dish which my husband and I liked very much.

I remarked how delicious it was and asked her how she made it. She ignored my question and immediately changed the subject. I was very much embarrassed and thought her extremely rude.

Was I at fault for asking for the recipe?

* * *

A: Her not wishing to share her special recipe with you is quite understandable and in no way rude, but her ignoring your question was very impolite.

She should have explained that it was an old secret recipe of her family's and that she was very sorry but she could not give it to anyone.

ADDRESSING MAIL

Q: When addressing a greeting card to a bachelor who lives at home with his parents, is it proper to address it to Mr. Henry Jones and Family?

* * *

* * *

A: Addressing a card to Mr. Henry Jones and Family is not correct. If you have to economize and send only one card, it should be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, adding Mr. Henry Jones underneath.

Bach Salute by Chamber Group

The Meadow Brook Chamber Orchestra of Oakland University, Albert Tipton conducting, will present an all-Bach concert on March 28 at 3:30 p. m. in the Gold Room.

* * *

The program will include the Suite in B minor and three of the Brandenburg Concertos.

* * *

* * *

Violists are Meyer Shapiro, Eugenia Staszewski, and Philip Porbe. Cellists are Italo Babini, Edward Korkigian, and Mario Di Fiore. Charles Baer, bass, and Mary Norris, cembalo, complete the group.

* * *

This will be the third in a series of four chamber concerts sponsored by the university.

* * *

Tickets at $3.00 each are available through the Meadow Brook Festival Office at Oakland University.

Rebekah's Dinner

A chicken dinner will highlight the 6 p.m. meeting Friday of Pontiac Rebekah Lodge 450. Members will gather in the Malta Temple on Pontiac Road for the combined dinner and business meeting.

Pancakes on Sale

A pancake supper to benefit the 4-H scholarship fund will be held by members of the Wing Lake Shores branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

* * *

It is scheduled at Bloomfield Hills Junior High School on March 25 from 5:30 until 7:30 p.m.

* * *

Tickets may be obtained from any member, or by contacting Mrs. Douglas Buss or Mrs. Heber Fisk.

Camp Fire Girls Reminded of Past

Camp Fire Girls of the Pontiac area are being reminded of their heritage this week. Three years after the organization was founded in 1910, local groups were meeting.

Women who then wanted a wholesome, interesting group activity for their daughters founded independent groups of Camp Fire Girls.

They hiked, learned about Indian symbolism and conducted homemaking projects, much as the girls do today.

* * *

It is a beautiful beaded band her mother, the late Mrs. Edwin Hollister, wore to Camp Fire Girl meetings when she was a guardian in Deadwood, S. D.

* * *

Made by her father, it contains 64,800 multi-colored beads. The band which is about five inches wide and five feet long took six weeks of steady work to make.

WIDER HORIZONS

Today's Camp Fire Girls do a great deal more than make and wear beaded bands. The national theme for the year is "Think Big — Widen Your World."

With this in mind, girls and leaders are participating in a variety of birthday celebrations.

* * *

Girls in all levels of the program will present international programs for their parents.

* * *

One such program at Kennedy Junior High School will feature German exchange student, Monika Knab who lives with Mrs. Vern Rollison, a guardian of a junior high group.

MEXICAN PROGRAM

At another program, arranged by Mrs. Bernard Stickney, the program centers around Mexico. Mothers of two group members in native costume are talking about their colorful country.

Mrs. N. J. Hoffman is chairman of all programs.

* * *

Last Sunday, girls from the Waterford area entertained their parents at Camp Oweki, the Camp Fire Girls' camp near Clarkston. Both indoor and outdoor activities were planned.

* * *

Mrs. William Postle was chairman of this event.

DINNER

Wednesday evening Lake Orion girls and their parents held their third annual cooperative dinner and program. Mrs. Gilbert Petz made arrangements for the program which featured a puppet show and a Camp Fire ceremonial.

Roller skating parties and Camp Fire sings were held in the Avon district.

* * *

The Camp Fire program consists of four levels: Blue Birds for seven and eight-year-olds; Camp Fire Girls for fourth to sixth graders; the Junior High program serves girls of the seventh and eighth grades; and Horizon Clubs takes in ninth graders and high school girls.

* * *

All levels stress the basic Camp Fire values of femininity, creativity, individuality and the small group.

* * *

Beth Ann Stickney, South Francis Street, examines a beaded band worked in Indian symbols. Over 50 years old, it was worn by a Camp Fire guardian, the late Mrs. Edwin Hollister. Her daughter, Dorothy, is a new member of the board of directors.

April 3,	8:15 p.m.	"The Firebug"

Phi Chapter Has Election

Mrs. George Felice of Boston Street, was hostess to the Phi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority recently. An election of officers highlighted the meeting.

★ ★ ★

The program centered around artists and landscapes with each member participating in a drawing session.

Perky Look

A quick trick straight from Paris to pep up your spring outfit: Wear a wide, white organdy stole, knotted at the back.

Also one or two camellias in the lapel of a suit or at the neckline of a dress.

Mrs. Ross Hosts Guild

A salad-dessert luncheon preceded the meeting of the Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital Guild, Tuesday, in the home of Mrs. Ward W. Ross on North Berkshire Road.

Guests were Mrs. Keith Schachern and Mrs. E. D. Crawford of Lake Orion.

Never Mix Solutions

Some household products, which are efficient and safe when used alone, can be dangerous when they are combined.

★ ★ ★

Never mix two or more substances — such as bleaching solutions, ammonia, toilet-bowl cleaners, rust removers, and oven cleaners because such chemical mixtures may release irritating gases.

Rev. Ayres Slates Talk for Women

The Rev. Mr. Francis O. Ayres, director of Parishfield, the Diocesan Retreat Center, Brighton, will speak before the Episcopal Churchwomen of Christ Church Cranbrook on Tuesday.

Following the noon luncheon, secured by reservation, the speaker will talk about his work in the poverty program which shows a close relationship to the church today to society.

Prior to his affiliation with the Parishfield community, Mr. Ayres was located in Waterbury, Conn. as rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

He studied for the priesthood at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass. after having completed his studies at Taft College and Yale University.

Cleaning Takes Clean Cloths

Wash cleaning cloths or rags as soon as they begin to look dirty. First, shake them to get rid of dust and lint.

Then put them into a washer with other extra - dirty pieces. Use hot suds and rinses.

To wash dustcloths by hand, soak them for 10 to 15 minutes in hot soap or detergent suds. Rinse them, squeeze them out, and then rub them in clean sudsy water.

Rinse two or three times in clean water and hang them up to dry.

Be Brief but Tell Truth; It Requires Explanation

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and male, and my problem is this: How can I graciously answer the questions, "Why are you limping?" and, "Why don't you dance?"

★ ★ ★

Most people are not aware of my limp unless they've known me a long time. It is not very noticeable except when I am tired. Some people think I have recently hurt my leg.

★ ★ ★

The reason I limp, Abby, is because I had polio, and surgery as a result of it. But I'm afraid if I were to tell people this it would create an awkward silence.

An offhand wisecrack does not go over very well now that I'm older. Can you tell me how to answer these two questions so there will be no further discussion of a subject I find rather unpleasant?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: The best reply to both questions is the simple truth: "I've had surgery as a result of polio."

If questions persist after that, answer them graciously enough so the inquirer will not be embarrassed, and briefly enough so he will realize that you don't wish to dwell on the subject.

Open Monday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday till 9 p.m.

One of the best reasons for buying these shoes— is something you don't talk about.

That something is the price.

You pay a mere $5.99 for the black patents with side detailing. $6.99 for the one with the floating bow.

At these prices, you don't expect the new rounded toe. But Thom McAn gives it to you.

Or the kind of black patent that won't spot or peel. But Thom McAn gives you that, too.

So keep mum and nobody will ever guess how little you actually paid.

What's that? You love to tell people when you get a bargain? In that case, go ahead and tell. (You'll be doing us a favor.)

But most people won't believe you.

List Lacks Vigor

Stock Mart Continues Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — Cigarette stocks took losses as the stock market continued to put on a mixed performance early this afternoon.

Trading was moderately active and the list seemed to lack any incentive to move either way with much vigor.

★ ★ ★

The cigarette manufacturers reacted to news of a proposal to double the New York State tax on cigarettes. Early losses were slight in the group but they widened somewhat as the session continued.

Cigar stocks showed some small early gains but tended to slice these later.

LITTLE LOWER

The aerospace issues were a little lower on balance despite the latest Russian space exploit.

★ ★ ★

Rubbers and rails appeared to be ahead on balance while other groups were mixed to a shade lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 335.2 with industrials up .4, rails up .2 and utilities off .1.

Prices were generally higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Up about a point were American Book, Lamson and Electronic Assistance. A. C. Gilbert fell about 2 points following the Exchange's ban on limit orders in the stock. Fractional gainers included Cubic Corp., Cutter Laboratories "A," Exquisite Form and Seaboard World Airlines. Down fractionally were Fuller Industries, TWA warrants and Canadian Javelin.

★ ★ ★

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged in quiet trading. U.S. Government bonds were generally firm.

Battle to Save Burned Widow

Set Fire to Herself in Protest of Viet Policy

DETROIT (AP)—Doctors in a Detroit hospital continued fighting today to save an 82-year-old emigree widow who tried to take her life by setting fire to her clothes.

Mrs. Alice Herz, who fled Nazi Germany in 1933 with her daughter, doused herself with cleaning fluid and turned herself into a Buddhist like human torch Tuesday on a Detroit street corner to call attention to the problems in South Viet Nam. Mother and daughter came to the United States in 1942.

★ ★ ★

Wednesday, Mrs. Herz lay in Receiving Hospital with second and third degree burns on her neck, face and head. She was semiconscious and in critical condition, but doctors said she may live.

When she was rushed to a hospital Tuesday night she told a fireman that "I did it to protest the arms race all over the world." A long note found in her purse also said Mrs. Herz wanted to protest "the use of his high office by our President, LBJ, in trying to wipe out smaller nations."

DAUGHTER EXPLAINS

Mrs. Herz' daughter, Helga, a librarian, told a reporter "I cannot speak for my mother, and she has not been able to talk to me, but I know there was more than just the remembrance of Jewish persecution and of war and her personal experiences in her action."

Mrs. Herz, in a 1947 address to a Detroit women's club, described her background as "partly Jewish and partly Christian."

★ ★ ★

Her daughter told a reporter "my mother felt that President Johnson's great victory last fall was mainly due to his promise not to escalate the war in Viet Nam. She had a feeling of great frustration when she decided this country actually was escalating the war there."

Miss Herz added: "she feels the country which she loves is in danger. She thinks a power policy is based on overwhelming moral wrong and will have disastrous results."

FEARS WAR

"She fears war and the suffering it will bring, "Miss Herz added.

She described her mother as a woman who is "responsive to reality and completely aware of the policies of this country."

★ ★ ★

"She didn't do it to satisfy her soul, or as a kind of solace for depression, but as an attempt to stir action," Miss Herz added.

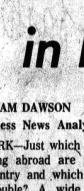

NEW DODGE PICKUPS—Dodge has introduced new half-ton and three-quarter-ton pickup models in addition to interior and exterior changes in all of its light and medium-duty conventional cab trucks. A major change is an increase in the 122-inch wheelbase model to 128 inches. Other changes include full-width grille, single headlights, wider tail gate, and a wide selection of interior and exterior trim.

What's Good, Bad in Dollar Outflow?

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK—Just which U.S. dollars going abroad are good for the country and which are causing trouble? A wide difference of opinion is developing, both in the Congress and in the business and banking community.

The administration is asking U.S. banks to limit loans to foreigners and U.S. corporations to curtail investments in other lands— but just certain kinds of investments and not in all lands.

DAWSON

The administration says this may cut down the excess outflow of dollars which over the last seven years has caused a drain on U.S. gold reserves and caused some nations, notably France, to question the role of the dollar as ranking with gold in the monetary reserves of other countries.

Critics of the plan for voluntary cutting down of private overseas investments by Americans charge that this would push the United States into economic isolation.

WIDENING SPLIT

And the widening split in the thinking on how best to bolster the dollar and keep more of them at home comes out in the open with the filing this week of the annual report of the Joint House-Senate Economic Committee.

Democrats on the group want to save the dollar by the program the administration has launched, but also by cutting the number of U.S. troops in Europe, especially in France.

The Republicans say private investment abroad, over the long run, returns more dollars than are sent out. Such investments make the American economy strong, they contend, and aren't the real cause of the excess flow of dollars overseas. They think government spending is.

They also contend that the better way to stop excess dollar outflows, such as in the final months of 1964, would be to raise interest rates here. This would narrow the gap between the yield from money invested in this country and the return on dollars invested at the higher interest rates obtained in almost all other lands.

ADMINISTRATION BUSY

The administration currently is busy meeting some of the objections of the business community to its program and reassuring them about others.

Commerce Secretary John T. Connor is dropping that part of the plan that required large corporations to give prior notice of large investments. He says companies understandably don't like to broadcast their plans to their competitors. He is asking the largest companies to estimate how much they can cut new investment plans. He hopes for a net decline of 15 to 20 per cent this year.

Connor also stresses that increasing investments in less-developed countries is a good thing, despite the dollar outflow involved. Nor does he want U.S. corporations that have large amounts of their idle short-term money invested abroad to repatriate these dollars so fast that they would cause trouble there, especially in countries like Britain which have balance of payment problems themselves.

So, deciding which dollars going abroad are bad for this country and which do more good than harm isn't going to be easy. Nor is the decision likely to be reached without loud debates both in Congress and in business circles.

Football's Alonzo Stagg Dies at Age of 102

AMOS A. STAGG

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Amos Alonzo Stagg died Wednesday at the age of 102, yet his contributions to football must live as long as there is a game.

The pioneer All-America who coached 70 years, 41 of them at the University of Chicago, succumbed to uremia in a rest home. He had lived there since 1962, just two years after failing eyesight forced his final retirement.

★ ★ ★

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon in Stockton's Central Methodist Church with burial near his beloved widow, Stella, who died last July 22.

Students from Amos Alonzo Stagg High School will hold a special memorial service Friday at the University of the Pacific stadium.

LONG TENURE

A star baseball pitcher and football end at Yale, Stagg became the University of Chicago's first coach in 1892 and held the post until he reached mandatory retirement age in 1932. Instead of accepting an honorary post, Stagg became, at 70, the football coach of Pacific.

In 1943, Stagg's team lost only to Southern California and the Football Coaches Association named him Coach of the Year at 81. He also is a member of Football's Hall of Fame.

Lynn O. Waldorf, former president of the coaches association, declared, "I don't know anyone who contributed more to football and I don't know anyone who enjoyed the absolute respect of his associates more than Mr. Stagg."

Born at West Orange, N.J., Aug. 16, 1862, before football was invented, Stagg attended Exeter Academy and then Yale. He studied for the ministry but gave up that ambition when he felt his voice not suited to preaching.

★ ★ ★

"I felt specially called to preach," he recalled, "but I decided to do it on the football field."

NO LIQUOR

He demanded clean living and didn't smoke or drink. In deference to his longstanding rules no liquor was served at his 100th birthday celebration, a large civic banquet in Stockton in 1962.

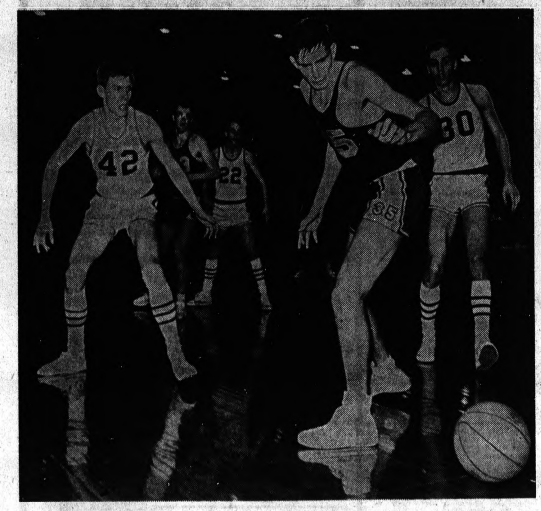

After 41 years at Chicago and 15 at Pacific, he assisted his elder son, Amos Alonzo Jr., for six years at Susquehanna in Pennsylvania and later became advisory coach at Stockton College, a two-year school.

Amos Alonzo Jr. has retired from coaching and is a business executive in Chicago. Another son, Paul is athletic director at Pacific. A daughter, Mrs. Ruth S. Lauren, lives in Chicago. Seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren also survive.

Stagg helped form the Big Ten Conference and in 1905 coached Chicago's conference championship teams in football, track, baseball and basketball.

He helped bring about the T formation, wingback formations, forward pass, huddle, man-in-motion and the numbering of football jerseys.

NO TIME FOR STARING — Walled Lake and Southfield players seem spellbound as basketball rolls toward end line. Jim Hughes (35) of Vikings is closest to ball. Southfield's Rich Smigielski (42), Rick Coleman (22) and Ray Schlaff (30), and Vikings' Randy Alderson (33) also stare.

Jays to Meet Southwestern in Semifinals

Vikings Never Lead in Quarter-Final at Ypsi Fieldhouse

By JERE CRAIG

A surprisingly large turnout of fans braved the hazardous driving conditions to see ambitious Southfield record a 68-45 quarter-final victory.

The Blue Jays will play Detroit Southwestern in the semifinals Friday at East Lansing.

Walled Lake had ridden to a district and regional titles on a strong defense, but the Vikings let a 1-3-1 zone by Southfield force them out of a berth among the final four "A" teams in Lansing tomorrow night.

The Blue Jays led all the way and, despite numerous misplays on offense, outscored the losers in every quarter. Their sharp outside shooting and persistent offensive rebounding helped to offset the errors.

Walled Lake, meanwhile, was forced to take bad shots and did not manage many follow-up attempts. The Vikings' foul shooting also contributed to their downfall.

Only in the first quarter — their best over-all — did the Vikings make more than they missed from the charity stripe. They had 11 for 26 for the game and only 4 of 13 in the last half as they attempted to catch up.

QUICK LEAD

Southfield moved to a 10-2 lead at the outset as slick shooting guard Rick Coleman hit the first six points for the winners. The losers cut the margin to 20-16 by quarter's end.

Coleman added seven second-quarter markers to his eight in the opening session, and the Blue Jays moved in front, 35-21, at half-time. They held Walled Lake to five tallies in the period.

The Vikings tightened their defense and held Southfield to four points in the first 3:55 of the third quarter, but they only countered with an equal number in the same span. Actually, the losers hit the first four tallies of the half.

This cut their deficit to 10 points, but that was the closest they came in the final 16 minutes of play.

Walled Lake did outscore the Blue Jays from the floor, but 15 for 18 at the free throw line by the winners kept the former a comfortable distance behind.

The victory was another immensely satisfying one to coach Bob Neff of Southfield. Last year Walled Lake ousted the Jays in the tourney opener, 79-67.

Entering this year's post-season play, Southfield had only won two of 15 high school Class

Troy Victor, Dryden Out

Troy snatched victory from sure-defeat in the fourth quarter last night in a Class B quarter-final basketball tournament game at Clarkston, but Class D Dryden suffered a lapse in the final period in losing at Lansing.

Three points in the final 23 seconds of the game gave Troy a 51-49 triumph over the Colts, and the win boosted the Colts into the semifinal round against South Haven Friday at 7 p.m. at Lansing Waverly High School.

It was another story for Dryden. The Cardinals made it a close game for three quarters but were outscored 28-14 in the closing stanza and fell, 77-62.

Troy's victory, which pushed the team's over-all record to 20-2, earned the Colts their first trip to the state semifinals in 11 years.

Clio was ahead, 49-48, with 30 seconds left and had possession of the ball.

BAD PASS

But a bad pass fell into the hands of Troy's Doug Schroeder and he went in alone for the bucket and a 50-49 Troy lead with 23 seconds left.

Bruce Baas stole the ball from Clio with four seconds to play, was fouled and made the point to ice the game.

Chris Beacham led the Colts with 25 points. Schroeder finished with eight, all of them coming in the final nine minutes of the contest.

Ronald Rossell collected 15 for Clio.

Dryden, closing out a 19-4 campaign, trailed, 62-58, with 3:21 left in the game, but Covert scored 11 points in a row to break the game open.

James Sarno, 6-8 Covert center who led all scorers with 28 points, pitched up 12 in the final period and teammate Bernard Woods, who finished with 17 markers, tossed in 11 in the spree.

Ron Faulds paced the Dryden attack with 19 points. Tom Sterner collected 13 and George Couzens added 12.

2 NIT Games Set Tonight

Villanova, St. John's Favored Teams

NEW YORK (AP) — There will be Indian war whoops and the beat of drums as the emotional-charged St. John's University Redmen battle Army and top-seeded Villanova encounters NYU in the semifinals of the National Invitation basketball tournament tonight.

The Redmen, 18-0, have vowed to win the NIT as a present for the Big Indian, Coach Joe Lapchick who is retiring at the end of the season at the age of 65. And despite a two-point 58-56 defeat at West Point during the regular season the Redmen are favored to whip the Cadets, 20-8, this time.

Villanova, 22-4 and eighth ranked in the final Associated Press poll of the season, similarly are favored to down the NYU Violets, 16-8.

A sellout crowd of more than 18,000, including cheering sections from the four schools, is expected to jam Madison Square Garden and contribute to what probably will be the noisest doubleheader of the season.

PAINFUL EFFORT — Although it is Walled Lake's Rick Hughes (11) who is being fouled on this second period field goal attempt, Southfield's Ted Simmons seems to be grimacing in pain over the collision.

Tigers' Pitching Sparkles in 7-3 Victory Over A's

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — When Mickey Lolich reported to spring training camp this year, he was 10 pounds overweight and a little chubby around the middle.

"That's all right," says interim Manager Bob Swift. "I'll take ten more like him. Even five. That'd be enough to win the pennant.

★ ★ ★

Lolich throttled the Kansas City A's in four hitless innings in Detroit Tigers' 7-3 victory Wednesday. Afterward, Swift mused: "He's got a wonderful arm."

The performance was even more inspiring because Lolich's pet dog "Peanuts" died Tuesday.

"We'll miss Peanuts," said Lolich. "But we plan to get another pup when we get back to Detroit."

NAME SELECTED

Lolich said he even has a name picked out—"Era."

"Like in earned run average," asked someone.

The victory gave the Tigers a 2-2 record in the Grapefruit League. The power was spread around, with Jerry Lumpe getting three of Detroit's 11 hits. Don Demeter and Willie Horton had two each and Lolich had one.

★ ★ ★

Nelson Matthews hit a three-run homer off rookie Bille Graham in the ninth. The only other hit off Detroit pitching was Jim Gentile's double in the seventh inning.

Detroit was to be in Clearwater, Fla., today for a game with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Irish Luck for Bruins in Victory

DETROIT (AP) — The cellar-dwelling Boston Bruins will have another opportunity tonight to make good on their vow to have a say in the way the teams finish for the National Hockey League playoffs.

The Bruins had a bit of Irish luck in their 2-1 St. Patrick's Day effort against Chicago at Boston Wednesday night and they hope to have enough left over for their meeting with the Red Wings at the Olympia.

Chicago's loss to the Bruins prevented the Hawks from moving into a first-place tie with Detroit. The Red Wings can boost their league-leading margin to four points by stopping Boston tonight since the Black Hawks are idle.

FUNNY BOUNCE

The Irish luck surrounded both Boston goals in the victory over the Black Hawks. On the first goal at 9:36 of the second period, a blue line shot by defenseman Bob Woytowich went wide of the net and took a funny bounce off the boards.

Johnny Bucyk was standing in the opposite corner of the Chicago net and the puck bounced right to him. He poked it in before goalie Glenn Hall had a chance to move.

The second goal, at 14:03, actually was a passout from the corner by Reggie Flemming. However, the puck struck a Chicago defenseman and bounced into the cage for the eventual winning score.

UCLA Quintet Picked to Win Tournament

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — All season long UCLA Coach John Wooden has been asked if this Bruin basketball team is as good as or better than the one that copped the national championship last season.

He hasn't given a "yes," "no" or even "maybe" answer yet and it doesn't look like he's going to.

"Different," says John Wooden.

"Probably as good, maybe better," says Forrest Twogood, who qualified as an expert on the grounds that his Southern California team was beaten three times by each of the UCLA teams in question.

★ ★ ★

But back to the question of UCLA.

"It's impossible to answer," Wooden says. "We were a good team last year, maybe one of the best in college history. We didn't have a single bad game.

"This year's team is different. It's more of an up-and-down team. It shoots better. But it doesn't capitalize on the press, on the mistakes we force, as well as last year's team.

The Bruins, though ranked second in the nation behind Michigan have been established the early favorite by coaches to win a second straight title in the tourney beginning Friday.

BEST RECORD

They take the tourney's best record, 26-2, into the semifinal game against unranked Wichita, 21-7 at 12 midnight, EST. Mighty Michigan, 23-3, plays unranked Princeton, 22-5, in the other Friday semifinal, at 10 p.m., EST with the winners moving into the national televised final game Saturday, starting at 10 p.m., EST.

West Bloomfield Heating ran into a cold fourth quarter and dropped a 61-53 decision to Livonia.

The losers led at halftime, 26-25, and were one point down after three frames, 42-41. Livonia poured in 19 markers in the fourth to wrap up the decision.

Cinderella Five Falls

By The Associated Press

Alas! The glass slipper — for Chesaning Our Lady—didn't fit after all.

The tiny Class D school southwest of Saginaw captured the fancy of those following the Michigan High School basketball tournament after it rebounded from a losing record in the regular season to advance to the quarterfinals.

But unbeaten and top-ranked Barryton, leading all the way behind Jim Coady's 34 points, eliminated Our Lady 76-60 Wednesday night. Mike Patterson had 16 for the losers.

Jumping into the role of the Cinderella team of the tournament is Southfield in Class A, an easy 68-45 victor over Walled Lake.

Southwestern pulled one of the big surprises of the night by edging Detroit Austin 75-74 at Pontiac in a game in which neither side led by more than three points.

Three defending champions also won to keep alive their hopes of repeating.

32 STRAIGHT

Benton Harbor stretched its winning streak to 32 games with a 69-64 verdict over Dearborn Fordson in Class A; River Rouge moved two steps away from a fifth straight Class D crown by defeating previously unbeaten Fenton, 55-49, and Grosse Pointe St. Paul tripped Flint St. Agnes in Class C at Rochester.

Among the upsets were Pickford's 63-56 victory over Negaunee St. Paul, which had won 23 straight, in Class D; Kingsford's 82-70 decision over Ludington in Class B and Concord's easy 82-64 thumping of Bridgman in Class C.

L. C. Bowen scored 26 points for Benton Harbor, which had a fight on its hands until late in the game when its own fast break and Fordson's mistakes made the difference.

Fenton got only five points in the first quarter of the game with River Rouge, which attracted a record 3,100 fans to the Ann Arbor High gym. Fenton pulled to within a point in the third quarter and to within two points in the final stanza, but Rouge rallied each time and pulled away.

COLD SHOOTING

Grosse Pointe St. Paul likewise took advantage of some cold shooting by the opposition, jumping to a 30-18 halftime lead after St. Agnes managed just six points in the second quarter.

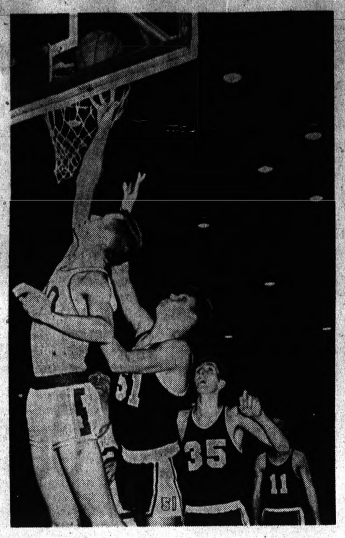

Pickford's Chuck Bennin and Negaunee St. Paul's Dominic Jacobetti scored 28 points in the game which saw Pickford surge ahead in the final quarter.

Celts Shrug Off Loss

By The Associated Press

It was a meaningless game for the Boston Celtics, who already had wrapped up their ninth straight Eastern title and already had set a one-season National Basketball Association record for victories.

So you can imagine what Coach Red Auerbach thought when Bill Russell skidded to a stop late in the fourth quarter of what was to become a 119-114 loss to the New York Knickerbockers, and limped off the court Wednesday night.

★ ★ ★

Russell seemed in considerable pain but after the game, the Celtic center shrugged off the injury. "It's all right," said Russell. Auerbach said that it was just a twisted ankle and that Russell would play the Celtics' final regular season game against Cincinnati at Boston Sunday.

Russell had 22 points and 17 rebounds before hurting himself. Sam Jones led the Celts with 28, the same number as New York rookie Willis Reed.

Viking Tackle Accepts Offer From Spartans

All-State tackle Roger Ruminski of Walled Lake is casting his lot with the Spartans of Michigan State University.

★ ★ ★

The 6-4, 265-pound Ruminski, swamped with offers from colleges throughout the United States, made his selection official in a letter to MSU head coach Hugh 'Duffy' Daugherty earlier this week.

Among the losers in the battle for Ruminski's services were Michigan, Notre Dame, Purdue, Ohio State and Northwestern.

★ ★ ★

The big tackle led Walled Lake to the Inter-Lakes League championship and a 9-1 record last fall.

Skiing Improvement Expected

By The Associated Press

The heavy snow in Michigan was expected to improve skiing conditions at a number of the state's resorts.

Prior to the snowfall, a number of ski areas reported good to excellent conditions. But some others were closed until a combination of snow and cold packed the slopes with a good skiing base.

Here are the reports, issued by regional tourist associations before the heavy snowfall began, for a number of the state's ski resorts:

PONTIAC AREA

DRYDEN — Very good skiing conditions.
MOUNT GRAMPIAN — good.
MOUNT HOLLY — good.
PINE KNOB — fair.
MOUNT CHRISTIE — closed.
The following resorts were closed until snow conditions permit reopening: ALPINE VALLEY, Pontiac; IRISH HILLS, Clinton; JACK PINE VALLEY, Lakeport; MOUNT BRIGHTON, Brighton; SILVERBELL VILLAGE, Pontiac.

WEST MICHIGAN

BIG M, Manistee — 2 inches new snow, skiing fair to good.
BOYNE HIGHLANDS, Harbor Springs — 8-18 base, 5 new, excellent.
BOYNE MOUNTAIN LODGE, Boyne Falls — 24-48 base, 5 new, excellent.
BRADY'S HILLS, Lakeview — 8-14 base, 5 new, excellent.
CABERFAE, Cadillac — 2-6 base, 4 new, good to very good.
CAROUSEL MOUNTAIN, Holland — 4-5 base, good.
CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN, Thompsonville — 4-20 base, 5 new, very good to excellent.
ESKAR SKI SLOPES, Middleville — 2-3 base, 4-5 new, will open this weekend.
MOUNT MANCELONA, Mancelona — 6 new, excellent spring skiing.
MISSAUKEE MOUNTAIN, Lake City — 3-4 base, very good to excellent.
MOON RIDGE, Lakeview — 2-14 base, good spring skiing.
PANDO, Rockford — 4-16 base, 4 powder, excellent.
SHANTY CREEK LODGE, Bellaire — 2-4 base, 3 new, fair to good.

Grid Pioneer Stagg Is Dead

In 1905, when foes charged football was too brutal, Stagg successfully fought for retention of the sport in a conference called by President Theodore Roosevelt.

Stagg, himself, had been named on Walter Camp's first All-America team and he coached several All-Americas during his career. Stagg weighed only 160 pounds as an athlete and felt the superiority of the "big" man was exaggerated.

M's Fritz Crisler Lauds 'Old Coach'

H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, athletic director at the University of Michigan, was commenting on the death Wednesday of his former coach and long-time friend Amos Alonzo Stagg.

"He stood for all that is fine and good in college athletics," Crisler said. "As an innovator, and as a coach with great imagination, he was a standout in an era that marked the real rise of college football.

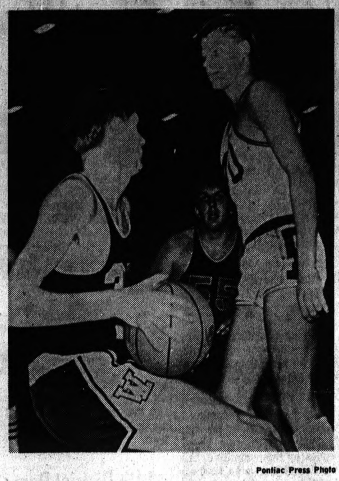

"To me, who played under him and assisted him, and who valued his guidance so much, his passing leaves me with a deep sense of loss."

Crisler played for and later assisted Stagg at the University of Chicago.

Nicklaus Shoots 66

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Since Jack Nicklaus tied the course record the first time he played Selva Marina, what will he do now that he knows the course?

"I don't know; it could be an 80 next," Nicklaus joked Wednesday after turning in a 33-33—66 individual card in the pro-am tourney preceding the $57,500 Greater Jacksonville Open beginning today.

Pontiac Press Photo

TOWERING FOE — Southfield's Jim Burgess (right) appears much taller than his 6-2 height as he watches evasive move of Walled Lake's 6-2 Jim Grant (with ball). Roger Ruminski (55) of the Vikings also seems dwarfed despite his 6-3, 260-pound frame. Blue Jays had the bigger end of the score, too, winning 68-45.

Unbeaten CYO Cagers Paired in Tournament

A pair of unbeaten quintets—Pontiac St. Benedict and Royal Oak St. Mary—will meet at 3:15 p.m. Saturday in the opening round of the Catholic Youth Organization basketball tournament at Birmingham Brother Rice High School.

Two other teams in the tourney, Center Line St. Clements and Birmingham Holy Name, play at 2 p.m. with the winner meeting the victor of the St. Benedict-St. Mary game on Sunday at 2:30.

The Sunday winner will advance to the semifinals set for Saturday and Sunday, March 27 and 28, at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

St. Benedict, coached by Joe Wilhelm, grabbed the title in the Northwest division of the CYO with a team built around 6-3 Mike McGill, who averaged more than 20 points a game.

Other players who see a lot action for the local squad are Mike Biallas, Gary Mazza, Rick Haddad, Tom Tippen and Paul Shallman.

Both teams posted 10-0 records during the regular season.

Grid's Grand Old Man Shaped Today's Game

Amos Alonzo Stagg was the subject. The words by Grantland Rice were written in 1943 when, at 81, the beloved strategist was named Coach of the Year. Stagg died Wednesday at 102.

★ ★ ★

Certainly as long as football is played, Stagg will be remembered.

No figure in gridiron history made so many contributions which are basic today to the game with which Stagg grew up.

★ ★ ★

Every quarterback keep, reverse play, lateral, quick kick and unbalanced line is a tribute to the ministry-bent son of an immigrant cobbler who became, instead, America's most revered football coach.

RECOVERED FUMBLE

From 1888 — when he recovered a fumbled punt to help Yale beat Princeton — through his twilight years, Stagg pioneered progress and helped reshape the game he felt offered boys the opportunity to become men.

Try to envision the T-formation without the quarterback standing to receive the ball from the center, without the lateral pass and pitchout, without men in motion and flankers, without the delayed buck and fullback draw.

★ ★ ★

The scope of Stagg's work begins to come into focus.

Under different rules, Stagg planted the germ from which Pop Warner developed his single and double wingback attacks. It was called the ends-back formation. The year: 1890. To pave the way for Warner, Stagg also came up with the reverse, the direct pass from center to a deep back and the unbalanced line.

Stagg was born Aug. 16, 1862 in West Orange, N.J., seven years before Princeton and Rutgers started American collegiate football.

★ ★ ★

As an undergraduate and divinity student, Stagg pitched the Elis to five consecutive collegiate championships. When he beat the Boston Nationals 2-1 in April of 1888 he got six National League contract offers including a bid for $3,000 from the New York Metropolitans.

Walled Lake Is Ousted

A tournament appearances. Now it has its first district and regional championships, and first quarter-final victory.

★ ★ ★

The coach credits improved confidence for the Jays' late-season success that now has reached seven straight victories and a 15-8 log. Fine shooting and lots of determination have paid off, too.

This was also the farthest Walled Lake has ever journeyed in the "A" tournament. The Vikings finish with 13-8 for the campaign.

More Snow Forecast for Michigan

Spring may be just around the corner, but a lot more snow will have to be shoveled before any spring breezes reach Michigan.

Although spring arrives officially on Saturday, the U.S. Weather Bureau has forecast heavy snow for extreme northern Lower Michigan and the Upper Peninsula today. Up to four inches are expected.

Winds of up to 40 miles per hour are forecast, with considerable drifting.

The Detroit area can look forward to occasional light rain and some snow flurries with accumulations of from one to two inches.

FRESH SNOW

A fresh blanket of the white stuff was dumped on Michigan Wednesday in the state's second blizzard in three weeks.

Western Michigan bore the brunt of the storm with Muskegon reporting winds of up to 50 miles per hour. Snow in some areas of the northern Lower Peninsula was whipped into four-foot drifts.

Traffic snarled, schools let out early and many small traffic accidents were attributed to slippery roads in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Traffic on several expressways was temporarily restricted as salt crews tried to make roads passable. Slush plugged up drainpipes under many freeway underpasses with water backing up as deep as six inches in some places.

HAZARDOUS DRIVING

Hazardous driving warnings remained in effect today for most of Western Michigan because of slippery roads and visibility reduced by blowing snow.

School closings were spotty. Osceola County schools were shut down, as were all schools in Traverse City, but only rural schools appeared to be affected elsewhere in the western part of the state.

Muskegon, which picked up 8.2 inches of snow in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m., reported all area roads passable but slippery. Muskegon schools were open after closing at noon Wednesday.

Grand Haven also reported all its schools open after a half-day shutdown because of the storm Wednesday.

Grand Rapids recorded 6.2 inches of snow in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. and the weather bureau said that southsouthwest winds gusting to 40 miles per hour would continue, accompanied by considerable drifting and snow flurry activity.

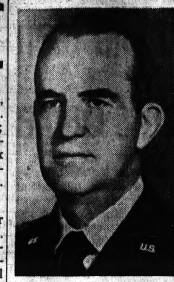

4 From City Attend State Road Confab

Attending the 50th annual Michigan Highway Conference are Joseph E. Neipling, city engineer; Clyde Christian, Department of Public Works superintendent; Marlin Sumner, assistant city engineer; and Ed Wujick, assistant DPW superintendent.

* * *

The conference is sponsored by the University of Michigan College of Engineering, County Road Association of Michigan, the Michigan State Highway Department and the Michigan Municipal League.

NEW NORAD COMMANDER — The White House in Washington yesterday announced that Gen. Dean C. Strother of the Air Force will be commander in chief of the North American Air Defense Command. Strother is 57, a native of Winfield, Kan., and graduated from West Point in 1931.

Racial Fights Close School

The outburst at the big school was the first major racial demonstration here since last spring when the Rev. Bruce Klunder was killed when accidentally run over by a bulldozer.

* * *

The white minister and others were protesting construction of a school in a Negro area on grounds it would perpetuate school segregation.

Principal John Lee of the high school said the fighting apparently came from tension that began building last Friday night when a Negro group rented an area YMCA branch for a dance.

* * *

Some of the 3,300 students were able to enter the building this morning before a ring of white students parading around the building blocked all entrances.

County Salary Unit Asks 81 New Jobs

A 1966 salary structure including 81 more county jobs at an added cost of $440,073—was recommended yesterday by the salaries committee of the County Board of Supervisors.

The recommendation, which will be referred to the supervisors' ways and means committee early next month, was essentially what the board of auditors recommended to the salaries committee.

Original departmental requests to the board of auditors had sought a total of 125 new positions at an additional cost of $690,009.

Largest personnel and salary increase was recommended for the social welfare department in an effort to upgrade the present program to a preventive program designed to rehabilitate clients.

* * *

An additional 21 jobs at a cost of $113,723 was recommended for the welfare department.

SPECIFIC POSITIONS

Positions for three assistant supervisors, 10 case workers, four stenographers, two clerks, a work training manager and a manager of indigent housing were specified.

A total of 16 new health department employes at a cost of $90,850 was the next most extensive departmental expansion recommended.

Additional personnel will include a public health program coordinator, seven nurses, a nursing supervisor, a nursing consultant, three sanitarians, two clerks and a stenographer.

* * *

The Children's Village will have eight new employes at a cost of $35,850, according to the recommendation, and the sheriff's department seven at $35,775.

ADDED COSTS

Six new employes are earmarked both for the Probate Court — juvenile division and for the board of auditors. Added costs for these two departments will be $32,100 and $36,225, respectively.

A total of five additional persons was recommended for the prosecutor's office including two assistant prosecutors.

Also added to the payroll of this department were an investigator, court reporter and stenographer.

* * *

Seven other departments were allowed either one or two new employes, according to the recommendation.

SALARY HIKES

Salary increases amounting to approximately $300,000 for county employes also were recommended by the committee. Oakland County has some 1,500 employes.

The committee concurred with the board of auditors recommendation that an additional $47,900 be specified for emergency salaries.

Also recommended yesterday was a proposal from the board of auditors that a position of construction supervisor be established with a salary range from $7,300 to $8,500 and that the salary range for drainage accounting supervisors be raised from the present $8,700-$10,700 to $9,500-$11,500.

* * *

After reviewing recommendations of the salaries committee, the ways and means committee will submit its recommendations to the board of supervisors April 13.

The board is expected to take action on salaries April 19.

Mother, 3 Children Die in Maine Blaze

ALEXANDER, Maine (UPI) — A mother, her two sons and a daughter perished today when fire swept their 1½ story home in this eastern Maine community.

Dead are Mrs. Linda McArthur, 20, her sons Benjamin III, 5, and Paul 2, and her 14-month-old daughter, Joyce.

Chief Data Processor

New School Post Okayed

The Pontiac Board of Education last night approved the hiring of a data processing supervisor for the school system.

The new post was budgeted for in the recently proposed 1965-66 preliminary school budget.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dana Whitmer said that it was his desire to begin now looking for a qualified person to take the position in the fall.

Because the proposed budget has not been approved, school board okay of the new job was needed.

* * *

In his request to the board Whitmer said that today data processing equipment is being used in many areas of school administration.

SECONDARY SCHOOLS

"It is expected that in 1965-66 all secondary schools will use data processing procedures for scheduling classes, report cards, and pupil records," he said.

The superintendent added that other useful applications of data processing can be made in the secondary schools and in the business office, personnel office and attendance and census office.

Whitmer said, however, that the school system could not proceed unless a qualified supervisor is hired.

* * *

OAKLAND DISTRICT

Pontiac schools use facilities belonging to the Oakland School District for the major portion of their data processing.

* * *

However, there are no technicians employed by the school. Each teacher or administrator must do the work themselves, to the best of their capacities.

The new data processing supervisor will be a specialist in the field.

State Senator From Detroit

Ex-Official Is Janitor

LANSING (AP) — Former State Sen. Patrick (Paddy) Walsh is returning to the State Capitol, but this time as a $2-an-hour night watchman.

Walsh, 73, and slowed by arthritis, served six years as a Democrat from Detroit's old Fourth District. During his Senate tenure, Walsh was noted for his St. Patrick's Day oratory and a campaign for Sunday liquor sales.

"Some years ago, ex-Sen. Frank Andrews (R-Hillman) said the Senate might be able to put me on but it would have to be a 'made' job," Walsh said recently. "I told him 'I don't want any openings created to get paid for doing nothing. I want something to do, a chance to earn my way.' "

There is no question of dummying payrolls this year with the Senate expanding its quarters over four floors of the capitol.

* * *

Walsh will be paid about $80 a week. If he was still a senator he would be getting about $250 a week.

LOST ELECTION

Walsh lost a bid for reelection in 1954 to Sen. Charles F. Blondy after a reapportionment. Blondy is still in office.

Walsh doesn't qualify for a Senate pension. He starts work Monday.

Support Payments Set for James Hare's Wife

LANSING (AP) — Circuit Court Judge Louis E. Coash Wednesday ordered Secretary of State James M. Hare to pay $700 a month temporary support to his wife after Hare filed for divorce.

Hare charged his wife, the former Atin Payor, with mental cruelty. The couple which has been married 25 years, has three children.

Cement Mixer Batters Man

Grover Cleveland, 38, of 385 Central is in critical condition at Pontiac General Hospital as the result of an accident last night at a White Lake Township firm, according to Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

The accident occurred at 11:15 p.m. at Lytell-Colegrove Division of the Price Brothers Pipe Co., as Cleveland was cleaning the inside of a cement mixer, officers said.

* * *

Deputies said the mixer was accidentally turned on with Cleveland inside.

Hospital officials said the victim suffered severe abdominal and internal injuries.

Company officials told deputies that Cleveland failed to turn off the main mixer power switch before going inside the machine.

14th District Dem Will Speak in Area

Fourteenth District senatorial candidate Edward McNamara will be the guest speaker Saturday at a reception at the White Lake Township hall, 7525 Highland.

Say U. S. Plans N-Test in Alaska Late This Year

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The United States plans a nuclear test in Alaska late this year to enable it to detect the difference between underground atomic tests and natural earthquakes, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer said today in a copyright story.

* * *

The newspaper said it learned the test would be set off at a depth of between 2,000 and 3,000 feet on barren Amchitka Island, near the end of the Aleutian island chain which separates the north Pacific and the Bering Sea.

* * *

No exact date was mentioned. It would be the first explosion of an atomic device in the 49th state.

In Memoriam 2

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MRS. Susie Pelix, who passed away 3 years ago March 18, 1962. Sadly missed by daughter Barbara and family.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF ARCHIE T. MacLarty, our dear husband and father who passed away March 18, 1959.
Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hands we cannot touch,
We will always have sweet memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
—Sadly missed by wife Elva, children Beulah, and Jack and grandchildren.

IN MEMORY OF OUR MOTHER, Mrs. Mae McLaughlin.
Often a lonely heart,
But always a heartfull memory.
Remembrance keeps her near.
Sadly missed by daughters, Marg and Kay.

County GOP Group to Meet

The Oakland County Republican Committee will be asked tonight to adopt a resolution urging Congressman William Broomfield to vote for a change in immigration laws that would eliminate the quota system.

★ ★ ★

This will be the first meeting of the 200-member county committee since the GOP county convention in January. The 8 p.m. meeting at Bloomfield Hills Junior High School, 4200 Quarton, is open to the public.

Broomfield, R-18th District, will be asked to favor immigration restrictions based solely on considerations of competency and character, according to county GOP chairman Dale A. Feet.

★ ★ ★

"Present laws discriminate on the basis of race and nationality, violating American principles of justice," said Feet.

★ ★ ★

Feet also said that a resolution will be introduced supporting federal legislation to require all states to encourage everyone to register and vote.

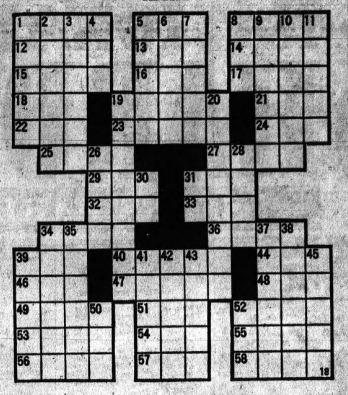

ADVOCATE PROSECUTION

The resolution would advocate the prosecution of any or all state or local officials who are responsible for the denial of any individual's constitutional rights.

★ ★ ★

Feet said the meeting will give county GOP leaders an opportunity to view the progress of the various standing committees.

Workers Seize U.S. Oil Firm in Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Communist-led workers took over the multimillion-dollar refinery of the American Stanvac Oil Co. today in south Sumatra, the official news agency Antara reported.

The report said the workers seized the company's installations at Sungei Gerong, near Palembang, in protest against American support of Malaysia.

Antara said a workers' delegation was leaving for Jakarta soon to report the action to the central government. This line of action resulted in the government's taking over the $80 million worth of American rubber plantations in north Sumatra last month.

The government has been reported negotiating with the rubber companies, trying to arrange for them to operate the plantations on a contract basis.

Stanvac is one of four foreign oil companies operating in Indonesia on contract to the government. Despite Communist pressure, the government has been reluctant to terminate this arrangement because of the large revenue it receives from the operations.

★ ★ ★

The companies in addition to Stanvac are Caltex and Pan-American Oil, both American-owned, and Shell.

★ ★ ★

Antara said the "united action" includes labor wings of the Communist party, the Nationalist party and the Nahdatul Ulama, a Moslem party.

Communist-instigated workers also harassed Americans in Jakarta today, cutting off the electricity and gas supply to a number of offices and residences.

An announcement by Sobsi, the Communist workers' organization, said the action was taken because the United States "openly supports Malaysia."

TV Networks Under Fire —Would Fire More Execs

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — The most outspoken critic of today's TV, actor-director-producer Robert Montgomery, who hasn't been able to get a regular show on the air in seven years, is speaking out about "those people who run the curious things called networks."

WILSON

"They have nothing but contempt, and ill-concealed contempt, which is worse, for the public," he charges.

He advocates a lot more "network firings."

Montgomery, who was quite a power in Washington when Dwight Eisenhower was President, and also in the FDR days as a Naval aide at the White House, hopes the FCC in its investigation will give half the programming back to the independents.

"We left the air—'Robert Montgomery Presents'—in 1957, the most popular dramatic show on the air, and I've never been back since. Why shouldn't I speak up? When you're at the South Pole you've no place to go but north."

Montgomery, who narrates "Man Invades the Sea" on ABC this week, says the phoniest device of all is the rating system. "'The system says 20 million people watch a show,' he says, 'but it doesn't record that 10 million are groaning, 'This is TERRIBLE!' "

Mayor Wagner waved aside rumors of an early marriage to Barbara Cavanagh when I saw them at Luchow's dining. "I've got no plans," he said. "I have an election to worry about, two boys in school to worry about."

Story of Flier Lost in N. Viet Raid Told

ABOARD USS RANGER, South China Sea (AP) — "It's too bad, but everyone knows it can happen. You know some day your number will be up, and you take it for granted and forget about it and keep flying."

★ ★ ★

The Navy identified him as Lt. Charles Frederick Clydesdale of Pittsburgh.

AIRCRAFT ACCIDENT

The Navy announcement said Clydesdale died as the result of an aircraft accident possibly due to flak, and that a search for his body was continuing.

But the leader of his flight, Cmdr. George E. Jacobssen Jr. of Centerdale, R.I., whose wife and children live at Lemoore, Calif., told it this way:

"We were returning from the strike, and it looked as if we were home free. About halfway back, perhaps 250 miles from the carrier, this pilot said he had a rough running engine.

"I called the ship with this information. Then he radioed his engine was backfiring and his cockpit filling with smoke. He said he was going to ditch.

FLEW WITH HIM

"I moved in to fly at his wing and flew with him all the way. He was very calm, cool and collected, and he was a young but experienced aviator.

"He ditched about 65 miles from the ship. The ditching was normal in all respects, but he didn't leave the plane. It sank in about 30 seconds."

★ ★ ★

Jacobssen was matter-of-fact in his words but was obviously suppressing tears. Both Jacobssen and Clydesdale were flying propeller-driven Skyraider bombers.

★ ★ ★

Despite the loss, all the 62 men on this huge ship who had flown to Phu Qui seemed delighted with the raid itself and eager for more.

ALMOST ROUTINE

Raids against North Viet Nam and Laos from the Ranger and the nearby Hancock seem to have become almost routine. Pilots are keyed up and eager to get a chance at missions.

Correspondents were allowed aboard the Ranger this week for the first time since the current series of raids on North Viet Nam began six weeks ago. Among the top brass on the ship was Vice Adm. Paul P. Blackburn Jr., commander of the 7th fleet.

TAKING OFF

As Blackburn and other admirals spoke in a wardroom below decks, screaming F4D Phantom jets, A4C Skyhawks and other carrier planes were taking off for undisclosed missions.

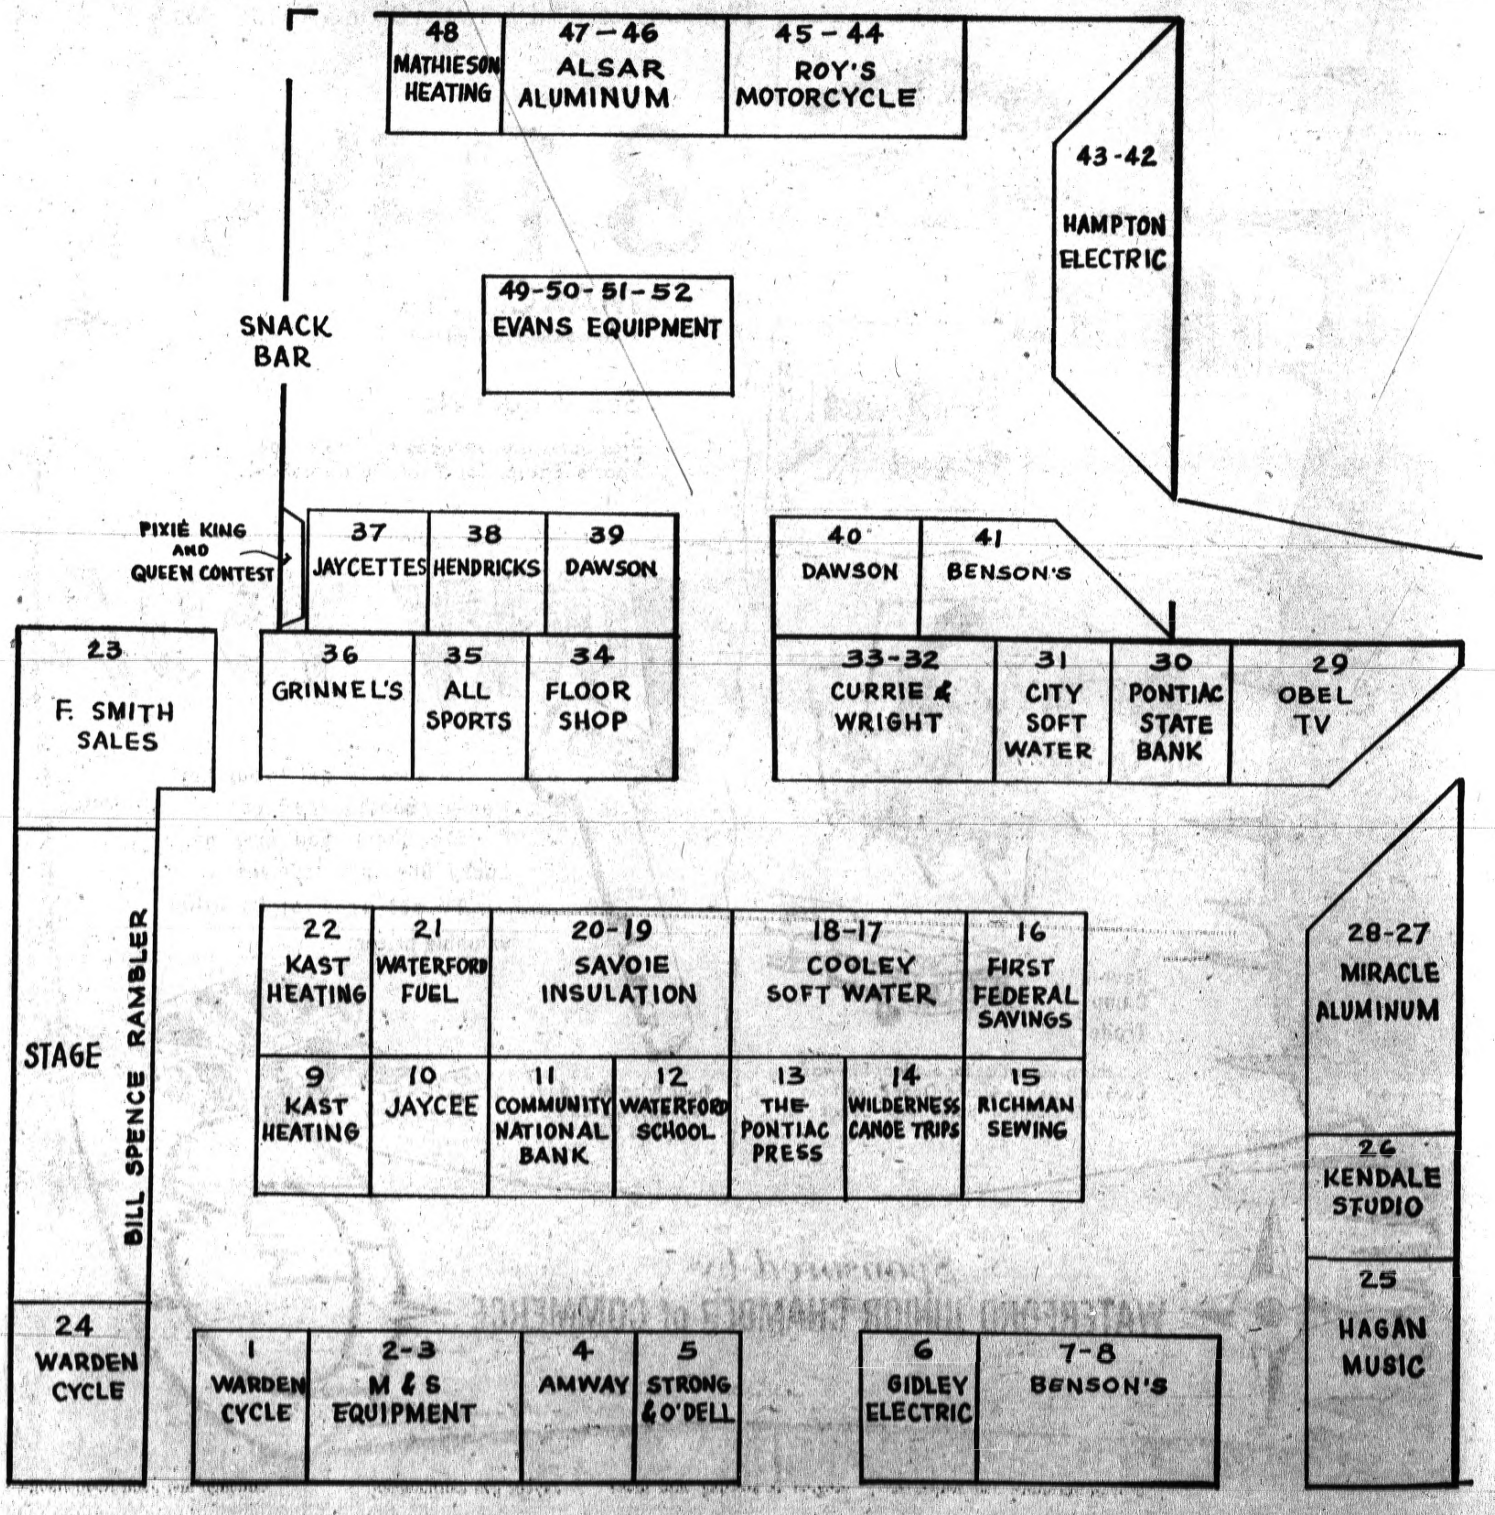

No raids on North Viet Nam were under way, but bomb-laden Skyraiders winged off toward land—possibly in quest of targets in Laos.

In the busy pilots' ready room below decks, men watched the landings and takeoffs on closed circuit television. The pilots watched each televised landing minutely, ready to razz any pilot making an error with a horn kept handy for the purpose.

But no one was resting idly.

The big carrier was cruising near the 17th parallel south of Communist China's Hainan Island, and there might be a scramble at any time.

Two Phantom jets are kept on catapults at all times with pilots and navigators in the cockpits, ready to fight within minutes in case of an attack.

Annual Home, Sport Event

Expect Record Crowd at Show

The Jaycees Bring Boat, Sport Show

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, or Jaycees, is a service organization for young men between the ages of 21 and 36 whose purpose is community development through leadership training.

Jaycee members came from all walks of life. They are white collar workers, blue collar workers, salesmen, schoolteachers, doctors, attorneys, engineers, etc.

★ ★ ★

Jaycees take pride in their designation as young men of action and there is no project for community betterment they won't tackle.

JAYCEE MOTTO

Area young men interested in learning more about the ideals and training of the Jaycees are invited to attend a meeting to learn firsthand the inner workings of the organization.

★ ★ ★

Reckless Youths May Spend Date Night in Court

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A date with the judge instead of a date with the girlfriend promises to be the Friday night activity of some young Lincoln drivers.

Municipal Judge Thomas McMannus has announced the first night traffic court for drivers under 21.

Any such driver arrested for a traffic violation will be ticketed for a Friday night court appearance instead of the usual morning session.

The judge said he is scheduling the night sessions to avoid conflict with school hours, to provide a chance for some driver education and counseling for young violators and to cut down on the daytime caseload.

★ ★ ★

The timing may have another deterrent effect since Friday night is date night, dance night, basketball game night and party night for the younger Lincoln set.

Mental Health, Retardation Waterford JCs No. 1 Project

Because the Jaycees believe that earth's great treasures lie in human personality and that service to humanity is the best work of life, they have adopted mental health and mental retardation as their primary project.

District 10 Jaycee chapters have joined together in plans to sponsor a mental health forum day at Pontiac State Hospital.

Purpose of the forum is to interest community leaders in lending assistance in such areas as job placement of rehabilitated patients, sheltered work shops, school training programs for retarded children, day care and residential services for disturbed children.

RECRUITING PROGRAMS

Other points would be recruitment programs for careers in mental health, supply of hospital needs such as hobby supplies and volunteer programs.

District 10 includes chapters in Waterford, Pontiac, Clarkston, Davisburg, Holly, Lake Orion, Ortonville, Rochester and Union Lake.

Also participating in the plan are Jaycee Auxiliary chapters from Holly, Lake Orion, Davisburg, Pontiac, Rochester, Ortonville and Waterford.

Jaycee auxiliary members have been collecting money to provide furniture and drapes at Pontiac State Hospital, to repaint rooms at the Lapeer Hospital and to sponsor retarded children.

HALF ITS GOAL

To date the women's unit of the Jaycees has raised about half its goal of $1,200 for these projects.

Numerous Jaycee projects are slated for this spring.

★ ★ ★

Oddly enough, plans for this project resulted from a canoe trip last year by Jaycee members who noticed then that a great deal of trash was being discarded in the river.

WILL BE LAUNCHED

A cleanup campaign will be launched this spring to coincide with the statewide cleanup, paint-up fix-up week.

Debris collected in the river will be taken to a dump.

Another Jaycee event coming up soon will be the annual Easter egg hunt scheduled the day before Easter.

This year's hunt will be expanded to include the children's wards of area hospitals so that even shut-ins can participate in the fun.

1,000 YOUNGSTERS

The regular egg hunt will be held at the Waterford Township High School football field. Some 1,000 youngsters are expected to participate.

Scheduled for April 29 at the CAI building in Waterford Township will be the Jaycees' Region D meeting with more than 400 Jaycees from 40 chapters expected to attend.

Regional officers as well as the national director will be elected at this meeting.

★ ★ ★

A very important project, slated sometime in May, is aimed at promoting greater traffic safety.

CAR INSPECTIONS

Jaycees will offer voluntary car inspection at three locations in the township.

All motorists will be urged to take advantage of this car safety check. Safe vehicle stickers will be issued to motorists whose cars pass inspection.

Still another Jaycee project to be launched this spring will be visits to new area residents to officially welcome them to the community.

★ ★ ★

Important information such as church listings, school data and township maps will be included in the welcome package along with discount certificates from area merchants.

SPORTS COMPETITION

Jaycees also have been active in promoting sports competition for area youth.

Main project is the junior golf program which was started 20 years ago by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Local competition is slated for mid-June. Winners will advance to state and national competition.

Each year approximately 25,000 youngsters participate in the Jaycee golf tournaments.

Wide Variety of Displays Set

Weekend Program Starts 6 P. M. Friday

A record crowd of from 10,000 to 12,000 is expected at this weekend's annual North Oakland County Home and Sport Show at Waterford Township's Community Activities, Inc. building.

★ ★ ★

Featured attraction at the show will be some 80 display booths, 60 inside and about 20 outside the building.

The show will begin at 6 p. m. Friday. Hours are 6 to 11 p. m. Friday and from noon to 11 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday.

★ ★ ★

Besides the wide variety of booth displays, the show will offer a games room and treasure chest which will provide 60 prizes to the lucky showgoers who select a key from a display booth that will open the chest.

MUSIC TO BE OFFERED

Music will be provided during the three days of the show and food and refreshments prepared by the Jaycettes will be available.

A highlight of the final day of the show will be the 4:30 p. m. crowning of the Pixie King and Queen selected on the basis of the highest vote totals.

A display picturing each king and queen candidate on a ballot box will be set up in the CAI building so visitors to the show can participate in the selection of the royalty.

A grand prize trailer will be awarded Sunday at 8 p. m.

Among the outside displays will be a 50-foot mobile home.

INDOOR DISPLAYS

Indoor displays will include sporting goods, appliances, furniture, boats, kitchen cabinets, color TV and home improvement ideas, to name a few.

★ ★ ★

Serving as chairmen for the show with Cornish are Ken Zimmerman, assistant general chairman; Mike Patterson, booth sales; Dave Zuehlke, publicity; Jim Cote, manpower; Chuck Wood, finance; Dick Ladouceur, concessions; and Mrs. Ted McCullough, kitchen.

★ ★ ★

NY Comes as Big Shock to Many U.N. Delegates

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — "Home was never like this." That's the nostalgic cry of hundreds of U.N. families uprooted from distant lands and dumped into the complexities of New York living.

It doesn't take much to trigger cultural shock:

Dry cleaners are hard on African kentis. Supermarkets don't stock banh tran for Vietnamese nor basmati for Pakistanis.

★ ★ ★

Only a few attached to the U.N.'s 114 New York foreign delegations are bothered by the large-issue clashes of which international incidents are made: mugger attacks on diplomats, police discourtesy, racial discrimination.

BIGGEST GRIPES

Private conversations with U.N. people from Upper Volta to Paraguay, from Copenhagen to Taipei show that the biggest gripes echo those of resident Americans.

They range from the cost of living and housing shortages to bottlenecked crosstown traffic and surly bus drivers.

However, alien living is complicated by old-country customs that don't always travel well to New York.

★ ★ ★

Ambassador Liu Chieh of China, for instance, admits that the city's fast pace "doesn't leave me time for my shadow-boxing."

CALESTHENICS

He is a devotee of tai chi, an ancient form of calesthenics designed to keep the muscles toned.

The spelling, pronunciation and arrangement of foreign names is a source of mystification to Americans and of frustration to the aliens concerned.

Venezuela's Carlo Sosa-Rodriguez, former General Assembly president, has inserted the hyphen as a gentle hint that proper Latin American usage on tripledecker names is the middle or the middle and last name. (He is Mr. Sosa or Mr. Sosa-Rodriguez, not Mr. Rodriguez.)

ADOPTS USAGE

His 3½ - year - old son, Suranand Vejjajiva, has inherited the problem and a related solution: at his nursery school he's known among his playmates and teachers as "Poom."

Delegates acclaim New York as unique among the world's cities in offering foods for any palate, however exotic.

★ ★ ★

Referring to the main street of the local German community's Yorkville, Dr. Edgar Gerwin of West Germany's delegation says:

"On 86th Street, we can get anything we need for our kitchen."

FOOD STALLS

West Africans say that the food stalls and bodegas of Spanish Harlem are a suitable substitute for the open-air markets of Nigeria or Cameroon.

An African dietary staple found in both, for instance, is plantain — the outsize green banana also favored by Latin Americans as a starchy cooking vegetable.

Attache to Ngoc Thach of South Viet Nam's U.N. mission hasn't been able to locate any banh tran.

STAFF OF LIFE

Paper-thin and pizza-sized, banh tran is a rice-flour staff-of-life to Vietnamese.

Housewives wrap it around chopped pork, mushrooms, shrimp or other fillings and deep-fry it into cha-gio a kind of Vietnamese eggroll.

★ ★ ★

IMPORTS

"But we have to import our own basmati and silver paper," he adds.

The former is a Pakistani rice highly regarded for its subtle flavor.

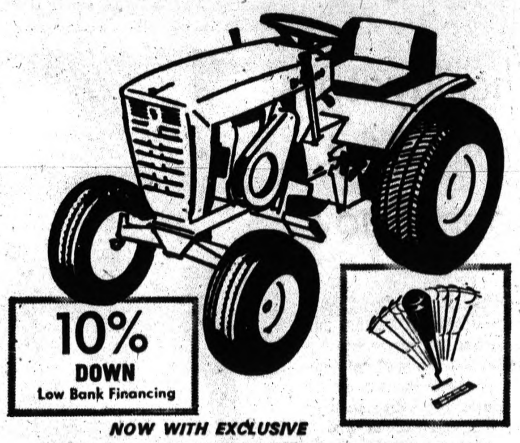

The latter is an Arabian Nights version of Reynolds Wrap: pure silver beaten into cobweb-thin sheets and folded around sweets. Such candies are eaten as is — silver wrapping and all.

Snow And Saris Don't Mix

On the sartorial side, local winters are deadly to fashionable U.N. wives from India and Pakistan, many of whom wear exquisite silk saris ornamented with gold stitching.

TEST HEADSET — Capt. Arthur L. Dickinson Jr. is strapped into the pilot's seat of a C141 jet for a test of a headset which is used during routine and low-altitude flights. Securing the fact mask is now less of a problem, thanks to Capt. Dickinson.

With 'Quick Donning Device'

AF Captain Comes to Pilots' Rescue

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)— If anything goes wrong while flying at 40,000 feet, a pilot knows the only way to go is down.

The first depends on the man. But securing the face mask is now less of a problem thanks to the efforts of a Southerner with a Yankee accent who is stationed with the 1741st Air Transport Squadron at Tinker Air Force Base here.

Capt. Arthur L. Dickinson Jr., New Orleans, perfected the "quick donning device" which holds oxygen mask and communication set to the head.

"Some of the fellows mentioned one day how the donning device wouldn't keep the mask on the face during bailout," Dickinson related. "So I did a little work with it and decided that a strap connected to the headset and hooking under the chin would hold the mask in place."

FABRIC SHOP

The tall, solidly built young officer said that with the help of a fabric shop located near the base he was able to put together a workable model of the strap he wanted.

"Then it was just a matter of getting the company which makes the donning set to work with the strap and make a few," Dickinson said in a voice still carrying the echo of his childhood in Chicago.

At 31, Dickinson can already look back on a number of achievements which are products of his initiative and capability.

★ ★ ★

He was one of the first pilots chosen to fly the C131 transport and in 1961 received the USAF Commendation Medal for helping develop the training program on that craft.

AMONG THE FIRST

Dickinson again was among the first when, in 1964, the Air Force introduced the giant C141 jet transport into the Military Air Transport Service.

When he was commissioned in 1957, it was after completing flight training as an honor graduate.

★ ★ ★

This led him into the cadet aviation program offered by the Air Force.

ENLISTED IN '54

He enlisted in the Air Force in 1954 and took his training at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock, Tex.

He recalls his class there called itself the Janitors, "because it seemed like every time we turned around someone was handing us another cleanup job."

★ ★ ★

Sold on the service, Dickinson says, "I'll stay 30 years if they will have me."

Say Woman Put in Cage for 7 Years

SUSONOMACHI, Japan (AP) — A farmer kept his mentally ill daughter locked in a cage for seven years until her death last week, police said today.

The cage was 5 feet, 3 inches high and 5 feet, 10 inches square.

Police said Jusaburo Ichikawa, 64, caged his daughter because she was considered a hopeless mental case. She was 34 when she died.

The woman had been admitted earlier to two public mental institutions. She was discharged in 1955 because doctors decided she could not be cured. The farmer told police he lacked the money to put his daughter in a private institution.

★ ★ ★

Police said the farmer's neighbors hesitated to tell officials because they sympathized with him and were afraid he would be accused of cruelty.

Teen Jury Hears Youth Cases

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Trial by juvenile . . . Juan Peron and his Virginia license . . . Beefsteak Charlie, King of the Hoboes . . . Man vs. sea nettle . . . all are a part of the U.S. scene this week.)

★ ★ ★

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP)—Youngsters who run afoul of the law in Grand Island are learning what it means to be judged by their peers.

They face an advisory jury of six high school students in District Judge Donald H. Weaver's court.

The young jurors are learning something about the difficulties of justice, too.

Six boys and girls sit in the jury box during juvenile trials, hear the evidence and then discuss it informally in Weaver's chambers. The judge asks their recommendation, although he isn't bound to adopt it.

★ ★ ★

"All decisions made so far have been unanimous," Weaver reports, but long and pretty vigorous discussion preceded some of them.

MADE OBJECTION

High school jurors, for instance, objected to sending one defendant to the state boys training school.

But after a lot of debate the advisory jury system was suggested by the Grand Island Youth Council, an organization of students of the city's three high schools.

Two jurors from each school are selected for each case by a jury commissioner named by the youth council.

★ ★ ★

The judge will continue the plan through the current school year. Next September he will decide whether it should be continued.

NO REASON

★ ★ ★

"I believe we will see a falling off in juvenile cases when these offenders realize they must face a jury of their own age."

RICHMOND, Va. — Among the sights in Spain is a deposed Argentine dictator riding around in a French car with Virginia license plates.

Juan Peron is the most famous of the 2,000 or so "Virginians in exile" who use Virginia plates in Spain and 50 other nations.

For Peron it's an expired 1961 license numberes A271-679, which he got through the mails in February 1962.

Virginia is a Mecca for foreigners and Americans living abroad who want to register their cars cheaply and without bother.

★ ★ ★

The plates are especially popular in Spain — Virginia's biggest customer — where the police are said to be easier on tourists, even pseudo-tourists.

YEARLY INCOME

This mail order business brings about $40,000 a year to Virginia, one of the few states that doesn't require proof of residence.

The purchaser need show only proof of ownership and insurance, and most foreigners are content to pay the $20 extra for the uninsured motorist fee.

That, plus the title fee and postage, brings the cost of a Virginia plate to $47.25 for a larger car.

★ ★ ★

Peron may not be able to go home to Argentina again, but at least he could renew that expired license plate.

BOONE, Iowa — A cold north wind blew and nearly a foot of snow covered the ground but the man in the colorful wool knit ski cap explained he was on an important mission.

It must have been because he had left warm, sunny Florida more than a week before to hitchhike to wintry Iowa.

He carried a slogan: "Beefsteak in every pot, beefsteak for all and all for beefsteak."

The man was "Beefsteak Charlie," campaigning around the country for reelection as King of the Hoboes next summer at the 65th annual Britt, Iowa, Hobo Day.

★ ★ ★

More than a 1,000 gallons of Mulligan stew — traditional hobo fare — are served the 10,000 persons who attend the event.

30-YEAR HOBO

Beefsteak Charlie — he gives no other name — said when he was first elected last summer that he was 43, had been a hobo 30 years and was from New York.

Peering over steel - rimmed glasses, Charlie said in an interview here that it is no affront to call a knight of the road a hobo but don't say he is a bum.

"A hobo will work if he's really down and out," Charlie said, "but a bum won't."

★ ★ ★

Charlie, who said he got his name by downing six beefsteaks at one sitting in Shreveport, La., years ago, estimates there are 3,000 hoboes left.

WOULDN'T CHANGE

"If I had my whole life to live over again, I wouldn't chane a minute of it," Charlie said.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — For years the pesky little sea nettle has had things pretty much his own way. Now man may be about ready to strike back.

The sea nettle, or jellyfish, is a small white umbrella-shaped creature which inflicts a nasty sting with his delicately formed tentacles.

He makes life miserable for swimmers in the Chesapeake Bay during much of the summer and is found, in some form, in salt water throughout much of the world.

The Maryland Department of Chesapeake Bay Affairs is seeking, and is likely to get, $25,000 at the current session of the state legislature to study possible ways of eliminating the sea nettle from the bay.

★ ★ ★

Joseph H. Manning, director of the department, says he isn't willing to accent the theory that nothing can be done about the problem.

He says very little is known about the sea nettle and that research might turn up ways to control the pest.

"At least it's worth a try," Manning says.

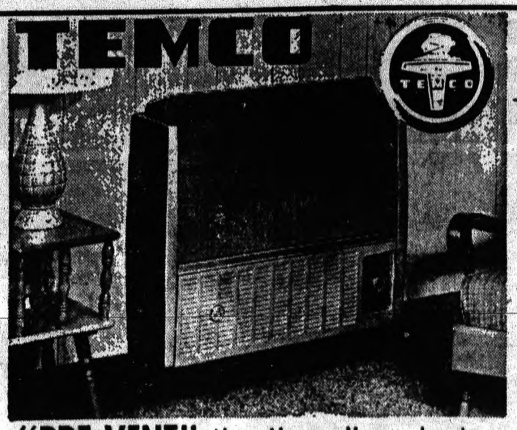

Pro-Red Guerrillas Raid Venezuela Village

★ ★ ★

The guerrillas surprised the police in Masparrito, in the state of Barinas, binding the policemen and stealing weapons and cash. Then they began looting homes. Schoolmaster Porfirio Linares resisted and was shot to death. Another householder was wounded.

Smelling is said to be related to a complicated electrical process that occurs in the olfactory nerve when an odor reaches the nose.

Campaign Near End

Ceylon Torn by Politics

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — The roughest political campaign in Ceylon's history is drawing to a close and has torn holes in the national fabric that may be difficult to mend.

★ ★ ★

Bitterly antagonistic political forces have taken seemingly irreconcilable positions in frantic efforts to support or kill off a reelection bid by leftist-backed Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike, the world's only woman prime minister.

Both sides agree the outcome of next Monday's parliamentary election will have momentous effect on Ceylon's future.

Mrs. Bandaranaike campaigned on a pledge to make Ceylon an anticolonialist Socialist state free from "Western Imperialist influence" and the "pernicious features of Western culture."

★ ★ ★

Opposition parties charge victory for her means the end of parliamentary democracy in Ceylon and that leftists now supporting her would push her aside and capture the government.

POLITICAL BRUISES

Most of this island nation's leading public figures wear political bruises collected in the campaign. Not even disc jockeys could escape.

They drew government fire when a radio speech by Mrs. Bandaranaike was followed by a playing of Beethoven's "Funeral March." When "The Donkey Serenade" was used as a musical fill-in after a cabinet minister's speech, some disc jockeys were fired by state-owned Radio Ceylon.

★ ★ ★

Her shaky government fell Dec. 3 when Parliament defeated her attempt to nationalize Ceylon's largest newspaper publishing group, the Associated Newspapers.

COALITION

She now offers Ceylon's 4.7 million registered voters a leftist-dominated coalition of her socialistic Freedom party and the Marxist Social Equality party.

The opposition charges that of the 100 parliamentary candidates she has nominated, 75 are Marxists in ideology. The House has 151 members, 145 elected and 6 appointed.

Mrs. Bandaranaike and Communist party officials agreed not to fight each other, and she speaks on behalf of some Red candidates.

★ ★ ★

This alarms Buddhist monks, who fear a leftist-dominated government would attack Buddhism, majority religion of Ceylon's 11 millions. So the Buddhists entered politics and campaigned against Mrs. Bandaranaike, despite a government ban on processions by monks.

INFILTRATION

Opposition forces — led by the United National party — charge the prime minister is opening Ceylon to Communist Chinese infiltration, and that Peking's agents are active throughout the island.

Mrs. Bandaranaike was goaded into denying formally an opposition charge that there is a secret treaty giving Communist China use of the east coast Trincomalee Naval Base in the event of renewed China-India fighting.

Ceylon's deteriorating economic position also is playing a big role in the campaign.

★ ★ ★

About a million Ceylonese — one third of the work force — are unemployed or work only part-time.

COVER IMPORTS

Foreign exchange reserves are down to $90 million, just enough to cover imports for three weeks. Ceylon imports half the rice its people eat and almost all the cloth they wear.

★ ★ ★

Two unknowns put the election's outcome in doubt:

●Whether the nation's poor, fearing for Buddhism's future, will maintain loyalty to Mrs. Bandaranaike's Freedom party, traditionally their political voice.

★ ★ ★

●Whether women voters, exactly half the voting list, will vote for their woman prime minister out of feminine pride or against her because of rising costs.

Tax Tips

QUESTION: My 20-year-old son is a full-time student at Michigan State University. During 1964 he had earned income of about $800. We suggested that he save all of his earnings for his future. He followed our suggestion and deposited all of his earnings in the bank. His entire support was furnished by myself and my husband. Since he earned over $600, are we prohibited from claiming him as a dependent on our return?

ANSWER: You are entitled to a dependency deduction for your son. This is true as long as he is a student in a qualified educational institution for at least five months of the year and you furnish more than half of his support for the entire year. If these conditions are met, the child's age or amount of income will not disqualify you. However, your son must file his own return since his gross income was $600 or more. He, of course, is also entitled to one personal exemption.

For the answer to your question, call your local Internal Revenue Service Office.

Detroit Edison Output Hits New Record in '64

The annual report of the Detroit Edison for 1964 shows that total electric energy output for the utility company reached an all-time high of 20.6 billion kilowatt-hours, 9.4 per cent above the 1963 total and nearly double that of 10 years ago.

★ ★ ★

Total utility revenues reached $342,855,778, up 7.3 per cent over the previous year.

The company's net income for 1964 was $51,723,537 — an increase of 12 per cent over 1963.

Earnings per share came to $1.80 compared to $1.60 per share outstanding at year end, 1963, according to Walker L. Cisler, chairman of the board of directors, and Donald F. Kigar, president of the company.

Drill Sergeant Coming Back in Vogue

FT. KNOX, Ky. — The Army is going back to its old method of training civilians to be soldiers—having a drill sergeant, wearing the round, peaked campaign hat, give most basic training.

Since mid-World War II, committees have taught recruits, up to 1,000 at a time at a central location.

Initially this was to save manpower. The instructors give the same class over and over.

"By July 1, drill sergeants will be giving about two thirds of the basic training," said Brig. Gen. John A. Beall Jr., commander of the U.S. Army Training Center Armor, an organization of about 12,000 soldiers in various phases of training.

Similar programs are under way at the other five basic training centers — Fts. Jackson, S.C., Polk, La., Ord, Calif., Leonard Wood, Mo., and Dix, N.J.

ORDERED CHANGE

Secretary of Army Stephen Ailes ordered the change, among others, after looking at facilities of other services for better training methods.

The aim of the drill sergeant program, Beall said, is to provide individual instruction, "someone who is really interested in the trainee and will help him when he is in trouble and push him when he is lazy.

"When a committee trains 12,000 in eight weeks, the trainee is just a number. But when you have a drill sergeant and a platoon, the sergeant becomes father, mother, older brother, adviser. . . the trainee then becomes an individual."

★ ★ ★

Capt. Paul Quittrochiocchi, who is in charge of giving basic trainees at Ft. Knox a test of military knowledge and skill required for graduation, said he had noted improvements in training since the drill sergeant program started in August.

DEFINITE ADVANTAGE

"I think the unit with drill sergeants for cadre has a definite advantage," he said.

Committees will continue to operate the rifle range, infiltration course and other things that lend themselves to centralized control.

The instruction now is split about 50-50 with drill sergeants conducting such training as drill and physical training.

Before he can wear the campaign hat and be a drill sergeant, a noncommissioned officer must complete a six-week school.

89 PER CENT

About 89 per cent of those entering have graduated, some after taking the course twice. Twenty per cent of the last class failed.

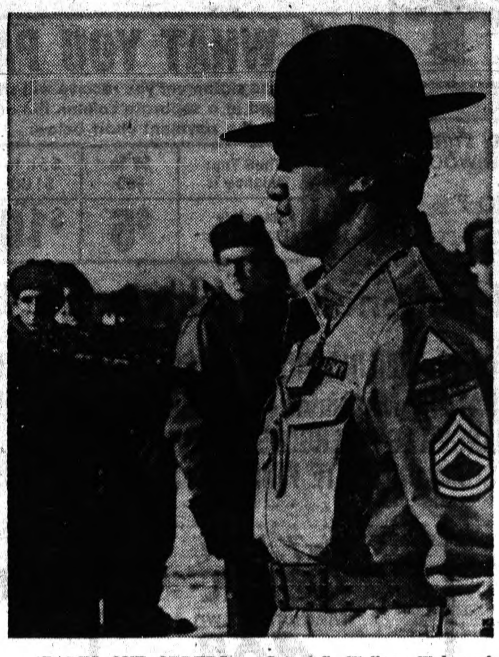

The aim of the school is to develop leadership characteristics, make the sergeant technically proficient in courses he must teach and instill the idea of making immediate corrections of all trainee errors.

★ ★ ★

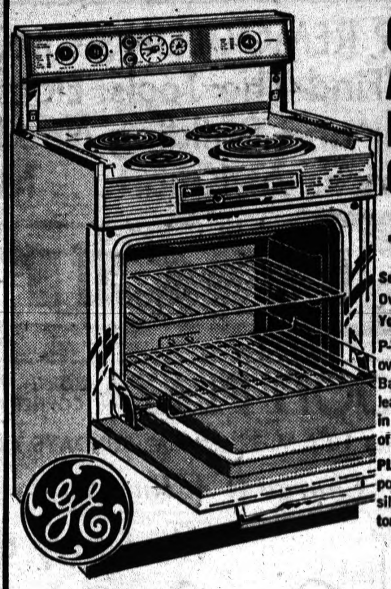

Sgt. Charles R. Newhouse, an instructor, said, "We bring into the sergeant's mind that he is an NCO standing before a man who may not have seen an NCO before. He provides the foundation for the rest of this man's Army career."

A drill sergeant practically has to get his platoon up, stay with it through the day and tuck it into bed at night, while constantly retaking basic training — 14 to 18 hour days are common.

The school also seeks to bring out the "command image."

BARKS OUT ORDERS — Sgt. 1.C. Wallace Walea of Honolulu wears the badge of the drill sergeant, the campaign hat, as he instructs a platoon of recruits. Walea is one of the first graduates of the drill sergeant school recently started at Ft. Knox, Ky., as the Army returns to the drill sergeant method of training soldiers.

Good Idea for U. S. Crooks

British Have Hood Deterrent

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International

Americans have done well with the English Common Law and with the English language. So it might be a good idea therefore if the United States borrowed from the British some methods of dealing with hoodlums, burglars, muggers and just plain mugs.

One of the urgent problems confronting society is what to do about guns. This relates especially to handguns that can be slipped easily into a pocket and all too easily be slipped out again to enable some punk to puncture the hide of his honest neighbor.

The British are coming up with a new method of dealing with armed hoods. They seize 'em on suspicion that they are armed.

★ ★ ★

Sir Frank told the House of Commons that the Socialist government would ask for power to authorize the British police to stop, search and to seize on mere reasonable suspicion that the individual stopped was unlawfully packing a gun. Simple as that!

CLOSE SUPERVISION

"The use by the police of this power would be closely supervised," Sir Frank assured the House, "and we are satisfied that it is required to prevent a rise in armed hooliganism and the use of firearms by criminals."

This is not in the United Kingdom a controversial objective. The Conservative opposition party instantly applauded and approved of this Socialist project. It will become part of the British law.

★ ★ ★

Fact is, crooks never had it so good in law as they do now in the United States under the Rules of Evidence as laid down by the U. S. Supreme Court as being in conformity with the U. S. Constitution.

GREAT QUESTION

The great law debate which now should be interesting the American people is whether the U. S. Supreme Court is protecting crooks at the expense of law-abiding citizens.

The protection, if any, is extended under the court's interpretation of the Fourth Amendment which guarantees the rights of citizens to be secure both in their persons and in their houses, papers and effects. The court has made many rulings.

★ ★ ★

Barrett wrote that recent court interpretations of the Fourth Amendment appeared to have weakened the protection of the personal liberty of the average law-abiding citizen and to give his privacy and property less protection than the court accorded the interests of persons suspected of crime.

SUPPORTS IDEA

British law supports and enforces the idea that reasonable suspicion is sufficient to warrant an arrest on charges of committing a felony.

A felony is a serious crime such as rape, murder, arson, mayhem and such.

★ ★ ★

The U. S. Supreme Court rules of evidence have made it more difficult for the American police to seize and the community to punish rapists, murderers, arsonists and those so-called enforcers who break legs and hands on order or gouge out eyes as a warning of what may happen next.

The United States in 1963 sank from fifth to sixth place as a supplier of Malaysia's imports.

U.S. Doctor Hit in Viet

Given Medal for Arrow Wound

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Capt. Francisco I. Pena, an Army doctor, may be the first soldier since the days of Gen. George Custer to get the Purple Heart for an arrow wound.

★ ★ ★

Pena, originally from McAllen, Tex., was shot with a crossbow in Viet Nam. Now stationed at William Beaumont General Hospital in El Paso, he expects to be separated from the service in July and return to McAllen with his wife and baby daughter.

"I was stationed in a place called Qui Nhon last November," Pena said. "One night I was driving a Jeep from our compound to deliver medicines to a small hospital where I sometimes worked.

"Well, just as I was going across this wide open area, I heard something go, 'ping, ping, ping.' I felt a sharp pain in my leg and looked down and there was an arrow right through my leg!

★ ★ ★

"I pressed down on the gas and got out of there in a hurry. I drove to the compound and warned them there was Viet Cong in the area and then drove to the dispensary."

BAMBOO ARROW

When he reached the dispensary, he pulled the bamboo arrow out and gave himself first aid. He now is completely recovered.

"I guess I was lucky the way my leg was propped," he said. "Otherwise, the arrow would have hit me in the stomach and that would have been pretty hard to pull out."

Two months after Pena was wounded, a lieutenant in another outfit got the Purple Heart for an arrow wound.

"I want to see him and sympathize," Pena said. "I had been kidded so much about my wound that I knew what he was in for."

Foreign Banks Expand to NY

15 Doing Business in Financial Capital

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a city where five of the world's 10 largest banks make their headquarters and multiply their branches, prospects for profitable operation of a branch of a foreign bank might seem remote.

But, under a law passed in 1961, foreign banks may establish branches in New York State, and today there are 15 of them doing business here.

There is, they believe, opportunity for all in the varied and complex commercial pattern of New York, with its constant needs for funds.

Raphael Recanati, managing director of the Israel Discount Bank, Ltd., discussed the decision to open a New York branch in a recent interview at his offices here.

★ ★ ★

The branch which Recanati heads was among the first to obtain a license after enabling legislation was passed over three years ago.

NO TRUST BUSINESS

Foreign banks here can render all banking services except trust business. Recanti said that naturally they may devote more attention to business enterprises involving international trade, although not necessarily all with the nations in which their home offices are located.

"We are available to those businessmen who wish to do business overseas," he explained. "In effect, we act as a bridge.

"Thus a man here might want to set up an outlet in Israel which would do business with the parent bank while the principal worked with us here."

★ ★ ★

Inquiries to the branch here, Recanati continued, range from those from tourists and tourist industries to those from entrepreneurs desiring to make an investment in Israel.

One of the reasons which led the parent bank to set up a full-fledged branch here was a steady rise in interest not only in tourism but in doing business with Israel, Recanati said.

Animals Due for Slaughter

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda is suffering a glut of elephants and hippos. At least 2,000 elephants are to be shot in the Murchinson Falls National Park to prevent them destroying their own habitat.

The Scientific and Technical Committee of the East African Wildlife Society, after a meeting in the park, has confirmed the necessity of the slaughter.

The 10,400 hippos living along a 50-mile stretch of the Nile which runs through the park are also overgrazing their habitat. They are to be reduced by about one-third.

Two Leopard Cubs Tussle Over The Milk Bowl At Feeding Time

Animals at Zoo Pose Problem at Mealtime

Hoff runs a lot more as executive director of the Cincinnati Zoo. But the restaurant duties are important for keeping such varied creatures as monkeys and tropical birds alive and healthy.

"There was a time when zoo animals were fed horse meat and scraps," Hoff said. "They seldom lived long.

"Nowadays we feed them special diets, diets that were worked out largely through trial and error."

Without the special diets, he said, "we'd have a fortune in dead animals on our hands in no time."

FOOD FOR SLOTH

Hoff and his helpers are working now on a diet for a three-toed sloth, a sleepy-looking South American animal about the size of a large cat.

The sloth's natural diet is leaves from a type of palm known as an umbrella tree. But these have to be flown in from British Guiana.

"All we can do is put different things in her cage, together with some of the leaves and hope she'll like something," said Emanuel Ledecky-Janecek, the zoo's assistant curator.

CHANGING DIET

Changing an animals diet is standard procedure. Big cats must learn to eat horse meat instead of game—and a duckbill platypus has to learn to like hardboiled eggs instead of Australian grubs.

Eggs—both raw and boiled—are standard fare on the zoo menu. So are meat, fish, hay, skimmed milk, lettuce, shrimp meal, citrus fruits, carrots, brewer's yeast and dried flies.

Rice, oatmeal, baby food and canned fruit cocktail are in the larder,too, along with various vitamin and mineral capsules.

★ ★ ★

"People don't seem to notice vitamin and mineral shortages very much," Hoff said, "but they affect animals very quickly."

For instance, when he was with a Chicago zoo, three lions got sick, despite a regular diet of frozen fish. Analysis on one which died discovered a shortage of vitamin B-1 — which is destroyed in freezing the fish.

Zoo administrators now have made a culinary art of inventing food supplements for animals, relying partly on what is known about human needs and partly on trial and error.

"Sometimes we have to trick them," Hoff said.

Rep. Powell Flexes Congress Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell has found a new weapon in his fight for Negro equality.

Powell's club is his power as chairman of an important House committee to speed up or slow down bills President Johnson wants passed.

For years, the Harlem Democrat's main weapon against racial barriers was his threat, sometimes carried out, to attach antidiscrimination riders to important legislation.

Such provisos quickly became known as "Powell Amendments," even when Powell did not offer them.

★ ★ ★

Congress made the Powell Amendment obsolete last year, however, when it wrote into the civil rights law a flat ban on discriminatory use of federal funds.

IN GOOD SPOT

But this did not leave the controversial New York congressman without leverage. Since 1961 he has been chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, which has jurisdiction over much of Johnson's Great Society program.

Powell and Johnson have had no serious disagreements to date, and the congressman has not used his power to block important administration bills.

But he has dropped some hints that make clear his willingness to use his weapon if the need arises.

This situation is nothing new. High-ranking members of Congress have exercised the power to gum up the works until they get their way since the early days of the republic. But Powell is the first to use it in the cause of racial equality.

Powell used his power at least twice during the Kennedy administration. In 1963, he forced the White House to include a Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) section in the civil rights bill.

He did it by threatening to take the job discrimination measure to the floor under circumstances that would have disrupted Kennedy's carefully laid plans to pass more limited civil rights legislation.

Before that, he openly refused to consider construction site picketing legislation sought by the AFL-CIO and backed by the White House until organized labor itself took action to end racial discrimination.

More recently, Powell has placed the same price on his cooperation with labor's ardent desire to repeal the Taft-Hartley act section that empowers states to enact "right-to-work" laws.

DOUBLE CRITICISM

Just before Congress started work this year, Powell held a news conference at which he combined criticism of the newly enacted "War on Poverty" with a strong complaint about the small number of Negroes in top federal jobs.

Powell did not say he would drag his heels on the legislation necessary to authorize continuation of Johnson's antipoverty program, but the message apparently got through anyway.

In recent weeks, the Office of Economic Opportunity has announced a string of Negro appointments to key positions.

Drove the Flock Away

HAARLEM, Holland (UPI) — The vicar of St. Bavo Cathedral was halfway through his sermon criticizing young people when an elderly man in the congregation interrupted and announced he was bored. Others in church applauded and subsequently the entire congregation walked out.

Who Advises Advisers If Advisers Need Advice

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the Kennedy administration White House counsel Ted Sorensen was frequently described as the President's "alter ego."

As a result, alter egoes became something of a status symbol in the capital. Other government officials figured that if the Chief Executive had an alter ego, they should have one, too.

But since President Johnson took office, the situation has changed. LBJ, apparently, does not have an alter ego. Consequently, alter egos are no longer in vogue.

★ ★ ★

Quite naturally, the return of egos to an unaltered state created a bureaucratic vacuum. And since nature abhors a vacuum, something was bound to fill it.

BEING FILLED

As best I can tell, the void left by the recession of alter egos is rapidly being filled by advisory committees.

Some indication of the extent to which advisory committees have rushed into the breach can be found in a study recently conducted by Rep. Edith Green, an Oregon Democrat and minor poet.

Mrs. Green observed that the five education bills sent to Congress by the administration this year called for the creation of nine new advisory committees, each with from 6 to 15 members.

She thereupon canvassed the Health, Education and Welfare Department to see how many advisory groups that agency already had in operation.

5-STANZA POEM

Then she summoned the muses and composed a five-stanza poem setting forth her findings.

You can never tell where inspiration is going to strike next.

Leaving Walt Whitman spinning rapidly in his grave, let us now scan some of the more pertinent excerpts:

"... Health, Education and Welfare
"Had a figure which caught our eye:
"There were two-hundred-sixty six committees
"Of advisers whose time we buy.

"We couldn't help pondering the question,
"If this many advisers we need,
"What of the advisers advisers
"And who will advise them? Indeed!

★ ★ ★

"So we considered the advisers' advisers
"And how many of these there should be,
"But the number at which we finally arrived
"Was somewhere in infinity."

★ ★ ★

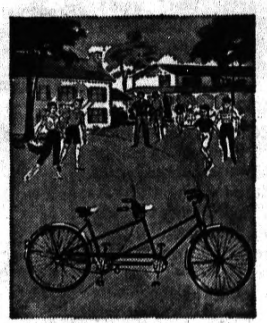

Yes, Mrs. Green, and the next thing we know,
Each committee may have an alter ego.

Holland Has Budding Tourist Attraction

★ ★ ★

It some day may rival as a tourist attraction world-famous Greenfield Village, which the auto millionaire Henry Ford built at Dearborn, Mich., and which annually attracts more than a million visitors; 1.3 million in 1964.

★ ★ ★

The development here captures the heritage of old Holland, as Greenfield Village does that of early America. For it was from the Netherlands that the forebears of most of this city's 24,916 residents migrated to the Lake Michigan coast between Muskegon and Benton Harbor.

★ ★ ★

Formal dedication of "Windmill Island," into which an initial $450,000 is going, is scheduled April 10.

WORKING WINDMILL

The centerpiece is a real, working Dutch windmill built more than 200 years ago, dismantled in the Netherlands and being reassembled here piece by piece.

The mighty, wind - driven mill is breathtaking — literally, if you climb the steps to its cap, where you are the equivalent of some 10 stories above the surrounding flower-splashed countryside.

"Windmill Island" is created by a 3,000 - foot canal, complete with dikes and drawbridge, that cuts across a bend in the Black River to loop off 36 acres from what eventually may be a 156-acre development.

Forty - two feet up, the windmill is surrounded by a 10 - foot wide outside gallery. Below this on the island, 150,000 tulips laid out in a garden with walks are expected to be in full bloom for Holland's "Tulip Time" festival May 12-15.

DRAWS THOUSANDS

It is at this festival that Holland shows off its 750,000 other tulips that have drawn thousands annually over the last 35 years to its flower-rimmed streets and bulb farms.

When the tulips are gone, lilacs, rhodendron, azaleas, cherries, apples, maples and annual-blooming flowers will keep "Windmill Island" colorful.

But there will be more than flowers, a mill that grinds corn between ton - weighing stones and a canal with dikes and drawbridges on "Windmill Island."

An entrance "Posthouse" is being built at a cost of $54,700, and a contract has been let for a Dutch house, which attached barn and adjoining herb garden, to cost $94,000 and be a 17th century layout the Netherlands is constructing in its Open Air Museum at Arnhem.

Incidentally, the canal cost $26,740 and the drawbridge $17,851. The windmill itself represented a cost of only $2,800, but it took $25,000 more to take it down and get it over here — in 7,000 pieces.

And to get it back together, Jan (Deek) Medendrop, a Dutch millwright, was imported along with it. That work began last October and is still going on.

Executives Look Down on Employes

DALLAS (AP) — A scientific team at the University of Michigan running a survey on a group of executives turned up something that sent them back to their notepads.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

"When we first noticed the consistent difference in height we thought we had made a mistake in measuring," said Dr. John A. Faulkner of the University of Michigan. "But we checked with other authorities around the country and found their figures bore us out on this."

★ ★ ★

That wasn't the point of the four-year study conducted by the Michigan Heart Association and the Public Health Service. The study was reported Tuesday in a paper given by Dr. Henry J. Montoye of the University of Michigan before the meeting of the American College of Sports Medicine.

STATE CITIZENS

The study was based on the examination of citizens of Tecumseh, Mich.

★ ★ ★

Executives, who make up about 11 per cent of an average community, are not only taller but also fatter, less active and show a high concentration of cholesterol and uric acid.

★ ★ ★

The study showed that the characteristics of executives—ranging from age 30 to 60—may place themselves in danger of cardiac trouble by their weight and lack of exercise.

Canal Pilots Are Sought in Panama

PANAMA (AP) — Business prospects are better than ever at the Panama Canal despite plans to replace the big ditch with a new sea level canal across the midsection of the Americas.

★ ★ ★

A call has gone out for more pilots to guide ships on the eight-hour trip through the 50-mile system of locks and lakes.

At least 35 ships a day make the journey now. No letup is in sight, even though U.S. officials are engaged in exploratory discussions for a new canal linking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Routes for the proposed waterway are under consideration in Panama, Nicaragua, Colombia and Costa Rica, but the United States has estimated a new canal will not be ready for at least 15 to 20 years. Traffic has steadily increased each year in the U.S.-controlled waterway across Panama.

Pilots, among the best paid employes in the organization, receive $10,668 a year to start. Salaries go up to $18,109. Fringe benefits include an annual eight-week leave with pay and free vacation travel to the United States every two years.

U.S. citizens under 40 with at least a high school education are eligible to apply. Pilot's licenses are issued by the U.S. Coast Guard.

In Pakistan Vote

Khan to Add to Victory?

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan expects an overwhelming vote of confidence next Sunday that will put finishing touches on his new mandate for power.

The occasion is an election to fill Pakistan's 150-member National Assembly. The experts here predict it will be filled predominantly by Ayub's supporters.

He is being courted by Communist China and the United States, after canceling in all but name Pakistan's membership in the U.S.-sponsored Central and Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. In addition, Ayub is strengthening ties with Indonesia and the Arab world, effectively winning friends for Pakistan in its quarrel with neighboring India.

POLITICAL FRAMEWORK

If all this were not enough to insure an election victory for Ayub, the political framework of Pakistan today probably would be.

The National Assembly election, like the presidential election, will not be a direct poll. Assembly members will be elected by 80,000 "basic Democrats" who speak for the people in an electoral system devised by Ayub.

Ayub's forces, campaigning with a rose as their election symbol; will be opposed by a combined opposition, represented by a hurricane lamp, that fought him in the presidential election.

This opposition, which ran 71-year-old Miss Fatima Jinnah against Ayub in January, represents six parties of widely varying ideologies, from the Moslem rule of Islam party to the leftist, anti-West National Awami party.

It's Hard to Diagnose Respiratory Ailments

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Diagnosis is the art or act of recognizing the presence of disease from its symptoms, and deciding as to its character; also the decision reached.

So says Webster.

According to a survey of various urban and rural sections of the U.S. Public Health Service some years ago—about the time Tony was a pup—three-fourths of respiratory infections accounted for the everyday work of physicians, that is, illnesses, and sequels.

That means not just the immediate illnesses from such ailments as measles, scarlet fever, tonsillitis, meningitis, pneumonia or what have you, but also the complications or sequels of such infections, such as otitis media, mastoiditis, pleurisy, rheumatic fever, sinusitis, empyema and the like.

★ ★ ★

In most instances, illnesses in this category are not diagnosed. Either the patient or the physician is content to call it a "cold" and gamble that it won't prove to be diphtheria, measles, infantile paralysis, meningitis or other serious respiratory infection.

TRUTHFUL

Too often physicians who dare not tell the truth lest patients change doctors—dare not say, in the early stage of the illness, "I don't know yet what is developing"—foster the practice of calling any respiratory infection "cold" in the early stage of the indisposition or illness—when the infection is most communicable—and thereby contribute to the spread of the infection, the undiagnosed disease.

Not that a good doctor can diagnose a respiratory infection in the onset, when it is most likely to spread, but the doctor can and should at least instruct the patient how to avoid spreading what he has caught.

Any number of physicians, specialists and health authorities have told people how to avoid "the common cold" and what to do when "threatened" or down with it. But no physician or health authority can or will define or describe such an entity.

Not just any fool, for indeed I don't. What's more, I don't believe any physician or health authority knows what a "cold" is, and that's why no one dares to define or describe "the common cold." It is a tag which satisfies many a poor creature if the doctor doesn't know what ails him, but it isn't a diagnosis.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Herders Tend Sheep With Motorcycle

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The sheepherder is now a motorcycle rider on at least one New Mexico ranch.

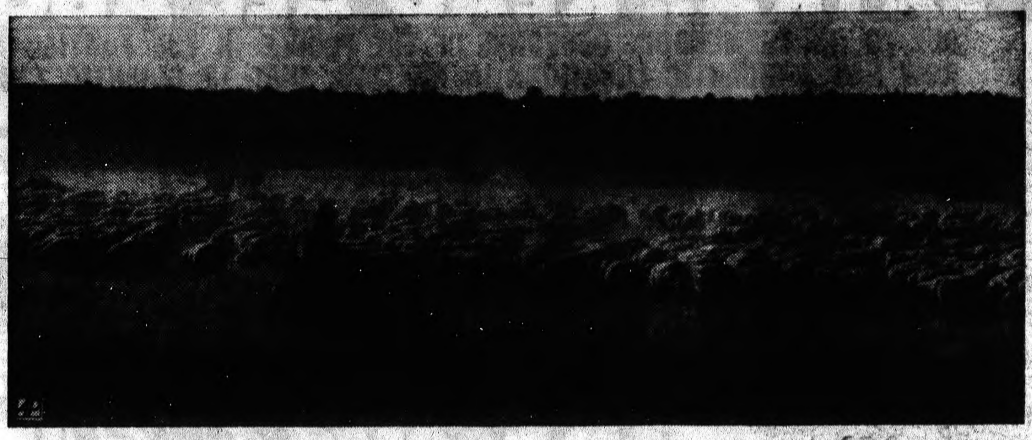

The shift from horses and burros was the innovation of Bill Hubbell, manager of the Cerro Prieto Ranch north of Quemado in west central New Mexico.

"I was looking for a way to travel from herd to herd without wasting time," Hubbell said in an interview at ranch headquarters in Albuquerque.

"They (the ranchhands) were a little leary at first, but now they're very enthusiastic."

He said one of his sheepherders one day asked to borrow a motorcycle to ride fence and check pastures.

RIDES AN IRON BURRO — A sheepherder follows his flock across open range on the Cerro Prieto Ranch in west central New Mexico on an "iron burro." While motorcycles are used on the ranch mainly for riding fence and checking pastures, they also are used for moving the sheep.

SHEEP UNDISTURBED

"He liked it better than a horse, so we tried motorcycles for our herders and found that sheep were no more disturbed by the noise than by the noise of a car.

Now, we're using four motorcycles continuously and have four in reserve for moving sheep when shearing, docking and castrating," Hubbell said.

On the ranch, sheep are kept in fenced pastures and ranchhands ride fence to keep watch for predators. Hubbell said the initial cost of fencing is high.

★ ★ ★

But it's cheaper in the long run than sheepherders, strings of pack burros, saddle horses for the herders and the extra men needed to break camp daily.

"Fenced sheep stay in better condition and produce more wool than those under the herder system," he said.

"Last year for instance lambs from the fenced sheep weighed five pounds more than the lambs from herded sheep even though the ewes in the fenced pasture lambed 15 days later than the herded ewes."

Hubbell says each ranchhand rides between 50-75 miles of fence at least every other day to keep predators such as coyotes, bobcats and eagles from molesting sheep.

★ ★ ★

"We lose about 6 per cent of our sheep due to these predators, so you can see how important this job is," he explained.

In terms of economics, Hubbell said, "Comparing a motorcycle with a horse is sort of like comparing a car with a wagon.

The initial cost is only about half as much for the horse — the expected life is perhaps the same — and the upkeep I figure might be $112 a year for the horse and $400 for the motorcycle.

However, the motorcycle has no cost while not in actual use and the horse, of course, needs to be fed each day regardless.

BIG FACTORS

"The time and the distances to be covered are the big factors with us and the motorcycle far outweighs the horse there."

Land conditions and climate are factors also to be considered, he said, when one thinks of using motorcycles for a job like riding fence.

"Out here where it's dry, we can use them all the time," he said. Snow is not a problem although mud presents some obstacles.

When coyotes are found in a pasture, the motorcycles are used to form a coyote drive to rid the pastures of them.

IRON BURROS

Frank Walker, executive secretary for the New Mexico Wool Growers Association, said of Hubbell's herders on iron burros:

"The boys in Texas will be using them before long, if they aren't already."

OLD WAY — Burros were used for looking after sheep on the Cerro Prieto Ranch in west central New Mexico. They are being replaced by motorcycles on the sprawling sheep ranch.

AAA Issues Boat Guide

Oakland County has 49 public boat launching sites and marinas listed in a first-of-a-kind guide just published for Michigan's boatmen by Automobile Club of Michigan.

★ ★ ★

"Information on boat facilities throughout Michigan and Ontario is provided in the publication," said Harold Heumann, manager of the Auto Club's Pontiac division.

"This is the first time that travel information on a statewide scale has ever been compiled in such detail for boaters," he added.

★ ★ ★

The guide lists 1,634 sites by towns, under the counties in which they are located. By scanning the charted information, boaters can tell if a site has a shore, timber, steel, gravel or paved launch ramp. At the same time, they will be aware of facilities available from dockage to restaurants.

MENTIONED

★ ★ ★

"Boat owners will find this guide as handy on the water as the automobilist finds his AAA tour book on the land," said Heumann.

A summary of Michigan's motorboat laws, tips for those who trailer boats and the unwritten laws of the waterways under a section titled "Courtesy Afloat," are included in the booklet.

★ ★ ★

Junior Editors Quiz on CLOWNS

QUESTION: Who were the first clowns?

ANSWER: The ancestors of clowns were actors in Greek and Roman days who wore padded clothes and acted stupidly to amuse the audience.

It seems that people just have to have a bit of foolishness around. Kings and courts of many countries adopted the habit of having gay entertainers to amuse them, such as the jester we show, with his cap and bells.

These "fools" were often very smart and held their position in the king's household by keen wit as well as by gay appearance.

The famous character of pantomime, "Harlequin," with his traditional costume covered with large diamond-shaped blocks of color, began to be seen in Italy in the 1500's and paved the way for the appearance of the clown as we know him today.

His nickname "Jooey" became so famous that even now circus clowns are often spoken as "Jooeys." Clowns are used to bring relief between the daring acts of the circus.

The regular performers succeed in what they attempt; the clowns fail, which is one reason they are so funny.

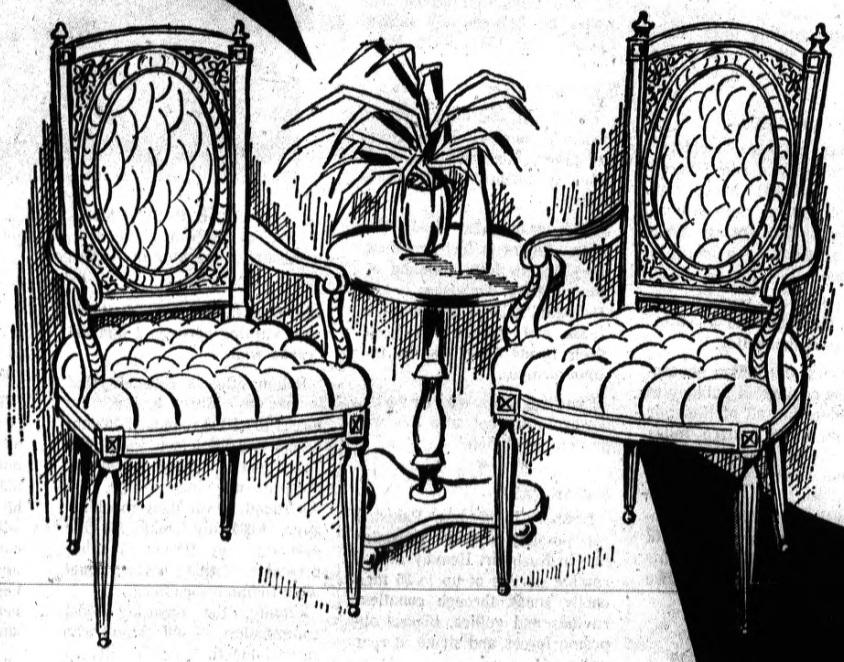

FOR YOU TO DO: Each clown has his special "face" or way of making up so he looks funny. Make a drawing to give your own idea of a funny clown's face.

Indian Troops Visited in Kashmir

(Editor's Note — In 1948, after British India was partitioned into independent India and Pakistan, the Hindu maharaja of Kasmir decided to join India. A war between India and Pakistan followed. Hundreds of lives have been taken in the 16 years of fighting for Kashmir. Here is the first of two reports on the situation gathered from visits to both sides.)

★ ★ ★

By CONRAD FINK
Associated Press Writer

WITH INDIAN FORCES IN KASHMIR — Across the next ridge, a land mine exploded with a muffled "whummp."

A hidden sniper sent his missile of death cracking through the tall pines and a machinegun chugged into action.

It was high noon along what is called, strangely the "ceasefire line" in beautiful Kashmir.

Indian troops in helmets and full battle kit nervously fingered their rifles and, careful not to offer themselves as targets, peered across 1,000 yards of no-man's land separating them from Pakistani machineguns.

★ ★ ★

India's struggle with Pakistan over this Himalayan state is flaring dangerously. The toll in lives and money is zooming upward.

RAIDERS STRIKE

Raiding parties strike through wooded valleys and across the mountains of Kashmir, throwing grenades, cutting throats, shooting up villages and army posts.

Rocket launchers, heavy mortars and even 105mm. artillery pieces are brought into action. Civilians — often disgusted with both sides — are killed.

The slaughter dates back to 1948 when India and Pakistan fought a full-scale war over Kashmir after evolving out of British India as independent, sovereign nations. In 1949, both sides settled down on a 360-mile "ceasefire line" dividing Kashmir that, ostensibly, is watched over by the United Nations.

★ ★ ★

SHOVED ASIDE

U.N. observers, all but shoved aside as the conflict gathers momentum, say there is ever-present danger of escalation.

"Any more shooting and it's war," one U.N. officer told a newsman.

India, charging Pakistan with "an unprecedented increase in aggressive actions" in 1964, admits to suffering 123 dead in the last 12 months. It claims to have killed 272 Pakistanis in the same period.

Pakistan also is charged by India with creating 1,522 "incidents" along the ceasefire line in 1964, as compared with 448 in 1963.

LIMITED ATTACK

In years past, an "incident" meant, perhaps, a cow (sacred to Hindu Indians) being shot while grazing near the ceasefire line. Now, an incident can mean a limited attack by a battalion of 800 men.

Well-informed sources attribute the change to a subtle switch in Indian policy.

For years, the Indian government was committed publicly to fully integrating all of Kashmir —with its 86,026 square miles and 3.6 million population—into the Indian union.

★ ★ ★

However, the Indian government now appears content with the ground it holds. It seems determined to turn the ceasefire line into an international border and proceed with political integration of as much of Kashmir as it occupies.

SECURE VALLEY

This would secure for India most of the population and the best sections of Kashmir — including the beautiful valley.

Pakistan, also claiming all of Kashmir, feels compelled to prevent a stalemate that eventually might result in international recognition of the ceasefire line as a fixed boundary.

But, the Indians say, the Pakistanis are unable to do more because of India's "trump card."

★ ★ ★

This, the Indians say, is India's over-all military superiority and a firm understanding on both sides that all-out war would be between 480 million Indians and 100 million Pakistanis.

ARMOR CLOSE

Heavy armored forces are stationed in northern India, ready to punch toward Pakistan's cities if Kashmir gets out of control.

This assessment leads Indian officers to feel sure that they are in full command of the situation. Ambushes to kill Pakistani raiders and punitive raids and gunfire "to keep their heads down" is the Indian formula.

Knowledgeable observers, however, are not sure this will prevent escalation.

SNEAK PAST

Neither India nor Pakistan can possibly seal the ceasefire line in Kashmir. Heavily armed raiding parties of up to 35 men easily sneak through countless ravines and gullies, bypass opposing forces and strike at rear units.

The constant tension of this guerrilla-type fighting makes men jumpy and is tough on morale. Junior officers, ordered to stand fast, are impatient to go on the offensive once in a while.

There are reliable reports of young company commanders jumping off without orders to strike an outpost or machinegun nest that has been harrassing their units.

★ ★ ★

This leads to what is known in Indian Army parlance as a "counter-bash" by the other side.

STARTING POINT

An example of how this happened was the so-called "graveyard incident" near the international border in southern Kashmir last March. This generally is regarded as the starting point of the current fighting.

A small Indian patrol met four Pakistanis also on patrol and both sides, charged the other with a border violation. Meetings held under the U.N. flag broke down and a scrap started over the graveyard, a point of land 130 yards long and varying between 2 and 50 yards wide.

Indian officers estimate that in one day, March 9, Pakistani forces fired 100 rounds of 105mm artillery, 1,140 3-inch shells, 340 2-inch shells, 39,000 rounds of medium machinegun fire, 28,000 rounds from light machineguns, 11,000 rifle rounds, 230 rifle grenades and threw 25 other grenades. Nothing is said about what Indian troops fired.

Finally, the opposing local commanders — old chums who served together in the British Indian Army — called off the affair.

INDEPENDENCE

Many Kashmiris in Indian territory want accession to Pakistan, for religious and other reasons. But many more say "a pox on both your houses" and strive for independence.

The conflict is treacherous for big powers now watching from the sidelines.

The United States and Britain have tried frantically to stay neutral, seeing both India and Pakistan as friendly bulwarks against Communism. But this isn't working anymore since Communist China has lined up with Pakistan and the Soviet Union with India.

The United States is in the most difficult position, since it gives military and economic aid to both quarreling nations.

★ ★ ★

"See this?" an Indian officer asked a newsman. "It's a .50 caliber American slug that missed my head by inches. Why do you Americans aid our enemies?"

COMPLAINTS

Pakistani officers make similar complaints — and the United States officially denies its arms aid is being used in Kashmir by either side.

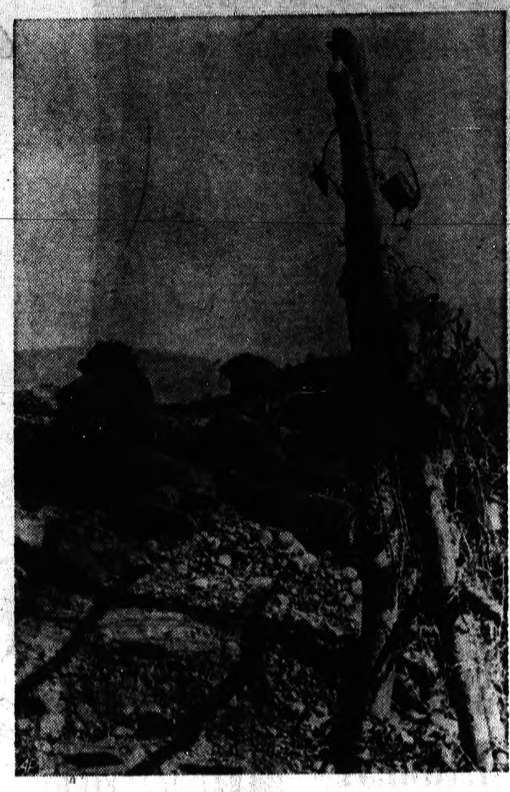

The whole Kashmir affair is duscussed with tedious regularity in the United Nations and in countless diplomatic notes hurled between New Delhi and Rawalpindi. Charges of who did what and when have completely obliterated fact and it is clear that neither capital is trying seriously to negotiate an end to the bloodshed.

For negotiation might lead to compromise and the sacrifice of a political career would be the price paid by both Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan if they gave way on Kashmir.

★ ★ ★

Public opinion in India and Pakistan is committed to victory in Kashmir. But no clearcut victory seems militarily possible.

So, in the mountains and valleys of Kashmir, the snipers and machinegunners continue to take their bloody toll.

BATTLE POSITIONS — Indian troops man battle positions at the front line of fighting against Pakistan in the steep mountain country of Kashmir.

CONSTANT PATROL — An Indian patrol moves through rough and mountainous Kashmir. India and Pakistan have been battling for control of the Himalayan state for 16 years.

Aid 'Orphaned' Seals

LONDON (UPI) — The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals sent two gallons of whale oil by plane to New Brunswick, Canada, yesterday to help feed two baby seals whose parents were killed by hunters.

Since 1950, the number of men employed in the professions or technical fields increased from 2.7 million to 5.4 million, while the number of male laborers decreased from 5.5 million to 4.2 million.

World's Longest Tram Ride

Scenic Trip Isn't for the Timid

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — The world's longest tram ride —from Palm Springs to a high shoulder of 10,805 - foot Mt. San Jacinto — is having trouble making financial ends meet. When you're a coward and ride it, you're afraid not all the cable ends are joined up.

★ ★ ★

Already you're getting nose bleed. Palm Springs' downtown elevation is 445 feet. The valley station: 2,643 feet.

More intrepid souls jostle you toward the back of the orange tram car where they, and you, can get a better view.

★ ★ ★

Not only have you violated the bus driver's sage advice by not looking ahead and up, you are forced to look back and down. Or pray.

LITTER BAG

There's a paper bag marked "Litter" hanging under a window. You know what it's there for.

To the northwest is 11,485-foot Mt. San Gorgonio, highest mountain in Southern California. Across the desert floor to the north and northeast are the Little San Bernardino Mountains. They catch the dull reddish-purple rays of the dying sun.

★ ★ ★

The Salton Sea is southwest. And beyond it, more than 100 miles from you, are Arizona and Old Mexico.

LIGHTS OF DESERT

The lights of the desert communities — Palm Springs, Desert Hot Springs, Palm Desert, Cathedral City, Indio and others — are multicolored and look like Christmas decorations shining unblinkingly in the waterless desert air.

"We will be passing the down car in a moment," announces the tram operator. "You won't believe it, but they will be going the same speed we are: 18 miles an hour."

An orange blue hurtles by. Must have been a jet in a power dive.

★ ★ ★

Except for the first of the five towers, the entire $8.15-million tramway was built from materials hoisted by helicopter a year and a half ago. This includes the 8,516-foot mountain station and restaurant at the top, says the operator.

NO FOOTHOLD

After an eternity totaling 13 minutes, the car stops. You've risen 5,873 feet from the valley station, more than 8,000 feet above downtown Palm Springs, which looks so close at your feet you think you can spit on it.

FINANCE WOES

Oh yes, about those financial problems. An estimated 575,000 passengers a year were expected, but only 298,000 showed up the first year. The tram people recently asked a five-year moratorium on bond payments after defaulting on one last October.

They also lowered the price of the tram ride, hoping to attract more customers. For $2.50 an adult you now can live a little. Or die a lot.

Inmates Miss Bright Lights

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)— Consider this for the rankings of most unusual complaints received by a public utility:

A trusty at Hamilton County Jail, a block from the Chattanooga Electric Power Board office, called, saying he acted for a number of prisoners.

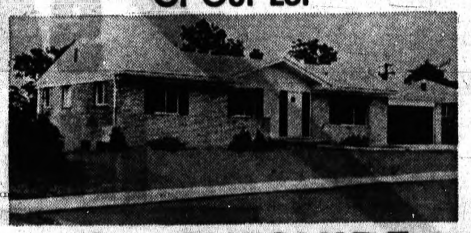

He said they missed the massive, well-lit clock and other neon lights which normally adorn the power building's roof.

Informed that the clock and lights would be out for a couple of weeks for rewiring, he said: "Sure hope you'll hurry up, because those guys gets worlds of entertainment out of watching all the lights on the building and the hands of the clock moving around and around."

Mme. Chiang Applauds U.S. Viet Stand

By ROBERT EUNSON

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — "I am really glad that President Johnson has taken such a firm stand in Viet Nam," the lovely Chinese woman said in English sweetened by a slight Southern drawl.

"I hope he will continue to do so. The last few weeks have been most encouraging."

★ ★ ★

Seated on a rose-colored cushioned chair next to a glowing sitting room fireplace, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek continued:

"People in Asia have been watching very closely America's attitude toward not only her enemies but her friends. The people of Asia often feel that America will do nothing to uphold her often-proclaimed principles of helping people hold onto the freedom they have. That is why people sometimes ask, 'Why shouldn't we be like the neutralists and not offend the Communists?' "

EARLY 40s

Mme. Chiang, who will be 64 next Wednesday, appears to be in her early 40s. Her exquisite figure was cased in a black silk dress, and she wore her usual ornaments. A servant brought tea and cakes.

She said in her opinion the problem in Southeast Asia was strictly a confrontation between an imperialistic Red China and the free world. Married to President Chiang Kai-shek for more than 37 years, she has been close to her people's fight for freedom most of her life.

"Russia has everything to lose should she take part in a war in Asia, while the Chinese Communists feel they have much to gain." She added that the people on the mainland are suffering from lack of food and clothing, necessities which the Russian people enjoy while the Chinese Communists "have wasted substance through folly and the building of a nuclear pile. Whatever little device they have does not mean much should the Chinese Communists exacerbate the situation since the device is not sufficiently sophisticated as such."

LOOKING BACK

Looking back over her eventual life, Mme. Chiang recalls meetings at the White House, speaking before Congress, and a conversation with Sir Winston Churchill in Cairo 22 years ago that went—

★ ★ ★

Churchill: You think I'm a terrible old man, don't you?

Mme. Chiang: I really don't know. You believe in colonialism and I don't.

Several hours of talk ensued.

Churchill: Now tell me what do you think of me?

Mme. Chiang: I think your bark is worse than your bite.

She suddenly looked up from the fireplace and said, "So many wonderful men have passed on lately. Churchill was a great man for he gave sustenance and exhorted courage during England's darkest hours."

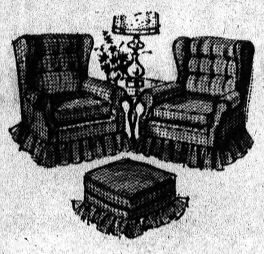

Of her appearance before the U.S. Congress in 1943, Mme. Chiang recalls, "I thought it was to be a joint session, but the senators wanted a speech of their own."

OFF THE CUFF

She made her prepared speech before the House of Representatives and "spoke off the cuff to the Senate. My good friend Sam Rayburn introduced me in the House."

★ ★ ★

She helped to build up an air force. In 1935 she assumed control of that branch of her husband's forces fighting the Japanese. Although she later gave up the job, she still remained active, visiting troops everywhere in the long war with Japan.

Last for GI in Viet Nam

Tension Fills Mission

CAM LO, South Viet Nam (AP) — Sweat rolled down the lean, tanned face of Marine Lt. John Schwartz as the helicopter dropped toward the landing zone at this little village. A battalion of Viet Cong had been sighted.

It was Schwartz's 26th mission in the six months he has spent here, serving as an adviser to Vietnamese troops and it was his final one before heading home. The tension was obvious.

★ ★ ★

The helicopters opened up with rockets and machine guns in strafing runs.

HEAD FOR BRUSH

Near the ground, Schwartz suddenly shouted "Di! Di! Di!" — Go!

The troops jumped from the chopper and headed for the brush, firing steadily. Fourteen helicopters came in, unloading 144 troops. The soldiers disappeared into the brushy area and in a few minutes the whole site looked deserted.

Schwartz kept in contact through two small observation planes and two armed U.S. Army helicopters that criss-crossed the area. So far, there was no enemy fire.

A few minutes later a convoy of armored personnel carriers roared up with Vietnamese troops and an American adviser aboard each.

SIGNAL TO MOVE

This was the signal for Schwartz and his men to move on, wading through nearby rice paddies. A Vietnamese soldier shadowed Schwartz.

The Marine explained that the Vietnamese army assigns one man to each adviser. He said he had lost three in previous operations.

★ ★ ★

"This one today makes my 26th in six months," he said. "Thank God it's my last."

Periodically the troops fired into pits and tunnels dug into the ground around village houses. Near one hut there was an overturned plow and fresh footprints leading into the woods.

SET TABLE

In another, a table was set for four persons. There was still warm soup in the bowls, but no people.

Moving, Schwartz and his unit heard voices coming from one hut. Entering cautiously they found an old man with a dirty white beard holding the hands of two children who looked as if they were about 2.

★ ★ ★

A Vietnamese officer questioned the old man.

"No Viet Cong here," he said.

Troops spread out in flanking movements. The sound of small arms ripped through the air. A radio call said a Vietnamese soldier in a nearby company was hit. A medical evacuation helicopter swung down to pick him up.

MOVED ON

Schwartz and his men moved on. They found a few women clutching half-dressed children and a few more old men.

From time to time Schwartz threw a smoke grenade so the observation planes know the location of the men on the ground.

★ ★ ★

Schwartz relaxed a few minutes later at a rendezvous point where he and his men were to be picked up by personnel carriers.

Munching on a squashed ham sandwich that he took out of a pocket, the young Marine said reflectively:

"You know I'm really glad we didn't meet up with any VC this time. This is my last operation. Only five more days left here. My folks, living now in Venezuela, are going to meet me in Miami, Fla., for a 30-day vacation. I'm sure looking forward to that."

CLIMBED ABOARD

The personnel carriers moved in. Schwartz and his men climbed aboard and roared off over the bumpy, boulder-strewn ground.

A stop was made to pick up more troops. About 15 Vietnamese youngsters ran up shouting, "Okay! Okay!" the only English they knew. The advisers shouted back, "Okay!" and passed around candy.

Finally the convoy reached its headquarters at Hue. There, Schwartz finished packing a large box of gear that would go with him back to the United States. That job done he stretched and said, "Good night and man, that was my last patrol."

Thieves Are Thorough: Steal Burglar Alarm

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Burglars who broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Jones last Monday were thorough if nothing else.

Mrs. Jones told investigators the intruders stole a television set, $160 cash and several books of trading stamps. They also cut the wires to the family's burglar alarm and stole it.

New Industry in State to Start April 5

GAYLORD (AP)—Now giving machinery and processes a final tune-up, northern Michigan's newest industry plans to begin production April 5.

It is the $5.5 million U.S. Plywood Corp. plant that spreads over 960 acres outside this town of 2,568, which lays claim to being "The Ski Capital of Michigan."

* * *

With 25 hourly rated workmen and 30 salaried personnel already on the job, U.S. Plywood expects the Gaylord plant to be employing up to 175 on a three-shift basis within 10 months.

* * *

When it hits its full production stride the plant will provide jobs for 150 to 200 others in the woods chopping the 80,000 cords of aspen and jackpine trees it will consume yearly.

HOME PRODUCT

U.S. Plywood's Gaylord personnel, for the most part, is going to be like the timber it uses —home-grown.

* * *

The vast majority of production personnel, of course, is being recruited locally and key members already are getting on-the-job training. Others will get the same as the plant builds towards its around-the-clock work force of 175 10 months hence.

On W. German Ties

Challenge Given Nasser

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—Three North African countries are challenging President Gamal Abdel Nasser's leadership of the Arab world.

In their attitude toward West Germany, Tunisia, Libya and Morocco are balking at Nasser's efforts to be the chief spokesman for the Arabs.

* * *

So far the three North African countries apparently intend to maintain their independence in the crisis resulting from West Germany's decision to open diplomatic relations with Israel.

COMMON SENSE

West Germany's aid to the three nations and what is described here as "the policy of common sense" seem to be the main reasons for which Tunisia, Morocco and Libya so far have refused to follow Nasser's policy.

The most vocal advocate of this attitude is Tunisia's fiery President Habib Bourguiba. He did not hesitate to stigmatize Nasser's attitude and his efforts to impose his will on the other Arab nations.

* * *

"Germany would not die if the Arabs cut diplomatic relations with her," Bourguiba bluntly told a news conference.

COMPLAINT

The Tunisian president also complained that the other 12 Arab League members were not summoned for consultations before the United Arab Republic launched its campaign against West Germany.

Western diplomats in the Tunisian capital have been very favorably impressed with Bourguiba's attitude.

* * *

Tunisia has cordial relations with West Germany. The Bonn government has given $17 million in direct grants to Tunisia, and German loans and investments by private industry amount to more than $57 million.

Whether you do it yourself or Supervise

finance your

at your Credit Union

Many of our members are surprised to learn that they can finance the building of their new patio or recreation room at their Credit Union. Whatever your get remodeling project is . . . new bath, new kitchen, swimming pool, storm windows, landscaping, garage, furnace or air conditioning to name just a few . . . you can get low cost financing at your Credit Union, and HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS CAN BE CARRIED AS LONG AS FIVE YEARS if you prefer.

If you are planning a home improvement, first get an idea of the expense involved, then decide how much of the work you want to do yourself. Be sure to check local building codes and get the necessary permits. If it's a job for a contractor, talk to a reliable one who can give you a cost estimate. Remember — the minute you start to buy materials or arrange for services, you become a Grade A prospect for the "gyp artists" who prey on homeowners.

DON'T give the job to the first contractor you talk to. Your local lumber dealer can give you the names of several reputable contractors.

DON'T bite on "bait" ads and "amazing" bargains actually designed as sales leads. Be on guard against typical rackets, such as furnace "inspection," or the sale of sub-standard aluminum storm windows, doors and siding from out-of-town, door-to-door salesmen.

How to get Your Money's Worth

Do your own "comparison shopping" before you decide. The honest contractor will be happy to put all of the details in writing, and offer you a completely filled out contract form to sign. In most cases the reputable contractor's bid will be somewhat higher than one offered by a "gyp artist"

DON'T sign on any dotted line until you thoroughly understand the agreement.

DON'T sign a "certificate of completion" until the job is really done — and be sure to read the fine print in so-called "guarantees."

How to pay for Materials and Supervise

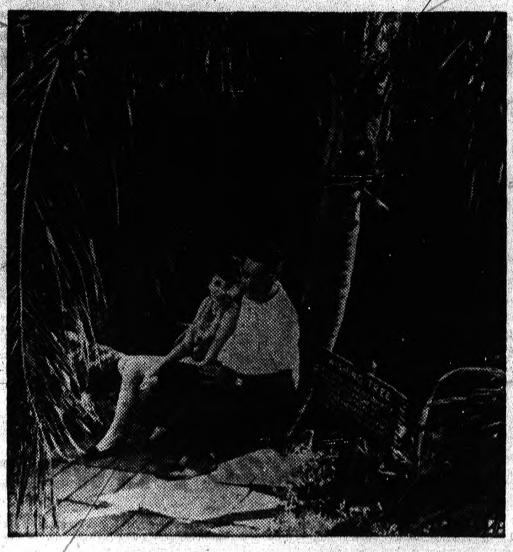

The honest contractor or supplier will let you handle financing wherever you wish. Whatever your home improvement involves — equipment, services, materials — your Credit Union will gladly handle your financing. At the Credit Union you are assured of lowest interest rates ($5.53 per $100 per year), your loan is insured at no extra cost to you and will be paid off if you should die or become permanently disabled, and you can arrange for home improvement loans for as long as five years, if you wish.

No other lender can offer you as much as your Credit Union. It's the best deal you can get anywhere.

HARD-TO-GET SHOT — A honeymooning pair who are camera enthusiasts may have trouble getting both of themselves in any one picture. This couple enlisted the help of a trained hostess at Cypress Gardens, Fla.

Film Togetherness

But when the couple consists of a pair of camera fans, we discovered it is difficult to achieve togetherness on a honeymoon. . . photographically speaking.

In other words, we could take pictures of each other as a picture story of the romantic start of our married life, but there were many moments which would have made better pictures if we could have been photographed together while traveling and sightseeing.

For instance I took a picture of Susan going up the plane ramp in New York and she retaliated by shooting my descent from the plane in Miami.

★ ★ ★

And I photographed her leaning against the window watching the clouds and the coastline go by. We would prefer to have pictures of both of us getting on and off the plane and looking through the window together.

OBVIOUS METHODS

The two most obvious methods of getting into your own pictures are: 1. use of the self-timer device on the camera, and, 2. appealing to passersby.

Both methods can be successful at times but may prove to be booby traps on other occasions. We also found some other ways to be a picture pair so here's our report:

Don't forget to pack a tripod if you plan to use the camera's self-timer! We forgot — or rather we tried to economize on bulk for travel by air.

You can still use the device by setting the camera on a firm support at exactly the right height. But the results tend to be posey and somewhat unnatural. Most of them look as though you're waiting for the 10 seconds to click by . . . which you are!

BETTER PICTURES

For better pictures, think of something to do that will look natural and interesting instead of staring at the camera.

When you look for a passerby, wait for another camera fan carrying a good camera, if you dare be that choosy. If you're in a tourist area you might even wait for a man with a family.

Then you'll have someone who most likely understands camera operation and when to shoot and who will be sympathetically helpful. Then you can offer to take pictures of the family group with his camera in return.

★ ★ ★

Many people confess they know nothing about photography but they're willing to accommodate you.

INSTRUCT THEM

Unless you instruct them carefully, you are likely to get part of the lower extremities chopped off with a mile of blank sky overhead — or some other variation of weird cropping — and a fine example of jiggly camera movement.

This has happened so many times to so many camera fans that it is a pleasure to find some resort, like Cypress Gardens, Fla., where they train their hostess guides to take pictures of and for their guests.

They also point out the best scenic spots for color pictures and have helpful advice about proper exposures. At least that was our fortunate experience.

★ ★ ★

At the other extreme, beware of smooth strangers who volunteer their services even before you ask for help.

HELPFUL STRANGER

We heard of one couple who turned their expensive camera over to a "helpful" character who then suggested they climb to a high vantage point for a "better picture." By the time the couple were all set to pose, the stranger, and camera, had vanished.

★ ★ ★

Senseless Killing Typifies Life in Haiti

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Anaylst

In a night club recently in Cap Hatien, an old port on Haiti's northern shore, one of Papa Duvalier's bodymen cut loose with a vicious spray of bullets from a tommy gun.

NEWSOM

Killed was one Antoine Piquion, prominent citizen and onetime member of Haiti's Chamber of Deputies. The killer went unpunished.

The killer had had nothing against Piquion. His real target was the club's orchestra leader who was absent. The machine gun burst simply was an expression of frustration.

Papa Duvalier otherwise is known as Dr. Francois Duvalier, lifetime president of Haiti. Since 1957 he has gained an unenviable reputation for being the worst tyrant in the Western Hemisphere.

The bogeyman was one of the handpicked elite who guard the president at all times. In Haiti they are known as the Ton Ton Macoute which in Creole means bogeyman.

TOO TYPICAL

The killing of Cap-Hatien's prominent citizen aroused resentment but was only too typical of life and the way it can come to a sudden end in today's Haiti which, with the Dominican Republic, shares the island of Hispaniola between Cuba and Puerto Rico.

Early this year Haiti launched a drive to cut in on the tourist trade and invited American newsmen to attend special airport ceremonies alongside a landing strip for jets.

The alacrity with which the crowd obeyed their orders testified to the respect in which they are held.

REPORT TRUTH

The president walked to the platform in a shuffle which seems to be the aftermath of a heart attack. He noted with pleasure the presence of representatives of the American Negro press. They, at least, he said, would report the truth.

To this, one Negro newsman remarked in an undertone that he wouldn't dare because no one would believe it.

What the newsmen also saw was some of the most abject poverty that can be seen in this hemisphere.

BARE EXISTENCE

Sumptuous villas exist within Port au Prince and in the hills. But for the majority, life is a bare existence in shacks unfit for human habitation and in clothing with patches upon the patches. Illiteracy is rated at 90 per cent and average annual consumption is valued at $8 per person.

Duvalier calls his a "national revolution." But if it is a revolution it is all for Duvalier and a selected few. His Ton Ton Macoute have become synonomous with extortion and terror. Within the last year or two the Duvalier opponents who have vanished are numbered in the hundreds.

Through 1963, the United States made no secret of the fact it hoped for Duvalier's overthrow. When it became apparent he was firmly in power, the policy changed to one of reluctant acceptance.

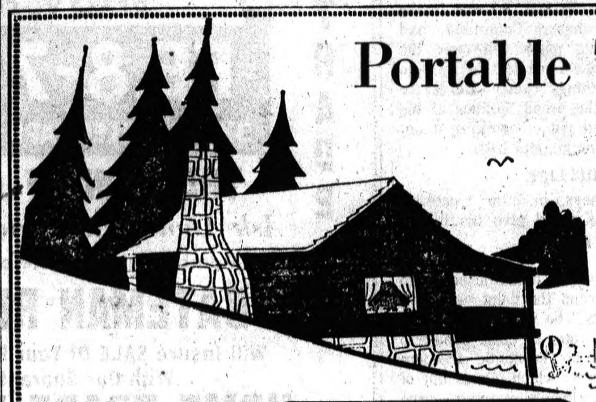

A year ago the Inter-American Development Company lent the Duvalier government $2.3 million to improve and expand the Port au Prince water supply system.

Inventor Proposes a National Dividend

NEW YORK (AP) — John H. Perry Jr. has a creative mind. When he sees a need for something that doesn't exist — a mechanical device, say, or even a new system of government — he invents it.

Once, spearfishing beneath the waters near his home in West Palm Beach, Fla., he tried to shoot a shark but was so nervous he shot himself in the wrist instead.

So he went home to his workshop and built a small submarine from which he could shoot sharks in safety.

After five revisions of the prototype the sub became not only a thing of personal pleasure but a commercial success as well.

★ ★ ★

One thing leads to another, and now Perry is monkeying with an idea for an underwater tent so he can take passengers down in his submarine, or "Cubmarine," as he has christened it, and allow them to get out and enjoy the wonders of the deep.

AVOCATIONS

But these inventions, however profitable, are only avocations.

Nearly 20 years ago Perry turned his inventive mind to production problems of the newspaper business, which accounts for 26 of the 30 companies he owns.

Today much of the mechanical work on eight of the daily papers is done automatically and controlled by a single computer.

★ ★ ★

"In the not too distant future," Perry predicts, "the job of a printer will be as obsolete as that of an elevator operator."

NOT INSENSITIVE

Perry is not insensitive to the problems automation has thrust upon American society. Quite the contrary.

"We are on the verge of a technological revolution," says the automation pioneer. "Those responsible for the free enterprise system ought to be willing to make a bold more to preserve it."

Perry is willing, and has the plan.

★ ★ ★

He calls it "The National Dividend," and a year ago last October took a month off from work, went to Madrid, and wrote a book about it with that title. In general outline, the plan is this:

The federal government would tax corporations up to a maximum of 50 per cent, and would not tax as personal income any dividends corporations pay individuals.

The corporate taxes would then be distributed equally to every person who votes in national elections. This income would be tax free.

"What it would do would be to communize capitalism," he said in an interview during a recent business trip to New York. In his book he called it "democratization of capitalism."

He feels the result of his plan would be elimination of all welfare functions of government. Money would go to citizens directly "without any of it being diluted and sidetracked by some bureau."

SHAREHOLDER

Moreover, being a "shareholder in government," as Perry describes it, every citizen would be encouraged not only to vote in order to get a dividend, but vote for those who would operate the government with the most efficiency.

Adoption of his plan, Perry writes, "would transform the nature of American politics to the point where the demagogues would be replaced by the more able business leaders of our country who are experienced in world trade, mass production, low cost and the creation of the nation's real wealth."

Figuring from recent corporate tax statistics Perry calculates that within 10 years every voter would be receiving about $3,000 a year under his national dividend plan. The payments would reach each person quarterly.

★ ★ ★

Businessman Perry is not disturbed over the idea of some of the citizenry getting something for nothing, or rather merely for voting.

TO RAISE STANDARD

"I just can't see how people can sit around and do nothing," he says. He believes his plan would raise each person's standards of health and well being, and thus their initiative to better themselves even more.

As for those on the other end of the economic scale, Perry believes an end to government controls and high taxes would stimulate them to more productivity which in turn would boost the economy.

I say let every man get as rich as he can, raise the inheritance tax, and when he dies scoop up all that wealth and distribute it in the national dividend."

SUMMING UP

In sum, Perry says the basic theory and purpose of the national dividend is three-fold:

"1 — To increase incentive so that money owners will risk their capital on constructive, profit - promising ventures, thereby increasing the national income;

"2 — To distribute half of this money among all the voters, thereby increasing their individual security;

"3 — To enable industry to the economic freedom necessary to achieve more profits to distribute to stockholder and voter, and thus increase the real purchasing power of the people in addition to their yearly national dividend.

GOVERNING THEMSELVES

"When the people can go back to governing themselves without the inefficiencies and waste of the bureaucratic state," says Perry, "then there will be little or no need for the hundreds of thousands of hidden miscellaneous taxes that create inflation."

Perry is a product of Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Conn., and a 1939 graduate of Yale. He then attended the London school of economics and Harvard business school.

★ ★ ★

Later, in 1943, he was in the Air Transport Command, and "ferrying planes all over the world gave me lots of time to think things over." He wrote down the broad outlines of his plan but put off working it out in fine detail until 1963.

GIVE HIS LIFE

He says, in utter sincerity, that he would give his life to put his plan over.

★ ★ ★

"If we will limit the power to tax beyond the point of excessiveness," he writes, "and give to the voter a cash bonus to restore his economic freedom — a bonus which comes out of earnings instead of some source which further increases the cost of living — then we will be approaching a scientific solution to the foremost problem in the country."

Says Greek Leader Soft on Communism

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Premier George Papandreou's moderate center union government is under fire from the rightist opposition, which accuses the government of being too soft on communism.

Panayiotis Canellopoulos, head of the rightist National Radical Union party, has charged that Communists have infiltrated the army and schools and are using propaganda to sway the country's youth to its cause.

Papandreou, 77, says if Communists continue to exist in Greece, it is because of the "former rightist government's dictatorial policies."

Eighteen years ago, the Communists fought an unsuccessful civil war in an attempt to gain power. Their leaders were jailed or went into exile and the Communist party was outlawed. Its role seems to have been taken over by the United Democratic party.

MORE TOLERANCE

Papandreou has appointed a leftist and a left-wing Socialist to his Cabinet and has shown more tolerance toward leftists than other governments since the civil war.

"In a democracy, only unlawful acts are prosecuted," he says.

But Greek and U.S. officials in underdeveloped northern Greece are concerned about the spread of the Lambrakis Youth Club, which has been disseminating Communist propaganda.

The club, with an estimated 30,000 members, "apparently has plenty of money to spend," says a Greek official. It is named for Gregory Lambrakis, a United Democratic party deputy who was killed 19 months ago after a leftist rally.

Most of the club members come from impoverished villages and the club offers them, among other things weekend trips to the cities. These frequently feature Red propaganda.

Papandreou has started a club called "the Democratic Youth" to counter influence of the Lambrakis club.

Greek shipping circles have expressed concern that the Communists are trying to infiltrate shipping unions.

Special Days in State Proclaimed by Romney

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney has proclaimed March 18-20 as Freedom of Residence Days in Michigan to underline the right of all citizens to reside in the neighborhood of their choice. He also proclaimed March 28 as Child's Day for Youth Aliyah to salute the organization devoted to the resettlement of uprooted Jewish children.

Double Feature in Small Car Flips

He found a small sports car turned over alongside a country road with the driver, Don Brow 21, of the Whitehouse community, unhurt.

Brown said he had swerved the diminutive vehicle to miss hitting a car and turned over. The patrolman drove Brown home.

At 7:50 o'clock the same night, Miller got another call and found a compact car upside down on another rural road.

Beside it was Brown, who said he had flipped his sister's car to avoid an accident. Brown, unhurt a second time, was again taken home by the patrolman.

Rival Camps at Meeting

Congo Divides Africa

AP SPECIAL REPORT

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Congo problem which has plagued this continent since 1960 now has cleaved Africa's independent nations into rival camps.

Premier Moise Tshombe, key figure in the acid controversy, emerged from the Organization of African Unity's (OAU) meeting of foreign ministers in Nairobi with a diplomatic victory.

Although his request for an all-African peace - keeping force to replace his white mercenaries failed to get the 18 votes needed for approval, it won the backing of 15 nations.

And Tshombe, denounced by many African leaders as an imperialist stooge, came out of the meeting unscathed by any resolution critical of his policies.

★ ★ ★

It was the organization which suffered defeat. The OAU, born two years ago with high-flown pledges of pan-African solidarity now appears paralyzed by disunity.

5 BITTER DAYS

The conference, which spent five bitter days last week discussing the Congo, failed to reach any policy decision, passing the buck to Africa's heads of state meeting in Accra, Ghana, Sept. 1.

All it could do was issue a lame appeal to member governments and other unnamed powers to refrain from any actions which might aggravate the situation.

As the row dragged on in Nairobi's flag-bedecked city hall, the conference split into opposing and almost numerically equal groups.

In the pro - Tshombe camp were most of the French-speaking states, plus Nigeria, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

IN OPPOSITION

In the other, Ghana, Tanzania, Algeria, the United Arab Republic and Uganda opposed Tshombe.

Resolutions condemning South Africa for its policy of apartheid and Portugal for hanging on to its African colonies went through with barely a hitch.

The split became apparent as soon as delegates got down to the thorny Congo question.

BITTER CLASH

The two men later clashed violently on the conference floor, with Tshombe at one stage demanding of Chairman Joseph Murumbi, foreign minister of Kenya, that he "silence this demagogue."

Sudan threw down the first challenge. It proposed that Congo rebel leader Christophe Gbenye be given a hearing at the conference.

Tshombe "violently" opposed this idea and it failed to get the necessary majority approval.

Ranged against Tshombe were Algeria, Burundi, the Congo Republic (Brazzaville), Ghana, Guinea, Kenya, Mali, Somalia, Sudan, Uganda, the United Arab Republic, Tanzania and Zambia, short of a majority.

VOTE BACKERS

Voting with the Congo to exclude the rebels were Cameroon, Liberia, Madagascar, Nigeria, Senegal and Togo. They were to prove the hard core of Tshombe's backers. The others abstained and it was round one to Tshombe.

In a bid to hide the widening split, Murumbi imposed an information blackout. Delegates continued to leak information to the press, however, and the blackout failed to conceal the increasingly bitter tenor of the debate.

Tanzania and Ghana tried to drum up support for a move to withdraw recognition of Tshombe's government if it refused to abide by the conference decisions. They failed.

★ ★ ★

Senegal Foreign Minister Doudou Thaian was the first to refer directly to the split. He said there are today two Africas — that of the revolutionaries and that of the moderates.

TWO RESOLUTIONS

On the final day of the conference, delegates had two resolutions before them. One, by Cameroon, would have given Tshombe African troops to replace mercenaries.

The other, by Ethiopia and Tunisia, proposed a general amnesty for Congolese rebels and free elections supervised by the OAU. It made no mention of a peace-keeping force.

Neither could get the support of the necessary 18 nations and the conference broke up in deadlock.

At the opening session, Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta had urged delegates to find a "speedy and peaceful solution" to the Congo problem, which he described as one of the most challenging facing Africa today.

The OAU foreign ministers failed to meet the challenge.

But for Tshombe, as he told a news conference later, the OAU council of ministers meeting showed the Congo had "sure and solid friends."

200 Pennies Amount to $9

MADISON (AP)—Franklin Kashner, University of Wisconsin student, was given a ticket for jaywalking, which calls for a $2 penalty. He crammed 200 pennies into the envelope-type ticket and mailed the ticket to the police. The cops had to pay 95 cents postage due — and got a warrant for Kashner.

In traffic court, Judge William Buenzli gave Kashner his 200 pennies, then ordered him to pay $4 for processing the warrant, $3 for court costs and $2 in paper money for the original assessment.

Time Element 'Lost' at Vatican Library

ROME (NEA) — The Vatican Library, founded around 1450, is probably the only library in the world where if you ask for a book, they will hand you a parchment scroll.

It is also probably the only library where ball - point pens are forbidden. The ball - point might accidentally fall on a scroll and damage it.

Ball-point pens aren't the only useful objects the Vatican Library frowns on. There are plastics, for example.

"We were going to use plastic laminations to preserve some of our ancient manuscripts that are falling to pieces," explains Father Guy Ferrari, an American who is in charge of the Vatican museums. "And then the thought struck us, how long will the plastic last? After all, the plastics industry is only about 20 years old, whereas we have to think in terms of centuries."

Thinking in terms of centuries is second nature to Father Ferrari, a Benedictine monk from Fort Smith, Ark. Right now Father Ferrari, with four assistants, is engaged in making an inventory of all the Vatican miniatures, the beautiful illustrations with which manuscripts are illuminated.

"We figure that this work will take 100 years at least," he says nonchalantly.

The Benedictine showed me the laboratories where crumbling manuscripts are being restored. "The first thing we do is try to stop the rot. Then we build up the damaged page by adding bits of parchment, or sometimes very thin gauze."

A useful rule in dealing with Father Ferrari's department would be: If you are going to try to palm off a fake, make sure that it is a good one.

Here's a helpful rule for monarchs with an eye to Vatican history: If you are tempted to put it in writing, don't — otherwise your love letters may end up on display in the Vatican Library.

This happened to Henry VIII. The Vatican has 16 of the love letters which Henry penned to Anne Boleyn, some in old English, some in French.

Other Vatican Library treasures on display are the autographs of Martin Luther, Galileo, Savonarola and Thomas Aquinas. Pride of place goes to Codex Vaticanus B, which is the world's oldest copy of the Bible written in Greek.

It is not clear what would happen to a reader who pulled out a ball-point pen in the Vatican Library.

School's New Room Is Big on Facilities

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — The Spantanburg Herald had a little explaining to do after it ran a story about a new bandroom at Union High for the school band.

★ ★ ★

Because of a slight typographical error, the original newspaper report read:

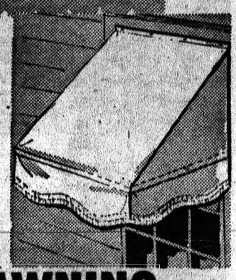

★ ★ ★

"The band will have a new BATHROOM this year, school officials said Wednesday. The room has been doubled in size and is air-conditioned and has concert-type platforms in order that each member can see the conductor."

Stamp Collectors Like Pedal Bins

LONDON (AP) — British housewives redeemed approximately four billion pink stamps during 1964 and acquired more than two million merchandise items.

★ ★ ★

One of the most favored articles was a kitchen pedal bin, better known in the U.S. as a step-on garbage can.

Other fast - moving articles were casseroles, fish fryers, mops and bathroom scales.

The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, distributors of green stamps in the United States, introduced pink stamps in the United Kingdom in October 1963.

Job That Never Seems Done

LISBON (AP) — When you're on a job that never seems to get done in Portugal you say "It's like the building of Santa Engracia."

The church of Santa Engracia, dominating Lisbon from one of the city's seven hills, still isn't finished after more than 300 years.

As the story goes, a church stood on the spot in the last part of the 16th Century. One night its sacristy was burgled and all the ecclesiastical treasures taken.

The church was pronounced defiled, and it was decided to build another and grander one.

When he was executed it is said that his dying words were "As surely as I die innocent, will the building of Santa Engracia never be achieved."

On her death, the ghost of the nun was said to have taken up residence in the unfinished church, whose building had already begun. Indeed, the cupola collapsed before the church could be finished.

★ ★ ★

Another church was begun, but the builders worked with little enthusiasm, for the legend of the nun frightened them, and its "modern" architecture seemed to them too daring.

EARTHQUAKE

The next disaster was caused by the earthquake of 1775, in which the church suffered serious damage, only the walls remaining standing.

Work began again — with even less conviction on the part of the workmen. Rich marble columns appeared and intricate carvings. But the

In 1835 the war ministry took over Santa Engracia Church, first as a guards barracks, then later a munitions depot and boot factory.

On the fall of the monarchy in 1910, the government once more decided to recognize the church as such, and it was listed a national monument.

It was to be finished and used as the national Pantheon. It is still unfinished.

Nevertheless, four years ago the government decided that it shall be finished come what may. Work is going on, and is reportedly nearing conclusion.

Car Plagued by Thieves

UNION, N. J. (AP) — When Gary Knittel's car was found by police, burned and stripped of its motor and transmission, it was the final blow in the series of troubles that plagued the 24-year-old man since he bought the 1964 automobile.

First, the car's four hubcaps were stolen near the Knittel home.

A month later, the vehicle was stolen and recovered by Union police, but the thieves had damaged the transmission. This time, the auto had been taken by thieves from the shop where it had been left for repairs.

Rabbit's Foot Proves Lucky

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP)—George Young Bonner Jr., 19, is convinced that a rabbit's foot he carries in his car really works.

The youth told Trooper W. D. Stephens he attempted to dodge a dog, lost control of his car on wet pavement and hit a bridge railing.

Two angle irons on the railing went completely through the car, passing over the passenger seat and into the trunk.

The auto then veered off the bridge and dropped 15 feet into a creek.

Bonner was pinned under the car but was able to free himself because of soft ground. He escaped with minor lacerations.

Detection, Care Key to Eye Illness Cure

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In observing National Sight Preservation Week, this month, the Grand Rapids Ophthalmology Society discusses some aspects of eye care.)

By ED MARKAITY
Associated Press Writer

GRAND RAPIDS — Glaucoma, cataracts, myopia and ophthalmology are, to the casual eye, among professional terms describing problems or studies in the field of sight.

But to approximately one in every 500 Americans the words no longer are casual.

★ ★ ★

These hard statistics reflect the number of the nation's blind. At least 1.5 million persons suffer blindness in one eye.

More stirring is the word of the medical profession that as much as one-half of all blindness is preventable.

REVIEW PROBLEMS

The Grand Rapids Ophthalmology Society reviewed the problems in marking National Sight Preservation Week, March 7-13, as proclaimed by President Johnson.

The ophthalmologist is a medical doctor who specializes in eye care.

★ ★ ★

Early detection and treatment is the key to warding off loss of sight due to disease, according to Dr. Erwin G. Clahassey, a member of the Grand Rapids group and chairman of the Michigan State Medical Society's ophthalmology section.

Many problems of the eye can be overcome with glasses or medication while others require corrective surgery.

BETTER CONTROL

Advances in medicine and techniques over the past 25 years have provided more effective control of infectious diseases and ecular injuries — two of the major causes of blindness in the young.

Michigan ophthalmologists are almost unanimous in deploring tardy referrals to them of patients with suspected eye problems. They point to a time factor which dictates procedures in treating a number of diseases.

★ ★ ★

A check for presence of glaucoma, the ophthalmologists explain, is simple, quick, painless and must be part of an adequate eye examination.

MAY BE REMOVED

Cataracts, or opacities normally considered another affliction of aging eyes, may be removed surgically if glasses fail to restore useful vision. The medical profession has recorded a 90 per cent success rate in surgical removal of cataracts.

The ophthalmologists note also that examination of the eyes also permits detection of such disorders as sugar diabetes, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure, aiding in better over-all medical care.

★ ★ ★

A serious problem may be indicated in children whose eyes do not work as a team. Parents are advised to investigate as soon as the malfunction is noted.

When an eye turns inward or outward in relation to the other, it may be the result of disease of the eye, nerves or of the brain. It may reflect bacterial infection or even cancer.

STILL DEVELOPING

Early attention could be lifesaving in the case of cancer. It is equally important if only to correct problems while the child's eyes still are developing. Aside from correction of refractive difference with glasses and training measures, surgical correction may be needed to straighten the eyes.

Ophthalmologists agree that their major task is one of fitting patients with proper glasses or contact lenses.

But if diminished vision cannot be improved significantly with glasses, the problem might require surgical attention. Cataracts, for example, may be removed under local or general anaesthesia with the patient returned to his home in five to seven days, soon to regain useful vision.

Normal vision also depends upon the health of the retina which is a thin nerve tissue lining the inside of the eye. Retinal detachment is a condition in which the tissue becomes diseased and falls to the inside of the eye.

Its symptoms include "floating spots" or flashes before the eyes.

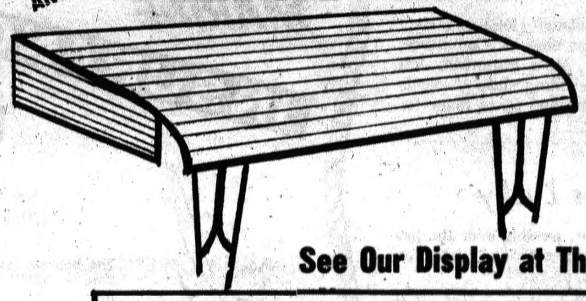

Examination through dilated pupils is required for detection of retinal holes or disease which may lead to detachment.

New surgical techniques such as photocoagulation—a form of welding with light rays — and freezing methods make it possible to treat or prevent retinal detachment. Laser, a high intensity light beam recently developed, and photocoagulation are credited with preventing an estimated 30 per cent of retinal detachments by early application.

Disease of the cornea may "fog" the clear window over the front of the eye enough to prevent light from entering. In such cases, corneal transplant is employed.

Film May Open Door for USIA

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International

The U.S. Information Agency (USIA) is on the brink of a bureaucratic triumph at the expense of good government and the American tradition.

USIA is just about to receive from Congress its first permission to peddle administration propaganda in the United States. USIA is a propaganda agency. It was set up to create abroad a favorable image of the United States. But the law said that USIA should limit its efforts to overseas.

Congress is about to change that law to permit USIA to distribute throughout the United States a sentimental and somewhat controversial movie film entitled: "John F. Kennedy: Years of Lightning, Day of Drums."

This film already has had some domestic exposure, but not before paying theater audiences. That would have been illegal. USIA was much too subtle to try that. On Dec. 28 and Dec. 29 of last year, for example, the film was shown at the National Press Club, Washington, D.C.

★ ★ ★

This and other such noncommercial exposure of the film obtained enormous word-of-mouth publicity. These private screenings caused the word to pass that USIA had come up with a superior documentary.

TO APPROACH CONGRESS

Members of Congress became interested and both houses shortly will be asked to excuse USIA from the prohibitions of the law so that "John F. Kennedy; Years of Lightning, Day of Drums;" may be shown nationwide in commercial theaters with any profits going to the U.S. Treasury. Congress should refuse.

The peoples' sentimental affection for the young martyred president practically assures a booming theater market for the USIA film.

That does not in any way change the fact that the USIA film is a propaganda job. To permit any administration to use a government propaganda agency to reach the American people is against U.S. tradition no matter how high and holy may be the vehicle of propaganda.

★ ★ ★

It is not contended that the Kennedy film itself would do any harm or break up an American tradition.

BAD PRECEDENT

The objection is that domestic distribution of the Kennedy film would establish a bad precedent. A bad precedent is all a practicing bureaucrat needs to open wide the doors to license.

And it should be noted that the record of USIA has been aggressively expansive since its invention by William M. Benton, the one-time Madison Avenue whiz kid, diplomatist and politician in the era of Harry S. Truman's fair deal.

The Johnson Administration and the 89th Congress should not be feeding the American people government manufactured propaganda calling it "The record of the Kennedy presidency."

★ ★ ★

As an honest historical record the film is suspect. As witness, for example, I summon the film review of Washington's Time-Life staff published some weeks ago. It said:

"In the opinion of some Washington observers, including close friends of President Kennedy, the film has been greatly overpraised and its validity as a piece of history is suspect. The selection of subject matter is haphazard and confusing."

Build Up Arsenal

Cong Using Best Arms

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Three years ago a Viet Cong guerrilla was lucky to own an old bolt-action French rifle. Today the same guerrilla probably owns an assortment of the finest jungle weapons made.

The Viet Cong still lack planes, tanks and trucks, but they have come a long way in building up their arsenal.

★ ★ ★

No longer are they a ragged peasant army with castoff and homemade weapons. The Red force fights in uniform and is supplied with the best. Last year the Viet Cong captured 13,700 American weapons from government forces.

But the new Viet Cong arsenal also includes the latest from the factories of Red China and the rest of the Communist bloc.

NEW RIFLE

Among these weapons is a new Soviet-designed assault rifle. This weapon fires a 7.62mm cartridge intermediate in size between those used in heavy U.S. automatic rifles and light carbines. Used more or less as a long-range submachine gun, it is sturdy and reliable. American officers think it is as good or better than similar Western weapons.

A new Chinese Communist antitank rocket launcher is smaller and lighter than the American bazooka but works on much the same principle. It fires a heavy rocket shell capable of piercing 6 to 8 inches of armor and wrecking a bunker or blockhouse.

★ ★ ★

An accessory is a lightweight ammunition pack carrying two rockets and two propellent charges. The whole rig is suspended from a comfortable harness ideal for a guerrilla hiker.

Recoilless 57mm and 75mm cannon are in abundant supply. Their range is limited, but for close-in use they are at least as destructive as pack howitzers. They are easily portable.

MACHINE GUNS

In the past, the guerrillas have relied heavily on Chinese antiaircraft machine guns. Captured American 50-caliber machine guns are now adapted in jungle factories for the same purpose. The Chinese gun can easily bring down helicopters or planes from altitudes of several thousand feet.

Locally made Viet Cong arms have improved enormously from the days when the guerrillas made shotguns out of plumbing pipe.

★ ★ ★

Mines from Viet Cong jungle factories are effective and sophisticated. The quality of the explosives also has improved.

The basic material of the jungle is bamboo, and the Viet Cong has learned to use it in surprising ways.

BAMBOO TORPEDOES

In all the recent guerrilla attacks on outposts in the highlands, for example, the guerrillas have used torpedoes made from a bamboo log, up to 20 feet long. They are loaded with high explosive and reinforced with bamboo straps. When attacking an outpost, the guerrillas explode such devices under the barbed wire defenses. The explosion blasts a corridor through the wire, allowing a platoon or so to charge simultaneously.

Another basic tool is the mortar, sometimes captured from government forces, sometimes infiltrated from North Viet Nam and sometimes made out of steel pipe machined on jungle lathes.

The guerrillas are well-supplied with 60mm mortars, obsolete in the American arsenal, and 81mm and 82mm Communist-made mortars. They also have at least two captured 4.2-inch American heavy mortars, a source of anxiety to American and government forces in the highlands and at strategic Da Nang base. The Communist mortarmen often are excellent marksmen.

The guerrillas are turning out a variety of special weapons. Government authorities seized several dummy fountain pens last week near Can Tho, in the Mekong River Delta. The pens were loaded with nitroglycerine with ingenious fuses.

★ ★ ★

Intelligence reports indicated about 150 of these pens have been issued to Viet Cong agents in the delta.

He Really Was Nailed on a Burglary Charge

A passerby yesterday heard a man yelling for help from the roof of a cocktail bar. Three policemen climbed the roof and found Gately wedged firmly three feet down in a vent, impaled on nails with his feet and legs dangling inside the bar.

PHILADELPHIA (NEA) — A new fad is going down the drain at the nation's institutions of higher learning.

No one is sure why it started — perhaps because of public derision of unwashed college students — but for today's undergraduate happiness is a 24-hour shower.

As nearly as anyone can tell, it all started when Steven Sher of American International College in Springfield, Mass., took a 15-hour, 41-minute dousing and proclaimed himself the man who took the world's longest shower bath.

No institution that prided itself as a citadel of academic excellence could let such a challenge pass.

Within a day the faucet was grabbed by Bob Pemberton of the University of Kentucky, who spent 16 hours washing himself to bring the title to Lexington.

DIDN'T STAY

It didn't stay there long, or so it appeared.

A Yale University law student reportedly took an 18-hour sprinkling for the glory of the Eli.

This turned out to be a hoax, the ultimate proof that a new fad had arrived.

The University of Kentucky swallowed the Ivy League story, anyway.

2,000 GALLONS

Into the storm leaped Larry Kenham, an 18-year-old freshman. In 24 hours, nearly 2,000 gallons of water were estimated to have poured over his hide.

University officials, nervously eyeing the water meter, were hard put to explain the new phenomenon.

Apparently most were quietly hoping that it would go the way of goldfish swallowing, bed pushing and telephone booth packing.

It well might. As Kenham was emerging from his ordeal, Garry Boggs, another Kentucky freshman, brushed his teeth for 10½ hours to establish a world's mark.

And a cartel of students at the University of Colorado played a pinball machine for over 6 hours on one nickel, winning 245 games and racking up over 300,000 points.

But for Kentucky, it was too good to last.

Just as a university official was saying that if the fad continues "we might have to establish some regulations" a stunned nation learned that a sophomore at Berkeley had brought the record to the University of California with a drenching that lasted 33 hours, 33 minutes and 33 seconds!

The new world's champion said that he did not feel that he had unjustly deprived the university of its water pressure, since he rarely takes showers normally. "They must owe me at least 33 hours' worth," he said.

But even the University of California's students, who do not give up easily once they set out to get something, could not hope to hold the title indefinitely.

As Berkeley's new hero was carried from the shower on the shoulders of his jubilant comrades, his record was being scrubbed by Mark Goldman of the University of Illinois, whose 50-hour shower has won him a degree of immortality among the Fighting Illini.

Stop-and-Go College?

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Advice from the president of Yale University on how to digest an education?

Take smaller bites.

★ ★ ★

Several times since he took office last October as the 17th president of Yale, Kingman Brewster Jr. has hinted that he would like to do something about the treadmill aspect of acquiring an education.

"I think there ought to be more landings and detours along this escalator of academic achievement," he said in a recent interview.

NONSTOP PROCESS

What bothers Brewster is that formal education has become, for many young Americans, a nonstop process that goes on for 20 years. Small wonder some of the participants get a little weary along the way.

Brewster said he feels it might be sensible to "build in some discontinuity."

★ ★ ★

One way, he said, would be to make the conventional four-year program leading to a bachelor of arts degree five years instead. The student could have a year along the way to take a break if so inclined.

★ ★ ★

Another approach would be for students, immediately after completing high school or prep school, to spend one year in some worthwhile nonacademic activity.

"I think there's a kind of blind conformity to the expectation that you must go straight from school to college," Brewster said.

Brewster does not intend that young men should defer starting college just to spend a year lying on a beach. He wants this year off to be invested in stretching the mind.

★ ★ ★

"It could be a job," he said, "it could be travel, it could be domestic Peace Corps work."

★ ★ ★

So far, Brewster has not altered the undergraduate program at Yale to test his theories. The university still is what it was when Brewster, then 44, succeeded the late A. Whitney Griswold as president.

★ ★ ★

More and more, he said, a university depends on "external forces" such as public opinion, government and alumni. On the campus itself student and faculty morale must be nurtured.

★ ★ ★

In one particular area — government support of research — he feels the university has a special responsibility to protect independence of thought.

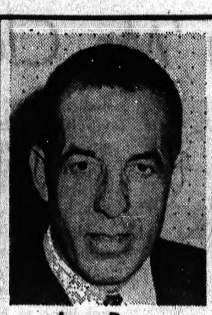

GRANT RESEARCH

Brewster noted in his first annual report that it is easy for research effort to concentrate in those fields where the work is underwritten by government grants.

In Brewster's view, there is a danger that men will decide which areas of inquiry to enter on the basis of whether government research funds are available. To keep the proper balance, he said, the university must work hard to provide private funds for research that would otherwise be neglected.

★ ★ ★

"Unless and until we do something to countervail the personal financial advantage which goes to those who qualify for government research support," he said, "it is foolish to pretend that research and career choices are a genuine and uncorrupted response to voluntary intellectual enthusiasm. If the market is rigged, choice will not be free."

Russia Future Key to De Gaulle Plan

By LEON DENNEN
Newspaper Enterprise Analyst

WASHINGTON — (NEA) NATO's nuclear fleet (MLF), the Common Market and the Western alliance itself are menaced by the intangible power of French President Charles de Gaulle, the last survivor of the men who led the victorious war against Hitler.

Winston Churchill, President Roosevelt and Stalin are now subjects for historians. But de Gaulle, 74, is still making history.

He is expected to run next autumn in France's first presidential election by universal sufferage since 1848.

He will undoubtedly win another seven-year term as president.

Many words (and much nonsense) have already been written about de Gaulle's master plan for a settlement with Russia and the creation of a united Europe reaching from the "Atlantic to the Ural Mountains."

'GRAND DESIGN'

The fact is that few Western statesmen seem to comprehend how he hopes to achieve his "grand design."

His recent statements, although ambiguous as usual, provide a few clues.

Thus they deserve serious consideration, especially by President Johnson, who is himself in search of a realistic foreign policy.

★ ★ ★

SOONER OR LATER

He believes that under the threat of Red China the Russians will be forced sooner or later to "rejoin the European family."

This may be only a Gaullist illusion. But the French president is at once a diplomatic conservative and a radical.

He is a man of the 19th century who, ignoring the 20th wants to rush headlong into the 21st century.

How else is one to explain his favorite formula of a Europe "from the Atlantic to the Urals?"

Does de Gaulle already visualize a time when the Red Chinese would push the Russians behind the Ural mountains, conquering all of Siberia and Soviet central Asia?

Tax Vote Turnout 'Good'

The fate of a proposed city income tax was being decided by Pontiac voters today.

Early reports from polling places indicated a "good" turnout, according to City Clerk Olga Barkeley.

The proposition facing voters ask for authorization to levy a 1 per cent tax on the income of residents, corporations and businesses in Pontiac and a half per cent on income of nonresidents earned in the city.

Acting under state law, the city commission approved the income tax last October. Citizens then petitioned for a referendum election before the tax was to have gone into effect Jan. 1, thus forcing a public vote on the issue.

★ ★ ★

The city commission has promised to reduce property taxes by 3 mills if the proposal is accepted.

$1 MILLION

City officials have estimated the income tax would provide $1 million in new revenue annually.

On Tuesday, voters in Jackson and Muskegon turned down similar income tax proposals by 3 to 1 margins.

Cities that already have income taxes include Detroit, Saginaw and Flint.

With 33,489 registered voters in the city, Mrs. Barkeley said a turnout of one-third would be considered large.

12,236 VOTERS

The city clerk said 127 absentee ballots were requested for that election and that she had issued 103 such ballots for today's vote.

Polling places in Pontiac's 43 precincts opened at 7 a.m. and will remain open until 8 p.m.

Anyone in line at 8 p.m. will be able to vote, Mrs. Barkeley said.

OPPOSITION

Several organizations and area governmental units have come out against the proposed tax, the most vocal being a self-appointed Citizens Committee on Taxation, headed by Charles Nasstrom.

In favor of the proposal is the Citizens Committee for Tax Reform, with Joe G. Benson as chairman.

Nasstrom's group opposes the income tax on the grounds that a state level income tax with property tax relief and a rebate to cities would be more equitable and feasible.

Proponents say the tax will provide funds to improve city services and provide adequate salaries for city employes, and offer considerable tax relief to senior citizens living on low incomes.

Judge Permits 50-Mile March

Selma - Montgomery OK Pleases King

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Civil rights workers were heartened today by a federal judge's sanction of a 50-mile march from Selma to Montgomery and by establishment of ground rules for parades and demonstrations in the Alabama capital.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. rejoiced over the court order requiring State Police to protect demonstrators instead of interfering with them. He promised a decision during the day on when the pilgrimage will start.

"We look forward to seeing the governor comply with the court order," said King.

The Negro integration leader also said he hoped Gov. George C. Wallace would "see a delegation of people from all over the state when we arrive in Montgomery" at the end of the march. Wallace did not comment.

King and other civil rights leaders joined Montgomery city and county representatives in signing an agreement declaring that "parade permits for peaceful demonstrations should be applied for and granted."

PLAN MARCH

While that meeting was in progress, Willie Ricks, a Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee field worker told a church gathering that 2,000 Tuskegee Institute students planned a march in Montgomery today "to call on George Wallace."

In another development, Selma police arrested 36 white ministers — two of them women — as they approached Mayor Joseph T. Smitherman's house with picket signs.

They headed toward the mayor's red brick house after marching on the Dallas County courthouse with about 700 others parading without a permit and bond set at $200 each.

Profs Cancel U-M Protest

Won't Close Classes Over Viet Nam Policy

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A group of University of Michigan professors today backed down on its plan to cancel classes for one day to protest United States policies in Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

The 46 protesting teachers had planned to suspend their classes March 24, but after a more than eight-hour meeting which ended early today they decided not to go ahead with the plan.

"We find that our intended action has turned attention to issues irrelevant to our deepest concern. We find this among many whom we respect and whose affiliation we desire. We have decided to suspend the moratorium and start again with an action which makes our concern completely clear."

★ ★ ★

He said the moratorium would be replaced on March 24 with an 8 p.m. to midnight "educational conference" and an all-night vigil from midnight to 8 a.m. which he called a "teach-in."

UNANIMOUS VOTE

A spokesman for the group said the statement was agreed to unanimously and that the entire group intended to abide by it.

★ ★ ★

Earlier, the group had said it would ask permission for a one-day leave of absence without pay to stage the protest. It had said it would hold the protest whether or not the request was granted.

★ ★ ★

House Approves Waterford Twp. Hatchery Sale

Sale of the 82-acre former fish hatchery site in Waterford Township was approved yesterday in the State Legislature.

Senate Bill No. 50, relating to the sale of the state-owned Drayton Plains Fish Hatchery to a private group for nature studies, was passed by the House of Representatives.

It will go immediately to Gov. Romney for signing, according to Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, who introduced the bill.

Astronauts in Dress Rehearsal

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A second full-dress rehearsal for America's first attempt to put two men into earth orbit faces astronauts Virgil Grissom and John Young here today.

This time the astronauts will go through the motions of their scheduled March 23 launching with two Soviet cosmonauts overhead, zipping around the earth every 90 minutes in the spaceship Voskhod-2.

Grissom and Young are scheduled to make three earth orbits in the capsule next Tuesday, the first of three manned Gemini flights slated this year.

Unlike any previous space feat by the United States or Russia, Grissom, the flight commander, is to maneuver the capsule himself for all but 20 minutes of the four-hour, 52-minute flight.

★ ★ ★

Other astronauts have controlled only the attitude of their ships in flight.

SHIFT ORBIT

Grissom will shift the orbit of his spacecraft four times, a step which is considered to be a major advance in the sophistication of U.S. space hardware.

The two astronauts went through the initial dry run last week, completing each of their actual launch-day assignments to within one minute of the make-believe blastoff.

Minor technical problems delayed this exercise two and one-half hours.

★ ★ ★

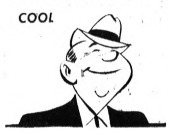

Today's test is to be much like the first, except that the astronauts will be subjected to a simulated catastrophe on the launching pad to test their readiness to eject themselves from the spacecraft.

And there will be a second simulated emergency in the failure of the guidance system controlling the Titan-2 rocket.

Cold Temperatures to Linger Awhile

Cold temperatures blew in today on gusts of 15 to 35 miles an hour, winds coming from the west.

Partial clearing of skies is expected tonight with the winds diminishing to 10 to 20 miles an hour. The low will be in the 18 to 24 range.

★ ★ ★

Tomorrow and Saturday will see partly cloudy skies with continued cold temperatures. The high forecast for tomorrow is 28 to 34.

Twenty-five was the low mercury reading prior to 8 a.m. today. The thermometer read 28 at 1 p.m. in downtown Pontiac.

KING FAROUK

Former Ruler of Egypt Dies

Fun-Loving Playboy Collapses in Rome

ROME (AP) — Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, the fat, fun-loving playboy exiled by military revolution in 1952, collapsed in a Rome restaurant early today and died on the way to a hospital. He was 45.

★ ★ ★

A doctor tried to stimulate Farouk's failing heart with injections and oxygen, but he died as the ambulance pulled up at the gate of Rome's San Camillo Hospital.

He had been one of the more colorful kings of modern times, a lusty bon vivant who spent fortunes on pleasure when he wore the crown in a land of poverty.

The revolution that threw him out after 15 years eventually brought Gamel Abdel Nasser to power. Farouk left Egypt aboard the white and gilt royal yacht "Mahroussa," but he had to return it to the revolutionary government.

★ ★ ★

Farouk was dining after midnight with a woman at a plush French restaurant on the edge of Rome. He had just finished a rich meal of oysters, roast lamb, cake and fruit when he pitched forward on the table.

CARRIED PISTOL

At the hospital attendants found on his person a 6.35mm Italian automatic pistol and a pair of the dark sunglasses that he habitually wore. On his finger was a gold wedding ring

New Red Shot Is Highest for Manned Flight

Ten Minutes Spent Outside Craft; May Be Moon-Trip Test

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet rocket hurled two cosmonauts today into man's highest orbit and one of them spent 10 minutes outside the spaceship.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said he was "in condition of outer space" for 20 minutes, "including 10 minutes outside the ship." This indicated he spent 10 minutes in an airless chamber attached to the pressurized main cabin before going outside.

There were indications that the new space venture was intended as another step toward a trip to the moon by experimenting with the techniques needed to join spaceships together.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, 30, copilot of the spaceship called Voskhod 2, went 16 feet from the space capsule. He appeared to be attached to the ship by a lifeline.

Soviet television stations showed a film of Leonov floating outside the spaceship, with the curve of the earth and the blackness of space visible in the background.

20 MINUTE STAY

Tass said Leonov spent about 20 minutes inspecting the surface of the ship, taking pictures with his camera, and conducting visual observations of the earth and outer space.

Leonov wore what was described as a special "autonomous life-support suit." On television, the suit appeared bulky. The helmet was heavy. What appeared to be oxygen containers were strapped to his back.

The 30-year-old cosmonaut did somersaults in space and floated in a loose, relaxed manner in the weightlessness, Tass said.

Tass said the venture into space—the first time man has trusted himself outside the protective shell of his space ship—came at the end of the first orbit.

SAFELY RETURNED

Leonov "successfully carried out the range of prescribed studies and observations and safely returned to the ship, Leonov felt well."

The operation outside the spacecraft was transmitted to the earth by the ship's television system, Tass reported.

With Leonov was Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, flight commander. Tass said a powerful rocket sent them into orbit at 10 a.m. Moscow time.

The orbit was described as ranging from 107.5 miles to 307.5 miles above the earth. The previous high for man was the 254 miles reached by the three cosmonauts in Voskhod 1.

The blastoff came five days

Research Plant Planned in Area

Plans have been announced by a major computer systems manufacturer to build a $1-million research and development plant in Avon Township, adjacent to the Village of Rochester.

The announcement was made at a press conference by Robert C. Hall, president of Holley Computer Products Co., a division of Control Dalta Corp. of Minneapolis, Minn.

Plans call for the immediate construction of a 60,000-square-foot plant on nearly 13 acres north of the village limits bounded by Rochester Road on the west and Tienken on the north.

The stage was set for construction of the new unit last night as the Avon Township zoning board approved changing the classification of the property from general farming to light industrial.

★ ★ ★

The rezoning request will next be considered Tuesday night by the Regional Planning Commission, and then go to the Avon Township Board for final action Wednesday evening.

LOADING ENTRANCE

Hall outlined expansion programs for the facility, which is expected to grow to 160,000 square feet eventually, with two additions to the initial plant.

Hall said the plant will be used by the Peripheral Equipment Group of Holley Computer Products, now located in cramped quarters in Warren.

The basic activity will be re-

Trappers' Luck Tied to Weather

LANSING (AP) —The whims of the weather during the next week will have a telling effect on the success of the beaver and other trapping seasons in Michigan this year.

The season opens March 20 in the Lower Peninsula and April 3 above the straits.

Fur prices are expected to be slightly higher than last year. A good beaver pelt now is going for about $18 to $20. This is far from the price of up to $60 for a prime pelt 12 to 15 years ago.

Prime otter pelts now are worth more than beavers, fetching as much as $25 or $26.

Trappers are expected to take a slightly better harvest this spring in the Upper Peninsula and a more modest take than last year in the Lower Peninsula.

Above the straits, regulations are slightly more liberal than last year because of increased beaver numbers. Several large areas in Menominee, Marquette and Mackinac Counties have been reopened to trapping.

SIDE BENEFITS

Trapping regulations in the Lower Peninsula are slightly more restrictive this year, not only to conserve the beavers but in recognition of their value as creaters of habitat for waterfowl and the side benefit of water conservation from beaver dams.

Beaver trapping has been closed in Presque Isle County and in parts of Montmorency, Alpena, Wexford, Missaukee and Roscommon Counties for these reasons.

★ ★ ★

A liberal bag limit of eight beavers will be allowed, however, in the southern counties of Barry, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph, Huron, Tuscola, Sanilac and Lapeer to keep the animals from overrunning farm lands, where they would be a nuisance.

On the southwest side of the northern Lower Peninsula a recent restriction against taking otter will be lifted but a bag limit of one will be in effect.

Otter again will be off limits in Southern Michigan.

Warm Reception for 'Eskimo'

Another squirming bundle was discovered sleeping behind a footstool. The third was carried to the living room from another part of the house.

★ ★ ★

While all this was going on a dog about the size of a springer spaniel was shuttled from one bundle of white to the other, occasionally barking, acting worried like any good mother.

Only she isn't a spaniel — there's no other resemblance except in size. This snow white dog carries the name American Eskimo.

Fluff, as she is called, and her trio of three-week-old youngsters are owned by Mr. and Mrs. James R. McCoy, 5550 Park, West Bloomfield Township.

"As far as we know," said McCoy, a school teacher who is currently on leave from the Pontiac system while taking graduate courses at the University of Michigan, "we have the only American Eskimo dogs in this part of Michigan.

While two-year-old son Billy played with the pups, McCoy explained:

"The others are at Mount Pleasant where we obtained Fluff and at Alvordton, Ohio, just across the state line south of Jackson."

SMALLER BREED

The American Eskimo is a smaller, more whiter version of the Eskimo breed recognized by the American Kennel Club. The American stands 15 inches at the shoulder, about seven inches smaller than the Eskimo breed of dogsled fame and is not as heavy.

★ ★ ★

Although its pedigree is questioned by the staid AKC, the dog is "highly intelligent, a good family pet and is becoming more popular," according to McCoy.

"The size and color have been bred into the dog," said McCoy. "They are easily trained. Fluff's grandfather was with Ringling Bros. circus."

The McCoys came across Fluff at the farm of some friends near Mount Pleasant where they both taught school after coming to Michigan. Mrs. McCoy, a native of Illinois, teaches at Alcott school.

"Fluff joined the family in 1960 and we came to Pontiac in 1961," said McCoy.

Mrs. V.T. Stout of Avordton, Ohio, is mainly responsible for the increasing popularity of the American Eskimo in the midwest, McCoy pointed out.

"She started with one litter of pups and the demand became so great that she now operates Mello-O-Bark Kenels."

Fluff does have a registered name. It's Princess Snow Fluff. The registration is with the United Kennel Club of Kalamazoo.

"I placed an ad in the classified section of The Pontiac Press and the first day we sold two of the pups," said McCou.

"We plan to keep the remaining one."

CHARLES E. MOHR

Audubon Program April 1

The Pontiac Audubon Club's annual Screen Tour April 1 will feature "The Living Wilderness."

Charles E. Mohr, director of the Kalamazoo Nature Center, will present the film at Lincoln Junior High School at 8 p. m.

He is a former director of the National Audubon Society's educational center in Greenwich, Conn.

Mohr is active in the movement to save natural areas in this country and his film will depict these areas.

Tickets are available from PAC members and also will be sold at the door.

Ice on Lakes Not Too Safe

Removal of Shanties Urged by Officials

Ice on area lakes is beginning to deteriorate and Conservation Department officials warn that shanties should be removed.

Most of the shanties were pulled when pike spearing ended Feb. 28. But a few remain. Shanties that break through must be removed or the owners could face prosecution.

Fishing pressure has been very light.

Some perch and bluegills are being taken on Elizabeth, Oxbow and Square lakes. Bluegills continue to hit on Stringy and Lake Louise.

Perch are running small on Anchor Bay, but good catches of crappies are reported. The ice on Anchor Bay is all right during the morning. In the afternoon it becomes treacherous.

State Seeking Outdoor Fund

LANSING (AP)—Sens. Thomas Schweigert and Garland Lane sought to put Michigan on the track of $2.5 million in federal outdoor funds today.

The Petoskey Republican and Flint Democrat were to introduce legislation which would qualify Michigan for programs of federal aid relating to the planning and development of outdoor recreation resources and facilities.

A state must have an approved comprehensive outdoor recreation program to qualify for the matching fund program.

3 Quality Trout Fishing Areas on State Schedule

Three new quality trout fishing areas, covering about 21 miles on the Escanaba and Little Manistee rivers of northern Michigan, are to be established under special regulations by Conservation Director Ralph A. MacMullan.

The areas will be designated to provide a premium brand of fishing through more protective controls which go into effect with the start of the 1965 trout season, April 24.

Putting emphasis on quality instead of quantity, the regulations limit fishing to artificial lures.

Special areas of the two rivers will have a minimum 10-inch size limit, three inches above the statewide restriction, and a creel limit of 10 trout per day.

Established as a special trout area in Delta County will be a 6.8-mile section of the Escanaba River downstream from the Boney Falls Dam to the County Highway 519 bridge.

Coming under quality controls on the Little Manistee River will be a 7-mile stretch from Spencer Bridge to Johnson's Bridge in Lake County, and a 6-9-mile stretch from the west boundary of the U.S. Forest Service Bear Track Campground, Lake County, to Nine Mile Bridge, Manistee County.

Tax Vote Turnout 'Good'

The fate of a proposed city income tax was being decided by Pontiac voters today.

Early reports from polling places indicated a "good" turnout, according to City Clerk Olga Barkeley.

The proposition facing voters ask for authorization to levy a 1 per cent tax on the income of residents, corporations and businesses in Pontiac and a half per cent on income of nonresidents earned in the city.

Acting under state law, the city commission approved the income tax last October. Citizens then petitioned for a referendum election before the tax was to have gone into effect Jan. 1, thus forcing a public vote on the issue.

★ ★ ★

The city commission has promised to reduce property taxes by 3 mills if the proposal is accepted.

$1 MILLION

City officials have estimated the income tax would provide $1 million in new revenue annually.

On Tuesday, voters in Jackson and Muskegon turned down similar income tax proposals by 3 to 1 margins.

Cities that already have income taxes include Detroit, Saginaw and Flint.

With 33,489 registered voters in the city, Mrs. Barkeley said a turnout of one-third would be considered large.

12,236 VOTERS

The city clerk said 127 absentee ballots were requested for that election and that she had issued 103 such ballots for today's vote.

Polling places in Pontiac's 43 precincts opened at 7 a.m. and will remain open until 8 p.m. Anyone in line at 8 p.m. will be able to vote, Mrs. Barkeley said.

OPPOSITION

Several organizations and area governmental units have come out against the proposed tax, the most vocal being a self-appointed Citizens Committee on Taxation, headed by Charles Nasstrom.

In favor of the proposal is the Citizens Committee for Tax Reform, with Joe G. Benson as chairman.

Nasstrom's group opposes the income tax on the grounds that a state level income tax with property tax relief and a rebate to cities would be more equitable and feasible.

Proponents say the tax will provide funds to improve city services and provide adequate salaries for city employes, and offer considerable tax relief to senior citizens living on low incomes.

Judge Permits 50-Mile March

Selma - Montgomery OK Pleases King

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Civil rights workers were heartened today by a federal judge's sanction of a 50-mile march from Selma to Montgomery and by establishment of ground rules for parades and demonstrations in the Alabama capital.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. rejoiced over the court order requiring State Police to protect demonstrators instead of interfering with them. He promised a decision during the day on when the pilgrimage will start.

"We look forward to seeing the governor comply with the court order," said King.

The Negro integration leader also said he hoped Gov. George C. Wallace would "see a delegation of people from all over the state when we arrive in Montgomery" at the end of the march. Wallace did not comment.

King and other civil rights leaders joined Montgomery city and county representatives in signing an agreement declaring that "parade permits for peaceful demonstrations should be applied for and granted."

PLAN MARCH

While that meeting was in progress, Willie Ricks, a Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee field worker told a church gathering that 2,000 Tuskegee Institute students planned a march in Montgomery today "to call on George Wallace."

In another development, Selma police arrested 36 white ministers — two of them women — as they approached Mayor Joseph T. Smitherman's house with picket signs.

They headed toward the mayor's red brick house after marching on the Dallas County courthouse with about 700 others parading without a permit and bond set at $200 each.

Profs Cancel U-M Protest

Won't Close Classes Over Viet Nam Policy

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A group of University of Michigan professors today backed down on its plan to cancel classes for one day to protest United States policies in Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

The 46 protesting teachers had planned to suspend their classes March 24, but after a more than eight-hour meeting which ended early today they decided not to go ahead with the plan.

"We find that our intended action has turned attention to issues irrelevant to our deepest concern. We find this among many whom we respect and whose affiliation we desire. We have decided to suspend the moratorium and start again with an action which makes our concern completely clear."

★ ★ ★

He said the moratorium would be replaced on March 24 with an 8 p.m. to midnight "educational conference" and an all-night vigil from midnight to 8 a.m. which he called a "teach-in."

UNANIMOUS VOTE

A spokesman for the group said the statement was agreed to unanimously and that the entire group intended to abide by it.

★ ★ ★

Earlier, the group had said it would ask permission for a one-day leave of absence without pay to stage the protest. It had said it would hold the protest whether or not the request was granted.

★ ★ ★

House Approves Waterford Twp. Hatchery Sale

Sale of the 82-acre former fish hatchery site in Waterford Township was approved yesterday in the State Legislature.

Senate Bill No. 50, relating to the sale of the state-owned Drayton Plains Fish Hatchery to a private group for nature studies, was passed by the House of Representatives.

It will go immediately to Gov. Romney for signing, according to Sen. Carl W. O'Brien, D-Pontiac, who introduced the bill.

Astronauts in Dress Rehearsal

This time the astronauts will go through the motions of their scheduled March 23 launching with two Soviet cosmonauts overhead, zipping around the earth every 90 minutes in the spaceship Voskhod-2.

Grissom and Young are scheduled to make three earth orbits in the capsule next Tuesday, the first of three manned Gemini flights slated this year.

Unlike any previous space feat by the United States or Russia, Grissom, the flight commander, is to maneuver the capsule himself for all but 20 minutes of the four-hour, 52-minute flight.

★ ★ ★

Other astronauts have controlled only the attitude of their ships in flight.

SHIFT ORBIT

Grissom will shift the orbit of his spacecraft four times, a step which is considered to be a major advance in the sophistication of U.S. space hardware.

The two astronauts went through the initial dry run last week, completing each of their actual launch-day assignments to within one minute of the make-believe blastoff.

Minor technical problems delayed this exercise two and one-half hours.

★ ★ ★

Today's test is to be much like the first, except that the astronauts will be subjected to a simulated catastrophe on the launching pad to test their readiness to eject themselves from the spacecraft.

And there will be a second simulated emergency in the failure of the guidance system controlling the Titan-2 rocket.

Cold Temperatures to Linger Awhile

Cold temperatures blew in today on gusts of 15 to 35 miles an hour, winds coming from the west.

Partial clearing of skies is expected tonight with the winds diminishing to 10 to 20 miles an hour. The low will be in the 18 to 24 range.

★ ★ ★

Tomorrow and Saturday will see partly cloudy skies with continued cold temperatures. The high forecast for tomorrow is 28 to 34.

Twenty-five was the low mercury reading prior to 8 a.m. today. The thermometer read 28 at 1 p.m. in downtown Pontiac.

New Red Shot Is Highest for Manned Flight

Ten Minutes Spent Outside Craft; May Be Moon-Trip Test

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet rocket hurled two cosmonauts today into man's highest orbit and one of them spent 10 minutes outside the spaceship.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said he was "in condition of outer space" for 20 minutes, "including 10 minutes outside the ship." This indicated he spent 10 minutes in an airless chamber attached to the pressurized main cabin before going outside.

There were indications that the new space venture was intended as another step toward a trip to the moon by experimenting with the techniques needed to join spaceships together.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, 30, copilot of the spaceship called Voskhod 2, went 16 feet from the space capsule. He appeared to be attached to the ship by a lifeline.

Soviet television stations showed a film of Leonov floating outside the spaceship, with the curve of the earth and the blackness of space visible in the background.

20 MINUTE STAY

Tass said Leonov spent about 20 minutes inspecting the surface of the ship, taking pictures with his camera, and conducting visual observations of the earth and outer space.

Leonov wore what was described as a special "autonomous life-support suit." On television, the suit appeared bulky. The helmet was heavy. What appeared to be oxygen containers were strapped to his back.

The 30-year-old cosmonaut did somersaults in space and floated in a loose, relaxed manner in the weightlessness, Tass said.

Tass said the venture into space—the first time man has trusted himself outside the protective shell of his space ship—came at the end of the first orbit.

SAFELY RETURNED

Leonov "successfully carried out the range of prescribed studies and observations and safely returned to the ship, Leonov felt well."

The operation outside the spacecraft was transmitted to the earth by the ship's television system, Tass reported.

With Leonov was Col. Pavel Belyayev, 39, flight commander. Tass said a powerful rocket sent them into orbit at 10 a.m. Moscow time.

The orbit was described as ranging from 107.5 miles to 307.5 miles above the earth. The previous high for man was the 254 miles reached by the three cosmonauts in Voskhod 1.

The blastoff came five days

KING FAROUK

Former Ruler of Egypt Dies

Fun-Loving Playboy Collapses in Rome

ROME (AP) — Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, the fat, fun-loving playboy exiled by military revolution in 1952, collapsed in a Rome restaurant early today and died on the way to a hospital. He was 45.

★ ★ ★

A doctor tried to stimulate Farouk's failing heart with injections and oxygen, but he died as the ambulance pulled up at the gate of Rome's San Camillo Hospital.

He had been one of the more colorful kings of modern times, a lusty bon vivant who spent fortunes on pleasure when he wore the crown in a land of poverty.

The revolution that threw him out after 15 years eventually brought Gamel Abdel Nasser to power. Farouk left Egypt aboard the white and gilt royal yacht "Mahroussa," but he had to return it to the revolutionary government.

★ ★ ★

Farouk was dining after midnight with a woman at a plush French restaurant on the edge of Rome. He had just finished a rich meal of oysters, roast lamb, cake and fruit when he pitched forward on the table.

CARRIED PISTOL

At the hospital attendants found on his person a 6.35mm Italian automatic pistol and a pair of the dark sunglasses that he habitually wore. On his finger was a gold wedding ring

Research Plant Planned in Area

Plans have been announced by a major computer systems manufacturer to build a $1-million research and development plant in Avon Township, adjacent to the Village of Rochester.

The announcement was made at a press conference by Robert C. Hall, president of Holley Computer Products Co., a division of Control Dalta Corp. of Minneapolis, Minn.

Plans call for the immediate construction of a 60,000-square-foot plant on nearly 13 acres north of the village limits bounded by Rochester Road on the west and Tienken on the north.

The stage was set for construction of the new unit last night as the Avon Township zoning board approved changing the classification of the property from general farming to light industrial.

★ ★ ★

The rezoning request will next be considered Tuesday night by the Regional Planning Commission, and then go to the Avon Township Board for final action Wednesday evening.

LOADING ENTRANCE

Hall outlined expansion programs for the facility, which is expected to grow to 160,000 square feet eventually, with two additions to the initial plant.

Hall said the plant will be used by the Peripheral Equipment Group of Holley Computer Products, now located in cramped quarters in Warren.

The basic activity will be re-

House Set to Start Voting Bill Hearings

Less than 24 hours after President Johnson sent the bill to Capitol Hill, Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach was to go before the House Judiciary Committee to explain its sweeping provisions.

★ ★ ★

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., in moving the hearings up from their scheduled opening next week, said "the continuing shameful and tragic events in Alabama" make speedy action essential.

★ ★ ★

Long and careful preparation of the bill by the Justice Department and congressional leaders of both parties appears to have smoothed the way for passage.

SENDS LETTER

In a letter accompanying the bill, Johnson asked the Senate and House to make sure "no voting qualification or procedure shall be imposed or applied to deny or abridge the right to vote on account of race or color."

"This legislation will help rid the nation of racial discrimination in every aspect of the electoral process," Johnson said.

"I urge the Congress to turn its attention immediately to this legislation and to enact it promptly."

In an address to a joint session of Congress Monday night, the President urged the legislators to work weekends and at night, if necessary, to assure prompt passage.

BIPARTISAN GROUP

The bill was written, in effect, by a bipartisan group of congressional leaders who conferred regularly with Katzenbach. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who headed the Republican contingent, said he could not recall so much congressional initiative in writing a major bill and called it "a whale of a precedent."

Dirksen said he hopes the bill can be brought before the Senate early next month. But he does not expect it to be passed before Easter, April 18.

The bill is intended to enforce the 15th Amendment, which guarantees that no citizen shall be denied the right to vote because of race or color. In his message Monday night, Johnson said the amendment is "being systematically and willfully circumvented" in certain states and areas.

There are four main provisions by which the bill seeks to make it possible for Negroes to vote in all elections — federal, state and local.

MAIN PROVISIONS

They would:

Eliminate literacy tests or any other "test or device" as a means of denying anyone the right to vote in a state or county where less than 50 per cent of the persons of voting age are registered or voting.

Empower federal examiners to register voters in such states or counties, wherever 20 or more residents complain they have been denied the right to vote by reason of race or color.

EXPLOSION RIPS HOME — Four members of a Kalamazoo family escaped serious injury today when an explosion demolished their frame home. Peter Balkema, 46, his wife and two daughters were hospitalized with burns and shock. A patrolman said he was answering a call on a possible gas main leak and "the street heaved" as he arrived on the scene.

Schoolchildren Killed

Cong Tries to Stir Protest

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Villagers from a nearby hamlet today attempted to use the bodies of 16 children killed by Vietnamese fighter-bombers to stir up a mass anti-American demonstration. Government troops broke up the crowd, on the Da Nang waterfront.

The villagers, stirred by Viet Cong agents who said Americans had carried out the attack on the hamlet Tuesday, came in sampans from Man Quan, five miles south of Da Nang.

★ ★ ★

They had wrapped the bodies of the children, killed when bombs and rockets from two Vietnamese Skyriaders hit a schoolhouse, in rugs and smuggled them into Da Nang.

Reports said Vietnamese soldiers broke up the gathering crowd without casualties.

IMPOSED CURFEW

Friday is an important North Vietnamese holiday known as "Hate America Day." The day has not been used by the Viet Cong in past years for anti-American terrorism, but authorities were taking no chances.

KILLED 32

U.S. officials said Americans were in no way involved in the attack on Man Quan.

Vietnamese government officials went to Man Quan today in an attempt to cool feelings. Two companies of government rangers —about 200 men — also were sent to the area.

★ ★ ★

A Vietnamese officer in close touch with the situation at Man Quan said the attack killed 32 persons, 20 of them children at the school where a Viet Cong flag was allegedly flying.

Newsmen flying over the hamlet late today could see families burying their dead.

Vietnamese sources said the children were sent into bunkers in the schoolyard but one bomb made a direct hit on a bunker, burying the children.

"The pilot did not know it was a school," said the Vietnamese officer. "All he saw was the Viet Cong flag above the building. It was a great tragedy but the village was controlled by the Viet Cong."

PAY DAMAGE

He said the government would pay damages to the villagers, including payments to the families of the children.

Reports said the peasants insisted no one from their hamlet had fired on the Skyraider and that no Viet Cong had entered the schoolhouse.

Man Quan is along the approach to Da Nang airbase and planes often draw fire from the area as they prepare to land. The hamlet was described by one source as "sympathetic to and but not dominated by" the Viet Cong.

★ ★ ★

Spaceman Steps Out of Craft

before the United States is scheduled to launch its first Gemini two-man satellite. The U.S. program also has scheduled a "walk around in nothingness" but at a later day.

There was speculation that the Soviet launch was designed to take some of the wind out of the American sails.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory, said:

"The degree of achievement of the Russian scientists and engineers can be gauged by placing the exploit in relation to the American Gemini program, which is unlikely to achieve a similar exercise until later this year."

ESSENTIAL STEP

Lovell said the experiment by Leonov was "an essential step in the task of joining units to form large orbiting space platforms."

Belyayev radioed to the Soviet space center that "the assignment of leaving the ship and returning to it has been carried out in full."

"The parameters (constants) in the cabin are within normal limits," he said. "Further work is proceeding in strict accordance with the flight program."

No indication was given of how many orbits were planned.

SUGGEST LANDING

But a suggestion that, having accomplished the feat, the cosmonauts would land before long was contained in another Tass dispatch.

It quoted Belyayev in a pre-takeoff statement as saying the flight "is a new, important stage in the exploration and conquest of space. For the first time in history, a man in the orbit of an artificial satellite will be able to look at the earth otherwise than through the portholes of his ship.

"Until we meet again soon on our native land, dear comrades," Belyayev concluded.

The spaceship blasted off a little more than five months after the first multiple-manned Voskhod (Sunrise) was launched with three men aboard.

★ ★ ★

"Two-way radio communications are constantly maintained with the spaceship," Tass said.

FEELING WELL

Belyayev and Leonov were reported feeling well and are carrying out their assigned research duties.

"The reports by the ship's commander show that the crew withstood satisfactorily the orbiting and transition to weightlessness," Tass said.

★ ★ ★

Voskhod 2 is the eighth manned space flight announced by the Soviets, although observers abroad have speculated that there may have been unsuccessful flights that were not announced.

★ ★ ★

The United States has launched two suborbital flights and four single-man orbital ones ranging from three to 22 loops around the earth.

Tass said Belyayev, the oldest man the Soviets have put into orbit, has been flying since he was 18. He entered pilot's school during World War II and in 1945 was a fighter pilot in the Far East. He is married and has two daughters.

Pontiac Classes to Begin in Antipoverty Program

Pontiac school officials have decided to begin a portion of their proposed antipoverty program, even though federal funds for the project have not as yet been granted to the school system.

The Board of Education decided last night to start the remedial reading section and part of the preschool section of the program.

Also, two community school directors will begin working in the school district.

School district administrators resubmitted their antipoverty program to the federal government early this year after their original $400,000 plan had been turned down.

★ ★ ★

Shortly after resubmission the federal government notified school administrators that they would receive federal funds to cover the resubmitted $150,000 plan.

ASK APPOINTMENTS

At that time the school board asked Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dana P. Whitmer to fill some of the antipoverty posts in the school district.

This week, however, the federal government reversed itself and told Whitmer during a meeting in Chicago that the school would have to cut more from the proposal — that they would be unable to finance the entire $150,000 plan.

The school was told to resubmit the new proposal and that it would be funded within two to four weeks.

★ ★ ★

Since the school has already filled six teaching posts and the two community school directorships, the board of education thought it would be good policy to begin the program now, using funds, and then reimburse the school budget when the federal funds arrive.

TIME IS FACTOR

Whitmer also said that if the school waited until the middle of April to start the program, there would not be enough time to evaluate its benefits before schoolisoutinJune.

The cost to the school for three weeks operation of the program will be about $3,500.

The school originally requested six proposals in their plan.

Of the six, the government said they would approve the school library program, remedial reading program, and a counseling program.

SUMMER SCHOOL

The elementary summer school plan is to be resubmitted in May. Officials in the Office of Economic Opportunity, which holds the purse strings on the antipoverty program, said they have not yet made a decision on whether the community school directors should be included in the plan.

The preschool centers proposal, which was also in the original plan, must be resubmitted under a new federal program called "Head Start."

The reason for the delay in funding, according to the government report in Chicago, was composition of the Oakland County Commission, the group which processes applications from schools for antipoverty funds.

The Office of Economic Opportunity said it had received many protests from county officials that the composition of the group did not represent all factions of the county.

The commission has been enlarged since the protests were made.

Recover 240 Stolen Checks

Ex-Janitor Implicated in Area Firm's Loss

Detroit police last night recovered 240 of 500 payroll checks stolen March 5 from a Waterford Township printing company when a woman treid to pass one of the checks at the downtown Detroit Hughes-Hatcher-Suffrin store.

The woman said she had stolen the checks from H. R. Heinz, according to police.

A janitor at Division Printing Co., 1179 Sylvertis, Heinz disappeared March 5, the same day the Waterford printing firm discovered that the checks were missing.

Earlier yesterday banks began calling Oakland County police departments reporting that the stolen checks with serial numbers from 7501 to 8000 were coming in. A total of 78 checks were cashed in Oakland County.

★ ★ ★

Waterford Township Detective Jerry St. Souver said that 16 of the checks were cashed in Waterford business places.

STAMPED AMOUNTS

A company-owned paymaster was used to stamp the amounts on the checks, St. Souver said.

A police broadcast is out on Heinz, 35, who was on parole from the State of Washington after serving a prison sentence for forgery, according to St. Souver.

Sgt. James Johnson of the Detroit police check squad said that all the checks in the possession of the woman arrested last night were in amounts either of $67.81 or $96.18 and made out to H. R. Heinz.

The checks are drawn on the Pontiac State Bank.

The arrested woman gave her name as Margaret Epacs, 47, no address, Johnson said.

She has been convicted previously for uttering and publishing under the name of Margaret Hormel, Johnson said.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Epacs told police she met Heinz a few days ago and had been staying with him in a downtown Detroit hotel where she stole his checks.

A clerk at the clothing store became suspicious when Mrs. Epacs represented herself as H. R. Heinz in trying to cash a check and called police.

Denies Charge He Assaulted IRS Agent

DETROIT (AP) — Jack W. Giacalone, 21, of Grosse Pointe Park, pleaded innocent Wednesday to a federal charge of assaulting an Internal Revenue Service agent. He was freed under $5,000 bond. No trial date was set. Giacalone is alleged to have slugged IRS agent Albert DeBiasi during a raid March 2 at the home of the defendant's uncle, Vito (Billy Jack) Giacalone in Grosse Pointe Shores.

Get Go-Ahead to Build Bloomfield Hills School

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The board of education today was given the go-ahead to build a new $2.3 million high school on Lahser Road. Construction had been delayed by court action.

★ ★ ★

Permission to begin construction was granted by Circuit Judge Philip Pratt in refusing to sign a restraining order.

Bloomfield Hills Mayor Louis J. Colombo Jr., 3635 Lahser, brought suit aginst the school board on the grounds that the new facility would increase traffic and make the narrow road hazardous.

Colombo and his wife were joined by four other couples on Lahser in requesting an injunction on the school construction until the road was improved.

★ ★ ★

Schools Supt. Eugene Johnson said ground will be broken for the school soon.

'READY TO MOVE'

"We are ready to move and move fast," he said.

"Even then," Johnson said, "we will be three to five months behind schedule."

He noted that preliminary planning of the school has been going on during the court delay, however.

★ ★ ★

Colombo said he did not know if he would take further action until he was able to read Pratt's 13-page opinion.

Colombo had claimed the plan of the board to construct a school on the 40-acre site between Long Lake and Hickory Grove roads was "arbitrary, capricious and an abuse of discretion."

Pratt said he did not find the conduct of the school board unwise.

★ ★ ★

The urgent need of school facilities outweighs the other factors in the case, according to Pratt, and that the inconvenient situation to the complainants is only temporary.

SOME HAVOC

"This is not to say that no hazards will result . . . and it must be rare indeed that any school, commercial or industrial construction does not wreak some havoc on adjacent roads and cause grave consternation to neighbors," Pratt said.

★ ★ ★

He said the school board itself admits some degree of inadequacy of the road, but it should be able to rely on the Oakland County Road Commission or the City of Bloomfield Hills to provide safe streets and roads.

★ ★ ★

"Even though the road may not be immediately improved. . . certainly the responsible agency will cooperate and do these things necessary to prevent or lessen the possibility of dangers," Pratt said.

Former Ruler of Egypt Dies

Farouk was married twice. His first marriage to Farida Zulfikar was dissolved in 1948 after she bore him three daughters but no sons. Only males could succeed to Moslem Egypt's throne.

In 1951 Farouk married Narriman Sadekl 19, the daughter of an Egyptian civil servant. He had seen her first in a jewelry store when she was shopping for a wedding ring with her fiance, Zaki Hashem, an Egyptian employe at the United Nations.

★ ★ ★

Queen Narriman in January, 1952, bore a son who was proclaimed King Fuad II six months later after his father abdicated. Farouk took the baby into exile with him, and the monarchy ended a year later when Egypt became a republic.

ALBANIAN ADVENTURER

Farouk was the descendant of an Albanian adventurer who founded the dynasty under the Ottoman Empire in the 19th century.

His father, King Fuad I, died in 1936 and Farouk succeeded him under a regency at the age of 16. A year later he assumed the throne.

Once on the throne Farouk developed a fondness for women, gambling and nightclubs. He grew heavy.

At first in exile, he showed up nightly at Rome cabarets with a chorus girl or starlet in tow.

LOSES FRIENDS

In recent years his friends dropped away. Farouk, balding and weighing close to 300 pounds, dropped into almost virtual obscurity.

Trophy Awarded to State's Entry for Junior Miss

The Michigan Junior Miss won her title in Pontiac in February.

Local Junior Chamber of Commerce officials said that by winning the trophy, Patrice has a good chance of making the finals of the pageant and even winning the event.

Plan $1-Million Research Plant in Area

search and development of input-output computer system units, which serve as the "ears" and "mouth" of a computer system.

Hall said the Rochester area was chosen for the plant site because of its uncongested, rural atmosphere, which would aid in recruiting highly-skilled professional employes from all over the country.

★ ★ ★

Some nonprofessional employes will be hired from the local area, he said, and eventually may number 100 to 150.

TOTAL EMPLOYMENT

Total employment at the plant is expected to reach 350 in 18 months.

Control Data Corp. is the third largest computer manufacturer in the United States in terms of the value of equipment installed in the field, and has been judged one of the 13 highest growth potential firms in the nation.

★ ★ ★

Hall said the firm hoped to be in its new building by early August. Construction will begin as soon as rezoning is approved.

Funds for the site purchase are being raised by grants as well as from donations by members, Schmuck noted. Membership of the organization includes some 50 persons from the metropolitan Detroit area.

Romney's Budget Is Back Again

LANSING (AP) — Part of Gov. George Romney's 1965-66 budget was back before the House today, slightly reshuffled but substantially the same as first presented.

Bills to enact $484,108,761 of Romney's $788-million general fund budget were introduced by Rep. Einar Erlandsen, D-Escanaba, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. They were referred back to that committee Wednesday.

The bills cover general government, regulatory functions, conservation, recreation and agriculture, restricted funds, public safety and defense and welfare. Measures covering such areas as education, mental health and capital outlay were expected to be introduced in the Senate.

House Democrats followed the Senate's lead and killed Romney's budget bills last week. The action was to meet constitutional about $254,500 were made, said requirements and clear the way for consideration of other appropriations measures, they said.

Only four substantial changes amounting to an increase of about $254,500 were made, said Al Ballard, aide to the ways and means committee.

Salary increases of $2,500 each for the attorney general and secretary of state—$20,000 a year jobs — were blue penciled "because they violate the Constitution, which prohibits these salary increases during a man's term of office."

A $15,500 salary appropriation for a deputy state controller was deleted from the general government bill, Ballard said, "because the position has been vacant for a year."

The largest change was a restricted fund budget increase of about $375,000, "because there is a gentleman's agreement between the House and Senate committees and the secretary of state that he will be allowed to issue full-sized plates next year, while the governor's recommendation contemplated the issuance of tabs."

Michigan to Market Area Fish Hatchery

LANSING (AP) — A Senate bill permitting sale by the State Conservation Department to the Drayton Plains fish hatchery in Oakland County has passed the House and gone to Gov. George Romney for signing.

The measure permits the sale to the Drayton Plains Nature Center, Inc. Money from the sale will go to the State Game and Fish Protection Fund.

The hatchery will be sold for $42,000 or any amount set by the state tax assessment, whichever is higher.

Claims U.S. Comptroller Destroyed Bank

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the defunct San Francisco National Bank charged today the institution was "destroyed" by Comptroller of the Currency James J. Saxon to restrain competition.

The free-spending former bank official, Don C. Silverthorne, also accused Saxon's West Coast deputy, Arnold E. Larsen, of assuring a loan broker the bank was "safe and in good condition" to receive a $10 million deposit certificate only five and a half hours before it was ordered closed.

Silverthorne made his charges in testimony prepared for the Senate investigations subcommittee, which is investigating a rash of recent bank closings.

Also scheduled to appear today was William S. Bennett, whose name was connected with Silverthorne's yesterday in testimony of alleged fee-splitting. Subcommittee aides indicated Bennett would refuse to answer questions.

* * *

In his prepared testimony, Silverthorne said that "I charge the comptroller's office with the destruction of this bank and their unlawful attempt to besmirch my record and good name."

SEVERE ATTACK

In addition to fee splitting, he has been accused of taking fees and commissions from borrowers, putting loan proceeds in his own account, selling bank stock to borrowers at inflated prices and loading the bank with poor-risk loans and too many certificates of deposit.

His critics have also pictured Silverthorne as a man who spent huge sums gambling in Las Vegas, on art, jewelry and cars and who "auctioned" jewelry in his office.

The investigation has also prompted statements that jealousy between Saxon's office and other federal agencies responsible for policing the banks had been responsible for a "noncooperation" policy among them.

* * *

Silverthorne said that Larsen had given assurances of safety for deposit of a $10 million certificate of deposit to a loan broker at 1:30 p.m. Jan. 22. The bank was shut at 7 p.m.

ASSURANCE

He said the annual stockholder's meeting was scheduled for four days later and told the investigators "I had the assurance of the many friends who owned bank stock that I would be returned to the bank presidency . . .

"Why did he (Saxon) leave this bank open to take deposits if he knew of its insolvency or even questioned the bank's solvency. Could it be that our bank's competitors knew I was returning to give them their first real taste of competition in the Bay District?

"There is no other conclusion than that the San Francisco National was destroyed by the comptroller, acting in the interest of restraint of competition and not upon the grounds he now protests.

"Accepting deposits, knowing the bank was insolvent, is a criminal offense and the comptroller must answer for this," Silverthorne said.

'DERELECTION'

He added if the bank was in the condition that Saxon and Larsen claim "they stand without excuse, charged with dereliction of their duty and accomplices to a serious crime of accepting deposits knowing the bank insolvent."

Silverthorne said excessive brokerage fees and high interest rates occurred after he was stripped of his authority and the bank was being run by Larsen, "who became a daily drinking companion of the chairman of the board of directors."

The former president said J. W. Erlich, chairman of the board, illegally voted himself a $25,000 attorney fee at this time although for the previous two years he had received $500 a month.

Silverthorne also said that the bank paid $117,000 to a Detroit broker and $50,000 to another broker but there is no record of any money being deposited.

Japan Blast Kills 9; 20 Houses Destroyed

TOWADA, Japan (UPI) — At least nine persons were killed today when an explosion of stored acetylene gas destroyed 20 houses in this northern Honshu city and set 27 others on fire.

Police said more than a dozen persons were injured and another was missing. The cause of the explosion, which occurred in the basement of a pipeline repair firm, was not immediately known.

Sessions With Citizens Governor to Resume

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney has announced he will resume his meetings with citizens on Thursday mornings starting March 25.

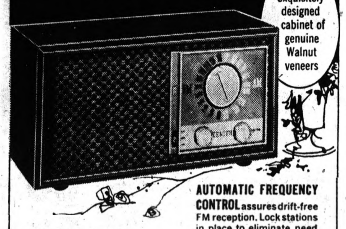

Citizens will be heard by the governor in his executive office from 10 a.m. to noon. They will be able to meet the governor on a first come, first served basis.

Ask Picture Displays

The resolution named only the offices of president and governor, not their present occupants.

Photos Detail N. Viet Targets

No Complaints So Far on U. S. Overflights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Months of careful photo-reconnaissance of Communist North Viet Nam by Air Force and Navy have given U.S. officials detailed knowledge of all targets worth hitting there, sources said today.

There is official silence here about aerial scouting operations over Red North Viet Nam.

* * *

The North Vietnamese and the Communist Chinese have not complained openly about these activites.

It is known that Air Force RF101 Voodoo jets have flown over North Viet Nam at both high and low altitudes, their high-speed cameras taking thousands of pictures.

They have collected shots of troop barracks and training centers, ammunition and fuel dumps, gun positions, roads, railroads, airfields, power installations, industrial complexes and the like.

Navy F8 crusaders RA5C vigilantes have taken off from U.S. carriers in the South China Sea to range along the North Vietnamese coast photographing port facilities, torpedo boat bases and other potential targets.

* * *

Pictures brought back for study by skilled photo interpreters have included possible targets in the Hanoi area and the main port of Haiphong.

U.S. reconnaissance planes are equipped with sensitive color and black and white film that can reveal camouflage, infrared film of piercing darkness, and electronic censors able to detect warning radar or gunpointing radar.

AUTOMATIC CAMERAS

Aircraft can take clear shots from 30,000 feet aloft and higher or from close to the ground at 400 miles an hour or faster.

* * *

The 37-mm antiaircraft guns, the most common weapons used by the North Vietnamese, can reach up only about 10,000 feet, experts say.

On low-level photo missions, the U.S. planes rely on speed and surprise to get their job done before radar can lock on and direct the enemy guns at them.

NEW PROBLEM

If the Russians or Red Chinese should sent antiaircraft missiles — like the batteries in Cuba — to North Viet Nam, that would present a new and grave problem for American aircraft. These missiles can range up to very high altitudes, as they demonstrated in knocking down U2s.

So far, there is no sign that any such missiles have emplaced in North Viet Nam, sources said, although the Russians have promised military aid.

Movie Scriptwriter

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — William M. Rankin, motion picture scriptwriter for such films as "Pennies from Heaven" and "Boys Town," is in the Veterans Hospital here for treatment of lung cancer.

Rankin, 63, said he came to the hospital three weeks ago from Los Angeles. Rankin was born in St. Louis.

U.S. Willing to Stop Strikes if Hanoi Halts Cong Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is willing to halt its bombing attacks on North Viet Nam if Hanoi will stop sending troops and arms into South Viet Nam, State Department authorities have told a conference of private citizens meeting here the past two days.

The officials said the security and independence of South Viet Nam are not negotiable, but that if North Viet Nam will abandon its assistance to the Viet Cong guerrillas fighting in the South, the United States will cease air strikes against northern bases.

So far the Vietnamese have given no indication they are willing to deal on any such terms. The prospect, therefore, is said to be that the bombing attacks will not only continue but will hit targets progressively closer to Hanoi.

The policy conference brought together several hundred representatives of private organizations with membership in all parts of the country. Such meetings have been held periodically at the State Department for several years.

POLICY OFFICIALS

The conference this time was addressed by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other policy officials and intelligence experts.

Only Undersecretary of State George Ball spoke on the record; all the others spoke "for background," meaning that what they said could be reported but not attributed to them or specifically quoted.

* * *

Out of the meetings came these other major points about the Vietnamese war:

1. Despite fears to the contrary the crisis in Southeast Asia has so far widened the split between the Soviet Union and Red China. Some authorities in the administration and in Congress have expected that as the war expanded the Soviet Union and China might be driven closer out of a common concern for defending Communist North Viet Nam.

2. The United States needs and should have greater support from its Western European allies in carrying out its strategy of resisting Communist conquest in Southeast Asia. Ball, in his public speech to the conference, charged in effect that critics who demand that the United States make peace now on whatever terms it can get are undermining the U.S. policy of defending South Viet Nam.

* * *

3. The United States sees no opportunity for the United Nations to play an effective role in the conflict at present. If and when peace is made, the United Nations might undertake to police the settlement.

* * *

4. There are signs that the Communists may mount an offensive against Thailand, a U.S. ally in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, similar to the guerrilla war against South Viet Nam. The Chinese Communists have made repeated statements since last fall about action in Thailand by a liberation movement. The Thais are preparing for such a development and have been working on a counterinsurgency program with U.S. help.

* * *

5. The United States does not have any plan for putting large bodies of American troops into South Viet Nam, although ground force units could be sent in for specific purposes, just as 3,500 Marines were sent in last week to guard the big American air base at Da Nang.

6. Administration officials have ruled out proposals to establish a boycott of North Viet Nam by moves to get non-Communist countries to cut off all trade. Officials said studies show there is little non-Communist commerce with North Viet Nam of strategic importance.

Road Workers Protest Firing of Employe

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan State Employes Union reports its Washtenaw County Road Commission local will set up a picket line starting Monday at the commissmon's Zeeb Road Garage near Ann Arbor. The union said it is protesting the firing of Herbert Linke, a nine-year employe, for allegedly being "unsatisfactory and uncooperative. The union contends he was fired because of his union membership.

Recording Machine for Voting Proposed

LANSING (AP) — Legislation permitting the use of electronic data processing in voting has been introduced by Rep. Russell Strange, R-Mount Pleasant. The new system, which Strange said is "strictly permissive", involves the use of a recorder instead of a voting machine. The voter inserts a punched card and marks it with a small stylus. The punched ballot cards then are tallied electronically by a high speed computer.

Tells of Ordeal Hunting Kin

Used Bicycle to Flee From Cong Attackers

SAIGON (AP) — A young Californian searching for his missing Army pilot brother said yesterday he escaped by bicycle when the Viet Cong attacked the village where he was staying.

* * *

Don Dawson, 25, who has seached for four months for his brother Dan, or Dan's body, said the Communist guerrillas burned the protective fence around the village of Thai Hung, north of Bien Hoa, last Friday.

Then, Dawson said, the Viet Cong distributed propaganda leaflets that capitalized on the series of coups that have beset Saigon in recent months.

Dawson said he and a platoon of popular force soldiers made off on bicycles when the Viet Cong approached, then fired into the air from a safe distance until the guerrillas left.

* * *

Asked if there had been any progress in the hunt for his brother, who failed to return from a flight in an Army L19 reconnaissance plane last November, Don replied:

"Well, I'm still alive. That's progress."

Dawson said the Viet Cong have taken over the village of Chanh Hung, about three miles east of Thai Hung, and have been closing in on his village.

But he said the guerrillas have not harmed Father Doan, the Vietnamese priest who is Dawson's chief contact with the Viet Cong in the quest for information on his brother.

* * *

Dawson said the guerrilla activity doesn't mean they are looking for him.

"If they wanted me that bad, they could have taken me months ago," he said.

* * *

Reports reaching Dawson indicated the Viet Cong may have moved his brother's body from its orginal grave in the jungles of "D" zone, a Viet Cong sanctuary north of Saigon. Thai Hung lies at the edge of the zone.

Hostess Impolite This Time

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: The other evening my husband and I were invited out to dinner and the hostess prepared a special dish which my husband and I liked very much.

I remarked how delicious it was and asked her how she made it. She ignored my question and immediately changed the subject. I was very much embarrassed and thought her extremely rude.

Was I at fault for asking for the recipe?

★ ★ ★

A: Her not wishing to share her special recipe with you is quite understandable and in no way rude, but her ignoring your question was very impolite.

She should have explained that it was an old secret recipe of her family's and that she was very sorry but she could not give it to anyone.

ADDRESSING MAIL

Q: When addressing a greeting card to a bachelor who lives at home with his parents, is it proper to address it to Mr. Henry Jones and Family?

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

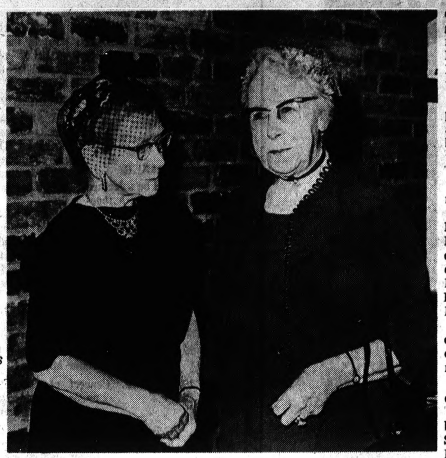

A: Addressing a card to Mr. Henry Jones and Family is not correct. If you have to economize and send only one card, it should be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, adding Mr. Henry Jones underneath.

Mrs. William (Julie) Candler of Birmingham was the guest speaker for the Parliamentary Club luncheon at Pine Knob Resort Wednesday. Her subject was "Woman at the Wheel."

She told the group that 41 per cent of the drivers today are women. By 1970 there will be more women at the wheel then men.

★ ★ ★

During the business meeting new officers were elected.

Taking over duties are Mrs. Lewis Swartz, president; Mrs. Fred Goines, first vice president; Mrs. Ervin Christie, second vice president; Mrs. Forbes Hascall, and Mrs. J. R. Shaffer, secretaries; and Mrs. Hans Schjolin, treasurer.

The club which has completed its 40th year will convene on Oct. 6 for a luncheon meeting.

Mrs. Harry Vernon introduced the speaker.

Arrangements were made by Mrs. Christie, Mrs. R. E. Springer, and Mrs. Clifford Mossey.

Camp Fire Girls Reminded of Past

Camp Fire Girls of the Pontiac area are being reminded of their heritage this week. Three years after the organization was founded in 1910, local groups were meeting.

Women who then wanted a wholesome, interesting group activity for their daughters founded independent groups of Camp Fire Girls.

★ ★

They hiked, learned about Indian symbolism and conducted homemaking projects, much as the girls do today.

Dorothy Hollister, a new member of the Camp Fire Girls' board of directors, has a memento of that period.

★ ★

It is a beautiful beaded band her mother, the late Mrs. Edwin Hollister, wore to Camp Fire Girl meetings when she was a guardian in Deadwood, S. D.

★ ★ ★

Made by her father, it contains 64,800 multi-colored beads. The band which is about five inches wide and five feet long took six weeks of steady work to make.

WIDER HORIZONS

Today's Camp Fire Girls do a great deal more than make and wear beaded bands. The national theme for the year is "Think Big — Widen Your World."

With this in mind, girls and leaders are participating in a variety of birthday celebrations.

★ ★ ★

Girls in all levels of the program will present international programs for their parents.

★ ★ ★

One such program at Kennedy Junior High School will feature German exchange student, Monika Knab who lives with Mrs. Vern Rollison, a guardian of a junior high group.

MEXICAN PROGRAM

At another program, arranged by Mrs. Bernard Stickney, the program centers around Mexico. Mothers of two group members in native costume are talking about their colorful country.

Mrs. N. J. Hoffman is chairman of all programs.

★ ★ ★

Last Sunday, girls from the Waterford area entertained their parents at Camp Oweki, the Camp Fire Girls' camp near Clarkston. Both indoor and outdoor activities were planned.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. William Postle was chairman of this event.

DINNER

Wednesday evening Lake Orion girls and their parents held their third annual cooperative dinner and program. Mrs. Gilbert Petz made arrangements for the program which featured a puppet show and a Camp Fire ceremonial.

Roller skating parties and Camp Fire sings were held in the Avon district.

★ ★ ★

The Camp Fire program consists of four levels: Blue Birds for seven and eight-year-olds; Camp Fire Girls for fourth to sixth graders; the Junior High program serves girls of the seventh and eighth grades; and Horizon Clubs takes in ninth graders and high school girls.

★ ★ ★

All levels stress the basic Camp Fire values of femininity, creativity, individuality and the small group.

★ ★

Beth Ann Stickney, South Francis Street, examines a beaded band worked in Indian symbols. Over 50 years old, it was worn by a of Pontiac's Camp Fire guardian, the late Mrs. Edwin Hollister. Her daughter, Dorothy, is a new member of the board of directors.

★ ★ ★

Laura Belz reported on Legislation Day in Lansing when 90 legislators were luncheon guests of the state AUW branches in the Jack Tar Hotel.

On the April agenda are a board meeting, with Mrs. Francis McDowell, and Mrs. Ervin Bartel, hostess, cohostess; also a panel discussion on "Poverty and Education" at the April 13 meeting.

Delegates will attend the state convention April 23-24 in Grand Rapids.

Social hour chairman, Mrs. Fred Crossman, was assisted by Miss Belz, Mrs. Raymond Boone, Mrs. Olive Burgess, Mrs. Stewart Dell, Mrs. Voyd Hicks, Mrs. James Ramsey and Margaret Steward. Mrs. Joseph Warren was a guest.

STUDY GROUPS

The arts and crafts study group will meet in the home of Mrs. Maxwell Shadley. The topic will be "Easter Eggs."

Catholicism in South America and Hinduism in the Far East is the topic for the "Religions of the World group, with Mrs. George Snyder, hostess.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Tom Metzdorf will host the Foreign Culture and Cuisine group, studying "Italy." Mrs. William Moorhouse and Mrs. Robert Lawyer will assist.

Reviewing for the "Books of Our Times" study group will be Mrs. George Cheal. Lillian Davidson will be hostess.

★ ★

Study groups are open to any interested woman.

The Theodore Michaels of Snowshoe Circle announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Lou to Joseph James Kokoszka, son of the senior Kokoszkas of Berkley. She attends University of Detroit and her fiance is in graduate school at Wayne State University. The June 12 wedding will be in St. Regis Catholic Church.

New Gloves

In the ultrafeminine trend in spring fashions, gloves have not been overlooked.

Many are far more ornate than in past seasons, with embroidered, straw and ribbon cuffs.

Auxiliary Helps Plan

Mrs. Tim Patterson and Mrs. Arthur Salley were cohostesses at the Waterford Jaycee Auxiliary meeting in the home of Mrs. Ted McCullough of Brookdale Street.

Plans were discussed for the upcoming North Oakland County Home and Sports Show scheduled for March 19, 20, and 21 in the CAI Building.

★ ★ ★

All auxiliary members will be working on the activity in one form or another.

★

A highlight of the show will be the crowning ceremony of the "Pixie King and Queen" on Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

Cleaning Takes

Wash cleaning cloths or rags as soon as they begin to look dirty. First, shake them to get rid of dust and lint.

Then put them into a washer with other extra - dirty pieces. Use hot suds and rinses.

★ ★ ★

To wash dustcloths by hand, soak them for 10 to 15 minutes in hot soap or detergent suds. Rinse them, squeeze them out, and then rub them in clean sudsy water.

Rinse two or three times in clean water and hang them up to dry.

Be Brief but Tell Truth; It Requires Explanation

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and male, and my problem is this: How can I graciously answer the questions, "Why are you limping?" and, "Why don't you dance?"

★ ★ ★

Most people are not aware of my limp unless they've known me a long time. It is not very noticeable except when I am tired. Some people think I have recently hurt my leg.

★ ★ ★

The reason I limp, Abby, is because I had polio, and surgery as a result of it. But I'm afraid if I were to tell people this it would create an awkward silence.

An offhand wisecrack does not go over very well now that I'm older. Can you tell me how to answer these two questions so there will be no further discussion of a subject I find rather unpleasant?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

★ ★ ★

DEAR ANONYMOUS: The best reply to both questions is the simple truth: "I've had surgery as a result of polio."

If questions persist after that, answer them graciously enough so the inquirer will not be embarrassed, and briefly enough so he will realize that you don't wish to dwell on the subject.

Open Monday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday till 9 p.m.

One of the best reasons for buying these shoes— is something you don't talk about.

That something is the price.

You pay a mere $5.99 for the black patents with side detailing. $6.99 for the one with the floating bow.

At these prices, you don't expect the new rounded toe. But Thom McAn gives it to you.

Or the kind of black patent that won't spot or peel. But Thom McAn gives you that, too.

So keep mum and nobody will ever guess how little you actually paid.

What's that? You love to tell people when you get a bargain? In that case, go ahead and tell. (You'll be doing us a favor.)

But most people won't believe you.
