Only Two of Five Survive Crash

DEATH CAR — Twisted and broken wreckage of a Lake Orion family's car, struck by a train 14 miles northwest of Pontiac, gives evidence of the terrific impact of the crash. Mrs. Gayle Smith and two of her four children died of injuries suffered in the accident. The other two children were less seriously hurt.

Hopes to Raise $5,000

Orion to Aid Sorrowing Father

Lake Orion Village prepared to open its heart today after death had struck a triple blow to the family of Julius A. (Lindy) Smith.

As another daughter, Linda Lee, 9, rallied in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Smith grieved alone in his home at 567 E. Flint St.

Linda Lee, who had been listed as critical after suffering a broken left leg and internal injuries, was reported improving today.

The fourth child, Donna, 6, who suffered only minor bruises in the crash, was being cared for by neighbors.

The family car had been hit by a New York Central Railroad train at an unguarded crossing west of Orion road in Orion Township. The only member of the family not in the car was Smith, a Lake Orion Village maintenance worker.

CLUBS PLAN AID

As the three bodies await services at Allen's Funeral Home, Lake Orion, village service clubs aided by auxiliary police, civil defense workers, volunteer firemen and postal employes, planned a drive to help pay for hospital and funeral expenses.

They hoped to raise $5,000, beginning with a porch light campaign tonight.

Contributions could be turned in directly to the fire department or through a special five-man committee consisting of Martin Carlson, co-publisher of the Orion Review; D. A. Rose, of the fire department; James Sheldon, of the Lions Club; A. D. Curran, of the Saddle Club; and Peter Hamelieff, of the Rotary Club.

Tomorrow, the bodies will lie in state at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Oxford, until funeral services begin at 10 a.m.

Rev. G. E. Behnke, pastor of the church, will officiate. Burial follows in East Lawn Cemetery, twelve Lake Orion boy scouts will act as pallbearers for the little children.

Mrs. Smith was born in Cleveland, Ohio. She came to Oakland County 23 years ago, graduating from Royal Oak High School.

She and Smith were married in Oxford in 1947. They lived in Lake Orion 12 years.

Mrs. Smith also is survived by her father, Thomas F. Marlow, of Northville, and a brother, Richard Hal Marlow, of Utica, N. Y.

Flooded Rivers Receding in Texas; Residents Return

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Hundreds of West Texas residents forced from their homes by flooding rivers and creeks returned to their muddied houses today as the swollen streams receded.

Rains had stopped in West Texas at 4 a.m. but light rain fell from Beaumont on the Gulf of Mexico to the Dallas-Fort Worth area in the northern part of the state.

Cloudy, rainy weather was in the forecasts for most of the state.

Cloudbursts dumped up to 11 inches of rain on the once drought-ridden West Texas area yesterday, and rain continued far into the night.

Highways were blocked by flooding streams, at least one railroad was washed out, telephone communications were cut, and hundreds of homes flooded. No drownings were reported.

Shortly before midnight, County Judge W. H. Rampy at Ballinger, Tex.—probably the hardest hit of the flood-stricken towns— said he believed the greatest danger was over.

Police said Elm Creek started receding about midnight and the rate of rise on the Colorado River had slacked off to about .10 of a foot per hour. Earlier, the river had been rising 2 feet per hour.

★ ★ ★

Ballinger hurriedly evacuated more than 150 families in the face of the flooding streams. At Eastland, Tex., some 100 persons were forced to flee their homes as the flooding Leon River threatened. About a half dozen families at Cross Plains, Tex., moved out as the swollen Turkey Creek covered seven city blocks of the small city about halfway between Ballinger and Eastland.

The heaviest general rains in 25 years, natives of the area said fell in triangle bounded by San Angelo, Abilene, and Brownwood.

Pearson Given '57 Nobel Prize

Peace Award Goes to Canadian for Work in Mideast Crisis

OSLO, Norway (AP)—Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian foreign secretary, has been awarded the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize. The prize amounts to $40,275.

In the United Nations last fall, Pearson spearheaded a campaign to bring peace to the Middle East, where Britain and France had joined Israel in an attack on Egypt.

Largely as a result of Pearson's activity, a U.N. Emergency Force was organized to separate the belligerents. This force still is on duty in the Gaza area.

Pearson in June lost his Canadian Cabinet job as a result of elections which brough the Conservative party to power in Canada, sweeping out the Liberals.

Today in Ottawa Pearson said he was thunderstruck at the announcement. He had not known of it until he was advised by reporters.

Chance to Win $600 Pot-O-Gold, Aid Vocabulary

Although solving Pot-O-Gold isn't quite as easy as picking numbers out of a hat, it's a lot more fun and just as profitable. The prize is now at $600 for the new puzzle appearing on page 9 of today's paper.

And, as many puzzle fans will tell you, Pot-O-Gold is an excellent way to increase your vocabulary.

You're bound to run into several words that you must look up in the dictionary, and by the time you're familiar enough with it to use one in the puzzle, you've added another new word to your own vocabulary.

Where else can you find the possibility of being paid for learning and having fun? The right numbers can mean $600 for you. Better get started right now.

Morning Fog Causes Trouble in 3 Counties

DETROIT (INS) (AP) — Heavy fog cut visibility to 50 yards on some roads in western Wayne County and in Washtenaw and Macomb Counties early today.

More than 25 minor accidents were caused by the fog on Wayne County roads outside Detroit.

Between 25 and 30 freighters were forced to anchor because of fog extending from Port Huron to the Detroit River.

NEW YORK (INS) — The Tax Foundation, Inc., estimated today the federal government is now spending for agriculture more than $1,000 annually for every U. S. farm.

Lloyd in U.S. to Join in Welcoming Queen

NEW YORK (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd arrived here today by plane from London en route to Williamsburg, Va., to participate in the welcoming celebration for Queen Elizabeth II on Wednesday.

Lloyd declined to comment on Egyptian troops being sent into Syria. He said: "I am not here to comment on international affairs."

He also declined to make any statement on recent articles critical of royalty appearing here and in Britain.

Lloyd, who appeared tired, said to reporters, "I am sorry—when you say I had no comment to make, also please say it was 6 o'clock in the morning."

Federal Judge Bars Hoffa From Teamster Presidency

Queen Presides in Canada

OTTAWA (AP)—Elizabeth II, as Queen of Canada and in her white satin coronation dress, today opens the 23rd session of the Canadian Parliament. She is the first reigning monarch to perform that function.

Weather permitting, the Queen and her husband, Prince Philip, were to drive from Government House to Parliament Hill in the horse-drawn open state carriage.

Flags and bunting line the three-mile route of the ceremonial drive, and a brilliant display of military splendor was arranged—bright uniforms and medals, bands, flags and marching men.

The ceremonies in Parliament, being carried to Elizabeth's 18½ million Canadian subjects by television and radio, were planned to maintain all the rich color and deep-seated tradition of Old World Britain and New World Canada.

As in England, the Queen may not set foot in the elected House of Commons. The historic ceremonial was set in the smaller Senate chamber, a magnificent vaulted room of red and gold.

★ ★ ★

Flanked by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and Prince Philip, the Queen was to read—in English and French—the traditional "speech from the throne" outlining the new Conservative government's program. It was written for her by Diefenbaker's Cabinet.

HEAVY SCHEDULE

The schedule for the second full day of Elizabeth's Canadian visit also included a meeting with her Privy Council for Canada; a reception at Government House for the high commissioners of the heads of foreign missions and their wives, and, at night, a state dinner followed by a state reception for some 500 government officials, diplomats and others.

Elizabeth and Philip drove in brilliant sunshine yesterday morning to the Canadian National War Memorial, where they left a wreath of oak and maple leaves and then talked with a lineup of war veterans. A crowd of 10,000 cheered the smiling couple.

From the Memorial they drove to Old Christ Church Anglican Cathedral, where a crowd of 2,000 waited. There the prince, a lay reader, read the Second Lesson, the Parable of the Talents from the Book of Matthew.

The afternoon was spent quietly at Government House, walking in the spacious grounds and rehearsing for the Queen's television speech last night.

It was the Queen's live television debut, but she carried it off like a veteran. She spoke slowly, appearing relaxed and composed. Her voice was high pitched but not piping—as Lord Altrincham, a recent severe British critic of her platform manner, contended.

Seated at a desk, with photographs of her two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, visible at one side of the TV screen, Elizabeth wore a dress of silver embroidered, powder blue lame, a four-strand pearl necklace and a Tudor rose brooch.

For the 8-minute, 900-word speech she used a teleprompter and also referred to a script. Occasionally she switched into French for the benefit of the French-speaking provinces.

Elizabeth said she hoped to re-

Eisenhower Counts 67 Birthday Roses

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, pictured as feeling fine, observed his 67th birthday today and expressed warm thanks for gifts and best wishes.

The anniversary finds perhaps more controversy swirling about Eisenhower than at any time since he became president in 1953. But this was the day for temporarily setting aside domestic and international troubles alike.

★ ★ ★

White House employes had a bouquet of 67 red roses in his office when he arrived there this morning.

The Puerto Rico governor told newsmen he found Eisenhower "feeling fine and looking very good." He said he wished Eisenhower many happy returns.

As for the troubles facing Eisenhower on this birthday anniversary, Munoz put his finger on a major one in congratulating the President on his handling of the school integration situation at Little Rock, Ark.

Only one formal tribute was announced in advance—a late afternoon White House call by a delegation of several hundred Republican party fund raisers headed by Vice President Nixon and Meade Alcorn, chairman of the GOP National Committee. That group arranged to present a cake.

There were sure to be surprise tributes too, and the greetings that arrive annually by mail and telegram. A family dinner this evening also seems likely.

Eisenhower's business engagements for the day deal with both domestic and world problems.

The gown, heavy with diamonds, pearls and golden crystals, and banded with embroidery showing the floral emblems of each country in the Commonwealth, was created by London designer Norman Hartnell.

The gown has short sleeves, a full, flaring skirt and a fitted bodice, cut square over the shoulders to curve into a heart-shaped center. Top, sleeves and hem are embroidered with the gems.

Canada's maple leaf, in green silk embroidery, outlined in gold and veined in crystal, is among the floral emblems.

Billion Set for Roads

WASHINGTON (INS) — The government reported today that it has already committed one billion dollars in federal aid to the new interstate superhighway system.

Cairo Troops Bolster Syria

Egypt's Forces Likely to Be Deployed Along Turkish Border

CAIRO (INS)—Tensions crackled anew in the Middle East today after Cairo and Damascus announced that Egyptian troops, backed by air and naval units, had landed in Syria as a "defense" measure.

The Egyptian forces—their size a guarded secret—reportedly will be deployed along Syria's frontier with pro-Western Turkey.

The joint Egyptian-Syrian announcement also disclosed that "basic elements" of Egypt's military forces have been moving into Syria since mid-September.

The joint Egyptian-Syrian command in Cairo declared the troops were moved into Syria "in order to strengthen Syria's forces and her defense potentialities."

(Syria and Turkey, a member of both the pro-Western North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Baghdad Pact, have been locked in a cold war of words that has occasionally turned hot along their frontier.

(U.S. State Department officials received news of the troop movement calmly and viewed it as a propaganda "show" to impress the world with Arab unity.)

Ten-Day Order Also Includes Fellow Officers

Jurist Grants Request Made by 13 New York Rank-and-Filers

A temporary restraining order was signed by Judge F. Dickinson Letts at the request of a 13-man New York rank-and-file Teamsters group.

Hoffa said today he expects Teamster lawyers will appeal the restraining order.

refused to comment further on the order.

The order not only bars Hoffa from taking office, but also bars others elected with him from being sworn into office.

The temporary restraining order will remain in force for 10 days, but may be continued for another 10 days.

Judge Letts' order also calls upon Hoffa and others elected with him to show cause why the entire proceedings of the Teamsters convention at Miami Beach, Fla., recently should not be voided as unconstitutional and why Hoffa and other officers should not be permanently barred from taking office.

The session on holding up Hoffa's seating was delayed for more than an hour while the attorneys engaged in a hot verbal battle before another federal judge with counsel for the scandal-scarred Teamsters Union.

TRIAL DEMANDED

Martin O'Donoghue, Teamsters attorney, asked Judge John A. Sirica to put down for an immediate trial the case brought by a New York rank and file Teamster member group challenging Hoffa's election and other decisions of the convention.

Hoffa, target of labor scandals disclosures, was elected overwhelmingly at the convention to succeed Teamsters President Dave Beck, but the rank and file group is protesting that the entire convention was illegal on grounds that more than 80 per cent of its delegates were seated in violation of the union's constitution to rig Hoffa's election.

Judge Sirica turned down O'Donoghue's motion to have the case set down for immediate trial, but ordered the trial ex-

52 Teamsters Off Job

DETROIT (AP) — Fifty-two members of a Teamsters Union local in Detroit stayed off their jobs today while they decided whether to resign from the union. A meeting was scheduled tonight to vote on withdrawal. They are members of Local 337, headed by Bert Brennan, top assistant to James R. Hoffa, president-elect of the union. Brennan recently was elected an international vice president of the union.

To Circle Heart of Transformed, Revitalized Business District

Forward-Looking Kansas City Dedicates Freeway

KANSAS CITY — The first link in a freeway system that will circle the heart of a transformed and revitalized business district has been dedicated.

The system, which will eventually provide a hub for five major interstate highways from the north, south, east and west, will encompass 150 city blocks within its vast, network of roadways, bridges and clover-leaves.

The opening of the segment, a $12,500,000, twenty-five-block-long artery on the northern rim of the business district, marks the beginning of an ambitious, $500,000,000 program under which the city planners hope to complete their City of the Future by 1980.

CHALLENGE OF AUTOMOBILE

"We are trying to redesign and rebuild our city to meet the challenge of the automobile," said L. P. Cookingham, City Manager. "We believe that a strong downtown district is essential."

★ ★ ★

Newspaper men and executives from the Mid-West attended and toured the city where transformation has either begun or will soon start. William Zeckendorf, president of Webb and Knapp, of New York City, was the principal speaker at a dinner.

The freeway "loop" system will be completed in ten years at a cost of $90,000,000. It was designed to permit rapid flow of traffic either through this city of more than a half million persons or directly to its commercial center.

In many sections the city is acquiring land, blighted residential areas are being razed and modern commercial and public buildings erected. New apartment buildings and motor hotels are planned.

In one five-and-a-half-block area a private corporation has started building a $5,000,000 twelve-story office building with surface and sub-surface parking in the area for 1,400 cars. Construction of a $7,000,000 public library and Board of Education building is expected to begin in April in another area.

On the eastern fringe of the district thirty blocks have been incorporated into a redevelopment and renewal project to clear run-down residential neighborhoods and replace them with commercial districts. Slums are being demolished and large-scale public housing is undertaken to help relocate families on the western edge. Six new $3,000,000 169-unit structures are planned for the next five years.

BLOCK-WIDE SWATH

The freeway link, financed principally under a state program, cut a swath a block wide through what was once part of its Skid Row. Remaining sections of the loop will be constructed under a Federal highway program. Work has begun on the eastern arc, which will include a fifty-seven-acre, four-level interchange, one of the largest in the country.

Data May Give Military Aid

Meteorites Near Sputnik

LONDON (INS)—Sputnik I zipped around the world right on schedule today but a prominent Soviet scientist said the earth satellite may end its life within weeks.

Dr. U. D. Boulanger was quoted in the Russian trade union newspaper "Trud" as hinting that the Sputnik may be "shot" down by micrometeorites.

The satellite, Boulanger said, "is now undergoing a bombardment by micrometeorites whose speed reaches 50 miles per second.

"These particles hit the satellite with armour-piercing force. One can assume some of them will go right through the satellite."

Boulanger also said the rocket carrier, which has been whirling around the earth in company with the satellite, may disintegrate soon and shower the earth with burning pieces of metal.

The scientist, who is a leading physico-mathematician, also talked of the military benefits Russia can expect from the data gathered by the satellite. The aim if Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles can be sharpened, he said, because of more accurate information on the curvature of the earth.

Ex-Editor of Punch Takes Punch at British Royalty

PHILADELPHIA (INS) — The activities of Britain's Royal Family were described today as a "soap opera" with Queen Elizabeth as the "dowdy, frumpish and banal" star.

The description was included in a Saturday Evening Post article by Malcolm Muggeridge, controversial former editor of Punch, a British humor magazine, who titled his story, "Does England Really Need a Queen?"

Unlike former rulers, said Muggeridge, "It is inconceivable that Elizabeth II should . . . use her still theoretically valid royal prerogatives" to govern even for minor office — she who translates a Mr. into an Earl Attlee."

Rewarding in such fashion, "rather than with jobs and money," said Muggeridge, "is so much cheaper and less complicated."

★ ★ ★

He wrote:

"The Townsend affair and other rumored romances have helped to sustain viewers' interest at a peak level."

Muggeridge said the royal popularity is greatest among the masses which can hero worship; its appeal "is to the gallery rather than the stalls."

The writer expressed doubt that Queen Elizabeth's advisers were putting her across as a "useful unifying element" in society, and said she needs "new men around her . . . who understand what the mid-twentieth century is about, and what is the role of a constitutional monarch at such a time."

He added:

"The monarchy, then, has become a pure show. It exists ceremonially, as a constitutional convenience, but would no more be able to make itself felt politically than the guardsmen in the bearskins and red coats on sentry duty outside Buckingham Palace would be able to defend it against a serious attack."

'ERSATZ' MONARCHY

Muggeridge wrote that in order to survive, the monarchy "has had to divest itself of all save its purely symbolic functions."

He compared it with an "ersatz religion," with Queen Elizabeth as "the fount of honors," adding:

"It is she who knights superannuated politicians who have been unable to make the grade pedited as soon as O'Donoghue files an answer for the Teamsters Union.

Godfrey Schmidt and Thomas J. Dodd, attorneys for the rank and file group, said they, too, wanted a quick trial but wanted the benefit first of a union answer to the charges of delegate illegality.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee has said methods of selecting some of the convention delegates were scandalous.

McClellan has alleged that half the convention delegates were improperly selected.

He mentioned a rule which says all delegate credentials must be in the union's headquarters office 30 days before a convention opens.

But he said this was bypassed under "the rule of reason," and contended "there is nothing wrong about it."

MORE DATA SOUGHT

McClellan disclosed that his Senate group is seeking more information on Hoffa's use of union funds. He said all Teamster locals in the Central and Southern Conferences have been asked to supply a listing of their cash assets, their stocks and bonds, all of their loans since January 1950, and any advances or payments to other Teamsters units.

★ ★ ★

The committee already has asked all Teamster locals for their records relating to selection of convention delegates.

★ ★ ★

Beck faces trial soon on a federal indictment charging he evaded more than $250,000 in income taxes. Hoffa is to go to trial tomorrow in New York on wiretap conspiracy charges. He also faces arraignment tomorrow on another federal indictment alleging perjury before a federal grand jury.

★ ★ ★

Beyond all the pending civil and criminal actions against Hoffa, he faces a fight next week before the AFL-CIO Executive Council. The council has labeled Hoffa and Beck corrupt and unfit to continue in union power.

MAY OUST UNION

The council, at its meeting here Oct. 24, will consider suspending the Teamsters for maintaining Hoffa in union office. This decision will be subject to a ratifying vote at the AFL-CIO convention at Atlantic City in December.

Hoffa obviously hopes to persuade the AFL-CIO Council to put the Teamsters on probation or a similar lighter punishment than suspension.

The animals included dogs, cats, monkeys, hamsters and guinea pigs. Owner Jack Christilaw said the most valuable pet that died was a small chipanzee worth $195. A valuable myna, parakeets, canaries and finches were among the dead birds.

'White' Regime in San Marino

SAN MARINO (AP)—Anti-Communists today took over the government of the tiny republic of San Marino for the first time in 12 years.

An enthusiastic crowd of 4,000 San Marinese almost mobbed members of the new "White" regime as they arrived in San Marino village from the abandoned steel factory that had been their headquarters during almost two weeks of political dispute.

The crowd forced their new leaders to run inside the government palace for shelter even before the government had gone through the formal ceremony of taking over.

Capt. Ettore Sozzi, the Italian who commands the San Marino police force, has been ruling the tiny republic since the rival Communist government surrendered Friday.

Sozzi was to have handed three keys for the government palace and offices to the four members of the new government today in a ceremonial transfer of power. The crowd's enthusiasm canceled out the arrangements. The door to the government palace wasn't locked anyway.

A motorcade of some 50 automobiles and hundreds of motor scooters brought the four chiefs of the new government—a coalition of Christian Democrats, Independents and anti-Communist Socialists—to the village square.

Sozzi led the procession, in one of the republic's five taxicabs. The people have no cars.

The Communists and their Socialist allies had ruled since the end of World War II.

Final arrangements were made for circulating some 400 petitions for bus transportation for all children until safe walking facilities are provided. Attorney George J. Faulkerson is the legal adviser for the group.

★ ★ ★

Form letters are also being circulated requesting State Sen. L. Harvey Lodge to intercede in the Legislature on behalf of parents concerned with their children's safety, Blair said.

Morris Pleads Guilty

Herbert T. Morris, 32, of 4595 Oak Vista Rd., Clarkston, pleaded guilty to reckless driving, Saturday, before Keego Harbor Justice James Southart and paid a fine of $45 plus $5 costs.

Kasper Gets Prison

WASHINGTON (INS) — The Supreme Court today upheld, in effect, the one year prison sentence received by segregationist John Kasper for criminal contempt, an outgrowth of last year's Clinton, Tenn., demonstrations and rioting against school integration.

The Day in Birmingham

Teen Traffic Court Ready for Opening Tomorrow

BIRMINGHAM — Juvenile Judge Arthur Moore will officially open Birmingham's Teen Traffic Court when five defendants appear at 9 a.m. tomorrow morning.

Juvenile officer Robert Schaule said a court staff of 20 high school seniors will hear the cases.

From this group will be chosen a jury and various members necessary to conduct hearings.

The five are ticketed for such offenses as speeding, violation of a stop sign and running a red light. Each defendant must be accompanied by a parent.

Schaule said those wishing to do so might appeal the decision of the Teen Court and appear in the regular Municipal Court.

He added that the Birmingham Exchange Club has volunteered its sponsorship of the court as part of its youth program. All financial burdens will be assumed by the club.

City commissioners have received a letter from John B. Hollister, vice president of the S. S. Kresge Co., Real Estate Dept., officially protesting their declaration of necessity of the Maple-Bates Alley.

Hollister said that in his opinion, the assessment of any portion of the proposed alley against his company would be unfair.

He said it will not now, nor in the future, be of any benefit to the firm.

At the meeting this evening, commissioners will adopt a resolution allowing the use by residents of property owned by the city at the Southeast corner of Maple and Cranbrook Roads.

Property owners may seed and landscape the area as a park section to provide a separation zone from their homes and a nearby gas station.

The city reserves the right for its equipment and light telephone company trucks to have access to the premises for maintenance purposes. No buildings or structures of any kind will be permitted.

Commissioners also will consider a request from the Bell Greenhouses to have property on Ann Street zoned for business.

The owner explained that he recently became aware of the fact that the area is multiple dwelling zoning. He said that this factor destroyed his opportunity to sell his holdings.

Altrusa Club will join League of Women Voters in a "Workshop for Peace," program tomorrow.

Following dinner at the Carrie Lee Tearoom, the group will meet at Baldwin Public Library for the program.

Dr. Ethel Calhoun will be assisted by Mrs. Russell Barnes. Films on "The United Nations" and "UNESCO in Mexico and Thailand" will be shown.

Schools Report Flu Abating

Absenteeism on Wane Most Pontiac Area Principals Announce

School attendance apparently is on the way back to normal, as more students continue to recover from the flu epidemic which spread last week throughout the county, officials report today.

In Pontiac, the sharpest decrease in absenteeism was noticeable at Pontiac High School where 436 of the 2,891 students were missing from their desks Friday as compared to the 849 absent last Monday. This represented a decrease in absenteeism from 29 to 15 per cent.

Fifteen per cent of the children enrolled in Pontiac public schools were absent Friday, slightly less than last Monday. However, increases of about 4 per cent in the number of persons absent in Eastern and Lincoln Junior High Schools occured Friday.

Malkin Elementary School, which reported 53.7 per cent of its children absent Monday, had improved attendance records by Friday when the absence rate dropped to 45.2 per cent.

Absenteeism in Waterford Township High School was almost normal at the conclusion of classes Friday according to Superintendant William Schunck.

He added, however, elementary grades throughout the township schools reported an increase in absentee enrollment.

Students attending Holly schools returned to classes today after a two-day vacation last week because of the spread of influenza.

Holly Schools Superintendent Charles Coggins reports 309 stulents of the 2,046 and five teachers failed to show up for classes today. A week ago, 510 students were absent from three Holly schools.

Dr. John D. Monroe, director of the Oakland County Health Department, said today samplings would be taken in one or two flu areas to check if certain persons who are extremely ill have the Asian variety of flu. Monroe said his staff would take throat washings and blood samples late today and tomorrow and forward the samples to Lansing for testing.

Two cases of Asian Flu were reported several weeks ago in the southern portion of the county, according to Monroe.

Poem to Sputnik Composed by Gov. Williams

LANSING (AP) — Gov. Williams turned to poetry today to express himself on the subject of earth satellites.

"Oh, little Sputnik, flying high
With made-in-Moscow beep,
And Uncle Sam's asleep.

"You say on fairway and on rough,
The Kremlin knows it all.
We hope our golfer knows enough

Says Newspapers Must Raise Prices

BOSTON (AP) — An Indiana University expert on newspaper finances says the answer to increased newspaper production costs must be increases in the price of newspapers and in their advertising rates.

Associate Prof. Poynter McEvoy also said in an interview last night that labor-saving mechanical devices have been overrated as a way to cut newspaper costs.

McEvoy said newspapers are taking in about a third of the 10 billion dollars spent annually on advertising in all mediums, in spite of the emergence of television as a consumer of advertising dollars.

McEvoy was in Boston for the 19th annual meeting of Newspapers Controllers and Finance Officers.

McKinney Pleads Guilty

James B. McKinney, 33, of 118 E. Walton Blvd., pleaded guilty to drunk driving before Orion Township Justice Helmar G. Stanaback, Saturday, and was sentenced to serve 90 days in the Oakland County Jail after failing to pay a fine of $100 plus $5 costs.

Know the Weather

By E. H. SIMS

What is meant when we speak of the air ocean? How far upward—and below the ground, does it extend?

The air ocean is that layer of gas which surrounds the earth and penetrates beneath the ground for a short distance. It is thought to be about 250 miles high though all living things dwell in the three miles of air above the earths surface.

The necessary air for insects, moles and creatures which live underground extends down to about ten feet below the surface. Nothing will be found living below this depth.

Human beings begin to need oxygen at about 10,000 feet if they fly. Prolonged stay about 15,000 feet will usually prove fatal.

Pontiac Receives 11 Radios for Civil Defense

The city of Pontiac has just received 11 mobile radioes to be used for Civil Defense purposes and to be installed in emergency vehicles.

* * *

Robert A. Stierer, assistant CD director for Pontiac, said the sets will be placed in water department and other utility service trucks. "When they are not used for actual Defense purposes," Stierer said, "they will be employed for training and other operational uses."

The radios were purchased under a federal-city matching funds plan. Federal funds paid half of the $4,661 costs while the balance was from city funds.

Japan is now entering the United States' markets for small cars along with the midget automobiles which have been coming from European factories.

GOP Should Back Soapy for Presidential Nominee

Governor G. MENNEN WILLIAMS is really "Big Time" in the State of Michigan where he's just about the "runningest" candidate the Wolverine Commonwealth ever spawned.

★ ★ ★

His list of successive victories is impressive and has been wrested from a horde of opponents that represent everything the Republican party could throw against him. However, his political reputation has not spread with the same signal success to other districts.

★ ★ ★

The Daily News (New York City) has the largest circulation in the United States and we append its reception of WILLIAMS' Presidential announcement:

"It looks as if the Republicans have lost, at least temporarily, a lot of ground in the South because of Gen. EISENHOWER'S Little Rock intervention. However, they might be worse off. We're referring to the news that G. MENNEN (Soapy) WILLIAMS, the bouncing, bumptious Democratic Governor of Michigan, has decided to make a strong bid for his party's Presidential nomination in 1960. Coming as it does on the heels of JAMES R. HOFFA'S election as president of the Teamsters Union, this news may indicate that WILLIAMS, who already is a political pal of WALTER P. REUTHER, expects also to become a pal of HOFFA.

★ ★ ★

"Be that as it may, the Republicans can take heart from the fact that few, if any, Northern Democrats can make more Southerners see red than can Soapy Williams. His nomination would all but guarantee formation of a third party down South. Our tip to the GOP would be to do anything it can to help keep Soapy's Presidential bug alive and itching him."

Atomic Peace Agency Headed by Rep. Cole

The first general conference of the new International Atomic Energy Agency is being held in Vienna.

Although the military significance of the Russian earth satellite must be in every mind, the meeting has proceeded in comparative harmony. The Soviets, as a matter of course, attempted to seat Red China and pressed for prohibition of nuclear arms without inspection. Both resolutions were voted down by the 62 nations represented.

W. STERLING COLE, a member of last year's U.S. delegation which helped to organize the first world atoms-for-peace agency, was unanimously elected its first director general. A 23 member board also was voted on with Dr. PAVEL WINKLER, a Czechoslovakian, as chairman.

As New York's Republican Representative, the able Mr. COLE has served on many committees having to do with our military policy and atomic energy. He helped to rewrite the basic U.S. atomic energy law in our atoms-for-peace program.

One of the big problems will be to get the various members to contribute their shares. While this country has offered 11,000 pounds of uranium, and other western nations are prepared to contribute in proportion to their supplies, Russia has offered only 110 pounds. Other Soviet nations so far have offered nothing.

Mr. COLE not only must get more contributors, but guide this "Atomic United Nations" toward making the atom serve the cause of peace. In the light of recent Soviet accomplishments his task is indeed a difficult one.

"BRIGHT colors for men will be worn next spring," says the National Association of Men's Apparel Clubs. This prediction bobs up about as often as the prediction that the world will end at an early date, and the chance that either will prove true is about even.

THE Government could reduce income taxes considerably, without decreasing its revenue, by sharply raising taxes on cigarettes and gasoline, as people will continue to burn both in increasing quantities, regardless of cost.

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

Message From the Skies

David Lawrence Says:

Sen. Robertson Hits Ike's Big Act

WASHINGTON — Chapter and verse out of the Constitution and the Code of Federal Statutes now have been furnished in a public speech by Senator Willis A. Robertson of Virginia who declares flatly that President Eisenhower violated the "law of the land" when he sent federal troops into Arkansas. Thus far very little has been printed throughout the country about this speech.

LAWRENCE

"I believe," says Senator Robertson, "that the President of the United States was guilty of an ill-advised assault on the fundamental principles of the Constitution when, without any request from local or state authorities or their admission that they were unable to control a local situation, he ordered paratroopers into Little Rock, Ark."

Mr. Robertson is an experienced legislator and, as chairman of the Senate's banking and currency committee, he has earned the respect of the nation's leading businessmen. He has lately had a staff of legal experts at work examining all the federal statutes involved in the Arkansas affair and comes to the same conclusion expressed heretofore in these dispatches by this correspondent concerning the specific federal laws that were disregarded by the federal government at Little Rock.

FAUBUS OBEYED

Overlooked generally is that, however one may criticize the governor of Arkansas for calling out the National Guard in the first place, the fact is that on Friday, Sept. 20, he obeyed a federal court injunction and withdrew the National Guard. What is being questioned from a constitutional viewpoint is the action of the Eisenhower administration a few days later in sending federal troops into Arkansas.

Mr. Robertson contends that it doesn't make any difference "whether or not you believe white and colored children should go to school together," as the same principles and precedents at Little Rock would apply to any order issued by an anti-labor president requiring a union "to disband and surrender its assets."

The Virginia senator goes on to say that the use of troops with bayonets "to enforce integration in a Southern school has caused added, and I believe justified resentment, however, because of circumstances which make it appear as an act of bad faith as well as a threat to constitutional liberties."

Mr. Robertson then quotes from explicit promises and pledges given by the attorney general to Congress last spring that federal troops would not be used to enforce civil rights. The President in his proclamation of Sept. 23 cited sections 331, 332, 333 and 334 of title ten of the Revised Code of 1956 in support of the sending of federal troops into Arkansas. Here is what Senator Robertson says in analyzing these laws:

MILITIA USE GRANTED

"Section 331, dating back to 1795, authorized the President to call out the militia of other states to help suppress an insurrection in a particular state when specifically requested by the Legislature or by the governor of that state to give such assistance.

"Section 334 merely specifies that, when the President considers it necessary to use the militia or the armed forces to deal with insurrection, he shall issue a proclamation ordering the insurgents to disperse and retire peaceably to their homes within a limited time.

"Under section 332, which dates back to 1861, the President could use the armed forces to enforce 'the laws of the United States' but the use of that section and the subsequent section 333 must be weighed against the specific action taken by the Congress in the civil rights bill last August with the President's approval and by a unanimous vote of the Senate. It must also be weighed against the Constitution.

"The civil rights bill became public law 85-315 (85th Congress). It repealed section 1989 of the Revised Statutes (42 U.S. Code 1993) which empowered the President to use the military forces to aid 'in the execution of judicial process' in civil rights cases . . . "

Dr. William Brady Says:

Animals, Savages Need No Breathing Instruction

Animals and savages naturally or instinctively breathe with the diaphragm. This is the easiest and most efficient way to breathe.

Poorly trained or poorly educated persons try to breathe with the chest muscles when they are conscious or when they think of their breathing. When they're asleep or unconscious, they breathe with the diaphragm.

DR. BRADY

Watch an animal breathe after a sustained effort such as running or fighting—the breathing is bellows or belly breathing, while the thorax, chest or lung cage is rigid or relaxed but certainly not thrust out or "expanded."

Deep breathing is diaphragmatic, bellows or belly breathing.

In order to know how to breathe (for Volumette XXI of the Pocket Cyclopedia of Health, How to Breathe, send 35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope), it is necessary, first, to understand clearly what the belly is and second, what the diaphragm is and how it works.

Te belly is the front wall of the abdomen (accent on the do). The abdomen is the lower and larger body cavity, containing the liver, stomach, spleen, gallbladder, pancreas, small intestine, large intestine and a network of blood vessels which may hold as much as one-fourth of the entire volume of blood in the body under some circumstances.

Excepting physicians, nine out of ten persons do not know what and where the diaphragm is, or how it works.

The diaphragm is a partition separating the upper or thoracic from the lower or abdominal cavity. It consists of an outer ring of muscle fibres attached to the tip of the breastbone, insides of the lower ribs, rib cartilages and front of the lumbar vertebrae.

The diaphragm covers the liver, stomach, spleen and intestines like a tarpaulin. When it contracts, it presses down upon these organs and upon the network of blood vessels in the abdomen.

At the same time, as the convex diaphragm contracts and flattens, it lowers pressure within the chest and (1) air is inhaled and (2) blood is forced from the veins in the abdomen into the veins in the thorax and on into the right auricle of the heart.

So the diaphragm is not only the main muscle of breathing but is also an important aid to the circulation.

Coming National Problem to Be Shortage of Water

CHICAGO (AP) — Nationwide shortages of water were foreseen by Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton today and he suggested conversion of sea water as a solution to the problem.

"Within a relatively few years America's No. 1 domestic problem could be water—water for human, agricultural and industrial use," he said.

Seaton said the Eisenhower administration is alert to the water problem and has authorized 58 water resources projects in 28 states since taking office in 1952.

But the secretary said existing programs would be insufficient to meet a national water need of 453 billion gallons daily, expected by 1975. He said the U.S. now uses 262 billion gallons daily.

"We must go to the sea itself, and bring back from it fresh water to make life possible on the land," he asserted.

Such conversions of salt water were economically impractical until a few years ago, Seaton said.

"Saline water conversion cost $1.50 or more per thousand gallons five years ago," he said. "Today, due to private research under contract with the Department of Interior, it is expected that this cost can be brought down to 60 cents or less."

Seaton said by 1972 and maybe sooner, fresh water from the oceans should become available at moderate prices.

The secretary also touched on the national park system, supervised by his department. He said the parks have been damaged by years of neglect.

"Lacking adequate appropriations and planning the park system had in 11 years sunk to the point where we were in real danger of losing this magnificent natural resource," he said.

Seaton said the administration has taken steps which already have improved the park system.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There's many a rejection slip between the synopsis and the scenario. That's why the Wisconsin vote is no more ultimate guarantee than a bird dog pointing an egg.

But straws show which way the broom went. Remember when Minnesota than an heiress advertising for a good-looking chauffeur?

That was eight months before the 1952 election. We concede the straw in the wind is not hay in the barn. This time we have to wait three years for the wheel to come full brake.

By that time the green fields of Wisconsin could be left, right and center.

That state is so nuts about baseball that dowagers wear shinguards under their evening gowns.

We'll have to switch the political prognostication around. As Maine goes Wisconsin has already went.

By 1960 they may be dropping the dining car further west than Schenectady.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Feels Killing Sometimes Justified

With a bank bandit shooting at you, would you grab a shotgun and fire back, as Rev. Gingery did? Or would you meekly let the robber shoot you down and thus leave your wife a widow and your children without a father? Which action does the most good for the most people over the longest period of time? That is the true yardstick for morality.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case W-319: Robert Gingery, aged 37, is a Methodist Clergyman at New Albany, Indiana.

DR. CRANE

Earlier this year you probably read about his hazardous encounter with an escaped bank robber.

Rev. Gingery was riding with one of his parishioners, Sgt. Marvin Walts, when their radio reported the bank holdup. Sgt. Walts immediately used his car as a road block.

Soon an automible approached and stopped. Sgt. Walts got out to check upon the driver. Alas, it was the bandit; The latter whipped out a gun and killed the loyal police officer.

Then the rober, brandishing two guns, headed for the car in which Rev. Gingery was seated. The bandit fired at the minister but missed.

★ ★ ★

The clergyman meanwhile had seized a shotgun from the back seat. After the first shot from the bank robber, Rev. Gingery finally got the safety off the gun and hurriedly pulled the trigger.

He killed the bandit, thereby saving his own life.

Some devout folks may feel that killing is never justifiable. Thus, we have sincere conscientious objectors in time of war.

They prefer to turn the other cheek and submit to communism, pillage, rape, and all indignities that the invader may wish to heap upon their innocent women and children.

For they argue that the Bible says "Thou shalt not kill," which is one of the Ten Commandents.

★ ★ ★

Our civil courts, however, maintain that killing in self-defense is justifiable. And our U.S. Congress drafts men for war. Who is right?

CHRIST'S ATTITUDE

On the night of Christ's arrest, Peter drew the sword in defense of Jesus.

But Christ forbade him to continue, since Jesus realized he must face his destiny and go through with the mock trial and crucifixion.

But a few minutes earlier, Jesus had instructed his followers (Luke 22:36): ". . . and he that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one."

Just two verses later in the Gospel of Luke, we also find this:

"And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough."

★ ★ ★

At another time Jesus went over to a green fig tree for some of its fruit, but it was barren. So the Bible says Christ cursed the fig tree.

Next morning when Peter accompanied Jesus, Peter remarked that the tree was withered and dead, clear down to its roots (Mark 11:20).

So Christ apparently killed an unfruitful fig tree. Would He have slain an animal or a human being?

He also drove the moneychangers out of the temple with physical force and upset their tables. So Jesus was not a complete pacifist, for the Bible shows us he used physical violence in good causes.

TIGER OR MAN

When this bank bandit shot and killed a police officer in cold blood and then attempted to murder Rev.

Gingery, was he really a human being or just a 2-legged tiger?

If a jungle monster springs at you, should you then try to reason with it?

"Cast not your pearls before swine," Jesus warned us, meaning that we should use methods that will work on the limited mentality of the creatures we meet.

If Rev. Gingery had attempted to save this bandit's soul, his first word would probably have been met with another bullet, for one had already whizzed by his head.

Rev. Gingery is reported to have said he thought he could do more good for mankind alive and in his pulpit, than under a stone slab in the cemetery.

Do you agree? He certainly gets my vote in the matter.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Winner Will Get Prize of $600 in Pot-O-Gold

Pot-O-Gold loot is climbing fast, and it's now overflowing with $600 that awaits the person who picks the lucky numbers. Read the clues and pick the words that fit. Then write the numbers in the corresponding puzzle blanks. If you get them all right, you'll get that $600.

The new puzzle contains a series of squares which are alphabetically lettered and a corresponding list of sentences with two clue words. Each of the words is numbered. The object is to select the word which you think best fits the clue sentence. You then place the number of that word in the square which has the same letter as the clue sentence.

In other words, you will read the clue labeled A and decide which of the two words makes the most sense in the puzzle square marked A.

Junior Editors Quiz on CENTAURS

QUESTION: Did centaurs really exist?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: The horse has a curious history. His earliest ancestor, back before the dawn of history, was called the dawn horse, and was no larger than a fox. As the horse evolved, he may have had two horns or perhaps just one, as the modern zebra suggests, but he never had the head of a man. Centaurs, the creature that is half man and half horse, existed only in legends among the Greeks and later the Romans. Mythology's most famous centaur was Chiron, noted for his learning and skill with the bow and arrow. A pupil of the Greek god Apollo, Chiron became the tutor of Apollo's son, Aesculapius, teaching him how to hunt as well as instructing him in the more serious arts and sciences.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: Cut out this picture of Chiron and Aesculapius, paste down on cardboard and color it with your crayone. To make it stand, fold the end panel back and the bottom panel forward. Make a list of other animals and birds in legend that were part men and part beast. Don't forget to include the sphinx and griffen.

Sir Michael Adeane

Acts as Adviser to Queen

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS

When Queen Elizabeth started her tour of "The New World" she was accompanied by a royal advisor supreme who is known throughout the realm as "the eyes and ears of the sovereign."

Officially the queen's private secretary, Sir Michael Adeane is the most important member of the royal household and will stay close by her majesty as she travels in the U.S. and Canada.

★ ★ ★

The difficulties that such a royal visit entail will not be new to Sir Michael who accompanied King George VI to the U.S. in 1939 as his assistant private secretary.

Behind him also is a family tradition of service to England's monarchs. His maternal grandfather was private secretary to Queen Victoria and then to the late King George V.

Considered the direct link between the queen and the outside world, Sir Michael is expected to keep watch during the tour for any special troubles or problems that might crop up.

His duties demand that he use intelligence, discretion, sound political judgment and common sense in carrying out his delicate and difficult job.

Since he also is intermediary between Buckingham Palace and the government, his work must be done without arousing the resentment of Parliament, which has been traditionally suspicious of the post eyer since George III created it.

The queen's servant, who wields more power than any other palace employe, was born in 1910, the son of the late Capt. H. R. A. Adeane, killed in action in 1914.

★ ★ ★

He was commissioned into his father's regiment, the Coldstream Guards, and then served two governors general in Canada before returning to England in 1937 to be appointed equerry to King George VI.

His impressive palace career was abruptly halted by the war when he rejoined the regiment. After the war he resumed royal service, becoming private secretary when Alan Lascelles retired in 1953.

★ ★ ★

Sir Michael, who is married and the father of a son, leaves his apartments at St. James's Palace every morning for Buckingham, where he tackles hundreds of the queen's letters.

Later in the morning when he is received by her majesty, he brings to her attention important matters, plans her schedule with her and informs her of anything he thinks she should know about.

Everyone Must Be Concerned With Safety

By REAR ADMIRAL H. B. MILLER
Director President's Committee for Traffic Safety

Let's start with a basic assumption: Everybody is concerned about our tragic record of traffic accidents—or says he is, and he thinks: "My, isn't that terrible!"

Maybe—and I emphasize maybe—the thought may occur on occasion: "I could be one of those victims. Or someone in my family, or a good friend." And then comes the impulsive reaction:

DO SOMETHING

"Something should be done about it."

Which usually means that "somebody" should do something.

Well, let's quit the self-hypnotism. The "somebody" is you and I and everyone with a decent regard for human beings. And the "something" has no mystery about it whatever.

Although far too few people realize it, there is a way to knock the daylights out of the traffic accident problem This isn't just somebody's opinion It's a fact, proven again and again, in towns and cities all over these United States It comes in two parts:

★ ★ ★

First—The "Action Program."

Second—Organized public support.

The first part is largely the concern of the responsible public officials. The "Action Program" is, in effect, a "prescription," embodying the practical measures which experience has shown to be necessary to reduce street and highway accidents. It is the product of years and years of research and experience by the nation's foremost safety experts.

The prescription embraces laws and ordinances, accident records, education, enforcement, engineering, motor vehicle administration and public information.

You can't leave out any of the elements and expect full success, any more than your pharmacist can leave something out of your doctor's prescription and expect the intended benefits.

To help every citizen understand what this program is, and how he can support it, the President's Committee offers a series of eight short films: a 13-minute picture, dealing with organization for traffic safety; and seven shorter ones, explaining each element of the Action Program.

They're worth seeing—they'll inspire you to action. Available, also, is a leaflet, presenting the whole story in simple language. Both can be had, just by dropping a note or a postcard to the President's Committee for Traffic Safety, General Services Building, Washington 25, D. C.

They'll let you know what your local and state governments — and you — should be doing.

But that's just by way of getting yourself informed — or "briefed," as we used to say in the Navy. It's Point 2—organized public support—where you and I get into the act. Or, at least, we'd better get into it if we really mean it when we say we want to save lives and stop the maiming of human bodies.

The reason why we must get into it is that our public officials just can't—and in some cases, won't—do the job without our backing.

REPRESENT YOU

Remember that officials are simply the representatives of the people. If the people want traffic safety, and say so in a clear voice, their officials will see that they get it.

★ ★ ★

Too often, when an official puts his ear to the ground, all that he hears is a roar of "do" and "don't do" that gives no more meaning than the droning of innumerable motors, so, he merely nods.

Or, he thinks of the experiences of conscientious men like Mayor Hartsfield of Atlanta, who did what needed doing to reduce accidents.

His good work annoyed a number of influential people, so they voted him out of office. There was a happy ending, though. Atlanta's thinking people organized; made the citizens realize that the Mayor was right; and he was voted back into office, and kept there.

Isn't the lesson clear? The need for organized citizen support is so obvious that it needs no illumination. It is so important that the President's Committee for Traffic Safety has made it a primary objective.

NOT HARD

So, how is it brought about? It's not as difficult as one might think, and you can find the directions in the simple and easy-to-follow Workbook prepared for the 1956 Regional Conferences of the President's Committee.

It's only an eighth of an inch thick, but it gives all the answers anybody needs to get an organization rolling: the what, how, who, where, when and why. It was prepared by a group of the most knowledgeable, experienced men in the field of safety.

It's so good that Mrs. Raymond Sayre, chairman of the Women's Group of the President's Committee, said at the conclusion of the first Regional Conference:

★ ★ ★

"You can put on an absolutely first rate safety program if you just take this Workbook home, and study it and use it. You don't need anything else."

You can have a copy for the asking. Same address as you use to get the "Action Program": President's Committee for Traffic Safety, Washington 25, D. C.

So, how about it? It will take a little work—that's admitted. But isn't it worth a little work to correct something that has killed more than a million Americans?

Even today, with 65 million motor vehicles in operation, we have just finished a year which had 40,000 traffic deaths. How many will we have in 1966, when it is estimated there will be 82 million vehicles?

You and I, and our neighbors and fellow townsmen can help determine what the answer will be. If we organize, it can be a good answer; if we don't, it will be one that will horrify.

One-man crusades for traffic safety undoubtedly accomplish some good, and the committee salutes those sturdy individuals who conduct them. "More power to them," is the prayer.

But, one voice can be very feeble when it's raised against the human frailties of thousands of motorists and their public officials, whose errors and derelictions create the traffic accident problem.

Many voices — organized voices — afford the only means of success. The job that needs doing requires teamwork — lots of it — today, tomorrow and continually. The Action Program tells what must be done. The Workbook shows how you, as a good citizen, can see that it is done.

Next: "More Police for Better Enforcement," written by Otis M. Whitney, Commissioner, Massachusetts Department of Public Safety.

Lebanon Valley College of Annville, Pa., won only one football game in 1956. It beat Wilkes, its first rival, 39 to 6, then lost seven straight.

In 1955 the American Cancer Society raised $26,000,000 for its fight against man's cruelest disease. Yet in that same year two and a half billion dollars was spent on legal betting on horse racing, 100 times as much as that spent on the cancer fight.

COMMON GOAL — Community leaders get together to discuss how to keep their streets and highways safe. Everyone is concerned about the nation's tragic record of traffic accidents — but few participate in helping to lower the death statistics.

Keg Worth $10,000

Two Armed Guards Bring Ike Cognac on Birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two armed guards showed up at the White House the other day toting a 67-year-old gift for President Eisenhower, who, by a remarkable coincidence, is 67 today.

The present: a keg of 1890 cognac, stuff so rare it was insured for $10,000, or, roughly, $66.67 a drink.

★ ★ ★

On the cask was a silver inscription that read:

"The cognac producers of France take pleasure in offering to Dwight David Eisenhower, President of the United States, this keg containing cognac of his own age on the occasion of his 67th birthday, October 14, 1957."

Now the question immediately arises: How come the Frenchmen, busy at their grape squeezing, would have time to think up a stunt like this?

★ ★ ★

The whole idea came from the lovely vineyards of Brooklyn, and its author was William Kaduson, a press agent with the chore of getting more people to drink more cognac.

Now, wearing a blue beret in honor of the great occasion, Kaduson was talking about the troubles he has had.

"We had to have this special gallon keg made," he said, "and then in order to keep it moist, we had to rinse it out with expensive cognac.

★ ★ ★

"We took the cognac from its barrel, put it in bottles for shipping and then poured it in the keg here. I still have one of the bottles it came in. Here. Smell the cork."

"This stuff really is priceless," he said. "I tried to get it delivered to the White House in an armored car, but the detective agency wouldn't go for that."

★ ★ ★

In case you don't usually take nips from a $10,000 jug, here are a few cognac notes supplied by Kaduson:

Cognac is a brandy, made from grapes grown in an area about a fourth the size of Rhode Island.

The soil is chalky, which is supposed to make the cognac better. "No one else can use the word 'cognac'," Kaduson said. "Why, even the Russians respect it."

After cognac is fermented and distilled, it's put into oak kegs to age. The longer it ages the better, which explains why 67-year-old stuff is thought to be very good indeed.

But, a final word. Does Eisenhower like cognac?

"I don't know," Kaduson said. He glummed up at the thought of preparing the liquor for someone who didn't care for it, but he soon brightened at a memory.

"When Winston Churchill was here," he said, "I sent him a case of cognac, and what he didn't drink, he took home with him."

Postal Dedication Put Off Till Nov. 9

Dedication ceremonies of the new Waterford Village post office have been postponed from Saturday, Oct. 19, to Saturday, Nov. 9, according to Mrs. Robert Amos, postmaster.

Congressman William Broomfield who was scheduled as main speaker, is unable to be present at the October dedication, he said.

The post office was moved this week from its former address on Andersonville road to a new building on Dixie Highway and is in full operation, Mrs. Amos said.

On the Job Training

DETROIT (AP) — Robert Ford, 34, of Detroit, wants to go back to prison to continue his education. Police found him sitting on the curb in front of a smashed window of a photography shop holding a camera he admitted taking from the window display. "I want to go to prison and learn a trade so I can get a job," police quoted him as saying. "I did this before in Chicago but I didn't learn enough. I need to go back to prison."

Experts Whip Together Shopping Lists

Uncle Sam Now Preparing '59 Budget; Poor Taxpayers Need Tight Friend

(Each year Uncle Sam sits down, figures out the family income, the expected expenses and works out a budget. Like many members of his family, he may get a little unhappy but somehow or other the bills get paid. This is how it's done.)

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the time of year when the poor taxpayer really needs a friend—a real penny-pinching champion of a friend.

PRESENT BUDGET

Come January, President Eisenhower will take that shopping list to Capitol Hill and present his budget for 1959's fiscal year—the 12-month period beginning next July 1.

No one can say right now just how big that budget will be. The last one—on which the government is now operating—was for nearly 72 billion dollars. That was an all-time record for peacetime.

The President's advisors want to keep the 1959 budget at or below the fiscal 1958 figure. Right now that's more hope than firm expectation. Two factors alone could bring a swing of billions of dollars: the international situation and the wage-price spiral.

COME CLOSE

It's a near-miracle the budget makers even come close to guessing how much the government is going to take in and how much it's going to spend in a year.

Uncle Sam has to guess how much you're going to pay in income taxes, how much he'll collect in taxes from corporations that may not even exist right now, and even how many bottles of whisky Americans will buy next year.

The federal budget starts out as the germ of an idea, and winds up 16 months later as about 1,100 pages of facts, figures and estimates.

TAKING SHAPE

The budget that President Eisenhower will present to Congress next January began taking shape last March.

The staff of the Budget Bureau, along with Treasury experts and members of the Council of Economic Advisors, began taking serious readings of the international and economic barometers.

In April the outlook was discussed with the President and his Cabinet. Then the biggest of the government agencies—and some of them are big indeed—submitted preliminary estimates of their financial needs. These estimates, in turn, were compared with estimates of revenue as developed by the Treasury Department.

NEED MONEY

Practically every year the bureaucrats say they are going to need more money than the tax people say is going to be available. Then the decision has to be made: cut the programs to fit the revenue, or raise taxes to fit the programs?

This year the administration decided to hold spending as low as possible in fiscal 1959 so there would be leeway for a tax cut next year.

With that in mind, preliminary estimates submitted by the various departments—commerce, labor, defense, post office, and so forth—were sent to Budget Bureau experts for close examination.

ESTIMATES CUT

This causes no end of grief. Actually, it's part of the game that everyone plays in Washington, based on two simple facts: No bureaucrat ever got all the money he wanted, nor did he expect to get all he asked for.

After preliminary haggling, the revised agency figures go to the President. He assigns ceiling amounts for each major agency. This calls for another review by the Cabinet, where the real high level beefing takes place.

COMPILE TABLES

During the next three months—July through September — the agencies compile the detailed information and tables which go into the finished budget.

When the President sends his budget to Congress, the fun really starts. Congress whacks the budget here, and pads it there. It cuts out some of the President's programs, and adds some of its own.

Economy-minded congressman summon Cabinet officers to Capitol Hill and ask them to justify the requests they've made. At the same time, other congressmen are sponsoring separate money bills of benefit only to their constituents back home.

Congress, on the other hand, has a free reign with its own budget. It makes its own decisions on what it is going to need during the fiscal year. The Budget Bureau isn't allowed to tamper with it, only print it and include it in the overall figures.

Spy Trial of Abel Will Resume Today

NEW YORK (AP)—The trial of Russian Col. Rudolf I. Abel, allegedly the highest ranking Soviet underground agent ever caught in this country, resumes today in Brooklyn Federal Court.

Reino Hayhanen, identified as a former Soviet intelligence officer who defected to the West, is to be the government's first witness.

The defense has subpoenaed the government to produce documentary records concerning Hayhanen and Sgt. Roy A. Rhodes of the U.S. Army.

Hayhanen and Rhodes, who is stationed at Ft. Myer, Va., are said to be key prosecution witnesses.

The trial was interrupted last week so that Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers could rule on motions for dismissal of the indictment made by James B. Donovan, court-appointed chief defense counsel for the gaunt, 55-year-old Russian.

A jury of nine men and three women will try Abel on charges that carry a maximum sentence of death.

Probe Secrets of Tuna Fish

Experts Now Enlarge Their Tagging Service to Get More Information

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS) — The tuna has stumped experts for a long time but it looks af it the veil of mystery around him soon may be torn away.

Fish and wildlife service experts are enlarging their tagging program and through inproved techniques expect to learn more and more about the will-o-the-wisp of the sea.

Things they have learned in recent years are that tuna can cover a lot of sea in their wanderings and they can't be depended upon to be consistent.

One albacore caught last year was nearly 2,700 miles from the point where he had been tagged 15 months earlier. He also added 40 pounds in weight. Another, tagged and released in mid Pacific, was caught 700 miles away about 13 months later.

And a yellowfin, which always has been considered a shallow swimmer, was netted deep down in mid-Pacific.

Adding to their mysteriousness is the tuna's ability to fade from sight. For years they have appeared off and on — not without missing now and then, however—off the Oregon coast. But after a short stay they disappear and no one knows where they go.

Their spawning grounds also are a source of mystery to everyone although many searches have been made in efforts to locate them. And a baby tuna never has been spotted, according to biologists.

Antarctic Cold Prevents Drop of Supplies at Pole

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (AP)—Rear Adm. George J. Dufek's polar explorers tentatively plan to try to drop supplies Thursday at a U.S. station in Marie Byrd Land or one close to the South Pole.

★ ★ ★

Plans to make the drops Saturday were postponed because the temperature—65 below zero—was too cold for work parties to go out for the supplies.

Dufek, who led the party here Saturday from Christchurch, New Zealand, said a shortage of aviation fuel will force the explorers to reduce the number of trips to and from Christchurch.

He discounted a report from Boston that a flight from the South to the North Pole is being considered. The admiral said any mishap to the plane while it was over Antarctica would force suspension of his outfit's activities while it carried out rescue operations.

Japanese Court Lifts 'Severe' Term of GI

OSAKA, Japan (AP)—The Osaka appeals court has suspended the sentence of a Louisiana airman given 2½ to 4 years at hard labor in the holdup of a cab driver.

Presiding Judge Masao Yoshida said the original sentence of Airman 3.C. Louis R. Bryant, 18, of Denham Springs, was too severe. He reduced it to a suspended sentence of three years at hard labor.

The judge said Bryant was "a minor scheduled soon to be discharged from the service."

Bryant was sentenced in Osaka district court July 22 after he was found guilty of robbing a cab driver of $3.61 in yen on Feb. 22.

Transit Strike Grips Pittsburgh

Trolley, Bus Walkouts Tie Up Transportation for 350,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh was crippled by a strike against its major transit system early today as 2,200 trolley and bus operatores walked off the job in a wage dispute.

* * *

The walkout began about 4 a.m., climaxing more than 12 hours of feverish negotiations by the Pittsburgh Railways Co. and Division 85, Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes.

An estimated 350,000 daily commuters were without transportation. However, there are a number of small bus companies serving the metropolitan area and railroads planned to run additional trains.

* * *

Although the old contract expired at the end of August the union agreed to extend its strike deadline until today.

Meanwhile, the company appealed to the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission for a three-cent increase in its basic 20-cent trolley and 25-cent bus cash fares, claiming it needed more revenue to meet the union's demands. The increase was approved and went into effect yesterday.

Princess Tells of Soviet Rule

Romanian Refugee Says Americans Not Aware of Russian Menace

CHICAGO (INS) — A Romanian princess who lost 75 pounds by slow starvation under Communist rule is fighting the Reds with the most powerful weapon she knows —the truth.

Princess Catherine Caradja, who escaped from her Soviet-ruled homeland through the underground, makes no bones about her hatred for the regime which has a stranglehold on her countrymen.

With eyes flashing and in a voice tinged with bitterness, the 64-year-old member of the Romanian nobility said in an interview: "I'll do everything I can to let the world know how miserable everyday life under the Communists is, with its complete lack of privacy, its constant fears, its slow starvation.

"I'm afraid Americans don't really realize how much they are in danger and how much they have to lose if the Reds take over here."

The princess, an energetic woman who is stateless and homeless "but not hopeless," has spent the past 18 months in this country living out of a suitcase while hitting the lecture trail to tell her story.

During her travels, she has visited most of the 110 former World War II airmen she aided when they were shot down by the Nazis during raids on the Ploesti oil fields near her estate.

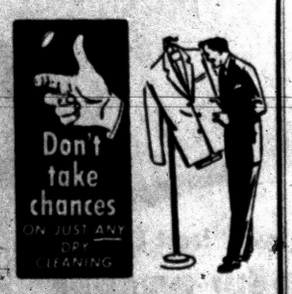

Now she hopes Congress will grant her asylum in the United States, and a bill allowing permanent residence has been introduced in her behalf by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas.

Princess Catherine doesn't see much hope for a Hungarian-type uprising against the Communists in Romania, mainly because the element of surprise is now gone and the Reds are prepared.

She said, however, that there are many underground resistance groups fighting the Reds, most of them hiding out in the mountains.

Of everyday life under Red rule, she said:

Be a Know-It-Yourselfer About Floor Installation

Among the few home building and improvement projects that have escaped large-scale invasion by the enthusiastic army of do-it-yourselfers is the installation of oak floors. There's a reason.

Laying floors of beautiful oak or other attractive hardwood so that they will render the lifetime of trouble-free service expected requires more skill than the average week-end carpenter can muster, says Henry H. Willins, executive vice-president of the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association.

* * *

He defines a "know-it-yourselfer" as a fellow who familiarizes himself with the fundamentals of good installation practice. While not sufficiently adept at working with wood to do the job himself, the "know-it-yourselfer" is in a position to see that proper procedures are followed.

For him, Willins offers these tips:

In conventional joist construction use subflooring composed of kiln-dried, square-edge boards 1-inch thick. They may be of No. 1 or No. 2 Common grade lumber and of any coniferous species ordinarily employed for subflooring.

* * *

Specify use of boards 4 inches or 6 inches wide. Unlike wider boards, their normal swelling and shrinking are not likely to be out of proportion to that of the flooring. The boards should be face nailed solidly at each bearing point with two 10d nails.

Should it be necesary to employ 8-inch boards instead, stipulate that they be fastened to the joists with three 10d nails at each bearing point. If only 10-inch boards are abailable, see that they are secured by four 10d nails at every bearing point.

* * *

All butt joints of subflooring should rest on bearings, and the boards should be spaced about one-fourth inch apart.

Insist that approved nailing schedules be observed in fastening the finished flooring. Strip oak flooring of 25/32-inch thickness and 2¼-inch width, for example, should receive one 7d or 8d nail every 10 to 12 inches.

All plaster and cement work in the house should be dry before the oak flooring is installed. Especially in winter construction, have the flooring piled loosly inside the house at least four days before it's laid, with a constant temperature of about 70 degrees maintained in the house.

Hit-Run Driver Kills Immigrant Child, 6

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (INS) — Authorities were searching today for a hit-run driver who killed a six-year-old German immigrant girl in Leamington, Ont.

Anna Schmidt, who arrived in Leamington three days ago from Germany, was killed instantly when a speeding auto leaped a curb and struck her and her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Gruber, 52, who was injured.

The force of the impact knocked the child 82 feet.

Customs men reported a car answering the description of the hit-run vehicle entered Detroit through the tunnel, but Motor City police said they were convinced the driver was not the man sought.

Reds Long Interested in Outer Space Flights

(Russia, despite the stunning impact on the world of its accomplishment in being the first nation to put a man-made satellite into space, is no Ivan-come-lately in space science. Its century-old history of studies and preparations in the field is disclosed in the following article, fourth of a series. The writer Martin Caidin, is the author of "Vanguard!")

By MARTIN CAIDIN

By their energetic development of rocket weapons and ballistic missiles, and their demonstrated active interest in all phases of astronautics, the Russians have provided the United States with ample warning of their intentions to conquer space. For the most part we have chosen to ignore these warnings.

Certain high officials in government, however, have been cognizant of the ominous threat facing us. Unable to speed up our own program, they looked for specific details to support their arguments for priorities to be given to our space efforts.

EYED RUSSIA

Scientists of the Rand Corporation were given the go-ahead to make a detailed study of Russian interest, and their work, in space flight. The results of that study, officially identified as Rand Research Memoradum RM-1760 and titled a "Casebook on Soviet Astronautics," highlights the tremendous Soviet drive to get into space.

For some inexplicable reason we have failed to recognize the valid Soviet work in the astronautics field. We have considered ourselves a world leader in this area. This is simply not true.

Russia has a rich historical background in space flight studies. The country has a long and continuing association with the problems of man's conquest of space. Unlike the United States, Russian engineers and scientists working in the field of space flight had their work regarded with the highest respect of their scientific colleagues. Only lately is this situation coming to pass in the United States.

GOES FAR BACK

Soviet astronautics history extends as far back as 1895, when the brilliant Russian mathematician K. E. Tsiolkovskii laid down the first complete mathematical formulas for space flight. In subsequent articles published in 1903 —54 years ago — Tsiolkovskii displayed sketches and blueprints for a spaceship powered with chemical-fuel rockets.

The accuracy of his work was extraordinary. Most of his theories and formulae have withstood the test of time. With full and complete justification he is considered by the Russians as the father of space flight.

In 1929 Russian scientists formed a competent scientific organization to study the possible use of large rockets for flight through space. Of special interest to this group was the feasibility of sending a rocket to the moon; that interest has never waned. And by 1934—more than 23 years ago — the Russian government had launched its scientists on a military rocket program.

SAW NEED

The Soviet Union is first country in the world to give official recognition to the need for, and the work done, in the science of space flight. In 1954 the Russian government established the Tsiolkovskii Gold Medal Award for "... the best papers by Soviet scientists working in the field of astronautics."

In 1955 the USSR Academy of Sciences established the permanent Commission on Astronautics. Supported by the enormous research facilities of the Russian government, the Soviet scientists plunged into extensive work which had as its goal large space satellites orbiting about the earth—and then a rocket which would be sent across space to reach the moon.

Under the direction of the brilliant Dr. Leonid Sedov, this astronautics commission has made enormous accomplishments to aid Russia's drive into space. It was Dr. Sedov who announced in 1955 at Copenhagen that the Soviet Union would launch a satellite during the International Geophysical year.

★ ★ ★

Most people in the United States, swamped by the deluge of publicity released on Project Vanguard, either never heard of Dr. Sedov or his announcement or, more likely, ignored the Russian statement as mere boasting.

Despite this uninformed attitude, the Rand Corporation study emphasized that there is, and has been for some time, an apparent and fierce drive by the Russians to lead the way into space.

A flood of scientific published material on astronautics circulates throughout the Soviet. Engineers and technicians are encouraged to work in this field. The astronautics effort within Russia is studded with some of their most brilliant scientists — Sedov, Stanyukovich, Pokrovski, and many others.

Russian publishers' agents have swept this country's bookshelves to grab everything printed on rockets and astronautics. Serious works by American authors are pirated and reprinted as "original Soviet material." The Russians take everything they can lay their hands on.

The future of the fight for space is even more forbidding then the past. Unless there is a remarkable change in the official American attitude toward space flight, it will be the Solvet Union, and not the United States, that leads mankind to other worlds.

The needed change had better come quickly. For the next Russian target is far more epochal than the successful launching of an artificial satellite.

(Next: When—and how—will man reach the moon?)

Doubts if Reds Possess ICBM

But Adm. Burke Sees Both U.S., Soviet With Missile in Year or So

TOKYO (AP) — Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, U.S. chief of naval operations, told a news conference today he doubts if Russia now has an operating intercontinental ballistic missile. But he predicted both the Soviet Union and the United States will be able to use the ICBM "in a year or so."

★ ★ ★

Burke added that although "the weapons of war these days are truly horrible weapons," the West's collective security bloc "is probably more powerful than any weapon ever developed" as a means of preventing war.

Burke declared earth satellites "as a weapon, aren't important, except that it takes a lot of power to get a satellite into its orbit."

"I don't mean to play down the achievement of the Russians. It will be of scientific value," he said.

★ ★ ★

"I don't see what the advantages would be in going to the moon," Burke observed, although he later acknowledged such a feat by the Russians could have a psychological effect on other nations of the Western alliance.

The U.S. Navy chief is on a tour of Japan, Korea, Okinawa and Formosa.

★ ★ ★

Of Russia's claim it has an intercontinental missile, Burke said, "It wouldn't surprise me if they have it and it wouldn't surprise me if they do not. But it would surprise me if they have one of operational capability.

Mill Worker Discovers $200 Is Chicken Feed

HUMBIRD, Wis. (AP) — Robert Green, 18-year-old feed mill worker, had to work pretty hard to keep $200 from becoming mere chicken feed.

He had ground up 20 sacks of corn in a hammer mill before discovering his wallet missing. He pawed through the 20 sacks and finally would up with a cigar box full of green shreds.

His father, mill owner Herbert Green, whose money it was, hopes to recover half the loss from the Treasury Department.

Tanker Blocks Suez

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—The 23,232-ton Liberian tanker Andros Springs ran aground in the Suez Canal last night, delaying traffic through the waterway for 10 hours before she was refloated. The first southbound convoy today was cancelled, but by 8 a.m. traffic had returned to normal.

Bob Considine Says:

Critics Speak Out Against British Royalty

OTTAWA, Can. (INS)—The extent of the criticism recently directed at, if not Queen Elizabeth II, the people she leans on for advice, is not too well known in the colonies her forebears once ruled.

Lord Altrincham was, of course, socked in public for expressing his views on the brand of Elizabeth's ghostwriters and the manner in which she spoke their words. (The man was fined $2.80, incidentally.)

But his Highship is not a lone wolf. There was (and presumably is) Alexander Charles Robert Vane-Tempest-Stewart, better known as Alastair, Lord Londonderry. He's 20, was a jazz cat at Eton, flunked his exams, caused his sister (a maid of honor at the coronation) to go into hiding, by his outspokenness. Here's what he wrote in the New Statesman:

"I cannot believe that anyone, however moronic, is going to sit back and have fed to him the idea that the monarchy is a sacrosanct head of the family that parades benignly and sedately in front of their loving children whenever they are wanted to, flashing their toothpaste smiles, displaying their latest hair-do's, and exhibiting their deplorable taste in clothes.

"That conception of a monarchy is ludicrously and nauseatingly incongruous in a modern democracy, and Altrincham has been perfectly right and sensible to say so. All of us should admire him for his courage and determination."

THREATS COMIC

"The comic threats of shooting and horse-whipping, culminating in a physical assault on Lord Altrincham, show that there still exist a few primitive people who accept — or for political reasons think the masses ought to accept—the magical, sacrosanct theory of monarchy. We've heard in our day of the 'king's weather,' and the 'royal touch'; and only the other day a local councilor thought it 'iniquitous' to question a law signed by Her Majesty.

"This tribal notion of monarchy as a source of fertility and prosperity, a taboo, not to be discussed or criticized, seemed to have died in he rationalist Nineteenth Century; it has been revived in our generation by the press—and by the BBC, which permits only adulation of the monarchy and makes itself ridiculous by playing 'God Save the Queen' on all possible and impossible occasions.

"It treats Prince Charles as if he were a racehorse in training for the Derby instead of a normal little boy—which he is unlikely to remain if he is made the constant center of a national ballyhoo."

"Three months ago The Mirror said: After her recent visit to France the Queen seems to have highlighted the importance of rubbing shoulders with important and real people rather than with figureheads. Ny Bevan sat at the Queen's left hand last Friday at a Buckingham Palace luncheon party. The Duke of Edinburgh has starred on TV.

"On a visit to a New Bristol housing estate, Princess Margaret said, 'I'd like to call on a family who are not expecting me.' Things seem to be perking up in royal circles. The Mirror hopes the change is for keeps."

The well-read James Cameron, of The Express, wrote, "Everyone said Lord Altrincham was rude; NOBODY said he was WRONG.

The Laborite Herald's Michael Foot commenting on Farouk's line that 50 years hence there would be only five kings left—the king of hearts, spades, diamonds, clubs and England—wrote:

"Maybe he was right. Maybe the British monarchy will survive in lonely Eminence and glory.

"And, if it does, some part of the credit will be due to the daring Lord Altrincham . . . thanks to his outburst, the British monarchy has been removed from the stuffy museum where it had been kept so long and where onlookers were instructed not to touch the exhibits or whisper one word of criticism."

After socking Altrincham, Philip Burbidge cried, "I did what Prince Philip wanted to do but couldn't." The impression grows that he'd have plenty of work cut out for him if he went around taking pokes at all who speak up as did Altrincham.

Sanilac Man Injured in Crash of Light Plane

DECKERVILLE (AP) — Eugene W. Carmen, coroner for Sanilac County, was injured yesterday when the small plane he was piloting crashed after running into power lines near a Deckerville airport.

The accident occurred near the end of the field's landing strip. The craft nosed into a ditch after hitting the power lines.

Carmen, 32, was reported in fair to serious condition at a Port Huron hospital.

Says Man Stole While in Trance

Arrest Man on Belief He Tricked Landlady Out of Savings

CHICAGO (AP) — Robert A. Martin, 34, charged in a Detroit warrant for larceny by trickery in bilking his 63-year-old landlady out of $26,700 on the pretext of buying a church, was arrested in Chicago last night.

Police said they found Martin with $5,480 in cash and traveler's checks jammed into a mattress in his hotel room. Officers had been waiting for him after his Illinois car license plates were traced. He was seized as he pulled up to the hotel.

★ ★ ★

Detroit police had sought Martin since Friday when Mrs. Nelli Horkenbach, a rooming house operator and widow, filed a complaint saying she withdrew the money from two banks after Martin suggested "in a trance" that the two of them buy a church.

Mrs. Horkenbach said Martin would sit in her living room and quote from the Bible while in a trance, often asking for gifts.

"I didn't think anyone who knew so much about the Bible could be so bad," she told police. We were going to start a church together."

Mrs. Horkenbach's complaint said Martin left for downtown Detroit with the money to "look for a church and disappeared.

★ ★ ★

Officers here said Martin told them he went to Dallas, Tex., where he deposited $1,000 in a bank before returning to Chicago where he maintained two addresses. Police said he did not explain what happened to the rest of the money.

Police received a description of Martins car and license number from Detroit police.

After the fire and earthquake that almost destroyed San Francisco in 1906, giant billboards were erected throughout the city reading: "Don't talk earthquake. Talk business."

Alcoholics Not Aided in Time, Says Daniel

"Most alcoholics have good work records and are considered valuable employes."

"But," continued Ralph Daniel, executive director of the Michigan State Board of Alcoholism, "the trouble is that these people are in the early stages of alcoholism and are overlooked at the time treatment could be most effective."

★ ★ ★

The group discussed their hopes that management and organized labor would fully recognize alcoholism as a treatable illness and would make referrals to Alcoholics Anonymous, according to Frances Kessler, director of the local center.

Five representatives of labor and industry in Pontiac were guests at the meeting.

Dr. Chester A. McPheeters (right), principal speaker at the Harvest Home Banquet in First Methodist Church Friday evening, is pictured with John W. Hirlinger, toastmaster for the affair; Mrs. Clayton Rule, general chairman, and the Rev. Paul T. Hart (seated), pastor of First Methodist. Dr. McPheeters is district superintendent of area Methodist churches and Mr. Hirlinger is manager of Pontiac Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Howard Bone of Stanley avenue, chairman of the decorating committee, tilted the tip of the Indian tepee centerpiece of yellow baby chrysanthemums on the speakers' table. Gerald Augsburger of Mohawk road and Mrs. Norman J. Legge of Avondale avenue were her assistants.

Indian Motif Used at Harvest Home Event

First Methodist Stages Banquet

By MARY ANGLEMIER

When we saw an Indian tepee 10 feet high planted just outside the Judson street entrance Friday evening, we knew something big was going on in the First Methodist Church. And it was . . . the 67th annual Harvest Home Banquet.

★ ★ ★

Bright Indian blankets were hung on the walls. Here and there were shocks of corn, pumpkins, Indian feather headpieces and a totem pole.

FOLKLORE THEME

Pictures on the walls and posts depicted American folklore. Tables were centered with miniature tepees and canoes with Indians holding bow and arrow.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Clayton Rule, general chairman, and her committee had turned back to frontier days for the decorating theme, "Indians."

★ ★ ★

CIRCUIT RIDERS

Services were first conducted by circuit riders. The preachers rode on horseback over log causeways. Often there were no roads at all but only trails blazed on trees for those who might follow.

★ ★ ★

The preacher carried a saddlebag thrown across his horse in which he carried a change of clothing, the Bible, a hymn book, a copy of the Methodist Discipline and a few tracts.

"Members of your Sunday School classes and congregation have contributed leadership to Pontiac affairs for 129 years," said Mr. Hirlinger.

★ ★ ★

"All technical and social progress of this community has been witnessed by members of First Methodist Church," he added.

ADDRESSES GROUP

Dr. Chester A. McPheeters, Flint District superintendent of Methodist Churches, addressed the group on "The Holy Land."

"It isn't what you see in the Holy Land but what you feel," said Dr. McPheeters. A few years ago when he was a pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church, Detroit, he and his wife were given a trip to the Holy Land by members of the congregation.

The world should be grateful to the Catholic Church for the work done in preserving sacred places," he said.

★ ★ ★

"My greatest feeling was in the Garden of Gethsemane at the altar built around the stone where Jesus is said to have prayed, "Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from Me: nevertheless not as I will, but as Thou wilt."

QUARTET SINGS

Several numbers were presented by the Methodist Men's Quartet comprised of Merlin Asplin, Bill Betts, Jerry Augsburger and George Havel. LaVerne Cox was piano accompanist for the quartet and for Mrs. Dreama Royal when she sang "Indian Love Call."

★ ★ ★

Sunday School classes, youth groups, men's and women's organizations work throughout the year to earn the money to be presented at this annual affair.

The Progressive Class was represented by David Cowan as an Indian chief dressed in feathers and blanket, and Jane Asplin as his squaw in Indian costume with the Howard Crawford baby carried on her back as a papoose. The baby held the money.

★ ★ ★

Presenting the gift from the Junior Department were Janet Livingston and Doug Hart. As Indian prince and princess, their headpieces had dollar bills fastened around the top instead of feathers. The amount was $145.

Before pronouncing the benediction The Rev. Paul T. Hart announced that $3,675.39 had been received.

★ ★ ★

Assisting Mrs. Rule as committee chairmen were Mrs. Ernest Everett, dinner; Clarence Hamel, seating; Norman Legge and David Livingston, gifts; Mrs. Wanda Kratt, publicity, and Progressive Class, decorations.

Sheath for Fall

Shirtwaist No Waste

Singing "Indian Love Call" at the Harvest Home Banquet in First Methodist Church was Mrs. Dreama Royal of Valencia drive. Choir Director Merlin B. Asplin of Alcoe drive was accompanist, with Carol Augsburger of Mohawk road and Lonnie Bone of Stanley avenue admiring Mrs. Royal.

He Grows Blossoms for Nation

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—In one of a cluster of greenhouses at the foot of Capitol Hill, a graying little man moodily sorted small potted plants. The climate within was steamy and the hot sun bore down unbearably through the glass roof.

★ ★ ★

The plants were poinsettia cutting — pink, white and red —he was priming for the big Christmastime show which draws up to 12,000 visitors a day.

GREENEST THUMB

Edmund E. H. Sauerbrey, said to have the "greenest thumb" in the country, is assistant director of the nation's No. 1 greenhouse, the Botanic Gardens.

★ ★ ★

His main job is growing all types of plants which folks come from all over the world to see.

The son of a famed florist at Thuringen, Germany, Sauerbrey came to this country in 1908 after learning his profession in night school.

★ ★ ★

In his own Baltimore greenhouse, to which he now commutes weekends, he developed a double pink lilac which bears his name. He developed 15 varieties of flowering crabapple, created a new cedar tree.

HIS OWN HYBRIDS

A lot of the garden's "show" flowers and plants are hybrids he crossed himself, including an amaryllis with 10 petals, four more than normal.

★ ★ ★

With Alfred De Pilla, who was born across the street, came to work at the garden at age 16 and rose to manager of the conservatory where the exhibits are held, he's also readying the fall chrysanthemum show, thinking in terms of the popular azalea show in early spring and the Easter show of tulips, lilies, hyacinths and narcissi.

Sauerbrey says the popular choice is philodendron, sansevieria and dracaenas. You see them in every lawmaker's office—even if you can't spell them!

OVER 2,000 PLANTS

The permanent exhibit consist of more than 2,000 plants including a night-blooming cereus that sometimes produces 22 flowers; rubber trees, exotic allspice, litchi nut, sago, tapioca, payaya, and other plants that come from faraway places and are rarely seen in the United States.

When he shows you the long-leaved "mother-in-law" plant, Sauerbrey chuckles:

Any Activity Beats Idle Brooding

By ANNE HEYWOOD

There are times in life when it doesn't pay to think too much.

If, for example, an armed man is chasing you, you don't debate over which is the most divine exit. You just beat it out as fast as you can through the nearest door.

By the same token, if you're very unhappy, life seems pointless and you've lost your will to live. You just have to do something — anything — quick.

That's the problem that Mrs. T. has lived through.

ALONE AND BITTER

When I first heard from Mrs. T., about three years ago, the bottom had fallen out of her life. Her husband and young son had been killed in an accident and she was left alone, heartbroken and bitter.

★ ★ ★

She had enough money to live on, but quite literally, as she said, nothing to live for. She just moped around the house all day, wishing she could die.

As a matter of fact, that's exactly what the doctor said she would do if she didn't find something to interest her.

★ ★ ★

"But nothing interests me," she wrote. "I've analyzed and analyzed and just don't feel like doing anything.

NON-CREATIVE TYPE

"I'm not a creative type. I have no skills, except being a wife and mother which I no longer can be."

★ ★ ★

I suggested that she stop trying to find something engrossing and do just anything. For example, she had mentioned that she had inherited a hand loom from her grandmother.

So I told her to start with the loom and learn to weave. Weaving has a therapeutic effect and I thought it might at least be a beginning.

★ ★ ★

That was three years ago and Mrs. T. has certainly changed in that time.

She did the weaving, lackadaisically at first, but it did pass the time and the colors were pretty.

SOMETHING USEFUL

"Then," she wrote me, "I decided after about a year, that I'd better make something useful.

★ ★ ★

"I began to do hearth rugs. I don't know why; they just appealed to me. A decorator saw one and ordered several.

"In working with decorators, I became fascinated with the field and now I'm studying at a good school. One day I'll be a full-fledged interior decorator.

★ ★ ★

"I am still lonely and sad a good deal of the time, but life no longer seems pointless. I belive mine will be rich and full."

ANY OLD ACTIVITY

Sometimes you have to grab any old activity to prime the pump and start you in the right direction. When in doubt, do something.

★ ★ ★

If weaving interests you, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, care of The Pontiac Press, and I'll send you a list of good books on the subject.

Florida Project Proves to Be Popular and Beneficial

Vacation College Keeps Older People Alert

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

There seems to be something new under the sun after all. I am thinking of Vacation College, which is probably one of the most unusual schools in the world and one of the most progressive projects to appear in the field of gerontology.

★ ★ ★

This is not a school for young people but for older ones, many of whom are retired and all of whom wish to remain youthful mentally. These students come from all over the United States and Canada. Most of them are in their 50's and 60's. One is 90 years old.

Vacation College was born last winter in Florida under the supervision and direction of Gretta Baker, well-known writer, broadcaster, and teacher at Columbia University's Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Miss Baker conceived this revolutionary idea when she visited Florida and observed her own father's difficulty in adjusting to retirement. According to Miss Baker, "There is a need for something more than shuffleboard, chess and cards to keep the mind alert."

★ ★ ★

This reminds me of something Dr. Millard C. Faught, president of the Retirement Council, Inc., in New York City, said to me early this year when I interviewed him. It was "A hobby should be a wing instead of a crutch."

REFLECTS PHILOSOPHY

Vacation School is a reflection of this philosophy. Instead of meeting in a classroom the students met in the charming little theater of one of Daytona Beach's lovely hotels.

★ ★ ★

There were programs of lively discussions from Monday through Friday afternoons with guest experts speaking and participating in panels on various subjects. The course lasted six weeks.

Well-known professors, writers and world travelers, editors, commentators, psychologists and doctors, took part in round table discussions concerning such subjects as health, psychology, finances, books, creative writing and world affairs.

There also were luncheons and evening entertainment where everyone could get acquainted. On some days problems such as loneliness, second marriages and late love were discussed.

★ ★ ★

Vacation College was so successful last year that there will be two six-week sessions this year. The first will convene at Daytona Beach, Florida, Jan. 6 and the second at Sarasota, Fla., on Feb. 24.

NEEDED ELSEWHERE

This is such a constructive idea and fills such a need that I am sorry that this type of school is not everywhere. I mention it in the hope that the idea will spread rapidly. If any of my readers would like further details, they should get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce in either city.

As my readers know, I believe that there is an almost magic connection between eager interests and awareness, and emotional, mental and physical youthfulness. Boredom and depression are agers and killers!

Very short skirts are not flattering to many women. The chopped-off silhouette itself is awkward but most important, few women have legs which are that good looking, and let's not even mention knees!

No doubt some women will wear the knee-length mode. Even more usual, skirts as a whole will shorten an inch or so. However, we all know now that the most becoming length for legs is mid-calf. Since women have become so much more independent and individual in their dress, they will probably not take their skirt lengths all the way to the knee.

Just the same the leg will be more prominent as a part of your figure ensemble this season than it has been for some time. Therefore, this column will take you a step or two toward leg beauty.

2. Lie on the floor on your back or sit in a chair. Raise your left leg up in front of you. Bend the knee slightly and make circles with your lower left leg. Circle for a while in one direction and then in the other. When circling lead with your toe. After a while do the same thing with your right leg. This is beautifying to ankle and calf.

FOR THE ANKLE

3. One of the best exercises for the ankle is circling with the foot, first in one direction and then in the other.

4. The best calf-slimming exercises take stretching into account. For instance, this one: Lie on the floor on your back. Raise your left leg up as far as you can with a stiff knee.

As you raise the leg pull back with the toe, or the toe points back toward the head. Alternate left and right. Feel your way along with this one. It is painful if you do it too suddenly and strenuously.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 13. Address Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Reception Honors Newlywed Couple

First Presbyterian Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding reception for Mr. and Mrs. William Stephen Field. Mrs. Field is the former Elsie Gertrude Benson. A dinner party for members of the wedding party and the immediate family followed the reception.

★ ★ ★

The couple was married Oct. 8 at the Presbyterian Church, Havre-de-Grace, Md., where the bride's mother and father were married. The Rev. John Richardson officiated.

Elsie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon A. Benson of Josephine avenue, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Field of Gloucester County, Va.

For her wedding the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of Rose Pointe lace featuring a V neckline re-embroidered with iridescent sequins and a fitted bodice with long tapered sleeves. The bouffant skirt was edged with a scalloped hem, and the bride's fingertip veil of French silk illusion was secured to a V-shaped crown with tulle petals. Pearls a gift of the bridegroom, were her only jewelry, and she carried a white Bible and an orchid.

★ ★ ★

For her duties as matron of honor Mrs. Lyman W. Bittman of Ann Arbor wore a gown of crystalette featuring a V neckline with three-quarter-length sleeves. A long torso bodice accented the bouffant skirt, and her flowers were an arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

ATTEND BRIDEGROOM

Acting as best man was William S. Field of Gloucester County, son of the bridegroom. John A. Benson, brother of the bride, and Dr. Edward G. Field of Glen Burnie, Md., brother of the bridegroom, seated the guests.

★ ★ ★

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Benson wore a street-length dress of peacock blue lace over matching taffeta with a matching feather hat and gloves, and a pink orchid corsage.

Mrs. Field chose a dress of rose in a street length with matching accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

Teach Child to Be Individual, Not Sheep

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

The boy was a member of a "gang" of child hoodlums charged with robbery.

★ ★ ★

The judge said, "If you didn't want to break into the store with these kids, why did you join them?"

"They told me to," the child said.

"What are you — a sheep?" asked the judge. "Do you always do anything anyone tells you to?"

As he got no answer, he went on. "The truth is, you were scared to think for yourself, weren't you. You were scared they'd beat you up with garrison belts if you didn't do what they did, weren't you?"

★ ★ ★

After a long, miserable moment, the child said, "Yes."

Before you take time out for horror, let me remind you that the most respectable children in things we call "groups" instead of "gangs" also possess methods for enforcing their will on their members.

Instead of garrison belts, they use criticism, slight and ostracism. But resisting fear of these hurts can be as productive for your child as it is for the "gang" member.

The daughter of a reader recently proved this to be true.

Her "group" suddenly decided that everyone should wear their sweaters back to front. As the neckline of her sweater was too tight when worn this way, she wanted to wear it as it was intended to be. But she was afraid to do it.

So her mother told her that if wearing her sweater as she wanted to for one week made her too miserable, she could have a new sweater that would be comfortable worn back to front.

The first day there were offending questions. The second day there were slights and whisperings. The third day she ate lunch alone. But on the fifth day, everybody's sweaters were worn front to front again.

Her mother writes, "I told her that standing up for our right to be individuals worked out, not only with clothes but with ideas, too. I said that if she could always try to do what seemed nearest right to her, she would influence other children to find this courage, too.

"And I can see that she's been greatly strengthened by this experience of resisting fear of offending other children instead of submitting to it."

The "gang" member was committed to a reformatory. How nice it would have been if his parents had ever made the point that he was a human being, not a sheep.

Miss Gremore, Charles Burgin Exchange Vows

The altar of St. Matthew Lutheran Church of Walled Lake was banked with fall flowers for the Sept. 28 wedding of Thelma Gremore and Charles Burgin. The Rev. O. A. Gerken performed the ceremony before 100 guests.

★ ★ ★

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gremore of West Brooklyn avenue are the bride's parents, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burgin of Bloomfield Hills.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown featuring a lace yoke and a crown-topped veil. Her bridal bouquet was composed of white roses and baby chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Gremore chose a slate ensemble with white accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a dark blue suit.

Furs Still Tops

Keep in mind that fur trim is high fashion this fall. When you shop for a new suit, look for one with a fur collar. Or buy sheath dress with matching fur-trimmed jacket.

High crowns star in the new millinery collections and they balance the fabulous fur trimmed coats and suits which need off-the-neck hats. The fur collars go soft in every direction, the high-crowned hats are smooth and sleek.

A woman with a full-time job away from home, Mrs. Kretsch has three children. She is active in her church group. We know she's a good cook because she won a recent cake baking contest with a yummy chocolate cake.

1 package lemon gelatine
1½ cups milk
2 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
1 pint cream, whipped
1 cup chopped maraschino cherries
1 cup chopped pecans
1 flat can crushed pineapple, drained
½ cup boiling water

In a double boiler place the egg yolks, the milk and the sugar. Cook until mixture is consistency of thin custard. Cool. Add gelatine dissolved in boiling water. Cool until thick and syrupy. Fold in whipped cream and stiffly beaten egg whites.

Line a greased 9x13 pan with thin slices of angel food. (Cut cake about half an inch thick). Cover with a layer of pudding. Repeat, ending with a pudding layer. Top with cherries, drained pineapple and nuts. Chill until serving time. Serves 15-16.

Reversing of Charges Criticized

Hubby Right — She Should Have Paid for Phone Call

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: A woman I know (but not a personal friend), who lives in a distant city, wrote to me and asked me for certain information which she had to have before a certain date. The letter was delayed in the mail and the only way I could get the information to her in time was to telephone long distance, which I did, reversing the charges.

"Since she requested the information, I did not see why I should pay for a long-distance call. My husband thinks that I was wrong to reverse the charges since she didn't ask me to call her, and that it was a very cheap thing to do. Will you please tell me if you think I was wrong in doing what I did?"

Answer: Your husband is right. If you felt that the information was important enough to your acquaintance to warrant the telephone call you should have paid for it yourself unless she offered to reimburse you.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Isn't it proper to use a small piece of bread, or roll, as a pusher? I have been teaching my two young children to push food onto the fork by means of a small piece of bread. I have been criticized for this by a relative who says that it is not good table manners. Will you please advise me on this mater?"

Answer: It is quite correct to push the fork under a bit of food against the small piece of bread, but not to push the food onto the fork with the bread.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My niece who used to live in this city came home recently to visit her parents. This niece has many relatives living here whom she has not seen for a long time. I would like to know if it was up to her to go to see them while she was here or whether it was up to them, after they heard of her presence in the city, to call on her?"

Answer: It was their place to go to see her or else invite her to come to their houses, either to a meal or at another refinitely specified time.

GENERAL MOTORS CELEBRATES ITS GOLDEN MILESTONE ANNIVERSARY

with a brilliant new line of 1958 automobiles

It would have taken a bold imagination to predict, fifty years ago, what would happen to life in America—or to the newborn company which took the simple name, General Motors.

The automobile industry, in those days, was small. Its horizon was limited by the fact that the total number of motor vehicles owned in the United States came to less than 150 thousand.

What has happened since needs little comment here. The nation has grown, the people have prospered, the ownership of automotive vehicles has climbed close to 60 million. The impact of this growth has brought far-reaching social, cultural and economic benefits which are evident on every hand. General Motors is proud to have had a part in this progress.

1958 IS THE fiftieth anniversary year of General Motors.

In observance of this Golden Milestone, we are bringing to market an array of new automobiles whose distinction and integrity, we firmly believe, will win the enthusiastic approval of the American car buyer.

For, in designing and engineering these 1958 cars, we set up these objectives:

To give sound expression to the public's taste for graceful exterior styling and rich interior appointments;

To satisfy the public's natural desire for roominess and comfort, for convenience and safety, for dependability and performance;

To deliver sound value and maintain uncompromising standards of quality.

Each of the five General Motors car Divisions has its own identity, its own traditions, its own pride of accomplishment. And each has its own distinctive line of products.

But the cars of all five Divisions benefit—and the public benefits—from the leadership that General Motors provides in research, engineering, testing. From the GM Technical Center comes a steady flow of advanced engineering and design developments—basic improvements and continued refinements in transmissions and engines, new comfort and safety features, new styling concepts—which year by year make General Motors cars such outstanding values.

Let me cite just one example: Air Suspension—time-tested on GM buses and trucks—has now been adapted by our engineers for passenger car use. Without question, Air Suspension represents the greatest advance in riding comfort since knee-action was introduced in our Silver Anniversary year. Whether the passenger load is 100 pounds or 1000 pounds, your car will now level itself to glide over bumps with exactly the same incredible smoothness.

Air Suspension is, as I say, but one example of our 1958 advances. Throughout General Motors our sights have been set on 1958—with the aim of bringing to market the finest and most satisfying line of automobiles in our history.

How well we have succeeded is evidenced by the brilliant new cars soon to be on display in the showrooms of our dealers from Coast to Coast.

HANDICAPPED SEEKS JOB — Ralph Cummins, state rehabilitation service agent of Oakland County, (left) and Ray Jewell, of the Michigan Employment Security Commission in Pontiac, (right) interview Glenn Blakemore, 21, of 66 Florida St., a polio victim since he was nine months old. Blakemore recently was graduated from the Pontiac Business Institute. He is seeking employment in bookkeeping and accounting. Both of his legs are paralyzed.

'Can't Take No for an Answer'

Handicapped Pontiac Man to Start Again

By SYLVIA de STEIGER

"Being a former committeeman in our local, I can't take no for an answer."

These are the words of a 47-year-old Pontiac man who, although paralyzed from the neck down, has the determination and will to start life over again, make himself useful and support his family.

* * *

In this all-is-not-lost attitude, he was referring to the telephone business he has set up in his home through the cooperation and aid of the Michigan Employment Security Commission and the State Employment Services and Vocational Rehabilitation Agency.

The unfortunate story of Jack Baker, 159 Michigan Ave., could be anyone's. But, it takes more than anyone to give it such an inspiring chapter.

Jack broke his neck in an auto accident in December of 1954. As a result, he became completely paralyzed from the neck down. In other words he was quadraplegic.

* * *

Previous to his accident, Jack worked for a foundry machine company as an inspector and was active in local 658 of the CIO where he was a committeeman and wrote the bylaws.

IN 4 HOSPITALS

To date, Jack, with his unwillingness to give up and the constant encouragement and patience of his wife and 18-year-old son Bobby, has received therapy in four hospitals. He now can move his left arm after receiving rehabilitation treatment and training through the state agency.

* * *

There were 175 handicapped persons in Pontiac who, like Jack during the past year, obtained employment through the MESC. Dur this year, a total of 442 persons registered with this agency. The remaining 367 are still on the waiting list for jobs in business, industry or professions.

Each of them, like Jack, has been classified, evaluated, and tested to find out what they can do so their handicap will not be a handicap to the employer.

During the past year, the amount of case service money spent in Oakland County by the state rehabilitation office was $43,000. This included money for training programs, artificial appliances, surgery and hospitalization of physically handicapped persons seeking jobs.

USES SPECIAL PHONE

Through the two state agencies Jack has been able to set up shop in his home. He has purchased a specially devised telephone.

* * *

To answer it, he pushes a button with the side of his left hand. Since he can't write, a lever at the side of his wheelchair allows the message to be tape recorded if it is too long for Jack to remember.

When he wants to relay the message to the person to whom it is addressed, he flicks another lever with his left elbow and tells the operator the number of party he is to call.

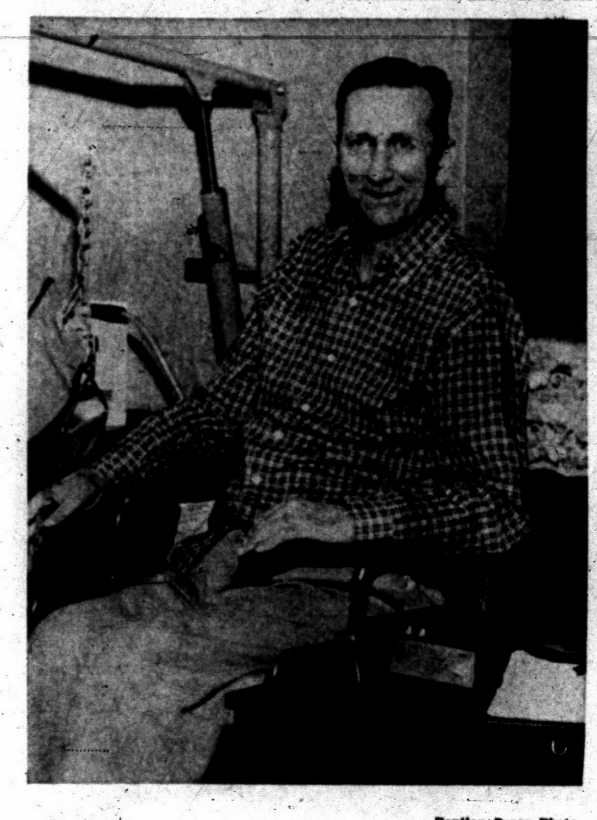

The mechanism needed to conduct the business has been underwritten by the state vocational agency to help Jack get started.

* * *

So far, Jack has charge of the telephone answering service for the Oakland County civil defense. But, that's only in an emergency. He has another businessman who is a sure customer as soon as the new telephone directory is printed.

If you happen to call a doctor or businessman and no one answers, the directory might read, "If no answer, call FEderal 4-8267."

The cheerful voice you will hear on the other end will be Jack Baker. He will capably take the message and relay it to the correct party. You will have helped the handicapped . . . one who "can't take no for an answer."

Baker was rehabilitated to earn a living for his family through state employment agencies.

Army to Take Over New Missile, Talos

By SANKY TRIMBLE

White Sands Proving Ground, N.M. (AP) — The Army formally takes possession tomorrow of one of the newest eggs in the United States missile basket.

The occasion is the formal transfer to the Army—by the Navy and Radio Corporation of America—of Talos.

* * *

Talos has been described as a deadly missile hunting dog, chained to an electronic leash. Capable of rapid fire and the first completely automatic unit, it ranks in the anti-missile class of U.S. weapons. The ram-jet propelled missile is believed the first supersonic rocket developed for use by both land and seagoing units.

Against a background of controversy, charge and countercharge over the nation's missile program, top Army, Navy and scientific officials will be on hand for the ceremony. A press corps of sizeable dimensions is invited to attend firings of the missile.

* * *

Among those scheduled to attend the formal ceremonies at this desert proving ground are Lt. Gen. E. L. Cummings, chief of Army ordnance; Rear Adm. F. S. Wittington, of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance; and Dr. E. W. Engstrom, senior executive vice president and top scientist for RCA.

An unusual economic factor is involved in the ceremonies. Talos is believed to be the first missile developed for operational use both by the Navy and the Army.

* * *

Originally, it was a Navy pet, designed for ship-to-air use against invading enemy planes—and invading enemy missiles.

Some 10 years ago a decision was reached high in the Department of Defense to study its possibilities as a land-to-air missile. The Navy was given the job of developing Talos for this purpose and RCA became the prime contractor.

RCA has been reluctant to tell what it knows of Talos' capabilities until formal release of information.

* * *

This much is known. Talos is perhaps the nation's first completely automatic missile system. Men are required only for monitoring purposes. The system latches on to the target—100 or more miles away—computes, corrects, loads and fires itself. It reportedly has a high firepower rate against a multitude of targets coming from many directions—a complete prototype of what may be the forerunner of the nation's future defense system.

* * *

Talos, among other things, is designed for use both with explosive or nuclear warheads. An RCA official over the weekend called it the "most advanced system of its kind in existence."

Electric Heating Pad Starts $500 Blaze

Auburn Heights Nike Site Given Official Title at Saturday Event

* * *

The base, which houses approximately 100 men, received its official title during an open house held Saturday in commemoration of the 40th anniversary of the antiaircraft artillery service.

More than 300 area residents toured the base during the day, according to Capt. Raymond J. Geoffrion, commanding officer.

Col. William Henry, commander of the Detroit Defense, and Col. Ronald Watson, commander of the 18th Battalion, Detroit's northwest defense unit, attended the festivities.

* * *

The officers and enlisted men of Delta Battery of the 18th AAA Missile Battalion were hosts during the open house. The conducted tours through both the headquarters and launcher area.

Refreshments were provided by Auburn Heights Rotary Club and the Moms Club.

The battery team was the winner of the "flag" football game played at Avondale High School Saturday afternoon. It won against an Auburn Heights team, 31 to 6.

Surgeons Report New Possibility

'Refrigerated' Hearts Used in Transplant on Dogs in Experiment

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "Refrigerated" hearts look like a good possibility in the attack on heart disease, two Mississippi surgeons said today.

They said they had developed a method for preserving cut-out dog hearts by refrigeration for appreciable periods and then—with a technique for transplanting them into other dogs—had been able to keep the latter alive for spans up to 22 hours.

* * *

Drs. Watts R. Webb and Hector S. Howard, of the University of Mississippi, told about the development in a report prepared for the opening of the 43rd clincial congress of the American College of Surgeons.

"These experiments indicate," they said, "that the problems of technique and of physiology of cardiac (heart) transplantations can be solved. As soon as the associated immunological problem are solved, cardiac transplantations should become a reality."

By "immunological" problems they meant the natural resistance of the tissue of one individual to the implantations of tissue from another person.

The researchers did not say what would be the source of human hearts employed in any such future technique. Presumably one source would be people who might bequeath their hearts to science; or victims of fatal mangling accidents where, with the permission of relatives, hearts might be given for preservation and use as indicated in needy heart disease cases.

* * *

The researchers said in their report that dog hearts, after removal from the animals, were preserved for periods ranging from 60 to 105 minutes by treatment with a solution to wash them free of clottable blood, and then refrigerated at 40 degrees Farenheit while immersed in another solution.

But it was learned that they have preserved dog hearts for six to eight hours by the method.

In some experiments, the heart and both lungs were transplanted; in others, the heart and one lung.

* * *

Dogs which received the transplants were kept alive with a mechanical heart-lung machine when their own hearts were removed.

Operative techniques for installing transplants, they said, ranged in time from as little as 25 to 30 minutes to 90 minutes.

Shmink, Mink—Fashion Designer Rips Furs

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

"I have a total and complete dislike for mink stoles," said the haute couturier haughtily. "They're hard to hold around you, hard to match up clothes and hard to keep in good condition."

He did not mention that they are also hard to come by, money being hard to hold onto these days.

QUITE PASSE

"Actually, mink stoles are becoming quite passe," he continued coolly. "I often design matching stoles in the identical material of my dresses, but it's even more chic to have flowing coats lined in the same material as your dress.

"That, my dear, is the important look. Mink is . . . well, let me put it this way, and please don't think I'm being blase . . . Mink makes an excellent lining for a coat if one is going to Alaska."

The spokesman for the give-mink-back-to-the-minks movement is Don Loper. He designs clothes for movie stars and other people who pay exorbitant taxes. His salon is in Beverly Hills, and in one corner of what he confesses readily "is a very chic establishment," there is a large, ordinary looking wastebasket.

"I put it there for a good purpose," he says.

It catches the eye of women customers who enter, see the incongruity of a little basket amid the lushness, and ask what that monstrosity is doing there. "And I tell them," Loper tells us, "That 'That, my dear, is where I'd like you to throw all your furs.'"

ADVICE SNUBBED

Unfortunately for the designer's bank account, this advice has never yet been taken literally; but happily for his ego, it has resulted in fewer movie queens' spilling over at the shoulders with mink.

And Don Loper is of the impetuous opinion that the stars still influence strongly the tastes of American women. Thus, if Lana of Hollywood eschews mink, so escheweth Myrtle of Oklahoma City.

Loper maintains that it is not just because his current clothes have their own matching fabric coats that he dislikes fur pieces. "I've always felt this way," he says. "Who needs fur stoles?

NOT NEEDED

"If you're rich enough, and cold enough, I think a full-length fur garment is fine. It keeps you warm, and makes your friends jealous, and gives your husband a reputation for gentleness and generosity."

"There are too many 'what-I-can't-wear-I'll-carry' girls. If one bracelet looks good, they presume two will look better.

But this department would like to suggest that Myrtle and Phyllis are not convinced. The mink stole, however hard to hold around you, match to clothes, keep in condition, etc., is not too cluttery for us . . .

It will continue to be the dream of every red-blooded American blonde.

Losses to Total Millions

East German Reds Blitz Peoples' Hoarded Marks

BERLIN (AP)—Western officials said today that the East German Communist regimes' blitz changeover of currency threatens to wipe out millions of marks held by the satellite's population.

East Germans who tucked away their savings rather than trust the Communist banks were hard hit by the Red government's surprise order yesterday to turn in the old currency for a new issue.

The balance, the Reds said, would be made available from banks starting next Saturday. But West Berlin and Allied officials said the terms of the Red decrees made plain that the old marks would not be honored unless the holders could certify in detail where the money came from.

Under the Communist economy of rationing and scarcity, millions of farmers, workers and small businessmen have gone in for illegal trade. The Reds pointedly announced that the currency switch was designed to wipe out this kind of "illegal speculation."

West German experts estimated that the Communists would mop up around a billion of the estimated five billion marks hoarded or in circulation. Allied officials said the East German regime apparently hoped this would put a brake on the steady inflation plaguing the Red economy.

★ ★ ★

The West Berlin Exchange Office Assn. estimated West Berlin banks and exchange offices were caught with about 20 million East German marks which now were worthless. It could not estimate how many millions were held by businessmen, official organizations including underground agencies, and by individual West Germans.

A statement from the West German Socialist party denounced the currency action. It said a great many East Germans, particularly poorer people, can now expect to lose all their savings.

Guards had slowed down and carefully screened all movement over the satellite's borders during the conversion, to nab anyone trying to bring in marks for exchange.

For the first time since the 1948 Russian blockade, the autobahn road link between West Germany and isolated West Berlin was closed to traffic. East Berlin was virtually sealed off from Allied-occupied West Berlin.

The East German regime admitted at least 80 arrests of persons crossing from the West with marks. But the fate of hundreds of people carted away from the border was secret. Presumably most of them were released after being searched and questioned.

Getting Old Not Just Matter of Years

He said recently that some children display all the usual signs of senility at the age of 10.

Dr. Kountz cites the case of a St. Louis child who died at 10 of a heart attack. The youngster had enlarged knee joints and other signs usually associated with degenerative diseases.

He said examination showed damage to the adrenal and other glands, preventing normal output of glandular secretions.

Dr. Kountz believes Medicine is beginning to find some answers to growing old and predicts:

"We can extend health and life at least 15 years, perhaps eventually continue life to the age of 100."

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called *Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Scientist Predicts Life of Future Satellite

U.S. Moon May Last Several Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—A top American satellite specialist predicts the U.S. baby moon will stay aloft "for a couple of years," if it is fired into its planned orbit.

★ ★ ★

At the same time, Dr. Fred L. Whipple estimated in Cambridge, Mass., last night that it would be months before the Russian satellite drops back to earth.

Whipple is director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, where information from American observations of the Russian sphere is being assembled and analyzed.

Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the U.S. satellite program, said Saturday night that scientists at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory here expect the Russian moonlet to stay in outer space "for at least a year."

Whipple said officials at the the Soviet satellite, which has been whirling around the globe since it was launched Oct. 4, will serve as an extremely valuable "dry run" for operations when the U.S. satellite is launched.

★ ★ ★

The United States, according to present plans, will fire some small test spheres in December, with the launching of fully instrumented satellites expected to start in March.

During the weekend, statements by some American scientists and by the Moscow radio agreed that the rocket that carried the Soviet sphere into the heavens is traveling roughly three minutes ahead of the satellite. The spent rocket is speeding around the world in its own orbit.

Whipple said the rocket is circling the earth once every 95.8 minutes. He said the rocket's life span now is estimated at a couple of months.

A spokesman at the Naval Research Laboratory said yesterday "I rather think we'll learn more for a while from observing the rocket rather than the satellite itself."

He said experts at the lab know the rocket is losing altitude, but do not yet know when it will fall toward the earth.

★ ★ ★

Technicians working to develop long range ballistic missiles will be interested in what becomes of the rocket and satellite when they fall.

While American experts have been using both radio and visual aids in tracking the satellite itself, they must rely on their eyes, telescopes and cameras to gather information about the rocket which has no transmission equipment.

Some U.S. scientists say the Russian Sputnik is automatically sending information back to the Soviets via coded signals. At least one Russian scientists has denied this is so.

A spokesman for the U.S. satellite project said Saturday "We still have not been able to evaluate the information being sent. But we are working on it and hope to be able to decipher it before too long."

Reports Saturday that the rocket is breaking up were discounted by both Hagen and Dr. Allen J. Hynek, associate director of the Smithsonian Observatory.

Hynek said in Cambridge that a check of skywatchers from Maine to Virginia confirmed that there still are two objects whizzing through the skies.

Royal Visit May Be Shot in Arm to Both Countries

By ED CREAGH
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hail to Queen Elizabeth and a jolly whatho to Prince Philip. But in all the toasting of Anglo-American friendship which will come during the royal visit, there will be one sour-faced ghost at the feast.

★ ★ ★

The great transatlantic partnership between Uncle Sam and John Bull is not in the best of shape. Perhaps the visit later this week by the Queen and her consort will strengthen it. And doubtless the result would be to strengthen the West, in turn, in its defense against the Soviet Union.

U.S.-British relations have improved, of course, since the Suez crisis. They could hardly have gone any other way. Washington was furious at the British for moving into the canal zone. London felt this country sold it down the river in opposing the invasion. Officials of the two countries were barely speaking to each other, in many cases, and the cordial working alliance born of World War II temporarily ceased to exist.

★ ★ ★

Relations are easier now. Differences tend to be recognized but not magnified. British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan touched on this point in a weekend address to the Conservative party's annual conference.

Americans, he said, thought the British "too hasty" in the Suez action while to the British it seemed this country was "too slow to understand what was really involved."

★ ★ ★

"A year ago," Macmillan continued, "when we ascribed much of the troubles of the Middle East to Russian infiltration, our analysis was questioned and even ridiculed. I do not think anyone would question it today. Recent events in Syria show how persistent Communist subversion can be."

Well, it could be argued that this country has had at least its share of firsts in spotting Soviet subversion, and has sometimes been laughed at by the British for its pains. But that's neither here nor there. The point is that the United States and Britain now are operating more or less as a team in the Middle East, as they are in varying degrees elsewhere —particularly where they see a common danger.

★ ★ ★

But there is abundant evidence that the old, easy relationship is lacking. No. 10 Downing St. doesn't always know what the White House is up to these days, any more than the White House knew the British were planning to march into Suez.

Only last week the British Foreign Office registered fear that the United States and Russia might make a private deal—leaving Britain out — on control of space missiles.

★ ★ ★

This reflects more than a lack of all-out liaison between Washington and London. It shows a belief by the British that the Americans may find their "ready-made aircraft carrier," the British Isles, less important in the age of continent-hopping missiles. The British seem to feel they are being left behind by the rush of events. As Arthur Gavshon of The Associated Press reported from London yesterday:

★ ★ ★

"The nation faced the fact that hydrogen bombs alone cannot meet the fee for entering the club of superpowers. It became apparent that the United States and Russia for years to come were likely to be the only members."

Britain and its onetime American colony have much in common, of course, beyond the strategic need of each for the other. Queen Elizabeth and her husband may be expected to do their best to point up these other mutual interests.

Bishop of State to Perform Rite

St. Philip Episcopal of Rochester Now Has Debt-Free Church

ROCHESTER — Another milestone in the history of St. Philip Episcopal Church will be reached at 8 p.m. Tuesday evening, Oct. 22nd at 8 p.m., when the church will be consecrated by the Bishop of Michigan, the Rt. Rev. Richard S. Emrich, Ph. D.

★ ★ ★

It is the tradition of the Episcopal Church that when a Church building is debt free, then it is set apart through the Service of Consecration "from all profane and common uses and for the worship of God."

★ ★ ★

The present Church building was erected and dedicated in 1951 at a cost of $79,000, of which the parish borrowed from the Bishop's Building Fund $40,000. The last installment was paid to the Diocese of Michigan this past September.

Invited to the Service of Consecration will be the clergy of the community, clergy from the Oakland Convocation, township wardens and vestry of the church, organization heads of the parish, and the bishop of the diocese and his chaplain.

Due to the constant growth of the parish, and especially in the church school, plans are being made to add an educational unit to meet the need of this growth.

Architectural plans are now in the hands of the vestry for an addition of 12 classrooms, a choir room, 3 offices, enlarged kitchen, and a chapel.

★ ★ ★

Within the next few weeks a fund raising drive will be put into action to raise money for this project, states Rev. Edgar A. Lucas, rector of the parish.

The rite is unique, in that here will be a procession of clergy around the church. The Bishop then knocks at the door, is admitted, and the mortgage is burned in the church.

Architects Veto New 2nd Story at Woodward

ROCHESTER—The architectural firm of O'Dell, Hewlett and Luckenback, serving Rochester Community Schools, have advised against the proposed construction of a second story addition to the Woodward School. The present building has wood ceiling joints.

These would have to be removed and heavier joists installed in order to support the second story. This would result in very extensive remodeling of the building, said Harry Denyes Jr., representative of the firm.

The Board of Education, therefore, has accepted the recommendation. Decisions concerning the expansion of the Woodward Building will be made in the near future.

ROCHESTER — Seeking more cemetery acreage for Avon Township, the Township Board here has passed a resolution requesting approximately 18 acres from Parke, Davis Co. The land asked is adjacent to a parcel recently given for this purpose by Dr. Sarah Van Hoosen Jones.

The resolution confirms numerous discussions on the cemetery subject over a period of 18 months.

Supervisor C. E. Miller said, "Our present cemetery is fast filling up, and we must look to the future."

A communication was read from the Oakland County Road Commission concerning survey made of traffic signs for safety at the Stiles School following the presentation of signed petitions from that area.

They recommended side installations of signs and specified that costs were to be paid by the school or requested agency. The Commission also is considering a traffic beacon and that an adult guard would be furnished during installation.

★ ★ ★

POTATOES A'PLENTY — Whether or not young Jerry Wilcox, 4, of Seattle has the situation well in hand is debatable, but it is obvious that he's solved the immediate supply problem. The boy's grandfather grew these king-size tubers in his back yard. The garden produced a score of potatoes weighing more than two pounds each, with one weighing over four pounds and several others tipping the scales at three pounds each.

Hal Boyle Says:

Sir Cedric Calls Today's Actors 'Puppets'

NEW YORK (AP)—"I had my gall bladder out last year, lost 15 pounds and never felt better in my life," said Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

"Now I'm trying to think of something else for them to take out."

Sir Cedric, at 64 a veteran of more than 100 films and more stage roles than he can remember, is known as "an actor's actor," one whose performance always is stamped with unmistakable authority.

"But my profession is the only one in which children and animals can do as well as I can after 46 years," he remarked during a luncheon at Sardi's.

"I started acting at 18 professionally, although at 14 I had played Hamlet and at 10 Shylock—before an audience limited to my mother and a nursemaid.

★ ★ ★

"My father was a doctor. He didn't like my going into acting. He told me, 'You like to make your mistakes in public. I can make mine in private—and bury them.'"

Hardwicke, who will be starred in "The Prince and the Pauper" over the CBS-TV network Oct. 28, ferries between here and his native England so often he feels he no longer has a permanent home.

"England is my wife—America my mistress," he said, adding "It is very good sometimes to get away from one's wife."

★ ★ ★

Sir Cedric, neat and precise in speech as well as manner, is pleasantly astringent in conversation. He believes acting is a form of self-conscious artistry and the actor must keep his own emotions under full control while playing a role.

"Otherwise, in playing a love scene," he said, eyes twinkling, "he might forget he was onstage, and go a bit too far. That could be disastrous."

The things that bore Sir Cedric most are "incompetence and ineptitude—and people who always try for the easy way.

★ ★ ★

"In my youth actors were spellbinders. They had a glamor. Now only actresses have glamor.

"The actor today is becoming more of a puppet. His goal no longer is to be different—but to seem as ordinary as possible, to be like any other man. But John Barrymore never tried to act like a filling station operator."

What does Sir Cedric think is the public's greatest misconception of him?

"That I am a dignified, stuffy prig," he replied promptly. "Whereas, by nature and training, I really am a clown, and started out to be a clown.

"I think the greatest satisfaction an actor can have is to make people laugh. Bernard Shaw, one of the most original thinkers I ever knew, got people to listen to him by playing the clown.

"He was the only man I knew who could laugh from head to toe. When he was genuinely amused, even his feet would laugh."

Despite his long experience, Sir Cedric says he still has to fight stagefright.

★ ★ ★

"The older you get the worse it gets," he said. "I know of some actors who take tranquilizers before a performance. But this is the wrong approach. If an actor is going to take tranquilizers, he should be fair—and hand them out to the audience, too."

I asked Sir Cedric his basic philosophy on living, and he said:

"Avoid discouragement. It's the enemy every man has—and he can die from it or become bitter, which is a form of death."

Zhukov Gets Tito's Goat —Out Hunting Together

KAMNISKA BISTRICA, Yugoslavia (AP)—The goat population of Yugoslavia was five less today as a result of Soviet Marshal Georgi Zhukov's visit.

★ ★ ★

Although Zhukov arrived five days earlier, President Tito did not see him until yesterday. They donned hunting suits, went to the mountains here in a jeep and bagged the five goats—Zhukov four and Tito one.

Germany Resents Remarks in Ceylon

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Education Minister W. Dahanayake has gotten into trouble with West Germany because of some of his recent remarks to U. S. Ambassador Maxwell Gluck.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Theodor M. Auer, West German minister in Ceylon, criticized Dahanayake for his comment to Gluck that no foreign embassy had helped Ceylon with its educational problems.

Auer noted that Germany had given Ceylon a technical workshop worth more than $300,000. He asked whether Ceylon is interested in Germany's contributions.

★ ★ ★

Foreign Ministery spokesman Gunasena de Soysa told Auer Ceylon is grateful for the help. He said the education minister's views are not those of the government.

Boy Falls Off Bridge; 'Man, It Was Crazy'

"Man, that was a terrible thing!"

Predicts Big Increase in 2-Car Families

CINCINNATI (AP) — An Akron rubber firm official today predicted that in 10 years, "20 per cent of U.S. families will have at least two cars, if present trends continue."

E. F. Tomlinson, president of B. F. Goodrich Tire Co., said, "Right now 12 per cent of American families are two-car owners" and by the end of next year, U.S. highways will have nearly 54 million passenger cars.

Tomlinson, in a speech prepared for delivery at the 37th annual convention of the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Assn., said he thinks replacement auto tire sales should be 6 per cent higher next year.

He said dealers selling tires should know how fast and under what conditions the purchaser drives his car.

Ford Museum Receives Model of First Radio

DEARBORN (INS) — A model of the first home radio set in the world has been presented to the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, by its pioneer American inventor.

Hugo Gernsback, 72, of New York, marketed the historic transmitter and receiver in 1905. He called it "telimco" after the first letters of his old firm, The Electro Importing Company, a mail order house which operated between 1904 and 1915.

In 1906, the little home radio outfit went into quantity production and was sold through retail outlets. A set costs $7.50.

Gernsback, a publisher of radio magazines and books, presented the radio to the museum at a special ceremony. He reviewed the early beginnings of radio following the presentation.

A naturalized citizen, Gernsback came to the U. S. from Luxembourg and founded the first radio store in this country shortly after his arrival. He also compiled and issued the first radio parts catalogue.

His interest in radio also carried him to publishing ventures early in his career and in 1908 he founded Modern Electrics, the first magazine devoted to the newly-discovered field of radio. It now is incorporated with Popular Science.

Other magazines and books followed, including Electrical Experimenter, 1913; Radio News, 1919; Radio-Craft (now Radio-Electronics), 1929; and Everyday Science and Mechanics, 1931.

Gernsback claims his mention of television in a technical article in Modern Electrics in 1909 was the first use of the word in America.

★ ★ ★

Besides his work in the radio field, other inventions credited to Gernsback include the osophone, an electric bone conduction instrument which enables persons hard of hearing to hear through their teeth.

Jayne Mansfield to Wear High Neck for Queen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD (INS)—Tony Curtis, still sporting his beard from "The Vikings," gets off the boat in New York tomorrow morning to be greeted by some interesting news. Harold Mirisch will tell him that he will be starred in "Thieves Market," the story I said in print at least a dozen times would be made by Gregory Peck and Sy Bartlett.

Not long ago Greg sold "Thieves Market" to United Artists, who, in turn, sold it to the newly formed Mirisch Co. It's the tale of an adventuresome ex-GI, who remains in France after the war. The starting date is the first of the year after Tony finishes "Kings Go Forth" with Frank Sinatra.

All the cast of "The Vikings," including Kirk Douglas and Ernie Borgnine, are glad this one is completed. They've been shooting under bad weather conditions in Europe for six months.

JAYNE TO MEET QUEEN

Everybody smiled out loud when Jayne Mansfield said the one thing she wanted most was to meet the Queen of England. Now Jayne's dream is coming true and she'll be presented to Her Majesty at the royal command performance on Nov. 4.

Jayne's letter was like a little girl at Christmas, she was so excited about seeing a real queen, and no one need fear that Jaynie's dress is going to shock the world.

She writes, "I have a beautiful beige dress that Charles Le Maire just made for me, and, of course, I'm wearing a high neck — I would never think of wearing a low neckline. And the skirt gives me plenty of room to curtsy." (So there won't be any of the famous Mansfield figure showing.)

Jayne tells me she saw the Dior showing in Paris and was the guest of the Lord Mayor at Mansion House in London. "I am coming back to see you and all my friends in Hollywood November 6th."

BIG-SELLING NOVEL

"By Love Possessed" is singly the greatest runaway best seller in the history of American novels. Over 200,000 copies have been sold in the first three weeks of publication, even outselling "Gone With The Wind."

When Ray Stark and Eliot Hyman bought it they had no idea they had such a prize. They have been offered $400,000 for the rights which they refuse to sell. Although they have spoken to John Huston to see if he could make the picture here in America, no deal has yet been set. John isn't crazy about making any picture in Hollywood, no matter how great the story.

Latest reports on Jerry Lewis' new son are that mother and child are doing fine—but father is covered from head to toe with a nervous rash! When Jerry asked Patti if she was disappointed at having another boy, she said, "How many girls have five men to love her?"

MGM acress-singer Joan O'Brien is marrying CBS-TV director Jack Meyer on Oct. 20. She is currently co-starring with Dean Jones in "Mock Trial." Joan was once on Bob Crosby's TV show.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

The more we pass the buck, the less the buck will be worth!

The economists call it "inflation."

But whatever it is . . . whatever its causes . . . it stares you in the face every day in the form of rising prices.

Everybody agrees we are in a state of inflation today, but too many say it can't be stopped. Or they pass the buck, and say fighting inflation is a job for the other fellow.

Inflation can be stopped and must be stopped. We believe it's a job for all of us, whether as housewives, workers, employers, savers or taxpayers.

There are three important actions all of us as individuals can take:

1. First of all, we can buy wisely, and get our money's worth for everything we buy. When we buy wisely, we ease the strain on the family budget.

2. We can save more. Not only will our savings give us greater peace of mind and family security, but these savings will provide the capital this nation urgently needs to keep our economy growing.

3. We can see to it that our government spends our tax money wisely—whether it's the government in our home town, our state or federal government. Remember it's our money that government spends, and if we keep on asking for more government spending, we'll keep on paying.

By doing these three things, all of us can help check inflation and keep prices from rising still higher.

Says Soviets Prepare for First Flight to Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—A Russian expert said today Soviet scientists and others abroad are at work on plans for rocket ship flights to the moon. He predicted moon flights will begin within this century.

Dr. V. Dobronravov said in an interview in the labor paper Trud these flights will be followed by trips to Mars and other planets in space ships weighing 1,700 tons.

Dobronravov said for a trip to the moon it was necessary to increase flight speeds only 3 kilometers — 1.86 miles a second over that attained by rockets that thrust the Soviet satellite into its orbit. He said the Soviet satellite reached a speed of 8 kilometers—4.96 miles a second in arriving at its orbit.

"With a speed of 11 kilometers —6.82 miles a second a rocket ship could land on the moon in less than five days," he said. He added that one-day trips are possible. The moon's distance from the earth ranges from 221,463 to 252,710 miles, with 238,857 miles the mean.

(The Soviet expert did not say so, but the trip he envisions undoubtedly would include some time spent in orbiting to get into the right position for a landing on the moon and then the necessary slowing down to make a landing in safety.)

Dobronravov predicted in 1954 that the first flights to the moon would come within 30 years. He did not say today whether he had shortened that estimate.

Dobronravov took the view of some Western rocket specialists that flights to Mars would be made in space ships assembled on flying platforms erected outside the earth's gravitational field.

He said a trip from earth to Mars would take 256 days but the round trip would be three years. He explained the round trip would include a 420-day wait on Mars for proper interplanetary conditions. First flights would be made to Mars in unmanned, radio - controlled space ships. This would be followed by manned flights.

Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty had praise for the bady beaten Michigan team today. "Michigan, as always, had a very fine football team. They are hard to defense against and gained some good yardage on us," he said.

Daugherty said probably the happiest moment of his life was in the 4th quarter when he could relax knowing the game was won.

Lions 'Steal' 10-7 Victory From Rams

Defensive Unit Snuffs LA Bids by Interceptions

Los Angeles Misses Chance to Tie Game in Final Seconds

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

A quartet of bandits committed wholesale thievery at Briggs Stadium yesterday afternoon where the Detroit Lions scored a thrilling 10-7 victory over the Los Angeles Rams before 55,914 fans.

★ ★ ★

The Rams, with Norm Van Brocklin throwing, attempted 18 passes, completed five and had six stolen by the four Lion backs.

Twice in the first period Los Angeles drives were stalled when Christiansen intercepted on his own 30 and when David grabbed one on his 27. The quarter finished without a score and Bobby Layne was smothered several times trying to pass.

Early in the second quarter, pass interference was ruled against Detroit to give the Rams the ball on the Lions 23. In four plays, climaxed by a 12 yard pass from Van Brocklin to Jon Arnett, the Rams scored and Paige Cothren converted to make 7-0.

Tobin Rote replaced Layne at this point but the Lions could not move in two series of plays. A Rote pass was intercepted by Bill Sherman on the Detroit 32, but on the first play Van Brocklin's pass was intercepted by Lary on the 31, who raced to the LA 16 for the most spectacular run of the day.

He went 63 yards, cutting, weaving and reversing field in sensational fashion. On the second play from scrimmage Rote passed to Jerry Reichow for the touchdown and Layne converted to make it 7-7.

Just before the half ended, Gene Gedman raced 47 yards to the Rams' 17 from where Layne booted a three-pointer with only 10 seconds left and that was the scoring for the day.

There was no scoring in the second half but both teams missed scoring opportunities to score. Detroit was stopped on the Rams 12 early in the fourth quarter and later in the period Layne missed a 15 yard field goal try.

Los Angeles moved down field three times but one threat ended when Christiansen intercepted on Detroit's 25. Another instance brought sighs of relief from Lions' fans when Elroy Hirsch dropped a sure touchdown pass on the two yard line.

With 30 seconds left, Cothren's 26-yard field goal attempt which would have tied the score, went wide and Detroit held on to win.

"That was real pressure on Cothren who is just a rookie," said Rams' coach Sid Gillman after the game. Cothren sat dejected in the lockerroom. He had made three of four field goal attempts this season, but it was pointed out that the attempt to beat the clock forced him to rush his kick. The Rams lined up without a huddle for the try.

Next Sunday the Lions meet the current Western Division leaders, the Baltimore Colts, at Briggs Stadium. Yesterday the Colts trounced the Packers, and they already own a 34-14 win over Detroit in the opener.

Really 'All Shook Up'

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—The Corvallis, Ore., high school band indulged in a bit of editorial comment between halves of the game between the Oregon State Beavers and Idaho. With the nationally-rated Beavers held to a scoreless tie by underdog Idaho in the first half, the hometown band took to the field intending to spell out "HELLO" for the visitors. Only the guys forming the "O" got mixed up and formed at the wrong end of the word. The Beavers took the hint and won 20-0.

Baltimore Still Unbeaten, Bears Lose Again

Colts Romp Over Green Bay

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Unitas was quarterbacking a semi-pro football team two years ago. He was a washout with the Pittsburgh Steelers who had drafted him from the University of Louisville.

But the 6-foot, 1-inch passer today was magician-in-chief of the Baltimore Colts, leaders of the National Football League's Western Conference with a 3-0 record.

Unitas, 24, threw two touchdown passes yesterday in Milwaukee, where the Colts burst for 38 points in the second half to crush Green Bay 45-17.

★ ★ ★

Weeb Ewbank, Colts' coach, picked Unitas off the sandlots last year as insurance when quarterback Gary Kerkorian quit the Colts to study law. Unitas took over when regular George Shaw was hurt in the Colts' fourth game. He stayed the rest of the season to hurl nine touchdowns and complete 110 of 198 passes to rank sixth among the league's passers.

Yesterday's scoring tosses increased his touchdown passes to eight in three games. His pace could bring him close to former Chicago Bear Sid Luckman's 1943 record of 28 touchdown throws in one season.

In other league games, the Cleveland Browns won their third 24-7 against the last-place Philadelphia Eagles to stay the undefeated Eastern Conference leaders.

Detroit tripped Los Angeles 10-7 and San Francisco upset the winless Bears, eight-point favorites, 21-17 with a touchdown in the final 27 seconds. They kept close to Baltimore with 2-1 records.

The Colts trailed 10-7 at the half, but Alan Ameche bulled one yard three times for touchdowns and Jim Mutscheller caught scoring passes from Unitas and Shaw to smash open the game. Mutscheller caught a first period Unitas pass to give the Colts a 7-3 lead.

It was the fourth Colt road victory in 16 road games over four seasons. Baltimore's inability to win away from home has kept the Colts in the second division.

The Eagles (0-3) suffered the most in a fourth quarter melee which emptied both benches at Cleveland. Four Eagles were ejected by officials. Three Browns followed. The Eagles haven't won since November 10, 1956.

★ ★ ★

Quarterback Tom O'Connell threw to fullback Jim Brown to cap a 69-yard opening scoring drive. Chet Hanula raced 64 yards in the first period for the second touchdown. Billy Reynolds ran five yards for the third Brown touchdown after Lou Groza kicked a 22-yard field goal, his sixth of the season.

★ ★ ★

Charley Conerly completed 11 of 13 passes and played the entire game on offense for the Giants at Washington. He filled in for the injured Don Heinrich.

Frank Gifford threw to Bob Schnelker to complete a 66-yard scoring play the first time the Giants moved the ball. The New Yorkers never were headed. Conerly also threw a scoring pass to Schnelker and Gifford plunged for the third touchdown. Ben Agajanian kicked a 50-yard field goal in the fourth period to wind up the Giant scoring. The distance was a Giant and Griffith Stadium record.

★ ★ ★

Quarterback Y. A. Tittle connected with rookie R. C. "Overdrive" Owens for the touchdown which cost the Bears their third defeat. The Bears won the Western title last year.

Owens was on his knees in the end zone when he caught the pass, the second scoring throw he caught from Tittle. The Bears led 17-14 on George Blanda's field goal in the fourth quarter after trailing 14-7 at halftime.

★ ★ ★

Billy Wells raced 96 yards to score in the opening period for the Steelers at Pittsburgh. The kickoff return was the longest in Steeler history. The Steelers, smothering Ollie Matson's running game, led 26-6 at halftime. Matson ran nine times, gained only 12 yards.

SPORTS

Next Saturday's Game May Decide

Only 4 PCC Teams 'Able' for Bowl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first bowl team of the year probably will be decided when Oregon and Washington State meet at Pullman, Wash., Saturday.

It is early in the season to be talking about bowls, but the unique situation in the Pacific Coast Conference has left only four teams eligible for the Rose Bowl nomination.

Defending champion Oregon State isn't eligible because of a rule which prohibits a team from playing in the Rose Bowl two years running. UCLA, Southern California and Washington all are barred because of assorted subsidization sins.

That leaves Washington State, Oregon, California and Stanford fighting for the plum.

If Washington State gets by Oregon, the Cougars are virtually in because they already have beaten both California and Stanford.

Washington State hasn't appeared in the Rose Bowl since 1931, when it lost to Alabama. Back in 1906, the Cougars won their only Rose Bowl game, a 14-0 triumph over Brown.

In fact, the celebration in Pullman last Saturday after the home folks heard of the Cougars 21-18 victory over Stanford at Palo Alto, almost matched that big blowout of more than a half century ago.

Meanwhile, it begins to appear that Oklahoma is not quite up to some of the Bud Wilkinson teams of the past. The Sooners whipped Texas, 21-7, last Saturday, but they had to work to do it. More significant, they are resorting more and more to passes instead of holding onto the ball and grinding out yardage along the ground.

The significance of all this is that Michigan State, which has fashioned a real powerhouse, stands a good chance of winning the treasured national championship when all the returns are in.

Oklahoma and Michigan State don't meet, but Notre Dame plays both — and on consecutive Saturdays. The Irish play Michigan State Nov. 9 and Oklahoma Nov. 16. The scores will be scrutinized to draw a picture of the relative strength of the Sooners and Spartans.

Notre Dame showed it has come a long way since last year's dismal 2-8 record by overcoming Army, 23-21. While Terry Brennan's lads certainly are not of national championship quality they are in a position to put any team in the land to a severe test.

Oklahoma, goes after its 44th consecutive victory Saturday when it entertains Kansas in a Big Eight game. Michigan State, No. 2 in the rankings, plays Purdue while Notre Dame, still undefeated, has the day off.

Pitt Adds Linebacker

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers today announced linebacker Aubrey Rozzell h as been placed on the active roster. Defensive end Jerry Leahy was dropped to make room.

Rozzell, former Delta State player, was obtained recently in a trade with the Chicago Bears but had not been placed on the active list. Leahy formerly played with Colorado.

Led by Man O' War

Ten Horses in Museum

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP) —Man O' War, who ran his last race just 37 years ago, headed a list of 10 great thoroughbreds of the 1910-1930 era who were enshrined in the National Museum of Racing today.

Big Red, as the late Samuel D. Riddle's flame-red champion was known, was the unanimous choice of a national committee of sports writers, along with C. V. Whitney's Equipoise and Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Exterminator.

Others who were elected to the Thoroughbred Hall of Fame were Gallant Fox, the Belair Stud's triple crown champion of 1930; the Greentree Stable's Twenty Grand, 1931 Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner; E. R. Bradley's Blue Larkspur, the 1929 Belmont winner; Harry Payne Whitney's Regret, 1915 Kentucky Derby winner, and only filly to win that classic; the Rancocas Farm's Grey Leg; Mrs. Fair Vanderbilt's Sarazen, and Commander J. K. L. Ross' Sir Barton, first horse to win the Kentucky Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown, in 1919.

Man O' War set five American records during his career, in which he won 20 of 21 starts. His only loss was to Upset in the 1919 Sanford Stakes at Saratoga when he was the victim of a bad start.

Big Red won the Lawrence Realization by 100 lengths, and three times was held to odds of 1 to 100.

Exterminator started in 100 races and won 50 between 1917 and 1924 when he was nine. Equipoise started 51 times, won 29 races.

Rolladium Holds 1st Skate Races

The Rolladium held its first skating race of the season Saturday with winners in three divisions of boys and girls races. Winners in the girls division were Carol Buirley in class A, Due Darimont in class B and Linda Molter in class C.

Among the boys, Skipper Darimont won in class A, Dave Ruelle in B and Larry Bolter in C.

The diaper division race was won by Warren Jiggens.

HELP!!!! — Little Steeler halfback Dean Derby finds himself surrounded by white-shirted Cardinals after picking up four yards. The Cards identified are Chuck Ulrich (72) and Leo Sugar (84). The Pittsburgh pros won the game 29-20 for their second win in three starts.

Lou Little Calls 'em

Sometimes a single play perfectly executed can make a football team, not merely for a game but for a season.

Perhaps that happened to Notre Dame when Pietrosante, in the last minute of the third quarter against Army, went up through the middle for 65 yards and a touchdown to cut the Cadets' lead to 21-14.

That was the turning point. Notre Dame, a good football team all day, was from that moment a team of high morale, confident, poised, mature. Its blocking was hard and clean, its timing was excellent, the team even more aggressive than before.

They showed this when in the fourth quarter they marched on the ground for another touchdown. Though they missed the extra point there was no panic.

When the chance came for the decisive field goal they protected coolly and effectively. It was a performance against a first-rate Army team that spoke well for the way this squad is being handled. Facing their schedule the Irish may not go undefeated but they'll be a hard team to beat from here on out.

In a game like this you've got to go with two units even though your second may not be quite as strong as your first. Because two Notre Dame touchdowns were scored against Army's second unit some might say the plan boomeranged on Army.

But when playing against teams of strength and depth there is no other choice. Football no more is an 11-man game. It is played with squads; and what's more, it's a better game.

It detracts nothing from Notre Dame and Army to note that the most impressive showing of the weekend was the striking win of Michigan State over Michigan.

The State squad had shown me seven days earlier against California the tremendous power of two mobile lines and two backfields which, set up as alternating units, put the pressure on and kept it on. The question was whether they could do the same against Michigan, and my guess was yes.

They did it with a show of manpower and a command of balanced attack as between running and passing which seems completely convincing. In Kowalczyk, the Spartans have one of the fine backs of the year fortunate enough to be working under conditions giving him and his mates every advantage.

It's too bad that Michigan State and Oklahoma don't play. I would be hard pressed to choose between them today. There appears a good chance that State will come unbeaten to its late-season games with Notre Dame and Minnesota.

Eaglets Play Like Champs

St. Mary Rips Dales, 31-6

Orchard Lake St. Mary, Suburban Catholic League football champion for the last two years, lived up to its name Sunday afternoon by routing previously unbeaten Ferndale St. James, 31-6, at Orchard Lake.

★ ★ ★

The Eaglets absorbed a 38-12 licking at the hands of Highland Park St. Benedict two weeks ago in their season opener and it looked like they were on the way out. But they were a vastly improved team yesterday as the Dales will testify.

St. Mary spotted the Dales a 6-0 lead in the first two minutes of the game, then pushed them around the gridiron the rest of the way. Fullback Terry Raymond and end Art Goisdzinski each scored two touchdowns.

St. James drove 24 yards for its lone touchdown with big Bill Tunnicliff hitting pay-dirt on a 19-yard jaunt.

★ ★ ★

The Eaglets tied the score in the 1st quarter when Goisdzinski fumbled on the St. James four after taking quarterback Ron Novak's pass and Stan Moniuszko recovered the ball in the end zone.

Raymond galloped 39 yards for a touchdown, then cracked over from one yard out to give the Eaglets an 18-6 halftime lead.

A pass play covering 15 yards from Novak to Goisdzinski and Frank Parelewicz' conversion made it 25-6 going into the 4th quarter and another Novak to Goisdzinski aerial, this one spanning 33 yards, completed the Eaglet scoring.

Detroit St. Rita moved into 1st place in the SCL with its 4th straight victory, a 27-13 decision over Center Line St. Clement. The other league games, St. Michael-St. Frederick and St. Benedict-Royal Oak St. Mary, were postponed by flu.

St. Rita now leads the circuit with a 3-0 record, followed by St. Benedict with 2-0. St. James has a 2-1 mark and the Eaglets are 1-1.

Clark Scores 27 in Crane Win

A 27-point performance by Stuart Clark sparked Cranbrook to a 46-19 walloping of Shady Side in the Cranes' Inter-State League opener at Cranbrook Saturday. Shady Side went into the game unbeaten.

★ ★ ★

Clark tallied four touchdowns, one an 80-yard kickoff return and another on a 30-yard scamper, and added three extra points for a good day's work.

★ ★ ★

Fullback Tom Noteware tallied once for the Cranes on an 82-yard run. Ossie Jacobsen scored the other two TD's, one a pass from Dick Ebeline and Gary Fletcher added the final extra point. Cranbrook has a 2-1 record.

Junior Halfback Sparks U. of D.

Titans Defeat Wichita Saturday Night, 28-0 for Second Win

WICHITA — Dan Collins, a junior who faded out as a quarterback and who nearly washed out as a halfback because of a series of leg injuries, gained 117 yards on 11 carries, scored one touchdown and passed for another as the U. of D. whipped Wichita, 28-0, Saturday night.

Senior Al Korpak of Algonac scored on a 17-yard pass from Lou Faoro in the first period. Collins' pass to end Dave Dahlkemper came in the third period.

Two more TD's in the fourth stanza were scored by Collins on 13-yard sprint and by Larry Strimas on one yard plunge.

U. of D. is now 2-1 for the season and meets Xavier at home Saturday afternoon.

DeMarco, Akins Battle for Title

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Globe today reported the coming Tony DeMarco-Virgil Akins 15-round fight will be for the World Welterweight title despite recent denials.

The bout is scheduled for Oct. 29 at Boston Garden.

The paper quoted Massachusetts Boxing Commissioner Joe Reardon as saying:

"It definitely is a title fight. There can be no question about it. The executive board of the NBA has it in black and white, having decided so at the July meeting in New York. Recently, Lou Radienza, Illinois commissioner and past National Boxing Assn. president, wrote and stated emphatically it was to be for the title.

NCAA Fall Meeting Starts Today at KC

KANSAS CITY (INS) — The council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association will hear a report of the committee on infractions at the opening session of its regular fall meeting in Kansas City today.

Committee chairman A. D. Kirwan of the University of Kentucky will present the report.

The proposals deal with the opening date of the basketball season, institutional membership requirements, revision of the recruiting rule, tightening of eligibility rules for NCAA championship competition and the membership and tenure of the council itself.

IRISH STAR — Monty Stickles was the hero as Notre Dame beat Army 23-21 Saturday. He kicked the field goal, the first of his life, which gave the Irish the win.

Is '57 Squad Greatest of MSU Teams?

Someone posed this question for Michigan State coach Duffy Daugherty Saturday after the Spartans whipped arch-rival Michigan 35-6—"Do you think this is the best team you have seen while at State?"

Daugherty would not commit himself on the question. "I would say this was the best game played by our team since I have been coach," he said, "and this year's team has more desire than any I have coached."

The Spartans had control most of the way and the margin of victory was the most lopsided for an MSU team over a Michigan eleven.

While Daugherty was refusing to commit himself on the greatness of the 1957 squad, Coach Bennie Oosterbaan in Wolverine's dressing room said he thought it was the best Michigan State team he had seen in 30 years.

U. of M. freshman coach Wally Weber also had high praises for the Spartans. "This team has ground power and a great passing attack. I think they can make their Rose Bowl reservations."

The huge crowd of 100,001 sat under sunny skies as the MSU grid machine rolled through the air and on the ground while setting up a stubborn defense which gave Michigan breathing room only between the 30-yard lines most of the day.

Walt Kowalczyk ran in All-America style in piling up 113 yards; quarterback Jim Ninowski was cool under pressure and passed for 119 more yards and a host of other backs showed they are ready to take up the slack should ever one of the frontliners falter. In all, Daugherty used nine running backs and they averaged nearly six yards every time they carried the ball.

State isn't likely to slip next Saturday at East Lansing against winless Purdue, beaten by Notre Dame, Minnesota and Wisconsin. The following week Illinois has a shot at the Spartans, but the Illini have lost two of their three starts.

Looking ahead, the Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl trip may hinge on the Nov. 16 contest at East Lansing between State and Minnesota.

The Gophers have a spotless record in three starts. But they must play eight conference games—the only team with such a staggering schedule—and the game against Michigan State will be played on the Spartans' home grounds.

Daugherty needs no other incentive for his team than to remind the squad that it was Minnesota's 14-13 victory last year that took a share of the title away from the Spartans.

The pile-driving fullback had the injury x-rayed yesterday, but coach Bennie Oosterbaan said the results were negative.

"There were no breaks or anything," Oosterbaan said. "But Herrnie's not in good shape."

Fewer, but Better, World Track Marks During '57

LONDON (AP) — The year 1957 will be known as a lean one for world track and field records.

Only seven individual marks fell in the season now almost ended. In the 1956 Olympic season world marks were broken in almost every event.

The sport's blue ribbon events — one mile and 1,500 meters — got new names in the record books. So did the classic high jump, the pole valut and the 5,000 meters.

Evn though world marks did fall in five major events, they fell with a hollow sound in both the high jump and the pole vault. In these field events the achievements were due more to scientific gadgets than to man's mastery of space.

More of that scientific business later. Here are the seven individual world marks:

1,500 — Stanislav Jungwirth, Czechoslovakia, 3:36.1 (Listed record 3:40.6 set in 1956 "by Istvan Rozsavolgyi bettered in 1957 also by Olavi Salsola and Olavi Salonen, both Finland, with 3:40.2.)

One Mile — Derek Ibbotson, England, 3:47.3 (Old record: 3:58 by John Landy of Australia in 1954.)

High Jump — Juri Stepanove of Russia, 7 feet 1 inch (Old record: 7 feet ¼ inch by Charles Dumas of the United States in 1956.)

Pole Vault — Bob Gutowski, United States, 15 feet 9¾ inches. (Old record: 15 feet 7¾ inches set in 1942 by Cornelius Warmerdam of United States.)

440 Yard Hurdles — Host Culbreath of United States, 50.5 seconds. (Old record: 51.3 seconds by Yuri Lituev of Russia in 1954. Bettered also in 1957 by Gerhardus Potgieter of South Africa with 50.7).

880 Yards — Tom Courtney, United States, 1:46.8. (Old Record: 1:47.5 by Lon Spurrier of U.S.A. in 1955).

5,000 Meters — Vladimir Kuts, Russia, 13:35. (Old Record: 13.36.8 by Gordon Pirie, Britain, 1956).

NEW RELAY MARKS WERE SET AS FOLLOWS:

440 YARDS — University of Texas and Abilene Christian College, 39.9 seconds. (Old record: 40.2 by University of Texas).

TWO-MILE — University of Texas, 7:22.7. (Old record, 7:27.3 by Fordham in 1954.

In addition, Bobby Morrow, IRA Murchison and Willie Williams, all of U.S., equalled the world 100-yard record with 9.3 seconds. (Five others have done 9.3).

But Culbreath's 50.5 is considered seven-tenths of a second slower than the 49.5 Glenn Davis (U.S.) set for a comparative distance of 400 meters. And Courtney's 1:46.8 is deemed four-tenths slower in value than the world 800-meter mark of 1:47.7 by Belgian Roger Moens in 1955.

The experts say that the raised sole on Stepanov's take-off shoe is worth three to five inches in extra height. It is, in effect, a built-in lever for the upward leap.

They also say that the fibre glass pole used by Gutowski in the vault is worth nearly six inches.

Seattle Hydro Wins Cup Again

Regas Pilots Hawaii Kai III to Victory in Sahara Test

BOULDER CITY, Nev. (AP)—The Hawaii Kai III of Seattle, driven by Jack Regas of Livermore, Calif., won the Sahara Cup again.

★ ★ ★

Regas piloted the big unlimited class hydroplane to a second victory in the Lake Mead event yesterday, cinching the cup in a final heat in near darkness as gusts up to 25 m.p.h. swept the lake.

★ ★ ★

Regas had 800 points, garnered with wins in prior heats yesterday and Saturday, when he entered Hawaii Kai III in the last run.

Final tallies after the last event gave Hawaii Kai III 1,100 points; Miss U.S. IV second with 750; Thriftway Too third with 700, and in a tie for fourth, Miss Bardahl, driven by Norm Christiansen, Seattle, and Maverick, driven by Bill Stead, a Reno, Nev., rancher, each with 625 points.

PACE RACES 31 YARDS — Michigan halfback Jim Pace goes around end for a 31-yard gain, going over Bob Bercich of MSU, in their game at Ann Arbor Saturday. Pace scored Michigan's lone touchdown in the 35-6 loss to the Spartans.

Race Driver Killed

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — Curt Lehmann, 29-year-old St. Louis race driver, was killed at Randolph County speedway last night when his midget car hit a parked racer and flipped end-over-end five times.

Lehmann was running fifth in the 48th lap of a 50-lap race when he hit a car which had been taken out because of engine trouble.

World Record in 5,000 Meters Set by Russian

ROME (AP)—The world record for 5,000 meters once more is back in the hands of Vladimir Kuts stocky Russian Naval officer.

★ ★ ★

The 30-year-old Kuts, far off form this year because of a stomach ailment, lowered the mark to 13 minutes, 35 seconds yesterday as he crossed the finish line 100 meters ahead of his closest competitor in a field of 20 at a 17-nation track and field meet.

★ ★ ★

Kuts, winner of gold medals in the Olympic five and 10 thousand meter runs at Melbourne last year replaced Britain's Gordon Pirie as the record holder, Pirie ran the 3 miles, 188 yards and 7 inches in 13:36.8 at Bergen, Norway, June 19, 1956.

★ ★ ★

"I really think my time can be further bettered," Kuts said. "I was ready to run the distance in the fastest time possible, but it wasn't until the starter fired his pistol that I felt I was on the way to better the world mark."

Rocket Zooms Past Red Wings

By BILL CORNWELL

The timeless Rocket, now playing his 15th season in the National Hockey League, personally accounted for three goals Sunday night as the Montreal Canadiens routed the Detroit Red Wings, 6-0.

It was the 32nd "hat trick" of Richard's long and illustrious career and the game's 2nd triple-header. Dickie Moore, the firebrand left winger, also tu ed in the "hat trick" to complete the Montreal scoring exhibition.

If last night's demonstration was a sample of what he'll do the rest of the season, the Canadiens won't let him quit. Hockey's greatest scorer skated like a spring chicken and fired with reckless abandon.

Even the 11,680 spectators assembled in Olympia Stadium cheered lustily for the Rocket after his 3rd goal. This is amazing in view of the fact that Detroit fans have always been quite hostile to the 36-year-old star.

Richard, along with Moore, tells the story of this game. Montreal scored three times in the 1st period, the Rocket getting two of them, battled the Wings to a scoreless standstill in the middle stanza, then exploded for three more in the finale.

Long noted for their ability to capitalize on manpower advantages, the Habs clicked four times on power plays with Richard and Moore dividing the honors. A dozen penalties were called, six on each side.

But penalties didn't make the difference. The Wings were simply never in the contest, it was that one-sided.

Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk was the constant target of Montreal's big seige guns and he was virtually blameless in every instance. He had an inept defense and the puck kept coming at him.

Only in the 2nd period did the Red Wings make a decent showing. They outshot the Canadiens, 11 to 5, but goaltender Charlie Hodge, subbing for the ailing Jacques Plante, turned everything away to preserve his shutout.

Moore opened the scoring in the 2nd minute of play while Detroit's Gordie Howe was off for interference. The Rocket clicked at 13:08 while Dutch Reibel was serving a tripping penalty, then connected again at 17:45.

Richard bagged his 3rd goal in the 8th minute of the 3rd period with Warren Godfrey sidelined for slashing. Moore then got his "hat trick" with goals at 12:48 and 19:04.

The setback gave the Wings a split for the weekend. They defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-3, at Toronto Saturday night.

Coach Is Baffled

Favored Bears Have 3 Straight Losses

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears, favored to successfully defend their Western Division title in the National Football League, suffered their third straight loss yesterday in a 21-17 defeat to San Francisco. What's wrong?

"I don't know," says coach Paddy Driscoll who led the Bears through a successful exhibition season. "We just don't seem to be doing the right things at the right time. That was our game out there today but we simply threw it away."

Actually the Bears didn't throw it away. Y. A. Tittle threw it into a San Francisco victory. Tittle went on a passing spree in the final minute and with 27 seconds left he hit R. C. Owens with a pass in the end zone while Owens was on his knees.

"We've had a lot of injuries," said owner George Halas, "but that's a helluva excuse. I don't mind losing them but I hate losing them on an illegal play."

Halas claimed Owens had been knocked out of bounds and then came back in to take Tittle's game-winning pass. Defensive back Vic Zucco upheld Halas' claim.

"I had knocked him out of bounds," said Zucco. "After he crawled back in we left him open because we knew he was ineligible."

However, the officials didn't back the Bear claim. Halas quoted one official as saying:

"'We didn't see Owens knocked out of bounds so we couldn't call it that way. So far as we know he never was out of bounds and the play would have to stand."

"We'll come back," he said. "I never went along with those predictions that we would win the divisional title. I said all along every one of the six teams was a solid contender. I still say we're not out of it yet. The team that wins this title will have four losses and we're still two away from losing five."

St. Mary's Harriers Win Sunday Contest

With 2nd and 3rd places, plus three more in the top 10, St. Mary's of Orchard Lake took a Sunday cross-country match from visiting Monroe Catholic Central, 25-34. Mett was run off between halves of the St. Mary-St. James football game.

Bill Schwartz of CC was first with 11:08. Chet Wlodkowski was two seconds back and Don Donskowski (both of OL) was 3rd with 11:08. Eaglet harriers also finished 5th, 7th and 8th.

Win was St. Mary's 2nd against three losses.

Campbell Winds Up Efforts for Record

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Donald Campbell says he has finished trying to break the world's speedboat record in the U.S. and will head back to England tomorrow.

His state permit for use of Onondaga Lake expired Saturday and he made no attempt to renew it.

Campbell said he would ship his jet-powered hydroplane, Bluebird II, back to England Thursday.

Campbell said he planned to make a further try at breaking the record on Lake Coniston in England, where he set the mark last year of 225.63 miles an hour.

Blocked Kicks Help Dales Win 29th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thanks to a couple of linemen who broke through and blocked punts at crucial points, the Hillsdale Dales have their 29th consecutive football victory.

Those blocked punts, plus a 56-yard scoring march in the 4th quarter, enabled the Dales to slip past the Albion Britons 20-14 Saturday and take the MIAA lead.

In other MIAA games, Hope smacked Kalamazoo 14-0 and Alma rolled over Adrian 25-0. Western Michigan gained a surprising 14-14 tie with Bowling Green (Ohio) in a Mid-America conference game.

Northern Michigan defeated Michigan Tech 21-6. Hillsdale came from behind twice for its victory.

Guard Ron Cockayne crashed through and blocked a kick in the end zone, then covered it himself for the touchdown in the 3rd quarter that started the Dales back in their battle from behind.

That play cut to 7-6 the lead that Albion got in the 1st quarter on Bob Gamble's 14-yard pass to Tom Taylor in the end zone.

Quarterback Mert Vanderlind scored one touchdown and set up another in Hope's 14-0 triumph over Kalamazoo. He circled end for 15 yards and the 1st score in the 2nd quarter. His 15-yard intercepted pass return to the Kalamazoo 19 set up Duane Zoskuil's six-yard scoring plunge in the 3rd period.

Alma scored on a 60-yard march in the 1st quarter and piled on another touchdown in each of the subsequent periods, smashing Adrian handily for its 2nd MIAA victory against one tied.

Halfback Rex Terwilliger scored twice, once on a four-yard plunge and later on an 80-yard punt return, in Northern Michigan's 21-6 triumph over Michigan Tech.

Egyptian Troops Influence Grains

★ ★ ★

Near the end of the first hour, wheat was 1⅛ to ⅞ higher, December $2.19⅜; corn ⅛ to ⅜ higher, December $1.19⅞; oats unchanged to ⅜ higher, December $.67¼; rye ¾ to 1⅛ higher, $1.27¾; soybeans 1⅛ to 1½ higher, September $2.30; and lard, 5 to 15 cents higher, October $11.65.

16 Marines in Japan Face Court-Martial

SASEBO, Japan (AP) — Sixteen Marines are facing court-martial on charges of mistreating prisoners in the Navy brig here, but they say they were only enforcing discipline.

★ ★ ★

Some of them say they have been victimized by "crybaby" complaints, and express bitterness that they were not backed up by their officers. Most said they are through with their Marine careers when their enlistments are up.

★ ★ ★

The charges are now under review at naval headquarters in Yokosuka. No trial date has yet been set.

Fireman Gordon L. Dell, 19, of Flint, was quoted as saying, "Several times they made me get down on my hands and knees, running around barking like a dog. They asked me to bite a sergeant. I went over. I didn't bite him—but he kicked me."

The Navy also quoted Dell as saying one sergeant banged the heads of Dell and another prisoner together "hard enough to knock us unconscious. One guy burned me on the back of the neck with a cigarette. They just got a kick out of it."

One man "put a .45 between my eyes and asked me if I wanted to die," Dell said. "They figure you're in there to be beat up and stomped on."

Empire Supply Co. Swept by Flames

State Police from the Redford Post are investigating the cause of a fire which swept through a Commerce Township lumber yard Saturday evening. They have not yet uncovered a definite cause and total damages are yet to be estimated.

Fire destroyed the lumber and storage yard of the Empire Supplies Co., 2600 Union Lake Rd., only moments after the owner had closed for the day.

S. R. Birkenshaw, the owner, had closed at 6 p.m. and left his establishment in good order, he told firemen. At 6:15 p.m. part of the yard behind the main building was ablaze.

Thorpes Behind Bars at Jackson and Detroit

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Both Floyd Thorpe and his wife, Anna, were behind prison bars today and faced the next 7 to 10 years there for absconding with $80,000 from the St. Clair Shores branch of the Secretary of State's office.

Mrs Thorpe ran the office until she and her husband ran off to Mexico with its receipts March 2, 1956. They were captured last June in Texas, after having worked their way back into the United States.

Thorpe entered Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson late yesterday. Mrs. Thorpe began her term in the Detroit House of Correction two days earlier. Both pleaded guilty. They had almost none of the $80,000 left when caught.

Martin Co., prime contractor for the United States space satellite, took opening block honors with 10,000 shares, up ⅞ at 36⅝. Douglas Aircraft leaped three points to 60 on an opener of 4,000 shares, but trimmed a fraction from this gain in later dealings.

SHADOW OF TOMORROW: Silhouette of a 1958 car, with photographers hovering over it far in advance of announcement time, dramatizes the atmosphere of top secrecy surrounding new models. The shadow, incidentally, is thrown by a 1958 Plymouth.

Rip Shrouds of Secrecy From 1958 Model Cars

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The heavy shrouds of secrecy covering 1958 model automobiles begin falling this month like autumn leaves in the north wind.

With the fanfare which delights the manufacturers' drum-beaters, one after another the new cars will be formally introduced to the public. The Edsel, a new arrival in Detroit's galaxy, jumped the gun on its more seasoned competitors and started its courtship in September.

PUBLIC CURIOUS

Probably no one product manufactured in the United States excites more curiosity in the public than the automobile. And the curiosity is not confined to the public. Keeping new model styling and engineering details out of competitors hands is one of the toughest assignments the car stylists and producers face each year.

★ ★ ★

Despite the careful precautions all companies take, it is no secret in Detroit that if you want to learn what a certain car maker is planning for a model year ahead you usually can get the information from one of his competitors—if you have the proper contacts.

★ ★ ★

Each manufacturer maintains what the designers call their "cloak and dagger" department. This department, it is said, can usually furnish drawings or pictures of a competitor's forthcoming models.

HARD TO PLUG

One of the hardest design leaks to plug is that following the resignation or discharge of a man in the midst of work on a new car.

★ ★ ★

Although moves and countermoves among competitors are in dead earnest, the car makers are just as interested in keeping their new model planning from the general public.

★ ★ ★

The competitors would need the information a year or more in advance to be able to match any innovations another producer might be planning. Styling and engineering have to be firmly set that far in advance because of the time required by the tool and die shops to provide production equipment.

Old Insurance Being Revised

Says Ironclad Policies Should Be Remodeled to Meet Emergencies

NEW YORK (AP) — The woman, recently widowed, was a victim of cancer. Her husband had carried adequate life insurance.

Yet she couldn't afford an operation because her husband's insurance policy contained an ironclad provision she was to get a fixed monthly income from his insurance.

Faced with such a hardship case, it is no comfort to the insurance company to point out it is bound under law to observe the contract entered into with the policyholder.

What can the insurance company do about this situation?

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, Wis., believes it has one answer—it is examining every policy 10 years old or older to find those which may be in drastic need of revision. To such a policyholder goes a personal letter, telling him of the situation and inviting him to look over his policy.

T. J. Otjen, assistant Northwestern secretary, says it involves checking the record cards of more than three million policies, a task expected to take three years, and writing thousands of personal letters.

To a large extent, the company is looking to policies with restrictive payment terms which have remained unchanged for at least 10 years. In many cases, policyholders are being asked if they don't want to make provision for cash withdrawal or some other allowance for adjustments, in view of rapidly changing economic conditions.

The company can do nothing for the widow whose husband left her with obsolete insurance income. It can, however, prevent repetitions by alerting other families to outmoded policies before the policyholder dies.

Two Cars Collide at Walton, Joslyn

Dozing Driver Smacks Car Into Tree in City

James E. Hoppe, 30, of 2214 Walnut St., fell asleep at the wheel and ran his car into a tree on Mt. Clemens St. near the city limits Sunday morning, according to Pontiac police.

Guilty of Car Violations

A Madison Heights man, Louis C. Vashaw, 26, of 30727 Palmer St., was found guilty on charges of reckless driving and driving without an operators license Saturday.

Appearing before Springfield Township Justice Emmett J. Leib, Vashaw was sentenced to serve 90 days in the Oakland County Jail for each offense.

Parisian to Solo Cruise to Halifax in Rubber Raft

His 15-foot Air Force raft carries no food or water and has no engine. It is equipped with a mast and nylon sails.

Lacombe said he wants to prove he can live on fish and small animal and plant life in the water during the 600-mile journey.

The raft carries one oar, a radio receiver, leeboards to keep it from tipping over, fishing tackle and a canvas cover to protect Lacombe from rolling waves.

Negroes Uneasy at Little Rock

Too Calm for Comfort, Says One Leader, of Serene Atmosphere

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Nine Negro students were to begin their fourth week today at Central High School in an atmosphere so serene it made some Negro leaders uneasy.

"It's too calm to be comfortable for us," said L. C. Bates, a newspaper publisher and husband of the Arkansas president of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

★ ★ ★

Bates said last night he thought there might be trouble "with the present tension as it is" if federal troops were withdrawn immediately from the massive school building.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division and federalized Arkansas National Guardsmen have taken turns guarding the school and protecting the six Negro girls and three boys.

The soldiers were ordered to Central High by President Eisenhower after rioting broke out Sept. 23 when the Negroes first entered the school.

Gov. Orval Faubus, confined to his mansion with influenza, said during the weekend it was his understanding a Southern governors' committee representative might contact him this week on a new attempt to solve the crisis.

But at New York yesterday Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, committee chairman, said "there are no plans at the moment" to renew contact with Faubus.

Sputnik Rocket Visible for 3 Minutes; Brilliance Now Variable

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A photograph of the third-stage rocket that launched Russia's earth satellite was made by a team of University of Michigan astronomers yesterday.

★ ★ ★

Prof. William Liller, head of a three-member "moon watch" group, said the picture was made while he and others were watching the rocket from the Angell Hall observatory yesterday morning. Liller said the rocket was visible for about three minutes.

Liller said "variations in brilliance" led the astronomers to conjecture that the rocket was tumbling end-over-end in its flight through space. The object is ahead of the actual satellite which was not visible to the watchers.

★ ★ ★

Liller said it is believed that this was the first time the rocket had been seen in Michigan.

And in Detroit, Sputnik's beeping travels through space apparently were behind a Detroit newspaper reader's invitation to share a ride to the moon.

The prospect appeared in an advertisement which said: "Space researchers wish to contact persons interested in traveling to the moon."

It went on to say that "applicants must be in good health and willing to waive liability in event of diability (sic)" and must have "pioneering spirit and be congenial traveling companion."

Have you an "octopus" in your home? If so, it should be removed at once, warns the Institute for Safer Living. An octopus in case you do not know, is a tentacle-like collection of electric cords all plugged into one socket. It can be many times more dangerous than the deep sea variety because it may start a fire that will destroy your home.

SOLAR HOUSE — Heat from the sun for an operating cost of about $50 annually has been achieved in the experimental house sketched, above, a project of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Located in Lexington, Mass., heat collector beneath glass roof warms water of a closed system to about 150 degrees F. Water gives off heat through a heat exchanger, and can retain its warmth in storage for about three days. Heat exchanger operates to cool home in summer. Sketch is from Popular Mechanics magazine.

Atomic Accident Endangers Milk

British Plutonium Plant Lets Radioactive Iodine Contaminate Farms

LONDON (AP) — Farmers on a coastal strip near the big Windscale atomic energy station kept their milk at home today, waiting to hear if it is too radioactive.

Dr. A. S. McLean, chief medical officer of the Atomic Energy Authority's industrial section, said farmers were told to store their milk until a decision can be made about its use.

He said it migh' be good for feeding animals or making butter and cheese.

Fruit and vegetables from the farms also were collected for testing.

"We do not say the situation is dangerous but we felt it necessary to stop supplies, especially for children," Dr. McLean said.

The area affected, in Cumberland County, is seven miles long and two miles wide. There are 100 farms in it and the population is estimated at more than 5,000.

Rolls With the Turns

A Rochester woman was uninjured Sunday morning after she fell asleep at the wheel, and her car hit one ditch, rolled over car hit one ditch, rolled over twice and came to a stop upside down in a second ditch.

Mrs. Dorothy McCormick, 44, of 335 Parkdale St., told Sheriff's deputies here she was going east on Pontiac Road near Brewster Road when she dozed off. She awoke as her car hit the right shoulder of the road but lost control turning back to the pavement.

She then shot acorrs Pontiac Road, hit a ditch at the intersection and rolled across Brewster Road where the car landed on its top in a ditch, she said.

Brando Bride Causes Buzz in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The question of whether Marlon Brando's bride was Anna Kashfi, Indian actress, or Johanna O'Callaghan of Cardiff, Wales, still has Hollywood buzzing today.

It appears possible that she was both; that is, that Joan O'Callaghan, actually born in India, took an Indian name and atmosphere for her theatrical career.

On the other hand, she told Hollywood friends that she was Indian and on her marriage license she listed her birthplace as Darjeeling, India, and her father as Devi Kashfi.

O'Callaghan of Cardiff, a Welsh factory worker and former railroad man in India, says that Anna Kashfi is his daughter, Joan, born in India while he was employed there. And MGM studio says her paychecks were issued in the name of Johanna O'Callaghan.

Whether she is Anna or Joan, the 23-year-old beauty is now Mrs. Marlon Brando and has been since she and the 33-year-old actor were married in nearby Eagle Rock Friday.

Newsmen and studio people have been unable to locate the honeymooning couple since to ask about O'Callaghan's parental claim. When the bridal couple left by automobile, Brando said he didn't know, himself, just where they were going.

Waterford Board Maps Light Session

Aside from discussion on several pending projects, there is little business on the agenda for tonight's Waterford Township board meeting according to Supervisor Elmer Johnson.

Action one way or the other is expected to be taken by the board regarding rezoning of five acres at Scott Lake and Watkins Lake roads from residential to commercial, Johnson said.

A water operation agreement between the township and Highland Estates and the Belmoral subdivisions on Highland road will be discussed. No action is anticipated, Johnson said.

The Australian government estimates that the continent could support 25 million people, nearly three times the present population.

Comedian Dad Learns Quickly

Makes Fast Transition to Serious Acting After 56 Years as Clown

By JOHN HANAUER

NEW YORK, (INS) — Keenan Wynn talks like a proud poppa about his father, Ed Wynn.

"My old man learned in 10 days what it takes most actors 10 years to learn," Keenan boasted, referring to his father's first live dramatic televsion role last year in "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

"Pop learned the application of thought—of thinking about what you're saying before you say it, then making words paint a picture.

"He learned to say lines for truth instead of untruth, which meant breaking a habit of 56 years of being a comic. He learned to transpose, to substitute a remembered emotion for the one in the script in order to get realism.

★ ★ ★

"He learned to take somebody else's timing and work with that, instead of having everybody depend on his timing as they did in his musical comedies.

EXTREMELY HAPPY

★ ★ ★

Keenan had his doubts when he heard his father read his part through the first day of rehearsal for "Requiem." The elder Wynn, Keenan said, was "unbelievably bad" but learned so well that by show time he practically made off with the program.

The younger Wynn recalled the days when he first entered the theater:

"I never wanted to be an actor. The only feeling I had about Pop's being a star was that I was treated condescendingly because I was the son of a famous person; so I wanted no part of it. Instead I raced cars, motorcycles, speedboats.

"I went into the theater when I was 17 because I didn't want to go to college. The old man said to me, 'What are you going to do—run a speedboat up the aisle?' He said he would stake me to six months training and six months looking for jobs."

★ ★ ★

FOUGHT AGAINST IT

"He always fought against it," Keenan said. "He once saw me in a stock show that was very emotional and exhausting, and I was pretty good.

"He came backstage after the show with tears in his eyes, saying, 'You were great, you were wonderful — you should do comedy.' "

But Ed always wore a boutonniere, so the inventor of a vial to keep lapel flowers fresh got $5,000 from Wynn.

TV Networks to Deliver Biggest Pitch of Season

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — We're approaching the week when the television networks make their biggest pitch of the new season.

★ ★ ★

Here are some of the special things on tap:

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II definitely will be TV's queen of the week. TV coverage begins with the arrival of the royal family in Ottawa today. Coverage of the Queen in Canada will continue Sunday and Monday. On Thursday you may view her arrival in Washington, D.C.

Sunday is quite a day. "Wide Wide World" (NBC-TV) will try — and "try" must be emphasized — to glimpse the Russian satellite in a remote pickup from the University of Colorado's 11,320-foot high Coronagraph Station at Climax, Colo.

★ ★ ★

FRANK AND BING

On NBC-TV an oil company comes up with another big 90-minute variety show. Tyrone Power will be master of ceremonies to a host of guests.

On Thursday "Hall of Fame" launches its new season on NBC-TV with "The Green Pastures."

At the same time, CBS-TV will telecast a party which Mike Todd and his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, are throwing for 18,000 persons in Madison Square Garden to celebrate the anniversary of his movie, "Around the World in 80 Days."

Next Friday evening ABC-TV adds another large splash to the variety show field when Metropolitan Opera soprano Patrice Munsel launches her new weekly half-hour variety program and Frank Sinatra becomes a TV host with his own show.

Free Press Fire Delays Paper Run

DETROIT, (INS) — Delivery of the first edition of the Detroit Free Press, the city's morning newspaper, was delayed for a time last night by a fire in a press room exhaust fan.

The paper said the blaze was extinguished quickly but heavy smoke halted the press run.

This Con Man's Dog Worth Only the Best

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Sometimes on the Big Street I run into somebody who loves something very simple—like a dog.

"Swifty" Morgan—who brags that he is a septuagenarian delinquent, peddling worthless jewelry to rich idlers at the race tracks and in the saloons—once had a little bull terrier named "Blackie."

"Blackie" died a few years ago. Swifty was so upset he almost turned honest.

WILSON

"I was really afraid Swifty was going to do the Dutch," says his sponsor, Joe E. Lewis, the comedian whose fabulous life story in Chicago night clubs is being played in the movies by Frank Sinatra. However, Joe E. told me a tale about him . . .

"'Blackie' was sick—and Swifty was sick, too, in a Miami Beach hospital," Joe E. said.

One night, while playing in Philadelphia, Joe E. phoned Swifty in the hospital. Swifty whimpered that he was dying.

WILSON

"Don't talk like that!" begged Joe E. Swifty pleaded for a last favor—send him a dozen Countess Mara neckties.

"I want to give them to the nuns and priests here who have been so nice to me on my deathbed," sobbed Swifty.

★ ★ ★

"I figured he must be delirious," recalled Joe E. "Since when are nuns and priests wearing neckties?"

Joe E. bought the $200 worth of ties and airmailed them. A week later Swifty sounded much improved.

Joe E. was sitting alone in the Philly club when Ben Street, operator of the Miami Beach hotel where Swifty lived, came in. He was wearing a Countess Mara tie of the pattern he'd sent Swifty.

★ ★ ★

"What was the kindness?" asked Joe E.

"Taking good care of 'Blackie' while he was in the hospital. I thought it was very generous of Swifty."

"Did he say where he got the ties?" asked Joe E.

"Yes," replied the hotel man. "He said they were sent to him by some great big jerk up north. He said the guy was a real sucker."

"He understated it," said Joe E.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Ethel Merman'll do one more B'way show (to be produced about 1958 by Leland Hayward), then "It's curtains for me!" she swore. (But she's plotting a TV series . . . Several insiders knew Jack Benny's plan to try only for $64; Hal March declares he didn't. The wife of one of Jack's sponsors, completely fooled, asked earlier, "Do you think Jack should take a chance on making a fool of himself?" . . . Anne Walker, a former hatcheck gal, will join the Latin ¼ chorus.

CROP Donors to Be Honored

Thanksgiving Program to Recall Methods Used in Gigantic Project

The "spontaneous generosity" of millions of American farmers, who have shared their harvests with the needy overseas, will be given its just recognition at Thanksgivingtime, a spokesman for CROP declared, announcing events during the Tenth Anniversary year of the Christian Rural Overseas Program.

★ ★ ★

"For ten long years," the Rev. Albert W. Farmer said, "farm families, their organizations and churches have not grown weary either in working or in giving." Mr. Farmer is national director of CROP, a program of Church World Service.

Speaking at the recent anniversary dinner in Chicago, Mr. Farmer recalled the "hectic days" when the first Friendship Trains were organized in 1947.

"Like their successors," he said, "those who had the vision and devoted their energies to moving carloads of wheat and corn overseas were indeed 'Ambassadors to the Hungry.'" CROP's anniversary film under this title tells the story of the more than 240 million pounds of food CROP has made available to overseas needy. Total value of contributions from every state in the Union in the past ten years, he said, is $15,271,787.

KANSAS LEADS

Kansas, leading state in 1956 CROP contributions, will be host "thank-you" services to the nation's farmers in the East, Midwest and West Coast areas. Stating that CROP is a major program of the Kansas Council of Churches, Mr. Farmer reported that in ten years $1,769,507 of the national total were donated in food and self-help projects and shipped from Kansas to all parts of the world.

★ ★ ★

Messages of anniversary congratulations have been received by Adenauer, the Queen of Greece, M. Henri LaBouisse, director of Works Agency (UNRWA) and other notables.

Freighter's Cook Falls Into New Job

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dick Foy, second cook on the English freighter Manchester Vanguard, stepped ashore here for a brief leave and found himself caught up in the swirl of commercial music.

★ ★ ★

Foy, 21, who plays the guitar and sings, stopped at a pub and soon was entertaining the customers. One of the patrons thought he had something extra and took him to booking agent Tony Murnek who agreed.

★ ★ ★

After stops at a barber and haberdasher, Dick found himself at a recording studio where he cut half a dozen records.

"Only in America could this happen," said the excited Foy as he returned to his ship to wait and see what will happen.

Expanding Population Big Problem for China

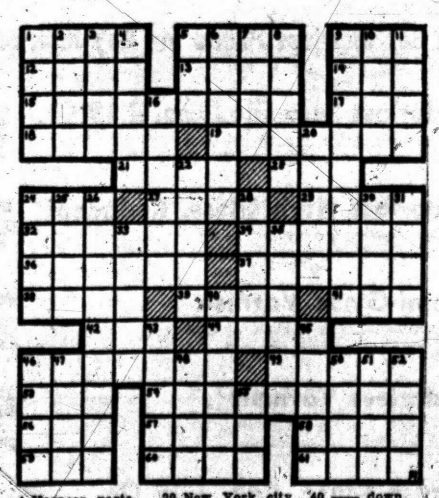

HONGKING (INS) — At the current rate of increase, the population in Red China will be more than 700 million by 1962.

The annual increase has been officially estimated at 2.5 per cent or 15 million.

Concern over this problem has been expressed in official circles and the Minister of Public Health, Madame Li Teh-chuan, has warned that agricultural and industrial production will never be able to meet the demands of the increasing population unless birth-control is accepted and practiced by the masses.

The man who doesn't believe that women are hard losers never knew one who was on a diet. . . . The trouble with Hollywood is that too few marriages are ideal and too many are ordeal. . . . An efficiency expert is someone who can figure a reason why everybody should be fired except himself. —Earl Wilson

In the past five years more than one million persons have deserted farms in Japan for city jobs.

Italian Craze Originated With Jewish Matzoh

Pizza on Way to Outrace the Hot Dog

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — A well-rounded dish known colloquially as the pizza pie seriously threatens the hot dog and the hamburger for first place in the heartburn of our countrymen.

Almost unheard of before World War II in most parts of the land, the pizza whirled out of New York's "Little Italy" like a flying saucer. A smelly, soggy, succulent saucerful of pungent Mozarella cheese, stewed tomatoes and baked dough, it quickly captured the palates and purses of a nation.

Pizza house or pizzerias popped up unabashedly beside Maine lobster pounds, Boston chowder shops, Charleston hush-puppy shacks, Kansas City steak houses, New Orleans oyster bars, El Paso chili parlors and San Francisco chop suey emporiums.

Towns that never saw a steamed clam or tasted southern fried chicken, both true-blue American dishes, counted half a dozen neon pizza signs on their main streets.

"Let's get a big sloppy round one" became, in teenage jargon, a nationwide invitation to gather socially about a circular aluminum platter, 15 inches in diameter and dripping with olive oil.

NATIONAL PASSION

Today there are an estimated 20,000 pizza houses in the country, compared with less than 100 in 1940, and new ones are opening at the rate of 750 a year.

You can't buy a pizza in Pisa, Italy, but several pizzerias flourish in Baton Rouge, La.; Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Houston, Tex.

You can take pizza home fresh, frozen or refrigerated. Or you can make it yourself with a prepared pastry shell and a prepared sauce, or start from the bottom up with a pizza kit that contains all the makings.

★ ★ ★

Although something of an overnight economic sensation, the pizza has been flopping around in history much longer than the rival hamburger and hot dog.

According to the Italian American Historical Society, the pizza is of Jewish origin and its true ancestor is the matzoh, unleavened bread eaten at Passover.

Roman soldiers in about 200 B. C. decided to hop up the matzoh with a dab of olive oil and some cheese. Lo, the pizza was born.

The pizza fad really got started in 1936 when a saloon owner asked Frank Mastro, a restaurant supply man still located on the Bowery, to devise a small oven capable of generating the 600-degree heat needed for pizza. Mastro stripped the gas fixtures from a small pie oven, lined the inside with bricks, and soon had requests for a dozen more.

ON ITS WAY

The Brooklyn Union Gas Co., concerned over the number of gas customers reverting to coal fires, stemmed the tide by providing Mastro with a gas unit capable of producing high heat quickly and efficiently. The pizza was on its way and so was Mastro.

Today he is the largest supplier of pizza ovens and equipment in the world, shipping to every state in the union, Mexico, Canada, Puerto Rico, Sweden, England and Hawaii.

came home and decided to go into the pizza business in various

Today the pizza still jumps ethnic and geographical barriers. New York and Chicago lead the field, but Boston, Miami and Los Angeles are breathing hot Mozarella fumes on their necks.

Jewish neighborhoods are considered the best locations, Irish and German come next, with the Italians far in the rear.

Various explanations have been offered for the popularity of the pizza. It is cheap to eat and cheap to make. None of the ingredients is imported. Biggest item is labor costs. A pizza chef now commands $100 to $125 a week.

With a profit margin of 80 to 90 per cent, pizza is credited with keeping many a tavern in business when television first made shut-ins of the American public.

Of the 40,666 foreign students in United States schools for the 1956-57 academic year, Canada led with 5,379. China was second with 3,055 and Korea third with 2,307.

Put Envelopes on Cars for Payment of Tickets

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Little Rock police leave a red envelope on cars tagged for overtime parking so the motorist can just insert a $1 fine and mail it in.

"Bought car in Fayetteville, Ark live in Oklahoma, leaving for Arizona. Too bad, so sad, dad."
