Merchants Pledge Funds for Civic Planning

The Greater Downtown Pontiac Association proposes to take vigorous and constructive action to better the trading facilities in the center of the city through a three-point program which includes:

- A—Pushing hard to guarantee the big, through highway west of Saginaw Street;
- B—Studying the problem of rebuilding stores on the west side of Saginaw Street between Pike and Patterson;
- C—Improving downtown parking.

Monroe M. Osmun, Robert R. Eldred, Milo J.

Cross and John A. Riley were named a four man committee to engage an expert to survey the situation and make a full time project of bringing these three problems to a successful solution as soon as possible.

"The City of Pontiac has already made arrangements with a specialist to study this problem," said Chairman Osmun, "and it is possible that we may work out some arrangement with City Manager Willman who is thinking along the same general lines. Or, we may take on our own representative. In any event, his problem will be to study Pontiac completely and then make definite recommendations as to how we can best accomplish our three objectives economically and in the least space of time.

"The salary of this man will be underwritten by downtown merchants, business establishments, property owners, doctors, lawyers and other professional people who have offices. We have other plans for future promotions and accomplishments, when our first objectives are realized.

"The world is sweeping onward and Pontiac is either going to keep abreast in progress and advancement or lag woefully behind. We find the need of a broad program of store improvement in downtown Pontiac. This means new fronts and radically modernized interiors. We need more bright, new retail establishments to meet the competition that exists in the world today.

"Our downtown group is enthusiastic over the possibilities ahead and we propose to finance a comprehensive plan of modernization that will match up to the best you find anywhere. Eight downtown institutions have already agreed definitely to underwrite their share of the financing. We plan to visit all other stores, business and professional people, property owners and everyone who has an interest in the center of the city, and invite them to participate."

Dulles to Hear Israel's Plea to Curb Egypt

Prevent Mideast War, Foreign Minister to Ask U.S. in Talk Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles scheduled an urgent meeting today with Israel's Foreign Minister Golda Meir to hear her plea for U.S. action to curb Egyptian moves before war erupts in the Mideast again.

Mrs. Meir flew to Jerusalem in a dramatic bid for American support. She arrived yesterday at the same airport and almost at the same time as Dulles, back from the Far East. But they never met.

Dulles closeted himself with aides for a couple of hours, then authorized an announcement that he would see Mrs. Meir today. The time was not announced.

Mrs. Meir made her flight after Egypt's President Gamel Abdel Nasser ordered Egyptians to take back control over the Gaza Strip from United Nations forces which had replaced withdrawing Israeli troops.

This, plus Egyptian talk about re-imposing the Suez Canal and Gulf of Aqaba blockades against Israeli shipping, ran counter to Israeli assumptions on which the withdrawal was based.

"BACK WHERE STARTED" "I am quite convinced," Mrs. Meir told reporters at the airport yesterday, "that with the Egyptians in the Gaza Strip we have returned to the same situation that we had before Oct. 29."

That was the date Israel attacked Egypt last fall, reporters noted. Did that mean, she was asked, that Israel would fight again if Egypt assumed what is (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Free World Mourns Magsaysay

Garcia Becomes Philippine Head

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Carlos P. Garcia took over the reins of government today as the Philippine nation and the free world mourned the plane-crash death of President Ramon Magsaysay.

Garcia flew in from the SEATO conference in Australia several hours after Magsaysay's charred body was found on a Cebu Island mountainside.

The 60-year-old vice president took the oath of office as fourth president of the Philippine Republic before Chief Justice Ricardo Paras.

He will serve until after next November's presidential elections, which now promise to be a wide-open fight.

A staunch supporter of Magsaysay's foreign policy, Garcia is expected to continue the late President's aim of strengthening American-Philippine friendship.

Magsaysay, 49-year-old champion of democracy and bitter foe of communism, perished early yesterday when his twin-engine plane crashed in dense jungle just after leaving Cebu for Manila.

Only one passenger, a Philippine newsman, survived the crash, which claimed the lives of 26 persons, including several top government officials and educators. Several Philippine newsmen and members of Magsaysay's staff. The President was returning from giving two commencement speeches in Cebu.

A close guard was placed around the wreckage as officials made clear they had not ruled out the possibility of Communist sabotage. As defense secretary, Magsaysay had wrecked the Communist Huk rebel movement in the infant island republic.

Messages of condolence poured in from abroad to the Philippine government, Magsaysay's widow and their three children.

From aboard the cruiser Canberra, President Eisenhower in a statement said the people of the Philippines, the United States and "the entire free world have lost a valiant champion of freedom." Magsaysay, he added, "will be greatly missed" in the fight against communism.

Downtown Pontiac's lowest temperature preceding 8 a.m. today was 26. The mercury read 39 at 1 p.m.

Faces Charge in Baby Killing

Mental Exam to Decide Whether Infant's Sifter Will Stand Trial

Two more chapters of the brutal drowning story of a 2½-year-old Pontiac child and her confessed baby sifter killer will be added today.

In Pontiac, the funeral service of Patty Tiernan, found Thursday night drowned in a bathroom of a Detroit hotel room, will be held at the Grace-Smith Funeral Home, 138 W. Lawrence St., at 1 p.m. today. She will be buried at Mt. Hope Cemetery.

In Detroit 18-year-old sister, Madelon Roberta Sue Allred, of 33 Gingiel Ct., is scheduled to be charged by Detroit police with first degree murder.

The child was found in Detroit about 10 p.m. Thursday after the girl had told police she had killed the child by strangling her in a hotel room "until her face turned blue."

Detroit police Inspector Thomas Cochill said Saturday he felt the baby sifter, employed only three weeks, will be found mentally ill. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Senator Urges Tighter Control of Labor Cash

Teamsters Chief Says He Repaid Entire Sum but Without Interest

WASHINGTON (INS)—The admission of Teamsters President Dave Beck that he borrowed—without interest $300,000 and $400,000 from his union's treasury brought a congressional demand today for tighter control of labor funds. Sen. Alexander (R-NJ), top-ranking minority member of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, declared "we must pass legislation" to control the use of unions' capital.

Smith said further: "I think if we find that union funds are used the way they seem to have been used, it's perfectly outrageous."

Beck said he repaid every cent of the money he borrowed from his union during the past 10 years.

MEMO TO CAESAR

Claudia Tells Pilate of Some Gossip

(Eleventh in a Lenten Series)

Tiberius Caesar's letter, mocking Pilate for his concern over the influence of Jesus, reached the Judean governor at his palace in Caesarea — the home he preferred when he could escape from duties in Jerusalem.

As he read the jibes, the color blanched from Pilate's face. He flung down the paper and seized his sword which lay beside him on a small marble table.

He crashed the blade against the stone and the steel shattered and went clattering to the parquet floor.

"The fool!" he roared. "The idiotic fool."

"And just who is a fool?" A woman's voice asked calmly. It was Claudia, Pilate's wife, who had just come in from the courtyard.

He turned on her brusquely, but as always her cool blonde beauty mollified him even before he could speak.

"Caesar," he said in even tone. "Tiberius is a fool. He refuses to reckon with the influence of this preacher, Jesus, who is now recruiting followers."

Claudia laughed. "Have you heard the latest about this man?"

"What now?"

"All the women here and in Herod's court are talking about it. It seems that he stopped at a well near Sychar in Samaria and a woman, who came there for water, got into conversation with him. She was rather attracted to him and coyly asked him about his teachings. He told her to bring her husband and he would explain his religion."

"The woman said, 'I don't have a husband.' Whereupon this Jesus looked her in the eye and told her she was telling the truth because she had already had five husbands and her present spouse was not a real husband!"

"The woman gasped. It was all perfectly true, and yet she had never seen the Nazarene before."

Claudia chuckled. "They say it made an honest woman of her, too! And when the Samaritans heard about it they came to listen to the Nazarene. Everyone was greatly impressed."

She paused. "Why don't you invite him here so we can judge the man for ourselves?"

"Never," Pilate growled.

"Just the same, I'll wager you do talk to him sometime," Claudia teased. She had yet another story to tell, but decided to bide her time.

Charges Stalling by Foster, Ziegler

Mackie Lashes at Road Delay

Charging plans for a north-south interstate highway through Oakland County are "purposely stalled," Democratic highway commissioner candidate John C. Mackie Saturday lashed out at the Republican highway administration.

Mackie criticized delays in construction of the Orchard Lake-Telegraph Road underpass and told a Democratic Women's Day audience at Northland Center:

"My opponent would rather stall the federal highway program than tell Oakland County voters where the controversial north-south expressway will be located.

"He (Chief Deputy State Highway Commissioner George M. Foster) and Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler are purposely stalling location studies until after the April 1 election.

"The states were supposed to have completed location and cost studies on their interstate routes and submit them to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads by Jan. 1. Many have done so, but not Michigan.

Foster is the Republican candidate for the post Ziegler is resigning after 14 years.

Mackie also criticized plans for extension of Northwestern Highway as a limited-access expressway as "bait for Oakland County voters."

"This is not entitled to any state funds and will take $1,000,000 away from Oakland County local roads over the life of the expressway bond issue," he declared.

Mackie was referring to a proposed bond issue that would finance the county's share of the cost over a 20-year period. The state and federal governments would split the initial cost.

The interstate highway, however, would be financed by $50 federal money for every $10 in state funds, Mackie pointed out.

Mackie termed the underpass delay, "but one example of our state's 'bits and snatches' highway program.

"A lack of long range planning has the Highway Department in a

Praise Newspapers' Ethics in Advertising

EAST LANSING (AP)—Newspapers daily turn down misleading advertising to protect consumers and maintain high ethical standards, an advertising workshop at Michigan State University was told recently.

William Haight, publisher of the Lake Orion Review and an MSU journalism consultant, said daily and weekly newspapers safeguard their communities by serving as better business bureaus.

Without this protection, he said, the public would be perplexed by false claims by unreliable retailers and fly-by-night outfits.

Playhouse 90 Also Scores TV Emmies for Caesar Blow to Sponsors' Purses

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If you were one of the millions who watch the TV Emmy show Saturday night, it will surprise you to hear that you watched a revolution — of the arts against the admen.

For Madison Avenue wanted Caesar buried, not praised. The hard-sell boys from the ad agencies admit that Sid, the comic Caesar, is a very funny man. But his production costs come high. That, trade sources disclose, is why he has had a little sponsor trouble recently.

But the Television Academy — the one TV group where artists outnumber salesmen — awarded Sid and his show five Emmies. He was one of two sweepstakes winners. The other was Play-

Tip by Cabbie Leads to Arrest

Act Arouses Suspicion; 2 Men Held in Robbery of Troy Market

A cab driver's alertness led to the arrest of two suspects in the safe robbery of Torrey's Market, 3336 Rochester Rd., Troy, in which more than $1,300 was taken.

The cab driver, whose name was not revealed, reported that he picked up the two men Friday night in Troy and took them to a Detroit hotel. He became suspicious, he said, when the two had him stop on the way so they could remove some articles from a parked car.

Troy Police alerted the Detroit officers, who apprehended the two men Saturday at a railroad terminal after tracing them from the hotel named by the cab driver.

Each of the two suspects had $543 in cash in his possession and a ticket to Buffalo, N. Y. Both men are from California. Troy police have placed a "hold" on the suspects now being questioned by Detroit police in connection with crimes committed there.

Pure Oil Joins Gasoline Strike

Picket Detroit Terminal; Pontiac Branch Still Making Deliveries

The strike of gasoline workers spread to a third company today when pickets appeared at the Pure Oil Co.'s terminal in Detroit.

Dick Williams, manager of the Pontiac Pure Oil terminal, 2451 Orchard Lake Rd., said no pickets had appeared there and that gasoline and fuel oil deliveries would continue as usual. The local plant receives its deliveries from the struck Detroit yard.

Over the weekend, members of Central State Petroleum Workers Union Local 102 voted to accept a company wage increase offer with Standard Oil Co.

Byron L. Cole, manager of the Standard Oil Co. yard here, said 12 drivers, mechanics, clerks and maintenance personnel had returned to work today under the terms.

DELIVER FUEL OIL
He said deliveries of fuel oil were resumed today and would continue as long as supply lasted, expected to be through this week. CSU workers walked off the job here March 7.

Negotiations weren't expected to be resumed until Wednesday between Local 11-389 of the Oil, Chemical, and Atomic Workers Union and Standard and Socony Mobil Oil Co. officials.

It is local 11-389 members, representing terminal and pipeline workers, that have left their jobs at the Pure Oil yard in Detroit.

The union rejected an interim offer by Socony officials to return to work while negotiations continued.

Admits Borrowing From Union Funds

In an interview telecast yesterday from Tacoma, Wash., that the loans were made to him interest free because the funds were in commercial banks and were not drawing interest. He said other Teamsters officials borrowed money under similar arrangements.

His statements came as the Senate special committee on racketeering in labor and management prepared to knuckle down further in its probe of Teamsters finances.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) has set a Wednesday afternoon deadline for Beck to turn over his personal financial records to the committee.

CONCEDES RIGHT
Beck conceded that the McClellan group has the right to issue a subpoena for his files, but said it would be up to his lawyers to decide what course should be followed if a subpoena is issued.

McClellan said yesterday that Teamsters union officials have failed to counteract evidence linking them with hoodlums in an underworld conspiracy in Portland, Ore.

The Senator said the testimony on Oregon vice and corruption for the past three weeks was "only the first phase" of the investigation and will probably end tomorrow with the second appearance of Frank W. Brewster, chairman of the Teamsters' West Coast Conference. There was no hearing scheduled today.

Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, says the probe of Teamsters Union funds "undoubtedly will lead to certain conclusions."

Pointing out that the select Senate committee was set up to study corruption in both labor and industry, Kennedy told newsmen current hearings will open the door to the first "management phase" of the investigation.

Kennedy referred to evidence that at least $20,000 from the West Coast Conference of Teamsters was paid to Nathan Shefferman, Chicago labor consultant and a friend of Beck's.

During last week's questioning of Brewster, the committee exhibited cancelled checks from Shefferman's account. Brewster said, however, he was unable to explain the expenditure.

Asks Resolution to Curb Travel of Top Executives

WASHINGTON (INS) — Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-NY) said today he will introduce this week a concurrent resolution that the president, vice president and secretary of state should not all be out of the country at the same time.

Celler commented yesterday: "I don't know who is minding the store."

A concurrent resolution must be voted on by both the House and the Senate, but is not a law and requires no executive approval. It is used as a means of giving congressional advice.

President Eisenhower is on an Atlantic cruise, Vice President Richard M. Nixon is in Rome, and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returned yesterday from Australia.

The Day in Birmingham

Expecting Long Session of Commission Tonight

BIRMINGHAM — City commissioners face a probability of a long session this evening as four rezoning questions come before the group. Continued hearing on the Barton-Cumiskey rezoning will lead off and probably once again draw many objections. Second of the controversial issues is the vacation of Island View drive, the hearing continued from Feb. 18 and also expected to be subject to long discussion.

Other zoning questions will conclude an amendment to the ordinance for rezoning one section of E. Maple avenue in which written opposition and planning board reports will be considered.

A second proposed amendment concerns the Birmingham-Woodward subdivision in which the planners report will be the main feature of the issue.

TO HEAR REPORT

Commissioners also will hear the manager's report on the parking lots, sale of a house on lot property, meters, and proposed lighting on lot No. 4, Harold K. Schone, manager, will present his findings on publication costs for the newly prepared fire prevention ordinance. Commissioners will be notified also of the painting of elevated storage tanks and final settlement on arrangements for the air-raid siren.

Two prominent Saginaw men were found dead in the wreckage of a small plane near Oscoda Saturday. They were Dr. James W. MacMeekin, chief of staff at Saginaw General Hospital, and Edward C. Totten, Saginaw oil and gas dealer. The plane, piloted by Dr. MacMeekin, disappeared during a windstorm Friday on a flight from Alpena to Saginaw.

Two Saginaw boys died when a fire swept their one-story frame home Sunday morning. They were Charles Johnson Jr., 9, and his half brother, Ortha Starworth, 12. Mrs. Frances Jean Demsey, 23, of Athens, was killed Saturday when a tractor overturned in a farm accident.

Portly Dr. Adams Wears Sardonic Smile, Awaits Trial in Death of Willing Widow

LONDON (NEA) — A gilded figure of justice, sword in one hand and scales in the other, tops the dome of the Old Bailey, where Dr. John Bodkin Adams, 58-year-old Irish bachelor, will stand trial this month for the poison murder of a wealthy, eccentric widow of Eastbourne.

Under this dome have passed some of the most notorious criminals in British history, including William Joyce, the famed "Lord Haw-Haw" of Nazi propaganda broadcasts, who was hanged as a British traitor; and John Christie, "The Monster of Rillington Place," who stuffed the bodies of four women into the walls of his grubby London flat.

But the Old Bailey has seen no case stranger than that of John Bodkin Adams, the smiling doctor of Eastbourne, Britain's most respectable seaside resort.

Under British law, Dr. Adams can be tried for only one murder—that of 81-year-old Mrs. Edith Morrell, the widow he is accused of poisoning with "massive doses" of morphine and heroin.

DRUGGED TO DEATH?
But he is also accused of having drugged to death Jack Hullett, a retired insurance underwriter, and his wife Gertrude, both of them Dr. Adams' patients.

In addition, the deaths of 14 more of Dr. Adams' patients, the majority of them widows, are under investigation by Scotland Yard in what has come to be known here as "The Eastbourne Widows Probe."

Not the least strange aspect of the Dr. Adams' case is the fact that it has eclipsed in public interest every other murder trial of the past 25 years.

NO PASSION
And yet, this is no crime of passion that beguiles the public. Dr. Adams is not accused of murdering for love, or from hatred or jealousy or for any of the other motives that make criminals understandable, if spine-chilling creatures.

No, Dr. Adams is accused of killing for gain. The Morrell murder was a cold matter of pounds and pence, according to the Crown.

Nor was Mrs. Edith Morrell a glamour girl in any sense of the word. She was an elderly, eccentric recluse living off the fortune of her late husband. She kept Dr. Adams dancing like a cat on a hot tin roof by constantly changing her will. At one time she left him her mansion in the exclusive Meads area of Eastbourne, together with all the chattels within.

CUT HIM OUT
Another time she cut Dr. Adams out of her will entirely, sending him flying home from a grouse-shooting holiday in Scotland. When finally she died—from an overdose of morphine, according to the Crown—Dr. Adams inherited her Rolls-Royce motorcar, together with a valuable Elizabethan chest full of silver.

Another bizarre aspect that has captured the popular imagination is that this is a murder case without a body. Mrs. Morrell was cremated on Dr. Adams' application and her ashes scattered over the English Channel, which has led one tabloid newspaper to refer to the case as "the habeas without a corpus."

An Old Bailey murder trial is an impressive proceeding. Every-thing from the severity of the oak-paneled courtroom, to the chief justice with the long wig falling down to his shoulders, is designed to impress with the awesome and austere majesty of the law.

In contrast to the rich panoply of the court, Dr. Adams is a colorless, almost insignificant figure. He is what is known as portly, his silver key chain stretching across a goodly expanse of stomach.

Beneath his massive, bald dome is a pug nose, eyes that are shifty behind gold-rimmed spectacles, a cleft chin that emerges from a second chin. His mouth is often curled into a sardonic smile, as though the doctor is enjoying some private, if unpleasant joke.

But Dr. Adams can appear benign on occasion, as when he beams and waves to an acquaintance across the courtroom.

It is just his absence of color—his ordinariness, so to speak—that gives Dr. Adams his fascination in the eyes of the British public.

It is a tribute to Dr. Adams' powers of persuasion that even after he had been arrested for murder a number of women patients called at his house to convey to him, through his receptionist, their well-wishes at Christmas.

On his 58th birthday, which he celebrated in prison awaiting trial, he was flooded with birthday cards from women patients.

HUGGING ADDER?
Eastbourne is now asked to believe that it was hugging an adder to its bosom for 30 years; that Dr. Adams is a man so obsessed by greed that he would not hesitate to kill.

And for what gain? A chest of silver and a Rolls-Royce from Mrs. Morrell, $1,500 from Jack Hullett and another Rolls Royce from Mrs. Gertrude Hullett?

That question mark hangs over the 14 other patients of Dr. Adams whose deaths Scotland Yard is investigating. Dr. Adams is named as beneficiary in the will of all 14 of the deceased, having netted more than $90,000 by their deaths.

Sick Motives Don't Apply to Polly

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Polly sat on her front step, discouraged with life. Mostly, this was because the cold which had been keeping her home from school had melted into an unusually aggressive shiffle.

friendship, dear. If the little girl wants to play with you, let her do it because she likes you, not because she like candy."

Naturally, Polly thought that her mother was a little soft in the head.

HOW WE APPEAR

Soft in the head is how we inevitably appear to healthy children when we saddle them with child guidance clinics' analyses of unhealthy ones.

Of this tendency to impute the same motives to all children's actions, psychiatrist Dr. Hilde Bruch writes, "It is unrealistic to expect ironclad and foolproof rules for the solution of highly individualistic problems. Parents must learn to use methods which are appropriate for themselves, their children and their circumstances."

Certainly child guidance experts get much clinical experience with children who behave appealingly. Sometimes the appealing will include attempts to buy friendship with candy.

Seen in relation to other appealing action, these attempts may be seen as symptoms of emotional disturbance. But this does not mean that any child who offers a stranger candy is a victim of emotional disturbance.

It may just mean that like Polly, he feels like extending himself in friendliness. Like her, children advance candy to the stranger for the same reason that explorers give beads to native chiefs and the nice man at the cocktail party brings you the tray of canapés.

It's our own problem of apprehension that reads sick motive into children's every action.

WAC Vets Suggested for CD Duty

Ex-Servicewoman Points to Value of Army Discipline

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — Mrs. Camilla Mays Frank, national president of the Women's Army Corps Veterans Assn., believes women's military service organizations can serve a more important function in building and maintaining national defense.

A trim, quiet-mannered widow now living in New Orleans, Mrs. Frank is supervisor of personnel for the local civil defense organization.

In Washington for the WAC-Vets annual board meeting, she observed that no group is better equipped to form the nucleus of a volunteer civil defense program than veterans of the WAC and other service branches that came into being during World War II.

"In times of emergency," she said, "you need leaders who have had disciplinary training. In organizing the New Orleans control center I used WAC vets for my readiness people."

Mrs. Frank says support of national security with emphasis on civil defense is a chief aim of the WAC-Vets Assn., which was organized in January 1946.

There are now some 35 chapters with a membership of about 1,200. Support of the WAC recruiting program is another important activity of the organization.

Mrs. Frank believes women serving in one of the military units not only get a "keener sense of values as far as the defense of our country is concerned, but learn to speak the language of their menfolk who must sooner or later have had military service."

"If women and men share a common knowledge of military affairs in the common purpose of defense, it will build a much stronger family life and thus a much stronger nation," she says.

Standards for the WAC are much higher than they were during the war years, the leader of the women vets points out, but she believes women would be vastly more interested in joining the corps if its officers were given "comparative rank for comparative jobs."

She thinks women in the armed services should have an opportunity to become full generals, or full admirals. There's only one full colonel in the Women's Army Corps and that's the head.

RETIRED AS CAPTAIN
A native of Richmond, Va., Mrs. Frank served in the WAC from September 1942 to April 1946, then in the reserves until she retired in 1954, retaining the reserve commission of WAC captain.

She was one of six WACs who received France's Croix de Guerre.

"I also received three battle stars," she said, "and some of the battle scars, too."

Get Out Your Icing Tips for This One

Mrs. Reed Builds Colored Figures on White Frosting

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor
We've had several icing recipes lately, and here is another one. This makes a large quantity of icing that can be used with cake decorating sets. It has good consistency and builds up well on the cake.

Mrs. Harry Reed is today's cook. For a little over a year she has been a full-time homemaker with a young son. Before that, she did social work. Reading is her favorite leisure-time activity. She dabbles a bit with painting and sketching. She is new member of AAUW.

DECORATING ICING

By Mrs. Harry Reed
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup white vegetable shortening
2 pounds confectioners' sugar, sifted
1 teaspoon flavoring
1 teaspoon salt
1 large egg white

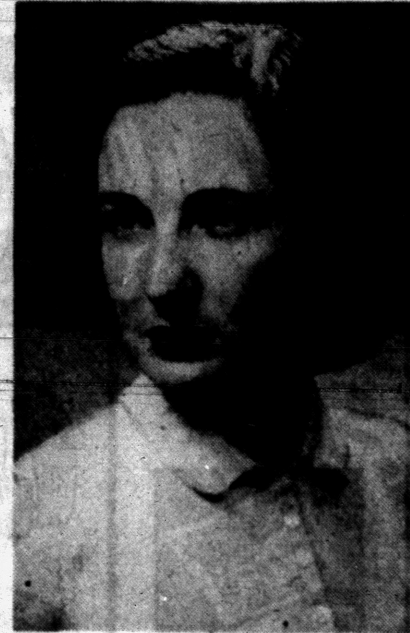

Mix first 5 ingredients well, then add slightly beaten egg white and continue beating to spreading consistency. If the weather is hot, more sugar will be needed.

This icing can be colored. Any left over keeps well in the refrigerator. The above recipe makes plenty to ice and decorate a cake.

Troy Continues 12-Town Battle

Adds Query of Paying for Service to Detroit Zoo, Rackham Course

TROY — This year-old community gives every indication of continuing its battle over the 12-Town Drain.

Dissatisfied from the first, Troy finally took legal steps to delay action on the drain last fall, when officials and citizens objected to what they considered an extremely high cost with a very low relief area.

Troy's attorney, Jack Hutson, said he had twice prepared his case ready for court proceedings, and each time the drain board had had the hearing postponed. The board's delaying action was said to be so an attempt could be made to work out an agreement, out of court.

"I've been through it twice," Hutson said, "now they'll have to reckon with me."

Of late Troy has added the question as to payment for service to the Detroit Zoological Gardens and the Rackham Golf Course.
