

Nixon: Cut Spending and Extend Surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today called for significant cuts in federal spending as he asked Congress to extend the 10 per cent income tax surcharge for another 12 months.

Earlier Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Congress should insist on a second big spending cut as its price for extending the surcharge.

In a special message, Nixon reported that at least half of the budget surpluses envisioned in January by former President Lyndon B. Johnson already have evaporated — in some cases because of inflation and in others because of overly optimistic estimates.

Faced with that situation, Nixon said he will propose budget revisions for the fiscal year starting July 1. He gave no details.

Administration sources indicated Nixon would seek a budget surplus next year of at least $4 billion, compared with the original Johnson estimate of $3.4 billion. To achieve this, the administration would have to cut by about $2.5 billion or more the spending programs foreseen by Johnson, in view of upward revisions in spending estimates.

Officials said budget cuts would be "spread pretty widely" through defense and domestic programs and that there would be some cuts in federal payrolls. They said no federal employees would be fired but that reductions would come through failure to replace workers who quit, retire or die.

The chief executive, in calling for a continuation of the 10 per cent surtax beyond its scheduled June 30 expiration, declared:

"As I have said before, the surcharge is a temporary tax that must be ended as soon as our commitments in Southeast Asia and economic conditions permit."

Nixon left open the possibility that he might call for scaling down or repeal of the surcharge within the year of its extension should the Vietnam war end and inflationary pressures ease.

The surtax is expected to yield $9.5 billion if extended. In addition, Nixon called for postponement of scheduled June 30 reductions in excise taxes on telephone service and automobiles.

WINTER SPRINGS BACK — The month of March decided area residents have had it too easy and yesterday gave us a rain-sleet-snow-windstorm to show who's boss. This was the wintry scene at Elizabeth Lake and State in Pontiac this morning. Whatever happened to spring? Only time will tell what other surprises the fickle month of March holds.

Big 4 Discussion of Middle East Dispute Is Near

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After weeks of private discussion, the Big Four delegates at the United Nations are ready to gather around the table and consider how to get a durable peace in the Middle East.

Some sources say the fourmen talks, motivated more by fear of failure than by hope of success, will get under way next week.

President Nixon appears to be counting most heavily on Soviet cooperation to bring about a settlement that would give Nixon a major achievement in the foreign field. It also would be a big boost for Secretary General U Thant and the United Nations.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France appear to agree that they should utilize Gunnar Jarring, Thant's special Middle East envoy.

LENGTHY EFFORT

Jarring, Sweden's ambassador to Moscow, has been trying since December 1967 to get Israel and the Arabs to work out peace terms based on the U.N. Security Council's Nov. 22, 1967, resolution.

The resolution called for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory occupied during the 1967 war and Arab recognition of Israel as a sovereign state with defined frontiers.

Israel, however, has made clear it has no intention of giving up the Old City of Jerusalem, the Golan Heights in Syria and other strategic pieces of Arab real estate acquired in the war.

Since Feb. 11, U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost has been holding talks separately with Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik, French Ambassador Armand Berard and Britain's chief delegate, Lord Caradon. But U.S. consideration for Israel's position and Soviet consideration for Arab views delayed enough agreement to make a four-power conference productive.

Israel has rejected the concept of a solution imposed by the Big Four, the Arabs have rejected territorial concessions to Israel.

The Big Four delegates will be seeking agreement on guidelines for peace which Jarring then can relay for Israel and the Arabs. There is speculation the Big Four might recommend the return of a U.N. peacekeeping force to the area and establishment of neutral zones in such territory as the west bank of the Jordan River.

But since U Thant's speedy withdrawal of the U.N. peace force in 1967 at Egypt's demand, and the failure of the Big Four to get the Arabs to make peace with Israel, the Israelis have no faith in U.N. peace forces, or other international guarantees.

MURDER SUSPECT — Nolan Ray George, 25, of 26 Stout is escorted by Oakland County sheriff's detectives in his arraignment yesterday on a charge of murder in the March 16 slaying of Mrs. Frances Ann Brown, 22, in Lake Orion, Rochester District Court Judge Robert Shipper ordered George held without bond for a court examination Monday.

Petition Asks Probe of Lazaros' Charges

BY JIM LONG

A petition asking for a grand jury investigation into allegations made by an underworld informer about former Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson has been presented to the Oakland County Circuit Court bench.

Presiding Judge Farrell E. Roberts said yesterday that the petition will be taken under advisement. He was not certain how long it would be before the judges decided to accept or reject the petition.

The petition was cosigned by Arthur J. Brandt Jr., president of the Oakland County Conservative Club, and David Bradbury, an Orchard Lake councilman and campaign manager for Pontiac attorney Richard D. Kuhn in his unsuccessful race against Thomas G. Plunkett for prosecutor in November.

The petition follows by two weeks a letter Brandt sent to State Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley asking that a grand jury probe be launched into allegations made by Peter Lazaros of Troy.

'DRAGGING ITS FEET'

Sen. Robert J. Huber of Troy, a leading conservative in the Republican party, has accused the attorney general's office of dragging its feet on the issue.

Brandt, a resident of Bloomfield Township, claims he wants a full-scale inquiry "to clear the air."

Bronson, a judge on the Michigan Court of Appeals since January, as well as public officials in Wayne and Macomb counties, have been accused by Lazaros of granting favors to members of organized crime.

Lazaros has been under protective custody of State Police since last October, when he was released from prison in an appeal of a fraud conviction.

Chance of Light Snow Tonight

Snow flurries whipped by strong winds brought two to three inches of snow to Oakland County yesterday afternoon and overnight.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicts there's a chance of light snow tonight and possibly a little tomorrow.

Temperatures are expected to fall into the low 20s tonight and climb into the mid-30s tomorrow.

Friday's outlook is about the same — cloudy, cool, chance of flurries or light snow.

ROAD CREW BUSY

According to Grace Robertson at the Oakland County Road Commission, a crew of men was out all night salting and clearing snow-slick pavements.

Ice on gravel roads was melting this morning, she said.

Gale warnings were posted early today on all the Great Lakes. Morning winds at 15 to 26 miles per hour northwesterly will diminish to eight to 18 miles tonight and become light and variable tomorrow.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are 80 today, 50 tonight and 40 tomorrow. Twenty-two was the low temperature in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. The thermometer recorded 28 at 2 p.m.

County Budget Faces Secrecy

Oakland County's tentative 1970 budget probably will be acted upon behind closed doors — the public excluded — in a special session slated for 1 p.m. Friday by the board of supervisors finance committee.

The committee has scheduled an executive session on the last day it has to approve the tentative budget. That budget could affect tax levies as determined by the County Allocation Board. After committee approval the entire board will receive it.

A meeting scheduled for today was canceled by the committee.

Friday's closed-door session will be the first scheduled by the finance committee since it began budget hearings last week.

The move to close the meeting to the public was reportedly headed by finance committee Chairman George N. Grba, D-Pontiac, and Christian F. Powell, R-West Bloomfield Township.

Other members of the committee are Thomas O'Donoghue, D-Ferndale; Carl O'Brien, D-Pontiac; Albert F. Szabo, D-Clawson; Delos Hamlin, R-Farmington; and Fred Houghton, R-Avon Township.

Nixon Fails to Win Trudeau on ABM

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has been apparently unable to win Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's immediate support for his antiballistic missile (ABM) system. Trudeau, who flew back to Canada last night after a two-day visit, said he was "no closer than before" to making a decision on his stand on the issue.

Trudeau said Nixon gave him classified information on the ABM which he will relay to his cabinet. He said he still could not make up his mind whether the ABM would be spurring the arms race or keeping world peace.

1 Killer Responsible for 4 Girls' Deaths?

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Authorities say the sex killer who left Maralynn Skelton's nude, abused body near a lover's lane may have been responsible for the unsolved deaths of three other girls in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

Miss Skelton, 16, was the fourth girl slain in the area in the last 19 months and the second within a week.

Her mother said she left her home in the Detroit suburb of Romulus Saturday afternoon saying she was going to a dance at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Workmen in a subdivision found the girl's body yesterday morning. A garter belt was wrapped around her neck, other garments were strewn nearby and "She had been unmercifully beaten about the face," said Police Chief Walter Krasny of Ann Arbor.

Krasny said the girl had been dead one to two days and theorized she had been killed elsewhere and her body taken to the spot where it was found.

He said he believed there was a connection between the murder and at least two earlier ones, those of Joan E. Schell, 20, of Plymouth, found last July, and Mary Flezar, 19, of Willis, found in August 1967. Both were stabbed and, like Maralynn, sexually abused.

In the fourth death, Jane Louise Mixer, 23, a University of Michigan law student from Muskegon, was found in a cemetery near Ypsilanti last week. Shot several times in the head, she was not assaulted sexually.

"The Mixer murder may not be by the same person, but there are enough similarities in the other two and in the Flezar murder to warrant a second look," Krasny said.

Urban Curbs on Cars Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe says it may be necessary to curb the use of automobiles in the nation's cities unless a mass transit breakthrough is achieved within two years.

"We do face the real possibility that either we have to shut off to rubber tires certain limited areas within a city or charge a fee to come in there," Volpe told the Associated Press.

The secretary acknowledged the need for new highways but said "we wouldn't be in the mess we're in today" if mass transit systems had been built as fast as expressways.

Volpe predicted that the motorist would begin looking for alternatives to driving in traffic jams.

"Bold new ideas" are needed, Volpe said. But he added it would probably be five years before new developments could be in service.

"We can't wait that long for some of these things," he said. He added that central city residents "should certainly have an opportunity to voice their opinions (on freeway routes) strongly and in the clearest terms."

"I think the highway lobby recognizes the highway user himself is going to become so frustrated that he is going to be willing to experiment with anything rather than spend 13 per cent of his day and, maybe within a year or two, 20 per cent of his daily working hours behind another automobile and taking in all the fumes that come from it."

"It means the automobile manufacturer, the gasoline producers, the retail distributors are going to be faced with a situation of reduction in the utilization of the product which gives them their living unless something is done to bring about a better situation."

GEN MOHAMMED YAHYA KHAN

New Pakistan Military Dictator Vows 'Sanity'

KARACHI (AP) — Pakistan's new military dictator, Army Gen. Agha Yahya Khan, told his turbulent nation today he would "bring back sanity" to set the stage for free elections.

"I wish to make it absolutely clear to you that I have no ambition other than the creation of conditions conducive to the establishment of a constitutional government," he said in his first broadcast after taking over from President Mohammed Yahya Khan.

Sixteen hours before, Yahya Khan resigned from appointing Yahya supreme commander of Pakistan's armed forces and chief martial law administrator.

Yahya, who announced earlier he would not seek reelection next year, admitted last night this did not satisfy his political opponents and he could not cope with mob violence wracking Pakistan's eastern half, on the other side of India.

Yahya assured the people the armed forces "have no political ambitions and will not prop up any individual or party," and he indicated he would go through with constitutional reforms promised by Yahya before his resignation.

Yahya, 52, is considered to have pro-Western views despite visits to Moscow and Peking earlier this year.

VC Shells Smash Major U.S. Base

SAIGON (AP) — Vietcong mortars smashed into a major American base south of Saigon early today, blowing up hundreds of tons of ammunition, wrecking scores of buildings, and destroying three helicopters. Only a few Americans were killed, but more than 60 were wounded.

Shelling of the headquarters base of the 9th Infantry Division at Dong Tam, 40 miles south of Saigon, was one of 30 rocket and mortar attacks by the Vietcong on the 32nd night of their spring offensive.

North Vietnamese troops followed up one of the attacks with an infantry charge that carried them to the barbed wire perimeter of another American base 45 miles northwest of Saigon. Before they were driven off eight American Air cavalrymen were killed, 17 were wounded and only two enemy bodies were found on the barbed wire.

Col. Ira Hunt of MeLean, Va., chief of staff of the 9th Division estimated that as much as 500 tons of ammunition, mostly small arms, went up in the attack on the Dong Tam base.

"We were expecting it because we had information from a prisoner," Hunt told AP photographer Max Nash.

Shortest Route to Accord, Say Allies

PARIS (UPI) — Vietcong acceptance of South Vietnam's offer for secret peace talks would open the shortest route to a settlement of the Vietnam war, allied sources said today.

They said if the Vietcong accepts, the United States and North Vietnam then could begin secret discussions of their own on mutual troop withdrawals from the battlefield.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam proposed the secret Saigon-Vietcong talks yesterday in Saigon, saying the possibility of such discussions was "a ray of light at the end of the tunnel."

Members of the Vietcong's National Liberation Front (NLF) bargaining team in Paris had no comment on the offer. Nor did the North Vietnamese delegation.

"WE ARE READY"
In his announcement, Thieu said, "We are ready to have private talks with the NLF if they want. I think they understand well that we are ready for these talks and we are waiting for them."

Ex-Royal Oak Twp. Officials Among 4 Convicted by Jury

An Oakland County Circuit Court jury yesterday convicted four men, two of them former Royal Oak Township officials, of being involved in a bribery conspiracy uncovered by a grand jury investigation.

The jury deliberated less than four hours in returning its verdict following a six-day trial.

During the trial, Edward Kennedy, a former township supervisor who had pleaded guilty in January to taking part in the bribery, took the stand as a prosecution witness.

Found guilty were Marshall Taylor, a former member of the township board; Tatum Eason Jr., 33, former urban renewal director for the township and now an aide on Detroit's antipoverty program; and Carmen Jacoboni, 47, of Detroit and Angelo Delesanto, 56, of Southfield, former operators of the now defunct Atlas Sand Co. of Detroit.

CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

All were convicted of conspiracy, punishable up to five years in prison. Taylor and Eason also were found guilty of accepting a bribe, while Jacoboni and Delesanto were found guilty of giving a bribe.

Receiving a bribe is punishable with a prison term of up to 10 years, and giving a bribe is punishable up to five years in prison.

Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem will sentence them April 22, the same date set for the sentencing for Kennedy, who had admitted to taking a bribe.

Kennedy testified that he was given $3,700 by Eason, who he said was acting as a middleman.

The money was given to him to buy votes on the township board to award a sand removal contract to the Atlas firm.

Circuit Judge Philip Pratt brought the charges against Kennedy and the four others in June 1966 while serving as a grand juror in an investigation into crime and corruption in Royal Oak Township.

Probe Sought in Lazaros Case

general's office and the Oakland County prosecutor's office have been questioning him about his connection with the Mafia. Several indictments against alleged Mafia leaders have resulted.

Bronson has declined to comment on the recent grand jury request to Kelley. While still prosecutor, however, Bronson said in November that he wouldn't issue a denial because it would only give credence to the allegation.

Should a grand jury investigation be ordered by the Circuit bench, it is likely that the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office would not be involved.

"Since we worked for Jerry there would always be the question in the public's mind as to whether we were doing it right," an assistant prosecutor said.

Hunt said about 13 rounds of 120mm mortars, the biggest in the enemy arsenal, slammed into the base an hour and a half before midnight but caused little damage.

"We thought that was it," said Hunt. "Many men had left their bunkers after the first attack."

Then came another barrage about midnight. One of the first shells hit an ammunition storage pad, triggering a series of explosions in at least half a dozen more pads. After that the Americans couldn't distinguish the incoming rounds from their own exploding ammunition.

KNOCKED DOWN
Two crews got their helicopters off the ground but were knocked down by the exploding shells. A third helicopter was destroyed on the ground.

The 9th Division base has been shelled more than a dozen times during the enemy's spring offensive.

Scores of helicopters and hundreds of tons of ammunition and fuel have been lost, but the U.S. Command has never disclosed the exact amounts.

Allied sources said the United States favors Paris as the best site for private talks between the opposing delegations but is willing to consider any site.

Diplomatic observers to the talks said it was significant the Communists did not reject Thieu's proposal immediately. They said perhaps Hanoi and the Vietcong would answer in tomorrow's negotiating session, the 10th since Jan. 18.

Thieu made clear his government's determination not to accept a coalition government with the Communists at war's end. But his offer for private talks was a reversal from earlier statements such discussions could take place only after the Reds stopped fighting.

Man Indicted in Road Probe

LANSING (AP) — A former employee of the State Highway Department was indicted today by the state's one-man grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the department.

The ex-employee, John E. Miller, was charged by Marvin Salmon, Ingham County circuit judge, who is acting as a grand juror.

The charges include accepting a promise to bribe and accepting bribes in July 1964, and April and September 1966. Miller was arraigned today on a warrant for perjury.

The judge also said Miller was accused of "deceiving his employer" on March 2, 1963.

Waterford Vote on Levy Today

Waterford Township voters have until 8 p.m. today to cast their votes on a two-year 9-mill proposal for schools.

Eight polling places, all elementary schools, opened at 7 a.m. There was no report on early volume of votes cast, but about 25,000 registered voters in the school district are eligible to ballot.

School officials, in urging passage of the proposal, warn that denial of millage would mean shortened class hours and would threaten the district's ability to hire top quality personnel.

They also pointed out that next year's state aid to education formula will prevent an anticipated 24 per cent hike in township property taxes from providing necessary school financing.

MINIMUM PORTION

However, authorities promised that only the minimum portion of the nine mills would be levied the first year should the proposal be passed today.

Dr. Don O. Tatroe, superintendent of township schools, suggested that 6.5 mills might be sufficient.

"That would cost the majority of our taxpayers less than $50 the first year — less than $1 a week," he said.

Reward Offered in Killings

About 50 local black citizens last night formed the Andrew A. McCaskill reward fund for those who help to bring about the conviction of the person or persons responsible for last week's slaying of the former city commissioner and his son.

The reward fund now stands at $1,000. McCaskill, 66, and his 18-year-old son, Aubrey of Detroit, were found shot to death in McCaskill's apartment at 47 Orton. Police are continuing an investigation in the case.

Representatives of the group met today with Police Chief William K. Hanger to discuss the protection of the informant and the possibility of setting up an organization to help fight crime in the city.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the reward fund may do so by contacting Commissioner J. Warren Fowler Sr., 377 Orchard Lake, or Charles M. Tucker Jr., 903 Pontiac State Bank Building.

New Tank 'Billion-Dollar Goof'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee has accused the Army of a "billion-dollar goof" in developing a new tank because:

• Although the tank is for reconnaissance, it can be heard three miles away.

• It has a "rooster tail exhaust" system that makes it an easy target.

• Its caseless ammunition is ultraflammable, leaves burning residue in the breech which can prematurely ignite a round, and is adversely affected by moisture, oil, and rough handling.

• "Due to a problem with fuel-tank leaks, frequent checks for spilled fuel should be made to prevent fires."

• "When operating in jungle or heavy underbrush, vegetation will clog air intake grilles and the radiator, requiring frequent cleaning to avoid overheating."

• "The (Shillelagh) missile must not be fired when the launch vehicle is in motion."

• "Under extremely dusty conditions, the present air cleaner requires cleaning or replacement every 1 1/2 hours."

These were the findings of a previously classified document that Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., ordered the Army to release yesterday after six days of secret testimony on the Sheridan tank.

Stratton, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, said "the people have a right to know this incredible story."

Birmingham Area

Countywide Assessment Is Opposed

BIRMINGHAM — City Commissioners here have opposed the proposal that all property tax assessing be done on a countywide basis instead of through the present local assessing system. The proposal is now in a committee of the State Legislature.

The commissioners expressed their opposition in an informal discussion following a question raised from the audience at a recent commission meeting.

The County Board of Supervisors Legislative Committee recently voted 3-2 in favor of supporting state legislation which would provide for countywide assessing.

The Birmingham commissioners based their opposition on the belief that countywide assessing would represent an infringement on local home rule and reduce the citizen's right to be heard through elimination of local boards of tax review.

Birmingham City Assessor Clark Hagerstrom said the Oakland County Assessors Association and the Southeast Michigan Assessors Association will begin holding periodic meetings to "exchange ideas and explore the countywide proposal situation."

Bloomfield Hills — Three films, including the winner of the grand prize at the Bergamo, Italy, International Festival, are the subjects of the Cranbrook Institute of Science members' program scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Friday in Cranbrook School Auditorium, 550 Lone Pine.

The prize winner, "Under the Black Mask," shows the culture of central Africa through its primitive art forms of masks and fetishes, set in a framework of native life in the former Belgian Congo.

"Prehistoric Images" presents the first art of man as created in the caves of France and Spain, 10,000 to 40,000 years ago. The final selection, "Radio View of the Universe," explores new knowledge that is being acquired through radio astronomy.

Guest tickets are available at the door at $1.50.

School Meeting Today

A special meeting of the Pontiac Board of Education is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. today for the purpose of electing a new board president to replace Monroe M. Osborn, who resigned last Monday.

The meeting will be at the board offices, 350 E. Wide Track.

Soviet Fleet Heads for Far East 'as Show of Force'

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet warships, submarines and support ships steamed into the North Atlantic today, and NATO officials said they were dispatched to reinforce the Pacific fleet based at Vladivostok on the Sea of Japan, as a deterrent to Red East as a show of force to Chinese attempts to provoke clashes along the Sino-Soviet border.

British reconnaissance pilots said the fleet consisted of three cruisers, three destroyers, eight submarines, tankers and support ships to enable the force to operate at sea for many weeks.

The defense ministry would only confirm the size and presence of the fleet. But in Brussels, officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization said the "necessary" armada was probably bound for the Far East.

MATO officials said the fleet, which passed the Orkney Islands off northern Scotland, was probably headed for the Arctic Ocean.

Russian Trawler to Snoop With U.S. Approval, Aid

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UPI) — A Soviet trawler with the most sophisticated electronic gear sailed today from the Pacific Coast from San Diego to the Pacific Coast of the United States.

It does so not only with the blessing of the U.S. government but also with an American scientist aboard.

The Soviet vessel, Professor Deryugin, is out to count fish. Specifically, the Hake, a member of the Cod family, to insure this marine resource off the Pacific shores is not being depleted faster than it reproduces.

With the memory of the USS Pueblo in the background, it was particularly demonstrative of the trust the Soviet Union and the United States are placing on one another at lower levels of collecting data.

RADAR CAPABILITIES

The Deryugin has the capabilities of sweeping its radar over the Pacific Coast, from California to Washington in the manner employed by Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher to survey the coastline of North Korea before his ship was forced into port at gunpoint.

This is an entirely different proposition.

Dr. Paul Smith of the Scripps

Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif., sailed with the Deryugin to insure the Soviets use the same equipment three American ships have used in counting the fish eggs in the plankton that lies off the Pacific Coast of the United States.

The Hake is considered edible in the Soviet Union but so far has been only used for protein concentrates in the United States.

WELCOMES VISITORS

The point of the joint scientific experiment was to measure whether the fish is being taken too rapidly from the seas.

In San Pedro harbor yesterday, Capt. Nicholas Shikhanov and chief scientist Yuri Yermakov welcomed American visitors aboard the trim 297-foot, 3,000-ton, white trawler.

The vessel, sailing from Vladivostok, carries delicate electronic equipment to measure the ocean depths and to scan the adjacent shores. The only area of the ship out of bounds to visitors was the radio room.

NATO officers said the possibility the fleet is headed for the Mediterranean or the Black Sea was considered remote but could not be ruled out.

CONVENTIONAL SUBS

British reconnaissance pilots said the fleet would be shadowed by NATO aircraft and submarines for the next 10 days until it is out of the conventional type, incapable of alliance's area.

Full-Day Sessions, Modular Schedules Restored in Troy

TROY — In two dramatic votes last night, the board of education voted to restore full-day sessions and to reinstate a trimmed version of the district's controversial flexible modular scheduling program.

The board thus reversed decisions it had made at its last two meetings.

The reversals were greeted with sustained applause from a large majority of the 750 parents and students in the audience, many of whom had urged the re-adoption of the modular program under which students may schedule some class time themselves.

The vote on Secretary Robert W. Dolmage's motion to return to modular scheduling for juniors and seniors only also marked a return to the board's former pattern of voting, with Dolmage, President Rev. Richard C. Snod, Vice President John Vagnetti and Trustee Donald W. Richards joining as the majority in a 4-3 decision.

INTENDS TO RESIGN

Last week, Richards, who during last night's meeting confirmed his reported intent to resign from the board, had cast his vote with Treasurer Harold A. Jones and trustees Leonard P. Lucas and James McFarland against the modular system.

The decision to drop the system at that time followed a recommendation from Troy High School Principal Clyde Peterson that the school return to traditional scheduling for the 1969-70 school year.

High school counselors had reported that student scores in standardized tests had fallen off in comparison with other schools since the introduction of the plan.

Last night's discussion — at times stormy — between parents, teachers, board members and administrators revolved primarily around the relative roles of the board, faculty and administration in the school district.

Peterson contended that the board should follow the advice of its professional employees — the faculty and administration — and remain with traditional scheduling.

"The tests are not diagnostic," the principal said, answering comments of board members that the Iowa and National Merit tests did not say whether the modular system is at fault. "The man giving the test is the one who diagnoses, after taking the test and other factors into account."

Modular scheduling supporters, however, argued that the board members were responsible for the management of the district, and that the decision was theirs to make. Said one, "If you approve a program, then the teachers and administration had better go along with that program. You're responsible to us, and they're responsible to you."

An attempt by Jones to amend Dolmage's motion to allow an advisory vote on the modular system on the June board election ballot failed, also in a 4-3 vote. But the votes were cast differently, with Richards joining Jones and Lucas in dissent while McFarland, after some hesitation, voted with the majority.

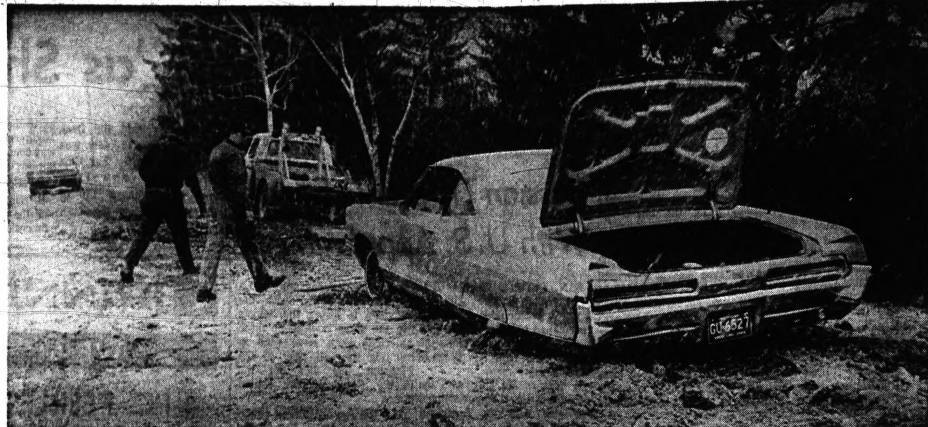

COST ESTIMATES

The decision to restore full-day sessions was approved earlier by a 6-1 vote (Richards opposed) after acting Business Manager John Diefenbaker reported cost estimates for the purchase of portable classrooms to bolster capacity at Smith and Baker junior highs and the high school.

The board had approved a split-shift plan which would have divided the senior high student body into two groups, one attending from 7 a.m. to noon and one attending from 1 to 6 p.m.

For 14 classrooms, he reported, the cost during the first year of use under a six-year lease-purchase agreement could be as low as $56,000.

Vagnetti, a member of the majority in the decision two weeks ago to establish the split-shift system then moved that the board purchase the portables.

1969 Phone Book Distribution Begun by Michigan Bell

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has begun distribution of its 1969 directories this week in the area.

Included in the distribution of more than 3.6 million directories are 534,000 North Woodward area books for 54 Oakland County communities. It will take two weeks or more for the distribution to be completed.

On the inside front cover, parents again are urged to fill in the respective telephone numbers opposite the emergency emblems and point out this page to their children, to familiarize them with the symbols and the numbers that go with them.

Customers who need one or both of the other two area white pages directories — East and West Downriver — may obtain them by calling their local Michigan Bell business office.

Farmington Twp. Pressures for Incorporation Mounting

BY TOM GRAY

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — The pressures for incorporation, already felt in other areas of Oakland County — including Avon and Oxford townships, where incorporation attempts have been made recently — are rising here.

Pressure created on the area's tax base by heavy residential development is perhaps the single most important factor identified by a recent Michigan State University Survey on governmental organization in Farmington Township.

The survey, prepared by the University's Institute for Community Development and Services, first details expenditures, revenues and services for each of the township's four governmental units — Farmington City, Farmington Township and Woodcreek Farms and Quakerown villages.

It follows with a discussion of township, village and city forms of government and the advantages of each.

TOWNSHIP LIMITED

First, a city enjoys broad general powers to determine its own scope of activity, within its charter. A township on the other hand, is more limited, both in power and financing.

"One can argue," the study asserts, "that the authority granted to the township is not too restrictive. However, limitations on the authority of the township government must tend to limit the thinking and actions of citizen and government in treating local conditions and solving local problems."

Cities are also given an edge in taxation, being allowed by statute to levy up to 20 mills in property taxes.

"Townships are legally entitled to 1 mill if they can prove need to the allocation board," observes the study. "They frequently receive less than 1 mill and rarely receive more."

CITIZEN APPROVAL

Voters, of course, may approve extra levies by townships for special purposes, with the net result being that a township must seek citizen approval for taxation more frequently than a city.

In administrative organization, the same principle applies, according to the study. Cities have the latitude of choosing a strong or weak mayor form of government, with councilmen elected at large or by wards.

A city government can thus be tailored to fit an area's needs, while a township, by contrast, has a fixed administrative form by law.

A final area of distinction, the survey continues, is in the area of territorial integrity—which a city enjoys and a township does not, being subject to incorporation or annexation.

SENSITIVE ISSUE

"Township officials generally find this (annexation) a very sensitive issue," it comments, "perhaps with some justification because the loss of territory is not conducive to sound planning and development."

"The urbanizing township requires substantial planning and development, but as urbanization increases the essentially temporary nature of township status receives increasing recognition."

Birmingham Changes Little in Year of Open Housing

BIRMINGHAM — It's been a year since an open housing ordinance was voted in and this city has changed very little.

Before the ordinance passed, there was one long-established Negro family in town. Now there are three more at the most — no one is sure of the number. And Birmingham still looks like Birmingham, with large homes on winding, shady streets.

According to city officials, there have been no complaints under the new ordinance. In one apartment house, a Negro family moved in after a survey showed that tenants favored the new neighbors.

Birmingham, among a handful of Michigan towns, was the first Metropolitan suburb to adopt an open housing measure by referendum.

ADS HELPED

Newspaper ads helped. The final one before passage carried the names of 700 open housing backers.

Now newspaper ads are being used in the campaign being carried on in another affluent suburban area — Grosse Pointe Farms. Signatures are being accepted from all five Grosse Pointes. Signers include Henry Ford II and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hudson Jr.

The April 7 vote will be only advisory, but the City Council is expected to enact into law the people's mandate.

The Fair Housing Committee wants to pass similar measures in all five points.

CALLED UNNECESSARY

The most frequent argument against the proposed Grosse Pointe Farms ordinance is that it is unnecessary.

But, says Gilbert Hudson, a local ordinance would give the community authority to manage the law in its own way in local courts.

Cub Pack to Sponsor Pancake-Sausage Fele

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — A pancake and sausage supper will be offered from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday at the Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Cub Scout Pack 134, sponsored by the Sashabaw Presbyterian Church, will offer the supper. The cost is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Board Fund Actions Defended

TROY — Another chapter in the continuing story of the state attorney general's investigation into the finances of this school district was presented last night, as attorneys for the board of education reported on their findings.

Speaking were attorneys Patrick Oliver of the Troy firm of Reibel, Oliver and Dinan, and Burton Shifman of the Southfield firm of Colman, Goodman and Shifman.

They presented the board's case in the investigation, with Oliver discussing land and site purchases by the district and Shifman speaking on the use of funds from bond issues.

Both areas are under investigation by the state, according to Assistant Atty. Gen. Eugene Krasicky.

Oliver illustrated his discussion with a map showing land purchases and comparative prices in purchases by other buyers in recent years.

The board's purchases, he asserted, were "well within the values established by other land transactions."

Oliver also criticized reports in the press of tremendous profits made on land deals in periods of time as short as a single day.

The transactions involved, the attorney contended, were "land contract" purchases, under which an agreement is made to purchase land over a period of time with the actual title being transferred after the purchase price has been paid.

ONE CASE CITED

Oliver detailed one particular case, involving property on South Boulevard between John R and Rochester roads, in which a newspaper had asserted that one owner sold to another at $30,000, with the second owner selling to the board "hours later" at $70,000.

The sale, the attorney said, had actually been made two years earlier, not on April 19, 1957 when the actual deed transfer was made. Similar property next to the site, he noted, was sold last year for $4,000 an acre, while the board's purchase cost $3,500 an acre.

Shifman detailed responses to allegations raised by auditors of the State Department of Treasury in their investigation of the district last year, which he said were primarily:

• That the district improperly used bond proceeds and failed to build two elementary schools included in bond proposals.

• That the board had used "improper procedure" in the purchase of sites.

• That the board improperly adopted the school operating budget for 1967-68.

"DICTATED BY INFLATION"

With regard to the first question, Shifman said, the board's decisions were dictated by inflation and rising land prices.

The board decided that it did not have sufficient funds to build the elementary schools and that land purchase might be the best use of the money which was left, he said.

As for the purchase of equipment with the bonded funds, Shifman said wording of the proposal was ambiguous enough that the board decided to use the money for equipment.

The auditors had criticized the board's delegation of purchase authority to the superintendent, its failure to obtain independent appraisals, its restriction of land acquisition discussion to executive sessions, and its placement of most transactions through one realtor.

'NOT REQUIRED BY LAW'

None of the criticisms, Shifman said, involved requirements of state law.

The third allegation, he added, was concerned with the fact that the board did not hold a public hearing on the 1967-68 budget until December 1967. Again, the law does not state when the hearing must be held, Shifman said.

He explained that in 1967, staff salaries remained undetermined for some time after the school year began, and since salaries make up about 80 per cent of the budget, the board exercised its judgment and delayed the hearing.

Finally, Shifman said, "no responsible authority has ever made the allegation that any of this money ever went for anything but schools."

Head Start Funds OK'd by Congress

Congress has approved $81,075 for summer Head Start programs involving 345 children in 12 Oakland County school districts, U.S. Rep. Jack McDonald, R-19th District, has announced.

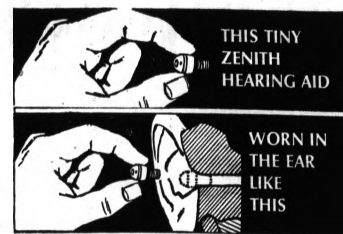

The funds are allocated through the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OCCOE).

Each school district administers its own program and will contribute a total of $30,065 in local participation.

School districts involved are Avondale, Berkeley, Clarencville, Farmington, Madison Heights, Holly, Huron Valley, Lake Orion, Oxford, Rochester, South Lyon and Walled Lake.

Troy School District was involved in the original application but has since dropped out. OCCOE officials said it would be possible for some other district to qualify for the grant which involves a class of 15.

Each district is presently accepting enrollees of preschool children whose families meet federal poverty guidelines. The grant allows for hiring of non-professional teacher-aides with preference given to family members of Head Start children.

Stadium Fits Here

In their zeal to locate the proposed new sports stadium at either of two sites — Downtown Detroit or State Fairgrounds — proponents lose sight of the all-important fact that patronage for the facility has increasingly become statewide.

It is for that reason that the available Pontiac site at I-75 and M59 with its abundance of land — which neither of the others afford — and convenience to freeway travel and rail transportation makes it by far the preferable choice.

With the development of vast metropolitan areas, such as that in which we live, municipal boundary lines have become meaningless, except for governmental purposes. We venture to say that as many spectators of Lion and Tiger games are drawn from outside the corporate limits of Detroit as from within.

In addition to the sports-minded population of Pontiac and Oakland

County — the second largest county in the State — one has only to look at the parked buses around Tiger Stadium at either a baseball or football game to sample the outstate attendance that originates in Flint, Bay City, Saginaw, Port Huron, Mt. Clemens, and the smaller communities of the metropolitan area.

Although the Tigers and Lions have always borne the name of Detroit, they have become essentially Michigan teams. In other situations, we have seen baseball and football teams become the Minnesota Twins and Vikings respectively, and the American League baseball team the California Angels.

Those who cling to the outmoded idea that a sports facility has perforce to be situated within the confines of a large city — where traffic congestion is at its worst, parking inadequate and accessibility difficult and time-consuming — are living in the past. Time has passed them by.

Is This Any Way To Run A College?

David Lawrence Says:

College Strife Is Complex Issue

WASHINGTON — President

Nixon has spoken out emphatically against violence in the colleges and has urged support for "the voices of reason and calm." But, as a special committee in Congress currently investigating campus revolts has already learned from the testimony of witnesses, LAWRENCE the whole subject is far more complex than it appears to be. In the first place, a substantial number of colleges today have at least 5,000 students, and some have many times that number. Such groups cannot be governed or disciplined in the same way as in the past, when campus life was more relaxed and student-faculty relations less tense.

What is most important now is that the faculty members chosen shall themselves have personalities and attitudes which can influence students to respect law and order. Too many teachers are strong dissenters and side with the activists in campus troubles. There is even a broader problem for the universities and colleges to tackle — they must be sure that, in the selection of students, the psychological side will be considered along with the scholastic achievements.

VERY INTERESTING

Dr. Bruno Bettelheim, professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago, gave some interesting testimony a few days ago to the House special subcommittee on education.

He says that the most rebellious students here and abroad are those studying the social sciences and humanities. He declares that there are hardly any militants among students of medicine, engineering and the natural sciences, because they are "busy doing things," working in the laboratory and at their studies.

But the main point he makes is that many students are perplexed. He adds: "It is those students who do not quite know what they are preparing themselves for, and why — the students who sit around waiting for examinations rather than doing active work — who form the cadres of the student rebellion."

Verbal Orchids

George Reiz of Milford; 83rd birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sternberg of 17 Porter; 51st wedding anniversary.

George Lester Bird of 2555 W. Walton; 90th birthday.

"In my opinion there are, today, far too many students in the colleges who essentially have no business to be there. Some are there to evade the draft, many others out of a vague idea that it will help them to find better — paying jobs, though they do not know what jobs they want.

DEEP DISSATISFACTION

"And again many go to college because they do not know what better to do and because it is expected of them. Their deep dissatisfaction with themselves and their inner confusion is projected against the institution of the university first, and against all institutions of society secondarily, which are blamed for their own inner weakness."

The admissions committees of colleges will certainly have to give second thoughts to the qualifications of applicants and especially to consider whether even superior grades in high school are sufficient to indicate what kind of student a youngster will turn out to be in college.

Above all, the big question is whether a college education is worthwhile for everybody, irrespective of his readiness and even desire to find a good job and get started earlier in life than some of the members of the same age group.

Bob Considine Says:

Cal Coolidge Was Quiet and So Was His Regime

NEW YORK, In his book "In the Time of Silent Cal: A Retrospective History of the 1920s" — Jules Abels draws a good picture of a president who was as anachronistic as an electric toaster on the table of the Last Supper. Calvin Coolidge CONSIDINE couldn't make president of the Wichita Chamber of Commerce today.

Silence was golden during his regime, and so was the stock market. Cal had only the remotest idea, gained from ambassadors he hardly knew, if at all, of what was happening in the rest of the world.

But the world was much more at peace than now.

A pitch for the top or the No. 2 spot on a national ticket today can cost deep into the millions of dollars.

When Coolidge, to most of his friends' surprise, sought higher office than that which he had luckily attained — Republican governor of Irish-Catholic Democratic Massachusetts — his campaign was in dollars, halves, quarters, dimes and nickels.

UNPOPULAR AT HOTEL

His humble forays into the lobby of Chicago's Morrison Hotel, in search of the vice presidential nomination, made him no friend of the management.

He wouldn't take a room. Instead, he'd come in on an overnight train, set up quarters in a corner of the lobby, take time out for a sandwich (or a full luncheon, if invited) and leave in the late afternoon, having seen the men he wanted to see.

The management eventually threatened to bar him from the hotel unless he registered for at least a single room. He was a real dinger. The day he received his first Presidential pay check from a Treasury Department paymaster, who had made a special trip to the White House for the occasion, he didn't utter a word until the man was about to bow out the door. Then he said, studying the check, "Come again."

KIDDED BY ROGERS

Will Rogers was one of the few who could kid Coolidge about his preposterous electric horse and his mischievous habit of trying to duck his Secret Service guard — on walks through the White House grounds — by hiding behind a tree.

Henry Mencken was more to the point: "He will be ranked among the vacuums. There is no principle in his armamentarium which is worthy of any sacrifice, even of sleep."

"There is no record that he ever thought anything worth hearing about, about any of the problems confronting the world. His characteristic way of dealing with them is simply to avoid them, as a sensible man avoids an insurance solicitor or his wife's relatives."

But he never had a war, an A-B-M debate, racial discord, depression, inflation, corruption in government, Middle-East problems, ghetto clearance and school issues, student revolts, black power, zealous beatniks, youthful dope addicts, soaring crime rates, or other afflictions, like ice hockey.

Won't you come back, Cal Coolidge, won't you come back?

Discusses Education of Seventh Grader

We hear the cry for more tax money for schools. The required subjects for my son in the seventh grade are: comm. skills, math, science, social studies, vocal music, study hall and physical education. Whatever happened to reading (an art that seems to be disappearing), spelling and history? How does our child's education compare with subjects of children in France, Canada, Germany and Russia?

Pros and Cons of School Pool Bonding Issue

The West Bloomfield Jaycees support the school pool bonding issue and urge a "yes" vote on the March 31 West Bloomfield School District ballot. The building of a community swimming pool crosses all lines of community development, such as youth, sports, health and safety which are part of the permanent agenda of the Jaycees.

RON JOYNER, PRESIDENT
WEST BLOOMFIELD JAYCEES

I strongly urge a "no" vote on the school pool bonding issue in West Bloomfield School District March 31. It is one thing to take advantage of existing school rooms and facilities for adult education and recreational programs, but to build schools with an eye to recreational functions for the whole community is getting way off base. If our schools were supported by an income tax, the pool plan would be fine; but as long as they are supported by property taxes this takes advantage of middle-aged or elderly people—usually with lowered income, no children in school and no use for a pool.

Let the West Bloomfield Democrats and the League of Women Voters work for abolishment of the property tax and substitute an income tax to support the schools, then the pool, etc., would be an equitable proposition for all concerned.

Has Suggestions for Controlling Gambling

People always have and always will gamble, so let's make it legal under state control. If people in government, the press and radio would cooperate, I believe Mafia-controlled gambling could be stopped in three to six months. The way to break it up is for management and unions to enforce company rules, and radio and press stop predicting scores and publishing results every hour. All it takes is a little restraint by the right people in the right places.

Why doesn't a large company like Michigan Bell Telephone Company have enough men to replace a telephone pole when the lines are on the ground along a path children must walk each day to school. 'Grateful for Fast Action of Police Officers'

To you who criticize the police officer for everything that isn't right in your eyes, had it not been for the fast action of Keego Harbor Police Officer Arnold Carr and Officer John Waltz of the Sylvan Lake Police, my husband might not be here. I will always be grateful to them for getting him to the hospital.

Pen Points to Russ Accord

The Soviet Union used American-manufactured components in its Soyuz 4 and 5 manned satellite flights. To be sure, the items were rather minor—just ballpoint pens.

At the urging of cosmonaut Alexei Leonov, says Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine, Russia last year purchased 100 zero-gravity ballpoint pens and 1,000 nitrogen-pressurized refill cartridges made by the Fisher Pen Co. of Van Nuys, Calif. Russian-made ballpoints are useless in a zero-gravity environment.

Many have long been urging Russo-American cooperation instead of rivalry in space exploration. Well, this is a beginning. The ballpoint pen may be mightier than the rocket.

Firearm Control

Port Huron Times Herald

Evidence is growing that an element of common sense is beginning to enter the picture of firearm control. Rather than saddle law-abiding citizens with onerous restrictions, some states are enacting tough measures to control the unlawful use of firearms.

This is the only method devised yet that will comply with both the Constitutional right for citizens to bear arms, and the citizens' right to protection of law against misuse of arms.

Pennsylvania and Alaska enacted mandatory penalty laws last year. The Maryland Legislature will soon consider a bill to impose a five-year sentence on every person convicted of a crime with a dangerous or deadly weapon. Nevada is expected to do the same. The National convention of

Dropout Drivers

The Ann Arbor News

Since he apparently has no feelings one way or the other about the bill he introduced to ban driving licenses for dropouts, Vipsilanti Rep. Roy Smith should have few qualms about what the committee does to his bill.

Specifically, the bill would require all high school dropouts less than 18 years old to forfeit their drivers' or "charters" licenses. This license would be returned after the dropout reached the age of 18 or returned to school. The purpose of the bill is to encourage the student to stay in school.

Fine, but what about the hardship case who drops out of school temporarily to support himself and his mother? What about the boy who needs a car and a driver's license to get to and from work, and who may have every good intention of finishing up school and/or going to a trade school later on?

Maybe these examples are few and far between, and maybe the bill as it is rewritten will make some provision for the marginal student. Assuming the dropout rate never will be cut to zero, it seems a bit foolish to penalize still further those who for one reason or another choose to discontinue their schooling.

Question and Answer

How fast does a man fall from 30,000 feet if he weighs 160 pounds? 200 pounds?

E. D. T. and E. J. J.
ROCHESTER

REPLY

We talked with several mathematicians, physics professors and science librarians. The librarian at OU found the formula for such a problem, and it worked out that, theoretically, they would both fall the 30,000 feet in 43.3 seconds. However, that speed is for a vacuum. To figure the difference in the speed of their descents in air, it would be necessary to know their body surfaces, air currents, etc.

Question and Answer

Is a will legal if it's signed by a Notary Public and recorded?

GEORGE W.
ORTONVILLE

REPLY

As we've said before, wills can be very tricky, and we would not presume to define what makes them legal or not. You should talk to a good attorney who's experienced in that field. We can sometimes refer readers to the proper person for legal advice, but we never give legal advice in this column.

State Chief Justice Advises Against New Criminal Code

LANSING (UPI) — In an unprecedented appearance, Thomas E. Brennan, chief justice of Michigan's Supreme Court, testified before a Senate committee last night against passage of an omnibus revision of the state criminal code.

"This is not a desirable piece of legislation," Brennan told members of the judiciary committee. "If this code is adopted, we will embark on a generation of interpretation problems."

Lawyers and judges have tested the present law through the years and understand certain set principles, Brennan said. The new code would, in effect, make them start over.

The three-in-thick, 253-page measure would consolidate 3,500 existing laws into 350 "uniform" ones, the first such revision since the Civil War era. The code divides all crimes into three classes and sets specific prison sentences for each category. Minimum prison sentences would be eliminated.

VALUE JUDGMENTS

"Even as a housekeeping job, I'm not impressed with it," Brennan continued. "It involves many, many value judgments. This code abolishes the common law and attempts to codify and do away with the common-law methods," he added.

"Proponents argue that the over-all code is good," the chief justice said. "Well, some of us are still smarting over the 1963 Constitution which was sold on that basis."

Chief Judge of the State Court of Appeals T. John Lesinski also criticized the code for its sweeping attempt to reclassify all felonies at one time.

"There ought to be a recodification," he conceded. "But I would not support this bill as it stands today. I would bring together present statutes or modify the present statutes and make more sophisticated changes at a later date."

SENTENCING OPTION

Lesinski told the committee he disapproves of the removal of a trial judge's option to set a minimum sentence. "Sentencing should remain a personal matter between the trial judge and the defendant. The trial judge is in the best position to make that judgment."

Another top state legal official present at the hearing was Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley. He termed the bill "a long-overdue solution to the problem of overlapping piecemeal legislation in the field of criminal law," but added he had some reservations about the code.

A provision permitting police to use physical force against persons suspected of committing a felony involving force against a person or property is weak, Kelley said.

"The question of whether deadly force should be used to apprehend those suspected of crimes against property is part of a policy issue of fundamental importance to modern urban society," he commented.

GAMBLING SECTION

Kelley also said the gambling section might be too broadly interpreted and protect customers of organized illegal gambling establishments.

Vincent Piersante, head of Kelley's organized crime division, testified the bill would make application of the laws "better for the police."

The FAA has indicated that air space is available over Oakland-Orion Airport. This does not mean that a need for the airport has been established, that other airports in the area cannot meet these needs, or that the taxpayers are willing and able to pay for this particular boondoggle.

One committee of the Board of Supervisors wants to hold a public hearing on the ARM plan even though it is questionable whether it will be put in the area. Comments on Handling High School Sit-In

To the woman who wondered why the school administration and police did nothing during the sit-ins as opposed to tear gas and billy clubs used on the firemen, do you know what would have happened if tear gas had been used? The whole school would have been in a panic and three might have been serious consequences. I think the school administration handled things well.

Auto Club Says Vehicles Cause Few Accidents

DETROIT (UPI) — The "Civil unrest and crime in the $30,000 - member Automobile streets may have indirectly Club of Michigan says it has been responsible for more traffic-related fatalities in the last year than all the defects in cars, because they have removed police enforcement from highways," Rehm added.

In a letter to Transportation Secretary John Volpe, the club urged him to appoint "a man with practical experience in the field of automobile administration" to replace Dr. William Haddon, who recently resigned as head of the National Highway Safety Bureau.

"By far the most federal emphasis on auto safety... has been on the vehicle," said Frederick N. Rehm, general manager of the club.

"We have proved conclusively to ourselves that vehicles cause hardly any accidents, Rehm's letter continued.

"Michigan's most serious traffic fatality problems — in order of their importance are: alcohol; unit, poorly marked, improperly posted two-lane country roads; inexperienced, young drivers; basic law violations; and motorcycles."

Rehm said much of the emphasis in the past has been on cars and tires, "which seemingly cause few fatalities."

Ship to Be Named for Grand Rapids

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — The city of Grand Rapids, following a 23-year wait, will again have a naval vessel named in its honor next January.

The Navy says the keel of PG-98, a 165-foot long gunboat, will be laid May 5 at Tacoma, Wash. The gunboat, which will be run by a 14,000-horsepower gas turbine engine with a top speed of 40 knots, will be launched in November and commissioned in January, 1970.

Initially, the keel was laid down in April, 1968, but a fire at the Tacoma shipyards damaged the structure too severely to continue work.

The gunboat will carry a crew of four officers and 24 enlisted men.

The other ship named after the city was a patrol frigate, which was built in 1943 and served four years before being scrapped.

Rules, Regulations Prevail In All Parts of the World

By ARIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who is disgusted with the USA. Tonight I read in the newspaper where a 26-year-old man volunteered to join an army reserve unit but was turned down because his HAIR was too long.

Abby, for God's sake, he VOLUNTEERED to serve his country, and they wouldn't have him — and what for? His hair! I have never heard of anything so ridiculous in all my life!

First the government complains because of draft-card burners, then when someone wants to fight for his country they tell him he can't because of his hair style. And the establishment wonders why the youth rebels. I am ready to pack my bags and move to Australia.

DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: Men in the service must cut their hair to regulation — just as they must dress uniformly. There are sound reasons for this just as there are arguments in favor of one's "right" to his individuality. I'm not so sure you'd find it any different in Australia.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who thought his wife was in love with her doctor brought to mind the following: I vaguely recall some of the outlandish things I said when I was coming out of the anesthetic after having given birth to my first child.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who is disgusted with the USA. Tonight I read in the newspaper where a 26-year-old man volunteered to join an army reserve unit but was turned down because his HAIR was too long.

Stratford Founder in New Venture

STRAITFORD, Ontario — It has been announced that effective April 1, 1967, Mr. Patterson, founder of the Stratford Festival, will leave his active duties with the Festival to form a new Stratford-based theatrical producing and consulting company. He will be retained by the Festival as a consultant.

Born in Stratford, Mr. Patterson originally conceived the idea for the Festival while still in high school.

After graduating from the University of Toronto, he negotiated with Stratford's civic administration and local citizens for support of his idea. He sought out Tyrone Guthrie, who consequently became the Festival's first artistic director when it opened its premiere season in June of 1953.

A former journalist, Mr. Patterson served with the Festival as director of planning and later as director of public relations. In 1954 he helped form the Canadian Players, a professional company which toured Canada and the United States.

Mr. Patterson's new venture will be undertaken in association with Duke Ellington, the prominent jazz musician and composer. As well as consulting on all forms of entertainment media—theatre, television and films—the new company will be a major producing organization, with several Ellington projects already in the negotiation stage.

Give Ghetto Children Better Living Areas

LANSING (AP)—"The shame of our ghettos should receive our first priority," Mrs. William Milliken, wife of the governor, told a Lansing meeting connected with the White House Conference on Conservation Tuesday.

"There can be no place in civilized cities where rats live side by side with people," she said. "How can we possibly measure the cost to a ghetto child who sits on a tenement steps and sees only a little piece of sky through the buildings and plays on a landscape of asphalt?"

The governor's wife called for support of the Milliken proposal for use of the recreation bond issue in urban areas.

Honor Couple at Reception on Next Day

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute
Dear Mrs. Post: My mother was recently married at a private ceremony followed by a dinner. The next day her husband's sister-in-law gave an open house and introduced the new bride and groom to her friends. My husband is of the opinion that a reception given the day after the wedding is not proper. May I have your opinion? — Stella

Dear Stella: Your husband is wrong. There is no reason not to hold a reception, an open house, or other celebration the day after, or even some time after, the wedding. The dinner held after the ceremony was the real "wedding reception," but the later party was in perfectly good taste as an additional celebration.

USING BOTH
Dear Mrs. Post: I plan to mail notices to people who know me under the name of Mrs. Shirley Brown (my marriage name). My professional name is Mrs. Shirley Smith. I would like to use the professional name, but I do want my friends to recognize that Brown and Smith are one and the same. Please let me know how to sign my name. — Shirley Brown

Dear Mrs. Brown: If the notices are of a professional nature, you should write "Shirley Smith" on one line and "(Mrs. Shirley Brown)" below. If you are always known as "Mrs. Smith" in your work, you may use the title, but it is not generally used before a woman's professional name.

When the notices are of a social nature, the order is reversed. "Mrs. Shirley Brown" goes on one line, "(Shirley Smith)" below.

If you are living with your husband, you should, in both cases, write your social name as "Mrs. John Brown" rather than "Mrs. Shirley Brown."

Trio of Orchestras Fails to Achieve Great Music

By BERNICE ROSENTHAL
The Pontiac Symphony Orchestra was joined by the Rochester Community Orchestra and the Oakland University Symphony Orchestra for the third concert of the current season last night at Pontiac Northern High School. It was a noble experiment, and certainly each of the groups worked valiantly on the program at hand.

Unfortunately, the outcome was an orchestra top-heavy in the wind sections, and the effect was somewhat that of a band with string obligato. As the strings were under the strain of trying to match the volume of the winds, their tone became harsh and strident.

To make the situation more difficult, the combined orchestras had to play under the baton of three different conductors, with three different techniques.

Area Women Winners

Two of the three Pontiac area women who were finalists in the 1969 Queen of the Kitchen Contest, sponsored by Detroit Edison, were winners. The cook-off took place Tuesday.

Mrs. Gabe Roth of Union Lake placed second with her recipe for Beef and Cornbread Pie. Mrs. Mary G. Basson who teaches at Kingswood School, Cranbrook, was third with her Onion Soup Supper.

Their recipes will appear later in The Pontiac Press.

which must have been confusing, to say the very least.

MADE THE EFFORT
As a result, the most that each conductor could do was to put the musicians through their paces, keeping them together. The usual care for finished performance in tempo, tone definition, phrasing and interpretation had to be neglected completely.

The "Academic Festival" Overture by Brahms, which opened the program, under the direction of Richard Goldsworthy (Rochester), was neither academic nor festive.

The quick, light mood, which Brahms intended, was completely lost, and the effect was slow, stodgy, and cumbersome.

The Overture and Ballet Music to "The Nutcracker" under the direction of David Hoover (Oakland) fared little better. The delicate Schubert music sounded like Tchaikovsky in one of his moods of depression.

The second half of the concert, under the direction of Felix Resnick (Pontiac), came through better. It is possibly because the "Pines of Rome" is a much larger work, which its composer, Respighi, scored for double the usual number of brasses.

Even so, the "Pines of the Villa Borghese," which portrays children at play, was like giant children on a huge cinematic screen. Only in the "Pines of the Janiculum," which recalls the ancient armies of Rome marching down the Appian way, did the orchestra fill the mood of the music.

GOOD FINALE

The saving grace of the evening was Mozart's third Concerto for Horn and Orchestra, in which the orchestra was pared down to the usual Mozart size. Edward Saue, French Horn soloist, played the difficult concerto with ease, assurance, grace, and the sweetness achieved only by a skilled and inspired musician. His phrasing was easy and effortless, his interpretation delicate and beautifully sustained.

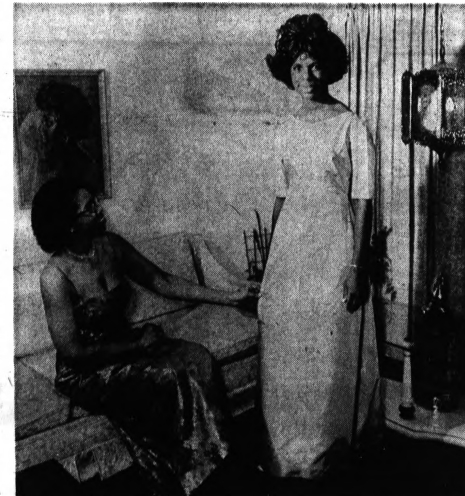

'Sacred Service' at OU Concert

Ernest Bloch's "Sacred Service" will highlight the annual spring concert to be presented by the 150-voice Oakland University Chorus.

The performance, open to the public free of charge, will be held at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Sports and Recreation Building on campus.

Guest soloist will be Cantor Harold Orbach of Temple Israel in Detroit. The choral group, assisted by Robert Bates, will be directed by John Dovaras of Birmingham, head of choral activities at the University.

"Sacred Service" is a setting of Hebrew texts used in the Reformed Temples of America. Most of them belong to the Sabbath Morning Service, and they originate from the Psalms, Deuteronomy, Exodus, Isaiah, Proverbs, and other sources of Jewish spiritual patrimony.

Dance chairman, Mrs. Lawrence Banks of Detroit (seated); admires the gown of scholarship holder, Janis Watkins, Lake Street. Both will attend the annual dinner dance sponsored by Pontiac Negro Business and Professional Women's Club, Inc. Friday evening at the Raleigh House. Janis is a junior at Michigan State University. Benefits of the event, which is open to the public, will go to the scholarship fund.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Thank you for the many answers you sent me concerning self-help clothing for handicapped children. The most complete booklet I received came from the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. This booklet is available for 50 cents and may be obtained by writing to the National Society at 2023 W. Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60612.

It is filled with marvelous ideas — not only clever but attractive clothing ideas — that would boost the morale of any handicapped person.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. D. McInville, Hartsville, S. C., is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her following suggestion:

"I would like to pass on to you and maybe to others how I made my daughter happy when she wanted one of the new 'Swiss type' jumpers. She also wanted one of the new dirndl skirts and couldn't decide which to make from a piece of material I bought for her. Because she happened to say that she wished she could wear it one way one time and the other the next, I decided to make the straps, put a large snap on the ends to match a snap on the skirt and presto, she can change it as she pleases and does she love it!"

Dear Eunice,

Would it be all right to use a linen blouse with my new wool spring suit? Linen comes in such beautiful colors and it seems I could wear my suit longer in the season.

Mrs. G.T.H.

Dear Mrs. G.T.H.:

Yes, you certainly may use linen with wool. One of the signatures of George Halley (Seventh Avenue's most expensive couturier) is linen combined with wool. He uses many wool coats and dress combinations and the Empire bodice is very frequently made of linen. Another of his signatures, which make his clothes so very unique and expensive is the use of a jeweled belt or a band of jeweled trim on these garments at the place where the bodice joins the skirt.

I saw his entire collection and found the same detail in tweeds as well as very dressy and heavy double woven gabardines.

This is what makes a designer different than anyone else — the creativity in combining fabrics of many textures and using unexpected color combinations and trimmings. Your sewing will be a real joy to you when you have the courage to experiment and really do exciting things to your clothes that sets them apart from the rest patterns most women follow when they make their own clothes.

Dear Eunice,

Are imported cottons actually any better than those made in this country? I actually wonder if the word "imported" isn't just a snob word instead of a word used to describe expensive fabrics?

Mrs. E. E.

Dear Mrs. E. E.:

It all depends on the type of fabric you are using for comparison. If you use a good quality cotton that has been made in this country, and compare it with the same quality cotton that has been made in Switzerland, France, Italy or elsewhere, you would find the same basic quality.

The difference in the cost of the two is due to production. Naturally, in this country there is no mill that can afford to offer hundreds of patterns, each in small quantities. European mills are all small, and mostly family type operations and therefore their looms can be set up for smaller yardages and their operation cost is not the same.

Because of this, you will find more individuality in patterns which is immediately important to designers and any of us who want something beautiful as well as unique. The minute a product is produced for a few rather than for the masses, you must be prepared to pay more.

Stratford Troupe's 'Hamlet' Given Two Extra Dates

ANN ARBOR — To accommodate the demand for seats for the upcoming production of "Hamlet" by the Stratford National Theatre of Canada, two additional performances of the Shakespearean classic will be offered here April 1 and 2, according to Robert C. Schnitzer, executive director of The University of Michigan Professional Theatre Program.

Ben Jonson's wildly hilarious satire, "The Alchemist," has joined "Hamlet" in the current two-week engagement in Ann Arbor, at Lydia Mendelsohn Theatre under Professional Theatre Program sponsorship.

Here is the complete repertory schedule for the Ann Arbor run: "The Alchemist" will be seen Thursday and on April 3, 4, 5, and 6. "Hamlet" will be produced Friday, Saturday and Sunday and on April 1 and 2. Additionally, matinees will be given on Thursdays and Saturdays during the run of both productions at 2:30 p.m.

Curtain time Tuesday through Sunday evenings is 8 p.m. Seats for the productions are on sale at the PTP ticket office at Lydia Mendelsohn Theatre, and at the Hudson and Grinnell ticket services in Detroit.

Why Grow Old?

It is surprising how much a woman's posture and walk influence the impression she gives. A slumping carriage adds years to her appearance whereas a beautifully poised head, a straightback and a graceful walk add an aura of youthfulness at any age.

Lovely posture not only makes you look younger but it makes you feel more vibrant. Internal organs are not crowded and you can breathe more deeply. Muscles and ligaments are not subjected to the strain which poor posture impose on them and which leads to fatigue.

Table Settings Aid Dieters

DALLAS (UPI) — The way the table looks can often make things easier for somebody on a strict diet and may make Johnny look more kindly on the spinach.

Psychologists find the way foods are served and the table settings do much to set the mood of the meal, says one manufacturer of tableware.

A dieter can find his strict meal more palatable in pleasant surroundings. Things children do not like can be made attractive with proper garnishes of colorful table arrangements.

The manufacturer, Texas Ware, gave these suggestions: Use much color, but coordinate the combinations; use cloths or mats in the family's favorite colors; vary the colors often; use two sets of dinnerware in combinations; add some extra pieces such as contrasting cups or salad plates, for interest; don't be timid about combining plastic with earthenware or China or glassware — they can be compatible partners in table settings.

Another idea — have an occasional family buffet. It can break the pattern of table settings and give the family more practice for guest buffets.

Completes Course in Newaygo

Boy, 12, Gets Flying Certificate

NEWAYGO (UPI) — At the age of 12 you can't go much higher.

Jim Rhodenbaugh of Newaygo has been awarded a flying certificate by the Air Safety Foundation of Washington, D.C., after completing a full training course under Ray Corrigan, the local airport instructor.

As far as they know in these parts, Jim is the youngest to acquire one.

Jim, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rhodenbaugh, operated his dad's plane while taking the tests. He can't fly solo under the law until he is 16 and can't get a pilot's license until he is 17.

However, the course he passed through the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, is designed to enable a passenger to take over the controls, find an airport and land a plane in case the pilot is incapacitated.

It included basic flying communications, emergency procedures, airport approach, map reading and radio navigation.

Jim also can drive a car. He learned that when he was 10 but just drove around the house and yard because he was too young to get a driver's license.

His father started flying two years ago at the age of 59.

His mother, Maxine, said she is going to take up flying, too.

"If he (Jim) can do it, so can I," she said.

Junior Editors Quiz on CATFISH

QUESTION: How did the catfish get its name?

ANSWER: The pictures here may look confusing, but follow the numbers, and you'll see that it answers the question.

One of the senses used by many animals to find out what is going on around them is the sense of touch. You will have noticed that caterpillars are often covered with tiny bristles. These are sensitive to touch. So are the antennae or feelers on the front of an insect's head.

The cat family, many of whom travel at night, have long whiskers or hairs sticking out in front and to the sides of the head. If a whisker touches something, the cat knows it instantly because these hairs are ringed around with sensitive muscles.

The catfish acquired his name because his whiskers, called barbels, somewhat resemble the whiskers of a cat. The catfish uses his whiskers for much the same reason as the cat uses his.

The streams and ponds catfish live in are frequently muddy, and the barbels must be a lot of help to a catfish as he feels his way around through his dim underwater world.

(You may win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Police Hitting Is Charged in Youth's Death

From Our News Wires
DETROIT — A Spanish-American group has demanded a "complete investigation" of the death of a 16-year-old Mexican-American youth who died in a hospital yesterday, three days after being arrested by police.

The boy, Fernando Gonzalez, died of head injuries. He had been in a coma since Saturday night.

Police said Tuesday they had found a "missing witness" to Gonzalez' arrest and that he had admitted spreading a false story of a blackjack beating by police.

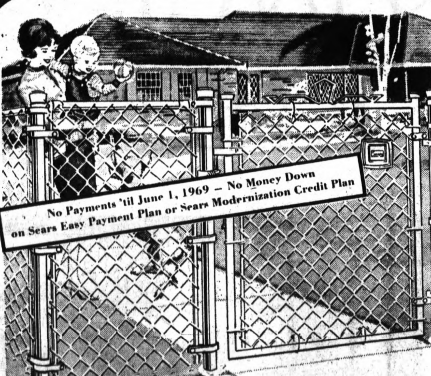

Police said they hadn't discovered Gonzalez' head injuries until after they picked the boy up following a southwest Detroit teen-age drinking party Saturday night.

'NOT RIGHT BOY'

Bill Owen Soriano, chairman of the Committee of Concerned Spanish-Americans said the 12-year-old youth police claim is the "missing witness" is not the right boy.

"The real missing witness is a 13-year-old boy," he said, in calling for a thorough investigation. "His name is on complaints of alleged police abuse filed Monday with both the Michigan Civil Rights Commission and the Detroit Police Department Complaint Board."

Fluidics is the use of air streams to perform control functions, presently in the process of being tested in many applications.

Frozen Orange Juice Is Recipe Ingredient

Frozen orange juice usually appears on menus as a breakfast beverage, but its convenience and excellence as a recipe ingredient should not be overlooked.

In its concentrated form, the frozen juice enables a richer, fuller orange flavor that's impossible to obtain with freshly-squeezed juice. It also offers outstanding quality and flavor because it is a blend of juices from several varieties of oranges, selected at the degree of ripeness when flavor, color, body and vitamin C content are at the peak of perfection.

The flavor of oranges combines deliciously with meat, fish and fowl; it enhances vegetables such as squash and carrots; it goes especially well with fruit and vegetable salads; and it is the key ingredient for a wide range of desserts including cakes, puddings, mousses and sherbets.

CALIFORNIA CHICKEN

- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup frozen chopped onions
- 2 packages (1 pound each) frozen chicken breasts, thighs or legs, thawed
- 1 cup corn flake crumbs

- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon crushed oregano
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
- Uncooked rice

Mix together orange juice concentrate, water and chopped onions in a shallow bowl. Add chicken pieces and marinate at least 30 minutes.

Mix together corn flake crumbs, salt, oregano and pepper. Roll chicken pieces in crumb mixture until well coated. Place skin side up in single layer in shallow baking dish. Pour orange juice mixture around chicken pieces.

Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 35 to 40 minutes, or until chicken is lightly browned and tender. Do not cover or turn chicken while cooking.

Meanwhile, cook rice according to package directions. To serve, place chicken on a bed of hot cooked rice and spoon pan drippings over chicken. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CUMBERLAND SAUCE

- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup currant jelly
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon ground ginger

Combine ingredients in a small saucepan. Cook, stirring over low heat until blended and hot. Serve with game, duck or pork. Makes 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups sauce.

SQUASH WITH ORANGE

- 1 tablespoon frozen orange cooked squash
- 1 tablespoon frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- Salt
- Pepper

Place squash in top of double boiler and heat over simmering water. Add orange juice concentrate, butter, salt and pepper; mix well. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

House Unit Dems Back Direct Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—A secret vote among Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee has indicated overwhelming support for a constitutional amendment providing direct election of the President.

The pledge of support was the second big boost in recent days for the proposal which appears to be gaining strength in Congress.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said last week he favors direct elections.

Ford's stand, disclosed at a private meeting with a few newsmen, caught his Republican colleagues by surprise. He had earlier endorsed the view of President Nixon that a direct election amendment could not win ratification by the necessary 38 states.

STRONG SUPPORT

Ford now feels a direct election amendment would have strong support throughout the country and is probably the only proposal for changing the present system that would demand the two-thirds majority needed in the House and Senate.

By the same token, he feels the plan for dividing the electoral college among the candidates as proposed by Nixon has little chance in Congress.

Ford's support could be crucial. Since heaviest opposition to the plan comes from southern Democrats, GOP votes will be needed to pass it.

The vote of the Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee at a caucus Tuesday night showed that Republican support may be needed even to get the plan out of committee. Of 18 Democrats who showed up, 16 said they were in favor of direct elections. Two Democrats were absent. It will take 18 votes to tip the scales in the 35-member committee.

Major Intersection Will Be Widened

A $140,000 improvement for a Joelyn and Walton and will provide widening to five lanes begin soon. Some additional rights-of-way must be acquired for the project to provide full 120-foot widths at the intersection.

Construction is expected to residents of both places have Lawrence to provide an inner-loop road downtown to facilitate traffic movement.

The purchase of four lots south of Lawrence at a total cost of $47,700 was approved. Some of the property is to be used for the street extension and some for replacement of existing parking lots.

The city also received a deed for 203 Rockwell. This abandoned building will be demolished and the land sold.

The commission also passed a resolution honoring the memory of the late City Commissioner Andrew McCaskill. He and his son, Aubrey, 18, were found slain last weekend. McCaskill and processing. The actual nomination of Harold Beaton. The position pays $21,000 a year.

Late Principals Given Tributes

Two past Pontiac elementary school principals were paid memorial tributes recently by the Michigan Association of Elementary School Principals at its annual meeting in Lansing.

Warren W. Abbott, who was principal at Owen, and Vida L. Walker, who was principal at Whitfield, were memorialized through contributions by Pontiac teachers to the A. Raymond Ebaugh Memorial Fund, an educational leadership fund.

Abbott, who died Dec. 5, 1968, served for 12 years in Pontiac. He also spent three years teaching in Constantine, three years in Niles, and 23 years in Keego Harbor and West Bloomfield Township.

Miss Walker, who died May 6, 1968, taught for several years at Willis Elementary School. Later she became principal of Whitfield School and was the first principal of Franklin School, age to San Salvador (Watling) Island in the Bahamas in 1492.

Bids were called for in another large city project, construction of a new fire station at West South Boulevard and Plymouth. Motor. Deadline for submitting bids is 2 p.m. April 28. Estimated cost of the facility was placed at $200,000.

'EYESORES' DISCUSSED

Two properties called "eyesores" by city commissioners were discussed. The properties are a Pure Oil gas station at the southwest corner of Paddock and Wilson and a storage building at 424 Ferry.

Complaints from nearby residents of both places have been registered with the commission over the last two months. Owners had been contacted and both had promised to improve their operations, it was reported.

Variety of Sources Being Considered

States Hunting for Tax Money

By the Associated Press
State Legislatures in session throughout the nation, searching for ways to balance steadily rising budgets, are turning chiefly to new or higher income and sales taxes.

These two taxes figure in the revenue-raising plans of 18 states, a national survey by the Associated Press showed today. Four states are considering starting a state income tax, six are considering increases, two may adopt a state sales tax and six are considering increases.

Four states are considering increases in cigarette taxes, three in gasoline taxes, and two in liquor taxes.

A personal income tax has been formally proposed in Pennsylvania and Washington State, and is under study in Illinois. A tax on personal and corporate incomes has been suggested in Maine.

INCREASES PROPOSED

Increases in income taxes have been proposed in Maryland, North Dakota, Missouri, Georgia, New Mexico and Colorado.

Oregon and Vermont may adopt sales taxes. Boosts in that tax have been proposed in Maryland, New York, Utah, North Dakota, South Carolina and Georgia.

Among the handful of states trying to hold the line on state taxation is California.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has pledged that there will be no new taxes this year and plans to propose that much of an anticipated $200-million surplus be used for income tax cuts.

EYEING BOND ISSUE

Arizona's legislature, committed to holding the line on taxes, is studying a bond issue or some other means of financing needed university buildings and state offices.

In advance of the April session, Gov. Claude Kirk and leaders of the Florida Legislature have come out for a line-holding budget despite record increases in funds sought by state agencies.

The speaker of Tennessee's Senate, Frank C. Gorrell, said: "It will be virtually impossible to get a tax increase through this legislature." But, he added, Tennessee Education Association has waged an intensive drive for more money for schools, and that would require a substantial tax hike.

In Indiana, where higher sales and income taxes were proposed, a deadlock developed between the house and senate and the measures failed to pass. Boosts on liquor and cigarette taxes also lost out. Taxes were raised on gasoline and diesel fuel and various motor vehicle fees.

DROPS POLICY

Ohio's Gov. James A. Rhodes dropped his six-year policy of no new taxes and gave his approval to a gross receipts tax to finance a vocational-technical education program.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has proposed to balance state books by raising the sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar and cutting state expenditures by 5 per cent across the board.

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania offered eight alternative tax plans. But he indicated his preference for a 3 per cent tax on total income.

The new governor of Illinois, Richard B. Ogilvie, said the state is on the brink of bankruptcy. He asked departments to slash spending as much as 10 per cent and said revenue must be increased, but he won't have his tax program ready until about April 1.

TOBACCO TAX EYED

Chances of a tobacco tax have been rated good in North Carolina, the largest tobacco producer and the only state which doesn't have such a levy.

A special study commission has asked Alabama's legislature to raise at least $5 million a year for schools.

Utah Gov. Calvin L. Rampton has recommended increases in sales and cigarette taxes and a graduated tax on metal mining.

Differing bills aimed at wiping out the $18 million collected annually from personal property taxes have been approved by the House and Senate in North Dakota. A compromise must be worked out. The lost revenue would be made up by increasing income taxes on individuals, businesses and corporations and by broadening the 3 per cent sales tax to cover liquor, oleomargarine and tobacco products.

RHODE ISLAND

The new governor of Rhode Island, Frank R. Licht, proposed a tax on earnings from investments and savings.

Arch A. Moore Jr., the new governor of West Virginia, has asked legislators to raise about $41 million by suspending for one year exemptions under the consumer's sales tax law. Those provisions permit tax-free purchases of goods and services used in manufacturing, contracting, mining and some other activities.

Gov. Harold LeVander of Minnesota has suggested boosts in taxes on cigarettes and liquor and a general increase in state licenses and fees which have not been raised in 10 years.

Gov. Robert McNair has asked for increases in the sales, cigarette and beer taxes in South Carolina.

REFERENDUM

Gov. Tom McCall has recommended that a 3 per cent sales tax be put on the ballot at a referendum in Oregon. The income would be used to reduce property taxes about 30 per cent.

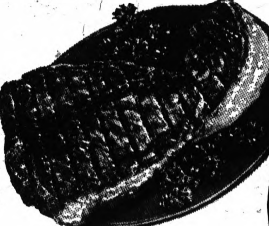

Wyoming's Gov. Stan Hathaway proposed a 1 per cent tax on the gross production of oil, gasoline and other minerals.

Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox has requested more sales, corporate income, gasoline and cigarette taxes, plus a revision in personal income taxes that would bring in more money.

Senators Told: Homosexual Rape in Philly Jails Widespread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A court-appointed investigator told a Senate subcommittee today he found evidence of widespread homosexual rape in Philadelphia jails.

He said widespread public outrage caused the city's administration to dispare his report as "sensational."

Alan J. Davis, a special master for the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas, reviewed for the Senate Juvenile Delinquency subcommittee findings previously made public in Philadelphia.

The subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., is in the midst of weeklong hearings on prisons.

'MASSIVE EVIL'

"It became apparent early in the course of the investigation that a massive evil was being uncovered. All of the investigators, including the many experienced police officers and detectives who were quite used to seeing humanity at its worst, were shocked at the frequency and nature of the degradation to which young men were being subjected," Davis said.

Rehabilitation Programs for Youth Decried

LANSING (UPI) — Juvenile Court judges from Calhoun and Wayne counties told a legislative committee yesterday rehabilitation programs for youthful lawbreakers in Michigan are deplorable.

They said the programs are badly understaffed and underfinanced and show little success in preventing young toughs from sliding into a life of crime.

"The children are faced with a deplorable situation," testified Judge Mary Coleman of Calhoun County. "The county facilities are few—and the state facilities deplorable."

Judge James H. Lincoln of Wayne County said Michigan "lies for last place with Arkansas" in programs for juvenile offenders.

PUBLIC HEARING

The judges commented in a public hearing before the Senate State Affairs Committee on legislation to create a state Department of Youth Services.

Sen. N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Dearborn, sponsor of the proposal, agreed there are too many flaws in Michigan's present program. She said this underscores the need for a total realignment of services under a new department.

"This is an indictment of the system as it now exists," Mrs. Beebe said. "The system is so inadequate there is only one detention home north of Bay City."

Sen. Beebe said 12 per cent of those released from the state Boys' Training School at Lansing return to the institution within a year after their release. She said this is a "very high rate" compared with other states.

LAST ALLOWED

The senator admitted the biggest problem is getting his bill into law will be convincing the Legislature youth services should be the 20th and last department allowed under the State Constitution.

Frank Ranger, executive director of the Big Brothers Organization in Battle Creek, said the Legislature must move quickly to establish lasting programs for rehabilitating juvenile delinquents.

"We need long-range planning rather than stopgap measures," he said. "We need prevention and treatment programs, rather than just putting out the fires as in the past."

New School Chief Named in Berrien

BENTON HARBOR (AP)—Lionel J. Stacey, principal at Benton Harbor Senior High School for the past year and a former 44th District state representative in 1966, Tuesday was named superintendent of the Lakeshore School District in Berrien County.

Ben Nye, president of the Lakeshore School Board, said Stacey will receive a two-year contract calling for $21,000 a year. Stacey will assume his new post July 1.

The evil? "Basically, it was found that forcible sexual assaults in the Philadelphia prison system had reached epidemic proportions."

"The situation was such that virtually every slightly built young man committed by the courts was sexually approached within hours of his admission to prison."

"Some young men who were merely petty offenders, were raped more than 10 times during short periods of confinement. Others entered into consensual homosexual relationships with one of their tormentors in order to avoid rape."

Davis blamed the condition on "a shocking lack of guard personnel."

He also said guards on duty often showed indifference, noting that on one occasion a young man screamed more than an hour while being gang-raped in his cell — "only to have the guard laugh at him when he later emerged bloody and beaten."

Davis said prison officials at first called his report "very objective." Later, however, the officials criticized the report as "sensational."

"Of course," Davis said, "the findings of the report cannot seriously be challenged. They are based upon an investigation supervised by high-ranking police officials and performed by 35 experienced police investigators."

UNANIMOUS CONCLUSIONS

"The report itself not only reflects the unanimous conclusions of all supervisory personnel but also was reviewed and approved by both the district attorney's office and representatives of the city administration of which the prison administration is a department."

The prison administration did not dispute the findings nor, Davis said, prepare its defensive statement.

SAFE EMERGENCY LANDING—Dr. and Mrs. Donald Bergeron of 2020 W. Valley, Bloomfield Hills, inspect a piece of fire (top photo) which was sucked into the engine of a DC8 jetliner causing a fire. The plane, on which the Bergerons were passengers, made an emergency landing at Santa Maria Airfield in the Azores Islands. None of the 210 passengers—participants in the American Association of Professors traveling seminar—were injured. The mishap occurred early this month on the last day of a week-long excursion to southern Spain, Gibraltar and Morocco; the group returned to Detroit Metropolitan Airport the following day aboard another airliner. Bottom photograph shows Bergeron looking over the two tires that blew out on takeoff and forced the emergency landing.

Traffic Safety Conference for Teens Near

The 10th annual Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference will be from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday at Pontiac Northern High School.

Oakland County high school students have been invited to participate in the conference, organized by the Traffic Safety Committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce.

This year the Chamber is cooperating with the Traffic Improvement Association (TIA) of Oakland County in a county-wide campaign to increase the use of safety belts.

Theme of the TIA public education program is "It's Lock It To Me Time."

QUEEN CONTEST

"Miss Teen Lock-It" of Oakland County will be selected tomorrow from candidates from high schools throughout the county.

Dr. Donald H. Huelke, of the anatomy department of the University of Michigan, will deliver a slide presentation on the use of safety belts at Saturday's conference.

Better School, Community Ties Sought

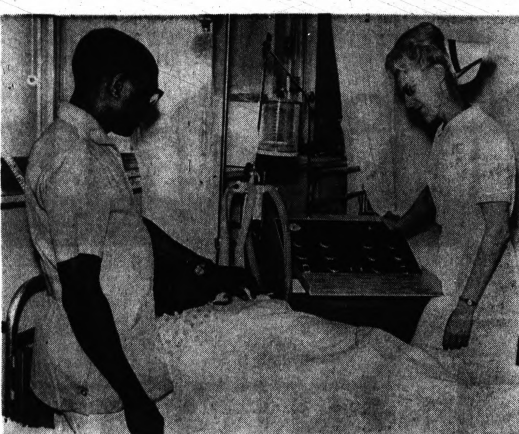

An effort to improve communication between the school and the community is being made at Eastern Junior High School.

On the second and fourth Mondays of each month, the School-Community Advisory Council of Eastern meets to communicate ideas by acting as a liaison between the school and members of the community.

The group has about 25 members, five each from the attendance areas of Central, Longfellow, Wilson, Frost and McConnell elementary schools, which filter students into Eastern.

The group has reviewed recent events between the community and board of education and has discussed the influence of outsiders on the community.

They will prepare recommendations on various subjects to be presented to the school board, according to Thomas Rosenthal, community school director at Eastern Junior High.

and Mrs. W. J. Debiak of Clarkston of the hospital's new inhalation therapy department.

County Deputy Owes Life to Speedy Hospital Team

BY DICK ROBINSON

Deputy Robert W. Groves of the Oakland County security and safety unit was interviewing a juvenile at Pontiac General Hospital when the deputy suddenly slumped to the floor.

Groves believes, as do hospital authorities, that he wouldn't be alive today had it not been for fast teamwork by some members of the hospital's medical staff, specifically, members of the inhalation therapy department.

"At first we just thought he had passed out," explains Mrs. Sherrill Sundberg, R.N., in the emergency department. "But then he started turning blue; he wasn't breathing."

The nurse massaged his heart and gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation before other team members and a doctor arrived to administer electric shocks to the heart.

Groves was in critical condition when the cardio-pulmonary team arrived and got him breathing with a pulmonator. "They did a fantastic job," said Groves who made a quick recovery. "They saved my life."

Groves was in the lobby of the County Courthouse when he was called to the juvenile home.

where a boy had set his mattress on fire, he said.

The boy was unconscious when Groves arrived and the security officer ran a considerable distance with an oxygen tank to revive him, a witness said.

Groves was interviewing the boy at the hospital when he collapsed.

AT HOSPITAL CENTER

Members of the security and safety unit are employed by the county and are stationed at Pontiac General Hospital's emergency department and at the Oakland County Service Center.

The cardio-pulmonary team is part of the hospital's new inhalation therapy department, claimed to be one of the best in the state.

Dr. George Wagryn, a full-time physician in charge of the department, says the unit provides 24-hour-a-day service.

The department boasts 19 inhalation therapists, most of whom have had at least five years of experience in the new field, and three registered, therapists.

35 IN STATE

There are only 35 registered therapists in the state, according to therapist Robert Wheeling to therapist Robert Wheel-

grzyn explains that the inhalation department treats patients with lung disease or injuries to their breathing capacity.

"Advances in treatment and technology has made it possible to change some of the mortality rates associated with lung disease from 80 to 20 per cent when a hospital provides equipment and experienced personnel on a 24-hour a day basis," says Dr. Wagryn.

Therapists continually monitor patients on respirators, set up all forms of oxygen therapy, spend much of their time cleaning and servicing highly-sensitive equipment and conduct education programs, he said.

"It is the goal of inhalation therapy to work with family physicians and health agencies in the community to provide outpatient service for lung diseases as asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis and act as a referral source for patients with lung disease," he said.

Virginia Dare, born on Roanoke Island, Va., which is now part of North Carolina, was the first white child born in America.

School System Charged

TRAVERSE CITY (AP) — An union labor practice charge, which has been filed against the Traverse City School system, will be heard here by a State Labor Mediation Board examiner April 9.

The suit, filed by the Traverse City Education Association, charges the school system with refusing to provide information on the salaries of teachers in the system.

The association claims that such information is invaluable in its bargaining sessions with the school board.

Biafra Says Push by Nigeria Failed

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — A Biafran army from across the Niger while yearlong Nigeria campaign to open a 67-mile corridor through secessionist Biafra has failed with disastrous losses of men, the Biafrans said today.

In March 1968 a colonel and 15,000 to 20,000 men of the Nigerian 2nd Division set out from the former Biafran headquarters of Enugu for Onitsha on the Niger river. Six weeks later the colonel reached Onitsha with less than 1,000 men, the Biafrans claim.

The Nigerians captured the towns of Awka and Abagana along the 67-mile route, and overthrew them virtually decimated the Biafrans. In one, at Abagana, they lost more than 100 vehicles and the Biafrans rushed foreign newsmen to the scene to display their trophies.

Since then the federal troops have maintained their hold on Awka, Abagana and Onitsha, but they have failed to keep open the highway linking them.

FRESH ATTEMPT

In February the Nigerians launched a fresh attempt with heavy equipment and armored vehicles to link Awka and Onitsha. But a Biafran military spokesman said the Nigerians were driven back before the push got off the ground.

The spokesman said both sides have suffered heavy casualties this month in fighting in the Awka-Onitsha sector.

He said the federal aim is to link the 2nd Division with the strength for an attack on Nnewi, the birthplace of the Biafran leader, Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu. It is 22 miles southwest of Onitsha on the main road to Owerri.

"But Nnewi is far from being threatened," the spokesman said.

Nigerian troops in Onitsha are being supplied and reinforced from across the Niger while those at Awka are fed from the Enugu area. A linkup would enable a Nigerian push southward on the main Owerri-Onitsha road that could threaten Biafra's only airstrip at Uli Ihiala.

Crime Prime Subject for Legislators

LANSING (AP) — Crime is considered such a serious problem by Michigan lawmakers that 114 bills have been introduced in the Legislature calling for clamp-downs.

In a short afternoon session before party caucusing Tuesday, the House polished off one of those bills.

Passed and sent to the Senate was a bill sponsored by Rep. James F. Smith, R-Davison, to allow judges to give criminals either consecutive or concurrent sentences — simultaneous — sentences.

Action on the bill was delayed by debate on several amendments that sought to restrict or eliminate the consecutive sentence provision.

Reps. E. D. O'Brien, D-Detroit, author of some 60 crime-related bills now before the House, and Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, led the fight for a tougher bill.

O'Brien relented and voted for the judicial discretion when his amendments failed. Before he did, however, he called it a misguided "concept of giving judges the intelligent use of discretion. The way to use that intelligence is to put the criminals in jail," O'Brien said.

A preventive skin spray had been developed to be used by persons before going into areas believed to have poison ivy, poison oak or poison sumac.

Margot Fonteyn—35 Years With Royal Ballet

Margot Fonteyn to Mark 35th Year in Royal Ballet

LONDON (AP) — Margot Fonteyn whirls on stage at Covent Garden tonight for a gale performance marking her 35th year with the Royal Ballet.

It will be quite a special occasion. Queen Elizabeth II will be in the royal box. Tier upon tier of fashionable socialites around her will have paid up to $63 to charity just to be there.

Bewigged footmen, in their opera house uniforms of blue and gold, will be waiting to pour champagne and heap flowers from admirers at the ballerina's feet.

WORLD PREMIERE
The feature ballet of the evening, danced by Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev, is having its world premiere. It was choreographed by Fonteyn and Nureyev by Roland Petit to Arnold Schoenberg's tone poem Pelleas et Melisande.

To her fans, Fonteyn seems ageless. She first put on ballet shoes at 4, made her first solo appearance in 1934, and has danced with the Royal Ballet ever since.

On May 18 she will celebrate her 50th birthday in New York. A benefit is being arranged for the Royal Academy of Dancing, of which she is president.

Small, slender, delicate-boned, olive-skinned, smart in her Dior clothes, Fonteyn at 50 looks much as she always did.

Hope for U.S.-Peru Accord Dim

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Prospects appear increasingly dim for settlement of the dispute between the United States and Peru over the expropriation of an American oil refinery.

President Nixon's special envoy, John N. Irwin, and his aides refuse to comment on the progress of their talks with Peruvian leaders. But a deepening sense of despair is detected among American officials here.

Although the talks so far have been cordial, U.S. Embassy officials and other observers feel the military government is showing little inclination to compromise. The ruling generals each day appear to paint themselves deeper into a corner, with no face-saving way out.

The talks were recessed Tuesday to permit Irwin and his aides to study a huge volume of background material presented by the Peruvians. The Peruvian cabinet, meanwhile, met to work on its budget for the fiscal year which begins next Tuesday.

The recess was continued today without explanation, and there were rumors that Tuesday's cabinet meeting brought out problems within the military leadership and that some ministerial reshuffling is imminent.

The dispute between Washington and Lima results from Peru's expropriation last Oct. 9 of the refinery in Northern Peru owned by International Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Under the Hickenlooper Amendment, if a country does not compensate an American firm for expropriation of its property or enter into "meaningful negotiations" within six months of the expropriation, all U.S. aid to the country must be cut off.

Although the U.S. State Department has said the amendment would apply to Peru, there has been no further indication that Washington will invoke the cutoff clause when the six-month period ends April 9.

The population of the United States, including servicemen overseas, rose slightly more last year to an estimated total of 201,750,000.

Dem Wins Tennessee Race

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The district is traditionally Democratic, but Wallace carried it last November when running for president against Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey. The congressional vacancy was caused by the death of Democratic Rep. Robert A. Everett last Jan. 20.

Wallace, in a campaign rally for Davis, had called the special election "America's most important political race between now and the next national election."

Davis, a Covington insurance man, said he thought he did well considering that it was the first time he had ever run for office.

Gov. Buford Ellington, who heads the Democratic state organization, described the outcome as "a key victory for the Democratic party in Tennessee." Nixon carried the state for the Republicans last autumn.

Said Jimmy Peeler, state Democratic chairman: "Wallace picked the wrong district to dabble in."

Red-Yellow Roses Sparkle With Fountain Spray

Press Flower Show Continues at Mall

By JODY HEADLEE
Garden Editor, The Pontiac Press

Circlets of red and yellow roses bobble merrily in the rushing waters of The Pontiac Mall's central fountain at the first Lawn, Garden and Flower Show.

The spring spectacular, sponsored by The Pontiac Press, will remain open from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. through Saturday.

On hand to answer questions are experts familiar with every phase of gardening.

Nine pocket gardens are chock full of ideas to adapt to your own needs. Representing interpretations that swing from the "old world," to the Orient to the casual outdoor living of the "new world," the gardens incorporate masses of rhodendron and azalea blooms with the gay blossoms of daffodils and tulips.

And the preservation of America's natural beauty is not forgotten.

Exhibits by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service Work Unit and Cranbrook Institutions point up the necessity of preserving our natural heritage.

Mother's Sacrifice Changed Student's Sour Outlook on Life

BY TOMMY J. BOISSEAU
Student, Jeffersonville, Ind.

I never did like rain. Dark clouds, wet feet and steamed up windows always sent me into fits of self-pity and built up resentment against life in general.

I remember how my younger brother, Bill, and I used to come in from school soaking wet knowing that it would be at least another two hours before Mother would be in from work.

We were only in grade school, but even then I knew that if she and Dad would have lived together we could have known what it was like to come home to a brightly lit house filled with the odor of something good cooking in the kitchen, and maybe somebody laughing once in a while.

Somehow I resented her for my father's not being there. The more I thought of it, the more I was convinced she should have overlooked what faults he may have had. After all, he made good money. He taught us to hunt and fish and he could really barbecue!

HATED ONE ANOTHER

By the time I reached the age of 13, I truly believed that the earth was formed by the junction of two planets crashing into each other accidentally and that, for the most part, people on earth hated one another. I believed this in spite of the fact that I attended church regularly — though not with much faith, I admit.

Fall came early in 1963. It was Sept. 29 and a cold rain had fallen all day. I was in my usual bleak mood. The house felt cool and, as always, Bill and I were involved in TV, waiting as patiently as possible for Mother to get home and fix supper.

Suddenly the telephone rang. As soon as Bill answered it, I knew something terrible had happened. It was a hospital across the river in Louisville, Ky., calling to tell us that our father was in critical condition.

He had just been admitted after the car he was riding in had crashed into a tree. Four persons in the car were dead on arrival, and he and another were not expected to live.

WHY SHOULD SHE CARE?

I knew that when Mother came in, she would say, "Why should I care what's happened to him now?"

The car door slammed shut, and Mom came in. Her hair was wet. Her hands shook when I told her about the accident. To my complete astonishment, she said, "Get your coats on. We're going over to the hospital."

Once there, she calmly made arrangements, at her own expense, to have Dad moved to another hospital where she felt he would receive better care. She stayed there three days until he was out of danger.

Soon he began to show improvement and each day he grew stronger. Whenever Bill and I went to see him, we couldn't help noticing that he had new pajamas, shaving equipment, magazines and plenty of cigarettes.

TV SET GONE

One day our TV set was gone. I knew without asking where it was. Sure enough, when Bill and I went over to the hospital, there it was.

I was selfish enough to wish that he didn't have it, but knew better than to say so.

Every day I wondered, "Why is Mother doing this?" Bill and I secretly decided that she must have really been to blame for all the trouble in the first place. Otherwise, why this?

We knew Dad would have no place to go for recovery after hospitalization. Finally, after six weeks he was discharged.

THERE WAS DAD

When I came in from school Friday, I heard the TV playing and there was Dad, all propped up in my bed, wanting to know what time supper would be ready.

For another six long weeks he was waited on. Not once did Mom mention the past or question him about his present way of life. But when the doctor discharged him, she quietly packed his bag and told him that was all she could do.

He left, and I don't remember hearing a word of thanks. I stood there watching him go down the road and I grew up in five minutes.

I realized why Mother had taken care of him. I realized that everyone who expects to live a Christian life must do certain things, even things that are difficult, and that faith in God will give us the strength that is needed for them.

COULD FACE WORLD

I knew at that moment that I could face the world and its people with a different attitude and without the mixed-up hate and resentment that had always burned within me.

It was a strange feeling and a strange way to appreciate the faith which I had always had without knowing it existed within me.

Next — Mag. Gen. John B. Medaris, former commander of the Redstone Arsenal and leader in space science, tells how prayer saved him from cancer.

was two diamonds. This system, is, of course, very similar to the British ACOL except that their two-club bid is a game force and their two bids one-round forces.

Today's hand was given by the inventor of this system to show how it was the only one that would work. It certainly worked with his sample bidding. North tried three spades over the three-club response and South bid three no-trump because he had honors in both unbid suits. North was happy to pass. A diamond was led from the queen and declarer made five odd.

Like most hands of this type, point count would make it fairly clear that a slam should not be bid, but point count was not used seriously by many players of that day.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The 1930 bridge writers were great experts in making up hands to fit their own special bidding systems that would not fit any other expert's system. Today's hand shows the great advantage of a system that uses opening bids of three clubs, two diamonds and any North player with his two hearts for strong suit would note that he had two hands. These bids were not queens above his two-club forcing but two clubs was opening and bid again, showed five or more quick stop at four no-trump. Optimists tricks and a balanced hand, would get to six. Incurable optimism. The bust response to this bid might even reach seven.

Impetus Given to Hint of Private Peace Talks

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has given fresh impetus to the growing belief that the private talks he favors for ending the Vietnam war already are under way.

But in doing so, the President made it clear he wants to keep these talks—whether they actually have begun or are about to—as secret as possible.

"That kind of negotiation can not take place in a goldfish bowl," Nixon told the National Association of Broadcasters Tuesday in an off-the-cuff speech.

The President, however, came to the convention obviously anxious to talk about private negotiations to end the war.

SOURCE OF PROGRESS

"I can tell you," he said, "that it is our conviction and our belief that it is through private talks with the North Vietnamese and others involved that the real progress toward peace will be made."

Nixon went on to say that anyone in the administration is asked "as to whether private talks should begin, as to what has occurred, we will say nothing."

Although this seemed to indicate full-scale private negotiations were not actually under way but were about to start, the President commented a little later on:

"We think we are on the right track, but we are not going to raise false hopes. We are not going to tell you what is going on in private talks."

FIRST PUBLIC REMARKS
Nixon's comments on secret negotiations were the first public remarks by an administration official since Secretary of

News Analysis

Defense Melvin R. Laird told a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last Friday that peace was being sought "not only through formal diplomatic channels formally in Paris, but privately as well."

Laird declined to elaborate on the remark, made during a digression from questioning on missile defense.

The Nixon speech came just a few hours after South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said in Saigon that his government was ready for private meetings with the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Vietcong.

Thieu's statement was viewed in Paris as only a slightly new element in that it was made openly.

FRONT DRAGGING FEET
It also suggested the Front had been dragging its feet—turning around the accusation that until now Hanoi and the NLF had directed at Saigon. The Hanoi-NLF delegates to the Paris talks had no comment on Thieu's statement, a departure from custom that pointed to still another element in the Thieu statement—that a message actually was passed in Paris from the Saigon government to the NLF. This suggested that at least something was going on backstage.

This in turn, however, points up another possible interpretation of the sparse public comments that have been made. Despite use of the word "talks," what actually may only have occurred up to now is diplomatic "contacts" that would open the way to real discussions. And there is no way to be certain that the talks or contacts have involved the Washington-Hanoi kind of dickering that is now believed necessary to start mutual troop withdrawals.

CLOSE ATTENTIONS

Although Nixon said he was intent on muffled comment in the administration so as not to raise false hopes, close attention will likely be paid to testimony Thursday by Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Rogers is to go before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is beginning to show signs of restlessness with Nixon's war policies, for his first public report on foreign policy.

Because of Nixon's orders for silence, Rogers may have little new to say on peace negotiations.

But his appearance will come as Nixon is winding up a top-level review of war policies that began last weekend on what seemed a deliberately low-key note.

MANY MEETINGS

Starting Sunday in California and continuing this week, Nixon has been meeting with Ellsworth Bunker, the U.S. ambassador to Saigon, and Gen. Andrew Goodpastor, the departing

No. 2 U.S. military man in the war zone.

Administration spokesmen have continuously said, however, that no abrupt policy changes are expected to evolve from these meetings—which also have included Rogers—and that no announcements are expected.

U.S. Pullout Would Take Up to 2 Years, Says Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army staff officers estimate it may take as long as two years for a complete withdrawal of all U.S. soldiers and equipment from Vietnam when the order finally comes to pull out of the war zone.

Although no decision has been reached on a timetable, the Army is working on plans now to avoid the waste and confusion that accompanied the first pull-back of U.S. troops from battle zones in past wars.

The staff officers made the time estimate after Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor told the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday that "a deliberate rather than a hasty timetable" is the best way to avoid the difficulties that followed World War II and Korea. "What we are therefore planning now is a much more detailed and orderly manner than at any time previously for actions to be taken when hostilities decrease to a level at which the South Vietnamese no longer require the assistance of our own combat troops," Resor said.

At the same time, Resor said, "we have emphasized the accelerated completion of our formal 1-D day plans, since we want to be able to react quickly and efficiently to any developments and directions growing out of the Paris negotiations."

"1-D" stands for "Termination of hostilities."

MEA to Meet

LANSING (AP) — Some 400 delegates of the Michigan Education Association's representative assembly are expected in Lansing Thursday for the opening of a three-day conference. The assembly, the governing and legislative body of the 88,000-member teaching organization, will elect new state officers and set policy and program for the MEA for the coming year.

In its approach to lesbianism, it exploits to the hilt one of the frankest and most genuinely erotic scenes to have come to film. Nothing is left to the imagination!

EXPERT DEMONSTRATES BURGLAR'S TRICKS — As police Sgt. Lou Reiter looks on, a former burglar now working for the Los Angeles Police Department demonstrates how to pick a lock for entry. Don Roberts, 29, is one of six ex-convicts in the department's community relations program. They lecture at schools and club meetings, explaining how to avoid narcotics, robbery, burglary and assault.

Yemen Jews Losing Immunity to Heart Ills

TEL AVIV (UPI) — When the interview that the immunity is Jews of Yemen were gathered to the bosom of Israel after disappearing. The Yemenis are paying the many centuries as an isolated and primitive community, does for the privilege of sharing the frustrations, conventions and diet of the civilized west.

"We've been watching a true increase in heart disease," said Dr. Dreyfuss with regret. In common with all heart experts he had nurtured the hope that there might be some clue in the depths of Arabia to a scourge of modern society. But the Yemenis are not, getting heart attacks in vain.

Science has now a fairly good idea of why they were rare in their distant homeland and there are some general rules that might well be adopted by any overweight, sedentary westerner bottling up his emotions. The specialist whose original findings excited the scientific community is Dr. Fritz Dreyfuss of Ichilov Hospital, Tel Aviv University, and this week—16 years later—he said in an interview that the immunity is

Brazil Press Censorship Is Decried

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Lee Hills, the publisher of the Detroit Free Press and a former president of the Inter-American Press Association told the group Monday that censorship in Latin American newspapers is at "a crucial turning point." Hills said censoring of the press in Brazil was "the first time in 10 years we have had such open, brazen attacks on press freedom in the hemisphere."

The Free Press publisher made his remarks at the opening session of a meeting of the IAPA freedom of the press committee, being held at Acapulco, Mexico.

A report said freedom of the press exists in Peru, but added: "There is concern which compels us to maintain vigilance."

6 Ex-Convicts Get Jobs With Los Angeles Police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six former convicts, after a year of proving themselves, became full-time members of the Los Angeles Police Department yesterday.

With Civil Service status, they are working as nonuniformed employees in the department's community relations division. Assignments may range from telling an audience of prosperous homeowners how a professional burglar knows a house is not occupied to explaining to high schoolers how smoking marijuana led them personally to narcotics addiction and prison.

"They're simply great," says Sgt. Lou Reiter, who directed the program in its first year. "It's something we needed for a long time."

Chief Tom Reddin, police commissioners, Mayor Sam Yorty and City Council also endorse the program. A City Council vote making it permanent led to Civil Service status for the men, and a second group of 11 is starting a year tryout, hoping for similar jobs.

PEOPLE LISTEN

"When a police officer talks about crime prevention, people listen but don't hear. When an ex-con talks they listen, hear and ask questions, especially the kids," says Donald L. Roberts, 29, with 20 felony arrests on his record. He is one of the new full-time employees.

Roberts, a persuasive speaker, says he and the others have "managed to prove that ex-cons can lead a useful life if, given the chance, and that the police department isn't a machine but an organization with a heart."

The program didn't start as an ex-con program, but one for hard-core unemployed. It turned out, however, that most applicants were men with records, since, as Reiter puts it, "no one is more of a hard-core unemployed than an ex-convict." The program had not specifically banned ex-cons, so they were given a chance. Most police expected them to wash out quickly.

Of the original group of 20, only eight stayed the full term. But none of the drop-outs has been arrested, says Scot Martinez, the mayor's representative in the program.

$428 A MONTH

As Civil Service employees, they start at $428 a month, comparable to any other beginning city employee. With similar education and training a rookie policeman gets $715 a month. Many are taking college training, aiming at a $718-a-month community service coordinator post.

Word of the program has reached inside prison walls. Reiter says a couple of applications a week come in now from men who say they expect to be released from prison shortly and want to be considered.

NBA Playoffs Begin Tonight

By the Associated Press
The National Basketball Association playoffs opened tonight, 50. They hadn't been below second and for perhaps the first time in the spotlight shines on a fourth place team, the Boston Celtics. Can they pull it off one more time?

The Celtics will be trying to salvage their most miserable season since 1949-50 when they began the Eastern Division semifinal best-of-7 series at Philadelphia.

San Francisco plays at Los Angeles in the Western Division semifinal opener.

The New York Knicks invade Baltimore and San Diego oppose host Atlanta Thursday night in the other semifinals. The Celtics, who have won nine NBA titles in the last 10 years, finished a dismal fourth this season, their lowest placing since they finished last in 1949-50. They hadn't been below second and for perhaps the first time in the spotlight shines on a fourth place team, the Boston Celtics. Can they pull it off one more time?

"We have to redeem ourselves," says John Havlicek of Boston.

"I'm looking forward to the playoffs as a new season," adds Sam Jones, who is retiring after the playoffs.

With Jones leaving and age creeping up on player-coach Bill Russell, Satch Sanders and Billy Howell, this might be Boston's last shot at an NBA championship in the near future.

The Celtics did have a 5-2 edge over the second-place 76ers during the regular season, but it was an evenly played series with two of the games going into overtime.

Los Angeles, with superstars Walt Chamberlain, Elgin Baylor and Jerry West, are favored to oust the third-place Warriors and then go on to win its division final and finally sweep the title.

"We have the best basketball team we've ever had in Los Angeles," said West after the Lakers won their division by seven games over Atlanta.

However, the Warriors are not about to concede. When they are healthy—and they appear to be for the playoffs—they can go against anyone, and they have Nate Thurmond to help offset Chamberlain.

Los Angeles won their season series, 4-3.

Conditional
Okay Is Asked to Sell Eagles

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal bankruptcy referee will be asked today to formally approve a contract calling for the conditional sale of the Philadelphia Eagles National Football League team for $18,055,000.

Referee Joseph O. Kaiser, of U.S. District Court, said Tuesday he expects the hearing on the contract to be perfunctory.

Kaiser said he expects to receive a completed contract between Jerry Wolman, the Eagles' majority stockholder, and Leonard H. Tose, a Norristown, Pa., truck executive.

Kaiser earlier this month gave them the go-ahead to draw up a contract calling for the sale of the team to Tose by May 1, with a clause permitting Wolman to repurchase the NFL club by August 1.

Big Dave 'D' Becomes 'Pop'

DETROIT (AP) — Former Detroit Pistons basketball star Dave DeBusschere became a father for the first time Monday when a seven-pound girl, Michele Ann, was born to his wife, Jerri.

DeBusschere was traded by the Pistons earlier this season to the New York Knicks.

The list includes such foreigners as Gary Player, Bobby Cole and Harold Henning of South Africa, Tony Jacklin and Malcolm Gregson of England and Bruce Crampton of Australia.

He's still not sure he will be able to tee it up Thursday and go on to play in the Masters two weeks hence.

A doctor put a cast around the thumb and Lee's wrist, and said: "Nothing's broken, but when we take the cast off Thursday morning we won't know whether he can play or not. It just depends on how he feels. He may be out 36 hours or two weeks."

It would be a big disappointment for Trevino.

"I felt I was really getting ready for the Masters," he said. "Palmer, who gets injections twice a day for his ailing hip, said, 'I don't know how it will be—it's a day-to-day proposition.'"

Nicklaus, who found his booming drives soaring off course in the Jacksonville Open last week, complained: "I don't know what's happening—I just seem to come up dry."

He wasn't around the country club of Miami Tuesday. There were reports he went over to take a lesson from his old pro at Columbus, Ohio, Jack Grout, who is leading the division by 13 games despite a 127-130 loss at Dallas.

In the Eastern Division, the battle still is on for the top spot as Indiana retained a 2½ game lead with a 104-124 rout over Los Angeles.

Miami climbed within one percentage point of second-place Kentucky by beating the Colonels 125-106.

Minnesota broke an eight-game losing streak and ended New York's string of 11 defeats in a row by whipping the Nets 114-104.

New Orleans, with Jimmy Jones scoring 24 of his 33 points, took a 73-44 halftime lead and breezed in.

Roger Brown pumped in 45 points, including 20 in the final period, as Indiana romped George Stone was high for Los Angeles with 31.

Don Freeman scored 32 points and Willie Murrell 24 as Miami pulled away from a four-point deficit in the third period at Louisville.

Minnesota never trailed after taking a 38-34 lead as Art Heyman notched 31 points and Connie Hawkins 21.

Coach Praises U.S. Netminder

STOCKHOLM (AP) — John Mayasich, playing coach of the U.S. ice hockey team, claimed today that Mike Curran of the Green Bay Bobcats is the best goaltender in the amateur world championships here.

Curran, who is after the American's seventh straight defeat in the tournament, 1-0, against Canada Tuesday night.

U.S. team is at the bottom of the standings and in grave danger of falling out of the world championships. A group of officials.

Mayasich, general manager of Curran's club at home, said: "Without wishing to belittle our defenders, Curran doesn't get much help."

"The goalies in the other teams don't have to do so much as the most consistent goalkeeper. He's doing a fantastic job."

Teammates Take Honors

Goalies Share Vezina Trophy

NEW YORK (AP) — Fear was caught up with Jacques Plante at the age of 40, and now he is more than happy to share the Vezina Trophy in the National Hockey League with teammate Glenn Hall.

The trophy is awarded the goalies on the team that has allowed the fewest goals and that puts St. Louis far in front in the last week of the season behind the veteran tandem of Plante and Hall, 37.

"When I was with Montreal, I wanted to be the only goalie," said Plante after a recent game here against the Rangers. "I would play until I got tired, they'd put in another goalie for a couple of games and then I'd be back in."

"But I'm more fearful now than when I was young," added the colorful Canadian who won his Vezinas five in a row, with Montreal before retiring after the 1964-65 season, only to have the Blues talk him into returning this year.

Will it be easy?

"Glenn says the same thing. You go out there now and say to yourself, 'am I going to fight the puck tonight or will it be easy?' Maybe we're just afraid of making a mistake."

"The most goals we've had scored against this year was six, and when you see those 90 games, it worries you. You're just waiting for it to catch up."

The Blues are not the only ones who now use the two-goalie system, although with Plante and Hall, it has worked best for them. When one plays, the other doesn't even dress for the game. They normally play about two games in a row before changing.

Ed Giacomin of the Rangers and Cesare Maniago of Minnesota are the only full-time goalies, although they get a day off occasionally.

"They're young," Plante said. "They don't know any other way."

Suffolk Downs Lists Women's $10,000 Race

BOSTON (UPI) — Suffolk Downs racetrack will run a $10,000 Lady Godiva handicap on opening day, featuring all female jockeys.

The first four finishers in the April 19 race will compete against four male jockeys April 21 for the $5,000 Gums and Dolls purse.

Suffolk Downs President Bill Veeck, announcing the Lady Godiva handicap Tuesday, said: "we plan to have eight fillies riding eight fillies."

The announcement said the April 19 race would be the first in which girl jockeys have competed solely against one another in a thoroughbred pari-mutuel race, and the April 21 event would be the first in which more than one female jockey has competed with male jockeys.

Veeck said he had received wires of acceptance from Tuesday Testa in New York, Diane Crump, now at Gulfstream Park in Florida, Penny Ann Early, Lawrence Grube and Connie Hendricks at Santa Anita in California.

Rookie's First Goal Helps Penguins Win

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Freckle-faced Ron Snell caught everybody, including himself, by surprise when he scored his first National Hockey League goal in his first big game.

"The puck hit the side of the net and came right out to me," Snell said after the market started the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Tuesday night.

"If I would have missed it, there would be something wrong with me," he said. "I caught everybody by surprise. I was even surprised that it came so easy."

The Penguins kept their hopes alive of leaving the West Division cellar, merrily within four points of the fifth-place North Stars.

ONLY CONTEXT
It was the only NHL game scheduled Tuesday night.

Snell's goal moved the Penguins into a 1-1 tie in the second period after they had been bad.

Waterford '6' Loses Finale

Waterford's Rangers closed the season on a losing note Saturday as they dropped a 2-1 decision to Huron Point in a Juvenile B Southeastern Michigan Hockey Association game.

Ed Biccacchio and Jerry Jurkiewicz scored for the winners, while Larry Helka tallied for the Rangers. The Waterford sextet finished out the division and moved into playoffs this weekend.

The biggest upset, however, came at 156 pounds where John Baldwin, a bronze medal winner for the United States in the Mexico City Olympics, lost a split decision to John Brown of Detroit in the second round.

The decision prompted Robert "Pappy" Gault, coach of the Washington, D.C., team and the U.S. Olympic team, to file a protest. A grievance committee was scheduled to study the protest and make a ruling some time today.

A second defending champion, Roy Dale of Cleveland at 165 pounds, lost his first-round match Tuesday on a decision to John Woods of Kansas City.

Baseball Players Ailing

Richards Comeback Cut Short

By The Associated Press

For a short time this week, General Manager Paul Richards of Atlanta might have been considering a comeback as a player after he had traded the Braves into an acute catcher shortage with the season opener only two weeks away.

Richards looked like the only man in the Braves' spring training camp with major league experience behind the plate—in the 1940s—following the departure of Joe Torre and the rumored retirement of Bob Tillman.

But Richards found himself out of the competition today and back in the front office when Tillman decided to return and Richards acquired journeyman receiver Dave Adlesh from the St. Louis Cardinals for utility infielder Bob Johnson.

Until, then, the only catchers on duty in the Braves camp were Walt Hrinak and Bob Didier, both without major league experience, and Hrinak out with an injury.

MEDIOCRE CAREER

Tillman, who had been excused from spring training for 13 days for personal reasons, now looks like the starting catcher for Atlanta, despite a mediocre career. Adlesh will be sent to the minors.

While no other team found itself caught that short, several were mulling over the loss of key players to injury.

Roberto Clemente, Pittsburgh's four-time, National League batting champion, was the most important, leaving the Pirates in a worried state after he flew to his Puerto Rico home Tuesday for treatment of an ail-

MIAMI (AP)—The University of Cincinnati jumped on faultless Dan Bielecki for five unearned runs in the first three innings, and went on to beat Michigan State 9-3 in the Miami Collegiate Invitational baseball tournament Tuesday.

The only bright spot for the Spartans was that of versatile Phil Rashead who had four hits including a homer and double. The sophomore from Flint drove in two runs and scored two as MSU's spring record dipped to 5-4.

The tournament ends Saturday with leader Miami expected to capture the title.

left shoulder that bothered him much of last season.

Clemente injured the shoulder about two weeks ago diving for a fly ball, and has not seen action since.

STUMBLING INJURY

The San Francisco Giants lost slugging left fielder Jim Hart for at least five days when he stumbled chasing a foul fly in the Giants' 12-3 victory over Oakland, injuring a groin muscle that hampered him in 1968. Willie McCovey drove in four runs, two with a homer, in the game.

Cleveland lost catcher Duke Sims for three to four weeks as he dislocated a ring finger on his right hand when hit by a foul tip in Cleveland's 6-3 triumph over Seattle on Tony Horton's ninth-inning homer.

Tom McCrew, Chicago White Sox first baseman, will be out for 10 to 12 weeks after undergoing knee surgery.

In other moves, Montreal acquired rookie first baseman Don Pepper from Detroit for cash, and several former major leaguers were sent to the minors—Bill Stafford of Seattle and Larry Sherry and Luis Alcaraz of Kansas City.

On the field, home runs carried the day as Baltimore bombed Washington 8-2, Cincinnati routed Detroit 16-1, Kansas City blanked Boston 4-0, St.

Louis outlasted Minnesota 10-5, Houston tripped Atlanta 3-1, the Chicago Cubs trimmed San Diego 5-3 and Los Angeles' A team dropped Pittsburgh 10-4.

POWER HITTERS

Boog Powell drove in four runs with a homer and two singles for Baltimore and Tony Perez slammed two homers and two doubles for Cincinnati. Joe Foy and Jerry Adair turned on their former Boston mates, Foy with a two-run homer and Adair with a run-scoring double.

Dal Maxvill and Phil Gagliano broke a tie with successive homers for St. Louis, offsetting a three-run shot by Tony Olivo of the Twins. Jim Wynn's two-run blast won for Houston and homers by Ron Santo and Don Young carried the Cubs by San Diego.

Wes Parker hit a two-run homer and Bill Sadukis drove in five runs for the Dodgers.

In other games, Montreal beat Don Drysdale and the Los Angeles B team 6-3 and California clubbed Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League 12-2. The Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees were rained out.

Donn Clendenen struck out 163 times with the Pittsburgh Pirates last season, a new National League record. He is on the Houston roster this spring.

CRANES' LEADER—Coach Bill Brown is preparing Cranbrook school's baseball team in the south. The Cranes are training at Duke and Virginia universities and will open their season Monday.

Southland Trip for Cranes '9

The Cranes of Cranbrook are working out at the University of Virginia and at Duke University in North Carolina this week as they prepare for the 1969 baseball season.

It's the 20th straight year for the Cranes on the southern trip. They'll wind up practice Saturday and head for Cincinnati on Monday for a series of games against Ohio teams and then return to Bloomfield Hills April 9.

The Cranes are coached by Bill Brown, former first baseman at Olivet. He had an 11-10 record in his first campaign last year.

Eleven lettermen are back from that '68 squad. Captain is outfielder Sandy Heaverlich.

First on the schedule is a game against Ironton High School Monday. They'll meet the same team on Tuesday before taking on other Ohio Valley teams. They open their local schedule at Ferndale April 9.

Grid Giants Sign Two

NEW YORK (UPI) The New York Giants of the National Football League today signed rookie defensive backs Richard Perrin of Bowling Green and Steve Smith of Weber State to 1969 contracts.

Tiger Pitcher Daryl Patterson is part-Indian; his father name is "Longfeather."

Cassius Case to Get Lower Court Rehearing

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay may once more wear the heavyweight boxing crown he won and never lost in the ring.

Clay was dethroned of his title by the World Boxing Association and the New York State Athletic Commission after he refused induction into the Armed Forces.

The Supreme Court gave Clay new hope of returning to the ring Monday when it ruled that his case should be returned to a lower federal court to check for possible wire tapping.

Clay was convicted of the induction refusal charge and sentenced to five years.

The conviction could be reversed as a result. If so, Clay would have at least part of his title restored.

There are at least three boxers eager to take on Clay, who prefers to be known as Muhammad Ali, including unbeaten champion Joe Frazier, Jerry Quarry and Clay's old sparring partner, Jimmy Ellis, now the WBA's heavyweight king.

TAKING SHAPE
First, though, a title fight is shaping for June between Frazier and Quarry.

Jean Beliveau Returns

TORONTO (UPI) — Center Jean Beliveau, almost completely recovered from a rib injury incurred March 9, will tonight to the Montreal lineup when the Canadiens attempt to clinch the East Division title of the National Hockey League in a game against the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Emile Bruneau, WBA president, said in New Orleans he would not comment "at this time" on the Montreal line-up because he and his staff are waiting to see what the outcome of the Frazier-Quarry fight will be.

Clay said in Denton, Tex.: "If the conviction is overturned and Frazier offers a fight, I'll fight."

Split Football Drills Planned by Wolverines

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — The University of Michigan football team will try to beat the weather with a unique, split spring practice session that will start next Tuesday and end on May 6.

The Wolverines have been hampered by cold weather and snow ever since Michigan went to the tri-semester system five years ago.

This year, the Big Ten approved the practice change for Michigan, the only conference university operating under the tri-semester plan.

First practice session will run from April 1 through April 19. The Wolverines then lay off until April 30 when they resume practice until May 6.

Bob Schembechler, who is taking over the football team for the first season, said the new arrangement on practice dates is "much better than we've had here before."

With a new staff, the interruption will give us a chance to appraise the personnel before we complete our spring practice."

In past years, March weather forced the team indoors to Yost Fieldhouse.

Tennis Richeys Do Best in Biggest Tournaments

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Square Garden obviously brings the best in the tennis-playing Richeys of San Angelo, Tex. Cliff Richey, a designated amateur player shooting for his initial open tennis paycheck in the $25,000 Garden Challenge Trophy Open, pulled off a startling first-round upset Tuesday night, knocking off second-seeded professional Rod Laver of Australia 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Last March 29, Cliff's sister, Nancy, overcame match point in the second set to post a 4-6, 7-5, 6-0 semifinal victory over No. 1 seeded Billy Jean King on the way to the women's title in the same tournament—then an all-amateur event.

Richey, allowed to play for the $5,000 first prize money while retaining his amateur status under new open tennis rules, eliminated Laver, the slick southpaw who has been the tour's top money winner for several years, after top-seeded Tony Roche of Australia struggled past amateur Brian Fairlie of New Zealand 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., the amateur was extended to three sets before overcoming Gene Scott of New York 1-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Fourth-seeded Andres Gimeno, the pro from Spain, beat 6-2 and amateur Clark Graebner of New York, seeded sixth, ousted Ove Bengtson of Sweden 4-6, 6-3, 12-10. But British amateur Mark Cox cut down pro John Newcombe of Australia, the No. 5 seed, 6-2, 8-10, 6-2.

No Tiger pitcher had ever received as much as a single vote for the Cy Young Award until 1968, when Denny McLain was the American League's unanimous winner.

Ponds, Habitat Concern of SCS

The preservation and improvement of wildlife habitat on private lands is a major concern to a handful of men who seldom are in the public limelight.

They are Soil Conservation Service technicians who work with farmers and other landowners wishing to build ponds and plant fields with wildlife habitat.

Most of the assistance involves construction of small lakes and ponds.

Last year, the Pontiac work unit helped in the construction of 33 wildlife ponds in Oakland County. Ellis (Bill) Humphrey is the district conservationist and Jimmie Randolph is a soil conservationist.

PART OF ASC

Their office is in Room 9 of the Federal Building, 35 E. Huron. They work in the Agricultural Conservation Program which is administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"Unless landowners give conscious attention to the basic requirements of food, cover and water," said Randolph, "wildlife is almost eliminated in intensively farmed areas."

"It is to the credit of farmers that a high percentage do appreciate the presence of bird life around their farmsteads and encourage game and other wildlife in their fields and pastures."

Some produce wildlife as a crop, either for their own enjoyment, or for income, Randolph pointed out.

Establishment of wetlands in the form of ponds helps to offset dwindling waterfowl habitat across this nation and Canada. Mallards, black ducks and teal or feeding areas — if the proper habitat is allowed to grow on one part of the pond.

FISHING HOLES

Most landowners want the ponds for fish. Unless landscaped in lawn all the way around, the water spot quickly draw far bearing animals and other wildlife.

The SCS helps bring the specialized services of federal and state wildlife agencies to the attention of landowners and will arrange for planting materials and other aids to habitat improvement.

"It is in the public interest that a maximum of wildlife species be preserved and maintained on private lands," according to Randolph.

"As human population grows, the public demand for wildlife increases. Landowners are not always able to recognize and meet this demand without financial and technical assistance."

CONSERVATION PRACTICES—The pond in the top photo is located in White Lake Township and is used as a fishing and picnic site by the owners. It also is utilized by waterfowl as a nesting and resting spot. The multiflora rose in the lower picture was planted 12 years ago as a field divider in Holly Township. It is used by wildlife for nesting, cover and food. The Soil Conservation Service helped with both projects.

Nixon Passing Word

Watershed Dispute Nearing Solution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration is quietly passing word it is about to settle a dispute that has slowed the government's program of promoting small watersheds.

The dispute arose during the Johnson administration over whether procedures for congressional approval of individual watershed projects are constitutional.

The Johnson White House contended the present procedure, under which projects are approved by the congressional public works and agriculture committees, is unconstitutional.

Congressional leaders disagreed and refused to change the system. The White House announced about one year ago it would refuse to finance future projects until the approval procedure was overhauled.

DORMANT PLANS

The result: 96 congressional approved watershed projects now lie dormant in the Agriculture Department's Soil Conservation Service (SCS). The administration will not commit federal funds to local project sponsors, who share costs of the work, until the approval argument is settled.

The 561 small projects approved before the dispute reached the deadlock stage are now under construction with SCS aid. But with no new projects moving in to the construction pipeline, total activity in the watershed program is slowing down.

Earlier this week, however, Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin told a Senate subcommittee he was "optimistic that we'll have a solution to the constitutional deadlock in a very short time." White House aides reportedly have told lawmakers they can expect a quick decision that would not require congress to change its procedures.

Trout Angling Activity Light; Salmon Planted

Fishing activity on area lakes has been very light with trout drawing the only interest. Splake and some rainbows are being caught at Maceday and a few rainbows at Union. Pontiac Lake has been good for bluegills. Crappies are still hitting below the Holloway dam near Columbiaville.

Over 200,000 kokanee salmon were planted in Gerundegay Bay yesterday and will spread into Cass Lake. The 14-inch smolts are expected to return to the bay as spawners in 1971. New trout regulations call for splake, rainbows and browns to be 10 inches long. The creel limit is five daily. A coho salmon, 13 inches long, was taken from the Detroit River yesterday.

Gun Safety Class Preview Scheduled

A presentation preview of a shooting education program will be held Friday at the Pontiac Boys Club, 530 E. Pike, at 7 p.m.

Sponsored by the Pontiac Jaycees, the program is for boys and girls 7 to 14 years old. The course consists of 13 one hour classes of instruction with B-B guns being used.

Tim Reetz, 2508 Patrick Henry, is program chairman.

Changes Mark Archery Shoot

Two changes mark the American Indoor Archery Championship which will be held March 28-30 at Detroit's Cobo Hall.

The prize list has been increased from $15,000 to $20,000 for the 11th annual event. For the first time the tournament will be under the sponsorship of the American Archery Council.

The Friday through Sunday competition will be free to spectators with 6,000 seats available. Over 1,600 archers are expected to participate.

The tournament will follow the pattern of previous years.

Friday's shooting at 4 p.m. will be a junior olympic test, limited to youngsters in three age classes, cadet under 12; junior 12 to 15 and intermediate 15 to 18, and further subdivided into boys and girls classes.

PRO CLASSES

Saturday and Sunday the shooting will be confined to the open, or professional classes for men and women and the two amateur classes, free style (with a sighted bow) and instinctive (with no bow sight) and again subdivided by sex.

Champions will be determined in each of the six groups on a two day cumulative score based on the shooting of 60 arrows each day.

Team shooting will be held Saturday night.

Saturday's full schedule calls for two lines of archers to shoot, one starting at 9 a.m., the second at 1 p.m., with the beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday the first line of archers, those with lower scores, will begin at 8 a.m. with all championship flights starting at noon.

Yachting Group Meets

The spring meeting of the Inter-Lake Yachting Association will be Saturday in Detroit's Whittier Hotel. The business session will start at 3 p.m.

No Lull for Officers

Conservation Violators Active

The hunting seasons — except for crows — are over and there is a lull in fishing, but Conservation officers working out of the Pontiac Lake district office have been busy.

Grass fires have kept them hopping and illegal pike spearing is on the upswing. Shooting rabbits at night and complaints of goose hunting out of season have been checked.

Musk rats, free of the ice that locked them in lakes and marshes, are on the prowl and causing headaches. So are raccoons which hibernate during the cold spells.

In addition, applications for lake dredge or fill permits must be checked and an eye kept on lakes where trout fishing is now open year-around.

FIRE VIOLATIONS

Officers have obtained several warrants for negligent burning in containers and starting open fires without permits. In all instances grass fires result. Wildfires burned over 1,986 acres Sunday in the Thumb and Southeastern Michigan.

Two men were apprehended jacking rabbits in Macomb County. They had two bunnies in the car when arrested by a sheriff's deputy.

"Illegal spearing appears to have increased this spring," said District Law Supervisor George Bruso. "And the biggest offenders are children."

Pike, now making spawning runs up streams and into marshes from lakes, are the targets of spearmen, he said. A couple of convictions were obtained last week.

"There certainly is no shortage of muskrats," said Bruso. "They are all over the place . . . on the highways, chewing holes in lawns and being general nuisances."

Complaints of raccoons in attics, a common spring occurrence, keep the state men busy. Expected any day is a complaint about a skunk under a porch.

OU Art Films Upset Huber

LANSDING (UPI) — A recent film festival at Oakland University was described on the floor of the Michigan Senate yesterday as more smut than art.

Republican Sen. Robert J. Huber of Troy, chairman of a special legislative committee investigating disruptive student influences, questioned the right of the state-supported school to stage the festival.

"If ever there was an exhibition of moral decay, it was what went on under the guise of a film festival at Oakland University," Huber said.

The senator said taxpayers "do their thing" by contributing hard-earned dollars to the support of state colleges and universities and the institutions have a responsibility to see that the money is well spent.

"There's a difference between art and smut, William Shakespeare and Andy Warhol," Huber said.

The festival was held last Thursday at Oakland, a branch of Michigan State University. Huber was particularly upset with feature-length offers called "Chafed Elbows" and "The Bed."

Assessment Formula Will Be Discussed

State assessment and equalization requirements as they apply to local taxing units will be discussed with state legislators at noon Saturday at the Stephenson Club in Madison Heights, I-75 and 10 Mile Road.

The meeting has been called by James A. Gibson, mayor of Royal Park, and E. Lincoln Hudson, mayor pro tem of Madison Heights. All public officials in Oakland County have been invited.

"We are certain that citizens you represent have expressed their great concern about spiraling assessments on their homes. As representatives of homeowners, we believe we have an obligation to bring to the attention of our state legislators the full magnitude of this problem," the invitation reads.

"We feel that a solution to preexisting assessment problems can be found through mutual cooperation and united effort by public officials at the local level," Gibson and Hudson said.

4-Day Search Ends; Child's Body in River

NEW YORK (UPI) — For four days, squads of policemen, many of them fathers of small children, scoured the lower east side looking for a little 3-year-old girl.

Using bullhorns, squad cars cruised through the seamy neighborhood broadcasting descriptions in English and Spanish of blonde-haired Roxanne Felumero, missing since Friday night.

Yesterday the search ended. Police found the body of the child, the pockets of her slacks weighted with chunks of cement, in the East River at the foot of 11th Street.

Police arrested the youngster's stepfather George Potlis, 40, and charged him with homicide. Roxanne's mother, Marie, 28, was held as a material witness.

Authorities said Potlis, after interrogation, had led them to the place where Roxanne's body was recovered by Scuba divers from 20 feet of water about 30 feet offshore.

The child had been severely beaten, detectives said, but the exact cause of death would be determined by a medical examiner.

Skyjacking Suspect May Be Tried June 3

A West Bloomfield Township man charged with attempted air piracy will go on trial in Miami, Fla., June 3 if he is declared sane.

A hearing to determine the mental condition of Kenneth McPeck, 31, of 5515 Middle Belt probably will not be held until just prior to the trial, Assistant U.S. Attorney Neal Sonnett said in Miami yesterday.

Sonnett, who has been assigned to prosecute the case, said that McPeck has undergone a psychiatric test but the results of the evaluation have not been reviewed in open court.

U.S. District Judge Charles B. Fulton, ordered that the test be conducted last month.

CONTENTS NOT DISCLOSED

The contents of the psychiatric report were not disclosed by Sonnett. He did indicate, however, that McPeck appears capable of assisting his defense counsel at trial. Judge Fulton would have to make the final determination, however.

McPeck has been held in the Dade County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond since his arrest at the Miami International Airport Jan. 13.

He allegedly tried to divert a Detroit-to-Miami flight to Havana by threatening a stewardess with a shotgun.

For Full Medicare

Sign-Up Ends Monday

Pontiac area residents 65 years old and over who do not have full coverage under Medicare have until Monday to sign up, according to Eino J. Heino, Social Security district manager of Pontiac.

The law provides definite enrollment periods for the second part of the Medicare program, which helps to pay doctor bills and other medical costs. Heino said, "For anyone age 68 or older, he added, this is the last chance to sign up for medical protection."

In 1968, 96 per cent of the nation's elderly were enrolled in both parts of the Medicare program and $1.5 billion worth of doctors bills were paid for these people. The total number of people with Medicare protection is constantly increasing, Heino said, as more and more people reach age 65.

"We have been trying to contact as many of the people entitled to sign up now as we could, but for many we don't have current addresses," he said.

The Social Security office is at 21 S. Glenwood. It is open to Amend Plea of Improper Taxing

Extension Given

George Williams of 2556 Red Arrow, Commerce Township, chairman of the Oakland County Homeowners and Taxpayers Association, has been given 15 days in which to amend his plea against improper taxing.

Williams filed an affidavit last month in Walled Lake District Court charging the Oakland County and Commerce Township treasurers with an improper collection of taxes.

He contends that nonvoted taxes levied and collected over the 15-month limit were illegal. Judge Martin Boyle has given Williams extended time in which to make corrections pointed out in a response filed by Oakland County Corporation Counsel Robert Allen.

People in the News

By The Associated Press
The Rev. Ian Paisley, moderator of the Free Presbyterian church, has lost an appeal against six months in jail for his part in civil rights clashes with Roman Catholics last autumn in Northern Ireland.

Locked up with him yesterday was his top aide, Maj. Ronald Bunting, after rejection of their bid to void their convictions on charges of unlawful assembly.

The disorders arose from claims by Northern Ireland's Catholic minority that they are victims of discrimination in jobs, housing and voting regulations.

Comic Mason Sues CBS for $20 Million
Comedian Jackie Mason, accusing the Columbia Broadcasting System of censoring a skit he taped as part of the Smothers Brothers show, has filed suit for $20-million damages.

Mason alleged in a court petition filed yesterday in New York that cuts reduced his time on the show from 15 minutes to eight and that his performance was "mutilated and rendered meaningless."

Televising of the show was postponed from a date earlier in the month and rescheduled for next Sunday.

Kostelanetz, Wife File Notice of Separation
Andre Kostelanetz, the conductor, and his wife, Sara, have filed court notice in New York of their separation after eight years of marriage.

Kostelanetz and singer Lily Pons, who were married 20 years, were divorced in 1958.

Actress, Husband Agree on Temporary Support
Actress Gia Scala and her husband, Donald Burnett, separated after 10 years of marriage, have made a court agreement in Los Angeles under which he will pay her $800 a month pending trial of her divorce action.

Under the arrangement formalized yesterday, Miss Scala will have sole use of their Hollywood home.

City Council Honors Red Skelton
Comedian Red Skelton was given a tribute yesterday by the Los Angeles City Council.

A resolution adopted unanimously noted Skelton recited America's pledge of allegiance on his television show last Jan. 14 "with dignity, humility and simplicity."

No Solid Leads in City Deaths

Police Sift Clues in Killing of 2

Pontiac police have been checking information from upstairs but said they haven't come up with any solid leads in the Friday night killings of a father and son.

Andrew McCaskill, 66, and a son, Aubrey, 17, were found shot to death with a .38-caliber revolver in the father's southside apartment at 47 Orton.

"We're still working on it," commented Detective Lt. John Dry-cleaned, had made a delivery to a customer about half an hour before he was killed, according to DePauw. No money was found in his wallet. His son had about $7

DePauw said detectives haven't found anyone who saw the murderer run from the apartment after the killings although persons in the building heard someone run past a window and the squeal of tires and a car racing off.

Detectives theorize that the father had come home shortly before he was shot three times.

McCaskill, a self-employed pickup man for clothes to be commented Detective Lt. John Dry-cleaned, had made a delivery to a customer about half an hour before he was killed, according to DePauw. No money was found in his wallet. His son had about $7 in his, DePauw said. No other money was found in the apartment.

Detectives have questioned members of the family, including McCaskill's other son, Freddie, who lived with his father and reportedly was baby sitting that night.

Aubrey, a drop out from Oakland Community College, was living with his mother in Detroit, police said.

Fruited Gelatin Is Easy No-Cook Dessert

So you thought a gelatin dessert was strictly "usual"? Of course, gelatin in different fruit flavors does make a marvelous plain dessert that's welcome anytime. But it can also go glamorous, put on elegant company manners. All it needs is a new serving design and a few dress-up additions.

One way to bring gelatin onto the entertaining scene is in a mold that's attractive enough to embellish the most formal table setting. The "Three Fruit and Lime Dessert" is a beautiful realization of that idea.

Use the pastel lime flavor gelatin. Dissolve in boiling water. Then, before chilling, stir in fruit syrups from canned pear halves and apricots, and pour over layers of those same canned fruits and sliced bananas.

To point up their personality of this fruit-filled mold, garnish for the extra special occasion with ginger-flavored prepared whipped topping.

THREE FRUIT AND LIME DESSERT

1 can (16 oz.) apricot halves
1 can (16 oz.) pear halves
2 package (3 oz. each) or 1 package (6 oz.) lime flavor gelatin
2 cups boiling water
2 bananas, sliced
Ginger Whipped Topping
Drain canned fruits, measuring 1½ cups of the combined syrups. Set aside. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in measured fruit syrup. Arrange a layer of apricot halves, then one of pear halves in a 9½-inch loaf pan. Top with sliced bananas. Pour gelatin over fruits. Chill until firm—at least 3 hours. Unmold. Garnish with dollops of Ginger Whipped Topping and maraschino cherries, if desired. Serve with remaining whipped topping. Makes about 8 cups or 12 to 16 servings.

Ginger Whipped Topping. Prepare 1 envelope whipped topping mix as directed on package, adding ½ teaspoon ground ginger before whipping.

Egg Yolks Can Be Used in Many Interesting Recipes

When you see a recipe you'd like to try that calls for six egg whites, do you ever pass it up because you don't know what to do with the yolks?

Believe it or not, there are well over 100 recipe uses for egg yolks! You can use them in a variety of soups, in salads, salad dressings, cakes, cookies and baked and soft custards.

Suppose you have just baked a white cake using six egg whites. If you are in a dessert-making mood, you can use the six yolks immediately for a sponge cake, cream pie, Creme Brulee or filling for cream puffs.

If you want to postpone making one of these desserts, you can store the yolks in a covered container in the refrigerator for a week to 10 days. Of course, you don't have to use all six yolks at once, nor must you stick to desserts.

With four egg yolks you can make a Hollandaise sauce, baked mashed potato puff or sauce Bearnaise.

With three egg yolks you can make a cream curdy-apple soup, chicken mousse or Lobster Newburg.

With two egg yolks you can make a chicken fricassee, baked custard or mayonnaise.

You can also hard-cook the six yolks and store them in a covered container in the refrigerator for four or five days. Crumbled or rice hard-cooked eggs can be used as a garnish for salads and vegetables, as a condiment for curry or as a recipe ingredient for egg drops for soup.

CREAM FILLING FOR CREAM PUFFS
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup cold milk
1½ cups milk, scalded
6 egg yolks, beaten
1½ tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Mix flour, cornstarch and sugar; add cold milk and blend thoroughly. Stirring constantly, pour mixture into scalded milk set in double boiler over low heat.

Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cover and cook over low heat 15 minutes longer. Stir two or three times.

Blend the hot mixture into egg yolks. Return to low heat and cook, stirring constantly, for 2 or 3 minutes, to cook the egg yolks. Remove from heat, add butter, salt and vanilla and stir until blended. Cool. Makes three cups.

VARIATIONS:
Chocolate: 1½ to 2 squares baking chocolate added to scalded milk. Increase sugar to ½ cup.

Butterscotch: Substitute brown sugar for granulated sugar.

Cake filling: Increase flour to 3 tablespoons.

GOLDEN NUGGET CAKE FILLING
6 egg yolks, beaten until thick
1 cup sugar
1 cup butter
1 cup golden raisins
1 cup coconut
1 cup chopped walnuts

Combine egg yolks, sugar, butter and raisins. Cook slowly in 2-quart saucepan until thick, about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add coconut and walnuts and blend together. Cool slightly.

Cut angel food cake into 3 layers. Spread one cup filling on each of the two layers and top of the cake. (Makes 3 cups filling.)

The next time you are scrambling eggs, fold in some cottage cheese. It not only stretches them, but also adds a delicious flavor. Garnish with parsley and about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add

A Look at TV

Writing Limitations Hit

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK—Henry Denker, a veteran radio and television writer, has in recent years become a dropout.

It was the strict limitations surrounding series writing that sent him to motion pictures and the stage.

"It is most unsatisfying to write about characters who can never die, can never really be hurt, and to work things out so that everything will be smooth and happy at the end of 30 minutes or an hour," he said.

"There can be no realism in television series. And there can be no surprises. That audience doesn't like surprises, so you can never really vary the routine although you must pretend to be different."

CASUAL TEST

This viewer put the Denker premise to a casual test Tuesday night.

First there was "Mod Squad" on ABC. This was an episode that had Sammy Davis Jr. playing a militant Catholic priest, who has been suspended by his bishop because of his involvement in civil affairs. Somebody has threatened the priest's life, and the police presume it was related to his slum activities. But it wasn't—the brother of a murderer who thought the priest would testify in court about words spoken in a religious confession.

Along the way, one of those three attractive youngsters who are undercover cops was knocked out. But we knew he wasn't hurt. And he was one of the continuing leads and he was to be up and around next week.

Then came "I, Take a Thief," which had supercock Al Mundy assigned by the secret federal agency to crack a tough case that contains a little black book which lists the names of the nation's top gangsters and evidence of their crimes. And, by golly, he got the book in plenty of time for the final commercial and they told us all the crooks were on their way to jail.

BARREL OF FUN

After that came "The Doris Day Show," a barrel of fun because Doris was baby-sitting for the four children of absent friends. It was really a surprise when those little monsters did everything from throwing a bag of marbles into the dishwasher to pouring a bottle of shoe black into the baby's bubble bath. And into the baby's bubble bath.

And you should have seen Doris with her face all blacked up and she should have heard that laugh track.

If one thoroughly unscientific survey is any indication, the Denker premise is pretty valid. Denker, who has five Broadway plays including "A Case of Lil-bel"—a number of films and several books to his credit, has been attracted to television again, but only for a one-shot original drama, "The Choice," to be broadcast next Sunday in NBC's "On Stage" series.

It is the story of a surgeon and two patients who can live only if heart transplant operations are performed. The surgeon has only one heart available.

"It is now a fact of life," said Denker, "and there are about 100,000 patients for about 150 hearts. The operation itself touches all sorts of areas of morality and conscience."

"Television, thank goodness, has again opened its doors to original drama and the writers have a chance to do some fresh thinking. That's all to the good."

CBS has a report of a contemporary commercial fishing expedition on its news hour. But even if the film was all dressed up with Herman Melville's words in "Moby Dick" and full of philosophical musings by the fishermen, the scenes of men catching and clubbing sea creatures and birds were painful experience for some viewers.

Marlo Bypassed by Adults but She's Mobbed by Kids

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Marlo Thomas, who once wanted to be a school teacher—that was before teachers needed bullet-proof vests—sat with me at the front table at Dinty Moore's saying, "Nobody recognizes me . . ."

Danny's daughter didn't mind.

"My bangs have grown out, that's it," Marlo explained. She's here filming her first movie, "And Jenny Makes Three," about a girl from Connecticut who comes here to have her baby out of wedlock.

People were staring saying "Is that Nancy Sinatra?" There is a faint likeness.

We talked about Danny. "He's a very fine Method actor—he does everything from within, from experience, I've been trying to get him to come to N.Y. to do a play. We have a pact, he won't tell me what to do, I won't tell him. I keep breaking it."

And teachers. She felt maybe "they had in some ways failed to communicate." The students "felt nobody was listening to them." Anyway, the older sedate customers didn't know who she was.

Marlo went out to look for her chauffeur. A crowd of younger people with cameras and autograph books at a theater next door recognized her and literally chased her back into the restaurant for they all spotted the star of "That Girl" if the oldest didn't. Her anonymity was ended.

THE MIDNIGHT EARLY . . .

Mia Farrow held up shooting on "John and Mary" when she visited with the kids at the Adams School on E. 31st St., near the filming site. (She arrived, cool as a cucumber at the celebration of Sidney Blackmer's 55th year as an actor)

Jan Carter, who was badly shaken up in a car crash, earned her being sued by the N.I. town where the accident occurred, for knocking down a telephone pole.

A man was refused admission to the Colony because he wasn't wearing a tie; he knotted a handkerchief around his collar and was admitted. . . . Highpriced vocal group at Pat Henningway's: Joan Collins, Lana Cantrell, opera star Martina Arroya, all singing to the juke box records.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Joan Rivers claims we're becoming more civilized: "Once witches were burned at the stake. Nowadays they're just paid alimony."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Socialite Laura Johnson said she kept having dates with a famous man: "He was so much in love with himself there was no room in his life for anybody else."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A period is a mark you put after a true statement. After a lie, put an exclamation point."

EARL'S PEARLS: "No debt ever comes due at a good time, but borrowing's handy all the time."—Will Rogers.

Flip Wilson, who was one of 19 children, says, "There were so many kids that it wasn't till recently my folks discovered three of the boys had the same first name." . . . That's earl.

Small Fire Departments in State Getting Free U.S. Equipment

LANSING (AP)—Free federal surplus fire fighting equipment is being offered to Michigan's small departments this year for the first time.

The small fire departments already are lining up to make application through the State Natural Resources Department. Nearly 100 requests have been received to date.

The first department to cash in on the bonanza was Green Oak Township, Livingston County.

The township has received a four wheel drive pumper truck that originally cost $27,000.

10 AIRPLANES

Such surplus federal equipment previously was released only to the state.

Robert Compeau, state forest fire supervisor, estimates the forest fire division of the Department of Natural Resources has received up to $10 million in equipment. This has included at least 10 airplanes.

"Now, under a new cooperative program with the U.S. forest service, the equipment can be issued free to local departments that agree to cooperate with us in fighting brush, forest and other outdoor fires," Compeau said.

Applications from the local departments are processed by the state agency and sent to the Chicago regional office of the U.S. General Services Administration and the Upper Darby, Pa., office of the U.S. Forest Service.

Vehicles make up the bulk of the surplus equipment. General plants to furnish lighting for night fires also are available.

"Most of the communities are asking for large tanker units to use as refills for their own equipment," said Compeau.

"They also want four-wheel-drive equipment that can be used off the highways. There are some Jeeps available too and vehicles that can be used as ambulances."

The local departments are allowed to add accessories and then remove them when they turn back the vehicles.

The recent rash of outdoor fires in southern Michigan emphasized the need for more equipment. The Department of Natural Resources moved in men and vehicles from the northern Lower Peninsula and the Upper Peninsula to beef up the local forces last week.

Home-Sports Show to Open

The 15th annual Oakland County Home and Sports Show, which opens tomorrow, is a product of high hopes on the part of its sponsoring Waterford Township Jaycees.

Optimism is reflected by the addition of a fourth day at the Waterford Township CAI Building, 5640 Williams Lake, and by plans to give 40 prizes to persons attending.

Last year's show ran three days.

Tom Ritter, general chairman, said a better balance between sports and home items will be featured this year.

"We have more mobile homes and camp trailers and more outside exhibits than before," he announced.

A pair of Detroit sports figures will also be featured.

Detroit Lion football star Alex Karras will appear from 6 to 9 p.m. tomorrow and former major league umpire and present-day after-dinner speaker

Red Jones is scheduled from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Show hours are 6 to 11 p.m. tomorrow and Friday, noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and noon to 9 p.m. Sunday.

About 40 booths are expected to show the wares of their sponsors.

Aside from the major door prize — a Harley - Davidson Sports cycle — gifts will go to the public from a treasure chest which persons, handed keys at the door, may try to open.

Treasure chest prizes include athletic items, free dinners and airplane rides.

Proceeds go to finance Jaycee public service programs.

FLOOR PLAN—Gene Waddell (left), director of the Waterford Township Community Activities Inc. (CAI) Building, and Wayne Barnhart, booth chairman for the Oakland County Home and Sports Show, measure out space for one of 40 booths which will go into operation with the show's opening at the CAI Building tomorrow. The show runs through Sunday.

Remodeling Cost Cut

Studio Room Regains Favor

The newest look under the sun may be hiding beneath the eaves of the house where you live. For not since the heyday of the Paris salon has the studio room been more fashionable, and its components — a sloping roofline, a skimming skylight, furnishings fresh and gay — are handily at hand up Main Street and down.

Pleasant plus: when attics take on a studio look, costs simmer down nicely. No need to raise the roof with shed dormers. Slanting walls stay where they are, rafters are turned to decorative advantage and the view faces the sky.

VERSATILE

Happily, skylighting a room at the top of any house is a down-to-earth idea nowadays, for Acrylite skydomes, weather-tight, break-resistant and feather-light, can be neatly set into the slanting rooflines of Cape Cods, Colonials and even Victorian vintage architecture. As small as fourteen inches or as large as eight feet, they come in an imaginative array of shapes — rectangular or square, round or triangular, crystal clear or clouded.

Skimming over old-fashioned fear of breakage, Acrylite skydomes are strong enough for a man to walk on, light enough for him to lift singlehandedly.

They arrive from the factory double domed for insulation, and already framed and flashed to keep all dry, come rain or come storm.

Installation's a simple matter snipping a hole in the roof and inserting a one-piece shimmer of sky-view.

When it's airy overhead, what's needed is a dashing decor, the nature and nuance dependant upon who's on top. Handsome home offices, elegant master bedrooms, libraries, television rooms, sitting rooms and playrooms are such bright possibilities that suddenly the whole family wants to get into the attic. For the planner, a studio theme solves all manner of decorative dilemmas.

Rafters suddenly seem desirable, broadened a bit to become "beams" or painted to form a whimsical overhead plaid. Walls and ceilings which slide into each other suggest an all-in-one swirl of flowered mustard or barn red in the best early American tradition.

DIVIDERS

A free-standing chimney becomes the best of all possible room dividers when ringed with cushioned seats like a tree in the park or warmed with a plug-in prefabricated hearth.

Seats and beds slide neatly neath ceilings on a slant, bookshelves run the gable gamut brilliantly and drawers by the dozen are easy to add if pre-molded plastic trays are topped with an all-purpose plastic laminated counter.

If the studio theme makes one dictate, it's a gay one. Furnish for love alone — with a brass bound trunk that's been to Bombay, canvas backed director chairs in hot pink and orange, willowy baskets by the bevy, sketches, prints, madras, batik.

Mixer Faucet a Big Help

Turn on the hot water — now turn on the cold — Ouch, give it more cold — not that much, turn up the hot a bit more — there, that's just . . . no, it's still a little too cold — turn up the hot a fraction — and presto, it's just right.

Some lavatories require the dexterity of an astronaut simply to get some water the way you want it. Often equipped with old fashioned separate faucets for hot and cold water, out-dated fixtures make washing-up a real chore.

Today's modern lavatory features the "mixer" type fitting, that is, a single faucet combining hot and cold water flow.

Many lavatories today use single control faucets. Combining on-off and hot-cold functions into a single lever or dial, these faucets immediately provide the right amount of water at exactly the temperature desired.

ONE HAND

The one-hand control is easily and safely operated by any member of the family, children as well as adults. Chances of scalding are almost eliminated because the position of the handle indicates at which temperature the water will flow.

Since this modern faucet is easily controlled with just one hand, lost motions and "faucet fiddling" are eliminated, and fuel costs are cut, too.

In addition to being a safe and highly desirable convenience, the single lever faucet is smartly styled and designed to add a modern note to your bathroom.

Fit Your Home to Your Budget and Personality

It goes without saying that your home should fit your budget. But did you know that it should also suit your personality?

Architects and builders are giving more attention to the psychological aspects of the homes they design and build today because they have found this can markedly affect the health and well being of the occupants.

The use of natural materials such as ceramic tile and wood help to provide the stimulating atmosphere that is necessary in every home.

Ceramic tile is especially suited for this purpose because it comes in a variety of expressive colors and designs. It lessens housework, too, since it rarely has to be cleaned.

Other factors builders are taking into consideration for homes are privacy and surroundings. Everyone likes contact with other members of the family, but there are occasions when each of us needs to be alone.

Tree Killing Turf? Put in Planting

A big, old shade tree is a delight in any yard. But often lawn doesn't grow well near the trunk, where large roots make soil sparse.

A good solution calls for removing lawn in a three to six foot radius around the trunk, replacing grass with a hardy evergreen ground cover.

Around that, lay a border of crushed white rock or gravel contained by pressure-treated Douglas fir 2x4s or 4x4s, sunken so their top edge is at lawn level. A 4x4 on the lawn side makes a good mowing strip.

A seating bench can be added, too, set in the rock border. Use 4x4s for legs, 2x4s for the seat.

A Garden Gate Bids Welcome

A garden gate should be doorlike — an inviting entrance, not a barrier.

For an open appearance, good privacy, design yours of spaced slats nailed on both sides of the frame.

When water pressure builds up—POW!

Put the Damper on Wet Basements

Late winter thaws and early spring rains can combine to bring many homeowners to trouble in the form of damp basements.

Keeping your basement dry is more than a matter of comfort. Valuable living, storage and working space can be gained with a dry basement.

If you know the possible causes of a damp basement you will know what steps to take to cure the situation. Some of them you may be able to handle yourself; others may need professional help.

One of the most common causes of damp basements is improper drainage of the land around the house. Either the land is flat or it slopes toward the house—

WATER

Accumulated water from melting snow and from rain drains down against the basement walls. Even minor cracks in the walls that might not allow an ordinary amount of water in will not be able to resist the increased water pressure.

Ground around the house that is flat or slopes toward the building should be built up and graded so that a smooth, sharp slope will drain surface water away from the house.

Ideal is a slope that is extended for about 10 feet. Plant this with good lawn grass to prevent the dirt from washing away.

Sodding may be better than using seed since it will prevent the washing away of a newly seeded and newly graded area.

DITCH

If a large area of land slopes toward the house, intercept the surface drainage some distance from the house. A shallow, half-round drainage ditch or depression can route the water away from the house.

This can be sodded or seeded. If a ditch is not practical, use drain tile with catch basins in low spots.

A lack of gutters and downspouts or defective ones will cause water to accumulate around the foundation of a house.

Repairing or correcting the faulty gutters will alleviate the problem. Roof water may spill over the gutter if it is filled with dirt, leaves and twigs.

CARRY AWAY

Water coming out of a downspout must be discharged away from the house. Ideally the downspout is tied into an underground storm water drain. Lacking this have a concrete splash block to carry the water away.

Water enters through cracks and breaks in walls and floors and through capillary action when water pressure builds up.

Sometimes a basement floor is below the water table line or too close to it and only a sump pump will keep water out.

If keeping away roof water and surface drainage, water seems to help the problem then repair all cracks and apply a water-proof coating to the inside walls.

But if the problem is severe and simple measures do not help, then waterproofing must be applied to the outside of the basement wall which is the only sure way of waterproofing a basement.

WATERPROOF

This is done at construction time, but it may prove faulty. The excavation all around the foundation and the application of water-proofing is not a job for the average homeowner.

Drain tiles around the house should be checked at the same time this job is done.

But if your basement was properly constructed and is not faulty, elimination of excess water from outside will generally keep it from coming inside.

Shadow Idea for Wall Interest

If you want to add the interest of shadow patterns to walls, panel them with V-joint or bevel-joint boards.

For more distinct shadows, use boards and battens or channel-pattern boards.

Safety a Must for the Wise

Much emphasis is placed on beauty and convenience in today's modern bathroom, but no factor is more important than its safety. For safety's sake follow the points listed below:

• Every bathroom should have a grab bar placed strategically on the wall above the bathtub. To be sure that a grab bar is firmly secured, it should be attached to the wall studding, not merely to the tile or plaster.

• Never use plumbing or heating pipes as a ground for electric wires — such a practice is doubly dangerous. Not only does it expose the family to severe shocks when the piping is disconnected for repairs, but the current causes corrosion in the piping and connecting tanks.

• Electrical appliances should never be used near the tub where they may be touched or where they may actually fall into the water.

• Glass bottles and containers should not be placed on the bathtub. They are too easily knocked off and broken, and can seriously injure bathers.

• A modern medicine cabinet should be used for storage of medicine and toxics, out of the reach of children's prying hands. Some medicine cabinets even go a step further and provide an inner compartment opened only by key or a button hidden from view atop the chest.

A reputable plumbing contractor is qualified to provide all the requirements needed for a modern bathroom — one that will be safe as well as attractive and convenient.

Ceramic Tile: Your Answer to Hearth Cleaning

Is your fireplace everything your hearth desires? Or is it more nuisance than it's worth? —

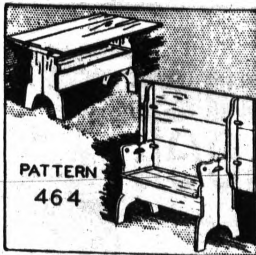

If the latter is the case, it may be due to a faulty flue. More likely it's because the fireplace is surfaced with a material that's easily soiled and hard to clean.

The solution is to resurface your fireplace with a durable material such as ceramic tile. Real tile is ideal for fireplaces because it cannot be burned or scratched.

It's easily cleaned, too. All that's necessary is an occasional quick wipe with a damp cloth.

Tile also will add a decorative touch to your fireplace. You can choose from more than 250 colors and shades, plus a variety of shapes, including square, rectangular and triangular, measuring from one inch to nearly a foot on each side.

There even are three-dimensional patterns for those looking for something different.

A HUTCH TABLE in Early American style is useful for either indoor or outdoor dining. The table top raises to make a bench. The storage seat or hutch is handy for linens. Pattern 464, which gives actual-size guides and directions for this table, is 50c. This pattern also is included in the Old-time Furnishings Packet No. 65 with three other full-size patterns for $1.50. The Pontiac Press Pattern Dept. P.O. Box 50, New Windsor, N.Y. 12550.

Superstitions? Leave Old Broom

Moving into a new house? Be sure to leave the old broom behind so you don't sweep bad luck along with you.

Paint the new front door red to scare away witches and demons, and don't forget to sprinkle the floors with sugar before moving in the first stick of furniture. Or are you above all that?

Spray Product Ideal Polish

A triple-duty cleaner-wax-polish that takes a shine to virtually every hard surface in the home with push-button ease is among the newest household cleaning aids available to the homemaker.

Called Kleen-N-Wax, it leaves a lustrous durable shine on wood, metal, enamel, leather, and plastic.

Real lemon oil, regarded by experts as a leading finish preservative, is a major ingredient in the spray product, along with solvent, and detergent cleaning agents, an improved silicone compound, and a protective wax.

LOOK UP—When shopping for a new home, cast a careful eye at the roof. It should enhance the beauty of the house and offer many years of service and protection.

This durable, low-maintenance roof of heavy-weight asphalt shingles is a visual highlight of an elegant home.

Check Roof

Get the Whole Picture

A new home — literally — puts a new roof over you head. Be sure it's a roof that will give you long wear, good service greater home beauty and low maintenance.

The roof is an important consideration when buying a home, because you depend on it for protection and comfort.

As the largest single expanse of the house exterior, the roof's color and design also can add to — or subtract from — the total house appearance.

Continual research in the manufacturing and building industries, and a sophisticated buying public that demands quality homes, have resulted in the use of improved building products in today's houses. Roofs are no exception.

For example, four out of five homes are now roofed with asphalt shingles. And the trend is toward stronger, more durable shingles, minimal maintenance, and the increased use of color.

CHECK LIST

As a prospective homeowner, interested in the initial investment, upkeep, and eventual resale value of a house, you should check the following roof items before buying:

- Durability — A heavier weight asphalt shingle roof, weighing 290 or more pounds per square (one square covers 100 square feet of roof area), will last longer than standard-weight shingles. These durable shingles are designed by the manufacturer for 20 to 25 years of service.

- Low-maintenance — An essential quality, since periodic roof maintenance can be both expensive and troublesome. Make sure the roof material is good quality and has been properly installed. If so, the roof should need practically no maintenance and should stay new-looking for many years.

- Appearance — Because of the wide choice of roof colors and new decorative methods of application, your roof can, and should, be a visual highlight of the house. For example, asphalt shingles now come in white, black, pastels, blends and "forest" and "earth" shades.

Decorative installations include: ribbon courses — in which extra thicknesses of shingles are used at equally-spaced intervals; and complementary color courses — in which contrasting or complementary colored shingles are used in alternating rows.

- Wind-resistance — Self-sealing shingles are a good investment, especially in high wind areas. These shingles have an adhesive strip that is activated by the sun's heat and bonds each shingle to the one below. Self-sealers carry an Underwriters' Laboratories' label certifying that the shingles will stay flat even in gale-force winds.

- Fire-resistance — Check for a UL fire-resistance label on roofing materials. It shows that the shingles have passed tests for resistance to flame spread, exposure, and flying fire brands.

Guest Room Fits in Wall

Any eight-foot-long wall can become an instant guest room. Here's how. In the corner at one end, build a ceiling-high closet two feet long and 18 inches wide. At the top, install a shelf for guests' hats and handbags. Under the shelf goes a pull-out clothes rod.

At the bottom of the closet, build another shelf for shoes and put an eight-inch-deep drawer under that. The closet unit will take care of most weekend needs.

CONVERTIBLE

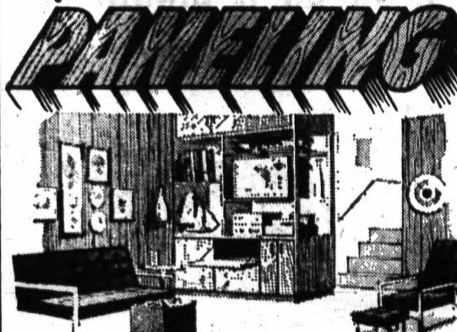

Next to the closet, a loveseat or sofa of the type that converts to a bed will provide sleeping space.

To dress up the instant guest room, build the closet and its doors of tongue-and-groove hemlock or pine boards, finishing the wood clear.

Repeat the boards for accent paneling on the wall behind the bed-sofa.

For a longer wall, build another closet matching the first and design its interior for family storage needs. Center the sofa between closets.

Comeback Staged for the 'Great' Bed

High, wide and handsome is the way Americans like their beds these days, it seems. Sizes are named for king and queen, and styling and decoration are increasingly regal too.

Canopies, four-posters, testers, valances, bonnets and heroic headboards are appearing in increasing numbers in new furniture collections, and handymen and handywives are fixing more and more beds for a luxurious look.

The decorated bed, of course, was originally meant to keep the sleeper from wintry blasts in unheated castles and mansions. The word "tester" comes from the Latin for "shell" and that was exactly what was needed for comfort.

Then, of course, it was done by enclosing the bed with heavy draperies, but now all that remains as an elegant reminder of those less comfortable days is the canopy across the top, the undrawn drapery at each corner, or just the posts themselves.

FEW TRICKS

Even without buying a new bed, the new look can be achieved with a few tricks. For instance, a skeleton frame can easily be constructed from two-by-fours, covered in fabric or adhesive decorative paper. Or a simple frame suspended from the ceiling over the bed can be used for hanging ready-made draperies from each corner. An even fresher idea is to hang long strands of unbreakable Bedangles in sparkling colors to give the illusion of a four-poster.

If you attach the frame to the ceiling and put a valance all the way around it, you can fool the eye into seeing it as a ceiling-high tester even though there are no posts.

Using just the wall behind the bed is another way to create an illusion of the traditional curtained look without enclosing the bed. Fabric or paper set in a molding or trimming frame can be run up the wall from bed to ceiling and extended into a short canopy or valance for an elegant and important effect.

In a dormer room the fabric can be continued across the sloping ceiling for an "instant" canopy effect.

If you do plan to buy a new bed, look for English styling, naturally enough, in many testers and four-posters.

No matter that homes may be small ones and bedrooms not much larger than the bed. By acknowledging the dominance of the bed — and beds of any kind cannot help being dominant pieces of furniture — a liability can be turned into an asset much more effectively than by trying to disguise it.

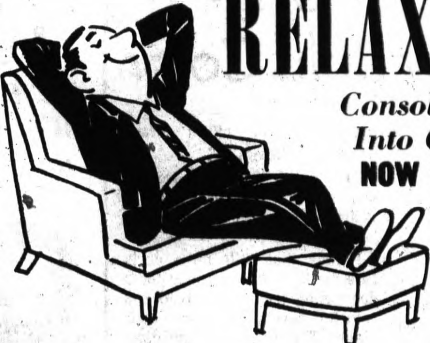

Weathered Fence Highlights Garden

Want to do something nice for your garden? Highlight planting beds with a backdrop of weathered fencing. Rough, silvered wood has a beauty all its own, but it's also one of the finest complements possible for plant materials.

Though new fencing will appear raw, it begins acquiring its silver sheen in just a season. Homeowners can hasten the process by finishing the wood with bleaching oil or a clear water repellent.

In sunny yards, the fence will weather more rapidly if sprayed regularly with the garden hose.

For a shaded yard and homeowners too impatient to wait for nature, new fencing can be finished with a single coat of exterior-grade, semi-transparent stain in a driftwood shade. The transition between stained finish and weathering will be barely perceptible.

Floor Covering Mood Setter

Few decorators agree on what pattern is or how, where and when to use it. To some it means repetition of a design motif; to others it's what happens if all the design elements are in harmony.

This makes it hard for the amateur decorator, especially when she is choosing a floor covering. A mistake here can ruin an otherwise tastefully decorated room.

To clarify this matter of pattern in floor coverings, you think of it as a background factor rather than an accent or eyecatcher.

The right floor covering acts as a mood setter — it can give the effect of gaiety, warmth, coolness, relaxation or almost any mood you wish. One of the easiest coverings to work with in establishing a special mood is vinyl asbestos tile.

It is made in many styles and many colors, giving you an almost unlimited choice.

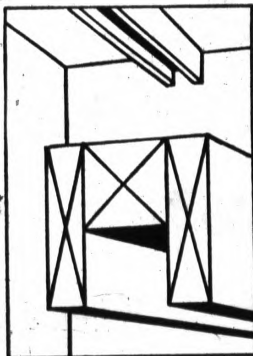

PATTERN

Pattern encompasses texture, too, and this floor tile is made in embossed designs as well as the traditional smooth-surface tile.

A properly designed floor covering can be used to overcome faults in a room, such as bad lighting, lack of architectural detail or awkward proportions.

Vinyl asbestos tile is especially suited for these problem areas because it can be used to create any pattern, with just colors or with feature strips and insets.

One more word about pattern. Besides acting as a background anywhere in the room, it can also be used as an accent, or to focus attention on a special spot or object, or as a catalyst to draw many objects together.

BEAMS — Ceiling beams may be false but won't look phony if built of lumber. Nail a 1x4 to either side of a 2x2, screw the beam into ceiling joists through the 2x2. Lumber sizes can be varied to suit room's proportions. Appearance differs with choice of rough or smooth lumber, paint or stain finish.

Vinyl Flooring Burst With New Bold Color

Vinyl flooring — the modern successor to linoleum — has earned a reputation for style and elegance, and rightfully so. All one has to do is compare today's sophisticated floor fashions with those on the market 20 years ago.

Back in the post World War II era, speckled designs and muted colors heavily dominated the resilient floor scene.

It was a period of economy and restraint in decorating, exemplified by boxy houses, monotonous walls and dwarfish furniture.

The advent of modern plastic flooring in the early '50's, however, produced a new wave of visual excitement underfoot.

Colors burst, patterned designs blossomed, and floors moved out of the utilitarian status to become a decorative asset in their own right.

VINYL FLOOR

Today, vinyl floor stylings are right in step with the bright new trend in fashions and home furnishings.

Colors are bold and imaginative. Designs are larger and more sophisticated, with texture playing an important role in the visual spectrum.

For example, once-tiny chip designs have become large stone-like elements, raised and grained in multicolor, giving the floor's surface an elegant, textured look. Flat floors have given way to those with visual depth.

Large-scale designs, contrasted with smaller patterns, give the homeowner more diversity in decorating.

More interior furnishings — especially those in the popular contemporary and country styles — blend exceptionally well with bold floor designs.

IMAGINATIVE

Women today are increasingly imaginative in their approach to decorating, according to the Bureau of Interior Design of the Armstrong Cork Company.

Women are favoring many of the high-style renderings of classic tile effects which graced villas in old Spain and Italy.

One of the newest sheet vinyl floors in this motif features a random arrangement of irregularly-shaped, ceramic-like tiles imbedded in a contrasting mortar. Each "tile" achieves a translucent appearance which seems to glow from within the floor, called Cumberland Coronnelle.

For tastes that favor contemporary styling, there is a new design effect called Pierelle featuring an interesting soft swirl design that breaks away from simulations of natural materials and offers broad decorating flexibility.

The subtle surface texture and swirling design create a feeling of softness and underfoot luxury.

Homes that still have early 1950 resilient floors are in for a decorating treat when bold and colorful new vinyls take their place. The exciting sophistication of the sixties as it affects interior decor from the floor up makes the restrained styles of mid-century seem like they were a long time ago!

STORAGE IDEA—Family room designed by Payne & Settecase, Architects, gains charm with walls of dark-stained rough cedar paneling, sisal carpet and a pot-bellied ceramic stove on brick hearth. Storage wall, left, opens on both sides; doors of panel boards have concealed hinges, touch latches.

Adaptability Stressed

Family Room Still a Favorite

They said, a few years ago, that the family room was on its way out. But here it is still, as important as ever.

There's no denying, however, that the general attitude toward a family room has changed. Instead of the one-room cabin approach favored a decade ago, the modern idea is to make this changeable space.

While there are preschool children in the family, it will be their playroom. For the next few years, it serves a study hall, game room and general gathering place for the family. Then, as children reach their teens and want the privacy of their own quarters, the adults inherit the family room for work and hobby space.

Decorating that provides both low upkeep and inviting character is one key to making this room grow up with the family.

WOOD, THE ANSWER

Luckily, the decorating part comes easy, at least for those inventive enough to break with ordinary materials. Wall coverings are a good example. Instead of washable paint or paper—which has to be washed—it's far more sensible simply to use something that hides fingerprints and other smudges. That something is wood.

Most popular today is resawn board paneling—actually the same stuff used for exterior house siding. Indoors, it supplies rich texture as well as superb smudge-hiding qualities, and either clear grade or knotty boards can be used.

Cedar is the favorite wood, but when a medium-to-dark stain finish is to be used, the general appearance will be the same using resawn fir, hemlock or pine boards. These woods may be more readily available than cedar in some parts of the country.

Low-upkeep flooring is needed in the family room, too, and carpeting should be considered since most women find it easier to vacuum than to mop. Carpet's sound-absorbing qualities are another important feature.

FIREPLACE

Of course, there should be a fireplace—perhaps a freestanding model. They come in many styles and colors, in either ceramic or metal, are reasonably priced, and can be added to an existing room. Set one on a brick hearth with a brick wall behind and the effect is stunning.

Another necessity is built-in storage, tailored to the family's specific needs. At one house, storage and traffic problems were solved with a wall of closets built between family room and a rear hallway.

On the hall side, near garage and back entries, the wall contains coat closets and cupboards for school books, toys, and sports equipment. On the family room side, the wall opens to reveal a shelved section for entertaining needs.

Both sides of the storage wall are paneled with resawn cedar boards. Closet doors made of the same material were installed with touch latches and concealed hinges.

Humidity Plays Part in Physical Comfort

How often have you heard that, and said it yourself? It's true to some extent. High summertime humidity, between 70 per cent and 80 per cent, is the villain that makes high temperatures more uncomfortable.

But, during the winter, indoor artificial heat becomes the villain — making the relative humidity drop to very low levels in your home.

What is relative humidity? It's the amount of moisture actually present in the air, compared to the maximum amount of moisture the air is capable of holding at a given temperature.

A relative humidity of 50 per cent means that the air around you is only half-saturated — and could hold twice as much moisture.

But why is it so dry in your home during the heating season, even though outdoor relative humidity is often high? Because as air is heated, its capacity to hold moisture rises rapidly. 70 degree air can hold 22 times as much moisture as 0 degree air.

MOISTURE

So, as the temperature rises, the amount of moisture in the air when it comes in from the cold outdoors becomes a smaller and smaller percentage of what the air can hold.

Result? Lower and lower relative humidity. In fact, the average American home gets down to about 13 per cent relative humidity during the heating season. To show you how dry that is — Death Valley relative humidity averages around 23 per cent! A human being is most comfortable at 35 per cent.

This phenomenon occurs in every heated home, including those with hot water, steam, or electric heating systems.

Contrary to popular belief, hot water or steam heating systems don't add moisture to the air — all of the water is sealed in pipes!

Dry air problems arise because the heated air is "thirsty" and absorbs moisture, like a sponge, wherever possible. From wood, from plaster, from fabrics, leather, carpeting, paper... even from humans. The result? Furniture and wood trim are dry, glue in furniture joints dries and stops holding, plaster develops cracks, even the inner construction of your home can dry and warp.

HUMIDIFIED AIR

Properly humidified air can help to repel upper respiratory ailments aggravated by too dry air. In many cases, where excessive dryness has been diagnosed as the cause of these aggravations, doctors have prescribed humidification. Ask your doctor for his recommendations.

Annoying static electricity is increasingly present. And as the warm dry air evaporates moisture from the skin, it cools it... requiring higher indoor temperatures — more fuel consumption — for comfort.

The way to beat the heat is with humidification. Boiling the teakettle overtime won't humidify a home properly. Neither will the old plate type humidifiers they began attaching to furnaces back in the 30's. In fact, many home humidifiers on the market today have serious disadvantages.

They may lack the capacity to provide enough humidity... they may lack proper control over the amount produced... or they may suffer from recurring maintenance problems because of the everpresent mineral deposits that accompany water evaporation.

Control is vital. Too much humidity is as damaging as too little. It can cause condensation of water vapor on windows, and even inside walls.

CAPACITY

Capacity is vital. A humidifier must be able to evaporate enough moisture to maintain the correct relative humidity.

And trouble-free performance is vital. Frequent breakdowns and clog-ups put you back in the parched atmosphere that you started with. Maintenance can be annoying and expensive.

The answer is to select a humidifier that has all three: Control, capacity, trouble-free performance.

Control: Be sure the humidifier is equipped with a humidistat so you can read and dial relative humidity right in your living area. Capacity: Check both the evaporative capacity and the cubic footage it will handle. Make sure the capacity is based on a temperature at which your furnace actually operates. A plenum temperature of 120 degrees is typical.

Capacity ratings based on much higher temperatures are meaningless. Trouble-free performance: Be sure that the humidifier is designed to minimize the build-up of mineral deposits (liming) on working parts.

AUTOMATIC

Until very recently, only families with forced air heating systems could enjoy these benefits in automatic humidification. Homes with nonducted systems required bulky portable humidifiers that often couldn't do a whole-house job.

But in the last two years automatic humidifiers with correct control, capacity, and performance have been made available for all types of heating systems.

The new models install and operate completely independently of the heating system. One can be mounted in a closet, utility room, crawl space, or basement ceiling, and requires just one discharge grille.

The entire concept of correct indoor relative humidity is comparatively new. But humidity is as important as heat for comfort and health during the winter season, and it has become an increasingly-recognized aspect of overall comfort-conditioning of homes.

More information on the calculation of relative humidity and its effects are available in an interesting free booklet entitled "Facts About Humidification." Write to Research Products Corporation, Madison, Wisconsin, 53701 for your copy.

Kitchens Fall Behind in the Progress March

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

House hunters who are having difficulties finding an efficient kitchen can blame their dilemma on the builder, says interior designer and kitchen planner, Joseph Freitag.

Major appliance manufacturers have kept pace with the times, he says, Ditto floor covering designers and counter top specialists.

But we still have old-fashioned kitchens because builders won't spend money for better kitchens, he says.

"I took a 15-year-old catalog to one important kitchen cabinet manufacturer to show him he hadn't improved his standard cabinets one iota in all that time.

"He told me that if his cabinets were 5 per cent more in price and 60 per cent better in function, builders wouldn't buy them," says Freitag.

LOOK WELL

Kitchens look well but it's because they are gimmicked with accessories, wallpaper or paint, Freitag says. But when it comes to coping with today's kitchen problems, these kitchens can't do it.

"Deep cabinets are useless today except to store dinner plates. They were designed in the days when people bought ten or twenty pounds of flour, sugar and cereal.

"What we need is space to store small items — cans, envelopes of dehydrated foods, boxes of instant grains, cake mix and so on. Cabinets are too high and too deep to accommodate these little things efficiently.

We need some sort of cabinet, too, for small appliances, he says, pointing out that years ago the only items on a counter were a toaster and mixer. But now it is likely that blender, can opener, coffee maker, broiler and fry pan are included.

MADE USEFUL

How can these things be useful, if they are not within reach, he says. And if left on the counter, how can the counter be useful?

He'd like to see use made of easy-to-reach places — backs of cabinet doors, backsplash, the area underneath wall cabinets, the most easily reached spots in the kitchen.

When Freitag designs a custom kitchen, he can really live it up design-wise. Often everything must be custom built as in a recent one, a test kitchen for Farley Manning, a Madison Avenue firm handling food products.

He installed innovations such as a three-level worktable — 30-inch level for rolling pastries, cutting dough, food preparation; 32-inch level for working with blender, casserole, pots that one must look into when filling; 42-inch high table, ideal for cookie and cake decoration, preparing molds, sorting and arranging.

CAKE COOLER

A 48-inch-high shelf just above it is ideal for temporary functions — cooling cakes, etc.

For handy use for youngsters, there's a small cabinet designed for paper service with grooves for paper plates, cups on pop-up pegs. The cabinet is removable for easy cleaning.

Freitag doesn't like overhead cabinets — few women can reach to top shelves or to the back of any shelves or to the stepstool. He favors counter-level cabinets where things may be reached.

He designed one in the test kitchen for use at the sink for cleaning powders and such, so that one doesn't need to reach or bend.

Shallow spice shelves are built into a door that opens to reveal storage space for cookery needs — oil, flour, pepper, salt.

STORAGE ROD

Pans are hung on a rod above the work tables; a pull-out garbage container is just below the cutting board so that parings may be scraped into it easily. The counter cabinet at the cutting board has grooves at the top for sharp knives.

Under the range top there is a cabinet area with vertical slots for storing muffin tins, cake and pie pans. Cabinet shelves for canned foods are two-cans deep.

All in all our outmoded kitchens need complete revamping, he says.

"The trouble is the cabinets are not picked by cooks. Some assistant in the builder's office who can't boil water selects them by price.

"And as for so-called kitchen experts in cabinet salesrooms — most would be lost doing anything more in the kitchen than cooking a steak and mixing a martini," says Freitag.

Ceiling Beams Easy to Construct

False ceiling beams made of a material other than lumber usually look false. But making your own of lumber is easy, the result handsome.

Just nail a 1x4 or 1x6 on either side of a length of 2x2, flushing the three pieces to the ceiling surface. Then screw the beam into the ceiling through the 2x2.

Either smooth or rough-surfaced lumber may be used with a clear finish, dark stain or paint.

Variations are possible, of course. For a deeper beam, use 1x8s blocked with a 2x4. For a thicker beam giving a heavier accent, use 2x4s, 2x6s or 2x8s blocked with a 2x2 or 2x4. Three thick pieces should be screwed together; pre-drill screw holes.

Power Drill Converts To Special Pump

Special Kit Solves Problem of Pumping

Own a power hand drill?

Then you also own a pump that will bail your boat at the rate of 6 gallons per minute, change engine or gear box oil, empty a fuel tank for winter storage, rid a sagging boat cover of water and do numerous other jobs.

The Huber Instant Oil Change Pump Kit is the added tool.

The pump is small enough to carry in a tool box. To use it, chuck the stainless steel shaft in a quarter inch or larger portable electric drill.

Doing Little Aids Hunter

Too Much 'Talk' Is Hindering Factor

There are many moments in hunting when doing little accomplishes the most.

Turkey hunting is a prime example. The universal tendency among novices is to call too much. The turkey hunter who calls too much, says too much. Sooner or later he's going to say the wrong thing.

Though a great deal of mystique has grown up around turkey calling over the years, it isn't as difficult as the old salts would like the new comer to believe.

A few minutes of instruction and a few more minutes of practice and the beginner has become an adequate caller.

The big thing is to pick a good call.

Cedar has always been the choice of the experts. The vibrator is also cedar.

The call is stroked on the half round wood piece provided with the call.

When cupped properly in the hand and manipulated according to the furnished instructions, it gives out a clear, sharp yelp like that of a hen turkey.

One opening on the pump is the intake, the other the discharge to which a five foot flexible discharge hose is attached.

SPRING CLIP

The rest of the kit includes a spring clip to hold the discharge hose to the receptacle, a discharge tube adapter and four suction tubes of various diameters and lengths.

One suction tube is for small dip-stick holes, like those on marine engines, another is for larger dip-stick openings. A short tube is included for power mowers, machinery sumps and applications where a longer tube is not needed.

A fourth, general purpose, tube is for pumping out washing machine, aquariums, engines, plumbing and other uses where a larger outside diameter can be tolerated.

On the farm it can fill tires, transfer spray mixes and liquid fertilizer. At home it can empty a flooded window well, a thawed chest freezer, drain plumbing or do any other liquid moving job. Price is $14.95. A stainless steel model is $24.95.

May Permit Snagging

New Coho Rules Readied

DETROIT — State fishery biologists will press for relaxed angling rules on "snagged" salmon this fall.

The move, if adopted, will allow fishermen to keep accidentally snagged fish. Under present law, all fish not hooked in the mouth must be returned to the water.

"This was our major law enforcement problem last year," said Dr. Wayne Tody, chief of the Department of Natural Resources' fish division. "When salmon and anglers jammed together, it naturally produced snagged fish."

The bad feelings between fishermen and the department began when 107 arrests were made last August and September by Conservation Officers at the mouth of Thompson Creek, near Manistique in the Upper Peninsula.

FOUL-HOOKED

"I don't think people were purposely trying to foul-hook fish," Tody said, "but they did. And they had mixed feelings returning these beautiful salmon they hadn't tried to catch incorrectly. They felt entitled to them."

The problem worsened by late September when Lower Peninsula runs began and more anglers flocked to small streams where spawning salmon were packed. The resulting donnybrook at Bear Creek — actual fist-fights between anglers and Conservation Officers, State Police and local sheriff's patrols — brought about closure.

"It left the public with a hostile attitude toward the department," Tody said. Tight enforcement clamped down, leaving a grumble of discontent rumbling over the whole salmon program. Poor fishing luck on Lake Michigan only served to heighten the feelings.

The DNR plans to ease that situation this year, though.

"We recognize that salmon are unlike other fish we're used to here," Tody explained. "They run streams in big numbers and all will die. The problem is how to keep a 'sport' fishery and still allow the biggest catch possible, rather than having all salmon harvested at weirs."

It's the biologists' feeling that if people will fish with rods and reels, using artificial lures or natural bait in the conventional manner, they should be allowed to keep what they catch. "No matter where it's hooked," Tody said.

"This is accidental snagging. I don't think we should encourage snagging per se, though, so we're going to define what fishing practices aren't acceptable at the same time."

Among these will be specially contrived snag hooks, large weighted hooks or lures with weights trailing the hook, gigs or hooks attached to rigid poles and the like.

LARGER HOOKS

Tody also feels the present hook size limit should be relaxed, too, to a half-inch between the point and shank. "For treble hooks, anyway," he said. "Many people felt that a three-eighths hook was too small last year, and I agreed with them. A half-inch limit shouldn't get us into overt snagging."

Legislators Getting Word on Recreation Bond Funds

LANSING — State lawmakers are reporting that they are getting a steady drumfire of letters and telephone calls from conservationists urging that the original 70-30 split of the $100 million recreation bond issue be retained.

The mail started to come in when Gov. Milliken announced he was recommending that only $40 million go for statewide conservation projects and $60 million to put into urban areas.

Conservationists screamed, insisting there was a clear understanding before last November's election when the issue was passed, that $70 million was to go to statewide projects.

There was even a breakdown. It went: $41 million for state parks, $18 million for fisheries projects, $7 million for wildlife projects and $4 million for forests.

The protests against the proposed Milliken revision were led by James L. Rouman, executive secretary of the 120,000 Michigan United Conservation Clubs, who called it "a breach of faith." He declared the issue would never have passed without the support of conservationists who understood $70 million was going for conservation projects.

The governor said that more than $30 million is needed to pour into the cities to combat urban unrest.

Rouman countered that no one denies this, but that was how it should have been advertised before the vote. He added that if the governor wanted to start a new bond drive to raise money for that purpose, MUCC would support it.

Interestingly, the United Auto Workers union, which originally opposed the recreation bond issue on the grounds it wasn't enough, is urging an even deeper bite. It wants $80 million to go into the cities, leaving $20 million for statewide spending.

Another sidelight is that Detroit and Wayne County, which would receive the bulk of any percentage allocated to the cities, defeated the bond proposal in November.

So you see, strong pressures are on to raid the fund for special interests, but the fact is you haven't seen anything yet.

The final determination of just how the money will be spent will be up to the Legislature. So, actually, what the governor and the UAW propose is purely academic. The proposals do, however, weaken the position of those who are trying to convince the Legislature it should leave the 70-30 split alone.

There is every prospect, unless a public outcry is raised, that some individual legislators will look at the $100 million as a source of revenue for some pet project in his home district.

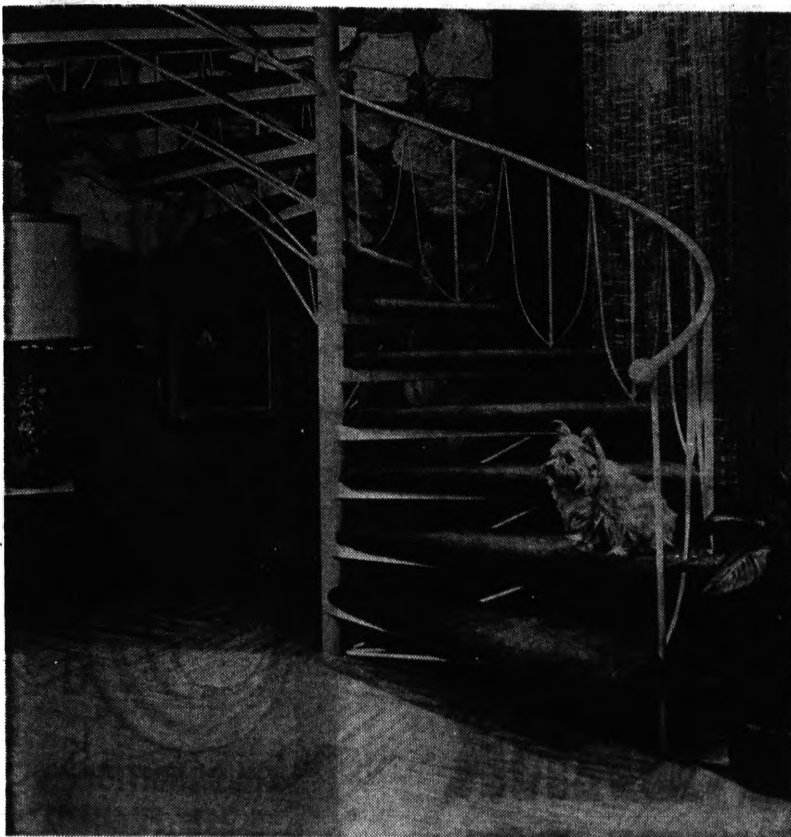

If there ever was a temptation for pork-barreling, here it is.

NEW GAME BIRD—Hungarian partridges were released in Sanilac County earlier this year. The Department of Natural Resources imported the birds from Ontario and hope

Mansfield Urging Big Spending Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield says Congress should insist on a second big spending cut as its price for extending the 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

And the Senate's Democratic spokesman said Congress should decide where the cuts are made — unlike last year when it left most of the trimming to former President Johnson.

It was announced yesterday that President Nixon would ask Congress today for a year's extension of the surtax which expires June 30.

Nixon's announcement came on the heels of a report that the cost of living in the nation has gone up sharply.

Mansfield said in an interview that, if Congress goes along with the President, it should "impose a $10-billion cut in requested appropriations and a reduction of $5 billion in actual expenditures."

Laying down a Democratic position, he said cuts should be made in defense funds, and in spending for overseas bases, deployment of the Safeguard antimissile system, the space program and for research and development.

Backers of the extension contend the surtax will produce an additional $10 billion in revenue, needed to head off an inflation-feeding budget deficit of unacceptable proportions in the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Last year, Congress put a $160-billion limit on spending. Both Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy and budget Director Robert P. Mayo have said that next year they expect to hold spending below the $195.3 billion fixed in Johnson's last budget.

OPPOSE CEILING

Both oppose a spending ceiling such as Mansfield proposed. Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said consideration of the surtax extension will have to wait until his panel finishes its current inquiry into general tax reform — probably mid-April at the earliest.

Mills advocates a yearly spending ceiling in each appropriations bill.

BY JIM LONG

A petition asking for a grand jury investigation into allegations made by an underworld informer about former Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson has been presented to the Oakland County Circuit Court bench.

Presiding Judge Farrell E. Roberts said yesterday that the petition will be taken under advisement. He was not certain how long it would be before the judges decided to accept or reject the petition.

The petition was signed by Arthur J. Brandt Jr., president of the Oakland County Conservative Club, and David Bradbury, an Orchard Lake councilman and campaign manager for Pontiac attorney Richard D. Kuhn in his unsuccessful race against Thomas G. Plunkett for prosecutor in November.

The petition follows by two weeks a letter Brandt sent to State Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley asking that a grand jury probe be launched into allegations made by Peter Lazaros of Troy.

'DRAGGING ITS FEET'

Sen. Robert J. Huber of Troy, a leading conservative in the Republican party, has accused the attorney general's office of dragging its feet on the issue.

Brandt, a resident of Bloomfield Township, claims he wants a full-scale inquiry "to clear the air."

Bronson, a judge on the Michigan Court of Appeals since January, as well as public officials in Wayne and Macomb counties, have been accused by Lazaros of granting favors to members of organized crime.

Lazaros has been under protective custody of State Police since last October, when he was released from prison in an appeal of a fraud conviction. Representatives of the attorney (Continued on Page A-2, Col. 3)

Big 4 Discussion of Middle East Dispute Is Near

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After weeks of private discussion, the Big 4 delegates at the United Nations are ready to gather around the table and consider how to get a durable peace in the Middle East.

Some sources say the four men talks, motivated more by fear of failure than by hope of success, will get under way next week.

President Nixon appears to be counting most heavily on Soviet cooperation to bring about a settlement that would give Nixon a major achievement in the foreign field. It also would be a big boost for Secretary General U Thant and the United Nations.

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France appear to agree that they should utilize Gunnar Jarring, Thant's special Middle East envoy.

LENGTHY EFFORT

Jarring, Sweden's ambassador to Moscow, has been trying since December 1967 to get Israel and the Arabs to work out peace terms based on the U.N. Security Council's Nov. 22, 1967, resolution.

The resolution called for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory occupied during the 1967 war and Arab recognition of Israel as a sovereign state with defined frontiers.

Israel, however, has made clear it has no intention of giving up the Old City of Jerusalem, the Golan Heights in Syria and other strategic pieces of Arab real estate acquired in the war.

Since Feb. 11, U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost has been holding talks separately with Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik, French Ambassador Armand Berard and Britain's chief delegate, Lord Caradon. But U.S. consideration for Israel's position and Soviet consideration for Arab views delayed enough agreement to make a four-power conference productive.

Israel has rejected the concept of a solution imposed by the Big 4, the Arabs have rejected territorial concessions to Israel.

The Big 4 delegates will be seeking agreement on guidelines for peace which Jarring then can relay to Israel and the Arabs. There is speculation the Big 4 might recommend the return of a U.N. peacekeeping force to the area and establishment of neutral zones in that territory as the west bank of the Jordan River.

But since U Thant's speedy withdrawal of the U.N. peace force in 1967 at Egypt's demand, and the failure of the Big 4 to get the Arabs to make peace with Israel, the Israelis have no faith in U.N. peace forces or other international guarantees.

Chance of Light Snow Tonight

Snow flurries whipped by strong winds brought two to three inches of snow to Oakland County yesterday afternoon and overnight.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicts there's a chance of light snow tonight and possibly a little tomorrow.

Temperatures are expected to fall into the low 20s tonight and climb into the mid-30s tomorrow.

Friday's outlook is about the same — cloudy, cool, chance of flurries or light snow.

ROAD CREW BUSY

According to Grace Robertoy at the Oakland County Road Commission, a crew of men was out all night salting and clearing snow-slick pavements.

Ice on gravel roads was melting this morning, she said.

Gale warnings were posted early today on all the Great Lakes.

Morning winds at 15 to 26 miles per hour northwesterly will diminish to eight to 18 miles tonight and become light and variable tomorrow.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are 80 today, 50 tonight and 40 tomorrow. Twenty-two was the low temperature in downtown Pontiac before 8 a.m. The thermometer recorded 30 at 12:30 p.m.

County Budget OK in Private?

Oakland County's tentative 1970 budget probably will be approved behind closed doors — the public excluded — in a special session slated for 1 p.m. Friday by the board of supervisors finance committee.

The committee has scheduled an executive session on the last day it has to approve the tentative budget. That budget will in turn affect tax levies as determined by the County Allocation Board.

A meeting scheduled for today was canceled by the committee.

Friday's closed-door session will be the first scheduled by the finance committee since it began budget hearings last week.

The move to close the meeting to the public was reportedly headed by finance committee Chairman George N. Grba, D-Pontiac, and Christian F. Powell, R-West Bloomfield Township.

Other members of the committee are Thomas O'Donoghue, D-Ferndale; Carl O'Brien, D-Pontiac; Albert F. Szabo, D-Clawson; Delos Hamlin, R-Farmington; and Fred Houghton, R-Avon Township.

1 Killer Responsible for 4 Girls' Deaths?

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Authorities say the sex killer who left Maralynn Skelton's nude, abused body near a lover's lane may have been responsible for the unsolved deaths of three other girls in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area.

Miss Skelton, '66, was the fourth girl slain in the area in the last 19 months and the second within a week.

Her mother said she left her home in the Detroit suburb of Romulus Saturday afternoon saying she was going to a dance at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Workmen in a subdivision found the girl's body yesterday morning. A garter belt was wrapped around her neck, other garments were strewn nearby and "She had been unmercifully beaten about the face," said Police Chief Walter Krasny of Ann Arbor.

Krasny said the girl had been dead one to two days and theorized she had been killed elsewhere and her body taken to the spot where it was found.

He said he believed there was a connection between the murder and at least two earlier ones, those of Joan E. Schell, 20, of Plymouth, found last July, and Mary Flear, 19, of Wills, found in August 1967. Both were stabbed and, like Maralynn, sexually abused.

In the fourth death, Jane Louise Mixer, 23, a University of Michigan law student from Muskegon, was found in a cemetery near Ypsilanti last week. Shot several times in the head, she was not assaulted sexually.

"The Mixer murder may not be by the same person, but there are enough similarities in the other two and in the Flear murder to warrant a second look," Krasny said.

Nixon Fails to Win Trudeau on ABM

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has been apparently unable to win Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's immediate support for his antiballistic missile (ABM) system.

Trudeau, who flew back to Canada last night after a two-day visit, said he was "no closer than before" to making a decision on his stand on the issue.

Trudeau said Nixon gave him classified information on the ABM which he will relay to his cabinet. He said he still could not make up his mind whether the ABM would be spurring the arms race or keeping world peace.

Urban Curbs on Cars Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe says it may be necessary to curb the use of automobiles in the nation's cities unless a mass transit breakthrough is achieved within two years.

"We do face the real possibility that either we have to shut off to rubber tires certain limited areas within a city or charge a fee to come in there," Volpe told the Associated Press.

The secretary acknowledged the need for new highways but said "we wouldn't be in the mess we're in today" if mass transit systems had been built as fast as expressways.

Volpe predicted that the motorist would begin looking for alternatives to being mired in traffic jams.

"Bold new ideas" are needed, Volpe said. But he added it would probably be five years before new developments could be in service.

(between Hudson's and Winkelman's) will begin at 7:30.

LECTURE ON LILIES

Mrs. Louis Hough of the Michigan Regional Lily Society and president of the Detroit Garden Center will lecture on "Care and Growth of Lilies." She will illustrate her talk with colored slides of old and new lily varieties.

Tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. Gordon Dennis, district extension horticultural agent will demonstrate proper pruning of evergreens, trees and ornamental shrubs.

Following at 7:30 p.m. he will present an illustrated lecture on new introductions of shade trees and ornamental shrubs.

GEN. MOHAMMED YAHYKHAN

New Pakistan Military Dictator Vows 'Sanity'

KARACHI (AP) — Pakistan's new military dictator, Army Gen. Agha Yahya Khan, told his turbulent nation today he would "bring back sanity" to set the stage for free elections.

"I wish to make it absolutely clear to you that I have no ambition other than the creation of conditions conducive to the establishment of a constitutional government," he said in his first broadcast after taking over from President Mohammed Ayub Khan.

Sixteen hours before, Ayub Khan resigned from appointing Yahya supreme commander of Pakistan's armed forces and chief martial law administrator.

Ayub, who announced earlier he would not seek reelection next year, admitted last night this did not satisfy his political opponents and he could not cope with mob violence wracking Pakistan's eastern half, on the other side of India.

Yahya assured the people the armed forces "have no political ambitions and will not prop up any individual or party," and he indicated he would go through with constitutional reforms promised by Ayub before his resignation.

Yahya, 52, is considered to have pro-Western views despite visits to Moscow and Peking earlier this year.

GM Exec Is Honored

More than 200 Pontiac area business and professional leaders honored Thomas F. Wiethorn yesterday at a Chief Pontiac cocktail party at Bloomfield Hills Country Club.

Wiethorn, manager of the Fisher Body assembly plant in Pontiac for 12 years, was promoted last August to manager of the Fisher Body plant in Lansing.

VC Shells Smash Major U.S. Base

SAIGON (AP) — Vietcong mortars smashed into a major American base south of Saigon early today, blowing up hundreds of tons of ammunition, wrecking scores of buildings, and destroying three helicopters. Only a few Americans were killed, but more than 60 were wounded.

Shelling of the headquarters base of the 9th Infantry Division at Dong Tam, 40 miles south of Saigon, was one of 30 rocket and mortar attacks by the Vietcong on the 32nd night of their spring offensive.

North Vietnamese troops followed up one of the attacks with an infantry charge that carried them to the barbed wire perimeter of another American base 45 miles northwest of Saigon. Before they were driven off eight American Air cavalrymen were killed, 17 were wounded and only two enemy bodies were found on the barbed wire.

Cok. Ira Hunt of McLean, Va., chief of staff of the 9th Division estimated that as much as 500 tons of ammunition, mostly small arms, went up in the attack on the Dong Tam base.

"We were expecting it because we had information from a prisoner," Hunt told AP photographer Max Nash.

Hunt said about 13 rounds of 120mm mortars, the biggest in the enemy arsenal, slammed into the base an hour and a half before midnight but caused little damage.

"We thought that was it," said Hunt. "Many men had left their bunkers after the first attack."

Then came another barrage about midnight. One of the first shells hit an ammunition storage pad, triggering a series of explosions in at least half a dozen more pads. After that the Americans couldn't distinguish the incoming rounds from their own exploding ammunition.

KNOCKED DOWN

Two crews got their helicopters of the ground but were knocked down by the exploding shells. A third helicopter was destroyed on the ground.

Shortest Route to Accord, Say Allies

Reds Mum on Thieu Offer

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN

PARIS (UPI) — Vietcong acceptance of South Vietnam's offer for secret peace talks would open the shortest route to a settlement of the Vietnam war, allied sources said today.

They said if the Vietcong accepts, the United States and North Vietnam could begin secret discussions of their own on mutual troop withdrawals from the battlefield.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam proposed the secret Saigon-Vietcong talks yesterday in Saigon, saying the possibility of such discussions was "a ray of light at the end of the tunnel."

Members of the Vietcong's National Liberation Front (NLF) bargaining team in Paris had no comment on the offer. Nor did the North Vietnamese delegation.

In his announcement, Thieu said, "We are ready to have private talks with the NLF if they want. I think they understand well that we are ready for these talks and we are waiting for them."

Ike's Condition Remains Critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower remained in critical condition today, suffering from such severe congestive heart failure that doctors are doubting his recovery.

In their latest bulletin yesterday, doctors at Walter Reed General Hospital said that although the 78-year-old general "has shown no deterioration in the last 24 hours, his condition continues to be critical." This was the first time they had used critical to describe Eisenhower's condition.

Earlier yesterday, the doctors added to the gloomy outlook when they said it was impossible to predict whether the former president would recover.

Ex-Royal Oak Twp. Officials Among 4 Convicted by Jury

An Oakland County Circuit Court jury yesterday convicted four men, two of them former Royal Oak Township officials, of being involved in a bribery conspiracy uncovered by a grand jury investigation.

The jury deliberated less than four hours in returning its verdict following a six-day trial.

During the trial, Edward Kennedy, a former township supervisor who had pleaded guilty in January to taking part in the bribery, took the stand as a prosecution witness.

Found guilty were Marshall Taylor, a former member of the township board; Tatum Eason Jr., 33, former urban renewal director for the township and now an aide on Detroit's anti-poverty program; and Carmen Jacoboni, 47, of Detroit and Angelo Delesanto, 56, of Southfield, former operators of the now defunct Atlas Sand Co. of Detroit.

CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

All were convicted of conspiracy, punishable up to five years in prison. Taylor and Eason also were found guilty of accepting a bribe, while Jacoboni and Delesanto were found guilty of giving a bribe.

Receiving a bribe is punishable with a prison term of up to 10 years, and giving a bribe is punishable up to five years in prison.

Circuit Judge Frederick C. Ziem will sentence them April 22, the same date set for the sentencing for Kennedy, who had admitted to taking a bribe.

Kennedy testified that he was given $3,700 by Eason, who he said was acting as a middleman.

The money was given to him to buy votes on the township board to award a sand removal contract to the Atlas firm.

Circuit Judge Philip Pratt brought the charges against Kennedy and the four others in June 1966 while serving as a grand juror in an investigation into crime and corruption in Royal Oak Township.

Diplomatic observers to the talks said it was significant the Communists did not reject Thieu's proposal immediately. They said perhaps Hanoi and the Vietcong would answer in tomorrow's negotiating session, the 10th since Jan. 18.

Thieu made clear his government's determination not to accept a coalition government with the Communists at war's end. But his offer for private talks was a reversal from earlier statements such discussions could take place only after the Reds stopped fighting.

Waterford Vote on Levy Today

Waterford Township voters have until 8 p.m. today to cast their votes on a two-year 9-mill proposal for schools.

Eight polling places, all elementary schools, opened at 7 a.m. There was no report on early volume of votes cast, but about 25,000 registered voters in the school district are eligible to ballot.

School officials, in urging passage of the proposal, warn that denial of millage would mean shortened class hours and would threaten the district's ability to hire top quality personnel.

They also pointed out that next year's state aid to education formula will prevent an anticipated 24 per cent hike in township property taxes from providing necessary school financing.

MINIMUM PORTION

However, authorities promised that only the minimum portion of the nine mills would be levied the first year should the proposal be passed today.

Dr. Don O. Tatroe, superintendent of township schools, suggested that 6.5 mills might be sufficient.

"That would cost the majority of our taxpayers less than $50 the first year — less than $1 a week," he said.

New Tank 'Billion-Dollar Goof'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee has accused the Army of a "billion-dollar goof" in developing a new tank because:

- Although the tank is for reconnaissance, it can be heard three miles away.
- It has a "rooster tail exhaust" system that makes it an easy target.
- Its caseless ammunition is ultraflammable, leaves burning residue in the breech which can prematurely ignite a round, and is adversely affected by moisture, oil, and rough handling.
- Due to a problem with fuel-tank leaks, frequent checks for spilled fuel should be made to prevent fires.
- "When operating in jungle or heavy underbrush, vegetation will clog air intake grilles and the radiator, requiring frequent cleaning to avoid overheating."
- "The (Shillelagh) missile must not be fired when the launch vehicle is in motion."
- "Under extremely dusty conditions, the present air cleaner requires cleaning or replacement every 1 1/2 hours."

These were the findings of a previously classified document that Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., ordered the Army to release yesterday after six days of secret testimony on the Sheridan tank.

Stratton, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, said "the people have a right to know this incredible story."

'RUSHED INTO PRODUCTION'

Stratton charged that the Army had rushed the weapons system into combat and mass production in order to eliminate its possible setback or elimination by the Bureau of the Budget and the secretary of defense.

He succeeded during the hearings in winning admission from one Army officer, Lt. Col. Stan Sheridan, that the tank was recommended for production for budgetary reasons although tests had indicated there were many problems.

Later, Sheridan's superiors heatedly denied this, despite an internal memorandum in the subcommittee's possession in which this point was stressed by Sheridan.

Lt. Gen. Austin W. Betts, chief of research and development for the Army, in often heated exchanges with Stratton, said it was relatively routine procedure to recommend production before all bugs in a system had been worked out.

Betts said the tank was recommended because there was an urgent need for it in Vietnam, and that he was sure the problems could be surmounted. He said this was his only consideration.

Stratton, who termed the tank "a billion dollar goof," sharply told Betts: "We don't want to get a snow job here." He termed the general's comments "self-serving" and not in accord with results of the investigation.

Stratton said data gathered by the subcommittee conclusively showed that Betts had sought to convince Gen. Creighton Abrams, commanding officer of all U.S. troops in Vietnam, of the advisability of putting the tank into combat. Furthermore, said Stratton, this had been done despite tests which showed the vehicle was not ready.

Birmingham Area

Countywide Assessment Is Opposed

BIRMINGHAM — City Commissioners here have opposed the proposal that all property tax assessing be done on a countywide basis instead of through the present local assessing system. The proposal is now in a committee of the State Legislature.

The commissioners expressed their opposition in an informal discussion following a question raised from the audience at a recent commission meeting.

The County Board of Supervisors Legislative Committee recently voted 3-2 in favor of supporting state legislation which would provide for countywide assessing.

The Birmingham commissioners based their opposition on the belief that countywide assessing would represent an infringement on local home rule and reduce the citizen's right to be heard through elimination of local boards of tax review.

Birmingham City Assessor Clark Hagerstrom said the Oakland County Assessors Association and the Southeast Michigan Assessors Association will begin holding periodic meetings to "exchange ideas and explore the countywide proposal situation."

"Prehistoric Images" presents the first art of man as created in the caves of France and Spain, 10,000 to 40,000 years ago. The final selection, "Radio View of the Universe," explores new knowledge that is being acquired through radio astronomy.

Stadium Fits Here

In their zeal to locate the proposed new sports stadium at either of two sites — Downtown Detroit or State Fairgrounds — proponents lose sight of the all-important fact that patronage for the facility has increasingly become statewide.

It is for that reason that the available Pontiac site at I-75 and M59 with its abundance of land — which neither of the others afford — and convenience to freeway travel and rail transportation makes it by far the preferable choice.

With the development of vast metropolitan areas, such as that in which we live, municipal boundary lines have become meaningless, except for governmental purposes. We venture to say that as many spectators of Lion and Tiger games are drawn from outside the corporate limits of Detroit as from within.

In addition to the sports-minded population of Pontiac and Oakland

County — the second largest county in the State — one has only to look at the parked buses around Tiger Stadium at either a baseball or football game to sample the outstate attendance that originates in Flint, Bay City, Saginaw, Port Huron, Mt. Clemens, and the smaller communities of the metropolitan area.

Although the Tigers and Lions have always borne the name of Detroit, they have become essentially Michigan teams. In other situations, we have seen baseball and football teams become the Minnesota Twins and Vikings respectively, and the American League baseball team the California Angels.

Those who cling to the outmoded idea that a sports facility has perforce to be situated within the confines of a large city — where traffic congestion is at its worst, parking inadequate and accessibility difficult and time-consuming — are living in the past. Time has passed them by.

Is This Any Way To Run A College?

David Lawrence Says:

College Strife Is Complex Issue

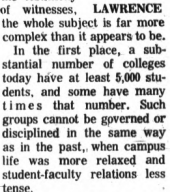

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has spoken out emphatically against violence in the colleges and has urged support for "the voices of reason and calm." But, as a special committee in Congress currently investigating campus revolts has already learned from the testimony of witnesses, LAWRENCE the whole subject is far more complex than it appears to be.

"In my opinion there are, today, far too many students in the colleges who essentially have no business to be there. Some are there to evade the draft, many others out of a vague idea that it will help them to find better — paying jobs, though they do not know what jobs they want."

for their own inner weakness.

DEEP DISSATISFACTION
"And again" many go to college because they do not know what better to do and because it is expected of them. Their deep dissatisfaction with themselves and their inner confusion is projected against the institution of the university first, and against all institutions of society secondarily, which are blamed

The admissions committees of colleges will certainly have to give second thoughts to the qualifications of applicants and especially to consider whether even superior grades in high school are sufficient to indicate what kind of student a youngster will turn out to be in college.

Bob Considine Says:

Cal Coolidge Was Quiet and So Was His Regime

NEW YORK, In his book "In the Time of Silent Cal: A Retrospective History of the 1920s," Julius-Abels draws a good picture of a president who was as anachronistic as an electric toaster on the table of the Last Supper. Calvin Coolidge couldn't make president of the Wichita Chamber of Commerce today.

Presidential pay check from a Treasury Department paymaster, who had made a special trip to the White House for the occasion, he didn't utter a word until the man was about to bow up the door. Then he said, studying the check, "Come again."

Silence was golden during his regime, and so was the stock market. Cal had only the remotest idea, gained from ambassadors he hardly knew, if at all, of what was happening in the rest of the world.

KIDDED BY ROGERS
Will Rogers was one of the few who could kid Coolidge about his preposterous electric exercise horse and his mischievous habit of trying to duck his Secret Service guard — on walks through the White House grounds — by hiding behind a tree.

But the world was much more at peace than now. A pitch for the top or the No. 2 spot on a national ticket today can cost deep into the millions of dollars. His friends' surprise, sought higher office than that which he had luckily attained — Republican governor of Irish-Catholic-Democratic Massachusetts — his campaign was in dollars, halves, quarters, dimes and nickels.

Henry Mencken was more to the point: He will be ranked among the vacuum. There is no principle in his armamentarium which is worthy of any sacrifice, even of sleep.

UNPOPULAR AT HOTEL
His humble forays into the lobby of Chicago's Morrison Hotel, in search of the vice presidential nomination, made him no friend of the management.

"There is no record that he ever thought anything worth hearing about, about any of the problems confronting the world. His characteristic way of dealing with them is simply to avoid them, as a sensible man avoids an insurance solicitor or his wife's relatives."

He wouldn't take a room. Instead, he'd come in on an overnight train, set up quarters' rights in a corner of the lobby, take time out for a sandwich (or a full luncheon, if invited) and leave in the late afternoon, having seen the men he wanted to see.

But he never had a war, an A.B.M. debate, racial discord, depression, inflation, or a corruption in government, Middle-East problems, ghetto clearance and school issues, student revolts, black power zealots, beatniks, youthful drug addicts, soaring crime rates, or other afflictions, like ice hockey.

Won't you come back, Cal Coolidge, won't you come back?

Surveys National 'Savvy'

Most Americans aren't much interested in what goes on in the world. The charge is made by ALFRED HERO, executive secretary of the World Peace Foundation, summing up the findings of a study published by the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center.

The public has often been ignorant or apathetic or both, he says, about the major foreign and domestic issues of the past three decades.

It's not as bad as it sounds, however. While only about 5 per cent of the population can be called accurately informed, the chronic "know-nothings" have declined from roughly 35 per cent in the 1930s to 15 to 20 per cent in the late 1960s.

The rise in educational levels and wider exposure to mass media have undoubtedly increased the number of people who hold knowledgeable and meaningful opinions on major issues, thinks HERO, despite the fact that, in the public's mind at least, the issues seem more complicated than they formerly did.

Medieval man had seven deadly sins to guard against; for modern Americans there are just two — ignorance and apathy. They have nothing to do with the salvation of the individual soul, but they bear very directly on the preservation of a democratic nation.

Firearm Control

Port Huron Times Herald

Evidence is growing that an element of common sense is beginning to enter the picture of firearm control. Rather than saddle law-abiding citizens with onerous restrictions, some states are enacting tough measures to control the unlawful use of firearms.

This is the only method devised yet that will comply with both the Constitutional right for citizens to bear arms, and the citizens' right to protection of law against misuse of arms.

Veterans of Foreign Wars, an organization which wields considerable weight in some areas of the Nation, adopted a resolution urging tougher sentences for crimes with firearms.

Gun control laws which attempt to restrict ownership to responsible persons are worse than useless. For all practical purposes they apply only to the law-abiding citizen. The felon or mental incompetent who wants a gun would in no way be deterred by legal restrictions.

Dropout Drivers

The Ann Arbor News

Since he apparently has no feelings one way or the other about the bill he introduced to ban driving licenses for dropouts, Rep. Roy Smith should have a few qualms about what the committee does to his bill. Specifically, the bill would require all high school dropouts less than 18 years old to forfeit their drivers' or chauffeurs' licenses. This license would be returned after the dropout reached the age of 18 or returned to school. The purpose of the bill is to encourage the student to stay in school.

Fine, but what about the hardship case who drops out of school temporarily to support himself and his mother? What about the boy who needs a car and a driver's license to get to and from work, and who may have every good intention of finishing up a trade school later on?

Maybe these examples are few and far between, and maybe the bill as it is rewritten will make some provision for the marginal student. Assuming the dropout rate never will be cut to zero, it seems a little foolish to penalize still further those who for one reason or another choose to discontinue their schooling.

Pros and Cons of School Pool Bonding Issue

The West Bloomfield Jaycees support the school pool bonding issue and urge a "yes" vote on the March 31 West Bloomfield School District ballot. The building of a community swimming pool crosses all lines of community development, such as youth, sports, health and safety which are part of the permanent agenda of the Jaycees.

RON JOYNER, PRESIDENT
WEST BLOOMFIELD JAYCEES

I strongly urge a "no" vote on the school pool bonding issue in West Bloomfield School District March 31. It is one thing to take advantage of existing school rooms and facilities for adult education and recreational programs, but to build schools with an eye to recreational functions for the whole community is getting way off base. If our schools were supported by an income tax, the pool plan would be fine; but as long as they are supported by property taxes this takes advantage of middle-aged or elderly people — usually with lowered income, no children in school and no use for a pool.

Let the West Bloomfield Democrats and the League of Women Voters work for abolishment of the property tax and substitute an income tax to support the schools, then the pool, etc., would be an equitable proposition for all concerned.

People always have and always will gamble, so let's make it legal under state control. How fast does a man fall from 30,000 feet if he weighs 160 pounds? 200 pounds?

ROCHESTER

REPLY

We talked with several mathematicians, physics professors and science librarians. The librarian at OU found the formula for such a problem, and it worked out that, theoretically, they would both fall the 30,000 feet in 43.3 seconds. However, that speed is for a vacuum. To figure the difference in the speed of their descents in air, it would be necessary to know their body surfaces, air currents, etc.

As we've said before, wills can be very tricky, and we would not presume to define what makes them legal or not. You should talk to a good attorney who's experienced in that field. We can sometimes refer readers to the proper person for legal advice, but we never give legal advice in this column.

House Bill

Dems Back Direct Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A secret vote among Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee has indicated overwhelming support for a constitutional amendment providing direct election of the President.

The pledge of support was the second big boost in recent days for the proposal which appears to be gaining strength in Congress.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said last week he favors direct elections.

Ford's stand, disclosed at a private meeting with a few newsmen, caught his Republican colleagues by surprise. He had earlier endorsed the view of President Nixon that a direct election amendment could not win ratification by the necessary 38 states.

STRONG SUPPORT

Ford now feels a direct election amendment would have strong support throughout the country and is probably the only proposal for changing the present system that would demand the two-thirds majority needed in the House and Senate.

By the same token, he feels the plan for dividing the electoral vote among the candidates as proposed by Nixon has little chance in Congress.

Ford's support could be crucial. Since heaviest opposition to the plan comes from southern Democrats, GOP votes will be needed to pass it.

The vote of the Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee at a caucus Tuesday night showed that Republican support may be needed even to get the plan out of committee. Of 18 Democrats who showed up, 16 said they were in favor of direct elections. Two Democrats were absent. It will take 18 votes to tip the scales in the 35-member committee.

Late Principals Given Tributes

Two past Pontiac elementary school principals were paid memorial tributes recently by the Michigan Association of Elementary School Principals at its annual meeting in Lansing.

Warren W. Abbott, who was principal at Owen, and Vida L. Walker, who was principal at Whitfield, were memorialized through contributions by Pontiac teachers to the A. Raymond Ebaugh Memorial Fund, an educational leadership fund.

Abbott, who died Dec. 5, 1968, served for 12 years in Pontiac. He also spent three years teaching in Constantine, three years in Niles, and 23 years in Keego Harbor and West Bloomfield Township.

Miss Walker, who died May 6, 1969, taught for several years at Willis Elementary School. Later she became principal of Whitfield School and was the first principal of Franklin School. Her last assignment was as principal of Whitfield School. The City Commission last night.

The projects are:

- Curb, gutter and paving on Cherry Hill and Simmons on property being developed by Charles Lange Inc. for some 500 units of rent-supplement housing (north of West Kennett, south of Walton) at a cost of $46,500 with $9,338 to be assessed.

- Curb, gutter and paving in same project on Cherry Hill to proposed Fairmount Street at an estimated cost of $75,700, with $23,184 to be assessed.
- Repaving of Granada from 170 feet north of North East Boulevard to DeSota, estimated cost $22,000 with $3,000 to be assessed.

- Repaving of Balboa from Granada to DeSota, estimated cost $19,200 with $2,000 to be assessed.

Public hearings also were ordered for presentation of assessment rolls for two previously approved projects: curb, gutter and paving on Ypsilanti from Baldwin to Carlisle and water main construction along the same street.

SAFE EMERGENCY LANDING—Dr. and Mrs. Donald Bergeron of 2020 W. Valley, Bloomfield Hills, inspect a piece of tire (top photo) which was sucked into the engine of a DC8 jetliner causing a fire. The plane, on which the Bergerons were passengers, made an emergency landing at Santa Maria Airfield in the Azores Islands. None of the 210 passengers—participants in the American Association of Professors traveling seminar—were injured. The mishap occurred early this month on the last day of a weeklong excursion to southern Spain, Gibraltar and Morocco; the group returned to Detroit Metropolitan Airport the following day aboard another airliner. Bottom photograph shows Bergeron looking over the two tires that blew out on takeoff and forced the emergency landing.

Traffic Safety Conference for Teens Near

The 10th annual Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference will be from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday at Pontiac, Northern High School.

Oakland County high school students have been invited to participate in the conference, organized by the Traffic Safety Committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce.

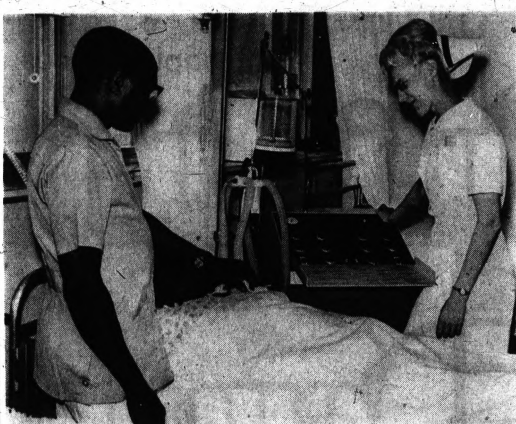

This year the Chamber is cooperating with the Traffic Improvement Association (TIA) of Oakland County in a countywide campaign to increase the use of safety belts.

Theme of the TIA public education program is "It's Lock It To Me Time."

QUEEN CONTEST

"Miss Teen Lock-It" of Oakland County will be selected tomorrow from candidates from high schools throughout the county.

Dr. Donald H. Huelke, of the anatomy department of the University of Michigan, will deliver a slide presentation on the use of safety belts at Saturday's conference.

CAN'T BREATHE—A patient at Pontiac General Hospital uses an electronic respirator to help him breathe. Adjusting the equipment are John E. Brown, of Detroit, and Mrs. W. J. Debiak of Clarkston of the hospital's new inhalation therapy department.

County Deputy Owes Life to Speedy Hospital Team

BY DICK ROBINSON

Deputy Robert W. Groves of the "Oakland County security and safety unit was interviewing a juvenile at Pontiac General Hospital when the deputy suddenly slumped to the floor gasping.

Groves believes, as do hospital authorities, that he wouldn't be alive today had it not been for fast teamwork by some members of the hospital's medical staff, specifically, members of the inhalation therapy department.

"At first we just thought he had passed out," explains Mrs. Sherrill Sundberg, R.N., in the emergency department. "But then he started turning blue; he wasn't breathing."

The nurse massaged his heart and gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation before other team members and a doctor arrived to administer electric shocks to the heart.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Groves was in critical condition when the cardio-pulmonary team arrived and got him breathing with a pulmonator. "They did a fantastic job," said Groves who made a quick recovery. "They saved my life."

Groves was in the lobby of the County Courthouse when he was called to the juvenile home where a boy had set his mattress on fire, he said.

The boy was unconscious when Groves arrived and the security officer ran a considerable distance with an oxygen tank to revive him, a witness said. Groves was interviewing the boy at the hospital when he collapsed.

AT HOSPITAL CENTER

Members of the security and safety unit are employed by the county and are stationed at Pontiac General Hospital's emergency department and at the Oakland County Service Center.

The cardio-pulmonary team is part of the hospital's new inhalation therapy department, claimed to be one of the best in the state.

Dr. George Wagryn, a full-time physician in charge of the department, says the unit provides 24-hour-a-day service.

The department boasts 19 inhalation therapists, most of whom have had at least five years of experience in the new field, and three registered, therapists.

35 IN STATE

There are only 35 registered therapists in the state, according to therapist Robert Wheel-

Wagryn explains that the inhalation department treats patients with lung disease or injuries to their breathing capacity.

"Advances in treatment and technology has made it possible to change some of the mortality rates associated with lung disease from 80 to 20 per cent when a hospital provides equipment and experienced personnel on a 24-hour a day basis," says Dr. Wagryn.

Therapists continually monitor patients on respirators, set up all forms of oxygen therapy, spend much of their time cleaning and servicing highly-sensitive equipment and conduct education programs, he said.

"It is the goal of inhalation therapy to work with family physicians and health agencies in the community to provide outpatient service for lung diseases as asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis and act as a referral source for patients with lung disease," he said.

Virginia Dare, born on Roanoke Island, Va., which is now part of North Carolina, was the first white child born in America.
