Ike, Adlai Pitch for Votes 31 Down at Sea

Eisenhower Out to Capture State of Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — President Eisenhower turned his campaign today to the battle for Washington state's nine electoral votes with an aide picturing him as optimistic about his chances for carrying Minnesota.

The President's big pitch for the Washington vote comes tonight in an address at a rally at Civic Auditorium here.

He will be plugging too for election of Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langlie to the U.S. Senate, who is running against Sen. Warren Magnuson.

Eisenhower arrived in Seattle late yesterday after being greeted by huge, enthusiastic crowds in Minnesota, where he spoke in downtown Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Asst. Police Chief Frank Schmidt estimated 250,000 to 300,000 saw the President in St. Paul and along the way.

CAMPAIGNED HARD
Eisenhower campaigned hard yesterday and went to bed early last night, "tired but happy."

In the Minneapolis and St. Paul areas, Eisenhower rode about 30 miles in an open car and he stood, waving to the crowds, just about all the way. He did the same on the ride from the airport here.

At the airport at dusk he was met by his brother Edgar and Langlie. After tonight's speech, the President will drive to nearby Tacoma, Wash., to spend the night at Edgar's home there.

In Tacoma tomorrow, the chief executive will make a midday talk at a rally at the College of Puget Sound, then fly on to Portland, Ore., for a major nationwide television address there in the evening at the Hollywood Bowl. Scheduled Saturday, on the way back to Washington, is an airport talk in Denver.

UF Will Knock on Every Door

350 Geographic Unit Torchlighters Kick Off Drive for $19,057

Urged to "knock on every door," some 350 women Torchlighters of the Pontiac Area United Fund kicked off their Geographic Division campaign this morning.

They were told by fund chairman Walter K. Willman that this year's nine per cent goal increase means "extra hard work on the part of everyone."

The women, under their chairman Mrs. Ralph G. Bump, will engage in a door-to-door drive to raise $19,057 in Pontiac, Pontiac Township and Waterford Township.

They are the fourth and final division of this year's $612,202 drive to get a pre-campaign start.

The kickoff was at a Devon Gables brunch, sponsored by the Pontiac State Bank.

The actual campaign will begin Oct. 23 at breakfast in the Elks Temple. The campaign will last to Nov. 14.

This morning's session was highlighted by a fashion show conducted by the Bloomfield Fashion Shop. Brief solicitor training classes followed.

The classes were conducted by Elmer Rosenberg, training chairman for the UF. In addition to Willman, Miss Oriel Endelman, executive director of the Pontiac branch of the Michigan Children's Aid Society, also spoke.

The annual drive is conducted to raise money to support 54 agencies providing health, welfare, youth, recreation and family services in this area.

Stevenson Hits Peace Claim of Republicans

WITH STEVENSON IN MICHIGAN (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson said today that the "most shameless thing" the Republicans have done in the presidential campaign is to "claim credit for the peace of the world."

Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, told a crowd of about 700 persons who gathered around his special train in Kalamazoo that what peace there is was won by Americans who fought and died on the battlefield.

"The most shameless thing this administration has done is to claim credit for the peace of the world," he declared.

"It is to me shameful," Stevenson said in a later speech at Battle Creek, "that one party should claim a patent on peace. Peace is not a partisan matter, it is the objective of all Americans."

President Eisenhower has emphasized a "peace" theme in his campaigning, mentioning in almost every speech that no Americans now are being shot at.

This is regarded by many Republicans as perhaps the President's most effective issue. Stevenson's remarks indicated that the Democrats are beginning to feel its weight.

At Battle Creek, Stevenson told a cheering crowd of 2,500 that he noted Eisenhower said yesterday that the Republican administration had gotten the farmer "over the hump" of a price decline.

"I wonder if he didn't mean bumps?" Stevenson asked.

He said farm prices had fallen sharply under the Eisenhower administration and there had been a four-billion-dollar drop from former farm income levels.

Earlier today, Stevenson told an early morning crowd at Niles, that Vice President Nixon took back in four days his proposal for a four-day work week for the nation.

Coast Guard Saves All Aboard Pan Am Liner Ditched in Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (INS) — The Coast Guard weather ship Pontchartrain steamed toward San Francisco today with the 31 survivors of a four-engine Pan American Airways Stratocruiser which split in half yesterday during an emergency landing in the Pacific Ocean.

Hero of the tense drama at sea was Capt. Richard Ogg, of Saratoga, Calif., 47-year-old pilot who skillfully guided the 1½-million-dollar airliner to a landing in the water alongside the Pontchartrain saving the lives of his 24 passengers and six crew members.

Five of the 31 victims suffered minor cuts and bruises which did not require medical treatment when the airliner went down 1,050 miles from San Francisco.

The plane, on a flight that began in Japan, traveled 1,200 miles from Honolulu and reached the "point of no return" when two of its four engines failed.

Ogg reported his decision to ditch the plane, and circled the Pontchartrain for nearly five hours, waiting for dawn so he could see to land.

Just before Ogg set the plane down at 8:16 a.m. on the gently rolling sea, the Pontchartrain laid down a long white track of foam fire extinguisher to mark the "landing field."

The double-decked sky giant broke in two upon striking the water but passengers and crew, well-drilled in emergency procedures, piled into life rafts.

Grandma Gives Plea of Guilty—20 Years Late

A 62-year-old grandmother whom sheepish Pontiac police described as "sweet as can be," yesterday found herself in court facing a charge of felonious assault of 20 years ago.

Mrs. Dolores Larahmore, of 200 Hughes St., pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of assault and battery and received a suspended sentence from Pontiac Municipal Judge Maurice E. Finnegan.

Police admitted they brought the case to court "to clear up old records." Mrs. Larahmore had not been accused by the alleged victim, a Bessie Love, but by an officer who had heard of the incident July 31, 1937.

Mrs. Larahmore had pleaded innocent and was released on personal bond. Trial was postponed over a dozen times during 1937 and 1938 because the victim did not show up in court. Mrs. Larahmore was accused of cutting her with a beer bottle.

The case dropped out of sight until yesterday. Then Mrs. Larahmore, who police say "wouldn't hurt a fly," pleaded guilty to clear up the record.

Magazine Traps Escapee Sought in Dual Killing

Reader Spots Convict Wanted by Michigan in Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — An escaped convict awaits return to Michigan today to face a possible double-murder charge because of the sharp eyes and memory of a crime magazine fan.

The convict is Nealy Buchanan, a 32-year-old, who had been using the name of the man he is accused of killing.

Michigan police and the FBI had been looking for Buchanan for more than a year in the hammer-slayings of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Herrick at their farm near Stockbridge, Sept. 3, 1955.

Sheriff Willard Barnes of Ingham County, said immediately after the slayings "several good fingerprints" found at the scene matched those of Buchanan.

Patrolmen Henry Zukowski and William Kidd arrested Buchanan without a struggle yesterday in a downtown Baltimore store. They had been tipped by an informant, whose name they kept secret, that he had recognized Buchanan as a wanted man in a crime magazine's "Wanted" section.

The informant was accompanying the patrolmen to the neighborhood where he said he frequently had seen Buchanan when he spotted him on a street corner. The patrolmen followed him into a store and asked Buchanan his name.

"Howard Herrick," he quickly replied.

Zukowski said, however, that as they waited for a patrol wagon he admitted his name was Buchanan.

Zukowski said Buchanan told him he was a trusty serving 1 to 2 years for a burglary.

The weatherman predicts tonight and tomorrow will be partly cloudy and a little cooler.

The low tonight will be around 50 with the thermometer reaching a high tomorrow of 74-78 degrees.

The lowest temperature in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. was 53 degrees. The mercury rose to 82 degrees at 2 p.m.

Signs 1-Year Pact

Tighe Appointed Tiger Manager

By BRUNO KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

DETROIT — In their first official act since assuming ownership Oct. 1, the new Detroit Tiger brass today named Jack Tighe as Tiger field manager for 1957.

The appointment came following speculation for the past three weeks that Tighe was the leading candidate for the job.

He received a one-year contract and becomes the 16th manager of the Tigers.

General Manager Spike Briggs, who made the announcement today, said the choice of Tighe had the full approval of the 11-man board of directors of the Tiger Baseball Co.

Tighe immediately named as his coaches Billy Hitchcock, third base coach for the past two seasons, Don Lund, former Tiger player and current field director-scout, and Willis Hedges, Detroit's minor league pitching coach.

All three have accepted. Tighe is 43, Hitchcock 38, Lund 33, and Hedges 50.

"It is the consensus of our management that Jack has earned the job through his faithful service in the Tiger organization. His record is excellent as a manager and coach, bearing out his leadership qualities," Briggs said.

Tighe began his professional baseball career as a player in the Tiger organization 20 years ago.

He managed a total of 13 full seasons in the minors, eight for the Tigers and four for the Cleveland Indians.

In selecting Lund and Hedges to work with Hitchcock, Tighe surrounded himself with both youth and experience.

Lund played outfield for the Tigers in 1933 and '34. He has been working as field director-scout in the Tigers minor league tryout camps. Lund is a native Detroit and was an all-star star at the University of Michigan.

Hedges, a former Cleveland Indian pitcher in the 1930's, managed several minor league teams since 1941 when he left the majors. In 1955, he became a scout and minor league pitching coach for Detroit.

Briggs said Tighe would have full control of the club on the field. "He will get no interference from the third floor offices at Briggs Stadium."

The informal "off the record" session was attended by Thomas J. Crawford, Fisher Body, J. B. Meidlein, Pontiac Motor, and J. Earl Lind, of GMC Truck and Coach.

A spokesman for the commission said no decision was reached on the site of the proposed yard. "The matter is still being discussed," he said.

The yard is planned to provide increased freight services for Pontiac and Fisher Body Divisions.

Detective Says Accused Killer Knew the Spot

Jury Hears Ziem Read 'Confession' After Fight to Block It

State Police Det. Melvin Kaufman testified today

Howard Wayne Moore, accused sex-killer of three-year-old Martha Little of Lake Orion, agreed to show detectives where her body was before he knew the body had been found.

Kaufman said Moore gave detectives directions to the scene when he was later driven to the lovers' lane in Independence Township where Martha was sexually molested and killed.

"Moore told us where to stop on the lane," Kaufman said. "That was about 25 feet from where the body was found."

County Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem asked, "Was the body there at that time?"

"No," Kaufman replied.

Testimony in the case will continue this afternoon. Dr. Edgar W. Kivela, assistant director of the State Police Crime Laboratories in Lansing, is expected to testify that fingernail scrapings taken from Moore after his arrest contained human blood, and that there was blood on his clothing.

Ziem said he hopes to rest his case this afternoon, after a second statement by Moore has been read.

In yesterday's testimony, Ziem read a statement in which Moore reportedly confessed beating the girl with a jackhandle. The statement was taken immediately after Moore reportedly confessed the killing. He later retracted it.

Admitted as evidence despite efforts by Defense Attorney Carl Ingraham to block it, the statement reportedly was made by Moore to Assistant Prosecutor Robert D. Long two days after Martha Moore's neighbor was found.

In the statement, Moore reportedly said he left his house after an argument with his recent bride over a grocery list. He said he didn't discover Martha was in the car with him until he had driven 10 miles to Mayhew road, near where the body was found next day.

The statement said Moore turned into a lovers' lane off Mayhew road and began molesting Martha.

"She started screaming," Ziem quoted Moore. "I got out of the car and got the jackhandle. I hit her in the head several times."

"Do you think she was dead when you left?" Long asked.

"Yes, sir," Moore reportedly replied.

Daily newspaper ballots returned showed that 322 communities favor Eisenhower, 147 Stevenson, and nine undecided.

15 years for the holdup of an Inkster taxi driver when he escaped from Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, Sept. 2, 1955.

Buchanan said he took the prison dump truck he was assigned to drive, ran out of gas near Stockbridge, 30 miles away, and spent the night in a barn.

Police said Buchanan told this story.

Next day, when he saw a couple leave the house, he broke in and stole a suit. He took another nap in the barn and was just leaving when a couple returned and saw him.

MAKES DEBUT FRIDAY—Longer by 2 1/4 inches and lower by an inch and a half, the new Chevrolet for 1957 will feature the Turboglide transmission which engineers claim produces uninterrupted driving force at all speeds. The sports sedan above makes use of twin, lance-shaped wind-splitters which replace the conventional hood ornament. Front bumper, grille and rear bumper assemblies blend into the bodies on all 1957 models. The cars will be displayed locally for the first time Friday, Oct. 19, at Matthews-Hargreaves, Inc., 34 Mill St.

160 Model-Color Combinations to Choose From

'57 Chevy Offers Fuel Injection, New Transmission

Optional fuel injection and a new automatic transmission are among the main engineering and styling changes in the 1957 Chevrolet, scheduled to go on display in showrooms Friday.

The Chevrolet also is 2 1/4 inches longer and 1 1/4 inches lower.

Chevrolet reports it will have 160 body models and 460 model-color combinations. The 1957 line will be produced in the Bel Air, the Two-Ten, the One-Fifty and Corvette Series. There will be six- and nine-passenger station wagons.

There will be one six-cylinder and four eight-cylinder engines, ranging in power output from 140 to 283 horsepower.

HOOD ORNAMENTS

A lowered hood emphasizes the horizontal sweep of body lines to flared rear fender fins. The conventional hood ornament is replaced by twin lance-shaped wind-splitters. Headlamps are somewhat farther apart than in 1956.

Throughout the 1957 model line-up glass area has been increased by as much as 75 square inches.

Instruments are concentrated under a deep, flat hood superimposed on the dash panel crown. Full-face gauges with red indicators are easier to read. Generator and oil pressure lights are at the top of the panel crown.

A new ventilation system operates by air passing through intake screens over each headlamp. The air reaches the passenger compartment through louvers at either edge of the dash.

Chevrolet is the first American car maker to offer fuel injection to replace the conventional carburetor system. The system injects fuel through nozzles with .001-inch orifices at each cylinder.

The system is said to increase economy, give readier firing at low speeds, faster warmup and eliminate carburetor icing.

Chevrolet calls its new automatic transmission "Turboglide." It consists of three turbines and two planetary gear sets. These are combined with a variable pitch stator and the conventional torque converter pump. As the turning force of one turbine lessens, another takes over to maintain constant drive.

The feel of shifting gears is completely eliminated. A so-called "hill retarder" is part of the new transmission system. The shift to this position on the selector plate sets up a turbulence in the oil in the converter. This creates drag on the rear wheels.

Potter Prods GOP Voters

Launches 'Minute Men for Ike' at Barn Dance in Waterford

Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich) last night launched what he said he hopes will be a nationwide movement to get out the GOP vote Nov. 6.

"Minute Men for Eisenhower" started sounding their warning the Democrats are coming at a Waterford Township barn dance thrown by realtor Donald E. White.

Potter, speaker for the evening, said the "minute man" idea is "an effort to generate enthusiasm to get more people to work for the election of President Eisenhower."

Each minute man, he said, pledges his own vote to the President and obtains four additional pledges from friends in a variation of the "pyramid club" idea.

"It has a snowballing effect," Potter said.

CARDS AND PINS

Four GOP workers dressed in colonial costumes distributed pins and printed postcards among the estimated 1,200 North Oakland County residents who attended.

Pontiac City Affairs

Walton Subdivision Plat OK'd

After being tabled one week, Pontiac city commissioners last night approved the Walton Subdivision plat and a bond for construction of a sidewalk in the subdivision.

Commissioner Floyd Miles last week requested the postponement to study a proposed 30-foot private street construction in the subdivision.

"I still dislike the 36-foot street but have to concede that this is about all that can be done," Miles said last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Little had asked approval of the plat and bond. The $1,361.25 bond was for construction of a sidewalk on the south side of Walton boulevard.

LAW EXPLAINED

(City Engineer Lewis Wren explained the plat was required under the "plat law" which states that if more than five lots are developed, they must be platted with the city.)

Commissioners expressed fear last week that residents of the subdivision might request city improvements on the private street, on which the city has no control over, Wren pointed out.

In other action last night, commissioners concurred with a City Health Dept. recommendation denying a food license to James H. Dolan, 164 Auburn Ave.

Waives Examination on Breakin Charge

An alleged getaway driver charged in the minor break-in of a grocery store, 78 Lull St. last Friday, yesterday waived examination on a charge of breaking and entering.

Arthur Henry, 34, of 355 Howard McNeil St. was held in jail under $300 bond set by Pontiac Municipal Judge Cecil McCallum pending arraignment in Oakland County Circuit Court Monday.

A partner, James H. Chambers, 29, of 446 Branch St., who police say admitted cutting his wrist climbing through a broken store window, also is held under the same bond pending circuit court appearance Monday.

Drug Store Burglars Steal $93 in Goods

Thieves stole merchandise worth $93 from a drug store at 377 S. Saginaw St. Monday night, according to Pontiac Police.

Cuff links, the clasp, wallets, two wrist watches and two cigarette lighters were missing, according to the owner, Fred Beedle, of 689 E. Pike St.

Entry was made through a rear window, broken after bars were removed, police said.

4 Communities to Double Populations in 40 Years

BIRMINGHAM — Population for Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills and Township and Troy will jump from 32,230 in 1960 to 64,000 in 2,000, according to figures released this week by the north Evergreen Authority.

The authority, planning for sewers and interceptors for the four municipalities, noted the progression of costs and installations in the coming years by five and ten year periods.

Birmingham's population of 11,000 now served by a sewer already installed in the area, will increase only to 15,000 the figures predict.

But Bloomfield Hills, which has only 130 served by sewers now, will have about 3,200 served by 1960 under the North Evergreen plan. The population will have risen to 7,700 by the year 2,000, they predict.

Marquis Childs Arriving for 2 Town Hall Talks

BIRMINGHAM—Marquis Childs will bring not only on-the-scene political commentary to the Birmingham Town Hall audiences tomorrow and Friday mornings, but also notes from his last summer's attendance at the Geneva Conference and a trip this fall to India.

He will open the town hall series at the Birmingham Theater at 11 a.m. both mornings, with talks entitled "Washington Calling," after his famed column.

Childs is constantly on hand where news is made. His columns from Washington for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and United Features Syndicate, special assignments as for Time magazine's recent symposium on election trends, and his appearance on "Meet the Press" on the news question—all contribute to his authority and fund of information.

The question and answer sessions with Childs during the after-lecture luncheons at the Birmingham Country Club will give the audience opportunity to get his views on many problems uppermost at this election time.

Birmingham Town Hall is sponsored by St. Anne's Guild of St. James' Church. The series of six yearly lectures is offered in duplicate on the two days because of the very large demand for tickets. Ticket sales have passed 1,000 for tomorrow's lecture, and are near to a capacity crowd of over 1,300 for Friday's talk.

WCSO of Embury Methodist Church will stage a rummage sale this Friday at the church, on 14

Mile Road (two blocks east of Woodward, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.).

The planning board last night reaffirmed its recommendation of business C zoning for the Lambert property on 14 Mile road, although the property owners had offered 25-foot right of way for highway. Their attorney had stated that if a satisfactory agreement (business A zoning) could not be reached the ruling would be tested in courts.

The attorney has questioned whether a business C zoning between two business A zones would be upheld in court.

The block bounded by Hunter, Oakland, Lawndale and Madison should be rezoned business C as asked by Mrs. Harry Barton and James Cumiskey in a new petition, the plan group recommended. Both recommendations will go to city commissioners for final decision.

Mrs. Allison Greenfield Kay, who came to Birmingham in 1936, died last night at her home, 671 Wallace St., after a long illness.

She was the widow of David Kay, and leaves a daughter, Mary, at home; a son, Robert in Royal Oak, and three granddaughters. She belonged to the Presbyterian Church of Edinburg, Scotland, where she was born.

Service will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Manley-Bailey Funeral Home with burial in Roseland Park.

Asks City to Aid Civil Defense

Heaton Says Pontiac in 'Bad Shape' in Event of Emergency

Arthur Heaton, supervisor of the Pontiac Ground Observer Corps, pleaded for increased civil defense preparedness in the city, which he said is "in pretty bad shape."

Appearing before the City Commission last night, Heaton requested financial assistance from the city to get "the civil defense job done in Pontiac."

His criticism followed adoption by the commission of the city's first civil defense ordinance which will coordinate city departments to act in case of enemy or natural disaster.

City Manager W. K. Willman, civil defense director, told Heaton that the city was matching federal funds for civil defense sufficiently. He added that this money was being used for purchase of defense equipment.

FEW ORGANIZATION
"We have very few civil defense organizations in Pontiac," Heaton said. He mentioned the Ground Observer Corps, and auxiliaries of the police and fire departments.

He suggested formation of a citizens' civil defense committee.

"I am not criticizing your ordinance," he told the commissioners, "but I don't think Mr. Willman, Mayor Donaldson or most of the commissioners have enough time to run this program."

"Someone must be designated to push this civil defense into shape," he urged.

Nixon, Wife at Side, Whistle-Stops Through Ohio, Scooping Votes

BY RUTH MONTGOMERY
INS Special Correspondent

WITH NIXON ON TOUR (INS)—What makes Dick Nixon tick? Why do audiences that come to boo remain to cheer, and shake his hand?

This correspondent, whistle-stopping the heartland of America with the most controversial vice president of the century, has shared his own amazement at the colossal and enthusiastic crowds in Democratic strongholds of Ohio.

Perhaps it is the unexpected thoughtfulness which flashes forth so spontaneously from the earnest young campaigner that captivates the hinterlanders who overlook the line of march.

The welcoming rally at Warren-Youngstown Airport last night provided a case in point. One sign dancing merrily among hundreds of I-Like-and-Dick banners caught the vice president's eye.

Acknowledging the flattering greeting from 1,500 cheering Ohioans who had made the long trek to the air terminal, Dick grinned boyishly: "But the sign I really like says 'I love Pat,' because I do, too."

MAKES A HIT
The folksy tribute paid by the campaigning husband to the loyal wife who has traveled back and forth across the continent at his side for 24 long days seemed to touch the heartstrings of the crowd.

The approving cheers still resounded in their ears as Pat and Dick began the nine-mile motor drive into Democratic Warren. To the astonishment of accompanying newsmen, every crossroads and city street corner bulged three-deep with friendly crowds which—despite the darkness and the inconvenient supper hour—had turned out seemingly en masse to applaud the mere No. 2 man on the GOP ticket.

Unofficial crowd estimates ran from 15,000 to 30,000 in the industrial town which gave its vote to Adlai Stevenson in 1952.

The overflow demonstrations in Warren and neighboring Youngstown capped a long day of almost incredible activity.

Besides four major and a half-dozen minor speeches, with three press conferences tossed in for good measure, Nixon and his entourage also transferred to small two-motor planes for a three-hour side trip to Defiance College for a "non-political" address.

STOPS FOR POLIO VICTIM
There, nearly 1,000 Boy Scouts from neighboring counties formed a solid phalanx along the streets. At one point, while waving gaily to the crowds, Nixon signaled a sudden stop, leaped from his convertible and rushed to the side of 15-year-old Sharon Bauer, who, crippled from polio, lay on a cot alongside the road.

The second lady followed quickly, and while Dick presented Sharon with a fountain pen and signed card, Pat stroked her wasted arm and complimented her on her sparkling blue eyes.

The little tableau was so moving that one hard-bitten newsmen observed irreverently: "You mean she isn't going to rise from her bed and walk now?"

So effective and efficient is the tireless Nixon performance that his single boo-boo of the day—a tongue-twist during his address to Defiance students—provided almost welcome relief for impressed reporters.

"SAT ON COACH"

Trying to strike a sympathetic chord, he confided that although he wasn't good enough to make the first string football team at Whittier College, "I sat on the coach with a bench."

Because he joined so heartily in the merriment at his own expense, the slip probably proved a better vote-getter than his earnest plea for a greater interest in world affairs.

In the big chartered plane which he shares with accompanying newsmen and staffers, Nixon dons a navy-and-green plaid smoking jacket to save wear and tear on his suit coat.

"Simultaneously, Pat slips out of her suit jacket and into a soft sweater "which won't muss, thank goodness."

At his incredibly numerous press conferences, Dick lounges easily, right hand in pocket and left hand gesturing for emphasis. No loaded question seems too hot for him to handle easily and tactfully.

"GENTLES" OPPOSITION

The "new Nixon" treats the opposition gently—almost tenderly at times—as he seems to lament its "lack of understanding of the great Eisenhower program."

Unlike Adlai Stevenson, who labors over his speeches to the last semicolon at the final moment, Nixon prepared one basic speech three weeks ago which he knows so well that, with variations, he can repeat it backwards—and sometimes does.

Excerpts from his speeches at each major stop are in the hands of the press well in advance. The contrast with the Stevenson operation is so marked that one of the Democratic presidential nominee's top press secretaries was moved to sigh last week:

"Even Jim Hagerly couldn't do anything with our guy. Nixon and Eisenhower will listen to advice, but Adlai is a thwarted journalist. He'll still be working over his speech at the funeral of every accompanying newspaperman."

The forgotten man at every rally yesterday in Ohio—even though he managed a personal introduction from each platform—was George Bender, the GOP

Senate incumbent who finds himself opposed by the present Democratic governor, Frank Lausche.

He wanders aimlessly—and alone—through the crowds and apologetically asks occasionally to sit with the press. Ike and Dick are expected to carry Ohio. Bender is not, as of this writing.

PAT IS CHARMER

Pat Nixon, a shy wren four years ago, has blossomed into the most effective crowd-enthraller of this bitterly tough campaign.

Tireless, hard-working, always in the thick of the fighting, the gentle charmer holds her own press conferences for society reporters at each stop.

She hit her peak in Toledo when a local newswall asked whether she had ever thought of writing a book about her experiences.

The auburn-haired, brown-eyed veteran of two vice presidential campaigns looked pensive for only a moment before replying quietly:

"If I ever do, it will be called 'I Also Ran.'"

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS

1 OUT OF 3 DOES!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a two-month restful sleep are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms... truly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pills must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating causes the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved, insoluble goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults. Perfected by Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for 160 years.

Dewey Says That Adlai Exaggerates Dangers From Radioactive H-Fallout

FLINT 10—Former New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey says Adlai Stevenson is unduly alarmed about the dangers of radioactive fallout from hydrogen bomb tests.

"He (Stevenson) had the unmitigated gall to say we are in grave danger from testing the hydrogen bomb. That simply is not so and even Stevenson knows it's not so if he'd only do his homework."

Dewey declared in a national radio and television address here last night.

Dewey, the GOP standard bearer in 1944 and 1948, devoted about five minutes of his 28-minute speech to giving the Republican answer to Stevenson's proposal that the United States take the lead in seeking to end hydrogen bomb tests.

Dewey said the proposal "is still an invitation to national suicide."

Dewey said the National Academy of Science shares his view. Stevenson too cited scientific support in a Monday night address when he discussed his concern over the "huge quantities of radioactive materials pumped into the air current" with every bomb explosion.

Stevenson said that the United States could resume testing the bomb within eight weeks if it was learned that some other nation had violated an agreement to suspend tests. To this Dewey replied: "Our Pacific fleet was destroyed at Pearl Harbor with ordinary weapons in 80 minutes. Our greatest cities could be wiped out by the hydrogen bomb in 80 seconds. If the Soviet Union should take advantage of the eight weeks of head start they are so generously offered, the whole free world could be crushed."

Dewey, a native of Owosso, spoke at a fried chicken box lunch supper sponsored by the Genesee County Republican Committee.

Jewels by Synthesis

CHICAGO—For many years, bits of precious stones, real "jewels," were used for watch bearings, but now mass-produced synthetic sapphires are used. They have no cracks or flaws, are cheaper, and give longer and better service.

The state of Vera Cruz in Mexico supplies an estimated one-third of the entire world supply of vanilla extract and some associated products.

Eisenhower Encounters Tough Battle in Retaining Tennessee

By ARTHUR EDSON

NASHVILLE, Tenn. 16 — Other voters may not know whether they want Dwight D. Eisenhower or Adlai E. Stevenson for President. But such doubts don't assail R. C. Barret, a onetime sawmill worker in Covington, near Tennessee's western edge.

"I'll vote the Democratic ticket," said Barret, a frisky 73-year-old. "Always have, and always will."

On the other side of the state, and of the political fence, is Mrs. Oscar Shockley, who lives on a farm near Morristown, in eastern Tennessee.

Mrs. Shockley said, of course, she's a Republican. And is her husband too?

"Naturally," Mrs. Shockley said. "I wouldn't have married him if he hadn't been."

These two examples illustrate the rewards, and the problems, that each presidential candidate has in Tennessee.

Eisenhower can count on staunch Republican support in the eastern Tennessee hills where four years ago he rolled up a 95,185-vote margin. This enabled him to overcome Democratic advantages in the rest of the state, and to squeak through a winner, by only the third Republican presidential candidate in history to carry Tennessee.

Guy L. Smith, editor of the Knoxville Journal and the Republican campaign manager, says that by getting out a larger vote the GOP margin will be increased. His prediction: Eisenhower by 100,000 votes.

Or take Ray Jenkins, whom many will remember as the Senate committee lawyer in the celebrated hearings involving the Army and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis). Jenkins, a loyal GOP money raiser, said: "I speak to you with frankness. Up to within 10 days ago, I had written Tennessee off."

But he says Eisenhower's appearance at Lexington, Ky., "He came out there, with his bouncing stride, so strong and vigorous"—recharged GOP enthusiasm.

Even so, Democrats believe that with Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee as his vice-presidential candidate, Stevenson shouldn't have too much trouble cutting away that narrow margin Eisenhower had in 1952. Buford Ellington, the Democratic campaign director, predicts: "A landslide victory."

Any impressions of a state as varied as Tennessee are bound to be risky, but nevertheless here are a few that stand out:

That many farmers—especially in western Tennessee where dry weather has multiplied their problems—are unhappy, but no one can say how many are disgruntled enough to switch their votes.

That anyone who doubts Eisenhower's personal popularity needs only to talk with the voters. It's hard to find a Republican who isn't going to support him, and even the Democrats often speak of him kindly.

That the race, at least in Tennessee, seems to boil down to this: Eisenhower vs. the Democratic party. A voter will say, "I'm for Ike," without mentioning the Republicans, or "I'm a Democrat," without mentioning Stevenson. But there are exceptions, such as A. H. Kirkpatrick, who runs a shoe store in Lebanon. He says of Stevenson: "I think he's the smartest man we've ever had up for president. A fine face, intelligent."

Now let's drop in on a few voters and listen to what they are saying.

U.S. Highway 51 heads northeast out of Memphis. Here the land produces cotton, those stacks that seem inevitable wherever cotton is grown, and Democrats.

At Covington, a county seat town of 5,000, J. D. Walk was explaining why the farmer is unhappy. With his brother Hollie, Walk farms 400 acres.

Walk said four years ago he had all his machinery paid for and $8,000, but now that nest egg has shrunk to $2,500. He figures farm prices have dropped at a time when everything else has gone up. Did Walk know of any farmers who would change their vote? "Yes," he said. "An old fellow out our way—fine old gentleman—came into the store the other day. Around 20 of us were there. He said he voted for Eisenhower, but now he knew he was wrong and he wanted to apologize, not only to us, but to the whole state of Tennessee."

Tom Anderson, young assistant president of the bank, said: "You'll find very few outspoken Republicans around here. I don't know of over six or seven in the whole county."

Everybody Does It

Police Quiz 35,000, Vow Never to Give Up

1 Year Search for Killer of 3 Chicago Boys Plods On

CHICAGO (INS) — Grim-faced cops tomorrow round out a full year of 16-hour days fighting to solve one of the nation's most heinous crimes—the strip-and-beat slaying of three Chicago boys.

Three nude bodies were found Oct. 18, 1935, in a West Side forest. Bobby Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, also 13, and his 11-year-old brother, Anton, had trooped off two days earlier for a Sunday afternoon movie in Chicago's Loop.

Their disappearance was a mystery until the bodies were found. Then a greater mystery arose. Where the boys went that Sunday afternoon, where they were killed, why they were killed, who did it—all stand unanswered 12 months later.

STILL DIGGING
A special team of detectives—many of them volunteers and fathers themselves—is pressing to find the answers. Their chief, Sgt. Thomas J. Mulvey, says:

"Our men are on the job from 8 a.m. to midnight every day, and sometimes longer."

The death of the Schuessler brothers left Anton Sr. and Eleanor childless. All the dreams and sacrifices—all the portions of a parent's life he heaps on his children—walked out the door that Sunday afternoon.

Anton Schuessler, who delighted his wife with his robust Bavarian folk dances during their courtship, had grown old at 42. Much of his aging came from the 12 or 14 hours he worked each day in his tailor shop.

Only weeks after the double funeral for his sons, Schuessler was taken to a rest home. His heart stopped beating two days later.

Alone, Eleanor Schuessler sank to the brink of collapse. She issued an open letter to the killer, saying: "You have ruined my life . . . You might as well come kill me too."

BEST AND RECOVERY
Physicians, the parish priest and family friends rallied to ease her anguish. They persuaded her to take a trip, get a rest. It worked. Mrs. Schuessler managed to recover some of the hope that sustains a person from one day to the next.

Last June she married Valentin Kujawa, a longtime friend of her late husband and a widower with two children. The 37-year-old Kujawa said: "We're going to try to salvage what we have left."

In the Peterson family, the mystery killer had snuffed out the life of the eldest son. Bobby was the idol of his sisters, Barbara, 7, and Susan, 5. Their kid brother, Tommy, is only three, and he occasionally demands, "Where's Bobby?"

Peterson said he always felt Bobby could make a name for himself in baseball. The hard-muscled youngster had become a mainstay of his Little League team.

Bobby and his 40-year-old dad, Malcolm, were "close." The boy showed a knack for Peterson's carpenter trade. Together they were enlarging the family garage—before that fateful Sunday.

Detectives have quizzed more than 35,000 persons, 5,000 in the Chicago area alone. Other leads have carried the probe to New York, Los Angeles, and Honolulu.

BODIES DUG UP

Scientists have analyzed adhesive gum from tape used to gag the victims. Amid smudges marking the bodies, laboratory microscopes detected grains of a rare metal, special earth used on golf courses, and pollen from sunflowers. The victims' bodies were exhumed for further tests.

Chicago Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor said:

"We haven't given up. We never will. Some day we will solve this case."

4-H Clubs Plan Multi-County Square Dance

Oakland County 4-H Service Club members are planning a multi-county square dance party from 8 to 12 p.m. Saturday in the New Hudson School gymnasium.

According to Jack Worthington, county 4-H agent, members of the service club in surrounding counties have been invited.

Ray Lamb, county 4-H agent from Jackson, formerly of Wayne, will call the dances.

Each club represented will present a five-minute skit and each group will review its past year's program, Worthington said.

Microscope Opens Door to Multiple Sclerosis Cure

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The powerful electron microscope has thrown new light on construction of the nervous system — knowledge that could eventually help solve the mystery of multiple sclerosis and similar diseases.
The discovery concerns a substance known as myelin, found in the protective coating around nerves in the brain and spinal cord. Myelin is attacked and destroyed by degenerative diseases of the nervous system.
Dr. Sarah A. Luse, assistant professor of pathology at the Washington University Medical School, reporting on a two-year study, said it revealed myelin in the central nervous system actually is formed by and is a part of the nerve-protecting cells.
Until recent years myelin was regarded as inert matter of unknown origin deposited around the nerves.
Dr. Edward W. Dempsey, head of the anatomy department at the school and a member of the research review panel of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, explained the significance of Dr. Luse's findings.

"The information on the origin and nature of myelin is a first-rate scientific discovery, not necessarily because of its relation to any disease, but because of the light it throws on the way the nervous system is constructed," Dr. Dempsey said.
"Every piece of information adds one more clue which finally could be used in unraveling the entire progress of multiple sclerosis and similar diseases of the central nervous system."
Some 60 scientists attended a conference here, sponsored by the multiple sclerosis society, at which Dr. Luse presented electron microscope pictures. Magnified up to 100,000 times, they showed how

Nixon to Speak on Civil Rights

Will Air His Views on Issue in Talk Today at Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Vice President Nixon, who has been crossing swords with Democrats on economics and defense, moves into a new field of controversy today—civil rights.

The vice president scheduled a speech here on the civil rights issue, one he has already mentioned as a field in which the Republicans, as he put it, are better organized to be effective than the Democrats.

Nixon drew applause and cheers at a Republican rally in Buffalo last night when he said the American people would be taking a "fearful risk" in electing Democratic nominee Adlai Stevenson president in view of his stand on H-bomb tests.

Nixon said Stevenson proposes that "we quit testing our hydrogen bombs provided the Communists agree to do likewise." The vice president said this would be a policy of "military weakness and naive reliance on Communist promises" and would "increase the chances for war."

He said Stevenson has "hedged to an extent" on his original suggestions, but was still proposing to bring about a situation that would sacrifice "the advantage that the United States has in the field of nuclear weapons."

After his speech here, the vice president flies to Ithaca, N.Y., where a nationwide gathering of college newspaper editors is in progress.

His press conference with some of the collegiate newsmen will be nationally televised and broadcast tonight by CBS radio and television.
The time: 8 p.m., EST.

Threat of War Great in Jordan

Arab Legion's Loyalty Split for Egypt, Iraq as Vote Nears

LONDON (INS)—Tottering Jordan appears to many British Middle Eastern experts even more of a war danger zone than Suez.

Some think the situation in Jordan is so dangerous it could touch off a general Arab-Israeli war.

These experts do not deny the gravity of the "eye for an eye" policies of retaliation on either side of the Jordan-Israel border, but they say the spectacle of a deteriorating Jordan is even more disturbing.

The British have been expecting trouble in Jordan since March, when young King Hussein summarily dismissed Glubb Pasha as commander of the Arab Legion.

BUILT LOYAL TROOPS

They reasoned that Glubb, a British officer, not only had built the Arab Legion into an efficient fighting force, but had managed to subordinate the tribal allegiances of various elements of his command to a singleness of purpose and loyalty to the Jordan ruler.

Once he was gone and command taken over by Jordanian officers, the old factionalism broke out.

It has been impossible to tell whether officers friendly to Egypt or friendly to Iraq might finally break the legion into bits, leading to partition of the country.

Hussein has been nervously aware of some such possibility and even more aware, perhaps, of the danger of Israel choosing this moment of his country's weakness to pounce.

This fear of Israel had much to do with his decision not to bring into Jordan a division of Iraqi troops he had pleaded for earlier to help him against intrigue by Egyptians and Saudi Arabians.

Iraq and Jordan, ruled by members of the Hashemite Dynasty, have this royal family tie to split them off from the rival Saudi Dynasty and the anticolonial Egyptian dictator.

VOICE COMING UP

A parliamentary election is scheduled Sunday. Hussein apparently hoped to strengthen his position by bringing in the friendly Iraqi troops.

The fear that Israel would consider such a move provocation for war and the possibility that Egyptian agents would stir dangerous riots in Amman led Hussein to cancel his invitation.

Most of the proEgyptian element in the country is found in the rest-less refugee colony of more than 800,000 Arabs living in Jordan as "displaced persons" from Israel.

Aims to Keep Peace at Democratic Rally

LOS ANGELES (AP)—College boys are taking politics seriously.

Police arrested Harold K. Kachigan, 18, for carrying a pistol at a Democratic rally on the University of Southern California campus. They said he had an unloaded .22-caliber pistol stuck in the waistband of his trousers.

Police quoted Kachigan as saying students of Republican persuasion were picketing the rally and he thought sight of the pistol might keep things peaceful.

Fashion Hint

Often the larger figure is narrow shouldered and wide hipped and in this case the wide collar is perfect balance but if short-necked, you will prefer a deep V opening and a narrow or no collar at all.

275 Attend Musicales Tea

Two hundred and seventy-five attended the tea held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Jack Rothberg (right) of Lake Angelus. She is photographed with Mrs. Paul A. Kern of Henry Clay avenue, chairman of the scholarship tea.

Mrs. Victor M. Lindquist (right) is one of Pontiac's finest artists. She has sung for Tuesday Musicales since she was a high school student, and has thrilled Pontiac audiences with special requests on many occasions since. Her neighbor, Mrs. Harold D. Babb of Pirrin drive, came as her guest to the tea at the Rothberg home.

Gathering Benefits Scholarship Fund

Two hundred and seventy-five members and guests of Pontiac Tuesday Musicales attended the scholarship tea held at the Lake Angelus home of Mrs. Jack Rothberg yesterday.

During the tea held from 2 until 5 o'clock, the guests wandered about the beautiful grounds, stopping here and there to admire certain shrubbery or the many fall flowers.

Background music was furnished by members of the Junior Musicales including Sydney Williams, Barbara Broadway, Margaret Studebaker, Jack Horner, Jerry Exline, Sandy Annas and Janet Livingstone.

Proceeds from the tea were turned over to the scholarship committee to be used for scholarships to the National Music Camp at Interlochen. This camp is an educational institution for those interested in pursuing a career in music.

Some of the early members of Pontiac Musicales were there to talk over the days when it was founded in 1923 by Mrs. S. A. Kossell.

And then there were the new members who were there because they, too, have expressed an interest in learning more about music.

Mrs. Paul A. Kern was general chairman of the tea assisted by the Past Presidents' Assembly, counselors and mothers of the Junior Musicales members.

Presiding at the tea service were Mrs. Donald B. Hogue, Mrs. Addison K. Oakley, Mrs. Roland Gegoux, Mrs. Dora Dawson, Mrs. C. H. Purdy, Mrs. Gordon Woolcock, Mrs. W. H. Sink and Mrs. Lester G. Snell.

The imported Italian pastel green tablecloth was of organdy and lace, and a bowl of white and pastel green chrysanthemums was flanked by tall white tapers.

Questions May Prevent Job Strife

By ANNE MEYWOOD
A great deal of trouble in life comes from our tendency to sit and stew and wonder why so-and-so does such-and-such, instead of just up and asking. In offices, particularly, this can be a devastating problem.

For example, you have been given to understand that when a promotion comes up in your department, you're in line for it. But when the promotion does come up, it goes to Susie instead.

You sit and stew and decide that Susie must have cut your throat. Your work suffers. You get mad.

And all along, you could have quietly, and in a friendly way, just asked.

You might have found out that unknown to you, this specific job required a knowledge of Spanish, which Susie has and you haven't. Or you might have found out that your tendency to come in late occasionally was the mark against you, since the job required being a model of promptness as an example to others.

JUST TOO BUSY

Of course, the department head should have explained it to you at the time, but, frequently, they're just too busy. So instead of building it all up in your mind, just ask.

A similar problem arises about raises.

You've been given to understand that you'll get a raise by Oct. 1, say. The day comes and goes, and no raise.

You decide that the heads of the firm are cheapskates, or your boss just promised it to get you to take the job.

If you're an inferiority-complex type, you decide your work is terrible and you're failing.

WORK SUFFERS

This goes on for quite some time, until you're a nervous wreck and your work is really suffering. But if you had just up and asked, you might have found that it was a red-tape error—the boss thought the raise had gone through.

Of course, you have to handle your asking carefully. You can't just barge in and demand your rights.

But as soon as some injustice comes up—a promotion given to someone else, a raise not delivered, or some such thing—ask your superior if you could have a few minutes talk with him.

Do it right away, before you have time to build it up and let it fester in your mind. Then calmly and pleasantly ask why the promised promotion or raise hasn't come.

Take it for granted that it might be an oversight or it might be some inadequacy of yours you would like to correct.

Don't assume that it's calculated, cold-blooded injustice. Chances are it will all work out beautifully if you'll just ask!

What to Do If Ex-Friend Sends Gift

By EMILY POST

"I have been exchanging anniversary presents with a friend for the past five years. She had an anniversary the beginning of this year, at which time I gave her a very nice present.

About a month later we had quite a serious quarrel and I haven't seen her since.

"I will have an anniversary shortly and there is a possibility that she will send me an anniversary present in return for the one I sent her.

"In the event that she does send one, should I accept it or return it to her? I would rather not accept anything from her. Of course, she may not send anything, but if she does I would like to be prepared as to what to do."

Answer: If the quarrel was so serious that you really never care to have her as a friend again, then you can return the gift. But I feel it is always better to be amiable than to further a quarrel, which often proves to have been a mistake.

"Dear Mrs. Post: A friend of mine wrote a letter to her married sister who lives in another city. She addressed the letter to her sister alone.

"This sister wrote back saying that she was wrong in doing this and that all letters should be addressed to them jointly. She said her name alone signified that she was a widow or divorcee.

"Is this friend guilty of a breach of etiquette in addressing her sister alone? I do not think so, but would like your opinion."

Answer: I have never heard such ridiculous nonsense! Surely the average married woman receives a very large majority of her mail addressed to her alone.

"Dear Mrs. Post: It seems to be a prevailing habit for people to greet others by saying, 'Hello, how are you?' Is 'Fine, thank you, a proper reply?"

Answer: "Very well, thank you" is better form.

SHAPING THE HAIR

by Edythe McCulloch

The hair cut has the same relation to a hair style that cutting out a dress pattern has to the finished garment.

You wouldn't dream of sewing odd pieces of material together and expect them to make an attractive dress, the same is true in hair dressing. Too much hair causes it to be bulky and bumpy. The lovely lines of the hair style are lost. It is an art to cut one hundred thousand hairs (number on the average head) into a harmonious blend which will serve as a proper foundation for the intricate curves and curls of our modern hair styles.

There is a vast difference between cutting the hair short and shaping and thinning for the purpose of removing excess lengths and bulk. A good hair cut improves the appearance of the head of hair even before it is set. This is one infallible way of knowing that your hair has been properly shaped.

No Gloom in Colorful Rainwear

PARIS (INS)—The well-dressed woman—wherever she is—is destined to look more romantic than ever—in a downpour.

Even in Paris, according to a top Parisian rainwear manufacturer, the drab old raincoat is a psychological mistake.

Women need more feminine and cheerful styles to counteract the gloomy mood of a rainy day. They also need to wear flattering shades to counter-balance the grey, unfriendly sky.

Trend-setting in the new rainwear, the "Fair Lady" look appears in caped coats, romantic shades and dressy garments for the day you feel like walking in the rain with your date.

ALL-WEATHER STYLES

The new Parisian daytime raincoats come in all-weather styles made of water repellent fabrics. Very smart are coachman coats with elbow-length capes. A velvet one with a green, blue and wine-red plaid pattern is worn with a matching water-repellent hat.

Maive gabardine or olive green velvet are also suggested as suitable materials for "Fair Lady" raincoats.

If it rains the day you meet your best boy friend, you can still look bewitchingly romantic in a wine-red nylon taffeta raincoat or a really dressy cocktail coat of black and red brocade treated to be water-repellent.

Rain capes made of loden for daytime and silk for evening come with modish hoods and look as pretty as they are practical.

Dinner room chairmen are Mrs. Roy M. Jones and Mrs. Leon Thomas. At the serving table will be Mrs. William Brandt.

Men of the parish under the supervision of Darwin Simpson, president of the Men's Club, will also assist. Paul Willits is the chef in charge of the kitchen, assisted by Angus McDonald, Jay Stockwell and Thomas Clifton.

Richard Frye is in charge of the "dish detail" and James L. Brown will supervise the setting up of tables and chairs in the dining room.

A strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, was her only jewelry, and she carried a white orchid surrounded by carnations and lilies-of-the-valley on a white heirloom Testament.

Mrs. Donald J. Kelly served her niece as matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Guy DeMeyer, Mrs. George Woods, Mrs. Robert Shafto, Sandra Brown, Ann Mattson and Linda Shelton. Jackie Hartsoe was flower girl.

Show Trust in Child's Judgment

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

"Our son Leonard has two more years of college," writes Mrs. F. "Last summer he worked for a building firm which offered him a permanent job at a good salary. He wanted to take it instead of going back to school.

"He finally agreed to go back only on condition that he can quit next January if he still feels that college is a waste of time. My husband, who has struggled hard to put the boy through college, is sick with disappointment . . .

Let's suppose the worst. Suppose Leonard DOES quit college

Better Slim Fat Arms by Exercise

The parts of a woman that are not covered by clothes need to look good on their own. Bulgy hips can be modified with a good foundation, but there are no foundations for flabby arms.

Many women with ugly arms try to keep them concealed under long sleeves. One woman managed this so successfully that her friends were surprised to discover she had worn an elastic bandage over a scar on her upper arm for many years.

Most of us cannot do this. It's hard to find sufficient clothes that are becoming with the limitation of long sleeves. And most of us have to appear in a bathing suit or an evening gown at some time or other.

Exercise is the cure for flabbiness of the upper arm. Dieting may peel off pounds around the waist, but it takes exercise to firm the upper arm into good looks.

Here's a good one: Stand up straight, with the arms at the sides. Raise the arms overhead, clapping the palms together straight above your head. Then throw the arms down, to a position straight out, on a level with the shoulders, palms up.

Then bend the elbows so the fingers touch the shoulders. Then return the arms to the sides.

This one should be done with vigor, as though the arms had to push the air hard to get through. Work up to doing it 10 times a day.

next January. If this decision shows poor judgment, isn't it conceivable that Leonard will see this in time to change it—and return to college if not next September, the one following?

What could make it impossible for him to replace his poor judgment with good?

Distrust of his good judgment could do it.

FOSTER DISTRUST

His parents contribute to that distrust every time they insist that this wish to quit college shows bad judgment. Every time they do it they suggest that Leonard is incapable of good judgment.

If his decision does turn out to be mistaken, he may be so mesmerized by their distrust of his judgment that he stops trying to make any—and submits to mistakes instead of making the new decisions that would correct them. This is the only real peril in Leonard's situation.

If his parents have his present welfare in mind, they will stop attacking his judgment of college as a waste of time.

Though they may not agree with it, they will accept it, saying with love and conviction to their son: "When the time comes for you to decide for or against college, you will know all that you need to know to make the wise decision."

The trouble always is, in these situations, that we parents think that the problem is making Leonard see things our way. We see our obligation as getting that college degree for him.

NOT OUR OBLIGATION

It is not our obligation. Leonard will live life well not because we've got him a college degree, but because we have given him the priceless gift of self-trust.

No mistake he can make justifies our withholding that gift from him. Only fear's limited and selfish vision tells us that keeping him in college is more important than keeping him believing in himself.

Sometimes, our refusal to credit a child with a growth of strength he will need to correct some mistake is our own self-distrust manipulating us.

Our own mistakes have so infected us with doubt of our own wisdom that we can't trust life to unfold wisdom to Leonard.

Diane Sue Miller Speaks Bridal Vows at All Saints

A chapel-length gown of clipped imported Chantilly lace fashioned on princess lines with a Queen Anne collar was worn by Diane Sue Miller for her marriage to Louis Warrington Jr.

A Juliet cap of lace trimmed with seed pearls and sequins secured her fingertip veil of silk illusion, and she carried orange blossoms centered with a white orchid on a white prayerbook.

Diane is the daughter of Mrs. Oscar Eckman of Woodbine drive and Dr. H. A. Miller of Wrennah drive. Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Warrington of Winkelman drive are Louis' parents.

The Rev. C. George Widdfield performed the Saturday evening ceremony in All Saints Episcopal Church in the presence of 60 guests.

Donna Brown was the bride's maid of honor. Her other attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gary D. Miller. Their dresses were of winter green and gold color, respectively.

Tiny matching hats with nose veils completed their costumes. They carried arrangements of gold and bronze chrysanthemums.

ASSISTS BROTHER

Louis asked his brother, Robert Warrington, to serve as his best man. Gary D. Miller seated the guests.

Mrs. Eckman greeted her guests at the reception held at Hotel Waldron wearing a royal blue dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow orchids.

A chignon brown dress with matching accessories and a corsage of green orchids was the choice of Mrs. Warrington for her son's wedding.

MRS. LOUIS WARRINGTON JR.

For traveling to Chicago, the bride changed to a seafoam green sheath dress with matching hat and black accessories. The newlyweds will reside in Flint.

Guests were present for the wedding from Flint, Grosse Pointe, Ferndale, Lexington, Detroit and Cleveland, Ohio.

April-May Group Conducts Meeting

Mrs. John Livingston opened her home on Berkshire road for the Friday meeting of the April-May Group of First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. H. W. Finnegan and Mrs. Harrison McCall assisted the hostess.

The Bible study was given by Mrs. Leslie Huntwork, and the study of "Christian Living, Family Style" was presented by Mrs. Lyndon Salathiel.

Mrs. Earl VanDyke was a guest at the afternoon meeting.

Mrs. Robert Owen Entertains Chapter

Members of Xi Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority met at the Cooley Lake home of Mrs. Robert Owen Tuesday. Mrs. Carl Leedy assisted the hostess.

Following dinner, a short business meeting was held and members spent the evening sewing for the American Cancer Society.

Glenn Ford Finds Japan Enchanting

Actor Also Waxes
Enthusiastic About
Marlon Brando

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Glenn Ford is the latest movie star to return from the Orient full of raves for Japan.

He also is enthusiastic about the picture he made there, "Teahouse of the August Moon," and about the fellow who starred in the movie with him—Marlon Brando.

Taking these subjects in reverse order, here's what the amiable actor had to say about mighty Marlon:

"Marlon does a magnificent job. I hope people don't make comparisons between him and David Wayne, who played Sakini in the Broadway play."

"Marlon went crazy about Japan, and did a wonderful job of public relations, and not just for the picture. I wonder how many people realize the political and diplomatic impact of movie personalities visiting foreign countries. It's tremendous."

FEUD IS HOGWASH

"While we were in Japan we read a lot about a feud I was supposed to be having with Marlon. I want you to know it's a lot of hogwash."

Ford said he was very enthusiastic about the picture, but preferred, with typical modesty, that people see it rather than have him expound on the subject. He explained that the author, John Patrick, adapted his own play for the movie version.

He then switched the subject to Japan, which has become one of his favorite countries. Proof of this is the fact that he hopes to take his family there at the first opportunity.

"You become a better person for having gone there," he said. "The people have an inner beauty, a certain pride, kindness, patience, great honesty, humbleness and honor."

BAD PLANE RIDE

The only unhappy part of the trip, from Ford's point of view, was the plane ride he was forced to take from Honolulu to Los Angeles so that he would arrive in time to finish the picture.

"I don't want to condemn airlines," he said apologetically. "I attract trouble, though, so don't fly with me."

"About 40 minutes past the point of no return we lost one engine. An hour later we lost another. By this time there were two Coast Guard planes flying alongside us."

"There were some Air Force of ficers aboard returning from Pearl Harbor. When they got worried, you know you're in trouble."

Mrs. Ralph C. Conlan of Eileen drive pours for (left to right) Mrs. Peter J. Dunn of Sleepy Hollow drive, Mrs. Harold Sandelman of Rutherford road, Mrs. William E. Macke and Mrs. T. F. MacManus Jr. of Bloomfield Hills. Mrs. Macke opened her home for the annual tea sponsored by the Altar Guild of St. Hugo of the Hills. The tea is a get-acquainted affair for newcomers to the parish. Mrs. Sandelman and Mrs. MacManus served as cochairmen. The group is discussing the Dec. 4th fashion show being sponsored by the Guild. Mrs. Dunn is chairman of the patrons committee for the coming event.

Poor Nutrition Acts in Odd Ways

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

At the New England Conference on Human Nutrition, which was sponsored by the Florida Citrus Commission and met in Boston last spring, Dr. James M. Hundley said that 10 to 30 per cent of the American people do not eat enough nutritious foods.

He also told us that even though this 10 to 30 per cent may get enough vitamins and minerals to bypass recognizable deficiency states, they may show chronic physical and mental fatigue, anemia and certain abnormalities of the skin, mouth, gums and eyes.

Poor nutrition can affect a person in many strange and unsuspected ways. After World War II, tests were made on military men who had been subjected to severe malnutrition for more than three years.

Eight years after their liberation the tests showed the following results: The men had a mortality rate two to five times more than expected; they developed a great variety of disabling diseases, and even though there was no discoverable organic illness the men had reduced mental and physical energy.

While there are not many severe cases of malnutrition in this country you can safely say that 10 to 30 per cent is getting less than the best amount of essential nutrients.

Doctor Hundley suggested the following changes in the diet of the average man and woman:

1. Consume more protective foods such as milk products, fruits, vegetables and protein foods.

2. Eat fewer "empty calories" such as fats, oils, sugar and syrups.

3. Decrease fat intake to match energy requirements and to maintain proper weight.

Dr. Hundley said, "A germ, you know at once. Poor nutrition you may not know for years." It often takes time for the results of poor nutrition to show up.

The American diet is high in fat and the fat content of the diet is increasing. Since fat has been correlated to some degree with hardening of the arteries the elimination of visible fat seems a wise measure.

If you would like to have my leaflet No. 37, "Vitamin Defense," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Tomorrow: "The Woman's Place—A Creator of Beauty."

9 From Pontiac Sorority Attend State Convention

"Beta Sigma Phi Is Worldwide" was the theme of the state convention held at Hotel Hayes in Jackson last weekend.

Eunice Harlan, vice president of the executive council and director of chapter service for Beta Sigma Phi International, spoke on "Beta Sigma—Phi, Unlimited" at the Saturday evening banquet.

Among the 250 members attending from all parts of Michigan were eight members and their sponsor, Mrs. M. A. Calbi, of Epsilon Rho Chapter of Pontiac.

Representing the local chapter were Mrs. Edward Amann, president; Mrs. James Beall, Lillian Bullock, Mrs. Thomas Eggleston, Betty Lippard, Betty Soper and Mrs. Terry Smith.

Dorcas Circle Has Dessert Luncheon

Dorcas Circle of First Christian Church gathered at the church for a dessert luncheon and meeting on Tuesday. Mrs. Leona Hunter was hostess to the group. Devotions were given by Mrs. Allan Hersee. The program, "Frontiers of Challenge and Change," was presented by Mrs. William Hoyt. Plans were made for a money-making project to be held on Nov. 13.

MR. and MRS. GERALD LEE KOLB

Marjorie Allen Becomes Bride in St. Benedict Rite

The Rev. John J. Hoar of St. Benedict Church officiated at the wedding service of Marjorie Grace Allen and Gerald Lee Kolb. The 10 o'clock ceremony was performed in the presence of 150 guests.

Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Allen of Berkley avenue, chose a bridal gown of Chantilly lace and nylon net over satin fashioned with a fitted bodice, Sabrina neckline and long pointed sleeves.

Her veil of illusion was secured by a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace edged with a seed pearl trim. Her bridal bouquet was composed of white feathered carnations and ivy on a mistle.

Maid of honor was Ruth Bauer. She wore a ballerina-length gown of peacock blue taffeta and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of buff-colored fugi chrysanthemums.

Judy Ohngren, Donna Crowley and Kathleen Kolb were bridesmaids. They were gowned like the maid of honor in aqua taffeta and carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

ASSISTS BROTHER

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kolb of Eldridge drive, asked his brother, Rodney, to serve as best man. Ushers for the service were Harry Goodell, Frederick R. Allen Jr. and Walter Allen.

The evening reception was held at the UAW Hall on Baldwin avenue. Mrs. Allen greeted her guests wearing a navy blue taffeta dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Kolb selected a navy blue crepe dress with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride changed to a beige suit with black accessories for traveling to northern Michigan. The corsage from her bridal bouquet completed her costume. The couple will reside on Hospital road.

You can start on the best look of your life in this season's fashions: The belted suit in unsewn black, brimmed, side-pulled casual hat that hasn't been seen in years, the statuesque type is ideal for this.

Crowd In? Make Large Layer Cake

Mrs. Anderson's Recipe Calls for Hot Water at End

By JANET ODELL
Feature Press Home Editor

Earlier this week we gave you a recipe for a chocolate cake made with yeast. Today we're giving you another chocolate cake recipe, but one that is made more quickly. Mrs. Lee Anderson of Birmingham is today's cook.

Mrs. Anderson says there are far too many activities for any one person to do them all. She works in the PTA and in her church guild. She and Mr. Anderson are taking bridge lessons this fall. They have two children.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

By Mrs. Lee Anderson

3 cups sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 cup sour milk
1 1/2 teaspoons soda
1 cup sifted flour
1 cup hot water

Cream shortening and sugar until light and fluffy, add eggs and beat well. Sift flour, cocoa and salt together. Add alternately to creamed mixture with sour milk. Add vanilla. Add hot water at the last.

Pour into two greased 8-inch square pans or two 9-inch layer pans. Bake 20-25 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Put together with butter cream filling and frosting.

Cluttered Bed Tires Convalescent Child

Don't let a convalescent child's bed get too cluttered. He should enjoy one activity at a time, and too much should not collect on the bed because it's confusing and tiring for him and extra clean-up work for mother.

Keep a large tray with a raised edge, a carton with its sides cut down, or a large box lid handy for storing toys and odds and ends.

Shiny brass buttons lend a smart feminine touch to this man-tailored shirt. The fabric is crease-resistant, washable and wonderfully wearable.

Newcomers Hold Men's Night

Adah Shelly Library was the scene of the annual Men's Night Millionaire's Party, sponsored by the Newcomers Club.

Mrs. Peter Dunn planned the recent evening's entertainment, assisted by Mrs. Peter A. Aldo and Mrs. Morton Bacon of the program committee. Mrs. Wilfred Beebe, Mrs. Michael Presby and Mrs. Larned Runnels of the social committee also assisted.

A Las Vegas motif was the setting for the party, and prizes were won by William Emerson and Mrs. James Graybiel.

Hostesses were Mrs. Beebe, Mrs. Aldo and Mrs. Bernard Woesaner.

Use the easy-to-reach and easy-to-see locations for storing the things most often used.

Longer skirts for the future are hinted, but not popular yet. There is, however, a new fullness or rather softness in the peg-topped skirts, gathered in small pleats over the hips, and usually narrows toward the hem.

Barbara Jones Repeats Nuptial Vows Before 200

Our Lady of the Lakes Church was the setting for the Saturday morning wedding of Barbara Sue Jones and Ronald Leslie Robertson. The Rev. F. J. Delaney celebrated the 10 o'clock Nuptial Mass in the presence of 200 guests.

Eileen Jones served her sister as maid of honor. The bride's other attendants were Valeria Hoyt and Margaret D. Robertson, sister of the bridegroom.

Their wait-length gowns were fashioned alike with pleated bodices and full skirts—the honor attendant's in gold crystal and the other attendants' in green crystal. They carried bouquets of bronze-colored chrysanthemums.

Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of Clarkston, chose a wait-length gown of French lace and net for her wedding. The gown was fashioned with long sleeves and a Queen Anne collar, and her fingertip veil was secured by tarsi of seed pearls.

She wore a pearl necklace and matching earrings, a gift of the bridegroom. On her prayerbook she carried an arrangement of orchids and lilacs-of-the-valley.

Ronald, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Robertson of School street, asked his brother, James, to serve as best man. Ushers were Frank Luzzo Macadam, Deward Cloutier, uncle of the bride, and William Cook.

Mrs. Jones chose a blue tulle gown with black accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations for her daughter's wedding.

A blue lace gown with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations was the choice of Mrs. Robertson.

An evening reception was held in the Davisburg Grange Hall. For the wedding trip to northern Michigan the bride changed to a tan suit with brown accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet. The newlyweds will make their home in Clarkston.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Loud, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Eberstadt Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William H. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. John Emery and the W. B. Bachmans.

The upcoming tour, to run through Nov. 17, will be the band's 65th.

The first, in 1891, was inaugurated by the world famous "March King" himself, John Philip Sousa.

The touring band will travel by bus to play afternoon and evening concerts in cities in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana.

Mrs. Paul Heinsohn served as chairman for the meeting. Assisting were Mrs. Harold Haskins, Mrs. Henry Beehler and Mrs. William Vann. The group will meet at the home of Mrs. Paul Taylor on West Iroquois road on Nov. 20.

Seating the guests were ushers Donald Fartenfelder of Bay City, Darrell Adams, brother of the bride, and Bob Guth of Fenton. Raymond Hollis of Park Ridge, Ill., served as best man. Johnny

U. S. Marine Band Boasts History of 158 Years

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Marine Band has concluded this summer's performances in the series of free, outdoor concerts begun here 158 years ago and is about to take to the road for a nine-week tour that will take it to 63 towns over the country.

Half of the 100-member band will remain in the capital, on call for official and military functions such as the colorful sunset parades at the Marine barracks, reviews, ceremonies and funerals, as well as functions at the White House.

During recent summers thousands have gathered to hear the concert twice weekly at the Watergate on the banks of the Potomac and on the steps of the Capitol, where 158 years ago, before the then unfinished Hall of Congress, the first little group—a fife and drum corps—played under the direction of Drum Major William Farr.

Farr brought the group here when the capital moved from Philadelphia.

Drum Major Farr was an enlisted man, and all subsequent leaders have come from the ranks of the band, although in recent years they have been officers.

RANKS LEGALIZED

Last July the director of the band and two assistant directors were made commissioned officers by law.

The current director, Capt. Albert Schoepfer, will go up in rank to lieutenant colonel.

His two assistant directors, Warrant Officer Dale Harpham and another who has not yet been appointed, will become first lieutenants and may rise to be captains.

The upcoming tour, to run through Nov. 17, will be the band's 65th.

The first, in 1891, was inaugurated by the world famous "March King" himself, John Philip Sousa.

The touring band will travel by bus to play afternoon and evening concerts in cities in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana.

MRS. JAMES ALLAN GRAU

Verona Lee Adams Wed in Candlelight Ceremony

Before an altar banked with fall flowers and palms, Verona Lee Adams became the bride of James Allan Grau. Their vows were spoken Tuesday evening in a candlelight ceremony in Central Methodist Church, with Dr. Milton H. Bank officiating.

Verona Lee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew L. Adams of Watkins Lake and James is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Grau of Chicago.

The bride chose a gown of pure Italian silk featuring a Sabrina neckline of Chantilly lace and embroidered with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Insets of the jeweled lace were repeated in the full skirt which extended into a chapel train. The long sleeves of the gown were lapped over her wrists.

A matching plateau headpiece frosted with opalescent sequins and seed pearls held the bridal veil of tiered French silk illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of white cymbidium orchids with white garden roses.

Mrs. Thomas Gruber of Highland Park, matron of honor, was groomed in a ballerina-length gown of iridescent copper crystal. She carried a crescent arrangement of gold chrysanthemums and green croton leaves.

OTHER ATTENDANTS

Joyce Roberts of Lansing and Mary Anne Witwer of Plymouth were the bridesmaids. Their gowns were fashioned identically to the honor attendant's and they carried bronze and gold chrysanthemums.

Jane Morningstar, cousin of the bride, wore a floor-length frock of gold crystal and carried a basket of amber rose petals for her duties as flower girl.

Seating the guests were ushers Donald Fartenfelder of Bay City, Darrell Adams, brother of the bride, and Bob Guth of Fenton. Raymond Hollis of Park Ridge, Ill., served as best man. Johnny

Too Much Unselfishness Isn't Good for Marriage

Self-Effacing Wife Helps Neither Her Husband Nor Her Children

By RUTH MILLETT

Being unselfish doesn't necessarily make a woman a good wife. In fact, a woman can be too unselfish for her own good and for the good of her marriage.

There are times for a woman to put her husband and children first. There are other times for her to put her own needs ahead.

Here are some examples:

The woman who is so unselfish and understanding that she encourages her husband to think only in terms of what he wants is building a shaky foundation for a marriage. It's not a sturdy one which will withstand stress and strain.

The woman who makes a slave of herself for her children isn't encouraging them to love and respect her. She is encouraging her own children to believe that what they want is all-important.

She's leading them to believe that Mama exists just to make them happy and help them get what they demand.

A DEAD WEIGHT

The woman who meekly and unselfishly says, "Whatever you want, dear" or "Whatever you think is best is all right with me," may be unselfish, but she is also a dead weight. She doesn't add any

Women Constantly Try to Keep Young, Attractive

How many glamorous women in America? Start with a figure of 20,500,000. They're the paid working girls.

Add to that those dedicated in politics, volunteers in social work, blood bank solicitors and hospital Gray Ladies, among thousands of others who work out of the home.

The woman who lets her family impose on her is certain, in time, to resent their lack of thoughtfulness and cooperation. Also, she is making it more difficult for them to get along with others outside the home who aren't going to be as selflessly acquiescent as she is.

The woman who expects too little of her husband and demands nothing of him certainly doesn't encourage him to do his best.

Happy homes and happy marriages aren't built on one person's complete unselfishness.

Each member of a family needs to have enough self-interest to get some of the things he wants as well as enough unselfishness to help others get what they want.

Women of achievement in the home and out of it have reached an age of beauty maturity. The housewife is no longer frumpy, and the working girl is not the wild-eyed harried enthusiast that harassed employers a generation ago. Both types bring charm to their endeavors.

How does it happen that women maintain good looks and good grooming without visibly aging in proportion to their years?

A small cross-section of women of various ages gave me the answer recently, and it was all in the bag—the handbag that is. It boiled down to this: American women began to protect their looks in their teens, and spend more and more time on the project as they grow older, especially when they must maintain a youthful appearance in a job. Those queried were of these ages: 16, 24, 27, 36, 44, 51.

The 16-year-old girl's purse held the clue to her years. She carried no makeup except lipstick, a comb, brush, nail file and fan. Why the fan? To keep her face cool and unshiny in a warm place.

The handbag of a 24-year-old working girl revealed the works in glamor cosmetics including eye shadow, rouge, perfume and emery board as well as powder. At 27, when the skin is beginning to lose its youthful glow, the owner of the handbag had included foundation cream, and deodorant was added for extra daytime fastidiousness at 36.

Mascara and eyeliner were included but no eyeshadow. The 44-year-old working woman included a hair touch-up stick as well as a small shoe brush and an extra pair of hosiery.

The 51-year-old woman had become conscious of her hands and included a hand lotion (which she also used on her neck).

Women know they can't relax their beauty efforts for a minute if they'd remain youthful and attractive.

As one working woman put it: "You can tell how much time I spend on my person by the size of my handbag. It used to be a little one, but it's grown kingsize through the years."

LARGE PURSE HOLDS ALL

It's just as easy to carry a large bag as a small one, she says, if you are a working girl. Cut down the weight of it by putting fragrance in one of the small spray atomizers, and by utilizing small plastic-refillable containers that may hold hand lotion, creams and other treatments. The roll-on type deodorant is popular these days because it is easy to use in emergency and this too, may be carried compactly.

The average older working woman requires professional beauty service once a week, she believes, although she cannot always afford the time or money.

She is more likely to get to a salon every other week, she over 40's either dye their hair or keep their gray hair chic with special treatments.

Between times, like your younger working companions, she sets and shampoos her own hair. She is well-heeled below the ankles, even-hemmed in dress, straight seamed in stockings, and avoids the dipping bosom-line for business like the plague.

Radio Troubles Delay the Test of New Rocket

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. 16—Radio interference from taxicabs in North Carolina, an air base in Florida and missile proving grounds in New Mexico have delayed U.S. Army attempts to test a high-altitude rocket here in the subarctic.

The test by the U.S. Ordnance

Corps had been set for noon today. But the Signal Corps team found itself listening to taxicab messages from Ft. Bragg, N.C., Air Force signals from Florida and progress reports from the White Sands, N.M., rocket-proving grounds.

The rocket, a 26-foot Aerobee, is packed with delicate instruments to measure wind, temperature and density. The data will be relayed by radio to scientists on the ground.

Missouri Statue to Honor Nothin' but a Houn' Dog

WARRENSBURG, Mo. 16—This town plans a statue to "Old Drum," the hound who inspired a famous speech in 1870 by Sen. George Graham Vest of Missouri. The Chamber of Commerce has started a campaign to raise $2,500 for it.

Vest's famous tribute to dogs was delivered in a damage suit in which he represented a man whose dog had been shot by a neighbor in Warrensburg. The jury deliberated two minutes and awarded Vest's client $500. A bronze plaque will carry Vest's declaration that: "A dog is the one absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him and the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous."

Call for Deepening of Lakes Harbors

DETROIT 16—A series of Great Lakes organizations have joined in urging the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to provide a depth of 27 feet in principal harbors throughout the lakes to match the 27-foot depth planned for the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Support for the harbor depths also came from Sens. Potter (R-Mich.) and McNamara (D-Mich.) and Rep. Lesinski (D-Mich.) at a hearing before Army engineers yesterday.

Without 27-foot depths in principal harbors, Adm. Lyndon Spencer, president of the Lake Carriers Assn., said the seaway might become something like a toll road starting nowhere and going nowhere—"not paying for itself."

Stock Broker Speaks to County Torch Club

Clayton Call, Detroit broker, addressed the Oakland County Torch Club Tuesday evening at the Birmingham Community House. He discussed growth companies as one way to build a retirement program.

Ireland's population at the last census, taken this year, was 2,894,000, compared with 2,960,500 in 1951, a decrease of 2.2 per cent.

Mrs. H. C. Heuser to Aid Red Cross Recruiting Plan

Oakland County Chapter, American Red Cross, has announced the appointment of Mrs. H. C. Heuser of Birmingham as chairman of referral and transfer for the chapter.

Mrs. Heuser, a case worker for the chapter's home service department will use her office as a clearing house for information leading to the recruitment of Oakland County's younger population as future chapter volunteers.

According to Mrs. Mitchell, this new chairmanship is an outgrowth of information received from National Headquarters of the Oakland County Planning Commission at a recent chapter quarterly meeting.

Heiden told chapter members that "the office of volunteers faces a new problem . . . that of recruiting a population of young families who are busy building homes and raising children. Red Cross recruiting methods must be thorough and far-reaching," he added.

LONDON—Aluminum, the world's most plentiful non-ferrous metal, represents one eighth of the earth's crust. But it is so intricately concealed that its existence eluded scientists until it was discovered in 1807 by a British electrochemist, Sir Humphrey Davy. When it was first found it was the lightest metal known.

Lodge Sees Need for H-Bomb Tests

DETROIT (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. representative to the United Nations, says it would be "foolhardy" to end the hydrogen bomb tests.

Lodge told a news conference preceding a speech here last night that suspension of the bomb tests would amount to "disarmament without inspection safeguards."

Lodge said his opinions were his own and not a part of the current political campaign discussion on bomb tests.

Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson has said the United States should take the lead in ending H-bomb tests. President Eisenhower has called the testing of nuclear weapons "an indispensable part of our defense program."

Businessmen in Sydney, Australia, announced they will conduct a lottery with the Hotel Pacific, worth $448,000, as first prize.

Who Says the Kids Don't Enjoy Math?

DENVER (AP) — Who says kids don't like math?

"If they had a choice they'd keep arithmetic and throw out sports," says Dr. Richard Madden, a professor of education at San Diego (Calif.) State College. He is in Denver as special consultant to public schools.

"That old saw about school kids and math is all wrong. But, mathematics is a language. And teachers can't learn to talk it by going to college and studying calculus. They get it by working with kids.

"No, boys and girls like math. The problem is to get teachers to like it, too."

Minnesota's 11,877 miles of trunk highways would stretch three times across the continental United States and in addition would extend along both the east and west coastlines.

Bob Considine Says:

War, Humor Go Hand in Hand in New Book

NEW YORK (INS)—People . . . places . . . books. If you're interested in how wars ever manage to get reported, or talked about on radio, you'd best dip your bill into Col. Barney Oldfield's "Never a Shot in Anger," the story of one of the top public relations officers of World War II and his soft and hard times with the press. It's just out, published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce.

Barney, named for the pioneer racing driver, was a movie press agent before being wed to uniform some years before a war which was to be almost tailor-made for his industry, imagination, willingness to travel and ability to get along with some of the most wildly divergent characters of our time.

Barney came closest to being killed in his active war life when he reached for a handkerchief in his hip pocket one day, in the presence of Stalin's trigger-happy secret police. It's in effect a book of scrapes, sometimes hilarious, and how they were solved.

To establish Berlin's famed Press Club, for example, Barney camouflaged the mansion (with its beautiful grounds, tennis courts, etc.), turned on the plumbing to imitate leaks, broke all windows facing the street, took out the good furniture and replaced it with burned and battered stuff—and discouraged 18 successive high-ranking generals from commandeering the place as their headquarters.

FORGED SIGNATURES
To get the club's bar started he officiated at the forging of the names of President Harry S. Truman and Chief of Staff George C. Marshall. This sprang the left-over liquor stocks of the Potsdam Conference.

It was a delightful place. Occasionally, Baron von Cramm would come by and give a tennis lesson. The great saying was, "You never had it better."

Barney was the first newsman to go paratrooping. He reunited Mariene Dietrich, firelessly beautiful USO girl at the time, with her mother in Berlin.

He got lovesick correspondents married, did such things as arrange for a rabbi chaplain to celebrate the first Passover after V-E Day at the home of Josef Goebbels.

Good, lively, informative book—just like Barney.

On a loftier plane, so to speak, is "Vision," by Harold Mansfield, for the same publisher. It's the story of Boeing's incredible 40 years in the flying business, a span which, in human terms, reaches from Neanderthal man to Elvis Presley.

BIRTH OF AIR AGE
Here are related the birth pangs of the all-metal plane, the fretful birth of the strategic bomber with Billy Mitchell as the gynecologist, the first specifications for the B17 Flying Fortress, the conquest of ocean and weather, the B29 which was built to fight Japan from far off, the birth of the brilliant B47. The "tankers."

the B52, the jet transport to come, missiles and nuclear weapons and power. The aviation buff won't want to miss any of this.

The book reveals that the B52, the eight-jet bomber capable of delivering an H-bomb anywhere in the world, was almost cancelled several times during the eight years it took to design and build it.

It started out back in 1945, on the boards, as a propeller-driven plane, finished up with eight J57s developing perhaps 100,000 horsepower at altitude. The first two cost $52,000,000. The production model runs $15,000,000.

And if you're curious about what the atom holds in store for you, read "And What of Tomorrow" by George O. Robinson, former

TODAY'S ASSIGNMENT FOR: JUNIOR EDITORS

THE STORY OF GLASS — 3
Galileo's Telescope

Early in the Middle Ages, men were deeply interested in science. Glass played an important part in their efforts to gain knowledge.

In 1590 the microscope was invented, and less than 10 years later the first telescope was built.

The Italian astronomer Galileo made his first telescope in 1607 from a piece of organ pipe with a glass lens at each end. The telescope magnified only three times, but later experiments enabled him to get an image 32 times enlarged.

Similar lenses have been used in eyeglasses, in photography, and to magnify the light from lighthouses and searchlights.

With crayons color this picture of Galileo studying the night sky, and make the sky a rich dark blue. Paste it down on cardboard. Pin prick the sky full of holes so that with a light behind the picture, the sky will look filled with stars. By punching holes in the top corners you can hang the picture up with string.

(First to submit this idea was Charlotte Grover, Sundance, Wyo. Junior Editors awards $10 for a usable idea, so send in your suggestions care of this newspaper. Violet Moore Higgins; AP Newsfeatures.)

Tomorrow: Glass in Legends

Wise Old Owl Not So Smart at Picking Roost

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The wise old owl has worn out the welcome at the home of Dr. Joe Burge in Ann Arbor.

Dr. Burge and his wife were aroused from peaceful slumber at 6 A.M. the other morning when their son, Joey, 7, raced into their bedroom and spread the alarm. "Mommy, there's a pigeon flying all around in the house," Joey exclaimed.

"Go back to bed Joey," replied mommy.

An instant later, Joey returned. "Mommy, there's an owl in the bathroom," he announced.

Mrs. Burge got up to investigate. Sure enough, she discovered a hooting intruder perched on the shower bar.

Her husband, putting on gloves, snatched the feathered invader and tossed it out in the street. Hours later, the Burges found another unwelcome visitor in their living room. This owl was smaller than the first, but out he went by the same exit.

Manpower provided 13 per cent of farm labor energy in 1950, animals 79 per cent and machines only 6 per cent. Now machines do an estimated 92 per cent of all farm work.

Whitmore Lake Acts to Bar Boys School

WHITMORE LAKE (INS)—A plan to move the State Vocational School for Boys from Lansing to a site near Whitmore Lake has been called "hasty and ill-considered" by residents of the resort town.

Whitmore Lake residents have invited Gov. Williams and other state officials to a mass meeting Tuesday night to discuss the matter.

The new school would cost 10 million dollars.

Lansing citizen groups have sought relocation of the boys school since 1923 because of crimes committed by escapees.

But Mel Resents 'Velvet Fog' Nickname

Tonsil Trouble Turns the Trick for Torme

By PHYLIS BATTLE
NEW YORK (INS) — The thing to do—if you're an ambitious fellow who wants to be rich, drive sports cars, and get a name and a dame for yourself—is to develop a throat impediment.

A lot of our most successful vocalists have achieved fame simply by sounding like they'd recently swallowed an emery board. Take crooner Crosby, laryngitic Durante, paralympic Presley.

But possibly the most intriguingly impaired vocal chords of them all are in the throat of a young man who is named Mel Torme, and sub-titled "The Velvet Fog."

Torme has a remarkably seductive voice and fulsome bank account for the simple reason that when he was four, he had an unsuccessful tonsillectomy.

"I only wish," he said generously, "that I could recall the name of the surgeon. I'd like to see other people get ahead as I have."

RECURRING TONSILS

It was in Chicago that little Mel went through an operation that was to result in "ingrown tonsils—or maybe it's more accurate to say recurring tonsils"—which left him with his effectively husky voice.

His dad was a dancer who knew show business like the back of his tap shoes, so when Mel's tonsils grew back in (or recurred, as you prefer) he spotted a commercial possibility in the fuzzy-throated thrush he had fathered.

So we went down to the Blackhawk restaurant, and I began singing under the name "The Boy Wonder" with the Coons-Sanders Orchestra."

In those days, being only four and not precisely debonair, wonder boy appealed mainly to mothers who like the jazz juvenile.

In these days, he is still not debonair but has overcome the material instinct in his fans ("After all," he says, "when you get to be 30 you want women to stop cooing at you") by proving himself a solid "better" of songs as well as a sentimentalist.

DISLIKES HIS LABEL

"Now my only problem is to get rid of that label, 'The Velvet Fog,' which is not only a reflection on my tonsils but on my virility," said Torme.

"I am probably the least gimmicky singer in the business, and that title makes me sound gimmicky. Also it connotes that I sing syrupy ballads all the time."

Mel politely beat his chest for a moment. "I feel I sing virile, not velvety."

Torme has just returned from a nine-week circuit of the music halls in England, where he shocked the provinces a bit. Not because he was shocking, in music or manner—but because he was not.

"They have the impression currently that most American singers are writhing and rocking and rolling," he said. By singing straight, clean and red-blooded on the British stages, he knocked 'em, as his press agent would say, dead.

A growing cult of English fans has promised that if he'll return next year, they'll stop referring to him as "The Velvet Fog."

CAVEMAN AT HEART

Now he wants to convince Americans that despite the fact he can sing like a lovesick turtle dove when the occasional song calls for it, he is a caveman at heart when the beat is hot or "off."

We'd like to offer a suggestion. If Torme prefers that his downy, tonsillitic voice be described in more manly fashion, let us leave off calling him "The Velvet Fog" and try something earthier. "The Suede Smog," perhaps?

THE BERRYS

Rival Dock Unions Seek Votes Today

NEW YORK (AP)—Two rival dock unions waged a ballot-box contest today for the third time in three years.

The prize at stake was the right to represent the 22,000 longshoremen and other waterfront workers in the Port of New York, the nation's largest.

The fight was between the incumbent International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA) and the AFL-CIO International Brotherhood of Longshoremen (IBL).

For the third time the election was conducted by the National Labor Relations Board. The IBL initiated the new test of strength.

The independent ILA, which was kicked out of the AFL three years ago for failure to rid itself of racket elements, won close victories in the two previous elections. After expelling the ILA, now 64 years old, the AFL set up the IBL as a rival to contest for dock control.

Although there was no indication of violence, 5,000 uniformed police and detectives were ordered on election duty to cope with any possible interference with voters.

Andrew Carnegie distributed nine-tenths of his fortune in gifts, among which were 8,000 church organs, about 3,000 libraries and more than 500 colleges and universities.

Solons Explain Free Voyages

Say U. S. Business Caused Trips Aboard Panama Line Steamers

NEW YORK (AP) — Several senators and congressmen, listed as taking free Caribbean voyages aboard U.S.-owned Panama Line steamers, say they were on government business at that time.

The line has released the names of three senators and 16 representatives who have taken the free trips since July 1955. Not all the legislators were available for comment.

Six congressional staff employees also were listed.

Four of the 25 were listed as traveling alone. The rest took wives or children or both. The wives and children paid a quarter of the regular rate.

Two of the senators were Democrats and one a Republican. There were 10 GOP representatives and six Democratic house members.

The Panama Line said it spent $22,154 in 1955 "for cost of steamship transportation furnished to members of Congress." The line's three ships serve the Canal Zone and Haiti.

RATES LISTED
Normally, round trip tickets between New York and the Canal Zone cost from $315 to $351, depending on accommodations. Fares to Haiti and return run from $261 to $279.

All of the congressional trips listed by the line were to the Canal Zone except one taken to Haiti by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) and his son.

Release of the list came after Herbert Brucker, editor of the Hartford, Conn., Courant, protested against secrecy surrounding the names of passengers on the Panama Line.

Brucker, also an official of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said the public was entitled to know how its money was being spent.

Last Thursday President Eisenhower told his news conference he knew of "no reason on earth" why the lists should not be made public.

SWELLING AND INTENSE PAIN OF ARTHRITIS GONE

"O-JIB-WA BITTERS was highly recommended to me by many of our church parishioners," says Mrs. Walter St. Peter, 364 Fox Drive, Kingsford, Michigan.

"For three months I suffered the intense pains of arthritis in my knees, shoulders and hips. My knees were swollen to about twice their normal size, and my legs were so stiff that I needed help to walk. It was quite a job for me to get in and out of bed, and my daughter had to do most of the housework. I used to sit on our front porch and let the sun soak my legs, but that didn't help much. Then I read about O-JIB-WA BITTERS in the Iron Mountain paper, and was urged to try it by several of our church parishioners. I told my husband that it couldn't hurt me to try O-JIB-WA, so I started taking it that day. On the fifth day, I could feel my circulation improving, and the swelling actually beginning to go down. Inside of a month, I was feeling like my old self again. I'm so glad to have found this wonderful medicine. I want to recommend it to anyone who suffers from rheumatism or arthritis. I haven't been bothered for four years now, so I just can't praise O-JIB-WA BITTERS enough."

He's Mastered Texan — Now It's Brooklynese

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Rock Hudson desires to become a linguist. Having mastered Texan, the Hollywood star begged me to tutor him in the prettiest language of all—Brooklynese.

"Brooklynese," said the tall, handsome screen star who comes from God's Country, the Middle West (Winetka, Ill.), "intrigues me."

"I was riding with a cab driver who looked at me a long time in the rear-view mirror, then said, 'Hey, buddy, are you Rock Hudson—or WHAT?'"

"Delicately I explained to Rock that no authentic Brooklynite would be that crude . . . and that 'what' is one of our city's busiest words . . . though it's often combined with two other words to become 'Whattayuh?'"

"Whattayuh crazy or sumpin'?" and "Whattayuh outa your mind?" are samples; then there's the ever-useful "Whattayuh want from me?"

But we Middle-Westerners get to live it whenever we live in Brooklyn or "Muh-hattin." However, we know that most Brooklynites are so well educated today that the so-called Brooklynese is spoken by somebody never in Brooklyn.

"Take the expression—'I'm goin' to the pitchers,'" I said. "Now that's not Brooklynese. I heard of one Massachusetts distinguished citizens say 'pitchers' recently and maybe 'pitchers' is Bostonian."

Rock gave me a fishy, or codfishy, eye.

"I had a stunt man, Bob Hinkle, from Lubbock, teach me Texan," said Rock, who needed it to play the lead in "Giant."

"I can say 'another thang' just like a Texan. The word 'chance' is more like 'chaintz.' Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and the other big cities don't have a dialect—they're too cosmopolitan."

"But there's one thang—thing—sure. Instead of sayin' 'Goodbye,' a Texan says, 'Bye, bye, you-all come see us now.' And it's real sweet music, too."

Then I told Rock there's one expression, which springs from the Lord knows where, which he must memorize to get along in New York.

"It's like a lamb or nanny goat b-a-a-a-ing," I said "only it just goes 'a-a-a-a-a.' Somebody asks how you're feeling, how you like the dinner or show, how's your wife, you just say 'A-a-a-a-a' and shrug, and you've saved a lot of words."

"Well," I said, "how do you like your lesson so far?"

"A-a-a-a-a," shrugged Rock.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Eddie Fisher—here enrouté to Ike's birthday party on TV—said he'll return to NY in December to do three months' shows. Has cigars to give out when baby arrives . . . Pres. Eisenhower, who hasn't spoken in Florida since '52, now plans to speak in Miami late in October, showing how serious he is.

Society turned out for Eartha Kitt at her Plaza opening—the Louis Lorrillards, Rosemary Warburton Gaynor, the John Henry Hammonds (and Conrad Hilton with Virginia Warren)—and we thought Eartha proved herself the greatest woman entertainer living except maybe Judy Garland. Reason she sings so eloquently with her arms is, she used to be a dancer. Some thought Eartha (now good for $5,000-a-week) wasn't as great as before but I liked her far, far more.

Martha Raye and her ex-cop were at Margaret Whiting's big premiere . . . Frances Farwell had to be "ugled up" to play Marjorie Main's daughter in "The Friendly Persuasion."

Sherry's will open a Champagne Bar at the Met opera—serving nuttin' but champagne . . . Oil man Ray Ryan promised Charlie O'Curran a section of Palm Springs property when he weds Patti Page . . . Charles Laughton chased a reporter from his "Major Barbara" rehearsals—wants "no snoopers" . . . Stripper Sherry Britton confounded skeptics; celebrated her first wedding ann'y with Buddy Boylan.

Ernie Kovacs commutes to Boston five times a week to see wife Edith Adams of "Li'l Abner" . . . Actress Betsy Palmer (of "Masquerade Party") rejected a third Columbia script, risking suspension.

Earl's Pearls . . . Discretion is the art of closing your eyes to a situation before someone closes them for you.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: After hearing today's rock 'n' roll hits, it's hard to remember when a pretty girl was like a melody.—George Hart.

TODAY'S REST LAUGH: Al Cooper heard of a ball player whose credit was so bad nobody's even take his signature on a baseball. That's earl, brother.

New Navy Seaplane Crosses the Pacific

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — The Navy's new turbo-prop seaplane, Indian Ocean Tradewind, made its first transpacific flight, landing at Honolulu yesterday 8 hours and 15 minutes after leaving Alameda Naval Air Station.

The Navy said the giant Convair-built seaplane lifted from San Francisco Bay at 9:07 a.m. with Lt. Cmdr. Charles E. Feilock, 35, and San Lorenzo, Calif., at the controls.

Lady Bouncers Wanted

LONDON (INS) — Several big, strong girls are wanted at Saffron Walden, a town in Essex. It seems that there's been some trouble at the town dances caused by girls so the local authorities are hiring lady bouncers.

Bogie Model?

DENVER (INS)—Gov. Ed Johnson of Colorado recently sat for a sculptress and as the clay model of his head and shoulders became recognizable, the 72-year-old former senator commented: "Be useful perhaps to frighten little children."

Racer 'Doc' Williams Given 2-Year Sentence

DETROIT (AP) — Merrill (Doc) Williams, a former Monroe auto racer, was sentenced to two years in prison yesterday on a charge of testifying falsely in bankruptcy proceedings.

Federal Judge Frank A. Picard told Williams: "You've gotten away with things in the past because you knew influential people, but no one is bigger than Uncle Sam."

Williams, who was indicted last May, was accused of trying to conceal his assets, including $25,000 he was said to have received from the sale of a motel near Ecorse.

He testified that a safety deposit box in a Marion, Ind. bank contained nothing. A U.S. marshal said he found $2,000 in it. The government contended this was part of the proceeds from the motel sale.

Science Develops New Tablet:

Relieves Painful Monthly Cramps
For 3 out of 4 Women Tested!
Gives Greater Relief Than Aspirin!

Boston, Mass. (Special)—New promise of relief for women who suffer from painful monthly cramps and nervous tension is found in an amazing new tablet . . . developed especially to relieve this female discomfort. It offers greater relief than aspirin during that distressing period each month!

Doctors report remarkable results. For 3 out of 4 women tested, pain and cramps were stopped or strikingly relieved. Even on the first day, many had no nagging headaches, no backaches or other functionally-caused distress . . . were also less jittery the trying week before their period!

The new tablet contains not just one or two ingredients but a unique combination of special medicines. That's why this new discovery offers more relief than plain aspirin! Unlike such "general-purpose" remedies, it acts on the cause of distress. Has amazing power to calm uterine contractions, also works through a woman's sympathetic nervous system.

Called "Lydia Pinkham's Tablets," the formula was developed by the world's largest manufacturer devoted exclusively to relief of women's ailments! Easy-to-take new Pinkham's Tablets are now available at all drug stores without a prescription.

So don't suffer needlessly. Take Pinkham's Tablets yourself. See if you don't feel worlds better this very month. See if you don't escape much of the irritability and discomfort—both before and during those "difficult days." (For liquid form . . . ask for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.)

Hal Boyle Says:

Author Thinks Loneliness Blocks Writing

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles Mercer is an unusual author.

Not merely because he has hit the literary jackpot with "Rachel Cade," a best-selling novel that stands to net him some $200,000 when all the returns are in.

What makes Mercer unusual is that he sees no reason why practically anyone who can stand being lonely can't do the same thing.

"Writing does require a certain bent," he said, "but anyone who can tell a suspenseful situation in two pages—even in a letter—can eventually write and sell fiction. "The difference between those who do and those who don't is largely self-discipline. Many people don't write because they can't stand being lonely. Writing is the loneliest industry on earth."

Mercer, who is a 39-year-old daily radio and television columnist for the Associated Press, married as soon as he left college for a $25 a week job as cub reporter. Like most newspapermen he dreamed of writing a novel. And also like most newspapermen, he did nothing about it.

During his three-year hitch as an Army lieutenant in World War II his wife, Alma, wrote and sold for $250 a magazine article about the trials and tribulations of a bride in wartime.

"I decided if she could do it, I could," Charlie said. After leaving the service and returning to press association work in 1946, he started writing two hours every night.

"I turned out 20 short stories and a novel, and they were all so bad no publisher would touch them with a 10-foot pole," he recalled.

In 1949 he finally sold a short story for $750 to the Saturday Evening Post. Then he made a big decision.

"I read everything I had written up till then, and decided it was all worthless," Mercer said. "So I took it out to the back yard and burned it—150,000 words on which I'd spent three years."

But he had at last mastered the technique of fiction writing. During a subsequent 21-month hitch in the Army during the Korean War he sold 10 stories and a couple of novelettes. He also later published two novels, "The Narrow Ledge" and "There Comes a Time," the story of a clergyman.

His real bonanza idea came during a trip to the Belgian Congo in 1954 to gather newsfeature stories. Africa had interested Charlie since he was a boy of 11, and he chose it as the locale for "Rachel Cade," a tale about a missionary nurse's search for love and understanding in defying the ancient tribal taboos of the dark continent.

Charlie wrote the novel in a year on weekends in 12-hour Saturday and Sunday sessions at the typewriter. It was an immediate hit. The Literary Guild picked it for its current selection.

The Woman's Home Companion brought serial rights, and RKO snapped it up for the movies. It is being published in three foreign editions, "including the Scandinavian."

Their sudden leap to prosperity has made no difference in the lives of either Alma or Charlie, who plans to continue writing his daily column.

"Before we couldn't afford the house we were living in—and now we can," said Charlie. "That's about the only change."

The neighbors seem a bit disappointed that our household hasn't gone in for more glamour. But I don't happen to want a swimming pool or an expensive car.

"Whether a novel makes a pile of money shouldn't be important, and it isn't the most important thing to me. Maybe I shouldn't admit it, but I now actually enjoy writing. It has become a satisfaction in itself."

And Mercer says all that is probably keeping you from writing a successful novel is—you, opens Thursday

THE POWERHOUSE

Boston Daily Record columnist ave Egan said he learned Wil-ams signed a 2-year contract before the 1956 season. "from a responsible source who is close to the great man, but has no affiliations with the ball club."

Hot Race Among Prep Scorers

The red-hot race for high school scoring honors in Oakland County and its adjoining area shows no signs of cooling off as the 1936 football season heads toward its 6th weekend of action.

Three touchdown-minded ball carriers are leading the pack with 11 tallies apiece, with an extra point giving one runner a narrow advantage.

Orill Frantz of Inlay City is top in front. The speedy Spartan halfback has accounted for 11 touchdowns and one conversion in five games for a total of 67 points to lead the entire area.

Right behind him in the battle for area leadership is Gary Ball-man, East Detroit's flashy halfback. Ballman has scored 11 touchdowns for 66 points.

Despite successive defeats suffered by the Southfield Bluejays in their last two outings, their swivel-hipped halfback Ron Brewer is still topping the field in Oakland County. Brewer has chalked up 11 touchdowns for 66 points.

Two of the county's unbeaten powerhouses, Walled Lake and Rochester, show great balance in their attacks by occupying six places on the list — three from each school.

Giving Brewer a hard fight for county leadership is Rochester's classy Dave Peters, who has scored eight touchdowns and eight extra points for a total of 56.

Closely pursuing Peters in Don Yeargan of Walled Lake with eight touchdowns for 48 points. John Walker of Walled Lake has tallied 33 points while teammate Frank Fink has 30 to his credit. Dave Edred and Fred Weaver, both of Rochester, also have 30.

Trailing Yeargan in a tie for 4th spot are Jim Kearney of Bloomfield Hills and Lake Orion's Doug Storey, each with 45. Halfback Lyndon Salathiel of Waterford comes next with 42 points. The balance of the county field drops into the 30's.

In the struggle for area leadership, Lapeer's Tom Wilson and Alex Hioncie of Almont follow Ballman with 54 points apiece.

Dryden's Bill Avery is next with 51.

Eugene Picard of East Detroit occupies the next position on the ladder with 42 points. The remainder of the area group is in the 30 bracket.

Jackets Hit by Flu

Title Ouster Faces Avondale-Orion Loser

One of two crucial games on tap in the Oakland B League Friday will be at Avondale where the Yellowjackets play host to Lake Orion in a battle for third place and a chance to move up in the standings.

The night contest will be a do-or-die affair for both schools with each currently holding 2-1 loop records. The loser will be virtually eliminated from the title race since Troy and Clawson will be unbeaten going into their encounter that afternoon.

Coach Ted Seis's Dragons must be given the advantage offensively with an average of better than 28 points per game in the overall schedule of five games, four of them wins.

The Jackets have tallied 76 points thus far with a 3-2 overall record.

The only common foe of the two schools has been Madison. Orion whipped the Eagles, 21-2, while Avondale romped, 27-7.

Preparations for the big tussle have been hindered at Avondale this week by an invasion of the flu bug, according to Coach Frank Crowell. "We had only 15 boys out for practice Monday. I hope they are all ready in time for the game," exclaimed the anxious skipper yesterday.

Crowell said he will go along with the same defensive alignment which has been so successful thus far.

The expected absence of veteran tackle Bill Johnson will result in two lineup changes. Guard Dick Freeland will operate at tackle with reserve back Larry Douglas moving into the line at guard.

At Lake Orion, the once-beaten Green and White are hard at work making every minute of practice time count in hopes of continuing their winning ways.

The Dragons bounced back to wallop Oxford a week ago after having an unbeaten record snapped by Clawson.

The Dragons boast several fine ball carriers and a veteran passer and field general in Nick Neira. Fullback Ralph MacLachlan, shift John Schoff, who has been on the injury list, and Doug Storey head the running brigade. The line is as Parker and Ed Brail. Schoff's availability could have

Pontiac Hosts SVC Meet

Harriers Run in 3 Leagues

By CHUCK ABRAH
Cross Country champions will be crowned in three Conferences Thursday as annual league meets are held at three area courses.

The biggest interest of the day will be focused on the Pontiac Municipal Golf Course where the defending champion Chiefs play host to the Saginaw Valley event at 4 p.m.

Inter Lakes Conference rivals will tangle at the Hickory Hills Golf Course on Commerce road near Walled Lake, while Birmingham will be the scene of the Eastern Michigan League meet.

Pontiac has held the edge over league rivals in recent years but the heavy toll of graduation has left the Chiefs with only a scattering of experienced runners. Coach Mike Andonian's charges lost three of their first four starts.

The ranking favorite in the Saginaw Valley meet will be Saginaw Arthur Hill which has won five straight dual events this fall. The big one was a six-point triumph over strong Flint Northern, another top candidate for loop honors.

Senior Dick Fisher has been re-writing the Arthur Hill record books this year. He recently broke his own home field mark with a time of 18:28. Fisher was ninth in the Conference race last year.

Other key performers for Coach Glen Mason's Lumberjacks are Bob Graves and Dick Darby, also seniors. Graves posted an impressive time of 10:38.2 his last time out.

Pontiac's Roger Coates and Jim Moore of Flint Northern are given the best chance of upsetting the capable Fisher. Rufus Anderson of the Chiefs and Northern speedster Jim Lynch are also expected to be among the leading finishers.

Bay City Central is another school which must be considered in the running for the Valley title led by Dave Walkowiak. BC has lost only to Arthur Hill. Swift Ed Skrelunas will carry Saginaw High's colors. Darkhorse of the meet is Flint Central which reportedly has been improving fast.

Walled Lake, which has won three straight years, is the choice in the Inter Lakes Conference with Farmington ranked next. Berkley, Southfield, Waterford and Van Dyke are the others in the running.

Birmingham is the strong favorite in the four-team Eastern Michigan event. The Harriers of Coach Kermit Ambrose have rolled over six opponents in dual meets thus far, including Conference rivals Mt. Clemens and Hazel Park.

Co-captains Lynn Benn and Tom Fontaine and Bob Benson will be out to pace the host school to its fourth successive crown. Mt. Clemens and Hazel Park could upset the dope.

Injured Swaps Still Critical

Famous Horse Reported Improved but Condition Under Watch

CAMDEN, N.J. (U)—The great Swaps, a little uncomfortable from a leg fracture that's keeping him in a sling and standing only on his three other valuable legs, is "not in any immediate danger," says Meshach Tenney, trainer of the record-setting race horse.

In fact, Tenney said early today, Swaps "is 50 per cent better than Sunday when he reinjured himself."

Tenney's statement, while indicating there was still concern for the condition of the 4-year-old California colt, put to rest for the time being fears that Swaps might have to be destroyed.

These fears arose last night when a spokesman for Garden State Park, where Swaps is stabled, said veterinarians were working feverishly to save the colt. The spokesman said Swaps, winner of the 1955 Kentucky Derby, didn't appear to have much of a chance.

He said complications arising from the leg fracture, suffered in a workout at Garden State Oct. 9, led to the summoning of four top veterinarians. The track spokesman did not say what these complications were.

Milford JV Team Blanks Holly, 12-0

Milford High School's Junior Varsity football team chalked up its 4th consecutive victory last night at Holly with a 12-0 verdict over the Holly JV's.

Gene Schuett scored Milford's 1st touchdown with a 23-yard jaunt in the 1st quarter.

Dave Holliday tallied the 2nd TD in the 3rd period with a plunge from the Holly three after Eddie Olds set up the score by sensationally catching Jim Scheibner's pass while sandwiched between two defenders. Scheibner and John Zeeman combined to make 23 tackles for Milford.

Brighton is the next opponent for the Little Redskins on Tuesday night at Milford.

BACK-OF-WEEK — Oklahoma's ace halfback Tommy McDonald took Associated Press honors as the "Back-of-the-Week" as result of his performance against Texas last Saturday. He scored three touchdowns and picked up 160 yards himself as the Sooners won, 45-0.

First Bouts Tonight

Olympic Boxing Eliminations Underway

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—Winners of almost every conceivable amateur boxing title go for broke tonight in opening action of America's most exciting fight show, the U.S. Olympic Trials.

The 3-day tournament has brought together 107 fight-for-fun athletes, the survivors of an extensive elimination process taking in colleges, Golden Gloves, AAU and service competition. Milton (Dubby) Holt, coach-manager of the U.S. team, calls the group perhaps the finest ever to square off in an Olympic preliminary.

Elimination bouts tonight and tomorrow give way to finals Friday in which the 10 team members will be selected. They'll make the trip to Melbourne, Australia, next month to defend the five championships won by the United States in 1952.

As in the past, the trials will preview some of the top professional boxers of the future.

On the college squad are four youngsters from the University of Wisconsin rated among the best in their respective divisions.

Coates Sets Record but Pontiac Bows to Maples

The Birmingham Maples overcame a record-setting performance by Pontiac's fast improving Roger Coates to post their seventh straight cross country win by a 23-38 margin at Birmingham yesterday.

Strong team balance paid off for the victors as they held seven of the top 10 positions at the close of the event over the two-mile course.

Coates, who Coach Mike Andonian says looks better every time out, was easily the outstanding individual of the day with a time of 10:38.4. The previous record had been over 10:40.

Pontiac's other two men in the select ten were fourth place Rufus Anderson and Pete Cox, No. 10. Tom Fontaine and Lynn Benn ranked second and third, respectively, to spark the BHS contingent. Bob Benson was close behind Anderson. Birmingham also won the junior varsity meet, 16-47.

Yesterday's action was a final tuneup for both schools prior to tomorrow's Conference meets. Pontiac, with a 1-4 record, is host to the Saginaw Valley event. The Maple campus will be the scene of the Eastern Michigan harrier battle.

Already heralded as a potential pro great is 18-year-old Vince Ferguson of New York who won the NCAA middleweight title as a freshman. Wisconsin's chief hope, Vince is riding a string of 51 straight wins. Other Badger competitors are light-heavyweight Orville Pitts, flyweight Dean Piemon and light-welterweight Dick Bartman.

Terry and Dave Smith, Air Force boxers from Seattle, give the trials its only brother combination. Terry battles in the welterweight class, Dave in light middleweight.

Probably the most talked about entry is Paul Wright, a 165-pounder from Flint, Mich. Touted as another Floyd Patterson, 1952 middleweight titlist, Wright won the national and international Golden Gloves championships, the interservice title and the AAU crown in the past two years. He also took the Pan-American light-middleweight title in 1955.

Wilkinson Says Team Strings Unimportant

NORMAN, Okla. (U)—"Strings don't mean a thing in team athletics," Coach Bud Wilkinson, the string maker, said today as he brushed aside all the remarkable football achievements of his No. 1-rated Sooners.

"Certainly we have a string of 33 victories, but remember that nine of those were made by the 1953 team and there's not one player who is on this year's squad," he said. "Only in individual sports does a string mean anything. In team sports, it takes everyone working together."

Every time Oklahoma wins a football game now, it sets several new records.

The Sooners, who haven't lost a contest since early in 1953, can set a new modern victory record of 34 games by beating Kansas Saturday. They have scored in 109 consecutive games and have gone without a setback. Wilkinson, always on the gloomy side of the gridiron, points out that Kansas was the last Big Seven team to beat the Sooners and he isn't taking this Saturday's clash at Lawrence lightly. It was back in 1946 that Kansas whipped Oklahoma 16-13.

Oklahoma partisans now are chanting for a new record—blanking opponents.

So far this year, Oklahoma has shut out its first three opponents and for regular season play the string is seven. In between, on last Jan. 2, Oklahoma beat Maryland 20-6 in the Orange Bowl.

Wilkinson has no thoughts of coming near that record.

"I have no doubt Kansas will score on us Saturday," he said earnestly. "We'll be happy to win by one point."

Bitter Troy-Clawson Feud Resumes Friday at Troy

Two of Oakland County's bitterest rivals will collide this Friday afternoon and a lot of glory could go to the winner.

Troy and Clawson high schools, within a stone's throw of each other, square off on the Troy gridiron with a possible Oakland B League championship at stake.

Both squads are undefeated in league play. Troy has three victories to its credit while Clawson owns three wins and a tie.

The Colts, surging back to new heights under 1st year coach Joe Bechard, have dropped only one decision, a 24-19 non-league setback at the hands of unbeaten Romeo.

Bob Acton's Clawson gridders have also suffered only one defeat, a 12-7 loss to Center Line in their non-loop season opener.

There are at least three good reasons for the traditional red-hot rivalry which has built up around these two schools.

The 1st reason is the nearness of the schools to each other. They are very close neighbors since approximately three miles separates them.

A 2nd reason, which is certainly not far behind the 1st, lies in the fact that Acton, Clawson's coach, is an alumnus of Troy who dearly loves to beat his alma mater on the football field.

Another and more recent reason centers around two Clawson players, Trojan quarterback Tom Kollin, their leading scorer this fall, and defensive stalwart Dave Meeker are former Troy students.

Add to this the fact that half-back Sim Acton of Troy, fullback Lowell Acton of Clawson and coach Acton are all related and you have the foundations for a sizzling four quarters of football.

Logart Meets Ortega on TV

BOSTON (U)—Isaac Logart, third-ranked contender for the world's welterweight title, presses his campaign for a higher rating while meeting durable Gaspar Ortega tonight in a 10-round nationally televised bout at Mechanics Building.

Logart, a 23-year-old Cuban with speed and punching power, rules upwards of a 3-1 favorite over Ortega, whose chief claim is that he never has been knocked out in 41 pro bouts.

The Cuban flash from Kid Gavilan's hometown of Camaguey is invading Boston for the second time in three months in his attempt to get a shot at Boston's Tony DeMarco, former welter champion now the No. 1 contender.

The bout, set for 9 p.m., EST, is scheduled for national television, ABC.

The excursion package has been sold out, but there is still room on the train for those having their own game tickets.

Pheasant 'Derby' Now 2-Way Contest

Longest Bird, Heaviest One, to Win Awards

1956 Event Will Open Saturday; Here Are the Rules

By H. GUY MOATS
With the biggest of the fall hunting seasons for small game near at hand, chief attention of the shotgun fraternity will be centered on the opening of the pheasant season on Saturday, and continuing through Nov. 10.

Coincidentally with the beginning of the season for the state's gaudiest game birds is the start of the annual "big pheasant derby" sponsored for many years by the Pontiac Press Sports Department.

There are no changes in regulations for the event, as affects the heaviest bird division.

But there is an addition. For the first time since institution of the contest it will become more than a one-way affair.

Contestants now can shoot at two divisions—but can win only one:

No. 1—Heaviest bird; winner to receive $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

No. 2—(the addition)—Bird with the LONGEST OVERALL LENGTH. For winner in this division a $25 U.S. Savings Bond.

No contestant may win both. Here are the rules, in brief:

Eligibility—Hunters must be full-time residents of Oakland County. All entries must be birds shot within the state (Michigan), where such shooting is legal, during the regular pheasant season (starting Oct. 20 and ending Nov. 10). Entries must be brought to The Press sports department for weighing, measurement and photographing, and not later than 12 o'clock noon, of the 2nd day after close of the season on Nov. 10. Birds which have been dressed will not be accepted for competition, except in the division for long birds.

While reports from conservation officers and other "census takers" do not promise ringneck seekers too rosy a picture for the season, there will, in all probability, be enough of the spectacular gamesters to provide a very interesting and satisfactory contest.

Last year's winner was a woman hunter, Mrs. Paul Pace, whose three-pound-12-ounce rooster was the top entry in a very close race.

While these factors tend to guarantee a somewhat spotty opening day, they also tend to make the outlook for later season hunting somewhat more optimistic.

Saved by babyhood, a good many juvenile roosters will survive the withering fire of the twentieth to mature during the season.

In a "normal" year, when the current broods are largely grown by the beginning of the season, the first few days sees a tremendous slaughter and in hard hunted areas, the season, for practical purposes, ends right there.

That is particularly true when the opener is on Saturday, as is the case this year. Some day, when we have time and space, we'll advance the reason why we think all seasons should open on Monday, instead of an arbitrary calendar date.

Wildcats Ready for Michigan

Northwestern Eleven in Top Shape for Saturday's Contest

EVANSTON, Ill. (U.P.)—Northwestern, whose doormat days in the Big Ten appear to be ending under the new coaching regime of Ara Parseghian, expects to be in its best physical shape of the season for Saturday's football game at Michigan.

Even in their best condition, the Wildcats don't figure to pull an upset and gain their first victory over the Wolverines since a 6-0 decision in 1951.

"We'll have 12 boys in practice this week—and in us that's an army," said Parseghian, whose Cats defeated Iowa State, lost to under-rated Tulane and fought heavily-favored Minnesota to a scoreless standstill last week.

"We've been working with as little as 27 players, the others being on the casualty list. There are very few times that I would be happy to settle for a tie, but I was against Minnesota."

"We just didn't have enough fresh men to keep putting into that game. Seven of our regulars played at least 35 minutes. These included ends Ben Japoldi and Cliff Pearl, tackles Al Weyhrich and John Smith, left halfback Bob McKeiver, center Ten Ringer and fullback Chuck Jersa."

Parseghian said he has a lot of respect for Michigan. "Their backs and ends are good as any in the country," he said. "One phenomenal thing about the team is that every guy in the backfield has thrown passes. I just wonder how we'll defend them."

"This confirms my faith in the honesty of campers in general," Mrs. Strang said. "We are confirmed robbers for Michigan state parks."

Mrs. Strang also enclosed 35 cents in stamps to cover the cost of mailing the watch to Arizona.

Retires After 27 Years

LANSING — Harold S. Gibbs, lands executive in the Conservation Department, retired Oct. 3 after 27 years of service with the department.

The Cincinnati Redlegs signed catcher Bruce Edwards this summer after the ex-Dodger had batted .295 in 45 games with Vancouver, B. C.

Late Applications May Force Drawing

LANSING (U.P.)—Last-minute applications coming into the state conservation department will probably make drawings necessary in all areas for special season deer hunting permits.

More than 100,000 applications have already been processed. Others mailed just before the Oct. 10 deadline will be checked this week.

Only 65,340 permits will be issued for the "any deer" seasons in the 22 deer starvation and crop damage areas. Drawings will be held in areas where applications exceed the permit quota.

The largest number of applications have been turned in for area 2, the Lake-Newaygo County unit, where only 4,500 special permits are to be issued.

Arizonian Has Praise for Michigan Campers

LANSING — An Arizona resident recently wrote to the Conservation Department, praising Michigan's state parks and the campers who use them.

Mrs. Harold J. Strang of Phoenix, Arizona, said, "It was with surprise and pleasure that we found my husband's wrist watch waiting for us in Phoenix when we returned from our vacation in Michigan."

The watch was found at J. W. Wells state park in the upper peninsula, where the Strangs had camped, and was mailed to their home address.

"This confirms my faith in the honesty of campers in general," Mrs. Strang said. "We are confirmed robbers for Michigan state parks."

Mrs. Strang also enclosed 35 cents in stamps to cover the cost of mailing the watch to Arizona.

Yellow Best for Hunters Tests Prove

LANSING — Yellow, not red, is the safest color for hunters to wear, according to tests conducted in California recently.

Army personnel, who took part in the tests, reported that bright yellow is the most readily visible color under all light conditions.

The tests reportedly were conducted in typical deer terrain under simulated hunting conditions.

The color study was conducted by the National Rifle Association, working with the California Game and Fish Department and the California Optometric Association.

Hunter Goes for Fawn, Returns With a Bride

Robert Albertson, 1915 Maddy Lane, Keego Harbor, is back from a deer hunting trip in the Upper Peninsula, successful for the first time in his six years of bow and arrow hunting.

But besides the fawn he brought back, he also brought back a bride. He and Connie Barnett, who shared the hunting trip with him, spoke wedding vows in the Methodist church in Newberry while they were in the northland.

For her, it was first hunting trip, because hunting is not a usual sport in her native West Virginia. She moved to 67 S. Park St., Pontiac, with her parents two years ago.

Already at $200, Pot-O-Gold Is Filling Up Again

Even though Pot-O-Gold was relieved of quite a bit of its burden, this week's puzzle is worth $200 again. So don't give up on your old friend yet. Just try matching wits with the two previous winners. Two people have solved it so far, and there are bound to be more. You might as well be one of them. Puzzle No. 20 is worth at least $100, even if there's a winner for last week's puzzle.

The puzzle consists of (1) a number of circles which contain a few scrambled letters, and (2) a corresponding list of clues to these words printed below. The object is to arrange each group of circled letters into a word that best fits its clue. The word which you select for Circle No. 1, then would be the one which you would print in the space to the right of (1) below.

You'll notice that some circles contain $ signs in pots of gold. You may use such a symbol as any letter you wish. However, it and all letters in that circle must be used. The $ sign, of course, can represent ANY letter in the word.

Do the same in all the other circles. Study the clues carefully and arrange all the letters into words that you believe best conform to these clues. Use your $ signs to help you spell out the right words.

Waterford High Readies 'Divine Flora'

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP—Friday and Saturday nights WTHS Dramatic Club will present their first play of the year, "The Divine Flora." Curtain time is 8 o'clock and admission is free to students of Waterford High who have activity cards.

Etta Dean, played by Diana Craig, is the plain, young daughter of a prominent advertising man with the firm of Dean, Dugan and Druggett. Etta is not asked out on too many dates and she feels she is a great disappointment to her father, portrayed by Dusty Smith, who is the only person she has in the world since her mother died.

Randy Pryor and Buzz Kallert, played by Ted Colom and Chuck Boldin, are two energetic teenagers who decide they would like to go into the advertising business when they get out of high school. They want to open a firm of their own eventually, but they know they can get some valuable experience if they work for Dean, Dugan and Druggett.

When Randy finds out that Mr. Dean will be in town the night of his daughter's Senior Prom, he immediately calls "little princess" for a date so he can get in good with her father.

The two boys give Mr. Dean the sales talk as to why they should be accepted into the firm and Mr. Dean finally makes a deal with them. He says if the boys can "repurchase" Etta and make her a popular young lady during the summer, they will find a position with the firm when they return.

All's well that ends well and this amusing comedy finishes with everyone in perfect harmony.

Cast in the remaining roles are: Hal, Gail Winter; Winnie, Barbara Martin; Boops, Marcella Tode; Stu Moragn, John Patton; Kit Olmstead, Barbara Hutchings; Mr. Pryor, Jack Nelson; Mrs. Pryor, Virginia Valentine; Sharon Pryor, Grace Williamson; Bob, Glenn Jolly; Wayne, Tom Davies; Polly, Marcia Cameron; Helena, Marty Haveland, and Marvelle, Ruth Ann DeGow. Completing the cast are: Mr. Dugan, Jim Hertz; Susie, Jane DeValetian; Bella, Cyd Williams; and the girls, Norma Sandoval, Carol Shephard, Sally Williams, Nancy Richards, Shirley Brondige, and Carolyn Farnum.

Your PTA Is Planning:

King and Queen to Reign at Clarkston School Fair

CLARKSTON — The Clarkston Elementary School fair Saturday from 4 to 8:30 p.m. at the school will feature games, contests, a bake sale, and a country store with juvenile items as well as donated canned goods, according to PTA planners.

Crowning of a king and queen will climax the evening's activities.

Walled Lake

On Thursday, the Walled Lake Junior high parents, armed with their children's daily schedules will attend each class in order for a few minutes. Teachers will briefly outline the work of their classes and allow a few minutes for questions. A bell will signal the start of the next section. The parents will then reassemble in the cafeteria for refreshments. Because of the nature of the program, the meeting will begin at 7:45 instead of the usual 8 p.m.

On the following Thursday, Oct. 25, the same procedure will be followed in the senior high building. PTA officers who have planned the program are hoping that there will be large turn-outs for the meetings.

West Bloomfield

Members of the West Bloomfield PTA will serve "all the pancakes you can eat," at the high school cafeteria Thursday evening.

The committee will serve from 6 until 8 p.m.

Three types of tickets may be purchased from executive board members, or at the door. They are adult, students over 12, and children under 12.

There will be dancing, and cards may be played in the gymnasium until 9 p.m. for those who wish to remain. Mrs. Harley Chamberlain is chairman of the supper.

Waterford Township

Donelson School PTA will meet Thursday evening at the school.

Speaker will be Dr. Harry Haan, Director of Reading Service under the Oakland County Board of Education. He will explain the techniques used in teaching reading and what to expect in your child's progress.

Refreshments will be served following the meeting by a group of fifth-grade mothers, headed by Mrs. Carl Bird.

Avon Township

The Brookland-Avon PTA will meet tonight at 8, at Brooklands School.

Alma Kayser of the Rochester High School staff will speak on her travels in Europe last summer.

Waterford Township

Parents of youngsters attending the new McVittie elementary school on Midland Drive have been invited to attend an organizational PTA meeting Thursday at 7:45 p.m. at the school.

Officers will be elected and installed at this meeting, according to Mrs. Iva Kent, principal, and a dedication program will be planned.

A social hour will follow the meeting and all teachers will be in their rooms to greet the parents.

Imlay City OKs $1 Million Issue

Approve Bonds to Build New High School; Also Remodel

IMLAY CITY—Patrons served by the enlarged Imlay City Community School district approved the $1,000,000 bond issue at a special election yesterday, by a vote of 734 to 219.

Officials will construct a new high school and remodel the present building into an elementary school.

The district plans to build the new school on a 24-acre tract which it now owns, adjoining the athletic field.

The new one-story building will provide 21 teacher-stations, totaling 31,800 square feet. Included in the plans are gymnasium, seating 1,200; a library and the inclusion of all existing departments.

Design also allows for future expansion.

Planning Expert Tells Waterford:

'Keep Up on Industry, Sewers, Water'

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP — "Every community is perplexed with problems if it has any growth in it and every city is subject to pressures from outside that determine what happens inside," said Paul Reid, director of the Detroit Metropolitan Regional Planning Commission when he addressed the Waterford Township Community Study Committee Monday night at the high school.

In discussing Waterford's background and future, Reid said that by 1970 the community should have on-rail and off-rail industrial sections. It should have public recreational areas along the river—the land should be reserved and preserved now for this purpose.

The speaker noted the rapid growth pattern — in 1930, 24,000; in 1940, 28,000; in 1950, 44,000; and 1970, 80,000. The tremendous growth between '40 and '70 will take place only if the community is "sewered and watered" efficiently. If not, it will stagnate or go down hill, he said.

"Township form of government was never designed to handle urban problems," he said. "It was designed exclusively for rural problems." Urban development moves forward or is held back by facilities — the most significant of which are sewer and water. In Waterford Township these are only slightly developed in the eastern part. The township's road situation is pretty good and there are plans for a few major highways to go through the area, Reid pointed out.

Waterford's tax base is nearly all residential and he warned that the penalty for not wanting industry is higher tax rates. The community needs to develop land

Lace Bridal Gown Worn by Rosemary Hutchinson

ORTONVILLE — Rosemary Hutchinson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Allen B. Hutchinson, 3924 Davison Lake Rd., became the bride of Henry S. Watson, 5350 Sunnyside Dr., Clarkston, in evening rites Saturday at Oakwood Community Church.

The Rev. Frank Racine of the Rochester Assembly of God performed the service.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jane Watson of Jackson Blvd., Davisburg.

For the wedding, the bride wore a waltz-length gown with lace bodice and Peter Pan collar and lace, wrist-pointed sleeves. Her skirt was formed by three layers of lace net. A lace calotte held her shoulder-length veil and white roses, white mums and a white orchid formed her bouquet.

Ruth Hutchinson of Flint was her matron of honor and William Watson of Clarkston was best man. Ushers were Manfred Kirilkin of Drayton Plains and Alfred Watson of Clarkston.

Following the wedding and a reception in the Eastern Star Hall, the couple left for a Northern Michigan trip.

They will reside in Ortonville.

The bridegroom is attending Lawrence Institute of Technology, studying mechanical engineering.

Faculty Wives to Fete Newcomers

WATERFORD TOWNSHIP — Group 1 of the Waterford Township Schools Faculty Wives will welcome new wives who become members automatically when their husbands join the school system, at a tea Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m.

The tea will be at Mrs. James Desherder's home, 2221 Sashabaw Rd., with the hostess acting as co-chairman. Mrs. Donald Beedie is chairman.

The Faculty Wives have about 60 active members, and are divided into three groups.

Community Chest Seeks $12,000 in Oakland

OAKLAND TOWNSHIP — With a goal of $2,000, fund collectors for this township's Community Chest drive will be starting out this week.

Collections last year amounted to $1,791 for the Community Chest, an independent, incorporated, non-profit group.

Chest officials expressed hopes that families give the larger share of their contributions to their own township drive, although they give where they work as well.

Wendell F. Kelly is chairman for the fund drive and 20 fund collectors are under his leadership. A board of directors composed of nine members operate the fund, with three new members replacing three old members each year.

Straits Bridge Is Lure

MACKINAW CITY — Construction of the Mackinac Straits Bridge is luring sightseers here in numbers exceeding even the summer rush. Officials estimated there have been 1,500,000 visitors at Michilimackinac State Park this year, compared with 579,000 last year. Many weekend visitors said they include the bridge on their autumn color tours.

Williams and Cobo Shake — but Only at Dedication

DETROIT — Gov. Williams and Detroit Mayor Cobo, who as political campaigners have been saying sharp things about one another, clasped hands in friendly fashion when their trails crossed in Detroit.

"Governor—nice to see you," said Cobo as Williams smilingly offered his hand. They met at ground-breaking ceremonies Tuesday for a $5 million dollar urban redevelopment project about which they have quarreled.

The Democratic governor has said Cobo, by "blunders," delayed the project which entered the talking stage 10 years ago. The 119-acre site near downtown Detroit was cleared five years ago.

His Republican rival replied that his concern was in assuring high standards for the project. Cobo told an Ann Arbor audience on Monday he "supposed" the governor would try to claim credit for it.

When completed, the Lafayette Park-University City development, being built in the heart of the Gratiot-Orleans slum area, will consist of 35 low-rise and six lofty structures reaching up to 23 stories.

Cobo got a warm reception from an overflow crowd when he carried his campaign for governorship into his home ward last night—the sprawling 22nd on the city's Northwest Side.

A neighborly atmosphere prevailed in the throng of about 700 that gathered in and around the packed Platonese Club hall to hear and cheer "the Cobo story" and his jibes a Democratic Gov. Williams.

Today, Williams hitched a ride on Adlai Stevenson's campaign special as it chugged through the vote rich cities of southern Michigan.

The schedule called for stops at Niles, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Lansing, Saginaw and Flint. Williams planned to leave Stevenson at Detroit, if the train stops there—otherwise in Flint.

First Fish Fry of Season Friday Night

AVON TOWNSHIP—Members of Jack A. Mason Post 3908 VFW are having their first fish fry of the season Friday evening at the Avondale Community Hall on Auburn road near Crooks road. Serving will be from 6 to 9 o'clock.

Leonard Bebout, chairman, states that funds from the dinners, which will be served every Friday during the season, will go into the building fund.

Van Dusen Raps Dems on Suburban Corruption

DETROIT — The Republican nominee for attorney general has pinned a Democratic label on corruption the current Wayne County Grand Jury has turned up in suburban Ecorse and Taylor Township.

The nominee, State Rep. Richard C. Van Dusen, said "many" of the 31 persons indicted in Ecorse were Democratic public officials. The grand jury returned indictments charging conspiracy to violate state gambling laws and extorting and accepting bribes from gamblers.

"We hear about new scandals almost every day," Van Dusen told a television audience Tuesday night in an appearance on the Republican weekly program, "Talking Point."

"These things have happened at the very core of the Democrats' strength," he said. "Places like Ecorse, which the governor carries 2 to 1, and Taylor Township, which the governor carries by majorities of 3 to 1."

"So far as any one can tell, the people under indictment are all Democrats," Van Dusen said.

He said one of the indicted officials, Harold Rippe, Taylor Township supervisor, ran for office this year in the Democratic primary.

Others, he said, including Mayor Voisine of Ecorse, were listed in an official Democratic pamphlet as contributors to the Democratic party in 1950-51. "Corrupt money went into the

Pontiac Sets Up Its Own Civil Defense Group

A Pontiac Civil Defense Department was established last night when the City Commission adopted a Michigan Municipal League uniform ordinance for Civil Defense and disaster control.

The ordinance establishes the department under a Civil Defense director, likely to be City Manager W. K. Willman, who was instrumental in drafting the ordinance.

It provides for coordination in case of enemy or natural disaster by using city employees and facilities.

The ordinance calls for appointment of five deputy directors who will have responsibility for financial services, law enforcement, fire emergency, communications, health and medical services.

DISASTER PLAN LATER
A supplementary "disaster organization plan" outlining these jobs and duties is expected to be adopted later.

The law enables the mayor to declare a state of emergency which would place the Civil Defense plan in effect.

The City Commission, which would convene immediately after the emergency declaration, would have the power to end the state of emergency.

Previously, no organized department was established in Pontiac. Preparations for Civil Defense were delegated to individual departments.

William was appointed director of Civil defense by Gov. Williams three years ago.

The law gives the city power to ask state aid if the situation goes beyond the control of regular and emergency city forces.

It becomes effective Oct. 26. One provision states that responsibilities of the Red Cross under state and federal law will not be interfered with in case of disaster.

According to Det. Eugene Hendren, Edwards chased Glickson across the street, catching him in the block south of Osburn street.

Hendren said he saw the incident from a patrol car.

He said Edwards was holding the victim by both arms, attempting to

Lausche and Bender Veteran Campaigners

Spirited Race for Senate Develops in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, (NEA) — Ohio's Democratic Gov. Frank Lausche, a five-term whirlwind on the political track, never had a faster horse ranged against him than Sen. George Bender, his Republican opponent in the big race here for the U.S. Senate.

Most sagas give the amazingly popular Lausche the edge, but many say Bender is putting close behind.

Lausche, 60, a lone wolf who has defied the rules of his trade for years, has faced Ohio voters six times since 1944. Each time he wins he bites off great chunks of Republican votes.

In 1952 President Eisenhower took Ohio by 500,000 votes but Lausche swept in by 425,000.

With his sad brown eyes, big thatch of wavy, curly hair and a way of wearing suits that confounds his wife and his tailor, the governor makes the proud boast he knuckles under to nobody.

Bender, a portly man with a broad, friendly face topped by wavy hair, has arranged to get himself on Ohio ballots as often as Lausche.

Long a congressman, in 1954 he sneaked across the finish line by 2,970 votes to take the tag end of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft's Senate term.

A lay preacher once a boisterous rally leader for Taft, the new, noiseless Bender finds his cowbell-ringing muscles grown slack, his evangelistic leanings partly curbed. As he did in the House, he runs his Senate office as a sort of service super-market for his constituents. His biggest boast is he makes the Postmaster General groan with his mail output.

Lausche's name is the best known in Ohio politics. Observers think his unaltered conservative coloring will keep for him in 1956 much of the GOP backing he's had.

He scores with his honey touch and his independence. Mostly he seems standard party rallies and hits the county fair circuit to shake hands and swap jokes. His defiance of pressures appears to gain him far more than it costs.

Said the governor at Chillicothe: "I know I'm bitterly opposed by certain people. But I have a deep and soothing feeling that opposition comes from the fact I am not willing to surrender to their demands. . . . If it had ever meant surrender, I would not have continued as the governor of Ohio."

This time Bender has some definite advantages, and Lausche more than his usual quota of disadvantages.

For one thing, Bender is the incumbent. For another, Mr. Eisenhower has come openly to his aid and might again. "Why did the President come to Cleveland?" asks the senator. "Why, for George Bender!"

Then, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, Ohio's most powerful Republican, is putting all his punch behind Bender, rustling funds, pressing top businessmen to spread the word.

Lausche has his customary opposition from organized labor and many organization Democrats, the latter long resentful of his refusal to aid state and county tickets.

Labor's bill of particulars against him dates to his days in Cleveland as judge and then mayor, when he crossed union leaders many times. Through their long, frosty relationship with Lausche, Ohio's union officials have kept thin lines open to him. But when he attacked an unemployment insurance bill in 1955, they muttered: "We're through with that guy for good." This time the state AFL has endorsed Bender, while the CIO holds officially neutral.

In the closing weeks of the campaign Bender's chief hope is that he's still high standing in Ohio may make his coat-tails durable. He believes, too, that he may slice into the labor vote in some spots.

But Lausche's history shows most workers vote for him despite their leaders' distaste.

Observers disagree on Lausche's record and program as governor. But at voting time his program is himself. Bender is running against a kind of Ohio institution, like the Cleveland Indians.

He's always said, "they'll never abolish George Bender." This time a political landmark as sturdy as he's asking the voters to rub out. It's asking plenty.

Ike Rival Proehl Tends to Store

Greenback Candidate Keeps Working Instead of Campaigning

EDMONDS, Wash. (AP) — While President Eisenhower drew the fanfare in these parts today, one of his rivals for the presidency kept right on talking from behind a grocery counter about money-lots of it.

Frederick C. Proehl was behind the rural crossroads counter, about 20 miles north of President Eisenhower's hotel suite in Seattle, because it's where he makes his living. He gets out from behind it often enough to make a few speeches for the Greenback party, because "that's been my hobby for 30 years, but I'm really not doing much campaigning outside the neighborhood."

Like Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson, the 75-year-old country merchant is making his second race for the presidency. Unlike them, he doesn't know how many votes he got last time. He won't predict how many he might get in November; "I'm doing it for the principle."

Any votes for him will have to be written in. The Greenback party is not on the ballot. Proehl (pronounced Prayle) was nominated by referendum last December. His running mate is Edward Kirby Meador, who has a printing firm in Boston.

Conventions would have been required to put the Greenbackers on the ballots in the various states and, says Proehl, "we can't afford 'em."

The Greenbackers platform, in brief, the presidential candidate explains, is for the government to issue currency freely to meet its operating costs and to finance such projects as power dams.

Area of the Atlantic ocean is about 41 million square miles or one-fifth the surface of the globe. It comprises three-tenths of the globe's water surface.

Oscar Awards in March

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The motion picture industry's 29th annual Academy Awards ceremony, at which the famed Oscar statuettes are handed out, has been set for next March 27. Nominations for the awards will be announced in February.

Warned to Vote Dem

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. J. P. Coleman yesterday cautioned every Mississippi official to support the Democratic party in the presidential election or "seal his fate from a statewide standpoint."

Burned Up at Girl Friend

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Police called this a case of flaming love. They said Vincent Louis Fassola, 24, entered the home of his girl friend, Arlene Sutter, 21, stole her purse and set three fires. Fassola was booked on suspicion of burglary and arson. Damage to the house was estimated at $4,500.

A United States government check for $7.5 billion issued in 1948 to balance the books of the treasury is believed to have been the largest single check ever issued in this country.
