Leaders, Common People Honor Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The common people of this silent capital trudged in shuffling, ever-lengthening lines past the soldier's casket of Dwight D. Eisenhower today while world leaders assembled to pay their final tribute.

The funeral day of America's 34th president dawned clear and the file of mourners—two double lines, moving deliberately but steadily—quickly grew.

Soon it stretched from the hushed Capitol Rotunda, where the hero general of World War II lay in state, down the broads steps and far out into the Capitol Plaza where he twice took the oath of the presidency.

The leaders of American government and representatives of most of the world's nations would be there this afternoon at the start of his funeral procession.

Among them: President Charles de Gaulle of France, the Shah of Iran, King Constantine of Greece, King Baudouin of Belgium, West Germany's Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger and dozens more.

The march of mourners halted briefly while King Baudouin, clad in air force uniform with purple sash, presented a white floral wreath. He placed it gently, then stood at sharp attention and, saluted.

Again the quiet, tearless, affectionate line moved. By mid-morning fully half its numbers were children. Schools were closed and government offices excused on this day of national mourning.

At the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, De Gaulle, here to mourn a World War II comrade in arms, conferred privately in the White House with President Nixon on the problems of a world not yet made safe for democracy.

TO RECEIVE LEADERS

Other presidents, prime ministers, kings and chancellors were to be received formally by President and Mrs. Nixon in the early evening.

By then the invitation-only funeral for the hero-president, under the soaring gothic arches of Washington National Cathedral would be over and a funeral train would be carrying the one-time Kansas farm boy back to the Plains of Abilene for burial.

Among the throngs that came to the Capitol to pay their personal tribute and murmur their private prayers were thousands of the Negroes who make up three-fourths of Washington's population. But most were the white, middle-class Americans who made Ike the most popular figure of his era.

It was announced in Washington today by the Eisenhower family that Harry S. Truman, one of the two surviving former presidents of the United States, will not be able to attend the funeral of Gen. Eisenhower.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson announced through the White House yesterday he will attend the funeral.

Agony Over Death Troubled Jesus, Too

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Death is man's everyday companion. Yet man's deepest instincts rebel about the thought of dying. The following first of five articles dealing with the Easter period takes up man's relations to death and its meaning in the Judeo-Christian tradition.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The candle burns out, and you're gone. It is the end, the utter loss, the awful finality. And it comes to all men. They don't like to think about it, but they must die.

"You are dust," says the Genesis account of creation, "and to dust you shall return."

It is no pleasant prospect, in the Judeo-Christian view. Modern culture tries to obscure it, avoid talk of it, mask it in soft music, whispers, flowers and coffin cosmetics. But it haunts the human consciousness.

It troubles every man. It troubled Jesus of Nazareth.

"SORROWFUL, TROUBLED"

He became "sorrowful and troubled," the book of Matthew relates, on that fateful spring midnight of 30 A.D. when He took His apostles up on the wooded hillside of Gethsemane outside Jerusalem to await His arrest.

"My soul is very sorrowful, even to death," He told them. "Remain here, and watch with Me."

He left them beside an old oil press, and went on alone into a small clearing among the gnarled olive trees. He flung himself to the ground, face down, sobbing. His arms spread against a protruding slab of rock.

State Hearings Set on Stadium Agency

A hearing is scheduled April 21 in the House Chambers in Lansing on a proposal to create an authority for a domed sports stadium to be built somewhere in the Detroit metropolitan area.

The authority would have the power to issue revenue bonds for construction of the stadium, estimated to cost between $90 million and $90 million.

Sponsor of the bill is Rep. Arthur Law, D-Pontiac. The measure has 31 co-sponsors.

Law said he sponsored the bill to set up the authority on the condition that the stadium be built on a site chosen by the owners of the Detroit Lions and Tigers.

FAVORS PONTIAC

"I personally favor the Pontiac location," Law said. "Last November, I wrote a letter to the head of the State Fairgrounds Stadium Study Committee, pointing out why I think Pontiac is a more logical site for the stadium, as well as for the State Fairgrounds."

Law has two bills under draft in the legislative service bureau — one which proposes Pontiac as the stadium site; and another which calls for relocation of the State Fairgrounds from Detroit to Pontiac.

Youth Is Held in City Slaying

A Flint man was fatally shot in a Pontiac home early yesterday and a city youth is in police custody for investigation of murder.

Killed at 263 Prospect was Frederick Walker, 31, of an unreported address, according to police. Officers said he was shot three times with an automatic pistol.

Arrested at the scene was Thomas T. Greene, 17, of the Prospect address. Investigators said they are seeking a warrant charging him with murder.

Police were called to the scene about 1:30 a.m. and found the victim lying on the floor of an upstairs bedroom. He had been shot in the left and right side near the hip and in the abdomen, officers said.

IMPOUNDED

Investigators said they found spent cartridges from an automatic weapon and impounded a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

Greene was arrested after questioning, according to officers.

Also at the scene were a woman identified as Green's sister and a small child, police said.

Detroit Police, Blacks Battle

From Our News Wires

DETROIT — Two persons remained in custody today out of 135 picked up after a 20-minute gun battle outside a near west side church Saturday night at the end of a national black separatist meeting.

No arrests have been reported in the killing of one policeman and the serious wounding of another, an incident that triggered a massive police charge with guns blazing into the New Bethel Baptist Church, located three blocks from the core area of the 1967 riots.

Detectives investigating the fatal shooting of Michael Czapki, 22, wanted to jail eight more of the 135 originally arrested.

But Judge George Crockett, a Negro, of Recorder's Court ruled yesterday that police had illegally made nitrate tests of the suspects' hands to determine whether they had recently fired weapons. The judge said the police had failed to advise the men first of their right to call lawyers, and he ordered their release.

PROSECUTOR IN CONTEMPT

Crockett cited William L. Cahalan, Wayne County prosecutor, for contempt of court for trying to keep one of the men in custody.

Traffic Safety Meet Draws 900 Youths

Approximately 900 Oakland County high school students attended the Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference Saturday at the Pontiac Northern High School auditorium. This year's theme dealt with the use of safety belts.

A highlight of the half-day session was the selection of "Miss Teen Lock-It" of Oakland County. She is Dianne Vincent of 3103 School House, Waterford Township and a student at Waterford Mott High School.

Betsy Corson of 2720 Yorkshire, Troy, was chosen runner-up. She is a student at Troy High School. Both girls were selected from eight candidates nominated by the high schools attending the conference.

Miss Vincent was awarded a $25 Savings Bond by the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce. She also received a safety belt with an engraved buckle as a symbol of the conference.

Following the naming of "Miss Teen Lock-It," Mrs. J. B. Dixon, TIA consultant, described the TIA's current public education program to increase the

License Fee Dip Eyed

LANSING (AP) — Investigators will tackle the question of why Michigan license plate fees for trucks and trailers generated $2 million less in 1969 than in 1968, Secretary of State James Hare announced this week.

Hare said preliminary reports indicate car owners paid $20 million more for 1969 license plates this year, compared with 1968, while truckers got a break. He has ordered his staff to probe the matter.

Israel Rejects Any Big-4 Pact; 'War Inevitable,' Nasser Says

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel was digging in today for a critical spring and summer as its Cabinet rejected any Big Four settlement for the Middle East and Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser talked again of war.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told border settlers the summer would be "most critical" because the Egyptian regime is under heavy pressure to renew the war or abdicate. And Nasser said yesterday that war with Israel is inevitable "so long as they refuse to withdraw from the occupied Arab lands."

Addressing the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union, Nasser said: "The days when we could not answer Israeli shelling have passed. We now can hit back, and hit violently." However, he said Egypt still hoped the coming four-power talks in New York at the United Nations would result in some kind of peace settlement.

Because the meetings of the United States, Great Britain, France and the Soviet Union are expected to begin this week, the Israeli cabinet decided yesterday to state its position before rather than after the talks.

'PLAN OPPOSED'

The Cabinet communiqué said: "Israel entirely opposes the plan to convene representatives of states outside the Middle East in order to prepare recommendations concerning the region. Such a procedure undermines the responsibility devolving on the states of the region to achieve peace among themselves."

The Cabinet asserted that in the absence of a signed peace treaty with its neighbors, Israel will "consolidate her position in accordance with the vital need of security and development."

As if to underscore this, Israel jets streaked over the Jordanian cease-fire line yesterday morning. The army said they attacked guerrilla positions which opened fire on a patrol and wounded four border guards.

Later an Israeli border town was shelled, but it could not be determined whether the fire was returned.

Exec Retires at Blue Cross After 22 Years

BIRMINGHAM — William S. McNary of 1431 Fairway is retiring as president of Michigan Blue Cross, effective May 1. He has been the insurance group's chief executive officer for 22 years.

McNary will be succeeded by Bennett J. McCarthy of 615 Abbey. McCarthy has been vice president and general manager since July, 1964.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The Board of Education has called a special meeting for 5 p.m. tomorrow at the school district's offices, 4155 Andover.

Agenda topics include a report on the Andover High School testing program from principal Richard J. Spiess, and a discussion of a proposed counseling program.

Gerald E. Macleod of 1926 Hickory Bark Lane has been named vice president for construction and a director of the Homestead Corp., Warren.

Six new classes are scheduled to begin in April at Cranbrook Institute of Science.

Courses and the dates of the first class meeting include: "The Pond in Spring" for junior high school students, 4 p.m. tomorrow; "The Woods and Meadows in Spring," grades 1 to 3, 4 p.m. April 8; "Start A Mineral Collection," grades 4 to 6, 4 p.m. April 10; and "The Ways of the Indians," grades 4 to 6, two classes, 9 and 11 a.m. April 12.

Other classes include "Introduction to Astronomy," for junior high school students, 4 p.m. April 14; "The Stars At Home" for senior high school students and adults, 4 p.m. April 16; and "Spring Wildflowers," for adults, 7:30 p.m. April 28.

Area Home Destroyed by $50,000 Blaze

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed the residence of Wayne Wilson, 32825 Bingham Road, Bingham Farms, yesterday, the Franklin Fire Department reported.

Damage to the house and contents was estimated in excess of $50,000, firemen said.

The fire broke out through the roof of the two-story frame house shortly before midnight Saturday. No one was home.

Franklin Village firemen were assisted by the West Bloomfield and Bloomfield townships fire departments. They were at the scene for nearly nine hours.

No Markets Today

There is no market page today in The Pontiac Press because the stock exchanges are closed as part of the national day of mourning of the death of Dwight D. Eisenhower. The market page will resume tomorrow.

Detroit Police, Blacks Battle

Worobec, radioed police headquarters shortly before midnight Saturday that they were about to make a check on about a dozen Negroes with rifles and carbines they had seen outside a church in a Negro district.

"They're shooting at us, they're shooting at us. We need help," was his next radio message.

When about 50 police reinforcements began arriving, they found Caspi dead with seven wounds in the head and chest. Worobec had crawled into the scout car, pushed the accelerator down with his hand to get the bullet-riddled vehicle out of the line of fire and gasped his call for help.

IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Lying in serious condition in Detroit General Hospital with wounds in the lower back and legs, Worobec was unable to provide details of the shooting.

Police said that as reinforcements arrived, they were fired on from the church. They smashed their way through front and side entrances, guns and rifles blazing.

They were met, they said, by a line of Negroes kneeling inside the church, in seven positions.

Police said they later confiscated seven rifles, three handguns and a large supply of ammunition.

NEGROES INJURED

Five Negroes were injured, four by gun fire and one with a broken leg.

David Brown, Jr., 19, of Compton, Calif., was charged with assault with intent to commit murder after a policeman said he saw him fire a pistol from the church.

Kirkwood Hall, 24, of Linden, N.J., was charged with having a can of chemical spray.

Neither charge was related directly to the fatal shooting of Caspi.

Negroes at the scene denied they had fired on police from within the church.

"It's atrocious," said Milton Henry, a Pontiac attorney and first vice president of the Republic of New Africa, which had rented the church for the night to celebrate its first anniversary. "There were kids two months old and pregnant women inside."

Church walls and pews were spattered with blood.

Authorities said the nitrate tests on several of the eight persons they wanted held were positive.

California Getting Jitters Over Talk of April Quake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Against all scientific evidence prophets of doom say April is the month when a super-earthquake will topple half of California into the Pacific.

Scientists say this talk is ridiculous and that while the danger of a major earthquake exists, no one can say when it will happen.

Nonetheless, nerves are getting jumpier day by day.

In Los Angeles, Civil Defense Coordinator William Frank says he has received more than 1,200 phone calls and 500 letters since early March requesting pamphlets on what to do in case of an earthquake.

CHILDREN WORRIED

A spokesman for Los Angeles city schools says children have become so disturbed by widespread rumors that many teachers have taken time out from studies to review disaster procedures for their classes.

Another Story, Page 8-7

California Institute of Technology seismologists issued two long releases in less than three weeks attempting to put public fears to rest.

The only April date which conceivably might have some scientific basis is April 18. On that date the sun and moon will be lined up, exerting a gravitational pull that will make the earth's crust bulge a foot or more in their direction.

Classes Dismissed

Classes were dismissed at noon today in the Pontiac School District in memory of former President Dwight Eisenhower.

Oakland University, Oakland Community College and Waterford Township and Oakland County Intermediate school districts conducted scheduled classes all day.

Teacher Protest of Parochial Set

LANSING (AP) — Busloads of teachers will converge on Lansing every night the Legislature is in session, protesting the proposed bill to provide state aid to nonpublic schools.

The demonstration of force is part of a $30,000 Michigan Education Association campaign to torpedo the so-called parochial bill.

In addition to condemning the parochial measure, members of the MEA representative assembly, meeting in Lansing over the weekend, voted to adopt a program "guaranteeing blacks their just and rightful place in society."

The MEA represents 68,000 Michigan teachers.

Two From Area in Plane Crash

Five persons, two of them from Oakland County, are listed in fair to satisfactory condition following a plane crash in Kalkaska County Saturday.

The pilot, David Logan, 44, of 955 Wakefield, Birmingham, is reported in fair condition at Blodgett Hospital in Grand Rapids with a skull fracture and broken right arm.

Four passengers are reported in satisfactory condition at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City. The four and their injuries are: Andrew Farks, 52, Detroit, broken ribs and a broken ankle; brothers George Schwartz, 24, Detroit, broken ankles; and Gregory Schwartz, 27, Southfield, broken ankles, and their father Walter Schwartz, 56, Detroit, broken ankles.

The plane was en route to Bellare from Troy when it crashed shortly before noon in a wooded area near Rapid City.

The injured were in a single-engine aircraft, which Logan rented Saturday at Burt Airport in Troy.

They were evacuated from the crash scene by Coast Guard helicopters.

Ortonville Man Killed on I-75

An Ortonville man was killed early yesterday when the car he was driving ran off I-75 in Independence Township and smashed into a sign pole.

Found dead in his car about 2 a.m. was Dale L. Whipple, 27, of 12268 Ray, according to Oakland County sheriff's deputies.

Investigators said Ray's vehicle apparently went out of control on northbound I-75 north of Dixie and struck a support pole for an overhead sign, then wedged between the pole and a guard rail.

Ford's Small Car Entry Ready to Debut April 17

The Ford Motor Co. on April 17 will introduce its challenge to the booming small-car market dominated by foreign imports.

It's the 1970 Maverick, a semipony, low-cost, economical to operate and easy-to-handle automobile. The Maverick is the first all-new Ford to be introduced since Mustang five years ago.

Maverick, a two-door, four-passenger sedan, is sized between the subcompact imports and domestic compacts. With a 103-inch wheelbase and 179.4-inch overall length, Maverick is 19 inches longer than its principal foreign competitor. It is nine inches wider and five inches lower than the import and has almost twice the trunk space.

The suggested retail price is $11,995 and the average gas consumption is given as 22 1/2 miles per gallon. It features a 105-horsepower, six-cylinder engine or an optional 128-horsepower six.

Maverick, a two-door, four-passenger sedan, is sized between the subcompact imports and domestic compacts. With a 103-inch wheelbase and 179.4-inch overall length, Maverick is 19 inches longer than its principal foreign competitor. It is nine inches wider and five inches lower than the import and has almost twice the trunk space.

'UNPRECEDENTED TESTING'

The company claims the new car is "the most thoroughly proven, durable small car ever built. Prototypes have undergone an unprecedented testing program utilizing the most modern computer techniques."

For women, the Maverick is recommended as an easy-handling out-town car. Yet it is capable of strong freeway performance both in acceleration and long-trip, high-speed durability, the company asserts.

The model has a 12-month, 12,000-mile warranty that transfers with the car's owner.

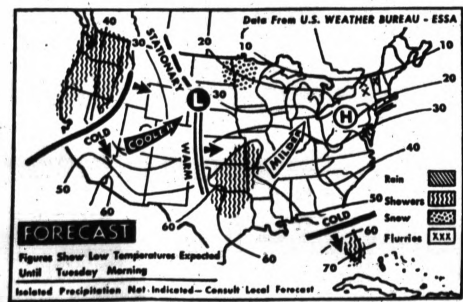

Ford states, "Never before has the American public been offered so great an automotive value at such low cost. Maverick has the things most Americans want in a small car — economy of operation, low purchase price, durability, high-quality workmanship and outstanding performance."

It's a small car that's a small inexpensive car can be beautiful."

Nation Pausing Today to Honor Eisenhower

By The Associated Press
A lot of things stopped for Ike today—schools, businesses, sports events, even the postal service—and his memory was honored at ceremonies across the nation.

The stock and commodity exchanges closed in New York City and banks closed in some states.

Many colleges shut down for the day, including Columbia University, where Dwight D. Eisenhower was president before heading the call to public office.

SCHOOLS, OFFICES CLOSE

The staffs of five Los Angeles golf clubs will stand at attention for one minute while two Air Force jets fly overhead. Golf was Eisenhower's favorite sport until his health failed.

Schools and government offices in many states shut down for all or part of today. Post offices closed and mail deliveries were suspended for the day.

At Broadway theaters, a minute of silence will be observed before curtains rise.

Three major league baseball exhibition games, three American Basketball Association games, racing at Miami's Gulfstream Park and the qualifying round of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament in North Carolina were canceled.

TRAINS TO STOP

Trains of the Erie-Lackawanna and Chesapeake & Ohio-Baltimore & Ohio railroads will stop for one minute during the day.

One of many memorial services will be held at the Air Force Academy in Colorado, founded in 1955 during the late president's first term.

An evening service will be held at Valley Forge, Pa., at the Freedoms Foundation's Faith of Our Fathers Chapel.

The Mormon Tabernacle Choir set a noon service at the Tabernacle in Salt Lake City.

2 British Papers

Rap Choice of

Funeral Envoys

LONDON (AP) — Two British newspapers have accused their government of sending "inappropriate" representatives to the funeral of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower today.

The pro-Labor Sunday Mirror headlined: "America Bewildered at Royal Snub," while the Conservative Daily Telegraph said the choice of British Defense Minister Denis Healey and Lord Mountbatten was "not really good enough."

The Mirror said American commentators who it didn't name had suggested it would have been more fitting if Britain had sent Prince Philip, the husband of Queen Elizabeth II, or Prince Charles, Britain's future king. Prince Philip attended the funeral of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

The paper recalled that President Lyndon B. Johnson did not attend the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill in January 1965 and wondered: "Could it be that the position is now reversed and that Britain is underestimating the importance of Ike's funeral?"

CLINGS TO SON'S ARM

Mrs. Eisenhower has sought to restrict this sorrowful part of her life to members of her family, a friend said.

Through it all, in public, Mrs. Eisenhower, 72, has clung to the arm of her son, John, 46, who has been seen often to give her black gloved hand a reassuring pat.

The four grandchildren have attended the public services, as erect and composed as their grandmother.

When Eisenhower's body was taken into the rotunda, the grandchildren walked slowly up the steps behind it.

David, 21 today, and Julie, his wife and daughter of President Nixon, and David's sister, Susan, 17, went first, all holding hands.

Weather Breaks for Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only moments before the caisson rolled up to the steps of the Capitol, lowering clouds in the west, parted and sunshine flooded the scene like a benediction.

"Ike always did have weather luck," said a man, who may have been there on June 6, 1944 when heaving seas calmed enough to allow history's mightiest army — Ike's army — to pour ashore on the Normandy beaches and begin the end of World War II.

Before the sun broke through Sunday, cold rain had been falling. The flags at half-staff snapped in the cutting wind.

A little girl standing on a ledge in the plaza across from the Capitol shivered, pulling the collar of her coat tightly around her neck.

'GREAT MAN'

"It's so cold," she said. "Daddy, do we have to wait and go inside?"

"Yes, honey," her father replied. "He was a great man and this is something you will never forget."

"I've been waiting three hours," a woman standing next to them said.

Tax Relief for Homeowners Is Goal of Group of Officials

By L. GARY THORNE

Assistant City Editor-Suburban
Tax relief for homeowners will be the goal of an informally organized group of local officials from Oakland and Macomb counties who met Saturday afternoon in Hazel Park.

Called by the host city and neighboring Madison Heights, the three-hour meeting ended with plans for formation of a smaller committee to draft specific proposals for such tax relief or reform.

An estimated 100 officials — mayors, assessors, city managers, councilmen and district and township supervisors — attended the meeting.

In addition, two taxpayer organizations, the Oakland County Homeowners and Taxpayers Association and a similarly named Macomb group, were represented.

TALKED AMONG THEMSELVES

Although billed as an opportunity for local officials to discuss property tax reform with invited state legislators, the meeting primarily was a session in which local officials talked tax reform among themselves.

Three legislators — State Reps. Bill S. Huffman and Daniel S. Cooper and State Sen. Sander Levin — were on hand prior to the meeting. However, Levin, D-15th District and Cooper, D-69th District, left before the discussion began.

Huffman, D-68th District, stayed and spoke to the assembled local governmental officials. Essentially, he told them to formulate proposals and send them to their legislators, indicating the Legislature would need such pressure.

Cochairmen were named to organize a committee to be made up of local officials.

APPOINTEES

Hazel Park Mayor James Gibson, who chaired the meeting, appointed Councilmen Monte R. Gerald of Madison Heights and William McCann of Hazel Park to head the committee.

Both Gerald and McCann indicated school officials would be asked to join the study group, which will propose a series of specific reforms. The schoolmen will be added because school districts spend the bulk of the tax dollar.

The object of Saturday's meeting was to seek a common ground or united position to bring some relief for homeowners subjected in recent years to spiraling property assessments.

A variety of concerns were expressed at the meeting, including the plight of senior citizens on fixed incomes, farmers being forced to abandon their farms due to high taxes resulting from high land values, and young homeowners faced with high mortgage interest rates and high taxes.

MOST CONTROVERSIAL

The most controversial point was advanced by Democratic District Supervisor Lee Walker of Madison Heights.

"Is there a problem?" Walker asked. "There's room for improvement in local budgets. I wonder if we are engaging in buck passing, it just takes so many dollars to run local budgets."

Walker contended local units were taking an unrealistic look.

Several officials responded to Walker's contentions, claiming cities and townships could reduce only a small part of the total tax rate, the bulk of which goes to school districts. Further, it contended that the pressure for local services and their cost far exceeded revenue.

Several suggestions were offered for tax relief or reform. Hazel Park City Manager Vance Fouts proposed a $2,000 exemption be given homeowners. He cited a long list of groups that have won some sort of tax exemption.

Avon Township Supervisor Cyril Miller contended the problem was to make property values uniform, stating that this is where the homeowner objects.

Troy Councilman John Kokalis pointed out that land values have skyrocketed faster than incomes. He said that in growing communities, such as Troy, homeowners are paying assessments for utility improvements as well as the high taxes.

The group of local officials is slated to meet again in about three weeks to pass on the proposals to be drafted by the study committee.

Ground Broken for Holiday Inn

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — Ground was broken Friday for a 153-unit Holiday Inn Motel in the Farmington Freeway Industrial Park. The five-story inn will be located in the southeast corner of 10 Mile road near I-96 and the proposed I-275.

The new motel — scheduled to open early next year — will offer a restaurant, cocktail lounge, pool, and meeting rooms.

Holders of the inn franchise are Mr. and Mrs. Paul McElwain, who also own the franchise for the Holiday Inn at Telegraph near I-696.

A helicopter landing pad, offering 10-minute service to Metropolitan Airport, will be situated near the motel.

The 250-acre Farmington Freeway Industrial Park is being developed by Thompson Brown Co. Since the area opening in August 1966, more than 40 companies have bought sites in the park.

A Straw Dam Has Been Erected To Soak Up Waste Oil In Galloway Lake

Pumps Still Take Waste Oil From Novi Twp. Drain

The Oakland County Drain Commission today continued to pump illegally dumped waste oil from the Bassett Drain in Novi Township.

Oil in Galloway Creek, Pontiac Township, has been contained by man-made dams of timbers and straw, but part of the 1,000 gallons dumped in the waterway last week is on the surface of Galloway Lake.

Department of Natural Resources and Coast Guard officials are investigating the dumping. Five sites were uncovered late last week.

The Sweeney Drain in Warren, normally dry unless there is a rain, contains oil up to four feet deep along a mile stretch. Another 500 gallons turned up in a ditch along M97 in Warren.

Coast Guard and Federal pollution officials are cleaning up oil in Lake St. Clair that flowed out of the Clinton River.

DNR officials believe the dumping is being done by commercial waste oil collectors.

"We know they were dumping in some fields," said District Law Supervisor George Bruso, "but local officials stopped this because of zoning ordinances."

150 Utica Citizens Form Schools Advisory Council

UTICA — More than 150 parents, teachers, merchants and residents recently organized a new citizen advisory council to evaluate future needs of the Utica Community School district.

School officials said attendance at the organizational meeting last week was the largest for any citizens committee meeting since the district began the study committee concept five years ago.

The administration had staged an intensive mail push to attract 300 to 400 persons to the organizational session. Although it was short of the goal, Phillip Runkel, superintendent of schools, viewed the attendance as a good indication of continued citizen interest in the operation of the school district.

Major study committees were organized for buildings and finance, with subcommittees on operating budget, buildings and sites, school enrollment projections, school organization and other areas.

The committees will begin regular meetings tomorrow. The administration hopes to have all committee reports finalized and ready for Board of Education inspection June 1.

The board will use the advisory committee findings as part of its study of future needs of the school district.

Armada Man Is Killed as Train Hits His Car

ARMADA — Albert P. Ullrich, 58, of 7407 S. Fulton, was killed almost instantly Saturday morning when the car he drove was struck by a freight train on Armada Ridge Road near 33 Mile Road, Romeo State Police said.

Ullrich was dead on arrival at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Mount Clemens, police reported.

Police said the Ullrich vehicle was headed south on Armada Ridge Road and was unable to stop for the train at the Grand Trunk crossing. The impact carried the vehicle approximately 1,000 feet down the tracks.

Ullrich was alone in the car.

Sex Film for Parents Planned in Rochester

ROCHESTER — A film "Parent to Child About Sex" will be shown at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Howard L. McGregor School PTA meeting. The film, provided by the Oakland County Health Department, is produced for parents and children should not accompany parents to the meeting, school officials said.

Prices Big Factor Keeping Blacks Out of Birmingham

By NED ADAMSON

BIRMINGHAM — Three reasons have been cited for the lack of change here in the year since this city approved a fair-housing ordinance at the polls.

The reasons are:
• The expensive housing market.
• A virtually all-white school district.
• And the growing trend of Negroes to avoid being black guinea pigs in a white area.

One resident remarked that the only reason the ordinance did pass was that enough property owners apparently felt that housing prices were enough beyond reach that few Negroes would ever move in.

Mayor David Brock admitted the fair-housing ordinance, which passed by a 4,205 to 3,822 vote, is not going to solve social problems. However, he saw it as a direct influence on the passing of the state fair-housing law and similar housing legislation in 18 other Michigan communities.

Dr. Sheldon Appleton, professor of political science at Oakland University, who strongly backed the ordinance, maintains the high price of property and the white school district are virtually automatic deterrents to any significant numbers of Negro families moving here.

He said several individuals and groups in the community, including the Human Relations Council, have contacted numerous corporations in the Detroit area to see if Negroes would be interested in moving to Birmingham.

"A few have come out to look, but the prices here are too much of an obstacle," Dr. Appleton said.

Dr. Ernest LeVeque, who headed a committee opposing the ordinance for "constitutional reasons," still sticks to his argument that the fair-housing ordinance is a prime example of "the suburban white intellect."

"Residents feel placated now that they have done their bit and will sit back and feel the job is done. No social problems are going to be solved as the result of the ordinance's passage," Dr. LeVeque said.

He added that he thinks the ordinance represents a direct infringement on private property rights.

Robert Moore, president of the Birmingham real estate board, said the effect of the ordinance has been minimal at most.

"Realtors were for the ordinance, we did not believe a fair-housing ordinance would drive prices down — and it hasn't," Moore said.

Moore said the real estate board has not received a single complaint alleging discrimination. He added there has been only a scattering of interest among Negroes in moving to Birmingham noting that prices are the prime deterrent.

Moore remarked that Bloomfield Township, which does not have a fair housing ordinance, has had a higher degree of integration in the last year than Birmingham. He added that four Negro families have moved into the township with surrounding property values actually going higher in every instance.

"Homes have been sold for a substantially higher figure than they were purchased near every Negro residence, Moore cited.

He added that every house sale near a Negro residence was necessitated by an out of town transfer by the owner.

Dwight D. Eisenhower

One of the most lovable Americans of the past several generations has just said a lingering but final "adieu" to mankind and especially to the citizens of this nation.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, former President of the most important nation in the world and former Commander-in-Chief of the entire Allied Forces, slips quietly into the Great Beyond. This unhappy departure has been forecast longer than most of us care to remember and the inevitable action of the Grim Reaper occasioned no surprise. Rather, the world marveled at his recovery and recuperation.

EISENHOWER

Few men in any circumstances have rallied as valiantly from the edge of the grave and returned—always smiling—to greet people again.

The dual eminence of DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER guarantees him a firm place in the ultimate annals of history, both in this nation and in sister countries. Everywhere—yes, universally around the globe—he will be remembered for his democratic acceptance of men and women in all walks of life and from all possible nationalities. Some great figures are essentially controversial and the object of contrary opinions and viewpoints. But this great American was gladly welcomed and accepted everywhere.

He gave his life to mankind. He served through the greater portion as a military man that ultimately attained the top-most pinnacle of a soldier's possibilities. And finally he was elected President.

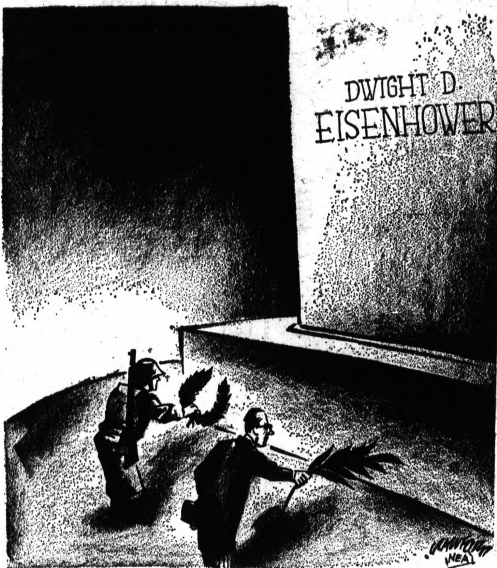

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER may not necessarily rank as one of the great Presidents in history, but his administration was marked by straightforward actions and matters at issue were met directly and handled without dissension or equivocation.

Politically, people trusted him everywhere. A manifesto from the White House meant precisely what it said. No one had to read between the lines or wonder whether two and two equalled five in this very special circumstance. He had no bitter foes in Congress. He did have opposition, from the two party system and from certain members of his own party. This is inevitable and is a necessary part of a democracy. But all the opposition was expressed in good spirit and without personalities and bitter innuendoes.

An essentially Christian gentleman harkens to the Last Call. He marches forward with all the bearing of a great soldier and will stand sharply at attention when the hour of Final Judgment is at hand.

The world bows in reverence but especially do we here in the United States drop our heads for a last silent prayer in recognition of a wonderful man.

David Lawrence Says:

Ike Did What Came Naturally

WASHINGTON — Sometimes the death of a statesman provides an occasion to point up the qualities of leadership which won him public esteem despite the supposed need to keep constantly in mind certain considerations of politics.

LAWRENCE

Dwight David Eisenhower was foremost among the presidents of this century who shunned the deviousness of politics. He did what came naturally and applied common sense and honesty.

supreme command in Europe during World War II. Gen. Eisenhower made friends among the leaders of other governments with which we were allied.

His manner convinced them that he was trying to do the right thing for them as well as his own government. The same approach enabled him to get along well with the leaders of the opposition party in Congress, which had a majority in both houses during six out of the eight years of the Eisenhower term.

President Eisenhower's administration was beset with economic troubles, and there were disappointments in foreign policy due to the Communist intrigues in Asia and western Europe. But his personal popularity remained high long after he left public office.

The American people "liked Ike." They had respect for his sincerity of effort, and they had no question about his continuing devotion to the public interest.

THE BETTER HALF

"Can I help it if your day to dry falls on the same day you wash?"

Thais Boost Democracy

While attention has been focused as usual on Vietnam, good news has come out of a neighboring country that makes the Southeast Asian picture look a little better.

Thailand has taken an important step toward, it is hoped, democratic stability with the election of a new House of Representatives. The vote not only has returned the country to representative government but also after more than a decade but was remarkably free of the violence and bloodshed that so often characterize attempts at the democratic process in that part of the world.

Thailand has long prided itself on being the only Southeast Asian nation never to come under European colonial rule. But independence has not equaled stability. From 1932, the country ran through 11 constitutions and 15 governments, usually via the coup route, until 1958 when the current military regime took over.

The regime is still in charge of Bangkok, since the party it organized, with independents, will control the new congress. But the very fact that it initiated and carried through what is generally regarded as a fair vote is an important step forward, as acknowledged by the comment of the major opposition leader that "we are beginning to see daylight."

Thailand, strongly anti-Communist and pro-United States, is frequently mentioned as the likeliest site for the next Red-fomented guerrilla war on the Vietnam pattern. Peking-based insurgents are already at their murderous work in the northeastern provinces.

Representative government by itself is not going to eliminate the threat, but it is certainly not going to hurt Thailand's efforts to avoid Vietnam's fate.

Nonsense . . .

The Berwick (Pa.) Enterprise

Dr. Karl Appbaum, a rabbi at a Jewish center in Brooklyn, calling get attention — in humorous and effective manner — to some of the baloney that goes on these days.

In a tongue-in-cheek letter, which he sent to the president of Adelphi University, where black students have been seeking all manner of power, courses, etc., Rabbi Appbaum brings attention to just how ridiculous the situation is in such cases.

He wants Jewish, Irish and Italian instructors hired, "not on the basis of qualifications but purely on the basis of religion and national origin."

Furthermore, the tongue-in-cheek letter continues, if his requests are not honored in 10 days he plans to have Jewish students, along with "blacks," Russians, Irish, French, Italians, Germans, Austrians and Polish, march seven times around the buildings of the university "blowing the Ram's Horn. THAT should do it, eh?"

Sense in itself hasn't seemed to get results in dealing with those who like to call themselves "militants." Perhaps some good-natured nonsense, like the Rabbi's letter, will turn the trick.

A Real Mother

Lewiston (Me.) Sun

A determined Negro mother who stalked to the Brandeis University campus, umbrella in hand, and marched her rebellious son out of a hall taken over by black students, unwittingly provided the answer to the problem of campus uprisings: parental discipline!

A woman identified as Mrs. Carambo of Dorchester, appeared on the Brandeis campus, strode through the pickets and newsmen, pounded on the barricaded door of Ford hall, the administration building seized by student rebels, and called upon her son to come out. Moments later the boy, a freshman, met her at the back door and obediently marched to a waiting car.

The determined Dorchester mother got action, fast, while college authorities continued to wrestle with the problem of the campus rebellion.

Obviously, she was motivated by the thought that a university is a place to get an education, not engage in rebellious activities. And her son is the wiser for it.

We salute a real mother!

Voice of the People:

'America Must Attempt to End War in Vietnam'

President Nixon says, "early Vietnam withdrawal is impossible." I say the war is going to cost the lives of thousands more of our American youths for a cause that is not there. Another Korean incident without a victory is what the outcome of Vietnam will be; longer than Korea, gobbling up the lifeline of our youth, and for what?

General David M. Shoup, a retired Marine commandant, said in a magazine article published recently, "an influential nucleus of aggressive, ambitious professional military leaders are at the root of America's militarism." He blamed them for the "quagmire" of Vietnam, and went on to say that the bombing of North Vietnam has been one of the most expensive hoaxes ever to be put over on the American people. Airpower in general has to a large degree been a contest for the operational planners, fine experience for young pilots and opportunity for career officers. In other words, the top military planners involved in Vietnam combat have the opportunity to practice their trade.

It is time for the American people to take their heads out of the sand and put a stop to this senseless war and bring our boys back home. I have two youths in service but I shall not surrender a third.

Reader States Opinion on Serving on Jury

To the ten taxpayers in my family, when I got a letter informing me to report for jury duty, I wondered if I wanted to serve. I decided against it, for if I were to judge one guilty and he was not, I would not be able to forgive myself. Maybe the punishment the person received would break his spirit or a mother's heart. I have been here since 1927 and pay taxes but I am not sorry I declined the offer.

'Puzzled by Lack of Funds for Schools'

As a taxpayer I am puzzled by the fact that there isn't enough money to run our schools. Where is all the tax money that is paid into the coffers of this State each year — sales tax amounting to millions each month, property tax, cigarette, gasoline, alcoholic beverage taxes, etc. Money that we who pay car insurance paid in for those who paid no car insurance is piled up in Lansing to the extent that perhaps we won't pay the extra dollar.

It seems that present and future students are going to be forced to face much trouble. They can't obtain jobs without a high school education and they can't get high school education without schools. It gives the money handlers something to think about, as well as the parents.

'State of Georgia Also Has Money Problems'

Recently I went to Georgia, only to discover that they, too, suffer from a lack of funds to run their government. They are assessed at 50 per cent of cash value on real estate, and a license tax is $85 and up, depending on weight, etc. of cars. They want an increase on sales tax from three to four per cent and will soon vote on the issue. Michiganders, we still don't have it too bad, but fight the corruption and waste in government spending so that we can at least hold the line.

Driver Commends Kindness of Young Men

On March 22 I turned off Ogemaw onto Elizabeth Lake Road when a car with three or four young men drove alongside of me. The driver honked the horn and pointed to the rear of my car. I scared me and I just kept going. He honked again and pointed to the back of my car. Finally I looked through the rear view mirror and my big black purse was sitting on the back of my car. I had put it there for a minute while I put a wrench back in the garage shelf. I commend these young men for their kindness.

Question and Answer

We noticed the City bought a large wrecker. How much did it cost us taxpayers? I estimate 30 or 40 thousand. How long will it take for it to pay for itself, considering towing companies were doing City towing for $3.50 per service, compensating wages for a driver and upkeep, gas and insurance? Can this possibly pay for itself or save us money?

NORMAN BRALEY
DBA NORM'S GARAGE
261 BALDWIN

REPLY

Yes, according to Mr. Cucksey, manager of the City's Equipment Maintenance Division. The wrecker cost $19,777 and will amortize itself (and pay for new one) in about eight years. Towing services could not always handle the City's heavier jobs and sometimes were unavailable for several hours after call. Considering loss of time saved, and the fact the wrecker is big enough to handle all City equipment and will also be used for litter control and building demolition, Mr. Cucksey feels it will definitely be to the taxpayers' advantage.

Jesus, Like All Men, Was Troubled by Death

And He prayed, says Hebrews 5:7, "with loud cries and tears."

AGONY OF DEATH

Despite His mastery of life. He shuddered at the approach of death. Despite His complete realism, His total commitment to man's existence, and perhaps more because of it, He agonized at its fate.

He shared the universal human misery, the underlying dread, the realization of the impending blow that eventually engulfs everyone and everything a person loves, possesses, wishes, strives for and hopes.

It is man's ultimate helplessness, his final frustration and defeat, the tragedy of his condition.

And it remains unresolved by all his medical marvels, his stunning technology and scientific feats in a century when, as theologian Dietrich Bonhoeffer put it, man appears to have "come of age" to manage his own destiny.

ALL-SUFFICIENCY

Indeed, man's capabilities bulk so immense that they almost seem to give him total responsibility, an all-sufficiency for himself and his world. It is a powerful contemporary religious mood—a stress on secular obligations.

"Perhaps God Himself is a secular being," Rabbi Abraham Heschel once observed wryly. At least the earthly creation—and the ministry of Jesus—occurred on the secular plane.

"Fill the earth and subdue it," says the primordial Genesis mandate to man. "And have dominion over . . . every living thing."

What happens here was put up to man, in a wide grant of freedom, both productive and perilous.

ALMOST IMMENSURABLE
Its possibilities now seem almost immeasurable, and grow ever more so.

Yet with all of the accomplishments and incalculable potentialities, the central problem remains. It can be forestalled, the pain allayed. But it comes, inescapably, to every man.

He is mortal. He will die. And unlike other creatures, he knows it.

"His days are like grass," says the Psalmist. "... the wind passes over it, and it is gone."

MAN'S NOT IMMORTAL

Contrary to popular supposition, Judeo-Christianity does not consider man, in himself, "immortal."

This is an unbiblical Greek and Oriental idea, which sees man as a duality of separate entities—corrupt body and pure soul.

In sharp contrast, Scripture views man as an integral, psychosomatic being, body and spirit and views death with melancholy realism, as opposed to man's strongest impulses, the shadow of some basic, primitive flaw in him.

But Scripture also upholds the hope of his ultimate resurrection, through a power beyond his own.

MATERIALITY ESTEEMED

Rather than demeaning materiality as a burdensome evil, as in the ancient Eastern philosophies, Jewish-Christian teachings esteem it highly.

"Very Good," God terms it in Genesis.

Furthermore, death is definitely not pleasant journey or "friend" but rather the archfoe, the epitome of evil and consequence of it, the summing up of all the destructive cruelties, diseases, decay, aggressions and exploitations that distort and ruin life.

The "last enemy," Paul calls it.

And differing from other creatures, man is aware of its coming.

"In the midst of life we are in death," the English prayer-book puts it.

CAN'T BE WARDED OFF

No man can ward off this time-consciousness. Neither can he immerse himself entirely in the here-and-now moment, existentially, for he knows of his yesterdays and of dying on some tomorrow.

A "being-unto-death," some philosophers call it. It is the human sadness.

Yet, while in bondage of time, man's very nature protests it. It seems contrary to all his planning, his development, his aspirations, his intellectual growth, his completeness.

NOT MEANT TO DIE?

He feels meant for something more, that he was not meant to die. His deepest instincts resist it, fear it, cry against it.

Yet, inexorably, death comes. Time closes in, shunts us aside.

Something is wrong, awry, out of kilter. And it tormented that singular person, Jesus, the very summit of manhood, as He faced the end of his days on earth.

"My Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from Me," He prayed in agony on the mountain rock. Scripture says sweat poured from Him like great drops of blood. "Nevertheless, not My will, but Thine, be done."

He got up finally, and returned to where His apostles had fallen asleep. "So, could you not watch with Me one hour?" The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

SEIZED HIM

The Roman soldiers and religious officials, representatives of the most respected institutions of the community, came and seized Him. They bound His arms and led Him away for His trial and execution. Death took over.

It is the comprehensive tragedy, the deep tension in man, as it was in Jesus, and yet He, as all men must, accepted it, the divine will in manhood taking on the worst kind of cruel death, submitting to a purpose in it.

"If one is not able to die, he is not really able to live," observed the late theologian Paul Tillich.

Jesus didn't duck either. He had finished His earthly time. He had not wasted it, but used it to the hilt, up to the last. His departure from it grieved Him. Yet He submitted to it as also necessary and useful.

GREATEST GIFT?

It must be that. It could be greatest gift. Inserted into the sweep of eternity, time provides a scale in which human wrongs could be made temporary.

It can be seen as a compassionate provision for man's reparation.

Even the limit on his years made them precious. It makes them responsible. Time is his to use. It is his opportunity.

"Behold, now is the acceptable time," writes St. Paul. "Look carefully then how you walk . . . making the most of time." For God has revealed "the mystery of His will, according to His purpose which He set forth in Christ, as a plan for the fullness of time, to unite all things in Him, things in heaven and things on earth."

(Tomorrow: in the shadows of doubt.)

To Keep Other Inmates From Him

Prison Suite Readied for Sirhan

LOS ANGELES (P) — A suite of three cells — complete with living and dining quarters and a television set — is being built for Sirhan Sirhan in case the young Jordanian is convicted of assassinating Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The California Department of Corrections wants Sirhan to stay in the special extra-secure cell whether he gets life imprisonment or the death penalty.

"If he's convicted," a Corrections Department officer said, "There's always the chance that some inmate would try to kill him. We've spent about $5,000 to remodel this section so he'll never come into contact with other prisoners."

The walled-off suite of cells is being prepared at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, near Sacramento. A bill pending in the California Legislature would permit Sirhan, if sentenced to death, to stay there rather than at San Quentin's death row as is now required.

TRIAL RECESSED

Sirhan's trial, starting its 13th week, was recessed Friday until Tuesday with rebuttal witnesses for the prosecution on the stand. The defense has rested its case with testimony that Sirhan did not intentionally premeditate the assassination in Los Angeles last June 5.

Phil Guthrie, the corrections officer, said preparations for Sirhan's incarceration were being made in advance of a verdict because "we'd get him within days after sentencing." If the jury convicts Sirhan of first-degree murder, it will decide the penalty—death or life imprisonment.

Sirhan would be confined to three adjoining cells—each about 10 by 15 feet. In one would be a kitchen with a stainless steel stove where uniformed guards would cook Sirhan's meals. Most prisoners eat in a central kitchen. Sirhan's quarters, Guthrie said, would "eliminate the risk of someone trying to poison his food."

In the second cell, a living room with television set, Sirhan would receive visitors. He would sleep in the third cell. A bathroom is off the kitchen.

FULL-TIME GUARDS

Full-time security guards would be posted near Sirhan's quarters, Guthrie said, and the cost of imprisoning him would probably far outstrip the $2,800 yearly spent on average prisoners.

If Sirhan is acquitted, "we'll find other uses for the cells," Guthrie said.

Youngsters Jam California Town

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (P) — Police say an estimated 25,000 youngsters are in Palm Springs for the annual Easter Week holiday. The influx of high school and college youths has doubled the population.

Police Sgt. Thomas M. Aitken said Sunday arrests for vandalism, drinking and possession of alcohol by minors increased by more than 30 per cent.

Australia is producing 8.8 per cent of her crude oil needs.

In 1966, Federal Mogul Corp. moved from Detroit to a $5-million headquarters in suburban Southfield.

NEED TO EXPAND

But each of the firms said its relocation plans were prompted not by crime but by a need to expand and the availability of larger tracts of cheaper land in the suburbs.

Joseph T. Ryerson and Sons Inc., a large metals distributor, announced a $3-million expansion program in Detroit, and its Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh sniffs at fears that the Kresge-Budd-Kelly moves will spark a mass exodus of the finest markets and company management is extremely optimistic about continued future growth.

"A great city like this can never really be abandoned," Cavanagh said.

"There's movement both ways," he added. Cavanagh listed a list of major expansions in the downtown area:

- Blue Cross-Blue Shield constructing a $32-million headquarters for its insurance operations on urban renewal land a stone's throw from City Hall.
- The 22-story building is to be built by late 1970.
- Manufacturers National now plans a $35-million expansion inside the city, was asked by the Associated Press whether fear of crime among employees would prompt more firms to move to suburbs.

WORKING EFFECTIVELY

"I would not sell Detroit short in the long run," said Eppert, still recovering from the beatings. He said city officials, planners and police were working effectively to restore a good climate for business in the metropolis.

When Kresge Co. announced the plan to move its inner-city headquarters to Troy, 10 miles north of Detroit, President Harry B. Cunningham was asked whether Detroit's crime rate influenced the decision.

"I would be less than honest if I told you it was not a factor at all," Cunningham replied. He said Kresge employees "had a few unpleasant incidents" early in 1968 but "we've had excellent police protection in the past few months."

Major considerations, Cunningham said, were savings in construction and land costs.

'3 TIMES AS COSTLY'

A Kresge spokesman said land costs in Detroit "were eight times as much" as the price tag on the 30-acre plot in Troy. And expensive footings, or underpinning, of a new building would have been necessary on an 80-acre site the firm was offered near the Detroit River, he said.

Kresge Co., which began in 1899 when Sebastian S. Kresge built his first 5-and-10 cent store in downtown Detroit, expects to move to the new, $15-million headquarters in 1971. About 1,200 employees will transfer from at all," Cunningham replied. He said the present, 250,000-square-foot suburban building.

Kelly Services, a national firm providing temporary help, is located in the Detroit enclave of Highland Park. It will relocate its 250 central office employees from a leased building to an office building in Southfield, several miles west of Detroit.

The Budd Co., a major supplier of automotive parts, is looking at the Troy area and some other suburban locations to build an automotive division headquarters. Some 300 employees would move. But a parts plant adjacent to its current headquarters, employing 4,600, would remain.

Fast transportation via freeways and wide open spaces of land are cited by Cleveland Masson, president of the Troy Chamber of Commerce, as suburban lures for business and industry.

Mayor Cavanagh says, however, that exhaustive studies by at least two firms prompted their decisions to remain and expand in Detroit.

The studies showed, Cavanagh said, "that a lot of the land available in the suburbs, even though it costs less than land in the central business district, is not served by any kind of transportation system."

He said the studies showed that women employees "wanted to stay downtown because of the availability of shopping — something that wouldn't really occur to a man."

CRIME IN SUBURBS

Cavanagh added that "with the problems of crime in the central city, we also overlook that there's all sorts of crime in the suburbs, too."

"Even in some of these vast shopping areas in the suburbs, the rate of assaults is quite high," he said. "The downtown area, according to these studies, has more vitality and, as a result, more people and, as a result, more security."

Jack Caminker, president of the Detroit New Center Action Council, said "many firms are moving into Detroit."

He said office building occupancy in downtown Detroit rose from 85 per cent in 1964 to a high of 96 per cent in 1968.

LACK OF PROPERTY

Real estate men report a lack of property in the city, not a lack of customers, Caminker said.

Frank Beckman, a member of the Detroit Board of Assessors, said, "Estimates show an increase of about $15 million in assessed valuation of commercial-industrial property for 1969 over 1968."

Almost 90 per cent of the 80,000 acres of land in Detroit is occupied by buildings, reported the Detroit Board of Commerce. Beckman said land is in high demand in Detroit.

JUST THE OPPOSITE?

He acknowledges that "everybody says there is" a flight of business and industry from Detroit.

But he asserts that just the opposite is shown in new building permits issued for an estimated $180 million in construction of factories, warehouses and industrial shops from 1963 through 1968.

"And that doesn't count the office buildings and others," Beckman said.

'Metro Area Losing Fight Against Crime'

DETROIT (AP)—A six-month effort, the citizens of Wayne crime control study prepared by County can anticipate that what the Wayne County Coordinating is presently a dilemma of critical proportions will become to and Prevention says Wayne tally unmanageable," the report County is losing its fight against crime.

Hubert G. Locke, former assistant to ex-Detroit Police Commissioner Ray Girardin and head of the staff which made the study, said crime control in Wayne County is totally inadequate.

The report says it is a serious problem that no single agency is now responsible for working with 17 to 20-year-olds, who account for the greatest percentage of adult crimes.

It said more emphasis should be placed on crime prevention and after case programs to keep offenders from repeating criminal acts, rather than on mere catching and punishing them.

Huge Bear Kills Trainer

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo. — A cursory examination indicated (AP) — An animal trainer appearing in a carnival was mauled to death Saturday night as he attempted to muzzle a bear for their wrestling act.

Army authorities identified the victim as Russell Ringer, about 49, of Newberry, Mich. He and another carnival worker were preparing to muzzle the bear when it suddenly took a swipe at them. The helper darted from the cage, and the bear turned on Ringer.

Military policemen stunned the bear with tranquilizer darts and got Ringer out of the cage, but he was pronounced dead on arrival at the post hospital. His exact injuries were not determined immediately, but get the bear off Ringer.

Two Abduction Suspects Loose

FLINT (AP) — Flint officials sought a man and a young man and girl from Mount Morris to-day in the alleged abduction of two women from a tavern last week.

John Beckham, 24, was charged Saturday with armed robbery in connection with the case, and police are still looking for Lloyd Highman, 20, and Sharon Freeman, 19, who were last in Terre Haute, Ind.

Beckham waived a preliminary hearing and was remanded to jail on a total of $60,000 bond, pending formal arraignment April 7.

Beckham is accused of kidnapping Delores F. Haley, 35, of Flint and Marie L. Morrison, 48, of near Flint last Thursday night from a tavern north of the city.

Five From State Perish in Crash of Small Plane

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The charred remains of five in Cumberland County.

bodies were located in the rugged Cumberland Mountains near here early Sunday amid the smoldering ruins of a small twin-engine aircraft.

The discovery ended a search begun Saturday for the missing plane which reported its engines icing up just before it crashed and burned.

Members of the local rescue squad, working at the scene, identified the bodies of Joseph Stueland, 48, of St. Joseph, Mich.; the pilot; his wife, Shirley, 45; two sons, Joseph Scott, 17, and Jeffrey, 12; and their friend, Frederick D. Crow, 17.

The search, called off Saturday night because of rain and dense fog, resumed Sunday. The site of the crash was located beneath the plane disappeared. Ed Beaudoin, Stueland's business partner, said the plane was an Aero Commander owned by Beaudoin-Stueland Electric Co., of Benton Harbor.

Beaudoin said the family was on a vacation trip.

Among the many medieval brass rubbings art instructor Julius Kusey of Rochester is currently exhibiting at the Pontiac Creative Art Center in this life-size portrait of a knight. The design, made in 1289 and found near Cambridge, England, is also used for the exhibit's program cover.

Display Brass Rubbings

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

Knights of old and their maidens fair will greet visitors to the Pontiac Creative Art Center with the current showing of medieval brass rubbings by Julius Kusey. The exhibit opened Sunday with a reception for the artist.

Some 100 rubbings, collected by the art instructor for the Rochester School System over a period of three summers while scouting England's countryside, make up the exhibit.

Here, as in Chaucer's famed "Canterbury Tales," the likeness of clergymen, yeomen, merchants and high ranking officials of the 12th through 17th century make for an eye pleasing, as well as authentic journey into the past.

The brasses, flat metal plates, used to flank the surface of the bearer's tomb, are in fact, almost the only dated medieval works of art to be found today, says Kusey.

HISTORY OF COSTUME

As they commemorate all classes of the community in authentic professional costume, the brasses are again unique in that they give the best pictorial history of dress during that time.

Readers Give Opinions on Real Value of Virtue

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "WAITING"—the 41-year-old virgin—to keep waiting. A woman's virginity is still the greatest gift she can offer a man in marriage. Even though a man makes excuses for himself, he still prefers a virgin for a wife. Please don't conclude from my signature that I know nothing about life. I was in the business world for over 30 years before I became a priest.

Respectfully,

SAN DIEGO PRIEST

DEAR ABBY: To the 41-year-old virgin who is holding out for marriage. Forget it. On her epitaph they'll inscribe: "Package returned unopened."

Iced Tea Spoon Could Become Poke in the Eye

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of the Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: I strongly disagree with your answer to a quiz question about iced teaspoons. I feel it is both awkward and dangerous to leave a spoon in an iced tea glass. Unless the glass is really packed tightly with ice, the spoon will slide around, or you must hold the spoon with a finger, which is very awkward.

Also, the person drinking runs the risk of the long handle going into his eye. It is my belief that it would be far better to place the spoon on the table. My solution is to take a paper napkin and place it underneath the iced tea spoon. — Mrs. Williams.

Dear Mrs. Williams: I don't find having the spoon in the glass as difficult as you describe, but I do agree there are better solutions. I thoroughly approve of your paper napkin solution if one is available, and the edge of any plate is equally satisfactory.

I do not think, however, that you should stain a linen dolly or a tablecloth by laying the wet spoon down on it.

seas tours of duty, and all my life I've practiced a code of morality some call "Victorian." I've taken tremendous ridicule for it, and I freely admit, it hasn't always been easy. I married a wonderful girl who held the same moral principles and I cannot begin to express the closeness, trust and warmth of feeling it has brought to our lives. We've been married 16 years and have six fine children, and we're still "in love."

OLD SARGE-
Vandenberg AFB, Calif.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "WAITING," who claims she's been on her own since 17, lived abroad, is romantic, sensitive, and not ugly. She has got to be kidding! I'm all for purity, but at age 41, what kind of a "prize" does she think she's going to give a man?

No man, for example, is going to ask a Chinese girl, whose feet have been bound since infancy, to go on a hike with him. She'd be lucky to be able to walk around the block. And marriage is a long hike. COMPASSIONATE IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: My analysis of "WAITING": Immature, selfish, masochistic, inhibited, guilt-ridden, and a cold fish. She repeatedly lures her prey and then rejects it, laying claim to "virtue"—but punishing herself more than the man she has rejected.

D. W. H., M. D.

DEAR ABBY: For "WAITING": Maybe there is a Santa Claus, but a body is not a gift — unless, of course, you are Dr. Frankenstein.

ADOLPH G., L. A.

DEAR ABBY: Please forward to "WAITING": My advice to you is to go out in the country, buy a little farm, and start raising chickens. One rooster and a half dozen hens will do. Feed them yourself and keep your eyes open. You'll notice that the hens always run away from the rooster, but they never run so far or so fast that they avoid getting caught. Try it. You'll be glad you did. With love. AN OLD ROOSTER

Australia's First Lady Is New Englander

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Visiting President Nixon and the White House this week are the Australian prime minister, John G. Gorton, and his American-born wife. In a rare personal interview, the former Bettina Brown of Bangor, Maine, describes what it is like to be Australia's First Lady.)

By JOHN FITZGERALD

CANBERRA, Australia (U) — She has dined with presidents and royalty. She has picked oranges. She can't remember her wedding anniversary so she doesn't expect her husband to. Her passion is Oriental studies.

Mrs. John G. Gorton, wife of Australia's prime minister, finds herself "boring." Others don't.

A dynamic, hard-working grandmother in her early 50s, Mrs. Gorton became mistress of The Lodge, Australia's White House, a year ago. She is fiercely proud of her adopted land.

MET IN FRANCE

When she met her husband in 1934, she was Bettina Brown of Bangor, Maine, a graduate of the University of Maine, pursuing studies at the Sorbonne in Paris. Gorton was a student at Oxford and the first Australian she'd ever seen.

Now after nearly 35 years of marriage, Mrs. Gorton said: "I haven't known boredom. Not boredom from being married. I mean, I did get terribly bored sorting oranges during the war."

But besides her official duties, Mrs. Gorton still finds time to participate in team-writing a Malay-English dictionary, work on her thesis for a master of arts degree at Australian National University, and practice her Japanese and Indonesian on the diplomatic circuit.

A member of the Liberal party since her husband entered politics, Mrs. Gorton sits on political platforms at meetings but stoutly declares: "I never discuss my husband or his politics in public."

In private, she's a tough critic, said the prime minister.

THIRD VISIT

The Gortons' visit to Washington this week, at the invitation of President Nixon, marks their third trip to the White House.

From a family of Maine Republicans, Mrs. Gorton left the United States before she was 21 and never visited. She saw the White House for the first time in 1963 when she and her husband, then a senator and Australia's navy minister, were taken on a VIP tour. Last year, they came at the invitation of President Johnson.

Housework and cooking are things of the past for her, but she is no stranger to either, having raised two sons, now attorneys, and a daughter, now an IBM computer engineer.

Although Mrs. Gorton doesn't cook now, she brags of having the "world's best" recipe for oxtail and adds: "I don't follow French or Italian recipes. I prefer to stick to the best materials and cook them plainly. We have the best fruit, vegetables and meats in Australia."

The Prime Minister of Australia, John Gorton and his wife, Betty, in the garden of "The Lodge" their official Canberra residence. In the midst of a full, official life, Mrs. Gorton often regrets not being able to devote more time to her special subject, Oriental studies. She is working on a Malay-English dictionary, as well as a thesis for her Master of Arts degree.

School Children Borrow Animals for Science Study

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Children at Englehard Elementary School can check out animals as well as books from the school library, thanks to the "check-out-an-animal" plan set in operation by Mrs. Lena Ransdell, librarian.

"A number of these inner-city children have never seen a hamster or lizard," she explains. "And pictures in books don't create nearly the interest that the live animals do. You should see them carrying science books out now."

The youngsters are allowed to look at and read about the animals during library periods and to take them to their classrooms for teacher-supervised study. They are not allowed to take them home.

Among the animals are a guinea pig, a land turtle, parakeet, hamsters and rabbit. Children who donate their own pets come to school early to feed their animal and clean his cage.

Diane Clouse Wed

Pine Knob Resort was the setting for a reception honoring newlyweds, the Kenneth Allen Lahtis (nee Diane Marie Clouse) Saturday evening.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clouse of Rollins Street and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lahti of Clawson exchanged vows in Drayton Plains Community United Presbyterian Church.

Attended by her sister, Mrs. Cody Sparks, the bride was gown in a candlelight gown, of peau de soie highlighted with reembodyered Alencon lace and seed pearls. A cascading arrangement of Stephanotis centered with an orchid comprised her bouquet.

Bridesmaids were Penny Frey of Lansing, Lois Lahti of Troy, Mrs. Robert Zeve of Mt. Clemens and Karen Krause of Troy.

On the esquire side, Michael Sykes was best man with Gerald Lahti of Cleveland, Ohio, Gene Karow of Chicago, Ill., Michael Stewart of Milwaukee, Wis., Donald Karanen of Houghton and James Hannick of Troy as ushers.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in Florida.

Marble Requires Care to Prevent Stains on Surface

Keep your marble lovely by keeping it clean and properly protected. Wash marble with clean cloths and fresh, lukewarm water. Twice a year, wash it with a mild detergent as an additional safeguard to remove residue dirt. Then protect it with a marble polish. This will help combat staining and discoloration through absorption into its pores of any discoloring material.

Marble reacts to certain acids and alkalis present in many foods and liquids. These can actually etch the marble. Alcohol and fruit juices will mar the surface. If any liquid is spilled on marble, it should be washed with clean water as soon as possible.

It's Easter Week in The Pontiac Mall

There's more to marriage than you think

Sometimes it's having to spend your first two months together returning wedding gifts that you just can't use. (Bleah.) So what's a bride to do? The best (and simplest) solution is to register your gift choices with Hudson's Bride's Registry. (It's the world's largest, you know.) Our consultant will help you coordinate your china, stemware, silver, linens and even more. (Oh?) You can even register for our 'package deals.' (Ingenious little set-ups that save you from getting too many pieces of china and not enough silver.) Then our computer (Computer? Yes.) takes over to make doubly sure that your guests won't duplicate your gifts. (Ah-b-b-b!) So stop at our Bride's Registry before the big day and then worry whether or not you can cook anything in those cute little ramekins you chose. (And if you don't know what those are, you'd better come in and register tomorrow!) We are here to help you now and later, too!

Mamie Hiked Ike's Rounds in High Heels

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An Alamo City woman who introduced Dwight D. Eisenhower to his future wife, Mamie Doud, stirred up a fuss at the Doud residence.

Mrs. Lula Allen Wright said young Eisenhower "nearly drove them crazy calling her up."

"Mrs. Wright added, 'She wouldn't let him put anything over on her, though she had many other dates.'"

Mrs. Wright lived at Ft. Sam Houston and knew the Douds because they lived next to her sister.

One day the Douds and Mrs. Wright's sister and husband were visiting at the post and Mrs. Wright saw Ike walking by.

INTRODUCED

He was officer of the day and after he had been introduced to Mamie he persuaded her to walk with him through the rest of his rounds, "high heels and all," Mrs. Wright said.

She remembers that once during the courtship that followed, Mamie's father protested that a jewelry case Eisenhower had bought her was too expensive, but the girl persisted and she kept the gift.

"There was never any question about Ike and Mamie liking each other after they met," Mrs. Wright said.

Work Given to Columbia

NEW YORK (AP) — A rare copy of the Book of Revelation from the 15th Century Gutenberg Bible has been presented to the Columbia University Libraries.

The gift was made by Mary Flagler Cary Charitable Trust. Mrs. Cary was the daughter of Henry Harkness Flagler, who was a patron of the arts and a member of the Columbia College Class of 1894. Her husband, Melbert Cary, had purchased the book at auction in 1941.

"It has become the Libraries' most significant example of the work of Gutenberg and, as a portion of the first and most famous printed book in the Western World, it takes a principal place in our collection of printing treasures," said Kenneth Loh, librarian for rare books and manuscripts.

Easter Concert Features Organist

The internationally famous pressings of which number in organist E. Power Biggs will be the millions.

He'll be heard with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in an Easter Sunday afternoon concert in Ford Auditorium at 3:30 and timpani and also will perform a group of organ solos by J. S. Bach.

Ehring also will conduct the orchestra in Richard Wagner's able to appear.

Biggs scheduled his Detroit appearance only a few weeks ago when it was learned that organist Richard Ellsasser, the scheduled soloist, would not be able to appear.

Sixteen Ehring will conduct. Biggs, who Time magazine called "the leader of the organ revival and the United States' most famous organist," is widely acknowledged as the person most responsible for creating a 20th century renaissance of interest in great organ music.

His 16 years of Sunday morning concerts over the CBS radio network, which originated in the Bush-Reisinger Museum at Harvard beginning in 1942, were heard by millions of regular listeners. He also has recorded some 60 record albums.

'Yes, but . . . ' Philosophy Really Works

By DELONDA JARVIS
Homemaker, Mooreland,
Indiana

Several years ago when my husband was laid off his job for a few months, we were forced to make a painful decision. He would stay home and care for the house and children while I took a job.

Mrs. Jarvis

With no training or work experience I was lucky to get a job in a nearby factory office. During those first few weeks, however, I found much to complain about and this "gripping" attitude of mine might have damaged a number of relationships if I hadn't met Martha Morris.

Martha was private secretary to the head of the sales department where I worked. Since her boss spent three weeks out of every four on the road, Martha had a greater degree of privacy than the rest of us.

Because of her open friendliness, I found myself making trips down the hall to complain to Martha about my boss, my job, the children, and all the work I had to do.

But suddenly I realized that the answers I was getting were different from the ones I was used to hearing. When I complained to Martha about how irritable my boss was, she would say, "Yes, but remember he has a lot of responsibility."

When I griped about my job, her response was, "Yes, but think how lucky you are to have a job where you can learn so many things."

When I grumbled about the children, "Yes, I know they are noisy, but they are so young (3 and 6) and they are so pleased to see you come home. Make them yell because you do. Why don't you make a real effort to see how softly you can talk to them, just one evening, and see what happens?"

When I growled about all the work I had to do, "Yes, it is a lot, but do all you can as well as you can. You'll be amazed at how much you can accomplish when you try."

NOT LIKE PREACHING

She made these statements with such warmth and concern that it didn't sound like preaching or "Polyanna" platitudes. And for each complaint the answer always came back, "Yes, but . . ."

Soon Martha's "yes, but . . ." began to take hold on my life. Often when I was about ready to lose my temper or to complain, I'd find myself subconsciously looking on the other side of the question, saying with Martha, "Yes, but . . .". And, gradually, I found myself changing. I began to see that things were not as black as they had seemed for so long. I began to learn to expect more from myself and less from everyone else.

I tried the "soft" approach at home and, almost miraculously, evening mealtime, which had formerly been a virtual battlefield became a time of pleasurable exchanges of the day's experiences.

Even the work load in the office seemed lightened when I began to take pride in the amount of work I was able to accomplish rather than dwelling on how much more I was doing than the girl next to me.

SPOKE HER MIND

At lunch where the custom was to "chew over" any absent member along with the meal, Martha never hesitated to speak her mind.

"Yes, Jean has worn that same dress three times this week, but you know that she has been staying with her aunt and uncle who are ill, taking care of them after work all this week?" I never heard Martha say an unkind word about anyone.

And this was the woman who had seen her husband off to war, who had lost two babies and later lost her beloved father in a tragic and senseless automobile accident, and who still had the strength to be an inspiration to everyone she met.

Martha's tow-word philosophy—"yes, but . . ." is a simple device, yet it came out of deep conviction and belief that God can take any bad situation and somehow reveal His goodness through it. While so many people just talk about faith, Martha Morris lives hers.

Dubious Future Is Causing Cigarette Firms to Diversify

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cigarette manufacturers are diversifying rapidly on the frank assumption that their business futures in tobacco have become somewhat dubious.

No one expects millions of Americans suddenly to kick the smoking habit, but a decline in cigarette smoking started late in 1967 and is continuing and even accelerating a little.

So far the drop in consumption is only 1.75 per cent, but it appears that consumption is not going to bounce back as it did in 1965 after the surgeon general's initial report on smoking and health.

Philip Morris Inc. started the diversification trend in 1957 and it now is picking up steam for a variety of reasons.

DETERMINATION

One is the apparent determination of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to end all cigarette advertising on television and radio.

The FCC and FTC have the power to do this unless Congress enacts an extension of a law expiring June 30 forbidding any further restrictions on broadcast cigarette advertising.

While there appears to be sentiment in the House in favor of extending the moratorium, the tobacco industry is up against growing opposition in the Senate.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, has threatened a filibuster to prevent any extension.

'GROWING AWARENESS'

Moss says there is a growing awareness in Congress of the danger to national health from smoking.

Whether the loss of broadcast advertising—which absorbs around 73 per cent of the $250 million plus the tobacco companies spend yearly on advertising—would cause the decline in smoking to accelerate rapidly is quite a question.

Frank Maxwell of Oppenheimer & Co., one of the few analysts who specializes in tobacco stocks, doesn't think so.

He points out that in Britain, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, where broadcast advertising has been halted, this has not affected sales.

PUBLIC BACKS BAN

It should be pointed out that broadcast advertising in general never has played the significant role in merchandising in Europe it does in the United States.

A recent Harris poll indicated 50 per cent of the public favors banning broadcast cigarette advertising and only a little over 40 per cent favors continuing it.

A layoff of 400 workers or one-quarter of the force at the Louisville cigarette plant at Lorillard Co. ordered last week was something of a shocker in the industry.

There have been other layoffs in cigarette factories in recent years but none so big.

SOMEWHAT DOUBTFUL

Lorillard recently was acquired by Loew's Theatres, a conglomerate, and the company said frankly the reason it was willing to seek shelter in a conglomerate was that the future of the tobacco industry in the United States seems somewhat doubtful.

The diversification trend has proceeded so far already that only one of the six major companies is keeping the word tobacco in its corporate title—British American Tobacco, which operates Brown & Williamson at Louisville.

The drive of the surgeon general's office against smoking has been a potent factor in persuading companies to diversify, but there are others.

The 1.75 per cent decline in cigarette consumption is largely among persons over 18, but there are scattered indications that the number of teen-agers who simply are not starting the habit is growing at a rather startling rate.

SPOT CHECKS

Some spot checks have indicated that whereas at least 35 per cent of kids in the 16-17 bracket smoked 10 years ago, the proportion may be only 25 to 27 per cent now.

Daniel Horn, head of the U.S. Public Health Service's clearinghouse on smoking and health, says seven million Americans try to kick the smoking habit every year but only 1.5 million succeed.

The Department of Agriculture is predicting cigarette consumption will remain fairly steady because of population growth but then will start falling.

Horn predicts that within 10 years smokers will have declined to one-third of the total population from the present half.

HAVING AN EFFECT

The tobacco industry does not concede this. It says health scares will blow over.

The fact that the health warning must be carried in cigarette advertising and that television and radio stations that accept cigarette ads now are required by law to broadcast antismoking warnings are having an effect.

The FCC stepped on two New York City stations last week for not broadcasting enough antismoking warnings.

According to Volgs & Fields, a major talent agency, about 10 per cent of all actors now show reluctance to appear in cigarette commercials.

Lebanon Is Once More on the Spot

By AP Newsfeatures

Practically surrounded by an increasingly belligerent Syria, except where it abuts the south on heavily armed Israel, Lebanon once more is on the spot.

This is no novelty because, since the days of Phoenicia, she has been a crossroads country where warring kingdoms and marching armies have met.

Half Christian and half Moslem, Lebanon until recently tried by and large to stay neutral amid Israeli-Arab tensions.

Alone among her neighbors, she took no part in the 1967 war. But when Israel destroyed 13 of her airlines last December in retaliation for the attack on an Israeli airliner, her government fell and a hard-liner, Rashid Karamé, became premier.

LIVES BY TRADE

Smaller than Connecticut and with only 2.5 million inhabitants, Lebanon lives by trade.

As in ages past she has been an exchange depot for the commerce of East and West.

A major pipeline from Saudi Arabia crosses her territory, and her capital city, Beirut, is a major port. It is also a city of international banks, of universities and of social amenities.

Back in the fertile valleys behind the mountain ranges grow apples and citrus fruits and lumber-producing groves, although the famed cedars of Lebanon exist only as remnants.

Black Candidates Eye Key Posts

By the Associated Press

Negro candidates are on the march this spring for important elective office in several of the nation's cities.

In Philadelphia, Joseph E. Coleman, a 46-year-old patent lawyer-chemist, has split the local Democratic party by entering the May 20 primary for nomination as city controller.

No Negro has ever been nominated for top offices, which include mayor, district attorney, controller and three commissioners.

Coleman, a Mississippi native and a six-footer who played football at Albright College in 1948, says, "I believe the people should have the opportunity to vote for qualified, articulate black men of integrity... If a new image of black men can be projected, especially to our black children, then my action will be justified."

NEGRO OFFICIALS

Philadelphia has 650,000 registered Democrats, of whom about 200,000 are Negroes, and 200,000 registered Republicans, of whom 67,000 are Negroes.

The city has one Negro congressman and three Negro city councilmen. The Democratic party has slated A. Charles Perito, a white attorney, for controller.

The first Negro elected to the Los Angeles City Council, Tom Bradley, is a candidate for that city's mayor in Tuesday's municipal primary election.

A Field Research Corp. poll for television station KXV, disclosed Friday, rated Bradley ahead among 14 candidates for the nonpartisan post. It showed Bradley favored by 31 per cent of 1,097 votes with incumbent Sam Yorty second with 21 per cent. Earlier polls had Yorty made up 57 per cent of the electorate. He expects to win 70 per cent of the Negro vote.

RATED AS PLUS

He says, "The element I bring to this campaign, this special understanding of the minority communities, is an extra, is a plus."

In Jersey City, N.J., a community of 275,000, Julian Robinson is challenging the powerful old-line Democrats and has already felt the wrath of the party in his election campaign to unseat Mayor Thomas Whelan on May 13.

Whelan has locked Robinson out of his office and is trying to fire him from his $18,000-a-year job as director of the city health and welfare department.

Robinson's candidacy is a "conflict which would upset the efficient running of the city administration," an aide of Whelan said.

Robinson concedes that some white voters will think: "Julian

Robinson is black, the Black Panthers are in Jersey City, and, therefore, if he becomes mayor, the Black Panthers will run Jersey City." The Panthers were blamed for two recent attacks on a police precinct.

Robinson disavows any connection with the Black Panthers. Jersey City has about 50,000 Negroes.

Percy Sutton, borough president of Manhattan in New York City, is running for reelection in November as city councilman. J. Raymond Jones and William C. Thompson, most candidates in New York have not been announced as yet, however.

Fred Hubbard, 40, cracked Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's powerful Democratic machine in an alderman election earlier this month.

BACKING OF LEADERS

Hubbard, a former director of the metropolitan Chicago detached workers program and active civil rights worker, had the backing of several of the civic leaders, including Adlai Stevenson III, leader of anti-Daley Democrats.

But the man he beat, Lawrence Woods, 52, was an administrative assistant to Rep. William Dawson—both are Negroes—and both were working within the strong ward organization.

Dawson is a high-ranking associate of the University of Mississippi, says he entered the race because he felt Jackson has fallen behind other cities of comparable size and predicts he'll get votes from whites as well as blacks.

The organization lists housing, recreation, employment, public works, economic development, representation on city boards, education and welfare as campaign issues for the April 26 election. The full slate has not been announced. Fred D. Alexander, now the only Negro member of the City Council, will seek reelection.

EYE BLACK CANDIDATE

Detroit does not have a mayor or City Council election until November but Negro leaders are already studying whether to run a black candidate for mayor and if so who it should be. Councilman Robert Tindal is mentioned most often as a potential candidate.

Mrs. Betty Wimlish, a widow and mother of two, recently became the first Negro to be elected to the city council in St. Petersburg, Fla., defeating a white incumbent, Martin Murray. She got 20,297 votes to his 15,576.

In her campaign she attacked city hall's position during the 106-day garbage-men's strike last year and she urged better wages and working conditions. She led in white as well as Negro precincts.

In Jackson, Miss., Reubin Vincent Anderson is running in the May Democratic primary for the City Commission.

Anderson, 26, one of the first Negroes to attend the University of Mississippi, says he entered the race because he felt Jackson has fallen behind other cities of comparable size and predicts he'll get votes from whites as well as blacks.

Maynard Jackson, who lost to Sen. Herman Talmadge in last year's Georgia Democratic primary, has announced he'll run for vice mayor of Atlanta, and several Negroes have been mentioned as possible mayoral candidates.

Theodore Roosevelt, an ardent conservationist, tried to break the custom of Christmas trees, which he thought was ruining forests, by banning Christmas trees at the White House in 1902.

Plymouth Scores Most Points in Three Tests

A Plymouth Fury I scored the highest number of points of all 60 cars that competed in fuel economy, acceleration and braking tests of the Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials at Daytona Beach, Fla.

The Plymouth Fury, competing in Class V for cars equipped with standard V-8 engines, scored a total of 98 performance points out of a possible 100.

Two other Plymouth entries finished first in their respective classes, giving the Plymouth line of cars winners in three out of the nine classes of competition.

The Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials, held under the supervision of the National Association for Stock Car Racing, compared the basic performance characteristics of American-made 1969 models which are in the popular price ranges.

The fuel economy tests measured a car's fuel consumption at an average speed of 40 miles per hour over a distance of 18.57 miles.

The acceleration tests measured the time it took a car to accelerate from 25 to 70 miles per hour.

The braking tests demonstrated the car's high-speed stopping capability immediately after severe brake usage.

The 60 stock cars competing in the tests were taken directly from dealers' showrooms throughout the country to provide a realistic comparison of various makes and models.

Wagon Air Deflector

The 1969 Plymouth Fury station wagon models have a new and efficient air deflector, mounted at the rear of the roof to divert air around and across the big rear window, significantly reducing vision obstruction. By blowing clean air over the window, the deflector prevents rain, dust and grit from accumulating.

Other Plymouth winners were a Valiant Signet in Class VII for six-cylinder compact economy cars, and a Barracuda in Class IX for sports compacts.

Disagree With Charges

GIs Back Controversial Tank

SAIGON (AP) — American combat tankmen concede the newly deployed Sheridan tanks in Vietnam have some major controlled. Since then we've had no problems, but none that cannot be solved.

They do not agree with charges by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., who said last week that the new 16-ton tank is unsuited for the fighting in Vietnam. After greeting their deployment with much reservation, the tank commanders are gaining respect for the Sheridans.

"I like the Sheridan," says Col. George S. Patton Jr., commander of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment and son of the famed World War II general.

"It has no other bugs in it than any other new weapon. Any time a new weapons system is introduced, there are always defects. The Sheridan has greatly increased our combat capability. We've had three heavy engagements and the Sheridans have been largely responsible for our success in these engagements. I would like to have more of them."

Capt. Samuel W. Bartholomew of Kingsport, Tenn., of the 3rd Squadron, 4th Cavalry, 25th Infantry Division, lists two major problems:

• The sophisticated electrical firing system, which at times has malfunctioned and prevented the main gun, a 152mm cannon, from firing in combat.

• The instability of the shell used in the main gun, which is vulnerable to breaking apart before and exposing the powder, thus making it susceptible to fires and explosions in battle.

Stratton charged last week that the Sheridans were the cause of restrictions on the operations. Patton and Bartholomew said they knew of no 20 es this week resulting in the death of 131 enemy.

"We have maintenance guidelines, manuals, as new equipment is built and tested," said Bartholomew. "There were fuel tank leaks. We've had problems with them but nothing big."

Technical representatives have demonstrated and shown how the tank's leaks can be stopped and about 27 Sheridans, has lost one in combat.

NOT AWARE

"I'm not aware of any problem of clogged air vents."

"As for periscope failures, a tank is built to shut all hatches and fight from inside. But in Vietnam this is rarely done. If you shut the hatches you can't see around you and your control is not as good as it would be if you are outside. The enemy fights 5 to 10 yards away, not a long distance away."

Stratton said the tank was so noisy it could be heard for three miles and its heavy exhaust smoke made it an easy target.

Patton replied: "I know of no increase in noise and smoke as opposed to armored personnel carriers. Anytime you have a mechanized vehicle, you always have noise."

Said Bartholomew: "In Vietnam the armored cavalry doesn't sneak up on any Vietcong and North Vietnamese troops. They know where you are at all times."

'NOWHERE TO HIDE'

"You're so big there is nowhere to hide. Even a silent vehicle crashing through the jungles would give you away."

"Yes, they were major problems. But over the month the problems have lessened. The Sheridan performs better every day. The men continue to gain confidence in themselves and in the vehicle. I feel that sooner or later it will be accepted and used within a year it will replace all the army tanks in Vietnam."

Patton says the Sheridan has greatly increased the night-fighting capability of his regiment, and Bartholomew credited the Sheridans with beating back two North Vietnamese ambushes.

The 25th Division has one squadron of Sheridan tanks, and about 27. Seven have been destroyed in combat, either by mines or rocket-propelled grenades, since they went into action.

Special car Special roof Special paint

Special price

Everyone says special, but we really mean it, and we can prove it. Snapper's a special car, limited edition model from Plymouth. Once the model is discontinued, it will be pretty tough (or impossible) to get one. Among the features that make it unique is a special roof, a kooky new turtle-shell vinyl top with "camp" Snapper emblems scampering across the roof pillars. Snapper's special paint is an exclusive metallic muted-gold; cool. And Snapper comes equipped with a lot of other neat features, too: deluxe vinyl interior, white sidewalls, deluxe wheel covers, bumper guards, and a helpful little time-delay ignition switch right. The whole package goes at a special price (and we really mean special) for a limited time. Equip one to your personal needs, with anything from a Super Commando 440 V-8 to 8-track stereo, and it becomes a truly individual vehicle. At your Plymouth Dealer.

2 Lumber Firms Merge

Two long-time Pontiac area lumber firms — F. J. Poole Co. and Dickie Lumber Co. — have merged, with Frederick J. Poole heading the new company of Poole-Dickie.

Frank J. Dickie has been named vice president of the company.

The Poole firm was established in 1895 by Fred J. Poole, Poole's grandfather, and operated many years by his late father, Gelston.

Dickie's late father Hugh J., and uncle, Frank A., began the Dickie Company in 1924.

ORIGINAL LOCATIONS Both firms have operated from the same location since they were founded, the Poole company at 151 Oakland, the Dickie company at 2496 Orchard Lake, Sylvan Lake.

Under the merger, the headquarters for the company will be located at the Oakland address.

Richard C. Poole, Poole's brother, is secretary of the company. The company has a total of 35 employees.

Youths Compete in Horse Judging

Oakland County representatives and their clubs included Susan Butler, Oxford; Larry Williams, Wolverine Riders; Linda Winnowski, Strawhut Club, Union Lake; and Robert Farnham, Cloverleaf Club, Waterford Township.

Peace Talk Progress Seen by Broomfield

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee says it is his view that the peace talks on Vietnam "are getting off dead center and getting down to substantive matters."

"I would put it as cautious optimism," said Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan's 18th District.

He was referring to the private peace talks that are reportedly going on between the United States representatives and those of North Vietnam and the Vietcong to end the war in Vietnam.

Asked in an interview if Russia was taking a hand in such talks, Broomfield replied, "I feel reasonably sure that the Soviet Union is taking part in the private talks."

CAN'T BE FORCED

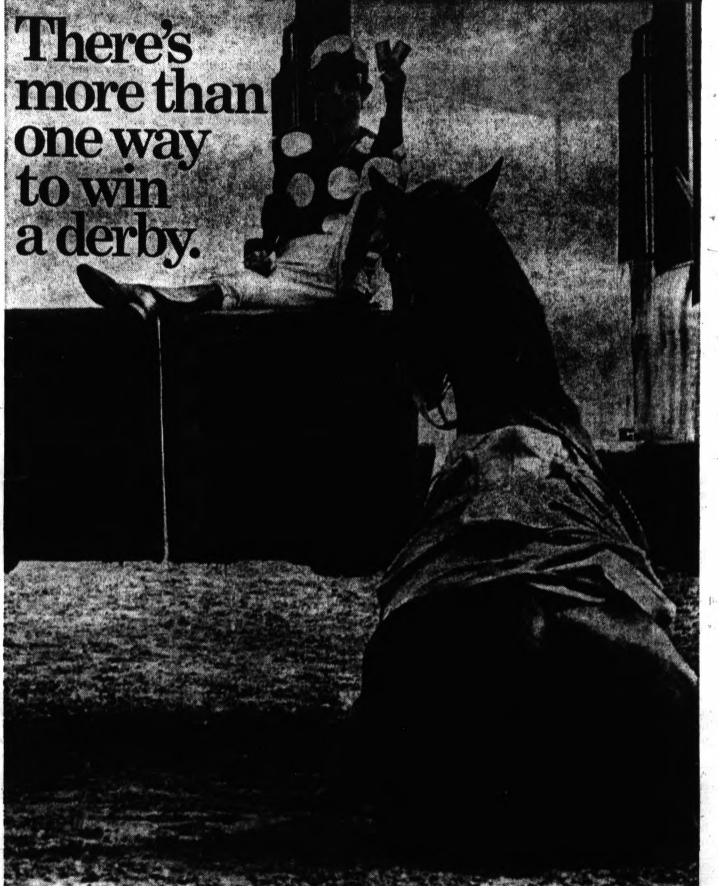

"The Soviet Union can't force negotiations," he said, "but they can privately favor a climate for Hanoi to push peace talks along."

It is Bloomfield's view that the Soviet Union looks favorably on getting the war in Vietnam resolved.

Long Wait Pays Off in City Bowling Event

The long wait ended happily yesterday at Orchard Lakes for the Judy Polovich of Oxford, Gerry Hintz of Pontiac and Art's Party Store of Lake Orion.

They were among three champions crowned as the 36th annual Pontiac Women's Bowling Association City Tournament concluded with no significant changes.

The 21-year-old Miss Polovich, the veteran Mrs. Hintz and the party store all posted the leading totals in handicap singles, actual all events and the handicap team standings during the opening weekend of competition.

Then they had to wait four more weekends to find out if their totals were good enough for the top prizes.

Close Area Track Battle Looms

Indications are that the battle for the 1969 Oakland County high school track championship will be a humdrum.

The preps kicked up their heels in the first test of the '69 campaign Saturday at Eastern Michigan University, and when the dust had cleared, five of the top nine teams in the field of 69 were from Oakland County.

PCH SECOND

But while the county had reason to crow a bit, the state did not, since a squad from Mansfield, O., made off with the team championship. Mansfield totaled 33 points with defending champion Pontiac Central taking second with 31.

Midland (28) was third, Flint Kearsley (28 1/2) fourth, while Birmingham Groves and Farmdale shared fifth with 25 points. Pontiac Northern and Flint Central were deadlocked in the seventh spot with 23 markers, while North Farmington claimed ninth with 21.

One of the outstanding performers in the meet was junior Mel Reeves of Pontiac Northern.

TOP JUMPER

Reeves cleared 6-3 to take the high jump crown and placed third in the 65-yard high hurdle with an 8.3 second clocking. John Morrison of Redford Union won the hurdles with an 8.3 time.

Pontiac Central failed to grab any first-place points but the Chiefs managed a second, a third and two fourths in a sharp display of depth and balance.

SECOND PLACE

Rolly Garcia gave the Chiefs a second with a leap of 21-feet-4 1/4-inches in the long jump. Tom McMauley of Port Huron won with a leap of 21-4 1/4.

The Chiefs were third in the two-mile relay, and placed fourth in the high jump (Campanella Russell 6-1) and shuttle hurdle relay. John Ray gave PCH a fifth in the shot put and the mile relay quad ran eighth. Birmingham Brother Rice, tied for 14th in the team standing, captured the two-mile relay. Running for the Warriors in a time of 8:17.5 were Jack Bennett, Dennis Sullivan, Kevin Keating and Lou Ciavarella.

Bunky Henry Captures Airline Golf Open

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Bunky Henry bounced his low-headed, 2-year-old son—some of three—on his knee and talked about what he was going to do with the $40,000 he had just won.

"I am going to slap it in the bank," he said.

Henry, 25, son of a Valdosta, Ga., banker and formerly a place-kicking specialist for the Georgia Tech football team, is the latest of succession of dark-horse winners on the $6 million pro golf tour.

Despite a triple-bogey 8 on one hole, the boyish-looking southerner overtook his best pal, Bob Murphy, for the first prize check in the bizarre $200,000 National Airlines Open Golf Tournament.

MISSED CUT

His best paycheck previously this year was $322.50 at Pensacola. He had missed the cut in two tournaments and in six others had finished between 41st and 79th.

Henry shot a final 70 for 278. Murphy skied to a 76 for 279, tying Dan Sikes, who had a hole-in-one in his 68; Australian Bruce Crampton, who shot a 66, and Dave Stockton, who had a 72.

In 13 tournaments so far this year, there have been 13 different winners.

Henry said last Tuesday Murphy told him he, Murphy, felt great and thought he would win. "We'll finish 1-2," Bob predicted.

Murphy, who won $105,000 as a rookie last year—$100,000 more than Henry—started with a three-stroke lead over the field, Henry five shots back.

BONUS TIME

With all final positions determined after Saturday's games, Sunday's action was strictly for individual bonuses and more record-setting.

In Boston, Phil Esposito pushed his point scoring mark to an incredible 128 and tallied his 48th and 49th goals of the season, shattering the record for a center of 47 held by Montreal's Jean Beliveau.

Esposito's linemate, Ken Hodge, scored his 44th and 45th of the season as the Bruins finished the season with a record 303 goals and 100 points, three short of the Canadiens' championship record haul.

New York goalie Ed Giacomin clinched second place in the Vezina Trophy race by shutting out the Maple Leafs. The runner-up spot was worth $750 to Giacomin. The Rangers' total of 196 goals allowed was the best figure in the East Division and second only to St. Louis, which allowed 157.

Ron Stewart scored a pair of goals as the Rangers pushed their home ice unbeaten streak to 18 games, tying a club record. New York set team records of most victories (41), most points (91) and most goals scored (231).

ON TARGET—This trio of sharpshooters poses after winding up in a tie for first place in the men's open class of the American Indoor Archery Championship in Detroit Saturday. All shot 298s out of a possible 300.

Rangers Extend Home Streak

Final Outing Big for Esposito

By The Associated Press
Its record-breaking regular season ended, the National Hockey League prepared today for the annual Stanley Cup playoffs.

In the East Division, the champion Montreal Canadiens host the third place New York Rangers and runner-up Boston Bruins face the fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs in Wednesday's opening games. In the West, champion St. Louis is home against third place Philadelphia while second-place Oakland faces fourth-place Los Angeles.

In Sunday's final games, New York thumped Toronto 4-0, Boston slugged Montreal 6-3, Chicago edged Philadelphia 2-1 and Los Angeles tied Minnesota 3-3.

In Saturday's games Montreal clinched the East title by beating Boston 5-3, New York topped Toronto for third place 4-2, Chicago and Detroit played a 1-1 tie, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh tied 3-3, Oakland bombed Minnesota 7-2 and St. Louis dropped Los Angeles 3-1.

Hoosiers Capture 2nd NCAA Swimming Title

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Coach Doc Counsilman of Indiana waited a long time to win his first National Collegiate Athletic Association swimming championship.

Saturday night his Hoosiers captured a second straight title; now it's the other coaches' turn to wait.

Indiana outdistanced the field with a record 427 points, winning nine events in the three-day meet. Underclassmen accounted for 210 of the points in individual events in Royer Pool.

Runner-up Southern California had three firsts and 306 points in the meet that produced 10 U.S. records. Stanford was third with 156, followed by Michigan with 164.

The only thing the 48-year-old Counsilman felt bad about was that NCAA meet rules allow each team to use only 18 men.

"I had boys sitting up in the stands who could have scored in this meet," he said. "That really hurts me."

In Counsilman's first 10 years as coach, Indiana finished as runner-up three times and in third place three times in the NCAA meet, but never won the title.

Such talented youngsters as Spitz, a freshman, won the 100-yard butterfly Saturday night and earlier broke U.S. records in the 200-yard and 500-yard freestyle.

The U.S. records set on the final night of the meet were 15:54.2 by Hans Fasmach of Long Beach State in the 1,650-yard freestyle, a 1:15.6 by Indiana's Charlie Hickox in the 200 backstroke and a 3:02.8 of Southern Cal in the 400 freestyle relay.

Rail Car Used by Truman Is on Exhibit

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The private railroad car which carried Harry S. Truman on his "give-em-hell" presidential campaign in 1948, is back in Missouri and may stay as a memorial to the former president.

Alex Barket, a Kansas City banker, bought the car March 20 at auction for $30,850 from Thomas F. Baker, San Francisco land developer and cotton planter.

The car arrived in Kansas City Sunday and Barket said it will be placed in an industrial park.

"The people of Missouri should be able to enjoy its historic value," Barket said.

The tropical islands of Hawaii are no stranger to snow. In early September 1968, the volcano Mauna Kea on the big island of Hawaii had its first snow cover of the season.

Jim: "You have told me that by 1930 expert contract bidding had begun to take shape. How far along had you come?"

Oswald: "We worked on finding 44 fits. The oldtimers despised four-card suits and it took us youngsters to get around to bidding them. A weakness of everyone's."

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Tuesday

The wise man controls his destiny... Astrology points the way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Expanded contacts. Accord on peace realizations. Excellent for partnerships, marriage. Tie up loose ends. Heavy courtship. Contractual details. You can save money in this money.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work comes. Money—no employment opportunities. Be perceptive, adventures. Your efforts receive greater degree of appreciation. You gain needed cooperation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your love life is activated. Children could play paramount role. Stress harmony at home. Don't risk security for "excitement." Big money depends upon degree of maturity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Review progress values. What you own could be worth more than you imagine. One who talks behind his back receives reprimand. Build on solid base. Go after facts. Discard rumors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Short journey is favored. Develop ideas. Solidify plans. Assume responsibility. Reward, promotion is indicated. Creative endeavor with success. Proceed with confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish rather than initiate project. Hold reins tight. Don't let money slip through your fingers. Be sure you get too much too soon. Heed crystals and/or tarot.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle high. Your influence spreads. You prove able to arrive by early evening. Take initiative. Be independent. Be thrifty.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take time to reflect. Don't feel you must make immediate decision. Much of what you need is taken care of behind the scenes.

Sugar Quota Study Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William S. Broomfield, R, 18th District, ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, says Congress should reevaluate the sugar quota assigned to the Philippines in light of a Philippine decision to buy sugar-milling equipment from other countries.

Preferential payments to Philippine sugar producers net that country an annual subsidy of $67.5 million, Broomfield said in a statement Friday.

Chiefly in order to process enough sugar to take full advantage of U.S. sugar quotas he said the Philippines has contracted to build 15 new sugar mills estimated to cost a total of $200 million.

Mainland U.S. suppliers got none of the contracts despite the fact that their equipment is apparently price competitive, Broomfield said.

Bird Is Abducted From Chicago Zoo

CHICAGO (AP) — Two men abducted a small bird Sunday from the Lincoln Park Zoo and took it to a nearby apartment where, police said, only feathers and peanut shells were found.

Dr. Lester E. Fisher, zoo director, described the missing bird, a tiny toucan, as a native of tropical America which is neither rare nor valuable "but has great sentimental value."

No questions will be asked if the bird is returned to the zoo, said Fisher.

though, was their unwillingness to compete on mere distribution."

Jim: "Playing with Hal Sims, Willard Karn and Lee Langdon, you lost the finals of the 1930 knockout team championship to Ely and Joe Culbertson playing with Lightner and Von Zedwitz. How about some hands from that match?"

Oswald: "We might start with board eight. Bidding was the same at both tables and each West opened the lack of diamonds. This produced the queen, king and ace. Declarer proceeded to draw trumps and wound up making three because he could lead up to both the nine of diamonds and the king of hearts."

Jim: "I see what you mean about lack of competition. East doesn't have much of a head but most modern players would stick in a negative double of the two-spade bid. The Culbertson staff commented that East and West could make four hearts but that there was no way to get into the bidding."

Oswald: "The analysis wasn't correct. It wasn't hard for North and South to wait for declarer to play diamonds whereupon the best East and West could do was to make three hearts. Chances are that if East did double two spades and West bid four hearts, that North and South would wind up taking a phantom save at four spades doubled."

Barbra's Estranged Hubby
Calls Her 'Original Beauty'

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK—Elliott Guld, Barbra Streisand's tall, good-looking and estranged husband, is whizzing right along in his own career while not only speaking highly of her but saying she is "an original beauty."

Wearing a full black beard he'll wear in a movie called "M.A.S.H." playing a military surgeon, he sat in Kipp's and confessed among other things that he's a bubblegum fanatic who still loves it.

"When I buy it now, I say 'I'm buying it for my kid.' Did you know I have had Bobby Kennedy bubblegum tickets now? When I was doing a bedroom scene with Dyan Cannon in 'Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice,' I was chewing bubblegum. Have you ever tasted sugary bubblegum?"

After "M.A.S.H." he'll do "Move," based on a novel by Joel Lieber about a dog-walker who has many problems including sexual.

"I have to start living with a St. Bernard in real life to get ready for that picture. In 'M.A.S.H.' I have to perform operations. I'm trying to get them to show me some operations in hospitals in advance. There's a lot of gore to it. And I'm a guy that hates to cut anything, including a steak."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

When Eddie Fisher opens at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas next month his competition, at the Flamingo just across the street, will be another singer—his wife, Connie Stevens. With Liz Taylor's back still aching, producer Bob Frier's again thinking of Anne Bancroft for "Myra Breckinridge" . . . Joe Namath may be available during the off-season—at big money, of course—to star in such musicals as "Pal Joey" and "Damn Yankees" . . . Desi Arnaz will undergo abdominal surgery.

James Earl Jones (of "Great White Hope") is going to Sing Sing to give diplomas to prisoners graduating from the computer programming classes . . . Underground star Ultra Violet ordered a white velvet formal motorcycle jacket for her hair, Andy Warhol . . . Joey Heatherton and footballer Lance Rentzel were invited to honeymoon next month at the Miami Beach Hilton Plaza.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Cy Martin's new shoe salon has chairs bearing the names of Sammy Davis, Steve Lawrence and other stars. "Tomorrow," says Cy, "we're putting Jackie Gleason's name on a couch."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: With the airlines raising their prices, even the cost of going up is going up.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A bore generally runs out of listeners before he runs out of conversation."

EARL'S PEARLS: Taffy Tuttle figures she'll never lose weight: "The only exercise I get is winding spaghetti on my fork at dinner."

Rocky Marciano was kidded by Jack Waldron: "Rocky's such a ham he carries a card that reads, 'I'm a celebrity. In case of accident . . . call a reporter.'" . . . That's earl, brother. (Publishers—Holt Syndicate)

Milliken Faces Trouble if He Tries to Limit School Aid

By JAMES PHILLIPS
LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken could come under fire from Republicans and Democrats if he attempts to limit public school funds.
Milliken, who is expected to release his special legislative —perhaps a boost in the state income tax.

Lockwood said he felt the income tax was the most probable means of raising new revenues. A 1 per cent increase in the state income tax brings in about $100 million, he added.
Bills introduced in the Legislature to provide funds for parochial and private schools could be used to help finance both public and private education.

votes to pass new tax measures."
"It would be very nice if some type of massive package deal could be worked out that takes care of the total needs of education — both public and private," he added.
Nuisance taxes, such as hiking the tax on cigarettes by three cents per pack, probably

If a tax increase is essential, Ryan said, a state income tax boost probably would be the easiest to pass.
LITTLE CHANCE
Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, has introduced an income tax measure that authorities say could generate $1 billion in new revenue for schools.
Under Spencer's plan, personal wouldn't stand much chance of passage, he added.

1.5 per cent. Corporate income taxes would rise from 5.5 per cent to 6.6 per cent and financial institutions would pay a 10 per cent instead of 7 per cent tax.
In addition, Spencer has proposed changes in the state aid formula used to dole out funds to school districts.

COULD BE AMENDED
Some suggested that Spencer's bill could be amended to provide the necessary revenues for both public and private education.

In any event, influential Republicans and Democrats both appear to be lining up behind forces to give schools this coming year a pay hike greater than $85 million.
"The governor won't be able to be neutral on this," said Ryan.

education message this week, has vowed to stand by his budget recommendation that public school funds be increased this year by $85 million.

And he has declared that no new taxes are needed.
Republicans in the Legislature were expected to back the governor. However, Milliken's support apparently was weakened when Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood said more than $85 million would be needed.

LOCKED DOORS
Unless enormous amounts of cash are given to schools, Lockwood said, at least half of the state's public school pupils would find their school doors locked in September.

The New Detroit Committee, Lockwood added, is expected to urge appropriation of $90 million in additional school funds for the coming year. A similar demand can be expected from outside areas, he added.

Besides public schools, there is a clamor for state funds for private and parochial schools. A bill currently before the Legislature would provide an estimated $40 million for nonpublic schools.
Milliken has been adamant in saying he would not approve the bill unless it was accompanied with means to raise the estimated $40 million.

ADDITIONAL DOLLARS?
Conceivably, the governor could be asked to sign tax measures designed to bring in nearly one-quarter billion additional dollars for education.
If this develops, one House member said, funds for public and nonpublic schools could be wrapped up in one tax package

BIG INCREASE
"It all adds up to one thing," said House Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit. "The demands of teachers and the increased expenditures for education generally have greatly increased the cost of education."

Ryan, an ardent supporter of state aid to private schools, said it wouldn't be "easy to get the

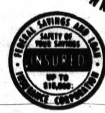

LA to Elect Mayor in Vote Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than half the 1.6 million registered voters are expected to go to the polls tomorrow to elect a mayor.

Mayor Sam Yorty, after 2 four-year terms, is opposed by 13 candidates. His strongest rivals are believed to be City Councilman Thomas Bradley, a Negro with support of Democratic party leaders, and Rep. Alphonzo Bell, a Republican.

In another election, a successor will be elected in California's 27th Congressional district where Republican Ed Reinecke resigned to become lieutenant governor. There are 16 candidates including Barry Goldwater Jr., son of the senator from Arizona.

World Leaders Gather to Honor Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The grand leaders of the world came together today to pay a splendid, ceremonial final tribute to Dwight David Eisenhower.

Ordinary Americans shuffled patiently in thousands through a long, blustery spring night to say a simpler goodbye.

Presidents and prime ministers, chancellors and kings, journeyed across the planet for the final day of the elaborate state funeral honoring the 34th president of the United States and one of its fabled warriors.

President Nixon took the opportunity to invite French President Charles de Gaulle to a working meeting at the White House today before the funeral of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Related Stories, Pictures, Pages A-3, A-5, B-7

Other visiting heads of state and representatives of foreign governments will be received formally at the White House at 7 p.m., after the ceremonies.

The topics of the Nixon-DeGaulle discussion were not disclosed. But presumably the meeting was intended to be a continuation of their conference in Paris last month.

In addition to De Gaulle, other world leaders present for the funeral, included the Shah of Iran, Constantine of Greece, King Baudouin of Belgium, West Germany's Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger and dozens more.

They rested through the night for the formal, invitation-only, funeral service in the stately National Cathedral this afternoon.

Thousands of others did not rest. Quietly, unemotionally, they trudged across the grounds of the U.S. Capitol, up the majestic steps where Eisenhower twice took the oath of office, and into the soaring, hushed Rotunda.

They blinked in the harsh lights of television as they came in from the cold to the place where their Ike lay in state.

Inside, they filed by on either side of the plain Gilt coffin which was draped in the Stars and Stripes of the country he had fought for in war and led in peace.

There, President Nixon had said in eulogy earlier, lay "that rarest of men, an authentic hero."

There lay a man whose last words to his wife were just the ones these people who came through the night might have hoped he would say:

"I've always loved my wife. I've always loved my children. I've always loved my grandchildren. And I have always loved my country."

A small, bent shadow, Mamie Dowd Eisenhower, 72, fought back tears and grasped the arm of her sturdy son, John, as her husband's vice president, and eventual successor quietly addressed the solemn gathering of dignitaries for 16 minutes before the Rotunda was opened to the public.

It was Nixon who disclosed to the world the last words Eisenhower had spoken to his wife just before his death Friday afternoon.

Agony Over Death Troubled Jesus, Too

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Death is man's everyday companion. Yet man's deepest instincts rebel about the thought of dying. The following first of five articles dealing with the Easter period takes up man's relations to death and its meaning in the Judeo-Christian tradition.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The candle burns out, and you're gone. It is the end, the utter loss, the awful finality. And it comes to all men. They don't like to think about it, but they must die.

"You are dust," says the Genesis account of creation, "and to dust you shall return."

It is no pleasant prospect, in the Judeo-Christian view. Modern culture tries to obscure it, avoid talk of it, mask it in soft music, whispers, flowers and coffin cosmetics. But it haunts the human consciousness.

It troubles every man. It troubled Jesus of Nazareth.

'SORROWFUL, TROUBLED'

He became "sorrowful and troubled," the book of Matthew relates, on that fateful spring midnight of 30 A.D. when He took His apostles up on the wooded hillside of Gethsemane outside Jerusalem to await His arrest.

"My soul is very sorrowful, even to death," He told them. "Remain here, and watch with Me."

He left them beside an old oil press, and went on alone into a small clearing among the gnarled olive trees. He flung himself to the ground, face down, sobbing. His arms spread against a protruding slab of rock.

Detroit Police, Blacks Battle

From Our News Wires

DETROIT — Two persons remained in custody today out of 135 picked up after a 20-minute gun battle outside a near west side church Saturday night at the end of a national black separatist meeting.

No arrests have been reported in the killing of one policeman and the serious wounding of another, an incident that triggered a massive police charge with guns blazing into the New Bethel Baptist Church, located three blocks from the core area of the 1967 riots.

Detectives investigating the fatal shooting of Michael Czapski, 22, wanted to jail eight more of the 135 originally arrested.

But Judge George Crockett, a Negro of Recorder's Court ruled yesterday that police had illegally made nitrate tests of the suspects' hands to determine whether they had recently fired weapons. The judge said the police had failed to advise the men first of their right to call lawyers, and he ordered their release.

PROSECUTOR IN CONTEMPT

Crockett cited William L. Cahalan, Wayne County prosecutor, for contempt of court for trying to keep one of the men in custody.

TEEN-AGE TRAFFIC SAFETY — Dr. Donald F. Huelke (left) of the University of Michigan discusses traffic safety by the use of seat belts to Mike Showler of Waterford Township High School and Linda Odnal of Pontiac Northern High School at Saturday's Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference.

Traffic Safety Meet Draws 900 Youths

Approximately 900 Oakland County high school students attended the Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference Saturday at the Pontiac Northern High School auditorium. This year's theme dealt with the use of safety belts.

The 10th annual conference, organized by the Traffic Safety Committee of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, was co-sponsored by the Traffic Improvement Association (TIA) of Oakland County.

A slide presentation of accident case histories involving the use and nonuse of safety belts was delivered by Dr. Donald F. Huelke of the University of Michigan department of anatomy.

Richard Whitmer, legislative counsel to Gov. William Milliken, discussed safety belts in relation to the state problem of traffic safety.

A highlight of the half-day session was the selection of "Miss Teen Lock-It" of Oakland County. She is Dianne Vincent of 3103 School House, Waterford Township and a student at Waterford Mott High School.

Betsy Corson of 2720 Yorkshire, Troy, was chosen runner-up. She is a student at Troy High School. Both girls were selected from eight candidates nominated by the high schools attending the conference.

Miss Vincent was awarded a $25 Savings Bond by the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce. She also received a safety belt with an engraved buckle as a symbol of the conference.

Following the naming of "Miss Teen Lock-It," Mrs. J. B. Dixon, TIA consultant, described the TIA's current public education program to increase the (Continued on Page A-2, Col. 5)

State Hearings Set on Stadium Agency

A hearing is scheduled April 21 in the House Chambers in Lansing on a proposal to create an authority for a domed sports stadium to be built somewhere in the Detroit metropolitan area.

The authority would have the power to issue revenue bonds for construction of the stadium, estimated to cost between $60 million and $90 million.

Sponsor of the bill is Rep. Arthur Law, D-Pontiac. The measure has 31 co-sponsors.

Law said he sponsored the bill to set up the authority on the condition that the stadium be built on a site chosen by the owners of the Detroit Lions and Tigers.

FAVORS PONTIAC

"I personally favor the Pontiac location," Law said. "Last November, I wrote a letter to the head of the State Fairgrounds Stadium Study Committee, pointing out why I think Pontiac is a more logical site for the stadium, as well as for the State Fairgrounds."

Law has two bills under draft in the legislative service bureau — one which proposes Pontiac as the stadium site; and another which calls for relocation of the State Fairgrounds from Detroit to Pontiac.

Youth Is Held in City Slaying

A Flint man was fatally shot in a Pontiac home early yesterday and a city youth is in police custody, for investigation of murder.

Killed at 283 Prospect was Frederick Walker, 31, of an unreported address, according to police. Officers said he was shot three times with an automatic pistol.

Arrested at the scene was Thomas T. Greene, 17, of the Prospect address. Investigators said they are seeking a warrant charging him with murder.

Police were called to the scene about 1:30 a.m. and found the victim lying on the floor of an upstairs bedroom. He had been shot in the left and right side near the hip and in the abdomen, officers said.

IMPOUNDED

Investigators said they found spent cartridges from an automatic weapon and impounded a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

Greene was arrested after questioning, according to officers.

Also at the scene were a woman identified as Green's sister and a small child, police said.

License Fee Dip Eyed

LANSING (AP) — Investigators will tackle the question of why Michigan license plate fees for trucks and trailers generated $2 million less in 1968 than in 1967, Secretary of State James Hare announced this weekend.

Hare said preliminary reports indicate car owners paid $20 million more for 1969 license plates this year, compared with 1968, while truckers got a break. He has ordered his staff to probe the matter.

Icy Temperatures, Snow Flurries Seen

Snow flurries and cold temperatures dominate the weather scene today. Increasing cloudiness with lows predicted in the 17-to-22-degree range are on the weather agenda for tonight.

Temperatures are due to rise slightly tomorrow as cloudy skies bring occasional rain. The sporadic showers are expected to continue through Wednesday when temperatures will take a drop.

Precipitation probabilities in per cent are today 5, tonight 10 and tomorrow 40.

Marble Requires Care to Prevent Stains on Surface

Keep your marble lovely by keeping it clean and properly protected. Wash marble with clean cloths and fresh lukewarm water. Twice a year, wash it with a mild detergent as an additional safeguard to remove residue dirt. Then protect it with a marble polish. This will help combat staining and discoloration through absorption into its pores of any discoloring material.

Marble reacts to certain acids and alkalis present in many foods and liquids. These can actually etch the marble. Alcohol and fruit juices will mar the surface. If any liquid is spilled on marble, it should be washed with clean water as soon as possible.

There's more to marriage than you think

Sometimes it's having to spend your first two months together, returning wedding gifts that you just can't use. (Bleah.) So what's a bride to do? The best (and simplest) solution is to register your gift choices with Hudson's Bride's Registry. (It's the world's largest, you know.) Our consultant will help you coordinate your china, stemware, silver, linens and even more. (Oh?) You can even register for our 'package deals.' (Ingenious little set-ups that save you from getting too many pieces of china and not enough silver.) Then our computer (Computer? Yes.) takes over to make doubly sure that your guests won't duplicate your gifts. (Ah-b-b-h!) So stop at our Bride's Registry before the big day and then worry whether or not you can cook anything in those cute little ramekins you chose. (And if you don't know what those are, you'd better come in and register tomorrow!) We are here to help you now and later, too!

Gauge of Greatness—1

Ike Guided by Strange Pattern

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of five articles on the life of one of America's best-loved figures. It is based on the author's forthcoming book, "Dwight D. Eisenhower: A Gauge of Greatness.")

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

A strange pattern appears again and again in the story of Dwight D. Eisenhower's whole, a sequence of events that seems almost to have preordained him for his great role in history.

He makes a certain decision, unaware that it will lead to a turning point in his life. Sheer accident brings him to other turning points. If he had made a difference decision at a particular moment, or if events had developed differently, it is extremely unlikely that he would have been chosen to lead the mightiest army in history, and then to be elected president of the United States. Indeed, it is doubtful that the world ever would have heard his name.

The nexus—destiny or blind chance—is clearly visible, binding together the strands of his two careers.

This is not to say that Eisenhower was merely a fortunate man. He brought to each new undertaking a keenly analytical mind, vision, determination, and the physical and mental stamina to work long hours. He took advantage of his opportunities, but nothing came to him on a silver platter.

FASCINATING STUDY

Nonetheless, his life is a fascinating study in "ifs."

The first of these appears in 1910, the accident that sent him to the United States Military Academy.

He had graduated from high school in Abilene, Kan., and was desperately anxious to go to college. Any college. However, his elder brother, Edgar, had just entered the University of Michigan and Dwight, for financial reasons, would have to wait. He took a job as night foreman in the Belle Springs Creamery in Abilene.

Eisenhower's closest friend was a schoolmate named Everett L. Hazlett Jr. Dwight called him "Swede." Throughout the Second World War and even when he was president, Eisenhower corresponded regularly with his friend. Some of his most interesting and touching letters began with the salutation, "Dear Swede."

In the year before, Hazlett had received a congressional appointment to the United States Naval Academy, but had failed the entrance examinations. Now, having obtained a second appointment, he was taking special studies in preparation for a second try.

"Swede" often came to the creamery at night to pass the time with Ike. One night, he broached an idea—why shouldn't Ike try for an appointment to the academy? He pictured the fun they could have together. They might even be roommates. But he touched the most responsive chord when he said, "Look at it this way, Ike. Here's a chance for an education and you don't have to pay for it."

The thought took root.

Ike promptly wrote to both Kansas senators asking for an appointment to Annapolis. One, J. L. Bristow, replied that he proposed to fill them in competitive examinations. May the best man win.

With "Swede's" help, Ike crammed furiously for a month and then went to Topeka for the examinations. Playing it safe, he did not express a preference for the Naval Academy. He took the tests for both service schools.

SCORES HIGH

To his immense delight, the senator later advised him that he had scored highest (among four applicants) for the appointment to the Naval Academy and second (among eight) for West Point.

Then came a cruel shock. Having passed his 20th birthday, Ike was ineligible because of age for Annapolis. Bristow wrote that the boy who had scored No. 1 in the test for the Military Academy would not be taking the appointment and therefore he was awarding it to Ike.

Both boys were deeply disappointed. But Hazlett recalled later, "Ike mumbled something about not looking a gift horse in the mouth." So it was to be West Point, not Annapolis. He was luckier than he realized.

Suppose he had attended the Naval Academy. With his attainments, he might have reached the rank of admiral. But would he have become the first admiral elected President of the United States?

2ND TURNING POINT

The second turning point was to come four years later. Eisenhower's grades were well above average at West Point. He graduated in the top third of the Class of 1915.

However, a serious question arose as to whether he should be commissioned. He injured his knee playing football against Tufts College in his second year as a cadet. (Eisenhower said that in the ensuing years more than two dozen Tufts alumni each told him that he had been the one who inflicted the injury and apologized "for hitting you so hard.") He said, wryly, that he often wondered how many men Tufts had on the field that day!

Characteristically, he ignored the pain. Then, in a cavalry drill, he jumped from his horse and the knee buckled like a jackknife. He was hospitalized, in traction part of the time, for 30 days.

HESITATE ON COMMISSION

When he was about to graduate, the medical officers at the academy were not certain whether they should recommend him for a commission. The authorities hesitated to commission any cadet with a serious physical defect which might force him to retire early. In that event, the investment of four years' training in the academy would be lost. What should they do about the man with the trick knee?

The question of commissioning him hung in the balance.

Eisenhower did not attempt to argue his case. He had achieved his objective, a college education, albeit primarily in military science. If he was not to go into the Army he would have to try some other profession.

The medical officers offered to recommend him for a commission in the coast artillery. He refused. He said he wanted the infantry. After long deliberations—and stretching the point—he agreed.

If they had decided otherwise, there would not have been a Lt. Eisenhower, much less the allied supreme commander of that name nearly 30 years later.

Oil Rush Felt in Downtown LA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The California Gold Rush is a thing of the past, but the great oil rush is still going strong.

It even has hit the downtown civic center in the nation's third largest city.

A wildcat rig—a 110-foot tower—has been built on the city's skyline atop Bunker Hill, hard by the Harbor Freeway.

There was nothing sudden about the appearance of the tower, but it seemed that way to some civic-minded persons who complained about unsightly presence.

AN EYESORE

The rig is an eyesore when viewed against the background of the glittering new Water and Power Building and the stateliest Music Center.

The tower was erected on private property by Signal Oil & Gas Co. to grant rights from the city and county for slant drilling under City Hall and other public buildings.

Drilling will penetrate to a depth of 5,000 to 6,000 feet. Company officials, somewhat embarrassed over the furor caused by their well, promised it would be only temporary. They are conducting explorations under permits good for only 60 days.

If the company strikes oil in sufficient quantities to make a profitable production well under the government buildings, the drill site could be covered with something more esthetic in the way of housing.

A PRECEDENT

There is a precedent for this—another oil company has surrounded a well with a building in the downtown area.

Arthur Spaulding, city petroleum administrator, said: "If Signal finds something handsome—something of production value—it will have to look elsewhere for a permanent drilling site."

The company was careful to set up the rig as quietly as possible. "The drilling has been soundproofed and from a noise standpoint it's quieter than the environment," the company spokesman said. "The freeway—right there—produces much more noise."

There is oil under downtown. A field is in operation not far away on the eastern side of the civic center and has attracted no special attention.

Song Predicts Its Destruction

California Shakes Off Rumor

By DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — "Where can we go when there's no San Francisco?"

It is a song called "Day After Day" by a group called the Shangos. In a cheerful Calypso rhythm, it tells how the West Coast is going to be destroyed by an earthquake and sink into the sea. It's a big hit.

Californians laugh at it and sing it, but it's kind of nervous laughter and shaky song. That's because of the wild rumors sweeping the state that there will be an earthquake, probably on Friday, which will send the West Coast sliding into the Pacific Ocean.

"Where can we go, when there's no San Diego?"

"Sure," says a spokesman at Cal Tech, "our seismological department has heard the rumors. Who hasn't? But nobody in the department is moving."

JOKER: "You know why Howard Hughes bought up Las Vegas?"

"No, why?"

"So he could have beachfront property."

"The theory that an earthquake along the San Andreas fault could separate California from the rest of the nation," says an official of the California Disaster Office, "is wrong. There is nothing to substantiate it."

"Better get ready to tie up your boat in Idaho."

A strange cult named the Fellowship of the Ancient Mind applied, in Los Angeles City Hall, for a permit. They wanted official sanction for their plan to salvage what it left of Los Angeles after the quake.

"We've been taking tests along the San Andreas fault," says a man in the Geological Survey office. "The pressures there are no greater now than they were this time last year."

"Do you know the swim?"

Nobody keeps track of how many people leave California, but the State Department of Agriculture maintains border checking stations to count people coming in. Since October, the figures at the largest of these — Yermo — have been steadily declining.

"It may be just a seasonal decline," the lady at the Department of Agriculture said, "but maybe it's this quake thing."

"Earthquakes cannot be predicted," says Cal Tech's Dr. Charles Richter. "There is no such thing as earthquake weather, or an earthquake season, or earthquake predictions. Anybody who predicts an earthquake is a quack."

"You better learn quick Jim."

A UPI dispatch from Sacramento: "Gov. Ronald Reagan said that predictions of a major California earthquake in April have no connection with his decision to vacation in Arizona during the first week of that month."

Reports that it was a prediction by Jeanne Dixon which started the whole thing have been denied by Miss Dixon. She says she has made no predictions regarding earthquakes or tidal waves hitting California this year, or any year.

"Those who don't know the swim better sing the hymn."

A University of Minnesota said that it was possible for California to drop into the sea, following a major earthquake. Cal Tech scientists felt the statement was so absurd they wouldn't even comment on it.

Some students of earthquakes have noticed a cause-and-effect relationship between volcanoes and earthquakes. If a dormant volcano suddenly becomes active in Latin or South America, the pressures along California's faults build up and good-sized quakes in California are likely.

There has been no such volcano eruption recently.

"Day after day, more people come to L.A."

The Los Angeles Times reported that a San Francisco mystic named Elisabeth Steen ran her finger over a map, felt vibrations as her finger reached Fresno, and consequently decided the quake would be centered there. She didn't mention a date, but she and her family and 35 other families left San Francisco for Spokane, Wash., California. There are 78 known faults criss-crossing the state. Southern California has a few hundred quakes a year. Last year, there were 35 in the Santa Barbara channel alone.

"Some of the fault lines are active now," says a spokesman for the Office of Civil Defense. "And that is a good thing. Inactive fault lines are dangerous — it indicates pressure is building up."

"The whole place is shaking away."

Airlines say there is a little heavier than normal booking for flights out of Los Angeles around the first of April. Boat sales are up. And yet the Civil Defense Office says the public is not panicky, that there hasn't been the flood of telephone calls it expected.

Peter Hurkos, the Dutch mystic, told Hollywood Reporter columnist Hank Grant: "We won't have any major earthquakes here for 30 years." He even bought a new house here, just to prove he meant what he mystified.

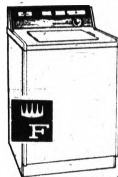

"Where can we go, when there's no San Francisco?"

Deadline Near on Medicare

The deadline for enrolling in Medicare has been extended through tomorrow due to today's closing of all Social Security offices.

The Pontiac Social Security office, 21 S. Glenwood, will be open tomorrow from 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Anyone over age 65 may sign up for full Medicare coverage during those hours.

For anyone over age 68 this is the last time they will be offered a chance to sign up for coverage of doctor bills, Heino said. "We need to have a signed statement from anyone wanting coverage, but a letter postmarked April 1 will protect a person's rights to full Medicare coverage, he said."

Dale L. Whipple

Midwest U.S. Still Shivering

By United Press International

A late-season cold spell continued east of the Rockies to the Atlantic coast today, as chilly weather spread from a large Arctic air mass over the Midwest.

Freezing temperatures were prevalent in the Arctic air mass over the Midwest.

Near zero degree readings were common in Minnesota, upper Michigan Wisconsin and the northern half of Nebraska.

A scattering of precipitation abounded with the cold air, with snow flurries across the Great Lakes to the central Appalachians.

OCC Provost Appointed for Auburn Hills

Dr. Edward A. Gallagher of Oak Park has been appointed acting provost of Oakland Community College's Auburn Hills campus, Pontiac Township.

Prior to his appointment, Gallagher served as chairman of the Auburn Hills social science division and had served for three years as an instructor at Lorain County Community College, Elyria, Ohio.

There's more than one way to win a derby.

Just stop at any Marathon station displaying the Derby Dollars sign and get your game card. Tear it open. You may be an instant winner of $1 to $1,000. If not, you can still win by saving Derby Dollars tickets. When you have four that spell out the phrase "Marathon Money-Back Guarantee," you win $50.00. Licensed drivers only. Start playing Derby Dollars at Marathon today. And you may be sitting pretty, too.

Gallagher is a member of the American Association of Junior Colleges, Organization of American Historians, National Society for College Teachers of Education and American Association of University Professors.

Barbra's Estranged Hubby Calls Her 'Original Beauty'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Elliott Gould, Barbra Streisand's tall, good-looking and estranged husband, is whizzing right along in his own career while not speaking highly of her but saying she is "an original beauty."

Wearing a full black beard he'll wear in a movie called "M.A.S.H.," playing a military surgeon, he sat in Kippy's and confessed among other things that he's a bubblegum fanatic who still loves it.

"When I buy it now, I say 'I'm buying it for my kid.' Did you know they have Bobby Kennedy bubblegum tickets now? When I was doing a bedroom scene with Ryan O'Neal in 'Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice,' I was chewing bubblegum. Have you ever tasted sugarcane bubblegum?"

After "M.A.S.H.," he'll do "Move," based on a novel by Joel Lieber about a dog-walker who has many problems including sexual.

"I have to start living with a St. Bernard in real life to get ready for that picture. In 'M.A.S.H.,' I have to perform operations in hospitals in advance. There's a lot of gore to it. And I'm a guy that hates to cut anything, including a steak."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

When Eddie Fisher opens at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas next month his competition at the Flamingo just across the street, will be another singer—his wife, Connie Stevens. With Liz Taylor's back still aching, producer Bob Fosse's again thinking of Anne Bancroft for "Myra Breckinridge" . . . Joe Namath may be available during the off-season—at big money, of course—to star in such musicals as "Pal Joey" and "Daddy Yankee" . . . Desi Arnaz will undergo abdominal surgery.

James Earl Jones (of "Great White Hope") is going to Sing Sing to give diplomas to prisoners graduating from the computer programming classes . . . Underground star Ultra Violet ordered a white velvet formal motorcycle jacket for her hero, Andy Warhol . . . Joe Headerton and footballer Lance Rentzel were invited to honeymoon next month at the Miami Beach Hilton Plaza.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Cy Martin's new show salon has chairs bearing the names of Sammy Davis, Steve Lawrence and other stars. "Tomorrow," says Cy, "we're putting Jackie Gleason's name on a couch."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: With the airlines raising their prices, even the cost of going up is going up.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A bore generally runs out of listeners before he runs out of conversation."

EARL'S PEARLS: Taffy Tuttle figures she'll never lose weight: "The only exercise I get is winding spaghetti on my fork at dinner."

Rocky Marciano was kidded by Jack Waldron: "Rocky's such a ham he carries a card that reads, 'I'm a celebrity. In case of accident . . . call a reporter.' . . . That's earl, brother." (Publishers-Hall Syndicate)
