

South Oakland Officials Consider Cooperative Plan on Rouge River Pollution

(From Our Birmingham Bureau) BIRMINGHAM — The State Water Resources Commission's order to "clean up the Rouge" may be the prime mover in the creation of another cooperative "authority" of lower Oakland County governmental units.

An "Oakland-Rouge Sanitary District" to build an interceptor sewer up the Rouge River is liable to be the latest addition to the family of joint enterprises which include the Southeastern Oakland County Sewage Disposal District, the Garbage and Rubbish Authority, and the Water Authority.

Representatives of Bloomfield Hills, Bloomfield Township, Southfield Township and Birmingham, along with County Drain Commissioner Ralph Main and consulting engineers, met this week to decide what they'll tell the Water Resources Commission Oct. 30.

On that date they'll report their federal government, and the federal government only, was authorized, competent and able to build a hydro-electric plant on any or all of the hundreds of rivers in the United States.

"In fact," he said, "the mimeograph machines of the reclamation bureau, in some cases, were busier than the bulldozers on the projects."

He said that in two cases where the Interior Department was rebuffed by the Power Commission, "thousands of dollars were wasted by the government in a fruitless effort to impose upon a local group the idea that the federal government alone had the divine right to develop a river and market the power from the falling waters."

"What our new power policy does is simply give to the states and local communities a voice in the development of the natural resources of the country in partnership with the federal government," he said.

"It is not a policy of monopoly by any one of these parties and it gives ample protection to and recognizes preference customers—public bodies and cooperatives—and proposes to set rates as low as possible without unjustified charges against the taxpayers."

Summerfield told a banquet audience of 1,000 women and a few men last night that the American people voted for Eisenhower last year because they were sick of war in Korea, of government by crisis, of graft, scandal and corruption.

"They were alarmed at our attempts to cuddle up to Communism abroad and to coddle it here at home," he declared.

Summerfield called Eisenhower "our greatest natural resource" and "our greatest deterrent to World War III."

He said it was true, as Truman had charged, that there was a "wrecking crew" in Washington.

But what was being wrecked, he added, was Truman's budget, economy-stifling controls, and Truman's belief that warfare between the legislative and executive branches measured the vigor of government.

He dismissed Stevenson's proposals for new attempts to negotiate with the Russians as splendidly phrased "and splendidly free of any new thought or any fresh understanding of the great problems besetting the world."

Summerfield said the Democrats never hesitated to promise anything and never worried about carrying out those promises.

He said they called for economy but outspent any government in history, exploited labor-management friction, left millions out of reach of Social Security and did little or nothing about civil rights.

He said the Democrats' foreign policy ignored Asia and the former administration's contradictory statements encouraged "Communist aggressors to believe they could cheaply and safely invade Korea."

progress toward abating pollution of the Rouge River. The commission has ordered the pollution ended by Dec. 31, 1954, and plans for this were to be finished by May, 1953.

A six-month extension was granted on the planning, and the commission will decide, on the basis of the October report, whether the problem is to be worked out jointly or individually by the areas.

According to Birmingham City Manager Donald C. Egbert, those present appeared to favor an authority to pay for an interceptor which would carry sewage into the Detroit system for treatment.

A tentative design for the interceptor, from Eight Mile road to the Birmingham treatment plant, was discussed, along with cost factors, delineation of the district, and how much of the authority's facilities would be owned by the district and the units in it individually.

At present, Egbert said, the area encompassed would be Southfield, except that part within the SOCSDD, and Bloomfield Townships, Bloomfield Hills, and parts of Birmingham and Troy Township included in the Rouge drainage basin.

It has not definitely been decided that joint action is the best solution to the problem, Egbert cautioned.

The group will meet again next Wednesday, to study further cost estimates and legal opinions on methods of forming the authority. Egbert estimated payment for the facilities would be spread over a 30-year period. Those present agreed to recommend to their governing bodies that legal counsel and financial counsel on the formation of the authority be retained.

Committee heads and board members of the Rotary Club will meet at 11 a.m. Monday before the luncheon meeting, when Macy Watkins, district governor, will speak to them.

Intermediate and Senior Methodist Youth Fellowships will hold meetings at 7 p.m. tomorrow. A get-acquainted meeting is scheduled for the intermediates and an orientation for the seniors.

Adult education classes, under direction of Mrs. Ewald Schaffer, will get under way Monday at the Community House. Mrs. Schaffer said enrollment had been very brisk this year, and announced openings in the following classes:

Ceramics, creative writing, abstract and figure drawing, children's drawing class, first aid, home nursing, gardening, interior decorating, millinery, painting, rug hooking, sculpture, sewing and silver.

She added that a few openings remain in the music, mixed chorus and women's self improvement classes, all offered for the first time.

Turn Right At Cross Roads
By J. Lee Voorhees

Our choice of roads at the Cross Roads to which I refer requires a fine discrimination between a happy life and living death; the smoothest road, with the most alluring signs, leads down hill to this mire of disillusionment; the other road is rocky, winds uphill to a haven of spiritual peace and all the freedom we love.

Some, for reasons of personal power, would have us prostitute the theory of Free Enterprise. They would have us believe that any form of thrift is abhorrent, to worship God is futile, kindness is weakness and only brute force can conquer; their arguments sound plausible until we scratch the sweetened coating and find the bitter reality of serfdom.

Turn RIGHT! Mingle with people whose hands are clean and helpful whose voices are sweet and clear, who, like ourselves, realize our mortal limitations and labor ever upwards to better things, spiritual comfort and divine acceptance.

party man, but added: "I told them I'd be delighted to go." Korowicz said he never even told his closest friends of his idea.

"You never know who's listening," he said, "you can't trust anyone."

What the Polish people needed, he said, was "the true news from abroad" to combat Communist propaganda.

He said dissension was rife in the Communist satellite states since Premier Josef Stalin died, and that 95 per cent of the Poles were opposed to their Communist rulers.

"I am very happy to be free in the free world," he said. "For the first time in seven years I have been able to say what I truly think. . . . I shall again have my freedom of religion."

Korowicz is a Roman Catholic. What the Polish diplomat had to say was transcribed and broadcast by Radio Free Europe over 25 transmitters operating on six frequencies.

An RFE spokesman said Korowicz' message to Iron Curtain countries was a "saturation broadcast . . . that can't be jammed."

Youth Council Holds 1st Meet

Probate Court Official Tells Group Delinquent Children Need Help

William O. McCarthy told Oakland Youth Council Friday there is an urgent need for an organization like itself to give delinquent youngsters day-to-day guidance.

McCarthy, Oakland County Probate Court children's services director, and Rev. Edgar Lucas of St. Philip Church in Rochester, spoke at the council's first formal meeting at Birmingham Community House.

McCarthy said there are 2,247 youngsters under county court supervision who badly need adult help. These children are only about 10 per cent of the county's total of young offenders, he said.

The court, he added, has no facilities for day-in-day-out companionship and guidance for most of the youngsters.

The youth council, an independent organization, is patterned largely after the "Big Brother" movement. It plans to work hand in hand with court, church, police, and school officials to provide individual guidance for wayward children.

Acting officers of the newly organized council include Louis C. Gillette of Rochester, president; Paul Wilson of Birmingham, and C. W. McLoughlin of Northville, vice-presidents; and Jerry B. Gillette of Birmingham, membership chairman.

The organization plans to sign on new members at its next meeting Oct. 10 at Birmingham Community house. Election of a board of governors, including Probate Judge Arthur E. Moore, and permanent officers will come within six months, organizers hope.

McLoughlin pointed out that the delinquent youngster usually is unwanted and unappreciated by his family.

"Under our system," he said, "the court would give the child's name to a council member. The adult would go to him, talk things over, take him to a movie—try to win his confidence. Gradually he would prove to the youngster that he was truly interested in him, encouraging him in hobbies and other constructive pastimes."

Any man or woman prepared to train for active work with wayward children is invited to contact Jerry Gillette at TRinity 5-6263.

Holland Hosts Bachelor and Spinster Meet

GREVENBICHT, The Netherlands — Bachelors and spinsters from six West European nations gathered here today for a conference on how to live alone and like it. But some of the 700 delegates hoped to duck the problem by finding mates.

Municipal Secretary Gerard Greyn, a 36-year-old bachelor who got the idea for the three-day meeting, said it would help unmarried people get together and would put Grevenbicht (population 2,400) on the map.

The Meuse River town, with hotel rooms for only 50 visitors, was somewhat overwhelmed by the response to its invitation. But neighboring hamlets are putting up guests and special bus service has been started.

Village volunteers have erected a big tent for receptions, lectures and discussions. Gay red and yellow lights have been strung around town.

Spinsters are in slight majority among the visitors, who range in age from 21 to 75. In addition to Dutch representatives, they include Britons, Belgians, French, Germans and Luxembourgers.

Glenn Miller Film Story to Duplicate Unique Tone

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Problem: How to re-create the exact tone of a band that hasn't played for 30 years.

That's the job that faced Joseph Gershenson, music head at Universal-International Studios. The band in question was Glenn Miller's, and the cause of the whole thing was a movie, "The Glenn Miller Story."

Gershenson says that the tone of the bands—such as Tex Beneke's—which took over after Miller's death weren't exactly like the real thing.

"Something was lacking," he says. "Finally, I took home a batch of original Miller records and played them continuously over a weekend."

"I almost drove my wife crazy, but I discovered that Glenn had a delicate balance between his reed and brass sections that nobody else had duplicated."

The movie band, including some ex-Miller men and others like Louis Armstrong and Gene Krupa, will play 28 Miller classics—"Moonlight Serenade," "Tuxedo Junction," "In the Mood," "String of Pearls" and all the other great ones.

James Stewart will play Miller, but somebody else will play the trombone.

For a joyous evening, play "Twisted Titles," a game I invented one evening while listening to Jimmy Boyd.

It's simple. Just figure out what song titles should be paired on a record for the fun of reading both names.

Example: "I'd Rather Die Young," "Before It's Too Late," "Then there's 'Sittin' in the Sun,' 'I See the Moon.' Also 'I Believe,' 'I'm Walking Behind You.'"

And "Let's Walk That-a-Way," "With These Hands," Or "You, You, You," "The Story of Three Loves."

It's a good way to while away a long-playing evening.

THE POPULAR SIDE: With "Dragnet" setting the pace, latest trend is songs taken from TV themes. Newest is "Mr. Peepers," with a fine job done by Jack Pleis' orchestra on Decca.

RCA-Victor has re-created many of the top musical comedies, like "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel," with the albums available on all three speeds.

ON THE CLASSICS: If you like Shakespeare on records, RCA-Victor's newest release is your dish. The Old Vic Company has recorded "Macbeth"—complete. Alec Guinness and Pamela Brown have the leads, and it is magnificent listening.

POP SINGLES: "Mmmmm" (Vicki Benet, MGM); "I Wanna Be Evil" (Eartha Kitt, RCA); "Woman Is Strange" (Twigg Wilson, MGM); "Three O'Clock in the Morning" (Monty Kelly, Essex); "Lonely" (Kitty Kallen, Decca); "Happy Happy Heart" (Cindy Lord, MGM); "Pussy Footin'" (Florian Zebach, Decca); "Why Do You Pretend?" (Alan Dean, MGM).

POP ALBUM: "Beautiful Music to Love By" is the title of David Rose's new MGM album. Can't guarantee the love, but it is beautiful music—with vocals and harmonica solos scattered among the lush arrangements of dreamy tunes.

CLASSICAL: It's opera week on RCA-Victor. Two full-length opera albums have been released. One pairs "I Pagliacci" and "Cavallera Rusticana," with Jussi Björling, Robert Merrill, Zinka Milanov and Victoria de los Angeles featured.

The other is "Otello," with Toscanini conducting, and Ramon Vinay, Giuseppe Valdengo and Herva Nelli singing the leads.

Cape Cod Sand Dunes Still Owned by O'Neill

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP)—Playwright Eugene O'Neill still owns 46 acres of sand dunes on the tip of Cape Cod where he did much of his early writing.

The town had planned to take over the property for nonpayment of taxes yesterday, but a friend, Edward R. Lipare of Brooklyn, N. Y., paid the bill of $47.16 plus interest.

O'Neill did much of his early writing in a house since demolished by high seas and storms which have lashed the dunes.

Senate Subcommittee to Hold U. N. Hearings

NEW YORK (AP)—The Senate internal security subcommittee will hold hearings here next week on a recent United Nations tribunal decision overruling the discharges of 12 American employees who refused to tell the subcommittee whether they were Communists.

Subcommittee Counsel Robert Morris said yesterday that the group, headed by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.), will hold closed sessions Wednesday, Morris said hearings Thursday and Friday might be open to the public.

Indiana Phone Strike Settled

60-Day Walkout Ends With Pay Hikes Ranging to $2.50 Week

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A 60-day-old strike against the Indiana Bell Telephone Co., a walkout marked by violence and mass picketing throughout the state, was settled early today.

Representatives of the company and the CIO Communication Workers of America signed what were called memorandum agreements at 3:12 a. m. EST after almost nine hours of a negotiating session which began Friday night.

Under terms of the agreement, the company's 6,900 union represented employees will receive wage increases ranging up to $2.50 a week. All wage differences and other working conditions for the new contract had been agreed on since Sept. 5, but the details had not been announced.

The issue which kept the strike in progress for the last two weeks was a return to work clause, mainly involving the company's dismissal of 20 persons it accused of serious misconduct along picket lines at Bell's 82 Indiana exchanges.

Negotiators finally settled that stumbling block by agreeing that the dismissed employees would not be reinstated, but provided that each of them may appeal his case to a social arbitration board.

That board, under terms of the settlement, would be composed of three members chosen from five persons nominated by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Fitterer Convicted in Iowa Slaying

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP)—Donald J. Fitterer, once on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted men, was convicted of murder yesterday in the slaying of an Alexis, Ill., grocer.

The jury of seven women and five men recommended that Fitterer be sentenced to life imprisonment. District Judge J. R. Leary said sentence would be pronounced in about 10 days.

Fitterer was accused of fatally shooting Charles Harrison Aug. 11, 1952. Harrison's bullet-pierced body was found in a ditch near Denmark, Iowa.

Fitterer and Patrick Russell, Chicago, had been seen with Harrison the night of the shooting and warrants were issued for their arrest. Russell now is serving a life sentence in the Iowa State Penitentiary here in connection with the case.

City Firms Deserve Break

While no formal action was taken, City Commission discussion of a complaint that material for the new City Hall is being bought outside Pontiac should help clear the air.

The matter was raised by a letter from Pontiac Lumber, Fuel and Builders Supply Exchange. This asked the City Commission for contractual assurance that local firms be given as much public construction business as possible, provided cost and quality are equal.

This brought out a letter from the J. S. Fredman Co., general contractor on the City Hall and sewage treatment plant. In it the company stated that it purchased as much as it could locally where prices, quality and delivery costs were equal.

In another letter Leo J. Heenan, City Hall architect, said he had been assured by contractors that they would co-operate in letting all possible work in Pontiac.

The City's attitude was voiced by Mayor Law who said that "all things being equal, local merchants and labor should get the first break." He pointed out, however, that low bidders got the jobs except in cases where some other factor made it advantageous to give a contract to other than the low bidder.

The discussion thus has had the effect of reminding all concerned that there should be no discrimination against local firms. This is as it should be. Any other policy would be unthinkable.

Gen. Clark's Successor

Selection of JOHN EDWIN HULL as our new Far Eastern Commander means he no longer will be what he calls himself, "the general nobody knows."

That description of the man who is to take over in Tokyo October 1 has nothing to do either with his capabilities or his military record. It arises from the fact that throughout his career he has held posts outside the spotlight of publicity.

Yet in Washington the successor of the retiring Gen. Mark W. Clark is held in high regard. Upon him have fallen some of the most exacting responsibilities high Army officers ever are asked to undertake.

Now the Army's Vice Chief of Staff, General HULL earned high praise for his work as commander of a task force which conducted atomic tests in the Pacific. Later he served with distinction in charge of weapons evaluation and in 1946 he was considered General MARSHALL's right hand man.

Washington opinion is that HULL is the type of soldier-statesman well qualified by temperament and experience to fill his important news post.

Stalin Policy Reversed

From Moscow have come two news items of more than ordinary importance, giving as they do a clue to the political and economic situation within the USSR.

One reveals that NIKITA S. KHRUSHCHEV now has the title of First Secretary of the Communist Party. The other amounts to a Kremlin confession that its economic policy toward the peasants has failed.

For some weeks observers have been convinced that KHRUSHCHEV had become the second or third most important member of the Soviet high command. His new title, therefore, merely is recognition of the power he has been exercising.

It also carries the strong implication that Russia as yet has no full fledged successor to STALIN and that top authority remains divided. History teaches that in divided rule is the danger that the rivalries of those concerned will explode into an open battle for absolute control.

Of much more importance to Russian peasants is KHRUSHCHEV's announcement of concessions aimed at making the collective farm system produce more food for Russia's growing population. To accomplish this KHRUSHCHEV has abandoned the program he himself launched in 1950.

No longer is the goal transformation of collective farms into mammoth collective farm cities. The collectives will be continued but the peasants will be encouraged rather than discouraged in development of their individual holdings.

That MALENKOV and KHRUSHCHEV are in complete accord on the new policy can be judged from the fact that it was first hinted at by the former in his August 8 address to the Supreme Soviet.

The irony of this program is that it's a complete reversal of STALIN's policy toward the peasants. In the hope of satisfying the people's clamor for more and better food, the peasants now are being urged to become capitalists in their spare time.

Solons Get Bear by Tail in Ineligible Athletes Probe

By JACK I. GREEN
 LANSING — (AP) — There has been a hidden reason why the Legislature's Committee on Administrative Rules this week suddenly stopped getting so tough with officials who had placed nine high school athletes on the ineligible roster for accepting merchandise prizes.

The committee had yielded to a clamor of sympathy for these young victims of misdirected good intentions and had called in the superintendent of public instruction to put the heat on him.

After a day of hearings, the committee cockily made it plain that it would suspend the eligibility rule of the Michigan High School Athletic Association and force school officials to restore the youths to good standing.

Next day, after a long huddle, the committee suddenly backtracked like fury. It secured a promise that the boys would be given another hearing and a promise that the rule would be reviewed. Then it beat it quickly for home.

There were a number of factors which made the committee feel like it had a bear by the tail, but the biggest factor was a sudden suspicion that its own tail was caught, too.

In short, cool heads on the committee suddenly began to wonder if they were not heading down a road which would mean the end of the committee itself.

To understand this, you have to go back a bit. For long there has been fulmination in Legislative, congressional and legal circles about the unchecked power of governmental administrative agencies. Many of these have been given authority to virtually write their own laws in the form of rules and regulations.

The legal profession, especially, has objected to this unchecked power, largely because an attorney never could keep up with the changing departmental rules and hence had trouble steering his clients out of trouble.

So the Michigan Legislature set up the Committee on Administrative Rules. This committee had authority to suspend any departmental rule, with a few exceptions. This was a left-handed way of forcing a department to amend its rules to satisfy legislators.

The committee has used its power infrequently. And almost every time it has been under suspicion of using that power under pressure from some influential group which disliked a departmental decision.

But the power that committee has is highly regarded by the Legislature. It gives the lawmakers a whip hand over agency heads who do not yield to more subtle pressure.

The committee would do quite a lot to hang on to that power.

The joker in the high athletic row this week was this:

Dr. Clair L. Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction, didn't bluff. He refused to be scared by the committee and he refused to reinstate the boys arbitrarily even if the committee suspended his rule.

The committee suddenly realized that, if Taylor stood pat, the whole issue might wind up in the courts.

And in the back of their minds, the committee members had a sneaking suspicion that the courts would declare the whole committee unconstitutional.

You see, the Constitution makes it plain that the Legislature cannot meddle in the executive functions of government. That's the American system.

No one on that committee wanted to risk a showdown. So when the committee let go the bear's tail, settled for a compromise which might save everyone's face and hoped no one would notice that its own tail had teeth marks in it, too.

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests, unless the letter is critical in its nature.

From Sept. 20 through the 26, designated as National Dog Week, we pay tribute to "man's best friend." Statistics claim there are 22,000,000 dogs and 40,000,000 cars in the United States. Both dogs and cars use the same streets and it is easy to realize how often the two meet.

If you have ever lost a dog because some driver was careless and have experienced the heartache that his death has brought, then this is your concern too, even if you don't have a dog of your own.

Remember when you see that four footed friend by the side of the highway that he has his rights. Consider too that where there is a dog there is probably a child, so please drive carefully. You may save a dog's life and someone's happiness. If you are able to provide a good home for a pet dog visit the Oakland County Animal Shelter at 1200 Walton Blvd.

There are several fine dogs awaiting adoption. Visiting hours are 9 to 4:30, except Sundays.

Says Every Nationality Composed of Good, Bad

This is my answer to John Hatchett's letter of Sept. 7, regarding the FEPC.

At the plant where I am employed there are men and women of every nationality and color. Many of them are Negroes. Some are good and some are bad, as among the white people.

Recently, however, something occurred of which I am not in favor. A man who was hired to do a certain job refused point blankly, creating quite a disturbance. The foreman of this department, being a good guy, gave the man one day off!

I am sure had it been someone else he would have been fired then and there, so why worry about the article by David Lawrence?

St. Matthew Was Private Tax Collector Before Lord Asked Him to Be Follower

By CANON HOWARD V. HARPER
 In New Testament times taxes were collected by private operators who bid for the privilege. They were called publicans.

As long as they brought in what the government required, nobody cared how much more they gouged out of the people.

St. Matthew, one of the Twelve Apostles and writer of the first Gospel, was a publican when the Lord found him and invited him to join the little group of His followers.

In celebration Matthew gave a dinner, with Jesus as the guest of honor. Naturally, none of the good people of the community were invited. They wouldn't have come if they had been, for no one could believe that a publican could be an honest man.

So, besides Jesus and His companions, the guests at the party were from Matthew's own circle of friends, who were probably social outcasts, just as he was.

The Pharisees lost no time in pointing out that there must be something wrong with Jesus if He would spend His time with that kind of people.

Aunt Het

I don't blame Pa for not hearin' what I say. When he hears us women talkin' about clothes, he has to protect himself by learnin' not to listen.

"This man," they said, "eateth with publicans and sinners." It was this comment from the Pharisees that brought forth the famous, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." (Mark, chapter 2, verse 17.)

Thursday will be the beginning of the Jews' week-long Thanksgiving, which is called Sukkot or the Feast of the Tabernacles.

Sukkot literally means "booths," and the name is given to this festival because of the requirement that the people move out of their houses and live in booths or tents for the duration of the feast. In Leviticus, chapter 23, verse 42, Jehovah says, "Ye shall dwell in booths seven days."

Back in the time when the Jews had land of their own every male over 13 years of age was required to go to Jerusalem and offer some of his harvest on the Temple altar.

Outside the city wall the hillsides were covered for miles around with gayly colored booths in which the happy pilgrims lodged.

Nowadays it is not possible to keep this feast according to the old regulations. One reason is that the Temple no longer stands in Jerusalem.

Another is that the Jews are scattered over the world and most of them could not get to the Temple. And a third reason is that the Jews are not an agricultural people any more and therefore have no harvest to offer.

Those who can do so set up small booths. Others build miniature tabernacles as centerpieces on the dining room table.

We do not have one book of the Old Testament in its original form because an angry king burned the only copy in existence. It was the book of Jeremiah.

While the famous Nebuchadnezzar, was besieging the city of Jerusalem, the prophet Jeremiah wrote a book in which he said

Says Person Who Shot Cows Should Break Stone

Says You Can Overcome Fears by Facing Facts

Clara is typical of many fearful people. She has been diagnosed as neurotic. She says she is just a bundle of nerves. Her husband is irritated and caustic. But her problem is easy to solve, once she faces it frankly and pinpoints it. That is the first step in curing your complexes.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
 Case H-390: Clara C., aged 27, has been married 6 years. "Dr. Crane, I am afflicted with fears," she began, nervously. "And I don't know how to overcome them."

"My husband gets angry at me because I spend so much money going to doctors."

"But I am always afraid. So is there anything that can be done?"

Sure, face your fears and name them: Clara would have wasted an hour of my time going around in circles, if I hadn't abruptly stopped her usual recital.

"Specifically, what do you fear?" I asked.

 Please Promise Me

I know you're going back to school... And I am going too... But won't you give your love to me... And promise to be true?... Of course we have to wait a while... But I adore you so... I want to keep myself for you... If only I may know... That you will hold me in your heart... And you will wait for me... Until I graduate and get... My coveted degree... It would be more than wonderful... If we were married now... And I would be your faithful spouse... And true to every vow... But won't you wait and promise me... When college days are through... That I may take you in my arms... And live my life with you?

Baering Down

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER
 (International News Service)

We're shaking the Commies out of government, education and the legal profession.

We're fighting 'em abroad too. Now we're in the position of a lion tamer who brought his work home.

Took a long time to get there and we ran into more popping-off than a porcupine in a bubble bath. The main trouble was the intractability of the Fifth Amendment.

Everything hid behind the fifth like it was a barrel in a grocery store. It's the one that states nobody shall be compelled to be a witness against himself even if he did it with mirrors.

No person shall be placed in double jeopardy even if he does it again.

The ambushed topser is the one saying that no born citizen shall be compelled to fit the answer to the question.

There are only seven articles in the original Constitution. But there are 21 amendatory postscripts. The tail is heavier than the kite.

Calcium Shortage
 On your suggestion I have been taking calcium and D for heart trouble, and with excellent results, but the druggist tells me there is danger in taking calcium too long as it may clot the blood... (B. G. E.)

Answer—Who am I to differ with a druggist? I supplement my own diet with a good daily ration of Ca & D, although I have no heart trouble except Bradycardia. Send 25 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet The Calcium Shortage.

Leg Jitters
 Please tell me what to do for leg jitters. Saw something about it in your column... but mine is more than just jitters... extremely painful cramps so that I have to get up and walk... (Mrs. D. H. F.)

Answer—Such nocturnal cramps are indeed more than just "jitters." Relief or prevention of leg (some-

"Oh, everything," she said with a wave of her hand. But you and I know that isn't true. She is just beating around the bush, as many of you readers often do.

As a rule, your fears are very specific. Is it snakes? Is it high places? Is it fear your husband is growing bored with you?

Face it, regardless of what it may be. And name it! For when you name your dread, you rob it of possibly 50 per cent of its power to frighten you.

So quit wasting the time of your busy doctor by running around in circles. Instead, sit down at home and write your problem.

"Oh, but my problem is so complex, Dr. Crane," some of you have moaned over the long distance telephone, "that I simply couldn't put it in a letter. I must see you in person."

That's bunk! You can reduce anything to one sentence or at least one brief paragraph.

So quit kidding yourself. Do a little more "homework" and analyze your problem till you can state it tersely. Then write it down, and thus save the time of your doctor or clergyman or other counselor.

For he can read your problem in one minute, whereas you might try to wander around aimlessly for an hour of his valuable time chattering away.

There will never be enough psychiatrists to handle all the neurotic people in America, so you must learn how to be your own home analyst.

The reason many of you try to fear us doctors by saying you fear everything, is because you don't want to face the blunt facts and pinpoint your fear.

Clara, for example, soon admitted that she feared she wasn't sexually a normal woman.

For she was not satisfied with her husband in marital relations. He had never received any instruction in marital technique, so she was left neurotic and irritable.

So she soon wondered if maybe she had been "born wrong." By that, she meant maybe she had an infantile uterus or some other anatomical defect. Like many such wives, she worried lest she might be at fault.

So she kept going to medical offices on trumped up excuses, vainly hoping some physician would find the difficulty.

"But why didn't you tell the doctor what you feared?" I asked.

"Oh, I was ashamed to mention such things," she confessed. "So I just told him I had something wrong with my pelvis. I figured he'd be able to see if I was deformed or subnormal."

But Clara's trouble was not based on any anatomical defect. And her physician couldn't read her mind. For doctors don't use telepathy. As a result, she was dismissed by one physician after another as physically O.K. but just neurotic.

So please learn to face the issue. Pinpoint your fear to a specific time, person or place. Try to recall how it started.

Send for my bulletin "How to Prevent Nervous Breakdowns," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime.

Suits Demand Blouses That Team Up Perfectly

Moppets See Parents as Pretty Dumb

Sub-teens Think Mom, Dad Simply Unreasonable

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK (INS)—The most hazardous occupation in the world today is parenthood. Or so it seems to this innocent bystander.

Moppets, encouraged at all age levels to express their individuality, are eternally imitating Lizzy Borden. I seldom pick up a newspaper that some impatient and critical tot has not dispatched a parent with forty whacks of an ax.

This sort of thing is what gives juvenile delinquency a bad name, at least among parents.

So it may console the grown-ups somewhat to learn that "most children like their mothers and fathers but with certain definite reservations."

This semi-demi-blanket endorsement of parents reaches me through the Youth Research Institute. With Doc Kinsey keening after the old folks, there is no reason that Lester Rand, president and director of the institute, should not cross question the kids.

Mr. Rand, interested in "the tastes, attitudes and opinions of young people," has conducted a coast-to-coast survey on what boys and girls from 5 to 12 years of age think of their parents' efforts to rear them in a way that will keep them out of the pokey.

It occurs to me that the conclusions reached by this survey are not apt to ground-loop anyone from sheer surprise. As I case the poll, kids think they are smarter than their parents and are impatient of discipline.

If I remember correctly, this was the general complaint in my mob when I was in the 5-to-12 age bracket.

I felt the grown-ups were nice and well-meaning but scarcely bright enough to cross the street by themselves with the traffic lights in their favor.

My parents had not had the benefit of a progressive education and it never occurred to either that you had to give an infant a logical argument as to why he should not throw the cereal on the floor. They just gave him the back of the hand or the hair brush.

Apparently, even today, there are a substantial number of parents who cling to this old-fashioned theory.

Eighty-eight percent of the kids polled beefed that parents are too arbitrary. Eighty-three percent bleated that their parents "just gave orders with no reason," like mama and papa used to do.

Mr. Rand obviously leans to the progressive method, but he says "Parents would find the going easier in raising their children if they learn to give simple, understandable explanations when asking them to do something."

Parenthood gets harder and more hazardous by the minute.

The tiny tykes in this poll are fed up with parents who can't answer even simple questions about such common phenomena as "rocket ships, space travel and life on other planets."

"It might be a good idea if parents kept up with the times or took a course in mechanics, electronics or aeronautical engineering," Mr. Rand suggests, thereby setting parenthood back a good 50 years. What are all those comic books for, a good many indignant parents are probably asking by this time.

I know this dates me, but truth will out. The modern child dreads no punishment more than being deprived of television viewing privileges, this survey shows. Land sakes! When I got too rambunctious, mama put me to bed. And usually I was glad to lie face down!

Good Styling Is Displayed in Acetates

Tailoring Details, Washability Among Key Features

There's no denying the fact that a blouse is a blouse, and when you get right down to the functional role of a blouse, you think of suits, and then you ask yourself how many blouses actually are appropriate teammates for suits.

The blouse business has done an exciting job on blouses styled to masquerade as skirt tops, evening tops and pretty tops of all kinds.

But the real suit blouse has been in hiding. However, this season it exists not only in good styles, but in fabrics that are eminently satisfactory in a washable blouse.

Acetate blouse fabrics have long been known for their quality and adaptability to dressmaking perfection distinguished by fine seams, hand details, tucking, collars and pockets that are the style marks of a good suit blouse.

These are the fabrics that hold their crisp, tailored lines through frequent laundering.

And speaking of laundering and daily care, many career girls tell us they can wash and press an acetate blouse any evening at home — it takes so little time from their normal activities.

The reward? A blouse that looks like a blouse; a blouse that complements the custom-made look of a good suit.

Drive to Begin at St. Michael

Father O'Reilly to Open $200,000 Program for New Church

A $200,000 building fund program will be launched by the Rev. Michael J. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Michael Parish, on Sunday. The campaign is being undertaken to defray part of the cost of a new parish church.

Charles Hannan, the architect, has submitted proposed plans for the new church which will be constructed on parish property. The plans call for a modern church, liturgically decorated and equipped with a main altar, two side altars, four confessionals, two sacristies, and all the vital elements of a proper and liturgical church building.

Father O'Reilly, who has been at the church 19 years, will emphasize his desire for an intensive, individual drive to inspire the support of all parishioners, friends and business establishments. A request will be made that the men of the parish volunteer as workers for this drive.

The need of the church to allow the proper participation at all the church services by the parishioners has increased, due to the growth of the parish. Father O'Reilly expressed his belief that the parishioners will respond to his appeal.

The first meeting of the volunteers will be held Sept. 29, in the parish hall.

A will, or codicil, may be signed any day, including Sundays and legal holidays.

Sunday Sermonette

The Artificial Leg

While struggling in the water after his whaling boat had been wrecked by a whale, Captain Ahab had a leg bitten off by the same giant of the sea.

From then on Captain Ahab wore an artificial limb of the "peg-leg" variety fashioned from a whale's jawbone; and in order to have firm footing on the deck he ordered the ship's carpenter to bore auger holes here and there in the planking.

When the sea was rough, with the ship pitching and tossing, Captain Ahab would force the end of his peg-leg into one of the holes and stand there as securely as if he were part of the ship itself. In a severe storm, a man with two good legs might be washed into the ocean, while Captain Ahab, with his whalebone limb thrust into an auger hole, would remain safely on deck.

Taken from the story of "Moby Dick," one of the most famous sea-tales of all time, this incident has often been duplicated.

One person after another has been made stronger and won victory in the time of crisis by some tragedy earlier in life. He has lost his leg, so to say, but the substitute he learned to use in the meantime has served him better than the one he lost.

Religion affirms that no matter what a person's background, or shortcomings, or misfortunes, God still has a plan and a purpose for him. And with a vital faith a man finds strength to fulfill that purpose, whatever tragedy has marred his life.

Confident Living

Learns Husband's Moods Not Too Serious Problem

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE
Some time ago, an attractive young woman came to see me. She was obviously distressed and broke into tears almost as soon as she began to speak. Her first words were that she was certain she had made a terrible mistake in her marriage. I prepared myself for the usual unhappy story.

"What seems to be the main difficulty between you husband and yourself?" I asked.

"He gets into moods," she complained.

"Moods?" I repeated.

"Yes, moods. Sometimes they last as long as a day or two."

"You can bring him out of them by studying him and employing loving strategies of which you are capable," I said.

"God seems to have given to wives certain subtle skills in dealing with their husbands — I'm sure you know how to use these if you will be thoughtful and patient."

"Well, I was able to dispel his moods before our baby came," she confessed, "but now the baby seems never to be quiet and needs attention all the time."

"I get so tired that I just can't find the energy to handle the baby, my housework and my husband's moods, too."

In my most sympathetic manner, I said to her: "What you tell me is distressing but, of course, that isn't all the problem. How about the other woman?"

"Why, there is no other woman," she exclaimed in surprise.

"What? Not even a vague interest in some other woman?"

"Of course not!" She was indignant now.

"Well, that's a relief, isn't it? Of course, he comes home drunk every night?"

"He does not! He doesn't drink at all!"

"Then he must gamble," she shook her head.

"Or stay out all night with the boys?"

"Oh, no, nothing like that," she told me. "He comes home every night. His only trouble is moods."

"That's wonderful," I answered. "Let us pray and thank God that all we have to deal with is moods. You can't expect to get married and not have some problems. I know I'm often a problem to my wife. Whenever two people try to live together, there will be problems. You should be grateful that yours is only moodiness."

Then I went on to say that the best way to attack moods is with love and prayer and lots of faith.

She soon saw the relative simplicity of her problem and went away encouraged to believe that with God's help her husband's moods could be overcome. It wasn't long before I heard from her that everything was much better.

These moody spells often result from suppressed anxieties. If you are anxious about something, scrape away all extraneous attitudes and get down to the core of your problem.

Much anxiety comes from mental confusion. If you can get things straight in your mind and reduce your mass of worries to a simple problem like the young woman did, you'll find, probably, that things won't be as bad as they seem.

There is a second method for overcoming moodiness. That is the practice of relaxation.

A relaxed person avoids moodiness because he lives in a state of inner harmony. Keep relaxed, no matter what the tension.

Keep non-stressed, un-tensed. Tension and anxiety are almost synonymous. If you are anxious, you become tense; if you are tense you become anxious. They work together.

I have written a 40-page booklet entitled "You Can Relax." My readers may have it free of charge by writing me care of this newspaper.

The sure cure for moodiness is to seek quietness of body and mind. Try to find physical relaxation. And then, heal your mind by prayer. Believe that you will receive the peace of God which passeth understanding and you will overcome your moods.

Indiana Pastor Attacks Report

Says Kinsey Publicity Degrades Science, Acts on Young Minds

(By Religious News Service)
INDIANAPOLIS—Religious leaders in Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey's home state had few good words to say for "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female."

A Roman Catholic archbishop, a Catholic newspaper, the executive secretary of the Church Federation of Indianapolis, and the Indianapolis district superintendent of The Methodist Church all dealt sharply with Dr. Kinsey, who is a professor at Indiana University.

Archbishop Paul C. Schulte of Indianapolis said:

"Every self-respecting Hoosier must profoundly regret the notoriety Dr. Alfred Kinsey has brought to our renowned Indiana University."

"There can be no valid objection to a scientific investigation of sexual behavior that would assist lawmakers, educators, clergymen, physicians and other professional people dedicated to the task of preserving and promoting the spiritual, mental and physical well-being of society."

"But Dr. Kinsey has degraded science. Instead of circulating the findings of his investigations among those competent to weigh their worth and apply them to the betterment of mankind, he publicizes them, like a cheap charlatan, and in the most unscientific fashion makes them available to the young, the unlearned, the mentally deficient—to their own great harm and the endangering of society."

Hard Work Earns Tiny Church Award

(By Religious News Service)
EGYPT, Miss. — About two years ago a half dozen Methodist farm families dug down deep to start building a church of their own in this tiny northeastern Mississippi community.

The best they could afford — for an average contribution of $500 each — was a modest $12,000 building and a part-time minister who had four other small rural churches in his charge.

But scrambling for the small church plant and the effort to keep a "real preacher" was just part of the work of these zealous families.

Despite obvious handicaps, the 16 members of the Egypt Methodist Church developed such a momentum of religious and civic activity that their church was named the rural church of the year in a contest judged by Emory University at Atlanta, Ga.

"Religion never comes easy," the part-time pastor, the Rev. H. L. Hathorn, commented. His hustling little flock won the honor for their church by completing more than 250 religious and community projects within a year.

Evangelical Members Avoid Bible Decision

(By Religious News Service)
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The 68th annual conference of the Evangelical Mission Covenant Church of America called upon the Church's 53,000 members to read the Bible "in all of its translations and versions."

It thus avoided making a decision on the new Revised Standard Version of the Bible, subject of some controversy in conservative Protestant circles.

The denomination, a resolution passed by the Conference pointed out, "has never officially approved or adopted any one version to be read in preference to any other version."

As to the right use of the various versions, delegates said it should be left "to the guidance of the Holy Spirit."

Crucifixion Blessing Set for Sunday at St. Joseph

Sunday at 2:30 p. m. a crucifixion group will be blessed at St. Joseph Catholic Church on South Boulevard. It consists of statues of the Virgin Mary, St. John and St. Mary Magdalene.

A procession from the church will march to the statues, with the chanting of the "Stabat Mater" by the choir. The blessing will be given by the Rev. Dr. B. F. Jarzembowski, pastor, and a case containing the names of the donors will be cemented at the foot of the cross.

The sermon, in English, will be given by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Rybinski, vice-rector at St. Mary's Seminary at Orchard Lake. The Rev. Adolph Zagrodski will give the sermon in Polish.

After this service, the participants will return in procession to the church, where the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will be held.

The crucifixion group stands on the corner of W. South Blvd. and Bagley St. on the church grounds.

Capital Lutherans Buy Office Building

(By Religious News Service)
WASHINGTON, D. C. — The National Lutheran Council and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod have purchased a five-story office building here for $240,000 to serve as their joint headquarters in the capital.

The stone-faced, steel-and-concrete fireproof structure contains 65 rooms while an attached masonry dwelling included in the purchase has another nine rooms. Officials hope to take occupancy before the end of the year.

Eight Lutheran agencies now housed in the Council's Lutheran Church Center on Jackson Place and its Synod-leased annex will occupy the new headquarters.

They are the Lutheran Service Commission, jointly operated by the Council and the Synod; the Council's Bureau of Service to Military Personnel; the Synod's Armed Services Commission; the Council's Division of Welfare; the Public Relations Divisions of the two church organizations; the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America and the Lutheran Inner Mission Society of the Washington area.

Prisoners Set New Record for Local Jail

The largest number of prisoners held in Oakland County Jail in a single month since 1947 was recorded in August.

Sheriff Clara L. Hubbell said the 586 men and women jailed last month was the largest total he could remember since taking office six years ago. The previous high was 573 in July.

Nine persons charged with murder are awaiting trial in Oakland County Circuit Court, Hubbell pointed out. Only three were held on murder charges at the end of July, he said.

In August 10,560 meals were served, averaging 341 per day. A total of 3,541 prisoner days were recorded, said Hubbell.

Thoughtful Spouse Brings Jailed Husband His Leg

CHICAGO (U)—Sgt. Joseph Brady was a little startled last night when a woman walked into the Hyde Park police station carrying an artificial leg in a paper bag.

But Mrs. Millie White, 45, explained she wanted to give the artificial leg to her husband, George, 47, who had left it at home when he was arrested Thursday on a disorderly conduct charge.

She also put up $10 bond and White walked out of the cell under his own power.

George Washington had smallpox while visiting Barbados in the British West Indies.

Yugoslavia Pledges an Honest Election

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (U)—Vice-President Edward Kardelj has promised that Yugoslavia's new Parliament will be given broad power to check the course of the country's future.

Under the nation's new constitution, the two-house Legislature will be elected in late November within a Communist-dominated one-party system.

Kardelj, speaking yesterday before the council of the Socialist Alliance which draws up the single-party ticket, promised the campaign "will be an honest one."

Since the end of World War II, Yugoslavia's Parliament has met regularly each year for a brief period of three or four days to stamp its approval with little or

Pontiac Police Chief Attends Detroit Parley

Straley said that Patrolmen Herbert Cooley and Jesse W. Quick also represented the police department at the opening ceremonies of the four-day conference. Pontiac Motors Division displayed a Pontiac automobile with the city's police emblem in convention headquarters at the Hotel Statler.

1,200 Korean Vets Land at Philadelphia in 2 Days

PHILADELPHIA (U)—Thirty non-scheduled airliners have landed approximately 1,200 Korean War veterans at the Philadelphia International Airport the last two days.

The veterans, flown here from Seattle in planes chartered by the Army, were taken from the airfield to Camp Kilmer, N. J., in chartered buses for formal separation.

At the same time, hundreds of other veterans, homeward bound from Germany, boarded buses after arriving at the airport on their way to separation centers throughout the country.

More than one-half the population of the United States lives in 147 metropolitan districts.

Plan Hearings on Delinquency

Senate Group Maps
Coast-to-Coast Probes
on Teenage Crime

WASHINGTON (U)—Through public hearings from coast to coast investigating senators hoped today to rally a new long-range drive against teenage gangsterism, drug addiction and other lawlessness.

The special Senate judiciary subcommittee announced plans for hearings in possibly 20 cities, with precautions against subjecting youthful witnesses "to exploitation or public contempt."

Chairman Hendrickson (R-NJ) said the group will keep a sharp eye for evidence "that certain adults may be stimulating gang delinquencies to pursue their own criminal ends."

The committee reported a 30 percent rise in juvenile delinquency in the United States since 1948.

Whether any of the hearings will be televised "and how to handle the matter to young offenders' testimony to protect them from ruin of their future"—are matters the three subcommittee members said are to be decided after further study.

Hendrickson and Sens. Hennings (D-Mo) and Kefauver (D-Tenn) told newsmen closed-door testimony of young delinquents will "certainly be essential."

The committee's listing of individual cities and conditions to be studied in each brought a dissent from juvenile authorities in San Francisco, which had been described as having a serious delinquency problem and juvenile gang activities.

Capt. John Meehan of the city's police juvenile detail declared he could "unequivocally say that there are no organized juvenile gangs in San Francisco."

He said the committee statement "seems to be out of the whole cloth."

Kefauver termed the new nationwide drive a logical follow-through on recommendations of his Senate Crime Investigating Committee, which held spectacular televised hearings in 1950 and 1951.

Hendrickson said the group will create a number of national fact-finding committees to look into juvenile delinquency as a nationwide problem. He said it will work also through local fact-finding groups composed of police and judicial officials, members of the clergy, welfare workers and others.

Hendrickson said the committee could not complete its job before its authority expires Feb. 1. But he said he hopes for an extension from the Senate plus a "substantial" appropriation on top of the $44,000 already voted it.

Cattle Meeting Scheduled for September 24

WASHINGTON (U)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today called a special meeting of a livestock advisory committee here Sept. 24 on government programs for stabilizing cattle prices.

The meeting of the 26-member group—composed of representatives of producers, packers, and meat distributors—will precede an expected heavy run of cattle to slaughter markets, which might bring on price declines.

Foreign Aid Chief Harold E. Stassen announced last night that, while beef is thus moving plentifully to market, his agency will purchase up to 10 million dollars worth for use in the overseas aid program.

The Agriculture Department announcement of the livestock committee meeting quoted Benson as saying the beef purchased by Stassen's agency will be from lower cost animals. The market for these was reported to need strengthening.

Benson was also quoted as saying "aggressive actions" taken by his department have restored confidence in cattle markets by stabilizing producer prices.

Sightless Vet Adopts Child of Blind Wife

NEWARK, N. J. (U)—A blind World War II veteran adopted the 11-year-old daughter of his blind wife yesterday. A blind attorney handled the case.

The adoption of Letitia Bantum by her step-father, Louis Wallace Grant, was approved by Essex County Judge G. Dixon Speakman. Grant and the girl's mother, Mrs. Mary Bantum Grant, were married in 1951.

Carl Pirip-Hvarre of Bloomfield, counsel for the New Jersey Commission For the Blind, was the Grants' attorney.

Movies Find They Can't Take Kidding

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — It looks as though the movies can kid everything else but the movies.

The forthcoming Robert Cummings-Marie Wilson film, "Marry Me Again," contained a hilarious satire on 3D movies. The climax came when Bob and Marie took off their polarized glasses at a movie and proved to be cross-eyed. The sequence was well received at the sneak preview.

Then the picture was shown to a top theater chief. He was ready to buy the film for his large circuit until he viewed the 3D satire.

His smile became a frown. He didn't go for the kidding of stereo films. As a result, the sequence was trimmed down to a minimum.

Well, here I am back at the glamour grind after basking at Balboa Bay. Things have been happening in Hollywood during my absence, but many of the events have a familiar ring to them.

I see Rita Hayworth's in the news again. It's funny, but that always seems to happen just when she has a picture coming out. It must be coincidence.

And that vet space grabber Lana Turner cemented her alliance with sexy Lex Barker, who apparently has abdicated his position as Tarzan the Ape Man. I was disappointed when they got married in Europe. I've always enjoyed attending Lana's weddings.

Lucille Ball also got in the news, although she wishes she hadn't.

A correction for the record: Lucy hasn't been as politically inactive as some people have claimed. She left her name to the Truman campaign in 1948 and for Eisenhower in 1952.

The sad note of the recent news was the death of Lewis Stone. His last public appearance was at the MGM sales convention two weeks ago. He and Lionel Barrymore were honored for their long service at the studio.

Stone was proud of the fact that he had been under contract to a studio longer than any actor in history. He lasted 29 years, and that's a record that will never be broken.

Recently he told me he was studying TV.

"Oh, I don't expect to get into it for some time to come," he remarked.

"But I bought a set so I could keep an eye on TV. It's not because I like it; I think the quality of entertainment is improving, but still has a long way to go. No, I'm watching it because it's a new phase of our business that I might have to know some day."

background for LIVING

LIVING ROOM — An old settle was the inspiration for this sofa with form-curved arms. Note the ample support of the turned legs. Two comfortable upholstered chairs with design similarities complement the setting. A maple student's desk and an arrow back desk chair is finished in black with hand stenciled design. Upholstering is in tweed. A braided cotton oval rug completes the informal living room setting.

TABLE SETTING — A gem of a utility table with a diameter of 36 inches and swing legs which permit the table to fold is shown in this new furniture design. The Pennsylvania dry sink is a cabinet of great usefulness and the curved back chairs have bamboo spindles as a reproduction of an interesting Maryland antique.

CONTEMPORARY BEDROOM — Although modern in scale, convenience and function the 18th century provided the idea for this new bedroom design. Pieces are made of rich swirl mahogany in two finishes, either the light "honey dew" or the mellower "sable" finish. The group includes a vanity and double dresser in addition to the pieces shown in the above setting.

WICKER CHAIR — A one-piece curved wicker back developing into arms for a small dining or occasional chair, and brass-tipped feet lend distinction and an air of graciousness to this new contemporary chair being shown on the new markets. The upholstered cushion of the seat is foam-rubber filled.

NYLON SOFA — This deep, low lounge sofa has a slightly curved front giving unusually graceful lines to functional modern. Rubber cushions and loose down pillows are construction features. Sofa is on casters for easy mobility and the upholstering introduced this season is in nylon matelasse.

SECTIONAL — Many different furniture arrangements are possible with the new sectional pieces of living room furniture. The above design has a double two-cushion section with one single cushion section. Although a contemporary idea in design, this, too, is equally at home in either modern or traditional surroundings. Plain tweed effect upholstery teams up with a same-color plaid.

National Home and Home Furnishings Week

Practical Beauty Is Keynote in Furniture Fashion Shows

In observance of National Home and Home Furnishings Week, the Pontiac Press presents several pictures of the new furniture now available on the market for either the traditional or contemporary home.

The furniture industry's annual style show is being staged in thousands of retail stores from coast to coast with the keynote of the new modes themed to practicality as well as beauty.

With these new styles the modern homemaker can have adaptations from the Spanish, French, Italian and American provincial on down to the modern and contemporary.

Modern furniture has grown up. It has more of the sculptured look with tapered legs of wood or brass which seem to lift the furniture off the floor. Wood finishes are light, but warm looking. The natural beauty of the woods is permitted to show through the finish.

Traditional furniture, experiencing a popular revival, has finishes which run the length of the color chart — from light to dark. Woods are walnut, mahogany and all the fruitwoods.

Brass, a trend at preceding markets, is very much in evidence. Although not a new idea, it is more on the scene.

Leather takes a new, long bow and may be seen in many lines in beautiful lounge chairs. It is used with fabrics.

Although scaled smaller, furniture is generously proportioned so that the home requires fewer pieces of furniture.

There is more of the collection look in many lines. Evidence of the affinity of one period for the other is seen in furniture designed to harmonize.

Surface has become of interest in woods, fabrics and other materials. Some provincial and traditional lines have woods that have been "distressed" giving the appearance of an antique finish.

Fabrics continue to have the textured look, but they are smoother to the touch. The trend is definitely away from the rough, nubby fabrics.

Browns and beiges are popular, with the new charcoal gray or smoke color running stiff competition. Rose is on its way up the color-popularity ladder.

The new merchandise being displayed leaves little to be desired by the homemaker. Style, comfort, quality and practical utility are, in fact, expressed in America's furniture.

Comfort, Looks a Good Team for Household

The idea of decorating with comfort foremost in mind may be contrary to the rules in a decorator's book, but it certainly is sensible for most of us today. And there's no reason why comfort and good decoration can't be the best of companions.

We select furniture that looks well in its surroundings, that's easy to care for, chests and desks that fit into our rooms and offer maximum storage and convenience, sofas and lounge chairs that are handsome and built to take hard use and give proper seating support.

We choose fabrics for curtains, draperies and upholstery that not only look beautiful, but are practical and easy to maintain in good condition.

BREAKFRONT — A beautiful piece of furniture in both design and wood choice, this handsome breakfront may be used without the top deck for either living or dining room. Buffet door panels are removable and may be replaced with fabric or cane if desired. This is another swirl mahogany available in either a very light or more yellow shade.

Carpet Colors Work Wonders

Right Hues Can Make Dull Rooms Bright, Tone Down Brilliant Ones

Carpet colors can work wonders in both decoration and comfort. Since the floor is the largest area in any room, the psychological effect of the floor covering is most important.

A room with picture windows and a southern or southwestern exposure calls for a floor covering color that can harmonize with nature: green; earth tone; soothing blue; restful gray.

There are infinite varieties within any of these four color families any of which may be used to harmonize with other elements in the room and all of which will make a sun-filled room most comfortable and pleasant.

The room that gets little sun can stand more daring colors or combinations of color to give a look of cheer and coziness.

There are two main reasons why pastels are popular floor covering colors for the bedroom: pastels give an air of serenity and since a bedroom receives less wear and tear than other rooms, practicality in color choice isn't a ruling factor.

MODERN TABLE — Versatile modern tables with subtle curving lines present a contemporary furniture offering in a new mahogany finish called "Charal." Its color tone is the new burnt almond and there are end tables, lamp tables, step tables and cocktail tables that match this piece.

RETURN TO ROCKERS — The American traditional line of revivals calls for the rocker to be returned to every home. An adaptation of the popular barrel chair in the new mode, this piece has a foam rubber cushion and is available with or without valance. Solid rock maple is the wood.

Basements Make Snug Recreation Spots for Winter

If you have been thinking about doing something with an unused part of a basement, now is a good time to fix it up for a room for the youngsters and their friends or a party room for the older members of the family.

First, go over the entire space with the vacuum cleaner, then spray it with calamine or a light-color paint. If there are unattractive bins and partitions around, get some bamboo shades and hang them so as to hide ugly spots.

Good Material Needed for Paint Satisfaction

Good materials, proper methods of surface preparation and application have a great deal to do with the life of a paint job. They will insure the maximum satisfaction under the conditions to which the surfaces are subjected.

View New Labels

Be on the lookout for two new trademarks appearing on the labels of fabrics. "Sanforlan" is on wools that won't shrink out of fit. "Beconize" means that the fabric has been treated with a durable mothproofing process guaranteed for five years.

Fall is an excellent time for indoor painting. Because it is neither too warm nor too cold, you can open the windows wide so the freshly painted room has good ventilation.

GI Home Loans Rise in August

VA Gets Applications From 31,257, Largest Total Since July 1951

WASHINGTON (AP)—The veterans Administration reported today it received 31,257 GI home loan applications during the month ended Aug. 25. This was the highest total for any month since July 1951, and 5,804 more than in the preceding month.

T. B. King, acting assistant deputy administrator for loan guaranty, said the increase "indicates that veterans may be finding it somewhat easier to obtain GI financing, although we cannot be certain on the basis of one month's experience. Also it is still harder for veterans to get GI loans in some areas than in others."

King also emphasized in a statement that some of the August rise may be attributed to a rush of lenders to get loans applications approved by the VA before Aug. 31.

On that date a 4 per cent gratuity, up to $160, for a veteran-borrower was suspended at the direction of Congress.

"We have been looking for a gradual improvement as a result of the increase in the GI interest rate effective last May and the liberalized discounts authorized in July," King said.

The maximum interest rate for GI loans was increased from 4 to 4½ per cent in May.

The VA regards home loan applications as a gauge of current availability of funds by lenders.

A lending institution agrees to make a loan before it submits a loan application on behalf of a veteran to the VA for guaranty or insurance.

Designer Scorns Trend for Mix-Matched Decor

NEW YORK (INS) — When you plan your home in one particular decorating style, you've got to stick with that style right down to the last ashtray.

So says industrial designer Lee Hager of New York, who disagrees with the current trend of mix-matching different periods and decor.

"Fish-tosh," says Hager, a firm disciple of the all-out-for-one-style theory.

"If you want your home traditional, it's got to be 100 per cent traditional. The same goes for contemporary, ranch, provincial or Pennsylvania Dutch."

This 45-year-old designer and artist bases his opinion on the belief that home decorating is just as much art as painting or sculpture. He also believes that most women feel the same way about it.

"But you can't convince businessmen it's worth making 'arty' things," Hager lamented. "They're afraid of style because they think it won't sell."

It was this art-vs.-business dispute that launched Hager into his current work.

He designs and produces drinking glasses — custom-decorated glasses which sell for one or two dollars apiece in spite of the fact that they're done in 24-karat gold.

Each glass is intended to fit into one — and only one — scheme of decor.

There is a glass with a geometric pattern of lines and rectangles for the strictly-modern home, another in the lush black-moor figure design of the 18th Century for the elegant period home, and a classic pattern of Greek motif for the traditional home.

Hager, who has spent his life designing rugs, wallpapers and textiles for eating money, and painting and studying art for art's sake, revolted when the businessman to whom he first offered the glasses wanted to package them in mixed sets and sell them through hardware stores.

Firmly prepared to starve for his theory, Hager snatched back his glasses and went into business for himself.

Only he didn't starve. The glasses started selling like hotcakes after Hager asked stores to display them against furniture settings of the proper period.

This is as it should be, says Hager without complacency. He thinks of his glasses as fine art work, and signs each one just as he signed the three Hager lithographs hanging in the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art.

"It just proves my point," he declares, "that everything in a home should be perfectly in tune to make one artistic whole."

For Cracked Plaster

You can recover a cracked plaster ceiling yourself with a laminated panel especially designed for the purpose. You don't even have to remove the old plaster.

Make Do

Screens and storm windows sometimes swell from damp weather and are hard to remove. Screw eyes attached to each corner at the base provide grips for a claw hammer, making the task easy. This tip was contributed to the American Builder pool of practical ideas.

Thoroughly Mix Paint to Get an Even Coat

The secret of getting a uniform coat of paint is to see that the paint is mixed thoroughly. Many dealers now have equipment that shakes paint mechanically so that it's thoroughly mixed for you in the store.

If you, yourself, are readying a can of paint for use, explore it with a paddle to see if much of the heavy pigment has settled to the bottom. If it has, pour off most of the liquid portion into another receptacle.

Then stir what's left in the original container until it's thoroughly mixed with the remaining liquid. Return the liquid, a little at a time, stirring constantly. In this way, you can make sure that the liquids and solids are evenly mixed.

Have Choice of Paint for Brick or Stucco

For brick, stucco or other masonry, you have a choice of paints. Either cement-base water paints or house paints of the oil type will do an excellent job.

Before applying the cement-base paint, dampen the surface thoroughly. This insures the proper binding of the paint to the surface. Before applying an oil paint, make sure that the surface is thoroughly dry.

Homespun Look in Decorations

Soft Tones, Waxed Wood Gaining in Favor for Fall Interiors

The natural look is uppermost in fall decoration trends, the look achieved by use of fabrics with a homespun feeling, the beige and soft brown tones of well waxed wood and furniture with straight simple lines.

The combination of black and white in furniture is another interesting trend which is introduced in the new moderate-priced line. Black and white plastic tops for coffee tables and for companion chests are examples of this new trend.

Floor coverings, too, are adopting the natural look and smaller rugs with a hand-loomed feeling of those of off-white natural wool are used by many leading decorators.

They are particularly effective against the softly shining patina of well polished floors.

New chairs are of form-wire and are low in cost and exciting in form. These new form-wire chairs may be had as occasional or dining chairs and as arm chairs. New in design and construction, the chairs have slip-covered upholstery which is removable for easy cleaning and are adaptable for indoor or outdoor use.

Decorators are more and more conscious of the needs of the small home and furniture which is flexible in use and arrangement is holding the home furnishings spotlight this fall.

Sofas that sacrifice nothing in beauty of design to practicality as convertible beds are important in the new fall lines. One such sofa is 10 feet long and has an attached drawer unit, which also serves as an end table.

Due to the emphasis on streamlined simplicity ornamental accessories which serve no useful purpose are becoming almost nonexistent in the modern home and are being replaced by sharp splashes of decorative color.

For example, in a room done in tones of natural wood, beige and white, a bowl filled with bright colored fruit supplies a spot of color, or on a divan covered in a tweedy black and white fabric a pair of orange colored cushions is an eye-catching note.

Tangerine, lemon and turquoise are three of the best-liked accent colors for fall.

Drapery Room Dividers Help Hobby Basements

The family interested in providing a second living room, and at the same time continuing to use the basement hobby spot for its original purpose, can do so by a few simple fabric tricks.

Possibly by now you have discovered that evidences of father's poker sessions, or home-workshop activities are somewhat disconcerting.

The same is true of the children's amateur photography equipment when you want to use the room for your own weekly bridge club meeting.

To lend a more "living-room" atmosphere, make a room-divider of fabric in one of the light, washable materials.

Hang the draperies to a pole extending across the entire room. The new clips for round or flat poles will enable you to remove the draperies for frequent washings.

When the entire hobby room is required for dancing or entertaining, the draperies may be pulled to one end.

Such an arrangement for a more living-room effect, could include harmonizing stripe patterns for window draperies. Covers for the tables could be of the solid color fabric.

The usual basement window is small and narrow. Now is the time for you to do a bit of window-faking. The stipe will aid, because it lends height with its vertical lines. Further eye-trickery may be accomplished by having the draperies wider than the window. With the newest traverse-extension rods, you can have draperies extend beyond the windows and need not mar the walls.

The rod is firmly supported end-to-end by brackets you can affix to the window frame; extensions beyond have rubber-padded corners that rest on the wall. Also, have your curtains longer than the window.

Make the room divider of the loopless type, and use the new clips that permit fastening to the rod. These make your fabric furnishings easy to take off and wash.

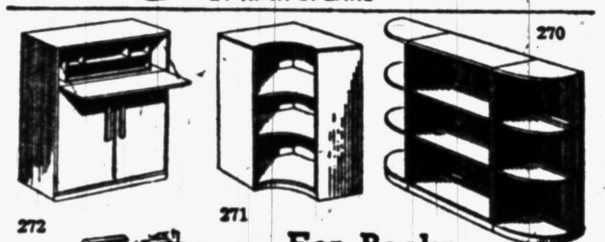

Another trick for easy removal for washing is that of making the long runs of the draperies in several separate panels, each of which is no wider than two widths of the fabric.

A threefold screen, painted the same color as the fabric, with the material snapped on the screen rods, would also serve well for disguising part of the basement hobby room.

Be sure to select a washable fabric for such fabric furnishings, since the "built-in" color has an extra degree of fastness, and the materials will also keep a fresh, crisp look after repeated washings.

Today in Furniture

Similarity in Scale, Finish Allows Period Blending

CHICAGO—Do you hesitate to mix furniture styles and furniture woods in a room? Think nothing of it.

You now have well established authority for doing so. Your authority is none other than the American Institute of Decorators.

At the Merchandise Mart, the AID recently assembled a series of displays which they aptly named "Today in Tradition." These displays consist of furniture groupings together with appropriate wall objects.

Each group is composed of pieces which are either traditional in design or available adaptations of traditional designs.

In one attractive group, none of the pieces are exact reproductions. A pine curio cabinet, for instance, is scaled down from an 18th century piece.

The chairs and settle, with their simplicity of line, suggest early Shaker furniture. Responsible for much of the room's charm is the variety of woods which have been chosen for this grouping.

To begin with, the upholstered settle is finished in a rich, dark gun-stock tone. The pine curio cabinet is golden in a medium cool brown.

Adding a warm accenting note is a side chair of cherry in a tawny-brown finish. Black and white tweed upholstery and white open-weave wool drapery fabric, along with copper and Wedgwood bric-a-brac, add sparkle to the setting.

The secret of successfully assembling such a group is twofold. In the first place, all pieces in the group are alike in scale and simplicity of design.

And, second, all finishes—while differing in color tones—have the same fineness of sheen and smoothness. Or, you might say that all pieces are similarly fine in quality and that this quality is shown by the fine and painstaking finishes.

To create such finishes, there are three or more sandings between filling and staining coats which are followed by several between applications.

Finally, a coat of wax is applied and hand-rubbed to achieve both a glowing patina and a satin-like finish for the durable lacquers underneath.

The AID, in arranging its displays of available furniture, has rendered a real service by showing how delightfully gracious a well-assembled group of period pieces can be.

By heeding the two simple precepts: similarity in scale and pretentiousness—and similar fineness of finish, you, too, can freely combine a variety of period pieces in one room.

The result will be a charming mellowness that can be achieved only with furniture which stems from the more leisurely eras of the past.

Find your room too dark? Here are several possible ways of improving the outlook. Paint the walls and woodwork a light color which will reflect light wherever it is and add light to the room.

Spatter Paint Is Newest Decorating Trend for Underfoot

NEW YORK (INS) — Look underfoot for a major home furnishings trend this winter.

The floors we trample daily are making a decorating comeback. Advance word from the National Home Furnishings Show is that there will be less rug and more floor to look at in well-decorated homes next season.

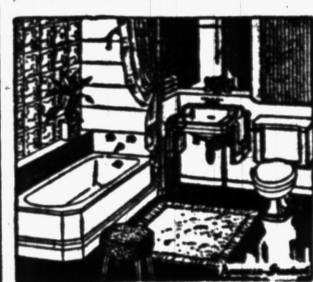

And a just-opened exhibit of room settings by a major New York department store features the floor as part of the decoration.

The newest floor decorating idea is spatter paint. An ordinary wood floor is first painted a solid dark color — such as brown or black — and then spattered with paint drops of a contrasting color.

Usually three colors are used, such as white and black spatters on brown or red and white spatters on black.

Wall-to-wall carpeting seems to have gone out of favor. The new trend is for the use of small rugs, either to provide color in the room or to accent the division of space.

Textured rugs, with pile levels at different heights, tufted rugs, and copies of old-fashioned braided rugs are all high-fashion for re-appearing floors.

Dreams Come True

Hosts of new materials are at hand, with the greatest excitement among some of the new "man-made" fibers combined with the natural fibers, in a fascinating array of patterns and textures.

Some have unbelievable depth and look and feel rich and luxurious, yet have sturdiness and wearability built into them. Many of these come in printed designs, although the variety of woven cloths offer many new effects and exciting surfaces.

In color, black and white look fresh, the pastels continue to vie for attention along with many deep tones, while metallic yarns in a host of shades add to the note of luxury.

Curtain and drapery fabrics are perhaps the most versatile of all decorating elements. The varieties of weaves and surfaces of patterns and textures, are in fact so vast that no matter what your home decoration plan, there will be fabrics from which you can make your choice.

Draperies are the dash of glamour in the background of a room that displays your furniture and accessories. Draperies and curtains can do more, at less cost, than anything else to spark your decorating scheme.

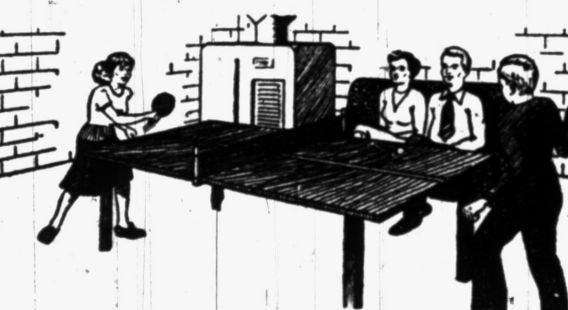

Even where there are glaring faults in window sizes and placements, with the wide variety of decorative fabrics available, you choose those which will counter these faults.

How you use your materials may call for some daring and originality, but the window treatments will be all the more interesting because they solve a problem as well as dress the windows to fit into your decorating scheme.

'New Floors' Made Easy; Sanding Is Your Answer

Want a new wood floor for your home? You don't have to buy it. You can "make" it yourself, easily and inexpensively.

All you need is a little imagination and daring to turn your old wood floor into an exciting and brand new surface. The way to do it is with the old New England practice of stenciling.

Before you begin renovating the floor, you first must scrape the surface and get down to the clean wood. Hire a sanding machine at little cost for this chore, but make sure you use the machine properly. Then rent an edger to clean up the borders around the baseboard that the sander can't reach.

Next get three grades of sandpaper. No. 3, a rough-cut grade, is used first to take off all the old finish and get down to the clean wood. After the floor is clean, use Nos. 2 and 1, which are less rough, to remove the scratches.

Now you're ready for the stenciling job. Inexpensive patterns for a wide variety of stencils can be bought at art stores. Select a pattern that is in proportion to the room size. It isn't necessary to buy a stencil to cover the entire border area as the same pattern can be repeated around the room.

To fill in the stencil pattern, mix paste wax whatever coloring agent you may want to include. For example, for white, add zinc white, or lamp black for an ebony effect. The tints are added to the wax so that the pattern will be visible when the paste dries.

Now lay out your design on the floor. Chalk out or tape down your stencils. An excellent stencil brush can be made simply by cutting down an old shaving brush. Make your stencil pattern on the raw, unfinished wood.

When the stencil brush is complete, lift it carefully without disturbing the wax mixture. The mixture should be applied in wet form two hours before your stain. After the wax hardens, you are ready for the staining process. Put two coats of thin, pure shellac over the entire floor. Wait overnight and then pull off the tape. Use fine steel wool to rub down the finish. Then apply paste wax and buff it with a machine for a lustrous surface.

With stencils, you're not stuck with any particular design for life. If you get tired with the design you put on last year, you can sand your floor and apply a new one. The stains do not penetrate beneath the top layer of wood.

Remember to enrich and protect your new floor with an application of wax and you'll have a surface that will add beauty to your home.

Inspect Paint Brush Before Purchasing

To make sure you're buying a good paint brush, look for bristles that have some life in them.

Press the bristles against the back of the hand to test springiness.

Also separate the bristles to inspect the wooden strip that usually anchors them to the handle. If the wooden strip is too wide, the brush won't hold enough paint.

In an animal-bristle brush, look for split ends on the bristles. Split-end bristles hold more paint and spread it evenly.

Draperies Set Pattern With Plain Carpets

In a room where rug and walls are plain, draperies can well provide pattern. Choose designs in scale and color harmony with the room.

If the furniture is fine in detail, select a pattern of equally fine detail, either a conventional pattern or a beautifully drawn botanical.

For informal rooms, more sketchy, looser designs may be chosen. If the room has patterned wallpaper and rug, choose textured and surface interest drapery fabrics to complete the decor of the room.

Panels Cover Cracks

Surveys show two out of three homes have cracked plaster ceilings or walls. Without removing the old plaster, you can recover any interior surface with laminated panels especially designed for wall or ceilings.

When the Suez Canal was first dug it was 72 feet wide; but it has been widened to 200 feet.

Not Difficult to Paper Ceiling

Tips Given to Avoid Getting Paste in Hair, Paper on Ears

Ever try papering a ceiling, only to wind up with paste in your hair and paper down around your ears? Before you check paper hanging off as a job only for the experts, note these tips.

You may say, "It looks pretty good, if I do say so, myself," the next time you tackle a papering job.

Apply a thin layer of paste to the back of ceiling paper strip. Fold end back on themselves so they meet at the middle. Lap the first strip down over the side wall one inch, and lay it to a guide line drawn across the ceiling.

Standing on a scaffold under the area to be papered, support the left end of the paper with a roll of wallpaper, open the other end with your right hand and press into place.

Smooth out about three feet of paper at a time with a smoothing brush. When the entire strip is pasted up, go over it to eliminate remaining wrinkles.

The next strip of paper (and all following) should lap the edge of previous strip by a fraction of an inch. Butting edges on a ceiling is difficult and generally not necessary for a nice-looking job of papering.

Horizontal Lines Restful, Informal

Horizontal lines seem restful and informal. Low ceilings and wide windows have a comfortable feeling. Vertical or perpendicular lines seem to have the opposite effect. They suggest support and strength and sometimes give a restless feeling.

Too many high narrow windows often can be pulled together by curtaining them as one unit to obtain better unity of line.

A combination of horizontal and vertical lines, as well as variations in heights of furniture, are used in home decoration to avoid monotony.

Fabric Covered Walls Ideal for Painting

It is just as easy to paint fabric-covered walls as plastered ones. On new fabric, be sure to apply a good priming coat.

Follow with one or two coats of the finishing material you have selected. On fabric walls that have been painted before, a primer, naturally, is unnecessary.

Trim Should Be Bright

Trim—mouldings, paint, used on wooden surfaces is frequently employed for the shutters and trim on a house. Such paints are usually brighter and more intense in color than house paints.

But Grandma!

"In the Good Old Days 'Guests for Dinner Meant Hours of Fun!'"

"But Look Grandma—No Dishpan!"

"No Pushbutton Gadgets for Us—We Had Real Stoves!"

"But Who Chopped the Wood and Emptied the Ashes?"

THINGS HAVE CHANGED — They were "Good Old Days" to Grandmother, but it's a miracle she lived to such a ripe old age! Cold drafts, a red-hot stove and boiling kettles in her old kitchen caused many backaches and blistered fingers. Scorched pots and stacks of dishes meant extra "hours of fun" in the dishpan.

In contrast, her modern granddaughter uses electrical "servants" to do tedious household chores. She pushes a button or turns a dial to cool or heat the house, cook a meal, wash the laundry and grind the garbage. Included in her all-electric kitchen, is a dishwashing machine, which automatically washes, rinses and dries dishes, glasses, silver, pots and pans.

Canny Homemakers Find Real Pal in Sticky Tape

It is well known that cellulose and plastic tapes have no end of uses around the home.

Doubtless they have been put to uses that their manufacturers never dreamed of — and some that they might not even recommend.

But canny homemakers go on thinking up new jobs for the stuff, so a review of some of them is called for. Cellulose tape, being the older of the two, knows a greater variety of jobs.

Plastic tape, which is brand-new, is a comer — a trouble-shooter for repair jobs and countless others.

The latter is extremely thin, black, sticks on contact, and molds itself to odd-shaped objects. Unusually tough, it has a rubber-like quality that enables it to stretch more than twice its length. It is waterproof and impervious to oils, acids, prolonged sunlight or intense cold.

Here are a few of the uses already found for it: repairing rubber boots and rubber mats, for leaky water pipes, for wrapping handles of golf clubs, baseball bats, tennis rackets, fishing rods, tool handles, repairing leaky garden hose, and for replacing putty around windows.

A good insulator, its electrical uses include: insulating wires leading to automobile radios and heaters, preventing moisture and possible short-circuiting on spark plugs, and splicing lamp cords.

Home handymen and craftsmen will undoubtedly come up with many more utility jobs for plastic tape in short order.

Everyone should be able to recognize cellulose tape. Thin and transparent, it sticks like a rusty door latch. Here are some uses it has known.

Checking cold air — strip tape over air leaks between windowpanes and frames to keep out wintry breezes.

Repairing broken screen — place one strip of tape over the outside of the hole and another over the hole on the inside. Press the two together to mend screens temporarily.

Mending linoleum — run a strip of tape over the full length of the break, and shellac over the tape. This measure will avert the danger of tripping over the broken area.

Fixing windowpane — a temporary repair for cracked window glass is to place tape over crack until glass can be replaced.

Storing screens — to keep from losing or misplacing screws and other parts when removing screens, storm windows and doors, attach them firmly to each frame with tape.

Stopping cracked plaster — next time you hammer a nail into plaster to hang a picture, apply a small cross patch of tape over the spot to keep plaster from cracking.

Sawing plywood — prevent splitting by tape over plywood at point where it is about to be sawed.

Thumb-tacking — to fasten thumb-tack in hard-to-reach place, first wrap forefinger with tape, sticky side out, then stick head of tack on tape and press into place.

Sharpen Cross-Cut With 3-Sided File

In an emergency, you can considerably improve the cutting edge of a cross-cut saw with a small 6-inch, triangular file.

Clamp the saw in the vice, teeth up. Starting at the handle, file both edges of each tooth.

If the file is held at a 45-degree angle to the saw, the back edge of one tooth and the front edge of the next tooth can be sharpened at the same time.

When all the teeth are sharpened, smooth down the sides to remove burrs.

Use Jars for Storing Nails, Small Objects

Store buttons, thumbtacks, nails of various sizes and other small objects in glass jars for easy finding.

By jiggling the jar you can see the item you want without the necessity of emptying the contents. What's more, you'll be able to tell at a glance if your supply is running low.

Average per-man-day production of coal in the United States is higher than it is in Japan for one month.

Let Colors, Fabrics Make Your Rooms Look Larger

If you want to make small rooms appear larger, let color and fabrics work for you for greater spaciousness.

In such small living-dining rooms, the best plan is usually not to create two sections. A feeling of unity and a more decorative theme may be achieved by using the same fabric in both the living and dining area.

For instance, use the same slip-cover fabric that covers the upholstered furniture for the dining room draperies, or on the dining room chairs. The same accent color may be used in your living room. The entire area of the room should be the same floor covering.

Vertical lines are what you want to strive for to give a feeling of height. If there are many doors and windows in a room, you may get your effect with striped draperies at the windows rather than with the wallpaper.

However, one wall, papered in striped pattern whose background matches in color the color of the walls of the room, will tend to carry the eye upward toward the matching color of the ceiling. Use in either living or dining area.

A mirror on the wall facing the entrance to the room will create the magical effect of adding greater height and width to the room. Reflected in it should be lightish walls, all three exactly the same tone—whether in living or dining section—if the fourth wall in either room is papered in a small-scale stripe.

You can add height to your windows by using the decorator's trick of placing the rod above the window frame.

Small blocks of wood are nailed to the wall flush with the frame to which they are also attached. The fixture for the curtain rod is screwed or nailed to this block and may be concealed by cornice or valance.

Another way of creating spaciousness is to have a single color scheme for the entire room.

This is especially liked in modern interiors. Walls and ceilings for example, may be of soft yellow the carpet in wall-to-wall broadloom, a textured grayish yellow-green, and the upholstery and dining room curtains in a brighter yellow-green. The draperies for the living-room section might be in a monotone fern pattern of dark olive-green and off-white, with this same fabric used in seat covers for the dining room chair cushions.

In such a matching room, the light wood finishes of the furniture which should be in sturdy construction but light in design, as well as textured ceramics and lamp bases, would lend enough contrast for pleasing variety.

Make Draperies at Least Twice Width of Window

Draperies and curtains should be twice as wide as the windows they'll cover; any lesser width will give them a skimpy look.

Those that hang on rings or traverse rods and are pulled across the window at night or used to block out views or create privacy, should be at least two-and-a-half times window width.

Right Draperies 'Make' Basement Game Room

Out of next to nothing a game room can appear in the basement. All the old furniture, a new unpainted piece or two and attractive draperies are the essentials. The family can do all the work themselves.

The white elephant dining table, repainted, becomes a ping-pong table. A card table, its top covering in fabric to match the draperies, serves as game table.

An old kitchen table, wearing a vanity skirt, becomes a bar from which refreshments can be served. The upright piano finds its way downstairs.

A studio couch or spring and mattress can be covered to match the draperies. Draperies come ready-made, and matching fabric bought by the yard. Especially appropriate for game-rooms are the cotton candy stripes or Indian prints.

An outdoor design of birds on branches, printed on a hard cord cloth, is excellent for the basement game-room. So is the primitive landscape, printed on crepe-weave cotton.

This may be had by the yard, or ready-made in short pleated curtains or cafe curtains, either of which is suited to the small windows in most basements.

Bright, light and vivid colors should be chosen for the basement game-room. An unfinished ceiling can be camouflaged with a canopy of material tacked at strategic points. A striped canopy will give a jaunty air.

If the walls are unfinished and paneling is not on the budget, a paint job will do the trick. The paint must be chosen for its suitability to the cement, concrete or other building material of which the basement walls are constructed.

The floor and rag rugs will add warmth. Have the children make their own mobiles to suspend from the ceiling.

These can be made with wires and pieces of cardboard, wood or metal cut in the most ingenious shapes and forms; a wonderful way to add to the room's gaiety and encourage youngsters' artistic talents.

Glass Borrows Light

If you have "dark closet" troubles, install a panel of glass block in one of the closet walls.

Even if the panel is placed in an interior wall, the glass block will "borrow" light from the adjoining room to brighten up the closet.

DIVIDER OF METAL LATH—Metal lath of the stucco mesh type is easy to install as a smart screen to separate living room and dining area or to create a foyer at the entrance to a room. The mesh openings are about 1 1/4 by 3 inches and provide a trellis for indoor vines. One sheet of lath is usually large enough for an average divider. A handyman finds it easy to build a frame to hold the lath in position.

A solvent is used to remove the rust inhibitive black paint from the material before it is repainted. Then any good enamel can be applied.

Outdoor Lights Useful for Home

Portable Floodlamps Convert Back Yard Into Nighttime Playground

NEW YORK — Weather-resistant lamps, mounted in a manner similar to those used by roadside gas stations, can be used in the installation of inexpensive portable lighting which will convert the family back yard into a nighttime playground.

The lamps (300 watt reflector, and 150 watt projector) can operate on ordinary household current. Floods or spots, mounted on wooden or light metal poles in clusters of one or two three-lamp assemblies, will distribute enough light for such activities as croquet, badminton, dart throwing and horseshoe pitching.

Fixtures must be up in the air, the magazine explains, to eliminate glare, distribute light evenly, and also to keep night-flying insects at a reasonable distance. The lights can be mounted on poles that may be purchased at hardware stores or made by the homeowner himself.

Warm Water in Tank to Prevent Sweating

One way to keep the tank of a water closet from sweating in damp summer weather is to insert an electrical anti-condensation unit in the tank.

This is a rod which warms the water in the tank to above room temperature. The rod connects with a cord to any handy electrical outlet.

Keep Concrete From Freezing Until It Has Set

An otherwise good concrete pour can be ruined if it freezes before it sets.

You can prevent concrete from freezing, if the weather isn't too severe. But it isn't an easy job.

Building contractors solve the problem either by warming the concrete mix, or using anti-freeze in the mix, or both.

The first method is tedious and requires special equipment. The second is decidedly tricky. If the anti-freeze is not used just right, the concrete will weaken.

A practical idea is to protect the concrete after it is poured. Cover it with tarpaulins or building paper, heaped over with straw or leaves. Or place a small stove near the concrete.

A tent can be built around and an electric light bulb or heater set inside. Whatever you do, keep the concrete protected (and forms standing) for five days.

Florist Shop on Permit List

A florist shop at 570 Auburn Ave. was granted a building permit this week in the amount of $13,000 by the City of Pontiac building department.

Other permits issued included four permits to Russell Young for building 39,000 homes at 935 Voorhees, 945 Voorhees and 971 Voorhees.

A home at 590 Nebraska to be built by Pinkton Thomas was issued a permit in the amount of $6,000; Woodrow R. FHA Tries Out Home Trade-ins

New Plan Is Receiving Lukewarm Reception in Test Cities

NEW YORK (AP)—First reactions to the government's newly-launched experiments of applying the used car trading technique to home buying have been lukewarm.

Key of the Federal Housing Administration's scheme is to encourage the remodeling of old houses to make them more attractive buys and get builders to accept the older dwellings as down payments on new ones.

After homeowner and builder agree on a deal, both the remodeling and old home turn-in would be financed under FHA with the builder taking the package, giving him a chance to profit from two sales instead of one.

Purpose of the plan is twofold: First, to fulfill the FHA's mission of improving housing standards; second, to spark the vast home-buying potential represented by the four out of 10 would-be purchasers who already own houses but want new ones.

To determine whether the idea is workable, the FHA and the National Association of Home Builders are starting trade-in tests in six cities: Columbus, Ohio; Hartford, Conn.; Washington, D. C.; Oklahoma City; Shreveport, La., and New Orleans.

Spot checks by the Associated Press show that the still booming market in new homes leaves many builders pretty cold to the idea, but the experiment is still in its infancy.

The FHA does not expect practical information on the tests until some time this fall and the picture may be different by then.

Right now, however, the tone is one of indifference by builders. In Columbus, Karl W. Kummer said local builders don't have to look for trade-ins to help them dispose of new homes.

"Home builders are selling units as fast as they build them," he said.

But Ernest G. Fritzsche, head of the Columbus Home Builders Association, said the basic idea is a good one, although builders are approaching it with caution. He added that trade-in transactions bring up severe problems for builders who lack the facilities, connections and experience needed for selling the old house.

Three tests of the trade-in deal are being developed in the Columbus area and applications for FHA approval are pending in Washington.

Tom Barringer, director of the District of Columbia FHA insuring office, dug up a sample case in suburban Silver Spring, Md., where they found an out-of-style house to which FHA assigned a value of $8,500.

Most of the other dwellings in the community were in the $18,000 class.

Barringer's architectural experts looked over the house and decided the appraisal could be boosted to $15,000 by remodeling.

The improvements would include removing a rear room, altering the interior, installing a downstairs bathroom and replacing the asphalt shingles with a new exterior. The job would cost $6,300.

The remodeling, said Barringer, would bring the home "fairly close to the other houses of the community and add years to its economic life."

The family owning the house couldn't afford the improvements, and Barringer suggested:

Now if a builder would come along and buy it for $9,000, taking over a $5,000 mortgage, the owner could get $4,000 for his equity to apply as a down payment towards another, better house."

The builder, after making the $6,300 worth of improvements, would have about $15,300 in the house.

Barringer added, however, that the value of the house would be increased so much by the remodeling that a much bigger loan would be justified.

Mirrors Near Dormers Help Reflect Light

Mirrors can be placed at slight angles on each side of a dormer window in an attic room to reflect outdoor light to the interior.

A slanted mirror below the window will raise the lighting level further, particularly during late morning and early afternoon hours.

To keep your dust-gathering down to a minimum while floors are being scraped in your house is quite a chore. Hang damp sheets on the doors of each room as the room is being done.

Floor Coverings Add Pleasure, Comfort to Home

A new carpet or rug is one of the best investments a family can make in comfort and the decorative magic that a carpet can work is amazing. A soft floor covering by its very nature offers comfort: softness underfoot; freedom from noise; freedom from drafts; ease of maintenance.

A carpet or rug can make a small room seem spacious, a large, high-ceilinged room appear cozy or give new unity to an oddly shaped room.

The soft floor coverings that are being introduced in stores are almost bound to reveal new ideas for decoration and have a special appeal on their comfort making qualities.

Better Brush Up on Fabric Labels

Do You Know Meaning of Documentary Print Tag on Material?

With so many new fabrics and finishes in the stores, many new terms have come into use, each signifying an important characteristic in the beauty or serviceability of the material.

So for wise buying, better brush up on the terms and read the labels carefully when you make your selection, suggest fabric authorities.

Described here are some of the more widely used decorative fabrics, which you will be buying for draperies, slipcovers and bedspreads for the new season:—

Antique satin: satin: Antique satin is woven with slubbed yarn—that is yarn with soft, uneven places put there intentionally.

This gives an interesting textured surface, resistant to soil and wear. Satin is a basic weave which has a smooth surface, a lustrous face and a dull back.

Chromspun taffeta: Taffeta from acetate yarns in many beautiful colors; an unusually lustrous and beautiful fabric that is fast to laundering, dry cleaning, sunlight and atmospheric fumes.

Clipper sateen: A very strong beautifully woven canvas type of weave, in a wide color range. Excellent decorative fabric for hard use as well as colorful beauty.

Documentary print: A print design that is an exact replica of a pattern of early days. Usually the more classical patterns of the early 18th Century and reproduced.

Glazed chintz: A good quality chintz which has been treated with a patented resin that produces a finish and a glaze durable to repeated laundering and dry cleaning.

This finishing process reduces shrinkage to less than 2 per cent; and increases soil-resistance and durability.

Mercerized: A treatment with caustic soda, which makes cottons very lustrous, stronger, and more absorbent. Much used today.

Plisse: A thin cotton fabric, chemically treated to shrink part of the material to give it a crinkled effect. This crinkling is not removed by repeated launderings.

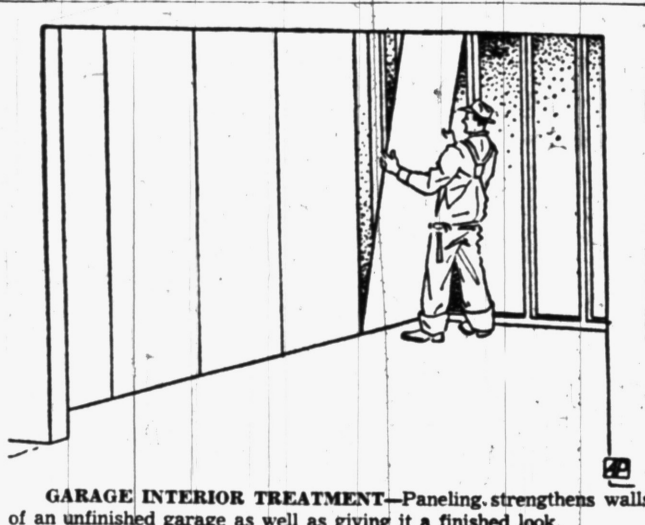

Plisse only needs pressing after it is dry to help shape it and straighten out double thicknesses such as at hems.

Provincial design: A neat, well-spaced design consisting of simple but usually conventionalized motifs, such as stylized flowers.

This type of design rises from folk art, and has the characteristic flavor of the region from which it springs, such as New England, Pennsylvania, the Southern Highlands, France or England.

When painting window sash, use one of the brushes made for the purpose. Some sash brushes are round—some flat. You can take your choice. Always brush upward when your brush is full. This keeps the paint ahead of the brush and prevents its running down into the corner.

GARAGE INTERIOR TREATMENT—Paneling, strengthens walls of an unfinished garage as well as giving it a finished look.

Laundry on Second Floor New Idea for Convenience

Where is the washing done in your home?

Visitors to an attractive new house standing in an orchard in a Buffalo suburb exclaim over its brightness, fine woodwork, tasteful furnishings and the loveliness of its airy rooms.

Ventilators Combat Excessive Moisture

Moisture damage from interior sources is especially forceful in winter months. Then, closed doors and windows aid in the trapping of moisture. Thus imprisoned—and without planned-for exits—moisture may seek a way of escape through unprotected walls and ceilings.

Sometimes, in the process, it even forces paint from the outside walls of a house.

To prevent such a condition, you can make the inner surfaces of your home moisture-resistant with paint—and you can install ventilating outlets. These outlets will permit the harmless escape of excess moisture.

Cover Old Flooring Before Carpeting

Older flooring with big cracks can be carpeted successfully by covering the area with hardboard. Another way is to fill the cracks with wood plaid and shaped to fit.

Laying a hardboard covering, with the panel edges of each board butted tight and nailed securely, is one remedy recommended.

A more permanent method is to fit wood strips into the cracks, glue and tack in place. The result will be a smooth, even surface, insuring even rug wear.

If cracks between boards are narrow, a rug cushion will help a great deal. In this situation, you can prevent the rug from wearing badly by sanding the floor smooth.

But "step-and-stair conscious" housewives prove to be most envious of the fact that it is a dwelling with the laundry upstairs.

In a compact, cheerful room opening off the second-floor hallway is "the perfect answer to washday worries," a complete home laundry within a few feet of bedrooms and bath, where most of any family's washing originates.

Within easy reach of the washer and dryer are two kitchen-type cabinets for soaps, syndets, bluing, bleaches and various other laundering supplies.

A table hinged to a wall supports the ironer and, if desired, can be dropped when the appliance is not in use. A step from the door to the room is the linen closet. Off the laundry room is storage space for upstairs odds and ends.

The room is bright with white walls and with red spatter-type linoleum on floor and work surfaces. There are two large windows, with a view of gardens through a frame of red denim curtains.

Washday is simplicity itself. Soiled articles are collected, washed, dried, ironed, folded and stored in closets and bureaus with no more steps up and down than are required to handle the dining room and kitchen linens.

Putting the laundry room on the second floor was the architect's idea. The wife and her husband enthusiastically approved.

The best of many reasons for being grateful for the innovation, the mother asserts, is the fact that it gives her extra time to spend with her children, a son, 7, and a daughter, 2.

"Some of our friends even are trying to figure out how they can remodel their upstairs to have a second-floor laundry of their own," the housewife declares.

Certain Rugs Made to Wear

Many Floor Coverings Can Withstand Rumps of Children

If there are youngsters around you may worry about their effect on a new living room rug. But there are many new soft floor coverings that are just made for the household with children.

Heavily ribbed texture weaves in all wool or combinations of carpet rayon and wool can take plenty of hard wear, yet make any homemaker proud of the way her living room looks.

These texture weaves may have no pattern effect at all or there may be a subtle suggestion of a leaf, flower, Greek Key or scroll.

Spatter-dash and random color color carpets are very popular and ideal in a home with children for they offer all of the comfort plus the fact that they don't show foot prints and do give warmth and coziness to provincial or casual modern rooms.

Typical of these carpets are the modern interpretations of the quaint rag rug, available in a variety of color combinations, both gay and muted, and made of cotton, rayon and wool and all-wool. Spatter-dash effects in which the colors apparently are not planned come in wonderful combinations that either contrast (yellow and blue; rose, mauve and black) or blend (shades of green; shades of beige and brown).

Promises Aid to Farm Group

Benson Tells Crowd Administration Seeking to Enhance Prices

AUGUSTA, Wis. — Ezra Taft Benson told farmers today he did not "become secretary of agriculture to sit idly by wringing my hands and let the farmer be squeezed by lowered farm prices and high fixed costs."

He said in a speech prepared for delivery at the National Plowing Contest that the Eisenhower administration, as it seeks improvements in farm programs, "has and will do everything in its power to enhance farm prices in 1953-54, using the implements at hand."

Benson had said in advance the speech would be one of the most important he ever made. It came after Democrats, meeting in Chicago this week, had criticized GOP farm policies and after the secretary had conferred with President Eisenhower at the summer White House in Denver.

Benson said he would assure farmers that both the President and he "are determined to do all within our power to protect and improve the living standards of farm people of this great nation."

Farmers can "look forward with confidence" in the Eisenhower administration, he said.

He led up to his statement on his own attitude by saying, "It is time to speak bluntly and plainly on my position."

He said that when he became secretary he held the view he should not sit by while farmers were squeezed and that "I hold it now and I will continue to hold it."

"You are not looking down the abyss of the Thirties," the secretary said. "We are in the Fifties and have tools and are fashioning other tools to build a sound economy."

Utica Ex-Marine Sees His Dream Go Up in Ashes

UTICA — A summer of hard work by an ex-Marine was destroyed when fire swept his "dream home" he had almost completed — but neighbors promised to "raise his hopes from the ashes" in two weeks.

Allen Bragg and his wife — an ex-Wave — planned to move into the home he built from the ground up next Thursday. But a flash fire swept the house Friday and it was a total loss.

Bragg was at his job at an auto plant in nearby Detroit and his wife was teaching school in Utica when the fire broke out. Two of their four children were in school, the others with neighbors.

Firemen managed only to keep the flames from spreading to nearby houses.

As Bragg surveyed the ruins, a group of neighbors approached and offered to help him rebuild the house. They said they hoped to complete it in two weeks.

Hospital Shows Striking Results

Mental Institution Finds New Treatment Plan Very Effective

TOPEKA, Kan. (UP) — The Topeka State Hospital, where a re-organized treatment program has achieved substantial results, believes it is the only state mental institution in the nation whose patient census has decreased radically in recent years.

At the start of the new fiscal year, the hospital had fewer patients than at any time since 1912.

This was true even though more patients were admitted during the last 12 months than at any time in the past 20 years.

"These striking results demonstrate the effectiveness of the treatment program which was begun five years ago," Dr. Clark Case commented. "The new program is paying off far beyond the expectations anyone had when it started."

The program of increased treatment included many factors, but the emphasis was on better qualified psychiatric personnel, with the famed Menninger foundation of psychiatric research here playing a big part through its assistance.

"More people are getting real treatment for their mental distress and more are getting well than ever before," said Dr. Case.

The hospital's administrator added that patients now are able to enter the institution almost immediately after a formal application is received. This is in contrast to the long periods of waiting required previously when the hospital was overcrowded.

Weighty Supervisors Weigh Local Problems

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UP)—Kern County supervisors boast that they carry more weight than any other five-man board in California.

The average 250.8 pounds. Vance Webb of Taft is the biggest supervisor, 6-4 and weighing 272. Charles Salzer of Bakersfield is the "baby" at only 205.

Incidentally, Kern County is California's leading potato-producing area.

Hal Boyle Says:

Getting Out of Doghouse Should Be School Course

NEW YORK (UP)—Getting out of the doghouse to many married men today is no longer an adventure.

It is a way of life, a career in itself. It should be taught in high school.

As a fellow has no limits to the ways he can stumble into the doghouse, so there are any number of ways out—if he doesn't mind crawling.

And a husband who does object to crawling is just a man with a prejudice against exercise and fresh air.

The average doghouse is a small cramped affair, no bigger than the ordinary wife's mind. You don't really need a road map to guide you out.

But how does a man escape from a marital doghouse?

The oldest and simplest way to make a wife forget your errors is to bribe her.

Is she a nature lover? Then send her flowers to soften her heart—well, anyway one flower. Start with a tree dandelion.

If that doesn't make butter melt under her chin, get her a rose. If necessary, even rent an orchid and lend it to her. A gal can't help loving a guy who is reckless with his money.

Same way if she has a sweet tooth. If you can't thaw her out with a stick of licorice or warm her up with a nickel candy bar, don't hesitate to borrow a couple of cups of sugar from a neighbor to make her fudge. Try to convince her you don't just go around making fudge for every girl.

Another way to get out of the doghouse is to sit silent and un-answering in it, as if you were unable to comprehend such a tragedy as being out of your wife's favor.

This will force her to reopen negotiations for your release, as no wife can long live in a house without an audience.

Yet another method used by old-fashioned husbands who have a wife still able to read and write is to leave a little cajoling note in her nylon stockings, such as:

"If it weren't for you, Dear, you know what I would be? Just a miserable, old bachelor with nobody to tell me right from wrong."

A few love letters like that, and any wife would be glad to give you an exit visa from the doghouse. Of course, an even quicker way out is to let her hear you as you phone your lawyer:

"Kim, drop by my kennel, will you? I want to change my will, and leave all my money to my wife—but I've decided to make my dog the executor. Bowser will make her bark for her money."

But the best way of all to get out of the doghouse is for a fellow to furnish it with an easy chair and chintz curtains and hang a sign on the closed door, saying: "Do not disturb."

That is something no wife who has put her husband in the doghouse can stand to watch him humming and happy in exile. Rather than see him enjoy himself, she will even forgive him.

Nothing worries any woman more than the sight of a man having fun all by himself—without her. And that is why no husband ever need stay in a doghouse forever.

Adventist Leader Raps Emotional Preaching

LODI, Calif. (AP)—Don't place religion on an emotional basis, Dr. Taylor G. Bunch of Washington, D. C., told a Seventh-day Adventist camp meeting here.

"Don't yell at your congregation," he advised, "because it turns people away from the church." And, he cautioned, don't pound the pulpit, wall or beat the air with arms going like a windmill.

"I can't imagine Christ, the world's foremost preacher, doing any of these things," said Dr. Bunch, pastor of the largest Adventist Church in the U. S.

Ancient Romans carefully saved the down a young man scraped off in his first shave, offering it to the gods in a religious ceremony.

Denies Mclean Boarded Train

Austrian Conductor Is 'Certain' Family Did Not Leave for Vienna

VIENNA (AP)—An Austrian railroad conductor said today he was "100 per cent certain" that Mrs. Donald D. Maclean did not catch an overnight train from Zurich to Vienna when she disappeared last week in Switzerland.

Oskar Rybicka, a conductor on the Paris-Vienna express in which it was believed Mrs. Maclean might have traveled to Austria, told reporters: "I have seen pictures of Mrs. Maclean and I am positive she was not in the sleeping car."

"I remember pretty much everybody who was on that train and I am certain that there was no lady or couple with three children," he added.

Mrs. Maclean, Chicago-born wife of a long-missing British diplomat, and their three children vanished after putting her automobile into a Lausanne garage. Swiss police yesterday appeared convinced she had caught a train from Zurich to Austria last Friday and possibly continued on through the Iron Curtain.

Rybicka said only a Swiss couple and two women—one an American—boarded the sleeping car at Zurich and took compartments.

Representatives of the Austrian Interior Ministry, meanwhile, reported efforts to establish definitely whether Mrs. Maclean actually entered Austria had been "utterly without result."

Reports from Switzerland said Swiss police, British agents and Austrian police were working on the theory that Mrs. Maclean headed out of Switzerland for a pre-arranged rendezvous with her husband.

Maclean disappeared 28 months ago with fellow British diplomat Guy Burgess and both were gen-

Soviet Flights Fought in Korea

U. S. General Reveals Russians Used War as Testing Ground

SEATTLE (AP)—The commander of the U. S. 5th Air Force said today the whole formations of Russian-manned Mig-15 jets fought against American Sabres during the Korean War.

Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson said Russia used Korea as a testing ground for its pilots and the superiority of U. S. air power was clearly established.

There have been many reports of Russian Mig-15 pilots in Korea, but Anderson's report was believed to be the first of Soviet formations fighting as units.

The 5th Air Force chief said generally Russians flew with Russians, Chinese with Chinese and Koreans with Koreans because of "different nationalities... couldn't understand each other and take orders in the air."

Anderson estimated that Soviet pilots made about 425 of some 1,600 Red jets stationed in North Korea and Manchuria since the armistice. He said the Reds have an air force of about 2,300 planes, including jets.

Anderson said the Reds are building a new airfield near Kaeson and rebuilding another in the Pyong-yang area, but noted that this does not violate the armistice agreement.

Mrs. Haymes testified her husband "was terribly jealous and drank too much," but after the hearing told newsmen she wished Dick and Rita "all the happiness in the world."

Claims Times Square Should Be For Adults

NEW YORK (AP)—Domestic Relations Justice Matthew D. Diserio says the Times Square amusement area should be off limits for teenagers unaccompanied by parents or guardians after 9 p.m.

The judge suggested the curfew yesterday when he found a 15-year-old boy guilty of mugging a pedestrian in the midtown center.

Haymes, Rita Sign Pre-Nuptial Property Pact

After obtaining her California decree—which becomes final in a year, Mrs. Rita Haymes said she'll "think it over awhile" before signing a waiver that would permit the crooner to get a Nevada divorce next week.

Of her decision, Haymes commented, "It might delay us but it will never, never prevent Rita and me from being married. We wanted to get married about the 24th (of September) so I can really work on my singing bookings which start Sept. 28 in Philadelphia."

Edmundson said reopening of the case is based on new evidence furnished by a 16-year-old girl who claimed she saw the shooting.

The girl's account of the fatal shooting has been verified by another witness who changed his original story, according to Edmundson and Detective Eldon Cornett and Conrad Kelts, both of Macomb County Sheriff Department.

Edmundson quoted the girl as saying that Nichols pulled a gun and fired once when Bell started fighting with a man identified as Sampson Cunningham, 25, of Pontiac, at the farm, 4381 Hamlin Rd.

She told Edmundson that the fight started when Bell noticed he was missing $85. Two more shots were fired and Bell fell to the floor, Edmundson said the girl told him.

Edmundson and Cornett said they first were led to believe Bell also was armed. Nichols is scheduled to be returned to Macomb County Jail today to await the examination.

April Shooting Case Reopened

Albert Nichols Jr. Held on Murder of Oliver Bell; Witness Found

An examination in the death of Oliver Bell, 39, formerly of 23 Esther St., who was shot twice on a Utica farm April 10, will be reopened next week after once being dismissed, according to Macomb County authorities.

Pontiac Detective John Williams said he arrested Albert Nichols Jr. of 411 Luther St. last night, who has been re-charged in a first degree murder warrant approved by Assistant Macomb County Prosecutor Robert Edmundson.

Edmundson said reopening of the case is based on new evidence furnished by a 16-year-old girl who claimed she saw the shooting.

The girl's account of the fatal shooting has been verified by another witness who changed his original story, according to Edmundson and Detective Eldon Cornett and Conrad Kelts, both of Macomb County Sheriff Department.

Bride Who Fled Czechoslovakia Rejoins Husband

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP)—A happy Czech bride who crashed through the Iron Curtain was honeymooning in Minnesota today with the husband from whom she had been separated for nearly four years.

Leonard Cloud, 9-year-old Sioux City meat cutter, and his wife, Libuse, 31, expressed a desire to "be by ourselves for a while." They plan to motor through Minnesota to Canada, returning here Oct. 1.

They left for the honeymoon trip late yesterday, shortly after a gala civic reception at the airport here. When her husband greeted her with several quick kisses here, it was the culmination for Mrs. Cloud of a trip which started when she and seven other determined Czechs escaped from their homeland in a homemade armored car last July 25.

"I am very happy to meet my husband again and come to a country of freedom," Mrs. Cloud told the large civic delegation and relatives who greeted her. And she added: "I know very well what is freedom."

She beamed with happiness as she met her husband's family for the first time. But she broke down and cried when her father-in-law, George Cloud, handed her a birthday card. Besides her mother she left her father, a brother and sister-in-law behind in Czechoslovakia.

Drayton Plains—Plans for a bazaar Nov. 6 were discussed at a meeting of St. Catherine's Guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ian Stevenson.

The group also discussed a smorgasbord to be sponsored by the church Sept. 26 at the CAI building from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The guild also voted to purchase added chairs for the church school.

Plan TV Color Demonstration

WASHINGTON (AP) Spokesmen for the television industry proposed today that the government have its official demonstration of a proposed new color television system in New York City Oct. 15.

The plan was outlined at a conference between members of the National Television System Committee, which has developed the new color operation, and members of the new Federal Communications Commission staff. It followed a recent call from FCC for an early official test looking to some final commission action.

Daniel B. Smith, NTSC vice president, said the proposed Oct. 15 tests from New York City transmitters would involve a viewing of the telecasts by the commission at a site on Long Island, possibly the Homestead Hotel at New Gardens.

LANSING—A brand new football TV show, "Press Box Preview," starring Red Grange and Bud Palmer, will be presented by Oldsmobile Division every Saturday this fall just before the General Motors TV football "Game-of-the-week."

The program will be carried on NBC station.

As the famous "galloping ghost" of Illinois, Grange dazzled the nation's gridiron fans 30 years ago. As a football broadcaster, Grange is accepted today as one of the outstanding experts in his field.

Bud Palmer, one of Princeton's all-time greats, was an All-American basketball player and also starred in football, soccer and lacrosse. Later he captained the New York Knickerbocker pro basketball team. Today he is rated one of the best sportscasters.

The "Press-Box Preview" is designed to give the TV fan a better understanding of the game. Grange
