

Nine Believed Dead After Two Ships Collide

Last of Israelis Leave Gaza

Disputed Strip Is Turned Over to U.N. Control

Aqaba Area Evacuation
Slated for Completion
Tomorrow

FROM OUR WIRE SERVICES
GAZA — The last Israeli troops in the Gaza Strip were evacuated at dawn today.

A few hours earlier, the Arab mayor of Gaza formally turned over the City of Gaza to a colonel in the U.N. Emergency Force thus placing the entire disputed strip under U.N. administration.

(Israeli evacuation of the shore at the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba and occupation of the area by U.N.
troops was scheduled for completion tomorrow.)

Before the last Israeli pulled out, 300 fedayeen (Arab commandos) lodged in the Gaza Prison were handed over to U.N. troops.

The UNEF reimposed a cur-few on the strip as a precautionary measure following disturbances among the Arabs.

Armed Danish and Norwegian sentries guarded foodstores, hospitals and other public buildings.
Some warehouses were broken into during nighttime troop change-over and looted.

SETTLEMENTS ARM

As Israeli occupation of the 125-mile coastal region came to an end, Zionist settlements all along the Gaza frontier unpacked guns in preparation against expected fedayeen attacks.

Farmers worked under the protection of armed guards and tractor drivers carried rifles as they did before Israel's Sinai campaign in November put a stop to the nightly raids of Egyptian-trained Arab commandos.

The Israelis halted the pull-out for a while yesterday because of a report that Egyptian civilian officials were moving into the Gaza Strip. It was resumed later, however, after a parley with U.N. officials, and heavily-laden trucks moved steadily across the Gaza frontier in the rain.

Ben-Gurion warned in the Knesset of possible Israeli action should the Arab raids on Israeli territory be resumed after the Israelis left.

He also served notice Israel could not agree to handing Gaza back to the Egyptians, restoring the status of the 1949 armistice.

Ike Shows Up With Ear Plug

It's Old-Fashioned Cold, Says Chief Executive at News Conference

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower showed up at his news conference today with a cotton plug in one ear as a result of what he described as an old-fashioned head cold.

Eisenhower told reporters the cough which has plagued him recently is better. But he said he seems to have caught a head cold in connection with it and is having difficulty with his hearing.

Asked if plans to go to Arizona in an effort to clear up the cough, Eisenhower said this is an awkward time for him to be away from Washington.

He said that while the Middle East situation is better and the outlook brighter, fresh details must be dealt with daily.

DULLES ON WAY

In this connection, Eisenhower noted that Secretary of State Dulles has taken off for Australia to attend the SEATO conference.
He noted that Vice President
Nixon also is out of the country.

Eisenhower said the living cost

MEMO TO PILATE

Caesar Is 'Not Disturbed'

In reply to Pontius Pilate's confidential report on the appearance of a strange prophet in the Jordan river district, Tiberius Caesar wrote from Rome.

My Dear Governor:

As you know, the Legions under my command conquered the whole of Germany from the Rhine to the Elbe.
There has been no serious trouble since.

I follow the practice of letting the people of the provinces follow their own beliefs and customs so long as there is no conflict with the Roman law. That, of course, is supreme. There must be order. And there must be proper tribute to Rome for maintaining order.

With this preface, I come to the matter of your report. About this "wildish sort of man John," as you describe him, I am not disturbed.
I leave the whole matter to your judgment.

You are an able governor or you would not be in Judaea. Certainly you are more competent to apprise and administer local affairs as a resident than is anyone in Rome, many leagues away.

My Mother, Livia, is much excited by your story. She has told it at all the banquets and there has been both somber and merry speculation. (My Romans are much more volatile in their talk than in their actions.)

Aelius, my adviser, is very concerned that this John will soften the soldiers so that they do not carry out our commands. But Aelius is always fussing about something. I think you know that we demand discipline among our legionnaires. This you will watch.
Beyond that I am unconcerned.

But do send me more details. Livia and her friends are virtually panting for them. Rome is most dull just now...

(Signed) Caesar.

The next details Tiberius received were ideally suited to banquet gossip and chit-chat among the Roman matrons.

Gambler Testifies

Says His Partner Paid Off Mayor

WASHINGTON (INS)—Portland, Ore. mayor Terry Schrunk was accused today of accepting a $500 bribe to permit an after-hours gambling and liquor joint to operate.

Big-time Portland gambler James B. (Big Jim) Elkins told the Senate's labor racket investigation that the bribe was paid by Clifford (Jimmie) Bennett in September 1955, while Schrunk still was sheriff of Multnomah County.

According to the bushy-haired gambler, who has painted a startling picture of labor-underworld corruption in the Pacific Northwest, Bennett, his business associate, paid the bribe to Schrunk rather than face a $1,500 or $2,000 fine.

Elkins, a daily witness before the probe since it opened last week, said he personally did not see Bennett make the payment.

But he said Bennett told him of the bribe after Schrunk raided their after-hours establishment, the 5215 Club, in Portland's Kenton District.

According to Elkins, Bennett was told by Schrunk that the sheriff was "going to arrest everyone coming out of the place."

After a Schrunk-Bennett conference, Elkins said, Bennett reported he "had some kind of agreement with Schrunk and that did not happen." Elkins said only "three or four drinks" were arrested and each was fined $10.

QUOTES ASSOCIATE

The tell-all witness quoted his business associate as saying he "was shooting the bankroll and gave $500 to Schrunk."

Elkins said he first learned of the deal when he quizzed Bennett about $500 that was missing from their joint fund.

He said: "He told me he gave it to Schrunk... It was better to give him that than pay $1,500 or $2,000 for having the place pinched."

Elkins also testified that Seattle underworld leaders Joe McLaugh-

Supervisors Set 12-Part Agenda; Meeting Friday

Controversy on Shift of County Seat Possible —Expect Drain Proposal

The question of shifting the county seat loomed in the background today as Oakland County supervisors planned their monthly meeting tomorrow.

No official report had been scheduled on the 12-part advance agenda for 9:30 a.m. in the fourth-floor meeting room of the County Office Building, 1
Lafayette St.

However, there remained a possibility discussion would arise spontaneously from the floor on the controversial question that was brought up by the Royal Oak Chamber of Commerce last month.

Howard K. Kelley, of Royal Oak introduced a chamber resolution calling for transfer of the seat of county government from Pontiac to Royal Oak.

Citing delays in construction of a new courthouse here, the proposal suggested a building in Royal Oak would be more easily accessible to the majority of the county.

The proposal took into account that the courthouse, under Michigan law, must be located within the city limits of the county seat.
The resolution was sent without discussion to the supervisors' special building committee, whose plans for the first $2.5 million section of a $5.5 million structure in the Telegraph road county service center, are presently blocked by legal entanglements.

Kelley, Royal Oak's mayor, is recovering from an appendectomy operation and was not expected to attend tomorrow.

Others who have expressed growing pro and con interest may carry the question to a floor discussion in his stead.

On the agenda were reports from the ways and means committee.
An important proposal is that the county assume some of the cost in the projected Twelve Towns Drain Relief plan for the southern part of the county.

At present, the $30 million project to relieve annual spring flooding is tied up in a law suit brought by two member communities.

Objecting to their shares of the total cost, Southfield Township and Troy filed suit to be free of the project.

Waterford Girl Killed by Auto

Injuries Prove Fatal to Mary E. Williams, 13, Struck on M59

A 13-year-old Waterford Township girl died last night from injuries received when she was struck by an auto on M59 near Crescent Lake road.

Mary E. Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brown Williams, of 1661 Eason St. suffered fractures of the neck and ribs and internal injuries in the accident which occurred at 7 p.m.

She died an hour later at Pontiac
General Hospital.

The driver, Franklin A. Roe, 72, of 2558 Hartford St., Waterford Township, will make a statement to the Oakland County prosecutor's office today, together with three witnesses.

Roe told Waterford Police the girl stepped out into the lane of traffic, then backed up and jumped out again. She was running and looking straight ahead, he said.

According to her mother, the girl had been sent to a nearby store for shoe polish.

Area Medics Set Polio Shot Plans

An adult polio immunization program for Oakland County residents, ages 15 through 50, was formulated last night at a meeting of the Oakland County Medical Society.

Based on a report of the polio committee, headed by Dr. Frederick Adams, of Birmingham, the society agreed to have individual doctors give the shots in their own offices at a suggested fee of $3 each in the three-shot series.

Mexican Police Hunt Tourists

Agents Sent to Village in Search for Missing
New York Twosome

ACAPULCO (INS) — Four Mexican police agents left Acapulco last night on a 55-mile drive to an isolated village where they hope to find missing New York tourists
Joseph Michel and Mrs. Edward Hallock.

The small coast village north of Acapulco can be reached only by one poor, makeshift road. The agents were driving a jeep and were not expected back in Acapulco until sometime today.

Police Chief Gonzalo Gonzalez told INS there is a small hotel in the village managed by the use of an American named Fisher. He said U.S. tourists sometimes like to enjoy a quiet vacation there.

Michel, a lawyer, and Mrs.
Hallock, a wealthy widow, vanished without a trace more than two weeks ago at Acapulco.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoffman arrived in Mexico last night to "see what we can do" in the search for Mrs. Hoffman's sister, Mrs. Hallock.

Mrs. Hoffman, wearing dark glasses to conceal her tear-reddened eyes, was frankly pessimistic about the possible fate of her sister and Michel.

"I believe someone saw her jewels and 'did them in' to get them," she said.

Hang On to Woolies, Colder Weather Due

The weather man forecasts mostly fair and colder tonight, with possible snow flurries, and a low of 12 to 17.

Friday will be partly cloudy with little change in temperature, high 28 to 32.

Pontiac's lowest temperature preceding 8 a.m. this morning was 27. The temperature at 2 p.m. was 30.

The outlook for Saturday is colder with mostly cloudy weather and snow flurries.

Both Freighter, Naval Tanker Catch on Fire

Series of Explosions Follows Vessel Crash
in Delaware River

NEW CASTLE, Del.
(INS)—A Navy supertanker and a Liberian freighter collided in the overcast Delaware River early today and nine crew members, including the tanker captain are missing and presumed dead.

A series of explosions followed the collision and both vessels caught fire.
The Navy vessel later settled in shallow water with only its bow protruding.

The missing seamen were from the tanker, USNS Mission San Francisco. All 23 persons aboard the freighter, SS Elna II, were saved, including two women.

There were 44 officers and crew-men aboard the Navy ship. Those rescued were brought to New Castle and Wilmington.

The collision occurred at 11:30 a.m. (EST) off the northern end of Pea Patch Island, three miles south of New Castle, Del., and Pennsville, N. J. The river there is two miles wide, but the navigable channel is only 50 to 100 yards across.

The Zimlin and other Coast Guard vessels stayed at the scene to extinguish flames shooting out of the bow of the "San Francisco."

HUNT SURVIVORS

The Coast Guard vessels also searched for additional survivors.
A light mist changed to light snow in the morning, somewhat hampering rescue operations.
River traffic was halted in both directions.

The explosions shook buildings in New Castle, Wilmington and other nearby cities. The blasts were heard in Philadelphia, 30 miles away.

BLAZES VISIBLE

The fires could also be seen from Philadelphia, as a faint pink glow in the sky. There was a light mist when the collision occurred, but visibility was considered good.

The "Elna" was driven aground on a jetty, and rescue vessels took her crew aboard before the ship was consumed in flames.

The "Elna" carried no cargo or passengers.

Wives of Police Are Prisoners— Call Club—POW!

If Pontiac police officers' wives unofficially refer to themselves as "prisoners", they feel it's their husbands' fault.

The ladies decided to organize last night, despite the Pontiac Police Officers Assn. refusal to support a women's auxiliary.

The women's independent group will be known as the Police Officers Wives — "POW" for short, abbreviation for "prisoners of war", and as far as the ladies feel, it's no accident.

The 31 wives voted unanimously on the first ballot, in contrast to the three ballots necessary before their husbands finally decided Tuesday against the auxiliary.

The women, who first proposed the auxiliary, voted to hold social meetings the first Wednesday of every month until they are able financially to sponsor charity projects.

Would Boost to 1st Class Status

Oakland County Congressman William S. Broomfield has introduced legislation which would materially boost the postal rates for so called "junk mail."

Under his proposal, the rates would be increased to first class mail rates.

"This is one of the main services which is costing the government many millions each year," Broomfield said.

"Junk mail" is primarily advertising mail addressed to box-holders or occupants, and its volume has been cited by many officials as a great burden on crowded postal facilities.

The bill, which was sent to the Postal Committee, would only affect third class mail.

"I feel the firms sending this mail should pay their own way, instead of everyone paying for them," Broomfield said.

Strikes Reducing Supplies of Fuel in Area

Standard Joins Area Walkouts

Pickets Block Delivery as Negotiators Agree to Resume Talks

Some 5,000 homes and businesses in the Pontiac area today were running low on fuel oil as pickets blocked deliveries out of the local yard of the Standard Oil Co., 95 W. Pike St.

The walkout at midnight last night of 12 drivers and 3 clerks, members of Central States Petroleum Union, Local 102, followed a shutdown of three Detroit area Standard terminals yesterday.

A spokesman for the Birmingham Standard Co. yard said their supplies of fuel oil and gasoline would last "three days." It comes from the struck Detroit terminals.

Yesterday, Circuit Court Judge Frank L. Doty granted a temporary injunction to Socomey Oil Co. to stop the picketing of the company's yard at 521 S. Telegraph Rd.

NORMAL DELIVERIES

Normal deliveries of oil and gas to hundreds of homes and service stations resumed at noon yesterday after being stopped since early Monday.

The Detroit Socomey outlets still remain struck today by members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union local 11-338, CIO. Workers there began their walkout a week ago.

Representatives of the union and company have agreed to resume negotiations at 10 a.m. tomorrow, under supervision of federal conciliators.

TRUCE TALKS

Attempts are being made to arrange similar truce talks between Standard officials and the union.

Although Central States union officials were not available for comment, Byron L. Cole, local Standard yard manager, said he understood the strike was over wages and fringe benefits.

Walter Thornton, secretary-treasurer of Local 11-338, said "We're trying to keep this thing from spreading" to five other major refining companies whose contracts either have expired or are about to.

The union is negotiating with Shell, Texaco, Gulf, Sinclair and Pure Oil on a national basis.

gram of free immunization, was discussed.

It was agreed that some 65 percent of this group is now fully immunized, but that a goal of 80 percent was the minimum desirable.

Dr. John D. Monroe, county health dept. director, said his plans include public clinics throughout the county to reach those in the 1-14 group not yet immunized. He added the times and places would be decided as free vaccine became available.

The adult program, the doctors said, would follow up the first shots with the week of May 20 for the second round of shots. Third shots would be administered some eight months later.

OBSERVED IN 145 COUNTRIES — Church women of Pontiac tomorrow will join in the World Day of Prayer which will be observed by churches in 145 countries, and in 1,000 dialects. Service here will be in First Presbyterian Church. Shown above assisting in preparations are (left to right) Mrs. Luther Strickland, Mrs. Paul T. Hart, Mrs. Clayton Rule and Mrs. I. M. Lewis.

Pontiac Will Join World in Day of Prayer Friday

From Pontiac's First Presbyterian Church to the distant shores of the Fiji Islands, millions of devout people of all religions and creeds will gather tomorrow to voice their yearnings for peace and freedom during the World Day of Prayer.

In America, the special prayer, sponsored by the United Church Women, has been composed by a woman who has cause to know the blessings of freedom. Its author, Mrs. Bela Vassady of Lancaster, Pa., a native of Hungary, has been active in resettling near her home refugees from her oppressed land.

Her theme is taken from Romans 8:35, "Who Shall Separate Us?"

In all, readings and prayers will be said in more than 60 languages and 1,000 dialects in 145 countries.

On the Fiji Island, Queen Salote will lead her subjects in a dawn prayer. The World Day of Prayer will conclude at nightfall on St. Lawrence Island, in the Bering Sea.

In Pontiac's First Presbyterian Church, registration is scheduled for 9:30 a.m., with the program beginning at 10 a.m.

lin and Tom Maloney, both linked in testimony to the West Coast conference of teamsters, protested that they were not getting a large enough cut from the club's revenues.

The Schunk raid, Elkins said, was precipitated by Maloney's demand for such a crackdown. Elkins said Maloney thought "I was holding money back."

Maloney, he said, engineered the raid through Schunk's campaign manager, Ray Kell.

Schunk was elected mayor last year over Fred Peterson, who said he refused to fire a police chief that Teamsters bosses did not like.

Elkins, a weary and worried witness whose life has been threatened, denied again under questioning by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) that he ever had any connection with prostitution.

DENIES MONEY

Although Elkins repeatedly has denied taking money from prostitution, McCarthy said he has received a "sizeable amount" of correspondence linking the gambler to this illegal enterprise.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy interjected that two call-house madams who had appeared before the committee said they never had heard of Elkins being associated with prostitution.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said he has not yet received results of a lie detector test taken Wednesday by Nathan Zisman, a Portland night club operator who claimed one madam Helen (Big Helen) Hardy, falsely linked him with prostitution.

Walter F. Carey, Bloomfield Hills, will be one of ten Michigan men meeting in New York City this week to serve on the National Budget Committee of national health and welfare agencies.

The committee, convening today through Friday, will examine the budget requests of 32 national agencies. After study, they are to determine the amount needed to continue research, education and direct services of each agency.

Specific amounts designated as Michigan's share of the nation's health and welfare responsibility will also be considered. These requests will be re-examined next month at the Admission and Budget meeting of the Michigan United Fund before each local United Campaign unit is asked to assume its share of the budgets.

situation is being watched carefully by the administration. He added that a cut in the rate of spending would serve to take just that much pressure away with respect to inflation.

The President also dealt with these other matters:

HISTORIC FACT

MIDDLE EAST — Eisenhower said that beginning as early as 1948 he has never discussed Israel with anyone without saying that nation's existence is an historic fact and its problems must be dealt with.

As for the situation resulting from Israel's withdrawal from the Gaza Strip and the prospective pullout from the Galt of Akaba area, Eisenhower said the United States has taken the position that the gulf is an international waterway and that this country plans to use it together with other nations.

WHITE HOUSE — Eisenhower said he would oppose any move to convert the White House into a museum and to build a new residence for the President elsewhere in Washington.

The White House is such a symbol of what our country means that it never should be abandoned as a presidential residence, Eisenhower added. He did say, though, that he recognizes a need for modernization of White House office facilities.

The Day in Birmingham

Deny Rezoning of Temple Site on West Maple Road

BIRMINGHAM — City commissioners here uphold the planning board's recommended denial to a rezoning request for the Coryell Park property on West Maple.

The request, made by Raymond E. Cecil, member of the building committee for the Masonic Temple, asked that two lots be rezoned for multiple family use. The property is located at the southwest corner of Maple and Arlington with a 300 foot frontage on Maple.

John McKay, member of Birmingham Lodge No. 44, said his organization considered the spot an ideal for a new temple, and it had been selected after thorough study of other sites.

Plan board denials were based on: the property is too desirable for residential purposes; Maple avenue frontage can and is being used for a high type of residential development; residential is the most compatible to the surrounding land use.

It was announced by commissioners that, although their decision coincides with that of the plan board, the Masonic group may request a public hearing if desirable.

Monthly reports from municipal divisions include that of the Birmingham fire department and building inspector's office.

The latter is back in business again with a total of 25 permits issued last month, as compared to 12 for January. The February construction total comes to $455,300.

Analysis of the report shows new construction planned for eight single family homes and two business places; a dozen home alterations and two for business establishments. A foundation permit also was issued for one business.

The fire report released by Chief Park Smith, reveals a total of 27 runs made with damages amounting to only $400.

Fire alarms accounted for 11 of the trips; investigations five; miscellaneous, four, and first aid, seven.

A display of interest to persons planning additional plantings around their homes has been prepared by the department of parks and forestry and placed in the city hall lobby.

It shows city planning to include the planting of sugar and Norway maples, London plane, honey locust, pin oak, English elm, American elm, little-leaf linden and Chinese ginkgo. Suggested plantings, found to be adaptable to this climate and otherwise suitable for use around homes are sweet gum, columnar, Schneider and Norway maples.

Tax Cut for Small Firms?

WASHINGTON (INS) — A group of House Republicans has proposed an omnibus measure to lower taxes of small corporations, partnerships and proprietorships. The lawmakers, members of the small business committee, ignored administration policy against tax cuts this year and urged Congress to adjust rates so that "small business can effectively compete and prosper in our present day economy of big business, big government and big labor."

Rep. Timothy Sheehan (R-III) said present laws discourage groups of small investors from forming new corporations. The bill would lower the normal tax rate on corporations from 30 to 20 per cent and would provide for an increase in the surtax, which is now 22 per cent.

Corporations with an income of less than $25,000 are exempt now from the surtax. The group urged that this exemption be boosted to $150,000.

Family-sized farms would get tax exemptions for improvements on buildings and equipment used in crop production.

The $1,000 limitation on capital gains has now given to small corporate business investors would be removed. Small businesses would have more time in paying off estate taxes than now allowed by law.

Sheehan said congressional committees have been unable to estimate accurately how much the proposals would cost the government in lost revenue.

Plan Radar Network Along Scheldt River

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP) — Experts of the Dutch radar station of Noordwyk have drawn up a plan for the establishment of a complete radar network on the Scheldt river in order to ensure complete security of navigation on the Dutch-Belgian waterway from Antwerp to the North Sea. The plan was studied at the request of the Belgian ministry of communications and the Belgian marine administration. The plan was handed to Belgian and Dutch authorities for later approval and application.

It calls for the creation on Dutch and Belgian territory of a certain number of radar stations.

Quiet, intoxicating spot

NAPPANEE, Ind. (AP) — Sign outside a tavern: "No radio, no television, no air conditioning—just a quiet place to have a drink."

Perseverance Wins World War I Bonus

COVINGTON, Okla. (AP) — It took 37 years, but Frank J. Renna received his World War I bonus of more than $1,000.

Renna's check had been held up by legal difficulties since 1920.

The Covington barber was in the Navy for three years before being discharged in April, 1920. The bonus payment was held up because of seven hours "overleave" which ended in his receiving an "ordinary discharge."

Renna started fighting in 1923 to have the action changed and in 1950 a Naval board of inquiry gave Penna an honorable discharge.

It has taken seven years more for the bonus to clear.

Just Tries to Be Helpful — So He Shouldn't Kick

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — When his car stuck in sand, Ollie Smith asked a woman passerby to take the wheel while he pushed.

He forgot to ask whether she knew how to drive.

Police said the car came free and the woman jammed the accelerator to the floorboard. The car whipped in a wide circle, zoomed around a corner and crashed into a parked car, doing $350 damage.

Termed 'National Disgrace'

U. S. Probe Threatened for Scandal Magazines

WASHINGTON (INS) — A full-scale congressional investigation of scandal magazines and the "private eyes" who snoop for them was threatened today.

Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R-Calif.) said such "odious" publications should come under scrutiny to determine whether federal laws are needed to "meet this problem."

He said he is ready to push for congressional action if California lawmakers who recently conducted such an investigation, want it.

The congressman mentioned Anita Ekberg, Frank Sinatra, Marilyn Monroe and other Hollywood personalities as possible witnesses for such an inquiry.

Hillings made the statements after studying reports of hearings last week before a California State Senate Committee. A parade of witnesses testified on methods used to obtain material involving screen stars and other prominent persons.

QUESTIONS METHODS

Hillings said today that the California investigation raised the question of extortion, threats and strongarm methods used to gather photos and stories for the scandal publications.

He said that such tactics might be interstate in nature, and pointed out that State Senator Frank Kraft, chairman of the California committee, already has called for federal legislation.

Kraft said in Sacramento that the scandal magazines are "a national disgrace" and that their control is "beyond the scope of a single state legislature."

Hillings said he has wired Kraft asking for his comments and suggestions. The representative added that if the legislators feel the U. S. should step in, he is prepared to ask the House Judiciary Committee to investigate.

'A REAL EVIL'

Hillings, who called the magazines "a real evil," said that among those who would be called as witnesses are persons who have been subjected to such magazine attacks.

He mentioned testimony which linked Frank Sinatra to a "wrong door" raid on an apartment where Marilyn Monroe was staying and reports that private investigators took secret movies of blond Anita Ekberg.

The congressman, a judiciary committee member, said the group might want to talk to law enforcement officers, better business bureaus and legitimate private detectives, as well as those involved in scandal magazine publication.

Administration to Ask Taft-Hartley Revision

The Taft-Hartley Labor-Management Relations Act is likely to come up for revision in the next few weeks. The Act which governs businesses affecting interstate commerce has been under heavy labor bombardment since its passage in 1947, but it has been changed very little. Labor at first demanded outright repeal but now will be satisfied with revisions.

In his State of the Union Message on February 2, 1953, President Eisenhower said that "experience has shown the need for some corrective action and we should promptly proceed to amend the Act. On January 11, 1954, Mr. Eisenhower sent 15 proposed revisions to Congress but nothing was done. He is expected to re-submit them this session.

Secretary of Labor MITCHELL says there has been some agreement between labor and management on proposals submitted jointly. The AFL-CIO has not drafted a bill of its own but sent some suggestions to Mr. MITCHELL, says Congressional Quarterly.

The Taft-Hartley Act forbids a closed shop. It permits a union shop under which a non-union man can be hired by management but he must join the plant union within 30 days after he starts work. Because of the temporary nature of their work, building trades' leaders want the joining period cut to seven days.

Labor can not count on either the Administration or Congress to wipe out right-of-work laws through revisions. Secretary MITCHELL says he will not push for that revision and it appears that no group in Congress will. The Act has been interpreted to allow states to forbid union shops within their borders and 17 states have done so.

Employers can expect some recommendations to make the Act more comfortable for them. President EISENHOWER has advocated amendments insuring management's right of free speech in labor matters and prohibiting the reopening of contract negotiations unless the labor-management contract authorizes it.

The outlook for revision is brighter now that labor has ended its campaign to repeal the Act and instead will be satisfied with some changes to make the law easier to live with.

Texas Votes to Decide Control of U.S. Senate

There's an important special Senatorial election coming up in Texas on April 2.

In the November election, Senator PRICE DANIEL was chosen Governor. Democrat WILLIAM BLAKELY was named to fill the unexpired Senate term until a special election.

Eleven Democrats and one Republican, THAD HUTCHESON, are on the ballots for the job. With the Democratic vote thus split, all the Republican has to do is get more votes than any other single candidate. While Texas voted twice for EISENHOWER, it is still largely a Democratic state and a vigorous two party system is a long way off.

Mr. HUTCHESON, a 41-year-old Houston lawyer, is an Eisenhower Republican and was given warm endorsement when he called at the White House last month. If he should win the GOP would be in a position to recapture Senate control by one vote. Republicans and Democrats would be tied at 43 and Vice President NIXON could cast the deciding vote.

The lakes are high—control of the Senate.

A LOT is being said and written about the equality of people, but the cold truth is that no two human beings are alike and equal—and both of them are glad of it.

When a girl's face "looks too beautiful to be true," it probably would tell the truth if all cosmetics were removed from it.

The Man About Town They Appreciate

Through All the Years, the Outsiders Marvel at County

Sense of humor: What most people are endowed with; others with a sense of humor.

The beautiful landscapes of the Pontiac area were also apparent to visitors a few generations ago. In his diary of the grandfather of Mrs. R. N. Donaldson of Orchard Lake are clippings of a newspaper story which he wrote about a bicycle trip from Charlotte, Michigan, to Niagara Falls in 1896. Among his sentiments of 61 years ago are:

"In thinking over the country through which we have been, we are unanimous in declaring that the most attractive is in Oakland County. The country is rolling, but the roads are excellent, and one is rarely out of sight of some lake, a sparkling gem among the hills. Nearly every farmhouse for miles has just near it, a lake that is well stocked with fish."

There were five cyclists in the party, and the trip found the poorest roads on the Michigan end of their trip to be the last 12 miles before reaching Detroit. Of the Canadian country beyond Windsor, the diary says it was "bleak, low, and unattractive."

All of this only refreshes the memory of MAT on a remark quite frequently made by our boyhood ideal of what a man really should be.

Thomas L. Patterson, for 16 years our Judge of Probate: "We don't appreciate what we have in Oakland County until outsiders visit here and call our attention to it." That remark is as true today as it was when he made it 60 years ago. Incidentally, Mr. Patterson was the grandfather of

Clarence K. Patterson of today, generally known as "C."

The lakes within Pontiac city limits are potential death traps when the spring breakup comes in the ice, and Chief of Police Herb Straley urges precaution. We have no citizens to spare, especially the young ones.

I never met the gentleman, but I don't like the notions of Professor Bennett T. Sandefur, head of the Michigan State University geology department. He says the sub-zero weather of this winter is warm when compared to what we'll be having 50,000 years from now, when the glaciers that once scraped down through our state will pay a return visit.

Perhaps the spirit of the times is reflected in a letter from

"Always Easy Going," enclosing a clipping about a man being robbed of $50 while hunting for a job. The letter says, "Served him right. No man with $50 should be looking for work."

I don't know where she got it, but this quotation from the

Clarkston Pioneer News Letter, the monthly publication of the group sponsored by

Mrs. Tony Warrick, looks like a gem: "Show me a man who cannot bother to do little things and I'll show you a man who cannot be trusted to do big things."

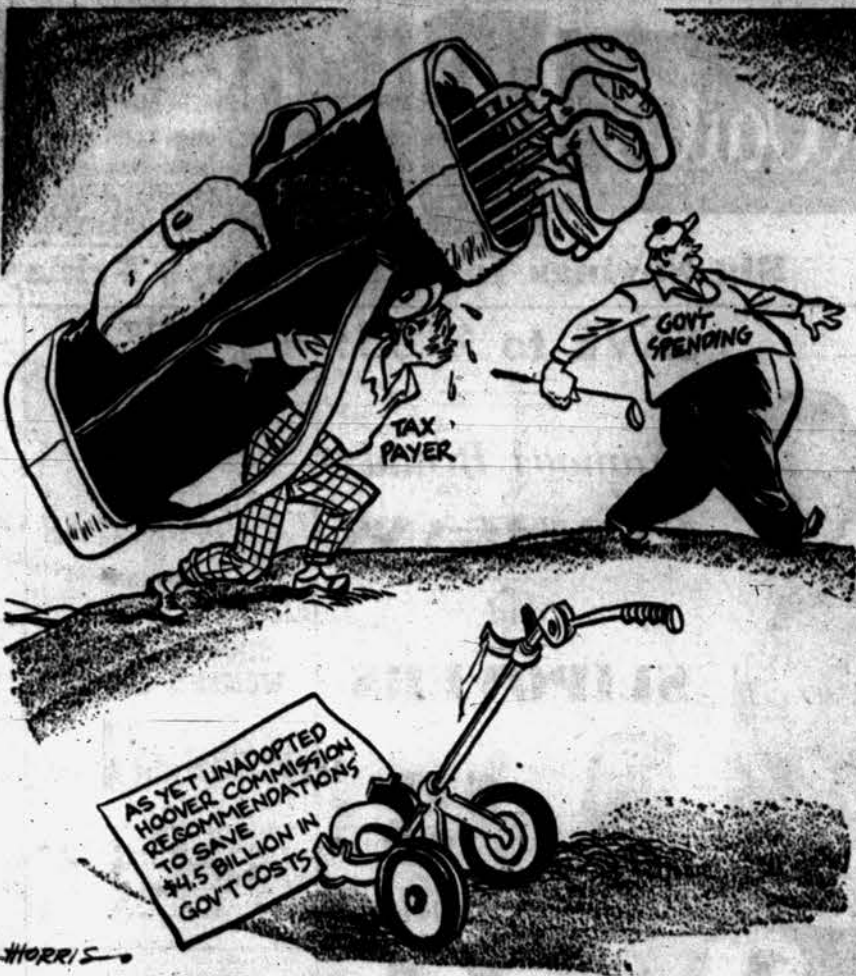

A disciple of the old sod calls my attention to the fact that Maurice Finnegan and Cecil McCallum, Pontiac's municipal court judges, both are Irish. In my opinion, that's a big credit to the Irish.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Gives Sure Formula for Romance

Marilyn agreed to give up her former suitor who was such a rotter, even though she said it would break her heart and she'd never love anybody again. But see the strategy which we used to build up a new and sound type of romance for her. This technique will always work if you give it a fair chance.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
Case U-322: Marilyn M., aged 23, is the girl who was hopelessly enamored by a rotter, all due to love at first sight.

"Dr. Crane, maybe you are right in saying that the reason I fell for Tom, is the fact he reminds me of Daddy and my brother," she finally admitted.

"Everybody says we would never be happy if I married him. And I can realize his faults when I try to view our situation logically."

"When I raved him on your 'Tests for Sweethearts', he came out with a 'Very Poor' ranking. 'Because I still love my parents and brother and friends, I will promise to give Tom up, though I feel as if I shall die of heartache.'"

"I know I can never fall in love with anybody else, so life holds no joy ahead. But I will promise to try. What should I do first?"

LOVE DRUNKARDS
In America we greatly need some comparable organization to match the fine work of Alcoholics Anonymous.

That splendid society takes alcoholic drunkards and rehabilitates them.

But when people are madly in love with obviously unsuitable members of the opposite sex, they are likewise intoxicated with unwise romance, and just as much in need of outside help.

Marilyn's case is a typical example. In her desolation, she needed additional aid.

So I cooperated with her family to rehabilitate Marilyn. It so happened that I knew a young dentist who had lost his wife in an auto accident.

This dentist was attractive and of the same complexion as her father and brother, so I figured he would help dislodge the romantic power which Tom held over Marilyn.

When I explained the case to the dentist, he agreed to cooperate. "If we fall in love, fine," he added philosophically, and if not, at least I shall have helped rehabilitate a fine girl."

The dentist's name was Roger. I introduced him to Marilyn in my office.

Roger took her to a concert. She had no special interest in him at the start.

But as they continued dating twice per week, the pleasures of good meals and theaters and concerts and attendance at church, all began to attach to Roger.

Although Marilyn forced herself to smile and act happy on that first date, she needed to do less forcing with each future engagement.

LIT LONES

"Just tell Janet it's the bitter rivals."

Gradually, she began to look forward with eagerness to Roger's voice on the telephone.

Within six months, she was so animated and gay while on a date with Roger that you never dream she had been interested in Tom.

"But I don't really love Roger," she confessed to me. "I am happy while in his company. And I certainly am very grateful to him for having come to my rescue when I was so low in spirits."

"I'd do almost anything to help him. But I don't feel it would be fair to Roger to marry him, since I don't love him."

I nodded assent, though I knew positively she would be married within six months, for Roger had fallen in love with Marilyn.

And though she didn't realize she was in love with Roger, I knew we had woven a psychological web of happy shared experiences which would enmesh her permanently.

But I bided my time and advised Roger to employ the "Seneca technique" on Marilyn. See tomorrow's case for the follow-up.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane, in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Smiles

Smart mothers whose tots are always getting dirty let the punishment fit the crime.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Exercise Saved Reader From Rupture Operation

"Years ago," says Mr. S. G., "you saved me the operation for rupture. I read your article on physical exercises for rupture, began doing the exercises regularly, and in few weeks my rupture, as large as an egg, disappeared. There has never been any sign of it since."

Mr. G. does not say, but we must assume that his hernia, rupture, or breach—whatever you prefer to call the protrusion or bulging of some structure from the abdomen partly through the abdominal wall so that it appears as a swelling or lump under the skin—was reducible.

That is to say, the protruding structure could be returned to the abdomen by careful manipulation with the hand while the patient relaxed in supine position with shoulders lower than hips.

If a hernia is not reducible but protrudes always, neither truss nor exercise can correct it. Only operation will correct it.

Almost painless office (ambulant) injection treatment which doesn't require hospitalization or absence from regular work is satisfactory in many instances. If your own physician doesn't give such treatments, perhaps he knows one who does.

ASK "HOW COMES?"

If anyone implies that injection treatment is "no good," "dangerous" or "was discarded long ago," ask the prevaricator to explain how come it rates several chapters in the best modern textbook on hernia: — (Hernia, by Leigh F.

Watson, M.D., published by Mosby, St. Louis).

Best exercises for spontaneous cure of small rupture are daily leg-raising calisthenics, taken while you lie supine and always supporting the hernia or suspected hernia with the middle fingers or one hand while you do the exercises.

Raise one leg to vertical slowly and smoothly, then lower it in like manner. The same with other leg. Then both legs together. Perhaps only one time twice daily at first. Week by week gradually increase to from three to a dozen times twice a day.

In addition, as your strength increases, do a number of squats, always supporting the ruptured or weak place with the fingers of one hand.

Learn how to breathe and get into the habit of doing two or three inflations of the bellows several times in the course of the day.

The leg-raising and squatting exercises, with other calisthenics suitable for setting-up drill for anyone who wants to develop better posture and correct flabbiness, are described and illustrated in Volume 6 of the Pocket Cyclopaedia of Health, titled The Last Brady Symphony, and natural breathing is described in Volume 21, How To Breathe. For either send 35c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Child or adult may get spontaneous cure of hernia merely from wearing a suitable truss, selected and fitted by or under supervision of the physician.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 150 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Voice of the People

Urges Press to Promote Master Planning for City

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.

Your request for someone with a magic wand who can resolve the seemingly contradictory problems of patchwork growth in any city, has not gone unnoticed. Take heart, for your newspaper has the widest distribution in this locality of the most powerful wand available to anyone—the printed word. The people want you to use it.

The redevelopment of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, for example, took a prodigious amount of printed words in order to tell the people of their situation. In Philadelphia the City Planning Commission was given the responsibility and authority for redeveloping a mass of so-called pieces of American heritage into a setting of compatible influences on modern living environment, because the people knew what was required and knew it had to be done.

The role of critic, educator and seller is a very necessary one and carries a great deal of responsibility. To illustrate the point, look at Pontiac.

The newly constructed City Hall, the new under-construction Public Safety Building, the addition to the City's General Hospital and the proposed Courthouse—there is a definite plan being executed or is this, too, growing patch upon patch? The time is now to advocate a concerted effort by all groups and individuals toward a well-functioning, coordinated, growing organism which we may call a city, village, township, county or region. This concerted effort should have a plan as a guide to action. The plan used by other leading cities in our country is the master city plan evolved by hard-working, responsible citizens trained for their jobs on city planning commissions.

Pontiac has a Planning Commission. Oakland County has a Planning Commission—in fact, the whole area has a planning commission in the Huron-Clinton Development Authority. However, there has been very little effort and a lack of responsibility for educating the people in the utility, necessity and the economy of such planning commissions.

The time to move is now.

'Must Not Know Much About God'

I guess this "Sally" person doesn't know much about God, does she? How many times a day do you tell your mother and dad how wonderful they are? God doesn't mind the reason we pray. He's not narrow-minded.

However, I suddenly recalled the biggest submarine in the world traveled 60,000 miles on an amount of uranium the size of an electric light bulb, so I decided to muddle through and fight a rear end action fight to the grave. "Oh, death, where is thy (imminent) sting?"

'Why Not Leave Individual Alone?

Regarding the letter about the policeman's trial, a person pays a fine and ends up in jail for a revoked license, but that is a direct misdemeanor and he is aware of consequences when he breaks the law. I see no connection between traffic violation and a human on trial because of some mishap of fate or whatever you want to call it.

You should think "There but for the grace of God go I." Do you know how you would react under such stressing circumstances? Even psychiatrists are amazed at new findings about the complex mind. Why not leave the individual alone now that he has survived enough mental turmoils and recriminations?

'Citizens Should Take Interest'

In answer to "Interested's" letter, it is not only the privilege but civic duty of citizens to take an active interest in community affairs and especially school business.

Anyone worthy of calling himself a good citizen will ask questions and seek the truth from those qualified to answer. Asking might bring forth constructive thoughts. Sitting back quietly, letting the world go by, is all right for the unintelligent or those who lack spunk enough to question what they don't understand or things with which they don't agree.

Comparing the school situation with doctor-patient relation is the height of asinine and there is nothing synonymous about the two. Certainly no school board member of superintendent would be offended by sincere efforts of citizens to understand a local school condition.

Concerning the letter by Robert Rowland, the VA sends out a fine, informative booklet, "To the Home-Buying Veteran," as soon as application is made for a loan, before mortgage papers are signed. It warns of all the various pitfalls. The VA can send it, but can't make the vet read it.

As for a large down payment, Mr. Rowland must live under a different economic system than the rest of us who work for a living, to be able to save that much with a family. As for financing through a local bank, we have A-1 credit rating at the bank and doubt they would carry us, as they have already sold most of the FHA mortgages they held.

Poland Launches Big Drive

U.S. Tourists ($$) Wanted!

BERLIN (INS)—A major drive to interest American tourists in visiting Poland will be launched shortly by the Polish travel agency Orbis.

A Polish diplomat in East Berlin said that his country's travel agency is now busy planning contacts with the travel agencies of the free world "to get as many tourists as possible to come to Poland next summer."

The diplomat said that inside Poland the government has taken steps to modernize the hotels and other facilities "to make the life of the tourists gay and more pleasant."

He said the Polish government is expected to open Zakopane in the south, Cieplina in the west, Sopot and other places along the Baltic coast to tourists during the next season.

He said that the Polish travel agency also will open a number of branches in the free world.

The main object of the opening of the Polish frontiers to the western tourists "is to earn western currency," the diplomat said, adding:

"We hope to get many tourists from the United States, particularly the Polish-Americans."

He said that more Polish consulates will be set up in various American cities to facilitate visa formalities for the future tourists.

Detroit Engineer Wins 6th Award From Army

DETROIT (AP)—A middle-aged refrigeration engineer, the father of three children, has won his sixth award for a money-saving suggestion at the Army's Detroit Arsenal.

David Ormes' check for $475, the largest efficiency suggestion award ever given at the Arsenal, was announced yesterday.

The Army estimated that Ormes' suggestion, aimed at improving efficiency in the Arsenal's low temperature test cells for Army equipment, will save the Army about $32,136 a year.

His six suggestions have saved the government about $726,000 the past 10 years, the Army said.

Ormes earns about $8,500 a year in wages. He has picked up $1,755 for his suggestions.

Britons Hint Plans for Guided Weapons

LONDON (AP)—Britain may have her own guided weapons in operation "in the not-too-far distant future," the Society of British Aircraft Constructors said today.

It also pooh-poohed reports this country will soon adopt American guided weapons wholesale for its defense.

The society said in its weekly newsletter that more than 400 local airplane firms are engaged in guided weapon work, including the "intercontinental ballistic missile."

There have been persistent reports that Britain would adopt American guided weapons to help her cut her forces and streamline them for nuclear age requirements.

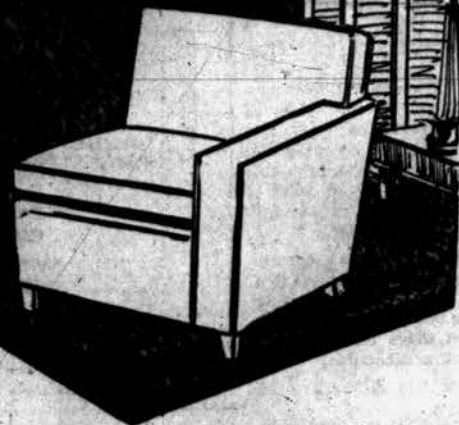

Obeys Dad, Burns Shed

MT. CLEMENS (AP)—It cost the taxpayers some money when 14-year-old Jack Harrington Jr. obeyed his father. Told to get rid of a small shed in his backyard, Jack set fire to it. Neighbors saw the flames and called firemen in time to keep the blaze from spreading to the boy's home.

Part of 'Seawolf' Design Termed a Flop

Navy Takes Fact Over Theory on New Submarines

WASHINGTON (U)—When the Navy began moving into nuclear propulsion development six years ago it announced several types of reactors would be built and tested to decide which were best.

It started its work with submarines.

The first nuclear submarine was the Nautilus. It was highly successful.

The second was the Seawolf. It was a flop. No more power plants like the one installed in that sub will be used.

What is the difference between the two types of power plants, developed under the Navy and the Atomic Energy Commission?

Why has the Nautilus been able to log more than 30,000 miles of operation? Why hasn't the Seawolf moved from its pier?

Both power systems operate by using the heat generated in a reactor by controlled nuclear fission to produce steam to drive a turbine which turns the propellers of a submarine.

There is this difference, however:

In the Nautilus the heat energy from the atomic firebox is transferred to the steam-producing unit by passing water through the firebox and then through the steam-generating unit. The heat of the pressurized flow of water is transferred, through the walls of pipes, to the steam-generating unit. The steam so generated spins the turbine. In the heat exchanger, radioactivity is not passed on, but remains in the shielded section of the power plant.

MAGNETIC PUMP

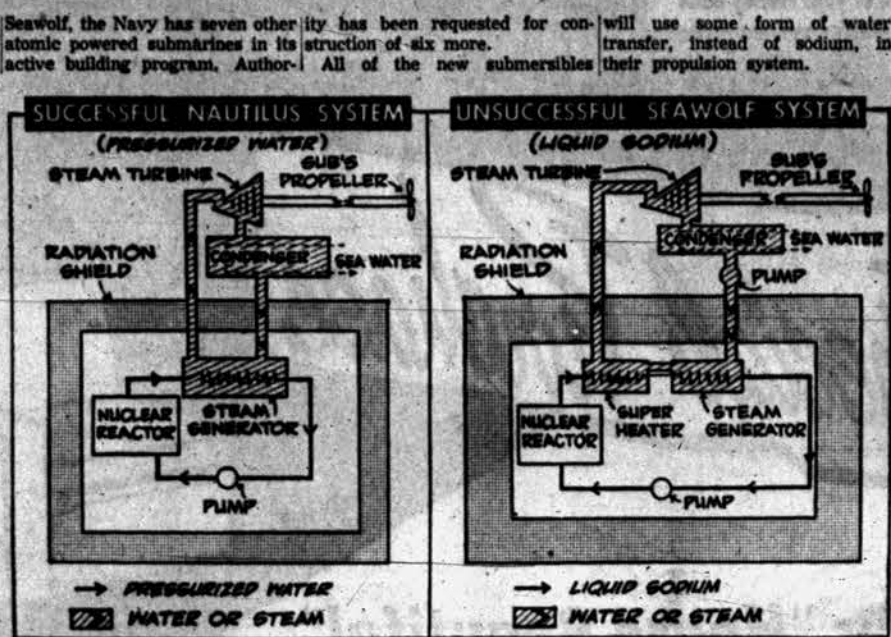

In the Seawolf propulsion system, the heat exchange medium is liquid sodium metal. To keep the sodium flowing through the heat exchange system, a magnetic "pump" is used. A field of electricity is created by wires wrapped around the pump. The sodium is drawn through by the magnetic action of the field.

In theory, the sodium system should be more efficient. The material is a better conductor of heat than water. The pumping system is far smaller, much simpler in operation than the big pressure pumps used for water.

However, when the Seawolf's reactor was started up and run for some time the Navy says it discovered that the chemical reaction of the sodium worked into the pipes, resulting in cracks.

The Navy announced several weeks ago that it "hoped" to send the Seawolf out on sea trials in January. However, since then there has been a growing belief that a new heat transfer system will have to be installed in the Seawolf.

In addition to the Nautilus and

Fired by New Sheriff, Gets Rehired Quickly

ST. LOUIS (U)—Harold Hoeh, within the space of three days, was fired, rehired and gained a reputation as an indispensable man.

Hoeh, who handles replevins and other highly technical matters in the St. Louis county sheriff's office, was fired along with several other deputies the day Sheriff Orion J. Litzinger took office.

His successor quit the next day, explaining the duties were too complicated. No one else wanted the job, the sheriff said, and Hoeh was rehired immediately.

Shingle Defies Storms

EAST WALPOLE, Mass.—A new type of shingle, which reportedly seals out storms of gale and even hurricane velocity, has been developed by an East Walpole company. Designed on the spot, the shingle has vented seals to let moisture out, thus allowing the roof to "breathe."

Fireman Loses Calm; Call Is From His Home

WENATCHEE, Wash. (U)—Fireman Marvin Strop calmly took a fire alarm call from an excited woman.

He quickly sounded the alarm for the fire truck dash to 1236 8th St. Then he recognized the address. "Hey!" he exclaimed. "That's my house."

The voice on the telephone had been his wife's.

Strop and other firemen handled the emergency quickly. It was a burning pan of grease. The only damage was from smoke.

Couple of Tough Breaks

MILWAUKEE (U)—The Clifford Miron family was the victim of two bad breaks recently.

Miron slipped on some ice and broke his left leg. While he was traveling home from the hospital, his 2-year-old son, Alan, tumbled from a living room chair and fractured his right leg.

Poison Hits Prisoners, Check Samples of Food

PELLSTON (INS)—New Wilderness prison camp doctors said today that "a number" of the 80 prisoners stricken with food poisoning last night remained in serious condition.

Seymour Gillman, assistant director of corrections at the short-term camp, said one officer, Lt. Jack Ide, was also felled by the poisoned food.

Authorities were to check samples of the menu of hamburger with pork and hominy. The hominy is suspected as the poisoner.

Red Cross Leader Back From CD Meet

Mrs. Ruth E. Spurlock, home service director for the Oakland County Chapter of the American Red Cross, recently returned from Battle Creek where she attended a special course on the organization of welfare services for Civil defense emergencies.

Conducted by the Federal Civil Defense Administration's Staff College in cooperation with the agency's Welfare Office, the course attracted 58 persons from 18 states, the District of Columbia, and the Panama Canal Zone.

Name General Counsel for U.S. Civil Defense

BATTLE CREEK (INS) — The federal civil defense administration has announced appointment of 32-year-old Philip C. Baldwin as FCDA general counsel.

Baldwin has been acting general counsel since last May.

'Loses' Auto Twice, Jailed on Drunk Charge

DETROIT (INS) — Worrying netted 26-year-old William Yeager of Detroit his choice of a $10 fine or 30 days in jail.

Police said Yeager was at a bar imbibing Tuesday night when he decided his car had been stolen. He called police and they found the auto near the bar, where Yeager had parked it.

When Yeager called officers a second time, and they again found his auto in the same place, he was hauled to jail on a drunk charge.

Guilty Plea Entered

DETROIT (INS) — A 36-year-old former boxer pleaded guilty in Detroit recorder's court yesterday to the first degree murder of his wife.

Police said Casimere Gorney had admitted beating and kicking his wife, Zella, 39, to death. He first told officers she was struck by a hit-run driver.

Man Kills Ex-Wife, Then Shoots Himself

PHOENIX CITY, Ala. (INS) — A divorced man carried out a threat by mail to kill his ex-wife and himself.

Mrs. Betty Martin, 44, was shot to death by Carl D. Schultz, 50, in the front yard of her home. Police said she was shot in the back by Schultz, who then fired a bullet through his mouth killing himself.

The former Mrs. Martin's second husband had died recently. She asked for protection after receiving a threatening letter from her ex-husband yesterday.

Holland now has 500 milk farms.

'High Taxes Due to Selfishness'

All Want Economy Only for Others, Humphrey Tells Detroit GOP

DETROIT (INS)—Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey said last night "American people will get a tax cut if they will abandon their selfish demands on the federal government."

Humphrey blamed the high tax level on "pressure from all sections of the country for a bigger share of federal money." The secretary told a $100-a-plate Republican dinner in Detroit:

"Most people are in favor of strict economy for everyone but themselves and their own pet projects. We must have the unselfish support of all groups who are willing to demand somewhat less from the government for themselves as well as for all others."

Humphrey also made the following points emphatic: "Runaway inflation is not here now, although costs are creeping up and might get out of hand unless there are proper restraints..." "Direct controls are not under consideration..."

"There is no reason to fear a depression and there are no signs that business activity is about to decline..."

"Trouble could arise if the government continues to keep too much money for taxes instead of using it to make new jobs for the growing population; and,

"Federal spending for local projects must be curtailed..."

Mother Rescues Tot From Burning Home

DETROIT (INS)—A two-year-old Detroit boy was rescued by his mother yesterday after he found a match and set fire to plastic curtains in his bedroom.

Mrs. Janrose Robinson rushed into the bedroom when she smelled smoke and carried her son, Billie, to safety. The bedroom and adjoining kitchen in their basement apartment were destroyed.

SPECTATOR SPORT — Grimly determined to prove his skill as a matador, an excited spectator leaped into Mexico City's Plaza Mexico arena to challenge the bull. Above, he executes a dangerous pass while on his knees as the charging animal thunders past. Often, young spectators, with no experience, but carried away by enthusiasm, leap into the ring. If they escape being gored, they are hauled off by the police for an automatic 15-day jail term or a $40 fine.

Yemen's Potential Riches Await Aid on Roads, Ports

HODEIDAH, Yemen (AP) — An American oil company may become the key to unlocking the hidden riches of the kingdom of Yemen, one of the world's most isolated countries.

Located in southwest Arabia along the Red Sea, Yemen is potentially rich in agriculture and minerals. Because of its isolation and lack of development capital, however, the country has remained undeveloped and its people deep in poverty. Yemen has no real roads, no modern seaport, and is sadly lacking in technical skills.

A big step toward tapping its own resources was made late in 1955, when the Imam Ahmed, King of Yemen, signed an exploration agreement with an American oil company. Walter Gabler, head of the Yemen Development Corp., as the company now is named, signed the agreement and began exploration in the high plateau of central Yemen.

SIGNS FAVORABLE — There are encouraging signs of oil in Yemen, but it is still unknown whether deposits exist in commercial quantities.

Yemen's territory is adjacent to Saudi Arabia, where an American oil company long ago struck it rich. The Yemen government is praying it will be as lucky as the Saudis, who now receive 230 million dollars yearly from oil.

If the oil experiment is successful, it will almost certainly lead to development in other fields. All over Yemen are signs of mineral wealth. Already, the Yemenites operate a primitive "steel industry" of their own. Every gentleman in Yemen wears a dagger whose steel blade is forged from Yemenite iron.

No exact analysis of Yemen's mineral wealth can be made, however, until teams of experts can get into the country and survey it.

RICH AGRICULTURAL AREA — As for agriculture, Yemen already is the richest area in the Arabian peninsula. Yemenites are among the world's best mountain farmers. They build beautiful rock terraces on the mountain slopes to prevent erosion.

When necessary, they move rich soil from one place to another to grow crops in a congenial climate.

Near Sukhna, farmers carry soil from the steaming hot coastal plain to a point on the rocky mountain slopes where climate and water are adequate for coffee production.

Yemen's highlands get abundant summer rains, and the whole area abounds in underground water resources. Experiments in growing citrus fruits, cotton and wheat have been highly successful. Yemen's mocha coffee is world famous. The country provides food for the British-controlled Aden protectorates to the south.

Yemen's highlands have an almost perfect climate, the heat of the tropical sun mitigated by the altitude and summer rains. In the distant future, a Yemen opened up to tourists might well become the Switzerland of Arabia.

1956 Fourth Best Year for U.S. Auto Industry

NEW YORK — In both passenger-car and total vehicle production, 1956 went into the record book as the fourth best year in history.

The American automotive industry produced 6,917,724 cars, trucks and buses in 1956 compared with a factory sales total of 9,169,276 in 1955.

Make Aerial Ladder for Maximum Safety

MATAWAN, N. J. — A semiautomatic aerial extension ladder has been developed for easy operation and maximum safety. Made by a Matawan concern, it features a flat, adjustable platform with floor space to work on. The operating mechanism consists of a large drum in which a windlass can be turned to extend the upper section and adjust the ladder up to 80 feet in height.

Tires Lead Rubber Use

AKRON, Ohio — Tire products account for 63 per cent of total rubber consumption in the United States.

Tire Can Resist Cold as Low as 65 Below

AKRON — An Akron tire manufacturer has developed specially compounded tires to meet the need for tubeless military aircraft tires that can withstand temperatures of 65 degrees below zero and lower.

Test tire casings, the manufacturer reports, underwent a 24-hour laboratory "soak" in which they were placed in a "cold box" where the temperature was lowered to 65 below. Then the frozen tires were placed on a dynamometer and landed at speeds of up to 200 miles an hour, simulating actual aircraft landing conditions.

An oil field discovered in Costa Rica, near the Panamanian border, may extend into Panama, San Jose learns.

It's Ellison, Not Edison Has Success With Bulb

BECKLEY, W. Va. — It would be hard to convince Mrs. E. L. Ellison that modern production methods turn out better materials than the old ones did.

Mrs. Ellison says she has used one light bulb on her front porch the last 40 years—and it still works.

FRIENDS OF THE FAMILY
A. The Bird From Mexico

Tommy had a present brought to him from Mexico, a beautiful yellow bird in a straw house. Painted over the doorway of the house were the words "Pajaro de Oro." That is pronounced "PAH-HA-ROW DAY OH-ROW" and means Bird of Gold.

Paste this picture down on cardboard and color with crayons. The straw house is a soft tan color with brown edges and is stitched with bright red cord, so that the straw is held firmly in place. The panels at the right and left sides are bright light blue. The bird is bright yellow.

Cut out the parts carefully. Make a door opening by cutting the sides and bottom on the dotted lines and fold back on the top dash line. The small sketch at the upper left shows a back view of how this panel opens into the bird house. Paste the seed bag along sides "A" and "B" after folding up the bottom section. Hang the seed bag outside the house by a bent pin through the indicated holes.

Attach the bird to the long strip with a fastener through the indicated holes at the section shown by the dotted lines. Cut out the slots at the sides of the house. Slip the long strip with the bird on it into the house and put the ends of the strip through the slots as shown in the small sketch at the lower right. Then you can pull the bird forward and his head will drop down into the seed bag.

Betty Anne Flowers of Kings Mountain, N. C., won $10 with this idea. Send your ideas in care of this newspaper. Violet Moore Higgins, AP Newsfeatures.)

Loses His Ear,
but Transplant
Works Miracle

BUTLER, Ky. (AP)—Ronald McElfresh, 17, hopes his old ear—the one he lost in a tractor accident—will be as good as new soon.

Thanks to a surgeon's skill, the ear is back on the youth's head, after being clipped off in the accident Oct. 16.

Somebody thought to take the ear along and the surgeon decided he would try to save it. He sewed the ear inside a fold in the youth's neck "to be nourished and brought back to health." Now it has been transplanted to its right place.

U.S. Tags $11,000,000 to Help Build Schools

WASHINGTON (INS)—The government has announced that more than 11 million dollars has been allocated to 65 school districts in 22 states to help build additional classrooms.

The program, in effect since the late 1940s, provides federal assistance for areas affected by a large influx of families connected with government projects—including military installations.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department's Office of Education said the new allocations of $11,062,121 brings to $36,131,039 the amount of funds earmarked for this purpose since July 1, 1956.

Bathtub Too Small, She Sulked

Sunburned Mabel Happy

PALOS VERDES ESTATES, Calif.—Mabel, the sunburned whale, is happy instead of sulky today.

The 1,500-pound mammal, captured recently off Santa Catalina Island, had been brooding in a tank at Marineland of the Pacific. Seems the tank was too shallow and Mabel's dorsal fin stuck up in the breezes and the sun. Attendants tried to soothe the sunburned fin with a zinc oxide ointment and they draped it with a burlap bag. But Mabel evidently was pretty uncomfortable. She sulked, and wouldn't eat.

The general manager, William F. Monahan, finally decided to move Mabel into the oceanarium's biggest tank, a 500,000-gallon oval job deep enough for her to submerge her sunburned fin.

The moving yesterday was quite an operation. Mabel was maneuvered onto a cradle of mattresses on a raft. The raft was trucked to the big pool. Mabel was hoisted 50 feet, then dunked into her giant bathtub.

Aquarist Dave Brown gave her an injection of vitamin B12, then a shot of a cocaine derivative to calm her down. Later he steered her around the pool a few times for orientation purposes.

Wife May Go to Jail, Entered Kitchen Early

HARROW, Eng. (INS)—An English divorce court had under consideration today a request from Joseph Tomas to send his wife Hilda to jail because she entered the kitchen 20 minutes too early. Tomas charged Hilda was guilty of contempt of the court which allowed him exclusive use of the kitchen from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. in the apartment they still share while a divorce is pending. Mrs. Tomas pleaded that her clock was fast.

In 1955, 160 persons were killed and 4,561 injured in Northern Ireland road accidents, Belfast reports. This compared with 150 killed and 3,954 injured in 1954.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The three Swartley-DiPaolo cousins all collected broken arms the same weekend.

Ronald Swartley, 15, tripped on a curve while roller skating; broken left arm. Jimmy DiPaolo, 2, in Palermo to operate vessels be- crashed from a rocking chair into a desk; broken right arm. Judy Swartley, 10, ran into trouble on an improvised slide; broken left arm. They went to the same doctor, too.

Lloyd Ito-Arabo, a new ship- ping company with Italian and Egyptian capital, has been formed in Palermo to operate vessels be- tween Beirut, Egyptian ports, Si- cily, Tunis and Casablanca.

Taxi and bus fares are up in Buenos Aires, following substantial increases in the price of gasoline and fuel oil in Argentina.

Decade Ago, Under Truman, U. S. Became Truly Internationalist

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years ago next week the United States said goodbye to the American tradition of isolation. In one day it became truly internationalist and assumed active leadership of the non-Communist world.

It was on March 10, 1947, that President Truman appealed to Congress for 400 million dollars in economic and military aid to Greece and Turkey to enable them to withstand the steady push of communism.

The idea of American help to European countries wrecked by the war was not new. What was new in American foreign policy was the principle laid down by the President, known now as the Truman Doctrine.

In brief he said: Communist conquest of any country anywhere was a danger to the United States and must be prevented. The program, started with Greece and Turkey, has been extended to other parts of the world. . . .

Since 1947 this country has put out more than 50 billion dollars in economic and military help to friendly and non-Communist countries. The Marshall Plan, help on a huge scale, was started in 1947. Then followed military alliances the main ones being in Europe — the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — and in Asia the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

In addition, this country has ringed Russia with American military bases in friendly countries. The policy laid down by Truman, military and economic, is still the policy followed by President Eisenhower.

Truman laid down his policy at a time when Communist guerrillas were trying to overthrow the Greek government and Turkey was under pressure from her northern neighbor, Russia.

"I believe," he said, "it must be the policy of the United States to support free folks who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures. . . .

"Totalitarian regimes imposed on free peoples, by direct or indirect aggression, undermine the foundations of international peace and hence the security of the United States."

If President Franklin Roosevelt had adopted the same policy—that totalitarian conquest of any country was a danger to the United States—Hitler might have been stopped and World War II averted.

But Roosevelt—until events in Europe and the Japanese attack on Hawaii forced this country into war—followed the long tradition of American isolationism laid down by President Monroe on Dec. 2, 1823.

The Monroe Doctrine said in effect to the rest of the world outside North and South America: You stay out of affairs in our hemisphere, and we'll stay out of yours.

That was the policy pretty much followed by this country until World War II.

After the experience of that war, it rushed back into isolationism and remained there until the realization that the world had shrunk and some international cooperation to maintain peace was needed. For that reason it joined the United Nations in 1945.

Between 1945 and 1947, while the United States gave help to Russia, But Stalin, looking on the war, it was still hoping it was possible to live in peace with the Truman Doctrine thus was the result of despair that Russia would be a peaceful neighbor and of the realization that this country had to assert leadership or ultimately expect to find itself surrounded by communism.

It takes

It takes a giant transformer to step up electric power, and it takes a giant medium to step up sales power. That medium is the daily newspaper, a giant that lives in every town.

The amount of sales power you get out of an advertising medium depends on its coverage, availability, readership (or listenership or viewership), flexibility and believability.

Ingredients like these can transform an ad campaign into a profit for the retailer, wholesaler, distributor, or manufacturer. And newspapers have these ingredients in abundance.

With newspapers, you can reach just about every prospect for your merchandise. You can gear your advertising to the weather, to readers' special interests, to time, to place — to suit your own convenience. And best of all — newspapers are the action medium.

That's why all advertisers invested over $3,305,000,000* in newspapers last year — more than in TV, radio, magazines and outdoor combined.

Step right up and step up your sales power. Use the daily newspaper.

All business is local... and so are all newspapers.

Motors Spark in Race of Ancients

NEW YORK (AP) — Motorists traveling certain Eastern highways late in April will think time has reversed itself.

Chugging along these roads will be 20 ancient automobiles — 10 of them flying small American flags, the rest British standards.

These ancient cars will be competing in what has been billed as the "world series" of antique auto racing. American old car owners challenged the British to the race, and the British confidently accepted.

The race will begin April 23 in New York and wind up at the same spot seven days and 500 miles later. In between, the autos will puff over a six-state course which includes rugged hills and twisting stretches designed to test both the venerable vehicles and their drivers, most of whom are more than 40 years old.

5 CARS TO A TEAM

Each team will consist of five "Edwardian" cars — those manufactured between 1906 and 1916 — and five "Vintage" cars of the 1916 — 1930 period. Each will carry the driver and one passenger — usually a very patient and understanding wife.

Robert S. Kilbourne II, president of the Veterans Motor Car Club of America, says each car will be clocked daily during the trial. Competitors will be required to maintain speeds of between 25 and 35 miles an hour, losing points for arriving too late or too early at check points along the route.

Overnight check points will include Baltimore, Reading, Pa., Princeton, N. J., Thompsonville and New London, Conn., and Southampton, N. Y.

HILL CLIMB INCLUDED

Several grueling side tests will be put to the autos along the way. In Princeton, for example, there will be a hill climb test. There also will be stopping and re-starting tests; a sharp turn test, parking tests and a concours d'elegance.

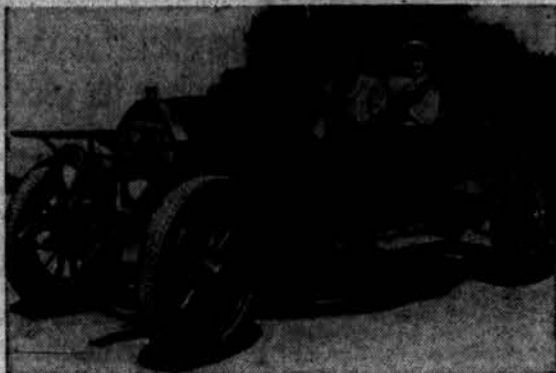

The latter is a kind of beauty contest in which cars are judged for condition of engine, chassis and body, originality and general appearance.

Points will be given each car and at the end of the race the points will be totaled and a trophy awarded the winning team.

Refurbishing old cars is a hobby that came into its own after World War II in both Britain and the United States. Races have been held in both countries, but this is the first time the best cars of the two nations have competed.

POPULAR HOBBY

In the United States there are an estimated 15,000 antique car owners. Most of them buy the car for a small price and spend a lot of money fixing it. Some have spent as much as $10,000 on one car.

Among the most rabid enthusiasts in America are Henry Austin Clark Jr. of Glen Cove, N. Y., and Edgar L. Roy, a Roxbury, Mass., manufacturer. Both will be in the April race.

Clark, 39, will be the youngest man in the race. He will drive a 1916 Pierce Arrow, one of 250 old cars he has in a collection which he houses in a museum.

Roy estimates he has put in 3,000 hours getting his 1911 Simplex in shape for the contest. He painted and upholstered it, installed new gears and reconstructed the wheels. He's expecting big things from his auto when he pits it against the likes of a 1910 Silver Ghost Rolls-Royce and a 1914 Prince Henry Vauhall, two of the cars which will be brought here by the Vintage Sports Car Club of Great Britain.

Night Radio Program Scares Deer Away

DENVER — The human voice is said to be more terrifying to deer than even the baying of hounds. Some orchardists are putting this fact to use in protecting their trees by installing in their fields radios tuned to all-night disc-jockey programs. A small battery-operated set is said to protect a 10-acre field.

Death of English Babies Baffles Town's Doctors

CHELTEMHAM, Eng. (INS) — The British Ministry of Health was called upon today to investigate the mystery of the tiny babies of Cheltenham.

Doctors in the fashionable spa and market town for the county of Gloucestershire noted that the infant mortality rate in Cheltenham is 29 per thousand births compared to 20 in the remainder of the county and 23 in the whole of Britain.

One reason for the high mortality rate, they said, was the exceptionally large number of premature births in the town, many of the babies weighing less than 3 pounds, 4 ounces.

The doctors said they were baffled by the problem.

American Bomb Removed From Bay

MONTE CARLO (INS) — A live American aerial bomb which has reposed on the bottom of Monaco Harbor for the past 12 years was hauled ashore today and disarmed by French naval technicians.

The 250-pound bomb was discovered yesterday by a diver on the harbor bottom about midway between anchorages for the yachts of Prince Rainier and multi-millionaire Anastas Oussis.

The harbor was bombed by U.S. planes in 1944. Immediately after the war, technicians scoured the harbor removing allied bombs and German mines but somehow missed the one that was brought up today.

Assures Action on Civil Rights

Hennings Says Group to Open Way for Vote at Senate Session

WASHINGTON (INS) — Senator Thomas C. Hennings (D-Mo.), today promised early action on a civil rights bill by his judiciary subcommittee and said that no further hearings are necessary.

Fast action by Hennings' civil rights subcommittee would open the way for consideration of the bill by the full judiciary committee and a possible Senate vote before the closing days of the session.

Hennings' group began hearings on civil rights measures Feb. 14 with testimony from Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., and heard its last witness Tuesday.

The senator stressed that 24 of 45 witnesses who appeared were opposed to the measures, and added:

"I feel that we conscientiously heard all the opponents of the legislation who were willing to come forward and be heard; and that consequently, there is absolutely no need whatsoever for further hearings..."

Hennings said: "I am confident that we can get a meaningful civil rights proposal reported out of the subcommittee very soon and acted upon favorably by the full committee."

Last year's civil rights bill died in the rush of Senate business shortly before Congress adjourned.

The Missouri senator said that upon completion of the rights measure, his subcommittee will schedule hearings on freedom of information and government secrecy.

U. S. Feared New Attack by Egypt Against Israel

WASHINGTON (INS) — The United Nations emergency forces moved there. It was also learned that the U.S. informed Israel, during discussions on the Gulf of Aqaba, that neither the U.S. nor the U.N. could prevent Egypt from again mounting coastal guns along the Straits of Tiran.

Before the Israelis captured gun positions, the Egyptians had effectively blocked the Straits of Tiran to Israeli shipping. Israeli apprehension that this will happen again delayed the troop pull-out.

Dulles, they said, never believed Egypt would attempt a full-scale operation against the Israeli troops in the Gaza Strip or along the Gulf of Aqaba. He did believe, however, that guerrilla bands, composed mainly of trained Egyptian soldiers, would ambush, snipe and harass the Israelis if the withdrawal did not take place as promised.

Reports from Gaza yesterday of Arab attacks on Israeli forces caused some U.S. officials to fear such a large-scale guerrilla war was breaking out. But their fears were quickly calmed when the Israelis reported they had the situation well in hand.

DULLES DECLINED Despite this fear, Dulles last Saturday declined to give Israel further assurances to hasten the withdrawal.

Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban requested these extra promises from Dulles during an emergency meeting Saturday afternoon. At that time, the Israeli government appeared on the verge of renouncing its pledge to pull the troops out of Gaza and Aqaba.

Eban asked Dulles for a U.S. promise that Egypt would not be allowed to move troops back into Gaza once Israel evacuated and

Successor to Non-Existent Romanian Throne

Obscure Parisian Ruled King's Heir

PARIS (INS) — An unemployed Parisian bookbinder's assistant became today the legal heir to a non-existent throne and the vanished fortune of the late King Carol of Romania.

But from this day on, Mircea Lambrino, son of a beautiful Russian cabaret dancer and the one-time king, is entitled to call himself Prince Carol Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen.

How much money the title is worth is a matter of dispute.

Paris newspapers estimated the "prince" would share with ex-king Michael, Carol's son by a second marriage, in a fortune worth several hundred thousand dollars.

Michael's London representative, Gen. Petre Laza, commented: "I'm afraid Lambrino will be disappointed. There is no fortune."

Whatever the fortune, Lambrino's right to share in it was upheld by a Paris civil court which reviewed a 1935 Lisbon court decision ruling that the 37-year-old workingman was Carol's legitimate heir.

Michael had claimed Lambrino lost his rights when Carol's 1918 marriage to Jeanne "Zizi" Lambrino was annulled by a Romanian court "by reason of its clandestinity."

The most valuable evidence in the case was a bundle of his mother's tattered love letters tied with a pink ribbon. The letters all were signed by Carol.

LIVES WITH SON Lambrino, a dark, moustachioed double for the late king, lives with his eight-year-old son, Paul, in a tiny apartment. His wife is seeking a divorce.

Lambrino, who is counting on getting a large sum of money, said he had no definite plans for using the inheritance except to "educate my boy properly."

He celebrated his court victory with a modest bottle of wine.

Shortly after Lambrino's birth, Carol had his secret marriage to Zizi annulled so that he could marry Princess Helen of Greece, who later gave birth to Michael. In 1925, Carol renounced his rights to the throne and went into exile with Magda Lupescu, whom he finally married in 1947, six years before his death.

In 1930, anti-fascists installed Carol as king and he ruled with dictatorial power for ten years until the Nazis forced him to abdicate in favor of Michael, then 19, who in turn was forced to flee in 1947 by the Communists.

Plan Tornado Detection Net

U. of M. Meeting Step in Starting Statewide Warning System

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The initial step for setting up a tornado observation and warning network in Michigan was taken Tuesday at a meeting at the University of Michigan.

The session was called to form "a wider, more effective and more integrated" system for detecting, tracking and reporting tornadoes. It resulted in the establishment of a small working committee to suggest a coordinated plan of action.

The committee, comprised of representatives from the U. S. Weather Bureau, Michigan State Police and Office of Civil Defense, is headed by state climatologist A. H. Eichmeier. It is scheduled to meet later this week in Lansing.

The meeting was sponsored by the Southeastern Michigan branch of the American Meteorological Society.

The network also would involve so-called "ham" radio operators, University radar experts and meteorologists, the Red Cross and Michigan Sheriffs Assn.

The representatives discussed a well coordinated network covering the southern half of the Lower Peninsula with tornado spotters set up every few miles. At the same time, radar stations could be on the alert for severe storms.

Information from ground and radar observers would be relayed to the weather bureau, and the public notified.

Bob Considine Says:

Duke Outshines Capital Celebrities

NEW YORK (INS)—The Duke of Windsor was invited by a close friend in the publishing field to attend the famed Gridiron dinner the other night in Washington. It would be an easy, pleasant evening for him, the former King was promised, no head-table pressures.

Then, at more or less the last moment, President Eisenhower decided that he had better not attend, what with the hacking cough that has bothered him for some weeks.

It left a big empty chair on the date next to club president and teamster Marquis Childs, who was flanked on the other side by Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Would the duke be a good fellow and sit in, at this 11th hour? He had looked forward to the informality of a table on the floor, where he would sit with such interesting people as Bill Knowland, Jack Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Harry Byrd, Jim Hagerty, Dick

Berlin and others he knew or wanted to meet.

But he said he was honored, and immediately provided at the head table another world-known face in place of the missing one. If Stanley Baldwin dissented, he did so inaudibly.

GENUINE FONDNESS

We've always felt that there has been a genuine fondness for Windsor in this country which may date back to the days when Will Rogers used to poke gentle fun at him for falling off horses but always eased around to mentioning that the then Prince of Wales got up out of the dirt and climbed back on the beast.

The country rooted for him through the historic crisis in his life as King, welcomed him as a part-time resident when he had dutifully and diligently performed the tasks his nation assigned to him after the war. It gained a closer knowledge of him through his writings and, more recently, his wife's story.

The Gridiron dinner invariably attracts the most outstanding list of guests at any dinner given annually in the U. S. It is, in all probability, the least celebrity-conscious gathering in the land, for a vast percentage of those in attendance are celebrities in their own right.

Cabinet officers, Supreme Court justices, top generals and admirals, famed diplomats, tycoons, labor leaders, Nobel and Pulitzer Prize winners, etc., etc.

But at the mention of the Duke's name by Marquis Childs the room rose as a man—a comparatively rare occurrence—to applaud with enthusiasm and affection.

EXTRAORDINARY GIFT

Later, at a party in one of the Statler suites, Windsor stood around for two hours talking on whatever subject a newcomer would bring to him when introduced.

He has the extraordinary gift of being interested in what the next fellow has to say, and in the fellow's job, hopes, failures, life and times. Britain has no better port-folioless ambassador.

Insiders say the President's cough is really a burden on him. He keeps a box of cleaning tissues near him at all times. Obviously, he doesn't agree with anybody who says it's just a cold. "It's a cough and it settles in my lungs," he said recently.

With the Israeli-Egyptian feud simmering instead of blazing, he should quit talking about going to the sunshine of Phoenix and go there. When he meets with Prime Minister Macmillan later this month in sunny Bermuda, he should play golf each morning or afternoon.

He is the only President we've ever had who seems asked to apologize for trying to stay in the physical and mental condition needed to run the most complex business in history.

Ohio Would Buy Michigan Land Close to Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (INS)—Ohio wants to buy part of Michigan.

Specifically, Ohio wants Michigan's "lost peninsula"—a 308-acre tract of land near Toledo.

Ohio representatives introduced a bill in the legislature that would empower Governor O'Neill and his director of public works to dicker with Governor Williams for the land—the tip of a thumb formed where the Ottawa River flows into Maumee Bay.

Unless you are a bird or a fish, the only way for Michigan residents to enter the peninsula is through Ohio.

Apparently the Toledoans see the land as an important front for shoreline development for recreation.

The land in question was given to Michigan at the end of the old Michigan-Ohio war. Strangely, Michigan went to "war" against Ohio in 1835 not for the upper peninsula, but for a strip along the northern border of what is now Ohio, including the city of Toledo.

Fred Knorr Appointed

DETROIT (INS)—Detroit Baseball Co. President Fred A. Knorr, was appointed today as general chairman of the 1957 Cancer Crusade to be conducted during April in Southeastern Michigan.

Chevrolet Wins Coveted Manufacturers' Trophy at Daytona Beach as "best performing U. S. automobile"!

Want facts, not claims, about performance?

Then look at the official figures from NASCAR's* internationally famous Daytona Beach competition for stock cars. Here's what you'll find: Chevrolet, in two weeks of blistering competition, proved itself as America's Number One performance car. Nothing in the low-price field could touch it. No other car, regardless of price, scored such a sweep. And Chevy walked away with the famous Manufacturers' Trophy, hands down!

Let's look at the record, the unvarnished figures:

FLYING MILE (two-way run)

CLASS FOUR (six-cylinder class)
Chevrolet—1, 2, 3; Car A—4; Chevrolet—5!

CLASS FIVE (low-priced V8's)
Chevrolet—1st (new class record)—and winner of every place in the top 10!

ACCELERATION (one mile from standing start)

CLASS FOUR (six-cylinder class)
Car Y—1; Chevrolet—2, 3, 4, 5!

CLASS FIVE (low-priced V8's)

Chevrolet—1st (new class record)—and every place in the first 18!

Even more significant was the special competition for the "Big Three"—the contest for cars in the low-price field, single-carburetor V8's equipped with automatic transmissions. This is the most popular kind of car Americans buy. Take a look at the results:

"BIG THREE" CLASS (flying mile)

Chevrolet—1, 2, 3; Car A—4; Chevrolet—5!

The 1957 Chevrolet is, by all odds, the most astonishing performer ever produced in the low-price field. Daytona proves it. And you can sample it for yourself at your Chevrolet dealership.

Anxiety Causes Nightmares, Not Bedtime Snack

DENVER (INS) — The Colorado State Medical Society says nightmares are not caused by pre-bedtime sausage munching but rather are fears and anxieties breaking through mental defenses lulled by sleep.

The Society says children and adults daily cope with a wide variety of anxieties, major and minor. Usually, persons perform well in mastering these fears.

But, the Society points out, when sleep comes, conflicts which have been consciously controlled during the day assert themselves in dreams — dreams which may have no relation to the anxiety itself.

That's why dragons and polar bears sometime populate these disturbing interludes.

Society officials say bad dreams now and then should not provoke undue alarm. However, they stress, if nightmares are too violent, occur too regularly or if the same ogres appear over and over again, a psychiatric diagnosis could be required.

The Society offers two suggestions aimed at halting these nightmare visits of disguised fears. Children should not be frightened at bedtime; adults should not allow themselves to become overfatigued. Severe fatigue, doctors assert, lowers the ability of the consciousness to cope with stresses which may eventually wind up as bad dreams.

Non-Smoking Climber Challenges Puffers Again

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (INS) — Dr. Arne Suominen, 55-year-old non-smoker who defeated smokers in a Pike's Peak climb last year, is challenging cigaret, pipe and cigar men again.

The Del Ray, Fla., doctor wants to wrestle any six Colorado Springs policemen-smokers, of course. Dr. Suominen says the bouts would be a "scientific" test for the "welfare of the people." He stipulated only one regulation: The officers must weigh less than 160 pounds.

1 Million Paris Visitors. See Versailles Palace

PARIS — Versailles, the grandiose palace of Louis XIV on the outskirts of Paris, is the most popular landmark in France. Close to one million visitors wandered through its ornate interior in 1956. Runners-up in Paris itself include the Louvre Museum, Napoleon's Arc de Triomphe, Sainte-Chapelle and Notre Dame.

Hi-Fi? Its High Volume Causes Big High Fright

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Nine persons were evacuated from an apartment building when a loud rumbling gave rise to fears that the furnace was about to explode. When nothing happened, an investigation showed that a 3-year-old boy had set off the panic by turning on a television set—with the volume as high as it would go.

Castles With Ghosts,
Hoary Rites, Beckon

LONDON—Ghosts haunt many a castle in England. Both Windsor Castle and Hampton Court have three phantoms apiece. The ghost of Jane Seymour, who died when her son Edward VI was born, is said to haunt Hampton Court, along with such other spirits as Catherine Howard, Henry VIII's fifth wife, and Sibel Penn, Edward VI's nurse.

The mad King George III stalks the corridors of Windsor, the ghost of Elizabeth I occasionally appears in the library, while a mysterious hunter, known as Herne, turns up in the park.

Every night at 9:50, the Tower of London gates are locked by the chief warder. Returning from locking the Barrier Gate, the Chief Warder is challenged by the sentry below the Bloody Tower. "Halt! Who comes there?" The Warder replies, "The Keys." "Whose Keys?" "Queen Elizabeth's Keys." "Pass Queen Elizabeth's Keys," whereupon the Warder answers, "God preserve Queen Elizabeth," to which the Guard and Escort reply: "Amen!" Tourists can obtain a permit to witness the age-old Ceremony of the keys.

Why Wait Till Last Minute

BALTIMORE (U)—It was long after Christmas but a receptacle on a pole still was labeled "Santa's Mail Box" in the Woodmoor section. A small boy reached up and dropped two letters into it.

Organized Tours
Very Popular for Trips to Europe

NEW YORK — The majority of Americans who go abroad in 1957 will seek the aid and comfort of a travel agent when it comes to reservations. Close to one-half of all Europe-bound vacationers, statistics reveal, prefer organized tours free of details and money worries. A man can set off for Europe nowadays with a book of coupons covering every expense down to that last gondola ride on the Grand Canal.

Never before have tours to Europe come in such an assortment of sizes, shapes and prices.

There are art, music and garden tours, farm tours, mountain-climbing tours and even bow and arrow safaris for the individualist.

More conventional tours average from a 15-day excursion through the British Isles for $569, all-inclusive to a 44-day Grand Tour of 10 countries for $1,288, all-inclusive.

One-third of the Americans bound for Europe, according to a survey of travel agents' bookings, are repeat visitors, who will do their touring off-the-beaten track. Travelers who once spent most of their vacation in London, Paris and Rome are now fanning out into the countryside. As a result, there will be more free hotel space in the big towns.

Ripe for "discovery" are such areas as England's Cornish Riviera, Sardinia, and Germany's North Sea resorts.

Texas Police Hit on Plan to Foil Auto Hubcap Thief

DALLAS, Tex. (INS) — Southwest police from Texas to California believe they have hit upon a plan which will soothe one of their biggest headaches — the even-growing auto hubcap theft racket.

This lucrative theft business has been a difficult problem for police across the country simple because hubcaps usually are not marked in any way and cannot be traced or identified.

Such thefts may seem like boyish pranks to some but not to the person who has his caps stolen and has to replace them at an average cost of $9 each.

An authoritative estimate of the yearly national loss from hubcap thefts is $17,000,000 or more than one-third of the $50,000,000 lost in thefts of all car parts and accessories.

URGES MARKS

It is because of this that officers are urging that hubcaps as well as other auto parts and accessories be marked with the license plate or engine number of the car to which it belongs.

The marking is done, usually at service stations cooperating with the police, with an electric pencil-like apparatus which etches numbers, letters or symbols into the metal. It is a relatively simple matter to identify stolen parts thus marked once they come into the hands of the authorities.

Phoenix was one of the first major cities in the Southwest to adopt the marking program. Police of the Arizona city say there was a marked decline in parts and accessory losses 30 days after the program started.

653 IN MONTH

In Texas, San Antonio Police Chief George Bichsel said that in one month alone there were 653 hubcaps stolen in his city. And that is not surprising, Bichsel said, "when you think that the average value is $9 apiece."

Chief Bichsel said a big reason for the racket is the ease with which the stealing is done.

"All a thief needs," the officer said, "is a screwdriver or a piece of steel and he is in business."

"You can catch a thief with his car trunk loaded with hubcaps," Bichsel said, "and can't make a case against him because you can't identify them. Even when a thief confesses you have a weak case in court."

In San Antonio a chain of filling stations are marking caps free of charge in cooperation with the police. Similar programs are underway in Dallas and Tyler in Texas as well as Phoenix and Los Angeles.

Law Gets Their Goats

SANTA FE, N.M. (U)—Gov. Edwin Mechem has signed a "billy goat law," which takes from the goats freedom they have had since the days of the Spanish. The bill makes it unlawful to let goats stray at large in towns and villages.

Hospital Space Seriously Short

Construction to Rise to $775 Million in '57; Many Areas in Need

CHICAGO (INS)—Hospital construction work in the United States during 1957 will rise to an estimated $775,000,000, but one public health official maintains it still isn't enough.

Dr. John W. Cronin, assistant surgeon general, U. S. Public Health Service, says federal and Ford Foundation allotments are factors in the predicted rise over the 1956 probable total of $640,000,000.

Writing in the January issue of Hospitals, Journal of the American Hospital Association, Dr. Cronin said even 1957's stepped-up construction rate is not sufficient to eliminate hospital needs in the United States. He added:

"Recent studies show that a level three times the present volume would have to be undertaken on a sustained basis for the next decade, after the necessary stepping-up period, in order to eliminate all present shortages and keep up with new population growth... such a goal... raises major problems of willingness to spend on the necessary scale."

Dr. Cronin said the nation still has 160 areas containing 2.5 million persons with no acceptable hospital facilities. He added:

"And about 25 million people live in areas which provide less than 50 per cent of their general hospital needs."

New Treatment Ends Agony of Cancer

By EDWIN DIAMOND
INS Science Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (INS)—A University of Texas medical team today reported a spinal injection of raw alcohol knocks out the unbearable agony of cancer.

Their finding, important for cancer, may have application also in rheumatism, and other diseases where pain is a factor.

The effect, from just a few drops of alcohol, lasted as long as six months before a second injection was required.

They said the alcohol apparently "dries out" the nerve pathways and blocks the transmission of pain feelings to the brain. It is as if a storm were to knock down telephone line communications between two points.

The method apparently is so perfected that Dr. Derrick is able to knock out the pain pathways without affecting sense, motion and other nerve pathways.

This means, for example, the patient would have full use of a limb while the pain associated with the limb is desisted.

While the injection obviously does not act on the cancerous growth itself in any way, it does offer hope to many of the annual 250,000 cancer victims and their families that cancer's seige need not be a time of agony.

The Texas doctors told the 11th annual cancer symposium of the University of Texas' M. D. Anderson Hospital in Houston that the technique had given very good results in 76 out of 81 cases because the alcoholic pain-killer is easily administered, presents no dangers and can be repeated with no complications.

The development was hailed as superior to the two present methods of easing cancer pain—narcotics and surgery.

NARCOTICS DISAPPOINTING

Narcotics have proved disappointing as a pain killer because the patient always develops a certain "tolerance" to drugs and requires more and more massive doses with progressively less and less relief.

Eventually, the patient may become an addict.

Surgery is sometimes considered dangerous to the already weakened cancer victim.

Dr. Derrick described the alcoholic shot procedure this way: The cancer patient is placed on his stomach. A needle is inserted between the bones and cartilage of the spine and into the spinal cord. The site of pain—leg, arm, back, pelvis, stomach, chest—determines where the injection is made.

Generally speaking, the higher the pain site, the higher the location of the injection along the spinal cord.

Dr. Derrick said the entire procedure takes about one hour, with some 10 minutes consumed in carefully "positioning" the patient so that the blocking can be made accurately. Another 45 minutes is required to keep the patient still so as not to spread the alcohol to other nerves.

Grimes' Murder Suspect Kills Self

CHICAGO (INS)—A 25-year-old man shot and killed himself last night when police took him to his room on Chicago's north side to search for evidence in the Grimes murder case.

The suspect, David Burch was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital in nearby Evanston.

Police said they were seeking evidence in the slaying of Barbara Grimes, 15, and her sister, Patricia, 13, whose nude and frozen bodies were found Jan. 22 in suburban Willow Springs.

Burch was arrested on the north side by detectives Thomas Mulvey and James Fitzgerald who said they found obscene literature in his pockets.

Police had been combing the area for known sex deviates in their search for clues in the Grimes murders.

When Burch arrived in his room, police said, he lurched toward a dresser drawer, drew out a pistol and shot himself.

Police said Burch had been arrested in 1952 and charged with a crime against nature. He was placed under court supervision.

Motorized Snow Plow First Used in 1922

BOSTON — Motor-driven equipment was first used in the United States for removal of snow from highways in the winter of 1922-23. At that time some 27,000 miles of snow-covered road was opened to travel by State highway departments using mechanized equipment.

Previously the major part of the snow-removal work was performed by wooden plows drawn by horses, or with hand shovels.

24 Toll Roads in U. S.

CHICAGO — There are 24 toll roads, covering 1,901 miles, in operation in the United States, 17 are under construction or financed, and 39 are authorized.

Italian Star Supports Piccioni Testimony

VENICE (UP)—Italian film star Alida Valli testified today Gianpiero Piccioni was with her in Amalfi the day Wilma Montesi disappeared from Rome. The actress said she and the jazz pianist returned to the Italian capital the next day, the day before Wilma's body was found.

Piccioni, the son of a former foreign minister, is being tried on manslaughter charges in Wilma's death. He previously had testified that he was with Miss Valli at the time.

Wilma's body was found April 11, 1953, on the beach near Ostia, Rome seaside resort. The prosecution charges she died at or after a drug and sex orgy and that Piccioni abandoned her on the beach, believing her dead. Other defendants include Ugo Montagna, man about Rome, who is accused of helping Piccioni cover up the case.

WHO CARES? — Looking off into the distance with complete indifference, this Parisian stone lady appears unruffled by the fellow working on her face with hammer and chisel. The figure, a fixture on Paris' Alexander III Bridge, is being readied for a forthcoming visit from the British Royal Family.

Wife Must Learn to Accentuate the Negative

Photography Fan Loses Perspective

By PHYLLIS HATTELL

NEW YORK (INS)—Photographers—as anyone who has giggled “cheese” at their command knows—are a brash breed unto themselves.

Whether they're newscameras or just one of your crazy candid friends, it's all the same. With a camera in hand, a man considers that he rules the world about him, and oddly enough he does.

With deadly fear of the camera, most people become puppets of the lord with the light meter, some humble in silent within them saying “obey,” as though the box were loaded with TNT instead of Tri-X.

Fortified by the weakness of his slaves, the cameraman becomes ever stronger and more confident as life goes on. His spirits rise with each snap of the shutter, and his ego improves with every negative at proper exposure.

Soon, he is so inflated with the importance of his position that he is likely to stop saying “please” after he tells you to climb up to the third branch of a tree and pose as an acorn.

The next step finds him buying a projector and screen, which will allow him to hold captive all who can be lured into his lair.

GREATEST MASTER

When a man gets to this stage, he feels—at least subconsciously—that there is nothing for him but to be the greatest master of them all. Creeping confidence has spread throughout his system and finally touched both his heart and his head.

It is at this juncture that a photographer becomes a menace, in a minor way of course, to the established patterns of social behavior.

Overladen with cockiness and whimsy, he is likely to forget his job, his wife and his stockbroker, and invest all the family funds in films, filters and imported cameras with built-in light meters and variegated lenses. He is in the advanced stages of photophilia.

You can generally recognize an acute photophilic by looking into his eyes. One of them will squint back.

You can also spot a “gone” photographer by watching him work. No longer interested in girls or landscapes, he may be observed lying prone in grass, taking a reading on a dewdrop, or hanging from a rafter trying to capture the flavor of a sow at lunch.

OWNS THE SUN

In moments of high creation, he owns the sun and knows how to make it do tricks for him, and when he takes his camera to the beach, the oyster is his world at 2.8 and a 60th.

Sometimes he is so ecstatic at the sight of a cigar butt interestingly lighted that he shakes. This tends to quiver the camera, but that's all right too. “It gives movement, makes haze,” he says cryptically.

He sits for hours in semi-darkened rooms loading film, and when the family takes a trip the wife is allowed only three dresses and one pair of shoes, because the photophilic needs the weight allowance for his equipment.

Now is the time, when the woman realizes that her husband's money and mind are almost gone, when she must decide what to do.

She by now has a photophobia and longs for the days when her husband talked to her—even if the conversation went “go smell that daisy and hurry, the sun's going.” In self-defense, should she get a divorce? Or a camera of her own?

At the National Photographic Show recently it was announced that camera enthusiasts are increasing at record rates. Guess most beleaguered women have decided to accentuate the negative and stand by.

Tale of Terror Wins Divorce From Patrolman

BOSTON (U)—Mrs. Grace Gordon was granted a divorce from her patrolman husband after she testified in court he played Russian roulette—with her head as the target.

She testified her husband, Charles, pointed his service revolver at her one morning “and I told him that's how accidents could happen.”

“He laughed at me,” she testified, “and said it wasn't loaded. Then he put a couple of bullets in the gun and held it to my head. He clicked the trigger. I was terrified.”

The patrolman denied her story.

Most Passengers Male in U.S. Airline Travel

WASHINGTON (INS)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration says that domestic scheduled airlines carry three times as many men as women. The CAA also notes that of the estimated 46 million passengers that traveled in U. S. domestic and international airlines during 1956, between two and eight per cent were children.

HONOR CYPRIOT—Greece has issued this new postage stamp, honoring Makarios III, Archbishop of Cyprus. A militant leader of the Cypriot drive for union with Greece, he was exiled by the British. Ironically, the stamp features a 1907 declaration by Sir Winston Churchill expressing sympathy toward a Cypriot-Greek union.

New Technique in Heart Surgery

Canadian Raises Hope for Coronary Victims by Recent Operations

LOS ANGELES (INS)—A noted heart specialist has reported that a novel new surgical technique offers greatly increased hope of survival for persons who have been stricken by coronary clots.

Dr. Owen H. Wangenstein, head of surgery at the University of Minnesota Medical School, described the new technique in a forum of some 450 surgeons in Los Angeles.

Dr. Wangenstein said an operation devised by Dr. Arthur Vineberg, of Montreal, Can., diverts the internal mammary artery—which runs near the heart—to give an extra supply of blood to the heart.

Dr. Vineberg's method is to force the loose end of the mammary artery into the scarred area of the heart where a clot has occurred. The blood from the artery is absorbed by the heart and there becomes enough blood to permeate all areas of the heart.

Dr. Wangenstein, in discussing Dr. Vineberg's technique, explained that when a coronary clot strikes a person, the flow of blood to the affected part of the heart is greatly reduced or stopped. Thus his heart is weakened and may be unable to survive another attack.

Dr. Vineberg's treatment, as used in some 50 cases, has shown promise of largely overcoming the reduced blood supply problem in the hearts of coronary sufferers.

Paper Making Unions Form Large Merger

CHICAGO (U)—Two of the largest unions in the paper making industry have merged for the first successful move of its type since the AFL and CIO combined in 1955.

Yesterday's voting combined the United Paperworkers of America (UPA) and the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers (IBPM). Their total membership of 130,000 will be known as the United Papermakers and Paperworkers.

The UPA, former CIO affiliate, claims 55,000 members in the United States, mostly fabricators of paper containers. The IBPM, a former AFL union, claims 75,000 members in the U. S. and Canada. They are exclusively paper makers.

Executive boards of both unions had approved the move before yesterday's vote by delegates made it official. Delegates of the IBPM voted 358 to 191 for ratification of the merger, while UPA delegates voted almost unanimously for the merger.

The new union will be headed by Paul Phillips of Albany, N. Y., president of the IBPM. Harry Sayre, Arlington, Va., president of the UPA, will be executive vice president.

Roman, 19, came through it all calmly. He and his mother were survivors of the Andrea Doria-Stockholm maritime disaster.

House OKs Hike for State Posts

Bills Head for Senate After Boost Approved for Top Officials

LANSING (U)—Bills to boost the salaries of the governor and other top elected officials were headed for the Senate today after overwhelming approval in the House. Only the lieutenant governor was left out yesterday in the move to pay the governor and his administrative board another $5,000 a year.

The lower chamber defeated a proposal by Edward M. Jeffries (D-Detroit) to raise the lieutenant governor's salary as a member of the administrative board from $3,500 to $11,000. The post also pays him $5,000 annually as president of the Senate.

Under the pay bills, the governor's salary would go up from $22,500 to $27,500 a year. Other members of his administrative board, such as the attorney general and highway commissioner, would get $17,500.

Democratic-sponsored amendments which would have given the governor $35,000 and the administrative board $20,000 all were rejected.

The lawmakers voted immediate effect for bills to raise the salaries of the highway commissioner and the state superintendent of public instruction. Both those officials will be chosen at the April 1 election. The governor and all others would get their increases starting Jan. 1, 1959.

Not Candidate in '60 —Lyndon Johnson

CHICAGO (INS) — Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) says he will not be a candidate for the 1960 presidential nomination but plans to serve out his term as majority leader of the Senate.

Johnson, whose Senate term runs four more years, told newsmen in Chicago that "I am not a candidate for anything," adding:

"I have all I can do to handle (majority leader) responsibilities."

Asked if the 1960 Democratic candidate should come from the southwest, Johnson replied: "I do not believe in sectionalism. We are a national party."

On the subject of the drought which has plagued several southwest states in recent years, Johnson remarked that there has been "a great deal of conversation, a great deal of publicity and a number of trips" made to the area by Eisenhower administration leaders. But he declared:

"No really effective program has been offered."

The lawmaker asserted that the only really effective program offered so far has been vehemently opposed by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson.

Asked his opinion of the agriculture secretary, Johnson replied: "Benson is just about as effective for the farmer as President Hoover was for the country."

May Suspend Owner's License at Portland Club

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS) — Nathan Zisman may lose his license to operate the Desert Room, a Portland night spot, as a result of testimony given before a Senate labor racket investigating committee in Washington.

The Portland city council today directed the city attorney to cite Zisman to show cause why his license should not be revoked. The council's action was instigated by Commissioner Stanley W. Earl, who said testimony at the Senate hearing had disclosed the presence of "undesirables," including madams and prostitutes, at the night spot.

The council could revoke Zisman's license and ask the Oregon Liquor Commission to suspend his liquor license.

Zisman has been a spectacular witness at the Senate hearing.

Study Labor Shortage

GENEVA, Switzerland — More than 500,000 man-days were lost through work stoppages in 28 different countries during the past seven years, according to the International Labor Organization. More than 75,000,000 workers were involved in the stoppages.

MODERN CAVE MEN — Seated outside their dingy home, two cave dwellers of Hong Kong reflect on their plight. It is caused by the British crown colony's appalling housing shortage. The government has built thousands of modern apartment houses for homeless families, but the steadily growing population and frequent fires force the poor to live in caves or even the open street.

Mixed Views Result in Driver Photo Plan

LANSING (U) — A proposal for requiring the photograph of a motorist on his state drivers license attracted strong support but some opposition at a Senate hearing yesterday.

Under the bill by Sen. Haskell L. Nichols (R-Jackson) and eight other senators, a fee of up to 25 cents could be charged to defray expense of processing the photo.

Law enforcers, and spokesmen for safety, tavern and chain store groups said that in principle, at least, the bill was a step in the right direction.

The measure was opposed by Edward Rockwell, appearing for the Automobile Club of Michigan. Joseph A. Childs, state police commissioner, said the bill would be a help in cutting down on use of lost, stolen or borrowed drivers licenses, and provide for better identification of a motorist.

Oil Supply, Demand Set American Record

NEW YORK — The nation's petroleum supply-and-demand requirements exceeded 9,000,000 barrels a day during 1956 for the first time, including imports and exports.

Total supply averaged 9,376,000 barrels a day, an increase of 386,000 barrels over record 1955. Total demand averaged 9,270,000 barrels a day, an increase of 490,000 barrels a day over 1955.

Wailing Begets Wailing —Over Telephone, That Is

BALTIMORE (U) — As the siren wailed on in the pre-dawn hours, police were swamped with frantic calls. One woman screamed into the telephone: "When is the hydrogen bomb going to drop?" Police finally found the short-circuited siren atop a cannery and cut the wires.

THE BARONIAL TOUCH — Breakfast in bed is only one of the baronial privileges accorded Baron and Lady Wolfschmidt, the two white Borzios seen above being served chopped fillet mignon at San Francisco's St. Francis Hotel. But the Russian hounds don't always have it so good. It was just a stunt set up to plug a new brand of vodka.

Hollister No Novice on Relief Work

Opposes Government Aid; Hands Out 4 Billion Yearly

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

John Baker Hollister, a self-admitted tough man with a back, has the job of giving out more than four billion of them every year.

As director of the International Cooperation Administration (ICA), Hollister supervises America's vast economic and military aid program to about 60 countries.

It is a strange post, at first glance, for a conservative mid-west Republican who came to Washington to take over ICA 29 months ago with the reputation that he was against foreign aid.

A colleague, who knows him well, said the other day that Hollister is in general opposed to government spending—but that there is no inconsistency between this and his present job.

The colleague explained: "There is nothing more that 'smiling Jack' would like than to reduce foreign aid if the circumstances permitted. Jack knows that they don't, and he regards the job as giving the American people the most production for the dollar that can be had."

With his more than four billion dollars, Hollister helps support military forces in foreign countries and builds factories, schools, roads, irrigation ditches and other installations throughout the free world.

By no means a stranger to government service before taking over ICA, he was born in Cincinnati, O., 66 years ago, educated at Yale University and then abroad before taking his law degree at Harvard in 1915.

After army overseas service in World War I, Hollister was discharged with the rank of captain, then went to work under Herbert Hoover in administering relief in Poland and in Lithuania.

Returning to Cincinnati, he soon rose to become a law partner of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft and served three terms in congress in the 30s.

When Taft lost the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, Hollister swung to the successful candidate, the late Wendell Willkie, and rode he campaign trails with him.

Hollister again went into relief work after World War II. He later became executive director of the Hoover Commission, recommending ways to make government more efficient.

As director of ICA he travels about 75,000 miles a year, always with his attractive wife. He has two married daughters and one son.

No general elections in Pakistan can be held before February, 1958, Karachi reports.

Group Opposing Rezoning for Romeo Civic Center

Donated Site Under Fire at Upcoming Hearing

ROMEO — Construction of the Community Center here hangs in the balance this week as a fight rages on the question of rezoning the property which has been offered as its site.

The parcel of land under fire is four and three-tenths acres, located on Morton Street across

Albert Gain on Committee for Drains

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — Albert Gain, township supervisor, has been appointed a member of a study committee to work with the Oakland County Board of Supervisors drain committee for the Farmington Interceptor.

The study group, composed of Gain; Floyd Andrews, supervisor of Independence Township; Daniel Barry of the Oakland County Drain Commission; Donald Fierce of the State Health Department; E. M. Schaffer, Royal Oak city manager; and H. K. Schenck, Birmingham city manager, will work with the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in an effort to iron out some of the problems stalling the sewer interceptor.

The program has been tied up for almost a year now and it is hoped that the study group will be able to get the program underway once more.

Fishing on Thin Ice

TRAVERSE CITY — Some 500 fishermen reportedly braved the thin ice Wednesday on the west arm of Grand Traverse Bay, lured by reports that perch and cisco fishing was excellent. Insufficient ice for the past four years has kept winter fishermen away. It currently is reported three to four inches thick.

Pioneers, 8, Thwarted

MILWAUKEE (INS) — David Scheetz and another eight-year-old boy set out for the wild west in a covered wagon converted from a coaster wagon. When police picked them up, David said: "We also packed a squirt gun to protect ourselves from the Indians."

Cinemas in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, are showing more American films than any others, but French films are preferred, theater owners say.

CANCER HEADQUARTERS — The above citizens of Lake Orion appear at the opening of new branch of the American Cancer Society. New headquarters are in the township hall where the society has use of a special room.

Orion Service Center Now Open

LAKE ORION — The opening of the service center of the Orion Branch of the American Cancer Society finds city and county cancer workers and visitors clustered in groups, discussing displays and progress.

One of these circles caught by the photographer included: C. W. Leipprandt, village president; Clark Ferris, township supervisor; Mrs. Harry Slater, Cancer chairman; and Dr. and Mrs. John Marra, education committee chairman.

from Memorial Stadium. It is the gift of Detroit Industrialist W. F. Sheetz and his wife, who make their home on Romeo.

A public hearing on rezoning the property from residential to multi-occupancy classification — which covers community buildings — is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 14, in village hall.

As money continues to pour into the Community Building Authority coffers through contributions and money-raising projects, residents in the area adjacent to the building site map out their plans to oppose "spot-rezoning" at the hearing.

Said to favor construction of a youth center, the group primarily objects to the lack of zoning protection they will have should this rezoning be approved.

They object in principle to the idea that the rezoning will set a legal precedent so that others may seek similar zoning in the area to put up multi-occupancy units.

Plans for the proposed building have been completed by world famous architect Louis Rossetti who lives on Fisher road northwest of here. He is a member of the Detroit firm of Giffels, Vallet and Rossetti, and has offered his services free of charge.

The value of the site and proposed structure is estimated at between $75,000 and $90,000.

Actual money raised to date exceeds $6,750, according to the building authority treasurer. Twenty-five organizations and churches have offered their support, and numbers of local business men have volunteered both labor and materials for the project.

Just this week the Romeo players announced they would contribute the entire proceeds from their spring production to the community building fund.

"They will present 'The Importance of Being Earnest,' April 13 and 14 in the Romeo High School auditorium.

Nixon En Route to Liberia for 2-Day Talks

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Vice President Nixon left on a U.S. Air Force plane today for Liberia and two days of talks with President William Tubman.

Ending a four-day visit to Ghana for ceremonies making the former Gold Coast colony an independent member of the British Commonwealth, Nixon last night praised Britain's "enlightened" policy in giving Ghana independence.

He told a news conference that Ghana's leaders had showed wisdom and moderation in establishing a "new and vital government which can be a shrine dedicated to liberty."

He and Mrs. Nixon visited the new Cathedral of the Holy Spirit, built by contributions of American Roman Catholics.

Nixon met with Bishop Joseph O. Bowers and his aide, Father Edward Datig of Pittsburgh. Father Datig said 500,000 of Ghana's five million population are Catholics.

After Liberia, Nixon is to visit Kampala, Uganda. He will spend only five hours there on March 11.

As a result all program arrangements have been canceled, including a radio broadcast which would have been the first from Uganda to the United States.

Bill Would Permit Delegates to Choose

LANSING (AP) — A bill to give delegates to county political conventions the power to select their county leadership came into the House yesterday with bi-partisan support.

Rep. Russell H. Strange Jr. (R-Clare), who headed the seven sponsors, proposed that convention delegates be authorized to elect county chairmen and other officers of the county committees.

Under present law, only candidates for county and legislative office have a say in choosing party strategists.

Rank-and-file members have complained that this leaves them with little incentive to join in the campaigning.

"Passage of the bill also would be a step forward in removing the false impression shared by many voters that political affairs are dominated by a small group," Strange said.

Both Republicans and Democrats recommended the change in platform adopted at their state conventions last month.

State Residents Hurt in Florida

Three Among Nine Are From Michigan in Triple Crash

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Three Michigan people were among nine injured yesterday in the collision of two cars and a motorcycle.

Injured critically was Abel Jacobson, 48, of Huntington Woods. His wife, 47, was reported in fair condition.

Thomas Mox, 30, of Lincoln Park, a sailor stationed at the Navy Mine Defense Laboratory here, was reported in serious condition.

Highway Patrol Trooper James M. Roddenberry said the Jacobsons were alone in their car. He said a car carrying five sailors, including Mox, ran into the rear of a motorcycle on which the other sailors were riding. The two vehicles swerved into the oncoming Jacobson car, Roddenberry said.

The accident occurred on narrow Highway Bridge that carries Gulf Coast traffic along U.S. 98. The bridge spans St. Andrews Bay.

Lawyers Undecided on Candidate's 'Jr.'

LANSING (AP) — The question of whether a candidate for the Supreme Court bench should be tagged as "Jr." was handed to the State Bar Association today and the association was juggling it like a hot potato.

John W. Cumiskey of Grand Rapids, president of the state bar, was uncertain about what action, if any, the organization of the state's lawyers would take.

Supreme Court Justice John D. Voelker, Democratic candidate for re-election, has asked the state bar to demand that Joseph A. Moynihan Jr., his Republican opponent, use the designation "Jr." on the election ballot.

Moynihan is the son of Wayne County Circuit Judge Joseph A. Moynihan, a veteran winner of many elections, and Democrats have charged he is trading on his father's name in the Supreme Court race.

After Secretary of State James M. Hare, a Democrat, said he had no authority to force the son to use the "Jr." tag, Voelker appealed to the state board.

Car Hits Embankment; 3 Milford Youths Hurt

Three 16-year-old Milford boys were injured yesterday when their car struck an embankment and spun out of control on Milford Road two miles north of Milford Township last night.

Treated and released from Pontiac General Hospital were Michael Arvidson, 6220 Grass Lake Rd.; William Huffman, 212 Woodbine St., and John Boring, 325 Summit.

Injured in City Collision

David Stott, 17, of 1489 Goldenwood Ave., received minor injuries yesterday when his motor scooter collided with a car on West Huron St. at Johnson Ave.

Both Stott and the driver of the car, Mrs. Marie Clark, 55, of 167 Seminole Ave., told police they did not see each other in time to avoid the accident.

Four Youths Arrested as Breakin Suspects

Four Pontiac area youths are in Oakland County Children's Home today after admitting, according to sheriff's detectives, to breaking into several homes in the Elkhorn Lake area and Thomas' Grocery Store in Auburn Heights.

The four boys, two from Pontiac, one from Auburn Heights and one from Orion Township, were arrested last night as they were returning from a basketball game.

Detective Leo Hazen said that loot from several robberies was found in the trunk of their car.

LEUKEMIA VICTIM — Little five-year-old Tommy Ann Woznak of Oak Park has been allowed to attend school even though she is under age. Tommy has leukemia and cannot afford to wait. Above, she practices drawing at home and hopes that maybe tomorrow she can return to school.

Trial of Singer Set to Open on April 22

DETROIT (INS) — Phillip J. Singer, 36, will go on trial April 22 for the first-degree murder of JoAnn Gillespie, 18-year-old coed slain three years ago.

Trial date for Singer, who police said confessed the murder and later repudiated the admission, was set yesterday by Detroit Recorder's Judge Frank G. Schemanske.

Defense attorney G. Leslie Field told the court he will file a motion later to quash the charge.

Field said three witnesses will swear Singer was with Mrs. Gladys Yocum in a West Side bar when the murder was committed.

Assistant Prosecutor Arthur Kosciuszko said the state plans to call 42 witnesses in the Jan. 2, 1953, slaying. Singer lived a few doors away from where the girl was killed.

Security for You

First SS Check Paid in Vermont in '39

Miss Ida Fuller has become something of a celebrity in her home town of Ludlow Vt.

And, it's all because of a quirk of fate and a 23-mile train trip she made to Rutland back in November, 1939. Miss Fuller, now 62, was headed for the nearest Social Security office.

"I recall the day," she said in an interview recently.

"It wasn't that I expected anything, but I knew I'd been paying for something called Social-Security. I wanted to ask the people in Rutland about it."

She'd retired a few weeks earlier from her job as secretary in a law firm—a job she'd held in Ludlow for 34 years and a job which brought her under Social Security on Jan. 1, 1937.

She arrived at the Rutland office on the same day as the first Social Security application forms. Congress had declared a few months earlier that Social Security checks would be paid starting with the next January.

Little did Miss Fuller know that when she filled out her application that fate had tapped her to be the first person to receive a Social Security check. Check number 00-000-001 for $22.54 was paid to her in February, 1940.

Now, 204 checks later, Miss Fuller reports that her check is $51.50 and that she's never missed one, or even had one arrive late.

On her fame, Miss Fuller says: "Some of the shine has rubbed off since the people in Ludlow found out I had been paid the first check. But I can't forget it. Every time Congress changes the social law, reporters and photographers show up for interviews and pictures."

Miss Fuller is amazed, but not awed, by the growth of the Social Security program since she got the first check. And she's pleased that she played even a small part in getting it started.

"I think that Social Security is a wonderful thing for the people," she told me. "With the money I get from my bank stock, the rent of an apartment and my Social Security I have all the money I need."

NEARLY 10 MILLION

Although Miss Fuller was the first to get Social Security payments, she's far from being the

Newsmen's Travel Ban Again Under Review

WASHINGTON (INS)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles indicates that the administration may be taking another look at its ban on travel in Red China by American newsmen.

Dulles said he knows of no legal action planned against three U.S. newsmen who have already broken the state department rule and entered the Communist nation.

The secretary added that "we are continuing to study and explore the matter," although he insisted that the official stand has not changed.

only person who's been getting them since 1940. There are some 50,000. That's out of a total of 250,000 who started that year.

The number now drawing payments is nearly 10 million. Within the next 16 months, some two million will be added, bringing the total on the rolls to 11,700,000. This comes on top of nearly a million added since last July.

Thus, by July, 1955 one out of every 15 American—men, women and children—will be collecting payments. They'll be collecting payments at the rate of $7,700,000,000 a year.

The increase will largely be due to changes made a few months ago in the Social Security law which lowered the retirement age for women and made many severely disabled persons over 50 eligible for payments.

"Yes," said Miss Fuller, "it's amazing, but maybe it isn't too surprising when you think of all the new people covered by Social Security and the changes in eligibility since the program started."

(Questions on Social Security problems may be addressed to "Social Security," in care of The Pontiac Press. Questions will be answered by mail from the Pontiac office of the Social Security Administration. There is no charge for this service.)

Doctors to Put Talents of Fakirs to Scientific Test

ANN ARBOR (INS)—Two American doctors are going to spend a year in India trying to find out whether Hindu fakirs are really only fakirs.

Official Indian health agencies have approved the trip of Dr. B. K. Bagchi of the University of Michigan, and Dr. H. A. Wenger of the University of California.

The two men plan to spend their sabbatical leave year in India trying to find out if fakirs really have a "third state of mind," or suspended animation, between consciousness and a coma.

Dr. Bagchi, chief of electroencephalography—the study of electrical "brain wave patterns"—at the U. of M.'s Neuropsychiatric Institute, said:

WITHDRAW MINDS

"For hundreds of years there have been many unverified reports of the ability of Indian fakirs to withdraw themselves from known manifestations of consciousness. We feel it is about time someone investigated whether there is a grain of truth in the reports."

"Our goal is not to investigate the philosophical and spiritual implications of this practice, but to try to put the fakirs' unusual talents, if any, on a scientific basis."

Join New Activities to Avoid That Feeling of Retirement Let-Down

ANN ARBOR (INS)—A University of Michigan expert on the problems of the aged says that Dad may not like his daily grind at the office, but it may be doing wonders to preserve his health.

Mrs. Wilma T. Donahue, chairman of the U. of M. division of gerontology said one of the principal problems of persons who retire is the relief from pressure and routine of business life.

This often results in a vague feeling of malaise—a sense that something's wrong, even though no specific symptoms of sickness are present.

She added that, in part, this feeling may be traced to changes in the body's delicate chemical balance. She explained:

"Many of us may awaken in the morning feeling tired and blue, but when we remember an interesting assignment or event that's coming up, we perk up and regain our sense of well-being. The retired person may lack this stimulus and remain in the dumps all day."

From a social standpoint, she continued, the person who retires is cut off from a good deal of income and, equally important, is no longer in a position to enjoy the esteem of his associates at work.

Other significant activities, like raising children, may begin to decline at the same time.

Mrs. Donahue said that the impact of retirement may hit business executives especially hard since their status is changed overnight from leadership of an important majority group to a membership in a minority group whose characteristics lack widespread social approval.

Outside interests, such as participating in civic and voluntary organizations, can be an important help in crossing the retirement hurdle, she concluded.

LOUD SPEAKER—Size of this new gun, being used in training by Marines at Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif., can be judged by the way it dwarfs the man standing on tailboard. The self-propelled weapon is a 155-mm "Long Tom" mounted on an M-48 chassis. The high-speed heavy artillery piece has a range of 25,000 yards.

Civil Service Gets OK by CIO

The Oakland County CIO Council has endorsed the Pontiac Police Officers Assn.'s move for Civil Service, and has opposed a county proposal for a three-member bi-partisan jury commission.

Both issues will be decided by voters April 1st. The Civil Service proposal is limited to Pontiac voters, while the jury commission question will be countywide.

The endorsement and opposition moves of the council were in concurrence with recommendations of the Political Action Committee of the council.

The council represents some 50,000 CIO workers in Oakland County's 91 union locals.

The association's move for Civil Service was climaxed when officers submitted sufficient petitions to place the vote on the April ballot.

They ask that the present Trial Board be replaced, charging Police Chief Herbert W. Straley exercises "undue influence" over it.

Explaining the council's stand on this proposal, Fred V. Haggard, president, said: "It seems as though the trial board is causing considerable agitation. For the department to function properly, as the fire department, we believe it would be more advantageous to install Civil Service."

The fire department has been under Civil Service jurisdiction for 15 years.

"We are not clear on the intent of a three-member bi-partisan commission," Haggard said about the council's opposition to the county proposition.

It will, if approved, call for a commission to be appointed annually to select a jury panel for Circuit Court. The Oakland County Bar Assn. urged county supervisors to approve the vote to draw "a fairer cross section of jurors." Haggard said the council questioned whether a strictly bi-partisan commission was possible.

U.N. Group to Back Ghana as Member

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (INS)—The U.N. Security Council meets today to recommend the newly independent African state of Ghana for admission as the 81st member of the world organization.

Indications are that the 11-nation council will approve Ghana's application for membership in U.N. swiftly and unanimously. The 11 a.m. (EST) meeting of the council was called at the request of Britain and Australia, which are formally sponsoring Ghana.

Deny Passport to Ban Violator

U.S. Newsman Went to Red China, Defying Government Rules

WASHINGTON (INS)—The State Department has turned down the new passport application of William Worthy, an American newsman who violated the U.S. ban on travel to Red China.

This was disclosed by administration sources, who said that Worthy probably will be notified of the passport denial in a week or so.

Worthy, a correspondent for the Baltimore Afro-American and presently a Nieman fellow at Harvard University, defied the ban by going to Communist China late last year for a few weeks' visit.

Officials also said that the passports of a Look Magazine reporter-photographer team, who likewise violated the ban, are legally restricted.

Phillip Harrington, the photographer, has returned to New York and has been asked to surrender his passport. The reporter, Edmund Stevens, is the magazine's correspondent in Moscow and, as far as the State Department is concerned, has a passport that is good only for a one-way trip back to the U.S.

Stevens has refused to hand the document over to American officials.

Worthy applied about two weeks ago for renewal of his passport, which expired Monday.

He has said he would bring the case to the courts if his application were turned down. He is supported in this by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Officials said that once Worthy is notified of the rejection of his passport application, he has ask for a hearing before a State Department board of passport appeals.

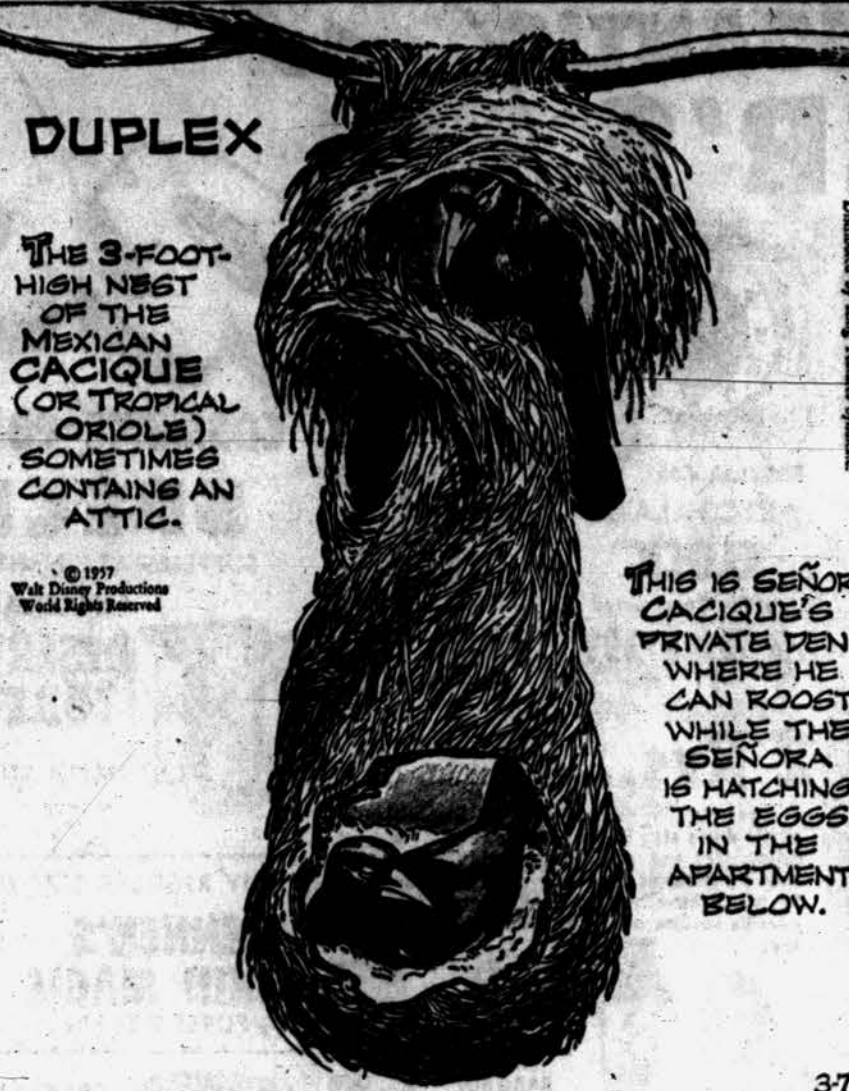

If he is turned down by this board, then he can bring the matter before the courts.

It was said that Stevens and Harrington, both of whom hold unexpired passports, probably will get the same treatment when, and if, they apply for new passports.

U.S. Better Mobilized for Emergency Now

WASHINGTON (INS)—Defense Mobilizer Arthur Flemming told a house subcommittee that the government is better mobilized for an emergency than at any time during its history.

But he warned the lawmakers in testimony made public that "many millions of lives" would be lost in nuclear attack on this country because of inability to deal with the problem of radioactive fall-out.

"If we don't have three feet of earth over us, the chances of our losing our lives because of fall-out are greater," Flemming added.

However, the mobilization chief recommended against an immediate all-out shelter construction program which he said would cost billions of dollars. Neither should the government ignore the problem, he said.

Flemming said: "It seems to me we should give consideration to the possibility of getting started on a shelter program." He suggested that additions to school buildings in the future be placed under ground.

Flemming also said the government has information that Russia's satellite nations in Eastern Europe are placing heavy emphasis on a shelter program and "are probably considerably ahead of us."

Seawolf Engine Needs Work

High Cost May Decide if New Super-Heaters Will Be Installed

WASHINGTON (INS) — Rear Adm. Albert G. Mumma said today that the Navy still hopes to perfect the atomic submarine Seawolf's metal-cooled engine.

Mumma, chief of the navy bureau of ships, branded as "pre-mature" statements that the Seawolf's engine definitely will be replaced with a water-cooled power plant similar to the submarine Nautilus. Such an operation would cost between 15 and 20 million dollars.

He said this is a matter for the navy alone to decide, and that no decision has been reached.

Mumma added, in an interview, that new "super-heating" devices have been designed that may restore the Seawolf's engine to full power operation. Whether the new super-heaters will actually be installed, he said, is a "question of economics," with the costs as yet undetermined.

The Seawolf, world's second nuclear-powered vessel, ran into trouble last September when the corrosive liquid sodium metal in its cooling system caused "leaks" in the super-heaters. The super-heaters were then removed from the cooling and heat-transfer circuit.

Thus impaired, the 65 million dollar Seawolf has been operating since early January at 30 per cent of its designed power—a level making possible 30 per cent of its designed speed, or about 20 knots-an-hour submerged.

Mumma said no further corrosion troubles have developed since operations at sea began. Although the navy has decided to stick to water-cooled reactors in other surface and undersea vessels now being built or planned, he listed these reasons for trying to save the Seawolf engine for experimental purposes:

1. The metal-cooled engine can be made "very compact" and therefore is more suitable than water-cooled types for atomic-powered aircraft. Congressional leaders recently have charged that the military services are "dragging their feet" in the development of nuclear flight.

2. The more compact engine would also be a great advantage in aircraft carriers. The navy has been obliged to increase the size of its super carriers from 60,000 to 85,000 tons, mainly because of the weight of the eight water-cooled reactors to be installed in the first nuclear-powered model.

3. Information on the behavior of sodium-cooled reactors is badly needed in the civilian power industry.

AEC to Study Effects of Nuclear Fall Out

WASHINGTON (INS) — Chairman Carl Durham (D-NC) announced the joint Atomic Energy Committee will hold hearings this spring on problems raised by fallout from nuclear weapons tests.

The study, Durham said, would provide the background for eventual discussions on such questions as limiting the size of the nuclear weapons to be tested, the adequacy of detection devices and national policy affecting the nuclear weapons program.

Durham said "considerable concern" has been evidenced in recent months about the effect of fallout on humans, livestock and agriculture.

He called it a complex problem requiring sober thought and said he does not believe anyone, including experts in the field, knows enough about the subject.

Chief emphasis, Durham said, will be on research questions involved and the committee will try to find out how adequate the government's program is and whether more money and effort are needed.

Mrs. Gearheart finally discovered the can didn't contain flea spray but dog repellent.

UMBRELLA LOLLIPOPS — Here's an intriguing idea for a shower or for a child's party. Make candy lollipops that look like tiny umbrellas.

las. Set them in small needle holders and add a place card. Chocolate pieces and rice cereal make the "pops."

Party Lollipop Has Gift Tie-in

The news is in the place card— it's eatable. Every child's party is special, but here's a novel lollipop to make it deliciously fun.

It's a chocolate, coconut, honey-flavored rice cereal combination that becomes an umbrella lollipop with a gumdrop point. One end of the wooden stick holds the candy umbrella and the other end stands in a small frog. A name card is stuck in the frog.

For the table centerpiece, fill a decorated box with small presents. Tie a ribbon from each present to a lollipop. Each guest can pull out his own present.

Obviously, no party is complete without refreshments. Slices of vanilla ice cream are topped with honey-flavored rice cereal for a crunchy sundae. This is served with a piece of cake.

Umbrella Lollipops
1 (4 ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1/2 cup grated coconut
1 1/2 cups honey-flavored cereal
2 tablespoons shortening
6 gumdrops

Melt chocolate and shortening together. Stir in the coconut and cereal. Pack into six small greased glass custard cups. Chill until chocolate is firm. Remove from cups.

Put pointed end of wooden stick into lollipop. Top with gumdrop and stand lollipop in holder.

Try Using Honey for Flavorful Cookies

Recent research by the U. S. Department of agriculture shows that substituting honey for all or part of the sugar in some baked goods may improve their color, flavor and texture.

In chewy cookies, such as fruit bars and brownies, honey was used to replace over half of the usual amount of sugar called for. The opinion of researchers was that the honey used in these specific recipes achieved a particularly desirable result.

Rice Dumplings for Extra Touch

There is an abundant supply of chicken to be had at the meat counter and just about everybody likes chicken.

To keep right in step with the supply of plentiful foods, we offer you this flavorful way to serve chicken. Based on chicken broth, it is really a hearty main course soup with pieces of tender chicken and velvety smooth-textured dumplings.

You will be pleased with these delicately flavored rice dumplings made with a quick-cooking rice cereal. The kiddies will love a steaming bowl for lunch... and it is so nutritious too!

Chicken and Rice Dumplings
1/2 cup cream of rice quick-cooking rice cereal
2 tablespoons sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon butter
1 egg
1/2 cup leftover chopped chicken
2 cups chicken broth

Mix cream of rice, sifted flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg. Cream butter in mixing bowl and beat in egg. Stir in combined dry ingredients. Place in refrigerator for 1/2 hour. Roll into balls about the size of marbles.

Combine chicken and seasoned broth and bring to boil. Drop in rice dumplings, cover and cook over low heat about 10 minutes. Do not remove cover while cooking. Makes 12 dumplings or 4 servings.

Try Gelatin Trick in Whipping Cream

Whipped cream that is to be used as a frosting or filling for cake will hold up for hours in the refrigerator if you add a mite of gelatin to it.

There is a trick, however, to getting the gelatin whipped into the cream without lumping. One of the easiest and most practical techniques used by home economists is this one:

Soften 1 teaspoon of plain gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water. Dissolve the gelatin over boiling water, then let it cool slightly.

Beat 1 cup of heavy cream until frothy. Slowly — very slowly — add cooled gelatin to the cream and continue beating after each addition until the cream is fluffy. Last, beat in about 1/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar until cream stands in soft peaks.

For Fine Instant Coffee:

After you've made a cup of instant coffee, cover the cup a minute or so with a saucer. This cover-up trick seems to develop a richer coffee flavor. When making instant coffee in larger volume, use a covered server.

Filling vacuum bottles for out- ings? Make it soup, especially the drinkable kinds, beef broth, tomato, or green pea.

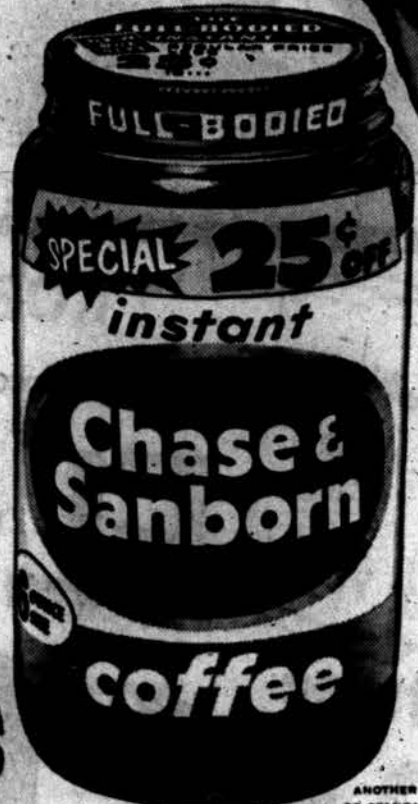

If your gelatin mold does not loosen because of an air lock, wrap a clean, hot, wet (well wrung) towel around it for a few seconds.

Teen-age delight: Scoops of chocolate ice cream rolled in crushed peppermint candy and surrounded with hot fudge sauce!

Fill fluted lemon cups with tartar sauce and garnish with capers; serve with breaded shrimp or scallops.

Let's Use Fish, Cheese and Eggs to Eat Well During Lent

Pontiac Press Home Editor

Now that Lent has begun, cooks will have to adjust some of their menus for the next six weeks. Even those who are not required to refrain from eating meat at certain times will enjoy trying some of the recipes for fish, cheese and egg dishes. When economy is a big factor, meatless dishes are an asset.

Milk and cheese dishes can supply protein in ample quality and quantity. When you are watching your weight, you use skim milk, of course. We cannot repeat too often that skim milk has all the goodness of whole milk except for butter fat. It has, in fact, a higher percentage of some minerals. You need not hesitate to serve it to your family and to use it in cooking.

Here's an interesting cheese salad that would make a good luncheon dish. It is a change from plain bland cottage cheese.

Tasty Cheese Salad

2 tablespoons gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1/4 cup milk, scalded
1/4 cup cottage cheese
2 tablespoons chives, crumbled
2 tablespoons chives, or green onion tops, minced
1/4 cup teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Thin tomato slices
Stuffed olives, sliced

Soften the gelatin in cold water and dissolve in the hot milk. Cool slightly. Add cottage cheese, blue cheese, the chives and seasoning. Let cool until the mixture thickens. Whip with rotary beater until fluffy.

Oil a small ring mold lightly and arrange slices of tomato and stuffed olive in the bottom. Pour in the cheese mixture and chill until firm. Turn out on a plate garnished with lettuce or water cress and fill the center of the ring with vegetable salad, mixed lightly with tart French dressing. Makes 4 servings.

If you feel your main course is a little on the light side, treat the family to a hearty dessert. This Deluxe Bread Pudding will fill in any empty spaces in hungry tummies.

Deluxe Bread Pudding

2 slices day-old cinnamon raisin bread
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup sherry wine (optional)
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 cup heated instant nonfat dry milk
1/4 cup honey

Spread slices of bread evenly with butter. Place four slices in an (8x8x2 inch) square baking dish. Sprinkle 1/4 tablespoon of sherry over each slice. Top with remaining slices of bread. Sprinkle each with 1/4 tablespoon of sherry. Combine eggs, liquefied dry milk and honey; mix well. Pour instant milk mixture over bread.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes or until a sharp knife, inserted in center, comes out clean. Serve hot or cold. If desired, serve with lemon or custard sauce. Serves 6-8.

Fritters make an interesting breakfast or luncheon dish that takes the place of meat. For luncheon serve with a salad and dessert. For breakfast, provide honey or maple syrup.

Apple Raisin Fritters

1 1/2 cups sliced enriched flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 egg, beaten
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup chopped apples
1/4 cup seedless raisins
Fat for deep frying

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and cinnamon. Combine egg, milk and shortening. Add apples and raisins to liquid mixture. Add to flour mixture, stirring until flour is well moistened. Drop by spoonfuls into deep hot fat (375 degrees) and fry until brown, turning frequently.

Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with syrup and pork sausage. Makes about 16 small fritters.

Omelets are good for meatless days. Add cream style corn to one for a new taste treat. Some day when you have a bit of leftover whole kernel corn, add it to scrambled eggs — or to your favorite corn muffins.

Puffy Corn Omelet

4 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup canned cream style corn

Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; add seasonings. Fold in corn, then stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a buttered skillet and cook very slowly until browned on the bottom. Place in a moderate oven (350 degrees) a few minutes to dry. Fold and remove to a hot platter. 4 servings.

Here's an interesting sandwich recipe for Lent or any other time. Serve on toast for those hungry school children.

Tuna-Scrambled Egg Sandwiches

1 7-ounce can solid-pack tuna
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 6-ounce can tomato sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
4 eggs, well-beaten
1/2 teaspoon chopped chives
2 tablespoons milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 slices buttered toast

Drain tuna; reserve 2 tablespoons oil. Combine 2 tablespoons tuna oil and green pepper and cook over low heat until tender. Add tomato sauce and salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes. Break tuna into pieces; add to tomato mixture and heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally.

Meanwhile, combine eggs, chives, milk and 1/2 teaspoon salt; mix well. Melt butter or margarine; add egg mixture and cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until eggs are set. Arrange egg and tuna mixtures on toast. Makes 4 sandwiches.

One canned fish often neglected is canned mackerel. It is a good fish to keep on the shelf for emergency meals. It tastes good served cold like canned salmon. It is good to combine with vegetables. In the following recipe it is baked with lemon and buttered crumbs.

Lemon-Breaded Mackerel

1 10-ounce can mackerel, drained and boned
1/4 cup French dressing
1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 medium-sized lemon, sliced
Arrange mackerel in shallow baking dish; add French dressing and chill 1 hour. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and top with lemon slices. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Those of you who like crabmeat will like to try this recipe. It calls for canned crabmeat, but we know you could use the frozen crabmeat that is in your grocer's frozen food compartment.

Crab-Stuffed Peppers

2 4 1/2 oz. cans crabmeat
4-6 medium sized green peppers
1 1/4 cup dry bread crumbs

1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
2 spring onions, finely chopped
1/4 cup white sauce or light cream
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 can button mushrooms, chopped (optional)
Carrot curls for garnish
1/4 cup Parmesan cheese
Remove hard membrane from crabmeat. Save out large chunks for topping, flake remainder. Clean and seed green peppers, parboil for 2 or 3 minutes, drain. Mix crabmeat flakes, 1 cup bread crumbs, nutmeg, pimento, onions, sauce, seasoning, butter and mushrooms in bowl.

Stuff peppers, topping each with crabmeat chunk. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs and cheese. Place in shallow baking pan or dish with 1/2 cup water. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees). Garnish with carrot curls. Serves 4-6.

Having to plan meatless meals may take a little extra thought, but it needn't mean any decrease in the quality of your meals or in their nutrition. And, fortunately, most of the meat substitutes are reasonably priced.

For added zest to baked eggs, line the baking dishes or muffin pans with 1 or 2 slices of partially-cooked bacon. Omit buttering the pans.

Round Steak Good Buy; Cook With Moist Heat

With the good supply of beef in the market, round steak is one of the best beef buys. It is true that round steak is called steak, but better not try to broil it suggests the Consumer Marketing Information Service.

Round steak needs to be cooked with moist heat. This means it makes good braised or country fried steak. Over low heat, round steaks with liquid will cook tender in about 1 1/2 hours.

HONEY-BROWNED CHOPS — Put everything on the table, let the guests help themselves, then eat at smaller tables. You, as a hostess, can relax with your guests. They'll like a platter of pork chops, browned with honey and a tempting rice casserole.

Give Pork Chops Glamor Touch

Serving buffet style makes entertaining pleasant and easy either indoors or out. It also makes a family meal seem a little extra special—not to mention leaving the lady in the kitchen time to relax and eat with the family.

Here is such a meal for the next time you want a special easy-fixin' menu. So why not you treat your family and yourself to a "special" meal soon!

Honey-Browned Pork Chops
4 large rib pork chops, 1/2 inch thick
2 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1/2 teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons fat
1/2 cup hot water
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup melted butter
1 lb. can small whole canned carrots, drained
1 lb. can pineapple slices, drained
2 tablespoons melted butter

RIBBONS OF CHEESE — Here's a new food variation you'll soon be seeing in the stores. They're putting cheese in plastic "squeeze" tubes so that it's easy to use to fill celery or to make interesting patterns on canapés. The cheese comes in several different flavors. Watch for it.

Cheese in Tubes New on Market

Crunchy celery stalks filled with ribbons of cheese are no longer strictly party fare. Heretofore preparing such an appetizer was a task set aside for special occasions. It was not actually difficult, just extra bother.

One can make pretty frills of cheese with a decorating tube, but unless the stuffed celery is for a large crowd, it is hardly worth the effort of filling the tube with cheese spread. As a result, the family eats celery stalks minus the cheese.

Now all of that has been changed. One well-known food company packages cheese spread in a plastic "squeeze" tube. With a gentle pressure of the fingertips the cheese comes out in an easy free-flowing ribbon.

It is ready and waiting to stuff celery, top casseroles, make sandwiches or give the gourmet's touch to a wide variety of dishes.

This handy item was designed so that the cheese spread will keep even after the tube has been opened, this assures a smooth, easy spreading consistency at all times.

Different tastes will naturally call for different varieties of cheese spread. Sometimes a sharp cheddar cheese flavor will suit your fancy, whereas at other times a mild spread will please. Or, perhaps, a blue cheese spread with a flavor all its own will give distinction and variety to the meal.

Vegetables are not always a hit with every member of the family. But sometimes if the hesitant eater is allowed to dress up his own serving to suit his own tastes, the food disappears with amazing speed. Often a simple squeeze of cheese will be the answer.

Quick tricks such as this are bound to find the way to your family's heart.

Vegetables either cooked or raw are not the only foods which take kindly to a dash of cheese. A cracker topped with cheese spread makes a nutritious after school or bedtime snack.

Hamburgers and frank's which always rank high on the list of favorite foods go up another notch when topped with a ribbon-like band of cheese spread.

Experimenting with cheese toppings is fun especially when you know good eating is certain to result.

SKILLET CLUB FOR MEN

By Frank Kohler

Dubuque, Iowa, is represented this week by Miss Dorothy Brown, Telegraph-Herald Chapter, with this SKILLETIP on Fried Chicken first indoctrinated with garlic.

Wipe the cup-frying chicken and place in a plastic bag, putting very thin slices of 2 cloves of garlic between the chicken pieces and on top. Tie the bag tightly and refrigerate at least 24 hours. "Discard garlic and fry in the usual way," advises Miss Brown.

GERMAN BAKED CHICKEN AND EGG NOODLE CASSEROLE is rather a long title for a good thing from Jack Burchfield, Tacoma, (Wash.) News-Tribune Chapter. That is, if you don't want garlic fried chicken this time. This will do for 6.

1 chicken, about 3 pounds
1 package noodles, cooked as directed Sherry
Flour
Chicken stock
Milk
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons grated Cheddar cheese
Bread crumbs
Melted butter

Disjoint chicken and simmer in slightly salted water to cover. When tender, cool and remove meat from bones, discarding skin, but retaining chicken stock. Meanwhile, cook the noodles and drain them. Divide the drained noodles among individual casseroles, and arrange the chicken meat on top. Drizzle 1 teaspoon of sherry over each.

Skim fat from chicken stock, and place 1/4 cup of the fat in a saucepan and heat, then blend in 2 tablespoons of flour. Heat well, stirring constantly, and gradually stir in 2 cups of the chicken stock and then 1/2 cup of milk.

Cook slowly, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Season with salt and pepper to taste, adding a bit more sherry if you like. Stir in grated cheese and cook until the cheese melts, then pour the mixture over the casserole of chicken and noodles.

Mix bread crumbs and melted butter, using 2 tablespoons butter to each cup of crumbs and spread the crumbs over the casseroles. Sprinkle lightly with additional grated cheese. Bake at 350 degrees until crumbs are golden brown.

ENGLISH TOFFEE makes a very nice cold dessert, from Mrs.

J. J. Ritchey, Newark (N.J.) News Chapter.

1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 pound vanilla wafers, crushed
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
2 eggs, separated
1/2 ounces melted chocolate, cooled
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix pecans and wafers, and spread half the mixture in the bottom of a 9-inch pie tin. Cream the butter until smooth, and cream in the sugar, then the slightly beaten egg yolks, then the melted chocolate, and mix well. Beat egg whites stiff and fold them in, finally adding the vanilla.

Pour mixture over the crumbs in the pan, then top with remaining crumbs, and chill at least overnight. Serve on chilled plates. You may top these with a little whipped cream if you have a mind to.

Use Cookie Cutter to Make Pat-O-Butter

Here's a trick to try. If you've admired the pretty butter pats some homemakers serve, yet despaired of ever learning to manage the molds that usually are required.

With some of the new types of miniature cookie cutters, you can make your own attractive designs easily.

Use firm, but not hard butter in 1 inch squares, cut about 1/2 inch thick and cut out attractive shapes with cutters. Chill before serving. Two butter designs are about right per serving.

Place scraps of butter that are left in a small container, and use in saucing hot vegetables or in sandwich making.

Brown Gravy Sauce Imparts Flavor, Color

When you are replenishing your stock of favorite herbs, spices, and other seasonings, don't forget to include a small jar of brown gravy sauce.

Try Shrimp Pizza to Lure Teenagers

Shrimp pizza makes exciting eating. And it's a wonderful way to lure the teenagers and their friends home at night after the movies.

Shrimp Pizza
3 cans (4 1/2 ounces each) deviled, small shrimp
1 1/2 cup chopped onion
5 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1/2 cup olive or salad oil
3 cans (8 ounces each) Italian-style tomato paste
1/2 cup chopped parsley
2 unbaked pizza crusts (8 inches each)
1/2 pound Mozzarella cheese, sliced thin

Drain shrimp. Cook onion and garlic in olive or salad oil until tender. Add tomato paste and simmer for 5 minutes.

Remove from heat; add oregano and parsley.

Place pizza crusts on greased baking sheets. Cover each crust with 1-3 of the sauce, arrange 1-3 of the shrimp over the sauce and cover with 1-3 of the cheese.

Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 20 minutes, or until crust is brown and cheese melts. Makes 3 pies—serves 6.

That's How It Started

About 11,000 years ago a Stone Age man was trying to heat some broth in a large hollowed-out gourd when the gourd cracked and the liquid began to leak out. To patch it up and save his broth, our Stone Age man plastered mud all over the outside and found, hours later, that he had unwittingly invented the first clay cup.

What Is Fish if Lemon Juice Is Forgotten?

Add a sparkle to poached fish by using a tablespoon of lemon juice to each quart of water when cooking.

For any fish not rich in fat, try lemon butter. It's also a wonderful basting sauce for barbecued fish.

To keep fish white, add 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice and 1/2 teaspoon salt to 1 quart of water used for boiling fish.

For creamed fish dishes, particularly those that call for canned fish, sprinkle on fresh lemon juice for extra flavor.

After preparing fish, remove any odors from your hands by rubbing them with salt and lemon juice just before washing.

Improve Simple Dessert With Rich Wine Sauce

Simple desserts like ice cream, cake or preserved fruits taste better when a rich-tasting sauce is poured over them.

An easy one to make is to take two cups of the syrup used in canned fruits and boil this down to half its volume.

Add a cup of Spanish sherry, either a nutty amontillado or one of the sweet olorosos, then boil down again until you reach the consistency you like.

With the sherry, you can add ginger or slivers of lemon or orange peel, if you wish.

Start With Chicken

The meat of an older chicken, stewed or steamed until tender, cooled in the broth and cut from the bones, is the start for a variety of good dishes. You may like it as a la king, in a loaf or croquettes, as soufflé or in chicken chop suey.

Top individual casseroles of creamed salmon with pastry and bake. Nice for a change from chicken and turkey pies.

Soup Fine for Snacks

Need a snack? Make it soup and crackers. Serve the soup in mugs or bowls with a selection of crisp crackers. Clam chowder or chicken gumbo are good.

Sanitize as you WHITEN

Children's clothes should be sanitary, immaculately clean. Use Roman Bleach when you wash. It is the triple-action bleach that sanitizes as it whitens, removes stains. And it's soft so you can use it for nylon and dacron. You'll like Roman Bleach best.

White anklets are easy to keep snowy-white and spotless with Roman Bleach

Taste-Teasing Meal Weds Cheese, Frozen Legumes

A frozen vegetable that's baked to that perfect "tender-crisp" stage in combination with a favorite cheese is a good idea for Sunday supper or Saturday lunch—Saturday lunch because of the minerals and vitamins supplied to the children; Sunday supper because the cheese and vegetable casseroles are unusual and delicious and therefore just right for a "company" meal.

Yes, the vegetables cook in the casserole—they are not cooked and maintain their bright green color and delicate flavor even while they blend with the cheese flavor.

In the Frozen Asparagus Cheese Fondue below, there are vitamins A and vitamin C, as well as four of the B vitamins, in goodly amounts, according to the results of the recent study of the nutritional value of frozen foods made by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation—besides the nutritive values of the dairy foods in the dish. All this plus wonderful appetite appeal!

Frozen Brussels Sprouts star with Parmesan cheese in the second recipe. These small cabbages, according to the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation study, are an excellent source of vitamin C and a good source of vitamin A and they help supply the day's requirement of the B vitamins. And this frozen Brussels sprouts casserole is a dish to please a gourmet!

Frozen Asparagus Cheese Fondue
1 package frozen asparagus cut and tips, defrosted
1 slice toast, cut in cubes
1/2 cup grated sharp cheese
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon minced onion
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Defrost asparagus by allowing to stand in main part of refrigerator away from freezing element about 2 hours. Prepare greased 1-quart casserole. Arrange alternate layers of toast cubes, asparagus, and grated cheese in casserole, reserving some toast cubes and cheese for the top. Combine egg, milk, salt, pepper, and onion. Pour over casserole ingredients. Sprinkle with melted butter or margarine. Do not cover. Bake in a moderate

Frozen Brussels Sprouts Baked in Parmesan Cream Sauce
1 package frozen Brussels sprouts
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste

The Brussels sprouts do not need to be defrosted. Turn them into greased 1-quart casserole and let stand while making sauce. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan and stir in the flour. Add the milk and cook while stirring until thickened. Melt cheese into hot sauce, then add lemon juice and remaining seasonings. Pour sauce over frozen Brussels sprouts. Cover casserole and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven at 350 degrees. Makes 4 servings.

FRUIT 'N' CHEESE SALAD—Everyone loves a fresh fruit salad for lunch. Make all your guests happy, even the dieters, with this pear and orange salad. Winter pears are as delicious in their way as summer ones. Cream cheese balls rolled in grated carrot and green pepper give the salad an extra fillip.

Fruit and Cheese Salad on Crisp Romaine Leaves

For your next luncheon or bridge party, serve refreshments that are deliciously different—something that will add to your reputation of being a chef supreme.

Results are guaranteed with Fruit 'n' Cheese Salad—a blend of juice-filled sweet pears, nippy cheese balls and colorful garnishes outlined with crisp romaine leaves. With such a universal favorite as fresh ripe pears, this salad will be welcome for any occasion.

If some of your friends are weight watchers, this is a salad they may enjoy to their heart's content with no thought of a guilty conscience. Fresh pears are well known for their comfortably low calorie content—only about 70 calories per pear but nevertheless, they are adequately sweet and completely satisfying.

Their sweetness is due to the large amount of levulose sugar—a substance that is very easily digested to produce pep and energy, that certain something, no one has in excess.

Cream cheese balls rolled in freshly grated carrot and green pepper provide extra minerals and vitamins and give the salad plate a "fresh from the garden" look. The flavor of nippy blue cheese in the cheese balls is a pleasant surprise once.

and is a fine blend with succulent fresh pears. Accompany with hot brown n' serve rolls from the oven and freshly made coffee and satisfaction is assured.

Fruit 'N' Cheese Salad
4 fresh ripe Anjou, Bosc or Comice pears
1 2-oz. package cream cheese
2 tablespoons blue cheese (crumbled)
2 tablespoons salad dressing
1 carrot, grated (1/2 cup)
1/2 cup green pepper, chopped fine
Salad greens
1 orange
Radish roses

Wash, halve and core fresh pears. Brush with French dressing. Soften cream cheese; add blue cheese and blend well. Divide into equal portions and form into 8 cheese balls. Dip in salad dressing to coat, roll in grated carrot and chopped green pepper which have been mixed together. Place cheese ball in center of pear half. Place on crisp greens. Arrange sections of orange along side pear halves.

Tasty Winter Dessert

Winter shortcake: Heat mince-meat in a saucepan and add a little rum or brandy flavoring. Split individual servings of sponge cake in two; spoon the hot mince-meat between the sponge cake and top with whipped cream. Serve at once.

MUSHROOM MEAT LOAF—Too much poultry and fancy food of all kinds begin to pall after just so long. A meat loaf will taste delicious. This family favorite takes on a new flavor when made with rolled oats and condensed cream of mushroom soup. The rolled oats add protein, the B-complex vitamins, minerals and food energy.

Give Family a Switch, Mushroom Meat Loaf

Mushroom Meat Loaf made with rolled oats, is a new variation of the ever-favorite meat loaf. Rolled flavor and texture, add protein, valuable B-complex vitamins, minerals and food energy at low cost. This recipe is so easy to prepare. The rolled oats are ready to use as they come from the box—no additional preparation is required. The mushroom flavor is added by the use of condensed cream of mushroom soup.

It is a good idea to increase this meat loaf recipe by one-half to have some meat loaf left over for future use. To prepare a quick main dish for a hot supper, slice the meat loaf into 1/2-inch thick slices and broil or pan fry until heated through and lightly browned.

Meat loaf sandwiches are so easy to make with a supply on hand in the freezer. Wrap individual slices of meat loaf in saran and freeze.

This pre-sliced meat loaf is ready for sandwiches with no additional fuss—a help to the busy homemaker with lunches to pack in the morning.

Rolling Oats Mushroom Meat Loaf
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup rolled oats, uncooked
1/2 pound ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup cold water or milk
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup

Mix all ingredients together thoroughly. Pack into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 1 hour. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain off excess juices and turn meat loaf onto serving plate. Serve with mushroom sauce and garnish, if desired, with heated, canned mushroom slices. Yield: 8 servings.

Note: To prepare mushroom sauce, then remaining 1/2 can of soup with milk as desired, and heat.

LOAF ANGEL FOOD—Slice it, toast it, roll it—the loaf angel food is heavenly! Pictured here are three serving ideas for the 8½ ounce mix. From top to bottom are: sliced angel sandwich, toasted angel slice with orange sauce and a Mary Jane (angel strip wrapped around ice cream sundae).

Try Angel Food Mix in Half-Size Package

No doubt about the heavenly qualities of Angel Food Cake—most of us wonder how we entertained before the mix came on the market.

We think the light and fluffy cake ideal for eating plain. Or we add whipped cream and fruit, and magically it becomes the most elegant of desserts.

About the only problem with angel cake is the size. Sometimes we wish for a smaller cake, one that stores and freezes easier—or fits a small family gathering.

Now even that "less than perfect" virtue has been solved by a new small package of mix now being introduced on grocery shelves in this area.

Exactly half of the usual 17 oz. angel food mix, the new small size angel food mix, fits perfectly into a loaf pan 8x2½", a tube pan 8x2½" or a 15x10x1" jelly roll pan. The new pan sizes add variety to your angel food bakings and make possible many new dessert recipes.

Many times the easiest recipes are the best. Bake a loaf angel food and try the three recipes below.

Pack the angel sandwich in the lunch box, serve the dressy "Mary Jane" for luncheon, and next day, brush angel slices with butter, broil and serve with orange sauce.

Ice Cream Sandwiches

Bake loaf angel food cake as directed on package of half-size Angel Cake Mix. Slice loaf cake crosswise into ½" slices. Cut each slice in half and put together with frosting between.

Toasted Angel Slices

Brush Angel Loaf slices with melted butter. Brown both sides lightly under broiler—about 1 min. on each side. Serve with Orange Butter Sauce (below).

Orange Butter Sauce

½ cup soft butter
½ cup sugar
2 egg yolks, beaten

1½ teaspoon grated orange rind ½ cup orange juice to cup milk

Cream butter and sugar. Stir in remaining ingredients and cook over hot water 10 to 15 min.

Mary Jane

Bake loaf angel food cake as directed on package of half-size Angel Cake Mix. Slice loaf cake lengthwise into ½" strips. Cut each strip into two long slices.

Wrap each slice around a scoop of ice cream. Fasten ends with toothpick. Freeze until serving time. Remove toothpick before serving. Top with sauce or fruit if desired.

Q. Where does it come from and how is it identified?

A. It is the ham end of the loin which contains the hip bone. The outer surface is covered with fat and there is some fat covering the tenderloin.

Q. How is it prepared?

A. By roasting—a dry heat method of meat cookery. The roast is placed fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan and placed in a 350 degree F. oven. Allow 45 to 50 minutes per pound for cooking or if using a roast meat thermometer, allow the internal temperature to reach 185 degrees F., the recommended internal temperature for pork to reach the well done stage.

Dainty Canapes Made With Cream Cheese

Dainty canapes can be whipped up in a jiffy by dressing up one 2-ounce package of cream cheese. Add ¼ cup crushed pineapple, ¼ teaspoon lemon peel; Or add ¼ cup orange marmalade, 2 tablespoons chopped pecans; Or add ¼ cup chopped bacon, 1 tablespoon minced olives; Or add ¼ cup liverwurst, 1 tablespoon pickle relish.

Make 4 sandwiches. Trim crusts and cut into dainty triangles or fingers.

Bake Casserole of Shrimp, Corn

The world-famous Manila Hotel in the Philippines probably doesn't know it, but it has sent us a shrimp recipe which takes advantage of the current surplus of canned corn in the United States.

The recipe came to the Shrimp Association of the Americas by way of a large airline company, which tells us that this Shrimp-Corn Casserole is a favorite not only with Manila Hotel guests but with the airline's crew members as well.

That's easy for us to understand because both shrimp and corn are popular in America. And now that canned corn is in such plentiful supply because of the abundance of last year's sweet-corn crop, new recipes are especially in demand.

Shrimp and Corn Casserole

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 cup grated cheese
½ cup broken uncooked noodles
1 cup canned whole kernel corn
1 (½ lb.) can shrimp
1 cup canned sliced mushrooms

Melt butter in saucepan. Remove from heat and blend in flour. Add salt. Return to heat and add milk slowly, stirring until smooth and sauce begins to bubble. Stir in ½ cup grated cheese. Set aside.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and place in casserole. Arrange corn, shrimp and mushrooms over noodles. Cover with sauce and mix gently. Sprinkle remaining cheese over casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees; about 30 minutes. Makes six servings.

Pineapple, Olives Make Zesty Salad

This fruit salad combination, co-starring pineapple and green olives, is a colorful wintertime salad to serve in lieu of the usual tossed green salad.

Pineapple and Green Olive Salad
1½ cups drained pineapple tidbits
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
½ cup sliced stuffed green olives
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 medium-sized head lettuce
¼ cup French dressing

Toss pineapple with onion, sliced olives and lemon juice. Chill. Break lettuce into small pieces, add pineapple mixture and dressing. Toss lightly. Serves 6.

Add Pineapple to Pecan Tarts

Even the oldest and best recipe can do with a bit of up-dating now and then. In the case of today's recipe for Pecan Tarts, it seems to us it's an improvement with the addition of pineapple tidbits and we think you'll agree.

The pineapple tidbits cut the intense sweetness, and the flavor blends with the pecans, brown sugar and light corn syrup in a delightful way.

When you need a party dessert, do try this old favorite in a new guise.

Pineapple Pecan Tarts

1¼ cups recipe for basic pastry
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar (packed)
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 cup pecan halves
1 can (No. 2) pineapple tidbits (drained)
Whipped cream

Divide pastry into several small balls for easier handling. Roll and cut into rounds a little larger than tart pans or muffin cups to be used.

Fit pastry into tart pans and flute edges if plain pans are used. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees) 5 to 8 minutes. Remove. Reduce oven heat to moderate (350 degrees).

Soften butter and mix in brown sugar, flour and salt. Beat in eggs and corn syrup. Chop or break up one-half cup of the pecans. Stir chopped pecans and drained pineapple into filling. Pour into tart shells.

Place remaining pecan halves around outer edge of each tart. Bake in moderate oven 35 to 45 minutes, until firm. Cool. Remove carefully from tart pans. Top each with a puff of whipped cream. Makes 8 to 12 tarts, depending on size.

Note: Baking the tart shells several minutes before the filling goes in helps to avoid a soggy bottom crust; also make it easier to remove from tart pans.

New Vegetable Twist

Here's a bright and lovely way to serve up a vegetable on a gloomy winter day! Prepare 10 small carrots for cooking—dicing or slicing 'em. Put into a saucepan and add ¼ cup water and ¼ cup (quick-frozen) Lemonade; cover and cook until tender.

PINEAPPLE PECAN TARTS—Pass a tray filled with these luscious fruited pecan tarts and watch your guests "dig in." Pineapple added to an old favorite, pecan tarts, cuts the sweetness and adds to the deliciousness of the dessert.

Peanut Butter Base for Crisp Cookies

Nice for small fry and their accompanying mothers!

Peanut Butter Crisps

1 cup flour (do not sift before measuring) ½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup peanut butter
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup dark brown sugar
1 egg

Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt. Cream butter, peanut butter and sugars; beat in egg thoroughly. Mix in sifted dry ingredients until blended.

Drop by small teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheet a couple of inches apart. Press flat with back of spoon, then press down again with fork tines. Dip spoon and fork in flour as necessary.

Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven about 10 minutes. Makes about 5½ dozen.

Make Griddle Cakes With Corn Meal

If your family greets a griddle cake breakfast with glee, there's news in the corn meal and molasses additions in this recipe.

Corn Meal Griddle Cakes

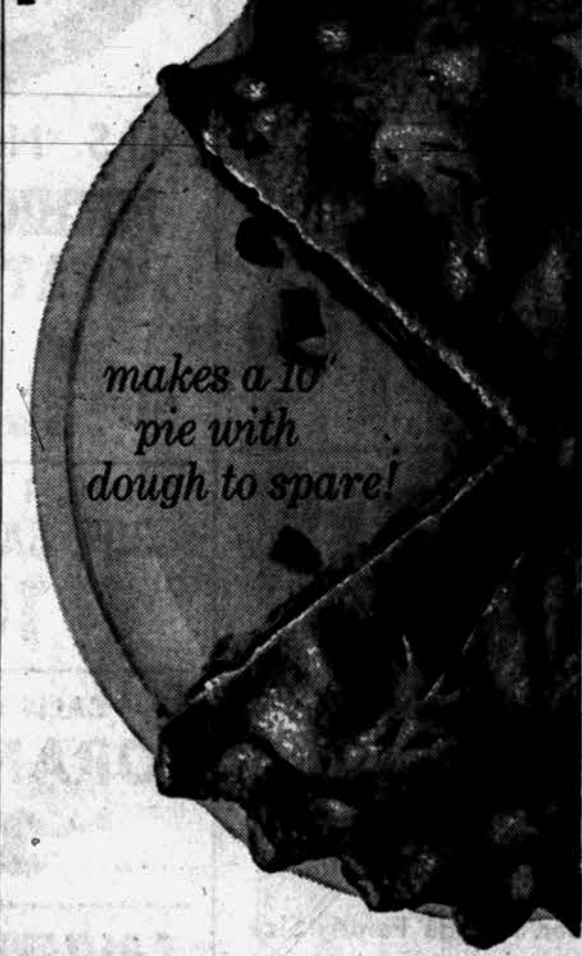

1 cup yellow corn meal
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons New Orleans molasses
¼ cup melted butter

Sift together corn meal, flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg; add milk. Combine with dry ingredients. Add molasses and butter, mixing until smooth. Drop by spoonfuls on hot griddle, spreading thin. Bake, turning to brown on both sides. Serves four.

Add Celery to Seafood

A half cup of finely diced celery is about right to add to a cup of crabmeat for a seafood cocktail. Serve with Russian dressing or a regular tomato cocktail sauce.

Fine Applesauce Easy to Prepare

Everyone likes applesauce, the kind that "mother used to make." Although mothers seemed to have their own way of making it, the result was the same—good—always so good that the flavors have lingered on, pleasant memories for many of us ever since.

In many a home during fall and winter months, Saturday was the paring and coring time, the day for making up a batch of applesauce. And we always looked forward to warm applesauce with cream for Saturday lunch.

Today, with no paring and coring or even slicing, you can have applesauce "the way mother used to make it" three times a day, if you want it.

If you like your applesauce sweet, open your favorite ready-to-serve applesauce, add a little sugar (some use brown sugar), stir and enjoy it. If you prefer it tart, a little lemon juice will do the trick.

If you like it on the thick side, empty a can or jar of applesauce into a saucepan and gently boil it down to the way you like it.

Then again, if your preference is for thin sauce, maybe on the sweet and sour side, add a little water, sugar and lemon juice to the apple sauce in the pan and just bring it to the boiling point. Stir and let cool.

Perhaps you, like many, remember the intriguing warm apple flavor. Then season to taste, heat to bubbling. There's another favorite applesauce made of whole slices of apple. For this there are delicious ready-to-serve apple slices. Simply add a little sugar to the juice in the can or jar and, if you wish, a little lemon juice, too.

Unique Sauce Lends Distinction to Poultry

Here's a busy-day supper dish you'll love to serve. It's creamed chicken or turkey... but with a wonderful difference!

Sauce is made by combining one can each of frozen condensed cream of potato soup (10½ ounces) and frozen condensed green pea with ham soup (10½ ounces) with ½ cup cans of water. Add a can (8 ounces) of boned chicken or turkey; heat, stirring often, until piping. Presto! Four elegant servings over buttery toast.

WEE SALMON LOAVES — Delicious individual salmon loaves and tangy pickle relish are enriched with nonfat milk. They're wonderful eating and full of goodness. Use the miniature bread pans that are available anywhere nowadays, or individual casseroles will do just as well.

Now's the Time to Collect Unusual Recipes for Lent

Lent has just begun. You are probably collecting meatless recipes for the next six weeks.

In any event, we think you'll welcome this one for individual salmon loaves with pickle relish sauce.

These well-seasoned loaves are enriched with instant nonfat milk. So it the sauce. Therefore your main dish will be more than delicious; it will carry its weight in nutrition, as well.

Individual Salmon Loaves
1 cup (one 1-pound can) red salmon, flaked
1 cup crushed salted soda crackers
1 cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 cup instant nonfat dry milk powder
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne pepper
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup water
Mix together all ingredients. Place in four well-buttered small

Make Up Your Own Ready-Mix

In this "do-it-yourself" era, homemakers are always on the lookout for shortcuts which make planning of nutritious meals for the family easier.

And that's as it should be. For there are approximately 21 million women employed and of these, the working wives outnumber single career girls two to one.

One working mother suggested a homemade biscuit mix, and this was developed by home economists in a dairy test kitchen.

This "do-it-yourself" biscuit mix, called Star Blend, has excellent keeping qualities because it is made with dry milk and will keep in a cool place for several weeks.

Our Star Blend speeds up the preparation of hot biscuits or muffins, toppings for meat pies, fruit cobbles, waffles and even cinnamon pinwheels. To be exact, our Star Blend recipe makes 16 cups of the mix.

Star Blend
16 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 cups instant nonfat dry milk powder
1 tablespoon double-acting baking powder
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups shortening

Canned Goods Labels Worth While Reading

A full shelf of canned foods is just like having a garden, an orchard, and a butcher shop always ready for use. To be extra thrifty, take an inventory of cupboard space and check foods now offered on special sales suggests Consumer Marketing Information Agent Mrs. Josephine Lawyer.

Read the labels. Labels are picture windows to help the customer get the product, the brand, the size, and the style pack he wants.

Onion Soup Mix Enhances Beans

It has been said that the progress of the early settlers of America westward could be traced by the bits of broken beanpots found at their campsites. Beans were the staple diet of most of those overland travelers.

Pioneers from New England met pioneers from the South on the long journey, and exchanged beans and ways of cooking them. By the time the big Western ranches were built up, the sagebrush and cactus country was noted for its many ingenious ways of cooking beans.

Here's a ranch-style baked casserole that's easy to make. It combines supply-self items—canned pork and beans in tomato sauce, canned kidney beans and, to add fine flavor, a package of onion soup mix.

Hearty and savory, this casserole is ready to serve after half an hour in the oven.

The addition of onion soup mix to this wonderful bean pot emphasizes the possibility of using onion soup mix to give the finishing touch of goodness to all sorts of hearty dishes.

Ranch-Style Baked Bean Casserole
2 tablespoons butter or fat
1 pound beef chuck, ground
1 package onion soup mix
½ cup water
1 cup catsup
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons cider vinegar
2 1-pound cans pork and beans in tomato sauce
1 1-pound can kidney beans, drained

In skillet, heat butter or fat and brown ground beef. Stir in remaining ingredients. Pour into a bean pot or two-quart casserole. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 10-12 servings.

Combine Corn With Spinach in Creamy Dish

Pleasant way to serve spinach: team it with corn and bacon!

Creamed Spinach and corn
1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach
1 can (12 ounces) whole-kernel corn
1 package (2 ounces) whole-kernel corn
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
Salt
Pepper
Nutmeg

Cook spinach according to package directions; drain thoroughly. Drain corn; add enough milk to the corn liquid to make 1½ cups.

Melt butter in medium-sized skillet over low heat; stir in flour. Add milk mixture; cook and stir constantly over moderately low heat until bubbly and thickened.

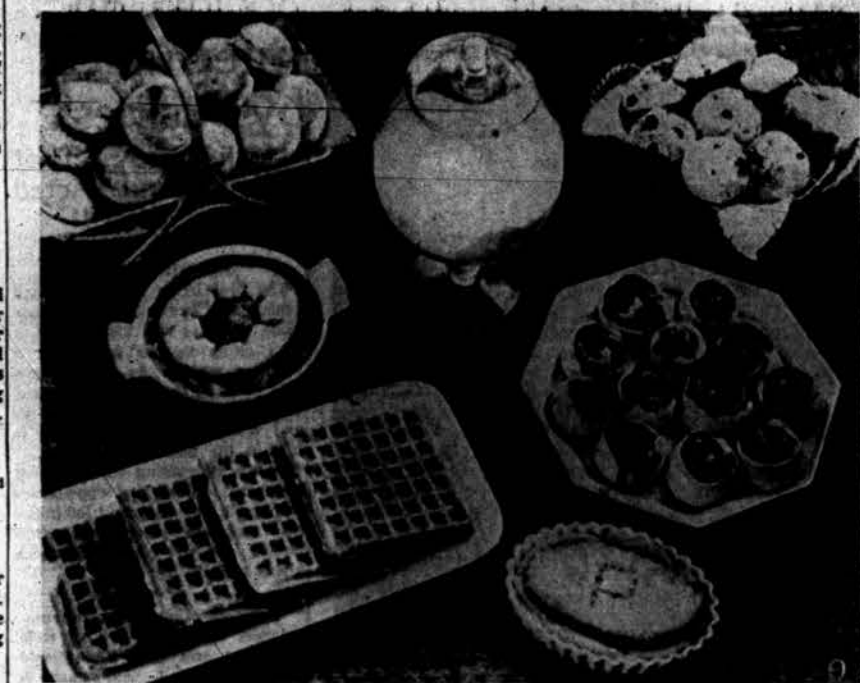

Add drained spinach and drained corn; mix and add salt and pepper to taste. Add nutmeg in minute amounts so you have enough of this spice to add a haunting rather than a pronounced flavor. Reheat gently. Makes 6 servings.

Note: If you want to use leftover chopped cooked spinach, you'll need 1½ cups.

Angel Coconut Balls Are Heavenly Dessert

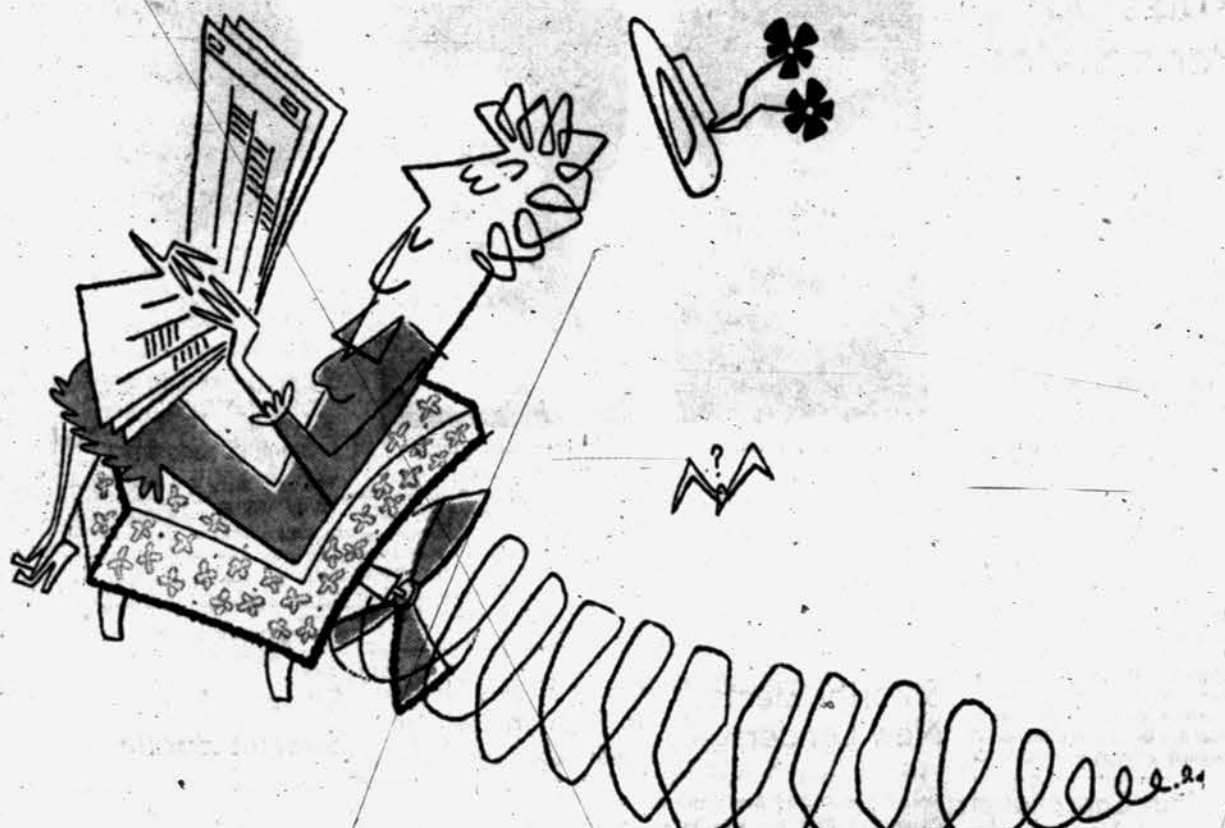

Serve angel coconut balls for a simple, quick "company dessert." Bake an angel food cake from the new small mix package, as directed, in a loaf pan. When cool, cut cake into pieces about two inches square. Gently mold into rounded shape.

Cover with fluffy white frosting (a mix is perfect for this, too,) and roll in moist shredded coconut. Or carry out your color scheme by tinting the coconut with the green or pink food coloring.

STAR BLEND — The key to all these delicious food items is the Star Blend recipe made with instant nonfat dry milk. This homemade biscuit mix was used in all of the recipes displayed

Medical Auxiliary Holds Annual Guest Gathering

Mrs. Kenneth Vandenberg, general chairman, revealed plans for the annual fashion show and card party. The affair will be held April 25 at 1:30 p.m. in Birmingham Com-

Social Call Interrupted by Business

Hostess Says That Her Friend Acted Rather Miffed

By EMILY POST

The first letter in today's mail explains: "The other afternoon while a friend was visiting me, a man came to see me about a business matter. As the business was of a rather personal nature, I asked my friend to excuse me and went into another room to talk to the man.

"After concluding my business, I returned to my friend who seemed rather put out for being left alone and took her leave soon afterwards. Will you please tell me if I was rude to my guest?"

Answer: Under the circumstance, there was nothing rude in what you did. You should have concluded your business with him as quickly as possible so as not to leave your guest sitting alone too long.

"Dear Mrs. Post: We are four women who have been neighbors for a good many years and play cards together once a week. About seven months ago the daughter of one of the women became engaged and we were invited to the engagement party. We each gave her very nice gifts.

"This daughter was married two months ago. Only close relatives were invited to the wedding. We understood and did not feel slighted. We have been told that the bride's mother is very much hurt because we did not send her daughter wedding presents.

"As we were not invited to the wedding we did not think wedding presents were expected. Will you please tell us if we were wrong, and if we should send presents now?"

Answer: Not being invited to the wedding was certainly not obligated to send wedding presents—especially since you all gave her engagement presents.

Dear Mrs. Post: When two women and a man enter a taxicab, how should they be seated? Do the two women sit side by side and the man on the end, or does he sit between them?"

Answer: He sits at the end after having helped both the women in.

Among the guests at the dinner was Mrs. Robert Shorey (left) of Wenonah drive. She arrived with Mrs. R. Hamilton White of Birmingham. Mrs. Bruce Bauer (right) of Madison Heights is a member of the auxiliary.

Margaret Rules Out Paris Styles

LONDON (INS) — Princess Margaret turned her royal thumbs down at Paris fashion dictates yesterday and showed she had a mind of her own when it comes to wearing suits.

The British princess proved she liked figure-flattering suits in preference to the loose-fitting, unrevealing fashions that Paris designers exhibited for spring.

Princess Margaret visited the London "ideal homes" exhibition dressed in a trim black suit with a rounded hipline that clearly defined her 23-inch waist. The suit had a flat, reversed collar which revealed a dainty white blouse worn beneath.

Her hat was a spotted velvet turban worn well on the brow, instead of the Paris-decried off-the-face chapeau style. Princess Margaret completed her revolt against Paris-inspired fashions by wearing rounded court shoes instead of pointed French models.

Explain Cancellation of April 12 Concert

The officers of Waterford Township Civic Music Association announce that the program scheduled for April 12 by the famous Swiss family, the Englekinder, has been canceled. A replacement for this program is being arranged.

The entire American tour of the Englekinder was canceled because of an automobile accident which occurred while they were en route to the airport to fly to America. Everyone in the family was injured and most of their 125 instruments were damaged.

The next concert in the series featuring the Rabinoffs, violin and piano team, will be presented as scheduled on March 16.

Old Command Vehicle Returns Home

President Happily Receives Historic Car

WASHINGTON (INS) — A delighted President Eisenhower was presented with a surprise gift yesterday—a travel-worn 1942 Cadillac with 67,000 miles on its speedometer and an historic past.

The 15-year-old automobile was the one used by Eisenhower throughout World War II, first at his London headquarters and later during the allied drive across Europe.

Wearing a fresh coat of olive drab paint, it was delivered to the private driveway of the White House yesterday unknown to the President.

MAMIE HELPS OUT
Mrs. Eisenhower joined in a bit of deception to lure her husband from his office, sending word she wanted to see him in another part of the White House.

When he arrived, she led him outside smilingly and watched him break into a big grin as he said in astonishment: "It's my old command car." Master Sergeant Leonard Dry, the President's driver during World War II, was

For the reception held in the church parlors, Mrs. Gregory chose a light blue silk dress with matching accessories and Mrs. Buttram chose a pink wool dress with white accessories.

INSPECTION TOURS

Eisenhower used the car for inspection tours as he directed the allied advance across France from his headquarters in Paris.

He also used the car when he motored to Rheims on the historic night of May 7, 1945, when the Germans surrendered.

The aging Cadillac was sent to Geneva to surprise Eisenhower when he attended the Big Four conference in July 1955.

It had been returned to Washington for his use during his postwar tour of duty as Army chief of staff and was kept available in New York City during his later tour as president of Columbia University.

Eisenhower took the automobile back with him to Paris when he returned to active duty in the Army, as supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Cute nursery type figures are embroidered on the scalloped yoke of this cotton frock. Collar and cuffs are of white rayon linen edged with tiny blue piping.

Edith Small of California features a handsome silk taffeta gown in delft blue and white with a folded bodice and an ankle-length softly pleated skirt fashioned of blue and white squares. This strapless gown is an excellent first choice of spring festivities.

Jump Off Merry-Go-Round Into Bathtub

Every career girl, however popular, should jump off the social merry-go-round at least one evening a week. Her energy gives out even if her list of invitations doesn't. What about devoting that one night to beauty?

Right after dinner, wash and set your hair. When that's done, run a hot, soapy tub. As the tub is filling, thoroughly cleanse your face with a good complexion soap, rinse and massage in your favorite face cream.

Then, with a good book within easy reach, step into your hot bath, prepared to spend a leisurely period, letting the hot water remove tension and strain. The steam from the bath will help your face cream do its best for you, too.

When you get out of the tub, remove the cream with tissue, and you've arrived at a perfect time to take out those straggly eyebrows. The cream will have softened the skin.

Then splash cold water on your face and see how refreshed you feel.

A pedicure would be next in order, since your feet and toenails, too, will have been softened by the relaxing bath.

After that, prop yourself up in bed for your hand care.

For beauty chores requiring something absorbent, but somewhat sturdier than tissue, try paper towels. You can get them in pretty colors to match your bathroom or bedroom.

Try to round out your "beauty date" with a good night's sleep. And see how well you'll feel and how pretty you'll look in the morning.

Study Job Before You 'Marry' It

By ANNE HEYWOOD
Everybody knows that it pays to be engaged to a person long enough to know him well, and to be reasonably sure that he's the one you want to spend your life with.

But when it comes to jobs, how can you protect yourself from dashing into the wrong one? You can't have a long engagement with the employer, before "marrying" the job.

As Bill N. puts it, "I accepted in haste, now I'm repenting at leisure. I'll be looking for another job before long and I'd appreciate some pointers on how to keep from making another mistake."

"I know the field I want and the kind of job. But how can I tell a good company from a bad one; how can I tell a decent employer from a bad one?"

First of all, find out what you can about the company from your town's Better Business Bureau.

Check with the local library, and see if any of the business reference books have items about the company or the man who will be interviewing you.

INCREASES POISE

This is not only a precaution; it will help you to have more poise during the interview. Remember, the more you know about a man and his company, the more at ease you'll be.

Second, really look at the premises. See if the receptionist looks happy — or harassed. See if the people you encounter in the halls look calm or upset.

Watch the great man's secretary. Is she scared of her shadow or does she really seem at ease?

Third, how does the great man act? Is he pleasant and business-like or is he overly charming? Too much charm in the interview usually means that he is insecure, has a horrible temper, or privately thinks the job is not so hot.

Fourth, does he try to rush you, to get you to accept without sufficient time to think it over? Too great pressure is a danger sign.

TRIAL BASIS

Fifth, try hard to get him to agree to a month's trial basis. Actually, you're on trial anyway, because if he doesn't like you he can let you go any time.

But to have it on a trial basis means that you have a chance to get acquainted. You can leave with no hard feelings if the job turns out to be wrong.

If this is a problem of yours, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope care of The Pontiac Press and I'll send you my pamphlet, How to Get a Job Without Contacts.

Envoy, Wife Entertain With Flair France's Alphands Stress Informality at Their Parties

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — The French Ambassador and Mrs. Herve Alphand have injected a new and personal note of gaiety and sophistication into Embassy Row partying.

Informality is a keynote. The parties are relatively small, with 60 about the limit for evening affairs.

The food is excellent. The talk, bypassing politics and problems of diplomacy, is lively and stimulating.

Contributing most, however, are the hosts themselves, who give generously of their diverse talents — he as a mimic and witty raconteur, the beautiful Claude as an accomplished singer and guitarist.

Everyone has a chance to get acquainted. Everyone has a chance — rare at Washington parties — to sit down.

SELF-SERVICE

At late supper parties around a U-shaped table, dishes like ravioli with meat sauce, beef Burgoyne, jellied meats and salads are already on the table and guests serve themselves, with the waiters passing the soup, champagne and dessert.

Mrs. Alphand's somewhat husky, haunting singing is individual, full of style and expression. By her naturalness, you know she loves to sing.

During World War II, while her husband was working with the French underground, she sang at a chic New York supper club. She also has made recordings.

In dress, the willowy blonde adheres to a style of her own rather than acting as a model to promote the fashions of any one of her country's leading couturiers, as do many prominent French women.

She seems to favor slim skirts with softly tailored, long-sleeved silk blouses. For jewelry she twines ropes of pearls about her throat and wears smallish pearl earrings.

IMPORTANT PROJECTS

After arriving in the capital, the envoy's wife took on two important projects. She began lessons in English, and she began redecorating the formerly rather gloomy Normandy-style embassy with a light, young look.

Her flair for color and line is especially noteworthy in the solarium, where she has used a single tone of soft gray in velvet, silk and cottons to cover sofas and chairs and form window drapes against the white walls and a handsome black and white handwoven rug.

Crunchy Top on Cookies Is Nutty

Mrs. Lucas Likes Speedy Preparation of Two-Layer Bars

By JANET ODELL

Pontiac Press Home Editor Today's recipe is for a delicious cookie. It is one we have made many times and know that it is popular. If you happen to have anyone in your family allergic to the nut meats, just omit them. Sometimes we substitute an equal amount of dry cereal.

Mrs. Charles Lucas is our cook. As a working woman and the mother of twin teenage boys, she is a busy woman. She does church work, belongs to the Mothers' Club of the Boys Club and the Parliamentary Study Club.

DREAM BARS

By Mrs. Charles Lucas

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sifted flour
1/2 cup light brown sugar

Blend together with pastry blender as for pie crust and pat in 11x16 inch pan. Bake in 325-degree oven for 10 minutes or until light brown.

4 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups brown sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups coconut
1 cup nut meats, cut up

Mix all together and spread on top of first mixture. Bake another 25 minutes. When cool cut in squares.

Household Hint

To remove offensive odors from hands after cutting onions or garlic, after washing dishes — rub them with sliced lemon. Lemon not only removes offensive cooking odors and stains, but keeps your hands

You can avoid white deposits on by sprinkling the pans with cocoa the next chocolate cake you bake instead of flour.

Says Girls Receive Silly Advice

Famed Violinist Remains Bachelor

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
Kenneth Gordon, a brilliant young violinist, began his career at the age of 12 when he was soloist with the NBC Symphony under Leopold Stokowski.

The following year he was soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society under the direction of Rudolph Ganz. Since then he has performed with the Rhode Island Philharmonic and has given many recitals in the United States and in Europe.

Mr. Gordon made his Town Hall debut in 1945. Enthusiastic reviews followed. On the 28th of last month he made his fourth appearance in that distinguished spot.

During his Army service from 1951-53 he gave over 200 recitals for the troops and played for President and Mrs. Syngman Rhee and the Korean cabinet.

Kenneth Gordon is 26 years old. When queried in New York the other day about how such a talented and attractive young man has managed to remain single, he replied, "Maybe it is because I have always found my violin is a kind of passport to interesting encounters with fabulous people, some of them women. I have not been lonely for feminine companionship."

A BIT BEWILDERED
He appeared somewhat bewildered because when the press discovered that he is a bachelor they were almost more interested in his ideas about women than in the latest first-hand reports of the European music scene or the daily life of a concert artist.

He found Mrs. Rhee charming. At a reception given for him after a recital in Cannes he met the beautiful Begum, wife of the Aga Khan.

Last December when in Europe he was invited to play for Prince Rainier and Princess Grace and a few guests at their palace in Monaco and afterward had tea with them. So this young man's opinion concerning how a gal gets her man should be quite enlightening.

He said, seriously, "I think girls and women have been given silly advice on this subject for years. People act as though a man is a kind of prize to be pampered, cajoled and maneuvered, not another human being to be interested in like any other friend."

I have been suggesting in this column for a long time that men are human beings, not a race apart and that the woman who treats them so is charming. Watch for Kenneth Gordon's ideas on this subject.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Keeping Romance Alive" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 63 to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

Tomorrow: "Exercise Can't Harm Complexion—Might Help."

Pat Boone Threatens Presley's Vocal Supremacy

Elvis Loses Large Chunk of His Teenage Following

By EUGENE GILBERT
President of the Gilbert Youth Research Co.

Singer Elvis Presley's phenomenal popularity among the nation's teenagers seems to have taken a nosedive.

As recently as last October, our countrywide survey showed that a whopping 35 per cent of all youngsters questioned considered the guitar-strumming squirmers their favorite male vocalist.

But going over the same territory again, we find that his rating has skidded to 21 per cent. That's still a hefty following — and also a remarkable decline.

Moreover, a full 35 per cent of the teenagers admitted liking Elvis less now than they did last year.

"He's nothing anymore," a 16-year-old girl put it. "Last year he was news. Today he's just another wiggler."

LIKE THE REST
"Last year I used to think Elvis was the sexiest male alive," another high school girl observed. "But I can see now that he'll become just another commercial singer, like the rest."

"Hollywood's got him," a boy commented glumly. "The personal appeal he had for all of us teenagers is gone forever."

Those, of course, represent extreme viewpoints. They must be balanced against the fact that Presley—who has managed to inspire almost as much antagonism in adults as he produced veneration in the younger set—still reigns supreme in the affection of 21 per cent of the teenagers covered by our survey.

Moreover, 12 per cent, predominantly in the 13-15 age group, declared they found their hero even more resplendent than before. His recent movie, "Love Me Tender," apparently helped spark that particular counter-trend.

"Elvis was the very end in that movie," one girl gloved, in the feverish tradition of the Presley cult. "I bet someday he gets an Academy Award."

A HAPPY DAZE
"I sat through 'Love Me Tender' three times in one afternoon," another girl bubbled. "I was in a happy daze for a week afterward."

All of which doesn't alter the chilly statistical evidence of the idol's 14 per cent popularity decline. Who's threatening to fill his shoes?

Our survey shows Pat Boone moving up strongly. He now ranks tops with nearly 13 per cent of the youthful balloters.

Speaking for this group, one girl fluted: "You can take Elvis and give him back to the Indians. I'll take Pat any day."

Echoing approval, a high school boy thought Boone "really quite a guy. Look at him supporting a family and going to school as well as being a successful singer. . . . He's terrific."

PRESLEY PROPHECIES
Another straw in the wind, possibly, may be in the teeners' prophecies on Presley's future.

Thirty-nine per cent of the boys and 33 per cent of the girls thought the Elvis craze would run its course within less than a year.

Forty-two per cent of the girls and 31 per cent of the lads gave him from one to two years of peak popularity. 8.5 and 17 per cent, respectively, figured two to four years more, while the rest thought the side-burned rock 'n' roller wouldn't fade for another four years yet.

"We like him," a Duluth, Minn., girl asserted, "but you can't expect a fad to go on forever."

If Presley is losing some favor in tandem, what of the music of which he is the most spectacular exponent?

By and large, rock 'n' roll seems to have thumped along on a steady course, though here too we detect a slight decrease in customer interest.

Some 68 per cent of the youngsters remain fully devoted to it. Twenty-four per cent of the boys and 14 per cent of the girls say they like it even more today than last year; but 16 per cent of the girls and 10 per cent of the boys find it has palled on them a little.

ANOTHER 4 YEARS
Anyhow, 57 per cent of the boys and 33 per cent of the girls feel the music is certainly good for another four years of high popularity.

Only 10 per cent of the girls and 6.5 per cent of the boys feel it's apt to fade away in less than two years.

Said a Rhode Island girl: "Why, rock 'n' roll is basic. It shouldn't go in and out of fashion."

But one Wyoming girl felt jaded. "You sure get tired of that steady rhythm," she complained. "I can't see people listening to it much longer. I bet that a year from now rock 'n' roll will be obsolete."

Widowers Make Mistake Seeking Younger Wives

Older Romeos Are Often Cast Away When Their Money Runs Out

By RUTH MILLETT

Memo to men who become widowers in their late middle years: Better look around for a wife as old as you are or even a few years older, instead of a woman years younger.

That advice comes from a woman who has worked for years in a convalescent home.

She has seen what frequently happens to the middle-aged man who hasn't enough sense to marry a woman near his own age, one who needs his companionship as much as he needs hers, and who is willing to make a good home for him in his late years.

She says: "A lot of widowers in the late 50s and 60s are egotistical and about as foolishly romantic as a 17-year old."

"Instead of looking for a second wife among widows their own age—they decide they want a young wife."

"If they have some money, or can convince a younger woman that they are well-fixed, they can always find one who is tired of working, wants to be supported, wants a car, nice clothes, etc., and is willing to kid the older man along in his belief that he is as young as he thinks he is and twice as attractive."

NO REAL LOVE

"But young women don't often love older men and when the money goes, so does the pretense of love. And when he hits the 70s and needs to be looked after, he winds up in a nursing home."

"I've heard the same old story so many times, it amazes me that men can be so dumb."

Well, there it is, men. It's not a very romantic picture and not one you'll enjoy facing.

But before you decide that even though you are pushing 60 you are just as young as most men of 40, and what you want is a young wife, maybe you'd better think again.

There's one fact you can't escape. In 10 years a man of 40 will be 50. And in 10 years a man of 60 will be 70.

Don't overlook that important difference when you choose a wife.

To launder wool, silk or blends of these with other fibers, researchers advise using unbleached synthetic detergents. Only this type is non-alkaline and is safest for wool and silk and some dyes that an alkaline product might harm.

Longest Mile for Baseball Rookie -- Jaunt From Tigertown to Ball Field

By BRUNO KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

LAKELAND—One of the longest miles in the life of a baseball rookie aiming for the big leagues is the stretch from Tigertown to Henley Field on Route 92 in Lakeland, Florida.

Each year invitations go out to about 50 of the best prospects in the Tiger farm system to report to the instructional school at Tigertown.

These young hopefuls show their best playing forms under the watchful eyes of a 14-man staff of coaches, and when spring training officially opens at Henley Field all eyes turn to the list of names of those who will get into the intra-squad games with the regulars.

Another 200 farmhands report to Tigertown each spring from where they are assigned to the respective minor league teams hoping that the following year they will be one of the invited group for the instructional school.

A crack at Henley Field is the first step from Tigertown, because it is here that they get to bat, run, throw and play against already seasoned Major Leaguers.

From Henley the next step upward could be Briggs Stadium in Detroit.

For the rookie and regular alike there is a great transition from the boyhood stage of baseball to the professional stage. Baseball as strictly a recreational activity is not so in the professional ranks.

"We can have fun playing baseball," Jack Tighe told the 1957 squad when they reported for spring training last week, "but I want an honest day's work from each of you," he pointed out.

Baseball here is a job, everything else afterward is recreation.

When the "work" is done and the spikes are hung up for the day, the leisure hours are spent at the ping pong tables, card tables, television sets, record machines, at the book shelves or for the married, with their families.

This is what makes Tigertown a unique thing. It is a village with housing facilities for 350. It is a baseball community where the residents all are of the same profession.

It has its bus service, its own cafeteria, and recreational quarters. For the "working day" it has four well conditioned diamonds, an observation tower, big clubhouse, batting cages, a line of pitching mounds, special practice infields and a "trap wall" for instruction on trapping short hop hits.

For 10 weeks each year Tigertown is a thriving community and for the next 42 weeks it again becomes a ghost town.

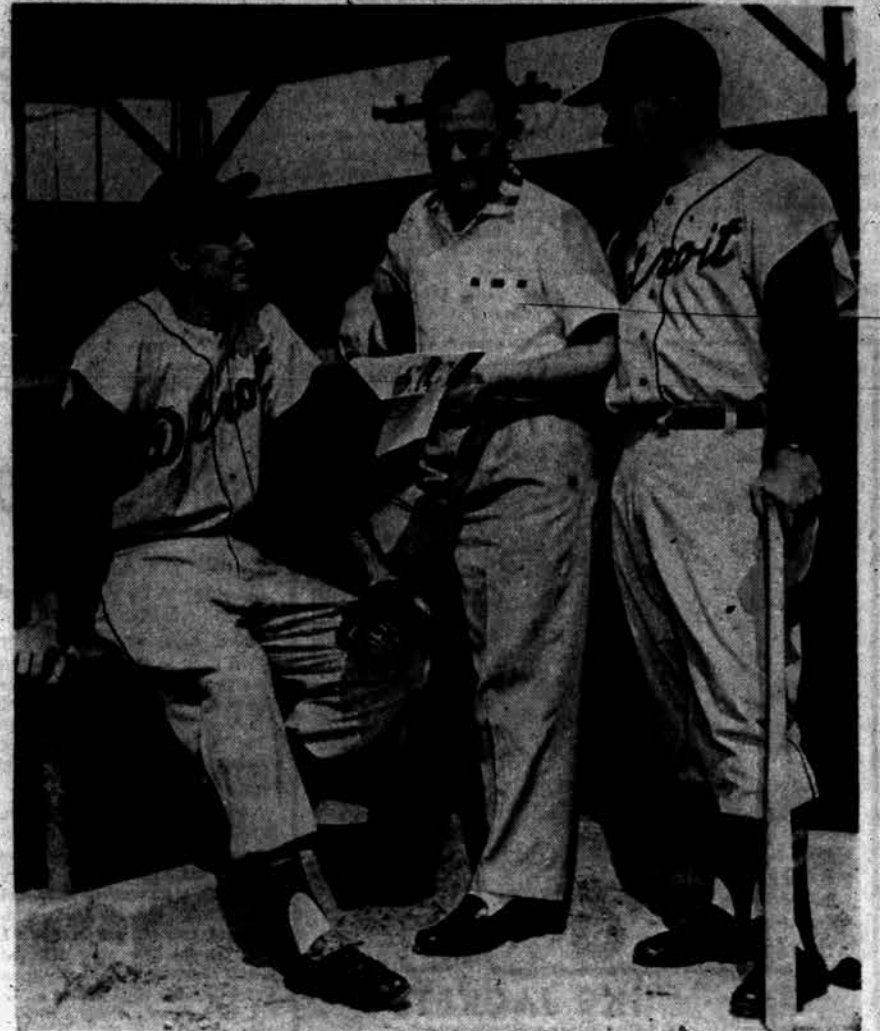

The men of Tigertown take somewhat the forms of Jekyll and Hyde. Take Steve Gromek for instance, who uses his arms all afternoon throwing, is often using his legs in the evening, strolling with his wife and three children.

Husky Frank House crouches behind a mask for hours during the day, and in the evening instead of his paraphanelia he puts on an apron to help with the dinner.

Ray Boone does something "different" when he gets home. He gets out a baseball and play catch with his youngsters.

The rookies and the coaches get together quite often at the card table or with the ping pong paddles. Charley Maxwell heads for the easy chair and the television set, and Harvey Kuenn finds all the baseball news he can find to see how the other Major League players are doing.

This is life at Lakeland, winter home of the Tigers.

NEVER TOO BUSY FOR THE PRESS—Genial Jack Tighe (right) who was chosen as the man to guide the Tigers out of the second division is never too busy to give a newspaper man a statement for Tiger fans to read. Pontiac Press Sports Editor Bruno L. Kearns (center) gets an optimistic line from Tighe and Al Kaline (left), at Henley Field in Lakeland.

FOUR BIG GUNS—On the playing field during the work day, these are the four big guns who are expected to lead the Tigers into the first division. All hit over .300 last year for Detroit. Left to right are Harvey Kuenn, Al Kaline, Ray Boone and Charley Maxwell.

ROOKIE CARD SHARKS—Bob Miller, Ken Walters, and Larry Donovan play three-handed while Larry Osborne (standing left) and Inman Veal, Tigertown rookie, engage in some kibitzing.

COOKING CATCHER—Frank House makes no secret about his cooking. His wife Rudy, who watches him behind the plate on the baseball field, must often watch him in front of the plate dishing out the food in their little cottage near Tigertown.

Greg 7 and Brian 4, undisturbed about taking a walk around Tigertown in a light drizzle. Gromek, Tiger relief pitcher, hails from Hamtramck.

Ebben Named to MVC Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Detroit's Bill Ebben and Drake's Phil (Red) Murrell, the second and third highest scorers in conference history, and Barney Cable of Bradley were unanimous choices on the 1957 Missouri Valley basketball all-star team named today by The Associated Press.

Joining this high-scoring front line on the first team were a pair of hot-shooting six-foot guards,

Harold Alcorn of St. Louis and Joe Stevens of Wichita. The team was chosen in a poll of Valley sportswriters and sportscasters.

Tam Members Show Golf, Baseball Films

An evening of motion picture entertainment has been arranged for Pontiac High School March 15, according to announcement today from John Montz, caddy superintendent at Tam O'Shanter Country Club. Club members are sponsors for the show, Montz says. It will start at 7 p.m.

Interesting shots of golf and baseball will be offered, and any one interested is invited. Pictures include films made of the last World Series baseball game.

District Favorites Prevail; Mikes, Avon Win

By BILL CORNWELL

There were cheers on one side and tears on the other as the district basketball tournaments got under way Wednesday night in Oakland County.

Favorites prevailed in the opening rounds of Class B-C district play at four county sites—Pontiac, Troy, Bloomfield Hills and Farmington.

The stage was set for a St. Michael-St. Frederick rematch tonight at Pontiac High after the Mikes survived a scare by South Lyon. St. Mike and the Rams met twice during the regular season and divided the spoils.

Avondale resisted the challenge of Lake Orion in the Pontiac High gym and Troy uncorked a robust 4th quarter to eliminate Romeo at Troy. Farmington rallied to nip Redford St. Mary on the Farmington court.

West Bloomfield was sidelined by Orchard Lake St. Mary in the Bloomfield Hills gym and inexperienced Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows had no chance against Almont at Pontiac.

Other Oakland schools playing in district centers outside the county were doomed to disappointment. Holly bowed to Grand Blanc on the latter's floor and Orionville was ousted by Flint Bentley at Flint Mandevelille.

Memphis came through in Class D with an easy win over tiny Clintonville at Troy. Memphis advanced to the state quarter-finals last year.

St. Michael and Almont in Class C and Avondale in the 'B' ranks were still alive today after Wednesday night's 1st round action in the district basketball tournament at Pontiac High.

St. Mike, showing a definite case of journey jitters, gave one of its poorest performances of the season, but still managed to get by South Lyon 35-33 on Bob Mine-weaser's field goal with only 12 seconds remaining.

Avondale encountered many ups and downs before ousting Lake Orion 48-40 in a swift-moving nightcap. Almont enjoyed a 44-31 rout of Little Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows.

The Shamrocks return to action tonight against city parochial rival St. Frederick in a tournament "natural." Powerful Rochester, the Class B district favorite, and Oxford make their debuts to wind up the program.

Avondale takes the night off, then tangles with Clarkston Friday. Mt. Clemens St. Mary will confront Almont on the same evening.

How St. Mike's squeaked by South Lyon last night is anybody's guess. The Shamrocks were forced to overcome a miserable and hard period to turn the trick. They scored only two points in that quarter, a felder by Chuck Steinheiser with 1:15 left, and trailed at halftime, 18-8.

They began their uphill fight following intermission and cut the deficit to one point entering the final period. Successive baskets by Ken Halpin produced a 33-33 deadlock, then Mineweaser connected on a one-handed push shot to win the game.

Avondale fought off repeated challenges by Lake Orion. The Dragons, severely handicapped by the loss of Nick Niera, with a broken thumb, relied heavily on forward Jim Drake to see them through.

Drake responded magnificently, but couldn't single-handedly match Avon's balanced attack. He meshed 13 field goals and five foul shots for 31 points and was easily the most outstanding player on the floor.

The Jackets led all the way by margins ranging from three to 11 points. Four Avon cagers broke into double figures, paced by Steve Saunders with 30 points.

Our Lady of Sorrows, playing its last season of basketball, was no match for Almont. The Raiders piled up an overwhelming 40-8 halftime lead.

MISSING BLOCK — St. Mary's Art Golaszinski (9) misses a block on big Ralph Gordhamer (41) of Keego Harbor in a late 1st period try for a basket, last night at opening of the district "B" tourney at Bloomfield Hills HS. The Keego player made the basket. Eaglets won, 58-37. No. 7 is Larry Charkowski of St. Mary's.

Eaglets Grab Finals Spot

By H. GUY MOATS

Outscored in the opening round, square at halftime, St. Mary's Orchard Lake Eaglet basketballers roared back in the final two sessions to trample a hard-luck West Bloomfield club 58-37 in the only game played in the four-team Class B, MHSAA District cage tourney at Bloomfield Hills High school, Wednesday night.

Victory for Eaglet coach Rev. John Rakocsky's club put it directly in the final round for the district title, against the winner of tonight's Bloomfield Hills and Oak Park set, at 8 p.m. Orchard Lakers, with a fine 9-1 SCL record this year will be heavy favorites to take the title, as neither the Hills or the Parkers have compiled any comparable record.

Bloomfield will rate the top spot tonight as the Barons have already dumped Oak Park twice in regular schedule action. A home team crowd was expected to fill the

Last night's audience of some 600 made up in noise what it lacked in numbers.

Pete Madelans dunked a bucket within a minute of the game's start. Larry Charkowski and Paul Frankowiak added two more quick points and the Eaglets were flying — so it appeared. But Keego's Johnny Lucadam and big Ralph Gordhamer scored three quickies, to knot the count. From this point on to halftime it was a dog-eat-dog battle with the lead changing hands at least half a dozen times.

Madelans, game's top point-maker, with 25, set the Polish lads off in front to open the 2nd half and from there on, they never were headed.

Both clubs had trouble with the hoops, missing many easy "dogs," driveways and layups.

Keego was unable to click in the final period, marking up only one field goal (by Gordhamer) and two free throws. Eaglets collected 18

Booth Hits 28, Troy Wins

By CHUCK ABRAH

Lanky reserve Dick Booth came off the bench in the 2nd period to hit the hoop for 28 points in the last three quarters as Troy made an impressive comeback to whip Romeo 64-49 in the opening Class B contest of the Troy District last night. Memphis wallpored Clintondale of Mt. Clemens in the "D" version of the twin-bill, 58-29.

Troy is now idle until Friday when the Colts meet strong Utica in the 1st of a Class B double-header. The other tilt matches Clawson against Royal Oak Shrine.

The shooting and all around play of Booth was the big spark that sent Troy roaring to a victory just when the home club appeared to be falling under the hot pace as Romeo led by six late in the 3rd quarter.

Bulldogs kept things interesting up until the last nine minutes of play when Booth and his mates caught fire as a unit for the only time in the contest to score 15 successive points and wrap up the issue.

The Colts went from a 5-point deficit to a comfortable lead in that spree and kept pouring it on as Booth hit 16 of his total over the nine minutes.

Romeo led 8-4 at the initial quarter but fell behind 27-24 at halftime despite a 13-point scoring deluge by Little sharpshooter Bill Redman. The 3rd quarter was close until the Bulldogs went on a 10-point rampage to lead by 45-37. Then the Colts got rolling. Visitors were outscored 22-8 in finale making only one field goal.

Booth had a 60.8 shooting percentage in dominating the point department. Teammate Mike Varajoin added 13. Redman hooped 14 and Butch Dallwitz contributed 10 to the losing cause in the game that was tied five times and saw the lead change hands on 13 occasions — all in the last 25 minutes.

Memphis just coasted to its triumph following a strong start. Ben Burns tallied 12 and Ed Miller was close behind with 11 to top the Yellow Jackets. Ray Johnson's eight was the best; Clintondale eight.

BC Tourney Opens Friday

The Boys' Club of America sectional basketball tournament in the junior division (13 years old and under) will be held Friday and Saturday at the Highland Park Boys' Club.

Entries from Dearborn, Ypsilanti, Highland Park, Pontiac and Detroit will make up the eight-team single-elimination tourney.

The Pontiac team will be comprised of "all-stars" from the recently completed Biddy League. Pontiac's starting lineup will include Major Finley, Jim Joyen, Larry Blackburn, Jim Bland and Don Langford. Others slated to see duty are Dave Colando, Jack Johnson, Dennis O'Berry, Randy Styles and Frank Ketonen.

Detroit's Bloomer Branch Boys' Club is the defending champion. Pontiac, last year's runner-up, is again a strong tourney favorite. The sectional tournament in the intermediate division will be played March 15-16.

Season Opens March 15 for Beaver and Otter

Beaver and otter had better be wary comes March 15 when trapping operations get under way in designated areas. First beaver and otter trapping season of the year opens on that date in two small areas in southern Macquett county.

Trapping operations in four other areas also will begin soon, including: Area A (the remainder of the Upper Peninsula open to trapping); April 1-15. Area C (northern Emmet, Chisago and Presque Isle counties; eastern Gogewic county; and western Isosco county); March 25-April 15. Area D (southeastern Lower Peninsula counties; Oceola, Mecosta and Clare counties; and two townships in Gladwin county); March 25-April 15. Area E (the remainder of the Lower Peninsula open to trapping); March 25-31.

Tigers Deny Deals Pending With Yanks

By BRUNO KEARNS
Pontiac Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — Denials came out of Tiger camp at Henry Field today concerning trade rumors between Detroit and the New York Yankees.

A report from Yankee training grounds in St. Petersburg said a deal was being arranged for a swap which would send outfielder Billy Tuttle to New York for infielder Andy Carey.

Director of Tiger personnel Johnny McHale scoffed at the report. "Sounds like a Yankee scheme to me," he said.

"We need outfielders not infielders right now," he continued, and besides I don't see such a trade helping us any."

To help ease the Detroit outfield situation, manager Jack Tighe decided yesterday to switch J. W. Porter from behind the plate to the outer gardens.

"I think Porter has good hitting power, and by using him in the outfield we will be able to utilize it more," said Tighe, "and it will help our outfield needs."

Porter wasted no time getting started in the outfield. In a game which was called yesterday after three innings because of rain for the third straight day, the 23-year-old Oklahoman moved into left field where he made two fine catches in the three frames.

The first team roster had Al Kaline and Bill Tuttle in the outfield with Porter, and Jim Fingan, Ron Samford, Frank Bolling and Ray Boone around the infield.

Red Wilson started behind the plate and Jim Brady was on the mound. Samford started at short in place of Harvey Kuenn who was in Tampa attending a players' representatives meeting.

The other half of the regular lineup had Jim Small, Ken Walters and Roy Haves in the outfield, George Risley, Inman Veal, Jack Dittmar and Jack Phillips in the infield, with Frank House catching and Jim Bunning on the hill.

When the rains came the first unit was leading 3-2 by virtue of a two-run homer by Wilson with Tuttle on base.

The second unit, however, found Brady in wild form. He had walked three batters, threw two wild pitches, hit a batsman and gave up three hits in the three innings he pitched.

Today the Tigers will again try to play a full nine innings between the first and second units of the "regulars."

Missing from the field for two days has been Bill Hoft, who has been out with a sore throat.

Tighe, as yet, is not sure of the Grapefruit circuit at Sarasota, Saturday. However, Frank Lary and Paul Foytack may be assigned to share the duties.

While scotching the reported trade about third baseman Andy Carey for centerfielder Bill Tuttle, the Tigers definitely are interested in two or three of the Yankee farm hands.

One of them is Bill Renna, who came up with the Yankees and then went to the old Philadelphia Athletics in a trade and still is a holdout. A deal last season sent him back to the Yankees, and he had a fine season at the plate with the Richmond farm club in the International League.

No Park in Dodgertown, No Club at Los Angeles

VERO BEACH, Fla. — Looks day after Los Angeles officials had completed their one-day sales pitch to Dodger officials and went home smiling optimistically.

The six-man delegation, confident Los Angeles can "propose a comprehensive program the Dodgers cannot resist," feels, as do most observers, that major league baseball is on its way to the West Coast. The Los Angeles group appears sure the big league team will be the National League champions.

There is indication, however, that Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, would prefer to stay in Brooklyn — on his terms. That would mean a reasonably quick decision by the Board of Estimate and sports authority on some tangible plans for a new ball park.

O'Malley revealed yesterday — after listening to the Los Angeles plan — that he had been contacted by Brooklyn Borough President Cashmore and that the Board of Estimate and the sports authority had met, but that no announcement of action — if any — could be made until the two groups had talked with New York Mayor Wagner.

Druggists Tie for 1st Place

Drayton Drug rolled to an easy 70-30 victory over Johnson & Anderson last night at Isaac Cray Junior High to tie Davis Machinery for 1st place as the Waterford Basketball League's regular schedule came to an end.

The Druggists will tangle with the Ortonville quintet next Monday night at Cray in a 7:15 playoff to decide the league title. Each team has an 11-3 record.

Bob Pickett and Joe Umphrey scored 23 and 21 points respectively for Drayton.

In Wednesday's other loop game, Tom Gould meshed 29 points to pace Boyle-Stone Front to a one-sided 91-52 triumph over Louie's Tavern. Don Scott made 16 in defeat.

The post-season playoffs will begin next Wednesday, with Davis Machinery facing Matthews-Har-greaves at 7:15 and Phlegas meeting Drayton Drug at 8:30.

Cincinnati. Joe Margoneri (L) is on the mound for New York. Ted Kluszewski opens with a single and moves to second when right fielder Don Mueller fumbles the ball for an error. Frank Robinson walks. Smoky Burgess grounds out, the runners advancing one. Redzik (R) replaces Margoneri. Rocky Bridges (R) is the next batter with Alex Grammas (R) and pitcher Herschel Freeman (R) scheduled to follow.

Would you:

a. Have Bridges try a squeeze bunt?

b. Let Bridges swing away?

c. Put in a pinch-hitter for Bridges?

"SHOP TALK" — Manager Jack Tighe (left) who talks baseball all day long on the playing field, does something "different" in the Tiger rec room at Lakeland, Fla. He talks baseball with Harvey Kuenn, popular Tiger shortstop who is looking for his best season with the Tigers.

Al Kaline Gains Poise

LAKELAND, Fla. — A little more relaxed, a little more confident and quite a bit more respected by American League pitchers, Al Kaline approaches the 1957 season with the poise of a veteran.

No longer the shy, moody kid who was afraid to speak up and who didn't particularly care if anyone spoke to him, Kaline is facing his fourth season as a regular. Manager Jack Tighe feels it could be the best ever for the Detroit Tiger right fielder.

A heavy burden automatically eased itself off Al's husky shoulders at the end of the 1956 season. The year before he was American League batting champion — the youngest player ever to win the crown.

The fact that Detroit's own Ty Cobb, regarded as the finest player ever to wear a Tiger uniform, up to then had been the youngest batting champ didn't make it any easier on Kaline. He was only 20 when he took the title with a hefty .340 mark.

"I think the next season a lot of people expected me to hit .380," Kaline said. "And just because I hit 27 home runs in 1956, they thought I should hit 54 in 1957."

That was the kind of pressure that worked on Kaline a season ago. Questions like "do you think you're better than Ty Cobb?" And when Kaline might have been offended by a remark made by General Manager Spike Briggs in Lakeland a few days ago, Kaline was waiting his turn in the batting cage when a minor league rookie belted a couple of long hits.

"Better watch out for that kid, Al," Briggs joked. "He might take your job away from you."

"Better watch out for that kid, Al," Briggs joked. "He might take your job away from you."

There were times in other years

when Kaline might have been offended by a remark made by General Manager Spike Briggs in Lakeland a few days ago, Kaline was waiting his turn in the batting cage when a minor league rookie belted a couple of long hits.

"Better watch out for that kid, Al," Briggs joked. "He might take your job away from you."

LAKELAND—The guy who broke many a National League pitcher's heart, Mel Ott, watched Ray Boone working at his new position at first base.

"He has made the adjustment well," said Ott, "I think he can handle the job this season."

Of course down deep Ott knew the transition for Boone wouldn't be flawless. "He's bound to make a lot of mistakes, it's one of the toughest positions in the infield."

If anyone should know what is needed to make a good first baseman it should be Ott.

Now a member of the Hall of Fame, Ott was the youngest player ever to start in the Majors. At 16 he had signed his contract with the New York Giants and for 22 years Ott's name became as closely linked to the initial sack as butter is to bread.

During Ott's fabulous playing career I often wondered if he hit in other National League parks like he used to powder the ball at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh.

There were many games broken up in the final innings when Ott would belt one over the high right field screen in that park.

"Next to the Polo Grounds I always had a lot of success in Pittsburgh," said Ott. "The background at Forbes Field was great for a hitter. There were no low bleachers in right field and the trees from Schenley Park behind the outfield fence were easier on the eyes than some of the Parks where the stands were full of white shirts."

One place where Ott had his troubles was Philadelphia's Shibe Park. It was the only field where he had never hit a home run. "It was the strangest thing," he said, "no matter how I tried, I just couldn't hit one into the right field stands."

"My hits would either line over first or be long flies into right center."

After retiring in 1947, Ott went into managerial duties and last year he became the newest member of Tiger broadcasting staff.

Here at Lakeland, Ott has watched the Tigers' first base situation with a keen eye. He has even donned a glove during the rookies' sessions, but as much as he may have the urge, he has not tried to be the master teacher of Tiger first basemen.

"Radio is my job now," he said.

Tigers Sign Rookie Pitcher, Infielder

The Detroit Tigers today announced the signing of a south-paw pitcher and a left handed hitting infielder for their minor league organization.

Ernest Harris, a little hurler from Ensley, Ala., who won 23 and lost 3 in sandlot ball, has been assigned to Idaho Falls in the Class C Pioneer League. The infielder is Gideon Jarvis of Los Angeles. He hit .380 and .465 in college ball and last year swatted .380 in semi-pro play. Jarvis is attached to Durham in the Carolina loop.

CHICAGO (U)—Chicago will be represented by one of its strongest teams in the annual Inter-City Golden Gloves bouts with New York's best at Chicago Stadium March 20.

The eight champions crowned last night at the Stadium should make Chicago the favorite as it seeks its 15th Inter-City team title.

But this may be Chicago's year, judging from the championship talent that kept 12,466 fans cheering in last night's championship scraps, many of which were televised and broadcast nationally.

Four champions especially caught the eyes of ring critics.

They were welterweight Joe Shaw of the Kansas City team, last year's lightweight king who won Inter-City and international honors and was on the U.S. Olympic boxing squad; light-heavyweight Ernest Terrell, lanky 17-year-old Chicago high school student; flyweight Jimmy Jackson, pre-medical student at the University of Minnesota, and bantamweight Tommy Reynolds, another Kansas City team member who two years ago was the flyweight champion.

A good local following was reportedly "on hand" last night to cheer Jones on as he stole the show against the better known stars. His next college appearance will be March 19 when Eastern hosts Wayne and Bowling Green.

Hayes missed a sweep by finishing 3rd in the high jump behind a pair of veteran performers — Brendan O'Reilly, former Irish Olympic hopeful, and versatile Ron Kramer. The Pontiac High grad jumped six feet, two inches. O'Reilly had six feet, six inches and Kramer six feet, four inches.

A 7.1 time in the lows last Saturday against Chicago also ranked him among the national leaders. He won the event last night in 7.2 and took the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, 3 1/4 inches.

Hayes Jones Moves to Bigger Tests

"Hayes Jones will compete against Roy Calhoun, Glenn Davis and several others among the nation's greatest hurdlers in the Chicago Daily News meet to be held in Chicago, March 16," it was announced today by Eastern Michigan Coach George Marshall after the Pontiac freshman had set a new high hurdle record while winning three of four events against a powerful Michigan aggregation.

Kansas Jayhawks Riding High Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas Jayhawks, who won the 1936 NCAA basketball championship and advanced to the final on two other occasions, were back on the tournament trail today after clinching the Big Seven Conference title.

Led by All-American Wilt Chamberlain's 24 points, Kansas defeated

ed Kansas State at Manhattan last night, 64-57, for its 10th conference win in 11 games. The nation's No. 2 team, with a 20-2 seasonal record, has one more league game — against Colorado Saturday — before meeting Southern Methodist March 15 in the NCAA regional tournament at Dallas.

With 20 teams already qualified for the NCAA playoffs which will wind up with the final two rounds at Kansas City March 22-23. Yale clinched at least a tie for the Ivy League crown by downing Pennsylvania 60-54.

The Ivy League, and winners of the Southern and Atlantic Coast conference tournaments starting this afternoon, will provide the other three teams for the NCAA hoop whirl. North Carolina, the country's No. 1 college team with a 24-0 record, is favored in the Atlantic Coast tourney at Raleigh, N. C., while West Virginia seeks its third straight Southern Conference championship in the tourney opening at Richmond, Va.

Meanwhile the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden named Bradley and Utah to fill out the 12-team line-up that opens warfare in New York March 16. Bradley was runner-up to St. Louis in the Missouri Valley loop, while Utah finished second to Brigham Young in the Skyline.

St. Louis, assured of the title and a NCAA berth when Wichita upset Bradley Tuesday night, had the pressure off last night and swamped Oklahoma A&M 74-58. The big question for Kansas is whether Chamberlain, the 7-foot sophomore sensation, can duplicate the feat of another big Jayhawk All-American center in leading his team to the NCAA title. Clyde Lovellette set a tournament scoring record of 141 points in 1932 (four games) as Kansas blasted through to the final and whipped St. Johns of Brooklyn 80-63.

All Sanctioned Bowlers in County Eligible for Big Press Tournament

Every sanctioned bowler in Oakland County is eligible to compete in the big Pontiac Press Bowling tournament for this area in early April.

Entries are now being taken for the major event and will be accepted through midnight of March 31. A nominal fee of $4.50 is fixed for the singles handicap tournament.

Both men and women will participate in the 3-day session to be held the weekend of April 6-7 and April 13. They will be bowling in their own divisions with separate prize lists featuring $400 and $200 prizes plus trophies, respectively.

ABC and WIBC sanction is the chief requirement for bowlers must follow in bringing in their entry or mailing it to manager Les Rothbarth at the Pontiac Press Sports Department.

Blanks published in the sports section, may be clipped out and used for official entry. Others will be available at every bowling establishment in the county beginning March 10. They should be sent in promptly.

Tourney rules call for the enclosing entry fees with entries. Fee covers the prize fund, bowling cost and tournament expense. All prize funds will be returned to the purse making it possible to give an award for every 10 entries.

Guaranteed prizes are assured for the top six places based on 75 per cent handicap and 200 scratch. Highest league averages of 18 games or more for this year must be supplied manager Rothbarth in order that handicaps can be determined. If less than 18 games have been bowled this year, contestants should include their 1936 average.

A falsification of averages means automatic disqualification, and results in forfeit of rights to any prizes.

Following the entry deadline, participants will be separated into

Pirate Rookie Hits Hard

FORT MYERS, Fla. (U)—If Dick Stuart suddenly starts fielding anything like he hits, the Pittsburgh Pirates may surprise the National League.

Stuart, an affable six-footer with a world of confidence, is the fellow who smashed 66 home runs for Lincoln, Neb., of the Class A Western League last season. That's six less than the minor league record of 72 set three years ago by Joe Bauman of Roswell,

N.M., in the West Texas-Mexico League.

The 24-year-old resident of Culver City, Calif., has been attracting a lot of attention in the Pirate training camp. But everyone, including Stuart, is concerned about his fielding ability.

Stuart, who played first base and the outfield for Lincoln, is on the roster as a first sacker.

Ebben Hits 41; Wasted Effort

UD Quint Loses Tilt at Louisville by 86-76 Count

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (INS)—Jim Morgan, Bill Darragh and Charley Tyra closed out illustrious basketball careers last night by leading the Louisville Cardinals to an 86-76 triumph over rugged Detroit at Louisville.

It was the 21st victory in 26 games for the nation's sixth best quintet and gave last year's national invitational champions another enviable record under head coach Peck Hickman.

Morgan led all Cardinal scorers with 30 points, Darragh had 17 and Tyra, hero of last year's NIT tourney, got 13.

But the big noise of the night was made by Detroit's All-American Bill Ebben, who rolled up 41 points. He chucked in 19 out of 38 shots from the field.

Leafs Gain in 4th Spot Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Toronto Maple Leafs firmly believe where there are enough games left there is hope.

At least it looked like that last night as the Leafs defeated the second-place Montreal Canadiens 5-1 in the National Hockey League's lone game to move within six points of the New York Rangers in their battle for the fourth and last position in the Stanley Cup playoffs. Each has eight games remaining.

Ted Kennedy scored two of the Leaf goals and assisted on the one tallied by George Armstrong. Sid Smith had a hand in all three goals.

NL Continues Policy on Senior Umpires

TAMPA, Fla. (U)—The National League will continue its present system of letting senior ranking umpires supervise fellow umpires in the 1937 baseball season.

The American League has an over-all supervisor in Cal Hubbard.

The National League umpires reported to Warren Giles, president of the league yesterday. They voted against the over-all supervisor plan and approved the plan of the senior member of each working group acting as team captain.

Jewelers, Boys Club Go Into City's A-B Finals

It's Shaw's Jewelers vs. the Lakeside Royals in the Class A final and Boys Club vs. Booth Homes in the Class B windup of the City Basketball League playoffs.

There pairings were determined last night at Jefferson Junior High when the Jewelers trounced the CIO 91-75, and Boys Club conquered Stadium Inn 61-52 in semi-final games of the double-knockout tournament.

Shaw's had to overcome a 43-42 halftime deficit to eliminate the Local 594 cagers. Don Quayle fired 33 points for the Jewelers and Felix Brooks topped the Union club with 24.

A dismal six-point 2nd quarter left Stadium behind at halftime 34-21, and Boys Club was in command the rest of the way. Jerry Nosek led Boys Club with 16 points while Maurice Stack made 14 for Stadium.

Leon Weeks netted 16 points as Boys Club handed Green's P & H its 1st loss of the season, 48-38. A 24-point spurge by Perry Williams sparked the whirlwinds to a 35-41 nod over Pietz Market. Bud Hayward hit 16 for the losers.

British Voting Test for Conservatives

LONDON (AP)—Two special parliamentary elections — one of them to fill the seat of Sir Anthony Eden held for 33 years — today tested the popularity of Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party.

Both races were straight fights between Conservatives and Laborites in areas considered Tory strongholds.

In three special elections since Feb. 15 the Labor party has gained two seats in the House of Commons. Labor now has 279 seats in the House, the Conservatives 340 and the Liberals 5.

Conservative leaders blame apathy among their followers for the Labor gains.

Name President of Art Group in Bloomfield

BIRMINGHAM — Robert Thom, well known Michigan artist, has been named president of the newly formed Bloomfield Art Assn. The group has been organized to further the local interest in art and to develop latent talent in the area.

Meeting Tuesday night, the association adopted its by-laws and approved the papers of incorporation. By-laws committee was headed by Clarence C. Patterson.

Classes are already being formed at the Association's galleries. Meeting Wednesdays, from 1 to 3:30 p.m., a water color class is instructed by Mary Jane Bigler of Wayne State University. Mrs. J. Vinton Birch, enrollment chairman, said today there are three openings in this group.

Life classes, under the direction of Clifford West, art instructor at Kingswood and Cranbrook, will begin at 7:30 to 10 p.m. sessions Wednesday. Another WSU member, Peter Gilleran, will instruct a group of men in oil painting, beginning Monday.

Children's classes will be formed and, if there is enough interest, Peter Duenas will organize a group in design.

The printing committee said a brochure would be prepared soon to be mailed to members and prospective members. It will outline the aims and accomplishments of the group.

Current membership exceeds 100. Paying memberships include such classifications as active artist, participating, sustaining, patron and benefactor. Additional types are contributing business member, non-resident, honorary junior.

Founder membership will be closed shortly.

Egypt Says Work May Resume Friday; Expects Opening in 2 Weeks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INS)—Egypt informed Dag Hammarskjöld today that clearance work in the Suez Canal can be resumed Friday after the U.N. Assembly has been told officially by the secretary general that Israel's withdrawal from captured areas has been completed.

The final removal of two wrecks by Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler's salvage force has been held up by the Egyptian government as a means of applying pressure on Israel to pull out of Aqaba and Gaza.

It is estimated at U.N. that the Suez will be reopened to shipping in two weeks.

Hammarskjöld will fly to Cairo next week to visit U.N. Emergency Force positions on the Israeli-Egyptian border and to confer on future steps there with U.N. Commander Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns.

HAS COMPLETE CHARGE

Burns, whose troops have taken over Aqaba Gulf positions and the Gaza Strip in the past 24 hours, will be in complete charge of military as well as civilian rule pending Hammarskjöld's visit and other decisions affecting the two areas.

Lynn was charged with stealing $15 worth of accessories from a car parked at a gas station recently.

CASTS BALLOT — Eamon de Valera, 74-year-old American-born Irishman, casts his ballot during Ireland's general election yesterday as he bids to win back the prime ministership of the Irish Republic.

De Valera Wins Control of Parliament in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Eamon de Valera won control of the Irish Parliament today in a dramatic political comeback. This means the old fighter — now 74 and nearly blind — will replace John A. Costello as Ireland's prime minister after three years on the sidelines as opposition leader.

His Fianna Fail party already has nailed down 71 seats — with prospects of gaining more. Four rebellious Sinn Feiners said they are going to boycott the Dail.

This means De Valera has a working majority in the 147-seat legislature, since he can count on three, and perhaps four, members who ran as Independents in Tuesday's voting.

Warrior Loved by Friend and Foe

De Valera Sees Peace as Way to United Ireland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For more than 40 years Eamon de Valera has fought with guns and then political skill to make Ireland free and under one flag.

Now 74 and nearly blind, he sees as his final goal the union of the six Northern counties that still swear allegiance to the British Crown with his Irish Republic he did so much to establish.

But both "Dev" and the man he is due to replace as prime minister, John A. Costello, have condemned the terrorist campaign of the Irish Republican Army aimed at uniting the country. The old revolutionary now seeks the union of the country through peaceful means.

De Valera, born in New York of Spanish and Irish parents, gave up a schoolteacher's career in 1916 to command a band of fighters in the Easter uprising against the British. Since then he has made Ireland's freedom his life-work.

De Valera was in and out of British prisons. Once he escaped execution only because the British were undecided about whether he was an Irish or U.S. citizen.

Britain finally agreed to make the 26 predominantly Catholic counties of Southern Ireland a free state in 1921. De Valera refused to accept the pact, contending that all of Ireland must be free. However, he finally accepted the oath of allegiance to the British Crown and participated in the Free State government.

Sees New Safety for Airliners Within 2 Years

CHICAGO (INS)—Jerome Lederer, managing director of the flight safety foundation, predicts that airline accidents in landings and takeoffs will be reduced to "practically zero" in two years.

In an address before the annual safety forum of the Air Lines Pilots Association in Chicago, Lederer based his prediction on the development of electronic devices.

He cited the new centerline approach lights for runways that can guide a plane onto the runway after the instrument landing system ceases to function.

A new anti-turbulence instrument to keep a plane from bouncing in rough air at high altitudes and on landings and takeoffs also is being developed, he said.

Under his leadership the Free State declared its independence in 1937. De Valera was prime minister for 18 of the years between 1932 and 1954. A coalition headed by Costello defeated Dev's Fianna Fail party in that year.

Today in the eyes of the Irish, De Valera is the gaunt old warrior, the hero, patriot and public servant of their Republic. Even his political foes regard him with affection.

Wounds 4 Persons, Then Kills Himself

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (INS)—A 23-year-old man who wounded three women and a 12-year-old boy with a shotgun last night in Englewood shot himself to death early today in an empty lot.

Police identified the assailant as Leroy Childress, 23, but were unable to discover a motive for the shootings.

2 Boys Locked in 'Dirty' Room

Neighbor Finds Detroit Youngsters Suffocating From Smoke, Naked

DETROIT (INS)—A young Detroit mother whose two dirty and naked small boys nearly suffocated in a fire in their locked bedroom was ordered held for investigation today on charges of cruelty to children.

Police said Mrs. Joyce Barton, 26, admitted she locked her children, James, 4, and Joseph, 3, in the room "because they were bad."

The children were in the "dirty" room for over 2½ hours while Mrs. Barton "went shopping."

A burning overstuffed chair filled the room with blinding, choking smoke. Mrs. Donna Lawton rushed into the home when her own son saw the smoke. Mrs. Lawton said:

"The two boys were lying on the floor and both of their faces were red from the smoke. The younger one, Joseph, was frothing from the mouth."

"I never saw such a mess in my life. There were food scraps scattered all over the house and neither of the boys had a stitch of clothes on."

"In fact, there weren't even any clothes in their bedroom. Some of the other neighbors and I got clothes from our own homes for them."

Neighbors fed the boys and took them to Receiving Hospital. Doctors there said they could find no evidence of malnutrition.

Two other small Barton children were left in the care of neighbors.

Food Town Observes New Store's Opening

Food Town's new supermarket at 7580 Highland Rd. made its debut in the Waterford Township area today with a grand opening celebration.

The store, the second in the Food Town chain, is the first of 12 stores which will be located on the site as part of a future shopping center. It is located a mile west of the Pontiac Municipal Airport.

The market occupies 10,000 square feet of floor space, adjoined by a lighted parking area with space for more than 100 cars. Facilities offer complete self service, according to Owner Ed Adler.

The store's staff is headed by Manager Bill Reed and Vic Mason, assistant manager.

Established 13 years ago with the main store at 1200 Baldwin Ave., Pontiac, Food Town's immediate plans call for construction of two others for a total of four, according to Adler.

Stores Offer Inexpensive Fish and Eggs for Lent

The beginning of the Lenten season will change the scheme of meal plans in many homes. With the abundant supplies of eggs and liberal amounts of frozen, fresh, and canned fish these changes need be neither expensive nor inconvenient. For other days when meat is served there is plenty of beef, pork, veal and poultry, reports the Consumer Marketing Information Agent, Mrs. Josephine Lawyer.

EGGS — March is being called Egg-Month for a good reason. The rate of egg laying during March will be at a seasonal peak with laying flocks slightly larger in number than a year ago. This is perfectly timed for Lenten meals.

Most stores are offering large also Grade A eggs for less than 50 cents a dozen which is less than 25 cents a pound. Two large size eggs will substitute for a serving of meat.

FISH — For thrifty fish buys, look to those varieties which are most plentiful. Frozen ocean perch, halibut, haddock, and cod fillets fit into this list. Fresh dressed smelt is another economical choice.

Excellent tuna catches, amounting to nearly one and one-half times as much as the year before are now available at the lowest prices in several years. Choose the style pack that best fits the way it will be used. Tuna is packed solid, in chunks, grated, or flaked.

OTHER MEATS — Some cuts of veal, beef, pork, and poultry are being featured at attractive prices.

Slightly lower wholesale cost on veal is being passed along to the shopper. Veal roasts including those from the leg, sirloin, rump and shoulder are receiving emphasis. Since veal has very little fat and a large amount of connecting tissue, long slow cooking is needed to make it tender. Veal roasts basted with fat at an oven temperature of 300 degrees will be tender and tasty with little loss from shrinkage.

Round steak for Swissing, steaks for broiling, and standing rib roasts are cuts to check in the beef department. For steaming pot roast, blade chuck is the thrifty cut.

Boston butt, roll sausage, rib-end loin roast, are priced at about 40 cents a pound in many stores. Smoked ham is one of the easiest of all meats to prepare, and this, too, is specially marked for the interested shopper.

Head lettuce quality is excellent. Save the washing of head lettuce until ready to use it. Then wash only the part needed for one time. This helps head lettuce keep, without developing troublesome rusty spots.

Market Posts Gains in Majors

NEW YORK (AP) — The Stock Market made further gains in early trading today.

Riding on a string of four successive daily advances, the market posted gains in practically all major divisions.

Trading was active at the opening and then slowed down. Most of the gains were small, running from fractions to around a point at most for key stocks.

An exception to the general trend was Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, off a major fraction in active turnover.

Douglas Aircraft was ahead around a point.

The major stocks were all ahead but by very slight margins. General Motors was unchanged, American Telephone and Standard Oil (New Jersey) rose fractionally.

Wall Streeters said the market was still enjoying a better frame of mind regarding the Middle East and prospects for more stable world conditions now that the Israelis were pulling out of Egyptian territory. Corporate news on the whole, was more encouraging than otherwise.

Chrysler eased after yesterday's large gain of 3 1/2. Gulf Oil, Royal Dutch and Texas Co. were firm or slightly higher.

Among gainers were Anaconda, Du Pont, General Electric, U.S. Rubber and United Air Lines.

Opening blocks included U. S. Steel up 1/4 at 60 1/2 on 3,000 shares; General Electric up 1/4 at 56 1/2 on 1,000; and Ford up 1/4 at 56 on 1,000.

Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz Want to Drop 'I Love Lucy'

SHIRLEY LAMBERTON JEAN SERRAVALLE

PICKED BY LENSEMEN — Rated highly by photographers are Jean Serravalle, of 106 Augusta St. and Shirley Lambertson, of 3400 Airport Rd., Waterford Township. They were picked second and third, respectively, from 500 pictures submitted by photographers in the Michigan Professional Photographers Assn.

New York Is Happier When Phil's in Town

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — New York's a happier place when Phil Harris comes to town. He doesn't talk like other people. Telling some of us that Bing Crosby must now drink sparingly, he explained, "They heard from his kidneys, and they're threatening to quit."

He was with Bing on a tour when a cafe owner introduced Bing and said, "He'd like to get up and sing but he can't. His union won't let him." A Texan yelled out, "You go ahead and sing, Bing. I'll buy you that union." Bing was asked why they'd stopped in Nashville and told an interviewer, "Because Mr. Harris wanted to place a wreath on the grave of Jack Daniels."

Young Ken Hammon of Atlantic City wants to get places as a dancer and I think he will.

Knowing that Jerry Lewis comes into the audience and asks people to sing "Harvest Moon" in his act at the Palace, young Hammon went to the theater wearing tap shoes.

Leaping up when Jerry started into the audience, Hammon said, "I don't sing, but I just happen to have my taps shoes on." Jerry laughed, then asked, "Would you like to have your picture in the lobby, too?"

Jerry then invited Hammon on stage and directed the maestro to play "Tea for Two" for him. The audience broke into applause several times during his old soft shoe number — and out in the lobby later Hammon found himself a celebrity. Naturally, he's a bigger Jerry Lewis fan than ever.

Publisher Bob Harrison of Confidential got a literary criticism when he dropped into the Stage Deli. Proprietor Max Asnas told him, "You're like a chef. You make your food too spicy — and the public gets indigestion."

Teddy Nadler of $94,000 Challenge surely doesn't lack confidence. Explaining his desire to be rematched on music questions, he told me backstage, "I know millions of symphonies and I can reel 'em off in a tenth of a second."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL ...

Didi Douglas, the Maharajah of Baroda's favorite singer, does Sunday night concerts. John Ireland spend evenings with Kim Novak, days with Joanne Dray's lawyers planning the divorce ... Tennis star Herb Flamman says he'll wed a Beverly Hills gal "as soon as I get a job" ... Marlon Brando turned writer; he'll film it, too.

A guest at a H'wood hotel complained — fellow-guest Elvis Presley played his own records all day ... Maurice Chevalier's grand-niece, Marie, is on the staff of "Monitor" show.

Earl's Pearls ... Woody Allen hushed a heckler with the line, "You're the one thing even Charles Van Doren can't explain!"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Jerry Warren recalls this line: "No wonder Shakespeare could write so many stories — he didn't have to answer a phone all day!"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: We hear the Calypso has become such a craze up here it's even catching on in Trinidad. That's earl, brother.

Propose Higher Tax on Out-of-State Firms

LANSING — An increase in the state tax on out-of-state insurance companies doing business in Michigan as a means of helping finance local police and fire pensions was proposed today.

Sen. Philip Rahol (D-Iron Mountain) submitted a bill calling for a rise in the present tax on casualty, surety and fidelity firms from two to four per cent of premiums, and on fire, marine and auto insurance companies from three to five per cent.

Rahol said the higher rates would bring in an extra one million dollars a year.

Under his bill, the additional tax receipts would be rebated to treasurers of cities, villages and townships having full time police and fire forces, for deposit in police and fire pension or retirement funds.

Another bill offered by Rahol would liberalize state police pensions in such a way as to encourage employees with 25 years service to stay on the job until they reached 56, retirement age.

Becomes Grandmother, Mother on Same Day

DETROIT (INS) — Mrs. Daisy Maxfield, 36, of Dearborn, became a mother and grandmother yesterday.

Mrs. Maxfield gave birth to a seven-pound, 12-ounce boy at Women's Hospital.

Her daughter, 17-year-old Mrs. Patricia Haddad, gave birth to a seven-pound girl at the same hospital less than three hours later.

It was Mrs. Haddad's first child, her mother's second.

Mother and daughter are in the same room. The fathers exchanged cigars.

Clerk Refuses Raise to Improve City Hall

PETOSKEY — Mrs. Virginia Hubbard, Petoskey City clerk, turned down a pay raise yesterday. She told city councilmen to use the money for city hall improvements.

The council agreed. It left Mrs. Hubbard's salary at $5,000-a-year while those of other city officials were increased by $100 to $500.

Mrs. Hubbard is a candidate for re-election April 1.

Comedy Team Seeks Change

Would Like to Create 8 or 10 Variety Shows Next Season

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK — It now seems highly probable that "I Love Lucy" (CBS-TV, Mondays, 9 p.m., EST) will not be seen in its present weekly format next season. The only people who are satisfied with it are the sponsors and several million regular viewers.

Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz want out. CBS appears to be willing to go along with their wish. Instead of the present half-hour weekly filmed show there probably will be eight or ten hour-long Lucy shows, with a variety format, next season.

"I Love Lucy" has consistently been rated as having one of TV's largest audiences for six years. Rating figures show that the program has lost its largest audience status to opposing programs only three times since 1951.

You cannot blame Miss Ball and Arnaz for wanting to give up the program. A weekly show is a frightful grind. Their West Coast producing firm, Desilu, is highly successful; they have made and are making pots of money from several TV programs. But it would be unfair to them, in the view of this corner, to put the matter merely on the basis of money.

They are shrewd business people. But they also are a highly talented comedienne and comedian with an exquisite sense of timing. It is, in fact, their sense of timing that has kept the show in its eminent audience spot. Their scripts always are neatly constructed, little items, but in humorous content they have been ranging from mediocre to pretty dreadful.

This fact has not noticeably affected the sizes of their audiences, however. The continued popularity of the program probably constitutes a television law: the law of protracted viewing habit by the hard core of unserviceable viewers.

When and if "I Love Lucy" goes off the home screen, it does not mean that Lucy and Desi are quitting television. They merely want to do something different, something more challenging, and that's pleasant to see in any performer. Here's betting they can accomplish almost anything they wish.

Crowd Applauds Dean Martin's One-Man Show

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Singer Dean Martin, appearing here for the first time minus ex - sidekick Jerry Lewis, was enthusiastically received at his opening performance in the Sands Hotel last night.

In the large audience were a number of Hollywood personalities including Phil Harris and Alice Faye, Gordon MacRae, Jack Benny and Mary Livingston, Edgar Bergen, Nanette Fabray, and Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball.

Martin, professing no personal fondness for either rock 'n' roll or calypso, concentrated on "sweet" music during his 40-minute show.

The management said Martin is receiving $25,000 a week for the current two-week engagement and will return later for a four-week stay.

THEY WANT OUT — Lucille Ball and her husband, Desi Arnaz, hope to abandon their weekly comedy show, "I Love Lucy," next season and concentrate on 8 or 10 hour-long Lucy programs with a variety format. Lucille (left) is shown with Richard Keith (Little Ricky) and Vivian Vance (Ethel) in a scene from the current Lucy series, Mondays at 9 p.m. over CBS-TV.

Target for Court for Racial Issue

White Man Takes Side of Negro, Gets Driving Fine for Fleeing Mob

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (INS) — A white man who narrowly escaped injury at the hands of a mob inflamed by his breaking with Southern traditions, was fined for the "reckless driving" he did to make his getaway.

A City Court judge yesterday laid Lamar Weaver, who shared a white railroad waiting room seat with a Negro minister, that he had brought the attack upon himself by his disregard for local customs and traditions.

Judge Oliver H. Hall fined Weaver $25 for reckless driving because his car struck and dented another vehicle, as he sped away from the Birmingham Terminal Station, where a crowd stoned his car and tried to overturn it.

No one else was arrested as a result of today's incident — an effort of foes of segregation to prove there is no basis for racial segregation in railroad waiting rooms.

"A man cannot fly into the face of traditions and customs and not expect to be burned," Judge Hall told Weaver, who contended he could not avoid running into the "fleeing for my life."

Police did not disturb the Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth as he sat with his wife in a section of the waiting room normally occupied by only white people. But officers forced Weaver to leave the station, where a mob was waiting for him.

First Oranges for Elite

TOKYO — Mandarin oranges were introduced into Japan from China some 3,000 years ago. They gave aristocrats their first taste of this fruit, which was beyond the reach of common persons. They were so valuable that not even the skin was wasted; it was cooked with sugar to make a paste delicacy.

Method to Assure the Sugar Coating Has Pill Inside

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — A fool-proof machine is being built to make sure pills are what they're supposed to be.

It's a matter of assuring that the coating on pills really covers a "business" core. Current methods spend considerable time and material covering pills but can wind up with no active ingredient inside.

The University of Michigan College of Pharmacy is working with the Colton Co. of Detroit in the research project to build a machine that handles the whole problem by high powered suction.

Prof. Albert Mattocks said medical tablets now are covered by revolving them, cement mixer style, in deep pans or stamping them out at high speed on compression coating machines. But neither method can be checked to be sure the finished pill is "active."

With the new machine, vacuum suction tubes pick up active ingredient cores and transfer them to a compression chamber for coating. If the tube fails to pick up a core, the vacuum deposits the coating granules in a collection can.

Mattocks said research is concentrating now on developing the right type of coating granules. He added: "We feel this type of tablet coating will become the basic process in the future."

Detroit to Televis Key Heart Operation

DETROIT — A heart operation on a 34-year-old man will be televised from Grace Hospital in Detroit Tuesday.

It will be the first such telecast made in Detroit and the second in the United States.

A panel of four Detroit doctors will discuss the operation as it is performed step by step. The program will be carried over channel 4, Station WWJ-TV from 10:30 P.M. (EST) to 11:30 P.M.

The operation is being performed to open the mitral valve of the heart. Blocking of this key valve by scar tissue or other causes can result in a shortening of the patient's life expectancy.

The mitral valve guards the opening between the left auricle and the left ventricle and prevents the return of blood to the auricle.
