Train Hits Stalled School Bus Killing Seven

New Year Means New Teacher, New Friends

Pontiac Press Photo

FIRST MEETING—These Crofoot Elementary School children didn't seem too unhappy about being back in school again today. In fact, they were downright happy to meet their second grade teacher, Mrs. Mayme Baker. The first meeting showed mutual affection on both sides as the youngsters gathered around a classroom table for an informal "getting to know you." Shortly afterward, all settled down to the real business at hand . . . education. Some 34,000 children returned to classes for the beginning of the 1959-60 year in the Pontiac and Waterford Township school systems.

Children Jam Vehicle's Door; Eight Badly Hurt

Signals Operating at Maryland Crossing, Say Railroad Men

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md. (AP)—A St. Louis-to - Baltimore passenger train rammed a stalled school bus at a grade crossing in mountainous Western Maryland today, killing seven of the 26 children on the bus.

Eight to 10 others were reported seriously hurt.

The Baltimore and Ohio's Diplomat, running about on time, struck the loaded bus at 7:30 a.m. (Pontiac time) at a crossing marked by a flashing light and bell. The signals were operating at the time, the railroad said.

The bus driver, Leroy Campbell, told authorities that after the bus stalled he opened the door and tried to get the children out. After a half-dozen or so scrambled out the door, the rest jammed the doorway, blocking it.

Then the engine hit the bus broadside, knocking the vehicle down the track on its side 40 to 50 feet.

Campbell, who owned the bus, has driven the same route for four years. He has a safe driving record with the county school system for more than 20 years.

No one seemed to know what caused the bus to stall on the crossing.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Campbell and all the injured were rushed to an Oakland, Md., hospital, about four miles away, by every available ambulance, station wagon and car which could be summoned quickly.

Mountain Lake Park is approximately 40 miles from Cumberland and about 180 miles from Baltimore.

Three of the seven dead were identified as Roy O. Hinkle Jr., Lee Hoffman and Nancy Lee Harvey. Campbell was trying to help identify the other four.

The school children, ranging in ages from 8 to 14, were on their way to Southern High and Dennett Elementary schools at Oakland, county seat of westernmost Garrett County.

TRAIN DELAYED

Winds Turn Angry in Battle Creek

AP Wirephoto

STORM DAMAGE — A baby twister touched down at Battle Creek last night leaving in its wake considerable damage, but no reported injuries. Winds of tornadic velocity ripped up trees, toppled utility poles, flattened signs and blew out store windows. Duration of the twister is estimated at from five to ten minutes, but it will be days before the damage is repaired and the debris is cleaned up. Over 500 calls jammed the police department's switchboard in less than 45 minutes.

Vote Overrides Projects Veto

Senate Joins House in Historic Rebuff to President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress today overrode President Eisenhower's veto of the second-try public works money bill—the first time this has been done in his six years, eight months in the White House.

Senate action put the bill over in the face of the President's objections, since the House had voted 280-121 to override.

In the Senate, the count was 72-23, or 8 more than the two-thirds.

The President vetoed the bill because it contained money for more than 60 projects which are not included in his budget program. He vetoed an earlier bill for the same reason but the House last week sustained that veto by a one-vote margin.

On today's roll call, 20 Republicans and 260 Democrats voted to override. Five Democrats and 116 Republicans voted to sustain the veto.

Diplomat's Wife Joins MSUO Staff

The wife of the French consul-general in Detroit will be teaching French classes at Michigan State University Oakland.

Mme. Helene Jeanne Desparmet, attractive 44-year-old mother of five children, agreed yesterday to pinch-hit until someone of professional rank from France succeeds her.

A former teacher, Mme. Desparmet is tackling the job, she says, "as a kind of good will gesture in international cultural relations."

She's not being paid, since persons in this country on diplomatic visas can't take American jobs for pay.

"But I love teaching anyway," she said, "and consider this a wonderful opportunity to get acquainted with American college students."

"If I were a youngster," said

Sec. Mitchell to Speak at Atom-Sub Launching

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell will deliver the principal address here at the launching of the atomic submarine Patrick Henry on Sept. 22.

In making the announcement today, the General Dynamic Corporation's electric boat division, the builder of the sub, said a large crowd is expected for the ceremonies.

GM Reveals Prices on Its New Corvairs

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors revealed details of its new Corvair today and became the first of the Big Three auto producers to announce prices for their new small-car entries.

The Corvair price range, not including excise tax, will run from $1,810 to $1,920.

GM Vice President Edward N. Cole, general manager of Chevrolet Division which manufacturers the Corvair, announced that the lowest-priced Corvair, a standard 500 series 2-door sports coupe would be $1,810; the standard 4-door sedan would be $1,860; the deluxe 2-door sports coupe $1,870, and the deluxe 4-door sedan, $1,920.

Automatic transmissions for the Corvair were priced at $135.

When the 10-per cent federal excise tax is added, the cost of a Corvair will range from slightly under, to a little over $2,000.

Ford unveiled its new Falcon last week, but did not set prices. Valiant, Chrysler's entry into the small car field, has not yet been introduced.

Falcon and Valiant, however, are expected to carry price tags close to the $2,000 mark.

Cole told newsmen at a national press preview of the new Corvair, Chevrolet and Chevrolet truck that his company's entry into the small car field would contain many of the qualities promised by Preston Tucker in his revolutionary Tucker Torpedo over 10 years ago.

MAJOR DIFFERENCE

But there was one major difference between the Corvair and the Tucker Torpedo. Chevrolet already is mass producing the Corvair and will put it on the market Oct. 2. Only a few Tucker Torpedoes were ever produced and they never reached the market place.

Cole said Chevrolet has already produced 16,000 Corvairs and expects to have assembled 30,000 by the time the car is introduced to the public early next month.

The Corvair will be powered by an air-cooled, six-cylinder engine which has the cylinders arranged in a horizontal position with banks of three cylinders working from either side toward the center.

Like the promised and almost forgotten Tucker Torpedo, the Corvair engine will be located in the rear, will be made largely of aluminum, and will transmit its power to the wheels through a combination transmission and axle, called trans-axle.

The body and the frame of the Corvair will be welded together in one single unit — a system called unitized construction — rather than being bolted together after being made as separate units.

The new small car will have independent coil spring suspension on all four wheels and a special tire wheel development which

U.S. to Support Lama on Tibet

U.N. Is Being Asked for Immediate Aid; Way Undecided

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today announced its support of the Dalai Lama's move to bring the Tibetan question before the United Nations.

The Tibetan spiritual leader, now in exile in India after having been driven out of his homeland by Red Chinese suppression in his land, asked the United Nations formally yesterday for "immediate intervention."

"The United States welcomes the initiative of the Dalai Lama in bringing the plight of the Tibetan people directly to the attention of the United Nations.

"We believe the world should hear what he has to say, for the situation in Tibet has implications for free peoples everywhere."

U.S. officials declined to say what step the United States might take—if any—in procedures to get the question before the United Nations.

How this might be done has been a matter of discussion at U.N. headquarters. Tibet is not a member of the United Nations.

Guess Who Paid 1st?

ST. IVES, England (UPI)—Nicholas Phillips, alderman and deputy mayor of St. Ives, undertook a relentless war on litterbugs in his capacity as chairman of the town's public health committee. Yesterday, St. Ives had its first prosecution under the litter act. Nicholas Phillips was fined $5.60 for dumping waste on the city's beach.

Crowd Watches Policeman Fight

Makes No Move to Aid as He Grapples With New York Gang Head

NEW YORK (UPI)—A lone patrolman battled a teenage Puerto Rican gang leader last night before a hostile crowd of more than 300 tenement dwellers in the heart of west side Manhattan's "jungle."

The patrolman, John Pilla, managed to arrest Ruben Aguirre, 16, who had seized the policeman's nightstick, but not until another patrolman came to his assistance. Not one of the crowd that had gathered lifted a finger to help Pilla.

The incident, with its overtones of neighborhood apathy toward juvenile lawlessness, occurred as Mayor Robert F. Wagner prepared to hold an emergency meeting this morning with the city's five district attorneys. They were expected to discuss ways of making parents responsible for the actions of teen offenders.

The scene of Patrolman Pilla's brush with a gang called "The Buccaneers" was the corner of Columbus Avenue and West 84th long known as "the worst street

County Crashes Take Two Lives

Oakland Twp., Utica Drivers Die as Cars Go Out of Control

Two men, one from Oakland Township and another from Utica, were killed when their cars went out of control in accidents yesterday afternoon and this morning in the county.

Dead are James G. Green, 29, of 6809 Sims St., Utica, and George W. Morley, 64, of 4421 Collins Rd., Oakland Township.

Green was killed instantly today when his auto ran off the Detroit - Brighton Expressway and smashed into an abutment under the Drake road overpass in Farmington township.

Last Year to Date: 62

Green was alone in his car, according to township police. No one saw the accident happen, they said.

Police theorized that Green may have fallen asleep at the wheel. The accident occurred at 1:05 a.m.

Morley was dead on arrival yesterday afternoon at Pontiac General Hospital after his auto plied into a concrete abutment in front of 2290 Walton Rd., just west of Rochester road, in Avon Township.

A cold wave rushing into the Pontiac area last night snapped a four-day heat wave and knocked today's temperatures into the mid-60's.

The same cold wave brought vicious overnight storms to other parts of the state, including a baby twister at Battle Creek. A man was killed by lightning near Bay City.

In Pontiac, the mercury plunged 34 degrees in 16 hours. It dropped from 91 at 3 p.m. yesterday to 57 at 7:30 a.m. today.

It'll stay partly cloudy and cooler, today with a high of around 76, the Weather Bureau predicted. Skies should begin clearing tonight, with a low of 46-52 and a high tomorrow of 68-74.

The Battle Creek storm, accompanied by frequent lightning, rain and hail, cut a three-mile jagged line through residential areas in Battle Creek Township and the neighboring city of Springfield.

Lasting only 10 minutes, the storm was described as a "baby twister" by police, who said it was remarkable no one was injured.

Joblessness, Employment in Decline

WASHINGTON (AP)—Both employment and unemployment declined in August. The job total, although curbed by the steel strike, still was a record for August.

The Labor Department announced that employment, affected by a big seasonal drop in farming as well as the steel shutdown and early auto industry model changeover, declined to 67,241,000. This was down 353,000 from the 67,594 000 employed in July.

Unemployment declined to 3,426,000 in August, or 318,000 less than the 3,744,000 idle in July.

Seymour Wolbein, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Labor, said that aside from the steel strike layoffs, the "underlying employment situation is very good."

Newspaper Strike Over in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit newspapers resumed publication today after three days of interruption caused by a press room labor dispute at the Detroit News.

The Detroit Times presses started running about noon for the first time except for a limited edition late Tuesday. News presses followed about an hour later.

There was no official statement from the Detroit Newspaper Publishers Assn. which represents management of Detroit's three dailies.

The morning Detroit Free Press said it planned to run its regular editions.

Pressmen of the News walked out Tuesday in a dispute over the disciplining of some members of Pressmen's Local 13 when management charged with violating their contract by refusing to replate a late Labor Day edition.

Both the Times and Free Press refrained from publishing under a policy of the Detroit Newspaper Publishers Assn. that a strike against one paper was a strike against all.

Handicapped Classes to Start

Large Enrollment of 56 Will Mean Division Into Three Age Groups

The training class program of the Oakland County Society for Crippled Children is scheduled to begin on Sept. 15 with an expected enrollment of 56 physically handicapped children.

The enrollment is so large this year, says executive secretary Elizabeth Kirkby, that classes are being divided into three age groups.

Classes are held Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at the Society headquarters, 1105 N. Telegraph Rd.

Physical thereapy, speech therapy and special teaching will be continued this year on a larger scale, the executive secretary says.

The services of a registered occupational therapist have been added to the present staff which includes two physical therapists, one speech therapist, a teacher of special education and a psychologist.

The parents of children who are to be enrolled for the coming term will meet at Society Headquarters tonight at 7:30. They will be familiarized with the training program and instructed in many ways how to help their children while at home.

The Society's braille class for the adult blind began its first session of the year yesterday. Classes are held every Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Governor and Honor Guard Stand By

Officials Attend Souden Burial

MARION SPRINGS (AP)—"There is triumph in the midst of tragedy."

The Rev. Robert Seiler, family pastor and friend, offered these words of solace to Mrs. Clara Souden yesterday at funeral services for her husband, State Police Trooper Albert W. Souden.

Pastor Seiler, leader of St. George's Lutheran Church in Brighton, conducted services for Albert Souden in St. John's Lutheran Church in this quiet central Michigan community before some 500 persons, including Gov. G. Mennen Williams, high State Police officials, friends and relatives.

Mrs. Souden and her 7-months-old son, Edward, were escorted into the white frame church by Souden's mother, Mrs. Hattie Souden, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Witt.

Souden was slain last week when he attempted to arrest ex-convict Alvin Knight at Argentine.

Mourners braved a violent thunderstorm and heavy rain which came just as the funeral services started. Some 100 persons unable to get into the small church stood outside in the rain during the services.

PASTOR SPEAKS

Looking at the weeping Mrs. Souden and her son, Pastor Seiler said:

"Bud (Trooper Souden) is not lost. He is at home. God shall provide for you. I hope that your son will become the same type of man."

Dr. Seiler also read Souden's favorite scriptural passage — the 23rd Psalm.

An honor guard of 120 fellow state policemen escorted Souden's casket into the church and later to a nearby cemetery. Heavy rain fell as the slain trooper's casket moved en route to the cemetery in nearby Brant but stopped as the cortege arrived.

An American flag from State Police Headquarters in East Lansing covered the casket on its final journey.

Gov. Williams and State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs stood with bowed heads as Pastor Seiler repeated the graveside prayers and the pallbearers folded the flag.

The flag was given to Childs who passed it along to Williams. The governor, half-kneeling before Mrs. Souden, gave her the flag saying:

"Mrs. Souden, on behalf of the people of Michigan and the Michigan State Police, I present this flag for the man who served under it."

As she had many times during the funeral service and during the long wait for final news of her husband's fate, Mrs. Souden wept as she clutched the flag to her breast.

Williams escorted her, her parents and Souden's mother to his limousine, which took them back to nearby Chesaning. The governor rode back in a State Police car.

Souden was buried in a family plot in the county cemetery, next to the grave of his father, who died in 1958.

The trooper's accused slayer, meanwhile, remained in the Livingston County Jail some 45 miles away, where he is held without bail on a general murder charge. Knight, 48, is accused of shooting Souden with the trooper's own gun.

Prosecutor Wilfred Erwin said Knight told him Tuesday that he will not sign a formal statement.

Budgets Preoccupy State Chiefs Confab

MACKINAC ISLAND (AP)—Budget headaches—the kind that plague families everywhere—preoccupied Michigan local government chiefs assembled here today.

They were the No. 1 topic of 800 officers of cities and villages from Ironwood to Monroe gathered for the 61st annual meeting of the Michigan Municipal League.

Scant encouragement was offered by state legislative and administrative officials at opening sessions of the three-day meeting.

In recent years, mayors, village presidents and councilmen have united in demands for authority to bolster revenues by levying local income taxes, a power the state legislature persistently has denied.

There was little evidence city fathers would alter their tune this year or that legislators would bend to it.

Mayor Al Zack of Hamtramck, a former House member, was more worried than most municipal executives.

Chrysler Corp., which foots the bill for 46 per cent of local government costs in Hamtramck, is fighting for a 40 per cent reduction in real and personal property assessments and a corresponding cut in its tax payments.

"If Chrysler wins its property assessment appeal to the state tax commission it will mean the loss of about $250,000 in local revenue," Zack said.

"What are we supposed to do? Fire and police salaries and those of other city employes have climbed to where they are to keep pace with wages paid by industry.

"We have a lot of pensioners in our community. Is it fair to shift the tax burden to them through increased residential property rates?" he asked.

E. Boomie Mikrut, director of the State Municipal Finance Commission, appeared before the city officials to explain delays by his agency in approval of borrowing applications, a sore point in recent years.

Staff limitations fixed by the Legislature and "heavy run of emergency loan requests submitted by hard-pressed school districts were mainly responsible, Mikrut said.

The commission currently is about 10 weeks behind in its work.

Gov. Williams reportedly was ready to call a meeting of League and Municipal Finance Commission officials Sept. 22 in Lansing to seek ways of speeding up processes.

French Envoy's Wife to Teach at MSUO

MSUO Chancellor D. B. Varner, "I would consider myself lucky to have as a teacher a woman as cultured and well traveled as Mme. Desparmet."

Varner had asked the consul general, Jean Paul Desparment, to help obtain the services of a teacher from a French university.

With no one lined up by the time school was about to open, Mme. Desparmet volunteered to fill the gap.

Her three classes will be over by noon. "In time for her to be back home when our children are out of school," said Desparmet.

Mme. Desparmet also spends busy evenings acting as hostess at diplomatic dinners at the Desparmet home in Grosse Pointe Park.

IN DETROIT 3 YEARS

The Desparmets have been in Detroit three years and expect to be there a couple more before being assigned to a new post.

Their three younger children—Patricia, 12, and 14-year-old twins, Joelle and Jeanette—attend school in Grosse Pointe. Raymond Desparmet, 16, and the oldest daughter, Josephine, 18, left this country recently to attend school in Paris.

A graduate of the Academy of Marseille, Mme. Desparmet taught school in unoccupied France during the early 1940s.

She and her husband fled the country shortly after their marriage, since the Germans had condemned Desparmet to death for his anti-Nazi activities.

Desparmet joined the Free French forces in Africa, and Mme. Desparmet studied archeology at the French Institute of Carthage in Tunis.

Since the end of the war, Mme. Desparmet has traveled with her husband to diplomatic assignments in South America, Europe and the United States, including a stay in New York City where her husband worked at United Nations headquarters.

TAUGHT IN PERU

She taught French to Peruvian youngsters while her husband was stationed in Lima, Peru, seven years ago.

Mme. Desparmet wrote a scholarly work about Inca archeology while in Peru. It has been published in France. She is presently working on a novel.

Announces Details About New Corvair

will give "excellent handling and stability," something often missing in rear-engine cars.

It weighs 2,375 pounds, Cole said, about 1,385 less than a comparable 1959 Chevrolet. It will be 180 inches long on a 108-inch wheelbase, 51 inches high and 66.9 inches wide.

Cole said that the Corvair will be offered initially in standard and deluxe four-door sedan models but a two-door sports coupe will be introduced "sometime after the first of the year."

Although the price of the Corvair was not revealed, it was expected to sell for about $2,000 including federal tax.

"The majority of the people in the United States still need an all-purpose car for the multitude of duties which the family is called upon to perform," Cole said.

"But there is a clear and present need for a specialized type of car designed to provide American standards of performance, comfort, safety and convenience but in a smaller size with lower initial cost and improved economy of operation."

The Corvair, he said, satisfies these needs "more completely than any other car being made available . . . in 1960—foreign or domestic."

He said the Corvair and other compact cars would help boost the total American car market to "at least 6,900,000" during 1960 and said Chevrolet expects to sell 1,500,000 conventional cars, 300,000 Corvairs, and 365,000 trucks, a grand total of 2,165,000 cars and trucks.

If achieved, this would topple the company's previous all-time sales high of 2,066,377 set in the boom year of 1955.

The General Motors vice president said Chevrolet will carry out the new economy theme by offering a V-8 engine which will give gasoline economy close to that of a six-cylinder engine.

New tires, made of a rubber derivative of petroleum, will give all Chevrolets a softer ride, 10 to 20 per cent more tread life and increase resistance to squeal, he said. The new cars also will have better braking, better noise isolation and new styling.

Jobs, Joblessness Decrease in August

clined by 468,000, nonfarm employment rose by 115,000 to 60,884,000, a record figure.

The seasonally adjusted ratio of unemployment to the civilian labor force rose from 5.1 per cent in July to 5.5 per cent in August.

Wolfbein said this was due to 80,000 layoffs in the auto industry for model changes and an estimated 145,000 layoffs in industries affected by the steel strike now in its 58th day.

Part of the unemployment decline was due to the usual August situation of student job seekers finding jobs or leaving the labor force.

Wolfbein said that if the steel strike continues Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell may be in danger of having to eat his hat. Mitchell promised last spring he would do just that if unemployment hadn't dropped below three million in October.

The prospect for October, based on present figures, Wolfbein said, is that unemployment then will be right in the neighborhood of three million. He said continuing secondary layoffs due to the steel strike could swell the figure.

EARNINGS DOWN

The work week in manufacturing rose seasonally to 40½ hours in August. Average weekly earnings declined by $1.17 a week to $88.70 because there were fewer steel and auto workers, whose wages are above average.

This August's total of 67,241,000 employed topped the prior August peak of 66,421,000, set in 1956.

Pilla was able to overpower Aguirre and pin him against a parked car. By this time tenement dwellers swarmed into the streets by the hundreds, blocking traffic on Columbus Ave.

Another patrolman, Richard Ware, was attracted by the traffic jam and found Pilla, jostled and jeered by the mob and unable to get Aguirre to a taxi to take him to the station.

Ware found a cab, but the driver was unable to maneuver through the crowd. While Pilla and Ware were trying to shove Aguirre into a private car, two pop bottles were thrown at them. Ware called the station for assistance.

Open City Airport Bids in Lansing

The State Department of Aeronautics today was scheduled to open construction bids on the federally-sponsored $390,000 terminal project at Pontiac Municipal Airport.

Opening of bids was scheduled for 2 p.m. in Lansing.

Contractors may be designated afterwards, said Homer D. Hoskins, airport manager.

It is possible that the City Commission may be asked to approve final contracts as early as next Tuesday, Hoskins said. Deadline for federal participation in the project is Sept. 30.

Costs break down into an estimated $300,000 for a one-story terminal building and four-story tower and $90,000 for an entrance road, parking lot and other outside improvements.

The federal government has agreed to pay about half the cost, with state and city governments splitting the rest.

Deputy Works Quickly to Avert Blast Injuries

A fast-thinking Oakland County sheriff's deputy, Fred Robinson, averted possible disaster yesterday afternoon seconds before a smouldering automobile exploded on M87 just east of Tucker road, Holly Township.

Robinson was in the area when he heard a radio call to the Holly police and fire departments that there was a car on fire on M87.

"I got there in a few minutes, before firemen had arrived, and saw the parked car with its left rear tire burning," Robinson said.

He could see the fire was dangerously close to the gas tank and that fire equipment in his patrol car would be of no avail, so he began clearing bystanders from the area.

"I figured I had only seconds to work. I blocked off the highway for 100 yards both ways and before I knew it there was this terrific explosion."

"The flames blew a hundred feet in all directions and a liquid ball of fire shot more than a hundred feet into the air," the deputy related.

No one was injured and Holly firemen arrived moments later to extinguish the flames.

Its driver, Corinne Anderson, of 5195 M87, Holly, told police she had a blowout and when she stopped the rear tire was on fire. She and her sister, Mrs. Bessie Anderson of Joy, Ill., escaped before the auto's gas tank exploded.

Mercury Tumbles All Over Central Portion of Nation

By The Associated Press

Cool Canadian air moved into the central section of the country today, and temperatures plummeted.

Early readings in the northern plains and Upper Mississippi Valley were 30 to 40 degrees lower than 24 hours earlier.

At Huron, S. D., it was 44 degrees—39 degrees under Wednesday's reading at the same hour.

Hours after the cool air swept down, it had moved into the lower Great Lakes and southwestward into northern Texas.

Hart and McNamara Support Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michigan's Democratic Sens. Philip A. Hart and Patrick V. McNamara voted with the majority yesterday as the Senate passed 86-7 a third-try billion dollar housing bill.

McNamara and Hart also voted with the majority on a 61-27 roll call by which the Senate passed an 800-million dollar water pollution bill last night.

The Day in Birmingham

Wisconsin Artist Added to Staff at Cranbrook

BIRMINGHAM — When Cranbrook Academy of Arts opens its fall term Monday, Jack Madson, noted Wisconsin artist, will replace Fred Mitchell on the faculty as painting instructor.

Madson also will conduct the adult evening classes which begin Oct. 6 for beginners and Oct. 8 for advanced students. Hours are from 8 to 10 p.m. Registrations are being accepted now.

Madson has been a consistent prize winner since he deserted engineering several years ago for painting and sculpture. He was awarded the George Gough Booth Memorial Scholarship at Cranbrook Academy in 1957, and received his master of fine arts degree there in May of 1958.

JACK MADSON

In the past four years Madson has been awarded 12 prizes for his paintings, one for his sculpture.

He also painted a 50-foot mural for the Wisconsin Electric Power Co. in Milwaukee and was one of four finalists in a mural competition sponsored by the Continental National Bank in Lincoln, Neb.

Cranbrook Institute of Science is again offering a series of five Saturday field trips to junior members who are 11 years and older.

Registration may be made by mail or at the reception desk on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Those who are not members may join the Institute and register for the expeditions at the same time, on or before Sept. 15.

First trip is Sept. 19, an all-day expedition to Point Pelee for the hawk and monarch butterfly migration.

Each succeeding Saturday, leaving the Institute at 9 a.m. regardless of weather, the group will explore a different area to study birds, mammals, reptiles, amphibians, trees, wildflowers and fungi; to collect rocks, minerals and fossils. Juniors who bring cameras will be given special help.

The five expeditions will be led by Walter P. Nickell, the Institute's well known naturalist.

But books, shoes and assorted bits of clothing and pocketbooks remained scattered along the right-of-way, mute testimony to the tremendous force of the impact.

U. of M. Hospital Sued for $375,000

ANN ARBOR (AP) — A lawsuit claiming damages of $375,000 for injuries allegedly received by a child patient at the University of Michigan Hospital has been filed in Washtenaw County circuit court here.

Clarence Christie, father of 7-year-old Kirk Christie of Okemos, filed the suit naming the board of regents of the university as defendants.

The suit claimed the child was allowed to fall on his head from an unattended crib in 1953 and brain hemorrhaging resulted that forced extensive surgery.

A portion of the child's skull was removed, a plate was later inserted in his head and the boy has undergone 11 operations at the Ann Arbor Hospital and has been confined there a total of nine months, the suit claimed.

The child, now a first grade student, had to wear a football helmet to protect his head from March of 1954 until September of 1957, the suit said.

Dr. Dooley's Out of the Hospital, and He Just Won't Slow Down

By HENRIETTA LEITH

Friends and associates are having little success in trying to keep the 32-year-old doctor from overdoing it in his rounds of newspaper interviews, meetings with officials from Laos, and other projects.

And it will be difficult to talk Tom Dooley out of his plan to go back to Laos in late November and take up his duties at his jungle hospital—no matter how hot the off-and-on shooting may have become.

The handsome crusader says his doctors agree with him.

"They say they can't think of anything better for me," he said. "And they can't think of anything worse than sitting around New York worrying about cancer."

Dooley, who was treating 100 patients a day in his hospital at Muong Sing, near the Chinese border, left his hospital in the hands of native workers when tests showed a tumor in his chest wall was malignant.

He went into Memorial Hospital for an operation that involved massive tissue removal, and grafting of skin from his legs to his chest.

He walked out of the hospital nine days later—last Saturday—and went right back to work.

Work at the moment consists of telling everyone who will listen about the funds needed by Medico, or Medical International Cooperation, the private organization which built the hospital in Laos and many others in Asia.

In a few days he will go to Hawaii for sunshine and work on a book about Laos—again to get money for Medico. Then he will begin a month-long lecture tour—40 speeches in 50 cities—for the same purpose.

Dooley is thrilled by the United Nations consideration of the situation in Laos.

He feels it would be impossible to fight any kind of ordinary warfare in the "rain forest, deep jungle, high-flooded rivers" of northern Laos in the monsoon season. Troops could only get in by parachute, he says, because the few airfields are nothing but mud now.

"But anything the U. N. does is good," he said. "We must show we do think about people who haven't got it so good."

Measure Favors Auction of Confiscated Diamonds

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than two million dollars worth of diamonds — some brought into the country by smugglers—would be sold at auction under a bill now before the President. The diamonds in the government's defense stockpile have been declared surplus.

A little more than a sixth of the diamonds are cut and polished gem stones. The rest are rough uncut diamonds. Some were seized from smugglers and turned over to the stockpile by court order.

Chile's Railways Long

SANTIAGO — Chile's railway system extends about 5,740 miles and there are about 20,000 miles of improved highways.

It is estimated that an average person has more than 2,500,000 sweat glands which are distributed over various sections of the body.

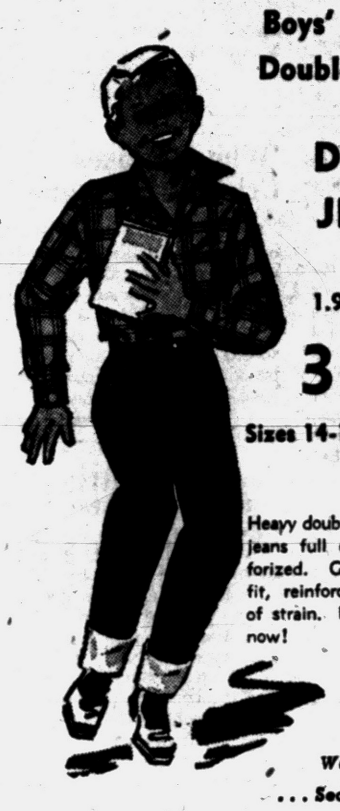

---

Lumber cut in the United States in the past 140 years, if stacked into one pile, would make a cube exactly one mile in each of its three dimensions, the industry estimates.

Voluntary Settlement of Strike Best Way

All indications and surveys indicate that the steel strike's pinch is not yet widely felt. Further, it looks like sufficient pressure to force the hand of the Government is weeks away.

The phenomenon of this strike is that it can run so long and do so little visible damage to the country. This is not true in other countries where each fluctuation of steel production is regarded as a crucial barometer of living standards and national prosperity.

Aside from the half million steel workers and the 125,000 in related fields, a recent Federal survey shows few layoffs yet in smaller plants or construction.

Pre-strike inventories are still high and many manufacturers report they have enough to run until mid-October or later. Indications at this time seem to point to the probability that the mills will not reopen until President EISENHOWER moves for a national emergency injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act.

If this is the case, he must take cognizance of the lag between the no-strike order and the month or so it will take to get the mills in full production and to start making volume shipments.

With this in mind and the comfortable steel reserves still in the industry's hands, it does not seem likely that much action will be forthcoming before October 1.

Should the President step in and send the men back to work some time around this date, it is entirely possible that it would settle nothing. True, the men would be obliged to return to work, but for only 80 days at their old wages and same working conditions.

When this period was over, they could renew their walkout as a sort of Christmas offering. Let's hope that both management and steel unions can reach an amicable agreement soon on their own.

Pontiac Already Feels Benefits From MSUO

It won't be just the young of heart and mind that take up the learning process at Michigan State University Oakland later this month. Sixteen adult education courses are being offered at the new university.

Most of them carry no academic prerequisities and are open to anyone interested. Teaching the ten-week sessions will be both MSUO faculty members and other qualified instructors.

The fare is rich and varied, from philosophy in literature to financial and administrative accounting, creative problem solving, and drawing and oil painting.

For those who have felt that the "culture count" is low in Pontiac, here is a first of many dividends from MSUO. We think we're going to like being a college town, in addition to being an auto town.

Local Cancer Group Stays With United Fund

The North Oakland County unit of the American Cancer Society has officially severed its ties with the national American Cancer Society, over the question of financing and the United Fund.

Now the County unit is aligned with the autonomous Michigan Cancer Foundation and is free to continue participation in the United Fund drive as its source of income.

The break with the national society and its dictates is a welcome one—it strengthens the United Fund picture in the area.

Once the national organizations successfully bully their local units into trying to "go it alone" with their own campaigns for funds, there is a dangerous chink in the UF armor. Another withdrawal or two, and we might be right back in the old mess, with someone sticking his hand out twice a week for this group or that charity.

Big Sunflowers

Pontiac Man Has 'Em That Look Like World Beaters

Football contest: What gets under way tomorrow.

of 32 Hudson St., average 15 feet in height, a great many going considerably above that figure.

Thriving in the fertile ground, invorating atmosphere and salubrious surroundings of the Valley of Galloway Creek, they're blue ribbon winners in my category.

Although Mr. Barner's claim as to his sun chasers also bore the certification of

of 18 Myra St., I sneaked out to East Walton myself to see if Pontiac has a bonafide claim to such a distinction, and found that it has.

After reading in a Detroit paper (with two-column illustration) about a Kansas squash that weighed 17 pounds and was two feet long, of Drayton Plains comes forward with a 26 pound squash that is three feet long, and wonders if Kansas raises anything else besides squash and cyclones.

Mrs. Pearl Fahler

My good neighbor up the same street a few blocks,

Arthur Hillman

of Holly, has a castor bean plant 10½ feet tall and still growing

With a hunch for doing the unusual, a hen in the poultry yard of

of Rochester has laid a triple-yolk egg. She is of Leghorn stock, crossed with the Australia meat hen.

Some cucumbers in the garden of

of Waterford boiled over with the heat. They split open and the hot juice seared the leaves with which it came in contact.

In 100 per cent agreement am I with a letter headed

"They Deserve a Lot of Credit,"

which praises the thousands who participated in the Michigan Peach Festival at Romeo, and so wonderfully carried out their parts in torrid weather.

Tall corn honors shift today to

A'garter snake that crept up on a hot cement walk, according to

Harry Byrd Jr. Analyzes Cuba

By HARRY F. BYRD, JR.

HAVANA — Fidel Castro has effectively used one of the oldest of weapons and one of the newest — the machete and television — to consolidate his position. He has used the machete to instill fear and television to arouse the emotions of the "masses" to whom he is appealing.

Despite disillusionment on the part of many of the orinigal supporters of the revolution (Fidel Castro's popularity is high), most Cubans say he would receive probably 70 per cent of the vote if free elections were held.

Fidel Castro and his co-revolutionaries are dedicated to bringing to Cuba a social revolution. The people have given Fidel a blank check. He is running a one-man show.

Many Cubans feel that unless Castro soon sets his economic house in order he will lose his popularity.

Others believe that Castro's hold on the people is so great that they will stand considerable hardship. The younger people—and the women—have been inspired by his idealism, and they overlook the fact that his words and deeds fail to coincide.

The peasants have received special attention and have been made his principal supporters by the promises of free land. For the workers in the cities he has decreed a 40 to 60 per cent reduction in their rents.

If Castro is so popular why does he shun free elections without which he is almost certain to forfeit world opinion? The answer seems to be the following:

He is confident that he can carry out the revolution more effectively if he is not hindered by a legislature with which he might find it necessary to compromise. Any compromise, he tells the Cuban people, would "dilute the revolution." He is impatient of restraint. He now makes his own decisions, which he could not do if there were a legislature to deal with. He is supremely confident of his own ability.

Fidel Castro, and each of those connected with the revolution with whom I talked, are extremely sensitive to criticism. The public officials with whom I had contact seemed to have chips on their shoulders.

NOT ADMINISTRATOR

The prime minister makes no pretense of being an administrator and pays little attention to the details of government. Although he has a law degree, hence the title of doctor, virtually all of his adult life has been spent in revolutionary work.

One of Castro's closest associates told me, in seeking to allay criticism, that being only 32 years of age Castro, "naturally has the emotions of a man that age." He seemed to be saying that things will improve as Castro matures.

But, as I see it, the odds are on the side of his becoming more determined, more dictatorial, more impatient. There seems little doubt that the acclaim he has received has given him a Messiah complex.

Cuba is so dependent upon the United States that it is difficult to see the logic — except as a local political issue — of Castro's constant attacks on this country.

The United States, in effect, is subsidizing the Cuban sugar industry, the life blood of the island. The world price for sugar is 2.65 cents per pound, the lowest in 19 years. But from the United States, Cuba receives 5.5 cents per pound, more than double the world price.

It costs about 3.5 cents to raise a pound of sugar, so the sugar-growers are losing one cent a pound on that half of the sugar which is sold on the world market. They make a profit of two cents a pound on the half they sell to the U.S.

It's easy to see that without America's support quotas the Cuban sugar industry would go broke. And that in turn would mean bankruptcy for the whole island.

So in the end, the United States holds the trump card in its game with Castro. It could slowly, quietly and effectively put the squeeze on Cuba merely by gradually reducing that country's sugar quota.

It is accurate to report that if Castro goes through with his threat to expropriate the property of United States citizens in Cuba, without fair compensation, there are important members in the U.S. Senate who are prepared to take quiet, yet effective action.

In considering the situation in Cuba today it is important to remember that the revolution is only seven months old.

Those who fought in the mountains of Cuba for six years have had only seven months to try their hands at civil government; they have had only seven months to get over the bitterness and hatred which built up within them during their six years in those rugged mountains of Oriente Province.

So there is a chance that as time goes on Fidel Castro and his advisors will show some signs of stability, fewer signs of a plunge leftward.

But the odds, I should judge, are against it.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Don't Be Too Anxious to Have Tonsillectomies

"I wish," writes a Michigan reader, "your column had been in our paper when we were persuaded to have our son's tonsils removed by school authorities years ago.

DR. BRADY

"His nose and throat have never been free from trouble since.

"When the doctor removed them they were large, he said, but showed no sign of inflammation or infection.

"Three weeks later we took the boy back to the doctor who removed his tonsils, because he couldn't breathe well.

"The doctor didn't recognize him as his patient, but glanced at his throat and said he needed an operation for the removal of those bad tonsils.

"When I told him that he had removed the boy's tonsils just three weeks ago, he looked at his throat again and said: 'Ah, yes, it is remarkable how quickly they grow back in again'."

Although the Michigan reader's letter does not name the doctor who made the faux pas nor offer evidence to corroborate the three weeks story, it is all too credible.

Tonsils do not "grow back in," as this Michigan reader expresses it, as though tonsil (or adenoid) tissue were malignant. This common notion, however, reflects the view many fast operators have taken and some still take of enlargement of the tonsils.

The tonsils of school children are normally large, very large in the late winter and early spring.

Parents of school children should know:

1. The tonsils enlarge in the winter and shrink in the summer time.

2. The major operation known as tonsillectomy is not necessary and not justified for merely enlarged tonsils. The minor operation known as tonsillotomy—snipping, clipping, or instantaneously removing the obstructing portion of tonsil—is satisfactory if operation is necessary at all, and no more dangerous than the extraction of a tooth.

3. As for "getting every bit of tonsil," this is the irresponsible argument of the ignorant or dishonest operator. More or less tonsil tissue is left in the throat after most tonsillectomies. If any physician of standing questions this, I'll cite the statistics.

4. Treatment of enlarged tonsils is seldom an emergency question. So I urge parents of school children to think it over when or if some school doctor, teacher or social service worker suggests that the child's tonsils should be removed.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis, or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Clergymen Alert to Psychology

Rev. Samuel's compliment is very revealing of the alertness of modern clergymen to practical psychology and psychiatry. Next to dentists, I get more letters per year from clergymen than from any other profession. A few clergy violently disagree but the purpose of this column is to make you think. To do that, it is sometimes necessary to make readers irate.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE C — 440: Samuel D., aged 32, introduced me to a large convention of clergymen recently.

And during our luncheon, he made some interesting comments.

DR. CRANE

"Dr. Crane, we made a poll of newspaper reading among our clergy," he said, "and you may be glad to know that more clergymen follow your column than any other.

"However, some of our members are also severe critics because you step on an occasional ecclesiastical 'bunion'. Thus, when you indict preachers for putting their congregations to sleep, some pastors don't like it, probably because the shoe fits.

"But no other columnist brings into the limelight the essential facts about religion and morality that you do.

"And your personal talks before our teenagers wherein you offer them the logical proof of God and veto their developing nuisance habits such as smoking and drinking, put you into a class by yourself."

COMPLIMENT CLUBBERS

Well, I naturally appreciated Rev. Samuel's gracious compliments, for I try to write a provacative column that will wake up the mossbacks and stabilize youth regarding sound moral habits.

For example, I am under a lot of censure because I include an occasional case exposing the folly of becoming addicts of liquor and tobacco.

Naturally, the advertisers of such merchandise grow irate and try to browbeat editors into cancelling my column.

Have you ever read any other newspaper columnist who dared expose in the daily newspaper the medical and psychological hazards of tobacco and liquor?

Oh, you church folks may read such exposures by clergymen in your official church journals.

But name anybody else in American journalism who does it. Yet a good newspaper is supposed to present facts, regardless of whose corns they pinch.

And 70,000,000 non-church folks never see any church journals or hear clergymen, so I figure they need such scientific facts via their newspaper.

TYPES OF EDITOR

The true American editor doesn't necessarily endorse all the comments of his columnists, but he gives them freedom of expression. He follows Voltaire's stand, who said:

"I may disagree with what you say but I will lay down my life to defend your right to say it."

But occasional editors get pressured into situations where they grow jittery and try to steer a neutral course, without offending anybody.

"Dr. Crane's column is unique," thus stated an earlier editor of the Chicago Daily News over 20 years ago when he saw the first releases.

"But he dares attack clergymen for putting their congregation to sleep. And he criticizes lazy professors. Besides, he is pretty frank in scolding wives. He even accuses them of being 50 per cent to blame for divorces.

"Dr Crane's column is good but I am afraid to run it. If you will sell it to the newspapers all around Chicago, then come back and I'll buy it."

Well, my column was sold to the big surrounding papers, but still he chickened out and it took a new editor with the Voltaire spirit to launch it in Chicago.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 4c stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

What We Need Is Modern Boot Hill for Criminals'

I've never been an advocate of capital punishment, until recent events awakened me.

What we need is a "Boot Hill" and law enforcement that will start filling it. Then the country will be a safer place for decent people to live.

There is no use putting murderers in prison and then letting them out on parole to murder again.

How fortunate to have a wonderful newspaper like The Pontiac Press for our hometown paper. The articles on various business trips have been very educational and so interesting that I could hardly wait for the next article.

Urges Negative Vote in Novi

An important election is approaching for Novi and the question is, "Do we want a city?" I say NO.

When I first moved here, the local government, the schools and the area's potential future looked excellent, so I settled down to some real country living. It didn't last long as a majority of residents wanted to take over the burden of more government, thus supposedly protecting Novi's boundaries after Wixom had absconded with our biggest tax plum.

A year of village rule is almost up. I'd like all Novi citizens to jot down the things you're getting under village rule you didn't get before. Pretty difficult, isn't it? The shocker comes when I hear in spite of extra tax money, the village is still running deeper in the red.

Now the same group of people feel city status is a cure-all. I'm afraid there'll be a rude awakening if a city is thrust upon us. I'll have to vote against city incorporation Sept. 15.

'Tigers in Need of Manager Most'

The Tigers haven't got a first baseman at all and they can stand a shortstop, but what they need most is a manager. The Detroit team would be in first place and not Chicago if they had a smart boss.

Take the other day when the Tigers were behind and Wilson was due at bat with a man on second and he was jerked for a palooka named Crisley and I looked up their batting averages of that day and Wilson was batting .283 and this Crisley .127.

Everyone knows Dykes cannot handle pitchers but he can't handle the rest of the game either. He would make a very good third base coach under a smart manager.

Even those three jokers that bungle up first base are better first basemen than Dykes is a manager.

'That Would Be Quite a Price'

There were approximately 140,000,000 1959 pennies manufactured in July alone by the U.S. Government at the two mints, so I doubt very much if the Government or anyone else will be buying them back at the price you heard about.

'Who Releases Criminally Insane?'

Cop killers have no business being allowed to live. Whoever is responsible for allowing these mentally sick to roam our streets is guilty also. When a person is adjudged criminally insane, he should be locked up for good. How many more such killings must we have before action is taken?

Cotton Bale Output Up 3 Million Over 1958

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department estimated today that growers would produce 14,678,000 bales of cotton this year, a reduction of 137,000 bales, or one per cent, from last month's forecast.

The revised estimate was based on Sept. 1 crop conditions. It compared with a 1958 output of 11,512,000 bales and a 10-year average production of 14,046,000 bales.

The department's crop reporting board estimated this year's cotton yields would average 470 pounds of lint an acre, compared with 466 pounds in 1958 and a 10-year average of 329 pounds.

Declines in cotton prospects in Texas and several other states more than offset increases which came primarily in Mississippi and adjoining states.

The indicated yield-per-acre figure of 470 pounds would be the highest on record, topping the previous record set last year.

Protests Striking Out Anti-Secrecy Provision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Porter Hardy (D-Va) has protested striking out an anti-secrecy provision he wrote into the foreign aid money bill. The action was taken by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Under Hardy's amendment, foreign aid funds except military assistance to friendly nations could be cut off if Congress is denied information on how the program is run.

TWA Flight Qualifications High

Train Jetliner Pilots on the Eighth Floor

(The rigorous training pilots undergo learning to fly the giant new commercial jetliners is a little known aspect of the jet age. In the following dispatch, a veteran aviation writer tells what he found out about the training program from a visit to the training center of one major airline.)

By ROBERT J. SERLING

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—All was quiet and routine in the cockpit of the big Boeing 707 jetliner.

The cruising altitude was 30,000 feet. The ground speed was 487 miles per hour with a 20 mile headwind.

A loud, raucous buzzer squawked suddenly. A red light began flashing on the instrument panel—so bright that the roof of the flight deck glowed crimson.

"Grab her!" the captain snapped to the co-piolt.

The latter took the controls. In one swift motion, the captain donned an oxygen mask and pulled a lever that automatically opened the mask compartment above every seat in the passenger cabin.

The co-pilot donned his own mask. At the very second he let go of the wheel, the captain took the controls, pushed them forward and the giant plane began nosing down.

In the back of the two pilots, a third man quietly marked down a grade next to an item reading: "Emergency descent after explosive decompression, use of oxygen mask and mike."

The grade was "good."

"Not bad," he told the perspiring captain. "Get her nose down a little bit faster. This is a race against time."

This incident did not take place at 30,000 feet. It happened on the 8th floor of a converted Kansas City furniture store—a half-million dollar structure that Trans World Airlines has remodeled into the most modern pilot training center in the world. The Flight Operations Training. Under tronic simulator which is so close to the real thing that on a landing, you can hear tires squeal on make-believe pavement.

The man in charge of the breeding ground for jetliner pilots is Capt. Ray Rowe, director of TWA Flight Operations Training. Uned his guidance, TWA is turning out the captains, first officers and flight engineers who are manning the airline's new 707 jetliners. Rowe, soft-spoken but blunt, is outspoken in praise of the jets.

"They are different, they are demanding, and they do not tolerate carelessness or mistakes," Rowe said. "But in the hands of a thoroughly-trained pilot, they are the safest aircraft ever built—and it's our job to make sure our crews are so trained."

This is how the crews are so trained."

—A full year before TWA took delivery of its first 707, all pilots, engineers, navigators and dispatchers received home study material on jet operations — high altitude meterology, electronics, jet engine principals and the flying characteristics of high-speed, swept-back wing aircraft.

—Actual qualification on the jet begins with 60 hours of ground school courses. In these, crews familiarize themselves with every detail of the plane itself, from its flight deck instruments to the air-conditioning system. They must pass a stiff examination before they are allowed to progress to the next phase.

Another 24 to 30 hours are spent in the 707 simulator. All airlines prefer to use simulators for pilot training for two reasons: (1) they are cheaper ($125 an hour compared to $1,200 an hour on a real plane) and (2) they can train and test crews in emergency procedures without risking a five-million-dollar aircraft.

In the simulator, a pilot will spend 10 hours observing, 10 hours at the controls themselves and another four to 10 hours "refining" his performance and passing tests.

The entire jet course takes three weeks, in 14 completely-equipped classrooms that contain everything from animated diagrams of various jet systems to color movies of the airports the jets will serve (taken from a cockpit to accustom crews to all runways, approaches, obstructions and so on).

When pilots complete the course, they fly the real thing for another 10 hours. Then comes the final exam: a grueling test by a Federal Aviation Agency inspector.

Atlas Powerful, Claims General

Called 'Operational' but Needs Polishing; Seen as War Deterrent

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—War-ready Atlas Intercontinental ballistic missiles are in the hands of combat-trained Air Force missilemen today as a "powerful deterrent to war."

Top Air Force officers admitted, however, the full capability of the 6,300-mile missiles was some time away.

"It is operational," declared Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of the Strategic Air Command. "This is a tremendous milestone."

He made the statement after the first operational launch of an Atlas yesterday. The launch was "more than satisfactory."

But he told newsmen:

"Like any other new weapon it will take time to develop its full capabilities. Now we have the tidying up operations to make it as potent as possible."

MORE TO COME

Power said further shots would be held at this central California coastal base at the rate of one every two or three months. He said the Air Force hopes to train crews so they can fire an Atlas in a matter of minutes should an emergency arise.

The nation's first operational SAC squadron pushed the button on the missile. With its three giant rockets bellowing as they created a thrust equal to seven and a half million horsepower, the box-car sized weapon rose slowly from the launch pad on a 4,400 mile flight to near Wake Island.

The squadron that fired operational Atlas No. 1 has three launchers at this base and five missiles. Later squadrons will have nine launchers and 10 birds.

Asked when the first full-strength squadron would be ready, Power said he did not know. But he said new crews would graduate from this base about every two to three months from now on.

The rapidly growing Oakland County Medical Society, intent on expanding its scope as an influential public service organization, seeks to seat one of its members on the governing board of the Michigan State Medical Society.

The board of directors of the OCMS last night confirmed the nomination of Dr. Robert J. Mason, 654 Overhill Rd., Birmingham, to the position of 15th District councilor of the State Medical Society. If he is appointed, Mason will serve a five-year term.

The election will be held at a meeting of the house of delegates of the state group on Sept. 29 in Grand Rapids.

The 15th District comprises Oakland and Macomb counties.

The position had been filled for the past nine years by Dr. Bruce Wiley of Utica, who recently was named secretary of the Michigan State Medical Society.

The Oakland County Medical Society has an active membership of 377 doctors, 37 associate members and 64 resident members.

The first fall meeting was held last night at Kingsley Inn.

Claims Gridder Made to Practice Just Before Death

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — The Washington Post and Times Herald said today that a high school senior claimed that Maryland University football player Charles Lohr was made to practice under protest shortly before he collapsed of heat exhaustion which caused his death.

University head football coach Tom Nugent denied that Lohr had been singled out for extra drill.

Lohr, 19-year-old sophomore center, was stricken on the practice field last Wednesday and died four days later.

Robert D. Welshmer, 17-year-old senior and varsity football player at High Point High School, Beltsville, Md., told the Post and Times Herald that he attended the Sept. 2 workout.

Henarie burned his foot when he spilled hot coffee he was delivering to police radio dispatchers who don't get coffee breaks.

Test Track Gates Open to Press

Ford's Falcon Doesn't Feel Small

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Automotive Writer

DETROIT—You can drive Ford's new Falcon without feeling that you are in a smaller than average car.

The same probably will be true of Chevrolet's Corvair and Chrysler's Valiant. But Ford was the first of the Big Three to open the gates of its test track to automotive writers for test driving.

I stand six feet 1½ inches and can sit comfortably in the driver's seat of a Falcon. Head room is better than on many 1959 standard sized cars, including Ford's own models. I didn't bump my head, which is unusual.

Leg room in the front seat appears to be much the same as in a standard model. It's less, but not critically so, in the rear seat.

For test driving Ford offered two-door, straight stick models. The pickup in low and second gear was good, but high gear pickup seemed less than I am used to in an eight.

Ford engineers say the rate of acceleration for the Falcon compares favorably with the 1959 six-cylinder models.

The Falcon has a 90-horsepower six-cylinder engine and when you lift the hood you can see it without the many gadgets that clog engine compartments of bigger cars.

Ford is pinning its success hopes in the main on the economy of this engine. The company will claim 50 per cent better mileage than any 1959 production American automobile.

For advertising you'll probably also see a claim of 30 miles a gallon in "average driving." Test track engineers say this is quite probable, especially for sustained runs such as turnpike trips.

The test track Falcons offer exceptionally easy steering, comparable to power steering on heavier models. They weigh almost three-quarters of a ton less than the 1959 Fairlane Ford.

REAR SEAT CLOSER

Once inside the car there is no noticeable sensation of smallness, except that the rear seat seems closer than usual.

The hump is still in the floor although not quite as pronounced as in some 1959 and 1960 models.

The instrument panel includes a wide-sweep speedometer that is easy to read.

Trunk space is complicated by the necessity of a spare tire, which lies flat on the floor, and the pipe to the gas tank. The tank opening is in the center of the rear end and the pipe protrudes into the luggage compartment.

A number of suitcases can be fitted in but it might become something of a jigsaw puzzle if you have sizes that are not compatible to the trunk layout.

The Falcon, under test track conditions, seemed to take curves very well. You need considerable skill to keep it headed straight over a gravel road. But then I often have trouble with such roads.

LESS TRUCK FEAR

Unlike some of the imports you will be able to drive the Falcon, as well as the Corvair and Valiant, in traffic without fear of being crushed by huge trucks.

All in all it is an adequate sized car. Its exterior styling is simple, borrowing a little from the old two-passenger Thunderbird, a little from the foreign cars such as Renault and a mixture of conventional ideas.

To me its success will depend on Ford's ability to come up with an attractive price and on whether the car can back up the claims of economy of operation.

Portland Plans Better Alpena Boat Facilities

ALPENA (AP)—A project aimed at stepping up output at its Alpena plant is being undertaken by Huron Portland Cement Co.

The firm said it planned to deepen the channel at the Alpena mill, dredge a new slip to accommodate larger cement freighters and construct silos which will hold 250,000 barrels of cement.

The project also includes new boat loading facilities.

Charles M. Adams, vice president of operations, said "these improvements are the first steps in our program to increase the capacity of the mill to move 22 million barrels a year."

The project is scheduled for completion in early 1961.

Teamsters Sue Florida Bank

Want to Transfer Funds to Accounts Bearing Interest in Detroit

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Teamsters Union has filed suit against the Florida National Bank at Orlando to transfer $399,000 in teamster funds to the Public Bank of Detroit and asks that $500,000 damages be assessed against the bank.

The suit was filed Tuesday in Federal Court by attorneys William Shapiro and Montague Rosenburg of Miami Beach.

The $399,000 was placed in a noninterest bearing account in the bank in connection with a loan the bank made to the Sun Valley housing development near Titusville which the union sponsored.

O. P. Hewitt, president of the bank, said the money was to be left on deposit as long as the loan was outstanding. He said $350,000 is outstanding as a loan and said, "I will not release the funds until the Sun Valley loans are paid in full."

The noninterest bearing account was ordered transferred to an interest bearing account by monitors appointed by the court to oversee teamster affairs.

The monitors contend the money belongs to Local 299 in Detroit.

James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union boss, had said that technicalities prevented him from carrying out monitor orders to withdraw the money from the Orlando bank but he did transfer another $185,000 account in an Indianapolis, Ind., bank to an interest bearing basis in Detroit.

A FINAL DEMONSTRATION CLIMAXING FORD'S 3 YEARS AND 3 MILLION MILES OF RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ON THE NEW FORD FALCON . . .

EXPERIENCE RUN, U.S.A.

A fleet of Falcons is going to undergo a final exhausting test . . . over every single mile of numbered U.S. Federal Highway . . . along a crisscross route that will include the ups and downs of two major mountain ranges, the vicious heat and dust of two vast deserts, the mile-high frost of the Pacific Northwest, the challenges of every type of roadway and thruway, main street and boulevard.

TODAY . . . 10 P.M. THE NEW-SIZE FORD STARTS ON ITS WAY TO YOU!

The Falcon, the New-Size Ford, already is the most thoroughly tested and proven new car in history. Today this new Ford Falcon starts EXPERIENCE RUN, U.S.A., over every mile of numbered U.S. highway

This is not a test run in the ordinary sense of the word. For in its 3 years of development and over 3 million miles of proving, the New-size Ford, the Falcon has already passed and repassed every kind of test that could be devised.

It's been dust-tested, heat-tested, and endurance-tested on the test track at Kingman, Arizona. Wind-tested and rain-tested in the 300 mph wind tunnel at the University of Maryland. Shock-tested, curve-tested, brake-tested, noise-tested, paint-tested, stability-tested, service-tested . . . everything-tested on Ford's own proving grounds. The Falcon has already proved to engineers that it can take anything they can dish out.

Now, all that remains is to show you what the Falcon can do over your kind of roads. And Experience Run, U.S.A. will do just that.

Now being demonstrated in your kind of driving. To prove that an economy car can be built with enough size, stability and weight to compete safely in the heaviest flow of traffic . . . a great white fleet of Falcons has fanned out across the country to drive over every last mile of numbered U.S. Federal Highway, including the very highways you drive in your own locality.

How many miles to the gallon? Records will be kept of every drop of gas used. Better gas mileage, you ask? The Falcon will average up to 30 miles per gallon! Experience Run, U.S.A., will also convincingly demonstrate the Falcon's sports car handling and agility, plus its big-car ride and comfort. And America will learn how easily the Falcon can carry six big adults plus all their baggage.

On October 8, the New-size Ford will be at your Ford Dealer's . . . for you to experience. See your Ford Dealer today for more information on the Falcon.

Dart Will Come in Three Series

For Competition With Other Firms; Standard Dodge to Be Cut Back

DETROIT (UPI) — The new Dodge Dart will be produced in three series to compete directly with the series manufactured by Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth, Dodge general manager M. C. Patterson said today.

At the same time Patterson announced the standard-sized Dodge will be cut down to two series.

Patterson said the 118-inch wheelbase Dart will be offered in the Seneca, Pioneer and Phoenix series, ranging upward in cost.

TWO NEW NAMES

The bigger 122-inch wheelbase Dodge will be offered in the Matador and Polara series, Patterson said. Dodge was offered in the Coronet, Royal and Custom Royal series during 1959.

Patterson said the new names, including the name of the Dart, were picked by a research company employed by Dodge to find names which would fit four requirements.

They had to be easy to recall, easy to pronounce, symbolic of the product and legally acceptable.

In all 250,000 names were considered before the final ones were picked, Patterson said.

Michigan Lures Tourists

6 Covered Bridges Left

LANSING (AP)—Michigan's covered bridges remain an ever popular tourist attraction despite the lure of the more dramatic Mackinac Bridge, the Michigan Tourist Council reported today.

This is especially true in the months ahead when photographers like to picture the ancient bridges against the colorful backdrop of fall foliage.

Only a half dozen of the weathered, wooden bridges remain standing in Michigan. For those planning picture tours, the tourist council listed their locations as follows:

The Langley Bridge crossing the St. Joseph River near Centreville, St. Joseph County; a private bridge on the E. M. Morris farm two miles northeast of Niles, Berrien County; White's Bridge at Smyrna crossing the Flat River, Ionia County; Fallasburg Bridge crossing the Flat River, Kent County; the bridge at Ada crossing the Thornapple River, Kent County; the Ackley Bridge at Greenfield Village, Dearborn.

Whirlwind Tour Insufficient

Nikita Will Have Distorted View

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Let's face it.

The face of America, as it will be seen by Nikita S. Khrushchev, will come through distorted, like one seen in a curved mirror in a carnival fun house.

This is inevitable, of course. How can anyone visit a country as vast and complex as the United States—or Russia—and in less than two weeks get anything but sketchy impressions?

The more one studies the Khrushchev trip, the more apparent it is that if Mr. K. expects to learn what makes us tick, he's going home a disappointed man.

Many details still remain to be filled in. But so far the trip can be sized up like this:

(A) Khrushchev, hustling from one spot to another, or (B) Khrushchev, making speeches to this or that group.

Little time is left for what, in the long run, could be the most important part of the trip: dispelling illusions, getting to know us as we are.

Or, as President Eisenhower put it:

"I want him to see, with his own eyes, a free people living and working."

MUCH MISSING

Anyone can argue that a trip that omits the South or New England misses a vital part of America. Or that it misses the mark if it skips industrial centers like Chicago and Detroit.

Well, something must be passed by. But it would seem that Khrushchev is being shortchanged even on the places he's scheduled to see.

His trips across the continent will be quick, too quick. From the air he will have no opportunity to see the variety of the economy, the majesty of the scenery.

His trip from Washington to New York by train will give him more time, but here the view is often grimy and grim. Even the Pennsylvania Railroad has never contended that this is one of the world's scenic wonders.

Possibly his best chance to see the real America will come on his train trip from Los Angeles to San Francisco, which will include splendid views of the Pacific. And on his trip to Iowa he will get a chance to see for himself the incredibly rich earth of the Mississippi Valley, and ,incidentally, its rich farmers.

But Mr. K. is said to be an impetuous man, as inclined to wander off the beaten path as, say, Harry Truman.

If that's true, he may pick up as many pointers on his own as he will from his scheduled stops.

And speaking of his schedule, some of this is hard to figure out.

On his visit to the American Exhibit in Moscow, on Sept. 3, Khrushchev is quoted as saying he enjoyed it a lot. But, the story said, "the Soviet leader added that the exhibition would have been much more interesting if it had displayed tools, machinery and other industrial equipment."

Yet his tentative plans call for a stopoff at Disneyland. My 9-year-old daughter Susan assures me this is the mecca for every 9-year-old in the country. But it hardly looks like the goal of a man who professes to be in love with industrial equipment.

Can it be that all along Comrade K. has been a secret admirer of Mickey Mouse?

School Buses Modify Routes

Whitfield and Webster Runs to Be Canceled; Square Lake on List

The Pontiac Board of Education has announced that bus schedules will remain the same as for the last school year with the exception of changes necessitated by the opening of the Square Lake School on Square Lake road between Telegraph and Middle Belt roads.

School bus runs formerly established to transport children from the Square Lake area to Whitfield and Webster schools will be canceled. For children eligible for transportation to the Square Lake School, the following bus run has been established:

Bus No. 39, first stop Pine View at 8:10 a.m. Middle Belt to Long Ridge and turn around, stopping at 2968. Right to Middle Belt to 2679. Middle Belt to 2315.

Middle Belt to 2035 at 8:17 a.m. Turn around. Middle Belt to Square Lake. Left on Square Lake to Square Lake School at 8:25.

Leave Square Lake School and proceed to Ward road. Right on Ward road to Telegraph road. Right on Telegraph road to Herrington Boat Works. Left at Harrington Boat Works to the corners of Hood and Rotsel at 8:30 a.m. Turn around.

Foreign Car Titles Drop Each Month

LANSING (AP)—A drop in the number of registrations of foreign-made cars during August was reported today by the secretary of state's office.

Titles were issued for 1,642 imported cars during the month, down from 1,771 in July and 2,061 in June.

Registrations of British Fords fell from 171 to 133, Secretary of State James M. Hare noted.

"It may be," said Hare, "that some potential buyers in this market were waiting for the Falcon to be shown so they could do some comparing and evaluation of these two Ford products."

Volkswagen registrations were down to 349 in August from 465 in July and 602 in June.

Hare termed the trend significant because new car sales in general have been going up all year. But he said this may merely be a lull in the foreign car market which may be erased after the new compact American cars are shown.

'Ike, Help! We're Redoing the Apartment'

NEW YORK (AP)—How do you go about getting President Eisenhower to declare your home a disaster area?

BOYLE

There is no point in our appealing to the Red Cross in this emergency. Too big a job. This is a federal case.

Our apartment looks as if it had been devastated by Hurricane Hortense. Actually, it's worse. We're having the place redone. Repainted, refurnished. Even plan to have the windows washed and get a new ashtray. Going whole hog this time for sure.

Well, here's the situation to date:

We called the Salvation Army to take away our old furniture, and they refused on two grounds: It either wasn't worth carting away, or if it was, it belonged in the Smithsonian Institution.

So we called a rubbish disposal man. He took one look at the debris and asked, "What are you storing here — surplus government wheat?"

Then he left town on a long vacation.

Repainting a New York apartment is as ritualized as a Hopi rain dance ceremonial.

The painters refuse to enter until you first pile everything in a big heap in the center of the room. This is to save arguments. The painters then are entitled to any paint that falls on the floor — and you get to keep any paint that falls on your stacked up furniture.

My wife, Frances, is usually pretty good at dealing with workmen. This time she met her match.

"That painter won't listen to a thing I say," she complained. "He says he's 65 years old, and ready to quit anyway."

After he doused his brushes and left, Frances wasn't sure she liked her new color scheme. The bedroom of our 6-year-old daughter, Tracy, is pink, but it's a kind of throw-up pink. The bathrooms were supposed to be Mediterranean blue. They turned out poison bottle blue.

Worst of all is one living room wall intended to be solid gold. The gold looks counterfeit. Soon as I got all my books back in the shelves, the paint inspector arrived and said our solid gold wall would have to be done over. Down came the books.

"I have to get rid of the old furniture before the new furniture comes," said Frances, who is alternately hysterical and trancelike with despair. "I don't know which way to turn."

The other evening I came home and found her sitting on a book called "How to Raise Puppies" while despondently reading another book called "How to Plan Your Life."

We are like a defeated army, or fugitives from a bombing. It's real eerie. At night we camp out in the old living room by the solid gold wall eating food sent in from a nearby restaurant. Can't get into the kitchen.

Twice Tracy has had to be dug out from toppling piles of rubbish. Our cat, "Lady Dottie," is threatening to pack her knapsack and get out. The smell of paint and that poison blue bathroom are turning her from black-and-white to gray.

My wife is brooding about turning the key in the lock forever, buying a house in the suburbs — and starting life all over as a pioneer mother out where everyone's a peach and the subways don't reach.

If this isn't a federal disaster case, I never saw one.

Flying Duck Could Skim Over Water at 50 M.P.H.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A combination land and sea craft that can "fly" over water at speeds up to 50 miles an hour has been developed by the Avco Corp., it was announced Tuesday.

Called the "Flying Duck," it is a gas turbine-powered, hydrofoil version of the World War II DUKW, an amphibious landing craft.

The DUKW had a maximum water speed of six miles an hour, which made it an easy target. The speed of the Flying Duck would make it difficult to hit while carrying troops or cargo.

It can operate for about five hours at top speed, with a sea range of 250 miles.

3 HYDROFOIL WINGS

The Flying Duck uses three hydrofoil wings, two forward and one at the stern, to get the lift that raises the hull out of the water. At top speed, the wings ride about 30 inches below the surface.

The hull rises above the surface at 13 miles an hour, eliminating water drag and permitting a fast increase in speed.

When the hull reaches four feet above the surface, the craft appears to be riding on stilts because of the extensions connecting the hull with the wing.

Avco officials said the craft was equipped with an automatic pilot that compensates for rough water.

The Flying Duck will be equipped with six wheels for land locomotion.

Before going onto land, the wings retract under the body of the craft.

Besides being used as a landing craft, the Flying Duck also could be utilized to track down atomic submarines, for air-sea rescue, as a mobile missile launching platform, and as a platform for launching frogmen operations, Avco officials said.

The craft was tested at the Miami Shipbuilding Corp., which is conducting part of the program under subcontract from the Lycoming Division of Avco.

The work is being done under a contract with the Army's Ordnance Corps.

The grand champion steer of the 1959 Michigan State Fair sold for $1,710 yesterday as Gov. Williams presided at the traditional auctioning of blue ribbon winners.

The 855-pound Aberdeen Angus, owned by Dale Wetzel & Sons of Ithaca, went under the auctioneer's hammer at $2 per pound to Lewis J. Stern of Detroit. Last year, the top steer went at $1.75 a pound.

The auctioneering of the prize animals was a highlight of Governor's Day. Williams wound up the festivities last night with the crowning of the new Miss State Fair.

Today was Oldtimers' Day with everyone 60 or over admitted free. The fair ends Sept. 13.

Seventeen daily newspapers, including The Pontiac Press, were to be honored today at the State Fair for serving their communities for more than 100 years.

Christian College Opening Delayed by Dorm Work

AVON TOWNSHIP — The formal opening of North Central Christian College has been postponed from Sept. 14 to Sept. 28 because of delay in construction of dormitory space.

Otis Gatewood, college president, said today that letters have been sent to all students notifying them of the postponement of the opening date.

The open house was held on schedule Sunday, and 600 visitors toured the buildings and grounds on the new college campus.

It was evident, though, as they walked through the new multi-purpose building, that much work remains before it is ready for student occupancy.

The new liberal arts junior college will welcome 150 coeds in its first freshman class. One-third will live on campus while the other two-thirds will commute to classes.

New students are registering daily, but there are still openings for a few more in both the boarding and day school sections, Gatewood said.

Course to Deal With Personnel

MSU Guidance Class at Avondale High for Teachers, Regulators

AVON TOWNSHIP — Michigan State University will offer a guidance and personnel course beginning Monday in the Avondale High School library, LeRoy R. Watt, superintendent of the Avondale schools, announced today.

The first class meeting will start at 4 p.m. Three term hours will be given of either undergraduate or graduate work in the field. The course fee is $27.

Watt said that the course is especially designed to help the individual teacher and administrator better understand and work with pupils, parents and the community.

It also places emphasis on the improvement of the total guidance program in the schools represented and is basically practical rather than theoretical in subject matter.

CENTERS ON PEOPLE

The course centers around the individual—how to better understand him, how to help him understand himself and methods of aiding him in his future growth and development.

Also to Decide One-Mill Hike

Balloting to Determine Construction Program, Operating Limits

LAPEER — Voters in the Lapeer School District will go to the polls Monday to decide whether to authorize a $525,000 bond issue for a high school construction program and to vote on a proposed one-mill tax hike for school operation.

The Board of Education has estimated that the expense of completing construction and furnishing the new high school and erecting and furnishing a physical education addition to the building will amount to $525,000.

The educators also say that the one-mill tax increase is needed for one year to meet increased operating costs of the district.

To vote on the bonding proposition, a person must be 21 years old, a citizen of the United States, a resident of Michigan for six months and of the school district for 30 days prior to the election. The voter also must be a property owner or the owner's husband or wife.

The same requirements apply to those voting on the millage increase proposition except that they need only be registered voters in the district, not necessarily property owners.

Eleven precincts have been set up in the school district. Polling places in Lapeer include Rice Equipment Co., Lines Motor Sales, Ross Automotive Sales, the city hall and the old high school.

Other polling places are in Oregon Township Hall for Oregon Township voters, Mayfield Township Hall for registered voters in Mayfield, Arcadia, Deerfield and North Branch townships and Lapeer Township Hall for electors in Lapeer, Dryden and Metamora townships.

Voters in Elba and Davison townships will cast their ballots in Elba Township Hall and those in Hadley and Brandon Townships in Hadley Township Hall. Polls in Attica Township Hall will be open for Attica Township voters.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in all precincts.

Wanted to Help Youth

Student Fund Drive Fails

CLAWSON — It was a sticky-hot day when Dale Magill, 18, and four of his friends decided to go for a swim in a flooded gravel pit in nearby Troy.

Dale dived in, struck bottom and broke his neck. One of his companions, Ronald Aldridge, 16, of Clawson, brought him back onto the bank.

Paralyzed from the waist down, Dale was rushed by ambulance to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac where his condition was listed as critical. That was Aug. 24.

Dale's schoolmates at Clawson High School, where he was a junior, wanted to collect funds to help pay his hospital bills. They went from door to door Tuesday night and collected $1,200.

They didn't know that Dale had died shortly before the drive began.

The money will go to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Magill of 325 S. Bywood St.

New Ambulance Group Won't Fight for Patients

There is no place for competition among ambulance companies.

This is the opinion expressed by members of the newly formed Ambulance Assn. of Michigan. They feel that the service they give the public can only be handicapped by competition.

The association is composed of ambulance companies from Pontiac, Birmingham, Troy, Novi, Livonia and Birmingham. Members gathered last night at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak to hear talks by the hospital's director, Owen Pinkerman, and Birmingham Police Chief Ralph Moxley.

Pinkerman praised the association for its new code of ethics aimed at maintaining a high standard of service and cooperation.

He said there is a definite need for such an organization, recalling an incident when ambulance drivers of two companies raced to a hospital where he was director to take a patient to a larger institution for treatment.

"They arrived at the hospital in a tie and became embroiled in a fist-fight over the patient. Both drivers had to be hospitalized and another ambulance summoned to transfer the patient," Pinkerman recalled.

Such instances have grown extremely rare, however. Member companies of the association today are concerned with limiting their activities to their immediate areas of operation.

They are convinced that this can work to their mutual benefit. Should they be summoned outside their area, they will immediately ask the company operating in the area region which the summons originated to answer the call.

This will save time, reduce the possibility of an ambulance being involved in an accident (an almost constant threat in the ambulance business) and cut expenses they explained.

Pinkerman recommended that the association formally inform the Greater Detroit Area Hospital Council of its existence and purpose by sending representatives to the next meeting of the council's board of directors.

Noting how closely ambulance drivers and police officers must work in accident cases and cases of violence, Chief Moxley warned association members to "be sure you're not hiring the hot-rod driver."

He made reference to a new state law saying that any emergency vehicle entering an intersection without due caution can be held responsible in the event of an accident.

He advised members to seek courtesy, honesty, neatness, a desire to serve and a good traffic record when hiring new drivers.

Pinkerman told the association that plans for enlarging William Beaumont Hospital call for expanding the emergency department to handle up to 35 cases at a time and 200 cases in the event of a major disaster. At present, the hospital is capable of handling 11 emergency cases simultaneously, he said.

Sen. Humphrey to Try for a $400,000 Grant on Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A dozen senators joined today in seeking $400,000 for special studies of technical problems in disarmament.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn), chairman of the Senate Disarmament Subcommittee, said he and 11 cosponsors would try to add the $400,000 to the foreign aid appropriations bill. The money has been requested by the Eisenhower administration.

The United States, Britain, France and Russia this week agreed to set up a 10-nation disarmament commission to start work in Geneva early next year. This will revive, after a two-year lapse, East-West talks on how to end the costly armaments race.

Policymakers headed by Charles A. Coolidge—specially named by President Eisenhower for the job—are studying how disarmament might be applied.

Humphrey listed co-sponsors as Democratic Sens. Clark (Pa), Church (Idaho), Douglas (Ill), Engle (Calif), Hart (Mich), Mansfield (Mont), Moss (Utah), Murray (Mont) and Neuberger (Ore), and Republican Sens. Bush (Conn) and Case (NJ).

Report Journalists Favored More in Russia Than U.S.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Two women journalists who recently spent 15 days in Moscow studying their Russian counterparts say that members of the Soviet press are better prepared for their jobs than are American newsmen.

Mrs. Ann Andersen and Mrs. Margaret Maunder said writers, reporters and radio and television personnel in Russia undergo rigorous preparation in the universities and enjoy much greater prestige than American newsmen.

The two women were sent to Moscow by Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism fraternity for women. They traveled alone without advance preparations, but within a few days made friends with Russian journalists, whom they called "very cordial."

"One of the things that we were very much impressed with was the extensive and thorough training that they give their journalists," said Mrs. Andersen, a free-lance writer.

Soviet journalists must study five years in college, at government expense.

"Russian journalists are better prepared than Americans," Mrs. Andersen said, adding that Soviet jornalists are among the best paid workers in Russia and that "the profession of journalism would be exceeded perhaps only by the scientific."

Both women were impressed with the quality of Russian magazines, although the content might not be pleasing to Americans. They called "Soviet Woman," printed in 10 languages and circulated in dozens of countries, "a tremendous women's magazine."

But neither of them would trade the human interest of America's mass communications media for the predominance of propaganda in Russian publications and on radio-television.

Mrs. Maunder, former feature writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and Post-Dispatch, said "one of the mysteries" of their trip was the friendliness of Russians toward Amercian visitors despite the anti-American press.

As soon as Russians discovered that Americans were friendly and not arrogant, the Russians went out of their way to be helpful, she said.

Mrs. Andersen said they found that in the Soviet Union "an Amerikanski is a celebrity."

Russians seem to be avid readers of newspapers even though there is no reporting of crime, casualties or human interest events, the women said.

"The press is the main way of the party of beating the people over the head about the seven-year plan," Mrs. Andersen declared. "The constant message told in millions of ways night and day is that if we all work and achieve our goals we will be happy."

"They make no attempt at all to be objective," she added. "Their one purpose — and they make no bones about this — is to further the interest of the Communist economy and the state. You sort of don't believe this until you actually see it face to face."

Mrs. Andersen said one advantage of Russain journalism training is the emphasis on foreign languages and on knowing all about the Soviets' foes in the cold war.

"We came away with a feeling that they know much more about us than we know about them," she added.

700 Men Fight Deadwood Fire

Most Residents Stay Away From Homes as Big Spot Blazes Erupt

DEADWOOD, S.D. (AP)—Most residents of this forest fire-threatened community remained away from their homes and businesses today as forces of some 700 men continued battling blazes.

Tom Borden, assistant state forester, said crews were seeking to contain one fire covering more than 5,000 acres southeast of Deadwood, and another of lesser extent to the north.

He said mobile crews had been formed to prevent a breakout of the flames and a repetition of the situation Tuesday when flames seared a circle around Deadwood, forcing evacuation of 3,500 residents.

Crews also were standing guard where the windswept, treetop fire had dropped down into heavy bush country it first had skimmed over.

BUILDINGS DESTROYED

Four business establishments and a dozen homes were destroyed as the fire was suddenly whipped around the town by winds up to 50 miles an hour. Borden set loss as about half a million dollars.

Rockefeller Hands Tied – Top Weapon Disabled

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller faced a tour of the state fair today in one of modern politics most awkward situations—his right hand, the the hand-shaking hand, was out of action.

A tour of the state fair traditionally involves meeting thousands of people and shaking hands with many of them. Rockefeller is a great handshaker.

HURT IN NEW YORK

Everyone wanted to know what happened.

The governor explained that, while he was getting into a car in New York City, the chauffeur closed the door on his finger.

A reporter asked what the governor said then.

"He was a divinity student," Rockefeller said with a smile. "I just asked him if he would be kind enough to open the door."

The governor would not identify the culprit. "He already feels bad enough about it."

Bufalino Asks Probers' Help

Seeks All Information in Rackets Group Files for Use in Giant Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detroit Teamster official William Bufalino has asked the Senate Rackets Committee for information from its files for use in a 3½-million-dollar libel suit he has filed against Time, Inc.

Bufalino, president of Detroit Local 985, yesterday asked Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) for all information the committee may have on Bufalino's personal background.

The Teamster official charges Life Magazine libeled him in its Feb. 23 issue by calling him a hoodlum and a criminal. He said the Rackets Committee has letters and other documents that will show his record is unblemished.

McClellan turned over all pertinent records that were used in committee hearings involving Bufalino, but refused to produce information that was not placed in evidence.

Bufalino said he will seek a federal court ruling next week on whether McClellan must produce background information not placed in evidence.

Bufalino, who acted as his own attorney, took a deposition from McClellan and also examined Kenneth O'Donnell, administrative aide to the Rackets Committee.

He has another deposition hearing scheduled next month to question Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel for the committee, against whom he has filed a 5-million-dollar libel suit.

Both suits were filed in Detroit, but Bufalino is seeking to have the Kennedy suit transferred to Washington.

UAW Board Working to End Strike in Ohio

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers International executive board was to meet with officers of UAW Local 122 today in an effort to end a wildcat strike at Chrysler Corp.'s Twinsburg, Ohio, stamping plant.

The board yesterday ordered wildcat strikers at the plant to return to work. The strike has idled some 3,500 workers.

The walkout started Friday after the company fired the Local's president, vice president and five stewards as the result of an earlier wildcat strike.

Despite urging from Local officials, the workers voted Monday to continue the walkout until alleged safety hazards at the plant were eliminated and until the fired men were reinstated.

Steel Workers Ask for VIPs

Executives Say Team of Negotiators Has Full Power to Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel executives have again rejected face-to-face negotiations with Steelworkers Union President David J. McDonald.

Negotiations in the 58-day-old strike resume today between four-man union subcommittees and similar groups from each of the steel firms.

McDonald Wednesday renewed his proposal for face-to-face bargaining. The company officers replied in a statement:

"The negotiations to date have not suffered from any lack of authority in our bargaining team. We urge you, therefore, to lay aside efforts to seek another forum and to come to grips with the problems with the established bargaining team which, as you know, has the necessary authority.

"Our negotiators are ready and willing to devote whatever time is necessary to reach a sound settlement."

Find Loophole in Tax

LANSING (AP)—A loophole in the sales tax law which is being exploited by a new Lansing discount store could cost the state thousands of dollars if not plugged, a state Revenue Department official has warned.

Clarence W. Lock, deputy revenue commissioner, reported that Clark's Store had been set up as 30 corporations in one building.

The loophole involves the monthly tax exemption on the first $50 of retail sales which is designed to compensate companies for part of the cost of collecting the sales tax.

With 30 corporations under one roof, Lock said Clark's is able to claim tax exemptions on $18,000 of sales per year instead of on the $600 it would be entitled to as a single corporation.

The revenue official said that under the present law the firm was within its rights in setting up multiple corporations. But he warned that Michigan would suffer a heavy loss of sales tax income if the move spread throughout the state.

Lock confirmed that other large stores were considering similar organizational setups to boost their tax exemptions.

He said his department was holding up sales tax license applications on the 30 Clark corporations pending further study. He indicated that the legislature may be asked to tighten the loopholes.

Nikita to See Discovery

Agriculture Scientists Find Key to Plant Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department scientists have made a botanical discovery that may give man complete control of plant growth—enabling him to alter food and fiber plants to meet his needs.

The department said the discovery may permit development of crops of special heights for better harvesting, and the fruiting of plants at times convenient to producers.

This discovery will be shown to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev when he visits the department's big research center at nearby Beltsville, Md., next Wednesday.

The department said it scientists have discovered two pigments, which under the influence of light, apparently govern many phases of a plant's development.

By varying the degree, intensity and color of light, and modifying the pigments, it said, man may be able to change plants to suit his needs.

Drs. Harry A. Borthwick and Sterling B. Hendricks at the research center made the discovery in studying the effects of different colors and light intensity on plant growth.

But Women More Secretive About Alcoholism

AA Says 1 of 7 Members Female

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK—"Alcoholics Anonymous" estimates that one in seven of its members today is a woman.

The figure probably is low, as a measure of the relative number of female-to-male heavy drinkers.

"A. A." has been accepted over the years as a powerful force in companionable, cumulative willpower among men; but to women, it is a man's organization. The woman is still an alcoholic-come-lately in this country, and more fearful of showing her shaking hand. Thus, rather than join a traditional male group in recognition of her problem, she more likely will see a psychiatrist, or a doctor, or a minister—or she will continue drinking in secret until she is exposed.

So there are no accurate figures on the number of women alcoholics in America. But the number is growing, along with the number of cocktail parties and the number of drinks a social drinker enjoys before dinner.

How can a woman tell whether she is becoming an alcoholic?

According to "Catholic Digest," it is not easy.

"Social drinking, usually with a crowd that likes to drink heavily, is the first stage. There are no apparent ill effects.

"One night, however, the lady consumes her usual quota and the next morning she can't recall what she did after a certain point in time. This is a danger sign.

"From then on, alcohol becomes an end in itself. Sipping changes to gulping, and a few extra preliminary drinks become routine.

"Now other significant changes in behavior appear. She buys things she doesn't need, runs up bills, and entertains more lavishly and frequently than her budget permits.

"This is a critical stage in the developing illness of alcoholism . . . if the victim can see the red light at this point and stop, she may still save herself. But if she ignores loss of the control signal, addiction is almost inevitable."

Of course, everyone knows women who buy things they don't need, run up bills and entertain beyond their budgets—without touching anything stronger than sarsaparilla. They are just emotionally immature, the non-drinking victims of insecurity.

If they discovered martinis they, too, might be broken physically as well as financially. Because experts believe emotional immaturity is the most common characteristic of the alcoholic.

The American Medical Association has come out with two fascinating preventives for toothaches—good timing, and an old-fashioned flashlight!

The AMA says: If you don't brush your teeth thoroughly within 30 minutes after eating, you may as well not brush them at all. And: To prevent decay, teeth should be cleaned as diligently as you'd scrub pots and pans after dinner, not merely swabbed with paste.

Since bathroom lighting does not show up the particles that might be missed in a brushing, a flashlight is recommended "to light up your teeth without glaring into your eyes." Added advice—if you wear glasses for reading, use them while brushing.

If tended after every meal, tooth decay can be reduced 60 per cent. If not, nor vitamins, nor milk, nor dentists stay these bacteria from the swift completion of their appointed rounds.

I wonder what happened to these dentists of my youth who said to brush your teeth at night and in the morning and your etiquette was complete . . . I know, alas, what happened to their patients.

Speakers Argue Probe Tactics

Bishop Sees Them as Unfair; Senator Cites Some Advantages

CHICAGO (AP) — The Senate Rackets Committee and other congressional investigative groups were accused Tuesday of "inquisitional methods" by the Roman Catholic Auxiliary archbishop of Chicago.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Shell, addressing the Illinois AFL-CIO convention, said certain tactics of these groups undercut the meaning of the Fifth Amendment.

"The Fifth Amendment is losing its meaning, purpose and dignity," he declared, referring to such probes as the recent series involving alleged corruption in labor.

Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill) spoke on the same topic. He said committees, though frequently unfair and often in violation of rights of privacy, have disclosed corruption which the AFL-CIO would never have been able to dig up on its own.

Douglas called for the ouster from office of James R. Hoffa, International Teamsters president, and Joseph Glimco, president of the Union's Local 777 in Chicago. Both have been under fire of the Rackets Committee.

New Beethoven Hall Opens on Rhine River

BONN, Germany (UPI) — President Theodor Heuss yesterday opened the new $2,269,000 Beethoven Hall, a modernistic concert and opera building on the banks of the Rhine River.

The hall replaces a wooden structure built for the first Beethoven festival here in 1871 and which burned in 1944. Composer Ludwig von Beethoven was born in Bonn in 1770, but wrote his works in Vienna which he later made his home.

John Adams lived to be the oldest former president of the United States. His age was 90 when he died.

MRS. LOUIS O. MOLELLA

Judith Ann Wood Wed in New York City

Judith Ann Wood, daughter of Mrs. John G. Wood of Bloomfield Hills and the late Mr. Wood, and Louis O. Molella, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic M. Molella of Millbrook, N. Y., were married Wednesday morning at St. Patrick' Cathedral in New York City.

The Rev. Francis T. Stack of St. Hugo in the Hills Church, Bloomfield Hills, officiated at the ceremony and the bride's brother-in-law, George T. Trumbull Jr. of Bloomfield Township escorted her to the altar.

The bride wore a Dior original of white light weight satin, brocaded to resemble drifts of snow. The gown featured a boat neckline, long sleeves and a short skirt accented with unpressed pleats in the front and back. Her fingertip veil was held by a matching cap outlined with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white prayer book.

Mrs. George T. Trumbull Jr., her sister's only attendant, wore a Dior blue Gros de Londre dress with a hat of velvet bows shading from matching blue to green. She also carried a prayer book.

Best man was Salvatore Molella, the bridegroom's brother.

Mrs. Wood received her guests at a luncheon reception at Hotel Plaza wearing a light navy faille sheath with matching lace bodice and a box jacket. Her hat was of navy tulle. Mrs. Molella was dressed in an Alice blue gown with matching hat.

For her wedding trip to Paris, the bride selected a tweed suit in shades of gray with a small black hat. The couple will sail Friday aboard SS United States. They will live in Paris for the coming year where the bridegroom is employed.

The bride-elect flew to New York Monday with the junior Trumbulls to be met by Mrs. Wood who had gone down Sunday. Judy's aunts also reached New York Sunday. Mrs. C. E. Brockmeyer came from her home in Anderson, Ind. and Mrs. Frank Sander from Lansing.

Should Wife Entertain a Man While Husband Isn't Home?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: If the "man of the house" is out and a friend of his (the wife knows him also) drops by his home:

(1) Should the wife invite the man in for spaghetti?

(2) Should the man knowing the woman is alone in the house, accept the invitation or should he decline politely?

ABBY

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: It depends on what else was cooking besides spaghetti.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a neighbor whose good intentions I do not question, but who gives all the neighborhood children pills for something she has "dignosed"?

She gave my ten-year-old a capsule for her liver because her "color" didn't look right. She gives a pair of twins on our block calcium tablets because they don't care for milk. She also made her paper boy drink some kind of malt concoction because he appeared underweight. (Now his mother delivers the paper to her house.)

When I spoke to her about the possible danger of her generosity, she told me I acted highly nervous and offered me some tranquilizers. Can I do something about her?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Tell this frustrated female "pharmacist" that even a doctor would not prescribe pills until he has examined the patient. Then warn the little victims who might be too timid to refuse.

DEAR ABBY: Our children are 9 and 6. Their godparents have forsaken them completely. We received only one gift from each couple and that was at the baptismal ceremony. Neither set of godparents has ever remembered the children at Christmas or on their birthdays. Is it possible for us to appoint other godparents at this time? We are so embarrassed when someone asks us what their godparents gave them on special occasions. Can this be done quietly or must some announcement be made in Church?

INQUIRING

DEAR INQUIRING: The godparents of your children are recorded in the Church records, and whether you are permitted to make a change is something you should discuss with your clergyman.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HENRY: Perhaps the Roman philosopher was correct when he said, "Men do not care how nobly they live, but how long." It is within the power of every man to live "nobly" — but within no man's power to live long. Think it over.

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Nutrition Not Dull

College Gals Must Eat Right

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today I am thinking of the thousands of young women who are leaving for college this month. Most of them have been at home constantly except for occasional visits and perhaps periods in summer camp.

This is their first time away from parental influence, their first opportunity to manage their own lives. Even though they live up to the standards their homes set in self-respect and moral values, they often slip when it comes to nutrition.

Don't forget that your mother has spent tons of thought and energy feeding you scientifically so that you would have the equipment of good health with which to meet adult life. Do not destroy with neglect what she has built through so many years.

This is easy for the college girl to forget because she is riding high, wide and handsome, on the energy of youth. However, even young people can break under the strain of malnutrition.

Girls of this age often are prone to think of nutrition and posture as very dull subjects. The opposite is true! Good health affects your personality and your pep, your vivacity and the sparkle in your eye. It also has a direct impact on your hair and complexion.

You no doubt will eat meat and starches and desserts. Do not forget the green vegetables and fresh fruits. With the many parties and get-togethers and midnight snacks, it is easy to stuff yourself on devitalized foods and sweets to such an extent that you neglect the more vital ones.

HEAVIER ISN'T HEALTHIER

Many a girl has returned from college 10 pounds or more heavier. This doesn't always mean that she is healthier. It probably means that she has had more regular hours and also that she has indulged in more in-between foods.

Have fun but don't neglect the fruits and vegetables and do not make the mistake of starvation diets so rampant on many college campuses. There is NO blessing greater than a high level of health! This will see you through college and later on through the strenuous business of a career or a homemaker.

Tomorrow: "This Girl is So Skinny She's Embarrassed."

Sweets to the sweet is fine—but in such abundance! The girl above is bravely posing with unlikely combinations to emphasize a point in Josephine Lowman's column—that too often college girls forget all about nutrition and fill up on sweets, and devitalized foods.

Always Keep Hands Off Mail

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening some friends of ours visited us and during the course of the conversation, the subject of opening letters came up. The wife insisted that it was perfectly all right for husbands and wives to open each other's mail and that those who objected to this had something to hide.

"Of course my husband and I disagreed with her and this caused quite a heated discussion. She even went so far as to say that she read in your column that this was a perfectly proper thing to do. Will you discuss this, please?"

Answer: I have never said, or written, that either a husband or a wife may properly open letters addressed to the other, nor for that matter should parents open their children's mail.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are going to Europe shortly. We are traveling first class. We live in a simple community where evening dress is seldom worn and therefore neither my husband nor I own evening clothes. We would like to know if evening dress is necessary for dinner aboard ship?"

Answer: Not at all. A certain number of passengers (especially the young who want to dance) do dress in evening clothes on the deluxe liners. But even on these, many others prefer not to change into evening clothes. In fact, overdressing aboard ship is in very bad taste.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter will receive her engagement ring very soon and the thing that is puzzling me is the proper thing to say to her fiance expressing approval of him. I would be grateful for your help in this matter."

Answer: If you know him well, you probably kiss him and say, "I couldn't choose a nicer son-in-law." If you do not know him very well, you could say, "The fact that Mary loves you makes me sure that her father and I will both share her opinion."

"Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to a dinner at which dress is optional. The man I am going with will be wearing a tuxedo. What shall I wear? Is it necessary for me to wear an evening dress?"

Answer: You may wear a simple evening dress if you wish to, but it is not necessary simply because the man you are going with chooses to wear a tuxedo. An afternoon dress would be quite proper.

Sputnik Scare Wearing Off U.S. Teenagers

By EUGENE GILBERT

The jolt that Russia's first Sputniks gave to United States education seems to have dwindled to a nudge with the passage of time.

A year and a half ago, when the Soviet Sputniks made scare headlines around the world, 80 per cent of the teenagers we queried in a nationwide survey said they were highly concerned with the idea of competition with Russian students.

Now a new survey shows that while 61 per cent of the youngsters claim to be just as concerned as when the first Sputniks orbited, some 48 per cent of the boys and 34 per cent of the girls say their competitive enthusiasm has diminished.

The fact that the United States has gotten into the space sweepstakes with several satellites of its own no doubt accounts for part of the fallout in student enthusiasm.

And, according to the more than 700 teenagers interviewed across the country, the competitive bloom also seems to be off the attitude of their teachers.

MANY IGNORE IT

The only significant change in the educational approach taken by most teachers seems to be more emphasis placed on why it is necessary for America to develop young minds.

Some 32 per cent of the youngsters questioned said their teachers were stressing this point.

But 40 per cent, largest category in this question, said their teachers tended to ignore the whole thing and proceed with business as usual, Sputniks or no Sputniks.

If the students' estimate of themselves is any gauge, the United States seems to be made up of a great many average students, very few exceptionally bright students and even fewer poor ones.

Asked to rate themselves, 86 per cent regarded themselves as "average," 7 per cent termed themselves "superior" and about 4 per cent admitted to being "poor" students.

The feminist camp will be happy to learn that the revolution apparently is not far off. Among the girls, 9 per cent considered themselves "superior" and only 3 per cent checked poor.

The boys, either from modesty or honesty, could claim only 4 per cent in the superior category and an equal number in the poor student ranks.

SCHOOLS TOUGHER

Since our last survey on this subject, a majority of both boys and girls (67 per cent) seem to think that school has gotten tougher in the past year.

But again reaction to Soviet Sputniks was not the main explanation.

Only 11 per cent blamed accelerated subject matter, compared with an overwhelming 78 per cent who simply attributed their difficulties to being in a higher grade.

Science and math led the parade of tough subjects, just as they have for the past 100 years in educational circles, although English came in a close third.

FAVOR ACCELERATION

Similarly, 30 per cent said their schools had begun programs to help slow learners, while 65 per cent saw no change in handling them.

Ramona Joy Williams Wed in Noon Ceremony

Ramona Joy Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams of Highland drive, married Jerry E. Beck Saturday noon at Emmanuel Baptist Church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beck of Keego Harbor.

Dr. Tom Malone officiated

before an altar decorated with white gladioli, white chrysanthemums and ferns. There were 150 guests at the wedding.

The bride wore a floor length gown with a Chantilly lace bodice, long pointed sleeves and a Sabrina neckline trimmed with sequins. The full double tulle skirt was accented with ruffles and lace panels over a hoop skirt. Her cap of imported silk trimmed with white lace, pearls and sequins held her fingertip veil. She wore pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Delores DePauw was maid of honor and Sue Loomis and Mary Wyers, all of Pontiac, were bridesmaids. Their aqua dresses were ballerina length with taffeta underskirts and full silk organza overskirts, featured cap sleeves and round necklines. They wore white gloves and tiaras and carried cascade bouquets of white carnations with aqua ribbons.

Best man was Richard Simpson of Drayton Plains. Ushers were Ralph Penny, Drayton Plains, Norton Sherman and Larry Nichols of Pontiac, and Charles M. Beck of Keego Harbor.

A reception in the fellowship hall of the church followed the ceremony.

Before leaving for northern Michigan and Canada, the bride changed to a navy wool sheath with red accessories and white roses from her bridal bouquet. The newlyweds will live in Pontiac on their return.

Save time when you sprinkle clothes for ironing, say home management specialists. Put them into a plastic bag as you take them from the line or the dryer. Add water to the bag, and the moisture will spread evenly throughout the fabrics.

Man Gets Help in Beetle Battle

Birds, Moles, Wasps Turning Tide Against Japanese Pests

WASHINGTON — Starlings, robins, moles and wasps are helping man win the long battle against Japanese beetles.

The birds walk along the ground and listen for the tell-tale sound of a beetle grub moving through the soil or chewing on a root, the National Geographic Society says. Then they dig down and get it.

Moles, skunks, and other animals also eat the grubs, while some birds prey on adult beetles. A Japanese wasp is such an effective grub killer that it is being spread artificially to aid control.

The beetle is still invading new territories, Agriculture Department entomologists report, but its natural enemies, along with insecticides, are gradually bringing it under control in areas where it has been long established.

The beetle now appears to be worst in new suburban developments where controls are not yet effective. However, the beetle population anywhere may rise—or fall—from year to year as weather conditions change.

The beetle's American history began in 1916 when it was found in a nursery at Riverton, New Jersey. It probably made the long trip from Japan—where it is not a serious pest—in the roots of some iris plants.

Entomologists sprayed the area, but it was too late. Within four years a New Jersey resident could collect 15,000 beetles in a single day—as many as 278 from a single apple.

Scientists, meanwhile, have studied every phase of beetle life. The egg is laid in the ground. It hatches into a grub that feeds on the tender roots of plants. In winter, the grub moves deeper into the ground to escape the cold, but it comes back up in the spring. In late May it becomes an inactive pupa while being transformed into an adult beetle.

Emerging from the ground, the beetle seeks such favorite fare as grapes, apples, cherries, corn, horsechestnuts and willows. Gregariously the beetle joins its fellows in consuming a rose or an apple entirely before moving on to the next meal. During a life of about six weeks, the female beetle lays 40 to 60 eggs in the sod—she loves lawns and golf courses—and the annual cycle is repeated.

To fight the beetle, entomologists have imported the tiphia wasp from Japan. The female wasp lays her eggs on Japanese beetle grubs, which she locates with her keen sense of smell. The wasp larvae eat the grubs and become adults.

Jersey City Gets a Bonus: 2 Police Chiefs

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Just who is the real police chief of Jersey City?

Is it Michael Cusack, who claims he's 64, not 65, and who is maintaining an office on the top floor of police headquarters?

Or is it Austin Conley who is holding forth in the cellar and who was told Wednesday by the public safety director that he was in full command?

Public Safety Director William V. McLaughlin says that Cusack is 65 and therefore subject to automatic retirement on Dec. 31. McLaughlin also says that Cusack is on vacation.

Cusack says he's a year younger and not on vacation.

"If he wants to spend his vacation sitting up in that office, it's all right with me," said the unruffled McLaughlin.

Letters to Morse Favor Slow-Down Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse's office says he is getting mail three-to-one in favor of his recent slow-down tactics that have been blocking Senate action on a number of matters. A spokesman said about 100 letters and telegrams have been received from different parts of the country, not too many from Oregon.

Blames Justice Dept. for Civil Rights Flop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) blames the Justice Department for failure to enforce the 1957 Civil Rights Act.

The report of the Civil Rights Commission, Douglas told the Senate, said the 1957 act had not resulted in voting registration of a single additional Negro.

Baked Beans Go Into Sandwiches

In any language, the sandwich, somewhat modified to a country's culinary customs, has become an accepted noontime menu feature. Certainly the United States is no exception.

During warmer weather especially, the sandwich sets the menu planning pace.

Just give your grade schoolers and teenagers an opportunity to try this sandwich combination. They'll be sure to vote it a winner.

The homemaker might be interested in knowing that this recipe will give you the chance to use any leftover ham which you might have in the refrigerator.

Frankfurter buns act as the base for this sandwich in place of bread.

Ham-Baked Bean Sandwich

2 cups diced cooked ham
¼ cup diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 can (9 ounces) baked beans
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ cup catchup
½ teaspoon salt
8 frankfurter buns
½ cup grated cheddar cheese

Combine ham, celery, onion, baked beans, mustard, catchup and salt. Cut bun lengthwise but not all the way through. Open bun and spread about ½ cup ham mixture on cut surface of each bun. Top each with 2 teaspoons grated cheddar cheese. Broil 3 to 5 minutes. Yield: 8 servings.

Buttermilk Has High Nutrition, Many Uses

Nutritionally speaking, buttermilk contains all of the important vitamins found in fresh skim milk.

Buttermilk acidity increases during storage. Use it as soon as possible after purchase. Buttermilk should be kept refrigerated to preserve its flavor.

Versatility is buttermilk's "other" name. It enhances the flavor of many dishes . . . breads and cakes, waffles and pancakes, salad dressings, coolers, even sauces. Try a buttermilk recipe soon for a real flavor treat.

For sherbet lovers: Dissolve 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin in ½ cup orange juice over low heat. Add 3 tablespoons grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2-3 cup sugar and 1 cup buttermilk. Chill until partially set. Fold in 1 cup whipping cream, whipped.

Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze until firm. Excellent summer afternoon treat. Serve with butter cookies.

Bake that sponge cake in ring shape for a change. When it comes out of the oven pour a coffee-flavored glaze over it.

SUMMER FRUIT FRITTERS — Summer fruits are delicious in tender, lightly browned fritters . . . they are doubly delicious when plenty of maple-y flavored corn syrup is poured over.

Fill Late Summer Cake With Fresh Blueberries

In the cool of the evening, when the summer sun is gradually relinquishing its hold on what is left of today, sit for a minute and reward yourself for the pleasure you've brought into someone's life this day.

Just so you won't have to ponder too hard on that last point, serve the family this delightful Blueberry Crumb Cake. You'll know, then, that this is pleasure enough for almost any day!

Surprisingly easy to make, certain to turn out properly, this old-fashioned recipe combines the true fruit flavor of fresh cultivated blueberries with lightly spiced crumbs into a most unusual dessert or snack-cake.

Blueberry Crumb Cake

1½ boxes zwieback
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
¼ lb. butter
1½ cups fresh cultivated blueberries
4 tablespoons confectioners sugar
2 teaspoons aromatic bitters

Wash fresh blueberries and set aside to drain thoroughly in colander. Crush zwieback or put through a grinder. Sift crumbs into bowl. Add sugar, cinnamon and bitters.

Melt butter in top of double boiler and work into crumb mixture until thoroughly assimilated. Divide mixture into three equal parts. Press one-third of crumbs firmly on bottom of well-greased 8-inch baking pan.

Spread half the blueberries over crumbs. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons confectioners sugar. Repeat with another layer of crumbs, blueberries, sugar. Spread remaining crumbs on top and pat down firmly. Bake for 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Decorate with whipped cream around edges before serving. Serve warm or cold.

Green Bean Salad Always Pleases

Now that green beans are so fresh and wonderful plan to use them in more ways than one — in this green Bean Salad, for example. Cut ½ pound (1½ cups) green beans into 1 inch pieces. Cook in ½ to ¾ cup of boiling water reserving liquid.

Combine ⅓ cup corn oil, 3 tablespoons vinegar, liquid reserved from beans plus water to make make ⅓ cup, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Pour over beans.

Stir in 1 or 2 scallions, chopped, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper and 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento. Let stand at least 3 hours in refrigerator.

Fruit Fritters Are Yummy

Bountiful supplies of summer fruits are on the market, and this is the time of year to enjoy treats like cherries, apricots, blueberries and peaches, many delicious ways. Fritters are a favorite way to use these delicious fruits.

Lightly browned, crisp fritters are excellent served as a dessert or a the main course fo. lunch, breakfast or supper. Of course, no fritter is complete without plenty of corn syrup.

Waffle syrup, the maple-y flavored corn syrup, has just the right body and texture to complement fritters, and the rich maple-y goodness in flavor is perfect with the fruit flavors.

Summer Fruit Fritters

½ cup milk
2 tablespoons corn oil
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cup biscuit mix
2 cups finely diced apricots (blueberries, finely diced cherries or finely diced peaches may be substituted for apricots)
Corn oil
Maple-y flavored corn syrup

Combine milk, 2 tablespoons corn oil and egg; mix well. Add milk mixture to biscuit mix. Mix just to moisten biscuit mix. Fold in apricots. Drop by teaspoonfuls into hot shallow corn oil. Fry 2 minutes on each side, or until lightly browned. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve fritters with syrup.

His Nose Knows

One of the most important workers at every tuna cannery is the "smeller." No laboratory test has yet been devised that is as accurate and fast in determining quality as a highly experienced human nose. Every tuna that enters the processing line must be examined and approved by the "smeller" before it gets through the first processing step.

Time Them Right

NEW YORK (UPI) — Delicate herbs such as parsley and savory are always added at the end of cooking, so the delicate flavor is not lost. Strong herbs such as sage, basil, marjoram and oregano are added during cooking.

Coffee Lovers Will Enjoy Cold Mocha

A sophisticated way to end a meal is with coffee alone. But here's a suggestion that adds intrigue. Turn the coffee into Mocha, a combination of coffee and chocolate, and serve it ice cold topped with a dab of whipped cream. A parfait glass or a slender zombie glass is perfect for the service.

Mocha makes a sensible "dessert" for a bridge luncheon or a nice switch on what to serve a small circle of friends invited for "tea."

With patio meals in full swing, consider Mocha served with a simple cooky. Treat yourself to a Mild Mocha with the leftover breakfast coffee. Try it hot as well as cold.

Whenever you serve Mocha, make it with fresh, dark roast coffee, brewed double strength. Make the coffee no longer than 3 hours ahead, for it loses flavor if held. For the chocolate, use a fortified chocolate flavored syrup, the same milk amplifier the kids adore. If you like you can add a touch of rum to the Mocha.

Now for the proportions and how to put the Mocha together.

Mocha for Four

2 cups double strength coffee
⅓ cup chocolate flavored syrup
½ pint chocolate ice cream
½ cup cream, whipped
Rum, if desired

Chill double strength coffee. Pour chilled coffee into a pitcher; add chocolate flavored syrup and stir. Pour into 6-ounce glasses, filling glasses about 1½ inches from top. Add a small scoop of ice cream. Top with whipped cream. Makes 4 small glasses. May be made in larger glasses and mixed in glass if desired.

You Have All Ingredients Right at Hand

Tasty dressings and sauces can perk up those "everyday" meals. Here are a few that are simple to prepare and require a minimum of ingredients.

For Fruits:

⅓ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
¼ cup honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon paprika

Combine all ingredients, blending well. Makes about ⅔ cup.

For Cooked Broccoli or Hearts of Lettuce:

Soften a 3-ounce package cream cheese. Blend in ½ cup crumbled blue cheese. Gradually add ½ cup salad dressing, ½ cup light cream, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice, beating till smooth. Chill. Makes about 1½ cups.

For Seafoods

1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup chili sauce
¼ cup chopped green pepper
Salt to taste
¼ cup finely chopped green onions with tops
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Combine all ingredients. Makes 1½ cups.

Denver Scrambled Eggs

Ever serve Denver scrambled eggs? Add sauteed onion, green pepper and diced ham to the eggs before scrambling. Good between slices of well-buttered toast with an accompaniment of chili sauce.

If you use active dry yeast in baking, be sure to look at the package and use it before the date (given on the package) expires.

Apples Are Ripe

When you want to cook wedges of apple on top of the range for a compote, use a thin syrup: one cup of sugar to three cups of water. Serve the apples with a fluff of cream cheese beaten with a little milk or cream and a suspicion of lemon juice.

Add 1 teaspoon instant minced onion to ¼ cup mayonnaise and serve over cooked vegetables.

Start Your Day With Breakfast

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

Did your youngsters have a good breakfast before they went to school today? It's the same question we ask our readers several times a year. But it is one we feel justified in harping on. Doctors and nutritionists back us up.

Mothers, you set the pattern for family's meals. It's up to you to see that each mecber eats an adequate meal before tackling the day's work.

It's such an easy pattern to remember. The minimum breakfast consists of fruit or juice, milk, enriched or whole grain cereal and/or bread and butter or fortified margarine. Add to this an egg or bacon three or four times a week and coffee or tea for adults.

We all know people who skip breakfast daily and insist they feel none the worse—in fact, they insist they feel better. Stuff and nonsense. It's just a bad habit.

DELAY IT

Now we'll agree that for some folks the thought of food when they get up in the morning is almost repulsive. All right; let those people eat breakfast an hour or so after they arise, when they can face food. But all authorities agree that we need a meal between our dinner at night and our lunch the next noon.

Another suggestion for breakfast haters is to change the food traditionally served at the morning meal. That pattern for a minimum breakfast is just an idea of what is adequate. If the foods listed don't appeal to you, substitute others. After all, lots of people eat cheese, fried potatoes, fish and apple pie for breakfast. Just eat some kind of a meal.

Take another look at the healthy trio of youngsters in the picture accompanying this article. David, Bobby and Michael DeBats love to eat—any time. Their wise mother who is a nurse sees to it that they have a good morning meal.

She is following the same procedure with their tiny sister, Susan. Set a good example by their parents, the children are growing up, enjoying breakfast.

Fruit, a high protein cereal, milk, bread and bacon or eggs are regular items on the DeBats menu. Mrs. DeBats makes her own bread.

You may not be enthusiastic about baking your own bread; but you're sure to be enthusiastic about this recipe for a quick coffee cake. Not only is it delicious tasting, but it has hidden nutrition—plus. Whenever you add wheat germ to a dish, you increase its food value.

PINEAPPLE WHEAT GERM COFFEE CAKE

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
⅓ cup wheat germ
⅓ cup shortening
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk
3 slices canned pineapple

Topping

¼ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup wheat germ
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ cup butter or margarine

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Stir in wheat germ. Cut shortening into dry ingredients. Blend egg and milk; add to dry ingredients and mix just until blended. Pour into greased 8-inch square pan.

Cut pineapple slices into thirds and arrange over top of batter. Combine first four ingredients of topping; cut in butter or margarine until mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle over top of batter and pineapple. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 45 minutes. Yield: One eight-inch cake or nine servings.

ICE CREAM PARTY LOAF — This pretty dessert that looks like a cake is simple to make. All you need is half a gallon of ice cream, whipped cream and candy wafers.

How About a Loaf of Frosted Ice Cream?

Ice cream and parties go hand-in-hand, for ice cream is a favorite dessert with party-goers of every age. Ice cream is such a convenient dessert, that it's a favorite with hostesses too. It may be served "as is," or dressed up for special occasions.

The top of the loaf is then decorated with candy wafers, in the design of your fancy: spring flowers, wedding bells, hearts, etc. The decorated loaf is placed in the freezer until party time. To serve, just slice.

Try this pretty dessert for your next special occasion—bridge club, birthday party or bridal shower.

ICE CREAM PARTY LOAF

½ gallon ice cream, packed in rectangular carton
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons sugar
Thin chocolate wafers

Remove ice cream from carton, and place whole "loaf" of ice cream on a metal serving tray or small cooky sheet. Flavor the whipped cream with vanilla and sugar; tint with food coloring, if desired. Frost sides and ends of ice cream loaf with whipped cream. Decorate top with thin chocolate wafers, forming flowers or other designs. Use additional whipped cream as "glue," if necessary.

Make additional flower decorations on ends, if desired. Place decorated ice cream loaf in freezer and store until ready to serve. (If stored more than an hour or two, wrap carefully with freezer wrap after whipped cream has hardened.) To serve, slice into 1-inch slices. Makes about 10 servings.

Local Produce Declines, Smaller Eggs Increase

Amid getting ready for school, attending the fair and the beginning of community club activity, most homemakers will make a list and shop for a large supply of groceries during the last three days of the week.

Fresh fruits and vegetables received in major terminal markets were lighter compared to a week ago indicating th end of harvest of some crops. Red meat and poultry supplies are in very adequate supply despite a strike and a short work week because of the holiday. Perch are still plentiful; pickerel is still scarce.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE NEWS

The homegrown season for fruits and vegetables is on its decline for 1959, relates the MSU Marketing Agent. Last call for those who still have conserving plans for peaches, tomatoes and cucumbers.

Heat and humidity damaged the quality of many Michigan cantaloupe this year. It will pay to carefully check quality before buying. Use quickly as they become overripe and spoil rapidly. Supplies are expected to drop about 40 per cent in September from August.

The Michigan plum crop is on the light side this year, but the supply at the moment is heavy and quality is good. The crop will be finished in a week to 10 days.

Tokay grapes are priced lower this week. Grape volume will increase with Thompson seedless, Tokay and Ribier the variety leaders this month.

Pear harvesting is under way with the Michigan crop smaller than last year, but still above average in size. Remember that pears need to be ripened to develop flavor and juice. Leave in a paper sack or dark drawer until soft.

Three to eight cents a pound will buy most potatoes in the markets. At two to six cents each, this is a time to think of new and old ways of using green peppers.

As the canning season draws to a close, you will find special prices on canned beans, corn, peaches and fruit cocktail.

EGGS FOR ALL — Do you know "egg-actly" what you want when you buy eggs? August through November is "the season for small and medium size eggs."

Three small eggs will give the same protein value found in two large eggs, a 3-ounce piece of lean cooked meat or a three inch cube of cheddar cheese.

Could you use the economical small or medium size egg in casseroles? As deviled eggs? To add richness and flavor in potato salad? As more protein at breakfast to start the family on its way to school or work.

LET'S LOOK AT MEAT—Shoppers will find specials in pork, beef, poultry and lamb this week.

A slight drop in wholesale prices allows the retailer to offer features on fryers again. Some stores will have stewers, roasters, cornish hens, duck and turkeys at special prices also.

Retailers report pork prices uncertain on the wholesale market, but shoppers will find bacon, spareribs, pork chops and loin roasts receiving emphasis. Pork supplies are larger than a year ago and this is resulting in good values, costwise, when compared with other meats.

Although wholesale beef prices are up slightly, retailers report this will not be reflected in consumer prices this week. This may make beef sales seem more attractive than ever.

Could you use round steak this week. If so, you could have two meals from one graded U.S. Choice The top of the round could be a broiled steak. The bottom round might be used for potroast, a stew or stroganoff.

Ice Water Curls It

Cut celery ribs into 3-inch lengths making parallel slits at one end. Have the slits narrow and reaching almost to the other end of the piece of celery. Cover with icy-cold water and refrigerate until the cut ends curl. Nice for a party!

Easy to Carry

Carry deviled eggs to picnics in individual fluted paper liners used for baking cup cakes. Put the liners in a baking pan or shallow casserole and cover with waxed paper or foil.

Bake in Hot Oven

If your pie shell shrinks and gets out of shape you may have overstretched the dough; or your may be baking the shell at too low a temperature. Many cooking authorities recommend a very hot (450 degrees) oven for the shells.

Fish and Ham Baked Quickly in Parchment

Fish En Papillotte

6 small whole fish (2 to 3 pounds)
6 medium-thin slices baked ham (about size of fish).
1½ teaspoons anchovy paste
6 medium-sized mushrooms.
6 tablespoons butter.
Salt, pepper.

Have fish split and cleaned but not boned; have heads and part of tails left on; wash and dry.

Place a slice of ham on one side of a buttered heart-shaped piece of parchment paper large enough to accommodate the fish; spread ham with ¼ teaspoon anchovy paste. Place a fish on the ham.

Tuck a mushroom (sliced through cap and stem) in fish with 1 tablespoon butter cut into bits, leaving a little butter to place on top of fish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Fold over the other side of the parchment paper; beginning at top of heart, crimp edges tightly by rolling over and under to seal and give pleated effect.

Make remaining packages the same way. Place on baking sheet in hot (425 degrees) oven 25 minutes. Paper should be puffed up and browned. Cut centers open with scissors; serve in paper Makes 6 servings.

Add Fresh Tomatoes

Canned macaroni bakes to perfection in short order! Top 2 cans (15¼ ounces each) macaroni, in a baking dish, with fresh tomatoes (cut in halves) which are sprinkled with butter and salt and pepper. 25 minutes in a hot oven will mean delightful eating for 6.

Bacon Peanut Snack

Spread whole-wheat toast with butter, then with peanut butter; top with crumbled hot crisply cooked bacon, pressing the bacon crumbles into the peanut butter. Serve at once with tomato juice.

Tempting New Desserts Come as Package Mixes

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

New products introduced in the past few weeks include some new mixes, some cereal and two canned vegetables. You have to get up very early in the morning to get ahead of the food manufacturers.

Although it has been too hot recently to try them out, we are interested in the mixes for Boston cream pie; there is one with a chocolate cake, another with a plain vanilla flavored cake. The chocolate version has chocolate filling and glaze.

In the same shipment there was a mix for a two-layer lemon dessert. This holds separate packages of mix for the chiffon top and a tangy sauce. All three will add to your dessert variety.

There's no excuse for the small fry's not knowing their alphabet. For years we've had alphabet soup. There's been an oat cereal lately that's made in the form of letters.

Now we have two new oat cereals, both of them ready-to-eat, and both of them made in letter form. One shaped like O's is presweetened. The other one has both O's and K's.

Try this second cereal as a cookie ingredient in the following recipe.

Ginger Lassies

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¾ cups soft butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¼ cup molasses
4 cups ready-to-eat oat cereal

Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Blend butter and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in molasses and sifted dry ingredients. Form dough into balls about 1 inch in diameter; roll in oat cereal. Place about 3 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 12 minutes. Yield: 4 dozen cookies, 2 inches in diameter.

Are you fond of shoe peg corn, the corn that looks like the small pegs once used to hold shoes together? One of the country's largest canning companies is putting out a 12-ounce can of this delicious whole kernel white corn. Their other new product is a combination of medium small early peas and tiny imported onions. Think what an attractive and appetizing dish that will make.

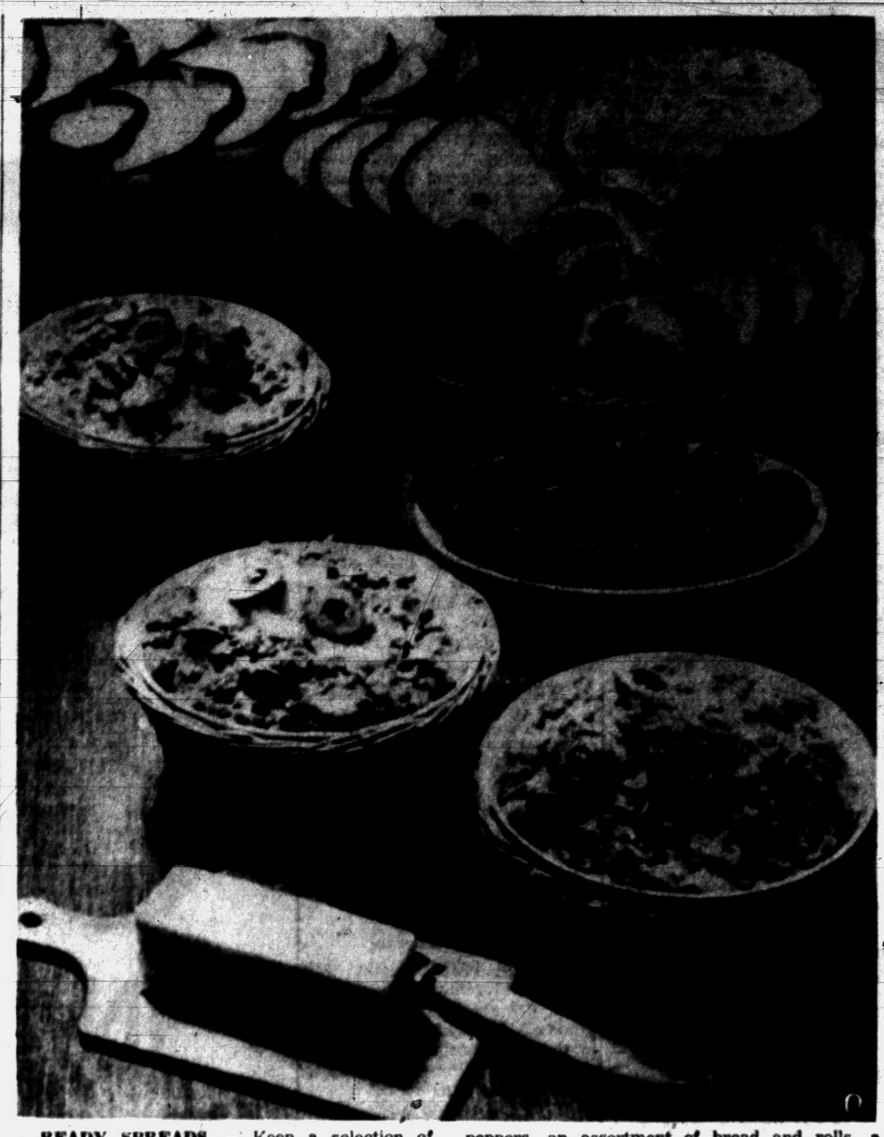

The Food Editor's Conference is just ahead. We expect to come back from Chicago with many, many new ideas and with news about more exciting foods.

Beefing It Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — For an easy luncheon dish, add 1½ cups shredded dried beef to easy corn bread mix. Place beef in plastic bag of cornbread ingredients, mix and bake according to package directions. Slice hot cornbread squares horizontally and serve with creamed peas between slices and over top of each serving.

Orange Flavored Glaze

Glazing a ham? Try making a paste of brown sugar, grated orange rind and orange juice and covering the ham with it before you put it into the oven for the final baking.

READY SPREADS — Keep a selection of sandwich spreads ready and waiting for snackers. By using chopped pimiento-stuffed olives as one of the ingredients, the simplest spread turns elegant. Put out a plateful of sliced onions and peppers, an assortment of bread and rolls, a bowlful of whole Spanish green olives and you have a do-it-yourself type snack that will appeal to your small-fry guests as well as the grown-up guests.

Make Sandwich Spreads for Drop-in Guests

In summer, there's no knowing who'll drop in for a snack, when. Dad may come home from golf with the rest of his foursome in need of some solid refreshment. The kitchen may be invaded by the teenage swimming set or the small fry with his ever-hungry Little League teammates.

If your household is this drop-in-for-a-bite type, it's well to have the wherewithal to feed them all ready and set to serve at a moment's notice. A couple of sandwich spreads that will appeal to the unsophisticated taste of youngsters, as well as the more sophisticated taste of the grown-ups, are your best bets. They can be of the simplest sort but if chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives are added, they pep right up and acquire an intriguing flavor.

As a guide to what type sandwiches appeal to young, and old alike, here are three suggested spreads.

Snackers' Olive Sandwich Spread

1 12-ounce can luncheon meat finely chopped
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 9-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
¼ cup chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Serve as a spread for sandwiches. Makes about 3 cups.

Spanish Siesta Spread

1 8-ounce package process American cheese, grated
½ cup chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon prepared horse-radish

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Garnish with walnut halves and sliced olives, as desired. Makes about 2 cups.

Bologna Olive Sandwich Spread

1 pound bologna, ground or finely chopped
½ cup finely chopped onions
½ cup chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon chili powder

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Garnish with onion rings and sliced olives, as desired. Makes about 3 cups.

Sources of Hamburger

Chuck beef is popular for hamburgers but any of the following, after being ground may be used: Round, flank, plate, brisket, shank or neck beef. Don't store ground meat for more than two days and always put it in the coldest part of your refrigerator.

Need a round cookie cutter that is about three inches in diameter? Save an opened No. 2 food can and use it. Be sure to open the can so its edges are smooth.

Here's a New One

To make a quick upside-down cake put the usual upside-down mixture of fruit, butter and sugar in your casserole, and top with cake quality powdered sugar doughnuts from your grocer's ready-to-eat cake department. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 20 to 25 minutes.

How to Get the Best Education for Your Child

Get Busy If Johnny Can't Read by Age 8

By DR. BENJAMIN FINE and LILLIAN FINE

"Color, cut out and paste, color, cut out and paste," grumbles the kindergartner in a cartoon, "and where does it get you?"

Actually, some children, eager for more grown-up status, do long for formal instruction.

Yet, to the first grader, almost everything is an unknown quantity. No wonder some grow tense and fearful. This is a time when your child needs all the encouragement you can give.

Should you visit school often during class time? Probably not.

THAT'S HER JOB

Should you try to help Johnny read? If you do, be sure you are not at cross purposes with the teacher. The wise parent cooperates, praises, encourages in the first and second grades.

"But my Billy is almost through first grade and can't read," objects Mrs. Jones.

"What does his teacher say?"

"Oh that he's young for his age and isn't ready. Said I should read to him more and take him places. I've got enough to do. That's her job! I don't think she's any good."

JOHNNY CAN'T READ

It's a fairly safe bet that if Billy doesn't have a reading problem now, he soon will! Mrs. Jones' attitude is likely to dishearten both Billy and teacher.

Mrs. Jones' concern would be justified if Billy were almost 8.

If your child cannot read simple stories by the time he finishes third grade, take the matter seriously but try not to frighten him. Emotion is a common cause of "reading block."

First look for a physical cause. Does he have normal sight and hearing? Arrange for a really thorough examination.

Tell the oculist the child is having trouble learning to read. For any weakness or abnormal condition, treatment should begin immediately.

If no physical cause appears, the next step is to insist on conferences with the teacher, the reading specialist and possibly the principal.

Testing a child's hearing at a school's speech clinic . . .

. . . and making sure that this "slow reader" does not have defective eyesight.

What seem to be the child's chief difficulties? How retarded is he? What tests have been given and what do they indicate on intelligence, maturity, reading readiness? Does the school offer special help for those with learning difficulties? If not where is help available? What can be done at home to help? What aid is the school going to give the child?

You may wish to have a qualified person tutor him. It is not as a rule a good idea for parents to do so.

Are all reading difficulties easily overcome? Unfortunately, no. But most children can be helped.

READING READINESS

Making the child repeat a grade seldom does much good. Undoubtedly there should be more remedial-reading teachers, better textbooks, smaller classes. But have you looked at your tax bill lately?

The idea of reading "readiness" bothers many fathers and mothers.

Research has shown, however, that at a certain point in their development most children can learn to read with minimum difficulty. Before that, the chance of failure will be greater. It is said that Woodrow Wilson could not read well until he was 10.

Forty years ago most third-graders were required to master long division. For thousands it was a "time of troubles." Third graders today have troubles, but long division is not likely to be one of them. It is not taught until fifth grade or later, when children are able to learn it easily.

Parents can help a child develop the ability to concentrate and follow through by gentle reminders and encouragement. One way is to read him a story and then ask him to tell it to you. Help him recall important details, and be sure to praise.

Another area where you can help is in making decisions. This is painfully hard for many youngsters. It takes time and effort, but it is a good idea to let children have some choice in the clothes they wear, the food they eat, and the games they play.

This does not mean Billy may play with his father's rifle!

At some time a child may become disheartened. Perhaps he does not like his teacher or — more likely — feels she does not like him. Perhaps he thinks the instruction inadequate, the work too hard, or other children picking on him.

LISTEN TO HIM

There is a fairly good chance he is imagining things, but also a chance he is right. Parents can help by listening carefully to all complaints and then investigating.

A phone call to the teacher will sometimes straighten things out. If a child seems tense and worried, it may be a good idea to let him stay home a day or two. This should not be allowed often for some children quickly get the idea of playing sick.

What should parents do if their child is in the hands of an unjust or incompetent teacher? Many are reluctant to complain. But little children should not be left to the mercies of an untrained or neurotic person.

After making sure of their facts, parents should go to the principal and, if necessary, to the superintendent. Be firm and insistent, though always tactful. It usually is possible to transfer a child to another class or even to another school.

One of the best things a parent can do is to be friends with a child's teachers. It pays dividends.

"I've taught in this town for 30 years," a well-known teacher remarked recently, "and in all of that time only three of my pupils' families have invited me to dinner."

U.S. and Philippines Agree on Defenses

MANILA (AP) — The United States and the Philippines today reached an understanding on defense and security arrangements as the two nations resumed talks on revising the 1947 bases agreement, Foreign Secretary Felixberto Serrano reported.

Serrano would give no details and he declined to predict when the negotiations would be ended.

Still to be negotiated is the Philippine demand for increased judicial jurisdiction over American servicemen.

The negotiations have been going on for three years.

School Board Plans Busy Meeting Tonight

A busy agenda is planned tonight for the first 1959-60 school year meeting of the Pontiac Board of Education at 40 Patterson St.

The Board is expected to hire a coordinator of food service operations, adjust its athletic and student accident insurance coverage and hear a report on last year's innovational rapid learner program.

Reports will be given also on finances, school construction and rehabilitation and a review of the procedure for establishing millage requirements through 1964.

The meeting will start at 7:45.

Fire, Explosions Rip Warehouses

7 Buildings Destroyed, 28 Firemen Felled in Jersey City Inferno

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — A raging fire, punctuated by explosions from drums of chemicals, destroyed seven warehous. buildings on the waterfront Wednesday.

The intense heat and smoke felled 28 firemen, seven of whom were hospitalized. The men were in good condition at Jersey City Medical Center, however, and no one was injured seriously.

The area is less than 300 yards from the site of the Black Tom explosion in World War I.

The initial blast occurred in the Wheeler Brothers Transportation Co. warehouse near the Caven Point Army Terminal.

The resulting fire touched off blasts in fifty-gallon drums of antifreeze, oxides and refrigerants stored in the group of buildings.

POWER LINES FALL

The fire also knocked down power lines and electricity went off in the Caven Point industrial area.

Torn scraps of metal were hurled into the area of the New Jersey Turnpike Hudson County extension about 1,000 feet away. Dense smoke and heat also rolled across the turnpike, forcing authorities to close down both lanes of the toll road for a while.

Every piece of Jersey City Fire Department equipment was dispatched to the scene. All off duty firemen and policemen were called in.

Water was brought in from hydrants as far away as half a mile. Firemen also took advantage of the bay for water supply during the worst of the fire.

The tide ebbed about two hours after the fire was brought under control, making further use of the bay impossible.

Fire Chief Thomas Maloney said ether, cyanide and metholene were among the chemicals stored in the warehouse where the blaze began. He added he "wouldn't even attempt to guess at a damage estimate."

In the Black Tom explosions, munitions docks blew up on July 30, 1916, with the loss of two lives and 40 million dollars in damage. The disaster later was traced to German saboteurs.

Miss America Talent Fete Brings Historic 3-Way Tie

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—An unprecedented three-way tie climaxed the talent competition of the Miss America pageant Wednesday night.

Talent winners were Miss Pensylvania, Miss Connecticut and Miss District of Columbia. At the same time, Miss Washington took the swimsuit award and all four contestahts were thus assured of at least a $1,000 scholarship.

Miss Pennsylvaia, 21-year-old Lois Janet Piercy of Springfield, Pa., won the judges' favor in art and music.

Miss Piercy displayed a large oil painting. She sat next to it and played an original composition on the flute. Both music and painting bore the same title — "Night Rain on the City."

A tractor figured in Miss Connecticut's efforts.

Spectators craned their necks as Diana Martha Klug, 21, of Torrington, Conn., rumbled on stage atop a tractor, which she is proficient in operating.

Miss Klug, who grew up on a farm, then presented a dream skit which presented her as a farm girl aspiring to wear other-than-farm-girl clothing.

Virginia Noble Pailes, blonde, 21-year-old Miss District of Columbia, won acclaim for her rendition of "It All Depends on You." Miss Pailes wore a floor-length pink chiffon sheath with matching pumps and white elbow-length gloves.

Miss Washington, Sharon Joyce Vaughn, 21, of Seattle won the swimsuit competition in a white bathing costume. Miss Vaughn is a senior at the University of Washington, stands 5 feet 7 and measures 36-22-36.

Kennedy Endorsed by Cleveland Demos

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) Democratic ward leaders Wednesday unanimously endorsed Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) for the party's presidential nomination.

They also invited Kennedy to enter a slate of delegates in the Ohio primary and to announce officially his candidacy for president at a party rally here Sept. 27. The action, led by County Chairman Ray T. Miller, was a direct rebuff to a movement started Wednesday by state Democratic headquarters to draft Gov. Michael V. DiSalle as a favorite son candidate.

Nikita Will Get New York City's $5 Special Meal

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is going to get the city's regular $5 special dinner, just like hundreds of other guests throughout the year.

Originally it had been planned to go all out with the menu when Khrushchev dines at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel next Thursday evening. Champagne, caviar and roast beef were being considered.

* * *

But Mayor Robert F. Wagner has decreed otherwise. Instead of caviar it'll be crabmeat; instead of champagne it will be coffee; and the main course will be breast of chicken or beef tenderloin — not roast beef.

2 GOP Senators Request Further Probe Into UAW

WASHINGTON (AP)— Two GOP senators called today for further Senate Rackets Committee investigation of Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers.

Sens. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb) and Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) said they agree with chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) the committee should disband Jan. 31, but feel more should be done before then.

McClellan told reporters as the hearings ended yesterday that "when we leave here I hope not to hold any more hearings. We're not planning any more."

The principal remaining work is the writing of reports on what has been done.

Nevertheless, Curtis, who has led the UAW inquiry for Republicans on the committee, said there is lots more staff work to be done and he hopes it will be done this fall.

He told a reporter his investigation — centering around AUW Vice President Richard T. Gosser and UAW Local 12 in Toledo—already has shown abuse of union leaders' power.

"In the matter of overriding the rights of members, it's as bad as (Teamsters President James R.) Hoffa," he said. Mundt said the findings can best be described as unsavory.

The proceedings, entirely directed by GOP committee members, have concerned use of union funds by Gosser and his aides.

Harold Billheimer, a UAW member from Toledo, testified yesterday he and another UAW man had been beaten in 1950 by Orville Beamer, an aide of Gosser. Billheimer said he had challenged Gosser's handling of union funds, but conceded under questioning that he had no personal knowledge that Gosser ever misappropriated any money.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) called the UAW hearings a monumental misuse of the committee's time.

Republicans on the committee, he said, used it to conduct political warfare against the UAW because they don't approve of it. The union, active politically, regularly supports Democratic candidates.

Whatever the significance of the hearings, it appeared today that the rackets committee—except for writing its final report—has finished the job it started Feb. 27, 1957.

As for the UAW inquiry, McClellan said much of the testimony was old and that he wasn't overly impressed with the truth of some of that given by both sides.

Michigan Town to Mark Site of Indian Battle

CUSTER (UPI)—Plans to mark the scene of a bloody battle between the Chippewa and Huron Indians more than a century ago will be made at a meeting here Friday night.

Officials of the Mason County Historical Society and Custer Chamber of Commerce will develop plans to mark the spot as a memorial battlefield.

The battle, in which the Chippewas called on the Pottawatomie Indians to help them repulse an invasion by the Hurons, took place in an area that is now the Custer Township Park on the banks of the Pere Marquette River.

Farmers in the area have found bushels of stone artifacts, arrows and axes used in the battle.

Officials of the historical society said they would like to see a museum for Indian artifacts and handiwork established in the park.

Will Sub for Man in Danger Areas

Take Wraps Off Electronic Robot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mobot Mark I, a mechanical and electronic marvel designed to take man's place in dangerous areas, made its debut Wednesday.

Scientists took the wraps off Mobot at the Hughes Aircraft Co. nuclear electronics laboratories, where it was developed for the Atomic Energy Commission's Sandia Laboratories at Albuquerque, N.M.

Looking somewhat like a small tractor, Mobot can maneuver handily, perform intricate tasks with its metal fingers and see through television-camera eyes.

The fantastic machine will do its work in "hot" areas of the atomic laboratories where man-made radiation is too intense for humans.

Mobot was described as the first operable machine to be both completely mobile and remote - controlled.

Dr. Allen E. Puckett, vice president of Hughes, said Mobot Mark 1 will be used by Sandia to test effects of radiation upon materials. "But future versions may someday scoop up a bucketful of moondust for return to earth labs, farm the ocean bottom, fight fires and rescue men from disaster areas such as those containing poisonous gases," he added.

STATE PGA SENIOR CHAMP — Tommy Shannon, Orchard Lake Country Club's veteran head pro, won the Michigan PGA Senior golf title at Country Club of Lansing with a five-under-par score of 72-67—139. Shannon was two strokes better than runnerup Al Watrous of Oakland Hills as he earned a spot in the National PGA Senior event next January at Dunedin, Fla. It was his 1st victory as a head professional after 25 years in the business.

City Opens New Archery Range on North Side

A new outdoor archery range has been opened by the Pontiac Parks and Recreation department at Edison street, between Rundell and Wolfe streets. It is located in the Aaron-Perry Park area and is completely fenced in.

The range is for use by all bow hunters and archery fans interested in sharpening their shooting for the coming bow seasons. It occupies an area 100x150 feet, and has a 65-foot long target backstop.

Construction of the range was effected in cooperation with the Pontiac Archers Club. It is hoped to eventually install lights for night shooting, and there is also possibility of erecting a clubhouse.

All archers are invited to use the range. There is no charge.

'Never Say Die' Indians Win Twice

Tribe Winning Streak Now at Six Straight

Cleveland Gains Only Half Game as Chisox Beat Nats

By United Press International

Never say die because that Cleveland club everyone said was dead is beginning to show signs of life.

"Who says we're dead?" snaps manager Joe Gordon. "I certainly don't feel that way."

Apparently, neither do veteran Jack Harshman and rookie Jim Perry. Each turned in a fancy five-hit effort in a 3-2 and 4-1 twi-night sweep over the Orioles Wednesday night that ran the Indians' latest winning streak to six games and boosted them within 4½ games of first place.

"Perry already has won 20 games, counting the ones he has saved for us in relief," Gordon said.

Harshman, who was 2-9 when he came to Cleveland and is 6-9 now, said Gordon helped bring about the vast change.

"He told me to forget the screwball and throw my fast ball more," explained the southpaw.

The Indians won the opener in the ninth inning when centerfielder Willie Tasby played George Strickland's single into a base-circling "homer" for a three-base error. In the nightcap, Rocky Colavito's sixth-inning double scored Minnie Minoso and broke a 1-1 tie. Cleveland added two more insurance runs off loser Skinny Brown in the seventh.

The first-place White Sox won their 11th straight from the Senators 5-1, and the Yankees handed the Athletics their 12th straight loss 4-0.

Bob Shaw won his 15th game for the White Sox with a seven-hitter against the Senators. The White Sox broke a 1-1 tie and routed loser Tex Clevenger when they scored four runs with the help of three errors in the seventh. It was the White Sox' 12th victory in their last 15 games and 16th out of 21 with Washington this season.

Art Ditmar and Whitey Ford combined in a four-hit effort that gave the Yankees their victory over the A's. Ditmar, credited with his 12th victory, bowed out after eight innings because of a sprained right hand. An error by Jerry Lumpe helped the Yanks to a pair of unearned runs off loser Johnny Kucks in the second inning and New York added two more in the fourth on Yogi Berra's double, Elston Howard's triple and Hector Lopez' single.

WEEPS AS DREAMS FADE — Canadian welterweight Gale Kerwin, weeps in his corner last night when a technical knockout ruined his dream of stepping up the ladder for the title. Lightweight champion Joe Brown of Houston won the fight in the 4th round. Kerwin's manager Al Lang is in the center and Jack Dempsey, the referee, is on the right.

Al's Home Run, Jim's 3-Hitter Defeat Boston

Kaline's 2-Run Clout Ignites 3-1 Triumph; Bunning Fans 9

BOSTON (AP) — Al Kaline, still chasing teammate Harvey Kuenn for the American League batting championship, might well be the league leader today if the Detroit Tigers played more games against Boston pitching.

At least he would have a fine slugging average.

Kaline cracked a two-run homer last night in support of Jim Bunning's stingy three-hitter as the Tigers defeated Boston 3-1. The victory kept Detroit in third place, one-half game ahead of New York.

It was the young center fielder's 24th four-bagger of the season and his 10th against the Red Sox. And of his 84 runs batted in this season, 29 have been against Boston.

Kuenn continues to lead the circuit in hitting with .353. Kaline is next with .328.

Kaline's shot into the left field stands in the fourth inning touched off a three-run outburst. It also tied the Tigers' club record for home runs in a season at 150. The homer mark was set in 1937 and matched in 1956.

Bunning, who also is rough on the Red Sox with five victories in six starts against them this season, also figured in a team record — but one he didn't like.

When Boston's Marty Keough lashed a homer into the Detroit bullpen in the first inning it marked the 34th gopher ball given up by the slim right hander this year. That topped the Detroit club record of 33 Bunning set two years ago. It also was the 95th four-bagger he's given up in three seasons.

Bunning struck out nine for a season total of 179 as he notched his 16th victory against 11 defeats. That's two more strikeouts than he posted last year and only three below his best season.

After Keough's blast, Bunning settled down to pitch shutout ball the rest of the way. He weakened momentarily in the ninth when, with one out, he walked Jackie Jensen and Frank Malzone. But then the right hander struck out Sammy White and Jim Busby to end the game.

Frank Sullivan, lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth, was the loser. He's now 8-10.

Takes State Title at Lansing

Shannon Senior Golf King

Patience has rewarded Tommy Shannon. After 34 years as a head golf pro, the last 19 at Orchard Lake Country Club, Shannon finally broke into the victory column.

And when he did hit the jackpot, it was a big one.

Shannon rifled a five-under-par 139, including an eagle deuce on a blind hole, to win the 1959 Michigan PGA Senior golf championship at the Country Club of Lansing.

His triumph qualified him for the National PGA tournament, which will be held next January at the National PGA golf course in Dunedin, Fla.

Shannon fired 36-36—72 on his opening round to equal the Lansing club's par, then shot 35-32—67 on the afternoon tour to defeat runnerup Al Watrous of Oakland Hills, former State PGA Senior champion, by two strokes.

Watrous had a scorecard of 141 on rounds of 73-68, followed by Joe Belfore of the Country Club of Detroit with 71-72—143. Another ex-champ, Jim Barfield of Grand Rapids, took 4th place with 73-73—146.

Shannon's only previous wins as a professional came during his days as an assistant. He won the Michigan Assistant crown three times.

Tommy saved the best until the finish, making his eagle two on the 390-yard 18th hole on the closing round. He let fly with a 155-yard 6-iron shot at the elevated green with only the top of the flag visible and the ball rolled into the cup for a spectacular ending.

Cliff Good of Midland and Belfore led the field at the halfway mark with 71's. Good soared to an 80 in the afternoon to fall far back in the pack.

Nearly 30 players competed in the tourney for pros 50 years of age and older.

Shannon, now 51 years old, won this tournament on his second attempt. He made his debut last year on the same course and finished 3rd.

An honorary vice president of the State PGA and a member of the organization since 1925, Shannon now receives an expense-paid trip to the National PGA Senior tourney at Dunedin.

From the Press Box

BY BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

If ever a topsy-turvey football race was expected in the Big Ten this should be the season for it.

This is indicated from the difference in opinions of national football publications forecasting the 1959 Big Ten campaign.

Five teams have been picked in one publication or another as prospective champions.

Wisconsin was picked by three forecasters. Purdue was selected by two, Ohio State by two, Iowa by two and Northwestern by one.

On this basis, the other five teams, Michigan, Michigan State, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota are left to battle for second division berths.

Illinois is being regarded the sleeper and most likely team to break into the top half of the Big Ten.

This doesn't leave very much room for the two state representatives in the conference.

One coach who is happy for being rated so low this year is Duffy Daugherty at East Lansing. Last season MSU was picked to go all the way.

As it urned out the Spartans did go all the way—down to finish in the cellar.

Now, without the pressure of top national ranking hanging over his head, Daugherty honestly feels this team could offer a few surprises and it really could.

Of course over at Ann Arbor, Bump Elliott isn't shouting surprise but there is an air of silent optimism that he may be planning a few.

So as the season of Fall madness approaches and everyone gets into the act of making forecasts we might as well join the bandwagon.

Here's how we see the Big Ten race this year:

1. Northwestern
2. Purdue
3. Wisconsin
4. Ohio State
5. Michigan State
6. Iowa
7. Michigan
8. Illinois
9. Indiana
10. Minnesota

DITTOS FROM THE PRESS BOX

Jack Fear, former Waterford gridder who played at Purdue and is now on the coaching staff at Pontiac Northern, says U. of D. coach Jim Miller, who was his line coach at Purdue, is quite a stickler for defense.

"He should do a good job at U. of D," said Jack, "and his linemen will really learn defense."

No Pro Football on Huskie Field

SEATTLE (AP)—A plan to base a professional football team in the University of Washington stadium was scotched Wednesday when the school's board of regents voted unanimously against the proposal.

The action ended the hopes of Pacific Northwest Sports Inc., a group of local businessmen, of fielding a Seattle entry in the new American Football League.

Last spring, the regents adopted a policy of opposition to any use of university facilities for private gain. Professional football exhibition games have been played at the university under the sponsorship of Greater Seattle Inc., a civic group.

Bucholz, Seixas Ousted in National Net Play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Ronnie Holmerg, a big, blond senior at Tulane by way of Brooklyn, is only 21 but he already has run the gamut in tennis.

Five years ago, he was rated one of the top young hopes in the country. But after beating Rod Laver of Australia for the Wimbledon junior title in 1956, he never made much more progress.

Today he plays the same Laver in the quarter-final of the Nationals. Now no one is so sure Ronnie is a has-been—least of all Ronnie. He polished off Davis Cupper Earl (Butch) Bucholz yesterday, 6-3, 7-5, 8-10, 5-7, 6-3. Bucholz was seeded No. 7.

Except for Holmberg's upset of Bucholz, things progressed in normal fashion yesterday. Top-seeded Alex Olmedo of Los Angeles ousted young Chuck McKinley of St. Louis, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, and second-ranked Neale Fraser of Australia bounced Rudy Hernando of Detroit, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3, to advance to the quarter-finals.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., caught up with 36-year-old Vic Seixas, 2-6, 8-10, 6-0, 6-1, to grab a quarter-final berth.

So six of the eight spots in the quarters now are filled. Holmberg, Laver, Olmedo, Bartzen, Fraser and Roy Emerson are in. The other two rounds of 16 tests will be played today. They pit third seeded Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, against Ed Dailey of Harrisburg, Pa.

Joe Brown Kayoes Hopes of Canadian

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A technical knockout by world lightweight champion Joe Brown in the fourth round last night kayoed the hopes of Canadian welterweight champion Gale Kerwin for a climb into U.S. ring prominence.

Brown of Houston, Tex., won the on-title charity bout here in one minute and 50 seconds of the fourth after Kerwin suffered a gash over his left eye.

Referee Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight king, halted the nationally televised fight, called the ringside physician to examine Kerwin and awarded the match to Brown.

This was my dream fight and I lost it," wept Kerwin. "I'm sorry it happened this way. I was coming strong and the punch didn't hurt me."

AP Wirephoto

SLAMMER—Bobby Avila was the hero of the Milwaukee Braves yesterday as he hit a grand slam homer in the 9th inning to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 to keep the Braves' hopes alive in the National League race.

Champs From Five States Entered

Water Ski Tourney at Cass Lake

The first annual Cass Lake Open Water Ski jumping tournament will be held Saturday near the Bayside boat area.

State champions from Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio and Indiana, plus Henry Holmes national overall men's champion from Florida will compete in the tourney.

Tommy Dorwin from Wisconsin, Tom Geiger from Ohio, Jerry Lankenou of Michigan and Jerry Setter of Indiana are the respective state jumping champions.

Lankenou won the title this year replacing Tony Mitchell the 1958 champ from the Cass Lake Ski Club.

Nancy Messler, also of Cass Lake, the state girls jumping champion and Randy McCully the junior boys champion are also entered.

Jumps will be made from a 5½ foot board at boat speeds of 30 mph for men, and 5 feet at 28 mph for women.

Water skiing exhibition will also take place between events on Cass Lake.

Among other local entries are Paul Boel, one of the outstanding veteran state jumpers, Ken Obert and Marylin Hickson.

The final event of the tournament will be doubles competition. Skiers will be paired and each will make two jumps with the winning doubles team based on total points.

Trophy awards will be made in the various events and divisions.

The tournament will start at 11:00 a. m. and continue until 5:00 p. m. An entry list of 42 skiers is expected.

Sam Calls Payments Penurious

PGA Blasts Snead in Rhubarb at Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—Those remarks Sam Snead made about penurious payments to a defending champion and a $500 fine if he didn't defend his title in a golf tournament had the old slammer in bad with the Professional Golfers Assn.

Snead, here to play in the $25,000 Dallas Open, in which he won first money the past two years, was blasted by Harvey Raynor, PGA tournament supervisor, for showing "a complete lack of cooperation with tournament golf, which has made him a wealthy man."

The famed golfer of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., started off by keeping tournament officials in suspense because he wouldn't file his entry until the last moment.

Reportedly Snead was seeking appearance money, something that's in dispute, however, because when he finally arrived he said he had held up on his entry because of a conflict with an event that was going on at the hotel which employs him in West Virginia.

But he was quoted as criticizing the $200 he would receive as defending champion and also saying that the fine a defending champion faced for not appearing was unjustified.

So Raynor issued a statement that "we don't feel that he should have made complaints about regulations if he were a true professional golfer.

"The tournament players themselves make these rules. The regulation Snead referred to is for the sole purpose of protecting the integrity of professional golf. The money a man wins for winning the championship is certainly worthy of his re-appearance.

"We all know that the $200 he is guaranteed is not enough to cover plane fare here and expenses for the tournament. But the sponsors fund from which this is taken cannot afford any more. As for the $500 fine, it's not that we are hard up for the money. We feel it is the defending champion's duty to the game and to the sponsor to appear."

Calling All-Star Keglers

The Ladies All-Star Bowling League will hold an open meeting Friday night at Motor Inn at 7:30, league secretary Eva Miller has announced. Openings for a few bowlers still remain and interested keglers are invited to attend.

Emmanuel Eleven Has 3 Games, Seeks More

Emmanuel Christian School is busily preparing for its first formal football season on the junior high school level.

Games at Rochester and Ortonville are already scheduled along with a tentative contest against St. Benedict.

More games are being sought against 9th grade or junior high elevens. Emmanuel has no home field so must play all games away. For further information phone Frank Thompson, FE 5-3625.

Bootleg Pass Good Play

By PAUL DIETZEL
Head Coach, Louisiana State

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)— The bootleg pass play fakes the exact play we discussed in the first article. It shows the off-tackle slant all the way.

Everyone in the line of scrimmage does exactly the same thing as he does on the off-tackle slant with the exception of the men involved in the pattern.

The left tackle hooks the man over him. The right end runs the same route as in the second article, which was the off-tackle option play.

As soon as the quarterback clears his left halfback, he takes a quick look at the left end to find him and to ascertain what his next move will be.

If the quarterback can gain five yards he will run the ball. If the quarterback cannot gain five yards he will throw the ball to his left end.

Buffalo Learns Price of Entering Continental

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bisons, minor league baseball's most successful box office operation for the past three years, Wednesday found the price tag for a Continental League franchise. The tag said 2½ million dollars.

President John C. Stiglmeier of the Buffalo Baseball Club passed the word to the directors of the community-owned organization. He asked for their recommendations.

The letters quoted Bill Shea, the new league's prime mover, as asking for a financial statement to cover the first million and a half dollars and "an additional statement on backers who could put up another million."

Shea also requested information on a stadium to seat at least 35,000. The Bisons expect to move into Civic Stadium next season when a remodeling program already approved by the city had been completed. Civic Stadium now seats nearly 40,000.

The club now has about 3,000 stockholders and Stiglmeier has assured them that they would not be sold out or bought out in connection with any move into the major leagues.

The Bisons just won the Triple A International League pennant. They opened their semifinal playoff series against Richmond Wednesday night in Offermann Stadium, a 14,000-seat park that is soon to be razed for a school.

In each of the past three years, Buffalo's attendance figures led all the minor leagues.

McIntire-Eller Match Looming in Trans-Miss

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A possibility developed yesterday that national amateur champion Barbara McIntire and national collegiate champion Judy Eller could meet in the finals of the women's Trans-Mississippi golf tournament.

Both Miss McIntire and Miss Eller won second round matches yesterday and emerged as heavy favorites in their separate brackets.

They moved into quarter-final play today. Finals are set Saturday.

'M' Works Hard on Pass Defense

Elliott Devotes Drills Against Aerial Attacks

Wolverine Secondary Showed Big Weakness Last Season

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Pass defense, one of the major weaknesses of last year's Michigan football team, is getting a thorough testing in preseason practice sessions this year.

Coach Bump Elliott and his youthful staff devoted the majority of yesterday's drills to ironing out flaws in the defense against aerial attack.

"We made a lot of mistakes last year on pass defense," Elliott said. "Our boys were caught flatfooted several times but we hope to eliminate most of those mistakes this year."

Yesterday's morning and afternoon sessions were devoted to giving the first string backfield plenty of work defending against passes. In the first team secondary were Brad Myers, Darrell Harper, Tony Rio and Stan Noskin.

"We're getting to the point now where we can concentrate on the real fine points of pass defense—those important things that can suddenly swing the balance of any game," Elliott said.

Michigan's opponents last year completed more than 44 per cent of their passes against the Wolverines for a net gain of just over 800 yards. Of the 96 passes thrown by opposing teams, 43 of them were completed for an average of better than eight yards per toss.

The Michigan secondary intercepted only seven passes all last year, while Wolverine opponents picked off almost twice as many Michigan throws.

Elliott said pass defense drills will be stepped up even more as the first game against Missouri on Sept. 26 draws nearer.

"So far our first backfield has been getting most of the pass defense work," he said, "but we'll soon increase the pace so at least the first four backfields are thoroughly grounded in the fundamentals of our pass defense system."

Iowa Hopes to Offset Losses With Defense

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Defending champion Iowa's only chance to avert the also-ran class in the Big Ten football race is to develop a strong defense to offset the possible crumbling of a once-brilliant attack.

So says coach Forest Evashevski, who is starting his eighth Hawkeye season hard hit by backfield losses on his fancy Rose Bowl championship team.

Evashevski must go with two rookie quarterbacks, a terrific handicap in his swift, quick-starting winged "T" attack, and very little supporting help for two fine halfbacks, Bob Jeter and Ray Jauch.

Iowa's picture changed quickly this year when Mitch Ogiego, the heir apparent to Randy Duncan's quarterback job, joined the pro ranks and fleet halfback Willie Fleming became ineligible.

This coupled with the graduation of two fine guards, Gary Grouwinkel and Hugh Drake, plus the ineligibility of a promising sophomore quarterback, Ed Trancygier, has left Iowa a question mark in the conference melee.

Evashevski is glum over the quarterback position which apparently will be shared by Olen Treadway, a sparingly used letterman for two seasons, and sophomore Wilburn Hollis, who is a good runner but not much of a passer.

Says Evashevski:

"Treadway is a great leaders and a fair short passer. But he is lightly built and has trouble spotting his receivers. Hollis could be a great football player some day, but I'm not sure quarterback is his spot."

The Hawkeyes had an 8-1-1 mark last season, including a 38-12 Rose Bowl triumph over California.

Excepting quarterback, Iowa's first team should prove extremely capable although Evashevski desires considerable improvement at guards where lettermen Jerry Novack and Don Shipanik will be starters.

Rangers Start Training

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP)—A total of 23 regulars and hopefuls took part in Wednesday's opening workouts for the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League as Coach Phil Watson had goalies Gump Worsley and Marcel Paille in action.

SAN FRANCISCO — Of the 48 pinchhit home runs in the history of the NL, 12 of them were off the bats of Giants.

Browns Send Brewster to Steelers

By The Associated Press

Famous last words:

"I'm retiring from pro football. I want to devote more time to my sporting goods business in Florida." —Darrel (Pete) Brewster, March 1959.

That briefly, was how the offensive end told Cleveland coach Paul Brown that he was quitting the National Football League.

"He has our best wishes for success in his new venture," Brown said. "If he should change his mind about retirement, the door will be open for his return."

The door opened yesterday.

Brewster went in the front and came out the back—the property of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Brewster's return was welcomed by Pittsburgh coach Buddy Parker. The Steelers, nursing injuries to star ends Jimmy Orr and Jack McClairen, contacted Brown.

The former Purdue standout played with the Browns from 1952 through last season and led the club in pass receiving in the '54-'55-'56 and '57 seasons. He slipped to only 16 receptions last year, but the Cleveland passing attack went downhill, too.

The 6-foot-4 Brewster, who was the Brown's starting left end, is 29 and should prove an excellent target for Steelers' quarterback Bobby Layne if Pittsburgh can sign him.

Meanwhile the defending champion Baltimore Colts placed offensive halfbacks Curley Johnson and Fred Burket on waivers, trimming the roster to 40, five over the maximum allowed during the season.

George Halas, still attempting to decide on a quarterback for his powerful Chicago Bears, named Ed Brown to guide the attack in Friday night's exhibition against the New York Giants. Zeke Bratkowski started last week.

A couple of rookie halfbacks also are going to get a chance to impress in weekend exhibitions. The Green Bay Packers will start Alex Hawkins of South Carolina against the Washington Redskins, and the Steelers will open with Dewey Bohling of Hardin-Simmons against the Chicago Cardinals.

Philadelphia Eagles announced today that end Pete Retzlaff, one of the National Football League's best pass catchers, will be lost to the club for an indefinite period because of a broken bone in his left foreleg.

Moon Stars for Dodgers, Avila Sparks Milwaukee

LA, Braves Win Big Games

One game, or one play. Even one hit. That may be the difference, the turning point in the National League's three-way scrap for the pennant. And that one game, that one play or that one hit may have been put away last night.

The big game went to Don Drysdale, the right-hander who had lost six in a row and was on the spot in any hopes for a flag for Los Angeles. He junked the slump with his first victory in a month, getting it with a three-hitter that beat Philadelphia 1-0.

The big play was Wally Moon's, giving Drysdale and the Dodgers their run. He did it with nervy base-running, moving from first to second on a foul pop — and then scoring on Gil Hodges' single.

The big hit was Bobby Avila's — a grand-slam home run in the ninth that boosted Milwaukee's Braves, pressing for a winning streak, to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis after they had been held to two hits for eight innings.

That left the Braves, who have won four in a row for the first time in more than a month, and the Dodgers in a tie for second, three games behind San Francisco. The Giants kept that edge by whipping Pittsburgh 7-2.

Cincinnati beat the Chicago Cubs twice, winning the opener 4-2 in 10 innings and the nightcap, held to five innings because of darkness, 7-2.

Drysdale (16-12) came through with his first complete game in seven starts since his last victory (Aug. 8). He was tagged for triples by Joe Koppe and Ed Bouchee, and hit three batters, but he didn't walk a man and struck out 11.

His one jam came in the seventh, when an error and two hit batters loaded the bases with two out. But Drysdale, leading the majors with 222 strikeouts, then fanned Carl Sawatski.

Moon's run came in the sixth. He opened with a single and made his move when Norm Larker, trying to bunt, popped foul. Sawatski shoved past plate umpire Tony Venzon and made a diving stab of the ball. Before the Phils' catcher could get up, Moon was off, just beating Sawatski's throw to get into scoring position for Hodges' single.

Taylor Phillips (1-6) lost it, as the Phils dropped their 11th in a row at the Coliseum, 10 this season.

Avila's shot, his third homerun gave Warren Spahn his 19th victoy, third in a row. Ernie Broglio (6-12) had held the Braves hitless from Joe Adcock's 23rd home run in the second inning until Adcock singled leading off the ninth. Then Johnny Logan and Del Crandall singled, loading the bases with one out and setting up Avila's third major league slam.

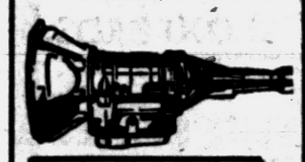

The Cards scored in the second when Ken Boyer singled his hit streak to 26 games, longest of the season, and Broglio lined a two-run single after an intentional walk loaded the bases. They finished with 10 hits, scoring again in the eighth on three singles, off Spahn, who collected his 265th career victory.

The Giants made it with three runs in the fifth on one hit. Two scored as the Pirates missed on a doubleplay try — with Willie Mays scampering home from second as first baseman Dick Stuart argued the call. Jack Sanford 13-12, who had lost three in a row, won it with Stu Miller's hitless two-innig mopup. Harvey Haddix (11-11) was the loser, giving up Mays' 27th homer for a 2-0 Giant lead in the third.

World Record Set While 3 Horses Collide

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bullet Hanover paced to a world record of 1:57 flat for 2-year-olds Wednesday in the first heat of the $50,000 Fox Stake at the Indiana State Fairgrounds.

The record heat was marred by a three-horse pileup. It involved Sampson Direct, driven by Lou Hubert Jr., Merrie Adios, driven by John Patterson, and Countess Adios, driven by Del Miller.

The drivers were able to walk away from the Fairgrounds Hospital after a checkup and none of the horses appeared to be seriously hurt.

BROWNS' PLUM—The Cleveland Browns, who always show very little in exhibition play and then suddenly come to life in the regular season, will send Milt Plum to the firing line at quarterback against the Detroit Lions Sunday in Briggs Stadium. Plum took over the duties from Jim Ninowski as the Browns have won only once in four exhibition games thus far.

2 Clubs Renew Rivalry Sunday on Briggs Turf

Milt Plum to Guide Attack of Improving Cleveland Pros

The Detroit Lions have had their warning — the Cleveland Browns are getting better.

The Browns sent their advance man to Detroit to relay news from the club's Hiram College training camp down in Ohio. Harold Sauerbrei told the weekly meeting of the Detroit sportscasters:

"Things are looking up for the Browns. We're not the lousy club the Lions defeated a few weeks ago in Akron."

All this probably doesn't scare the Detroit club, since the Lions have run all over the Browns ever since the two teams first got together on the football field. The series now stands at 16-4-1 in Detroit's favor, counting pre-season and championship games as well as regular season play.

The two clubs renew their rivalry Sunday afternoon at Briggs stadium. It will be the next-to-last pre-season game for both clubs.

The Lions, heartened by their victory last week over the Philadelphia Eagles, will be facing a club that has lost three out of four in the exhibition season.

But the Browns have indicated marked improvement in the last couple of weeks, under the direction of Milt Plum. The former Penn State star nudged ex-Michigan starter Jim Ninowski out of the starting quarterback job.

Plum moved the Browns' offense well in the second half against San Francisco two weeks ago, but the Browns bowed 17-14. Last week against Los Angeles, Plum got the Cleveland offense rolling quickly and the Browns beat the Rams 27-24:

"Jim Brown has started to run well again and our other backs and ends are as fast as you can find," said the Cleveland spokesman. "The defensive unit hasn't jelled yet (the Browns have yielded 84 points in four games) but the offensive line is looking better."

Sauerbrei said rookie Fran O'Brien of Michigan State has been doing well at offensive right tackle, a trouble spot since regular Mike McCormack came down with leg trouble early in the pre-season drills. Willie Davis has been moved from defensive end to offensive tackle to help plug the gap.

Kids' Day in Rochester

Rochester Kiwanians are readying their sixth annual Kids' Day, set for Saturday, Sept. 19, according to President Milton Weaver.

Kids' Day last year took the form of a Junior Olympics, and it brought more than 450 gleeful youngsters up to and including 12-year-olds to Halbach Field and the Kiwanis Boys' and Girls' Committee is shooting for even greater participation, this year, Committee head Frank Bogart reported.

In addition to track and field events, the 1958 event was featured by about 150 children vieing for hula hoop prizes—at a time when this sport was at its peak.

Roger Weymouth is co-chairman of the Boys' and Girls' Committee. Other members planning the Junior Olympics are Robert Kieffer, Richard McGowan (1958 chairman), Carl Queck, Arthur Mitchell, and the Rev. Douglas Parker.

Teeing Off

By BILL CORNWELL

This is the time of year when club golf championships are being decided at private courses throughout Oakland County area and there has been a switch from match play to medal by a few scattered clubs.

Indianwood and Franklin Hills are among the clubs making the change to medal play while Tam O'Shanter is one of those retaining head-to-head combat.

A new men's champion has been crowned at Indianwood. He's Tom Carmichael and he won the championship for the first time in his young career with a 54-hole medal total of 223 on steady rounds of 74-74-75.

Owen Davis, still trying to win his first crown, took second place with 224 after missing a four-foot putt for an eagle three on the 18th green. Defending champ Leo Daigle came next at 227.

Mrs. Matt Sanford won the women's title at Indianwood with a 54-hole medal score of 253 on rounds of 85-84-84. Mrs. Bruce Overby was runnerup for the 2nd straight year with 262, followed by Mrs. Bob Erdelon, last year's winner, at 269.

Harold Finney held on to his title at Tam O'Shanter by defeating Herman Fishman, 1 up, 37 holes, in the match play final. One extra hole was also needed for Mrs. Herman Kaufman to win her 1st title, 1 up, 19 holes, at the expense of Mrs. Albert Carnick.

Finney successfully defended his honors with a regulation par four on the 1st extra hole as Fishman overdrove the green. Mrs. Carnick hit her approach shot into a sand trap, then Mrs. Kaufman captured laurels by two-putting the 1st green for a routine par.

John Miles repeated as men's champion at Oakland Hills Country Club with an 8-6 rout of 18-year-old Mike Voss. Mrs. F. L. Thompson won the women's crown at medal play with rounds of 81-85-83—249.

It was strictly an all-family affair in the match play final at Meadowbrook with Tony and Tommy Skover, 1959 Pine Lake Invitational winners, fighting for the title. Father Tony defeated son Tommy, 4-2.

SHORT PUTTS

Efforts to hold an annual Michigan PGA match play tournament in addition to the medal play tourney may be made at the fall meeting of the State PGA in Detroit.

Tam O'Shanter's annual Pro-Member golf tournament will be held next Wednesday, Sept. 16.

The Michigan Publinx Golf Association will hold its final handicap tourney of the year Sunday at Bob-O-Link.

Lionel Hebert was philosophical after his brother Jay tied him for the 1st round lead in this year's Buick Open at Warwick Hills. "I'm glad Jay's up there," he said. "I know I'll be able to borrow money if I miss."

Khrushchev Hits Big Time

U.S. Tour Is Diplomatic Broadway

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP News Analyst

The man who heads the world's most spectacular road show had to hint, wheedle and threaten for more than two years before he achieved the peak of his ambition as a showman: a booking fr a United States tour.

Now that he has achieved it, the tour starting next week likely will prove the supreme test of Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev's career as a traveling salesman for the Soviet brand of communism.

Until about four years ago the world outside the U.S.S.R. was a blank to Khrushchev. Since then he has become an exuberant traveler. But he never takes a trip without specific purposes in mind.

Khrushchev began hinting in June 1957 that he would like to visit the United States. The hints received scant attention. He tried again. On New Year's Day, 1958, he toasted President Eisenhower, saying: "If the Soviet Union and the United States could get together and reach agreement, most of the world's problems would be solved."

WAS WILLING

Next day the whole Soviet press took up the cry for a meeting between the Soviet Premier and the American President. Hints multiplied thereafter. Khrushchev indicated he was willing and eager to visit the United States for a summit meeting. Again the hints got nowhere.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon's tour of the Soviet Union this summer contributed to a noticeable thaw in Soviet-American relations. Khrushchev finally got the invitation he had wanted so badly. And the question arose: Why was Khrushchev so eager?

Even before preparations were complete for his trip, there were signs that the impending visit was causing aggravations among members of the North Atlantic Alliance. Many were not too sure the Big Two might not, as Khrushchev phrased it, get together and solve the world's problems without reference to smaller nations. Even President Eisenhower's trip to Europe fell short of putting all these nagging fears at rest.

MR. K. HAD TROUBLE

Khrushchev himself had some troubles in that respect. The Red Chinese were unlikely to be enthusiastic about the U. S.-Soviet exchange. Already Red Chinese interference had squelched one attempt at a summit meeting in 1958 on the Middle East crisis. And the Communist East Germans might also be nervous. Khrushchev had to reassure both, just as President Eisenhower was intent on reassuring the Western Allies.

But in any event the bouncy Khrushchev seemed to look forward with relish to his prospective new adventures as communism's No. 1 tourist.

Khrushchev would be able to check personally on reports he had received about the United States from official tourists who had preceded him. In addition, he might count on his trip to help remove some of the public ostracism of Soviet communism in the West and make the Kremlin more respectable.

KNOWS CROWDS

The Soviet boss is a practiced hand with crowds by now. He has come a long way since his first bungling sorties.

Khrushchev's first sally beyond the Iron Curtain was to Communist Yugoslavia in the spring of 1955, with Nikolai Bulganin, the premier he later dumped, in tow. It was an astonishing mission, undertaken, said Khrushchev, "with pure heart and open soul" to beg pardon from Yugoslavia's maverick Red, Tito, for the abuse Stalin had heaped on him for defying Moscow. The love feast was spectacular. But it did not survive the 1956 Hungarian uprising. Moscow placed much of the blame for that on Tito's example.

Khrushchev's first trip outside the Red orbit came in the summer of 1955. The era of smiles bought a summit meeting in Geneva, but the "spirit of Geneva" soon faded before the chill wind of a newly toughened Soviet policy.

In the winter of 1955, Khrushchev, with Bulganin respectfully in the background, roared through Burma and India, scattering insults all the way.

Thereafter Khrushchev was on the go frequently: to satellite Communist countries to deal with malcontents; to Finland, where he got little but a cool reception; to Britain, where suave British politicians outfinessed and enraged him.

VISITS RED CAPITALS

It was nothing any more for Khrushchev to make sudden, unannounced trips to Communist capitals for his own political purposes: to Prague, Warsaw, Sofia, Budapest, Tirana and to Red China's Peiping. It was far more than junketing.

On his last trip to Peiping, Khrushchev apparently received a jolt. He had expressed willingness in mid-1958 for a summit conference on the dangerous Middle East crisis. After he returned from Peiping, looking gray and shaken, he reversed himself and rejected the idea of such a meeting.

But Khrushchev bounced back quickly and was off to Poland for another whirlwind tour, even then planning on a trip to America. If Peiping didn't like it, Khrushchev didn't seem to care too much any more. He was anxious to get the show on the road again.

But there have been signs that even the fabulous energy of the Soviet leader has its limits. He has some kind of kidney or liver ailment and has eased off noticeably on his drinking—even, indeed, attempting at the same time to put all the rest of the Soviet Union on the wagon. He has spells of weakness and dizziness, and sometimes he seems to speak a little incoherently.

Yet Khrushchev seems to be the last to want to admit that he's been wearing down. He just wants to go, go, go.

Tomorrow: Reorganizer of the World.

Horseradish Kayos Woman 30 Minutes

New York's 91.9 Heat Threatens 1872 Mark

NEW YORK (AP)—The September heat wave Wednesday nearly melted an 87-year-old record for the date in New York City.

At 12:50 p.m. the mercury soared to 91.9, only a tenth of a degree lower than on Sept. 9, 1872.

Expects Brickbats

Keenan Wynn Defends Book About His Father

By JOE FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Keenan Wynn, son of the famous old comedian, has written a book about "life with father" and expects some brickbats when it's published this fall.

"My book is not irreverent," Keenan insisted. "It's factual and true. The fact that my father approved it is enough for me.

"I take just as much of a slam at myself as I do at him," the mustachoed Keenan said.

"But, I see that I was wrong in my judgment of him years ago.

"The book was not written on a psychiatrist's couch," he explained. "It's not 'poor me, I'm Ed Wynn's son.'

"However, it was rough being his boy. People still come up to me and say 'How's your father?' They mean well but when it happens 20 times at a luncheon it's like scraping fingernails on a blackboard.

IT'S TOUGH FOR SONS

"In essence, they mean 'You should be that good.' There have been few sons of famous stars who survived that.

"In 1936, I was 'Ed Wynn's son' then 11 years later, I was 'Keenan Wynn' and by 1955 nobody understood the connection between us," he outlined.

"But after my father and I did 'Requiem for a Heavyweight' on TV in 1956, I was 'Ed Wynn's son' again. Now, it's enjoyable though. How many people can work with their father?"

Keenan, now costarring with former Olympic decathlon champ Bob Mathias in "Troubleshooters" on NBC-TV, said readers of his "Ed Wynn's Son" should expect sensationalism.

"I tell the readers in a page at the beginning of the story that 'I want you to understand that the things I recount to you in the book are as they seemed to be at the time.'

"I say that because my opinions of the events are different now," the 43-year-old actor added. "Some of them are laughable to me now. But, on the other hand, I think some are very important."

Keenan claimed the book isn't a wholesale attack on his dad.

"It's too easy to say I'm critical of him," Keenan explained. "All I do is recall emotions.

PLENTY OF CANDOR

"I've written of situations that we went through together that I think could have been accomplished easier."

When asked if he and his dad ceased speaking to each other for a number of years, Wynn answered negatively and with candor.

"I made sure to keep speaking to him so I could get money from him when I needed it," he confessed. "I'm honest about it. In fact, one of the things I resented was the fact I had to ask him for money. I was ashamed of it."

Admitting the possibility of criticism once his story hits the book stands, Keenan took a defensive pose.

"The kind of people who will call me a louse are those who did the same thing but won't admit it," he concluded.

CAMERA ANGLES

Dancer Gene Kelly has been signed to play the dramatic role of a newspaperman covering the world famous "monkey trial" about a teacher who taught the theory of evolution. Spencer Tracy and Fredric March head the cast. . . . Terry Moore has the feminine lead opposite Mickey Rooney in "Platinum High School". . . . Jerry Lewis takes over for Billy Gray at the latter's Hollywood night club for four days this week.

Alternative Tax Program Sought

Rep. Kowalski Seeks Bipartisan Group for Replacing Use Measure

LANSING (AP)—A Democratic legislative leader Wednesday called for bipartisan preparation of an alternative tax program to replace Michigan's new use tax law if it is ruled unconstitutional.

Rep. Joseph J. Kowalski (D-Detroit), House Democratic leader, called for meetings among Democrats and Republicans in both the House and Senate to map out a substitute plan.

"It has been estimated that from four to six weeks would be required for the Supreme Court to make a final ruling on the use (sales) tax, Kowalski said in a letter to Sen. Clyde H. Geerlings (R - Holland), chairman of the Senate Taxation Committee.

"If regular meetings were held during that period of time," he said "I'm sure that some new tax measure could be prepared for immediately.

By having a substitute program ready if the court throws out the use tax bill, he said, the state "could avoid any delay at a time when Michigan cannot afford delay."

Charles C. Lockwood, Detroit attorney, filed a suit last week asking the State Supreme Court to throw out the penny tax increase as unconstitutional. He contended it violated the three-cent ceiling the state constitution sets on the sales tax.

Insurance Plans to Rate Drivers

Companies File With State; 'No Accidents' Record to Cost Less

LANSING (AP) — Accident-free drivers will pay less for their insurance under a plan filed with the state insurance department.

The department also received filings of new low-cost package policies for drivers.

The new plans were filed by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the National Automobile Underwriters Assn. on behalf of more than 200 affiliated companies. The Travelers Insurance group also filed for three independent companies.

The new plans will become effective Oct. 1.

Under the safe driver insurance rating plan, motorists will pay rates based on their own driving record.

Under one plan, drivers who have not been involved in an accident or convicted of a violation in over three years would receive a 20 per cent discount. Under another, they would be eligible for a 30 per cent discount for a perfect record over five years.

Motorists with bad driving records would not be eligible for a discount when they receive too many violation points. In some cases, drivers with bad records would be charged above the basic rates.

The insurance companies will check the secretary of state's office for driving records of motorists coming under the plan.

The safe driver plan will be offered to motorists taking out new policies and, in some cases, also can apply to family automobile insurance policies in force since 1956.

Savings of from 10 to 20 per cent will be possible under the new package plan, the insurance department said, through combining several coverages into one package. Handling expenses also will be reduced by the use of new electronic equipment to issue and service the policies.

The cost of the new policies will depend on the coverage package selected by the motorist, use of the car, age of the operator and section of the state, the department said.

Race Track Election Ordered for Fenton

FLINT (AP) — A special election Nov. 9 on a proposed rezoning ordinance to permit horse racing in Fenton Township near here was ordered by the Township Board last night.

A petition bearing 523 signatures was submitted to the board asking the referendum.

Horse racing sponsors propose to build a track within 200 acres of land along the U.S. 23 expressway in an unincorporated portion of the township.

Only voters of the unincorporated area will take part in the referendum. Residents of Fenton and Linden will be excluded.

Louisville Integrates Its Teaching Staffs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ten Negro teachers have been assigned to formerly all-white faculties in the first integration of city teaching staffs.

School Superintendent Omer Carmichael said the 10 Negroes were "carefully selected in terms of professional competence, personal qualities."

Student bodies have been integrated here since 1956.

West Germans Say Kirichenko in Line to Succeed Khrushchev If and When

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA) — Nikita Khrushchev's visit to America is seen in Europe as the Premier's probable swan song. Intelligence officers in Bonn, Paris and London already are naming "Khrushchev's successor."

I was told in Bonn that the likely candidate is a hard-bitten 51-year-old Ukrainian, Alexei I. Kirichenko, Khrushchev's deputy as Communist Party leader.

Paris and London have nominated Frol R. Kozlov, the smooth, smiling deputy premier, who recently toured the United States.

West German intelligence, which is far better informed on the Russians than the British or French, thinks Khrushchev will in the not too distant future be retired "promoted" to a ceremonial job or fall victim of his natural ailments.

The Germans have access to sources in Communist East Germany. Too, they have closer dealings with the Russians than any other Western nation.

GERMAN GUESSES

If the West Germans have guessed right, this fact is of powerful significance to the West. This is why:

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan reportedly first persuaded President Eisenhower that Khrushchev—like Stalin in his day—was "the man" in Russia, the only one capable of negotiating for peace.

This view has since been promoted by several politicians, including Vice President Richard M. Nixon, following trips to Russia.

Kirichenko has had no contact with the West and thus is immune to any influences which might have been felt by Kozlov, Anastas Mikoyan or Khrushchev.

I learned during my recent swing through Western Europe that Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and France's President Charles de Gaulle agree the power struggle is still on in the Kremlin and Khrushchev is far from a free agent. Adenauer must have spelled this out to Ike during the latter's visit to Bonn.

ALEXEI I. KIRICHENKO
Like the Boss he's a party man.

According to West German intelligence, Khrushchev's position is such that he is in little danger of being purged, although he has taken domestic and foreign positions identical with those of two leaders he himself purged—Georgi Malenkov and Lavrenti Beria.

They see the struggle as centering on who shall succeed Khrushchev when Nikita moves on.

Khrushchev is making a great hurried effort to accomplish within his lifetime two ambitions in which Stalin failed: to destroy the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to make all of Germany a Red-dominated satellite.

He also yearns to improve the lot of the Russian people. This is Bonn's interpretation of the Soviet Premier's statements.

After a round of domestic and international victories he might be persuaded to relinquish power, possibly to replace Klementi Voroshilov as ceremonial President of Russia.

FIGHT WOULD BEGIN

Khrushchev is 66, has high blood pressure and a kidney ailment. Although he is able to put on energetic spurts for a few hours at a time, he slows down to a crawl when out of the limelight.

Should Khrushchev die or otherwise become inactive, the fight for succession would begin in earnest. China's Mao Tse-tung is certain to move in powerfully to influence the choice.

The West Germans believe the winner would be the stocky, taciturn Kirichenko, who has none of Kozlov's slick facade in public but who as director of the party machine, next to Khrushchev, is the most powerful man in Russia.

A Ukrainian like his boss, Kirichenko has a record of unswerving loyalty to Khrushchev. It was he who strode to the podium at the last party congress, wagged his finger at the once-great Vyacheslav Molotov, Georgi Malenkov, Nikolai Zhukov, and denounced them as: "contemptible dogmatics, sitting up to their ears in conservatism."

Kirichenko is described by those who have seen him as cold and impersonal. He makes no effort to impress people or make friends. He shows little interest in foreign affairs.

He was born in January, 1908, in the Ukrainian village of Chernobaev. His father was a skilled railroad worker. Kirichenko studied to become a tractor mechanic at the Kherson Tractor School, but he never worked at this trade.

At 17 he joined the Young Communist League and he has been a Red bureaucrat ever since.

In the 1930s he aided Khrushchev in the Ukrainian blood purges. He also worked closely with Khrushchev during the war. He has never been far behind the Boss.

A German official said: "The State Department has better see to it that Khrushchev brings along Kirichenko to America. He needs to be impressed with America's might, too."

Some quarters in Bonn thought it was even possible that the big shift in Moscow would occur before President Eisenhower gets around to returning Khrushchev's visit.

Washington still seems to believe the London line that Kozlov has the inside tract. Kozlov is an able administrator—but Malenkov found to his sorrow that able administrators cut no ice when they don't control the party.

Space Capsule Awaits Check

Scientists Are Eager to Examine the Vehicle for Project Information

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Scientists waited anxiously today to examine a one-ton model space capsule that survived a fiery re-entry through the earth's atmosphere.

The study is expected to provide valuable information for Project Mercury—the U.S. program designed to put a man in orbit within the next two years.

The capsule—the same size and shape as the vehicle which will be used on the first manned orbit—was being rushed to Puerto Rico early today by the Navy destroyer that plucked it from the Atlantic Wednesday northeast of the West Indies island of Antigua.

PLANE READY

An Air Force plane was ready to fly the capsule to Cape Canaveral late today or early Friday. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration may show it to newsmen after a preliminary study.

Later, the funnel-shaped capsule will be shipped to Langley Air Force Base, Va., for more detailed examination.

AA Slates Conference

FLINT (AP)—Alcoholics Anonymous will hold a state confrence here Sept. 25-27. Delegates from Michigan and five other states and Canada are expected to attend.

More than 1,000 feet of metal pipe cable and conduit are required in the construction of an average small residence built in the United States today.

In Little Rock Bombings

Segregationist Leader, Truck Driver Charged

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A segregationist leader and a truck driver were charged today with three Labor Day bombings linked with Little Rock's school integration battle.

The segregationist was E. A. Lauderdale Sr., a 48-year-old lumber dealer. His arrest followed that of J. D. Sims, a 35-year-old truck driver.

Each was held in jail under $50,000 bond on charges of destroying property with explosives, a felony which could mean as much as five years imprisonment and a $500 fine for each. Their arraignments were set for this morning.

A second truck driver, Jessie R. Perry, was also arrested. No charges were filed against him but police continued to question him throughout the night.

ACTIVE IN COUNCIL

Lauderdale long has been active in the segregationist Capital Citizens Council. He was twice defeated for the city manager board, once in a close race with Werner C. Knoop, now mayor.

Knoop's office was one of three places bombed Monday night. The others were the school board's administrative building and Fire Chief Gann Nalley's official car. The car was blown up in Nalley's driveway as he and his family were asleep.

Police and the FBI had moved in the closest secrecy. Sims' arrest came Tuesday afternoon but it was not disclosed until his attorney sought his release late Wednesday through habeas corpus proceedings.

Commie Troops Attack in Laos

Losses Not Announced; Little Nation Awaiting U.N. Observers

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Communist North Viet Nam troops, crossed into Laos and attacked three army posts in Phong Saly province, the army said today. Government troops suffered losses but the number was not announced.

A communique said the three posts were clustered 20 miles inside the Laos border directly west of Dien Bien Phu, where the French army made its last bloody stand during the Indochinese war in 1954.

The attacks in the far northern province occurred Tuesday night but the news was not received at Vientiane army headquarters until today, a spokesman said. Communications difficulties have plagued government troops since the beginning of the fighting.

Preparations are being made to receive the first of 60 U.N. observers.

Foreign diplomatic sources predicted the observers will be generally ineffective as a fact-finding body but probably will serve as a damper upon outside Communist interference.

Almost No Gain Since 1950

Prosperity Is an Illusion

By FAYE HENLE
NEA Feature Writer

Can you fall for headlines proclaiming the consumer is a trillionaire? I hope not.

Get down to cold statistics. Pretend the average consumer, with his assets and liabilities, is a company balance sheet. Do this and I've news that will shock you.

If you think that you are the average consumers, your total net worth at the end of last year was just about $40 greater than it was in 1950. It rose to $5,860 from $5,820 if we adjust for inflation.

How can I offer such fact as the truth? Here's how:

Periodically the National Consumer Finance Assn. compiles a consumer balance sheet. Its figures are derived from government sources and tell how much we owe, how much we own in terms of cash savings, corporate and govpliances, mortgages and installment debt and such.

I've taken these figures and made two adjustments, one for the increase in population 1950-58, an increase of about 25.3 million people, and second for the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar in that period, a drop of about 17 cents per dollar. This is how I arrive at a conclusion I urge you to heed. Because families are growing larger, which I heartily favor, and because your dollar buys less, a painful reality, we are hardly better off today than we were eight years ago.

Averages, of course, are misleading. A wide segment of the population has seen its income rise substantially and thus is better off despite higher prices. For those less fortunate, living is more difficult.

What else do these figures show?

Equally startling to me, the fact that our equity in nonfarm homes has not increased sharply during the period despite the great boom in home building. Between 1950 and 1958 it has risen but 2.7 billion dollars, if you adjust for the declining value of the dollar. In the same period, mortgage debt has more than doubled showing a rise to 88.5 billion dollars from 37.6 billion.

What this means is pretty clear. We are making the smallest possible down payment on our homes—despite warnings to the contrary. From our viewpoint, to some extent this makes sense.

On the plus side is the fact that as our dollars continue to lose in value, we'll be paying for our homes with cheaper dollars. Not so good is the fact that the high monthly carrying charges this entails often can make our homes burdensome, sometimes restrict other purchases, other pleasures.

And these high monthly charges we appear to carry might offer a partial explanation for our debt ratio. Our installment credit, even before the recent spurt, more than doubled since 1950 while what we owe in a form of personal loans increased by just about one-third.

What about our assets?

The money we have on deposit in the bank and in savings accounts is considerably higher than it was in 1950, but this may be because some of us at the end of last year were still smitten with recession fears. In terms of real purchasing power, our cash and bank deposits in the period rose by 15.8 billion dollars and we had 39 billion more on deposit in Savings and Loan Associations at the end of last year than in 1950.

'Dress Up,' Military Tells Tokyo School Children

TOKYO (AP)—The U. S. military has banned shorts, tight blue jeans and "bizarre haircuts" in its Tokyo area schools.

The 6000th Support Wing which administers U. S. installations laid down the restrictions.

"All trousers of tight-fitting and pegged type including blue jeans of this design, shorts, motorcycle type jackets, boots, trousers without belts."

BUTTON 'EM UP

The directive said "sport shirts may be unbuttoned only at the neck, and when worn with coat or jacket must be tucked in. Prominent sideburns, ducktail and other bizarre haircuts will not be acceptable."

For girls shorts, pedal pushers and slacks are out.

Teachers were directed to send students home for corrective action if they do not conform.

"I'm prepared to swim up to 40 hours if need be," he said as he started toward France.

Three swimmers set out from Cape Gris-Nez near Calais, France, in crossing attempts.

The first to start was Dr. Gumal Shudra of India. Harold Brace, well, 49, Blackpool, England, and Osman Goandour, 34, a Lebanese shopkeeper, followed.

Sees Era of Bigger Sales

Industry to Increase Research

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The research arm of industry is in for a bigger shot of financial vitamins.

Many corporations stepped up their spending on research and development during the recession convinced that new products or new processes were the way to lick it.

This year they're putting even more in the kitty because they see a new era of bigger sales on the way — and research is still one of their best bets to outplay the other fellow.

The billions that industry pours into this endeavour are described by several sources, both Washington officialdom and private research groups.

BUDGETS RISE

The American Management Assn. reports that 582 firms tell it this year's budgeting for research and development is, for the group as a whole, 12 per cent above the money spent in 1958. In that recession year they spent 4 per cent more than in 1957.

Seven out of 10 of the presidents of 175 industrial companies reporting to Dun's Review and Modern Industry say they are stepping up research and development today to maintain a steady flow of new products because they think tomorrow's competition and sales opportunities demand it.

The Department of Commerce sets forth in its statistical abstract of the United States that industry's spending on such endeavors expanded from 430 million dollars in 1945 to 4¼ billion dollars in 1957. And today's outlay from both government and private sources is estimated to be running at 10 billion dollars a year.

PROFESSIONALS SPURT

The U.S. Bureau of the Census further notes that the fastest growing group in its classification of the working population is the professional and technical one.

Why do hard-headed treasurers of corporations approve money for the often nebulous activities of company scientists?

Dr. Philip Marvin, research and development chief for the American Management Assn. has a blunt answer.

"New products tend to produce added profits and often have a greatly magnified multiplying effect on earnings," he says.

"Corporations that are ahead usually stay ahead and it is becoming increasingly difficult for late starters to catch up.

"Those corporations that can capture leadership positions in the use of new technology within specific industries can command their destinies, both with respect to directions taken and profit levels achieved."

Of the 582 companies reporting to the association, 371 or 64 per cent are increasing their spending this year on research and development and 48 are budgeting the same amount as last year.

Looking back in 1958, a year that started poorly for many firms but brightened in the final months, the companies report that as a group their new product spending averaged 3.2 per cent of the sales dollar, compared with 2.8 per cent in 1957.

AUTOS LEADING JUMP

This year the industry increasing its spending the most is the automotive one, up 32 per cent — with the new compact cars doubtless taking a large slice of it.

Next in line are: Instruments, up 30 per cent, electrical machinery 24 per cent and metalworking 22 per cent.

Cagey Collector Really Remained in Paupers' Debt

LONDON (AP)—Robert Glendenning Bunting was the official browbeater of bankrupts.

From the office where he worked as assistant examiner in bankruptcy there issued a stream of harshly worded notes ordering debtors to squeeze out their last resources.

All the time Bunting was deeper in debt than any of them.

He admitted in court Tuesday the money that came in from bankrupts went straight out to pay his own bills.

President Eyes Trip to India

Many Things Stand In Way; State Department Ironing Them Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower is seriously considering making a long-contemplated trip to India following his visit to the Soviet Union this fall, it was learned.

Informed sources said the President has been giving thought for about a year to the possibility of an Indian trip. They said that in the light of his forthcoming Russian journey it is being discussed with a new sense of urgency.

But these sources said last night that no decision has yet been reached. They emphasized that there are several problems and imponderables which could stand in the way of the President's making an Indian stopover as an adjunct to the trip to Russia.

For example, they said, much depends on how the exchange of visits with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev comes off and how the international situation develops, particularly in the Far East.

In the past, the President has not seen how he could go to India without undertaking an extensive Far East itinerary, including visits to half a dozen countries.

But the State Department has said to have come up now with what they consider a feasible plan for a less extensive trip.

Reds Will Purchase Exhibition Products

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet authorities have agreed to purchase some of the items displayed at the American Exhibition, including a coffee maker, television sets, refrigerators, stoves, business machines and a plastic cup making machine.

The purchase price for the items was not disclosed. An exhibition spokesman said he presumed the goods would be studied with an eye to duplicating them.

Not Mary or Jim Jones but Denise Kowalczyk

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — It isn't too unusual when a teacher has two students with the same name, like Jim Jones or Mary Smith.

When Mrs. Charles Hydorn, a Shawmut Hills school kindergarten teacher, greeted her pupils for the first time yesterday she discovered she had two little girls with the same name—Denise Kowalczyk.

The two girls are distant cousins.

Grain Futures in Firm Range

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices moved into a generally firm range in early transactions on the board of trade after a steady to weak opening.

There was a broad variance of opinion as to what the report will show for soybean production. A month ago, the department of agriculture estimated the 1959 yield at about 531 million bushels. Some recent opinion has been that the crop is smaller than that while others expect a figure of 540 million or more.

After about an hour wheat was ⅛ to ½ cents a bushel higher, September $1.91¼; corn ⅛ to ¼ higher, September $1.17¾; oats ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, September new type contract 66⅝; rye ⅜ to ⅞ higher, September $1.31½; soybeans ½ to ¾ higher, September $2.08⅜.

Question Mom of Raped Child

She May Face Charge of Contributing to Child Neglect in Abduction

DETROIT (AP)—The mother of a three-year-old girl who was abducted and raped after being left alone in a car was held for investigation today.

Police in Detroit and Jackson were searching for the child's attacker.

Mrs. Roland said she and a boy friend, Airman Gary Smith, 19, left the child sleeping in the mother's car while they went to get a drink of water at an eastside Detroit park. The woman said the car and Debbie were gone when they returned.

Police searched the Detroit waterfront through the night before the child was found by a Jackson woman.

The missing car was found in a Jackson industrial area. Police said it had been ransacked.

Dr. F. I. VanWagnen, Jackson health director, said yesterday an examination showed the child had been raped.

Mrs. Roland became hysterical when informed her daughter had been assaulted and broke into tears when police attempted to question her further.

Jackson police said Debbie did not recall being attacked, and told them "I slept all the way. I don't know what happened. A nice lady brought me here. When I woke up I got out of the car for a walk and the other lady found me."

The child's story of being driven by a woman differed from that of a woman living in the area where Debbie was found. Police said the woman who found Debbie told them she saw a man park the car, get out and walk away.

Aircraft Club Gets Dealership in Pontiac

The Land-O-Lakes Flying Club, Inc. has been awarded the Champion Aircraft dealership for the southern Michigan area, it has been announced.

Land-O-Lakes general manager Floyd B. Dandison said the dealership provides the Pontiac area with additional aviation facilities to meet the expanding Pontiac Municipal Airport.

"The location of a dealer on the airport was a logical step in this airport's expansion," said Dandison.

Battered Market Starts Upward

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market, badly battered in the past two sessions, moved irregularly higher in moderate trading early today.

Most gains were narrow, some stretching to a point or so. There were plenty of small losers.

The market showed firming tendencies after sinking yesterday to the lowest point since mid-June, thus wiping out the gains of the summer rally.

Motors were fairly active and most made small gains. American Motors, ahead a sizable fraction, touched another new high.

Oils, chemicals, rails, utilities, electronics, airlines and electrical equipments nudged higher. Steels were narrowly mixed as the strike in that industry seemed no nearer settlement.

Raytheon spurted a couple of points following news of a $30,000,000 Navy contract for sonar devices. Glen Alden met demand, rising about a point. Avco rose fractionally. The firm has developed a 50-mile-per-hour seagoing truck.

Wall Street was preoccupied once again with the chance that the Federal Reserve Board may raise the discount rate after the market close, but concern over this has already brought selling in recent sessions.

Gains of about a point were posted by Woolworth, Union Carbide and American Smelting. Small gains were posted for Bethlehem, Ford, Kennecott, American Cyanamid, International Paper, Westinghouse Electric, Royal Dutch and Southern Railway.

Magma Copper fell more than a point. Chrysler eased. Small losses were taken by Jones & Laughlin and United Aircraft.

Chinese Moves in Asia Aid the West

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Feature Writer

The enigmatic Red Chinese, with threats and open aggressions, seem to be pursuing a strange, headlong policy of alienating everyone in their immediate neighborhood.

The question is: Why?

What ultimate service to the cause of communism is being performed by open attacks on Nehru's muscular but neutralist India and threats on the Indian protectorates of Bhutan and Sikkim?

A couple of answers to the question have been advanced, but, as is almost invariable in the case of Red China, the real answer is never apparent until the action is long past.

Answer No. 1 involves China's internal affairs.

REPORT FALSE

The Chinese Communists admitted recently that last year's "great leap forward" was on paper only, that record production in agriculture and industry was based on false statistics.

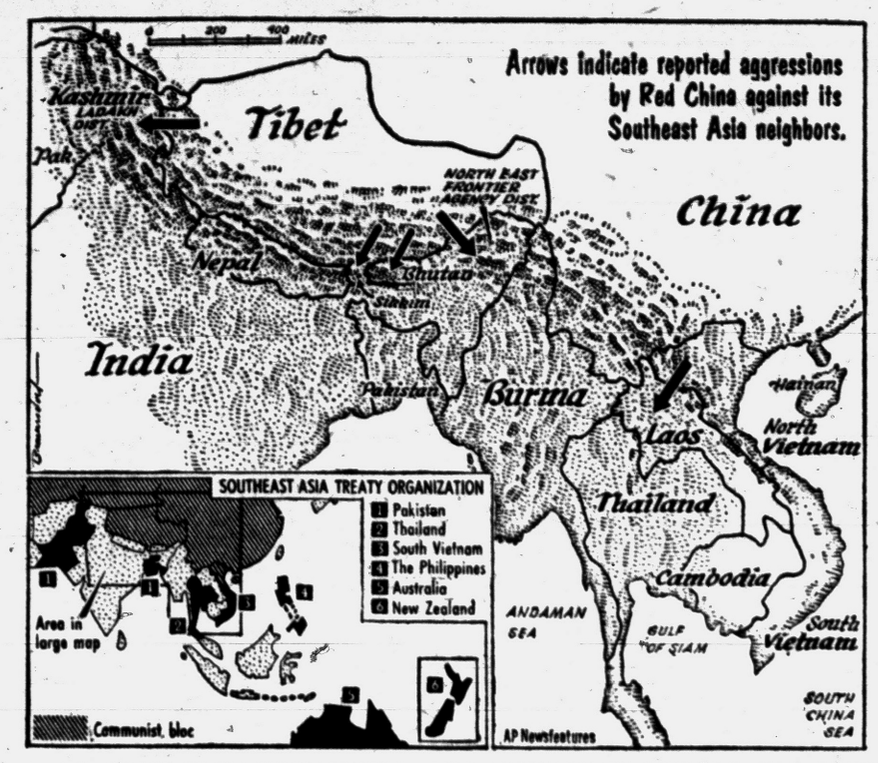

Are the Communist moves in Southeast Asia an effort to take the minds of the Chinese people off these failures and silence reported violent opposition to Mao Tze-Tung's domestic policies?

Answer No. 2 involves China's ally, the Soviet Union.

With Soviet Premier Khrushchev due in the United States next week and President Eisenhower going to Russia later in the year there appears to be a chance that the East-West Cold War may thaw a bit.

Are the Chinese Reds trying to disrupt the potentialities of the exchange of visits by surrounding them with an artificial air of tension, making negotiation difficult?

The Chinese themselves have given reasons for the attacks and threats—reasons which no one acquainted with the illogical turn of the Communist mind really believes.

India Land Feud Is Flaring Again

Bitter Nehru Claims Red China's Acid Note Adds Border Tension

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A bitter exchange of notes between India and Red China was laid before Parliament here today and Prime Minister Nehru said Premier Chou En-lai's latest letter adds to the gravity of the border crisis.

Each nation accused the other of aggression and each demanded that the other withdraw its forces from frontier areas whose ownership is in dispute. India offered one concession — to make the Longju area a temporary no man's land pending negotiation.

RENEW CLAIMS

But both sides renewed their claims to Longju, the isolated post which Red Chinese troops seized nearly two weeks ago in a gunfight with Indian frontier guards. The Chinese warned India against trying to retake it.

The seriousness of the situation is highlighted by Chou's letter, made public in Peiping Wednesday, Nehru told the upper house of Parliament. With bristling finality, Chou rejected Indian protests against what Nehru called aggression in the Longju area.

The Red Chinese leader, even while offering friendly negotiations to settle the border disputes, accused the Indians of aggression and demanded a withdrawal of Indian troops he declared were trespassing on Chinese soil.

"It sometimes seems as if China is acting like some 19th century nation in their pride and arrogance, ignoring the rest of the world," Nehru said.

Car, Garage, School Hit

$250 Damage in Two Fires

Two fires reported early this morning in Pontiac caused damages estimated at more than $250, according to Pontiac firemen.

At 6 a.m. firemen were called to the Elks Temple, 114 Orchard Lake Ave., to extinguish a car fire in the parking lot.

The fire had spread from the car to a nearby garage behind the home of Gardner Lewis, 119 W. Pike St. The car, owned by Lewis, who said he had planned to junk it, was a total loss. Damages on the garage were set at $150.

The blaze was started by a short in wiring of the auto, firemen said. The fire was out in 25 minutes.

Firemen were called to a fire which caused $100 damages to the new wing of Madison Junior High School now under construction.

The blaze was located in insulation near the roof of the unfinished addition. Firemen said it was sparked by a welding torch.

The fire was extinguished within 10 minutes.

Hold 2 Men for Questioning

Police Investigate Pair, Accomplice for Theft, Breaking, Entering

Pontiac Police were holding two men for investigations of an attempted theft and breaking and entering, and planned to question a third suspect today.

Patrolman Raymond V. Solwold said he arrested Arthur Branner, 17, of 45 Earlmoor St., late Wednesday night when he discovered the youth attempting to steal a battery from a car.

Solwold said the car was parked at Gerzanic's Grocery, 750 S. Woodward Ave. It belonged to the store's owner, John Gerzanic.

Branner was booked at the Oakland County Jail for investigation of attempted larceny from an auto.

Earlier last night police arrested Ralph L. Stocker, 29, of 57 W. Beverly St. for investigation of breaking and entering in the nighttime.

Stocker and Robert K. Smith, 24, are suspected of breaking into Haskins' Trailer Rental, 21 N. Paddock St., last May and taking two guns and $50 cash.

Smith already is being held at the Oakland County Jail awaiting trial on another break-in charge. Both men will be questioned today.

Steele Appeal Hearing Is Set

Wants to Build Addition to His Auto Dealership in Sylvan Lake

The Sylvan Lake City Council, at an abbreviated monthly meeting last night, scheduled a public hearing on the appeal of Eddie Steele for permission to build an addition to his auto dealership at 2705 Orchard Lake Rd.

The hearing will be held at 8 p.m. on Sept. 24 in the City Hall.

All persons owning property within 300 feet of the proposed building will be mailed notices of the hearing.

Steele has requested that he be allowed to build an addition to his service department, thus enclosing service stalls at the rear of the building. The council has been studying his appeal for several weeks.

The proposed purchase of a small plot of state-owned land bordered by Telegraph road and the east shore of Sylvan Lake was turned over to the city's Planning Commission for study.

Donald R. MacDonald, city supervisor, presented the Council a report on the Oakland County Board of Supervisors' meetings he attended as Sylvan Lake representative last month.

MacDonald had submitted a Council resolution to the Board asking that the current budget be cut.

Absent from the meeting was City Manager David E. Firestone, who is attending the Michigan Municipal League's annual convention, on Mackinac Island. He will return later this week.

Dealers Sell Cars Briskly in August

DETROIT (UPI)—Dealer stocks of new cars plunged more than 240,000 units during August on the crest of a brisk selling wave for the automobile industry, Ward's Automotive Reports said today.

New car inventories which began at the 965,000 level, ended the month at 725,000, Ward's said, a mere 38 days supply.

A total of 486,600 units were sold during August, 7.5 per cent ahead of July sales, and with General Motors carving out a 50.1 per cent share of the sales market. In the final ten days of August, Ward's said, the selling rate hit 20,800 a day for a total of 187,000 units.

Ward's said a survey of truck manufacturers indicates that September truck completions will increase 54.7 per cent over August and production for the first nine months of the calendar year will reach 909,700 units. Ward's said barring shortages in steel, rubber glass or other vital materials, the truck industry is confident of recording 1,200,000 completions for entire 1959, the highest annual yield since 1955's record of 1,246,609 units.

Bhutan and Sikkim, the Reds claim, are actually part of Tibet, whose semi-autonomous standing as a state was crushed last summer by Chinese armed might.

The Ladakh district of Kashmir, the Communists say, is Chinese territory. They have occupied portions of it since 1957 and have built a road there connecting Tibet with Red Turkestan.

Parts of India's North East Frontier Agency also are Chinese, the Reds say, since China has never accepted the MacMahon border line, drawn in 1914 and approved by the British (for India) and then-independent Tibet.

But, even if the Chinese claims are legitimate, are two small bits of virtually uninhabitable jungle and mountains and two inaccessible states worth losing even tenuous friendships for?

Thus far, the Red actions on India's borders—and in neighboring Laos—appear to have served only the Western cause.

Prime Minister Nehru's curious 10-year honeymoon with the Chinese Communists seems to be over. The Indian leader, for the first time, is beginning to see his erstwhile friends through clear glasses.

The threat also may be forcing India and Pakistan, unfriendly since the partition of 11 years ago, to patch up their quarrels over Kashmir and the Indus River in the interests of joint defense of the sub-continent.

The organization capable of benefiting from the Chinese actions is the South East Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), a defensive South Viet Nam, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Britain.

As the influential India Express put it editorially last week:

"India has opposed military pacts because she is convinced they created tensions where none existed.

"Now China's persistent folly is creating new tension in the region, turning smaller nations' thoughts to security and common and mutual defense.

"This is the time for Uncle Sam to hawk SEATO around once again, and this time he will find many takers."

Sends President Housing Bill

House Tries 3rd Time With Measure Pruned of Some Features

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today sent to President Eisenhower a third-try billion dollar housing bill which carried advance administration approval.

The action came on a loudly shouted voice vote.

Two previous, and more costly, measures were vetoed by the President.

Passed 86-7 by the Senate Wednesday, the new bill was pruned of some of the features found objectionable by the President in the first two vetoed measures.

It omitted 50 million dollars of loans for college classrooms, which Eisenhower criticized as the start of a new program of federal aid to education which he said had no place in housing legislation.

It carried no termination date on authority for the Federal Housing Administration to insure new home mortgage loans. The previous measure limited the authority to one year, which the administration contended would involve housing in election-year politics next session.

And it reduced the impact on the budget of 650 million dollars of slum elimination grants by extending the program over two years instead of one, with 350 millions authorized this year and 300 millions next year.

Sylvan Manor Group to Discuss Halloween

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — The Sylvan Manor Civic Assn. will hold its first fall meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the West Bloomfield Township Hall.

Association President Donovan Wharff says plans will be discussed for the children's Halloween party, children's Christmas party and the adult Christmas dinner dance.

The group plans to have only four meetings a year, with an occasional special meeting when the need arises.

Steel Hour Above Average With Courtroom Drama

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI — A courtoom was suddenly turned into a child psychology laboratory in an unusual climax to an above-average U.S. Steel Hour drama, "The Case of Julia Watson," last night on CBS-TV.

The chief witness in the murder trial story was a 10-year-old emotionally-disturbed boy who refused to support his mother's alibi of self-defense in the shooting of her estranged husband.

The lad was disturbed because (1) His dad was a wife-beating drunkard; (2) His parents were separated; (3) He harbored illusions about his father's worth because his mother didn't want him to know the truth about the man. But he finally realized his father hated him too.

After swiftly setting the bare bones of the plot, the play by Harold Gast kept nudging the viewer's attention to the complexities of the boy's mind and its bearing on the case.

Fine acting jobs were turned in by Peter Lazer as the boy, Alan Baxter, Jeffrey Lynn, and Robert Lansing.

DIALING AND FILING:

A winner on the Price Is Right was offered a seven-day cruise aboard a chartered yacht—provide he named, on the spot, six friends to accompany him. Relative and family were ineligible. I couldn't help feeling that this winner's life will never be the same again.

After two weeks with a Napoleon-type hairdo, Garry Moore returned to his more familiar crewcut last night on I've Got a Secret. The secret: While on a six-week cruise, Garry's wife and other passengers aboard his yacht trimmed his hair. Garry had to let his hair grow long so that his barber could repair the damage.

THE CHANNEL SWIM:

Franchot Tone is the latest addition to the cast of "Body and Soul," the Du Pont Show of the Month set for CBS-TV on Monday, Sept. 28. He'll play the part of a fight promoter . . . Arthur Godfrey, usually seen on CBS, will appear on Rival NBC-TV Sunday, Oct. 25, when he serves as the host of a one-hour salute to the Eleanor Roosevelt Cancer Research Institute.

Mort Sahl, a comedian specializing in irreverence, has landed the starring role in a Pontiac Star Parade special, "The Future Lies Ahead". The revue, on NBC-TV Saturday, Nov. 21, replaces a previously-planned special the Mike Nichols and Elaine May balked at doing.

Nikita Promises Russia Will Pay Sullivan Troupe

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Sullivan said Wednesday a direct complaint to Premier Nikita Khrushchev has brought a promise that his troupe will be paid for performances on its recent tour of Russia.

The television personality said appeals to lower-rung Russian officials for $32,800 in payment had gone unheeded.

"I finally decided that the only way to get any action was to go directly to Mr. Khrushchev," Sullivan said. The result, he said, was a reply from the Soviet ministry of culture indicating that the sum would be paid "very soon."

Jailed Yanks May Be Topic

President Is Likely to Bring Up the Five in His Talks With Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, in his forthcoming talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, probably will bring up the subject of the five Americans still imprisoned in Red China.

Attention was focused on the prisoners again today when the State Department said their release is a matter of urgency and importance.

The department said in a statement it will continue to pursue every feasible course of action to secure the freedom of Robert E. McCann of Altadena, Calif., John T. Downey of New Britain, Conn., Richard G. Fecteau of Lynn, Mass., Hugh F. Redmond Jr. of Yonkers, N.Y., and Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh of Cumberland, Md.

DIPLOMACY FAILS

An Eisenhower-Khrushchev discussion of the prisoners appeared likely since virtually all other diplomatic channels have been exhausted. This county has no direct diplomatic relations with Red China.

The State Department estimates that at least 158 Americans have been jailed or held under house arrest in Red China since the Communists came to power 10 ago.

No U.S. prisoner has been released by the Chinese Reds since Dec. 20, 1955, except at the expiration of sentences imposed by the Communist courts.

McCann, 58, a prominent Tientsin businessman was arrested on spy charges June 14, 1951, and sentenced to 15 years.

CALLED SPIES

Downey, 29, and Fecteau, 32, civilian employes of the Army, have been held on spy charges since Nov. 29, 1952. Downey was sentenced to life, Fecteau to 20 years.

Redmond, 39, who was with an American import-export firm in Shanghai, was arrested April 26, 1951, and sentenced to life on espionage charges.

Replica of Dart Touring Canada

Famous Plane Built by Alexander Graham Bell and Flown in 1909

WASHINGTON — A replica of Canada's most famous airplane, the Silver Dart, has been exhibited throughout the dominion during 1959—the 50th anniversary of its historic flight.

The original Dart was built by Alexander Graham Bell and his companions in the Aerial Experiment Asso.

Piloted by J. A. D. McCurdy, the frail bamboo-and-silk contraption rose above ice-covered Baddeck Bay, Nova Scotia, Feb. 23, 1909, to achieve man's first powered flight in Canada and the first by a Briton anywhere in the Empire.

Dr. Bell's great-grandson, Gilbert M. Grosvenor, an assistant illustrations editor of the National Georgraphic Magazine, reports on a re-enactment of the pioneering hop in the August issue.

His article, entitled "Canada's Winged Victory," tells how the Canadian Royal Air Force built the reproduction, Silver Dust II, and undertook to fly it.

Bucking gusty winds, Wing Commander Paul Hartman took off from the frozen surface of Baddeck Bay on Feb. 23, 1959. Dart II gained altitude and leveled off; then it was thrashed violently upward, tossed from side to side, and after a half-minute flight was forced down.

Among the witnesses was McCurdy, who at 72 is the dean of Canadian aviation. He is a former lieutenant governor of Nova Scotia.

Later everyone from Air Vice Marshal Hugh Campbell to J. A. D. McCurdy agreed that Hartman's airmanship and courage ranked with the RCAF's greatest achievements," Grosvenor wrote.

The plane suffered only minor damage in its abrupt landing. Since then it has been exhibited at Canadian air bases and at public events such as the famed Calgary Stampede.

British Rate Ike's TV Broadcast Fourth

LONDON (AP)—President Eisenhower lost out on British television to a cowboy serial, a play about teenagers and a circus.

The President's joint telecast with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan Aug. 31 shared fourth place with a fiction serial about nurses in a weekly "top ten" poll conducted by the Television Audience Measurement Organization.

A Problem of Names Upsets Wilson Domain

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Slugger came home the other night and told his mother, "I don't want to be called Slugger any more."

We weren't surprised, and yet . . .

WILSON

He's 16 and he's always been "Slugger." Nobody in our family has ever called him anything but "Slugger" or maybe "Slug." I remember so clearly the day he got the name. He was a "preemie," born three weeks early, weighing at birth a grand total of four pounds two ounces.

He spent three weeks in the incubator at Woman's Hospital during which he dropped a couple of ounces before he started fattening up.

So he was a thumping four pounds six ounces or thereabouts when he came home. At that time there was no need for any name for him since about all we called him were the usual unpronounceable endearments.

I had hated the idea of calling him Earl or Junior . . . I had decided if we had a son he should be called Erik.

The Beautiful Wife had agreed to this.

"On my bed of pain," she says, "I changed my mind. I told the hospital he was to be called 'Earl.'"

He was hardly a month old when we had a visit from a good friend, then a Federal agent in New York, now in San Francisco, named George White.

He came to look at the baby—and being a bachelor he was nervous and (for once) at loss for words.

"Hi, Slugger!"

We laughed — and we adopted the name.

One of his names is Patrick.

I had always thought when he grew up that "Pat Wilson" would be a nice name.

"So what name do you want to be called if you give up Slugger?" his mother asked him the other night.

"Earl," he said. His mother thinks that's a compliment to me, but personally, I think he can spell Earl, and he can't spell Patrick.

Since he's not Earl, Jr., we have two Earls in the house, and we are up against the question that so many hundreds of thousands of families have had before.

"We will call you 'Big Earl' and him 'Little Earl,'" a friend was suggesting.

"Thanks for the idea," I said, "but it wouldn't work — Slugger's bigger than I am now . . . He'd have to be 'Big Earl' and I'd have to be 'Little Earl.'"

And "the Old Earl" doesn't seem to hit me right, somehow. Though I'd better face it, that I am.

EARL'S PEARLS: As a means of earning money, work seems to be getting more and more unpopular every day.—H. C. Diefenbach.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Our civil defense system is perfect: the sirens sound once for enemy planes, twice for women drivers. . . . That's earl, brother.

Caesarian Birth to Be Televised in Area Today

Detroit area televiewers will see an historic "first" tonight when the birth of a baby by Caesarean section is shown in its entirety.

First of a series of TV documentaries, "Birth" will be carried on Channel 2 from 9 to 9:30 p.m.

It was televised as it actually happened at the University of Michigan Medical Center through use of a newly-developed instantaneous video-tape mobile unit.

Dr. Tom Evans, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the center performed the televised birth. It was the fourth child delivered to the mother, Mrs. Virginia Boblitt of Ann Arbor, by Caesarean section.

Chlorform was developed for the first time in 1831.

Triangle Works Fine for Birds

'Nurse' Assists Mother Redpoll Through the Nesting Season

WASHINGTON — A small bird has demonstrated that the "eternal triangle" may actually improve family relations—for redpolls.

In Wales, the mate of the male redpoll willingly accepts another female to assist her in building a nest and raising a brood. No bigamy is involved, since only one bird is actually mated and lays eggs.

British naturalist William Condron has studied the redpolls' unique relationships in detail. "I am pretty sure that the second hen—the one I call the nurse—is emotionally involved to some extent because in the courtship period the male displays to her as well as to his mate and then all three will go racing off together on wild courtship flights above the trees."

After courtship, the Welsh redpolls select a nesting site in a young evonifer, often the prickly Sitka spruce. The tree must be about ten feet tall. If it is larger or smaller, the birds consider it unacceptable.

When a suitable group of trees is found, the redpolls establish a nesting colony. Each mated hen is assisted by her "servant" in carrying out domestic duties. Together, they build a nest of twigs, grass, and moss, lined with downs, fur and feathers. The male occasionally "supervises," but does not join in the work himself.

Five or six blue-green eggs, spotted with reddish-brown, are laid. Only the mother bird incubates, but she is waited on hand-and-foot by her mate and spinster companion. While sitting on the eggs, she goes through an elaborate begging ritual — beak open and wings quivering.

When the young hatch, the other female takes over most of the feeding duties. However, she always defers to the mother when they meet at the nest and hands over the food she has. The mated hen then passes it on to her young.

After the nesting season, the triangle breaks up. Redpolls then devote their time to wandering about in large flocks, searching for various plant seeds.

Furnace Is Out in Dowagiac; Slogan Sought

DOWAGIAC (UPI)—This southern Michigan city is looking for a slogan.

George Zarry, editor of the Dowagiac Daily News, started the campaign to find a new slogan for the city.

At one time, Dowagiac was known as "the furnace capital" but the city's only furnace manufacturer has been out of business for many years.

"Obviously there is no point in referring to our community as the former furnace capital," Zarry said in his appeal for a new slogan that is "brief and has impact."

Nikita Will Be Rebuffed by Bells of St. Augustine

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—The bells of St. Augustine Cathedral will toll a rebuff to Nikita Khrushchev every day of the Soviet premier's forthcoming U. S. tour.

The Most Rev. Joseph P. Hurley, Roman Catholic archbishop of St. Augustine, said the tolling at 3 p.m. daily would be in remembrance of martyred victims of the Reds, and in solidarity with Americans who refuse to welcome Khrushchev.

Ground will be broken next month for a 43,000 square foot building in Park Ridge, a suburb northwest of Chicago. The two-story structure will house about 115 employes and will serve as headquarters for corporate officers and corporate research.
