Royal Couple Leaves Canada

ROYALTY'S FAREWELL.—Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker bows in farewell to Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip (background) as they left Ottawa this morning. The royal couple arrives in Virginia this afternoon to start a six day visit in the United States.

Early Arrivals Cause Parking Snafu

Jam Airport to Greet Royal Pair

By PHYLLIS BATTLE
PATRICK HENRY AIRPORT, Va. (INS) — Early arrivals at Patrick Henry Airport to greet Queen Elizabeth II created a parking problem for police today.

Just before noon, an announcement over the public address system said that the early arrivals had beaten the police to the airport and had taken parking areas which were to be reserved for dignitaries.

Fleeting that "you jumped the gun on us," the airport announcer asked the crowd of nearly 200 to please move their autos to a general parking area farther down the road.

Many spectators immediately left to comply with the airport request but their vantage points were reserved by relatives or friends.

From Ottawa Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip took off in sun-soaked fog today for their long-awaited visit to the United States. Their RCAF four-engine C-54 (U.S. DCT) zoomed into the air at 10:30 a.m. (EST) for a fast flight to Jamestown, Va., where they were due to arrive at 1:30 p.m. (EST).

More than 15,000 schoolchildren, screaming goodbyes, and many more thousands of adult Canadian subjects waved reluctant farewells to the Queen and her handsome consort as they headed for the land of the free.

Free, that is, for all but Her Majesty and Prince Philip.

Throughout the next six days in the United States, (the longest state visit they have paid to any single country since Elizabeth became sovereign) they will have approximately six working hours to themselves. These for dressing, nose-powdering and rehearsing speeches.

After a hectic final night in Canada, during which the Queen "received" 1,300 guests over champagne and dined formally with 18 more at the Prime Minister's, she Believes Sputnik May Fall to Fiery End Within Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government scientist says Russia's Sputnik—which has circled the earth for 12 days—may plunge from its orbit and burst into flames within a week.

That view, expressed by Robert Jastrow of the Naval Research Laboratory here, generally runs counter to other Western predictions that the satellite might remain aloft for several months, possibly a year.

Jastrow, a theoretical consultant at the laboratory, also said last night there were indications Sputnik was losing altitude. On a recent pass over Washington, he added, the satellite's altitude was estimated at 147 miles.

Most previous estimates have had the orbit ranging from 170 miles up to about 564 miles.

A report broadcast by Moscow Monday night also indicated Sputnik likely would fall from outer space in a week.

Jastrow said in an interview that electromagnetic forces might possibly explain variations in Sputnik's orbit which have baffled some scientists.

There have been references to an "unknown" force which apparently was causing a slight sideways drag on the sphere, creating difficulty in electronic computations of the orbit.

But in Cambridge, Mass., the director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said he is not yet convinced that any mysterious force is acting on the satellite.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple said: "We don't intend to call on novel forces to account for the variance when we haven't exhausted the standard forces, that is, the combination of gravity and atmospheric drag."

Sputnik apparently still was maintaining its speed of about 18,000 miles an hour as it circled the earth, accompanied by a section of its career rocket and a protective nose cone.

High School Boy Beats 2 Teachers

DOWAGIAC (AP)—A high school junior was charged today with kidnaping and criminally assaulting two teachers, one of whom flunked him in English last term.

Cass County Prosecutor Jerry O'Connor said the student, Robert Ball, 18, freely admitted the attacks last night on Rita Murray, 22, and Judith Snyder, 24.

The prosecutor said the youth in signed formal statements said the attack was directed primarily at Miss Snyder, who flunked him last term. The teacher told police that Ball had tried to date her and had written her letters.

"I just laughed him off. I thought it was just one of those high school crushes," she said.

Ball, a 6-foot, 180-pounder, told the prosecutor, "I had a grudge against her since she flunked me. I've been thinking of ways to get even with her. I didn't even know the name of the other teacher."

Police Chief William C. Wray said the teachers, who had stayed late to correct test papers, left the school at 10:30 p.m. and went to Miss Snyder's car in a parking lot.

The teachers drove into Dowagiac and stopped for a traffic signal. It was then the Murray girl looked in the back of the car and saw Ball on the floor. He pulled a knife and ordered the teachers to drive to a wooded area south of the city.

Wray said the youth then forced the teachers to disrobe, tied them to trees, beat them and raped them.

Hoffa and Beck both are involved in union scandals dug up by the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

Hoffa was elected nearly two weeks ago at the Teamsters convention in Florida to become Beck's successor.

Hoffa's election is being challenged in a court case here on the contention that convention delegates were illegally seated to rig the election.

Hoffa is under a federal court restraining order against taking office. A hearing on the case is due here Monday.

RECEIVER SUGGESTED
Labor circles talked of the possibility of the scandal-tainted Teamsters Union escaping a threatened AFL-CIO suspension order next week if the giant union is placed under a court-appointed receiver.

Well-placed sources in the AFL-CIO said it is unlikely to make much difference to the powerful AFL-CIO Executive Council, when it meets to deal with the Teamsters situation Oct. 24, whether Beck or Hoffa is nominally the union's boss.

Open Relocation of Telegraph to Through Traffic

The State Highway Department announced today that the Telegraph road re-location has been opened for traffic on Pontiac's west side.

The mile-long re-location leads to and from existing Telegraph, swinging west of the present road and passing under the new bridge at the Orchard Lake Road grade separation.

Traffic was passing onto the re-location today by means of small detours, which will be removed by the time the project is completed in mid-December, the highway department said.

The $875,866 re-location and grade separation were designed to separate through traffic from local turning traffic on Pontiac's west side.

Pontiac Marine Among 12 Hurt

Bazooka Rocket Kills 1 at Camp Pendleton, 1st Reported as Pfc. Pearce

A Pontiac Marine was among 12 men injured late Monday by an exploding bazooka rocket which killed another Marine at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Pfc. Donald Keith Pearce, 18, of 543 Franklin Rd., was one of those wounded when the 3.5 inch rocket shell prematurely exploded during a training class.

Identity of the Marine who was killed has been withheld pending notification of his parents.

Capt. William Duncan, 1st Marine Division Public Information Officer, said none of the 12 were in serious condition. All were attached to the 1st Battalion, 1st Marine Division.

Pearce enlisted last October. His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Robinson first heard of the mishap this morning when a radio newscast listed her son as the one killed.

She later called Camp Pendleton and was told he was only injured. She planned to fly there today.

Dowagiac Youth Held

ASSAULT SUSPECT — An 18-year-old Dowagiac high school junior, Robert Ball, stands at his cell door in the city jail where he is being held for allegedly kidnaping and raping two teachers from his high school. Police said the youth abducted the two young teachers at knife point Tuesday night after they finished grading test papers. Ball was taken into custody at his home this morning.

Supervisors OK Survey of Housing for Mentally Ill

The welfare committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors agreed this morning to conduct a survey on the emergency and long-term needs for housing the mentally ill.

The decision came at a meeting of area hospital officials called by Oakland County Probate Judge Arthur E. Moore.

The survey, to be made by experts in the field, will receive the backing of the welfare committee.

Judge Moore outlined the inadequacies of current facilities for housing both emergency and long-term mental cases.

Often there is no place to put a mental patient after he is committed, Judge Moore said.

He cited as an example a despondent mother who attempted to kill herself. Despite her mental illness, there was no place for her, and she was housed in the Oakland County Jail.

"We have numerous small children who have to continue to live with, and help care for, mental patients in their own household," Moore continued.

"We have numerous youths and small children who are not receiving emergency treatment for their mental illness, and this is cruelty," the judge continued.

"I've always contended that

Highway Chief Reveals Commitments to Build Northwestern Project

The Northwestern expressway extension, planned as a means of heading off a Michigan turnpike, now has sabotaged a north-south interstate highway through Pontiac, State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie stated today.

Mackie said he would have preferred to build the interstate highway before Northwestern, but was unable, due to commitments made by the former highway commissioner and agreed to by the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

The Northwestern project is the proposed 35-mile extension of the highway as a $38 million, limited-access expressway from Detroit across southern and western Oakland County to U.S.23 near Fenton.

The interstate highway would roughly parallel U.S. 10 (Woodward Avenue) through Oakland County as a link of a national expressway from the Ohio border to Sault Ste. Marie, via the Mackinac Bridge.

Mackie stated flatly that it was "impossible to program both Oakland expressways in the state's initial five-year highway plan," which was announced two weeks ago.

MEETS IN OFFICE
The highway commissioner's explanation of why a Pontiac expressway was left out of the five-year plan came a few hours before a Pontiac and Oakland County delegation was to meet him at his Lansing office.

The group, organized by the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce, had promised to register complaints because Pontiac and Oakland were the only cities of 50,000 population or more that were left out of Mackie's five-year plan.

Mackie indicated he would assume a "you brought it upon yourself" attitude when meeting with the area delegation.

BETTER SERVED
"Oakland County would have been better served had (the interstate highway) been programmed in the first five-year plan," (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

The Proxy Murder... by Erle Stanley Gardner... Starts Today

A Phone Call, a Letter, a Key, 2 Guns... All Add Up to a Gory Plot

(CHAPTER 1)

Jerry Conway opened the paper to page six. There it was, just as it had been every day for the last week.

It was a half-page ad signed: "PROXY HOLDERS BOARD OF SALVAGE," cleverly written, starting off with a statement which was manifestly true on its face: "You stockholders of the California & Texas Global Development & Exploration Company invested your money because you wanted to make money. You wanted money for yourselves, your children, and your heirs."

"What are you getting?"

"Aside from a stroke of pure luck, what has Jerry Conway done for you? He says he is 'pyramiding.' He says he is 'building.' He says he is laying a 'firm foundation.'"

"That isn't the way the most expert operators in the business look at it."

ENTITLED TO ACTION

"These people say Jerry Conway is laying an egg."

"You're entitled to a run for your money. You're entitled to action. You want to make a profit now, next year, and the year after, not ten years or twenty years from now."

"Mail your proxy to Gifford Farrell, care Proxy Holders Board of Salvage, and then, with Giff Farrell in the saddle, watch things begin to hum."

"Farrell believes in results, not promises. Farrell believes in action, not idle planning, in decisions, not daydreaming, in performing, not hoping."

Conway closed the paper. It was, he admitted to himself, an ad which would get proxies. The ad also hurt.

According to the Proxy Holders Board of Salvage, it was simply a stroke of luck that the C. & T. Global Development & Exploration Company had been right in the middle of the Turkey Ridge pool.

After that pool came in, Jerry Conway could have declared big dividends, pushed up the value of the stock. Instead he had chosen to put the money into other holdings potentially as big as the Turkey Ridge pool.

Gifford Farrell had been a disruptive influence from the start. Finally, there had been a showdown before the Board of Directors, and Farrell had been thrown out. Now, he had started a fight for proxies. He was trying to wrest control of the company away from Conway.

Who was back of Farrell? What money was paying for the ads in the papers? Conway wished he knew. He wished he knew how to strike back.

PRICES WOULD HIKE

Conway's over-all, master plan had to be carried out quietly. The minute he tried to blueprint his plans, he defeated his own purpose. Prices of properties he hoped to acquire would go up beyond all reason.

Conway couldn't explain publicly. He intended to address the stockholders' meeting. He was hoping that the stockholders who were there, and most of the big ones would be, would stand by him.

But what about the smaller stockholders? The ones who had put in a few dollars here, a few dollars there. Stockholders who concededly wanted profits and action.

Would these people stay in line, or would they send their proxies to Farrell?

HE WANTED PROXIES

An analysis of the books showed that there were enough small stockholders to take over control if they acted as a unit. If Farrell could get their proxies, they'd act as a unit.

If, however, Giff Farrell's clever ads didn't get more than sixty per cent of these smaller stockholders and if Conway's personality could hold the larger investors

16 Marines to Stand Court-Martials on Charges of Brutality to Prisoners

Vice Adm. Roscoe F. Good, commander of U.S. Naval forces in Japan, ordered the general courts for Sergeants Robert J. Barbuti, 23, of Schenectady, N.Y., and Adrian A. McLane, 24, of Philadelphia.

The special courts — which cannot hand down as severe sentences as general courts — were ordered for Sergeants Thomas G. Flint, Mobile, Ala.; Bobby W. Phillips, 22, Tyler, Tex.; Maurice J. Beeson, 22, Palo Alto, Calif.; Corporals Richard E. Painter, 21, Independence, Mo.; Sheldon D. Sibell, 21, Nelson, Minn.; James T. Ray, 21, Texas City, Tex.; Glenn W. Fredericks, 21, Anchorage, Alaska; Dayton D. Dierksen, 21, Miller, S. D.;

Pfc. Patrick J. Stalker, 25, San Jose, Calif.; Frank K. Pasternak, 22, Chicago, Mass.; Donald B. Stansell, 21, Little Rock, Ark.; Owen J. Booth, 22, Scranton, Pa.; Privates William T. Youngerman, 20, Dayton, Ohio, and Jose D. L. Medina, 22, Albuquerque, N.M.

The Navy announcement did not list specific charges but said the 16 Marines were to be tried "for offenses charged in connection with complaints of mistreatment made by prisoners" in the brig at the U.S. Navy base at Sasebo, 650 miles west of Tokyo.

The two men facing general courts-martial, Barbuti and McLane, "held positions of responsibility as brig wardens," said the announcement. The 14 other Marines involved were guards at the Sasebo brig.

Charges against the Marines were signed Sept. 12 by their own commander, Maj. Haskell C. Baker of Atlanta, Ga.

Baker's report accused various of the Marines of assaulting two prisoners with a bayonet, ordering a man to wash his face in a toilet, pushing a pencil up a prisoner's nose, burning a prisoner with a cigarette butt, plucking hairs from one man's mustache, wetting men down with hoses and a fire extinguisher, threatening prisoners with a shotgun and pistols, ordering one to bite other personnel and considerable slapping, punching and kicking.

Interviewed at Sasebo, the accused Marines denied brutality and said they were only enforcing discipline. One said the sailors who had complained "were crazy babies, dope fiends and thieves. They couldn't take orders aboard ship. They couldn't take discipline in the brig."

The accused men appealed by dog. They asked me to bite a letter to Rep. James P. S. Devereux (R-Md), retired Marine hero of Wake Island, to investigate their case.

The letter claimed that "the statements that all the witnesses have made against us are greatly exaggerated and untrue." The communication was made public by Frank H. Scolinos, an American civilian attorney in Tokyo who will defend the Marines in their trials.

The Navy said the trials would be held at Sasebo but that dates had not been set. The Marines have been confined to Sasebo since the investigation began last June.

A sailor from Michigan is among the accusers of the Marines facing general court-martial.

Fireman Gordon L. Dell, 19, of Flint, was quoted as saying, "Several times they made me get down on my hands and knees, running around barking like a sergeant. I went over, I didn't bite him but he kicked me."

The Navy also quoted Dell as saying one sergeant banged the heads of Dell and another prisoner together "hard enough to knock us unconscious. One guy burned me on the back of the neck with a cigarette. They just got a kick out of it."

One man "put a .45 between my eyes and asked me if I wanted to die," Dell said. "They figure you're in there to be beat up and stomped on."

Deposits Rise in Hawaii

HONOLULU — At midyear, deposits of financial institutions in Hawaii were estimated at $616,000,000. This was $23,000,000 higher than December 31, 1956, and $69,000,000 above the June 1, 1956, figure.

Baby Sitter Wounded by Six-Year-Old Boy

CINCINNATI — It was a brisk afternoon for 6-year-old Michael Schaible Jr., who, police said, shot his baby-sitter, Mrs. Naomi Babe, 45, in the right arm.

Investigators said Mrs. Babe found Michael holding a .22-caliber rifle, and said he told her: "This gun is loaded; if you come in I'll shoot you." Thinking it was a toy, she walked in unafraid. The rifle discharged, striking her in the forearm.

Mrs. Babe was released after hospital treatment, but police took over her baby-sitting chores temporarily.

In Brantford, Ontario a suitcase filled with voodoo dolls and shrunk-on images was stolen from the parked car of Robert Williams, a show manager of Pontiac, Mich. The suitcase and contents were recovered, but police haven't been able to catch up with the apparently frightened thief.

Hal Boyle Says:

Adopted Girl Claims She 'Picked' Parents

NEW YORK (U.S.)—I know a child who's a wilderness to me, and fun to explore day by day.

Her name is Tracy—Margaret Tracy Ann Kathleen—as she likes to brag when she is sure her father is listening. She is 4 years old and grabbing for eternity.

Out of all the children in the whole wide world my wife, Frances, and I picked her out at the squirming age of one month to share the common adventure of our life, which we enjoy, and Tracy, who is rugged, seems to also.

She is as sure of herself as a tractor on a half-acre farm, and does a fair job of plowing the household rules. But she is a mystery unto herself, and her next step to me is always a pleasant word puzzle.

I don't know whether you have ever adopted a child. If you have, you must be familiar with one of the first instructions:

"Do not hide from the child the fact it is adopted. Tell it from the start it is a chosen child, and make it feel very, very selected."

Well, never a man to go against social science, I started trying to indoctrinate my daughter early. When she was 6 months old, I swung her in my arms and crooned:

"Baby, you're the best. We saw the crop in a good year, and you're the top of the harvest. You were never a grape. You were born champagne."

Month after month, year after year, endeavoring as best we could to save her from any early searing emotional scars and trying to abide by the book, we have told her she is absolutely the greatest, which she is; the positively absolute and that's for sure; and the real sine qua non, which is a foreign way of saying it.

She takes this praise as Cinderella might, lifting the right foot to the perfect shoe. As a matter of fact she lives that fairy tale, and sometimes when I demand that she bring me my slippers, she'll remark:

"I'm just like Cinderella. I have to do everything around here."

She is now fair, tall for her age and has long brown tresses, and I hold her up face-to-face to the mirror and ask, "See, don't we look alike?"

"Yes," she replies, glancing at my scalp—I didn't actually survive the Custer massacre, but I look like I did—and adds: "But I've got more hair!"

For some reason strangers—even close friends of the family—think this is funny. I laugh as hard as a man in my position can. I try as subtle and as hard as I can, to pave the way to let this child know she is adopted, but after all I cannot go beyond the truth, which is:

"Tracy, out of all the millions and millions of babies in the whole wide world, Daddy and Mommy picked you."

She is a stubborn, willful, self-confident child.

"I picked you," she replies.

Sometimes, though, she will ask a question. But not now. Not now.

Oldster Sells Tenants Homes for $10 Each

HARRISBURG, Pa. (U.S.)—James Bricker awoke to begin his 88th year of life today faced with a $64,000 question.

He owns that much in real estate and some people are curious to know what he intends doing with the properties.

Questions began coming in to the retired blacksmith bachelor three weeks ago from the United States and some foreign countries when it was learned he had sold 11 Harrisburg homes for $10 each to families occupying them on a rental basis.

But the queries really began pouring in when international newspaper accounts of his generosity also noted that he still owned 16 properties which he valued at about $64,000.

What, if anything, is he going to do with the other 16 homes? Will they be sold at "cheap prices" to the tenants renting them now?

"I have no plans at all for those homes . . . not one single plan," Bricker quipped.

The homes he sold at $10 were valued by Bricker at about $2,300 each—based on 1918 assessments. Bricker was still a little excited about a surprise birthday party given him by his former renters turned landlords when he confided to a newsman last night that the whole thing has taken him by storm.

"I have received 602 letters and 152 cards," he said. "And I don't know how many phone calls and personal visits since this all began."

"Many of the people ask me what I intend doing with the 16 other homes and I can say frankly I just don't have any idea," he added.

He confessed, however, that he has hopes of keeping them so that he will have some security to live out what he is confident will be quite a few more years of life.

"I even had some women write and ask me to marry them," he disclosed, blushing slightly.

Chemical Sacks Tied to Bridges Fight Red Tide

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (U.S.)—Along the Florida west coast sacks of copper sulphate tied to bridges are being used as the latest devices to strike down the fish-killing red tide.

Agents from the State Conservation Department are tying these sacks to bridges over passes from Clearwater to Naples. The idea is that waters flowing through these passes will be doctored by the chemical from the sacks.

Copper sulphate produced excellent results when the red tide first was discovered in waters off here Sept. 26. But marine biologists are not completely sold on it because of the expense, and its staying qualities might not be too great.

No new outbreaks were reported yesterday. Water samples from a small infestation near Sanibel Island showed a lower count of gymnodinium bevis, the "minute" marine bug which colors water red and kills fish by poisoning them.

If cancer had been conquered a dozen years ago, says the American Cancer Society, we would not have lost to this disease one of the world's greatest scientists, the father of the atomic bomb, Dr. Enrico Fermi, who was only 53 years old.

Report Buying Panic in Czechoslovakia

VIENNA (U.S.)—Arrivals from Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia reported a buying panic broke out there Monday because people feared they were in for a duplication of East Germany's currency change.

An Austrian tourist reported: "The Czech people are rushing to buy anything they can so they won't be caught by a sudden currency changeover."

Czechoslovakia's last currency reform also was staged suddenly in May 1953 and was accompanied by wage reductions to siphon off purchasing power.

The controlled Czech radio and press have so far mentioned nothing about a buying rush. Observers pointed out that rumors to induce such a panic also might be planted in order to remove old stocks from the shops, which are all state owned.

Because of the stepped-up fight against cancer, led by the American Cancer Society, one in every three cancer patients is being saved. This compares with one in every four saved a few years ago.

American Motors Offering Ambassadors in New Line

DETROIT — American Motors today introduced its 1958 Ambassador V-8, an entirely new line of cars in the Rambler series, built on a 117-inch wheelbase.

The new models will be displayed in Rambler, Nash and Hudson dealerships throughout the country Friday, Oct. 25.

New features in the Ambassador series include dual headlights as standard equipment, automatic transmission with push-button controls, step-on parking brakes, safety instrument panel, transistor-powered radio, and other advancements, he said.

For the first time, a new four-door station wagon will be available in the AM senior line. The line includes a super and custom four-door sedan and four-door station wagon, and a custom four-door hardtop sedan and four-door hardtop station wagon.

The Ambassador series is but 58 inches high, just under 72 inches wide and 200½ inches long.

The cars are powered by the 237-cubic-inch V-8 engine, developing 270 horsepower. Four-barrel carburetor is standard equipment. The engine has a compression ratio of 9.7 to 1. Dual mufflers and tail pipes are standard equipment.

Three transmissions are available, and another engineering feature is a new torsion sway-stabilizer bar.

Another Spy Trial

A colonel in the Russian Intelligence Service, RUDOLPH IVANOVICH ABEL, living in New York, is on trial in U. S. district court in Brooklyn on a charge of spying.

Identified by the FBI as the highest ranking Soviet spy ever arrested in the United States, ABEL faces a possible death penalty. Some 69 witnesses including a former Russian spy, Lt. Col. REINO EYHANEN, who escaped from the Soviet Union to Western Germany, will testify for the prosecution.

This is the third major espionage case since COTTON and GURITCH. JUDITH COTTON was found guilty but freed because of a technicality, although the judge said her guilt was plain. GURITCH, third secretary of the Soviet foreign affairs ministry, received a 15 year suspended sentence on condition that he leave the country.

The ROSENBERGS, U. S. citizens, were executed in 1953 for espionage in World War II. Earlier this month Mr. and Mrs. JACKSON and JACOB ABAM, all of whom pleaded guilty to conspiracy to obtain information vital to U. S. defense, were sentenced to seven, four and five years respectively. They received light sentences because they co-operated with the authorities.

It is ironic but in the democratic tradition that a Federal court of the Government which Abel allegedly sought to harm, has appointed an eminent lawyer to defend him—James B. Donovan, Chief Counsel for the Office of Strategic Services in World War II. So far Abel has shown no willingness to cooperate with our Government and has said that he was not expecting nor seeking any help from the outside.

Last month FBI Director J. EDGAR HOOVER told the American Legion convention in Atlantic City that the Communist party membership was far more deadly than its size would indicate. "This undercover apparatus," he warned, "is a continuing aggressive force constantly at work to subvert and subvert the American people." Mr. Hoover knows what he is talking about.

Looking Toward 1960

In his not surprising announcement of intention to run for Governor of California in 1958, Senator KNOWLAND has left the way clear for the nomination of Vice-President NIXON for the Presidency in 1960.

Mr. Knowland has declared that he would serve his full four year term if elected. However, circumstances alter cases and the Senator might be persuaded to yield to a "draft" for Republican nominee for the Presidency in 1960.

First he must win the GOP primary from incumbent candidate Governor GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, and then beat the Democratic nominee before he would figure in the 1960 race. Should he win, he would get the strong backing of GOP conservatives who are not pro-EISENHOWER. But the fact is that although he appears to be conservative, the Senator says he has supported the Administration 93 per cent of the time.

In giving up his powerful post as Senate Republican leader, the outspoken Mr. KNOWLAND is taking a big political gamble. But if he wins, he will be in a position to get the backing of the California delegation. That state may have two GOP aspirants for the Presidency in 1960.

FAR more people would succeed in their efforts to keep up with the Joneses if said Joneses bought and did only what they could afford.

Color Tour Gets Attention of a Great Many Motorists

Fog: Weather or otherwise, perhaps a reason why Lizzie got out of London.

People who live on either side of the Drahnor Woods' wild life sanctuary, a few miles northeast of Pontiac, tell me that my color tour through there, published in Friday's paper, brought out over 500 cars, as compared to only a dozen or two on most days. They report that the foliage display is still in fine condition.

Go out Perry Street, which merges into Lapeer Road, and follow it through Lake Orion village to the intersection of Drahnor Road (plainly marked) just before reaching Oxford. There you turn right and for five miles drive through some of the roughest area in Oakland County, including the Drahnor Woods.

Keep on Drahnor Road which has many tricky corners and turns. You'd better stop in the woods, and walk back among the trees where you're quite sure to see deer, fox and other animal and bird life. You emerge on the Rochester Road pavement.

Keeping close tab on the Pontiac-Saginaw football game Friday will be

Mrs. Ellene Hobelth of 362 North Johnson Ave. Of the ten survivors in our contest, she is the only one who picks Pontiac to win. If our Chiefs grab the game, she gets the $300. Likewise watching for the outcome will be the family of

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ayers of Commerce. An entry was made for their two-week-old daughter, Bonnie Jo Ayers, and it is the only survivor to predict a tie game on the Pontiac-Saginaw tilt. So, if it ends in a tie, Bonnie Jo has a $300 nest egg toward her college education.

David Lawrence Says:

U.S. Must Fight War for Morality

WASHINGTON — There is great need of an intercontinental missile—but it's a missile that should be aimed at destroying the evil in the human heart.

For it isn't the atom bomb or the ballistic missile that constitutes a threat to mankind—it's the mind and the hand of government that triggers the use of these lethal weapons.

Propaganda is a much-abused word. But the sad truth is that, despite the whirl of an iron ball around the world in 96 minutes, there is as yet no effective means of communication between a free people and enslaved people. Congress shows a surprising indifference to the problem.

What is vital is not just mechanical ingenuity or a sense of urgency or the coordination of bureaucratic effort but something else far more important—a willingness to acknowledge error in ourselves and a willingness to furnish an example of righteous living as a nation.

For the dropping of the atom bomb was our biggest sin. Within a few days after the news of Hiroshima came in August, 1945, this writer denounced the decision to use that awful weapon without warning and against a city of civilians. It is still a crime for which America stands convicted before humanity.

NEVER ACKNOWLEDGED

America has never acknowledged its error. For the bomb was aimed not at conventional military targets but at helpless men, women and children in a big city in Japan.

Today the world is talking of intercontinental missiles, and an almost hysterical passion has seized many Americans who are demanding that everything else be sidetracked and billions of dollars be spent to perfect a weapon which will kill human beings indiscriminately—without worrying about military targets.

The United States at the outset of World War II, speaking through President Franklin Roosevelt, appealed to the belligerents to avoid bombing civilians in unfortified cities. But Hitler scorned the appeal and, before the war was over, all belligerents—including the United States—were bombing men, women and children everywhere in Europe and Asia.

NO ANSWER

Pacifism or nonresistance is no answer, of course, to the ills of the world. Military preparation and a threat of massive retaliation are today rightly held as a deterrent to possible war.

But the battle for morality—the greatest influence that can be exerted to reach peoples, who alone can participate in and sanction war—is being lost. The rule of expediency seems to be dominant.

In America, where idealism is often professed, there are today many exponents of surrender and submission. Notwithstanding, for instance, all the evil perpetrated by Red China in killing and wounding 137,000 Americans as well as thousands of soldiers from other countries—fighting in behalf of the United Nations to repel aggression—there are important newspapers and men in public life who would today embrace the Red China gangsters.

CALL IT EXPEDIENT

They argue it is "expedient." They would also recognize the "status quo" in Eastern Europe. They would not demand a word of repentance from the criminals—they would give the blessing of the free world to the vicious rulers who have enslaved hundreds of millions of human beings.

So "communication" is needed not only outside but inside

America. The task is to convert those in our midst who preach doctrines of expediency and who blindly forsake the doctrines of morality.

What difference does it make to the imprisoned souls of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe whether an iron ball spins around the earth in an hour and a half? What difference does it make to them which nation wins the race in perfecting this or that weapon? Their question is: How long are they to endure the tyranny that has enslaved them? And what can the rest of the world do to aid them?

Is "liberation" a dead issue, now to be put into the deep freeze while so many of us applaud the scientists of Soviet Russia and call for bigger and deadlier weapons. Billions for death-dealing weapons, particularly for ballistic missiles—this is the slogan of the hour—but only a few piddling pennies for information missiles that could stimulate people to rid themselves of evil rulers.

Dr. William Brady Says:

Uses False Assumption to Defend Tonsillectomy

"Granted that indications for removal of lymphoid tissue (tonsils and adenoids) from the throat are subject to individual judgment, I submit," says a laryngologist (throat specialist)

"in defense of tonsillectomy, that the results of tonsillectomy, competently performed, lead to an extremely high percentage of good results."

"I add that the mortality (death rate) is one of the lowest of any surgical procedure; and that, because of a rare complication (cardiac arrest—heart stops beating) its condemnation is no more justified than would be that of hemorrhoidectomy (radical operation for hernia, rupture, breach)."

It seems to me that the ever-ready operators who still practice and defend tonsillectomy fail to recognize a significant fact, namely, that children's tonsils become enlarged in the winter and spring and spontaneously shrink again in the summer and autumn.

From the six points the laryngologist makes in his defense of tonsillectomy, it would appear that this throat specialist, like most operators who attempt to "get every bit of tonsil tissue," has forgotten, if he ever learned, the pathology of the tonsils.

FALSE ASSUMPTION

He takes for granted, without any scientific evidence to warrant the assumption, that enlargement (hypertrophy) of the tonsils indicates infection.

This, I contend, is stupid. The very fact that enlarged hypertrophic tonsils shrink to what the doctor calls normal size if or when the child is permitted to absorb the ultraviolet he should absorb through his skin, in the summer, is evidence that enlarged tonsils are not infected.

If the ever-ready operators are not prepared to reject the findings of the pathologist, particularly those of the pathologist who did autopsies on a thousand tonsils removed by good representative doctors in a Midwest city, it seems to me they must plead guilty of perpetrating an atrocity on children with enlarged tonsils.

Signed letters, not more than one page or the words long pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. William Brady, if a stamped self-addressed envelope is sent to The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Minor Strategy Helps Teacher

Marjorie is a jewel among our faithful school teachers. Read about the interesting strategy which she employed to expand her usefulness to her pupils. Her students are now studious and orderly, whereas they were a rowdy group previously. And they love her, because she loves them and proved it by going that "second mile."

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
Case W-321: Marjorie M., aged 29, is a school teacher.

"Dr. Crane, I recently changed to a different school," she began. "It is in the underprivileged area."

"The pupils had made it very difficult for the previous teacher, which was why she had resigned. They were unduly naughty. In fact, some of the larger boys were DR. CRANE listed as incorrigibles and two had been expelled by the principal."

"But I felt it was a challenge to me to tackle this difficult room, so I deliberately asked for it."

"And now I have it pretty well under control. I told the boys and girls that in America we expect people to make their own laws and then help enforce them."

"So I organized our room after our national Congress. We had 36 pupils, so I told them we'd elect nine as Senators, and the rest could be Representatives."

APPLIED CIVICS

"Then I made a ballot on which they were to write the names of their first three choices for Senator. They could name anybody in the class, including themselves."

Side Road Resident Asks That Drivers Be Careful

Parents on side roads such as Peiton road don't mind people using our roads as cutouts if they would just stop speeding and leaving a cloud of dust two blocks long. We all have children of toddling age and up and fear for their lives the minute they get out of sight. Children forget so easily, it isn't easy to teach them to stay away from the road, so we are pleading with drivers to do the remembering and think of our children's safety as well as they would their own.

I'm a mother of three, one with cerebral palsy, and I'm wondering if drivers will be able to stop when his uneasy steps take him near the road.

Woman Questions Rules at Hospital

I can see the necessity of Pontiac General limiting visitors to patients during this Asiatic flu epidemic. However, I resent the fact they refused to let me see my father-in-law before he went to surgery for lung cancer, and yet they conducted two tours of visitors through the hospital the same day.

We were told we could visit him only between 7 and 8 p.m. and yet across the hall a girl visited her mother for several hours and gave her a permanent. If the rules cannot allow a patient's family to see him before surgery, surely guided tours and home permanents should be banned, too.

Haven't we the right to expect our children to graduate from the eighth grade speaking English which is free from simple grammatical errors?

Persistent correction would completely eradicate the "he don'ts," the "ain'ts" and the "I have wents" which follow some people all their lives because their parents and teachers did not persist in correcting the mistakes.

Hoffa Outranks Harry Houdini

Houdini never did half the miraculous escapes that Hoffa does. The first named tricked people with illusions. The second simply bulls his way past unions, laws and the courts. Apparently might makes right in top union circles.

No other business can operate that way and the rank and file union members have to obey the rules and be honest. Why is immunity given to the brazen few?

'Should Teach Money Handling'

Courses in the simple handling of money should be taught in high school. Sooner or later everyone has to come to grips with his personal finances and most people are financially illiterate. My husband and I have been struggling with our budget for five years and we still don't exactly understand it all.

Letters will be condensed when necessary because of lack of space. Full name, address and telephone number of the writer must accompany letters but these will not be published if the writer so requests unless the letter is critical in its nature.

Nothing unusual for distinguished foreigners to get lumps in their mashed potatoes. Remember when a taxi-driver low-bridged winsome Churchill on Park avenue?

All Churchill tried to do was to go from one side to the other while the lights were changing. It was like putting a speedometer on a rocking chair.

We're sorry the whirling dervishes had their threads crossed. Hospitable Manhattan is a home away from home. The quickest way for a married man to get into trouble is to have two homes.

"They said they had never been called on before by any teacher, so they didn't know just how to act, but they seemed pleased to learn that I liked their Johnny or Mary."

PERSONALIZED EDUCATION

"I met some of my pupils as I stopped at their homes, and they also were perplexed. They, too, thought maybe I was there to report some naughty act. "But I quickly relieved their minds. Since then, all of my pupils have had a changed attitude toward me."

"They realize that I know their parents, so they accept me more as a close friend, and almost like one of the family."

"Dr. Crane, you once gave the case of a teacher who changed a problem school into a docile, harmonious institution by thus calling on the parents so I thought I'd try out your plan."

"Well, it worked so splendidly, that I wish you'd call it to the attention of all teachers. It is worth the extra effort."

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a long 30 stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

They Call It AUTOCIDE

More Police Needed to Enforce Laws

By OTIS M. WHITNEY
Commissioner, Massachusetts
Department of Public Safety

It is quite evident that the people of the United States must be shocked into the realization that a terrible disease is sweeping this country.

The toll in 1955 was 38,300 dead—a number that can be compared with the entire population of any one of these cities: Reno, Nevada; Waukegan, Illinois; Fort Lauderdale, Florida; Revere, Massachusetts or Fargo, North Dakota.

LIKE EPIDEMIC

And when an additional 1,350,000 persons are injured, the disease certainly has reached epidemic proportions! The disease can well be called "AUTOCIDE."

I strongly feel that this epidemic could be checked to a great extent if there were enough police to guarantee sufficient traffic supervision in the same way that all of our bodily ills could be controlled if we had enough doctors administering enough preventive medicine.

In 1954 one or more violations of the rules of the road were being committed in 83 per cent of the fatal automobile accidents, pointing to enforcement as a real need.

In the laboratories, startling discoveries are being made of new vaccines which will control killing and crippling viruses. But they are useless if there are not enough doctors to administer the vaccine.

GIVE ANTIDOTE

The legislators, engineers, and educators have given, or can give, enforcement officers the antidote for preventing accidents but police forces are so small it's like giving an aspirin for an elephant's headache.

To illustrate what a large police force can do in the way of accident reduction, let us compare the country as a whole with my state where accident prevention activities are coordinated by the chairman of the Massachusetts Highway Safety Committee, Rudolph F. King, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

In Massachusetts there are about 24 police officers per 1000 population compared with the national average of 1.9.

In 1955 the autocide death rate per 100,000 persons was 11.6 in Massachusetts as compared with the national toll of 23.3.

Maybe you might say that measuring the death rate by population is not a good criteria. Well, let's take the other yardstick—mileage. Massachusetts had a death rate by autocide of 3.5 per 100 million miles whereas the United States rate was 6.4.

Another example was shown in New Jersey. In 1952, deaths on the New Jersey Turnpike, where 25 state policemen were assigned, came to an average of $1 per 100 million miles—higher than for state highways generally.

The following year they increased the turnpike patrol to 65 men and in the two years following the rate declined to 2.47.

DIRE NEED

However, I do not believe that the assignment of traffic patrols should be considered solely on a population or mileage basis. There are many sections in the United States, especially in the rural areas, where there is a dire need for patrols on a geographical basis.

LAW ENFORCEMENT—State troopers receive training in enforcing highway regulations. However, law enforcement officers on the highways are too few and far between. More are needed to make the nation's roads safe.

This is a responsibility usually assigned to State Police or State Highway Patrols.

Estimates made by the Institute for Safer Living after a survey they made show that only 2000 state highway patrol officers are responsible for 3 million miles of paved highways—one for every six hundred miles! And they can only work one shift each day!

The future portends a great influx of vehicles on our highways. The United States Bureau of Public Roads estimates that car, truck and bus registrations will reach a total of $1 million within the next ten years as compared with 58 million now.

There certainly will be a need for a lot more shepherds to take care of this increase in the flock!

The strength of the police throughout the nation must increase at least 20 per cent in the very near future before enforcement's role in saving lives will be felt.

I realize we cannot saturate the highways of the country with police, but what we can do is at least obtain a sufficient increase in the present number, improve police training and plan a campaign of efficient enforcement—a campaign leveled at improper behavior by the motorist at the time of the act.

This is the kind of action that gets results.

STIFF DRINK—This mechanical man at New York's Rockefeller Center takes a gulp of a really stiff drink. The pretty spectator admires the "manly" way he gulps down a continuous supply of corrosive acid. He has a modern equivalent of the proverbial "wooden leg," as the acid flows into his pipe limbs and back to the bottle. "Man," part of a rubber company exhibit, is made of corrosion-resistant blend of plastic and rubber.

Economic Problems Rack Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (U)—On the eve of the 12th anniversary of Juan Peron's rise to dictatorship, Argentina was racked today with economic problems left when Peron fell two years ago.

After two days of deadlocked meetings between Provisional President Pedro Aramburu's government and leaders of 94 unions, the nation was faced with a call for a 48-hour general strike beginning next Tuesday.

The unions are protesting the increasingly high cost of living. The government says no wage increases can be paid without increased production, but labor leaders reply that so long as wages and costs remain unbalanced production increases are impossible.

Peron was freed from jail on Oct. 17, 1945, as a result of workers' demonstrations that ultimately pushed him to power. During his dictatorship Argentina was run into bankruptcy and today lacks economic reserves to survive lengthy strikes.

Quentin Reynolds in Fair Condition

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y. (U)—Author Quentin Reynolds was reported in "fair" condition today at Northern Westchester Hospital, where he is under treatment after a heart attack.

Reynolds, 55, suffered the heart attack yesterday at his home at Bedford Village, N. Y., and was brought to the hospital in an ambulance.

His wife said that for several days he had been suffering from "what doctors thought was the Asian flu."

She said the attack was not serious. A hospital spokesman said it is routine to carry all heart attack victims on the "serious list."

ARTHRITIS PAINED SO FIERCE IT MADE ME CRY

I'll recommend O-Jib-Wa Bitters for Rheumatism and Arthritis as long as I live, says Mrs. Margaret Standridge, Flint.

"I was crippled with arthritis since the Spring of 1950. It was in my right arm, shoulder and neck and you just can't imagine how much suffering I went through. There wasn't a night I didn't go to bed with tears in my eyes. I'm telling you, I really suffered. My arm was stiff, and burned like someone was holding a torch under it. One day my husband was cutting wood up North, and the man he was working with had to be carried out of the woods due to a severe attack of arthritis. He was so bad that his wife had to turn him over in bed by pulling on his sheets. He used O-JIB-WA BITTERS and three weeks later, was better and back working. After his experience, I decided to try O-JIB-WA too, but after 5 days I gave up, as I foolishly expected immediate relief. Well, the pain just went on, and for a whole year I couldn't move my arm. My knuckles were swollen to twice their normal size, and I couldn't pick up a can't imagine thing without dropping it. Why even my chest pained fiercely, so last December, I decided to give O-JIB-WA a fair trial this time. I followed directions carefully, and in just 10 days the pain suddenly stopped, and the swelling and stiffness began going away. I know it was the O-JIB-WA that did it, as I hadn't tried anything else for quite some time. I can use my arm again now and do my housework, painting and everything I couldn't do while suffering with arthritis. The pain, stiffness and swelling are all gone and have not returned. I'm so thankful for this wonderful medicine that I will never be without it. I'll RECOMMEND O-JIB-WA BITTERS AS LONG AS I LIVE."

Butte Numbers Many Irishmen

Sullivans Came First, 69 Strong; Still Leading on Citizenship Rolls

BUTTE, Mont. — It's 6,000 miles to the Emerald Isle but Butte visitors don't have to go that far to find an Irishman.

Corktown and Dublin Gulch are names of sections of this mining city. It's not hard to determine why.

The Irish are possibly the largest national group among Butte's 35,000 residents — and no small part of that fact can be traced to a day 63 years ago when the old Silver Bow County courthouse was besieged, not by Indians, but Irishmen.

June 5, 1894, is known even today as the day the Sullivans came to town.

There were 69 of 'em, Sullivans all, who arrived in a body to seek American citizenship.

With them were goodly numbers of Harringtons, Murphys, Sheas and O'Briens and others whose names proclaimed their origin.

An index of naturalization for the late 19th Century tucked away in a shelf of the district court clerk's office, shows the Sullivans greatly outnumbered their fellow Irish as settlers.

No less than 293 Sullivans applied for citizenship in Butte courts during those years.

There were 103 Harringtons, 96 Murphys, 62 Kelleys or Kellys, 46 Sheas, 41 O'Neills and O'Neils, 36 Lynchs, 34 O'Briens, 29 Reillys and Rileys, 27 McCarthys, 26 Lowneys, 24 Kennedys, 22 O'Learys, 21 Walshes, 20 Ryans, 19 McGraths, 18 Callahans and Callaghans and lesser numbers of Brogans, Burneses, Carrolls, Clearys, ad infinitum.

Thirty-three members of the group bore the name John Sullivan, most of them preferring John L. or John J.

There were the exceptions, too. There was one Simon Sullivan.

Land Always Visible

TV 'Eye' to Aid Pilots

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Development of a television "eye" that enables airplane pilots to "see" the terrain under all weather conditions has been disclosed.

The device, described at an Army-Navy instrumentation symposium yesterday as "the missing link" between man and machine, is known as ANIP for Army-Navy Instrumentation Program.

It is designed to fit aircraft to the capacity of the pilot rather than continue attempts to condition the pilot to the increasing demands of modern flight.

ANIP will eliminate six basic cockpit instruments: Artificial horizon, directional gyro, air speed, altimeter, turn-and-bank and rate of climb, said Cmdr. George W. Hoover, project officer for the Office of Naval Research.

Hoover, who is credited with development of the system, said ANIP consists of a two-dimensional picture presented on a flat, transparent television tube 20 inches wide and 11 inches high.

The tube is fed continuing information by a light-weight electronic computer to supply the pilot a third-dimension perspective of terrain and sky information.

ANIP is expected to become operational in Navy aircraft in two or three years, Hoover said.

Greetings Thrill 2 Air Hostesses in Antarctic

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand — Two American air hostesses who went on the first commercial plane flight to the Antarctic returned today delighted with their reception by 301 ice-bound men.

Ruth Kelly, formerly of Houston, Tex., and Patricia Hepinstall, formerly of Holyoke, Colo., said they especially impressed 83 men at McMurdo Sound who hadn't seen a woman in 6 to 18 months.

"Everyone was so gentlemanly," Miss Kelly commented. "We each had an escort."

The two hostesses flew from Christchurch to McMurdo yesterday on a Pan American Stratocruiser that took 37 U.S. Seabees for duty at American antarctic bases.

The young women told of judging a beauty-growing contest among the men as well as being elected "Queen Bees of the Seabees" in Antarctica.

Report Brando, Bride Honeymoon at Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Actor Marlon Brando and his India-born bride are reported honeymooning at a Phoenix resort.

Jack Kogen, manager of the place, at first said the newlyweds were there but later backed off with the explanation he had confused Brando's name with that of another movie figure.

Reporters who went to the resort were told "he isn't here" before they could say whom they were seeking.

Failed to Heed Saint's Warning — Lost Battle

RHEIMS, France — St. Remy, archbishop and patron saint of Rheims, baptized Emperor Clovis in 496. When Clovis went to fight invading barbarians, St. Remy blessed a cup of champagne and told Clovis to keep on fighting as long as the cup held wine.

Clovis and his men drank from the cup, which, according to legend, did not become empty for a long time.

But one day it did run dry and Clovis nonetheless continued a battle. He lost, and the empire started to decline from that point, French storytellers claim.

Milk Cartons Increase

MILWAUKEE — Production of paper milk containers in the United States is expected to reach an all-time record of 14 billion units this year. Use of these cartons mounted from one billion in 1940 to 13 billion in 1956 and is steadily growing to include foods other than milk, such as chilled orange and grapefruit juices, lemonade, and pancake-batter mix.

Security for You

Small Business Keeps One Off the Shelf

By RAY HENRY

Jim Sawyer had always been an active man. He didn't like the idea of climbing on the shelf after he retired.

But, here it was just six months until his 63th birthday. Whether he liked it or not, he was being retired by his company after 35 years.

His company pension and Social Security would take care of him and his wife, Lucy, without much strain. A combination of the two would give him nearly $250 a month. He had some money in the bank and a home without a mortgage.

Yet, Jim had a strange feeling about the future. He'd had it for about a year.

In explaining it to his wife, he compared it with the feeling he once had as a boy.

"You remember me telling you about it," he said. "It was the time I got lost overnight in the woods near Uncle Fred's farm. I had a helpless, gnawing fear. Nothing intense. Just sort of choking."

"I've got the same feeling now. I don't need a doctor. I'm sure it's because I don't want to quit work. I won't know what to do with myself."

"Why do you have to quit?" Lucy asked. "I know the company won't keep you on. But, can't you get another job?"

"Jobs at my age aren't easy to find," he said. "And I don't want to work for somebody else. I dread the idea of hunting for a job almost as much as I dread retiring."

"How about using some of our savings to buy or start a little business?" she asked. "We've got about $14,000. I could help and we both could keep busy."

"We couldn't buy much of a business even if we spent all our savings. If we did, we couldn't make very much or we'd lose our Social Security."

Jim tossed for several hours that night after going to bed. He was mulling over Lucy's idea of buying or starting a small business. It'd been done by several other people he knew.

MACK'S DRUG STORE

Prescription Specialists
3505 Eliz. Lake Rd.

OTHERS SUCCEEDED
There was the old fellow down the block who'd started building pet cages in his basement so people going overseas could ship their dogs. He now had a good business with almost all the local airline and steamship offices referring people to him.

And, how about the retired postman who'd bought a plot of land beyond the suburbs and was raising Zoysia grass? He was selling it by the plug to homeowners through small ads in the newspapers. It kept him busy during the summer and made him a tidy sum.

The fellow who rented boats where he went fishing was a retired engineer. During the busy season, he had a young fellow to help him tote the boats. The off-season he spent repairing and painting.

He'd had coffee the other day with one of the fellows who'd retired in 1954 from his own company. The fellow had started a store which rented or sold skiing equipment to members of the local ski clubs. That was during the winter time. During the summer he had high school kids help him repair and sharpen lawn mowers.

"Maybe Lucy's got something," he said almost aloud just before dropping off to sleep.

MADILL, Okla. — Residents here voted on a $15,000 bond issue to finance a new fire engine which the City Council has already purchased. The vote was tied at 293 for and 293 against. A simple majority was needed for the issue to pass.

A proposed $85,000 bond issue

Queen Reported Related to Lee, Washington

LONDON (AP)—Buckingham palace confirmed today that Queen Elizabeth II is a blood relative of two great Americans, George Washington and Robert E. Lee. "Yes, it seems to be true," said a palace official. "The College of Arms says so and that's good enough authority."

Emphasizing that the relationship is a distant one, the official added: "You know, we are all related to Adam, too."

More definite, however, was Patrick Montague-Smith, assistant editor of Dehnbett, the authoritative guide to royalty, the peerage, and other folks of quality.

He said when the Queen sets foot on U.S. soil today for the start of a six-day trip "she becomes the first reigning monarch to do so with American blood in her veins."

Steere Offers Site for Township Center

Name Group to Study Proposal

Waterford Township Supervisor Elmer Johnson and superintendent of schools William Shunck, have selected 11 prominent local residents to study the Frank Steere offer of a township-owned cultural center.

Steere, of 3240 S. Shore Rd., has indicated that he is willing to give approximately 17 acres of his property to Waterford Township, providing a library and cultural center is built.

The property is located on M59 and Pontiac Lake roads, and is now being used as a bird and wildlife sanctuary.

Purpose of the newly organized study group is to analyze the possibility of constructing and maintaining the library, which might cost an estimated $250,000 when completed.

Other stipulations are that the library building is to be erected so that additions can be made without disturbing the aesthetic setting.

Steere estimates that an additional $36,000 annually will be required for township operation of the cultural center, and this is one of the problems to be studied by the new group.

The township has a deadline of December 23rd to either accept or reject the Steere offer, and it is with this in mind that the new group has been organized.

Temporary chairman will be Rev. Walter Teeuwissen. Other members of the group are: Thomas Belton, Herbert Wettlaufer, Mrs. Kenneth Valentine, Donald Adams, Avis Carey, Mr. Carroll Appel, Mrs. Walter Forbes, Mrs. William Shunck, Mrs. Helen Siegmans and Mrs. William Vann. The first meeting of the group will probably be scheduled sometime during the week of October 25th, Rev. Teeuwissen said.

Man Will Fly to Moon —Maybe in 15 Years

(Now that man has made his first tentative step into outer space and the "race to the moon" is on, what does the future hold, when will the moon be reached—and who will get there first? The dramatic potentialities are related in the following article, last of a series. The writer, Martin Caidin, is the author of "Vanguard".)

By MARTIN CAIDIN

The first space satellite is accomplished fact. On Oct. 4, 1957, scientists of the Soviet Union brought to its most dramatic climax the dreams of flight into space which men have held for long decades.

No matter what the nationality of the rocket which fired the small artificial moon into space, this was truly an epochal moment in man's history. Oct. 4, 1957, will be remembered for all time as the dawn of the age of space flight.

WONDER GREAT

The future holds great wonder for us all. Within the next months scientists of both the USSR and the United States will follow the success of the "spatnik" with more satellites. Some will be smaller, others much larger. Some of these artificial moons will be crammed with instruments.

The data obtained from these tiny messengers in space will enhance enormously man's knowledge of the world in which he lives.

We will make tremendous strides forward. The instruments will teach us hitherto-unobtainable secrets about the composition of the electrical atmosphere so far above the earth. From this new data scientists will be able to build radio and television equipment of extraordinary capabilities.

STEP FORWARD

Global communications will take a seven league boots step forward. Scientists now envision a system of three satellites whirling in space at a distance of several thousand miles from the earth.

These will be relay stations for television transmitters. The scientists will bounce television picture signals at the speed of light from earth to a satellite, then in the merest fraction of a second to another satellite, and back to a receiving station on the other side of the world. The sociological impact of instantaneous global-wide communications in video is certain to affect our lives in a profound manner.

The instruments buried into space will enable us to study the composition and the behavior of the sun. We will learn more about the enigmatic processes within our star, and we will be able to understand more clearly how the sun's activity affects us here on earth.

We will record the intensities of cosmic radiation in space, and we will discover what we need to know about the conditions man himself will encounter when he leaves the earth.

CHANGE HISTORY

The satellites will change the history of our world in many respects. By noting the variations of the satellites' orbits we will obtain for the first time accurate data on the masses of the continents. Geodetic surveys from the insuperable vantage of satellite height will open our eyes to our world in a fashion impossible before the Age of Space.

Meteorological studies from satellites may be our greatest immediate boon. We will send television transmitters into space, and on screens on the earth we will actually see how our weather is created, how it moves across the planet, and how destructive storms are created. For the first time we will have accurate weather forecasting, and we will be on the way toward actually controlling weather.

This one reward of satellites in space alone promises to save millions of lives and untold billions of dollars in prevented damage. In future decades it means that man will control the weather on his earth. This will take time, but scientists predict confidently that this new knowledge will enable us to turn blighted desert areas into lush agricultural centers, and to perform similar wonders.

The early satellites are only the predecessors of large and elaborate equipped robot laboratories to whirl in the vacuum of space around the earth. The firing on Oct. 4 was but the opening shot of a vast assault against ignorance. All men stand to benefit.

Within a year rockets may be crashing into the moon's surface. Other rockets will be crammed with instruments and then sent across space to circle the moon, and to take instrument readings and pictures of the conditions on the other side of the moon. Robot rockets will land on the moon, and transmit vital data of conditions on this hostile world by radio back to earth.

Simultaneously with these robot ventures beyond the earth, man will climb away from his home planet. To this date the highest any man has ever reached is 12,500 feet. Air Force Captain Iven Mackin Jr. stood above 50 per cent of our atmosphere. Physically, he was "in space."

But this is only the beginning. Next year a test pilot will streak into the heavens with a speed greater than 7,000 miles per hour. In the still-secret North American X-15, Air Force pilots will boom out of the atmosphere to more than 520,000 feet above the earth.

These men will be in space. They will be weightless, under conditions of zero gravity. They will be bombarded by fierce cosmic radiation. They will wear space suits—and they will be in space ships.

The next step will be to place these manned rockets into orbits. At first they will remain in space for only 24 hours. Then for several days. And finally, in a decade or two from now, we will shoot giant rockets into orbits several hundred, or a thousand miles from the earth.

Men will follow. They will assemble the parts of the rockets and their cargoes into strange new shapes in the heavens. These will be sealed and filled with scientific equipment. Oxygen-helium atmospheres will be pumped into them.

These will be the first manned space stations. They will be scientific outposts in space, the first rung on the long ladder to other worlds that man will one day reach.

FLIGHT CAUTIONS

The first such flight will be a cautious one. Men will climb into a spaceship and blast away from the earth. They will swing through space around the moon, studying, recording and planning. And then one day an ungainly rocket, with several men within its sealed interior, will descend on a pillar of intense flame to the airless surface of the moon.

That day may be only 15 to 20 years from now, or it may be closer to 50. It does not matter. The important thing is that this epochal moment of man's history is about to become reality.

U.S. science can do it. We have the men and the knowledge to do so. We need only make the decision to accept the responsibility to lead man to other worlds in space.

Know His Reputation, Hubcaps, Car Stolen

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (U)—Prosecutor Earl Stephenson is known as a "genial" man. But thieves have also gotten the notion he's a soft touch and he wants an end to it.

First they stole all hubcaps off his car. Then they stole the car itself. Stephenson had to go out and buy a new one. All the hubcaps are gone now from the new car.

Britain Now Claims Control of H-Bomb

LONDON (U)—The Daily Express said today British scientists have found a way to harness the energy of the hydrogen bomb for peaceful use.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed scientist at the government's Harwell nuclear laboratory as saying H-power for homes and industry "will certainly be available for this generation."

Without giving details, the paper said a way to control the fusion of hydrogen atoms have been discovered by Drs. Donald Fry and Peter Thonemann.

Thonemann was reported last May to head a research team that was using a giant glass cage to produce enough heat to begin the fusion process. About 212 million degrees Fahrenheit is believed necessary, a temperature reported approached by scientists in the United States. Work on H-bomb energy is being done at Princeton University, the University of California and at Los Alamos in the United States.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said last January it was swapping both secret and unclassified notes with the British on efforts to tame the H-bomb.

Lost Freedom Hard to Regain

Nixon Sees Red Threat in Economics Worse Than in Military Field

By P. D. ELDRID

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—If freedom loses in the struggle with totalitarianism, it may be a century before it can be regained. Vice President Nixon warned the International Industrial Development Conference in a major speech last night.

Pegging his talk to the Soviet launching of the satellite Sputnik, the vice president told a dinner audience of 800 that the free world "must be prepared for an all-out Communist economic offensive to win the allegiance of hundreds of millions of people in the uncommitted world, as well as even some of those in the free world."

If the Soviet "succeeds in extending Communist rule throughout Africa and Asia, the Kremlin will have assured its victory in the battle for the world," he said.

"It can use police power to keep these people in subjection. And it will then control their immense wealth in oil, uranium, copper and many other materials essential to the economic life of the free world," he continued.

"The Western world will be forced to surrender without the firing of a shot," he said. "Make no mistake about it. This is a real threat—not so dramatic or spectacular as Sputnik and the intercontinental ballistic missile but, in my opinion, it is potentially more dangerous in the long run."

"We dare not ignore the military threat that these events have posed, but it would be equally foolish to ignore the economic weapons that have been mounted against us. The first—the military—may never be used, the second—the economic—certainly will be used."

Nixon brought strong applause at this point by declaring: "Let us resolve, once and for all that the absolute necessity of maintaining our superiority in military strength must always take priority over the understandable desire to reduce our taxes."

City Symphony Opens Season Before Enthusiastic Audience

By MAX E. SIMON

A large and enthusiastic audience of symphony-goers was on hand last night to acclaim the performance of the Pontiac Symphony Orchestra in its opening concert of the 1957-58 musical season.

As Maestro Francesco Di Blasi, musical director and conductor of the orchestra walked out on stage from the wings to give the orchestra the downbeat in the opening work of the season, "Hayden's Symphony No. 88 in G Major" (known familiarly as the "Paris Symphony") he was greeted by loud applause.

The first nighters were obviously cognizant of the many hours of work that Di Blasi has spent in his welding of the musicians into one of the outstanding civic orchestras in the state.

The orchestra obviously relished the Hayden symphony, and performed it with gusto and dispatch. Although it is one of Hayden's often-played works, it is a favorite with musicians everywhere and its performance by the Pontiac Symphony was one of high caliber.

AUDIENCE IMPRESSED

No one in the audience could help but be impressed by the richness of the orchestra's string section in the quick and sprightly passages of the opening movement—a richness in tone which is equal to that produced by many professional symphony orchestras.

Throughout the entire Hayden work, the symphony played as a disciplined ensemble doing chamber music. It is when an orchestra can perform works such as those of Hayden and Mozart in this manner that it has reached a high state of competence, indeed.

After the well-received symphony, the guest soloist of the evening, Marvin Worden, tenor, made his first appearance of the evening, singing a selection from the Great Handel oratorio, "The Messiah" and two operatic arias.

His selection of the difficult

"Every Valley Shall Be Exalted" from the oratorio was unfortunate. A difficult aria in itself, it is made even more difficult as an opening selection when the vocalist has not had sufficient time to "warm up" his voice.

His singing of "Il Mio Tesoro" from Mozart's Don opera "Don Giovanni" was much more relaxed. But it was in his singing of one of the greatest tenor arias, "E Lucevan Le Stelle" from Puccini's "La Tosca" that the singer came into his own.

CAPTIVATES AUDIENCE

His singing, beautifully phrased and packed with emotion, drew "bravos" and cheers from the opening night crowd. Worden returned later in the program to captivate the audience with two semi-classical numbers, Romberg's "Softly as in a Morning Sunrise" and Lehár's "Yours Is My Heart Alone."

The orchestra performed one of Debussy's earlier compositions, the "Petite Suite" and gave a thrilling performance of Wagner's Overture to Tannhauser" to climax the program.

Although small in size, the tonal quality of the orchestra is full-bodied and equivalent to that of larger-size orchestras. It is an organization that the city of Pontiac can point to with pride and undoubtedly will improve as the season progresses.

All of which promises a bright musical season on the local scene.

The season's next concert will be in December and will feature Respighi's "The Pines of Rome." At that time, the orchestra will be supplemented by members of the Pontiac High School Band.

Two outstanding soloists will add spice to future events of the orchestra. They are Gordon Staples, the assistant concertmaster of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and Mischa Kottler, renowned Detroit pianist and teacher.

Patrons Dr. and Mrs. George A. Harkless are given programs by usher, Karen Hayden, at Tuesday evening's opening Pontiac Symphony Orchestra concert for the 1957-1958 season. The concert was held in Lincoln Junior High School Auditorium.

Fur Coats, Neckpieces Combined

PARIS (INS)—To be smart looking this winter you'll need a fur coat plus a fur neckpiece. And you'll wear both together.

The latest fur coats, shown by Maggy Rouff-Mendel, have fur mufflers knotted around the collarless neckline. It looks very elegant when coat and scarf are of the same fur. But if you happen to have a Persian lamb coat and an odd mink scarf, you can still wear them together for a new look.

CANADIAN MINK

Maggy Rouff-Mendel shows a lavish full-length coat of wild Canadian mink. It has a cardigan neckline and is worn with a scarf three peltis wide and 1 1/2 yards long. You knot it at one side with one end in front and the other dangling down at the back.

The same style is repeated in natural-colored brown beaver and also in chocolate brown Persian lamb. A coat of black Persian lamb is also collarless and shown with a muffler of sapphire blue mink.

Fur coat details shown by this famous Paris fashion house include bone-button fastenings in single or double breasted versions.

In case your fur coat has fur buttons, take them off carefully and replace them by simple, two-hole bone buttons in the color to match the fur. The contrast between the shiny buttons and the dull fur is one fashion point.

Greece Offers Happy Hunting for Gal Tourist

ATHENS (INS)—If you're the type of tourist that prefers sightseeing with a tall, dark and handsome escort, head straight for Athens.

Paris has its lights, Rome has its ruins, but Athens has the eligible men—practically all of them tall, dark, handsome and eager to show you the Acropolis by moonlight.

DON'T EXPECT MONEY

Just don't expect your Greek bachelor to be a millionaire; there are only about 25 of those Greek millionaires you read about, and they all have wives in addition to yachts. But there are at least 250,000 bachelors on the loose in the Greek capital.

The reasons why girl tourists can have a wonderful time in Athens are explained by an expert on the subject.

"Most Greek men marry late, when they're 30, 35 or even older, because schooling and army service keeps them occupied well into the late 20s," says Mikis Pezas.

He's slated to be the next Greek information officer in New York, is unmarried, and a brother of millionaire ship-owner Apostolos Pezas.

Wash Up, Not Down

How you wash your face now may show up in later years. Actually the motion should be from bottom to top, or working from chin to forehead. Washing your face "down" tends to make facial muscles sag.

Francesco Di Blasi, conductor of Pontiac Symphony Orchestra, is shown here as he was in action for the first concert of the season Tuesday evening.

Sorority to Hear Police Captain

Juvenile delinquency will be the topic discussed by Captain Walter Krause of the Pontiac Police force for the Oct. 21 meeting of the alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

The South Oakland Chapter meeting will be held in the Illinois avenue home of Mrs. Gordon Reynolds. Mrs. Charles Allen will act as co-hostess.

Is Convalescing

Mrs. Victoria Evandoff, of Lorberia Lane, is convalescing at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital following surgery.

Washday Protection

Notice how squint lines increase during good weather? Many housewives like to sun their laundry for that fresh smell. However, hanging clothes in the sun can harm the eyes. So fasten an extra pair of sunglasses to a clothes basket or clothespin bag and wear the glasses when in the sun.

Hands Hide Strain

Busy hands get much work done. But if they are busy fiddling with jewelry or twisting strands of hair, they work against a woman. Some women noted for poise and serenity keep their hands busy knitting while talking to others. This impresses viewers and hides signs of strain.

St. Hugo Guild Gathers at Tea

Mrs. Peter Montaghan of Bloomfield Hills was hostess when nearly 150 members of St. Hugo of the Hills Church Altar Guild gathered recently for their annual membership tea.

The tea table was decorated with a Madeira cloth and bronze and yellow chrysanthemums in a silver bowl flanked by yellow candles in silver candelabra.

Among those present were the Rev. Frances T. Stock and the Rev. Arthur J. Childs.

Chairman for the tea was Mrs. Oscar Pung, assisted by Mrs. Alexander Tulaboff.

To Direct PHS Singers

The guest conductor of Pontiac High School's fall vocal clinic, William L. Dawson, has had a wide background in music.

In 1931 he organized and became head of the School of Music at Tuskegee Institute. Mr. Dawson has conducted the Tuskegee Choir on tours throughout the country.

The choir has appeared in Radio City Music Hall and Carnegie Hall, has given command performances at the White House for Presidents Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt, and has appeared on TV programs such as the Ed Sullivan Show.

ALSO COMPOSES

In the field of writing, Mr. Dawson has composed numerous songs and instrumental works—foremost is his "Negro Folk Songs."

In the summer of 1956 Mr. Dawson was sent to Spain by the U. S. Department of State to conduct various choral groups of that country. The fall concert will be pre-

Through the Farm Youth Exchange American "Ambassadors in Blue Jeans" spend a summer with a farm family in a foreign country, and foreign students are chosen to come to this country to gain experience beneficial to their countrymen.

The association's International Tea, which will be held Friday at Fairlane, is being held to encourage support for the Farm Youth Exchange program. Scholarship student sponsored by the local branch for 1957-1958 is Frank Lessiter, a 4-H Exchange student who has spent the past summer in Germany.

At the meeting plans were made for the Ingathering which will be held Nov. 5 at the Auburn Heights Community Club.

First, Draw Dark Outline With Brush

Expert Tells How to Use Lipstick

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN.
Today I will pass along to you a trick which Ben Shaw teaches the models who come to his studio. These are his directions for making up the lips:

To begin with, draw the outline of the lips with a brush dipped in a medium dark shade of lipstick. The peak of the upper lip corresponds with the depth of the lower lip. From the peak the outline slopes to a definite corner. Lips should be painted as a unit, not two halves.

"If you need to alter your mouth, the dark outline will minimize the fact. After you complete your outline, fill in with a lipstick several shades lighter than the one you used before."

Mr. Shaw continued, "This shaded effect is flattering. This trick is one that my models have used for 10 years and was conceived because of the black or brown outline penciled on for photography or television."

"I do not guarantee a marriage license with each diploma, but it has been interesting to note the high marriage rate among my pupils," Mr. Shaw tells me that the peak comes between the halfway mark and the end of the course.

This model expert started with unmarried. One by one they married. 12 lovely young models who were married. Later, as his studio grew,

When putting on lipstick, paint your lips as a unit, not as two halves. You will find the result much more effective.

The range in ages was much wider, but the high marriage rate remained. Being curious by nature, his teacher began asking questions of his pupils who were soon to be married.

TWO CATEGORIES

He found that either the girl or woman had no prospect when she started or that she had been dating someone but no understanding had been reached. Evidently those in the first category met someone who found them attractive and they fell in love and married.

In the second group it was a case of the man being pushed into action by the change in the woman. Perhaps he would have finally proposed but because of the change in her he was afraid someone else might win his fair lady.

This is straight evidence of the impact a woman's appearance has on her life!

Even if you are not looking for a husband and do not wish to put the pressure on someone, why not take a tip from the models' experience and make life more pleasant and more exciting by improving any defects in good looks which you may have?

Do Scandal Magazines Hurt U.S.?

Maureen O'Hara Fears Damage to All America

By LEE BELSER
HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Maureen O'Hara, who currently is suing Confidential magazine for $5,000,000, said today America's scandal publications are causing Europeans to believe "we are a nation of degenerates."

"It isn't so much Hollywood that's hurt by these magazines," the red-haired actress declared, "it's the people who read them across the country — and the people out of the country."

BELIEVE STORIES

In her first interview since the Confidential libel trial when she took the witness stand in her own defense, Miss O'Hara said she is "convinced" that people believe what they read in the scandal mags.

"They read it and believe it," she declared. "And what is to stop them?"

The actress, whose daughter Bridget was upset to the point of tears at the story about her mother printed in Confidential ("It Was the Hottest Show in Town When Maureen O'Hara Cuddled in Row 35"), said the next worst thing is the fact that teenagers gobble up this type of scandal by the eyeful.

"I don't know if they buy them or not," she said, "but they pick these magazines off the newsstands and just stand there and read them to their heart's content."

This is deplorable enough, according to Miss O'Hara. But even worse than this is the effect on the Russian reading public.

"If the Russians are reading this stuff," she said, "it must be giving them a great opportunity for anti-American propaganda."

The actress, who denied in court that she "cuddled" in row 35 with a Latin lothario, said she was "glad" she testified.

"I'm glad I did it," she remarked. "And I'd do it all over again — and again — if necessary."

Miss O'Hara said she thought it "fantastic" that the scandal jury could not reach a verdict in the recent Confidential trial. "I can't understand it," she added, "especially after they sat there and listened to all that evidence. I hope they have another trial and I hope the next time they reach a verdict."

Soap was first used strictly as a covering for wounds. But, in 150 A.D., a Greek physician Claudius Galen, discovered soap went well as a cleanser in the bath.

Sewing Tip

When making nylon dresses, make the shoulder pads out of the same material, stuffing them with the scraps of nylon left over from the dress. Shoulder pads made in this way are almost as quick to dry when laundered as the dress itself.

FACIAL WRINKLES

The first signs of age are the little wrinkles that come sneaking in around our eyes, on our forehead and about the mouth. These are hard to erase once the damage has been done... but here are four ways to ward them off:

1. Massage with cream lightly.
2. Cream base under make-up.
3. Correct expressions and smile.
4. Use an astringent (chill with basal or any skin freshener).

Cakes Bake While You Cook Dinner

Mrs. Toomey Adds Chocolate Sauce to Cottage Pudding

By JANET ODELL

Pontiac Press Home Editor
No dessert for dinner tonight? Well, you certainly have time to make Mrs. Bart Toomey's Cottage Pudding. We know you have all the ingredients in the house. It can bake while you're getting the rest of the dinner ready.

Mrs. Toomey is one of the most enthusiastic lake dwellers we know. The family at Green Lake includes four daughters. Gardening is one of her hobbies.

COTTAGE PUDDING

By Mrs. Bart Toomey
1/2 pound (1/4 stick) margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup flour, measured BEFORE sifting
2 teaspoons double acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream margarine, sugar and egg. Stir in dry ingredients and milk. Pour into 8 greased cupcake pans. Bake in 325-degree oven for 20-25 minutes. Serve with hot chocolate sauce.

Chocolate Sauce
Blend 1/4 cup sugar with 3 tablespoons baking cocoa, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons flour. Add 1 1/2 cups boiling water slowly. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1-tablespoon butter. Serve warm.

Meeting Conducted by Standish Group

Standish Group of the First Congregational Church met at the home of Mrs. Roy Bennett on Chamberlain street Friday for a dessert luncheon. Co-hostess was Mrs. Carl Malkin.

Plans were made and committees were appointed for the annual smorgasbord to be held at the church Oct. 23.

Belgium and Holland had a terrific civil war in 1830. Belgium independence was granted that year, and the Kingdom of the Netherlands was dissolved. Belgium and Holland were formerly a political unity.

Teenager Mopes About 'Between Engagements'

Mother Almost Hopes That Daughter Will Find New Steady Beau

By RUTH MILLETT

Portrait of a teenage girl who is "between engagements," which means she has quit going steady with one boy and hasn't yet found a replacement:

"She mopes around the house. If she wore hoop skirts, instead of Bermuda shorts for her 'at-home' costume, you could easily believe she might be going into an old-fashioned decline."

"She no longer leaps when the telephone rings. Even if it is for her it will just be a girl calling, so why rush?"

"She is suddenly dissatisfied with her looks. If she is blonde she wishes her hair were black. If she is a brunette she wonders if a bottle of peroxide wouldn't make her over. And if you aren't watchful, she might just decide to find out."

"She wanders around the house on Saturday night like a lost soul, wondering out loud what 'the kids' are doing."

"She piles her school books in front of her, turns on the radio or her portable record player, and stares off into space, or reads a chapter of history through without knowing what she is reading."

Mrs. Dorothy McKay Bollendonk of Jackson Heights, N. Y., announces the engagement of her daughter, Anne LeConte, to Malcolm Alan Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Cornell of Henderson street. Both young people attend U. of M.

A June wedding is planned.

Typist Can Get Fascinating Job

By ANNE HEYWOOD
The trouble with planning your life too carefully is that life depends on other people as well as on ourselves and it is never possible to predict what the other person is going to say or do.

I remember in the early days of my job-hunting, I used to plan the dialogue carefully before the interview.

The boss would say this and I'd say that and then he would say such-and-such, and I would reply such-and-such.

The only trouble was, he never said what I had planned he would say, and so my nicely rehearsed answers had to be thrown away!

It's the same with every aspect of life.

For example, suppose you get a job as a typist. You assume that that means you'll be at a typewriter all day, every day.

If you were typist on a desert island, it probably would.

But you're typist in an office where people can leave or get sick or be transferred, and where you can pinch hit as file clerk, receptionist, editorial assistant or copywriter.

BUSINESS BOOM

The boss can decide you're too smart to stay at the typewriter. Or business can boom and he will decide to promote employees who are already there.

In short, as long as you live in a world of people, everything is delightfully unpredictable. Actually, all you have to do is take the first step, do the best you can and leave the rest to Life, Fate, God or whatever you personally call it.

But it's hard to make people realize this. Lots and lots of women refuse to learn typing, because they are convinced it will sentence them to a life of pounding those keys.

Many of these women are over 40, with families which no longer need them and lives that could use more activity let alone money.

FEAR DULL JOB

"But I don't want to learn to type," they write me, aggressively. "Because I don't want to spend the rest of my life in a dull job."

Yet in the past two years, four women that I know have learned to type and have found jobs that turned out to be fascinating.

They are not young women, either. They were all over 50 when they first wrote to me. Furthermore, they had to start from scratch in learning to type. They had had no business experience.

Today, one of them is in a doctor's office where her maturity is an asset and where she does a lot more than type.

WRITES TO SALESMEN

Another works for a small manufacturer. She corresponds with salesmen when they are out of town and "mothers" them when they're in town.

The third works in a hospital clinic as a receptionist. Her age is a great asset, too.

The last is in an office where her ability for handling customers on the phone was quickly recognized. She is no longer just a typist.

If you're ready to learn typing, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, in care of The Pontiac Press, and I'll send you my pamphlet, "How to Learn Typing at Home." (Copyright 1957)

Parents Advised to Attend Daughter's Birthday Party

By EMILY POST
"Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter will soon celebrate her 16th birthday and she would like to give a party. We live in a small apartment and it would be impossible for us to accommodate the number of boys and girls she would like to invite."

"We agreed to let her have it in one of the restaurants here in town. I would like to know if it will be necessary for my husband and me to be present to chaperon the group."

Answer: You certainly should be there to chaperon your daughter and her friends.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My boy friend has been asked to be best man at a friend's wedding. I have been invited to the wedding, although I know the bride and bridegroom only slightly."

"My boy friend says that it will not be necessary for me to buy a wedding present, and that he will include my name on the card with the wedding present he sends. Should I offer to pay for half of the wedding present? If he will not let me pay part of it, would it be proper for me to let him include my name?"

Answer: It would be in better taste if he did not include your name, and you do not need to send a present yourself.

"Dear Mrs. Post: About six months ago I started working for my present employer as his private secretary. I am going to be married shortly and would like to know if it would be proper to invite him to my wedding."

"He is far above us socially and I do not want to overstep my bounds, but on the other hand, I do not want to slight him."

Answer: If your relationship has been strictly business, you would not invite him. But if he has been friendly and has shown an interest in your wedding plans, tell him that if he would like to come to your wedding (and say where and when), that you would be very pleased to have him.

Parental Fairness Reassures Youngster

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Last week I wrote about a father who punished an older son for persistent disobedience. Protesting, "It isn't fair!" the boy demanded the same punishment for a younger brother whose disobedience had been less stubborn. The father complied against his own judgment of "fairness"—and as a result, developed intense irritation with himself and everyone else.

This is a common experience of parents. Misbehaving children often demand identical punishment of brothers and sisters who have not committed identical offenses just as they demand the same privileges of the other children.

What do we do when we have allowed Norman to persuade us to impose a penalty on Ted we feel is unjust? We reverse it.

At least this seems to be the stabilizing answer. We return to the point where we made the mistake of permitting Norman's 8-year-old view of justice to overwhelm our 30-year-old one.

After releasing Ted from punishment, we say to Norman, "After thinking hard, I've decided it isn't fair to punish Ted as I punished you. You disobeyed three times; he disobeyed once. As he behaved differently from you, his punishment is different, too."

IS HE FURIOUS?

Does Norman blow up? Is he furious with us as a cruel and partial parent?

Usually, no. Though he may grumble a bit, he usually accepts our decision with a speed and ease which startles us.

This is because Norman cares much less about the decision we've made than he does about our wish to be just.

The moment he's made sure that we have thoughtfully considered what is fair to him and Ted, he begins to relax, and stops insisting on his own view of "fairness." For his security lies not in getting his brother punished but in his experience of us as persons who care enough about fairness to work through our own ideas of it regardless of the pressure he's put on us.

He's reassured not by our sending Ted to his room for 30 minutes but by our demonstrated respect for fairness.

He senses that he can trust it to benefit him as it has just benefited his brother.

To see this is a helpful realization in the discipline of brothers and sisters.

U.S. Job Fascinates Detroit

Cora M. Brown Serves in Postal Department

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Cora M. Brown, young Detroit Negro attorney who is the newest woman appointee to an important government post and one of the few of her race to reach such status, says she's "fascinated" to be a part of the federal government.

The new special associate of the general counsel of the U.S. Post Office Department served two terms in the Michigan Senate (1952-56), and for the past 10 years has been active in community work and politics in Detroit.

RAN FOR CONGRESS

An "Eisenhower Democrat," she ran for Congress in 1956, but was defeated by Rep. Thaddeus Machrowicz, also a Democrat.

"I never dreamed of the magnitude of the federal government's departments like the Post Office," she told me shortly after her arrival here.

"Even with a bird's eye view, it's a big operation and offers a tremendous opportunity, as well as great responsibility."

Right now, Miss Brown is spending all her time learning the ropes of her office which includes research and recommendations on cases involving violations of postal regulations on obscene literature, frauds in advertising matter sent through the mails, and actions against the postal service.

WELFARE WORKER

Born in Bessemer, Ala., Miss Brown attended Fluke College in Nashville, Tenn., and after working with various welfare agencies for 10 years, entered Wayne University in Detroit and was graduated from its Law School in 1948.

She says she first developed an interest in law during her five years with the Detroit Police Department where she was engaged in law enforcement and helped in the preparation of prosecution in court cases in the women's division.

"I've always been tremendously interested in the legislative branch of government," she said.

"That's why I ran for Congress. It's a place where you can do something about issues directly."

SEGREGATION ISSUE

In discussing the segregation issue, she said:

"Where you find intolerance or discrimination, it's not restrictive. It's a question of degree in many areas. The closer we come to facing this, the closer we'll come to solving it."

Still undecided on skirt length? Your height, weight, shape of leg and style of the dress should be taken into consideration.

No woman wants the exaggerated knee lengths which are ugly on the seated figure. Formals two inches shorter than we have had them—daytime clothes one inch shorter, seem to be the accepted look.

Display Lights Brighten Without Crowding Home

CHICAGO (INS) — If you are having trouble fitting enough lamps into your room, try a department store trick.

Two of Chicago's top decorators suggest using display lights—the same kind used in store windows—in rooms where regular lamps don't fit.

In their own office, just seven feet wide and 12 feet long, a couch takes up one wall and the desk another.

So they hid one glass light reflector on the floor behind a clear glass cylinder holding water and tree branches in the corner between desk and sofa. And they also put another display lamp behind the couch.

The lamp behind the potted tree branches threw reflections of the leaves onto the plain white wall in a pretty shadowy pattern. The other hidden light brought soft diffused lighting into the room.

Said one: "Any woman can adapt this trick and eliminate dark corners in low-ceilinged small rooms without taking away any space."

The decorators said women can buy the display lamps in hardware stores or electric supply houses.

Men Wear Sweaters Once Again

Roaring Twenties Craze Returns to Popularity

Remember the Roaring Twenties? That was the age when the flapper, the Charleston, bootleg whisky, raccoon coats, and sweaters for men and boys were in their heyday.

Well, most of these symbols of that bygone era belong to history forevermore, but the male sweater craze has been revived more strongly than ever.

Several changes have come about in sweaters for men in the years between the Roaring Twenties and the Frantic Fifties. To their always rugged good looks have been added more exciting colors, more interesting pattern ideas and the practical benefits of blending natural and modern science fibers.

In addition to the finely knitted solid colors and heather tones, there are big bulky knits, improved shaker knits, combinations of big and small stitches, new treatments of old familiar models and brand new concepts never before achieved in sweaters.

One of the prime favorites is the classic crew-neck pullover style. This was revived several seasons ago by the Ivy style fans and has spread in acceptance across the country.

Other favorites are V-neck pull-overs, sleeveless pullovers, button-front shirt-type pullovers with attached collars, cardigans, crew-neck bulky knits and bulky knits with self-collars.

VARIOUS YARNS

Available in both fine knits and bulkiest are pure wool yarns, including cashmere and lambs wool, blends of wool and synthetic yarns, and a wealth of others.

Skiers, skaters and outdoorsmen will go for the Scandinavian-type sweaters with their bold chest and sleeve designs.

Patterned shetlands, some with horizontal blazer stripes, are an Ivy favorite on some campuses while fellows who prefer the continental touch go for the low-cut sweater vests.

MR. and MRS. ROBERT KEARNEY

Georda Mason Is Wed in Candlelight Service

White gladioli and chrysanthemums banked the altar of the Seventh Day Adventist Church Sunday for the candlelight wedding of Georda Ellen Mason and Robert Frederick Kearney, Elder R. W. Pratt, of Holly, officiated in the presence of 200 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Mason, of South Johnson avenue, and the bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Richard Frenzel of Ferndale, and the late Robert Kearney.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor length gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta featuring a hoop skirt and yoke of net sprinkled with mother of pearl sequins accented by a mandarin collar and long tapered sleeves.

A crown of seed pearls and Chantilly lace secured her lace bordered fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and carnations.

Acting as matron of honor was Mrs. Jack Choler, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Garrett, of Niles, sister of the bride; Janet Carter, of Battle Creek; Mrs. Harold Racine, and Mrs. Carl Siegel, of Bloomfield Township.

All were gowned alike in coral waist-length gowns carrying a bouquet of heart-shaped variegated pink carnations.

Leo Anderson, of Detroit,

Married Sunday were Georda E. Mason and Robert Fredrick Kearney. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Mason, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Richard Frenzel.

Snack Tables Perform Perky Room Tricks

CHICAGO (INS) — The latest snack tables do perky room tricks without any hidden gadgets.

The modern versions of Oriental bunting tables do a lot more than push together or pull apart.

Most of the little square tables are sturdy enough to double as stools. In fact, many of them are outfitted with removable cushions and can be used for seats as well as for informal food service.

But the latest idea in wood tables takes into account today's smaller room and the problem of what to put in a corner.

Contemporary furniture designer Sanford Wallach has made his little wood tables so modular that he shows them in a corner arrangement, stacked one on top of the other.

The result: A three-tiered open cabinet which can hold a few treasured curios and yet be taken apart quickly as the individual tables can be used for extra seats or to hold buffet supper plates and coffee cups.

Incidentally, the idea also is a decorative maneuver for getting the tables out of the way in space-tight rooms and for keeping them handy when company comes.

For pre-dinner relaxation, take a warm bath before you start preparing the meal. You'll find it relaxes you and soothes your nerves.

in line at the stockholders' meeting, everything would be all right.

Those, however, were two great big ifs. And, at the moment, Jerry Conway didn't have the answer.

Jerry Conway folded the newspaper, switched out lights in the office, and was heading for the door when the phone rang.

Jerry answered it. He was answering all phone calls now. He dared take no chance of offending some of the small stockholders who would want explanations, and, Heaven knows, there had been enough of them who had called up!

CONWAY JUST LAUGHED

So far these people had listened to his explanation that a company in the process of acquiring valuable oil properties couldn't blueprint its plans in the public press.

Stock which the investors had bought a year ago had more than doubled in value. Giff Farrell said that was due purely to a "stroke of luck" with which Conway had nothing to do.

Conway would always laugh when he quoted that. Stay with him and there might be more strokes of good luck, he promised. Tie up with Giff Farrell's crowd and the company would be loaded for the benefit of insiders.

So Jerry Conway picked up the telephone. "Jerry Conway speaking," he said.

ASKS APPOINTMENT

The woman's voice was intriguing, and yet there was something about it that carried its own warning. It was too syrupy-smooth, and Conway felt he had heard it before.

"Mr. Conway," she said, "I must see you. I have some secret information which will be of the greatest value to you."

"I'll be in my office at nine o'clock tomorrow morning, and . . ."

"No, no. I can't come to your office."

"Why not?"

"People are watching me. What do you suggest?"

"I want to meet you privately, alone, somewhere where no one will know, somewhere where we won't be disturbed."

"You have some idea," Jerry asked.

"Yes, if you'll go to the Apex Motel on Sunset tonight, register under your own name as a single, turn your lights out, leave your door unlocked, and wait until after midnight, I'll . . ."

"I'm sorry," Jerry interrupted. "That's out of the question."

"Why is it out of the question?"

"Well, Jerry equivocated. "I have other plans for this evening."

"How about tomorrow night?"

"No, I'm afraid I can't do it tomorrow night either."

"Is it because you're afraid of me?"

LIVES IN GLASS HOUSE

"I'm living in a glass house at the present time," Conway said dryly.

"Look," she said, "I can't talk with you any longer. My name is . . . Well, let's say it's Rosalind. Just call me Rosalind. I want to see you. I have information you should have, information that you must have in order to protect the stockholders, protect yourself, and save the company. Giff has a lot more proxies than you think he has. He's a very dangerous antagonist. You're going to have to start a counter campaign."

"I'm sorry," Conway said. "There are certain matters I can't discuss over the telephone, and certain matters I can't discuss in the press. After all, the stockholders must have some faith in someone. Otherwise, they'll wind up in the financial gutter. Their holdings have doubled in value during the past year under my management. I have every reason to believe they'll continue to climb, and . . ."

"Good heavens!" the voice exclaimed. "Don't try to sell me. I know. Giff Farrell is a crook. He's trying to get control of the company so he and his friends can make a cleanup by manipulating company assets. I wouldn't trust him two feet away for two seconds. I want you to have the information that I have."

"Can you put it in a letter?" Conway asked, curious.

"No, I can't put it in a letter," she said impatiently. "And if you knew as much as I know, you'd realize that I'm in danger just talking to you."

"What danger?" he asked.

"In danger of getting killed," she said, angrily, and slammed up the telephone.

MUST BE CAUTIOUS

However, Jerry knew the necessity for caution. Half a dozen attempts had been made to frame him during the last two weeks. If he should go to a motel, leave the door open, have some young woman join him in the dark, and then, perhaps a few minutes later, there should be the sound of police whistles and . . . No, it was a chance Jerry simply couldn't take.

Even a little unpleasant newspaper publicity coming at this time could well turn the tide in the proxy battle.

Jerry Conway waited for fifteen minutes, then again switched out the lights, saw that the night latch was on the door, and went down to the elevator.

Rosalind telephoned the next day at a little after eleven.

"There's a woman on the line who gives the name of Rosalind and no other name. She says you know her, that she has to talk with you, that it's important."

"I'll talk with her," Jerry said. He picked up the telephone, said, "Hello," and again heard the smooth tones of Rosalind's voice, a voice which he felt he should recognize but couldn't.

"Good morning, Mr. Conway."

"Good morning, Rosalind."

BEING TAILED

"Did you know you're being followed?"

Jerry hesitated. "I have wondered if perhaps certain people weren't taking an undue interest in my comings and goings."

"You're being tailed by a high-class detective agency," she said, "and that agency is being supplemented by a couple of thugs. Be very, very careful what you do."

"Thank you for the warning," Jerry said.

"But," she went on, "you must see me. I've tried to think of some way of getting in touch with you. One of the men who's shadowing you at the present time is a private detective. He's not dangerous. He's just doing a routine job of shadowing. However, there's another individual named Baker, whom they call Gashouse Baker. He's a one-man goon squad. Watch out for him! Are you armed?"

"Heavens, no!" Conway said.

"Then get a permit to carry a gun," she said. "You shouldn't have too much trouble spotting the detective. Baker will be more difficult. At the moment, he's driving a beat-up, black car with a corner bent on the license plate. Don't take any chances with that man!"

"These people are playing for keeps and they don't intend to play fair. You're looking for a straight, forward battle for proxies and you're planning everything along those lines. These people don't play that way."

DON'T TELL MY NAME

"And don't ever mention to anyone that you have been in communication with me. I shouldn't have given you the name of Rosalind, but I wanted to put the cards on the table."

Jerry Conway frowned thoughtfully. "I wish you could tell me something of the nature of the information you have, something . . ."

"Look," she said, "I can tell you the number of proxies they hold, and if I have your assurance that you can protect me, I can give you the names of the people who have sent in proxies. However, if any of this information should get out, they'd know where it came from, and I'd be in danger."

"How much danger?" Jerry Conway asked. If it's economical security that you . . .

"Don't be silly!" she interrupted sarcastically. "I've seen one woman after Gashouse Baker got done working her over. I . . . Oh-oh!"

The phone abruptly clicked and the connection went dead.

Jerry Conway gave the matter a great deal of thought. That afternoon, he drove around in a somewhat aimless pattern, carefully watching cars in his rear view mirror. He couldn't be certain anyone was following him, but he became very uneasy. He felt he was in danger.

Conway knew that he was going to have to take a chance on Rosalind. If she had the information she said she had, it would be of inestimable value.

If he knew the names of the persons who had sent in proxies, there would still be time to concentrate a campaign on these people.

Rosalind called shortly after two-thirty. This time, there was a note of pleading and desperation in her voice.

"I have to get this information to you so you can act on it. Otherwise, the company will be ruined."

"Exactly what is it that you want?"

"I want to give you information."

"And after that?" Conway asked.

"Now listen carefully," she said. "After that, after you are absolutely certain that you're not being followed, go to the Empire Drugstore on Sunset and LaBrea. There are three phone booths in that store. Go to the one farthest from the door, enter the booth and at precisely six-fifteen that phone will ring. Answer it."

"I want to give you information."

"Very well, Mr. Conway," she should she try to deceive you about her identity?"

"Nevertheless, I'm going to go," Conway announced. "The information is too valuable, too vital. I can't afford to run the chance of passing up a bet of that sort."

Suddenly, Eva Kane was back in character, an efficient, impersonal secretary.

"Very well, Mr. Conway," she asked.

"Now listen carefully," she said. "After that, after you are absolutely certain that you're not being followed, go to the Empire Drugstore on Sunset and LaBrea. There are three phone booths in that store. Go to the one farthest from the door, enter the booth and at precisely six-fifteen that phone will ring. Answer it."

Arctic Island to Be Familiar

Yank Air Travelers to Set Down at Airbase
by Cold, Barren Bay

WASHINGTON — Cold, barren Baffin Island in the Arctic may soon be as familiar to some American travelers as the Eiffel Tower and Buckingham Palace.

The dog-shaped island, almost three times bigger than New England, is the site of an airbase now being expanded into a major stop between the West Coast and Europe. Regular commercial service is expected to start this fall.

Baffin Island's importance can be seen by putting a tape measure on a globe. The mountainous, fiord-toothed island lies on the shortest route between San Francisco and London or Los Angeles and Hamburg, the National Geographic Society says. Planes can save time and money by refueling at Frobisher Bay, on Baffin Island, instead of flying the longer, conventional routes.

Burly bearded Sir Martin Frobisher discovered the Bay a generation before the first colonists landed in Virginia. He was looking for a northwest passage to Cathay.

Baffin Island's kayak-paddling Eskimos astounded the Elizabethan adventurer. To him they seemed half-men, half-fish.

TRAVELER AMAZED
The modern traveler may be amazed, too. For air-borne civilization is changing these rugged, jolly people. They are acquiring electric washing machines, and a taste for "civilized" food.

Since the food does not always keep during the summer, there may be room on Baffin Island some day for a good refrigerator salesman.

The airfield, built during World War II, lies about 1,000 miles north of Maine. President Eisenhower has approved use of the all-season field by Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines.

The Hudson's Bay Company, established in 1670, is still the major commercial enterprise on the island. The company can no longer hang a man or marry him, but it still buys furs, hands out medicine, and operates the world's oldest chain-store system.

Baffin Island's main commercial product is fur, particularly Arctic fox pelts. Foxes are plentiful only at intervals of about four years, because of their life cycle in the Arctic. The fox feeds on the musklike lemmings that feeds in turn on vegetation.

The fast-breeding lemmings rapidly eat all the food in an area and are forced to migrate. Driven by hunger, they may attempt to cross ice-filled seas and drown. Deprived of their prey, foxes starve. As vegetation grows again, so does the lemming population. Thus the cycle is repeated.

The recurrent scarcity of foxes and the vagaries of fashions in furs have long disturbed the Eskimo economy. But with the Frobisher Bay boom, the Eskimos will have other ways of making money to satisfy their taste for soft drinks and Western movies. Armed with souvenirs, the Eskimos may soon be seeking out tourists as keenly as they ever hunted seals with harpoons.

Southfield Board Asks Bids on Parking Lots, Site Improvements

By NANCE BELLEFLEUR
South Oakland Correspondent

MADISON HEIGHTS — Voters here will be asked to approve a $1,665,000 bond issue on Nov. 18, for the construction of a new high school.

A 30 teaching station high school will be built on a 47-acre site on Eleven Mile road between Lorenz and Comins highway, which has been purchased by the school board for $250,000.

Superintendent of schools F. Foster Wilkinson said this morning the school to house 1,000 pupils will include a combination library-auditorium, swimming pool, workshops etc., and will be built along the lines recommended by the citizens advisory committee.

Berkley
Nov. 12 is the date set for a special election here when voters will be asked to approve a $5,300,500 bond issue for a new high school.

The new high school will be located on a 29-acre site west of Greenfield, between Catalpa and Eleven Mile road. Supt. of schools Milburn Anderson said the land has been purchased by the school board for $239,000.

The Berkley school district includes a large part of Huntington Woods and one square mile of Oak Park.

Southfield
A call for bids for parking lots and site improvements in school areas was made at this week's school board meeting.

The approximate cost will be $140,000, said assistant superintendent of schools Glen Levey.

A bond issue of $4 million approved by Southfield voters last June 10 is paying the cost for additions to various elementary schools, 19 additions to the high school, plus an auditorium.

Hazel Park
Construction of a new high school will start here early in the spring of 1938, to be located in the Jimmie Fuller Subdivision in the Hugh Road and Croyley Road area, Supt. of schools D. G. Robinson said.

Voters approved a bond issue of $3 1/2 million for school buildings in the Dec. 12 election. One-and-one-half million of this has been spent on additions to elementary schools and the balance will be used for the building of the new high school.

Secretary Earns Retirement From Lapeer Institution
LAPEER — Thirty-five years of service as secretary to six different superintendents of the Lapeer State Home and Training School end this month with the retirement of Mrs. Julia Yaeger.

A native of Clarkston, Mrs. Yaeger came to Lapeer in 1919 after the death of her husband and took a "temporary" job at the home.

Before her six-week term ended, she was appointed secretary to the superintendent, the position she has held since.

The six superintendents Mrs. Yaeger served as secretary were Dr. Harley Haynes, Dr. W. J. Kay, Dr. R. L. Dixon, who served for two separate terms, Dr. Fred Hanna, Dr. R. E. Cooper and Dr. A. T. Rehn, present head of the institution.

Mrs. Yaeger's plans for the future are indefinite but her intention is "to take life easy and to enjoy myself." She will visit in Clarkston for a time.

Said Dr. Rehn: "My highest respects go to Mrs. Yaeger, and my best wishes for a retirement which she has so well earned. She has been the right arm of six superintendents and a loyal and devoted employee all these years."

Teacher in American School
LAKEVILLE — Betty Marie Sole of this village flew from New York to Baghdad, Iraq, where she was united in marriage to Walter John William Pope of Kent, England.

The wedding took place at the Embassy of Great Britain at Baghdad on Oct. 7.

The new Mrs. Pope met her husband in Baghdad where for the past three years she has been teaching music and English in the American School for Girls.

Mr. Pope, an engineer, is an inspector of works on the Iraq Development Board of the Consulting Engineers for a London firm.

UNDER MISSION AUSPICES
Betty, after receiving her bachelor of music degree at Wheaton, Ill., and her masters from the Conservatory of Music in Chicago, had been chosen for her Baghdad teaching position by the Board of Foreign Missions, through Highland Park Presbyterian Church.

Prior to her marriage, Betty came home to visit her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Sole of Lakeville for eight weeks.

Members of the group, wondering how they could give the couple a wedding gift in view of the luggage limitations on her flight to Iraq, solved the problem by giving her a money shower.

This they said, gave her "bulk" she could handle and use in the furnishing of their apartment in Baghdad.

Many homes would be saved if every family conducted a nighty visual fire inspection just before retiring. It only takes a moment, and the Institute for Safer Living says it may pay off sooner than you think. Check ash trays for live cigarettes, check the fireplace for live coals, check stoves for burners left on and see that all electrical appliances are off. Do this and you will sleep with more security.

On sofa is Johnny 5, Susie 14, holding Terry 2, and Mrs. Luebke. Her husband is holding six-months-old Judy, Molly 10 and George 7. Standing is Lester, 15, Elizabeth 13 and Edward 12.

Mother of Ten Stricken With Cancer, 3 Teenage Children Maintain Home

By RERA HEINTZELMAN
Of Our Waterford Bureau

Three Clarkston teenagers are attempting to care for their mother, who is dying of cancer, and still keep attending school until they are sixteen years old.

The story of how a mother of ten children was stricken with cancer on Mother's Day, and rushed to the hospital for emergency operations has been revealed.

Mrs. Edward Luebke, 34, of 6571 Sashabaw Rd., knows that "her days are numbered." After painful weeks in the hospital, she is again back home with her brood—probably for the last time.

Because of recent unemployment of Luebke, money for the family has been scarce, and unpaid doctor and household bills have accumulated. He is now working as a welder at a Pontiac company.

When Mrs. Luebke first learned of her plight, she and her husband decided to place all of the children up for adoption by responsible couples.

However, since that time, keeping the older youngsters together seemed the best solution.

Her oldest children, Elizabeth 13, Susie 14, and Lester 15, along with their father, have taken over the big job of managing the home and feeding and caring for their paralyzed mother.

Although Mrs. Luebke had trained her children well, their efficiency in cooking, cleaning and keeping the family organized has amazed their mother, and matured them far beyond their years, she said.

The three youngest children, six-months-old Judy, Terry, 2, and Cindy, 3, have been legally adopted.

Those still living at home besides the teenagers are John, 5, Molly, 10, and Edward, 12. George, 7, is with relatives near Lapeer.

Special arrangements have been made with principal of Clarkston High School, S. F. Goede, for the three children to take care of their mother and also get their required education.

A system has been worked out whereby each of the youngsters is in school three days out of five. That gives two days each for work at home.

In spite of the part-time attendance, all three are getting average marks in their studies, according to Goede.

The law states that a child must attend school regularly until he is 16 years old. However, there are exceptions to every rule, Goede said.

"Because of the unusual circumstances, and the fact that these children have proven their ability to make up work they have missed, the special accommodations have been satisfactory," he concluded.

Twister Hits Homes, Hurts 19 in Louisiana

OPELOUSAS, La. (U) — A tornado smashed homes and trees last night as it swirled through Opelousas. Nineteen persons were injured.

State Police Trooper Davy Knight said five or six homes were leveled.

Witnesses said they heard a noise and then felt their homes lifted from the foundations.

The tornado struck about 10 p.m. and was accompanied by heavy rains. It cut a northward path from the Cypress Grove section of St. Landry Parish toward State Highway 31 about four miles east of Opelousas.

A tree growing in the open is more likely to be hit by lightning than one in a forest.

Cookie Recipe Wins $25,000

Old Formula in Family Cops First Prize in Baking Contest

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (U) — An old family cookie recipe has won $25,000 for a French-born widow.

"I used an American twist—aluminum foil," said Mrs. Gerda Roderer, who was awarded first prize last night in a $100,000 baking contest.

Her entry, a butter cookie with shortbread flavor, took top honors among all the goodies turned out by 100 amateur cooks from 36 states and Hawaii.

A commercial artist, Mrs. Roderer lives in Berkeley, Calif., with her son Frank, 24. She came to this country from France four years ago.

Mrs. Roderer said she will use the prize money for her son's education and for traveling about the United States.

Her cookie was named "ac-cordion treats," after the pleated aluminum foil in which the cookie was baked.

The contest was sponsored by the Pillsbury Flour Co. and the manufacturer of the gloves used by the contestants (General Electric).

Other prizes included: Second grand prize of $5,000 went to Mrs. Beatrice A. Ojankangas, whose husband is an instructor at the University of Minnesota's Duluth branch.

Top bride's prize of $3,000 was awarded Mrs. Deborah W. Ludwig, wife of a Forest Park, Ill., dentist.

Top junior prize went to Miss Elizabeth A. Wickersham, 17, a high school senior from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Senior prize was won by Mrs. Ester J. Oakden, whose husband William is a highway engineer at Bevidere, Ill.

Smile of Queen Banishes All Discomforts

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
OTTAWA (INS) — Queen Elizabeth and her prince de resistance are invading the U.S. today, and I hereby do challenge anyone — from Inconoclast to sour grape — to give them the cool eye.

It's a curious, bewildering business for Americans, trying to understand, at long distance, what makes people bend over front-wards in awe and reverence of a queen.

But I guarantee that it happens. Even on base, know-it-all type Americans, the presence of a queen (at no closer than 15 paces, please) has a peculiarly dramatic hold.

You wonder what's come over you when, as she walks into a room while you are telling an enormously amusing story, you suddenly shut up.

Or you have 25 minutes in which to dress up to your molars — in a full length gown that cost you a lot of money and you'll never be able to use again — and you're swearing at the cost, in dough and physical deterioration, of seeing the Queen. All this protocol, nuts. Then all at once

You're feeling unreasonably privileged to be in the same room with Her Majesty and dressed for the part. At a press reception, you're one of 500 in line to meet the Queen. Like the rest of the girls you are wearing long white gloves up to here, which you resent for the reasons above-mentioned concerning ball gowns.

After nearly a half-hour's wait, during which you growl to somebody that you wouldn't go through this to see "My Fair Lady," yet, and someone grows back, the Queen is suddenly before you.

She gives out a big, genuine sort of smile and a hand that is quite probably bruised from a few hundred hearty greetings, and then she says:

"How'd it do? And where are you from?"

All your professional life, you've been handy with repartee, but here in the feeling of awe again. So you respond, mispronouncing daintily as you die: "International News in News York."

One newsmen, savvy and

archs from the other side, was even more bemused by the Queen's attention. When she, interested in learning his fourth estate affiliation, asked "Who are you with,"

he was struck dumb.

"What did you say?" he finally said.

"Who are you with?" she smiled.

"Oh, Them," he said.

"Them?"

"The guys up ahead."

It happens. The Queen is the commandant of respect and reserve and sympathy from all who are close enough to feel her dignity. She makes usually implies men polite and callous women soft.

Upon hundreds of allegedly "hardened" reporters, whose ears are unaccustomed to dynamite salutes before breakfast and whose mouths are more accustomed to yammering than stammering, Elizabeth II has cast a strange but effective spell.

The first Christmas greeting card is believed to have been sent in London in 1842.

Chiefs Play for PHS Alumni Friday

Now is the time for all good Pontiac High School alumni to come to the aid of their Alma Mater.

The surprising Chiefs meet SVC rival Saginaw Friday night at Wisner Stadium and a special invitation is out to all Pontiac High graduates to join the festivities in the 1st annual homecoming celebration.

Pontiac, boasting a 2-1 season mark, surprised Arthur Hill, 20-12 last week and will take the field against the Trojans with PHS rated as slight underdogs.

Saginaw with a 1-2-1 record, gave defending SVC champion a rough time last week before losing 14-7. In previous games the Trojans were mauled by top ranked Midland, 54-7, and defeated Bay City Handy 13-0. The tie was a 6-6 opener with Grand Rapids South.

The big factor for Saginaw is its bruising line which is the heaviest in the league. The Chiefs will counter with backfield speed, which has been a big factor in wins over Arthur Hill and Lansing Sexton.

With big Dick Whitmer, ex-quarterback playing at fullback now, Pontiac has gained running power in the middle, while Bob Manning, Jim Kellar, Nick Shorter and Larry Douglas make up the speed at halfbacks.

This will be the 20th game between the two schools and Saginaw is on the long end of the series, having won 14, lost 10 and tying one.

Last year the Chiefs took a 21-7 decision for their only win in the conference.

Homecoming festivities will begin with a special student assembly in the school Friday afternoon. A float parade with bands will start at 5:30 p.m. at the high school and march to Wisner Field.

In pre-game ceremony the king and queen of homecoming, Larry Beamer and Joanne Johnson will be crowned by Mayor William W. Donaldson.

CHIEF SPARKS — The undermanned Pontiac High line has been a surprising factor this year and three of the outstanding members of the forward wall are, left to right, tackle George Palaian, guard Willie Duncan and center and linebacker Joe Hill. The Chiefs upset favored Arthur Hill last week and meet Saginaw in homecoming festivities at Wisner Stadium Friday night.

Coast Outfielder Bought by Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers today announced the purchase of outfielder Jim Green from the Sacramento Solons of the Pacific Coast League.

The veteran flycatcher is 30 and has previous major league experience with the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Philadelphia Phillies. His best year was in 1953 when he batted .285 and drove in 100 runs for the Redlegs. The following year he hit .280 and drove home 95 runs.

He hit .283 for Sacramento last season and batted in 76 runs to rank ninth in the PCL in that department.

Has Waterford 11 Arrived? Jays Will Answer Question

By BILL CORNWELL.
Was Waterford's awakening against Berkeley last Friday something permanent or just a recess between naps?

It won't take too long to answer that question in view of the opposition confronting the Skippers this week.

Southfield, with only a tie to mar its record in four games, collides with the Skippers Friday under the lights at Waterford in a crucial Inter-Lakes Conference contest.

Coch Monte Charles' Bluejays were lightly regarded in pre-season forecasts, but thus far they have made the experts eat their words. They started slowly, but their improvement has been rapid.

Trouble Ahead for Texas A&M

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M, which this time can get into a bowl game if it's champion, makes its start toward a repeat as Southwest Conference football king here Saturday.

The Aggies, who have now gone through 14 games without defeat, couldn't have hand-picked a tougher foe than the one they're moving into championship play against—Texas Christian.

If this game runs according to tradition it'll be decided along about the last five or six seconds. In six years there have been a total of 24 points difference in the two teams. In the past three there have been only five.

Last season the Aggies beat TCU 7-6 as a tornado raged at College Station. It knocked the Horned Frogs out of a repeat as conference champions although they got into the Cotton Bowl. A&M won the title but was ineligible for the bowl because it was on probation. That probation since has been lifted.

Tribe Directors to Decide Fate of Club's Boss

Sports Writers Expect General Manager to Be Ousted at Cleveland

CLEVELAND (U)—Sports writers for this city's three daily newspapers think it likely that Hank Greenberg will be fired today as General Manager of the Cleveland Indians.

If not, wrote one, the Indians will vanish — to Minneapolis in 1959.

The club's 13 directors vote today on whether to retain the one-time home run king, who has bossed the Indians for eight years — some fast, some lean.

The least was the season just completed. The Indians lost games, fans and money amid rising rumors and denials that the franchise would be moved.

A majority vote of the 13 directors — not a stock majority — will settle the issue.

Greenberg is a director himself. He owns a fifth of the stock, but has only one vote in 13 on his own job. He says he intends to fight to keep it.

"Why should the general manager with the third best record in baseball resign?" he asked.

But the experts believe Greenberg must go — for much the same reason that Greenberg fired field manager Kirby Farrell at the end of the 1957 disaster. Somebody must be the goat.

"Stated in the simplest possible terms," wrote Gordon Cobbledick, sports editor of the Plain Dealer, "it has come to this:

"If Greenberg is reappointed, it will mean that the owners do indeed intend to seek greener pastures elsewhere. If he is fired, or persuaded to resign, it will mean that they hope to continue to do business in Cleveland."

Cobbledick said that the directors who will vote against Greenberg "are convinced that public opinion is so strongly anti-Greenberg as to make it impossible for them to win back the vanishing fans so long as he remains."

Greenberg is "aware of, and puzzled and hurt by" the fans' antagonism, wrote Cobbledick. "He believes he has been the victim of a hostile press, and in a measure that is true, but he is unable to see that he created the hostility."

Hal Lebowitz of the News wrote that the odds against Greenberg appear large.

Frank Gibbons of the Press said that Greenberg's dismissal was "believed a certainty."

Ed McAuley wrote in the News that he didn't envy the directors in their task.

LONG WAY UP — Clarkson will have its hands full against unbeaten but twice-tied Holly in an important Wayne-Oakland League game Friday and two boys who will make it rough are Tom McDaniel, big 6-foot-6 end and quarterback Bill Taylor, who last week sparked Holly to victory against previously unbeaten Milford.

Oakland B Powers Collide

Orion-Clawson Bout Friday

Two prep football teams as different as night and day meet head-on Friday night with the Oakland B League championship at stake.

Defending champion Clawson and title-hungry Lake Orion, both undefeated in three starts, go at each other with hammer and tongs on the Orion gridiron in a game which could decide the league crown.

Both teams were idled by the flu bug last week and they should be well rested for this crucial encounter. Clawson's league battle with Madison and the Orion-Oxford tussle were postponed by a heavy flu invasion.

Clawson, ranked 9th in the state Class B poll, holds victories over Center Line, 28-0; Fitzgerald, 38-4, and Oak Park, 27-0. Fitzgerald has been the Trojans' only conference opponent.

The Dragons opened the season with a 41-13 triumph over ex-member Roseville, then scored league wins over Madison, 27-6, and Fitzgerald, 26-6.

Their methods of attack are vastly different. Clawson is a powerful club which churns out yardage in almost mechanical style. Orion is a quick-striking team posing a

A powerhouse backfield — quarterback George Almashy, fullback Lowell Acton and halfbacks Dave Rehse and John Volk — operate behind a massive line for the Trojans, who grind out first downs in ball-control fashion until the last white stripe is crossed.

Air-minded Nick Niera, Orion's flashy quarterback, and halfback Jim Drake, the county's top scorer, provide the Dragons with overhead striking power while halfbacks John Schoff and Doug Storey are breakaway threats on the ground. Long runs and sensational scoring plays have been typical of the Orion offense this season.

It's true that you always string along with the champ until he's beaten, then Clawson rates the nod in this battle. But it should be a first class dogfight.

Troy, unbeaten in four starts and very much a contender for the title, faces Madison at home. Fitzgerald and Avondale clash in a battle of cellar-dwellers at Fitzgerald.

Bucs Buy 2 Players From Hollywood Club

HOLLYWOOD (U)—The Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League have sold two players to the Pittsburgh Pirates for an undisclosed price.

The club announced yesterday that the Pirates were taking right-hand pitcher Curt Raydon and first baseman R. C. Stevens. Raydon had a 10-10 record last season with the Stars.

'Magic Grid Attraction'

New Western Pro Loop Abounds in Fine Talent

PHOENIX, Ariz. (U)—The newly formed Western Professional Football League holds a "magic attraction for players out of college but not wanted by the National Football League.

That's how the league's president and founder, E. P. "Chink" Coleman, describes the appeal of his four-team conference.

At present, the league teams are in Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz., South San Francisco, and El Paso, Tex. And, adds Coleman, if he can whip up as much enthusiasm among the fans as there is among the players, he'll add two more teams next season.

Emphasizing that the league does not function as a "farm system" for the National Football League, Coleman says the teams abound in plenty of potential big-time talent.

And besides the talent, there's the spirit which Coleman says can best be described by the fact that some players travel "60 or 70 miles just to work out with the squad."

Some of the players are NFL veterans, including Willford "Whizzer" White, former halfback for the Chicago Bears, Lou Ferris, a 245-pound tackle with the Pittsburgh Steelers, and Andrew Rodez, a 265-pound guard with the Chicago Cardinals.

As Coleman sees it, the league's problem is not players: It's fans. Attendance has averaged 5,300 at Tucson and 3,000 at Phoenix, Coleman estimates but dwindles rapidly in the other cities.

To boost attendance, Coleman recently lowered general admission prices in Phoenix to 90 cents a game. The Phoenix team plays Sunday night to avoid conflicts with afternoon telecasts of NFL games.

The players, all of whom hold down fulltime jobs, are paid either a minimum $30 a game, says Coleman, or 40 per cent of the net gate, whichever is larger. Although this is chicken feed to the NFL, the cost of sponsoring a club in the new league prohibits such frills as league statisticians or publicists.

The ever-optimistic Coleman predicts the Phoenix-Tucson game Sunday will draw 10,000 in Phoenix Municipal Stadium. Tucson and Phoenix currently are 1-2 in the league standings.

"And some of those 10,000," adds Coleman, "may be NFL scouts."

MSU Fears Jinx in Ranking

ANN ARBOR—Is Michigan State jinxed by its election as the nation's No. 1 team?

And does Purdue, State's opponent this week, hold the Indian sign over the splendid Spartans?

The answer to these questions, of course, will be provided Saturday in the Spartan Stadium. But apparently there are some who believe the answers could be "yes."

Two are Fred Stabley, Michigan State publicist, and Bob Woodworth, the publicist at Purdue.

They outlined their feelings on the subject for the Michigan Football Writers Assn. yesterday at Ann Arbor.

"Michigan State was No. 1 when knocked off by Purdue in 1933 and by Illinois in 1936," Stabley told the scribes at their weekly meeting. "In 1933, Purdue snapped our 23-game winning streak."

"I don't think the odds against this week are anything like the odds that were against them in 1933," Woodworth said.

1933. We had trouble beating them 12-9 last year."

The Spartans moved in to the top national position in this week's Associated Press poll by virtue of their 35-6 shellacking of Michigan.

It looks as if you have to play Purdue to get any recognition," Woodworth said.

He explained how Purdue has out-statisticed fourth-ranked Minnesota, eighth-ranked Notre Dame and 13th-ranked Wisconsin in its three losses.

"Somebody found out Michigan State is going to play Purdue, so they jumped them to No. 1."

He told the writers the Boiler-makers have been a much better team than their record indicates.

"We fumbled 17 times and lost the ball nine times in our three games," he said. "We completely dominated the Minnesota game. They didn't get into Purdue territory once under their own power and still beat us 21-17."

Another speaker at the meeting was Michigan coach Bennie Oosterbaan.

"It was just about the finest performance I've ever seen any team make," Oosterbaan said of MSU's performance against his own club.

Best NCAA Figures

MSU Leads Total Offense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Michigan State is backing its standing as the country's No. 1 football team by leading the major colleges in total offense and rushing, NCAA figures showed today. Other Big Ten teams are close.

State, first-place team in The Associated Press weekly poll, also stands fifth among colleges in passing offense and ranks third behind two other Big Ten schools in scoring average.

Undeclared Michigan State has averaged 506 yards a game in three games, on the ground and in the air, Iowa (497.3) and Wisconsin (442.7) follow in a near Big Ten monopoly.

The Spartans, paced by Walt Kowalczyk, gained 1,023 yards in three games for a leading 341-yards-per-game mark. Next in line is Wisconsin (995 for 331.7).

In scoring, Michigan State takes a back seat to Iowa (137, points, 45.7 average) and Wisconsin (128, 42.7) State is tied for third with Minnesota, each with a 36-point average. The Hawks and Badgers meet Saturday in Iowa City.

But there are others besides the Big Ten.

Utah, for instance, is the best passing college with a per game yardage of 202.5 on 56 completions in 92 tries. Of course, Big Teners Michigan State and Iowa are the most efficient passers. The Hawks racked up 11 yards for every completed pass, the Spartans .621 average (36 for 58) is the best.

Hunters' Army of 750,000 Set for Action

State Estimates That Many Will Be Afield During Fall Season

Michigan's 1957 small game hunting activity gets into full swing Oct. 21 when the major seasons open in the southern lower peninsula.

Starting at 10 a.m. on that date, thousands of hunters will be afield with pheasants, rabbits and squirrels as the principal targets.

Some 750,000 nimrods will be active this year in various small game seasons, including waterfowl and grouse hunters who got their first action Oct. 1.

Pheasants, of course, will be the most popular game in southern Michigan farming country and hunters should find another good crop of ringnecks.

A hunter bag in excess of 1,000,000 pheasants is predicted for the Oct. 21-Nov. 10 season in the lower peninsula. Last year, the take was 1,126,000 birds—the fourth consecutive year the million mark was reached.

Bag limits of two pheasants per day, four in possession and eight for the season are unchanged from last year.

Howell, Edsel Ford Win Harrier Events

Howell in Class B and Edsel Ford in Class A were winners yesterday in the annual Thurston high invitational cross-country meet at Thurston. Ten Class A and eight Class B schools were in competition.

Trenton and Hazel Park finished 23 back of Edsel Ford. Howell's Bob Wieland was 1st in "B" with 10:52.5. His team compiled 42 points to top Marysville and West Bloomfield in the next two spots. The Keego runners all received either medals or ribbons.

Birds, Rabbits Up for Fall Shooting

Pheasant 'Derby' Opens Oct. 21

By H. GUY MOATS

With promises of better shooting for most all small game during the Michigan fall hunting season that opens next Monday at 10 a.m., one of the most active Pontiac Press "Big Pheasant Derby" competitions is in the offing.

The Press will award the lucky hunters who turn in the heaviest pheasant, and the longest one (beak to tail tip) with U. S. Savings Bonds. A $50 reward will go to the winner of the biggest bird division (weight only considered) and $25 to the one who bags the longest one.

Only full-time Oakland county residents are eligible, but birds may be shot anywhere in Michigan (in legal areas). Entries must be registered, measured and weighed at The Pontiac Press Sports Department between 7 a.m. 1:30 p.m., except Sundays when no entries will be taken. Final entries must be filed by noon of Nov. 12. The 1956 winners were Mrs.

Mrs. (Ruth) Bedard, Sashabaw (heaviest) and Jerry McKay of Pontiac (longest bird).

Mrs. Bedard's bird weighed 4 pounds, 8 1/2 ounces. Jerry McKay's longest bird winner measured 39 and seven-eighths inches in length. Mrs. Bedard's entry was one of the heaviest ever recorded in the long-established contest.

Reports from conservation field men indicate that there will be about twice as many ringnecks in many areas as last fall, with populations showing increases of from 10 to 25 per cent above a year ago. Biggest gains are reported for Lapeer, Sanilac, and in Oakland. Best Oakland county areas are expected to be in Avon and Oakland townships and Highland Recreation area west of Pontiac.

Rabbits and squirrels are also reported to have shown population gains in this area, as well as in most sections of the eastern part of the state.

Season opens at 10 a.m. Oct. 21, closes Nov. 10. Bag limits are unchanged.

Orion 'Dianas' Both Put Shaft in Same Deer

Fire at One Time, to Down 100-Pound Animal

Among the proudest bow hunters of the Pontiac Area are Mary Jane Sinclair (Mrs. Richard) and Ardith Stone (Mrs. Arthur) of Lake Orion. Their joint flight downed their deer (100-pounder) at 60 feet near Harrison where they were hunting with their as yet unsuccessful husbands.

Both were surprised when they realized that Ardith hit the deer in the heart, while Mary's arrow hit the neck. Either shot would have downed the deer.

The Lake Orion Archery Club has had contests regularly this summer of one variety or another to raise money for their club house, and the girls, being active members, have had practice galore which paid off.

The two couples have been interested in archery for about six years and have hunted the last four. This is their first successful trip.

The deer, as was downed with their first arrows, as they were walking in the state forest. The girls were wearing regular hunting clothes rather than the camouflage regularly associated with the sport.

Oxford Man Wins Shoot

Top place in the last weekend trap shoot at Lapeer Gravel Pit, sponsored by Metamora Lions club went to an Oxford man, Abe Rosman. Runnerup was Curtis Middleton of Metamora and third place went to Lloyd Jakubos of Metamora.

Has Pushbutton Fishing

CHESTER, Va. (AP)—Paul Hillard's fishing technique gets results but the equipment is costly. He landed a five pound, 13 ounce bass with a $75,000 power shovel while working on the Richmond-Petersburg toll road beside the Appomattox River.

Sitting high in his cab, Hillard spotted the flick of a fin in the water below. He released the giant scoop and plucked the stunned fish from the water and flipped it ashore.

Won on Jumpers, Too

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP)—Earl Phelps, currently winning races on the flat, also has been successful as a steeplechase rider. He won the National Maiden Hurdle race at Monmouth Park in 1953 with River Jordan.

Redheads, Cans on the Way

Flights Expected Shortly

By JACK PATTERSON

Mid-October is a time of special significance to the wildfowler. Any time after the 15th gunners can begin looking for major flights of redheads, and canvasbacks, the "bay ducks" of old time market hunters, from the prairie provinces of the north west.

Broadbills, too, and scads of other, lesser, species, should soon be showing up in force on our two local shooting grounds, Saginaw Bay and Lake St. Clair.

There has been some shooting to date of course, but it has largely consisted of bushwhacking local ducks in pond and pothole. Local duck shooting isn't what it used to be mainly because of continued draining of wetlands.

Some of the sportiest local shooting, for green-wing teal, is largely a thing of the past because the birds have mostly moved on before the season's opening.

Aside from being deprived of an interesting form of shooting, we deplore this situation because the green-wing, in this region, is one of the three "native" ducks we consider consistently edible. The other two are the black duck and pintail.

Pot-hole shooting is fun, and has

Webb Meets LaBua in 10-Round Fight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Spider Webb, 6th ranked middleweight contender, and Jackie LaBua self-styled playboy-fighter, meet tonight in a scheduled 10-round bout.

Webb, substituting for Ralph "Tiger" Jones, who pulled a leg ligament in training, has lost only two of 25 professional fights. One of his losses was to Charlie Joseph, whom he defeated in a rematch.

LaBua has won 28 of 39 professional fights with nine of his 11 losses coming on split decisions.

7 Teams Will Run at Clarenceville

Field for the annual Clarenceville Invitational cross-country meet, Oct. 22 now includes seven teams. Host school is the defending champion and other teams will represent West Bloomfield, Milford, Oak Park, Detroit West Lutheran, Livonia Bentley and Redford Union.

The Keego Harbor harriers finished 3th in last year's event. Notre Dame football coach Terry Brennan began the 1957 season with a three-year coaching record of 19 victories and 11 setbacks.

some rewards, and let him who likes it spend his time there, but for us duck shooting has always meant big waters. The icy spray, the slop of a fair sea running, a feather-gray sky fading into an empty horizon — these things are the warp and woof of duck hunting.

Of the many species of diving ducks we consider two consistently worthy of putting to the fire. Canvasbacks and redheads — and in this region we find little difference between them — are generally reliable.

Broadbills can be excellent, depending upon what opportunity, or lack of it, they've had to chase fish and eat fresh water clams. Their smaller cousins, the bluebills, can't be trusted at all.

As for all the rest, well, we'd have to be pretty hungry to fool with them at any time. This appraisal applies only to this region.

Of the three main ways to hunt diving ducks, the least comfortable and perhaps most productive is the lay-out boat, legitimate descendant of the outlawed battery. Next in effectiveness and surely much more comfortable is sneak shooting. Most popular and least effective is the permanent offshore blind.

Before birds become blind-shy offshore blinds can be very effective, if gunners will let the birds decoy. Later, when birds veer away from blinds and pass at extreme ranges, blind shooters extract a most appalling toll in injured fowl from passing flocks.

We'd guess for every duck downed under these circumstances, four or five "clean misses" carry away shot to die a lingering death elsewhere.

NEW YORK — Madison Square

fight gates in 1945 tallied a total of $2,262,787. During the 1955 ring season the turnstiles clicked for only about $228,000.

Popular, but Secretive Bird Is the Ringneck

ALL OUTDOORS (INS) — The most sought-after game bird in the country—the ringneck pheasant—still hides many secrets from both hunter and biologist.

A ringneck's rascality is known to most veteran hunters. These antics include unorthodox behavior before gun and dog, running like a rabbit, holding tight until you practically step on him, and general built-in contradictions.

Dr. J. P. Linduska, director of wildlife management for Remington's Game Farm in Maryland, said ringnecks will prove to you that black is white and often leave you open-mouthed as he reverses the field.

the Pacific 2,400 miles southwest of San Francisco. Only seven are inhabited. The capital, Honolulu, built on the site of a Polynesian village, was settled in the 1790's. It is older than most state capitals on the mainland.

Who's Got the Button? That's $50,000 Question

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Button, most esteemed of the 56 names on the document, who's got the Gwinnett? That's the $50,000 — or at least $25,000 — question among autograph collectors.

The signature of Button Gwinnett, one of Georgia's three signers of the Declaration of Independence, is the most esteemed Gwinnett has persisted as a mystery in American history.

Born in Gloucester, England, around 1735, he came to Charleston, S. C., about 30 years later. He lived there about two years, then bought slaves and settled on farm land on St. Catherine's Island, Georgia.

Cool toward the colonists' cause at first, he warmed up and was elected a delegate from the Colony of Georgia to the Continental Congress.

The tremendous cost of a Button Gwinnett signature results from his early death in a duel. He apparently was not much of a writer and penned few letters in his short life. His known signatures are said to number less than 30. Many of these are held by libraries and institutions and are not likely ever to be offered to collectors.

Gwinnett became Georgia's second governor. But his main desire seems to have been to be a soldier. When Scotland-born Col. Zachary McIntosh was chosen to head Georgia's forces, had blood arose between him and Gwinnett.

The feud culminated on the morning of May 16, 1777, when the two middle-aged men faced each other at 12 paces in a field within the present limits of Savannah, Ga.

Group of Indians Spoils Business at Carnival

CINCINNATI — Edward L. Schott, president of a local amusement park, believes he may have found the cause of the rain and bad weather that has been plaguing him.

A group of Hopi Indians, hired to perform dances at the park, have been wowing the customers with a spirited rendition of an Indian rain dance.

Eyes Human Weapon

DETROIT — Maj. Gen. James E. Briggs, superintendent of the U. S. Air Force Academy, says the country should give more attention to its strongest weapons—human beings. "I sometimes wonder whether we should not give even more attention than we do to the development of our greatest resource — high quality human beings," Briggs says.

There are 50,000 farm ponds stocked with fish in Kansas.

More Cars Air Cooled

NEW YORK — At the present rate of installation by factories and dealers, some 390,000 1957 automobiles will have air-conditioning units installed in them by the end of the year compared with 225,000 cars so equipped in 1956.

Grads Get Higher Pay

CHICAGO — The Illinois Institute of Technology reports that its January and June engineering graduates are getting higher starting salaries than those of previous years. According to the school, they got jobs paying an average of $473 a month to start, $82 more than the 1956 average.

A sow belonging to Alan Gibson, of Newcastle, South Africa, had a litter of 19.

CARSON CITY, Nev. — During the 1957 fiscal year, Nevada netted some $1,100,000 in mineral taxes, more than double those collected the year before.

Swims Out of Clutches of the Law

HONOLULU (U)—A Walkiki beachman swam out of the clutches of the law. A policeman spotted Richard Taylor, 30, on the sand, and headed to arrest him for failure to show up to begin a jail sentence for assault.

Taylor saw the policeman coming, dashed into the water and struck out briskly for the open sea. He was last seen headed for an area dotted with numerous landing beaches.

Jury Seriously Views Plaintiff's False Teeth

MINNEAPOLIS (U)—As the jurors deliberated over "exhibit A" in the jury room, Thomas Estes of Minneapolis fidgeted in the courtroom.

"Exhibit A" was his upper partial plate. Estes was plaintiff in a $3,000 damage suit against a drug chain. He claimed he broke a tooth on a rusty metal screw embedded in a candy bar he bought at one of the chain's stores. He got his upper plate back, but lost the suit. About 8,000 citizens of the United States live permanently in Paris.

Red Census Takers Schedule Trial Run

MOSCOW (U)—The Soviet Union's census takers have scheduled a trial run on the 1939 national census in August of this year. A test count of the inhabitants of individual districts in Moscow, Leningrad, Novosibirsk, Staling and other areas is set for Aug. 1. Lessons learned in these local operations will be incorporated in preparations for the big count planned for January, 1939.

PUSH LEGISLATION — Members of the cooperative extension group in Waterford Township and Pontiac, the Modern Homemakers, don't like the present Michigan traffic law concerning school buses. This is window display week for the county groups and they chose the theme to push legislation to make it a law that traffic stop in front as well as behind stopped school buses. Mrs. John Stoppert, of Drayton Plains points to a suggested form of how the law should read in the window of the Oxford Shop, 59 W. Huron St. Extension groups this week will receive awards for their window displays.

'Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better'

East Berlin Goes Copycat

BERLIN (INS) — Everybody Berlin opened a music, dance and theater festival. knows that keeping up with the Joneses is nothing but a bourgeois folly. What is less known, is that the same frivolous envy corrupts the Communist mind.

Take flowerpots. West Berlin gets out a string of handsome flowerpots to decorate the main street, the Kurfürstendamm. This puts the Communists in East Berlin in a tizzy. Then almost identical flowerpots appear in Alexanderplatz, in central East Berlin.

Except that the Communists usually do it worse — and last.

For instance, West Berlin has just closed a building exhibit which was one of Europe's top tourist attractions this summer. It was a complex of 50 buildings, up to 17 stories high, designed by nearly 60 of the world's top architects.

Naturally, East Berlin had to have its building exhibit. But the Communists didn't have any buildings to show. They showed a hall full of plans, drawings and models.

Just before the Western building exhibit opened, there was the West Berlin Movie Festival which was followed within days by the East Berlin Movie Festival.

Now the competition is on a cultural level. West Berlin opened its music, dance and theater festival at the end of September—so naturally, a few days later East Actually on the cultural level, East Berlin often comes out top dog. The heavily subsidized opera, ballet and orchestras in East Berlin are first-rate.

Keeping up with the Joneses has become so important to East Berlin that it sometimes leads to dangerous un-Marxist practices, such as jazz and balls.

East Berlin's Communist chiefs grew tired of watching the youth of the city troop over the sector border in the evenings to hear Western jazz, so they authorized their own jazz club.

Pot-Bellied Men Are Victims, Surgeon Tells Convention

Got Backache? Trim That 'Sag'

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Oct. 15—The pot-bellied man and the pregnant woman are in the same boat: they are prone to painful backache or subject to aggravation of an existing one, a Canadian surgeon says.

The reason: in such people "there is increased strain in the center of gravity — a lot of increased strain on the spine," Dr. Frank Patterson of Vancouver General Hospital told newsmen at the 43rd annual Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

He also said that this type of backache — involving a strain on the ligaments and muscles of the back — is frequently due to emotional conditions, with the tenseness of the person resulting in a tightening up of the tissues in the back.

Approximately 10 to 15 per cent of all backaches are of neurotic origin, he said.

But he declared that, conversely,

"a lot of people get neurotic because they have a pain in the back . . . and relief of the discomfort may change their personality reaction to it."

Patterson indicated that in instances where the backache is not due to some underlying physical disease or condition or emotional stress, certain "exercises with a purpose" are helpful — including lying on one's back and raising the legs, or, from the same position, placing the hands behind the head and raising the head and shoulders.

These exercises are designed to strengthen the abdominal muscles and thereby offset the back strain, he said.

Other exercise, such as walking or golf, is good treatment if in moderation, but strenuous exercise of any kind is taboo, because it will nearly always aggravate the backache, he said.

He declared backaches are common in the elderly — not because of the aging process in itself but because "increasing weight, poor posture and inactivity go along with age."

President Eisenhower told the clinical congress in a message last night that Americans place too much emphasis on government to supply their essential needs.

The President said: "The waters of liberty flow from one source: voluntary initiative and effort."

"In a free democracy like ours, less and less — not more and more — should devolve on government," he added.

Yewnited Stytes Prepares for Big Story

EN ROUTE JAMESTOWN, Va. (INS) — Things I'll bet you never knew about the visit of Liz and Phil to the Yewnited Stytes of America:

In the event of any confusion about Union of South Africa reaction to the trip, please consult Mr. G. Quintus Coetzee, press attaché of the union. Private automobiles will not be permitted in the motorcade from Patrick Henry Air Force Base, Va., to Jamestown and Williamsburg. The final bus (labeled "college") will leave the air base after the departure of the royal motorcade and will take heavy sound equipment, for TV and newsreel cameramen, to the Wren Building at Williams and Mary.

Full military honors will be rendered at the air base when the royal couple arrives. At 5:15 p.m. EDT, Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Rockefeller will take the Queen and Prince Philip by carriage from College Corner in Williamsburg to the governor's palace. They'll show them through same.

On Thursday, the President,

Mamie, John Foster Dulles and his wife, and Gen. Nate "winning" and his wife, must be at the MATS Terminal at the National Airport at 11:15 EDT for the arrival of the couple, who are flying in from Ottawa in an aeronautical cross between a DC-4 and the pressurized DC-8.

The Canadians, splitting the difference, call it the C-5. Our people wouldn't let an assistant secretary of agriculture ride in it.

PICTURES RESTRICTED

Pictures of the royal couple and the President and Mrs. Eisenhower, before the state dinner at the White House Thursday night, may be taken only by one American still photographer, one American TV cameraman, one American 35 MM. cameraman, one American magazine photographer, one British still photographer (Keystone), one British TV cameraman (BBC), one Canadian still photographer (federal), one Canadian TV cameraman (CBC).

The President will present Philip with the National Geographic Society Medal in the rose garden at the White House at 8:55 a.m. (EDT) Friday, but only if weather permits. If it's lousy, it will take place in the cabinet room at the White House. Cameras and mikes must be set up and in place by 8:15.

At 10:20 Prince Philip will be briefed (Don't let this get around, fellows) on Russia's Sputnik — while the Queen is at Children's Hospital.

The Nixons meet the royal couple at the Senate, and no other, entrance of the Capitol, at exactly 12:45 p.m. Friday. Correspondents and photographers wishing to cover Prince Philip at the Marine Barracks Saturday morning "should get to the barracks on their own." Which seems fair enough.

TICKETS, PLEASE!

Correspondents wishing to cover the Maryland-North Carolina Football Game which the Queen and Philip will see next Saturday must have tickets to same. There will be just 122 available, 61 for the American news media, 61 for the Commonwealth crowd.

The Queen and Philip will ride around the running track of the stadium at Byrd Stadium before settling down in their seats for the game. No provision has been made for either of them to visit a rest room between 1:15 and 5:45 that day.

No photographs inside Washington Cathedral or the National Presbyterian Church, when the Eisenhowers and the Mountbattens attend services Sunday. "Decorations shall be worn."

In such detail are things arranged for this visit. As of now, the bloody Americans have made no arrangement (as did the Canadians) for peepers.

The Canadians let 14 peepers peer through the parted drapes of a royal dinner party in Ottawa. The man we depended on came up with a bloodshot eye and gave us a distorted view of the fish course. We hope for better things in the Stytes, but wonder if we'll get same.

Forced to Abandon Skyscraper Building

NEW YORK (AP)—A planned 46-story Manhattan skyscraper is a victim of the tight money market.

Excavation has been halted for the building at Park Avenue and 53rd Street until its sponsor, Vincent Astor, can raise more money to carry out the project.

A spokesman said yesterday that Astor is willing to pay 5½ per cent interest for more funds but no lender has offered to supply the money needed.

Astor interests originally estimated the building would cost 75 million dollars.

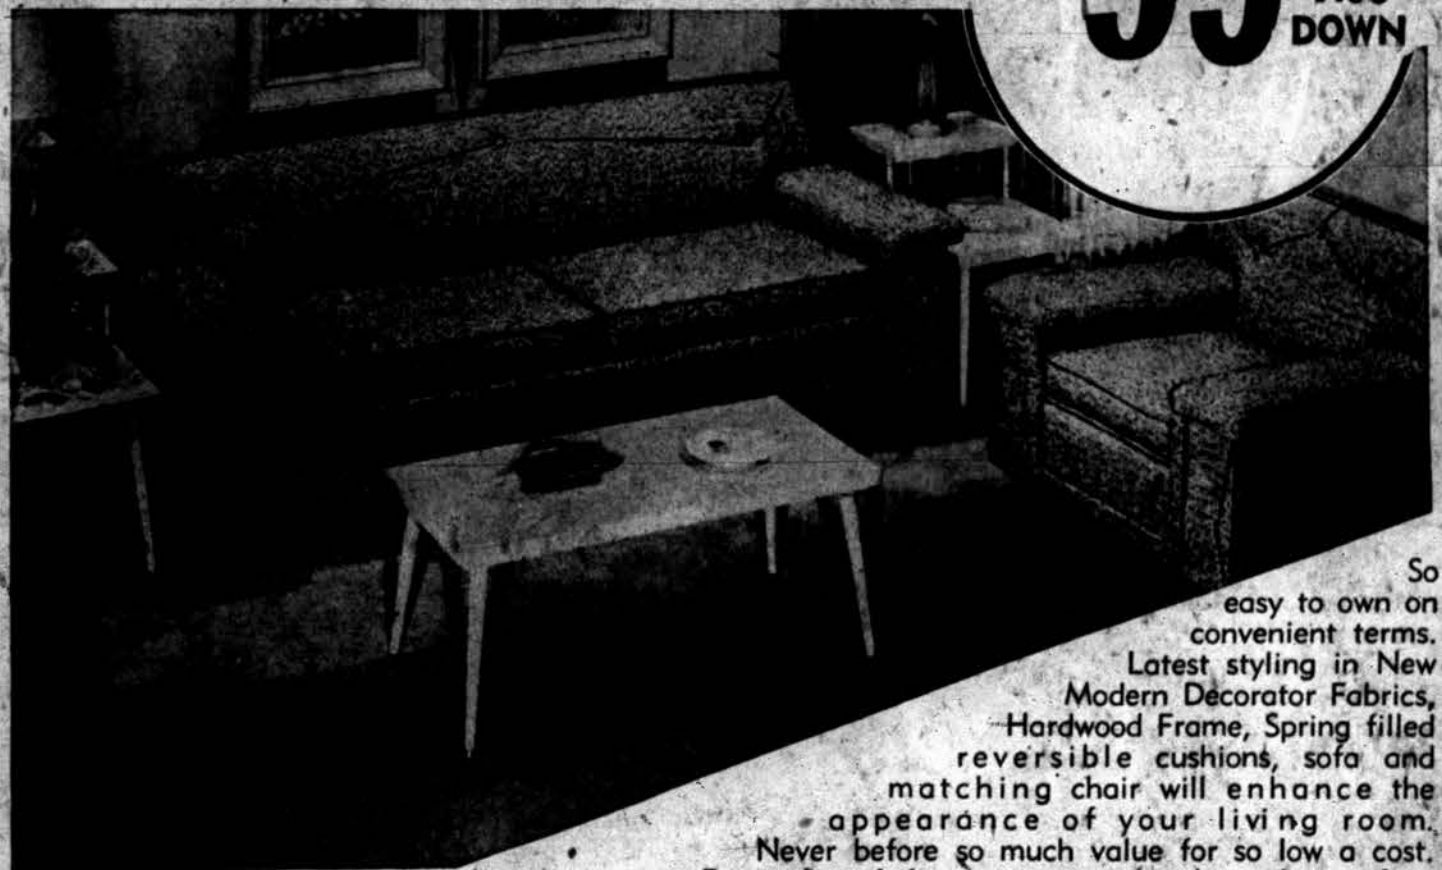

Astor and his family have realty holdings estimated at more than 40 million dollars. This money is tied up and cannot be used to finance the new building.

It takes a GIANT to keep America on the go

There are only 41,785 new car dealers in the U.S. to serve more than 49,000,000 car-craving families. Yet these comparatively few dealers perform a giant selling job in moving more than 6,000,000 new cars a year worth well over $15,000,000,000!

There are only 1,761 daily newspapers in the U.S. Yet every day they roll out more than 58,000,000 copies to do a herculean job of helping to sell America's automobiles.

Car dealers and daily newspapers have much in common. Both are upstanding local citizens vitally interested in local affairs. Back of almost every civic drive you'll find the local car dealer supporting it with all his weight. And right beside him, backing civic endeavors with equally ardent support, is the daily newspaper.

Car dealers, like others, have learned that the daily newspaper puts plenty of weight behind an advertiser's sales message, too. That's why newspapers, each year, carry the biggest share of automotive advertising. Use this giant to put the weight behind your advertising.

All business is local . . . and so are all newspapers.

Pilot Saves Lives Landing Blazing Jet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A disabled Navy jet fighter narrowly missed hitting the top deck of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge yesterday and its heroic pilot emerged unharmed after crash-landing in the bay.

Lt. Thad H. Harden, 25, formerly of El Paso, Tex., reported his starboard engine afire shortly after taking off from Alameda Naval Air Station. Without time to maneuver under the towering span, Harden stuck tight and lifted the plane over it.

He clambered into a life raft after setting the twin-engine craft on the smooth bay waters and was picked up by a crash boat.

Many bridge motorists credited Harden with saving their lives by his heroic handling of the crippled plane.

Soviets, Budapest Snub Special Representative on Hungary

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The refusal of the Moscow and Budapest regimes to see the special U.N. representative on Hungary built up pressure today for sterner measures to back up the General Assembly's demands.

Many delegates voiced indignation over the Red refusal to Prince Wan Waihayakon of Thailand, charged by the Assembly to seek compliance with the U.N. call for withdrawal of Soviet troops from Hungary.

The United States was understood to be considering a move to reject the credentials of the Communist Hungarian government — a move which would block it from the U.N.

Hungarian Foreign Minister Imre Horvath brought the issue to a head this week when he told a reporter his government would not see Prince Wan either as U.N. agent or Thailand's foreign minister.

Prince Wan himself insists the door is still open to talks and says he will keep on trying to set up an interview in either Red capital. But the general feeling here is that the Assembly's attempt to back up its resolutions has wound up a dismal failure.

Many felt Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko doomed the project more than a week ago

House Wiring Reveals True Refrigerator Story

The Malaspina glacier in Alaska is larger than the state of Rhode Island.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Robert Tharrington told police he had purchased a new electric refrigerator they found in his house. But officers arrested him anyway, on a charge of possession of stolen goods. The charge was certified to Hustings Court by Police Court Judge Harold C. Maurice — after police testified Tharrington's house is not wired for electricity.

Actress Banned by Club for Marrying Brando

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Anna Kashfi has been kicked out of her club for marrying Marlon Brando. No hard feelings though. It's just that the Hollywood Beacher Girls Club can't have married members.

Actress Martha Hyer, president of the club, said yesterday that Argentine actress Linda Cristal, a newcomer to Hollywood, has been given Anna's place on the club roster.
