Traffic Deaths Total 5 So Far in Michigan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michigan's highway fatality count was surprisingly low as the long Memorial Day weekend neared the halfway point.

Thus far over the 78-hour holiday only five traffic deaths were reported despite crowded highways.

In addition three persons drowned and two persons died in miscellaneous accidents.

By contrast, deaths on the nation's roads soared today.

The National Safety Council reported traffic fatalities were mounting at a rate that will set a new Memorial Day holiday record, unless the climb is checked.

The council had predicted 350 motor vehicle deaths for the long weekend. The record for a three-day observance of the holiday, 369, was set in 1955.

Traffic	135

Warm temperatures in Michigan sent thousands flocking to state parks, beaches and resorts.

Traffic across the new Straits of Mackinac Bridge was running far ahead of ferry boat traffic across the straits over the Memorial Day holiday last year.

Bridge officials estimated 10,000 cars and trucks crossed the straits span Friday as holiday motorists sought resort areas in the Upper Peninsula.

The low traffic death count in Michigan contrasted with previous Memorial Day weekends. Last year 17 persons died in highway accidents.

Break Deadlock - UAW Hoping

Chrysler, Ford, Union Refusing to Budge as Time Slips Away

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union sought to break deadlocked negotiations with Ford and Chrysler today while completing plans for some 300,000 General Motors employes to work without a contract.

Others will do the same in all 126 company plants Monday.

Both management and union termed the Ford and Chrysler negotiations deadlocked and each accused the other of refusing to budge.

Auto-Labor at a Glance

General Motors — Contract terminated, workers will continue on jobs. Negotiations recessed until Monday.

Ford Motor Co.—Bargaining resumes today. United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther expected to sit in on talks. Contract expires at Sunday midnight.

The GM extension would have included built-in wage increases totaling 16 cents an hour — a 7-cent productivity increase immediately, a 2-cent cost-of-living allowance increase immediately and a 7-cent productivity increase next year.

GM said this week that its 10,000 non-union employes would get both the immediate increases. It also said salaried personnel would get the equivalent.

Administrative Aide Resigns at Hospital

Another change in the administration of the Pontiac General Hospital comes with the announced resignation of Administrative Assistant Shirley Dovre.

The hospital's director, Carl Flath, was fired less than two weeks ago. He was the hospital's main spokesman in the fight against Dr. Neil Sullenberger and the bannered physician's $250,000 damage suit which failed.

Miss Dovre, who worked with Flath, said her resignation, effective June 20, was not connected with Flath's firing.

Crash Injuries Claim Victim

It's First Traffic Death in County on Memorial Day Period in 3 Years

George E. Pikula, 21, of 7282 Rutherford St., Detroit, died in William Beaumont Hospital early today of injuries suffered in a traffic accident on Northwestern highway, in Farmington Township, about 1:20 a.m.

It was the first Oakland County traffic death on a Memorial Day period in three years.

His companion, Thomas Manning, 21, of 16631 Mendota Ave., Detroit was admitted to the hospital with a concussion and multiple abrasions.

He has not regained consciousness and is in critical condition, according to a hospital report.

Police have not determined who was driving as both men were thrown from the car.

Assembly to OK De Gaulle as New Premier Tomorrow

PARIS (UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle will take over tomorrow as the 26th premier of the French Republic, it was announced today.

With a strong majority vote already assured, the 67-year-old former Free French leader will go before an extraordinary session of the General Assembly tomorrow morning to be invested with sweeping powers to reform the constitution and restore stability at home and in North Africa.

PLANS REFORMS

When the Assembly meets—now expected at 9:30 a.m. (3:30 a.m. Pontiac time)—it will be virtually to vote itself out of power for from six months to a year. De Gaulle has demanded that much time free of interference to install his reforms.

Roger Duchet, secretary general of the Independent (conservative) Party made the formal announcement after a conference with De Gaulle at the latter's hotel.

SIGNALS GO-AHEAD

Unconfirmed but apparently reliable reports said De Gaulle had in mind a government of two parts:

—An inner cabinet or "political council" of five members — probably former President Vincent Auriol and heads of key political parties.

—Another 10 ministers picked from leading members of Parliament. Included would be seven "technicians" and three representatives of the labor unions. Among the technicians would be Wilfred

Begin Working Monday on State Police Building

The new building will be a tri-level affair at 1295 N. Telegraph road, just north and west of the Oakland County Service Center, said Mulick, officer in charge of the 22-member Pontiac post.

It should be ready by early fall, replacing the converted home in Drayton Plains that has served as Pontiac headquarters the past 5½ years.

Signing of contracts by the State Administrative Board Wednesday means that a long-standing need in this area will be filled. Although the Pontiac post is one of the most active in the state, it has never had its own headquarters. It had been located above the Keego Harbor fire station before moving to 2905 Dixie Highway, in Drayton.

Michigan to Receive Big U. S. Contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Michigan was to receive work totaling more than $6,000,000 in government contracts announced yesterday.

Five construction contracts by the Army Corps of Engineers ranged from $1,399,000 for harbor work at Harrisville to $44,965 for construction at Emery. Other areas included work at Shelby, Selfridge Air Force Base and bridge work near Battle Creek.

Eisenhower Runnerup for Girl's Affection

"Dear Mr. President," she wrote. "I love you more than anyone in the whole world, except, of course, for Perry Como."

Pat O'Connor Killed as Auto Flips, Burns

Veteran Racer Elisian Suspended for Causing Fatal 15-Car Pileup

O'Connor, the 48th to die in the Speedway's history, perished in flames after his car overturned and caught fire in a 15-car pileup on the third turn of the first lap around the 2½-mile brick oval.

Duane Carter, a former race driver who is now racing director for USAC announced:

"I am suspending Elisian from all racing for the safety and well being of himself and his fellow competitors.

"I'm suspending him because of a series of errors in judgment. He'll not race again until he can appeal to the USAC's board of directors."

RATHMAN TALKS

Rathmann, who had topped Elisian's speed in the first day of time trials May 17 to claim the pole position issued his own statement about the disastrous mixup:

"Elisian had the lead in the second (southeast) corner, but I passed him on the backstretch.

"Elisian went around me on the inside. He was going 50 miles an hour faster than he ever could

Rain to Favor Better Players

Western Open Tourney at Red Run Goes Into Third Round

The morning rain was expected to favor the better players as the third round of Western Open started this morning at Red Run Country Club.

Home pro Frank Metzger said the greens would be slower and distance of balls should be cut down. "The course is just wet enough to slow down the greens, the approach shots should hold better," he said.

Tommy Jacobs, the current leader, with 135, and many of the other leading scorers were slated to tee off after the noon hour.

Among the early starters this morning, Rudy Horvath turned in a 34 for the front nine.

Columnist Bob Considine Angry

Answers Insults Thrown at INS

(Editor's Note: Bob Considine is not a newcomer to the profession of journalism. He has been considered in the past, and is today, one of the top flight reporters in the country. His comments concern a neophyte reporter for Time Magazine express the sentiments of many in the journalistic fraternity.)

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — This is an open letter to the young man — anonymous as a shady story — who wrote the obituary of International News Service in the Press section of the current Time Magazine:

You poor guy:

You write, "On a coronation story, editors could rely on the AP for the dimensions of the cathedral, the UP for the mood of the ceremony, and the INS (sometimes) for an interview with the barmaid across the way."

There is also a reference to "splash - and - dash journalism." That's about all.

The men and women who sat in our silenced news rooms and read that farewell nose-thumbing felt more than anger. Many of them were seasoned at their trade when you, in all probability, were making you first little jabs at a typewriter.

Their anger was tempered by a pity for you; a pity born of the sadness that one feels in the face of flippant ignorance.

For one, I thought of Floyd Gibbons going down on one of the first ships torpedoed in World War I and surviving to write a brilliant story for INS.

And of Jimmy Kilgallen tracking down Samuel Insull in Greece and practically bringing him back to trial, after turning him into a kind of leg-man for INS.

And Inez Robb in North Africa, and some years later in Texas City, being knocked flat by an explosion, and getting up off the ground to get her story in to INS. And Davis J. Walsh who helped make sports writing a profession.

I thought of Bill Hutchinson driving the opposition nuts at the Scopes trial and getting the great wartime beats on the capture and execution of the Nazi submarine-landed saboteurs, and the decision to retain Hirohito on his throne.

IN THE JUNGLES

I also thought of Richard Tregaskis, Jack Mahon and Bob Brumby, on Guadalcanal; of Pat Robinson in the New Guinea jungles; of Lee Van Atta, flying on so many bombing and strafing missions that MacArthur himself ordered him grounded. And of the incomparable H. R. Knickerbocker and irrepresible Sammy Schulman.

The memory of Pete Huss, Frank Conniff, Larry Newman, Graham Hovey, Joe Smith, Bill Hearst, Lee Carson, Joe Willicombe and the others who went with the troops from the beaches to Berlin filled the cranial room where proud thoughts are stored.

And of Mike Chinigo, crawling to a dead German sentry's phone on the beach in Sicily, making contact with the German commander whose artillery was shelling our landing troops, and (in perfect German) ordering him to cease — " . . . We have driven the enemy back into the sea." (Gen. Truscott put Mike in for the DSC.)

And of Jimmy Young rotting in a Japanese prison, and Alfred Tyrnauer dumped into one of Hitler's death cells in Vienna for courageously writing the truth about that monster.

WERE WITH TOJO

And of Clark Lee, who started

Sunday Evening Traffic Expected to Be Heavy

Local law enforcement authorities are now awaiting the expected homeward rush Sunday evening after encountering heavy northbound traffic on major thoroughfares Thursday night and Memorial Day morning.

★ ★ ★

"The traffic going north on U.S. 10 and Telegraph Rd. was as heavy as I've ever seen it Thursday evening," reported Sgt. Charles Mulick, commander at the Pontiac State Police Post.

Officers at the Redford Post reported heavy traffic on Grand River Ave. and Northwestern highway from noon Thursday to noon Memorial Day.

"After noon Memorial Day the traffic, while still heavy changed to a more general nature rather than mainly northbound," said Corporal Eino Maki of the Redford Post.

A slight pickup in southbound traffic was reported last night, but the concentrated flow is not expected until Sunday when thousands of families begin returning home from the three-day weekend.

Minor property damage and personal injury accidents took a sudden upsurge, especially along Telegraph road during the rush to cottages and vacation areas, according to officials.

Sheriff's Deputies reported traffic around area parks especially heavy yesterday.

Dodge State Park No. 4, on Cass Lake, reported a Memorial Day crowd of 28,000. The record is 32,000.

★ ★ ★

Pontiac Lake Recreation Area and Highland Recreation Area reported large crowds. While beach and picnic areas were nearly filled to capacity, there was no congestion.

Authorities are urging all those on weekend outings to leave for home with time to spare.

CLIMAX TO CRISIS

Today's announcement was a climax to 18 days of the worst crisis in the history of the Fourth republic.

It began with the revolt of the French army generals in Africa on May 13 and reached its peak on Thursday, May 29, with riotous demonstrations in the streets of Paris and Coty's unprecedented demand that the assembly accept De Gaulle as the only man who could save France from a military dictatorship or a Communist-led "Popular Front."

Coty said France was on the verge of civil war.

On May 15, De Gaulle had broken five years of silence by announcing that: "I hold myself ready to take over the powers of the republic."

RECEIVES VISITORS

De Gaulle received a stream of visitors during the morning, presumably outlining to them a stringent five-point reform program for the nation, and working on his cabinet list.

The list was expected to include former President Vincent Auriol, former Premier and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who probably would be foreign minister, former Premier Antoine Pinay and Pierre-Henri Teitgen, a leading member of the Popular Republican Party.

The program he was expected to outline to the deputies tomorrow would include revision of the constitution vastly increasing executive powers; a new program of equality for Algeria; full powers for De Gaulle to run the country for six months or a year without parliamentary interference; foreign policy based on continued membership in NATO, and restoration of civil liberties.

Pflimlin also called on De Gaulle today and later told newsmen:

"When I presented my resignation last Wednesday, the president replied that he would not accept it until the moment when it appeared possible to form a new government.

"Since such a possibility is appearing today, the president has just informed me that he has accepted my resignation.

"As is the custom, he has asked me to handle current matters."

★ ★ ★

The Day in Birmingham

Bloomfield Policeman Injured in Car Accident

BIRMINGHAM — An accident yesterday afternoon which hospitalized a Bloomfield Township police officer was the only mishap reported in this area for the first third of the holiday weekend.

William Simpson, 25 a member of the force for three months, is in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Pontiac, being treated for a brain concussion and other possible injuries.

Police Chief Norman Dehnke said his condition this morning is fair.

Simpson, 8 Peggy St., Pontiac, was injured in a police car as he entered Telegraph road from Square Lake road while en route to investigate another accident.

Jacob F. Cipriani, 43 of 2540 Campbell St., Detroit told police he heard the siren but did not stop because he did not see Simpson's car approaching. Cipriani escaped injuries. His wife Joan, 41, and daughter, Christine 12, were treated for minor cuts and then released from Pontiac General Hospital.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a new car and caused about $3,000 damages at the home of Marley Bricker, 1336 Pilgrim Rd. Assistant Fire Chief Stanley Church said the blaze yesterday was reported by a neighbor.

In a routine check of the Howard Johnson's Restaurant, 6450 Telegraph Rd. Bloomfield Township, Police Sgt. Newton Tubbs and Officer Henry Juntunen noticed a cut window screen and saw someone moving in the building.

They called for assistance in surrounding the building and summoned the assistant manager, Dooris Head to unlock the door.

J. W. Smith 26, of 577½ Going St., Pontiac was arrested and charged with breaking and entering after he was found hiding under a coffee urn. Police said he admitted taking the money and cigarettes found in his pockets.

Members of the Birmingham Lions Club are busy these days working as telephone solicitors. They are making hundreds of calls taking orders for their fourth annual ice cream sale. Delivery and collection are scheduled for June 11 between 3 and 8 p.m.

Proceeds of the sale will further the club's work with the blind and Leader Dog program.

Mrs. Clyde H. Wood

Services for Mrs. Clyde H. (Mary) Wood, 77 of 230 E. Wisner St., Alpena, formerly of Birmingham, will be at 1 p.m. Monday at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Cremation will be at White Chapel Cemetery.

Mrs. Wood died suddenly Thursday night at her Alpena home.

She came to Birmingham in 1908 from Detroit and moved to Alpena six years ago. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church here and was a past matron of Birmingham OES Chapter 220.

She is survived by her husband Clyde H.; two daughters, Mrs. David H. Raup of Birmingham; Mrs. John C. Stratton Jr. of Riverside, Conn.; and eight grandchildren.

Silent Crowd Watches Burial of 2 Unknowns

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Two sisters, both in their 60s, came at noon and sat in the hot sun to be sure of seats for the burial ceremony of the Unknowns of World War II and Korea.

They arrived at Arlington National Cemetery yesterday some three hours early, but they didn't mind. They sat erect on stone slab seats, waiting quietly.

One was Mrs. Estelle Hughes, 67, who said she was the widow of a World War I soldier. The other was Mrs. Virginia Gormley, 63, who said she has a son who's a colonel in the Marine Corps.

Both women live in the Washington area, but many of the 4,000 persons who later filled the gleaming marble amphitheater had come considerable distances.

★ ★ ★

For example, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McIntyre of Houston, Tex., who have no children of their own, were outside the amphitheater hours before the interment rites. Mrs. McIntyre sat on a wooden box.

★ ★ ★

The hot sun beat down on the crowds. Before the day was done more than 400 persons were treated for heat prostration or faintness.

One of those felled by the heat was Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Whittaker. An Army doctor examined him and sent him home.

Among the throng in the amphitheater were Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, their merit badges as bright as the decorations worn by the military men around them. There were Gold Star Mothers dressed in white.

The crowd for the most part was quiet, except for some children who didn't realize it wasn't a picnic in the park. One child's cry broke the stillness as the assemblage stood for two minutes in honor of the dead.

There were few tears, no uncontrollable outbursts.

Forty-eight American flags waved gently in the breeze amid the huge marble columns around the circular amphitheater. Colorful wreaths, carried in eight military vans from the Capitol, were banked in front of the domed stage of the amphitheater and beside the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of World War I.

After the ceremonies were over, the thousands filed slowly out of the cemetery, passing rows of gravestones marked by tiny American flags and the red poppies traditional to Memorial Day.

I still don't think a wonderful friend I had named Jack Singer was getting an interview with the barmaid the day the Japanese killed him. Death came to him in the ward room of the carrier Wasp, torpedoed into a funeral pyer.

A poung navy pilot who survived the sinking brought along the unfinished INS story Jack was writing, and finished it for him.

There weren't any barmaids on Okinawa the day John Cashman of INS was killed in action. John had lost an arm as a serviceman, hooked on with our sports department, went back to the wars as a correspondent and died.

The first reporter killed in Korea was Ray Richards, INS, who might have been home with his grandchildren. Four other INS men were killed there, too.

Rains Sweep Wide Areas

Warm and humid air produced uncomfortably muggy weather over the eastern two-thirds of the country today and triggered thunderstorms and heavy rains across the North Central states.

A scattering of thundershowers also dampened a belt extending from the Pacific Northwest into the Gulf states.

Fair skies in New England were an exception to the soggy, cloudy picture elsewhere east of the Rockies. Skies were clear and temperatures hot over the Southwest.

Thunderstorms over the northern tier of states produced high winds which destroyed two farms and partially damaged another at Selz, N. D., about 85 miles northeast of Bismarck. The U. S. weather bureau termed it a possible tornado.

A storm near Crawford in northwestern Nebraska tore down telephone lines and pelted the area with hailstones 7 to 11 inches in circumference.

Warm moist air from the Gulf of Mexico kept temperatures at 80 degrees during the night as far north as Kansas City while 70 and 80-degree readings were the rule from Texas eastward to the Atlantic. It was 10 to 20 degrees warmer than 24 hours earlier from the Mississippi Valley eastward through the Ohio Valley and to Atlantic Seaboard sections.

★ ★ ★

Elsewhere in North Central sections, rainfall amounts were mostly light.

Humidity readings over the Great Lakes area were higher than any recorded in the prolonged spell of dry weather there.

Not Under Present Constitution

Will De Gaulle Run Show?

PARIS (UPI) — The real boss in France is the mercurial, unpredictable 595-member National Assembly.

The 1946 constitution gave the assembly sovereign powers. But, with Gen. Charles De Gaulle in power, he will take them away and the premier — for the first time in 12 years — will run the show.

PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC: He is elected by a joint session of both houses of parliament for seven years with a maximum of two terms. He presides over full cabinet meetings, signs treaties and laws and designates prime ministers during a government crisis. Otherwise his functions are ornamental.

PREMIER: He is designated by the president and names his own cabinet after being invested by a majority vote of the National Assembly. He has no specific constitutional authority except as chief of the cabinet or council of ministers.

CABINET: The cabinet is appointed by the premier after his investiture by the National Assembly. The ministers have collective responsibility to the National Assembly of the cabinet's general policy. They are equally responsible to it individually for their personal acts. The cabinet must give the go-ahead before the premier may call for an assembly confidence vote.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY: The constitution gives the National Assembly sovereign rights except for those exercised by the nation as a whole through a popular referendum. The assembly has the right to declare war, study and pass laws and vote the national budget. The upper house, the Council of the Republic, or Senate, has only advisory and delaying powers but can not overrule an assembly decision.

Pontiac Sailor Survives Sinking of Submarine

Word was received today by the family of a Pontiac sailor that he survived the sinking of his submarine near Hawaii Thursday night.

★ ★ ★

Donald A. McMett, electrical technician first class, was aboard the submarine Stickelback which sank 5½ hours after being rammed by a destroyer near Oahu Island.

★ ★ ★

His wife, the former Margaret Hicks of Oxford, called his parents from Honolulu with the good news. They are Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMett, of 1860 Cass Lake Rd. Keego Harbor.

★ ★ ★

The Stickleback carried a crew of 74 men and eight officers, all of whom were rescued. Cause of the collision has not been determined.

Onion Sets Scarce, Prices Go Zooming

The people who were among the many who bought onion sets from Ernest Campanaro of Walled Lake earlier this year should "really appreciate them," he said today.

★ ★ ★

Campanaro, owner of the produce department at the Lakeside Super Market, said he had to purchase the "scarce" seed onions for 59 cents a pound this morning at the Eastern Market in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

His customers, several months ago paid 10 cents a pound when he sold five tons of them.

★ ★ ★

According to Campanaro, bids went sky high this morning when a farmer came to the market with five 32-pound bags of the scarce sets. Campanaro won the bid for $15 a bag compared to the normal price of $4.40.

Near Half Million Hear Billy Graham

The tally is 477,100 in the 16,500-seat Cow Palace. "Decisions for Christ" total 17,254.

He told a crowd of 15,000 last night his six-week crusade will be extended for at least one week, to June 15, and possibly another.

Speaking on Memorial Day, the evangelist said "The liberties we enjoy were purchased by the blood of other men."

Death Claims Driver in Classic '500' Race

go through that corner. He made no effort to back off.

"I'll never forgive Elisian for what he did. Pat O'Connor was the most honorable guy in racing."

ELISIAN TALKS

"The newspaper guys are killing me," Elisian said.

"I haven't been notified that I have been suspended, and as far as I'm concerned, I'm not. I don't know why I lost it (the car).

"I had driven through that corner faster. I have had these hot dogs (race drivers) spin in front of me and run me through the wall on other tracks. It sure wasn't intentional. I liked O'Connor as well as anybody."

Fengler said he is investigating circumstances of the ragged race start, in which the entire front row got ahead of the pace car.

Only driver hurt besides O'Connor was rookie Jerry Unser of Long Beach, Calif., who suffered a dislocated shoulder when his car flipped over the retaining wall in the mass smashup.

The big wreck, worst since a 7-car smashup in 1930, eliminated the two fastest cars of the time trials—driven by Dick Rathmann and Ed Elisian.

The Novi was one of two sleek racing cars representing the Oakland County community. The other Novi, driven by Paul Russo of Webster Groves, Mo., dropped out after 397½ miles because of mechanical trouble.

★ ★ ★

Three other Michigan entries were eliminated by the crackup. They included Dick Rathmann, Paul Goldsmith of St. Clair Shores and Len Sutton, who was driving the Jim Robbins Special from Royal Oak.

Three in Family Hurt as Driver Blacks Out

Three members of a Walled Lake family were treated at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Friday night, for injuries suffered in an accident in front of 303000 Beck Rd., Novi Township, according to Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies.

Harold F. Schneider, 44, of 46900 W. 12 Mile Rd., his wife Alvina, 44, and their aughter Kathleen, 7, were all reported released after treatment for minor injuries.

Start Work Monday on State Police Post

Builders, of Birmingham. Howard H. Stanton has the mechanical contract and Fred W. Moote the electrical. The latter are Pontiac contractors.

The building will follow a new design currently used for all new State Police posts, Mulick said.

Constructed of brick with wood siding, it will house administrative offices, car wash, furnace room and storage areas on the first, or ground floor. Below that will be a lower level with squad room, lockers and more storage space, and on the top floor will be living quarters for unmarried officers.

On the 30,000 square feet site will be located a 16,000 square feet parking lot for patrol cars and the general public, Mulick said.

The land has been leased from the county under a long-term agreement, Mulick said.

Funds for the building were appropriated by the Legislature two years ago, but not released by the State Building Division until this year.

Sputnik III Spurs Polaris Sub to Operation by 1960

GROTON, Conn. (NEA)—If there was any doubt about Russia having a commanding lead in the ballistic missile field it has been erased by her successful launching of a huge third Sputnik.

This adds new urgency to the crash program being conducted at the Groton, Conn., submarine shipyards, where part of America's No. 1 hope of checkmating the frightening strategic implications of that lead is being turned into realty.

The program is the production of a fleet of atomic subs which fire the Polaris solid-propellant, 1,500-mile ballistic missile. These Polaris-armed A-subs will supplement U. S. Strategic Air Command bombers. It is hoped that they will add enough extra deterrent force to prevent Russia from using her intercontinental ballistic missiles.

It is now revealed that even before the contract was signed last February for the first FBM (fleet ballistic missile) type sub, orders had been placed for its critical steel and nuclear reactor engine parts. Drawings and designs had been rushed to completion and detailed plans for a crash construction program were already made.

This feverish activity was sparked by several breakthroughs on the Polaris missile itself just prior to the launchings of the first Sputniks. The Russian satellite launchings inspired the official, rush go-ahead.

Close to three - quarters of a billion dollars have now been put into the Polaris weapon system.

This will provide the missiles and the first three A-subs to carry them. Construction is well along on the first sub. The keel of the second is to be laid here soon. The third will be built at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard in California.

Two more Polaris subs have already been requested from Congress. And it has been seriously recommended in the Senate that a total of 100 be built.

Thanks to the prodding and genius of Adm. Hyman Rickover, boss of the Navy's A-sub program, and the know-how of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp., which has built all of the U. S. atomic subs, the Polaris system is likely to be operational by 1960.

The FBM subs—none has yet been named—are 380 feet long and have a displacement of 5,600 tons. This is considerably larger than the Nautilus, the first A-sub, which has a 3,000-ton displacement.

Details of how the Polaris missile is fired from under the water are secret. But for the past several months there have been mysterious test firings of a gadget presumed to be a Polaris launching device from the San Francisco Naval Shipyard into the San Francisco Bay.

The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. is making the Polaris. Westinghouse has a subcontract for a launching device. This indicates that some kind of package carries the missile to the surface and helps to aim it before the solid fuel engine is ignited.

The missile is about 30 feet long. About 15 of them will be carried in each sub. The Polaris packs an H-bomb punch.

World Population Up 47 Million Each Year

U. N. Says 90 Persons Born in Minute

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—Ninety persons are born every minute, according to United Nations statistics announced tonight.

The U. N.'s 1957 Demographic Yearbook reported that the world's population is increasing at an average rate of 5,400 persons an hour, or 47 million births a year.

At that rate, the world's population—now estimated at 2,737,000,000 persons — will double in the next 40 years. It has increased almost 25 per cent in the last 20 years.

The world's current death rate was estimated by U. N. statisticians at 18 per 1,000 persons and the birth rate at 34.

Dutch children have the longest life expectancy—71 years for males and 74 for females. Indians have the shortest—32 years for both males and females.

Asia leads the world's population increase with some 24 million annually, but percentagewise, Latin America is the fastest growing area, with a population increase of 2.5 per cent annually, compared with a world average of 1.6 per cent.

Persons are dying fastest in Africa and Southern Asia and least quickly in North America, Oceania and Europe.

Accidents, especially motor vehicle mishaps, are a leading cause of death among men up to 45 years of age, and Luxembourg leads all the world in motor deaths —28.5 per thousand.

Between 45 and 64, cancer is the leading cause of death for both men and women in all countries for which statistics were available.

The yearbook established New York as still the largest city in the world with a population of 7,795,471 in the city proper and a "standard metropolitan area population of 14,066,000.

Tokyo stands second with a city population of 7,161,513 and 8,471,637 in its metropolitan area. Greater London is third with a population of 8,270,430 in the metropolitan area group and greater Paris fourth with 6,436,296.

Recession Hits Hard on Industry

Million Fewer Cars Roll From Auto Factories

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly a million fewer automobiles were built in January-May this year than in like 1957.

The figures — this year's 1,900,000 to last year's 2,870,666 — emphasize the recession's impact on the multi-billion dollar auto industry.

Whether the car industry brought on the recession or is the victim of it is widely discussed among economists, industrialists and merchandisers generally.

Those who say the car builders are at least partly responsible for the lag in over all buying point to the production of approximately 20 million cars and 3½ million trucks and coaches in 1955-56-57. Many call that overproduction.

The auto makers disclaim responsibility for the recession. They deny they overloaded their market during the last three years. They deny too, that 1958 styling changes were responsible for the slowing of car sales. This year's style changes, they say, advanced trends that brought record-smashing volume in 1955 and substantial demand in 1956-57.

The auto industry is looked to by many sources to lead the way out of the recession. The industry always has been among the first major businesses to feel the effects of a recession and first to show signs of recovery.

The industry's sales, at the retail level, in vehicles, accessories and fuel, have topped 50 billion dollars annually during the last three years. One of every seven gainful workers in the United States is dependent for a livelihood on the manufacture, distribution, servicing and use of motor vehicles.

These probably are among major reasons many business executives and industrialists not directly related to the automotive industry are asking what the car industry will do in the months ahead.

As near as reasonably may be predicted now the industry is not likely to build more than 2½ million more cars in the remainder of 1958. More than half of these will come in the final three months — a period that will spell out what lies ahead for 1959 cars.

Other things the industry will do in the months ahead include:

It will wind up production of its 1958 models weeks earlier than usual; stretch out the changeover period so dealers may have more time to liquidate outgoing models; introduce num- September and in October.

Engineering changes will not be drastic.

Trade sources hear styling changes will include some bodies slightly lower than those presented this year. Front and rear lighting installations will be of varying arrangements.

★ ★ ★

Longer life mufflers, coated with zinc or aluminum, may be introduced by some makers. They will be available as replacement units also in greater numbers.

Portuguese India, Timor in the East Indies, and Macao in China have comprised the principal overseas holdings of the Portugal government.

U. N. Council to Air Troubles in Tunisia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Security Council is scheduled to meet Monday on complaints by Tunisia and France that the other is responsible for recent armed clashes in Tunisia.

The meeting was called yesterday by Charles S. A. Ritchie of Canada, the outgoing Council president for May.

Tunisian delegate Mongi Slim charged Thursday that French forces in Tunisia and Algeria had conducted armed aggression against his country. Tunisia is trying to get Paris to evacuate some 22,000 French troops from the former French protectorate.

A countercharge that Tunisia had broken an agreement on stationing the troops there was filed by French delegate Guillaume Georges-Picot. He also asked the Council to resume consideration of France's earlier charge that Tunisia is aiding the Algerian rebels.

Reflections
MEMORIAL DAY

J. L. VOORHEES

Memorial Day is a glorious time; we burnish the memory of the best of mankind, each facet reflecting bravery, love, devotion to duty, and values of honor, integrity and a deep sense of debt to fellowmen.

It is for these men we pause, lift our faces to the vaults of heaven, thank God that we follow in the foot steps of leaders with high ideals. The torch they handed to us must illuminate the future, it must show in sharp relief the ideals of loyalty, loyalty to ourselves, to Country, family and friends. We promise to trim the wick, keep that flame bright and active for those who will follow us.

The legacy they gave us must be defended, kept intact, broadened, to make our world, today and tomorrow, a treasure so precious that those who follow us will proudly assume the burden of holding it high, for all the world to see.

It Seems to Me . . . .

Measures Must Be Taken at Once to Avoid Air Collisions

Collisions in the air are altogether too frequent. Furthermore pilots tell you confidentially that the number of "near misses" is even more alarming.

Accidents like this aren't anything new. Your scrivener remembers a collision in the air in 1918, when two army pilots crashed into each other in training.

★ ★ ★

Also, VERNON CASTLE, of The Royal Flying Corps, gave his life to avoid hitting a student in the air at a Texas field.

★ ★ ★

I attribute the current epidemic to two obvious things: speed and the increasing number of planes. It isn't negligence or ineptitude.

The collision of the two transcontinental liners at The Grand Canyon is so purely circumstantial that we'll rule that out. But the others demand immediate study and corrective measures.

Let's sit quietly on the edge of a runway and do a few computations on speed, sight and physical reactions. Two big passenger planes are flying toward each other. Each is going 350 miles an hour or about six miles a minute—a mile in ten seconds. If they're headed toward each other, and one passes Birmingham and the other Pontiac, eight miles apart, each will travel half way in 40 seconds. Really, that isn't very long, is it?

★ ★ ★

Something no bigger than an airplane isn't particularly noticeable at a distance of eight miles. Remember, these planes are flying toward each other and neither gets the more conspicuous broadside view.

Now let's suppose that it's just a wee bit mirky, and let's introduce those fleecy, intermittent clouds that look so soft and beautiful and yet which are just as deadly as the drabbest fog.

Each airplane can be concealed.

Or, suppose just one is hidden. The collision could be just as swift and just as devastating.

★ ★ ★

Suppose the one that's concealed fleetingly breaks into the open at four miles? At this distance with perfect visibility, each of the pilots will cover his half of the distance in 20 seconds.

So, two big, fine planes, four miles apart, can crash into each other head-on in twenty seconds.

★ ★ ★

Pilots do have distractions. They must check their instruments. They must communicate with the field. They must talk to the ground and listen. They must hear route beams. They have to watch right and left as well as head-on. Those big, hurtling shadows can come from any angle . . . . . or from above . . . . . or below.

★ ★ ★

If two skillful boys see each other AT FOUR MILES DISTANCE they must move swiftly to avoid an accident. Human reactions take a little time and then it takes SOME time for the plane to respond to the controls. It isn't all instantaneous.

★ ★ ★

Now let's complicate the picture the way it has been compounded lately. Let's toss in a jet fighter such as I rode a month ago. Let's assume the jet is doing 960 miles an hour which is 16 miles a minute or A MILE IN LESS THAN FOUR SECONDS. If the jet were aimed at the passenger plane, it would cover two miles in less than eight seconds . . . . . and of course the other airplane is approaching also. Let your own imagination handle it from here on. Suppose they were TWO miles apart when they first saw each other.

You say, "Let the jets travel at 30 or 40 thousand feet and keep the transports beneath." That is an avowed objective, but even then the jets have to climb to their higher levels and return again right through the transport lanes.

★ ★ ★

Once I was returning from San Diego in a Navy plane and a kindly major let me take the controls for 160 miles. He told me to fly at 10,000 feet. Three times the major said: "Hey, you're at 11,000 feet," and three times I slid hastily back a bit abashed. If he had explained that east-west and north-south traffic use odd or even-numbered thousands of feet, I would have been more attentive.

★ ★ ★

Bad weather conditions around airports need even more attention. When the big transports "stack up" and visibility on the ground is poor, we have real danger. They dispatch some to other airports, but even so, it's a hazardous situation.

This whole problem needs study immediately. It needs rules that no one can break. We must work out safety for many times the planes we have today — for just think what's ahead in ten years.

Next fall will be several crashes too late!

And in Conclusion . . . . . .

Overheard in the Press Sports Department: "The Yanks are in a slump. They've lost one in a row." . . . . . Magazines are running into some foul weather. Some of the lesser fry have checked out for good and news stand sales are off as high as 40 per cent on some of the others . . . . . New York handed out over a thousand summonses the second day of their anti-litter bug campaign . . . . . A secret operative tells me we'll fire another satellite in June (Navy) and the Army will whisk one aloft in the early fall.

One of those Wayne County bistros bore this sign (I'm told): 'closed on account of altercations." . . . . . Railroad red caps get 35 cents a bag now. Maybe that's why so many people are carrying their own . . . . . London's crime commissioner, Sir John Nott-Bower blames the big upswing of crime in England to TV which features crime 24 hours a day . . . . . Records that used to sell a million are lucky now if they pass 300,000. Parents are more cautions with that teenage spending money.

★ ★ ★

Overheard in the hall: "He not only lied about the size of his yacht, he made me row the last half mile." . . . . . The other day I met lucky ELIZABETH NEWMAN at GMC Truck who won a Cadillac plus $1,750 in cash in the big GM contest. She's a very personable gal and she must have a lot on the ball. She whipped 285,000 competitors . . . . . Brides, here's a new one. Cook your steak with a blow torch. It's 40 times as fast and is cheaper. The idea came from France . . . . . Unless the government comes up with some aid for the railroads, there will be a few bankruptcies in the days ahead. Our own Grand Trunk's loss is creeping up toward a million dollars a month.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

ROME, ITALY—The Colosseum still reflects the brutal might of ancient Rome. Here 50,000 spectators watched gladiators fight to the death. Two emperors tried to stop the bloody amusements without success. But one simple monk succeeded.

Telemachus, a Syrian, who came to Rome on this sacred mission, went into the arena, tried to separate the gladiators, and pleaded in the name of humanity, to the patrons. He was stoned to death. Yet, his act resulted in an edict abolishing the games forever.

June Bride Legends Are Ancient

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

The idea of marrying in June goes back to the Romans, who thought it was a lucky month for weddings, especially at the time of the full moon.

★ ★ ★

You sometimes hear that June is the marriage month because it was named for and dedicated to Juno, the goddess who was especially interested in young women.

It is much more likely that the month was named in honor of the Juniores, the lower branch of the Roman legislature. May was named for the Majores, the upper house.

The term "honeymoon" comes from a marriage custom of the ancient Teutons, who drank a honey wine for a month (or moon) after the wedding. They say Attila the Hun drank so much of this wine following his marriage that he died.

It is also possible that the honeymoon, as a time away from the former home and the old family ties, symbolizes the period when the groom hid his newly captured bride from her kinsmen while he bargained with them to gain their consent. He was in a good bargaining position if he was already in possession of the "property" for which he was negotiating.

It is bad luck for the bride to step over the threshold the first time she enters her new home. She must be carried over. This may go back to the time when Romulus, who needed wives for his soldiers, solved the problem by luring the Sabine male population out of their villages while his men went in and carried off the Sabine women.

Or it may refer to the cave man days when a man in search of a bride just hit her over the head and carried her home. Why it should have anything to do with good or bad luck is not clear.

In some places it is the custom to hand the bride a poker, a shovel and a pair of fire tongs when she comes into her new home. This is not an invitation for her to get to work, but a ceremonial way of giving her authority over the house.

When the bride comes to the church, if she will leap over a rope at the church gate she will leave all her bad traits and ill-humor behind her.

Don't go in one door of the church and out another. That brings bad luck.

Whichever one of the bridal couple steps out of the church door first after the wedding will be the master in the household.

The bride must weep on her wedding day. It's bad luck if she doesn't.

She must not make—or even help make—her wedding cake.

The real reason for wearing the ring on the fourth finger is that this finger cannot be straightened out except in company with the rest of the hand. It is not easy for the ring to fall off a crooked finger. There is no reason why it should be worn on the left hand rather than the right.

It is especially lucky to be married in old shoes.

The complete wedding dress should not be tried on until the wedding day. One way to be sure you are complying with this superstition is to save one final stitch until the moment the bride leaves for the church.

★ ★ ★

It is bad luck for the bride to look into the mirror after she is fully dressed in her wedding gown. The way to avoid breaking this rule is to leave one glove off until after you take the last look.

Dr. William Brady Says:

High Calcium Diet Best in Case of Shaking Palsy

To the best of my recollection I never saw a case of Parkinsonism, Parkinson's disease, shaking palsy, paralysis agitans, in the 400-bed charity hospital where I interned for two years. But I had seen and studied a case when I began the study of medicine. The case of Parkinsonism I had studied intensively was a lulu! The lady victim had everything — the mask face, twinkling eye, pill-rolling tremor, rigidity, slow studied movements, body inclined forward, neck extended and rigid, elbows flexed and slightly abducted so that the trembling fingers were at hip level.

DR. BRADY

She walked with reluctant, shortening steps as though she might totter at any moment, but never fell. She kept her eyes wide open and seemed never to wink. When she changed the direction of her vision her eyes remained fixed while her whole head and body turned.

The unsophisticated observer may infer from such a patient's attitude, mask-like expression, and taciturnity that he has lost his marbles. From intimate acquaintance with the patient and other Parkinsonians, I can assure you any such inference is wrong.

In recent years several new drugs or modifications of old drugs have been exploited as superior to the older drugs in the treatment of Parkinson's tremor. As you might expect, I doubt that the new, and of course more expensive, drugs do any more for the Parkinsonian than the older drugs did.

If this comment is brought to the attention of the leading medical merchants of your community (They seldom see one of my pieces unless some one "brings it to their attention") he will probably be too busy to bother with it or he'll marvel at my nerve offering my two-bit opinion against the "accepted" opinion of "recognized medical authorities." Nevertheless it is my belief that the treatment of Parkinsoniam today is not notably different in effect from the treatment generally used in the past.

Now I hesitate, though I feel in conscience bound to add that a high calcium diet is advisable for most Parkinsonians. If for any reason such diet is not satisfactory, then the Parkinsonian should supplement the ordinary diet with a daitable daily ration of calcium and vitamin D.

Voice of the People

'Stop Crying Over Trees; We Must Move Forward

Here we go. Hang on to your hat. The bleeding, blubbering sisters that want to "Spare the Tree" are in full cry. The Voice of the People carried a letter weeping over the trees we're cutting down on Perry street.

Let's stop all progress and refuse to cut down a silly tree. Let's take down the Pontiac Motor plant, brick by brick, and grow back the forest that once stood there. Let's level New York City and put back the dear, lovely trees that once graced Manhattan Isle. Let's blast away all our churches, as every one required the elimination of some darling, defenseless trees. Let's quit building schools and water the trees that stand where the schools should be. Let's rip up all the pavements of the land and grow back some "noble sentinels of the forest."

Let's quit breaking into tears over trees that stop progress. Let's go forward. Let's cut down trees as rapidly as our ancestors did and build a nation. Let's follow God's commands and move forward and upward. Let's be adults instead of weepy, weak-kneed babes.

★ ★ ★

The writer of that letter says "I hate to see my town ruined for the purpose of living." What greater purpose is there than living? That's the Law of the Lord. Live and progress. If living doesn't come ahead of trees, let's all die now.

Whoops, my dear.

I see Jerry Lee Lewis was practically thrown out of England with his 13-year-old bride. Is it absolutely necessary to allow him to enter the U. S.? Can't we deport him to Cuba or Korea? What scum we do spawn in this great nation on some occasions.

Auburn Heights

An old theory is exploded. Jerry Lee Lewis says it was all right for him to marry wife number three before he was divorced from wife number two as he really married wife number two before he was divorced from number one. Thus for the first time in the annals of man, two wrongs make a right.

Christians or non Christians, we are all human beings and we all make mistakes.

God made only one perfect person. Take a person who has a skilled trade. No matter how long he's been working at it, he still makes mistakes, but when he does, he tries harder the next time not to make the same one. So it is with Christians. We aren't perfect and don't pretend to be.

When we make a mistake we ask forgiveness from above and ask Him to strengthen us so we don't make the same mistake.

State Political Enemies Sometimes Cooperate

LANSING (UPI) — Members of Michigan's two major political parties are not always the bitter personal enemies their public statements make them appear to be.

Often, quietly and behind the scenes, members of the Democratic and Republican parties actually cooperate to further their main mutual interest—greater public participation in politics.

★ ★ ★

Hare wrote a letter to Republican State Chairman Lawrence B. Lindemer recommending a woman for work in the Republican Party.

"She has retired from the Detroit school system and I think you will get a fine worker for your party," Hare told Lindemer.

★ ★ ★

He explained he had talked to the woman, a long-time acquaintance, and she said she was interested in working for the Republican Party but didn't know whom she should contact. Hare volunteered to contact Lindemer for her and did.

Lindemer quickly accepted Hare's suggestion but couldn't resist needling the Secretary of State.

"Does this indicate a slight degree of partiality toward the party of truth and virtue," he asked. "We would love to have you join us."

★ ★ ★

Hare said he was merely interested in seeing a person interested in politics take an active part in it.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie and his wife have probably the most ambitious hobby of any member of the state's official family.

Mackie lives on a farm south of Lansing and in his spare time (which Mrs. Mackie says is not much) he works on the farm. Most of the farm operations are carried on by hired help, however.

Mrs. Mackie doesn't get much time to spend on the farm either because she works as a volunteer in the campaign headquarters of Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for U.S. senator.

Warns A-Power Plant Would Endanger Lives

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) was told today it would be playing with the lives of millions if it permits construction of a nuclear power plant near Monroe, Mich.

Ben Sigal, counsel for protesting labor unions, said the AEC's issuance of a temporary construction permit in August, 1956, was partially the result of "tremendous pressure" by business groups.

★ ★ ★

Sigal voiced his views as the commission heard arguments, at its Germantown, Md., headquarters near here, on the union's fight to halt construction of the fast breeder reactor planned by Power Reactor Development Co. (PRDC).

"The commission ought not to play with the safety of millions of people," Sigal told the commissioners.

W. Graham Clayton Jr., PRDC counsel, disputed the unions' claim of danger and said:

★ ★ ★

Sigal denied the unions wanted the 73½ million dollar project dropped.

The AEC staff and the State of Michigan were to present their arguments later.

Clayton opened the arguments by contending it is not necessary to prove as high a degree of safety when applying for a construction permit as is needed when operation is to begin.

★ ★ ★

In developmental projects such as the proposed reactor, he said, issuance of a construction permit does not mean the AEC has approved final operation of the nuclear power plant.

The PRDC counsel denied the unions' contentions that the combination of privately owned utilities does not have sufficient financial reserves to finance the project.

Sigal contended the AEC had disregarded the law in issuing the temporary construction permit. The commission, he said, had failed to determine whether the project would be safe.

★ ★ ★

The union counsel indicated his principal objection was the close proximity of the proposed reactor to the Detroit and Toledo metropolitan areas.

Gracious Thanks in Order

By EMILY POST

"Dear Mrs. Post: I live out in the suburbs. Last week I telephoned a friend who lives in the city and asked her if she would buy me several pairs of a certain brand of stockings which I like very much and which I cannot get out here, and to bring them with her when she came for the weekend. She brought the stockings but would not take the money for them. She said they were a present from her.

★ ★ ★

"I feel terrible about this as I was the one who asked her to get them. Would it be proper to send her a check for the price of the stockings, or might this hurt her feelings?"

Answer: Thank her for the lovely present and under no circumstances send her a check. Her gesture was a spontaneous one and should not be refused.

"Dear Mrs. Post: My mother recently gave me the family silver which is marked with the letter B. I am increasing the flatware by adding quite a number of pieces. Should I have these marked with a "B" or a "K" which is the initial of my married name?

★ ★ ★

"I have been told that since the pieces I buy are not part of the "family silver" they should not be marked with a B. Wouldn't it be strange to have the silver marked with two different initials?"

Answer: If the pieces you add are identical with the ones your mother has given you they can properly be marked with a B, and you as a member of your family would merely be adding to its silver. If the new pieces are of a more modern pattern, it would be better to mark it with a K and make a difference between the old silver you have received from your family and the new you are getting yourself.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for a man to get up and leave his party of friends and ask someone at another table to dance?"

Answer: Yes, but not often, or ever, if it leaves a girl at his table with no one to dance with.

No-String Gifts Can Tie You Up

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

"DEAR ABBY: This married man where I work has given me some very expensive presents. I feel bad about it because I know his wife and children could use the money. Every card he enclosed said, "For you Honey, with no strings attached," but he seems to be getting closer and closer to me, and I feel very uncomfortable around him.

"DEAR ABBY: I had a big neighborhood party at my house last Sunday and there must have been 50 people going in and out. One of my neighbors told me she lost her wallet with $25 in it. When I found the wallet there was only $6 in it. I felt very bad about this. I have no idea who could have taken the money.

★ ★ ★

"She made me feel like I should make it good. I don't have too much myself, and I don't think I should pay for her carelessness. Please help me decide what to do."

UNDECIDED

★ ★ ★

DEAR UNDECIDED: There is a great possibility that your neighbor was mistaken about the amount of money she had in her wallet. It seems to me a person so dishonest as to steal from a neighbor's wallet would not have left $6. Give her your regrets.

★ ★ ★

"DEAR ABBY: I live in a town where people like to gossip. Right now I am the talk of the town. You see, lately I am getting very fat in the stomach even though I am a very thin person. Now everybody is saying that I am going to have a baby. I am not. I wish you would tell me how I can reduce my stomach so people will stop talking."

THIN BUT FAT

DEAR THIN: This sudden change in your figure could be something that requires immediate medical attention. You should see your doctor without delay.

"DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for three years and he still brings up the girl he went with before me. He has some proofs of some pictures of her and him and he keeps saying he wants to have them made up.

"I have 3 engagement rings in my drawer. Now if he goes ahead and has those pictures made up, don't you think I should start wearing one of those engagement rings from somebody else?

HURT

DEAR HURT: He has no business hanging onto those proofs — and you have no business wearing an engagement ring that was given to you by another. Both of you ought to grow up and quit trying to make each other jealous. Bury the proofs — and the rings, and the hatchet.

Following a reception at the Detroit Athletic Club, the couple left for a trip to New York City. The bride wore an avacado green silk costume suit for her going away outfit.

The bride's mother wore a Miami blue peau de soie dress with matching hat and an orchid corsage for the wedding. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in pink peau de soie embroidered in seed pearls with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following a trip to New York City, the couple will live in Mexico City where the bridegroom is assistant to the treasurer of General Motors of Mexico. He is a graduate of Cranbrook School and Wesleyan University where he was affiliated with Delta Kappa Epsilon. He received his master's degree in Business Administration from the University of Michigan.

Daily Tubbing Is Basic Step in Beauty Care

Cleanliness, stimulation and relaxation are the three watchwords of beauty. Boil them down and you have — the bath!

The daily bath is the basis of all good grooming. You may take it cold or hot for stimulation, or you may take it warm (80 - 98 degrees F) with plenty of soap for cleanliness and relaxation.

Combination baths—warm and soapy for cleanliness, followed by a quick cold splash to stimulate the circulation and invigorate you — are the ideal daily method if you tub in the morning.

Women's Home Ideas Irk Builder

You may have your gripes against the home builder, ladies. But 'taint nothing compared to the headaches you give him.

★ ★ ★

Take a quiet-hearted Irishman like Dan Grady of Brookville, Long Island, for instance. Do you think he's in business to keep women from buying homes? Absolutely not.

JUST THINK FIRST

He just wants you to think before you come to see him. He puts it this way:

"What happens when a woman wants to buy a house? It runs to a pattern. She has spent six months or six years clipping beautiful pictures from the very best home magazines.

"She takes the best feature out of every $100,000 home, and wants it incorporated into one for $20,000.

"She beams when she shows me the notebook pasted up with pictures of her dream house, and revels that she has saved me trouble."

★ ★ ★

It's always loaded with glass, beautifully patterned floors, a bathroom so luxurious it would put ancient Rome to shame, and the kitchen invariably rivals anything seen at the Waldorf Astoria or the Cordon Bleu.

BUILT-IN UNITS

Grady says she wants built-in units to replace pieces she has seen at $500 or more. Only she wants them for $10 additional cost.

★ ★ ★

The fact that women cannot face, Grady says, "or choose to ignore" is that lovely things cost money.

★ ★ ★

"You must provide smelling salts when you tell her the entire cost of the home." He builds in the $40,000-and-up range.

★ ★ ★

But does she give up? No. She thinks if she lops off a few things, she'll get the house $10,000 cheaper, Grady continues.

His system is to go down the list with his customer. But, out of 25 expensive items she has insisted on, 23 of them, she invariably says, "I can't live without."

Underweight Problem

Right Exercise Pads Bony Back

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Women who have to fight overweight forget that their thinner sisters also have their problems. These can be just as harassing. The underweight woman often is embarrassed by a flat bustline, prominent collar bones, pipestem legs or too little hipline. She also is sometimes dissatisfied with her back.

A scrawny back usually accompanied by extreme underweight. However, sometimes boniness seems to occur even when the general weight is correct. It has been thought that the habit of lying on a heat pad is of help because it increases circulation in this area. I do not know whether or not this is of help in padding the back — but it certainly is relaxing!

Naturally the most efficient answer is a gain in poundage. However, an attempt to increase the musculature of the back is of real value. You can pad scrawniness with well-rounded muscles. Here is an exercise which will help do this.

Lie on the floor on your abdomen, arms overhead and resting on the floor and legs straight. Lift your arms, head and legs, as far from the floor as you can. Hold for a few minutes. Lower head, arms and legs to the floor. Keep the legs straight. Continue, slowly.

Another very valuable exercise is done with one of the elastic exercisers on the market or an elastic band of some sort. Stand tall. Take one end of the elastic in each hand. Raise the arms forward shoulder height and shoulder width apart.

★ ★ ★

Keep the left arm where it is while you swing the right arm in position and swing the left arm sideward, shoulder height. Return to position. Continue, alternating right and left keep the elbows straight while doing this exercise.

This exercise will help you get well-rounded muscles. Lift your arms, head and legs as far from the floor as you can. Hold for a few minutes.

Bedroom Doubles as Den With New 'Privazoning'

CHICAGO (INS) — A new home plan eliminates the need for closets and dressers in the bedroom, turning them into dens.

The pilot model, built in Miami, Fla., for under $20,000, is a redesign of the three-bedroom, two-bath home which will kayo the morning and evening bathroom rush.

★ ★ ★

William Kramer, executive secretary of the plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association, described the home in a Chicago speech as featuring "privazoning."

Each member of the family has a separate dressing room. Husband and wife each have dressing rooms adjacent to the master bedroom and others are located off the children's bedrooms.

The "dressatory" has all the facilities for dressing and grooming — including a clothes closet, a built-in chest of drawers, vanity lavatory and a water closet.

In taking out clothes closets and dressers from the bedrooms, Kramer said, the home's bedrooms take on the appearance of dens. Besides the bed, a room has space for comfortable chairs, reading lamps, a writing desk and television.

"The old style bedroom is on its way out," asserted Kramer. "It was usually located at some distance from the bathroom and not used most of the day.

"With privazoning, bedrooms can be used any time as a retreat and for relaxation."

Ottomans Will Appeal to Gamblers

CHICAGO (INS) — The latest ottomans for 1958 living rooms could give you the gambler's itch.

New models, introduced at the International Home Furnishings Market in Chicago, come equipped for everything from a mild game of backgammon to a hectic game of blackjack.

A king-size square stool, designed by Sam Beiz of Memphis, Tenn., even has a board marked for roulette underneath four seat cushions—plus room for chips and a roulette wheel in a storage compartment.

Smaller models, just big enough for one cushion, come with checker, chess and backgammon boards and also have storage room for chips, chess pawns and dice.

Other ottomans have folding bridge tables lurking beneath their seat pads. Some of these also have checker and chess board squares outlined in the bridge table tops.

The prices for the ottomans range from $40 to $140—depending on the size and the extent of your gambling fever.

All-out seductiveness is difficult in the mid-years but the Infanta-type dress radiates charm in the sixties.

Particularly in your home town, your character should be consistent with your clothes. Your family might resent the filmy, decollete black chiffon gown which seems inconsistent for a conservative home-maker.

Roz Russell Plans to Undermine Sack!

By RUTH MILLETT

Word has just come from Hollywood columnist, Erskine Johnson, that glamorous Rosalind Russell is going to wear 30 different, but all dazzling, costumes in the movie version of "Auntie Mame."

"It's about time for some real mad, glamorous clothes in a movie," says Miss Russell.

And she's so right. With so many American women running around in sacks, Miss Russell wearing 30 different glamorous outfits is going to be a sight for bored eyes.

And I predict that those fancy get-ups will dazzle American women clear out of the notion of the sack dress.

★ ★ ★

When they sit back in a movie theater and see what form-fitting seductive looking clothes can do for a woman they are sure to go home, take a look at their own sad sacks, and say, "Enough's enough. Why am I wearing these baggy dresses when maybe with the help of some really feminine frippery I could look as glamorous as Rosalind Russell — or almost, anyway?"

In the past, movie stars who went in for glamor instead of the girl-next-door-look have led the style parade.

And it would seem that the time is ripe for a movie star to perk women up again, get them out of the fashion doldrums and into something that makes them look better than they thought they could.

★ ★ ★

So relax, men. Today we women may look like so many potatoes in a sack. But after Rosalind Russell struts her stuff before the movie cameras, we'll probably all be looking like Auntie Mames.

Life of Ease Is Awaiting Housewives

ANAHEIM, Calif. (INS) — A brand new "souped-up" house of the future, with everything from microwave cooking to ultrasonic dishwashing, will make spoiled darlings of the hardworking housewives.

The house, which cost $1,000,000 to build and looks like a pumpkin with wings, was unveiled recently at Disneyland Park, Anaheim, Calif., where it draws as much breathless comment as the nearby fairyland castle.

The odd shape of the futuristic miniature "palace," where mom, pop and the kids may live in push-button splendor, was designed to assured full daylight in every room, is practically soundproof and provides unusual privacy for varied family activities.

It isn't the kind of house you'll be able to find just down the street, not for a while, at least. But many of its revolutionary features may soon be usable in the modern home.

★ ★ ★

For instance, there's a climate control center that filters, cools, heats and scents the air in each room.

Then there are foam - backed plastic floor coverings, electronically controlled bathrooms with lavatories, tubs, walls and floors molded in units of reinforced plastic, mobile dome lighting and wall-to-wall light panels.

The house, which is the result of more than three years of planning, is constructed completely of plastic—curved hollow sections that form ceiling, wall and floor.

It contains two baths, a kitchen that doesn't look like a kitchen at all, a laundry room, two children's rooms divided by a fluted panel, a master bedroom, living room family room and outside swimming pool.

One child, seeing the strange house for the first time, said with startled, wide-open eyes, "Gosh, I must be dreaming!"

The little housewife will be dreaming too when she beginsusing telephones with push-button dials to get a miniature vista-vision view of her butcher cutting up the Sunday roast.

Then there's a special phone in the master bathroom that may be used by means of a no-hands speaker and receiver. Thus, if you're enjoying a bubble bath and wish to make a phone call, there's no danger of sudden electrocution.

It Pays to Keep Clothes in Repair

An interest in in clothes is a normal and healthy interest in any woman's life. But it should be backed by an equal interest in taking care of them.

Have clothes cleaned, repaired and mended as they need it and they'll repay you by far longer service.

This is your invitation to join in a SPECIAL SERVICE OF PRAYER!

TIME — 7:30 A.M. to 8:50 A.M. (Come when you can . . . go when you must)

Confident Living

President Prays Daily for Guidance and Ability

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

PEALE

The newspapers these past months have been filled with news which someone has called "gloom and doom." To read some commentators and editorialists, you would think things have never been worse and are never going to get better.

I don't happen to share those beliefs. The whole long history of man is filled with periods that were truly "dark ages," but things have never failed to get better. It is on the basis of this historical fact and an unfailing faith in Divine Providence, that I believe in our keeping our chins up.

It is encouraging that this philosophy is shared by the President of the United States. Some time ago I had an opportunity to talk with the President and he spoke with me in a heart-to-heart fashion that I will never forget. Ours was not a discussion about politics or world affairs but about his philosophy of life, his faith and his attitudes toward difficulties. It was a most inspiring experience for me.

As we talked, I found myself forgetting that this man is the head of the greatest nation in the world. Instead, I was completely absorbed by the personality of a humble, simple human being who is, at the same time, one of the most dynamic and personally lovable individuals I have ever met.

I asked Mr. Eisenhower what secret enables him to carry such a heavy load of gigantic problems and still stay so vital and filled with enthusiasm. He told me that if he did not have such a deep faith in God the job of being President would long since have landed him in the insane asylum.

He remarked that if I could see the problems that come over his desk in the course of a day, if I could see the gloomy fear-ridden people who come to him telling him everything is going to pieces, it would be obvious that he would HAVE to have faith in God.

The President gives the impression of a man who really believes in prayer. His philosophy of living is daily to ask the Lord to guide him and help him do his best. Then he proceeds to do the best he knows how in whatever arises. Of course, he makes mistakes (and who doesn't?), but he does his best. At the end of his day, he goes home and "empties out his mind." For a little while he lays problems aside to find rest and renewal.

Relaxation is needed to face the next day with confidence and strength. Then he is ready to retire, he prays and puts his acitons of that day inot the hands of God and then goes to sleep.

He awakens early and of course there are a new day's problems waiting for him. But, he told me, he asks God to help him with that one day. Rested and revitalized, he feels thrilled that he has that new day in which to tackle his many problems and deal with great events.

I came away from my meeting with the President with the impression of a thoroughly vital person who has a deep sense of excitement about life and who, at the same time, has mastered the technique for keeping the inflow and renewal greater than the outflow of energy. This vital spiritual method of meeting and mastering problems is what is meant by "keeping your chin up."

★ ★ ★

The simple secret is this: Put your trust in God. Do your best. Then leave the result to God.

What The Lutheran Church Believes About Hell

For one thing they believe it is a place to stay out of! For another, they know that isn't easy!—not if a man is trying to do it by his own good conduct medals.

Sound odd to you? Here's why it is true. To escape hell and reach heaven a man must be perfect.

Perfect! Does that word describe you? You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool yourself about this. And God can be fooled even less!

But there is a way to escape hell and reach heaven. Even this way is easy only for men—not for God.

God has to give His beloved Son—and Jesus Christ went to the cross to make it possible. God suffered the punishment of our sin. Believe it and you accept God's forgiveness. Then you are perfect before Him!

That's what your Lutheran friends believe about hell. Oh, they believe there is such a place. Men who do not want to live with God need some place for eternity. And it will be awful—to be forever separated from the love of God!

But now the important thing about hell is that you acknowledge your own inability to be perfect and turn to the forgiving mercy of God, so you don't have to go there.

The Lutheran pastor in your community can help you get in touch with God who has so much to offer! See him—to meet Him!

AF Flying Vaccine to Stricken Bangkok

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A U. S. Air Force mercy plane was flying from the Philippines to Bangkok today with 4,000 bottles of cholera vaccine to help curb an epidemic that already has claimed 50 lives here.

A spokesman for the U. S. International Cooperation Administration, donors of the vaccine, said another 6,000 bottles soon would be sent to Thailand. Cholera has stricken at least 400 persons in the past week.

Vaccine also has been sent by India and Australia through the World Health Organization. Health officials here predicted it would take two years to root out the disease.

A major cholera and smallpox epidemic has been raging in East Pakistan, on the other side of Burma from Thailand.

Concert Sunday at Cranbrook

Three Pontiac Area High School Seniors, Members of Chorale

The Michigan Chorale of the Youth for Understanding, Teen-Age Exchange program, will give a benefit concert at 4:30 p.m. Sunday at Christ Church, Cranbrook.

★ ★ ★

Three of the 75 singers are from the Pontiac-Bloomfield area. Vickie Vandecar of Pontiac Central High School, and Sally Garabrant and Bunny Lyons from Kingswood School.

Vicki is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Vandecar of 60 S. Merrimac St.; Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Garabrant of Cranbrook Rd., Bloomfield Hills are Sally's parents, and Bunny is the daughter of the Raymond Lyons of 699 Bennington Rd., Bloomfield Hills.

The group of high school seniors will go to Europe on June 24 to give free concerts and programs. The trip will include the World's Fair. The purpose is to interpret America to people of other countries through music.

Members of the group have been chosen on the basis of vocal talent, scholarship and leadership ability. Each singer has been recommended by the music department of his high school and by his pastor.

Will It Be Safe to Fly Faster Jet Airliners?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two weeks ago the Civil Aeronautics Board sent Congress a 30-page report, bound in soothing green covers, entitled "The Advance in Air Safety."

Few reports have been so ill-timed.

Three days later, in sunny skies, 8,000 feet above the picturesque Potomac Valley in Maryland, a military jet collided with a Chicago-to-Baltimore Capital Airlines passenger plane and sent both craft hurtling to the earth in flames, killing 12 people.

Tragically underscoring the growing hazards in America's congested airways, it was the third major air collision of the year and the 162nd in the last decade with a total of 511 fatalities. Significantly, military jets have figured in three of the last four aerial smashups.

The Maryland crash, coming almost on the threshold of the commercial jet age, set many U. S. air travelers to asking questions:

Will it be safe to fly when the first 600-mile-per-hour jet airliners join the nation's swelling air cavalcade next fall, knifing through skies already cluttered with far slower propeller-driven planes and bumbling helicopters?

What is the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA), the federal watchdog agency for air safety, doing to prepare for the civilian jet age?

Why are military jet pilots permitted to buzz airliners, slice through supposedly controlled civilian air corridors, and cut acrobatic capers in the skies? Or do they?

A man who knows the answers is CAA chief James T. Pyle, 44, tough-minded boss of the nation's air space. Pyle's job is to see that somehow the nation's 96,000 civil and military aircraft reach their destinations without getting tangled up like so many jackstraws.

On poor cockpit visibility — the major complaint of many airline pilots — Pyle explained:

"Comparatively small as it is, the windshield of an airliner weighs about 600 pounds. With an all-glass nose for better visibility, the plane would be so heavy it would be hard to get it off the ground."

Commercial airline pilots say that great cockpit visibility isn't the final answer and that as planes fly faster the solution will have to be some kind of automatic anti-collision device.

What about radar?

"The radar we have on airliners today is only good for spotting cloud formations so that pilots can use it to fly around storms," Pyle said. "It doesn't work for identifying or 'seeing' approaching aircraft."

★ ★ ★

Only last week the National Bureau of Standards announced it has come up with ideas for a collision-warning device, based on ground radar. But the bureau said:

"The development of such a device depends on how many hundreds of millions of dollars we are willing to spend."

"If we made all military planes file flight plans in advance and follow operational instructions from CAA ground controllers, it would cut Air Force training to 10 per cent of its present program.

Officials of the Air Line Pilots Assn. contend that the old "see and be seen" rule is obsolete as planes fly ever faster. The only alternative, they say, is to put all aircraft under rigidly controlled instrument flying rule (IFR) restrictions, regardless of the weather.

★ ★ ★

Such an order would require all pilots to file an advance flight plan with CAA traffic-control authorities and then follow a specified flight course and altitude, with time intervals between planes on the same route.

★ ★ ★

Pyle said eventually the CAA will exert complete control over all air traffic, with positive ground-controlled separation of planes.

Pyle said the CAA is training 5,000 experts a year to handle such traffic-control instruments as $400,000 radar units which can "see" a plane flying at more than 80,000 feet 170 miles away.

The agency, now embarked on a brand new five-year billion-dollar program, plans to spend 471 million dollars for hardware and operations next year.

By mid-1963, the CAA plans to have 291 radar units spotted strategically from coast to coast with the aim of "seeing" and protecting almost every plane in the skies.

Actress Deborah Kerr Reveals Estrangement

VIENNA (AP)—Deborah Kerr, the British movie star, said today she and her husband, Anthony Bartley, are estranged.

Bartley, a World War II RAF hero who is now a film and television producer, lives in London. They have been married twelve years and have two girls, 11 and 9.

Jonathan Winters Is Funny All the Time

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Jonathan Winters is one of the last remaining rebels not only in TV but in life. He fears not even New York taxi drivers.

WILSON

When he hands a cab driver a tip along with the fare, and the cabbie doesn't say thanks, Winters walks away pointedly leaving the cab door open, so that the driver must grunt, stretch and swear a little as he reaches to close it.

Visiting England last year, Jonathan ordered a Scotch "with a lot of ice — just pack it with ice" in a famous London bar. He heard a Londoner say to a companion, "You know, they're all over, aren't they?"

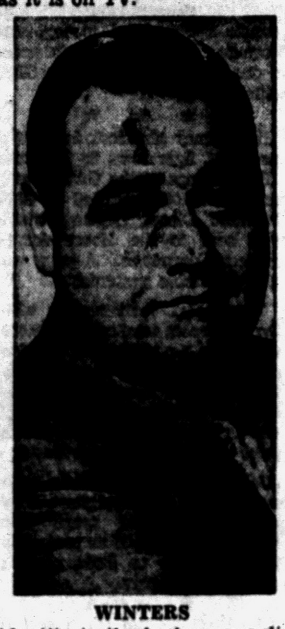

Whereupon he started a conversation with the Londoner who had been to America but didn't like it.

"Tomorrow's July 4 and we're celebrating it," Jonathan said. "You're not, are you?"

"No, of course not! scowled the Britisher.

"Heh heh heh," said Winters, giving him the little boy-with-the-iron-chin look that you've seen on the Jack Paar, Steve Allen, George Gobel—and Jonathan Winters—TV shows. "You'll lose Canada next!"

Jonathan's great talent for mimicry and characterization is used as much in his private campaigning to deflate people as it is on TV.

WINTERS

Having a drink one day, he decided to needle a stuffy Wall Streeter next to him. He began by ordering "a shot of beer" and asking if they had any cookies.

"My God, man!" said the broker, "you can't order those things here!"

"Heh heh heh, I can where I come from down in Oklahoma," chuckled Jonathan, somewhat half-wittedly. Then by carefully planting certain remarks he convinced the Wall Streeter that he was part-Indian with great oil wells.

"This guy's a rube but he's evidently loaded," the broker remarked to a fellow he was drinking with. "I'm going to give him my card."

Jonathan didn't disclose his identity to the broker—nor did he ever tell a Hollywood western star, who brushed him off when he was trying to compliment him, just who he was. Hurt by the slight, which occurred at the Beverly Hills Hotel, Winters was meek for a second, then told the western star, "I'll hire you some day, old buddy."

When he subbed for Jack Paar recently, he had Zsa Zsa Gabor as a guest and she objected to the way he introduced her. He terminated their argument about it by saying to her, "Ah, well, you're an older woman."

Jonathan's agent, Marty Goodman, says, "He's lazy" and Winters says "That I am!" For example, he only did two weeks subbing for Paar, when he could have done four.

THE WEEKEND WINDUP . . .

William Holden's percentage of "The Key" will earn him about $1,500,000; co-star Sophia Loren settled for a $200,000 salary . . . Dodger pitcher Don Newcombe's wearing glasses with plain glass lenses. He explains: "I just like glasses" . . .

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The schools teach about half of their pupils to tell time. The others grow up to be women.—Ken Kraft . . . That's earl, brother.

Composer of the Song Puts 3 Coins in Fountain

ROME (AP) — The composer of the song has finally tossed three coins into the fountain.

★ ★ ★

Yesterday he went to the fountain of Trevi, the one in his song hit, "Three Coins in the Fountain." He threw in three 10-lire coins—worth about 5 cents in all.

★ ★ ★

Teenagers Will Compete in Waterford Road-E-O

Beginning at 1 p.m. Sunday, teenagers from Waterford Township and Clarkston will participate in the annual Road-E-O at Waterford Township high school.

Youth from 16 through 19 years of age will compete for the winning award which will qualify them for the state contest to be held in Detroit, and possibly the national contest in Washington, D.C.

★ ★ ★

Sponsored by the Waterford Township Junior Chamber of Commerce, the young people will enter a written examination as well as perform in a driving test in the blacktopped parking lot next to the school.

The winner will be determined by total points accumulated in the two events, according to co-chairman Dean Salley and James Dean.

★ ★ ★

One of the important rules for entering the Road-E-O is that an applicant cannot have received a traffic summons within the past six months.

Entry blanks will be available at the testing grounds as well as at the two high schools.

★ ★ ★

Trophies will be awarded to the three top qualifiers, and the Jaycees anticipate more than one hundred area youth participation.

Body Lies in State at Chicago

Thousands Honor Stritch

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of persons came in mourning today and filed silently past the bier of their beloved Samuel Cardinal Stritch.

The body of the 70-year-old Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago will lie in state in Holy Name Cathedral until the funeral Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Huge bells tolled as mourners passed through the black and purple draped entrances of the cathedral, where the cardinal had served for 18 years.

An estimated quarter of a million persons lined the 18-mile-route of a caravan which brought the body to the cathedral yesterday after it arrived at O'Hare Field from Rome.

Catholic churches along the route were draped in purple and black, and groups of uniformed school children clutching rosary beads stood before several Catholic schools passed by the caravan.

Entombment will be in the mausoleum for Chicago bishops in Mount Carmel Cemetery in suburban Hillside.

English Gals Suffer Such Humiliation!

LONDON (AP)—It was ladies' day in England yesterday.

A woman was hauled into court on a burglary charge because the elastic in her panties gave way.

★ ★ ★

A girl was parted from her bridegroom by the Town Council, which held that his presence overcrowded the house they lived in.

First, the case of the perfidious panties. They belonged to Mrs. Maude King of suburban West Ham. She was walking down the street when the elastic snapped.

As the panties began their slow but certain slither into public view, comely Mrs. King looked frantically about for cover. Spying what she thought was a vacant bungalow, she popped in through a window to make emergency repairs. At this point the front door opened and in walked the bungalow's owner, Frederick Dowie. He called the police.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. King blushingly told the judge her story. He acquitted her.

U. S. Accounting Office Says Buyers for Navy Gave GM Too Much

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office (GAO) says procurement officials were to blame mainly for a more than reasonable price it says General Motors received for diesel motors sold to the Navy.

★ ★ ★

In a report to Congress, the GAO, the federal agency which keeps a check for Congress on what happens to appropriated money, said Navy procurement officials made an inadequate inquiry into GM's actual costs.

★ ★ ★

The agency also took issue with some GM figures as to its costs.

The findings of the GAO inquiry into $118,700,000 awarded to GM's Cleveland Diesel Engine Division were sent to the House Armed Services Committee. A copy was made available yesterday.

The report dealt mainly with five contracts totaling $33,709,000 which the Navy's bureau of ships negotiated for a fixed price. Three bigger contracts for the other 86 million dollars had previously been negotiated on a price-to-be-redetermined basis.

Deliveries on the five follow-on contracts for diesel engines, diesel generator sets and spare parts were made in 1955-56 as part of the Navy program to build nonmagnetic minesweepers.

★ ★ ★

The GAO did not list a specific total of overpricing. It said GM has offered a $690,000 refund.

Communal Rioting Worsens in Ceylon

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—Communal rioting worsened today in eastern Ceylon, where three persons were killed as police moved against Sinhalese demonstrators harassing the Tamil minority. Authorities said the disturbances also had taken a violent turn in Ceylon's northern province. Rioters there put the torch to a customs house and a ferry boat.

The government warned demonstrators it would take stern measures and promised that a security net would be placed over the trouble spots.

MASTER BEDROOM — Rose walls and gray tweed carpeting set the scene for a serene bedroom. Pink and blue flowered chintz is used for bedspreads, chair upholstery and curtains. Furniture is walnut. That bench at the foot of the bed is white. From these windows Cass Lake can be seen at seasons when the trees are leafless.

OAK KITCHEN — Mrs. Brennan is very happy with the kitchen she helped plan. She likes the warm tone of the oak cabinets. She likes the gay Pennsylvania Dutch wallpaper on the soffit and in the breakfast area. She likes the long Formica topped table that was made from a flush door set on steel legs. She's a remarkably calm woman when you consider she's the mother of five boys under ten years.

IN ORCHARD LAKE VILLAGE — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brennan live in this tri-level brick home with their young family of five boys. Ledgerock and cedar siding are also used on the exterior. The section at the right contains the living room, dining room and kitchen. The center section has a family room on the lower level with four bedrooms above. The garage at the left is set at an angle to the rest of the house.

Brennans Build Sturdiness Into Tri-Level

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Home Editor

When you have a family of five little boys to house, you build for sturdiness. You make everything as easy as possible to keep clean. You provide the youngsters with adequate play space, then plan other rooms for adult living.

The Robert Brennans took all these things into consideration when they built their tri-level home on Commerce road in Orchard Lake Village. Prior to this building they had lived in Southfield Township.

In winter, when the leaves are off the trees, the Brennans have a view of two lakes. Across the road in front of the house is Orchard Lake. The Brennans live almost opposite Orchard Lake Community Church. From the master bedroom in the rear, they can see a small portion of Cass Lake. Their lot is 150x220 feet.

You can enter the house in front, either through the family room, or up a few steps through the main entrance. This door has a ribbed glass window next to it. Three small panes of glass in both front doors admit light.

GOLD PREDOMINATES

Living room and dining room are painted and carpeted in gold. Valance boards of striated plywood are painted to match the walls. Draperies in the living room are gray with a flowered design. In the dining room they are semi-sheer white material with a gold thread.

Between the living room and dining room is a half wall. It opens on the living room side to make book shelves. The top is a planter.

There's a blue sectional sofa near the east windows. Against the only inside wall is a pair of rusty red upholstered chairs with a lamp table between. Father's chair is white naugahyde, has a matching foot stool. Mother's chair is a black Boston rocker; it's the only fragile looking piece of furniture in the room.

On the marble table under the front picture window there's a real conversation piece. It's a bell shaped jar with eight or ten song birds mounted on a tree branch underneath. All the young Brennans are interested in nature and this gives them an opportunity to study some specimens at close range.

When Mrs. Brennan planned her kitchen, she asked for a small desk where she could do household accounts, plan meals and file necessary papers. The carpenter obliged with an efficient unit which includes even file sections in the cupboard above.

The floor has spatter print linoleum on it. Cabinets and wainscoting are oak, finished in natural shade. Counter tops are aqua. A work counter separates the breakfast area from the kitchen proper.

Here, wallpaper in a Pennsylvania Dutch design makes a nice contrast to the paneled lower walls. The red and green print is repeated in the curtains. The table is a flush door mounted on steel legs, topped with Formica. The naugahyde chairs are beige and green.

Six steps up from the living room is the bedroom area. Eight-year-old Tim and nine-year-old Terry have the first bedroom. Their floor is ranch pegged oak. Walls and bedspreads are green. The short curtains are green and white checked.

Tod who's three and Robin who's seven share a second bedroom. Their furniture is maple. Walls are rose. The white curtains have a colonial design.

Little Marty who's just a year old has his own bedroom. There is a double bed in his room which leads us to think it serves also as a guest room.

MASTER BEDROOM

The master bedroom is the only one with a room size rug. Walls are deep rose to contrast with the gray tweed carpet. Curtains, top of the bed spread and a slipper chair are made from a blue chintz with pink flowers.

Furniture is walnut. A long white bench is set at the foot of the twin beds which have a common headboard.

In the pink and gray bathroom there's a hidden medicine chest. Mrs. Brennan, a trained nurse, knows the danger of small fry's climbing up on the vanity and tasting the contents of medicine bottles. Unless you look closely you cannot see the outline of the door. The key is kept hidden elsewhere.

Down in the basement there's a well lighted, good-sized utility room. This has its own outside door to the back yard.

The other part of this level is the "wreck" room. But it is built to withstand the onslaught of five towheaded wild Indians. The floor is cork tile. Walls, except for the fireplace side, are knotty pine. Desk and bookshelves are built in next to a storage closet.

Wienie roasts are held all year long in the red brick fireplace. A long bench upholstered in rosy rust naugahyde extends from the fireplace opening to the end wall.

All chairs and the sofa are covered in naugahyde. There are no standing lamps. Instead, pole lights are firmly achored to floor and ceiling. The curtains are beige with a modern design.

FUN ROOM

This is a room, says Mrs. Brennan, in which to have FUN —and they do. It's a riding

THE GOLDEN ROOM — Deep gold carpeting and gold walls combine to give this room a glow. Draperies are flowered with a gray background. Valance boards are striated plywood, painted to match the walls. A bookcase shuts off the front door from the living room. Plants climb up lucite poles. The white chair in the background is upholstered in naugahyde. That glass dome on the table under the window holds a group of song birds mounted on a tree branch. What looks like snow outside is really sunshine; after all, this picture was taken in May! The Brennans have a view of Orchard Lake from the living room.

Roofed Arcade Separates Living, Sleeping Areas

Complete separation of living and sleeping areas is achieved in this ranch house by a unique adaptation of the split level idea to a single level house.

Instead of splitting the areas by the use of higher and lower levels, the split idea is carried out by a front-to-back arcade which slices through the center of the house.

The end result of the plan, designed especially for the House of The Week series and designated X-8, is a sharp division of activity and sleeping areas.

The arcade, itself, is split into three parts — a covered entry, an entry foyer and an outdoor living patio — and all parts are sheltered by a roof.

Architect Samuel Paul, who created design X-8, got his inspiration for the underlying concept of this plan from a quotation of obscure or unknown origin:

"This sums it up," Paul says, adding:

"One unit consists of rooms where work, dining, recreation, conversation and activity of one sort or another is going on. The activity in this area varies from noisy in the family room to subdued sounds in the living room.

"The other unit consists of sleeping rooms where quiet and privacy are the prime requisites."

CONTRASTING USE OF SPACE

In his arrangement, the architect has made contrasting use of space within the two principal areas.

An open plan prevails in the activity area, whereas the sleeping area is enclosed by sharply defined walls.

In the activity area, all five rooms flow into each other in a circle of open space.

The circle starts at the entrance foyer, curves toward the living and dining rooms, then into the informal dining and family room, the kitchen and the coffee room — then back to the entrance foyer.

In the sleeping area, planned carefully for maximum privacy, the master bedroom is secluded from all other bedrooms and from all other parts of the house.

A bank of closets on one wall creates a buffer between the outdoor living patio and the master bedroom. Another wall has staggered studs for insulation to make it sound resistant.

A bending bedroom hall likewise contributes to privacy — no bedroom door is visible from the entrance foyer, and the hall bath, artificially ventilated, has its entrance door concealed.

In the arcade, a covered entry leads to the glassed-in entry foyer. Here you can look through a glass wall to the outdoor living patio and beyond into a garden.

COFFEE ROOM

The kitchen separates the family and coffee rooms — and a two-way fireplace separates the living and dining rooms.

Construction economies are achieved by building the sleeping area over crawl space. The arcade is slab on grade with slate flooring. A full basement is below the living area.

Exterior details include a simple roof line, vertical wood siding with large window areas, and roof overhangs. Brick or stone may be substituted for the exterior if desired.

Optional materials are possible for the roof; use either tabbed down asphalt shingles or built-up roofing with marble chip finish.

If you are interested in a study plan of this house, send 35 cents in coin (no stamps accepted) to the Pontiac Press, Pontiac 12, Michigan. Ask for House of the Week plan, MW X-8.

Statistics

House of The Week design X-8 has eight rooms, 2½ baths and foyer. The living area includes living room with attached outdoor living patio, dining room, informal dining-family room, kitchen, coffee room and lavatory. Three bedrooms and two baths are in the sleeping area. The overall dimensions of the house are 36 by 61 feet. A minimum plot 80 by 100 feet is recommended. There are 1,732 sq. ft. in the living and sleeping areas. The covered entry has 90 sq. ft., the entry foyer 144 sq. ft., and the outdoor living patio 140 sq. ft.

stable for Tod's rocking horse. He calls it "Cock horse."

The exterior of the Brennan home is red brick with ledge-rock trim. Cedar siding is used on the upper story. The garage is set at a slight angle to the house. Garage doors are painted green.

Harold Schoof was the builder of the Brennan house. Gene Anderson of Lathrop revised the plans from a stock plan. The Brennans moved into their new home about 15 months ago.

Asbestos Shingles May Be Better Than Paint

Debating whether to go to the expense and trouble of repainting the outside of your house? It might pay to apply weather-proof asbestos cement shingles over the old siding, home improvement specialists point out.

Asbestos cement shingles not only give the house a "new" look but need no painting or staining because the color is incorporated during the manufacturing process.

A kitchen cabinet placed directly over the refrigerator is an ideal place for storing cereal, cookies, crackers, salt, and other foods which get soggy from humidity. Warm air rising from the refrigerator's motor exhaust keeps food in the cabinets dry.

Prefab Often Better Than Custom House

About one out of every ten houses put up in the U. S. this year will be a factory-built prefab. Contrary to a widely-held opinion, inexpensive prefab construction can be just as high in quality as the best custom-building — and often has considerably sounder workmanship than a typical development house.

There are good reasons for this. First, prefab manufacturers and builder-dealers must abide by housing codes just like other builders. Thus, you're protected from getting a jerry-built home. Moreover, the sections of a factory-built home must fit perfectly; otherwise, the dealer would see his profit eaten up in costs of tinkering and reshaping.

★ ★ ★

All dimensions and angles must be true. The pieces get a rigid inspection before leaving the factory. With a conventional home, on the other hand, even the best of carpenters is bound to slip up now and then.

Prefab construction is solid. Wall panels and roof sections have built-in stressing that adds strength to the whole house.

Prefabs are cheap because the manufacturer buys his lumber in huge amounts, at low prices. Using an assembly line, he can turn out a product cheaper than one put together piece by piece. Besides this, fewer costly man-hours of skilled labor are needed to assemble the structure. Prices start at about $5,000 and range up above $50,000.

A further advantage of factory-built homes is the variety they offer. More than 100 manufacturers are in the field. You can have designs by top-name architects such as Frank Lloyd Wright, or you can draw your own designs on a manufacturer's basic plan. Also, there's wide variety of sidings, shingles, color treatments, and other kinds of decoration from which to choose.

Financing is no problem. Representatives of many big banks say they'll lend money on a prefab as readily as on any home. Some big prefab manufacturers have taken matters into their own hands; they shop widely for the best mortgages, and thus can often offer a better financing deal than a local builder could.

To buy a prefab, you first choose the design you want, by looking in manufacturers' catalogs and examining sample homes. You arrange your own purchase of land; then you sign a house order with a builder-dealer. Some manufacturers insist that their franchised dealers do all the structural work; others don't mind if you make a deal to do your own foundation, plumbing, wiring and painting.

Once the foundation is set and the house sections are delivered to your lot from the factory, the structure goes up quickly. The dealer lays the floor, erects walls and roof in accordance with special methods worked out by the factory. The finish work — tiling, cabinetry, painting — is handled as in any other house. In most cases, you can move in six weeks after you sign the contract.

★ ★ ★

The result will usually be a house that looks like any other and is just as soundly built. "The chances are," a report says, "that you have seen and even been in pre-fabricated houses without knowing it."

Look at Sheathing Before Buying

Smart home buyers, when checking over a home before purchasing, generally make sure that it is well constructed. A key point which marks a well built home is in the sheathing, the layer of wood just under the exterior siding of the home.

★ ★ ★

A home sheathed in stout Douglas fir or west coast hemlock shiplap has strength and stiffness to stand up against a load, such as a high wind, without collapsing. Stiffness is the resistance of a wall to bending under loads which may cause cracking in plaster and other trouble.

Wood has greater strength than other sheathing materials, according to repeated tests made by the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin.

New Wall Shelves Rule Out Clutter

By International News Service

Maybe hanging shelves will help solve the bedroom decor battle of the sexes if you have a husband who objects to table and dresser tops cluttered with curlers, bobby pins and perfume bottles.

The latest model in such shelves are styled to fit in modern decor in bedrooms and other rooms in the house. They are copper and black finished models which go up in a matter of minutes, using only a screw driver.

Ironing Board Is Adaptable to Many Uses

For instance, home economists recommend it for use as a handy sewing table. Instead of having to sit in a straight-backed chair when sewing, the homemaker can relax on the sofa or in an overstuffed chair.

At buffet dinners, cover the ironing table with a large table cloth that reaches to the floor and use it to hold hors d'oeuvres, dishes of food, plates and other items.

At times, an ironing table also comes in handy in the kitchen as an extra counter or work surface.

Consider Angles in Home Buying

How much should a couple pay for the largest investment in their lives? That's the basic question every couple has to answer when considering the purchase of a new home.

There is no universal answer, of course, but there are some generally accepted guideposts. A common rule among many in the home financing business is that the purchase price should not be more than two-and-a-half times annual income.

In addition to the purchase price, the home buyer must carefully consider how much he can afford in monthly payments to amortize the mortgage. One rule of thumb states that the average couple should budget about 25 per cent of monthly income for housing.

Prospective home buyers also are advised to take a hard look in another direction. First of all, look at houses. A couple may shop for months for a new sofa, but buy a $15,000 home on the basis of a single inspection of a model home.

In the course of house shopping, compare construction. Check to see if quality building materials such as real ceramic tile are used. Ceramic tile in kitchens, baths and other key areas means a lifetime of almost maintenance-free use.

Take a long look at the neighborhood and its future. Check carefully on schools, transportation, shopping centers and churches and the other community facilities that make a neighborhood a more pleasant place to live.

Vinyl Shows Up in Wax

Vinyl is a happy household word now that so many home products are made with this durable, washable substance. Used for a long time in the manufacture of curtains, handbags, shoes, luggage, upholstery, vinyl is now in a floor wax to childproof all types of flooring—even wood—with high gloss, water repellency, and scuff-resistance. This self-polishing vinyl floor wax is nice to use on floors where children play.

Be a Basement Sleuth: Solve Moisture Problem

After several days remove the covering. If the surface underneath is still moist, the water is seeping in from outside. But if it's dry, while the rest of the wall still shows signs of dampness, then condensation is your trouble.

Curing seepage is a matter of covering walls with one of the many preparations sold to seal basement walls, of repairing cracks and holes, and — if all else fails — of renewing the waterproofing on the outside of the foundation.

Clothes dryers should be vented so that the moisture escapes outdoors. An exhaust fan mounted in one of the windows will carry off some of the resulting moisture when clothes are washed. Or even opening a window at such a time will help.

Open windows in the evening when the air is cooler. An electric fan to keep the air moving will also help.

If these simpler remedies fail, you will have to install a dehumidifier, either of the chemical or electrical variety.

The electric unit is little more than a refrigerator coil which cools the air as it passes over it. This causes condensation which runs off into a pan or a drain.

Once the chemical is saturated it must be changed. You can make a homemade dehumidifier by placing a bag of calcium chloride on a piece of hardware cloth placed over a pail to catch the dripping water.

In addition to removing moisture from the air, another approach to solving the problem is to warm up the surface of which it would otherwise condense.

Covering the walls with a finishing material such as wallboard, plaster board or paneling, and the floor with tile, will eliminate most condensation.

Pays to Buy Good Brushes

The hog-bristled brush has long been considered tops as a paint brush. Brushes with synthetic bristles excel for some painting chores. A good horsehair brush will serve your purpose, for a time.

If you buy a brush of hog bristle make sure that it's 100 per cent hog bristle for best performance. The kind of bristle is generally stamped on the handle.

The bristles in a good brush have "flag" ends, the ends of the bristles are split. The more flags the better, since they help to hold the paint.

The strip should not be too thick. If you run your fingers through the bristles and discover a lot of empty space in the center of the brush, it means the manufacturer has used too wide a strip in order to give the appearance of thick bristling.

Press the brush against the back of your hand. Bristles should feel springy, and should not fan out too much.

Bristles should be set in rubber or some other strong, durable substance. Pull the bristles and if more than just a few come out they're not firmly set.

The bristles in a poor quality brush are all chopped off at the same length. Examine the bristles in a good brush; you'll find they are of several lengths. Uniformly thick-ended brushes tend to spatter paint.

Portable Playboard Helps Clean House

That way the project can be taken away so the area can be cleaned or used for something else.

Smooth rolling gliders should be used at the four corners and in the center to insure safe moving of the loaded board. Add a cord to the base with a small eyelet so youngsters can pull the playboard from one spot to another.

Screw Driver Changes Decor

Hoop handles, handles and drop pulls in the brass hardware are other easily installed Far East accents—as kitchen drawer pulls, bathroom towel rings or living room drape cord attachments.

Import houses dealing with the Hong Kong suppliers report the hardware has been engineered to American mechanical standards and approved by cabinetmakers and builders.

Local Man Rolls Blankets, Paper for Top Carrier

Walter Hein of Orchard Lake read a small item in a recent issue of the Pontiac Press about an inexpensive car top carrier. He writes in to tell us how he makes one:

"Take two blankets or some gunny sacks. Roll them into two rolls. Put one near the front and one near the rear of the car top.

"Put the load on top of them and tie a rope the size of a washline under and over your load through the windows of the car. You can do the same thing with newspapers (Pontiac Press).

"This makes a good top carrier at low cost. I use this method almost every day. I hope this will solve the top carrier problem for some of your readers."

Thank you, Mr. Hein. We're sure some other Press readers will try your carriers.

Plastic Table, Benches Fold Up Into Wall

Here's a novel space-saving bench and table combination that folds into the wall. It's one answer to the crowded kitchen or breakfast nook. The set is made of steel and has laminated plastic tops that resist scratches, stains and burns. When opened, the unit measures about four by four feet. When folded against the wall only five feet in height and two feet in width are needed. Called Wallnook, it's offered by Lau Blower Co., Dayton, Ohio.

Insulation Cuts Air Conditioning Cost and Upkeep

It is a fact that wool blankets are the favorite summer apparel of Arab tribesmen who travel under the almost unbearable desert sun. The insulating qualities of the wool actually keep the temperature inside the blanket cooler than outside.

Similarly, a house whose ceilings and walls are insulated by "blankets" of mineral wool or other insulating material stays cooler in the summer and makes possible substantial savings in both air conditioning equipment costs and operating expenses.

Insulation specialists report that a study of insulated and uninsulated homes showed that those protected by four inches of ceiling insulation and three inches of wall insulation can get along with two-ton air conditioning plants whereas six-ton units are needed in uninsulated homes of the same size. The savings of between $700 and $900 for the smaller unit is approximately three times the cost of an average insulation job.

Proper home insulation can also improve the performance of room air conditioners, the Barrett specialists point out. The cooling of a larger area and lower operating costs may be expected.

Bryan Wins Crash-Ridden Indianapolis Speedway '500' Classic

Champ's Victory Dinner Saddened by Death of Pat O'Connor

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Jimmy Bryan, who now has won everything available in championship closed course auto racing, tonight will pick up a check for about $100,000 at a 500-mile race victory dinner saddened by the death of Pat O'Connor.

O'Connor died in his burning car on the first lap of the Memorial Day classic yesterday after the worst start in the 47-year history of the race.

Last year the cars hurried helter-skelter out of the pits, under their own power and tried to line up back of the pace car on a parade lap. Two collided and never reached the starting lineup.

A supposed improvement yesterday was a single file lineup of the cars in their starting order, with engines running, in the pits. They were to be driven into the traditional three-car lines as the pace car pulled away for the parade lap.

Dick Rathman, in the No. 1 starting position, got away too fast and was halfway around the track before anybody else, including Hanks with the pace car, got started. His mates in the front line, Ed Elisian and Jimmy Reece, finally caught up with him and all three were running half a lap ahead of the field.

Rathman was ahead going into the first turn. Elisian tried to pass him on the third turn and lost control. In an instant, that northeast corner of the track looked like a race car junk yard.

★ ★ ★

O'Connor, a 29-year-old racing veteran from North Vernon, Ind., ran over the rear of the auto driven by Reece, a native Oklahoman now living in Indianapolis.

A car driven by Jerry Unser, a first-time starter from Long Beach, Calif., ran over two other cars and plunged over the retaining wall but he escaped with a dislocated shoulder.

Of the 15 cars in the mixup, eight were knocked out of the race. Three kept on running. Four got back in the race after repairs.

O'Connor's death was the 48th in the speedway's history, including two years of races prior to the first 500 in 1911.

★ ★ ★

Bryan, winner of the Monza 500 in Italy last year and the United States auto club champion the last two years, started in seventh position in the Belond Special driven to victory in the Memorial Day classic last year by Sam Hanks.

The husky cigar-chewing Bryan missed skidding and spinning cars by inches and found himself in first place at the end of the tragic first lap.

Bryan won $20,850 in lap prizes —$150 a lap for each he led. Amick won $3,900 in lap prizes, fourth-place Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., $2,700 and Boyd $2,500.

The crowd was estimated over 150,000.

KILLED — Young Pat O'Connor, 29-year-old racer from North Vernon, Ind., sat helplessly in car as he spun over another racer and met death on the first lap of the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway race yesterday. A bad start caused a jam and 15 cars were involved in the crash. Two were able to get back into the race.

Press Photographer Tells of 500-Classic Disaster

By TOM GERLS
Pontiac Press Photographer

INDIANAPOLIS—It was one of the most disorganized starts in history of the Memorial Day 500-Mile Indianapolis Classic.

Without doubt, even most of the drivers were caught by surprise and many out of position when the starter gave the signal by dropping the green flag.

At this point the starter possibly could have avoided much of the confusion by giving the signal for another lap so that the field could close up properly and straighten up their lines.

★ ★ ★

But, when the green signal was given, every car made a mad dash to the first corner and there were as many as eight cars abreast.

★ ★ ★

This is where the jam started. Ed Elisian went into a spin and Dick Rathmann and Jimmy Reece became tangled in the closely bunched corner.

O'Connor, who was moving up, had no place to go and sat helpless as his car hit Bob Veith and then flipped over the car driven by Reece.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

A moment later Jerry Unser in a McKay Special hurtled the retaining wall and suffered a fractured shoulder, while other cars screeched and screamed to avoid the pileups.

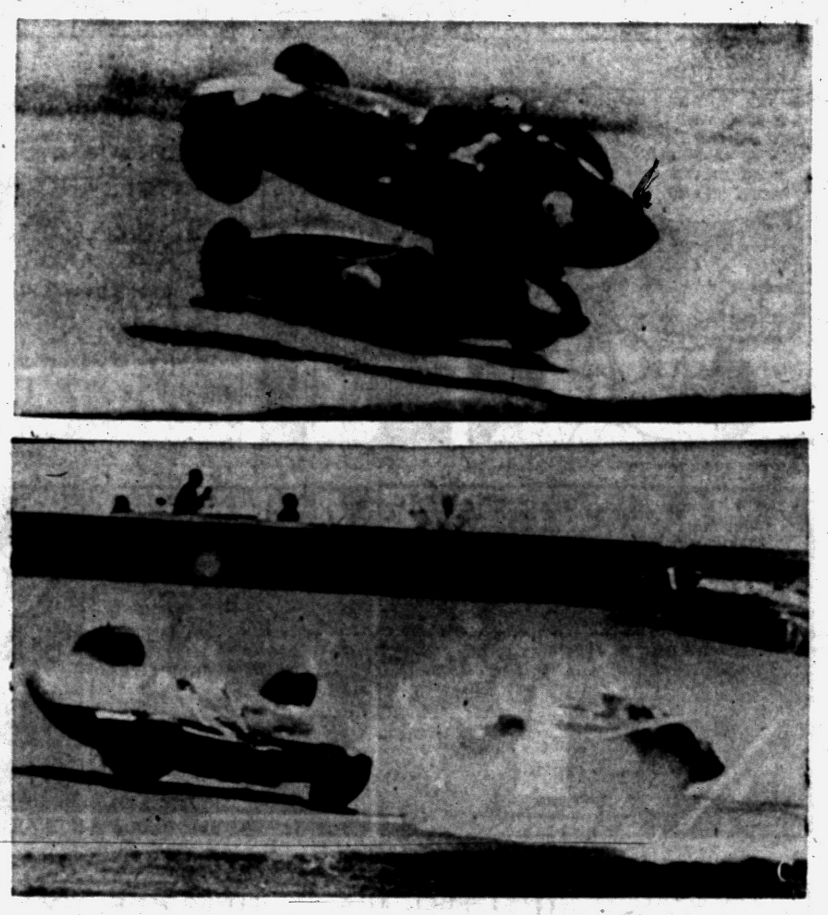

★ ★ ★

It was one of the most horrifying starts I had ever witnessed and the question is, could it have been avoided?

Pontiac Press Photos by Tom Gerls

DEATH CRASH — Pat O'Connor, car number 4, sits helpless as his car flips over the top of the car driven by Jimmy Reece in the first turn of the 500-mile classic. O'Connor's car then turned over, caught fire and burned as he was killed.

Jacobs Slips But Holds Lead

By BILL CORNWELL

Memorial Day was a day of spectacular recoveries and disastrous failures for the "big name" players in the 55th Western Open golf championship at Red Run.

Young Tommy Jacobs, the former USGA Junior champion from Whittier, Calif., who paced the field at the end of Thursday's first round with a phenomenal 64, cooled off to a 71 yesterday, but still retained a two-stroke lead at the halfway point with a score of 135, nine strokes below par.

But the top news Friday was provided by four veteran professionals of the tournament trail—defending champ Doug Ford, Bo Wininger, Lloyd Mangrum and National Open king Dick Mayer.

Each golfer staged a remarkable comeback to escape elimination after disappointing opening rounds. The field was cut to 74 at the 36-hole mark and all four needed great scores to stay alive.

Bill Casper Jr., one of the bright stars of the younger set, and ex-U.S. Open winner Ed Furgol furnished the tragic aspects to yesterday's action by failing to survive the cut, which used 147 as a dividing line.

Ford, who opened with a dismal 75, bounced back strong Friday with a seven-under-par 65, the day's best individual effort, for a 36-hole total of 140.

Wininger's rally was perhaps the greatest of the bunch. After shooting a first round 78, the sturdy Texan rebounded for a sparkling 66 to stand even with par at 144. His 66 was one of two fired yesterday, Gene Littler coming through with the other.

Mangrum came back from his initial 75 to post a 68, featuring seven birdies, for a total of 143, while Mayer carded a 69 to go with his opening 76 for 145.

Ford's round of 65 included 29 putts, three on the 6th green for a bogey, four straight birdies starting at No. 7 and eight "birds" overall, and a canned chip shot for a birdie on the 15th hole. Wininger's 66 was spotlighted by seven "birds" and nine one-putt greens.

Littler, tied with four others for 2nd place at 137, had the hottest putter during his six-under-par spree as he one-putted 10 greens. He also birdied seven holes.

For the first time in 15 tournaments, Casper failed to survive the midway slash. After a first round 71, he soared to an 80 for a score of 151 and disqualification.

The turning point came on the 362-yard 16th hole where Casper took an eight after needing only a three-foot putt for a par four. He missed the putt, then carelessly reached out and tapped the ball toward the cup. It struck his foot for a two-stroke penalty and he finally got down in eight.

Casper went seven over par on the last four holes and the lapse was fatal. Ed Furgol, whose good right arm has not fully recuperated from recent surgery, added a 78 to Thursday's 79 for 157, which dropped him from the ranks.

Joining Littler two strokes in arrears of Jacobs were Bob Rosburg, Doug Sanders, Don Whitt and steady Dow Finsterwald. Sam Snead, Frank Stranahan and Mike Souchak were three shots behind the leader at 138.

Masters champion Arnold Palmer and youthful Tony Lema came next with 139's while Dave Ragan, Jim Ferree, Al Baling and Paul Harney were in Ford's company at 140. Among those in the 141 bracket were Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Ken Venturi and Pontiac's Gene Bone.

South African Gary Player, Mike Dietz of Indianwood and amateur Tom Draper from host Red Run were among 13 golfers deadlocked at 142. After a double bogey on No. 2 and a bogey on the 3rd hole, Player went four below par the rest of the way for a 71.

Max Evans, former assistant pro at Rochester, was in the 143 group while Jack Fleck and Wally Burkemo were even with par 144's.

Only three amateurs—Chuck Kocsis, Bob Whiting and Draper—survived the cut. Kocsis had 145 and Whiting 146.

Jacobs encountered trouble on the back nine after making the turn in 33 with the help of four birdies, three in a row. He had three bogies and a "bird" coming home for 38 and his one-under-par scorecard of 71.

Veteran Toney Penna, who qualified for today's 18-hole session, had to leave the tourney scene for business reasons. Meadowbrook's Chick Harbert, who probably would have been a qualifier, was forced out of action yesterday after six holes by an ailing back.

The 73-man field started touring Red Run this morning at 9:45 with the last threesome leaving the 1st tee at 1:45 p.m. Today's field will be reduced to the low 50 plus ties for Sunday's final 18-hole round.

Tigers Dumped Twice

DETROIT (AP)—Manager Al Lopez asked left fielder Al Smith if he wanted to come out of the ball game to rest his injured leg. But Smith insisted in staying in the lineup while the Detroit Tigers batted in the last of the ninth.

★ ★ ★

Because of Smith's decision, and inadequate pitching by Tiger moundsmen, the Chicago White Sox edged the Tigers 6-5 in the first game of yesterday's holiday doubleheader.

★ ★ ★

Southpaw Billy Pierce, who seldom has performed up to par against the team that traded him away, spun a six-hitter that stood up for a 4-2 nightcap victory before 30,411 fans.

All this added up to a disappointing end to the Tigers' five-game winning streak and meant that they failed to pick up vital ground while the New York Yankees were losing a twin-bill.

★ ★ ★

The White Sox had 25 hits in the doubleheader and they included a pair of home runs by ex-Tiger Earl Torgeson and one by Sherm Lollar. All three home runs came in the first game, but it was a ninth inning single by Lollar that brought across the winning run.

★ ★ ★

Still it took a spectacular catch by Smith to close out the contest. With pinch-hitter Lou Skizas on first and one man out, Frank Bolling hit a towering drive to left. Smith leaped high against the screen and pulled it down and the relay back to first was in plenty of time to double Skizas.

★ ★ ★

Jim Bunning, who has completed only one of his eight starts, took the most of the first game punishment as he was batted out in the fourth inning. Bill Hoeft was tagged with the defeat.

Hank Aguirre started the nightcap and was driven out in the sixth when the White Sox iced the contest with two runs that wiped out an early Detroit lead. Red Wilson homered for the Tigers in the first game and Kaline connected in the second. It was Wilson's first and Kaline's fourth.

The same teams meet tonight at Briggs Stadium with Paul Foytack (4-4) opposing Early Wynn (5-2). The series will wind up with a single game Sunday as the Tigers end their current homestand.

U.S. Open Sectional Qualifiers Monday

It's National Open season again and 159 golfers, including virtually all of the star-studded field now competing in the Western Open at Red Run, will seek 29 berths in Monday's 36-hole sectional qualifiers.

Red Run and Plum Hollow are the sites for the Michigan section, part of a nation-wide qualifying program Monday which will see an all-time record entry of 2,150 players bid for 144 places at 28 locations throughout the country.

Michigan's huge field, divided into two groups, will start leaving the 1st tee at Red Run and Plum Hollow simultaneously at 6 a.m. Each group plays 18 holes at each course.

One player has already qualified for the annual classic. Ted Makalena made the grade last Monday at Honoluly, shooting 72-75—147 to top a 15-man field.

A total of 17 golfers will be exempt from qualifying, five of them previous winners. Exempt champions include defender Dick Mayer, Cary Middlecoff, Ed Furgol, Jack Fleck and Ben Hogan.

The 10 players who finished closest to Mayer last year at Inverness in Toledo are others not required to qualify. These include Julius Boros, Jimmy Demaret, Ken Venturi, Fred Hawkins, Sam Snead, Roberto De Vicenzo, Billy Maxwell, Wally Burkemo, Chick Harbert and amateur Billy Joe Patton.

Under regulations adopted by the USGA last year, only the last five National Open winners are exempt. This move forces five ex-champs to qualify Monday—Gene Sarazen, Tony Manero, Sam Parks Jr., Lew Worsham and Lloyd Mangrum. It will be the final year of exemption for Hogan.

Party Differences Must Be Solved First

More Jobless Pay Not Assured in State

LANSING (UPI) — Passage of a bill in Washington to extend duration of unemployment pay won't mean a thing to Michigan's 460,000 jobless unless party differences in Lansing are solved soon.

Democrats said the federal bill didn't go far enough. Some Republicans say it went too far—and in the wrong direction.

"There are a lot of questions to be answered before the state can start borrowing money from the federal government to extend unemployment pay," said Sen. Robert E. Faulkner (R-Coloma), chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

"Our regular unemployment pay fund is headed for virtual bankruptcy," Faulkner said. "I don't want the state to obligate itself on extending benefits beyond 26 weeks until it is sure it can pay off what it owes for the first 26 weeks."

Faulkner has agreed to attend a meeting Gov. G. Mennen Williams is expected to call next week with legislative leaders to plan "immediate help" for jobless workers.

Williams wants the state to be in a position to take advantage of the federal bill shortly after the Legislature returns June 12.

★ ★ ★

But Faulkner said he will oppose any blanket extension of benefits to all workers who have exhausted their jobless pay.

"It's a waste of money," Faulkner said. "We can't afford to pay more benefits to the auxiliary breadwinner in a family."

Williams' decision to call the meeting was made Thursday, the day after the U.S. Senate passed the House-approved unemployment bill by a 80-0 vote.

★ ★ ★

Williams said he expected President Eisenhower would sign it.

Under the federal program, Michigan could extend the duration of its present jobless payments another 50 per cent to unemployed workers who used up their benefits any time after June 30, 1957.

Since Michigan has a 26-week limit, the maximum extension for a Michigan worker would be 13 weeks.

"The Michigan Employment Security Commission has drafted the legislation necessary to take advantage of the federal bill," Williams said. "We should move quickly to see that it is put into effect in Michigan as soon as possible.

"The federal bill will provide relief now, when it is needed, without imposing additional taxes on recession-hit employers."

However, Williams said he hopes later congressional action will modify the program into a direct grant.

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile, Faulkner and other GOP leaders said they still might rather settle for a program that will allow Michigan to meet the unemployment program without borrowing money from the federal government.

Admiral Harry D. Felt

Chief of Pacific Forces Called Hard Taskmaster

By C. YATES McDANIEL

WASHINGTON (AP)—A serious and thorough officer, a stickler for detail, a hard taskmaster over himself as well as his subordinates—that is Adm. Harry D. Felt as his associates see him.

★ ★ ★

He is the officer picked by President Eisenhower this week to take over Aug. 1 as commander in chief of U. S. forces in the Pacific. He has been vice chief of naval operations for nearly two years.

Felt, 55, replaces Adm. Felix Stump.

Slight of build and medium in height, he has kept most of his chestnut brown hair. He uses glasses only for reading fine print and walks with a spring in his step.

★ ★ ★

Devoted to his career, he has no known outside hobbies except for a little fishing, preferably by the deep sea variety.

Felt was making his way in the Navy at about average speed until World War II broke out. An aviator, he got his chance early in the conflict as an air group commander. He was on board the old carrier Saratoga when that veteran of the seas took part in the first U. S. offensive action of the war in the Pacific, the Battle of Guadalcanal.

After a year in Moscow as a member of the wartime military mission to the Soviet Union, he commanded the small carrier Chenango in the Okinawa campaign.

Early in 1956, as a vice admiral, he was given his first major naval command, the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean. Only months later, he became a full admiral when he was appointed Sept. 1, 1956, to be vice chief of naval operations.

He has a major task ahead.

The Pacific command, since the close of the war in Korea, has taken over virtually all the military forces west of the West Coast. They include about 300,000 men of all services, a sizable slice of U. S. airpower and about half the fighting ships of the Navy.

Felt was born in Topeka, Kan., June 21, 1902.

His wife is the former Kathryn Cowley, Mobile, Ala. Their son, Navy Lt. Donald Linn Felt, is a naval aviator and is now on duty in the Mediterranean.

Ike Enjoying Long Weekend at Gettysburg

★ ★ ★

The President got in nine holes at the Gettysburg Country Club late yesterday shortly after arriving at his farm home by helicopter from Washington.

He arrived within an hour after he had taken part in Arlington National Cemetery rites honoring America's Unknown dead of World War II and the Korean conflict.

After the nine holes, Nevins reported Eisenhower shot about a 43. Par is 35. Nevins said the President won the round one up.

Mrs. Eisenhower arrived by automobile from Washington a few hours ahead of the President. They will motor back to Washington Monday morning.

Cardinals Also Jolt Giants to Cut Lead in NL Race

United Press International

Casey Stengel's moaning but the other managers are laughing today because maybe — just maybe — there will be a pennant race in the American League this year after all.

★ ★ ★

Just a week ago a grim gag was being told in the A. L. dugouts that "the Yankees might clinch the flag by Memorial Day." But instead that holiday produced a doubleheader loss by the Yankees to, of all people, the Washington Senators, 13-8 and 7-2, to run their losing streak to four games.

The San Francisco Giants, leading the National League, were similarly jolted, 7-6 and 8-1, to the Cardinals.

But, even though that cut the Giants' lead over the Braves to a single game, it wasn't a shocker like the Yankees' humiliation by the Senators. While the Yankees were rolling up wins, Stengel kept talking about the 1953 Yankee team that won 18 traight games and then lost nine straight — now maybe somebody will listen to him.

The panic isn't on yet, of course, because the Yankees still lead by 6½ games but it was stunning to see the Senators outslug the Yankees. Roy Sievers smashed three homers in the twin bill and Jim Lemon two.

The Senators blew a six-run lead in the opening game and then came back to win when Sievers and Ken Aspromonte each clouted a three-run homer in the eighth inning. But they led all the way in the nightcap after Sievers and Lemon homered in the first inning. Chuck Stobbs won the opener in relief while Pedro Ramos went the route in the second.

In other A. L. holiday games, the White Sox ran their winning streak to five games by beating Detroit, 6-5 and 4-2; Boston handed Baltimore its eighth straight defeat, 2-0, before the Orioles took the nightcap by the same score; and the Kansas City A's rallied to win the nightcap, 7-6, after losing the opener, 7-1.

In other N. L. games, the Cubs rallied twice in the ninth inning to beat Los Angeles, 3-2 and 10-8; Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh, 7-4, in the opener and then lost, 12-6; and Cincinnati drubbed Philadelphia in a single game, 10-1.

Frank Sullivan of the Red Sox turned in the holiday's top pitching job, holding the Orioles to two hits — both infield singles by Al Pilarcik — in their first game as Frank Malzone supplied the runs he needed with a two-run homer. Big Arnie Portocarrero snapped the Orioles' losing streak in the nightcap with a four-hit job, his third win over Boston this year.

★ ★ ★

Ray Narleski's six-hit hurling gave the Indians their opening win as Rocky Colavito and Larry Doby homered in support. Bob Cerv drove in four runs in the nightcap for the A's, three with his 13th homer, but Mickey Vernon's three-run homer in the ninth forced Duke Maas to appear in relief to save the win for the A's.

★ ★ ★

The Giants lost their see-saw opener in St. Louis in the 10th inning when Ray Crone's wild pitch enabled Dick Schofield to ramp home from third base. Jim Brosnan sackled the Giants on nine hits in the second game, missing a shutout only on Valmy Thomas' homer. Ken Boyer hit two for the Cards in the second.

Ex-Dodgers Walt (Moose) Moryn was the Cub hero in their twin win over Los Angeles. His double was the only extra-base blow in the three-run rally the Cubs staged in the ninth inning to win their opener. And he blasted three homers in the nightcap, including a two-run clout in the ninth inning to win the game.

Milwaukee came from behind with four runs in the ninth to win their opener at Pittsburgh, with the help of loose play by third baseman Frank Thomas. But their four homers in the nightcap were buried under an 18-hit Pirate attack.

Bryan's Father Hopes He'll Quit

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—"Now I hope he'll retire," said R. L. Bryan, switching off the radio after hearing his son, Jimmy won the Indianapolis 500-mile race.

"Jimmy halfway promised me a couple of years ago that he'd quit if he won the big one," said Bryan, a Phoenix fireman.

"I'm not a superstitious man, but I've noticed that Indianapolis winners ever since 1911 have had a record of running into trouble when they kept on racing."

Wrigley Thinks NL Will Be 10 Club Loop in '59

CHICAGO (AP)—Owner Philip K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs says he wouldn't be surprised if the National League expanded from 8 to 10 teams for next season.

★ ★ ★

The National League doesn't need New York, Wrigley said last night in discussing a report of a move toward a return of the nation's biggest city to the league.

"New York had three teams and didn't seem to be too excited about baseball," Wrigley said. "Now they're blasting the Dodgers for going out to Los Angeles.

Wrigley based his hunch that the league might expand next season on the fact "we have a very impetuous group."

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State scored three runs in the fifth inning breaking a 5-5 tie and defeated Detroit 11-5 in a non-conference baseball game yesterday.

Fired Up by Alcohol, Rioters Turn Cruise Into Pandemonium

PENNSVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Fired up by alcohol, youthful rioters turned a holiday cruise down the Delaware River into pandemonium yesterday. They smashed equipment aboard a crowded excursion boat and injured 15 passengers.

★ ★ ★

Twenty state troopers and local policemen were waiting here for the vessel, a two-decker jammed to the gunwales with 1,880 excursionists.

They arrested 34 male passengers, about half of them Negro and half white. Police at first thought the melee was a race riot but later said the fighters were egged on by alcohol, not bias.

★ ★ ★

The injured were treated at dockside for black eyes, cuts and other minor ailments. None was hurt seriously.

The main deck of the boat, however, was littered with smashed deck chairs and broken window glass.

Air Line Agrees Plane Didn't 'Buzz'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—United Air Lines has accepted the Air Force's denial that a B47 pilot "deliberately buzzed" a UAL airliner with 62 persons aboard.

★ ★ ★

Maj. Eugene Mathis said he actually was maneuvering his big jet bomber to avoid a possible collision with the DC-7 near Salina, Kan. Thursday. He is based at Schilling AFB near Salina.

In Washington, undersecretary of the Air Force Malcolm A. MacIntyre exclaimed "unfounded...an irresponsible statement" of the UAL complaint to the Civil Aeronautics Administration. The complaint was withdrawn last night.

UAL pilot M. K. Wolfe had charged on arrival here that a B47 crossed only 50 0to 1,000 feet in front of his airliner. He called it "a deliberate buzz."

★ ★ ★

Sen. William F. Knowland, California Republican, one of 57 passengers, had asked the Air Force and CAA to investigate.

Poor Alligators Can't Sleep in Fishing Season

ALEXANDER CITY, Ala. (UPI)—Now that log, said fisherman Bob McBride to himself, would be a good perch to cast from.

Seconds later McBride had wet feet and a case of nerves. The log turned out to be an eight-foot alligator.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) —Carl Valentine said he figured there might be a fish under the log floating in Cherokee Lake. He tossed his lure toward it.

Suddenly the water boiled up and the lo gcame alive, he said. It was a three-foot alligator.

"Reel it in," yelled a companion, Claude Ledgerwood. "If you don't nobody will ever believe us."

City Policeman Arrests 2 Boys, 14, for Theft Try

An alert Pontiac patrolman spotted two youths shortly after they had attempted to break into the Glenview Cafe, 554 N. Perry St., at 10:45 last night.

★ ★ ★

Officer William Newman thought the boys, both age 14, were acting suspiciously. When he tried to question them, they fled on foot. Newman gave chase and caught one of them. He named his companion who was also arrested.

Both boys will appear in juvenile court Monday.

Mixed Seating on Buses

NEW ORLEANS (AP — Segregated seating on public transportation, a custom adopted decades before the Civil War, ended today. Police said the change was marked by a notable absence of any flareup.

Michigan GI Killed in German Accident

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — The U. S. Army today identified the two American soldiers killed yesterday in a collision with a German bus while turning off the Frankfurt-Heidelberg Autobahn.

They were Pvt. Robert R. Bessey son of Mrs. Lucille M. Bessey of Northville, Mich., and Pvt. Ronald A. Hiermeier, son of Mrs. Clare Miller of Cohoes, New York.

The Army said Bessey was driving the car. German police reported he mistakenly turned off the autobahn onto a one-way entrance road and collided headon with the approaching bus, which was carrying a party of Ruhr area miners home from a holiday in Bavaria.

Playwright Delivers Memorial for F. D. R.

Radio Pill Used to Study Illness

Swallowed, It Records Pressures in Stomach on Picture Screen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A radio that can be swallowed in pill form offers a new and better aid for studying disorders of the stomach and intestines.

★ ★ ★

Drs. John T. Farrar and James S. Berstein said this today in a report prepared for a meeting of the American Gastroenterological Assn.

The two New York doctors said the radio pill is designed to record pressures inside the gastrointestinal tract—pressures related to muscular contraction and distention. Whein there is too much contraction or distention, the normal pressure picture changes.

In the past, study of these pessures required passage of long tubes through the mouth, nose or rectum.

But the radio pill does it this way

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

Describing its trial on 16 subjects, the doctors said the radio pill permits prolonged recording of pressures "in previously almost inaccessible areas," such as the lower end of the small intestine and the ascending portion of the large bowel.

Says Sub Crew Lucky in Crash

All Hands Saved After Vessel Rammed by Destroyer Escort

HONOLULU (AP)—A Naval officer said today it was a miracle that any of the eight officers or 84 crewmen escaped from the submarine Stickleback before she sank Thursday after being rammed by the destroyer escort Silverstein.

★ ★ ★

Capt. Paul C. Stimson, commander of Submarine Squadron Seven, praised the crews of both ships for saving all hands without injury or loss of life.

"We are just lucky that we are not consoling any widows," he said.

The last man from below decks, Chief Electrician's Mate Lafry Hughes, Norton, Kan., was up to his shoulder in water as he started up the conning tower.

The 10 million-dollar Stickleback sank in water two miles deep 19 miles southwest of here. She was on maneuvers with the destroyer escort.

★ ★ ★

The Silverstein's skipper, Cmdr. C. S. Swift of San Leandro, Calif., said the sub's tower was sighted by a lookout only 100 yards off.

The impact came about 10 seconds after he gave the command to reverse engines.

Bondsmen Watch Him Vanish Through Hole

★ ★ ★

Bondsmen Frank Hull and Murray Singer said they bailed Roberts out yesterday after he promised immediate repayment, saying "I got the money at home in a hole in the floor," and offering to wear handcuffs for the trip home.

★ ★ ★

The bondsmen looked on as Roberts pried away at floorboards. Up came a section of flooring. Down into the hole popped Roberts. When last seen he was running down a street, still wearing handcuffs.

Communist Newspaper Reveals Money Woes

NEW YORK (AP)—The Worker, weekly Communist party newspaper, said in its columns yesterday it is in financial straits.

The weekly organ said it was able to publish yesterday only because of a 24-hour postponement of the printing bill and emergency financial aid from some local supporters.

Backus Hunts for Format for Video Comedy Series

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Jim Backus, the voice of "Magoo" and, also, the voice of that fine actor, Jim Backus, is vaguely in the market for a new comedy series.

BACKUS

All he needs is a format.

"Format? My aching head," he says in mock (or semi-mock) horror. "I get a couple every week.

"If I ever see the one about the old ballplayer who's married to the ex-show girl and lives in a small town and coaches the Little League team again, I'll go out of my skull. I've had that one thrown at me a dozen times.

"Actually, a format isn't too important. I did 'I Married Joan' for three years. All that time, two guys took down $500 a week apiece for the format idea—and we dropped it after the third show."

Backus' ABC-Radio show has been given the axe, but he isn't too distressed.

"I guess I'll go back to Hollywood," he says. "I can't say I'll go back to the movies, anymore than somebody could go back to being first mate on a zeppelin. A guy can make a movie a year if he's lucky. And a couple of Studio Ones, a Playhouse 90, a Climax or two and some filmed stuff.

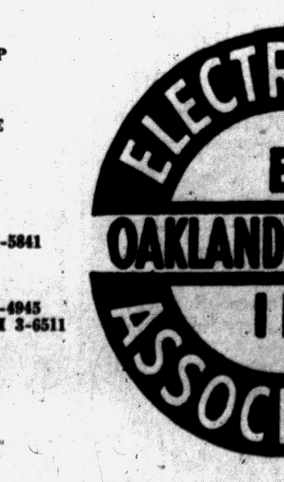

★ ★ ★

"It isn't enough to live on. I'm lucky, of course, with Magoo. But I may have to find a situation comedy format."

Tourist Spending Soars

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — A survey by the State Industrial and Publicity Commission indicates that out-of-state tourists spent $13,000,000 in 1957, a tremendous increase over the previous high, scored in 1953.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

She's Planning to Take 7,800-Mile Bus Junket

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Jo Garland is starting Sunday on a bus ride — a three months junket of 7,800 miles.

The 67-year-old office worker plans to make her seventh see-America pilgrimage, heading this time diagonally across the continent as far as Vancouver, B.C.

Her 21-foot ticket — about as long as the bus she'll start on — will allow her an option of staying a day or two in any community she chooses.

Food Research Costly

NEW YORK — The nation's grocery manufacturers invested about $100,000,000 in product and marketing research in 1957.
