Shakur and his wife were among a group of Black Panther members arrested in the alleged plot which also was aimed at railroad's right-of-way.

NEW YORK (AP) — Police continued today their roundup of 21 Black Panther Party members accused of plotting to bomb five Manhattan department stores, a commuter railroad line and a police station.

Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan announced yesterday said the attacks were planned for today—when stores were filled with Easter shoppers. He said the attacks were intended to strike "the white power structure."

Extra security precautions were in force at stores involved in the alleged plot. One store official said "all the precautions it is possible to take have been taken" and another said all days off had been cancelled for his internal security force.

Police arrested one of the defendants today. Twelve others were held in $100,000 bail each yesterday. Two others were in New Jersey jails and six were still at large.

CHARGES LISTED

The 21 Panthers were indicted on charges of conspiracy to murder, arson and weapons violations.

Among those arrested was Robert S. Collier, 32, convicted in 1965 of plotting to blow up the Statue of Liberty. He served 21 months of a five-year sentence and was released from Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary in March 1968.

STORES THREATENED

Hogan said bombs were to be set off today in Macy's, Bloomingdale's, E. J. Korvette, Alexander's and Abercrombie & Fitch in areas of the huge department stores where paints, dry goods and other flammable materials are stored.

"They agreed to assassinate police officers by bombs and guns and planned a number of other coordinated acts of violence," Hogan said.

Specifically, Hogan said they planned to dynamite the tracks of the New Haven branch of the Penn-Central Railroad at six points and to bomb the Morrisania Police Station in the Bronx as a diversionary action. Snipers with high powered rifles were to be stationed at strategic positions where they could pick off police as they fled the bombed station house.

Sales Still Up at GMC Truck

GMC Truck & Coach Division posted its best sales month in more than 18 years in March to extend its record-breaking streak to six straight months, Martin J. Caserio, a vice president of General Motors and divisional general manager, reported today.

March truck and coach deliveries totaled 14,014, second highest for any month in history, exceeded only by the 14,495 sales in July 1956, Caserio said.

GMC monthly sales since last September have surpassed previous record levels for comparable months.

March sales ran 10.4 per cent above the 12,697 truck and coach deliveries in the same month last year, the former record.

Caserio also reported another all-time high for first-quarter sales with January-March deliveries totaling 36,473, an 8.8 per cent gain over the previous record of 33,534 set last year.

Some Theologians Theorize Resurrection Is Symbolic

forms the core of faith for millions of Christians.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A man raises his hand, taking an oath of office, and it is not the gesture that matters, but what it means. On a dining table, it is not the food itself that is important, but the purposes it serves.

All human reality is that way. Value is never in the sheer object or act, but in what they signify or accomplish. Movement has point only in its effects, time only in its content and a word only in the understanding of it.

It is always the meaning that counts, the intangible, underlying concern and response, which are not identifiable with the "thing" itself, but which are conveyed by it. Yet the "thing" often claims the surface spotlight.

"Illusions are the stuff of which our life is made," says French philosopher Andre Maurois.

SYMBOLIC RESURRECTION

In awareness of this elusive quality of the real goods of life, some theologians see the resurrection of Jesus as inherently a symbolic truth rather than a physical miracle within the limits of history.

Its reality, as they conceive it, is discernible only to the "eye of faith" — just as sound exists only in the hearing, beauty only in the beholder, and any fact, not simply as itself, but as an interpretation of it.

New Milliken Panel to Study School Aid

From Our News Wires

LANSING — Gov. William G. Milliken said today he will appoint a blue-ribbon commission to devise a "more equitable and more adequate system of financing" elementary and secondary education in Michigan.

The commission's recommendations will be submitted to the Legislature in September, he said.

Milliken declared Michigan is in the throes of an educational crisis that will become a disaster without "solid and total reform" of school financing. He said this includes nonpublic schools.

The governor told a joint session of the Legislature that "if any nonpublic school aid bill is passed at this session, it should be with only a nominal appropriation to allow time to test its constitutionality."

PUSHES HIS PROPOSAL

Milliken urged immediate adoption of his proposal to increase school aid this year by $85 million.

"It would not be responsible to attempt now to rewrite the state aid formula," Milliken said, "because school districts must know immediately how much state money they can expect this year."

The governor said reform should not come on a crash basis. He said lawmakers must wait until this fall. He said that if the Legislature is not in regular session at that time, he will call a special session to deal with school problems. He hinted he might support a tax increase.

"It would not be responsible to ask the people to accept a state income tax increase for schools without being able to assure them at the same time of a benefit increase," he said.

DECISION NEEDED

The Legislature first, he said, should decide whether sound public policy requires additional forms of aid to nonpublic schools.

He added he supported the method of financing parochial and private education in the bill introduced by Rep. J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City.

In the bill, funds would be given to intermediate school districts to pay nonpublic school teachers in secular courses such as math and English.

If the bill were passed with a nominal appropriation, he said, it would give time to test its constitutionality, possibly through a Supreme Court advisory opinion.

"This would also position the question of aid for nonpublic schools for action along with total educational reform this fall," he said.

The governor said his plan would "permit us immediately to adopt the enriched school aid formula proposed in my budget."

His commission, he said, would be asked to develop:

- Specific goals of the educational system and criteria for assessing its accomplishments.
- More effective use of school facilities.
- Improved utilization of technological advances.
- Incentives for rewarding teaching excellence.
- Improved management and consideration of optimum size of school districts.
- A more equitable and more adequate system of financing education.
- A proper balance between college preparatory and vocational education, directly related to needs of students and society.

In Northern High School Sit-In

34 Are Innocent of Trespass

By JIM LONG

A Pontiac District Court jury yesterday found 34 persons innocent of criminal trespass during a sit-in at Pontiac Northern High School last month.

Cheers and applause filled the courtroom of Judge Cecil McCallum when the jury of four women and two men returned the verdict. Deliberations by the all-white jury took only 50 minutes.

The defendants, most of them black students, were arrested March 11 while staging a protest in the predominantly white school.

Four of those tried were adults, the rest students. In addition, 50 other arrested students were under age 17 and turned over to juvenile authorities.

'DEMANDS IGNORED'

The sit-in was staged over what protesters claim has been a lack of action on the part of the school board in meeting the demands of the Black Student Union.

The organization has asked for better black history courses, more black teachers and administrators, and location of a proposed new high school on a central site.

Following the three-day trial, the jury had to determine if Michigan's trespass law was applicable since the protesting students were in a public school during regular hours.

Defense attorney William Waterman told the jury in his closing statement that they were dealing with the "simple philosophy of free assembly granted in the Bill of Rights."

COOK ON STAND

The defense ended its case by calling to the stand the chairman of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, Julian Cook, a Pontiac attorney.

Assistant Oakland County Prosecutor John Newcomer was successful in an attempt to block testimony which the defense was trying to elicit from Cook about school racial problems that led to the protest. Newcomer said it was not material to the issue in court.

3-Day Fare; Sun and Showers

Sunshine and showers are forecast for the Pontiac area through Saturday.

The weatherman predicts today's sunny skies will become partly overcast tonight with temperatures mild. A low in the mid-30s is expected.

Cloudy and a little warmer, with rain likely and a high of 49 to 54, is the forecast for tomorrow. The outlook for Saturday is clearing and turning a little cooler.

Probabilities of precipitation in per cent are near zero today, 10 tonight and 60 tomorrow.

Twenty-six was the low temperature before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury climbed to 46 by 2 p.m.

Ike Lies at Rest; Abilene Is Quiet

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — The little town of Dwight D. Eisenhower's boyhood and burial is still.

The body of its greatest son lies at peace in the tranquil little chapel near the home where he grew up.

A spray of yellow gladioli lies on the marble slab covering the vault where the body rests in its plain GI coffin.

RETRACING ROUTE

Desolate, the widow, who had carried herself with grace and dignity through five wrenching days of national tribute, wearily retraced today the route of the funeral train back to the East.

This time, there was no flag-draped coffin to accompany her in a nearby baggage car. Her companions were family, friends, a few military officers, and a Secret Service bodyguard.

Less than an hour after the tearful widow had left the burial service, the Stars and Stripes folded and crunched to her boom, laughing children were romping in the playground outside the little

'U.S. Preparing a Limited Pullout if the Talks Fail'

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Free Press reported today the Nixon Administration is prepared to withdraw some U.S. troops from Vietnam unilaterally if the Paris peace talks fail.

The paper, a member of Knight Newspapers Inc., said top officials do not consider it out of the question that as many as 50,000 U.S. troops could be returned home by the end of the year.

No timetable, however, has been drawn up.

An unnamed high administration official outlined the essentials of the plan which would turn the war over to the South Vietnamese government in Saigon as soon as possible, the Free Press' Washington staff said.

DECLINE IN TOTAL

The plan, however, does not call for a complete U.S. pullout, but for a decline in the total number of allied troops now in Vietnam.

"The idea is not that the war would end—but rather that the allies would dig in for a long haul," the Free Press said.

"The Communists would be confronted with the prospect of a continuing war, but the U.S. role in combat would gradually diminish," it continued.

No troop reduction would be forthcoming while the current Communist offensive is under way, it said.

'COUPLE OF SWEETENERS'

The story said the United States is ready to add "a couple of sweeteners" in hopes of breaking the current deadlock in the Paris peace talks between the allies and the Communists.

"The administration hopes that a plan for mutual troop withdrawal can be reached. But if no program can be worked out, the United States is prepared to embark on its own plan to lower United States involvement in the war," the article said.

Although officials decline to say so, the Free Press said the plan implies strongly that the United States has more troops in Vietnam now than would be necessary to conduct an aggressive holding action over a long period of time.

It said there would be no demand that South Vietnamese troops replace U.S. troops man-for-man.

There are about 540,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam, about a third of the total allied forces.

"Officials believe that the allied side could continue to put up a respectable military showing with a gradually diminishing U.S. force. The hope of administration officials is to phase out U.S. troops altogether eventually," the newspaper said.

HONG KONG (AP) — Four Americans and nine others returned to Hong Kong today on two yachts the Communist Chinese seized seven weeks ago.

Another yacht and two Americans captured with her were kept for further investigation," Peking announced.

The three yachts and the 15 persons aboard them were captured Feb. 17 while on a holiday cruise from Hong Kong to the Portuguese colony of Macao, 40 miles to the west.

SHOOTING VICTIM — An unidentified youth lies on the pavement outside Angel Stadium in Palm Springs, Calif., last night after being wounded during a melee while a rock 'n' roll concert was in progress inside the stadium. Several police officers were injured and many vacationing students arrested as trouble flared for the second day at this desert resort.

Czech Leaders Tour Scene of Anti-Soviet Riot

PRAGUE (AP) — President Ludvik Svoboda led a group of government leaders on a trip today to Brno, a scene of anti-Soviet demonstrations set off last weekend by the Czechoslovak hockey team's defeat of the Russians.

Prague radio said the purpose of the trip was to inspect the nation's principal military academy.

It came as a surprise, however, that the top leaders would leave Prague while Soviet Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko and Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir S. Semenov apparently were still here with orders to see that the Czechoslovak government cracks down on the outspoken press as well as anti-Soviet officials.

With Svoboda were Premier Oldrich Cernik; Stanislav Ravi, premier of the Czech region; Gustav Husak, leader of the Slovak region's Communist party; and military officials.

DUBCEK NOT LISTED

Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek was not listed among the travelers. It was Dubcek who steered Czechoslovakia along a reformist road in January 1968.

The crackdown on the press was evident. Newspapers were filled with statements by the government and Communist party assailing the demonstrations.

The weekly Television Review did not appear on schedule and the office of the publication said it would be delayed a day for "some changes."

Rampant Youths Hit Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — City police backed by reinforcements from up to 100 miles away tried to put the lid on this desert resort today after two days of violence and caving in — in some cases nude — by thousands of vacationing youths.

Nearly 300 persons had been arrested, most of them for drunkenness or disturbing the peace. The city jail was crammed. One man was detained on a charge of statutory rape of a teen-age girl.

Police and deputy sheriffs marshaled forces for a sweep today through Tahquitz Canyon west of Palm Springs. There, large groups of hippies and students had gathered, many to sunbathe and swim nude.

After a rock music show last night, police fired gunshots into the air and tear gas to quell rampaging crowds.

Rocks and bottles hit several officers and broke windows of cars. In the melee, police said, a local man shot and wounded a boy and girl with a rifle.

Lincoln grammar school a few yards away.

By the Army's estimate, 100,000 persons overflowed the town of 8,000 for the final tribute. A massive exodus took place before nightfall.

CHANGING OF GUARD

Two guards from the General Services Administration, which runs the Eisenhower complex, had replaced the scores of trim soldiers who had formed a cordon around the grounds a few hours earlier.

One estimated that perhaps 2,000 had entered the "Place of Meditation" by the time its doors were locked in the chilly, early spring twilight.

They stepped to a low metal grating and gazed down into a sunken area ornamented with a quietly flowing fountain.

On the left, set into the floor was the marble slab — as yet uninscribed — covering the tomb. Near its foot was the bronze plaque marking the burial place of Dwight Eisenhower, who died of scarlet fever in childhood long ago.

A FINAL VISIT

Mamie Eisenhower paid a final visit before boarding the special train. Two hours after the service ended, she and other family members returned to see for the first time how the scene would appear to posterity.

Although the 72-year-old widow had left earlier in anguish, her step faltering, she was now composed. She walked erect, the funeral veil removed, her eyes dry, her expression peaceful.

Minutes later, as the train eased out of the depot, she stepped to the rear platform for a gracious farewell wave to Ike's townspeople.

British Road Toll Up

LONDON (AP) — The Ministry of Transport today reported a heavy increase in road accidents and the worst monthly toll of deaths and injuries since breath tests for suspected drunken drivers were introduced 16 months ago.

Provisional figures hurriedly published in advance of the Easter weekend disclosed that 600 people died on the roads in January, 102 more than in the same month last year. The total casualties were 27,700, a rise of 3,815.

The urban design concept, which is the result of two and one-half years of study and planning for the central business district and entrance areas of Birmingham, will be presented by members of the City Commission, the city planning board and the Birmingham beautification committee.

There will be an opportunity for comments and questions.

It's Official: Viet Toll 4th Worst for U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — A total of 312 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, an increase of 18 percent over the week before, and the U.S. Command confirmed today that the Vietnam war is now the fourth costliest in American history.

The toll announced for last week raised to 33,641 the number of Americans killed in action in eight years and three months of fighting in Vietnam. American combat deaths during the three-year Korean war totaled 33,629.

In only three other wars have American battlefield deaths been higher than Vietnam—292,131 in World War II; 140,414 dead in the Civil War; and 55,513 in World War I.

U.S. headquarters also reported that 1,590 Americans were wounded in action last week, raising the total number of American wounded in the war to 210,639.

NEARING ANOTHER MARK

The total American casualties in Vietnam—244,229—are fast approaching those of World War I, when 551,513 Americans were killed in action and 204,002 wounded, for a total of 257,515.

If the present casualty rate continues, the U.S. killed and wounded in Vietnam will surpass total American casualties in World War I by early June although the total number of dead will be considerably less than the 1918 total.

U.S. headquarters said allied forces killed 4,314 North Vietnamese and Vietcong troops last week. South Vietnamese government losses were put at 357 troops killed and 1,396 wounded.

The 312 Americans killed in action last week was 46 more than the number the week before and the second-lowest toll in the first five weeks of the Vietcong's spring offensive.

The offensive, now in its 40th day, took the lives of 1,718 Americans in the first 35 days, an average 49 every 24 hours. Another 8,743 U.S. troops were wounded in that period.

Determinant of Life 'Brain'

HONOLULU — Dr. Clarence Crafoord of Stockholm, Sweden, says "The life or death of the brain is the factor which decides if a human being is living or not."

Speaking at a session of the International College of Surgeons here, Dr. Crafoord, said:

"I think that it is cruel, and I would say almost criminal, to continue the use of artificial, extraordinary devices (when skilled specialists in various medical disciplines agree that) the damage to a patient's brain is of an irreversible nature."

Dr. Crafoord, recognized as one of the world's greatest surgeons, defines a dying patient in this way: "As long as a conscious or an unconscious brain function persists, the patient is dying, but when there is no further brain activity, we no longer have a dying patient, we have a corpse."

American Men Fashioning a Hair Fad

By DIANNE DUROCHER
American men apparently have been shaving less and enjoying it more.

The faces of men of all ages and from all walks of life are adorned with sideburns, moustaches or beards—either home-grown or purchased from the local barber.

Is this an attempt at a romantic renaissance in a modern super industrialized society or the latent desire to identify with revolutionary figures such as Che Guevara or Fidel Castro?

Nope. "It's a fad," explained Pontiac psychiatrist, Dr. Simon W. Maroko, adding, "It is a matter of fashion and mass psychology."

REASONS VALID

However, a man grows sideburns, a beard or a moustache for a valid reason and as the result of an individual decision, he said.

Most men need a vacation to inspire the decision or to put their desire for a change into effect, Maroko said. Because the final product is a matter of pride and they wish to unveil it all at once, he said.

Some men grow a beard or moustache because it gives them a sense of belonging to or an identity with a group of people with whom they agree, Maroko said.

Others may do so out of rebellion or simply because they want a change; still others may feel the need to conform.

LONG 'FAD' SEEN

Maroko, who sports a small moustache himself and has for the past 23 years, said, he believes this "fad" will last for quite a while. "In fact it may reach a state where men will show defiance by shaving."

Employers may be reluctant to hire a man with a beard because they believe him to be unreliable, Maroko said, but this has no bearing on his reliability or his performance.

"If a man is happier with a beard or moustache or sideburns, then he has my blessing," Maroko said.

Irving Turgoff, an associate professor of psychology at Oakland University, who went on vacation last spring and who returned with a moustache and sideburns, said he grew them because "I like the way it looks."

DIFFERENT SETTING

He said, "When you're on vacation, in a different setting, you present a different picture to yourself and to others. Both are important to one's self perception."

And if you perceive that others see you as different with hair on your face, then you will perceive yourself the same way."

He added that among his male students he has noticed an increase in sideburns and long hair this year.

Maroko said that long hair may be an entirely different category—an attempt to do away with the difference between the sexes which is still associated with hippie-type individuals.

BARBERS' PERSPECTIVE

Area barbers and male stylists view the whole hair fad from a more pragmatic perspective.

Ray Knisley, owner of the Miracle Mile Barber Shop, reported he has noticed an increase in sideburns in the last year, especially the last four months.

"The majority of men have been growing them, and those that can't are disgusted."

"Wives and teenage daughters talk men into growing them," said Gene Seets, a barber at the Seets Brothers Barber Shop on M59.

Dan Chlappl, of Hodges Barber Shop on West Huron, said long hair is very popular but men want a neat look—style long hair.

Bruce Hynes, owner of the Continental Barber Salon, at the 300 Bowl on Cass Lake Road, specializes in men's hair styling and cutting, using only shears and a comb or a razor for cutting hair.

He and fellow stylist Gerry Elliott report that about 20 per cent of their customers, including Pontiac businessmen and factory employees, have a moustache or a beard.

However, if for some reason a man cannot grow hair on his face the way he would like, the salon offers a selection of facial hair including sideburns, moustaches or beards in any style for sale at various prices.

CLUMP AVAILABLE

A clump of hair to be worn on the chest at the neck of the shirt can also be purchased.

Maroko noted that another psychological factor for the hair fad is that it is considered virile or masculine to have hair on the face, and many women find it sexy.

So if a man is tired of the same old face or wants to feel sexier or be fashionable, instead of shaving it all off, he can leave all or part of it on. Or he can buy it at his local barber shop.

Police Bid to Curb Volunteers Loses

HAZEL PARK (AP)—A Circuit Court judge has rejected a bid by Hazel Park policemen to keep civil defense volunteers from riding in squad cars with full-time policemen.

The policemen sought the injunction in the court of Judge Philip Pratt, who said he would hold another hearing on the matter May 6 because pleadings offered yesterday were not adequate.

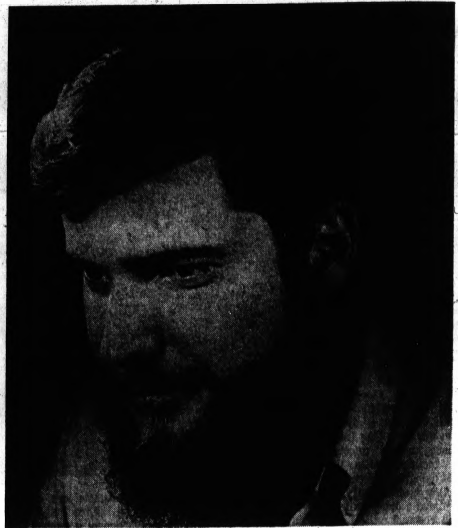

The volunteers have accompanied policemen, which the officers feel is a violation of city ordinance. A hearing on a similar suit against the city of Livonia is slated tomorrow in Wayne County Circuit Court.

"I just feel kind of sorry for the people in the district that they're caught in this situation," Jim said.

"They're not caught," Keith interrupted. "They were given a choice. They're fools. Admit that they're foolish. It was shown at the polls."

Dennis jumped in with: "They were given a choice of being tax poor or not giving a good education, and it's just costing some people too much. That's the bid."

"These students know that adults who move away from the factories to suburbia must be prepared to pay the price of living in suburbia. That means a lower tax base and higher tax rates. The students realize that, more and more, the majority of newcomers to suburbia

Trailer Park Plans in Springfield Hit

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP—Residents in this township have made it clear again that they do not approve of trailer park developments.

Over 100 residents appeared at a Zoning Board meeting earlier this week to protest a rezoning petition request by a group of developers headed by the Donald White, Inc. real estate firm in Waterford Township.

The proposed development on the west side of the Dixie Highway near Davisburg Road in the east-central portion of the township calls for a commercial section of small stores, tracts for various size single family houses and a large plot for trailers. The total development would cover nearly 260 acres.

No decision was made on the petition. The rezoning now goes to the county building, zoning and planning committee for a recommendation. The final decision will be made by the Township Board.

EARLIER PETITION DENIED

The current protest here is the second major citizen protest against proposed mobile home developments in recent months.

The Township Board recently denied a rezoning petition from a Pontiac real estate firm, which had planned to establish a trailer park on Oak Hill Road near Dixie Highway. Opposition at public hearings from property owners surrounding that property was considered instrumental in the rejection of the petition.

Protest against the current Davisburg Road development proposal came in the

2 Attorneys Named to County Tax Board

Two attorneys have been named to one-year terms on the Oakland County Tax Allocation Board. They are Henry A. Schiffer of Ferndale and Robert A. McKenney, 113 Martha, Holly.

The board allots the 15 tax mills provided by the State Constitution among county government, local school districts and townships.

The two were appointed by presiding Judge Donald Adams. Schiffer served last year, while McKenney is in his first term.

form of signed petitions, written protests, and an organized verbal presentation complete with colored slides at the public hearing.

Residents based their opposition on the premise that developments that include trailer parks represent improper planning and inconsistent land use.

Nelson C. Van Natta, township supervisor, said recent citizen involvement in the township has shown that "participative democracy" can bring results if the citizens become involved in the affairs of the community.

"We think that the recent citizens protests in Springfield Township demonstrate that organized and orderly protest can be highly effective at the grass-roots level and is a good indication that could it also be effective at the state and national level if more citizens dropped their apathy," Van Natta said.

Walled Lake OKs 2-Year Contract for Trash Pickup

WALLED LAKE — The City Council has awarded a two-year contract to Willard Sanitation Co., Milford Township, to collect garbage and refuse in this city.

The cost will be $13,000 a year, the same price as in the previous contract held by the Willard firm, the only bidder this year.

The city will buy a 1969 Dodge police cruiser from Bridges Traveland Dodge, Walled Lake. Another 1969 Dodge police cruiser will be traded plus $1,486 for the new car. Several bids were received.

A meeting is being planned to establish a legal water level for Walled Lake. The meeting will involve the councils of Walled Lake City and Novi and citizens who live on the perimeter of the lake. No date has been set.

The council has also agreed to look for land where the Jayco could build a lighted community baseball diamond.

Township OKs No-Hunt Areas

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP — A recommendation to close off about one-eighth of the township to hunting has been adopted by the Township Board.

Hunting will no longer be permitted in areas around Walters, Van Norman and Townsend Lakes.

The board's action was based on recommendations made by a special hunting ordinance committee, following public hearings conducted by the State Department of Natural Resources.

Township Clerk Howard Altman said there were objections from residents living south of I-75 about failure of the committee not to include that area in the no-hunting ordinance. The major portion of the township's population lives south of I-75.

"The board feels the committee's recommendations on no-hunting ordinances are a step in the right direction, but it is not entirely happy with the choice of locations included in the ordinance," Altman said.

In other recent business the planning commission rezoned three small parcels in the middle of a trailer park development on Clintonville Road. The vacant land, owned by the trailer park developers, will be rezoned from residential to mobile homes.

Federal Grant Gives Lapeer Urban-Renewal Green Light

LAPEER — A federal grant of $2.7 million has been approved for urban renewal here, it was announced yesterday by Congressman Donald W. Riegle Jr., R-7th District.

The grant approval amounts to a green light for projected renovation of this city's central business district. A $1-million plan has been drafted to accomplish the renewal.

City Manager Arnold Whitney said the first phase of implementing the plan would be to begin acquiring property for added downtown parking.

Added parking is to be provided behind both sides of Lapeer's main street—Nepessing, south to Clay and north to Park.

The controversial question of a downtown parking structure, which had been scheduled for Nepessing and Cedar, has been set aside for a time, according to Harold Rose, urban renewal director.

Rose said that if the parking structure finally is built, it would be near the end of the three- to five-year renewal effort. Plans for the $1.6-million parking facility drew considerable comment at a public hearing on urban renewal in January.

Urban renewal here is planned to alter radically the city's central business area. One of the items included in a new look is a loop road running counterclockwise around the central business district.

The loop will be created by converting Mason, Clay, Pin and Park to one-way traffic.

The renewal project is considered only part of a long-range plan envisioned for Lapeer by the city's planning consultants, Vilcan-Leman and Associates of Southfield.

Firemen's Funds Bid Snubbed by Shelby

SHELBY TOWNSHIP — Firefighters Local 1338 has made an apparently futile bid for a share of the township's revised budget funds in an attempt to settle the firemen's long salary dispute with the Township Board.

The Township Board at a meeting this week held firm to its policy of not using general fund money for fire department salaries. Negotiations are to resume Monday.

Several departments shared in the allocations of the $70,000 in additional revenue. Major recipients were the Department of public works, $7500; Parks and Recreation Board, $10,000; employee pension and retirement fund, $21,000; fire department, $8,000 (for a fire truck); and the township engineer, $5,000 for a master plan design.

The remainder of the money was distributed to various departments for new equipment, employee additions, etc.

REVISIONS APPROVED

The board approved all of the additions.

The new money for the township general fund was acquired through state income tax revenue and various permit fees charged by the township.

Rubin Gomez, chief negotiator for the firemen, charged that the Fire Department needed assistance from the budget additions more than the departments it has been designated for.

In other recent business, the board approved a waterline for Janis Street, at a cost of $35,000 and a portion of Auburn Road extending from Dequindre to Beltz Road at $99,000. Property owners will be assessed $6.50 per foot for the line.

The board also appointed Allen Schramm of 7060 Grenadier Court and William John of 5175 Skylight to the planning commission. The terms expire in August 1972.

They replace Ronald Skiba of 5927 Bynthrop and Edward Ostinski of 5655 Deborah whose terms expired last August.

License Plate Branch Gets New Manager

LANSING (AP) — The secretary of state's office has announced the appointment of Edward Weinmann as manager of the license plate branch office at Lapeer.

Weinmann has been branch manager of the Imlay City office, which will become a branch of the Lapeer office.

Rochester Scout Earns Eagle Rank

AVON TOWNSHIP — Jack Wise of 327 Old Perch became an Eagle Scout at a recent Court of Honor held by Troop 125 in Rochester. The troop is sponsored by the Rochester Knights of Columbus Council 5452.

Wise, 17, is a member of the Order of the Arrow. He is president of the National Honor Society at Rochester High School and a member of the chemistry club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Wise.

During the Court of Honor, several other boys also received scouting awards. Ceremonies at the Rochester Pavilion were witnessed by the scouts' parents.

Woman Hospitalized After Two-Car Crash

TROY — A Detroit woman was injured in a two-car crash at 7:10 a.m. today and was hospitalized at William Beaumont Hospital under examination this morning.

According to Troy Police, Elizabeth F. Taylor, 46, was involved in a crash at Big Beaver, one-fourth mile east of Crooks, when her car collided with one driven by Paul Rose, 24, of 49150 Pontiac Trail, Wixom.

Rose was not seriously injured, Police said.

Senior Joggers to Meet

DAVISBURG — The Senior Citizens Joggers will hold their monthly meeting at the Springfield Township Hall at noon Saturday. A potluck dinner is planned.

"I think this is widening the generation gap," said Keith. "For instance, I've never thought much of the generation gap before, and I went out to people, and they'd slam the door in my face or refuse to talk to me."

"I presented myself as a person interested in my education and the welfare of the whole township and these people wouldn't even talk to me... these people over 30, and parents."

Waterford Students Bitter About Millage Defeat

By DICK SAUNDERS

There was a time—and not so long ago—when the easiest kind of tax hike to get voter approval was school millage. People just simply were more interested in their kids' education than they were about the condition of their streets or sewers.

"It's not like that anymore," said a teenage girl in an almost sad whisper. "People want to spend their money on luxuries and they want to have their color TV and that."

"They feel that they've got (something) about their education... because I came in contact with a lot of people who said 'Well, look what I have; I didn't have my education and you can do it, too.'"

"But times have changed. We're not going to be able to make it without our education."

That, in a nutshell, is how some Waterford Township students are reacting to last week's school millage defeat at the polls.

I've read and heard all about the reaction of educators and school district administrators. I was interested to find out how the kids felt about it.

I remember, when I was in high school, how largely unconcerned we students were about the outcome of school millage elections. As the girl said, times have changed.

I talked to four juniors at Waterford Mott High School: Dennis Price, Cinda White and Keith Sirlin, all 17, and Jim Durnbaugh, 16, who is president of the student council. All were active in promoting the millage proposals last December and last week, along with many other students at Mott, Cray Junior High and Waterford Township and Kettering High schools.

THEY WERE BITTER

When the millage was defeated in December, the students were bitter, not just because of the defeat, but because of the way they were treated by many adults when they attempted to sell the millage proposal in a door-to-door campaign.

"I think this is widening the generation gap," said Keith. "For instance, I've never thought much of the generation gap before, and I went out to people, and they'd slam the door in my face or refuse to talk to me."

"I presented myself as a person interested in my education and the welfare of the whole township and these people wouldn't even talk to me... these people over 30, and parents."

Nixon Plans to Mix Relaxation, Work

By FRANK CORMIER
KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon, while seeking Easter holiday relaxation at his bayside home here, plans to spend part of the weekend reviewing domestic policy problems.

Flying with him to Florida Wednesday from funeral services in Kansas for Dwight D. Eisenhower were John D. Ehrlichman, White House counsel and a key figure in domestic policy planning, and Bryce N. Harlow, special assistant for congressional liaison.

Their presence underlined the weekend emphasis on home front matters.

However, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there was a possibility that Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, might fly down from Washington at some point in the next few days.

RIDING BACK EAST

Mrs. Nixon and daughter Tricia accompanied the chief executive to Kansas and Florida. David and Julie Nixon Eisenhower originally had planned to fly here with them after the services for David's grandfather. They decided to ride back east on the funeral train with other members of the Eisenhower family. They are expected to join the first family here Friday and remain through Easter Sunday.

The Nixons are expected to return to Washington Sunday night or Monday morning.

A light drizzle fell from cloudy skies as the Nixons drove up to their waterfront compound. But better weather is predicted for the next few days.

Available for the use of the President and his family was the 64-foot cabin cruiser "Julie," which caught Nixon's fancy on his last visit here in March. The cruiser is a government craft.

SUNNING, SWIMMING

Ziegler also held open the possibility Nixon might fly by helicopter to Walker Cay in the Bahamas for a few hours of sunning and swimming. As president-elect, Nixon went there several times.

This was Mrs. Nixon's first visit to Key Biscayne as first lady. The home she and her husband are using as a residence—the other is an office—is being decorated and she is expected to contribute to that undertaking during her stay.

One out of every 10 automobiles sold in the 1968 model year was an import.

GIRL SCOUTS GREET NIXON—President Nixon shakes hands with members of a Girl Scout troop on hand at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla., yesterday, where the President and his family landed on their way to Key Biscayne. Nixon plans to mix work and fun over the Easter weekend.

Dream of Dr. King's Is Now His Widow's

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., in the der, when she said: "I'm more determined than ever that my husband's dream in her own right, of his struggle for peace and brotherhood."

The resolute, attractive 41-year-old widow of the civil rights leader has created a series of firsts for women in the last year—traveling worldwide in the process.

She has received numerous honors for herself and for her husband and has been busy writing a book about their life together.

She also has been caring for their four children. And working on plans for a multimillion-dollar Atlanta memorial center honoring King, who was killed by an assassin in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

The "firsts" include being the first woman to preach at a regular Sunday service in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the first non-Italian to receive a "universal love prize," and the first woman to give the Class Day Mrs. King accepted a "universal love prize"—the first non-Italian to win it. The prize is given for services to the cause of brotherhood and understanding of Mrs. King's character among races and religions.

LOVE PRIZE — Among honors bestowed upon Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. in the year since her husband's assassination was the "universal love prize" she holds here after accepting it in Verona, Italy, last month. Mrs. King was the first non-Italian to receive the award.

LBJ Greets Son-In-Law

Nugent Back From Vietnam

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Airman I.C. Patrick J. Nugent, back from Vietnam, hoped to learn today when he will be out of the Air Force and working again at the radio-television station owned by his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

He declined to confirm or deny that his future might include a fling at politics. Nugent arrived at Austin Municipal Airport from Saigon Wednesday, after completing a tour of duty as a loadmaster aboard a C123 transport plane. He was welcomed with a snappy salute from his young son and a hug from his wife Lucil. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Nugent Sr. of Waukegan, Ill., were there too along with his father-in-law and mother-in-law.

TO REPORT TO BASE

Nugent said he would report to nearby Bergstrom Air Force Base to find out when he will be discharged.

Asked about possible political ambitions, he replied: "I don't want to start a credibility gap. If I say no now, and then I do, you'll say I lied to you."

WELCOME HOME—Airman I.C. Patrick Nugent, embraces his wife, Lucil, on arrival at Austin, Tex., last night after a year of duty in Vietnam. Nugent's father-in-law, former President Lyndon B. Johnson, holds the couple's son, Patrick Lyndon.

Anticrime Funds Eyed

Crime is one of the major domestic problems of the Nation, but like most other problems — pollution, traffic control, housing or whatever — it is not a crisis of equal proportions in every community. Although crime can and does occur everywhere, it is, essentially, a big-city problem.

Critics are complaining that the Government is ignoring this fact by adopting a scattergun approach in implementing the 1968 Safe Streets Act in the form of "block grants" to state governments. The funds should, it is argued, go directly to the cities where the problem is worst.

The money — $19 million for planning and $29 million for programs based on the planning in this fiscal year — is now flowing, but one group already predicts that it will have no practical effect upon crime because it won't reach high-crime areas.

The National League of Cities studied planning in 31 states and charges that:

- The states have erected a whole new level bureaucracy. In 24 states there are a total of 211 regional crime-control bureaus.

Ohio is cited as an outstandingly bad example. That state has set up 15 regions to plan the fight against crime, with major cities merged with all other governmental units.

- Many state allocation formulas favor rural areas disproportionately. Some of the biggest cities are getting inconsequential sums — for instance, Nashville, $7,000; Tulsa, $12,000; Boston, $20,000.

- The League foresees spending leaning heavily toward items like new patrol cars, while the recruitment of Negro policemen and making more efficient use of present forces or improving police-community relations will be ignored.

It is to be hoped that the critics are premature in their pessimism. The war-against crime is too urgent a matter to be permitted to develop into another one of those Washington-statehouse porkbarrels, where everybody gets a little something but nobody gets as much as he needs.

Quisling Record Replayed

Norway is having a replay of a bad dream—the five-year period (1940-1945) when Nazi Germany occupied the country.

Wounds caused by that experience, never quite healed, have been opened afresh by a book on VIKING QUISLING, the Norwegian turned Nazi puppet whose name has become a modern synonym for traitor.

Over the years since the end of World War II, Norway has been torn by the dispute as to whether QUISLING and his National Union, the Norwegian Nazi-style party, acted legally as the nation's rulers in the absence of exiled King HAAKON VII.

English author Ralph Hewins tries to prove that Quisling was no traitor but a patriot who did the best for his country under the circumstances.

What weight HEWINS' dissertations may have on history's ultimate judgment of QUISLING no one can say at this point. The Norwegians, however, made their decision immediately upon liberation. They executed QUISLING as a traitor. Thousands of his cohorts were imprisoned for treason or so severely ostracized by society that many found it impossible to get jobs.

History is not likely to look harshly upon those thousands of Norwegians who spent years in German concentration camps for their eye-for-an-eye vengeance on QUISLING.

Hourglass a Waiters' Check

A hotel in Debrecen, Hungary, has come up with a novel idea to win friends and influence customers, reports Reuters.

A 10-minute hourglass stands on each table in the hotel restaurant. If a waiter has not taken the order by the time the sand runs out, the customer gets a free meal.

We suspect that the millennium has not yet arrived, however. No mention is made of a limit on the time between the taking of an order and the serving of it.

Baseball Contest Clock Running Out

If potential contestants in The Press Annual Baseball Contest who have not yet submitted their entries think someone is looking over their shoulders, they couldn't be right — is it "more right"?

Anyhow, the presence they sense is Time (the old gent with the scythe, not the magazine) mutely holding a watch on them as the deadline for contest entries draws inexorably closer. So close, in fact, that as you read this on Tuesday, you are running for the winner's award of a $500 U.S. Savings Bond.

Okay, Okay. So you've got plenty of time to keep your entry in, and who are we to keep nagging you about it?

Maybe you've got a point there — but don't forget that Hades is reputedly paved with good intentions, and reliable reports indicate that the pedestrian traffic there is the worst anywhere.

Really, we don't know of any contest easier to enter than our annual contest raisers to the major leagues' baseball season. It's as easy as falling off a log.

Truth to tell, we never fell off a log — in fact, we've never even been on one — so we don't know precisely how easy it is. We can even conceive that if the log were one of California's giant Redwoods, it would be practically impossible to fall off. It wouldn't even surprise us if people had met, got married, set up housekeeping and raised a family on a Redwood log — and never even got their feet wet.

Well, as Ring Lardner used to say, "All kiddin' to one side," you really should get your feet wet in this current contest. Just read over the rules carefully, make your two predictions (batter and average) get them down in black and white and headed our way and — presto! — you're a contestant.

You'll hear from us once more — on Saturday. By then, we hope everyone has his or her entry in, and we'll only be talking to ourselves.

CONTEST RULES

1. Anyone, and all members of families (except Press employees and close relatives), are eligible to enter contest. Entrants are limited, however, to one entry each.

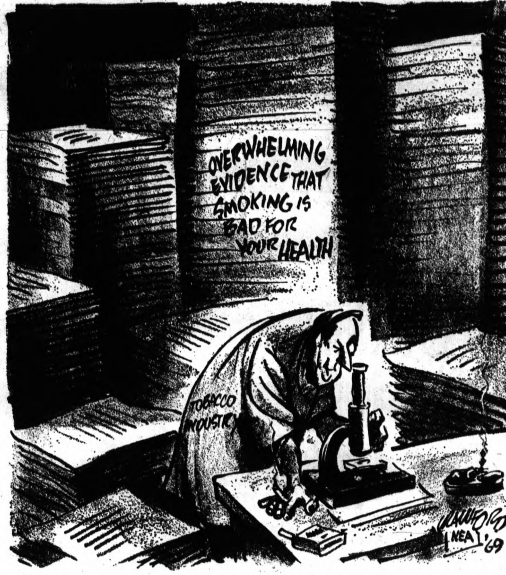

2. To enter, submit name and batting average of the AMERICAN League player (and the club with which identified at time of entry) who you think will lead the league as shown by the Associated Press tabulation of batting averages appearing in sports section of the Saturday, April 19, edition of The Press—the closing date of the contest.

3. Entries should be written on postal cards or substitutes and addressed to The Pontiac Press Baseball Contest, P.O. Box 777, Pontiac, Michigan 48056. They may be mailed or deposited in The Press Huron Street drop box.

4. The entrant who correctly picks the leading batter (or comes closest) will receive the winner's award of a $500 U.S. Savings Bond.

5. The deadline for entries is Monday noon, April 7, and they must be received by The Press by that time. Entries received later, even though postmarked prior, will not be considered.

6. Decisions by Pontiac Press judges will be final on all questions relative to the contest.

"I Don't See a Thing!"

Bob Considine Says:

Ike's Trip Home in '52 Recalled

WASHINGTON — This was June 1952, and the general had flown to Abilene, Kansas, to say the obvious thing: he was a candidate for the GOP nomination.

The pressure on him had been too much to ignore further. After all, it had started CONSIDINE back in 1945 at Potsdam when President Truman offered the White House to him on a silver platter, as if it were a confession.

Truman was his No. 1 fan, after Mamie. He offered to clear out of his path, quit the biggest job in the world in 1948, see to it that Ike got the Democratic nomination that year, and campaign for him against the Republicans' choice.

Other Democratic overtures came to him while he served at Columbia University and NATO in the late 1940s and early 1950s. And subtle and open GOP bids, too. "Ike could run on either ticket," Mamie wrote a close friend. "It wouldn't matter to him."

NEVER VOTED

That was true. He had never voted. Since George Washington's time there had hardly been an American figure as popular and as free of political ties and debts.

There are several versions of what brought him ideologically to Abilene, which he considered his home town, to declare his Republicanism. John Hay Whitney, Harold Stassen, Henry Cabot Lodge and several others are reputed to have swung him. But it could have been Fred Waring, Tex McCrary and Jacqueline Cochran for that matter.

FLOWN TO PARIS

They were the guiding lights of a huge rally at Madison Square Garden. The films of that overflow crowd and torrential enthusiasm for him were flown to Paris that night by Miss Cochran.

Eisenhower, running NATO's forces at President Truman's request at the time, was reluctant to give the famous aviator her allotted half-hour audience. But she raised hell with him, to his surprise and delight. He consented to see the films.

When they were finished, he and his small staff left the room while Miss Cochran sat alone. When he came back, she related later, there were tears in his eyes. He said, "I wish my mother had lived to see that," and gave her the letter of consent to his Republican friends back in New York and Washington.

So he wound up in Abilene, where he was to finish for keeps 17 years later. He made known his intentions on a raw, windy, rainy day and his voice seemed carried away by the elements. But the country got the message, and so did the Taft wing of the GOP.

He was a real political square, and that was his charm. When Ed Murrow rolled a TV camera into the little movie theater where Ike held his first political press conference, growls were heard from the pen-and-pad press and from Jim Hagerty, who had been assigned to him by Tom Dewey.

Ike was asked to throw Murrow and his internal machine out. But he shrugged and the televised news conference was born.

As supreme commander and president of Columbia University Ike had never faced tougher questions than "when will we win the war, general?" or "How do you like Lou Little's football team this season?"

Now he was hit with "What's your position on socialized medicine, general?" To that one, he bewilderingly answered, in essence, "I don't like the sound of 'socialized.' Socialism leads down the road to Communism. Communism leads down the road to anarchy." He paused, thought a bit, then added, "But I think every man, woman and child in this country who really needs medical care and can't afford it should get it free."

A forest of pencils froze over pads.

It was on the whole a good trip to Abilene, the year he made his pitch. It showed the country what kind of civilian he was, what sort of President he might be. To those of us who made the trip with him, it showed us a side of his humanity. Looking around the little yard and whitewashed house where he had lived as a boy, he mused, "You know, I didn't know until years later that he had been poor."

David Lawrence Says:

Abilene Rites Point Up the 'Real' Eisenhower

WASHINGTON—Four days of mourning and the services at the national capital were in keeping with the two posts Dwight David Eisenhower held — supreme commander of the Allied armies in Europe during World War II and president of the LAWRENCE

United States. But the fifth day — focused on Abilene, Kan.—perhaps made an even greater impression on the American people.

Many persons may have been aware that Ike came from Kansas, but they didn't learn the background until the obituaries and television specials began to portray the scenes where he spent his early life.

SMALL-TOWN VIEWPOINT

Dwight Eisenhower never lost the viewpoint which he acquired in day-by-day experiences as he grew up in a small town and worked to that he could help pay for the education of a brother.

President Nixon, in his eulogy at the Capitol rounda Sunday, recalled that Gen. Eisenhower, shortly after the war ended in 1945, was honored in London and that in his address he remarked: "I come from the heart of America."

"Perhaps no one sentence," added Mr. Nixon, "could better sum up what Dwight Eisenhower meant to a whole generation of Americans. He did come from the heart of America, not only from its geographical heart, but from its spiritual heart."

Stress Value of Wearing Seat Belt

By JERRY ROBBINS
City Editor

"No one realizes the value of a seat belt until it is too late," a grieving mother recently wrote the Traffic Improvement Association (TIA) of Oakland County.

"Our 19-year-old daughter is the victim of a fatal auto accident in July 1968, less than 10 miles from home on a sparsely traveled road at a speed reported to be not over 45 miles an hour," she continued. "The car she was a passenger in hit a stationary object and she hit the windshield. Cause of death — head and internal injuries."

"She belt not wearing a seat belt. She should have saved her life, and such a valuable life it was."

"Say it over and over. Wear your seat belt."

TIA is making every effort to reduce similar fatalities with an extensive campaign to promote the use of seat belts.

"Our immediate objective is to bring about increased use

'Supreme Court Rulings Need to Be Explained'

A recent letter criticizing your editorials regarding the s. c. mentioned a discussion on channel 56 that apparently satisfactorily explained the s. c. controversial court decisions. I'm sorry I missed the program. I would have liked to hear how they explained the following:

- Under Earl Warren's leadership the court voided the long-standing sedition laws of 42 states, Communists convicted under them were freed.

- The Government was denied the right to fire employees who were proved to have contributed money and services to Communist organizations.

- Schools and colleges were denied the right to fire teachers who refused to answer questions about their Communist activities.

- On June 25, 1962, stopped prayers and Bible reading in schools and the same day decided that pornographic literature designed to appeal to homosexuals was not obscene and indecent and therefore could not be barred from the U.S. mails.

- Opened up jobs in defense plants to members of Communist action groups.

Keep up your editorials. Someone has to tell it like it is.

'Commend Hospital's Ban on Cigarette Sales'

Pontiac General Hospital has done a good thing in prohibiting the sale of cigarettes there. Although this prohibition probably will not have any effect on confirmed smokers, perhaps it will demonstrate to people, particularly young people not yet completely hooked on cigarettes, the importance that the medical profession attaches to preventive as well as therapeutic health care.

Question and Answer

When the Board of Supervisors said we needed more room for the children at Oakland County Children's Center, the plan they laid out was convincing, the money was appropriated and the new Children's Village was built. So now how come "C" building is closed? I know the buildings are overcrowded and understaffed. Is the Director aware that this is dangerous to the children and staff?

MORE THAN ONE TAXPAYER

REPLY

The building is open. It was closed only two days because of a temporary staff emergency.

Question and Answer

Do all schools in the Pontiac system use the same books? For example, would students at Franklin, Whittier, McConnell, Wilson and Bethune be learning from the same books as Emerson, Hawthorne, Owen, Whitfield and Malkin? If not, what is the reasoning behind the differentiation?

MRS. MARGUERITE BRYANT

REPLY

Texts for basic skills (math, reading, spelling, etc.) are uniform throughout the system, according to Mr. White at the Board office. In social studies and science, a variety of materials are provided for teachers and pupils, and they are encouraged to use a wide selection of these. The choice is theirs.

of seat belts by drivers and passengers," said Bruce Madsen, TIA managing director.

"The long-range goal is for a high reduction in injuries and fatalities through the increased use of seat belts."

Unfortunately, some don't discover the value of the belt until it's too late.

Oakland County traffic accidents last year claimed 163 lives and injured approximately 16,500 persons. More than 40 lives could have been saved through the use of seat belts, traffic experts say.

Belts help prevent the second collision (with the dashboard or windshield), Madsen said. "They keep you in place, it's as simple as that."

Oakland County's road commission and board of auditors have instructed drivers of county-owned vehicles to wear seat belts at all times. Twenty-five county Jaycee chapters have designated April 12 as Jaycee Lock It to Me Day in Oakland County.

In addition, TIA is distributing 100,000 safety belt brochures and 100,000 bumper stickers. The drive is being further promoted through newspapers, radio, television and billboards.

A second survey is planned this summer followed by a third around April 1970, to determine the permanence of the program.

This is a widely influential view in seminary and academic circles today, attuned to a scientific environment, and generated by the work of such theologians as America's late Paul Tillich and Germany's Rudolf Bultmann.

To them the resurrection is an inward phenomenon, a living actuality to believers then and now, demanding commitment to it, but not an external, historical occurrence.

DETAILS IRRELEVANT

"Something unique happened," says Tillich, calling it a combination of tangible and intangible elements whose objective factual details are irrelevant.

It is "based on the experience of being grasped by the power of the New Being," he says, adding that this "is not dependent on the special symbols in which it is expressed."

Bultmann, who seeks to "demythologize" the gospel and extract its essential message from its prescientific packaging to make it intelligible to modern minds, sees the resurrection as wrapped in ancient imagery.

As he interprets it, the story of the empty tomb was a mythological method used to convey the truth that Christ had triumphed over death, even though His earthly body lay moldering away like that of any deceased person.

NO DECEPTION

There was no element of deception in this, Bultmann says, since it was the normal way in which men of that time and culture expressed spiritual realizations in vivid terms.

He says that when the disciples proclaimed Jesus was risen, they meant He really had returned to life in their consciences and in a compelling motivation, a revitalization ultimately nurturing the entire Christian community through the centuries.

Bultmann maintains that the resurrection symbol has supreme significance, even though the symbol itself does not effectively communicate to an age which rejects departures from the natural cycle, so it translated into new terms.

However, he contends that Jesus' continuing "real presence" is a fact, and not merely a memory, and that His "new life" is genuinely realized in believers who accept the cross of their own inadequacy.

RADICAL COMMITMENT

"If any man would come after me," Jesus said, "let him take up his cross daily and follow me. . . . Whoever loses his life for my sake, he will save it."

This calls for radical decision and commitment. Bultmann says, by which man surrenders the aim of self-sufficiency apart from God, thus being reconciled to God and one's own true self, and experiencing in his own existence the beginning of resurrection.

This puts the affair on a thoroughly existential basis, he is known personally, in the present.

While such adaptations of the gospel to contemporary attitudes seem to discount its historical framework, there are, nevertheless, indications in the accounts themselves that the resurrection is known only through faith.

Not so, says theologian G. E.

Spastic Girl Overcomes Hurdles With God's Strength

BY KATHLEEN ROY
Student, Silver Spring, Md.

I was already late for the bus. The hill I had to go down was so steep that I had to move extra slowly. My books were heavy, and my muscles cramped as I carried the load.

At last, the hill behind me, I could see the bus stop where the ground leveled, and I knew that this morning I would reach my destination without falling.

"Hi, Kath," said my friend. "Hi. Sure is cold this morning."

As we began to talk, I automatically concentrated on our conversation instead of my balance. A book fell from my arms as I lurched a little.

SAFE IN SEAT

"Here, Silly," my pal said affectionately as he handed it back to me. We crowded into the bus and I almost lost my balance as I walked down the aisle, but in my seat at last I was safely on my way to school.

When the bus stopped I went to my locker and finally dropped my heavy load. "Good morning, Mr. Dell," he was my English teacher — and one of my favorites.

"Well, Kathy, how's my friend today?" he asked. "Okay," I answered. I went on to my classroom.

As I walked down the hall, I felt my legs turn in as they always do when I try to move faster.

DAMAGE AT BIRTH

My spastic movements were noticed by my schoolmates but they, as I, have grown used to them. The brain damage I suffered at birth has left me with cerebral palsy, which has affected my speech and motor control, and maneuvering the crowded school halls is difficult for me.

But what's a handicap anyway when God is at your side! The morning went fast and at last I had English. I loved English, and I was glad when that period finally arrived. We were studying "Macbeth" and I was getting very involved in it. I listened to my teacher eagerly as I tried to take notes. My fingers moved stiffly and I couldn't write fast. Mr. Dell was talking about Lady Macbeth's role in the play.

EXCITED QUESTION

"Don't you think she was trying to get a good name for herself?" I asked excitedly. "I'm sorry, Kathy," my teacher said. "We didn't hear all of that."

I hated to repeat, and I was very embarrassed. I told myself to try harder, talk slower, and not to worry about it. But I still felt badly. And yet, I thought, God must have a plan for me.

I went to lunch, still thinking about my teacher's views on "Macbeth." The cafeteria was crowded and people scurried from one place to another. I got my lunch and carried my tray to a table.

Then I heard voices and laughter behind me. "Have you ever seen her eat?" I looked at the boy who was talking. "She fell yesterday and I nearly died laughing."

"Yeah, and she thinks that everybody likes her," his girl friend replied. They laughed again.

TALKING ABOUT HER

I tried to tell myself that they weren't talking about me, but I knew they were. "Love those who hurt you," I thought as I walked through the halls. Can I really do that?

I went to visit Mr. Dell. "Hello, Mr. Dell," I tried to sound as if nothing had happened.

"Well, Kathy, I really liked that essay you wrote," Mr. Dell always smiled.

"Gee, really?" I loved it when he complimented me. "Yes, you have a great deal of potential in the field of English."

I was thrilled to hear him say that. "You'll do well in college, English, and I want you to keep your interest in it. You may even turn out to be a dumb teacher like me." We both laughed. "MAY BE A TEACHER" I started walking to my locker. Yes, maybe I will turn out to be a teacher, I thought.

Those kids in the cafeteria didn't really matter now. I had to go on. I had to prove to myself, and even more to myself, that God had a plan for my life.

I knew that all the things that happened today would happen again, and I knew that I would have to face them again. Yet, I knew, too, that God would always give me strength.

Decline Seen in Private U.S. College Rolls

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, president of St. Louis University, predicts the enrollments of private colleges and universities will decline within the next 10 years from one-third to one-fifth of total college enrollment.

Father Reinert said private colleges are unable to compete financially with state institutions and some private schools may have to "revert from private to public status."

Father Reinert said the private institutions have "freedom to experiment and innovate" and he added that, if the private schools do not receive financial aid, "this nation will end up with a monolithic system of higher education, one that will be forced to close its school of dentistry and its department of geology because of lack of support. The geology department will be closed in June, and the dental school will close after the 1970-71 academic year."

She is Rosa Elena Lujan, who married Traven when he was 60. Now, she said, she wants to end the mystery, to prove that her husband, who died last week, was the best-selling author who shunned publicity men, claiming they reduced writers to trained animals.

Emerging in her portrait, the author of "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre" was an idealist who had to live his stories of adventure and hard times before he wrote them. He scorned wealth, and, although his books were best sellers, "sometimes he didn't have a newspaper."

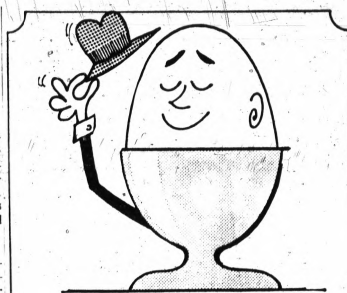

"My husband told me to reveal his identity after his death," his widow said. "We talked about this several times. He felt it would be a great responsibility for me if I attempted to maintain his secret after death. Even in his will, he points out if anyone wants to write a biography about him, I must approve it first."

"FULL, RICH LIFE" She described life with a literary recluse. "It was a full and rich life," she told the Associated Press. "We were deeply involved with his fame? Just a pest. It's a bore each other day and night. We'd go to the movies or theater together. That was the way he liked it. I wanted only what he

After his first stay in Mexico, Traven first indicated his dislike of conformity by running away from home at age 3, his widow said. In Germany, he left home for good at 13. The widow said Traven told her he was shanghaied somewhere in Africa and escaped when the ship docked in Tampico, Mexico. After accepting "The Death Ship," his German publisher asked for a picture and biography.

"I will always refuse fame, publicity and glory," he wrote back in a letter which later formed the basis of his "declaration of independence from publicity."

Later, he told his wife: "What I want to be able to go to the bus without people staring."

Relish for Hamburgers Is Mustered in Britain

WASHINGTON — Brits, Today, more than a hundred are putting the bite on an American institution — the hamburger.

The British devour burgers, which they call "Wimpies," at the rate of 50 million a year. "The chaps find them cheap and cheerful," remarked one food official.

J. Lyons & Co. Ltd., the restaurant chain that owns the Wimpy concession, introduced its version of the hamburger in 1954 at a London food show. Within a week, sales soared to 3,000 daily.

"A number of our early customers regarded the hamburger as nothing but a bit of sausage in a bun," recalled Lyons executive. Flushed with success, Lyons now operates quick-order Wimpy stands throughout West Germany. They even plan to open 50 Wimpy Bars in the United States this year.

Jaclyn's "treasure chest" handbag. Rich in all the chicisms that spell spring '69, the bag buckles its domed lid into position with a giant gilded luggage lock, wears nailhead studding on each side for an added touch of zip. To carry with separate or suitings, the bag comes in both gleaming plastic patent and waxy-finished Merino, the vinyl with the real leather look.

Designed to wing its way through spring, a luxuriously soft kidskin by Coblenz looks great in any one of its fresh, new spring colors. Neatly fitted roomy interior, quality detailing in stitching, gold press lock and rolled handles, add to its appeal.

Two-tone theme turns up everywhere in spring and summer footwear. Enna Jettick's youthful pump of white shining "Corfam" pomperic is collared and cuffed with navy-and-white pinstriped ribbon.

English Viscount's Diary Reveals Duke's Plans

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Windsor determined two years before he gave up the throne of England that he would marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, no matter what the consequences, secret diaries revealed Wednesday.

This was the conclusion the late Viscount Monckton drew in his long and intimate association with the former King Edward VIII.

His diaries covering the period of crisis in British royalty leading to Mrs. Simpson's divorce, the king's abdication on Dec. 11, 1936, and subsequent wedding, were made available for a new biography of Monckton by Lord Birkenhead.

Viscount Monckton, lawyer, Cabinet officer, confidante of the royal family and adviser to the Nizam of Hyderabad and other Indian potentates, recorded:

• The king, then the Prince of Wales, had made up his mind as long as two years before Mrs. Simpson obtained her preliminary divorce decree that life with her was his only goal.

• His brothers, George, who succeeded to the throne, and the Duke of Kent, thought the abdication "mad."

• His mother, Queen Mary, said, "To give up all this for that."

• Winston Churchill fought a losing battle to convince the king a morganatic marriage would preserve the throne for him and still enable him to have the woman of his choice. In a morganatic marriage between a member of a royal family and a commoner, it is agreed that no children would succeed to royal rank. But the king grew stubborn.

Monckton's diaries related: "His private life was to be his own. He would say sometimes that if they were wanting someone exactly reproducing his own father, there was the Duke of York, King George VI."

"He felt that he could not go forward to the coronation on May 12, 1937, meaning in his heart to make the marriage whatever happened and, as he felt, deceiving the government and the people into imagining he had dropped the association or at any rate did not intend to marry."

"WOMAN I LOVE"

Monckton sized up the man who gave up the throne "for the woman I love" in such words: "To him she was the perfect woman. He regarded her as his inspiration. It is a great mistake to assume that he was merely in love with her in the ordinary sense. There was an intellectual companionship and a spiritual comradeship."

"He would say that a marriage blessed by the bishops was a marriage in which the two spouses remained one in the eyes of the law while they went their separate ways sub rosa, and he would have none of it."

"He knew what he thought right and he had no time for the shufflings and the humbug which he saw in the conventional morality. There was no other honest way of meeting the situation than marrying her. The easy view is that she should have made him give her up."

"But I never knew any man whom it would have been harder to get rid of."

The book devotes three chapters of its 367 pages on Monckton's varied life to the abdication crisis.

Afterward, Monckton attended the wedding in France and Lord Birkenhead reported from the diaries: "I told her, the Duchess of Windsor, that most people in England disliked her very much because the duke had married her and given up his throne."

"If she made him and kept him happy all his days, all that would change," Monckton said to her.

"But if he were unhappy, nothing would be too bad for her. She took it all very simply and kindly, just saying: 'Walter, don't you think I have thought of all that? I think I can make him happy'."

Son's Love Life Upsetting to Mother Who Knows All

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am really worried about my son in Vietnam. He's been there nearly a year and has four girls waiting for him back in the States.

He writes them all that he "loves" them and is going to marry them when he gets home. All these girls have sent him cigarets, goodies, stationery, radios, watches, tapes, etc. (He tells them what he wants, and they send it.)

These girls do not know each other, but they ALL telephone me when they hear from my son, and they read me parts of his letters. One girl in particular is lovely. She's asked me to help with her "wedding" plans. Should I tell this girl what is going on? And should I tell my son I know what he's doing?

SOLDIER'S MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Don't tell the girl, but DO tell your son that not only does he have four girls waiting for him, he may have four sets of parents waiting for him. But don't be surprised if he decides to sign up for another hitch.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman in my late forties who has kept company for three years with a man of about 60. We had a sort of "understanding," but nothing definite was said about marriage.

Well, suddenly a 19-year-old kid turns up from out of nowhere, and this friend of mine has sure taken a shine to him. Now he says he is going to ADOPT him. Is this possible?

DEAR JUST: Almost anything is possible. Adoption laws vary from state to state, but one thing is standard. Before anyone is allowed to adopt a child (this is a "child?") there will be a thorough investigation and a lot of questions asked.

DEAR ABBY: A number of our young people engage in experiential sex. It may be that this practice results in part from the temptation to USE people and LOVE things. That philosophy has long been bankrupt. More satisfying living results when we LOVE people and USE things. This attitude finds something missing in casual sex.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press, Dept. E-600, P.O. Box 9, Pontiac Mich. 48056 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Area Folks to Celebrate Easter in Variety of Familiar Ways

By SHIRLEY GRAY

Easter will be an especially joyous day for Mr. and Mrs. James Bradley of Spokane Drive. On that day another grandchild, Melissa, daughter of their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Bradley of Fayetteville, N.C., will be christened at First Presbyterian Church.

Gathering at the Bradley home for buffet after the formalities will be Rep. William P. Hampton of Bloomfield Hills and his wife, the former Betsy Bradley, with their six-month-old daughter. Also there will be the other Bradley daughters with their families — Mr. and Mrs. James Huttenlocher of Clarkston, with their three, Ric, Susan and Martha, and Mr. and Mrs. James Jones of Rochester with Vicki and Jimmy.

Douglas Bradley, brother of the new father, and Dr. and Mrs. Norman Goode of Southfield, parents of the new mother, will also be there.

Dr. and Mrs. Warren Cooksey of Troy had a pre-Easter turkey dinner for the family a couple of weeks ago. Now they are up at their home-away-from-home on the AuSable River for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Huebner — she's a University of Michigan Regent — will join Don and Betty Leighton at the Detroit Golf Club for dinner.

The Graham John Gramms and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shirley will make a foursome for dinner at Orchard Lake Country Club. Planning dinner at the same club are Mr. and Mrs. William Bachman Jr. in the company of the John Adamsons and their daughter Sandy, home from Denver.

The Robert VanderKloots are planning a very quiet day at home, as are the Don Ahrenses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jayne are taking her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Selloff of Grosse Pointe, out to dinner at Bloomfield Hills Country Club. The younger Jaynes, Debra and Bradford, will be there too, home for the day from their studies at University of Michigan.

The Ivan Ludingtons will be minus daughter Susie at the dinner table Sunday. She is away with her fellow Seashore High School seniors on a trip to Washington, D.C., Williamsburg and New York City. Home with the folks will be Dana, 12, David, 9, and Ivan III, 17.

Also missing one will be the John McNaughtons. Son Jack, 16, is on tour with the Cranbrook School baseball team somewhere in the wilds of Ohio. Carol, 19, is home from Christian College in Columbia, Mo., and of course Krysta, 3, will be there.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I don't understand why some pressing is done with a steam iron and other pressing must be done with a press cloth. I don't know too much about sewing and am thoroughly confused about this.

Mrs. B. E. R.

Dear Mrs. B. E. R.:

A steam iron can be used for basically all of your sewing when your garment is in production. Be sure to remember one very important fact, don't ever, ever press any part of your garment from the right side.

The purpose of a press cloth is for pressing the faced edges of coats and suits and it is used when pressing wool more than any other type of fabric. This is important because you need more heat and moisture to get a sharp look on the edges of a woolen garment. Dampen an area of your press cloth lightly, use a hot iron (not steam) and press with a little more pressure than normal. I usually prefer pressing any faced area twice, rather than getting it to moist the first time. Wool takes a long time to actually dry again and when it dries naturally, the sharpness of the pressed edges become rounded again. For this reason, you must pound the faced edges firmly after you remove the pressing cloth, with the lower, unpadded end of your tailor trix pressing board.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Hoyt A. Tatum, Nora Springs, Iowa, is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her following suggestion:

"With the 'slax rage' and everyone wearing pants for every occasion, I have found a simple way to get a straight crease if your slacks call for one.

"Stitch the side seams and the inside leg seam of each leg, do NOT stitch the center front or center back seam at this time. Fold the two seams together and press and you'll have a perfect crease which may be stitched if you desire (especially if you use a knitted fabric). I have also found that using a cloth that has been dipped in vinegar for pressing this crease, keeps it in more security and longer.

"Lastly, stitch the crotch seam from front to back."

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I am about to lose my mind as well as my food budget, replacing buttons that have been lost on both my children's as well as my own double-breasted clothes.

Whether I make these clothes or buy them, it is always impossible to go back and match the original buttons, so in order to put the garment back into wearable condition, I am forced to purchase eight or ten or more buttons each time. Is there any real solution to double-breasted clothes that seem to have a jillion buttons on them?

Mrs. M. M.

Dear Mrs. M. M.:

This is a question that comes up daily. Many times you will see a button missing when the garment is still in the store, before being purchased, and it is really a problem. When you make your own clothes, it would be wise to purchase an extra button, also, to check them frequently to see if they are about to come off. Are you using buttonhole twist for sewing buttons on, also, are you leaving enough give or shank to the button to prevent pulling off?

Clinic to Aid Women With Plans

A Back-To-College Clinic will be held for women who wish to return to college or to begin a college career. The Clinic, sponsored by the Women of Wayne Alumni, will present information concerning admission procedures, financial aids, and degree requirements at Wayne State University. All interested women are invited to attend. The Clinic will be held in three Detroit-area locations: April 16, between 8 and 8 p.m. at the Alumni House on the Wayne State University campus; April 17, between 1 and 3 p.m. at the Pleasant Ridge Community House across from the Detroit Zoological Park; and April 24, between 1 and 3 p.m. at the Eastland Center Community Auditorium. There will be no charge for attending the Clinic.

The Clinic is also designed to answer questions of women between the ages of 25 and 55 who plan to apply for a Women of Wayne Incentive Scholarship for part-time study. Grants are awarded on the basis of financial need and scholastic promise. To date this Scholarship Program has helped 23 women move toward their goal of a college degree.

Further information on the clinics and 1969-70 applications for the Incentive Scholarship may be obtained from Alumni House at Wayne State University.

To prevent dark cottons and lines from taking on a gray tinge in washing, try adding vinegar to the final rinse water. Use in the proportion of about half a cup of vinegar to a gallon of water.

Tensions Cause Pain to Denture-Wearers

By DR. HOWARD E. KESSLER

A number of denture-wearing women have written that they feel compelled to take their artificial teeth out of the mouth toward the end of the day when they are tired.

Some letters came from women who wear partial dentures, others from full-denture wearers.

Each of the readers had been told by her dentist that the dentures were perfect, there was no dental reason for the removal habit and the cause was purely psychological.

Yes, their dentists are right. When the mouth is in perfect health and the teeth are correct, wanting to remove them so often is usually due to psychological factors.

Emotional tension and fatigue account for many habits of this type. I know a housewife who cannot tolerate her wedding ring throughout the day. By late afternoon it becomes so uncomfortable and irritating that she slips it off no matter where she is or what she is doing at long hours of daily work, cares is purely emotional tension, he and tribulations.

An office worker, who happens to be going through the menopausal period, told me that she cannot wear her wrist constantly clamping and chafing for dentures can be watch throughout the day. By pinching on the dentures. Vinegar Wash
Fights Dandruff

One easy-to-use method of combating dandruff is to use a mixture of equal parts of vinegar and water. Part the hair and apply the liquid to the scalp with absorbent cotton.

In addition to removing dandruff, the treatment also cleans and stimulates the scalp. You can use it as a treatment by itself or before shampooing.

Doneness Tester

Don't throw away that old steel knitting needle that has lost its mate. Use it as a cake tester. If the needle comes out clean, the cake is done. As the knitting needle can be washed, it makes a far more sanitary cake tester than a broom straw.

If any of the wooden clotheshangers you are using have rough spots on them, sandpaper them until smooth. Then give them a coat of colorless nail polish.

MOON MEN FROM EGGS

Men Become Panicky

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE J-515: Mary M., aged 28, is a telephone switchboard operator.

"Dr. Crane," she began indignantly, "I work for one of the large steel companies. But I am a u s e a b e r of the behavior of many of our top executives."

"They are having affairs with secretaries DR. CRANE and other women workers in their departments."

"In fact, last summer I knew of three of our VPs who drove to California with unmarried girl employees, stopping at motels en route."

"How they got away with this and mollified their wives, I don't know."

"But it is a bad influence on plant morale when the top bosses flaunt their immorality before their employees."

"What makes these men try to act like Don Juans and even advertise their faithlessness regarding their own families?"

COMPLEX
The Ponce de Leon Complex often underlies this flaunting of sexual faithlessness.

For most men get somewhat panicky about their waning ask, "why aren't younger men erotic fervor by the time they pass the age of 40."

But they find that slender young women, half their age, act as a tonic to their eroticism. Their mothers from early So they start chasing females childhood?"

much as Ponce de Leon was pursuing that mineral spring that would make him feel 20 years younger!

We psychiatrists call this "chasing" by middle-aged men, an example of the sexual Ponce de Leon Complex.

"But, Dr. Crane," some of the wives have often asked, "why would the younger girls be interested in such older paramours?"

And the answer covers a number of motives, such as mink stoles, money, job advancement, ego inflation of riding in the boss's Cadillac, plus a great shortage of men.

Wives, please remember that we have about 5,000,000 extra women above the age of 21, who must poach on some other woman's domain or be without a male escort!

Besides, girls are flattered by the attention of older or "more mature" men.

DADDY

For they usually start out in life enamored of a much older male, namely, their daddy.

Some of this adoration for an older suitor thus persists all their lives, which is why older men can wangle younger sirens.

"Then, Dr. Crane," you may panicky about their waning ask, "why aren't younger men erotic fervor by the time they pass the age of 40."

But they find that slender young women, half their age, act as a tonic to their eroticism. Their mothers from early So they start chasing females childhood?"

much as Ponce de Leon was usually prevents a young man from romanticizing about an older sweetheart, maybe twice his age.

For a romantic male must also feel SUPERIOR to his girl friend!

And a boy of 20 can't feel so vastly more experienced than a woman of 40, which is why this is still a man's world and the double standard is invoked when men actually buy wedding rings!

Lynda Guenther Becomes Bride

Mr. and Mrs. John Guenther of Oxley Drive announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Lynda Leigh, to Robin Dean Strassburg.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Strassburg of Jamm Road, Orion Township.

Honor attendants were Dawn Guenther, sister of the bride, and James Knowlton of Whittemore Street.

Moon Men Made From Blown Eggs

Weary of bunnies and jelly beans? Bored with chicks? Why not invite some festive Moon Men to your house for the Easter holiday? You'll be right in tune with the space effort. With America practically on the moon, what could be more appropriate?

Here are four funny pastel moon, what could be more and backed by their own space capsule. To make them you will need water colors, colored paper, scissors, "Q-Tips" Cotton Swabs, cellophane tape, glue, a metal funnel for the spacecraft, and four large eggs.

To create the Moon Men, begin with blown eggs. To empty an egg, make a pin hole at each end and blow contents into a bowl.

Make each egg stand up by cutting a strip of paper about 1/4 of an inch wide. Curve it into a ring large enough to support the egg and glue. Then glue the egg to the circled strip. Use a handy "Q-Tips" cotton swab as a glue applicator.

For antenna, cut a cotton swab in half and glue together to form a "V". When these are dry, glue them to top of the egg and let dry.

PAINT EVERYTHING
Using a cotton swab as a brush, paint eggs and their paper stands. Cut out ears and glue into place. For the space capsule, cut a window from dark paper and attach to funnel with cellophane tape.

Cut a Moon Man in a lighter color and tape him on the window. Add decorative dots around the window with a "Q-Tips" swab dipped in paint.

These funny Moon Men could make a festive centerpiece at a children's Easter party, or add a holiday look to the mantle.

Smallest virus is that of foot and mouth disease, which measures four 10-millionths of an inch.

What Law Is Best for Poor Consumer?

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

The date's coming up fast when the consumer will know, officially, where to look for whatever legal protection he may be entitled to in any of his credit dealings.

Provisions of the federal Truth-in-Lending law, which require full disclosure of all fees and charges and interest rates which the consumer must actually pay when he buys on credit, go into effect on July 1.

In the event states already have protective laws which are as strong as, or stronger than, the federal law, then these remain effective and will take precedence.

But there's still another angle to the current movement to tell the consumer all he needs to know about credit transactions. There's the Uniform Credit Code, drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, which a certain group of interests hope will really be the final word in what they term consumer protection.

These interests would like to see the code supersede both the present nonuniform state laws and the federal Truth-in-Lending provisions.

CONFLICT

Some four years ago, when study and preparation of uniform state laws got underway (a project mostly financed by money lenders with the cooperation of retail credit men and segments of industry) it did indeed seem a crying shame, from the consumer's point of view, that there were so many conflicting state laws governing credit transactions. In some states, a man's wages could be garnished, in some not so. Amounts permitted also varied even in states where the procedure was allowed.

Abuses by unethical door-to-door salesmen, who left the consumer out-of-pocket, were also handled, if at all, with varying degrees of protective concern through state legislation. Some of the most depressing consumer problems resulted from merchants who sold the products, then promptly sold the contracts to a finance company or other lending institution, leaving the consumer with nobody to protest to if the merchandise proved to be faulty.

INCREASED COUNSELING

Well, the situation that now prevails, right before the July 1 deadline, is that state legislatures are being urged to adopt the Uniform Credit Code, and never mind the Truth-in-Lending bill. The question is: does this code as it now stands really afford more protection to the consumer who practically lives on credit these days?

Some authoritative voices say No. To one financier-business consultant, long experienced in banking and retail credit card operations, it looks this way:

"The code, as it stands, doesn't afford much benefit to those it's intended to protect. Of course, a certain segment of the educated public doesn't really need protection, but there are those who do. The greatest protection that could be made available is to increase counseling services and advisory help to the consumer before he has to pay costly interest rates, because laws simply can't help in the way they should."

The greatest of all laws would be the kind simply cutting off the consumer's credit in his own best interests, restricting installment buying or use of line-of-credit before the sum involved became excessive beyond the consumer's ability to pay."

Now that more details are available about the contemplated provisions of the Uniform Code, they can more readily be compared with the protective coverage offered by the federal Truth-in-Lending Law. Analyzing some parts of the Code, Municipal Judge George Brunn of Berkeley, Calif., made these points among others before a recent consumer assembly.

"The code," he said, "is worse in many respects than many existing laws and better in very few." Admitting that the code has a few good things, he said:

"A couple of things quickly strike me in reading through the code. One is unintelligibility. It is one of the most technical and difficult to understand pieces of legislation I have ever seen, difficult even for lawyers, let alone laymen."

So, as a consumer concerned with the ramifications of buying on credit, and wondering what you're paying for the privilege in money and possible anguish, you can ask your Congressman what's really coming up.

Mix-Match Plan

If you are on a limited budget for clothes, plan around one group of co-ordinated colors. If most of your clothes belong to the same color family, such as browns, oranges and golds, you can mix and match more items.

An Aug. 2 wedding is planned by Linda Lee Hickmott and Staff Sgt. Nicholas Michael Panduren, USAF, who is stationed at Bangkok, Thailand. Their parents are the R. J. Hickmotts of Noble Road and the Nicholas Pandurens of Hummer Lake Road, both in Oxford Township. The couple has attended Concordia Lutheran Junior College and Northern Michigan University, respectively.

Wicker, once elegant only on green lawns, patios, porches is now found in the most important room decors. Like this handsome wicker screen, stunning background for a pretty girl in her New pants ensemble by Halston. Wicker has inspired a fragrance: WICKER by Prince Matchabelli... a subtle blend of mossy green and understated floral, it's the perfect statement for spring and summer wear. The shiny-white wicker-pattern design dominates the packaging... bottles are wicker-bordered and topped with a green and gold cap.

Yank's 'Brendanlike' Voyage Nearing

DUBLIN (UPI) — When on his second transatlantic voyage, Christopher Columbus landed in America in 1492, the chances are the local Indians thought he was just another Irish monk. At least that's what a stocky, blue-eyed American named Bill Verity believes. In May, he hopes to prove it.

Verity isn't the first man to try out St. Brendan's route. Last year, two Candelans, Louis Lournais and Vint Lloyd, ignored local head-shaking and set out for America in a boat-building family that reaches back to the 17th century in the trade.

Verity has been a loner all his life on the sea. He comes from a boat-building family that reaches back to the 17th century in the trade.

After more than 10 years of research, Verity, 43, has convinced himself Irish monks were dropping in on North America many centuries before Columbus reached its shores.

In particular, Verity, an ex-U.S. naval gunner from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., believes Ireland's seafaring saint, Brendan the Navigator, had met the Indians as far back as the sixth century.

WORKING ON REPLICA
In county Kerry in the tiny harbor of Fenit — birthplace of St. Brendan — Verity has been working hard on a replica of the sixth century craft used by the Irish monks.

On St. Patrick's Day he launched his boat to the strains of the Irish national anthem. It is a heavy boat, 20 feet in length, and will carry 150 square feet of sail.

Pneumatic Tube Transit Eyed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The pendulumlike path would employ the natural force of gravity, with the initial power supplied by the atmospheric air behind the train driving it forward through the tube.

Passengers in the windowless vehicles would feel nothing more than a slight acceleration. Since the train would be just about as wide as the tunnel it runs in, they would not see the exterior of the train or the double-rimmed steel wheels fitted over steel rails.

Noise, air pollution or above-ground eyesores would result from the GVT, and it could be built without use of valuable surface property.

No reservations would be needed for the all-weather system, which could offer a smooth, quiet, air-conditioned ride. Trains could leave Dulles Airport in Washington, D.C., for example, every 10 minutes, carrying as many as 6,000 passengers an hour each way.

With no on-board engines, the only power requirement would be for pumps to suck out the air in the tunnel to create the vacuum. It is estimated 1,000 passengers could travel three miles at a total cost of $2 for electricity.

"It would last a century," says Lawrence K. Edwards, president of the firm. "And it can go to the heart of the city and anywhere else in the metropolis without detouring around bays or disturbing surface movement."

Edwards, who directed systems engineering on Lockheed's Agena space vehicle and the Polaris missile, started Tube Transit three years ago when he purchased the right for the GVT system from Lockheed.

America's 25 million teenagers have net market value of more than $40 billion, and spend about $18 billion annually, as well as influencing $30 billion of their parents' spending.

DADDY LONGLEGS — Called the Cybernetic Anthropomorphic Machine, this four-legged monster climbs a pile of logs during its unveiling yesterday in Schenectady, N.Y., at General Electric. The device is reported designed to extend man's physical abilities.

The machine, developed for the Army by General Electric, is the forerunner of equipment GE says "will improve the mobility and capability of the foot soldier under the most severe conditions of terrain."

Army Unveils Device to Aid Foot Soldier

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — What stands 11 feet high, weighs 3,000 pounds, has four legs and walks?

The answer is Cybernetic Anthropomorphic Machine System — a tongue-twister of a name for a machine that is designed to extend man's physical abilities. The machine, developed for the Army by General Electric, is the forerunner of equipment GE says "will improve the mobility and capability of the foot soldier under the most severe conditions of terrain."

The Army paid almost $1 million for CAMS and introduced it to the world Wednesday.

CAMS can walk at five miles an hour, step over barriers 18 inches high and is expected to cross rough terrain that would stop wheeled vehicles.

The machine's legs operate by hydraulic pressure. It is guided by one man who can run it blindfolded if he had to because of a mechanical system that allows him to feel what the machine is doing.

The man rides inside the machine, which resembles a skeletal figure-hued horse. Showing off for newsmen Wednesday, CAMS tottered around a name, climbed up a stack of logs and even balanced on two legs.

456 Tickets Bring Choice of Jail, Fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Ernest Russell, 25, has pleaded guilty to accumulating 456 unpaid traffic tickets. Now he has been given the choice of spending 456 days in jail or paying a $8,200 fine.

Criminal Court Judge Murray Koening, ruling on the case Wednesday, gave Russell Friday to take steps toward paying the fine.

Russell, a $145-a-week field representative for the city's Community Development Agency, was arrested March 20 when police spotted the license number of his Connecticut-registered car on their list of scofflaws.

Said Judge Koening, "You are without a doubt the new king of the scofflaws."

At Senate Committee Hearing

Grand Jury Discussed

By JIM LONG
Michigan must strengthen its grand jury laws if it is to effectively combat organized crime and corruption, the State Senate Judiciary Committee was told last night by a number of judges, including several former grand jurors.

The committee, meeting in the Supervisors Auditorium at the Oakland County Courthouse, had called the hearing to allow experts to offer recommendations on proposed legislation to revise the grand jury and the criminal code.

Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford Township, vice chairman of the committee, presided over the hearing.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Edward S. Piggins, a former grand juror and onetime Detroit police commissioner, said he believed a great deal of thought should be given to changing the criminal code.

He said that any public official who advocates the use of the overloads of "deprivation or weakening of organized crime are to be produced as a weapon" as the grand jury is rendering a disservice to the community and the state. Piggins asked that the legislators not tamper with the present grand jury system unless they come up with something better.

Present grand jury laws, however, are weak, said Piggins, particularly in the area of the time limitations placed on them.

The six-month limit with a six-month extension is wrong, Piggins said. "I'm not suggesting no limitation, but maybe three years would be suitable."

A STOPWATCH
"It doesn't make sense to put a stopwatch on an investigation," Piggins said. Another former Wayne County grand juror, Circuit Judge George Bowles, told the Senate committee that it would be a "tragic mistake to abolish the one-man grand jury. It would only be good news to organized crime."

Bowles said he also believed electronic devices should be used if the overloads of organized crime are to be produced as a weapon" as the grand

"If you're interested in getting solid information about the big boys you need electronic surveillance," said Bowles.

Chief Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court, Thomas E. Brennan, while never a grand juror, told the committee: "It has been my view that there should be a continuing, statewide grand jury setup, with different judges moving in and out of the system."

He too, said the one-year limitation placed on grand jury investigations is "unrealistic."

Oakland County Circuit Judge Philip Pratt, who has served as a grand juror on two occasions, had planned to testify before the committee but kept his remarks brief since it was announced earlier in the day that he had been appointed by the governor to head a study committee to determine the need for a special commission on investigations.

He said his opinions at the time would be out of place, but added that he did not construe the study of an investigating commission to mean the abolishment of the grand jury.

Blue Truck Is Hunted in Teen Girl's Murder

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — A blue March 22, the Saturday after-panel truck with flower decals noon when she was last seen patted on it may be the lead alive.

Police are looking for in the hunt for the killer of Marayann Skelton, the 16-year-old runaway whose mutilated body was found in a secluded wooded area last week.

Police Chief Walter Krasny today said police have been searching for the truck for the past three days after receiving a report its driver was seen giving a ride to Marayann and another unidentified girl on

1-Car Crash Puts City Man in Hospital

A Pontiac man is in fair condition today at Pontiac General Hospital after the car he drove went out of control, left the road and rolled over in Avon Township last night.

Malcomb M. McNeil, 35, of 27 Cooper was rushed to the hospital after the 11:50 p.m. accident, on eastbound M59 near Crooks Road.

A passenger in the car, Charles L. Bale, 40, of Berkley, was treated at the hospital and released.

McNeil told an Oakland County sheriff's deputy that a car he was trying to pass forced him into the median. He said his car was going 55 to 60 miles per

The car rolled along in the median for 270 feet, traversed both eastbound lanes in some 96 feet, went off the south side of the road and rolled over, according to a deputy.

Rep. Ford Upset About Fish Kill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford criticized the government yesterday for destroying DDT-contaminated fish without having "a scintilla of evidence" the residue of pesticide would be harmful to humans.

Ford told the House no standards have been developed for acceptable DDT residue levels, and "it was pure speculation on the part of the Food and Drug Administration" that the amount in the fish constituted a health hazard.

The fish, some 21,000 pounds of coho salmon caught in Lake Michigan, were seized and destroyed by the FDA last week when it discovered a DDT residue level of up to 19 parts per million (PPM) in them. The ppm trace of the pesticide dieldrin was also found in the salmon.

HUMAN SPIDERS — Construction men work on a web of steel at the site of the third and fourth units of Russia's atomic power station. According to the Soviets, the first unit has already produced nearly 5.5-billion kilowatt hours of electric power and the second unit will be operating soon.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Phillip Sepler and Mrs. Jack Gangel, both of Highland Township; a brother; a sister; two grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Bibb Lettuce Buffs Try Buttercrunch

Bibb lettuce buffs — the gardeners who think any variety is inferior, will be delighted to know that Buttercrunch, a recent introduction, has the same sweet flavor, the same crisp texture.

This newcomer, however, does not bolt to seed as soon as warm weather arrives. It is thus possible to keep yourself in Buttercrunch by making successive plantings through the season.

Gadgets Add New Twist

When you're ordering seeds, turn to the back of the catalog and explore the listing of sundries.

Every gardener needs some of them, but others, while not necessities, are a real convenience.

Why not treat yourself to a few like weatherproof pencils for marking on plant labels, or some sturdy plant supports?

shooting. The contempt charge was later dropped.

The governor said Crockett should not be "prejudged" but that his actions were a "proper area of review" for the judicial tenure commission, which can censure, fire or suspend a judge for misconduct.

"I'm extremely concerned about the allegations made with regard to Judge Crockett's handling of this matter," Miliken said.

Del Rio, a Negro, said the judge was only protecting the constitutional rights of those involved. He said Crockett should be praised for his "judicial ability, integrity and impartiality."

MAYOR DRAFT

The Detroit lawmaker also predicted that when all the facts are in, made public, "there will be a groundswell" to draft Crockett for mayor of the motor city.

Meanwhile, Sen. George W. Kuhn, R-Bloomfield, called for creation of a senate committee to look into reports of growing unrest in the Detroit ghetto. He expressed concern about black legislators' comments that the lid could blow off the inner city again over the Crockett issue.

Action Delayed on City Zoning

A hearing on rezoning to allow a 97-unit multiple dwelling development at Baldwin south of Kennedy Junior High was adjourned for 30 days last night by the Pontiac Planning Commission.

Developer Hel-Win Co. wants the property rezoned from single to multiple residences. Some neighboring residents are objecting to the proposal and appeared at the hearing.

In other action, the Planning Commission recommended denial of request for a commercial zoning on Auburn at Paddock. The A&P Co. was seeking to rezone the property from multiple dwelling to allow for constructing a store.

Gauge of Greatness—4

War Ike Hated Was Fruitful for Him

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Fourth of five articles based on the author's book, "Dwight Eisenhower: A Gauge of Greatness.")

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

In Dwight D. Eisenhower's long and eventful life, no years were more meaningful to him than the war years.

Not that he gloried in the war.

On the contrary, he later wrote, "War is the most stupid and tragic of human ventures. . . Still, I never intend to join myself with those who damn all wars as vile crimes against humanity. World War II, not fought by the people of the United States or its allies, was certainly not, on their part, stupid or vain. Satisfaction, and memories precious beyond price, rewarded those who survived and who, in loyalty to country and ideals, answered the attacks."

The satisfactions for Eisenhower were many.

The war years brought him to the pinnacle of his profession, supreme commander of the mightiest group of armies ever assembled.

They gave him the scope to exercise his gifts for planning and organizing, planning and directing the invasion of North Africa, Italy, Southern France, and the most massive amphibious operation of all, the invasion of Normandy. They gave him the opportunity to map the strategy that sent the Allied armies hurtling eastward across France, across the Rhine and on to the Elbe River more swiftly than either friend or foe had anticipated.

He developed as well a talent for tact and diplomacy that enabled him to compose the differences between strong-willed men of different nationalities and weld them into a smooth-working team. This was among his greatest contributions.

The war years throbbed with a sense of achievement, of forward motion toward the great goal of victory in Europe. There were serious setbacks, Kasserine Pass in North Africa, and the Battle of the Bulge. But Eisenhower never doubted the final outcome.

Finally, during those 3½ years, he formed lifelong friendships with many distinguished men and some whom he classified as "great."

Among those was George Catlett Marshall, the chief of staff. As chief of the War Plans Division, they saw each other almost every day. Eisenhower developed the greatest respect for Marshall as a soldier and affection for him as a person. And although Marshall never went to the extent of addressing his aide as "Ike," he evidently had the same feelings for Eisenhower.

For example, Marshall came to North Africa during the Tunisian campaign. He found Eisenhower at the front. Eisenhower had been ill and he looked tired and drawn. Marshall told him he should spend more time in his headquarters in Algiers and less time in the combat zones.

Eisenhower's quick temper, usually held on a tight leash, flared before he could stop himself, "General," he said, "I'm not a Gen. Pershing or a Gen. Marshall. I have to run this campaign in my own way and if I'm not getting results, have others who can take over from me."

A slow smile came from Marshall's usually stern features. "You seem to be doing all right," he said.

FOUR-STAR RANK

Shortly after this, he made Eisenhower a four-star general. Next, in the sequence of events, came Winston Churchill. Marshall sent Eisenhower to London in 1942 as commander of the European Theater of Operations. From the first, Churchill and Eisenhower got along famously together. Presently, the prime minister was calling him "Ike," regularly inviting him to Chequers, the official residence.

"I admired and liked him," Eisenhower said. "He knew this perfectly well and never hesitated to use that knowledge in his effort to swing me to his own line of thought in any argument."

They disagreed on a number of questions after Eisenhower was named supreme commander.

Churchill had grave misgivings about the Normandy landings. Indeed, the Germans' fierce resistance in the early stages seemed to be confirming his worst fears. Yet, as the battle swung perilously in the balance, Churchill rose in the House of Commons and said, calmly, "There is every confidence in the supreme commander, Gen. Eisenhower."

The prime minister saw little value in Eisenhower's strategy of invading southern France to help speed the advance of the main Allied forces. In changes of correspondence long after the war, Churchill still clung to his point of view and Eisenhower stuck to his.

Their most serious disagreement developed over the question of capturing Berlin.

Churchill strongly urged Eisenhower to seize the city before the Russian armies could reach it. He foresaw the post-war political importance of Berlin.

PURELY MILITARY

Eisenhower, motivated by purely military considerations, said Berlin had ceased to have any military importance. As the quickest way to end the war, he had laid out an intricate plan to overrun the vast German industrial complex in the Ruhr. Further, he proposed to halt his armies at the Elbe, some 50 miles west of Berlin.

The boundaries of the American, British and Russian zones of occupation had been fixed by representatives of the Big Three more than a year before this. The demarcation lines placed Berlin deep inside the Soviet zone.

When his armies reached the Elbe, they were 110 miles inside the Soviet zone and presumably, under the terms of the agreement, they would pull back to the American zone when the fighting ended.

Churchill exerted every effort, and every source of persuasive power, to convince Eisenhower that these boundary lines should be disregarded for the time being and that he should take Berlin.

Eisenhower replied heatedly, "Look, Mr. Prime Minister, you agreed to this arrangement for the zones of occupation. I didn't."

In other words, the Big Three agreement on the zones had been made on echelons of authority far higher than Eisenhower's. All he could say was that if the combined chiefs of staff ordered him to advance on Berlin he would "cheerfully change my plans" to encircle the Ruhr.

History may decree that the story of Berlin might have been much different if Eisenhower had taken it. On the other hand, it would have been a tragic waste of American lives to fight for the city and then, under terms of the agreement, be required to relinquish it and pull back to the American zone, 160 miles to the west.

The day came when Eisenhower dictated a historic cable to the combined chiefs. It read, "The mission of this Allied force was fulfilled at 0241 local time, May 7, 1945. It meant that the Nazis had surrendered, ending the war in Europe."

He was mentally and emotionally tired. He looked forward only to retirement in some quiet spot. This was not to be. His country still needed him.

Biafran Explains 'Good Press'

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — Ifegwu Eke is a Harvard man, an ex-Wall Streeter, and close to the sources of power in this sessionist state.

He is information minister for the Biafrans, an effective worker who thinks he is in some part responsible for favorable attention that Biafra has received abroad.

Most reporters who visit Biafra tell what they saw during tours arranged for them by Eke's staff. Only a few rebel and ask why they need a guide. But most visit fights the government considers secure for them to take in. Their reports usually give the impression that they find Biafra determined and courageous.

"I think it can't really be said we are mainly responsible for our good press," Eke said. "The best idea is to let people come and not try to brainwash them. We don't expect 100 per cent commitment, but when a person comes in and writes what he sees, we think he will be favorable. News men see what we knew they would see. This is so much better than lecturing them."

NO TRAINING

In many ways, Eke typifies the men who move Biafra. He went into an area in which he had no training—"My only experience with news media was appearing on a couple of Nigerian television shows"—and followed up with a job that appears to have paid off. The same is true of other men in Biafra production, agriculture, communications and transport. "I am an economist," Eke says. His credentials are a bachelor of arts taken at McGill University in Montreal in 1962 and a Ph.D. from Harvard in 1964. He says he enjoyed Harvard very much, but describes his time there as "business years."

In 1964 and 1965, he was in Wall Street with banks, living at 17th Street and 3rd Avenue, "close enough to the Village to walk over."

Eke, 33, slim and good-looking, talks about New York casually, but the way he describes looking for a job in the United States shows his turn of mind.

RUNAROUND

"I got the runaround from Shell and Esso," he said. "They wanted to hire me but to send me back to Nigeria. I talked salary a little above what they had in mind, but it fell through. I went to the Bank of New York and they thought I might be useful in developing their international contacts. But I did something for them, devising a kind of corporate advisory program, and this made me feel accepted and wanted."

During his time in the United States, Eke recalls "feeling a great deal of antiblack pressure—not people's attitude toward me, but the atmosphere. You are with black friends and you want to go somewhere, but they say 'Uh uh, not there.'"

"The police are, of course, ruthless."

But Eke added: "I never believed in the civil rights march. If you identify yourself with the black community then automatically you feel the pressure and you start thinking like a black man. It is frankly a minority way of thinking, and even if you get a good job, you may not make progress if you continue in that spirit."

WHITE OPPRESSORS

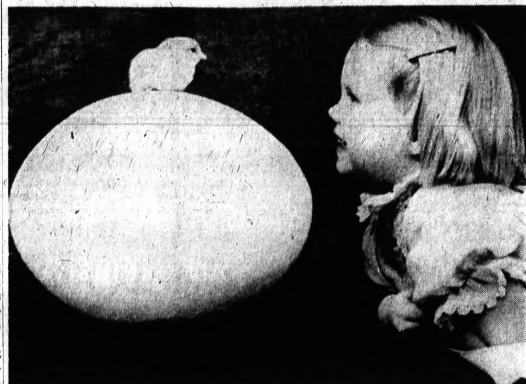

At the same time, Eke's language is similar to that of many black militants. "Without Britain there would have been no war. It is actually a case of black men fighting white oppressors. The Nigerians are buffoons. They just didn't understand what the situation is and how they were used."

Eke has a comfortable house in a town some distance from Umuahia where many Biafran technocrats live. Some of the younger ones, mostly Oxford and Cambridge graduates, often stop by in the evening. They drink, curse Harold Wilson, British prime minister, and sometimes have a foreign guest, looking him over. If he is a newspaperman, rather like a university scholarship committee.

Eke is less formal than his British-trained friends. He says his training in the United States has tended to make him less interested in a man's reputation than the results he produces.

"This is the most significant part of my American and Canadian experience," he said. "Somebody is not something until he justifies it."

Extinct for 1,000 years, the Aepyornis once flourished in Madagascar, and scientists still find remains of the birds and their eggs. The flightless bird weighed about half a ton, and its eggs averaged 13 inches in length. The little girl is Karlene Grier, 2.

Tell the World Off

Curmudgeonry a Delight

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the delights of growing older is that in time it enables you to become a curmudgeon.

Life holds few greater rewards.

No college teaches a course in how to be a curmudgeon. Only a lot of living can do that for you.

Just what is a curmudgeon? The origin of the word is unknown, and at one time it meant a grasping, avaricious man-miser.

That meaning has gone by the board, however, and today most dictionaries define a curmudgeon as an irascible, crotchety or cantankerous old man.

WHY NOT?

The thoughtless might inquire, "Why would anyone want to be a curmudgeon?" The answer to that is, "Why not? What more enjoyable fate could any one look forward to?"

The reward of the curmudgeon is that he can do as he pleases and fulfill the oldest ambition of mankind—to tell the truth and get away with it.

If you always tell the truth when you are a child, you are accused of being brash or disrespectful and are often punished by being spanked or sent to bed without your dinner. If you tell the truth too often in young manhood or middle age, you may be punched in the nose, put in prison, exiled, or even hanged or shot.

But the curmudgeon escapes all such penalties. He can spit in the eye of hypocrisy and escape scot-free.

HE'S LOVABLE

No one offers to do him bodily harm. Everyone just says, mildly shocked. "Isn't he a lovable old curmudgeon?"

The tedious evasions of reality, the shibboleths that bind the rest of us, do not restrain the curmudgeon. We may feel it a duty to praise motherhood, wrap ourselves in the flag, and defend the federal highway program.

Not your curmudgeon. He feels free to say exactly what he thinks at all times and to challenge the human race's most cherished views on any subject under the sun, including the weather.

Tell a curmudgeon—just to make conversation—that it looks like it'll rain, and he doesn't feel compelled to agree. Squinting up at the sky, he is as likely to reply, "Like hell it does."

REFRESHING ANTIDOTE

He can, and usually does, criticize and question anything and anybody, and thereby often provides a refreshing antidote to the poison of conformity that weakens most of us. He may become something of a nuisance, but he does help keep our minds awake and on occasion stir our conscience to some needed soul searching.

Your true curmudgeon is rather like a juvenile delinquent with white hair. He can bawl out bus drivers for discourtesy, go without a necktie if he chooses, and fall asleep during after-dinner speeches if they get too dull. He is a man free to be a man.

MORE THAN AGE

It takes more than mere age to make a good curmudgeon. You have to be financially solvent, too. If you are old and broke and tend to point out the errors of the world, no one says you are a lovable old curmudgeon. Instead they ask annoyedly, "What's the old fool shooting his mouth off about now? He should be in an institution."

"The police are, of course, ruthless."

But Eke added: "I never believed in the civil rights march. If you identify yourself with the black community then automatically you feel the pressure and you start thinking like a black man. It is frankly a minority way of thinking, and even if you get a good job, you may not make progress if you continue in that spirit."

WHITE OPPRESSORS

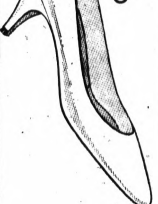

At the same time, Eke's language is similar to that of many black militants. "Without Britain there would have been no war. It is actually a case of black men fighting white oppressors. The Nigerians are buffoons. They just didn't understand what the situation is and how they were used."

Town Moved for Access to Asbestos Ore

ASBESTOS, Que. (AP) — Asbestos is where you find it, and if you find it under a town—move the town.

That's the new lore in Canada's asbestos belt, where eager miners aren't about to let a little thing like city limits stop them from scooping rich profits from Mother Earth.

The townspeople don't mind much. The mines are their livelihood and, as one pointed out: "It's better to move than have 400-pound rocks flying around your head."

Asbestos is mined by blasting open pits in the ore beds. Some of these pits come to within a few feet of buildings in many mining towns. Due to faults deep inside the rock, engineers can't always gauge how it will fragment in a blast. That's when the boulders start flying.

NIBBLING AT TOWN

Mining companies have been nibbling away at the outskirts of this town, 100 miles east of Montreal. Every few years they relocate families and move buildings to get at the ore beneath their foundations.

But the biggest move ever planned is at the town of Thetford Mines, 50 miles east of here—relocating one-sixth of the population to lay bare 15 per cent of the town's surface area, 730 acres, for asbestos mining.

It involves removal or demolition of 903 homes, 27 commercial buildings and six public buildings, and affects 4,000 persons. The project is estimated to take five to seven years and cost $7.1 million.

Meyer Philippe Boucher of Thetford Mines said 75 per cent of this will be borne by the Quebec Housing Corp.; 15 per cent by two mining concerns, Asbestos Corp. Ltd. and Bell Asbestos Mines Ltd.; and 10 per cent by the town, "all without an increase in taxes."

FAMILIES ENTICED

Families to be displaced are enticed by the prospect of more modern homes and cheap lots in another section of town—hopefully ones that don't rest on an ore bed.

"Asbestos Corp. is making available lots averaging 75 by 100 feet at $100—one-seventh the going price," said Boucher. "In addition, the town will be building 94 apartments with moderate rents for people whose homes are demolished."

Canada's asbestos belt is in the soft, rolling hills of Quebec's eastern townships. The 50-mile strip between Asbestos and Thetford Mines produced 12 million tons of Canada's total 1.4 million-ton output in 1967. It is mined by seven companies, all subsidiaries of British or U.S. concerns, that pay 6,000 miners $40 million in wages annually.

As the world's largest supplier of asbestos, this region is profiting from an unprecedented asbestos boom. Despite competition from new, developing countries that also have large asbestos deposits, the demand for the silky, steel-strong fiber seems inexhaustible.

PRODUCTION DOUBLES

In 1949 Canada produced 85 per cent of the free world's asbestos needs. Today it supplies only 40 per cent. But at the same time its production has doubled, and Canada still exports 95 per cent of all it mines—50 per cent to the United States. In 1967 asbestos was Canada's fourth-ranking export, bringing in more than $172 million.

Tel Aviv, Cairo Cabbies Apace With Their Cities

CAIRO (UPI) — Taxi drivers. The difference between the in Cairo and Tel Aviv have only two cabdrivers is basically the one thing in common, they both drive cabs. Apart from that, Cairo looks anything but a city at war. Tel Aviv looks like a city ready for war tomorrow.

The Tel Aviv cabbie is aggressive to the point of arrogance and will talk the lobes off your ears with stories of how he drove a tank in the last Mideast War in 1967 and, perhaps more significantly, how he's going to be right there in a tank in the next one.

He has scant concern for other auto drivers in the city and thrust of Tel Aviv's breakneck traffic, but he respects the paint work on his fenders. On the fare, he'll take everything he can get.

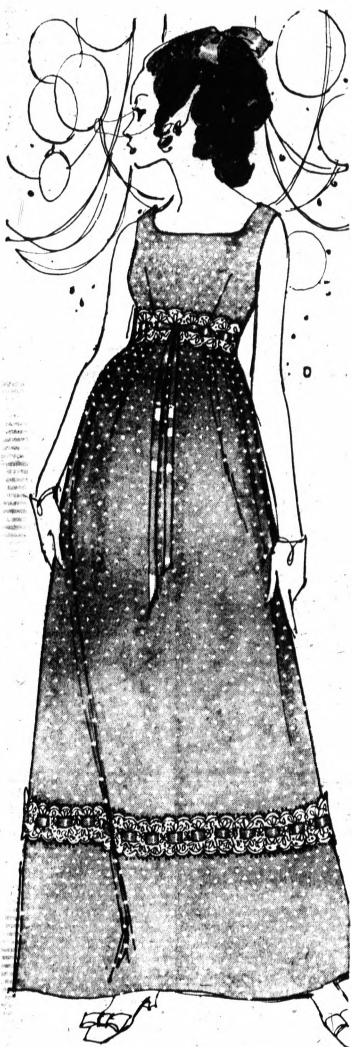

The Cairo taxi driver is gentle to the point of subservience. Even if he does speak English, which is rarely, he seldom talks to foreign passengers. He treats traffic with disdain, believing that one hand on the wheel and the other on the auto horn must, eventually, overcome. He accepts without question payment of what's on his meter.

Except for soldiers guarding installations during the present state of alert, armed troops are seldom seen on the streets of the Egyptian capital.

In Tel Aviv, troops with automatic weapons slung over their shoulders don't cause a ripple.

Tel Aviv blazes with neon lights, but emergency plans are always held ready to plunge it into complete blackout at very short notice. Bomb shelters are not conspicuous but they are there.

Cairo is currently trying hard to make itself look warlike. A partial blackout is in effect. All autos have their headlights painted blue and sandbags have been piled in front of plate glass windows.

British Riot Plan: 'Treat 'em Gently'

(EDITOR'S NOTE — London police, the famous 'bobbies,' are preparing for possible protest demonstrations by going to school to learn how to handle unruly crowds. The tactics they are being taught boil down to one basic: 'Treat 'em gently.' —

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
LONDON (AP) — Shouting slogans and waving anti-Vietnam placards, the demonstrators smashed against the police line and tried to fight their way through. The placards waved like sabers and police helmets flew in the air.

The policeman in charge — a sergeant in a sweat shirt, holding back the crowd, he shouted, "but try again, and harder."

The clash was at the London Police Recruit Training School, where British bobbies study how to control riots like the explosive demonstrations in Paris, Chicago, Berlin and London.

London police do it one way and one way only: they line up and use sheer numbers, holding back the crowd. The crowd in this case was a cluster of police in plain clothes, providing practice for fellow cadets in the linked-arm technique.

NO RIOT GEAR
London's men in blue have no tear gas, no water cannons and no guns.

"We have no riot helmets or visors, either," says chief instructor James Hargadon, a 46-year-old Scot who handles the training for the capital's 20,000 men force.

"We don't think they are necessary, and if we did put on riot helmets it might work the crowd up a bit — cause a spot of trouble."

British police, ever polite, refuse to comment on the violence in Chicago or Paris but they tend to look smug when they are asked about it. "We wouldn't consider such methods here," says Hargadon. "We treat crowd control like cricket, or a soccer match. We try to keep them from scoring."

30,000 MARCHERS
When the last big demonstration erupted in London in October, more than 30,000 protesters marched through the streets. Scotland Yard assigned 8,246 police to control the mob. The forecasts predicted trouble, but the "treat-em-gently" tactics paid off.

When protesters threw coins at one cop, he laughed and asked for bigger ones. When another bobby was hit by a flying beer, he picked it up and ate it. At the end of the day there were 47 civilian casualties, none of them seriously hurt.

And demonstrators and police — who had 74 injuries — sang a chorus of Auld Lang Syne from the moors of Yorkshire and trained at a school across the River Thames from Hampton Court Palace.

"By the time a police horse is fully trained, he is almost a machine," explains Colton. "He is obedient no matter what is happening around him."

Before anyone ever mounts on their backs, the horses are taught to walk sideways and push, delicately but with massive power, into a crowd. They start by shoving wheeled dummies in police uniforms.

By the time they are trained to the full — passing through fire and smoke, standing beside roaring railway trains and facing noisy crowds with flags, banners and a tape recording of explosions, military bands and terrific crashes — they are completely unshakable.

So unshakable that when Queen Elizabeth II rides in the annual Trooping of the Color, with its noise and excitement, she doesn't use a royal mount — she borrows a police horse.

The mounted force has not made any changes to deal with growing anti-Vietnam demonstrations. For years, the big mares and geldings have been coached in dealing with just such events, by exposure to crowds of plainclothes police who stand there under their noses, shaking banners and flags, shouting and beating on an ancient drum donated by the elite Brigade of Guards.

Police horses never lose their tempers, but the mounted bobbies have been known to take an indignant swing at anyone endangering the animal.

Most British police — or most of the public in this animal-loving land — agree with the Life Guard cavalryman who threatened an agitator with his ceremonial sword not long ago for hurting his mount.

"I didn't care what they were doing to me," he told a board of inquiry, "but when they hurt my horse, that was a bit too much."

Barefoot Ban Out, Frisco Board Told

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — City Attorney Thomas O'Connor has ruled that San Francisco probably can't pass a law outlawing bare feet on public streets.

The question was brought to the board of Supervisors by a citizen alarmed by the unshod feet of the city's hippie community.

"Unless the proposed legislation can be justified as protecting the general public from disease or injury," O'Connor told the board Wednesday, "it can't be justified as a legitimate exercise of the police power."

London Police Rely On Sheer Numbers To Subdue Demonstrators

3 Local Boys Apprehended After Burglary

Three Pontiac boys, ages 10, 11 and 12, were apprehended by city police in connection with a burglary while two other youths were scared off in a burglary attempt yesterday.

Police caught the three boys after a chase on foot in the neighborhood of the entered home of Paralee Jones, 56, of 56 N. Sanford.

When the trio was spotted in the street by officers, the boys ran, police said.

It was not known if anything was stolen from the home, which was entered by breaking a door window, according to police.

In the other incident, Lucille Lamotte, 29, of 698 Riverside told police she saw two youths running away from her home as she was returning home and found items valued at $262, which had been taken from her home, in the back yard.

Holdup's as Hard as Pulling Teeth

QUEBEC (AP) — Dr. Martin Monaghan, a dentist, entered his home Wednesday night and found two men holding a revolver on his 24-year-old nephew, Guy Roy.

Monaghan and Roy emptied their pockets and turned over $60. Then the bandits took the dentist to his office. One held the revolver on Monaghan while he pulled five teeth for the other robber.

Total federal civilian employment increased by 32,709 in the years between 1952 and 1960.

She Gives Tales of Espionage a Novel Twist

NEW YORK (AP) — "Take me do them a disservice," she says. "I've noted that people from man and you have 'plab,' who grew up in quite normal ways. Helen MacInnes, author stages, going from cops and of the current best-seller, "The robbers to racing cars and Salzburg Connection," and 13 SCUBA diving, are much more earlier novels that are crammed normal in later life. They're with adventure, intrigue and less likely to be under a suspense.

"The best thing about the people who are given only toys of the astronauts," she that have no connection with adds, "is the feeling that violence."

adventure is not dead in this Miss MacInnes' preoccupation with the intelligence aspects of international politics stems from her strong feelings about its importance to the security of that commodity in her action-packed tales of international espionage which, she points out, always have a basic kernel of money, fact around which her imagination weaves its intricate plot.

Not only in books, but in life showing a trace of her native Scotland. "They are brave men, aspects of violence are normal get no publicity and suffer a and necessary, believes the great deal."

petit black-haired woman who in addition to the gathering of talks with the same vivid such intelligence in the field, details as in her writing style, she lists other essentials — the "If we try to take away the analyzing of this material, making reports and recommendations and finally, the serious consideration and acting on these reports — as fundamental to national safety.

TRIGGER FOR BOOK

Her latest book took shape from a newspaper account she read about diving operations in a Czechoslovakian lake to recover boxes sunk by the Nazis in their retreat.

"I filed it away in the back of my mind because I was finishing 'The Double Image' by the time," she says. "Later I found the same sort of activity had taken place in Austria, which I think is the most physically beautiful country in the world. I visited it again to see the lake's name, Finstersee, in mind. Most of the book is based on geographical fact, but the lake's name, Finstersee, and the village of Unterwald are my invention."

In the living room of her large but cozy East Side

Manhattan apartment, 11 n.e.d. with bookshelves and filled with mementos gathered in her travels, the vibrant author proudly displays the 100,000th copy of "The Salzburg Connection." Bound in blue leather and tooled in gold and bearing her signature in gold on the cover, the special volume is a recent gift from her publishers, Harcourt, Brace and World.

But while admittedly pleased by her success as a writer, her greatest pride obviously lies in the fact that she is the wife of Gilbert Highet, eminent Greek scholar, professor of Latin at Columbia University, critic and author. They have a son, Keith, a New York lawyer.

REFERS TO GILBERT

Her conversation is liberally punctuated with references to "Gilbert." She is, in fact, so intent on recounting his honors and abilities that it is difficult to switch the talk back to her own achievements.

She prefers to write in pencil, although her last two books were typed because of writer's cramp, and she imposes on herself a special work regimen on herself.

"I suppose I should take certain hours," she admits, "but I just get every damn minute I can at it." She revises as many as 12 times, and her husband never gets a glance at the manuscript until it is ready for the typist.

"When I'm getting towards the end of a novel and all the problems are going to have to be resolved I feel like a man coming down a steep hill on a bicycle juggling three oranges," she laughs.

JOY IN EXACTNESS

She finds joy in the exact meaning of words, their sound, the shape of paragraphs. "Never always the same length of sentences," she explains. "Short ones for quicker tempos, longer bits for a quieter mood."

"If you can be a writer there are various things you can be," she remarks, gesturing with an unlighted cigarette. "I'm a novelist. Other writers are journalists or essayists or poets. The tragedy of some people who write novels is that perhaps they should be some other type of writer."

Women, she feels, often have a native bent for adventure. "After all, Sheherazade was the first suspense — story teller, and Percy Shelley's wife wrote 'Frankenstein.'"

Pulitzer Prizes are awarded by the trustees of Columbia University, New York City.

California Tax Law Helps Professionals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —group which serves more than 3,000 physicians, dentists and California may soon take advantage of a new tax shelter — holding seminars for professional persons.

A state law passed last November without great fanfare permits professionals to incorporate and thereby save money on income taxes.

The savings could, of course be passed along to the patient — but there is nothing in the law to require that.

Thirty-six states in addition to California now permit professionals to incorporate.

MOST SEEN CHANGING

One source predicts that most of California's 25,000 physicians will incorporate their practices within the next 18 months. There are 11,500 dentists and 30,000 lawyers who also may take advantage of the new law.

Detroit Council Quits on Cycle Ordinance

DETROIT (AP) — Spokesmen for members of the Detroit Common Council which supported an ordinance requiring licensing of motorcycle clubs have conceded it would be difficult to override the veto of Mayor Jerome Cavanagh.

Councilmen Louis Miriani and Robert Tindal said they agreed with city attorneys who said it would be hard to uphold the constitutionality of the ordinance in view of the mayoral veto.

Councilman Billy Rogell agreed, but reluctantly: "These people buzz along, gunning their engines, stretching down the highway for a mile, weaving Medical Examiners and the Bar back and forth like regular Association already have taken action to permit their members find a way to cut them down," to incorporate.

TAKE A NEW LOOK AT YOURSELF IN FLARED PANTS

Who's wearing flared pants? Everyone from groovy young pacesetters to elegantly dressed sophisticates. For the look takes several directions: broad bellbottoms, casual jeans, conservative dress slacks, wild patterns, subdued solids. What they have in common is great cut — starting lean at the hips, going straight to the knees, then flaring anywhere from 19" to 24" at the bottom. In casual versions, Paul Ressler goes the trimmest route in striped western jeans, wide-leg bells and striped beach trousers; Levi's take a western cut in blue denim; Farah and Male go to hopsacks and plaids. They're in the $7 to $14 range. In dress flares, there are handsome twills, flannels, twists and blends, in plaids and prints and solids from $15 to Lily Pulitzer's $30 silk-screened cottons. There's never been more excitement in men's fashion than right now. See it all — in the Men's Sportswear Department at HHS.

It's Time for Rededication

Shame of King Death Not Gone

BY WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.
Executive Director
National Urban League
One year ago — on April 4 — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was shot and killed in Memphis. His killer is now behind bars, but investigation should be pursued vigorously into evidence of a conspiracy.

The verdict of the court is in, but what of the verdict on the nation, whose shame is not erased? The meaning of a man's death is in his life — what he fought for and what he stood for. Dr. King was a leader in a great national crusade to cleanse the blot of racism from the tortured past and the stained present.

How far have we as a nation come in pursuing the goals for which Dr. King laid down his life? Sadly, the answer is that little progress has been made. Several weeks before Dr. King's assassination, the Kerner Report was issued, warning the nation is moving toward two societies — separate but unequal. Now, the Urban Coalition and Urban America have issued another report — "One Year Later" — studying what has been done about the Kerner Commission's recommendations.

YOUNG
Kerner Commission's recommendations.

Their conclusion: "The nation has not reversed the movement apart. Blacks and whites remain deeply divided in their perceptions and experiences of American society."

IN VAIN?
All of this indicates that Dr. King will have died in vain unless those of us who believe in creating a better society redouble our efforts to win what he fought for.

April 4 will be a day of renewed mourning; a day of ceremonies honoring Dr. King's memory. The best way to pay tribute to this great fighter for human rights is to rededicate ourselves to the ideals he represented.

Prime among these was equality. It was Martin Luther King's dream that one day there would be an America in which whites and blacks would be full partners in equality. He fought against the evils of segregation and the more subtle evils of discrimination. That fight must be continued.

After Dr. King's death, a wave of shame and remorse swept the country. Whites and blacks alike pledged themselves to become more concerned with ending poverty and with helping the disadvantaged. Now the time has come to rekindle the flame of morality; to fulfill those pledges and promises.

REDEDICATION
Individuals have to rededicate themselves to volunteer their time, their energies, their influence, to the cause of bringing justice and equality to this nation which lacks those qualities to such a glaring degree.

And April 4 is also a day to reaffirm our belief in nonviolence. If Dr. King's name is associated with anything, it is associated with the concept of nonviolence.

That such a great man of peace should die a violent death only underscores his unswerving belief in nonviolent challenges to the society. He correctly saw that violence only breeds counterviolence, creating a never-ending circle of oppression that can only doom our efforts to create a just society.

We all have a responsibility to work for change, but the greatest burden must be with those who have the power. This first anniversary of the tragedy that befell all Americans would be an ideal time for the nation's leaders in government, labor, and industry to declare their commitment to bringing about equality for all.

QUESTIONS IN BALANCE

Great questions are in the balance: whether our trillion-dollar economy can support a war on poverty; whether it can build decent housing and provide jobs and education for all. The answers could decide whether our cities and our hopes for true democracy will survive.

One way to insure that they will is for all of us, black and white, rich and poor, to work for change in the same spirit that Martin Luther King Jr. worked to make his dream of a united America a reality.

An estimated $14.7 billion was spent during 1967 on the United States' 3.7 million miles of roads and streets.

NEW SCIENCE
Lessons such as these in the comparatively new science of psychosomatic medicine.
Psychosomatic research the study of the relationship between the mind and the body and how each affects the other is opening strange doors these days, and beyond them are vistas that seem at first to stagger the imagination.

Physicians and psychiatrists have shown in experiments that the parts of the body over which we have no conscious control — such as the heart, kidneys, stomach, colon — can be trained to work better, through punishment and reward.

They have shown that people can be illness-prone, just as they can be accident-prone, and that the chances of encountering either "health change" can be predicted.

AT SEMINAR
These and other trends in psychosomatic research were discussed recently at an Oklahoma University Medical Center seminar sponsored by the American College of Physicians. Its purpose: To inform the nation's internists of the latest developments in this field, many of which are not yet in textbooks.

The physicians heard Dr. Stewart Wolf, head of the neurosciences section of the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation, explain a new concept of mind-body interaction designed to enable doctors to treat psychosomatic illness with greater skill and understanding.

They heard Dr. Thomas Holmes, professor of psychiatry at the University of Washington, Seattle, report on studies showing that all health changes — even infectious diseases such as tuberculosis — are statistically related to crescendos of stressful events in our lives.

They heard Dr. Lennart Levi, Stockholm psychiatrist, tell how people can be desensitized against the events which generate mind-based illness.

COMMON CAUSE
Dr. Wolf said the concept that emotions can cause disease is outdated. It has been supplanted, he said, by discovery that both the emotion and the disease have a common cause — some stimulus in the environment, an event or series of events to which the brain may react in several ways.

Better understanding of the mechanism of disease will lead to better treatment, he said.
"Disease is simply too much or too little functioning of one or more organs in the body, sustained over a long period of time," he said. "It doesn't hurt us to be frightened occasionally, but if we experience fear for a long time we get sick."

SIDE EFFECTS
"When we are frightened the stomach stops secreting, stops digesting, because the blood this would require in stomach muscles is needed in other muscles for fight or flight. When we are angry the stomach becomes overactive, possibly because in the old days we not only killed our enemies, we ate them."

"But in either case we are not reacting to an emotion, we are reacting to something in the environment which caused both the emotion and the organic response."

Stressful situations — high tension jobs or unhappy home life, for instance — can cause the brain to excite or depress many organs, including the heart.

Dr. C. G. Gunn, professor of medicine and director of cardiovascular training programs at the medical center, said the same type of discipline could be applied to other organs of the body.

BLADDER CONTROL CITED
"Bowel and bladder control that we learn as children is an example," he said. "Through punishment or reward, children are taught this social requirement by instilling in them a desire, an emotional set, to accomplish it. In the same way, with proper training, we might learn to control all our body organs and through this vastly improve our general health."

In Dr. Wolf's view, disease and emotion are parallel responses to the brain's reaction to some stimulus in the environment. Treating one and disregarding the other means overlooking part of the illness. Giving an ulcer patient medicine to quiet his stomach helps, but it may not cure him unless there also is recognition of the situation in the environment which led to the anger and made the stomach overactive.

Dr. Levi showed that people can be desensitized to situations which cause harmful responses in body organs.
"In our studies we selected people known to be afraid of dentists and showed them movies of dental operations. The reactions ranged from refusal to watch to fainting. Repeated showing of the films, however, was accompanied by less stress. Soon the subjects could watch the films without increased production of fatty acids, and eventually go to a dentist without fear."

LEADS TO TROUBLE
Going ahead blindly, without recognizing — or being told by your doctor — that stressful events in your life are affecting your health probably will lead to even more troubles.

Dr. Holmes told of statistical studies showing that changes in physical health are predictable from the pattern of events in individual lives.
He listed "health changes" as infectious diseases, surgery, accidents, even pregnancy — which he said "has all the requirements for classification as an infectious disease."

He listed stressful events — "life changes" — as going away to school, getting a job, getting a promotion, marriage, becoming a parent, divorce, death of loved ones, going to jail, even traffic tickets.

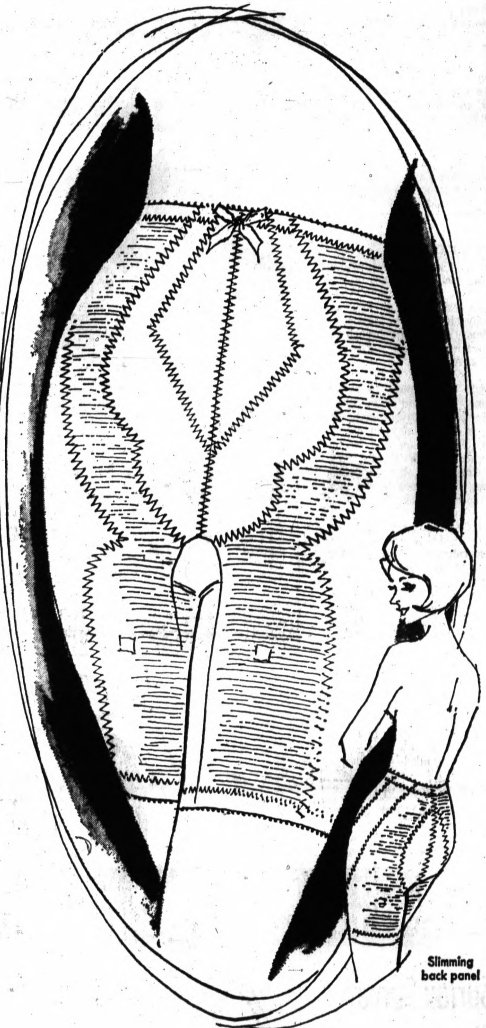

SERIOUS HEALTH CHANGES
"Of 400 persons we watched closely in Seattle, we found 80 per cent had serious health changes following clusters of life changes. We concluded that there is a powerful association between life events and changes in health."

The exact nature of the link is not fully known, but researchers believe it may be associated with the body's immunity system, which manufactures antibodies to attack invasions of foreign material and germs.

Is there any one type of person who is more likely to have health changes?

Dr. Holmes said 20 per cent of the population has 80 per cent of the accidents, a similarly small percentage has most of the illnesses, and 16 per cent of women have half the pregnancies.

Nation to Honor Dr. King Friday on Anniversary of Death

By The Associated Press
Memorial observances to honor Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on the anniversary of his assassination are planned Friday by schools, church, civic and civil rights groups in cities around the nation.
It was April 4, 1968, that King stood a Lorraine Motel balcony in Memphis, Tenn. A bullet whined from the direction of the setting sun and took his life.

In Memphis, up to 10,000 people are expected to march at high noon to the motel and then to city hall where King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, will memorialize King.
King's widow, Coretta, was scheduled to speak at the Memphis memorial but said she may instead spend the day quietly at home with her children.

DAY PROCLAIMED
In Washington, Mayor Walter Washington proclaimed Friday "a day of memorial" and urged residents of the predominantly black city to "honor the memory of Dr. King through appropriate services, programs and observances."

But some black activists, noting the speed with which the federal government declared last Monday an official day of mourning for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, are asking that businesses close and Negroes take a holiday to honor King.

In Cleveland, about 200 persons attended a combined commemoration service Wednesday for King and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, also the victim of an assassin's bullet. A $25-million housing project was renamed the Martin Luther King-Robert Kennedy Homes.

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay announced that five young men who have been active in Harlem civil rights groups will officially represent the city at the service in Memphis. Lindsay said King "has become a symbol of triumph and hope."

DETROIT SCHOOL PLANS
Detroit public schools alerted all regional superintendents that a "suitable memorial should be made." Schools will be in session.

Michigan State University's Black Student Alliance planned a telephone hookup with services in Atlanta, Ga., followed by a universitywide teach-in on the contributions of King.

In Atlanta, a loose coalition of civil rights and voter registration planned a 40-hour vigil on the steps of the state capitol begins in the evening.
Antiwar forces were organizing the observances in Baltimore including a planned "death watch" in front of the U.S. Custom House where the city's draft boards are located.

GARY RALLY SET
A mass rally in Gary, Ind., was planned by the Baptist Ministers Conference in a midtown Negro district. Mayor Richard G. Hatcher, a Negro, was one of the invited speakers.

In Chicago, the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, national director of SCLC's Operation Breadbasket, said ministers in the operation would hold services for King at various neighborhood centers.

Dr. Martin Luther King Sr. was scheduled to speak at a Good Friday service commemorating his son in suburban Evanston.
In St. Louis memorial services will be held at Soldiers Memorial sponsored by the local SCLC chapter, with many local King religious and civil rights leaders expected to attend.

PARK NAMING SOUGHT
In New Orleans a service will be held in Shakespeare Park and the SCLC said it would ask the City Council next week to rename the park in honor of Kansas City officials proclaimed Friday as Dr. Martin Luther King day and a memorial program was planned at the new Martin Luther King Junior High School.

A daylong observance is planned in Eugene, Ore., in the City Council chambers.

In Los Angeles, the University of California at Los Angeles planned a memorial service in the morning and another will be held in the evening at the Shrine Auditorium.
Two marches in Houston will merge at City Hall plaza for a mid-afternoon memorial service.

Surfax Survey Shows Support

45 Pct. for Extension,
39.4 Pct. Oppose It

NEW YORK (UPI) — More Americans favor continuation of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge for another year than oppose it, according to a survey by Sindlinger & Co.

The survey, in which 1,571 Americans were contacted, showed 45 per cent agreed with President Nixon's proposal to continue the surfax and 39.4 per cent wanted to end it. The other 15.6 per cent had no opinion.

More than half of those polled (58.5 per cent) said they spent about the same after the surfax went into effect last July. 29.6 per cent said their spending increased and only 11.8 per cent said household spending declined.

Sindlinger said the survey also disclosed that relatively few consumers postponed any major purchases because of the tax increase.

POOR HURT
"Data gathered in this and other surveys indicate that the surfax has had its major dampening effect on spending among households where income growth has not kept pace with the rapid annual gains of the past eight years," Sindlinger said.

Sindlinger & Co. is a market analysis firm headquartered in Norwood, Pa., and prepares its polls for 38 institutional clients who subscribe to the Sindlinger Daily Survey.

The polls are made by long distance telephone from New York to every state except Hawaii and Alaska. The telephone numbers are chosen by a computer program to make representative selections of voting age Americans.

Big Four Mideast Talks Begin; Experts Vary on Prospects

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Like the Vietnam peace talks, the Big Four sessions on the Middle East are expected to be a week, but opinions on the prospects for progress differ.

The Middle East talks were to begin today with the U.N. delegates of Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States meeting behind closed doors at the headquarters of France's U.N. mission.

Well-placed sources expected procedures to be decided at the first meeting and predicted Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik and U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost would introduce proposals for a peace settlement.

Many diplomats are predicting the meetings will go on for months. Although Egypt and Jordan have announced their support for the Big Four effort, Israel has denounced the talks and said it would ignore any recommendations contrary to its interests.

ALL 4 'ANXIOUS'
But some diplomats believe all four of the major powers are anxious to come up with a workable plan to break the deadlock between the Israelis and the Arabs.

The United States and Britain generally support Israel, and France and the Soviet Union usually back up the Arab states.

Surtax-Reform Link Seen by Rep. Griffiths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Martha W. Griffiths predicted flatly yesterday some tax reform will be linked to legislation extending the 10 per cent income surtax.

"Otherwise the surtax is in trouble," the Michigan Democrat, a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said at an informal luncheon.

Mrs. Griffiths said the only hope for making an immediate start on tax reform is provided by the surtax extension which, she said, President Nixon would not veto. She noted the administration hopes for enactment of that bill by June 30, when the current law dies.

She predicted the reform will require tax payments by the wealthy, including some millionaires, who now escape federal income taxes altogether, and perhaps apply also to tax-free foundations.

SENTIMENT SEEN
She said she believed sentiment for a start on fairer tax laws is developing in the committee.

"You can sense the gathering feeling that 'I'm not for the surtax without reform,'" she said.

Mrs. Griffiths said committee members report their mail reflects mushrooming indignation by taxpayers over the wealthy to whom the April 15 tax deadline is mid-April and nothing more.

"Why should these millionaires worry over a 10 per cent surtax on the federal income tax?" she asked. "What's 10 per cent of nothing?"

2 County Teens Killed, 3 Hurt in Kentucky Mishap

BEREA, Ky. (UPI) — Two teen-age boys were killed and three others seriously injured—all from Royal Oak, Mich.—when their car ran off the I-75 freeway and overturned near this Kentucky community.

Dead on arrival at Berea hospital were Robert Evans and Robert Sommers, both 18. Receiving multiple injuries were the driver, Peter Perreca, 18, and James Wagner, 17, and Daren Sommers, 16.

Officials at the hospital said the three injured youths were in "good" condition.

The youths were headed south on the Interstate highway when Perreca apparently lost control of the vehicle and swerved off the road, Kentucky State Police said.

The 35 state legislative bodies which met this past year raised state taxes about $1.3 billion annually.

But the optimists noted that Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco met six or seven times in Washington during the past two and a half weeks to prepare for the start of the formal talks.

The French were hosts to the first meeting because they included the nations' U.N. ambassadors first seek a preliminary understanding in bilateral talks.

Those discussions began six days later, and the United States finally consented March 24 to four party meetings.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union, which submitted a counterproposal Feb. 5, asking the council's November 1967 resolution setting forth principles on which the war should be settled.

The United States made a counterproposal Feb. 5, asking the six-day war, Arab recognition of Israel as a sovereign state, a just solution for Palestinian refugees and freedom of navigation in international waterways.

The Soviet proposal would require Israel to withdraw behind its prewar boundaries, presumably territory.

Army Replacement of Glasses Speeded

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Newswriter

WASHINGTON—Front-line soldiers who lose or break their eyeglasses no longer have to be treated like battle casualties and evacuated far to the rear to get fitted with a new pair. The Army is assigning a mobile optometry team to each division to give speedy while-you-wait service.

As simple as this seems, it's a revolutionary solution to a long-existing major headache for combat commanders, because under the old system it took a soldier at least three days to get new glasses and return to useful duty.

Many parents write asking me if their sons will be excused from combat duty because they wear glasses, so you may be surprised to know that about one out of every three soldiers wears them. And about 40 per cent require one or more replacements each year.

The optometry team assigned to all divisions in Vietnam, according to Col. Billy C. Green, optometry consultant to the Army surgeon general, consists of two officers who are optometrists and examine the eyes and two enlisted men who are opticians and make the glasses. They have highly portable equipment for turning out the lenses.

They can turn out a pair of glasses in 30 to 45 minutes and send the soldier on his way the colonel says.

NO BIG PROBLEM

The equipment, however, isn't capable of producing bifocals but soldiers are mostly young men who need only a single-type lens, so that's no big problem.

Not only are the divisions in Vietnam getting the optometry teams but the 1st and 2nd Armored Divisions and 5th Mechanized Division stationed in the United States also have them. And Green says he expects all divisions to have them eventually.

The Army is the only service with this front-line eyeglass setup. The Navy's optometry office there are no plans for the Marines or Navy units to acquire such service.

But the Army is even more ambitious in this field. It is working toward the day when a soldier can feed his eyeglass prescription into a computer-linked fabrication machine and have a pair of glasses with adjustable frames in about 10 minutes.

The challenge was posted to the industry experts by Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr., chief of Army Research and Development, in an article in the American Optometric Association Journal.

Service Benefits Investigated

There could be a change in the various fringe benefits service people get, such as medical and dental care, survivor benefits, transportation of household goods, death benefits and many other things.

Chairman L. Mendall Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Service Committee has named a subcommittee to take a good, long look at the whole package. The hearings are expected to take up all of this year, with no concrete proposals before next year.

New Guidelines for Army Project

New guidelines effective April 1 are designed to make sure that men in the Army who need the most help in preparing to qualify for civilian jobs when they leave service get into Project Transition. There are priorities for those who get the training:

1) Individuals with a service-connected disability; 2) Soldiers ineligible to reenlist for other than disciplinary reasons; 3) Personnel with no previous civilian job skill, occupation or civilian-related military training; 4) Individuals not in any of the three top priority categories but wanting to acquire a new skill.

To avoid disrupting military activity unduly, off-duty programs are emphasized. Commanders are permitted to authorize on-duty Transition training only for those in the three top categories. Those in the second and third categories will be limited to 240 hours of on-duty training.

Since the program was launched in January 1968 over 160,000 soldiers have received some type of help in the transition to civilian life.

Mobile-Home Problems

Families in military service who live in mobile homes are being cautioned that they could run into a peck of trouble in making cross-country trips when they change posts.

The Army's Personnel Letter says: "It might be easier to get a 'vehicle' to orbit the moon than it is to move an oversize mobile home from coast to coast."

As the mobile homes grow bigger, it's pointed out, state laws concerning their movement stay rigid. California, for instance, has extensive regulations governing mobile homes.

Another problem is that once a service family gets the mobile home to the new location the owners can be foiled in trying to sell their trailers if the trailers don't meet state code requirements.

The answer, says the Personnel Letter, is to check with your local transportation officer before you set out for your new station.

SEES JAZZ COMEBACK—Jack Brokensha, a 5-foot-2½-inch musician who founded the Australian Jazz Quintet and enjoyed wide popularity in the 1950s, says the "cycle is turning" and jazz will become popular again. Brokensha, a vibraphonist, says some of the teen-age rock 'n' roll bands are "getting very jazz-oriented." Brokensha, 43, has his own jazz nightclub in Detroit now, but he often provides accompaniment for teen-age pop music stars.

Vibes Artist Sees Jazz Resurgence

By KARL MANTYLA

DETROIT (AP) — Little Jack Brokensha, a tiny musician who joined the giants of jazz, says the "cycle is turning" and a new wave of popularity is in store for jazz.

The 5-foot-2½-inch founder of the Australian Jazz Quintet hears a resurgence of America's only native, musical art form sounding from the psychedelic walling or rock-and-roll, teenage bands.

"Some of the younger rock groups are getting very jazz-oriented. They are improvising, they're searching," says Brokensha, a native of Adelaide, Australia, who ranks as one of only a dozen premier vibraphone players in the United States.

The 43-year-old percussionist often sets up his vibraphone in "pop" studios, such as Motown in Detroit, to hammer out heavy beat background music for recordings of teen-age stars such as the Supremes.

SHOPS IN BOYS DEPT.

But Brokensha, who shops in boys departments to find the "mod" clothes he wears, keeps in the mainstream of improvised music by playing with his Concert Jazz Quartet at a nightclub he bought as a haven for jazz in midtown Detroit.

This coming June 19-22, Brokensha will join singer Ella Fitzgerald, guitarist Kenny Burrell, pianist Les McCann and electric saxophonist Eddie Harris at what he calls, in a clipped semi-British accent, the "veddy, veddy way-out" Montreux Jazz Festival in Montreux, Switzerland.

"They play blues badly and they have a heavy back beat, and that's as much as they know, a couple of keys. Any thinking person, if he's going to be involved, will sooner or later start to investigate his craft. The more he investigates it, the more he's going to come over to the thinking of jazz musician."

"You don't see jam sessions," Brokensha who once was billed as the "Boy Wonder of the Xylophone" on vaudeville at age 6. "They're not inventive people — except within their own set of standards. But it's heading in that direction."

Brokensha and his quintet were swept to height of jazz popularity in the 1950s.

Their first concert—"we were booked sight unseen" was in Washington, D.C., playing alongside Miles Davis, George Shearing, the Modern Jazz Quartet, Jerry Mulligan and Dave Brubeck.

NO INTENTION OF STAYING

Brokensha, who weighs "110 pounds soaking wet," says he made the 12,000-mile journey from Australia in 1953 intending to work for two years in the United States.

"I had no intention of staying," he said. "But on the strength of two tape recordings, we got a five-year contract out of Joe Glazier and the Associated Booking Corp. in New York. We could have been a bunch of kangaroos for all they knew."

He signed a contract with Bethlehem Records.

"And, golly, it was just circumstances—the next thing we knew we were doing all those Birdlands and the Basin Streets and the Carnegie Halls and Newport and the concert tours," he says.

The Australian Jazz Quintet ended abruptly in 1959 because, as Brokensha laughingly remarks, "sex reared its ugly head. We contracted in 1959 to tour Australia for three months. Three of the members of the group got married out there."

UNIQUE SOUND

The unique sound of his Australian Jazz Quintet came from Brokensha on vibes; Erroll Buddie on bassoon; Dick Healy on flute and alto sax; Bryce Rhode at the piano, and Ed Gaston on bass. Healy, Rhode and Gaston married Australian girls and stayed.

Brokensha in 1959 returned alone to the United States from the land where, at age 14, he was percussionist with the South Australian Symphony Orchestra, playing under conductors such as Antal Dorati, Sir Thomas Beecham, Eugene Ormandy and Sir Malcolm Sargent.

He decided to settle in Detroit with his petite, blonde wife, Shirley, now 36, and the first of his two daughters, because "I discovered the brash world of industrial music," which paid handsomely for music in commercials extolling the products of Chrysler, General Motors and others.

He formed a new quartet, with pianist Bess Bonnier as the key instrumentalist besides himself, and continued playing clubs, small concerts and television shows until, in 1966, he opened up his own nightclub, called Brokensha's, in midtown Detroit.

Now, Brokensha says, in his Aussie-British accent, "In the course of the day I play some pretty funny music to make a beanie (dollar)."

"But at night I can play what I want."

2 Viet Tots Adopted by Seabee Bachelor

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Ellsworth Bunker, the children Seabee Glenn J. Palmer, a 24-year-old bachelor, is going home to Saint Regis Falls, N. Y., with two Vietnamese children who call him "Daddy."

Palmer, a naval construction mechanic 1st class, will step from a military plane this weekend with Hoan Thanh Khiet, 2, in one arm, and Nguyen Thi Anh Hong, 4, in the other. They have been renamed John James and Maria May to start their Americanization.

"I like children a lot," Palmer said in an interview, "and found that over here they replaced what's missing in my life. They made me forget a lot of what's going on here. I love John and Maria as my own."

Palmer began visiting the Sacred Heart Nursery and Orphanage last year "to kill a little time and to see if there was anything I could do for them."

RUN BY SISTERS

The institution is run by the Sisters of St. Paul de Chartres.

"I decided I wanted to adopt two children, but I really wanted to take them all," Palmer said. "I decided to let a choice as I decided to let a sister do it for me."

After five months of paperwork, which went all the way up to U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, the children were Palmer's.

For the present, John and Maria will live with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenford Palmer of Saint Regis Falls. Palmer has three more years to serve in the Navy and his next station is at Davisville, R. I.

PARENTS UNKNOWN

Palmer said he knows very little about the parents of John and Maria, who are war orphans of separate families.

On the way home, Palmer will have a baby-sitting companion, Seabee Leroy Cobb, 21, of Atkinson, N. C.

"We are good buddies, and I wanted to help him out with the kids," said Cobb.

"I don't really have any definite plans for them," said Palmer. "I hope to be able to put them through college. But as long as they can live a good clean life I'll be happy."

He and the children are scheduled to arrive Friday at Quonset Point, R. I. Navy sources in Da Nang said they understand the governor of Rhode Island will meet the plane.

It is estimated that there are about 350 rhinoceros in India at the present time compared with thousands at the turn of the

Apollo 10 Ship May Transmit Live Color TV

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 10's astronauts may make television history during their moon-orbit flight in May by beaming back to earth the first live color telecasts from a manned spaceship.

Apollo spacecraft chief George Low said that spectacular color pictures of such scenes, as earth's blue-and-brown globe, as seen by the astronauts, could be fed through worldwide network broadcasts live to home viewers from receiving stations in Spain and California.

Spacemen Thomas Stafford, John Young and Eugene Cernan also may become the first astronauts to watch television inside their space capsule. Plans call for them to use a tiny black-and-white television monitor to help fly Apollo 10.

Low said the color television system being prepared for Apollo 10 was made possible by a technological breakthrough that allows the camera to transmit three black-and-white images to a ground station, where special converters combine them into a single color picture.

50-50 CHANCE

"This was something I hadn't heard about until a couple of months ago," Low said. There is a 50-50 chance, he said, the system can be delivered and tested in time to fly aboard Apollo 10, set for launch May 18.

The experimental color camera, built by Westinghouse Corp., would be included aboard Apollo 10 in addition to a black-and-white camera built by Radio Corp. of America in the Apollo mother ship and another black-and-white camera built by Westinghouse in the moonland, lunar craft. The color camera would be used only in the mothership.

Westinghouse must deliver three color cameras—one flight model and two back-ups — to Cape Kennedy by May 1 if testing is to be completed in time.

If the tests are not successful, or if they cannot be finished in time, Low said the next attempt to use the color camera would probably be Apollo 12 in November.

U. S. Cheered First Rail Link

WASHINGTON — "The last rail is laid, the last spike driven," a telegraph key clicked. "The Pacific railroad is completed."

The news from Promontory, Utah, on May 10, 1869, thrilled the Nation. Bells rang in Washington, D.C. A magnetic ball dropped from a pole atop the Capitol dome. A four-mile-long parade wound through Chicago. "San Francisco annexes the United States!" California boasted.

From coast to coast, cannon fire hailed the linking of two rail lines at Promontory—one from the Missouri River and the other from Sacramento, Calif. The first transcontinental railroad was complete.

Legislation signed by President Abraham Lincoln on July 1, 1862, authorized the Union Pacific Railroad Co. to build westward from the Missouri and the Central Pacific eastward from Sacramento, the National Geographic Society says.

IDENTICAL PROBLEMS

The companies faced identical problems. Too few laborers and too many Indians. Both lines filled the labor shortage in colorful fashion.

Union Pacific hired Irish immigrants, ex-convicts and war veterans. Central Pacific imported pigtailed Chinese from Canton.

After feverish work across Sierra granite and Nevada flats, the two lines met in western Utah in early 1869. Neither admitted it. Anxious for government land and loans that accrued with each mile laid, the crews kept constructing — right past each other for 225 miles.

Rival crews traded potshots, rolled boulders at each other, and blasted opposing grades. Then Congress intervened.

The companies finally agreed to meet at the shack town of Promontory.

No, Says Future Head of National Academy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Suppose it became apparent that scientists tinkering with frog eggs were opening a research trail that just possibly might lead to the ultimate degradation of humanity.

Would you, if you could, forbid forevermore any further scientific experiments with frog eggs? Would that be the right and wise thing?

The answer, according to Philip Handler, chairman of the Department of Biochemistry at the Duke University Medical Center, is no. On July 1, Dr. Handler will begin a six-year term as president of the National Academy of Science.

Handler's views on research freedom were presented in the Academy publication, News Report. He was asked if he felt any restrictions should be placed on fundamental research if there was reason to believe the results "might be harmful to society."

'NO CONSTRAINTS'

Handler said "no constraints" should be placed on the acquisition of knowledge. He brought up the matter of the frog eggs.

Take a fertilized frog egg, remove its nucleus of an ordinary body cell from another frog. The egg then develops into "an absolutely perfect twin of the donor frog."

By this technique biologists could, if they wished, "make an indefinite number of perfect copies of that donor frog." No discernible menace there, perhaps.

But, said Handler, "It's merely a matter of time before we can switch from frogs to mammals." Then "we should be able," Handler said, "to make perfect copies of the best bull or the greatest cow in the world."

TINKERING WITH MAN

"This could go a long way toward improving world food production," Handler said.

The next obvious step would be genetic tinkering with man. Some day, Handler said, science may be able to make many copies of a great humanitarian or a great physicist of a fine astronaut or a champion athlete.

It also would be possible to reproduce ruthless dictators on the one hand and on the other ranks of witless human beings subservient to them.

"I hope that day never comes," Handler said. "I can't imagine any more dangerous tool in the hands of an autocratic, dictatorial, authoritarian government."

'POTENTIALLY DAMAGING' Suppose it were possible to stop genetic research right now. That, said Handler, would be a repugnant and "as potentially damaging" as other kind of censorship.

Handler said use of scientific information "is a political and social decision, and we have mechanisms in our society for arriving at such decisions."

Psychiatrist: Need More Time on Sirhan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A psychiatrist who testified Sirhan Bishara Sirhan isn't too sane to be held responsible for killing Robert F. Kennedy has conceded that he might think differently if he had more time to examine the 25-year-old Jordanian.

But, Dr. Seymour Pollack declared Wednesday, it was a psychiatrist on the defense side who cut short the study of Sirhan before the trial began.

Pollack, a witness called by the state, had said Sirhan was mentally ill and emotionally disturbed, but not to the extent that he could escape legal blame for the New York senator's death.

"You didn't find psychotic symptoms?" asked chief defense attorney Grant Cooper. Pollack, who had identified psychosis as a major mental illness, said no.

NOT SATISFIED

"I said I spent about 25 hours with Sirhan," he added. "If I spent 250 hours—10 times that amount—I might find more definite indication of psychosis. I believe as much time as possible should be spent. I'm not that much satisfied with the 25 hours."

In early February, after a meeting with chief defense psychiatrist Bernard Diamond and other psychologists and psychiatrists, Pollack had written the district attorney that more detailed examination would probably reveal more signs of a psychosis.

"Now this defendant is on trial for his life..." the defense attorney began.

"Yes."

"... Now don't you think that in light of these circumstances you should have asked for more time to find out?"

The stocky psychiatrist leaned forward in the witness chair, his voice rising.

ANGER, RESENTMENT

"At that meeting Dr. Diamond expressed a great deal of anger and resentment at not committing myself," Pollack said. "Dr. Diamond led me to believe very strongly he no longer wanted me to participate. I took him very seriously."

Q. Ever think of calling me? We've been friends a long time.

A. I didn't call, Mr. Cooper. I should have called.

Q. Don't you think it would be more fair and objective to add more intensive examination?

A. Yes, I could have added here that as much time as possible should be spent on this case. The perspiring witness said he relied heavily on statements of people who were at the scene

Fight Against Bees Expensive Process

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Ridding her home of a swarm of bees proved to be an expensive process for Mrs. E. A. Barkett Wednesday.

The bees found a hole in the brick side of the house and were setting up a hive in the wall space between two bedrooms. Mrs. Barkett decided to smoke them out.

It took firemen 30 minutes to quench the resulting fire. Acting Asst. Fire Chief Arthur Dunnally estimated damage at $1,000. The bees left.

Cancer-Cure Statistics Are Challenged

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A California scientist challenges the statistics stating that more people now are being saved from cancer than ever before—at Berkeley. He is not a doctor and his views are in turn challenged.

The American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute cite figures that one out of four cancer patients are being saved now, as against one in four some 20 years ago. If existing knowledge were applied fully, half of all cancer patients could be cured, these agencies say.

The challenge came from Dr. Hardin B. Jones, professor of medical physics and physiology at the University of California at Berkeley. He is not a doctor and his views are in turn challenged.

Dr. Jones said his analysis found little difference over the last 50 years in results whether people were treated for cancer by surgery or radiation.

He spoke at closing session of an American Cancer Society seminar bringing cancer specialists together with science writers.

Several specialists in cancer research and in treating patients took the floor in rebuttal. They pointed to more cures of some kinds of cancers and patients who come for treatment and subsequent follow-up, know more about the natural history of the disease? I suspect they know less."

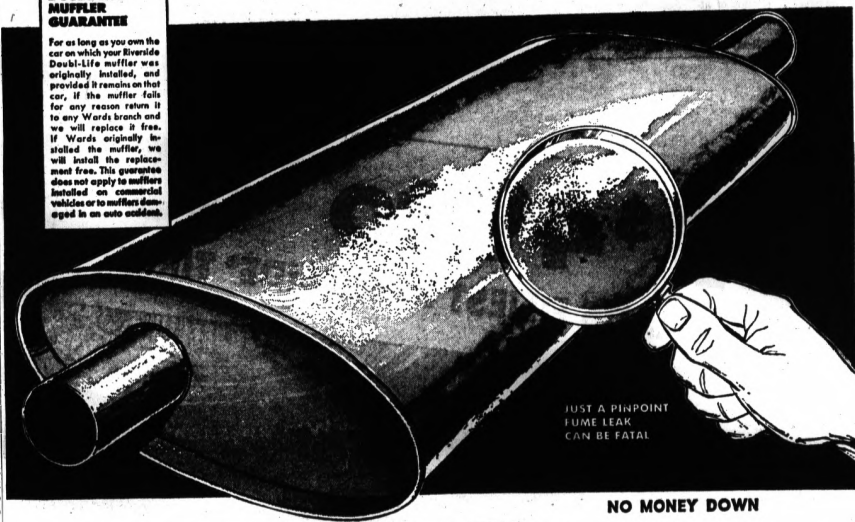

Horses are gaining in popularity in this country. In 1960, there were about 3,000 million. It is believed there are twice as many today. In 1920 there were 25.743 million.

House Breaks Ferris Deadlock

Resolution Is Okayed as Compromise Plan

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan House passed by a 59-54 vote Wednesday a compromise resolution arising from three weeks of fiery debate and parliamentary maneuvering over a racial disturbance at Ferris State College in Big Rapids last month.

The action broke up a deadlock created by Rep. E. D. O'Brien, D-Detroit, who pressed for passage of his original motion commending the Ferris State president for actions which resulted in the arrest of about 260 Negro students.

The compromise motion, drafted by Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, commends Ferris State president Victor Spallholz for asking the governor to send State Police to the campus. But it also applauds efforts "to more fully integrate all students into the life of the university" and "improve communications between races."

The resolution also "pledges support to students of all races and administrators of good will in their efforts to provide a stable and constructive educational atmosphere."

MAY BREAK LOGJAM

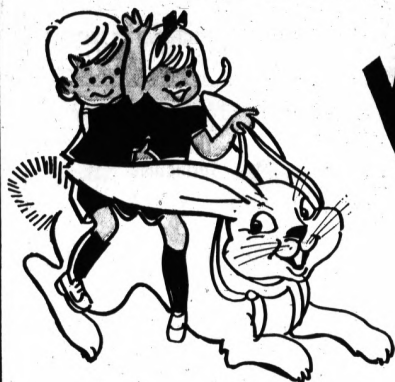

The passage may break up a logjam created by the debate allowing the House to consider other matters. However, Ryan said he could not predict whether the House could move on when it returns from Easter recess April 14.

Soviets Build Trade With Latin America

LIMA, Peru (AP) — In Moscow, people are sipping Colombian coffee and will be wearing coats that originated on the backs of Peruvian llamas. In Latin America, jeeps, autos and trolley cars made in the Soviet Union are becoming increasingly evident.

"These are among the signs pointing to Russian expansion of the small commercial beach head with political potential that Moscow has established in Latin America."

The Russians are doing this by discarding their traditional barter-type commercial agreements and offering more attractive trade terms payable in dollars or other hard currencies.

Moscow also is providing substantial credits—$60 million to Brazil, $40 million to Chile and, most recently, $15 million to tiny Uruguay—for the purchase of Russian-made goods.

He Strains, Feigns, but MD Disdains Pain

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interviewing a doctor is often the most rewarding assignment in journalism.

It may not be very productive news-wise, but it provides a splendid opportunity to obtain a little free medical advice.

A good reporter does not solicit such information overtly. He brings it out subtly so that the doctor is unaware that he is participating in a feeless consultation.

I recently arranged an interview with Dr. Maynard K. Shapiro, president of the American Academy of General Practice, who came here from Chicago to testify at a Senate hearing.

EXPLANATION SOUGHT
I told the good doctor I wanted an explanation of the new program under which general practice is being elevated to the status of a medical specialty.

My true purpose, however, was to find out what to do about a pain I had been having in my left shoulder.

"The new specialty of general practice is really not a contradiction in terms," Shapiro said. "Traditionally, the general practitioner, or family doctor, has functioned on an episodic level. That is, he treated people who came in with something the matter."

"This is crisis care and is not the best approach. The new specialist will be oriented through education and training to provide health counseling — preventive health management — as well as medical service."

ABOUT THIS PLAN

I said, "That's very interesting. What would the new specialist do about a pain in the left shoulder?"

"It would depend in part on the type of pain," Shapiro said. "Another difference between the classical general practitioner and the new specialist is the way he acquires his bedside manner."

"What the old-time family doctor acquired through experience the new specialist will acquire through the study of things," Shapiro said. "There is a much greater demand for physician services than there are physicians to provide them. We hope that giving family practice a specialty status will encourage more young physicians to go into that line of or I'll pick a left shoulder pain."

VC Offensive Is Sputtering in This Province

CAO LANH, Vietnam (AP) — when satchel charges were placed in the hot delta sun hard by the Cambodian border, the peasants of Kien Phong Province are among the least protected in Vietnam.

There are a handful of American advisers in the province, a battalion of government rangers as a reaction unit and five Special Forces camps forming an ineffective screen along the flooded frontier.

The defense of the population is almost solely in the hands of underarmed local militia forces, some very good and some very bad.

The province parallels the broad Mekong for more than 50 miles, and the whole area has less than a dozen artillery pieces. Vietcong guerrillas in relative security hold a sanctuary area in the province's southeast corner. They get ample supplies along infiltration routes frequently beyond the range of South Vietnamese cannon.

'LOW PRIORITY'

Kien Phong is by official admission a "low priority" province. It is tacitly admitted that government strength is insufficient, and Saigon's goals are limited, at least for the moment.

About 5 per cent of the 329,000 population is Roman Catholic, and 40 per cent belong to the nominally anti-Communist Hoa Hao and Cao Dai religious sects. This gives the government some advantage in efforts to control the area, but not much. Kien Phong has a long record of supporting rebellion, and religious lines in Vietnam tend to be obscure. Some of the religious communities are feuding and even some of the staunchly anti-Communist Catholics refuse to support the Saigon government.

About 85,000 people live in contested or Vietcong-controlled areas.

In this seemingly fertile field — where the Vietcong Tet offensive last year paralyzed the government forces for months — the latest enemy offensive has so far achieved practically nothing.

NOT ACTING SCARED

"The Vietnamese haven't shut down the schools, they aren't acting scared. They aren't stopping anything," said the lean and tanned American civilian adviser, Richard D. Karn of Brooks, Calif., who in 1968 was bottled up in the province capital for almost a month.

Since the offensive started Feb. 23, guerrillas and terrorists have made three serious ground attacks, mortared government posts and thrown satchel charges into public places—a total of 76 incidents which killed 28 persons and wounded 171.

The worst was last Monday when satchel charges were placed in two cafes in Cao Lan, killing five and wounded 76, more than three-quarters of them civilians.

The province chief, 42-year-old Lt. Col. Nguyen Van Thun, who was born just across the border in Cambodia, quickly mustered a pro-government protest which got 2,000 people into the streets.

SOME SATISFACTION

It was obviously a government-inspired demonstration. It brought some satisfaction, however, to those who recalled that one year ago the government could hardly have mustered a wavering platoon for such an effort.

Officials state that the offensive has had little effect on the 24 Revolutionary Development teams working in the province. None of these pacification teams was withdrawn from assigned villages, officials say, while last year almost all were clustered tightly around the provincial and district capitals.

Failure of the offensive to cause more disruption in the province is mainly put down to three causes: improvement of South Vietnamese government and militia forces, a decline in the caliber of Vietcong units, and the possibility that the enemy forces don't want to upset some of their supply and infiltration channels.

Almost all the attacks evidently have been mounted by the possibly 1,500 local-force guerrillas in the province, without help from forces holed up in Cambodian sanctuaries.

If more forces are thrown into the province the situation could get worse quickly. Meanwhile, officials are going ahead with plans to rebuild the long-cut main road connecting the province with the rest of the delta.

3 Americans Pop to Top in Beatle Empire

LONDON (UPI) — Americans now occupy three of the most important posts in the Beatles' pop music empire.

John L. Eastern, 29, partner in the New York law firm of Eastman and Eastman has been appointed general counsel for all the Beatles' business activities.

A spokesman for the group also has announced the appointment of Allen Klein, another New York attorney, to "look into" their affairs. This was not amplified but was assumed to be connected with centralizing the Beatles' diverse interests.

Klein has been associated with the Rolling Stones and the Cameo Parkway Record Co. Ronald Kass of Philadelphia, heads the booming Apple Record Division.

Arguments Still Rage Over New Movie Classification System

(EDITOR'S NOTE — In an effort to head off the possibility of any government classification of its product, the motion picture industry developed its own rating system last Nov. 1. The aim is to inform moviegoers, parents in particular, of films which may be objectionable to children. Some films are barred to children altogether. Here's a look at how the system is working.)

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD — G-M-R-X.

A governmental bureaucracy? A newly discovered chromosome factor? No, G-M-R-X is the movie industry's formula for classifying films in this new era of frankness concerning matters of sex.

Last Nov. 1, the business leaders of American films instituted a classification system such as those which have existed in many other countries, either by government decree or on a voluntary basis.

For the first 60 years of its existence, the American cinema offered its wares to all audiences, regardless of age. Now movies are lumped into one of four categories which designate their acceptability to age groups of film goers.

AROUSING IRE

The classification system, long opposed by the major studios and pressed through by producers' head Jack Valenti, has aroused ire from some producers and theater men and confusion from the public.

An official of the Motion Picture Association of America explained the classifications:

G—Suggested for general audiences. This category would of course include the Disney pictures, but G does not necessarily indicate children's movies. Among the G films are "A Man for All Seasons" and "The Sea, the Sun, and the Sea," which would no doubt bore tots to distraction.

M—Suggested for mature audiences (parental discretion advised). This means that parents should exercise judgment on whether to send their offspring to the theater.

R—Restricted, persons under 16 not admitted unless accompanied by parent or adult guardian. This designation is undoubtedly the most difficult to enforce.

X—Persons under 16 not admitted. This age limit might be higher in certain areas, the MPAA points out. In the first three months of classification, only six pictures were handed the X.

During those first three months, 39 per cent of the 148 releases received a G rating, 36 per cent M, 22 per cent R, and 3 per cent X.

PERSUADED INDUSTRY

Valenti, Lyndon Johnson's White House aide who became the third man to head the Motion Picture Association in its 47-year history, persuaded a reluctant industry to accept the classification system. Thus he did what his predecessors, Will Hays and Eric Johnston, declined to do. They, along with the founder-leaders of the film industry, believed that movies should remain family entertainment.

But an outpouring of sex-oriented films brought protest by vestiges of America's puritanical tradition, as well as concerned educators and parents who feared the effect on immature mentalities.

Valenti's answer was classification.

"The rating system is thus far a success," he proclaimed recently.

STRONG OPPOSITION

The rating system has brought strong opposition, however.

"An exercise in public deception... almost an affront to public intelligence," said Mrs. Walter Varney Magee, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Pact Is Ratified by State Strikers

TRAVERSE CITY (AP)—Pull operations resume today at Parson Aircraft following ratification of a new contract by 168 striking employees.

The workers, who had been on strike four weeks, approved a package calling for a wage increase and also a revised seniority plan.

She added that the new code ways objected to all forms of censorship," declared Reade. "It doesn't seem to have any effect on altering or preventing depictions of immorality. All the same pictures can be produced, except they are rated."

The key to Valenti's plan lay with the theater owners, who would have to enforce it. He was able to secure an endorsement for the new system from the powerful National Association of Theater Owners. There was only one dissenter: Walter Reade Jr., head of a 60-theater chain in New York, New Jersey, Nevada and California.

"I strongly object to the new code and ratings, as I have always objected to all forms of censorship," declared Reade. "It doesn't seem to have any effect on altering or preventing depictions of immorality. All the same pictures can be produced, except they are rated."

His arguments: because the code was voluntary, it would not work; it would increase efforts to enforce censorship on the industry; it would encourage anti-trust suits; it is unconstitutional.

After a month of opposition, Reade finally agreed to feature the ratings in his theaters' ads. But he refused to submit the films of his distributing subsidiary, Continental, to the rating system.

Another opponent of the system is the maverick producer-

Valenti has said that he hopes to how to handle questionable suggest certain cuts which could raise the rating from an X to an "leper colony." But other film observers wonder if the X might not be covered by producers who will figure that the designation will automatically draw thrill-seekers.

The man charged with administering the rating system is tough-minded Eugene Dougherty, a one-time pro football player from Philadelphia and a 27-year veteran in the industry's self-censoring Production Code Administration (now Code and Rating). He says that the new system apparently is working on the level he deals with: the submission of scripts and films by producers.

"I have been amazed by the way the producers are going along with us," he remarked in an interview. "There has been an overwhelming desire on the part of producers to avoid the X rating. But the real surprise to me was the number who are willing to cooperate with us to escape the R category."

The procedure for rating is the same as when producers applied for a Production Code seal. The film maker may submit his script before shooting starts—though some prefer not to. Two members of Dougherty's staff read the script and write a letter advising what the probable rating would be. Suggestions might be made as

Kennedy Airport Tour Guide Has to Stack Up to Queries

NEW YORK (AP) — Albert Putre, who leads tours of Kennedy Airport, gets all kinds of "What's the pressure on a Boeing 707's tires?" asked one youngster. He turned out to be a jet pilot's son.

"100 pounds," said Putre, airily, knowing he had to be right. Putre and his staff have had to learn mechanics, aerodynamics, acoustics, politics, diplomacy and psychology.

CHILDREN WIDE-EYED
Most of the 500,000 children who have taken the free twice-daily tours since 1960 are wide-eyed and open-minded, said Putre.

As he took one group through the International Arrivals Building, the loudspeaker announced a steady stream of planes arriving from Hong Kong, Bangkok, Bombay, Athens.

been there," shrugged one youngster. TOURS POPULAR Putre said 30,000 adults have taken the tours, which are so popular you must sign up as much as six months in advance. The books open May 1 for dates through December, and on Nov. 1 for dates through June. "Within a week all the dates are taken," said Putre.

Adding to the children's excitement is the occasional sight of a celebrity arriving or departing, or a movie being filmed.

"We had to tell them to go home because we had to rest up for the morning tour," he said. Even when he gets home Putre talks airplanes. His wife, Rosalie, is a former airline stewardess. They have two children — Christopher, 5, and Timothy, 11 months.

PART IN MOVIE
Putre recalled that one 10-year-old girl was snatched from 1:30 a.m., although the tour is a tour to play a movie scene supposed to last only 90 minutes.

One group came at 7:30 p.m. and was still asking questions at 1:30 a.m., although the tour is a tour to play a movie scene supposed to last only 90 minutes.

Christopher already has got the bug. "All he talks about is the air-port, jets and pilots," said his father, proudly.

White Sixth-Graders Portray Black History

By MARY SUNDSTROM

"We have become a mighty race.
"Dreaming your dreams, Oh America."

("North Star Shining" by Hildagard Swift)

The story of the Negro's contribution to America history was told by a class of 31 white sixth graders through the mediums of a poem narration, still poses and song.

The students, members of Mrs. Cecil Mullinix's class at McCarroll Elementary School, conducted the 45-minute program as part of their studies on Afro-American history.

They worked with their teacher, their vocal music instructor, Mrs. Rosemary Northon; McCarroll Principal Al Stolzman; and Pontiac Schools art consultant Otha Whitcomb to prepare for the program, which they put on for other students and the PTA.

The program centered around the narration of the poem, "North Star Shining," by Hildagard Hoyd Swift, with a background of music by the red-caped sixth-grade choir, and 11 still portrait poses.

"BALM IN GILEAD"

They sang "There Is a Balm in Gilead," when they told how the Negro "came in every slave ship to the colonies."

And "This Is My Country," to tell how the Negro "bent beneath the sun of the cotton lands . . . mined the ore . . . laid the ties of the railroads . . . cleared the forests and served in the white man's kitchen."

Stacy Tenjeras of 189 Wolfe portrayed Harriet Tubman, the free woman who in 1849 ran the underground railroad bringing slaves to the north, "following the North Star."

The pupils told of Crispus Attucks — wild and unpredictable — who died to shed the first drop of blood in Boston for America in the Revolutionary War. Paul Boldrey, 732 Young, portrayed Attucks.

Singing "America," they told that the Negro was also a fighting man —

"The Tan Yanks . . . This was our war, too . . . Serving the country we loved."

And now — "No avenues are closed to us; we have blazed the trails for others; we are still blazing them."

The curtain closed as a soldier (Ted Moczarsky, 567 Lennox) bent over his wounded comrade (David Losee, 878 N. Perry) while the choir sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The sixth graders said they felt they had learned more through producing the program than if they had only read books about Afro-American history. They agreed that they had gained insight into the contributions by the Negro to history and found that he should be praised for his background.

"WE ARE MUSICIANS"—James Bland, depicted by Bobby Davis of 580 E. Montcalm, a McCarroll sixth-grader, was a famous black composer who wrote "Oh, Them Golden Slippers," sung by the choir.

FOLLOW NORTH STAR—Stacy Tenjeras portrays Harriet Tubman, the remarkable underground rail runner for slaves. She was guided to safety and freedom by the North Star.

STANDARD-BEARER—David Losee portrays Carney, who carried the colors for Col. Robert Shaw in the War Between the States.

"THE TAN YANKS"—Many Negroes were fighting men for the country they loved—America. Ted Moczarsky and David Losee (lying down) portray a battle scene in McCarroll School's sixth-grade program on Afro-American history.

CRISPUS ATTUCKS—The first soldier to die for America in the Revolutionary War was a Negro. Paul Boldrey portrays the soldier, Crispus Attucks.

HELPED BUILD THE NATION—As slaves, the Negroes tended the cotton in helping America become the mighty nation of today. Ted Moczarsky shows how a black man hoed the cotton fields.

S. Africa Subs' Names Argued

Honor to 3 Women Stir Some Grumbling

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa has decided to name its first submarines for women famous in the nation's history. Not every one is happy about it.

France is building the three undersea vessels, each designed to carry a crew of 45 and 12 torpedo tubes. The 700-ton, 240-foot submarines are to have a range of 3,000 miles.

Defense Minister Pieter W. Botha's wife christened the first one at Nantes this month. The name: Maria van Riebeeck, wife of the Dutchman, who established the first permanent white settlement at Cape Town.

Botha had commented before the christening: "Submarines are like women — they are dangerous only in inexperienced hands." But there was grumbling in Parliament that sailors on the new submarines might be ribbed about the names of their vessels.

NOT ON HULLS

The nationally circulated newspaper Sunday Express also was unhappy. It commented:

"All three women have their rightful place in South African history, but not on the hulls of warships. As for the men who will sail these vessels, we do not think they deserve such clumsy and inappropriate names for their ships. They are going out to defend their country, not to hide behind anyone's skirts."

The other two submarines are to be named Emily Hobhouse, remembered for her efforts to ease the suffering of prisoners in British detention camps during the Boer War, and Johanna van der Merwe, survivor of a bloody fight between Boer settlers and African warriors who, in the government's words, "personifies the will of Afrikaner women to rise from the depth of distress and suffering to the service of her people and fatherland."

Once Home of the Fabulous Astors

Stanford U. Taking Over British Mansion

By FRED COLEMAN
MAIDENHEAD, England (U.P.) — The lavish mansion near here was good enough for Queen Victoria and just about everybody who was anybody in Britain for most of the past 300 years. Now the problem is to make it good enough for American college students.

The mansion, Cliveden House, was once the ancestral home of the fabulous Astor family. Invitations for weekends there went only to kings, prime ministers and the cream of British society. Now the great house is being "improved" by Stanford University into a coeducational students' dormitory.

Stanford wants to make the place suitable for Americans here to study the British way of life. So far the university has decided to put in a new boiler system for central heating and constant hot water. It also plans to install automatic washing machines for the laundry and will partly rebuild a dining room.

In all, a Stanford spokesman says, it will cost "in excess of $100,000 to renovate Cliveden to our needs."

BACK IN 1930s

When Virginia-born Lady Nancy Astor ran the 40-room mansion and much of British society in the 1930s, there were few who thought that Cliveden (which rhymes with "lived in") could be improved.

But Stanford-in-Britain administrator G. A. B. Docker says, "Nancy Astor didn't seem to mind the lack of central heating. She was probably the only American in history who didn't."

Even without the improvements, the Stanford students could do worse than the 337-acre estate that includes terraced gardens sweeping down to the River Thames, a boathouse, wooded heights, a rhododendron valley, guest cottages, cricket field, stables, garage, tennis court and an infamous swimming pool.

It was at the Cliveden swimming pool that playgirl Christine Keeler met British War Minister John Profumo. Her affair with the minister, which led to a sex-and-security scandal that nearly toppled the Conservative government of then-Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in 1963.

APPEASEMENT POLICY

If anything, Cliveden was even more famous in political circles between the two world wars. It was then that Lady Nancy Astor, the first woman member of the British Parliament, gathered around her there Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Lord Halifax and other political leaders. Critics called them "The Cliveden Set" and charged that Britain's appeasement policy toward Hitler and Mussolini was formed at Cliveden.

The estate itself is rich in a history of its own, older by over 500 years than the United States of America. The Stanford students, due in April, are to study British history and culture. They can get a large taste of their subject matter without ever leaving Cliveden.

The first Cliveden mansion, begun in 1666, was designed by William Winde, architect of the first Buckingham Palace. Early owners were the duke of Buckingham and Lord George Hamilton, Britain's first field marshal. Early guests included King George I in 1724 and King George II and Queen Caroline in 1729.

Even then Cliveden had its share of scandal.

FATALLY STABBED

In 1688 the duke of Buckingham eloped with the countess of Shrewsbury. The lady's husband, the earl of Shrewsbury, pursued them, but was fatally stabbed by Buckingham in a duel. The guilty couple then fled to Cliveden where they lived happily ever after.

English poet Alexander Pope later immortalized their illicit love in verse. A flower bed near the mansion's east wing, forming a sword and the date 1688, commemorates the lovers' escape.

Fires destroyed Cliveden mansions in 1795 and 1840. It was rebuilt in its present form in 1850 by Sir Charles Barry, architect of the House of Parliament. Prime Minister William Gladstone and Queen Victoria frequently visited Cliveden after it was rebuilt for the last time.

The Astor family bought Cliveden in 1883 and held it until March 1967 when it was turned over to Britain's National Trust. The Astors' furniture and household effects were sold at auction that same year for 160,000 pounds — then $448,000.

PUBLIC TOURS

Since then the estate has fallen on less glorious days. Upkeep is paid in part by public tours. Some 25,000 visitors toured Cliveden last year, paying two shillings — 24 cents — each.

Film companies used Cliveden as a glamorous backdrop to produce television commercials for butter and other items. Movie companies also filmed there.

The wood-paneled billiard room of the Astors became a German hunting lodge in a film called "Assassination Bureau" (which will star Diana Rigg). The same room is now to be a Stanford lecture hall.

The university signed a 21-year lease Jan. 3 with the National Trust for an undisclosed rent. The mansion will become a residential college, with girls in the main bloc and boys in the west wing.

Lady Astor's bedroom is to be divided in half to make a bedroom and lounge for a Stanford professor. Wood panels are also going up to divide other bedrooms in half. The mansion has 10 bathrooms. Some of the Victorian plumbing is being modernized.

About 80 students will live there on a six-month course emphasizing British studies. They are due to move in after the Easter holidays.

Women Win Battle for Clinics

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Negroes, who said they considered the clinics a necessary service, broke out last year in Home-wood-Brushston.

CLOSED FOR 4 MONTHS

And before it was over it not only threatened the existence of clinics in all of the city's poverty areas, but pitted William (Boie), Haden, one of Pitts-Brushston's most vocal slum lead-ers, against the Negro welfare establishment.

Haden, leader of the militant United Movement for Progress which claims a membership of 3,700, forced the Homewood-Brushston clinic to close down for four months with threats of violence.

Haden and others, including a Negro doctor and an attorney, claimed the federal government had set up the birth control clinics in Negro slums to keep the Negro birth rate as low as possible. Their fury was directed at the city's 11 planned parenthood clinics, which receive more than $100,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity. They maintained the money should go for more pressing needs: housing and medical aid.

Planned parenthood officials said, however, nearly 400 women made more than 1,500 visits to the Homewood-Brushston clinic last year.

TV Actor Eyes Writing Career

Plays Spy Chief in 'It Takes a Thief'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Old Testament names are apparent everywhere in the family of Malachi Throne who plays the humorless spy chief in "It Takes a Thief" which stars Robert Wagner.

Throne has been married four years to his wife Judith. They are the parents of a son, Zachary, 2. Throne explains the name is as close as they could come in contemporary terms to Zachariah. Mrs. Throne is expecting another child.

"A little girl would be nice," says Throne who is dreaming up yet another name from the Bible.

He explains his preoccupation with Biblical names as a means of vengeance for having had to pronounce and spell out Malachi to countless persons from childhood until the present.

'EYE FOR AN EYE'

"An eye for an eye," he says. The Thrones live in Studio City in a ranch-style home with too few bedrooms for his liking. They are searching for a new house with enough space for their expanding brood. Throne is seeking a place with a separate little building or perhaps a room over the garage which he can use as a den for his writing.

Because the business of acting has changed so much since Throne entered the profession 30 years ago in New York, he is preparing for the day when he does more writing than performing.

"Acting and the theater are almost dead," he explains. "Opportunities are diminishing."

The balding, saturnine actor plays character roles and there are, roughly, a thousand performers in the same category in Hollywood. There isn't enough work to go around. Throne began acting at the 1939 New York World's Fair and has been at it ever since.

He and his wife collect paintings by young "undiscovered" artists as well as older canvases. Malachi's favorite piece of furniture is a rolltop desk at which he works.

Judith has decorated their home with Spanish and Mediterranean decor and colors — browns, oranges and greens. But Malachi says no matter what they do their living quarters still look like a Greenwich Village apartment.

Throne works long hours at Universal Studios, a short trip by car from home, but he is usually able to have dinner with his wife before studying the script for the following day. Often he works only one or two days a week.

Dr. Oaks Says:

An Aching Back Can Be Quite Serious

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is another in a series of articles issued by Oakland County Medical Society, Dr. Oaks is the collective voice of the society.

"Oh, my aching back" is not an idle expression for great numbers of people, if not all of us at one time or another in our lifetimes.

Although man is not a pack animal, we often place demands on our collective backs that even the sturdiest pack horse couldn't tolerate without some associated back pain.

Often back pains stem from overexertion. However, back pain can be serious.

The commonest low back pain usually can be traced to simple strains or unusual stresses on the lower-most segment of the spine. All of the stress and weight-bearing surfaces direct their elements and power to the lower joints.

REMARKABLE STRUCTURE

In the lower part of the spine, in fact between each of the 32 vertebrae of the back, is a structure called an intervertebral disc.

This is a remarkable structure. It is a washer that is quite flexible. And, as long as it is flexible, it's quite strong and can absorb various forces and tolerate them well.

Because of the elastic nature of this disc, we can move, turn, bend and do all kinds of movements (some more than others, it seems) with minimal restriction.

As a person grows older, however, the water content of these structures drops. They become harder, more brittle.

With stresses placed upon them, they tend to fragment, and very often a fragment may be extruded backwards into an area of the spinal column called the central canal.

All of the nerves that come down from the brain enter this canal in a spinal cord up at the higher level. But, in the lumbar region they all become individual lines (roots).

If something intrudes into this cavity, like a herniated disc, these sensitive nerve cables, compress them — causing pain.

A herniated disc can occur anywhere along the canal, but the most common location is at the lower end, meaning low back pain with radiation down the leg.

Obviously, a herniated disc is one of the more serious forms of back pain and is not the temporary variety encountered from too much stooping.

Of those unfortunate enough to be subject to a herniated disc, 60 to 80 per cent are helped very effectively by conservative care (bed rest), but the remaining 20 per cent become surgical candidates.

So, the next time you are apt to complain "oh, my aching back," you might remember it could be more serious.

(If you have a question for Dr. Oaks, send a card or letter to Oakland County Medical Society, 346 Park, Birmingham 48009.)

Cardinals Bomb Wilson

Shaky Mound Staff Worrying Bengals' Mayo Smith

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Detroit Tiger manager Mayo Smith has a reason for that worried look today.

With the exhibition season having only three games to play, the Tigers may be ready to push the panic button as far as their starting rotation of pitchers is concerned.

Joe Sparna is out with an ailing forearm and yesterday the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals handed Earl Wilson a severe pounding in whipping the Tigers, 11-3, before 6,168 fans at Al Lang Field.

It was the hottest and most humid day of the spring training season as the teams played in 81 degree temperatures, and the Cardinal bats were equally as hot.

In his past 16 innings, Wilson has given up 35 hits. Yesterday the Cards, led by Tiger nemesis Lou Brock, ripped the big right-hander for eight runs, eight hits and five walks in five innings.

Rookie Mike Kilkenny was no more effective when he came into the game in the sixth frame. He gave up three walks, two hits and three runs.

When Dal Maxvill finally came to the plate after the three runs scored, Kilkenny fired three straight strikes against the shortstop and the crowd cheered sarcastically.

"One thing is certain," said Smith, "our pitching is 10 days behind the batters. I hope we can pull things together real fast."

The opener is only four days away, and as the saying used to be with the old Boston Braves, "Spahn and Sain, and pray for rain." It will be the same for the Tigers with "Lolich and McLain, then pray for rain."

The Cardinals took the exhibition series against the Tigers, three games to one, and they looked like true National League champions and world champion contenders in the process.

Brock had three doubles, a single and three walks in eight trips to the plate in the home-and-home series the past two days.

FIRST PITCH

He hit Wilson's first pitch of the game down the line for a double in the bottom of the first inning yesterday, after the Tigers had scored in the top of the frame on a double by Mickey Stanley and home run by Norm Cash off Bob Gibson.

Curt Flood followed Brock with a walk,

Joe Hague walked to load the bases and then Bill Freehan was charged with a passed ball to allow Brock to score.

Tim McCarver tied the score with a sacrifice fly and Mik Shannon put St. Louis ahead with a single to score Hague.

The Tigers gained a short-lived tie in the fourth when Willie Horton doubled and Bill Freehan singled.

The Cards then hit Wilson hard in the same inning as Maxvill opened the plate with a single. Brock singled, Flood singled, Hague hit a long sacrifice fly, Joe Torre doubled, McCarver walked, Shannon doubled and five runs crossed the plate.

SCHERMAN SHARP

After Kilkenny gave up three more St. Louis runs, another rookie left-hander Fred Scherman pitched the eighth for the Tigers and set down three of the Cardinal reserves in order.

Prior to this game, Wilson had given up 14 hits in five innings, 13 hits in six innings and yesterday's eight hits in five innings.

Gibson allowed six hits in his seven innings, walking two and striking out seven. Ron Wilson pitched the final frames against Detroit and allowed three walks, but no hits.

The Tigers are expected to have their squad cut this afternoon after the game with the Redlegs at Marchant Stadium.

Tomorrow the 25-man roster breaks camp, and heads for Montgomery, Ala., for a game with the Redlegs Saturday and another contest Sunday in Columbus, Ohio.

Manager Smith has definitely stated that McLain would pitch the Tuesday opener in Detroit, with Lolich going Thursday against the Cleveland Indians.

SIGNED AND SEALED — Now it's official. Lew Alcindor is a member of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association. Bucks' general manager John Erickson adds his signature to the contract yesterday after Alcindor in Beverly Hills, Calif., had autographed it for a reported $1.4 million. Coach Larry Costello watches in background.

300 Game Bowled

'Started Running'

"We were down near the end of the building. When I let the last one go, I just started running to the right. If I didn't get it I was going right through the wall!"

Bob Lowry chuckled as he recalled his final delivery last night when he became the first man to roll a sanctioned 300 game at Cooley Lanes in Union Lake.

Lowry, a 28-year-old bachelor who works for Sports Center Trophies, was filling in on the Sportsman's Bar team in the Wednesday night Classic at Cooley.

"Owner Bob Liebler called late yesterday and left a message for me to bowl in his place. It's only the third time this year that I've bowled with the team at Cooley," Lowry revealed.

He had 191 and 215 games to start, then put together 12 strikes.

"The tenth one was a little light, but the last two were about the best you can throw," he said. He finished off the perfect game on lane No. 13 in the 16-lane establishment. His 706 series is Cooley's 22nd such series this season.

BIG TEAM SERIES

His sparkling effort helped the Sportsman's team to a 3243 total, although it lost the first game.

Although the 300 is his first sanctioned one, it doesn't rate as his top bowling thrill. In 1964 he was a member of the 300 Bowl team that won the American Bowling Congress Tournament's regular division championship.

"Nothing compares to that," he stated.

The 300 game by the Pontiac Central High School graduate who now lives in Union Lake is the third in eight days in the North Oakland County area, and the fifth one this season. There have also been three 299 games and two 298's.

Leafs Humbled; Brawl Erupts; Game 2 Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — The BostonToronto Stanley Cup hockey playoff series is no contest so far in the scoring department, and Bruins' Coach Harry Sinden doesn't think much of the Maple Leafs' pugilistic chances either if the wild brawling of the opener should resume tonight.

"I wouldn't say our team is the best one to play that style of game against," Sinden said after the Bruins humiliated the Leafs 10-0 Wednesday night in the fight-filled opener of their best-of-7 East semifinals series.

"They have two or three people who want to play that way. We have 18."

The stars of the NHL game were record-breaking center Phil Esposito, who scored four goals and added two assists to tie the playoff record of six points in a game, and goaltender Gerry Cheevers, who turned back 40 shots.

ORR DECKED

Most of the excitement — and all of the post-game controversy — centered around the melees. The first incident came in the closing minutes of the second period, when Toronto's Pat Quinn decked Bobby Orr with an elbow to the cheek as the All-Star defenseman streaked along the boards.

Orr lay dazed on the ice for five minutes before skating off shakily. He saw no more action and was hospitalized overnight for observation.

Irate fans showered Quinn with debris when he went to the penalty box. The rugged defenseman finally swung his stick at them as several teammates skated over to help protect him from the crowd.

Then near the end of the game came a general brawl featuring Toronto's Forbes Kennedy fighting successively with Cheevers, linesman John Ashley, and Bruins' wing John McKenzie, who gave the Leafs' center quite a beating and a bloody nose.

DOOR LOCKED

Sinden said after the Bruins humiliated him that the Leafs were out to make trouble after falling behind 6-0, because "they had nothing to lose."

Punch Imlich, Toronto coach and general manager, locked his team's dressing room and refused to talk to the press.

Esposito's six points matched the record set by Dickie Moore of Montreal in 1954, and his four goals were one shy of the playoff mark of five established by the great Maurice Richard of the Canadiens in 1944.

John Hadl Signs With San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — John Hadl has signed a 1969 contract with the San Diego Chargers, ending speculation that the quarterback might play with another team next season.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The 29-year-old seven-year American Football League veteran signed the contract Wednesday, a month before he would have been a free agent under the option clause.

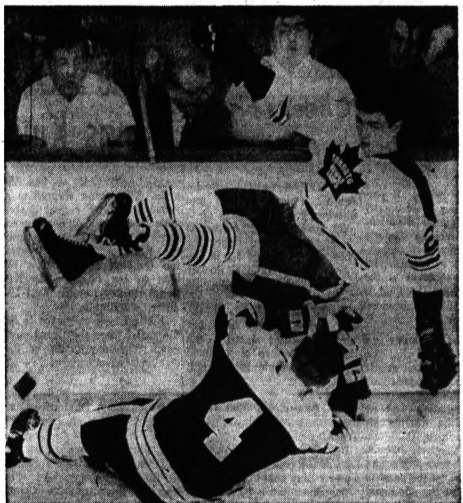

"The club and John are very well pleased with the contract and everything is behind us," said General Manager Sid Gillman. "We can now start concentrating on football."

Hadl reportedly had sought a three-year contract of $60,000 and a $250,000 loan for investment purposes.

Myron Dietz Has 686

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Myron Dietz of Milwaukee, Wis., rolled a 686 series Wednesday night to move into eighth place in the regular singles division of the 68th annual American Bowling Congress tournament.

Dietz put together games of 256, 194 and 236.

RILES FANS — Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr (4) goes to the ice after colliding with Toronto's Pat Quinn and the collision produced some heated reaction by fans on hand for the National Hockey League playoff game in Boston last night. Quinn was sent to the penalty box for elbowing and the fans went after him in the box. He was later removed from the game by police. Boston won, 10-0.

Chiefs Playing Defender Role

Seven Valley Schools in CMU Competition

Defending champion Pontiac Central leads a field of 18 Class A schools into Friday evening's Central Michigan indoor invitational track meet.

Because seven of the schools entered are members of the Saginaw Valley Conference, this meet is considered by many as the loop's unofficial indoor championships.

Pontiac Northern, Waterford and Kettering also have squads entered. The meet gets under way in the CMU fieldhouse at 6 p.m.

Other schools participating are Bay City Handy and Central, Saginaw, Saginaw Arthur Hill and Douglas MacArthur, Flint Carmen and Kearsley, Owosso, MI. Pleasant, Muskegon, Traverse City, Flint Northern and Midland.

PCH's Jon Costello will be trying to break his mile record of 4:28.5 set last year.

'Rookies' Await Season Opener

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two rookies, Richard Nixon and Ted Williams, will dominate the starting line-up as baseball ushers in its centennial season Monday.

President Nixon is expected to take out the first ball in traditional opening ceremonies before Williams makes his debut as Washington's manager against the New York Yankees.

A sellout throng of 45,000 is forecast for the first test of whether the stumbling Senators can find new magic under the old ballpark.

Nixon will hurl the first pitch in a stadium renamed for slain presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy.

Nixon's first start as President comes 16 years after he was rained out as a relief pitcher while vice president under Dwight D. Eisenhower. He won another substitute start as the Senators beat Baltimore 9-2 in the 1959 opener.

Maverick '5' Exits Texas With Victory

It wasn't what you'd call a tearful farewell as the Houston Mavericks closed their two years of American Basketball Association action in Texas.

The Mavericks, who announced earlier this week that they will move to North Carolina next year, attracted 89 fans to their final home game Wednesday night and celebrated with a 149-132 romp over the New York Nets.

In other games, Kentucky whacked Indiana 132-127, and Miami downed Dallas 108-99.

Seven Houston players hit double figures with Stew Johnson's 34 leading the record-setting spurge. Walt Simon had 36 for the Nets including 19 in the first period.

Louie Dampier dropped in 33 points to carry Kentucky past Indiana while Mel Daniels had 32 for the Pacers, who already have clinched the Eastern Division championship.

In spite of the victory, Kentucky was eliminated from the battle for second place in the East when Miami beat Dallas. Don Freeman's 37 points led the Floridians, who clinched second place and begin the playoffs against fourth-place Minnesota next Monday.

Indiana will play Kentucky in the playoffs.

EXCHANGE MITT TALK—Catchers Bill Freehan (left) of the Detroit Tigers and Tim McCarver of St. Louis, announced as two of the best receivers in the major leagues, converse about McCarver's milt prior to an exhibition game yesterday at Lakeland, Fla.

Freehan caught McCarver's foul popup for the final out in the 1968 World Series, and both could be back in the fall classic this season, as well as this summer's All-Star Game.

Alcindor Signs $1-Million Pact

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The bidding war for the services of UCLA's Lew Alcindor has officially ended with the 7-foot-1½ center signing a Milwaukee Bucks contract and announcing he'll change his style of play.

With contentment etched on his face, a poised Alcindor signed a document Wednesday that would make him a millionaire and, reportedly, a partner in the National Basketball Association expansion team.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed by John Erickson, the Bucks' vice president and general manager.

The signing came less than two weeks after Lew had led UCLA to a history-making third straight national collegiate title. He did it with what his college Coach John Wooden called "a most unselfish attitude." Will that style of play change?

EARLY WORKOUTS
"I have a few ideas of my own about playing in the pros," said Alcindor.

"I'm going to work out on my own this summer—before I go to camp. I've got a few things to work on, things I haven't tried before."

He said some of the centers in the league use moves toward the basket that are "too rudimentary" and he said he would try to be a little more of a "freelancer." He indicated that variety would be the spice of his game.

Larry Costello, Milwaukee's first-year coach, said he would play the talented giant "at the low post, to take advantage of his talents there. But he's a team player and I think variety is important."

"So we'll use him on the high post, low post and try to create some pick-and-roll situations," Lew said he was happy that now "I can play the game the way it was originally thought to be played," referring to the numerous stall games he faced at UCLA.

The Bucks now must go through the formality of actually drafting the man they have already signed. The first round of the NBA draft is scheduled for next Monday.

Davidson Aide Quits

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Jerry Conboy, 40, resigned Wednesday as assistant basketball coach at Davidson College to return to his native Pittsburgh, where he will be the head coach at Point Park College.

Pro Dick Weber Sizzles With 223 Pace in Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Dick Weber of St. Louis, who has won more money than any other professional bowler, took command of the PBA's $100,000 Firestone Open Wednesday with a sizzling 223 average for 16 pins, mainly because of a perfect game thrown by Johnson.

Weber amassed a 3572 total in two eight-game qualifying rounds. He was in second place going into Wednesday night's eight games, trailing Earl Johnson of Minneapolis by 10 pins, and 182.

In second place, 28 pins back, was Johnny Guenther of Fresno, Calif. Guenther moved up from 10th place on the strength of a 1806 block, biggest of the day.

Jim Godman, 22-year-old bowler from Hayward, Calif., was running third 10 pins behind Guenther.

CHAMP FADES
Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., the 1968 Bowler-of-the-Year who has been returning to form in recent weeks, moved into seventh place, while the defending Firestone champion, Dave Davis of Phoenix, Ariz., was holding down 24th position.

Weber, the owner of 18 PBA titles and the only professional bowler to have earned $300,000 in official winnings, never has captured the Firestone crown.

225 clubs are affiliated with the American Water Ski Association.

SHOWING 'EM HOW—New coach Bo Schembechler of University of Michigan offers some tips on handling the ball to Tom Curtis (left) and Jim Mandich during a session of spring practice yesterday at Ferry

Field in Ann Arbor. Curtis, who set an all-time Big Ten record of nine pass interceptions in 1968, and Mandich, who hauled in 43 tosses for 576 yards and three touchdowns in 1968, are two of the club's top performers.

U. of M. Coach Cites Mistakes

Schembechler Studies Junior Quarterbacks

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — Bo Schembechler definitely was not happy Wednesday with the performance of his Wolverines in the second day of spring football practice at the University of Michigan.

"It was a typical second-day type of practice," the new head football coach said. "We dropped the ball a lot and made our share of mistakes."

Even though it was only the second day of practice for the Wolverines, Schembechler had the squad running through contact drills with offensive and defensive lines working out.

Most of the practice session was spent on execution and techniques of moving the ball. Schembechler spent part of the day working with three juniors who are vying to fill the quarterback spot left vacant by graduated Dennis Stewart.

Don Moorhead of South Haven, Jim Betts, a flanker last year, and Bill Berutti ran play after play as Schembechler watched as he tried to make a decision.

Tom Edfelsen Advances After Net Upset

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Tom Edfelsen of Berkeley, Calif., upset Mark Cox of Britain, the defending champion, 7-5, 6-3 Wednesday night and advanced to the quarter-finals of Ziegenfuss, San Diego, 12-10, the Caribe Hilton International 10-8.

In other ladies singles, Karen Krantzke, Australia, defeated Judy Dixon, New York, 6-2, Helga Nissen, Germany, defeated Patti Hogan, La Jolla, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, Mary Ann Eisel, St. Louis, beat Kerry Melville, Australia, 6-4, 7-5, and Judy Te-year, and Bill Berutti ran play after play as Schembechler watched as he tried to make a decision.

Norwegians Run One-Two in Duel for Skiing Trophy

SEATTLE (AP) — Norway's Terry Lassen-Urdaahl finished second to countryman Hans Bjorge in Wednesday's downhill but his better combined time for two days of skiing won him the Silver Skis trophy.

Bjorge's time for the run down the 1,350 foot vertical drop at Crystal Mountain, 69 miles southeast of Seattle, was one minute, 54.68 seconds. Lassen-Urdaahl came in 1.28 seconds later.

Coin Flip Goes to Boston Quintet

BOSTON (AP) — Trainer Joe DeLaure called "heads" Wednesday and won for the Boston Celtics the ninth pick in the member from Eugene, Ore., National Basketball Association draft.

The Celtics and Atlanta Hawks had finished the regular season with identical win-loss records.

Reed's Off-Court Study Pays Off for N. Y. Knicks

By the Associated Press
Willie Reed did his homework, and as a result the Baltimore Bullets are wearing the National Basketball Association's dunce cap today.

Reed, burly 6-foot-10 center of the New York Knickerbockers, poured in a club playoff record 40 points Wednesday night, pacing the third-place Knicks to a 115-108 triumph over the pennant-winning Bullets that completed a four-game sweep of their Eastern Division semifinal series.

The Knicks move into the Eastern finals against the survivor of the Boston-Philadelphia set, which resumes Friday night in Philadelphia.

In Wednesday night's only other game, Los Angeles squared its Western semifinal with San Francisco at a 103-88 victory. They return to Los Angeles Friday night.

The other Western series continues Friday night with Atlanta at San Diego. The Hawks lead 2-1.

NEW RECORD
Reed hit on 15 of 29 shots and erased Cazzie Russell's Knick playoff standard of 49 points.

He stopped him in the first two games," said Baltimore's Ray Scott of Reed, "but he's a great player and he goes home and does his homework. He studies the man who's guarding him."

"In the first two games I had him going to my strength, away from the basket, but tonight he used his great strength more. He moved me closer to the basket and then, when he gets off, there's nothing you can do to stop the guy."

Scott limited Reed to 35 points in the first two games, but was overwhelmed for 35 in the third game before Wednesday night's explosion.

"If you get the ball in the right spot at the right moment, nobody can stop you," Reed explained.

FIRST TIME
It was the first time the Knicks have ever won four straight playoff games while the proud Bullets, who climbed from last place to first in one year, became the first division champion to be swept in four games. Baltimore stunned the Knicks by scoring the first 12 points. But the New Yorkers trailed by only 23-25 after one period and was nip-and-tuck until they went ahead to play 77-75 on Bill Bradley's basket.

Reed then took over. His bucket gave the Knicks an 86-82 lead and he added seven more points as they increased the spread to 99-87, then fought off a late Baltimore comeback.

Westley Unseed and Earl Monroe split 50 points for the losers.

SCORING SPURT
Los Angeles ripped off 16 straight points at the start of the second period and easily drubbed the cold-shooting Warriors. Jerry West scored 22 of his game high 36 points in the first half and also impressed with his defense.

"Our team defense, which helped us all season long, was really magnificent tonight," said Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers. "West really played a great game on offense, but people tend to overlook the fact that West is so good on defense. Highscoring Jeff Mullins, injured in the third game, managed only two points."

The Lakers led 25-16 after the first period and sent it soaring to 41-16 before Joe Ellis broke the spell with a pair of free throws. But Los Angeles pushed its lead to much as 28 points before taking a 57-35 halftime advantage.

Rookie Fritz Williams paced the Warriors with 16 points, highscoring Jeff Mullins, injured in the third game, managed only two points.

Easter Bunny Cake Is Made From a Single Layer

Be ready for your Easter! As created in the test kitchens mix, generous amounts of frosting and decorated as served with a very special of The West Bend Company, shredded coconut, green fooding time draws near... with the children's help, of course. Make the cake from a favorite recipe or from a package mix. Preparation is easy. The cake can be baked in advance and are needed, a non-stick Teflon cake, plus a package of frosting

LOOK AT THE BUNNY—To make Easter Bunny Cake, bake one layer of white or yellow cake. After cake has cooled, halve layer. (Upper Left): Put two halves together with a fluffy white or seven-minute frosting. Frost bottoms of cake to keep rounded effect on top. (Upper Right): Stand cake on cut edge. Cut out a diagonal wedge for bunny's head and an oblong piece for the tail. Frost bottom of head and tail. (Lower Left): Secure cutout head and tail pieces with toothpicks. Frost with remaining icing and generously cover cake, while frosting is still soft, with coconut. (Lower Right): Put finishing touches on cake with construction paper ears, jellybean eyes and nose, and settle cake on a nest of colored coconut.

Cake Slices Marbled in Pink, Red pan will yield a perfect layer. With construction paper ears, jellybean eyes and nose, this is one Easter guest who's bound to be the center of attention. One final note: Apply a dab of frosting first to secure jellybean eyes in place.

You won't need to hop-to-it to make this festive Cranberry Easter Cake for it couldn't be easier to mix and bake. And, when you serve this delicious lasting, gorgeous looking cake to your family and friends, it will be well worth the little trouble it takes.

Cranberry-orange relish is the secret of success here. It adds both flavor and color to a simple cake mix. Try it!

CRANBERRY EASTER CAKE
1 package yellow cake mix
2 eggs
½ cup cranberry juice cocktail
Grated rind of 1 small orange
3 tablespoons cranberry-orange relish
¼ cup finely chopped nuts
Red food coloring
Combine cake mix, eggs, cranberry juice and orange rind; beat until smooth, following beating directions on package. Remove ½ of batter and add to it relish and nuts. Add enough food coloring to make batter a deep red.

Spoon light and dark batters alternately into greased and floured 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 65 to 70 minutes, or until cake tests done. Let stand in pan 5 minutes, then turn out on rack and let stand until cool.

To decorate, frost top and sides of cake with your favorite frosting. Tint coconut green with food coloring and press into frosting. Decorate top and bottom of cake with jelly beans. Makes one cake.

Brown and White

Spoon alternate layers of chocolate pudding and dairy sour cream into parfait glasses. Top each serving with an additional dollop of nutritious sour cream.

Cheese Mixture Rolled Into Ball

Flavorful cheese balls make wonderful and nutritious party appetizers. Cheeses should be at room temperature: Blend together 2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) cream cheese, 3 oz. Blue cheese, 5 oz. sharp Cheddar cheese spread, 1 teaspoon grated onion and 3 tablespoons Port wine.

Chill: roll into one large ball. Mix Add orange juice. Cook and roll in 1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts. Chill overnight, constantly, about 5 to 7 minutes. Serve with crackers or thin. Add orange peel and lemon slices of party rye bread. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

Ripe olives, a native fruit of California, and lamb, one of the national meats of the Middle East complement each other in this fresh idea for adding interest to East dinner.

Ripe Olive Stuffed Lamb

1 (6 lb.) leg of lamb, boned
1 (13 1/2 oz.) can chicken broth
1 1/2 cups water
2 1/4 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 cups long grain rice
4 strips bacon
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
1 1/2 cups canned pitted California ripe olives
3 tablespoons chopped pimiento
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 1/2 teaspoons rosemary
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Mix together chicken broth, water, 1/4 teaspoon salt and heat to boiling. Stir in rice. Cover and cook over low heat for about 20 minutes until rice is soft and all water is absorbed.

Cook bacon until crisp. Drain, reserving 2 tablespoons drippings. Add onion and garlic to drippings and cook until tender. Drain olives and chop coarsely. Crumble bacon and add to cooked rice. Add onion, garlic, ripe olives, pimiento and parsley to rice and mix together lightly but thoroughly.

Sprinkle cavity of lamb with half of remaining salt, rosemary and pepper. Fill lamb cavity with half of the rice mixture. Fold sides of lamb over stuffing. Tie. Fold ends up over stuffing and skewer securely. Tie meat at about 1" intervals.

Sprinkle meat with remaining salt, rosemary and pepper. Roast for 2 to 2 1/2 hours, basting occasionally with drippings in pan, until meat is tender. If using a meat thermometer, roast to 175 degrees for medium, 180 degrees for well done.

Shape remaining rice mixture into balls. Place on greased baking pan. About 20 minutes before meat is cooked, add rice balls and bake with roast. Makes 8 servings.

Place pineapple slices in cuts and at each end. Hold in place with long skewer or two through chops. Baste with glaze in pan. Bake about 10 minutes longer until pineapple is heated and glazed. Makes 6 servings.

Girl, 6, Killed As Mother Wrecks Car

Carol Hanes, a six-year-old Highland Township girl, was killed Thursday when the car her mother was driving went off the road.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hanes, was dead on arrival at General Hospital.

Her mother, Margaret Hanes, 35, was admitted to the hospital with head and body injuries.

Bit of Molasses Flavors Casserole

Ground beef has the reputation of being a good mixer. It complements any number of foods from subtly flavored vegetables to spicy sauces, and it's relatively simple to prepare. One of the more unusual, yet natural, go-togethers with ground beef is West Indies molasses, the pure cane sugar product with the mellow goodness that blends with all types of foods.

We Americans consider ground beef pretty much our own innovation, but the ancient Egyptians really thought of it first. For them, grinding was necessary to tenderize their very tough meats; for us, ground beef is a convenient way to feed a couple or a crowd.

BARBADOES SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

6 tablespoons milk
1½ teaspoons MSG
1 teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons chopped onion
1½ pounds ground beef
1½ tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons salad oil
6 tablespoons West Indies molasses
6 tablespoons vinegar
6 tablespoons catsup
2 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 8-ounce package cooked spaghetti
Mash together bread crumbs and milk; add Ac'cent, salt, onion and beef. Toss lightly with fork until well mixed.

Form into 1½-inch balls. Roll in flour; brown in oil in skillet. Combine molasses, vinegar, catsup and oregano; blend until smooth. Add to meat balls. Simmer 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until sauce thickens and meat balls are glazed. Combine sauce with cooked spaghetti in a 2-quart casserole. Arrange meat balls on top. Bake in 350 degree F. oven 20 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

You can make an excellent salad from salad greens, grapefruit sections and strips of green pepper. If you like, you can peel the green pepper with a swivel-blade vegetable peeler. Yes, it works!

Today's hand shows this system at its best. South's jump to three diamonds produces a three-spade, ace-showing bid by North and South jumps to seven hearts. The author concludes with the remark that there was no other way to locate the ace of spades and without his system the final bid would have been six hearts.

It might have been difficult to reach seven by some other 1930 bidding methods. But it wouldn't have been too difficult for South to assume that his partner would show up with the ace of spades and bid seven by sheer power.

It is also worthy of note that our writer's system would have failed miserably if it turned out that North had opened one diamond with something like

by OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

One of the interesting features of 1930 bridge writing was that all writers referred to the impossibility of reaching certain winning contracts. Sometimes those contracts could not be reached by any method. More frequently it would be impossible to reach them by any method other than that of the writer.

Today's hand is taken from an article showing the great advantage of a certain system which featured ace-showing in its slam bidding. In this system the ace-showing only started if responder could jump to three of his partner's suit.

This jump to three was not only a game force, it was unimpaired in strength, and demanded that the opener show his lowest ace immediately. Later on he was supposed to

It's Official: Viet Toll Is 4th Worst for U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — A total of 312 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, an increase of 18 per cent over the week before, and the U.S. Command confirmed today that the Vietnam war is now the fourth costliest in American history.

The toll announced for last week raised to 33,641 the number of Americans killed in action in eight years and three months of fighting in Vietnam. American combat deaths during the

Sales Still Up at GMC Truck

GMC Truck & Coach Division posted its best sales month in more than 18 years in March to extend its record-breaking streak to six straight months, Martin J. Caserio, a vice president of General Motors and divisional general manager, reported today.

March truck and coach deliveries totaled 14,614, second highest for any month in history, exceeded only by the 14,495 sales in July 1960, Caserio said.

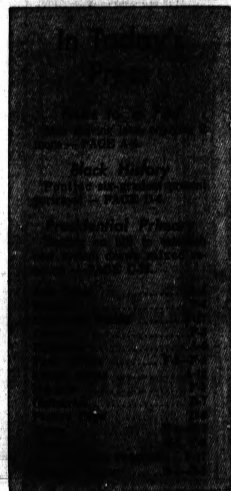

GMC monthly sales since last September have surpassed previous record levels for comparable months.

March sales ran 10.4 per cent above the 12,697 truck and coach deliveries in the same month last year, the former record.

Caserio also reported another all-time high for first-quarter sales with January-March deliveries totaling 36,473, an 8.8 per cent gain over the previous record of 33,534 set last year.

Some Theologians Theorize Resurrection Is Symbolic

forms the core of faith for millions of Christians.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A man raises his hand, taking an oath of office, and it is not the gesture that matters, but what it means. On a dining table, it is not the food itself that is important, but the purposes it serves.

All human reality is that way. Value is never in the sheer object or act, but in what it signifies or accomplishes. Movement has point only in its effects, time only in its content and a word only in the understanding of it.

It is always the meaning that counts, the intangible, underlying concern and response, which are not identifiable with the "thing" itself, but which are conveyed by it. Yet the "thing" often claims the surface spotlight.

"Illusions are the stuff of which our life is made," says French philosopher Andre Maurois.

SYMBOLIC RESURRECTION

In awareness of this elusive quality of the real goods of life, some theologians see the resurrection of Jesus as inherently a symbolic truth rather than a physical miracle within the limits of history.

Its reality, as they conceive it, is discernible only to the "eye of faith" — just as sound exists only in the hearing, beauty only in the beholder, and any fact, not simply as itself, but as an interpretation of it.

NY Police Foil 'Plot to Bomb 5 Huge Stores'

From Our News Wires

NEW YORK — Midtown Manhattan might have rocked to explosions today if police raiders hadn't headed off a conspiracy by 21 members of the Black Panther party to bomb five department stores crowded with Easter shoppers, the district attorney says.

Seven of the 21 Panthers indicted yesterday on charges of conspiracy to murder, arson and weapons violations were still at large.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said the Panthers had planned to bomb the stores, a railroad and a police station and kill policemen today in an attack on "the white power structure."

Police netted 12 suspects in early morning raids yesterday. Two others were already in a Newark, N.J., jail on robbery charges.

$100,000 BAIL
The 12 defendants pleaded innocent at their arraignment and bail was set at $100,000 each, despite their lawyers' protest that the bail was excessive and unconstitutional.

Marks signed arrest warrants minutes after a grand jury handed up the indictment at 1 a.m. yesterday. Two women were included in the indictment.

Among those arrested was Robert S. Collier, 32, convicted in 1965 of plotting to blow up the Statue of Liberty. He served 21 months of a five-year sentence and was released from Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary in March 1968.

Hogan said bombs were to be set off today in Macy's, Bloomingdale's, E. J. Korvette, Alexander's and Abercrombie & Fitch in areas of the huge department stores where paints, dry goods and other flammable materials are stored.

"They agreed to assassinate police officers by bombs and guns and planned a number of other coordinated acts of violence," Hogan said.

New Milliken Panel to Study School Aid

LANSING (U) — Gov. William Milliken today announced establishment of a commission to spearhead a drive for sweeping educational financing reforms and vowed that — if necessary — he would call a special legislative session this fall to implement recommendations.

LANSING (U) — Gov. William Milliken was expected to stand pat on his proposed increase of only $85 million in school aid when he presented his special education message to the Legislature this afternoon.

Despite rising clamor for additional funds, milliken reportedly feels that it is too late to increase taxes or revise the state's school aid formula in view of current contract talks between teachers and school boards.

He is expected to name a special study commission to review the entire spectrum of school financing, including the controversial issue of aid to private and parochial schools.

The commission reportedly would release its recommendations in time for legislative action to be taken during the 1970 legislative session.

PLAN TO BUY AID

The governor also is reportedly sympathetic to the parochial bill introduced by Rep. J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City, that would appropriate an estimated $40 million to purchase educational services from private and parochial schools.

Milliken supposedly feels this is the proper way for the state to give aid to nonpublic schools.

Pratt Will Head Grand Jury Study

LANSING (U) — Gov. William Milliken yesterday announced appointment of a special study committee to determine the need for creating a special commission on investigations.

Judge Phillip Pratt of Oakland County Circuit Court was named chairman of the study committee.

Such a commission possibly could replace Michigan's one-man grand jury and special 23-man citizen grand jury systems, the governor indicated.

Citing his previous special message to the Legislature on crime, Milliken said that over the years it has become apparent that such jury systems "had only a limited success in the fight against organized crime and the corruption of public officials."

'A NEW STRUCTURE'

"I have concluded that Michigan needs to look carefully at the possibility of an entirely new structure for this purpose," Milliken said.

Such a commission on investigations, Milliken said, would consist of a small number of members chosen from the most qualified judicial, legal and law enforcement circles on a nonpartisan basis and should have a permanent staff, subpoena power, power to give witness immunity and broadened contempt powers.

Named as other members were: Professor Gerald Israel, University of Michigan Law School; Paul Borman, assistant dean Wayne State University Law School; Maj. John Brown, Michigan State Police; Leon Cohan, deputy state attorney general; John Martin of Grand Rapids, vice chairman of the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

MEETING IS SET

The first meeting of the study committee is scheduled for next Wednesday. The governor asked the group to make specific recommendations on or before Aug. 1 if they feel such a commission is needed.

"I believe that such a study should precede legislative action in this field," Milliken said.

Sun and Showers Through Saturday

Sunshine and showers are forecast for the Pontiac area through Saturday.

The weatherman predicts today's sunny skies will become partly overcast tonight with temperatures mild. A low in the mid-30s is expected.

Cloudy and a little warmer, with rain likely and a high of 49 to 54, is the forecast for tomorrow. The outlook for Saturday is clearing and turning a little cooler.

Probabilities of precipitation in percent are near zero today, 10 tonight and 60 tomorrow.

Twenty-six was the low temperature before 8 a.m. in downtown Pontiac. The mercury climbed to 44 by 12:30 p.m.

34 Innocent in School Sit-In

By JIM LONG

A Pontiac District Court jury yesterday found 34 persons innocent of criminal trespass during a sit-in at Pontiac Northern High School last month. Cheers and applause filled the courtroom of Judge Cecil McCallum when the jury of four women and two men returned the verdict. Deliberations by the all-white jury took only 50 minutes.

The defendants, most of them black students, were all arrested March 11 while staging a protest in the predominantly white school. Four of those tried were adults, the rest students. In addition, 50 other arrested students were under age 17 and turned over to juvenile authorities.

'DEMANDS IGNORED'

The sit-in was staged over what protesters claim has been a lack of action on the part of the school board in meeting the demands of the Black Student Union.

The organization has asked for better black history courses, more black teachers and administrators, and location of proposed new school on a central site.

Following the three-day trial, the jury had to determine if Michigan's trespass law was applicable since the protesting students were in a public school during regular hours.

Defense attorney William Waterman told the jury in his closing statement that they were dealing with the "simple philosophy of free assembly granted in the Bill of Rights."

Ike Lies at Rest; Abilene Is Quiet

ABILENE, Kan. (U) — The little town of Dwight D. Eisenhower's boyhood and burial is still.

RETRACING ROUTE

Desolate, the widow, who had carried herself with grace and dignity through five wrenching days of national tribute, wearily retraced today the route of the funeral train back to the East.

This time, there was no flag-draped coffin to accompany her in a nearby baggage car. Her companions were family, friends, a few military officers, and a Secret Service bodyguard.

Less than an hour after the tearful widow had left the burial service, the Stars and Stripes folded and carried to her bosom, laughing children were romping in the playground outside the little

'U.S. Preparing' a Limited Pullout if the Talks Fail

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Free Press reported today the Nixon Administration is prepared to withdraw some U.S. troops from Vietnam unilaterally if the Paris peace talks fail.

The paper, a member of Knight Newspapers Inc., said top officials do not consider it out of the question that as many as 50,000 U.S. troops could be returned home by the end of the year.

No timetable, however, has been drawn up.

An unnamed high administration official outlined the essentials of the plan which would turn the war over to the South Vietnamese government in Saigon as soon as possible, the Free Press' Washington staff said.

DECLINE IN TOTAL

The plan, however, does not call for a complete U.S. pullout, but for a decline in the total number of allied troops now in Vietnam.

"The idea is not that the war would end—but rather that the allies would dig in for a long haul," the Free Press said.

"The Communists would be confronted with the prospect of a continuing war, but the U.S. role in combat would gradually diminish," it continued.

No troop reduction would be forthcoming while the current Communist offensive is under way, it said.

'COUPLE OF SWEETENERS'

The story said the United States is ready to add "a couple of sweeteners" in hopes of breaking the current deadlock in the Paris peace talks between the allies and the Communists.

"The administration hopes that a plan for mutual troop withdrawal can be reached. But if no program can be worked out, the United States is prepared to embark on its own plan to lower United States involvement in the war," the article said.

Although officials decline to say so, the Free Press said the plan implies strongly that the United States has more troops in Vietnam now than would be necessary to conduct an aggressive holding action over a long period of time.

It said there would be no demand that South Vietnamese troops replace U.S. troops man-for-man.

There are about 540,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam, about a third of the total allied force.

"Officials believe that the allied side could continue to put up a respectable military showing with a gradually declining U.S. force. The hope of administration officials is to phase out U.S. troops altogether eventually," the newspaper said.

HONG KONG (AP) — Four Americans and nine other persons returned to Hong Kong today on two yachts the Communist Chinese seized seven weeks ago.

Another yacht and two Americans captured with her were kept for further investigation, "Peking announced."

The three yachts and the 15 persons aboard them were captured Feb. 17 while on a holiday cruise from Hong Kong to the Portuguese colony of Macao, 40 miles to the west.

Anticrime Funds Eyed

Crime is one of the major domestic problems of the Nation, but like most other problems — pollution, traffic control, housing or whatever — it is not a crisis of equal proportions in every community. Although crime can and does occur everywhere, it is, essentially, a big-city problem.

Critics are complaining that the Government is ignoring this fact by adopting a scattergun approach in implementing the 1968 Safe Streets Act in the form of "block grants" to state governments. The funds should, it is argued, go directly to the cities where the problem is worst.

The money — $19 million for planning and $29 million for programs based on the planning in this fiscal year — is now flowing, but one group already predicts that it will have no practical effect upon crime because it won't reach high-crime areas.

The National League of Cities studied planning in 31 states and charges that:

- The states have erected a whole new level bureaucracy. In 24 states there are a total of 211 regional crime-control bureaus.

Ohio is cited as an outstandingly bad example. That state has set up 15 regions to plan the fight against crime, with major cities merged with all other governmental units.

- Many state allocation formulas favor rural areas disproportionately. Some of the biggest cities are getting inconsequential sums — for instance, Nashville, $7,000; Tulsa, $12,000; Boston, $20,000.
- The League foresees spending leaning heavily toward items like new patrol cars, while the recruitment of Negro policemen and making more efficient use of present forces or improving police-community relations will be ignored.

It is to be hoped that the critics are premature in their pessimism. The war against crime is too urgent a matter to be permitted to devolve into another one of those Washington-statehouse porkbarrels, where everybody gets a little something but nobody gets as much as he needs.

Quisling Record Replayed

Norway is having a replay of a bad dream—the five-year period (1940-1945) when Nazi Germany occupied the country.

Wounds caused by that experience, never quite healed, have been opened afresh by a book on VIDKUN QUILSLING, the Norwegian turned Nazi puppet whose name has become a modern synonym for traitor.

Over the years since the end of World War II, Norway has been torn by the dispute as to whether QUILSLING and his National Union, the Norwegian Nazi-style party, acted legally as the nation's rulers in the absence of exiled King HAakon VII.

English author Ralph Hewins tries to prove that Quisling was no traitor but a patriot who did the best for his country under the circumstances.

What weight HEWINS' dissertations may have on history's ultimate judgment of QUILSLING no one can say at this point. The Norwegians, however, made their decision immediately upon liberation. They executed QUILSLING as a traitor. Thousands of his cohorts were imprisoned for treason or so severely ostracized by society that many found it impossible to get jobs.

History is not likely to look harshly upon those thousands of Norwegians who spent years in German concentration camps for their eye-for-an-eye vengeance on QUILSLING.

Hourglass a Waiters' Check

A hotel in Debrecen, Hungary, has come up with a novel idea to win friends and influence customers, reports Reuters.

A 10-minute hourglass stands on each table in the hotel restaurant. If a waiter has not taken the order by the time the sand runs out, the customer gets a free meal.

We suspect that the millennium has not yet arrived, however. No mention is made of a limit on the time between the taking of an order and the serving of it.

Baseball Contest Clock Running Out

If potential contestants in The Press Annual Baseball Contest who have not yet submitted their entries think someone is looking over their shoulders, they couldn't be right — or is it "more right?"

Anyhow, the pressure they sense is time (the old gent with the scythe, not the magazine) mutely holding a watch on them as the deadline for contest entries draws inexorably closer. So close, in fact, that as you read this you have less than 96 hours until Monday noon to get yourself in the running for the winner's award of a $500 U.S. Savings Bond.

Okay, Okay. So you've got plenty of time to get your entry in, and who are we to keep nagging you about it?

TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME

Maybe you've got a point there — but don't forget that Hades is reputedly paid with good intentions, and reliable reports indicate that the pedestrian traffic there is the worst anywhere.

Really, we don't know of any contest easier to enter than our annual curtain raiser to the major leagues' baseball season. It's as easy as falling off a log.

Truth to tell, we never felt off a log — in fact, we've never even been on one — so we can't know precisely how easy it is. We can even conceive that if the log were one of California's giant Redwoods, it would be practically impossible to fall off. It wouldn't even surprise us if people had met, got married, set up housekeeping and raised a family on a Redwood log — and never even felt their feet wet.

Well, as Ring Lardner used to say, "All

kiddin' to one side," you really should get your feet wet in this current contest. Just read over the rules carefully, make your two predictions (batting averages) get them down in black and white and headed our way and — presto! — you're a contestant.

You'll hear from us once more — on Saturday. By then, we hope everyone has his or her entry in, and we'll only be talking to ourselves.

CONTEST RULES

1. Anyone, and all members of families (except Press employees and close relatives), are eligible to enter contest. Entrants are limited, however, to one entry each.
2. To enter, submit name and batting average of the AMERICAN League player (and the club with which identified at time of entry) who you think will lead the league as shown by the Associated Press tabulation of batting averages appearing in sports section of the Saturday, April 19, edition of The Press—the closing date of the contest.
3. Entries should be written on postal cards or substitutes and addressed to The Pontiac Press Baseball Contest, P.O. Box 777, Pontiac, Michigan 48056. They may be mailed or deposited in The Press Huron Street drop box.
4. The entrant who correctly picks the leading batter (or comes closest) will receive the winner's award of a $500 U.S. Savings Bond.
5. The deadline for entries is Monday noon, April 7, and they must be received by The Press by that time. Entries received later, even though postmarked prior, will not be considered.
6. Decisions by Pontiac Press judges will be final on all questions related to the contest.

Ike's Trip Home in '52 Recalled

WASHINGTON — This was June 1952, and the general had flown to Abilene, Kansas, to say the least. He was a candidate for the GOP nomination.

The pressure on him had been too much to ignore further. After all, it had started CONSIDINE back in 1945 at Potsdam when President Truman offered the White House to him on a silver platter, as if it were a choice.

Truman was his No. 1 fan, after Mamie. He offered to clear out of his path, quit the biggest job in the world in 1948, see to it that Ike got the Democratic nomination that year, and campaign for him against the Republicans' choice.

Other Democratic overtures came to him while he served at Columbia University and NATO in the late 1940s and early 1950s. And subtle and open GOP bids, too. "Ike could run on either ticket," Mamie wrote a close friend. "It wouldn't matter to him."

NEVER VOTED

That was true. He had never voted. Since George Washington's time there had hardly been an American figure as popular and as free of political ties and debts.

There are several versions of what brought him ideologically to Abilene, which he considered his home town, to declare his Republicanism. John Hay Whitney, Harold Stassen, Henry Cabot Lodge and several others are reputed to have swung him. But it could have been Fred Waring, Tex McCrary and Jacqueline Cochran for that matter.

FLOWN TO PARIS

They were the guiding lights of a huge rally at Madison Square Garden. The films of that overflow crowd and torrential enthusiasm for him were flown to Paris that night by Miss Cochran.

Eisenhower, running NATO's forces at President Truman's request at the time, was reluctant to give the famous aviatrix her allotted half-hour audience. But she raised hell with him, to his surprise and delight. He consented to see the films.

When they were finished, he and his small staff left the room while Miss Cochran sat alone. When he came back, she related later, there were tears in his eyes. He said, "I wish my mother had lived to see that," and gave her the letter of consent to his Republican friends back in New York and Washington.

So he wound up in Abilene, where he was to finish for keeps 17 years later. He made known his intentions on a raw, windy, rainy day and his voice seemed carried away by the elements. But the country got the message, and so did the Taft wing of the GOP.

He was a real political square, and that was his charm. When Ed Murrow rolled a TV camera into the little movie theater where Ike held his first political press conference, growls were heard from the pen-and-press and from Jim Hagerly, who had been assigned to him by Tom Dewey.

Ike was asked to throw Murrow and his infernal machine out. But he shrugged and the televised news conference was born.

As supreme commander and president of Columbia University Ike had never faced tougher questions than "when will we win the war, general?" or "How do you like Lou Little's football team this season?"

Now he was hit with "What's your position on socialized medicine, general?" To that one, he bewilderingly answered, in essence, "I don't like the sound of 'socialized.' Socialism leads down the road to Communism. Communism leads down the road to anarchy." He paused, thought a bit, then added, "But I think every man, woman and child in this country who really needs medical care and can't afford it should get it free."

A forest of pencils froze over paws.

It was on the whole a good trip to Abilene, the year he made his pitch. It showed the country what kind of civilian he was, what sort of President he might be. To those of us who made the trip with him, it showed us a side of his humanity. Looking around the little yard and whitewashed house where he had lived as a boy, he mused, "You know, I didn't know until years later that we had been poor."

Abilene Rites Point Up the 'Real' Eisenhower

WASHINGTON—Four days of mourning and the services at the national capital were in keeping with the two posts Dwight David Eisenhower held — supreme commander of the Allied armies in Europe during World War II and president of the United States. But the fifth day — focused on Abilene, Kan.—perhaps made an even greater impression on the American people.

Many persons may have been aware that Ike came from Kansas, but they didn't learn the background until the obituaries and television specials began to portray the scenes where he spent his early life.

SMALL-TOWN VIEWPOINT

Dwight Eisenhower never left the viewpoint which he acquired in day-by-day experiences as he grew up in a small town and worked so that he could help pay for the education of a brother.

President Nixon, in his eulogy at the Capitol rotunda Sunday, recalled that Gen. Eisenhower, shortly after the war ended in 1945, was honored in London and that in his address he remarked: "I come from the heart of America."

"Perhaps no one sentence," added Mr. Nixon, "could better sum up what Dwight Eisenhower meant to a whole generation of Americans. He did come from the heart of America, not only from its geographical heart, but from its spiritual heart."

'Supreme Court Rulings Need to Be Explained'

A recent letter criticizing your editorials regarding the s. c. mentioned a discussion on channel 56 that apparently satisfactorily explained the s. c. controversial court decisions. I'm sorry I missed the program. I would have liked to hear how they explained the following:

- Under Earl Warren's leadership the court voided the long-standing state laws of 42 states, Communists convicted under them were freed.
- The Government was denied the right to fire employees who were proved to have contributed money and services to Communist organizations.
- Schools and colleges were denied the right to fire teachers who refused to answer questions about their Communist activities.
- On June 25, 1962, stopped prayers and Bible reading in schools and the same day decided that pornographic literature designed to appeal to homosexuals was not obscene and indecent and therefore could not be barred from the U.S. mails.
- Opened up jobs in defense plants to members of Communist action groups.

Keep up your editorials. Someone has to tell it like it is.

Reader Would Be Glad to See Country

I am 24 years old, married and have a little boy. I would gladly give them up to go to Vietnam and give my life to help my country and keep it free from the Communists, but they won't take me because I am a diabetic. If they would, I would be the first one at the draft board and the first one to volunteer for Vietnam.

'Commend Hospital's Ban on Cigarette Sales'

Pontiac General Hospital has done a good thing in prohibiting the sale of cigarettes there. Although this prohibition probably will not have any effect on confirmed smokers, perhaps it will demonstrate to people, particularly young people not yet completely hooked on cigarettes, the importance that the medical profession attaches to preventive as well as therapeutic health care.

Question and Answer

When the Board of Supervisors said we needed more room for the children at Oakland County Children's Center, the plan they laid out was convincing, the money was appropriated and the new Children's Village was built. So now how come the building is closed? I know the buildings are overcrowded and understaffed, is the Director aware that this is dangerous to the children and staff?

MORE THAN ONE TAXPAYER

REPLY

The building is open. It was closed only two days because of a temporary staff emergency.

Question and Answer

Do all schools in the Pontiac system use the same books? For example, would students at Franklin, Whitford, McConnell, Wilson and Bedford be learning from the same books as Emerson, Hawthorne, Owen, Whitfield and Malkin? If not, what is the reasoning behind the differentiation?

MRS. MARGUERITE BRYANT
274 ROCKWELL

REPLY

Texts for basic skills (math, reading, spelling, etc.) are uniform throughout the system, according to Mr. White at the Board office. In social studies and science, a variety of materials are provided for teachers and pupils, and they are encouraged to use a wide selection of these. The choice is theirs.

Stress Value of Wearing Seat Belt

TIA decided to initiate the campaign after a countywide survey of approximately 2,300 persons in cars revealed last summer that only 18 per cent of drivers and 11 per cent of passengers were wearing safety belts. These are the lowest known percentages in the nation, a TIA official said.

Several organizations have pledged support since TIA launched its safety drive Feb. 13 with an over-the-theme of "It's Lock It to Me Time."

Oakland County traffic accidents last year claimed 163 lives and injured approximately 16,500 persons. More than 40 lives could have been saved through the use of seat belts, traffic experts say.

"Belts help prevent the second collision (with the dashboard or windshield)," Madsen said. "They keep you in place, it's as simple as that."

Oakland County's road commission and board of auditors have instructed drivers of county-owned vehicles to wear seat belts at all times. Twenty-five county Jaycee chapters have designated April 12 Jaycee Week. Let's go to Me Day in Oakland County.

In addition, TIA is distributing 100,000 safety belt brochures and 10,000 bumper stickers. The drive is being further promoted through newspapers, radio, television and billboards.

A second survey is planned this summer followed by a third about April 1970, to determine the permanence of the program.

"Our immediate objective is to bring about increased use

"No one realizes the value of a seat belt until it is too late," a grieving mother recently wrote the Traffic Improvement Association (TIA) of Oakland County.

"Our 19-year-old daughter is in White Chapel Cemetery as a result of an auto accident in July 1967. Less than 10 miles from home on a sparsely traveled road at a speed reported to be not over 45 miles an hour," she continued.

"The car she was a passenger in hit a stationary object and she hit the windshield. Cause of death — head and internal injuries."

"She was not wearing a seat belt. She should have been. I know it would have saved her life, and such a valuable life it was."

"Say it over and over. Wear your seat belt."

TIA is making every effort to reduce similar fatalities with an extensive campaign to promote the use of seat belts.

Maverick '5'

Exits Texas With Victory

It wasn't what you'd call a tearful farewell as the Houston Mavericks closed their two years of American Basketball Association action in Texas.

The Mavericks, who announced earlier this week that they will move to North Carolina next year, attracted 89 fans to their final home game Wednesday night and celebrated with a 149-132 romp over the New York Nets.

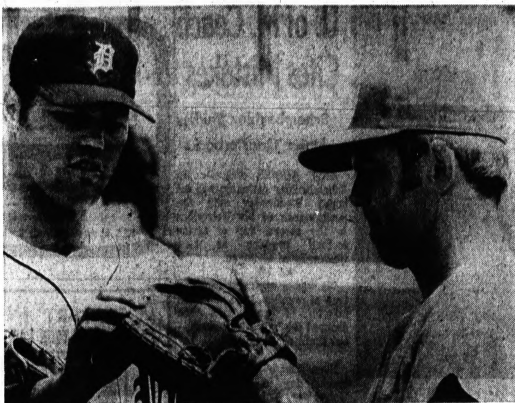

In other games, Kentucky whacked Indiana 122-127, and Miami downed Dallas 106-99.

Seven Houston players hit double figures with Stew Johnson's 34 leading the record scoring spurge. Walt Simon had 36 for the Nets including 19 in the first period.

Louie Dampier dropped in 33 points to carry Kentucky past Indiana while Mel Daniels had 32 for the Pacers, who already have clinched the Eastern Division championship.

In spite of the victory, Kentucky was eliminated from the battle for second place in the East when Miami beat Dallas. Don Freeman's 37 points led the Floridians, who clinched second place and begin the playoffs against fourth-place Minnesota next Monday.

Indiana will play Kentucky in the playoffs.

Big Alcindor—a $1 Million Buck

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — The bidding war for the services of UCLA's Lew Alcindor has officially ended with the 7-foot-1½ center signing a Milwaukee Bucks contract and announcing he'll change his style of play.

With contentment etched on his face, a poised Alcindor autographed a document Wednesday that would make him a millionaire and, reportedly, a part owner in the National Basketball Association expansion team.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed by John Erickson, the Bucks' vice president and general manager.

The signing came less than two weeks after Lew had led UCLA to a history-making third straight national collegiate title. He did it with what his college Coach John Wooden called "a most unselfish attitude." Will that style of play change?

EARLY WORKOUTS

"I have a few ideas of my own about playing in the pros," said Alcindor.

"I'm going to work out on my own this summer—before I go to camp. I've got a few things to work on, things I haven't tried before."

He said some of the centers in the league use moves toward the basket that are "too rudimentary" and he said he would try to be a little more of a "freelancer." He indicated that variety would be the spice of his game.

Larry Costello, Milwaukee's first-year coach, said he would play the talented giant "at the low post, to take advantage of his talents there. But he's a team player and I think variety is important."

"So we'll use him on the high post, low post and try to create some pick-and-roll situations."

Lew said he was happy that now "I can play the game the way it was originally thought to be played," referring to the numerous stall games he faced at UCLA.

Pro Dick Weber Sizzles With 223 Pace in Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Dick Weber of St. Louis, who has won more money than any other professional bowler, took command of the PBA's $100,000 Firestone Open Wednesday with a sizzling 223 average for 16 games.

Weber amassed a 3572 total in two eight-game qualifying rounds. He was in second place going into Wednesday night's eight games, trailing Earl Johnson of Minneapolis by 10 pins, mainly because of a perfect game thrown by Johnson.

In second place, 26 pins back, was Johnny Guenther of Fresno, Calif. Guenther moved up from 10th place on the strength of a 1800 block, biggest of the day.

Jim Godman, 23-year-old bowler from Hayward, Calif., was running third 10 pins behind Guenther.

CHAMP FADES
Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., the 1968 Bowler-of-the-Year who has been returning to form in recent weeks, moved into seventh place, while the defending Firestone champion, Dave Davis of Phoenix, Ariz., was holding down 24th position.

Weber, the owner of 18 PBA titles and the only professional bowler to have earned $300,000 in official winnings, never has captured the Firestone crown.

The 48-man field bowls eight more games Thursday afternoon before the field is cut in half for match-game play Thursday night and Friday afternoon and night.

The five high players meet Saturday afternoon in the nationally televised final for the championship and the $25,000 first prize.
