MILLIKEN RECOMMENDS 1972-73 HIGHER-EDUCATION BUDGET INCREASE

Governor Milliken has recommended that the Legislature approve a $53 million increase in the 1972-73 budget allocation for the 13 state-supported colleges and universities.

Slicing out better than one-third of the total education budget--$374 million--for higher education, the Governor's proposals reflect increased enrollments, higher faculty salaries, and building costs.

Last year O.U. was authorized $9,315,000 for General Operating (G.O.) Budget, but received nothing for Capital Outlay (construction).

This year, the Governor has recommended $10,752,000 for G.O. Budget and an additional $1,270,500 for construction.

CONSUMER EDUCATION STUDY BEGINS

Commuter Services is initiating a Consumer Education Study to analyze the current consumer trends in the vicinity of the University. The results of the study will be made public in order to inform the students on how to get the most for their money.

A sample group, representative of the total student body, will be involved in an extensive week-long survey of overall expenses. In addition, the students involved in the study will do a survey using their friends as models.

One of the functions of the Commuter Services Office is to provide a current listing of available housing in the area. However, those students who have never lived on their own may not have considered what moving into an apartment means: furniture, utilities, deposit, transportation, contracts and other extra expenses.

The task of the Commuter Services Office is to construct effective consumer models and to make the information available to students who are contemplating this big move.

Included in the survey will be an examination of area supermarkets---prices, quality and courtesy.

RECRUITERS ON CAMPUS

Representatives of the following employers will be interviewing on campus this week: Wednesday, January 26--Xerox Corporation; Thursday, January 27--Michigan Consolidated Gas Company; Friday, January 28--Great Lakes Teacher Corps. OAKLAND'S OLDEST UNDERGRAD

On Monday, January 10, the Detroit News ran a story on "Oakland U.'s Oldest Undergrad".

Harry Schucart, 70, was interviewed just prior to his birthday party which he gave for his friends and associates.

The O.U. wishes to thank the News for permission to reprint the article.

"PHILOSOPHY STUDENT IS 70"
by Lou Mieczko
News Staff Writer

Harry Schucart, of Southfield, is finally fulfilling a promise he made to himself 55 years ago.

Schucart, a semiretired official for the Vlasic Food Products Co., is now in his fourth year of study at Oakland University majoring in philosophy.

At age 70, he also is the oldest undergraduate student currently enrolled at the school.

"I've been an unhappy guy ever since I left school when I was 15 to work," said Schucart, who last week celebrated his birthday with a party involving some of his professors and classmates at the Rochester campus.

"I always promised myself a chance for the intellectual life, and now I'm taking it."

Schucart, who takes courses during the spring and summer and resides in Texas during the winter, has now completed about half the credit requirements for his bachelor's degree.

He said he was apprehensive at first about taking courses with students about a half-century younger in age but that the generation gap never materialized.

HARRY SCHUCART'S 70th birthday was attended by 40-plus well-wishers including (left) History Professor Leo Gerulaitis, President Donald O'Dowd, and Helen Schwartz, English Instructor. Happy Birthday, Harry.

"The students accept me on a first name basis, and I get along great with them," he said. "I've stayed away from giving advice, though. I've got three grandchildren for that."

Schucart, who did receive a high school diploma through night school and a degree in business at St. Louis University, said the big difference between the younger students and himself was in basic philosophy on life.

"Most of the students I know here tend to isolate each subject they study," he explained. "My basic philosophy is looking at the unity of everything--the wholeness of what's going on in the world. I've noticed that today's student has a lacking in history and that they don't feel that problems today are part of a long historical process."

Schucart said he considered himself a liberal, but admitted that many ideas he thought were liberal are now considered to be conservative.

"I guess I'm an old FDR (Franklin D. Roosevelt) liberal in my thinking," Schucart said. "When I was still in St. Louis, I remember defending Roosevelt's choice of Hugo Black for the U.S. Supreme Court."

"Most everyone thought Black would be a racist judge, but I argued that he was just a product of his environment and would change. I came out ahead on that prediction."

Schucart, a part-time public relations man for Vlasic, started his own pickle business in St. Louis in 1927.

He came to Detroit in 1951 and sold his firm to Vlasic in 1966.

"That's when I decided to go back to school," he said.

Schucart predicts that in the future more senior citizens and other adults will use their free time in the college class room.

"If a person enjoys reading and is interested in acquiring more knowledge, it's never too late to enroll," he said. "Now with a lot of companies switching to the three-day weekend, it seems that more persons will have the time to go back to school."

Schucart emphasized, however, that classes must be a labor of love.

"There's no sense going to school at my age unless you love wisdom and knowledge," he said.

"I met a fellow recently near my age, and I asked him if he wanted to do something now that he didn't do during his youth.

"The guy said no. I felt sorry for him."
