

ARTHUR F. BURNS

Fed Chief Quits; Nixon Aide Named to Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today he will nominate White House aide Arthur F. Burns to replace William McChesney Martin Jr., as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Burns, a 65-year-old economist born in Austria, is to take over the top job in the nation's central bank next Jan. 31 when Martin's term expires.

Martin, who is 62, has served on the Federal Reserve Board since 1951. A former president of the New York Stock Exchange, Martin long has been regarded in financial circles around the globe as a symbol of sound money.

Burns, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers during much of the Eisenhower administration, has been serving since January as counselor to Nixon.

PLANS NOT FIRM

White House press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he did not know at this point whether another counselor would be named or whether the position, created by Nixon, would be dispensed with.

As counselor, Burns has been a key presidential adviser in the formulation of domestic policy, taking an active interest in economic matters.

Formally, Burns is being nominated to be a member of the Federal Reserve Board but Nixon said following expected confirmation by the Senate he would designate Burns as chairman.

The Federal Reserve top job pays $42,500 a year.

Born in Stanislaus, Austria, Burns was educated at Columbia University where he received a Doctor of Philosophy degree.

First disclosure of the changeover came from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Proxmire issued a statement commenting on the resignation before it had been officially announced.

"The nation is losing its most distinguished financial leader in the resignation of Chairman William McChesney Martin from the Federal Reserve Board," Proxmire's statement said.

In the same statement, Proxmire said Nixon "has made an excellent appointment" to succeed Martin by choosing Burns.

While Burns and Martin are both regarded as conservatives, congressional sources close to monetary policy said there might be substantial differences in detail in the policies Burns would advocate.

Economist Is Bipartisan Choice

MSU Picks Black President

CLIFTON R. WHARTON

From Local and Wire Reports

A black economist from New York to-day was named the 14th president of Michigan State University.

Clifton R. Wharton Jr., 42, thus became the first black president of a major American university.

Wharton's selection came on a bipartisan 5-3 vote, with the board's three Republican members joining with two Democrats to provide the five vote majority.

Wharton, contacted by the board in New York by phone, immediately accepted the appointment, effective Jan. 2.

"I'm deeply honored," Wharton said when reached at his office in New York City.

"It will be a privilege for me to be come part of a great university," Wharton said he is a registered Democrat.

The resolution to hire Wharton said he has "the unusual combination of insight, ability and leadership necessary in the next president of Michigan State University."

STRENUOUS OBJECTION

The election came over the strenuous objection of board member Frank Hartman, who said the Democratic party had used a "double-barreled shotgun" to secure Wharton's election as president.

Wharton was one of four men originally nominated for the post by a committee made up of faculty members, students and alumni.

The two Democrats who voted to hire Wharton were Board Chairman Don Stevens of Okemos and Blanche Martin of East Lansing, the board's only black member.

JOINED BY 3 REPUBLICANS

They were joined by Republicans Frank Merriman of Deckerville, Stephen S. Nisbet of Fremont and Kenneth W. Thompson of East Lansing.

Hartman said the board took formal votes on two other candidates last night before taking a tentative vote on Wharton.

He said a proposal to name former Gov. G. Mennen Williams to the post lost 3-5 and that a proposal to name university secretary Jack Breslin to the post also lost on a 3-5 vote.

OU Acts to Cut Ties With MSU

Oakland University today took a first step toward severing all ties with Michigan State University.

A resolution asking that the 19-year old university be granted its independence was presented to the Michigan State University Board of Trustees today by OU Chancellor Durward B. Varner.

On the recommendation of Varner the trustees agreed to form a study committee and return with a recommendation on the proposal in 60 days.

The proposal most likely would be the major item of business at the December meeting of the board.

The resolution recommending that OU disassociate itself from MSU was prepared by a steering committee of the Oakland University Senate and approved yesterday.

Varner said he realized that there were many ramifications that would be connected with such a move, and then added that he foresaw no legal problems that could not be solved.

Varner's reference was to the fact that the property on which the university is located was a gift of late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson.

MORNING AFTER THE NIGHT BEFORE — New Yorkers are back at the old grid today amidst Wall Street's litter — mute reminder of one heck of a celebration yesterday. The National League Mets took four games in a row to become baseball's champs, and Gotham went wild. The ticker-tape blizzard was "even better than for the (Apollo 11) astronauts," one secretary said. "It's beautiful." Meanwhile, in Baltimore, an Oriole fan said, "Let's talk about something else." ## Protest Hits School Board

By MARY SUNDSTROM

About three-quarters of last night's capacity audience of about 140 at the Pontiac Board of Education meeting walked out after ripping up copies of a proposed amendment to the district's policy on student suspensions.

The proposed amendment would add "disrupting the normal functioning of school" to a list of 18 reasons for suspending or closing classes to students.

Those who walked out apparently objected to a proposal that stated that when a student has been suspended or had his classes closed, he "may be required to sign an agreement regarding his future behavior in school or school-sponsored activities."

The proposal also outlined disrupting the normal functioning of school as "the act of creating a disturbance, engaging in a demonstration or promoting disorder which disrupts school."

CONDITIONS LISTED

Further, it would include but not be limited to "the failure of a student to do the following when requested by a teacher or administrator:

- "Cease blocking the entrance to a portion of the school grounds, building or any room or hallway in the school building.
- "Go to an assigned classroom or schedule station.
- "Leave the school building or grounds.
- "Stop making loud noises — singing, chanting, cheering — which are not a part of school-sponsored activities."

Those who walked of the board meeting last night, mostly blacks, began singing as they stood in the hallway. After singing for about 15 minutes, most left the building.

The proposal also would authorize school officials to have students arrested if they violate a city ordinance or state law when participating in a student disturbance or disorder.

The board did not act on the amendment, according to board policy. The amendment may, however, come up for action at the next regular meeting Nov. 6.

From the audience, Mrs. Marie Johnson, assistant director of the Pontiac Black Cultural Center, suggested that a student board decide on the disposition of disruptive students instead of having civil law enforcement.

Students Rewarded for SF State Stands?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Teachers at San Francisco State College have been accused of giving inflated grades to students according to whether they supported or opposed campus unrest last year.

The campus newspaper Phoenix said a computer study showed that more than 75 per cent of all grades given in the semester last spring were As and Bs, averaging 3.22 on a scale rating 4 as an A. This compared with the previous record high average of 2.57 in 1964.

"Grades were given by a number of professors as rewards for striking or staying away from classes," declared Dr. Frederick Terrien, chairman of the Academic Senate, composed of 42 of the school's 1,300 full-and part-time instructors.

But students and professors who supported a campus strike declared inflated grades were given to students who sided with President S. I. Hayakawa. He took over the 18,000-student campus last November and called police to restore order after four months of student and teacher strikes.

Port Huron-Detroit: 'Development Corridor'

By ED BLUNDEN

PORT HURON — This is the city of the future — a twin city to Detroit — in the studies released here yesterday by one of the world's most renowned urban consultants.

Dr. Constantinos A. Doxiadis of Athens, Greece, presented detailed projection of expected growth for the urban Detroit area as well as some of his personal philosophy on cities.

His ideas call for the decentralization of cities to units of 50,000.

The study, "The Urban Detroit Area Research Project," was carried out by Doxiadis' firm in conjunction with Wayne State University and is commissioned by the Detroit Edison Co.

FOR PLANNING USE

The power firm will use the material in its future planning.

The study is the third of three parts to be contained in three volumes to be available to communities to aid their planning. The final volume will be published sometime next year.

The concept of Port Huron-Detroit as a twin city with a corridor of development reaching out in a northeasterly direction from Detroit is in contrast to concepts contained in a similar study.

This is the Transportation and Land Use Study (TALUS) released last year. TALUS projected a main corridor of growth from Detroit heading northwest, through Pontiac.

BETWEEN CORRIDOR

In the Doxiadis project the Pontiac area and northern Oakland County would lie between the corridor of development to Port Huron and one descending from Bay City towards Toledo.

Questioned about this following yesterday's presentation, Doxiadis said the two studies were not necessarily in conflict, but that the TALUS projections were based on what had happened thus far.

He said his study was "more comprehensive." He also pointed out that the TALUS study was projected toward 1985 and the Edison project toward 2000.

Doxiadis described the twin-city concept as "the computer's answer" to the question of the future development.

BREAKDOWN BY COMMUNITY

The study contains a community-by-community breakdown of expected growth along industrial, commercial and residential lines.

Doxiadis sees it as a valuable tool for planners in all the communities involved.

"I want them to see it, study it, and then the dialogue will begin," he said.

Future growth and the creation of new and larger cities will only recreate problems of the past and present without a basic change in the concept of a city, in Doxiadis view.

'ONGOING PROCESS'

He looks upon the problems of race conflict and blight as a natural and ongoing process built into the system.

No city administration, no matter how organized, can possibly deal with millions of people, he contends.

Doxiadis said all the great cities of the past—Athens, Florence, Paris, Jerusalem—had about 50,000 population.

"Pericles, walking from his home to the Parthenon, would have met from 130 to 170 persons," he said, pointing out this gave Pericles the type of insight into what people desired to rule Athens wisely.

NO PHYSICAL CHANGES

The restructuring of metropolitan area government's into his ideal size would not require physical changes. Each unit could be the local government, handling affairs in a way suitable to the population.

Supplementing the local government would be a regional government. Doxiadis pointed to the region's current six-county Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) as the nucleus of this idea. Above all would be the national government, much as it presently exists. Both the upper layers of government would be free of having to solve purely local problems.

Doxiadis has little respect for "urban renewal." He said, "Let us keep what is good and be reluctant to demolish."

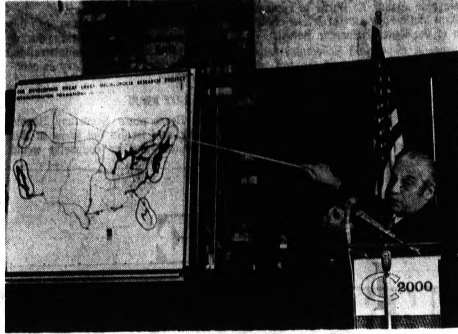

In his study are no clearance programs. Even in downtown Detroit his projections are based on retention of most of the large existing structures.

VITAL FACTOR

In urban renewal projects, the planners did not take into account a vital factor, Doxiadis pointed out—the cleared land remains vacant for several years. This creates a vacuum which damages the entire city and creates an artificial situation, he said.

Doxiadis is also an enemy of parking lots and claimed they are ruining the city of Detroit.

Nothing in his plan calls for any increase in the level of federal aid or tax rates, he said.

Firm Named Bloomfield Hills Counsel

BLOOMFIELD HILLS — The law firm of Beier, Hewlett and O'Connell in Pontiac has been appointed legal counsel for the city.

The Pontiac firm replaces David Pence, who resigned recently.

The appointment is effective immediately.

The City Commission is planning a retirement dinner for Police Chief Walter Suiter, Fire Chief Raymond Walker and City Manager Elmer Kiphart, all of whom are retiring from their posts on Nov. 1.

Three men will be honored at a dinner at the Kingsley Inn on Woodward Nov. 4. Tickets are available at the City clerk Robert Sadler's office in City Hall.

The City Commission also announced that as of Jan. 1 the city will no longer issue drivers' licenses for township residents.

Only residents of Bloomfield Hills will be serviced by the local driver's license bureau after Jan. 1.

BIRMINGHAM — All schools in the Birmingham Public School District were closed today for a teacher and administrator in-service training program.

The day-long program will cover all subject areas plus workshops for kindergarten teachers, guidance counselors and librarians.

The training program will cover areas ranging from language arts and mathematics to trends in physical education instruction.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP — Edward L. Tappert, of 1081 Rock Spring, a career agent in the Detroit Metropolitan Area for American United Life Insurance Co., is winner of the National Quality Award for the 14th time.

The award is presented by the National Association of Life Underwriters and the Life Insurance Agency Management Association.

Say Waterford Schools Officials

Millage, Staff Keys to Full Days

By DICK ROBINSON

Waterford Township school officials say they hope to restore full-day classes in January if a millage increase produces passes and 130 teachers are recruited.

Meantime, their battle against a court order parents obtained to restore full days is scheduled to come before the Michigan Supreme Court Nov. 4.

Preliminary plans to put pupils in grades one through three back on full days from half-day sessions and secondary students on a six-hour day from five hours are complete, Roy Alexander, assistant superintendent for instruction, said at the board of education meeting last night.

All that needs to be done is to find

76 elementary and 54 secondary school teachers, according to Alexander.

SUCCESS DOUBTFUL

Schools officials said they aren't sure they can find the needed teachers by the first of the year.

One problem is that there is a limited number of qualified teachers available and those available will be inexperienced teachers just graduating from college, explained acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen.

Recruitment efforts at 60 colleges in the midwest have so far produced 170 inquiries, including 80 social study teachers, 30 English, 37 elementary and 20 uncertified teachers and no industrial arts candidates.

"It is a highly abnormal situation do this retooling during the school year when we are just trying to keep the school program going," Pagen commented.

ONE AT A TIME

Elementary pupils will be taken off half days one grade at a time, according to Alexander.

Fourth-grade pupils at Four Towns, Leggett, Donelson and Houghton Schools will be returned to full days first, he said. They were put on half days with all the first, second and third graders.

Then the third graders will go back to full days, followed by the second and first.

Restoring full-day programs in the secondary schools is more difficult since the programs must be completely rescheduled, Alexander said. He outlined these changes:

• Junior high schools — one hour will be added in the math-science block in grade 7 and language arts — social studies block in grade 8 and one additional elective in grade 9.

• Senior high schools — one elective hour will be added to grades 10 and 11 and in grade 12 when desired or needed.

In related matters, Pagen said the Michigan Supreme Court is scheduled to begin deliberation on Nov. 4 on whether financially-troubled Waterford district can legally operate half-day classes to avoid deficit financing.

The high court decided to take the Waterford appeal from the Michigan Court of Appeals, along with a similar one by Livonia schools.

Psychiatrist Faces Charges: 'Sex Therapy,' 2 Abortions

Three warrants, two of them charging illegal abortions, were to be served this noon against a 40-year-old Farmington Township psychiatrist.

County Prosecutor Thomas Plunkett, said Dr. Norbert O. Anderson of 29700 Orchard Lake, Farmington Township, will be charged in one warrant with twice engaging in sexual intercourse under the pretext of medical treatment and in two other warrants with performing abortions.

He was to be arraigned this afternoon before District Judge Michael Hand of Farmington Township.

Plunkett said the complainant for all three warrants is a 29-year-old Livonia woman, Alice MacDonald. Mrs. MacDonald, a divorcee, claims the sexual intercourse took place between April and December of 1968. The abortions allegedly were performed in June 1968 and February 1969.

Mrs. MacDonald, according to the prosecutor, was not divorced when she first began seeing Anderson for treatment of alleged marital problems.

Plunkett said his office has been investigating the case since last February with the cooperation of the Farmington Township Police Department and the State Board of Registry of Medicine.

2 Staff Photogs to Get Awards

Pontiac Press photographers Edward R. Noble and Ron Unternahrer will receive certificates for their entries, judged among the best in the 29th annual news pictures contest sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

The photos they submitted were among 42 selected from more than 2,000 entries from newspapers belonging to the Inland Daily Press Association.

NOBLE UNTERNABRER

In color competition, Unternahrer's photos entitled "Rebuilt Twice" placed second. His entry was a Spectator page in The Press Home Section.

Noble placed third for a black-and-white picture series entitled "Fading Heritage," in competition for staff photographers on newspapers of 50,000 circulation or more. Noble's pictures were of a deserted farm.

Awards are to be distributed Monday at the annual meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association in Chicago.

2nd Red Spaceship Back to Earth Safely

MOSCOW (U) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 8.

Moscow Radio said Soyuz 7, carrying Anatoly Filipchenko, Vladimir Volkov and Viktor Gorbatko, landed in the Soviet Union. It was in orbit nearly five days.

Still flying in space aboard Soyuz 8 were veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Shatalov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The other ship in this biggest-ever mission, Soyuz 6, was brought to earth yesterday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov aboard.

TO LAND TOMORROW

Soyuz 8 is expected to land tomorrow. Soyuz 7 landed 96 miles northwest of Karaganda, in Kazakhstan, only 15 miles from the site where Soyuz 6 came down. The broadcast said search parties reached the spacecraft quickly and the three cosmonauts "feel excellent."

The mission of Soyuz 7 was declared "successfully completed," as Soyuz 6's flight had been 24 hours earlier.

The only pioneering aspect of the flight announced so far has been the testing by Soyuz 6 of new automatic welding equipment to determine the feasibility of its use in the construction in space of a large orbiting station or platform, the goal of the current Soviet space program.

Reporting on the experiment, Dr. Nikolai Kazakov wrote in Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star): "For the first time

Crowd Protests School Proposal

more about having to go before a board of their peers than about appearing in court.

Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer said he felt that the schools have an obligation to work with the student body.

"I also think there is real merit in the school district taking a firm stand on student disorders," he added.

A black parent, Eddie Fletcher, said he was concerned that parents and Director of School-Community and Human Relations John Perdue were not included in the formulation of the amendment.

Whitmer said the policy amendment was drawn up quickly by Assistant Supt. William Lacy, Pupil Personnel Services Director Arnold Embree and himself in order to have it prepared for discussion at last night's meeting.

He said Perdue was out of town the last two days of last week when the policy was made up.

Seek Farmington Twp., Villages Incorporation

Cityhood Papers' Validity Is Questioned

By LOIS FRIEDLAND

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — Doubts are surfacing about the validity of the incorporation papers filed recently.

The papers filed with the State Boundaries Commission request incorporation of the entire township, including the villages of Woodcreek Farms and Quakertown, under the name of Farmington Hills.

A state commission spokesman today said, "We think it may be illegal to incorporate a township and two incorporated villages, but we still have to check carefully."

The answer is in the Home Rule Act, originally passed in 1909 and since amended frequently. The act delineates the general powers of cities and villages. Other public acts passed in 1955 and amended since—dealing with incorporation procedures and general powers of cities and villages—may also be consulted.

'REJECTION PROBABLE'

"If the incorporation papers prove invalid, we would probably reject the petition," said the spokesman.

The Boundaries Commission does have the right to extend or revise boundaries listed in incorporation papers. But how much revising is possible is highly questionable, according to the spokesman.

If the commission tries to revise the incorporation papers by taking out a whole village—then the matter could be taken to court by objectors, according to the commission representative. He explained that the laws were very loosely written and possibly subject to a variety of interpretations.

If the petition is rejected, papers for annexation of the southern half of the township to the city would become active. This petition was filed at 8:20 a.m. Monday, 43 minutes after the incorporation papers were filed.

FURTHER CLOUDING

The two petitions have further clouded the air in the Farmington area, already made murky by the pro and con forces speaking on the upcoming consolidation vote.

Voters in the four municipalities—the city and township of Farmington and the two villages—go to the polls Nov. 4 to decide whether or not to approve a commission to draw up a city charter for consolidation.

Rumors floating through the area apparently convinced many township residents that the city was planning to annex much of the township if the consolidation failed.

City residents apparently became convinced that the township would attempt to incorporate if consolidation failed, leaving Farmington as a city completely enclosed within another city's boundaries.

RUSH THROUGH AREAS

Last weekend, petition promoters rushed through their respective areas to get the proper number of signatures—from one per cent of the people in the area to be annexed or incorporated. The petitions were filed Monday.

Assuming that the incorporation papers are rejected, and consolidation and annexation both fail; backers of annexation will have another chance if they file another petition.

The new petition, however, would probably have to exclude one of the two villages. This would create definite and hitherto unknown problems, according to James Hyde, executive secretary of the Boundaries Commission.

If the township incorporated except for one village, that village could not vote in any national or state elections—or for school taxes. Currently these tasks are handled by the township government.

ALTERNATES

The left-out village would then have three alternatives: The residents could file to become a township instead of a village; file to change their status to that of a fifth class city, which could raise taxes considerably; or the village could request annexation by the surrounding or neighboring cities.

Quakertown would be completely surrounded by Farmington Hills—if the proposed incorporation should ever pass—while Woodcreek Farms would border Franklin, Southfield and Farmington Hills.

If the proposed annexation should pass, other problems would arise. The annexation would bring the industrial section of the township (including the Thomson Brown and Star Cutter industrial parks and the industrial belt along Eight Mile) under the city's jurisdiction. The northern half of the township would be left without their major taxpayers.

"The petitions filed are merely harbingers of what political and legal chaos would probably follow if the consolidation fails. Another consolidation attempt could not be made for two more years."

BEST ANSWER?

Hyde noted, "By the time the population densities have built up to the point that consolidation is feasible—and in many cases may be the best answer—the animosities between the governmental units and the parochialism of the people make it virtually impossible to achieve. Hopefully this situation will not exist in Farmington."

He pointed out several advantages in consolidation: "There are probably few existing village or city charters which could not stand rewriting in view of current magnification of municipal problems."

"Through consolidation, an area and its residents have an opportunity to not only rewrite and possibly modernize existing charters but to improve all units of government."

"Therefore, the people have a direct voice in the writing of the type of charter they would like to live under," Hyde explained.

Not if Moratorium Day Is Indication

Education: Meeting Needs?

By NED ADAMSON

A statement often repeated by today's politicians, community leaders and educators goes something like this:

"The keynote to a better tomorrow, social change, unity, etc., will depend on the ability of today's youth to execute that change."

Bearing this thought in mind, it is interesting to examine what degree of enlightenment to day's youth has regarding the problems and issues in the world around him.

Is he being educated in a manner that will make him possibly more perceptive and sensitive about his environment?

The fact that few school districts in Oakland County took the initiative to conduct special informative and educational activities on Wednesday, the day of the nationwide Vietnam Moratorium observance, prompts a pessimistic view regarding an answer to that question.

Groves in Birmingham and Lahser in Bloomfield Hills were the only two schools in the Pontiac area known to have provided a daylong opportunity for students to gain broader insight and perspective in all facets of opinion regarding the Vietnam situation.

Lahser and Groves provided a full program of activities ranging from symposiums, seminars, lectures, and group discussions. Speakers representing all sides of opinion participated.

Elbert Pack, principal at Lahser, explained that his school's program was not developed as a platform to generate dissent. "We were simply trying to do our job and present an educational program for the students on this particular issue."

'CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM'

"And we are certainly not urging people to engage in dissent, though there will be persons who interpret it in that manner. It was felt that by making a constructive program available, chances for dissent would actually be decreased since the students had the opportunity to listen to a varied set of views on the Vietnam matter right in school," Pack explained.

The program at Groves was conducted in similar fashion and also was prompted by student and faculty interest in presenting a program that would serve as an educational vehicle.

Reasons given in area high schools for no formal M-Day programs ranged from "We're too busy with homeworking to monkey around with the Vietnam question" to policy statements prohibiting the discussion of politics in the schools.

AN OBSTACLE?

Many administrators, when asked about plans for Moratorium Day and student response and reaction, responded as though a student demonstration or request to hold some organized activity represented an obstacle to the day's activity.

There should never be a fear of thinking, and yet one cannot help but think that administrators actually worry about the possibility of a student raising a question about the status quo.

It is perfectly possible that if students and faculty had shown more interest about Moratorium Day, more organized activities might have been held.

The fact there wasn't also makes one wonder if students actually are thinking more critically about their environment in classes conducive to such thought such as government studies, sociology and English.

Levin Sees Defeat of Plan to Abolish State Ed Board

TROY — The minority leader of the Michigan Senate predicted defeat last night for Gov. Milliken's proposal to abolish the State Board of Education and "centralize" the state's educational responsibility.

"The governor's proposal would produce a penny's worth of additional leadership in return for the sacrifice of a pound of responsiveness to the public," said Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, in an address yesterday before the Troy Democratic Club.

Milliken called for elimination of the elected board—bogged down for months in infighting—and the superintendency and seeks an education department chief who would be appointed by him.

State Hits Harder at Errant Drivers

LANSING (AP) — The Secretary of State's Office reports it is cracking down on errant drivers at a record rate this year.

Through September, the department said, more than 88,000 drivers have been subjected to some type of discipline including license cancellation, suspension, revocation, denial, restriction or referral to a county driver-training safety school.

Secretary of State James Hare estimated the total of such actions would amount to more than 120,000 this year, double last year's 60,000.

Most of the increase Hare said, was due to failure to answer summonses. This accounted for the suspension of nearly 36,000 drivers.

"I don't think that's much of a bargain," Levin said.

"While I agree with Gov. Milliken that there must be a greater leadership role for the state in education, and that stronger leadership is impossible with the present framework of fragmented authority, the degree of centralization which he proposes is not justified," Levin said.

"It's unfortunate that, at a time when we are struggling to make many of the institutions of our society relate more directly to the public will, the governor is proposing a highly centralized framework that could easily become completely insulated from interaction with the public."

Levin suggested that, as an alternative to Milliken's proposal, the superintendent might be selected by an appointed state board, with "direct links both to educators and to the general public."

Levin said he believed that, "while the state board has had its problems," elementary and secondary education needs its own separate spokesman at the state level.

EDUCATION FIELD

"If such a spokesman is needed in any field," he said, "it is needed in education, which takes up a vast part of state funds and administration which affects most of the children in this state."

Levin questioned whether the governor's plan would remove the state education system from politics, as Milliken says.

"It would be difficult to devise a system which is more likely to be subject to political whims and exigencies than one hanging upon a gubernatorially appointed superintendent, who appoints all regional superintendents," Levin said.

Meanwhile, the House Republican floor

CHALLENGED

Rep. William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, challenged Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, to produce "constructive alternatives" to Milliken's proposals.

Montgomery blasted the governor's program as "chicken" and "a con game on the people" earlier this week.

Hampton in turn charged that Montgomery's "concern is clearly not in the interests of our children, but strictly political."

"Our governor has given us an innovative and challenging program to propel Michigan's school structure into the future," Hampton said.

Senator Vows to Smoke Out Facts on Effect of a Hike in Cigarette Tax

LANSING (UPI) — Senate Taxation Committee Chairman Harry DeMaso said he will not release Gov. William G. Milliken's bill to hike the cigarette tax by five cents from his committee "until we find out what the score is on the bootlegging issue."

DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, said two public hearings on the bill—proposed to pay part of the cost of Milliken's comprehensive educational reform program—show a need for more work.

He also said a trip to New York is needed to investigate reported problems the state has had since it increased the smoking levy in 1965.

"We are now in the best competitive position we could be in," DeMaso said after a hearing yesterday. "We could lose our shirts if we increase the tax."

RARELY SUCCESSFUL

If DeMaso's committee doesn't report out the bill, Milliken's legislative troops will have to resort to a Senate floor motion to pry the bill from committee—a move that is rarely successful.

DeMaso said it will be sometime in November before his committee will decide.

Morris Weintraub, managing director of the Wholesale Tobacco Distributors of New York and the Cigarette Merchants Association, told DeMaso's five-member committee yesterday that increasing the tax would "open Pandora's box" and "create a Frankenstein."

When New York increased the tax five cents per package "they created a Frankenstein in the form of a new business for organized crime, a business that now nets the underworld about $30 million a year and wreaks havoc with both the state's tobacco industry in terms of reduced sales, and the state's tax department in terms of decreased revenues," Weintraub said.

'BIT-TIME RACKET'

Cigarette bootlegging—selling

cigarettes brought in from a low-tax state—has turned into a big-time racket, Weintraub said.

Today more than 1 million illegal packages of cigarettes are sold daily in New York, resulting in an annual loss to the state of $50 million, he said.

Milliken claims booting the tax will bring in an additional $250 million to the state treasury.

Gino Fontana, one of Michigan's largest cigarette vending machine owners, said the increase will contribute to the already high rate of cigarette stealing.

"I lose up to $2,500 a month in cigarettes and money from stealing now," Fontana said.

Milliken said his committee tentatively plans to visit New York City the weekend of Nov. 1.

Meeting Called to Settle Avon Library Problems

ROCHESTER — County Prosecutor Thomas Plunkett reported today he has called a meeting of city, township and library officials for 4 p.m. Wednesday at his office in an effort to straighten out ownership problems with the Avon Township Free Public Library.

Plunkett's invitation to Rochester Mayor Roy Rewold, Avon Township Supervisor Cyril Miller and Library Board President Howard L. McGregor Jr. includes a letter from Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley which, according to Plunkett, "raises certain grave questions concerning past and contemplated actions by officials of the Avon Township Library."

Plunkett said the meeting would be an effort to straighten out misunderstandings, but that lack of cooperation by local officials would force the county and state to take legal steps.

The attorney general's informal opinion written in regard to library ownership questions the policy of library funds being placed within the township's general fund. It also criticizes any attempt to divide library assets between township and city as a result of the city's recent city incorporation vote.

Kelley's opinion called for public accountability of library funds. Plunkett said the funds must either be treated as belonging to a charitable trust or to a public state agency and reports made accordingly.

NAVAL CONTRACT — The Williams Research Corp. of Walled Lake has been awarded a $1.5-million contract by the U.S. Navy to supply turbojet engines for recoverable aerial targets. Congressman Jack McDonald (left), R-19th District, announced the contract award this week. Sam Williams, president of the 250-employee firm, said his company will build more than 1,000 of the engines.

Nixon Widens Narcotics War

Pressing France to Curb Illicit Factories

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen have been told the Nixon administration is widening the war on narcotics by putting pressure on France to clamp down on clandestine drug factories.

Diplomatic relations may be altered considerably if France doesn't respond, Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst told about 40 congressmen and congressional aides, according to several who attended the Thursday meeting.

Kleindienst repeated the administration's contention that much of the hard drugs smuggled into the United States through Mexico comes from illicit drug processors in France.

The closed-door meeting was called to answer questions for congressmen concerned about repercussions from Operation Intercept, a crackdown on smuggling along the U.S.-Mexico border. The administration decided last week to ease tough border inspections after Mexican officials agreed to step up efforts to nip narcotics traffic before it reaches the United States.

HIGHEST PRIORITY

Kleindienst reportedly said the administration is giving the highest priority to stopping the flow of hard drugs into the United States. He said only so much can be accomplished by patrolling the borders, and that cooperation from Mexico and France is needed.

Rep. Richard White, D-Tex., set up Thursday's meeting and said Kleindienst promised another briefing after an Oct. 27 top level meeting of U.S. and Mexican officials in Mexico City.

"It's my impression the attorney general's office, and to some extent the administration, got a little bruised over this," White said, referring to Operation Intercept.

The border searches by U.S. officials brought outcries from both sides of the border but especially in Mexico where tourist business was curtailed.

ACCOMPLISHED PURPOSE

"To some extent I think they accomplished their purpose, if that was to impress upon the Mexico government the gravity of the drug problem," White said. "But the diplomatic aspects had some shortcomings." Kleindienst ran into sharp questioning during the 45-minute session.

The administration official reportedly vowed to keep pressure on the border indefinitely, but he also announced searches would be modified to let traffic flow more freely between the two nations. During Operation Intercept lines of cars backed up at the border, touching off long delays and bitter complaints.

Sources said Kleindienst expressed hope of getting funds to hire 1,000 more customs officers to keep a close monitor on the 2,000-mile-long border.

U.P. Will Get U.S. Funds

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's Upper Peninsula will receive $344,519 in federal economic opportunity grants, Gov. William Milliken announced Thursday.

The grants include: $63,181 to the Baraga-Houghton-Keweenaw Community Action Agency, Inc.; $71,207 to the Gogebic-Ontonagon Community Action Agency; $103,191 to the Alger-Marquette Community Action Board; and $106,960 to the Dickinson-Iron County Community Action Agency.

Funds are for program administration and community organization work. The money for Dickinson-Iron County also is earmarked for use in a dental care program.

Illegal Political Aid Charged to 4 Firms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted four corporations—including the giant Home Savings & Loan Association—on charges of making $50,024 in illegal contributions to a presidential candidate in 1964, when Lyndon B. Johnson defeated Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

The candidate was not named in the indictments returned Thursday, nor was any individual cited as a defendant.

The U.S. Corrupt Practices Act prohibits business firms and labor unions from making political contributions in federal elections.

The indictments also allege that two of the corporations fraudulently deducted a total of $177,467 from income tax returns during the years 1963 through 1965.

'LARGEST IN WORLD'

Home Savings, described as the world's largest savings and loan institution, and the other indicted firms were operated by Howard F. Ahmanson, who died last year.

In addition to Home Savings, the indicted organizations are Continental Savings & Loan, Arrowhead Savings & Loan, and Galaxy Inc., an advertising agency now known as Howfield Inc.

The jury action listed the contributions—all made in late 1964—as: Home Savings $41,321; Galaxy, Inc., $4,251; and Arrowhead and Continental Savings $1,225 each.

Home Savings also is charged with making false and fraudulent advertising deductions from tax returns of $59,214 in 1964 and $13,869 in 1965. Galaxy Inc. is accused of claiming false and fraudulent business deductions of $24,445 for 1963, $8,079 for 1964 and $71,860 for 1965.

All-White Jury Acquits Detroit Patrolman

MASON (UPI) — An all-white jury deliberated nearly 90 minutes yesterday before finding Detroit Patrolman Leo T. Haidys Jr., 35, innocent of charges he beat a Negro youth at the Veterans Memorial in Detroit nearly a year ago.

The trial is the first to grow out of a scuffle between off-duty white policemen and Negro youths attending separate dances at the building in Detroit Nov. 1, 1968.

Shell Shocks Youngster in Orion Twp.

An Orion Township child received the surprise of his 3-year-old life last night when a "toy" shell from his toy rifle went through the wall.

According to Pontiac State Police, Kurt, the son of Brian Glover of 2493 Flintbridge, Orion Township, loaded a 20-gauge shotgun shell into his rifle thinking it was just another "toy."

When he pulled the trigger, the Johnny Eagle Skeeet Shooter, a plastic gun, went off firing the charge through the bedroom wall.

Kurt was terrified but not injured when the gun went off, police reported.

The youngster apparently found the shell in his parent's bedroom while playing and was able to fit it into his toy shotgun, according to police.

Police said that the father reported the incident to warn other parents of possible dangers.

Yanks to Stay in Postwar Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of U.S. troops probably will remain in Vietnam to advise and train South Vietnamese forces even after the war stops, according to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Laird's remarks to newsmen yesterday sounded like a return to the U.S. advisory effort maintained in South Vietnam under President John F. Kennedy.

This was the first time Laird has spoken publicly of administration thinking along these lines, and it is at odds with demands for a total and swift U.S. withdrawal.

At an impromptu news conference Laird refused to be specific, but said such a "residual force" of trainers and advisers would be a little bigger than the 6,000 or 7,000 men he said were in Vietnam during the Kennedy administration.

TOOK LEADING ROLL
The U.S. advisory force grew to about 16,000 men by the time Kennedy was assassinated in November 1963. President Lyndon B. Johnson sent American troops to Vietnam on a major scale in 1965 and the fighting strength rose to 543,500 after the United States assumed the leading combat role.

Asked how long the United States would keep an advisory force in Vietnam, Laird replied that "I wouldn't want to make a prediction."

However, when reporters noted the United States still has 55,000 men in Korea 16 years after the Korean War and about 320,000 in Europe 24 years after World War II, Laird commented:

"I would not plan for anything like that."

Haidys, a former tackle on Michigan State University's Rose Bowl teams in 1963 and 1966, told the court Wednesday he never saw his alleged victim, Thomas S. Evans III, 20, or any of Evans' friends during the evening.

Haidys was attending a dance sponsored by the Detroit Police Officers Wives Association and the youths a church dance on a different floor of the building. Several youths testified earlier in the trial that the police attacked them and a shot was fired. Haidys was later charged with felonious assault.

Lippitt said after the trial he believed "discrepancies" in prosecution testimony resulted in the verdict.

Haidys said he would apply for reinstatement to the department. Several other policemen have been suspended.

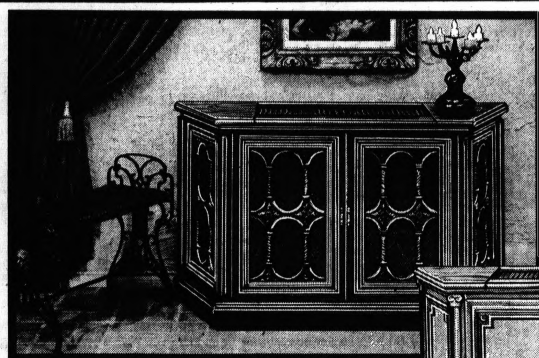

Among the character witnesses appearing for the defense was Haidys' MSU teammate Earl Morrill, now quarterback for the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

Fowler an Enigma

As a past supporter of Commissioner T. WARREN FOWLER, we cannot reconcile his strong and bitter opposition to Harambee. He has an obligation to his City and to his District people to promote prosperity and social betterment in this community.

FOWLER

With the exception of one developer, there has been a regrettable lack of action in Pontiac to solve its shortage of low-income housing. Harambee, Inc., is the one group that has showed enthusiasm, initiative and determination to meet this need.

A Swahili term, "Let us work together," with significant local application, Harambee was conceived, appraised and engineered by blacks as a nonprofit organization to build new housing and upgrade old in the south-southwest section of the city.

At a recent City Commission meeting, Commissioner FOWLER gave a lengthy and rambling statement of his negative position concerning a public hearing on action necessary to rezone the property so essential to the success of Harambee. Commissioner FOWLER severely criticized and berated The Pontiac Press for supporting the project and General Motors Corp. for its generous financial assistance. Both were "The Establishment" whose motives were, by implication, unfriendly to the best interests of the citizenry.

This newspaper has always stood for sound progress in whatever form it appears. It can be said with assurance that General Motors is deeply concerned with the welfare of its base cities and of its residents.

Commissioner Fowler, can as much be said of you?

Seat Belt Styles Confusing

An estimated 2,000 lives were saved in traffic accidents in 1968 because of safety belts, reports the National Highway Safety Bureau.

Yet despite the obvious benefits, millions of motorists, something like World War I pilots who disdained the use of parachutes, persist in refusing to utilize this simplest and most important safety device on their cars, outside of its brakes.

One reason may be, of course, that putting on the belts is not always so simple a matter. Sorting out, straightening out and fastening together all the gear, especially since shoulder harnesses have been added, can be exasperating. At least, it is as good an excuse as any for pushing the whole thing aside.

Moreover, every automaker has a different arrangement of buckles and straps, a confusion that may particularly discourage their use by people who do much driving of rental cars.

Recognizing at long last the need to standardize safety belts, the bureau proposes amending the Federal safety code to require standard buckle release methods, a provision for ready identification of corresponding tongues and buckles and combination adjustment and webbing storage devices. An effective date not later than July 1, 1971, "is being considered."

Thus common sense may come to automobile safety belts some six years after they were first made mandatory on all new cars and some 60 years after automobile accidents began assuming significance as a method of limiting the population.

Virginia Dem Hopeful Not a Byrd Man

RICHMOND, Va. (NEA) — William C. Battle, Democratic nominee for governor of Virginia, is clearly a breakaway from the once all-powerful machine of the late Sen. Harry Byrd.

BISSOT

Yet the Republicans are trying to whip saw Battle as both a kind of sanitized rear-guard Byrd man and a too-modern Democrat who has friendly ties with "the Kennedys" — an association which stirs quick anger in many southern conservatives.

Battle, at 48 a veteran of more than two years as U.S. ambassador to Australia but a man with no experience in public office, helped to knock out Fred Pollard, full-fledged Byrd candidate, in Virginia's first 1969 primary.

Later on, however, Battle won a hotly fought runoff from fiery liberal "Henry Howell with the necessary support of the Byrd forces, led by Gov. Mills Godwin and the younger Sen. Harry Byrd himself.

INDEPENDENCE

Even as some of this backing comes to him in the present race against Republican Linwood Holton, Battle tries to lure much of the rival Howell support and the younger Sen. Harry Byrd himself.

There can be no doubt that he is a different cut of Democrat from the standard Byrd image.

He is a symbol, indeed, of how far Virginia has moved from the forefront of "massive resistance" and other stubbornly ingenious challenges to racial desegregation.

Those legal fights were all lost. Virginians wearied of the turmoil. Richmond business leaders told Byrd-sponsored governors to cease disruptive combat.

HARDLY A RIPPLE

This year huge school desegregation advances took place with hardly a public murmur.

Battle, like Holton, offers strong voluntarily given assurances of a better break for blacks in the future.

Despite anticipated defections in Richmond, the Democratic nominee might get 75 to 80 per cent of the 1969 black vote over-all.

Battle openly and proudly acknowledges long friendship with the late President John F. Kennedy and others in the family.

DOESN'T THINK SO

"If being the Kennedys' friend is bad, then, by George, it's bad," says Battle. "But I don't think it is."

Unlike many a leading Democrat in the Deep South and even some parts of the Outer South, Battle does not shrink, either, from identity with the national Democratic party.

Nevertheless, no prominent Democrats like Hubert Humphrey or Sens. Edmund Muskie and George McGovern are scheduled to come into Virginia to speak for him.

"What I say about it," Battle tells visitors, "is that Virginia has to get back into the mainstream if we are to make our influence felt in the Democratic party."

Return of Student Sanity Seen

WASHINGTON — There are already stirrings of trouble on the college campuses, but the signs seem to point to a partial return of sanity among America's students.

And surprisingly enough a few university administrators are mustering up courage to slap collegiate rioters on the wrist. Far too many are still finding excuses for what is politely called "student unrest," but new troubles may give them pause.

One of the major factors in this year's campus scene will be the split within Students for a Democratic Society.

On the one hand, there is the more numerous "anarchist" group. On the other, there is the far better organized Progressive-Labor group, which derives its philosophy and tactics from the communism of Mao Tse-tung. Both factions are convinced that only by violence and provocation will they "radicalize" the vast, uncommitted student body.

If heads are smashed in a campus melee, they argue, then those who stood on the sidelines will join in.

Now the SDS factions are faced by hard facts. Their leaders frankly complain that they haven't been able to think up any good issues recently.

Unless he is long on hair and short on brains, the average student can find little justification for getting himself bloodied and jeopardizing his future over a controversy on cafeteria rules.

'TERRIBLE AGE'

He can be aroused by talk about running the universities without the help of administrators who have passed the age of 30. But since the big men in the SDS are also approaching that terrible age they have begun to play down the 30 syndrome.

What then is there to riot about? There are some who are still raring to go for the sheer physical pleasure of body-to-body contact — a substitute for football.

But by and large, most students are interested in getting their degrees, as painlessly as possible, in turning on (whether with whiskey or pot), and in enjoying certain coeducational pursuits which have occupied the collegiate mind since the Middle Ages.

It may be that, if not this year then next, the majority of students will lose patience with the handful of "troublemakers" who have had their way on the campus for the past year. SDS is already considered a drag by many.

College men will look for other fun and games when it becomes less the "let's thing to tar-and-feather the dean."

All of this may be optimistic prattle. The pundits who see it all as a reflection of a deep-seated illness in American society may be right. The next few months will tell.

Story of the Galumphus Has a Painful Moral

Once upon a time, there was a huge, wonderful, lovely beast called a Galumphus.

One day, it stuck its little toe into the jaws of a tiny, dreadful, wicked creature called a Kratchsnatch "to prevent the evil Kratchsnatch from biting my friends and admirers," Galumphus said. "Once it sees how big I am, it will let go and mend its wicked ways."

But the Kratchsnatch simply smiled inscrutably. And it didn't let go.

UPPITY UPSTART

"Hah!" growled the Galumphus. "I shall teach this uppity upstart a thing or three." And it stuck in another toe. And another. And another. Pretty soon, its whole foot was in the jaws of the Kratchsnatch.

Years passed. Nobody talked about teaching a lesson any more. The only question, really, was how to extricate the Galumphus's foot.

"Pull it out! Pull it out!" shouted the young people. "Don't accept defeat!" cried the old people.

At last, they elected a head Galumphus lover who said he had a secret plan for saving the foot.

'VERY SIMPLE'

"It's very simple," he said. And he oh-so-carefully pulled the Galumphus's little toe out.

Oddly enough, the Kratchsnatch simply smiled inscrutably and went right on chewing.

So, it being the only secret plan he had, the head Galumphus lover withdrew another toe the following year. And another toe the year after that, etc.

Eventually, of course, the whole foot was free. But it took many years of pain and anguish. And by then, all the Galumphus lovers were filled with hatred and bitterness and the Galumphus was in a sorry way.

Moral: If you must accept defeat in a painful situation sooner or later, the sooner the better.

Readers' Opinions Vary on Vietnam Protesters

I have one son who went to this war and one son going for his physical. Another son has been in the army for nine years and is still persisting in going to a war. I have two more who may have to go. To those who rebel, I have five fine boys — each my pride and joy — but if I had five others they would march beside their brothers. America, here are my boys!

FREIDA M. HANSEN
4938 Lakeborn, Davisburg

I was shocked at people's concern for the moratorium and the lives of our boys. Even those who believed it was wrong did nothing. Too bad our boys don't have the choice to do the same. In Lakeville, Leonard and Oxford I could find nothing, and in Lake Orion I noticed flags flying.

My prayers have been for those who do nothing to change all the corruption in government and elsewhere. Changes cannot be made by one or two. I am disappointed. I wonder what our young men feel. May I never have to give another to the draft for this passive society. We need parents with a slogan such as some college students were using. "I Give A D... about My Fellow Men." We're a very poor example. A MOTHER FOR PEACE

To the demonstrators or agitators, whichever you are, have you forgotten or ever heard of "United we stand, divided we fall?" We loyal Americans will stand by our President regardless of his politics. We stood by Kennedy and Johnson when they sent the boys to Vietnam. Our President, in his quiet, dignified way, is bringing this awful situation to a satisfactory end. But it takes time. It is much easier to get into such a mess than to get out of it.

If you agitators don't like our form of government, it is very simple for you to go to Russia or China. We have our liberties because of our laws. We Americans want to decide what we have, not to have someone tell us what we must not have. How many who are protesting have automobiles of their own, and how many in the Communist countries have such an item?

DORA D. WHITE
4882 Elizabeth Lake Rd.

Regarding the moratorium demonstrations, maybe the war in Vietnam will still continue, but perhaps the people in this country will be united in stopping the war instead of fighting among themselves. Perhaps this outside foe will thrust us together in a brotherhood of desire for the same thing.

In these times we need not only peace in the physical sense, but peace in our innermost hearts. We need peace to give to those who cannot find their own.

'We Should Vote on Pontiac Housing Code'

Seems that the most important material thing to a person is his home. If seven men can demand how to run our homes under the new Pontiac housing code, where has our right to vote gone? If we buy our homes and pay our taxes, we should get to vote on this, even if it means a special election. This is a most important issue.

Comments on Waterford Recreation Needs

Last January Waterford Township's planning consultant prepared a capital improvement program recommending how the Township's money might be spent over the next six years in the form of needed physical improvements. One of the proposals is the expenditure of $300,000 for recreation land purchases.

The recreation study indicated that, except in the area of community parks, Waterford is well endowed with park land. There were no suggestions in the recreation study concerning the actual location and amount of land that might be purchased. Since the ultimate decision rests with the Township Board concerning how money available to the Township is spent, this recreation study furnishes the board members with an up-to-date inventory of available land as a basis to consider the appropriation of money for the purchase of additional park land.

For those who advocate the expansion of Waterford's police department, the capital improvement program proposes an expenditure of almost twice as much money for a new public safety building to house Waterford's police department, as for recreation land acquisition.

'Postal Carrier Was Shown Thoughtfulness'

Some people are still thoughtful. Recently when the weatherman crossed up our postal carriers by predicting sunshine, a sudden downpour caught many of them unprepared. Dan Veazey was driving down Cherokee and noticed a carrier attempting to complete his route in spite of the rain. He stopped and loaned the public servant his spare raincoat and the carrier completed his rounds drier and warmed up by the spirit which prompted this act.

GERALD D. K.

(A) That's right. It's been reported that Armstrong's seniority and GS-16 civil service grade will net him $27,401 this year; Aldrin's Air Force base pay, flight pay, quarters allowance and subsistence allowance will amount to $18,662-56; Collins' Air Force pay and allowance will be $17,147.76.

Nobel Winner 'Hard Worker'

EAST LANSING (UPI) — The first Michigan State University graduate to receive a Nobel Prize was "one of these boys who spend most of his time on the job," a former professor of his recalls.

The former student, Dr. Alfred Day Hershey, was named yesterday as one of three Americans who will receive this year's Nobel Prize for Medicine.

Dr. Walter Mallmann, a former teacher of Hershey's, said Hershey could best be described as a "good student" during his days at MSU.

"He was in the top of the group in the classes I had him in," Mallmann recalled. "Many of those students have been very successful."

WORKED NIGHTS

Mallmann said Hershey was "one of those students who liked to work nights."

"That's a good characteristic," he explained, "because then you don't have an interruption in your lab work. Our students still work nights to a large extent. You can think better then."

Hershey did his doctoral thesis under Dr. I. Forest Huddleson, considered by some to have been the most prominent scientist to teach at MSU in the past 50 years.

"We all feel very pleased to have the Nobel Prize awarded to a man who was a student completely trained here," Mallmann said. "It's kind of nice to know the school has trained one of them."

Hershey received his bachelor's degree from MSU in 1930 and his doctorate in 1934.

10 N. Viet Fishermen to Be Freed by U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — The United States has agreed in secret negotiations with Hanoi to release 10 North Vietnamese fishermen rescued by U.S. warships in international waters of North Vietnam last July, official sources reported today.

They said an announcement is expected later from the State Department in Washington.

The informants added the men will be released Monday as a gesture of good will that officials hope will lead to the release of more U.S. airmen held prisoner in North Vietnam.

Five of the North Vietnamese fishermen were sighted by a U.S. helicopter in a sampan bobbing in heavy seas 25 miles northeast of the North Vietnamese coastal city of Dong Hoi July 29. The helicopter dropped a life raft for the men, and the U.S. destroyer Renshaw picked them up. Next day the five other men were rescued from three rafts adrift 70 miles north of Dong Hoi. The U.S. destroyer Meredith picked them up.

PLANS FOR RETURN

It was not immediately clear how the fishermen would be returned. But presumably they will be taken from Da Nang where they have been held aboard a U.S. 7th Fleet transport to a point off the coast of North Vietnam, then put ashore in a U.S. Navy whaleboat.

This was the operation used Oct. 21, 1968, when 14 North Vietnamese seamen were released during a 36-hour local cease-fire in a 300 square-mile area along the coast of North Vietnam. This was during a time when U.S. bombers and warships were attacking the southern panhandle of North Vietnam prior to the Nov. 1 bombing halt.

Autopsy Bid Still Fought by Kopechnes

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UPI) — Attorneys for the parents of Mary Jo Kopechne contended yesterday that performing an autopsy on the girl's body three months after her death could add "new doubts and suspicions" to the case.

In a legal brief filed here, the lawyers for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopechne also argued an autopsy would be "grossly offensive" to the parents and would be "prejudicial to their wishes, sensitivities, health and well-being."

The brief was filed in preparation for a hearing next Monday on a Massachusetts request for the autopsy. Miss Kopechne died when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's car plunged off a bridge at Chappaquiddick Island, Mass., on July 18.

The Kopechnes sought to block the hearing on the request. But Judge Bernard C. Krominski rejected their pleas a second time last Friday, say-

Chet's Final 'Good Night' as Newsmen Likely in '70

NEW YORK (AP) — After more than 13 years of saying "Good night, David," Chet Huntley is expected to leave NBC News next year, the New York Times says.

Huntley, who has paired with David Brinkley in one of television's best-known news teams, probably will leave between February and June, the Times said today. But NBC News President Reuben Frank said a more realistic date would be after the 1970 midyear elections.

Huntley, 57, said his departure is contingent upon completion of arrangements for a $15-million resort area he plans to develop in his native Montana.

"It has to come to an end sometime. Certainly there's no panic about it," Huntley told the Times. "There's no crunch now. But I don't intend to keel over in this office."

Brinkley was quoted as saying, "I'd stay a while if they asked me."

The pair was teamed in October 1956 and the "Good night, Chet... Good night, David," closing soon became familiar to many households.

Killer: Schoolchildren Are Next

Want to Gun Them Down, Letter to SF Paper Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "The killer who calls himself 'Zodiac' and boasts of five victims now writes that he wants to add to his death list by halting a school bus so he can 'pick off the kiddies as they come bouncing out.'"

After his latest letter was sent to the San Francisco Chronicle, police issued special instructions Thursday to school bus drivers to keep buses moving "at all costs" in event of an attack, to instruct passengers to lie on the floor, and to attract attention with their horns and lights.

"Schoolchildren make nice targets," he wrote, "I think I shall wipe out a school bus some morning. Just shoot out the front tire and then pick off the kiddies as they come bouncing out."

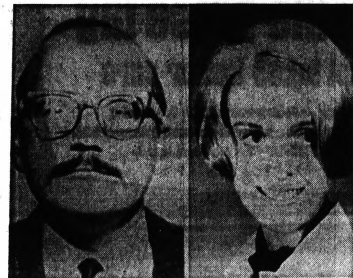

"I am admittedly apprehensive about another murder occurring in the near future," said Capt. Martin Lee, chief of the city's detectives. He has called the Zodiac killer "an extremely dangerous psychopath."

KILLINGS BOASTED

Letters to newspapers, marked with a cross-hair symbol of a rifle sight, have boasted of killing a city taxi driver, Paul Stine, 29, here last Saturday and of four earlier weekend slayings, all in San Francisco Bay area lovers lanes.

A deciphered cryptogram sent to three newspapers in this area said: "I like killing people because it is so much fun it is more fun than killing wild game in the forest because man is the most dangerous animal of all..."

Other victims were Darlene E. Ferrin, 22, killed last July 4 near Vallejo; Betty Lou Jensen, 16, and David Faraday, 17, both of Vallejo, Dec. 20; and Cecelia Ann Shepard, 22, Sept. 27, near Napa. The male escorts of Miss Ferrin and Miss Shepard were wounded.

A SHOT IN THE DARK — Richard Curnock has a bit of trouble handing Barbara Bryne a drink in a darkened apartment, part of the action in "Black Comedy," the second of two one-act plays which opened the new season at Meadow Brook Theatre last night. Jeremy Rowe is unconcerned about it all.

Meadow Brook Theatre Review

Satiric Openers Superb

By DON BRAUNAGEL
Meadow Brook Theatre has opened its new season with two superb one-act plays that are alike, yet vastly different.

Both — Edward Albee's "The American Dream" and Peter Shaffer's "Black Comedy" — are satiric and darkly humorous, but the similarity ends there.

Albee's play is full of the murky symbolism and acid-tipped lines for which he is famous, while Shaffer's relies heavily on a gimmick and slapstick antics. The two styles fit well together to provide three hours of lively theater.

In "American Dream," Mommy, Daddy and Grandma live together in an apartment. Mommy is domineering, Daddy is emasculated (possibly literally — you can't be sure with Albee) and Grandma is cantankerous and wise.

CUT DEEPLY

Her lines about the people and the way they're treated cut deeply into the heart of our youth-oriented society: "Old people are obscene," "Old people grow deaf because they're tired of hearing the nasty things said to them," "People won't say goodbye to old people. They think it scares them."

Along comes Mrs. Barker, the women's club phony with a pinched smile and over-the-top voice — the type that worries over whether a hat's color is wheat or beige. "Oh, what a dreadful apartment," she gushes, drawing a pleased "Thank you" from Mommy.

When offered a drink or smoke, Mrs. Barker declines, with the explanation that she's a Professional Woman. But she does agree to cross her legs and to take off her dress.

ALL, BUT NOTHING

The last character to show up is a young man, handsome and well-built — the American Dream, Grandma dubs him. He appears to have everything. But, he tells us, he is emotionless — he cannot feel anything. The American Dream?

This play, like most of Albee's, is heavy and full of symbols. It can be enjoyed solely for its witty language, but you'll get out of it what you put into it. The complex characterizations allow each person in the audience to devise his own explanations, based on his unique experiences and perception.

"Black Comedy" is less of a strain on the intellect. Its gimmick is reverse lighting. The characters come out in the dark, then a power failure plunges the stage into total lightness. Some of the humor stems from the groping about in the "darkness," but there are some digs at British society, chiefly in the broad way some characters are played.

A young sculptor, Brindley, and his fatuous fiancée appear, and Bennett Avery met the challenge. This excellent double feature will continue at Meadow Brook until Nov. 2, after which it moves to the Detroit Institute of Arts for a week.

Road Agency Has Mediator In on Talks

A state mediator was called yesterday to sit in on negotiations, between the Oakland County Road Commission and Road employees, represented by Metropolitan Council No. 23 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Bargaining has been under way since late May. The 2½ year contract, which was to expire last June 30, has been extended into the negotiation period, spokesmen said.

County Highway Commissioner Paul Van Roekel said about 20 bargaining sessions have been conducted, but for the past two or three months money has been the hang-up. He said primary differences existed in the areas of wages, pensions and double time.

Van Roekel said the mediator's attendance yesterday was agreed upon by both sides.

Council 23 represents some 300 road commission employees. Another 150 salaried employees are not represented.

Cigarette manufacturing is highly automated, employing only about 36,000 people.

Youth Is Held in Southfield Man's Death

DETROIT (AP) — A Southfield insurance man was shot fatally Thursday night, minutes after he was kidnapped from an inner city gasoline station at Twelfth Street and Glynn Court. Police later arrested a 17-year-old youth who, they said, fit the description of one of the two involved in the kidnapping.

Charles H. Manser, 40, a supervisor for Aetna Insurance Co., was found about 8 p.m. in his car in a parking lot of Metropolitan Hospital. He died two hours later at Receiving Hospital of a gunshot wound in the head.

Police said they are not certain whether Manser was robbed. His wallet, containing $13 was on his person. But police said he may have been carrying other money, such as insurance collections.

Allen Colbert, a gasoline station attendant, said he had taken Manser's credit card into the station when he saw two youths approach Manser, who was standing outside his car.

Police said Colbert told them the two forced Manser into his car and drove away. Metropolitan Hospital is six blocks from the station.

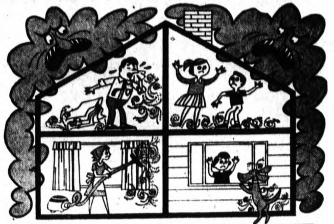

Police said witnesses at the hospital saw two youths leave the car after it was parked, with one walking away and one through a hospital door, apparently only to walk out another.

Persons passing the car noticed a man slumped over in the front seat and bleeding from the head and notified a guard who called police.

Former Premier Cool to Politics

Running for Safe Seat
in French Parliament

COUVECIENNES, France (AP) — As a candidate for parliament Maurice Couve de Murville is a hesitant handshaker, bad at small talk and cool to the limits of courtesy. The former foreign minister and premier is not a man to rouse a crowd, to inspire passion.

This was clear at an election rally here this week. The warmest moment came at the beginning of his set speech, when he announced from the stage: "To give a character of familiarity to this meeting, I shall remain seated."

For all his lack of flair, the experts think Couve de Murville will be able to make what he calls "my return to public life" starting with an election Sunday.

Jean-Paul Palewski, a Gaullist deputy from a neighboring town, says "Couve should have no trouble."

SAFE SEAT

This district is a safe seat, made vacant by Pierre Clément, a loyal Gaullist who resigned. The area is solidly upper middle class and has consistently voted Gaullist. Thus it should not balk at electing one of De Gaulle's most faithful collaborators.

Though Couve de Murville never mentions it in public, the politicians expect him to be De Gaulle's spokesman in the National Assembly, a sort of watchdog to maintain Gaullist orthodoxy.

Opposing him in the special election are five candidates. They may deprive him of a first-round majority and force him into a runoff Oct. 26, but his opponents don't seem capable of blocking his comeback. They include Michel Rocard, national secretary of the splinter United Socialist party; Marcel Debarge, an orthodox Socialist; Pierre Sonnevill, a Centrist; and Camille Brisas, a "local action" hopeful.

Finally, there is Jean Cuguen, a perennial Communist candidate who complains of Couve de Murville's "flashy electoral propaganda," presumably because Couve's election posters show him smiling.

CALM REPLIES

He didn't smile at the Louve-ciennes rally this week. Never raising his voice, he calmly replied to predictable questions about his earlier stewardship of French diplomacy, his less brilliant stint as premier and his reasons for running this district. Then came an unpredictable question, and Couve de Murville showed embarrassment.

"It seems," the man began, "that the government's five-year plan has fallen two years behind in its provisions for treating the handicapped. There are between 3,000 and 3,500 handicapped people in this district, and I would like to know what you count on doing."

The candidate started out on safe ground, saying: "This is indeed a question that becomes more and more preoccupying to the extent that the handicapped constitute a larger proportion of the total population."

'NATIONAL PROBLEM'

He added, "It is a national problem. When I was in the government, the government was preoccupied. We must develop our struggle, I mean care. We must develop our care for these people."

Then he blurted, "I don't know the situation in this district."

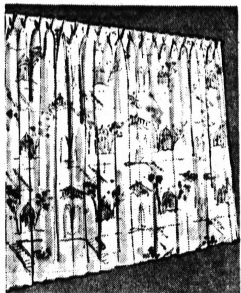

Several people shouted, "It's your district."

Couve de Murville bent forward a little and said softly into the microphone, "No it's not. Not yet."

O'Neil Hits School-Reform Plan

Expressing dissatisfaction with the quality of public education, she noted that she had taken her children out of public schools years ago. She suggested citizens be given some voice as to where their money goes for education.

Parochial came under fire from several speakers, but discussion on the topic was limited after the committee chairman, Rep. George Montgomery, pointed out that it had already been the subject of public hearings and that most legislators had made up their minds.

Supt. John Blackhall Smith of the Birmingham School District, representing Michigan School Administrators, said the organization doesn't agree with all the proposals, but sees it as "one giant" step toward long overdue reform.

He expressed concern that the governor's proposal doesn't take into consideration school construction, "possibly an oversight but one that means much to local districts," he said.

FEARS FOR QUALITY

Directing his comments to his own school district, Smith said that, on the basis of what has been proposed, it appears that the quality of education in Birmingham might suffer.

"I believe the standards would be lowered in Birmingham by the state-aid package," he said.

R. A. Ambrose, a member of the board of directors of the Michigan School Boards Association and the Oakland School Board, voiced approval of a number of proposals, saying, however, that it appeared to him the plan doesn't give sufficient property tax relief.

He also objected to placing intermediate school district staff members on civil service. He said this would lead to mediocrity.

The hearing was one in a series being conducted by the taxation and education committees to sound out public feeling.

Supervisors Hold Up County Budget OK

Action on the Oakland County state funds be made.

Nov. 6. Members of the board of supervisors, unable to agree on details, determined in party caucuses yesterday to withhold approval on all but two items.

State statutes require consideration of salary raises for elected officials before the end of the month — if any were to be made — and the county's marine safety program required prompt approval to allow a timely application for state aid.

Supervisors approved a raise from $24,000 to $26,000 for Prosecuting Attorney Thomas Plunkett and raises from $19,500 to $21,000 for County Clerk-Register of Deeds Lynn Allen, County Treasurer Hugh Dehany, Drain Commissioner Daniel Barry and Sheriff Frank Irons.

Voting against approval were Democrats Carl O'Brien and George Grba, both of Pontiac, and Thomas O'Donoghue of Ferndale. They contended raises should not be allowed during an elected official's term of office.

William L. Mainland, D-Milford, chairman of the personnel practices committee, which recommended the raises, said the jobs were viewed in relation to other department heads' jobs and his committee had seen no reason to penalize elected officials.

The marine safety program, dependent on the state for two-thirds of its $82,997 yearly budget, was approved in order that prompt application for

2 State Osteopaths Indicted

From Our News Wires

DETROIT — Two osteopaths were indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury for allegedly performing on patents on dates not been performed on the date and his debt-consolidation firm, Debt Aid Inc., on 12 counts of mail fraud. The indictments were reported living in Memphis, Tenn., and Dr. Donald Lieberwitz of Southfield.

The indictment said that Dr. allegedly submitted reports of year was $1,04, they said. The grand jury also indicted a Russo and Liberwitz filed services and complete. Federal Judge Lawrence Gubow was scheduled to arraign the two doctors within 10 days. Neither of the defendants was in custody.

The 27-page indictment charged that between May 19, 1967 and April 4, 1968, the two doctors defrauded Blue Shield of $585,000.

Jumbo Jet Ban at Metro Urged

DETROIT (UPI) — The question of allowing the new jumbo jetliners to use Detroit Metropolitan Airport was raised again yesterday when the Wayne County Board of Supervisors voted 16-1 to recommend the huge airliners be banned.

The recommendation, which is not binding on the Wayne County Road Commission which operates the Boeing 747 jets be banned until passenger-loading and baggage-handling facilities are expanded.

The first of the jumbo jets is due in service early next year with flights in and out of Detroit possible in 1971, according to airline officials.

The supersonic transports, which will fly 1,800 miles per hour and carry 300 passengers, may put an additional strain on Metropolitan Airport and other large airports in this country which they will be unable to handle, according to James M. Beggs, an undersecretary in the Transportation Department.

The doctors also were accused of inducing patients to sign claim forms against Blue Shield's auditing department defrauded of $50,000 over a 10-year period.

Investigators testified that an audit of the two doctors' treatments for bursitis patients insured by Blue Shield in 1967, reported by all the doctors in Detroit's East Side, the doctors' Michigan to Blue Shield that the Detroit Postal Inspection

Whitmer Assistantship Goes Unfilled

By a 4-3 vote, the Pontiac Board of Education last night accepted a three-part proposal, including a recommendation that the third assistant superintendent of Pontiac Schools post stay vacant for the time being.

The recommendation was presented by Schools Supt. Dana P. Whitmer. He said he felt there are no other applicants at this time who qualify for the assistant superintendent position, created recently to be filled by a black person.

Dr. William S. Edmonds, director of Virginia State College's graduate school in Petersburg, Va., last week turned down the position offered him by a 4-3 vote of the board Sept. 4. He said commitments in his present position prevented him from accepting the Pontiac school post.

Edmonds was selected over Pontiac Schools Director of School-Community and Human Relations John F. Perdue.

BOYCOTTED CLASSES Many in the community rallied and demonstrated in support of Perdue after Edmonds' appointment. About 300 teachers boycotted classes Sept. 10 to show their support of Perdue.

The appointment also sparked a recall drive for the four board members who voted against Perdue — Mrs. Elsie Mihalek, Mrs. Lucille Marshall, John K. Irwin Jr. and Russell Brown.

Organizers of the recall claimed that the four board members were insensitive to the wishes of the community on this matter and other in the past. There has been no recent report on the progress of the recall effort.

Also included in Whitmer's proposal to the board was a suggestion that the central administrative structure be studied and revised in terms of the educational needs of the district.

TARGET DATE He recommended that this study be completed and presented to the board by January 1970.

Voting against the three-point proposal were the board's two black members, Dr. Robert Turpin and Christopher Brown.

Dr. Turpin earlier moved that the position which Perdue now holds be expanded to include public relations, equality of educational opportunity, human relations and compliance, and that the position be given the grade of assistant superintendent.

Christopher Brown voted with him on this motion, with the other board members opposing. Board member William Anderson was absent.

'CAN'T HANDLE JOB' Mrs. Mihalek and Mrs. Marshall both spoke out against Dr. Turpin's motion.

"The evidence I have points out to me the man (Perdue) can't handle the job. You say we need human relations — we haven't had it for the past year," said Mrs. Mihalek. She also said she felt that Perdue could not handle the job he now has.

She was heckled by many in the audience of about 140 persons for her remarks.

Many in the capacity audience at the meeting in City Commission chambers urged the appointment of Perdue. They said Perdue was qualified or he would not have been considered as a candidate.

In making his recommendation, Whitmer said he felt the revision of the district's central administration should lean toward stronger direction and supervision from the board to the administration.

School Vandalism Wanes in Waterford

School vandalism is on the decrease in Waterford Township, but school officials are more concerned about the problem. Vandals are prosecuted to the full extent of the law, school officials emphasized last night at the board of education meeting.

Roy J. Alexander, assistant superintendent for instruction, said the reduction may mean students "feel good about their schools."

Seven schools have been broken into this school year and 27 out of 34 schools have been the scene of some vandalism during hours they've been open, according to Alexander.

LESS DAMAGE School vandalism reached a peak in 1966-67 when damage was estimated at $26,000. It dropped to $16,000 last year. Acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen appealed to residents witnessing school vandalism to immediately notify township police.

"We are constantly on the alert for vandalism," Alexander said. We have excellent cooperation from the police in all investigative matters related to vandalism.

"We publicize the fact that the district does press for restitution either in or out of court. We keep perimeter lighting on buildings as a deterrent.

"We keep personnel in buildings as late as possible. We periodically check buildings at night."

In another matter, Pagen appealed for more substitute bus drivers. He said the district has only five substitutes listed, three of which are dependable for work. Forty-eight buses run each day.

The school district is organizing parents to drive children to school in case no bus drivers are available, which recently happened on three buses. Bus drivers make $2.55 an hour to start.

The Waterford School District News has just come off the press and is seeking contributions from residents for its printing. It was announced at the meeting.

ISSUE COST $820 The publication is the undertaking of the school board's Public Information Committee. Its chairman is Mrs. Dawn Davis, 4350 Elizabeth Lake.

Some 10,000 October issues were printed at a cost of $700 and $120 for mailing, according to Pagen. The school board will pay its expenses if not enough funds are raised by contributions.

It was reported that answers to 56 questions submitted to a school "hotline" telephone Wednesday will be sent home with children soon.

WLC Story—Curses, Foiled Again

By JOANNE SANDERSON

Villains and fair maidens will grace the stage as Walled Lake Central High School presents "Dirty Work at the Crossroads or Tempted, Tried and True" next Thursday and Friday afternoon in the new E. V. Ayres Auditorium.

The play, a Gay Nineties melodrama, tells the story of a villain, Munro Murgatroyd; the sweet young maiden, Nellie Lovelace; and the hero, Adam Oakhart.

Tickets cost 75 cents and are available at the WLC Bookstore and the Walled Lake Western Bookstore.

They also will be sold at the door each night and by the cast and crew.

MANY PROBLEMS

There have been many problems producing the play. The first when the fire marshal declared the stage off-limits until Oct. 15. This meant that the entire set had to be built at Central instead of at the auditorium.

The second problem: The contractor was not sure that lights would be in use by Oct. 23. This could mean that the play will be done with very few lights.

The third: While the cast was taking publicity pictures near Walled Lake Western at the railroad tracks, they were stopped by the Oakland County Sheriff's patrol.

Just as Munro was trying the hero to the tracks an officer spotted the cast. The villain was saved from being foiled again as the director, Kathy Walker, explained the situation.

Despite the woes, the show will go on. The cast is composed of Jerry O'Brien, Munro Murgatroyd; Peggy Huntley, Nellie Lovelace; Bob Hanson, Mookie Maguggins; Dave VanderVelde, Adam Oakhart; Debbie Kent, Ida Rhinegold; Kathy Verlinde, Mrs. Asterbilt; Donna Sills, Leonie Asterbilt, Penny Thrower, Fleurette; Debbie Smaltz, Widow Lovelace; and Jean Cassenisher, Nellie's daughter, Lily Nell.

Student director is Ed McCallum. Stage manager is Greg Zuchet.

Tonight is WLC's Homecoming. For the past three weeks students have been busy working on the class and club floats.

CHAIRMEN LISTED

Co-chairmen for this year's homecoming are Connie Walton and Teresa Ridley. Peggy Huntley is advertisement chairman; Sue Lobert, very important persons chairman; Lea Richmond, float chairman; and Laura Lind, script chairman.

After the game, the seniors are holding a homecoming dance which will be open to all WLC students and alumni.

The dress will be after five with dress better-than-school-dress but not semi-formal.

Chairman of the dance committee is Sue Brunson.

HISSED — Everybody hisses the villain (Jerry O'Brien) as he steals the heroine (Peggy Huntley) after lying to the hero (Dave VanderVelde) to the tracks. The seniors are rehearsing Walled Lake Central High School's melodrama, "Dirty Work at the Crossroads or Tempted, Tried and True." The production will be put on next Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the new E. V. Ayres Auditorium.

Adams High Winding Up Forthcoming

By PAT VOGL

Forthcoming Week activities and excitement climax today at Rochester Adams High School. Adams named the big week Forthcoming instead of homecoming, since it is Adams' first year and there are no alumni to welcome home.

The Forthcoming activities began Tuesday when Adams' senior girls met the junior girls for the Brown-and-Gold game.

Excitement continued to mount Wednesday with the beginning of Spirit Week, where all four classes were to wear the school colors of gold and brown.

Thursday, students wore their own class colors. Support Your Team Day took place today, with students wearing casual clothes and spirit apparel, such as buttons and school T-shirts.

PEP ASSEMBLY

Today during the last two hours of school, the student body met for a pep assembly to conclude the competition for the spirit keg. The keg went to the class which expressed the most spirit. Skits presented by the four classes were judged by faculty members.

During the pep assembly Rochester merchants judged the class floats and club entries.

Tonight before the Highlanders meet the Ulica Chieftans, a pep rally will take place from the 6:30 to 7:15 p.m. The Pep Club and the Student Council will sponsor the bonfire. Max Hasse, varsity coach for the Highlanders, will speak at the rally.

Half-time activities include a parade around the RHS athletic field accompanied by the Adams band and the introduction of the court and the queen.

MEMBERS OF COURT

Members of the court are Randi Bronson and Linda Bailey, freshmen; Nancy Stutenburg and Michelle Willis, sophomores; Tina Cohoe and Karen Mangold, juniors; Kathy Koza, Bernie Abbot, Denise Meeckel, and the foreign exchange student from Mexico, Terry Sicairens, seniors.

An after-game dance will be held in the cafeteria, with the Children from Ann Arbor entertaining.

Conclusion of the forthcoming activities will be Saturday, from 8-11 p.m. in the cafeteria.

The semi-formal dance honoring the queen and her court is sponsored by the Adams' Student Council.

'Camelot' Queen to Be Crowned at OLL Dance

By MICKEY SEETERLIN

The queen of "Camelot" will be crowned at Our Lady of the Lakes '69 homecoming dance tonight at 8 in the gym.

Vying for the title are Sharon Kloss, Kathy Reed, Sue Budnik and Colleen Bergin, all seniors.

Completing the court will be Julie McDonnell, junior representative; Diane Vallencourt, sophomore; and Maryann Day, freshman.

This year all past OLL homecoming queens will ride in the parade to the field and at halftime. In previous years only the reigning queen and her predecessor were in the parade.

'COLOR DAY'

Today was "color day" at OLL to end "spirit week" sponsored by the varsity cheerleaders.

Monday, spirit flowers were sold to prepare everyone for Tuesday's "pep pill" sale.

Wednesday was proclaimed "grub day" which meant that students wore grubby clothes to classes.

Thursday, everyone brought in wood for the annual bonfire to be held tomorrow night at 7:30.

In an effort to increase the spirit at OLL, varsity cheerleaders present a "spirit stick" to the class which shows the most spirit at each pep rally. This week each class has been assigned one hall to put up posters and decorate for spirit week.

Varsity cheerleaders will choose the hall that shows the most "Laker spirit." That class will hold the spirit stick for Sunday's game in which OLL meets St. Lawrence on Waterford Kettering's field at 2:30 p.m.

Music for tonight's dance will be provided by the Frank Merwin Trio. The coronation and grand march will take place at 9.

Seniors will participate in a College Planning Night Wednesday at 7 at Waterford Kettering High School.

Juniors will take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test Tuesday.

A dynamite shack equipped with rockets and sound effects perched atop a hay wagon portrays the junior slogan, "Bronco Explosion."

The senior float "Cashing in on a Victory" features a mammoth cash register. A semi-formal dance will be held after the football game in the HHS student center.

Peace Program at Dominican

By CYNDI WYGOSKI

The Christian Action Club at Dominican Academy planned a program for the girls in honor of the peace moratorium. During the lunch hour there was a modern "Scriptural Rosary."

Instead of the usual five decades of the Rosary there were scriptural passages, for each, on peace.

During the activity period there was a Mass also sponsored by the Christian Action girls.

"It's more of a humanities course, with the main objective being the exploration of yourself and understanding yourself by understanding others," said Mrs. Clayton Roth, English teacher.

Creativity, imagination and individuality are strongly stressed.

Exploring different books, writing papers, listening to guest speakers and various in-depth projects are some of the class activities.

"Quest is an opportunity for a student to find a challenge within himself," commented Nena Thomas.

Students will be able to meet this challenge in the projects they're doing now.

Explains How Customs Differ With Countries

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to Mrs. John Ciccarone of New Jersey.

Dear Mrs. Post: You are usually interested in customs that differ from the norm, and several of your recent columns have contained items that are contrary to our Italian customs.

I refer to the girl who wanted to know when was the proper time to give her fiancé HIS engagement ring. You told her it isn't correct for a girl to give her fiancé a ring. However, in our nationality the girl almost always buys her friend a ring. It's usually a pinky ring, either a star sapphire or diamond, but is not limited to these types.

Also you stated that putting the boy's parents' names on the wedding announcement indicates that both families are paying for the wedding. Again, we don't agree. It is our way of showing respect for the boy's family. While this custom may be dying out with the newer generations, the old Italians still cherish the idea.

You have said that it was improper to give money when attending a wake. This again is an old custom to help alleviate the expenses of a funeral. Today, members and close friends of the family still give money. Usually a male member of the family, either an uncle or cousin, is assigned to accept the money. I would appreciate your views regarding these differences in customs.

— Mrs. John Ciccarone

Dear Mrs. Ciccarone: It isn't that I don't agree with your customs — it is simply that I cannot recommend the accepted custom of every ethnic group as natural or best for the majority of Americans. In some cases, I think they are superior to our own ways, and when that is so I try to make them known so that others may adopt them.

In any case, I am always happy to receive letters describing the way things are done among other nationalities, as otherwise it would be impossible for me to know what is accepted in other countries.

You may have seen a recent column in which I stated that I see no reason why Americans, too, should not include the names of the groom's parents on wedding announcements. I do not, however, feel it holds true for invitations, because the bride's parents are usually the hosts and the invitations should come from them.

Flight Schedule Conflicts

Even Best of Plans Go Awry

SHIRLEY GRAY

The William R. Shaws of Bloomfield Hills, in Los Angeles for a convention last week, came very close to seeing the Maurice Barnetts, now of Scottsdale, Ariz. But a last-minute plane schedule change fouled up their carefully laid plans, so maybe next time.

The Shaws had a full agenda on this trip, including taking Christopher, five, and Tom, 14, on their first visits to Disneyland. They loved it, of course, but have to take second place to their mother in enthusiasm for the ultimate in amusement parks.

And it's even better now, Bette Lou says, with the newest feature — the Pirates Ride in the Caribbean.

Home again, the Shaws have houseguests — Bette Lou's daughter, Elizabeth Small, and her year-old son, Christian Edward, of Washington, D. C., are here for the duration of husband Ted's 10-week tour with the Marine Band. The band appeared in Ann Arbor and Troy this week, allowing the Smalls a little reunion.

BRIDE

The former Sandy Adamson is taking very well to domesticity, reports her mother, Mrs. John Adamson of Bloomfield Hills. Sandy was married in June to Denis Clamahan of Denver.

After an Hawaiian honeymoon, the couple set up housekeeping in Tacoma, Wash., near Ft. Lewis, where Denis is stationed after being drafted out of law school.

Win, lose or tie, the Village Woman's Club will celebrate the results of Saturday's Michigan-Michigan State football game with a post-game dinner dance.

New Prof's Class Has Standing Room Only

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — At science-minded California Institute of Technology, a 26-year-old English professor attracts more attention than some of the world's most famous physicists.

Jenijoy LaBelle is the first woman to join the faculty at the traditionally all-male school.

"I am very happy to be a Cal-Tech professor," said Dr. LaBelle, a pert woman-blonde. "As to being the first woman professor, that is a derivative pleasure. I consider myself primarily a professor and only coincidentally a novelty."

In a school where students care more about molecules than Moliere, Dr. LaBelle's classes on literary masterpieces, tragedy and comedy have standing-room-only attendance.

Joanie-Baby Digs the Past for Peek by Town-Hallers

By JEANNE NELSON

"We've come a long way, baby, since the days of constricting corsets and voluminous bloomers." This was the central thought behind a talk for Birmingham Town Hall Thursday by actress Joan Fontaine.

Tickling memories for the capacity audience in the Birmingham Theatre, she drew gales of laughter at the vivid description of those old "iron monsters" that used to give slight neck fractures and third degree burns along with frizzy permenants.

In talking about the freedom women today know, she bemoaned the sparse sex education her Victorian British mother provided.

"In fact," she said, "most of the time I just would turn to Olivia (her also-famous actress sister) with: 'I say there, Olivia, what's going on here?'" This early attitude figures prominently in her now enthusiastic support of public school sex education.

She reports that in California, even if the mother totally supports the child, she cannot leave the state on a job assignment without the child's father's consent, and possible loss of custody. Following luncheon in Kingsley Inn, we learned about her four marriages, one of which was to a sports editor who was home one month in four years.

Her first marriage was to Brian Aherne, whom she describes as "very British and terribly proper, don't you know."

On the famous feud between Joan and her sister, she said, "All brothers and sisters have spats at times; ours have just been spotlighted more because of the notoriety involved."

Jockey and His Bride to Wed on Horseback

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — Jockey Allen K. Young and Laura Fae Walton will be married on horseback Saturday at the Pocono Downs finish line. Mary Bacon, the nation's leading woman jockey will serve as matron of honor.

Fans at the track have been invited to a postnuptial party where a four-tier, 80-pound wedding cake will be served.

Smoking Husband Burns Wife Up With His Habit

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every time a letter appears in your column from someone who HATES cigarettes, and puts down cigaret smokers, my husband accuses me of writing it. You had such a letter in your column recently and since I got the "credit" for writing it, even though I didn't, I am now putting in my two cents worth.

I'll put it in the form of a DEAR ABBY letter:

Dear Abby: If all your lovely new furniture already has cigaret burns in it, and your husband always smells like he's been fighting a fire in a tobacco warehouse, and the smell of stale tobacco on his breath kills all inspiration for romance, are THOSE sufficient grounds for divorce?

My husband's KISSES taste terrible. He is a very affectionate man, and he KNOWS how I feel about his smoking because I have told him that that is the reason for my holding out in the romance department, so WHY in Heaven's name does he continue to smoke?

HOLDING OUT

DEAR HOLDING OUT: Because your husband, poor slave, is "hooked" and thus far has been unable to kick the habit. But I don't recommend the "hold out" technique. He might turn to something (or someone) else.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my 20-year-old daughter came back from a two-week beach vacation. She went with two other girls from the office where she works. I happened to notice when she was drying herself after a shower that she was tan ALL OVER!

I commented on this, asking where she could get a sun-tan without a bathing suit. She said an overnight "quick tan" lotion was responsible.

I accepted her explanation until this week. While cleaning her room, I knocked a book over, and when I picked it up some snapshots fell out. I was shocked beyond belief when I saw several pictures of my daughter and her girlfriends (all of them!) completely naked!

When I asked her about the pictures, she said they had found a deserted section of the beach where they were able to get an all-over tan, and another girl took the pictures.

I told her I would have to tell her father. She said if I did, she would leave home. Please tell me how to handle this.

SHOCKED AND DISAPPOINTED

DEAR SHOCKED: Your daughter is obviously not telling you the whole truth. Don't tell her father. What is needed now is a closer relationship between you and your daughter. Don't be critical of her, don't "punish" her and don't drive her away with threats and admonitions. A mother is helpless to help her daughter unless they remain good friends. And your daughter needs help.

DEAR ABBY: We have a 19-year-old son who causes us untold embarrassment by insisting, despite our pleas, on wearing loud, hippie-type clothes to dressy occasions such as weddings, parties, and church services.

Is there some way we can explain to our son that certain occasions demand normal attire? Are there other parents among your readers who have the same problem?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: A 19-year-old is too big to be dressed by his mother. Parents could spare themselves much "embarrassment" if they realized that they are not responsible for the dress or conduct of their adult offspring. We waste a lot of energy worrying about "what the neighbors think" — when the neighbors aren't even home!

Princess Anne Is Seen Enjoying London Night Life

LONDON (AP)—Princess Anne sipped a soft drink beside a swimming pool and was kissed on the cheek by her escort early today during a visit to a discotheque club.

The 19-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II danced in a black trouser suit and gold buckled shoes, with her hair flowing loose down her shoulders. She left the club at 2 a.m.

The princess' nightclubbing made front-page news in three London newspapers as another sign of her gradual development from school girl to young woman. Anne has been taking on an increasing share of the royal family's ceremonial duties.

Princess Anne was accompanied to La Valbonne Club in London's Soho night life section Thursday night by Sandy Harper, 21, a longtime friend, and another couple. The club, opened last July at a cost of $400,000, boasts an indoor pool and bikini-clad waitresses.

"She came in on Princess Margaret's membership ticket," said Hughie Brown, the club owner.

A waitress said the princess danced a lot and "had a couple of cokes to drink."

What tough little boys will wear, according to fur designer Jacques Kaplan of New York, is this grey Persian lamb outfit. Wanta bet he'll have to fight his way across the school playground?

Repertory Company Set at Will-O-Way Theatre

A bright young company of actors makes its initial appearance at Will-O-Way Theatre in the musical "The Apple Tree". The new production of the play, comprised of separate sketches loosely tied together along the battle lines drawn in the war between the seves, will open Tuesday evening at the Will-O-Way playhouse on west Long Lake.

Playing the 'boy' in all three acts of "Apple Tree" is Jon Tanner. Appearing opposite Tanner in the various roles of the 'girl' will be Sharon Maher. She portrays the eternal female, on whose whims and emotions the world tends to turn, according to the several authors of the musical romp.

As a chimney sweep in one act of "The Apple Tree," Sharon Maher is featured in the new production of the Jerry Bock-Sheldon Harnick musical which opens at Will-O-Way Theatre Tuesday.

Open Sunday
12 noon to 5 P.M.

The cast also includes Bill Tidd, Gimma Parsons, Gary Graham, Pamela Buchanan, Willie Jones, Camella Ioppolo and Agnes Mallia.

Directed by Celia Merrill Turner, Will-O-Way's "Apple Tree" presents three varied stories, based on the writings of Mark Twain, Frank R. Stockton and Jules Feiffer.

"The Apple Tree", with Book, Music and Lyrics by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, originally cast Barbara Harris, Alan Alda and Larry Blyden in the three leading roles. It played in Detroit in 1966 during its pre-Broadway try-out run.

Performances at Will-O-Way will be given Tuesday through Sunday with curtain at 8:30 p.m. The theatre will be dark on Monday nights.

Toward the end of the month a second 'straight' play, Neil Simons' "Star Spangled Girl" will be added to the schedule in November. "Luv" will make the third of a trilogy to be performed in repertory at the theatre through the end of 1969.

Stick-On Put-Ons

Put them on your ears or forehead. Stick them to the rim of your glasses. Wear them as a tie tack. What are they? They're put-ons — things that come in a wide variety of designs, shapes and colors. They look like jewels. They have adhesive on the back and adhere to the skin. Each set of three comes with a six-month supply of adhesive.

Risk Crow's Feet

A new study confirms earlier observations that smoking apparently encourages crow's feet and other wrinkles. More women smokers, according to the investigation, have slack, thin, wrinkled skin than do women who do not use cigarettes.

A half hour film, "Horizons Unlimited," sponsored by the Michigan Health Council of East Lansing, will be shown and hand-out material provided.

The Auxiliary points out that there are now 700 different careers allied to the medical field for young people to explore.

Speakers Will Explain Work for Jobless

Alvin Bush and Irma Craft, officers of the People's Community Civic League, an inner-city self-help organization will speak on "Self-Help: The Effective Way to Train the Jobless," on Wednesday at the Birmingham Community House.

The 8 p.m. meeting is sponsored by the Junior League of Birmingham.

The Career Development Center, an arm of the PCCL, is designed to train hard-core unemployed Negroes. The Center has trained and placed more than 600 people in upgraded jobs since its inception in 1967.

The Center operates without government funding. The concept of CDC is that private enterprise can and should subsidize the training of these people. Bush also insists that his trainees contribute financially as much as possible to their education. He accepts only trainees who can be motivated.

Bush was chief porter at the Statler Hilton hotel until recently when he resigned to work full time at PCCL. He was a constable for some years before the Ward system was eliminated.

Mrs. Craft graduated from Howard University and holds an MA degree from the University of Detroit. She taught business education in Detroit before joining Bush in establishing PCCL.

Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Not Even Death to Part Couple of Cryonics Fame

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. — When Holly Douglas, daughter of aircraft company executive Donald Douglas Jr., marries Fred Martin Jr. Saturday night it will be "forever" with no mention of "until death do us part."

Martin, a 27-year-old San Jose, Calif., insurance executive, and Miss Douglas, 22, both serve in executive capacities with the Cryonics Society of California.

The organization advocates low temperature preservation and storage of clinically dead patients. The aim is revival and repair when medical technology has discovered a cure for the death-dealing malady.

The 8 p.m. ceremony will be performed at the Lutheran Church of the Palisades.

Miss Douglas is the granddaughter of the founder of Douglas Aircraft Corp. and her father is a vice president of the McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

'Finger-Painting Essential to Tot's

SHERBROOKE, Que. (AP) — Giselle Richard, plastic arts instructor in the University of Sherbrooke's education faculty, says finger painting is an essential part of kindergarten curriculum.

This art form demands that the child discipline and organize his thoughts and thereby gain facility in expressing them, she says. Paper mache work increases the child's awareness of shape and the reality of objects.

Mary Quant Still Heads Style Trends

LONDON (U.S. — Mary Quant apparently hasn't got the courage of her convictions.

She didn't reveal everything in her latest spring-summer creations, unveiled at a champagne-breakfast press show Thursday. But otherwise she did seek to prove that she's still leading London ready-to-wear by the nose.

In lieu of anything more exciting, there was maximum exposure of the navel in a collection heavily emphasizing the widely bared midriff. The opening number was a little blissy bikini bra and hipster pants with red bullseyes stitched on the bottom.

Another number featured an open jacket with no bra at all, worn again with hipsters.

One of these, a red and white floral see-through voile worn by an exotic Indian model, was called exuberantly "Baby Baby!"

Miss Quant, whose husband, Alexander Plunkett-Green, is her business manager, is expecting her first baby in March or April.

Miss Quant, credited with launching the miniskirt, predicted in her new book, "Saraband for the Sixties," that complete see-through will become a fashion emphasis, as will body cosmetics instead of clothes.

In case anybody thought the mini was finished, Miss Quant conclusively demonstrated otherwise. She ran the gamut from micromini through midi to maxi.

Hatred Follows El Salvador-Honduras War

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A postage stamp meant to celebrate Central American friendship carries instead a message of contempt from El Salvador to Honduras.

Through efforts of the Organization of American States—OAS—postal and telephone communications have been restored between the two countries that fought a fierce, inconclusive war last summer.

But Salvadoran letters to Honduras, bearing a stamp commemorating the meeting last year of Central American presidents with President Lyndon B. Johnson, have a post office seal that unfailingly blots out the face of the Honduran president on the stamp. And the legend is added "Salvador, Defender of Human Rights."

The overprint is a small indication of the hatred and frustration left by a war that saved none of the problems between El Salvador and Honduras and created new ones.

MANY CASUALTIES

Not the least of the casualties are the Central American Common Market and a dream of regional unity that appears to have been shattered beyond early repair.

El Salvador, which has 2½ million people, invaded Honduras last July. Honduras has five times more land space than El Salvador but less than 2 million people, according to U.N. figures. A soccer feud touched off festering resentments over more than 300,000 Salvadoran peasants who had spilled over into Honduras.

Despite advances into Honduran territory, El Salvador failed to provoke a change of government and policy in Honduras, while Honduras was left with a devastated border area that now depends on the OAS for rehabilitation.

Since the OAS-supervised cease-fire, Salvadorans in Honduras have been forced to repatriate under a constant barrage of hatred that extends even to those with Honduran wives. A similar exodus of the much smaller Honduran colony in El Salvador is taking place.

The OAS human rights commission says "incredible" violations have occurred on both sides.

Economic progress of the loose more than Honduras from Central American region has suffered, too. Honduras has gained a comfortable position in the Common Market, with a balance of trade surplus thus blocking the flow of these goods to two other members of the Common Market, Nicaragua and Costa Rica to the south. El Salvador's trade with its northern neighbor, Guatemala, continues.

El Salvador, with its more industrialized economy, stands to lose the blows to trade. El Salvador suffered, too. Honduras has gained a comfortable position in the Common Market, with a balance of trade surplus thus blocking the flow of these goods to two other members of the Common Market, Nicaragua with Honduras, which is basic-

El Salvador's industries are feeling the squeeze, with production down at least 30 percent and unemployment added to the problem of the refugees.

BEST CARD

A Salvadoran government spokesman calls the closing of the Pan-American highway through Honduras "best card." Businessmen and newspapers have suggested an airlift to carry Salvadoran products over Honduran territory into the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican markets.

"The alternative is an armed solution and that cannot be done again," says a Salvadoran newspaper editor. "We would be declared aggressors the moment we fired the first shot because to the OAS only a rifle shot is an aggression—it ignores economic aggression."

In Honduras, an editor says: "The government would fall the moment it reopened the Pan-American highway. We want nothing to do with the Salvadorans. We will never forgive them."

The hopes of better living conditions for people in the two countries depend on reconciliation, but an OAS official says: "I do not see a short-term solution. There is too much hatred on both sides."

Key to the Creative Process Is Still Unfound

LONDON (UPI) — Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was composing original music at the age of 4. Michael Chevreul, a famous scientist, was working on color research at the age of 103. The span of creative life venation that youth enters the illustrated by these two examples is nearly a century. And ever-lengthening education may delay equal accomplishments.

American technologist Dr. Myron Coler has long been studying creativity with others interested in the field to determine whether the quality can be detected, nurtured, encouraged.

NO SIGN OF KEY

There have been a number of seminars on the subject and a gathering literature but there is still no sign of a key to the creative process, only theories.

A good deal of interesting research surrounds the subject.

Between Mozart, the youngest of the creators, and Chevreul, the oldest, there are many great names who made their mark at unlikely ages.

King Henry IV led the French army at 14. Alexander the Great defeated the Thebans at 17. Julius Caesar commanded a fleet before he was 22. Hannibal was commander-in-chief of the Carthaginian army in Spain at 26.

Christopher Wren architect of St. Paul's Cathedral designed an astronomical instrument at 40 and dedicated it in Latin to his father.

Artists Raphael, Corot, Landseer, Gainsborough and Reynolds; writers Voltaire, Lope de Vega, Dante, Byron, Pope, Tennyson, Victor Hugo, Edmund Spenser, and Sir Francis Bacon were all youthful prodigies.

On the other end of the scale

Bertrand Russell, who is 98, has written 20 books since he was 80. Igor Stravinsky is still composing at 87; Leopold Stokowski is still conducting at the same age; and Pablo Casals is still playing the cello at 90. Michelangelo was carving a statue a few days before his death at 80. Winston Churchill was prime minister at 79, William E. Gladstone headed a British government at 83.

12 VOLUMES

Leopold Von Ranke began his History of the World at 80 and completed 12 volumes before his death at 91.

Field Marshal Von Moltke, a military genius, was chief of staff of the Prussian army at 88. Verdi composed his masterpiece, Otello, at 74.

The source of the creative impulse may be elusive but it is obvious that for some of the purposes and achievements of life it is essential to be young. Then there are other circumstances which require mature judgment and experience of life. The first, in fact, paves the way for the second.

As it was put by Longfellow — who was still turning out good poetry at 75: "For age is opportunity no less."

"Than youth itself though in another dress"

"And as the evening twilight fades away the star of day"

"The sky is filled with stars invisible by day."

Apollo 11 Crew to Get Medals

Mars Feat Wouldn't Qualify for Award

PARIS (AP) — If the Apollo 11 astronauts had landed on Mars, they wouldn't be eligible for the gold medals of the Prix Pierre Guzman because the woman who established the award in 1899 said Mars "appears to be sufficiently well known."

The medals will be awarded to Neil A. Armstrong, Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Col. Michael Collins at ceremonies in Paris Dec. 8. The prize was set up by Mrs. Anne Emille Guzman in memory of her son Pierre, an ordnance officer with Napoleon III's army.

It was to be given, Mrs. Guzman said, "without exclusion of nationality, to him who finds a means of communicating with a heavenly body, that is, to send a signal to a heavenly body and to receive a response to that signal. I exclude the planet Mars which appears to be sufficiently well known."

Mrs. Guzman provided the French Academy of Science with the equivalent of $20,000, and in the years since 19 cash prizes have gone to French astronomers. The last award, $20,000, was in 1968 to the director of the Toulouse Observatory, Roger Bouquie.

The prize fund has dwindled to the equivalent of $2,160. The academy said this will be used to strike the medals for the astronauts, and the prize will not be awarded again.

The Winnah: Johnny Cash — Who Else?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Dale Robertson said it best Wednesday night when he was preparing to present the "Entertainer of the Year" award at the Country Music Association presentations.

When Robertson tore open the envelope and said "Who else?" everyone knew. It had to be Johnny Cash.

Cash, the big, strong man with universal appeal, made five trips to the stage of the Grand Ole Opry House to pick up awards.

He also was honored as male vocalist of the year, single record of the year (A Boy Named Sue), album of the year (At San Quentin), and best vocal group of the year.

Cash shared the vocal group award with his wife, June Carter.

Gene Autry was named to the Country Music Hall of Fame. Chet Atkins, who "plucks the guitar better than anyone," was named instrumentalist of the year. Tammy Wynette won the title of female vocalist of the year.

Third Term for Park?

Korea Voting Today

SEOUL (AP) — More than two-thirds of South Korea's registered voters cast ballots today in a referendum expected to approve a third term for President Chung Hee Park.

After a day of voting in clear, mild weather, the polls closed with no major incidents reported from the 8,471 polling stations. The Home Ministry said that an hour before voting ended, 10,355,162 persons had voted. That was 68.8 per cent of those registered.

While Information Minister Shin Bum Shik thanked the people for orderly balloting, opposition spokesman Song Won Young charged widespread irregularities.

The 52-year-old president voted at a polling place near his official residence. Accompanied by his wife, Park smiled broadly when a crowd outside applauded him.

AN EASY VICTOR

The referendum is to approve an amendment to the 1962 constitution allowing a president to serve three consecutive terms instead of two. Park's second four-year term ends in 1971, and he is expected to win a third term easily if the amendment is approved.

Park has not campaigned for the amendment but announced he would resign immediately if it was defeated. His ruling Democratic Republican party predicted approval by more than 70 per cent of the votes, but a presidential spokesman said 60 per cent would be a "great victory."

Only a simple majority is needed for approval.

Park's political foes said the election was illegal because the amendment proposal was approved by the government majority in the National Assembly at a session which the opposition members were not told about.

Biala's comet, first observed in 1846, vanished completely in 1865.

House Unit Will Probe SDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Committee on Internal Security yesterday announced it will investigate the work of the Students for a Democratic Society in high schools in five cities during hearings later this month.

Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., said staff investigators have developed evidence that "SDS has been and is endeavoring earnestly to create havoc" in Columbus and Akron, Ohio; Detroit; Pittsburgh; and Washington, D.C.

"Our investigations have shown SDS has really gone to work in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania," said Ichord. "We found the SDS setting up communes in Ohio, giving teenagers beer and wine and displaying weapons and ammunition, promising to provide the youths with guns and teach them how to kill 'pigs.'"

SDS activity in Columbus will be covered in hearings on Oct. 20-21-22 and happenings in the remaining four cities on Oct. 23-24-25. All hearings will be held here and will be open.

2 Kill Selves After Peace Rally

BLACKWOOD, N.J. (AP) — A boy and girl who killed themselves after a Vietnam Moratorium Day rally "were very unhappy that people didn't love each other," the Camden County medical examiner says.

Examiner Thomas R. Daley said this was the main theme of 24 notes Joan Fox and Craig Badiali, both 17, addressed to parents and friends before dying of asphyxiation from the exhaust gases of the Badiali family car.

Daley, who described it as "a double suicide" said, "The kids were disenchanted with the way things were in the world."

"They said we didn't have world peace—we didn't have peace even in this country," he added.

ON DIRT ROAD

The bodies were found Thursday in the car, which had been parked on a dirt road in Gloucester Township, a small nearby community. Daley said the couple apparently died Wednesday night after attending a Vietnam war protest rally at Glassboro, six miles away, where President Lyndon B. Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin met in 1967.

A hose led from the exhaust pipe of the car through a hole drilled in the floor.

The girl and boy attended Highland Regional High School, where Badiali was president of the dramatic society and Miss Fox was a cheerleader.

Bernard Badiali, 21, brother of Craig, said the couple had been "going out together for a year."

ANTIWAR CONVICTIONS

"My brother died for his convictions. They were antiwar," he said.

Badiali said Craig was distressed when he returned from the Glassboro demonstration because he thought too many of those who attended treated it as a lark.

About 1,000 faculty members and students of Glassboro State College marched in the observance on the school campus.

It was not known how long the young couple stayed at the demonstration or what they did there.

The couple's farewell letters, averaging about a page and half in length, were written in ink and pencil, and placed in envelopes.

Daley said the letters asked everybody who heard of their deaths to work for peace.

There were some 2,650 million marriages in the United States last year, 8 per cent higher than in 1967.

Still Chores Left

Don't Put Your Tools Away Yet

With the coming of autumn, one is tempted to ease off in the vegetable garden. Still, the wise gardeners don't quite stop, for there are still a few things to do and much to be gained.

First, of course, if you live where there is danger of a killing frost be sure to pick everything that is ripe easily. That means snap or green beans — the ones we called string beans until the strings were taken out — cucumbers, summer squash, melons and tomatoes.

The last are the only ones that might need any further care before they are ready to use. Frequently, one is advised to pull up tomato plants and hang them upside down in the cellar or to wrap the fruits in paper. Neither is really necessary. Ripe ones can go into the refrigerator.

Green and partially unripe ones can be placed on window sills until ripe. In the North, peanuts, if grown, should be dug up and the plants left in piles to cure before removing the nuts.

IN GROUND

Root crops like carrots, beets and celery roots can stay in the ground until you need them or until just before the ground freezes. Parsnips are different. They benefit from a touch of frost. They become sweeter and may be dug for use just before winter sets in or after the ground thaws in the spring.

This is also the time to clean up the garden. Corn stalks and other thick stems which might harbor corn borers, should be either burned or spaded into the soil. Other materials can be placed upon the compost pile or burned, if they harbor pests.

Finally, as you harvest a crop completely and remove the waste, dig up your soil, going as deeply as you can with your spade or fork. Then you can come to spade up the garden. The only difference is wait for the about three weeks before coming cold to kill any insects the surface smooth and sowing present and the weather to yours seeds for another crop of mellow the soil — or you can plant a little lettuce or a plant it with winter rye or few radishes for a late crop, winter wheat.

This is what is called a green manure. Sown now (2½ pounds through the fall and mild spells in winter, especially if the soil is fertilized first.

DIG SOIL

Then when spring comes it is turned into the soil to add valuable humus when the time comes to spade up the garden. The only difference is wait for the about three weeks before coming cold to kill any insects the surface smooth and sowing present and the weather to yours seeds for another crop of mellow the soil — or you can plant a little lettuce or a plant it with winter rye or few radishes for a late crop, winter wheat.

Bulb Storage Is Important

Bulbs that have to be dug and stored include dahlias, cannas, caladiums, and tuberous begonias.

Most bulbs should be dug after the first killing frost, although dahlias can be left in the ground several days after the tops have died.

Horticultural vermiculite is also an effective medium for bulb storage — it maintains moisture balance so bulbs won't dry or rot. Simply pour a layer of vermiculite in the bottom of a cardboard carton, place down the bulbs, and pour in more vermiculite to form another layer.

Before storage, dahlia roots should be removed from the ground — after the stalks have been cut within two or three inches — and dried upside down for a week.

Caladium bulbs should be cleaned and then dried for two weeks in a cool place. Store at 50 to 60 degrees.

CUT BACK

Cut the blackened tops of canna bulbs back a few inches to a foot. Allow the tubers to dry for several hours before storing in a cool, dry place.

After tuberous begonias are dug out, lay in a sunny, airy place. As the soil dries, it can be shaken off the plant. When the foliage has parted and the tubers are clean, store at 40 to 50 degrees.

If any bulbs are injured during removal, sprinkle the cut surface with sulphur. Check the bulbs once or twice during the dry place.

Winter. If too dry, sprinkle the vermiculite with water. If too damp, briefly air out in a dry place.

Tackle Pesky Weeds Before They Get a Head Start

If new clumps of dandelion or unsightly patches of buckhorn are starting to infest your lush green summer grass, then it's time to start a simple weed attack that will keep your lawn healthy and luxuriant right up until first frost.

Autumn often brings a new invasion of weeds; dandelion, plantain, buckhorn, chickweed, sheep sorrel, clover, knotweed and other broadleaf species that follow two-cycle growth pattern.

These weeds sprout annually in spring and then again in fall unless they have been controlled or eliminated completely through previous applications of chemicals.

White clover, although usually present through the summer, becomes more noticeable in autumn because the lawn is mowed less frequently.

SAME KILLER

This weed, too, can be destroyed by the same weedkiller that you used to eliminate the two-cycle species, according to turf agronomists at Amchem Research Farm, Ambler, Pa.

Selective weed-killing sprays that contain 2,4-D will knock out dandelion, plantain, clover and over 100 other species quickly and easily. The weeds usually start to twist and curl a few days after treatment.

By the end of a warm week, they begin to turn a sickly yellow or purple and eventually dry up and disappear. Reaction is slow during a cold spell and when the soil is very dry.

Powerful weedkillers will penetrate weeds and destroy their root systems. These chemicals, however, are not harmful to pets, children and most good, healthy turf grasses. Weaker herbicides may produce only a "top burn" which gives the appearance of dead weeds while the roots continue to grow beneath the soil.

UNIFORM COVERAGE

When spraying, uniform coverage is important. Apply the spray in a criss-cross fashion, first from end to end of the lawn and then from side to side. Inexpensive gravity-flow sprayers and hose-end applicators generally work well when the air is calm.

A most foolproof applicator is herbicide directly upon the Meter Miser, a lightweight two-wheel device that can be pushed or pulled like a lawnmower. Its spinning disc-type spray head spreads the herbicide evenly over the lawn. Available for sale or rent at hardware stores and garden centers, the Meter Miser offers maximum control of drift and protects the user from being windsprayed by weed-killing chemicals. It is also excellent for applying fertilizers and fungicides. Such modern equipment plus application of weed-killing chemicals makes weed control easy and results in a lovelier, healthier lawn. A fall lawn care program will also produce a more luxuriant grass next year.

Daffodils for Spring Are Tops

The slender-stemmed graceful golden daffodil swaying in sunlit rays is next to the tulip in most people's images of Spring. These delightful flowers come in many, many types beside the familiar large trumpet blossom.

Today, daffodils are available in delicate pinks and combinations such as bright orange cups set off against lemon yellow or frosty white petals.

By planting some varieties that are less familiar this Fall, you will multiply your pleasure in your planted garden next Spring.

For instance, have you ever considered planting daffodil bulbs in those areas where little but rough grass seems to grow?

NATURALIZE

If you "naturalize" these uninteresting spots by tossing a handful or two of daffodil bulbs and then planting them where they fall, you will have daffodils that will ripen in the spring long before the tall grass is cut.

They will look like spots of sunlight dappling the scene.

An excellent choice for the gardener now planning his spring garden palette is a combination of the faretta and the poeticus daffodil. The first group produces richly thick clusters of blossoms on one stem, including several doubles.

The poeticus daffodils have large white petals with shallow yellow cups edged brightly with orange or red.

MULTIPLY

Daffodils are one of a gardener's best investments for they frequently provide extra dividends by multiplying through the years.

Not all do this, however, so this fall be sure to plant some that are known to increase rapidly.

Attack Snow Mold

Application of a fungicide before the first snow is the best way to reduce the damage caused by snow mold and similar fungi, report lawn care specialists at Amchem Research Farm, Ambler, Pa. Snow mold usually thrives in the warmth caused by a blanket of snow and damages lawn grasses.

When Developing Landscape, Don't Neglect Blueberries

Blueberry plants decorate your garden while producing delectable fruit. New varieties are designed to produce ornamental greenery as well as prolific crops.

If you are thinking of raising this highly specialized crop commercially, consider that establishing a planting is costly and that the first full crop takes six to eight years.

No crop is harvested the first two years. Then you begin picking sparingly, and increase as time passes.

A few years ago, the U.S. Department of Agriculture introduced some vigorous, heavy-producing, large-berried varieties, including Earliblue, Ivanhoe, Bluecrop and Berkeley, upright and mid-season; Coville, spreading, late.

OTHERS

Other popular varieties are: early Weymouth, Rancocas, Blue Ray; mid-season, Dixi-

Pemberton and Collins; late, Jersey, Late Blue and Herbert. Blueberries often flourish where other crops fail. An indication of good blueberry conditions is the presence of wild highbush berries or wild spirea. The type of soil is important. Loose textures are recommended, particularly a mixture of sand and peat. Heavier soils are suitable if they are acid and high in organic matter. Have your soil tested.

Constant but moderate soil moisture is needed. Good surface drainage is important. Water remaining on the surface for more than a day during the growing season harms roots.

Best sites are those where air can circulate freely. Avoid pockets or narrow valleys where cold air may settle.

HIGHBUSH

Highbush varieties are easy to harvest. There are about 50 varieties. Select two or three that ripen in succession. Soil should be well-worked.

before planting. Add lime if the soil tests below pH 4.0. Add sulfur if the test exceeds pH 5.1 to acidify small areas for home plantings.

Try growing blueberries in tubs with drain holes if your garden soil tests above pH 5.1. Plant two-year old stock when possible. Three-year stock is better but more costly. Set plants in spring as soon as the soil can be worked.

SUNSHINE

Where the climate is moderate, November planting is suitable. Space highbushes four feet apart in a sunny area.

Set plants two inches deeper than they grew in the nursery. For hedging, 35-40 inches apart is satisfactory.

Mix a shovel of acid peat with the soil in each planting hole in sandy soils low in organic matter. Remove fruit buds soon before or after setting plants.

Since most blueberry roots are near the soil surface, do not cultivate more than two to three inches deep and only often enough to check weeds.

MULCHING

Mulching will help blueberries. Good materials include weathered sawdust, straw, leaves, wood shavings or corn cobs.

If you mulch, add more nitrogen fertilizer than normally applied. Proper fertilizers are 16-8-4, ammonium sulfate or urea.

Blueberries need no pruning until the third year when only small, spindly growth should be removed near the plant base.

This will produce a more upright bush with fruit higher. Pruning will bring large berries and earlier ripening.

Builders Adapt to Landscape

There has been a tendency in subdividing to economize grading by bulldozing all trees, and later replant a few saplings after the houses are built. The grounds look stark for as much as a decade.

It is encouraging that more people are coming to appreciate the esthetic (and monetary) value of sizeable trees around the home.

Homebuilders can often adapt the house to the natural landscape, rather than remake everything in an undivulgent image.

One of the objections to a wooded lot is that people want a serviceable lawn, not brush. Aside from the many practical uses of a low range from work and play areas to keeping down dirt and temperature, it also enhances the landscaping. Shrub and tree plantings are much better set off by a carpet of emerald green.

True, there is a little more difficulty in growing a good lawn in the shade under trees, than an open, fertile soil. But it can be accomplished — largely because fine fescues such as Chewings, Illahee, Pennlawn, Rainier and Highlight are now in abundant supply from Oregon.

These fine fescue varieties have long been noted for their ability to persist in moderate shade, with little or no fertilization, and in spite of tree root competition. Mixed with a modicum of Kentucky bluegrass, the fine fescues make an excellent shade blend.

Of course any lawn planted under trees should be helped along as much as possible, — by taller mowing to compensate for reduced sunlight and by additional fertilization.

Check Dandelions in the Autumn

Treat your lawn in autumn with any weed killer containing 2, 4-D to eradicate dandelions and platanus. Then you won't have to worry about these pests next spring.

2, 4-D killers are available in liquid and granular forms. The granular form is applied with a fertilizer spreader. The liquid form is diluted with water and sprayed on the weeds.

If using the liquid form, apply it from a sprayer that is kept solely for weed killers. It is almost impossible to clean a sprayer well enough to remove the minute quantity of 2, 4-D that can prove lethal to a valued ornamental.

Apply weed killers only on a day when there is no wind.

Leave Alone

Output of Factory-Built Homes Is on the Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — As the price of home construction soars, factory home-builders are stepping up their output.

This year, prefabricated homes are expected to account for 30 per cent of the single-family units built.

Prefabricated homes captured 25 per cent of the market last year with 225,000 units, according to the Home Manufacturers Association. The figures do not include mobile homes, which are expected to reach 400,000 units this year.

At least half of all housing will be factory-built by 1975, the association predicts.

The factory home-manufacturers are rushing to fill housing goals conventional builders say they cannot carry out.

There are some 600 manufacturers of prefabricated housing components and "in the last six months, 30 new companies have come on the scene," said Don Gilchrist, association executive vice president. "There is a very healthy growth picture."

NEW BREED

Obstacles facing conventional builders have bred a new type of instant home builder, such as Lebon Walker, a 29-year-old former General Motors employee who is president of Lebon Home Corp. in Detroit. He has contracted with the Metropolitan Detroit Citizens Development Authority for 250 factory manufactured three-bedroom ranch-style homes to be completed by early 1970.

These homes come out of his 45,000-square-foot plant in two pieces, or modules, at the rate of four homes a day. The modules, with bathrooms, refrigerators, washing machines, and other household necessities installed are then moved on flat-bed trucks to the owner's site where the two pieces are bolted together. The homes sell for $12,000, including the lot.

"There is a lot of similarity between automotive production and this sort of thing," Walker said. "You couldn't find a better spot than Detroit to put something like this over. Everyone's already oriented this way."

These instant homes cost about $9 a square foot without the lot, compared with $18 a square foot for the conventional construction of single-family homes in Detroit.

SAVINGS REALIZED

Some savings already are being realized. The factories employ a composite of skilled and semiskilled labor rather than high-priced building trades workers. Through volume buying, factories can get large discounts on material purchases. Also, the factories continue work in all types of weather, a saving in time and money.

A big obstacle to prefabricated-home builders has been regional building codes, forcing manufacturers to meet various requirements for various areas, which adds to assembly line production costs.

However, California believes that a new law, to be effective Jan. 1, in effect wipes out local codes for those who want to build at the factory.

Under the law, inspection will be done through a uniform detailed state code permitting the housing to be checked at the factory by state inspectors. Local inspectors would govern only on-site power and water line hookups.

Every year some 10,000 babies born in the U.S. die of Rh hemolytic disease.

THAT COSTLY PENALTY—This is the play that ended the Lions' hopes for victory last Sunday against the Packers and produced the 15 yard penalty for roughing the kicker. Green Bay's Donnie Anderson (44) is seen getting off the punt. Bobby Williams (45) of the Lions goes high up into the air in his attempt to block the punt. When Williams came down he landed on the back of blocker Chuck Mercin who raised and flipped Williams into the kicker.

'Breaks' Go Bad for Lions, Bears

By BRUNO L. KEARNS
Sports Editor, Pontiac Press
Coach Joe Schmidt of the Detroit Lions does not want to look back, but he can't just erase the thought that the Lions could be 4-0 right now instead of 2-2.

The Lions played one of their poorest games ever in losing 16-13 to Pittsburgh in the opener, and they played one of their better games last week in losing 28-17 to the Packers.

But in both games, a couple key plays, both resting with the verdict of the officials changed the balance of the final result. "I'm not saying the official was wrong in calling the roughing penalty against the punter last Sunday," said Schmidt, "but I'm saying that the consistency is poor."

BARNEY HIT

Schmidt was referring to the Steelers' game in which Lions' punter Lem Barney was smashed to the ground twice in direct contact by the onrushing Steelers.

No penalties were called and the Steelers got possession of the ball helping them to their point production.

Last Sunday, Schmidt called for an extra rush on punter Donnie Anderson, with the Packers on their own 29. Anderson was thus punting from his 17 and Lions' rookie Bobby Williams went high up in the air and missed blocking the punt by inches.

When Williams came down on the back of blocker Chuck Mercin, the Packers flipped Williams off his back and the Lions' back rolled into Anderson, who smartly fell down in academy award style.

Referee George Rennie threw the flag and instead of the Lions' having possession with a potential runback by Barney, with 7:38 remaining in the game, the Packers had possession on the 44 yard line.

Eating up more than five minutes, the Packers scored and iced the victory. With their 2-2 mark, the Lions meet the Bears, who with an 8-4 record in the Central Division, have had their troubles with penalties, fumble plays, fumbles and interceptions despite the fact that the Bears are still the second best team in the NFL on defense this week.

BEARS TROUBLED

Chicago publicity director commented yesterday, "I guess this will be a game between two teams fighting the bad breaks. The Lions should be 4-0 and we should be at least 2-2."

The Bears lost to the Giants in the final minute on a Tarkenton pass, 28-24, after a previous pass went high out of the end zone, but still brought an interference penalty on the Bears.

The Bears have had their big problems at quarterback where Jack Concannon, Virgil Carter and rookie Bobby Douglass are the three signal callers.

Carter started against the Vikings last week and there is a remote possibility that Douglass, the 6-4 rookie from Kansas might get the nod against the Lions.

Concannon, a 6 year veteran from Boston College, is listed as the probably starter. The Lions are also troubled at quarterback with veteran Bill Munson out for at least six weeks.

Greg Landry, the No. 1 choice from Massachusetts, is slated to start, with Greg Barton, the No. 9 choice from Tulsa ready to back him up.

PNH Gains Inter-Lakes Harrier Title

Pontiac Northern won the Inter-Lakes cross country championship held yesterday on the Highland Lakes campus of OCC and the Huskies did it with the help of a sophomore Rudy Villarreal who finished 12th.

Northern had 44 points with Farmington coming home with 45 followed by Stevenson with 85, WL Central 104, Waterford 121 and Lathrup 136.

Individual honors went to Steve Moffatt of Waterford with a course record time of 10:18. Following were Doug Kurtis of Stevenson, Mike Taylor of Northern, Mike McLaughlin of Farmington, John Donohue of Farmington, Tim Howe of Walled Lake and Kim Hildenbrandt of Farmington.

Northern's reserves also won with 21 points, followed by Farmington with 36.

KEEPING WATCH — Joe Agee Jr., along with sons Thomas, 2, and Eric, 4, keep an eye on the video as they observe the proceedings in the fifth game of the World Series yesterday between the New York Mets and the Baltimore Orioles. Joe's brother, Tommy, 26, is the center fielder on the Mets' club. Mets won the game, 5-3, and the Series, 4-1.

Says Brother of Mets' Star

Mom Agee Didn't Really Approve of Baseball

By FLETCHER SPEARS

If an Alabama mother had had her way, the Baltimore Orioles wouldn't have had so much trouble with the New York Mets these days.

"Mother (Mrs. Carrie Agee) didn't want us to play ball," Joe Agee Jr. was saying yesterday while watching his brother, Tommy, and the other New York Mets whip the Orioles, 5-3, to win the World Series.

'DIDN'T APPROVE'

"Mother is quite religious and she didn't approve of it," Joe was saying. "But we'd slip around and get permission from dad to go to the ball park. Dad — Joe Sr. — helped us a lot."

The Mets, though, are happy Mrs. Agee gave in since Tommy has emerged as one of the heroes for the New Yorkers. In the 5-0 New York win Sunday, Agee checked in with a pair of hits and choked off potential Baltimore rallies with a couple of great catches at his center-field spot.

WATCHED FINALE

And while Mom didn't approve of baseball then, she does now. She and dad, along with two daughters were in the big city yesterday for the final game.

Joe, 28, also had planned to be on hand to watch his younger brother Tommy in action but a stomach ailment forced him to forego the trip. "I had reservations and tickets but I wasn't up to it," said Joe who is an inspector at plant 18 of Pontiac Motor. "My foreman said he'd gladly go in my place," laughed Joe.

VIDEO FANS

So Joe, his wife, Gloria and their four boys have been observing the proceedings on television. Gloria is a production worker at plant 16 of Pontiac Motor. They live in a modest home with the little Ageses — Joe III, 6, Eric, 4, Thomas, 2, and Keith, 3 months. "I had the Mets all the way," said Joe. "Even in the playoffs. I talked to Tommy before the playoffs with the Braves and he said they wouldn't have any trouble with the Braves."

Along with Joe and Tommy, there are nine girls in the Agee family, and the parents, Joe Sr. and Carrie, still reside in Mobile, Ala.

EXCITING EVENT

"In a way, he (Tommy) is about the most exciting thing that's happened to our family," says Joe, a pleasant, soft spoken person.

Joe and Tommy are products of Mobile County Training School, where Tommy was an outstanding athlete in football, baseball and track. Another outstanding football player at Mobile, a teammate of Tommy's, was Cleon Jones, the Mets' left fielder.

After high school, Tommy was signed for some $55,000 by the Cleveland Indians, who later shipped him to the Chicago White Sox where he earned 'Rookie of the Year' honors in 1966. The Chisox dealt him to the Mets two years back.

TRIBE CALLS

"It was something the day the Indians called," said Joe. A number of scouts were watching Tommy.

"When the scout called I answered the phone and pretended that I was Tommy," recalled Joe. "Finally I went in the other room and Tommy was just laying there on the couch, cool and calm, and I was just about out of my mind."

"I told him the scout was coming down and said 'Tell him I'll be here.' So I told him."

'NO FAIR SHAKE'

Joe figures Tommy didn't get a fair shake in Cleveland. "I don't think they (Indians) gave him a good chance. He feels the same way too. They did in Chicago," he agreed.

Short, Sweet Trip for Hodges

NEW YORK (AP) — Gil Hodges is going home to Brooklyn, it'll be the shortest, sweetest road trip of his 26-year baseball life.

"We're going to have an off day tomorrow; then everybody's going home," the unflappable manager of the unbelievable New York Mets said after Thursday's climactic 5-3 World Series triumph over the stumped Baltimore Orioles.

"I'm just going to rest and look forward to 1970," said the former Brooklyn Dodgers slugger, who survived a heart attack and New York's ninth-place finish last year to lead the Mets to the pinnacle.

He has much to look forward to. "There's nothing miraculous about us," Hodges said. "I don't believe in any of that. The New York Mets are a group of young ball players who have made their mark in baseball this year and will continue to make their mark for years to come."

BUBBLY SHOWER

Hodges then turned from a roomful of well-wishers to embrace Tom Seaver, the new champs' 25-game winner and spiritual leader, and to accept a ceremonial champagne shower from his young pitching ace.

"I told you I owed you one more of these," said Seaver, who had annointed Hodges in similar fashion after the Mets clinched the National League East Division title and again after their playoff sweep over Atlanta.

The champagne was flowing from Hodges' crowded office through the winners' clubhouse and into the trainer's room, where Cleon Jones expressed the feeling that has imbued the 100-1 shot Mets since early in the regular season, when an 11-game winning streak thrust them into pennant contention.

"Everybody thought we were a flash in the pan," the hard-hitting outfielder said. "But we were 25 guys who stayed in there all year and picked each other up."

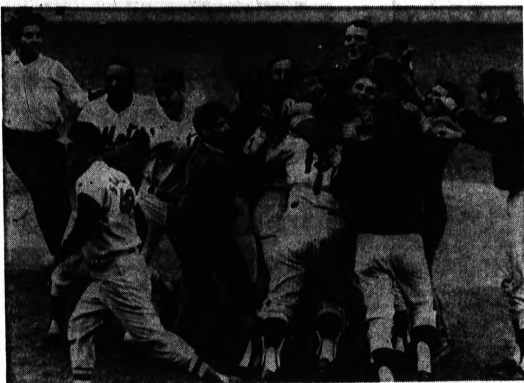

"I guess there are some people who still don't believe in us. But there are people who still think the world is flat, too."

Mets, Fans Celebrate

Shea Is Bare After 'Miracle'

It began with an opening game loss to the Orioles last Saturday in Baltimore. But that was all. The time had come for the heroes to surface.

In the second game, it was Jerry Koonsman firing a two-hitter and Al Weis collecting the winning hit while Ed Charles made the key fielding play. In the third game, it was Tommie Agee making two spectacular catches and Gary Gentry and Nolan Ryan combining on a shutout. In the fourth game, it was Tom Seaver pitching all the way, Ron Swoboda making a great catch and J.C. Martin getting hit on the wrist by a thrown ball at the right time.

SHOE POLISH

And, in the fifth game Thursday, it was Koonsman again, Swoboda and Hodges—and a baseball with shoe polish on it. The Orioles had built a 3-0 lead on a two-run homer by pitcher Dave McNally and a solo homer by Frank Robinson in the third inning before the shoe polish intervened in the sixth inning.

Cleon Jones was the hitter when McNally threw a pitch down at his feet, the ball kicking away into the Mets' dugout. Plate Umpire Lou DiMuro at first thought the ball had not hit Jones and did not allow him to take first.

"Jerry Grote was sitting on the bench and he caught the ball," said Hodges. "I was going up to talk to the umpire and Grote tossed the ball to me and said to show him the shoe polish on it. I did, and after that, DiMuro thought about it he realized there was shoe polish on the ball."

And so Jones was awarded first base for being hit by a pitch.

TURNING POINT

"There's your turning point," said Hodges. "If the ball goes into their dugout instead of ours, we never see it again."

It was the turning point because Donn Clendenon, the next batter, slammed a home run and the Mets were back in the ball game. Weis tied it an inning later with a no-hitter, and then the Mets put it away in the eighth.

Jones opened with a double, and one out later, rode home as Swoboda doubled. Swoboda eventually scored when first baseman Boog Powell and pitcher Ed Watt both made errors on Jerry Grote.

President Nixon saw all that and he saw the top half of the ninth when the Orioles went down 1-2-3 after Frank Robinson opened with a walk.

Then he placed his call to Mrs. Payson.

"I watched the last two innings," the President told Mrs. Payson.

"Those were the two innings to watch," she replied.

"Yes," agreed the president, "those were the most exciting two innings I've ever seen."

Suns Win, 116-114

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Phoenix Suns, who last season ended up in the Western Division cellar, held off a late rally to topple the San Diego Rockets, 116-114, in a National Basketball Association game Thursday.

The Suns held the lead throughout most of the contest until late in the fourth quarter when San Diego center Elvin Hayes tied the score.

Chiefs Last, but Future Looks Bright

Although Pontiac Central's cross country team placed last in the Saginaw Valley's Western Division meet at Flint yesterday, there were a couple of future bright spots for the Chiefs.

Ray City Handy took the Western title with 19 points followed by Arthur Hill, 63; Flint Northern, 72; Flint Northwestern, 90; and PCH, 111.

Flint Southwestern captured the Eastern Division title with 33 points. Midland was second with 38.

Union 76 Snow Sale!

Any size $15.95*

The Union 76 Snow claws its way through snow-clogged roads with deep, rugged, traction bars. When you're on dry roads, the continuous tread design gives you a smoother ride than snow tires used to. They bite into the snow and it's as if the road were still dry and plowed. The tread keeps itself clean, so every time these 4-ply snow tires grab for traction, they do it with all the tread they've got. Union 76 Snow blackwalls are available in four sizes to fit most U.S. cars, for $15.95. Put 'em on before the snow hits. Use Pure Revolving Credit.

TAG AT FIRST — Met's catcher Jerry Grote makes a tag at first base on Mark Belanger after the Oriole rounded the base on a single to right and Grote backing up the play took a throw from Ron Swoboda.

Umpire Lee Weyer called the play in the third inning. Dave McNally then followed with a two-run homer for Baltimore. The Mets won, 5-3.

Game Could Decide Rose Bowl Trip

EAST LANSING (AP)—Tick- et scalpers at the Michigan State football game Saturday should have little trouble taking some fans "for a ride."

But if the favored Wolverines win, they would be at the front of the airlines ticket line to be taken for an even bigger, more expensive ride—2,000 miles to Pasadena, Calif., for the 1970 Rose Bowl.

Each year when Michigan and the Spartans clash, the word is that "this could be the game that decides who'll go to the Rose Bowl." But with a 31-20 victory over tough Purdue behind them, the Wolverines are in the drivers' seat to go to the granddaddy of the bowl games next New Year's Day.

"We're an enthusiastic football team. We have some talent. And we're hanging in there," said U-M coach Bo Schembechler, cautious not to say anything that would sound like overconfidence.

The game is a "must" one for the Spartans, who were crushed by Ohio State 54-21 last week. Michigan must face OSU the final week of the season and Schembechler said earlier this week that "things will be pretty much decided by then."

OSU STAYS HOME
Even if the Buckeyes win the conference crown, since they went to the Rose Bowl last season the Big Ten runnerup would go this time.

All tickets for the big intra-state clash were sold out since

Baltimore Teams Find New York Rivals Tough

BALTIMORE (AP)—"We've been through this before." "It only happens, in the New York, where God is on the side of the angels, the Mets, the Knickerbockers and Joe Namath."

A populace that gloated over a playoff sweep against the Minnesota Twins and a first-game victory over the upstart New York Mets was left saying, "Let's talk about something else."

The crushing realization that baseball's former clowns had topped the team that was touted as one of the best ever assembled last most of Baltimore with a blank feeling that often lacked words.

"Maybe we're not living right," guessed Tom Schuch an usher who was hoping the Orioles could bring the Series back to Baltimore and pull out victory.

The Birds have bowed to the New York Mets. We'll have to admit it sooner or later. The Birds are great but the Mets are greater.

GUARANTEE

Every new B.F. Goodrich "blemish" passenger car tire is guaranteed for the life of the original tread, regardless of age or mileage, against defects in material and workmanship, except for the appearance or other condition which required classification as "blemish," and in normal non-commercial passenger car service, against failures caused by road hazards (not including repairable punctures, tires irregularly worn, tires damaged by running flat, fire, wrecks, collisions, chain cuts or obstructions on the automobile). If such tire fails under this guarantee and is so damaged beyond repair, the owner will receive full allowance for remaining tread toward the purchase of a new tire of our manufacture at the then current retail "trade-in" price, plus a reasonable service charge.

Skippers Up for Homecoming

This night could be just what the doctor ordered to shake the Skippers of Waterloo from their football doldrums.

It's homecoming and the Skippers, who have a 1-4 record and have lost four in a row, haven't lost a homecoming game since 1965.

'DREADING CALL'

"I've been dreading a call from you guys," says coach John Moffat who is suffering right along with the Skippers. "Our kids are up for the game," says Moffat. "They're disappointed in their own failure to win. They believe they've given some away."

BRIGHT NOTE

A bright note for the Skippers is that they'll be taking on Farmington's Falcons, certainly not a pushover, but perhaps the weakest team in the Inter-Lakes League this fall.

Other games on the schedule this evening find Pontiac Northern at Walled Lake Central where the Huskies will be seeking to end a 10-year hex, while Southfield Lathrup was at Livonia Stevenson for an afternoon contest.

MISTAKES HURT

There are a number of reasons for the Skippers' demise this season, chief of which would be the team's own misdeeds. "We've been injured some, too," says Moffat. "And we've just made some dumb mistakes . . . just mental mistakes. We just go to sleep."

Guard Jim Main and tackle Steven Kressbach have been the mainstays in the Skipper lineup.

Another local game finds the Chiefs of Pontiac Central at Wisner Stadium against the Trojans of Saginaw. The Chiefs will be seeking to end a two-game losing streak.

A key Wayne-Oakland League game is on tap at Waterloo Kettering, where the Captains will entertain league cinder West Bloomfield.

ANDOVER TRAVELS
Bloomfield Hills Andover, sharing the lead with West Bloomfield, is at Brighton, while other loop games find Northville at Clarkston and Clarenceville at Milford.

The Raiders of North Farmington, 20-18 losers to Detroit Thurston last week, will try to return to the winning trail today at Oak Park. Another Northwest Suburban League game finds Wayne John Glenn at Birmingham Groves.

AVONDALE HOME

Lamphere at Clawson.

Novi entertains Sandy Creek, Lapeer plays host to Flint Marysville and Harper Woods Ainsworth, Holly is host to Swartz Creek, while Orionville Brandon moved to Linden.

In the Thumb area, Imlay Catholic has a date at Gabriel City is at Millington. Brown

City at Birch Run, Almont at Memphis, Anchor Bay at Marysville and Harper Woods at Armada.

Waterford Mott journeys to Livonia Churchill and Pontiac Catholic has a date at Gabriel City is at Millington. Brown

"I thought it was a happy family this year," Gadsby said. "He hadn't been meddling. We agreed to that at the end of last year."

Palmer Starts Golf Comeback

Arnie Fires 69 but Trails Sanders

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Arnold Palmer is back. And Doug Sanders vows he'll be back. "I'm not giving up," the colorful Sanders said Thursday after shooting a six under par 65 for the first round lead in the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"If I don't improve," he noted "I'm going to have to be out there in those Monday qualifying rounds, and I don't think I'd like that."

Sanders, one-time glamor-boy of the tour now a graying 36, hasn't won since 1967, has made only $29,720 on the tour this year and is in danger of losing his exempt status.

STROKE AHEAD

He held a one-stroke lead over a trio of longshots—rookies Ted Hayes Jr. and Bob Menne and teaching pro Ed Merrins—going into today's second round, with Palmer still very much in contention.

Palmer, out of action since an arthritic right hip forced him off the tour during the PGA National Championship more than two months ago, came back with a solid 69.

"It was a pretty mediocre round," the 40-year-old Palmer said. "I hit some good tee shots and some bad ones. My irons still leave a lot to be desired, but they may come around. I made a couple of putts, but I missed a couple of short ones, too. 'I didn't play that well, but I didn't play that badly either,'" he said. It was Palmer's first competitive round since a pain-racked 82 in the PGA, a round that many thought signaled the end of his brilliant career.

1970 Mercury
Now there are four Direct Charging Mercurys.

In '69, Mercury surprised the industry with the revolutionary new 80-hp Merc 800—first of the Direct Chargers and the Merc that created a whole new kind of outboard engine.

Now, for 1970, there are four new Direct Charging Mercurys: the 6-cylinder Merc 1350 and 1150, the 4-cylinder Merc 800, and the 2-cylinder Merc 400.

What happens inside a Direct Charging Mercury? The unique design of transfer passages, inlet ports and piston shape give precise control of the incoming fuel-air charge for most efficient cylinder filling and elimination of exhaust gases, giving tremendously increased power and efficiency.

Coupled with Mercury's Thunderbolt ignition system, this produces more horsepower per cubic inch—more miles per gallon—more horsepower per pound—more horsepower per dollar.

Put very simply, Direct Charging means a lot more power in a lighter, more compact package with less investment and operating costs. And again in 1970, it's a Mercury exclusive.

BOWLING

Usually its the parents that beat the kids, but this past week 16-year-old Deborah Beardsley of Drayton Plains turned the tables and beat her mother.

Beat her by one pin in bowling that is.

Debbie, a junior at Waterford Kettering high school, who actively competes in the Howe's League every Saturday, reached one of the high points of her young career when she shot a personal high game of 267 last week.

The high game, coupled with other games of 158-179, gave Debbie a 654 series for the night, or 255 pins over her 138 average.

Debbie, who has garnered various trophies in her six years of bowling, added another laurel to her growing list by winning the league's high game honors for the night.

There was a hot fivesome out at Howe's Lanes Tuesday night when the Waterford Merchants league started their play.

The league's first place team, Corbin's Barber Shop, recorded one of the area's highest team games and series when Larry Meyers, 248; Carl Lloyd, 262; Irv Killian, 214; Larry Thompson, 248; and Ray Conley, 223, for a 1131-310 total.

Oxford's Ace Stays Unbeaten

Jim Goodfellow of Oxford warmed up for tomorrow's Oxford Invitational Cross Country meet by leading the Wildcats to a 15-48 victory over Rochester High yesterday.

Goodfellow, unbeaten this season, is favored in the individual competition. He is expected to be pushed by Julius Aiello of Riverside and Rochester Adams' Ed Griffs.

Defending champion Detroit East Catholic, Oxford, Adams and Lahser are among the team favorites in the meet which will start at 10:30 a.m. About 250 varsity and reserve hurriers are expected.

Goodfellow ran the Oxford course in 10:23 while pacing the win over Rochester. Teammates Dennis Clack, Steve Brill, John Meriano and Paul Smith followed in that order.

Is Southern California's Number Up?

By the Associated Press
College football teams play the numbers game again Saturday ... and Southern California's number may be up.

The Trojans, ranked No. 3 in the country, play No. 11 Notre Dame. But despite the wide difference in the rankings, the Irish are favored to undermine the boys from the Golden West.

"It's ridiculous for us to be favored in this game," says Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame. "Coach John Ralston of Stanford, who played both, said Southern California was a better team than Purdue ... and Purdue beat us."

However, a couple of factors favor the Irish in this one. After losing to Purdue 28-14, Notre Dame (3-1) rebounded impressively by trouncing Michigan State and Army. And quarterback Joe Theismann, who has found a consistent target in sophomore end Tom Gatewood, figures to exploit the Trojans secondary, which helped allow Stanford 24 points last week.

DAY OFF

The game at South Bend, Ind., is one of two Saturday matching teams in the Top Twenty. In the other, seventh-ranked Tennessee plays at Alabama, No. 20.

Arkansas have the day off. In the other top games, No. 1 Ohio State plays at Minnesota; No. 5 Penn State clashes with Syracuse; Missouri, No. 6, entertains Oklahoma State; eighth-ranked UCLA plays California; Louisiana State, No. 9, plays at Kentucky; Colorado visits Oklahoma, No. 12; Michigan, the 13th-ranked team, is at Michigan State; No. 14 Georgia plays at Vanderbilt; Auburn, No. 15, visits Georgia Tech; Wyoming, No. 16, entertains Brigham Young; Iowa plays at No. 17 Purdue; Washington State takes on Stanford, No. 18, and Southern Mississippi is at Mississippi, No. 10.

Southern California (4-0) impressed with resounding victory over Nebraska and Northwestern, but had to pull out a shaky 26-24 win over Stanford last week with a last-minute field goal.

The offense is led by tailback Clarence Davis, the nation's No. 2 rusher, and quarterback phenomenon Jimmy Jones.

Alabama's once-proud defense has crumbled this year, yielding an average of 415.3 yards a game to four opponents. The Crimson Tide will have to be stronger to withstand the Volunteers' flashy offense, which has scored 157 points in four games—a 39.3 average.

Ohio State, which has averaged over 50 points a game, should have little trouble in the willful Gophers, a Big Ten brother.

Penn State and Syracuse will be playing for football supremacy in the East. Halfback Charlie Pittman can race rings around the opposition, and figures to give Syracuse plenty of trouble with his fast sprints.

Missouri's Tigers rank as solid favorites over outgunned Oklahoma State by virtue of a 17-7 victory over tough Nebraska last Saturday.

UCLA unfurls its triple option against California, with young quarterback Dennis Dummitt, the catalyst.

ANSWER: The aim of the Red Cross is to relieve human suffering. Through Red Cross societies in over 80 nations, programs are worked out suitable to particular needs. All Red Cross people unite to serve humanity of every race or creed in peace or war.

To implement its program, the Red Cross sends workers to help servicemen and veterans. It moves rapidly and efficiently in any disaster to provide relief. It collects and distributes more than 2 million pints of human blood each year. It sends disaster relief to other organizations which need help. It offers courses in first aid, home nursing, driver education.

The society was organized in 1859 by Jean Henri Dunant after he saw the suffering at the battle of Solferino. The society's flag honors Switzerland, where it was founded, for the Swiss flag is a white cross on a red field, and the Red Cross flag is just the reverse.

We recommend the work of the Junior Red Cross; find out about it through your school.

The answer was yes, provided diamonds would divide 3-2. At trick two, our pessimist ruffed a heart with a small trump. At trick three, he led the six of

Course on Jokes

Class a Laughing Matter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's "Mainly I write comedy no joke. Norman Hayes says he's going to teach a course on how to tell jokes.

"I had a real job once. I worked in a sardine canning factory. As the can of sardines came by, I had to close my eyes and listen to the can openers on television and in nightclubs."

Hayes, 23, says there are a lot of people who don't know how to tell a joke.

Some Hayes tips:
• Look up a joke in a joke anthology or crib one off a comedy record.
• Put it in your own language.
• Memorize it and practice telling it over and over until it sounds natural.
• Don't announce you're going to tell it.

Is Hayes a comedian himself? "No, I have performed but I get stage fright," he said.

Sisters Find Recipe for Reunion

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Take five sisters who haven't seen one another for seven years, subtract husbands and children, add plenty of homemade pie and strong coffee, sprinkle liberally with nostalgia and let sit several hours around the kitchen table.

That's the recipe my four sisters and I concocted last weekend at the home of one of them in Washington, D.C., and we all agreed it was an unqualified success.

The principal ingredients for this satisfying combination came by plane, train and car from all over the country for the long-planned reunion, and the result was a couple of days of bedlam but not boredom.

Most of the time the place was filled with friends, friends of friends, and possibly a few strangers who saw the crowd and decided to stop in and see what the excitement was about. Then there was the fashion show. Since four of us wear the same size shoes and three of us wear the same size dresses, and all of us wear the same size earrings and necklaces and bracelets, a few mutually agreeable exchanges were made.

The picture-taking session was a protracted one. The photographer shot dozens to make sure at least one would be good of the entire quintet, but when the proofs arrived we couldn't agree on which one it was. This problem was solved by each of us ordering the one in which our own picture was most flattering.

After 48 hours of togetherness — our memories reactivated, our closeness renewed, our throats raw from trying to speak above the chorus, and our eyes heavy from lack of sleep — we separated.

Who says you can't go home to date on the ones we had kept again? You can — for a little while — and it's beautiful!

Border Crackdown in New Phase

Dope Smugglers Persistent

NOGALES, Mexico (AP) — to measure Intercept's effectiveness are not available. A border crossing station had veteran customs officer says, however, the operation discouraged words of a youth who had aged drug traffic.

FRACTION OF TRAFFIC
"We're not catching as much as we normally do," he said.

There's no known way of determining how much got through undetected. U.S. and Mexican authorities feel that present control systems are capable of halting only a fraction of the U.S.-bound traffic.

IN PLASTIC CAPSULE
A small, foreign car drove up to the same inspection station. Inside the plastic capsule housing the turn indicator on the fender, inspectors found two ounces of heroin in another device wedged around the light bulb.

The local wholesale price for heroin at the time was $750 an ounce.

Ten pounds of marijuana were discovered inside the tubeless spare tire of another car returning from Mexico.

A 20-year-old Phoenix, Ariz., girl died in a motel room here; authorities blamed an overdose of morphine. She had driven here for the fix.

800 POUNDS

On a lonely desert road some 70 miles northwest of here, near Ajo, Ariz., a U.S. Border Patrol roadblock snared two cars with marijuana totaling 800 pounds. Customs officers suspected the load had been parachuted to a spot in the desert by airborne smugglers.

All this occurred during Operation Intercept, the sharpest narcotics vigil the United States has ever put up along the 2,000-mile Mexican border. For nearly three weeks customs officers carefully combed thousands of vehicles leaving Mexico at 38 border crossing stations.

Ground radar and aerial and jeep patrols at unguarded border areas were intensified. Even a marijuana-smuggling dog was pressed into duty at San Ysidro, Calif.

"Intercept" has been superseded by Operation Cooperation, a joint effort by the two countries to combat narcotics production and traffic.

SHARP CRITICISM
The unilateral U.S. effort had come under sharp criticism from Mexican and American leaders who claimed it was harming relations between the two countries and obstructing border commerce that totaled $1.15 billion last year.

The incidents in and around this small border community illustrate the dedication and imagination of dope smugglers, professional and amateur, and the frustrations common to present narcotics contraband controls in the United States and Mexico.

During Operation Intercept's 21 days, customs agents turned up 3,202 pounds of marijuana; 78 pounds of hashish, a more potent version of marijuana; 16 pounds of peyote, a hallucinogenic cactus; 3½ pounds of heroin; 74,366 pills classified as "dangerous drugs" and three vials of a supposed aphrodisiac. They also seized smaller quantities of morphine, cocaine, demoral, codeine, Percodan—all dangerous drugs if used nonmedically.

Figures for a comparative 1968 two-week period with which

Lack of funds and corruption in the official bureaucracy—from customs agents to generals commanding military zones in the narcotics-producing states—are cited as obstacles. Low salaries paid customs and narcotics officers, ranging up from $80 to $100 a month, seem to invite bribes.

A narcotics task force report to President Nixon in June recommended that Mexico be encouraged to establish a bureau of narcotics with U.S. technical and financial aid. U.S. officials believe this will have to be undertaken cautiously so as not to offend Mexico, proud of the fact it receives no American aid.

Dr. Alfonso Quiroz Cuaron, one of Mexico's foremost criminologists, says the basic causes of the problem reside in U.S. society.

"HUNT FOR CAUSES"

"The question is," he said, "what creates the market for narcotics in the United States? We must find the deepest roots, the basic causes and combat them."

"You're trying to combat narcotics addiction with the same sterile methods of liquor prohibition. The problem must be tackled at its source, your society and its ills that have created this market."

There's concern among responsible Mexicans in the larger urban areas, and even in small communities like this one, that narcotics addiction in Mexico will reach levels similar to those in the United States.

"We now have all the syndromes," says Quiroz Cuaron, "of mass drug intoxication among our youths in the upper middle and upper classes. It's becoming a problem in the larger cities."

"A BRIDGE"

Among younger Mexicans, marijuana serves as a "bridge" to more dangerous narcotics experiences, he told an interviewer.

"The classic route among our youth," he explained, "is from marijuana to peyote, to mushrooms and finally to LSD."

Peyote and a type of hallucinogenic mushroom are avail-

Soviets Hit Gym Class Lack

MOSCOW (AP)—Complaints are rising in the Soviet Union about neglect of gym classes and schools failure to promote the country's sports program.

Many people abroad think the Soviet Union places all possible emphasis on developing athletes, but actually physical education is a stepchild of the curriculum for all ages. Only two hours a week are set aside for it, and this tends to be shorted or dropped if something academic gets in the way.

Boys and girls who want serious sports training have to turn to clubs run by the Pioneer Youth organization or factories. This must be on their own time. The clubs have helped produce Soviet victories at the Olympics and other international sports events. But they are not spread evenly over the country and many children cannot make use of them.

School authorities do not want to use time and resources on sports that can be used for regular subjects. Coaches are often lacking or unqualified, with 40 per cent having no sports training at all. Gyms, tracks and other facilities are woefully inadequate. Physical education has been relegated to a noncredit status and does not affect academic averages.

"No changes in the number of hours given to physical education are foreseen for the years immediately ahead," said V. P. Bogoslovsky, head of the department of schools of the Ministry of Education.

Bogoslovsky confirmed that only 1,275 gym teachers were added to faculties this year, and more than one-third of these lacked a university education. He also reported that only 1,159 gyms and 38 sports complexes were built over the past 12 months.

A recent survey of schools in four advanced industrial centers—Kuybyshev, Chelyabinsk, Stalinsk and Voronezh—pointed out the state of gym classes.

At school No. 3 in Kuybyshev, a city on the Volga, no time was found for the seventh grade's gym class until the second week after school started. Then a single two-hour period was fitted in at the last moment. Children living nearby ran home for their gym suits and the rest had to take part in street clothes.

WALKS TO STADIUM
Because the school has no sports field of its own, the class walked to a distant stadium, where it used a small corner for the boys to play soccer and the girls to toss a ball back and forth. The games had to be stopped after 20 minutes so the class could get back to school in time.

At school No. 66 in Voronezh gym teacher Anatoli Kilayev said: "These kids don't know the taste of sweat. They should be taught to like it. But this can't be done in two hours a week."

In the Chelyabinsk region in the Urals only 545 of the 900 schools have gyms. One school has physical education classes in corridors. The pupils go on tiptoe to avoid disturbing other classes.

At Stavropol in the Caucasus the majority of schools do not have any playing fields and physical education usually consists of running around the schoolyard.

A. I. Danilov, minister of education for the Russian Federation, said it was impractical to put the same emphasis on physical education as on other subjects because "there are still many big shortcomings in facilities."

Shortages of sports equipment are frequently reported in the press and cover everything from gym suits to hockey sticks.

M. G. Daminetsev, a coach at Moscow high school 101, stressed the difficulties of getting money for sports facilities. He complained that "the Ministry of Finance categorically refused to allocate the needed sums."

Mrs. Alexei Selkina, a Moscow mother of three, said, "It's a strange situation when everybody except the Ministry of Education understands you can't develop a well-rounded person without physical training."

'Africa Feels the Plight of Desert Blight

KRUGER NATIONAL PARK, South Africa (AP)—A blight of desert sand is slowly spreading over Africa from southwest to northeast, a leading Swedish conservationist says.

Deserts and semideserts already cover 49 per cent of the continent's surface, mostly in the north. Now, thanks to man, the waste land is moving up from the south.

Many bird species are among wildlife threatened by the change man has wrought in his surroundings. Dr. Kai Curry-Lindahl told the Pan-African Ornithological Congress, meeting in South Africa's largest game reserve.

Man and birds have lived together in Africa for two million years, longer than in any other region of the world, he said, but in the past century whites in Africa have been blind to the "ruthless destruction" of nature by cattle.

NOT REALIZED

"It was not realized that tropical Africa is a climax region where animals and plants live in a balanced interrelationship after millions of years of uninterrupted evolution," he said.

"If one or several elements of this highly specialized and productive community is disturbed the whole system collapses."

In southern Africa, he said, only a few fragments of the former richness and productivity of the natural country remain. "Plows and tractors have transformed the savanna into farm land where few birds and plants can live. More than one-third of southern Africa has already been conquered by deserts and arid shrub steppes."

Diller Gets Proposal to Play 'Dolly' on New Year's Eve

NEW YORK — Phyllis Diller said "Yes" when David Merrick posed the question to her — would she like to take over Pearl Bailey's part in "Hello, Dolly!" this New Year's Eve? "If we can work out the money," added Phyllis, the Lima, O., glamour girl. Her husband, Ward Donovan, now appearing with her at the American Royal Box, would probably also join the cast. Cob Calloway, Miss Bailey's co-star, told Phyllis, "I'd like to stay with you and be your Horace" — her "Horace van der Gelder."

Shirley MacLaine finished writing her book about her observations while working around the world . . . it isn't dirty nor even sexy . . . but she's not sure whether she wants to publish it. She's not sure it's good enough. "I'm not a writer," she told me at Danny's Hideaway. "But I wrote it myself!"

All you guys with mustaches — and you girls with mustaches, too: Australian psychiatrist Dr. Neville Parker claims after a 2-year study that men with mustaches nearly always have sex problems.

Bridget Hanley, the Candy Pruitt of the ABC "Here Comes the Bride" TV show, was in 2L when she discovered that producer-director Cy Howard had just been there — and she saw red.

"Five years ago," she said, "when he was doing a pilot for 'The Daughter of My Friend Irma,' I dressed as sexy as I could for an audition. He looked at me and said, 'WHAT IS IT — A BOY OR GIRL?'"

Nigeria's Strained Army Faces Rebellion in West

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — their leaders accused of tax agitation. More than 400 prisoners were taken to the limits fighting a 27-month-old civil war in the east, now faces mounting rebellion in the west.

The Ibadan army garrison, estimated at 12,000, is helping police an area of roughly 100 square miles within traditional lands of the Yorubas, a highly politicized tribe of 10 million.

Unofficial but reliable estimates say more than 200 persons have died since Sept. 16 when farmers stormed the Ibadan prison to release some of general discontent with the war from farmers who grow their families' food and maybe some cocoa for export—and who feel the economic and military crunch.

Sporadic rioting in 1965 and again in late 1968, also laid to politics, cost more than 100 lives in each of the two years.

Now, farmers are using sophisticated weapons along with the battered muskets they have always had. In several cases, they have placed logs across bush roads and sprayed police

Land Rovers with gunfire from which, with the embattled east, make up the southern part of the federation.

Nigeria's vast north, five times the area of the southern part with about equal population, has escaped all but the economic hardships of war. But northerners face frustrating delays in essential goods, travel documents and other such matters since almost all paper work is done hundreds of miles away in Lagos.

ECONOMY STRONG

Nigeria's over-all economy remains strong, mostly because

We keep a thief in our aging houses.

It's not the regular kind, of course. Our thief is a long tube. We use it to see how our Jim Beam Bourbon is aging from year to year in our special charred, white oak barrels. These barrels breathe, just like your skin. And as they breathe, they let some elements in and keep some out. In time, this helps make that wonderful, light and warm Jim Beam taste that's been a Beam family art for nearly 175 years. So when we tell you there's a thief in our aging house, it doesn't mean we end up with less Bourbon. All it means is we end up with the best Bourbon. "World's finest Bourbon since 1795."

Fire Pole—Next Big Status Symbol?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the past four or five weeks I've been going around in this area quietly buying up fire poles.

In small towns and villages you can get them for a song.

"I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire" is the number I use.

I already have a sizable inventory and by the time my new company, Glamorous Fire Poles Inc., gets its charter, I expect to have a corner on the market.

IDEA IN RELEASE

The idea of going into the fire pole business came to me in a press release I received from Bernard Geis the publisher who specialized in sexy books. It reported that Geis had installed a fire pole in his New York offices.

The pole "was put there to expedite interoffice travel from the fifth to the fourth floor" the release explained. "The elevator in the building rises only to the fourth floor and to extend it to the fifth was impractical."

I doubt that the fire pole is 100 per cent practical either. It may be fine for expediting inter-office travel from the fifth to the fourth floor but when it comes to expediting interoffice travel from the fourth to the fifth floor a fire pole has certain disadvantages.

For this reason, my company is not stressing practically. We intend to base our sales pitch on snob appeal.

STATUS SYMBOL

The press release goes on to say that Geis "got the idea of installing the fire pole after visiting Hugh Hefner, publisher of Playboy magazine. While in Hefner's Chicago home, Geis slid down the fireman's pole that connects the living room to the swimming pool level."

Therein lies my company's bright future. If a couple of trend-setters like Hefner and Geis have fire poles in their pads or offices, fire poles are certain to become a major status symbol.

Be the first in your neighborhood to have a fire pole in your place and your reputation as a swinger will be made. Unless, of course, you happen to be a fireman.

The only difficulty I can foresee is selling fire poles to people who live in single-story ramblers or ranch houses. I mean, you can't very well slide from ground level to ground level.

POSSIBLE SOLUTION

I'm sure, however, you and your interior decorator can work something out. One solution might be to cut a large circular hole in your living-room ceiling and run the fire pole on up through the roof. When guests arrive, you can expedite their entrances by having them climb a ladder up to the attic and slide in.

I'll concede that your home might get a mile damp during a rainstorm. But that's a small price to pay for being fashionable.

Dr. And Mrs. Oscar Sorenson, Owners Of Wedgwood Hall In Rochester

Museum Hails Victorian Era

By JODY HEADLEE

Home Editor, The Pontiac Press
Interested in turning back the clock to an era not beset by miniskirts and maxi problems?

A visit to Rochester's Wedgwood Hall at 324 East will do just that. Owned by Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Sorenson, the private museum is open Tuesday through Sunday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. It is closed Monday.

"The restoration was a family project," proudly relates Mrs. Sorenson. "My husband did all of the planning and architectural designing and his brother who is a retired masonry contractor did most of the work."

"It took 10 months to complete. The insides were torn right back to the brick and original 2 x 4s. With the help of Detroit Edison engineers, it now qualified as an all-electric home despite its look of antiquity."

OLD YET NEW

"The house is electrically heated, air-conditioned and air-cleaned."

Motioning to the gleaming surfaces of the walnut, rosewood and mahogany pieces she continued. "They haven't been dusted in four weeks. Would you believe it!"

"We understand with this type of heat, the humidity will remain more constant. And with the preservation of antiques, this is important."

"The house was built around 1859 by A. Horn, a former Rochester merchant. The simulated ionic columns on the bay window reflect its Greek Revival period," added Mrs. Sorenson.

ORIGINAL DETAIL

"In restoring the rooms, we saved all the original woodwork including the baseboards and door frames for authenticity."

"The furniture's been collected through the years. It all started when friends of ours in Dayton began antiquing. We went along and before we knew it, we were caught and collecting on our own."

Electric logs crackle merrily in the dining room's old brick fireplace.

"Don't miss the upholstered cuspidor near the hearth," said Mrs. Sorenson.

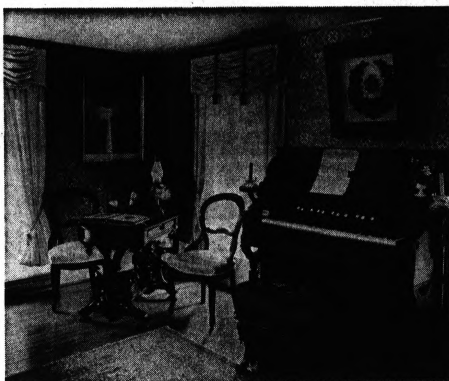

"It's of heavy silver plate and one of my husband's favorite antiques. Notice there's a pedal on each side just in case there was a need for speed."

The melodic chimes of the rosewood grandfather clock filled the room.

"It's a rare find," said Mrs. Sorenson. "It has three sets of chimes, Westminster, St. Michael's and Wittington. You can take your pick."

"It bears the mark Tiffany and Co. The works were imported from England and installed in the American cabinet. We've had it checked by a watchmaker and he said that it's in such perfect balance that it should run for 1,000 years barring accident."

Protest Arrests

Bring 3 Charges

DETROIT (AP) - Two juveniles have been charged with larceny from a building and another with carrying a concealed weapon in incidents connected with Wednesday's Vietnam Moratorium Day.

The three warrants, sworn out Thursday, were the only ones issued against any of the 39 persons arrested in demonstration-connected incidents.

Astaire and Robert Wagner, the series star, are a good team - or they would be if they didn't have such arch humor to fling around. The plots are better than the words in this series.

Second of Three Soviet Spaceships Lands Safely

MAKE OVER PAGES

MOSCOW (U) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 8.

The other ship in this biggest-ever mission, Soyuz 6, was brought to earth yesterday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov aboard.

The mission of Soyuz 7 was declared "successfully completed," as Soyuz 6's flight had been 24 hours earlier.

Nikolai Kazakov wrote in Krasnaya Zvezda—Red Star: "For the first time we obtained information on how different metals are welded and cut and how they melt in conditions of space vacuum and weightlessness."

The Soyuz 6 cosmonauts, Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov, met Soviet journalists at a news conference after their landing. The question-and-answer text included these exchanges:

Q — How did the welding experiments work out in weightless conditions?

Kubasov — The welding experiments went well. But it's a bit too early yet to speak about results.

Q — Tell us how easy it is to control the spaceship and how did it respond to your commands?

On Inflation War

Nixon Takes Case to Nation

WASHINGTON (U) — President Nixon, buoyed by statistics pointing away from the hard, unremitting inflation of the past four years, is taking his views on still-rising living costs to the nation.

Nixon chose to make his promised economic report to the nation today in a half-hour radio broadcast largely directed to housewives — the captains of consumer spending. The nationwide broadcast was scheduled for 3 p.m. (Pontiac time).

Presidential counselor Arthur F. Burns and Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, told a White House news conference definite indications of weakening inflation are beginning to appear.

"Administration restraints 'are pretty clearly now beginning to show some bite,'" McCracken said. Burns vowed "we will not budge" from restraints until they work.

While the President was preparing to appeal to consumers, his key economic advisers were trying to enlist the support of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va.

One council leader who was at a meeting with the President yesterday said Nixon "made no requests of us to do a damn thing more than we are doing, except to understand what he is trying to do. Maybe later he will ask us for something, but not yet."

Apparently few members of the council believe Nixon can liquidate the inflation without an unwanted further increase in unemployment. Some spoke of the possibility of a mild recession.

Although administration spokesmen said their policies are doing the job of slowing inflation, the feeling was not unanimous in Capitol Hill.

Forty-four House Democrats called on the President Thursday to mount "a genuine war on inflation," including possible consumer credit controls. And they asked him to withdraw his objections to wage-price guideposts.

Nixon made clear to congressmen at meetings this week that he might veto federal pay raise legislation and also the tax reform bill if it would contribute to a budget deficit.

He also appealed to Congress to extend the income tax surcharge until next June at 5 per cent, half its current figure.

At the same time McCracken and Burns were outlining current administration thinking, the Commerce Department and Federal Reserve Board disclosed a mixed set of economic indicators.

The Gross National Product — total output of goods and services — jumped by $17.5 billion in July, August and September, larger than the $16.4 billion boost in the second quarter.

However, industrial production, declined for the second consecutive month, the Federal Reserve Board said.

Shell Shocks Orion Child

An Orion Township child received the surprise of his 3-year-old life last night when a "toy" shell from his toy rifle went through the wall.

According to Pontiac State Police, Kurt, the son of Brian Glover of 2493 Flintridge, Orion Township, loaded a 20-gauge shotgun shell into his toy rifle thinking it was just another "toy."

When he pulled the trigger, the Johnny Eagle Skeet Shooter, a plastic gun, went off firing the bullet through the bedroom wall.

Kurt was terrified but not injured when the gun went off police reported.

The youngster apparently found the shell in his parent's bedroom while playing and was able to fit it into his toy shotgun, according to police.

Police said that the father reported the incident to warn other parents of possible dangers.

Protest Hits School Board

By MARY SUNDSTROM

About three-quarters of last night's capacity audience of about 140 at the Pontiac Board of Education meeting walked out after ripping up copies of a proposed amendment to the district's policy on student suspensions.

The proposed amendment would add "disrupting the normal functioning of school" to a list of 18 reasons for suspending or closing classes to students.

Those who walked out apparently objected to a proposal that stated that when a student has been suspended or had his classes closed, he "may be required to sign an agreement regarding his future behavior in school or school-sponsored activities."

The proposal also outlined disrupting the normal functioning of school as "the act of creating a disturbance, engaging in a demonstration or promoting disorder which disrupts school."

CONDITIONS LISTED

Further, it would include but not be limited to "the failure of a student to do the following when requested by a teacher or administrator:

- "Cease blocking the entrance to a portion of the school grounds, building or any room or hallway in the school building.
- "Go to an assigned classroom or schedule station.
- "Leave the school building or grounds.
- "Stop making loud noises — singing, chanting, cheering — which are not a part of school-sponsored activities."

Those who walked of the board meeting last night, mostly blacks, began singing as they stood in the hallway. After singing for about 15 minutes, most left the building.

The proposal also would authorize school officials to have students arrested if they violate a city ordinance or state law when participating in a student disturbance or disorder.

The board did not act on the amendment, according to board policy. The amendment may, however, come up for action at the next regular meeting Nov. 6.

From the audience, Mrs. Marie Johnson, assistant director of the Pontiac Black Cultural Center, suggested that a student board decide on the disposition of disruptive students instead of having civil law enforcement.

Students Rewarded for SF State Stands?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Teachers at San Francisco State College have been accused of giving inflated grades to students according to whether they supported or opposed campus unrest last year.

The campus newspaper Phoenix said a computer study showed that more than 75 per cent of all grades given in the semester last spring were As and Bs, averaging 3.22 on a scale rating 4 as an A. This compared with the previous record high average of 2.37 in 1964.

"Grades were given by a number of professors as rewards for striking or staying away from classes," declared Dr. Frederick Terrien, chairman of the Academic Senate, composed of 42 of the school's 1,300 full-and part-time instructors.

But students and professors who supported a campus strike declared inflated grades were given to students who sided with President S. I. Hayakawa. He took over the 18,000-student campus last November and called police to restore order after four months of student and teacher strikes.

MORNING AFTER THE NIGHT BEFORE — New Yorkers are back at the old grind today amidst Wall Street's litter — mute reminder of one heck of a celebration yesterday. The National League Mets took four games in a row to become baseball's champs, and Gotham went wild. The tickertape blizzard was "even better than for the (Apollo 11) astronauts," one secretary said. O'Neil Blasts School Reform Plan

BY JIM LONG

James F. O'Neil, treasurer of the Michigan Board of Education, last night urged that the Legislature reject Gov. Milliken's proposal to abolish the state school board.

Appearing before the House Taxation Committee, the Livonia Republican then recommended that the eight-member school board be elected on a nonpartisan basis.

O'Neil was one of about a dozen educators and citizens who voiced their opinions about the governor's education reform package during a public hearing in Waterford Township.

Some 75 persons attended the hearing in the Oakland County Intermediate School District Office.

Reaction was varied, however, most comments were critical of the governor's plan.

O'Neil contended that the governor's recommendation to replace the state board of education with a director of education and regional directors would "bury the responsibility for education in a bureaucracy that would be unresponsive and unaccountable to the public."

He said that a state school board is the best insurance of public control over public education.

"If there were no state school board, the director could impose sex education guidelines, as well as other guidelines, on the public schools without thorough review of the state board of education or the public."

O'Neil's recent battle over sex instruction in public schools led up to the resignation last week of State School Supt. Ira J. Polley.

Admitting that he has not been satisfied with the performance of the school board in the past, O'Neil said the unanimous selection of Dr. John W. Porter on Tuesday would play an important role in resolving problems.

O'Neil said he hoped that in the future, politics could be removed in the selection of state school board members. Presently school board candidates are nominated at party conventions and then elected by the voters.

"I feel that education, like justice, is above politics," O'Neil said.

In asking lawmakers to turn down

Milliken's proposal to eliminate the school board, O'Neil said he was expressing the official position of the school board.

To date, he said, it is only on that point the state school board has made its feeling known, and that the other proposals made by Milliken will be reviewed at length with recommendations to be made at a later time.

Mrs. Virginia Crawford of Dearborn, president of the Michigan Citizens Council, echoed the sentiments of several speakers when she said, "You are taxing us to death and we can't take anymore."

"I'm really appalled at what the governor has proposed," she said. "It's nothing but a power grab."

Port Huron-Detroit: 'Development Corridor'

Birmingham Area

Firm Named Bloomfield Hills Counsel

By ED BLUNDEN

PONT HURON — This is the city of the future — a twin city to Detroit — in the studies released here yesterday by one of the world's most renowned urban consultants.

Dr. Constantinos A. Doxiadis of Athens, Greece, presented detailed projection of expected growth for the urban Detroit area as well as some of his personal philosophy on cities.

His ideas call for the decentralization of cities to units of 50,000.

The study, "The Urban Detroit Area Research Project," was carried out by Doxiadis' firm in conjunction with Wayne State University and is commissioned by the Detroit Edison Co.

FOR PLANNING USE

The power firm will use the material in its future planning.

The study is the third of three parts to be contained in three volumes to be available to communities to aid their planning. The final volume will be published sometime next year.

The concept of Port Huron-Detroit as a twin city with a corridor of development reaching out in a northeasterly direction from Detroit is in contrast to concepts contained in a similar study.

This is the Transportation and Land Use Study (TALUS) released last year. TALUS projected a main corridor of growth from Detroit heading northwest, through Pontiac.

BETWEEN CORRIDOR

In the Doxiadis project the Pontiac area and northern Oakland County would lie between the corridor of development to Port Huron and one descending from Bay City towards Toledo.

Questioned about this following yesterday's presentation, Doxiadis said the two studies were not necessarily in conflict, but that the TALUS projections were based on what had happened thus far.

He said his study was "more comprehensive." He also pointed out that the TALUS study was projected toward 1985 and the Edison project toward 2000.

Doxiadis described the twin-city concept as "the computer's answer" to the question of future development.

BREAKDOWN BY COMMUNITY

The study contains a community-by-community breakdown of expected growth along industrial, commercial and residential lines.

Doxiadis sees it as a valuable tool for planners in all the communities involved.

"I want them to see it, study it, and then the dialogue will begin," he said.

Future growth and the creation of new and larger cities will only recreate problems of the past and present without a basic change in the concept of a city, in Doxiadis view.

'ONGOING PROCESS'

He looks upon the problems of race conflict and blight as a natural and ongoing process built into the system.

No city administration, no matter how organized, can possibly deal with millions of people, he contends.

Doxiadis said all the great cities of the past—Athens, Florence, Paris, Jerusalem—had about 50,000 population.

"Pericles, walking from his home to the Parthenon, would have met from 130 to 170 persons," he said, pointing out this gave Pericles the type of insight into what people desired to rule Athens wisely.

NO PHYSICAL CHANGES

The restructuring of metropolitan area government's into his ideal-size would not require physical changes. Each unit could be the local government, handling affairs in a way suitable to the population.

Supplementing the local government would be a regional government, Doxiadis pointed to the region's current six-county Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) as the nucleus of this idea. Above all would be the national government, much as it presently exists. Both the upper layers of government would be free of having to solve purely local problems.

Doxiadis has little respect for "urban renewal." He said, "Let us keep what is good and be reluctant to demolish."

VITAL FACTOR

In urban renewal projects, the planners did not take into account a vital factor, Doxiadis pointed out — the cleared land remains vacant for several years. This creates a vacuum which damages the entire city and creates an artificial situation, he said.

Doxiadis is also an enemy of parking lots and claimed they are ruining the city of Detroit.

Nothing in his plan calls for any increase in the level of federal aid or tax rates, he said.

Say Waterford Schools Officials

Millage, Staff Keys to Full Days

By DICK ROBINSON

Waterford Township school officials say they hope to restore full-day classes in January if a millage increase proposal passes and 130 teachers are recruited.

Meantime, their battle against a parent's court order to restore full days is scheduled to come before the Michigan Supreme Court Nov. 4.

Preliminary plans to put pupils in one through three back on full days from half-day sessions and secondary students on a six-hour day from five hours are complete, Roy Alexander, assistant superintendent for instruction, said at the board of education meeting last night.

All that needs to be done is to find

SUCCESS DOUBTFUL

Schools officials said they aren't sure they can find the needed teachers by the first of the year.

One problem is that there is a limited number of qualified teachers available and those available will be inexperienced teachers just graduating from college, explained acting Supt. Dr. John Pagen.

Recruitment efforts at 60 colleges in the midwest have so far produced 170 inquiries, including 80 social study teachers, 30 English, 37 elementary and 20 uncertified teachers and no industrial arts candidates.

"It is a highly abnormal situation to do this retuning during the school year when we are just trying to keep the school program going," Pagen commented.

ONE AT A TIME

Elementary pupils will be taken off half days one grade at a time, according to Alexander.

Fourth-grade pupils at Four Towns, Leggett, Donelson and Houghton Schools will be returned to full days first, he said. They were put on half days with all the first, second and third graders.

Then the third graders will go back to full days, followed by the second and first.

Restoring full-day programs in the secondary schools is more difficult since the programs must be completely rescheduled, Alexander said. He outlined these changes:

- Junior high schools — one hour will be added to each the math-science block in grade 7 and language arts — social studies block in grade 8 and one additional elective in grade 9.

- Senior high schools — one elective hour will be added to grades 10 and 11 and in grade 12 when desired or needed.

In related matters, Pagen said the Michigan Supreme Court is scheduled to begin deliberation on Nov. 4 on whether financially-troubled Waterford district can legally operate half-day classes to avoid deficit financing.

The high court decided to take the Waterford appeal from the Michigan Court of Appeals, along with a similar one by Livonia schools.

Psychiatrist Faces Charges: 'Sex Therapy,' 2 Abortions

Three warrants, two of them charging illegal abortions were to be served this noon against a 40-year-old Farmington Township psychiatrist.

County Prosecutor Thomas Plunkett said Dr. Robert O. Anderson of 29700 Orchard Lake, Farmington Township, will be charged in one warrant with twice engaging in sexual intercourse under the pretext of medical treatment and in two other warrants with performing abortions.

He was to be arraigned this afternoon before District Judge Michael Hand of Farmington Township.

Plunkett said the complaint for all three warrants is a 29-year-old Livonia woman, Alice MacDonald. Mrs. MacDonald, a divorcee, claims the sexual intercourse took place between April and December of 1968. The abortions allegedly were performed in June 1968 and February 1969.

Mrs. MacDonald, according to the prosecutor, was not divorced when she first began seeing Anderson for treatment of alleged marital problems.

Plunkett said his office has been investigating the case since last February with the cooperation of the Farmington Township Police Department and the State Board of Registry of Medicine.

2 Staff Photogs to Get Awards

Pontiac Press photographers Edward R. Noble and Ron Unternahrer will receive certificates for their entries, judged among the best in the 28th annual news pictures contest sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism.

The photos they submitted were among 42 selected from more than 2,000 entries from newspapers belonging to the Inland Daily Press Association.

NOBLE UNTERNABRER

Noble was honored for a black-and-white picture series entitled "Fading Heritage," in competition for staff photographers on newspapers of 50,000 circulation or more. Noble's pictures were of a deserted farm.

In color competition, Unternahrer's photos entitled "Rebuilt Twice" placed second. His entry was a Spectacular page in The Press Home Section.

Awards are to be distributed Monday at the annual meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association in Chicago.

U. S. Plans to Keep Postwar GIs in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of U.S. troops probably will remain in Vietnam to advise and train South Vietnamese forces even after the war stops, according to Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird.

Laird's remarks to newsmen yesterday sounded like a return to the U.S. advisory effort maintained in South Vietnam under President John F. Kennedy.

This was the first time Laird has spoken publicly of administration thinking along these lines, and it is at odds with demands for a total and swift U.S. withdrawal.

At an impromptu news conference Laird refused to be specific, but said such a "residual force" of trainers and advisers would be a little bigger than the 6,000 or 7,000 men he said were in Vietnam during the Kennedy administration.

TOOK LEADING ROLE

The U.S. advisory force grew to about 16,000 men by the time Kennedy was assassinated in November 1963. President Lyndon B. Johnson sent American troops to Vietnam on a major scale in 1965 and the fighting strength rose to 543,500 after the United States assumed the leading combat role.

Asked how long the United States would keep an advisory force in Vietnam, Laird replied that "I wouldn't want to make a prediction."

However, when reporters noted the United States still has 55,000 men in Korea 16 years after the Korean War and about 320,000 in Europe 24 years after World War II, Laird commented, "I would not plan for anything like that."

more about having to go before a board of their peers than about appearing in court.

Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer said he felt that the schools have an obligation to work with the student body.

"I also think there is real merit in the school district taking a firm stand on student disorders," he added.

A black parent, Eddie Fletcher, said he was concerned that parents and Director of School-Community and Human Relations John Perdue were not included in the formulation of the amendment.

Whitmer said the policy amendment was drawn up quickly by Assistant Supt. William Lacy, Pupil Personnel Services Director Arnold Embree and himself in order to have it prepared for discussion at last night's meeting.

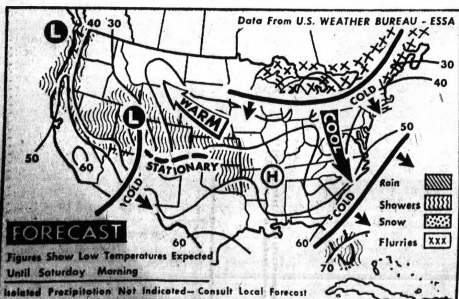

He said Perdue was out of town the last two days of last week when the policy was made up.

House Okay of Nixon Draft Plan Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's plan to draft 19-year-olds first under a lottery system appears likely to win House approval next week but its fate in the Senate is an open question.

By a surprise 314-0 vote, the House Armed Services Committee yesterday approved the plan aimed at giving 18-year-olds advance notice of their draft prospects.

House leaders, who believe they can block efforts to tack wholesale revisions on the bill, almost immediately scheduled floor action for late next week, indicating there is little hard opposition there.

But reports from the Senate indicated armed services committee Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., was reluctant to put the bill on the floor where critics such as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., have a host of proposed revisions including elimination of all college draft deferments.

COULDN'T BE REACHED

Stennis could not be reached for comment but Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, who favors elimination of the draft, discounted reports that the bill would be withdrawn.

"I feel certain that if the House passes it, he (Stennis) will report it out as expeditiously as possible," Mansfield said, "and if he does, I'll call it up as expeditiously as possible."

An effort to eliminate all college deferments was ruled out of order by a 21-10 roll-call vote in the House committee that indicated the strategy that may be used to block draft amendments on the House floor.

The committee ruled that the only issue before the House is a one-line bill to repeal the 1967 ban gained by a draft lottery. Under House Rule 17 any other draft proposal is not germane to that one-line repeal.

But an aide to Stennis noted the Senate has no such "not germane" rule with the aim to prevent wholesale amendments.

The elimination of college draft deferments was proposed by Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo.

Deferments "in time of a shooting war are one of the biggest mistakes we have made," he said.

Other college deferment critics—including Kennedy and Reps. Otis G. Pike D-N.Y., and Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich.—contend deferments are unfair simply because they put the burden of fighting to men who don't have the academic ability or money to go to college.

Nixon's lottery plan is aimed at letting 18-year-olds know their draft prospects the following year so they can make career plans accordingly.

The 365 birthdates for the following year would be drawn out of a hat in late September or early October to determine the order of call-ups. Men whose 19th birthdays fall on the first dates drawn would know they face the draft early in the year. Those with the last birthdates drawn likely would escape the draft entirely.

Seek Farmington Twp., Villages Incorporation

Cityhood Papers' Validity Is Questioned

By LOIS FRIEDLAND

FARMINGTON TOWNSHIP — Doubts are surfacing about the validity of the incorporation papers filed recently.

The papers filed with the State Boundaries Commission request incorporation of the entire township, including the villages of Woodcreek Farms and Quakertown, under the name of Farmington Hills.

A state commission spokesman today said, "We think it may be illegal to incorporate a township and two incorporated villages, but we still have to check carefully."

The answer is in the Home Rule Act, originally passed in 1909 and since amended frequently. The act delineates the general powers of cities and villages. Other public acts passed in 1935 and amended since—dealing with incorporation procedures and general powers of cities and villages—may also be consulted.

'REJECTION PROBABLE'

"If the incorporation papers prove invalid, we would probably reject the petition," said the spokesman.

The Boundaries Commission does have the right to extend or revise boundaries listed in incorporation papers. But how much revising is possible is highly questionable, according to the spokesman.

If the commission tries to revise the incorporation papers

by taking out a whole village—then the matter could be taken to court by objectors, according to the commission representative. He explained that the laws were very loosely written and possibly subject to a variety of interpretations.

If the petition is rejected, papers for annexation of the southern half of the township to the city would become active. This petition was filed at 8:20 a.m. Monday, 43 minutes after the incorporation papers were filed.

FURTHER CLOUDING

The two petitions have further clouded the air in the Farmington area, already made murky by the pro and con forces speaking on the upcoming consolidation vote.

Voters in the four municipalities—the city and township of Farmington and the two villages—go to the polls Nov. 4 to decide whether or not to approve a commission to draw up a city charter for consolidation.

Rumors floating through the area apparently convinced many township residents that the city was planning to annex much of the township if the consolidation failed.

City residents apparently became convinced that the township would attempt to incorporate if consolidation failed, leaving Farmington as a city completely enclosed within another city's boundaries.

RUSH THROUGH AREAS

Last weekend, d. petiti on promoters rushed through their respective areas to get the proper number of signatures—from one per cent of the people in the area to be annexed or incorporated. The petitions were filed Monday.

Assuming that the incorporation papers are rejected, and consolidation and annexation both fail; backers of annexation will have another chance if they file another petition.

The new petition, however, would probably have to exclude one of the two villages. This would create definite and hitherto unknown problems, according to James Hyde, executive secretary of the Boundaries Commission.

If the township incorporated except for one village, that village could not vote in any national or state elections—or for school taxes. Currently these tasks are handled by the township government.

3 ALTERNATIVES

The left-out village would then have three alternatives. The residents could file to become a township instead of a village; file to change their status to that of a fifth class city, which could raise taxes considerably; or the village could request annexation by the surrounding or neighboring cities.

Quakertown would be completely surrounded by Farmington Hills—if the proposed incorporation should ever pass—while Woodcreek Farms would border Franklin, Southfield and Farmington Hills.

If the proposed annexation should pass, other problems would arise. The annexation would bring the industrial section of the township (including the Thomson Brown and Star Cutter industrial parks and the industrial belt along Eight Mile) under the city's jurisdiction. The northern half of the township would be left without their major taxpayers.

The petitions filed are merely harbingers of what political and legal chaos would probably follow if the consolidation fails. Another consolidation attempt could not be made for two more years.

BEST ANSWER?

Hyde noted, "By the time the population densities have built up to the point that consolidation is feasible—and in many cases may be the best answer—the animosities between the governmental units and the parochialism of the people make it virtually impossible to achieve. Hopefully this situation will not exist in Farmington."

He pointed out several advantages in consolidation:

"There are probably few existing village or city charters which could not stand rewriting in view of current magnification of municipal problems.

"Through consolidation, an area and its residents have an opportunity to not only rewrite and possibly modernize existing charters but to improve all units of government."

"Therefore, the people have a direct voice in the writing of the type of charter they would like to live under," Hyde explained.

Not if Moratorium Day Is Indication

Education: Meeting Needs?

By NED ADAMSON

A statement often repeated by today's politicians, community leaders and educators goes something like this:

"The keynote to a better tomorrow, social change, unity, etc., will depend on the ability of today's youth to execute that change."

Bearing this thought in mind, it is interesting to examine what degree of enlightenment to-day's youth has regarding the problems and issues in the world around him.

Is he being educated in a manner that will make him possibly more perceptive and sensitive about his environment?

The fact that few school districts in Oakland County took the initiative to conduct special informative and educational activities on Wednesday, the day of the nationwide Vietnam Moratorium observance, prompts a pessimistic view regarding an answer to that question.

Groves in Birmingham and Lahser in Bloomfield Hills were the only two schools in the Pontiac area known to have provided a daylong opportunity for students to gain broader insight and perspective into all facets of opinion regarding the Vietnam situation.

Lahser and Groves provided a full program of activities ranging from symposiums, seminars, lectures and group discussions. Speakers representing all sides of opinion participated.

not developed as a platform to generate dissent. "We were simply trying to do our job and present an educational program for the students on this particular issue."

'CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM'

"And we are certainly not urging people to engage in dissent, though there will be persons who interpret it in that manner. It was felt that by making a constructive program available, chances for dissent would actually be decreased since the students had the opportunity to listen to a varied set of views on the Vietnam matter right in school," Pack explained.

The program at Groves was conducted in similar fashion and also was prompted by student and faculty in-

REASONS GIVEN

Many administrators, when asked about plans for Moratorium Day and student response and reaction, responded as though a student demonstration or request to hold some organized activity represented an obstacle to the day's activity.

STATUS QUO

There should never be a fear of thinking, and yet one cannot help but think that administrators actually worry about the possibility of a student raising a question about the status quo.

It is perfectly possible that if students and faculty had shown more interest about Moratorium Day, more organized activities might have been held.

The fact there wasn't also makes one wonder if students actually are thinking more critically about their environment in classes conducive to such thought such as government studies, sociology and English.

Levin Sees Defeat of Plan to Abolish State Ed Board

TROY — The minority leader of the Michigan Senate predicted defeat last night for Gov. Milliken's proposal to abolish the State Board of Education and "centralize" the state's educational responsibility.

The governor's proposal would produce a penny's worth of additional leadership in return for the sacrifice of a pound of responsiveness to the public," said Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, in an address yesterday before the Troy Democratic Club.

Milliken called for elimination of the elected board—boggled down for making in infighting—and the superintendency and seeks an education department chief who would be appointed by him.

State Hits Harder at Errant Drivers

LANSING (AP) — The Secretary of State's Office reports it is cracking down on errant drivers at a record rate this year.

Through September, the department said, more than 88,000 drivers have been subjected to some type of discipline including license cancellation, suspension, revocation, denial, restriction or referral to a county driver-training safety school.

Secretary of State James Hare estimated the total of such actions would amount to more than 120,000 this year, double last year's 60,000.

Most of the increase Hare said, was due to failure to answer summonses. This accounted for the suspension of nearly 36,000 drivers.

"I don't think that's much of a bargain," Levin said.

"While I agree with Gov. Milliken that there must be a greater leadership role for the state in education, and that stronger leadership is impossible with the present framework of fragmented authority, the degree of centralization which he proposes is not justified," Levin said.

"It's unfortunate that, at a time when we are struggling to make many of the institutions of our society relate more directly to the public will, the governor is proposing a highly centralized framework that could easily become completely insulated from interaction with the public."

Levin suggested that, as an alternative to Milliken's proposal, the superintendent might be selected by an appointed state board, with "direct links both to educators and to the general public."

Levin said he believed that, "while the state board has had its problems," elementary and secondary education needs its own separate spokesman at the state level.

EDUCATION FIELD

"If such a spokesman is needed in any field," he said, "it is needed in education, which takes up a vast part of state funds and administration which affects most of the children in this state."

Levin questioned whether the state's plan would remove the state education system from politics, as Milliken says.

"It would be difficult to devise a system which is more likely to be subject to political whims and exigencies than one hanging upon a gubernatorially appointed superintendent, who appoints all regional superintendents," Levin said.

Meanwhile, the House Republican floor

Sen. Sander Levin

leader accused his Democratic counterpart of "plunging right on" toward making education reform a political issue, despite pleas from the governor against such partisanship.

CHALLENGED

Rep. William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, challenged Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, to produce "constructive alternatives" to Milliken's proposals.

Montgomery blasted the governor's program as "chicken" and "a con game on the people" earlier this week.

Hampton in turn charged that Montgomery's "concern is clearly not in the interests of our children, but strictly political."

"Our governor has given us an innovative and challenging program to propel Michigan's school structure into the future," Hampton said.

Senator Vows to Smoke Out Facts on Effect of a Hike in Cigarette Tax

LANSING (UPI) — Senate Taxation Committee Chairman Harry DeMaso said he will not release Gov. William G. Milliken's bill to hike the cigarette tax by five cents from his committee "until we find out what the score is on the bootlegging issue."

DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, said two public hearings on the bill—proposed to pay part of the cost of Milliken's comprehensive educational reform program—show a need for more work.

He also said a trip to New York is needed to investigate reported problems the state has had since it increased the smoking levy in 1965.

"We are now in the best competitive position we could be in," DeMaso said after a hearing yesterday. "We could lose our shirts if we increase the tax."

RARELY SUCCESSFUL

If DeMaso's committee doesn't report out the bill, Milliken's legislative troops will have to resort to a Senate floor motion to pry the bill from committee—a move that is rarely successful.

DeMaso said it will be sometime in November before his committee will decide.

Morris Weintraub, managing director of the Wholesale Tobacco Distributors of New York and the Cigarette Merchants Association, told DeMaso's five-member committee yesterday that increasing the tax would "open Pandora's box" and "create a Frankenstein."

When New York increased the tax five cents per package "they created a Frankenstein in the form of a new business for organized crime, a business that now nets the underworld about $30 million a year and wreaks havoc with both the state's tobacco industry in terms of reduced sales, and the state's tax department in terms of decreased revenues," Weintraub said.

'BIT-THE RACKET'

Cigarette bootlegging — selling

cigarettes brought in from a low-tax state — has turned into a big-time racket, Weintraub said.

Today more than 1 million illegal packages of cigarettes are sold daily in New York, resulting in an annual loss to the state of $50 million, he said.

Milliken claims boosting the tax will bring in an additional $250 million to the state treasury.

Gino Fontana, one of Michigan's largest cigarette vending machine owners, said the increase will contribute to the already high rate of cigarette stealing.

"I love up to $2,500 a month in cigarettes and money from stealing now," Fontana said.

Mrs. Paul Brown of Petoskey, representing the Michigan branch of the American Association of University Women, said the group has "long opposed the funding of education through the means of nuisance taxes."

She said such a tax base is "too small and too unstable" to fund education. The governor has also proposed a $6-million uniform statewide property levy to replace local voted operating millage. Mrs. Brown said "it is most important that this proposed statewide property tax be based on equitable assessment practices."

DeMaso said his committee tentatively plans to visit New York City the weekend of Nov. 1.

Meeting Called to Settle Avon Library Problems

ROCHESTER — County Prosecutor Thomas Plunkett reported today he has called a meeting of city, township and library officials for 4 p.m. Wednesday at his office in an effort to straighten out ownership problems with the Avon Township Free Public Library.

Plunkett's invitation to Rochester Mayor Roy Rewold, Avon Township Supervisor Cyril Miller and Library Board President Howard L. McGregor Jr. includes a letter from Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley which, according to Plunkett, "raises certain grave questions concerning past and contemplated actions by officials of the Avon Township Library."

Plunkett said the meeting would be an effort to straighten out misunderstandings, but that lack of cooperation by local officials would force the county and state to take legal steps.

The attorney general's informal opinion written in regard to library ownership questions the policy of library funds being placed within the township's general fund. It also criticizes any attempt to divide library assets between township and city as a result of the city's recent city incorporation vote.

Kelley's opinion called for public accountability of library funds. Plunkett said the funds must either be treated as belonging to a charitable trust or to a public state agency and reports made accordingly.

NAVAL CONTRACT — The Williams Research Corp. of Walled Lake has been awarded a $15-million contract by the U.S. Navy to supply turbojet engines for recoverable aerial targets. Congressman Jack McDonald (left), R-19th District, announced the contract award this week. Sam Williams, president of the 250-employee firm, said his company will build more than 1,000 of the engines.

All-White Jury Acquits Detroit Patrolman

MASON (UPI) — An all-white jury deliberated nearly 10 minutes yesterday before finding Detroit Patrolman Leo T. Haidys Jr., 35, innocent of charges he beat a Negro youth at the Veterans Memorial in Detroit nearly a year ago.

The trial is the first to grow out of a scuffle between off-duty white policemen and Negro youths attending separate dances at the building in Detroit Nov. 1, 1968.

'In-Service' Teacher Bid Is Rejected

By the Associated Press
Teachers in the Harper Creek School District near Battle Creek—one of eight Michigan districts closed by teacher strikes—have offered to put it three days of "in-service training" while negotiations continue.

Meanwhile, no progress toward settlement was reported in the six strikes in Genesee County and the walkout in Chelsea, near Ann Arbor.

Harper Creek teachers who made the offer to return for training said the school board had refused, saying it would have to pay 17,850 in salaries while the schools were closed.

Districts on strike today included Flint, Fenton, Carman, Davison, Beecher and Lake Fenton in Genesee County, as well as Chelsea.

A new contract was approved in the Dearborn Heights district of Crestwood, where there had been no strike.

MSU's Adams Again Says No

EAST LANSING (UPI) — The Michigan State University Board of Trustees had better come up with a new president by Jan. 2, 1970, because acting President Walter Adams says he doesn't want the job no matter how much pressure is put on him to keep it on a permanent basis.

"At no time did I ever either privately or publicly intimate to anyone that I could by any concentration of circumstances be swayed from that position," he told a news conference yesterday.

Adams made the statement in response to a letter by Board Chairman Don Stevens of Okemos who wanted Adams to clarify his "noncandidacy" position.

He also said he hoped the board would find a president "with due deliberation" so he could return to his post as professor of economics no later than Jan. 2, 1970.

SUPPORT GROWING

In recent weeks, support by students and faculty has been growing for Adams to be named to the $40,000-a-year post.

At the time Adams was named to fill the job on an acting basis to succeed Dr. John A. Hannah April 1, he said he did not want the post permanently and would not serve if chosen.

Adams said he assumed no one believed him because "People couldn't believe that a man would turn his back on the epaulettes of the presidency."

He was "gratified by the outpouring of support for my performance as acting president," but added that he regarded the support as an endorsement of the value system he represented.

Adams said he just wanted to return to his economics post and take a sabbatical the first of January for one year.

Haidys, a former tackle on Michigan State University's Rose Bowl teams in 1953 and 1956, told the court Wednesday he never saw his alleged victim, Thomas S. Evans III, 20, or any of Evans' friends during the evening.

Haidys was attending a dance sponsored by the Detroit Police Officers Wives Association and the youths a church dance on a different floor of the building. Several youths testified earlier in the trial that the police attacked them and a shot was fired. Haidys was later charged with felonious assault.

Lippitt said after the trial he believed "discrepancies" in prosecution testimony resulted in the verdict.

Haidys said he would apply for reinstatement to the department. Several other policemen have been suspended.

Among the character witnesses appearing for the defense was Haidys' MSU teammate Earl Morrill, now quarterback for the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

By JOANNE SANDERSON
Villains and fair maidens will grace the stage as Walled Lake Central High School presents "Dirty Work at the Crossroads or Tempted, Tried and True" next Thursday and Friday afternoon in the new E. V. Ayres Auditorium. The play, a Gay Nineties melodrama, tells the story of a villain, Munro Murgatroyd; the sweet young maiden, Nellie Lovelace; and the hero, Adam Oakhart.

Tickets cost 75 cents and are available at the WLC Bookstore and the Walled Lake Western Bookstore. They also will be sold at the door each night and by the cast and crew.

MANY PROBLEMS
There have been many problems producing the play. The first when the fire marshal declared the stage off-limits until Oct. 15. This meant that the entire set had to be built at Central instead of at the auditorium.

The second problem: The contractor was not sure that lights would be in use by Oct. 23. This could mean that the play will be done with very few lights.

The third: While the cast was taking publicity pictures near Walled Lake Western at the railroad tracks, they were stopped by Oakland County Sheriff's patrol.

Just as Munro was tying the hero to the tracks an officer spotted the cast. The villain was saved from being foiled again as the director, Kathy Walker, explained the situation.

Despite the woes, the show will go on. The cast is composed of Jerry O'Brien, Munro Murgatroyd; Peggy Huntley, Nellie Lovelace; Bob Hanson, Mookie Maguggins; Dave VanderVelde, Adam Oakhart; Debbie Kent, Ida Rhinegold; Kathy Verlinde, Mrs. Asterblit; Donna Sills, Leonie Asterblit; Penny Throver, Fleurette; Debbie Smalley, Widow Lovelace; and Jean Casseniser, Nellie's daughter, L'I' Nell.

Student director is Ed McCallum. Stage manager is Greg Zuchet.

Tonight is WLC's Homecoming. For the past three weeks students have been busy working on the class and club floats.

On the homecoming court are Joan Rafferty, queen; Peggy Huntley, senior; Gloria Kerver, junior; Dawn Sadler,

CHAIRMAN LISTED

Cochairmen for this year's homecoming are Connie Wallen and Teresa Riddle. Peggy Huntley is advertisement chairman; Sue Lober, very important persons chairman; Lea Richmond, float chairman; and Laura Lind, script chairman.

After the game, the seniors are holding a homecoming dance which will be open to all WLC students and alumni.

The dress will be after five with dress better-than-school-dress but not formal.

Chairman of the dance committee is Sue Brunson.

Playing for the dance will be the Woodward Coffin Works.

HISSSSSSSSSSSS — Everybody hisses the villain (Jerry O'Brien) as he steals the heroine (Peggy Huntley) after tying the hero (Dave VanderVelde) to the tracks. The seniors are rehearsing Walled Lake Central High School's melodrama, "Dirty Work at the Crossroads or Tempted, Tried and True." The production will be put on next Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the new E. V. Ayres Auditorium.

Game Will Climax Oxford Spirit Week

By LUCY SCHICK
Spirit Week ends tonight when Oxford High School hosts the Romeo Bulldogs. Student Council has proclaimed this homecoming night at OHS.

Adams High Winding Up Forthcoming

By PAT VOLL
Forthcoming Week activities and excitement climax today at Rochester Adams High School. Adams named the big week "Forthcoming" instead of homecoming, since it is Adams' first year and there are no alumni to welcome home.

The Forthcoming activities began Tuesday when Adams' senior girls met the junior girls for the Brown-and-Gold game.

Excitement continued to mount Wednesday with the beginning of Spirit Week, where all four classes were to wear the school colors of gold and brown.

PEP ASSEMBLY

Today during the last two hours of school, the student body met for a pep assembly to conclude the competition for the spirit keg. The keg went to the class which expressed the most spirit. Skits presented by the four classes were judged by faculty members.

During the pep assembly Rochester merchants judged the class floats and club entries.

Tonight before the Highlanders meet the Utica Chieftans, a pep rally will take place from the 6:30 to 7:15 p.m. The Pep Club and the Student Council will sponsor the bonfire. Max Hasse, varsity coach for the Highlanders, will speak at the rally.

Halftime activities include a parade around the RHS athletic field accompanied by the Adams band and the introduction of the court and the queen.

MEMBERS OF COURT

Members of the court are Randi Brown and Linda Bailey, freshmen; Nancy Stoutenburg and Michelle Willis, sophomores; Tina Cohoe and Karen Mangold, juniors; Kathy Koza, Bernie Abbot, Denise Merecki, and the foreign exchange student from Mexico, Terry Sicalros, seniors.

An after-game dance will be held in the cafeteria, with the Children from Ann Arbor entertaining.

Conclusion of the forthcoming activities will be Saturday, from 8-11 p.m. in the cafeteria.

The semiformal dance honoring the queen and her court is sponsored by the Adams' Student Council.

Holmes, crowning of queen; Dennis Barrett, transportation, and George Wilboee, dance.

This year, nominees for 1969 homecoming queen are Kathy Seaman and Kathy Shook, sophomores; Clara Armstrong, Teresa Whitehead and Rosie Shook, juniors; and Evelyn Ruch and Diane Trojanowski, seniors.

Classes and clubs are working on floats. Money prizes are being offered for the most beautiful, the most original and the funniest.

A special prize of $25 will be awarded the club or class which adheres the best to its theme.

Oxford's blue and gold marching band, under the direction of Wendell Honsinger, will lead a parade through downtown Oxford and will perform at halftime when the queen will be introduced and crowned. She will preside at the after-game dance sponsored by Student Council.

Bill Pearson, an Oxford graduate and professional disc jockey, will be master of ceremonies at the dance.

W. Bloomfield Crowns Queen

By RUTH SOMERS
West Bloomfield High School's homecoming weekend climaxed Saturday as Queen Christine Barnard was crowned.

Included in the court were Christine Clark, Wendy Cooke, Pam Pishas, Ann Richards and honorary members Dominique Guerin and Maria Rosetti. The Age of Aquarius was the theme of the dance with music by the New Breed. Queen Chris and her escort, Rene Naert, led the first dance.

Cries of "ready, set, hut, hut," echoing through the halls are attributed to the Powder Puff football game scheduled for Tuesday.

MAKING PASSES

Junior and senior girls are practicing their blocking, passing and dodging, urged on by their coaches Dick Curran (senior) and John Hugelert (junior).

Exodus is on sale. The 210 page yearbook will be sold for $5 through Oct. 31.

Senior class officers are Doug Jasac, president; Wally Alix, vice president; Chris Clark, secretary; and Casey Hamill, treasurer.

The class of '71 elected John Hugelert, president; Barb Wakefield, vice president; Judy Barnes, secretary; and Margaret Neubacher, treasurer.

'Camelot' Queen to Be Crowned at OLL Dance

By MICKEY SEETERLIN
The queen of "Camelot" will be crowned at Our Lady of the Lakes '69 homecoming dance tonight at 8 in the gym.

Vying for the title are Sharon Kloss, Kathy Reed, Sue Budnik and Colleen Bergin, all seniors.

Completing the court will be Julie McDonnell, junior representative; Diane Vallencourt, sophomore; and Maryann Day, freshman.

This year all past OLL homecoming queens will ride in the parade to the field and at halftime. In previous years only the reigning queen and her predecessor were in the parade.

'COLOR DAY'
Today was "color day" at OLL to end "spirit week," sponsored by the varsity cheerleaders.

Monday, spirit flowers were sold to prepare everyone for Tuesday's "pep pill" sale.

Wednesday was proclaimed "grub day" which meant that students wore grubby clothes to classes.

Thursday, everyone brought in wood for the annual bonfire to be held tomorrow night at 7:30.

In an effort to increase the spirit at OLL, varsity cheerleaders present a "spirit stick" to the class which shows the most spirit at each pep rally. This week each class has been assigned one hall to put up posters and decorate for spirit week.

Varsity cheerleaders will choose the hall that shows the most Laker spirit. That class will hold the spirit stick for Sunday's game in which OLL meets St. Lawrence on Waterford Kettering's field at 2:30 p.m.

Musical for tonight's dance will be provided by the Frank Merwin Trio. The coronation and grand march will take place at 9.

Seniors will participate in a College Planning Night Wednesday at 7 at Waterford Kettering High School.

Juniors will take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test Tuesday.

Homecoming Week to Climax at Holly

By MARCIA CLARK
Homecoming week at Holly High School will be climaxed tonight when the 1969 homecoming queen and her court will be presented to the public during the halftime activities.

The 1969 homecoming queen is Robin Ennis.

Members of her court are Connie Jones and Debbie Butts, seniors; Sue Layman and Evelyn Swanson, juniors; Robbie Bloomer and Sue Marlowe, sophomores; and Ann Englehart and Debbie DeMaria, freshmen.

The float made by the members of the individual classes, will also be judged at halftime.

The freshman float features a huge cuckoo clock and sports the slogan, "Drive 'Em Cuckoo."

"The Greatest Show on Earth," the sophomore slogan, is symbolized by a large paper calliope.

A dynamite shack equipped with rockets and sound effects perched atop a hay wagon portrays the junior slogan, "Bronco Explosion."

The senior float "Cashing in on a Victory" features a mammoth cash register. A semiformal dance will be held after the football game in the HHS student center.

The dress code at HHS has been revised. It now allows girls to wear wool slacks or blue jeans to class on a 30-day trial beginning last Tuesday.

There were 30 semifinalists who were invited back and required to perform such stunts as the scull, back dolphin, back summersault and the porpoise. From these girls, the new membership was chosen.

Peace Program at Dominican

By CYNDI WYZGOSKI

The Christian Action Club at Dominican Academy planned a program for the girls in honor of the peace moratorium. During the lunch hour there was a modern "Scriptural Rosary."

Instead of the usual five decades of the Rosary there were scriptural passages, for each, on peace.

During the activity period there was a Mass also sponsored by the Christian Action Club.

DA girls have decided that a little extra charm never hurt anyone. So, many have signed up for the Wendy Ward charm course offered on the campus.

Repertory Company Set at Will-O-Way Theatre

A bright young company of actors makes its initial appearance at Will-O-Way Theatre in the musical "The Apple Tree". The new production of the play, comprised of separate sketches loosely tied together along the battle lines drawn in the war between the sevens, will open Tuesday evening at the Will-O-Way playhouse on west Long Lake.

Playing the 'boy' in all three acts of "Apple Tree" is Jon Tanner. Appearing opposite Tanner in the various roles of the 'girl' will be Sharon Maher. She portrays the eternal female on whose whims and emotions the world tends to turn, according to the several authors of the musical romp.

As a chimney sweep in one act of "The Apple Tree," Sharon Maher is featured in the new production of the Jerry Book-Sheldon Harnick musical which opens at Will-O-Way Theatre Tuesday.

Speakers Will Explain Work for Jobless

Alvin Bush and Irma Craft, officers of the People's Community Civic League, an inner-city self-help organization will speak on "Self-Help: The Effective Way to Train the Jobless," on Wednesday at the Birmingham Community House.

The 8 p.m. meeting is sponsored by the Junior League of Birmingham.

The Career Development Center, an arm of the PCCL, is designed to train hard-core unemployed Negroes. The Center has trained and placed more than 600 people in upgraded jobs since its inception in 1967.

The Center operates without government funding. The concept of CDC is that private enterprise can and should subsidize the training of these people. Bush also insists that his trainees contribute financially as much as possible to their education. He accepts only trainees who can be motivated.

Bush was chief porter at the Statler Hilton hotel until recently when he resigned to work full time at PCCL. He was a constable for some years before the Ward system was eliminated.

Mrs. Craft graduated from Howard University and holds an MA degree from the University of Detroit. She taught business education in Detroit before joining Bush in establishing PCCL.

Coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Skippers Up for Homecoming

This night could be just what the doctor ordered to shake the Skippers of Waterford from their football doldrums.

It's homecoming and the Skippers, who have a 1-4 record and have lost four in a row, haven't lost a homecoming game since 1965.

'DREADING CALL'

"I've been dreading a call from you guys," says coach John Moffat who is suffering right along with the Skippers. "Our kids are up for the game," says Moffat. "They're disappointed in their own failure to win. They believe they've given some away."

BRIGHT NOTE

A bright note for the Skippers is that they'll be taking on Farmington's Falcons, certainly not a pushover, but perhaps the weakest team in the Inter-Lakes League this fall.

Other games on the I-L schedule this evening find Pontiac Northern at Walled Lake Central where the Huskies will be seeking to end a 18-year hex, while Southfield Lathrup was at Livonia Stevenson for an afternoon contest.

MISTAKES HURT

There are a number of reasons for the Skippers demise this season, chief of which would be the team's own mistakes. "We've been injured some, too," says Moffat. "And we've just made some dumb mistakes. We just go to sleep."

Guard Jim Main and tackle Steven Kressbach have been the mainstays in the Skipper lineup.

Another local game finds the Chiefs of Pontiac Central at Wisner Stadium against the Trojans of Saginaw. The Chiefs will be seeking to end a two-game losing streak.

A key Wayne-Oakland League game is on tap at Waterford Kettering, where the Captains will entertain league co-leader West Bloomfield.

ANDOVER TRAVELS

Bloomfield Hills Andover, sharing the lead with West Bloomfield, is at Brighton, while other loop games find Northville at Clarkston and Clarenceville at Milford.

The Raiders of North Farmington, 20-18 losers to Detroit Thurston last week, will try to return to the winning trail today at Oak Park. Another Northwest Suburban League game finds Wayne John Glenn at Birmingham Groves.

AVONDALE HOME

Lamphere at Clawson.

Novi entertains Sandy Creek, Lapeer plays host to Flint Ainsworth, Holly is host to Swartz Creek, while Orionville Brandon moved to Linden.

In the Thumb area, Imlay City is at Millington. Brown

City at Birch Run, Almont at Memphis, Anchor Bay at Marysville and Harper Woods at Armada.

Waterford Mott journeys to Livonia Churchill and Pontiac Catholic has a date at Gabriel Richard.

SPURS KNIGHTS — Halfback Mike Atkins is the big gun this fall in the attack for the Knights of Bloomfield Hills Lahser. The fleet back has scored seven touchdowns this fall and the Knights will be hoping he'll score many more this evening as they entertain the Colts of Troy.

Gadsby Is Fired as Wings' Coach

"I thought it was a happy family this year," Gadsby said. "He hadn't been meddling. We agreed to that at the end of last year."

"This is the first time a coach has been fired, while batting 1,000," he said, referring to the now married 2-0 record.

SOLD BUSINESS

Gadsby, a native of Calgary, Alta., who lives in Southfield, Mich., said he sold his insurance business in Edmonton, Alta., because he thought Detroit would have a great year.

"It is a real blow. It really is," he nodded.

"I think we parted on good terms," Norris said.

He and Abel said they did not know who would be the new coach or when he would be chosen. But they said it wouldn't be Doug Barkley, coach of the Fort Worth farm club of the Central Hockey League.

"Doug is doing a good job at Fort Worth and disrupting one club is enough," Norris quipped.

"I'm going home to bed and maybe tomorrow I'll know what to say," Gadsby concluded.

Will Play in AHL

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens optioned forward Rejean Houle to their Montreal Voyageurs farm club in the American Hockey League Thursday. The Voyageurs also activated Coach Al MacNeil as a regular player because of team injuries.

STROKE AHEAD

He held a one-stroke lead over a trio of longshots—rookies Ted Hayes Jr. and Bob Menne and teaching pro Ed Merrins—going into today's second round, with Palmer still very much in contention.

Palmer, out of action since an arthritic right hip forced him off the tour during the PGA National Championship more than two months ago, came back with a solid 69. "It was a pretty mediocre round," the 46-year-old Palmer said. "I hit some good tee shots and some bag ones. My irons still leave a lot to be desired, but they may come around. I made a couple of putts, but I missed a couple of short ones, too. "I didn't play that well, but I didn't play that badly either," he said. It was Palmer's first competitive round since a pain-wracked 82 in the PGA, a round that many thought signaled the end of his brilliant career.

Palmer Starts Golf Comeback

Arnie Fires 69 but Trails Sanders

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Arnold Palmer is back. And Doug Sanders vows he'll be back. "I'm not giving up," the colorful Sanders said Thursday after shooting a six under par 69 for the first round lead in the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

"If I don't improve," he noted "I'm going to have to be out there in those Monday qualifying rounds, and I don't think I'd like that."

Sanders, one-time glamor-boy of the tour now a graying 36, hasn't won since 1967, has made only $20,720 on the tour this year and is in danger of losing his exempt status.

He held a one-stroke lead over a trio of longshots—rookies Ted Hayes Jr. and Bob Menne and teaching pro Ed Merrins—going into today's second round, with Palmer still very much in contention.

Now there are four Direct Charging Mercurys.

135hp 115hp 80hp 40hp

In '69, Mercury surprised the industry with the revolutionary new 80-hp Merc 800—first of the Direct Charging and the Merc that created a whole new kind of outboard engine.

Now, for 1970, there are four new Direct Charging Mercurys: the 6-cylinder Merc 1350 and 1150; the 4-cylinder Merc 800; and the 2-cylinder Merc 400.

What happens inside a Direct Charging Mercury? The unique design of transfer passages, inlet ports and piston shape give precise control of the incoming fuel-air charge for most efficient cylinder filling and elimination of exhaust gases, giving tremendously increased power and efficiency.

Coupled with Mercury's Thunderbolt Ignition system, this produces more horsepower per cubic inch—more miles per gallon—more horsepower per pound—more horsepower per dollar.

Put very simply, Direct Charging means a lot more power in a lighter, more compact package with less investment and operating costs. And again in 1970, it's a Mercury exclusive.

BOWLING

Usually its the parents that beat the kids, but this past week 16-year-old Deborah Beardsley of Drayton Plains turned the tables and beat her mother.

Beat her by one pin in bowling that is. Debbie, a junior at Waterford Kettering high school, who actively competes in the Howe's Lanes Junior Classic Bowling League every Saturday, reached one of the high points of her career when she shot a personal high game of 267 last week.

The high game, coupled with other games of 158-179, gave Debbie a 654 series for the night, or 255 pins over her 133 average. Debbie, who has garnered various trophies in her six years of bowling, added another laurel to her growing list by winning the league's high game honors for the night.

There was a hot fivesome out at Howe's Lanes Tuesday night when the Waterford Merchants league started their play.

The league's first place team, Corbin's Barber Shop, recorded one of the area's highest team games and series when Larry Meyers, 248; Carl Lloyd, 262; Irv Killian, 214; Larry Thompson, 248; and Ray Conley, 223, for a 1131-5109 total.

Oxford's Ace Stays Unbeaten

Jim Goodfellow of Oxford warmed up for tomorrow's Oxford Invitational Cross Country meet by leading the Wildcats to a 15-48 victory over Rochester High yesterday.

Goodfellow, unbeaten this season, is favored in the individual competition. He is expected to be pushed by Julius Aiello of Riverside and Rochester Adams' Ed Griffs.

Defending champion Detroit East Catholic, Oxford, Adams and Lahser are among the team favorites in the meet which will start at 10:30 a.m. About 250 varsity and reserve runners are expected.

Goodfellow ran the Oxford course in 10:23 while pacing the win over Rochester. Teammates Dennis Clack, Steve Brill, John Mersino and Paul Smith followed in that order.

Is Southern California's Number Up?

By the Associated Press
College football teams play the numbers game again Saturday ... and Southern California's number may be up.

The Trojans, ranked No. 3 in the country, play No. 11 Notre Dame. But despite the wide difference in the rankings, the Irish are favored to undermine the boys from the Golden West.

"It's ridiculous for us to be favored in this game," says Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame. "Coach John Ralston of Stanford, who played both, said Southern California was a better team than Purdue ... and Purdue beat us."

However, a couple of factors favor the Irish in this one. After losing to Purdue 28-14, Notre Dame (3-1) rebounded impressively by trouncing Michigan State and Army. And quarterback Joe Theismann, who has found a consistent target in sophomore end Tom Gatewood, figures to exploit the Trojans secondary, which helped allow Stanford 24 points last week.

DAY OFF
The game at South Bend, Ind., is one of two Saturday matching teams in the Top Twenty. In the other, seventh-ranked Tennessee plays at Alabama, No. 20. Texas, No. 2, and fourth-ranked Arkansas have the day off.

In the other top games, No. 1 Ohio State plays at Minnesota; No. 5 Penn State clashes with Syracuse; Missouri, No. 6, entertains Oklahoma State; eighth-ranked UCLA plays California; Louisiana State, No. 9, plays at Kentucky; Colorado visits Oklahoma, No. 9; Michigan, the 13th-ranked team, is at Michigan State; No. 14 Georgia plays at Vanderbilt; Auburn, No. 15, visits Georgia Tech; Wyoming, No. 16, entertains Brigham Young; Iowa plays at No. 17 Purdue; Washington State takes on Stanford, No. 18, and Southern Mississippi is at Mississippi, No. 10.

Southern California (4-0) impressed with resounding victories over Nebraska and Northwestern, but had to pull out a shaky 26-24 game over Stanford last week with a last-minute field goal.

The offense is led by tailback Clarence Davis, the nation's No. 2 rusher, and quarterback phenomenon Jimmy Jones.

Alabama's once-proud defense has crumbled this year, yielding an average of 415.3 yards a game to four opponents. The Crimson Tide will have to be stronger to withstand the Volunteers' flashy offense, which has scored 157 points in four games—a 39.3 average.

Ohio State, which has averaged over 50 points a game, should have little trouble in stopping the winless Gophers, a Big Ten brother.

Penn State and Syracuse will be playing for football supremacy in the East. Halfback Charlie Pittman can race rings around the opposition, and figures to give Syracuse plenty of trouble with his end sprints.

UCLA unfurls its triple option against California, with young quarterback Dennis Dummit, the catalyst.
