Supreme Soviet Minuteman Missile, Polaris Meeting Today to Be Fired With N-Warhead

Khrushchev May Give Major Policy Speech at His 'Re-Election'

MOSCOW (AP) — The newly elected Supreme Soviet met today to re-elect Premier Khrushchev and perhaps to hear him deliver a major policy speech. Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported "stormy and prolonged" applause for government and Communist party leaders as they entered for the opening session.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile and the submarine-launched Polaris rockets are expected to get their first trials with nuclear warheads in the new U.S. test series about to begin in the Pacific.

CARRIED BY SUBS — The Polaris, with a range of about 1,300 miles, is carried by eight submarines already in commission. The United States plans to deploy 41 of these submarines by 1967, each mounting 16 advanced Polaris missiles capable of reaching 1,725 miles.

Both missiles have been tested with dummy warheads, but never with their nuclear tips.

Turncoat Denies Plans to Return

Ex-British Diplomat Says Trip Home Would Cause Big Scandal

MOSCOW (AP)—Turncoat British diplomat Guy Burgess said today he doesn't want to go home to England now—because it would kick up a big scandal among highly placed Britons.

"Such a visit would involve my many friends in high places," he said. "It would cause them great pain and trouble. I would not want to cause such a scandal, so I don't want to return to England just now."

Burgess returned here from a Black Sea holiday to answer questions raised by arrest warrants issued against him and Donald Maclean in London last week, charging violation of the British official secrets law. Burgess said he had not been in London since they arrived in the Soviet Union.

Burgess said he would be glad to return to England to visit his ailing mother, but denied he had (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

SEEKS COLLEGE — John Beavers of LeFayette, Ga., is one of more than 100 civil defense workers seeking three college students feared missing in a Lookout Mountain cave. Soon after this picture was taken yesterday, Beavers slipped on treacherous limestone and suffered a head wound which required 14 stitches to close.

Trio Missing 2 Days in Georgia

Hunt Lost Students in Cave

TRENTON, Ga. (UPI)—More than 100 men snaked through the muddy passages of a mountain cave today hunting for three college students feared lost in the murky cavern for two days.

All night long three teams of rescuers probed through a baffling labyrinth of underground passages. Parents of two of the youths kept vigil at the cave's entrance.

Huge floodlights lit up the rugged terrain of Lookout Mountain at the mouth of Cave's Cave where the students' car was found early yesterday. No other trace of them has been found since.

The entrance to the northwest Georgia cave is little more than a hole in the ground. But once inside, seasoned spelunkers said the passages stretch for miles.

U.S. Readies Ranger Capsule for Moon Shot

Spacecraft Scheduled to Take TV Pictures of Natural Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States readied its most powerful space rocket today for an attempt to propel the Ranger 4 spacecraft to the moon to snap television pictures and record scientific data.

The launch crew has an 87-minute period to fire the 10-story-tall Atlas-Agena B vehicle to put the speedy spacecraft on course for the 229,541-mile journey to the moon.

The shot is one of three major launchings scheduled this week by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The second test flight of the Saturn super-booster is set for Wednesday, and a U.S.-British international satellite is ticketed for firing Thursday. The maiden flight of the high-energy Centaur rocket, postponed a fifth time Saturday, also may squeeze into the crowded schedule.

The complex Ranger 4 mission involves launching the Agena B second stage into a parking orbit 100 miles high. At the previous moment, the engine must be re-started to boost the spacecraft speed to 24,500 miles an hour to start it on its 60-hour trip.

Sixteen hours after launching, if all is going well, a tracking station at Goldstone, Calif., will send a signal to fire a midcourse motor to correct the vehicle's position and jockey it onto a collision course with the moon.

TERMINAL MANEUVER

Early Thursday morning, when Ranger 4 is to be 5,000 miles from the moon's bright side, the terminal craft is to execute a terminal maneuver to point its television camera at the lunar landscape.

The camera begins operating at an altitude of 2,400 miles and transmits a picture to Goldstone every 10 seconds for 40 minutes down to an altitude of 15 miles.

The spacecraft then ejects a 15-inch sphere wrapped in a black coating of shock-absorbent balsa wood. A tiny recovery rocket attached to the 30-inch ball slows the speed so it will land at a velocity of 80 to 120 miles an hour. The main body of the payload crashes at 6,000 miles and is destroyed.

The instrument package contains a seismometer, temperature gauge and radio transmitter designed to relay data to earth for at least 30 days.

The body wave data produced by moonquakes or meteor hits could determine if the moon has a crust similar to the Earth's.

Two other devices attached to the main body are to take measurements up to the point of impact. They are a gamma ray spectrometer to detect uranium, thorium, radium and potassium radioluminescence emissions, and a radar antenna to test the moon's radar reflectivity.

City Commission to Select Mayor, Organize Tonight

The new Pontiac City Commission will meet at 7:30 tonight at City Hall to organize and elect a new mayor.

All seven commissioners elected last week will be officially installed. All serve two-year terms.

New commissioners are Charles H. Harmon, representing District 2; Loy L. Ledford, representing District 3; and Dick M. Kirby, representing District 4. Milton R. Henry, William H. Taylor Jr., Winford E. Bottom and Robert Landry were re-elected.

After taking the oath of office, commissioners will elect from their own ranks a mayor and mayor pro-tem. The mayor acts as official commission spokesman and conducts its regular meetings, but holds the same veto power as his fellow commissioners.

Violations Charge Cause of Demand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court told the Michigan Supreme Court today to rule on the question whether state legislative districts violate the federal Constitution.

The high tribunal directed that the state court reconsider complaints by some voters against legislative redistricting, in view of the March 26 ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court that voters who say their votes are diluted by unfair apportionment may be heard in federal courts.

The Michigan Constitution was amended in 1952 to set up state legislative districts involved in the protest.

The matter came before the U.S. Supreme Court in an appeal by August Scholle, who sued on behalf of himself and as president of the Michigan State AFL-CIO. Scholle contended the amendments to the state constitution set up permanent districts which were grossly unequal in population.

Today's action by the U.S. Supreme Court was a three-line order which said merely the decision of the Michigan Supreme Court in dismissing Scholle's complaint was set aside and the case was remanded to the Michigan Supreme Court for further consideration in the light of Baker vs. Carr.

The Baker vs. Carr case was the one decided March 26. The Baker vs. Carr case involved similar complaints by Tennessee metropolitan voters.

Justice Harlan wrote a dissent in today's action, and the court noted that Justice Frankfurter took no part.

In the Baker vs. Carr decision, both Harlan and Frankfurter dissented.

Justices Clark and Stewart wrote a concurring opinion to today's action. This said that the order reflected no views by the Supreme Court on Scholle's claim that equal protection of law was denied him.

"It may well turn out," the opinion said, "that the assertion of individual discrimination is not borne out by the record. Today's order simply reflects our belief that the Michigan Supreme Court should be the first to consider the merits of the federal constitutional claim, free from any doubts as to its jurisdiction."

Harlan's dissent said Scholle's appeal should either be dismissed for lack of a substantial federal question or the court should note that it has probable jurisdiction and agree to hear argument on behalf of Scholle.

Scholle's appeal alleged violation of the constitutional guarantees of due process of law and equal protection of law.

The 1952 amendments, he argued, set, abandoned a former requirement of periodic reapportionment on a population basis and perpetuated the unconstitutional malapportionment that existed in 1952.

Wants State Court Action on Redistricting in 30 Days

DETROIT (AP)—Michigan AFL-CIO President August Scholle said he hoped for state court action within 30 days on his suit to force legislative redistricting.

"Our attorney will ask for disposal as quickly as possible of this suit in state court," Scholle said. He said he hoped action would be completed in 30 days, but would not speculate on how long it would take for redistricting if the court decides in his favor.

Scholle said he had expected today's U.S. Supreme Court action, which told the Michigan Supreme Court to rule on whether state legislative districts violate the federal Constitution.

His suit, filed in conjunction with the Tennessee case which resulted in the March 23 ruling which gave federal courts jurisdiction in complaints of unfair apportionment, said he had, in effect, 1-128 of the voting power of a voter in "the most over-represented Michigan district."

Scholle said he hoped the Michigan Supreme Court "will consider the question of its jurisdiction, and the question resolved in the Tennessee case that the 14th amendment did apply in giving equal protection under the law."

"I would hope that because of the awareness of the court that a constitutional convention is in progress, action will be swift," he said. "I hope also the constitutional amendment will be given equal protection under the law."

Easter Hare Hops In on a Warmish 78

The weatherman pulled a surprise from his Easter basket yesterday.

After warning Pontiac churchgoers to prepare for a cool and showery day, he came up with a record-setting heat wave that held off rain until late afternoon after most of the day's pageantry had unfolded.

The temperature hit 78 in Pontiac shortly after noon, the highest of any April 23 in history. It was the second hottest Easter Sunday on record.

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and a high near 80. It is expected to be fair and cooler tonight with a low of 38 and fair and warmer tomorrow—high about 84.

The temperature in downtown Pontiac at 2 p.m. today was 53.

Commissioner Resigns County Supervisors Post

Senate Scheduled to Launch Rights Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House members still on Easter vacation, the Senate pulled the curtain back on the civil rights fight today by scheduling a full-blown Southern filibuster against an administration civil rights bill.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana is committed to move early in the week to bring up a measure to abolish the literacy tests still used in some states as a qualification for voting in federal elections. Civil rights advocates contend such tests have been used to keep Negroes from voting.

MAY FORCE MOVE

Mansfield may use a parliamentary maneuver to bring before the Senate without debate a minor bill for which he then can move to substitute legislation which would establish a sixth-grade education as the sole literacy qualification for voting in federal elections.

The bill now is pending before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, which cancelled a meeting scheduled for Tuesday to consider acting on it.

Mansfield's motion is certain to generate a filibuster with 18 Southern senators parading out the time to keep the talk going in an effort to prevent a vote.

CLOTURE MOVE SEEN

Whether the Senate can act on the bill apparently will be determined by whether leaders can muster a two-thirds majority of those voting to cut off debate under the cloture rule. Mansfield has indicated he will wait at least 10 days before seeking such a limitation.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a supporter of the administration's bill, said this will provide an acid test of whether there is to be any major civil rights legislation in this session of Congress. The Senate never has invoked its debate limitation rule to force passage of a civil rights bill.

Javits predicted on a television program Sunday that "a very substantial number" of Republicans will vote to close off debate.

HOPE FOR UNITY

Republican leaders hope to muster impressive strength to contest their party's relative solidarity on civil rights with the split among Democrats on this politically potent issue.

But some Republicans — and some Democrats outside the South — traditionally oppose cloture. Their opposition makes the outcome highly doubtful.

Southern opponents can be expected to challenge the constitutionality of the administration's bill.

They contended the Constitution reserves to the states the right to fix voting qualifications. "We want to violate the Constitution."

"The Senate is being asked to adopt this Bobby Kennedy four-pointing and give it respectability," Hill said.

Other congressional business was held to a minimum by the Easter vacation period.

A Senate Armed Service subcommittee scheduled a hearing today on an inquiry into what might be done with the more than 1 million tons of rubber in the nation's stockpile.

WASHINGTON (U)—A compact was ruled today an illegal lockout arrangement.

The decision by trial examiner Charles W. Schneider of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) was directed against the Publishers Association of New York and its 19 affiliated newspapers. Schneider's findings can be appealed to the NLRB itself and then to the courts.

The papers involved are the Times, News, Post Herald-Tribune, Journal American, Journal of Commerce, Mirror, World-Telegram and Sun, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal.

The papers involved are the Times, News, Post Herald-Tribune, Journal American, Journal of Commerce, Mirror, World-Telegram and Sun, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal.

A spokesman for the Publishers Association of New York said the association would have no comment pending a study of the 32-page decision.

Nor was there any immediate comment from the individual newspapers.

Announcement of the ruling coincided with the arrival here of 1,200 publishers for the annual meeting of the Associated Press and the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Schneider recommended that the NLRB order the papers to cancel their pact. He said it was illegal because, in attempting to curb wildcat strikes or walkouts in the face of contract provisions requiring that such disputes be arbitrated, the publication shut downs punished neutral employees not involved in one-paper grievances.

TOTAL BLACKOUT

"Heroic medicines may be suitable in times of desperate need," Schneider said in his decision, "but the total blackout of perhaps the greatest single collection of competitive news media in the world in order to frustrate interruption of a segment of the enterprise, seems to be to compound the disease."

The examiner said it was commendable to maintain the flow of news that is vital to the functioning of a democratic society but the way the papers chose to do it compromised their worthy end.

"This is not to question the good faith of the publishers," Schneider said, "for they had a private interest in maintaining publication, quite apart from impulses of public service."

"But the voluntary and concerted suppression, even temporarily and with the best of motives, of such important vehicles of public information is a responsibility fraught with more than ordinary consequence—whosoever the original fault."

"This is a principle applicable to employers, unions and employees. Where there are reasonably adequate peaceful alternatives, the use of disruptive self-help by either side of a labor dispute in so important an enterprise contributes neither to the public convenience nor to the long-term interest of the participants."

"For if they are unable to resolve their differences by their own restraints and inventions, other and more impatient forces may provide brusquer machinery."

Mishap Fatal to Boy
WARREN (AP)—Five-year-old Byron Lucas of Warren died Saturday night from injuries suffered Friday. He was hit by a car on a street in Warren.

Old age, we're told, brings experience—and some experience brings old age. . . . Mark Twain once explained the differences between a taxidermist and a tax collector: "A taxidermist takes only the skin." . . . Historians tell us about the past, and economists tell us about the future. That leaves only the present to confuse us.

—Earl Wilson.

The case was heard on complaints by the mallers and developers, unions that the newspapers had threatened a series of citywide publication shutdowns last year when one or more of the nine craft or mechanical unions employed by the papers threatened a stoppage over grievances at one of the papers.

Schneider said at one point that the papers considered it the obligation of the unions to arbitrate grievances as a peaceful solution it was equally the responsibility of the newspapers.

ILLEGAL MOVE

The examiner said it was illegal to suspend employment of neutral employees on papers because of a dispute they had no part in on another paper. He found that in all cases of threatened union stoppages that union officials attempted to head off any strike action.

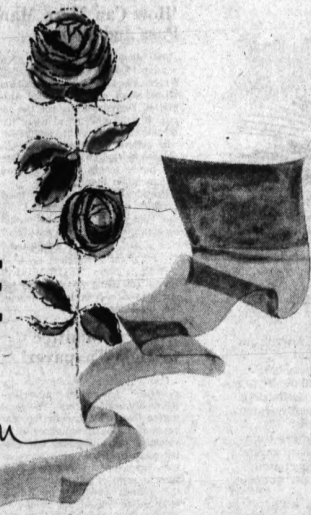

Saying there never had been an NLRB case quite like this one, Schneider concluded that employers, in a multiple-employer bargaining unit, may not engage "in a sympathetic lockout in support of one of their number threatened with a breach of contract strike over a grievance dispute in the latter's plant." He said some lockouts are legal, but not this type.

"Additionally," he said, "it is of the opinion that an employer may not deprive neutral employees of employment, or threaten to, in order to induce other employees to refrain from concerted activities, regardless of whether the concerted activities are lawful or unlawful."

"For to do so is to stifle the employment of neutral employees as an item of bargaining with the disputing employees and to seek to trade for a resolution of the controversy."

Rowston Served City Well as Commissioner

Pontiac loses a valuable and loyal Commissioner in the departure of Mayor PHILIP ROWSTON.

His Honor has served faithfully, with distinction and has always courageously upheld whatever was best for Pontiac and the City as a whole. He is a man of fine judgment and a winning personality. These constitute the basis of an exceptionally capable public administrator.

Pontiac has been fortunate, by and large, in the quality and character of her Commission. The few malcontents have always been outnumbered and so the City has invariably progressed along constructive and conservative lines.

Philip Rowston has earned his letter on the Varsity and departs as Captain and Most Valuable Player.

Let's hope that the man who is picked tonight will do as well as Rowston.

University to Establish Stagg Scholarship Fund

(The Chicago Tribune)

"The University of Chicago has decided appropriately to honor AMOS ALONZO STAGG on his 100th birthday next Aug. 16, by establishing a scholarship fund in his name. The fund is to be used to provide full tuition, board, and room, will go to outstanding high school seniors.

"Mr. STAGG is the most celebrated of American football coaches. He was the first coach ever to be made a life-time member of the faculty of an American university. The appointment was in recognition of the fact that an athletic coach could be an educator and a preceptor of youth, and Mr. STAGG's inestimable influence on the thousands of young men who came under his guidance demonstrated the validity of the belief.

"He achieved his own education under extreme hardship. At Phillips Exeter academy, he endeavored to live on a few soda crackers in order to pay his way, and at Yale his budget for meals was a mere 20 cents a day. Classmates came to his assistance, and his health was not impaired. He became one of the greatest college baseball pitchers and was named end on Walter Camp's first All-American football team. At 100, he is still going strong.

"The STAGG scholarships will make it possible for other young men to have a less strenuous exposure to education. The fund is a fitting memorial to a great American — much more meaningful than some plaque or scroll. The countless admirers of the Old Man will find the scholarship fund a means of making Mr. STAGG's inspiration a continuing influence upon young people."

New Scofflaw King...

A New Yorker has acquired the disreputable title of champion scofflaw for piling up 235 ignored traffic tickets in that city. His long-overdue day of reckoning is scheduled for later this month.

Such total disregard for the law is not shocking; we've seen it before.

Any court system which allows such behavior certainly comes in for a share of the blame, however. Certainly people are going to hold the law in light regard when a person can escape punishment for extended periods.

Too Weak to Walk?

How high is up?
When you're climbing stairs instead of riding elevators, 32 floors is apparently too much.

The elevator service in a Detroit office building just up and refused to give everyone that morning lift. Did the loyal employees rise to the occasion? No sir. Even many of the bosses failed to face up to the climb. The majority repaired to the park and the coffee shop, to await repairs which could have taken all day.

Is this an indication of Americans' physical fitness and desire to serve and succeed? Apparently.

The Man About Town

Bumpy Crossings Drivers Wonder Why All Cannot Be Made Smooth

By JOE HAAS

There's a great difference in the condition of the pavement crossings of the railway tracks in Pontiac. Most of them are quite on the level, and auto drivers are prone to wonder why they all should not be that way.

All Saginaw Street crossings are quite devoid of bumps. This also is true of those on Clinton, Huron, Sanderson, Florence and Johnson. But Franklin Road is rough, and those on Cass surely are bone shakers. Oakland also could be better, as could Montclair, Baldwin, and Howard.

South and East Boulevard and Sanford are quite agreeable, as also are Walton, Bagley and Orchard Lake Road. And some of the lesser used crossings could enjoy some leveling.

But the question still remains — why is it necessary to have any bumps?

Tombstone: What's best carved on by chiseling in traffic.

Now living in Cleveland, Adrian Hascall, formerly of Pontiac, writes that he's working for a firm that makes traps for purse snatchers. By the mere flick of a switch, they grab the thief's hand.

Some quotations from the diary of his grandfather, sent me by Malcolm Libbers of Detroit, formerly of Pontiac, show that in 1880 the elder Libbers cut firewood on the shore of Sylvan Lake, and hauled it with horses to Pontiac. He sold it to Central High School for $1.50 a cord. It required a whole day to make one trip, and he hauled two cords to a load. This gave him $3.00 a day for man and team, and nothing for the work of previously cutting up the wood. "But in this manner he paid off a mortgage on his home," writes his grandson. Changing times, eh?

It is quite necessary, much as we hate to do so, that this column refuse the publication of items about lost pets, unless you've first tried to find them through our classified department. If that doesn't succeed, then we'll help you.

Back in 1920 there was some baseball rivalry between Flint and Pontiac, our team representing the Oakland plant, and the Flint team the Chevrolet plant. A clipping about their playing has been received from

"Just Curious," who wonders if any members of that Pontiac team are still living. So do we. Speak up.

Whether he intends it for a compliment to the Pontiac area or not.

may it keep the press strong and free

In a Rochester, N. Y., hotel 75 years ago, there occurred a meeting which has had a profound effect on the maturity and adaptability of the press of America. Out of this meeting of 46 men has grown an organization embracing 859 of the nation's 1,763 daily newspapers, representing 90 per cent of the total daily circulation of over 60 million.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA) was originally formed to improve the content of advertising and to meet the challenges of technological developments that were revolutionizing the newspaper publishing field.

Today, the ANPA operates in such wide areas as research, labor, government regulations, freedom of the press and the cost and supply of newsprint.

In recent years, research into improving all aspects of newspapers has become an increasingly important concern of the organization. An ambitious step was the establishment of a Research Institute in Easton, Pa. There, technicians test new production methods, maintain newsprint standards and currently search for a waterbase, nonsmudging ink and better color printing techniques.

The Research Institute also conducts management seminars, produces training manuals for every production department of a newspaper, holds annual summer workshops for teachers in classrooms and fosters journalism recruitment among high school students, the next generation of America's newspaper workers — and readers.

David Lawrence Says:

Here's Story on Steel Price Row

WASHINGTON—This is the inside story of how an economic judgment of major importance was made within the steel industry only to be upset subsequently by the political judgment of the President of the United States, backed up by threats of criminal prosecution. The story is based on several days in the steel industry and economists who analyze trade and financial news.

It is perhaps best to present the facts in what could have been a dialogue between an inquiring reporter and a group of men who, sitting as a finance committee, endeavor to make an economic judgment just after the contract with the national Steelworkers union was signed. Here in composite form is the result:

Q "Did you assure the President or anyone else that you would hold the line on prices?"

A "We not only didn't do this, but we couldn't do it without deliberately violating the antitrust laws. We set down alongside our competitors only to negotiate with the labor union. We couldn't mention prices either to the union representatives or to the men from the other companies."

Q "Wasn't it inferred or wasn't it implied that, if the unions didn't get a big wage increase, you as a group wouldn't increase prices?"

A "We gave no such promise or inference to anyone. The new increase of 19 cents an hour for labor in 1949 benefits, it is estimated, will cost our industry about $100 million a year. Somebody has to pay for this."

Q "But after all the public discussion of wage and price stability, why couldn't you go along?"

A "Because we have a responsibility to those who have invested in our property. We have promised to pay back what we owe. We had to make an economic judgment."

Q "On what was your economic judgment based?"

A "On the simple fact that three years ago we in our company began a program to modernize our plant and equipment at a cost of $1,185,000,000."

Q "Where did you get the money?"

A "We got part of it out of surplus and depreciation reserve and part of it out of profits after paying dividends. The balance — about $600 million — we borrowed."

Q "Why didn't you just sell more stock instead of borrowing?"

A "Because, to pay dividends on your stock at five per cent, you would have to earn 10 per cent before taxes, which take about a half of your earnings, whereas you can borrow money at five per cent and get a tax deduction on half of the interest cost."

Q "But how do you relate this to your pricing policy?"

A "We make a five-year forecast in our company as we take a long-range look at the economy. It's difficult to do, but finally you must make an economic judgment based on whether the market for your product will take the increase in prices and on what your competitors will do."

Q "What was your judgment on this particular price increase?"

A "We felt it was a moderate one that could readily be absorbed by our customers. We had experienced a six per cent deterioration in our cost-price relationship even before the latest wage increase. So a three-and-a-half per cent increase in prices seemed logical, since it was just a bit more than half of the deterioration which had occurred."

Q "How did you come out in your 1949 operations?"

A "We made just a little more than $1 million in our company above our dividend payments and above the $115,000,000 reserved for depreciation. This latter sum is available for capital expenditures and amounts to day to only a partial replacement of the capital we originally invested, during previous years, in plant and equipment that now is wearing out or becoming obsolete."

In fact, all this depreciation reserve and profit put together has been less each year than what we have been spending for new plants. The total profit we earned in 1941 didn't even take care of our debt payment requirements."

Q "One last question. It has been said that what you did was 'bad public relations.' Did you take into account public reaction?"

A "There is never a 'right time' to tell somebody they've got to pay more for their products. But we nevertheless have to make our determinations and judgments on economic facts."

"Public relations will not help us if we cannot modernize fast enough to enable us to compete with Europe or with substitute products in this country. Nor will 'public relations' help us if we cannot earn enough each year to pay back what we have borrowed."

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Back Pews Called 'Wallflower Row'

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE L-401: Art S., aged 45, is a star salesman.

"Dr. Crane, a month ago we moved to a city in the East," he told me after a large Sunday school rally which I had been invited to address.

"I went on ahead and located a house, while my wife planned to follow two weeks later. When the first Sunday came, I decided to visit a large Dr. CRANE church on the corner.

"Being a stranger, I dropped down in a seat a few rows from the back. After the sermon was over, I got up, but nobody said a word to me. Not a soul offered me a smile or a handshake."

"The next Sunday it was the same way. So when my wife arrived, I told her we better had a different church, for they were the icebergs in this sea."

"But she said she couldn't believe people would be like that. So I followed her inside the door. She walked right on down the aisle to the third row from the front."

"And after the sermon, I don't believe I ever shook hands with so many church people at one time in my life, as I did that morning. We were signed up for the men's club and the ladies' aid, and treated as if we had been lifelong members of the parish."

"Dr. Crane, how do you account for this radical change? Did I scare people off, while my wife attracted them?"

Voice of the People:

'Why Not Allow Americans to Enjoy Surplus Foods?'

It is tragic that we have such a large food surplus. Are there no hungry people in this country? How many families eat also instead of butter? Yet, it's a surplus food. Peanut butter is another. We used to think of it as inexpensive, but today it's almost a luxury. If these items were sold at a price the average family could afford, there would be no surplus.

It costs millions every year to buy, process and store these items. The government should save money, but saving taxpayers' dollars is out of style. They could use it to send more of the pennies class on good will tours. I am sure they haven't exhausted their list.

What about our good will? Or is that something else we don't mention? Even the pack horse will stagger and fall under a continuous burden. We have just about reached that point.

'How Can Mere Man Pass Judgment?'

The picture in The Press of a woman kneeling to a man asking forgiveness for holding an opinion should shock any red-blooded American. Segregation is not the issue. It's the audacity of using the blackmail tactics of the Inquisition who believe that the Pope is appointed by God himself to delegate the power to his priests to pass judgment on mankind.

President Kennedy, a very good president, is also a professed Catholic. But how many votes would an agnostic get if he ran for office?

'Need Committee to Help Taxpayer'

Committees in Washington investigate misleading advertisements of manufacturers. The committee that would benefit the taxpayer would be a committee to investigate the misleading advertising made by this administration at the taxpayers' expense. They have an army of politicians making the rounds peddling their beautifully wrapped packages, but refuse to divulge the contents.

They have elaborate briefing sessions with just the favorable side of the story told to the press. We have 50 house committees. Ten have not a single Republican staff member. The administration would not agree to a formal Republican study to Democrats on these state. This is dictatorship.

Our officials predict that by the end of the next budget period there will be 20,000 new federal employees added. This is just that many new parasites for the taxpayers to support. Who is going to pay the taxes when we all get on the taxpayers' backs?

'Currency Inflation Bad on Hungarians'

The Russians aimed the wildest currency inflation on record at certain groups of Hungarians as deliberately as guns are aimed in battle. It wiped out the savings of the country's most solid citizens, the thrifty and hard-working middle class. This is the story of inflation wherever and whenever it occurs. The first victims are the thrifty and hard-working middle class.

I feel sorry for Eddie Fisher. He left his wife and two children for Liz. But every picture she makes she falls in love with the leading man or director.

Eddie has been taken off TV and his songs are never played. Let's get him back. He has a wonderful talent.

charming wife is therefore, a great professional asset. I know, for I have one.

Remember this psychological axiom: "People prefer to be friendly." Then why do they act moody and aloof? Because they don't know how to start conversations. They don't understand people. They are timid, so they fear to make the first move toward sociability.

For the "rear seat" people are likely to be more shy and distant, which is in one reason they choose the back row. They haven't the nerve to walk down the aisle, even though a pleasant smile willingly precedes them.

So unless you are optically farsighted, stay off the rear rows. Go forward and sit among people who are members of the organization. For the members are usually more sociable and friendly.

Many churches have been erroneously misjudged, and denied stiff or formal seating. The critic is really to blame. Before the members can get back to those visitors on the rear seats, the latter have left the building and probably feel like Art.

I must confess, of course, that a pleasant, smiling wife will help a great deal in breaking the social ice. Mrs. Coolidge was renowned for her social grace, her graciousness, and warm handshakes.

Now wives help husbands. When many visitors would have felt that Mrs. Coolidge was a bit aloof or tactless, Mrs. Coolidge changed their opinions and won their friendship.

There are thus available to make the husbands successful in the eyes of the ladies' physical. Many physicians and dentists are making money because the graciousness and charm of their wives attract patients. A

New Orleans Negro Gets Job Offers in New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—Negro Lewis Boyd, his wife and 8 children, given a free one-way trip north by the New Orleans White Citizens Council, weighed job offers today in a free $25-a-day hotel suite.

Boyd, 41, arrived here by bus Saturday with his family. They were given bus tickets and $30 expense money by the Citizens Council.

The family attended Easter services yesterday in newly donated clothes. The Rev. Gardner Taylor, pastor of the Concord Baptist Church, donated $100 to the Boyds on behalf of the congregation. Later, one of the church members invited the family to Easter dinner.

Boyd, a husky laborer who said he left the South because he could not find work, received several job offers during the weekend.

On his arrival here he expressed thanks to the White Citizens Council in New Orleans and to other groups that arranged the journey to New York.

Ore Carrier Docks at Superior, Wis.

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP)—The iron ore carrier, Edward L. Ryerson, opened the Superior navigation season, sailing through the port entry at 6:17 p.m.

The 730-foot ship, one of the largest Great Lakes vessels, pulled to the Great Northern Railway docks in Allouez Bay. A 15-member delegation of civic and port officials greeted the captain and crew.

The Ryerson had been expected early yesterday, but became ice-bound in Whitefish Bay, along with 16 other ships, Saturday. They were freed by a U.S. Coast Guard cutter, the Mackinaw.

George Fisher, captain of the Ryerson, said the ice pushed into the navigable passage by 35 miles per hour winds was piled 20 feet high in some areas.

'Gets Recommended' for Federal Bench

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional source reported Saturday that Circuit Judge Noel F. Fox, of Muskegon, has been recommended for appointment to the U. S. District Court for Western Michigan.

There has been considerable speculation that Fox would be appointed to the bench by President Kennedy.

The committee, created to screen candidates for federal appointments, is composed of Michigan's Democratic Senators Patrick V. McNamara and Philip A. Hart, Gov. John B. Swainson, the state's Democratic House members and state party officials.

GOP in Ohio to Exploit the Fight

DiSalle-McElroy Contest Growing Bitter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — A contest between Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and Atty. Gen. Mark L. McElroy for the Democratic nomination for governor holds the spotlight today in the approaching May 8 Ohio primaries.

About 1.4 million persons were expected to vote with Democrats turning out in larger numbers than Republicans because of the interest in their intraparty squabble. A near record field of 70 candidates, including many unknowns, is contesting in the various statewide races. To be nominated are candidates for U. S. senator, 24 representatives in Congress, including one from the state at large, all state officials, more than half of the legislature, and numerous local officials.

Most observers rate DiSalle an easy favorite. The contest, however, is producing bitterness within the big city Democratic organizations and the Republicans hope to exploit it in November.

Both DiSalle and McElroy, who got into the race when the governor temporarily withdrew from the political wars, have made the DiSalle record, particularly finances, the main issue.

DiSalle announced last October he would not seek re-election. He said he felt he could be more effective pushing his programs in mental hygiene, education and welfare if the people knew he was not a politician seeking re-election.

CHANGED HIS MIND
McElroy waited six weeks for DiSalle to change his mind and then announced. DiSalle decided in January he had not found anybody who would run wholeheartedly on the DiSalle program and announced he would run again.

Since, McElroy has spared little in his attacks on DiSalle. The attorney general says DiSalle's $300-million tax increase of three years ago makes him an easy target for the GOP this fall. He contends DiSalle is more interested in fighting with the Republican-controlled legislature than in seeking solutions to problems.

The governor, who has been on an intensive speaking campaign, feels the people will support his programs in education, welfare and mental hygiene even if it means additional taxes. He believes some adjustments in present laws should be made to increase revenues.

DiSalle has the support of the major newspapers which have made endorsements, along with the support of the Democratic state organization and the hundreds of state employees whose jobs depend upon his success. McElroy has the support of the Democratic organization in Cleveland, his hometown, where about 25 per cent of the Democratic votes are. The Cincinnati and Dayton organizations are neutral but some of the Cincinnati Democratic leaders are working for McElroy. The winner will meet Republican James A. Rhodes, state auditor the past 10 years, who has only token opposition in the primary.

How your life insurance can provide retirement income you can't outlive!

Will your retirement be the comfortable, happy years you hope for? The answer rests largely on how much income you will have—and how much of it you can count on receiving regularly for the rest of your life.

This is where your life insurance can help. If your policies have cash values—as all types of permanent life insurance do—the additional income they can provide may make the difference between an enjoyable retirement and "just getting by." These cash values can even be arranged to pay you and your wife an income that's guaranteed as long as either lives.

No other retirement plan offers this income you can't outlive. It is one of the unique advantages of life insurance.

5 ways that the unique advantages of life insurance bring peace of mind at the stroke of a pen

1. Guarantees immediate family protection. Only life insurance enables you to provide full protection for your family right from the start.
2. Guarantees funds for children's education. By having a life insurance policy for college expenses, you can guarantee your boy or girl will have this opportunity, whether you live or not.
3. Guarantees a family can keep its home. With life insurance, a man can guarantee there will be money to pay off the mortgage if he doesn't live to complete the payments.
4. Guarantees money for emergencies. The guaranteed cash values in your policy can help you meet big unexpected expenses.
5. Guarantees a lifetime income at retirement. Life insurance can furnish additional income for the policyholder and his wife at retirement that's guaranteed as long as either lives.

To make sure you get the most from your life insurance, take full advantage of the continuing service your life insurance agent offers. Review your program with him regularly—at least every two years—to keep it in line with your changing circumstances. This service, which costs you nothing, may make your life insurance even more valuable when you or your family need it.

Raid Charged to Cambodians*S. Viet Nam Accuses Neighbor of Attack on Village, Death of 48

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam today accused Cambodia of sending troops on a raid across its frontier and killing 48 villagers, including 29 women and children.

The semi-official Vietnamese News Agency said 200 Cambodian soldiers from a border outpost raided the village of Vinh Lac, 120 miles west of Saigon, last Friday.

It said the raiders also wounded about 20 Vietnamese and abducted two women.

Surviving villagers staged a protest rally Sunday, the agency said, and provincial authorities sent relief supplies to the stricken community.

An informed source said earlier that South Viet Nam had created a demilitarized zone along its border with Cambodia to prevent infiltration by Communist Viet Cong rebels.

AT ODDS

Neutralist Cambodia maintains diplomatic relations with anti-Communist South Viet Nam, but the two governments have long been at odds and frequently have charged each other with border violations.

The South Viet Nam government has accused Cambodia repeatedly of giving refuge to Viet Cong guerrillas who flee across the border when Vietnamese troops close in on them. Cambodia has denied the charge and accused Vietnamese forces of trespassing on Cambodian territory and harassing Cambodian border villages.

An estimated 20,000 worshippers were on hand for the traditional Easter morning services. AP PhotosOnly One Mistake in Spelling Name

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—

Mary Samuel had to admit the St. Petersburg Independent did a pretty good job of spelling the name of the Welsh town. But she said one "I" had been left out of said,

"Llanfairpwllgwyloggy, chwyndrowell, llan-y-wiloggy." Wales-born Miss Samuel, furthermore, could pronounce the name, having learned as a girl to earn a shilling from her uncle.

The town with the jaw-breaking name, she said, is very pretty. "It has a church, railway station, service station, a few houses and three or four tearooms," she said.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A strong earthquake 3.20 miles to the west or northwest registered on the California Institute of Technology seismograph Sunday night.

Town Lived Up to Tough Name

Rough and Ready, Calif. Was Just That in Days of the Gold Rush

ROUGH AND READY, Calif. (UPI)—In the mid-19th century in California, belligerence was almost a way of life. And when a bunch of the belligerent gathered to start a town in the Mother Lode country, they named it — logically enough — Rough and Ready.

Today Rough and Ready is far from it. It's no more than a few tattered shacks warping in the Sierra Nevada sun in the middle of a green meadow. But it has had its moments.

On one occasion a town notable met a violent death and most of the citizens were on hand for the burial.

During the service someone noticed that the earth turned out for the grave was a familiar yellow color. Before the minister could finish his prayers everyone had staked a claim and the corpse was forgotten.

When the town splashed into the social swim by throwing its first dance, the male-to-female ratio stood at a discouraging 250 men to six women. This was not good for dancing, but it was excellent for fighting. Brawls averaged one every three minutes.

Another time a group of miners caught a gambler cheating in a local saloon. He was shot with dispatch.

Then, by way of setting an example, they stretched the dying man on a post table and placed him on the precise moment of his demise.

Rough and Ready reached its zenith in 1850 when, in a burst of gold dust and cursing, it seceded from the United States, adopted its own constitution and set itself up as a republic. But cruel ridicule of the foreign republic back to the union.

But before the age of Jesse James and Calamity Jane had passed, Rough and Ready's mines dried up and the town followed.

And today it has little but its name and its history — both beligerent.

Spy Trial to Be Delayed

BARI, Italy (AP)—Legal sources predict current preliminary inquiries by a judge acting as a one-man grand jury will delay until September the spy trial of Bulgarian Lt. Miluse Solakov, 23, whose Soviet-made MIG-17 photo plane crash-landed near here Jan. 20 after flying over a North Atlantic Treaty Organization base.

Car Falls, Killing Man

LESLIE (AP)—Carl Beers, 49, was killed in his garage yesterday when a jack collapsed and he was pinned underneath his car. Sheriff's deputies said Beers suffocated under the weight of the car.

Department All Fired Up

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI)—Firemen, called to extinguish a minor fire in a station wagon, found they also had to deal with another blaze — the one that resulted from a shorted battery cable in their fire truck.

Scouts Waylaid by Youngsters on Egg Hunt

MIAMI (UPI)—A troop of Boy Scouts set out yesterday to play Easter Bunny but a group of canny youngsters spotted them in advance and not one egg got hidden.

The 4-to-10-year-olds located the scouts before the hunt officially opened at Bayfront Park and began picking up eggs as fast as the scouts could put them down.

Then the children moved in on the scouts in ranks 15 to 20 deep and ripped at the big paper bags which carried 5,000 eggs in all. The scouts wound up throwing the eggs into the air to keep the children from tearing them out of their hands.

Police Help Couple With Togetherness

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Not everyday does someone drop in at the Lincoln Police Station to borrow a pair of handcuffs.

But Asst. Chief W. H. Manchester was understanding when the request came from a pair of newweds.

"They're trying to steal me," explained. College friends planned to separate the bride and groom as a prank.

Area Man Hospitalized in Accidental Shooting

Frank Reali, 6606 Highland Road, Waterford Township, was reported in good condition at Pontiac Ochs public hospital where he was admitted early this morning after accidentally shooting himself in the leg.

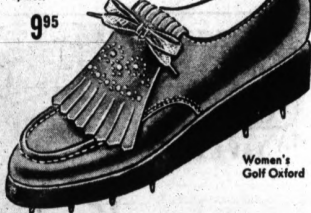

Reali said he thought he heard growlers in his home at 1:40 a.m. After searching the house, he was standing at the front door looking over the grounds when the 22-caliber rifle discharged.

Audience Thanked for Showing Up

TULSA, Okla. (U) — The Tulsa Little Theater put on two extra performances of "Look, Home-ward Angel" to accommodate those unable to see it during the regular run.

The first night, a near-blizzard struck and only 70 hardy persons turned out. After the performance the entire cast marched up the aisle to the foyer, formed a line and extended personal thanks to everyone who had been in the audience.

Italy Plans 3 Stamps

ROME (U) — Italy plans three new stamp issues this year: 1. To mark the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council opening at the Vatican Oct. 11; 2. for the successful battle against malaria, and 3. for the Venice Movie Festival on its 30th anniversary.

Beats Handicap to Play Trumpet for University

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Boyde W. Hood of Seagoville, Tex., a trumpet and coronet player, left here recently with the University of Rochester's 87-student Eastman Philharmonia for a three-month concert tour of Europe.

Hood considers himself a lucky fellow, not so much because he is making the tour, but because he overcame a serious handicap.

The handicap: Boyde has only four stumps on his right hand where his fingers used to be. He lost them at the age of nine after being critically burned in a fire.

Boyde played in his high school band until graduation and in the Dallas Symphony from 1958 to 1960. He is considered one of the top instrumentalists at the Eastman School here.

Finally Dies at 150 Despite Care Trust

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (U) — Money in the bank and special care failed to save a 150-year-old elm tree.

The tree became the victim of Dutch elm disease despite the fact the late Jennie M. Arms Sheldon had set up a trust fund for its preservation.

The tree — on the campus of Deerfield Academy — was even equipped with a lightning rod.

The small trust for the 110-foot tall tree had been administered by the school since 1938.

Enroll Nearly 100,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — A total of 97,880 students enrolled last fall in the seven colleges of the City University of New York, an increase of more than 6,500 over the previous year. Of these, 38,750 are undergraduate candidates for degrees, receiving free tuition.

Family Prefers to Celebrate on the Holidays

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Birthdays and holidays are pretty much the same thing for the Moock family.

Fred Moock, 23, was born on Labor Day and he and his wife have had three children—all on holidays.

Ronald Lee, 4, was born on Memorial Day; Peggy Sue, 3, on Thanksgiving, and a boy arrived Easter Sunday.

Benny Goodman Eager to Visit Russia

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — When Chet Bohlen was President Eisenhower's ambassador to Moscow, a Russian friend guardedly asked him if it would be possible to secure, through diplomatic channels, the photograph album of a great American artist.

Bohlen assured him that it could be done.

"Who is the artist?" he asked.

The Russian glanced nervously about, lowered his voice and bravely replied:

"Benny Goodman."

In a letter he enclosed in the package of records he sent to Bohlen, Goodman casually mentioned that it would be nice someday to make a tour of the Soviet Union with the band. Bohlen thought so, too.

RUNS INTO CHILL

But he got nowhere when he made inquiry at the cultural ministry, and ran into just as much of a chill when he approached John Foster Dulles.

Dulles, a real cube, thought a license stick was something to eat.

But every now and then in the intervening years there was a report that Benny would invade Russia or that it was a crying shame that neither side would let him.

In the meantime, the Russians as a whole became familiar with his music and liked what they heard.

They got Benny through the only consistently unjammed program on the Voice of America, Willie O'Connor's Music — U.S.A.

Afonador, such as Bohlen's friend, had dug him even earlier, during Edsel Smith's term as ambassador. When Benny was an adviser to the Voice on the type of music that might occasionally fight its way through to "Joe."

Now Benny's going to Russia. "Live," a persona grata diplomat, but better dressed and probably the richest one since Jock Whitney.

He and his two dozen musicians, arrangers, baggage handlers, etc., fly out of Seattle and over the pole to Moscow May 27, after a week at the World's Fair.

They'll be in the Soviet Union for five or six weeks, part of the new cultural exchange.

They get Goodman; we get Ukrainian folk dancers, Khrushchev wins another one, but the historian of a century hence may speak of this exchange as the beginning of the end of the Cold War.

SAME JOB

For Benny, the geography will be different but the job the same. He ran into him in Baghdad in 1956.

He and his band had arrived at their hotel one afternoon at 4:30, after 30-odd hours of travel and engine trouble, only to be met by a nervous little Department man whispering that King Phumphon Adidee expected everyone to appear at the palace — Yul Brynner's old place — at 4.

There followed the cacophony of 167 pieces of luggage being broken open and millions of whistles being put to blade.

But even in the confusion, Benny remained the inherent ambassador.

BROUGHT 2 CLARINETS

He brought along two clarinets, and when the king rewarded all members of the band with cigarette cases embossed with his crest, Benny gave his highship the extra license stick.

Later, as the band ate, they could hear the king practicing in his golden suite.

When Phumphon Adidee embarked on a state visit to the U.S. a couple of years ago, Benny called him an invitation to a little afternoon jam session at his posthouse on New York's East Side.

It commands a view of Alaska. Phumphon showed. He had to be dragged away, long after dark, to attend an official function arranged by the State Department.

We'll never have a war with Thailand, thanks to Benny Goodman.

Saw Benny in 1958 at the Brussels World's Fair.

There, in that curious wasteland of the U.S. exhibit, housed in Ed Stone's wonderful fireproof roundhouse, Goodman again blew something sharply emphatic across his reed, and each day the Russians would meek over from their stuffed hangar to sit and marvel. Now, the McCoy.

"We're booked into a lot of places I can't spell," Benny told us over a drink the other night. "Oh, Tashkent, Sochi, Tbilisi, as well as Moscow and Leningrad. It's pretty wild."

"We'll give 'em 'Midnight in

Explosion Rips Millington Hotel

Wall Is Blown Out but Coffee Customers Not Seriously Hurt

MILLINGTON (AP) — Sixteen persons escaped serious injury today when an explosion, believed to have been caused by gasoline fumes, ripped the interior of the Millington Hotel.

The 16 included guests and employees at the 20-room hotel, and several customers in the coffee shop.

The latter included Millington Police Chief Clarence Schroeder and Jim Fox, editor of the Weekly Millington Herald.

Fox said, "We were just sipping away at our coffee and chatting when 'boom' . . . it seemed like the place blew up." Schroeder was knocked to the floor and suffered back injuries.

Fox and Chief Schroeder joined in rescue operations to aid other occupants of the hotel to safety. Mrs. Ollie Chatters, coffee shop waitress, was treated for cuts, bruises and shock.

The coffee shop and bar of the hotel took the brunt of the explosion in the 100-year hotel which was remodeled after a fire two years ago.

one wall of the structure in this Tuscola County community was blown out.

Police cordoned off the area for fear that the building might collapse or that there might be a second explosion.

Singer's Son Drowns in Swimming Pool

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Steve Allen Lewis, 3-year-old son of rock 'n' roll singer Jerry Lee Lewis, drowned in a swimming pool at the Lewis' suburban home Sunday.

Steve was the son of Lewis and 17-year-old Myra Gail Brown Lewis, the singer's third wife. Their marriage in 1958 caused an uproar that canceled a tour in England for Lewis. Myra, Lewis' cousin, was 13 at the time.

Elmo K. Lewis of Ferryday, La., Lewis' father, said the child was in the kitchen with his mother when he wandered away. After a search of the house, Mrs. Lewis called a neighbor to search the pool.

Lewis was away at the time. Filing a night club engagement in Milwaukee. He canceled the rest of the engagement and left for Memphis.

Will Test Bat for Rabies After City Tot Bitten

Rabies tests were to be made today on a bat which yesterday bit a 4-year-old boy while he was sleeping.

Christopher K. Meier, of 44 Hudson St. woke his father Charles at 1:30 a.m. to tell him something had just bitten him of the right cheek. The father told police he found and caught a large bat in the boy's bedroom and caged it in a large glass jar.

In another incident, Monroe Owens, 35, of 38 Bellevue St. was bitten on his right index finger by a squirrel which had been run over by a car passing Owens' house. The squirrel also was to be tested for rabies.

Fair's Space Needle Striking Structure

By BOBTHOMAS

SEATTLE (AP)—"Meet me at the Space Needle, baby, and we'll get right to the point."

A local wag has suggested this ditty as theme song for the Seattle World's Fair.

What the Eiffel Tower was to the 1889 French international, the Space Needle is to the Century 21 Exposition. It is in the beacon, the focus of interest, the topic of conversation, the landmark, the Eiffel, which only age and tradition have graced with lovelessness. It is the Space Needle is an immediate beauty. It ascends white and fragile on a tripod of double beams with a lacy center core. On top is a fat disc which contains the observation deck and restaurant. A needle sticks up above with plume of gas flame.

ELEVATORS BEST
Total height: 600 feet. You can get to the top by ascending 82 steps. A better plan is to take one of three elevators that skim up the outer edge of the core.

So many squeamish folks have indicated a reluctance to make the trip that a second restaurant has been proposed at the bottom of the Space Needle. It would be called the chicken-out inn.

Oh, it's not so bad—just don't look down. I did, while taking my first ride in the plastic-enclosed elevator and had second thoughts. Once you're aloft, you have the feeling of floating in space.

Then you look down and see the 74 acres of the World's Fair spread out like a colorful toy. Oops, don't look down.

TREMENDOUS VIEW

You can look out and see the Olympic Mountains far across Puget Sound. The Cascade peaks to the east and on a clear day, the majestic Mt. Rainier to the south.

The restaurant is called the Eye of the Needle, and it's enough to give a steady drinker the willies. It revolves.

That's right—five feet a minute, a total revolution in an hour. Just the outer circle of the restaurant moves; the kitchen and service area remains stationary.

Yes, I know what you're thinking: how is the waitress going to find her way back to your table? They've worked that out, too.

Sun Beams Blessing on Easter Day Rites

Alleluias to the Risen Christ rang out from choir lofts and sanctuaries Sunday as thousands in the Pontiac area in their Easter finery filled churches to overflowing.

It was all in celebration of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ centuries ago — the central point of the Christian faith.

Overcast skies greeted churchgoers attending early Easter morning services but near 7 a.m. the sun broke through the clouds, pouring out a warm blessing. Sunshine and showers vied for supremacy during the afternoon.

The joyous services started long before dawn with Masses in Catholic churches following the close of Holy Saturday vigils at midnight. Parishioners filled churches until noon. Worship in Johnson's Temple Church of God in Christ was the next reported at 5 a.m.

Then came sunrise services. Young people of Trinity Methodist Church, Waterford, presented a play entitled, "Because He Lives," at the hillside home of the pastor.

In churches where young people conducted the worship, plays, pageants and Easter music were followed by breakfasts.

Before altars banked with lilies and other spring flowering plants there were baptisms and reception of members.

Children's, junior and senior choirs presented "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," "O Joy, Our Easter!" and "The Easter Hallelujah," a few of the anthems and cantatas they had been rehearsing for weeks.

The day closed with youth and adult groups gathering for evening rites with the showing of films such as "I Beheld His Glory," "He Lives" and "The Resurrection Story."

Arriving for the later service at Christ Church Cranbrook on Easter are Dr. and Mrs. Howard B. Barker and daughter, Barbara, (right) of Martell Drive, Bloomfield Hills. Barbara is home for the holiday from New York City.

Pontiac Press Photos by Ed Vanderway

Young people of Oakland Park Methodist Church conducted the sunrise service Easter morning. Serving as ushers were Annette Foster of Riviera Terrace (left), Thomas Fuller of Sheridan Avenue and Rebecca Troy of East Mansfield Avenue.

Ask Them to Stay Over Next Night

By the Emily Post Institute
Q: Although the following incident occurred several months ago, I would still like to know whether or not I was wrong.

I invited my niece and her family to spend New Year's with us. When I invited her I told her that we always spend New Year's Eve with old friends of ours. We have been doing this for years.

My niece lives in another city about 150 miles from here. She said that unless they could come the day before they wouldn't come at all, as she thought it was too much traveling for one day.

The year before last we were invited to their house for Christmas. We left our house early Christmas morning and got there in time for dinner and we came home the same day. I thought they could have done the same.

We haven't seen nor heard from them since and have reason to believe they are peeved because we did not cancel our New Year's Eve gettogether for them.

I would like to know if it was too much to expect them to come for the day and if it was necessary to cancel our plans for them.

A: Three hundred miles in holiday traffic does seem a lot of driving just for dinner. You should not have canceled your New Year's Eve plans for them, but you might have invited them to spend New Year's night with you and drive back on the following day.

Q: The mother and married sister of a young man I have been going out with for the past four months have invited me to their houses for dinner several times. I would like to know if I am expected to return these invitations. I live at home with my parents who are strangers to my boy friend's family.

A: You are certainly not expected to return their invitations, but it would be a friendly and pleasant gesture on your part to send the young man's mother and sister a few flowers on their birthdays.

Q: My husband and I have been invited to our nephew's wedding. We have never met his fiancée or her family. We are sending a check as a wedding present. To whom should it be sent?

A: Not having met your nephew's fiancée, it will be entirely proper to make the check out to Helen and John Jones and send it to him to be cashed by them both after the wedding.

Ballet, Concert Is Tomorrow

The Severo Ballet Company of Detroit, currently completing plans for its first tour of the State of Michigan will appear with the Pontiac Symphony Orchestra at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Pontiac Northern High School. Felix Resnick will conduct the orchestra in its fifth and final concert of the season.

During the past six seasons, the ballet has appeared in many performances with the Detroit Symphony and has been seen on both the Young People's Series of Concerts and the Family Series of Concerts.

SET RECORDS

In the summer of 1959, Severo Ballet Company, appearing with the Detroit Symphony at the Michigan State Fairgrounds, broke all previous records with an attendance of 15,000. It also set an attendance precedent in 1960 at the Cranbrook Gardens Summer Festival.

The entire company of 25 dancers will appear in the Pontiac program which will include selections from the "Gayne Ballet" and "Masquerade Suite" by Khatchaturian. Dancing excerpts from Jacques Ibert's "Divertimento" offer a light-hearted, carefree French-flavored work which ends in a rousing Can-Can finale.

Symphony numbers will include "Water Music Suite" by Handel and "Symphony No. 2" by Tchaikovsky.

Tell 'em to Dial Information

None of Their Business

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am a long-distance operator and my voice must be very interesting because I've had many men try to date me. I was never interested, because what kind of man would want to go out with a girl he's never seen?

Anyway, Christmas Eve a man was trying desperately to phone his girl and he was miserable because he couldn't locate her. He liked my voice and I liked his manner and, to make a long story short, I let him pick me up after work. (Please don't let on where this letter is from because I could get fired.)

Well, we are going together now, but when people ask me how I met him, what do I say?

GIRL WITH THE smiling VOICE
DEAR GIRL: Put that smile in your voice and tell your party to dial information.

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column faithfully ever since it began six years ago and I agree with your answers about 99 per cent of the time. But there is one part of your thinking that is full of prejudice, and very narrow-minded, to say the least, and that is marriage outside one's faith.

I hope you will be big enough to print this, Abby, because I would like to see some letters from intelligent people who have made such marriages work.

A DEVOTED ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: So would I.

DEAR ABBY: Please say something in your column to the thoughtless parents who buy their children live baby chicks for Easter. The kiddies soon chase or squeeze the life out of the helpless little birds and really enjoy them less than their candy Easter eggs.

CHICKEN-HEARTED

DEAR CHICKEN-HEARTED: I too, am "chicken-hearted" and hope that your timely letter will cause parents to think twice before giving live baby chicks to children who are too young to care for them properly.

DEAR ABBY: I have been invited to our nephew's wedding. We have never met his fiancée or her family. We are sending a check as a wedding present. To whom should it be sent?

A: Not having met your nephew's fiancée, it will be entirely proper to make the check out to Helen and John Jones and send it to him to be cashed by them both after the wedding.

Kenneth H. Bogard Jr.
Marries Saginaw Girl

Easter lilies and palms graced the Countryside Presbyterian Church in Saginaw, for the Saturday evening vows of Jo Anne Culp to Kenneth H. Bogard Jr., Dr. Henry W. Fischer, retired, officiated.

Receiving some 300 guests in the crystal ballroom Hotel Bancroft were the newlyweds and their parents, the Sherwood T. Culp of Saginaw, and the senior Bogards of West Lawrence Street.

Alcon lace touched with pearls and crystals accented the brides gown of white silk organza over taffeta, styled with skirt of unpressed pleats and chapel train. Her veil of imported silk tulle hid from a lace tiara. She held a white orchid and feathered carnations, atop a white Bible.

Wide cashed cummerbunds and floating panels of apricot taffeta accented identical dresses of nylon white sheer for Pamela Culp, her sister's maid of honor, and their cousin Judy Long of Florence, Ala., and Dorine Hiser, Merrill, who were bridesmaids. They held crescents of apricot carnations.

Best man was M. Arthur Ardoin, Grosse Pointe Farms; Roger Fitzpatrick, St. Johns; and Dennis Johnson, Cadillac, seated the guests.

Mini green accessories sparked the bride's costume suit of beige Irish linen chosen for the southern honeymoon.

Mr. Bogard is assistant to the registrar at Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, where he received his degree in business administration. His bride attended both Ferris and Indiana State Teacher's College.

Mrs. Culp chose beige lace over dark green tulle for the wedding and the mother of the bridegroom appeared in a toast organza sheath dress worn with apricot accessories.

Wants Leaders to Do Selling Job Abroad

NEW YORK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said today American leaders in the fields of government, education and the arts should be sent abroad to tell the story of the United States to the world.

"Capitalism has become a dirty word because it is synonymous with selfishness," Kennedy said in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of The Associated Press.

"Many people in foreign lands believe that Americans are interested only in material gain, that they are not interested in their neighbors, not interested in their communities and not interested in those that are less well off," he said.

It is to counteract misinformation and dispel false impression of the United States that the attorney general urged articulate spokesmen — politicians, professors, playwrights, poets — to solve them.

In his speech Kennedy made two other suggestions:

1. He said government information agencies should frankly discuss the nation's difficulties in civil rights, law enforcement, and other problems and its attempts to solve them.

2. He said other free countries should be encouraged to set up Peace Corps units like those established by the United States.

It is to counteract misinformation and dispel false impression of the United States that the attorney general urged articulate spokesmen — politicians, professors, playwrights, poets — to solve them.

Today, the attorney general said his proposal to send lecturers to all nations would "help those young people know the facts about us and our way of life."

An aide said Kennedy was aware of the contents of the attorney general's speech.

Last month, commenting at a news conference about his brother's trip, the President observed that a number of high administration officials have traveled abroad and he said they should—learn things and to tell people in other lands "that we have a very vital moving country here."

TALK TO PEOPLE.

In today's address, Atty. Gen. Kennedy said individuals sent abroad under his proposal "should make tours of as many universities as possible and should confer with labor leaders, farm and cooperative leaders, newspaper editors, businessmen and government officials, as well as students."

He said he had discussed the idea recently with a businessman and a labor leader who had volunteered to speak at universities on trips planned to the Far East.

"I know they both will make a favorable impression and they

Jo-Jo Has Ball and Pet Shop Picks Up Bill

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Jo-Jo really had himself a ball. But it's going to take two weeks to clean up.

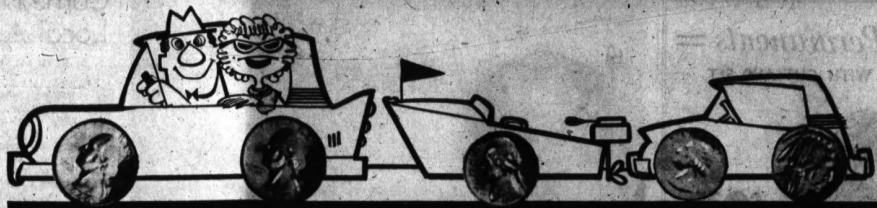

Jo-Jo is a 3-year-old Capuchin monkey. He flipped his lid for 30 minutes Sunday inside a pet shop.

After springing the latch on his cage in the darkened shop, Jo-Jo ate 200 lizards and dined on a few parakeets. Then he threw bird seed, cockroaches, plants, pet food and supplies from the counters into the aisles.

Sue Garrison, an employee, said, "it'll take two weeks to clean up this mess. He must have been afraid to be alone."

But Jo-Jo wasn't completely reckless.

The cages for the red fox, the skunk, the big alligators and the pythons were left alone.

Man Now Living in 'Retarded Age'

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The awesome explosions expected soon in the Pacific from American nuclear tests will be a fiery monument to man's scientific genius and his political adolescence.

He has learned how to shatter a continent, transplant a kidney, remove a cancer, orbit the earth, and now he is aiming for the moon. But he still hasn't learned how to get along with himself. The American nuclear blasts, like the Russian blasts last year, will occur because the United States and Russia don't agree on an effective test ban treaty. For the same reason, the Russians say they will then have some more tests.

This can go on indefinitely, with both sides building even more frightening power, since there is no reason to think they can reach an agreement any time soon that they have in the past.

If Red China gets nuclear power and starts testing, and the French do some more testing, the world ought to look like the Fourth of July every few months or every few weeks.

This may seem to historians of the future—if not in 1,000 years, then perhaps in 10,000—foolproof evidence of the retarded condition of contemporary man.

The more awful the weapons of the East and West become the less anxious they seem to test them on each other since this-or-that could leave them both dead by the millions.

Perhaps right there is the happiest thought of all in what some are steadily progress to disaster unless the testing stops and there are arms control—that in time East and West will scare each other into such sweet reasonableness that problems which now look insurmountable will appear pathetically simple.

But East-West failure to agree on no testing is only another chapter in the history of the world's general inability to get along since the last war which was the greatest testimonial to man's preference for brawn over brains.

Some examples come readily to mind: the Korean war, the Israeli-Arab war, the Congo war, the Indochina war, the Viet Nam war, the Laotian war, the Indian attack on Goa, the Hungarian East and West become the less anxious they seem to test them on each other since this-or-that could leave them both dead by the millions.

But while East and West disagree they also keep busy with disagreements within themselves: the Russians can't agree with the Chinese and the Yugoslavs (the latter can't agree with the Chinese and Albanians) on the proper road to communism; French President Charles de Gaulle often disagrees with his allies; the West Germans can't stand their East German Communist cousins; the left and right in Latin America see nothing reasonable in reason; and of things look moderately quiet now among the new African nations that's probably a temporary illusion.

All this offers an encouraging field for bright young men everywhere to pitch in, above their elders, and show what new views and fresh viewpoints can do to snatch order out of chaos and restore sanity to a world that often looks as if it's really losing its marbles.

The trouble, though, is that all through history bright young men inevitably had to succeed older men and somehow the new views were lost, the fresh insights got tangled. And before they knew it they were the older men—being judged by younger men—who thought they had solutions which somehow always got snugged.

Surplus Rubber Under Question

Senators to Find Cause for 342,000 Tons of Excess Supplies

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate investigators hoped to find out today why the nation's strategic stockpile is bulging with 342,000 tons of surplus natural rubber.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., planned to convene leading experts to determine what, if anything, can be done to avoid losses to the taxpayer that could run to $500 million.

Called to testify before Symington's armed forces subcommittee were John L. Collier, retired board chairman of the B.F. Goodrich Co., and John N. Street, vice president of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

The subcommittee, at the prompting of President Kennedy, has been looking into three separate stockpile programs.

According to Symington, no surplus is more serious than the inventory of natural rubber.

At the end of last year the stockpile, held 1,020,000 tons, or $2,000 more than the maximum need for a three-year war.

Two years ago Congress approved the sale of 470,000 tons. But only 30 per cent of the amount earmarked for disposal has been sold.

Note AP Serves 87 Lands, 4,000 News Media in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Associated Press now is supplying its service to more than 4,000 newspapers and broadcasting members in the United States and to 87 countries abroad, the AP Board of Directors said today in its annual report.

The report was read at the annual meeting of The Associated Press prior to a luncheon featuring an address by U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The meeting also voted for six directors to fill expiring terms on the 18-member board and on the admission of six associated member newspapers to full membership.

Citing a "tremendously active year at home and abroad" the report said:

"The demands upon The Associated Press were extensive and ever-broadening. The value of the service to the membership was materially enhanced.

NUMBERS INCREASED

"An important factor was the constantly increasing effectiveness of member cooperation in supplying news and newsphotos, in providing worthwhile development ideas, and in policing the product.

"The number of members and subscribers increased around the world, climbing to more than 4,000 newspaper and broadcasting members in the United States, while the distribution to subscribers abroad expanded into 87 countries."

The report said burgeoning news coverage requirements have strained the resources of the organization, but "the management succeeded in meeting the requirements efficiently and we believe at a minimum increase in expense."

"Nevertheless the board felt it prudent," the report said, "to provide for an increase in basic service revenue in the application of the decennial revision based on the 1960 census. The board instructed that individual increases, whether resulting from population shifts or rising costs, be applied practical in an orderly progression."

'VITAL HIGH SPOTS'

"Capital equipment purchases in 1961 totaled $467,594.81, all paid from cash funds of the corporation."

The report noted that the afternoon session of the meeting would be devoted to an illustrated presentation of some vital high spots in the organization's activities and developments.

"This has been prepared," it said, "with the view that it will answer many of the questions often asked by members individually respecting finances and operations."

Dreams of Riches All Dead

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (U)—Henry C. Soto stood forlornly in the dust, staring at his millions of little white palm trees—row after row of them. They represented his biggest dream.

From rags to riches and now, almost overnight, back toward rags. That's the story of my life," he said.

"About the time you think you have it made, the sky falls on you."

GENE, he says, is his hope of putting miniature palm trees and other tropical plants into homes all over the United States and Canada—of getting Americans to plant tropical gardens in their homes—and of making himself a mint in the process.

WAshed UP

"It's all down the drain," he said, "five years of work and investment shot. We're washed out."

Until a week ago the ex-

Arizona farmer considered himself rich and by most folks' standards, he was. He is one of the largest landscape contractors in the business, lives in a home worth several hundred thousand dollars, with a sweeping ocean view. He hoped to net at least a million dollars a year from indoor palm trees sold through supermarket and department store chains.

He employed 100 people to package the 30-inch palms in airtight wrappers, sold more than 100,000 trees last year sampling public demand. He hoped to sell palms at a 10,000-a-day clip. He waited for his palms to reach the age of 4 years, when they could be sold.

The rains were heavy this year. Weeds grew between the rows of thickly planted palms. Last month the 30 acres was sprayed for weed control. Five weeks ago trees began to wither, Soto says. One month later: 100 per cent loss.

Nobody knows what went wrong, Soto says. Experts are trying to find out. He tried the one thing specialists said might save the crop: flooding with water. It made the young trees die even faster. Insurance prospects are up in the air, he says. It would take four years to recoup in any case.

Soto estimates he lost 8 to 10 million little palms worth $3 million wholesale.

"It was a gamble, I know," he says, "but it looked good. Imagine being able to buy a nice palm in New York City for $1.49."

Soto, 41, expects to go out of the landscaping business now. His capital and financing depended on the trees, he says.

"I started 19 years ago with $250," he says philosophically. "now I guess I'm back to $250 again."

Aviatix Sets 49 Air Records

Jacqueline Cochran Flies Jet 5,120 Miles at 489 M.P.H.

HANNOVER, Germany (AP)—Jacqueline Cochran flew a four-engine jet 5,120 miles from New Orleans to West Germany at an average speed of 489 miles per hour Sunday and claimed 49 new flight records.

The noted American flyer—first woman to break the sound barrier—said her Lockheed Jet Star "Scarlett O'Hara" had reached a top speed of 420 m.p.h. during the three-leg flight.

Miss Cochran, wife of financier F. P. O'Dell, took off from New Orleans with three companions at 1:20 a.m. Sunday and landed at Hannover at 3 p.m. (Pontiac Time) after refueling stops at Gander, Nfld., and Shannon, Ireland.

The National Aeronautic Association said her claim of 49 records was the largest ever submitted for a single flight.

Miss Cochran previously had set 33 national and international records. Sixteen of these are still unbroken.

Jayne, Hargitay Have Second Son Baptized Easter

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Zoltan Hargitay, second son of Jayne Mansfield and Mickey Hargitay, was baptized Sunday at the Wayfarer's Chapel in suburban Palos Verdes, where the mother and father were married in January 1958.

The Hargitay first son, Mickey Jr., 3, had previously been baptized at the non-denominational chapel.

Zoltan is 20 months old.

Lenin's Kin Purged by Stalin Is Rumor

MOSCOW (UPI)—The official Communist party newspaper Pravda implied yesterday that Josef Stalin was responsible for the death of Lenin's sister.

It said Lenin's sister Maria was an able secretary for the newspaper, but during Stalin's purge after the death of Lenin she disappeared.

Franks said employees of the newspaper "quietly" said Stalin would soon take her away from the office, and he did just that.

The article, on the 32nd anniversary of Lenin's birth, was believed to be the first public charge implying that Stalin purged Maria.

OUT OF THE PAST — Three-dollar bills really were legal tender when they were issued in 1933 by a private bank in Wilmington, N.C. Bill is held by David J. McCymont, assistant curator of a money of the world museum in a New York City bank. "Can you change a three, please?"

'Off-Color' Shirts Hurt Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government auditors today told Congress an "off color" story that was no joke. It already has cost the taxpayers $444,000.

The General Accounting Office (GAO), reporting on Defense Department clothing purchases, estimated that $370,000 worth of Marine Corps khaki shirts and $74,000 worth of khaki cloth for shirts did not meet color standards of the service that were established after the material was purchased.

The GAO said it did not know yet how much money would be lost because of the color mix-up. But it said "it is highly probable that the $444,000 inventory of shirts and cloth will have to be disposed of at a fraction of its cost."

The auditors also were unable to put a price tag on the loss that will be suffered because the government accepted more than 200,000 yards of twill cloth for Army pants pockets.

The material, costing $78,000, was found to be too stained and spotted for use.

Defense officials tried to reject it, but the supplier argued successfully that the Army gave it such vague specifications that the fault was not his.

The auditors said the cloth will be used as a substitute for less expensive materials.

But they questioned the initial decision to turn the cloth down for pants pockets because there seemed little chance that it would affect the wearability of the garments.

Report by GAO Details Waste of $1.5 Million on AF Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government contract called for a fuel tank which could be put together in three hours.

Twenty-nine months and $1.5 million later, the Air Force abandoned the project after learning that it took three days — rather than the specified three hours — to assemble the tanks.

A report today by the General Accounting Office (GAO) told of the snafu as the Air Force's unsuccessful attempt to buy some 3,700-gallon fuel tanks for the B-47 bomber from the Beech Aircraft Corp., Wichita, Kan., and the Fletcher Aviation Corp., Rosemead, Calif.

The GAO, established by Congress to keep an eye on executive branch spending, said the Air Force's failure to test the tanks "before entering into production contracts resulted in unnecessary costs to the government of about $1,537,000."

SECOND REQUIREMENT

A second Air Force requirement was that the tank parts should be designed to fit in a metal container.

Sixteen months after development work was completed and accepted, Air Force officials conducted tests at the contractor's plant.

"After two days' effort," the GAO reported, "they agreed that it was impossible to package the tanks in the containers and the packaging tests were abandoned."

Assistant Air Force Secretary Aaron J. Racusin, in a letter commenting on the findings, did not question the GAO's findings.

But he said the contracts in question actually were only one part of an over-all Air Force program to reduce the cost of the fuel tanks.

Racusin said the contracts meant "competition was introduced" and that "not saving to the government made possible by this program were on the order of $40 million."

The GAO, in its report to Congress, refrained from commenting on the Air Force's justification. It said the money had been wasted because contracts were awarded "without making adequate evaluation of drawing and specifications and tests on preproduction tanks and shipping containers . . . to determine whether procurement of unassembled tanks was feasible."

BEECH DENIES CHARGE

Beech Aircraft, responsible for the development and some production of the tanks, denied the charge that the Air Force had failed to conduct proper tests.

Fletcher Aviation, which produced the tanks, agreed with the GAO findings.

The auditor suggested that Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara take steps to make sure adequate tests are made before the award of production contracts.

Effective seismographs, which measure earthquakes, were not in use until the 1890s.

Four U.S. Pianists Advance in Contest

MOSCOW (AP) — Four Americans were among 23 pianists who advanced today into the second round of the International Tchaikovsky Competition out of an entry field of 52.

Twenty-nine young musicians were eliminated, including six Americans.

The Soviet Union led with 10 survivors of the first round. France had four and there was one each from Britain, China, Cuba, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

Among the Russians moving on was Vladimir Ashkenazy, on whom the Soviets are pinning their hopes for victory. He has won and has toured the United States.

The second round will continue through Saturday, when the finalists will be chosen.

The Americans still in the running are Roy Bogan, Richmond, Calif.; Joseph Danowitz, Boulder, Colo.; Susan Starr, Philadelphia; and Olegas Fusch, who now lives in Rome, Italy.

Urethane foam, applied by spray to a house during construction, has been found to be twice as effective a heat and moisture barrier as the materials commonly used. It also seals cracks and is flame retardant.

Rugged Battle in March

Spring Finally Scores Victory

It was a battle, but spring appears to be winning out at last in the Pontiac area.

Area residents with fresh memories of snow-drifted sidewalks and high heating bills may have been wondering if winter ever was going to give up.

It came in more like a polar bear than a lion. The mercury on March 1 read 2 below zero—the coldest it has been on that date since 1875.

Luckily, it also was the lowest reading of the month. Temperatures inched upward slowly. The weather went above the freezing mark for the first time that month on March 6 when thermometers reached a high of 33 degrees.

But winter was stubborn. Top temperatures remained only in the high 30s and low 40s steadily until the last week of the month.

There was snow, too. Two inches fell on March 2, another inch was added March 12 and snow in the form of flurries drifted down on five other days of the month.

The average low temperature for the month was 25.4. The average high was 41.6.

Spring officially arrived, according to the calendar, on March 20.

But it wasn't until March 25, when a high of 84 was recorded, that the temperature got out of the 40s.

On March 29 the mercury shot up to 74 degrees, the high reading for the month.

Convertible tops were down. Baseballs were in evidence.

The sun was out. This was the day the snow shoveler of the family could figure that winter had finally surrendered.

'We MUST Be First to Explore Universe'

(Editor's Note—Dr. Werner von Braun, director of the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center and one of the world's leading rocket experts, has written a special dispatch for UPI on "The Future of Humanity.")

By DR. WERNER VON BRAUN
(Copyright, 1962 by UPI)

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—The United States, working in cooperation with and on behalf of the other nations of the Western world, has one of the most important and exciting challenges in history—the exploration of the universe.

Few accomplishments have had such profound effect on the future of humanity than will the results of this immense and fascinating endeavor.

POSITION OF NATIONS

Achievements in the exploration of space are directly lined to overall technological advancement, and in our age such advancement is indicative of the relative position of nations.

We Americans have already felt the sting of being second in a race in which we should, and could, have been first.

Any remaining doubts that we are really in a space race with the Soviet Union were dispelled by the decision last spring of U. S. President John F. Kennedy to launch an ambitious program for manned lunar exploration.

We have the capacity to be first to the moon; therefore, we must be first.

Unmanned artificial satellites are being launched with increasing frequency to perform a wide variety of services for mankind.

Our Tross meteorological satellites have proven their worth by permitting meteorologists to predict more accurately the weather and detect disastrous storms.

HELPS MILITARY

The military has developed warning and reconnaissance satellites to help us maintain our military posture.

Earth-orbiting and navigational and geodesic satellites are proving themselves daily. We are also developing such scientific satellites as orbiting solar observatories and the orbiting geophysical observatories.

The first solar observatory was successfully launched last month. It is now reporting back to earth how the sun affects the weather and any threats it may pose for space travelers.

But perhaps of most immediate and practical interest is the communications satellite which will help put the man in the street in closer touch with his fellow humans around the world.

We at the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center are responsible to our parent organization—the U. S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration—for the development of the space vehicles that will orbit satellites, send scientific payloads to distant planets and launch manned lunar expeditions.

The suborbital flights of astronauts Alan Shepard and Virgil Grisson, and the more recent orbital flight of John Glenn, were carried out under Project Mercury, the first of three man-in-space programs being directed by NASA's manned spacecraft center at Houston, Tex.

Project Mercury will be succeeded by the Gemini manned spacecraft project, which calls for the orbiting of a two-man spacecraft.

Gemini will be used to test the "orbital rendezvous" technique, by which an orbital launch vehicle and a manned spacecraft will be joined while in earth orbit and "re-launched" toward the moon.

Experience gained in this method of landing astronauts on the surface of the moon will be under Project Apollo. A three-man spacecraft, Apollo, will follow Gemini. It will effect circumlunar and lunar-landing missions scheduled before the end of this decade.

The two elements of this lunar rocket will be launched into orbit by 7.5 million-pound-thrust advanced Saturn vehicles currently being designed at the Marshall Center at Huntsville.

We recently requested proposals from industry for a detailed systems definition and preliminary design of the Nova launch vehicle, which will be a logical follow-on to the advanced Saturn.

Nova, to be capable of placing more than 200 tons in earth orbit, or sending more than 75 tons on the design of manned spacehips that are far beyond our present capabilities. To illustrate the magnitude of the problem we need only consider the difficulty of trying to de-orbit a craft in the tremendous gravitational field of Jupiter and then attempting to take off again through an amazingly thick, turbulent atmosphere.

I have discussed briefly some of our present projects to show the tremendous task ahead in order for America and the free world to gain and keep the position it deserves in space exploration.

We are now working fervently toward that end: the massive launch facilities are being built, the rockets are being designed.

What happens when we get in space?

The environment will be hostile to man. He will be threatened by meteoroids, radiation, temperature extremes, lack of atmosphere and lack of pressure. But if he understands and obeys its laws, space will treat him well.

Gen. Schriever Speaks to U. of M. Honorees

'Engineer Holds Key to U. S. Future'

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The modern engineer faces a far greater challenge than any of his predecessors, and the ability of the United States to preserve its strength and guarantee peace hinges directly upon his success in meeting it.

This mess was delivered to listeners at the first hours of convocation ever held by the University of Michigan School of Engineering today by Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, U.S. Air Force.

A total of 18 awards was presented to 17 outstanding students in the U. of M. engineering school, and an honorary degree of doctor of aeronautical science was conferred upon Gen. Schriever by U. of M. President Marian Hatcher.

Schriever, who is credited with the initial development of the U.S. intercontinental ballistic missiles and various other space programs, told his audience that the challenge of technology has "exploded" in the past two decades.

"Scientific knowledge is being discovered and applied on a scale that could not have been predicted a generation ago," he said. "In an extremely short time, science has discovered new sources of energy, new materials and new techniques."

Schriever said the "time lag" between discovery and application of scientific processes has grown shorter and shorter until today there is often some truth to the engineer's popular remark: "If it works, it's already obsolete."

He said the urgency of the need for rapid progress lies in the fact that engineering and research play "a crucial role" in the global contest of East and West.

"Scientific and technical accomplishments are the index not only of a nation's prestige but of its potential military strength as well," observed the general.

"The Soviets are well aware of this fact and have placed major emphasis on science and engineering and clearly consider these to be decisive factors in their drive toward world domination."

City Has Fabulous History

Manaus Carved Out of Jungle

WASHINGTON — A major Brazilian port a thousand miles from the sea rises like a mirage in the heart of Amazon wilds. It is the beautiful and sophisticated city of Manaus.

To reach the city, a visitor flies for hours over a vast green forest. There is no sign of human life. Then Manaus appears in the midst of a jungle only 200 miles south of the equator.

The port stands on the Rio Negro, 15 miles above the point where that river's dark waters meet the tawny Amazon. The National Geographic Society says:

"The capital of the huge Brazilian state of Amazonas, Manaus is a commercial and cultural center with more than 160,000 inhabitants."

The jungle capital was founded in 1689 as a small Portuguese fort to defend the upper Amazon against Indian and Dutch and Spanish incursions.

Manaus was an unimportant backwoods village for nearly two centuries. World demand for Brazilian rubber transformed it almost overnight into a metropolis.

Manaus was the natural center of the rubber trade. Rubber trees grew wild in the forests of the upper basin of the Negro and Amazon. The two rivers formed a natural highway to carry the heavy balls of congealed latex to Manaus. Supplies for the rubber country came up the Amazon and through the port.

PROSPERITY BLOSSOMS

From 1880 to 1920, Manaus enjoyed fantastic prosperity. Dozens of ships docked daily, streets were congested, jewelers' windows glittered with diamonds, and some cafes never closed.

The newly rich rubber barons lived with one another in spending money. They built palaces of Italian marble with French furnishings.

Their wives imported linens from Paris and London and sent them back to Europe to be laundered. One wealthy woman had her carriage horses bathed daily in French champagne.

Jungle riches built a magnificent opera house in 1896 at a cost of $10 million. Made of gleaming white marble, it was topped by a dome tiled in green, blue, and gold. The theater drew from Europe

'Take Home' Labs Aid MIT Students

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Electrical engineering students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology are doing their homework these days in "take home" laboratories.

The kit of components for electronic circuits is about the size of a large textbook. "Since the student may now take his laboratory to the dormitory, he relieves the strain on other laboratory facilities," said MIT President J. A. Stratton.

"Much more important is the fact that he will be able to tinker at will in electronic circuits, on his own time, for as long as he likes."

Time Parking in Parallel Slot at University

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — How long does it take you to maneuver your car into a parallel parking place?

Average length of time is 32 seconds. But this varies greatly depending on the ability of the driver. Some people can execute the maneuver in less than seven seconds while others make repeated attempts, taking as long as 100 seconds.

These findings were reported by Bryan K. Johnston, graduate student in transportation engineering at the University of California. He made a study of the respective merits of parallel and angle parking.

Johnston found that a street with parallel parking can handle up to two more lanes of traffic than it can with angle parking.

But angle parking has the advantage of accommodating more cars per unit of curb space — up to two and half times as many, depending on the angle at which they are parked.

The average 1961 car will use amount. The plastic industry can... Sundine at noonday is about 22 pounds of plastic, two tends its products will replace one million times brighter than pounds more than 1960 models; 150 pounds of metal in the average illumination by the moon at full continent and double the 1964 new car.

Best Schools Found in Smaller Cities

NEW YORK (UPI) — Communities of 20,000 to 50,000 persons have the best chance of providing public education of high quality, according to Dr. Austin D. Swanson, an associate of the Institute of Administrative Research of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Swanson said school quality improves by the size of the community up to 20,000 and continues to improve up to 50,000.

Smaller communities often lack resources to do the best possible job, he said, and larger ones often result in a lack of communication within the school system.

Carnegie Hall Music Will Be Real Cool

NEW YORK (UPI) — A $275,000 air-conditioning unit is being installed in 70-year-old Carnegie Hall to permit the famed concert hall to be used throughout the summer for the first time this year.

The air-cooling system built into the hall in 1891 consisted of four fans which blew air over a basement ice bunker, melting 25 to 30 tons of ice an hour. Masonry shafts used for that system are being used for the new air-conditioning. The stage has been cooled by modern air conditioning since 1951.

American Section of Seaway Opens for 1962 Season

MASSENA, N. Y. (AP) — The United States section of the St. Lawrence Seaway opened for the 1962 navigation season at 3:22 a.m. today.

The first ship to enter the Eisenhower Lock was the Murray Bay, a 17,000-ton Canada Steamship Lines freighter headed for Montreal with 600,000 bushels of grain.

The next ship to use the lock was the West German tugboat, the Transpacific, headed for the Great Lakes. The Transpacific was the first vessel to pass through the entire system this year.

The United States section had been scheduled to open with the Canadian section April 15. But an when the crack was discovered in a sill in the Eisenhower lock during a test of the lock gate.

A total of 84 ships had become backed up, waiting for repairs on the lock to be completed.

Mayor Plans Plea to Detroit Over Tax

DETROIT (UPI) — Berkeley Mayor George W. Kuhn has scheduled "an 11th-hour plea" to city officials here to strike the non-residence clause from the proposed 1 per cent income tax.

Detroit Common Council is meeting tomorrow to consider Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh's tax proposal calling for a 1 per cent tax on all incomes of people who live and work in Detroit.

Kuhn, head of the suburban mayor's vigilance tax committee, said, "we have planned court action if the proposed ordinance goes through and we are making this 11th-hour plea in the hope that the council will at least strike the non-residence clause."

Kuhn said his committee has sent letters to Gov. John B. Swainson asking him to sign the Revenue Bill which is before his desk. This bill would prohibit municipalities from levying any kind of tax on nonresidents who work in that particular city.

Kuhn also said his committee has sent letters to constitutional convention President Stephen Nisbet, and all delegates to insert in the new constitution a clause which prohibits the taxation of nonresidents.

Kuhn said 226 suburban mayors and city managers are in support of the Bowmann bill.

NEWS OF THE AREA

Southfield Council to Appoint Civic Center Advisory Group

SOUTHFIELD — A 17-member study commission to pave the way to a new civic center here is scheduled to be appointed at tonight's meeting of the Southfield City Council.

Established at the last council meeting, the Civic Center Development Advisory Commission will hold its first meeting before May 1.

Its membership is to include Mayor S. James Clarkson, the seven city councilmen, representatives from both the parks and recreation department and the planning commission, and seven city residents to be named one each by the seven councilmen.

The civic center commission was set up to study matters pertaining to the orderly development of a civic center.

Plans for a $7-million civic center combining administrative buildings with social, recreational and cultural facilities were submitted to the city about three months ago by Fernald architects Pircher and Jarvel.

The proposal called for 14 buildings, an outdoor amphitheater and facilities for more than half a dozen summer and winter sports on a 166-acre site at 10½ Mile and Evergreen roads.

To be constructed over a 50-year period in five-year stages, the center would be marked prominently by a man-made 15-foot hill constructed from dirt excavated by the State Highway Department while building the John C. Lodge Expressway extension, according to the plan.

The first five-year stage would include a city hall and a portion of the recreation building along with a park, sports and playground development. This stage would cost $1.5 million.

Ultimately, the center would include, according to this plan, a library, a board of education building, auditorium, band pavilion, recreation building, gymnasium, warming shelter, nature building, observation tower, maintenance building, police and fire buildings and a clubhouse.

WALLED LAKE SITE OF PANEL ON RETARDED CASES

WALLED LAKE — A panel discussion specifically planned to answer questions about retardations, especially problems that may concern neighbors and others about retarded people living in the community, will be held Wednesday at the Wallied Lake Junior High School.

The 8 p. m. public meeting is being sponsored by SPUR (Special Education Parents Unit for the Retarded).

Panelists will be Donald Milligan, attendance officer in the Wallied Lake Schools; Police Chief James Decker, and Dr. Robert I. Jaslow, medical superintendent of the Plymouth State Home and Training School in Northville.

The school is the state's newest facility for the mentally retarded and has an out-patient department that services the Wallied Lake area.

The organization urges everyone in the Wallied Lake area to attend the discussion because the subject is of concern not only to those families who have a retarded child but to the entire community.

ROCHESTER — Election of officers will highlight tonight's meeting of the Rochester Coin Club in the Avon Township Library on West University Drive.

Another feature of the session, which begins at 7:30 p.m., will be a lecture by Arthur Smith of Pontiac. He will speak on "Odd and Curious Coins of the World."

The meeting is open to the public.

ROCHESTER — Nightly revival meetings at the Rochester Church of the Nazarene will begin tomorrow and continue to May 6.

Pastored will be Moody and Ruth Schoonover, who are musicians and singers as well as preachers. Each meeting starts at 7:30 p.m.

WALLED LAKE — A panel discussion specifically planned to answer questions about retardations, especially problems that may concern neighbors and others about retarded people living in the community, will be held Wednesday at the Wallied Lake Junior High School.

The 8 p. m. public meeting is being sponsored by SPUR (Special Education Parents Unit for the Retarded).

Panelists will be Donald Milligan, attendance officer in the Wallied Lake Schools; Police Chief James Decker, and Dr. Robert I. Jaslow, medical superintendent of the Plymouth State Home and Training School in Northville.

The school is the state's newest facility for the mentally retarded and has an out-patient department that services the Wallied Lake area.

The organization urges everyone in the Wallied Lake area to attend the discussion because the subject is of concern not only to those families who have a retarded child but to the entire community.

Senior Editors Resign

It's Truce at U. of M.

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The University of Michigan's board in control of students publications reached a truce yesterday with student editors who rebelled in a dispute over the control of the editorial policy of The Michigan Daily, the campus newspaper.

Seven senior editors of The Daily resigned Saturday after the board in naming its replacements for the 1962-63 school year, failed to honor all of the recommendations made by the seniors.

Siding with the revolt, six of the seven juniors who would have filled the posts announced they would not accept their appointments.

In a 2½-hour meeting yesterday the board accepted the seniors' resignations and named Michael Harrah, 20, a Miles junior, to a newly created post of editor-in-chief. Harrah had earlier told the board that, although he agreed with the viewpoint of the dissenting students, he would accept appointment as acting city editor.

AGREE TO REMAIN The other six juniors agreed to remain on the staff in their present roles as rotating night editors, in order that The Daily, which has a 6,500 circulation, might continue to publish on its regular six-days-a-week schedule.

Originally, the dispute centered around the board's decision to make several appointments not proposed by the outgoing senior editors. These included the naming of two persons instead of just one to the top post of editorial director.

The 12-member board said its decision to make the changes was unanimous and based on "a concern that The Daily is not presenting a broad enough appeal" to its readership.

Caroline Dow of Detroit and Judith Oppenheimer, 2491, Danle St., Oak Park, were appointed co-editorial directors for the 1962 school year. Both were among the juniors who later joined the revolt.

The others, and the jobs to which they refused appointment, were Michael Olmick, 2341, Kenmore St., Oak Park, editor; Fred R. Kramer, New York, assistant.

Three selections by German composers will be presented by the elementary school's music teacher.

Discovers Secrets of Chinese Food Preparation

Phyllis Decides to Learn How to Chop Own Suey

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — In these days, when most of us long for a slim

figure and a fat wallet, it is no wonder that Chinese food is so popular.

You almost never see an overly-plump Chinese, which is adequate proof that their diet is slimming.

And, in even the fanciest Chinese restaurant, two can eat cheaper than one can in the roughest French bistro — if they know how to order.

And that is how come number one chefs make so much money as bank presidents, and many little American kids now say moo-goo-gal-pan before they say mommy.

GREAT CONTRIBUTION
For years, my husband and I have contributed so much to the honorable descendants of such Cantonese cuisiniers as Sou Chan (of "House of Chan") and Richard Mei ("King Dragon") that I decided to take a course and learn how to chop my own suey.

I enlisted in an army of eager ladies at the China Institute here in New York.

The teacher, an attractive young woman named Dorothy Lee, laid it on the line immediately. "A sure yardstick of the health of a civilization," she said, "is how that civilization eats."

I thought, uncomfortably, of the lunch I'd just had. Hamburger, fried till well dead. Limp broccoli brought back to life with rich Hollandaise. Potatoes globbed with butter.

"Most vegetables require only two to three minutes cooking," Mrs. Lee went on. "This preserves all vitamins and makes colors and textures vivid and crisp."

"Meat, the way we cut it, takes not much longer."

She demonstrated — turning out, in four minutes, over a lowering gas flame — a meat-vegetable dish that was fit for a ming. Also for a magazine illustration.

Someone asked teacher why the meats and vegetables were cut into fine pieces. She smiled and nodded.

"Chinese," she said, "believe that a dining table is a very pleasant and social place."

"The sight of knives on such a table is just appalling. Knives mean cutting. And cutting is not pleasant or social."

Besides, of course, the smaller the pieces, the faster the cooking and the more vitamins and textures and colors preserved.

ONLY 16 COURSES
"It is with this fast cooking that Chinese banquets used to have 64 courses. Now we have adopted more Western ways — short cuts. Now Chinese banquets in America have only 16 courses."

Yet the Chinese are slim, seldom over-stuffed; they live to riper ages than nationalities which eat less, but heavier, foods.

"Funny thing," Mrs. Lee explained. "The chief difference between American and Chinese vegetable cooking is that vegetable cooking is at cooking medium, while you favor water."

"Yet fat makes up less than 10 per cent of the Chinese diet, and over 40 per cent of the average American food intake is fats."

The secret: They use "just enough oil to marry up the vegetable and meat" — while most other nationalities glob butter on everything, to flavor it after its natural flavors have largely been cooked away.

Mrs. Lee created a magnificent culinary concoction called "wu lu yu" (in English, "five-willow fish").

It consisted of a steamed carp, overlaid with a leafy pattern of pungent sauce which contained bamboo shoots, ham, peppers, mushrooms and scallions.

She apologized that this dish took so long. "It is a celebration dish, and requires more time." It took all of 20 minutes.

When she laid it out on a platter, the students were green with something more than envy. The fish was all intact, with eyes and tail picking up from the sauce.

Was this necessary — couldn't she chop off the extremities? "Chinese," she said, bowing slightly, "believe that everything should have a beginning and an end."

Logical all the way, these Chinese.

High Reports Aid Some Stocks

Steels Continue Mart Retreat

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels sagged in an irregularly high stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate.

Gains of selected blue chips bolstered the average despite losses which ran to more than 2 points for some of the steels.

While plus and minus signs were mingled pretty freely, advances of some high quality issues went from 1 to 3 points.

Brokers said some nervousness existed in Wall Street as to whether U.S. steel would declare its usual dividend tomorrow, in view of the crisis which led to rescheduling of the $64-million price bond.

Wall Streeters reported some apprehension that the dividend might be cut.

GENERAL GOOD
General business news was fairly good, including reports of favorable earnings comparisons with a year ago, gains in department store sales and auto production and a higher rate of gross national product.

Losses of more than 2 points were shown by U.S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Jones & Laughlin was off about 2 and Republic Steel stretched its decline to about 3. Bethlehem, which reports on finances and operations Thursday, edged off a fraction.

These losses were more than counterbalanced by gains among some pivotal chemicals, tobacco and other issues. Eastman Kodak, reporting a 20 per cent gain in profits, advanced about 3 points.

Air Reduction and Liggett & Myers rose more than a point each.

Prices moved irregularly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. McCulloch Oil was a heavily traded fractional gainer. Reliance Insurance spurred more than 2. Katz Drug rose more than a point.

Calls for Action Against Unions

Republican Urges Use of Antitrust Laws in Transportation Field

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Antitrust laws should be made to apply to unions in the transportation field to eliminate "a perversion of freedom," a North Dakota congressman said yesterday.

Rep. Don L. Short, R.-D., said power such as he described to union leaders James R. Hoffa and Harry Bridges is a serious threat and danger to the national welfare.

Hoffa is president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and Bridges heads the West Coast Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Short introduced House legislation similar to a Senate measure sponsored by Sen. John L. McClelland, D-Ark., to subject transportation unions to provisions of the Sherman and Clayton acts.

The North Dakota senator said in a radio interview that Hoffa, at head of the largest and strongest union in the field, has "consistently and enthusiastically" courted an alliance with the Bridges group.

"BOAST OF POWER"
Both men, Short said have boasted of their power and its potential to affect the national economy.

Should they form an arrangement to act in conjunction or support each other in labor disputes or strikes, Short said, "I don't think it will take much imagination to envision the results."

"Such an imbalance of power," he added, "is a perversion of freedom as guaranteed under the constitution."

"Our federal constitution denies such power to even the president of the United States. Our federal antitrust laws deny such power to any business organization or business representative."

"We must not, by the sin of omission, permit this power to rest in the hands of any man or small group of men."

Turbine for Every Car Is 'Still Long Way Off'

DETROIT (UPI) — It will be a "long time if it ever comes" before a turbine engine is the standard power plant for passenger cars.

That is the opinion of W. F. F. Martin-Hurst, managing director of the Rover Co., an English firm which pioneered in turbine research.

Rover put on display this week a new experimental turbine driven passenger car. It was shown at the International Automobile show in New York City.

The four-passenger, four-door sedan has a top speed of 115 miles an hour. Its small turbine engine develops 140 horsepower and gives about 15 miles to the gallon.

The horsepower and economy of the Rover turbine are about the same as the turbine Chrysler Corp. is developing.

Chrysler has road-tested its turbine around the U.S. It has announced plans to build and sell the turbine-powered car next year.

Rover officials said Chrysler engineers have done a "remarkable job" with their turbine. But What, then, are the drawbacks? Rover engineers and those at Detroit firms competing with Chrysler feel a great deal of development work is necessary before the engines can be put to general passenger car use.

Martin-Hurst believes turbine will appeal to fleet owners because of their economy and ease of operation on long distance trips. He believes the engines also will appeal to sports car enthusiasts.

"A turbine has a very high output for its weight," he said. "For a man who has a light car the turbine will be a very real attraction."

Referring to Chrysler's plans, he said "I wouldn't surprise me a bit to see gas turbine engines here. From an engineering standpoint, it's not very difficult to get them into production."

But Martin-Hurst and M. C. Wilks, chairman of the Rover firm, believe the car market may be another case.

High Court OKs Taped Evidence

Refuses to Interfere After Alcohol Tax Agent Nabs Bootlegger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused today to interfere with use of evidence obtained by a federal alcohol tax agent who connected a tape recorder with the telephone ear piece when he talked with a prospective seller of bootleg whiskey.

The resulting tape record was admitted in evidence in U.S. District Court in Atlanta, Ga., over protests by defense attorneys. They cited a section of the Federal Communications Act providing that "no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence or contents of the communication."

De Gaulle Looms as Biggest Roadblock

Mac Orders Speed in Common Mart Talks

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Editor
Notes from the foreign news cables:

THE BIG PLAIN.
British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has ordered full speed ahead in negotiations for Great Britain's entry into the European Common Market, and the final step now is expected to be taken by the end of the year.

It would add Britain's 52 million population to the 170 million people already in the common market in France, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, Belgium and the Netherlands, and mark the end of Britain's historic policy of aloofness from the continent.

There still are many obstacles to overcome since membership in the common market requires some form of political as well as economic unity.

But the British are sure these difficulties can be overcome, providing French President Charles de Gaulle does not throw up an unexpected roadblock.

De Gaulle may fear that British membership might interfere with his own plans for French leadership of the common market.

Look for new severe measures by the Czechoslovakian government to meet growing reports of a lack of discipline among Czechoslovak workers.

The Czech trade union paper, Prace, has criticized workers for failure to observe the obligatory six-day work week and those who demand free Saturdays.

Low morale among workers is estimated to have cost the state $11 million so far this year.

CRYSTAL BALL.
For those who like a quick chance to test the accuracy of predictions, here is what Western diplomats in Moscow expect of this week's meeting of the Supreme Soviet:

A foregone conclusion is Nikita Khrushchev's confirmation as premier.

Then will come a foreign policy speech in which the premier will launch a bitter attack against U.S. nuclear tests.

However, Khrushchev is expected to approach the situation in Berlin with caution.

Gaulle's known hopes of further revising the French constitution to give the French president powers in the U.S. style and to provide his election by direct vote of the people.

Legislative Privilege
Appears Overextended

PHOENIX, Ariz. (U) — The administration committee of the Arizona Senate issued the following directive:

"Sponsors who have no secretaries of their own may take advantage of the girls in the steno from the $162 million in 1953.

Food chains sold twice as much canned juice in 1960 as they did in 1955, notes the grocery edition of grocery store age. Sales in 1960 were $370 million, up 128 per cent from the $162 million in 1953.

Show Monkeys
How to Be Wild

Former Rhodesian Pets
Lost When Set Loose
in the Jungle

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (UPI) — The Bulawayo Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has set up a "rehabilitation" center for domesticated monkeys who have forgotten what it is to be wild.

The society started the course to re-educate the too educated monkeys in the ways of the bush when it found it had 42 monkeys which formerly had been pets in Bulawayo homes.

The monkeys had got the sack as household pets because of such offenses as biting children, tearing furnishings or old age petulance.

But when the society decided to turn them loose it found they had no idea how to fend for themselves in the bush.

So the society set up the "civilizing" course for the educated monkeys in Bulawayo's Matopos National Park.

There game rangers spent months patiently turning them back into wild animals. The rangers reported that when first released the monkeys enjoyed swinging through the trees but at meal-times they all gathered in one spot patiently waiting for a hand-out.

They were terrified of other wild life in the park and had no idea of how to feed themselves.

But as the rangers showed them the way back to the wild ways they disappeared one by one into the bush. Today all 42 of the original group have been rehabilitated.

This past holiday season, sighs a local head-of-the-household, left most bankrolls thinner than the rusted beef on 50c dinner. . . Astrologers are predicting the world will end sometime in March. Even if it happens, you can bet it won't occur in time to keep us from filing an income tax return for '61 — Earl Wilson.

Cates Medieval in Origin, Says
U. of M. Center

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — The restaurant of today probably owes its beginning to the medieval monastery, castle and college, according to a lecturer at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Group feeding began in the middle ages, when religious orders, royal and noble households and the colleges found large numbers of monks, nuns and students. Man's desire and ability to travel brought public eating places, first inns and taverns that offered lodging along with food. Poor tavern food service brought places that specialized in food — restaurants.

According to University of Michigan researchers, the modern cafeteria originated during the California gold rush. It solved two problems confronting the Forty-Niners — how to feed large numbers of men in a hurry and how to serve food without waitresses.

Prof Says Chinese
Is Easy to Learn

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Chinese is not difficult, but a comparatively easy language, for English-speaking students to learn, said Dr. William S. Y. Wang, who is teaching it at Ohio State University.

Chinese grammar is similar to English and has no tense conjugation or declension, Wang said.

"Chinese has sounds easy to produce for English-speaking students," Wang said. "For instance, it doesn't have the nasal vowels as in French, or the rolled r's as in Spanish, and it doesn't have difficult consonant clusters such as in Russian and German."

Fire Fighters Teach Dog to Play With Matches

HOLBROOK, Mass. (U) — Holbrook has a hot dog.
Her name is Spanner. She's the Fire Department mascot, hasn't missed a fire in four and one-half years.
Spanner — a Dalmatian — will even put out a burning match or cigarette by whacking it with her paw.

Officer Finds 'Joke'
Is 39-Year Job

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Charles E. Beintner was a police department clerk on April 1, 1923, when he got an order from his boss to take over a new job.

"I thought it was an April Fool's joke," he said. But he has had the job ever since of taking charge of several rooms in the police headquarters basement where lost or stolen property is held for safekeeping.

He figures he has handled about 350,000 items since. There are so many unclaimed bicycles that he holds two auctions a year. Unclaimed property now on hand includes an artificial leg and a church poor box.

A FUTURE FRANCE
French officials pool-pool reports that President Charles de Gaulle is grooming former Premier Michel Debre for a new job as vice president or as his successor.

Friends say Debre has set his sights for the time being on winning a National Assembly seat in the next general elections in 1963.

DESTINATION: MOON — Sketch shows the planned 60-hour flight of the Ranger 4 spacecraft to the moon today. Injection is the point at which Ranger goes into a course toward the moon after separating from its Atlas-Agena rocket. At points indicated as earth and sun acquisition and reacquisition Ranger's attitude control system is "locked" onto the earth or sun. The midcourse maneuver is designed to adjust flight to a collision course to the moon.

To Snap TV Pictures

Ready Ranger Moon Shot

CAPE CANAVIAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States readied its most powerful space rocket today for an attempt to propel the Ranger 4 spacecraft to the moon to snap television pictures and record scientific data.

The launch crew has an 87-minute period to fire the 10-story-tall Atlas-Agena B vehicle to put the spidery spacecraft on course for the 238,541-mile journey to the moon.

The shot is one of three major launches scheduled this week by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The second flight of the Saturn super-rocket is set for Wednesday, and a U.S. Russian international satellite is ticketed for firing Thursday. The maiden flight of the high-energy Centaur rocket, postponed a fifth time Saturday, also may squeeze into the crowded schedule.

The complex Ranger 4 mission involves launching the Agena B second stage into a parking orbit 100 miles high. At the precise moment, the engine must be restarted to boost the spacecraft speed to 24,500 miles an hour to start it on its 60-hour trip.

Sixteen hours after launching, if all is going well, a tracking station at Goldstone, Calif., will send a signal to fire a midcourse maneuver to correct the vehicle's position and jockey it onto a collision course with the moon.

TERMINAL MANEUVER

Early Thursday morning, when Ranger 4 is to be 5,000 miles from the moon's bright side, the 7½-pound craft is to execute a terminal maneuver to point its television camera at the lunar landscape.

The camera begins operating at an altitude of 2,400 miles. The 7½-pound craft is to execute a terminal maneuver to point its television camera at the lunar landscape.

The spacecraft then ejects a 12-inch sphere wrapped in a 24-inch sphere.

One of the tests, the New York Daily News said today in a copy-right story, will be the world's first live firing of a nuclear-armed, long-range ballistic missile — a Polaris launched under water from a Polaris-powered submarine, the base set for an air burst.

inch coating of shock-absorbent balsa wood. A tag reverse-rocket attached to the 88.3-inch ball slows the speed so it will land at a velocity of 80 to 120 miles an hour. The main body of the payload crashes at 6,000 miles and is destroyed.

The instrument package contains a seismometer, temperature gauge and radio transmitter designed to relay data to earth for at least 30 days.

The body wave data produced by moonquakes or meteor hits could determine if the moon has a crust similar to the Earth's.

Two other devices attached to the main body are to take measurements up to the point of impact. They are a gamma ray spectrometer to detect uranium, thorium, radium and potassium radioisotope emissions, and a radar antenna to test the moon's radar reflectivity.

If Ranger 4's capsule impacts, it will be the first active payload to land on the moon. Russia crashed Lunik II on the moon in 1959, but it was destroyed instantly.

Supreme Soviet Gathers to 'Re-elect' Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP) — The newly elected Supreme Soviet met today to re-elect Premier Khrushchev and perhaps to hear him deliver a major policy speech. Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported "stormy and prolonged" applause for government and Communist party leaders as they entered for the opening session.

Jan Pieve, president of the Academy of Sciences in Latvia, was elected chairman of the Soviet of Nationalities — the house which is chosen by regions — and Iran Spiridonov, a secretary of the Communist party's central committee, was chosen president of the Soviet of the Union — the chamber chosen on the basis of population.

There was no indication when Khrushchev might speak during the two or three-week session. The 68-year-old Soviet leader, who said last week he is working harder than ever, could be expected to review domestic and world issues.

American plans to hold new nuclear tests in the atmosphere were expected to come in for another tongue lashing from the Soviet premier. On the domestic front, Khrushchev's main worry is to give a boost to the nation's ailing agriculture.

The Supreme Soviet session is the first since elections last month, and more than 50 percent of the members are new. They also will approve a new Soviet Constitution. It is expected to be largely the same as the one Khrushchev has been heading but the only woman member, Minister of Culture Ekaterina Furstenberg, may be dropped. She was dropped from the Communist party presidium last October and was not a candidate for re-election to the Supreme Soviet.

Will Test Bat for Rabies After City Tot Bitten

Rabies tests were to be made today on a bat which yesterday bit a 4-year-old boy while he was sleeping.

Christopher K. Meier, of 44 Hudson St., woke his father Charles at 4:30 a.m. to tell him something had just bitten him of the right cheek. The father told police he found and caught a large bat in the boy's bedroom and caged it in a large glass jar.

In another incident, Monroe Owens, 35, of 38 Bellevue St., was bitten on his right index finger by a squirrel which had been run over by a car passing Owens' house. The squirrel also was to be tested for rabies.

Explosion Rips Millington Hotel

Wall Is Blown Out but Coffee Customers Not Seriously Hurt

MILLINGTON (AP) — Sixteen persons escaped serious injury today when an explosion, believed to have been caused by gasolene fumes, ripped the interior of the Millington Hotel.

The 15 injured guests and employees at the 20-room hotel, and several customers in the coffee shop.

The latter included Millington Police Chief Clarence Schroeder and Jim Fox, editor of the Weekly Millington Herald.

Fox said, "We were just sitting away at our coffee and chatting when boom . . . it seemed like the place blew up." Schroeder was knocked to the floor and suffered back injuries.

The coffee shop and bar of the hotel took the brunt of the explosion in the 100-year hotel which was remodeled after a fire two years ago.

One wall of the structure in this Tuscola County community was blown out.

Police cordoned off the area for fear that the building might collapse or that there might be a second explosion.

Nuclear Tests in Atmosphere May Be 48 Hours Off for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of men and scores of ships of U.S. Task Force 8 speed preparations today for the start this week of American nuclear tests in the air over the Pacific. Some officials said the first blast could come within 48 hours.

As the United States gets ting set to conduct its first nuclear weapons test in the atmosphere since 1958, officials said Union was getting ready to fire off another series of its own. Last fall the U.S.S.R. set off about 50 atmospheric tests.

Indications are there will be perhaps three dozen U.S. tests in the next two or three months, all above the earth's surface and some probably hundreds of miles aloft.

Speculation on possible fields of U.S. testing has centered on miles armed with warheads, the effects of nuclear blasts on radar and communications, the effects of a nuclear explosion might have on an enemy nuclear warhead, and research on a neutron bomb — a device which theorists say could destroy life without demolishing buildings.

One of the tests, the New York Daily News said today in a copy-right story, will be the world's first live firing of a nuclear-armed, long-range ballistic missile — a Polaris launched under water from a Polaris-powered submarine, the base set for an air burst.

Turncoat Denies Plans to Return

Ex-British Diplomat Says Trip Home Would Cause Big Scandal

MOSCOW (AP) — Turncoat British diplomat Guy Burgess said today he doesn't want to go home to England now — because "it would kick up a big scandal among highly placed Britons."

"Such a visit would involve my many friends in high places," he said. "It would cause them great pain and trouble. There would be an enormous scandal, so I don't want to return to England just now."

Burgess returned here from a Black Sea holiday to answer questions raised by arrest warrants issued against him and Donald Maclean in London last week, charging violation of the British official secrets law. Scotland Yard said it got the warrants because there was reason to believe Burgess and Maclean were coming home.

Output of Pontiac, Tempest Passes 1961 Model Run

Total production of the 1962 Pontiac and Tempest models has already surpassed the 546,631 cars produced during the company's entire 1961 model run, it was announced today by E. M. Estes, a General Motors vice president and general manager of Pontiac Motor Division.

Pontiac's latest production goal was reached during the final hour of Friday's afternoon shift at the main plant here.

When assembly operations stopped at 5:15 a.m. Saturday, 1962 model production stood at 546,631 units, at day's ahead of the end of the model run last year, Estes said.

Injured in Search for Collegians Trio Missing 2 Days in Georgia Hunt Lost Students in Cave

TRENTON, Ga. (UPI) — More than 100 men snaked through the muddy passages of a mountain cave today hunting for three college students feared lost in the murky cavern for two days.

All night long three teams of rescuers probed through a baffling labyrinth of underground passages. Parents of two of the youths kept vigil at the cave's entrance.

Huge floodlights lighted up the rugged terrain of Lookout Mountain at the mouth of Cave's Cave where the students' car was found early yesterday. No other trace of them has been found since.

The entrance to the northwest Georgia cave is little more than a hole in the ground. But once inside, seasoned spelunkers said the passages stretch for miles. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Senate Scheduled to Launch Rights Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House members still on Easter vacation, the Senate is scheduled to open this week on what could become a full-blown Southern filibuster against an administration civil rights bill.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana is committed to move early in the week to bring up a measure to abolish the literacy tests still used in some states as a qualification for voting in federal elections. Civil rights advocates contend such tests have been used to keep Negroes from voting.

MAY FORCE MOVE
Mansfield may use a parliamentary maneuver to bring before the Senate without debate a minor bill for which he then can move to substitute legislation which would establish a six-grade education as the sole literacy qualification for voting in federal elections.

The bill now is pending before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, which cancelled a meeting scheduled for Tuesday to consider acting on it.

Mansfield's motion is certain to generate a filibuster with 18 Southern senators paring off the time to keep the talk going in an effort to prevent a vote.

CLOSURE MOVE SEEN
Whether the Senate can act on the bill apparently will be determined by whether leaders can muster a two-thirds majority of those voting to cut off debate under the closure rule. Mansfield has indicated he will wait at least 10 days before seeking such a limitation.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a supporter of the administration's bill, said this will provide an acid test of whether there is to be any major civil rights legislation in this session of Congress. The Senate never has invoked the debate limitation rule to force passage of a civil rights bill.

Javits predicted on a television program Sunday that "a very substantial number" of Republicans will vote to close off debate.

HOPE FOR UNITY
Republican leaders hope to counter impressive strength to support the bill.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — For years, "they said it couldn't be done." But now a Texas firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment that is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair!

"They don't even ask you to take their word for it. If your symptoms indicate that the treatment will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!"

Naturally, they would not offer this no risk trial unless the treatment worked. This is all the more remarkable in light of the fact that the great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and end of undeveloped follicles of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped. But how can any man of woman be sure what is actually causing their hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Actually, there are 18 scalp disorders that can cause hair loss. No matter which one is the cause, of your hair loss, if you wait until your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. If you still have hair (or at least some hair) on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to act.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them information to help them analyze your problem. This information should include how long your hair has been thinning, and whether or not you now have or ever had any of the following conditions: Do you have dandruff? Is it dry or oily? Do your scalp eruptions in pimples or other irritations, does your forehead become oily or greasy? Does your scalp itch and how often? And any other information you feel might be helpful. All letters will be answered promptly. Send the above information, and your name and address to Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., Box 6600, Houston 6, Texas.

Rules Newspaper Pact Illegal Lockout Plan in N.Y.

WASHINGTON (U) — A compact among major New York City area newspapers — providing they will all shut down if one of them is faced with a grievance strike — was ruled today an illegal lockout arrangement.

The decision by trial examiner Charles W. Schneider of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) was directed against the Publishers Association of New York and its 10 affiliated newspapers. Schneider's findings can be appealed to the NLRB itself and then to the courts.

The papers involved are the Times, News, Post Herald-Tribune, Journal American, Journal of Commerce, Mirror, World, Telegram and Sun, Long Island Press and Long Island Star-Journal.

A spokesman for the Publishers Association of New York said the association would have no comment pending a study of the 32-page decision.

Nor was there any immediate comment from the individual newspapers.

Announcement of the ruling coincided with the arrival here of 1,200 publishers for the annual meeting of the Associated Press and the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Schneider recommended that the NLRB order the papers to cancel their pact. He said it was illegal because, in attempting to curb wildcat strikes or walkouts in the face of contract provisions requiring that such disputes be arbitrated, the publication shutdowns punished neutral employees not involved in one-paper grievances.

TOTAL BLACKOUT

"Heretic medicines may be suitable in times of desperate need," Schneider said in his decision, "but the total blackout of perhaps the greatest single collection of competitive news media in the world in order to frustrate interpretation of a segment of the enterprise, seems to be to compound the disease."

The examiner said it was commendable to maintain the flow of news that is vital to the functioning of a democratic society but the way the papers chose to do it compromised their worthy end.

"This is not to question the good faith of the publishers," Schneider said, "for they had a private interest in maintaining publication, quite apart from impulses of public service."

"But the voluntary and concerted suppression, even temporarily and with the best of motives, of such important vehicles of public information is a responsibility fraught with more than ordinary consequence — whosoever the original fault."

"This is a principle applicable to employers, unions and employees. Where there are reasonably adequate peaceful alternatives, the use of disruptive self-help by either side of a labor dispute is so important an enterprise contributes neither to the public convenience nor to the long-term interest of the participants."

"For if they are unable to resolve their differences by their own restraints and inventions, other and more impatient forces may provide brusquer machinery."

The case was heard on complaints by the printers and deliverymen unions that the newspapers had threatened a series of citywide publication shutdowns last year when one or more of the nine craft or mechanical unions employed by the papers threatened a stoppage over grievances at one of the papers.

Schneider said at one point that if the papers considered it the obligation of the unions to arbitrate grievances as a peaceful solution it was equally the responsibility of the newspapers.

ILLEGAL MOVE

The examiner said it was illegal to suspend employment of neutral employees on papers because of a dispute they had no part in on another paper. He found that in all cases of threatened union stoppages, that union officials attempted to head off any strike action.

Saying there never had been an NLRB case quite like this one, Schneider concluded that employers, in a multiple-employer bargaining unit, may not engage "in a sympathetic lockout in support of one of their number threatened with a breach of contract strike over a grievance dispute in the latter's plant." He said some lockouts are legal, but not this type.

"Additionally," he said, "I am of the opinion that an employer may not deprive neutral employees of employment, or threaten to, in order to induce other employees to refrain from concerted activities, regardless of whether the concerted activities are lawful or unlawful."

"For to do so is to seize the employment of neutral employees as an item of bargaining with the disputing employees and to seek to trade for a resolution of the controversy."

Mishap Fatal to Boy

WARREN (AP) — Five-year-old Byron Lucas of Warren died Saturday night from injuries suffered Friday. He was hit by a car on a street in Warren.

Old age, we're told, brings experience — and some experience brings old age. . . . Mark Twain once explained the differences between a taxidermist and a tax collector: "A taxidermist takes only the skin. . . . Historians tell us about the past, and economists tell us about the future. That leaves only the present to confuse us."

Kenneth H. Bogard Jr. Marries Saginaw Girl

Easter lilies and palms graced the Countryside Presbyterian Church in Saginaw, for the Saturday evening vows of Jo Anne Culp to Kenneth H. Bogard Jr., Dr. Henry W. Fischer, retired, officiated.

Receiving some 300 guests in the crystal ballroom Hotel Bancroft were the newlyweds and their parents, the Sherwood T. Culp of Saginaw, and the senior Bogards of West Lawrence Street.

Alecon lace touched with pearls and crystals accented the brides gown of white silk organza over taffeta, styled with skirt of unpressed pleats and chapel train. Her veil of imported silk illusion fell from a lace tiara. She held a white orchid and feathered carnations, atop a white Bible.

Wide crushed cummerbunds and floating panels of apricot tulle accented identical dresses of nylon white sheer for Pamela Culp, her sister's maid of honor, and their cousin Judy Long of Florence, Ala., and Dorine Hiser, Merrill, who were bridesmaids. They held cressets of apricot carnations.

Best man was M. Arthur Archibald, Gorrie Pointe Farms, Roger Fitzpatrick, St. Johns, and Dennis Johnson, Cadillac, seated the guests.

Mint green accessories sparked the bride's costume suit of beige Irish linen chosen for the southern honeymoon.

Mr. Bogard is assistant to the registrar at Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, where he received his degree in business administration. His bride attended both Ferris and Indiana State Teacher's College.

Mrs. Culp chose beige lace over dark green taffeta for the wedding, and the mother of the bridegroom appeared in a toast organza sheath dress worn with apricot accessories.

Staining Wood

Wood stains are used for three purposes. The first is to increase the color contrast of the natural wood grain pattern and make it more attractive. The second function is to give a more uniform color, while the third is to protect the wood further and to protect it against damage while in use.

Island in the Kitchen

Many kitchen planners today recommend "islands" when remodeling large kitchens. If properly arranged, they reduce steps between the sink and gas appliances. There are many styles of gas ranges that can be built into a kitchen island. They are designed to be surrounded by cabinets and to provide a neat, compact appearance. Hoods also are available to take care of grease and cooking odors—and they can add a decorative note to the kitchen.

Household Bleach Will Clean Mildewed Walls

If mildew forms on the enamel walls of your kitchen or bath, here's what to do. Wash the walls with a solution of sodium hypochlorite made by adding one and one-half cups of a household bleach such as Chlorox or Purex to a gallon of water. Brush this on the affected areas and let remain for five minutes. Then rinse with clean water.

Boat Race to Rescue of Disabled Craft

NEW YORK (AP)—A U.S. Navy ship raced early today to the side of a schooner in distress in the New York City harbor, that all eight aboard were safe.

The Navy ship, which was not identified, notified the Coast Guard in New York that the "Black Panther" had lost its main mast and was powerless to move in high seas.

The schooner was said to have made about three miles in the two days since it declined assistance after a widespread Coast Guard search late last week.

The Coast Guard said the schooner was situated about halfway along its planned course from Bermuda to New York.

The naval vessel was to stay with the schooner until a Coast cutter, the Humboldt, reached the scene some time tonight to take the disabled craft in tow, the Coast Guard said.

The Humboldt, out of Boston, was returning to New York from the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Has Liz Been Stashing Money in Swiss Banks?

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK—Elizabeth Taylor told a friend of ours—as of a few days ago—that she's upset about the nasty rumors she became a resident of Switzerland so she could stash her money in the Swiss banks away from Eddie Fisher's grasp. "That's true," partly because Liz at this time doesn't have a lot of loot. . . . Anyway, Eddie, a healthy lad of 33, soon to sign at the Waldorf plus Las Vegas, doesn't want money from a girl.

Jackie Gleason got a cyst removed from his jawbone in Doctor's Hospital. Minor surgery (his jaw's a minor part of him—as you would know if you got a glimpse of his new waistline).

A wife who hasn't lost her wig yet isn't qualified for the Jet Set. Carol Channing left her behind at "A Thousand Clowns." Reminds us of George Jessel—at the Stage Delicatessen—asking Harry Hershfield: "How'd you like my toupee?" HH answered: "Wonderful. You can't tell it from a wig."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Benny Goodman says he wants to reassemble his old quartet for a show for JFK.
Jackie Gleason ordered a set of golfball-shaped cufflinks, commemorating his hole-in-one. . . . Charlie Chaplin made a film about the Irish rebellion (from stories his wife Oona heard). . . . Nat Hiken, producer of "Car 54, Where Are You?" wants to have his car 54 cruise through a "Naked City" TV scene, and the gag sequence may be filmed.

EARL'S PEARLS: Said the cynic: "A guy can get a lot of happiness out of marriage—if he remembers to stay out."
TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A fellow asked his six-year-old nephew what he wanted to be when he grew up, and the kid answered: "A Kennedy."
WIFE I'D SAID THAT: A childhood friend is one who's still wondering how you ever got as far as you did.
Remember when Hoover promised us in 1928 there'd be a car in every garage? asks Bill Hackett. "Well, I just got one of those." That's Earl, brother.

Electrical Safety Can't Be Neglected

Electrical appliances—with the exception of those that have heating elements such as irons, toasters and room heaters—should be grounded. This is important in the kitchen, basement or garage where moisture is present and where the user himself is grounded.
Run a wire from a bare metal screw on the body of the appliance to a water pipe or other metal object that makes contact with the ground.
An area that is potentially hazardous is the bathroom. Tubs and showers should be equipped with hand rails and a rubber mat to prevent falls. No electrical switch should be within reach of tub or shower.

Countersink Nails

When you replace loose or missing nails on wood siding, it's a good idea to use non-rusting nails. However, ordinary nails should be countersunk, given a dab of anti-rust primer and then the holes should be puttied. Flush nails should be spot primed. In this way rust spots will be prevented.

Modern Gas Furnace Can Be Hidden

One thing to look for in that new house you hope to buy is a gas central heating unit. Give some thought to what your family space needs will be after a few years in the house. For the time being you may not have to worry about extra bedrooms, playrooms, sandboxes and swings, but chances are you will in a few years.
The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association suggests checking the heating system first. If there's a gas central heating unit and the premises you may not find it in the usual place, but don't be alarmed, that's a good sign. It probably just means the job is being done with equipment so compactly designed that it can be hidden in a corner of the basement or in a closet, and so automatic that it properly placed thermostat sets the whole heating operation in motion and keeps it that way.
Not too many years ago, says Harold Massey, GAMA's managing director, the average central heating plant was a bulky, mysterious monster with a maze of pipes or ducts and fuel bins or tanks that completely monopolized the basement and required day and night tending.
But the present-day furnace or boiler is no bigger than a two or three-drawer filing cabinet, he says, and so it's possible to install it in an upstairs location—under a stairway, in a utility room, laundry or kitchen—enabling the long-sought home planner to convert the entire basement into living, work or recreation area.

Southern Pine Has Grown With Nation

From a standpoint of years in service, Southern Pine lumber is the nation's oldest building material.
Since the first sawmill was started at Jamestown, Virginia, in 1608, more than a trillion board feet of Southern Pine have been produced enough to build 100 million homes.
