Kennedy Is Critically Wounded in California; Suspect Named

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Authorities today identified the suspect in the attempted assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as Sirhan Sirhan, 23. Officers said he once lived in Jerusalem.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot in the head by a mysteriously silent gunman today after winning the California Democratic presidential primary and emerged from more than three hours of surgery in "extremely critical condition."

An aide said all but a fragment of a bullet was removed from Kennedy's brain and a second bullet, less serious, remains in the back of his neck.

Kennedy was shot down about 4½ years after his brother, President John F. Kennedy, was assassinated by a rifleman in Dallas.

Vital signs—pulse and breathing—are in good order, Frank Mankiewicz, his press secretary, told newsmen, but the next 24 to 36 hours will be critical. He said there "may have been some impairment of the blood supply to the center of the brain"—which controls pulse, blood pressure and tracking of the eye—but "not the thinking processes."

★ ★ ★ ★

The 42-year-old New York senator came from behind in California's crucial primary to accrue a winning lead over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy around midnight. Kennedy had proclaimed his triumph to about 2,000 supporters at an Ambassador Hotel rally and was taking a shortcut through the kitchen to a meeting with newsmen when shots rang out.

With stunning rapidity at 12:15 a.m., a man police described as a Caucasian, about 25, 5 feet 5 and 120 pounds, with dark hair and complexion, emptied the chamber of an eight-shot .22 pistol.

Kennedy fell, hit apparently three times. Five others near him were wounded, none as badly as the presidential candidate.

LAY FLAT ON BACK

Kennedy lay for a time flat on his back in the kitchen, eyes open, crowd milling around him. Some observers say they heard him say, as he was lifted into a police ambulance, "Oh, no. No. Don't."

Pandemonium broke loose. Roosevelt Grier, giant Negro tackle for the professional Los Angeles Rams, quickly grabbed the much smaller gunman, wrestled the gun from him and held him for police.

★ ★ ★

Officers later questioned the man for hours at Central Jail, and said he stonily refused to say anything, except "yes" to one question.

They said they had no clue to his identity.

President Johnson and others around the nation— including Kennedy's rival on the campaign primary trail, Minnesota's Senator McCarthy—expressed shock and sorrow. Johnson ordered the full resources of the FBI thrown into the case and ordered secret service protection for major candidates.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy was brought first to Central Receiving Hospital where a doctor said he was "practically dead" upon arrival.

Physicians there administered closed cardiac massage, oxygen and adrenalin. "At first he was pulseless," said a doctor who treated him, "then his pulse came back and we began to hear a heart beat and he began to breathe—a little erratically."

The doctor, Victor Baz, said Ethel Kennedy, who accompanied her husband in the ambulance, was frightened—"she didn't believe he was alive because she couldn't see that he was responding. I put the stethoscope to her ears so she could listen and she was tremendously relieved.

She was "very distraught but superb . . . very edgy, but my own wife wouldn't have done as well, I don't think. She was gracious at all times."

Kennedy was taken to Good Samaritan Hospital near downtown Los Angeles. There a team of six surgeons began brain surgery at 3:12 a.m. that lasted about 3 hours and 40 minutes.

★ ★ ★

Doctors said one bullet struck near the right ear and entered the brain. Another hit in the shoulder. A third apparently grazed his forehead.

Kennedy's press aide said after the surgery that no further effort is planned for removal of the remaining bullet fragment in the skull. "Some fragments of the bullet and bone went to the brain stem," he said, and the senator lost considerable blood.

Kennedy was moved, unconscious, to the hospital's intensive care unit.

The surgery was pronounced successful in that it accomplished what it set out to do, remove most of the bullet.

Kennedy's personal physician was flying here from Boston.

Police said they believe there was only one man involved..the man being questioned. They booked him as "John Doe" on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said the FBI is investigating every possible angle, and "according to information that I have at this moment we have no evidence of conspiracy."

Clark told a news conference: "It seems incredible that another such profound tragedy would strike the Kennedy family which has suffered so much from violence already."

Clark was an assistant in the Justice Department when Kennedy was attorney general.

Robert F. Kennedy Lies Gravely Wounded At Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel Moments After He Was Shot Early Today

23-Year-Old Man Held in Shooting

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Authorities today identified the suspect in the attempted assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as Sirhan Sirhan, 23. Officers said he once lived in Jerusalem.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man suspected of shooting Sen. Robert F. Kennedy refuses to identify himself and has said but one word — "yes" since his arrest, Police Chief Thomas Reddin said today.

"He just sits there and says nothing," Reddin told a news conference.

The man is the only known suspect, he said.

The chief said the gunman fired all eight shots in an Iver Johnson 22-caliber pistol when he blazed away during a Kennedy California presidential primary victory celebration at the Ambassador Hotel.

HIT TWICE

The New York Democrat was hit twice in the head, and one bullet lodged in the brain.

Five other persons were wounded.

Reddin gave these details.

- The gunman carried a few scraps of paper, not identified, but had no identification. "We made a skin search of him, checking that he had nothing on him to take his life." He is under 24-hour guard.
- "We have advised him of his rights. He doesn't want a lawyer now."
- Questioning continues at Central Jail, with a representative of the district attorney's office. Any statements will be tape recorded (which Reddin says was not done after the Dallas assassination in 1963 of Kennedy's brother, President John F. Kennedy).
- "We describe him as a male Caucasian, around 25, 5 feet 5 and about 120 pounds, swarthy complexion. His hair is described as wiry or bushy."
- The gun is the only evidence.

Reddin, asked if the gunman appeared to be of Latin-American extraction, replied: "I don't know. I can't tell."

He said the man might possibly be Eurasian.

'OBVIOUSLY UNDERSTOOD'

Did the gunman speak English?

"He didn't speak any English, but he obviously understood English, as at one time he responded with a 'yes.' But I don't know what the question was."

The chief said that, during the campaign, Kennedy twice was offered a police bodyguard, and each time refused.

★ ★ ★

Reddin gave this account of the shooting:

"Sen. Kennedy walked from the ballroom with members of his party to another room and that was when the shots were fired. Rosie Grier (giant tackle for the Los Angeles Rams) seized the suspect and handed the weapon to Rafer Johnson (former Olympic decathlon star, lately a Kennedy aide).

"When the shots were fired pandemonium broke out. There were early reports of three suspects. We are now reasonably sure there's only one."

FAA to Award Pact for Airport

The Federal Aviation Agency will award an $84,000 contract to provide an Instrument Landing System (ILS) at Oakland-Pontiac Airport, according to Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Joseph Davis, airport manager, said, "This will mean a lot to aviation in Oakland County." The ILS would allow all-weather flying at the Waterford Township facility.

The system is in the future plans for updating the field. However construction and installation were not expected until 1970.

According to Hart's office the funds came as an additional appropriation for the 1967-68 fiscal year and contracts could be awarded next month.

Davis explained the federal government pays all the cost of the equipment and installation. However the county would have to acquire additional land around the airport.

When installed, the ILS will increase the hours of airport operation. "This will be the best possible news to air freight services located at the field. In the past many important cargo shipments had to land elsewhere because of bad weather here," Davis said.

Dem Race Is at Standstill Following Shooting of RFK

By The Associated Press

The shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy moments after a rousing California primary victory speech has brought the Democratic presidential race to a standstill and left its prospects in disarray.

★ ★ ★

His lead over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy continued to grow in the confusion that followed.

McCarthy canceled plans to campaign in Seattle and said he would instead return to Washington, D. C.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey also canceled campaign plans and said he would return to Washington from Colorado Springs, Colo., where he was to make a graduation address at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

VOTE COUNT

The California Democratic winner was to control 174 delegate votes at the national convention. With 80 per cent of the vote tabulated, Kennedy had 1,119,186 for 46 per cent; McCarthy had 1,027,077 for 42 per cent and State Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, heading an uncommitted delegation, had 257,338 votes for 12 per cent.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan was unopposed as a favorite-son candidate for 86 GOP delegate votes.

Incumbent Republican Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, seeking nomination for reelection, was falling behind State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Raffery.

In South Dakota, Kennedy scored a decisive victory over McCarthy and a stand-in slate for Humphrey for 24 convention delegates.

Pontiac Wakes Up to Shocking News

Most persons in the Pontiac area were asleep when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot early today in Los Angeles. They woke to find that instead of this being a bright new day unfolding, it was to be a day of tragedy and bewilderment.

Shock and disbelief were the predominant reactions following the deaths of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King, but this shooting prompted a new prominent feeling — bewilderment.

★ ★ ★

From top area officials to the man in the street, there was a grasping effort to try to understand the event that had taken place.

★ ★ ★

"I don't know what to think or say," said George Googasian, Oakland County Democratic chairman. "My first reaction was to think back to 1963 to the shooting of Jack Kennedy.

TRAGEDY REPLAY

"There was a replay in my mind of the whole sequence of events that followed that frightening and terrible thing."

"No matter what happens, we will try to continue to the work that he has done to make the world a better place to live," said William H. Merrill of Bloomfield Hills, state chairman of Kennedy's Michigan campaign.

"In times like this it doesn't seem like it's worth the effort, but I know it is," Merrill added, his voice faltering.

Said State Sen. Sander M. Levin, of Berkley, Democratic state chairman, "The continued streak of violence in this country's life has brought a new tragedy of immense proportions for one family and for the entire nation."

★ ★ ★

"Let us now turn all of our hopes to the recovery of this gifted public servant," said Levin.

★ ★ ★

Francis Frank, 26628 Margaret, Roseville, said he felt like everybody else — stunned. "What's this world coming to? A man doesn't know what to do any more," he said.

WORLD LEADERS?

Robert Harrington of 3450 Seebaldt, Waterford Township, also wondered "what our country's coming to. We're supposed to be world leaders," he said, "and all we are is a topic of conversation throughout the world."

★ ★ ★

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., said that as a city, Pontiac is praying for the hopeful recovery of Kennedy.

"Personally I am shocked and can't help but wonder if this is a very sick world and nation. It is about time that all the legislative bodies and national figures do something to end the climate that produces these acts."

Mrs. William W. Kinney of 227 W. Kennett said: "What can you say? Whatever you say is only going to make it worse."

Miss Carol Morse of 5274 Cooley Lake, Waterford Township, added: "I think it's terrible. They're killing everyone."

★ ★ ★

"It is shocking, horrible and almost inconceivable that this can happen to public figures in America such as Bobby Kennedy and others," commented Pontiac Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer.

"I think the tendency of violence in America is highlighted by this. It is a tremendous tragedy for his family."

'IT'S SHOCKING'

Waterford Township Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe, who learned of the shooting shortly after 6 a.m. when his high school daughter awoke him after hearing the news on the radio, had this to say:

"It's shocking and unbelieveable this could happen. I wonder what can be done to prevent characters in our society having access to guns and the opportunity for violence."

★ ★ ★

Oakland County Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson said "The lunatic fringe in this country — and it seems to be growing in number — threatens the very existence of our constitutional democracy."

Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger called for American people to awaken to the "fact that their lack of concern and action in tolerating a breakdown of law and order will lead to progressive violence and civil disorder."

★ ★ ★

Edward P. Revis, acting director of the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OCCEO), said "Robert Kennedy has ... been a friend of the poor. I'm sure many are praying for him today."

★ ★ ★

Rev. Jack H. C. Clark, pastor of North Oakland Christian Church, said the shooting of Kennedy "again brings tragedy into all our lives, and thoughtful people of all religious persuasions pray for his recovery."

Expressing shock and disbelief, Oakland County Circuit Judge William R. Beasley said, "Whether or not you disagree with him, Sen. Kennedy is a great American.

'SHOULD HAVE LEARNED'

"Many measures will have to be taken to prevent this from reoccuring," said Beasley. "We should have learned our lesson after 1963."

Rev. Frederick G. Klettner, president of the Pontiac Pastors Association said, "We of the Pontiac Area Pastors Association are very sorry to hear about this tragedy that has happened to Sen. Kennedy and his family but in reflecting on this we begin to reach the conclusion that we are establishing a climate of violence in this country as long as we refuse to take positive steps toward ending poverty and racism in our nation."

Commission Gives Budget Formal OK

BIRMINGHAM — The City Commission has given formal approval to the $3-million municipal budget for the 1968-69 fiscal year.

The vote to okay the new budget, which maintains the tax rate at 17.5 mills despite the city's increased valuation, came under sharp questioning from a pair of former commissioners.

★ ★ ★

Carl F. Ingraham, 940 Harmon, a city supervisor, asked what additional services the city would provide with the $300,000 in added income which would result from the increase in valuation.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. G. Howard Willett Jr., a former mayor of Birmingham, concurred, saying that the fact that the valuation boost had made 13 per cent more money available might lead citizens to believe that the budget had been developed to meet the present millage rate.

BIGGER DOLLARS

"This permits us to say that there has been no increase, but we all know that the tax dollars will be bigger because of the higher valuation," Mrs. Willett added.

★ ★ ★

City Manager Robert S. Kenning gave a brief rundown of the changes in the budget. While there are only two new employes, one mechanic's assistant in the department of public works and one attendant for the new municipal parking structure, increased operating costs and capital improvements account for the rest of the budget rise, Kenning said.

★ ★ ★

"The maximum we thought we could conserve was half a mill," Mayor David F. Breck commented.

Mrs. Willett countered, "I think even half a mill would make real headlines in these days."

SALARY HIKES

Commissioner Robert F. Page asserted that one primary problem in determining the budget was provision for satisfactory salary increases for city employes.

★ ★ ★

"This accounts for most of the increase in the budget," Page added. "We have to be competitive with other cities to get high-class employes."

★ ★ ★

In other business, the commission has held a hearing of necessity on the 1968 seal-coat program.

★ ★ ★

Several residents were present to ask about certain phases of the program, such as length of time between applications of seal coat, method of assessment, and amount of material to be applied.

PRIMARY FACTORS

Kenning explained that the number of years between applications varies with three primary factors: the type of base, the drainage on the street, and the weather.

★ ★ ★

"Each spring the superintendent of the department of public works and the street foreman tour and inspect every street in the city to see if further seal coating is needed," Kenning said.

★ ★ ★

"Of course, in any program of this size," he continued, "there are bound to be some borderline streets."

★ ★ ★

The commission referred for study a request from the Oakland County Road Commission to detour traffic during construction planned on Maple between Coolidge and Crooks in Troy.

COUNTY PROPOSAL

Westbound traffic, according to the county proposal, would move north on Crooks to Big Beaver, west on Big Beaver to Coolidge, and return to Maple by going south on Coolidge.

★ ★ ★

Page suggested that traffic instead be diverted south on Adams, but Roberts objected, citing the traffic problem already caused by narrow pavement on Adams.

★ ★ ★

After some debate, the commission decided to refer the proposal, asking for development of a sign plan to allow motorists an option to return to Maple on Coolidge, Adams or Woodward.

Road Is Closed for Widening

About 1½ miles of Elizabeth Lake Road in Waterford Township was closed today to through traffic due to an extensive road improvement construction project. The work is expected to take at least three months.

Involved is the portion of the road between M-59 and Telegraph. Limits of the actual construction work are M59 and Josephine, a distance of about one mile.

★ ★ ★

The road will be widened from two to five lanes. Curbs will be provided, along with drainage improvements.

Oakland County Road Commission engineers estimate the road will not be open again for traffic until early in the fall.

★ ★ ★

While the work is continuing, Elizabeth Lake Road traffic will be detoured over M59 and Telegraph roads. Access for local traffic, however, will be maintained.

Cost of the project will be $358,529. Half of the amount will be absorbed by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. The remainder of the cost will be borne by the county road commission.

KENNEDY AT PONTIAC MALL—About 5,000 persons greeted Sen. Robert F. Kennedy at the Pontiac Mall on Oct. 29, 1966. Kennedy stopped in Pontiac during a visit to the metropolitan Detroit area to stump for Michigan Democrats in the 1966 election.

Hanoi Closer to Admitting It Has Troops in S. Viet

PARIS (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam failed again today to break their deadlock over how to de-escalate the war in Vietnam, but North Vietnam seemed to edge closer to admitting it has troops fighting in the South.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman accused North Vietnam of having 40,000 troops in Laos, which he called an alltime high, and asked that North Vietnam live up to the agreement to neutralize Laos. Harriman offered to talk at once about ending attacks on the North—but made his speech on the situation in neighboring Laos.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy issued a long blast against U.S. "aggression" and then made this statement: "As for South Vietnam, so long as U.S. troops continue their war of aggression, the people, the armed forces of the National Front for Liberation and other patriotic forces in South Vietnam will naturally continue their resistance."

Reporters were told of the statement after the seventh session adjourned. The next meeting was scheduled for next Wednesday. This is the longest interval between sessions since the talks began.

Thuy did not specify what he meant by "other patriotic forces in South Vietnam" but normally only two sets of forces are referred to there—the Vietcong, which is the name for the forces of the National Liberation Front, and the North Vietnamese troops.

Up to now Thuy has seemed to move toward meeting Harriman's challenge by arguing that Vietnam is one country and all its people have a right to defend it.

Bronson: Asked Security Probe at Pontiac State

Oakland County Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson revealed today that he has urged Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley to conduct an investigation of security measures at Pontiac State Hospital.

Bronson made the recommendation in a letter to Kelley dated May 27, calling attention to two escapes that month by inmates of the hospital confined for crimes of violence after being judged incompetent to stand trial.

Neither patient has been located since.

Bronson, who emphasized today that his office has no jurisdiction over the state - controlled institution, said he made the recommendation on the basis of "a threshold judgment that the escape of two serious felons within two weeks raises substantial questions about the quality of the detention facilities at the hospital."

★ ★ ★

He said he had no personal knowledge of the nature of hospital security, but that the murder Friday of a 19-year-old female patient—with which another patient was charged — only buttressed his feelings that the situation is dangerous.

Dr. Donald W. Martin, hospital director, commented that his first word of Bronson's recommendation came today, but that an investigation, as always, would be welcome.

"We've always had an open-door policy here concerning these things," he said.

Martin pointed out that in dealing with psychiatric cases, a certain number are always unpredictable.

"In a situation where part of the treatment of such cases now entails allowing patients increased freedom and where we now have 1,800 admissions year.ly, our record isn't alarming," he added.

Bronson said he has received no reply from Kelley as yet.

At '66 Dem Rally

Kennedy a Winner Here

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor—Suburban

That ripe corn silk hair was the first impression of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. It was made for the camera.

Viewed in-person, Kennedy's light brown hair resembles a spreading shrub. His hair — part of the man's image — flops in schoolboy fashion from ear to ear, flipping down in front to shade his forehead.

★ ★ ★

He has nearly a constant habit of flicking it back in place.

Kennedy appeared here only once. On Oct. 29, 1966, he was the star of a Democratic political rally at the Pontiac Mall.

Despite a 90-minute wait caused by large crowds elsewhere, few in the crowd of Saturday afternoon shoppers left.

When Kennedy did appear, the crowd — estimated at 5,000 persons — pressed so close to the small platform that the windows of the S. S. Kresge store in the center of the Mall were threatened for a time.

★ ★ ★

The Mall visit was one stop on a day-long stump of the Detroit area and the state in behalf of Democrat candidates in the 1966 fall elections.

Wearing a constant smile, more a boyish grin, Kennedy was greeted with "Hi, Bobby" and "Kennedy for President" banners.

ROUTINE REMARKS

In routine remarks, RFK urged the election of local and state Democrats, including U. S. Senate hopeful G. Mennen Williams and Zolton Ferency, candidate for governor.

The Kennedy magic was the drawing power, although Republicans carried the election that fall.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy's appearance here was a success in terms of popularity. There was a minor contest between local Republicans and Dems to see who, Kennedy or Gov. Romney, could pull the largest crowd.

Almost as soon as the New York senator left the temporary Mall stage, posters appeared boosting a GOP rally later that day.

A WINNER

Kennedy left a winner. An estimated 3,000 persons showed for the Republican gathering.

More Negro Police Unlikely

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third in a series on the Pontiac Police Department's hiring procedures and attempts to hire more Negro officers.)

By BOB WISLER

The city government is now in the process or hiring 10 new police officers to bring the department up to authorized strength of 132 men.

Despite any number of recommendations that the police department should be more fully integrated — there are now four Negro officers — there is little at the moment that would indicate there will be any more than four Negroes when the department reaches peak strength.

In addition to civic leaders and officials of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, the Pontiac Area Planning Council, an advisory body of some prestige, has recommended immediate hiring of eight to 10 Negro officers.

★ ★ ★

While the desirability of hiring black police officers is recognized by many the possibility of doing so appears dim.

DIFFERENT ANSWERS

Why? There are as many different answers as there are points of view.

Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger said his department has made a number of efforts to encourage Negro applicants but these efforts have not produced any sizable number of applicants and no applicants who qualify under the city's list of qualifications.

Hanger, the son of a police officer and a police officer himself for 22 years, lives by principles and the law and abhors those who don't.

★ ★ ★

He believes that he has made enough efforts to hire Negroes even if others don't. He believes that some persons want to hire Negroes badly enough to lower the standards for black police applicants, and this to him is a violation of principle.

MSU Drug Arrests Protested

EAST LANSING (AP) — Several Michigan State University students were injured Tuesday night in an angry confrontation between two groups of students.

A number of fights broke out when one group started a mile-long march to the student union. The demonstrators were protesting the arrest of a number of MSU students on marijuana charges Monday, carried red and black flags, said to stand for revolution and anarchy.

★ ★ ★

Counterdemonstrators attempted to tear down the flags and block the paths of the marchers.

Campus police said no arrests were made during the demonstrations.

BUILDING OCCUPIED

Earlier in the day, a small group of militant students occupied the university's administration building for about three hours to protest the arrests.

The estimated 50 to 60 students, led by members of the campus chapter of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), had briefly barricaded themselves inside the administration building and later raised a red flag outside.

The students entered the building shortly before noon to present seven demands to MSU President John Hannah. These included:

● Disbanding of campus police.

● Agreement by the university to refuse to cooperate with police in making arrests.

● Student and faculty control of MSU police.

The occupying force of students left shortly after 3 p.m. when they were threatened with arrest by Richard Bernitt, MSU director of public safety.

Riot-trained police had been called from Lansing, East Lansing and the Ingham County Sheriff's Department to back up campus police if the students had to be forcibly evicted.

Mike Price, SDS president, and Brad Lang, an aide, manned a bullhorn and gave orders to the demonstrators at the East Lansing City Hall and at the administration building.

The demonstration was touched off by the arrest of 12 persons Monday night on charges of illegal sales of marijuana. Seven were students, including a 21-year-old married coed.

HITTING AT SOURCE

State Police Capt. Daniel Myre of the narcotics squad, said sales by those arrested represented "a major source of supply" of narcotics on the campus and in Lansing and East Lansing.

Those arrested were not members of an organized ring, he said, but made independent sales.

One defendant, Tommy Hartman, 17, of East Lansing, was charged with the sale of LSD. He demanded examination and was held under $5,000 bond for circuit court examination Aug. 25.

The 11 other defendants all were charged with sale of marijuana. All were held under $10,000 bond each.

SUSPECTS LISTED

State police listed as the students among them: Steve Mehler, 25; Mrs. Gail [illegible], 21; John MacCallan, 25; Marc Lambert, 18; Jay Hillis, 19; Sandor Bacsik, 22; and Milton Lucas, 23, all of East Lansing.

Similarly charged were Jan Hooker, 19, of East Lansing; John Brian Keillor, 21, of East Lansing; Frank Paul, 21, of East Lansing; and Dan Reeves, 20, of Lansing.

Judge Harmon warned the defendants that under the illegal sale charge they could be sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Mrs. Reed, MacCallan and Keillor waived preliminary examination and will be arraigned Friday in Ingham County Circuit Court. The rest either demanded examination or stood mute and will be arraigned Aug. 26.

Riots Result in Surcharge

LANSING (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner David Dykhouse Tuesday announced approval of a civil disorder surcharge on new and renewed premiums on property and certain other lines of insurance to [illegible] Dykhouse said the surcharge could be directly attributed to the civil disorders and riots of last summer which resulted in an estimated $33 million in insurance losses.

The surcharge on residential property insurance, he said, would apply only in counties of more than 100,000 in population and would amount to about $1 per policy per year.

On commercial properties, the surcharge would be applied to the standard fire policy, extended coverage, burglary, theft and glass insurance and related policies.

This would amount to 2 per cent of the premium in counties of under 100,000 population, he said, and 6 per cent of the premium in counties of more than 100,000 population.

NMU Challenges 'Jobless' Prof

DETROIT (AP) — Northern Michigan University has challenged the contention of Prof. Robert McClellan that he cannot find employment elsewhere because the university impaired his acceptability and profession[illegible] reputation.

In a brief filed Tuesday with U.S. District Judge Thomas Thornton, lawers for NMU said that contrary to his claim, McClellan has found a job for the summer term at Michigan State University.

Therefore, they argued, the professor should be denied the temporary injunction he is seeking against Northern's terminating his contract pending outcome of a damage suit he filed in his dismissal as a history professor.

The damage suit — for "not less than $100,000" — is scheduled for trial at Marquette Aug. 5 before Judge Thornton. McClellan contends he was arbitrarily dismissed in violation of his constitutional rights. The [illegible] claims that since he had not obtained tensure his services could be terminated at any time.

FILES AFFIDAVIT

In seeking the injunction, McLellan filed an affidavit last Thursday saying:

"I have made efforts to obtain employment elsewhere but have not been successful. Other institutions are aware that I have been summarily terminated by Northern Michigan University, and this has no doubt impaired my acceptability in the profession and my professional reputation."

★ ★ ★

Northern Michigan included an affidavit with the brief it filed Tuesday, quoting Howard R. Neville, provost of Michigan State University, as saying McClellan had been engaged last June 8 to teach in the MSU summer school.

STRUGGLE AT SHOOTING SCENE — Two men struggle with a third, trying to wrest a gun away from him, near the place in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles where Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot early today. The man's head is just to the left of the cluster of hands.

Misfortune Plagues . . .

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once more a Kennedy has been struck by violence.

Once more, a child of Joseph P. and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy lies in a hospital room—the latest victim of misfortune in a family that had everything going for it: wealth, power and unmatched achievement.

John, the Kennedy who became president, was assassinated. Joe Jr., the oldest, died in the explosion of his bomber on a dangerous mission in World War I. Kathleen, the third of the nine children and a wartime widow, was killed in a plane crash.

Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, a senator like brothers John and Robert, lay painfully immobilized for a year after suffering a back injury in a plane crash. Rosemary, the second oldest Kennedy, has spent much of her life in an institution for the mentally retarded.

Now Robert, at 42, celebrating a major victory in his drive for the presidency, lay critically wounded from bullets fired at close range.

His wife, Ethel, expecting her 11th child, was on the campaign trail with him.

A few years ago, while the family gathered in affliction around Edward's bedside, Robert had enough humor left to remark:

"I guess the only reason we've survived is that there are too many of us. There are more of us than there is trouble."

But trouble has never quit stalking the Kennedys.

Joseph, the 80-year-old patriarch who was ambassador to England, has been paralyzed for years from a stroke. He was with his wife at the family compound at Hyannisport, Mass. when Robert was shot in Los Angeles. The Kennedys were not told about the shooting immediately.

The son of John and Jacqueline Kennedy, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, died of lung disease when two days old. A daughter had been stillborn to them earlier and both are buried beside their father in Arlington National Cemetery.

The Kennedys' days of heartbreak began in 1941 when Ambassador Kennedy and his family returned from London.

"Rosemary was not making progress but seemed instead to be going backward," Eunice Kennedy said. "At 22 she was becoming increasingly irritable and difficult . . . her memory

Dismay, Sorrow Sweep the World

By The Associated Press

Shock, dismay and sorrow went round the world today at news of the shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"God help us," said a GI in Vietnam. "What the hell is going on back there?"

"I feel just like the last time," said another, referring to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Members of the Kennedy family in Europe were on the telephone to the United States. An aide to Sargent Shriver, the new U.S. ambassador to France and the senator's brother-in-law, said Shriver was trying to reach members of the family in Los Angeles.

'NEWS CONFUSED'

In London, Princess Lee Radziwill said she had spoken to her sister, President Kennedy's widow, but "she tells me the news is pretty confused so far."

News of the shooting caused "acute sorrow" at the Vatican, the chief press official there said. He said Pope Paul VI was being kept informed constantly of the condition of the senator, who is a Roman Catholic.

★ ★ ★

"It's a nightmare—it's terrible," said a Russian woman on a Moscow street.

"It is a great pity that you live in such a country where any person can be shot," a Russian man told an American in the Soviet capital.

TASS REPORT BRIEF

Tass, the official news agency, reported the shooting briefly and without comment.

Italian President Giuseppe Saragat expressed shock and dismay and told the Italian Embassy in Washington to keep him constantly informed of Kennedy's condition. Aides termed the shooting "a nefarious and vile attempt."

★ ★ ★

The news reached Europeans first by radio and television broadcasts. News agency offices were besieged by telephone calls. First editions of London afternoon papers spread the news in huge black type across their front pages.

"This is horrible, horrible," said a spokesman for the Swiss government in Bern, where the cabinet was meeting when the news broke.

"The same thing all over again," said a diplomat in Bern. "Horrid. Horrid."

Wonder About Country

LBJ, Other Leaders Stunned

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and other Washington leaders shared shock today at the news of another shooting, another Kennedy fallen, and many of them wondered about their country.

"There are no words equal to the horror of this tragedy," President Johnson said.

★ ★ ★

He had been awakened to hear the news in the early morning from his White House staff.

"All America prays for his country," the President said.

"We also pray that divisiveness and violence be driven from the hearts of men everywhere," he said.

LAND OF VIOLENCE

Johnson was one of two Washington figures commenting on the shooting who were in Dallas five years ago when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., who rode with Johnson in the Dallas motorcade, said the land is permeated with violence.

★ ★ ★

And Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who ordered an FBI probe of the shooting, said: "It's just a great tragedy and it has to be a matter of deep concern to all of our people that these acts continue."

"It is an unspeakable tragedy that America is so permeated with violence that they will attempt to remove those who serve in this wholly patriotic manner," Yarborough said.

'GOING CRAZY'

"There is no family in our generation that's done more for America than the Kennedys," the Texan added.

"It seems to me," said Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., "that our society is going crazy."

Dodd was the chief fighter for a bill that would ban interstate gun sales but lost half the battle when the Senate voted earlier this spring to ban mail-order sales only of handguns, not rifles and shotguns. This bill is in the House.

"When are the American people going to wake up and do something about guns?" Dodd wondered amid his shock in the early morning hours.

★ ★ ★

House Speaker John W. McCormack could only moan with grief when first told of the news.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield expressed "fear for my country's future if we do not regain our stability.

"The terror and horror numbs and I'm just praying for Bob's recovery," Mansfield said.

'DISASTER'

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen called the shooting "a disaster of national importance." He added it "all the more strengthens the need for strict law enforcement."

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., who has campaigned for Kennedy, said he was shocked and stunned by this horrible violence—this attempt on Sen. Kennedy's life.

★ ★ ★

House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, said, "This is a crazy world." His voice trailed off.

The House was scheduled to vote today on an attempt to send differing versions of a crime control bill to a House-Senate conference committee. Arends said he hopes this is defeated and other action taken quickly to accept the broader Senate bill which would ban the mail-order sale of handguns.

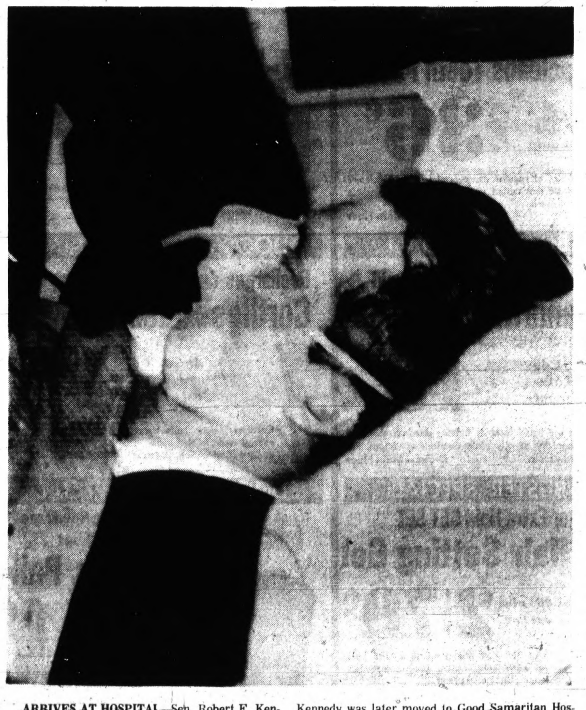
LAST SPEECH BEFORE SHOOTING — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy addresses a throng of supporters in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles early today following his victory in yesterday's California primary. A moment later he turned into a hotel kitchen corridor and was shot. His wife, Ethel, is just behind him.



ARRIVES AT HOSPITAL—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, gravely wounded in the head, is wheeled into Los Angeles Center Receiving Hospital early today. Kennedy was later moved to Good Samaritan Hospital for surgery.

Police Name Others Shot by Gunman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Police Department today identified those other wounded in the Kennedy shooting as:

William Weisel, 30, 2700 Upton, Washington, D.C., who suffered a bullet wound in the left side near the abdomen. He was taken to Kaiser Hospital, Los Angeles. Weisel is a unit manager for the American Broadcasting Corp.

★ ★ ★

Ira Goldstein, 19, 4077 Havenhurst, Los Angeles, who received a bullet wound in the left hip. He was transferred to Encino Hospital, Encino. Goldstein is an employe of Continental News Service at nearby Sherman Oaks.

★ ★ ★

Elizabeth Evans, 16032 W. Placentia, Saugus, Calif., wounded by a glancing bullet at the hairline. She was transferred to Huntington Memorial Hospital.

HIT IN SHIN

Irwin Stroll, 17, 6089 Horner, Los Angeles, who was wounded in the left shin. He was treated and released by Central Receiving Hospital.

Talked of Violence Just Before Tragedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the victory speech Robert F. Kennedy delivered moments before a gunman fired a bullet into his brain, the New York senator urged his supporters to help him deal with the plague of violence in America.

It was in large measure a joking, jubilant speech.

★ ★ ★

But Kennedy was solemn as he declared:

"I think we can end the divisions within the United States."

"We can work together," he said, "to overcome divisions, violence, disenchantment.

'WANT A CHANGE'

"We can start to work together, we are a great country, a selfless country, a compassionate country . . .

"What all of these primaries have indicated, and all of the party caucuses have indicated, was that people in the Democratic party and the United States, want a change . . ."

Kennedy said he hoped now to "concentrate on having a dialogue or a debate, I hope, between the vice president and perhaps myself on the directions the country is going to take."

He had opened the speech in a joking mood. "I first want to express my high regard to Don Drysdale," he said. Drysdale is the Los Angeles Dodger pitcher who achieved a record sixth consecutive shutout Tuesday night.

THANKS SUPPORTERS

"I hope we have as good fortune in our campaign," Kennedy said.

He went on to thank his campaign chieftains, his supporters, "my dog Freckles, who's been maligned," and his wife, Ethel—"not in order of importance."

Then he turned through the crush of supporters, heading for the kitchen passageway where a gunman waited, with this final rallying cry: "On to Chicago, and let's win there."

. . . for the Kennedys and the Nation

. . . Family That Has Everything

and concentration and her judgment were declining."

The family made the agonizing decision to put her into an institution and later launched a drive to aid persons similarly afflicted.

Lt. Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., was just 29 when he was killed Aug. 12, 1944.

He had entered the Navy in 1941, graduated first in his class at pilot training school, and by May 1944 had flown enough combat missions to qualify for a trip home.

Instead he volunteered for a mission that involved loading up a Liberator bomber with 10 tons of high explosive and aiming at a German V-2 rocket site. The pilot was to eject before radio guided the bomber to its target. The plane exploded in flight.

Kathleen, who had been serving since 1943 as an American Red Cross worker in London, had married William John Robert Cavendish, the Marquess of Hartington, a captain in the Coldstream Guards. They had been married only four months when Cavendish was killed on an infantry patrol.

★ ★ ★

In May 1948, flying to Cannes to meet her father, Kathleen was killed when her chartered plane crashed into a peak bordering the Rhone Valley near Marseille, France. A peasant brought her body down from the hill in an ox cart.

There are three other female members of the Kennedy clan, all attractive, all prominent in their own right.

Patricia Kennedy was married to actor Peter Lawford and divorced last year. Eunice is married to Sargent Shriver, once director of the Peace Corps and until recently director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, now in France as U.S. ambassador. Jean is married to Stephen E. Smith, who handles many of the Kennedy family business interests, taking frequent leave to assist in political campaigns.

★ ★ ★

The family of Mrs. Robert Kennedy also has been struck by tragedy.

Joan Patricia Skakel, her widowed sister-in-law, died in May 1967 when a partiile of meat lodged in ner throat. Mrs. Skakel's husband—Ethel's brother—was killed in a plane crash in 1966.

THE THREE BROTHERS — John F. Kennedy, the late president, is shown with his brothers, Robert and Edward, at the White House in 1962. Robert Kennedy was shot by a gunman in Los Angeles early today. John Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

Tragic News Is Relayed to Relatives

McLEAN, Va. (AP) — At Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's McLean home in suburban Washington, police quickly put a protective cordon around the quiet, sprawling house as newsmen and photographers began to gather after news of his shooting.

Fairfax County Police Lt. Charles Norfolk said those in the house, whom he could not identify, were shaken and asked that no one be permitted on the premises.

JFK's Widow Silent

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy was at her Fifth Avenue home when the shooting of her brother-in-law, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, occurred.

She was not available for comment but in London her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill told newsmen: "I have spoken to my sister but she tells me the news is pretty confused so far."

"She is going to telephone me when she has more news."

Shrivers Stay in France

PARIS (AP) — Neither U.S. Ambassador Sargent Shriver nor his wife, who is Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's sister, plan at the moment to return to the United States because of the shooting of the senator, a spokesman for the embassy said today.

Mrs. Shriver also was expected to go ahead with her first call on France's first lady, Mme. Yvonne de Gaulle, late this afternoon. Shriver arrived in Paris May 8 to take over the embassy.

Elder Kennedys Told

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and his wife, Rose, were told this morning that their son, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was shot early today.

Ann Gargan, niece and companion to the ambassador, told Mrs. Kennedy before she attended Mass at St. Francis Xavier Church in Hyannis.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the youngest son, told his father when he talked with him by telephone this morning, Miss Gargan said.

When asked how the elder Kennedys had taken the news, Miss Gargan replied:

"How would you take it if you were told another son had been shot in the head?"

WEEPS FOR RFK—A Kennedy girl breaks into tears at the Ambassador Hotel early today after learning Sen. Robert F. Kennedy had been shot moments after making a speech to campaign workers.

His Campaign Trademark: Moving Among the Crowds

By SAUL PETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among the overwhelming ironies, one rushes to mind among reporters who have covered Robert Francis Kennedy on his intensive campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

It occurred to virtually all of us as we watched the pattern.

★ ★ ★

Invariably, he would bounce down the steps of his campaign plane and, with little protection, plunge into frenzied screaming crowds seeking to grab and tug at him. And inevitably we thought of Dallas and throught that this Kennedy was moving among strangers with much less protection than his brother did on the dark November day in 1963.

Ironically, it was a thing that he felt, according to his aides, that he had to prove: That he, Robert Kennedy, a United States senator and brother of the assassinated President, could move more freely and with more confidence among crowds than President Johnson.

SENSE OF FATALISM

He seemed to do so with a certain sense of fatalism. Those who observed him closely are certain he did not relish being grabbed and pushed and mauled by strangers. It violated his sense of privacy.

But he was, as Kennedys always seem to be, the all-out candidate; he would do what he thought necessary to win.

★ ★ ★

He talked rarely of possible assassination or the murder of his brother. When questioned, he would say simply he was satisfied with the findings of the Warren Commission, which investigated his brother's death.

★ ★ ★

He mentioned the late President often in his speeches but it invariably was in an impersonal way. He referred to him as "President Kennedy" and almost never as "my brother" or by his first name. Repeatedly, as he campaigned, there were reminders of the man who campaigned in 1960, in the current candidate's stance, cadence, rhythm, Boston accent, right hand pumping, and, almost invariably, after describing deplorable social conditions, this peroration: "I think we can do better. That is why I run for president. That is why I ask your help."

'Man Next to Me Was Shot in Head'

BY RON BENNETT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Kennedy finished speaking, shook a few hands, then walked directly behind the podium, through some curtains that led to a hallway into a kitchen area.

It looked as if he might be going toward an employes' entrance. There were a lot of people following.

★ ★ ★

I heard some things that sounded like firecrackers. People started yelling and fell to the ground. I fell down, too.

The man next to me was shot. I think he was shot in the head.

KENNEDY BLEEDING

I got up and started shooting pictures. Kennedy was on the floor, bleeding from the top of the head. He was whispering to somebody.

His wife came in. She told everybody to get back and give Kennedy some air.

★ ★ ★

After shooting pictures of Kennedy, I ran to the suspect. He had a dark complexion. He had on a sweat shirt and jeans.

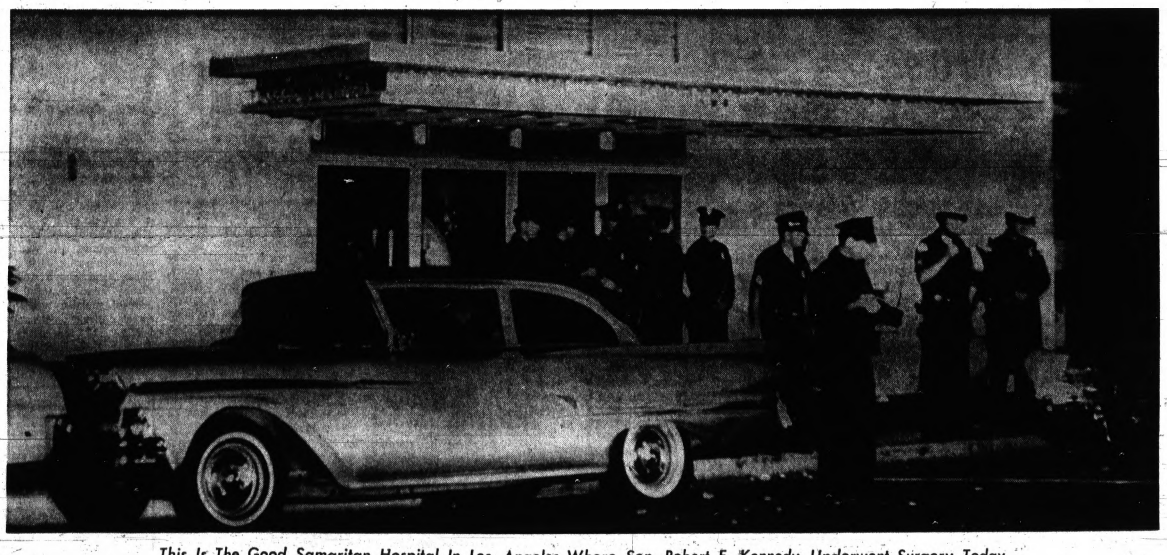
He put up a big fight while Kennedy was lying there. He kept wrenching with the people who were holding him.

'GET HIM TO JAIL'

The guy was yelling. But I don't know what he was saying. He seemed panicky. Some people tried to rough him up. But others shouted, "Get him out. Get him to jail."

★ ★ ★

After they carried the suspect out, the ambulance came and took Kennedy out. Kennedy was lying on his back. A couple of people were holding his head.



This Is The Good Samaritan Hospital In Los Angeles Where Sen. Robert F. Kennedy Underwent Surgery Today

Dreadful Act, Says Hubert

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said today that "our hopes and prayers" are with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and the other "victims of this dreadful act of violence."

The vice president, staying at the U.S. Air Force Academy prior to a convocation speech there today, had retired when he received word that Sen. Kennedy had been shot in Los Angeles.

McCarthy Goes to D.C.

LO SANGELES (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy today called off plans to go to Seattle in furtherance of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He said instead he would go directly back to Washington. McCarthy made the change in plans after Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot during a victory rally celebrating Kennedy's victory over McCarthy in Tuesday's California Democratic primary.

Area Homemaker Wins State Title

We render a warm salute to Mrs. JOHN WARD of Birmingham on her selection as Mrs. Michigan of 1968.

MRS. WARD

The 38-year-old mother of six has amply proved that domestic responsibilities need not preclude active participation in community welfare and civic betterment. Additionally, the attractive housewife has found time to pursue hobbies in a variety of needlecraft and decorative arts.

★ ★ ★

As evidenced by her accomplishments and pattern of living, Mrs. Ward's life "has begun" two years prior to the axiomatic age of 40.

The winner of the State's title now goes to the Mrs. America finals to be held in Minneapolis-St. Paul during mid-August. She will be accompanied by the best wishes of The Pontiac PRESS and the entire area.

Amendment Envisions Stronger Judiciary

Backed by the League of Women Voters of Michigan and the State Junior Chamber of Commerce, a measure known as the Judicial Selection and Tenure Amendment to the state constitution is slated for submission to voters at the general election, Nov. 5.

The amendment, reflecting systems now in effect in 13 states, would prescribe new procedures affecting the selection and tenure of members of the State's court establishment.

★ ★ ★

It aims at the elimination of:

- "Bed-sheet" ballots for judicial candidates.
- "Name candidates," whose principal qualifications are a popular name.
- "Self Starters" with limited ability, whose principal talents lie in the art of vote getting.
- Judges holding office whose behavior warrants removal.

On the positive side, the proposed amendment would foster:

- An independent, qualified, nonpartisan judiciary, without political party commitments.
- Nomination and appointment of qualified candidates after full and adequate investigation.
- Choice by voters based on the individual judge's performance in office.
- A responsible agency to investigate citizenry complaints against judges.
- Judges holding office only during good behavior.

★ ★ ★

In essence, the amendment would provide for the appointment of judges by the governor to fill vacancies on the bench of any Michigan court. He would make his selection from among three qualified nominees submitted by a bipartisan council of seven members.

At the end of three years, the appointee would face an unopposed election which would decide either his continuance in office until retirement at age 70, or removal from the bench.

During the life tenure of an elected judge, however, he could be removed from office for misconduct or inability to perform his duties by action of a bipartisan judicial qualifications commission of seven members.

★ ★ ★

All things considered, The PRESS sees the proposed amendment as a meritorious one and urges its support as a move to remove the judiciary as completely as possible from the political arena and the need to reckon with self-serving interests when periodically running for reelection.

Diabetes Succumbing to Medical Science

A recent symposium at Washington's Georgetown University dealt with the eighth leading cause of death in the United States. This is diabetes. It is estimated that there are around 4 million diabetics in the Country, of whom no less than 1.6 million are unaware of their condition.

Diabetes is a disease characterized by an increased amount of sugar in the blood and usually by sugar in the urine. It is caused by a deficiency of insulin, a hormone normally secreted by the pancreas. The usual symptoms of severe diabetes are increase in thirst, constant hunger, frequent urination, loss of weight, intense itching, easy tiring, and changes in vision.

However, diabetes may be present without any signs at all.

Diabetes once was as deadly as cancer for children and many adults. The introduction of insulin (prepared from the pancreas of a pig or an ox) in 1922 brought the disease under control. Even today, though, more than 32,000 deaths a year are attributed to diabetes.

★ ★ ★

Persons who have any reason to suspect the presence of diabetes should immediately subject themselves to examination, and treatment if indicated. Failure to do so can lead to such complications as heart disease, failing eyesight, hardening of the arteries, kidney disorders, gangrene, cerebral hemorrhage, and diabetic coma.

Has Creeping Violence Infected U.S.?

By DICK SAUNDERS

I remember when I was a teen-ager and we studied politics, including those of the Latin Americas.

SAUNDERS

I remember my curiosity about the violence which seemed to permeate politics in South and Central American nations. I never could quite understand it.

★ ★ ★

I recall thinking how unsophisticated these nations were when it came to government and politics, and how they must look at us as a magnificent example of the peaceful, logical, sophisticated flower of democratic politics in the western world.

I wonder what today's teenager thinks.

Whatever happened to that flower? Somewhere along the way it has been infected with a creeping disease called violence.

Shock and disbelief have become companions in our daily lives. They were back again in the pre-dawn hours today when news of the shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy came from California.

It was the same shock and disbelief that accompanied the news of the assassination of his brother, President John F. Kennedy, four and one-half years ago, and the killing of civil rights leader Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. only nine weeks ago.

★ ★ ★

As a child, I remember my grandmother telling me how she sat and cried the whole night when President McKinley was assassinated at the turn of the century. She described the grief and shock vividly.

I listened attentively, but never really understood until four and a half years ago. Then, I remembered her words and I knew.

I have come to know that feeling too often. How many more times must I feel it?

If I have a plea left in me, it would be for the person who fired those shots in Los Angeles last night.

The murder of John F. Kennedy in Dallas was a double tragedy. After the President was killed, the one thing left for the world to witness was our vaunted system of justice.

★ ★ ★

That great sytem whereby a man is innocent until proven guilty in a court of law, was dealt a severe blow when Lee Harvey Oswald was shot before the eyes of millions of television viewers.

That system is greater than any one man.

★ ★ ★

Let if flourish. Let it function as it was meant to function. Let Robert Kennedy's assailant be tried and judged in the courtroom; not by the mob or one man with another gun.

U.S. Foreign Policy Pluses Seen

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA) — From now until the November elections, foreign policy even more than domestic issues will dominate the American political debate.

President Johnson's critics, especially those opposed to the war in Vietnam, will emphasize and magnify each minor setback suffered by American diplomacy.

★ ★ ★

The President's supporters will claim victory even where there was only a diplomatic stalemate.

Between these partisan views there is a realistic appraisal of the course of U. S. foreign policy in three of the world's strategically crucial areas — Vietnam, the Middle East and Europe — often lost in the din of political oratory.

NO DOUBT

There is no longer any doubt that Communist expansion, still a grave threat to Southeast Asia at the beginning of 1967, has been checked by the massive U. S. military intervention in Vietnam.

This is conceded by Communist diplomats and even by Russia's military strategists who no longer believe in a military victory by North Vietnam and the Vietcong.

★ ★ ★

With Red China paralyzed by internal dissension and strife, Mao Tse-tung is hardly in a position to embark on new and risky military adventures in Southeast Asia. Nor are the Russians likely to be more aggressive than usual as long as they confront their Red Chinese enemies across a frontier of 4,000 miles.

The fact is, of course, that Moscow's pretensions to undisputed leadership of the Communist world have never appeared less securely based than at the beginning of 1968.

REACHING OUT

Established Communist governments in Eastern Europe are reaching out for greater economic and political independence.

Latin American Communists, inspired by Cuba's Fidel Castro, impatiently accuse the Soviet leaders of blindly seeking to impose their own revolutionary experience upon other countries, without due regard for special local circumstances.

★ ★ ★

The six-day war between Israel and the Arab nations in June was a significant victory for American policy.

Moscow is currently trying to bolster Russia's position in the Middle East by shipping more arms to the Arabs, especially to Egypt.

WORKING SECRETLY

But in the United Nations, Washington and London, the Russians are working secretly with the United States to prevent another outbreak of hostilities between Israel and the Arabs.

Despite President de Gaulle's diplomatic monkey wrenches, doubt about NATO and resistance to American leadership are nowhere so excessive that any West European government would dare to renounce the nuclear protection afforded by the United States.

★ ★ ★

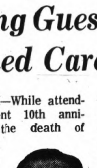
The truth is, of course, that U. S. foreign policy has been neither the success claimed by President Johnson's admirers nor the failure castigated by his critics.

One of the illusions of election campaigns is that diplomacy is a game in which it is impossible for one side—in this case the United States—to win virtually all the time.

Bob Considine Says:

Wrong Guess on Rodgers Ruined Career as Critic

NEW YORK—While attending the recent 10th anniversary of the death of International News Service, I was reminded of the fact that Richard Rodgers ruined my career as that wonderful news service's drama critic.



CONSIDINE

Actually, I had been on probation since the first show I covered for INS. It was a diseased little thing called "I Am a Camera" — something about sex deviation in the pre-war Nazi jet set. But it wasn't my review that alarmed the news desk at dear old INS.

★ ★ ★

It was a good clear review, and it made the wire in time. All it said was, " 'I Am a Camera' opened last night. It Is a Brownie 2A."

Something else put me on probation and set me up for Rodgers to cream, however inadvertently. I thought that inasmuch as "I Am a Camera" was so lousy I might write a little feature about the first-night audience.

FEATURE ON AUDIENCE

Feature of that feature was the appearance in the first-row balcony of Truman Capote and a number of his friends.

All I really wrote about them was, "Returning from intermission, Truman Capote and his crowd went back to their seats in the balcony without making use of the staircase."

★ ★ ★

Well, Abby, that just about did it. Rodgers did the rest. Seems I was given one last chance by INS to cover an opening. It was a little thing of his called "The King and I."

Had something to do with Yul Brynner — before he was a cowboy — and a British schoolmarm named Anna.

BUGGED BY MUSIC

There was a bunch of kids strewn through the script (or were they midget tumblers?) anyway, Anna straightened out the king's crazy map, which had Siam right in the middle of the world. "It's on the side," she explained in the big love scene.

That part was okay. What bugged me, I wrote in the review, was Rodgers' music. What a let-down after "Oklahoma" and "South Pacific."

★ ★ ★

It'll never last, I wrote of "The King and I," with such sappy tunes as "Hello, Young Lovers, Wherever You Are."

I was right. It didn't last more than 10 or 15 years.

I didn't either. INS sent me back to covering free-throws at the Y.

Arty Indians

Would you believe where the Cigar Store Indian has gotten to? One of them was sold at auction the other day in the Parke-Bernet Galleries in Manhattan for $4,100. Lesser ones brought $1,000.

DeGaulle

London Daily Mail

President de Gaulle's intuition has deserted him in the most momentous decision of his extraordinary career.

He is to stay on indefinitely as leader when instinct should have told him to show a readiness to depart.

In restoring order from chaos and self-respect from abasement, President de Gaulle performed prodigies for France.

It would be wrong if he were to be overthrown now by anarchy. For once anarchy was seen to be effective it would know no bounds.

The answer is that the General should stay until order is restored.

★ ★ ★

But he should have acknowledged that, once this was achieved, he would see resignation as the final service to his country.

The worst mischief was done in the past three years when it seemed that a growing megalomania had given President de Gaulle the idea that, through France, he could sway the destinies of the world.

This led to his meddling in the affairs of other nations. His inexcusable incitement to Quebec separatism was a typical example.

★ ★ ★

In his pride and arrogance President de Gaulle took advantage of the pounds devaluation to try to undermine the dollar. The serious position of the franc today is an ironical sequel.

In spite of ten years of Gallism France still has a comparatively backward economy. Commercially, industrially, scientifically, she is far behind Britain and a good deal worse off than Western Germany.

★ ★ ★

She is seen to be not even the natural leader of the European Community.

The mere fact that another referendum, the chosen device for getting his own way, was rejected, should have told him that the sands were running out.

The French people are in revolt against ten years of authoritarian rule. At first the strong hand was a welcome change from a social and political malaise which had spread through the body politic. But the curbs on democracy, the restrictions on freedom, have gone too far.

Suggests Cure for Sickness of Our Nation

Lately I hear the remark that we are living in a sick nation, and I am forced to agree. Any nation that turns its back on God is sick and only by the grace of God can we hope to survive. When the highest law of the Nation barred prayers and reading the Bible in public schools, this was the beginning of the sickness that will corrupt our way of life. Let's put our faith back in God by demanding that prayers and reading of the Bible be returned to our schools and that the school discipline be returned to the teachers. This, with prayers and forgiveness would cure this sickness.

Comments on Difficulties Caused by Divorce

It is a shame for divorced fathers and mothers to face difficulty—both physical and financial—when they have denied their own children the right to live with both parents. These parents have greed when they need God; they have selfishness when they need love. They lose their money and their children lose what money can't buy—love.

Recent Press Editorial Discussed by Reader

Regarding a recent editorial "Have Parents Defaulted Their Child Raising Duties," the press is one of the most responsible influences in a community and should carefully consider with mature thinking what is to be presented to the public. You question the responsibilities of parents to their children. You tend to confuse and make the issue highly controversial by printing statements for and against firm action against disobedience. Your course of action and thinking should be toward mature and orderly thinking.

Question and Answer

Don Frayer and his group for Positive Pontiac Progress opposed the Taubman plan at every turn. Obviously he had some positive action in mind as a substitute. What is it? Why hasn't he come forward with his plan to assist Pontiac?

E. J.

REPLY

Mr. Frayer says, "I knew with Pontiac's potential and with a proper plan private developers and investors would be interested in Pontiac's central business district. This has been proven in that there is a plan backed by a developer right now being offered to the City which will be made public in the very near future. This plan offers comprehensive planning (housing, culture, beauty), fulfilling all the needs of Pontiac, not just the commercial need (which didn't really exist) filled by the Taubman plan. This new plan will accomplish what CCPPP was trying to accomplish."

Ford Slated for Key GOP Confab Post

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan was in line today to be permanent chairman of the Republican National Convention — where this year there will be less shouting and whooping and parading demonstrations for presidential candidates.

The GOP National Committee is meeting in Portland, and its arrangements committee was picking officers for the convention, which opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach.

★ ★ ★

It was learned that Ford's name was advanced by the executive committee, which also suggested Gov. Dan Evans of Washington for keynote speaker and Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts for temporary chairman.

Brooke is the first Negro senator since reconstruction, and there was some feeling that the convention might be getting into a sensitive problem if it picked him for temporary chairman, then bypassed him for permanent chairman.

★ ★ ★

In an attempt to lessen confusion on the convention floor, the arrangement committee voted to limit any candidate's demonstration to 50 outsiders and these to be members of a band. It also decided to limit, on a schedule to be drawn up later, the number of passes available to the national chairman for use by party dignitaries.

Romney Gets Bill on Detroit Tax Increase

LANSING (AP) — A bill permitting Detroit to raise its city income tax from 1 to 2 per cent passed the Legislature Tuesday and was sent to the governor.

The bill gives the Detroit Common Council until Dec. 31, 1970, to make the tax hike effective. If the council approves it, Detroit would have the highest city income tax in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

Other cities are limited by state law to a maximum income tax of 1 per cent.

The Senate also sent to the governor a measure forbidding any adult prisoner convicted of two or more murders, attempted murders, or forcible rapes from being released until examined by at least two licensed psychiatrists.

If it is determined that the prisoner would be a probable public hazard, the prisoner will be turned over to the State Department of Mental Health.

Capital outlay and junior college appropriations bills were passed by the Senate following a House-Senate conference committee. The Senate agreed to a House proposal that $50,000 in planning funds be authorized for the fairgrounds in Detroit.

★ ★ ★

The upper chamber refused to approve another conference committee appropriations measure calling for construction of a Life Sciences Building on the Michigan State University campus. Critics of the measure charged that the funds would be used to expand the university's two-year medical school program into a four-year program.

A resolution to reduce nonresident daily state park fees from $2 to $1 also failed despite the argument that the $2 rate discouraged tourists.

Funds Okayed for Riot Gear

DETROIT (AP) — A $40,000 allocation was approved Tuesday by the Wayne County Board of Supervisors to buy antiriot equipment, including 148 shotguns and rifles and enough Chemical Mace to equip 143 officers. Chemical Mace is a disabling chemical spray.

The funds also will be used to purchase 10 armored vests, a number of helmets, shields, gloves and combat boots for 90 men.

Supervisors ordered the equipment purchased after former Sheriff Peter Buback said it was needed to provide adequate protection for residents of Detroit suburbs in event of civil disturbances. Stricken from the allocation were funds originally suggested to buy a number of AR 15 rifles, a controversial weapon said to fire bullets having a tremendous impact.

Albert Abraham: Family Budget Expert

Another OCCEO Service

Families' Budgets Balanced

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fifth in a series of stories on the people and programs of the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity — the war on poverty.)

By ED BLUNDEN

One of the lesser-known services offered to the poor by the Oakland County Commission on Economic Opportunity (OCCEO) has a remarkable success ratio in dealing with a tricky problem—family budgets.

Albert J. Abraham, OCCEO family finances counselor, is the only full-time employe in the program. He explains how—for a minimum expense to the OCCEO program—hundreds of families have been put back on their feet financially.

All the persons referred to his office in the North Opportunity Center, 7 W. Lawrence, have one thing in common, he said. Their weekly income is not equal to their weekly expenses, i.e. each week they go further and further in debt.

And, according to Abraham, this may or may not have anything to do with the level of income. In fact about 85 per cent of his cases are from families with steady employment. The other 15 per cent are families on some form or relief.

ROOT OF THE PROBLEM

"The problem begins where families base their expenditures on a 48-hour week. When the overtime drops off they're in trouble because they've become used to the higher income level," he said.

Abraham is essentially "on loan" from the community-owned Credit Counseling Center. This firm is supported by a large number of companies and agencies in the Detroit metropolitan area and provides credit counseling for all families who get into financial trouble.

Referrals are made to Abraham's office from OCCEO staff members or other county social agencies. For each case, a detailed form is completed which spells out exactly how much the client earns, owes and needs.

From this data, Abraham is able to determine if the client can be helped by credit counseling. In some cases a loan or grant has to be obtained to get the client's family on its feet. After that, it's a question of close budgeting.

ENVELOPES FAVORED

Abraham favors the "envelope system." A person is encouraged to divide each week's pay into envelopes which are marked food, rent, clothing, entertainment, etc. When bills are due, the envelope is opened. What is strived for is teaching self-discipline in money matters.

This type of behavior is difficult for most persons with long histories of indebtedness, Abraham pointed out. However after a few months, with trials and errors, about 65 per cent of the clients he has worked with have been put on a sound financial footing, he said.

★ ★ ★

His service teaches families how to buy things at lower cost, avoid high interest rates, use federal food stamp programs and, in short, get the most out of their dollar.

Bike-Peddling Japanese Atop Production Cycle

TOKYO (UPI) — There was a time in the United States when a bicycle was called a wheel. A knickers-wearing owner of a wheel could raise its seat high, lower its handlebars and achieve great status in his neighborhood.

Bicycles are different these days, but there are still plenty of them around. Japan alone produced 3.6 million bicycles last year.

★ ★ ★

The bicycle is still surprisingly popular in Japan, a nation that claims to produce more automobiles than any other in the world except the United States.

★ ★ ★

Forty-one per cent of the bicycles made in Japan last year were exported to the United States, which would seem to indicate there are still Americans around who believe in pedal power. And then there is Holland, where there is one bike for every 2.1 Dutchmen.

BUILT FOR TWO?

Which brings us to the question of whatever happened to the bicycle built for two.

"We don't make them anymore," said Hideyoshi Obara of the Japan bicycle promotion institute. "They are prohibited by Japan's road traffic law."

But Obara said that last year Japan produced 30,000 exercise bicycles, the kind that don't go anywhere. He said weight-watching Japanese housewives use them in their living rooms. They sell for about $50.

Bikes are popular in Japan with students and commuters but traffic conditions make them hazardous. Manufacturers are pushing for construction of more cycling roads.

PRODUCTION OVERHAUL

This production setup is being overhauled and more bicycles of Japanese design will be produced and exported in the future.

There are 28 million bicycles in Japan, which has a population of 100 million. No nation has more bikes except the United States, which has 37 million.

★ ★ ★

Japan sells a lot of its bicycles in Thailand, Indonesia, South Vietnam and Australia. The industry also earned $1 million dollars last year on bicycle parts sold throughout the world.

Catholic Brothers Get Choice of Garb

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The Brothers of Christian Instruction, a Roman Catholic Order which operates a Detroit high school, have been authorized to discard their traditional black cassocks and crucifixes. The brothers have been authorized to wear black suits with either clerical collars or white shirts and black ties.

The order operates Detroit Cathedral High School, as well as Walsh College in Canton, Ohio, and high schools in Ohio, Maine and Massachusetts. The order, headquartered at Alfred, Maine, also operates an institute in New York state.

The decision to permit the 100 members of the order in this country to wear suits if they choose was announced Tuesday.

Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt Says:

Heat Treatment Won't Cure Bone Spur

BRANDSTADT

Q — I have arthritis of my spine. X rays show bone spurs pressing on the spinal nerves. Would infrared light help me or is there a better treatment?

A — Bone spurs are found in most persons with arthritis of the spine. They cause no pain unless, as in your case, they press on a nerve.

Heat in the form of infrared light, diathermy or an electric pad may give temporary relief but will not cure the condition.

★ ★ ★

Most surgeons prefer a fusion operation that will relieve the pressure on the nerve and prevent movement of the spine. This gives the surgeon a chance to put your spine in the best position and prevents crippling deformity.

Q — I have a painful bone spur in my heel. Is it caused by a calcium deficiency? Will it get worse? What is the best treatment?

A — The causative factors include arthritis, age (over 50), overweight and poorly fitted shoes.

★ ★ ★

It is not caused by a calcium deficiency but an accumulation of calcium at a point where the heel is subjected to continued trauma.

It is not likely to grow larger unless the injury is repeated day after day.

CAN BE COMFORTABLE

A similar spur in a location where it was not subjected to daily weightbearing pressure could exist for years without you ever knowing you had it.

Most victims can be made comfortable by removing as many of the causative factors as possible and by padding to take the pressure off the tender spot.

★ ★ ★

Only rarely is it necessary to remove the spur surgically. When this is done, the spur may form again if the factors that caused it in the first place have not been remedied.

Q — Is aspergillosis hereditary? One doctor told me that an infection must have existed before the onset of this disease. What did he mean? What is apical tuberculosis?

★ ★ ★

A — Aspergillosis is an infection with Aspergillus, a fungus found chiefly in birds. It is not hereditary.

The Aspergillus spores are inhaled and cause a chronic bronchitis or pneumonia. Although the fungus is widespread it does not gain a foothold in the lungs unless the tissues are weakened by some other disease, such as tuberculosis.

The disease is treated with the antibiotic, amphotoricin B or by surgical removal of the diseased portion of the lung.

Apical tuberculosis is limited to the apex or upper tip of a lung.

Instant-Coffee Price Fight Brewing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hot fight is brewing between the Johnson administration and a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee over how much American housewives should have to pay for Brazil's instant coffee.

★ ★ ★

And Betty Furness, whose job involves making sure the housewives pay fair prices, is being called into the dispute.

The administration seeks committee support for a revised five-year extension of the International Coffee Agreement.

But Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., argues that one of the revisions would force American housewives to pay more for instant coffee.

CUT-RATE COFFEE

Brazil does not levy an export tax on instant coffee. And the State Department says that allowing cut-rate instant coffee into the United States and other markets could undermine the international agreement and eventually mean higher prices for both instant and regular coffee.

Unsatisfied with that answer, Gore wants the opinion of Miss Furness, President Johnson's consumer affairs adviser.

★ ★ ★

She agreed to testify today.

Gore clashed at an initial hearing Tuesday with Anthony Solomon, assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.

When Brazil began shipping instant-coffee powder without the export tax, the United States and other nations of the coffee-making agreement argued Brazil was favoring instant coffee at the expense of green coffee beans on which it did have an export tax.

As a result, the proposed new international agreement contains a provision that no member country will favor one type of coffee export over another through taxes or other governmental action.

★ ★ ★

But Gore told Solomon he saw no reason why the price of instant coffee should be raised through the tax procedure if Brazil wanted to send a lower-cost product to this country.

★ ★ ★

And, the Tennessee senator added, the processing plants developed in Brazil to turn out the less expensive coffee were financed in part by U.S. foreign aid.

He suggested the State Department was depriving U.S. taxpayers of savings from plants they had helped build.

★ ★ ★

Solomon insisted the cheaper coffee represented a breach that could eventually bring down the whole government.

Heavy Rains Bring Farm Work Standstill

LANSING (AP)—Heavy rains brought Michigan field work to a virtual standstill during the past week. Only slightly more than one day during the week was suitable for farmers to get out into the fields.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service said soil moisture supplies now were considered surplus in about three-fourths of the state.

Although corn planting made little progress, it was about 90 per cent complete. Potato planting was three-fourths complete and two days behind last year. Soybean planting was about 45 per cent complete. Dry bean planting had started to lag as most farmers were waiting for warm weather. Only about five per cent of the acreage was planted.

Sugar beet fields were in need of weeding. Some farmers planned aerial spraying of herbicides.

Localized flooding in some sections of the Saginaw Valley was expected to force replanting of some corn and row crops.

★ ★ ★

Some hay was being cut but dryer weather was needed for a full hay crop. Pastures were supplying average amounts of forage.

Spraying and dusting of orchards was being carried on between showers.

HARVEST ON

The asparagus harvest was continuing. The strawberry harvest was getting under way in the southwest. The planting of tomatoes, melons and seasonal vegetables continued.

Date to Be Set for Adoption of Zoning Map, Ordinance

After closing the fourth public hearing on a proposed new zoning map and ordinance for Pontiac, city commissioners last night said they would decide on what date they would adopt the new measures at Monday's informal meeting.

Commissioners probed several complaints about the proposed rezonings and indicated they would attempt to resolve any differences before final approval of the zonings.

★ ★ ★

In other action, the commission:

● Deferred for two weeks considerations of amending the city's nuisance ordinance to allow building inspectors perogatives formerly afforded the city health director, a position now defunct because of transfer of the city health department to the county.

● Gave tentative approval to a request from the chairman of the city's human relations commission to lengthen terms of present commission members to December to "assure continuity through the summer."

BID APPROVED

● Approved a bid of $17,363 from Conco, Inc., the only bidder, to conduct a summer construction program of sealing joints and cracks in the city's major streets.

● Approved construction of curb, gutter and pavement on Emerson from Featherstone to University.

● Decided to secure planning commission advice on requests for new sewers and other utilities in the area north of Walton and west of Giddings, mostly undeveloped.

● Passed a resolution expressing appreciation to the Oakland County 4-H Club for a voluntary project of planting flowers in a triangular plot at Saginaw and Oakland.

DECEMBER DATE

The club undertook the project in an attempt to do something to beautify the city.

Rev. Jack H. C. Clark, human relations commission chairman, had requested that the city commission extend the terms of human relations commission members and to allow all terms in the future to expire in December instead of summer months when they normally expire.

★ ★ ★

Clark said this was to ensure continuity of membership and leadership through the summer. To accomplish this it is necessary to change the city ordinance establishing the commission. The law department was requested to work on the change.

City Affairs

Commission Resolution on Fair Housing Sought

City commissioners last night indicated that they will decide at Monday's informal meeting whether to pass a resolution which would put them on record in favor of, or against, the city's open-housing ordinance.

A resolution was requested by Dr. Harvey Burdick of 190 Ottawa.

★ ★ ★

The commission passed the ordinance in January, but it was rendered ineffective by referendum petitions pending results of a referendum election June 24.

Five of the present commission members were members of the commission which passed the ordinance.

SUPPORTED ORDINANCE

Voting in favor of the ordinance in January were Mayor William H. Taylor Jr. and Commissioners T. Warren Fowler, District 1, and James H. Marshall, District 7.

Against the ordinance in January were present commissioners Wesley J. Wood, District 6, and Robert C. Irwin, District 2.

★ ★ ★

Both commissioners who have since been elected, Jack Douglas, District 4, and Robert F. Jackson, District 5, have indicated that they are in favor of the ordinance.

Negro Police Hike Unlikely

od of hiring Negroes which changes the present standards.

"If our quota is 150 officers, I want the best-qualified whether they are all white or all black," he said.

★ ★ ★

He said all applicants, white or black, must compete to qualify. "If we do anything else, that is reverse discrimination," he said.

The chief said that any move which would lead to blacks being given special preference or which would lower standards would probably destroy the morale of the rest of the police force.

DENIES CHARGES

"This job is becoming so important that one mistake on the part of a policeman can lead to half the town being destroyed."

Hanger said it is frequently charged that the hiring system systematically excludes Negroes. This he denies.

★ ★ ★

His contention is that the reason there are not a greater number of Negroes on the force is that first, they don't apply, and those who do, don't qualify.

He said it is more difficult to be a black police officer than a white one and this discourages Negroes who prefer other types of work.

But, he said, recruiting efforts have been made to attract Negro applicants.

CITES CONTACTS

He said he had contacts with the Pontiac Area Urban League, the NAACP, Pontiac clergymen and the Civil Rights Commission. "We have asked them to try to get Negroes to apply," he said.

Hanger said he also has sent officers to high schools in the area, to career days at junior high schools, and to Oakland Comunity College and Michigan State University attempting to interest students — not particularly Negroes — in police careers.

★ ★ ★

The chief also told of getting help from the Pontiac Motor Division in producing 2,500 posters that were dispersed throughout the city and especially in areas where Negroes would read them.

The posters depict advantages of a police career and show photographs of one white policeman and one black officer.

HELD MEETINGS

Hanger said he also held a series of meetings with Negro representatives to implement a program sponsored by the Michigan Association of Chiefs of police and the CRC, designed primaritly to attract blacks.

The chief said he believes the meetings were only sparsely attended.

★ ★ ★

Hanger and Personnel Director Nicholas Santiwan also spoke of advertising efforts in The Pontiac Press and in Army and Navy personnel magazines, although these would appeal to both black and white.

The city has received applications from persons who read the advertisements in the service organization magazines, Santiwan said, and the Defense Department will release servicemen early from duty (up to 90 days) to take positions with a police department.

STILL PROBLEM

He said there is definitely a problem getting Negro officers.

Hanger said that most recruitment efforts had been made this year. Before that there were few vacancies — one or two at a time — and there was no reason or funds for extended recruiting.

★ ★ ★

He still believes that selling an applicant on a police career can only go so far. "We can't go out and sell it like you do a new car.

"Above all we must have police officers who are dedicated to law enforcement," Hanger said. The chief said that unless an officer has this dedication, he soon becomes disillusioned and leaves police work.

★ ★ ★

"A police officer doesn't hit peak effectiveness until his fifth year," he said. He said the department spends thousands of dollars training its men and does so on the assumption that they will stay with the department.

A new design for a fruit dehydrator tunnel has been developed. Its main feature is the use of light, insulated cement asbestos board construction panels, which decreases construction costs over present models.

Wallace Undaunted by Vote Showing

By REX THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala — Four years ago George Wallace racked up 30 per cent of the vote or better in Democratic primaries for president in Indiana, Wisconsin and Maryland.

The heavy balloting for the then governor of Alabama, known principally as a foe of racial integration, was widely interpreted as a white backlash vote.

But this year the name of Wallace has attracted little attention in the primaries, and he has looked to his critics like a fading candidate.

Not so, says Bill Jones, coordinator of Wallace's campaign.

News Analysis

He says the primary outcome was anticipated and was due to the grand strategy of the campaign.

POINTS TO NOVEMBER

The reason: Wallace decided this time to run as a third-party candidate and to stay out of Democratic primaries. So his efforts had been toward getting on the ballot in November, not on the primaries.

"Primaries are designed to get convention votes," said Jones. "We're not interested in the conventions. We're running in November."

★ ★ ★

Starting Thursday, Wallace will resume the public campaign he dropped for a month because of his wife's death from cancer. He will swing through a three-day speaking tour in Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Maryland.

His goal: to give impetus to petition drives in those states to get his name on the ballot.

ALREALY ON BALLOT

His campaign headquarters says he already has met the ballot requirements in 22 other states and has petition drives going in five more. Jones said he expects to get on the ballot in every state except perhaps Alaska, Idaho and Ohio.

★ ★ ★

"We're running to win," Wallace has said. But few political analysts rate him better than a potential spoiler who in a close race could keep either of the major candidates from getting the required majority of electoral votes, thus throwing the election into the House of Representatives for a decision.

★ ★ ★

A recent Gallup Poll indicated Wallace might carry enough Southern states to do that.

In 1964 Wallace whisked through Wisconsin on a speaking tour and got 30 per cent of the vote in the primary. This year he got 3,616 write-ins, less than 1 per cent of the total—but his name wasn't on the ballot. His aides point out that was more than Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey got.

★ ★ ★

In Indiana four years ago Wallace took 34 per cent of the primary vote. This year he got nothing. He wasn't on the ballot, and write-ins are not permitted under Indiana law.

S. African Regime Marking 20th Year

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The party that forged the racial policy of apartheid is marking its 20th year in power.

The Nationalist party began its hold on the government when it attained a slender majority of five seats in Parliament in 1948. Over the years it has consolidated this into an overwhelming majority of 126-44. The party has achieved such domination that it seems only revolt within its own ranks can threaten it.

* * *

The Johannesburg Sunday Express summed up the Nationalists' grip on South Africa by saying: "They have achieved a strength and seeming permanence that is unmatched by any government outside a Communist state."

This may appear a little strong when compared to Spain or Portugal, but the great strength of the Nationalists lies not in an individual but in the party itself and in grass-roots backing by the Afrikaner or Boer people.

FOUR LEADERS

Since 1948 the party has had four leaders, each of whom has become prime minister. Far from slipping because of the loss of an individual leader, the Nationalists gained strength, increasing their hold on Parliament with each succeeding election.

No opposing group looms as a possible challenger. The United representation has dwindled steadily from 89 seats in preelection 1948 to 39 at present. Of the two parties which believe in multiracialism the Progressive party has only one seat and the Liberal party, which had none, disbanded recently because of impending legislation barring politics across the color bar.

* * *

The only threat to the Nationalists comes from within. A verkrampteverligte extremist-moderate factional clash conceivably could lead to a split.

The verkramptes are right-wing "hawks" who want a tougher line against South Africa's critics and enemies. They oppose Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster's "outward looking" policy of offering friendship and assistance to black Africa. They say the verligtes, staunch right-wingers by ordinary standards, are too liberal.

UNBENDING

The verligtes, who form the main body of the Nationalist party, are trying to establish good relations with the rest of Africa. They are, however, unbending on the question of segregation inside South Africa.

Verkramptes are out to gain control of political and cultural Afrikaner organizations throughout the country and are challenging the verligtes for party posts.

A Cape Provincial Council by-election at Swellendam was the most recent confrontation. Allan Geldenhuys, a member of the verkrampte Rapportryers dispatch riders organization, won Nationalist nomination over party veteran Koos van Eden after a bitter intraparty struggle.

Hundredh of dissatisfied Nationalists crossed over to vote for the United party candidate.

Defense Minister Pieter Botha, leader of the Nationalists in Cape Province, said: "We dare not deny the fact that personal jealousy over candidates and unnecessary mutual quarrels over outside organizations harmed our party's cause."

A few days later Botha denied there was a fractional feud in the party. The Nationalists don't invite outsiders into their discussions but issue periodic denials of a party split.

* * *

In some eyes, Prime Minister Vorster fails to wield the tight, authoritarian control with which his predecessor, Hendrik Verwoerd, kept party dissidents in check. Editor S. E. D. Brown of the South African Observer, mouthpiece of extreme conservatism, complained that "whereas under Dr. Verwoerd the verligtes were kept at arm's length and under control, Mr. Vorster's leadership has enabled them to assert themselves to the point of pushing the conservatives out on to the sidelines."

Apartheid, now referred to as the separate development policy, envisages eventually independent homelands for the major eight or nine African ethnic groups in South Africa. So far only one, the Transkei, is an actual fact and its self-rule is strictly limited.

Nationalists are firmly committed to separate development despite wide criticism that it will never work in practice. Already $600 million has been spent on establishing industries in white areas bordering the proposed homelands. These are intended to insure employment for Africans repatriated to the homelands from white South Africa.

The United party wants continued white domination but doesn't like the fragmentation of the country that apartheid would bring. It and other opponents say the government's plans won't provide sufficient employment in the homelands even for the natural increase in population, let alone millions of repatriated Africans.

* * *

What direction South Africa takes in the future may be influenced by the amount of pressure the verkramptes are able to exert in the Nationalist party. Rebuffs from the outside world, such as the renewed Olympic ban against South Africa despite concessions to enable a racially mixed team to represent the country abroad, support those who are against making any concessions.

Economically, South Africa is strong although moves away from gold as an international currency are causing concern. Gold sales bring in 35 per cent of South Africa's foreign earnings.

POWERFUL ENOUGH

Militarily, South Africa is powerful enough to withstand the oft-threatened invasion from black Africa.

A great Nationalist dream was the creation of a South African republic and an end to recognition of the British sovereignas head of state. This was achieved in 1961.

Another dream is the abolition of nonwhite interests from Parliament. Special white representatives for Africans were abolished in 1959, and Parliament to end the representation of coloreds or mulattoes by whites. Parliament will then be not only whites — only but for — whites — only. The affairs of all nonwhites will be handled by government departments.

Some Nationalists would like to see a one-party state, but, for the present at least, this is wishful thinking. Despite the Nationalists' huge majority in the March 1966 general elections, their total vote fell short of 60 per cent. The remaining 40 per cent indicates there will be an opposition for a while yet.

Not as Many Teacher Strikes Likely in State This Year

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Teacher strikes last fall delayed the opening of school for roughly one-fourth of Michigan's pupils in high school and lower grades. A survey by Michigan newspaper members of the Associated Press indicates that teacher walkouts will occur again this fall, but not in the widespread proportions of 1967.)

By JACQUELINE KORONA
Associated Press Writer

As school closes this month for students in michigan's high schools and lower grades, representatives of their teachers and local school boards are still facing each other across the bargaining table in many districts, hoping to avert another round of teacher walkouts.

Work stoppages by teachers last fall delayed the opening of school for roughly one-fourth of Michigan's 2.08 million schoolchildren and 20,000 of their 84,000 teachers.

★ ★ ★

Several factors indicate that teacher strikes will not reach the widespread proportions of last fall.

They are:

● Early passage by the Legislature of the annual school aid bill, meaning that local school boards already know how much they an expect from the state in education money.

● An earlier start on contract negotiations for teachers in some districts.

● A contract already in effect covering the 11,500 teachers in the state's largest district, Detroit. (After a two-week walkout last fall, Detroit teachers accepted a two-year contract.)

SLIM CHANCE

Chances are slim, however, that all of the state's 42 school districts will escape without a strike.

The Michigan Education Association (MEA), which represents 65,000 teachers in 518 districts, says less than one-fifth of its districts have settled their contracts so far.

★ ★ ★

The Michigan Federation of Teachers (MFT), which bargains for 19,000 teachers in 20 districts including Detroit—says contracts are still open in 18 of those districts.

Better pay and working conditions are the two key aims of the teachers.

SETTLED LATE

"Twenty-five MEA affiliates were not settled on time last year," says an MEA spokesman. "We don't think there will be more this ear, nor do we think it will be much less."

Henry Linne, president of the MFT, a branch of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO), says he believes many teachers may not be willing to sacrifice as much time and money as they did through strikes last year.

★ ★ ★

But, he adds, some teachers remain adamant on their demands. "Their militancy could spread," Linne says, and cause more strikes than the 37 undertaken last all.

Current teacher salaries range from about $5,000 to $7,000 a year for beginners with a bachelor's degree with the average in the state at around $6,148.

MONEY HANG-UP

Money is a hang-up for the teachers and school boards alike.

"We can't meaningfully offer anything to the teachers until we know how much money we're going to have," says Dr. Julius Barbour, executive director of the Michigan Association of School Boards.

★ ★ ★

The state school aid bill was passed and signed by the governor by the end of April this year. In 1967, it was mid-July.

"With school aid voted, it seems logical that more settlements can be reached by mid-June," says Dr. Ira Polley, state superintendent of public instruction.

STATE AID 40 Pct.

But state aid accounts for about 40 per cent of a school board's budget. The rest comes from local taxes and federal aid.

★ ★ ★

The MEA reports that out of 182 requests to increase taxes for schools around the state, 98 have been approved by local voters and 84 have been turned down.

★ ★ ★

Without new revenue, school boards often find they cannot raise teacher's pay and avoid a budget deficit. (Some sources estimate that Detroit will run a deficit of $9 million to $12 million this year, the first deficit in the history of the city's schools.

Some 100 millage elections, through which local school boards get operating money, will be held through June 10.

ECONOMIC ISSUES

And most districts still have to settle economic issues. (About 100 districts have contracts with salary reopener clauses.)

Teachers who strike this fall may find themselves again facing court orders to go to work.

★ ★ ★

In a landmark decision, the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled that members of the Holland Education Association (HEA), who withheld services because they did not have a master contract, were in fact employes despite that lack of contract. Holland teachers were subject to the no-strike provisions of the Hutchinson Act, prohibits public employe strikes, the court said.

The defeat in the Senate of a House-passed bill which would have set up a timetable for fact-finding and mediation in teacher disputes may prolong negotiations.

TARGET DATE

To prevent drawn-out and fruitless talks, the MEA board of directors set a target date of this Thursday for ratification of local contracts or for final preparations for summer negotiations.

The target date — new this year — is "an attempt to communicate with all our people to get to them before school closes," says an MEA spokesman, adding, "Once school is out, negotiations seem to bog down."

★ ★ ★

Talks are progressing in many districts, including Birmingham, where members of the MEA affiliate were ordered back to school under court injunction last year after an eight-day strike.

One possibly aggravating factor, MFT president Linne says, is that some local school boards have adopted a "hard-line approach, thinking they went too far last year" in accepting teacher demands. Board members in one Detroit-area district are trying to raise the limit put on class size last year, he says, and another board "wanted to take away half the contract."

OTHER PROBLEMS

Tom Patterson, MEA professional negotiations assistant, points to other problems. In at least one district, he says, the board wants to meet once every two weeks for two hours. "If they do that they're never going to have a contract before fall," he says.

In preparation for September, the MEA representative assembly — made up of delegates from local chapters — recently approved setting up an emergency fund to aid 10,000-15,000 teacher members who may be involved in "salary interruption situations" this fall.

★ ★ ★

The MFT has no such state fund, but its parent American Federation of Teachers this year established an AFT militancy fund to meet what it terms possible "economic needs" of members.

A few districts like Detroit face no problems this year because teachers already have two or three-year pacts with no salary reopener provisions.

PACE SETTER

Linne calls that agreement a "pace setter," one that could prove an example for other districts.

Damage Put at $12,000 in Pontiac Blaze

A fire early this morning caused an estimated $8,000 worth of damage to the home of Robert Egress of 232 W. Fairmount. An additional $4,000 worth of damage was done to the contents of the home, according to Capt. Charles Metz, Pontiac fire marshal.

The fire was reported about 5 a.m. and took about an hour to extinguish. Metz said Egress and his daughter were in the home when the fire broke out but that neither was injured. He said the fire apparently resulted from smoking in bed by Egress.

Meeting Is Off

The Waterford Township Board of Education will not hold its regularly scheduled meeting tomorrow night. The meeting has been canceled because of the school elections next Monday. The board will hold its next regular session on June 20.

Hepatitis afflicts from some 30,000 to 60,000 Americans each year.

Winner Tells Others of His Own Experience

By ELIZABETH L. POST

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to Mr. Julian Harrison Toulouse of Hemet, Calif.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Post: I like what you said about celebrating the 35th anniversary in a recent column. It brought back memories.

Twenty-three years ago, shortly before our 25th anniversary, my wife suffered a stroke that left her quite paralyzed. Our anniversary was spent with a quiet dinner, with me picking her off the bed and placing her in a chair bolstered with pillows. She was only able to sit up an hour, but that was a celebration in itself.

★ ★ ★

Ten years later, using an invalid walker, she was able to greet a hundred guests in what was to be remembered as a "gang-up" celebration. We went all-out and had a wonderful time of it, even though she spent the next week resting in bed.

As the years have passed, every anniversary is an added reason to celebrate, and we can thank heaven for the fact that our years together did not terminate before the 25th.

Nothing seems to stop her. My consulting work takes me all over Europe and even to South Africa. She and the wheel chair go along. Moreover, we started life together on camping trips and we still go on almost monthly trailer outings.

So I say, celebrate the 35th and the 36th, and the 37th, and every year that makes possible the bringing together of friends, so long as it is at all possible. — Julian H. Toulouse.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mr. Toulouse: Congratulations to you and your courageous wife. Your letter speaks for itself and provides proof that any and every anniversary is a time for celebration.

DIVORCEE

Dear Mrs. Post: I was married for 18 years, during which, when I wrote to my father-in-law I addressed him as "Dad." He always called me by my first name. Recently my husband and I were divorced. My father-in-law blames me for everything and is politely critical of me whenever I phone him.

I have not seen him for five years as he lives in another city. I want to write to him and explain about the difficulties that led to our separation. How should I address my letter to him? — Doubtful

Dear Doubtful: You seem to be doing the best you can to heal the wounds your divorce has created. Since you are making the effort, you should continue to address your father-in-law in the same way you always have. To switch to "Dear Mr. Smith" now, would only show that in your mind your relationship with him as well as that with your husband has changed.

Don't make your letter a vindictive criticism of your ex-husband. It does take two to make a divorce, and if you acknowledge responsibility for the faults that were yours, your chances of winning his understanding will be far greater.

MRS. JULIUS BROOKS

Today's Woman

Combines Optimism, Effort

By YOLANDA BENAVIDES

"What man can dream, man can do," reads the bold lettering to the right of Harriette Brooks' (Mrs. Julius) crowded desk.

By the time our conversation had come to an end, I was convinced my attractive subject, who was recently appointed principal at Central Elementary School, is just the individual to turn that motto into action.

YOLANDA

"I'm firmly dedicated to the proposition that whatever you set out to do, it's going to work," she explained while catching my glance to the right.

★ ★ ★

Realistic goals, however, unlike dreams, don't take place overnight, conceded Mrs. Brooks.

She was referring then to her current job as a Teacher Corps team leader, now in its final phase at Bagley School.

The program, a joint effort with Wayne State University, involves a team of five master's degree candidates in education working with teachers and parents in a concentrated effort to ease the problems of the culturally deprived.

TWO-WAY PROGRAM

Home visitations, group tutoring and adult leadership in extracurricular activities are implemented in an effort to educate the teacher as well as the child.

In judging the two-year project, the first of its kind geared for training in an environment other than the middle class, Mrs. Brooks is quick to concede that it is clearly a step in the right direction.

But she cautions that a program of this type is only one aspect of the total answer for the culturally deprived.

Although she's a native Detroiter, Mrs. Brooks has been teaching at Bagley for 13 years, thanks to the initiative of a sister who read about a job opening in Pontiac and quickly set up Harriette's interview.

When the Teacher Corps program came along two years ago she again found herself at a new milestone in teaching. But this time the setting was right in her own backyard.

"The natural hostilities confronted by an unfamiliar group coming cold into a community were overlooked as I had been a member of the faculty for a good many years and was well acquainted with the students and their parents," she said.

"Happiness mixed with shock," were her immediate reactions when she received new of her appointment as successor to Mrs. Marion Hinckley, retiring principal at Central.

ANXIOUS TO START

With the initial wave of excitement past, she admits a new sense of anticipation and laughingly confesses that "for the first time I'll be glad when summer is over."

Hopefully, the warm months ahead will pass quickly with a few relaxed hours of hiking in the country or bicycling with her family. (Husband Julius is a vehicle analyst with the Ford Motor Co. and daughter, Phlonese, will be a third grader this fall.)

"What a man can dream," on second thoughts, "Never underestimate the power of a woman."

Detroit Tiger catcher Bill Freehan of Southfield and Mrs. Robert K. Vietor, Birmingham, swap places during batting practice. Mrs. Vietor is chairman of the Theta Sigma Phi Book Fair, featuring a sports theme, to be held Friday at the Detroit Press Club. Freehan is one of the many professional sports figures who will participate.

Mrs. Koella Gets Gavel on Tuesday

Mrs. Theodore Koella was installed president of the Women's Association of the Pontiac Symphony Orchestra, Inc. at Tuesday meeting in the Cambrook Lane home of Mrs. G. W. Stark.

Others assuming duties at the installation conducted by Mrs. Paul Gorman, were Mrs. Robert Irwin and Mrs. Stark, vice presidents; Mrs. Curtis Patton and Mrs. Nelson Hunter, secretaries; Mrs. S. K. Sekles, treasurer; Mrs. George Shearer and Mrs. E. C. Russell.

Organized to support the Symphony, the group has voted to donate $1,000 to the musical association for the 1968-'69 season.

The current symphony year will end Sunday when Skitch Henderson will conduct George Gershwin's "An American in Paris." The program will take place at 3 p.m. in Baldwin Pavilion at Oakland University.

Tickets may be obtained from members, at Hudson's and Grinnell's. This is the concert that was rained out May 26.

Theta Sig Fair for Scholarships

Professional sports teams will be saluted at the annual Book Fair of Theta Sigma Phi on Friday.

This professional honor fraternity for women in journalism and communications has designated 1968 as "The Year of the Champions" for their all-day event which raises money for scholarships.

Ernie Harwell, who broadcasts Tiger games on WJR radio will be auctioneer during the noon hour at the Detroit Press Club, while Al Ackerman of WWJ-TV 4 and Red Jones, retired major league umpire, will do the same thing at the dinner hour.

★ ★ ★

Master of ceremonies for the day is Dave Diles of WXYZ-TV 7. Members of the TSP will model authentic uniforms of the various Detroit teams.

All proceeds go to the Lucy Corbett scholarship which helps deserving women students in journalism.

Mrs. Robert K. Vietor of Birmingham is general chairman of the fair which runs from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and is open to the public.

Other members working on arrangements are area residents, Mrs. Edwin Olson, Rochester; Mrs. R. J. Coughlin Jr. and Mrs. John Bryant of Birmingham and Mrs. C. J. Odell, Pontiac.

Don't Wait and Be Sorry

Your Son Needs Doctor's Help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Through a very reliable source, we found out that our son has been peeping into various neighbors' windows. He is an average high school student, brought up in a respectable home. We have no idea why he does this.

Because of the humiliation that would be brought upon the family, we do not wish to consult a doctor. Can you help us?

HIS PARENTS

★ ★ ★

DEAR PARENTS: Yes, I can "help" you by insisting that in consulting a doctor there would be no "humiliation" whatsoever. If your son had a "kink" in his back, you would seek the help of a doctor to straighten him out, wouldn't you? So why, when he has an obvious "kink" in his thinking, do you leave him helpless?

★ ★ ★

Window peeping is a symptom of a deeper emotional problem and should be neither hushed up nor ignored. You owe it to your son (and to society) to get him to a doctor.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "No Name, Ohio," I'll bet if her brother-in-law, the postman, had given her a few of those free samples, you'd never have heard from her.

★ ★ ★

I did a little research on the subject and here are my findings for what they are worth:

First, all free samples and other "junk" mail which is undeliverable due to vacancies, addressee moved, etc., are supposed to be returned to the postoffice to be destroyed.

★ ★ ★

I understand that some postmasters allow their carriers to take the undeliverable stuff home. Others distribute it to various institutions, but can you imagine the work involved deciding which institution got the last box, and who is more "deserving" of magazines and samples of soap, detergents, and toothpaste?

Besides, all the original addresses must be removed from the items before giving them away, which presents another problem. The taxpayers are certainly not going to go for hiring more workers just to cut labels off undeliverable stuff.

★ ★ ★

It is my opinion that products should be advertised in newspapers and magazines and sold in the stores. And this business of sending "free samples" to "occupant" and making delivery boys out of our mailmen should be stopped.

★ ★ ★

The postoffice should be run for profit, or at least break even. I, for one, say, "Mr. Postman, you may have all the 'junk mail' addressed to my house — including the free samples. You've earned them, and I don't want them."

YAKIMA, WASH.

Crystal Chipped?

When the edges of crystal glasses become chipped, you can repair this damage by rubbing the edges with a piece of emery paper or sandpaper. This should be done carefully. It takes a little time, but eventually the rough edges will become smooth.

Polly's Pointers

A Thoughtful Gesture

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Perhaps many of you, like me, have elderly relatives or friends who live alone or in rest homes and would like to hear from them more often. Sometimes it is not easy for these senior citizens to write as they have failing eyesight or difficulty in getting to a store for stamps and paper.

★ ★ ★

To make it easier, we always enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope in any letter we write to them. Some are embarassed if their handwriting has become shaky and they would not want to tell you they did not have a stamp. Make it a habit to include this bit of thoughtfulness.—MRS. L. G. B.

PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have an antique dark blue plate with a picture of a girl on it. On the bottom is printed "Stauble England, Wedgewood B 5" as well as a "T" and under that "A K F Wedgewood" is written upside down. I am told these letters mean something and I do not know much about antiques but am interested in learning more. A few days ago I saw a cookie jar marked "Wedgewood" on the bottom and it was priced at $65.00.—RUBY

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY — My stove is near the door and we all know how long electric coils stay hot so, to avoid burns from this coil when it is turned off but still hot, I keep a small amount of water in my teakettle and always place it on a burner that has just been burned off.

This has proved to be a very good safety factor. I find myself using Polly's Pointers all through the day.— L. R. C.

★ ★ ★

DEAR POLLY — A wide or narrow stretch headband can be worn as a belt over a child's full-skirted dress. If one tie is missing, remove the other and use the hairband like a cummerbund. It slips on easily, looks neat and there are no ties.—BARBARA

DEAR GIRLS — With belts returning to vogue many of us older girls may be resorting to this Pointer for dresses that have no belts — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Please remind Elaine and others that when using a coffee can with a plastic lid as a container to keep a camera dry while boating they should keep the can in a cool shaded place or it might become a "hot box." — LUCIA

Final Meeting Features Music

A musical program by Alcott School's band and orchestra will highlight the final PTA meeting of the year Thursday afternoon at 1 p.m. The performance is under the direction of Jerry E. Odelli and James M. Pescor.

Baby sitting service will be provided.

Flower Talk

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS

We read the words; "Say it with flowers," and possibly think it is a new advertising or promotional expression. We could not be more wrong.

In days when writing was an accomplishment of the very learned, some there were who would transact business, and also send messages to their loved ones, but they could not write. In far away Akasibar, these thoughts were expressed in the language of flowers, which has always been the Esperanto of sentiment — whether of love, sympathy, happiness or sadness.

How unromantic is a letter written with a pen and ink as compared to the delicate expression of emotions in a bouquet of lovely flowers.

Metallics Throw an Electric 'Glow

This fall's night lights will owe nothing to Thomas Edison and his electric illumination.

★ ★ ★

The glow that will be lighting up evening wear will be coming from metallic threads, beads, glittering sequins, jewels or the builtin shine that comes with fabrics like lame and the glittery knits.

★ ★ ★

For the mod, glitter comes from silver nailheads studded against a background of black wool.

'Retired' Teacher Still Not Tired Ten Years Later

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Although Mrs. Willia Brownfield, a teacher at St. Peter's High School, is a great-grandmother, her teen-age students all agree that she's "cool."

★ ★ ★

The veteran teacher conducts five classes a day in shorthand, secretarial training and transcript, and heads the school's job placement program. She has been teaching for nearly 45 years, having retired very temporarily a decade ago.

★ ★

Mrs. Brownfield retired on a Friday after teaching 33 years at Glenville High School. Sister Louise of Our Lady of Lourdes called her on Saturday, and she was back before the blackboard of that school on Monday. She stayed there six years, went to Regina High School for two years and has been in her present school for two years.

Case No. P-583

Stop Smoking Girls

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE F-583: Nita L., aged 22, is a beautiful brunette.

She was in the crowd at Ft. Lauderdale when I recently addressed the dental surgeons and their Dental Assistants of that area.

DR. CRANE

During my speeches, I had mentioned a survey of dental patients which I had painstakingly completed.

★ ★ ★

It showed that over 80 per cent of all the reasons why people rated one dental surgeon for superior to all the others they had consulted, had nothing to do with what is usually taught in our Dental Colleges!

For over 80 per cent of their reasons pertained solely to psychology!

Conversely, the reasons cited for rating a dental surgeon as the poorest of all they had consulted, also ran over 80 per cent in favor of purely psychological factors, rather than that his fillings dropped out.

And among some of these reasons that drove scores of patients away was this recurring complaint:

"I couldn't stand the stale tobacco halitosis that he breathed into my face while he was working on my teeth!"

During the mid-afternoon coffee break, Nita came forward to shake hands.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I have read your monthly essays in our dental journal for several years.

EXAGGERATING

"But I thought you were exaggerating when you mentioned that tobacco halitosis repulses people.

"Then I met the most wonderful man I had ever seen. I fell in love with him. And we dated twice a week for over a month.

"Although he was gallant and a lot of fun, and although he seemed to be crazy about me, he never once tried to kiss me in that whole month!

"So I grew desperate and wondered what was wrong with me. Then I decided to test your idea that cigarettes rebuff a man.

"For he didn't smoke at all, though I smoked a lot.

"So I quit tobacco. And on our very next date, he kissed me, not once but several times!

"Well, I never touched another cigarette.

"And within six weeks, he gave me an engagement ring. Now we have been happily married for almost a year!

"But it frightens me terribly to think how close I came to missing out on the one big romance in my life, just due to a smelly cigarette!"

★ ★ ★

Girls, why don't you grow scientific and test your charms when they aren't camouflaged with stale tobacco stench?

How many of you wives have had your husbands urge and plead and beg you to START smoking, once you have given up this nuisance habit?

★ ★ ★

And you unmarried girls should remember the figures I cited earlier this week where only ONE man in some 50,000 who have written to our Scientific Marriage Foundation, actually asked for a woman who smoked!

We have had hundreds of beautiful college graduates, runners-up in campus beauty contests, who hadn't received a date in a year after registering with the SMF, yet when we checked back, we found they could have been introduced to three or four topnotch men, except that those men vetoed girls who smoked! And these coeds were cigarette fiends!

Plan Wedding

The engagement is announced of Joan P. Scott of Marysville, Calif., to Sgt. Ross A. Frantz III of Beale Air Force Base, Calif.

Sgt. Franz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross A. Frantz Jr. of Rochester. An early summer wedding is planned.

Slate Kappa Kappa Gamma Awards

Forest Lake Country Club will be the setting Friday for the Golden Key Awards luncheon of Kappa Kappa Gamma's North Woodward Alumnae Association.

The bridge tournament raised $1,000 for the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children, as well as $500 for scholarships.

This gift will be presented to Mrs. Dale O. Miller of the Foundation at the luncheon.

★ ★ ★

Tournament prizes will also be awarded.

★ ★ ★

Highlighting the entertainment will be a fashion show presented by Don Thomas Sporthaus.

Among alumnae models will be Mesdames: Peter McKee, S.A.L. Morgan, Kenneth H. Hauck Jr., James P. Vinke, Paul E. Finney, Joseph E. Shaw, Lyman R. Lyon, James E. Goldsmith, Preston R. Weir and Frederick B. Eilber.

Mrs. Kent Smith and Mrs. Lee Curtiss are cochairing the affair.

Domestic Quail Prefers Security to the Wild Life

OLIVENHAIN, Calif. (AP) — A home in a house is worth two in the bush is the apparent philosophy of a domesticated quail who warms her feet with an electric blanket at night, lunches on small sandwiches at the dining room table and watches television.

★ ★ ★

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tarvin adopted Sam, a female despite her name, when she hatched near a potted pine tree on the grounds of her foster parents' plant nursery.

"Sam is free to leave at any time," Tarvin says. "She can hear the wild quail calls but isn't interested."

Sam just doesn't seem to yearn for the wild life at all. When it starts to get dark, she heads for the door and dinner.

Use Truth When Disagreeing With Young

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: The day before my daughter returned to college from spring vacation, she called me a "manipulator." She accused me of "manipulating" her out of a dress she wanted to buy by criticizing it. Then she said I had tried to "manipulate" her into seeing a boy she used to date because he attends an Ivy League college.

I was also called a "snob." She didn't speak to me again before flying back to school nor has she written home since then. . . .

* * *

ANSWER: Do you manipulate her? Do you secretly try to control her decisions? I can assure you that any hidden attempts to control a young person's decisions are mistaken.

It is most reasonable that we should WANT to control them! Our college-age younster hasn't given us enough experience of his competence in decision-making to e t i r e l y trust it.

So why we should be so ashamed of this insufficient trust that we have to hide it from him, I wouldn't know. Thus, I think truth should be openly admitted to the youhg person who knows it himself anyway. I believe it quite proper to honestly say:

* * *

"No, I don't trust your opinions or decisions as much as I trust my own. If I've tried to revive your interest in that nice Jim Jones who goes to Princeton, it's not because I'm a snob but because we know him and like him. Nor shall tell you I like a dress you like if I don't like it. You're absolutely marvelous at claiming your right to disagree with us when you can't share our opinions. So just how come we can't claim our right to disagree with yours?"

NOT PLEASANT

Now this kind of truthful interchange cannot be called "pleasant."

On the other hand, it makes impossible the strains we cause by guerrilla efforts to compel the young person's agreement with us. Goodness, opposition to our views (views he trusts more than he trusts his different ones) is hard encugh on him without sniping at it by camouflaged attack. H o n e s t disagreement with him he can take. But the hidden kind?

Why Grow Old?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. My concern is freckles. Some of my friends who never used a bleaching cream have no freckles, while I use these creams and have freckles. A friend told me that if you use bleaching creams you w i l l freckle more. Is this true?

A. Individual complexions vary greatly. Some women can stay in the sun for hours without a single freckle, while others freckle after a moderate exposure to sunlight. To avoid freckles, or as many as possible, use a screening cream or lotion before going out into the bright sunlight.

A bleaching cream is not designed to avoid freckles but to dim them, once you've got them.

* * *

Q. I have a mustache, and I know that other girls and women have this problem. I shaved it once and it grew back, and I thought that since I am older, if I shaved it, it wouldn't come back again, but it did. I do not know what to do so I wrote this letter to you. I need help. Please give it to me.

A. I will, gladly. Do not shave the hair on the upper lips. This is usually fine hair. Use one of the depilatories which a r e planned especially for your problem. These melt the hair away. However, be sure that you buy one for facial hair, not for superfluous hair generally. Follow the directions carefully. This hair can be removed permanently by an electrolysist.

* * *

Q. I have not smoked now for several months, but I have gained weight, and I cannot afford to do that. I was already eight pounds overweight. I do not want to smoke again What can I do?

A. Smoking is partly a mechanical habit. Of course this is not the whole story but a part of it. I think one of the reasons people gain weight when they stop smoking is that they reach for a piece of candy or some other nibble instead of a cigarette.

So, keep some low calorie nibbles around to reach for, like carrot or celery sticks with a little onion salt. Some folks find chewing gum helpful. Keep your hands busy! What about knitting?

* * *

Many persons who have stopped smoking for some time break, when under emotional stress. Go for a brisk walk. This will relax tension. Probably the most potent help is to have a spouse who cannot bear to see you smoke.

To make an inexpensive, easy-to-launder bedspread for a child's room, sew together a number of guest-size t e r r y towels. Decorate with rickrack where they join.

Money Best Handled by 'Dominant Adult'

NEW YORK, May 22 — A family with the kind of "money sense" that avoids financial difficulties even on a modest income, tends to be undemocratic where the budget is concerned, a nationwide servey revealed today.

★ ★ ★

The interviews covered families earning under $8,000 a year selected in cooperation with the Family Service Association of America and its member agenices, and the report was published today in the current issue of McCall's.

★ ★ ★

The findings "seem to confirm . . . a family's money is not best handled on the basis of democratic decision. One parent has to take charge. If the family is lucky, it is the parent who has the keener money sense," McCall's author Murray Bloom reported. "And in almost every case, this was the dominant adult. The one who had the money sense got it, in turn, from his or her parent. Most often, it was the wife who got it from her mother. The line of descent was so clear that it almost seemed like a genetic factor."

NO BUDGET

They all had one thing in common — none used a formal budget, nor were they eccentric in their spending or their thrift. They were living within their means and putting money aside for the future.

On the other hand, the article pointed out, studies of financially-troubled families showed "the lack of any dominance by husband or wife was a key factor."

"This newly discovered factor represents a major break with much of the past thinking in family money management and, in particular, with the widely touted concept of family democracy in making choices," the article continued.

★ ★ ★

The magazine asked the Wage Earner Plan, a Minneapolis group created by Congress to aid financially hard-pressed families, how husbands and wives could tell which, if either, had the money sense. The Plan's attorney, Raeder Larson, suggested "Just ask yourself these questions:

CLUES

1. Have you totaled up your installment payments in the past month?
2. Is your checking account balanced to date?
3. Have you had no NSF (not sufficent funds) checks bounce in the past two years?
4. Can you tell within $10 what your total monthly home expenses are?
5. Do you know what your yearly take-home pay is, within $10.
6. Do you know within $10 what you owe totally at the moment, excluding the remainder of your home mortgage?

★ ★ ★

"If you can honestly say yes to these six questions, you've got a money sense. Then, if you are also the dominant one in the family, well, you are going to make out — if you earn six, eight or twenty thousand dollars a year," Mr. Larson told McCall's.

Extension of Human Rights Eyed

How to get involved in meaningful personal action to improve community attitudes will be the subject of the 15th Annual Presidents' Day sponsored by the Women's Committee of United Community Services (UCS) on June 14, at Ford Auditorium.

★ ★ ★

With the theme "What I can Do," the UCS program has been planned especially for the participation of more than 100 metropolitan-area leaders of women's organizations as well as other concerned individuals.

★ ★ ★

In explaining the objectives of this year's Presidents' Day, Mrs. John B. Greene, President of the UCS Women's Committee, said: "Since human dignity has, throughout history, been a right worth fighting for and dying for, we have focused this program on the responsibility of each of us to assist in some way in the effort to extend this right to all Americans."

★ ★ ★

The featured speaker will be Dr. Milton Covensky of Wayne State University with Bob Allison of WWJ's "Ask Your Neighbor" serving as master of ceremonies.

Allison will also interview a panel of people in action who will describe practical ways of working for community understanding.

INVITATIONS

Invitations to the "dessert program," scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m., have been extended to officers of 700 women's organizations, including PTA groups, block clubs, church groups, garden clubs, college and sorority groups as well as business and professional organizations.

★ ★ ★

Program plans are headed by Mrs. Bernard Segner as general chairman; Mrs. James Gibbs, program chairman; Hazel Braxton, secretary; and Mrs. Boyd E. Horne, advisory officer.

Prolific Bovine Just Won't Quit

SENECA, S.C. (AP) — A Jersey cow belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. Harris is making bovine history by continuing to produce calves at the age of 35. She recently gave birth to her 33rd the second one in 11 months.

★ ★ ★

Cows generally don't live more than 20 years. For one to be having calves at this age is comparable to a woman over 100 giving birth, local veterinarians report.

Condensed Soup and Beef Make a Tasty Sauce

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Potlucks the size of the one held by Friends of Fair Housing this week aren't common. But a different dish for any potluck is always welcome. Mrs. Leslie A. Raymond of Lake Orion has a suggestion for a quick casserole.

★ ★ ★

As well as being an inventive cook, Mrs. Raymond enjoys designing dresses for little girls, sewing and crocheting.

QUICK CHOP SUEY
By Mrs. Leslie A. Raymond

2 cups cooked rice
1 pound ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
dash of pepper and garlic salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 small can mushroom stems and pieces (opt.)
1 can condensed vegetable-beef soup
½ soup can water
1 teaspoon soy sauce

Form meat into tiny balls. Lightly brown in skillet. Push to one side. Add onion and cook, stirring occasionally until it is transparent.

Add seasonings, mushrooms, soup and water. Simmer gently while you cook the rice in boiling water. Add soy sauce to meat sauce just before serving over the hot rice.

Makes 4 servings.

Their parents are Mrs. Bertram L. Olliffe of Orion Road, Independence Township and the late Mr. Olliffe and the Dickran Palulians of Argyle Street.

★ ★ ★

The bride's ensemble was a floor length gown of white crepe highlighted with French lace. Her embroidered floral headpiece held a matching lace veil and she carried a cascade of pink gladiolais.

★ ★ ★

The Richard Palulians stood as honor attendants with usher Phillip Karnoogian.

Decorating Tips

1. Simplicity is usually better. It's like the old saying, "First put on enough jewelry to look right . . . then take off half of it."

2. Begin with something you really love — a piece or group of furniture, a rug or carpet, drapes, even pictures. Build from there.

3. Mix and Match. Throw out the rigid rules — that's the only rule left. Blend periods and styles to match your personality, your family's style of living.

4. But . . . do try for unity. Best way to start . . . buy a group or suite your family likes. Begin with bedrooms or dining room. Living room, family room, den are easier to mix 'n' match.

5. Plan, plan, plan! Sure, you like to buy on impulse, or you just inherited a lovely piece. Take your time and plan around that.

Use graph paper with movable cutouts, or borrow a doll house. This will keep you from jamming too much in wrong places . . . creating traffic problems . . . buying a piece too large or too small.

Keep that open, gracious feel in a living room by planning extra seating with folding chairs, ottomans, window seats, raised hearths, etc.

6. Color? Yes . . . and if you can tell when colors "clash" then you've covered the most vital point. Painting walls and woodwork in a single, light "cool" color (preferable white or off-white) actually does make small rooms seem larger.

Go the other way with color ceiling, wood paneling, chair height panels and rails. Hold down the number of colors and patterns in one room.

Otherwise let yourself go! Get some water colors and have fun.

7. It's a family affair! You probably would anyway, but talk things over with all concerned, especially that man around the house.

8. Take time. Make the best choices. Choosing one or two pieces, or a room at a time spreads the fun out, keeps the "fresh look" going . . . for years.

Avondale Millage Vote 'Holds Fate of Schools'

The future of Avondale schools is at stake in a vote for 7.7 mills of additional operating revenue Monday, according to Sam R. Sheehy, president of the citizens' school study committee.

The 7.7 mills reflects a 5-mill reduction from the district's request last February which voters turned down by a better than 5-to-1 margin. It represents $7.70 per $1,000 of equalized valuation or about $77 a year extra on property with a market value of $20,000.

★ ★ ★

The board of education has stressed its intention of operating on a balanced budget next year regardless of what voters dictate in the millage election.

But both the board and the citizens' committee note that it would be impossible to maintain quality education on the money available without the increase.

SOME DELETIONS

According to Sheehy, 7.7 mills will allow the district to operate full-day programs next year, retain full accreditation and open the new R. Grant Graham Elementary School in the fall—services which would be impossible with a millage failure.

He continued, "An affirmative vote will allow the district to offer a quality curriculum, but some deletions and cuts from present programs must be made."

★ ★ ★

The recommended cuts are:

- A reassignment of one assistant superintendent as principal at the R. Grant Graham Elementary School.
- Reduction in auxiliary services including art, music, physical education, library and counseling.

★ ★ ★

- Reduction in capital expenditures. (All buildings have recently had considerable renovation and repair.)
- Some clerical and teacher reassignment.

Sheehy said that passage of the millage would allow the district to continue to bus its students along main roads.

The high school will revert back to its 10-12 grade grouping and the junior high will serve grades 7-9. The senior high for the past year has been on an extended-day basis serving grades 9 to 12 in two sessions.

★ ★ ★

To arrive at the committee's recommendations Sheehy said the 25 people involved had examined the operating practices of the district and attempted to determine the criminal needs of the district.

The attitudes of local people towards taxation and education had been determined, he said, before the committee recommended seeking the 7.7 additional mills.

TAXPAYER RESPONSIBILITY

Reported Sheehy, "Certainly a revision in the method of school finance is long overdue. However in the meantime taxpayers must accept their responsibilities. Education does not come cheaply.

"Until tax reform does come, we must pay the price locally of educating the children of our community."

Wixom Dem Seeks County Board Post

Ray Lahti of 2240 Nalone, Wixom, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Oakland County Board of Supervisors in District 27. The primary is Aug. 6.

He served on the board under the former rules for 10 years as supervisor from Wixom. He is a member of the Wixom City Council.

★ ★ ★

On the reapportioned board of supervisors, Lahti hopes to serve the district that includes Walled Lake, Wolverine Lake, Wixom, South Lyon, Lyon Township, Novi, part of Northville and a part of Commerce Township east of South Commerce Road.

Lahti is an economics and political science teacher at Oak Park High School. He holds a master's degree in public administration from the University of Michigan and is a winner of a John Hay Fellowship.

CIVIC SERVICE

He has served numerous civic and social agencies, and he and his wife, Wilhelmina, have a son and daughter.

Lahti said, "What I offer the people of my district is integrity and quality in government.

RAY LAHTI

He cites his long experience with county government plus his schooling as his best attributes.

"I will strive to continue the supervisors' past practice of working for the best for the county without regard to political parties," Lahti said.

Utica Teachers to Vote Today on 2-Year Pact

UTICA — After four months of intensive negotiations, teachers in this school district will vote today on ratification of their new two-year master contract.

Spokesmen for the Utica Education Association (UEA), President Fred Kessler and President-elect Dick Dieters, have expressed confidence that the teachers will accept the tentative pact, reached May 14.

★ ★ ★

The contract calls for a starting salary of $7,000 during the first year and of $7,500 during the second. According to school officials, it is the highest schedule negotiated so far in Macomb County.

Other provisions of the contract include a longer spring vacation, more teacher involvement in curriculum decisions, and improved longevity pay, with 15 per cent increments after 15, 20 and 25 years of teaching in the district.

'AGENCY SHOP'

The contract also provides for an "agency shop," with all teachers paying dues to the UEA.

Voting on ratification will take place by secret ballot in each school, with ballot boxes being opened by the UEA executive board.

★ ★ ★

Jim King, chief negotiator for the board of education, said he expected the board to ratify the contract at its regular meeting Monday.

King pointed out that the salary provisions in the contract are helpful in recruiting a high-caliber teaching staff. The two-year pact, he added, allows greater accuracy in financial planning.

Almont Approves Home-Rule Charter

ALMONT — This village's home-rule charter has won approval at the polls.

Voters approved the charter yesterday, 155-23, with three votes spoiled, making a total of 181 cast.

★ ★ ★

Under the charter, Village Manager Eugene King said, officials serving terms longer than one year (council members and president) will continue in office until 1970.

★ ★ ★

Other officials, such as assessor and clerk, will be appointed by council in July to serve through 1970, when elections, to be held in even numbered years, will begin on a regular basis.

High School Graduation Is Near for Mother of Six

By JEAN SAILE

AVON TOWNSHIP — Betty Jean Damon may be 10 years older than most of the Rochester High School graduates June 12, but she's "thinking young."

She and her young brother, Charles T. Caldwell II, 18, will be receiving diplomas that night.

★ ★ ★

Married and the mother of six small children, Mrs. Damon has for the last year attended morning classes at the high school to make up credits necessary for graduation.

She's enrolled at Oakland University for the fall term with her sights set on a degree in elementary education with a major in language arts.

HUSBAND PLEASED

What does her husband, William, think about all this?

"He's quite pleased. He knew if I once started back I'd go all the way through," said the flashing brown-eyed woman.

★ ★ ★

"He may start back, too," revealed Mrs. Damon. "He had to quit school after the 10th grade to go to work.

"It's something that he'll have to decide for himself though," she said. "It's hard enough going back in the first place, but it's easier if it's your own decision."

STUBBORN STREAK

Dropped out because of what she admits was a "streak of stubbornness," the vivacious mother advises youngsters to stay in school.

"When you drop out and you have to watch all your friends graduate, there'll be many times when you feel like crying."

★ ★ ★

Her children like school, she reports, and some of them demonstrate an interest in one of their mother's courses by speaking some French phrases.

How does she manage?

She attributes much of her success to a cooperative family.

SISTER BABY SITS

While she's going to school, the family has moved in with her mother, Mrs. George Miller on Gerald Street. A sister baby sits in the morning.

When Mrs. Damon returns in the afternoon she does housework, sews and practices the piano. She's the church pianist at Dequindre United Missionary Church.

★ ★ ★

Active in church, Mrs. Damon credits the Lord for enabling her to return to school.

She says she's found the other students in school cooperative — "the nicest group of teen-agers, polite and friendly."

By Walled Lake Schools

Boundary Ruling Appeal Eyed

WALLED LAKE — The board of education here may take the controversy about its eastern boundary into court.

The action, if taken, would be an appeal in either Oakland or Ingham county circuit court of decisions by Oakland Schools and the State Board of Education.

★ ★ ★

The Walled Lake board gave Attorney Gene Schnelz authority this week to complete research on the issue and see if further legal action is possible.

The attorney said that research should be completed in one week.

The local board is questioning the right of Oakland schools and the state board to change district boundaries decided by a pubilc vote, said Walled Lake Schools Supt. George Garver.

In an October 1966 election, the land in question went into the Walled Lake School District.

★ ★ ★

The election was part of the dissolution of the Dublin School District.

The state board ruled in mid-March that land south of Elizabeth Lake and west of Williams Lake roads should be returned to the Waterford Township School District.

Land put in Walled Lake District is to the west and south of the parcels given Waterford.

BETHEL QUEEN — Diane Barclay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Barclay of 722 Ranveen, White Lake Township, will be installed as honored queen of Bethel No. 23 next Wednesday. The ceremony is at 7:30 p.m. at the Commerce Masonic Temple, 4835 Broadway.

Principal Quits Post

Lowell Ruggles, principal of Avondale High School for the last two years, has submitted his resignation to the Avondale Board of Education. He reported he is accepting a new position but declined to state where.

Ruggles' resignation has been accepted.

Cost of Oxford School Bid to Average $1.35 Weekly

OXFORD — The average taxpayer here will pay an additional $1.35 per week for schools if the district's millage proposals are approved in Monday's school election.

The requests include:

- Renewal of 9 mills for operating purposes for three years.
- An additional 6 mills for operating purposes for three years.

★ ★ ★

Oxford Schools Supt. Roger Oberg noted that the average annual increase of $70 in taxes includes both the 6-mill increase on Monday's ballot and also the $2.5-million bond issue passed by voters last fall.

The bonds are being used to finance construction of a junior high school and additions to three elementary schools. The millage increase, if passed, will be used to meet rising educational costs and to hire seven additional teachers.

EXPECTED ENROLLMENT

Oberg said that the district's enrollment is expected to increase by at least 125 students next year, a figure which will increase expenses about $70,000.

Also, he pointed out, construction delays in Oxford have necessitated the continued expense of renting church classrooms and six to eight portable units.

★ ★ ★

Furthermore the Oxford district was forced to use $100,000 of its reserve funds to meet its contractural obligations of the 1967-68 school year, Oberg reported.

He stressed, "anything less than approval of both the increase and the renewal of the district's present 9 mills would result in slashed budgets in a number of areas."

10-MILL INCREASE

The 6-mill increase plus the amount already approved for the building expansion program will result in a 10-mill increase which would amount to $10 per $1,000 assesed valuation.

Oxford residents presently pay 19.51 operating mills and 3.3 bonding mills, making them the second lowest school bonding district in the county, according to school officials.

Voters at the June 10 election will also elect two trustees to the local Board of Education. Five candidates have petitioned for the two 4-year terms.

Lapeer County Files Suit

Court Gets Redistricting Issue

The Lapeer County Board of Supervisors has gone to court in its effort to block the "one man, one vote" redistricting plan drawn up by the county's reapportionment commission.

Suit was filed yesterday in Lapeer County Circuit Court, asking Judge James P. Churchill for an injunction barring the election of supervisors under the plan this fall.

★ ★ ★

The injunction request was based on the allegation that the reapportionment commission had acted prematurely, according to County Clerk Lyle Stewart.

The reapportionment law, upheld by a recent State Supreme Court ruling, requires boards of supervisors to be elected from districts which are nearly equal in population.

The plan for Lapeer County was drawn up and filed April 22 by the commission, which consisted of the county clerk, county treasurer, prosecuting attorney, and chairmen of both political parties.

★ ★ ★

As presently structured, it would divide the county into seven districts, based on the 1960 census.

★ ★ ★

Those districts are District 1, Deerfield, Rich and Marathon townships; District 2, Burlington, Burnside, Goodland and North Branch townships; District 3, Arcadia, Mayfield and Lapeer townships; District 4, City of Lapeer; District 5, Elba, Hadley and Oregon townships; District 6, Attica and Imlay townships; and District 7, Almont, Dryden and Metamora townships.

The present 22-man board would thus be replaced by a seven-man body.

The board decided two weeks ago to appeal the apportionment plan to the State Court of Appeals.

★ ★ ★

Adopting a motion by Oregon Township Supervisor Clyde Ross by a 20-2 vote, the board directed its legislative committee to map a new apportionment plan to accompany the appeal.

★ ★ ★

However, Stewart said yesterday that no plan had as yet been filed.

The board's appeal, if successful, could delay the election of a new board, since the deadline for candidate filing is June 8. Prior to the injunction request, Stewart had said that the election would be held just the same.

Ford Museum Recalls Magic of Attics

By JIM CROSSLEY

DEARBORN (NEA) — Henry Ford had every child's idea of an enchanting attic.

Fortunately for America, those who love to prowl can still get into it to snoop and muse to their heart's content.

★ ★ ★

Ford said he was "collecting the history of our people as written into things their hands made" when he established the Ford Museum. Maybe it is presumptuous to call it an attic. But no — on recalling the magic days that children spend with heaps of splendid treasures stored under the ancient eaves.

The museum and Greenfield Village which lies alongside it are a pair of the great wonders of our country. The simple magnificence of the great wonders of our country. The simple magnificence of the museum facade, a replica of Independence Hall, sets the theme.

HISTORICAL STRUCTURES

In the village, such structures as the coal shed in which Ford built his first auto, the Wright brothers' cycle shop where the airplane was born, Thomas Edison's ancient Menlo Park lab from which the electric light emerged and the Illinois courtroom where the young Abraham Lincoln practiced law bring it to a swelling crescendo.

The catalogue of the thousands of fascinating buildings, machines, artifacts, homely familiary objects from the past and just plain, old interesting stuff is too long to detail. It must be seen — and, mind you, one day is not long enough to see it.

A little side note: There's a case of jewellike small enameled boxes and containers — everyday objects for a short time — that can push the acquisitive switch in you.

Or do you think that watchmakers' machines could look like exquisite little masterpieces of sculpture?

BROWSING TOUR

Each corner has its own surprise.

There are special reasons to take a browsing tour to Dearborn this summer.

June brings a rug-hooking bee, a festival for those whose hobby is muzzle-loading guns and a folk art exhibit.

★ ★ ★

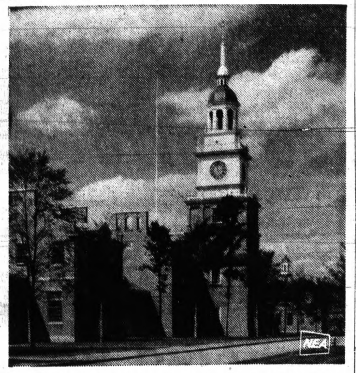
A national classic car rally is set for July, and an American Drama Festival with historic plays dusted off to grace the boards once more.

Late summer promises more fun for auto hobbyists. The Model A Owners organization will convene there in August and an "Old Car Festival" is scheduled for September.

ANTIQUES FORUM

Not forgotten are the antique-stalkers. Their time comes in October during the five-day Midwest Antiques Forum with authorities lecturing, seminars to participate in and a chance to bask in the polished gleam of a collection of crown jewels in the realm of antiques. It is a fast-motion education in the whole subject.

For specific dates, readers interested can write Department TR, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Mich. 48124.



ENCHANTING ATTIC—The stately exterior of Ford Museum is misleading. The inside is packed with excitement for the curious.

Trial Slated in Rape Case

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Preston Parker, 30, former employe at the Kent County Juvenile Detention Center in Grand Rapids, was bound over to Kent Circuit Court Tuesday for trial following his Police Court arraignment on a charge of statutory rape.

The alleged offense involved a 15-year-old girl, police said.

Parker was one of four employes of the center relieved of their jobs after an investigation into alleged wrongdoings at the center led to their arrests. The others are Eugene Malone, 26, charged with statutory rape, Charles Nicholas, 35, accused of carnal knowledge of a ward of the court, and Peter Bol, 33, charged with unlawful custody of a minor girl.

Nixon to Visit Michigan Friday for Delegate Drive

DETROIT (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon will visit Michigan Friday in an attempt to woo Michigan's 48 Republican National Convention delegates to his side.

Nixon's schedule for the day-long visit includes a speech at a private fund-raising luncheon in Detroit, a fund-raising dinner in Lansing and a three-hour question-and-answer session with national convention delegates.

★ ★ ★

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Nixon's only announced competitor for the GOP presidential nomination, went through a similar session in Detroit May 22.

After hearing from Rockefeller, five of 37 delegates contacted said they would support the New York governor when released by Gov. George Romney, and two others said they were leaning toward Rockefeller. Only two said they supported Nixon, and three said they were leaning toward him.

NOT FOR SURE

However; six dtlegates said they would not necessarily vote for Romney as a favorite son on the first ballot. While they stated no preference, all six said they were undecided between Nixon and California Gov. Ronald Reagan, an unannounced candidate.

Earl Gets Into Pearl's Act Checking Hospital Report

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Hearing that Pearl Bailey is living in Mt. Sinai Hospital while starring so suiressfully in "Hello, Dolly!", I rushed backstage at the St. James to check it—and suddenly found myself on stage being Pearlie Mae's straight man.

She had her minions lift me up beside her during her hilarious, impromptu after-curtain speech . . . and admitted that she goes to the hospital nightly to get some sleep and take some medicine to relieve her exhaustion.

There was a sudden click-click-click sound from offstage.

"You hear that?" Pearl pointed a finger. "I'm still tickin'!"

WILSON

In her dressing room later, Pearl said she finds it easier to sleep soundly in the hospital, and is also taking an anti-coagulant.

"My doctors say I have to have a vacation," Pearl said, "but we have such a happy, contented company, I hate to leave even for a vacation. I may have to force myself."

(That's how I feel, too — I may have to force myself.)

★ ★

Trini Lopez, who's starring at the Waldorf, went to see Duke Ellington at the Rainbow Grill and was amazed to see the Duke order a Coke with sugar added.

"I do it for energy," Duke said.

"I usually use honey for energy," said Trini—and to prove it he had a honey with him.

N-Sub Officers Tell of Hunt for Scorpion

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — For the crew of the nuclear attack submarine Lapon, the faint radio signal purporting to be from the missing submarine Scorpion "was like an electric current passing through the ship."

Within seconds of the call last Wednesday the hopeful news had spread throughout the Lapon, whose crew had many friends aboard the Scorpion.

★ ★ ★

Then the radio message proved spurious, and the Lapon returned empty-handed from its storm-battered search — "a tremendously sad event," in the words of its skipper, Cmdr. Chester M. Mack.

Yesterday, Cmdr. Mack docked the Lapon here after being replaced by the submarine Sturgeon in the hunt for the Scorpion over 300,000 square miles of the Atlantic.

TOUGH-LUCK EFFORT

Except for the brief moment when it appeared the radio signal might be authentic, the Lapon's search "was a very uneventful, hard, long, tough-luck effort that proved to be completely unsuccessful," Mack said.

Mack, of Glen Lyon, Pa., was a close friend of the Scorpion's skipper, Cmdr. Francis A. Slattery, and he said many others of his crew buddied with the Scorpion's 99 men.

★ ★ ★

Mack and his navigation and operations officer, Lt. Cmdr. John M. Mackinnon, described the event in a wardroom interview.

There actually were two almost identical voice messages spaced more than five minutes apart, they reported.

CODE NAME

The voice said: "Any station this net — this is the Brandywine." "Brandywine" was the then-classified code name of the Scorpion and net was short for radio network.

The voice messages were preceded by weak signals and were followed some time later by weak keyboard signals, the officers said. The Lapon was able to get a bearing on the keyboard signals but had not had time to get a bearing on the voice messages.

★ ★ ★

Mack said the messages came on a radio frequency the Scorpion might have used and they originated at sea, not on the mainland. There was no chance to get a positvie fix on the point of origin.

Although the Navy and the Federal Communications Commission are investigating possible sources of the broadcast, the Navy now considers it most unlikely that it actually came from the Scorpion.

ELECTRIC CURRENT

But at the time the code word Brandywine was first heard in the Lapon radio room, Mack said, "it was like an electric current passing through the ship.

"There is no question that someone used the call 'Brandywine' at an extremely unappropriate time," Mack said with evident bitterness. "And that's an understatement."

Mosquitoes are numerous in lands near the Arctic Circle.

Navahos Suffer at Hands of White Traders

By TOM TIEDE

TOHATCHI, Ariz. (NEA) — There are over 100 white traders federally licensed to sell groceries and goods inside the Navaho Indian Reservation.

A few of them are sadistic.

★ ★ ★

Some of them are dishonest.

Many of them are thoroughly despised.

They are, in general, a ruthless, money-grabbing lot who have for years overcharged and underserviced their patch-pocketed clientele. The list of their misdeeds is a tragic affront to fundamental decency.

EXAMPLES

Some examples:

An Indian boy who ran up a $4 bill at one trading post here was confronted for immediate payment. When he said he didn't have the money he was beaten, knocked down, kicked and left bleeding in the dirt.

A man who lost his job asked a trader if he could stall a payment on his truck until he found other employment.

★ ★ ★

The trader hit him with a chain, resold the truck and sued the Navaho for the former balance due.

A fast-talking book salesman sold a set of used encyclopedias to an illiterate Navaho woman whose oldest child was six. The books were appraised for $50. The woman signed a contract for $150.

WORSE CASES

There are worse cases, some unprintable.

It has been going on for a century at this reservation and it is going on right now. Families who make $100 a month are buying eggs for 95 cents a dozen, gas for 50 cents a gallon, and hamburger for 79 cents a pound.

★ ★ ★

Indians object, naturally, but protests are useless. In most cases Navahos are totally dependent on white traders for their very existence.

In the remote regions here, trading posts are monopolized community centers. The trader is the only merchant, the only postmaster, the only buyer of cattle and handicrafts and the only pawnbroker.

He gives credit on welfare and Social Security checks. When the checks arrive each month in his post office, he lets the recipients touch them only long enough to endorse. Then they all go into the trader's till.

When a check doesn't cover a bill, a Navaho trades in jewelry, rugs or wool and receives, on the average, 20 to 40 per cent less than value.

If the Indian complains, he is banished from the store.

Such banishments, moreover, hardly worry the trader. One Indian more or less makes little difference to most of them. Some of the merchants on the reservation ring up $500,000 worth of receipts annually.

'ONLY INDIAN SUFFERS'

"As usual," say the Navahos, "only the Indian suffers."

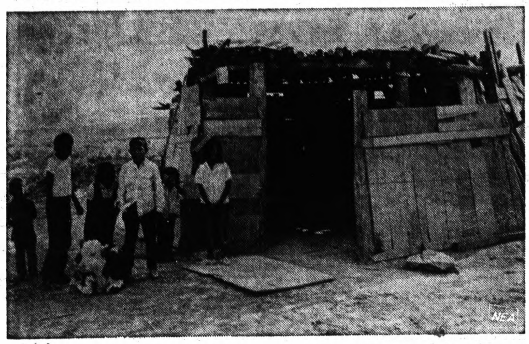
On the surface of it, actually, the suffering seems unnecessary. The land, after all, is Indian land and therefore is should be simple enough to outlaw white traders and then set up all Navaho grocery posts.

★ ★ ★

But it isn't that simple. Not nearly.

Explains tribal official Leona Cole: "One trouble is that most Navahos aren't capable of handling their own businesses. We've had a number of them try to set up shops, but few have succeeded.

"I suppose in part it's because the Navaho philosophy is basically noncompetitive. They are slow and easy-going. They are not scramblers. So, unfortunately, their record in the business world hasn't been good."



OFTEN CHEATED — Navaho families that make $100 a month and live in homes like this are often duped into signing contracts keep them broke forever.

U.S. Through Foreign Eyes: Rat Race Life, Costly Visits

LONDON (AP) — Viewed through various foreign eyes, the United States is a place where life is a rat race, the "new politics" is an expensive version of the old variety and British tourists may run into financial difficulty.

"Life in the United States of America, in fact, is a veritable rat race and only those who can stand the pace make it to the top," Malaysian Finance Minister Tan Siew Sin told a financial management seminar in Kuala Lumpur.

★ ★ ★

"Whatever may be the shortcomings of the mightiest and richest nation in the world, we must at least admit that they work hard from the very top downwards," Tan said.

In an Associated Press sampling of foreign opinion, a warning to Britons thinking of visiting America came from Ivor Key, New York correspondent of the London Daily Express.

$156 EACH

"Don't come," he wrote, "unless you have a friend or relative to stay with."

Key said two planeloads of British tourists in New York recently had trouble getting by on the $156 their government allowed each of them for a 17-day holiday.

★ ★ ★

"Before setting off, they were told by an airline that if they stayed in a modest hotel they would have about $5 a day to live on, and might even be able to afford a boat trip around Manhattan and ride up the Empire State Building, but with hamburgers and the cheapest sandwich costing 84 cents and a glass of beer 60 cents they are cutting their budget a bit fine," he wrote.

"One of them insisted on taking an American friend for a few drinks and dinner at a modest restaurant. It cost him $30 and almost broke him for the rest of the trip."

NEW POLITICS

Peter Jenkins, covering the American presidential campaign for the British newspaper Guardian, discussed the new politics.

"There does seem to be some desire for greater political participation and it may grow; within a few years half the population of America is going to be aged under 25," Jenkins wrote.

"All of the candidates are conscious of a situation of changing political patterns and are staking out special claims to the shifting elements. But it's far too simple, and almost certainly not true, to see this as a struggle of the 'people against the politicians.' It looks more like a struggle between one set of politicians and another, between the 'outs' and the 'ins'— and there is nothing very novel about that.

★ ★ ★

"What are called the 'new politics' strike the observer as very much like the old politics practiced in a changing situation with the aid of new techniques and at vastly increased expense."

Tokyo Shimbun said of the campaign: "One of the most remarkable phenomena we have witnessed . . . is the active participation of young Americans, many of whom had been apathetic toward politics.

"The students who thought they were alienated from their society and took refuge in the world of 'drugs and violence' seemed to have found an outlet in politics for their explosive energy . . .

★ ★ ★

"They have come to the aid of Sen. Eugene McCarthy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy . . .

"These students, together with ordinary housewives who were no less interested in politics and the government, are the living force that sustain the healthy and traditional form of American democracy."

The West German newspaper Suedeutsche Zeitung of Munich carried a report by correspondent Herbert von Borch on Kennedy's campaign style.

TECHNIQUE OF DIALOGUE

"He has developed a technique of dialogue with the masses that no other candidate employs," Von Borch wrote. "It borders on Socratic dialogue and political cabaret . . .

"He communicates with the swinging generation like no one else . . . Kennedy's youthful followers, those he has not lost to McCarthy, are as unrestrained as if Bobby were a political Elvis Presley.

Loyalty Helps Hubert in State

(EDITOR'S NOTE—While public attention is focused on the presidential primaries, the campaign is being fought with equal intensity in nonprimary states. Here's a report on the struggle for a key delegation, the 96 votes of Michigan.)

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey's strength in the Michigan delegation typifies how and why the vice president is soaking up votes from nonprimary election states for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Old-time loyalties, party regularity, a delegate selection system not particularly attuned to public opinion and concern by some blocs with their party position combined almost inevitably for Humphrey in Michigan.

★ ★ ★

The delegation picked last weekend at an organization-dominated state Democratic convention is nominally uncommitted. But 60 or more of the state's 96 votes lean to Humphrey in varying degrees. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy appears to have most of the others except for two or perhaps three aligned with Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

State Chairman Sander Levin successfully imposed for two months a rule that principal Democrats keep quiet about their preferences. He sought to avoid fratricide in a party badly damaged by the Republican sweep of 1966.

QUIET CURTAIN LIFTED

Now he has lifted the ban and the Humphrey camp is pushing for individual delegates to declare their choices, hoping to create a bandwagon which might attract some waverers.

Kennedy forces contend that half the delegation leans toward the New York senator. But they refuse to say even generally where their support lies.

★ ★ ★

"We know they (Humphrey people) are making a lot of false assumptions, and we don't want to pinpoint them," said William H. Merrill, Michigan chairman of Citizens for Kennedy.

The Kennedy camp is pressing for continuation of the uncommitted stance, hoping to change some minds before delegate preferences are publicized.

'HANGING ON'

A Humphrey staffer conceded that "our problem is hanging on to what we've got."

The delegation was to meet Sunday night amidst the possibility that an immediate preference ballot would be taken. But fatigue set in from the dragged out convention and the meeting was put off until late this week or early next—when delegates will know results of the California primary.

Chairman Levin said both camps pledged they wouldn't push delegates too much until after the organizing meeting. Levin has kept his leanings a secret, but the suspicion of many is that he will go for Kennedy if the cause doesn't seem hopeless.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, expected to be chairman of the delegation, also has kept his preference to himself. William Beckham, Hart's staff chief in Detroit, is quietly working for Humphrey.

LOYALTY FROM 1948

Loyalty of old-line Michigan Democrats to Humphrey dates to 1948 when the Minnesotan was elected to the Senate and began helping to build the Democrats' labor-minorities coalition in Michigan with frequent fund-raising appearances.

"Our third senator in those days," is the way one long-time Democrat put it. A few party veterans also believe that Kennedy torpedoed a Cabinet appointment in 1961 for Michigan's six-term governor, G. Mennen Williams, long-time leader of state Democrats and an early backer of John F. Kennedy for president.

Humphrey's party regularity and administration loyalty dovetail with Michigan Democrats' ideas of regularity. Democrats who buck the Michigan organization statewide usually lose. The "new politics" campaigns of McCarthy and Kennedy smack too much of going over the organization's head for many party wheelhorses.

And it's the wheelhorses and party regulars who control delegate selection under the Michigan system.

OPPOSITION SIMMERS

Opposition to Johnson administration policies that finally produced the Kennedy and McCarthy candidacies was only beginning to simmer in August 1966 when Democratic precinct delegates were elected in Michigan. There obviously was no Kennedy or McCarthy organization to battle administration-oriented regulars at that point.

Those delegates, elected nearly two years ago, met last month in county conventions and selected state convention delegates from among their number.

★ ★ ★

The state convention delegates in turn approved 24 leadership-designated at-large delegates to the national convention and four delegates from each of the 19 congressional districts (all of the delegates do not have a full vote).

Antiwar elements in university towns such as East Lansing and Ann Arbor could do little against Humphrey even within their own districts.

VOTES SPLIT

In Flint, McCarthy and Kennedy supporters pooled their strength and split four votes with Humphrey. And in Detroit, with support of Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh, some United Auto Workers officials and some Negroes, Kennedy people appeared to get about an even split with the vice president.

But time after time the convention overwhelmingly beat back moves by McCarthy supporters that could have helped the Kennedy or McCarthy causes.

★ ★ ★

An indication of the premium on party loyalty came at the leadership meeting when Zolton A. Ferency, the party's titular head as 1966 gubernatorial candidate, was suggested for a delegate spot. "It was as quiet as in church," said one participant.

Ferency had lashed out against the Johnson administration late last year and was forced to quit after nearly six years as state chairman. A McCarthy backer, he lost 10 to 1 in a floor fight for a delegate slot.

HUMPHREY'S MAN

The Humphrey operation in Michigan is run by Congressman James G. O'Hara. The Democrats' other six U.S. representatives, except for John Conyers Jr. of Detroit, who hasn't indicated any preference, are publicly or privately for Humphrey. Secretary of State James A. Hare, the top Democratic state official, soon will declare for Humphrey. A recent Humphrey staff addition is Gery Williams, son of G. Mennen Williams.

The Michigan AFL-CIO is in the Humphrey camp but the UAW is split down the middle on ideological shadings. If UAW president Walter Reuther should state a preference ahead of the national convention, however, it would likely swing votes of lesser UAW officials who are delegates.

★ ★ ★

The Kennedy camp's biggest officeholder endorsement so far is from Mayor Cavanagh, a man who bucked the organization in 1966 and lost a U.S. Senate primary to Williams by a 3 to 2 margin.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Sunday: "I remain uncommitted and I feel the Michigan delegation remains uncommitted." But he said it at a news conference arranged by Kennedy aides. He is expected to declare shortly for Kennedy, with whom he worked when Kennedy was U.S. attorney general.

Former Gov. John B. Swainson, now a circuit court judge and thus ineligible to be a delegate, has been contributing behind-the-scenes advice to the Kennedy effort.

Despite large numbers of youthful enthusiasts, McCarthy's Michigan campaign lacks political muscle. If he beats Kennedy in California, most leaders expect that his victory would simply serve to sway some Kennedy delegates in Michigan.

Junior Editors Quiz on FLOWERS

QUESTION: Why do flowers smell so nice?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Flowers are so beauiful and inspiring that it may seem that nature made them especially for our delight. They cheer us up, make us think of the world as a better place, and are, actually, of vital importance to us.

Did it ever occur to you that almost all the vegetable food we eat comes from plants which have some kind of flowers?

But flowers have another job in nature's plan besides delighting us. They are part of the reproductive system of plants, by which seed is developed which can turn into other plants.

The fragrance of flowers — their colors, too — attract birds and insects, which probe for the sweet-tasting nectar inside. In so doing, the visitors become coated with pollen from one flower. Entering another, the pollen is brushed off onto a part called the stigma; this causes a seed to form in the second flower, which will later become a new plant.

Perhaps a flower's color and fragrance is mainly to attract such useful visitors; but many of us feel nature must have included our own enjoyment as part of her plan.

(You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

How to raise your sights without raising your new-car investment.

Just do one simple thing many low-priced-car buyers should do, and don't. Price check an Olds 88.

You'll discover a lot of so-called low-priced cars cost as much or more.

Suddenly, you can raise your sights to a full-size Olds 88 and all its benefits.

You'll gain Olds big-car room.

Big-car stability and strength. The kind of deep-comfort ride you get on its full 123 inches of wheelbase. All the GM safety features, too. Plus the extra assurance that's yours in an Oldsmobile.

You'll also be rid of some problems, too. Like paying extra for a big V-8 engine. (And our Rocket 350 runs smooth and easy on regular gas.)

That's a pretty good return on no increase in investment, isn't it?

U.S. Industry Is Pied Piper of British Brain Drain

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — The cigar-chewing talent scout who comes to Britain to recruit for American industry is looked upon here as the modern Pied Piper.

Whenever one of these Yankee talent spotters checks into his hotel, he is nearly mobbed by British scientists applying for Stateside jobs.

★ ★ ★

He finds the hotel corridor lined with British engineers, eager to exchange their birthright for a mess of American pottage. Their eagerness is understandable, for the starting salary for engineers in the United States is three times what they could hope to earn in Britain.

The interview to which job applicants are subjected is not a very searching one. All the talent scout is interested in is their Bachelor of Science diploma. If the applicant has a doctor's degree in physics, the sky is the limit, as far as the salary offer goes.

CAN'T BE CHOOSY

With the United States able to supply only one-half of the 830,000 new engineering graduates it will need in the next 10 years, American industry cannot afford, however, to be too choosy about whom it hires from abroad.

The result is not a very happy one for the British economy. Britain is now losing four times as many scientists and engineers to the United States as she did in 1961. If the Brain Drain continues at the present rate for the next 10 or 20 years, Britain could be faced with economic disaster.

★ ★ ★

This, at least, is the warning sounded by a special Brain Drain committee appointed by the government to look into the problem. Among other things, the committee found that:

● Last year Britain lost 6,200 scientists and engineers to countries abroad, which was roughly twice as many as in 1961.

★ ★ ★

● Half of these emigrants went to better-paying jobs in the United States, and most of these were young — between 25 and 35.

● The 4,200 engineers who emigrated last year represent two-fifths of the output from universities and technical schools.

The financial cost alone of the Brain Drain is enormous. Thus, the government may spend as much as $48,000 in educating a physicist, only to lose him to America where he is said to be worth over $200,000. This latter sum, says the Brain Drain committee, represents a free gift to the American economy.

Among British industries hardest hit by the exodus of technically qualified men are aeronautics, electronics and chemicals.

★ ★ ★

The recent New York State decision to admit British doctors to practice without a qualifying examination is likewise expected to start a westward movement of medical men who are fed up with Britain's national health service.

★ ★ ★

Higher pay is not the only reason that British scientists are flocking to the New World in droves. Many of them have been frightened away by high taxes here. Still more complain that the scientist lacks status in the British Isles.

SORT OF CRANK

"Here a scientists is still looked upon as some sort of crank," says one who is planning to migrate to America.

The government's Brain Drain committee does not propose to stop American talent scouts from recruiting for American industry here. That would be to substitute a "Berlin Wall" mentality for the present liberal attitude, it says.

But the committee does urge the government and industry to adopt positive measures to halt the drain, namely:

● 1. Higher pay and higher status for talented young scientists and engineers in industry. They should also be promoted to the board room wherever possible.

2. The government should pursue a more aggressive policy in trying to lure back home the scientists who have emigrated.

● 3. The universities should stop looking down their noses at industry and train more applied scientists as opposed to purely academic ones.

Meanwhile two case histories illustrate the problem with which the government is faced.

The first concerns Graham Lamb, aged 26, who left for America recently to take up an engineering job with Boeing Aircraft.

In Britain Graham earned $3,360 as an engineer. At Boeing his starting salary will be $10,000 a year, plus $2,500 expenses to move his household goods and his wife Jill to America.

As an apprentice in the aircraft industry here, Graham spent his first seven weeks filing metal. "The most ambitious thing I made was a pair of pliers," he claims.

Nonsuch And Its Route

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Three hundred years ago a ship called the Nonsuch made the perilous journey across the Atlantic to bring back the riches of the Hudson Bay in the newly discovered North America. Now she's being rebuilt, 17th century style, to commemorate the occasion.)

By COLIN FROST

APPLEDORE, England (AP) — In a tiny shipyard on a Devon riverside the clock has suddenly turned back. A ship that helped mold the future of America is taking shape again, built with the methods of three centuries ago and liberally supplied with nudes.

At 53 feet from stem to stern, she looks ridiculously small to hold a giant's place in history. Yet the Nonsuch, as tough as her English oak timbers, survived the ice of the Northwest Passage and made the fortune of the Hudson's Bay Company.

* * *

Now she is being reborn to celebrate the company's 300th anniversary of its Royal Charter of 1670. Shipwrights, carpenters, gun-founders, riggers and sailmakers are to work with the tools and materials of the 17th century.

Authenticity is the backbone of the entire enterprise. Nothing goes into the 20th century Nonsuch that could not have gone into the original.

The sails, now making at Portsmouth, are of the finest flax and every inch handsewn.

Her two-inch oak planks are fastened to her frames with trenails-pronounced and sometimes spelled Trunnels. These are of oak seasoned 15 years.

* * *

Where bolts are used, they're hand-wrought iron and never galvanized. Hot linseed oil goes into the boltholes to harden the wood against iron sickness-creeping rust.

The keel, laid last October, is a massive piece of English elm.

STEM TO STERN

The nudes, 18 of various descriptions from mermaids at the prow to long-legged charmers supporting the stern cabin windows, are taking shape in the Isle of Wight workshop of Jack Whitehead, a 54-year-old artist who lately has specialized in ships' figureheads.

The girls, he explained, are both typical and functional.

* * *

"Sailors," he said, "Have always been superstitious. One of their oldest beliefs was that by stripping off her clothes a woman could quiet the stormiest sea."

Certainly the nudes worked well for the first Nonsuch, which the records show was built at Wivenhoe in Essex in 1650.

ORIGINAL SAILING

In 1668 the Nonsuch set sail from the Thames in company of the Eaglet, with orders to sail "with the first wind into Hudson's Bay and there endeavour to bring your vessells into some safe harbour in order to trade with the Indyans . . ."

The same orders urged the crew to keep in mind "the discovery of the Passage into the South Sea and to attempt it as occasion shall offer."

* * *

The Eaglet soon ran into storm damage and put back to port. Nonsuch, under Capt Zaachariah Gillam, forged ahead.

Six months after her successful return, the king granted his charter to "The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay." This is the anniversary for which the new Nonsuch is being built.

2 YEARS OF PLANS

The idea was struck two years ago. The company gives the credit to its present governor, Lord Amory, a sailing enthusiast and former British high commissioner in Canada.

For research they turned to Peter M. Wood, a marine artist who is one of the great authorities on ships of the period. He worked from the beginning with designers Rodney Warington Smyth and Percy Dalton, and Britain's National Maritime Museum at Greenwhich.

* * *

In October the champagne will come out and the Nonsuch will slide into the Torridge estuary. Once the masts and rigging are put in and her 27 tons of lead ballast safely stowed, she will sail to the Thames to tie up near the company's headquarters at Beaver Hall.

Then comes a crossing of the Atlantic, under sail or aboard a freighter — yet to be decided. Afterward there will be a tour under sail of Canadian and United States East Coast ports and perhaps through the Panama Canal to the West Coast before an overland journey to her final berth in Winnipeg.

Reds Press Ideological Campaigns

MOSCOW (AP) — "Ideological and political education of pupils is the keystone of the school's activity."

"The most important task of trade unions . . . is the cultivation in the working people of Communist convictions, Soviet patriotism, proletarian internationalism and ideological staunchness."

* * *

From first graders through grizzled laborers, the Soviet people are getting stronger than usual doses of Communist ideology these days. They signify that the Soviet Communist party is fighting a brisk battle against ideas from Czechoslovakia and from this country's own dissident intellectuals.

Using its monopoly of press, radio and television, the party is arguing loud and long that the only democracy is what it says is democracy. Some recent quotations, which use "socialism" where a westerner would say "communism," convey the tone.

ABSOLUTE FREEDOM

" 'Absolute' democracy has never existed . . . There cannot be absolute freedom, that is, the freedom to commit with impunity anything that runs counter to the interests of the ruling classes."

Here, the ruling class is "the working people." The Communist party calls itself "the vanguard" of workers, expressing their will.

* * *

The party "acquires true strength when it is accompanied by the unity of action of all organizations and members of the party on the basis of a single outlook." There is a "need for iron party discipline."

The outlook is expressed, the discipline enforced, by party leaders. The leaders chose their own successors.

DIFFERENT IDEA

Anyone with an idea different from the leaders has a hard time being heard.

"Our press has never lent its pages to malicious criticism, irresponsible misinterpretations and demogogy that are harmful to the cause of socialism and the interests of the socialist state."

* * *

It is the leaders who decide what is malicious, irresponsible or damagogic. Those who seek freedom of speech or freedom of assembly are likely to find themselves in prison or a mental hospital, as has happened to several dissident intellectuals lately.

"Our enemies would like" opposition parties to exist in Communist countries; But an opposition party cannot have any program.

TURN BACKS

"If such a party states that it is truthful to the cause of socialism, then it cannot be 'an opposition party' and must, hand-in-hand with the Communist party, with all people, construct socialist society. If it frankly states, its rejection of socialism, then the people naturally will turn their backs on such a party — and it will disappear . . ."

"Naturally" — that is the key word. Soviet propagandists leave no room for any alternative to appear in any way reasonable, feasible, possible.

* * *

The Soviet people are told they already have the ideal system, socialism — communism. And what might in the West be called democracy is here described by a word long labeled as a dirty term, capitalism.

"Two opposing systems, socialism and capitalism, confront one another.

DECLINE

"One is young, new, building up strength and carrying to people freedom and happiness. The other is old, unjust, doomed by history and is on the decline."

No reader of the Soviet press could doubt which was which in the drumming ideological campaign of the Soviet Communist party.

A Sophistication Of Radar, Computer And Human Know-How—The FAA's Air Route Traffic Control Center At Cleveland

Pilots' Lives in Cleveland Center's Hands

By JEAN SAILE

"Cleveland Center this is Baron 2057 Whisky. Off Pontiac 47. Activating flight plan. Over."

MRS. SAILE

An airplane has taken off from Oakland-Pontiac Airport and a blip shows up on a radar controller's screen 180 miles away near Cleveland, Ohio.

The blip—relayed by microwave to the Federal Aviation Administration Air Route Traffic Control Center there — has been picked up by a radar tower located in the Detroit area.

* * *

The appearance of the blip — in reality a mathematical equals sign — is just one more moving light on a Cleveland radar controller's green scope.

BIG TERRITORY

It becomes important in Cleveland when the pilot, having filed an instrument flight plan, flies out of Detroit Metropolitan Control Tower territory into the 41,275 square miles shepherded by Cleveland Center.

If the pilot has filed such a plan — and he is required to do so 30 minutes before departure, should weather conditions prohibit a visual flight — he has become the topic of computer communication in both Detroit and Cleveland and the object of concern to numerous men.

* * *

Taking into account the plane's speed, altitude and destination, and wind flow, the computers already know all there is to know about the planned flight. Their information is fed into a complex radar control system stretching across the United States, as needed, and to the men who are the 20th century's "traffic cops of the skies."

At the Cleveland Center the information is handled by an IBM 9020 computer bank, the most complex and up-to-date system in use in the 20 FAA control centers across the United States today. Its memory banks and teletypes dominate one end of the huge cave-like control room.

As the plane flies from sector to sector, information is filed ahead by computer to the control teams involved. Changes in course or altitude get immediate consideration and are programmed into the system.

There are 28 sector teams which operate out of the Cleveland Center, actually about 35 miles west of the city in the community of Oberlin.

Some of the teams handle flights above 24,000 feet. Others have the busier low-altitude schedule.

The sector teams, three to five men each, huddle under long rows of gray console table canopies. The murmur of their voices and their radio contacts with planes give a modulated humming to the activity. A green radar map dominates each team position.

WEATHER SCREENS

Two huge weather screens containing all pertinent information for the airports in the area are placed for immediate reference.

The Cleveland control area reaches from north of Saginaw to a point in West Virginia and from Syracuse, N.Y., to Fort Wayne, Ind.

* * *

Crew chiefs, seated on rolling stools and wearing telephone headsets, supervise each sector.

A teletype message announces the impending arrival of an IFR plane within the sector. The radar scope is watched.

SWITCH FLIPPED

A call is made to a newly appearing blip, and the pilot of that plane flips a transponder switch (providing his plane is so equipped) and the equals sign fills in to a solid white square.

The controllers have made positive identification and a "shrimp boat" — a clear plastic marker identified with a color code and the plane's altitude — is moved into position on the screen.

* * *

A plane not having the special radar signaling equipment can get positive identification, usually from location, but in event of uncertainty the pilot may be asked to change course temporarily and the changing blip will identify him.

Once identified, he is assured of protection against at least 60 per cent of the air traffic today.

REGULAR FLIGHTS

The 60 per cent is made up of regularly scheduled commercial flights, programmed into the computers and replayed on cue. However, any pilot can avail himself of the service at any time — even after he has already taken to the air. Military flights also are handled.

A working crew can guard up to 15 flights at a time. The size of their control sector varies, depending on the density of air traffic.

* * *

The center handles about 5,300 aircraft a day. It's a number which increases yearly by about 20 per cent and it's a far cry from the center's beginnings in 1938 when it occupied the parachute loft of an unused Cleveland hangar.

Now one of the three busiest centers in the country — the other two being New York and Chicago — Cleveland is part of the "Golden Triangle" of the east where every flight can be computerized.

Every voice transmission and every computer tape is recorded and saved for at least 15 days in case of investigation, according to Edwin Brown, the center's acting chief. A huge storage room in the basement contains the memory tapes.

Controlling air traffic is a well-paid occupation for its practitioners — many of whom have entered the business from the military and who are further trained by a continuing program at the center.

* * *

A controller makes between $9,000 and $15,000 a year and a working crew chief gets between $13,500 and $17,000. All are required to pass periodic physical and mental exams.

Three shifts of employes are needed to keep the center functioning 24 hours a day.

That there are heroes among its members is attested by the plaques at the center's entrance.

Emergencies seldom occur, but when they do the controllers have the talent and equipment to handle them.

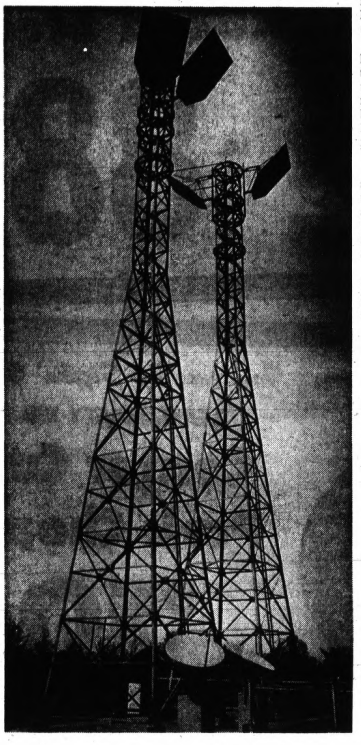
From A Radar Tower In The Detroit Area . . .

Sky 'Traffic Cops' Use Computers



. . . By Microwave To Cleveland . . .

Air traffic is similar to auto traffic in one respect. It cannot operate helter-skelter, but must be subject to established rules—Instrument Flight Rules (IFR) and Visual Flight Rules (VFR).

In general, a pilot flying IFR navigates by his instruments only, relying on them and on the instructions he gets via radio from air traffic control specialists to stay safely separated from other aircraft. He files a flight plan before taking off and is given a clearance that keeps him clear of other planes flying IFR in the same area.

* * *

Effective operation of the air traffic control system is dependent upon rapid exchange of traffic and weather information among tower and center controllers, search and rescue organizations, air defense units, domestic and international flight service stations and planes in the air.

To transmit this information, FAA operates one of the largest teletypewriter, telephone and radio networks in the world. Its microwave relay system of radar provides an all-encompassing picture of the airways of the United States.

RUNNERS PASSE

The sophistication of the material available has made necessary an ever-increasing sophistication of its dispersal. Where runners once brought the information from teletypes to the controllers, now a giant computer assimilates information as it applies to a particular flight and keeps controllers immediately informed of the plane's position at all times—and of any changes made in its course or altitude.

Cleveland Center even has computers that talk to other computers. Set up on an interconnected circuit, the system often finds it necessary to have small computers whose primary job is simply to translate one machine's language into that of another's.

* * *

Machines in the Cleveland Center are also linked with other Air Route Control Centers across the nation so a plane can be passed from one center to another without the FAA ever losing surveillance.

Will Wed TV Husband

Truth Leads Fiction for Actress

(EDITOR'S NOTE—It is often difficult to tell illusion from reality. Television thrives on illusion, but Linda Kaye hopes there is no confusion with reality in her case.)

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK — Fiction is getting uncomfortably ahead of truth as far as a young actress named Linda Kaye is concerned.

Linda, a cute and genuine redhead of 23, has played the part of Betty Jo, the youngest of three daughters in "Petticoat Junction" since its beginnings five years ago. Last season, the executive creators of the show and its writers decided it was time to sock in some romance for a change of pace in the pastroal comedy series.

* * *

They brought in a good looking young actor-status, single —named Mike Minor, cast him as an airborne crop duster. The plan was to build up to an end-of-season marriage with Meredith MacRae, who plays Billy Jo, the oldest daughter.

Sometime around midseason, there was a change of plan and, it was decided to marry off Steve Elliott — Mike's character —to Betty Jo, the tomboy rarely seen without a baseball mitt.

Meanwhile, in their nonacting time, Linda and Mike had begun dating for real.

Thus, when Linda and Mike got around to announcing their engagement, they were in the process of getting married on the show.

* * *

Next September, when their real wedding will take place, Linda —with considerable stuffing around the midriff—will be busily portraying a young woman about to produce twins. Linda nervously hopes that the confusing situation will not result in a rash of scurrilous rumors.

The forthcoming wedding of Linda and Mike will unite two of television's royal families. Linda, whose real name is Linda Kaye Henning, is the daughter of Paul Henning, a top screen writer who turned producer with "The Beverly Hillbillies."

OTHER SERIES

He followed that comedy series with "Petticoat Junction," another long-playing hit, and then had an important hand in "Green Acres."

Mike's real last name is Fedderson, and he is the son of Don Fedderson, who created and produces "My Three Sons" and "Family Affair," and has been an important cog in the machinery that makes "The Lawrence Welk Show" roll on year after year.

Linda, like Marlo Thomas, says that an important father in show business does help open doors normally closed to young, aspiring performers, but that once the door is open, more is expected of the hopeful than of other untried novices.

"When my father was casting the daughters in 'Petticoat Junction,' he never even thought of giving me a chance," said Linda. "Bea Benaderet, who was to play Kate, the mother, saw me in a play, and asked him why he didn't try me—after all, he was looking at everybody else."

STUDIED BALLET

At first Linda was going to be a ballerina, and she spent three years with the San Fernando Civic Ballet and five with another youth ballet troupe during her grammar and high school years.

Still in her teens, she played with some little Hollywood theatre groups in serious drama including "Bus Stop" and "Rebel Without a Cause." It was a theatrical agent, seeing her in a North Hollywood Playhouse production of "Gidget," who sent her to Paramount Pictures' casting office. She won two dance numbers in "Bye Bye Birdie" in her first and to date only, film experience.

* * *

Later she did some guest shots in "Dobie Gillis" and "Mr. Ed," and, since "Petticoat Junction," had broadened her sights to include singing. Recently she starred in a Salt Lake City production of "Carousel."

Unlike so many young performers who set up their own establishments once they are on their professional feet — Marlo Thomas recently bought a house and Sally Field has her own place at the Santa Monica beach — Linda continues to live at home.

"I'm too busy with my work and besides, I like my parents, my sister and my brother," she said. "The trouble is that here I am on the verge of getting married, and I really don't know anything much about housekeeping and precious little about cooking. Oh, well, I guess I'll learn."

TWO FACES OF LINDA—A ballerina who gravitated to the stage, Linda Kaye is creating a career for herself ranging from the serious to the frolicsome. A permanent star on TV's "Petticoat Junction," she will be married to her program husband in September.

Ancient Ruler Turned Treachery Into Treasure

LONDON (UPI)—Like many a collaborator after him, King Cogidubnis did well out of the betrayal of his own people. Roman invaders of Britain paid him handsomely, and from the reward he built one of the great palaces of the ancient world.

He went to his death with one advantage over most collaborators. There were no local scribes to record his perfidy. Whatever the slurs behind his back in his own time, posterity would not defame his name.

* * *

King Cogidubnis miscalculated. Eight years ago a mechanical ditch digger on the outskirts of the ancient English city of Chichester turfed up a mass of Roman material.

A major excavation took place.

The work is now as complete as it will be since houses and a highway cover some of the palace and its grounds. Reconstructions based on fragments of stone and mosaic pavement and the outlines of the original building show that Cogidubnis, who died about A.D. 100, knew how to turn treachery into treasure as have few men before or since.

* * *

The north wing of his palace alone was 270 feet long and 70 feet wide. This has been covered over for a museum of the many important finds on the site.

If the archaeological theories are right, Cogidubnis moved from a modest dwelling to the manor house after the Romans arrived, and then up to the palace set as Rome's administrator in Sussex.

Robb Is Like Any Other Marine Captain, but Special

SAIGON AP — The Leatherneck sitting on the sand bag on a lonely hill looks like any other Marine captain reading a letter from his wife.

He is 28 years old, 6 feet 1½ inches tall, has close-cropped black hair, tanned features and is 10 pounds leaner than the day he arrived in Vietnam two months ago.

He takes his job seriously: "The assignment I have now is the most challenging a man of my age could have. The responsibility is fully commensurate with the challenge."

He believes in what he is doing: "The people are definitely worth fighting for. They obviously want our help and they trust us."

His wife, living 10,000 miles away, is expecting their first child in Octboer. But he won't be there. He'll be in Vietnam, doing the job he asked for.

This description could fit any of a thousand Marine Corps officers. And the particular officer in question would like to have it that way.

★ ★ ★

"I'm a company commander," says Capt. Charles S. Robb, "and I only want the respect that's due me for that."

But Robb is the son-in-law of President Lyndon B. Johnson, married to the President's elder daughter, Lynda Bird. So, whether he likes it or not, he's special and a lot of people are watching him.

SECRET SERVICEMEN

"Some people actually believe that I have Secret Servicemen over here with me," Robb said recently. "They're just curious."

The men in Robb's company know who their company commander is, but most of them regard him simply as an officer, and a good one at that: "He is a company commander and a Marine captain. That's about the best compliment I can give anyone," says Gunnery Sgt. Charles Lee Herringer of Eugene, Ore., a 14-year Marine veteran now on this third tour of duty in Vietnam.

First Sgt. J. P. Carroll of Richmond, Va., a tough 24-year Marine veteran, says: "I've gone through many skippers and I think he's one of the finest I've ever worked with. He has confidence in his NCOs and his men."

Robb's driver, Cpl. Larry Perkins of Greensboro, N.C., has this to say about his boss: "I'm very happy and proud to be the skipper's driver. My mom says, 'You know what you've got now and be sure you do your best.' I know everyone is watching me and I'm not going to mess up."

The men who go on patrol with him say that for a new hand in the country he is amazingly cool under fire, almost too cool.

Second Lt. Henry K. Nowicki of Glen Cove, N.Y., one of Robb's platoon leaders, says only: "The skipper takes too many chances."

Robb does take chances, but that's the way he sees his job.

Each Member Has Exceptions

Congress Is for Trade, but...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has greeted President Johnson's new world trade program as a fine progressive move — provided, of course, that individual American industries get the protection they want.

The fact that each member of Congress represents a specific area, with its own specific industries, is that real threat to the President's outline of proposed world trade extensions and reform.

Almost everyone — at least, a sizable majority — agrees in theory that U.S. exports not only are a mainstay of the economy but that only the huge (and favorable) volume of trade has kept the American dollar breathing during the past few years of international monetary crises, gold drain and world deficits.

★ ★ ★

In practice, however, the story is different. And President Johnson could find acquiring Congressional approval of his new program one of the most difficult tasks of a five-year tenure shot through with myriad problems.

2-YEAR EXTENSION

The President has proposed a two-year extension of the authority to negotiate tariff reductions needed to put into effect some of the agreements negotiated during the so-called Kennedy round of trade agreements last year at Geneva.

He also proposed to eliminate the so-called American selling price system. This allows tariffs to be based on a percentage of the manufacturer's suggested price, which is in some cases far above the actual competitive retail price level.

★ ★ ★

In the current agreements, only one product so priced (benzenoid chemicals) took a tariff cut and therefore would be affected. But others could be affected by future negotiations should the formula be dropped.

From a theoretical viewpoint, most members of Congress are aware that the substantial U.S. trade surplus has been the major sustaining element in the balance-of-payments picture; that more U.S. jobs are contingent on exports than on imports; that a surplus trade nation stands to lose more than anyone else from a tariff war.

BROAD COMPULSION

Yet the compulsion to restrict imports that constituents claim will hurt their business cuts across both ideological and political party lines. It is a game anyone can play — Republican or Democrat, liberal or conservative.

★ ★ ★

Even chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over trade legislation, is sponsoring several bills to restrict imports in specific industries located in his home state.

Chaplain Gets Medal for Heroism in Viet

SAIGON (AP) — Father Angelo Liteky, a Roman Catholic chaplain who rescued 20 wounded GIs in a jungle fire fight, stood at nervous attention today ed GIs in a jungle fire-fight, cles to receive he Distinguished Service Cross, the highest award ever given to a chaplain in Vietnam.

The medal, America's second highest for heroism, was pinned o. the Jacksonville, Fla., priest by Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, deputy U.S. commander in Vietnam, in a simple ceremony at Forward Fire Base Stephanie, a muddy patch of nowhere three miles west of Saigon.

★ ★ ★

Some of the watching infantrymen and helicopter pilots were there in the jungles that humid day, Dec. 6, when a company moved out in search of the Vietcong mortar teams that had shelled the base camp of the 4th Battalion, 12th Infantry, the night before.

★ ★ ★

"The padre always went along on our operations," said Platoon Sgt. Daniel Garrison of Beloit, Wis., who won the Silver Star in the same action. "He's the kind of guy who liked to sit down and talk with you over a beer or a can of C rations."

FIRST TIME

But it was the 37-year-old priest's first time under fire when the patrol encountered a well entrenched North Vietnamese and Vietcong battalion and was stunned with an opening barrage of automatic weapons, claymore mines and recoilless rifles.

That afternoon, in A Company and the two companies that came to the rescue, 21 men were killed and 74 wounded, nearly half of them in the first few minutes.

★ ★ ★

Father Liteky said the last rites over four infantrymen. Then there was a tremendous explosion, a claymore mine, knocking two men off their feet. To the priest's amazement, both were alive. He lifted one man onto his chest and began dragging him back off the trail. Then he went back for the other one. Bullets ripped the trees nearby.

★ ★ ★

All afternoon, the jut-jawed priest, who washed out as a quarterback at the University of Florida, seemed to be everywhere hauling out wounded, carrying stretchers, bringing up water and ammunition.

REFUSED EVACUATION

"Don't go up there any more, father," Garrison told him, "things have quieted down." Then there was the hissing sound of a rocket, and everyone dived for cover. Father Liteky was hit in the neck and feet by the flying shards, but he refused evacuation.

The rest of the day, the priest gave the last rites to dead and dying infantrymen. He moved about without a helmet and had given his flak jacket to a wounded man. That night, he heard confessions and went around chatting with those who seemed numbed by the death of so many buddies.

"The guys just seem to feel better having you around," the priest said today, plainly embarrassed by the big medal dangling crookedly from his fatigue shirt. "It just seems to make them more assured. And then when you can give the last rites to a dying man, you're glad you were there, but you always have to be careful that saying the prayers doesn't shock them into realizing how bad off they are."

The padre's buddies said, Father Liteky has extended his tour in Vietnam.

His widowed mother, Mrs. Gertrude Liteky, wrote him: "I don't know about that medal. "You can put it in a drawer. The only thing I want is my son home safe."

U.S. Spy Plane Missing in Pacific on 'Routine' Flight

NAHA, Okinawa — A high-altitude U.S. reconnaissance plane and its pilot have been missing in the Pacific area since Tuesday while on a "routine training flight," the U.S. Air Force reported.

The Air Force said an air-and-sea search was launched for the YF12A SR71 — a spy plane described as more sophisticated than the U2.

★ ★ ★

The Air Force said the search was concentrated in the Pacific about 600 miles south of Okinawa and 500 miles east of Manila.

The plane was based on Okinawa.

North Vietnam claimed that its antiaircraft guns shot down an American reconnaissance plane south of Hanoi Tuesday but described it as a "U.S. pilotless spy plane." The search area for the other plane is more than 1,000 miles east of Vietnam.

The Air Force said the last contact with the plane was at 1:42 a.m. EDT Tuesday. The Air Force did not say if the message indicated trouble.

★ ★ ★

Japan's Kyodo News Service, in a dispatch from Okinawa, said the YF12A SR71 was one of two such reconnaissance planes based on Okinawa.

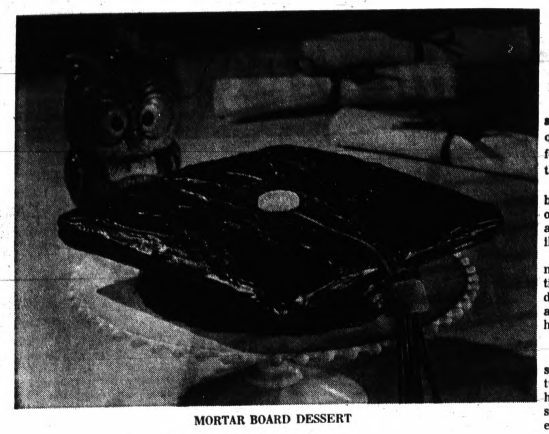
Honor Graduates at Open House



MORTAR BOARD DESSERT

By JANET ODELL
Food Editor, The Pontiac Press

Graduation is always the stimulus for receptions and open houses. It's a good excuse for family friends to renew old ties.

In a way, it's saying "good-bye" to an era. Once they're out of high school, the children are never as close to the family again.

But back to a more cheerful note — what to eat at the parties. Hopefully, mother doesn't do all the work while the teenagers sit — or gad. Enlist their help in preparing the food.

★ ★ ★

A few weeks ago we gave some punch recipes. Here are two that have come into our hands since that time. Both sound like good thirst quenchers.

Bitter Tangerine

2 cans (6 ounces each) frozen tangerine juice concentrate ¼ cup frozen lemon juice
1 quart quinine water
Ice cubes
Lime wedges.

Combine tangerine juice and lemon juice in a pitcher; stir until defrosted. Slowly stir in quinine water. To serve, fill tall glasses two-thirds full; fill to top with ice cubes. Add lime wedge to each.

Makes 6 8-ounce servings.

Grapefruit Sparkle

1 can (6 ounces) frozen grapefruit juice concentrate
1 can (6 ounces) frozen raspberry-lemon juice concentrate
1 quart club soda, chilled
1 teaspoon mint extract
Ice cubes
Lemon slices

Combine fruit juice concentrates in a pitcher; stir until defrosted. Slowly stir in club soda and mint extract. Serve in punch cups or juice glasses containing ice cubes and lemon slices.

Makes 16 4-ounce servings.

DECORATE WITH FOOD

Let the table decorations be part of the food. Your guests will think you're clever when they see an edible mortar board.

It just looks difficult to construct; it's really two different shaped cake layers.

Motor Board

CAKE:

⅓ cup shortening, soft
⅔ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
¾ cup quick oats, uncooked

FROSTING:

2 oz. (2 sq.) unsweetened chocolate
1 tablespoon butter
1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar
Dash salt
¼ cup half and half or light cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

For cake, beat shortening and sugar together until creamy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Blend in vanilla. Sift together flour, soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with milk; blend well. Stir in oats.

★ ★ ★

Grease bottoms of an 8-inch pie plate and a 9-inch square baking pan. Line with waxed paper; grease again. Divide batter evenly between the 2 pans. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes.

Let stand in pans 5 minutes. Remove from pans; cool on wire racks.

FROSTING

For frosting, melt chocolate and butter over low heat. Add 1 cup of the confectioners' sugar, salt and half and half; beat until smooth. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture starts to bubble.

Remove from heat; add vanilla and remaining ½ cup confectioners' sugar. Beat until smooth and of desired spreading consistency.

★ ★ ★

To assemble, place round cake on serving plate. Cut cardboard to fit square cake. Cover with aluminum foil. Place cake on cardboard. Frost tops and sides of cakes. Allow frosting to set.

Place square cake and cardboard on top of round cake. Make tassel for mortar board using string licorice and a large gumdrop. Makes 1 cake.

Sandwich Loaf

Perhaps a sandwich loaf will be the type of food you're looking for. Make it early in the day and chill well until time to eat.

Ripe Olive Party Loaf

1 (15-ounce) round loaf French bread
Butter
Egg Filling
Ripe Olive Filling
Deviled Ham Filling
1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
1 tablespoon milk

Cut bread in 4 slices horizontally, trimming off crusts. Spread bread with butter. Place one slice on serving plate and spread with Egg Filling.

Top with second slice and cover with Ripe Olive Filling. Top with third slice and spread with Deviled Ham Filling. Cover with fourth slice.

★ ★ ★

Soften cream cheese and blend in milk. Frost top and sides of loaf with cream cheese.

GARNISH

To garnish, arrange 6 pitted ripe olives in circle on top. Stuff with carrot curls and parsley sprigs. Make flowers around sides with ripe olive wedges. Slice to serve. Makes 1 sandwich loaf.

EGG FILLING: Mash 3 hard cooked eggs. Blend in ¼ cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon each salt and prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and ½ cup chopped California ripe olives.

RIPE OLIVE FILLING: Combine ¾ cup chopped California ripe olives with 2½ tablespoons mayonnaise.

DEVILED HAM FILLING: Combine 1 (4½-ounce) can deviled ham, ½ cup chopped California ripe olives and 2 tablespoons well drained relish.

Petits Four may sound complicated, but you can make a resonable facsimile of the same you follow directions in the following recipe.

Frozen pound cake is a convenience food you'll enjoy using. The mocha torte is another quick dessert.

Strawberry Petits Four

1 package (1 pound) frozen whole strawberries
1 package (12 ounces) frozen pound cake
1 package (1 pound) confectioners' sugar
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup light cream
1 teaspoon almond extract
Red food coloring

Let strawberries thaw according to package directions, then drain thoroughly on absorbent paper. While frozen, slice cake lengthwise into two layers. Cut each layer into ten squares.

Combine confectioners' sugar, butter, cream and almond extract in top of double boiler. Heat, stirring occasionally, over hot (not boiling) water for about 10 minutes, or until mixture is smooth and consistency of heavy cream.

Brush loose crumbs from cake squares; place on a wire rack over wax paper or foil. Spoon frosting over cakes. Return frosting that drips onto wax paper to double boiler and use again.

Decorate top of each with a whole strawberry and, if desired, a mint of other green leaf. Makes 20 petits fours.

Mocha Almond Torte

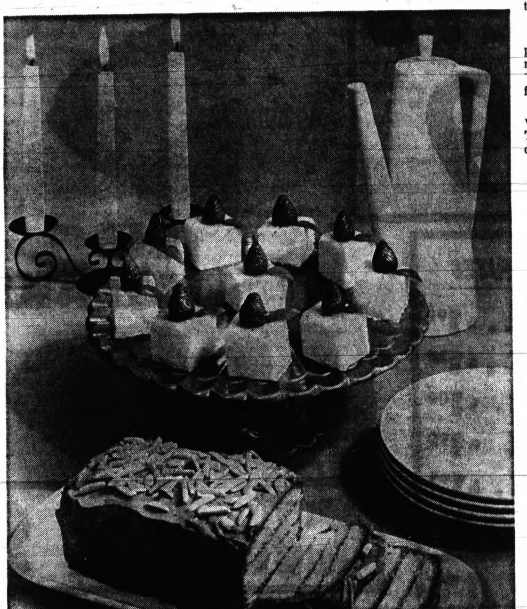
1 package (12 ounces) frozen pound cake
½ pint (1 cup) heavy cream
1 teaspoon instant coffee
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
½ cup sem-sweet chocolate pieces, melted
¾ cup slivered almonds

While frozen, cut cake lengthwise into four layers. Whip cream until it just begins to thicken. Add instant coffee and confectioners' sugar; continue whipping until mixture holds soft peaks. Fold in cool melted chocolate.

Assemble cake by spreading whipped mixture between each layer and on top and sides. Decorate top with slivered almonds. Chill until serving time.

Makes 8 servings.

RIPE OLIVE PARTY LOAF



STRAWBERRY PETITS FOURS

Add White Wine

Base of Drink Is Tea

Here's a brand new cooler—iced tea tingler, a refreshing combination of iced tea and dry white wine. Its pale amber color is pleasing to the eye; its subtle flavor equally appealing to the palate. It's a drink to sip slowly and appreciatively, feeling cooler and more relaxed with every sip.

Garnish the pitcher with a long spiral of orange peel and add circles of lemon and orange, too, if you like.

★ ★ ★

For nibbling while sipping, you might serve fresh fruits with a creamy dipping sauce. The heavenly dip given below is especially nice with ripe, red strawberries.

Leave the stems on the berries and provide individual bowls of the sauce for each guest.

Iced Tea Tingler

1 quart boiling water
12 teabags
½ cup sugar
⅔ cup lemon juice, strained
3 cups dry white wine

Pour boiling water over teabags; cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Remove teabags, add sugar and stir to dissolve.

Let cool. Add lemon juice and wine.

Pour into a tall pitcher, add ice cubes. Garnish with lemon and orange slices and a long spiral of orange peel. Makes 10-12 servings.

HEAVENLY DIP

1 cup sour cream
2 to 4 tablespoons light brown sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated orange rind

Mix sour cream, sugar, lemon juice and orange rind together and refrigerate at least an hour to blend flavors. Serve with strawberries or other fresh fruit. Makes 6 servings.

Lobster in Soup Is a Ladies' Dish

Star this Springtime Chowder on your luncheon menu the next time you plan to have the girls over.

In saucepan, cook ½ cup sliced celery, 1 medium clove garlic, minced and ⅛ teaspoon crushed marjoram in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine until celery is tender. Stir in 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of vegetable soup and 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup until smooth. Blend in 1 soup can each water and milk.

Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup diced cooked lobster, and ½ cup cooked asparagus cuts. Heat; stir. Makes 4 to 6 servings. Pass sesame seed crackers to go along.

Calorie Counters Mustn't Indulge

It's easy to make biscuits when there are only a few for lunch.

TWO-CREAM BISCUITS

1 cup sifted cake flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup light cream
2½ tablespoons commmercial sour cream

Into a small mixing bowl sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. With a fork, gradually stir in the light cream, then the sour cream. Drop in 6 portions, several inches apart, on an ungreased small cookie sheet.

Bake in a 450-degree oven until tinged with brown—12 to 15 minutes. Serve hot with butter. Makes 6.

If you've had trouble with pan-broiled steaks because they curled up while cooking, try cutting slits in the edges of the meat before putting it in the pan.

Cooks Can Mix Cheese Dressing

A simple tossed salad or a wedge of lettuce will take on special appetite appeal when topped with this delicious blue cheese dressing.

Blend ½ cup (about 3 ounces, crumbled) American blue cheese with ¼ cup salad oil. Add ¼ cup vinegar, ¾ cup lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1 cup thousand island dressing. Mix well and spoon over salad or lettuce wedge. Garnish with chopped hard-cooked eggs. Makes about 2 cups.

RECIPE

RUM SOUR

The first sour was a rum sour, made 50 years before the Mayflower. Still unsurpassed.

1 oz. lemon juice and 1 tsp. sugar (or use a prepared mix). Add 1½ oz. gold or amber Puerto Rican rum, shake with ice, strain into a sour glass, and garnish with fruit.

RECIPE RECIPE

SPAGHETTI AMERICAN STYLE — Always room for another good recipe for spaghetti and this one combines ground beef, frankfurters and a subtly seasoned sauce — a sure-fire family favorite.

Lemon Peel Helps Flavor

A wise choice for off time meals is a make-ahead gelatine dessert. Quick, simple and always refreshing, these cool treats can be varied with fruit and flavoring. This recipe for Lemony Gel with Pineapple Bits is made especially delicious with the addition of ½ teaspoon of lemon peel and a can of pineapple tid-bits.

Lemony Gel with Pineapple Bits

1 package (3-oz.) lemon flavored gelatin
½ teaspoon lemon peel
1 cup boiling water
1 can (13½-oz.) pineapple tid-bits

Dissolve contents of gelatin package and lemon peel in boiling water. Drain pineapple, saving syrup. Add enough water to pineapple syrup to make 1 cup. Add this to the gelatine mixture.

* * *

Chill gelatin until thickened. Add pineapple tid-bits. Refrigerate until set. 4 servings.

Hamburger-Hot Dogs Top Plate of Spaghetti

The first recorded reference to a dish made of dough and served with a sauce is in an eighth century Greek work. So in one form or another, macaroni has a long and delicious history in many countries of the world.

In the United States, pasta is available in about 150 different shapes and sizes and is firmly entrenched as a family favorite. And since it's a time and money saver too, there's always room for another good spaghetti recipe.

This one is well worth clipping. It's a sure-fire combination of ground beef shaped into thin rectangles, topped with a slice of cheese and wrapped around a frankfurter.

* * *

After broiling for about 5 minutes the meat rolls are arranged on a bed of hot spaghetti and the all-important sauce poured over all. Subtly seasoned, this is made with an envelope of spaghetti sauce mix with mushrooms, tomato paste and water.

Spaghetti American Style

½ pound ground beef
4 slices American or process cheese
4 frankfurters
1 envelope (1½ oz.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms
1¾ cups cold water
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
½ pound spaghetti, cooked

Shape ground beef into four thin rectangles and place a slice of cheese on each rectangle. Wrap rectangles around frankfurters with ground beef on the outside; press edges together to seal. Broil 5 to 6 minutes, turning once; keep warm until ready to serve.

* * *

Meanwhile, combine contents of sauce mix envelope, water and tomato paste. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. For serving, arrange meat rolls on hot cooked spaghetti.

Pour hot spaghetti sauce over the spaghetti and meat. 4 servings.

Buttermilk Has Good Qualities

When you drink a glass of cold buttermilk, you can count on 90 calories. With buttermilk, sacrificing calories doesn't mean a sacrifice in enjoyment. Buttermilk's smooth and mildly acidic flavor yields thirst quenching power that adds pleasure to good eating.

The tangy flavor of buttermilk results from a special bacterial culture. Salt is usually added to help bring out the natural taste.

* * *

For variety, try a half-and-half combination of buttermilk and tomato juice. Or, combine 1½ cups each of buttermilk and pineapple juice with 2 tablespoons lemon juice and ¼ cup sugar.

Buttermilk and other dairy products are plentiful, reports the Consumer and Marketing Service. For a light and luscious speciality fare try:

CHOCOLATE-BUTTERMILK WAFFLES

Separate 3 eggs and melt ½ cup butter. Beat egg yolks, gradually mix in the cooled butter and 2 cups buttermilk. Sift together 2 cups flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda and ½ teaspoon salt.

* * *

Add liquid to dry ingredients and mix only until batter is smooth. Beat egg whites until peaks form and fold into batter. Pour into preheated waffle baker and sprinkle with semi-sweet chocolate bits, about ¼ cup per waffle.

Serve piping hot with a sprinkling of confectioner sugar or a scoop of ice cream. Makes 8 waffles.

Use Garlic Press

If you want to make a quick easy job of mincing onions so that they will be fine, cut them into small chunks and then put them through the garlic press. This does away with the disagreeableness of this chore, and the onions come through finely minced as you want them.

Only you can prevent slogans

Yes, folks, careless reading and listening to slogans can brainwash you into a dull rut. When a big smokescreen of fiery hoopla and blazing headlines tells you to buy this soft drink or that soft drink, you may not see the forest for the trees. Like missing the gingery flavor of Vernors. And we couldn't bear that. You'd be missing a unique flavor and taste that no other soft drink has. Why, Vernors is so different it doesn't even need a slogan. Whether it's Vernors or Vernors One-Calorie, its flavor just can't be described in words that do it justice. So next time you're on a picnic or a hike in the woods, bury all those slogans that are cluttering up your mind and think clear. Think and drink Vernors. Remember, only you can prevent slogans.

~~Vernors is zippy, tangy, jim dandy, drink~~

Running into the unlucky expert makes us thankful for a little good luck. He sat East and here is his hard luck story:

JACOBY

"With both sides vulnerable I dealt and picked up my usual losing hand. My partner opened the bidding with one diamond but North doubled and the best I could do was to find a two diamond bid.

"South tried two spades and if my partner had just kept still North would probably have passed and South would have made a nice part score. Still, I can't blame my partner for competing.

★ ★ ★

"He had pretty good defense against any game contract and was not at all upset when it turned out that his rebid caused North to compete to three spades. Of course, South went on to the game.

"My partner opened the king of diamonds and I played the 10. I was hoping that he would underlead his ace to give me a chance to lead my jack of hearts but my partner continued by cashing his ace of diamonds. Then he shifted to his six of clubs.

"I put on my seven. South won; took a spade finesse and then made the mistake of trying to get back to his hand with a second club. My partner trumped and all he had to do to save game and rubber would be to lead his king of trumps and wait for a heart trick but my partner was not going to do anything that sensible.

★ ★ ★

He led a heart right up to South. South took his queen of hearts, drew the last trump and discarded his remaining two hearts on the ace and king of clubs."

South had tried to get set, but West had refused to help him. Strangely enough, had West led a low diamond at trick two South would probably have made the hand without much trouble.

He would take the first heart with his ace; finesse the trump, return to his hand with a club, draw trumps after a second finesse; cash his second high club; enter dummy with a fourth trump, discard two of his hearts on dummy's top clubs and wind up losing only one heart trick.

CARD Sense

Q—The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
			1 ♣
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 N.T.	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 7 6 5 ♥ A 2 ♦ 4 ♣ A K 6 5 2

What do you do now?

A—Pass. Your partner knows that you have at least 10 black cards and has chosen to bid three no-trump. Respect his judgment.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two no-trump over your two spades your partner bids three spades. What do you do now?

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Delay where messages, journeys are concerned is indicated. Some details may have been overlooked. Not wise to leave basics to anyone else. Be there in person — Stick to task.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may be impatient where finances enter picture. Realize necessity of requisitions, certain amount of red tape. If objective, you avoid needless displeasure. Pleasure indicated tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Some personal affairs may be retarded, delayed. Some details demand attention. Unless you give it, you compound errors, delay. Accent today on home, security and prosperity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some who have much to do with you hold back on opinions, decisions. Keep open mind. Give and receive suggestions. Day when ideas flow. Clash of thoughts provides electric excitement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take the cash and let the credit go. Means today see through false flattery. Get what's coming to you. Your responsibility to family should take precedence. Act accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may feel much of your effort is at a standstill. This gives you a chance to stand back and review. People at the top are making judgments. Most tend to be in your favor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 3-Nov. 21): Delay in travel, correspondence may highlight day. Time to come out of emotional shell. State your needs. Live up to potential. Fulfill responsibility.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some who handle your money appear indecisive. You may end one relationship and begin another. If you balance sentiment with logic, you protect yourself from deception.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Through diplomacy you can discover methods planned by opposition. You're due for special recognition, perhaps a promotion. Be kind, considerate and gracious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sudden moves related to work, co-workers, people who serve you prove significant. Accent on message received and how you react. Study your paper for special hints.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may find the truth in relation to member of opposite sex. It may not be pleasant, but will give you strength. Stand tall. Adhere to principles. Be creative. Express your opinions.

IF THURSDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are restless, but love your home. You seem filled with contradictions but generally know what you really need. You end relationship — this could prove constructive.

Seaman Guilty in Ship Blast

U. S. Says Terrorism Linked to '63 Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — A member of the Seafarers International Union SIU faces another 10 years in prison after conviction for the Sept. 6, 1963, bombing of the Canadian freighter Howard L. Shaw in Chicago's Calumet Harbor and other acts of terrorism.

The bombing did an estimated $25,000 damage to the ship and $4,000 to a nearby dock.

Alvin J. Cupp, 36, La Follette, Tenn., was already serving a five-year term for conspiracy in six bombings and two shootings in three states. Prosecutors charged the terrorism was carried out to support an SIU strike by its Canadian branch against the Upper Great Lakes Shipping Co.

In U.S. District Court Tuesday, Cupp received a 10-year term in the ship bombing, to be served along with the conspiracy sentence. He also drew one year for transporting dynamite from La Follette to Chicago, to be served with the 10-year sentence, but after the conspiracy term.

3RD CONVICTION

Cupp will begin the two terms after serving the remaining three years of a five-year sentence imposed at Marquette, Mich., in 1965 for the bombing of railroad tracks.

The conspiracy conviction stemmed from the June 6, 1963, firing of shots into the homes of a grain company employe and a grain elevator owner.

★ ★ ★

The conspiracy conviction also covered the bombing of railroad tracks in several Ohio cities in the summer of 1963.

Four other persons indicted with Cupp are scheduled to go on trial Sept. 30. They are Joseph A. Tanner, 48, Dearborn Heights, Mich.; Lawrence Rice, 38, Trenton, Mich.; Jack Pearl, 36, Cherry Hill, N. J.; and Walter R. Chipman, 32, Houston, Tex.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Lawrence Morrissey, the chief prosecutor, contended during the trial that the acts of terrorism were part of a conspiracy to support an SIU strike by its Canadian branch against the Upper Great Lakes Shpiping Co.

2 in Hospital, One Charged in Shooting

A Pontiac husband and wife were hospitalized — the husband under arrest — after both suffered gunshot wounds following a reported argument at their home early today.

Listed in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital is Mrs. Phenix Aaron, 22, of 262 Prospect. She was shot once in the abdomen, according to city police.

★ ★ ★ ★

Her 27-year-old husband, shot once in the arm, was admitted for treatment following the 2:25 a.m. incident. He was not reported seriously injured.

Investigators said Mrs. Aaron told them her husband first choked her, then shot her after she pulled away during an argument.

SHOT HIMSELF

She said he then shot himself in the arm and ordered her to tell police she had shot him.

Police placed Aaron under arrest for attempted murder at the hospital.

★ ★ ★

A 22-caliber revolver and four spent shell casings were impounded at the home, according to officers.

Low-Cost Flights Offered in India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian Airlines this summer will offer a unique low-cost air passenger service.

Passengers in New Delhi, Bombay, Calcutta and Madras may board four-engine turbo-prop Viscounts late at night and fly with the nightly airmail service to Nagpur, a city in northeastern Maharashtra state located almost equidistant from the four cities.

In Nagpur, the passengers wait 90 minutes while mailbags are transferred; then they may board a plane for any of the other three cities, arriving about daybreak.

Ford Reports 9 Pct. Boost in May Sales

DETROIT (AP) — With Ford Co. reporting a nine per cent increase in sales last month over May 1967, new car sales in the United States by the four major auto manufacturers have soared past the 3.5-million mark for the year.

Ford reported Tuesday its new car sales for May totaled 210,031, compared with 192,947 for the same month last year.

★ ★ ★

General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp., and American Motors Corp. reported their sales Monday. Their combined figures showed an 8.9 per cent increase in sales last month over May 1967.

★ ★ ★

Sales for the year by the four companies reached the 3,560,989 mark, for the first five months of the year, for an increase of more than 11.3 per cent above last year's totals of 3,198,607.

Ford reported Tuesday that

its new car sales last month were the second highest for May in company history.

Truck sales, which totaled 63,330, were the highest for any May in Ford's history. The combined car and truck sales surpassed the monthly record of 265,151 set in May 1966.

Adjournment in 2nd Kidnap Case Delayed

The arraignment in Oakland County Circuit Court of Laurence Moore in a second kidnaping and rape case was adjourned yesterday for one week.

★ ★ ★

The charges were brought against Moore, 25, of 499 W. Huron, by a 21-year-old Pontiac woman after she read about him in connection with another kidnaping and rape.

★ ★ ★

His arraignment on the first offense is scheduled today before Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer.

★

In that case, Moore is accused of abducting a 19-year-old Pontiac woman and her young brother-in-law April 29. Both kidnapings took place at the Pontiac Mall Shopping Center parking lot.

★ ★ ★

The attorney appointed by Judge Beer to defend Moore, Maurice Merritt of Royal Oak, also will serve as counsel in the second case that will be tried before Circuit Judge William R. Beasley.

Bids to Be Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) The Post Office Department announced Tuesday that it will advertise for bids June 7 for construction of a new post office building in Dundee, Mich.

The Swiss are building short span highway bridges and culverts with thin reinforced concrete arches made up of prefabricated straight segments joined together on the sites, saving up to 30 per cent in construction costs.

Senate Vote Defeats Court Revamp Bill

LANSING (AP) — The Senate today defeated the compromise court reorganization bill.

The Senate voted 21-8 for the bill. A two-thirds majority or a minimum of 26 votes was needed, however, for passage of the House-Senate compromise measure worked out by negotiators last week.

★ ★ ★

The Senate action came after caucuses by both parties. There was little argument on the floor of the upper chamber.

★ ★ ★

Sen. L. Harvey Lodge, R-Waterford, said, "We owe the people of this state the duty to establish a district court system."

'SYSTEM OF CHAOS'

He added that "a system of chaos" would result if the upper chamber did not pass the measure.

The compromise bill passed the House Tuesday by a 76-30 vote.

★ ★ ★

Senate rejection of the measure may send the court issue back into a second House-Senate conference committee, or the Senate could vote to reconsider its action.

Dr. Clark Trial Is Again Reset

The Circuit Court trial of Dr. Ronald E. Clark, a Farmington Township physician charge with manslaughter, has been rescheduled to begin June 17 in Mason in Ingham County.

The case originally was set to begin April 1, but was rescheduled for this week and then changed again.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Clark, 56, is charged in the death of a nurse, Mrs. Grace Neil of Livonia, who authorities say died of an overdose of sodium penathol (truth serum).

★ ★ ★

Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer, who will preside over the trial, moved the trial to Ingham County on the request of Clark's attorney.

★ ★ ★

The change of venue was granted on the grounds that the doctor could not get an impartial trial in Oakland County because of the widespread news coverage the case received.

AF to Expand Sewage Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Tuesday announced plans to expand a sewage treatment plant at Calumet Air Force Station in Calumet County at a cost of $65,000.

★ ★ ★

The Air Force also announced it will award a $485,000 contract for a primary electric power facility at the Sault Ste. Marie Air Force Station.

Bicyclist Hurt in Collision With an Auto

A 16-year-old Waterford Township youth is in satisfactory condition today in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, with leg injuries suffered in a traffic accident about 6 p.m. yesterday.

★ ★ ★

Township police said John N. Meharg of 189 Preston was riding his bicycle south through the intersection of Elizabeth Lake Road and Fernberry when he collided with a car driven by Theodore W. Ellwood, 28, of 4694 Sherbourne, Waterford Township.

★ ★ ★

Police said Ellwood was driving west on Elizabeth Lake Road, passing a line of stopped cars in the westbound lane. The youth was struck, they said, in the eastbound lane as he rode his bicycle from between two of the stopped cars.

City Teacher Talks 'Critical'

Negotiating Teams Call In State Mediator

Negotiations on teacher contracts in Pontiac have reached a critical stage, sources indicate, and a mediator has been called in an effort to settle issues before school closes June 14.

Teacher and administration negotiating teams agreed to request a member of the State Labor Mediation Board to bring both sides closer together, particularly on salary issues, according to Joseph Shara, head negotiator for the teachers.

★

Both Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer and Louis Crew of administration team said they feel a settlement can be reached before school is out, especially with a mediator on the scene.

A key meeting is scheduled for tomorrow when the teacher negotiating team reports back to the teachers.

★ ★ ★

A mediator was called into the negotiations last year at the end of August and shortly thereafter a settlement was reached.

Second Chance for PNH in Baseball Tournament

Pontiac Press Photo

SLIDE BEATS THROW—Clawson's Randy Ross (right) goes into a head-first slide to beat the throw at second base Tuesday night for a successful steal in the third inning. Second baseman Clyde Duncan of Pontiac Central awaits the ball while shortstop Randy Sutt (left) backs up the play and umpire John Geiger moves in for a good view of the close play. Ross was left stranded.

By JERE CRAIG

Pontiac Northern earned a second chance and Clawson scratched out its first shot at the coveted Pontiac Invitational High School Baseball Tournament title tonight by posting semifinal conquests Tuesday at Jaycee Park.

The suddenly jelled Huskies of PNH registered a surprisingly easy 5-0 win over defending champion Southfield with two timely extra-base-hits and impressive steady mound work by two non-senior southpaws.

Junior Rob Clancy and sophomore Jerry Reddeman limited the Blue Jays to one hit in ending Southfield's 14-game victory string in the annual tournament.

★ ★ ★

Clawson couldn't take advantage of four PCH errors (which were offset by sparkling defensive plays), but put together two of its four hits for the game's only run in the last of the sixth inning and a 1-0 win.

It was the Trojan's second straight 1-0 victory in the seventh annual Pontiac Invitational, and prevented Central from joining PNH in what would have been the first All-Pontiac finals in the history of the action.

NORTHERN HOPES

Had the Chiefs prevailed, the tournament would have been assured of its first north Oakland County champion.

PNH avenged its elimination by the Blue Jays in the 1965 finals and 1967 semifinals — when Southfield was claiming three straight championships — with its big win yesterday afternoon.

★ ★ ★

"I've been waiting for that one a long time," a quietly rejoicing coach Arnie Wilson commented while awaiting the start of the PCH-Clawson nightcap.

The Huskies wasted o time in getting the upper hand. A walk, sacrifice and an error set up a run that scored as Don Hayward grounded to third and the throw to the plate failed to catch Bill Vandagriff.

SLAMS DOUBLE

Then after the second out, Dennis McLaughlin bounced a two-bagger off the fence in the left field corner and two runs scored for a 3-0 lead.

The Huskies' only other hit came in the third after a fly ball was misplayed. Hayward ripped a fast ball 360 feet to left field and well over the fence, his second home run in the tourney.

★ ★ ★

The five runs were all pitchers Clancy and Reddeman needed. The two left-handers' curve balls kept the Blue Jay batters off stride and off the bases.

An error by Hayward in the fourth, and walks in the fifth and sixth were the only base runners until Lance Pesci lashed a double inside the left-field-line leading off the final inning for the losers' lone safety.

TITLE GAME

Coach Wilson has both of the southpaws plus Hayward ready for mound duty tonight in the 7:30 p.m. title contest. Clawson's attack isn't potent enough to scare pitchers, but the Trojans' are extremely scarce with the runs they allow the opposition.

★ ★ ★

Last night's triumph over Central extended the scoreless innings chalked up by the John Colosimo-coached hill staff to 18 in a row in the tournament. A third-inning tally by Milford in the Trojans' opening tourney contest has been the only run they yielded.

Left-hander Larry Niedowicz likely will get the call to match teammate Dave Frezza's efforts of Tuesday. The junior right-hander limited PCH to five hits, stranding three Chiefs in the fourth, and two each in the third and seventh innings.

★ ★ ★

The Clawson outfield had only one put out and Frezza whiffed eight. He received the only run he needed in the Trojans' final at bat.

EARLY THREATS

Central's workhorse Vic Quince survived threats in the third and fifth frames with excellent defense support. However, in the sixth Paul Rajala cracked a double off the left-field barrier with two out.

Frezza lifted a foul pop that the PCH infield allowed to fall. The Trojan hurler then walked, and batterymate Bill Miller shot a liner past second base that drove in Rajala with the only run.

★ ★ ★

In the seventh, slow fielding by Clawson's usually sharp infield enabled PCH's Dale Houston and Clyde Duncan to leg out back-to-back singles with one out.

But Frezza regained command by snaring a weak line drive and then fanning the final Chief. The victory is Clawson's 18th in 22 games this spring.

★ ★ ★

Saginaw Valley Conference tri-champion Central finishes with a 15-6 mark for its best season in many years.

Northern is 11-8 now and Southfield ended with a 15-6 record. The tournament is cosponsored by The Press and the Pontiac Parks and Recreation Department.

Tigers' Dobson Sharp in First Starting Job

BOSTON (AP) — Your righthanded starter has pitched superbly and leads 2-0 late in the game. But he puts two runners on and a dangerous left-handed hitter comes to the plate representing the potential winning run.

Do you stick with your starter or switch to a lefthanded reliever?

★ ★ ★

Managers Dick Williams of Boston and Mayo Smith of Detroit gave different answers on the field Tuesday night. But they left the second guessers frustrated as their teams traded 2-0 victories in a split of a twinight doubleheader.

Gary Bell took a three-hitter into the ninth inning of the first game. The Red Sox right-hander tired, however, walking Mickey Stanley with one out and then also losing Bill Freehan with two away.

RELIEF HELP

Gates Brown came to the plate for the Tigers and Williams was at the mound in no time calling for southpaw reliever Sparky Lyle.

★ ★ ★

The Tigers countered with right-handed pinch hitter Jim Price, but Lyle got him to ground into a game-ending force out.

★ ★ ★

"I don't care about shutouts," Williams said. "Bell looked like he was aiming the ball, and Brown's a tough left-handed hitter. What if he tags one."

Ironically, the situation was almost identically reversed in the eighth inning of the second game.

★ ★ ★

Detroit's Pat Dobson, working on a two-hitter and a 2-0 lead, got the first two Boston batters in the eighth, but singles by Jose Tartabull and Joe Foy brought Carl Yastrzemski to the plate.

FIRST START

Dobson, a relief specialist promoted from the bullpen, was starting his first game of the season and never before had hurled a complete game in the majors.

★ ★ ★

The Tigers had a left-hander warming up, but Smith decided to stick with his young righthander and Dobson got Yaz on a fly ball to center field to end the threat.

★ ★ ★

"I didn't seriously consider taking him out," Smith said. "He had good stuff and he was getting them out."

★ ★ ★

Dobson said he wasn't sure how far he could go at the beginning of the game.

The young right-hander said he wasn't tired in the eighth, however, and was happy to stay in there.

★ ★ ★

Dobson allowed another hit in the ninth, windingup with a five-hitter.

Leads Golf Open Qualifying

Bone Overcomes Back Injury

By FLETCHER SPEARS

Gene Bone's back was aching but if his golf game continues at the present pace, he'll be a pain in the neck for the favorites when the U.S.G.A. Open reaches the final stage next week in Rochester, N.Y.

The former Michigan Open and PGA champion hurt his back on the practice range yesterday morning, but it didn't affect his game as he fired a one-under-par 141 over the 6,909-yard Knollwood Country Club course to lead a field of 37 in the 36-hole Open Sectional qualifying round.

Bone, the Pontiac player who is now head pro at Bay Pointe Golf Club, was one of five players at Knollwood who picked up spots in next week's 150-man field for the U. S. Open.

Making the grade along with Bone were pros Bob Panasiuk, an assistant to Mac McElmurry at Knollwood and Bill Bisdorf of Grosse Ile; plus amateurs John Schroeder of LaJolla, Calif., and Melvin (Bud) Stevens of Livonia.

Stevens, who led the 'local' phase of the qualifying a couple of weeks ago, just squeezed in under the wire.

He and Don White of Northville were deadlocked for the fifth spot with 145s, and Stevens took the berth with a birdie-3 on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Talking about the ailing back, Bone said, "It didn't both my swing,. That was okay but it really bothered me while I was walking."

Bone, 36, ready for his fourth trip to the U. S. Open, had every thing going well on the couse and his one-shot margin brought him a $300 check.

The popular Bone made it to the U. S. Open in 1959 and 1961, failing to make the cut either time. Two years ago in San Francisco, he went the full distance and collected $725.

Bone was one-under-par on his first round and after a brief problem with his driver at the start of the second round, he settled down and played two-under-par golf over the last 16 holes.

★ ★ ★

Included in Gene's round were seven birdies, coming on putts ranging from two to 30 feet. His only real problem came on the first two holes of the second round when he pulled both drives and bogied both holes.

Bone hit the irons well all day and one of his best shots came on the 620-yard, par-5 14th. He banged a drive, a 2-iron and then set a 9-iron shot four inches from the pin for a tap-in birdie.

Panasiuk had the day's best round, an opening 69, but he faded slightly in the afternoon in taking a 73.

Bisdorf, former Colorado Open and PGA champion, is in his first year as a Michigan pro and he's rapidly estalishing his ability as a player. He carded a steady 71-72—143.

A short putt that didn't fall proved costly for Mike Souchak of Oakland Hills.

Needing a par-4 for a 145 that would have put him into the playoff, Souchak three-putted the 18th for a 146. His second putt on the 18th was a two-footer that dipped into the cup and spun out.

The day was a contrast to the cold, rainy weather that plagued the players in the 'local" qualifying two weeks ago.

Yesterday, the temperature stayed in the high 70's and the wind wasn't strong enough to be a factor.

Cleveland Turns Tables on Chisox in 2-1 Victory

By The Associated Press

The Chicago White Sox, a sickly hitting group of ballplayers, got a taste of their own medicine and found out how distastful it is.

The Cleveland Indians spooned it out Tuesday night and forced the Sox to swallow two pitty-pat runs in the eighth inning that brought the Indians a 2-1 victory.

★ ★ ★

An infield hit, a broken bat single and a safe bunt set up the two runs that turned the Sox green. It was the type of popgun attack they have been using to get ahead in the American League.

Luis Tiant made the runs stand up with a four-hitter, one of several sparkling pitching performances in the league on a day of light hitting.

Jim Merritt also yielded only four hits in Minnesota's 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees, and Joe Coleman hurled a five-hitter behind Mike Epstein's two-run homer for Washington's 4-2 decision over Oakland.

EXTRA INNING

California nudged Baltimore 5-3 in 10 innings on Tom Satriano's two-run single in the other game.

The White Sox, true to their code, were locked in a pitching duel between their own Gary Peters and Tiant and led 1-0 on a walk to Peters, a sacrifice and Bill Voss' hit in the third inning. Then the tables turned.

★ ★ ★

The fifth hit off Peters was Chico Salmon's leadoff infield safety in the eighth. Jose Vidal followed with the broken bat hit to right field and Vern Fuller then got the only clean hit of the inning, a line drive to right that tied the score.

Tiant, now 8-4, beat out a bunt when no one covered first base and the decisive run came across on Larry Brown's sacrifice fly.

TIP-TOE ATTACK

Normally slugging Minnesota also restorted to a tip-toe attack behind Merritt, (4-4), on the strength of three sacrifice flies, two by Harmon Killebrew and one by Tony Oliva.

LA Promotes Baseball Exec

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Fresco Thompson of the Los Angeles Dodgers today could celebrate a birthday a day ahead of time as the new general manager of the team.

Thompson, a baseball man as a player and executive for 45 of his soon to be 66 years, succeeds E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi, who resigned to become a part owner of the newly franchised San Diego club of the National League.

★ ★ ★

President Walter F. O'Malley announced the appointment of Thompson, who is in New York attending the free agent draft meetings, Tuesday. The appointment was not a surprise.

Thompson, a popular man noted for his wealth of baseball anecdotes, was a player for nine years. He played for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies, New York Giants and Pittsburgh. He hit .324, his best year, in 1929, and boasted a lifetime average of .298.

★ ★ ★

In recent years, Thompson has been director of the Dodgers' farm system. He broke into baseball as an infielder with Grand Island, Neb., in 1923.

★ ★ ★

Bavasi has been in the Dodger organization since 1940. It appeared he will confer with Thompson, his long time associate, later this week and join the San Diego club over the weekend.

HEADING FOR N.Y.—Four of the five qualifiers in yesterday's sectional round of the U.S.G.A. Open at Knollwood Country Club pose after trodding over 36 holes. They are (from left) Gene Bone of Pontiac; Bob Panasiuk, assistant at Knollwood; John Schroeder of La Jolla, Calif., and Bill Bisdorf of Grosse Ile. The other qualifier was Melvin (Bud) Stevens of Livonia, who was engaged in a playoff while these four were keeping a date with the photographers. The qualifiers now head for Rochester, N.Y., for next week's U.S. Open.

List of Discontent Dwindling in NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — The signing of Bill Truax and Jacques MacKinnon cuts the list of unhappy with terms or conditions for various reasons. pro football veterans who played out their options in 1967 and were looking for new connections.

Truax was the only one to sign back with the Rams.

★ ★ ★

The Lost Angeles Rams Bill Munson, disenchanted with his role of playing second fiddle for Roman Gabriel, the No. 1 quarterback, was traded off to the Detroit Lions. In return the Rams got Pat Studstill, a flanker and punter; Milt Plum, a veteran quarterback, and Tom Watkins, a running back, plus a No. 1 draft choice.

Bucky Pope, the Claw from Catawba who was sensational as a pass catcher in his rookie year, 1964, also played out his option after a few years as a part-time player due to knee surgery. The Rams sent him to the Atlanta Falcons recently for Jim Wilson, a guard, and Bob Sanders, a linebacker.

EX-LINEBACKER

MacKinnon, a former linebacker who was moved to tight end by the San Diego Chargers, signed back with the same club. He played behind Willie Frazier most of last season.

San Francisco still has a big one out. He is Dave Parks, the top-flight split end who was hobbled by injuries last season and wound up on the injured reserve list because of a pulled groin muscle.

★ ★ ★

Minnesota's Merlin McKeever, who was traded to the Vikings a year ago, also is a free agent. He lost out to rookie John Beasley as the No. 1 end in the late stages of the season.

Pat Fischer, the smallest cornerback in the National Football League at 5-foot-9 and 170 pounds, also played out his option at St. Louis. The Cardinals dealt off Jim Burson for Lonnie Sanders in a trade of defensive backs with Washington and also are counting on Bobby Williams to play a corner. If the right deal can be made, Fischer might wind up with some other club, possibly the New York Giants.

Ernie Clark, veteran regular linebacker with the Detroit Lions is the other NFL player who can negotiate with other clubs.

COMPENSATION DUE

In all cases, the player can sign with a club but the NFL club that signs him must compensate his old team. In many cases that has wound up costing the new team a No. 1 draft choice.

There are four AFL players who are in the same free-agent category. Cincinnati has two — Frank Buncom, a linebacker, and Dick Van Raaphorst, a place kicker. Both were with San Diego last year, played out their options and were included in the expansion draft to stock the new team at Cincinnati.

★ ★ ★

The other AFL players are Mary Schottenheimer, a linebacker and Dud Meredith, a defensive lineman, both of whom were with Buffalo last year.

In the case of a player going from one league to another, draft rights in the other league would have to be respected. Not all of the players were drafted by both leagues. For instance, Parks was drafted by San Diego, and Schottenheimer by Baltimore.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

We take night baseball for granted these days — but, do you know when the very first night game in the major leagues was played? . . . It was in 1935, at Crosley Field, Cincinnati . . . Then, surprisingly, it was three more years till another park put in lights . . . The second big league field to be equipped for night baseball was old Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, in 1938.

Here's a question for you golf fans . . . Who are the only two brothers who have ever won the PGA golf championship? . . . They are the Hebert brothers . . . Lionel won the PGA title in 1957 and Jay in 1961.

★★★★★

Did you know that relief pitchers weren't used very often in major league baseball back in the old days . . . For example, in 1904, the Boston Red Sox played 157 games and used relief pitchers in only nine games all year!

I bet you didn't know . . . that hot summer driving is toughest on old, weak tires. It's like shoveling snow with a load heart. Drop in for a set of new Dunlops and as a bonus take home a carefree summer of driving peace of mind.

SHUTOUT FORM — Los Angeles Dodgers' Don Drysdale, with a menacing expression that equals his pitching, put his name in the record book last night by recording his sixth straight shutout, a 5-0 verdict over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The win brought Drysdale's record to 7-3.

Drysdale Halts Pirates With Three-Hitter

Hurler's Feat Breaks Two League Records; Ups Mark to 7-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six straight shutout games . . . 54 consecutive scoreless innings . . . a major league record . . . it belonged today to the Los Angeles Dodgers' brilliant righthander, Don Drysdale.

The 31-year-old Drysdale, as strong at the finish as he was at the start, turned in the three-hit, 5-0 victory Tuesday night against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

★ ★ ★

The feat broke the big league record which had stood since 1904 when an old-timer named Doc White, now 89 and living in Silver Spring, Md., pitched five in a row for the Chicago White Sox.

En route over the Pirates, Drysdale erased the National League record for scoreless innings — 46 1-3 by Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants in 1933.

The major league record is 56, achieved by Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators in 1913.

NEXT TIME

Drysdale can aim at that one when, as he said he would, take his next regular turn on the mound against the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night in Dodger Stadium.

There were 30,422 fans in the stadium Tuesday night to see if Big D could do the seeming impossible.

★ ★ ★

Actually, Don made the impossible look almost easy. He struck out eight batters and only one ball for an out was hit out of the infield.

Meanwhile, as the Dodgers won their fourth of the past five games and 10th of the last 16, Don's teammates went on — for them — a virtual hitting rampage. They got eight.

BUNNING ROUTED

They aslo gave Drysdale something more than the usual 1-0 margin to work out. The Dodgers scored three runs on three hits and a throwing error by pitcher Jim Bunning in the fourth inning. West Parker hammered his second home run of the year in the sixth and the Dodgers added the fifth run in the seventh.

★ ★ ★

"Yes, there was a lessening of tension after the second inning," Drysdale said. He referred to the second when a pitched ball struck Manny Mota on the top of the helmet. Mota dropped to the ground but finished the inning before being replaced.

The closest Pittsburgh came to scoring was in the sixth inning. With one out, Gary Kolb batted for Bunning and blooped a double into left. Matty Alou grounded out, sending Kolb to third.

SLOW ROLLER

Ex-Dodger hero Maury Wills hit a slow roller toward second. Rookie Paul Popovich raced in, grabbed the ball, pivoted, and threw Maury out in one of his two sparkling plays of the game.

The pesky Wills singled with two out in the ninth to send emotions swirling. But Willie Stargell tapped the ball to Popovich, who threw him out.

★ ★ ★

"Was I nervous? well, no," said Popovich. "But I was keyed up and I through, 'Let's get this last one out'."

"This," said Manager Walter Alston, "was one of Don's better shutouts, considering all the percentages going against him. It was better than a no-hitter."

Maddox Records .467 to Pace Big 10

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan's Wolverines could do no better than fifth place this season but once again provided the Big Ten with the league's batting champion.

Outfielder Elliott Maddox, a sophomore, took the title with a .467 average. It was the second straight season, and third in four campaigns that a Michigan player had won the batting crown.

★ ★ ★

Last year's champion, outfielder Andy Fisher plunged from his winning .459 to .132 this year.

Dave Heiss of Ohio State was second to Maddox with .422 followed by Geoff Baillie of Wisconsin with .400. Steve Garvey of Michigan State with .378 and Mike Wymore of Iowa with .375.

TOP HURLER

The winningest pitcher in the league was Lance Primis of Wisconsin with a 5-1 record. Sophomores Dave Carey and Al Hoffman of Minnesota's champions had 4-0 records as did Dan Bielski of runnerup Michigan State.

Mickey Knight of Michigan State had a 3-1 mark but topped the league with an earned run average of 0.79 while teammate Mel Behney had a 3-2 record and led with 44 strikeouts

NFL Contract Unsatisfactory to Gary Beban

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban, the All-American quarterback from UCLA, has rejected the Los Angeles Rams' counterproposal to his contract demands.

President Dan Reeves of the National Football League club announced Tuesday that Beban had informed him of the rejection. Reeves did not indicate what the next stop might be in the contract negotiations.

Through his attorney, Arthur Morse, Beban had presented a proposal several months ago. The announcement was made of the terms asked but the demand was believed in the quarter million dollar neighborhood.

★ ★ ★

At the same time, the club announced signing both veteran Bill Truax and rookie offensive lineman Mike LaHood of Wyoming.

Veteran U.S. Golfer in British Spotlight

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Bob Sweeny, golfing veteran who at 56 has a chance to win his second British Amateur championship, today pinned his success on adequate supplies of snow.

Said Sweeny, of Palm Beach, Calif., "I won the British Amateur back in 1937 and who knows — I might win it again this year."

In his first-round match Tuesday he plugged around Troon's 7,130-yard, par 36-37—73 links to win at the 23rd hole against Britain's R. E. Fulker. The tournament is decided on match play.

Sweeny explained his fitness sytem.

"I don't drink much," he said. "I smoke about 20 cigarettes a day. I used to play golf in Florida in the winter but now I don't."

GOES SKIING

"Instead I go skiing. My daughters, Sharon and Brenda, are at school in Switzerland so every winter I join them there in the mountains and that keeps me fit."

Other Americans still in the field include Frank Strafaci of Miami, playing in his 17th British Amateur at the age of 52; Woodward Millen of Piping Rock, N.Y., and Mark McCormack, the Cleveland attorney who usually is on the championship courses as manager of top professionals such as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

★ ★ ★

Others are Bob Falkenberg of Los Angeles and Brazil, Warren Vanderbush of Closter, N.J., Ed Meister of Cleveland, John Matheny of Fort Worth, Tex., A. Peterson Jr. of Desert Forest, Ariz., Bob Seylor of Westbrook, Ohio, Harry McCallum of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Pete Jacobi of New York.

Dick Chapman, a former champion, and Don Givens, believed to be the first Negro ever to compete in the 83-year-old tournament, were eliminated Tuesday.

SECOND ROUND

Second-round winners Tuesday included McCormack, Vanderbush, Falkenberg, Meister and Matheny. The other surviving Americans all won first-round matches.

McCormack beat Ed Easson of England 1-up, Vanderbush topped Jim Lower of England 2 and 1, Falkenberg beat A. N. G. Brown of Scotland on the 19th hole, Meister beat Ted Davies of Wales 1-up and Matheny eliminated Jim Neilan of Scotland 2 and 1.

Penny '9' Plays Like Million $

Penny Manufacturing ran its record to 8-0 last night with a 13-2 victory over Carpentry Engineering in Walled Lake Industrial Softball action.

In a second game, Larry See banged a home run, triple, double and single but the effort came in a losing cause as he and his Walled Lake Building Maintenance teammates dropped a 19-8 decision to Big Boy Restaurant.

Day's, Ward Win Softball Games

Day's Sanitary Service and Ward Body picked up victories last night in Waterford Township softball action.

Ward (4-3) downed Huron Bowl (2-5), 10-9, and Day's (6-1) turned back Lighthouse Lanes (2-5), 13-3.

Earns Spot in Open

Overtime for Snead

By the Associated Press

It took him three extra holes to make it, but Sam Snead is in there, still gunning for that elusive U.S. Open Golf championship.

The old West Virginia mountaineer, winner of all the world's major titles except the Open, had to go to a playoff to gain one of the last three spots in the Indianapolis sectional qualifying Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Snead, 56, was one of seven players tied at 142 after the regular 36 holes of qualifying play. Three spots were open. He parred the first two holes to remain in contention.

He almost drove the 325-yard third hole at the Country Club of Indianapolis, pitched up within a foot and sank the birdie putt that put him in the championship field of 150 for the Open at Oak Hills Country Club, Rochester, N.Y., June 13-16.

Snead, now only a part-time performer on the pro tour, still is bothered by his lack of success in the Open. He's finished second four times.

"I'll keep trying as long as I think there's any chance at all," he said.

FINAL FIELD

He was one of 71 who gained their spots in the final field in qualifications at eight sites Tuesday. Other sectional qualifications Monday produced 45 others, and 34 more, including defending champion Jack Nicklaus and most of the top name touring professionals, are exempt from all qualifications.

There were some notable and surprising casualties Tuesday, including young Tony Jacklin of England, and five-time British Open champion Peter Thomson.

Thomson, involved in the same playoff with Snead, three-putted the first hole for a bogey and was eliminated.

Jacklin, 23 and winner of the Jacksonville Open this winter in his first year on the pro tour, blew to a second round 82 at Pittsburgh for a whopping 156.

At Montclair, N.J., where a huge field of 119 sought 19 places, the casualties included former Open champion Ed Furgol, and former PGA champs Doug Ford, Jim Turnesa and Vic Ghezzi.

Lew Worsham, a former Open champ, missed at Pittsburgh, and John Brodie, San Francisco 49er quarterback, three-putted seven greens and failed at San Francisco.

Two of the best rounds of the day were fired by Sam Carmichael and John Lively Jr., coleaders at Indianapolis with 134s, six under par.

Kansas City Signs for Playing Site

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Royals, Kansas City's American League expansion baseball team which begins playing in 1969, signed a four-year lease with the city Tuesday for use of Municipal Stadium.

The Stadium, former home of the Athletics who moved to Oakland this season, is currently occupied by the Spurs, Kansas City's pro succer club, and the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League.

The lease allows the Royals to transfer operations to Kansas City's new sports complex without financial penalty any time in the four years. The sports complex is scheduled for completion in 1970.

Birdie Shooter Winds Up Third in Threesome

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Tim Nye of Wichita, Kan., got a birdie 3 on the 275-yard par 4 second hole in the qualifying round of the Kansas State Golf Tournament on Manhattan country club course.

But he lost the hole to the two other members of his threesome, Marcus Gorges, also from Wichita, and Joel Athey, of Kansas State University.

★ ★ ★

Gorges drove the green and sank a 30-foot putt for an eagle.

Athey? He hit a drive that landed short, skipped over another player's bag, rolled onto the green and into the cup for a hole-in-one.

Said Nye: "I get a birdie and end up hitting last off the next tee!"

But Nye finished with a 71 to Athey's 77 and Gorges' 78.

Ecuador to Defend Zone Championship

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Ecuador's Davis Cup tennis Team captain, Danile Carrera, says the pressure will be on the United States team in the American Zone finals opening Friday night at the Charlotte Coliseum.

"We're sort of the defending champions in this," said the non-playing captain of the Eduadorian team, which last year defeated the U.S. team.

He continued, "The United States should be favored. But that's better for us. We like to kill giants."

Carrera said Inclement weather in Florida had kept his team idle for three days, but he observed that "the rest should do the boys some good. It will help them mentally as well as physically."

2 VETERANS

Pancho Guzman and Miguel Olivera are veterans from last year's team. Joining them are newcomers Andres Ante and Washington Suarez.

Pancho Segura, noted Ecuadorian pro, is to help the squad prepare for the matches, serving as coach.

★ ★ ★

Donald Dell, nonplaying captain of the U.S. team, sent his charges through their first Charlotte workout Tuesday.

The draw for first night singles play will be made at a luncheon Thursday. Doubles will follow Saturday night, with the concluding singles Sunday afternoon.

Eastern Michigan Loses in National Tournament

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — William Jewell College of Liberty, Mo., defeated Eastern Michigan 4-3 Tuesday night behind the clutch relief pitching of Rich Stonum, highlighting the second round finale in the 12th annual NAIA baseball tournament.

After Stonum bailed the Cardinals out of a bases-loaded, one out situation in the last of the seventh, William Jewell scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth on Dick Michael's single, an infield out and John Lampton's single to left.

★ ★ ★

The victory moved the Cardinals into the winners bracket finals where they'll meet Central Washington Wednesday night at 8.

Stonum, registering his second save in as many nights, induced Rick Konik to tap the ball to third base and Pat Crilly threw of the ball to the plate, catching Gary Bowen for the second out. With the bases still loaded, Stonum got Tom Allen to line out to first. Stonum also worked his way out of a ninth inning jam, Allowing one run on Knoik's single to left field.

Lampton had three hits and two runs batted in to lead Jewell's attack.

Pros Rule French Net Tourney

PARIS (AP) — With one match still to be completed, the professionals are assured of all four places in the semifinals of the French Open Tennis Championships.

But it wasn't easy. Only one amateur, Boro Jovanovic of Yugoslavia, actually beat a professional, Australia's Fred Stolle, but several pros had to fight for their lives and one of the greatest upsets in the history of the sport was narrowly averted Tuesday.

★ ★ ★

Ion Tiriac, a Romanian amateur, captured the first two sets from Rod Laver, king of the pros. But Tiriac tired, and Laver pulled out a 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 victory.

Ken Rosewall of Australia and Andres Gimeno of Spain had previously won their way into the semis. Veteran Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles led Austarlia's Roy Emerson 7-5, 6-3, 3-6 Tuesday when their match was halted by rain. It will be completed today.

★ ★ ★

"For the first time in my life I was tired during a match," said Tiriac. "He made me run about so much. How could I ever have thought I would beat a man like that!"

Tiriac had the crowd of 6,000 at Roland Garros Stadium in an uproar. Varying the pace from shot to shot, the Romanian forced the left-handed Laver into volleying errors and broke him in the seventh game of the opening set and twice more in the second set.

The final point of the first set came when Laver's shot nicked the top of the net. Tiriac threw himself full-length on the red shale court and got up with red dust all over his clothes and blood running down his right leg. The ball, however, landed outside the line.

★ ★ ★

Tiriac said the match turned on the seventh game of the third set when he wasted two chances to break Laver's service.

"That was my last chance," he said. "From then on I knew I would lose."

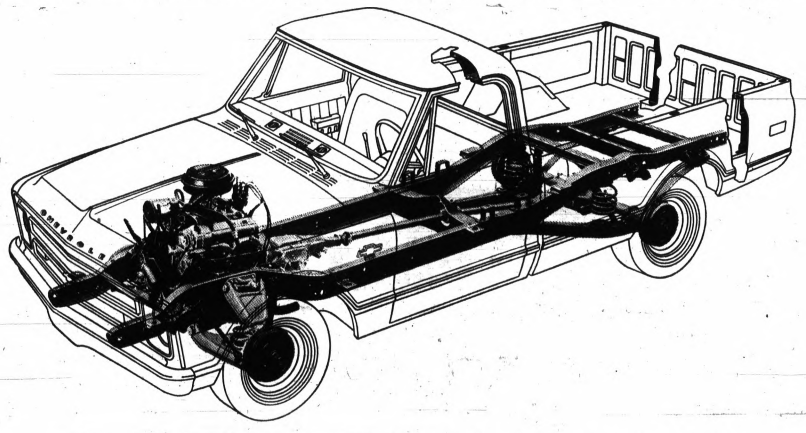
CHEVY PICKUPS HAVE MORE INNER STRENGTH!



In fact, only Chevrolet gives you all these tough truck components and features!

ROAD-BALANCED RIDE—Husky coil springs at all four wheels soak up bumps, assure a smooth ride for people and cargo. Standard on ½-ton and ¾-ton models, all-round coil springs team perfectly with Chevy's famed independent front suspension.

LADDER-TYPE FRAME—The same type used on the biggest Chevy haulers. Heavy-gauge channel side rails are riveted to alligator jaw crossmembers. The result is an extra-strong chassis foundation that withstands tough usage.

DOUBLE-WALL CARGO BOX—Fleetside pickups have double-wall side panels and tailgate to protect exterior sheet metal from damage caused by shifting loads. You wind up with a pickup that stays new looking longer.

DURABLE CAB CONSTRUCTION—Added strength comes from double-wall construction in roof, cowl, door pillars and sills. Special insulation keeps out heat, cold and noise.

FRONT FENDER LINERS—Major deterrent to rust and corrosion. Smooth contoured design prevents mud build-up. Guards exterior sheet metal from corrosive road splash.

Spots Open for Ailing Trackmen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Outstanding athletes hit with illness or injury may yet have a chance to secure a spot on the Mexico City — bound U.S. Olympic team — if they can heal by mid-September, says the head of the nation's track and field committee.

"Operating under the 'unfairness rule,'" Chairman Hilmer Lodge said this week, "our committee is going to try to supply America the best possible athletes for our team in Mexico City. Our purpose certainly is not to keep anybody out."

★ ★ ★

The most noted athletes involved in the ruling are Jim Ryun, Oliver Ford and Richmond Flowers.

AILMENTS

World record — holding miler Ryun has been stricken with mononucleosis. Ford, co-holder of the world's record for the 100 meters with a mark of 10 seconds, suffered an instep fracture. Hurdler Flowers is out with a pulled hamstring muscle.

Normally they would compete in events leading up to the final Olympic trials to be held here June 29-30.

★ ★ ★

But under the "unfairness rule," which calls for final highaltitude tests at South Lake Tahoe starting Sept. 15, it is possible that certain athletes could win a spot on the team without qualifying in the June trials.

★ ★ ★

"Our committee certainly will give careful consideration to cases of injury and illness in order to protect anyone who might make the team," Lodge said.

Schedule Plans Adopted for 14 Teams

NBA Owners May Reduce Expansion

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The National Basketball Association adopted Tuesday another 82-game schedule for 1968-69 while owners discussed a possible review of long-range expansion plans.

The owners eliminated a constitutional by-law prohibiting teams from trading their first draft choices. The by-law was established in the early 1950s when some of the financially troubled teams were selling their first choices. It will be dropped June 4, 1970.

★ ★ ★

Owners from the league's 14 cities began the annual two-day meeting which ends Wednesday.

The board of governors approved the schedule, which will have each club playing each other six times—three home and three away—for 78 games. Four other games will be scheduled for each team within its own division.

The four newest teams—Milwaukee, Phoenix, San Diego and Seattle—will schedule the extra four games with each other as much as possible.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The league also:

● Announced record season attendance of 3,649,511, which is 17 per cent more than 1966-67. Half the increase was attributed to two new clubs, Seattle and San Diego.

★ ★ ★

● Approved sale and transfer of the St. Louis Hawks to Atlanta.

● Tore up Commissioner Walter Kennedy's five-year contract and gave him a new five-year pact at a reported $75,000 a year. It is the third straight year he has been given a new contract with a raise in salary.

EXPANSION

On the subject of expansion, Kennedy said nothing will be decided at the current meeting, but he said:

★ ★ ★

"We can't be committed to a program that was started four years ago and not review it along the way."

The plan calls for the NBA to add two new teams each year until there are 20 clubs, then possibly break into two 10-team leagues.

★ ★ ★

Nothing could be decided at this meeting, Kennedy said, because Ben Kerner, who formerly owned the St. Louis Hawks, was a member of the board of governors and chairman of the expansion committee.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy said he expects an appointment to be made to the board of governors and expansion committee so it will be able to meet and make a report in late August or early September.

Kennedy said expansion can go in three directions:

● First, retain the current plan of two new teams a year.

● Second, add only one team a year.

● Third, "have a moratorium and not expand at all for a year."

NHL Kings Locate New Training Site

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League announced Tuesday they have signed a three-year contract to train at Barrie, Ontario, 55 miles north of Toronto.

★ ★ ★

Larry Regan, general manager of the Kings, said more than 60 players will report for drills starting Sept. 13.

★ ★ ★

Barrie is the home of Kings players Wayne Rutledge and Dale Rolfe. Last season, the Kings played an exhibition game there against St. Louis and drew a capacity crowd of 4,000.

'Old Farmer' Tough in Sulky

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — The horse racing world usually smiles politely when veteran sulky pilot Morris Nixon snaps "I'm just an old farmer" at anyone questioning his occupation.

But deep down it knows better, and sometimes a stand has to be made — even if it means tripping Nixon in a fib.

★ ★ ★

The foot came down last week when he piloted his Kathy N to a one-length victory at Lebanon Raceway.

The odds were not astronomical as the 3-year-old bay mare paid $18.80. But Nixon's age was. He's 83.

JUST FOR SPORT

"I'm in the trotting business just for sport," he quips with a twinkle in his eyes. "You know my real occupation."

But the computors say different.

★ ★ ★

Nixon, the oldest Lebanon driver ever to enter the winner's bracket, has few challengers. The U. S. Trotting Association, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, said the lifelong Lebanon octagenarian is the first to reach the winner's this year.

★ ★ ★

Last year there were two older than Nixon, but neither renewed licenses this year.

The victory was Nixon's first since 1966. That year he had two victories, six seconds and six show finishes.

His best year? "That was about five years ago with my horse (The Blizzard) at Scioto Downs outside Columbus (Ohio). We had three wins and a second in five starts."

GENERAL MANAGER

Nixon's three sons are all connected with horse racing. Corwin, 47, is general manager of the Lebanon track; 50-year-old Gene races at Scioto; Edmon, 50, drives his Little Horn at Lebanon with dad.

★ ★ ★

Closest to Nixon this year in the matter of oldsters is Hector Kirk of Anderson, Ind. The Trotting Association said Kirk is 10 months younger than Nixon.

★ ★ ★

Describing himself as a novice driver — he's been at the game for the past 20 years — Nixon said 1967 was a bad year. Out of 15 starts he could muster but two third-place finishes.

But there's another first who is far ahead of the horses in Nixon's life — his wife Blanche.

"I've been married to the same woman for 63 years — the only woman I ever wanted to marry," he said.

Actually horses come through with a third-place finish, he said after — you guessed it — farming.

Bobby Unser wins the "500" on Goodyear tires

This Memorial Day, the first four cars across the finish line were all on Goodyear tires.

Bobby Unser drove his Eagle-Turbo Offy car to a new Indy speed record of 152.882 miles per hour. He led for 127 of the 200 laps. And his Goodyear tires went the full 500 miles without a single tire change. Behind him, came Dan Gurney in second place. On Goodyear tires.

And Mel Kenyon in third. On Goodyear tires.

And Denis Hulme in fourth. On Goodyear tires.

Unser, Gurney, Kenyon, Hulme — all, just like last year's winner, on Goodyear tires.

Pitchers Ruling Roost in City Softball League

In slowpitch softball, the pitchers haven't a chance. But in the fastpitch, the hurlers rule the roost.

The boys on the mound stood out in four games last night in city league action.

★ ★ ★

Jim Fisk gave up only one hit and struck out six in pacing Local 594's 3-0 victory over Ron's Roost. The winners managed only five hits but two of them came in the three-run fifth inning.

In other games, Town & Country turned back J. A. Fredman, 2-1; Milbur Industries downed Ray's Sunoco Service, 7-1, and Timberlanes Lounge eased past Union Lake, 8-3.

ERRORS HURT

Roger Reynolds yielded only five hits and struck out 11 for Town & Country, and his opponent, Tom Gallagher, perhaps deserved better fate. Gallagher yielded only one hit and T&C's two runs came in the fifth on walks, wild pitches and errors.

Tom Stilwell gave up only two safeties and his teammates backed him with an eight-hit attack in the Milbur victory. Morrison LaPratt led the winners with two hits.

Jim Fields kept seven hits well scattered in leading the Timberlane victory. Jerry Meger, Ted Wharry and Kurt Kuhne led the attack with two hits apiece. Frank Richmond checked in with three of the losers' hits.

Exhibition Tilt Slated

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos announced Tuesday they will play an American Football League exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers in San Antonio, Tex., on Friday afternoon, Aug. 30.

YOU'RE OUT—Umpire Wes Roberts' signal leaves no doubt about the call for runner Terry Villereal (9) at first base early in last night's Pontiac Invitational Tournament game. First baseman Art Burnette of Clawson is ready to toss the ball around the infield after the put out. Clawson upended PCH, 1-0, to reach tonight's final game against Pontiac Northern at 7:30.

Oakland County Lakes Stocked With Browns

A major change in the trout stocking policy for Oakland County lakes has gone into effect.

Conservation Department fisheries crews are replenishing the trout populations in the various two-story lakes with browns instead of rainbows.

★ ★ ★

Only three lakes — Cooley, Teeple and Union — will be restocked with rainbows. All others on the trout list, including small single species waters on state land, will contain browns before the middle of July.

"Studies have shown that our two-story trout lakes may have outlived their usefulness as rainbow waters," said District Fish Biologist Steve Swan.

"Rainbows feed heavily on a micro-organism called daphne and these lakes no longer contain a high enough quantity to maintain this species.

PREDATOR FISH

"Browns are predators, feeding on forage fish. They also are more difficult to catch and the population won't be quickly cropped like it is in the case of rainbows."

Browns have occasionally been caught in Cass Lake for a number of years and others have turned up in lakes along the Huron River system.

★ ★ ★

The browns being planted average five inches, said Swan. If the growth rate follows the pattern of browns the same size stocked in area streams and splake in Maceday Lake, the fish should double in length during the next year.

The legal size is seven inches.

NEW METHOD

Fishing techniques for browns are different. With rainbows, the favorite method is to anchor along a dropoff in the evening and fish near bottom with corn, wigglers, minnows or worms.

Rainbows are a shoal fish and three to six are usually taken at one time.

★ ★ ★

Drift fishing with minnows near the bottom or trolling with deep running plugs are effective methods used for browns on lakes in northern Michigan and other states.

No additional stocking of splake will be made in Cass because of the poor return of quality fish from earlier efforts. Browns have been planted to join with those that have moved into the lake from the Clinton River.

★ ★ ★

A supplementary planting of splake will be made in Maceday this fall.

Kearsley and Paint Creeks also have been restocked with five-inch browns. The Clinton, down from the Drayton Nature Center, also will be planted.

Litterbugs Feeling Pressure From Conservation Officers

LANSING (AP) The fisherman who tosses a beer can out of a boat, or the camper who neglects to haul away his garbage, will feel the long arm of the law tapping him on the shoulder this summer.

The State Conservation department, sick and tired and a little bit disgusted with the litterbugs, is getting tough on violators.

★ ★ ★

"Previously, conservation officers had been a little reluctant to exercise the authority allowed them under the 1963 Anti-Litter Law," said John Anguilm, chief of the department's law enforcement division.

"Arrests were largely limited to those who dumped accumulations of trash on public lands."

THE SPOILERS

The litter problem now has become such a nuisance, Anguilm said, that officers have hardened their attitude toward the spoilers of the outdoors.

Accumulations of glass and tin containers, paper and other rubbish have been left along the state's streams and beaches.

★ ★

Those who leave their rubbish behind them spoil the outdoors for others. They also spoil it for themselves, since private landowners are reluctant to allow the public on their land if they leave it looking like a garbage dump.

Anguilm said the problem has been mounting the last few years with the tremendous increase in the numbers of people using the state's outdoor recreation facilities.

Many of the best and most beautiful trout streams in the north country—the Ausable and Manistee for examples — have some sections where the bottom seems to consist of cans and glass rather than sand and gravel.

The rubbish strewn along Lake Michigan beaches last fall by Coho salmon fishermen — many of them amateur, first-time anglers—stoked the temper of some conservation officers to the boiling point.

The crackdown started then.

Last year, Anguilm reported, there were 101 arrests made and convictions obtained on littering charges by conservation officers.

In just the two months of April and May this year, there were more than 40 litter arrests and successful prosecutions.

Anguilm said the judges and prosecutors are helping in the campaign against litterbugs.

MISDEMEANOR

The violation is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum sentence of $100 fine and up to 30 days in jail.

"Some judges also order those found guilty to work weekends on litter cleanup," Anguilm said. "When the rubbish is dumped on state land, we make it part of the penalty that the violator clean up the mess he made."

Elk Hunt Ban Still in Force

With the northern Pigeon River area's elk herd apparently in balance with its range and causing no major damage to private property, the Conservation Department will not recommend an elk hunting season for this fall.

Reports of department field personnel indicate there has been "considerable" improvement in the area's elk range since the state's first modern-day elk season in 1964. It is also noted that animals have browsed very lightly on cuttings made since then on some 14,200 acres within the elk management unit.

★ ★ ★

In addition to those two positive points, there has been only one complaint of elk damage in the Pigeon River Area during the past year.

Conservation Director Ralph A. MacMullan observes: "Under our authority to hold elk seasons, it must be shown that the animals face food shortages or are causing substantial crop damage. This just isn't the case, and that simply means we are not justified in recommending a season this year."

More Stable Weather Could Help Fishermen

Now that the weather has stabilized, bass fishermen should start making up for the poor results experienced during the long Memorial Day weekend.

The weather was either cool, rainy or warm during the opening four days. Strong winds were prevalent. The bass didn't cooperate.

★ ★ ★

A 4½-pounder leads the bass division of The Press Derby. There have been no entries in the pike class. Winner of each class will receive a $50 savings bond.

Only residents of Oakland County are eligible and the fish must be caught in county waters and brought to The Press sports department for weighing.

Entries will be accepted from 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Weight is the only determining factor.

The scheduled program to control the pollution of Lake Michigan by Alewives will be launched only after the federal government sees the color of the states' money.

The joint federal - state program announced last week was drawn up in the expectation that there will be repetition this summer of last year's massive die-off, when billions of the tiny herring-like fish were washed ashore. Beaches became stinking no-man's lands, some municipal water intakes were clogged and some industries were forced to close down briefly.

★ ★ ★

The program called for contracts with trawling boat operators who would scoop up the dead fish and deliver them to agreed upon sites where the local communities would arrange for their disposal.

Each of the four lake states Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin — was to contribute $62,500, to be matched dollar for dollar by the federal government. Contracts to begin the work were to have been signed early this week.

"But we haven't got the money from the states," a government spokesman said when queried Tuesday.

He said it was "understood" the funds were en route from Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, "but we haven't received them yet."

Tourist Council Salmon Fishing Pamphlet Ready

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Tourist Council is offering anglers — and would-be fishermen — a new publication, "Coho, Chinook and Steelhead in Michigan," that describes the three species and tells where they are most plentiful.

The pamphlet, produced in cooperation with the State Conservation Department, also tells what kind of tackle and bait to use and illustrates the best methods for fishing.

★ ★ ★

Publication of the fish guide was prompted by the Coho salmon and Chinook as well as an increase in Steelhead population in the great lakes.

It is available free by writing to the State Tourist Council in Lansing.

New Fisheries Boat Nears Completion

A new fisheries work boat for use on Lakes St. Clair and Erie by the Conservation Department is nearing completion.

It is expected to be launched late this month or early in July and will be used for experimental netting on Michigan waters in the two lakes.

The new craft is patterned after a fishing trawler and will be christened the "Catfish." It is being built near Toledo.

Handle With Care

Lists Ways of Releasing Trout

A Michigan State University expert has some good advice on how to throw back small trout so they will group up to become keepers.

Michigan law provides that trout must be seven inches long to qualify as keepers.

★ ★ ★

"Small trout must be released carefully," advises Eugene Roelofs, MSU professor of fisheries. "Rough handling will easily kill or injure them."

His tips include:

—Leave the trout in the water as you remove the hook.

—Never lay the trout on sand of gravel as you remove the hook.

EASILY DAMAGED

"Don't hold the trout over the gills. These are the breathing organs and are easily damaged.

—Try not to hold the trout with a dry hand. This removes the protective slime, leaving it more susceptible to fungus and other skin diseases.

★ ★ ★

—When picking up the trout, handle it gently. Squeezing can damage the internal organs.

Earlier, an MSU researcher found out that when trout are reeled in quickly, they have a better chance of survival after release than those that are played to fatigue.

★ ★ ★

There also are some basic rules, known to every experienced angler, for making the most of the legal fish that are caught.

★ ★ ★

These include:

Clean them as soon as you catch them.

—When cleaning the fish, make note of what they have been eating. This supplies your best tip for the most effective bait.

★ ★ ★

—Don't let fish lie exposed to the sun.

—The best creel to keep the trout fresh is a wicker one, allowing in air, and lined with wet moss.

★ ★ ★

—If you have a garden, save the cleanings. They are magnificent fertilizer, especially for roses of tomato plants.

—Bring the fish home in plastic bags and on ice to keep them stream-fresh.

Pele to Play in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Stars announced today they will play an exhibition game June 30 against Santos of Brazil, regarded by many as the finest soccer team in the world and led by "Pele," the world's highest-paid athlete.

★ ★ ★

Stars Vice President Jim Oshust said the match will be the first game between Santos and a member of the North American Soccer League.

The game will be nationally televised, although blacked out locally.

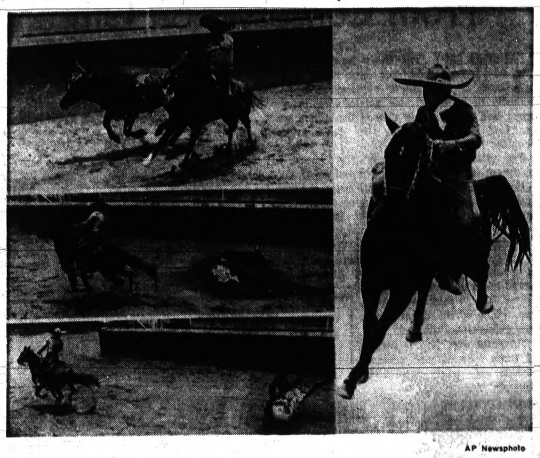
Upper-Class Mexican Cowboys Project Image



AP Newsphoto

MAKING IT LOOK SIMPLE—Using the coleando, this charro grabs the bull by the tail at full gallop and, with a twist, forces the bull to topple over.

By STRATFORD C. JONES

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Not all Mexican executives who doff their tailored suits to don formal dress take a tuxedo out of the closet.

There are many who reach for their cowboy clothes.

★ ★ ★

These men are called charros, and their charro suit is what amounts to a cowboy's tuxedo —neatly tailored to form-fit, elegantly studded with silver and replete with braid.

Although these men are more likely to be punching telephone buttons than cattle during their workday, they have a reportoire of feats of skill which are called upon to perform for nothing.

STAGE EXHIBITIONS

Their charro associations put on exhibitions weekly throughout the country, and they perform for the sheer joy of risking their fingers and necks in dangerous roping and riding feats.

The National Charro Association in Mexico City has 491 members, all born or raised to the tradition. Throughout the republic there are 329 such associations, with an estimated 20,000 members.

★ ★ ★

These men are of the upper class, and chances are that few have ever worked as ranchhands. Yet the "suertes" or feats that they do are as tough as those any member of the Rodeo Cowboy's Association would be called upon to perform.

Perhaps the most commonly recognized suerte is "la suerte de colear," which means the task of tailing. The mounted charro, without leaning out of his saddle, must grab the tail of a bull he's chasing and twist it to force him to the ground.

ENGAGE IN BULLDOGGING

They also engage in bulldogging, or leaving the saddle at full gallop to wrestle a bull to the ground. Riding unbroken bulls and horses and roping from horseback are also in their bag of tricks.

Sometimes they come out of it minus fingers, as U.S. cowboys do when they "stack dallies"—build loops—on their saddle horn instead of tieing the rope hard and fast to the horn before throwing. As the roped animal puts distance between himself and the saddle horse the rope sings out and the dallies close, biting off any fingers that are left inside them.

★ ★ ★

The charros bear these injuries with pride, whereas to the modern U.S. cowboy they're most often the mark of a careless roper.

Although the charros can perform all these feats, as well as standing rope tricks of the Roy Rogers variety, the image they project is the most important aspect of their avocation.

KEEP CONCEPT ALIVE

They are keeping alive the concept of the Mexican as the "hacendado," or great rancher-landowner that went out with the expiration of the days of colonization and was dealt its death blow by the revolution of 1910.

The charro wears a sombrero, wide and hard with its curled-up brim decorated with silver or gold braid, a short jacket, or chaleco, and panta, or pantalones, both black with silver buttons.

★ ★ ★

For riding he has a different costume, much tougher, often including leather pants or chaps. Different regions of Mexico have spawned variations of the costume.

The charros are jealous of their costume, and cast derision on the marichis, many of whom dress charro-style to sing and play their musical instruments.

★ ★ ★

U.S. movies and television have spread the U.S. fashions south, but the charros are having none of it.

Martha Washington is the only woman whose face has appeared on U.S. currency. She was pictured on the face of $1 silver certificates in 1886 and 1891 and on the back of $1 silver certificates in 1896.

Green Beret Team Sitting on 'Bullseye'

DAK PEK, Vietnam (AP) — "It's just like sitting on a bullseye, waiting for someone to start shooting."

Special Forces Capt. Michael L. Sizemore of Christiansburg, Va., summed up the sense of unease here. "We know they are out there. Sometimes we can see their flashlights as they move at night."

★ ★ ★

The Dak Pek Special Forces camp sits at the head of a long, pleasant valley that stretches south to Dak To, scene of bitter fighting last November. The possibility of another major assault is real.

But the 12-man Green Beret team, with the fall of Kham Duc on May 14 still fresh in their minds, does not want to leave.

Maj. Samuel E. Link, Columbus, Ohio, commander of the Special Forces team, was adamant: "We don't mind being attacked. But I will tell you we don't want to evacuate. We don't want to give them another smashing success."

ENEMY ROAD

This camp, sitting on three closely spaced mounds and surrounded by jungled ridgelines, is only 26 miles from Kham Duc. Just 10 miles to the north lies the enemy's Alpha Road, a graded road that enters South Vietnam from Laos and connects with Route 14, the main north-south route through the highlands.

The Green Berets know the road is carrying heavy traffic each night. Capt. Norman W. Spaulding of Sacramento, Calif., is the operations officer assigned to the camp and controls air strikes in the area. Pilots have reported seeing a maze of tread marks, but only from bulldozers. Tanks have not been confirmed in the area.

★ ★ ★

But so far the traffic from Laos has been moving north, the Green Berets believe.

Several military intelligence officers in these areas believe the North Vietnamese might make an attempt to grab these areas and claim a large chunk of western Vietnam while the Paris peace talks continue.

WAR ON DOORSTEP

For the men at Dak Pek the war is on their doorstep.

The seriousness of the situation was highlighted not long ago when gunships from the 1st Air Cavalry Division moved in for several days of searching in hopes of pinpointing the main North Vietnamese forces before the attack. Air strikes have been increased to 20 a day.

Both Link and Sizemore, lean veterans of this war, believe it would take a full North Vietnamese division to overrun the camp. "And we would take most of them out before they got here," Link added.

★ ★ ★

A major concern for the Special Forces team are the Montagnard villagers living in the valley. There are 8,000 of them, the main part of the Jeh tribe.

"Charley — the Vietcong — has been sending some of these villages messages recently," Link said. "They told them that when they take this camp they will force them to become bearers for them. But if they come over to their side now they won't be hurt. So far nobody has gone."

Use Hot Water to Heat Extras

Millions of home owners are using their hydronic (hot water) home heating systems for other than heating chores, claims the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

Some use it to automatically melt snow off their driveways. Others heat swimming pools, greenhouses, add-on rooms and attached garages.

LADIES AT LEISURE — The ladies, or charros, riding sidesaddle and wearing period costumes, get into the show with the rayada, a maneuver which reins the horse, under full gallop, to a skidding stop on its hind feet. When it works, there are two marks in the arena from the hoofs while the rider remains mounted (left). When it doesn't work, there are marks on the rider, who doesn't stay aboard (right).

Democrats Collecting Political Names

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The presidential candidates seem to be playing the namesake and relic game with unusual fervor this year.

You score points in the game — hardly new in American politics — by getting someone who was named for, related to or associated with a popular political figure of the past to publicly endorse your candidate.

★ ★ ★

For example, it always was considered among Democrats to be a coup in the period after 1945 to have a Roosevelt — Eleanor, James or Franklin D. a campaign.

A few days ago, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign scored two clear namesake points by enlisting Adlai Stevenson III and G. Mennen Williams Jr.

GRONOUSKI SIGNED

An earlier relic point went to Humphrey for signing up John Cronouski, postmaster general under John F. Kennedy.

Humphrey also rang up some impressive points when he visited former President Harry S. Truman, who introduced the vice president to reporters as "the next president." Whether Truman's endorsement is worth delegate votes is not a consideration in the game.

★ ★ ★

Humphrey, of course, is at a disadvantage because Sen. Robert F. Kennedy is a seminamesake and full-fledged relic in his own right.

Kennedy made even more points when he enrolled the likes of Pierre Salinger, Theodore Sorensen, Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and Kenneth O'Donnell in his campaign.

O'BRIEN FOR RFK

Kennedy's prize, however, was Lawrence O'Brien, who not only is considered one of the more savvy political operatives in the country but, like Gronouski, is a genuine relic of both the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Although in times past the Republicans would welcome a John Roosevelt into their camp with fanfare, the game is not played as enthusiastically in the GOP.

Wooded Fun Site

Outdoor recreation is permitted on 51 million of the nation's 70 million acres of tree farms, most of which are concentrated in regions of Southern Pine growth. Tree farming is an industry-sponsored program which encourages the practice of good forest management by private landowners.

Wipes Out Loss, Moves Up

Mart Weathers RFK Shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market weathered the shock of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's shooting, wiped out a mild initial loss, and moved higher early today.

The market canceled a 2-to-1 ratio on the downside and showed a preponderance of gainers in the late morning. The Dow Jones Industrial Average and the New York Stock Exchange Index moved higher.

★ ★ ★

Brokers said that some sort of corrective action was expected in any event after five days of advance, including Tuesday's boisterous session.

Boeing rose more than 2 points. Xerox erased a 2-point loss and moved fractionally higher.

TICKER TAPE LATE

The Ticker tape was late for a few minutes in early trading as uncertainly reigned over the effects of the Kennedy shooting.

Gains of about a point were scored by Chrysler, Goodrich, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Control Data, Polaroid, U.S. Smelting and Certain-Teed. Merck and Owens-Illinois were off about a point each.

★ ★ ★

Goodrich was unchanged at 59 on a huge block of 232,000 shares. American Telephone eased ⅛ to 48¼ on a block of 28,500 shares. Pacific Petroleums was unchanged at 19¾ on 10,100 shares.

★ ★ ★

On Tuesday, The Associated Press Average of 60 Stocks rose 2.8 to 337.7, a new high for the year.

Grand Rapids City Workers Go on Strike

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Non-uniformed city employes in Michigan's second largest city walked off their jobs at one minute past midnight this morning after overwhelmingly turning down a city offer for a new contract.

Edwin A. Muste, president of Local 1061 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, said more than 500 of the 725 union members attended a meeting Tuesday night and voted by a 92 per cent margin to turn down the city's latest offer.

The strike by the nonuniformed city employes, including almost every city employe from secretaries to sanitation workers, left only policemen, firemen and supervisory personnel to handle city functions.

A Look at TV

Tragedy in Focus

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Like a nightmare, the shooting of Sen. Robert Kennedy early today in Los Angeles was reported live to televiewers who had stayed up late watching Tuesday's coverage of the California primaries.

It was the middle of the night for most of the nation—shortly after midnight, Pacific time—when the horrible sight of the aftermath was suddenly seen by those who had just watched Kennedy make a victory statement following the presidential primary.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy had just left the podium in the ballroom of the Ambassador Hotel and was headed elsewhere when the televiewer suddenly saw a wild, panicky rush of photographers and other observers to a place off-camera. There were wails and screams of anguish by men and women as pandemonium broke loose, and people rushed to microphones to beg for a doctor.

SICKENING MEMORY

And as all three networks focused on the tragic scene, the sickening memory of other shootings of public figures—including Kennedy's brother, the late president—came back to televiewers who had participated traumatically in the aftermaths of past assassinations as reported on the home screen.

First there had been the killing of John F. Kennedy himself, and then of his alleged assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald—the latter shooting witnessed as it actually happened in Dallas, where the president had been shot.

★ ★ ★

And only recently, one watched on television as the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King in Memphis was reported, and as the massive funeral was covered while the killer, still on the loose, was being sought.

As reports on Sen. Kennedy's condition came in on television, there were haunting parallels in one's memory — for just as his brother had been shot in the head, so the senator also suffered a wound there.

VIDEOTAPE RERUNS

Viewers tuning in late to the events of early today were kept informed of the dreadful immediate aftermath by reruns of videotape. There also were eyewitnesses. And one report had it that when Kennedy was shot, and was on the ground in shock with crowds milling around him, he looked up and said: "Is everybody safe?"

★ ★ ★

There was the report of a suspect being seized. And then, as the initial shock began to wear off slightly, one remembered how only minutes before Kennedy had been happy, buoyant and energetic in his nationally televised victory statement. And one suddenly was depressed beyond words.

★ ★ ★

The report was that Kennedy's wife, Ethel, had been calm after the shooting. And it seemed that only yesterday one had heard the same words on television about Jacqueline Kennedy. Dallas. Memphis. Los Angeles. You sit there and look at the television screen, and say: What's wrong with us?

Cuban Returns $120 He Received on Arrival in U.S.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban refugee has sent the U.S. government a check for $120—"The total amount I received on my arrival in the United States."

The refugee, Enrique Saez, now living in Wilmington, Del., added in a letter to the government-operated Cuban Refugee Center: "Also, a coat given me when I resettled to the north has been donated to the Goodwill Industries here in Wilmington."

Refugee Center records show Saez arrived by boat at Key West, Fla., Dec. 21, 1962, at the age of 19.

Kennedy Is Critically Wounded in California; Gunman Captured

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — A sullen, anonymous young gunman shot down Sen. Robert F. Kennedy early today at the moment of victory in the California primary election that boomed his prospects of following his assassinated brother in the presidency.

Kennedy underwent more than three hours of surgery today to remove a 22-caliber pistol slug from his brain. He then was transferred to an intensive care unit.

The senator, whose brother, President John F. Kennedy, was assassinated by a rifleman in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, was shot shortly after midnight.

TRIUMPHANT TALK

He had just made a triumphant talk to 2,000 cheering supporters in the Ambassador Hotel.

After a slow count, he had seized the victory over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy in the race for California's 174 Democratic convention votes.

★ ★ ★

Of eight shots fired, one bullet lodged in Kennedy's brain and another caused a superficial shoulder wound.

Five other persons were wounded in varying degrees.

CAPTURED IMMEDIATELY

The gunman was captured immediately. He was identified as Latin-looking, about 25, of medium height and with curly hair. He wore blue jeans and tennis shoes.

The gunman refuses to identify himself or make a statement, Police Chief Thomas Reddin reported.

★ ★ ★

"We describe him as a male Caucasian, around 25, 5 feet 5 and about 120 pounds, swarthy complexion. His hair is described as wiry or bushy."

The gunfire took place in a kitchen corridor of the hotel.

One witness said the shots came so close together that he could hardly believe they were fired from one gun.

The gunman was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

★ ★ ★

Three of the others also hit were identified as Paul Schrade, 30, a United Auto Workers leader; Irwin Stroll; and William Wiesell.

Related Stories, Pictures, Pages A-2, A-4, A-5

Redding declined to say where the gunman was held, but added he is under 24-hour guard.

IN KITCHEN AREA

Here is what happened:

The gunman appeared in the kitchen area behind the bandstand of the Embassy Room, where Kennedy backers, including movie stars and students, were listening to their candidate's light-hearted victory speech.

The gunman carried papers, which he spread out on a stainless steel table. One waiter described them as sketches.

★ ★ ★

The backstage area was crowded with waiters, press and others, and the man's presence caused little notice.

Kennedy finished his speech and began working his way off the platform and into the kitchen, followed by close associates and members of his family.

ENVELOPED IN CROWD

His wife, Ethel, had been at his side during the speech, but she became enveloped in the crowd. Kennedy gazed around as if searching for her.

At that moment the gunman pushed through the throng, reached his arm around others in front of him and shot the senator.

★ ★ ★

Roosevelt Grier, tackle for the Los Angeles Rams, grabbed the man's arm. Joe LaHive, a local Kennedy campaigner, wrested the gun away. Grier and Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson lifted the assailant and spread him on a steel kitchen table.

"Nobody hurt this man!" one of the athletes shouted. "We want to take him alive!"

WOMEN SCREAMING

Women were screaming.

Kennedy was stretched on the floor, his face covered with blood.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy seemed to hear nothing. His face was blank, his eyes staring sightlessly.

Grier, Johnson and two or three others held the gunman on the table 10 feet away. Screams began to be heard in the ballroom as news of the shooting spread to the campaigners, who had been cheering their candidate two minutes before.

'LET ME EXPLAIN'

"Let me explain:" the gunman shouted. "I can explain."

A priest handed Kennedy a rosary, and he clutched it in his hand, but the priest was jostled aside.

Kennedy was given emergency treatment by a doctor summoned from the ballroom. Then he was wheeled on a stretcher to the hotel service elevator and put into an ambulance.

★ ★ ★

He was treated at Central Receiving Hospital, where the Rev. Thomas Peacha administered last rites of the Roman Catholic Church. Kennedy was then taken a few blocks to Good Samaritan Hospital, where he entered the intensive care unit.

GUNMAN UNHARMED

The gunman, apparently unharmed, was rushed through the Ambassador lobby by police 10 minutes after the shooting. By this time the crowd knew that Kennedy had been shot.

"Kill him! Lynch him!" onlookers shouted. They milled forward to get at the man, but the police ran him down the stairs next to the famed Cocoanut Grove nightclub and got him to the central jail.

★ ★ ★

Chief Reddin said there was only one suspect in the case, the man in custody.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said today the FBI is investigating every possible angle in the shooting—including the possibility of conspiracy. But he added at a news conference, "according to information that I have at this moment, we have no evidence of conspiracy."

Robert F. Kennedy Lies Gravely Wounded At Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel Moments After He Was Shot Early Today

Suspect in Shooting Still Not Identified

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man suspected of shooting Sen. Robert F. Kennedy refuses to identify himself and has said but one word — "yes" since his arrest, Police Chief Thomas Reddin said today.

"He just sits there and says nothing," Reddin told a news conference.

★ ★ ★

The man is the only known suspect, he said.

The chief said the gunman fired all eight shots in an Iver Johnson 22-caliber pistol when he blazed away during a Kennedy California presidential primary victory celebration at the Ambassador Hotel.

HIT TWICE

The New York Democrat was hit twice in the head, and one bullet lodged in the brain.

Four or five other persons were wounded.

Reddin gave these details.

● The gunman carried a few scraps of paper, not identified, but had no identification. "We made a skin search of him, checking that he had nothing on him to take his life." He is under 24-hour guard.

● "We have advised him of his rights. He doesn't want a lawyer now."

Questioning continues at Central Jail, with a representative of the district attorney's office. Any statements will be tape recorded, which Reddin says was not done after the Dallas assassination in 1963 of Kennedy's brother, President John F. Kennedy.

● "We describe him as a male caucasian, around 25, 5 feet 5 and about 120 pounds, swarthy complexion. His hair is described as wiry or bushy."

★ ★ ★

● The gun is the only evidence.

Reddin, asked if the gunman appeared to be of Latin-American extraction, replied: "I don't know. I can't tell."

He said the man might possibly be Eurasian.

'OBVIOUSLY UNDERSTOOD'

Did the gunman speak English?

"He didn't speak any English, but he obviously understood English, as at one time he responded with a 'yes.' But I don't know what the question was."

The chief said that, during the campaign, Kennedy twice was offered a police bodyguard, and each time refused.

FAA to Award Pact for Airport

The Federal Aviation Agency will award an $84,000 contract to provide an Instrument Landing System (ILS) at Oakland-Pontiac Airport, according to Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Joseph Davis, airport manager, said, "This will mean a lot to aviation in Oakland County." The ILS would allow all-weather flying at the Waterford Township facility.

★ ★ ★

The system is in the future plans for updating the field. However construction and installation were not expected until 1970. Airport officials were not certain today how soon the contract would be awarded or when the installation would be made.

Davis explained the federal government pays all the cost of the equipment and installation. However the county would have to acquire additional land around the airport.

When installed, the ILS will increase the hours of airport operation. "This will be the best possible news to air freight services located at the field. In the past many important cargo shipments had to land elsewhere because of bad weather here," Davis said.

Dem Race Is at Standstill Following Shooting of RFK

By The Associated Press

The shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy moments after a rousing California primary victory speech has brought the Democratic presidential race to a standstill and left its prospects in disarray.

★ ★ ★

His lead over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy continued to grow in the confusion that followed.

McCarthy canceled plans to campaign in Seattle and said he would instead return to Washington, D. C.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey also canceled campaign plans and said he would return to Washington from Colorado Springs, Colo., where he was to make a graduation address at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

VOTE COUNT

The California Democratic winner was to control 174 delegate votes at the national convention. With 69 per cent of the vote tabulated, Kennedy had 955,237 for 45 per cent; McCarthy had 887,032 for 42 per cent and State Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, heading an uncommitted delegation, had 257,338 votes for 12 per cent.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan was unopposed as a favorite-son candidate for 86 GOP delegate votes.

Incumbent Republican Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, seeking nomination for reelection, was falling behind State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Raffery.

In South Dakota, Kennedy scored a decisive victory over McCarthy and a stand-in slate for Humphrey for 24 convention delegates.

Sun Likes It Hot in Pontiac Area

The U. S. Weather Bureau forecasts mostly sunshine for today and tomorrow with temperatures skyrocketing into the 80s.

Tonight will be fair and warmer; the low 57 to 62. Warm with a chance of thundershowers is the outlook for Friday. This morning's low prior to 8 a.m. was 60. The 12:30 p.m. recording was 81.

Pontiac Wakes Up to Shocking News

Most persons in the Pontiac area were asleep when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot early today in Los Angeles. They woke to find that instead of this being a bright new day unfolding, it was to be a day of tragedy and bewilderment.

Shock and disbelief were the predominant reactions following the deaths of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King, but this shooting prompted a new prominent feeling — bewilderment.

★ ★ ★

From top area officials to the man in the street, there was a grasping effort to try to understand the event that had taken place.

★ ★ ★

"I don't know what to think or say," said George Googasian, Oakland County Democratic chairman. "My first reaction was to think back to 1963 to the shooting of Jack Kennedy.

TRAGEDY REPLAY

"There was a replay in my mind of the whole sequence of events that followed that frightening and terrible thing."

"No matter what happens, we will try to continue to the work that he has done to make the world a better place to live," said William H. Merrill of Bloomfield Hills, state chairman of Kennedy's Michigan campaign.

"In times like this it doesn't seem like it's worth the effort, but I know it is," Merrill added, his voice faltering.

Said State Sen. Sander M. Levin, of Berkley, Democratic state chairman, "The continued streak of violence in this country's life has brought a new tragedy of immense proportions for one family and for the entire nation."

★ ★ ★

"Let us now turn all of our hopes to the recovery of this gifted public servant," said Levin.

★ ★ ★

Francis Frank, 26628 Margaret, Roseville, said he felt like everybody else — stunned. "What's this world coming to? A man doesn't know what to do any more," he said.

WORLD LEADERS?

Robert Harrington of 3450 Seebaldt, Waterford Township, also wondered "what our country's coming to. We're supposed to be world leaders," he said, "and all we are is a topic of conversation throughout the world."

★ ★ ★

Mayor William H. Taylor Jr., said that as a city Pontiac is praying for the hopeful recovery of Kennedy.

"Personally I am shocked and can't help but wonder if this is a very sick world and nation. It is about time that all the legislative bodies and national figures do something to end the climate that produces these acts."

Mrs. William W. Kinney of 227 W. Kennett said: "What can you say? Whatever you say is only going to make it worse."

Miss Carol Morse of 5274 Cooley Lake, Waterford Township, added: "I think it's terrible. They're killing everyone."

★ ★ ★

"It is shocking, horrible and almost inconceivable that this can happen to public figures in America such as Bobby Kennedy and others," commented Pontiac Schools Supt. Dr. Dana P. Whitmer.

"I think the tendency of violence in America is highlighted by this. It is a tremendous tragedy for his family."

'IT'S SHOCKING'

Waterford Township Schools Supt. Dr. Don O. Tatroe, who learned of the shooting shortly after 6 a.m. when his high school daughter awoke him after hearing the news on the radio, had this to say:

"It's shocking and unbelieveable this could happen. I wonder what can be done to prevent characters in our society having access to guns and the opportunity for violence.

★ ★ ★

Oakland County Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson said "The lunatic fringe in this country — and it seems to be growing in number — threatens the very existence of our constitutional democracy."

Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger called for American people to awaken to the "fact that their lack of concern and action in tolerating a breakdown of law and order will lead to progressive violence and civil disorder."

City Commissioner Robert F. Jackson, District 5, active in local Democratic circles, said he "wonders and worries about the times, the element, that fosters this kind of action so continually.

"It is getting so that instead of trial by ballot we are experiencing trial by gun."

★ ★ ★

Rev. Jack H. C. Clark, pastor of North Oakland Christian Church, said the shooting of Kennedy "again brings tragedy into all our lives, and thoughtful people of all religious persuasions pray for his recovery."

Expressing shock and disbelief, Oakland County Circuit Judge William R. Beasley said, "Whether or not you disagree with him, Sen. Kennedy is a great American.

'SHOULD HAVE LEARNED'

"Many measures will have to be taken of the Pontiac Pastors Association said, Beasley. "We should have learned our lesson after 1963."

Rev. Frederick G. Klettner, president tof the Pontiac Pastors Association said, "We of the Pontiac Area Pastors Association are very sorry to hear about this tragedy that has happened to Sen. Kennedy and his family but in reflecting on this we begin to reach the conclusion that we are establishing a climate of violence in this country as long as we refuse to take positive steps toward ending poverty and racism in our nation."

KENNEDY AT PONTIAC MALL—About 5,000 persons greeted Sen. Robert F. Kennedy at the Pontiac Mall on Oct. 29, 1966. Kennedy stopped in Pontiac during a visit to the metropolitan Detroit area to stump for Michigan Democrats in the 1966 election.

Road Is Closed for Widening

About 1½ miles of Elizabeth Lake Road in Waterford Township was closed today to through traffic due to an extensive road improvement construction project. The work is expected to take at least three months.

Involved is the portion of the road between M-59 and Telegraph. Limits of the actual construction work are M59 and Josephine, a distance of about one mile.

★ ★ ★

The road will be widened from two to five lanes. Curbs will be provided, along with drainage improvements.

Oakland County Road Commission engineers estimate the road will not be open again for traffic until early in the fall.

★ ★ ★

While the work is continuing, Elizabeth Lake Road traffic will be detoured over M59 and Telegraph roads. Access for local traffic, however, will be maintained.

Cost of the project will be $358,529. Half of the amount will be absorbed by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. The remainder of the cost will be borne by the county road commission.

Bronson: Sought Probe of Security at Pontiac State

Oakland County Prosecutor S. Jerome Bronson revealed today that he has urged Michigan Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley to conduct an investigation of security measures at Pontiac State Hospital.

★ ★ ★

Bronson made the recommendation in a letter to Kelley dated May 27, calling attention to two escapes that month by inmates of the hospital confined for crimes of violence, after being judged incompetent to stand trial.

★ ★ ★

Neither patient has been located since.

Bronson, who emphasized today that his office has no jurisdiction over the state - controlled institution, said he made the recommendation on the basis of "a threshold judgement that the escape of two serious felons within two weeks raises substantial questions about the quality of the detention facilities at the hospital."

NO PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

He said he had no personal knowledge of the nature of hospital security, but that the murder Friday of a 19-year-old female patient with which another patient was charged — only buttressed his feelings that the situation is dangerous.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Donald W. Martin, hospital director, commented that his first word of Bronson's recommendation came today, but that an investigation, as always, would be welcome.

"We've always had an open-door policy here concerning these things," he said.

N. Viet Moves Add Hope as Talks Resume

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnam cease-fire talks resumed today, with U.S. negotiators looking for evidence that North Vietnam may be prepared to make some change in its position to open discussions of basic issues of peace making.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Ambassador Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam met for the seventh time following a four-day recess.

★ ★ ★

Some experts expected an early tactical move by Thuy to open the second stage of the talks. Others professed puzzlement about Hanoi's aims.

One development was the arrival Sunday of Le Duc Tho, a member of North Vietnam's politburo, who is serving as an adviser to Thuy. He could have brought fresh instructions.

A latter Hanoi maneuver took the form of an interview with Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap published Tuesday by the French Communist party newspaper, Humanite.

Giap argued in effect that the United States is negotiating with North Vietnam because America's leaders know they are losing the war. He laid down a hard, confident line, but U.S. officials saw one possible indication of change in his statement that "the United States has been fighting not only the Army of Liberation of South Vietnam, but also the forces of the People's Army of the North."

Harriman has been pressing Thuy—but without success—to admit that North Vietnamese forces are fighting in the South, feeling that such an admission would bolster the American demand for North Vietnamese deescalation in exchange for the cessation of all Amercian attacks on North Vietnam, which Hanoi demands.

At '66 Dem Rally

Kennedy a Winner Here

By L. GARY THORNE
Assistant City Editor—Suburban

That ripe corn silk hair was the first impression of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. It was made for the camera.

Viewed in-person, Kennedy's light brown hair resembles a spreading shurb. His hair — part of the man's image — flops in schoolboy fashion from ear to ear, flipping down in front to shade his forehead.

★ ★ ★

He has nearly a constant habit of flicking it back in place.

Kennedy appeared here only once. On Oct. 29, 1966, he was the star of a Democratic political rally at the Pontiac Mall.

Despite a 90-minute wait caused by large crowds elsewhere, few in the crowd of Saturday afternoon shoppers left.

When Kennedy did appear, the crowd — estimated at 5,000 persons — pressed so close to the small platform that the windows of the S. S. Kresge store in the center of the Mall were threatened for a time.

★ ★ ★ ★

The Mall visit was one stop on a day-long stump of the Detroit area and the state in behalf of Democrat candidates in the 1966 fall elections.

Wearing a constant smile, more a boyish grin, Kennedy was greeted with "Hi, Bobby" and "Kennedy for President" banners.

ROUTINE REMARKS

In routine remarks, RFK urged the election of local and state Democrats, including U. S. Senate hopeful G. Mennen Williams and Zolton Ferency, candidate for governor.

The Kennedy magic was the drawing power, although Republicans carried the election that fall.

★ ★ ★

Kennedy's appearance here was a success in terms of popularity. There was a minor contest between local Republicans and Dems to see who, Kennedy or Gov. Romney, could pull the largest crowd.

Almost as soon as the New York senator left the temporary Mall stage, posters appeared boosting a GOP rally later that day.

A WINNER

Kennedy left a winner. An estimated 3,000 persons showed for the Republican gathering.

More Negro Police Unlikely

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the third in a series on the Pontiac Police Department's hiring procedures and attempts to hire more Negro officers.)

By BOB WISLER

The city government is now in the process or hiring 10 new police officers to bring the department up to authorized strength of 132 men.

Despite any number of recommendations that the police department should be more fully integrated — there are now four Negro officers — there is little at the moment that would indicate there will be any more than four Negroes when the department reaches peak strength.

In addition to civic leaders and officials of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, the Pontiac Area Planning Council, an advisory body of some prestige, has recommended immediate hiring of eight to 10 Negro officers.

★ ★

While the desirability of hiring black police officers is recognized by many the possibility of doing so appears dim.

DIFFERENT ANSWERS

Why? There are as many different answers as there are points of view.

Pontiac Police Chief William K. Hanger said his department has made a number of efforts to encourage Negro applicants but these efforts have not produced any sizable number of applicants and no applicants who qualify under the city's list of qualifications.

Hanger, the son of a police officer and a police officer himself for 22 years, lives by principles and the law and abhors those who don't.

★ ★ ★

He believes that he has made enough efforts to hire Negroes even if others don't. He believes that some persons want to hire Negroes badly enough to lower the standards for black police applicants, and this to him is a violation of principle.

WANTS BEST-QUALIFIED

Hanger said he is opposed to any meth-

Commission Gives Budget Formal OK

BIRMINGHAM — The City Commission has given formal approval to the $3-million municipal budget for the 1968-69 fiscal year.

The vote to okay the new budget, which maintains the tax rate at 17.5 mills despite the city's increased valuation, came under sharp questioning from a pair of former commissioners.

★ ★ ★

Carl F. Ingraham, 940 Harmon, a city supervisor, asked what additional services the city would provide with the $300,000 in added income which would result from the increase in valuation.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. G. Howard Willett Jr., a former mayor of Birmingham, concurred, saying that the fact that the valuation boost had made 13 per cent more money available might lead citizens to believe that the budget had been developed to meet the present millage rate.

BIGGER DOLLARS

"This permits us to say that there has been no increase, but we all know that the tax dollars will be bigger because of the higher valuation," Mrs. Willett added.

★ ★ ★

City Manager Robert S. Kenning gave a brief rundown of the changes in the budget. While there are only two new employes, one mechanic's assistant in the department of public works and one attendant for the new municipal parking structure, increased operating costs and capital improvements account for the rest of the budget rise, Kenning said.

★ ★ ★

"The maximum we thought we could conserve was half a mill," Mayor David F. Breck commented.

Mrs. Willett countered, "I think even half a mill would make real headlines in these days."

SALARY HIKES

Commissioner Robert F. Page asserted that one primary problem in determining the budget was provision for satisfactory salary increases for city employes.

★ ★ ★

"This occounts for most of the increase in the budget," Page added. "We have to be competitive with other cities to get high-class employes."

★ ★ ★

In other business, the commission has held a hearing of necessity on the 1968 seal-coat program.

★ ★ ★

Several residents were present to ask about certain phases of the program, such as length of time between applications of seal coat, method of assessment, and amount of material to be applied.

PRIMARY FACTORS

Kenning explained that the number of years between applications varies with three primary factors: the type of base, the drainage on the street, and the weather.

★ ★ ★

"Each spring the superintendent of the department of public works and the street foreman tour and inspect every street in the city to see if further seal coating is needed," Kenning said.

★ ★ ★

"Of course, in any program of this size," he continued, "there are bound to be some borderline streets."

★ ★ ★

The commission referred for study a request from the Oakland County Road Commission to detour traffic during construction planned on Maple between Coolidge and Crooks in Troy.

COUNTY PROPOSAL

Westbound traffic, according to the county proposal, would move north on Crooks to Big Beaver, west on Big Beaver to Coolidge, and return to Maple by going south on Coolidge.

★ ★ ★

Page suggested that traffic instead be diverted south on Adams, but Roberts objected, citing the traffic problem already caused by narrow pavement on Adams.

★ ★ ★

After some debate, the commission decided to refer the proposal, asking for development of a sign plan to allow motorists an option to return to Maple on Coolidge, Adams or Woodward.

MSU Drug Arrests Protested

EAST LANSING (AP) — Several Michigan State University students were injured Tuesday night in an angry confrontation between two groups of students.

A number of fights broke out when one group started a mile-long march to the student union. The demonstrators, protesting the arrest of a number of MSU students on marijuana charges Monday, carried red and black flags, said to stand for revolution and anarchy.

★ ★ ★

Counterdemonstrators attempted to tear down the flags and block the paths of the marchers.

Campus police said no arrests were made during the demonstrations.

BUILDING OCCUPIED

Earlier in the day, a small group of militant students occupied the university's administration building for about three hours to protest the arrests.

The estimated 50 to 60 students, led by members of the campus chapter of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), had briefly barricaded themselves inside the administration building and later raised a red flag outside.

The students entered the building shortly before noon to present a set of demands to MSU President John Hannah. These included:

- Disbanding of campus police.
- Agreement by the university to refuse to cooperate with police in making arrests.
- Student and faculty control of MSU police.

The occupying force of students left shortly after 3 p.m. when they were threatened with arrest by Richard Bernitt, MSU director of public safety.

Riot-trained police had been called from Lansing, East Lansing and the Ingham County Sheriff's Department to back up campus police if the students had to be forcibly evicted.

Mike Price, SDS president, and Brad Lang, an aide, manned a bullhorn and gave orders to the demonstrators at the East Lansing City Hall and at the administration building.

The demonstration was touched off by the arrest of 12 persons Monday night on charges of illegal sales of narcotics. Seven were students, including a 21-year-old married coed.

HITTING AT SOURCE

State Police Capt. Daniel Myre of the narcotics squad, said sales by those arrested represented "a major source of supply" of narcotics on the campus and in Lansing and East Lansing.

Those arrested were not members of an organized ring, he said, but made independent sales.

One defendant, Tommy Hartman, 17, of East Lansing, was charged with the sale of LSD. He demanded examination and was held under $5,000 bond for circuit court examination Aug. 25.

The 11 other defendants all were charged with sale of marijuana. All were held under $10,000 bond each.

SUSPECTS LISTED

State police listed as the students among them: Steve Mehler, 25; Mrs. Catherine Reed, 21; John MacCallan, 25; Marc Lambert, 18; Jay Hillis, 19; Sandor Bacsik, 22; and Milton Lucas, 23, all of East Lansing.

Similarly charged were Jan Hooker, 19, of East Lansing; John Brian Keillor, 21, of East Lansing; Frank Paul, 21, of East Lansing; and Dan Reoes, 20, of Lansing.

Judge Harmon warned the defendants that under the illegal sale charge they could be sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Mrs. Reed, MacCallan and Keillor waived preliminary examination and will be arraigned Friday in Ingham County Circuit Court. The rest either demanded examination or stood mute and will be arraigned Aug. 26.

Riots Result in Surcharge

LANSING (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner David Dykhouse Tuesday announced approval of a civil disorder surcharge on new and renewed premiums on property and certain other lines of insurance.

Dykhouse said the surcharge could be directly attributed to the civil disorders and riots of last summer which resulted in an estimated $33 million in insurance losses.

The surcharge on residential property insurance, he said, would apply only in counties of more than 100,000 in population and would amount to about $1 per policy per year.

On commercial properties, the surcharge would be applied to the standard fire policy, extended coverage, burglary, theft and glass insurance and related policies.

This would amount to 2 per cent of the premium in counties of under 100,000 population, he said, and 6 per cent of the premium in counties of more than 100,000 population.

NMU Challenges 'Jobless' Prof

DETROIT (AP) — Northern Michigan University has challenged the contention of Prof. Robert McClellan that he cannot find employment elsewhere because the university impaired his acceptability and professional reputation.

In a brief filed Tuesday with U.S. District Judge Thomas Thornton, lawers for NMU said that contrary to his claim, McClellan has found a job for the summer term at Michigan State University.

★ ★ ★

Therefore, they argued, the professor should be denied the temporary injunction he is seeking against Northern's terminating his contract pending outcome of a damage suit he filed in his dismissal as a history professor.

The damage suit — for "not less than $100,000" — is scheduled for trial at Marquette Aug. 5 before Judge Thornton. McClellan contends he was arbitrarily dismissed in violation of his constitutional rights. The university insists that since he had not obtained tensure his services could be terminated at any time.

FILES AFFIDAVIT

In seeking the injunction, McLellan filed an affidavit last Thursday saying:

"I have made efforts to obtain employment elsewhere but have not been successful. Other institutions are aware that I have been summarily terminated by Northern Michigan University, and this has no doubt impaired my acceptability in the profession and my professional reputation."

★ ★ ★

Northern Michigan included an affidavit with the brief it filed Tuesday, quoting Howard R. Neville, provost of Michigan State University, as saying McClellan had been engaged last June 8 to teach in the MSU summer school.

Violence Again Brings Tragedy . . .

STRUGGLE AT SHOOTING SCENE — Two men struggle with a third, trying to wrest a gun away from him, near the place in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles where Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was shot early today. The man's head is just to the left of the cluster of hands.

Misfortune Plagues . . .

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once more a Kennedy has been struck by violence.

Once more, a child of Joseph P. and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy lies in a hospital room—the latest victim of misfortune in a family that had everything going for it: wealth, power and unmatched achievement.

John, the Kennedy who became president, was assassinated. Joe Jr., the oldest, died in the explosion of his bomber on a dangerous mission in World War I. Kathleen, the third of the nine children and a wartime widow, was killed in a plane crash.

Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, a senator like brothers John and Robert, lay painfully immobilized for a year after suffering a back injury in a plane crash. Rosemary, the second oldest Kennedy, has spent much of her life in an institution for the mentally retarded.

Now Robert, at 42, celebrating a major victory in his drive for the presidency, lay critically wounded from bullets fired at close range.

His wife Ethel, expecting her 11th child, was on the campaign trail with him.

A few years ago, while the family gathered in affliction around Edward's bedside, Robert had enough humor left to remark:

"I guess the only reason we've survived is that there are too many of us. There are more of us than there is trouble."

But trouble has never quit stalking the Kennedys.

Joseph, the 80-year-old patriarch who was ambassador to England, has been paralyzed for years from a stroke. He was with his wife at the family compound at Hyannisport, Mass. when Robert was shot in Los Angeles. The Kennedys were not told about the shooting immediately.

The son of John and Jacqueline Kennedy, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, died of lung disease when two days old. A daughter had been stillborn to them earlier and both are buried beside their father in Arlington National Cemetery.

The Kennedys' days of heartbreak began in 1941 when Ambassador Kennedy and his family returned from London.

"Rosemary was not making progress but seemed instead to be going backward," Eunice Kennedy said. "At 22 she was becoming increasingly irritable and difficult . . . her memory

Dismay, Sorrow Sweep the World

shock, dismay and sorrow went round the world today at news of the shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"God help us," said a GI in Veitnam. "What the hell is going on back there?"

★ ★ ★

"I feel just like the last time," said another, referring to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Members of the Kennedy family in Europe were on the telephone to the United States. An aide to Sargent Shriver, the new U.S. ambassador to France and the senator's brother-in-law, said Shriver was trying to reach members of the family in Los Angeles.

'NEWS CONFUSED'

In London, Princess Lee Radziwill said she had spoken to her sister, President Kennedy's widow, but "she tells me the news is pretty confused so far."

News of the shooting caused "acute sorrow" at the Vatican, the chief press official there said. He said Pope Paul VI was being kept informed constantly of the condition of the senator, who is a Roman Catholic.

★ ★ ★

"It's a nightmare—it's terrible," said a Russian woman on a Moscow street.

"It is a great pity that you live in such a country where any person can be shot," a Russian man told an American in the Soviet capital.

TASS REPORT BRIEF

Tass, the official news agency, reported the shooting briefly and without comment.

Italian President Giuseppe Saragat expressed shock and dismay and told the Italian Embassy in Washington to keep him constantly informed of Kennedy's condition. Aides termed the shooting "a nefarious and vile attempt."

★ ★ ★

The news reached Europeans first by radio and television broadcasts. News agency offices were besieged by telephone calls. First editions of London afternoon papers spread the news in huge black type across their front pages.

"This is horrible, horrible," said a spokesman for the Swiss government in Bern, where the cabinet was meeting when the news broke.

"The same thing all over again," said a diplomat in Bern. "Horrid. Horrid."

Wonder About Country

LBJ, Other Leaders Stunned

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and other Washington leaders shared shock today at the news of another shooting, another Kennedy fallen, and many of them wondered about their country.

"There are no words equal to the horror of this tragedy," President Johnson said.

★ ★ ★

He had been awakened to hear the news in the early morning from his White House staff.

"All America prays for his country," the President said.

"We also pray that divisiveness and violence be driven from the hearts of men everywhere," he said.

LAND OF VIOLENCE

Johnson was one of two Washington figures commenting on the shooting who were in Dallas five years ago when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., who rode with Johnson in the Dallas motorcade, said the land is permeated with violence.

★ ★ ★

And Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who ordered an FBI probe of the shooting, said: "It's just a great tragedy and it has to be a matter of deep concern to all of our people that these acts continue."

"It is an unspeakable tragedy that America is so permeated with violence that they will attempt to remove those who serve in this wholly patriotic manner," Yarborough said.

'GOING CRAZY'

"There is no family in our generation that's done more for America than the Kennedys," the Texan added.

"It seems to me," said Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., "that our society is going crazy."

Dodd was the chief fighter for a bill that would ban interstate gun sales but lost half the battle when the Senate voted earlier this spring to ban mail-order sales only of handguns, not rifles and shotguns. This bill is in the House.

"When are the American people going to wake up and do something about guns?" Dodd wondered amid his shock in the early morning hours.

★ ★ ★

House Speaker John W. McCormack could only moan with grief when first told of the news.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield expressed "fear for my country's future if we do not regain our stability.

"The terror and horror numbs and I'm just praying for Bob's recovery," Mansfield said.

'DISASTER'

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen called the shooting "a disaster of national importance." He added it "all the more strengthens the need for strict law enforcement."

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., who has campaigned for Kennedy, said he was shocked and stunned by this horrible violence—this attempt on Sen. Kennedy's life.

★ ★ ★

House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, said, "This is a crazy world." His voice trailed off.

The House was scheduled to vote today on an attempt to send differing versions of a crime control bill to a House-Senate conference committee. Arends said he hopes this is defeated and other action taken quickly to accept the broader Senate bill which would ban the mail-order sale of handguns.

LAST SPEECH BEFORE SHOOTING — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy addresses a throng of supporters in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles early today following his victory in yesterday's California primary. A moment later he turned into a hotel kitchen corridor and was shot. His wife, Ethel, is just behind him.

ARRIVES AT HOSPITAL—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, gravely wounded in the head, is wheeled into Los Angeles Center Receiving Hospital early today. Kennedy was later moved to Good Samaritan Hospital for surgery.

Police Name Others Shot by Gunman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Police Department today identified those other wounded in the Kennedy shooting as:

William Weisel, 30, 2700 Upton, Washington, D.C., who suffered a bullet wound in the left side near the abdomen. He was taken to Kaiser Hospital, Los Angeles. Weisel is a unit manager for the American Broadcasting Corp.

★ ★ ★

Ira Goldstein, 19, 4077 Havenhurst, Los Angeles, who received a bullet wound in the left hip. He was transferred to Encino Hospital, Encino. Goldstein is an employe of Continental News Service at nearby Sherman Oaks.

Elizabeth Evans, 16032 W. Placentia, Saugus, Calif., wounded by a glancing bullet at the hairline. She was transferred to Huntington Memorial Hospital.

HIT IN SHIN

Irwin Stroll, 17, 6089 Horner, Los Angeles, who was wounded in the left shin. He was treated and released by Central Receiving Hospital.

Talked of Violence Just Before Tragedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the victory speech Robert F. Kennedy delivered moments before a gunman fired a bullet into his brain, the New York senator urged his supporters to help him deal with the plague of violence in America.

It was in large measure a joking, jubilant speech.

★ ★ ★

But Kennedy was solemn as he declared:

"I think we can end the divisions within the United States."

"We can work together," he said, "to overcome divisions, violence, disenchantment.

'WANT A CHANGE'

"We can start to work together, we are a great country, a selfless country, a compassionate country . . .

"What all of these primaries have indicated, and all of the party caucuses have indicated, was that people in the Democratic party and the United States, want a change . . ."

Kennedy said he hoped now to "concentrate on having a dialogue or a debate, I hope, between the vice president and perhaps myself on the directions the country is going to take."

He had opened the speech in a joking mood. "I first want to express my high regard to Don Drysdale," he said. Drysdale is the Los Angeles Dodger pitcher who achieved a record sixth consecutive shutout Tuesday night.

THANKS SUPPORTERS

"I hope we have as good fortune in our campaign," Kennedy said.

He went on to thank his campaign chieftains, his supporters, "my dog Freckles, who's been maligned," and his wife, Ethel—"not in order of importance."

Then he turned through the crush of supporters, heading for the kitchen passageway where a gunman waited, with this final rallying cry: "On to Chicago, and let's win there."

Use Truth When Disagreeing With Young

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: The day before my daughter returned to college from spring vacation, she called me a "manipulator." She accused me of "manipulating" her out of a dress she wanted to buy by criticizing it. Then she said I had tried to "manipulate" her into seeing a boy she used to date because he attends an Ivy League college.

I was also called a "snob." She didn't speak to me again before flying back to school nor has she written home since then. . . .

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Do you manipulate her? Do you secretly try to control her decisions? I can assure you that any hidden attempts to control a young person's decisions are mistaken.

It is most reasonable that we should WANT to control them! Our college-age younster hasn't given us enough experience of his competence in decision-making to e t i r e l y trust it.

So why we should be so ashamed of this insufficient trust that we have to hide it from him, I wouldn't know. Thus, I think truth should be openly admitted to the youhg person who knows it himself anyway. I believe it quite proper to honestly say:

★ ★ ★

"No, I don't trust your opinions or decisions as much as I trust my own. If I've tried to revive your interest in that nice Jim Jones who goes to Princeton, it's not because I'm a snob but because we know him and like him. Nor shall tell you I like a dress you like if I don't like it. You're absolutely marvelous at claiming your right to disagree with us when you can't share our opinions. So just how come we can't claim our right to disagree with yours?"

NOT PLEASANT

Now this kind of truthful interchange cannot be called "pleasant."

On the other hand, it makes impossible the strains we cause by guerrilla efforts to compel the young person's agreement with us. Goodness, opposition to our views (views he trusts more than he trusts his different ones) is hard encugh on him without sniping at it by camouflaged attack. H o n e s t disagreement with him he can take. But the hidden kind?

The engagement of their daughter, Charlene, to C. Thomas Hauser is announced by the Elbert C. Burnetts of Sashabaw Road. Miss Burnett's fiance, a student at Lansing Community College, is the son of Mrs. Glenn Hauser of Howell and the late Mr. Hauser.

Another miscellaneous shower was given by Mesdames George and John Pickering in the former's Giddings Street home.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. My concern is freckles. Some of my friends who never used a bleaching cream have no freckles, while I use these creams and have freckles. A friend told me that if you use bleaching creams you w i l l freckle more. Is this true?

A. Individual complexions vary greatly. Some women can stay in the sun for hours without a single freckle, while others freckle after a moderate exposure to sunlight. To avoid freckles, or as many as possible, use a screening cream or lotion before going out into the bright sunlight.

A bleaching cream is not designed to avoid freckles but to dim them, once you've got them.

★ ★ ★

Q. I have a mustache, and I know that other girls and women have this problem. I shaved it once and it grew back, and I thought that since I am older, if I shaved it, it wouldn't come back again, but it did. I do not know what to do so I wrote this letter to you. I need help. Please give it to me.

A. I will, gladly. Do not shave the hair on the upper lips. This is usually fine hair. Use one of the depilatories which a r e planned especially for your problem. These melt the hair away. However, be sure that you buy one for facial hair, not for superfluous hair generally. Follow the directions carefully. This hair can be removed permanently by an electrolysist.

Q. I have not smoked now for several months, but I have gained weight, and I cannot afford to do that. I was already eight pounds overweight. I do not want to smoke again What can I do?

A. Smoking is partly a mechanical habit. Of course this is not the whole story but a part of it. I think one of the reasons people gain weight when they stop smoking is that they reach for a piece of candy or some other nibble instead of a cigarette.

So, keep some low calorie nibbles around to reach for, like carrot or celery sticks with a little onion salt. Some folks find chewing gum helpful. Keep your hands busy! What about knitting?

★ ★ ★

Many persons who h a v e stopped smoking for some time break, when under emotional stress. Go for a brisk walk. This will relax tension. Probably the most potent help is to have a spouse who cannot bear to see you smoke.

To make an inexpensive, easy-to-launder bedspread for a child's room, sew together a number of guest-size t e r r y towels. Decorate with rickrack where they join.

Study of Dog Disease Shows 'It's Catching'

NEW YORK, May 22 — A family with the kind of "money sense" that avoids financial difficulties even on a modest income, tends to be undemocratic where the budget is concerned, a nationwide servey revealed today.

★ ★ ★

The interviews covered families earning under $8,000 a year selected in cooperation with the Family Service Association of America and its member agenices, and the report was published today in the current issue of McCall's.

★ ★ ★

The findings "seem to confirm . . . a family's money is not best handled on the basis of democratic decision. One parent has to take charge. If the family is lucky, it is the parent who has the keener money sense," McCall's author Murray Bloom reported. "And in almost every case, this was the dominant adult. The one who had the money sense got it, in turn, from his or her parent. Most often, it was the wife who got it from her mother. The line of descent was so clear that it almost seemed like a genetic factor."

NO BUDGET

They all had one thing in common — none used a formal budget, nor were they eccentric in their spending or their thrift. They were living within their means and putting money aside for the future.

On the other hand, the article pointed out, studies of financially-troubled families showed "the lack of any dominance by husband or wife was a key factor."

"This newly discovered factor represents a major break with much of the past thinking in family money management and, in particular, with the widely touted concept of family democracy in making choices," the article continued.

★ ★ ★

The magazine asked the Wage Earner Plan, a Minneapolis group created by Congress to aid financially hard-pressed families, how husbands and wives could tell which, if either, had the money sense. The Plan's attorney, Raeder Larson, suggested "Just ask yourself these questions:

CLUES

1. Have you totaled up your installment payments in the past month?

2. Is your checking account balanced to date?

3. Have you had no NSF (not sufficent funds) checks bounce in the past two years?

4. Can you tell within $10 what your total monthly home expenses are?

5. Do you know what your yearly take-home pay is, within $10.

6. Do you know within $10 what you owe totally at the moment, excluding the remainder of your home mortgage?

★ ★ ★

"If you can honestly say yes to these six questions, you've got a money sense. Then, if you are also the dominant one in the family, well, you are going to make out — if you earn six, eight or twenty thousand dollars a year," Mr. Larson told McCall's.

Extension of Human Rights Eyed

How to get involved in meaningful personal action to improve community attitudes will be the subject of the 15th Annual Presidents' Day sponsored by the Women's Committee of United Community Services (UCS) on June 14, at Ford Auditorium.

★ ★ ★

With the theme "What I can Do," the UCS program has been planned especially for the participation of more than 100 metropolitan-area leaders of women's organizations as well as other concerned individuals.

★ ★ ★

In explaining the objectives of this year's Presidents' Day, Mrs. John B. Greene, President of the UCS Women's Committee, said: "Since human dignity has, throughout history, been a right worth fighting for and dying for, we have focused this program on the responsibility of each of us to assist in some way in the effort to extend this right to all Americans."

★ ★ ★

The featured speaker will be Dr. Milton Covensky of Wayne State University with Bob Allison of WWJ's "Ask Your Neighbor" serving as master of ceremonies.

Allison will also interview a panel of people in action who will describe practical ways of working for community understanding.

INVITATIONS

Invitations to the "dessert program," scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m., have been extended to officers of 700 women's organizations, including PTA groups, block clubs, church groups, garden clubs, college and sorority groups as well as business and professional organizations.

★ ★ ★

Program plans are headed by Mrs. Bernard Segner as general chairman; Mrs. James Gibbs, program chairman; Hazel Braxton, secretary; and Mrs. Boyd E. Horne, advisory officer.

Prolific Bovine Just Won't Quit

SENECA, S.C. (AP) — A Jersey cow belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. Harris is making bovine history by continuing to produce calves at the age of 35. She recently gave birth to her 33rd, the second one in 11 months.

★ ★ ★

Cows generally don't live more than 20 years. For one to be having calves at this age is comparable to a woman over 100 giving birth, local veterinarians report.

Lenny J. Borrisove of Simmons Street was awarded a BS degree in mechanical engineering Sunday in commencement exercises of Lawrence Institute of Technology at Ford Auditorium.

Seaman Guilty in Ship Blast

U. S. Says Terrorism Linked to '63 Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — A member of the Seafarers International Union SIU faces another 10 years in prison after conviction for the Sept. 6, 1963, bombing of the Canadian freighter Howard L. Shaw in Chicago's Calumet Harbor and other acts of terrorism.

The bombing did an estimated $25,000 damage to the ship and $4,000 to a nearby dock.

★ ★ ★

Alvin J. Cupp, 36, La Follette, Tenn., was already serving a five-year term for conspiracy in six bombings and two shootings in three states. Prosecutors charged the terrorism was carried out to support an SIU strike by its Canadian branch against the Upper Great Lakes Shipping Co.

In U.S. District Court Tuesday, Cupp received a 10-year term in the ship bombing, to be served along with the conspiracy sentence. He also drew one year for transporting dynamite from La Follette to Chicago, to be served with the 10-year sentence, but after the conspiracy term.

3RD CONVICTION

Cupp will begin the two terms after serving the remaining three years of a five-year sentence imposed at Marquette, Mich., in 1965 for the bombing of railroad tracks.

The conspiracy conviction stemmed from the June 6, 1963, firing of shots into the homes of a grain company employe and a grain elevator owner.

★ ★ ★

The conspiracy conviction also covered the bombing of railroad tracks in several Ohio cities in the summer of 1963.

Four other persons indicted with Cupp are scheduled to go on trial Sept. 30. They are Joseph A. Tanner, 48, Dearborn Heights, Mich.; Lawrence Rice, 38, Trenton, Mich.; Jack Pearl, 36, Cherry Hill, N. J.; and Walter R. Chipman, 32, Houston, Tex.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Lawrence Morrissey, the chief prosecutor, contended during the trial that the acts of terrorism were part of a conspiracy to support an SIU strike by its Canadian branch against the Upper Great Lakes Shipping Co.

2 in Hospital, One Charged in Shooting

A Pontiac husband and wife were hospitalized — the husband under arrest — after both suffered gunshot wounds following a reported argument at their home early today.

Listed in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital is Mrs. Phenix Aaron, 22, of 262 Prospect. She was shot once in the abdomen, according to city police.

★ ★ ★

Her 27-year-old husband, shot once in the arm, was admitted for treatment following the 2:25 a.m. incident. He was not reported seriously injured.

Investigators said Mrs. Aaron told them her husband first choked her, then shot her after she pulled away during an argument.

SHOT HIMSELF

She said he then shot himself in the arm and ordered her to tell police she had shot him.

Police placed Aaron under arrest for attempted murder at the hospital.

★ ★ ★

A 22-caliber revolver and four spent shell casings were impounded at the home, according to officers.

His arraignment on the first offense is scheduled today before Oakland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer.

In that case, Moore is accused of abducting a 19-year-old Pontiac woman and her young brother-in-law April 29. Both kidnapings took place at the Pontiac Mall Shopping Center parking lot.

Measure on Courts May Exempt Pontiac

Some 57 cities, including Pontiac, could be exempted from the compromise court reorganization bill's provision abolishing municipal courts.

Not all 57 would be able to decide the question for themselves, however.

★ ★ ★

In some cases, the bill, agreed on Monday by the House and Senate, joins two or more cities in a single court district. These would lose their municipal courts unless the city councils of cities with a majority of the district's population voted the exception.

This would not affect Pontiac or two other Oakland County communities designated as districts in themselves, Royal Oak and Birmingham.

★ ★ ★

Only two of the districts planned for Oakland County would fall under the ruling where one community with the largest population would make the decision. They are Troy, which has the control over Clawson; and Southfield, which would speak for Lathrup Village.

There are two districts which no city alone can control, they are (1) Madison Heights, Ferndale and Hazel Park; and (2) Berkley, Huntington Woods, Oak Park and Pleasant Ridge.

Dr. Clark Trial Is Again Reset

The Circuit Court trial of Dr. Ronald E. Clark, a Farmington Township physician charge with manslaughter, has been rescheduled to begin June 17 in Mason in Ingham County.

The case originally was set to begin April 1, but was rescheduled for this week and then changed again.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Clark, 56, is charged in the death of a nurse, Mrs. Grace Neil of Livonia, who authorities say died of an overdose of sodium penathol (truth serum).

★ ★ ★

Oanland County Circuit Judge William J. Beer, who will preside over the trial, moved the trial to Ingham County on the request of Clark's attorney.

★ ★ ★

The change of venue was granted on the grounds that the doctor could not get an impartial trial in Oakland County because of the widespread news coverage the case received.

Negotiating Teams Call In State Mediator

Negotiations on teacher contracts in Pontiac have reached a critical stage, sources indicate, and a mediator has been called in an effort to settle issues before school closes June 14.

★ ★ ★

Grand Rapids City Workers Go on Strike

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI) — Non-uniformed city employes in Michigan's second largest city walked off their jobs at one minute past midnight this morning after overwhelmingly turning down a city offer for a new contract.

Edwin A. Muste, president of Local 1061 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, said more than 500 of the 725 union members attended a meeting Tuesday night and voted by a 92 per cent margin to turn down the city's latest offer.

The strike by the nonuniformed city employes, including almost every city employe from secretaries to sanitation workers, left only policemen, firemen and supervisory personnel to handle city functions.
