

Wednesday, January 20, 2010

DPT students win national research award

Congratulations to OU Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) students Emily Battle, Emily Wilson and Kathryn Slevin, who have been honored with the American Physical Therapy Association's 2009 Oncology Section Student Research Award. They will present their study, "Energy Expenditure and Fatigue During Radiation Treatment for Breast Cancer: a Pilot Cohort Study," at the organization's combined sections meeting in February 2010.

SUMMARY

Congratulations to OU Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) students Emily Battle, Emily Wilson and Kathryn Slevin, who have been honored with the American Physical Therapy Association's 2009 Oncology Section Student Research Award.

Created by Kelly Johnson-Hill (johnsonh@oakland.edu) on Wednesday, January 20, 2010
Modified by Kelly Johnson-Hill (johnsonh@oakland.edu) on Wednesday, January 20, 2010
Article Start Date: Wednesday, January 20, 2010