On Academic Regalia

An edifying note contributed by a certain anonymous doctor of philosophy

On at least two solemn occasions during the academic calendar—spring and fall commencement—the faculty of the university publicly displays its full academic regalia and participates in the liturgy of processional and recessional, that curious coming and going that symbolizes the ceremony of commencement. The purposes of commencement are well known, but the reasons for the peculiar garb of the celebrants and their odd order of march are often as obscure to the audience as they are, in fact, to the faculty itself. This note may serve to explain academic dress and the professional pecking order it costumes.

Contemporary academics are descendants of clerical schoolmen in the universities of medieval Europe. Like the clergy, members of the bench and bar, and other learned professions, the medieval scholar clothed himself in heavy robes to stay warm in unheated stone buildings. Like all members of an hierarchical society, the medieval faculties rejoiced in visible insignia of rank. These outward signs of accomplishment and authority were tailored into the robes. Although the need for such voluminous garments to keep the scholar from freezing is long past, the use of them as emblems of dignity remains.

You will observe that all caps and gowns worn by our faculty are black, with certain disturbing exceptions. Black was the color adopted by mutual agreement among American universities at the end of the nineteenth century. In Europe each university has its own distinctive gown, varying in color and cut from all others. A European academic assemblage is a far gaudier occasion than its counterpart in America. Recently, certain universities in this country rashly broke the agreement and authorized robes in their own colors: for example, the crimson of Harvard and the green of Dartmouth may be seen in our ranks. This unsuitable spontaneity has been frowned on by sister institutions, yet the mavericks not only persist in their madness, but gain adherents to their ranks with each passing year.

There are three basic academic degrees: the baccalaureate or bachelor's degree, the master's degree, and the doctorate. A special style of robe is prescribed for each. The bachelor's gown is sparsely cut, neat, but a bit skimpy and unadorned, as befits apprentices. The master's gown is still simple, but fuller, sports a sleeve of extraordinary design impossible to describe, and has a hood draped from the shoulders down the back. Once used to keep the frost from the tonsured heads of medieval clerks, the hood now is solely a badge of a degree of scholarly achievement. The master's hood is small and narrow, but displays the colors of the institution that awarded the degree. If you knew the colors of American universities, you could easily identify whence came our masters. The doctoral robe is the most handsome of academic raiment. Generous of cut, of fine aristocratic stuff, it is faced with velvet and emblazoned with velvet chevrons on the ample sleeves. You will note that most of the velvet facings and chevrons are black, but that some are of other colors. According to personal taste, the doctor may display the color of his doctoral degree on his sleeves and facings: light blue for education, pink for music, apricot for nursing, orange for engineering, and many more. The royal blue of the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) is the most commonly seen in a liberal arts institution such as Oakland. The doctor's hood is the most elegant of all academic appurtenances. Large and graceful, it is lined in satin with the colors of the university that awarded the degree and is bordered with the color of the degree itself. Most academic costumes include the square cap called a mortarboard; the doctor's tassel may be either black or gold—tassels of all other degrees are black and stringy.

To instructed eyes, the order of march in the processional and recessional reveals the standing of individuals in the institution's formal hierarchy. In the processional the order of entrance into the hall is, quite fittingly, from most junior to most senior. The baccalaureate candidates enter first, followed successively by the masters and doctoral candidates with the whole separated from the faculty by a decent interval. In the faculty order, the instructors precede the assistant professors who in turn are followed by the associate professors. The august full professors bring up the rear. After a respectful distance come the deans who in turn are separated by a significant space from the awful majesty of the platform party, the president, the vice-president, and the members of the board of trustees. All remain standing until the board is seated. After the ceremony, the order of recessional is the reverse of the processional. The greatest dignitaries steam out of the hall first, with the artfully organized ranks of priority wallowing in their wake.

It is hoped that these notes may make more intelligible the spectacle you are witnessing today. A discerning intelligence may detect in it many clues to an understanding of the academic profession as it confronts the ambiguities of the future with ancient wisdom and dignified confidence.

HONORARY DEGREES

Jin H. Kinoshita, Oakland University commends you today for your outstanding research accomplishments in the visual sciences and your inspiring leadership of America's vision research community. Rising quickly to prominence as Professor of Biological Chemistry at the Harvard Medical School and now as Scientific Director of the National Eye Institute, you have exerted a profound influence on the course of ophthalmic biochemistry in the United States. Your investigations into lens metabolism have brought major breakthroughs in the treatment of cataract, and your encouragement has attracted many new investigators to join in the struggle against blindness. Through such honors as the Friedenwald Award, the Proctor Medal, and the Distinguished Service Award of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, your colleagues have made evident their respect for your scientific contributions and your scholarly character.

As a member of the Scientific Advisory Board of our Institute of Biological Sciences, you have helped Oakland University extend its research and public service capabilities. Through your continuing support and encouragement, the annual meeting for eye research held at Meadow Brook Hall has grown into a major conference, winning Oakland University national recognition as a center for visual study.

We salute you, Jin Kinoshita, as a creative scientist, a valued colleague, and a model of humane scholarship. In recognition of your perceptive discoveries, and in gratitude for your friendship and counsel, it is our privilege to confer on you the degree of Doctor of Science, Honoris Causa.

Helen J. Kyes, long-time patroness of the arts, we honor you today for your outstanding interest in, and contributions to, education and culture. You have dedicated your special talents, your energies, and your fisc to, among many others, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Kingswood School, Brookside School, and Oakland University.

Your special interest in Oakland University began in 1957, two years before our charter class arrived, when you served on our first committee, the Michigan State University-Oakland Foundation. In recognition of your work, the Governor of the State of Michigan appointed you in 1970 to the first Oakland University Board of Trustees. Clearly your guidance helped to shape this institution during its formative years.

You and your husband, the late Roger M. Kyes, provided substantial contributions for the university scholarship program, the Meadow Brook Art Gallery, and the Meadow Brook Theatre. Your special interest in the field of music resulted in support for the Meadow Brook Music Festival and your magnificent gift of a specially designed pipe organ for Varner Recital Hall.

Helen Kyes, you honor us with your friendship and your contributions to the improvement of the quality of life in this region. In recognition of your dedication, we proudly confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Humanities, Honoris Causa.

Donald D. O'Dowd, son of New England, alumnus of Dartmouth College, and of the universities of Edinburgh and Harvard, we honor you today not only as a distinguished teacher, scholar, and university administrator, but also as a dominant force in the shaping of Oakland University.

Students at Harvard, at Wesleyan University, at Oakland remember you as an inspiring instructor in the classroom. Your publications throughout the years—especially the seminal studies with David Beardslee of the, often strange, images college students hold of the professions—have enriched our understanding of human behavior.

Oakland University is especially grateful for the skill and dedication you brought to your many roles in the institution. As first Assistant Dean for Social Sciences, first Dean of the University, first Provost, first Dean of Graduate Studies, Chancellor, and first President of the University, you left an indelible imprint on the character of this institution. Now, as Executive Vice Chancellor of the State University of New York, you directly influence the lives of some one third of a million students. It is but meet and proper that we recognize your talents, your achievements, and your special place in the history of this university by conferring on you the degree Doctor of Letters, Honoris Causa.

Florine E. Trumbull, we honor you today for your distinguished service to this region and, specifically, to Oakland University.

A native of Detroit you have, with your unique combination of energy, enthusiasm, and efficiency, contributed to the educational, cultural, and social betterment of your community. Your commitment is reflected in your efforts on behalf of the Detroit Historical Society, Goodwill Industries, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and Oakland University.

From the very beginning of this university you and your husband, the late George T. Trumbull, provided the support and encouragement we needed. A scholarship program, so important at that critical stage, was the focus of your initial interest. Then, when the fledgling Meadow Brook Festival was striving to establish itself as a cultural force for the region, you provided vision and resources so that festival goers could have access to food service and a fine gift shop close to Baldwin Pavilion. As you know, Trumbull Terrace has become an important part of the "magic of Meadow Brook."

All of us are direct beneficiaries of your care of, and concern for, the Meadow Brook environment. We are pleased to note your continuing participation in the work of the Women's Festival Committee.

Florine Trumbull, your contributions to Meadow Brook, to Oakland University, and to this region will be remembered and cherished. You honor us by accepting the degree of Doctor of Humanities, Honoris Causa.

UNIVERSITY AND DEPARTMENTAL HONORS

At each commencement Oakland University extends special recognition to those students who have attained outstanding levels of academic achievement.

The University Senate, acting on the advice of its Committee on Academic Standing and Honors, authorizes University Honors at three levels for those students who have completed 62 credits or more at Oakland, with cumulative averages as follows:

|                  |           |
|------------------|-----------|
| Cum Laude | 3.60-3.74 |
|------------------|-----------|

|                        |           |
|------------------------|-----------|
| Magna Cum Laude | 3.75-3.89 |
|------------------------|-----------|

|------------------------|-----------|
| Summa Cum Laude | 3.90-4.00 |
|------------------------|-----------|

Each student who has a record of superior achievement in a major field of study is designated as graduating with departmental honors.
