HUBER'S TALK GREETED BY RESTRAINED HECKLING

State Senator Robert J. Huber commented after his talk before a generally unfriendly audience at OU last week that he appreciated the politeness and attentiveness the students showed in spite of their opposing political views. "I was delighted to get the chance to come and talk to them, although I wish there had been more opportunity for a wide-open discussion," the Troy Republican said in a phone interview. He said he felt constrained in his replies to students' questions in view of the obvious hostility of many in the audience.

An overflow crowd of more than 300 packed the Gold Room to hear the talk. Huber was invited to campus by the Young Republicans, several of whom wore campaign buttons declaring their support for Huber's bid for the Republican nomination to run for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Philip A. Hart. The main point of Huber's address was that an adverse reaction--both in less generous financial support and in punitive measures--could result in the Legislature in response to continuing campus disruption.

After his talk, Huber said that because of the gulf between his views, which are considered conservative, and those of the predominantly liberal audience he expected the heckling he received. "I would like to have more give-and-take with students," he said, adding that he particularly enjoyed an earlier invitation to address OU students extended by Reuben Torch, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Huber spoke to Torch's senior colloquium class, "Relevance in the University Curriculum." Huber said the classroom setting permitted an exchange of views "without the antagonism" that greeted his appearance last week.

A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY

A man who's been swinging a golf club all winter in the basement of the Sports and Recreation Building is looking for some pigeons to form a golf league. If enough interest is marshaled among faculty and staff, plans are to play on Tuesday afternoons at 3:00 at Bald Mountain Golf Club, about two miles north of campus on Kern Road. Promoter Henry Kennedy suggests that competitors kick in $5 for prizes and things, engage in four weeks of play from scratch to fudge handicaps, and then stage an elimination tournament using the agreed upon handicaps. Those interested should contact Kennedy--or preferably send the cash--immediately so that play can begin about April 20.

UNDIAPERED ON SALE

The Oakland Undiapered is now on sale in the Book Store at a cost of $1. The book contains student reviews of 220 Oakland faculty members.

ENGINEERING HONORARY INDUCTS NEW MEMBERS

Sigma Chi Epsilon, the newly formed Engineering School honor society, inducted five third year engineering students into membership April 1. The new members are Burdette Beck, Marvin Kanfer, Roger Medley, Nelson Merrick and Joseph Rosiek.

Sigma Chi Epsilon was organized during the winter semester by five engineering seniors--Gerald Woloson, William Garrity, John Renaud, Clark Hunter and Daniel Kabat. Professor Richard Haskell is the faculty advisor for the new organization.

The purpose of the society is to give recognition to outstanding Oakland engineering students who have attained scholastic excellence and who have demonstrated exemplary character, integrity and leadership. It will also strive to foster incentives for high scholarship among engineering students and provide some annual service to the School of Engineering, specifically oriented toward the undergraduate student.

JESSE PITTS SPEAKS

Jesse Pitts (sociology and anthropology) spoke last month to the Graduate Colloquium of the Social Relations Department at Harvard University on the subject of contemporary youth movements in American society. He also gave a talk on "The Structure of the Countermeritocracy" in the seminar on the sociology of intellectuals. Recently he spoke to the Visiting Scholars at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., on "The Revolution of May, 1968, in France," and also spoke on the hippie movement.

Faculty and staff participating in the academic procession should gather in the S&R multipurpose room at 2:30 p.m. Caps, gowns and hoods that have been rented may be picked up in the Book Center Wednesday through Friday, April 22-24, or they may be picked up in the multipurpose room just before commencement exercises.

C-T'S REPORT PROGRESS

Pat McAlpine (Public Safety), chairman of the Clerical-Technical Association, reports that the by-laws committee has been meeting and much progress has been made. She also reports that ballots in the three-way tie for positions on the nominating committee will be counted by the first of the week so that the committee can meet soon.

'PROTEST' BOOKS BACK

Kresge Library reports that all of the books signed out by students on the weekend of March 21-22 to underscore a group of six demands presented by two campus organizations have apparently been returned. The organizations, Action Faction and the Committee for Sexual Equality, stored the books temporarily in an office in the Oakland Center.

SENATE WILL MEET

The Senate will hold additional meetings in the next few weeks to take care of the agenda items which need attention before the end of the term. Additional meetings are scheduled for Tuesday, April 7, Thursday, April 9, Tuesday, April 14, and Thursday, April 16. All meetings are at 3:00 p.m.

FIRE RAZES ROOF

Flames raging out of control for apparently just a brief period on Monday afternoon managed to destroy the roof on one of the University's "cottages" on Adams Road. There was no immediate estimate of the loss to the building, and property damage reportedly was limited to a rug and bedding in an upstairs bedroom. Firemen covered furniture in the downstairs rooms with canvas tarps before extinguishing the blaze. The house, one of five former cottages of the Meadow Brook Estate, was rented to Mrs. Emma Buchmann, who works as a housekeeper for the chancellor. Her two teen-age children were in the home but were unaware of the blaze until firemen, who were summoned by a passing motorist, drove up with six pieces of equipment.
