How Will Father React?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Joe and I have gone together for three years and we are very much in love. We will both graduate from college in June and we want to get married. Our problem is my father.

You see, he is a Baptist preacher, and Joe's father runs a tavern, but he is a respectable, law-abiding citizen just the same. To make matters worse, Joe and his family go to another church. What are we going to do, Abby? I am afraid if I tell my father I want to marry Joe he will have a fit.

ABBY

DEAR LOVES: If Joe's father is a respectable, law-abiding citizen, no one need apologize for the way he makes his living. And your father, who makes his living by preaching kindness, compassion, and respect for one's fellow man, should surely practice it.

As long as your father doesn't expect Joe's father to pray in his church, and Joe's father doesn't expect your father to drink in his tavern, you should have no problem.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "PRACTICAL" could have been written by me a few years ago. I also have a wonderful, generous husband who insisted on buying me expensive gifts for every occasion. He had a friend who owned the town's leading jewelry store, so whenever my husband wanted to buy me something he would go to his friend, who always had just the right item for me.

Being practical I hated to see my husband spend the money on frivolities, so one day I went to the jewelry store and told the owner, "One more piece of jewelry and I am going to bring it back!"

He said, "Don't you dare. I have a customer whose wife did that, and now he's buying jewelry for another woman!"

After that, I kept everything my husband bought for me.

NOT SO DUMB

DEAR NOT: Neither was the jeweler. It's not hard to figure out how he became the town's leading jeweler.

DEAR ABBY: How could you do this to us? After trying so hard to "graciously" decline dinner invitations at the homes of my pupils, you come out and say it's all right for teachers to accept such invitations.

Abby, if I were to accept one, the other 37 would pounce on me, and it would mean one continuous round of wining and dining. And the evening is nothing but a parent-teacher conference with the kids thrown in.

I have a rule—I never accept a dinner invitation at the home of a pupil as long as that child is in my room. If they really want me they can invite me after he leaves. (Would you believe no one ever has!)

SHERMAN OAKS TEACHER

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK AT HEART" IN MADISONVILLE, KY.: No one with any sense would take seriously such an outlandish rumor about a "nice, average, little 13-year-old girl." If I were you (or your daughter) I would laugh and forget it.

Jaycee Auxiliaries Look for Dedicated Woman

Send Along This Cake With Son

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Dear Mrs. Post: My son is in college and has been invited home by a dormitory mate for part of the Christmas holiday. What should he do—offer to pay for the three or four days he is there? Offer to help in the home?

I am thinking of making a fruit cake and butter cookies for him to take to his friend's home. Please let me know what he should do. Mrs. Drew.

Dear Mrs. Drew: Three cheers for you! No money, definitely—and of course he should offer to help with the chores around the house. But the nicest thing you could do would be to send your home-made fruit cake with him.

For the Christmas holidays, with friends dropping in unexpectedly, I can't think of a gift I would rather receive.

Dear Mrs. Post: Please answer a distress signal! I have a boy friend next door one year older than I, quite serious and very sensitive. He is very sweet and I like him a lot but he really doesn't fit in my set. His clothes and his inability to dance make him quite immature.

There are lots of other boys that I would like to meet. All I care to have with him is a neighborly relationship. How do I obtain this and only this? —Distressed.

Dear Distressed: I realize you don't want to hurt him, but sometimes a little hurt now is better than a big hurt later. Level with him today. Tell him how much you like him and that you will always want him as a good friend, but that you want to expand your list of acquaintances, and you don't want to get the reputation of being tied up with one person.

Before you do it, though, be sure this boy's friendship isn't worth more than the ones you hope you may replace it with!

Brooksiders See Exhibit

An exhibit of articles made at recent workshops highlighted the December meeting of Brookside branch, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association. Mrs. Harold A. Cousins was hostess in her home on South Hills Road with Mrs. Adolph Magnus and Mrs. Ned Trissell assisting.

The group will present wrapped gifts for men and women at Pontiac State Hospital and is planning another scholarship for a college student.

Singing of Christmas songs followed organ selections by M. A. Calbi.

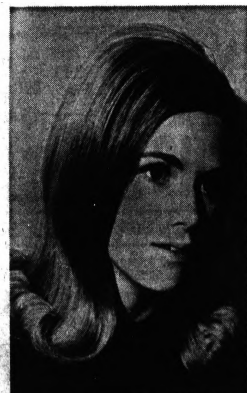

Mrs. Cecil Newstead and Mrs. Thomas L. Meriweather were guests.

A Honeymoon in North for Melvin R. Schotts

The Melvin Roger Schotts (Nancy Sue Jones) left for a northern honeymoon after Saturday vows in the Auburn Heights United Presbyterian Church.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jones were hosts at a reception in their home on South Squirrel Road, Pontiac Township, following the evening ceremony.

The bride's street-length gown of white peau de soie and French lace was styled with two back panels held by a Dior bow. Simulated pearls capped her bubble veil of illusion.

A corsage of white Sweetheart roses centered the bridal bouquet of white carnations encircled with ivy.

Pamela Alexander, the bridegroom's niece, was the bride's only attendant.

Marvin Schott was best man for his brother. They are the sons of Mrs. Clarence Schott of Carter Street and the late Mr. Schott. Another brother, Robert Schott, ushered with Robert Stauble.

Woodlike adhesive-backed decorative paper would give the floors a more realistic look. The boxes are cut diagonally because most are not big enough for a large room and do not lend themselves to many furniture arrangements. Those used for "nesting" them. The two walls of the box just suggest the

Make Own Christmas Snow-Time

"Custom" candlesticks, which lend a luxurious air to Christmas decorations, cost next to nothing when you make them yourself. Cover any low holder with "snow" made by beating dry soap or detergent with a little warm water to produce stiff meringue.

Next, stir in enough more product to thicken the suds to a modeling consistency. Use this mixture to shape a "snowball" with your hands, and place it on the candlestick. Now trim this ornament by imbedding chains of miniature Christmas balls, glitter, sequins, or other decorations into the damp surface. Finish by inserting a pretty candle at the top.

Both trim and candle will adhere to the suds-snow as they dry — and your festive creation will gleam and sparkle in the soft glow of Christmas candlelight.

The Megaphone Man Returns

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD — All because of a crazy new hit record called "Winchester Cathedral," Rudy Vallee finds himself hauling out his megaphone once more.

For the benefit of the new generation that knows him only as the stuffed-shirt magnate of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," it should be explained that Vallee was the Beetle of the asprig age. Through the depression years, his nasal baritone was heard in ballrooms and theaters, and through radios and photographs in most American homes.

He was the first of the crooners. "I never had a very strong voice," he admits today.

"And the only way I could be heard — this was before loudspeakers — was with a megaphone." The conical cardboard gave his voice a distinctive sound, and it has been reproduced in the curious new record, "Winchester Cathedral," by an English outfit called the New Vaudeville Band. The first Vallee heard about it was when a Hollywood record company called him while he was appearing a few weeks ago in a St. Paul, Minn., night spot.

GETS OFFER
"How would you like to make some records?" he was asked. "Are you out of your mind?" said the blunt Vallee. "Some days I can't even talk, much less sing."

Me was told about the "Winchester Cathedral" record, and he said he would listen to it before making up his mind. Vallee didn't care for the record at first, but he admitted its dripping nostalgia grows on the listener.

By the time Vallee had returned to Hollywood, four record companies wanted him to make his own rendition of "Winchester Cathedral," as well as other tunes. He chose Viva Records, a subsidiary of Dot.

AWAY WE GO
"I don't think you'll be able to give away the records," he muttered, "but let's go ahead." Last week he recorded the hit tune, along with some others of his own era: "The Whiffenpoof Song," "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "Who," plus a version of "My Blue Heaven" that "would make Gene Austin turn over in his grave, if he were dead."

Vallee still has the red megaphone he first used while singing with a society band of five pieces at Maine resorts in 1924. Later he used a full-size one such as football cheerleaders once employed, but with a wider flare.

During his heyday as a singer, impressionists found much sport in imitations that stressed his nasal quality. That was overdone, he says.

IMPERFECTION
"When I started making records, the quality of reproduction was imperfect, and my voice sounded much more nasal than it really was," he said. "Why, I'm much less nasal than Nelson Eddy!" He sang "Rose Marie" a la Eddy as a demonstration.

Now a pink-cheeked 65, Vallee expects no rebirth of his singing fame. He plans to continue pursuing his acting career, and may turn up on "Batman" soon.

The Jewish Torah must be hand written on a scroll made from the skin of a kosher animal, usually a sheep or lamb.

RETURN OF RUDY — Rudy Vallee, first of the crooners, has hauled out his megaphone once more. He's made a record of a song called "Winchester Cathedral," after an English band scored a hit with the same tune by reproducing the distinctive nasal sound Vallee achieves with his megaphone.

Police Firing Rule Justified

Dismissal Is Upheld by Waterford Panel

The dismissal of a Waterford Township patrolman, who had disobeyed a direct order to sweep the police station floor Nov. 7, was ruled justified Saturday by the Waterford Township Fire and Police Civil Service Commission.

Ronald Freeman, a seven-year veteran of the force, was discharged three days after the incident, but was granted a hearing after appealing the dismissal.

Saturday's decision, which upheld the action of the supervisor as the appointing and removing officer of the township, climaxed a lengthy six-hour hearing which included considerable testimony.

Another hearing, involving Freeman's dismissal, is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday before the Township Board, under the Veterans' Preference Act.

Active solicitation for "as much as possible" begins in January, according to Louis O. Michot, Pontiac chapter chairman.

March of Dimes funds are distributed for patient aid and to local diagnostic treatment centers of birth defects.

A Pontiac cabdriver was robbed of $155, his wallet and a coin changer early today by a fare he picked up about 1 a.m., Pontiac police said.

George W. Matteson, driver for the Oakland Cab Co., said he was picked up by a man at the General Hospital and was directed to an address on Fildev Street.

Matteson said the passenger grabbed him around the neck, placed something against the back of his head and demanded his money.

The man, described as a Negro with a mustache, fled on foot from the Fildev address after taking the money, Matteson said.

Elegance. Quiet good taste in men's suits. But not too quiet. Witness the season's glad tidings from Eagle:

Lustrous silk sharkskin suits. Burnished with mellow tones of grey, brown, blue and the new scene-stealer—Black Fern. Or the rich new worsted stripe-manship of Eagle. Bold but never blinding. Both brilliantly fashioned by masters' hands in 1- and 2-button models.

Foreign Car Recalls Detailed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee has said reports from 21 manufacturers of foreign autos imported into the United States disclosed 127 recall campaigns on 1960 - 66 models to correct safety-related defects.

The data were submitted to the subcommittee on executive reorganization whose chairman, Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., requested it after domestic automobile makers supplied similar information.

Ribicoff said 238,142 cars were involved in the recall campaigns in the 6-year period, although he added not all were shown to have defects.

Since 3,181,819 foreign cars were imported during the six years (through Aug. 31, 1966), Ribicoff said "The information supplied by the manufacturers would thus appear to indicate that only 7.5 per cent of the cars contained defects warranting a recall campaign."

However, he declared "Such a conclusion is not at all justified."

For one thing, he said, data of the foreign producers were "by no means comprehensive."

Secondly, he said, the procedures some of them followed "were so haphazard that we can have no confidence that all cars containing defects were the subject of recall campaigns."

"I cannot stress too strongly that no comparison is warranted with the percentage of defects in cars produced by American companies," Ribicoff said.

Last May, Ribicoff said information supplied by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors showed 18.5 per cent of their six-year output had been "defective in some respects."

FEW DEFECTIVE

The U.S. manufacturers said that while they had recalled more than eight million cars to check for possible defects, relatively few defective cars were found.

Only 10 days ago, the new Federal Highway Safety Agency disclosed manufacturers had reported recent recall campaigns involving more than half a million cars and trucks—many of them 1967 models.

Ribicoff said there was one striking similarity in the information submitted by domestic and foreign makers.

"Both contained numerous references to faulty brakes, defective suspension components, and deficient steering," he said.

NOTEWORTHY

He added that "since foreign car manufacturers, for the most part, do not make substantial model-year changes, the similarity in kinds of defects is noteworthy. It seems clear that the frequency of model changes does not have a significant effect on the incidence of safety-related defects."

Ribicoff said also the reports prove "all cars, whether produced on a rapid assembly line and selling for under $2,000 or hand-built and costing $20,000, contain safety defects."

The subcommittee published a 78-page compilation culled from the reports received from foreign car manufacturers.

Volkswagen, Germany's No. 1 auto firm, listed only two recall campaigns. The principal one involved 127,455 cars on which a check of a washer in the stop-light switch was ordered Nov. 23, 1962.

BRAKE FLUID

The company said that "after frequent use of brakes, washer failure could result in slow leakage of brake fluid." It said substantially all the cars were inspected and switches were replaced on 61,594.

Volkswagen also reported other campaigns it described as "pre-delivery" or "preventive maintenance" and said in these a variety of defects were discovered and corrected before delivery or during the initial free-maintenance period.

Included were such items as inoperative fuel gauges and improper adjustment of a turn-signal switch.

Boom Talk Hogwash

Farm Plight in a Rut

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON — If you spent half of your working day opening press releases, as I do, you would soon conclude that the world is indeed, mad, mad, mad, mad, mad.

"Econo mist sees another good year ahead for farmers," reads the headline on one recent release.

That one is right out of "Alice in Wonderland."

Anyone in his right mind knows that farmers never have good years. The plight of the farmer is something we learn in the cradle. Or at our grandfather's knee.

I remember my own grandfather, a man of the soil, taking me on his knee and saying, "Now you listen to me, boy. If anybody ever tells you a farmer had a good year, you punch him right in the nose."

It brought a touch of sanity to the day's mail.

MAIN FINDINGS

Although the society has not submitted a final report, I can reveal its main findings.

The investigation produced evidence that the rash of "airplane" sightings in recent years resulted from hallucinations caused by swamp gas. People were getting drunk on the stuff.

It is good to have that mystery solved. I trust, however, that the society will not rest on its laurels. There is still much to be done.

For one thing, the society should determine whether swamp gas also is causing economists to see good years for farmers.

Mrs. Mao Rising Star in China

TOKYO (AP) — Mrs. Mao Tse-tung is being given such a big political buildup that it suggests she is destined for bigger things after Mao dies.

The New China News Agency reported today that Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, gave her first major political address on Nov. 28 to 20,000 art and literary workers in Peking. Though Premier Chou En-lai and Cultural purge chief Chen Po-ta also spoke, it was plain that she was the center of attention.

Her speech revealed that she has been involved in the politics of the cultural revolution only a few years, and that she had encountered setbacks and rebuffs from those engaged in the theater. The No. 1 Peking Opera Company — one of those which fought back — and several other top music and ballet groups have been taken over by the army, presumably at her insistence.

Chiang Ching was named cultural adviser to the army. She now has a foot in the army and the other in the party central committee. She is first deputy chairman of the party's nationwide cultural purge committee. As army adviser, she will report directly to Defense Minister Lin Piao, Mao's chief prop-

ter. Mrs. Mao attacked President Teng, Chu or Chen among her supporters.

She called for exposure and criticism of "the bourgeois reactionary line within our party which opposes the proletarian revolutionary line of the party's central committee headed by Chairman Mao," words used by the young Red Guards in recent posters attacking Liu and Teng.

A succession of speakers paid tribute to Mrs. Mao.

Hsieh Tang-chung, head of the cultural department of the army's general political department, said she has been applying Mao Tse-tung's thought "with great persistence and creativeness."

ESCAPE DEATH—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown of Saskatoon, Sask., survived 11 days in the snow after their light plane crashed on a northeastern Washington mountain Nov. 24. The couple, shown recuperating in a Colville, Wash., hospital, walked out of the remote area yesterday. Both are in good condition.

After Plane Crash

2 Survive 11-Day Ordeal

COLVILLE, Wash. (AP) — A car stuck in the snow led to the rescue of a Canadian couple who survived 11 days after their plane crashed on a northeastern Washington peak.

Roy Brown, 35, of Saskatoon, Sask., and his wife, Betty, 32, were reported in good condition today at Mt. Carmel Hospital here.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, the parents of six children, had been the object of a wide search in Canada and northeastern Washington since their single-engine plane vanished Nov. 24. They were flying to Vancouver, B.C., to join relatives at the Grey Cup Canadian championship professional football game Nov. 26.

HEARS CRY

There was no sign of them until late Sunday afternoon when Ron Ruble of Colville heard a cry for help as he was trying to dig his car out of the snow.

Ruble looked up and saw Mrs. Brown floundering through waist-deep snow.

"Wait for us," she cried. "Our plane crashed." "We'll wait," said Ruble. "We're stuck."

Mrs. Brown helped free the car, saying, "I'll use this shoulder; it's the other one that feels like it's broken."

A few minutes later her husband, who had been following her down a logging road, reached the highway. Ruble, who had got stuck while taking his wife and 18-month-old son on a sight-seeing ride, drove the Browns to Colville.

Doctors at the hospital said they did not believe the Browns had any broken bones. Brown said he had headed south across the Washington border after running into a heavy fog bank over Canada. He crashed about 200 feet from the top of 7,125-foot Copper Butte, about 30 miles northwest of here.

EYES SWOLLEN SHUT

He said he banged up his forehead in the crash and his eyes were swollen shut for three days. He and his wife stayed in the cockpit of their Cessna 175 until last Thursday. Then they started hiking out, with Brown using two pieces of wood for crutches because of an injured foot. It took them four days to go about eight miles.

During the seven days they stayed at the crash scene, they built fires to attract planes flying overhead, but none saw them.

"They used crankcase oil to throw on the fire when planes went over," Dutch Holter, Stevens County sheriff, said. "One of the planes was so close Mrs. Brown could tell what color it was. It was maroon."

Mrs. Brown climbed to the top of the mountain and spotted the flashing yellow light of a snowplow on the highway below, but attempts to signal the snowplow crew with fires were also in vain.

"We had a thermos of coffee and we heated that over and over," Mrs. Brown said. "We had beans and more beans. Also sardines, peanuts and caramels. We also had tea bags and made tea by melting snow in a cookie pan and boiling water in a bean tin."

Detroit Man Held in Killing

DETROIT (UPI) — Police today were holding a Detroit man in the investigation of the Saturday night murder of his girlfriend.

Police arrested Gerald Torrey 57, after authorities found Nancy Nesbitt, 33, dead of a gunshot wound in his apartment.

Police said Torrey claimed he was parking his car behind his apartment, when he heard an "explosion" and rushed in to find the girl dead.

Gregory Off for London on Way to Hanoi

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comedian Dick Gregory today launches his trip to entertain captured American troops in North Viet Nam by boarding a plane for London "and whatever connecting flight to Hanoi that has been arranged for me."

The burly, 34-year-old entertainer denies that his trip, which defies State Department travel bans is a publicity stunt. He carried through this theme on the eve of his departure as he played to a packed house in a Greenwich Village night spot.

"Publicity? If I wanted publicity, I could entertain the troops in Saigon—the government even pays for these—and put on a special television show afterwards," he said.

Grimacing sardonically at the audience, he added "and don't worry about me getting killed by our bombs. Baby. There's a chance to be a truce, remember?"

"Two soldiers are in the midst of trying to kill each other when someone cries, 'Time out for Christmas!'"

EVERYDAY?

"If that's the way it is, why don't we mark every day on the calendar Christmas?"

Gregory said he was unaware of the travel restrictions to North Viet Nam printed in his passport.

"Look, I let my attorney worry about those things," he said. "I don't know what my passport says. If I worried about such things, I'd never get anywhere."

Gregory said, if all goes well, he hopes to visit Hanoi twice within the next three weeks. The first trip will be to make arrangements for a Christmas show for the American pilots imprisoned in the North Vietnamese capital.
