Re: Senate Library Committee

As Chair of the Senate Library Committee (SLC), I am reporting that, with the support of library faculty, the committee has voted to disband (7- yes; 1- no; 3- abstain).

After discussions with the SLC and the library faculty, we have determined that the committee's charge is no longer aligned with the current structure and needs of the university. Over the past two decades, significant changes, including the establishment of school-level library liaisons have altered the way faculty and students engage with library resources. As a result, we believe it is appropriate to assess the continued necessity of the Senate Library Committee.

Sincerely,
