

Russia Warned on Cuba Arms: 'Don't Risk It'

Blunt JFK Says U.S. Would Be Ready for History's Worst Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has bluntly warned the Soviet Union that if it ever again sets up offensive weapons in Cuba the United States will know it and will be prepared for history's greatest crisis.

The risks in such a situation would be so alarming, Kennedy told his news conference Thursday, that he believes "the Soviet Union will proceed with caution and care."

And the President said the same goes for the United States, which he said must not be stampeded into rash action on the basis of rumor and hearsay concerning Soviet strength in Cuba.

Kennedy's remarks, delivered with obvious feeling, represented a blast aimed at two targets:

1. At the Kremlin leaders who continue to pose a formidable supply of short-range arms in Cuba.

2. At administration critics, in and out of Congress, who suggest that U.S. intelligence may be overlooking obvious hidden stock of Soviet missiles in Cuba.

Kennedy voiced full confidence that such secret stockpiles do not exist. But he readily conceded he could be wrong.

If he is, Kennedy implied, it wouldn't make much difference because hidden weapons would have to be uncovered and placed in position before use—and this would be discovered by aerial reconnaissance.

He said: "We cannot prove that there is not a missile in a cave or that the Soviet Union isn't going to ship next week. We prepared for that. But we will find them when they do, and when they do, the Soviet Union and Cuba and the United States must all be aware that this will produce the greatest crisis which the world has faced in its history."

Cuba completely dominated the news conference, with Kennedy making these other major points:

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

WASHINGTON — The chairman of a Senate committee investigating the latest Cuba situation said today he feared that even if the Soviet arms are purely defensive they could be used to cover up a new offensive build-up.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee, said on a television program that even if all offensive Soviet weapons have been removed from Cuba, as the administration maintains, the remaining Soviet forces can

Psychiatrist to Examine Novi Sniper

A young church organist charged today with assault with intent to commit murder in a Jan. 30 Novi sniping incident will be examined by a psychiatrist before being released on bail.

Novi Police Chief Lee DeGale said Gary S. Goodrum, 22, of 26145 W. Nine Mile Road S.E., Southfield, will be examined to determine if he has homicidal or suicidal tendencies.

Bond was set at $1,000 this morning by Novi Township Justice Robert K. Anderson. Goodrum demanded examination and it was set for Feb. 21.

Sheriff Frank Ivers yesterday announced that Goodrum walked into the Novi Police Station Wednesday night and admitted shooting into the home of Mrs. Gertrude Race, 40, 28000 Dixon Road, last week.

Goodrum, an organist at the Galilean Baptist Church in Livonia, told reporters he could see Mrs. Race through her window but "took careful aim not to hit her."

The bullet crashed through the window and passed over Mrs. Race's head as she was lying on the bed.

Goodrum said he was influenced by the Jan. 25 shooting of Mary Godfrey, whose son Douglas admitted killing her in their Bloomfield Township home.

Romney Tells His Version of Bartlett's Claim

Choice of Words Spells Difference in Descriptions

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney was "angry" at him, said State Supt. of Public Instruction Lynn Bartlett.

"I was just intense," insisted Romney.

"He shook his finger at me," said Bartlett.

"He gave me an ultimatum," replied Romney.

The governor and the superintendent held news conferences an hour apart yesterday to give their separate versions of what transpired when Bartlett went to Romney's office to invite him to address a citizens' conference on education next month.

Romney said he was given "an ultimatum" by Bartlett that he could speak on condition he did not discuss the issues involved in the proposed new constitution at the meeting.

Bartlett said he told Romney that if he didn't wish to speak under those conditions, the invitation would be withdrawn.

"I told him this kind of meeting was traditionally nonpartisan and nonpolitical. If he started talking about con-con it would set the mood for the entire convention to become political," he explained.

Romney said: "I could not accept this ultimatum. If any of the citizens at the meeting (March 16 in Lansing) wonder why the governor isn't there, it's because Lynn Bartlett told me not to come."

The governor said he wanted to talk to the meeting about the constitution because it directly affects education on all levels.

Romney, shirt-sleeved in his office as he received newsmen, kept insisting he wasn't angry or mad at Bartlett.

MOVING OUT — County offices at 1 Lafayette St., downtown, are in the process of being moved to the new courthouse wing at the County Service Center on Telegraph Road. The downtown building will be closed Tuesday and business will resume at the wing the next day. This will complete the county's move of facilities from downtown Pontiac. Movers are John Lytle (left), and Larry Washburn of Allied Van Lines, Inc.

No Bids on Building

By DICK HANSON

Oakland County officials failed to sell the county office building at 1 Lafayette St. yesterday when an auction was held in the fourth floor auditorium.

Nobody came but the auctioneer and an elderly couple who "wanted to see the excitement."

John Austin, chairman of the County Board of Auditors, played the organ for them. That didn't come off too well, either.

The organ needs some work done on it, he said. It probably hasn't been used since the five-story brick building was a Masonic temple back in the 1920s.

The auctioneer, Lloyd Sibley, deputy county treasurer, sat idly drumming his fingers. There were no bids.

No one else walked through the door.

Mrs. Percy French of 16 Cooper St. asked "When is it going to begin?"

Both she and her retired husband were visibly disappointed when informed that the auction officially began 10 minutes ago. They were surrounded by empty seats.

Mrs. French remarked that her late father had attended meetings in the auditorium when he was a Mason.

The county officials were rustling papers 20 minutes later when the couple quietly left.

Keynotes Convention

Home Rule Vital—Hamlin

County home rule is essential to good government in counties that have changed from rural to urban areas. Delos Hamlin, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, declared in Washington, D.C. yesterday.

He was addressing over 1,200 county officials from throughout the nation at a three-day convention of the National Association of Counties.

As keynote speaker for the convention, Hamlin said county government must be strengthened.

"The strengthening of county government," he said, "is the key to the solution of many problems created by the rapid transition of the United States from a rural society to one that is more than slightly amazed to find that almost everyone has moved to the city."

Hamlin noted that the population of the United States has grown from 176 million to over 188 million in the past four years. Two thirds of this increase has been in urban counties, he said. Some 70 per cent of the total population now lives in metropolitan areas, he said.

"These few statistics show the importance of urban county government as the explosive pattern of growth continues," declared Hamlin.

He said the lack of county home rule in all but 13 of the states is a major obstacle to providing such necessary services as more schools, hospitals, roads, public utilities, police and fire protection in urban counties.

Hamlin also referred to "ineffective" administration of county government by "semi-independent boards and commissions" in most of the urban counties.

County home rule, in the ideal sense, would provide effective chief administrative officers to urban counties that "are still unnecessarily tied to state decisions and influences," said Hamlin.

He urged counties in the largest metropolitan areas to assume leadership in cooperative efforts to solve their common problems.

He said this is being done in the Detroit metropolitan area with the expansion of the Detroit water system to all the surrounding counties and plans to coordinate a six-county sewer and drainage program.

"At the same time, we are being challenged by proposals for establishment of new super agencies or authorities to be imposed on the existing governmental structure (county government)," Hamlin stated.

"The choice is clearly in our hands," he said. "If we fail to assume our responsibility, then we should not protest if we become subjugated to a new super authority."

SET GOALS
He recommended these goals for urban counties such as Oakland:

1. To reorganize county governments to make them more effective.
2. To propose and stimulate new legislation by state governments.
3. To provide new and better methods of strengthening cooperation between cities, counties and the state.

600 Surrender to Pro-Nasser Revolutionaries

U. S. Believes Coup Sparked by Naming of Reds to High Posts

From Our News Wires

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Army rebels leading a pro-Nasser revolt crushed Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's regime in Iraq today.

Their forces captured his well-guarded Defense Ministry, and more than 600 soldiers surrendered, broadcasts from Baghdad said.

Earlier broadcasts said "we have destroyed the tyrant," but Kassem's fate was not definitely established.

In Washington, the State Department said the takeover in Iraq appeared to be anti-Communist, and probably was touched off by Kassem's recent appointment of a number of Reds as high officers.

The statement was made by department press officer Lincoln White.

He told reporters the coup was "probably launched off" by Kassem's action last week in retiring

'COMPELLED TO ACT'

"The supposition is that the remaining anti-Kassem plotters felt compelled to act while they could," White said.

Announcement from Baghdad that the Defense Ministry had been captured at 5:30 p.m. followed a report hours earlier that rebel planes and tanks had demolished the Defense Ministry and "destroyed his (Kassem's) dirty rule."

"We announce to you, to the people and to the army, that our forces entered the Ministry of Defense at 5:30 p.m. and that all resistance ceased," said tonight's communique, signed by the "commander of the battalions attacking the strongholds of treason."

"Our forces are now mopping up the stronghold," it added.

Baghdad radio called for doctors to rush to the city's hospitals to treat wounded. Planes strafed the city for hours before its fall was announced.

The brown brick Defense Ministry, where the 48-year-old premier worked and often slept, is in the heart of Baghdad.

Grant Retrial to Pontiac Man

Ruling Results From Remarks by Judge

A Pontiac man sentenced in 1959 to 15 to 20 years in Jackson Prison might go free because the late Circuit Judge Frank Doty failed to control his feelings in instructing the jury.

The judge's remarks "exceeded all bounds of permissible comment" and "amounted plainly to reversible error" the State Supreme Court ruled yesterday in an 8-0 decision to grant a new trial for Billie Eugene Oates, 31.

Oates was convicted in May 1959 of "assault to do great bodily harm" in the brutal beating of his younger sister, Mrs. Odell Wyatt, 28.

Oates testified that he had beaten his sister into insensibility and actually thought he had killed her in a fit of passion.

DOTY'S REMARKS

In his charge to the jury, Doty said that the difference between aggravated assault and the assault charged in the case was one of intent.

Ordinarily, he observed, "an accused or a criminal does not confess his intent, does not show it and you cannot look into the breast of the accused and determine his intent."

Doty added, however, that Oates expressed his intent to the arresting officers that "I killed her and I would do it again" and told his mother "she got just what she deserved."

The judge told the jury it also could consider the nature of the injuries suffered by the sister.

"A pitiful sight," Doty remarked, "going blind, going deaf, and while there is no medical testimony to the effect I am of the opinion from statements on the stand that she might lose her state. He might better have killed her if that is the case."

Senior Asst. County Prosecutor Robert Temple said his office will have to consider a retrial of Oates' case or drop it if the same witnesses could not be relocated.

GOP National Chairman Praises Romney 'Force'

LANSING (AP) — The Republican National Chairman described Gov. George Romney today as a "strong political factor" in the GOP who "would make a good candidate for any office."

The GOP chairman, Rep. William Miller, R-New York, met with Romney behind closed doors for an hour this morning. He told newsmen later that the discussion centered mainly around Detroit's bid for the 1964 Republican National Convention.

Miller said that the possibility of Romney becoming a presidential candidate in 1964 did not come up during the meeting.

Asked by reporters whether he thought Romney would be a good candidate, Miller replied:

"He would make a good candidate for any office... he's the governor of a swing state that has been in the hands of one party for 14 years... political reality makes his a strong political force and a strong political factor in our party."

Miller said Romney's position as the governor of a "strong two-party swing state with a substantial number of votes is similar to that of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, William Scranton of Pennsylvania and James Rhodes of Ohio.

PERSONAL PLEA

Romney said he planned to go to Washington March 4 to make a personal plea with the GOP convention site committee on Detroit's bid for the national convention.

Other cities bidding for the convention include San Francisco, Houston, Dallas, Chicago and Atlantic City, Miller said.

The GOP chairman praised Detroit's Cobo Hall as "one of the best convention facilities I know of."

Disadvantages of holding the convention in the motor city in the past, he said, have been the lack of first-class hotel space.

"We need 10,000 hotel rooms for our convention," he explained, "but I understand now that there have been changes made recently and the facilities are available now."

Asked if he favored any one candidate for the 1964 nomination, Miller replied:

"My job (at the national committee) is to elect, not to impose my will or select the nominee. I would resign as national chairman if I decided to promote one candidate. We will have a fair, honest and open convention."

Russia Warned on Cuba Arms

(Continued From Page One) a promised withdrawal "in due course" of remaining Soviet troops in Cuba. Kennedy said he wants a better definition of "in due course" and wonders if a withdrawal could be accomplished this winter.

In his spirited defense of the administration's Cuban intelligence program, Kennedy appeared angry—even bitter—about the conduct of certain critics in Congress. While saying the government welcomes reports of Soviet moves in the Caribbean, the President declared:

"Even some of the members of Congress who have come forward either refuse to say where they heard the information or provide us with reports which do not have substance to them."

On other subjects, these were the principal items: William McCleskey Martin Jr. is getting another term as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, though Martin has not always seen eye to eye with the administration's fiscal and economic experts.

U.S. Plans Unit to Help Latins

Will Handle Uprisings Fomented by Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is planning to form a new group of antiguerilla experts and base it in the Panama Canal Zone—in position to help Latin American nations cope with any Cuban-fomented uprisings.

Informed sources disclosed this today amid concern in the United States over Soviet military strength in Cuba and the threat of Communist penetration of South and Central America.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said the Soviets and Cubans do not have the ships to move any of the tanks or other significant military gear across the Caribbean to Latin America. But U.S. authorities long have been concerned that Fidel Castro might succeed in transplanting his revolution by undercover means and stir up insurgency aimed at overthrowing governments friendly to the United States.

The U.S. Army now maintains four Special Forces groups, each made up of more than 1,200 men trained to a fine edge in the techniques of combating guerrillas.

For some times, a nucleus of Special Forces troops has been detailed to the Canal Zone. The new group will be a full scale and permanent outfit.

Although it never has been publicized, teams of U.S. antiguerilla experts are known to have worked in several Latin American countries—always at the request of those countries.

Among the teams understood to be Guatemala and Colombia.

Such operations are likely to expand with formation of the fifth unit in the Canal Zone.

The cold war mission of the Special Forces is to train native armed elements, but not to fight themselves. However, in South Viet Nam U.S. Special Forces have found themselves in the midst of battle between government soldiers and Communist guerrillas, and some have been killed.

Match Pistol, Fatal Bullet

A 22-caliber pistol found in a Ciro Tumbler field yesterday matched the bullet which killed Mrs. Mary Grogan Jan. 25 in her Bloomfield Township home.

Fifteen-year-old Douglas Grogan admitted Tuesday that he killed his mother, saying she was too strict, and later threw the weapon in the field.

The boy's confession ended an intensive search for a "phantom sniper" who terrorized the community for two weeks.

Aided by an Army mine detector expert, Oakland County Sheriff's Department detectives and Bloomfield Township police officers found the gun under a foot of snow in a drainage ditch on Squirrel Road.

In the State Police crime laboratory in East Lansing late yesterday afternoon, the link between the gun and the slug was established.

A decision on whether juvenile court will waive jurisdiction over the boy so he can be tried as an adult is expected Wednesday.

He is held in the juvenile home pending further proceedings.

U.S. Court Rules on Barnett

'State Can't Accept Blame'

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today Mississippi could not accept any blame in the contempt of court proceedings against Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson.

"The court has ruled the state cannot claim anything," Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle said. "But the state has not waived its right to make additional motions along this line."

Garner W. Green, a Mississippi special assistant attorney general had argued that Barnett's acts in the Mississippi desegregation crisis last fall, "were the acts of the state."

He said the state "stands before this court as the one responsible for what was done."

Judge Griffin B. Bell of Atlanta learned forward and asked: "Are you claiming that Barnett is Mississippi?"

Green answered: "Exactly."

RISK SENTENCE? Judge Richard T. Rives, of Montgomery, Ala., then asked:

"You are willing to risk a sentence against Mississippi... a fine?"

Green: "Yes. It's the duty of the state to be here."

The exchange came in the opening minutes of the hearing on criminal contempt charges against Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr. The charges grew out of Barnett's and Johnson's efforts to block Negro James H. Meredith's enrollment at the University of Mississippi.

Neither Barnett nor Johnson was present today.

decide whether to adopt home rule. There are two alternatives to the initial step.

Either the County Board of Supervisors would have to approve placing a general ballot question before voters asking if they favor an election of a charter commission.

Or 5 per cent of the electorate would have to petition for the initial ballot.

If the question carried in a general election, another election would be held to choose a commission to frame a proposed county home rule charter.

The final step would be decided when the people again voted on whether to adopt the proposed charter.

If they turned it down, the present system of county government would remain unchanged.

WHAT LIMITS? The constitution leaves it up to the legislature to decide what limits if any would be placed on the duly elected commission in framing the proposed charter.

The constitution also stipulates that enabling legislation must be passed before counties might decide whether they want home rule.

he said. "This is typical. The double standards used by many opponents of the constitution never cease to be amazing."

Romney said that at this time he would not debate former Gov. John Swainson, Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski or any member of the State Administrative Board on the proposed new constitution.

"They all have the same idea," he said. "The new constitution is not a partisan document and they are trying to make it into one."

The constitution further provides that home rule counties would have new powers to levy taxes "subject to limitations and prohibitions set forth in this constitution or by law."

Therefore, the legislature could restrict any additional taxing powers by some home rule counties.

According to constitutional convention delegates, the home rule section makes it possible for counties with specific problems to deal with them effectively.

Britons Pack for Home Following Skybolt Flop

ELGIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—"We made a home here, then Skybolt failed us. Now we have to leave, and leave our new friends."

That was the comment of Royal Air Force Sgt. Albert Lamb as he and 182 other Britons prepared to pack up and head for new duty stations in Great Britain and elsewhere.

Thirteen officers and 48 airmen began arriving here last May to undergo training in using the Skybolt missile system. They brought along 122 dependents and set up a trailer park home named Powokki Village.

The Skybolt was the air-ground missile designed to deliver a nuclear warhead, 1,000 miles ahead of a bomber. It was aimed at extending the life of the manned bomber into the missile age.

BUMPED BY POLARIS

The program was dropped after various failures in its test stages. Now Polaris submarines will do the job.

Just a year ago the land that is now Powokki Village was a jungle. Trailers were brought in, furnished with running water, electricity and telephones. More had been planned for 55 families who never did make the trip.

In little more than a month, the village will begin to break up. Members of the group will return to England and tell of their adventures in the "colonies."

For most, it was their first day-in, day-out contact with Americans and there were about as many reactions to their Yankee neighbors as there were Britons.

With typical British candor they considered Americans confusing but tremendously friendly; they thought Americans went out of their way to be polite. Some felt their manners were terrible.

To one, America is "the most unforgettable place." To another, it is "the most unget-at-able place."

'DISAPPOINTED'

And what of Skybolt? "Disappointed" was the unanimous reaction to the fate of the program.

The word came with monotonous regularity—almost as if this group had been schooled in the art of middle-of-the-road comment.

They weren't vexed, sorry, sad nor opinionless—particularly not opinionless about their American neighbors.

Sgt. Lamb, head of finances, said the people he met "were embarrassingly kind, really good."

People who went out of their way to be kind. "They succeeded."

But the children, who probably don't fully understand why they were uprooted from their homes and brought to the United States, or why their fathers were hand-picked for the job that never was finished, had the last word.

American Alive in S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. Air Force copilot missing since the crash of a B26 fighter-bomber Wednesday was found in good condition in the jungle today.

He was 1st Lt. James E. Johnson, 28, of Winter Haven, Fla., who parachuted from the twin-engine plane before it crashed in dense jungle 260 miles northeast of Saigon.

The pilot of the plane, Maj. James R. O'Neill, 40, of Hamilton Station, N.Y., was killed in the crash. His body was recovered from the wreckage Thursday.

O'Neill and Johnson had been dropping incendiary bombs on a suspected concentration of Viet Cong guerrillas. Theirs was the second B26 to crash in South Viet Nam within a week. Two Americans were killed in the other crash last Sunday.

SHOE DEPT. - Basement

"It caused someone to call him a Yankee," Ness said. "It upset him terribly."

Karen Ness, a 9-year-old daughter of an RAF sergeant, thought deeply before deciding: "I like America." She added quickly, "Oh, I like Florida, too."

Pat Pyke, 13, daughter of a sergeant, feels the English are more friendly and Britain's schools are better.

CRITICIZING MANNERS

"I want to go back there," she said. "American manners are not very good at all, either."

Pat's brother, Philip, 9, likes Americans but thinks the country is rotten. He wouldn't elaborate but he wants to go home.

Lynda Waterworth, 8, probably was the United States' best friend among the contingent. Lynda, a green-eyed, brown haired bundle of vivaciousness, thinks the land, the people and the weather are "gorgeous."

Lynda is typical of most of the children stationed with their families at Elgin. She likes Elvis, Pat Boone and alligators.

The children liked the weather. The temperatures in this northwestern section of Florida dipped to eight degrees during an extreme cold wave. But for the most part it was warm enough for "catching fish with my piece of stick and a string."

Now, the officers and men spend their eight-hour duty tours packing equipment. Few will remain in the United States.

They are disposing of personal obligations for the return. Most bought American cars, furniture, clothes and household items.

The wives spend their time shopping, visiting and watching television or listening to radio.

Squadron Leader C. W. Cox, education officer, acts as liaison between the contingent and local schools.

He and his wife, who is only a school teacher for the younger children, say that practically everyone in Britain wants to visit the United States.

"There's no place like home, of course," he said, "but we're quite happy here."

Mrs. Pat Waterworth, wife of a sergeant from Yorkshire, complained about the bread. "We can't eat it," she said. "My first mouthful had caraway seeds and I thought it was bad. And the plain white bread was 'so fluffy'."

Mrs. Waterworth says she will take back many memories. "I love the memories I have here," she said. "I hate to leave. I love it here."

Renew Blue Cross Hearings

'Set-Up Would Curb Control by Public'

LANSING (U-P) — A Michigan Blue Cross proposal to allow public control of its board of trustees has been criticized by State Insurance Commissioner Sherwood Colburn as containing too many loopholes.

Colburn termed the proposal "most unsatisfactory" yesterday and said it would not help Blue Cross (Michigan Hospital Service) in its bid for state approval of a 29.3 per cent rate increase.

Public hearings on the rate hike proposals by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, its companion medical service, were to resume today in Grand Rapids. The two prepaid plans seek a combined rate hike worth $140 million over the next two years.

Colburn said a five-point resolution adopted by the Blue Cross board Jan. 29 would make Blue Cross-to-hospital reimbursement a subject that the public-dominated board might be powerless to adjust.

"The resolution calls for 22 of the member board to be non-residential persons. But Blue Cross also is seeking to have its reimbursement formula written into its hospital contract before the revised board is set up.

"This means they could write their own ticket before the public board takes over," said Colburn, "and it could then be changed only with difficulty—for example, by getting two-thirds of the participating hospitals to agree."

"The new board would be at the complete mercy of the hospitals, even with a majority of its members representing the public."

TIED TO RATE HIKE

Colburn urged Blue Cross to put its governing board under public control, indicating that agreement on this and other agreement on this and other points would have important bearing on the state's acceptance of the rate hike.

"I don't want the public to think that because I've asked for public control, this resolution by Blue Cross is accepted."

Grand Rapids Scene of Public Session

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI)—Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield, shelled with criticism of their rate hike proposals in Detroit earlier, were expecting much of the same today at a public hearing here.

Colburn said that unless Blue Cross trustees agree to "more meaningful changes, it would be awfully difficult — almost impossible — to look with favor on the rate increases."

He added, however, that the introduction of changes acceptable to the state would not necessarily guarantee that the rate increases would be approved.

The Blue Cross Board of Trustees at present is composed of 21 hospital representatives, six doctors and 15 "public" members. Colburn said some of these are associated with hospitals themselves, however.

Reimbursement formulas are not now a part of hospital contracts with Blue Cross, but under what Colburn described as a sort of "gentleman's agreement," hospitals are reimbursed 102 per cent of their cost for services.

Lyon Twp. School Issue

Millage Vote Monday

SOUTH LYON—Voters of the Lyon Township School District will decide Monday the fate of a proposed seven-mill tax hike, to be used for operational costs for one year.

If approved, the seven-mill levy will replace the five-mill tax which expired in December.

School officials say an 18 per cent cutback in the school program will be necessary if the proposal is defeated.

The additional two-mill tax is required, according to school board members because of increased enrollment necessitating more teachers and new salary increments.

Voting on the issue will take place in the gymnasium of South Lyon Elementary School from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Last year, district residents went to the polls three times before finally approving a five-mill, one-year levy on Aug. 20. Disapproval of the requested millage would result in curtailment or elimination of several school programs, such as band, athletics and art, as well as loss of full-day sessions, according to school officials.

The board said it chose Monday as the election date for three reasons.

1. The election date is by law influenced by the timing of township city elections.

2. It is desirable to determine the amount of school income prior to issuing teacher contracts in March and April.

3. The board can prepare more accurate budget when it is aware of funds coming from taxes.

Police Arrest Four in Series of Thefts

A score of burglaries in the Stanaback and were returned to the sheriff's office, detectives Alphonse Anderson and Everett Fredericks were summoned to question the brothers.

Scott told police he had been involved in burglaries with the other three at one time or another.

Most of the break-ins took place within the last three months and netted the quartet under $1,000 in cash, police said.

Many of the stores were broken into more than once by the four, according to officers.

Police listed as cleared, burglaries at the Village Supermarket, American Legion Hall, Stewart's Restaurant and Bar, Snyder's Dairy, Sportsman Club, Dixie & Kathy's Restaurant, Triple H Collision, Auburn Lanes Bowling, Construction Products Distributing Co. and several homes in the area.

Scott implicated Townsend while he was being questioned yesterday morning by trooper John Brown of the Pontiac post and sheriff's deputy Billy Nolin about the break-in at the Crump firm.

A footprint found at the scene of the burglary matched one found outside Scott's home, Brown said.

Senate Controversy

Constitution Argued

LANSING (UPI) — The proposed constitution that "non-partisan" document Democrats and Republicans are constantly fighting about provoked another controversy yesterday on the floor of the Michigan Senate.

The debate centered over whether the document drafted by last year's constitutional convention represented a new or a revised constitution.

Even as the argument went on, debaters admitted they were stirring a tempest in a teapot. But it took three roll-call votes, two voice votes and 45 minutes of oratory before the senators adopted, a resolution for establishment of a special joint committee to study legislation needed to implement the constitution if it is passed.

And in its final form, the resolution called the document new, not revised.

Today both houses were due for short morning sessions before breaking up for their week-end rest that will end Monday at 8 p.m.

In the House yesterday, Republican Majority Leader R. P. Robert E. Waldron of Grosse Pointe suggested the Democrats were due for another disappointment.

After Rep. E. D. O'Brien's eight-hour tax rate plan package was referred to the House Taxation Committee, Waldron commented that would probably be the last time the measures could be on the floor.

"We're not going to consider taxes until the next session (after Labor Day). I'm afraid O'Brien's bills are just a waste of paper," Waldron said.

The Senate battle was provoked by Sen. William D. Ford, D-Taylor, when he asked the resolution be amended to read "revised constitution" instead of "new words" for political reasons.

The Ford amendment was then killed 22-11 and its author renewed the fight by announcing the vote reminded "me again so forcefully we are not 24 senators but 23 Republicans and 11 Democrats."

Rep. Garry E. Brown, R-Schoolcraft, who, like Ford, is a first-year senator and a former con delegate, accused the Democrats of "making a play on constitution" instead of "new words" for political reasons.

Tax Campaign Nears End as Oak Park Vote Nears

OAK PARK—One of the most active millage campaigns in the history of the Oak Park School District will come to an end Monday.

Voters will go to the polls to decide on a proposed 6.5-mill operating tax increase. School district residents turned down a 5-mill tax increase last June.

Nearly 14,000 registered voters are eligible to cast ballots in the election and a heavier-than-normal turnout is expected because of extensive campaigning that has taken place during the last several weeks.

School administrators have stated that failure of the millage will mean the new junior high school at Nine Mile Road and Scotia Street will not open in September; that all junior high pupils will go on half days; and that other program cut-backs will be put in effect.

Asst. School Supt. Dr. Laurence Valade has pointed out that "the requested 6.5 mills is needed to make up a $714,000 deficit in next year's estimated budget and that 3.5 mills of the increase will go toward operation of the new junior high."

A page of the millage would bring the district about $698,000 in additional local revenues plus another $78,000 in extra state aid because the special Carver School aid is now based in part on the district's tax rate, Valade said.

House Backs Amendment

LANSING (UP) — Michigan was closer today to ratification of a proposed congressional amendment to the U. S. Constitution that would outlaw poll taxes.

The House voted yesterday by a 98 to 0 margin to adopt the joint concurrent resolution. The State Senate must also pass the resolution before it is considered ratified by the state.

Rep. George H. Edwards, Detroit Democrat who introduced the measure in the House, said 75 per cent of the states must ratify the proposal for the amendment to take effect.

Workers on Strike Throughout Italy

ROME (UP) — Nationwide strikes by industrial and transport workers piled new labor woes on Italy today.

Communists and non-Communist union leaders ordered the workers off their jobs for four hours to support demands for higher pay and better working conditions.

Demonstrations and rallies were planned in Milan, Rome, Brescia and several other cities. Thousands of workers in the state telegraph company and architectural offices are either on strike or threatening walkouts.

State's Water Supply— a Blessing, Indeed

Some 20 years ago, FRANK W. STIERE declared the states bordering the Great Lakes were favored spots on this earth because of an inexhaustible supply of fresh water.

Within the last few months, an area measuring 20 miles in width adjacent to the Great Lakes was proclaimed as the future home of big industrial expansion because of this same factor. The use of water has increased almost beyond comprehension, as it relates to human consumption and especially to manufacturing.

California right now has mapped out an expenditure of nearly $2 billion for dams and reservoirs in the next dozen years. The watershed underneath all growing states is proving inadequate. From this angle, Michigan faces the rosier future in America.

Great Britain's Using New Weather Terms

If it has been of no other benefit, the unusually severe winter in Britain has enriched the language. So reports a shivering correspondent writing for the Christian Science Monitor.

One word is "frizzle"—a form of freezing rain. It falls as drizzle, but disgustingly turns to frozen frizzle on the ground. "Smizzle" is a damper form of smaze, and when it mixes with mud on the ground, the result is a particularly annoying form of mud called muddle. This is something the British have been in for years. Even now.

Schism Developing North of the Border

Periodically, the question of the politico-economic unification of the United States and Canada is discussed. But recent events indicate that our neighbor is being pressed to keep her own nation intact, and that consolidation of the bordering countries is at this time pretty academic.

At the heart of Canadian disunion is the province of Quebec. Never wholly integrated into the Commonwealth, the province has steadfastly remained a linguistically and politically French island.

For 23 years, until 1959, Quebec was dominated by iron-fisted nationalist Premier MAURICE DUPLISSIS and the Union Nationale Party, which kept in effect a semblance of federalistic unity.

His successor, however, came to power on promises not only to clean up the province but to change its whole way of life.

Since Quebec's industrial and mineral wealth is still largely controlled by English-speaking outsiders, the leader, Jean Lesage, plans on a government investment trust to "buy back" Quebec. He is about to nationalize 11 private electric companies.

Although LESAGE is personally against taking his province out of Canada, it is being questioned how long he can withstand influences that increasingly demand complete independence for Quebec.

Making up these forces are four separatist movements represented by political parties. A recent poll of a cross section of French Canadians shows 26 per cent of Quebec's five-million inhabitants in favor of secession compared to 35 per cent opposed.

There is no legal way in which the province can secede without consent of the Ottawa Parliament, the nine other provincial parliaments and the British Parliament—three pretty formidable hurdles.

But the existence of such growing separatist sentiment in a division of our bordering Commonwealth is disquieting, to say the least—and one which should give fresh significance to the designation of our own country: the United States.

A WOMAN is suing for divorce on the ground that her husband is more interested in television than in her. The burden of proof should be on her—proof, i.e., that she is more interesting than television.

RIGHT off, the Common Market enabled DE GAULLE to make a big sale—he sold Great Britain down the river.

of 1914 Beverly, a calico cat that will be 18 years old come June.

Well, That's a lot of living. On the comparable human-animal rule-of-thumb (first 2 years animal life = 24 human, 1-4 thereafter) she's been around for 88 years—a lot to be thankful for.

As a kitten, she probably did her share of alley-prowling, upholstery-clawing and cat-napping, was likely disturbed about the national debt of the times and arched her back over the antics of outgoing presidential candidate Pussfoot Johnson while emitting a few well-chosen catcalls in protest.

But throughout her life, she has always preserved becoming feline dignity and independence—refusing to be a catspaw for anybody, and keeping her four paws from committing any serious faux pas.

She has distemper, from which 90 per cent of cats die, when three years old, but shook it off and picked up her mousing at the hole where she left off.

My informants say that except for failing sight and hearing, the tabby is in pretty good shape, though she prudently limits physical activity—playing with a thread being her most violent form of exercise. Even that seems pretty strenuous to the MAT.

Trixie's menu choice is pork kidneys, while casting a pretty dim eye on the daily special—most cats go for—canned food and fish.

Our best wishes to our octogenarian and the hope that nothing catastrophic happens to her before she hits the century mark.

A most appreciated note comes from Mrs. Clyde Newton of Lake Orion, expressing some warm and even complimentary thoughts. She adds her voice to other bird lovers to look after our winged friends during the extremes of winter weather.

The lady says that bird feeding farther from the house seems to attract a greater variety of diners—but can't explain it.

Anybody have any theories to offer?

Is There A Bandaid In The House?

David Lawrence Says:

Prayer Session Unique, Impressive

WASHINGTON—They prayed together—men of all faiths and all parties, men of our government and other governments. The chief justice of the United States prayed along with the President and vice-president, members of the Cabinet and members of the Senate and House.

Maybe they didn't utter an "official" prayer in the sense in which the term has been used by the Supreme Court in its recent case banning certain prayers in public schools.

But it was a prayer by public men asking the help of God in these troublous times and reasserting man's faith in the ever-present God who inspires the minds and hearts of human beings everywhere.

It was an impressive assembly of men and women convened by an organization known as the International Christian Leadership, which has for many years mobilized breakfast groups throughout the country.

Designated now as "the presidential prayer breakfast," it has become an annual event. This time it was televised by NBC, and there were coincidentally many similar breakfast meetings held by the governors of 40 states and by the mayors of several cities.

DOCTRINE OF MANY

The language of those who spoke was that of the Christian gospel, but the doctrine of belief in a supreme being is embodied in the tenets of the many faiths represented by the 1,000 or more persons in the meeting room.

For whether it was the Catholic faith of President Kennedy, or the Jewish faith of Associate Justice Arthur Goldberg or the Protestant faith of Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, who presided, or the Moslem faith of the diplomatic representatives from some of the Asian countries, or the religions of the new African nations whose ambassadors were there, too, the assembly was the nearest thing to a universal brotherhood that could be gathered together in our times.

Representatives from the parliaments of Great Britain, France, Sweden, West Germany and Canada were guests, as well as the ambassador from Liberia, who is chairman of the Afro-Asian Committee of the United Nations.

As the President sat there, listening intently to evangelist Billy Graham and Vice President Lyndon Johnson before reading his own message, it was apparent that the chief executive, under strain and tension nowadays, welcomed the chance to relax a few moments in the atmosphere of peace and conciliation reflected in the assembly.

RARE OCCASION

For prayer is not confined to any sect as a mode of articulating inner feeling. It is recognized everywhere as a natural human effort to express dedication to a force above one's self.

But rarely, except in the churches, is there occasion for a laymen's meeting like this devoted solely to the idea of prayer.

Here was a means of publicizing the significance of prayer and of giving the testimony of men and women of all faiths to its efficacy in everyday life.

"These breakfasts," said the President, "are dedicated to prayer and all of us believe in and need prayer."

New York Notables Die Unnoticed During Strike

NEW YORK—The cabbie's head and mine turned as we looked past St. Bartholomew's on Park Avenue. A hearse and an entire block of Cadillac limousines lined the curb.

A massive flower-laden casket was being carried down the steps.

"There goes some real big shot and we'll never know who it was," the guy at the wheel said.

That's one of CONSIDINE, the more melancholy sides of the New York Newspaper strike. You don't know who is dead, or, for that matter, who is alive.

The radio and TV occasionally get around to reading off the list of the dead. But there are never any obits, no lively recollections of what the person did in his life, or what did him in. And the fellow at the microphone just couldn't care less.

The late Caswell Adams, who wrote just about as well as anybody we ever had around New York, had a curious habit.

When he woke up each morning (or afternoon, depending) he'd call for his newspaper before he made another move. When it arrived he'd thumb through the paper to the obituary page.

"If my name isn't there, I get up and shave." Cas used to say.

There is a time in every man's life when he hits his peak altitude and begins to fall back, a time when he stops living and begins the long task of dying. That moment can best be spotted, I think, as the moment when he finds the obituary page interesting.

I remember the way we used to laugh at our mother for spending so much time making "lech-lech" sounds as she browsed through the obituaries of the Washington Star. But in time her children came around to the same page.

And the same "lech-lech"

There are tens of thousands of New Yorkers who don't know that one of their great all time stage favorites Billy Gaxton was buried from St. Malachy's, the actors' church, this week. Or that one of their favorite columnists George Sokolsky died last mid-December.

Listening to Defense Secretary

our material wealth, on our military might, or on our intellectual skill or physical courage to see us safely through the seas that we must sail in the months and years to come. Along with all of these we need faith."

Altogether, this presidential prayer breakfast was one of the most impressive of those held annually for the last 11 years. (Copyright, 1963)

Common Market

The Final Journal

When foreign ministers representing the United States and the six European Common Market countries met in Brussels, one subject of discussion will be the Voice of the People:

'Why Is Jimenez Denied Political Asylum in U.S.?'

The United States has welcomed many people for political asylum. Jimenez, the past president of Venezuela, has been in Miami since 1958, up until December of last year. Because Jimenez is a staunch anti-Communist, the present Venezuelan government wants him back, probably to put him to his death. In December, Jimenez was taken into custody and thrown into jail where he has been ever since.

What has happened to our political asylum? Our American freedoms are disappearing one by one! The obvious place is to present Jimenez as a common criminal so as to return him to Venezuela.

Romulo Betancourt who is behind this plot is about to be entertained by the U.S. How can the United States blunder so in recognizing and unrolling the red carpet to one who has consistently helped spread communism in South America?

Voters Interested in New Constitution

Irresponsible opponents of good government accuse the Oakland County Nonpartisan Committee for the New Constitution of being partisan.

In their opinion, obviously, it would be nonpartisan if (and only if) its members were exclusively Democrats. I heartily agree that it could be nonpartisan under that condition but it is obvious it would not be. These critics have no interest whatsoever in avoiding politics in order to obtain better government.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Friday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of 1963 with 326 to follow.

The moon is full.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Aquarius.

On this day in history:

In 1587, Mary, Queen of Scots, was beheaded after being charged with plotting the murder of Britain's Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1940, every tenth person was shot in two villages near Warsaw, Poland, in reprisal for the deaths of two German soldiers.

In 1949, an Air Force jet bomber flew across the United States in three hours, 46 minutes—the fastest transcontinental flight to that date.

In 1955, in a surprise move, Soviet Premier Malenkov resigned as chief of state.

You have been given only one determination of President

Charles de Gaulle of France to seize the leadership of the Common Market and of Europe itself.

De Gaulle has slammed the door on Great Britain. It is just possible that he can keep it shut, for France enjoys a veto power in Common Market matters. But it is highly unlikely

he so obviously desires.

Already the French president has agreed to let the question of British membership go to the Common Market Commission, whose head is reported still to be convinced that negotiations with Britain can and must succeed.

De Gaulle has hindrances not immediately assessed in the reaction of his astonishing press conference of Jan. 14. Politically clearly, he is secure enough, but his course by no means represents the solid wall of the French peo-

Within the Common Market itself, de Gaulle is almost solid-

his hand, but his foreign minister has reassessed his conviction that Britain should be admitted.

The other members of the six are said to be furious. Since Mansholt of the Netherlands declared a "rejection of new members represents rejecting the European community and Atlantic partner-

The Italian cabinet on Jan. 23

reaffirmed its support of Britain.

Belgium's foreign minister, has defended Britain with eloquence, and the same sentiments are heard in Luxembourg.

As a practical matter, anyone of these could retaliate for de

Gaulle's uncompromising position by vetoing the association with the Common Market the French president ardently desires for the

France.

To be practical again, the

U.S. Trade Extension Act allows the President to remove

U.S. duties completely on all commodities of which the United States and the Common Market account for 80 per cent or more of world imports and exports. It is easy to see that this category would be considerably

broadened with Britain in the Common Market.

This point undoubtedly will be emphasized by our foreign trade ambassador, who is representing the United States at the Brussels meeting.

Almost as quick as you can say it, you're back in your lane again

One of the special joys of driving a Chevrolet springs from the vitality of the car itself. Even when you're soft-pedaling it, in no special hurry to get anywhere in particular, the feeling is unmistakably there. Comes a hill, a slow moving truck you want to pass or a real chips-down emergency—you've got surefired reserve power that gives you an extra margin of safety. A choice of engines with up to 425 horsepower sees to that. Short-stroke advanced-design engines that respond with smooth free-breathing efficiency unknown in the auto industry a few brief years ago. And coupled with that power is the kind of precise even-keel handling that puts you in complete control every self-assured instant you're at the wheel. Where do you get your hands on that wheel? We're Beginning to Think of All Women as Ageless

By PHYLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — It is becoming less and less common for women to lie about their ages.

Reason for this phenomenon is that fewer and fewer people are asking women what their ages are.

It simply is not the sophisticated thing to do. No more kidding about being 29, no more repartee about looking PHYLIS as old as you BATTELLE veining one's age (being the one who's proud of having fallen).

I've been to several birthday parties in the last year where clearly by no less an expert on age, candles and cakes were discreetly ignored.

Presents were not "exchanged," they were hustled furtively into the guest room and left on a bed.

Everybody just stood around and drank champagne and pretended it was some other kind of celebration, like the Fourth of July instead of the guest of honor's natal day.

I suppose, since this is the trend, this is what most women want. They want festive acknowledgment for being born, but no questions asked.

"I've never been able to understand the reticence about revealing one's age (being the one who's proud of having fallen). I've been to several birthday parties in the last year where clearly by no less an expert on age, candles and cakes were discreetly ignored.

Mme. Dache has been all out for abolishing birthday celebrations altogether as soon as a female passes out of the dolls and 10-candles stage.

She would like some legislative action on her request, she said, but the trouble is "I cannot write to my congressman, because he sees a man."

"Some men say okay, they like a woman to refuse to take birthday parties, but some other men say it's wrong. How can you know how well your congressman has been trained by his wife?"

Lilly shrugged her dainty shoulders, and said it is, there fore, a problem for the individual woman.

And the individual woman must beware. She must never tell her age, except in the greatest confidence to the social security people "after she sees 65." Because she brags about her age, even when she is only 15, it will catch up to her some day.

"Some little louse from her high school will show up at a cocktail party when she is 40," said Madame grimly, "and under the influence of martinis or something, will give away the secret."

20 YEARS YOUNGER

"There may be exaggerated, but basically it's true. With all our cosmetics and hair colors and vitamins, American women look 20 years younger than they really are. So why talk about age?"

Lilly said she had lied about her own birthdays for so long she didn't remember how old (rather, young) she was.

However, this technique sometimes came back to haunt her, since her husband always assumed she was much younger than she said she was — and therefore, in applying for passports and so on, he automatically upped her claims by a number of years.

"And that," she said, "is ridiculous!"

Most women, she concluded, would be wise to forget birthday celebrations altogether.

But if they cannot bear to pass up the "celebration part," then they should find something else to celebrate — like the anniversary of women's suffrage, or the discovery of nylon.

"Very worthy days, zose," Madame Dache said. "Call for champagne."

Criticize Judge for 'Pressuring'

State Supreme Court Orders a New Trial

The State Supreme Court, in one of 21 opinions handed down Thursday, sharply criticized Branch County Circuit Judge Mark Andrews for putting "undue pressure" on a jury to return a verdict.

A new trial was ordered. The unanimous decision was written by Justice Otis Smith, who said:

"This court has often indicated its reluctance to upset a jury verdict, and we do so only when error is so prejudicial that it amounts to a miscarriage of justice."

The case involved a 1968 suit for $50,000 damages filed by Melba Yinger of Coldwater against Keith Secord after an automobile accident on U.S. 112 in Coldwater.

After two days of deliberation, the jury reported that it had not been able to reach a unanimous verdict.

But after determining that the jury majority had grown in the series of votes, Judge Andrews told them to try again. He commented that he hoped they could reach a verdict because he was scheduled to hold court in another county the next day.

The high court declared:

"The circumstances disclose that members in the minority on the jury were forced to deliberate in an atmosphere of undue pressure, possibly at the expense of their own personal convictions."

Idea of War 'Is Nonsense' —Toynbee

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — British historian Dr. Arnold J. Toynbee said yesterday "the alternative to the abolition of war might be the abolition of the human race."

Toynbee told Jacksonville university students that nuclear weapons, however, have made the idea of war "nonsense."

The philosopher said that French President Charles de Gaulle's stand in relation to nuclear power is in keeping with a general European dislike of America's strained relations with de Gaulle, with Canada and sometimes with my country.

But, he said, "if de Gaulle is attempting to create a minor French empire, this is going to do great damage to the western world and help no one but Russia and China." He referred to the French leader's boycott of England's bid for the European Common Market.

Marines Fill Teddy's Fitness Bill

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — The space age "leatherneck" is as rugged as his counterpart of "Rough Rider" days, according to four Marine Corps officers who hiked 50 miles in less than 20 hours to prove the point.

Former President Theodore Roosevelt, himself a sturdy specimen, issued an executive order in 1908 directing all Marine officers to be capable of such a hike.

Recently, Gen. David M. Shoup, Marine Corps commandant, sent a copy of the order to President Kennedy.

The Chief Executive wondered aloud if present-day "leathernecks" could meet the challenge. Shoup promptly ordered 20 officers to get ready for a long walk next week at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

However, three Arkansas Marines hit the road yesterday, walking the 50 miles from Hot Springs, Ark., to Little Rock in 18 and 1/2 hours. And a lieutenant colonel in Yuma, Ariz., reported that he had breezed through the test Wednesday in 13 and 1/2 hours.

Fourteen other officers at Camp Pendleton in Southern California were expected to complete a similar hike across the rugged terrain of that base sometime today.

Two members of the Arkansas contingent conceded the hike was no breeze. Capt. Philip Sterling, 29, said wearily: "I've got to admit it — it about killed me."

Capt. Gus J. George, 37, got sore feet and finished the stride in his stockings, carrying his boots.

Second Lt. David M. Jordan, a strapping 23, said the walk gave him no trouble. He had completed a 60-mile jaunt in 1961 in just over 21 hours.

Cruel SPCA, Claims Union

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Potentially cruel to humans—that's what a union says about the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The AFL-CIO Building Service Union, Local 399, threatened Thursday to call a strike against the SPCA for refusal to bargain. The union claims 21 of 27 kennel men and ambulance drivers have signed cards stating that they wish to be represented by the union but that the SPCA has refused recognition.

UNBEATEN — Pontiac Northern's Skip Melroy stayed unbeaten in pro wrestling as he won his 112 pound event last night against Farmington.

More Ransom Off to Castro Aboard Plane

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Another consignment of ransom for the Cuba invasion prisoners is to be flown to Fidel Castro today from Miami. Whether the plane delivering it will return from Cuba with refugees was not known.

The Red Cross shipment of 15,000 pounds of drugs and medicine was aboard a Pan American DC6B. Such planes can carry 100 or more passengers, and several ransom flights jammed with Cubans or U.S. citizens of Cuban exiles they have returned from traction.

The ransom shipment is an installment on $3 million in drugs and vital foods for which Castro exchanged 1,113 captives taken in the April 1961 Cuba invasion fiasco.

Parents' Unit to Mark Union

A newly formed Pontiac group, Parents of Acoustically Handicapped, will celebrate its affiliation with the Alexander Graham Bell Association at the fourth annual parents' information series sponsored by the Detroit Hearing Center.

The meeting, to be held 7:45 p.m. Tuesday at the Merrill-Palmer Institute in Detroit, will feature a presentation of the certificate of membership to group president Mrs. Virgil Vandecar, 118 W. Brooklyn Ave.

Parents of Acoustically Handicapped, the 100th organization of its kind to join the association, is composed of 15 Pontiac area families with hearing-impaired children.

Burglary 'Top Crime' in County During '62

The most popular crime in the county?

It's burglary. By a landslide.

That's the way it appears, anyway, among those who ought to know — the 496 criminals found guilty in Oakland County Circuit Court last year.

More than 20 per cent — a total of 101 — were sentenced for nighttime burglaries. Another 12 did their breaking and entering in the daytime. Total: 113.

Ruining a poor second was larceny in a building, which includes shoplifting. A total of 41 were guilty of this crime.

Sixty-six of the burglars — both dark-of-night and broad-daylight variety — were among the 275 offenders sentenced to prison or jail or fined by the county's five circuit judges during 1962.

Of these 275, incidentally, 238 were sentenced to the State Prison of Southern Michigan.

The rest of the burglars — 47 — ended up among the 221 placed on probation during the year.

FINES FOR 79

Of 90 offenders who appeared before Judge William J. Beer for sentencing during 1962, a total of 79 — or 88 per cent — received prison or jail terms or fines. He placed only 11 on probation.

Second highest percentage of offenders sentenced was recorded by Judge H. Russel Holland, who sent 34 of 58 — or 59 per cent — to prison or jail or imposed fines.

Judge Stanton G. Dondero sent into confinement or fined only 44 of 99 — or 43 per cent — who appeared before him.

Total number of probationers under the probation department's jurisdiction declined from 636 to 551 during the year.

Forty-one were acquired in transfers from other counties besides the 221 added here, but 347 were discharged from probation.

Photos Sent to Doubtful Legislator

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara sent Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., photographs yesterday which he said prove the Soviets have abandoned their medium and intermediate ballistic missile sites in Cuba.

Keating had promised to eat his hat if he was proven wrong about his contention that medium range missile sites remain intact on Cuba.

McNamara, in his letter, commented lightly that "it is not my purpose to expand the sales of the hat manufacturers."

"Enclosed are photographs of each of the nine medium-range ballistic missile or intermediate-range ballistic missile sites established by the Soviet Union in Cuba," he said.

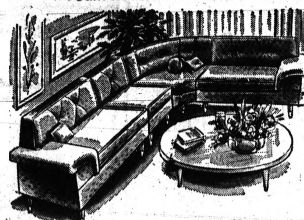

"You will note that all of the concrete launching pads (some IRBM sites, some at sites) have been broken up."

HISTORY

QUESTION: Why did Cornwallis surrender at Yorktown?

ANSWER: Americans were discouraged early in 1781. The alliance with France in 1778 was a help; but British soldiers under Cornwallis were overrunning the south. "The boy cannot escape me," boasted Cornwallis, referring to the youthful Frenchman Lafayette, who was commanding American troops in the area.

But the "boy" always managed to slip through the English general's fingers. Finally Cornwallis retreated to Yorktown, decided to wait for the help of a British fleet. Now Washington saw a great opportunity.

He knew a French fleet was sailing toward the Chesapeake. He decided to concentrate all possible forces in an attack on Cornwallis from land while the French ships blocked escape by sea. "Hurry on my dear sir, with the wings of speed," he instructed one of his commanders.

Soon a large body of combined French and Americans were surrounding Yorktown. The French ships had arrived, having beaten off an attempt by British ships to get there first. For a while Cornwallis resisted the fierce attack, then attempted to escape by night.

Finally, to avoid useless slaughter, he surrendered. This great victory won the Revolutionary War for America.

$6,000 Fire Damages

Mark Twain's Mansion

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A fire did an estimated $6,000 damage Thursday night to a vacant 30-room mansion that once was the home of author Mark Twain.

Twain (Samuel L. Clemens) lived in the three-story white brick structure with his bride, the former Olivia Langdon. The author was editor of the Buffalo Express in 1870-71.

Giants of American Industry Are Backing 'Enrico Fermi' Plant

(Editor's note — This is the third of three articles on the Enrico Fermi atomic power plant, now ready to be started after seven years of building and testing.)

By A. F. MAHAN
MONROE — The $100-million Enrico Fermi atomic power plant at nearby Lagoona Beach has been one of the biggest names in American business.

Detroit Edison is the name most often associated with it because it was this firm and Dow Chemical Co., of Midland, which first conceived it and then enlisted others in the project.

Forty-nine separate companies are represented among members of either Atomic Power Development Associates, Inc., or Power Reactor Development Co., and 14 of them are members of both.

APDA researched, designed and tested the atomic reactor, which is encased in an air-tight, welded steel building that towers the equivalent of six stories above ground and reaches that far underground, too.

PRDC built the atomic plant, including the reactor, and will run it, furnishing nuclear-generated heat to make steam for Detroit Edison's adjoining 150,000-kilowatt turbine generator.

APDA's membership includes, among others, Alcoa-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., Bendix Aviation Corp., Consolidated Coal Co., Ford Motor Co., General Motors Corp., Leeds & Northrup Co., United Engineers & Constructors, Inc., and Bitro Corporation of America.

There are 30 utility members, including Detroit Edison, Consumers Power Co., Toledo Edison Co., and Consolidated Edison of New York.

PRDC's members include Burroughs Corp., Babcock & Wilcox Co., Westinghouse Electric Corp., Fruehauf Trailer Co., Holley Carburetor Co., Combustion Engineering Inc., and 18 utility companies, including those named previously.

Detroit Edison has the biggest stake of any. This includes $22.2 million invested in steam and electric generators and the plant in which they're located.

Dow Chemical withdrew Oct. 20, 1954, saying it wished to concentrate on chemical instead of electrical aspects of nuclear development.

Nobody expects to make a monetary profit out of the operation of Enrico Fermi. For one thing, it cost much more than would have a conventional coal-burning 150,000-kilowatt plant.

For another, its major objective is to advance atomic technology and possibly provide new scientific breakthroughs.

Some members of APDA and PRDC built "Enrico Fermi" units and some others furnished physicists and skilled technicians. Yet others joined merely "to gain new knowledge" through participation.

Undoubtedly, some will utilize the know-how picked up in building this first-of-its-kind commercial plant—from drawing board to atom splitting—to join what the Atomic Energy Commission describes as "a substantial nuclear equipment industry."

"There is," the AEC said in a report to President Kennedy, "widespread and growing interest abroad in the utilization of nuclear power and an increasing tendency to turn to American industry as a manufacturing source."

Vice President Arthur Griswold of Detroit Edison explains thus why his firm got into building something it never expects to make a dollar profit on:

"Detroit Edison is in the business of producing and distributing electric power. Atomic power became a promising new technology. We believe it is up to management to look ahead and it is our opinion that stockholders want their companies to advance with the times."

Edison executives think, too, that "Enrico Fermi"—a so-called fast-breeder that actually produces more atomic fuel than it burns—may provide their company with a big jump forward to ward what the AEC says probably will be "a significant reduction" in electrical power costs.

EXPECT USE INCREASE

The Federal Power Commission estimates that the use of electric energy will grow tenfold by the year 2000. AEC estimates by then that nuclear energy will be producing half the nation's electrical power.

The day of so-called fossil fuels—coal, oil and gas—isn't over. A tenfold growth in generation of electricity, with nuclear plants furnishing only half would cause the use of plentiful fossils to rise four to five times.

While some conventional-type atomic plants in high-priced coal areas are approaching competitive costs, the AEC says it may be in the 1970s before nuclear power becomes competitive throughout the country and it may be in the 1980s before breeder reactors—like "Enrico Fermi"—become economically attractive.

Safety devices—especially in the development stages—which must be built into atomic plants are major items of costs. Not counting a thousand and one various control mechanisms, "Enrico Fermi" has an estimated $10 million in safety features built in.

PRDC carries $60 million in property and liability insurance, plus an additional $500 million government-sponsored indemnity insurance.

The air and its flow over the Lake Erie countryside has been sampled time and again and tested for radioactivity, although "Enrico Fermi" never has been fired up with uranium.

When operations begin, comparisons can be made to be certain it still is the same.

Also samples of soil, water and various biological materials—like cow's milk—have been tested over a widespread area of southeastern Michigan and adjoining Ohio and Ontario.

That's partly against the day when maybe farmer Jones may want to blame "Enrico Fermi" for radioactivity in ole bossy's milk.

Maybe PRDC can show it was the same in 1960 and 1961. The National Sanitation Foundation made the studies.

The United Auto Workers Union,

the International Union of Electrical Workers and the United Paper Workers of America have fought "Enrico Fermi" virtually every step of the way.

The unions contend the big, powerful plant is inherently too dangerous to be allowed to operate in densely populated southeastern Michigan.

They tried to get AEC to withdraw its construction permit, but they're on the right track—with no chance of running off.

to the U.S. Supreme Court, where they also lost.

Earlier this year, they opposed AEC issuance of an operating license, which PRDC now is asking after three years of non-nuclear testing.

PRDC—in all the steps up to now—has been able to prove to the satisfaction of AEC's experts they're on the right track—with no chance of running off.

Convict Claims He Was Choked Before Shaving

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Convict James Conway lost his mustache and got so mad he wrote a complaint to Judge N. Charles Bruns of the Marin County Superior Court.

Conway, 30, is serving a robbery term at San Quentin State Prison which requires inmates to be clean shaven.

He complained he was beaten and choked unconscious by prison officials who shaved his lip.

Associate Warden Louis S. Nelson admitted Thursday that Conway was forcibly shaved, but denied any beating or choking was done.

Police Are Impressed

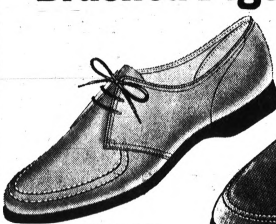

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — Peggy D. Monroe, 19, failed her driver's test the hard way. Police said while taking her exam she backed her sedan into the rear of the Florida Highway Patrol station. Damage to the building was estimated at $65.

Sudan Town, Monuments Soon Will Be Under Water

By WEBB MCKINLEY

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Many people have worried for years about what will happen to the ancient monuments of Abu Simbel when the Nile rises behind the Aswan Dam and floods the Valley of the Kings.

The people of Wadi Halfa are letting the world worry about the monuments.

Their town, with its date palms railroad station, will vanish beneath the waters.

"It is hard to think that in two or three years there will be only a lake over our homes," said a Halfan living in Khartoum. "Tell the world about that, not about those temples."

MAJOR HEADACHE

The task of finding a new home for 50,000 inhabitants has been one of the major headaches of the Sudanese government since 1959, when Sudan signed an agreement with Egypt, settling technical questions springing from the project. The agreement provided payment to Sudan of 15 million Egyptian pounds ($43.2 million) to resettle the Halfans.

Even if the money were enough, it could not take care of the human problems raised by the move.

The Nubians from Wadi Halfa are a close-knit, aggressive people with a long history. They have provided many of Khartoum's civil servants and they have political influence.

DATE ECONOMY

For generations the town has based its economy on dates from the palms irrigated by the Nile on the fringe of the desert.

Looking for a new location, the government proposed in 1960 to build a new town at Khazm El Ghriba, a dam project on the Atbara River 550 miles southeast of Wadi Halfa.

The Halfans protested that there is too much rainfall there for raising dates, and that they would be forced into a new kind of life in a strange climate.

In 1960 four cabinet ministers went to Wadi Halfa to announce that the government had decided on Khazm El Ghriba anyway. The Halfans reacted in wrath and took the ministers hostage but finally let them flee.

TROUBLE QUELLED

After several uneasy days, the ruling military junta quelled the trouble and fired Labor Commissioner Mohammed Tawfik, a Halfan who had led a protest parade in Khartoum.

Work began at Khazm El Ghriba on a $35-million project—10,000 houses, stores, schools and government buildings relocation of the railroad, and the dam to irrigate a half million acres of farmland.

Since that time most Halfans have grown resigned to their fate. Delegations taken to the new town have been impressed.

Because work on the Owan dam has dropped behind schedule, moving day for the Halfans has been postponed from next July to at least 1965.

Iraq Is Historic Victim of Turmoil, Conquests

By The Associated Press

Iraq has known turmoil since the beginning of recorded history.

Within its borders Babylon lies in ruins. The Garden of Eden, the Tower of Babel and the flood have their traditional sites.

The fertile basin between its twin rivers, the Tigris and Euphrates, spawned the earliest civilization and became the target of conquerors throughout history—Assyrians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, Turks.

THREE DIVISIONS

Modern Iraq, formed by the British out of three Turkish provinces following World War I, covers an area of 172,000 square miles, about the size of California and Maryland.

Its 7 million people are divided among these three areas:

The rugged and sparsely wooded mountains of the northeast, bordering on Iran, the home of the rebellious Kurd tribesmen.

The vast desert region to the west and southwest bordering on Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, home of nomadic tribes.

The fertile lowland between the mountains and the desert fed by the twin rivers, Iraq's lifeblood since time immemorial.

Iraq's economy is based largely on its vast oil resources, controlled largely by the British.

Baghdad, the capital city seeped in the romance of the Arabian Nights, is the home of more than a tenth of the country's population.

More Coalition Rule Looms for Canada

BY MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP) — Most Canadians agree, as they approach their fourth national election in six years: They don't want another indecisive contest on April 8 like they have had in two out of their last three.

It could happen, though. If the Social Credit and New Democratic parties can hang on to the 49 seats they held between them in the last Parliament, or pick up a few more, it would be difficult for either of the major parties to win a majority.

The Conservatives would have to gain at the expense of the Liberals—or vice versa—or the country would be back where it was after the 1957 and 1962 elections. It would have another minority government and face the prospect of still another election.

BIG 1958 VICTORY

Anything can happen in Canadian politics. Look at the 1958 election which Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker called nine months after his Conservative party squeaked into office with only 112 of the 265 seats in the House of Commons.

The Conservatives won the 1958 election by the greatest sweep in Canadian history. The Liberals were crippled and the splinter parties were virtually wiped out.

There was no warning of such a landslide. After the election last June, the Conservatives were a minority government again.

Could the April 8 election turn out to be a repeat of 1958? Possibly. But a completely different set of circumstances exists.

In 1958 Diefenbaker appealed for a chance to put forward a program after five years of Liberal rule. The Liberals had a new party leader—Nobel Prize winner Lester B. Pearson—and they were not ready. Pearson was a well-known diplomat, but he had a lot to learn as a politician.

Now Pearson and Diefenbaker are five years older—the prime minister 67 and the Liberal leader almost 66. Pearson, with the experience of two campaigns behind him, is a much improved leader. Diefenbaker is fighting to hold his place as leader. His party has internal problems and is struggling to stem a downward drift which seems to be continuing at a steady pace.

SPLINTERS GROWING

The small parties are new and have some dynamic leaders. The old Cooperative Commonwealth Federation has been converted into a farmer-labor organization, the New Democratic party, backed by the trade unions. The Social Credit party is no longer a funny money party from the West. Twenty-six of its thirty members in the outgoing House of Commons came from French-speaking Quebec Province.

Public opinion polls show the Liberals have gained in popularity since the last election, while the Conservatives dropped. The two smaller parties just about held their own.

There are signs that the Social Credit and New Democratic leaders plan to concentrate their fire on the Liberals as the front-runners.

"One thing is certain," says Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson. "John Diefenbaker is going to take the Conservatives down into oblivion."

Whether Thompson is right or wrong, the Conservatives will have to pick up 18 seats to give them the 133 needed for a clear majority. The Liberals will have to gain 34.

Pearson believes he will get some of the normally Liberal seats won last year by the Social Crediters in Quebec. But Quebec is deeply involved in a wave of French nationalism. This may help the Social Credit group because of the active role their leader, René Côté, has taken in the movement. Côté has launched an all-out drive in Quebec and whatever success his party has probably will be at the expense of the Liberals. The Conservatives had 14 Quebec seats in the last Parliament.

One party might sweep the country again if it could come up with an issue that would light a fire under the voters. So far nothing resembling this is on the horizon. Diefenbaker and Pearson have strong followings, but neither is the kind of dynamic leader who can swing an election on pure personal magnetism.

It seems to be mainly a question of how many people are disillusioned with the Conservative government and whether the defectors will swing to the Liberals or to one of the smaller parties.

74.5% vote Valiant best in nationwide consumer survey

"Like to test-drive the 1963 compacts?" That's what Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute—a completely independent company—recently asked 3600 typical drivers in 18 cities across the country.

The people were asked to test-drive two compacts. Some picked Corvair and Valiant. Some picked Falcon and Valiant. Some wanted to try Rambler or Chevy II. The course included all kinds of normal driving.

Drivers circled the course twice (once in each car) with N.C.T.I.'s trained interviewers firing questions all the way. Which of these cars do you prefer for acceleration? Ride? Steering? Styling? Finally, which is the best all-around value?

The surprising results:

Compact preference	Rambler	Valiant	Chevy II	Valiant	Corvair	Valiant	Falcon	Valiant	Average four compacts	Average Valiant
Interior styling	25%	75%	30%	70%	27%	73%	44%	56%	33%	67%
Exterior styling	24	76	48	52	39	61	41	59	38	62

BEST ALL-AROUND VALUE	17	83	34	66	24	76	27	73	25.5	74.5%

Two things were not tested—price and warranty. But remember that Valiant is just about the lowest-priced car made in the U.S.A. today. And that Valiant carries America's longest and best new-car warranty—5 years or 50,000 miles.* Ask your Plymouth-Valiant Dealer for your own independent test drive in The New Valiant.

* Your Authorized Plymouth-Valiant Dealer's Warranty against defects in material and workmanship on 1963 cars has been expanded to include parts replacement or repair, without charge for required parts or labor, for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, on the engine block, head and internal parts; transmission case and internal parts (excluding manual clutch); torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints (excluding dust covers); rear axle and differential; and rear wheel bearings, provided the vehicle has been serviced at reasonable intervals according to the Plymouth-Valiant Certified Car Care schedule.

Best all-around compact anybody has come up with yet... VALIANT!

In Dallas, 74% voted Valiant best value.

In Syracuse, 78% voted Valiant best value.

In Los Angeles, 77% voted Valiant best value.

Toronto Tenement Fire

8 Children Burn to Death

TORONTO (AP)—All eight children of one family burned to death today in a fire that roared through their tenement home in Toronto's West End.

The father, Roy French, 36, told a neighbor he fell asleep and left an electric kettle going. The kettle overheated and exploded, he said.

Another neighbor, Bill Bartlett, ran into the blazing building and dragged French out. The father tried to rush into the house but was forced back by the flames.

Mrs. French, about 32, returned from work at the postoffice after firemen were on the scene. She was hospitalized, suffering from shock. The father was treated for a cut foot.

The bodies of the children, aged 4 to 16 years, were found in beds. The fire was brought under control after it burned out two adjoining homes in the row of two-story, brick-shell houses. A third was damaged.

Will Consider Flight Service

Airline Proposes Move Out of Pontiac Area

Representatives from Pontiac and seven other Michigan cities will consider proposals to discontinue airline passenger service to their cities when they meet in Lansing Feb. 19.

The informal meeting, arranged by the Michigan Aeronautics Department, will be held at Capital City Airport.

Purpose of the meeting is to determine local feeling and organize data to be submitted at a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) preference hearing on the matter in Washington, D.C. Feb. 26.

Max Adams, manager of the Pontiac Area Chamber of Commerce; Homer Hoskins, manager of Pontiac Municipal Airport; and J. A. Hubbard, chairman of the chamber's airport committee, will attend the meeting.

Pontiac also will be represented at the hearings in Washington.

Of major concern is a request of North Central Airlines to discontinue service at Pontiac, Port Huron and Reed City. Cadillac, Flint and Saginaw to eliminate competition there with North Central.

There also will be a discussion of a CAB proposal to create five area airports in the state.

Under the proposal, the five area airports would be Lansing, Jackson, Muskegon - Grand Rapids, Benton Harbor - St. Joseph - South Bend, Saginaw, Flint and Battle Creek - Kalamazoo.

One airport in each group would be selected as the central airport to serve passengers from the other or others in the group.

Reveals Candidacy for MSU Trusteeship

EAST LANSING (AP)—Arthur Rouse, 52, of Boyne City, has announced his candidacy for Republican nomination for the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

Rouse was elected to the board in 1953 and served one six-year term but was defeated in a 1959 re-election bid.

The candidate is engaged in real estate, oil distributing and farming operations. He was graduated from Michigan State in 1935 and was captain of the baseball team that year.

Kovacs' Mother Fails in Attempt to Oust Edie

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The mother of Ernie Kovacs failed in her efforts to remove his widow, actress Edie Adams, as administrator of the late comedian's estate.

Superior Court Judge Clyde C. Triplett ruled Thursday that Mary Kovacs could not sue because she has no interest in the estate.

Kovacs, 33, died in a traffic accident in nearby Beverly Hills Jan. 13, 1962. He left no will.

Mrs. Kovacs charged her daughter-in-law was mismanaging the estate, had no real interest in his children and cared only for her own career.

Mrs. Romney's Nephew Tells Firsthand Story

Life Rugged for Americans in Afghanistan

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press
Women's Editor

When you feel like complaining about the high cost of food, think of Jeanette Richards who pays $1 for every box of corn flakes she buys.

You're not apt to go shopping where she does — unless your husband is one of the 500 Americans working in Kabul, Afghanistan. Hers is Karl Richards, son of the Karl M. Richards of Apple Lane and nephew of Mrs. George Romney, is a livestock adviser with the U.S. Agency for International Development in the Middle East country.

The family, which includes 8-year-old Jacqueline, is concluding a three-months' leave of absence in the United States and will be returning to Afghanistan Sunday.

Richards will start a second stay of two years with the government agency.

After this the family will come home to their cattle ranch in Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards met at the University of Utah where Mrs. Richards, who's French, held a fellowship. She teaches in a girls' school in Kabul and has tried to keep her daughter's school work up to date during this vacation. Never as cold as Michigan, the climate in Kabul is always clear and sunny. A rainfall of only 6 or 7 inches a year means all crops are grown by irrigation. But, say the Richards', methods haven't changed for 2,000 years.

SUPERVISES FARMS

Richards is supervising two dairy farms and a poultry farm. Last year he hatched 15,000 eggs which were eagerly accepted by native poultry growers. Once they have tasted tender chicken, they want more.

Richards has a native counterpart to help him in his work, a man trained in the United States.

Mrs. Richards must plan clothing for two years. If she forgets something, or needs an item, she looks in the native bazaars. But no ready-made clothing is sold and the Sears, Roebuck catalogue is their refuge—especially for clothes for a growing youngster.

Their cook (a man) usually shops for food. But occasionally the Richardses go themselves to check up on the honesty of their servant.

Everyone steals over there, says Richards. The teachers steal part of the powdered milk given schools for the children, then water down what is left, he charges. The drinking water is unsafe for the most part and often the children fall ill from milk made with it, he adds. The Richardses haul all their drinking water from a safe well at the American Embassy.

"It's hard to train children never to drink water from any source except the ones at home. We try always to keep bottled water near every faucet."

RUSSIANS ABOUND

Richards says that there are 5,000 Russians in Kabul who are helping the Afghans build roads and houses. But the American technicians will get out and work with their bare hands and the Russians won't.

In addition to fluent French, Richards speaks Farsi, an offbeat Persian spoken in Kabul. The Russians don't bother to learn this and their interpreters translate into English. Sometimes Richards translates that English into Farsi.

Electricity is uncertain and kerosene is not always available. So cooking and keeping food is a haphazard thing. The Richardses say they can't afford to eat American style since much food is flown in and prices at the American commissary are high.

Afghanistan is a sheep-raising country, but the natives don't know what tender meat is. Mrs. Richards laughingly said that you would expect to get good shishkabobs in such a land, but the ones here are better, she feels.

The native bread is good. Unleavened, it comes in the shape of a snowflake and is best eaten hot.

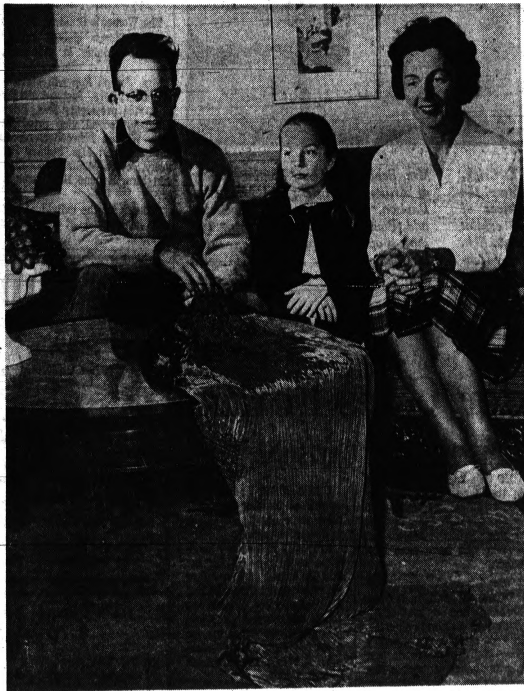

MANY BABIES DIE

The native diet consists mainly of this bread and tea. Infant mortality is high and the average life expectancy is only 25 years.

Did the Richardses follow the governor's election last fall? Certainly. They can always find one clear program on their short wave radio even though the Russians jam many stations. Since China invaded India, radio reception has been better because the Russians are so busy jamming Red Chinese radio programs.

If they make connections with the local Afghan airlines, the Richards family will be back in Kabul in a day and a half of flying time. They plan to visit the Holy Land on their return trip.

Interested as they are in serving another two years in the fascinating and frustrating country of Afghanistan, they agree that living in America is best of all.

Pontiac Press Photo

Winding up a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Karl M. Richards of Apple Lane, are Karl Richards, his wife and daughter Jacqueline. The younger Richards, a livestock adviser to the Afghanistan government, is returning for a second two-year stay in that country. On the table in front of the family is a caracul hat (worn by every Afghan in winter and summer) and a chadree. This pleated enveloping garment has only a latticed opening in front of the face. All female natives but the very young wear it in public.

Arranging flowers for the Brookside Garden Club's tea Thursday in her home on South Pemberton Road is Mrs. E. Gilmour Winn, charter president.

Garden Club Has First Meeting

Twenty charter members of the recently organized Brookside Garden Club gathered Thursday in the home of the president, Mrs. E. Gilmour Winn of South Pemberton Road, for their first business meeting and tea.

Affiliated with the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, the new Bloomfield Township branch was organized by Mrs. Arthur K. Hyde of Birmingham, WNF&G extension chairman. Mrs. Carl Larson, Bloomfield Hills Branch, sponsored the group.

The new branch will meet the first Thursday of each month in the homes of members.

Mrs. Clifford Grovogel is vice president; Mrs. Eugene R. Nielsen, secretary; Mrs. A. K. Mackean, treasurer; and Mrs. Harold Cousins, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Fred Pierce will handle publicity.

Several members will attend the Michigan Division winter council meeting Wednesday in the Women's City Club, Detroit.

Pontiac Central to Host Musical Competition

Pontiac Central High School will host the Solo and Ensemble Festival, District Four of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, Saturday.

Some 1,500 to 2,000 junior and senior high school instrumentalists will perform and be rated on musicianship, technique and other musical qualities.

Those senior high students receiving top ratings will be eligible for the state festival in March.

The judges are experts in percussion, piano, woodwind and brass instrument performance and will judge according to their specialty.

In addition to 18 judges, some 52 adult officials will be participating. Pontiac Central High School band members will assist Richard L. Morse, director of the band, who is local chairman for the event.

Urban League Has Teacher for Speaker

Pontiac Urban League Guild met Tuesday evening at the Community Services Building on Franklin Boulevard. Mrs. Thomas Lewis and Mrs. Howard LaGrone were hostesses.

Philip Lifton, history teacher at Pontiac Northern High School, spoke on "What the Negro has contributed to United States history."

Chapter Picks 6 Delegates

Gold Star Mothers, Chapter No. 34 representatives who will attend the state board meeting Monday in Lansing are Mrs. Edward McDonald, Mrs. Clarence Sutton, Mrs. Cecil Briggs, Mrs. Leone Hagberg, Mrs. David Bickerstaff and Mrs. Olive Burgess.

During Wednesday's meeting Mrs. Luisa Mayotte was installed as first vice president. President Mrs. Sutton appointed Mrs. Eva Welch secretary of the memorial association and Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Bickerstaff as representatives to the association.

She Weaves Vivacity Into Vibrant Fabrics

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK — Dorothy Liebes' friends have a saying: "If you stand around long enough, you'll get woven in."

It's the thin ones who worry most. You see, Dorothy Liebes, color consultant and the country's foremost textile designer, has a passion for weaving all kinds of unlikely materials together to get a textured look.

And one day it might happen that Mrs. Liebes, in her zeal to achieve new sculptured effects, would deftly entwine a slim, unwary friend in the web of her loom.

Just such unflinching enthusiasm has put the stately, ash-blond weaver on top of the bin and won her a wall full of awards and citations.

The latest, presented last night, is the Elsie de Wolfe Award of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Interior Decorators (AID), for outstanding contributions to the advancement of interior design and decoration.

Since she introduced the first blue-green combination a couple of decades ago, her color heresies have become famous. After the gasps die away, everybody scrambles to copy her.

'NO BAD COLOR'

"There is no such thing as a bad color, only bad color combinations," she says. "There's nothing sacred about color today. They never used to put turquoise with moss green, but painters do, don't they, and I don't see why we can't. It's exciting today. If your house looks dull, give yourself a red door — or a blue one."

In dreaming up hand-woven designs to be reproduced by power looms, Mrs.

Liebes works with cotton, flax, wool, silk, chenille, metallic threads, leather, bamboo reeds, dacron, orlon, nylon, antron, new lighter-than-air fibers and anything else you can think of.

She says: "There's a classic conversation that begins, 'But Mrs. Liebes, it's not feasible.' Then I say, 'Now I know I have something.'"

A visit to her studio is an exciting, unsettling experience. You see spoils and spoils of clear, vibrantly colored yarns — 30,000 different dye lots in all — on shelves reaching to the ceiling.

The California-born designer, called a master of the unfinished sentence by her sister, skips nimbly and breathlessly from her own invention, correlation cards "showing what goes with what" (carpeting, upholstery, drapery, paint, so forth) to sisterly carpets that carry the same color from one room to the next ("People don't want to step from a green room into a red room into a blue room, except maybe in the White House") and on to Venetian blinds with yarn woven between the slats.

POLYNESIAN CARPET

Her eyes light on a small masterpiece in hot colors, and with a glad little cry she introduces you to the model of a carpet that's going into a hotel in Honolulu ("I wanted to use the Polynesian . . ."). No phrases are ever completed but such is the rapport the magic workshop creates, words are nearly unnecessary anyway.

While rummaging through a drawer in search of a certain swatch she never finds. Mrs. Liebes tosses off these bits of intelligence:

"This is going to be a yellow year. It's true there is a cycle; there's been so much of this cool blue-green, now the pendulum has turned to yellows."

"The most popular colors right now are tangerine, curry yellow, mossy green, bronzy yellow."

"Print on print is very much the howl — it depends on the taste that goes into it."

"You should use only three colors in a home, but you can use 10 different values of each color . . ."

Call Them Mr., Mrs. if They Wish

By The Emily Post Institute
Q: My daughter has been married six months and during this time we have had our son-in-law's parents at our house for dinner a few times and they have had to their house and we have become rather friendly.

As it seemed so stiff to call them Mr. and Mrs. I began calling them by their first names and I asked them to do the same. However, they still continue to call us Mr. and Mrs. I am rather hurt over this and feel that they do not consider us friends.

Since they insist on calling us Mr. and Mrs. should I cease calling them by their first names and call them Mr. and Mrs. too?

A: There are still many people who dislike the use of first names and as your son-in-law's parents seem to be among these, I would advise you to call them Mr. and Mrs. until they ask you to call them Mary and John.

Q: When invited to dinner in someone's house, how and when do dinner guests leave the table? Is it the duty of the hostess to suggest leaving the table?

A: At a large, formal dinner the hostess looks around the table and if all have finished eating, she catches her husband's eye and both rise to leave the table, the guests following their example. At a small, informal dinner, she most probably says: "Let's go into the living room for our coffee."

Q: I have a pair of hand-cut crystal candelabra which I keep on my dining table at all times. They are lighted only at dinner time. My daughter tells me that it is improper to leave them on the table when not in use and that they should be removed when dinner is over. Is she right about this?

A: Your daughter is right. They should be removed from the table when not in use.

Details concerning the remarriage of a widow and divorce are described in the new Emily Post Institute booklet entitled, "Second Marriage." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to the Emily Post Institute, in care of The Pontiac Press.

But 'Everybody' Has One

6th Grader Goes Formal

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Today my daughter has a long face because I refused to buy her a formal. She is 11 years old and in the sixth grade.

A girl used to get her first formal for the senior prom when she was 17. Today they have proms for children in the sixth grade.

I hate to see my daughter miss out on the fun with her friends, but we are a medium-income family and can't afford formals and all the accessories for 11-year-olds. What is your opinion, Abby?

AVERAGE MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I'm told that the added expenses of extra-curricular events in the modern high school are becoming psychologically tough on have-not kids. So now it's "formals" in the sixth grade? I'm against 'em!

DEAR ABBY: I have a sick-in-the-head husband, and his jealousy is driving me out of my mind. I am not allowed to speak to any man in our neighborhood or to any other man. Even relatives!

If I even look at them he accuses me of all kinds of dirty things. I have never given him any reason to doubt me. I can't just pitch him because we have children.

He tells me he is not sick in the head, but what else would you call it? What am I going to do? Now I am getting jealous. Jealous of women who have sane husbands.

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: If your husband had a toothache, you would get him to a dentist by hook or by crook, wouldn't you? Well, there are doctors who take care of "sick-in-the-head" people, too. What are you waiting for?

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman of 28 who has never been married. I live alone and support myself.

I recently met a very handsome man who fell for me fast. He talked of "our future together" and I thought I had finally found my man. I was completely bowled over last night when he asked me for a loan of $500. He's a salesman and told me how well he was doing.

I asked him if he'd sign a note for it and he said if he had wanted to sign a note he could have gone to a bank.

Now I have my doubts about him. Half of me wants to continue seeing him and half of me to quit him. I am SHATTERED.
DEAR SHATTERED: Better to be temporarily "shattered" than permanently broke. Listen to the half with the brains in it. Romeo who mix moonlight and marriage are a poor risk.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TED: People are governed by the head. A kind heart is of little value in chess.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of The Pontiac Press.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby in care of The Pontiac Press, for Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

U. of M. Coeds Kept Busy

Sororities Ready Rush Parties

By BARBARA GRIFFIN

Many University of Michigan coeds began second semester classes Monday morning with drooping eyes and stifled yawns, worn out by the continual round of 22 parties at each one of the Michigan sorority houses during the first weekend of Women's Rush.

Last weekend, the sororities opened their doors to more than 1,300 rushees, who attended parties at each of the sorority "mixers."

After receiving their invitations for the second set of parties to be held this weekend, rushees will proceed through the remainder of the rushing activity, which will be climaxed by final desserts and finally pledging day Feb. 24.

Many hours are spent by the sorority members preparing entertainment, food and decorations for these parties.

Phyllis Benetice of Bloomfield Hills is working with members of her sorority, Alpha Chi Omega, on decorations and costumes for the Sherwood Forest party.

Phyllis is especially interested in Alpha Chi's new pledge class, as she has just been elected vice president of the house, in charge of training the pledges in sorority lore.

Barbara Shadley of Ottawa Drive and Julie Fitzgerald of Bloomfield Hills, members of Collegiate Sorority, have more room for rush parties this year in their newly remodeled house.

Also working on rush activities is Alpha Xi Delta Marilyn Vernon of West Russell Street and Chi Omega Judy Ward of Starr Avenue and Elaine Garrett of Mark Street.

Linda Underhill of Joy

Road has been busy planning entertainment for Alpha Phi's rush parties and Kiki Seides of Ottawa Drive has been working with members of her sorority, Phi Mu.

Sigma Kappa Charlotte Johnson of Ogden Road and Sandy Hilderley of Joy Road also have a redecorated house to show the rushees this year.

Judy Haroutunian of Bloomfield Hills is song leader of her sorority, Alpha Gamma Delta. Judy teaches songs to the actives during the year and leads them during the rush parties.

Karen Kessler of Waterford Township has also been working on rushing activities for Alpha Gamma, and was recently elected chairman of the house standards board.

Fraternities are also preparing for their rush which begins Sunday afternoon with open house at each of the 43 houses.

Fraternity rush is conducted on a more informal basis.

than sorority rush and bids are extended periodically by the houses before the rushing period ends Feb. 24.

Many also attended a jazz performance and discussion program Tuesday evening presented by the Student Steering Committee of the Honors Council of the College of Literature, Science and the Arts.

Junior Sue Koprince of West Iroquois Road was instrumental in planning this program. She is presently chairman of the steering committee. Sue is an honor student majoring in political science.

Polly's Pointers

Sharp Idea for Tacks

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — To use enameled thumbtacks in hardwood, cover the hammer head with adhesive tape and then drive in the tack so that the finish is unharmed.

DEAR POLLY — Pad coat hangers with discarded shoulder pads. This helps keep the shape in the shoulders of clothes that have just come back from the cleaners on wire hangers.

DEAR POLLY — My grandmother came up with the idea of poking holes in her plastic soap dish so that the excess water on the soap would drain off, thus preventing the soap from becoming soggy, soft and wasted. She pierced the holes with an ice pick, heated over the fire. When the pick is really hot, the job is fast and easy.

DEAR POLLY — A small bucket and a plunger make laundering a few hand washables easier on the clothes and saves manures, too. Work the plunger up and down in both suds and rinse water. Sent both of my kids off to college with a set.

DEAR POLLY — This morning I went to my closet to get out a skirt and found the eye fastener missing. The hook was there, so I picked up my staple gun and stapled me an eye. It worked fine all day long and was a great solution in a pinch.

DEAR POLLY — I love all those workable ideas! Here is one of my favorites. I use all old gloves with holes in the finger tips while vacuuming. It is easy to wipe the hose and cords, and I finish with clean hands and a clean vacuum.

I keep pen and scissors near the chair where I read newspapers and magazines. This way it is easy to cut out and date any wanted items and not have to search back through the papers.

Share your favorite homemaking ideas . . . send them to Polly in care of The Pontiac Press. You'll receive a bright, new silver dollar if Polly uses your ideas in Polly's Pointers.

Club to Hold Men's Night

Waterford Child Study Club I will observe men's night Monday in the home of the Edmund Windelers on Hatchery Road.

Jack Harris will discuss stocks and bonds following the 7 p.m. dinner.

Assisting Mrs. Windeler will be Mrs. Norman Cheal, Mrs. Fred Keekhart and Mrs. Julian Greenlee.

Plan Benefit

Philea Theta Club made plans for its March benefit sale during Wednesday's meeting at the home of Mrs. Carl Skrobeck of Oakland Lake. Cochairmen of next month's event are Mrs. James Smith and Mrs. Douglas Austin.

They'll Head Committees

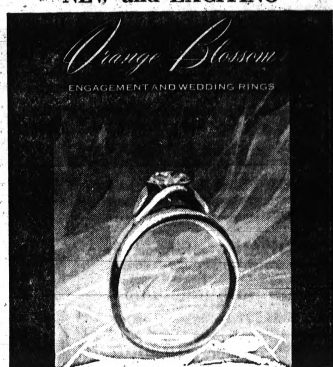

Committee heads for Kappa Chi Alpha Sorority's spaghetti dinner and wine demonstration were announced at Tuesday's meeting.

The sorority benefit, March 28 at the Waterford Community Center at 6:30 p.m., will assist the Leukemia Foundation. It is open to the public.

Committee heads are Mrs. Arthur Lane, chairman; Mrs. Engel Groenber, tickets and Mrs. Bruce Burnmeister, Mrs. Edward Doyle, Mrs. Richard Henke, table decorations.

Mrs. Thomas Raguso was hostess for Tuesday's meeting. Mrs. Edward Amos, president, will open her home for next month's meeting.

PCH Varsity Club Plays Faculty Men

By JANE BIGLER

On Varsity Club team were Richard Richards, Robert Farms, James Moore, Hugh Grove, Peter Bevers, David Shih, Richard Johnson and Lawrence Nichols.

Others were Richard Crawford, Donald Crawford, John Smith, Robert Lawrence, Overdis Warren, Esjave Whittier, Wayne Lee, John Marcoux, Chuck Stein and Charles Humphrey.

The Varsity Club is composed of boys having served a letter on one of Central's teams. Drivers education instructor Dean Wilson is the club's sponsor.

RECEIVE ALL AS

Thirtyone students received all As for the first semester and earned a spot on the Principal's Honor Roll.

Seniors were Marilyn Morris, Ruth Leacher, Sue Garriger, Linda Pimot, Joan Grabek, Mary Small, Helen Nelson, Judy Hillman, Susan Folsom, John Igragg, Nancy Bomer, Sharon Bradshaw and Peg Coppersmith.

Juniors receiving all As were Joseph McNeely, Ruth Goggin, Justina Vargas, Cathy Wilson, Janice Shepherd, Carol Goddshall, Gerda Jungson, Cheryl Wilton and Alton LaValls.

Sophomores on the list were Beverly Nosanchuk, Beth Rosel, Diane Brown, Janie Cummings, Robert Bell, Carol Gray, Olga Bogdanov, Edie Payne and Linda Davidson.

NEW OFFICERS

The Pop Club has elected officers for the second semester.

Priscilla Wilkinson is the new president; Pat Hodge, vice president; Doris Coleman, secretary; and Shirley Warren, treasurer.

Chairman of the school committee is Peggy Hill. Ruth Ann Armistead heads the activities committee and Connie Bass is in charge of the stadium committee.

Senior Gwen Watkins has been named Pontiac Central's Home-maker of Tomorrow.

Gwen will now vie for the title of Michigan Home-maker of Tomorrow. The winner of this contest will receive $1,500 and her school will be given a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Tombahawk editor Sue Dawe have been invited to attend a luncheon at MSUO with other high school leaders. They will be accompanied by administrative assistant Donald McMillan.

The purpose of this meeting is to organize a workshop for Oakland County high school leaders.

Elect Officers at St. Michael's

By WILLIAM O'NEILL

The freshmen class of St. Michael's High School has elected officers for 1963.

Room 1: Margaret Finnegan, president; Mary Cassano, vice president; Bobette Roselli, secretary; Florence Henrethy, treasurer and Patricia English, student council representative.

Room 2: William Blackberry, president; Lawrence Bieri, vice president; and Steven Kraft, secretary-treasurer.

Today seniors and sophomores were given a research test. Giving the test was Dr. David Beardsley and Mrs. Ann Diener of the Michigan State University Oakland psychology department.

DRESS UP DAY

Junior girls introduced "Junior Dress Up Day" Tuesday. This day came as a surprise to faculty and students of the other classes.

Boys Oppose Radical Dress

Discuss Girls' Clothes, Dating at Kettering

BY BARB SECAN

Bizarre make-up, "fly-away" hairdos and extremely short skirts are strictly taboo according to a panel of seven Waterford Kettering High School boys.

In a dual-class discussion last Friday these junior and senior boys had the opportunity to express their views on "Girls: As Boys See Them". Among the areas covered in this topic were personal appearance, dating problems and general manners.

Ideas for the development of this type of program stemmed from a homemaking class which is currently studying a unit on habits of good grooming.

Students felt it would be beneficial to get some outside opinions on the subject. Patty Looman's discussion class provided the male participants.

The majority of the hour was spent answering questions submitted privately by the girls with an open question-and-answer period following.

The consensus reached through the discussion was that boys consider conservative girls good date bait. All of the panel members favored moderation in dress and manner, and banned extremes in both areas.

MOCK ELECTIONS

Early this week the senior class held the primaries for the annual Senior Mock Election. By means of a closed ballot students were able to nominate any of their classmates who might fit one of the 10 categories.

Approximately three students having the most nominations will be selected to run in the finals. From these three candidates the seniors will elect one boy and one girl to each division.

The 10 superlatives are "Most All Around," "Prettiest Smile," "Most Shy," "Perfect Match," "Most Likely to Succeed," "Friendliest," "Most Courteous," "Most Valuable to Class," "Most Dependable" and "Wittiest."

PEP RALLY

Seniors presented their take-off of the "Beverly Hillsbillies" this afternoon in a pep assembly.

Blue jeans and straw hats served as a background to arouse school spirit and prepare for tonight's home game against Lapeer High School. Game time is 6:30 p.m. for the junior varsity and 8 p.m. for the varsity.

The student council will sponsor a record hop immediately after the game in the gym. The guest policy will be in effect.

Lake Orion Awaiting New Royal Miss

By JANE BARKERT

Highlighting the final basketball game of the season for Lake Orion High School will be the crowning of Homecoming Queen this evening.

Announcing of the new queen will be made at halftime ceremonies during the game with Clawson.

Following the game, the 1963 queen and her court will be honored at a dance sponsored by the "O" Club in the high school cafeteria from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m.

CANDIDATES PICKED

Last Friday candidates from the freshman and sophomore classes and one from each of the junior and senior classes were selected. Campaigning this morning.

Seniors picked Colleen Kelly and Elaine Cudobnosky as their candidates. Chosen from the junior class were Sharon Post and Barbara Wagoner.

PNH Debaters Keep on the Go

By SUSAN KILLEN

In the past weeks, Pontiac Northern High School's debate team has joined in a number of debates.

The varsity team is composed of Sue Simpson and Pat Waugh, affirmative and William Basinger and George Kovach, negative. Four newcomers to the team, now in junior varsity, are Carl Scarborough, Robert Pintano, Shirley Kath and Robert Basinger.

A trip to Grand Blanc High School for the State League Debate ended with a loss for the affirmative, but the negative side scored a victory. The argument topic is general throughout Michigan: "Should the United States join the Common Market?"

In January, the Inter-Lakes League Debate Tournament was held at Pontiac Northern. Among the high schools that took part are Cranbrook, Kettering, Farmington, Waterford, Walled Lake and Southfield.

Teams from these schools carried on debates during the afternoon with students from PNH as timekeepers.

Although Northern lost both affirmative and negative arguments, Clement Cleveland, group adviser, said, "Both teams have been given outstanding performances."

A new plan regarding driver education classes has gone into effect for the second semester.

Instructor Donald Balzarini will be joined by two additional instructors from Pontiac Central, Dean Wilson and Ralph Grubb, to enlarge the number of students taught each hour.

In the afternoon, the three teachers conduct class at Pontiac Central as they do here during the morning. One teacher instructs on the range, one on the road and one in the classroom.

The team approach enables them to instruct 64 pupils per hour instead of the 16 now possible.

With this system, the administration believes there will be greater results at considerably less cost.

Busy at St. Frederick's

Get Set for Science Fair

By SHEILA LANE

Members of the Science Club of St. Frederick's High School are now preparing exhibits for the Regional Floor Fair at Derby Junior High School, Birmingham, March 22-23.

Young scientists experimenting under the direction of Sister Mary Clair, physics and chemistry teacher, include Robert Bailey, who is preparing a project on radiation, and Robert DeLand, whose exhibit is in rocketry.

James Bacatti is working on sound waves; Michael Vosbert on magnetism; and Joe Roncomi, isoperimetry.

The boys will propose a hypothesis related to their individual topics and by compiling collected data and experimenting, they will verify or disprove their hypotheses. All of this information will then be put into displays showing their scientific thought.

HEART FUND DRIVE

Mari Higgins, a senior at St. Frederick's, has been chosen to represent the school in the Heart Fund Drive, sponsored by the Heart Research Foundation.

Each candidate conducts her own campaign for votes. Students cast "ballots" according to donations, each vote being a penny. She also sells tickets at 75 cents, which gives her 75 votes per ticket to the crowning ceremonies 8 to 11 p.m. Feb. 14 at the Rolladium on M59.

TEEN CLUB

St. Frederick's Teen Club is in the midst of a campaign to elect new officers for the year 1963-64. All members of the Teen Club are eligible to run.

Outgoing officers who will complete their term in office on Feb. 13, election night, include Thomas Bradley, president; Mari Higgins, vice president; Marie Dawson, secretary; and John Post, treasurer.

BL'FIELD HILLS

By NANCY WEISSWASSER

The Bloomfield Hills High School ski team has participated in five triangular meets this year and had maintained a perfect record until Saturday when they were edged by Royal Oak Kimball.

Other schools in the league are Berkley, Royal Oak, Kimball, Walled Lake, Waterford, West Bloomfield and Waterford Kettering.

On the Bloomfield Hills High School boys team Geoff Smith is undefeated this season. Other top skiers are Butch Blumenfeld, Marc Miller, Richard Wood and Bynn Smith.

Pamela Waggoner is considered the best prospect for the girl's team. She placed second in local competition last year and is favored for the championship this year.

A new policy of managing funds for foreign exchange students at Bloomfield Hills High School is being considered by the student body.

Students coming to BHHS through the Michigan Council of Churches and other organizations received no support.

For the past month the Foreign Exchange Council has been meeting at the high school to consider plans for a more efficient exchange student system.

It has been decided that all foreign exchange students at BHHS should receive the same amount of money for such items as school books, lunches, the yearbook and the school paper.

Money would be raised by projects sponsored by the entire school rather than solely by the AFS Club.

Presently, the issue is open for discussion to the entire student body, since it would affect the school as a whole.

The plan will go into effect when approved by the student council.

W. BLOOMFIELD

BY LOUELLA ELVA

The West Bloomfield High School's Talent Show will be presented Wednesday, February 27th at 8:00. It is under the direction of David Vivian, social studies instructor with David Helmreich and Steve Alix as student directors.

The show will contain such acts as a dance by the varsity cheerleaders — Peggy Nothofer, Lynn Gotshall, June Payette, Pamela Johnson, Gayle Fuller, Sue Simpson — a dance by Sue Aumagheer, a dance by Marsha Parke and Jill Lawson, a song by Judy Fuller and Jan Parry, an act by Vickie Lightstone and Connie DesAutels.

Also included will be a song and dance by Gloria Fleming, a dance band made up of Randy Loback, Frank Dumourath, John Morris, and William Kellogg — an accordion number by Amanda Kern and Sue LeFehr, and a vocal trio made up of James Law, John Kern, and Rick McClurg.

Others are a dance by Sue Alt and Barbara Waldron, a skit by Pat Newton, Sue Gotshall, Cindy Conn, Pamela Curtan, Sue Schmalzried, a song by the triple trio — Gail Murphy, Jan Clark, Irene Stantia, Kay Patton, Nancy Brown, Sue Middleton, Pat Soules, Sue Simpson, and Kristina Morrison.

Monday, the orchestra, chorus and band will be emphasized. A skit depicting student life will be presented Tuesday.

On Wednesday debating activities and the National Honor Society will be recognized.

Thursday sports will be featured and on Friday a sports skit will be given.

Also on Friday every student will be asked to bring a piece of white paper to the cafeteria.

They will be glued together and painted to form one huge victory poster to be displayed at the basketball game with Berkley Saturday night.

This poster will symbolize the students' support for their team. Members of the student council are hoping that Walled Lake Week will stimulate student interest in nonathletic school functions.

If the program this year works out well, the council plans to make Walled Lake Week an annual event.

WTHS Stages Annual Event

Final Performance of 'Showboat' Tomorrow

By LIZ VENIE

"Showboat," the annual variety show presented by the junior class of Waterford Township High School, sails again tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the WTHS gym for its final performance.

"Goin' Home" is the theme of this year's production. It tells the story of a young Negro boy, played by Ken Richardson, who returns to the South in search of his "Mammy."

Directing the endeavors is Gilbert Berglund of the WTHS speech department, assisted by Lynn Filer, junior class vice president.

Behind the scenes production crews chairmaned late Lawrence New, proscenium crew and Maria Rife, scenery.

Leanne Poffenberger and Sherry Zannoff head the costume staff with Marlene Kibbie, makeup crew and Sue Strassburg, script committee.

RECEIVE ALL A's

Attaining this achievement were seniors Barbara Carrick, Edward Gulda, Sheryl Jones and Diane Smith, juniors included Amelia Barnowsky, Hilda Drinkard, Kathrine Jones, Jean Ott and Ronald Potter.

Completing the list were sophomores Kay Coleman and Linda Walter with freshmen Mary Burrell, Mark Jablonski and Kay Sirlin.

MOCK ELECTIONS

Marilynn Ott, director of the Girls' Athletic Association and Bren Petre, student council president, were elected the "Most Valuable" members of the class of '63 in the recent senior mock elections.

Selected "Most Likely to Succeed" were Diane Smith and David Patterson while Marilyn Seiber and Charles Cole were chosen "Most All-Around."

Sally Ryan and Thomas Grile were elected "Most Courteous" with Barbara Carjick and Ronald Sutton voted "Friendliest."

"Class Wits" are Pamela Tibbets and Michael Secoy; "Class Filirts" are Ellen Seiber and Douglas Alden; and "Class Talents" are John Smithson and Dorothy Beck.

Favored to Win Gaitskell's Job

Laborite Harold Wilson

HAROLD WILSON

LONDON (UPI) — Harold Wilson, only eight votes short of a first-ballot victory, was the heavy favorite today to win Labor party leadership and a chance to become Britain's next prime minister.

The party's quick-witted foreign affairs spokesman pulled 115 votes in the first round of balloting. Acting party leader George Brown, representing Labor's right wing, had 88 votes.

James Callaghan, considered a possible compromise candidate, got only 41 votes and was eliminated from the contest for the party leadership left vacant by the death of Hugh Gaitskell Jan. 18.

A second poll of the 249 eligible Labor members of parliament began immediately with results expected next Thursday.

Only 244 voted in the first round. If the same number participate this time, the winning majority in the two-man race will be 123 votes.

Wilson was expected to have little trouble picking up the necessary votes from Callaghan's total.

The London Daily Herald headline said, "It looks like Wilson." The Daily Express said, "He is well tipped for victory on the second ballot." The Daily Mirror headlined, "Wilson for Number 10," in a reference to the prime minister's residence at 10 Downing Street.

Mention of Downing Street underlined the optimism with which Labor looks upon its chances of ousting Conservative Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at the next general election.

Envoys Told to Wait Before Big Decision

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ocean-hopping diplomats should delay any big league decision making until their "physiological clocks" get adjusted to the new time zone, a space scientist suggests.

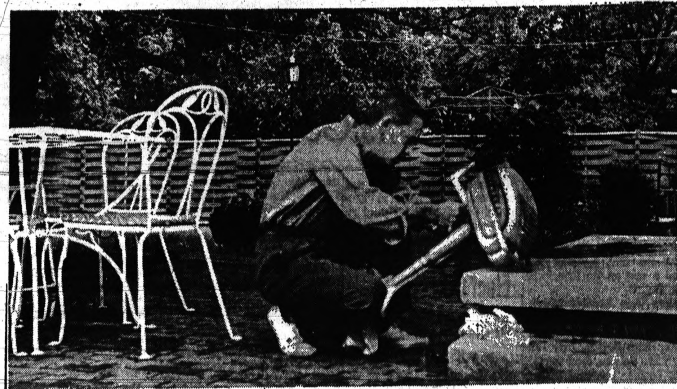

Rushing into an international normal day-night cycle is tempore or more time zones could make for goofs because the body's normal day-night cycle is temporarily out of line, said Dr. Herbert Strughold, chief scientist of the Aerospace Medical Division at Brooks Air Force Base here.

Strughold told a symposium on space medicine at Brooks Thursday.

Day-night cycle (disorder) may have some significance in international conferences during the first few days of the meetings. The morning hours during the first few days after long distance eastbound flights and the late afternoon hours after westbound flights are not the proper times for important negotiations or vital decisions.

"It has been observed that actors, chess players, athletes and last but not least, race horses were not at their intellectual or physical best the first few days after arriving from a region four or more time zones away."

Dauntless Band Wins Battle With Boogey

HARTLEPOOLS, England (AP) — Hodgson Boogey came off a bad second best in a battle with a Salvation Army band that disturbed his Sunday afternoon.

Boogey, a 39-year-old fisherman, was sitting in his apartment watching television. The band lined up outside his window and struck up the hymn "Fight the Good Fight."

Boogey went outside and shouted for quiet. The band played on.

Boogey got a bucket of water and threw it over the musicians.

Boogey threw the empty bucket.

The band played on.

BOILING MAD

Boogey got a dish of hot water and threw that.

The band played on.

Boogey took station at an upstairs window and hurled lumps of coal. One lump hit a bandman on the head. Another dented a trombone.

The band played on — except for one player who went for a policeman.

A magistrate fined Boogey 2 pounds ($5.60) for throwing missiles in the street and another 2 pounds for using obscene language.

The prosecutor said there was a law against playing noisy instruments in the street, but it didn't apply to religious services.

'I Think It's Flooded'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) —

Mrs. Vernon C. Palmer pulled her smoking car into a service station yesterday and learned its radiator had been stolen.

Mysterious Geyser Spurts Up in Road

ATTICA, Kan. (U) — A rumbling geyser of mud and water started spurting up from a country road about six miles north of here yesterday.

By nightfall, it had eaten away a hole the width of the road and 35 feet long. Sometimes it shot a hundred feet in the air.

"It's either coming from an oil well somewhere or it's a very shallow pocket of natural gas," said John Roberts of the State Corporation Commission.

Landry to Attend Parley on Weekend in Lansing

Mayor Robert Landry left today to attend the fourth annual Congress of the Professions this weekend in Lansing.

More than 50 mayors of Michigan cities are expected to attend the event, said Lansing Mayor Willard Bowerman Jr. Landry expects to return to Pontiac Sunday.

Canadian Crisis Jolts State Dept.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Officially, the U.S. State Department had "no comment" on the fall of Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's conservative government.

Federal Aid Will Provide New Beaches

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—New storm damage at the Jacksonville beaches has spurred federal aid for the twice-stricken area.

Inwardly, it quaked at the very thought that a Canadian general election might be fought on the issue of U.S. intervention in Canadian affairs.

Diefenbaker, a master at emotional oratory, promised to play down anti-Americanism but said the question of foreign domination certainly would be an issue in the election which would be the second for Canada within less than a year. And for an emotional subject among Canadians

Army Engineers announced Thursday that the first work will comprise placing 500,000 cubic yards of sand on the beaches, replacing that washed away by the two storms this winter, rebuilding auto and pedestrian ramps to the beach and temporary repairs to the seawall along the Jacksonville beach boardwalk.

Damages from the winter's first storm were estimated at $2 million. President Kennedy declared Duval and St. Johns County beaches a disaster area, making possible the work with federal funds.

Switzerland issued the first nickel coin for general use in about 1881.

he scarcely could pick a better one.

As for Washington, it had only to look to history. Three low points in U.S.-Canadian relations—in 1891, in 1911 and in 1957—were sparked by charges of fears of U.S. domination.

In 1957, Diefenbaker upset predictions and rode to power in a campaign liberally larded with suggestions that U.S. dollars were taking over the Canadian economy.

In the year before, Canada's trade deficit with the United States had amounted to $1.29 billion.

But at the same time, U.S. investments in Canada were spiraling sharply upward.

From a comparatively modest $2 billion invested in 1929, by the end of 1957 the sum totaled $8.5 billion. In 1960, it was $10.2 billion.

Income tax payments to the Canadian government from these investments in 1957 came to $800 million and the companies involved employed more than half a million Canadian workers.

But what concerned the nationalists most was the fact that U.S. money had taken over a heavy proportion of Canada's natural resources—75 per cent of her oil and gas and half of her mining.

NOT ANTI-AMERICAN
And Diefenbaker was first a nationalist. Of himself he said: "I am not anti-American. The very thought is repugnant to me. I am strongly Canadian."

Throughout its history Canada has fought against the economic and cultural forces that tend to drag it into the U.S. orbit.

Diefenbaker saw Canada's close association with Great Britain and its membership in the Commonwealth as a lever against U.S. domination.

Early in his career as prime minister he called upon Canadians to shift 15 per cent of their U.S. purchase orders to British suppliers in order that Britain, in turn, could have an increased ability to buy Canadian wheat.

Under Diefenbaker there have been measures to restrict the flow of foreign investments, which necessarily hit the U.S. hardest.

Diplomatic irritants have been sales of Canadian wheat to Red China and Canada's business as usual policy toward Cuba.

Early in his career as a prairie lawyer, Diefenbaker gained a reputation for his ability to use the emotional appeal. As a prime minister he also has gained a reputation as a man indecisive on matters requiring a quick decision.

It was Diefenbaker's indecision on the question of nuclear weapons for Canada that brought the U.S. challenge and Diefenbaker's charge of "unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs."

JFK Squelches Rumors of Rusk's Ouster

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has dealt a blow to speculation just getting under way here that Dean Rusk is on his way out as secretary of state.

"I have the highest confidence in him," Kennedy told a news conference Thursday. "If Rusk was concerned about his position, this could have come as something of a birthday present. The former Georgia boy will be 54 on Saturday.

There is some reason to believe that Kennedy would like Rusk to take a more active public lead in the development of foreign policy in the country. Some of the associates think that he should occasionally be more ac-

HIGHTOWER tively behind the scenes. But Kennedy said that actually he and Rusk are agreed on the basic roles which the secretary of state should play.

Chiefly, these are that Rusk should be Kennedy's main adviser on all matters of foreign policy, should run the State Department, should direct the day-to-day diplomacy of the United States, and should advise the President on "larger policies affecting our security."

WHO'S DOMINANT

One of the great issues in every administration since World War II has been the relationship between the secretary of state and the secretary of defense. Almost without exception during the past 17 years, the dominant cabinet officer has been the secretary of state. In the Kennedy administration the bold and clear cut figure is that of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Actually Rusk has by his own preference worked behind the scenes. To an unprejudiced degree for a man in his position he has sought anonymity.

Where he could not avoid the spotlight he has chosen where possible to play the least controversial role he could in public.

Thus in more than two years Rusk has had only 18 regular, on-the-record news conferences in Washington. These conferences have been characterized by bland statements of the principles of U.S. foreign policy.

Rusk has preferred one- or two-man interviews on television where he could discuss the history of U.S.-foreign relations and the principles underlying foreign policy without being pressed on current issues.

DELEGATES OTHERS

He has felt, according to close associates, that his effectiveness behind the scenes, in bringing issues into focus for presidential decision, required him to avoid public controversy, hard stands on disputed positions, when he could. In order to concentrate on some jobs he has delegated others and this has recently led to criticism.

Rusk ruled against aides who urged him to attend last December's Nassau meeting at which Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed on U.S.-British nuclear defense plans. Kennedy then sent a message to French President Charles de Gaulle offering the same arrangements. De Gaulle now appears to have resented the whole Nassau meeting. Whether the maneuver with the French leader would have been handled more diplomatically if Rusk had been present will always be a question.

Last week Rusk did not, aides say, pass upon the statement on Canadian defense policy which triggered the political crisis for Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker. The Diefenbaker government was toppled Tuesday night.

There was considerable astonishment around Washington that neither Kennedy nor Rusk had in fact cleared the statement which was unusually blunt. Some criticism in the corridors was directed toward Rusk for not having policy controls which would assure his personal attention to such explosive matters.

As for a recent Senate subcommittee report generally advocating the concentration of more responsibility in Rusk's office for all facets of problems involving diplomatic and military considerations, Kennedy told his news conference he thought the suggestions deserve careful study.

Ozzie Dealing With Japs; but Prefers Playing in U.S.

DETROIT (AP) — Veteran infielder Ozzie Virgil said today he is a bit disillusioned about America's baseball and may play in Japan this season.

The 29-year-old Virgil confirmed reports he has been negotiating with the Chunichi Dragons of the Japanese Baseball League. But he emphasized that he would prefer to hook on with a U.S. major league team.

Virgil, still a part of the Baltimore Orioles organization, played with their Rochester farm club in the International League last year.

"I still think I'm a major league ball player, and that's where I want to be," he said.

BATTED 55 TIMES

Virgil pointed out that in his last two seasons in the majors he had been to bat a total of 55 times. "I was with Baltimore the first part of last season—right up to the day of the final cutoff—and I didn't get to bat once in that month or so," he said.

"It's kind of hard to prove yourself when you don't get to the plate very often. As far as I am concerned, I don't think Baltimore gave me much of a break," he added.

The much-traveled Virgil has played in both major leagues. He has been with the old New York Giants of the National League and with Detroit, Kansas City and Baltimore in the American League.

Virgil said he was in touch with both the New York Mets and the Washington Senators in recent weeks. "Washington said they had nothing for me, but I haven't heard from the Mets," he said.

NO AGREEMENT

Bob Brown, public relations director for the Baltimore Orioles, said Virgil talked Orioles last week with Lee MacPhail, general manager of the Orioles, but that no agreement was reached.

Brown said that MacPhail at that time indicated he would give Virgil his release if he could hook on with another major league team.

Brown said that as far as Virgil's talks with the Japanese team was concerned, the Orioles felt "it gets a good deal out of it, more power to him."

MacPhail said that Virgil's contract was considered a valuable asset and that the Orioles would expect something in return if Virgil played with Chunichi.

Virgil makes his home in Detroit with his wife and three children.

Closing Illini Corral Task for Spartans' 5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If someone doesn't close the corral, Illinois appears ready to stampede to the Big Ten basketball championship.

Michigan State will try to do it Saturday afternoon as the conference resumes in full force with five games for the first time since Jan. 5.

In other afternoon engagements: Indiana, 3-3, at Michigan, 3-3, and Wisconsin, 3-3, at Ohio State, 4-2, for a televised attraction. All times Eastern.

night, Iowa, 3-3; at Northwestern, 2-4, and Purdue, 1-7, at Minnesota, 4-2.

In the only two games Monday, Illinois invaded Wisconsin and Minnesota is at Indiana.

Illinois, holding a two-game lead in the title chase loss column by trying to stretch its conference winning string to six games against the troublesome Spartans, who have a 3-4 mark. It will be the Illini's last home game in two weeks and they must play five of their next seven on the road.

FIVE ON ROAD

Illinois has the highest-scoring average in the Big Ten with 92.6 points, boosting it last Monday with a 104-101 victory over Indiana. Dave Downey with an average of 20 points, Bill Small with 18 and Ted Brody 15.4 provide most of Illinois' fire power.

The Spartans, who were jumped 103-81 by Purdue Monday, are averaging 73 a game but have no scorer among the top 15. Pete Cent is 16th with 14.9 and his teammate, Ted Williams, is next with 14.5.

Defending champion Ohio State will be out to avenge it's only loss in the Big Ten last year when it meets the Badgers. The Buckeyes also will be after their 45th straight home court victory.

BECOME ELIGIBLE

Wisconsin, which defeated Michigan 81-78 Monday, will be bolstered by Don Hearden and Gene Englund, a pair of juniors ruled scholastically eligible.

Big man for the Buckeyes is Gary Bradds who four times in conference action this season has performed at a 30-plus clip.

Marilyn Smith Has Eyes on New Purse

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Marilyn Smith took a three stroke lead into today's second round of the 72-hole, $15,500 St. Petersburg Women's Open Golf Tournament.

The former Wichita, Kan., pro now playing out of Tequesta, Fla., lopped two strokes off par Thursday for a first round 69 on the 4,106 yard Sunset Golf and Country Club course.

Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, was in second place at 72 in the field of 36 pros and 60 amateurs.

'Business World Needs Talented Youth'

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED.D.

Dear Dr. Nason: I would suggest that businessmen get to work on presenting business as a desirable occupation. Should high school counselors steer all good students toward the professions and the less able toward business?

M. F., Webster Grove, Mo.

Answer: High school counselors should encourage interested and able students to make a profession of business. Education in this field is undergoing major changes. The findings of social sciences, modern math, statistics, DR. NASON and computer sciences are being applied to business problems. The Ford Foundation has aided these changes with large grants of money. Counselors should make students aware of the new opportunities in this area.

Dear Dr. Nason: Our daughter has found herself in the accelerated program during all four years of high school. This means with no objection on my part, because I am in favor of presenting a challenge to those who are capable of doing more advanced work. However, I quarrel with the merits of the grading system.

Some of her friends who necessarily are grouped in the slower groups, do less work, and are on far less demanding schedules receive better report cards, "take home" grades, than she... with the consequence that they are placed on honor societies, etc., though doing less and inferior work.

She had considered deliberately getting a lower score in the placement test, so her grade average would rise. What did I tell her? That she is being educated; that she will be able to handle college level work when she enters; that she is capable of more advanced work; and certainly receives more stimulating ideas. Her grades range average, above average, excellent.

I. T., Forest Grove, Ore.

Answer: I heartily agree with your approval of honor classes and your decision to have your daughter remain in them, even though this means foregoing honor or society because of the inequities in the grading system used.

The admissions officers of many colleges and universities will take into consideration the fact that her grades were earned in honors classes. Certainly her preparation for college will be more adequate.

'Smallest' Baby Goes Home After Gain in Weight

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP)—Miss Tracey Jane Smith was taken home for the first time today, 35 days after her birth.

Tracey weighed a healthy 5 pounds, 5 ounces today.

When born, two months prematurely, she weighed only 1 pound, 14 ounces and, Sturdy Memorial Hospital doctors said, had a rough struggle to survive.

Tracey's twin, Theresa Jane, was not so fortunate. Theresa weighed 2 pounds 10 ounces at birth. She died three days later.

Tracey is the third child of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith of South Attleboro.

Freeze-drying, now in its infancy, may become a billion dollar a year operation by 1970.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY

Today's hand caused a mild argument between Edgar Kaplan of the Card School of New York and myself. He claims the hand is simple, but I contend it is far from it.

We agree that the hand belongs in four spades and probably most pairs will get there. I am sure they would find several ways of doing the actual bidding.

West's king of clubs opening is normal and declarer must grab that first trick right away. If he stays off there is danger of a shift to hearts.

After winning the first trick, declarer will want to lead his singleton diamond and East may take his ace right away. If East shifts to a heart South will go up with the ace, play three rounds of trumps stopping in dummy and discard four losers on the diamonds to wind up with an overtrick.

If East leads a club and West shifts to a heart South will also make an overtrick. The best defense is for West to play two clubs. At this point, South can ruff in dummy and make his contract, but a better play is for South to discard a low heart from dummy and ruff the club continuation in his own hand. Once more he will be able to draw trumps and get rid of his losers, but he will only make four odd because the defense will have three tricks.

Joins Strike Negotiations

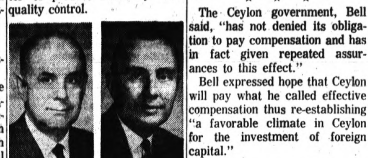

From Our News Wire
NEW YORK — The head of the striking printers union takes part today for the first time in negotiations aimed at ending the 63-day-old blackout of New York's major newspapers.
Elmer Brown, international president of the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union, sounded cautiously optimistic as he arrived Thursday during a recess in the talks.
"But President Kennedy, during his news conference Thursday, said the prolonged shutdown may force two or three of the dailies out of business."
Brown, scheduled to return to Colorado on Sunday, said he hopes the strike will be settled by then.
"JUST A HOPE"
"It's just a hope, he said. "There is willingness on the part of the union to end the strike, but the length of the strike. It's merely guesswork. It is foolhardy to predict."
A nationwide ITU referendum to support the strike is running about 74% in its favor. ITU headquarters in Colorado Springs showed 31,187 votes favoring the assessment and 8,578 opposed.

U. S. Cuts Off Ceylon Aid for Failure to Repay Firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States cut off aid to Ceylon today because of Ceylon's failure to compensate two American oil companies for seizure of their properties.
The action was required under a provision Congress put into the 1961 Foreign Aid Act.
The Agency for International Development said the suspended aid includes development grants, mainly technical assistance, coming to $800,000 for the current fiscal year, and a development loan of more than $8 million.
To avoid hardship to the people of Ceylon, the agency said, the United States is ready to continue a Food for Peace program school lunch program reaching 1,847,000 children and a nutrition program for 70,000 mothers and pre-school children.
Last year Ceylon's left-leaning government nationalized 83 gas stations belonging to two American oil companies, Esso Standard Eastern Inc. and Caltex Ceylon Ltd.
Esso Standard was reported to have valued its assets in Ceylon at about $2.5 million, and Caltex valued its assets at about $1.5 million.
David E. Bell, Aid Administrator, said in a statement that the United States "did not and does not now contest the right of Ceylon, as a sovereign state, to nationalize private property."
"However, when such property belongs to a citizen or a company of a foreign country, the payment of prompt, adequate and effective compensation is required by international law."
The Ceylon government, Bell said, "has not denied its obligation to pay compensation and has in fact given repeated assurances to that effect."
Bell expressed hope that Ceylon will say what he called effective compensation to the United States "a favorable climate in Ceylon for the investment of foreign capital."

Area Resident to Manage GM Division

Douglas E. Beaudry of 1546 Sodon Lake Drive, Bloomfield Township, has been appointed Detroit plant manager of the Terntest division, General Motors Corp., effective March 1, it was announced today.
He is presently general director of product reliability and quality control.
The Ceylon government, Bell said, "has not denied its obligation to pay compensation and has in fact given repeated assurances to that effect."
Bell expressed hope that Ceylon will say what he called effective compensation to the United States "a favorable climate in Ceylon for the investment of foreign capital."

BEAUDRY HORVATH
Succeeding Beaudry as general director will be Z. L. Horvath of 936 Hickory Heights, Bloomfield Township.

Investments Up in Mortgages

Investment in first mortgages during 1962 in Oakland County totaled $25,111,688, a rise of some 17 per cent over 1961, according to figures released by Lawyers Title Insurance Corp. of Detroit.
Mortgages under $30,000 accounted for 70 per cent of that figure, with a total of $16,412,420.
Leading lenders in that category were First Federal Savings of Detroit ($1,602,000), Detroit Mortgage & Realty Co. ($1,564,000), Standard Federal Savings & Loan Association ($1,301,000) and First Federal Savings of Oakland ($838,800).
Mortgages over $30,000 in the county for the same period totaled $66,699,467.
Leading lenders in the over-$30,000 category were New York Life Insurance Co. ($5,200,000), Community National Bank ($4,277,000) and First Federal Savings of Detroit ($4,259,000).

Farm Machine Sales Established by Ford

L. E. Dearborn, general manager of Ford Motor Co.'s Tractor and Implement operations, announced the establishment of a district sales office at the former site of the Green Lakes Tractor and Equipment Co., 2100 E. Maple Road, Birmingham.
William H. Breach, president of Great Lakes, resigned his franchise effective today.
Under an agreement, Ford assumes most of Great Lakes' functions and responsibilities.
The sales agreements of the 62 independent dealers of Ford farm and industrial tractors and equipment, who formerly operated under Great Lakes, have been assigned to Ford.

New Firm Opens Offices

Formation of Bikson - Heskett Brown St., Birmingham, was announced today by Alan Bikson and Kenneth Heskett, partners in the agency.
The new company has been established to expand sales coverage and to provide a more concentrated penetration of retail outlets, they said.

Hold Approval of Attorney

Romney Pick Wants to Reply to Statements
LANSING (AP) — The Senate Business Committee today said it is holding up confirmation of Gov. George Romney's appointment of attorney George Bashara Jr. to the Michigan Employment Security Commission Appeal Board.
In Detroit, Bashara, 29, said he had requested such action from the senators to allow time for him to explain to them what he called "absolutely false" statements alleging he has been charged with unfair labor practice.
He also said he intends to talk to the Senate group about questions raised by 10th District Republican leader Richard Durant over a 1960 GOP fund-raising campaign. Bashara accused Durant of "trying to discredit Gov. Romney through me."
The committee announced in Lansing today it is holding up the confirmation.

Meets Tuesday

Bashara said he expected to meet with the committee at Lansing Tuesday.
"It is only fair to the committee, to the Senate and to the governor to explain all this completely," Bashara said.
Bashara said that unfair labor practice charges against him were brought against him personally.
Of the fund-raising matter, Bashara said he had invited Durant to "bring it out" and that he later had been assured by Durant there was "nothing to it."
Bashara declined to go into any details but said he was willing to make a "full statement" to the committee.
Bashara said Rep. John Fitzgerald, R-Grand Lodge, committee chairman, apparently had been misinformed about the unfair labor charges.
Bashara commented on Fitzgerald's statement at Lansing that the committee had been advised unfair labor charges were pending against him.

Demand Renewed for Soybean Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — A renewed demand for soybean futures formed up that commodity today on the board of trade, but the grains showed little tendency to move during the first several minutes of trading.
Brokers said the support for soybeans apparently was speculative reinstatement of the broad support of yesterday and the moderate one on Wednesday.
With yesterday's weakness, the decline for some contracts had amounted to 10 cents or more at the close of the week.

Dismiss Chrysler Suit Against Past Official

The suit against ousted Chrysler Corp. official Jack W. Minor was dismissed in Oakland County Circuit Court yesterday, following an out-of-court settlement.

Attorneys for Minor and Chrysler Corp. declined to reveal details of the settlement.

Chrysler Corp. issued a one-sentence statement:

"Suits brought by Jack W. Minor against Chrysler Corp. and the suit brought by Chrysler against Minor have been resolved to the satisfaction of both parties."

A Chrysler spokesman said no further details were expected to be disclosed.

Chrysler filed suit against Minor Feb. 3, 1961, seeking $30,000 for recovery of profits Minor allegedly made through his connections with outside advertising and sales concerns doing business with Chrysler while Minor was employed by the auto firm.

The suit also demanded an accounting of Minor's transactions with four firms with which he was connected. One of the firms, W & M Sales Co. (of which Minor was a partner) also was a defendant in the suit.

Minor, 41, was marketing director of the Plymouth-Rover Valiant Division. He lived in Birmingham and has since been associated with Los Angeles advertising firm.

Minor had filed two suits in Wayne County Circuit Court asking $200,000 for damages to his reputation and the chances for sale of his outfit, and $25,000 as his share of the firm's stock ownership program.

Grand Rapids (AP) — Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie says the ouster of John (Joe) Collins as Democratic state chairman in favor of Zola Foran might have hurt Michigan Democratic party chances in the forthcoming April election.

Mackie, in an interview with Grand Rapids newsmen yesterday, said Foran's victory may have given the public a general impression that labor controls Michigan Democrats.

Mackie denied this, claiming that only about one-third of the party is made up of labor interests. He agreed, however, that it is a well-organized one-third.

"Mackie said it was too early to talk about the possibility of his running for governor in 1964. Mackie, identified as a leader of the forces against adoption of the proposed new state constitution, termed the document's adoption, flat-rate income tax provision and bipartisan, four-man board appointment of a highway commissioner among the document's worst portions.

He said, however, that even if the document is defeated, "We have gained a lot of learning where there is bipartisan support and where there is political conflict."

Mackie urged that areas drawing bipartisan support be put on the ballot in 1964 if the constitution is defeated in April. He would have controversial areas submitted individually to the voters later "rather than making them swallow the bad with the good in one package."

Seize Red Plans for Oilfield Attack
CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Police raided a terrorist den here last night and seized Communist plans for attack on U.S. oilfield installations and other enterprises in Venezuela, it was reported today.

Detectives who took part in the raid on a home near the Red-infested central university campus said it appeared to be the central headquarters of the Castro-Cuban National Liberation Army (FAL).

The raiders captured membership lists and other documents expected to expedite the current roundup of Red troublemakers in this country.

State Medical Society Backs New Constitution
The Michigan State Medical Society has officially endorsed and urged adoption of the proposed new state constitution, according to Dr. Oliver B. McGillicuddy, chairman of the society's governing body.

The society, with some 7,000 members, informed Gov. George Romney of their support this week.

Scouts Honor Anniversary

Area Council Plans Open House Meetings

Boy Scouts of the Clinton Valley Council this week (Feb. 7-13) are observing the 53rd anniversary of the scouting movement in America with open house meetings.

The public programs are being conducted by the area's 110 Cub packs, 15 scout troops and 22 explorer units, according to John W. Hunt, president of the Council.

"The meetings will show the broad nature and scope of our programs to parents of members and to their neighbors and friends—who have boys old enough to join," Hunt added.

"The programs have been planned to entertain guests and encourage their participation in scouting. In this way we hope that all will get a better understanding of scouting's aims and long-range objectives."

Emphasis of this year's observance will be placed upon the fitness activities of the scouting movement.

The theme is "Strengthen America... Be Prepared, Be Fit."

Today, all 9,500 scouts in the Clinton Valley Council will participate in the annual rededication ceremony, either at unit meetings or in scout's homes. At this time they renew their pledge to live up to the Scout Oath and Promise.

On Sunday, members in uniform will accompany their parents to church. It is expected that 35 scouts in the area will receive awards from their respective churches for their religious activities.

Sneed Joining Another Peaceful Corps

BY DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (AP)—Almost everyone here except Rep. Vic Wickersham thought it was appropriate for the gridiron star Norman Sneed to go to work for the Peace Corps.

Sneed currently is the quarterback for the Washington Redskins, who for years have been one of the most peaceable corps in professional football.

It was generally felt that his association with such an unbellicose organization as the Redskins would make him ideally suited for an off-season job as a Peace Corps consultant.

The Redskins are noted for having off-seasons even when the season is in full swing.

By the same token it was surmised that the Redskins, in turn, might well benefit from Sneed's experience with the Peace Corps.

The corps is devoted to providing technical advice and assistance to underdeveloped countries. A look at their record for the past decade will lead you to the conclusion that the Redskins certainly qualify as underdeveloped.

The hope is that Sneed will pick up some pointers that might be useful in rehabilitating the Redskins. While recruiting athletic instructors for duty overseas, perhaps he also will be able to recruit a couple of his tackle and maybe a fullback.

Despite the evidence that Sneed and the Peace Corps were made for each other, Wickersham objected to his employment, basing his dissent not so much on the principle of the thing as the money.

As a Democratic congressman from Oklahoma, he took the position that $75 a day was a somewhat excessive fee for the Peace Corps to be paying a rookie consultant.

In Oklahoma, football teams are more famed for their ferocity than their generosity. It was understandable that Wickersham would be opposed to a policy of Peace Corpsmen at any price.

Either because of Wickersham's protest or in spite of it, Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver quickly converted his consultant to an unpaid status, making Sneed the Peace Corps equivalent of a dollar-a-year man.

Sneed thus became one of the few professional athletes to absorb a 100 per cent pay cut in a single off-season.

Not even George Preston Marshall, the open-handed owner of the Redskins, has been able to go that far. When Shriver leaves the government, Marshall may want to hire him as a consultant.

As for Wickersham, I have no information to indicate whether he ever played football. But judging from the way he was, putting the rush on Sneed, he could be an all-pro linebacker.

Cigarette Use Down 1st Time Since 1954

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cigarette smoking declined last year for the first time since 1954, according to a report by the Commerce Department released Thursday, but only by an average of two cigarettes per person.

Average consumption last year was computed at 199.2 packs per person, compared with 199.3 packs in 1961. A pack contains 20 cigarettes.

The department obtained its average by dividing the number of packs consumed by its census count of persons over 14 years old.

It said smoking is not expected to rise as rapidly as in the past, but should reach an average of 200 packs this year.

Smokers spent nearly $6.9 billion on cigarettes last year and are expected to put out more than $7 billion in 1963.

Favor Library in Waterford

All eight candidates for the three top offices in Waterford Township indicated favoring a public library at a recent "meet your candidates" meeting sponsored by the Greater Waterford Community Council.

One of the hopefuls cited the need for more library in the township and suggested "a step in the right direction."

Most of the others elaborated on the library question.

Fred Morningstar, Republican candidate for treasurer in the Feb. 18 primary, suggested the formation of an industrial development committee to work with the planning board to sell Waterford as a business location.

Voting strong support for a library were incumbent treasurer Mike Dowdy Olson, Michael Patterson, Republican candidate for treasurer, and Elmer Fancher, Democratic candidate for clerk.

Incumbent Township Supervisor Elmer Johnson, Republican, and James Steeter, Democratic candidate for the top township office, both outlined background information to the group.

Other speakers were Lewis Rustee, former township board trustee, who seeks the Democratic nomination for clerk and Leo Kampen, Republican candidate for the clerk nomination.

Ronald Smith, another Republican clerk candidate, was the only candidate who didn't appear at the meeting.

Beverage Board Decrees; Bourbon Is Bourbonless

BOURBON, Ind. (AP)—There's no bourbon in Bourbon—by the drink and legal, that is—and there isn't going to be any for at least another year.

The American Legion post's request for a three-year permit was turned down Thursday by the Marshall County Alcohol Beverage Board for the sixth straight year. It can't come up again until 1964, but in the meantime the post can continue serving beer and wine.

The town reportedly was settled and named by emigrants from the Kentucky county for which the type of whisky was named.

None of 3 Proposals Comes to Vote

Fail to Clamp Tighter on Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP)—Once again senators who favor a tighter filibuster rule have gone down to defeat. But on the key vote they made a better showing than they have in the past and can be expected to renew the fight in the next Congress.

The battle ended abruptly Thursday, after nearly four weeks, without the Senate's getting a chance to vote on any proposed changes in the rule requiring a two-thirds majority of senators voting to choke off a filibuster by limiting debate.

One proposal would have cut the required majority to three-fifths of those voting. Another would have permitted debate limitation by a majority of the 100 senators and still another by a majority of a quorum of 51 senators.

The three-fifths proposal was the only one that had any chance. But even the preliminary motion to take it up for consideration never got to a vote. Southern senators blocked action by carrying on a non-stop debate.

10 VOTES SHORT

A showdown came on a move to put the senate's filibuster rule into effect. If successful, it would have restricted further debate on the motion to take up the three-fifths proposal to one hour for each senator.

Fifty-four senators voted for limiting debate and 42 against it. Ten votes short of the necessary two-thirds margin.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana immediately moved that the Senate adjourn until Monday. The motion carried, 64 to 33, and wiped the slate clean of the rules fight in which the Senate had been embroiled since Congress convened Jan. 9.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., later protested that Vice Presi-

Las Vegas Has New Ways to Lose Money Faster

BY EARL WILSON

LAS VEGAS—I flew out here to see if they've found any new ways to fast to lose money—and they have. You can soon lose it twice as fast as you can now.

"It's because I'm just a dreamer," says Big Joe Wells, owner of the Thunderbird, who's built a racetrack for quarter-horses on his grounds—and will have a closed circuit TV arrangement so you can bet the horses on the outside while you're inside shooting dice or playing roulette or blackjack.

"Losing money will be made easier for everybody," promised Joe. "For example, you could lie in bed and bet the races. I'll bet nowhere else in the world can a guy lie in bed and lose money on a race he's watching."

Big Joe's a part of tremendous drive to make it easier and easier for people to lose money. He's opening an oyster bar, and a ham radio station, and even a "Stagedoor Delicatessen."

Famous Max Aspas of the Stage Deli in NY has given him a course in pastrami peddling.

It seems this has become one of the great boom cities now—just everybody was here.

THE MIGHTY EARL IN N. Y.

So you don't want to be bald? Dale Alexander, author of the arthritis bestseller, claims to have discovered that the eggs of a South American bird, mixed up in a milk shaker, will grow hair back to where it was 5 years ago. He plans a new book "Your Hair and Your Diet." He says onions, for example, are good to grow hair, while white sugar isn't. Women are becoming alarmed over their increasing baldness.

Beatrice Lillie has received a $30,000 advance from Doubleday for a book of her life. "It's some sort of blackmail!" shrieked Bea at a party in her honor given by Louise Thomas. "They give you that money—then they expect you to write a book!" — Bea, who had preferred to write about Beasops Fables, "now think the book she wants to do would concern her Pekingese, and she'd call it "Let's Take a Peek." Her $30,000 advance is to carry her through three years.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "My great aunt went ill 94 without ever using glasses. Just went right through to the end drinking out of the bottle."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: — "Lipstick is kissproof, it's proof of what you've been up to." — Harold Coffin.

EARL'S PEARLS: Old gag writers never die—but their jokes do.

REMEMBERED QUOTES: Some of the new hardies are definitely hard-on's. A hunter arrived outside a farmhouse and woke up the farmer by pounding on the window. "It's a bad, cold night, and I would like to stay here for the night," pleaded the hunter. "O.K., I stay here!" exclaimed the farmer, slamming shut the window. "That's real, brother."

Former U.S. Judge Rejects Court Seat

DETROIT (UPI)—Former Federal Judge John Feikens yesterday withdrew from consideration for a nomination to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Feikens said he had obligations to clients "which cannot be cast aside lightly."

The interruptions came when he served as Republican state chairman from 1953 to 1957 and when he was named to the federal bench in 1960.

SAYS KISSING IMPAIRED—Mrs. Patricia Kay Hushagen, 31, who claimed the extraction of a tooth caused her to lose feeling in her jaw and chin—and even impaired her kissing ability—lost her $30,000 damage suit against a dentist in Springfield, Mo., yesterday.

'GOP Must Win or U.S. Lost'

KALAMAZO (UPI) — Republican National Chairman William E. Miller last night said the GOP "must win in 1964 or their won't be a country left in 1968."

The New York congressman sharply criticized the Kennedy administration in things both foreign and domestic, ranging from "blunders in Cuba" to a predicted $11.4 billion deficit in fiscal 1964.

He said the Republicans' strength in the 1962 elections "proved we can win in two years. The Republicans gained 48 percent of the total votes cast in the U.S. House and 44 percent of the total vote cast for U.S. senators."

He said, "to preserve fiscal sanity in America and indeed our dinner, said he was pleased that the nation was headed for a win in 1968."

He said the Kennedy administration, not until after last fall's election, would admit that the nation was headed for a $9 billion deficit.

"But now, we are repeating arithmetic. The new frontiersmen don't even predict a surplus anymore but instead a deficit of nearly $12 billion. And the way they add and subtract, it'll probably be a $20 billion deficit by the time they are through with it."

He said the Democrats in Washington had not solved the unemployment problem and that the gross national product was the lowest it had ever been.

He said the Communist wall in Berlin served as "monument of the Kennedy administration's weakness rather than the weaknesses of Communism."

He said the wall should have been torn down by the Western forces "brick-by-brick" rather than letting it be constructed.

He also took a slap at the Kennedy handling of the Cuban affairs and said Republicans since last August, had been saying there were missiles on the island.

"They denied it," Miller explained.

Foreign governments, he said, were losing their faith in this nation because "they are questioning whether we still believe in the principles of our founding fathers."

Miller, in addressing a crowd of some 700 Kalamazoo County Republicans at a Lincoln Day dinner, said he was pleased that the nation was headed for a win in 1968."

Michigan had a Republican gov-George Romney today in Lansing.

Application Arrives Early

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State University has received an application for admission from Joseph Poyer III, son of Joseph Jr., a MSU alumnus.

But Dr. William L. Finni, director of MSU's admissions department, says young Poyer will have to wait before the application can be given serious consideration.

Joseph III is only 10 months old.

"I just wanted to make sure he gets in," said his father, who filled out the application.

"I won't guarantee he will want to use it" when he's eligible though, but at least his application will be on file," Poyer added.

Search Planes Hunt for Missing Tanker

SABINE PASS, Tex. (UPI)—Coast Guard and Navy planes today searched the Gulf and South Atlantic coasts for a missing tanker carrying a cargo of hot molten sulphur and a crew of 43.

The tanker marine Sulphur Queen left Beaumont, Tex., last Sunday for Norfolk, Va. It was due in Norfolk yesterday.

The Marine Transport Lines, agent for the 524-foot vessel, said it failed to give the customary 48- and 24-hour advance notice of arrival in Norfolk.

Romney Denies Bartlett Battle

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney was "angry" at him, said State Supt. of Public Instruction Lynn Bartlett.

"I was just intense," insisted Romney.

"He shook his finger at me," said Bartlett.

"He gave me an ultimatum," replied Romney.

The governor and the superintendent held news conferences an hour apart yesterday to give their separate versions of what transpired when Bartlett went to Romney's office to invite him to address a citizens' conference on education next month.

Romney said he was given "an ultimatum" by Bartlett that he could speak on condition he did not discuss the issues involved in the proposed new constitution at the meeting.

Bartlett said he told Romney that if he didn't wish to speak under those conditions, the invitation would be withdrawn.

"I told him this kind of meeting was traditionally nonpartisan and nonpolitical. If he started talking about con-con it would set the mood for the entire convention."

Hamlin Insists Home Rule Vital

County home rule is essential to good government in counties that have changed from rural to urban areas, Delos Hamlin, chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors, declared in Washington, D.C. yesterday.

He was addressing over 1,200 county officials from throughout the nation at a three-day convention of the National Association of Counties.

As keynote speaker for the convention, Hamlin said county government must be strengthened.

"The strengthening of county government," he said, "is the key to the solution of many problems created by the rapid transition of the United States from a rural society to one that is more than slightly amazed to find that almost everyone has moved to the city."

Hamlin noted that the population of the United States has grown from 176 million to over 188 million in the past four years.

Two thirds of this increase has been in urban counties, he said.

Some 70 per cent of the total population now lives in metropolitan areas, he said.

"These few statistics show the importance of urban county government as the explosive pattern of growth continues," declared Hamlin.

He said the lack of county home rule in all but 13 of the states is a major obstacle to providing such necessary services as more schools, hospitals, roads, public utilities, police and fire protection in urban counties.

Hamlin also referred to "ineffective" administration of county government by "semi-independent boards and commissions" in most of the urban counties.

County home rule, in the ideal sense, would provide effective chief administrative officers to urban counties that "are still unnecessarily tied to state decisions and influences," said Hamlin.

He urged counties in the largest metropolitan areas to assume

Home Rule? Not for Awhile

Even if the proposed state constitution is approved in the April election, home rule for Oakland County is still at least two years away, according to Norman R. Barnard, county corporation counsel.

While the proposed constitution contains a home rule provision, it is left up to the legislature to work out details and approve enabling acts.

"It would be too late to introduce the appropriate legislation this year," Barnard said,

Report Premier Killed

WASHINGTON (U)—President Kennedy has bluntly warned the Soviet Union that if it ever again sets up offensive weapons in Cuba the United States will know it and will be prepared for history's greatest crisis.

The risks in such a situation would be so alarming, Kennedy told his news conference Thursday, that he believes "the Soviet Union will proceed with caution and care."

And the President said the same goes for the United States, which he said must not be stampeded into rash action on the basis of rumor and hearsay concerning Soviet strength in Cuba.

Kennedy's remarks, delivered with obvious feeling, represented a blast aimed at two targets:

1. At the Kremlin leaders who continue to keep a formidable supply of short-range arms in Cuba.

2. At administration critics, in and out of Congress, who suggest that U.S. intelligence may be overlooking ominous hidden stock of Soviet missiles in Cuba.

Kennedy voiced full confidence that such secret stockpiles do not exist. But he readily conceded he could be wrong.

If he is, Kennedy implied, it wouldn't make much difference because hidden weapons would have to be uncovered and placed in position before use—and this would be discovered by aerial reconnaissance.

He said: "We cannot prove that there is not a missile in a cave or that the Soviet Union isn't going to ship next week. We prepared for that. But we will find them when they do, and when they do, the Soviet Union and Cuba and the United States must all be aware that this will produce the greatest crisis which the world has faced in its history."

Neither did Sen. Barry Goldwater say that "if the President can't realize there are no other threats than missiles, he needs some new advisers."

He said recent stepped-up Communist activities in Latin America pose a threat to this country.

He added that Communist guerrillas have been trained in Cuba, and they already have enough materials of war to support revolution anywhere in Latin America.

Blunt Warning Issued on Cuba

WASHINGTON (U)—President Kennedy has bluntly warned the Soviet Union that if it ever again sets up offensive weapons in Cuba the United States will know it and will be prepared for history's greatest crisis.

The risks in such a situation would be so alarming, Kennedy told his news conference Thursday, that he believes "the Soviet Union will proceed with caution and care."

And the President said the same goes for the United States, which he said must not be stampeded into rash action on the basis of rumor and hearsay concerning Soviet strength in Cuba.

Critics Stress Latin Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's contention that 6,000 rocket-equipped Soviet combat troops in Cuba do not represent a military threat to the hemisphere met with some dissent in Congress today.

But there was general agreement with his statement at Thursday's news conference that any Soviet attempt to reactivate offensive missiles on the island would "produce the greatest crisis which the world has faced in history."

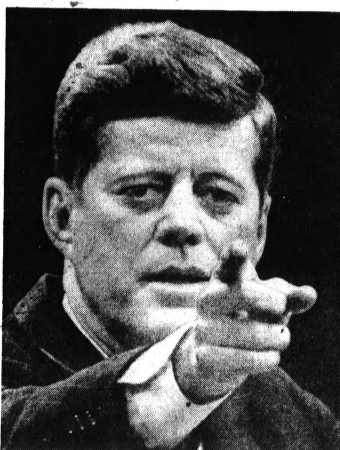

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., who has contended the Kennedy administration has failed to keep the people abreast of developments, stuck to his position that the Soviet build-up poses a threat directed primarily toward Latin America.

Charged With Assault in Novi Sniping Case

A young church organist, identified yesterday as the sniper whose bullet narrowly missed hitting a Novi housewife Jan. 31, today was charged with assault with intent to murder.

Gary S. Goodrum, 22, of 26145 W. Nine Mile Road, Southfield, demanded examination on the charge this morning before Township Justice of the Peace Robert K. Anderson.

His examination was set for Feb. 21.

Sheriff Frank Irons yesterday announced that Goodrum walked into the Novi Police Station Wednesday night and admitted shooting into the home of Mrs. Gertrude Race, 40, 28000 Dixon Road, last week.

Goodrum, an organist at a Galilean Baptist Church in Livonia, told reporters he could see Mrs. Race through her window but "took careful aim not to hit her."

The bullet crashed through the window and passed over Mrs. Race's head as she was lying on the bed.

Goodrum said he was influenced by the Jan. 25 shooting of Mary Goodfrey, whose son Douglas admitted killing her in their Bloomfield Township home.

It was sent to the state police crime laboratory in East Lansing for matching with the bullet. Late yesterday afternoon the link between the gun and slug was established.

At a preliminary hearing Wednesday, Oakland County Prosecutor George F. Taylor requested that Juvenile Court waive its authority over the boy so he can be tried as an adult.

If Probate Court retains jurisdiction, the youth could be committed to a state mental hospital, referred to a private child welfare agency or held in the Child's Home as a juvenile offender.

Should he be tried in Circuit Court, a first degree murder warrant awaits him. It was issued Wednesday by Bloomfield Township Justice J. C. Gilbert.

The boy, who reportedly has an IQ of 140, was a sophomore at Bloomfield Hills High School.

His books and lessons from the school were sent yesterday to the juvenile home where he is held pending further proceedings.

Rebel Factions of Army, AF Pull Off Coup

Insurgents Appear to Be in Sympathy With United Arab Republic

WASHINGTON (U)—The State Department said today the new revolutionary command which has seized power in Iraq appears to be "anti-Communist."

From Our News Wires

TEHRAN, Iran — Army and air force units rebelled in Iraq today, overthrowing the government and announcing that Premier Abdel Karim Kassem was slain.

The rebels apparently were sympathetic to the United Arab Republic, whose radio in Cairo hailed the revolt as "the dawn of a bright future for the Iraqi people and army."

Blaring Egyptian martial music over Baghdad Radio, the rebels declared their planes and tanks had demolished Kassem's defense ministry in Baghdad, where the premier lived under heavy guard.

The rebels announced at one point, "We have destroyed the tyrant."

The broadcast did not make clear that Kassem, 48, had been killed, but the Iranian government said it had received word from the Iraqi capital confirming Kassem's death in the defense ministry.

Turkey's semi-official Anatolian News Agency also reported that the premier had been assassinated and 19 Iraqi army generals arrested.

HEADQUARTERS BOMBED
Reports reaching Ankara, Turkey, said Kassem's headquarters in the defense ministry building were bombed at 8:30 a.m. (12:30 a.m. Pontiac time) and the structure reduced to rubble, with Kassem possibly buried in the wreckage.

In Washington, reports of the revolt stirred apprehension in diplomatic quarters about the possibility of repercussions in other parts of the Near East.

Baghdad Radio announced all Iraq's borders — with Turkey, Syria, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Iran — were closed. All Iraqi airports also were closed.

At a preliminary hearing Wednesday, Oakland County Prosecutor George F. Taylor requested that Juvenile Court waive its authority over the boy so he can be tried as an adult.

MAKE OVER PAGES 1 to Combat Cuban Guerrillas

Grant Retrial to Pontiac Man

Ruling Results From Remarks by Judge

A Pontiac man sentenced in 1959 to 7½ to 10 years in Jackson Prison got free because the late Circuit Judge Frank Doty failed to control his feelings in instructing the jury.

The judge's remarks "exceeded all bounds of permissible comment" and "amounted plainly to reversible error" the State Supreme Court ruled yesterday in an 8-0 decision to grant a new trial for Billie Eugene Oates, 31.

Oates was convicted in May 1959 of "assault to do great bodily harm" in the brutal beating of his younger sister, Mrs. Odell Wyatt, 26.

Oates testified that he had beaten his sister into insensibility and actually thought he had killed her in a fit of passion.

DOTY'S REMARKS

In his charge to the jury, Doty said that the difference between aggravated assault and the assault charged in the case was one of intent.

Ordinarily, he observed, "an accused or a criminal does not confess his intent, does not show it and you cannot look into the breast of the accused and determine his intent."

Doty added, however, that Oates expressed his intent to the arresting officers that "I killed her and I would do it again" and told his mother "she got just what she deserved."

The judge told the jury it also could consider the nature of the injuries suffered by the sister.

"A pitiful sight," Doty remarked, "going blind, going deaf, while there is no medical testimony to the effect, I am of the opinion from statements on the state that she might lose her mind. He might better have killed her than it is the case."

Senior Asst. County Prosecutor Robert Templin said his office will have to consider a retrial of Oates' case or drop it if the same witnesses could not be relocated.

NATIONAL WEATHER — Light snow is forecast for tonight for the central Mississippi Valley, with occasional rain along the Pacific coast from Washington to central California and a few snow flurries in the northern Rockies. Much colder weather is slated for the Northeast while it will be on the cold side in the northern tier of states from the Dakotas to the Lakes and the Atlantic states. Little change is expected elsewhere.

U. S. Plans Unit to Help Latins

Will Handle Uprisings Fomented by Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is planning to form a new group of antiguerrilla experts and base it in the Panama Canal Zone—in position to help Latin-American nations cope with any Cuban-fomented uprisings.

Informal sources disclosed this today amid concern in the United States over Soviet military strength in Cuba and the threat of Communist penetration of South and Central America.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said the Soviets and Cubans do not have the ships to move any of the tanks or other significant military gear across the Caribbean to Latin America.

But U.S. authorities have been concerned that Fidel Castro might succeed in transplanting his revolution by undercover means and stir up insurgency aimed at overthrowing governments friendly to the United States.

The U.S. Army now maintains four Special Forces groups, each made up of more than 1,200 men trained to a fine edge in the techniques of combating guerrillas.

For some time, a nucleus of Special Forces troops has been detailed to the Canal Zone. The new group will be a full scale and permanent outfit.

Although it never has been publicized, teams of U.S. antiguerrilla experts are known to have worked in several Latin-American countries—always at the request of those countries.

Among them were understood to be Guatemala and Colombia.

Such operations are likely to expand with formation of the fifth unit in the Canal Zone.

The cold war mission of the Special Forces is to train native armed elements, but not to fight themselves. However, in South Vietnam, U.S. Special Forces have found themselves in the midst of battle between government soldiers and Communist guerrillas, and some have been killed.

Blunt Cuba Warning Issued by President

Discussions are being conducted with the Soviet Union concerning a promised withdrawal "in due course" of remaining Soviet troops in Cuba. Kennedy said he wants a better definition of "in due course" and wonders if a withdrawal could be accomplished this winter.

In his spirited defense of the administration's Cuban intelligence program, Kennedy appeared angry—even bitter—about the conduct of certain critics in Congress. "While saying the government welcomes reports of Soviet moves in the Caribbean, the President declared:

"Even some of the members of Congress who have come forward either refuse to say where they heard the information or provide us with reports which do not have substance to them."

On other subjects, these were the principal items: William McCaskey Martin Jr. is getting another term as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, though Martin has not always seen eye to eye with the administration's fiscal and economic policies.

"I could not accept this ultimatum. If any of the citizens at the meeting (March 16 in Lansing) wonder why the governor isn't here, it's because Lynn Bartlett told me not to come."

Romney said that he was personally "very pleased" with the teamwork of the urban renewal staff, city administrators and downtown property owners.

Officials had warned in the past that any delays in the R44 project would also delay progress on the proposed perimeter road.

Barnett Contempt Case Begins

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today Mississippi could not accept any blame in the contempt of court proceedings against Gov. Ross Barnett and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson.

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — An unprecedented criminal contempt of court hearing for the governor and lieutenant governor of Mississippi started today before the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

State sources said neither Gov. Ross Barnett nor Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson Jr., both convicted of civil contempt last year, was expected to appear in court. Attorneys will plead their case.

The appeals court, which has never imposed penalties for the civil convictions, has ordered the state officials to show why they should not be held in criminal contempt for seeking to block admission of James H. Meredith, a Negro, to the University of Mississippi.

In briefs filed before the hearing, Mississippi asked that the charges be tossed out. The state argued that Barnett and Johnson acted as Mississippi officials in compliance with state laws—and not as individuals. The state also

Introduces Bill for Facilities in Child Care

LANSING — State Sen. Farrell E. Roberts, R-Oakland County, yesterday introduced legislation to establish or operate separate facilities for emotionally disturbed children in state mental hospitals.

The $3.9-million program would mean $2 million in capital outlay, including $700,000 for plans and construction of separate in-patient facilities for children at Pontiac State Hospital.

The hospital also would share $1.9-million for operation of such facilities at six state mental hospitals.

Similar legislation was introduced in the House by Rep. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor. The bills have bipartisan support.

The $2-million appropriation for planning and construction would affect four hospitals.

The bills were introduced at the request of the American Association of University Women, which conducted a survey five years ago of the state's care needs for child mental patients.

Wilson Estate at $7,134,161

Former U.S. Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson left personal property valued at $7,134,161 when he died Sept. 26, 1961, according to a final inventory of his estate filed in Oakland County Probate Court.

Nearly $5.5 million was represented by stocks in a number of corporations and another $423,000 by municipal and school construction bonds.

Livestock and farm machinery and equipment at three of Wilson's properties—Windward Farms at Metamora, the Double W ranch in Florida and Richland Plantation in Louisiana—were appraised at a total of $422,000. Wilson resided on West Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Township.

Other assets included some $600,000 in life insurance, accounts receivable of some $120,000, Texas oil leases valued at $72,500 and bank accounts containing some $15,000. Among the items listed was a block of 34,597 shares of National Bank of Detroit common stock appraised at more than $2.5 million. A block of 84,700 shares of T. S. Eastern Transmissions Corp. stock was valued at $1,378,375. The inventory also showed Wilson, former president of General Motors Corp., held only 1,500 shares of GM common stock, worth about $63,500 at the current market price.

Renew Blue Cross Hearings

'Set-Up Would Curb Control by Public'

LANSING (UP)—A Michigan Blue Cross proposal to allow public control of its board of trustees has been criticized by State Insurance Commissioner Sherwood Colburn, who said it would be a "set-up" to curb control by the public.

Colburn termed the proposal "most unsatisfactory" yesterday and said it would not help Blue Cross (Michigan Hospital Service) in its bid for state approval of a 29.3 per cent rate increase.

Public hearings on the rate hike proposals by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, its companion medical service, were to resume today in Grand Rapids. The two prepaid plans seek a combined rate hike worth $140 million over the next two years.

Colburn said a five-point resolution adopted by the Blue Cross board Jan. 29 would make Blue Cross-to-hospital reimbursements a subject that the public-dominated board might be powerless to adjust.

The resolution calls for 22 of the 42-member board to be non-medical persons. But Blue Cross also is seeking to have reimbursement formula written into its hospital contract before the revised board is set up.

"This means they could write their own ticket before the public board takes over," said Colburn, "and it could then be changed only with difficulty—for example, by getting two-thirds of the participating hospitals to agree."

"The new board would be at the complete mercy of the hospitals, even with a majority of its members representing the public."

TIED TO RATE HIKE
Colburn urged Blue Cross to put its governing board under public control, indicating that agreement on this and other points would have importance bearing on the state's acceptance of the rate hike.

"I don't want the public to think that because I've asked for public control, this resolution by Blue Cross is accept-

Grand Rapids Scene of Public Session

GRAND RAPIDS (UPI)—Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield, shelled with criticism of their rate hike proposals in Detroit earlier, were expecting much of the same today at a public hearing here.

State Insurance Commissioner Sherwood Colburn was to preside as he did at the two-day session in Detroit on Monday and Tuesday.

The hospital-medical plans contend they need the increased rates, which would affect some 3.5 million subscribers in Michigan, to keep their organizations from financial jeopardy.

Blue Cross, according to William S. McNary, went nearly $5.5 million into the red in 1962.

Summer C. Whittier, director of Blue Shield, said his organization was expected to go into the red next month and "would continue to lose money under the present structure."

At the Detroit hearings, Blue Cross-Blue Shield proposed rate increases averaging 27 per cent.

WARN FUND EXHAUSTION
McNary warned today that Blue Cross reserves would be exhausted by the end of March.

In a statement filed with Colburn, he said that outgo was exceeding income at an increasing rate because of a pattern of rising hospital costs and greater need of services over which the hospital plan has no control.

McNary said the increases were part of a national pattern. He blamed the rising hospital costs (about 5 per cent annually) to hospital payrolls which he said accounted for 70 per cent of hospital costs.

McNary pointed out that Blue Cross could not control health care costs but "we are totally committed to take all reasonable measures within our power to guard against any waste of the subscriber's funds."

Only three cents of every dollar collected by the hospital care plan, he said, goes into operating costs for the plan.

Lyon Twp. School Issue

Millage Vote Monday

SOUTH LYON—Voters of the Lyon Township School District will decide Monday the fate of a proposed seven-mill tax hike, to be used for operational costs for one year.

If approved, the seven-mill levy will replace the five-mill tax which expired in December.

School officials say an 18 per cent cutback in the school program will be necessary if the proposal is defeated.

The additional two-mill tax is required, according to school board members because of increased enrollment necessitating more teachers and new salary increments.

Voting on the issue will take place in the gymnasium of South Lyon Elementary School from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Last year, district residents went to the polls three times before finally approving a five-mill, one-year levy on Aug. 20.

Disapproval of the requested millage would result in curtailment or elimination of several school programs, such as band, athletics and art, as well as loss of full-day sessions, according to school officials.

The board said it chose Monday as the election date for three reasons:

1. The election date is by law influenced by the timing of township and city elections.

2. It is desirable to determine the amount of school income prior to issuing teacher contracts in March and April.

3. The board can prepare more accurate budget when it is aware of funds coming from taxes.

Guard Unit Takes Over Missile Site

UTICA—A Michigan National Guard unit today took over operation of the Nike-Hercules missile site here, replacing an Army battery.

In a brief ceremony at Inkster, guardsmen took over responsibility of handling the Utica site, as well as similar defense bases at Inkster and Caledon.

The men have been working at the bases since mid-December and prior to that received training at Army schools.

The batteries are capable of firing missiles to bring down enemy planes that might attempt an attack on the Detroit area.

Lt. Col. William Womack of Detroit leads the men handling the bases, who make up three batteries of the 1st Missile Battalion, 17th Artillery.

Police Arrest Four in Series of Thefts

A score of burglaries in the Auburn Heights area of Avon Township have been solved with the arrest of four young persons, two of them brothers, state police say.

Troy Scott Jr., 18, of 3418 Devondale Road and Wanda Townsend, 18, of 2791 Leach Road, both of Avon Township, waived examination yesterday in Orion Township Justice Court and were bound over to Circuit Court until Feb. 18.

They failed to furnish the $2,000 bond set by Justice Helmar.

In February, 1962, Roger, now 22, was sentenced to 90 days in jail for furnishing liquor to a 13-year-old Rochester boy who was later found dead from exposure near the village hall.

Scott implicated Townsend while he was being questioned yesterday morning by trooper John Brown of the Pontiac post and sheriff's deputy Billy Nolin about the break-in at the Crump firm.

A footprint found at the scene of the burglary matched one found outside Scott's home, Brown said.

DETECTIVES SUMMONED
Since most of the area break-ins were being investigated by the sheriff's office, detectives Alphonse Anderson and Everett Fredericks were summoned to question the brothers.

Scott told police he had been involved in burglaries with the other three at one time or another.

Most of the break-ins took place within the last three months and netted the quartet under $1,600 in cash, police said.

Many of the stores were broken into more than once by the four, according to officers.

Constitution Argued

LANSING (UPI)—The proposed constitution that "non-partisan" document Democrats and Republicans are constantly fighting about provoked another controversy yesterday on the floor of the Michigan Senate.

The debate centered over whether the document drafted by last year's constitutional convention represented a new or a revised constitution.

Even as the argument went on, debaters admitted they were stirring a tempest in a teapot. But it took three roll-call votes, two voice votes and 45 minutes of oratory before the senators adopted a resolution for establishment of a special joint committee to study legislation needed to implement the constitution if it is passed.

And in its final form, the resolution called the document new, not revised.

Today both houses were due for short morning sessions before breaking up for their weekend rest that will end Monday at 8 p.m.

In the House yesterday, Republican Majority Leader R. P. Robert E. Waldron of Dearborn suggested the Democrats were due for another disappointment.

After Rep. E. D. O'Brien's eight-bill tax reform package was referred to the House Taxation Committee, Waldron commented that would probably be the last time the measures could be on the floor.

"We're not going to consider taxes until the next session (after Labor Day). I'm afraid O'Brien's bills are just a waste of paper," Waldron said.

The Senate battle was provoked by Sen. William D. Ford, D-Taylor, when he asked the resolution be amended to read "revised

A May wedding is planned by Linda Lee Miller, daughter of Mrs. Russell C. Miller of 13800 Clyde Road, Highland Twp., and the late Mr. Miller, and Robert A. Masters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Masters of Detroit.

Only three cents of every dollar collected by the hospital care plan, he said, goes into operating costs for the plan.

Tax Campaign Nears End as Oak Park Vote Nears

OAK PARK—One of the most active millage campaigns in the history of the Oak Park School District will come to an end Monday.

Voters will go to the polls to decide on a proposed 6.5-mill operating tax increase. School district residents turned down a 5-mill tax increase last June.

Nearly 14,000 registered voters are eligible to cast ballots in the election and a heavier-than-normal turnout is expected because of extensive campaigning that has taken place during the last several weeks.

School administrators have stated that failure of the millage will mean the new junior high school at Nine Mile Road and Soda Street will not open in September; that all junior high pupils will go on half days; and that other program cut-backs will be put in effect.

Asst. School Supt. Dr. Laurence Valade has pointed out that "the requested 6.5 mills is needed to make up a $714,000 deficit in next year's estimated budget and that 2.5 mills of the increase will go toward operation of the new junior high school."

Passage of the millage would bring the district about $695,000 in additional local revenues plus another $78,000 in extra state aid because the special Carver School aid is now based in part on the district's tax rate, Valade said.

Call Them Mr., Mrs. if They Wish

By The Emily Post Institute
Q: My daughter has been married six months and during the time we have had our son-in-law's parents at our house for dinner a few times and they have had us to their house and we have become rather friendly.

As it seemed so stiff to call them Mr. and Mrs. I began calling them by their first names and I asked them to do the same. However, they still continue to call us Mr. and Mrs. I am rather hurt over this and feel that they do not consider us friends.

Since they insist on calling us Mr. and Mrs. should I cease calling them by their first names and call them Mr. and Mrs. too?

A: There are still many people who dislike the use of first names and your son-in-law's parents seem to be among these. I would advise you to call them Mr. and Mrs. until they ask you to call them Mary and John.

Q: When invited to dinner in someone's house, how and when do dinner guests leave the table? Is it the duty of the hostess to suggest leaving the table?

A: At a large, formal dinner the hostess looks around the table and if all have finished eating, she catches her husband's eye and both rise to leave the table, the guests following their example. At a small, informal dinner she most probably says, "Let's go into the living room for our coffee."

Q: I have a pair of hand-cut crystal candelabra which I keep on my dining table at all times. They are lighted only at dinner time. My daughter tells me that it is improper to leave them on the table when not in use and that they should be removed when dinner is over. Is she right about this?

A: Your daughter is right. They should be removed from the table when not in use.

But 'Everybody' Has One

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Today my daughter has a long face because I refused to buy her a formal. She is 11 years old and in the sixth grade. A girl used to get her first formal for the senior prom when she was 17.

Today they have proms for children in the sixth grade.

AVERAGE MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I'm told that the added expenses of extra-curricular events in the modern high school are becoming psychologically tough on have-not kids. So now it's "formals" in the sixth grade? I'm against 'em!

DEAR ABBY: I have a sick-in-the-head husband, and his jealousy is driving me out of my mind. I am not allowed to speak to any man in our neighborhood or to any other man. Even relatives!

If I even look at them he accuses me of all kinds of dirty things. I have never given him any reason to doubt me. I can't just pinch him because we have children.

He tells me he is not sick in the head, but what else would you call it? What am I going to do? Now I am getting jealous. Jealous of women who have sane husbands.

JEALOUS
DEAR JEALOUS: If your husband had a toothache, you would get him to a dentist by hook or by crook, wouldn't you? Well, there are doctors who take care of "sick-in-the-head" people, too. What are you waiting for?

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman of 28 who has never been married. I live alone and support myself.

I recently met a very handsome man who fell for me fast. He talked of "our future together" and I thought I had finally found my man. I was completely bowled over last night when he asked me for a loan of $500. He's a salesman and told me how well he was doing.

I asked him if he'd sign a note for it and he said if he had wanted to sign a note he could have gone to a bank.

Now I have my doubts about him. Half of me wants to continue seeing him and half of me to quit him. I am SHATTERED.

DEAR SHATTERED: Better to be temporarily "shattered" than permanently broke. Listen to the half with the brains in it. Romeo who mix moonlight and marriage are a poor risk.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TED: People are governed by the head. A kind heart is of little value in chess.
