Lake Ship Sinks After Straits Collision in Fog

COLLIE WILKINS JR.

Liuzzo Jurors Seek Answers

Ask Judge to Explain Degrees of Murder

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A jury trying to reach a verdict in the murder trial of a Ku Klux Klansman interrupted its deliberations today to get an explanation of the law on accomplices and degrees of homicide.

★ ★ ★

Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, is on trial for the highway slaying of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, Detroit mother of five and a participant in civil rights activities.

The jury only wanted more information from white-haired T. Werth Thagard, the trial judge. The judge explained the difference between first- and second-degree murder and manslaughter.

"You went a little further in your original charge," said juror Clifford McMurphy, spokesman and apparently the foreman of the white jury which spent four hours and 20 minutes yesterday trying to decide the case.

★ ★ ★

"You mean about accomplices?" Thagard asked.

"Yes, that's it," replied McMurphy.

EQUALLY GUILTY

Thagard said that if the evidence convinced the jury that the key state witness, FBI informer Gary Thomas Rowe Jr., was an accomplice, then he was equally guilty and the law prohibits a conviction from his testimony without corroborating evidence.

But, the judge said, it was up to the jury to determine if there was such evidence.

Rowe had testified he was with Wilkins and two other Klansmen the night of March 25 and held a loaded gun while Wilkins fired the fatal shot; Rowe said he had suggested they abandon their pursuit of Mrs. Liuzzo and did not know beforehand that the shooting would occur.

Tornadoes Kill 13 in Minneapolis Area

At Least 300 Suffer Injuries

Storm Damage Is in Millions of Dollars

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The death toll rose to at least 13 today from a string of tornadoes that spewed death and destruction over this heavily populated area, injuring more than 300 and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Police said two more bodies were found in the suburb of Mounds View as coroner's aides began searching the rubble where dozens of homes stood before last night's twisters hit. Several of the dead remained unidentified.

More than two dozen suburbs lay in the path of the winds that skipped to the ground and lifted, only to come down again over southwestern, western and northern suburbs during the supper hour.

Heavy rain and two-inch hailstones preceded the twisters.

Utility lines were downed, many crossing highways lined with homeward-bound workers.

27,000 PHONES

Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., which sent six mobile units out for emergency use by residents today, estimated 27,000 telephones were out of service.

Hundreds of homes were damaged and many were destroyed.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag appealed to President Johnson to expand flood disaster designations already in effect for the area to include wind damage.

The governor, who made an inspection tour after the storm, called the situation "utter, sheer, total disaster."

GUARD CALLED

He called out National Guard units to help police and Civil Defense volunteers maintain order.

Tornado sightings were reported over at least 25 small towns.

The heaviest damage was reported to communities around Lake Minnetonka, some 15 miles west of Minneapolis and Spring Lake Park and Mounds View, 15 miles north of the city.

Cong Units Kill 48 in Big Assault

SAIGON (UPI)—Three battalions of Communist guerrillas attacked a camp for Roman Catholic refugees in the Mekong Delta last night, killing 48 defenders and wounding 77. Thirty other Vietnamese were listed as missing and possibly captured.

A U. S. military spokesman described the Viet Cong assault as the biggest so far this year.

The guerrillas stormed the camp at Hai Yen, 180 miles southwest of Saigon.

★ ★ ★

The refugee center is run by Father Nguyen Loc Hoa, South Viet Nam's famed "fighting priest." He has long withstood the Communists with a private army called the "Sea Swallows."

In the air war against North Viet Nam, eighty-one U.S. Air Force jets attacked bridges and barracks in North Viet Nam today.

One F105 fighter-bomber was downed in the sea by enemy guns, but the pilot was rescued by an Air Force amphibious plane.

★ ★ ★

This was the first time a U.S. plane has been downed on a mission over North Viet Nam since April 20, and the first Air Force plane to go down since April 17.

★ ★ ★

The downed pilot narrowly missed falling into Communist hands. A U.S. spokesman said a North Vietnamese patrol boat came within 1,000 yards of the pilot, but was neutralized by another F105 that swept in, its rockets blazing.

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said today that Henry Cabot Lodge, President Johnson's personal envoy on Viet Nam policy, promised that the United States will not bomb Hanoi, the capital of North Viet Nam, or occupy any part of the Asian Communist nation.

Dominican Fighting Brings Four More Marine Deaths

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Another wrong turn into rebel territory was blamed today for the deaths of four Marines, bringing the U.S. death toll in the Dominican fighting to at least 13.

U. S. sources said three Marines were killed yesterday after a patrol wandered accidentally into the insurgent-held sector of downtown Santo Domingo.

Two others were wounded and one died after he was taken to the aircraft carrier Boxer.

A rebel spokesman said one insurgent was killed and two wounded in the encounter. The rebels at first accused the United States of violating the cease-fire arranged Wednesday by a peace commission of the Organization of American States. Later they said they believed the Marine patrol had taken a wrong turn.

Two U.S. newsmen who had been observing the clash from a taxi were caught in the crossfire and wounded slightly. They were Al Brut and photographer Doug Kennedy, both of the Miami, Fla. Herald.

A U.S. military source said the newsmen had passed through a rebel checkpoint and were approaching the U.S. lines when the insurgents opened fire on the Marines and the Marines fired back. The source said it was probable that U.S. gunfire wounded the newsmen.

★ ★ ★

Another marine patrol took a wrong turn Wednesday into rebel territory. After sharp firing the rebels captured two of the Marines but released them yesterday to the OAS Peace Commission. The commission returned them to American authorities.

In other incidents yesterday, snipers wounded two U.S. paratroopers and hit a helicopter, wounding the pilot in the legs. A flurry of sniping activity broke out near the U.S. Embassy during the afternoon, but it died down quickly.

Otherwise, Santo Domingo was quiet yesterday, and more stores reopened for the first time since the revolution broke out April 24.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel provisional president, hotly denied a charge by a U.S. official that he had agreed to give Communists posts in his rebel government.

"It's a lie," Caamano told newsmen.

Caamano also denied a U.S. claim that Fidelio Despradel, identified as a prominent Communist, was one of his aides.

"I don't even know who Despradel is," Caamano declared.

CLOSE STATION

Hector Aristy, Caamano's secretary, said the rebel chief had closed down a radio station which came on the air Wednesday and called on Dominicans to "kill in blood and fire the foreign invaders and their lackeys."

Aristy said the station, which called itself "Radio Constitutionalists," did not represent the rebel position.

U.S. officials in Washington said their government hopes to begin withdrawing some of its 20,000 troops from the Dominican Republic within a few days as contingents from other nations move in.

Officials indicated the number of withdrawals would depend mainly on the size of forces con-

LBJ Proposes NATO Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson set forth today a six-point program of "unfinished and urgent business" for the Atlantic Alliance, and in apparent reference to France, cautioned against a return to "narrow nationalism."

In a live television address to the United States and parts of western Europe, Johnson marked the 20th anniversary of Germany's surrender in World War II with a policy pronouncement on America's relations with its Atlantic allies.

In suggesting a work program for the Western allies, Johnson said first, "We must hasten the slow erosion of the Iron Curtain" and said he will ask Congress to promote increased peaceful trade between the United States and the Communist countries of eastern Europe.

As his sixth and final point, the President said, "We must work toward agreement with the Soviet Union."

Declaring that the door to peaceful settlement is open, he said, "It is in the interest of the Soviet Union and in our own, to seek an end to tensions."

In a section of his address that seemed aimed at the nationalistic policies of French President Charles de Gaulle, Johnson said:

"There are some efforts today to replace partnership with suspicion, and the drive toward unity with a policy of division.

"The peoples of the Atlantic will not return to that narrow nationalism which has torn and bloodied the fabric of our society for generations."

One Is Killed, Seven Missing at Mackinac

Rescuers Pick Up 26 Survivors From Carrier Cedarville

MACKINAW CITY (AP) —Two ships smashed together in the fog-shrouded Straits of Mackinac today and one, the 558-foot limestone carrier Cedarville, sank.

Coast Guard radio reports from the area said 26 survivors were picked up, one body was recovered and seven men still were missing.

The Cedarville and the Norwegian freighter Topdalsfjord collided about two miles east of the huge Mackinaw Bridge, which links Michigan's two peninsulas. The Cedarville sank within minutes.

Most of the crew of the Cedarville was from Rogers City, a community hard hit by another Great Lakes disaster in 1958. The Cedarville carried a crew of 35 men.

Early radio reports from the area told of hearing cries for help coming from the cold, foggy water.

LAST WORD

E. C. Dagwell, a resident of this city, said he was listening to marine radio after the collision. The former marine radio operator said the last word from the vessel was: "The Cedarville is sinking."

He said the captain, Martin Joppich, tried to beach the ship, but apparently was unsuccessful.

The radio operator said the Norwegian freighter radioed reports of "hearing fellows in the water calling for help."

The Coast Guard sent aircraft and ships rushing to the area, but were hampered by fog. The German vessel Weissenburg reportedly helped in rescue operations.

Lt. William Mittag, a Coast Guard officer at Traverse City, said "the Norwegian vessel is standing by and appears in no danger of sinking."

The captain of the Norwegian reportedly is R. Haaland.

The Cedarville was loaded with limestone for steel mills in Gary, Ind. She was en route from Alpena when she collided with the foreign ship, bound from Chicago to Lake Superior.

The Cedarville belonged to the Bradley Transportation Co. and was built in River Rouge in 1927. The Bradley line suffered a heavy loss in November of 1958 when its 600-foot limestone carrier, the Carl D. Bradley, cracked up and sank in a Lake Michigan storm. Only two of the ship's 35-member crew survived.

A policeman here said the fog over the straits, which connect Lakes Michigan and Huron, was so thick "you can't see 50 feet out into the lakes."

News of the ship collision was announced in the House of Representatives at Lansing just before noon as news of an important and urgent nature.

Storm Threat Dampens Forecast

If you're planning a golf game tomorrow, better do it early. There's a threat of thundershowers late tomorrow.

Otherwise, the forecast calls for variable cloudiness and mild temperatures. A high of 76 to 82 is expected.

Partly cloudy skies are on the docket for tonight. A low of 57 to 62 is forecast.

The outlook for Sunday is showers and thunderstorms.

Winds this morning were southerly, and increased to 10 to 18 miles an hour this afternoon. They will diminish tonight, and increase again tomorrow.

Fifty-seven was the low mercury reading in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a.m. today. The temperature at 2 p.m. was 79.

Break Is Near in Big Robbery

Mail Truck Bandits Netted $1.55 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—Postal inspectors are near in their investigation of the biggest cash robbery in American history, the $1.55 million 1962 raid on a mail truck in Plymouth, Mass., it was learned today.

They will turn their evidence over to a U.S. attorney in the next few weeks for his decision whether to lay the case before a grand jury, a government source said.

"They have been summarizing the evidence they have gathered over nearly three years," the source said, "and will be turning it over for the U. S. attorney to consider very shortly."

The Post Office Department declined any official comment on the difficult investigation of the August 14, 1962 holdup.

★ ★ ★

Four robbers — two armed with submachine guns and one wearing a policeman's uniform —pounced on the truck as it carried bank deposits from Cape Cod to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

The haul, mostly in bills of $20 and smaller was officially reported to be $1,551,277.

'Foster Told of Killing'

Says Witness

A lifelong friend of Carl F. Foster yesterday testified that Foster, 29, of Pontiac, once told him he had killed his first wife, Angela.

Wayne D'Autremont, 22, of 466 S. Marshall, who said he grew up with Foster, made the statement in Pontiac Municipal Court during Foster's preliminary examination on a charge of first-degree murder.

Municipal Judge Cecil McCallum bound the case over to Circuit Court.

Mrs. Angela Foster died on Feb. 28, 1964. The death was first ruled a suicide. She was found banging in the basement of their home at 355 Oakland.

Last month, however, the Oakland County prosecutor issued a warrant charging Foster with the killing.

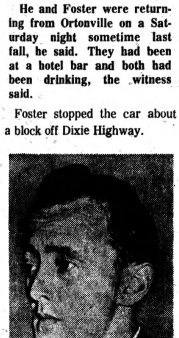
The defendant is currently serving a 10- to 15-year prison term for manslaughter in the strangulation death last December of Mrs. Maurice Crook, a Bloomfield Township divorcee.

TOLD STORY

D'Autremont, his eyes red, clenched his hands tightly as he told his story. Foster showed little emotion.

He and Foster were returning from Ortonville on a Saturday night sometime last fall, he said. They had been at a hotel bar and both had been drinking, the witness said.

Foster stopped the car about a block off Dixie Highway.



CARL F. FOSTER

The witness told the court that Foster then said "I killed her, I killed her."

"He said she woke up and then he said he hit her," D'Autremont said.

SAW TEARS

"All he could see were tears running down her eyes Foster told me," the witness said.

D'Autremont said that Foster then told him he hung Angela in the basement.

The witness said that Foster was convinced that his wife was running around with another man, a piano player named Jack Wallace.

D'Autremont said that Foster once admitted slashing Wal-

"Then he grabbed the front of my shirt and said 'I have to tell someone; I have to tell someone' over and over again," D'Autremont said.

TORN BUTTONS

D'Autremont, a heavy-set factory worker, said Foster was so excited that he ripped the buttons off his (D'Autremont's) shirt when he grabbed him.

Cat Burglars Prowl on Foggy Night

By PAT McCARTY

The cat burglars came on little fog feet.

And they crept back out with their mitts full of jewels.

Using the fog as a cover, the pair hit four Bloomfield Township homes early this morning.

They gained entry to at least two, absconding with jewelry and some money.

Jewelry valued at $1,300 and $28.50 in cash were stolen from the Benjamin Jerome home at 3915 E. Quarton before 1:20 a.m.

MORE JEWELRY

The amount of jewelry taken from the Clyde Recht home at 6220 Thorncrest has not yet been determined, according to Det. Lt. James E. Keller.

Mrs. Recht told police she saw the burglars rifling through jewelry boxes. She coughed and they ran.

Mrs. John Scott of 6172 E. Thorncrest reported she was awakened by the barking of her dog about 3:30 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Although the lock on the garage door had been forced open, the house had not been entered, Keller said.

NEW REPORT

The fourth break-in in the area was reported late this morning and information was not immediately available.

There have now been 27 cat burglaries in the township since last summer, according to Police Chief Norman Dehnke.

Romney Tax Reform 'Kit' Turned Over to Legislators

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney today handed the legislature a "do-it-yourself fiscal reform kit" of 12 tax proposals and seven possible budgets for the next three years.

Romney met with 25 lawmakers in the second of a series of meetings on fiscal reform and the state's revenue needs in the next three years.

Keeping an earlier promise to present alternate plans, he drew up budgets that ranged from a stand-still spending plan that would wipe out the state's surplus in two years, to a plan that would leave the state $307 in debt by July 1, 1968.

His tax alternates, tied to the various budgets, included reductions or repeal of the business activities tax, property and sales tax relief and several approaches to income taxes.

★ ★ ★

Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, chairman of the House General Taxation Committee and a champion of fiscal reform dubbed the Romney proposals a "do-it-yourself kit."

★ ★ ★

"And a do-it yourself kit is just what we need," Romney added.

FISCAL REFORM

"Fiscal reform is nearer now than it was a month ago or a week ago," Romney added. "But that doesn't mean it's close by any means."

He praised a move by Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Ithaca, Thursday to limit property tax assessments to 40 per cent of true cash value. The move was backed by Montgomery as a means of forcing fiscal reform.

"This is one approach to property tax relief we could very well use," Romney said.

★ ★ ★

Using the Romney alternate budgets and alternate tax plans as a starting point for discussions, the group will meet again "the early part of the week after next," Romney said. The next main point of discussions will be spending targets for the next three years, he added.

REVENUE SOURCES

"We have to find revenue sources without resorting to patchwork consumer taxes," Montgomery said, "and logic takes you back to an income tax every time."

★ ★ ★

The income tax alternatives ranged from 2.5 to 3.5 per cent —some allowing a $1,000 exemption, some without.

★ ★ ★

Romney and Montgomery repeated their previous theme that fiscal integrity (keeping the state solvent) is more important than fiscal reform alone. Retaining integrity without a fiscal reform program would mean stop-gap, patchwork tax increase proposals.

LBJ Signs Money Bill for Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed today a special $700-million appropriation to finance the war in Viet Nam and said it was a message of American determination to resist aggression in Southeast Asia.

Johnson signed the bill in the East Room of the White House just three days after he asked Congress for the funds.

"It is not the money but the message that matters. And that message is simple — that message is clear," he said.

"We will do whatever must be done to ensure the safety of South Viet Nam from aggression. We will use our power with restraint and with all the wisdom we can command. But we will use it."

The money bill sped through the Senate Thursday, completing congressional action in almost unprecedented time, but some thunderbolts were hurled at the White House.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and more than 100 members of the House and Senate Foreign Relations, Appropriations and Armed Services committees gathered in the East Room for the signing ceremony.

They gave the President a round of applause when he entered the room and again when he finished his statement.

Congress should "resent being led around like a dog on a leash and given 48 hours to pass bills which the administration seeks to gird up its shaky policies," stormed Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, one of three senators who voted against the appropriation.

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin accused the United States today of violating elementary rules of international law and warned that Washington must sooner or later take into account that North Viet Nam has friends.

STATE MARINE CAPTURED — Two U.S. Marines, taken prisoner by Santo Domingo rebels yesterday after a gunfight, are served coffee in rebel headquarters. The Marines are Pvt. Darrll Southwell, 21, of Mason (left) and Cpl. Rueben Garcia, 23, of New York. The two were released later.

According to police, it was the third death in less than two months on a one-mile stretch of West Maple near Halstead.

Nolan D. Schulak of 6889 W Maple, Bloomfield Township, was hit about 5:25 p.m. yesterday by a car driven by Patricia A. Whipple, 17, of 1350 W. Maple, Walled Lake, police said.

The girl told police she saw the boy start across the street as she came over a hill.

She said the boy was looking in the opposite direction and that she applied her brakes before the impact, according to police.

Young Schulak had been across the street to visit a neighbor, police said.

In previous accidents on this stretch of West Maple, vehicle collisions killed a teen-ager and a 3-month-old baby, according to police.

Tornadoes Kill 13

Lake Minnetonka's west shore, where dozens of homes were hard hit, and many destroyed.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Island Park and Navarre also on the lake's west side, received heavy property damage and reported many injured.

Four persons died at Spring Lake Park, one at Mounds View and one at Norwood.

The injured in twisters that hit Fridley, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View were brought to Mercy Hospital at Coon Rapids in a continuous stream.

★ ★ ★

After two hours, the hospital's administrator, Robert Van Hauser, pleaded with ambulance drivers and motorists to take their injured to other nearby hospitals.

100 TREATED

Van Hauser estimated that upward of 100 persons had been treated at Mercy Hospital. Nearly 30 of those treated were in serious condition.

The storm hit Norwood, a town of about 1,000 persons, some 38 miles southwest of Minneapolis.

After demolishing about 15 residences and between 30 and 40 farm buildings, the twister moved northeast, striking with devastating force at the exclusive sections of Shorewood-Excelsior. About a dozen homes were damaged and several persons injured.

Then it circled around Lake Minnetonka's west side and moved over the lake to the east side. Dozens of lakeside cabins and residences were smashed and scores of residents were injured.

OTHERS HIT

The tornado then traveled northeastward hitting Fridley, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View before it left the area.

Tornadoes also skipped across parts of Oklahoma, striking in small towns and rural areas.

A teen-age girl was killed. One woman suffered injuries in a twister which hit Oakwood, about 60 miles southwest of Oklahoma City.

The Minneapolis Weather Bureau had alerted Twin Cities residents around 6:30 p.m. Minutes later, a heavy rain and hail hit.

A series of twisters hit the northeastern portion of the state Wednesay, and another series struck the southeastern portion of the state. About 20 persons were injured, but property damage was heavy.

Other tornadoes were reported in rural areas near Mangum, Seiling and Hollis and at Ron, near Hollis. Several homes and farm buildings were damaged.

Thunderstorms continued during the night in Oklahoma and Kansas. With gusts of more than 80 m.p.h. were reported at Wichita, Kan. Showers fell from the eastern Great Lakes to the central Appalachians.

Burglars Find 'Job' Is Work

Burglars netted only $75 when they broke open a safe at a Birmingham food store last night, but they did about $1,900 worth of damage to the safe and building.

The burglars were unable to open or remove a security box inside the floor safe, but they demolished the safe in their attempt, police said.

The break-in at Quarton Food Market, 1744 W. Maple, was discovered at 11:30 p.m., an hour and a half after the store closed.

Damage was estimated at $1,700 to the safe and $200 to the door of the building, which was torn from its hinges.

Unmanned Satellite Launched by Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today launched another unmanned satellite—Cosmos 66.

Tass said the satellite carries scientific instruments for continuing a space exploration program begun in 1962. The satellite's orbit ranged from 122 to 180 miles above the earth. Tass said Cosmos 66 is functioning normally.

Local Physician Will Speak at State Convention

Dr. James Powell, 582 N. East Boulevard, is scheduled to be a featured speaker during the 67th annual convention of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons in Grand Rapids next week.

Dr. Powell will be among 1,600 physicians and guests slated to attend the five-day gathering.

The convention is scheduled to run from Monday through Wednesday evening, with a two-day house of delegates session to begin on Sunday.

Another Pontiac physician, Dr. Ben F. Dickinson, formerly chief of surgery at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, is to be installed during the week as the new president of the state association.

3rd School Out in Waterford

Will Put Additions on Existing Sites

The Waterford Township Board of Education learned last night that only two of three proposed elementary schools can be financed through the 1963 bond issue.

★ ★ ★

Supt. Donald Tatroe explained however that while the third 12-room school could not be built, the same amount of classrooms could be constructed as additions to existing facilities.

He said that increased construction costs since the first of the year has made it necessary to revise the plans originally formulated by the Citizens Advisory Committee.

About $760,000 remains from the $6,250,000 bond issue.

★ ★ ★

"This is enough money to build two separate schools," said Tatroe, "but not a third."

He said the funds would allow the construction of 38 classrooms, equal to the number first proposed, but that 14 of them would have to be additions.

He noted that the Riverside Elementary School, opened last September, will have to be expanded from 16 to 24 classrooms eventually.

Tatroe said he will make a recommendation to the board May 20 regarding the location of the additions.

★ ★ ★

The bond issue already has given the school district funds to build two elementary schools and a junior high school; and construct additions at five elementary, one junior and one senior high locations.

It has also supplied funds to acquire property for future construction; remodel the A Building on the Waterford High School campus and obtain a bus garage.

★ ★ ★

The prospective pupils, who must be five years old by Dec. 1, 1965 to enter kindergarten, need not accompany their parents to registration.

The first enrollment date is for parents whose children will attend Traub or Eastover elementary schools.

The registration and orientation program will be held at Eastover.

Families whose last names begin with the letter A through F will go at 9:15 a.m.; G-L at 10:30 a.m.; M-R at 1:15 p.m. and S-Z at 2:30 p.m.

The parents will meet the school staff and kindergarten teachers and make an appointment for a second session.

Hours for registration are 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-3 p.m.

The board of education and the learning abilities laboratory are planning an appraisal of all prekindergarten children in the Eastover and Traub areas.

Children who need additional preparation prior to entering the two schools will be offered guidance in a summer program.

A meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Monday to form a PTO for Traub Elementary School, which will open in September.

Agenda for the meeting at Eastover School includes discussion of bylaws. Parents also will have an opportunity to meet the school's principal, Mrs. Marguerite Bean.

lace's automobile tires to get revenge.

The witness also said that Foster had discussed killing Wallace by the use of poison gas which he planned to purchase by mail.

On another occasion Foster forced a friend at knifepoint to drive him to the motel where Wallace lived, D'Autremont testified.

The defense counsel, Joseph L. Hardig, of Birmingham, did not wish to cross-examine D'Autremont.

In other testimony during the afternoon the court heard Dr. Richard E. Olsen, the pathologist who performed the autopsy on Angela Foster.

Olsen said that Mrs. Foster had died of manual strangulation, rather than hanging.

The doctor said she was strangled by the right hand of the assailant, and she was dead before her body was hung in the basement.

Is Revamped City Charter Legally Filed?

A search was under way in Lansing today for records of a charter amendment which established the present procedure for electing Pontiac city commissioners.

The amendment was adopted by Pontiac voters in January 1964.

Democratic Sen. Carl W. O'Brien said he has learned that the records were not available, either because they were misplaced or never filed.

He said he did not know the immediate effect this would have on the operation of the city, but that it may have far-reaching ramifications if the proper documents had not been filed.

City Clerk Mrs. Olga Barkeley, however, said she had proof that the charter amendment and the results of the election were sent to the governor's office.

If there was any error in recording them, it was the state's, she contended.

She said that a letter was sent last Friday to verify that the state had a record of the charter provision, but that so far she has received no reply.

The charter amendment provides for nomination by district and at-large election of commissioners.

House May Decide in 2 Weeks

Delay Vote on Property Tax Cut Bill

LANSING (AP) — The House of Representatives was pushed to the brink of a decision on fiscal reform Thursday but delayed the plunge into a $200 million local property tax reduction bill for at least two weeks.

On the eve of a meeting between Gov. George Romney and legislators on fiscal reform, Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, moved to mend a bill to cut local property taxes to 40 per cent of true cash value.

★ ★ ★

In the move that caught even the leadership off guard, he challenged the House to "light a fire under itself" and support the positions of both political parties.

Spencer found support across the aisle from Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, chairman of the tax committee, a champion of fiscal reform and balanced budgets.

REFUND LOSSES

"This amendment will take $180 million to $200 million in taxes away from local governments," Spencer said. "But with fiscal reform the state could easily refund their losses."

In capitol terminology, massive new revenue sources are synonymous with a statewide income tax.

★ ★ ★

Local property taxes would be reduced from about $1 billion to about $800 million, Montgomery said.

Rep. Harry Demaso, R-Battle Creek, sponsor of the original, 50-per cent limit, bill—which is designed to bring state law in conformity with the new constitution — objected to the change, saying:

GUN TO HEAD

"All this (amendment) does is put a gun to the legislature's head. And I object to having all the chambers loaded. At least one should be empty."

"This is a fair test of whether this legislature has the stomach to vote for fiscal reform," Montgomery said. He was an arsenal of fiscal reform bills in his committee—ready to be unleashed at any time.

★ ★ ★

The test was delayed, however, until May 19 the date of announcement of the findings of Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, who is to rule on the constitutionality of a less-than-50 per cent limit. The state constitution limits assessments to 50 per cent of true cash value.

The support and opposition to Spencer's move cut across party lines.

OPPOSES METHODS

Majority floor leader J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City, said, "I support the concept, but disagree with the methods used here."

Spencer and Montgomery later denied that they had talked about the move before introduction on the amendments.

"In fact, I didn't talk to anyone about it until about two minutes before, when I told Rep. Harry Demaso, R-Battle Creek sponsor of the original bill what I was going to do," he said.

"But if this legislature wants to do away with inequities in the property tax, then it must be willing to reform the tax structure," Spencer said, adding:

CART FIRST

"This may be putting the cart before the horse, but maybe we have to work this way to get fiscal reform."

Everyone agrees that local governments are living a hand-to-mouth existence, Montgomery said, that the property tax-oriented revenue structure is inequitable, and that changes must be made—but no one is willing to do anything about it.

★ ★ ★

Montgomery and Spencer signed an income tax bill now in committee which would impose a flat five per cent tax on all private and corporate incomes. Spencer authored another bill imposing a three per cent levy on personal income, five per cent on corporations and seven per cent on financial institutions.

These are just vehicle bills and can be changed to meet any reform program, they said.

Traxler said later the move was dangerous because it would take away local revenues before guaranteeing that they would be made up in some other way.

Faces Charge in Home Raid

DETROIT (AP) — William Steart, 22, of Detroit is scheduled to appear in Southfield Municipal Court today on charges of malicious destruction in connection with a weekend rampage that wreaked havoc on an isolated suburban house.

Southfield police say Stewart was part of a group of 25 to 40 young men who did some $1,000 damage to the home of Mrs. Agnes Murdock, 84, in Southfield last Saturday night.

★ ★ ★

Police said the man earlier in the evening decided to tear up an abandoned house. They picked the Murdock residence which is obscured from the road by pine trees, officers said.

Police are still looking for a youth they believe to have been injured when Mrs. Murdock's son, Charles, 60, swung at the intruders with a hatchet.

AREA NEWS

To Break Ground for Troy's City Hall

TROY — Ground will be broken for Troy's new two-level city hall at 3 p.m. tomorrow. The $695,000 project will be located on Big Beaver Road near I-75.

The building will house all the administrative offices now in the present city hall, plus the police department.

These include the commission chambers, city manager's office, finance department, assessing department, the city clerk, judges' offices, the city attorney, building inspector, engineering department, planning department, city treasurer, public works and water department.

The police department, public works and water department will occupy the first floor. All other offices will be on the second floor.

★ ★ ★

Architect Frank Straub said the main entrance will be midway between the two levels with one-third of a flight of stairs leading down to the first floor and two-thirds of a flight up to the second floor.

CIRCULAR DRIVE

A circular drive will lead to the front entrance, and the parking lot will be to the east of the building. The interior of the lobby and the commission chambers will be of the same brick as the exterior of the building — a sandy-pink. The building will be completely air-conditioned.

Straub said the building, which will cover 30,000 square feet, is planned for expansion to about double its size.

Construction is expected to take about one year.

★ ★ ★

A reception for city officials and guests will be held at the home of former mayor Robert J. Huber, now a state senator from the 16th District, immediately following the groundbreaking ceremony.

Water Down Pollution Bill

Monday Is Earliest for State Senate Action

LANSING (AP) — The Senate again delayed action Thursday on a proposed tough new water pollution law.

Sponsors of the measure yielded somewhat with an amendment removing municipalities from criminal penalty provisions of the bill and then lost narrowly in a move to strike out a provision which exempts certain mining activities from law.

Action now cannot come before Monday night.

Present law provides legal remedy only against polluters who are found to be acting willfully. It never has resulted in a conviction. The Senate bill would make illegal any discharge of any substance which changes the character of water.

CONCERTED DRIVE

Sen. Gerald Dunn, D-Flushing, the bill's chief sponsor, said Thursday he was agreeing to removal of local governments from criminal provisions of the law in the wake of a concerted drive by the Michigan Municipal League and its members.

★ ★ ★

Sen. S. Don Potter, R-Lansing, charged that the bill would still be far too expensive. He said Lansing would have to spend $100 million to $150 million adjusting its sewage system and that the cost might run to $2.5 billion in Detroit.

He said industry might have to spend $6 billion to comply.

Sen. Carl O'Brien, D-Pontiac, chairman of the conservation committee, said, "I deny every figure Sen. Potter has mentioned."

TACKED ON

The controversial mining amendment was tacked on the bill earlier this week by Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, who pleaded that the Upper Peninsula mining industry might fold if mine tailings could not go into water.

Dunn and O'Brien tried to remove the amendment, and although the Senate voted with them 16-15, they were four votes short of the 20 needed at the final stage of debate.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, meanwhile, produced its first major budget bill, recommending $19.6 million for public health functions of the state.

This is about a half-million less than recommended by Gov. George Romney. The Department of Health absorbed most of the cut which committee chairman Garland Lane, D-Flint, said was scattered across various functions.

FORSYTHIA TIME—Four-year-old Sally Webster paused in her play yesterday long enough to admire the forsythia near her home at 5800 Pontiac Trail, Orchard Lake. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Webster, Penny was attracted by the bright yellow bush. Like children (and their elders) throughout the area, she is caught in the wonder of flowers and trees springing to new life.

Ordinance Is Aimed at Rowdyism

SHELBY TOWNSHIP — An ordinance designed to control rowdyism around drive-in restaurants went into effect here yesterday.

The new law eliminates "all-night" drive-ins by requiring them to be closed between the hours of 1 a.m. and 6 a.m. on week nights and 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. Saturday and Sunday nights.

It puts the responsibility for "control" of patrons on the owners and operators of drive-ins, who, in some cases, are expected to employ special police to help enforce the law.

It cracks down specifically on noise, disturbance and cruising, and requires owners to see that waste material and debris around their establishments is cleaned up every 24 hours.

Violation of the ordinance is punishable by $100 fine, 90 days in jail or both.

Local 7-176 Continues Strike at Parke, Davis

Agreement on a new three-year contract was reached yesterday by negotiators for Parke-Davis and Co. and Local 114 of the United Plant Guard Workers of America (UPGWA).

Both the Rochester and Detroit plants were idled Monday by a strike of Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union Local 7-176.

The strike affects 1,739 workers, including 253 employes at the biological laboratories in Rochester.

According to company and union officials, the new UPGWA contract provides a 3.5 per cent wage increase similar to that recently negotiated between the company and Lodge 1288 of the International Association of Machinists (IAM).

★ ★ ★

The agreement also provides for a study committee to review the existing pension agreement and, if improvements are mutually agreed upon, the cost of such improvements will be deducted from the first year's wage increase.

SIMILAR REVIEW

A similar review was included in the IAM agreement.

Lodge 1288 represents the Parke, Davis maintenance employes.

The strike by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers continued today with no bargaining sessions scheduled.

Fear Casts Chill as Mountain Sniper Roams

SHADE GAP, Pa. (AP) — Like a chill spring mist, fear has settled over an area in the Tuscarora Mountains of south-central Pennsylvania.

Night finds the 300 residents of Shade Gap and those of neighboring villages behind locked doors, with drawn shades. Within easy reach are rifles or shotguns.

Source of the terror which has gripped the hamlet for more than a year is a bizarre, mysterious rifleman. Residents call him "the sniper" or "the mountain man."

His victims describe him as tall, about six feet, and say he wears a trench coat, combat boots, a baseball cap and a Halloween mask.

Armed with a high-powered rifle, the sniper strikes only at night. All but one of his targets have been women.

★ ★ ★

No one has been killed, so far. But residents of the area are carrying weapons nearly everywhere they go, and Police Chief Wimbert Potts of nearby Orbisonia said he "would hate very much to be stranded out there at night."

The first attack occurred in Orbisonia. Viola Jackson was sitting in her living room the night of April 11, 1964, when someone smashed a window and fired several shots that narrowly missed her.

The second attack came June 1, 1964. When Ruth E. Arnold stepped outside her trailer home into the cool night air, the sniper struck her over the head with his rifle.

ROADBLOCK

Later that summer, Martha L. Yohn of Blairs Mills was driving along Pennsylvania 641 between Spring Run and Shade Gap when she was forced to stop by a roadblock of logs. As she got out of her car, the sniper jumped from behind the barricade and loosed a fusillade of shots. The bullets struck the car, and one barely missed her infant son.

This attack convinced police the sniper was someone thoroughly familiar with the area and its back roads.

★ ★ ★

"It's somebody who lives here now or lived here in the past," said Chief Potts. "I've lived here all my life, and I can still get lost on some of these dirt roads pretty easily."

Last Aug. 30, the sniper charged into the home of Mrs. Christian Devinney of Shade Gap. Mrs. Devinney grabbed a rifle, but the attacker overpowered her and fired several shots from his own gun. One bullet struck Mrs. Devinney.

ALL QUIET

For more than seven months all was quiet. Then, on Good Friday, Ned Austin Price, 53, a railroad conductor, took a brakeman's lantern and stepped into the backyard of his home outside Shade Gap to dig fishing worms.

★ ★ ★

Suddenly a man jumped from behind some trees and began shooting. Price was hit in a leg. Doctors had to amputate.

The next morning state police began a house-to-house canvass from Shade Gap to Burnt Cabin, a distance of 10 miles.

"It doesn't seem possible that something like this can go on that long," Potts said, "but we're no closer to a solution than we've ever been."

Kidnap Killing Trial to Begin

CHICAGO (AP) — The trial of three Chicago men charged with kidnaping an Indianapolis businessman who was found shot to death in a Michigan forest is scheduled to begin today in U.S. District Court.

The defendants are Phillip A. Battaglia Jr., 23, an office worker; Ray W. Thorburn, alias Jerry Lee Rogers, 37, a waiter; and Robert D. Lazzaro, 27, a grocery store clerk.

★ ★ ★

They were indicted Dec. 8 on charges of kidnaping William R. Loomis, 39, a purchasing agent for the P. R. Mallory Corp. of Indianapolis, manufacturer of electronics equipment.

The government has accused the three of luring Loomis to their North Side apartment Oct. 15 on the ruse of buying a sports car Loomis was in Chicago to sell.

WOODED AREA

The indictment alleges that Loomis was forced to drive his car to Escanaba, Mich., where he was taken into a wooded area and shot.

Thorburn and Battaglia are charged with aggravated kidnaping which led to the slaying of Loomis. Lazzaro is charged as an accessory to aggravated kidnaping.

new sign of new approaches to banking

This new symbol represents Bank of the Commonwealth's progressive attitude toward banking and finance. We're not afraid to break traditions to serve you better. For example, "The Commonwealth" was the first commercial bank in Detroit to make auto and installment loans—the first to make boat loans—first to offer a Pay-By-Check plan—first to promote a Christmas Club and to use a numerical checking account system. We don't keep "bankers' hours" either. All of our 33 offices are open until 5 P.M. Monday through Thursday, and until 6 P.M. on Friday. In addition, we are the only Detroit bank to offer 14 different patterns of High-Fashion Check sets. Our progressive thinking can help you when you want to borrow, save, or open a checking account. Let's 'Spoil' Mother on Her Day of Honor

Although around the house Mother is a recognized and revered institution, her official status was a long time coming.

Way back when, Merrie Olde England set aside a Sunday in mid-Lent for paying respect to her. It was called Mothering Sunday.

During Civil War days, JULIA WARD HOWE had an idea — and a pretty good one — of establishing Independence Day as a joint Mother's Day, making it a day of peace.

★ ★ ★

Finally, a Philadelphia miss took up arms for Mother and, after a campaign of many years, saw her dream come true when in 1914 President Wilson signed a resolution setting the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

But the formal observance of the Day, like so many other manifestations of feelings that reside in the spirit, is merely the icing on Mother's cake.

To a myriad of America's sons and daughters, every day is Mother's Day though — regrettably — in the hurly burly of personal preoccupation the deep-seated sentiment and affection often goes unexpressed.

★ ★ ★

Sunday, though, you'll have the opportunity to catch up on your homework and really let the little lady visibly know the enduring and cherished place she holds in your heart.

C'mon America—let's hear it for Mother.

Holland's Tulip Bulbs Illuminate the Globe

With half its 12,616 square miles below sea level and ablaze with tulips, Holland might be described as a mammoth sunken garden. Not only that, but the diked little monarchy exports its beauty around the world.

Since they first flowered in Persia 2,000 years ago and landed in Holland in 1550, the story of tulips is as fascinating as their beauty is delectable. The flowers that bloom in the spring have become one of that country's major industries.

Growing from a $5 million annual activity in 1920, 12,000 Dutch growers today cultivate precious flower buds on 25,000 acres of sandy-soiled tracts and each year ship 1 billion bulbs to 125 countries in return for $80 million.

There are at least 2,700 tulip varieties, though only 200 are in general distribution, according to the head of the Laboratory for Flower Research in Lisse. Each year, 75 to 100 new varieties are developed by growers, but few of them pass specifications and reach the market.

The Netherland's best tulip taker is West Germany, followed by Britain and the United States.

★ ★ ★

In an age when communications are becoming so electronic as to defy lay understanding, Holland still says it simply with tulips.

Criticism Prods More LBJ Talks

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Probably no man in the White House ever wished more for public approval, or was more conscious of critics, than President Johnson.

It does much to explain his switch in tactics. After ordering Marines into South Viet Nam and the bombing of North Viet Nam, he had to be prodded into talking.

MARLOW

Since sending troops into the Dominican Republic, he hasn't stopped talking.

When the bombing began last February, the White House simply issued a statement that it was in retaliation for a guerrilla attack on a U.S. air base in South Viet Nam.

As the weeks passed and the bombings continued and the Marines went in, Johnson was pelted with criticism at home and abroad, although he got much approval.

PRESSURE BUILDS

But he played so mum, pressures piled on him to start explaining.

He finally did on April 7. But the criticism continued. Then he did the exact opposite in public relations last week when he decided to send troops into the Dominican Republic, splintered into chaos by revolution.

He went on the air to explain April 28, April 30, and again May 2. All these broadcasts were at night, the last one Sunday night.

★ ★ ★

It meant breaking into programs. On the last broadcast, 30 minutes long, not all networks carried him.

But the way he built up to main emphasis on why he used troops in Asia and Latin America was almost identical in both cases.

In Viet Nam, he first put the emphasis on saving the South Vietnamese people from communism but finally put it on American determination to stop the spread of communism.

In the Dominican Republic, he first put the emphasis on saving American lives there and later said the goal was stopping the spread of communism in the Americas.

★ ★ ★

But, remembering the criticism he got for not talking sooner on Viet Nam, Johnson's timetable of public statements on the Dominican Republic can hardly be interpreted as anything but an anxious search for approval.

First, three broadcasts — April 28 and 30 and May 2—and on the last day, an off-the-record walk around the White House with reporters, explaining his problems.

A 30-minute broadcast May 2 and, on May 3, an unexpected appearance before a labor conference to defend his actions in Latin America.

Tuesday, he sent a message to Congress, asking it to vote $700 million for the Viet Nam fighting.

David Lawrence Says:

WWI Issues Have Familiar Ring

WASHINGTON — Do international problems really change very much in a half-century?

Are the basic issues that inflame the passions of peoples around the globe any different now than they were five decades ago?

Just 50 years ago — on Friday, May 7, LAWRENCE 1915 — a submarine of the navy of the imperialist government of Germany torpedoed without warning the Lusitania, an unarmed merchant vessel of a British steamship company, and caused the death of 1,198 persons, of whom 124 were Americans.

★ ★ ★

The whole world stood aghast at this act of brutality. The European war had begun the year before, and the United States was carefully preserving its neutrality. Yet innocent citizens of this and other countries were wiped out in a few minutes.

Most perplexing of all was the problem which faced President Wilson.

★ ★ ★

From Friday to Monday, no word came from the White House except that a protest note was being prepared. On Monday, May 10, however, Mr. Wilson made a speech in Philadelphia in which he conveyed an impression of restraint.

SECOND NOTE

However, the second American note, which was sent on June 9, was so strong that the secretary of state, William Jennings Bryan, considered it too belligerent and resigned.

The net effect of the American stand, however, was to prevent a recurrence of such episodes as the sinking of the Lusitania.

But on Feb. 1, 1917, the Berlin government announced that it was resuming unrestricted submarine warfare against all neutral and belligerent shipping.

★ ★ ★

President Wilson promptly broke diplomatic relations and asked Congress to give him authority to arm merchant ships in order to resist attacks.

WENT AHEAD

When Congress got involved in a filibuster and debate, Mr. Wilson went ahead anyhow, believing that he had the constitutional power without action by Congress.

When American vessels were sunk, the President immediately asked Congress to declare war, and it did so on April 6, 1917 — not even six months after the 1916 election.

President Wilson made it clear that the United States was making war not against the German people but against its misguided rulers.

Likewise, at the end of the conflict, Mr. Wilson sponsored the concept of a League of Nations as the only way to maintain peace in the world — by the cooperation of peoples.

ISOLATIONISTS

Unfortunately, after the war was over, members of the United States Senate who were believers in isolationist doctrines prevented the United States from ratifying the first peace treaty which had contained a provision for the establishment of the League of Nations.

Most of the other countries joined it anyhow, but in less than 10 years the league found itself powerless in the face of aggressive acts of autocracies, very much as the United Nations is floundering today.

The difficulty then, as now, concerns the inability of peoples to make their voices heard and to keep autocratic governments from threatening the peace of the world and from launching a war.

★ ★ ★

When peoples are really able to communicate with peoples, a time may come when misguided governments can be restrained from plunging their countries and the rest of the world into war.

Bob Considine Says:

Big Dominican Question Is Who to Put in Control

NEW YORK — Seldom in our ever-expanding role of intervention abroad have we been confronted with a more delicate job of hair-splitting than in the so-called Dominican Republic, which we are now attempting to keep from becoming the Dominican Peoples Republic.

CONSIDINE

Solomon would tend to throw up his hands in this case.

For 30 repressive years the land lived under the Trujillo mob, and with our diplomatic blessing.

The mob held all the country's money, power, army, police, press, radio, transportation and most of the land. It owned the key to the prison. The people got crumbs.

★ ★ ★

NARY A FINGER

The U.S. was nervously pleased.

Then Bosch was kicked out by a more reactionary group, and we lifted nary a finger.

Two weeks ago the rebel group, described by President Johnson as a "popular democratic revolution committed to democracy and social justice," threw out the people who had thrown out Bosch.

Rebel leadership was then thrown out by Communist elements within the uprising, and naturally the U.S. Embassy and our people became targets.

★ ★ ★

We jumped in there in clear violation of Article 15 of the charter of OAS, an organization we clearly support, but what else was there to do?

Not to have acted would have been to have duplicated the torpor that produced the Bay of Pigs debacle.

★ ★ ★

Problem now is, assuming we beat the communized rebels, who winds up with the marbles: the Bosch people? The people who threw out the Bosch people? Or the people who threw out the people who threw out the Bosch people?

More Comments on Teaching Profession

The Treasurer of the Pontiac Educational Association suggests the teachers should be the highest paid of all the professions and in his enthusiasm he splits an infinitive in his letter. This is a very minor grammatical mistake, but when you ask for the top of the world shouldn't your speech be on the same level?

CURIOUS

It is most gratifying to know that the P.E.A. has a president who possesses the courage to speak out for what he believes.

I think it's a sad commentary when the president of the Pontiac Education Association can't give a speech spiced with the word "hell" and not be ridiculed. Mr. Hartman is a leader in Washington Junior High. On many occasions he has directed plays and is on hand for any extra help after school.

So they think they can compare a school teacher's salary to a factory worker's and find the teacher comes out short. If the factory worker was on vacation from the middle of June until nearly halfway into September, they might have some comparison, along with a lot of happier and healthier factory workers. As it is, I think Ed Grieger of Walled Lake was stretching his imagination on this point. He must have missed the letter a couple of weeks ago which said teachers only have to work 180 days out of 365.

Solid Front Present

The San Diego Union

President Johnson is exhibiting some impatience at having to continually defend United States actions in South Viet Nam. And well he might.

In his televised press conference, one of the few he has held in recent months, Mr. Johnson reiterated that he is confident that "if the enemy believes we are there to stay—that we are not going to tuck our tails and run home . . . in due time peace can be observed in that area."

★ ★ ★

The opposition to American security policies largely centers among educators and a handful of senators and congressmen of liberal and radical views. Dean Rusk, the secretary of state, has become impatient with them, too.

"I sometimes wonder," he said recently, "at the gullibility of educated men in the stubborn disregard of plain facts by men who are supposed to be helping our young men to learn — especially to learn how to think."

★ ★ ★

The President in his press conference referred obliquely to the appeals to halt the air attacks on North Viet Nam in which it has been claimed we are killing innocent non-combatants. There isn't any blood in a bridge, the President pointed out, and the destruction of bridges, radar stations and ammunition dumps are designed to prevent the movement of men and bullets that could be employed to kill American boys.

★ ★ ★

"I do sometimes wonder," he said, "how some people can be so concerned with our bombing a cold bridge of steel and concrete in North Viet Nam but never open their mouth about a bomb being placed in our embassy in South Viet Nam."

Standing firm is the only guarantee of lasting peace, and, as the President pointed out, "wherever we have stood firm, peace has been restored and liberty has been maintained.

". . . That is the clearest lesson of our time," he said. "From Munich until today we have learned that to yield to aggression brings only greater threats and brings even more destructive war."

★ ★ ★

The same liberals and radicals who like to pretend that there is no relation between the independence of South Viet Nam and our own security, like to talk about "one world." They insist that national boundaries are no longer significant. If that is so, the boundary of our concern does not end at our coast line. Aggression anywhere would have to be considered aggression against us as well.

Labor Wins With Deal on Steel

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's steel nationalization plan cleared its first legislative hurdle Thursday night, but only after the Labor government indicated it would settle for control of the industry instead of total nationalization.

* * *

Only seconds remained before the mandatory end of debate in the House of Commons when the government dramatically offered to listen to any other plan that would give it control of the steel industry.

The move won back to Labor's side two right-wing Laborites who had threatened to risk the government's future by abstaining or even opposing the nationalization plans.

The vote was 310-306.

ON WHITE PAPER

The vote was not on legislation nationalizing the steel industry, but on a government white paper — a statement of intent — setting forth the Labor party's intention to nationalize by transferring steel company stocks to a government-owned National Steel Corporation.

* * *

Wilson's government now has to decide whether to introduce its steel bill next month as planned.

* * *

Some ministers, certain that the steel industry could offer no alternative proposals, said the bill will be brought in on schedule.

Other influential Laborites argued that no major industry could be expected to bring forward plans of such scope within a few days or even weeks. They predicted the whole issue will be shelved at least until October, when Commons returns from summer vacation.

14 GIANTS

Wilson's plan calls for nationalizing 14 giant steel corporations which control 90 per cent of Britain's production and employ 70 per cent of the industry's manpower.

* * *

Stockholders would be compensated with equal amounts of stock in NSC. The white paper said the price would be the average value of the steel shares between October 1959, and October 1964, or during the six-month period May-October 1964, whichever enjoyed the higher rating.

During debate Thursday night, Woodrow Wyatt, one of the Laborite rebels, argued for a takeover of 51 per cent of the stock of the major steel firms instead of 100 per cent.

This, he said, would be just as effective and less expensive.

OLD-FASHIONED

The other rebel, Desmond Donnelly, denounced total nationalization as old-fashioned and electorally unpopular. He asked for a takeover of a fraction of the industry.

* * *

As debate neared the 10 p.m. cutoff, Deputy Premier George Brown announced: "I am prepared to say that if the industry and its friends in the Tory (Conservative) party will come to us and say that they are prepared for the government to assume the control which my honorable friends (Wyatt and Donnelly) and I agree is essential, we will of course listen to what they have to say."

* * *

Wyatt immediately asked: "Does that mean that if the industry is prepared to come forward and concede the complete control on something less than 100 per cent, we will listen to them?"

Brown said it did, and the Labor victory was assured.

LONDON (AP) — A British expert on Communist affairs today reported signs of a split between Soviet party chieftain Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin.

Victor Zorza, writing in the Guardian, said the split concerns military policy, and the issue is whether Soviet rocket power has made large ground forces unnecessary.

★ ★ ★

He cited as evidence a passage in the party paper Pravda denouncing any suggestion that rocket weapons had taken precedence over ground troops. This suggestion, he said, had been promoted by Izvestia, the Soviet government paper.

"Pravda would not normally bother to publish an attack on Izvestia on this kind of issue unless it had reason to believe the paper was following a line laid down by officials more important than Izvestia's editor," Zarga wrote.

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China canceled today a long-standing deal for purchase of a $27-million plastic plant from Japan, charging that Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's government is treating it like an enemy.

The Nichibo Spinning Co. had made arrangements to finance the sale through the government-controlled bank.

★ ★ ★

The Japanese government repudiated the financing arrangement, which would have extended Peking a long-term credit at low interest.

LONDON (AP) — An unframed painting with a minimum price of $224 was sold at auction Thursday for $67,200.

★ ★ ★

Bonham's, the auctioneers, said the picture originally was entered for sale as the work of a little-known 18th century artist, but it actually was by George Stubbs, the great English painter of horses.

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shiina today described as "highly regrettable" testimony by high U.S. officials to a U.S. Senate committee that two major Japanese newspapers were infiltrated by Communists.

Shiina told a Parliament committee it appears both Undersecretary of State George W. Ball and the assistant secretary, Douglas MacArthur II, based their opinions on "old memories."

For Historical Project

Cash Birthday Gift for Truman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Harry S. Truman will be 81 years old Saturday and one of his gifts will be money — up to one million dollars. Twenty years ago he got a better present when in "a solemn and glorious hour" he announced the end of the war with Germany.

That was on the 26th day of his presidency, the day after he moved his family to the White House. He wrote his mother "I slept in the President's room" last night.

★ ★ ★

"This will be a historical day," he said. "At 9:00 o'clock this morning, I must make a broadcast to the country: Announcing the German surrender. The papers were signed yesterday morning and hostilities will cease on all fronts at midnight tonight. Isn't that some birthday present?"

Truman will be pleased with this year's present too. The money is for the project he cherishes most — the study by scholars of the office of the presidency, of the Truman administration and of Truman himself.

LETTER CAMPAIGN

Tom L. Evans, one of the former President's closest friends and treasurer of the Truman Library Institute Board, solicited the money in 70,000 letters. Evans says the response has been overwhelming, "contributions from $7,500 to 25 cents."

He'll announce the current total at the birthday luncheon attended each year by 100 or more of Truman's friends.

★ ★ ★

The luncheon, if tradition holds, will be the informal type Truman enjoys most, with short, affectionate speeches, a cheer by his World War I buddies and the singing of earthy parodies specially written for the occasion.

A white telephone has been installed at the head table for a call from President Johnson — another fixture at the gatherings. A green phone is there to receive calls from Chief Justice Earl Warren, comedian Jack Benny and other friends.

HEALTH POOR

This year's invitation said the luncheon will be briefer than usual because of Truman's health. He has not bounced back to his former vigor from a fall he suffered in his bathroom last October.

He still goes daily to his office in the Truman Library, six blocks from his century-old home. But he is driven there by Lt. Mike Westwood of the Independence Police Department who is his full-time escort.

★ ★ ★

When he is in Independence, Truman seldom takes walks any more. He saves that for his frequent visits to New York and Washington.

He and Mrs. Truman telephone their daughter Margaret, (Mrs. Clifton Daniel) and their three grandchildren almost every day.

★ ★ ★

His office hours vary from one to three hours daily — starting about 8 a.m. when he returns home, his arms are loaded with mail. Public appearances have been trimmed to a minimum.

Work to Better Humanity--Ike

Issues Statement on V-E Day Anniversary

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, on the 20th anniversary of World War II victory in Europe, called upon mankind today to rededicate itself to the advancement of humanity rather than its destruction.

The five-star general who led the invasion that brought an end to European hostilities, and later served his country as president through eight years of relative peace, issued an anniversary statement from his farm home near Gettysburg.

★ ★ ★

Eisenhower's comments came on the eve of the actual cessation of hostilities in 1945.

The former president's statement said:

"May 8, 1945, saw the end in Europe of the devastating war that had begun in the late summer of 1939, and involved practically the whole of the European area.

NEW HOPES

"With Hitler and his cruel practices swept away, the victory on V-E Day inspired new hopes in weary and terror-stricken populations for some assurance that governments would find a way to eliminate the possibility of future war.

"In an effort to give realization to these hopes, a number of governments cooperated in the founding of the United Nations organization and for a time there seemed to grow and flourish a promise of an enduring and just peace.

★ ★ ★

"But soon disappointments ensued; mankind again began to experience the uneasiness and tensions that always accompany every threat to general peace.

"On this 20th anniversary of V-E Day, it would seem that all of us — every private citizen and governmental official throughout the world — should unite in renewing our faith and reenforcing our determination that the intellect of man will concern itself more with humanity's advancement than its destruction.

FRIGHTFUL WEAPONS

"If all the powerful nations of the world could, with real confidence in each other, forego the production and maintenance of the frightful weapons of war, and devote their attention to betterment of their respective populations, then happiness would soon supplant poverty and misery; confidence would replace fear and tension everywhere.

★ ★ ★

"Though such idealistic purposes will not soon be realized, it is certain that V-E Day is a fitting occasion on which to resolve, anew, that these goals will never be lost to our sight."

Seek Safety Law for Carnival Rides

LANSING (AP) — The death of three children as the result of a carnival ride breakdown in a Taylor Township shopping center last month has prompted two suburban lawmakers to introduce legislation to make such rides subject to state inspection.

★ ★ ★

Democratic Reps. Daniel Cooper of Oak Park, and Albert Sheridan of Taylor Township sponsored an amendment that would require State Labor Department approval of safety devices on all such rides.

Under terms of their amendment, the department also would be entitled to suspend their operation until regulations were complied with.

The First World War

The Bottom of the War: 25

Written By PHILIP VAN DOREN STERN for Newspaper Enterprise Association Illustrated By John Lane

By the end of 1915, Russian, German, French and other countries' losses on the battlefield were enormous, but there was no accurate count of them.

The British, who kept careful records, had 549,467 casualties, of whom 128,138 were dead.

In all these nations, near-young men were being wiped out. Some of the few survivors were to continue their existence as mutilated creatures who could never again lead full lives.

When the year drew to a close, 145 Allied divisions faced 100 German divisions along the Western Front. Despite their inferior numbers, the Germans were preparing to launch a tremendous assault on the French forts around Verdun.

* * *

This appalling blood-bath was to be followed by the equally murderous battles of the Somme.

DOMINATING IDEA

The idea of making a successful breakthrough still dominated the military mind.

Trained in obsolete tactics and bound by tradition to the strategy of past wars, it ould not comprehend the simple fact that barbed wire, machine guns and long-range artillery had made defense far more effective than offense.

Hundreds of thousands of lives were being sacrificed to bring these old-line officers' education up to date.

* * *

One of them, Gen. Douglas Haig, replaced Gen. John French as head of the British expeditionary forces in December 1915.

A military historian who knew Haig said that the new commander was convinced that the decisive blow could be delivered only by cavalry—as it had been in the past.

And that "of the newer arms Haig could grasp nothing because history could tell him nothing" about them. But this conventional horse-soldier was in a position to determine strategy in a machine-dominated conflict.

Commanders who had enthusiastically adopted the new weapons, however, did not yet realize that they had limitations.

When Gen. Falkenhayn planned the German assault on Verdun, he brought up enough heavy artillery to bombard the field so thoroughly, that, in theory, no one would be alive there to resist his infantry advance.

PLENTY LEFT

But there were plenty of French soldiers left to mow down his troops, which they did.

But what was being planned at headquarters during the winter meant little to the men crouching in the trenches. They were mercifully spared from knowing anything about the horror that 1916 held in store.

To them the war was already unceasing misery from which the hospital or the grave were the only escapes.

The bullet was no longer their chief enemy; far worse were rain, snow, dampness, cold and day after day of existence without hope.

WILL TO LIVE

Only the blind, unthinking desire to survive kept them going.

The human mind is so resilient that it is able to forget suffering and even joke about things that would be intolerable in better times.

Photographs of mud-covered soldiers going about their business under conditions that seem unbelievable to civilians often show them smiling and laughing.

* * *

Humor sometimes masks feelings that are too terrible to reveal.

* * *

When 1915 ended, a soldier in the trenches needed laughter as a substitute for despair.

1,500 Are Quizzed in Slaying of Clown

NEW YORK (AP) — Questioning of some 1,500 persons, including prostitutes, thieves and badger game operators, has given police three definite leads in the mystery slaying of famed circus clown Paul Jung.

★ ★ ★

"We are optimistic that we will eventually break the case," chief of detectives Philip J. Walsh told newsmen Thursday. He described the leads as "quite substantial."

★ ★ ★

Walsh said detectives are trying to track down a person who "is running" and also are attempting to contact a second person here who is not running. He declined to say even whether they are men or women.

The third lead, he said, concerned "physical evidence that will help in the solution."

BLUNT INSTRUMENT

Walsh again refused to describe the blunt instrument that was found near the bludgeon body of Jung, chief clown of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus. He disclosed, however, that it was hotel property.

Jung, 64, who delighted circus fans for three decades, was found slain April 21 in his midtown hotel room. His face and head were beaten, and his hands were tied behind his back.

★ ★ ★

Among those questioned, Walsh said, were 233 permanent and transient guests at the hotel, including longshoremen who stay there. This led in turn to the waterfront, where dock workers and seafarers, who sometimes work for the circus, were quizzed.

Also questioned were 264 persons with the circus, from top executives to roustabouts.

125 HOTELS

The investigation thus far has taken detectives to 125 hotels and rooming houses in New York and to five major cities along the East Coast from Florida to New England.

A bell captain came upon Jung's body after he failed to appear at the circus, one block away at Madison Square Garden. Only 45 minutes before the discovery, an Easter week morning performance of the circus had begun.

About the time the body was discovered, an audience of more than 18,000 was roaring approval of a Jung production, "The Fire House." A substitute had taken Jung's place inside the "burning house."

Governments Closing Gaps?

That Was Impression Mayor Got in D. C.

The bureaucratic gap between local government and the giant federal government may be closing under President Johnson's Great Society administration.

★ ★ ★

This, at least, was the impression that Pontiac's nonpartisan mayor William H. Taylor Jr. returned with after attending a conference for mayors in Washington, D. C.

Mayor Taylor returned yesterday from a Vice President's Conference of Mayors with two impressions.

First, he said he was impressed by the cleanliness of Washington.

★ ★ ★

Noting Pontiac's pending cleanup effort, Taylor said that the Johnson administration appears sincere in its effort to beautify America.

QUOTES HUMPHREY

Quoting Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey on beautification, Taylor said, "If we don't do this, we will be crawling out from under the garbage in many of our cities."

Taylor's second impression was that the administration sincerely wants to bridge the gap between the federal government and local mayors.

He noted that three of President Johnson's cabinet officers are former mayors.

★ ★ ★

Taylor said the vice president encouraged the 200 mayors at the conference to consult directly with the cabinet secretaries when "red tape" problems develop.

THEY ARE SINCERE

"I was impressed; I think they are sincere," Taylor commented.

"They didn't give us double-talk speeches," he added, "but were willing to sit down with us and talk over problems."

The afternoon conference for medium-sized cities literally got down to shirt-sleeves in the discussion of urban problems, said Taylor.

★ ★ ★

The mayor participated in the second of a series of three meetings scheduled for mayors. A third conference is slated for mayors of cities of 15,000 to 50,000 population.

SIMILAR CONFERENCES

Similar Washington conferences are being planned for city managers and county officials.

Regional meetings are also being set up, according to Taylor, to discuss city problems.

Wartime Benefits for GI Families

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The families of servicemen killed in Viet Nam or the Dominican Republic will receive survivors' benefits on a wartime basis, Defense and Veterans Administration officials said today.

Their interpretation of the law governing casualties in the two areas also applies to wounded servicemen, who are eligible for disability payments ranging from $20 to $250 a month in most cases.

This is 25 per cent higher than benefits allowed for servicemen in ordinary peacetime accidents.

For widows of men killed in action, the rates of benefit payments are the same as in peacetime, but on a wartime basis the money is paid whether or not the survivors are in need when the benefit is due.

★ ★ ★

The payment—$120 a month, plus 12 per cent of the serviceman's base pay, plus additional allowances for more than one child—is paid during peacetime only in cases where the widow's income is less than $3,000 a year if she has children. If she has none, it is $1,800.

OTHER BENEFITS

Other benefits, including a lump sum equal to six months of the serviceman's base pay, are made to survivors regardless of whether the death was on peacetime or wartime duty.

Benefits for orphans, for parents where they were dependent, and for burial expenses are also the same.

The law making possible wartime allowances when a war has not been declared is known as the "Cold War Benefits Act," passed in 1957.

★ ★ ★

It provides wartime rates for death or injury "in line of duty as a direct result of armed conflict or while engaged in extra-hazardous duty under conditions simulating war."

NOW EXTENDED

The interpretation now extended to Marines and paratroopers in the Dominican Republic was put in effect some time ago for the casualties in Viet Nam, for survivors of the 129 victims lost when the nuclear-powered submarine Thresher went down, and for survivors of many victims of aircrashes and other accidents who were under orders and engaged on "extra-hazardous" duty.

Says Segregationist

'Speakers Pressured'

BOGALUSA, La. (UPI) — A segregation leader charged today two principal speakers scheduled to address a white rally were pressured into withdrawing by state and city officials.

★ ★ ★

Dewey Smith, a spokesman for the United Conservatives of Washington Parish (county), said pressure from Gov. John J. McKeithen and Bogalusa Mayor Jesse Cutrer caused Selma County, Ala., sheriff Jim Clark and Louisiana segregationist leader Leander H. Perez Sr. to cancel their appearances.

Clark announced yesterday he would not speak tonight. Perez withdrew the day before.

The Selma sheriff said he understood McKeithen did not favor the rally, even though he respected the right of white people to gather.

★ ★ ★

Clark said he did not want to go against the governor's wishes. And he said he did not know enough about the sponsoring organization, the conservative group.

HAS DOUBTS

In view of the withdrawal of Perez, "I've got my doubts about who really is behind this thing," said Clark.

McKeithen said Wednesday he would like to see the planned march and rally postponed or moved to another city. Cutrer echoed his sentiments.

Perez withdrew a short time later, saying the time of the meeting was "inopportune."

The march and rally were planned in retaliation against a series of Negro demonstrations here since early April.

10,000 EXPECTED

Smith said his organization had expected 10,000 persons to participate.

"We hope the temporary setbacks handed us by the governor and the mayor will not have an effect on our supporters," said Smith.

He said there would be other speakers, but their names would not be announced.

"We don't want to subject any more of our guests to pressure from the capital or city hall," he said.

Mrs. L. L. Humphreys of Hattiesburg, Miss., widow of a constable slain by a Negro gunman last month, was to be guest of honor at the rally.

Syracuse Calm

Reverse Freedom Trip Called a Flop

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — This city of 220,000, which has seen little serious racial strife, appeared to be taking a small group of freedom-riding guests in stride — and its mayor said the demonstration has been a "complete and dismal fiasco."

With the exception of brief picketing of pickets and a rally heckler, Syracuse has all but ignored 22 Negroes who arrived here Wednesday from Selma, Ala., in a so-called reverse freedom ride.

The trip, sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, was designed, according to CORE, to call attention to "Northern hypocrisy." The riders, who plan to stay about 10 days, also joined local CORE members in their two-month-long picketing of Niagara Mohawk Power Corp.

CORE claims the sprawling utility, which supplies gas and electric power to most of Upstate New York, is discriminatory in its hiring policies. The company has denied the charge.

OUT OF TOWN

Mayor William Walsh, who said earlier that the riders were welcome, was out of town when the chartered bus arrived.

James Farmer, national director of CORE, met the group, and after a seven-block march to a downtown square spoke to about 1,500 persons. In his talk, he commented that the mayor had slipped out of town.

Walsh announced Thursday that he had long planned a trip to Connecticut Wednesday and was not informed of Farmer's plans.

He added: "Mr. Farmer has reason to be disappointed, but only by reason of the fact that he was ignored by the citizens of this community. His much heralded 'march on Syracuse' was a complete and dismal fiasco."

The riders joined in picketing the Niagara Mohawk headquarters Thursday and for a while were picketed themselves by 10 white students from Syracuse University. The students said they were members of the Society for the Prevention of Negroes Getting Everything.

BRIEF VIGIL

Later, the CORE members staged a brief "vigil" at the Public Safety Building where John McDowell, 23, executive secretary of Syracuse CORE has been in jail since April 26.

McDowell was arrested during a sit-in at a building CORE leaders and Niagara Mohawk were using for negotiations on the hiring situation.

Since his arrest, McDowell has refused bail and has been waging a hunger strike.

More than 20 arrests have been made since CORE began demonstrating at Niagara Mohawk March 8. Most have stemmed from sit-ins. Nine were arrested April 8, when a group chained themselves under an automobile in the company's driveway.

Nikita Suffering Strangest Soviet Fate

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is suffering the strangest fate of any fallen Soviet leader.

The one-time ruler of "all the Russians" has become the man that never was.

He is the first complete "unperson" of that stature since the Russian Revolution.

Khrushchev's name has been assiduously omitted from the press and erased from new editions of history books in which it figured prominently in earlier editions published before his ouster last Oct. 15.

* * *

Khrushchev has been criticized obliquely by reference to some of his policies and style of government, but never by name.

APRIL 17

The authorities have gone to the length of requesting owners of desk calendars to remove the page dated April 17 which carried a notation of Khrushchev's birthday.

Stalin's birthday, Dec. 21, is by contrast, still noted on desk calendars.

Other Soviet leaders from Leon Trotsky to former Premier Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov have been disgraced and discredited. Some of them have been branded as "criminals."

But their names still occur in Soviet print occasionally even if only negatively.

* * *

The young generation of Russians studying their national history may never learn that Trotsky was once founding father Lenin's righthand man that he was the first Soviet foreign minister and defense commissar.

TROTSKY 'EXISTED'

But they know he existed, that he was not a "good Bolshevik" and are told that he opposed the Communist party on many issues.

Stalin may have become a fighting word in the Russian vocabulary He is to some extent a forgotten though not a forgiven man, but he has not been entirely eliminated from public print.

Only a few days ago, Deputy Defense Minister Marshal Ivan Bagramyan told a Soviet newspaper that Stalin, though responsible for the Red Army's early wartime reverses, was not the sole culprit and that others around him shared that guilt.

Zhukov has never been obliterated from Soviet writings.

NAME IN PRINT

His name has appeared in all books and many articles on the last war and he is occasionally mentioned in the press. And Zhukov is expected to join the company of wartime commanders in the Red Square parade Sunday marking the 20th anniversary of victory.

For years after their expulsion from office in 1957, former Premiers Molotov and Malenkov were denounced and vilified in the Soviet press and were never entirely forgotten.

Not so with Khrushchev. Mum is the word on him.

* * *

To the Soviet citizen just beginning to read newspapers, it must appear that Khrushchev has never existed.

VISIT THEATERS

Masses of Russians are even ignorant of what every Western newspaper reader knows — that the former premier and his wife have made a number of visits recently to Moscow's art galleries and theaters.

* * *

This strange silence on Khrushchev may be only temporary. It is possible that his successors will maintain this blackout until a policy decision is made on exactly what role to ascribe to him in official Soviet history.

Until then he is an "unperson."

NCA Flights Show Boost in Patronage

Outbound North Central Airlines (NCA) flights carried 23 passengers from Pontiac Municipal Airport last month.

* * *

This was an increase from March patronage of 16 outbound riders.

Inbound flights brought in 24 passengers in April, up slightly from March's 20 riders.

NCA flights to date have carried 81 outbound and 82 inbound passengers, compared to 78 outbound and 50 inbound riders during the same period last year.

* * *

Departing flights hauled 1,006 pounds of airmail in April, up from the 794 pounds in March. Inbound airmail totaled 2,033 pounds last month, compared to 2,015 in March.

AIR EXPRESS

Air express poundage totaled 349 on outbound NCA flights in April, while inbound air express was 258 pounds.

In March, NCA carriers carted 1,116 pounds of outbound air express and only five pounds inbound.

Air freight totaled 806 pounds on outbound flights in April, compared to 806 in March, while inbound freight totaled 3,786 pounds to 2,850 pounds in March.

Return of War Hero Speculated

V-E Day Events May Show Rising Influence of Soviet Military

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Moscow's celebration this weekend of the 20th anniversary of V-E Day may produce evidence of growing influence of the military leaders on Soviet politics and even a trace of strain between armed forces leaders and Communist party civilians.

★ ★ ★

If this turns out to be the case, it could have important impact on the development and conduct of Soviet foreign policy.

For several months there have been indications that the V-E Day events would produce the reappearance in public, in a place of honor, of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, hero of Berlin. He has been in eclipse since 1957, when Nikita S. Khrushchev repaid his help in defeating the "antiparty group" by firing him as defense minister and disgracing him.

There has been speculation that Zhukov might march at the head of a V-E Day military parade along with other aging marshals who led Soviet troops to victory, men like Vasily Sokolovsky, Konstantin Rokossovsky and Ivan S. Konev.

News Analysis

PARTY CONTROL

This would indicate pressure from career military men, as opposed to the political officers whom the Communist party charges with insuring its overall control of the armed forces. The aging marshals who were heroes 20 years ago no longer may hold active command positions, but they doubtless influence those who do.

Khrushchev's departure resulted in a new distribution of political power at the top in the Kremlin. Once again it was a "collective leadership" in which no one man alone held the reins of power. This was the case 12 years ago after Stalin died. As it did then, the situation seems again to have prompted career military men to express annoyance with party interference in strictly armed forces affairs.

★ ★ ★

Stalin rebuked Zhukov for objecting to the political commissar system letting a party officer override decisions of a command officer. Under Khrushchev, the marshal seemed to make headway. Khrushchev made him a full member of the party Presidium. But he was a nuisance, and Khrushchev soon got rid of him.

Again today, under a collective leadership, career officers seem restive. This time, civilian leaders seem to compromise. The party now is appointing, in some cases, career military men to Communist positions.

SIGNS OF CONCESSIONS

There are signs of concessions by both sides. The army goes along with the idea of party control if its objections to the more unpleasant aspects of the system are take into consideration. The party meets the objections insofar as there is no reflection on over-all party authority.

The career men also seem to want to remove distortions and exaggerations of history promulgated under Khrushchev, when all the repressions, blunders and setbacks of the war were laid to Stalin's "cult of personality," while the party as such was absolved of all blame.

The pressure is not to reestablish Stalin as a hero, but to put matters back into focus and give credit for success of Soviet arms where credit is due.

★ ★ ★

It all may add up to a more authoritative voice for the military. This could mean revision of Khrushchev policies, including heavy reliance on nuclear deterrents to permit cutbacks in military expenses and more investment in the domestic economy. It could mean more attention to the insistence of some military leaders that preparations be made for a possible protracted war without nuclear weapons.

This could have impact on foreign policy planning, with respect to the potential for political gain through the existence of massive conventional land forces in a time of nuclear stalemate.

Patronage Dip on City Buses

Spring temperatures, which settled on Pontiac last month, may have been a factor in a drop in patronage experienced on Pontiac Transit Corp. bus runs in April.

The Easter recess at area schools also reduced passenger totals last month.

Company officials reported a total of 69,042 passengers in April, down from March's 81,182 riders and 77,294 in April a year ago.

Revenue also slumped last month to $17,383, which was down from $19,399 in March. However, this was higher than the $16,382 netted in April a year ago.

★ ★ ★

Adult fares were increased last fall, which accounts for the gain in revenue while passenger totals dropped.

TOTAL NUMBER

During the first four months of 1965, the total number of passengers is down to 281,197 from 296,006 for the same period last year.

Meantime, revenue for the first four months is up to $68,686 from last year's $65,457.

MSU Students March to Protest U.S. Viet Policy

LANSING (AP)—In a demonstration against U.S. policy in Viet Nam 42 Michigan State University students marched five miles Thursday from the MSU campus to the State Capitol Building.

The group, denied permission to march in the street, stayed on sidewalks as about 40 Lansing policemen kept watch at various stages of the march. Some onlookers heckled the marchers, but there were no incidents.

★ ★ ★

In front of the Capitol, four House and Senate page boys joined the procession with a banner saying: "we support LBJ." They paraded briefly to show support for President Lyndon Johnson's Viet Nam policy.

Election Drawing Closer

By PATT GENEREAUX

Students of Dominican Academy are preparing for the coming student council election.

Next week will be campaign week for the 1965-66 officers. Election signs, buttons and soapbox speeches will take over the campus.

All students of the Dominican Academy will be eligible to vote. Positions open are president, which must be filled by a senior; vice president, filled by a junior; treasurer and secretary, filled by either a sophomore or junior.

The students must have at least a C average, and have a good personal record in character and courtesy.

★ ★ ★

Those seeking candidacy must be students at Dominican Academy for 2 years, and be at present, juniors or sophomores.

Honorary members, requested only by student council officers and faculty members, will be elected next school year.

Positions open will be alumni secretary and corresponding secretary, with the same requirements as the other officers.

The student council shall have all the powers necessary to carry out its functions, as long as they do not conflict with any rules, regulations, or policies of the school.

★ ★ ★

A member of the council may be expelled for failing to perform duties, or for bringing disgrace upon the Academy.

When charges have been brought against a member, student council officers discuss the case and report their decision to the student body. The council rules by a simple majority.

Study Made of Women as Murderesses

NEW YORK (AP) — Those masculine critics who are forever lamenting the inconsistency of the other sex should ponder a college study of the woman murderer.

Women behave like women even in their crimes, says an article in the current "University Woman" of Fairleigh Dickenson University. She murders in a manner consistent with her role in today's society . . . and that's about as consistent as you can get.

★ ★ ★

The article by Patricia Turner of the "University Woman" staff and Charles Siegel, a sociology student, is included in the publication's over all look at "The Ills of Modern Woman."

The woman who murders, says the student researchers, is very different from the male murder, and her womanly characteristics show up in the motives, methods and choice of victims.

★ ★ ★

"As a murderer," they say, "she reflects the roles she performs as mother, lover, housekeeper, shopper, cook and nurse. However, she characteristically has difficulty in coping with the demands of her female responsibility."

Although men are arrested for murder nearly five times as often as women, the gap is narrowing as women are thrust more into the economic and political arena.

★ ★ ★

In 1933, 91 per cent of arrests for murder were male, 9 per cent, female. By 1962, 17 per cent of all arrests for murder were female. And, suggest the authors, women are getting away with a lot more than ax laid at their doorstep. Culturally women are kept at home and protected, their crimes are undercover to a much greater degree than are men's.

★ ★ ★

The American system of justice is more lenient with women, the article points out, with only 31 women included in the 3,666 murderers executed between 1930 and 1939.

WHICH ONE?

Who is the woman murderer? Say the researchers:

"She usually becomes delinquent at a later age than her male counterpart. She has usually been married at least once, but the chance of marital failure is greater for her than for the rest of the population."

★ ★ ★

Her victim commonly has threatened her security within the home. It's traditionally a husband or child.

Husbands, when their demise is premeditated, usually succumb to poison carefully administered over a period of time. Arsenic is the favored poison because it can be purchased so easily as part of a housewife's shopping and disguised so easily in food.

SOCIAL ROLE

"The use of poison," says the article, "correlates with the woman's social role as shopper, cook and nurse, in which she is not often suspected of wrongdoing."

★ ★ ★

Of course, if she becomes enraged during a quarrel she will pick up the best weapon at hand, a gun if there's one in the house. If not, right there in the kitchen is always the homemaker's indispensable tool, the knife.

Women kill their children almost exclusively because "they are unable to cope with their responsibilities as child bearer and rearer."

★ ★ ★

Most frequent target is the illegitimate child, either because the mother can't or doesn't want to care for the child or because she fears society's disapproval.

"Some social scientists feel that as birth control practices become more prevalent, and fewer illegitimate babies are born, the incidence of infanticide will be decreased," says the article.

As for motives, humiliation, jealousy, frustration and emotional sensitivity are frequently observed, say the researchers.

One analyst, they point out, says that nine out of 10 times the impulse stems from that little recognized emotion that "is one of the strongest forces in the world — boredom." That, of course, would mostly apply to the husband as victim, say the college students.

"The criminal woman," sums up the article, "is greatly influenced by her social roles. Yet, paradoxically, our society's conception of the woman's social role may actually protect her from the discovery of her crime and subsequent conviction."

Call of the Wild Is Heard in Town

CHICAGO (AP) — Animals ranging from wildcats to opossums are being forced by exploding suburbs to take up city living. Some even hitchhike into town.

It's becoming a problem and it's going to get worse, says the managing director of Chicago's anticruelty society.

"What's happening in Chicago is happening in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit and on west," Director J. J. Shaffer said today. "It's been going on for years, ever since the suburban building boom began.

"Wednesday, a fox got loose on the northwest side. People just panicked. They thought something awful was about to happen."

The fox led five policemen on a 1½-hour chase through alleys and onto rooftops before it was trapped and shot.

It shouldn't have been shot, Shaffer said.

SHY ANIMAL

"The fox is normally shy and retiring," Shaffer said in an interview. "He may be a demon after chickens, but he won't bother a human being unless he is cornered."

Build a split-level ranch house on his burrow or near his nest or thicket and an animal must seek new living space.

Sometimes animals hitchhike, Shaffer recalled how a wildcat, native to the Pacific Northwest, terrorized a Chicago neighborhood several years ago.

"Nobody knows where it came from," he said, "but the theory is that it hopped a freight."

Not all wild animals run from humans.

"A guy goes out in his alley, lifts the garbage can lid and suddenly he sees this big gray hulk and two beady eyes," Shaffer said. "He's not looking at a rabid animal—he's looking at a hungry opossum."

If city dwellers would understand that such creatures almost never intend harm, he said, there would be fewer police complaints and more neighborhood peace.

Asks Help of Execs on School Plan

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney asked the Michigan Manufacturers' Association Thursday to support plans for increased coordination among the 10 state-supported colleges and universities.

★ ★ ★

The plan's first major test, Romney said, is coming in Flint where the University of Michigan is going ahead with plans to expand its branch campus to a four-year operation despite recommendations by the State Board of Education.

★ ★ ★

"The State Board tells me such an institution in Flint would be inadequate and would upset centralized control of higher education in the state," he said.

"Higher education long has lacked adequate planning in Michigan and is now one of the areas in need of greatest reform," the governor added in a speech to the association's membership meeting.

MUSKEGON EXEC

The group elected as its president R. L. Lindland, president of Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry Co., Muskegon.

Other officers elected included W. M. DeFoe, chairman of the DeFoe Shipbuilding Co., Bay City, first vice president; F. C. Bowers, president of United States Register Co., Battle Creek, second vice president, and Edward K. Ellsworth, vice president of Motor Wheel Corp., Lansing, third vice president.

NO ILLUSION — With a group of magicians on hand in the opening day parade, the 1965 New York World's Fair got off to a magical start. Camera fans should find it's no trick to get interesting pictures at the fair with so much colorful subject matter available.

Big School Bill Due Out of Committee

LANSING (AP)—A bill to increase state school aid by $91 million was due to come out of a House committee today — while majority Democrats indicated the increase would be whittled to $50 million or $60 million before it reached Gov. George Romney's desk.

★ ★ ★

The final figure would represent a compromise between Romney's 1965-66 budget recommendations and those of retiring State School Superintendent Lynn Bartlett, which were endorsed by the new State Board of Education.

Romney recommended an increase from $381 million this year to about $411 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

★ ★ ★

The House bill, introduced by Rep. Mrs. Lucille McCollough, D-Dearborn, has bipartisan support.

STATE REVENUES

The size of the increase, of course, will be pegged on anticipated state revenues in the coming fiscal year. And the revenues are rising in direct ratio to a state economy that continues to skyrocket.

★ ★ ★

Rep. J. Bob Traxler, D-Bay City, majority floor leader, has pointed out that the economy continues to boom, pouring funds into the State Treasury at a rate that was not anticipated even a few months ago.

★ ★ ★

Some Democrats are saying now that tax receipts for general spending in the coming fiscal year may run as much as $50 million ahead of what Romney anticipated in preparing his budget for 1965-66.

★ ★ ★

However, like Romney, they are unwilling to tap much of the anticipated $104 million surplus expected in the general fund treasury on June 31. Like Romney, they maintain that due to normal growth rates, the surplus will be eaten up in the next few years.

ON INCREASE

Automobile sales — regarded as both an accurate barometer and the pace-setter of the Michigan economy—continue to increase.

Secretary of State James Hare reports an "astounding" 238,000 new and used cars were titled in the state in April — 30,000 more than the previous record month, May, 1963.

★ ★ ★

The House bill is due to be sent immediately to the ways and means committee where the cost factors will receive a much closer look.

A Paradise for Pictures

AP Newsfeatures
By IRVING DESFOR

Opening day of the World's Fair was an exciting photogenic event.

★ ★ ★

Pleasant weather, friendly multitudes, spruced-up grounds and refurbished pavilions, endless activities amid flashing, gay colors, the around-the-world costumes and out-of-this-world architecture.

It all pointed to endless subject matter for millions of cameras for this final season.

With so much interesting picture material available, why do so many photo fans wind up with inadequate pictures?

★ ★ ★

I discussed this matter recently with Chester Burger, an avid amateur photographer who set a record at the fair last year.

PERSONAL VISIT

He personally visited and took pictures of, or in, every one of the 148 pavilions, exposing 53 rolls of 36-exposure color films. He was thus able to compile a "World's Fair Picture-Taking and Exposure Guide" which appeared in the April issue of Popular Photography magazine.

"It's impossible to 'shoot the fair' completely on one, two or even a number of visits," Burger said.

"But what you can do, even on a single visit, is to picture a theme. Take national costumes, for instance, or architecture or the different water displays.

★ ★ ★

Whatever your interest is or whatever you want to remember of the fair, concentrate on that subject and make it a picture story.

EYE FEATURES

"On your visits to any of the buildings, think of its outstanding feature or characteristic. That is what you should picture."

Take the New York State Pavilion for example. If you haven't included the colorful roof, you've omitted a key element of the building. Sometimes it's easy to overlook the obvious because we take it for granted.

"To simplify equipment, I'd recommend using only one type of high-speed film which will enable you to shoot indoors as well as outdoors. High Speed Anscochrome has a daylight rating of ASA 200.

★ ★ ★

I used High Speed Ektachrome with an ASA speed of 160 daylight and was able to shoot most indoor pictures at 1/25th at f/2.8. Flash is prohibited inside some pavilions."

OPEN STOP

If you do bring flash equipment, open up one stop on most indoor shooting because of the big, dark interiors.

"Instead of flash, I prefer shooting natural-light time exposures where possible. This calls for a tripod which, I realize, is a troublesome prop for most camera fans to carry.

"You can improvise by setting the camera on a wall or bench or other firm support. Some of the best shots can be made at dusk at an exposure of about one-half second with the lens wide open."

★ ★ ★

There is still enough light by the setting sun to outline the buildings and have color in the sky while street and building lights add a warm glow.

START EARLY

"To beat the long lines at the most popular pavilions, start early in the morning. If you're there by 9:30 a.m. you'll get in easily."

After that, avoid the long-line attractions until early evening between 5 and 7 p.m. It's dinner time for most people and the evening crowd hasn't come yet.

"Don't hesitate to ask people in costume in the foreign pavilions to be a part of your pictures. You'll find that they welcome the request and that it's really part of their public relations job."

★ ★ ★

But don't pose them wooden-Indian style facing the camera. Have them showing members of your party something of interest in the pavilion.

BE PREPARED

"Be prepared for spur-of-the-moment pictures. Have your camera preset for the prevailing light and focused at 15 feet so that you can point and shoot instantly."

★ ★ ★

When entering a pavilion, change the speed and lens opening for indoor shooting. Carry a small penlight for adjusting settings indoors conveniently, if necessary."

Chester Burger's suggestions can be helpful not only for the New York World's Fair but for other fairs, carnivals, sports attractions or vacation visits. They should result in a more interesting, more spontaneous, more rounded picture story.

The first baseball team to go to Florida for spring training was the Washington Senators. They began the practice 77 years ago in 1888 at Jacksonville.

Germany in Turmoil—4

Last Nazi Thrusts Proved Beginning of End for Hitler

By JOHN BAUSMAN

BERLIN (AP) — The fall of France in June 1940 left Hitler free to choose another victim.

At first he set his sights on Britain and made elaborate plans for "Operation Sea Lion," the German invasion of England. But an essential condition was air superiority, a goal that Hermann Goering's Luftwaffe was never able to establish over Britain.

★ ★ ★

The Battle of Britain raged in the skies throughout the second half of 1940. The British pilots, who gradually turned the balance of air losses in their favor, were the first force to check Hitler's advance.

But the Nazi dictator by this time had set his sights on the Soviet Union with whom he had signed a 10-year nonaggression pact only 22 months before. It was to be a land campaign of unprecedented dimensions and fired the imagination of the Fuehrer.

SECURED FLANK

To prepare for the campaign, Hitler secured his Balkan flank by taking Yugoslavia in April of 1941 and then Greece, which had successfully resisted an Italian invasion six months earlier.

On June 22, 1941, Hitler unleashed 3½ million men in a three-pronged attack on Russia. At first all went so smoothly that an elated Hitler was counting on victory in a matter of weeks.

★ ★ ★

But while Hitler declared the Soviet Union had been "struck down, never to rise again," the Russians were putting up increasingly strong resistance.

Hitler's dream that the "whole rotten structures" of the Soviet Union would collapse proved unfounded. His mobile armies bogged down in mud and the harsh winter slowed the blitzkrieg to a crawl.

HAD PRIORITY

The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, brought the United States into the war against the Axis. And while the United States kept up its fight in the Pacific, it agreed with its British and Russian allies that the defeat of Nazi Germany had priority.

★ ★ ★

The year of 1942 saw Nazi dominion reach its peak. The summer campaign into southern Russia added new territory and in North Africa, Gen. Erwin Rommel, whose Afrika Korps had come to the aid of the Italians in early 1941, threatened the British at El Alamein.

★ ★ ★

But these last thrusts were deceptive. They tested the limits of Nazi strength and it proved to be the end. Rommel was forced into retreat by the British in October and the campaign in southern Russia brought bitter defeat at Stalingrad. The tide was turned.

★ ★ ★

In November 1942, the Americans and British landed in North Africa and by the following spring had wiped out the Axis forces there. The Nazis launched another summer offensive in Russia in 1943, but the Soviets blocked them.

MASSIVE BOMBINGS

The Allies stepped up massive bombings of German cities throughout 1943. In July the American, British and Canadians invaded Sicily and in September, Italy proper.

The approaching defeat only seemed to spur Hitler and his more warped aides in their fiendish projects to kill off all Jews and enemies of the Reich.

★ ★ ★

In 1944, when the Western Allies had landed in France and Russia was rolling back the eastern front, the SS was burning 6,000 or more bodies a day at Auschwitz alone. In June of that year, the month of the Allied landing in Normandy, more than a quarter of a million Hungarian Jews alone were put to death at Auschwitz.

★ ★ ★

Nazi fury reached a peak on July 20, 1944, when a small group of officers, hoping to save Germany from destruction by getting rid of Hitler, attempted to assassinate the Fuehrer at his headquarters, the "Wolf's Lair," at Rastenburg in East Prussia. The attempt failed and hundreds of persons, including 21 officers of high rank, died in the purge that followed.

REFUSED TO YIELD

The outcome of the war could no longer be denied. But Hitler refused to give up. In December 1944, he launched a final offensive against the Western Allies, calling up boys and old men to strengthen his forces in defense of the Reich. It proved only a temporary halt on the road to final defeat.

★ ★ ★

On May 1 the official German radio announced that Hitler had died "fighting to the last breath against Bolshevism." It is now generally accepted that he had committed suicide on April 30 in his Berlin bunker with his longtime mistress and bride of one day, Eva Braun, at his side. Their bodies were carried to the garden and burned. The encircling Russian troops were only a block away.

★ ★ ★

On May 7, Gen. Alfred Jodl, chief of operation for the armed forces high command, signed the unconditional surrender of Germany at the instruction of Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, Hitler's designated successor.

In a little over 12 years the thousand-year Reich had come to an end. The Allies were to write another chapter to its history in the war crimes trials held at Nuernberg the following year.

COMMIT SUICIDE

Joseph Goebbels, the minister of propaganda, escaped Allied hands by committing suicide the day after Hitler did. Heinrich Himmler, head of the SS, managed to commit suicide after his arrest by the British.

★ ★ ★

But the Allies tried and condemned to death Hermann Goering, No. 2 man under Hitler; Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop; Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel; Dr. Ernst Kaltenbrunner, last chief of the SS security service; Alfred Rosenberg, the Nazi party "philosopher;" Hans Frank, governor of occupied Poland; Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of interior; Julius Streicher, Nazi publicist and Jew-baiter; Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the Austrian quisling and Nazi governor of Holland; Fritz Sauckel, head of the slave labor program, and Gen. Jodl.

★ ★ ★

All were hanged except Goering who took poison two hours before he was to mount the gallows.

ONLY THE START

The international tribunal at Nuernberg was only the start of the course of justice trying to catch up with the criminal Nazi regime.

Liberated countries in both Eastern and Western Europe caught and condemned their own collaborators and German tormentors.

★ ★ ★

The Allied occupation authorities separately tried and convicted thousands more. And Germany itself, 20 years after the war, still was conducting war crimes trials.

ART WORK GATHERS DUST — Twenty years after the collapse of the German Reich, a collection of Nazi art gathering dust in a Richmond, Va., warehouse poses a problem. The collection is part of 9,000 pieces of art that fell into hands of advancing American troops in World War II. Some has been returned to Germany. The more hard-core propaganda remains. A Hitler bust can be seen at right, and he is also the central figure in the painting.

Mother-Daughter Tea for YW Golden Age Group

The Pontiac YWCA's annual mother and daughter tea for the Golden Age group will be given May 16 in the future home of the YW, corner West Huron Street and Franklin Boulevard.

Special guests will be the group of volunteers who drive, serve and entertain the Golden Agers during the year.

Mrs. Arthur Sweet, Golden Age chairman, and cochairman Mrs. Everett Russell, announce that there will be a continuous and varied program, beginning at 3 p.m.

The Madrigal singers and the honors quartette from Pontiac Northern High school will sing under the direction of John C. Tousley.

★ ★ ★

Students of Robert Peterson, music teacher at Pontiac Central High School, will present string quartette numbers. There will be other musical numbers by "The Patriots" and poetry reading by Mrs. C. J. Odell.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Joseph L. Bennett, Dorothy Sweet of Ann Arbor, Mrs. Robert Armstrong, Mrs. Allan H. Monroe, Mrs. J. A. Rammes and Mrs. Sixten Netzler will assist during the afternoon.

★ ★ ★

The YWCA Golden Age group is unique, Mrs. Sweet points out, because the majority of the active members are 80 years of age or older. A woman must be 65 to become a member.

★ ★ ★

Many of the group are housebound for lack of transportation, except for the monthly outings at the YWCA.

★ ★ ★

The YWCA is a member of the Pontiac Area United Fund.

Mrs. Robert Benedict, Auburn Heights, sees her mother, Mrs. H. M. Learned, 87, only when she comes from Cleveland for a visit. But Mrs. Learned was on the YWCA board for several years and her daughter is now a board member. Mrs. Learned promised to try to be on hand for the Golden Age group's mother and daughter tea on May 16.

This is a rare combination—a mother and daughter, both of whom belong to the Golden Age group. Mrs. Jennie Hilton (left) will be 93 in July. Miss Agnes Hilton who lives with her mother on Maycrest Street is a retired school teacher.

OU Conference Opens

Woman's Role Is a Demanding One

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Women's Editor

Some 200 women heard an anthropologist say that solving the problems of the relationship between men and women is a more serious one than even the racial crisis.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Robin A. Drews, formerly of Michigan State University, said Thursday at Oakland University that 90 per cent of the differences between men and women is cultural.

★ ★ ★

He and his wife, Dr. Elizabeth Drews, were speaking to the women who attended Oakland University's third annual conference on women. This was an Oakland Forum, sponsored by the Mott Center for Community Affairs.

CULTURAL IDEAS

The cultural ideas about the inferiority of women start in infancy and are a matter of training. By the same token, such cultural ideas can be changed, but it will take a long time.

★ ★ ★

Man's course in life is simple, compared with women's, said the speaker. Man is rewarded for his efforts all his life.

★ ★ ★

Woman is trained to be acceptable, to adjust, to be amiable and altruistic. But her life has a discontinuity. She is always being yanked around.

IDENTITY

The feminine Dr. Drews spoke on the search for identity which starts about adolescence and never really ceases. Identity is trying to become all one can be and developing all one's potentials to the fullest.

★ ★ ★

What she termed the "self-actualizing" adult is one who dares to be himself, ignoring what others think he should be.

★ ★ ★

Both the Drews' emphasized that happy people live longer and are healthier. Dr. Robin said that women live longer because they smile more than they shout.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Elizabeth listed four types of individuals: The "zombie" who sits around and does nothing; the "dilletante" who knows a little bit and flits around; the "specialist" who knows a lot about one thing but who has blinders on; and the "gifted generalist" who has developed all his intellectual and emotional potentialities, including love and an intuitive humane concern for others.

PANEL

Seven area women participated in a panel explaining the seven stages of a woman's life from the single working girl through widowhood. Each told of her problems.

★ ★ ★

After lunch Mrs. Louise Brown of the Merrill Palmer Institute told the women how they could manage multiple roles.

★ ★ ★

She stressed the fact that when a homemaker decides to get a job, go back to school or go deeply into volunteer work, she does not give up any of her old roles.

★ ★ ★

She must be realistic about why she is taking on this new role, what sort of a person she is, how she can keep her family's pattern and what compromises will have to be made.

★ ★ ★

"Don't count on becoming more efficient," Mrs. Brown warned.

★ ★ ★

The day ended with discussion groups centered around the seven stages.

★ ★ ★

Group leaders were Virginia Walter, Mrs. Brian Murphy, Mrs. Woods Proctor, Mrs. June Matthews, Mrs. Stephen Bauer, Mrs. Raymond Giffels and Mrs. Irene Murphy.

Mrs. Donald E. Adams, current president of the Michigan Historical Commission and state chairman for Heritage Day, will speak on the contributions made to our heritage by nationality groups.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Adams is also president of the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society and a past president of the Historical Society of Michigan.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

She discussed the problems of novel-writing and also read both revised and unrevised portions from her current novel.

ABWA Hears of 'Women Today'

Tipacon Charter Chapter, American Business Women's Association observed Mother's Day at a dinner meeting Wednesday in the Waldron Hotel.

"The Women I Meet" was the topic for the speaker, Mrs. Janet Odell, women's editor of The Pontiac Press.

She spoke of the emergence of women from the housewife role to the public, business and volunteer charitable roles of the modern women of today.

"Today's labor force is composed of one-third women, whose average age is over 40," she said.

Volunteer work in Pontiac, according to Mrs. Odell, is reaching a staggering proportion and the interest of women in doing volunteer work is growing.

PROJECT

Mrs. Carroll Welch reported on the Camp Oakland project and Mrs. John House announced an attendance contest during July, August and September.

Why Grow Old?

By Josephine Lowman

Today's vivacious grandmother often competes with her teen-age granddaughter for use of the telephone. She is likely as her granddaughter to whisper, "How much longer are you going to talk?"

Today, more than ever, an increasing number of older people are living active, busy, interesting and happy lives through their civic and philanthropic activities, their hobbies, their families and sometimes even through a new job.

★

Many senior citizens live in their own homes but there are many who live with their children. When this is the case a little planning and thought can add to the happiness and lessen any strains in such a situation.

Whenever it is possible it is wise for the older woman to have her own private headquarters within the home, complete with her own special conveniences.

★ ★

It is even better if she can have her own entrance to her apartment in the house and her own kitchen.

FAVORITE THINGS

Here grandmother can have her favorite colors in interior decoration. She can surround herself with her favorite books and pieces of furniture. She can listen to radio or look at television for as long as she wishes or at any hour without disturbing the family. She can turn it off and go to sleep when she wants to without curtailing the family fun.

★ ★ ★

Here the older generation can entertain friends without disturbing the family routine or being disturbed by it. If a woman has any physical handicap or is old enough to require the help of such items as nonslip rugs and bathroom bars for getting out of the tub they can be installed.

OWN TELEPHONE

I think one of the most delightful luxuries for the older woman living with her children would be to have her own telephone. A second line provides privacy and convenience, enabling her to keep in touch with friends, arrange daily events and shop with ease.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cherwinski of Ferndale announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn Anne to Spec. 4 Marvin E. Long, son of the Carl O'Shaughnessys of Keego Harbor. Her fiance is stationed with the U.S. Army at Fort Benning, Ga.

The opening day luncheon for women golfers at Orchard Lake Country Club brought out this attractive trio. From the left are Mrs. Palmer Bundy, Dawsburg; Mrs. Morris Purdy, Bloomfield Village, social chairman; and Mrs. S. F. Leahy, Orchard Lake, chairman of the women golfers.

A Round of Parties for Her

Carol Sue Johnson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leroy C. Johnson of East Hammond Lake Drive, has been feted at several pre-nuptial parties recently.

Mrs. Arnold A. Bentham of Nelson Avenue honored her niece at a miscellaneous shower attended by relatives and the birde-elect's attendants.

★ ★ ★

Another miscellaneous shower was cohostessed by Geraldine Dobski, Susan Lyons and Linda Schafer in the Rutherford home of the latter.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Lee Kremer and Mrs. Fred Zittel Sr. entertained at a buffet dinner in Mrs. Zittel's home on Lakewood Lane for the soon-to-be bride and her fiance, John R. Lyon.

KCA Unit Plans Ahead

At a meeting of Kappa Chi Alpha sorority, Wednesday, in the home of Mrs. Rickard Jones on Briggs Street, Mrs. Norman Nesbitt of Madison Heights was named chairman for the June 1 banquet.

Mrs. Richard Kistner, incoming president, and Mrs. Thomas Raguso, treasurer, will be installed at the annual affair in K Falls Restaurant.

★ ★ ★

This year's projects were discussed and plans completed for the couple's picnic on June 19.

Mrs. Edward Amos is in charge of a children's picnic early in July, with Mrs. Richard Henke as chairman.

Lemon Juice Good for Bleaching Skin

A home-made bleaching agent for the skin is a combination of four ounces of lemon juice, two ounces of rose water and two ounces of glycerin.

Lemon juice added to cleansing cream and hand lotion will also hasten the bleaching process.

OES Has Dedication at Meeting

Some 125 members of Pontiac Chapter No. 228, Order of the Eastern Star, attended the Tuesday meeting in the Masonic Temple on East Lawrence Street.

Highlight of the evening which honored the Star Points of the various Oakland County chapters was the dedication by Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Vincent of an emblem in honor of the station of Martha.

Refreshments were served by Group III and Mrs. Kenneth Anthony planned the decorations.

★ ★ ★

Guests came from Clarkston, Ortonville, Milford, Rochester, Commerce, Clawson, Birmingham and Ferndale.

The May 24 meeting which is to be dedicated to mothers, will also honor life and honorary members.

Travel Talk to Be Heard by Women

The lure of far away places will attract the guests attending the luncheon of the West Side Christian Women's Club Wednesday at 12:30 p.m., in Devon Gables.

Having just returned from the lands of the Bible, Mrs. Bartlett L. Hess, wife of the pastor of the Ward Memorial Presbyterian Church, will tell of her adventures.

Mrs. Richard Boyd of Delta Airlines will give tips on packing and a special feature "Magic in a Cosmetic Case."

Baritone, Joseph Davis will be the soloist.

Hostess chairman for the event will be Mrs. Glenn White and Mrs. D. E. Nyberg. Reservations may be obtained through Mrs. Fred Hartkopf of Birmingham.

Gal Fridays Honor Bosses

Oakland Association of Educational Secretaries will honor their bosses at a banquet in Roma Hall Livonia on Tuesday. Dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Willard D. Cheek, senior physicist at General Motors Research Laboratories will be the guest speaker. Joseph Bechard, principal of Troy High School will be the toastmaster.

The Al Hopper strolling duo will furnish the music.

When You Complain Go to Top Brass

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What happened to all that wonderful entertainment we used to see on TV?

All we get lately is stuff about crime, murder, divorce and young girls going wrong. But worse yet are all those horror things that make your blood run cold.

ABBY

Is this the way to entertain children?

Where are all those funny comedians and all that lovely singing and dancing I used to see?

We try to raise our children to think clean and lofty, but with all this junk and violence on TV we don't have a chance. Isn't there something we can do about it?

DISGUSTED MOTHER

DEAR DISGUSTED: Yes. You can write to the sponsors of such programs and complain.

You can also complain to your local television station and ask them to pass your complaint along to the networks.

If enough people express disgust, something will be done. But all one mother can do in the meantime is turn off her set.

★ ★ ★

DEAR ABBY: My husband is the manager of a gas company. We have been married four years and all that time my husband has been trying to persuade my mother to buy a gas stove for cooking.

My mother has cooked on an electric stove all her life, and as much as she would like to please by husband, she doesn't think she would be happy with a gas stove.

Mother is having her kitchen completely remodeled, and she is putting in a new built-in electric stove. Needless to say, my husband is mad.

Do you think he is justified in feeling this way? After all, my mother is the one who has to cook on it.

HER DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: No man (not even a son-in-law) can change a woman's cooking habits.

But if your husband wants to be "mad," he can cook his goose with gas as well as with electricity.

Your mother's preference for electricity isn't nearly as shocking as your husband's attitude.

MARTHA JOANN FLYNN

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

A friend of mine has a very attractive suit that has grosgrain ribbon stitched around the neckline and also on the shell over-blouse. Since grosgrain ribbon is woven straight, how can you put it around a curve without looking too full and lumpy?

Mrs. J. W.

Dear Mrs. J. W.:

It is possible to shape grosgrain ribbon by pressing it with your steam iron. As you press, shape the ribbon into an outer curve. You will actually be stretching the outer edge and shrinking the inner edge. When you have shaped the grosgrain ribbon, pin it to your fabric to see if it the correct shape. If it doesn't lie flat, shape it more with the steam iron.

Dear Eunice:

I spend most of my time making children's clothes and most patterns tell you to use a strip of bias fabric for the neck facing. When I do this, I can't whip down the raw edge without the entire neckline puckering up. It's just too tight.

Mrs. V. R.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. V. R.:

The bias strip will work beautifully for your neck facing if you remember to ease the bias to the neckline as you pin it on. Remember, the area below the neckline where the edge of the bias must be hand-sewed to your dresses is larger than the seamline at the neck. The ease will take care of this.

Also, while we're on the subject of children's necklines, remember to clip the seam allowance about every inch down to the stitching line to release the fabric and prevent a pulled look.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

A novel way to disguise a "let-down-hem." Many times it's impossible to remove the mark from the original hem, and perhaps your daughter is too old for rick rack. Use embroidery cotton and sew a running stitch along the old hem marks. The running stitch will look like saddle stitching. I also added this stitch about ½ inch from the edge of the sleeves and neckline and along each edge of the pleats in the skirt. I think the jumper is more attractive now than it was when new, and for the first time, the pleats actually stay pressed. If you need to shorten again for the "next in line," the thread is much easier to remove than any other type of trimming sewed on the hem.

Mrs. Melvin Richter, Hartley, Iowa, is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for this suggestion.

Career Woman Also Has Need of Budget

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

The single career woman, with some executive status and an income of from, say, $8,500 to $12,000 rarely gets much attention when budget advice is being handed out.

* * *

Everybody takes it for granted that she doesn't have any money problems.

MARY FEELEY

Actually, it's not so. She has her share, but they just aren't the same ones her married sister has, with probably less money and a houseful of children to feed and clothe.

The young businesswoman today — and by young, I mean any number of years before and after 35 — has plenty of ways to spend her income and end up broke.

The career woman's conception of her salary is not simply a livelihood; it's a way of life. She tends to pay more for convenience and services than she does for "things" or possessions.

* * *

She feels the need for getting around, for traveling — whether for pleasure or for widening her horizons on the job.

If she's really alive to today's tempo in the business world, she knows she can't just sit still and wait for things to happen.

* * *

Generally speaking, her shopping list has changed from the one she started out with. She spends more for personal grooming, for having the housework done for her, for transportation, entertainment, maintaining her contacts through gifts, telephone calls, weekend visits.

Once upon a time, her status symbol might have been a mink coat. Now it's more likely to be a trip or color TV.

A letter in today's mail from a professional woman in Texas says: "I find I have four major pitfalls: the telephone — frequently $50 a month; books and subscriptions — and I read them all; memberships and contributions which amount to at least $200 or more a year; gifts — I'm on the giving end of the stick, with showers, weddings, babies, etc.

"I have considered many times celebrating Old Maid's Day."

* * *

Well, such expenses aren't really out of line in the particular framework in which she lives. The anxiety comes when the businesswoman begins to compare her budget with that of a family who must manage on the same income.

* * *

The remedy for this anxiety is an overall financial plan which relates to savings, insurance, and at least a start toward a retirement plan.

She can take some consolation in the fact that there are some expenses she doesn't have: providing for dependents, establishing an education fund for a younger generation, and supporting two cars!

Of course, there's always the possibility if not the probability that she may get married any day, any year. In that case, a savings-insurance-retirement plan will prove just as rewarding and meaningful, if not more so.

Let's consider a businesswoman's budget that allows for savings as well as comfortable living, on an income of $10,000 a year. This would be a net income monthly of $660:

Rent, $160; household operating costs, allowing for occasional maid service and a generous telephone bill, $50; food at home (which probably wouldn't be too often) $40; clothing, $60; personal allowance, which includes grooming, $60; gifts, church, etc., $40; medical costs, $20; entertainment, $40; recreation and vacation, $40; reading material, $10; car operating, $40; savings, $100. Total, $660.

She should put her mind to utilizing that $100 savings per month. A good way to start planning is to talk to an insurance agent and determine the best policy or policies she can buy that will provide for final expenses as well as future stability.

A part of that $100 should certainly be put into a savings account where it will earn interest and also be readily accessible in an emergency.

When insurance protection and savings are accounted for, she might well consider additional investments.

There is no one plan that would suit everybody, so it takes some thinking and discussing to arrive at the best one for each individual.

It also requires expert advice. Seek it and use it, and don't rush into any program without knowing what you're doing.

Follow instructions to make this rick rack and tape tote. Interlock rose and black jumbo rick rack, from right to left on one strip and left to right on the other. Pairs of strips when placed together create a herringbone effect. Cut Pellon pattern pieces. At ironing board (Pellon shiny side up), starting ⅝" from lower edge, place black wide bias tape then rose, leaving ¼" space, repeat in this order to top. Secure with tape, turn and press on Pellon side only. Hand tack herringbones of jumbo rick rack to cover ¼" spaces, and black regular rick rack over joining of bias tape pieces. Complete each pattern piece in the same manner.

Keep Knife Handy

DEAR POLLY—When you are sewing, mark and crease pin tucks at one time. Fasten the material, wrong side up, to the ironing board.

Heat a knife over the electric or gas burner. Be sure to test the heat for different materials. Trace your tucks along the edge of a yardstick, placed where the tuck lines are to be, with the dull edge of the knife.

Tucks are creased, ready to stitch. Sometimes this is very useful for marking narrow hems.—C. F. H.

GIRLS—It always pays to read carefully. I scorched a line across the first piece of fabric I used. One who does a lot of sewing might do well to keep an old plated knife with other sewing supplies as it does turn dark and otherwise would have to be polished each time it was used. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My husband lost 40 pounds and none of his wash-and-wear shirts would fit. Rather than discard them, I made several beautiful dresses for my little girl.

Use the back of a shirt for the front of the dress and the neck yoke is already made. The front of the shirt will make the back with the button holes and buttons already in place.

Stripes and small patterns are a suitable scale for little girls and the plain colors and whites can be smocked or embroidered for a bit of color.—FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY — To make my ladder safe, I painted the steps and immediately sprinkled on some sand. This is really appreciated at house cleaning time.—FRED

DEAR POLLY—We put strips of red safety reflector tape around the handles of our camping and gardening tools. The intense color of this tape makes them easy to find.

We lost a hatchet and that same night while turning the car into our driveway, the light reflected on the tape revealing where the hatchet lay in the grass.—MRS. M. R.

Chocolate Filling Is Smooth as Velvet

By JANET ODELL
Pontiac Press Food Editor

Mrs. Jasper Piazza shares her family recipe for chocolate pie with our readers today. This is made with bitter chocolate and is rich with eggs.

The grandmother of two, Mrs. Piazza says she likes to cook and has a "green thumb." She's probably out in her garden right now.

CHOCOLATE PIE
By Mrs. Jasper Piazza

1 square baking chocolate
½ cup sugar
3 level tablespoons cornstarch
3 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon butter
1 baked pie shell
6 tablespoons sugar for meringue

Shave chocolate into sugar and add one cup milk. Mix cornstarch into one-half cup of milk. Beat egg yolks lightly with the second half cup of milk.

Heat chocolate, sugar and milk. Add dissolved cornstarch; mix well. Add egg yolks mixture and mix well.

Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thick; or cook in a double boiler, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and add vanilla and butter.

Pour into baked pie shell. Make a meringue with the egg whites and 6 tablespoons of sugar. Spread over filling and brown in 325-degree oven.

Do not refrigerate this pie until thoroughly cold. Then chill until serving time.

Find Man, 83, Not Ax Killer

KEMPTEN, Germany (UPI)—How shall his country make it up to Johann Lettenbauer?

How do you make it up to an 83-year-old man who spent 10 years behind bars for the ax murders of his daughter and baby grandson—when he was innocent?

How do you punish the real killer when the statute of limitations of the crime may have expired?

These and a host of similar questions have been pricking the West German conscience ever since a red-faced, stammering Kempten prosecutor paid a call on Lettenbauer last month at a Bavarian old people's home.

* * *

He conveyed the "deep regret" of the Kempten prosecutor's office, which had just come into possession of information that Lettenbauer did not hack his daughter and her illegitimate baby to death in 1947.

REAL KILLER

The real killer had been caught and confessed, the prosecutor said.

The octogenarian, confined in the old people's home ever since serving his 10-year hard labor sentence, wept.

"I have prayed for this day for 18 years, I have lived for this day for 18 years. Every day I have begged God to clear me of this awful crime," Lettenbauer said.

* * *

Lettenbauer might have gone to his grave a condemned murderer were it not for another ex-convict's troubled memory, according to the prosecutors.

CELL MATE'S RAMBLINGS

The unnamed ex-convict confided to a Bonn legal official the ramblings of a cell mate named William Schwall about his postwar life as a tramp.

The ex-convict said Schwall had told that once, at Oberreitnau on Lake Constance, his hobo partner killed a young woman and her child with an ax.

Detectives tracked down Schwall. He allegedly named Manfred Jung, a 38-year-old bus driver, as his comrade.

* * *

When Jung's bus reached its scheduled stop at Eitdorf near Bonn minutes later, detectives leaped aboard, switched off the ignition and arrested the startled driver.

CONFESSES KILLINGS

Jung, now married and father of a 9-year-old son, confessed, prosecutors said. He allegedly told how he—then a hungry 19-year-old youth penniless in chaotic postwar Germany—hacked to death the young mother who gave him hot water for a shave when she caught him stealing a watch and began to scream.

He then killed 2-year-old Artur Lettenbauer for fear the baby's crying might alarm the neighbors, Jung allegedly admitted.

Kempten prosecutors said today Jung could get off scot-free. He was legally a juvenile at the time of the crime, and the circumstances indicate it might only have, technically, been manslaughter—not premeditated murder.

* * *

The statute of limitations on manslaughter is 15 years. It expired for the Oberreitnau killings in 1962.

COULD LEAVE HOME

What of Lettenbauer? The prosecutors say support arrangements could be made so that he could leave the old people's home if he wants to, and rejoin his wife and his surviving daughter, Amalie.

State cash compensation for his 10 years imprisonment is also possible, a spokesman said. Under Bavarian law he could get up to 75,000 marks ($18,750).

Whatever the outcome for Lettenbauer and Jung, the case could have important consequences for West German legal practices—because Lettenbauer confessed the double murder under police questioning at the time.

* * *

He denied the confession at his trial but the court chose to believe it anyway.

Asked why he had confessed, Lettenbauer said: "The police kept asking all those questions . . . awful questions. I felt I was going crazy.

"I finally said anything they wanted me to . . . just anything for a bit of peace."

Law Officers Due at Burglary Confab

EAST LANSING (AP) — The sixth Annual Safe Burglary Conference June 3 at Michigan State University will not—as the title might imply—teach a crook how to be a safe burglar.

Instead, it is cosponsored by State Police and MSU and is aimed at making it unsafe for burglars to burgle safes.

* * *

More than 100 law enforcement officers from throughout the state will attend the one-day conference. Speakers will discuss the latest trends in burglar alarms and detection devices and laws covering this type of crime.

Select Your Home-to-Be Early

By VIVIA NBROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Now is the time to think about your new home if you are planning to get married next summer.

Where will you live after the big day?

This is an ideal time to peruse the ads. But though newlyweds take care of minute details of a wedding months before the big event, many don't consider their home-to-be until the very last moment.

If home is to be a rental, they don't want to sign up too early, of course, paying extra rent.

But it is inevitable that some leeway is needed if they are to return from the honeymoon to a home that is at least partially furnished.

* * *

At least three to six months before the wedding, the bride could case prospective neighborhoods.

ALLOWS TIME

This will give her time to visit stores and observe prople in the various sections.

She might choose the area on the basis of community appeal, shopping conveniences, transportation availability to her husband's work and price.

If she is buying a house, other considerations should be taken. It is not too early to make long-range plans — schools, recreation areas, whether the house is in a family area that has child-appeal, and the taxes.

* * *

Many young couples start with a small house that can accommodate one child, planning to move before a second child arrives.

NOT RISKY

This is no longer risky. With the present population explosion, one could get one's money out of an igloo.

If enough time is spent planning the rental or house purchase, there might be considerable saving.

Comparison shopping of houses, which takes time, pays off. In some development areas, when original owners move, the difference in asking prices for two identical homes can be considerable. But you don't know, unless you have observed these variables.

* * *

Discussing houses with builders can be enlightening. They talk in terms of square feet when estimating costs. It is one way to learn how much house you can get for how much money.

DIFFERENCES IN PRICE

You will note that differences in house price can lie in extra bathrooms, utility rooms, extra garage space and special landscaping.

If you like an area but can't afford anything more than a small house, consider at once the possibilities of adding to it later.

In the long run, if you have the land, a house addition is often the best solution. It often is difficult to relocate in a favorite area when a larger house is desired, because asking prices can be beyond the means of a young couple.

* * *

Yet, they and their first child may have made friends in the community and do not want to move away from it.

ADDITION PAINLESS

A house addition usually is painless when payments are tacked on to an existing mortgage. You add as much as you can afford at the moment. The house grows with your expanding pay check.

Many sources are available for asssistance in estimating how much money can be spent either for rent or mortgage payments at the outset.

A guide used by some people is not to exceed a week's take-home pay in estimating the amount that one can afford for monthly payments.

Some couples can do amazing mathematics in juggling finances, so they can afford much more for a take-home dollar than another couple.

MAIN DIFFERENCE

The difference seems to be in stringently applying reigns on everything but very necessary expenditures. But a strict budget is depressing for some people.

* * *

Couples who rent apartments or houses with the idea of buying within a few years should keep abreast of the market in the area where they plan to buy or build.

gained by this early move may be considerable by the time you get around to building.

Cone of Sugar Pine Unique in Length

The cone of the sugar pine tree is unique for its huge size.

Cones average from 12 to 16 inches in length and 3 inches in diameter.

Pine Needle Clusters

The true white pines, such as the sugar pine of California and southern Oregon, are sometimes called "five needle pines" because their needles grow in clusters or sheaves each containing five needles.

Indenting Action Meets Resistance

Close-grained hardwood floors resist the indenting action of chair and table legs and furniture casters.

Heavy objects resting on a Northern hard maple floor will not indent it, even if unmoved for a considerable length of time.

Novel Roof Of The L. J. Wischman Country Home, Franklin Park, Franklin, Features Heavy Split-Wooden Shakes

Roof of Split Shakes Tops Country Home

By JODY HEADLEE
Home Editor, The Pontiac Press

Set well back from Franklin Park Drive and framed by towering trees and a broad expanse of green lawn is the white brick country home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Wischman.

Its novel roof of heavy wooden shakes and the home's split fieldstone accents further enhance the rural atmosphere of its setting.

The covered exterior entranceway opens into a central foyer allowing passage into the den, the formal living area and the kitchen.

Paneled in traditional dark walnut, the den is brightened by beige carpeting and open-weave woolen draperies.

Pointing out the polished black chair near her great grandmother's sampler, Mrs. Wischman said, "This interestingly shaped chair is a copy of the writing chair used by James Fenimore Cooper." A scarlet cushion adds to its comfort.

Flanking the antiqued-green leather sofa, one on a square walnut table, the other on a fruitwod table, are a pair of tall pineapple lamps with black bases and shades.

White candles in pewter candlesticks are used on the drop-leaf coffee table.

Setting the monochromatic background for the formal living room at the back of the house are beige walls, carpeting and antique-satin draperies.

A wooded valley landscape "Trossachs" by Norman Wilson, above the green marbled fireplace, introduces the color theme of the room.

Slate-topped, distressed walnut cigarette tables serve the curved sectional covered in a green fabric spiced with threads of aqua, white and tan.

The beige background, complemented by a cocoa-on-beige French garden print above the dado, is repeated in the adjoining dining room.

An arrangement of greens in white ceramic centers the oval dining table topped in fruitwood. The Italian Provincial chairs in antiqued-white match the table's base. The seats are covered in a beige and white striped fabric with highlights of rust and gold.

Bring Spring Into Basement With Gay Color and Brush

If your basement looks like an overcrowded dungeon, there's no better time to bring it to life than early Spring . . . all you need is a dash of imagination and a short stint with the paint brush!

* * *

Color can turn an unsightly dark basement into a cozy recreation room, a cheerful work shop, or a sparkling laundry room, says Ann Boyce, color styling director of the O'Brien Corporation, paint manufacturers.

Unsightly concrete blocks or poured raw concrete walls, exposed beams, heating ducts and pipes can all be camouflaged with color to turn a bleak, gray basement into a gay, useful room.

As Miss Boyce points out, the right colors cost no more than the wrong ones!

* * *

White walls painted all white are uninspiring, pastel shades reflect natural or artificial light and help ease gloom caused by limited light.

COLOR CONTRAST

A contrasting color in the center part of the ceiling will even make a room seem higher than it really is. And reflected light on pastel or beige-tone walls will not strike directly at the eyes as with white walls.

"Darker colors absorb heat and light colors reflect heat and light into the room," says Miss Boyce, also noting that colors have a psychological effect as well.

Rich and vibrant oranges and reds are dramatic and stimulating, whereas greens and blues are soothing and restful.

* * *

After choosing your color, prepare your surface properly. Clean surface thoroughly to remove dirt, grease, calcimine or whitewash, wire brushing, scraping and sanding will remove loose, scaling paints.

If basement walls are mildewed, they should be washed with a solution of 1½ cups of ordinary household bleach to one gallon of water.

Let the solution stand for about 5 minutes to allow for bleaching action, then rinse with clear water and dry thoroughly.

* * *

Fill cracks in blocks or concrete wall with a concrete mixture or an epoxy patching compound.

Check heating ducts and pipes for rusting.

New or rusted metal surfaces should be primed with a rust-inhibitive primer before painting.

Use a multi-purpose latex emulsion formulation for walls, ceilings and heating ducts; cover concrete floors with a high gloss floor enamel or low lustre latex floor enamel.

Colorful Exteriors With Ceramic Tile

One of the latest trends in home design is the emphasis on bright colors for exterior walls.

* * *

The trend to color has led many home designers to use materials such as ceramic tile for home exteriors, because it is available in more than 250 colors and is extremely durable, requiring almost no upkeep.

Rotating Drawers in Dream Kitchen

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

After designing 17 lines of kitchens for manufacturers, David Humphrey struck his dream kitchen—approaching the entire kitchen idea from a new principle of rotating drawers and tambour doors.

It's a knock-down, durable, completely utilitarian storage arrangement.

"Box style cabinets created by cabinet makers as furniture continued to be used by manufacturers without reexamining problems that required new techniques.

New materials were applied to the same old principles of outer boxes and inner boxes, creating a complicated structural system requiring draw guides that must work parallel in order to suspend boxes," he explains.

For one thing, with the new knock-down system, a great shipping advantage has been devised.

SHIPPING EASE

Thirty of these kitchens designed for Orbit Imperial may be shipped on a truck in contrast to about three of the box-style units, he says.

Aluminum extrusions and high pressure laminate, texolite, are used.

"Drawers hang on a "steel shaft so that everything is hidden when closed, but when opened by a touch, each section swings around.

* * *

"There are quarter circles (on the end), half circles (in the middle section) and three-quarter circles (as on the inside corner of an L).

"Pull out the drawers and you have an exposed section under it so that everything is accessible for cleaning, even the floors."

The storage gained by this method "is fantastic," he says. Every part of the circle is accessible for visibility. Drawers are of different depths for pots and pans, other kitchen ware and utensils.

* * *

"Tambour doors on upper cabinets glide around corners out of sight so that units may be left open until the meal is completed," Humphrey says illustrating the mechanical feature, made possible by elastic running through the plastic slats.

DRAWER ARRANGEMENTS

Hundreds of drawer arrangements may be made because of the modular feature, he points out.

They've come down as far from the ceiling and up so far from the floor in one of these kitchens that only 60 inches is needed from top to bottom of the cabinets.

"We've done everything within the optimum area, so the average woman can reach to the top without standing on her toes, and pick up things below without bending down," he says.

He and Alphonso Villa, his partner, who handles mechanical features, have worked five years on details of the design and have been observing more than 1,800 test kitchens in Puerto Rican homes.

Individuality Emphasized

If you have moved into a home that looks just like all the others on the block, you may be in the market for some exterior decorations that will make for a more striking appearance and, at the same time, protect your family and furnishings against the summer sun.

LAKE BRAEMAR ESTATES — The three bedroom ranch home at 10599 Tamryn in Lake Braemar Estates is offered by Richard Royer, Inc., 823 S. Lapeer, Oxford. Included in the model's 1,660 square feet of living area is a paneled family room with fireplace. It may be seen Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. or by appointment. Located in Springfield Township, the subdivision is entered from Davisburg Road.

Location Is Important

No matter how many advantages, such as ceramic tile bathrooms and kitchens, a house contains, most families will not be happy there unless the dwelling is in a good neighborhood.

Not only should transportation, shopping, church and school facilities be weighed but the character of the "part of town" also is a matter for careful consideration.

One revealing index of the desirability of a neighborhood is the proportion of owner-occupied residences.

Hydronic Heating Installed in Home

Hydronic (hot water) baseboard heating systems are easily installed in an older home. They simply replace the present wooden baseboards.

Ten Causes of Paint Flops

What are the general causes of paint failure? Here are ten of them:

★ ★ ★

- Painting in damp weather.
- Painting in cold weather. The temperature should be at least 50 degrees.
- Using poor quality paint.
- Failing to mix the paint as directed on the container.
- Applying the paint too thick or too thin.
- Allowing insufficient drying time between coats.
- Failure to prepare the surfaces properly.
- Failing to seal knots or pitchy spots.
- Not using a primer when the manufacturer advises it.
- Painting too often.

FHA Gives Break to Home Buyers

WASHINGTON (BIS) — The Federal Housing Administration has decided to give home-buyers the right to back out of a home purchase contract if they consider closing costs excessive, Washington BIS has learned exclusively.

★ ★ ★

The move will go far towards answering what FHA officials call a growing chorus of complaints from disgruntled homebuyers that they hand't the faintest conception of how high these costs would be until it was too late.

Specifically, FHA is modifying its procedures to acquaint prospective homebuyers with its estimate of closing costs. If the buyer considers the costs excessive, he will be able — even if he has signed a purchase contract — and the builder will have little recourse except to offer to absorb part or all of these costs. If the deal is cancelled, the builder cannot penalize the buyer and would have to return any deposit.

FHA will handle the closing cost problem by modifying its "certificate of value" form in 1954. Congress required FHA to see to it that the builder showed a prospective buyer a copy of the "certificate of value," which is derived from FHA's valuation report.

If the buyer has gone as far as signing a purchase contract, the law requires that a clause be inserted making it clear the buyer can call off the deal if he doesn't like it after seeing FHA's valuation. In such a case, the builder or seller has to refund any deposits.

CLOSING COSTS

Included in FHA's valuation estimate, but not singled out, were closing costs. Under the revised report, FHA's estimate of closing costs will be shown separately.

Since the 1954 amendment was enacted, homebuyers have been allowed to back out of the deal if the FHA value was below the original price placed on the home by the seller. This right of the buyer has been upheld by several courts, FHA officials say. Now the buyer will have the same privilege if he considers the closing costs too high.

FHA is also considering showing its estimate of what the taxes will be the first year. Officials claim the agency receives numerous complaints from homebuyers that their taxes turn out to be twice as much as the builder said they would be.

FHA's action will be the first move by a government agency to do something about the consumer credits recommendations made by the Consumer Advisory Council in June.

The other recommendations, which were made to Presidential Consumer Affairs Adviser Esther Peterson, called for:

- A meeting of all Federal agencies exercising regulatory control over consumer credit lending and consumer credit extending institutions for the purpose of establishing standards of full disclosure of credit charges;
- A study of the high interest rates on college education loans;
- A crack down on the "deceptive trade practices" by commercial banks of stating interest charges in terms so as to confuse the borrower;
- A study to see if National banks are violating State anti-usuary laws or other State laws establishing maximum credit charges for various types and classes of credit transactions; and
- A formation of a committee to study the rise in personal bankruptcies.

There has been some groundwork done on these proposals by Mrs. Peterson's office but so far the only recommendation that has shown results is in the closing costs area.

Small Bite Can Leave Big Dent

There's no place like home . . for accidents. Take the case of the Milwaukee hostess who wished that one item on her dinner menu had turned out to be a dud.

★ ★ ★

Seems that she prepared some bean salad while the children were playing nearby. By accident, a small cracker, fire, not soda, was added to the ingredients.

Later that evening, when a lady guest took a hearty chomp of salad, she detonated the tiny bomb and dented her dental plate.

She demanded new dentures and the case ended up in the broad lap of the insurance company.

★ ★ ★

Having your mother - in - law drop in unexpectedly can be a peril, discovered one California homeowner.

COOL RECEPTION

As a matter of fact, he had been expecting a visit from his mother-in-law, but not the pet monkey she brought along.

Perhaps miffed at a cool reception, the monkey scampered off to the attic and refused to come down.

Mother-in-law volunteered to capture him.

★ ★ ★

It was her dropping into the living room through the ceiling that was unexpected. She collected for medical bills.

Then there was Grandmother who came to tend the grandchildren while her daughter went to the hospital to have another baby.

Her intended display of old-fashioned homemaking skill came to an abrupt end when a frozen pork roast rolled out of the freeze, landed on Granny's foot and sent her to the hospital, to join daughter.

★ ★ ★

Take care, and take warning. Is YOUR insurance adequate?

Room Addition Space Answer

If your kitchen is becoming a center for homework or games or if your formal dining room is turning into a shambles, you may be thinking of adding a family room to get the space you need for family relaxation or entertaining.

Robert Jacobsen, a home improvement specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, passes along some pointers on getting the most out of a family room.

If indoor space is unavailable or the cost of converting too costly, look outdoors, says Jacobsen. Enclosing a car port, covering an open porch or covering and enclosing part of the backyard patio may be the answer.

Jacobsen recommends:

1—Design the room to serve a number of needs (a "rec" room for the teen-agers, a TV watching room, an entertainment center for adults) keeping it flexible and uncluttered.

★ ★ ★

2—Keep the room informal in appearance and use sturdy furniture.

3—If you plan to use the room for dining, locate it near the kitchen.

4—Make sure the room is airy, bright and cool during the warm months when the family has the most free time.

5—Plan for plenty of storage.

Put Family Room at Rear of House

The ideal place for a family room is at the rear of the house.

In most cases, if the family room is added at the back of the house, it is separated from the sleeping area and can double with the existing living room as an entertainment area.

★ ★ ★

Many families prefer to have their new family room addition open off the kitchen or dining room.

In any case, the addition of a family room at the rear of the house will create an "L" shaped structure.

Manor Style Recaptured

Warning to Buyers of Hardwood

"Be careful when you buy hardwood timbers for landscaping purposes. They may not last!"

That warning comes from Dr. Eldon A. Behr, Michigan State University forest products researcher. He points out that there are many hardwood timbers grown in southern Michigan, but only few yield wood that is resistant to rot.

"Rot resistant species grown in this area include white oak, mulberry, catalpa, black locust and osage orange," reports Dr. Behr. "Of these, only white oak is frequently found, especially in large size trees.

"But timbers made from dark colored heartwood portions of any of these species will last from 10 to 25 years when in contact with the soil. The light colored sapwood of these trees will last only a few years in an exposure where they retain water or rest on soil."

Dr. Behr says many of these timbers, generally six by eight inches in cross section, are being sold to home owners in metropolitan areas for landscaping garden steps, retaining walls, walks, etc.

OTHER WOODS

"Unfortunately, many other woods besides the durable ones are being sold for use in the garden and yards," he says. "Many of these are going to rot in a few years."

Dr. Behr warns home owners to think twice before using wood such as soft maple, elm, hickory, ash and red oak. These are nondurable and will rot badly in five years or less.

"In order for any of these species to be effective for landscaping, they need a treatment where the preservative solution is forced into the wood under pressure," comments Dr. Behr. "Brush-on or short soak treatments are of almost no worth in extending the life of these woods."

The MSU forestry researcher notes that old railroad cross ties usually contain considerable amounts of wood preservatives and, consequently, will give many years of life around home grounds.

Discard Dark Furniture? Never, Try Antiquing It!

The switch from dark to light is easily achieved these days.

Instead of discarding the old but still-useful pieces, new and fashionable tones and hues with an antique finish can be applied to give them up-to-the minute decorator smartness.

Paint and hard coatings manufacturers, the antiquing process has been reduced to three very simple steps.

First — sand the old surfaces lightly to remove dirt, grease, wax and loose paint. Use a fine-grade "wet or dry" sandpaper moistened with water for a smooth, fine finish. Use a tack cloth to pick up the sanding residue.

After the preparation, apply the base coat. Popular antiquing trends favor tones a bit deeper than blonde tones.

TO ANTIQUE

Apply a very thin coating of color grain over the base coat, then wipe it.

Allow some to remain on the surface and recesses of the wood for a dual tone. Since the color grain sets slowly, there's ample time to achieve interesting effects. Lint-free cheesecloth, herringbone, paper towels or tissues may be used for wiping and to give texture.

Pins, nails and other sharp points may be used for "distress" marks to pick up the color grain during wiping and show as dark specks.

Hot Water Heats Evenly

Split level houses require radiant as well as convected heat to overcome stratification, or different temperatures at different levels.

Hydronic (hot water) systems provide just the right combination of radiant and convected heat.

This is the type needed to adequately balance body heat losses and provide for complete comfort and protection to health.

Odd-Shape Pipes Have a Purpose

Some people think those funny-looking S-and P-shaped pipes beneath plumbing fixtures are there to catch bobby pins, rings and other odds and ends that fall into the drain.

They may indeed do that, but that's not their primary reason for being there.

Every plumbing fixture in your house is connected to a sewage system. If there were no safeguard, sewer gases would back up through drains and into the house.

Traps, then, are devices that keep these gases in captivity. They are installed directly below sinks, lavatories and laundry tubs.

* * *

On water closets (toilets) they are built in, and for bathtubs and shower stalls they're installed in the floor.

ACT AS SEALANT

Because of its shape, a trap retains a column of water which acts to seal off sewer gas.

As long as there is water in the trap, it will function properly, but if the drain is not used frequently, the seal will evaporate, letting in the foul-smelling fumes.

It is important, therefore, that fixtures not in constant use have water poured into them at periodic intervals.

* * *

If sewer odor is noticed in the basement or laundry room, it probably means that the water has evaporated from the traps in the floor drains. Pour at least a gallon into these drains regularly.

OTHER WAYS

There are other ways that a trap can lose its seal. One is self - siphonage — a natural phenomenon which sucks water out of the trap because a fixture is not properly vented.

Another trap - drainer is called assistant - siphonage, resulting from suction built up when the water from another waste pipe flows too close to the trap.

A third problem is a leaking trap. Here again, the seal may be removed and gases permitted back through the drain.

* * *

All are jobs for a qualified plumbing contractor. A few minutes of his work can save you a lot of annoyance and some unhealthful, unpleasant fumes in the home.

Unit Heats House Plus Tap Water

Heating engineers have developed a home heating system that makes hot tap water and heats the house at the same time. This is accomplished by a water heater that is "built into" the same boiler that heats the home.

* * *

This water heater provides the family with ample hot water for bathing, laundering, cooking and cleaning purposes.

* * *

The water heater is built into a compact, appliance-size hydronic boiler that circulates a separate and independent supply of hot water to trim baseboard units located in the various rooms for home heating.

Not only does the built-in unit save space, but often results in lower fuel costs, says the Council.

Professional Advice Solves Owners' Woes

Problem! To remodel and improve a newly-acquired fifteen-year old house that's handicapped by a sloping lot overlooking an uninspired backyard area.

A couple in Oregon sought the professional advice of an architect who put their ideas on paper and came up with plans for well-designed, comfortable and attractive improvements, at moderate costs.

First added was a sun-swept, roomy deck — opening to the house through floor - to - ceiling glass doors. The new deck, made of inland red cedar, offered handsome, extra space for everyday living and leisure.

Cedar from the Western pine region is solid lumber, easy to work with and handle, ideal as well for exteriors, thanks to its natural resistance to weathering.

HOUSE ACCESS

Built two stories above the ground, the deck had access from the house and from a flight of easy-rise steps from the yard.

Cedar is ideal for even the sunniest areas; remaining cool to the touch no matter how long it is exposed to the sun.

Successful with the deck, plans were made to remodel the lower area — a cluttered basement was transformed to bedroom and bath.

An outdoor patio was made to seem an extension of the playroom floor by using two-inch inland red cedar strips to separate the paving. Thus, patio, playroom and sun deck all looked handsomely integrated.

A well-thought out plan of landscaping using shrubs and ground cover added new beauty to the old house.

Avoid Scorching With Tile Counter

It's a good idea to keep appliances containing heating units — such as toasters, coffee makers and grills — in one spot on a heat-resistant surface to avoid the danger of scorching.

A counter-top of ceramic tile is ideal for this purpose. It is fireproof, stainproof and easy to clean.

CHILD'S ROOM — If you are looking for something different in decorating your youngster's room, why not try the appliqued awning motif. It can be used effectively for either boys or girls in vivid or muted colors. The room pictured above is that of Jill Shelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Bud Shelton of 93 Shagbark, Avon Township. The pink walls repeat the little-girl-pink of the pink and white striped ceiling wallpaper. Pink felt animals, an elephant, monkey and hippopotamus, decorate the white awning. Furniture pieces are in maple.

Remodeling Up Across Country, Say Economists

All over the United States an unprecedented home improvement boom is on.

Housing economists maintain that the amount of money spent to improve older homes will equal, and surely exceed, the amount of money spent on new housing within five years.

A few think that point already has been reached.

There are solid economic reasons for the increasing interest in remodeling. In the first place, it's good business for home owners.

★ ★ ★

Money spent on home improvement provides an investment that will grow in value.

SECOND REASON

Another reason for the remodeling boom is that many home - owners are finding they can expand their existing homes for less money than it would cost to move into new quarters.

New home construction throughout the country averages about $15 per square foot; it would be difficult to buy a comparable new house for less than $18,000.

In addition, moving to a new home usually entails a number of "unproductive" costs, such as the cost of moving, title clearance, and real estate commission.

These can "add up" to a considerable expense. There are also added costs in new landscaping and frequently in new draperies and rugs.

For these and other reasons it is often worthwhile to increase the value of your present home.

Once Doomed to Extinction

50th Anniversary Hailed by Industry

Southern lumbering, one of the great industrial giants of a growing nation, was faced with an ironic dilemma in 1910.

★ ★ ★

While the industry had just completed its busiest year in history, having reached the crest of a "golden era," its death knell was being tolled.

A number of high-placed persons said the South was approaching a timber "famine" and that the region's lumbering would inevitably perish.

Fortunately, this did not materialize. But the reasons behind the gloomy forecasts seemed quite logical at that time.

★ ★ ★

Since 1880, when completion of the nation's network of railroads opened the North to products of the South, southern lumbering had experienced fantastic growth. Demand for pine lumber developed from many distant points, and production continued to multiply with the peak reached during the 1900-1910 period.

OUTPUT UP

In 1909, more Southern Pine lumber was produced than in any other year—approximately 16 million board feet—enough to build 2 million homes.

The huge, sustained volume of output prompted the general belief that the forest source soon would run dry. Just about the only ones who did not share this pessimism were a group of far-sighted lumbermen, who were later to achieve immortal fame as the "fathers" of practical forestry.

While widely ridiculed for their then revolutionary beliefs, these industry pioneers defied criticism and set their ideas in motion. Their theory was that with adequate fire protection and proper spacing of trees, the full growth cycle—from seedling to full maturity — could be greatly reduced. They felt that with a little help from man, the forests would regenerate themselves.

★ ★ ★

The "fathers" of forestry assisted in the formation of the Southern Pine Association.

From 1915 forward, good forest management became a great moving force in the South.

In 1925, climaxing SPA's first decade of service, Colonel William B. Greeley, then chief U.S. Forester, commended the Association for an "advanced stand" in the promotion of forestry and reforestation. He also observed that many of the South's leading lumber companies were well along with forest management programs.

In 1942 the Association introduced the "tree farms" movement to the South. This made it possible for farmers and other non-industrial owners of timberland to share the lumberman's knowledge of forestry.

★ ★ ★

Six years later — in 1948 — Colonel Greeley documented a "miracle."

WRITTEN OFF

Observing that the South had once been written off as a lumber producing region "by verdict of high authority," he added:

"We could not see the little trees behind the stumps of the big trees. Those gloomy forebodings were knocked into a cocked hat by the marvelous comeback of the forests. The little pines themselves have had the last word. They have brought an industrial miracle.

Subsequent progress has been encouraging. In 1963, the U.S. Forest Service revealed that growth of pine in trees of sufficient size for lumber, exceeded that of any other species in the nation. The federal agency was equally impressed with the improving quality of the modern crop.

Today, the Forest Service, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, advances a forecast quite different from the pessimistic predictions of 1910. The agency predicts the South will eventually at least double the output of lumber and wood products while continuing to increase its forest reserves. This is an eloquent testimonial to 50 years of dedication to forestry.

Time to Consider Air Conditioning

Now is the time to start planning for air conditioning, not in mid-summer when contractors will be swamped with calls.

★ ★ ★

Any type of house, regardless of the type of heating system, can be easily air conditioned. In fact, a cooling system independent of the heating system will, in most cases, provide the most efficient cooling and conditioning of air.

★ ★ ★

For the best in year round comfort, many heating and cooling engineers recommend hydronic (forced circulation hot water) heating with baseboard distribution of heat and a separate direct expansion cooling system with ceiling-high distribution of cool air.

A list of companies which manufacture direct expansion cooling equipment is available free of charge, by writing to: Product Reference, Better Heating-Cooling Council, 250 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

THE OAKWOOD — Double carriage doors open into Carrigan Quality Homes' colonial model on Tamarack Boulevard in Lake Bracemar Estates. The brick and aluminum siding two-story has four bedrooms and one and one half baths. The model may be viewed by appointment or Saturday and Sunday from 12 to 6 p.m. reported Carrigan, 1393 Butcher, Fenton. The new development includes a spring fed lake with a controlled water level. An 18-hole golf course is also proposed. Off Davisburg Road, the subdivision is found in Springfield Township.

Colored Siding in Aluminum

Families who are planning to install aluminum siding now have their choice of bright or subdued colors.

★ ★ ★

A new selection of "soft," low gloss siding colors has been introduced by the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company. According to aluminum siding specialist, Aldo Martin, the new colors reflect the quiet good taste that many home owners seek in a home's appearance.

★ ★ ★

Martin points out that a good grade of aluminum siding will not need repainting for 15 to 20 years or more and the prospective purchaser should be sure that the color or colors selected are the ones that can be "lived with" for a long period of time.

★ ★ ★

A new aluminum siding color selector guide that includes the new "soft" shades is available free of charge. For a copy, write to Siding Color Guide, c/o Bridgeport Brass Co., Bridgeport 2, Conn.

New Sanitizer Reduces Colds Electronically

Colds and flu rampant? Now you can electronically sanitize hair brushes, toothbrushes, baby nipples, etc. in minutes.

A quick, inexpensive sterilization unit has been developed by the Puritron Corporation.

This unit has definite appeal for houses or apartments. Smaller than a medicine cabinet, and installed as easily as a junction box, the unit uses the scientific principle of negative ionization to electronically sanitize items.

This is how the sanitizing unit works. A cylindrical gold ion tube releases negative ions which when combined with ultraviolet light attack and kill bacteria.

At the touch of a button, sanitization takes place.

LIKE NEW

The process also firms and freshens bristles, so a tooth brush or hair brush comes out like new.

A timer on the door insures an accurate period of operation.

A portable model can be placed on a shelf or vanity top.

Protect House Gutters With Asphalt Cover

House gutters, whether wood or metal, will last longer if given an asphalt-base protective coating on the inside and a coat of paint on the outside.

They add that gutters should be checked at least once a year to determine if their pitch is correct for proper drainage.

Brighten Handbag With Paint Job

Does that little straw handbag you bought last summer look a little forlorn this year? Why not reglamorize it with a little paint.

First vacuum the bag to remove any dust and wipe off any oil, grease or lipstick with a cloth soaked in ordorless paint thinner.

Then, apply a coat of lacquer with one of the handy aerosol, self spraying paint cans.

Weeds May Have Invaded

New Chemical Can Control Crabgrass

By the time warmer weather brings the urge to get out-of-doors, one look at your lawn may keep you inside. Crabgrass, one of the most prevalent and pestiferous annual weeds in the country, may have already taken over.

A single healthy crabgrass plant can grow from 50,000 to several hundred thousand seeds in a season.

And since crabgrass germinates in late spring and thrives during summer, it's frequently not recognized in time by home gardeners for them to effectively control it.

Time was when nothing could be done about crabgrass except getting down on your hands and knees and starting to pull — weed by weed.

Then, chemicals came into the picture and the concept of applying them before crabgrass sprouted was developed. But many of these preemergent crabgrass killers destroyed desirable grasses too.

Or, the chemicals needed frequent application or use in great quantity to be effective. Thus, they often proved uneconomical.

Now a new crabgrass control chemical, Azak, does away with these problems. Developed by a team of research chemists, it nips the tender young crabgrass seedlings before they start to grow during early warm spring days.

One easily applied treatment of Azak controls crabgrass for the balance of the season. No tiresome retreatment is required later in the summer.

Essentially odorless, it is safe for established lawns and other ornamental turfgrasses when used at the recommended rate and, it's practically nontoxic.

BEST RESULTS

For best results, use in the spring on established turf before crabgrass germination in your area.

It can be obtained in various packages or combinations with fertilizers and/or other pesticides for spreader or sprayer application.

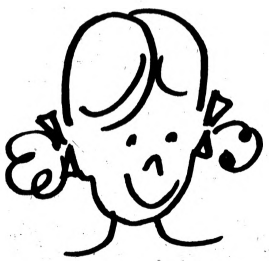
Follow the label instructions carefully and make sure to apply it at the right time, in the correct dosage and by the proper method.

Used correctly, the product helps win the crabgrass battle and you'll be able to enjoy your lawn all summer long.

Quality Paint Needed for Ceiling Usage

Be sure to use only quality paint on ceilings.

Only quality paint will adhere long and well and resist discoloration from smoke and fumes.



Any time you feed the lawn You can weed it too — Think of all the time you'll save with TURF BUILDER PLUS 2

One application of Scotts new TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 and it's "good-bye" lawn weeds — "hello" greener grass. That's because new TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 fertilizes your lawn at the same time it does two extra jobs:

Learn That Anything Good Lasts Forever

Those With Limited Budget Enjoy Antique Shows

Even those who can't afford to feather their nests with antiques like to go to good shows to see where we are headed tastewise.

* * *

It is at these exhibits that their own ideas are likely to jell governed by their own budgets and own environment.

Few people are so unrealistic as to yearn for a $5,000 item that they can never hope to obtain.

But seeing the object in proper perspective improves their own outlook in home furnishings old or new.

* * *

What they are likely to find at fine shows is that there is no such thing as a trend in good furnishings.

LASTS FOREVER

Anything good lasts forever and is an asset to the home. But some furnishings become scarce.

Such is th situation right now with French furnishings observed at one of the country's best antique shows, New York's Winter Antique Show for the benefit of the Henry Street House Settlement.

"The French don't need to sell to Americans any more," explains exhibitor Elinor Merrell, one of the most respected antique dealers in the United States.

* * *

"They can sell to the Italians, Belgians or other Europeans. If we want something we must pay the price for it, and prices have gone to the sky."

FABRIC EXPERT

One of the world's best known fabric experts, she showed some rare 17th and 18th Century crewel embroideries in an English oak dining room.

And in the French Provincial bedroom, one chest carried a price tag of $800.

"But if I bought that today in France it would cost $1,000," she says.

* * *

Other French country furniture in the show ran well over the $1,000 mark.

FRENCH ROOM

In the French room setting, simplicity was the keynote. The bed was covered in an 18th Century French bedspread in a 1780 balloon design.

Fabric prints on the wall frame included a Jouy fabric, "Le Ballon De Gonesse," designed to commemorate a balloon ascension in 1783.

It shows a frightened peasant about to shoot the strange contraption when it descended at Gonesse. There were other framed fabrics — an idea for anyone with some of grandma's trunks in the attic.

One depicted the aerial carriage that was to fly to China in 24 hours.

While French country and salon furniture always has appealed to Americans, homes won't exactly go to pieces without it.

IRISH AND ENGLISH

There were lovely Irish and English furnishings shown — a rare Sheraton dining table, a set of six painted Hepplewhite arm chairs.

One dealer showed a handsome Queen Anne desk, 1710, and a Chippendale settee, 1760.

American furniture shown by exhibitors included a Connecticut cherry secretary with a broken arch top, a rare Connecticut William and Mary highboy in cherry and there was a distinguished 18th Century Baltimore sideboard.

Many lovely pieces of furniture such as a burl walnut Dutch cupboard with original gilt drawer pulls was almost lost with an eye-catching dessert service of blue English granite by William Ridgway on its shelves.

HIGH PRICES

Such were prices however, that only people of means could afford the really fine porcelains. A small vegetable dish was tagged $550.

One of 100 pieces in the collection of Thomas and Constance Williams noted for pewter, the dish is Green Fitzhugh pattern in Chinese Export Porcelain.

There seemed to be more good paintings than ever available and a great many American primitives. A small primitive water color, 7 by 9, of a child was tagged $750 by James Abbe Jr. of Oyster Bay.

A heartening note for those who feel they can never afford great treasures — something considered odd in the attic or barn may fill the bill. Brought here from the old country by grandparents, it could be gathering dust somewhere.

LAMP BASE

For example, an old French helmet made a charming, different vintage lamp base. A pair of 18th Century ceramic Chinese garden seats were interesting in that they were dragonized dolphins, complete to bulging eyes and horns.

An interesting portrait bust of carved wood that was gessoed (gold trimmed) and polychromed was subject to conjecture. Carved of wood it is a conversational tidbit as the dealer noted in debating its origin.

He reasoned that a ship figurehead carver had no doubt done the bust, perhaps for the owner of the ship.

* * *

There were some Killingworth figures made by Clark Coe, a farmer about 1885. These are little wooden carved figures with movable limbs.

GLASS COLLECTIONS

For those interested in collections of glass and so on, a good antique show can provide them with knowledge.

So much phony stuff is available that to see displays of canary luster, amethyst or amberina glass and pewter can provide a beginner with much more savvy than books.

* * *

It is at such shows of authentic merchandise that color, texture, size and shape can be observed.

Smart Buyers Prove Careful

Most real estate people agree that the smartest home buyers are those who have purchased homes before — they're the ones who really know what to look for.

This wisdom often comes more from what their previous homes didn't have than from what they had — dissatisfaction is an able teacher.

It has been found, for instance, that almost all repeat buyers insist on at least two bathrooms. In most cases, this demand stems from former homes that had "overdemand" for "underfacilities." Anyone who has endured this situation for any period of time will naturally think twice before repeating the mistake.

Another "never again" item that many homeowners steer away from is the small, inadequate kitchen sink. Most homemakers now prefer the double-bowl variety, equipped with food waste disposer.

* * *

Dishwashing is a much simpler chore with this arrangement, since dishes can be scraped, washed and rinsed in one simple procedure, saving both time and work.

RECOGNITION

Wise homebuilders have recognized these demands and now build homes with bathroom and kitchen facilities to match. For maximum convenience, in fact, some even provide a bath for every bedroom, and two separate kitchen sink installations.

Though inadequate plumbing is often the cause that leads families to search for new quarters, it isn't always necessary to move in order to get satisfaction. More and more homeowners today get the kind of bathrooms and kitchens they want simply by remodeling their present homes.

In either case, whether buying or staying put, there is no longer any need to suffer "plumbing deficiency anemia." Take a tip from those who know — provide your home with plenty of facilities and you'll get plenty of satisfaction.

BEFORE YOU BUY OR BUILD A HOME

Ask Yourself The Real Cost of A Mortgage

There's more to a mortgage than monthly payments. Rate of interest, size of down payment, and length of loan are the factors which add up to the real cost of a mortgage. For example, look at the difference made in a typical $12,000 mortgage by paying it off in 20 years and in 30 years:

Term	Monthly Payment	Total Payment	Total Interest
20 Years	$82.55	$19,814	$ 7,814
30 Years	$68.14	$24,538	$12,538

As you see, extending the term cuts your monthly payments by 17%. But it adds 10 years and nearly $5,000 to the cost. And increases interest paid by 60%. With a shorter term, you'd be apt to find additional interest savings as well, since this often permits a more favorable interest rate. (A higher down payment does, too.) Now this doesn't mean you should run right out and sign up for a large-down-payment, short-term mortgage. But it does mean you should think twice before making your home financing decision. Avoid Frills in Child's Playroom

A child's room should have cheerful decor and rugged furnishings without fancy frills.

That's the advice of Jessica Thomas, furnishings specialist for the Flexalum Division of Bridgeport Brass Co.

A child's room, she claims, takes more punishment per square foot than any room in the house. It not only serves as sleeping quarters but as a study area and play area as well.

She recommends:

- Simple, sturdy, long-lasting furniture and window treatments. Venetian blinds, for example, should be of spring - tempered aluminum which snaps back to its original shape after being leaned on or pressed down. Tapes and cords should be of tough, dirt-resistant plastic.
- Stainproof plastic finishes on desks and other bedroom furniture, as well as washable wallpaper and wear-resistant vinyl or vinyl-asbestos flooring.
- Good lighting, both natural and artificial. Desks should be located near windows and the venetians adjusted to permit plenty of light and air to enter while eliminating glare. Artificial light over desks and study chairs should be strong enough for long hours of reading without eyestrain.

Fancy decor is usually a waste of time in a child's room, when not in use. A large walk-in closet on the opposite side of the island divider allows ample space for guests' wraps as well as providing a concealed entrance to the back of the bar.

Two Dining Areas Ample for Family

How many dining areas does the average home need?

Surprisingly, the answer is only two. And even more surprisingly, the average family home has at least three — a breakfast bar, a family room eating area, and a living room dining ell.

Top home designers point out that providing varied eating areas throughout the house waste space — and that the average family can scarcely afford wasted space.

Ideally, there should be a breakfast nook which is large enough to accommodate the meals.

A bar is no substitute, say these knowledgeable designers, since it's uncomfortable, unattractive, and promotes both poor manners and bad eating habits.

In addition to the breakfast nook, the home needs a good, separate dining room.

DINING ROOM

If properly designed, this dining room will work as well for pleasant, relaxed family meals on a daily basis as for formal dining.

The key to its versatility lies in the shell. Walls should be rich and textured but neutral.

Wood paneling, especially a golden toned wood like western hemlock or ponderosa pine, is perfect for the purpose.

★ ★ ★

The floor should boast a good rug that works as a background color for both best china and casual dinnerware.

A tweed that combines many shades of a basic color group is often the answer and will work as a neutral. There's no need to resort to the appalling blandness of beige or gray.

The dining set must also be versatile, but again definite character is often the key to success.

★ ★ ★

A fine old mahogany table might be just the thing combined with ladder back, rush seat chairs.

VERSATILE SETTING

This sort of setting can dress up to candlelight and silver or dress down to gay pottery and brightly colored place mats.

To make the dining room functional for everyday use, built-in china closets should be included. These work best when built into the wall adjoining the kitchen.

Upper cabinets then can have doors on either side to permit loading from the kitchen and unloading directly to the dining room table.

Base cabinets can be designed with pull-out trays for linens and flat silver.

Lumber Cost Not Out of Line

How much lumber goes into building a house?

The U. S. Labor Department reports that lumber and lumber products make up 40 per cent of the materials used in home construction — but that they account for only 19 percent of the total construction price.

★ ★ ★

The construction dollar for a single family dwelling is divided up this way, according to the report: 48 per cent for materials, supplies and equipment; 22 per cent for wages to on-site workers; and 30 per cent for overhead, such as administrative off-site salaries, expenses for sales office and yard operations, profits, and related items.

★ ★ ★

That means the materials that go into a home are still the best buy and that the high-quality western lumber and other wood products used for the house framing, flooring, roofing, cabinetwork, paneling, trim, window sash and moldings are still a real bargain, taking only 19 cents out of every dollar paid for a home.

Improved Methods Lower Maintenance

Wood Exteriors Have High Appeal

The architectural styling of wood exteriors has been greatly encouraged by new and improved methods of minimizing maintenance.

In the case of lumber that adorns outer house walls, the first prerequisites of low maintenance are proper seasoning and "preshrinking" of the lumber and correct construction.

Seasoning eliminates moisture whose presence might impair the performance of paint or other forms of finish. "Preshrunk" lumber is also uniform in size and nails will not loosen as they do when unseasoned wood dries in service. Such factors are important to the snugness of joints which helps prevent moisture seepage.

Many designers find it helpful, from both security and maintenance standpoints, to specify a strong species, such as Southern Pine, for exterior walls. Strength, nail holding power and wear resistance each occupies a key role in minimizing maintenance.

★ ★ ★

While the casual observer may think that the popularity of rough sawn lumber is due solely to its natural charm, there is also a maintenance factor, since the roughness of the wood surface increases the retention of finish.

NEW STYLING

Rough sawn pine is often utilized in vertical patterns—either boards-and-battens or "reverse batten." The latter is a new styling in which batten strips are under rather than over the spacing between boards. The full thickness of the lumber projects from the walls — a visual effect which enhances the impression of nature.

Exterior stain-type finishes, combining pigment and water repellents, are frequently applied. Pigments provide color of the owner's choice, while the water repellents assure a very durable, low maintenance finish. The stain effects are also easy and economical to apply.

When lumber is used for fencing or for an exposed sundeck without roof cover, the degree of exposure is more severe than with exterior walls, and additional protection is desirable.

★ ★ ★

This is provided through chemical preservatives applied in pressure treatments. The chemicals, which may be clean and odorless, provide immunity to insect attack and conditions of severe exposure. Permanence is assured and the lumber can be finished or not, as the owner desires.

Guidelines for Picking the Builder

There are many good remodeling contractors in every community . . . here are some guidelines for locating the right one.

Choose a locally established firm that has been in business long enough to have a solid reputation and that can be depended upon to make any necessary repairs after the job has been completed.

Whether your contractor is a home modernization specialist, a retail lumber dealer, a home builder or a general contractor, he should be able to take charge of the complete job, lining up sub-contractors for heating, electrical, painting and other phases of the job.

Many firms offer assistance in designing home improvements and will help develop specific plans to fit your general requirements, and many also help arrange financing.

★ ★ ★

Many contractors are members of industry associations which subscribe to business codes of ethics, such as the National Home Improvement Council, the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association and the National Association of Home Builders.

Construction Codes Control Additions

Building codes in most communities regulate room additions as well as new construction. Make certain you and your home improvement contractor are aware of local building code requirements.

Paneling Tips for Lost Cost

Discriminating people agree that nothing can beat the rich elegance or the individuality of a wall paneled in solid lumber.

But what kind of paneling should a person choose? Douglas fir, western hemlock, ponderosa pine, western red cedar, Engelmann spruce, or another of the distinctive western species?

Should it be a butt-joint tongue-and-groove wall, or would a pattern be preferable? Is a knotty grade more interesting than a clear grade; would rough-sawn or saw-textured panel boards be better than smooth surfaced lumber?

What will the paneling look like if it's finished clear? Can it be color tinted or stained a natural wood shade?

These questions are answered pictorially in a handsome, 16-page booklet just published by the Western Wood Products Association. The new booklet contains 24 full color photographs showing the 12 western wood species in various applications.

A copy of "What You Can Do with Paneling" is available by writing Department 504-P, Western Wood Products Association, Yeon Building, Portland, Oregon, and enclosing 10c to cover postage and handling.

Let Flooring Rest; Don't Rush Sanding

If you lay hardwood flooring during spring, summer and early fall, when relative humidities are running high, it is suggested that an acclimatization period of two to three weeks be allowed after finish maple or birch flooring has been nailed in place and before any sanding or finishing is started.

In other words, don't rush the sanding and finishing job.

Redyeing Gives Home Needed Boost

If you like to change clothes, to wear something different, you're merely expressing your individual taste and preference on any particular day. A mood, on awakening, can be captured in what you choose to wear, and it's much the same with home decorating.

★ ★ ★

Yet, this results, sometimes, in capturing a mood in your new decor that just doesn't do anything for you or your home six months or a year later.

If you've repainted or papered recently, you know that it costs as much to do three or four rooms as a week's vacation at the beach.

When you come up, therefore, with a new decor that you no longer enjoy, it's hard to justify redoing immediately.

Or, when it's all over, you end up with walls and woodwork that are different but your overall decor is about the same, because you hardly can afford to discard all your furnishings — rugs, drapes, furniture — when redecorating.

Many smart homemakers are creating a far greater change in their home decor by not repainting or repapering. They're redyeing curtains, drapes, slip covers into 'really new' decors.

LONGWAY

Dyeing has come a long way. Today's dyeing processes are much akin to chemical changes (after all, dyestuff manufacturers are the parents of most chemical manufacturers) where you actually make something different from something old.

One smart homemaker I know decided that her spring redecorating was not enough. She had set aside the money to repaper, but decided instead to redye.

The results were remarkable, and at a fraction of what it would have cost to paper and paint. Her living room had a rose-covered wing chair and a large sofa, both in good repair but faded and dried out. Her draperies were solid colors, slightly darker than the rose slip covers. White cotton mesh curtains were behind the draperies. She had, then, a basically "good" room that had grown 'tired' as she had grown tired of it.

★ ★ ★

When she finished her decorating for the spring her walls were the same color as before, merely sponged down, since they had been done in washable paint, originally. But the whole room looked completely different.

She had had her dry cleaner dye her slip covers, carpet and draperies. The rose slip-covers were carefully overdyed — and what a change! A new, dusty beige that actually made the sofa and chair look slimmer and more graceful. The draperies were redyed to the same beige, leaving the white cotton curtains as they were. The carpet went from its original rose to a deep green.

To top it off, she chose a couple of sparkling print reproductions of modern paintings to accent her decor. The finished results bore absolutely no resemblance to her old room. She had accomplished a complete transformation, using only redyeing to accomplish this miracle.

Redyeing isn't any longer hit or miss. With the proper care you can do wonders with household furnishings. New redyeing standards can predict with amazing regularity which colors will do what under various circumstances.

FABRIC IMPORTANT

The fabric in question is of basic importance, and after it the present color, then the new color. Today's miracle fabrics can be dyed just as easily as old fashioned 'pure' fabrics, thanks to a research program that has made redyeing not only economical but a redecorating tool of the first importance.

★ ★ ★

Your local dry cleaner can help you tremendously. Because of the strong progress made in this field, he sends most of his redyeing to members of the Professional Dyers Guild. These members specialize in redyeing, even to doing original dyeing for some of the nation's major manufacturers.

They know what fabrics dye best in each instance, as well as what shouldn't even be attempted. They have uniform charts so that you can choose the colors you want before redyeing with an almost 100% match every time.

★ ★ ★

If you have a favorite color you want to match, and it's not on the charts, ninety nine times out of a hundred they can match it perfectly.

You just provide a sample for them to use as a guide.

Redyeing is the newest decorating tool. Whether you want to change the decor of a bedroom by redyeing the spreads, curtains and rugs, or to make your carpets fresh and new looking, redyeing can do it for you, and for only peanuts.

So, this season, before you give up your hopes for redecorating because of the costs involved, consider redyeing: it can do more for your rooms and at less cost than papering or painting.

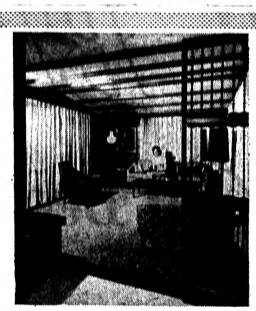
CONVERTED CLOSET — Need an extra half bath? You are in business if you have a closet you can spare. The Milton Cooneys of Washington St., Clarkston converted this bedroom closet into a needed bath for the first floor guest room. Fond of Early American, Mrs. Cooney selected a red-and-white-checked wallpaper and hung white dotted swiss cafe curtains at the window. The black oval mirror and black lanterns with white globes continue the traditional motif.



High Styling—In Budget Housing

Does your taste run to studio ceilings, terrace living room, and sofas that blend into wall-to-wall carpeting? High styling is now available in low cost housing. A national manufacturer is building houses on the assembly line like cars. They can afford topflight interior designers. The dwellings come finished, completely furnished in magnificent decors. Mass production keeps the cost down. They're relocatable, built mobile for delivery to your homesite, lakesite or mountainsite. High style models, at a fourth the cost of conventional furnished housing, are on display at Colonial Mobilehome Sales.

FHA Can Give a Helpful Lift With Financing

In 30 years, the initials "FHA" have come to mean dependability in home financing. Many people think of FHA-insured home improvement loans in the same way, and for good reason.

★ ★ ★

Why has the Title I program proved so popular? There are many reasons. But the main ones are; the program's economy, its simplicity, and its built-in consumer protection.

Financing costs on Title I loans are among the lowest generally available. Moreover, there are no hidden costs closing costs, or other extras.

The loans are made by banks and other FHA-approved lending institutions. In most cases, the contractor you pick to do the job will arrange for the Title I loan. All he needs is your application.

★ ★ ★

No down payment is necessary, and usually no security other than your signature is taken.

★ ★ ★

Since most cases require only the lender's approval, generally you will get an answer to your application in one day.

Housewide System for Vacuuming

Here's something under the heading of "why didn't you think of that before?"

It's a centrally-installed vacuum cleaning system, featuring a remote power unit and simple wall receptacles in various parts of the house. The advantages are many. Such a system is:

- Cleaner: there's no recirculated dust and dirt.
- More efficient because of a much more powerful vacuum motor.
- Safer: there are no electrical cords involved or lifting of equipment up and down stairs.
- More convenient: there's no equipment to assemble.
- Durable, it lasts the life of the house.
- Noiseless—the vacuum motor is in a remote location.

With it the housewife merely inserts a lightweight flexible hose into an attractive "inlet" on the wall or floor, presses a button on that inlet and vacuums easily without having to drag a tank around the floor.

By using a heavy-duty industrial motor as a power supply, the efficiency of such a system is said to be several times greater than is possible with portable cleaners.

* * *

All the noise, dust and dirt is removed to a location outside the living area, and by use of special multigallon disposable paper bags, the system need not be emptied more than three or four times a year for the average home.

PIPING USED

In many ways similar to a plumbing system, the installation incorporates piping that leads from room inlets and feeds into the central vacuum unit in the basement, utility room, garage or other remote location.

* * *

Also like plumbing, the vacuum system is installed in the home by a plumbing contractor, who will assure the same high standard of workmanship given to other piping installations.

Home owners desiring further information about built-in vacuum cleaning systems should contact a qualified plumbing contractor, or write to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau at 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., 60601.

Basic Safety Rules Assigned to Ladder

Never use a stepladder in a closed position, as if it were a straight ladder.

Whenever possible, stepladders should be used fully spread and locked open for maximum safety.

VERSATILE PANELING — Just the thing to add the decorator's touch to your office, den, library or family room, low cost padded vinyl paneling. Available in a wide selection of colors and patterns, owners can mix or match their own designs. In the above business office, a coppertone background highlighted with gold insets complements the light birch paneling of the room. Further color accents are achieved through the dark tones of the furniture pieces. Easily cleaned with a damp cloth or sponge, the padded vinyl can be mounted on any wall or ceiling surface. Installed locally by the Atlas Construction Co., the material carries a 20 year guarantee.

Winter Rough on Houses; It's Time to Check Damage

No season is tougher on a house than winter. Cold and dampness take their toll. Excess humidity inside a house pushes through walls ruining exterior surfaces.

Outside, freezing makes painted surfaces brittle causing them to crack. Hairline cracks in mortar and concrete fill with moisture and alternate freezing and thawing exert enough pressure to make large openings.

With the first break in the weather, the home owner should make an inspection tour. Early repair will prevent more serious trouble.

Start at the top and work down. Take a look at the roof to see if the wind has raised, broken or blown away any shingles. Nail them down and use some roof cement around the nail to prevent leaking.

* * *

Flashing around chimneys and dormers may be rusted or broken loose. Heavy roofing cement will seal the trouble spots.

GUTTER TROUBLE

Look at gutters and downspouts. Snow and ice may have loosened gutters or caused them to sag.

Debris may have accumulated at downspout openings. Seal rusted out spots with roofing cement, large spots with a patch of canvas, fiberglass or a piece of the same type of material of which the gutter is made. Seal the area with roofing cement.

Your chimney, stone steps and the entire wall of a brick house need careful inspection. Look for loose mortar. Scrape it out and replace with ready - mix mortar.

* * *

Wooden houses should be inspected for loose, cracked or damaged boards.

Nail down loose boards, seal the nail heads with aluminum paint and then put on a dab of paint that matches the house.

The aluminum paint will keep the nail head from rusting and bleeding through the finish paint.

Badly damaged boards should be replaced. Cracks in boards should be filled with calking.

Clean out bad calking compound and replace with fresh. Don't work on moist surfaces or on a drizzly day. You will only seal the moisture in.

LOOSE PUTTY

Loose putty should be cleaned out and replaced. It will end some annoying rattles.

While it will be too early to put up screens, it's a good indoor, rainy-day job to get them patched and painted.

Look at your yard. After a rain or a heavy thaw large puddles will tell you where the low spots are.

Fill them with soil to avoid future drainage problems.

Large branches on trees may have cracked or become weakened. Cut them off or get a professional tree surgeon to do the job.

Your Top Buy in Sanders Isn't the Least Expensive

Nothing pleases a dealer more than to have a customer say, "I'll take one of each."

But most purchasers have to make a choice — and this involves a decision on what item will give the most for the money.

In the selection of power tools in general, and electric sanders in particular, the best buy is not the least expensive, even if the machine is of good quality. It is the one which does the job properly.

A small vibrator sander isn't going to be of much help if most of your sanding operations are heavy duty. Nor will a disc sander satisfy your needs if you are primarily concerned with the final finishing of wood or metal.

Granted, then, that the type of sander chosen is most important, let's look at some of the more common kinds of portable power sanders now on the market.

The vibrator sander has a magnetic power unit and operates only on AC because it is activated by the pulsations of alternating current. It is an excellent light-duty machine that should not be expected to be a workhorse.

An orbital or oscilating sander, which operates on either AC or DC, will handle larger jobs. Like the vibrator sander, it is essentially a final finishing sander, but is strong enough to handle rough sanding on occasions.

Portable belt sanders, with abrasive belts which run continuously over pulleys or drums, are what might be called power-plus machines. They can handle any job which falls into the rugged category.

However, in this case, as with the sanders mentioned above, the type of abrasive used plays a part in what can be done. Thus, using a fine grade abrasive belt would enable the belt sander to tackle delicate work, but the operator would have to handle the machine carefully to get the best results.

The disc sander, either as a separate machine or when used at the business end of a portable electric drill, is mainly for the rapid removal of stock where an exceptionally fine finish is not important.

* * *

It can be a life-saver when used for this purpose, but has a tendency to leave swirl marks on a surface and so is not generally recommended for final finishing operations. A new type

To Exterior Paint

Water Key Threat

For many years, it has been generally known that most of the cases of unsatisfactory performance of exterior house paints can be traced back to water, in one form or another.

The water finds its way behind the paint film, saturates the wood, promotes decay and destroys the adhesion of the paint to the surface.

Home owners tend to blame this condition on the paint, but investigations have shown that water is the primary offender and should be gotten rid of before you can obtain a high-grade paint job and protect your home.

Once the idea of water has occurred to home owners, they are still not helped unless some useful suggestions are given for curing the problem.

* * *

The following hints are easy remedies which may not always be the solution for advanced moisture problems but which can be cures for a large number of cases.

LEAKY PIPES

- Look in the attic for leaky pipes. This source of water may seriously damage all construction materials.
- Install flashing at headers and set squared ends in paint to prevent water from entering. Leaky joints are the cause of many paint troubles.
- Water in basements may come from leaky walls or pipes. See that good drainage is provided and stop all leaks.
- Seal the ends of siding with paint before the siding is put in place.

* * *

- Tighten up poorly joined window heads and siding butts. This guards against paint defects due to moisture.
- Install metal flashings over a drip cap. This prevents many types of troubles from moisture.
- Make sure that the siding doesn't touch the damp ground. This way, moisture won't be absorbed and paint won't scale.
- Whether your roof is made of tile, slate, wood shingles or of other materials, be sure it receives periodical attention to safeguard your home against moisture problems.
- Moisture from new plaster passes through the walls in the form of vapor and condenses on the back of the siding. You can prevent this by keeping the windows and the doors open following the plastering operation. Lumber siding should be thoroughly dry when being painted.
- Remember to check underground walls to be sure they are waterproofed.

Wood Paneling Lends Character

Need a neutral?

When working with walls don't give in to the common solution, which is more often blah than neutral.

Instead, try installing lumber panel boards in handsome, golden - toned ponderosa pine or western hemlock.

Rather than the appalling blandness of off-white or beige paint, you'll have introduced rich texture, a warm glow, and friendly character which enhances any room setting.

ENTERTAINMENT CENTER—The Harold Gordons of Briarcliff Drive, Franklin have cleverly concealed their family room entertainment center. Hidden under a projection which displays a portion of Mrs. Gordon's pewter collection is a pull-down movie screen. A color television is housed on a movable tract within a wall compartment. When the television is not in us, the closed doors blend perfectly with the room's oak paneling.

Used Homes More Popular Than New

It has been estimated that one out of every five families will move in 1965, and in most cases this will call for the selling of one home and the buying of another.

If you are one of those planning to sell, you'll be interested to know that used homes are currently outselling new ones by a ratio of three to one.

According to a recent nationwide survey conducted for the home building industry, the three things most desired by used home buyers are:

- closeness to schools;
- nearby shopping facilities;
- up-to-date bathrooms.

There isn't much you can do about the first two demands. But you can do something about the bath. A remodeling job using a durable material such as ceramic tile on walls and floors probably will help sell your house faster.

* * *

It's virtually certain to add to the sale price of your home, for people like ceramic tile's durability and ease of maintenance.

A tiled bath will look like new when your house goes up for sale, whether it be next week or many years from now.

The average U.S. housewife walks nearly eight miles a day — mostly in and around her dwelling.

Pool Tips Offered in New Booklet

A cheerful herald of spring is the announcement today by the National Swimming Pool Institute that it has just published a new edition of its free booklet, "How to Select a Swimming Pool."

This spring, the Institute predicts, a record number of homeowners will discover that swimming pools are within their reach. Median price of the 56,700 residential pools built last year, it points out, was just under $3,700, and easy payment terms now are widely available.

The booklet, which can be obtained by writing NSPI, 2000 K St., N. W., Washington, D. C., covers some of the questions most commonly asked by prospective investors in home pools. NSPI Executive Director Robert Steel uses the word "investors" because the Institute has found that a pool significantly enhances the value of a residential property.

A sunny spot is recommended for the pool location, with some sort of shelter against prevailing winds. With a further assist from a pool heater, a much longer swimming season then can be enjoyed.

* * *

The booklet advises having an experienced NSPI builder study the site from a technical standpoint; this often will save considerable money.

HOW BIG?

How big a pool should you build? Dimensions of 12x27 are considered the minimum practical, but 20x40 is the favorite family size for real swimming and diving. Diving requires an appropriate combination of water depth, board length, and distance of board from water.

Pools now are available in a great variety of shapes and materials. The booklet lists kidney, oval, round, and even four-leaf clover shaped pools, made of concrete, vinyl, fiber glass, steel, aluminum, etc. Choice depends on climate and other factors on which an NSPI builder can offer reliable advice.

When it comes to equipment, the Institute says that most installations these days include in the purchase price a filter equipped with pump, diving board, underwater light, leaf skimmer, vacuum cleaner, ladder, and lifeline anchor. Through proper use of these devices, the same water can be used over and over yet test purer than the water from your tap, and total consumption will be less than in sprinkling a lawn of equal size.

* * *

The booklet also gives the homeowner advice on contracts and other details involved in making a pool purchase.

Discard the Strip if Damaged

When laying hardwood flooring and you split the tongue, remove the strip and relocate it over other joist crossings.

If you still split the strip after relocation, it might as well be discarded.

When operating a food waste disposer, it is important to provide a steady stream of cold — never hot — water for rapid flushing action, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

It's Important to Use the Right Hammer

A hammer is a hammer . . . so many a handyman thinks. Not true according to the pros who know the importance of selecting the right tool for the right job.

Hammers required to do specific jobs are so numerous that one company alone manufactures more than 165 varieties.

How do you pick the best all-around hammer for the home? First off, it's called a "nail hammer," and here are a few tips to help you select the right one.

Nail hammers are divided into two basic types — curved claw for hefty leverage when pulling nails and ripper claw for ripping and prying materials like floor moldings.

* * *

Weight is important. Nail hammers are classified by head weight, ranging from 7-to-24 ounces.

IN BALANCE

Handle weight is not a factor because it is in direct weight proportion to the head and thus, balanced.

The best all-around head weight for the handyman is 16 ounces. The ladies lean toward a seven - ounce head weight, a light hammer good for jobs using small nails, brads and tacks.

Thirteen ounces is the size for precision nailing jobs and is known as the "cabinetmaker's weight. This, too, is a popular household hammer.

* * *

Twenty-ounce and 24-ounce head weights are for heavy-duty jobs such as crating, framing, flooring or driving large nails.

MUSCLES NEEDED

A word of caution . . . you'll need muscles for these weights.

Factors that determine cost are head weights, shapes and faces and handles.

Heads are shaped in three patterns — octagon, bell face or plain face. From the standpoint of utility, all perform equally well.

The octagon is the most expensive because of its quality appearance and full-polished, eightsided neck. Bell and plain face patterns are less expensive and usually have painted heads with polished faces.

CROWNED FACES

Hammer striking faces are slightly crowned to drive nails flush without damaging the work surface. A milled face is the exception.

This is a grooved, cross-hatched striking surface that allows an off-center strike with-less chance of mashing your thumb.

Handles are classified by material and grip. Tubular steel handles are the strongest and interestingly enough, evolved from a golf club shaft.

* * *

This handle has good shock absorbing qualities.

WOOD HANDLES

The majority of the familiar wood handles are hickory, hardened by fire to resist wear, splintering and weather. Other wood handles usually are plain hickory.

Tubular steel handles all have grips — many cushioned like golf club handles — to absorb shock. Wood handles come both with and without grips.

Prices vary from under $2 to about $6 depending upon a combination of all these factors.

A good tubular-steel handle hammer, regardless of claw, will cost between $4 and $6. With a milled face, the cost will be slightly higher.

Do not apply wood filler over close-grained hardwood flooring such as maple, beech and birch. Filler is only necessary with the open grain species of wood.

The Maple Flooring Manufacturers Association, one of the oldest trade group organizations, celebrates its 68th anniversary this year.

Bathrooms Beautified With Rich Pine Paneling

In addition to a wide range of warm colors in tiles and waterproof wall coverings, soft floor coverings and other more decorative touches, rich, warm wood paneling and wood built-ins add new charm to bathrooms.

Wood paneling such as western pine, for example, offers beauty of grain, texture and finish.

* * *

Thanks to treatment with modern sealers and finishes, these woods will withstand the humidity and common abuses that prevail in a bathroom.

Built-in vanities with generous counters and storage space, linen cabinets, laundry bins — even your washer and dryer can be built into your bathroom as space permits.

Remodeling Raises Over-All Home Value

Cleaning up a gingerbread-laden exterior, or surfacing kitchen counters with ceramic tile, are measures that obviously make a home a better place for living.

Besides the immediate result, remodeling also accomplishes several long-range goals: it increases the homeowner's equity and—if enough neighbors also improve their nests — it raises the whole neighborhood's value.

Prevent Clutter— Install Cabinet for Equipment

If you have a busy family that loves to be outdoors and which leaves a clutter of toys, games and sports gear all over the lawn and patio, then listen to this solution.

At one end of your patio, design a small enclosed structure about seven feet high with a slightly sloping roof that drains rainwater away from the patio.

Frame the structure in easy-to-handle Douglas fir or other western softwood.

You will find that 2x4s will be ample size for the framework.

* * *

The structure probably should be over three feet deep and you may wish to have it long enough to run along one edge of your wood patio.

NARROW WIDTHS

Side the small building with narrow widths of western red cedar tongue-and-groove boards for the best appearance and performance.

You can install shelves for toys, and racks for garden tools and sports gear.

It is amazing how clean your yard will become when you provide an easy, handy, nearby storage house.

Paint the structure the same shade as your home, unless you desire some other brighter color for contrast.

OUTDOOR DINING: Tonight, will you dine indoors or out? The question is a natural when the dining room is extended outside by a broad Douglas fir deck equipped with picnic table that remains in all weather. Arrangement makes outdoor dining completely convenient and comfortable, and deck is decoratively compatible with dining room's sophisticated western wood paneling.

Annual Spring Exodus to Begin Soon

The minute spring announces itself, all thoughts turn to getting out of doors.

For many families, the first idea will be to organize a back yard cookout, providing they can avoid the complexities of the project. But how can you eliminate the problems and still retain the fun?

One answer is to keep the cooking in the kitchen, but do the eating outdoors. It's not an impossibility, especially if you build an outdoor extension to the dining room.

And there's a good spring home improvement project.

* * *

The very best plan puts the extension right at the floor level with the dining room and immediately adjoining. In most situations, a wood deck can be employed for the job since a deck can be built without first having to grade the land underneath.

BOOKLET AVAILABLE

The project often can be handled on a do-it-yourself basis, and help is available in booklet form at most lumber yards. Materials needed will be Douglas fir posts and beams for the framework, and Douglas fir 2x4s for the deck boards.

The framing members are chosen according to the size of the planned deck and also according to its intended height above grade. Deck boards are most often 2x4s, laid either flat or on edge and spaced an eighth inch apart for water drainage. However, 2x6s and 2x8s may also be used, laid flat.

Paint or exterior grade stain may be used on the deck, but it is often more satisfactory to let the 2x4s weather naturally.

Such an installation can be added to an older home as easily as to a new home, and a deck is in perfect keeping with traditional architecture.

For a home of traditional design, however, French doors may be used to connect the deck and dining room rather than sliding units.

To make a pleasant indoor-outdoor relationship, some natural woods may be used inside the dining room, in the form of wall paneling or built-ins. Western woods like hemlock, ponderosa pine and western red cedar are ideal in such use.

Once installed, the dining deck will prove a true delight, and the matter of eating indoors or outdoors becomes a last-minute decision involving no more work than a couple of steps.

Today's modern, hydronic (hot-water) boiler is only a fraction the size of its bulky predecessor and consequently requires far less space in the home.

Attic Dorm Aids Space Problems

The Joseph A. Gueydans of New Orleans are no strangers to space problems, being the parents of five.

As long as the children were very young, matters were not too acute. The use of double-decker ranch style beds for the youngsters conserved space and provided a temporary expedient.

This became inadequate, however, when the children reached their teens. Like most teen-agers, the Gueydan group wanted rooms of their own and a little privacy in recreation and study.

While Gueydan considered a move to a larger home, he was reluctant to leave the existing dwelling since it was close to his business and because he and his wife were fond of the location and their many friends and neighbors.

* * * *

The way the problem was eventually solved should be of interest to all overcrowded families whose homes have attic space to spare or else sufficient room under the roof to accommodate additional living area.

ONE STORY

The Gueydan residence was one story and did not have an attic. What it did have that gave the father his ideas was a high pitched roof with framework-in-being for attic rooms.

Gueydan decided to create an attic "dormitory" where his teen-age children would live together but with far more elbow room than that to which they were previously accustomed.

For the most part, the transformation was accomplished with standard lumber — subflooring and a finished floor applied to the existing ceiling joists . . . wood paneling to the vertical 2x4s that framed the walls.

In addition, Gueydan installed an acoustical ceiling. All lumber was "preshrunk" Southern pine — specified because of its high resistance to wear as well as its attractiveness. The owner knew the "dormitory" would be subject to rough treatment and wanted a wood that was not easily blemished or scarred.

INSULATION

The high insulation value of the lumber was also important because of the proximity of the attic area to summer sun.

* * *

Gueydan divided the "dormitory" into two sections — each with two beds, desk and bath. Built-in cabinets and drawers were installed to further increase space.

Two-Level House Plan Now Offered

A new two-level house plan developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture may be just right for that sloping site you would like to build on, according to Mrs. Carol C. Kurth, county extension agent, home economics.

USDA housing specialists have designed this four-bedroom house with the sloping site in mind. Part of the basement has full-sized windows.

The basement provides an added area for family living where a fourth bedroom and a second bathroom are located. There is also space for recreation and utility rooms, space for storing canned goods and a closet for work clothes.

An outside entrance to the basement workroom permits washing up before you go upstairs to the main part of the house.

With these facilities in the basement, there is more space upstairs for a roomy kitchen and dining area.

* * *

On the first floor, the front door opens from the porch into a small entrance way at one end of the living room. Here there is space for a built-in desk, a music unit or another closet.

The upstairs bath has two lavatories. If you have a small child, the space for one could be used as a baby dressing table.

You can order the working drawings of this plan, number 7151, from the Oakland County extension office, 155 N. Saginaw. It costs $1.

Easy to Install and Handle

Wood Offers Wide Use

Everybody loves a wood finish and its beauty. So much is it in demand that we find it printed on wall paper, lithographed and veneered on wall panels and imitated in every other conceivable way.

Yet the genuine, the richest wood beauty of all is no farther away than your favorite retail lumber yard.

That's your source of solid lumber paneling — solid wood clear through.

The charm and warmth of its natural grains, fine textures and orderly knot arrangement go far more than "skin" deep, and show in delicately moulded edge patterns, or in the solid wood of exposed edge grains.

* * *

Just knowing lumber paneling is so "deep" in this rich beauty being solid boards gives you a lift, a sense of genuine luxury and security that enhances your enjoyment of a room.

It's nice to have such a room waiting whenever you want to use it.

EASY TO HANDLE

No other modern wall covering material is easier to handle and install; it can be applied in so many different and interesting ways, tinted so many colors and so easily maintained.

Wood can be used to create so many theme or visual effects. It can harmonize so well with every decorative plan.

Wood proves its popularity by coming in "something for everybody" sizes . . . in all popular widths: 6, 8, 10 and 12 inches.

Choose your favorite paneling pattern for individuality without limit . . . each one can be used in any room of your home, for any style of furnishing, and for every installation design.

Takes More Time to Lay Wood Floor

A good floor installer will remind the homeowner that it may take a little longer to lay a sound hardwood floor. Actually, there's very little more work to good workmanship than to poor workmanship.

BIRCH FOLDING DOORS — The guest closet in the vestibule area of the Chesire ranch at 3609 Lorena, Watkins Hills, features folding double birch doors. A black wrought iron railing separates the entry from the traditionally furnished living room. The model may be duplicated on your lot for $18,800. It has a full basement and two-car attached garage with cement drive.

Many active families today need extra living space . . . perhaps a playroom, sewing room, den or guest room. That unfinished second floor, attic or basement space becomes an extra living area with little effort and cost.

No special skills are required, material costs are surprisingly low, tools needed are few. If necessary, low cost home improvement loans are available through local banking institutions.

Actual construction work starts with installation of framing for the walls and partitions of your proposed room. In the case of a basement, place framing a minimum of "4" from masonry walls to guard against the possibility of moisture penetration.

First a 2"x4" wood bottom plate or base is installed along the four sides of the new room. Mark crosses on these bottom plates at 16" centers, beginning at the corner of the room, to indicate where your upright 2"x4" wall studs will be positioned. Directly above the bottom plates, install a 2"x4" wood top plate against the existing ceiling joists.

* * *

Where this top plate is at right angles to the ceiling joists, nail firmly at each intersection. Where your top plate runs parallel with a ceiling joist and coincides with it, nail it firmly to the bottom edge of the joist.

VERTICAL STUDS

Now you're ready to install vertical studs. Saw stud lengths individually. Place them on 16" centers between the bottom and top plates and nail securely to both.

Recesses for built-in furniture cabinets or closets should be framed in the same method you have framed the walls. At this point, any required rough plumbing, heating and electrical work should be installed.

Door and window openings should be framed with double 2"x4" 's. Be sure all door and window framing is absolutely plumb on all sides. At door openings, cut out bottom plate.

* * *

If you're converting an attic, supplement the wood framing already there with the necessary additional framing for partitions, ceilings, cabinets.

INSULATE

For year 'round comfort and long term saving on heating bills, you'll want to insulate. Your new room will also be cooler in the summer.

For walls, or sloping areas, you can easily install batt or blanket insulation with an Arrow T-50 automatic staple gun. You'll be able to drive in staples with a minimum of time and effort.

The best time to insulate the ceiling of a new room is when you're putting on the furring — the 1" x 3" wood strips installed at right angles to the wood framing.

* * *

One of the simplest, least expensive ways of achieving an atractive, decorative wall is the use of insulating board wall plank, purchased in cartons from your local building supply dealer. The cartons should be opened 24 hours prior to application, so that the plank will become acclimatized to the temperature or moisture conditions of the room.

Later, plank is easily cut to proper length with a fine tooth saw.

WASH HANDS

Wash hands thoroughly to guard against soiling plank in handling. It can then be applied vertically or horizontally to the furring . . . according to effect desired. You'll find that heavy duty coated staples with a 9/16" leg hold most securely.

With walls finished, you're now ready for treatment of the ceiling. For the attractive, sound proof, modern room you want, accoustical panels that contrast or blend with the wall plank is your best bet.

Before buying, measure ceiling area for width and length. Consult your building supply dealer and he'll advise you as to the number of panels needed.

* * *

Open the cartons of ceiling panel ahead of time, as you did with the wall plank. Mix panels from several cartons for the best blending of finishes. For best installation results, use the Arrow Ceiltile staple which is specially designed to prevent fracturing of tile flange. Apply staples with the same T-50 staple gun used for insulating.

START IN CORNER

Starting in the corner, apply the first panel. Strike a chalk line, even with the first panel, to serve as a guide and to keep the row of panels straight.

Durable, easy to apply and maintain, and decorative — vinyl asbestos tile makes the best floor covering for your new room.

If the room is irregular in shape, measure as though it was a perfect rectangle without any breaks. Determine the center of both ends and strike a line through these points. Another line is then drawn through the center of the first, and at right angles to it.

* * *

Lay a row of loose tiles along each line with edges of the tiles exactly on the lines. If border spaces are not the same, or are less than a half-tile wide, shift the row one-half tile and strike new lines.

LAY TILES

Now start laying the tiles at the intersection of the lines, working in a semicircle with the T-50 gun.

Since the walls, ceiling and floor are already prefinished, you need only paint the wood trim, windows, door and cabinet work.

Before painting, fill all nail holes and cracks with putty. Proper preparation of the surface is necessary for successful painting. Remove all dirt, oil, grease and loose material from surfaces to be painted, and sand out rough spots.

* * *

In applying enamels, on new wood, start with a good wood primer, then apply an enamel undercoater, tinted to match the final coat. Next apply the finish coat of enamel. Sandpaper the surface after the first coat if a second coat is to be applied.

Paint according to manufacturer's directions.

* * *

For the final touches that put your personal craftsman's mark on the room, you might add a window seat padded with foam rubber and staple vinyl covering. Left over 2"x4" 's and wall planks need not be wasted. An attractive snack bar can be fashioned from these. That extra room and the fun is will bring for the family, is just a little work away.

Protection, Home Value Factors in Closet Lining

Do you have a Fibber McGee closet in your house?

Most everyone does, and the best solution is to empty it completely and start all over.

Discard some of the accumulated junk but, before you put the rest of the things back, give some thought to making a few real improvements.

It doesn't take too much in the way of shelves, dividers, hangers or racks to convert a cluttered closet into an organized storage area.

* * *

One major improvement that will pay off in the long run is the application of aromatic red cedar closet lining to the walls and perhaps the ceiling and floor.

MOTH-REPELLENT

This will provide moth-repellent protection for your woolens and furs and, at the same time, increase the value of your home. Cedar closets are growing increasingly popular and more than repay for themselves when a house is sold.

Material for cedar-lining a closet comes in easy-to-handle pieces which are nailed directly to the wall. The pieces are tongue-and-grooved on both edges and at each end to simplify installation.

No great carpentry skill is required to do the job. Cost of finishing the average closet is about $50.

* * *

In addition to lining the closet with cedar, you'll want to build into the closet shelves and dividers that will put all available space to work for you. A vertical row of shelves for the storage of shoes and accessory items, for example, will work wonders in keeping the floor uncluttered and easy to clean.

HANGER BARS

Hanger bars, too, should be arranged to reduce the amount of dead space. Consider the possibility of "decking" the hanger bars—one bar about 6 feet off the floor, the other about 3 feet.

Usually, a closet will have a single shelf extending from one end of the closet to the other, just above the hanger bar. If space permits, consider a second shelf halfway up the wall. This will provide greater flexibility for storage as well as easier access to the articles stored.

The key to closet organization is planning. It takes little, both in time and money, to restore order to closet chaos. It's time and money well worth spending.

SPICE CABINET — By adding shelves and shuttered doors, Mrs. John L. Scolaro of 3610 Franklin, Bloomfield Township, converted a useless wall niche into a handy spice cupboard. To add contrast to her kitchen print wallpaper, and interest to the cabinet, she framed the latter with black wrought iron trivets.

Makes Home Safer, Decorative

Modern Living Demands Good Lighting

Modern living demands modern lighting that is suited to the many eye tasks of daily life. Good lighting helps to brighten up the home, making it safer as well as more decorative.

Beginning at the front entrance, a well lighted doorway and path expresses cheerfulness and welcome. There is a convenience and safety for the family as well as guests.

A pair of wall brackets on each side of the main entrance might be used, with 40 watt bulbs in each. If a single fixture is preferred, such as an overhead wall-bracket or a ceiling fixture one 60 watt or two 40 watt bulbs are needed.

Projector lamps inexpensively light driveways and large areas. These come in flood or spot light types, and should be used in weather resistant holders.

Mounted high on the house, under eaves, or on trees or poles, these lights can be directed where needed. Be careful not to shine such lights toward the windows of neighboring houses.

OUTLETS NEAR ENTRANCES

Weatherproof convenience outlets located near the front and back entrances are very useful for plugging in special Christmas lights as well as for electrical barbecue appliances and temporary outdoor lights.

Inside your home, plan to include two kinds of lighting arrangements, general and local.

General lighting is needed in the form of ceiling fixtures, lighted valances or wall brackets, or groupings of portable lamps.

★ ★ ★

Local or functional lighting is needed for special seeing tasks such as sewing, reading, shaving, kitchen activities and benchwork.

1-2 PER CENT

An allowance of from 1-2 per cent of the cost of the home will provide a good variety of fixtures to meet today's lighting standards. For eye comfort, bare bulbs should be shielded by a translucent material.

Flashed opal, ceramic-enameled glass or some plastics are best. Etched crystal, configurated and frosted glass are suitable only for fluorescent and very low wattage incandescent bulbs.

In the living room, family room, and dining area, lighting needs to be flexible. A low level of light is desirable for TV viewing and conversation, with accent lighting by chairs, sofas, and desk.

★ ★ ★

Decorative lighting effect can be used to highlight planters, fireplace, walls, paintings, or other points of interest. With a lighted valance over the draperies the beauty and color of the window treatment is enhanced.

Fluorescent tubes behind the valance are mounted at least four inches from the wall and provide light both upward and downward for general lighting.

Adjustable recessed floods can be directed toward interesting architectural features of the room.

In formal dining rooms, a decorative ceiling fixture centered over the table may provide a pleasing atmosphere. A high-low or dimmer switch allows you to dim the lights when candles are used and yet have good lighting for studying or other activities.

★ ★ ★

Special care should be taken in lighting work areas of the kitchen. A center fixture gives general lighting and shines into the cabinets, but accent lighting is necessary over the sink, range and work areas.

OVER THE SINK

A recessed incandescent light over the sink is desirable. Fluorescent strip lighting under cabinets is effective in lighting work areas.

The bathroom needs both overhead, general lighting and local lighting.

Local lighting at the mirror is essential, and may be provided by two low-brightness units, one on each side of the mirror. Elongated units, installed vertically using luminline or fluorescent lamps, properly shielded, are preferred.

★ ★

Bedroom lighting should create a mood of restfulness and relaxation. For reading in bed, cornice or fluorescent bracket lighting on the wall behind the head of the bed provides one solution. The bottom of the bracket should be 30" from the mattress for adequate lighting.

READING IN BED

Table lamps or pull down ceiling fixtures are both good for reading in bed. The light should be spread by the lamp-shade so it lights the page well.

★ ★ ★

Throughout your home, arrange switches which may be turned on at one entrance and off at the other so you don't need to walk through a dark room.

Carefully planned lighting will add safety, comfort and beauty to your home.

Long Bloom for Gladiolus

Now is the time to plan your gladiolus plantings.

Plan for several plantings — every two weeks, April through June — to provide gorgeous, stately blooms all season long, advises Miss Doris Twinstra, a Grand Rapids garden authority.

Plant gladioli in a cutting garden, rather than as a flower border, she said March 5 at a Michigan State University conference. Grow several of each variety to make possible attractive arrangements, she advised.

Miss Twinstra reported that the color trend in gladioli this year is pink. The Spanish influence will continue to call for brilliantly colored spire-like bouquets, she said. The Jacqueline Kennedy influence will continue to call for open bouquets in the Early American fashion, she added.

Miss Twinstra urged the home grower to add varieties each year, to try new varieties, such as the annual award winners, the miniatures and the butterflies.

HOME GROWERS

Home growers can keep in touch with late varieties and trends through their local gladiolus societies, their garden clubs and the bulb catalogs, she said.

Always buy No. 1 grade bulbs, she counselled.

They should be at least one inch in diameter, but it is not necessary to buy the largest size, she said.

★ ★ ★

American bulbs, she added, will produce just as satisfactory blooms for the home gardener as imported ones.

Before Building Decide Upon Bathroom Plan

Modern bathrooms require just as much or more careful planning as any other part of the house.

Before buying a new home or modernizing an older one, families should take careful stock of their bathroom needs.

How many people are there in the household? What ages? What sexes? How many prefer tub baths and how many showers? What provisions should be made for guests or domestic help?

Family comfort and an agreeable home atmosphere depend to a surprising extent on how efficient the plumbing is. Inadequate facilities mean overcrowding, irritated tempers and impatient waiting in line.

★ ★ ★

Experience proves that families of three or more are being unrealistic if they imagine that one bathroom can adequately serve their needs.

HOME SURVEY

A survey of home buyers shows that six out of seven who bought single-bath dwellings now wish they had two or more baths. Most said they would be willing to pay for the additional facilities.

Bathroom planning should be based on a realistic appraisal of the amount and type of traffic they'll be called upon to handle.

For instance, in a family with several male members, it's a good idea to have twin lavatories to speed rush-hour shaving.

And twin lavatories in their own bathroom with delight teenage girls.

Mother always appreciates a vanity-lavatory in her bedroom to enable her to wash her hair, primp or freshen up in privacy without tying up the bath to the exclusion of other family members.

Many Are Poisonous

Chewing on Plants May Be Dangerous

NEW YORK (UPI) — The leaf of the peach tree looks harmless. Yet it contains one of the most dangerous poisons known, hydrocyanic acid.

Deadly cyanide is packaged in twigs of the cherry tree.

And the leaf blades of rhubarb contain oxalic acid, which causes severe kidney damage.

Marjorie May, director of the home and education division of the Greater New York Safety Council, mentioned these and others as she issued a plea for parents to watch what their children nibble, especially with the green season coming in. Let the adults be on guard, too.

* * *

Eating the daisies may be all right, said Miss May, but there are more than 700 species of plants that are known to have caused illness or death — some of the plants so common they're in home gardens, at the playground, the golf course or picnic area.

The U.S. Public Health Service estimates that 12,000 children each year are poisoned by plants, she said.

The death rate is not known, but she said many youngsters' lives are saved by the quick ingestion of the stomach pump.

"There is no need to stop growing beautiful flowers and plants just because they contain poison," said Miss May. "Just keep them out of your mouth. Train the children not to chew on anything other than known foods, no matter how familiar it is."

* * *

Miss May compiled a list of the common poisoners from the National Safety Council, a publication of the U.S. Printing Office, "Poison Plants in North America," and "Poisonous Plants of the United States and Canada," by John M. Kingsbury.

CAN BE FATAL

The flowers of the narcissus, hyacinth and daffodil are lovely. But poison from the bulbs causes nausea, vomiting and diarrhea, and can be fatal.

Attractively striped "dumb cane" and the familiar "elephant ears" both contain crystals of calcium oxalate which cause painful swelling of the mouth and tongue severe enough to close off air passages of the throat.

Miss May knew of one case history of an executive who absent-mindedly chewed a bit of "dumb cane" which was part of his office decor. He was severely ill for several weeks.

* * *

Rhubarb leaves are not for eating, but Miss May recalled finding in a cookbook a recipe for preparing them much like spinach.

FIVE CHILDREN

One leaf from the flamboyant poinsettia can kill a child. Miss May said there is enough poison in a dime packet of castor bean seeds to kill five children.

She said larkspur, lily of the valley, iris, sweet peas, monkshood, autumn crocus and bleeding heart are a few of the familiar plants which have toxic parts — flowers, stems, leaves, seeds, berries, roots or bulbs.

Don't nibble on laurel, rhododendron, azalea, daphne, oleander and wisteria. People have died merely from eating steaks that were speared with oleander sticks and roasted over a fire, Miss May said.

* * *

Berries attract little fingers — but berries from daphne, nightshade and moonseed (which resembles wild grape) can kill. Jimson weed (also called stinkweed or thorn apple) grows in abundance and is considered responsible for more poisonings than any other plant.

LAWN GRASS SAFE

Ordinary lawn grass is safe, unless it is heavily coated with insecticides. But leave the wild mushrooms to experts.

If humans are so susceptible, what about family pets and other animals?

"The poison might affect them too," she said, "but animals are strangely wise. They don't go around eating wild mushrooms."

Blinds Effect Solar Control

A new problem that has arisen with the growing use of glass in office building construction—internal solar control—is being solved by a method that housewives have used for over three decades — aluminum venetian blinds.

* * *

Studies of the effect of sunlight on glass windows have revealed that an unshaded single plate glass window can transmit 195 total BTU per square foot or more on a summer day. When protected by aluminum venetians, the window transmits only 110 total BTU per square foot, a reduction of 43.5 per cent.

Up until now, housewives have chosen venetians for their unique control of light and air. The emphasis has been on attaining privacy and light at the same time.

On warm summer days, however, shutting the blinds tightly in the morning, before the sun comes up, has been used by many to keep a room cooler during the rest of the day.

* * *

With the growing use of central air conditioning in homes, aluminum venetians will become more important as internal solar controls. The venetians, by fending off the rays of the sun, reduce the air conditioning work load and make for smoother functioning of the equipment and lower operating expenses.

Common Domestic Noises Annoy

According to news reports, more and more husbands are making a habit of stopping off from work at the local tavern before going home to wife and kiddies.

Sound engineers with psychological perception have made some inquiries on the situation and suggest this as the number-one reason: husband and father is postponing as long as possible confrontation with common domestic noises after a comparatively quiet session at the office.

Such "friends" as vacuum cleaners, garbage disposers, and furry ones such as Fido—to say nothing of his own active and outspoken children — produce so much noise that Father is loathe to hasten to his own fireside.

Is this your situation? . . .

* * *

Vacuum cleaner buzzing? TV set chattering away? Garbage disposer unit a-grinding? Wash machine a - swishing and gurgling?

NOISE-LEVEL

Although the acoustical sciences have achieved great things for public, commercial and industrial noise and sound control, high noise - level continues to be a major problem in the home, itself.

In new home planning, provision should be made for separating "naturally - noisy" rooms from the "naturally-quiet" ones; for example, kitchens should be placed as far as possible from bedrooms, etc.

Older homes can gain some noise control by inexpensive, simple-to-do methods: Silent light switches, caulking of window and door frames, weather-stripping of doors, windows and other outside openings, as well as by some of the techniques previously listed.

* * *

With research, development and testing of new materials we may reduce home noises so that Papa will hurry home and Mama will be even nicer to come home to. A "quiet" house may even replace the spirited "happy" hour!

Heating Questions Important

A surprising number of prospective home buyers fail to ask questions about heating when touring homes, probably because most home buying is done in spring and summer when heating doesn't seem important.

* * *

For this reason a home heating check list is compiled. It is recommended that you take it along when you're out looking at homes. Before you buy, you should get "yes" answers to these questions:

Does the system supply the two types of heat that are necessary for complete comfort — radiant heat to offset cold walls and floors, and convected heat to provide gentle circulation of air? Also, are the heat distributors installed at the most effective location, along outside walls and under windows?

Does the system permit freedom of home decoration and not interfere with placement of furniture, drapes or rugs?

* * *

Is the system compatible with a wide choice of equipment for summer cooling to be installed either now or later?

GOOD INVESTMENT

Is the system a good investment? Will it give dependable low-cost service and last for 20 to 40 or more years without costly repairs?

Does the system lend itself to efficient zoned heating for "custom" temperature control in different areas of the house?

Can the system supply year-round hot faucet water for washing, bathing and appliances at low cost without a separate water heater?

Is the system adaptable to automatic snow melting for driveways and walks?

The Council reports that one type of heating system which provides the benefits asked for in these questions is a modern hydronic (hot water) heating system.

Offer Book on Aluminum

Does aluminum siding add to the noise level in a home? It might during a hailstorm, but it won't during an ordinary rainstorm, says the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Co.

In fact, where installed over existing siding, aluminum siding adds a layer of insulation to the home that cuts down on the amount of outside street noise getting through.

* * *

Answrs to these and other questions on aluminum siding are available in a free booklet. For a copy, write to "26 Answers Booklet," in care of Bridgeport Brass Company, Bridgeport Brass Co.

Chief Offers Warning

Signals Indicate Danger of Home Fires

Last year, close to one million American homes were damaged or destroyed by fire—despite massive safety campaigns mounted by civic, educational, insurance and similarly concerned groups.

Most of these fires never had to start, says Chief Jay W. Stevens, director of education for the Institute for Home Fire Safety.

Honorary fire chief of 256 United States cities, Stevens has spent 63 of his 80 years fighting fires and public apathy about the fire problem.

From his long experience, he offers the following list of danger signals, any or all of which could indicate that a fire is about to break out in your home:

- A blown fuse indicates an overloaded or defective circuit. Do not insert a new fuse until you have checked all devices connected to the circuit: you may be drawing too much current and should disconnect one or more appliances, or one of them may be defective.

* * *

Then insert a new fuse of the same rating. If fuses continue to blow, discontinue use of the circuit until it can be checked by an electrician.

- Dimming of lights suggests that the amount of current available at your service entrance is inadequate.

* * *

- Small appliances, such as mixers, fans, electric clocks, etc., that are unusually warm to the touch suggest insufficient lubrication and excessive wearing of the machine parts.

Overheating due to friction may cause machine parts to ignite dust, lint or nearby combustibles. Overheating also causes insulation to break down.

* * *

- Vibration noises or other sounds of "rough-running" in large appliances such as washers, dryers and refrigerators, may signify excessive friction resulting in dangerous overheating.
- Difficulty in lighting fires in fireplaces, stoves or furnaces points to clogged pipes and chimneys.

* * *

- Automatic fuel oil or gas burners that go out frequently in high winds suggest presence of dangerous drafts that may cause "blow-back" and subsequent explosion.
- Gas ranges and stoves that go out repeatedly warn of possible clogged or leaking fuel lines.

* * *

- Excessive quantities of heavy, black smoke leaving the chimney indicates possible unburned fuel and the need to adjust the combustion controls. Unburned fuel in the form of soot collected in chimneys or flues can block the escape of combustion gases and may explode or cause a chimney fire.
- Presence of loose mortar or tile chips at the base of a chimney warn of cracks that could release sparks and gases into the home.

* * *

- High temperatures in walls adjacent to chimney signal chimney cracks.
- Excessive amount of scalding water from the hot water tap indicates possible damage to the heat-limit controls of the water heater. An explosion or ignition of nearby combustibles by heat radiation could easily result.

Hot Water Is First Step in Cleaning

Springtime is hot water time. Soon, with the countless clean-up chores inside and outside the house, your water heater will be called on to furnish a much greater supply.

The first step in tackling spring cleaning this year should be to make sure plenty of hot water will be available when you need it.

Many water heaters are inadequate to meet the demands of special occasions such as house cleaning.

* * *

In fact, many are incapable of supplying enough hot water at the right temperature for modern appliances such as automatic laundries and automatic dishwashers.

NEED REPLACEMENT

For these reasons many water heaters should be replaced.

A properly sized water heater will not only give all the hot water needed, when it is needed, but will also provide longer service.

Reports indicate that the more frequently hot water is drawn from the tank, the more its internal surface is exposed to dissolved oxygen.

* * *

The rate of corrosion is directly related to the amounts of oxygen on the metal surface of the heater.

UNDERSIZED UNIT

In short, an undersized unit, pushed beyond its capacity, will wear out rapidly.

Ideally, the size for a water heater should not be less than 40 gallons.

Your plumbing contractor is familiar with the types of hot water heaters for specific requirements.

He is thoroughly qualified to determine the special and normal needs of your family and to install an efficient and safe unit.

4-Inch Concrete Best for Most Sidewalks

How thick should a concrete walk be? It depends on how much and what kind of traffic will move over it.

* * *

But the most recommended thickness is four inches. A concrete driveway should be at least six inches.

New Projects for Handyman

A booklet of step-by-step directions for building six new outdoor handyman projects using do-it-yourself aluminum has been published.

* * *

The eight-page booklet gives complete illustrated instructions for making a garden cart, a weatherproof car-top carrier, a golf caddy, a barbecue table, a "shishkabober" and a folding camper oven. Each project can be assembled using regular hand or power woodworking tools.

* * *

Titled "Outdoor Projects Quick and Easy to Build with Reynolds Do-It-Yourself Aluminum" the booklet is available free from many hardware and building supply stores.

It also may be obtained by writing Reynolds Metals Co., Dept. PRD89, Richmond, Va., 23218, and enclosing 10 cents to cover costs.

Claims National Survey

Covered Garbage Containers Stop Rats

Home use of the covered steel garbage can is rated the best defense against the spread of disease caused by rats and flies, according to a new national survey of health officers and sanitarians.

★ ★ ★

Ninety-four per cent of the health officers surveyed said the covered garbage can is a major factor in controlling rats and flies and their diseases.

Eighty-six per cent of the recognized experts in environment sanitation said the covered steel garbage can should be included in the ideal home system for handling garbage and trash.

The study, conducted by the Galvanized Ware Manufacturers Council, drew a response from 234 or 39 per cent of the 600 health chiefs surveyed.

★ ★ ★

Respondents included health officials on the state, county and local level. Cities included in the study were all those with population of 250,000 or more, key suburban towns, selected smaller cities and rural communities.

Rats and flies still present a definite health hazard in 47 per cent of the cities, the study showed, and 30 per cent of the nation's cities have unsafe garbage receptacles in more than one-half of their homes and food establishments.

The ideal home system for handling garbage and trash, according to the health officers, would include a food waste disposer and one or more covered galvanized steel garbage cans. The disposer and-or metal garbage can were included in the ideal system preferred by 84.2 per cent of the health officers.

Health officers were asked: "If cost were no factor, which products, alone or in combination, would provide the best home system for handling garbage and trash?"

★ ★ ★

The food waste disposer and covered galvanized steel garbage can comprised the most popular combination, with 30.3 per cent of the health officers listing it as their favorite. The incinerator-covered steel can combination was the choice of 9.4 per cent of the respondents.

● 86 per cent said the covered metal garbage can should be included in the ideal home system, alone or in combination with one of the other products.

★ ★ ★

● 40.6 per cent said the covered galvanized steel garbage can alone presented the best solution to the garbage-storing and disposal problem.

● 5.6 per cent said the food waste disposer was sufficient by itself; 4.7 per cent said an incinerator alone would suffice.

● 3 per cent believe every home should have a disposer, incinerator and a covered metal garbage can.

● Non-metal containers were preferred by 3.4 per cent of the health officers, in combination with one of the other products.

Household garbage and trash are regarded as potential fire hazards by 86.7 per cent of the respondents. Consequently, 98.7 per cent recommend covered metal garbage containers for home use in their areas, according to the study.

THE PROVENCAL—Colonial in the French Provincial tradition, the Provencal, built by Irvine and Conely Builders of Detroit, is located in Olde Franklin Towne. The wooded subdivision is found at Middle Belt Road, just north of Northwestern Highway. Sales agent, Howard T. Keating Co. of 31924 Olde Franklin, Farmington Township, announced the model is open daily from 11 a.m. until dark with the exception of Thursday when it is closed all day. Included in the over 2,635 square feet of living space are four bedrooms.

Right Placing for Thermostat

Your thermostat may be the "mind" of your home heating system, but if it's improperly located, it can make heating "lose its head" in confusion.

★ ★ ★

Modern thermostats are extremely sensitive and accurate, and must be placed where they can best determine comfort needs.

Basically, the control should never be more than five feet or less than three feet from the floor on an inside wall of the home. For best operation, always avoid placing a thermostat in the following locations:

● On an outside wall of the home.

● On an inside wall closer than one stud space to an outside wall.

● Where cold air currents can strike it.

● In bathrooms, kitchens, hallways.

● Near television sets or where heat might affect it.

● On walls near or over a chimney.

● Where the sun can strike it.

● On walls exposed to heat on either side from a range, water heater, automatic washer, dryer, etc.

● In concealed spaces such as closets, behind doors, or where there is poor circulation.

● At the foot of a stairway.

In the hydronically (hot water) heated home, two or more thermostats can be used to control heating "zones."

In this way, separate temperature levels may be maintained for different rooms or parts of the home, depending upon the heating requirements for each.

All thermostat installations should be made by an experienced heating contractor.

★ ★ ★

There is a great deal of know-how required in making a correct installation and it is definitely no job for a "do-it-yourselfer."

Water Tap Location Important

Working in the yard can be fun and rewarding, but it can also be aggravating. Take water, for instance. Did you ever want to water a part of your yard or garden, but before you could, you first had to struggle with "miles" of tangled hose leading from your lone outdoor faucet?

"Green thumb time" is fast approaching and you can do both your yard and yourself a big favor by installing conveniently located lawn faucets.

By having these faucets installed around your house, garage, and yard, you will be able to provide ample water to your garden and lawn area when and where they are required.

For those living in cold weather regions, there is no need to worry about remembering to shut off the outdoor faucets in winter. Frost-proof faucets are available which feature built-in shut-off valves to protect against freezing.

This type of facuet is installed at a slight downward angle that allows natural draining of the water when the valve has been closed.

The location of lawn faucets should be given careful consideration when you and your contractor plan the plumbing system for a new home. In existing homes, contact your plumbing contractor.

Shutters Ideal in Hot Weather

The traditional, movable slat type of window shutters is ideal for window treatment during the hot days of the coming summer.

★ ★ ★

The ability to control the slats, either open, closed or at suitable angles allows for any degree of light and air to suit the homeowner.

Slats tilted at the proper angle shut out effectively the hot sun rays, yet allow sufficient air to provide good ventilation.

Horizontal slat shutters have for years been the most popular, but the new contemporary vertical slat shutters add a touch of the very modern without losing efficiency.

★ ★ ★

In attractive stains or colors, shutters today are a distinct asset to any room in the home.

Good Time to Remodel Your Home

Have you been planning a major addition to your home, like a new room, some extensive storage areas or a new paneled wall?

Then, you better get going because Indian summer days are a good time for such work.

You can leave your doors and windows open. If you have a remodeling job which requires removal of doors and windows already installed, then the fall weather is an ideal assist.

Some home owners will have a simple job such as installing wood paneling over the old papered wall.

New walls of the fine grained and lovely western softwoods, which are so easy to finish, make an old room look chic and exciting.

STORAGE UNITS

If you need to install storage units, any of the easy - to cut western softwoods will serve your purpose.

Of course, if you plan the addition of an entire room, or you have in mind turning garage, basement or attic into a play room, then you have a major remodeling job which requires good weather.

Again when finishing these rooms for play, you should select one of the western softwoods which has good wearing qualities. Douglas fir, hemlock or larch are good for wall surfacing which receives a lot of rough usage.

These woods will resist kicks and knocks and generally just need going over with a damp cloth to make them as good as new after your children have been rough housing.

Red Cedar Is Moth Deterrent

Standard bedroom closets can do double duty if lined with aromatic red cedar. This moth-repellant wood makes the closet safe for bedding, furs and woolens.

Each piece of the rose-and-white wood is tongue-and-grooved to simplify installation.

The pieces are nailed right over the old walls. Once the studs are located, installation proceeds quickly.

★ ★ ★

No finishing is necessary. Paint or varnish would seal in the wood's natural fragrance, which drives away moths.

Bargains Often Just a Spring Racket

Beware of Itinerant Pitchman at Door!

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
United Press International

Along with the first robins and early tulips comes a less welcome harbinger of spring—the itinerant pitchman who just happens to be in the neighborhood with the most marvelous bargains for the home owner.

In the next few months, hundreds of thousands of American families will be victimized by an assortment of con men who step up their activities in warm weather, taking advantage of the home owner's urge to spruce up his property.

Most spring rackets, according to Kenneth B. Willson, president of the National Better Business Bureau, have common characteristics: phony bargains, tricky financing, guarantees not honored, materials misrepresented and performances exaggerated.

Products range from carports and window frames to patios and shade trees, from fictitiously priced shell homes to bargain jobs on driveway resurfacing, he said.

* * *

Home improvement swindles, according to Willson, are the No. 1 spring gyp, with losses probably topping $500 million a year.

With no signs of a let-up in consumer spending for home improvements, he said, there is little doubt that the number of victims and the volume of losses this year will match or exceed the sorry statistics of the past.

The itinerant pitchman comes in a variety of guises, but with a little care can be spotted and easily distinguished from representatives of reputable sales companies.

There is the gutter repairman, the chimney repairman, the roofing expert, the siding expert, the painter with a new-type paint guaranteed to outlast the wood, the quack tree surgeon, bogus termite control expert and the promoter of lightning protection devices that not only are worthless but may be harmful.

* * *

Everything, Willson said, is rather casual, including the price quotation, until the bill is rendered. The price originally quoted has a way of increasing as the work proceeds.

The customary "pitch" of the itinerant is that he was working in the neighborhood, saw the need for his services and can do the job at less than his usual rates because all the necessary gear is nearby.

Among the more common spring gyps, Wilson mentioned:

The seller of an alleged humus calculated to rebuild winter-weary lawns at a price of only $1 or $2 a basket — a price which can quickly skyrocket above $10 if the home owner doesn't keep a close watch.

* * *

Even worse, this so-called humus, frequently is chemical plant waste containing substances poisonous to plant life.

PHONY EXPERTS

There are the phony termite experts who discover termites everywhere — in house rafters, in trees and shrubs, and warn they are about to destroy home and property unless immediate action is taken.

Usually no termites are present and, even if there were, these gyps know nothing about their control.

The fake tree surgeon, with a line of pseudo-scientific jargon not only will overcharge, but may ruin a good tree in a matter of hours.

* * *

The driveway resurfacer who just happens to have enough material left over in his truck to give you a bargain job, quite likely will use a substance that remains a gooey mess for days and may even have a destruction effect on the original surface.

Legion are the home owners sold "magic" lawn seed, trees which will grow to unbelievable heights in just a season; rare bulbs and plants with fanciful names and properties.

To avoid being gypped, Willson suggests you keep the following points in mind:

- Beware the man who rings the doorbell and says "he just happens to be in the neighborhood" with his gardening supplies or home repair equipment.
- Check "amazing" bargain offers before making any commitment. Secure competitive price quotations from established firms on jobs of any size.
- Refuse to be pressured. There is no "emergency" which cannot wait long enough for you to check it out.

The reputable salesman of a reputable firm will not try to pressure you. He will not object to giving you names of customers in the area.

He has nothing to fear if you check him out with a bank, local chamber of commerce or better business bureau.

Locate Patio for Comfort

Changing family living habits have transformed the occasionally used patio into one of the home's most lived-in "rooms."

With its new importance in family life, the outdoor living room should be planned and built with care comparable to the rest of the house.

One question is: Where to put it? West is worst. The afternoon and evening western sun will bake the area.

A south or southwest exposure is excellent for an outdoor room if protected from the western sun.

* * *

Most families prefer their outdoor living area adjacent to the interior living room, with a large window area uniting the two spaces.

To assure heating economy and winter comfort, insulating glass in wood frames is standard.

Stock windows of ponderosa pine are available with double glazing and factory built-in weatherstripping.

* * *

Protection from prevailing winds is another consideration in locating a patio. It can often be situated so that the house is a shield.

Aspirin Is Growing in Trees and Plants?

Everybody knows that aspirin doesn't grow on bushes, but you may be growing a form of it in your garden.

According to the Bayer Co., the list of salicylate-containing plants (aspirin is made of salicylate) includes the willow, orange, apple and cherry trees, grape and strawberry plants, clover, hyacinths, tulips, marigolds and pansies.

Northern Hardwood Used for Paneling

Architects like Northern hardwood flooring for paneling purposes. The less expensive lower grades, with their varied colorations and interesting grain patterns, are highly recommended for innovations of this kind.

Walls paneled with Maple or Birch, both tightly and delicately grained woods, are finished exactly the same as any hardwood floor. Penetrating sealers are popular as finished and after application, they may be waxed if a higher gloss is desired.

The proper installation of insulation in an uninsulated home can trim fuel bills enough to provide one year of free heat in every five.

Installing Stapling in Fiberboard Tiles

Furring or stapling strips used in the installation of fiberboard ceiling tiles should be put up 12 inches apart on center; that is, 12 inches from the center of one strip to the next.

In that way, 12-by-12 inch ceiling tiles can be fitted together at the center of each strip.

Feather Pillow Can Be Given New "Oomph"

Have you ever seen anything more pitiful looking than a feather pillow that's lost its "pouff and plumpness"? What to do about restoring that old fluff to those feathers can be a ticklish question.

Not so, say the experts; you can give the new "oomph" with practically no time and effort on your part.

Use your automatic washer and dryer and follow a few simple suggestions.

Make sure that all rips and tears are mended. If the ticking is torn or worn, place the pillow in an old pillow case and baste the open end closed.

Wash two pillows at a time; place one at each side of the agitator. Set the washer for regular cycle, warm wash and rinse, gentle action. Add a regular amount of detergent recommended for normal soil.

Close Coupling; Storm Insurance

Good homes are sound from the ground up with the quality of foundation and floor structure deserving careful attention.

The foundation should be of adequate depth with the lower elements of the floor structure securely bolted thereto. Close coupling of foundation and structure is essential to offset the effects of violent storms.

*

Framing beneath the floors carries the weight of the entire house and all its occupants and contents. It should have the strength required for this exacting task, stability to assure even floors, and resiliency for walking comfort.

Pre-shrunk lumber provides the desirable balance of resiliency and stiffness.

Magnificent steel bridges are kept safe for transportation by a miraculous, thin film of paint.

Advises Pump to Drain Water

Basement floor coverings are nice — usually — unless the covering is something undesirable.

As an example, most people don't appreciate having their basement floor covered with water. In spite of its unpopularity, however, water is covering plenty of basement floors these rainy spring days.

If water collects in your basement and cannot be drained by gravity into a sewer or other low point, you should make the following provisions:

1. Water in the basement should be directed to and collected in a pit, commonly known as a sump.

2. A pump should be installed in this sump to automatically discharge the water into the sewer, septic tank, or drain leading away from the home.

Without a sump pump your basement can become a center of damage and inconvenience. Even in the best - constructed home, water may collect from appliance leaks, downspouts and seepage from heavy rains.

The installation of a sump pump will provide you with added protection for such basement-based appliances as the automatic washer and dryer, the home boiler and the food freezer. Additionally, your family's recreational activities go on without interruption when the basement remains dry and healthy.

Sump pumps are available in a variety of sizes and types, depending on local load requirements.

Local Committees Solve Grievances

Home builders who are members of the "registered builder" program of the National Association of Home Builders abide by the decision of independent local committees set up to judge disputes with home buyers.

The program has been adopted by more than a third of 326 state or local builder groups.

Get Help From Qualified Designer

Homes Not Hard to Remodel

Although it is possible to enlarge most homes, certain designs lend themselves especially well to modernization.

Three such styles are the rambler, the split-level, and the two-story, all popular homes today.

For those who now own one of these designs and find themselves outgrowing what originally seemed a spacious home, it's reassuring to know that the addition of extra rooms to their home is relatively simple.

The rambler style house is one of the easiest and least expensive houses to remodel.

★ ★ ★

Chances are that the owners of a soundly constructed rambling house can add a room to provide desirable living space and increase the value of their property by as much as, or more than, the cost of the remodeling project involved.

RAMBLER HOME

The design of the typical rambler home provides flexibility in floor plan and the simplicity of its rectangular shape permits a variety of exterior alterations.

For instance, the rectangle can easily become an L-shape with the addition of a room to the back or front of the house.

Or the rectangle can be retained by adding space to one end of the home.

★ ★ ★

The structural shell of the one-story rambler involves relatively simple carpentry and alterations can be accomplished with equally straightforward and inexpensive building methods.

SPLIT-LEVEL HOME

Split-level homes present a few more problems than the rambler or bungalow style residence in remodeling but the possibilities of adding space are just as great, and the design potential may be even greater.

A good rule to follow is to keep the addition at grade level for an obvious reason: it costs less to build on the ground than it does to build on a platform.

However, if a post-supported second level room is added, there is the possibility of creating a carport and sheltered patio under it.

★ ★ ★

If all three are desirable, then it would be best to build high instead of low.

The split-level can take a 16 x 20 room addition very well, providing it is carefully thought out.

The first consideration should be traffic patterns in your home; a split-level house usually has a more sophisticated traffic flow than other homes, and care should be taken to maintain the traffic pattern.

★ ★ ★

Whatever you do, plan carefully to get the most room for your budget, selecting building ideas that keep costs of the structural shell as low as possible.

TWO-STORY HOME

Two-story homes can often benefit from added space, too. Usually a new room in a two-story house is intended to function as a family room, or as a master bedroom that will free an upstairs bedroom for use as a playroom or recreation area for children.

The two-story home has some built-in structural advantages but can pose some knotty design problems. Structurally, the two-story house can take a new room with a minimum of complicated carpentry.

★ ★ ★

Whatever style of home you have, the advice and assistance of a qualified home modernizer is invaluable.

Scratched Surface Can be Repaired

Scratched your wood paneling? It can happen, but don't despair.

Just use a dab of furniture polish stain applied with a bit of soft rag.

Choose the blond polish for light colored woods like hemlock and pine, the dark polish for western red cedar.

Rub the polish stain in, then immediately wipe off. Repeat until color is matched.

Select Paint With Care

There is no such thing as an "all purpose" paint.

The paint industry produces specific coatings for specific surfaces.

For the best possible results, consult your local, reputable paint dealer or painting contractor to be sure you select the right product for the surface you wish to cover.

Twin lavatories in bathrooms prevent morning "traffic jams."

Resistant to Decay

Incense cedar lumber is exceptionally resistant to decay and is classed as one of the top woods for its paint-holding qualities and ability to endure adverse weather conditions.

Among the indoor track records listed by Pontiac Central coach Dean Wilson are the marks set in the "girl's gym and second floor hall."

Don't know how anyone can throw a shot put in the second floor hall at PCH, but in 1961 Bradell Pritchett tossed the iron ball 57 feet and this is the listed record.

It was in his junior year that Pritchett received national attention when he threw the shot put 61 feet setting a U.S. mark for a toss by a high school junior.

After a career of track, football and basketball at PCH, Pritchett found his way to Texas Western.

Studies, sports and a few health problems spelled trouble in his two years in Texas and he withdrew from school and entered San Joaquin Delta junior college in California to help his grades.

His best toss of the heavier 16 pound shot in college was 59-feet-7 inches, but he has convinced himself that with some coaching help to develop his form he will hit 70 feet.

★ ★ ★

Even world record holder Randy Matson hasn't been able to hit this coveted mark. His best is 69 feetandthree-quarter inches.

Pritchett, who spends all of his free time with weights when not on the track says, "I'm as strong as Matson. He stands 6-6 and weighs 260. I'm 6-5 and weigh 258. I need help on my form and I'll throw it as far as he can."

OLYMPIC AIM

If Pritchett does throw it 70 feet he'll be a cinch for the 1968 U. S. Olympic team which he has set as his goal.

He has two more years of college eligibility left and he is now searching the area for a part-time job and trying to find a school which will help him scholastically and in his athletic endeavor.

★ ★ ★

With help from coach Wilson, Pritchett plans a daily schedule of shot put workouts from now until he enrolls at some college in September. This is why he pants a job which will leave him free during the late afternoons when the Pontiac Track Club holds its workouts.

For those high school athletes who always wait until they get their diplomas to realize the importance of their report cards for college entry, Pritchett makes one big admission.

"I sure goofed up my studies and now realize how important they are. I only want to do four things when I get back into college, study, study, study and throw the shot put."

"With this in mind, my goal is the '68 Olympics and I really believe I'll come close to 70 feet by the trials in 1967. With my work at weightlifting I'll be close to 280 then, and I plan on even taking a crack at pro football."

★ ★ ★

Not that we doubt completely that he will ever hit 70 feet, we told the 20-year-old Pritchett, that when he does we'll make it a point to put this accomplishment across eight columns of this sports page.

He replied, "Put that in writing and I'll paste it in front of me at the YMCA when I'm weightlifting or on my work book at the track when I practice the shot."

Here it is, Pritchett. Good luck and happy shot putting.

Oriole Tames Twins, 5-1

Roberts Improving With Age

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Like Warren Spahn, loose-armed Robin Roberts just keeps rolling along — now that he's got his second wind.

And the 38-year-old Baltimore right-hander, who once won 20 games or more for the Philadelphia Phillies six seasons in a row, may be better than ever.

★ ★ ★

Roberts posted his fourth straight victory of 1965 Thursday, hurling a four-hit, 5-1 triumph over the Minnesota Twins. Harmon Killebrew's fourth-inning home run spoiled Roberts' bid for his 43rd career shutout and second whitewash job of this year.

It was Roberts' 275th career win, placing him 16th on the all-time winners list for major league pitchers.

FORMER REJECT

Roberts now has chalked up 41 victories in three-seasons plus for the Orioles since the Phils gave up on him after a 1-10 record in 1961 and the New York Yankees couldn't find a place for him in the spring of 1962.

"Getting 25 more to reach 300 victories doesn't seem so big right now," Roberts said after he had handcuffed the Twins so brilliantly that they managed to hit only five balls out of the infield.

"The way I'm going, it should come," Roberts added. "Right now I'm not thinking too much about it. I imagine it will mean more after I'm through playing."

★ ★ ★

"I noticed it most when I went past Bob Feller and Red Ruffing on the all-time victory list. Some of those names mean something."

Roberts thinks his comeback from the hard times of 1959-61 with the Phillies is a physical matter.

LOOSE SHOULDERS

"My shoulders are loose now, and I feel real good physically," he said. "I believe my stuff is better than in a long, long time.

"I have good stuff and I can keep it all the game. I suppose that's got to be physical. My arms feel loose, but I haven't done anything different to condition it that way.

"My curve is improved and my fastball is live now. I always think of a fastball as how live it is, not how fast it is.

"And control was never a problem for me.

"I don't seem to use my arm as much as I once did. I use my body more. Three days of rest doesn't bother me as much as it does some pitchers."

Roberts' earned run average for 38 innings is a sparkling 2.37. He has struck out 17 and walked only five, and has gone the distance in his last four outings.

Horse Killed Aboard Plane

Racer Breaks Stall, Axed by Crew

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I hated to do it, but it was either him or the nine of us on board."

This is how flight engineer George Ropcean explained Thursday the killing with a fire ax of a valuable New Zealand race horse aboard a cargo plane over the Pacific.

The horse, 6-year-old Vanderford, broke out of its stall Wednesday night on a Pacific Western Airlines plane flying 600 miles off California's coast.

The horse's flailing hoofs backed the flight engineer and Don McNutt, its trainer, against the plane's cockpit door. After a 30-minute struggle, the flight captain, Art Bell, gave the order to destroy the horse.

ONLY WEAPON

Ropcean said the only weapon available was the fire ax.

The plane, on a flight from New Zealand to Montreal, Canada, put down at San Francisco International Airport. Five other New Zealand horses on the cargo plane remained in their stalls.

Representatives of United International Stables of Toronto, Canada, who purchased the horses in New Zealand, valued Vanderford at $70,000.

CROWD SHAKER — Chicago Cub pitcher Larry Jackson (right) had the bleacher crowd scurrying when he hit his first home run of his 11 years in the Majors yesterday. The homer came in the third inning against Pittsburgh at Wrigley Field. He also had two singles and a sacrifice for a perfect day at the plate as the Cubs won, 5-3.

Canadian Pro Knudson 1 Stroke Up in Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Soft greens and sparse fairways promised more sub-par rounds today as Canadian champion George Knudson, with a two-under par 68, led a field of 72 top golfers into the second round of the $100,000 Colonial National Invitational Tournament.

The Toronto pro shot a two-under-par 68 Thursday.

★ ★ ★

One stroke behind in the race for the $20,000 top prize were five others, including Fort Worth's Ben Hogan, a five-time winner over the 7,132-yard layout sometimes known as Hogan's Alley.

The others were Johnny Pott, Gene Littler, Mike Souchak and Tommy Bolt.

The extra soft greens, which often stopped a low hooking approach shot dead in its tracks, gave the golfers a real break Thursday.

★ ★ ★

"If they cut the greens and stopped watering them, you'd find the scores would be higher," Hogan said after his round. "This way they save the bad shots."

Knudson said he profited by "a lot of good fortune" on the fifth hole, one of the most difficult in the United States. His tee shot faded quickly to the right and appeared to be headed directly into the Trinity River when it hit a tree and bounced back onto the fairway.

"I mean I hit that one way out," he said with a grin. "I would have made a six for sure if it didn't come back."

★ ★ ★

Hogan was in a mellow mood after his fine round, even though three putts on the 18th hole kept him out of a tie with Knudson.

★ ★ ★

Arnold Palmer, winner of the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas last week, had this to say about his opening round 73:

"I wasn't real pleased, but also I didn't play real bad either. Take away those double-bogeys out of the sand traps at No. 7 and 17, and it would have been pretty good."

Dressen May Rejoin Bengals Next Week

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Detroit Tiger Manager Charlie Dressen is optimistic about his recovery from a March 8 heart attack and believes he may rejoin his baseball team next week.

Dressen, speaking to a sports luncheon in Los Angeles Thursday, said, "I may go back to Detroit in about seven days. They're going to make some more tests in a day or so, but I think my heart is all right now."

Dressen suffered the attack while in the Tigers' Florida training camp. He flew to Los Angeles where he was hospitalized several weeks.

The 66-year-old baseball veteran was making his first speaking appearance since his illness.

However, he did go to Chavez Ravine to see the Tigers when they played the Angels last month.

Jackson Hurls, Bats Cubs Past Pittsburgh

By The Associated Press

There is a flower fancier in Boise, Idaho who had better start prettying up his pansies and tidying up his tulips. Larry Jackson is ready to collect on an 11-year-old promise.

Jackson, who won 24 games for the Chicago Cubs last season, was trotting out the first home run in his 11-year major league career Thursday when he thought about his friend back home in Boise.

★ ★ ★

"My good friend in Boise who promised me a $100 present if I ever hit a homer finally will have to pay off," Jackson mused after his two-run shot helped the Cubs to a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh.

"He raises flowers, so I might take it out in a hundred bucks worth of poseys."

The homer was one of three hits Jackson collected for a perfect day at the plate. It came off Pirate starter Don Cardwell.

"When I hit that Cardwell pitch, I knew it was gone," Jackson said. "It was quite a thrill."

★ ★ ★

In the only other National League game Thursday, Los Angeles won its sixth game in the last seven, beating Cincinnati 4-3.

Jackson, who evened his record at 2-2, yielded three home runs, two to Willie Stargell and one to Jim Pagliaroni. When he walked Bill Virdon with two out in the ninth, Bob Kennedy, the Cubs' head coach, brought in Ted Abernathy. The Pirates loaded the bases before Abernathy retired Manny Mota to end it.

★ ★ ★

The Dodgers won their third straight from Cincinnati and ran their string to four victories in five games since losing slugging left fielder Tommy Davis with a broken ankle.

Derrell Griffith, called up from Spokane two days ago to replace the injured Davis, homered breaking a 2-2 tie in the fourth and Ron Fairly homered in the fifth. Frank Robinson connected for the Reds.

★ ★ ★

Johnny Podres started for the Dodgers and got credit for his second victory but needed help from Bob Miller when his arm stiffened in the sixth.

Tigers After Bat Help on Road

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers invaded Baltimore today hopeful of establishing a new "big stick" policy at the start of a 12-game road-trip.

The sagging Tigers are badly in need of some hitting support and would gladly call on the Marines if it would do any good.

"We're just not hitting, that's all. We'll just have to shake ourselves out of it," declared interim manager Bob Swift.

Detroit has lost its last five games and has seen its team batting average dwindle to .224.

Swift is hopeful Willie Horton, who missed the three-game series against league leading Chicago earlier this week because of a sinus condition, can give the Tigers that much needed lift.

"We need someone to start swinging a hot bat and he's as likely a prospect as anyone," Swift said.

Horton has 9-for-22 over-all record plus a couple of booming home runs to his credit.

Gates Brown, who also missed a couple of the Chicago games because of a reported bone chip in his shoulder, is expected to be back. He is hitting .292.

Detroit has a good chance of moving up in the standings if it can catch fire in the 10-day road trip.

★ ★ ★

The Tigers are only one-half game behind fourth-place Baltimore in the American League standings and play the Birds five times this weekend.

Three games also are scheduled against eighth place Washington and four against sixth place Boston.

Roger Crozier, Ullman Named to First Team

Pilote, Hull Represent Black Hawks; Howe, Gadsby on 2nd Unit

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings placed two men each on the National Hockey League's All-Star team announced today.

Defenseman Jacques Laperriere and right wing Claude Provost were chosen from the Stanley Cup champion Canadiens. Defenseman Pierre Pilote and left wing Bobby Hull were the Black Hawks named and rookie goalie Roger Crozier and center Norm Ullman were picked from Detroit.

★ ★ ★

The voting by sports writers and sportscasters in the six league cities was held in two halves, the first coming at mid-season and the second as the regular season ended.

Crozier, the youngster who helped the Red Wings to their first regular season championship in eight years, polled a unanimous 90 points in the second half balloting to beat out Montreal's Charlie Hodge, who led at mid-season. Other first team choices all retained leads they had held in the mid-season voting.

TWO REPEATERS

Pilote and Hull were the only repeaters from last year's first team and Ullman, who led the league with 43 goals, polled the most points with 159. Crozier's 157 was second.

Provost had 134 points, Pilote 133 and Hull, who had scored a unanimous 90 points in the first half balloting, finished with a total of 123. Laperriere received 110.

★ ★ ★

Hodge was the second team goalie with Detroit's Bill Gadsby and Toronto's Carl Brewer chosen as the defensemen. Scoring champion Stan Mikita of Chicago, right wing Gordie Howe of Detroit and left wing Frank Mahovlich of Toronto complete the second unit.

First team choices receive $1,500 each and second team players get $500 each from the league.

It marked the first time Ullman, Crozier and Provost had been chosen for the first team while Hodge, Mahovlich and Howe are second team repeaters from last year.

$500 ADDED

In addition to the $1,000 awards for first team berths, Crozier, Pilote and Ullman each earned an addition $500 for leading the second half voting. Howe and Mahovlich also led second half voting for their positions as did Detroit defenseman Marcel Pronovost.

Second team leaders in the second half balloting who earned $250 each were Toronto goalie Johnny Bower, Maple Leaf defenseman Bob Baun, Boston left wing Johnny Bucyk and Gadsby, Mikita and Provost.

Albion Track Meet Lures Record Field

ALBION (AP) — A record entry list has prompted officials at Albion College to divide two classes in Saturday's 25th annual Dale R. Sprankle track and field carnival.

Meet director Elkin Isaac reports more than 1,300 entries, representing 68 schools, will compete. This is 17 more teams and 300 additional individuals over the entries recorded in 1964.

Class B and C each will be divided into two sections. Competition also will be held in Class AA, A and D. The AA classification is recognized only in this meet.

Bout in Boston Ruled Out

BOSTON (UPI) — Plans to hold the heavyweight championship fight between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston in Boston May 25 were cancelled today.

Counsel for the promoters of the proposed bout did not immediately give a new location for the 15-round title match but said they hoped to stage it on the same May 25 date in another city.

The cancellation of the Boston Garden plan was announced by attorney Paul T. Smith, representing Intercontinental Promotions Inc.

Smith's statement came following a lobby meeting with attorney John J. Cronin who represented Boston promoter Sam Silverman.

The fight was washed out in Boston after Dist. Atty. Garrett Byrne filed a petition for a restraining order to halt it. Byrne's bid to prevent the fight from being staged here touched off a legal fight between him and the promoters.

★ ★ ★

Assistant Dist. Atty. Alan J. Diamond said that in view of Smith's announcement, he was withdrawing the district attorney's petition for the restraining order.

Neither of the heavyweight boxers was present in the overflowing courtroom for the announcement.

NOT LICENSED

The legal question is who is the actual promoter — Boston's Sam Silverman as listed or Intercontinental Promotions, Inc., an out-of-state corporation not licensed in Massachusetts as Byrne's office charges? Intercontinental says it is here to publicize, not promote.

Brooks, head of Sportsvision which handles the closed circuit television, says even if a move should cost the whole $500,000 in live gate "we'd be protecting the $4½ million that closed circuit TV will bring in."

"We'll lose some money switching the site but once the paper work is ironed out, we'll have no trouble."

Although no one would publicly name possible alternate sites, the cities named in rumors included Cleveland, Houston and Las Vegas.

Earlier Thursday, Jim Melin and Denny Krick of Tacoma, Wash., combined for a 1,260 to take over sixth place in the regular doubles. They had a 494 game, the best doubles game turned in thus far in the tourney. Their other games were 364 and 402.

Krick also tied for sixth in regular all-events with 1,876.

Saldivar Meets Rojas Tonight

'Feather' Champ Defends Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World featherweight champion Vicente Saldivar of Mexico puts his newly won title on the line for the first time tonight and is favored to retain it in a 15-round fight with Raul Rojas of San Pedro, Calif.

Just turned 22, the switch-hitting Saldivar still is a 9-5 favorite over the 23-year-old ex-dock worker in a match many believe will go the full distance.

★ ★ ★

The site is immense Memorial Coliseum and a crowd of 18,000 is expected at fight time, scheduled for midnight, EDT.

Co-featured is a 12-round flyweight elimination battle between Japan's Hiroyuki Ebihara, former ruler of the world 112-pounders, and Alacran Torres of Guadalajara, Mex. This match is slated to follow the main event.

Saldivar won the title last Sept. 26 when he stopped Sugar Ramos in 11 rounds in Mexico City, a result that proved to be a stunning surprise to boxing fans.

ONE LOSS

Saldivar has lost but one match in 18 professional fights. This was on an accidental butt against Baby Luis. Vicente later knocked Luis out in seven rounds.

Rojas, unbeaten in 25 matches but held to a draw in one, did not box as an amateur and has been a pro only about three years. However, he is ranked No. 3 by the World Boxing Association in the 126-pound division.

★ ★ ★

Saldivar had 45 amateur bouts, losing three, and fought for Mexico in the 1960 Olympic Games. He lost but still thinks he won every round in his lone Olympic appearance.

Rojas is durable and likes to crowd an opponent. He has also been less than impressed with Saldivar's talents and has said so publicly.

Co-promoters George Parnassus and Cal Eaton guaranteed Saldivar $40,000 and Rojas $15,000.

It is a rematch for Ebihara and Torres, who waged a furious fight here in April 1964. Ebihara won a split decision and Torres' Latin backers almost demolished the Olympic Auditorium.

The winner hopes to get a title fight with the new champion, Salvadore Burruni of Italy.

Ebihara knocked out Pone Kingpetch, the former champion, in one round in 1963 to take the title but lost it back on a decision later that year.

Each is guaranteed $7,500.

U.S. Quintet Canceled in Polish Tour

Policy in Viet Nam Is Viewed as Reason for Cancellation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Polish authorities, giving no official comment, have canceled games scheduled by an American All-Star basketball team in five Polish cities.

The team revised its tour plans and will make Rome, Italy the first stop on its European trip.

★ ★ ★

The eight National Basketball Association stars, accompanied by Philadelphia Coach Dolph Schayes and NBA President Walter Kennedy, had been scheduled to arrive in Warsaw this weekend for games in Warsaw, Lodz, Pozman, Wroclaw and Krakow.

But the poles notified the U.S. Embassy the visit was being canceled for lack of hotel space and a sudden unavailability of arenas.

Official Polish disfavor with U.S. policy in Viet Nam, however, was viewed as the real reason for the cancellation.

Nicholas Rodis, special State Department assistant for athletic programs, said here Thursday night:

SHORT MESSAGE

"All I know is that we got a very short massage from Warsaw Wednesday that the plans had been canceled. We got on the ball and substitute Italy. We knew Italy had wanted the players to visit there for several months."

The basketball tour was scheduled under State Department sponsorship.

Rodis declined to attribute the cancellations to a growing chill in relations between the United States and Communist countries over the Viet Nam conflict.

★ ★ ★

Under the new schedule, the team will go directly to Rome, and follow with stops in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Bucharest, Romania, and Beirut, Lebanon.

Team Sets Tryouts

Talbott Lumber's baseball team will hold tryouts Saturday at 3:30 p.m. at Jaycee Park No. 2.

SWINGING HARD SHOULD COME EARLY IN A GOLFER'S EDUCATION, BUT NOT WITHOUT A PLAN OF PROCEDURE.

THE 5 IRON SHOULD BE HIT HARD BEFORE THE 3 WOOD, AND ONLY AFTER SOME EXPERIENCE IN MAKING EASY SOLID CONTACT WITH BOTH CLUBS. THEN THE SPEED-UP SHOULD BE GRADUAL, HIT ONLY SLIGHTLY HARDER AT FIRST, THEN INCREASE SWING VELOCITY BY DEGREES.

LEARN TO MAKE SOLID CONTACT WITH ALL CLUBS BEFORE SWINGING THEM HARD, STARTING WITH THE EASIEST AND WORKING UP TO THE DRIVER.

Clarkston Soph Has Batters Fooled

The pitching of sophomore Dan Fife has pushed Clarkston into the thick of the race for baseball honors in the Wayne-Oakland League.

★ ★ ★

Fife struck out the first nine batters he faced yesterday en-route to a 2-0, one-hit victory over West Bloomfield, and the win raised Clarkston's league record to 6-3.

Milford, despite a 3-1 loss to Clarenceville, still leads the loop with a 5-2 mark. Northville, a 7-6 loser to Brighton, is third with a 5-3 record.

Bloomfield Hills and Holly were rained out in the other game on yesterday's W-O schedule.

★ ★ ★

In the Saginaw Valley Conference, Flint Southwestern handed Pontiac Central a double loss, taking the opener, 5-2, and the nightcap, 7-0.

ONE-HITTER

In other games, Jan McLeod tossed a one-hitter as Kettering blanked Romeo in a Tri-County turned in a 3-1 verdict over Madison and Warren Cousino trimmed Avondale 4-3.

Fife wound up with 14 strikeouts against West Bloomfield, giving him 29 in two starts.

PCH managed only seven hits in the two games and the twin loss dropped the Chiefs to 2-4 in the league race and 4-5 over-all.

McLeod posted 11 strikeouts for Kettering and the lone hit off him was an infield single. He faced only 24 batters.

★ ★ ★

Kettering scored the only run of the contest in the third inning on a bases-loaded walk. Stu Coleman paced the winners with three hits. The win gives Kettering a 2-2 mark in the league. Romeo is 3-1.

★ ★ ★

Rochester scored three runs in the first of the seventh to down Madison. Don Kitson's double chased home the lead run and the third came in on a passed ball.

Buntin Top Choice

Twin Among Piston Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — Michigan All-America Bill Buntin headed the list of six draft choices made by the Detroit Pistons at the annual National Basketball Association meeting Thursday.

The Pistons passed on the final two rounds of the draft, probably figuring they were lucky to get two of the players on their priority list in addition to Buntin.

★ ★ ★

Detroit's first pick after Buntin was Tom Van Arsdale of Indiana. His brother, Dick, had been drafted by the New York Knickerbockers.

The Pistons picked up another top choice, Ron Reed of Notre Dame, in the third round.

Jim King of Oklahoma State, Ted Manning of North Carolina College and Barry Smith of High Point, N.C., completed the Pistons' choices.

TERRITORIAL PICK

Buntin, who averaged 21.8 points and more than 13 rebounds a game in his brilliant three-year career with the Wolverines, was one of three territorial picks.

New York selected Bill Bradley of Princeton and Los Angeles tapped Gail Goodrich of NCAA-champion UCLA.

★ ★ ★

Van Arsdale averaged 17.4 points and 10 rebounds a game and is considered a fine driver and good outside scorer by Detroit scouts.

Reed, a 6-foot-6, all-around player, finished seventh in Notre Dame's all-time scoring list with 1,153 points. His 566 points as a senior set another record for the Irish.

Buntin was the only player from the state to be drafted.

Gymnastic Program Set

Pontiac elementary and junior high school boys and girls will participate in a gymnastic meet and demonstration, Saturday, at 7:30 p.m., in the Jefferson Junior High school gymnasium.

The meet will climax five weeks of practice and competition on Saturday morning as part of the Pontiac Schools' Olympic Sports Development Program.

Boys and girls have been receiving advanced instruction in all phases of gymnastics one day a week since April 3.

Four gymnastic centers were located at Jefferson Junior High School, Mark Twain, LeBaron and Wilson Elementary Schools.

Added incentives included having outstanding University of Michigan and Northern High School gymnasts conduct demonstrations.

The Saturday Meet will feature demonstrations by University of Michigan gymnasts plus outstanding high school performers from Ann Arbor High School and Northern and Central High School.

The Gymnastic meet is free and the public is invited.

Seeded Four Score Wins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The four top favorites have advanced to today's quarter-finals of the Southern California men's singles tennis championship.

Dennis Ralston, No. 1 amateur in the United States, Arthur Ashe, No. 3, India's Ramanathan Krishnan and South Africa's Abe Segal scored victories Thursday.

★ ★ ★

Ralston beat Joaquin Loyo-Mayo, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4. Ashe downed Jim Hobson, 6-1, 6-4. Krishnan rallied to beat Jim McManus, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5, and Segal outlasted Vladimir Petrovic, 4-6, 9-7, 10-8.

Today's pairings: Ralston vs. Bob Potthast, Ashe vs. Jerry Cromwell, Krishnan vs. Tom Edlefsen and Segal vs. Charles Passarell.

Bloomfield Led by Sophomore in Golf Victory

Bloomfield Hills, defending golf champion of The Pontiac Press Invitational, has a bright picture set for the future with sophomore Bill Scott.

Scott fired a par-35 yesterday at Burroughs Golf Club to lead the Barons to a 160-166 win over Brighton.

Bloomfield is 5-1 for the season, the lone loss in a playoff hole to Milford which is unbeaten in 10 matches.

Other Baron scores were Scott Springer 41, Rick Eshman 41, Sandy MacKenzie 43. Medal players for Brighton were Rick Musch and Paul Taegart with 40s.

OTHER MATCHES

In other meets yesterday, Kettering routed St. Fred 198-230 and OL St. Mary defeated Redford St. Mary, 170-183.

Rick Hurd, Jan Gatz and Gary Quitiquit all fired 39s at Pontiac Municipal for Kettering while Mike Murphy shot 40 for St. Fred.

Frank Kladzyk led St. Mary at Pontiac Country Club with a 37. The Eaglets are 5-1 for the season and are a new entry in the Press tournament this year.

TEEING OFF

By FLETCHER SPEARS

Making a million isn't as easy as it used to be, but there are still ways of piling up a bundle although those internal revenue folks make it hard for you to hang onto it.

Among the more glamorous avenues to fame and fortune is the professional golf tour, and if you have the equipment of an Arnold Palmer or Jack Nicklaus you're in the money.

The tour is a big business and it's getting bigger.

A few years back the tournament schedule was thin and the purses a little on the slender side, but the sponsors could generally count on having the game's top stars on hand.

Not so today. With the schedule well packed — winter and summer — it's tough for a pro to lend his presence to each event.

★ ★ ★

Consequently, you'll find the top names — the ones who bring in the fans — picking their tournaments. And it follows that the ones they pick will offer a pretty good payoff.

SWEETEN PURSE

And the tournament sponsors, anxious to have the top pros in the field, keep sweetening the purse.

★ ★ ★

Last summer, Carling entered the tourney parade in an impressive way by sponsoring the first $200,000 event in the history of the game.

And on the tour this summer, there are 19 PGA events in the $100,000 or better class, among them the Buick Open which gets under way at Warwick Hills near Grand Blanc June 3.

Consider what Buick has done in the past seven years in an effort to bring the game's top names here.

The event was worth $52,000 when it started eight years ago. Last year, the total was $66,000.

ANOTHER RAISE

This year, Buick moved it to $100,000.

Gerald H. Rideout, Buick director of public relations and general chairman of the tournament, put it bluntly. "We increased the purse so the Buick Open will attract the top players and provide the community with a major sports event."

★ ★ ★

In those 19 official events on the tour this summer sponsors will shell out about $1,691,000 to the boys who play for pay.

The competition's tough, but you can still make a million.

ON THE FAIRWAYS

The Michigan Publinx Golf Association opened the 1965 season at Morey's Golf Club last week and 262 members showed up for the event.

Tomorrow and Sunday, MPGA is staging a best-ball tournament at Salem Hills Golf Club.

★ ★ ★

A hole-in-one, if it's the first on the course, will pay off at Glenlore Golf Club at 2000 Sleeth Road, Milford.

The par-3 course, owned by Lee and Al Kocsis, has nine holes open for play and the second nine is expected to be ready this summer.

★ ★ ★

The first golfer to make an attested hole-in-one at the club will be $50 richer if he's a pro, and if he's an amateur, he can collect the $50 in merchandise.

AFTER HOLE-IN-ONE — The first golfer to pick up an attested hole-in-one at Glenlore Golf Club will be $50 richer. The club is a new par-3 layout located at 2000 Sleeth, Milford. Taking a tour of the course yesterday (l-r) were Charles Baker of Pontiac; Gene Bone, head pro at Lancaster Hills; Al Kocsis, and Nelson O'Shaughnessy, superintendent of White Lake school district.

Walled Lake, Holly Win

Waterford Thinclads Sink Northern

Tom Hoke and Dick McDowell led Waterford's track team to a 55-54 victory over Pontiac Northern yesterday.

Hoke was a triple winner and McDowell picked up a first and two seconds. Both ran on the winning 880 relay team.

★ ★ ★

Mike Garrels won three events for the second straight meet as Walled Lake downed Farmington, 60-49. Holly defeated West Bloomfield, 61-48.

Waterford's victory gave the Skippers a sweep of the other three Inter-Lakes teams in dual meet competition. PNH won the mile relay, final event of the meet, to score five points and make the outcome close.

Hoke won the shotput, 100 and 220. McDowell was first in the 440 and second in the broad jump and pole vault.

Mel Cole of the Huskies won the low and high hurdles, placed second in the high jump and third in the broad jump.

★ ★ ★

Garrels took the broad jump, low hurdles and high jump and ran with the winning 880 relay quartet for Walled Lake. Roger Ruminski bettered his own school record in the shot put with a toss of 50 feet, two inches.

More Marines Land in Viet

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Hal Boyle, Associated Press columnist, is in South Viet Nam for his third major war. After covering landings in World War II and the Korean War, he reports on his first landing in the Southeast Asian battle zone.)

By HAL BOYLE

CHU LAI, South Viet Nam (AP) — Three thousand more U.S. Marines landed on the coast of South Viet Nam today without firing a shot.

They went ashore in landing craft from a 21-vessel landing force in this Viet Cong-infested area 52 miles south of the big Da Nang air base.

Approximately 3,000 Seabees — the U.S. Navy construction and engineering specialists — will be landed here in the next two days to construct a major air field.

The Seabees will bring the total number of U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam to about 45,000.

LARGE LANDING

The landing was described by the commander of the task force, Rear Adm. Donald Wulzen of Hamilton, Ohio, as "the largest amphibious landing in the Far East since the Inchon, Korea, landing in 1950."

The Marines began moving at 8 a.m. and the first wave was on the beach at 8:13 a.m.

★ ★ ★

There was no contact with the Viet Cong in the initial stages of the landing. But six battalions of Vietnamese troops had been operating in the area for the past two days to prepare the way for the landing.

The landing increased the number of Marines in the northern part of South Viet Nam to approximately 13,000. The others are stationed in the Da Nang-Phu Bai-Hue area.

★ ★ ★

Some 60 Vietnamese schoolgirls were on the beach with local authorities to greet the arriving Marines with garlands of flowers.

"I could learn to love this country," said one flower-decked Marine as he moved inland with a backward look at the girls.

★ ★ ★

The landing was made in perfect weather, and there was almost a picnic atmosphere on the beach. The landing boats came through the calm sea like giant, racing beetles. They were waved in by a team of 20 underwater demolition experts.

"Come on, boys, you'll be late to the party," yelled Jerry Bush, 30, of St. Louis, Mo.

NO TROUBLE

The commander of the underwater demolition team, Lt. (jg) R. L. Overstreet, 25, of Atlanta, Ga., said: "We came in about three a.m. and made a reconnaissance of the beach area. There was no trouble. All we had to do was to pinpoint a 300-yard sandbar."

Few of the Marines even got their feet wet. Waiting on the sand was a group of high-ranking officers who had arrived moments before by helicopter. They included Lt. Gen. John Throckmorton, deputy U.S. commander in Viet Nam.

★ ★ ★

"It looks fine," he said. "They are good looking troops."

"There was no surf or we would have had plenty of trouble," said Adm. Wulzen. "But we have had no casualties at all. As a matter of fact, in the last three operations of this kind we have had only one bruised leg and an injured eye."

Maj. Gen. William R. Collins of Washington, D.C., took a more cautious view of the operation.

"It's a little too early to arrive at any conclusions," he said, "but it's pretty much on schedule."

★ ★ ★

Also present on the beach in a red beret was Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, the Vietnamese commander of the 1st Corps area.

Col. Howard B. St. Clair of Columbus, Ga., the senior U.S. Army adviser in the area, praised the job Thi's troops did in clearing the beach area of the Viet Cong.

HEARTLAND

"This is the edge of the real heartland of the Viet Cong, in the mountainous jungle area back of the beach," he said.

After leaving their landing vehicles, the heavily burdened combat Marines threw off their lifejackets and lumbered quickly through the heavy sand to expand their perimeter.

Later in the morning tanks and other equipment moved ashore. It was estimated it might take up to four days to bring all the equipment ashore.

'Strikes Carefully Escalated'

McNamara: Cong Slowed by Air Raids

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says the air attacks on North Viet Nam, which began three months ago today, are helping restrict the flow of men and goods to the Viet Cong.

Authoritative U.S. sources in Saigon say, however, the air strikes by U.S. and Vietnamese forces have failed so far to halt large-scale movements of men and supplies.

★ ★ ★

These sources say the air war has been slowly and carefully escalated, keeping world reaction and Red China in mind.

The regular day and night attack schedules now make the first scattered raids on the North look like pinpricks. Information available here indicates the future will bring bomb and rocket attacks dwarfing anything to date.

News Analysis

SERIOUS DIFFICULTIES

In the other phase of the air war — inside South Viet Nam — serious difficulties have to be worked out to get the most effective use of U.S. jets and propeller-driven Skyraiders which join Vietnamese Skyraiders in giving Vietnamese government ground troops close air support. As part of the effort to streamline things a U.S.-Vietnamese joint command has been created in the four military corps areas. In each case a Vietnamese officer is in charge.

One mystery was the sudden appearance and then disappearance in early April of attacking Communist MIGs over North Viet Nam and the Gulf of Tonkin. The MIGs, at least some of which were Chinese, darted down onto U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs and may have accounted for a Navy jet that didn't get back. The MIGs, of Korean War vintage, came out of a heavy haze and escaped back into it.

★ ★ ★

The weather has improved vastly over North Viet Nam with the shifting of the monsoon winds, although rain squalls occasionally hamper air activity.

Discussing the U.S. air war in the North, one high Air Force source said: "We are not going all-out by a long shot."

★ ★ ★

No official spokesman would say whether further escalation of the air war is in the offing. But other sources clearly indicate this will happen soon.

Authoritative sources say the present level of air strikes is not sufficient to keep roads and railways under the virtually sustained attack necessary to bar Communist military convoys.

'DEAD WRONG'

One U.S. Air Force source added: "Anyone who thinks we are going to win this war by knocking out bridges or railroad trains is dead wrong, but we can harass them and slow the movement down."

U.S. Air Force units in the Far East have been beefed up sharply in the past three months and the buildup probably is not over. Navy jets could be increased at any time by adding more carriers to the two the 7th Fleet normally has stationed near Da Nang.

★ ★ ★

U.S. and Vietnamese air force planes together with Navy attack aircraft have poured more than three million pounds of bombs into North Viet Nam plus huge quantities of rockets and cannon fire. The Navy has lost 17 planes and 12 pilots, the U.S. Air Force 14 jets and 8 pilots and the Vietnamese air force 7 Skyraiders and 4 pilots.

2: BRIDGES

Announced results have been 21 bridges blasted, 1 air base, 7 supply depots and power stations destroyed plus about two dozen railroad cars and an unknown number of trucks knocked out. In addition, a large quantity of ammunition and war material has been destroyed plus an unknown number of North Vietnamese troops killed.

Attack planes have been going for bridges and other "choke points." The aim was to create bottlenecks for Communist traffic.

★ ★ ★

U.S. airmen are fairly proud of their strikes in the South against the Viet Cong, pointing out that in one day 430 sorties were flown against a suspected Viet Cong base northwest of Saigon.

Good Speller Can Learn a Word for Life

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.

Dear Dr. Nason: Please advise me regarding my sixth-grade son. His problem is spelling. He gets good grades in spelling if the test is on the words he has studied. However, if the teacher presents the test in the form of sentences, he seldom passes.

We have spoken to the teacher. He said the boy is doing well and not to worry, but we know he should be reading and spelling better than he is.

He is attending a reading clinic and I can honestly say I don't see ny improvement. The clinic suggests that most of his problem is spelling.

Mrs. G.W.A., Westbury, L.I., N.Y.

* * *

Students who memorize merely for the sake of passing a spelling test have difficulty spelling the same words in other situations. Your son should study his spelling with the idea in mind that he is learning to spell each word once and for all, so that for the rest of his life he will know how it is spelled.

He should practice seeing in his mind how the word is spelled as he hears it pronounced. And he should also practice writing the word, while at the same time fixing in his mind its correct spelling.

In the beginning, he may have to go back over his work once it is written, checking each word individually for spelling. Eventually this will be unnecessary.

Dear Dr. Nason: Perhaps you can help me with my problem. Schoolwork has always been hard for my sixth-grade son. He went to a little country school his first year. In the second year, we knew he hadn't done as well as he should have.

He didn't even know the alphabet, so we sent him to a town school. After six weeks in the second grade, the principal told me my son didn't know basic fundamentals of the first grade. So we put him back in the first. But he has had problems every year.

He's slow to understand, reads poorly and doesn't seem really interested. The teachers each year say he can do the work if he would just try. He gazes around a lot.

Mrs. R.Y., Tahlequah, Okla.

Habits are difficult to break. Your son started right off coasting. He didn't learn the alphabet; he didn't acquire the basic fundamentals in the first grade.

A solution that has worked in similar cases is to have someone spend the whole summer taking your son through all of his school work from the beginning. This time it must be made certain that he actually grasps all of the fundamentals.

By JACOBY & SON

One of the fascinations of duplicate bridge is that even a two-diamond contract is likely to prove of great interest and be just as important as a grand slam when the match points are awarded.

JACOBY

West's jump to two diamonds was one of those popular weakish jump overcalls. This time it managed to silence the opposition and North opened his king of hearts. South looked over those four hearts to the ten in dummy and decided that he could not afford to overtake with the ace.

Hence he played the seven spot. North shifted to a spade and at this point West should have managed to wind up with an overtrick for a score of 110 points since a successful part score contract is awarded a 50 point bonus in duplicate.

Unfortunately for his purposes West made a mistake and won the spade in dummy. Then he led the deuce of clubs. South went right up with the ace and cashed his ace of hearts. Then he led the three of diamonds.

Now, West went into a huddle and decided he could not afford a trump finesse because if it lost North could kill dummy with a second trump lead. So West rose with the ace, cashed his king of spades; ruffed his last spade and discarded his last heart on one of dummy's good clubs. He lost two trumps at the end but made his contract on the nose for a score of 90.

If West had won the first spade in his own hand he could have afforded the trump finesse when South led the suit and would have made that overtrick and the extra 20 points.

The difference would have been nothing in rubber bridge, but it was almost all the match points here since at most tables North-South went down one trick at two spades and their East-West opponents scored 100.

What do you bid?

A—Bid two spades. You have 18 high-card points, a good suit, and support for your partner.

Foxy Fox Hunting

U.S. Door Open for Real 'Talent'

WASHINGTON (AP) — You don't have to be a Julie Andrews or a Rex Harrison — or even a Beatle — to win a special visa to entertain in the United States.

You may get one if you can stand on your forefinger on a spinning globe at the end of a swaying, 100-footpole. Unless, that is, the Labor Department can find some unemployed Yank who can do the same act.

★ ★ ★

But the Immigration and Naturalization Service — which somehow has found itself involved in an international dispute between the musicians' unions of Britain and the United States — emphatically points out that it's the law, and not some bureaucrat's personal taste, that decides who shall have the temporary visas.

"The impression seems to be getting around," said Mario T. Noto, associate commissioner of education, "that we are just deciding out-of-hand that certain British singers and musicians aren't good enough to perform here. And that isn't the case at all."

THE KEY

The key to the whole affair is a section of Immigration Act — Sec. 101 (A) (15) (H) (I and II) — that was aimed specifically at entertainers when it was enacted in 1952.

★ ★ ★

Designed to protect American performers from being bumped from the working rolls by foreigners, it provides that noncitizens may have temporary visas to work in the United States:

1. If they have "distinguished merit and ability" and plan "to perform temporary services of an exceptional nature requiring such merit or ability," or

2. If they can gain Labor Department clearance after the department ascertains that "unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country."

★ ★ ★

Performers like Miss Andrews and Harrison and Sir Laurence Olivier, and now the Beatles have gained such reputations that immigration officials automatically approve petitions for their entry under the "merit and ability" provision.

But even the Beatles, when they first applied several years ago, couldn't prove "distinguished merit and ability," Noto recalled.

GUITAR STYLE

He said that "they got in because the Labor Department couldn't find any group here with that kind of haircut, that guitar style and that particular kind of rhythm."

★ ★ ★

"Now they've become a byword and a pattern setter, and teen-agers go crazy for them like no one else. And some other groups have gotten in under the merit clause like Freddy and the Dreamers and the Dave Clarke Five."

★ ★ ★

And so, he added, did a circus performer named Unus, who stood on his finger on the globe.

The Labor Department cleared the way Thursday for a U.S. tour by a British group called Kenny Ball's Jazzmen. Clearance came after an American hint that the Jazzmen didn't appear to have sufficient distinguished merit and ability."

★ ★ ★

How are "distinguished merit and ability" determined?

It's up to the attorney general, Noto said. It is eventually delegated, however, to district Immigration Service directors.

Yemeni Royalists, Egyptians Battling

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —Newspaper dispatches said today Egyptian troops and royalist Yemeni tribesmen were locked in "violent combat" in Yemen.

★ ★ ★

The newspaper Le Jour said in a dispatch from Saudi Arabia about 5,000 Egyptians were fighting elements of Imam Mohammed Al Badr's royalist army. Another Lebanese paper said Saudi Arabia has dispatched forces to the Saudi-Yemen frontier to counter an Egyptian move to drive the Imam from his headquarters near the border.

★ ★ ★

A peace conference held in Yemen this week approved a proposal to send delegates throughout the Arab world for ideas on how to end the 2½-year-old civil war. The conference was attended by tribal supporters of the republican regime of Yemeni President Abdullah Al Sallal and a few royalists.

Predicts Fast Approval on Succession Law

Using Own Face for First Time

British Actor in Yank Movie

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, that's right," said Richard Attenborough, "I'm using my own face for the first time."

Attenborough — British Academy award-winning actor and upcoming director of the late Mahatma Gandhi's film biography — displayed a round, smiling, boyish face.

* * *

Only a small, fake scar slashing his right eyebrow marred his lack of disguise.

It was the touch of unrealism needed for rehearsals of "Flight of The Phoenix," in which he plays a drunken navigator crashed in the Sahara Desert, with Jimmy Stewart and Peter Finch.

"Jimmy Stewart is part of Hollywood's golden age," said Attenborough during a rehearsal break. "I've been in this business for a while, but it's a joy working with such a legendary figure."

Attenborough is on his way to becoming a legend himself.

Like another Britisher, Peter Sellers, he can submerge himself in a character so thoroughly even his friends are tempted to ask, "Will the real Richard Attenborough please stand up?"

With a brush mustache and a baton under his arm, he was the very proper British sergeant major in "Guns of Batasi." The role won him this year's British acting award.

Sans baton, still with mustache and in a baggy pair of British tweeds, he was the harassed but loving husband of spiritualist Kim Stanley in "Seance on a Wet Afternoon."

Kim won an academy award nomination for that one — which Attenborough co-produced — and many in Hollywood think he, too, should have been nominated.

* * *

"Kim has a way of lighting up a scene," said Attenborough.

"Simone Signoret was supposed to have the part originally. When she couldn't do it, we happened to see Kim in 'The Goddess,' in which she plays an aging actress. She was so spectacular, we knew we had the right girl. We called her the next day."

FORMED PARTNERSHIP

In 1959, Richard formed a producing partnership with Bryan Forbes and, "after one disaster we like to forget," made "The Angry Silence."

The film, a working class drama, became the prototype of the new British realistic school.

* * *

Attenborough later scored another success with "The L-Shaped Room," which won an academy award nomination for its star Leslie Caron.

Aided by his wartime friendship with Lord Louis Mountbatten, the last British viceroy in India, Attenborough became friendly with Indian Prime Minister Nehru before his death.

5 MONTHS IN INDIA

He spent five months in India lining up the Mahatma Gandhi picture.

"Nehru was a great help," says Richard. "He gathered together all of Gandhi's relatives and told me all kinds of little-known facts about Gandhi. He offered all the facilities we needed.

* * *

"Then he died.

"His death has postponed the picture. But next year, the Indian government willing, we'll film it in India and in Africa, where Gandhi spent his early days."

MANY-TALENTED ENGLISH STAR — Richard Attenborough, British actor-director-producer, is making his first Hollywood movie as an aircraft navigator (above) in "Flight of the Phoenix." He won his country's Academy Award this year for his role of a sergeant in "Guns of Batasi."

May 8 Is Popular Date With Family

CHICAGO (AP) — The personnel of an insurance company sat up and took notice when an application for hospital insurance crossed a desk.

All three children of the Laven H. Haarberg family, Hamlet, Neb., were born on the same date.

The children include Angela, born May 8, 1962; Sidney, born May 8, 1963, and Tracy, born May 8, 1964.

The insurance firm, the Benefit Trust Life Insurance Company, said the 4 million to 1 chance of such a coincidence is the first in the 52-year-old company's history.

Improvise Method for Measuring Quake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Because they had no motion-recording instruments in place, scientists at Anchorage, Alaska, had to improvise to measure the tremor that shook their town last Spring.

They used a stop watch, a moving dressing chest and a home movie camera pointed out a window to measure the length, horizontal motion and vertical motion of the quake.

Mothers Show Why There's Day for Them

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For Mothers Day Inez Blackman will give her daughter a kidney.

Mrs. Blackman checks into the University of California Medical Center Sunday for the operation which will be performed Tuesday by Dr. John S. Najarian.

The daughter, Mrs. Steven Canty, had both kidneys removed recently. Mrs. Blackman lives in suburban Daly City.

* * *

In a similar case, Eddie Roberts, 14, and his mother, Mrs. James A. Willingham, will be spending Mothers Day in a hospital in Richmond, Va., where she recently donated a kidney to her critically ill son.

She wrote to their home in Hapeville, Ga., Thursday that doctors' reports on the operation were "encouraging" and that she didn't need any Mothers Day gifts — "I've already got the best one of all, the hope my boy is going to be all right."

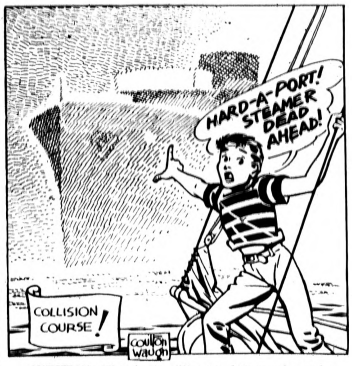
A Junior Editors Quiz About FOG



QUESTION: What is the difference between fog and a cloud?

★ ★ ★ ●

ANSWER: Fog is one kind of cloud. Fogs are light clouds which are close to the ground or to the water. Fog is composed of very minute water droplets or ice crystals which are smaller and less dense than in most clouds.

Heat from the sun pulls up or evaporates huge quantities of water from the ocean, lakes, streams, and the leaves of plants.

This becomes the invisible water vapor in the air. As warm, moist air rises, it may be cooled off. Cool air can't hold as much moisture as warm, so this rising air may be unable to hold all its moisture.

★ ★ ★

The extra moisture condenses, or turns into water droplets or ice crystals, which become visible as clouds or fog. At sea, fog can be very dangerous, as our picture suggests.

Herbie had come forward to keep a lookout at the bow of his sailboat in a fog. Suddenly a steamer loomed up dead ahead.

Herbie shouts, "Hard-a-port" to the helmsman which means put the tiller over to the port or left side so the boat will turn to the right.

★ ★ ★

Big Tom, at the tiller, hears Herbie's shout just in time and will be able to turn the boat out of the steamer's path.

FOR YOU TO DO: Follow Herbie's program in a fog. If riding a bike, or sailing a boat, go slowly (the boys had dropped their sails and were chugging along under power.) Above all, keep your senses alert, watch out!

5 Saturn Engines Tested 2nd Time

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The five engines of the Saturn V booster rocket — the largest this nation has built — have been test-fired for a second time, this time for a period of 15 seconds.

The booster developed a thrust of 7½ million pounds during the brief testing at the Marshall Space Flight Center Thursday.

★ ★ ★

The test is one of several to be conducted this spring on the rocket stage. A test laboratory spokesman said tests of the booster will gradually increase in duration until a full-length firing of 2½ minutes is reached.

Nine Catholic Novices Hurt as Porch Falls

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — Nine novices of the Sisters of the Holy Family of Hazareth were injured, none seriously, Thursday night when a second-floor porch of their Des Plaines convent collapsed.

A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said all nine were in good condition. A number of other novices were treated and released from the hospital.

Congresswoman Frances Bolton of Ohio began her 25th year as a member of the House of Representatives in February.

Ornamentals Require Care

Ornamental shrubs and flowers improve the looks of your home, and extend a welcome to you and others all during the warm months of the year. Here are some tips on caring for your ornamentals, to make sure that welcome is a bright and cheery one.

The first thing is proper planning. Keep flower beds out of the middle of the lawn, where lawn and flowers detract from each other. Put the flowers around the edges of the grassy areas.

Keeping in mind the mature appearance of the plants, arrange your shrubs and flowers so that the tall plants will be in back and the short ones in front. Otherwise, you won't be able to see all the flowers. Also, plan so that you have flowers in bloom during all seasons.

Pruning is important to keep your shrubs in good condition. Early-blooming shrubs should not be pruned until after they have flowered. That means that shrubs like spirea, lilac, forsythia and Japanese quince shouldn't get an early spring pruning.

★ ★ ★

However, shrubs that bloom in the summer or fall should be pruned in the early spring.

A good rule of thumb is to remove about a third of the older wood including broken, misshapen, diseased or crowded branches.

Another thing you should plan on doing early in the spring is fertilizing. That is the time of year when the fertilizer does the most good. Most leafy shrubs respond to the same kind of fertilizers used for the lawn.

★ ★ ★

By following these tips, you can keep your floral welcome mat out all summer long. To see demonstrations on how to plant and care for ornamentals, attend the Free Lawn and Garden Fair, at the State Fairgrounds May 1.

Put Plants on Wheels for Beauty

One of the most attractive — and practical — ways to display your flowering plants is to put them on "wheels." The richness and variety of these seasonal flowering plants add so much in color and freshness to any room, it seems wasteful to keep them in a permanent location.

A tea wagon — or any other serving piece on casters — provides an interesting setting for house plants.

This type of "rolling plant cart" is usually two-tiered and will comfortably hold four or five good-sized, clay - potted plants.

Moved into a dull corner of the living room, this portable garden magically assures "instant" color and warmth. In fact, the cart can be moved anywhere in the house — or outdoors on the patio when the weather warms up — and the plants can be changed to supply seasonal variety.

★ ★ ★

Practically, too, it's an asset. Most plants bought for their decorative beauty are placed in the home with little thought given to their needs. Living plants need a bit of pampering and care — as do we all.

FLOWERING FAVORITES

The flowering favorites at this time of year — lilies, tulips, hyacinths, cyclamen — have a good deal in common. They like a cool atmosphere, but plenty of sunshine, enough water but not a drenched soil.

That's why a mobile cart is an excellent answer to care problems.

Kept in their red clay pots, which insure proper soil drainage, plants can be exposed to needed sunlight, and yet moved into a cooler part of the house easily.

★ ★ ★

Living plants, professionally grown and kept in porous clay pots for plant health, will add color and warmth.

ON WHEELS—If your living room has an awkward corner, don't despair. It's the perfect place for a "rolling plant cart." Combined with a large philodendron, its clay pot and saucer set directly on the floor, this brass and glass tea wagon provides a double decker setting for your flowering plants. The main attraction on the top shelf is an exquisite deep pink cyclamen, surrounded by little clay-potted succulents and a heart-shaped philodendron, double-potted into a brass jardiniere. The lower shelf holds two delightful spring bulb plants — a yellow tulip and a white hyacinth.

Acanthus Plant Most Colorful

It's amazing how much variety can be found among pot plants in the same family. There are two members of the acanthus family that ar coming into favor as clay-potted perennials for spring.

The Aphelandra serves as a delightful green-white foliage plant and doubles as a flowering plant by producing striking yellow and orange-scarlet flowers.

Keep it evenly moist in a clean, porous clay pot—but not too wet — and it will do well in average home temperatures in filtered, diffused sunlight. Then there is the equally interesting Crossandra, or candlestick plant, which produces salmon, rose and orange flowers.

It, too, should be kept slightly moist in the evenly drained environment of clay pots.

★ ★ ★

It will do well in a semi-sunny place where humidity prevails, at temperatures between 70 and 80 degrees. Other popular plants you can collect in the same family are the green - white Fittonia and the Shrimp plant.

Afghanistan is building a network of modern roads to link Kabul with the Khyber Pass and other landmarks of "Kipling country."

New Rose Is Introduced by State Nursery

The newest of the lavender roses yet to be introduced is being offered for the first time in this country by a Michigan nursery. It is a rose-lavender hybird tea, brighter than any of the lavenders so far introduced, and is available this spring.

Those to whom history and origin mean much will be interested in knowing it is a development of M. Jean Gaujard, famous French rose hybridizer. One of its parents is the Peace rose. Among its European awards is the Silver Medal at Lyon in 1962.

Eminence has all the cherished requisites for arrangement and showing . . . long-pointed bud, full open flower, long, strong stems.

The blooms come singly and are long-lasting and fragrant. Showier than any of the lavenders and mauves already on the market, this newcomer's "in-between" color is subdued, but lively.

Sow Seed in House for Early Start

With the arrival of spring it is now time to start flowers and vegetables from seed in the house for setting out later.

In the northern states this is especially helpful, since the outdoor gardening season is much shorter, but even in the warmer climates, there is a gain to be had by getting an early start.

Generally, seeding is done 6 to 8 weeks before planting out time. For those who do not live in this area, setting-out season can be judged by when the apple blossoms fall.

The best way to start seeds indoors is to sow them in modern sterile media such as vermiculite, chopped sphagnum moss, perlite, or a mixture of them in boxes or flats.

★ ★ ★

The seed should be sown as usual. Fairly large seeds can be sown four times their diameter deep, fine ones on the surface and merely pressed in.

SCATTERED OR ROWS

Sowing may be in rows or scattered. The important part is to have them evenly and fairly thinly distributed so they won't need too much thinning and still not crowd one another out.

Then water well and cover with a piece of glass or newspaper to prevent drying out. Fine seeds can be covered with facial tissue and watered through it.

When the seedlings are large enough — have several true leaves — they can be transplanted to other flats or individual pots.

★ ★ ★

Once growth has commenced the seedlings should be given a weak dose of liquid plant food in their water every two weeks.

Another way to simplify things is to fill a box or flat with bottomless square plant bands or peat pots (round or square) and sow a few seeds in each. When large enough they are thinned out leaving only the strongest plant in each.

Later setting out can be done by setting out pot and all, without disturbing the roots.

★ ★ ★

What can be planted indoors?

MANY TYPES

Everything that appreciates an early start: tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, cabbage, lettuce — even corn, cucumbers and squash, if you start them two weeks later.

Among flowers that can be started indoors are sweet peas (in pots only) snapdragons, zinnias, marigolds, asters, balsam, stocks, scabiosas, salpiglossis, four-o'-clocks, nemesias, didiscus.

Don't use cigar boxes.

★ ★ ★

They can transmit a serious disease to tomatoes, peppers and flowering tobacco from the cigars.

Pick Wood to Weather

Check window boxes this month for necessary repair jobs. If refurbishing old ones, or building new boxes, be sure and select wood that weathers well.

Redwood and cypress are first choices, but oak and pine can be used, if given a water-repellent finish. Be sure window-box walls are higher than the depths of the largest clay flower pots you plan to use in them.

Raspberries: Money Crop

Red raspberries can be a money maker for the small fruit farmer or the backyard gardener if he will follow a few good management practices.

High on the list of approved practices is a good spray program. A delayed dormant spray of lime sulfur should be applied when the first leaves are exposed ¼ to ¾ inch.

This spray is to control anthracnose. Additional sprays of captan and guthion or malathion should be applied when the blossom buds are breaking and at petal fall to control diseases and insects. An early spring "must", before growth starts, is to prune out all diseased, broken or weak canes.

Leave approximately 6 to 8 of the strongest at each crown or hill. In the hedgerow system, thin the canes so they are no closer than 8 inches.

Hill or linear systems should have the canes stortened to 5½ feet, and for the hedgerow system cut them to 4 feet. If canes fail to reach the desired heights, cut off only winter-injured tips. Shorten side branches to about 10 inches.

Manure is recommended for raspberries at the rate of 20 to 25 tons per acre (2 bushels per 100 square feet). If manure is not available, use 200 to 250 pounds of 10-10-10 to an acre (one-half pound to each 100 square feet.)

Raspberries use more soil moisture than most fruit plants. They need about 1 inch of water each week during the growing season. In years when rainfall doesn't supply this much, it may pay you to irrigate unmulched plantings on sandy sites.

Backyard gardeners are invited to see demonstrations on the care of raspberries, along with over 200 other demonstrations, at the Lawn and Garden Fair to be held May 1 at the State Fair Grounds.

Air-Tight Wrapping Keeps Tools Shiny

Metal garden tools can be kept rust-free by wrapping in clear plastic wrap.

If they have been exposed to moisture, it is a good idea to wipe them with an oiled rag, then place in air-tight clear plastic bag or wrap.

GREEN CARPET — Your lawn can be a lush carpet of green all summer long if you act early to prevent crabgrass from getting a running start. Crabgrass germinates in late spring and thrives during summer. Since a single crabgrass plant can grow from 50,000 to several hundred thousand seeds in a season, once crabgrass sprouts in your lawn there is little you can do about it without causing unsightly damage. Most effective preventative measure you can take is the use of a crabgrass control chemical before the prevalent and unsightly weed germinates in your area.

Can Do It Yourself

Give Power Mower a Check-Up

Before cutting the lawn for the first time this spring, take time to prepare your power mower for faithful service. If it hasn't had a tuneup or sharpening lately, your best bet may be to take it to a competent service man. For a minor check-up, here's a do-it-yourself check list from the technical service engineers.

* * *

- Remove dried grass, dirt and debris from the entire mower. Use a good rust remover and touch up paint where necessary.

Wipe the mower with a clean rag soaked in light oil. Never use gasoline as a cleaning agent. Many safe, commercial solvents are available.

- Clean debris from around the spark plug and remove it. Pour several teaspoonfuls of oil into the cylinder.

Turn the engine over a few times to distribute the oil on cylinder walls and engine parts.

- Examine the spark plug. If the electrodes are not worn excessively and the insulator tip is free of abnormal deposits, simply clean the plug and file the electrodes to flat, sharp edges.

Set the electrode gap to specifications. If the plug was used all of last season or if it is in bad condition, replace it.

A new spark plug is one of the best investments you can make in improved performance.

Heavy deposits or damage to a spark plug's firing tip indicate other engine problems. Consult a qualified mechanic.

- Clean and examine ignition system wires. Replace them if they have cracked insulation or feel hard and brittle.
- A clogged muffler cuts power. Remove the muffler (after soaking threads with penetrating oil) and tap out carbon accumulations. Clean carbon build-up from the engine's exhaust port. Reattach the muffler.
- Remove and clean the air cleaner screen. Reinstall.
- Check the condition of V-belts. If they are beginning to look cracked or worn . . . replace them.
- Check all nuts, bolts and connections to see that they are tight.
- Check the operation of the choke valve. When the throttle lever is in the start position, the valve should be completely closed. If it is not, and you can't adjust it yourself, consult a qualified power mower service man.

* * *

For safety's sake, never leave the throttle in "start" position when finished with using the mower. The spark plug wire can be removed for extra precaution.

Use Sandwich Bags to Carry Cuttings

Small cuttings may be kept and transported safely in sandwich-size plastic bags.

Place cuttings in bag, spray with water or insert a piece of moist cotton. Fold-lock the top to hold the moisture in.

Take cuttings along the next time you go for a visit and give them to your hostess for her garden.

Just be sure to kill any bugs before wrapping.

Per capita municipal tax revenues in cities increased 43 per cent between 1954-63.

Cover Flower Heads Against Sprays

To save special flowers from contamination of dusts, sprays or bugs, try putting a sandwich-size plastic bag over their heads 24 hours before cutting.

* * *

Be careful not to use in the hot sun.

Try Weekly Watering

As temperatures get warmer, it's good to freshen up your African violets at least once a week by standing their clay pots in room temperature water, until the pot's capillary action draws moisture from below to the top soil.

Porous Clay Pots Leach Out Salts

The porosity of clay pots makes it easy for the amateur pot plant gardener to leach out harmful salts from the soil ball much in the same manner as professionals do.

Apply about one pint of water to plants that have yellowed leaves, caused by excess salt accumulations.

Allow about 30 to 50 minutes for this water to drain out the bottom hole and porous walls of the clay pots, then repeat the treatment.

Withhold watering until top-soil feels dry to the touch.

2 out of 3 professional turfmen use Agrico. Do they know something about grass feeding you should know?

Most of the Agrico we sell goes to professional turfmen—landscape gardeners, golf course superintendents, nurserymen. Even sod growers. These professionals rely on Agrico for one reason: it consistently gives them superior results.
Do you have to be a "pro" to get professional results on your lawn? Definitely not. Agrico Grass Food is as easy to use as any fertilizer.
1. Agrico Grass Food contains a special combination of nutrients that actually enriches your soil. These nutrients build strong roots and produce hardy grass.
2. Ordinary fertilizers help make grass green for a while. But Agrico, with 60% organic nitrogen content, helps keep grass green all season.
3. Agrico's formula gives you more total plant foods per bag to build soil fertility over a longer period of time. $4.95 bag nourishes 5300 sq. ft. Now you know what the professionals know. For a thick, green lawn, use Agrico Grass Food—the fertilizer that enriches your soil as it greens your grass. There's an Agrico Garden Dealer near you.

Market Sells Off Irregularly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sold off irregularly early this afternoon as quieter trading prevailed.

After moving to historic closing highs every day this week, the market ran into some mild profit taking.

Traders were evening up their positions prior to a weekend when they figured foreign news could be an unsettling element.

The trend was generally lower among steels, autos, rails, oils, retails and drugs.

Airlines were a little higher on balance. Chemicals, electrical equipments and building materials were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .1 at 344.6 with industrials up .1, rails off .2 and utilities unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .30 at 933.22.

The decline was softened by DuPont which continued its steady advance, rising a point and a half.

Among other blue chips, the picture was not so bright. Losses of a point or more were taken by General Motors, General Electric and Eastman Kodak.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. New Mexico & Arizona Land rebounded about 2 points. ANelex also was up about 2.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed. U. S. Government bonds were mostly unchanged in light trading.

Widen Search for Rich Bride

Fear Heiress Fell off Yacht on Honeymoon

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A task force of ships and planes searched offshore today for a Los Angeles judge's heiress bride, who vanished at sea Thursday from their chartered honeymoon yacht.

The Coast Guard reported there is no trace of Eileen Keliher-Jeffers Yager, 61, as two cutters and seven aircraft, which searched 300 square miles of the Pacific until nightfall, resumed the search this morning.

★ ★ ★

Los Angeles Judge Thomas C. Yager, 47, calling her disappearance "the most tragic thing that has ever happened to me," told police he was below deck when his wife of four days disappeared. "It was my recollection that she was behind the wheel," he said.

"I would give up my judgeship, everything I have — everything — if I could have my sweetheart back," he told newsmen.

WEEK'S VACATION

He said they had planned to fly to Honolulu today for a week's vacation, then back to Washington and New York.

They were married Monday in the private chapel of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles, with former California Gov. Goodwin J. Knight as best man.

It was the first marriage for each.

★ ★ ★

The couple was returning from Santa Catalina Island aboard the yacht "Care Free" when Mrs. Yager presumably fell overboard. The 36-foot cabin cruiser, headed for Newport Beach, was about midway in the 32-mile channel at the time.

★ ★ ★

Yager said he searched the area for an hour — circling repeatedly — and tried unsuccessfully to use the boat's radio. It wouldn't work.

RETURNS TO SHORE

Finally he returned to the mainland for help.

He told officials he didn't think his wife was wearing a life jacket.

★ ★ ★

A massive air and sea search was conducted until nightfall. Two cutters, two helicopters and two amphibian planes found nothing. Additional planes were assigned to today's expanded hunt, the Coast Guard said.

Mrs. Yager, the adopted daughter of the late William M. Jeffers, retired president of the Union Pacific Railroad, was his chief beneficiary when he died in 1963.

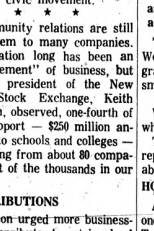
CRAIG



PORTER

Porter has been branch manager of the City National bank of Detroit since 1962 and before that was with Manufacturers National in the mortgage department.

Judges Reject County Plea

Back Extra Position Against Objection

The Michigan Judges Association, meeting at Boyne Mountain, has endorsed an additional circuit judge for Oakland County over the objections of the Oakland bench.

Judge Phillip Pratt requested that the association delete a recommendation for an eighth judge from its 1965 legislative program, but was overruled.

Pending in the State Senate is a bill that would create several new circuit judgeships in the state, including one in Oakland.

Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh rebuked Pratt for making the suggestion. The State Supreme Court had made the original recommendation for the additional Oakland judge.

* * *

"We will continue to make the recommendation for an eighth judge in Oakland County," said Kavanagh, "regardless of what this association does."

OPPOSES PLAN

Pratt had told the Association that the Oakland County Board of Supervisors is opposed to the plan and that the county's seven judges do not have adequate facilities now.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Carl N. Wiedeman scolded Pratt for not pressing for an additional judge.

"Just because next year is an election year, don't get gun-shy. If you need judges, get them. It's up to the supervisors of your county to supply the facilities," Wiedeman said.

Science Quiz

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Find the center of gravity.

NEEDED: Cardboard, scissors, string, a weight, a pencil, a coat hanger.

DO THIS: Cut a piece of cardboard in an irregular shape. Straighten the hook of the coat hanger, and place the hanger on a shelf so that the straight wire extends forward. Punch 3 or 4 holes in various places near the edges of the cardboard.

Hang the cardboard on the wire, hang the string on the wire so the weight pulls it straight, and make a cross at the lower end of the cardboard behind the string.

Draw a line connecting the cross with the hole. Do this for the other holes, and the lines will all intersect at the center of gravity of the card.

This is the point at which it will balance on the finger.

A collection of the "Science For You" experiments is in book form and sold in better bookstores. It is called Science Circus.

TRANSCONTINENTAL BROADCAST — This photograph of a man wanted by Canadian authorities was broadcast via satellite to TV stations around the world. The suspect was identified by the picture and arrested in Miami, Fla. He is wanted for a Canadian bank burglary.

Suspect in Bank Burglary Tripped Up by Satellite TV

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The space-age police technique of satellite television led to the arrest of an urbane Canadian who has been hunted all over the world since the spectacular burglary of a Montreal bank four years ago.

The Canadian, Georges Lemay, 39, was surprised when 11 federal and local police stopped him just as he boarded his fancy, 43-foot yawl in the huge Bahia Mar Marina in Fort Lauderdale Thursday.

* * *

"I very seldom make mistakes," he told Police Capt. Bob Smith. "How did you people catch me?"

Told that a boat repairman recognized a mug shot broadcast displayed by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police inspector on the inaugural Early Bird satellite television program, Lemay was incredulous.

QUESTIONS VERACITY

"Is that your word of honor," he asked Smith.

Assured it happened that way, Lemay said: "Well, isn't that something. It took a satellite to catch me."

* * *

Police have had an interest in Lemay for 14 years since his beautiful blonde wife, the former Huguette Daoust, mysteriously disappeared while fishing from a bridge on the overseas highway in the Florida Keys.

In 1961, a gang of thieves smashed through the concrete reinforced floor of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and rifled 377 safe deposit boxes.

AMOUNT UNKNOWN

They escaped with $500,000 to $4 million although the exact amount was never determined because of depositors' reluctance to talk. The chief witness at the trial where four others were convicted of the theft said that Lemay was the mastermind.

* * *

The Early Bird TV broadcast showed the Mountie describing wanted men while FBI agents in Washington and Scotland Yard officials in London watched.

The Fort Lauderdale man, who asked that his name not be used, went to police the next day.

SURE OF HIM

"I'm sure that's the guy I saw on TV last night," he said. He said Lemy had wanted him to do some work on his yacht.

After a three-day stakeout and careful checking with people at the marina, police closed in.

Lemay was brought to Miami for a U.S. commissioner's hearing.

Producer Ducked Comment as Lana Given Bad Billing

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Producer Ross Hunter made it eminently clear when he lunched at 21 that he wouldn't comment about his battle with Lana Turner over their movie, "Madame X."

WILSON

"No comment!" The wavy-haired, spectacled young Hollywood genius, who has a $75,000,000 drawing account from Universal Pictures, pointed a forbidding finger at Big Mouth Me.

"I'm not talking"—he glared through his glasses into my glasses—"about Lana calling up the press, claiming I was mean, that I wouldn't talk to her. I'm known for treating my leading ladies well."

"Just because she says you're a tyrant who overworked her shouldn't cause you to comment," I commented.

"Wouldn't even dignify her statements!" With a sweeping gesture, he brushed Lana from his thoughts.

"We'll just talk about 'The Art of Love,' shall we . . ?"

"That could make a good column," I nodded.

"That's the name of my Elke Sommer-Dick Van Dyke picture," he sharply reminded me. "Ethel Merman's going to tour the country singing the medley . . ."

"Lana . . ." I said.

"No comment!" Hunter exclaimed. "I made Lana a millionaire. She was a bad girl! The one who acted like a star in 'Madame X' was Connie Bennett. But I'm not commenting . . ."

"Perfectly right, too," I said.

* * *

"When other producers had trouble with her, I said, 'It's their fault. They can't control her. I can.' I proved how wrong I was."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

Frank Sinatra and Count Basie added the Forest Hills Music Festival to their July schedule (after Newport, with Washington to follow). Quincy Jones'll be in the picture too . . . James Bond (Sean Connery) is losing his first battle: to avoirdupois . . . Sheila MacRae, laughing off rumors of a difference with Alan King, star of "Guys and Dolls" at City Center, said at Danny's that she's got a torn muscle she treats between performances. Philip Burton told wild-haired comedian Marty Allen (at a Sardi's party for the new Merv Griffin TV show) that he looked "exactly like Dylan Thomas at 2 a.m. at the White House Tavern, the place where he was perennially drunk," Marty bowed and thanked him for the compliment.

EARL'S PEARLS: A local man (writes L. S. McCandless) has been using a bourbon-flavored toothpaste. He's developed more cavities—but who cares?

"I didn't realize," says Leo Fuld, "how long my wife's had her fur coat. I wanted to replace one of the worn pelts—but the animal is now extinct." . . . That's earl, brother.

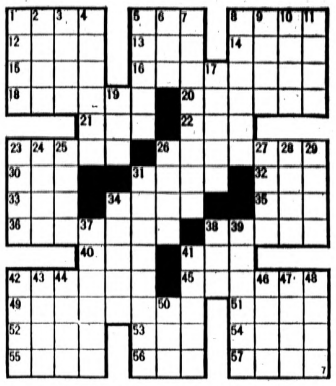
THE BLUES



Answer to Previous Puzzle

Rocket Test Clears Way

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The spectacular string of orbital maneuvers performed by an Air Force Titan-3A rocket yesterday cleared the way for the first flight test next month of a Titan five times as powerful.

Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Bleymaier, head of the development of the versatile military space booster, said last night that the super Titan is now scheduled to make its flight debut on June 17.

The giant rocket, called the Titan-3C, will use two 1.2-million pound thrust solid-fueled rockets strapped to the sides of a Titan-3A to loft its proposed manned orbiting laboratory (MOL) in 1968.

Yesterday's Titan-3A success gave a boost to the MOL program which still needs final Defense Department approval.

"I think this heightens our confidence . . . that approval for this kind of program is justified," Bleymaier said.

FOUR ORBITS

The Titan-3A set a record by zipping into four different orbits and it carried two satellites into space at the same time. It was the fourth and toughest test flight for the sleek 546,000-pound thrust booster.

"It was real gratifying," Bleymaier said.

He said the success eliminated the need for the fifth Titan-3A test flight that was originally scheduled and thus saved $10 million.

The Titan's performance was attributed to the rocket's third stage that had to start and stop an unprecedented four times in space to switch orbits three times.

RADIO TESTED

One of the satellites orbited by the "switch engine" rocket was an 80-pound experimental communications craft that passed its first radio tests last night by successfully relaying voice broadcasts to a California ground station.

The moonlet, which used its own rocket to shoot into an egg-shaped orbit more than 8,000 miles high, was designed to test a new transmitter, a magnetic orientation system and an antenna system.

The other satellite was a 42-inch aluminum ball that apparently was placed in a near circular path ranging from 1,729 to 1,743 miles above earth.

The sphere will be used by ground stations for radar system calibration.

Warning Is Too Late

LONDON (UPI) — A pickpocket who calls himself "The Count" has been returning wallets to London shoppers—minus the money—with notes attached reading, "You want to be more careful who you bump into."

To Commoner Predict Engagement

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A spokesman for the Dutch Government Information Service indicated today that Crown Princess Beatrix is expected to become engaged to a West German commoner, Klaus von Amsberg.

* * *

The spokesman said Von Amsberg, an official of the West German foreign ministry in Bonn, was a "very good friend" of the heir to the Dutch throne and would be referred to as such "until an eventual engagement announcement."

He added, however, that he could not say whether a definite engagement decision had been taken.

Von Amsberg, 38, told the London Daily Mirror he was "amazed" that he had been named as Beatrix's future fiance.

"We have never discussed marriage," he said, "but I hope to see the princess again soon. She is a charming person."

* * *

British and Dutch newspapers today identified Von Amsberg as the man with whom the princess was photographed walking hand in hand in the woods around her palace 30 miles from Amsterdam. Von Amsberg said he had visited there last weekend.

* * *

Beatrix, 27, was scheduled to return today from London, where she acted as godmother Thursday at the christening of Sibylla Louise Ambler, three-week-old daughter of Princess Margaretha of Sweden and her British husband, John Ambler.

* * *

After the photograph of the princess and Von Amsberg reached the newspapers, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard issued a statement asking the Dutch people to give their eldest daughter time to make a well-considered decision.

AFL-CIO Warns of Discontent Among Youth as Joblessness Worsens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO warned today that the soaring youth unemployment problem is a major threat, not only to the economy but to the democratic structure of the nation.

★ ★ ★

In the wake of discouraging new government figures on jobless youths, the labor federation said: "It was the jobless, disillusioned youths who grasped at the 'solutions' offered by Hitler. . . . America can ill afford to have this sort of discontent among large segments of its population."

★ ★ ★

Federal antipoverty and school aid programs are not enough to solve the problem, said an article in the labor organization's magazine, The American Federationist.

★ ★

The article coincided with the Labor Department's monthly employment report, showing that an early surge of school age youths seeking jobs had boosted the nation's jobless rate from 4.7 to 4.9 per cent of the labor force in April.

TO HIT PEAK

Youth unemployment is expected to hit a peak of 2 million in June as high schools and colleges pour out a flood of young job seekers.

★ ★ ★

The AFL-CIO said only federal economic policies geared to create new jobs rapidly will ultimately solve the problem.

★ ★ ★

Higher wages and Social Security benefits, shorter hours to spread employment, and more federal spending for roads, hospitals, education and housing are urgently needed, it said.

★ ★ ★

"The challenge confronting the country is tremendous," it added.

Without new jobs, government training and education programs will fail, it said. Adding: "They can lead only to a better trained, better-educated body of unemployed."

★ ★ ★

The federation said 1.5 million of the 4 million unemployed last year were under age 25.

★ ★ ★

"Although these young workers made up less than 20 per cent of the civilian work force, they accounted for more than 40 per cent of the nation's unemployed."

Twisters Kill 13 in Minneapolis Area

Witness: Foster Told of Killing

A lifelong friend of Carl F. Foster yesterday testified that Foster, 29, of Pontiac, once told him he had killed his first wife, Angela.

Wayne D'Autremont, 22, of 466 S. Marshall, who said he grew up with Foster, made the statement in Pontiac Municipal Court during Foster's preliminary examination on a charge of first-degree murder.

CARL FOSTER

Municipal Judge Cecil McCallum bound the case over to Circuit Court.

Mrs. Angela Foster died on Feb. 28, 1964. The death was first ruled a suicide. She was found hanging in the basement of their home at 355 Oakland.

Last month, however, the Oakland County prosecutor issued a warrant charging Foster with the killing.

★ ★ ★

The defendant is currently serving a 10- to 15-year prison term for manslaughter in the strangulation death last December of Mrs. Maurice Crook, a Bloomfield Township divorcee.

TOLD STORY

D'Autremont, his eyes red, clenched his hands tightly as he told his story. Foster showed little emotion.

He and Foster were returning from Ortonville about 3 a.m. on a Saturday night sometime last fall, he said. They had been at a hotel bar and both had been drinking, the witness said.

Foster stopped the car about a block off Dixie Highway.

★ ★ ★

"Then he grabbed the front of my shirt and said 'I have to tell someone; I have to tell someone' over and over again," D'Autremont said.

TORN BUTTONS

D'Autremont, a heavy-set factory worker, said Foster was so excited that he ripped the buttons off his (D'Autremont's) shirt when he grabbed him.

The witness told the court that Foster then said "I killed her, I killed her."

"He said she woke up and then he said he hit her," D'Autremont said.

SAW TEARS

"All he could see were tears running down her eyes Foster told me," the witness said.

D'Autremont said that Foster then told him he hung Angela in the basement.

The witness said that Foster was convinced that his wife was running around with another man, a piano player named Jack Wallace.

D'Autremont said that Foster once admitted slashing Wal-

Solons Handed Tax Reform Kit

Contains Proposals for 12 Levies, 7 Budgets

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney today handed the legislature a "do-it-yourself fiscal reform kit" of 12 tax proposals and seven possible budgets for the next three years.

Romney met with 25 lawmakers in the second of a series of meetings on fiscal reform and the state's revenue needs in the next three years.

Keeping an earlier promise to present alternate plans, he drew up budgets that ranged from a stand-still spending plan that would wipe out the state's surplus in two years, to a plan that would leave the state $307 in debt by July 1, 1968.

His tax alternates, tied to the various budgets, included reductions or repeal of the business activities tax, property and sales tax relief and several approaches to income taxes.

Rep. George Montgomery, D-Detroit, chairman of the House General Taxation Committee and a champion of fiscal reform dubbed the Romney proposals a "do-it-yourself kit."

"And a do-it-yourself kit is just what we need," Romney added.

FISCAL REFORM

"Fiscal reform is nearer now than it was a month ago or a

Jury Continues Deliberations in Liuzzo Trial

12 Male Jurors Still Deadlocked on Fate of Charged Klansman

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A deadlocked jury tried again today to reach a verdict in the murder trial of Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., the Ku Klux Klansman charged with the highway killing of a civil rights worker from Detroit.

The 12 white men returned to their deliberations in a small room off the second-floor courtroom at 9 a.m.

They spent four hours and 20 minutes trying to decide on a verdict yesterday in the slaying of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, 39, mother of five.

White-haired T. Werth Thagard, the trial judge, stood relaxed, hands in pockets, to greet the jury. Then the jurors filed out quietly.

★ ★ ★

Wilkins, 21, of Fairfield, Ala., the man accused of firing the death shot, showed no sign of strain from the trial now in its fifth day.

WALKED AROUND

He walked casually around the courtroom, talking with his slender, gray-haired father. Then he strolled to the consel table and took a seat.

The defendant chewed gum.

Thagard handed the first-degree murder case to the jury at 3:40 p.m. yesterday and 75 minutes later a rap on the door of the high ceilinged jury room appeared to herald a verdict.

★ ★ ★

But the jurors only wanted further instructions from the court. They asked whether they could convict the paunchy, crew-cut defendant of a lesser offense than first-degree murder.

★ ★ ★

The judge, repeating his earlier charge, explained they had a choice of first-degree murder, second-degree murder, manslaughter, or acquittal.

CALLED BACK

Two hours later, Thagard called the jurors back to the courtroom and gave them the choice of taking time out for dinner then or — if they still hadn't agreed on the fate of the accused — to wait and "get a steak when you get to Montgomery."

Each night since the trial began, the jury has been taken 25 miles to Montgomery where quarters were made available in the modern air conditioned courthouse.

The jury in a murder trial must be kept together day and night and neither the 133-year-old Lowndes County Courthouse nor the small town of Hayneville has the facilities to house the 12 men.

4 More Marines Die in Dominican Battle

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Another wrong turn into rebel territory was blamed today for the deaths of four Marines, bringing the U. S. death toll in the Dominican fighting to at least 13.

U. S. sources said three Marines were killed yesterday after a patrol wandered accidentally into the insurgent-held sector of downtown Santo Domingo.

Two others were wounded and one died after he was taken to the aircraft carrier Boxer.

A rebel spokesman said one insurgent was killed and two wounded in the encounter. The rebels at first accused the United States of violating the cease-fire arranged Wednesday by a peace commission of the Organization of American States. Later they said they believed the Marine patrol had taken a wrong turn.

Two U.S. newsmen who had been observing the clash from a taxi were caught in the crossfire and wounded slightly. They were Al Brut and photographer Doug Kennedy, both of the Miami, Fla. Herald.

A U.S. military source said the newsmen had passed through a rebel checkpoint and were approaching the U.S. lines when the insurgents opened fire on the Marines and the Marines fired back. The source said it was probable that U.S. gunfire wounded the newsmen.

★ ★ ★

Another marine patrol took a wrong-turn Wednesday into rebel territory. After sharp firing the rebels captured two of the Marines but released them yesterday to the OAS Peace Commission. The commission returned them to American authorities.

Area Boy, 13, Killed by Car

According to police, it was the third death in less than two months on a one-mile stretch of West Maple near Halstead.

Nolan D. Schulak of 6889 W. Maple, Bloomfield Township, was hit about 5:25 p. m. yesterday by a car driven by Patricia A. Whipple, 17, of 1350 W. Maple, Walled Lake, police said.

The girl told police she saw the boy start across the street as she came over a hill.

She said the boy was looking in the opposite direction and that she applied her brakes before the impact, according to police.

★ ★ ★

Young Schulak had been across the street to visit a neighbor, police said.

In previous accidents on this stretch of West Maple, vehicle collisions killed a teen-ager and a 3-month-old baby, according to police.

EVIDENCE OF STORM FURY — An outboard motor, picked up by a tornado which lashed suburban Spring Lake Park near Minneapolis, Minn., last night came to rest in the windshield of an automobile.

48 Defenders Die

Cong Hit Refugee Site

SAIGON (UPI) — Three battalions of Communist guerrillas attacked a camp for Roman Catholic refugees in the Mekong Delta last night, killing 48 defenders and wounding 77. Thirty other Vietnamese were listed as missing and possibly captured.

A U. S. military spokesman described the Viet Cong assault as the biggest so far this year.

★ ★ ★

The guerrillas stormed the camp at Hai Yen, 180 miles southwest of Saigon.

★ ★ ★

The refugee center is run by Father Nguyen Loc Hoa, South Viet Nam's famed "fighting priest." He has long withstood the communists with a private army called the "Sea Swallows."

In the air war against North Viet Nam, eigthy-one U.S. Air Force jets attacked bridges and barracks in North Viet Nam today.

One F105 fighter-bomber was downed in the sea by enemy guns, but the pilot was rescued by an Air Force amphibious plane.

★ ★ ★

This was the first time a U.S. plane has been downed on a mission over North Viet Nam since April 20, and the first Air Force plane to go down since April 17.

★ ★ ★

The downed pilot narrowly missed falling into Communist hands. A U.S. spokesman said a North Vietnamese patrol boat came within 1,000 yards of the pilot, but was neutralized by another F105 that swept in, its rockets blazing.

Hanoi Is Safe, Lodge Quoted

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato said today that Henry Cabot Lodge, President Johnson's personal envoy on Viet Nam policy, promised him that the United States will not bomb Hanoi, the capital of North Viet Nam.

"The United States will not bomb Hanoi or occupy any part of North Viet Nam," Sato said Lodge promised him. He added that Lodge promised him the United States would not involve Japan in the Viet Nam war.

At Least 300 Hurt; Damage Is in Millions

Two Dozen Suburbs Battered by Wind, Rain and Hailstones

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The death toll rose to at least 13 today from a string of tornadoes that spewed death and destruction over this heavily populated area, injuring more than 300 and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Police said two more bodies were found in the suburb of Mounds View as coroner's aides began searching the rubble where dozens of homes stood before last night's twisters hit. Several of the dead remained unidentified.

More than two dozen suburbs lay in the path of the winds that skipped to the ground and lifted, only to come down again over southwestern, western and northern suburbs during the supper hour.

Heavy rain and two-inch hail stones preceded the twisters.

★ ★ ★

Utility lines were downed, many crossing highways lined with homeward-bound workers.

27,000 PHONES

Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., which sent six mobile units out for emergency use by residents today, estimated 27,000 telephones were out of service.

Hundreds of homes were damaged and many were destroyed.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag appealed to President Johnson to expand flood disaster designations already in effect for the area to include wind damage.

★ ★ ★

The governor, who made an inspection tour after the storm, called the situation "utter, sheer, total disaster."

GUARD CALLED

He called out National Guard units to help police and Civil Defense volunteers maintain order.

Tornado sightings were reported over at least 25 small towns.

The heaviest damage was reported to communities around Lake Minnetonka, some 15 miles west of Minneapolis and Spring Lake Park and Mounds View, 15 miles north of the city.

★ ★ ★

Four persons died at Mound, a residential community on Lake Minnetonka's west shore, where dozens of homes were hard hit, and many destroyed.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Island Park and Navarre also on the lake's west side, received heavy property damage and reported many injured.

Four persons died at Spring Lake Park, one at Mounds View and one at Norwood.

The injured in twisters that hit Fridley, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View were brought to Mercy Hospital at Coon Rapids in a continuous stream.

★ ★ ★

After two hours, the hospital's administrator, Robert Van Hauser, pleaded with ambulance drivers and motorists to take their injured to other nearby hospitals.

100 TREATED

Van Hauser estimated that upward of 100 persons had been treated at Mercy Hospital. Nearly 30 of those treated were in serious condition.

The storm hit Norwood, a town of about 1,000 persons, some 38 miles southwest of Minneapolis.

After demolishing about 15 residences and between 30 and 40 farm buildings, the twister moved northeast, striking with devastating force at the exclu-

Cat Burglars Prowl on Foggy Night

The cat burglars came on little fog feet.

And they crept back out with their mitts full of jewels.

Using the fog as a cover, the pair hit four Bloomfield Township homes early this morning.

They gained entry to at least two, absconding with jewelry and some money.

★ ★ ★

Jewelry valued at $1,300 and $28.50 in cash were stolen from the Benjamin Jerome home at 3915 E. Quarton before 1:20 a.m.

MORE JEWELRY

The amount of jewelry taken from the Clyde Recht home at 6220 Thorncrest has not yet been determined, according to Det. Lt. James E. Keller.

Mrs. Recht told police she saw the burglars rifling through jewelry boxes. She coughed and they ran.

Mrs. John Scott of 6172 E. Thorncrest reported she was awakened by the barking of her dog about 3:30 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Although the lock on the garage door had been forced open, the house had not been entered, Keller said.

NEW REPORT

The fourth break-in in the area was reported late this morning and information was not immediately available.

There have now been 27 cat burglaries in the township since last summer, according to Police Chief Norman Dehnke.

Johnson Signs Special Bill to Finance Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed today a special $700-million appropriation to finance the war in Viet Nam and said it was a message of American determination to resist aggression in Southeast Asia.

Johnson signed the bill in the East Room of the White House just three days after he asked Congress for the funds.

"It is not the money but the message that matters. And that message is simple . . . that message is clear," he said.

"We will do whatever must be done to ensure the safety of South Viet Nam from aggression. We will use our power with restraint and with all the wisdom we can command. But we will use it."

QUICK ACTION

The money bill sped through the Senate Thursday, completing congressional action in almost unprecedented time, but some thunderbolts were hurled at the White House.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and more than 100 members of the House and Senate Foreign Relations, Appropriations and Armed Services committees gathered in the East Room for the signing ceremony.

★ ★ ★

They gave the President a round of applause when he entered the room and again when he finished his statement.

Congress should "resent being led around like a dog on a leash and given 48 hours to pass bills which the administration seeks to gird up its shaky policies," stormed Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, one of three senators who voted against the appropriation.

JAVITS COMMENTS

And Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., mirrored the concern of several who voted for the bill when he said:

"I hope the President will not let this vote go to his head. We are voting to uphold the President in this particular action, but we are not voting for the President to do everything in violation of our consciences and full consent."

★ ★ ★

Thursday's 88-3 Senate vote was nearly as lopsided as Wednesday's 408-7 vote in the House.

Johnson said, in effect, congressional approval would mean endorsement of the administration's policy.

ENDORSEMENT

If what he got was an endorsement, it was a qualified one.

Here is what some senators who eventually voted for the bill said:

Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt.: "I cannot let the impression go out from this chamber that in voting for this appropriation I am giving blanket approval to waging undeclared war anywhere or delegating the right to express my thoughts to anyone."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho: (This is not a) "blank check endorsement of decisions to be made in the future. A full-scale involvement in a land war in Asia would be the greatest possible calamity."

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.: "It is not a blank check."

STATE MARINE CAPTURED — Two U.S. Marines, taken prisoner by Santo Domingo rebels yesterday after a gunfight, are served coffee in rebel headquarters. The Marines are Pvt. Darrll Southwell, 21, of Mason (left) and Cpl. Rueben Garcia, 23, of New York. The two were released later.

Red Leader Blasts U.S. Aggression

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin accused the United States today of violating elementary rules of international law and warned that Washington must sooner or later take into account that North Viet Nam has friends.

"Those who blindly support the policy of aggression of the United States, such as the government of England or the government of West Germany, are shouldering a great and far-reaching responsibility," the Soviet premier declared.

He was speaking at a ceremony in East Berlin commemorating the 20th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's defeat.

"We condemn the United States for violating the most elementary rules of international law by joining Belgian and British colonialists, for trying to destroy the independence of the Congo, for landing troops in the Dominican Republic, for undermining the realization of the Geneva accord on Viet Nam and for the barbaric bombing attacks on the Republic of (North) Viet Nam," Kosygin exclaimed.

★ ★ ★

"If the United States continues to follow stubbornly her policy of unreasonableness, then only one should not forget that the Vietnamese people have friends and Washington must take this sooner or later into account."

In an obvious reference to ideological differences between the Soviet Union and Red China, Kosygin said the Western powers were banking on the split of the Communist camp. He never referred to China by name, however.

Wealthy Bride Missing at Sea

Fear Heiress Fell Off Yacht on Honeymoon

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Coast Guard planned to widen its search today for Eileen Jeffers Yager, wealthy bride of a Los Angeles judge. She is believed to have fallen overboard Thursday from the couple's chartered honeymoon yacht.

Superior Court Judge Thomas C. Yager, 47, said his wife vanished while he was below deck.

★ ★ ★

"It was my recollection," he said, "that she was behind the wheel."

He called her disappearance "the most tragic thing that has ever happened to me."

RAILROAD FORTUNE

Mrs. Yager, 61, heiress to a railroad fortune, married the jurist last Monday in the private chapel of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles. Former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was best man.

It was the first marriage for each.

★ ★ ★

The couple was returning from Santa Catalina Island aboard the yacht "Care Free" when Mrs. Yager presumably fell overboard. The 36-foot cabin cruiser, headed for Newport Beach, was about midway in the 32-mile channel at the time.

★ ★ ★

Yager said he searched the area for an hour — circling repeatedly — and tried unsuccessfully to use the boat's radio. It wouldn't work.

RETURNS TO SHORE

Finally he returned to the mainland for help.

He told officials he didn't think his wife was wearing a life jacket.

★ ★ ★

A massive air and sea search was conducted until nightfall. Two cutters, two helicopters and two amphibian planes found nothing. Additional planes were assigned to today's expanded hunt, the Coast Guard said.

Mrs. Yager, the adopted daughter of the late William M. Jeffers, retired president of the Union Pacific Railroad, was his chief beneficiary when he died in 1963.

snipers wounded two U.S. paratroopers and hit a helicopter, wounding the pilot in the legs. A flurry of sniping activity broke out near the U.S. Embassy during the afternoon, but it died down quickly.

Otherwise, Santo Domingo was quiet yesterday, and more stores reopened for the first time since the revolution broke out April 24.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel provisional president, hotly denied a charge by a U.S. official that he had agreed to give Communists posts in his rebel government.

"It's a lie," Caamano told newsmen.

Caamano also denied a U.S. claim that Fidelio Despradel, identified as a prominent Communist, was one of his aides.

"I don't even know who Despradel is," Caamano declared.

CLOSE STATION

Hector Aristy, Caamano's secretary, said the rebel chief had closed down a radio station which came on the air Wednesday and called on Dominicans to "kill in blood and fire the foreign invaders and their lackeys."

Aristy said the station, which called itself "Radio Constitutionalists," did not represent the rebel position.

U.S. officials in Washington said their government hopes to begin withdrawing some of its 20,000 troops from the Dominican Republic within a few days as contingents from other nations move in.

★ ★ ★

Officials indicated the number of withdrawals would depend mainly on the size of forces contributed by other countries to the inter-American military force approved by the OAS yesterday.

CONTRIBUTORS

Paraguay and Venezuela already have announced they are ready to contribute military units. Brazil and Argentina, Latin America's two largest nations, also were making preparations to dispatch troops.

Costa Rica has no army but said it would offer 10 to 20 men from its national police force.

Five countries — Uruguay, Mexico, Chile, Peru and Ecuador — voted against the OAS proposal to establish a force, and Venezuela abstained.

Local Physician Will Speak at State Convention

Dr. James Powell, 582 N. East Boulevard, is scheduled to be a featured speaker during the 67th annual convention of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons in Grand Rapids next week.

Dr. Powell will be among 1,600 physicians and guests slated to attend the five-day gathering.

The convention is scheduled to run from Monday through Wednesday evening, with a two-day house of delegates session to begin on Sunday.

Another Pontiac physician, Dr. Ben F. Dickinson, formerly chief of surgery at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, is to be installed during the week as the new president of the state association.

Burglars Find 'Job' Is Work

Burglars netted only $75 when they broke open a safe at a Birmingham food store last night, but they did about $1,900 worth of damage to the safe and building.

The burglars were unable to open or remove a security box inside the floor safe, but they demolished the safe in their attempt, police said.

The break-in at Quarton Food Market, 1744 W. Maple, was discovered at 11:30 p.m., an hour and a half after the store closed.

Damage was estimated at $1,700 to the safe and $200 to the door of the building, which was torn from its hinges.

3rd School Out in Waterford

Will Put Additions on Existing Sites

The Waterford Township Board of Education learned last night that only two of three proposed elementary schools can be financed through the 1963 bond issue.

Supt. Donald Tatroe explained however that while the third 12-room school could not be built, the same amount of classrooms could be constructed as additions to existing facilities.

He said that increased construction since the first of the year has made it necessary to revise the plans originally formulated by the Citizens Advisory Committee.

About $760,000 remains from the $6,250,000 bond issue.

★ ★ ★

"This is enough money to build two separate schools," said Tatroe, "but not a third."

He said the funds would allow the construction of 38 classrooms, equal to the number first proposed, but that 14 of them would have to be additions.

He noted that the Riverside Elementary School, opened last September, will have to be expanded from 16 to 24 classrooms eventually.

Tatroe said he will make a recommendation to the board May 20 regarding the location of the additions.

★ ★ ★

The bond issue already has given the school district funds to build two elementary schools and a junior high school; and construct additions at five elementary, one junior and one senior high locations.

It has also supplied funds to acquire property for future coning on the Waterford High School campus and obtain a bus garage.

Then it circled around Lake Minnetonka's west side and moved over the lake to the east side. Dozens of lakeside cabins and residences were smashed and scores of residents were injured.

OTHERS HIT

The tornado then traveled northeastward hitting Fridley, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View before it left the area.

Tornadoes also skipped across parts of Oklahoma, striking in small towns and rural areas.

A teen-age girl was killed. One woman suffered injuries in a twister which hit Oakwood, about 60 miles southwest of Oklahoma City.

A meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Monday to form a PTO for Traub Elementary School, which will open in September.

Agenda for the meeting at Eastover School includes discussion of bylaws. Parents also will have an opportunity to meet the school's principal, Mrs. Marguerite Bean.

POISON GAS

The witness also said that Foster had discussed killing Wallace by the use of poison gas which he planned to purchase by mail.

DREW KNIFE

On another occasion Foster forced a friend at knifepoint to drive him to the motel where Wallace lived, D'Autremont testified.

The defense counsel, Joseph L. Hardig, of Birmingham, did not wish to cross-examine D'Autremont.

In other testimony during the afternoon the court heard Dr. Richard E. Olsen, the pathologist who performed the autopsy on Angela Foster.

Olsen said that Mrs. Foster had died of manual strangulation, rather than hanging.

The doctor said she was strangled by the right hand of the assailant, and she was dead before her body was hung in the basement.

Solons Receive Tax Reform Kit From Governor

week ago," Romney added. "But that doesn't mean it's close by any means."

He praised a move by Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Ithaca, Thursday to limit property tax assessments to 40 per cent of true cash value. The move was backed by Montgomery as a means of forcing fiscal reform.

"This is one approach to property tax relief we could very well use," Romney said.

Using the Romney alternate budgets and alternate tax plans as a starting point for discussions, the group will meet again "the early part of the week after next," Romney said. The next main point of discussions will be spending targets for the next three years, he added.

REVENUE SOURCES

"We have to find revenue sources without resorting to patchwork consumer taxes," Montgomery said, "and logic takes you back to an income tax every time."

The income tax alternatives ranged from 2.5 to 3.5 per cent —some allowing a $1,000 exemption, some without.

The First World War

The Bottom of the War: 25

Written By PHILIP VAN DOREN STERN for Newspaper Enterprise Association Illustrated By John Lane

By the end of 1915, Russian, German, French and other countries' losses on the battlefield were enormous, but there was no accurate count of them.

The British, who kept careful records, had 549,467 casualties, of whom 128,138 were dead.

In all these nations, near-young men were being wiped out. Some of the few survivors were to continue their existence as mutilated creatures who could never again lead full lives.

When the year drew to a close, 145 Allied divisions faced 100 German divisions along the Western Front. Despite their inferior numbers, the Germans were preparing to launch a tremendous assault on the French forts around Verdun.

★ ★ ★

This appalling blood-bath was to be followed by the equally murderous battles of the Somme.

DOMINATING IDEA

The idea of making a successful breakthrough still dominated the military mind.

Trained in obsolete tactics and bound by tradition to the strategy of past wars, it could not comprehend the simple fact that barbed wire, machine guns and long-range artillery had made defense far more effective than offense.

Hundreds of thousands of lives were being sacrificed to bring these old-line officers' education up to date.

★ ★ ★

One of them, Gen. Douglas Haig, replaced Gen. John French as head of the British expeditionary forces in December 1915.

A military historian who knew Haig said that the new commander was convinced that the decisive blow could be delivered only by cavalry—as it had been in the past.

And that "of the newer arms Haig could grasp nothing because history could tell him nothing" about them. But this conventional horse-soldier was in a position to determine strategy in a machine-dominated conflict.

Commanders who had enthusiastically adopted the new weapons, however, did not yet realize that they had limitations.

When Gen. Falkenhayn planned the German assault on Verdun, he brought up enough heavy artillery to bombard the field so thoroughly, that, in theory, no one would be alive there to resist his infantry advance.

PLENTY LEFT

But there were plenty of French soldiers left to mow down his troops, which they did.

But what was being planned at headquarters during the winter meant little to the men crouching in the trenches. They were mercifully spared from knowing anything about the horror that 1916 held in store.

To them the war was already unceasing misery from which the hospital or the grave were the only escapes.

The bullet was no longer their chief enemy; far worse were rain, snow, dampness, cold and day after day of existence without hope.

WILL TO LIVE

Only the blind, unthinking desire to survive kept them going.

The human mind is so resilient that it is able to forget suffering and even joke about things that would be intolerable in better times.

Photographs of mud-covered soldiers going about their business under conditions that seem unbelievable to civilians often show them smiling and laughing

★ ★ ★

Humor sometimes masks feelings that are too terrible to reveal.

★ ★ ★

When 1915 ended, a soldier in the trenches needed laughter as a substitute for despair.

V-E Day Events May Show Rising Influence of Soviet Military

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Moscow's celebration this weekend of the 20th anniversary of V-E Day may produce evidence of growing influence of the military leaders on Soviet politics and even a trace of strain between armed forces leaders and Communist party civilians.

★ ★ ★

If this turns out to be the case, it could have important impact on the development and conduct of Soviet foreign policy.

For several months there have been indications that the V-E Day events would produce the reappearance in public, in a place of honor, of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, hero of Berlin. He has been in eclipse since 1957, when Nikita S. Khrushchev repaid his help in defeating the "antiparty group" by firing him as defense minister and disgracing him.

There has been speculation that Zhukov might march at the head of a V-E Day military parade along with other aging marshals who led Soviet troops to victory, men like Vasily Sokolovsky, Konstantin Rokossovsky and Ivan S. Konev.

News Analysis

PARTY CONTROL

This would indicate pressure from career military men, as opposed to the political officers whom the Communist party charges with insuring its overall control of the armed forces. The aging marshals who were heroes 20 years ago no longer may hold active command positions, but they doubtless influence those who do.

Khrushchev's departure resulted in a new distribution of political power at the top in the Kremlin. Once again it was a "collective leadership" in which no one man alone held the reins of power. This was the case 12 years ago after Stalin died. As it did then, the situation seems again to have prompted career military men to express annoyance with party interference in strictly armed forces affairs.

★ ★ ★

Stalin rebuked Zhukov for objecting to the political commissar system letting a party officer override decisions of a command officer. Under Khrushchev, the marshal seemed to make headway. Khrushchev made him a full member of the party Presidium. But he was a nuisance, and Khrushchev soon got rid of him.

Again today, under a collective leadership, career officers seem restive. This time, civilian leaders seem to compromise. The party now is appointing, in some cases, career military men to Communist positions.

SIGNS OF CONCESSIONS

There are signs of concessions by both sides. The army goes along with the idea of party control if its objections to the more unpleasant aspects of the system are take into consideration. The party meets the objections insofar as there is no reflection on over-all party authority.

The career men also seem to want to remove distortions and exaggerations of history promulgated under Khrushchev, when all the repressions, blunders and setbacks of the war were laid to Stalin's "cult of personality," while the party as such was absolved of all blame.

The pressure is not to reestablish Stalin as a hero, but to put matters back into focus and give credit for success of Soviet arms where credit is due.

★ ★ ★

It all may add up to a more authoritative voice for the military. This could mean revision of Khrushchev policies, including heavy reliance on nuclear deterrents to permit cutbacks in military expenses and more investment in the domestic economy. It could mean more attention to the insistence of some military leaders that preparations be made for a possible protracted war without nuclear weapons.

This could have impact on foreign policy planning, with respect to the potential for political gain through the existence of massive conventional land forces in a time of nuclear stalemate.

Patronage Dip on City Buses

Spring temperatures, which settled on Pontiac last month, may have been a factor in a drop in patronage experienced on Pontiac Transit Corp. bus runs in April.

The Easter recess at area schools also reduced passenger totals last month.

Company officials reported a total of 69,042 passengers in April, down from March's 81,182 riders and 77,294 in April a year ago.

Revenue also slumped last month to $17,383, which was down from $19,399 in March. However, this was higher than the $16,382 netted in April a year ago.

★ ★ ★

Adult fares were increased last fall, which accounts for the gain in revenue while passenger totals dropped.

TOTAL NUMBER

During the first four months of 1965, the total number of passengers is down to 281,197 from 296,006 for the same period last year.

Meantime, revenue for the first four months is up to $68,686 from last year's $65,457.

MSU Students March to Protest U.S. Viet Policy

LANSING (AP)—In a demonstration against U.S. policy in Viet Nam, 42 Michigan State University students marched five miles Thursday from the MSU campus to the State Capitol Building.

The group, denied permission to march in the street, stayed on sidewalks as about 40 Lansing policemen kept watch at various stages of the march. Some onlookers heckled the marchers, but there were no incidents.

★ ★ ★

In front of the Capitol, four House and Senate page boys joined the procession with a banner saying: "we support LBJ." They paraded briefly to show support for President Lyndon Johnson's Viet Nam policy.

All students of the Dominican Academy will be eligible to vote. Positions open are president, which must be filled by a senior; vice president, filled by a junior; treasurer and secretary, filled by either a sophomore or junior.

The students must have at least a C average, and have a good personal record in character and courtesy.

Honorary members, requested only by student council officers and faculty members, will be elected next school year.

Positions open will be alumni secretary and corresponding secretary, with the same requirements as the other officers.

The student council shall have all the powers necessary to carry out its functions, as long as they do not conflict with any rules, regulations, or policies of the school.

A member of the council may be expelled for failing to perform duties, or for bringing disgrace upon the Academy.

When charges have been brought against a member, student council officers discuss the case and render decision to the student body. The council rules by a simple majority.

Study Made of Women as Murderesses

NEW YORK (AP) — Those masculine critics who are forever lamenting the inconsistency of the other sex should ponder a college study of the woman murderer.

Women behave like women even in their crimes, says an article in the current "University Woman" of Fairleigh Dickenson University. She murders in a manner consistent with her role in today's society — and that's about as consistent as you can get.

* * *

The article, by Patricia Turner of the "University Woman" staff and Charles Siegel, a sociology student, is included in the publication's over-all look at "The Ills of Modern Woman."

The woman who murders, says the student researchers, is very different from the male murder, and her womanly characteristics show up in the motives, methods and choice of victims.

* * *

"As a murderer," they say, "she reflects the roles she performs as mother, lover, housekeeper, shopper, cook and nurse. However, she characteristically has difficulty in coping with the demands of her female responsibility."

Although men are arrested for murder nearly five times as often as women, the gap is narrowing as women are thrust more into the economic and political arena.

* * *

In 1933, 91 per cent of arrests for murder were male, 9 per cent female. By 1962, 17 per cent of all arrests for murder were female. And, suggest the authors, women are getting away with a lot more than is laid at their doorstep. Culturally women are kept at home and protected; their crimes are undercover to a much greater degree than are men's.

* * *

The American system of justice is more lenient with women, the article points out, with only 31 women included in the 3,666 murderers executed between 1930 and 1939.

WHICH ONE?

Who is the woman murderer? Say the researchers:

"She usually becomes delinquent at a later age than her male counterpart. She has usually been married at least once, but the chance of marital failure is greater for her than for the rest of the population."

* * *

Her victim commonly has threatened her security within the home. It's traditionally a husband or child.

Husbands, when their demise is premeditated, usually succumb to poison carefully administered over a period of time. Arsenic is the favored poison because it can be purchased so easily as part of a housewife's shopping and disguised so easily in food.

SOCIAL ROLE

"The use of poison," says the article, "correlates with the woman's social role as shopper, cook and nurse, in which she is not often suspected of wrongdoing."

* * *

Of course, if she becomes enraged during a quarrel she will pick up the best weapon at hand, a gun if there's one in the house. If not, right there in the kitchen is always the homemaker's indispensable tool, the knife.

Women kill their children almost exclusively because "they are unable to cope with their responsibilities as child bearer and rearer."

* * *

Most frequent target is the illegitimate child, either because the mother can't or doesn't want to care for the child or because she fears society's disapproval.

"Some social scientists feel that as birth control practices become more prevalent, and fewer illegitimate babies are born, the incidence of infanticide will be decreased," says the article.

As for motives, humiliation, jealousy, frustration and emotional sensitivity are frequently observed, say the researchers.

One analyst, they point out, says that nine out of 10 times the impulse stems from that little recognized emotion that "is one of the strongest forces in the world — boredom." That, of course, would mostly apply to the husband as victim, say the college students.

"The criminal woman," sums up the article, "is greatly influenced by her social roles. Yet, paradoxically, our society's conception of the woman's social role may actually protect her from the discovery of her crime and subsequent conviction."
