Was Scott Carpenter Dangerously Confused?

Astronaut Flight Lauded by Press

FROM OUR NEWS WIRES

Banner headlines throughout the free world proclaimed the success of U.S. astronaut M. Scott Carpenter's orbital flight today, and even behind the Iron Curtain there were many who hailed the spaceman's achevement.

Americans around the world — servicemen, businessmen or tourists — received congratulations from people in foreign lands.

The story of Carpenter's triple swing around the world was front-page news in such diverse publications as London's Communist Daily Worker and Tokyo's Nihon Keizai, an ultraconservative financial newspaper.

"Commander Carpenter's flight yesterday had a rather too-exciting end," said the Guardian with traditional British understatement.

West Europeans joined in the tension and pride of Americans as they listened during the day to radio commentaries and newscasts from Cape Canaveral.

They waited breathlessly for the final relief-flooding moment when Carpenter was picked up from his tiny liferaft.

The story of Carpenter's ride through space was beamed across the Iron Curtain by Radio Free Europe to Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Radio Moscow brushed off Carpenter's feat as a "repetition of John Glenn's flight," and Radio Peiping ignored it altogether. Propaganda broadcasts from Soviet satellite countries compared the space journey unfavorably with the feats of Russia's cosmonauts.

The Russian radio made no mention of the suspenseful minutes during which Carpenter was lost to the world, although it did report his safe recovery.

Despite official coolness, many individual Russians were enthusiastic.

"I hope he gets lots of money and a nice prize," said a 25-year-old Moscow housewife. "Anyway, now he should be able to retire."

"I wish him health and happiness," a Soviet music student said.

The Soviet press relegated news of Carpenter's three trips around the earth to brief items which stressed the difficulties of the flight.

Cairo Radio devoted large parts of its afternoon and evening newscasts to reports of Carpenter's epic journey. The state television gave a full description of the flight from blastoff to final rescue.

Carpenter's adventurous ride was the main story in all Indian newspapers. An official Indian spokesman offered congratulations to the United States and Carpenter on the flight.

In Rome, even the Communist-leaning Paese Sera rolled out its biggest headlines: "Carpenter in Orbit."

In Paris, all four French-language dailies with early editions hailed the latest American space triumph in page one headlines.

Tears or Fears? Not From Rene

Astronaut's Wife Gives Space Program Her Vote of Confidence

By HELEN THOMAS

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Mrs. Scott Carpenter has given the nation's space program one of its highest compliments.

She went through the harrowing hours of her astronaut husband's orbital flight yesterday without shedding a tear or saying a prayer.

In a remarkable press conference last night Rene Carpenter explained her feelings with eloquence, poise and amazing frankness.

The added charm was the presence of her four children — Scott, 12, Jay, 10, Kristen, 6, and Candace (Candy), 5.

At the outset, the ash blonde woman tried to evade the cliches — comfortable phrases, she called them — "like happy, proud and thrilled . . . because we feel so much more."

She looked like a little girl in her blue skirt and white middy blouse, but she fielded newsmen's questions like a professional.

She was asked if she, too, felt as did her husband that it would be "presumptuous" to pray for oneself. The Carpenters are members of the Episcopal Church.

"No," she replied softly. "I did not pray. I felt the same way."

As for worry, she said she had none, even during that hour when the space capsule had overshot its target and was out of contact with the Project Mercury control center.

"I wasn't worried at all," she said calmly as she stood before a microphone with her children seated on chairs behind her. The children came into the room looking very somber as though they had been briefed to be on their best behavior.

When pressed about the "11 crucial minutes" she said with vigor, "I think I've been thoroughly checked out in egress (exciting) procedures."

Great as yesterday was to Mrs. Carpenter, she said the "most exciting day" of her life was when her husband was chosen for Project Mercury. She described it as "sheer joy."

She seemed to enjoy the fact that she had managed to avoid reporters and cameramen throughout the day while her husband was in orbit.

She revealed the Navy had brought her and the children to Cape Canaveral and that they had spent yesterday at a private residence on Cocoa Beach. She apologized to the press but added the privacy "was wonderful for me."

3rd-Orbit Lapse Could Explain Re-Entry Error

Debriefing Reports by Trackers Hint He Was Tired, Mixed Up

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Malcolm Scott Carpenter may have been in more danger during his triple flight around the earth than even he realized, it was disclosed today.

The communications team that tracked Carpenter on his three oribts indicated today that he may have become dangerously tired — even confused—on the last time around.

This information came to light in a postflight debriefing, by radio hookup, among all 17 stations on the Project Mercury worldwide network.

It could help explain why the Aurora 7 capsule re-entered the atmosphere at such a shallow angle, at the end of its orbital journey Thursday, that it overshot the planned landing area by some 250 miles.

It might also account in part for the dead silence from Carpenter that mystified and alarmed millions, and threw searchers into a vast hunt, from the moment of re-entry until the astronaut was located some 41 minutes later.

The tracking station at Kauai, Hawaii, said that when it instructed Carpenter to get ready to fire his braking rockets, on the approach to California, he started doing something else.

"We had the impression that he was very confused about what was going on, but it was very difficult to assess whether he was confused or preoccupied," the station said.

The Woomera, Australia, station agreed that "We also feel the astronaut was acting somewhat tired during the last pass."

OXYGEN LOW?

From the Bermuda post came a suggestion that oxygen pressure in Carpenter's craft may have been low, and that an emergency oxygen system should have been used.

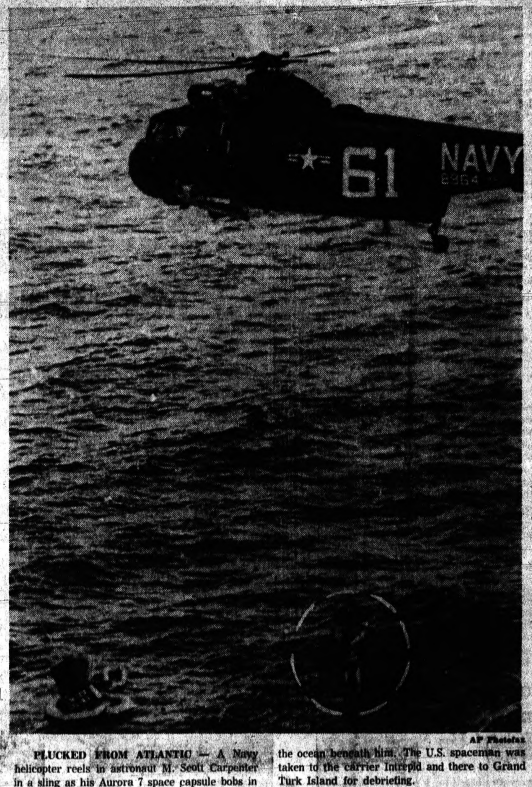

Carpenter was resting at Jamaica-controlled Grand Turk Island, where he had an emotional reunion Thursday night with John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to go into orbit.

Carpenter received a message from Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"It was a real cliff hanger with the whole world pulling for you," the Johnson message said.

"We are proud, very proud, that another American has joined the

Hunt Clues to Slayer of Agriculture Agent

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP)—A pathologist's finding of probable murder in the year-old death of Henry Marshall, who investigated affairs of Billie Sol Estes, sent officers digging for clues to the slayer today.

This development occurred as a congressional committee prepared to open a hearing in Washington Monday on the operations of Estes, Pecos, Tex., promoter of multimillion-dollar farm enterprises who has been indicted on fraud and theft charges.

Dr. J. A. Jachimczyk of Houston, who studied the exhumed body of Marshall, made his final autopsy report Thursday to Dist. Judge John Barron.

The physician expressed belief that Marshall, shot five times with a 22-caliber bolt action rifle, was murdered but said, "There is the barest possibility of suicide," Judge Barron related.

Dr. Jachimczyk also said there was evidence Marshall's blood contained 30 per cent carbon monoxide at the time he died last June 3. Judge Barron said the pathologist estimated 35 to 40 per cent carbon monoxide—the gas in exhaust fumes from an automobile—could cause death.

The autopsy likewise disclosed a severe blow on Marshall's head.

Dr. Jachimczyk said all five bullets entered from the front and came from a gun very close to the body. Dist. Atty. Bryan Russ had said earlier there was a possibility one shot hit Marshall in the back.

FOUND ON FARM

Marshall, 52, was found dead on his farm near here. As an investigator for the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office, Marshall had checked cotton acreage allotments held by Estes. The Agriculture Department since has ruled that Estes held the allotments illegally.

The inquest verdict five days after Marshall's death was suicide.

Capt. Clint Peoples said he would call in every Texas Ranger necessary for the reopened investigation.

County grand jurors who began inquiring into Marshall's death four days ago recessed until Monday, when they hope to hear Dr. Jachimczyk and William Elliott of demand a complete file on Estes Temple, Tex., an Agriculture Department investigator. The grand jury will decide then whether to cotton allotments.

British Wondering Why Chinese Exile Tide Stops

HONG KONG (AP)—The mass flight of refugees across the Red Chinese border into Hong Kong stopped abruptly today. It appeared that Communist Chinese authorities had taken positive action to choke off an exodus which had poured 60,000 refugees into teeming Hong Kong since May 1.

In an official statement, British authorities said the situation on the border is rapidly reverting to normal.

They said British army units have been withdrawn from patrol activity and that a detention camp in which refugees were held until they could be returned to Red China has been closed.

The reference to normal conditions apparently meant that a trickle of refugees trying to slip into Hong Kong was expected to continue.

★ ★ ★

That trickle swelled into a torrent in the past few weeks, causing harried British authorities to appeal to the Peiping government for action to halt the flights.

It was not immediately established what action the Communist authorities and guards had taken on the other side of the border.

ALL QUIET

Border sources said they had heard no shooting and that all appeared to be orderly and quiet at the main crossing points which the refugees have been using since the big rush began.

★ ★ ★

During the 24 hours before the refugee flow stopped, the number sneaking across the border dropped drastically, to fewer than 2,000. For days before, between 4,000 and 5,000 had been slipping across each day.

★ ★ ★

There was speculation that the Communists were using force in the hills behind the border, out of sight of British patrols.

Communist loudspeakers were silent today after a full day of broadcasting exhortations to the fleeing Chinese to return to their villages. This nonviolent form of persuasion in a police state had mystified Hong Kong officials.

There was also speculation that the drastic drop in the number of refugees might be a result of British diplomatic protests to Peiping. This could not be confirmed.

★ ★ ★

British officials were pleased at the drop in the refugee flow and hoped it was only the start of a trend that would accelerate. But one official pointed out that in jam-packed Hong Kong even 100 border crossers would have caused concern a month ago.

3 Soviet Ships Near N-Test Site

Defense Dept. Says Vessels on Intelligence Mission in Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department said today that three Soviet ships are within a few miles of the Pacific nuclear tests area, obviously on a large-scale military intelligence collection mission.

The Defense Department said the ships are equipped to monitor U. S. activities in progress and have been actively engaged in obtaining what information is possible on tests.

The largest of the three ships is the modern 3,600-ton research ship Shokal'Skiy which, the Pentagon said, is extensively equipped with instruments.

The ship also has a pad for launching meteorological rockets which, by Soviet statement, can reach the ionosphere to analyze the effects of nuclear explosion in the upper atmosphere.

The department said the big research ship also has obtained radio-chemical analysis of debris from explosions which would provide information on bomb design, yield, and other data of significant military implications.

The time and approximate location of explosions also can be estimated with other equipment and optical and acoustical devices can provide still more information.

CONVERTED TRAWLERS

The two smaller ships are converted trawlers which have electronic equipment designed to supplement information received by the big research ship.

The three ships are within 10 to 15 miles of the western edge of the test area, a Pentagon spokesman said.

This would mean that they are between 300 and 400 miles west of Christmas Island, the main test point.

Despite Clouds, It Looks Like Nice Weekend

Skies will be somewhat overcast Saturday but temperatures will warm up to near 80. Mostly fair and cool with a low of 54 is tonight's forecast.

There's a chance of near .25 of an inch in a few thundershowers Sunday and again about Tuesday, the weatherman said.

Temperatures over the next five days will average about 2 degrees above the normal high of 73 and normal low of 52.

Morning southwesterly winds at 8 miles per hour will become westerly at 8 to 15 m.p.h. late today.

Fifty-one was the lowest recording in downtown Pontiac preceding 8 a. m. The reading at 2 p. m. was 77.

Underground N-Blast Set Off; 34th in Series

WASHINGTON (AP)—An underground nuclear test blast was set off today at the Atomic Energy Commission Nevada test site.

The blast, the 34th to be announced in the Nevada series, low yield—a blast force less than that of 200,000 tons of TNT.

City to Dedicate New Fire Hall

Public Ceremonies Set for Tomorrow; Open House to Follow

A public dedication of Pontiac's new $350,000 fire hall on Pike Street is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. tomorrow, followed by an open house, Fire Chief James White announced today.

Former City Manager Walter K. Willman will dedicate the building.

Others participating in the ceremony will be Mayor Robert Landry, introducing past and present city officials; master of ceremonies Sherwin Birnkrant, assistant city attorney and chairman of the industrial fire safety committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Robert Hathaway, second vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Chief White will explain the unique features of the new building and City Manager Robert Stieger will speak on the city's progress in recent years.

The invocation will be given by The Rev. Galen Hershey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pontiac, and the benediction by The Rev. Edwin Schroeder, chaplain at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Guided tours through the new building will be extended to the public.

In addition to the $350,000 allocation for the building, the city spent $25,000 to furnish it and $89,000 to provide the land.

Storms Raking Sections of U.S.

Damage in Millions as Tornadoes Hit in East, Central Plains

By United Press International

Thunderstorms which spawned tornadoes in sections of three states yesterday continued to rake the Central Plains and Atlantic Seaboard early today.

Portions of Kansas, Oklahoma and Connecticut counted damage in the millions of dollars from yesterday's tornadoes, which took at least one life and injured scores.

One man was killed and 37 injured in a tornado yesterday at Waterbury, Conn. Twisters at Altus, Okla., injured 26 persons. Ten persons were hurt in a tornado at Hutchinson, Kan. A driver was injured when wind overturned his 4-ton truck during a Hopewell, N.J., thunderstorm.

Tornadoes also were reported at Admire, Beloit, Allen, Concordia, Emporia and Hesston, Kan., Marlow, Okla., and Wolcott, Conn.

TORNADO-LIKE STORM

A tornado-like thunderstorm slammed through eastern Pennsylvania last night, showering Shenandoah with hail the size of golf balls. Ninety-seven windows in two high schools were smashed.

The Waterbury, Conn., twister destroyed 45 homes, leaving 600 persons homeless. Power was cut off to 25,000 homes. A school gymnasium was uprooted and a factory heavily damaged. Debris from Waterbury was showered onto New Britain and Glastonbury, Conn., several miles away.

National Guardsmen were ordered into Waterbury to prevent looting and aid rescuers.

The tornadoes which hit the Altus, Okla., area destroyed one home and overturned three house trailers. Three planes were blown from the municipal airport across a highway.

The transmitter tower of a radio station was bent double, knocking the station off the air.

Laos Coalition Is Sought by K

Soviet Leader Pledges Efforts to Work for Netural Government

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev pledged today to continue efforts to establish a neutral coalition government in Laos.

Khrushchev told a nationwide radio and television audience that the Soviet government "did stick to and will stick to the positions it expressed at the Geneva conference on Laos and in my talks with President Kennedy on the future of Laos."

Reading a prepared text with the aid of steel-rimmed glasses, Khrushchev reported on his just-concluded trip to Bulgaria. He praised the cordiality of the Bulgarians and said they had shown that they were "devoted and sincere friends, marching along with the Soviet people to the victory of communism."

DENIES PATCHING JOB

He denied he had gone to "patch up cracks" in the Communist structure there.

On this score, he said "imperialists are looking for quarrels in places where they do not exist."

Khrushchev was seated at a Kremlin table as he spoke.

It was obvious the Soviet leader wanted maximum impact of his fireside chat on his Laos pledge.

The Day in Birmingham

Credit courses will be offered in art, mathematics, journalism, language, science, social and commercial studies and shop.

There will be several noncredit courses, including driver training.

The traffic toll for the first four months of the year shows an increase over 1961 in all phases of accidents, Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley said today.

Total accidents investigated by police are up to 971 from 939 last year.

Personal injury accidents increased from 54 during the same period last year to 68 in the first four months of 1962. Persons injured in these accidents are up to 104 from 82 last year. No fatalities were reported for either period.

Mrs. John Graham of Grosse Pointe Woods will be the speaker at the June 1 meeting of the United Church Women of Birmingham.

The 10 a.m. program will be held at Christ Church Cranbrook. There will be a nursery for preschool children.

Mrs. Graham will illustrate her talk, "Migrant Work in Michigan," with slides.

Mrs. Phillip D. BeGole

select company of men who have plowed the first furrows in the sky."

At Mercury press headquarters here, information officers awaited a possible change in plans that previously had ruled out a Glenn-type welcome in Washington.

One informed person remarked that the flight had far exceeded the significance that had been attached to it in advance, and, with its thrill-a-minute character and surprise ending, might warrant more public attention than originally was planned.

At Grank Turk, Lt. Col. John A. Powers, information officer for the astronauts, said that Washington had ordered him to "stay flexible" for the next 24 hours.

Powers indicated a more elaborate homecoming might be in the offing.

Aurora 7, the satellite that Carpenter had handled so well, proved its worth by remaining afloat until the destroyer Pierce picked it up.

It was taken to Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, and was to be flown here today to Hangar S on the Cape, for a check of all its systems.

Carpenter was questioned today by physicians and capsule technicians anxious to mine all his information before he forgets any of it.

SHOWS NEW DANGERS

The mission brought to light new dangers—the hazards of missing landing target areas by wide margins, for example—and pointed toward solutions of some of the problems of man in space.

It opened up, too, new vistas of voyage by satellite.

It may even have advanced the United States manned space program beyond the phase of three- or even five- or seven-orbit flights, and on to the field of 18-orbit, all-day missions.

The really alarming part of Carpenter's flight came after he fired the retro-rockets that would retard his speed sufficiently to make the capsule drop out of orbit and descend through the atmosphere.

Normally the heat of re-entry, the ionization of the air in front of the spacecraft, cuts off radio communication for a minute or two. Glenn experienced a communications blackout at this stage of his historic flight of last Feb. 20.

But Carpenter's craft, struck dumb at the 12:30 p.m. re-entry, never regained its voice. Nor did Aurora 7 become visible to the ships in the planned recovery area 400 miles southeast of here. The craft might have been burned to a cinder. It simply disappeared.

Man Hurt in Car Is Reported as Satisfactory

A 49-year-old Pontiac man injured in a two-car crash on South Marshall Street last night was listed in satisfactory condition today at Pontiac General Hospital.

Cecil L. Beckwith, 99 Orchard Lake Avenue, suffered injuries to his chest and right arm when his car collided with one driven by Leonard Briscoe, 25, of 475 Fildew Street.

Briscoe and his passenger, James Albritton, 29, of 500 Raeburn Street, were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and released.

Pontiac police reported Beckwith was attempting to make a left turn onto Oamun Street when he collided head-on with the oncoming Briscoe vehicle.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Sunday in the funeral home. The funeral service will be at 10 a.m. Monday in St. Benedict Catholic Church with burial following in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Mr. Ballard, 45, of 2554 Sylvan Shore Drive died early yesterday morning at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after a brief illness.

Pair From Area on Carrier That Picked Up Scott

Two 20-year-old sailors from the area were aboard the aircraft carrier USS Intrepid that picked up astronaut Scott Carpenter yesterday.

They are Richard Biron, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Biron, 3984 Sashabaw Road, Drayton Plains, and PO 3.C. Melvin A. Juhl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Juhl, 1405 Catalpa St., Rochester.

Biron, a 1961 Waterford Township High School graduate, was called to active duty April 14 after a year in the Navy's reserve program at Grosse Ile. Juhl, a Rochester High School student, joined the Navy three years ago.

U.S. Need Not Fear Foreign Trade Race'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States has nothing to fear from trade competition with other countries, David J. McDonald, United Steelworkers Union president, said Thursday.

McDonald told a world trade week luncheon that production costs in other countries are as high or higher than in the United States, despite higher wages here.

The union chief attributed this to grater productivity and lower raw material cost in this country.

McDonald backed President Kennedy's trade expansion act.

Kilt-Clad Lad Put in Pokey; Riot 'Short'

One of the growing list of "angry young men" learned yesterday, the hard way, that conformity has taken a stronghold.

The lesson came for Terrence Roach Jr., 19, of 927 Purdy St., Birmingham, after two hours behind bars in the Highland Park jail.

Roach, a student at Highland Park Junior College, was arrested by police yesterday as a "disorderly person" as he paraded in front of the school in plaid Scottish kilts, protesting a ban on shorts and other casual attire in the classroom.

He was taken to jail after three times refusing orders of Dean Grant O. Withey to get off the property and then nearly inciting a riot among students, police said.

★ ★ ★

More than 50 students milled outside the police station while Roach regained his composure. They were told that Roach would be freed if they would leave.

They did and Roach was let go. No charges were filed.

"Maybe we made our point but I don't think it's going to gain us anything," said Roach when he was released, still wearing his badge of protest.

★ ★ ★

It didn't for Roach. Dean Whitney suspended him until he can review the situation.

County Valuation Hear Methods for Equalizing

Forty-four tax assessors and county supervisors attended a meeting in Pontiac yesterday to review the county equalization process and procedures for tax purposes.

The meeting was conducted by the County Board of Supervisors' equalization committee.

Committee members, assisted by County Equalization Department officers, explained the methods by which the county's valuation is equalized each year.

★ ★ ★

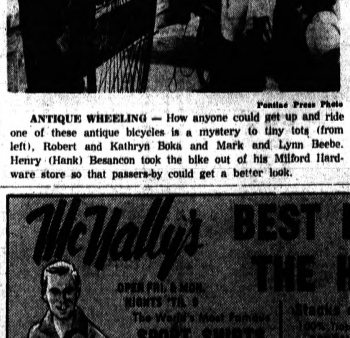

"The prime purpose of both state and county equalization departments, according to Committee Chairman Mayon Hoard, Milford Township supervisor, "is to achieve uniformity of treatment to each unit."

Bells Ring for Michigan Week

Milford Reaches Into the Past

The sound of bells ringing in the old Milford Presbyterian Church on Main Street this Michigan Week has put the whole town in the mood for "Heritage Day" being celebrated today.

Old Michigan hymns that some of the town's pioneers sung, and even composed, are mixed with familiar tunes that have been passed down from one generation to another.

Folks have climbed into attics, barns and sheds, dusting off treasures to display in store windows.

Spinning wheels, iron pots, copper kettles and brass spittoons from the town's first tavern adorn shop windows. Time-worn stovepipe hats in men's stores, high-buttoned shoes in shoe stores and century-old copper soles in drug stores are but a few of the many fascinating displays.

TAKES TOWN BACK

Descendents of two Milford families, Mrs. Georgia Watkins and Mrs. Earl Mastick, spear-headed the project which "takes the town way back."

Several Bibles — their pages yellowed and worn with age — lie wide open in Puckett's Shoe Store window. Antique glass pitchers are lined up like brilliant chunks of colored ice in the El-Mil Restaurant.

At the north end of town, Mel Moore's big black 1915 Buick sits majestically in Feigley's Buick salesroom, like an imposing grand duchess openly tolerating it's smaller companions.

Milfordites plan on leaving their many nonreplaceable antiques on display throughout the weekend so that out-of-town visitors may have the opportunity of seeing Milford and Michigan forefathers' way of life.

Machine to Print in 4 Languages, Translate in 3

NEW YORK (AP) — A multilingual machine, although still in the research stage, promises to translate spoken messages aloud in three languages and print them in four.

Dr. Harry F. Olson, director of the Radio Corp. of America acoustical and electromechanical laboratory, said yesterday the device thus far can ultilize English, French, German and Spanish, but added:

* * *

"There is no limitation on the number of languages that might be used or the amount of translation."

He'll Leave for Good

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Film producer Benedict Bogeaus' wife divorced him Thursday after testifying he would leave home for as long as three months without saying where he was going or leaving her any funds.

Ex-AMA Journal Editor Blasts Medicare

By BOB CONSIDINE

Dr. Morris Fishbein, who keeps frisky and feisty at 72 by bowling, golfing and punching away at the King-Anderson Bill, poured himself a sizzling ginger-beer and began to effervesce. The bubbles went in all directions.

★ ★ ★

"Overproduced, that's what the AMA's TV answer to President Kennedy was," said the man who edited the AMA Journal, sometimes with a whim of iron, for 33 years.

"The show should have been done in one of the 38 states where the Kerr-Mills Act is working out . . . in front of a few hundred old folks who have benefited from Kerr-Mills. The Garden charged us $6,000, empty, which was an expensive way to say 'See, we don't pack our meetings.'

"I'm better about King-Anderson. Imagine, everybody—everybody—paying $12 a year, no matter how much or little they make, and then when they must go to a hospital the government will say, 'You got $90?'

BLASTS BILL

"And the government won't have a doctor handy to get the old guy into the hospital, so that's another bill. And if he doesn't get well after a few weeks, it will throw him out, tell him to go to a nursing home. Where are the nursing homes? . . .

"If the bill passes, 80 or 90 per cent of the old folks now living with their families will be packed off to hospitals. If anything drives this country toward socialism and beyond that to communism it wil be the break-up of the family, the core of any democracy.

"The government has been spending millions studying how best to care for the aged living at home, to keep enough hospital beds open for those who really need them. Now it pressures the people to clog the hospitals with old folks before it knows the result of that study . . .

"Sure, there's been a change in doctors since I became one, half a century ago. They don't like night calls. Nobody does. When I was young, night calls came naturally. Most babies were born at home. We'd hold the mother's hand all night and deliver in the morning.

"Now the mother is packed off to a hospital and the resident keeps the obstetrician advised by phone. There's a lot more telephoned advice these nights, winding up with 'Give him a couple of aspirins and I'll be around in the morning.' It's becoming contagious. . . . . .

"Doctor I know called his plumber one night to report a leaking toilet. Plumber said, 'Give it a couple of aspirins, flush it, and I'll be around in the morning.' I've been called the Bob Hope of the medical profession, but I'd rather be the Will Rogers . . .

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

"The changes I've seen! When I was young, pernicious anemia, diabetes in the young, most forms of meningitis were 100 per cent fatal. Now look. Tuberculosis accounted for 275 deaths per 10,000. Now in ten states it is down to five deaths in 10,000. Crippling polio is on the way out. So is multiple sclerosis.

"We've become a motor car civilization and accident prone on the road and around the house . . . The number one cause of deaths of children 5 to 15 today. It was 26th on the list when I began. Yes, and there then were only five recognized specialist fields, now 41 . . .

"What's this nonsense about doctors making to much money? To begin with, money's worth only about a quarter of what it once was. Look at the relative incomes of laborers and doctors. A clumsy plasterer makes lots more money than some of the most carefully trained men in the profession. An electrician makes more by working only a fraction of the number of hours put in by a doctor.

"People still love doctors, individual doctors. It's just the AMA they hate. Well, they shouldn't. Somebody's got to tell the government when it's wrong. Would you want AMA replaced by government employees whose prime duty is to perpetuate the party in power? . . .

"Medical research's greatest challenge? That's easy: Find the cause of growth and decay. Two microscopic cells grow into a seven and a half pound human being in nine months, and the weight doubles in the next few months.

"The growth continues for 20 years, then stops, except for the accumulation of fat. There follows 30 years of static maturity, then, as if by unseen clock, 20 years of crack up. Why? Is this an irrevocable life span—'three score and ten'?

THE SAME TODAY

"Some insects are born, grow up, breed, crack up and die within 24 hours. The dog lives 12 years, the horse 20. The wonder drugs keep us going longer than our fathers, yet the over-all span stays strong.

"Fifty years ago, every 30 out of 1,000,000 dead reached 100. It's the same today.

"But back to King-Anderson. It won't get out of the Ways and Means Committee. The President inadvertently tipped this off the other night in his speech when he said it will pass 'if not this year then next.'

"You know danged well he wouldn't have qualified his statement if he was sure . . .

"Furthermore . . ."

Minister Invites Wife's Admirers Into Boxing Ring

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — The Rev. Fred R. Belk, Baptist minister, has issued a public challenge to three unidentified men who tried to pick up his wife on a Moberly street the other night. Meet him in a gymnasium boxing ring where, he said, "I will politely knock your ears back (one by one) for insulting the virtue of my wife," or—

Meet him in the church where "I will tell you of moral evil, be it ever so slight, that will some day destroy our American culture and way of life if left unchecked."

The minister made the challenge in a letter to a newspaper.

Science Teaching 'Poor,' Says Physics Professor

American college teaching of introductory science — both to science students and to nonscience students — is poor and is very likely to get worse.

This is the belief of Harvard physics Professor Gerald Holton who yesterday was the second expert to present a paper at a workshop to develop science courses for the nonscience major.

The conference of some of the nation's top scientists and educators is being held in Meadowbrook Hall on the Michigan State University Oakland campus. Finances were provided in the form of nearly $30,000 by the National Science Foundation.

The reason for the worsening of the state of science teaching, said Dr. Holton, is easy to find.

"Time for and interest in teaching, particularly on the elementary level, runs rather low in college science departments," he said.

MERELY FACTS

He listed a number of what he called "merely facts" in this regard:

1 — An active scientist can teach only one large introductory course or at most two medium-size, intermediate-level courses, if he still hopes to keep up his his research work.

2 — ". . . in most university science departments, the hierarchy of interest is in descending order; one's own research, research collaboration, supervision of graduate students, teaching of graduate students, teaching of concentrators in middle group courses, teaching of departmental concentrators in elementary courses — and far, far at the end of the line, departmental service courses for nonconcentrators" (those who do not specialize in science).

3 — ". . . the rewards offered by most universities and colleges decrease as you go down the list from research to elementary-level courses.

"Not many university administrations have faced the fact clearly enough that attention to introductory courses in science at the moment entails sacrificing research time as well as status," Holton added.

Science courses for the college student who won't become a scientist need not be "soft and soupy," he said, but there should be "a specially developed, hard-hitting, substance-centered physical science course."

The two-year course, Holton demanded, should "take pains to contribute wherever possible to the general goals of the student's education."

These goals according to Holton are:

"To find his talents, to become at home in the universe, to understand his relation to his fellow man, to see where we stand on the line between our past and our likely future, and to become more certain of the functions of soul)."

Salute Successful Space Flight

Through a slight ground fog Astronaut MALCOLM SCOTT CARPENTER shot skyward into space at 7:45 yesterday morning and left behind millions of Americans praying for a successful flight.

The prayers were answered.

CARPENTER

SCOTT CARPENTER now becomes the second American to orbit the earth three times. The mission of the Aurora 7 spacecraft was successful and proved that scientists working on our Mercury program thoroughly understand orbital probes.

This history-making event, the second of its kind, is a triumph for the United States in its contribution toward space exploration.

Without doubt this miraculous space flight traces the phenomenal rise of outer space technology of this country. It is not an individual accomplishment, but one that has been fostered and worked out through a team effort.

★ ★ ★

This story of progress is one all Americans can well be proud of. We are sure that Russia and the rest of the world cannot help but be impressed at this Mercury program conducted in full view for everyone to see.

The far-reaching developments that will eventually result from the scientific data learned on these first two flights are beyond comprehension for most of us.

The scientists say that yesterday's suspense-filled flight is merely a stepping stone in the over-all space program.

We must admit that we were awe-struck during the entire four hours and 56 minutes that Astronaut CARPENTER was in the air. The climax was a bit breathtaking until the successful rescue was effected and the words by CARPENTER, "I feel fine," were repeated.

There was a slight error, and as a result CARPENTER was unable to land in the designated area. For a while, at the end, the course, 250 miles off, seemed hazardous, but as has often happened before it was the joint effort of everyone connected with the program that successfully finished their job.

Few modern inventions today are able to work alone. Modern technology is so complex that its problems no longer yield to individual solution. Yesterday's flight is a prime example of specialists joining forces in a spirit of mutual, rather than lonely, exploration and as a result multiplying their effectiveness.

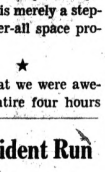

We congratulate the entire team for an outstanding achievement.

Will Vice President Run on 1964 Ticket

Recently President JOHN F. KENNEDY was asked about the rumors that Vice President LYNDON B. JOHNSON would be dropped from the national ticket in 1964.

★ ★ ★

At the time the question was asked there was obviously no pussyfooting on the issue. The President answered in these terms: "Well, I don't know what they'll do to me, but I am sure that the Vice President will be on the ticket if he chooses to run."

JOHNSON

This is certainly a forthright statement if we ever heard one.

The President then went on to laud his teammate by calling him invaluable, and further said that he not only fulfills a great many responsibilities as Vice President, but that he participates in all of the major deliberations.

★ ★ ★

Somehow we sort of doubt this appraisal in its entirety. It has been our feeling L.B.J. has been kept in the background. Surely, one could not say he had figured prominently in much of the big news out of Washington.

Apparently there will not be the jettisoning of another Texan, as was done with Vice President John Nance Garner by President Franklin D. Roosevelt 21 years ago, to be followed first by Henry A. Wallace and then by Harry S. Truman, who became President of the United States.

★ ★ ★

A lot can change between now and convention time and politics is known to turn up some pretty odd circumstances.

GOP Has Big Job

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Republican leaders say they feel pretty good about the primary election results so far.

They make a rather sweeping generalization that even in the elections in which they have not polled the most votes, they have at least made gains over their counts in 1958 or 1960.

Republicans are counting heavily on their prospects in the 1962 big state gubernatorial races — on Rockefeller in New York, Scranton in Pennsylvania, Volpe in Massachusetts, Rhodes in Ohio, Romney in Michigan, Nixon in California. The news from there is admittedly not too good, but still not considered hopeless by party faithfuls.

The new bright spot to the Republicans is Pennsylvania, where GOP National Committee Chairman William E. Miller of New York thinks the party's gubernatorial candidate, multimillionaire William W. Scranton, has definite presidential possibilities for 1964 and a man to watch.

★ ★ ★

This does not discount the prospect of that other multimillionaire, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. Republicans are now saying that he is the one 1964 possibility that millionaire President John F. Kennedy would most like to see defeated in this year's New York governorship race.

The reading now is that Gov. Rockefeller's divorce has not injured his political image. Assuming that he does not remarry before the election—which even the governor's closest associates won't talk to him about — he can campaign as a proud father with his fine children on the platform.

Romney and Nixon are considered possibilities only if they win their governorship races. Sen. Barry Goldwater has to run for re-election to the Senate in 1964.

Since it is not considered likely that he can get a "Lyndon Johnson law" passed by the Arizona legislature to let him run for two offices at the same time, his presidential prospects are dimmed.

ANOTHER TASK

But all this 1964 talk is considered speculation. The situation could change completely in the next two years.

The immediate Republican job is to make a better showing in Congress than their present 174 House, 36 Senate seats.

They talk big of recapturing control in off-year elections. But they will be doing well if they make a small gain in the Senate and pick up 26 seats in the House for a total of 200. If they don't do that well, the Republican presidential nomination may not be worth having.

The GOP prevailing sentiment seems to be, "Give us a gain in Congress, a couple more Berlin walls, two or three more Laoses or Cubas, two or three more Billie Sol Esteses — and we'll be in the running."

The Congressional Joint Committee on Republican principles under Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin expects to have its statement of positive GOP policies ready June 7. It will be voted on by party caucuses in Senate and House. As accepted, it will be presented to the National Committee in Seattle June 11 or 12.

Mrs. Charles Thomas of 42 Montcalm St., 82nd birthday.

And Everybody Sees It!

Davd Lawrence Says:

JFK Wants 'His Side' in Congress

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy has launched the 1962 congressional campaign with a declaration of war on the conservatives in his own party. He has asked the voters in northern states particularly to elect Democrats in the place of any Republicans, whether or not they happen to be conservatives.

LAWRENCE

The significance of this move has not yet been sensed even in the political arena. But it means that the coalition of Republicans and Democrats, which for the last 25 years has saved America from radicalism and socialism, is to be broken down if the President has his way.

★ ★ ★

Two speeches within the last six days by Mr. Kennedy emphasize his attitude toward the existing coalition. He said, for instance, to the 1962 Campaign Conference for Democratic Women at a meeting on the White House lawn a few days ago:

★ ★ ★

"Nearly every issue which comes before the House and Senate today is settled by one vote, one way or the other. Congressman Boggs, on the tradbill — nearly every important vote on the trade bill in the Ways and Means Committee was settled in our favor by one vote.

"We lost the agricultural bill in the Senate—Agricultural Committee on which Sen. Humphrey sits—by one vote. We passed it in the House of Representatives, out of the Agricultural Committee, by one vote."

'BALANCE OF POWER'

Just before the above speech, Mr. Kennedy told a Democratic party rally in Madison Square Garden that the coalition—or "balance of power," as he calls it—must be defeated.

★ ★ ★

The President denies that he himself is seeking any more power. He says that this idea is "the oldest old political argument" and that people "should know and realize that the power given to the President of the United States, under the Constitution, particularly that of war and peace, is as great a power and in many senses more than man could possible desire."

The above quotations are taken verbatim from the White House transcript covering Mr. Kennedy's extemporaneous remarks. The topic would seem to have been important enough for embodiment in a prepared address.

But an impromptu speech often reveals the innermost thoughts of the speaker. In this case, it is evident that the President is concerned about the "balance of power" against him in Congress and seeks a free hand.

Few presidents have gone as far without law to regulate the economy and social life of the nation by executive orders as has Mr. Kennedy. He realizes that the only check could come from Congress. He has today virtually a two-thirds majority of his party in both houses of Congress.

But this, in his opinion, isn't enough. It is a shaky majority because the non-radicals and non-socialists do frequently break away from party lines.

PUZZLING WORDS

The mention of "war and peace" and "leader of the free world" in the context of political speech making is somewhat puzzling.

For Republicans and Democrats in Congress, whether or not they are conservatives, have generally supported the President on international policies for many years, irrespective of the party affiliation of the man in the White House.

★ ★ ★

The real issues are on the domestic side. Mr. Kennedy wants enough nonconservatives elected on the Democratic ticket for Congress in the North to cancel out the power and influence of the conservative Democrats of the South and perhaps even to take away their committee chairmanships if they fail to join the "rubber stamp" contingent and go along with presidential edicts.

★ ★ ★

Many Republican voters in the North doubtless will be thinking of participating in the Democratic primaries to join with other conservatives to defeat radical and socialistic candidates aspiring for a Democratic party nomination.

Mr. Kennedy seems to have flung a new challenge into the congressional elections of 1962.

Dr. Harold Hyman Says:

Report on Ulcers to Free Victims From Rigid Diets

Some medical eyebrows may be raised and some shrieks of protest from die-hard nutritionists may be heard as a result of an ulcer report recently published by the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association.

The views — which correspond with my own, gained through years of experience — will free many peptic ulcer (stomach and duodenal) sufferers from unnecessary hardships of rigid diets.

The report, in summary, says:

Ulcers are not healed by diet, alone, but because the man with the ulcer comes under the care of a physician who is able to transmit to the patient some of his own confidence in the tendency of the ulcer to heal.

Rigid dietary treatment does not hasten peptic ulcer healing. Satisfactory healing of an ulcer can be obtained on a liberalized diet in which the choice of foods is more or less left to the patient provided that the chosen foods are made readily available, are attractively served and are eaten under favorable and pleasant conditions.

★ ★ ★

Dietary restrictions need not be placed on certain foods thought to be irritating unless they cause immediate distress to the particular patient.

The rate of recurrence of peptic ulcer is determined by its natural history in the particular patient. Even under virtually ideal conditions of management (as in the personnel of the royal navy), the natural rate of recurrence is little influenced.

The intelligent patient will obviously avoid those foods he knows from experience cause him to have heartburn, pain or other digestive symptoms.

He will avoid coffee and alcohol.

He will thoroughly chew all foods. And he will take some simple antiacid tablets or powders that experience has shown him serve to prevent or relieve distress.

★ ★ ★

Even so-called indigestibles (onions, garlic, turnips, parsnips, radishes, mustard, pickles, etc.) do not produce any more irritation to the stomach of the ulcer patient than to those whose stomachs are normal.

Provided that "roughage" foods (fruit skins, lettuce, cabbage, kale, nuts, celery, etc) are thoroughly masticated they scarcely ever injure a peptic ulcer.

Certainly before prescribing limitations to the diets of persons with peptic ulcer, we need better evidence that ordinary foods are either stimulating or irritating to the stomach.

Case Records of a Psychologist:

Read Bible From Cover to Cover

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE M-423: David, aged 26, is our son who has just finished medical school.

Recently he was home for a weekend.

"Well, Dad," he grinned. "I finally finished reading the Bible clear through, from cover to cover."

DR. CRANE

"Congratulations!" I exclaimed. "That's something I'd estimate that not more than one person in 100 has ever done."

When our children were younger, Mrs. Crane and I had offered them $1 for each of the 66 books in the Bible they read.

They started with the Old Testament and finished Genesis. Then they got into Exodus, with the thrilling account of Moses and the migration toward the Promised Land.

Leviticus is full of petty ritual and red tape, so they bogged down there.

So I told them to skip those dull books and head on to Judges, which is really a thriller-diller, plus the two books of Samuel and Kings.

★ ★ ★

And they had read the first four Gospels in the New Testament.

But this was David's first trip through the entire Bible. Yet it is a most educational and inspiring literary project.

General MacArthur had read the Bible clear through on six different occasions by the time he finished West Point. And he still holds the top score in scholarship at West Point all through its existence.

My mother had read the Bible through for 72 different times. Now she just dips into sections that she prefers, much as do clergymen.

★ ★ ★

When I was seven years old, I started reading the Bible, two chapters per day, and had finished it eight times before I graduated from high school.

Bible readers usually make better grades in English, grammar, spelling and psychology.

Indeed, much of the psychology I have learned actually came out of the Bible.

For example, you may recall that Adam started what we psychologists call "projection" or buck-passing by blaming Eve about the forbidden fruit.

Gideon started the idea of screening military troops by his famous "water test." In fact, he even asked God to submit to a couple of tests, too.

And God relished such a scientific thinker as Gideon, so God in effect asked Gideon to "Give me another test," as when Jehovah urged Gideon to go down by night and eaves drop on the encamped enemy.

The original hot rodder of the Bible was named Jehu. And Jonadab served as the male Dorothy Dix of the Bible.

Samson started prize contesting. For he offered 30 suits of clothes to the winner of his famous "riddle contest."

When his nagging bride tipped off his enemies, he simply went to the next town and killed 30 men, after which he removed their clothes and used them as the first contest prizes.

God used a flaming bush as an advertising device to catch the attention of Moses. And the prophet Ezekiel really pioneered our modern "flag pole" sitting contests, for he lay on one side for 390 days to stimulate talk-up and bring in the yokels from the hinterland to see this unique man.

Michal saved her husband's life by substituting a dummy in his bed to fool his would be murderers.

Always write to Dr. George W. Crane in care of The Pontiac Press, Pontiac, Michigan, enclosing a self-addressed stamped, self-addressed envelope and 30 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for his psychological charts and pamphlets.

Voice of the People:

'What's Happened to Law of Keeping Dogs Tied Up?'

It's too bad the voters in Pontiac passed the new dog ordinance in the last election, when the dog warden can't keep up with the old law of keeping dogs tied up.

★ ★ ★

I guess we have to wait for the meter man to come around again and pick up the dogs that run loose. By the time the police department arrives the dog has long since disappeared.

★ ★ ★

A way to make sure the dog is picked up is to tie it up. I wouldn't want to take the chance, but people are left with no alternative.

Students in Favor of School Sororities

The Pontiac Board of Education has recently stated that the 35-year-old state law banning high school sororities will be enforced with the beginning of the 1962-63 school year. This law states that no organization shall exist which is composed of public school students and which chooses its members by vote of the public school members. Since this is a state law it must be enforced, but why wasn't it enforced when the clubs were first organized?

★ ★ ★

Following is a list of only a few of the outstanding things that have been accomplished by these sororities: contributions to the Pontiac Symphony, the Needlework Guild, Teens Against Polio, UNICEF, Pontiac General Hospital and the cancer foundations.

★ ★ ★

These are the reasons that I am a member of a sorority. Sororities are much more beneficial than they are harmful.

Communist news commentators in East Europe have begun whistling in the dark about the emerging European Common Market. The rapid growth is making them edgy. It goes against all Marxist dogma which predicts the disintegration of capitalism. 'Will Youth Be Sent Back to Hospital?'

Recently a young man escaped from the Pontiac State Hospital. This man has a record of two escapes from the hospital. In December of 1959 he attacked a woman and was put in the hospital, only to escape a year later. The officials at the hospital granted him ground privileges. Is this the normal procedure taken with a patient with a record like his?

Are we going to put this man back in the Pontiac State Hospital to let him try a fourth escape?

'Political Dreamers Try to Change U.S.

"No political dreamer was ever wild enough to think of breaking the lines which separate the states and compounding the American people into one common mass."

These words were written by our greatest Chief Justice, John Marshall, more than one hundred years ago. What would he say today to the political dreamers who are bent and bound on power to compound America into one common mass, by taking away the individual states rights one way or another?

Water Officials Report: Hottest May on Record

Jst how hot was it last week? As far as Pontiac Water Department officials are concerned, it was better than any July or August scorcher in three years and the hottest May on record.

Water pumpage totals for the month won't be available until June 1, but Herbert G. Parker, water superintendent, says the figure will establish a new high for any May on record.

May 17 will also go down in the record books.

"On May 17 we recorded a pumpage of 20.22-million gallons for a 24-hour period. This is not only the highest daily rate ever recorded in May, but the highest pumped any day for the past three years." Parker said.

That evening the city pumped some 1,073,333 gallons in one hour.

"This is also a record high for one hour in May, and has only been exceeded twice before at any time in the history of the water works."

Japanese Students Protesting Again

TOKYO (AP)—About 850 shouting, snake-dancing leftist Japanese students tried to charge the American Embassy today in protest against U.S. nuclear tests and U.S. troops in Thailand.

Police drove them off after 30 minutes of scuffling.

One youth was arrested. At least one student and one officer suffered head cuts.

It was the first antitest demonstration since April 27.

An American student was in the front rank of the demonstrators, but refused to give his name.

BUIES CREEK, N.C. (AP) — Addison Brewington of Dunn, a house mover, went to a farm near here this week to move a tobacco barn.

He returned to town for more equipment, then back to the farm. He found the barn had been moved—a sudden wind and hail storm had blown it down.

What makes this 'BOTANY' 500 summer suit one of the country's best sellers at 59.95?

Try one on and you'll know in a minute. It's the way this fine blend of Dacron and wool feels—light, buoyant, fresh as a June breeze. It's the way it acts—flicks off wrinkles and holds its press even on the sultriest days. Perhaps most of all it's the way it's tailored—for Daroff handles this summerweight with the same skill they apply to their fine regular-weight fabrics: good drape, careful stitching, faultless detail. We think it's a lot of suit for 59.95—and apparently most American men do, too, for it's a consistent best-seller all over the land. See it this season in a wide variety of solid shades, neat patterns and subdued glen plaids; in 3-button models with trim new single-pleat trousers. 59.50

Community College

Campus Unlikely in City

Oakland County may get a community college system by 1964. But, because of lack of space it's unlikely that the City of Pontiac will get a campus placed within its borders.

Construction is not expected to be started before 1964.

Whether the county is willing to pay a 1 mill property tax to establish and operate three college sites may be decided by voters on proposals planned for the November ballot.

The sites suggested so far: One in Troy, the second north or northwest of Pontiac, the third in the Farmington-Novi area.

Each of the sites is to be 150 acres. This acreage requirement may preclude Pontiac from getting the site.

* * *

Dr. Gerald W. Bolcourt, director of the Oakland County community college pre-establishment survey, today noted that a similar fate had befallen an earlier suggestion to place a campus in Royal Oak.

"Two other studies," he said, "had recommended that a site be placed in Royal Oak, but no site that large could be found there, according to our reports."

As a result, the steering committee report of the citizens group studying the problem now advises the college's future board of trustees to seek a site in Troy.

Construction would begin first on the Troy and near-Pontiac sites. The current report recommends that first facilities on the two campuses should accommodate 1,500 full-time students at each.

Also recommended was preparation to teach an eventual total of 5,000 students in the community college system. It was not specified whether this expansion would be handled by expanding the two early sites or by establishing the planned Farmington-Novi site.

The total county enrollment could go as high as 14,000 by 1970, Bolcourt said.

The present tentative final report approved by the steering committee will be sent out next week to all 150 members of the Oakland County community college advisory council for approval and modification suggestions.

A final membership meeting will be held June 7 at Bierney School, Southfield. All local school superintendents and board members are expected to be invited to the meeting.

GOP Senators 'Mad' at Kelley

Call Secret Probe on Lobbying Over Taxes for Political Use

LANSING (AP) — Republican senators asked to talk to the attorney general about charges of lobbying in their chamber over taxes are steaming mad.

Two of five called in agreed to cooperate enough to converse with the attorney general on the matter —but would not submit to an oath. Meanwhile, charges of "political motivation" were heard of the probe.

Sen. Haskell L. Nichols, R-Jackson, was the most cooperative witness.

Nichols first voted for the income tax proposed by Gov. Swainson, then said he couldn't support it.

Nichols said he was convinced sentiment was against the income tax by the response from voters in his district and declared he wanted more tax relief for industry.

Sen. Stanley G. Thayer, R-Ann Arbor, joined other Republican senators in protesting that the probe, called by Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley, should be an open one.

"As a courtesy," as Thayer put it, he talked with Kelley late yesterday with Sen. Farrell E. Roberts, R-Pontiac, at his side as a witness.

Thayer contended any investigation should be in the open and before witnesses and newsmen, as is the custom in Senate investigations.

Gov. Swainson ordered the investigation of lobbying in the Senate after his tax program was scuttled there.

TACKLE KELLEY

The Republicans marched down in a body yesterday with newsmen accompanying them.

★ ★ ★

Kelley declared this was making "a circus" out of an investigation that should be carried on in privacy to protect the innocent.

Sen. John B. Stahlin, R-Belding, walked out on Kelley

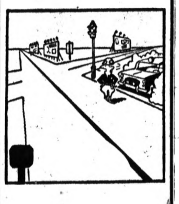

Said Stahlin, a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor:

"I think the cloak and dagger manner in which the attorney general is conducting this investigation casts serious doubts on the Michigan Senate.

"This investigation is clearly politically motivated. Gov. Swainson already has served notice he plans to make the Republican majority in the legislature a major campaign issue."

Today hours of packing, saving and preparing proved rewarding as 133 Waterford - Kettering High School seniors embarked for a weekend full of fun on their senior trip.

With Mackinac Island as their destination, anxious seniors were transported on three Greyhound coaches from the school campus to the Detroit boat docks where the S.S. South American awaited the voyagers.

During the cruise, the students will enjoy their trip with seniors from Troy, Ferndale, and Waterford Township High School.

Many activities were previously planned which the seniors will be taking part in this weekend including dances, a talent program, and the special Captain's Dinner Saturday night.

AWAIT ARRIVAL

The boat is scheduled to arrive at Mackinac Island tomorrow at noon and will leave the island at 4 p.m. The weekend tourists are expected to arrive back at the school at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

During the Honors Convocation first hour yesterday, many honors were bestowed upon outstanding students.

Several scholarships were awarded, National Honor Society members were recognized, and special presentations were given in the fields of speech, music, science, audio-visual, and journalism. The Outstanding Senior Citizen was announced, and Candy Windeler, valedictorian, and Jean Wohlgehagen, salutatorian, received awards for their achievements.

Junior-Senior Dance to Be Presented Tonight With Oriental Theme

By SHARON RODDEN

"Sayonara Omatsuri," this year's Junior-Senior dance at St. Michael High School, arranged by the Junior class will be presented from 9 to 12 tonight.

The Oriental theme will set the mood for the dance with the music of the Bell-Tones in MSUO's Golden Room. Arrangements for obtaining this room were made and completed by junior, Susan Hunt. Formal attire is required.

Dave Moreno is chairman of the decorating committee while Pat Donley managed the entertainment committee. Others who worked on refreshments and flowers were class officers: Gary Bisogni, Judy McInnis, Pat Hogan and Max Hurst.

"There's Music in the Air," the Music Department's Spring Concert was presented, under the direction of Sister Mary Cecile, Wednesday night.

The program consisted of both high school and grade school songsters and a number of individual acts.

Sunday was "Senior Day" for all of the Catholic High Schools in the Detroit area. Together with 8,000 other seniors, St. Michael's graduating class assembled at University of Detroit's gigantic Memorial Building to unite and pledge themselves to their country and their church.

United in both song and prayer, they witnessed Benediction and heard a graduation speech, addressed by Archbishop John F. Dearden.

Central Students Salute Employers

By WADE WILKISON

Pontiac Central High business students held the annual Employer-Employe Banquet Wednesday, which was "Livelihood Day."

Serving as a salute to Michigan Week, the banquet was held at Devon Gables. The Co-op students hold this banquet in order to cement the friendly relations existing between employers and employes.

This week at Pontiac Central has been one of decision as a great many school organizations have elected officers for the coming year.

Thespians' officers for the school year of 1962-63 are Sue Dawe, president; Joan Grahek, vice president; Carolyn Gaddes, secretary; and Dave Archer, treasurer. These officers will lead this dramatics club through the ensuing dramatic and musical productions next year.

Monday the Playcrafters, another dramatics group of Pontiac Central, will initiate new members in a ceremony held after school. Old officers Patt Wilkinson, president; Judy Prevette, vice president; Wade Wilkison, treasurer; and Jeanette Wright, secretary, will preside over the ceremonies and the election to determine new officers.

The American Field Service also selected new officers. Heading this student exchange organization next year will be Pam Griffin, president; Mike Jenkins, vice president; Joan Grahek, secretary; Jim Nelson, treasurer; and Denise Patton, historian.

The AFS annual spring dance will be held tomorrow at the Northwest YWCA in Detroit from 8 to 11:30 p.m.

HONOR CHEERLEADERS

Old and new cheerleaders and their parents were honored at the annual tea held Wednesday night at school. The new cheerleading squad as announced by sponsor Jean Smith will be composed of juniors Gwen Hovis, Kathy Jackson, Sue Rogers, Bernadette Johnson, Gretchen Gaensbauer, and Carole Graham.

Sophomore members are Stephany Hardenburg, Nancy Jack, Pat Gentry, Monita Calhoun, Carolyn Gaensbauer, and Shirley Warren.

They will accompany this year's cheerleaders, the Homecoming court and Jean Smith to her summer cabin in Caseville over the weekend. Today a pep assembly was held in the auditorium to honor the spring sports: track, tennis, baseball and golf.

Pontiac Central High School's first team debaters, Andrea Tyman, Judy Pickett, Nancy Bain, Bill Graves and Steve Wyman, competed against New Haven High School Sunday on a television quiz program "Quiz 'em on the Air."

Pontiac won by a score of 400 to 300, on a fifty point per correct answer scale. Pontiac Central's team was coached by speech instructor Walter Smith and history department head Herbert Sanford.

The Playcrafters, under the direction of dramatics instructor Stuart Packard, recently presented "The Happy Journey." Written by the well known writer Thorton Wilder, this one act play was part of the program presented at the Mother-Daughter Banquet at the Oakland Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Patt Wilkinson and Dick Taylor portrayed Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, Donna Nelson and Bill Cox played the parts of Carolyn and Arthur Kirby. Sue Daly and Don Belote portrayed Beulah and the Stage Manager.

Ike Placed More in Top Jobs

JFK Ignores Smart Gals for His Political Plums

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON: It's a bit of a joke, son, to contemplate Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson telling 3,000 cheering Democratic women that they should be up-graded from "doorbell ringers" to "conference table statesmen."

The ol' maestro of the Texas plains has a healthy respect for feminine political brainpower. The Lone Star state shared with Wyoming the distinction of electing the first woman governor, when in 1924 it chose Miriam (Ma) Ferguson.

"Ma" may not have been any great shakes as a statesman, but she sho' knew how to count the ballots.

Texas is also the home of the second woman ever to serve in a president's cabinet. It was Republican President Dwight D. Eisenhower, however, who upgraded the Democratic politico, Oveta Culp Hobby to secretary of health, education and welfare.

I'LL SWAP YOU

During the 1960 campaign, vice presidential candidate Johnson was so impressed by the operation of Elizabeth Carpenter, a Texas newswoman who was temporarily serving as press secretary for his wife Lady Bird, that LBJ remarked: "I'll swap you any three men on my staff for Liz."

After the inauguration, there were all sorts of rumors that Liz would get an important job under President Kennedy in the White House press office. When she didn't, Lyndon himself hired her as his executive assistant.

That's one reason why it's a little laughable for the rangy Texan to be telling spellbound women about the administration's intention to "wipe out discrimination against women in politics."

What discrimination? The only one currently practicing it is the top man in the White House. If LBJ had won the presidency, as he hoped, women might have earned a few choice spots in his cabinet, the agencies of the commissions.

★ ★ ★

As it is, the fair sex has lost many of the gains it laboriously made under Presidents Truman and Eisenhower, and no new feathers have been tucked into feminine bonnets.

★ ★ ★

No woman now sits in the Cabinet. Anne Wheaton, who was No. 2 press secretary in the Eisenhower White House, was replaced by JFK with a man.

Ike named the first woman ambassador to a major nation, and the first woman to be chairman of a government commission. His successor has done neither.

The strides which women have made since the change of administration have been made downhill, backwards.

Lyndon oratorically told the gathering of top women Democrats: "Qualify yourselves for public office."

Qualify themselves how? In what way? Many of the prized jobs in the present administration went to college professors, particularly Harvard men, whose qualifications for governmental office holding were largely academic.

NO BIG JOBS

The woods are full of eminent woman educators. Many of them used to teach the savvy wives of JFK's braintrusters at Smith, Vassar and Wellesley, but none has been made an ambassador or White House aide.

Johnson expressed disappointment that women "who are a major force on the precinct level are not willing to push beyond this level."

Ha! Men are always declaiming that if there's one thing they can't abide it's a pushy woman. How are the little women to rise above the precinct level, if the officials whom they elect by ringing door bells refuse to give them any political rewards?

JFK had worn his presidential hat for only a few months before Eleanor Roosevelt, the grand old lady of the donkey party, charged into his office waving a list of a hundred or so women eminently qualified for high public office.

The youthful prexy thanked her profusely, and filed it we know not where. All joking aside, Lyndon, it's nice to know that the administration intends to "wipe out discrimination against women in politics." Ha Ha!

Oakland Second in Total Voters With 318,605

The latest check by election clerks throughout Michigan shows Oakland County ranking second in total registered voters with 318,605, according to the state elections division.

The number of registered voters in Pontiac is 36,390, about 600 above the total in the spring of 1960.

Michigan now has 3,710,786 registered voters, an increase of more than a quarter of a million above the 3,454,804 voters registered in the spring of 1960. There were 3,489,626 voters registered in 1958 and 3,128,572 in 1956.

Wayne county leads with 1,352,852 registered voters. Oakland is followed by Macomb with 169,498. Kent with 167,299 and Genesee with 162,184.

The smallest number of registered voters is in Keweenaw county with 1,451 in the county's five townships.

Rockefeller Center Celebrates Spaceshot

NEW YORK (AP) — Rockefeller Center staged a ticker tape celebration yesterday when it was learned that astronaut Scott Carpenter had landed safely.

An avalanche of pieces of tape and paper were tossed from high in the 70-story RCA building and winds swirled them between the buildings and along the streets.

Has Found Treasure Off Cape Canaveral

Project Mercury Officer 'Explores' Space, Sea

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

CAPE CANAVERAL — The two most fascinating adventures in the universe would have to be the exploration of outer space, and the investigation of the unknown deep seas.

To be involved in either study is, to a young man, the most romantic and absorbing life work conceivable.

To be involved in both — this is paradise on earth — and over, under and around earth.

Lt. Col. Harry E. Cannon, USAF, is the young man who knows this best.

By profession, he is a vital cog in the U.S. space race. His job: Senior range safety officer for Project Mercury, the man who commands all rescue operations, should destruct action become necessary in the critical first stages of an astronaut's launching. Under his command are men, ships and helicopters of the army, marines and air force, not to mention civilians at the launch site.

HE FOUND TREASURE

Col. Cannon's hobby is undersea exploring. He dives for buried treasure in sunken Spanish ships. To top off his picture of paradise, he has FOUND treasure — "several" ships-full, thus far. Loaded with silver and relics. Part of a fleet of 11 galleons sunk by a hurricane in the year 1715, not far south of Cape Canaveral.

"And we know from the writings of a priest, who described the fleet's tragedy a week after it went down, that the 'big ship' (The one carrying the most loot) is still to be found." He grinned. "It's in the area. I think we'll get to it."

With seven other men, some officers and some civilians, Col. Cannon has salvage rights from the State of Florida to 40 miles in the area of their search. Whatever they find there is 75 per cent theirs. Only 25 per cent of the treasure's evaluation must be forfeited to the state.

The Colonel — a slim, dark-haired Steve-Canyonish sort — suddenly pulled a heavy chunk of silver from his pocket. "Know what that is? One of our pieces of eight." He and the others have found "many" of them — he's not saying how many, but associates believe it may be in the dozens of thousands.

All were stashed away in wooden boxes crusted with coral. The boxes stopped the oxidation process of the coins so that, after 247 years, they are perfectly preserved. An acid bath separates the coins, and a scouring with baking soda cleans and shins them.

"They're so perfect, the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York insisted at first they were counterfeit," said the colonel. A single one of these coins sold at auction recently for $114.

ONLY MAN UP

In his job at Project Mercury, Col. Cannon is copilot of the only helicopter in the air at the time of launch. Other helicopters are grounded because it is dangerous . . . .

Should the rocket explode on the pad, debris would shower the air and almost surely crack up his plane. Yet, at T-minus-30 seconds of every launch, Cannon soars off, ready to direct the astronaut's emergency rescue.

Up there, and down under the sea, Col. Cannon faces danger. He rarely thinks about it. Only occasionally does he remember that there could be trouble in paradise, and that is when sharks surround him.

Even then he wouldn't admit to being scared exactly. He puts it this way, a bit sheepishly:

"I don't know. I just never have gotten quite used to sharks."

Russian's Theory Ridiculed

'Christ Was a Spaceman'

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet university lecturer says Jesus Christ was actually a spaceman who came from another world.

★ ★ ★

The theory, by Leningrad University lecturer V. K. Zaitsev, was published by Leningrad Pravda, but only for the purpose of holding Zaitsev up to ridicule. The paper said Zaitsev told student audiences at Leningrad University the Holy Trinity was really the crew of a spaceship which landed on earth. Christ, Zaitsev said, was the ship's doctor and gained fame by healing earthlings with the use of hypnosis.

BROUTH CULTURE'

Zaitsev was quoted as saying these and other space travelers were "inspirers of social progress in ancient times and brought science, culture, arts, morals and governments to the earth."

Zaitsev said he believed the resurrection and ascension of Christ were real historical events but the ascension actually was in the rocket ship that brought him to earth.

★ ★ ★

Leningrad Pravda criticized Zaitsev as a man who underestimates the intelligence of human beings and denounced him for giving a "scientific foundation" to what it called "one of the most absurd episodes in biblical history."

'Suit Temperature Up'... 'Conserve Your Fuel'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The globe-girdling network of tracking stations provided near-constant radio communications with astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter Thursday and the conversation ranged from fireflies to an oscillating balloon.

The long-range chit-chat was serious when Navy Lt. Cmdr. Carpenter's suit temperature rose and his fuel supply was being used up too rapidly. It took on a light vein when the astronaut interrupted a test with "wait till I pick a washer out of the air."

Here, then, are highlights of the space pilot's talks with his associates:

Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, as the capsule went into orbit: Aurora 7, we have a go—with a better than 7-orbit capability.

Carpenter: Roger, Sweet words. Turnaround (of capsule) has stopped. I am pitching down, I have the moon in the center of the window. The booster (also in orbit) off to the right slightly. I have the booster in the center of the window now, tumbling very slowly.

Grissom: Roger, Aurora 7, we understand you. You sound real good.

SUIT HEATS UP

Canaveral Flight Command (to Air Force Maj. Donald K. Slayton at Muchea, Australia): Indian Ocean ship reports suit temperature as 82 degrees. They also reported that they had practically no voice contact but that their TM (telemetry) readouts showed that the astronaut and the systems status was good. We might get him to check his various radios with you to see if he is having any trouble with them. Secondly, we ought to talk a little bit to him about this suit temperature to see if he had tried to do anything about it.

Canaveral: Cape surgeon recommends that we recommend to the astronaut that he limit his exercise as much as possible till we get this suit temperature down.

Carpenter (to Woomera, Australia station): I have reduced temperature at this time. An increase in setting has resulted in a decrease in suit temperature. I'd like to try it at this setting a little while longer.

Woomera: Roger, Understand. It's time to have a little midnight snack, do you concur with that.

Carpenter: "I'll get to that shortly.

SEES 'SNOWFLAKES'

Carpenter (to Air Force Maj. Leroy Gordon Cooper, Jr., at Guaymas, Mexico): Body temperature is good. I am tracking now a very small particle, little isolated particle about—there is another—very small. Could be a light snowflake. (These apparently were the fireflies witnessed by Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., on his orbit flight).

Cooper: Roger. We're having a body temperature reading on you of 102.4 which we suspect is probably erroneous.

Carpenter: My suit temperature shows 60, and I feel quite comfortable, I'm sure I'd be sweating more than this if my temperature were 102.

Cooper: MCC (Mercury Control Center) recommends that you conserve your fuel a bit and maybe perhaps use a little bit more of your manual fuel.

Carpenter: Roger, can do. Mark coastal passage, coming over the Baja California Peninsula. Half covered with clouds and the other half is dry. Will you pass on this message for me, Gordon, for all the troops (friends) at Guaymas?

Cooper: Roger, will do. (Carpenter read a message of best wishes in Spanish.)

FUEL PROBLEM

Cooper: Everything looks good down here, except fuel usage—you better watch that a little bit.

At 9:23 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, near Bermuda at start of second orbit, Carpenter reported deploying the small test balloon.

Carpenter: The balloon is partially inflated. I have lost it a moment. Wait one and I will give you a better reading. Oscillations are beginning.

Slayton (from Muchea): For your information, there will be no flares at Woomera at this time. The cloud cover won't let you see them anyway.

Carpenter: Roger. I was unsuccessful last time.

Slayton: Sounds like you're doing real well up there, Scott.

★ ★ ★

Carpenter: Roger, it is a little warm.

★ ★ ★

Slayton: Roger, stand by. (to pilot) Manual for quite a spell now or we will probably have to end the flight.

FOOD CRUMBLES

Woomera: Have you taken any food thus far?

Carpenter: Yes, I have. The food has crumbled badly and I hate to open the package any more. Still getting crumbs all over the capsule. I can verify that eating bite-size food as we practice for this flight is no problem at all.

Woomera: Roger. How about water?

Carpenter: I have taken four swallows at approximately this time last orbit. Soon as I get the suit temperature backed a little bit I'll open visor and have some more water.

Carpenter (as he reached the Hawaiian tracking station): Suit temperature readout is 76 degrees. Body temperature reading 101.

Carpenter: I have more of the white particles in view below the capsule. They appear to be traveling exactly my speed. There is one drifting off—it is going faster than I am, as a matter of fact. I haven't seen a great number of these particles, but I have seen a few of them. Their motion is random. They look exactly like snow flakes.

DECIDE ON SRD

Cape Canaveral—We see no reason not to continue on into the third orbit. We still want to emphasize to him to limit auto fuel use.

Carpenter (describing balloon): It has a random drift and there is no oscillation that I can predict whatsoever. The line leading to the balloon sometimes is tight, sometimes it is loose enough so there are loops in it. I believe that when the sun is on it the dayglow orange is the most brilliant.

★ ★ ★

Mercury Control: He (Carpenter) has encountered some difficulties with his automatic control system and is monitoring the attitude control system fuel quantity very closely at this time. He and (Navy Cmdr.) Alan Shepard are discussing the methods that he will use to maintain the proper attitude as he re-enters the earth's atmosphere.

Carpenter's capsule had an improper attitude when the retro rockets were slowed and his resultant re-entry past was shallower and carried him 250 miles beyond the planned impact area.

Talks to President

Astronaut to Get Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has authorized the civilian space agency to give Scott Carpenter its highest honor — its Distinguished Service Medal.

★ ★ ★

It will probably be presented to him at Cape Canaveral Sunday. Kennedy does not plan to be on hand.

Kennedy issued the order yesterday. He also called Carpenter after the astronaut made his orbital flight.

"We are relieved, and very proud," the President told him.

Carpenter apologized for "not having aimed a little bit better on re-entry."

Before calling Carpenter, Kennedy issued a statement saying that "the skill and initiative of those who participated in the rescue of Cmdr. Carpenter, coupled with Cmdr. Carpenter's courage, is heart warming to all of us."

CONVERSATION

The transcript of the President's telephone conversation with Carpenter:

Kennedy: Hello — hello. Hello, Scott. Come in — are we talking to Scott Carpenter?

Carpenter: Mr. President, I'm—I hear you, sir.

Kennedy: Oh, well, I wanted to tell you we are relieved, and very proud of your trip. I am glad that you got picked up in good shape, and we want to tell you that we are all for you, and send you the very best luck to you and your wife.

Carpenter: My apologies for not having aimed a little bit better on re-entry.

Kennedy: Oh, fine and good. Well, we want to congratulate you and I look forward to seeing you in Washington some time soon.

Carpenter: I look forward to that, sir.

Kennedy: Very good. Good luck now, Scott. Bye-bye.

Carpenter: Thank you very much, sir.

The NASA Distinguished Service Medal is the same award Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. received after becoming the first American to fly in orbit. Suborbital astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom also were given the medal.

★ ★ ★

Salinger said it had not been determined who would present the medal to Carpenter.

Ike: We're Ahead in 'Our' Fields

WAYNE, Pa. (AP)—"In the fields which we have come into we are ahead," former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said when asked how he thought the flight of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter affected America's position in the space race with the Soviet Union.

Eisenhower said, however, the Soviets apparently still had the advantage over the United States in the size and power of rockets.

★ ★ ★

The former president was at Valley Forge Military Academy for the dedication of "Eisenhower Hall," a new officers' dining hall named in his honor. Because of a threatening storm, Eisenhower's helicopter carrying him here from his Gettysburg, Pa., home was forced to detour and he arrived three hours late, coming from Aberdeen, Md., by car.

Eisenhower learned the full story of the dramatic recovery of Carpenter on his arrival at the academy yesterday.

"It's good news," he said. "I'm delighted he's back safely."

Yuri Questions Scott's Success

Red Cosmonaut Says 'It Is Still Unknown if Trip a Fact'

KYOTO, Japan (AP)— Soviet Cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin said today that Astronaut Scott Carpenter's three-orbit space flight was neither a total success nor a display of any American progress in space travel.

The Soviet major, first man to orbit the earth, noted Carpenter missed his landing target by 250 miles and commented:

"There were no such failures with either myself or Gherman Titov. We landed in our designated areas."

Carpenter's flight, he added, "cannot be termed a total success." Titov, the second Soviet spaceman, made a 17-orbit flight on Aug. 6-7, 1961.

Gagarin, after newspaper accounts of Carpenter's flight were read to him, expressed some doubt about the American's flight.

"It is still unknown whether Carpenter's flight is a fact," he said. "However, if it is true, it did not indicate any progress" over Lt. Col. John Glenn's three-orbit ride on Feb. 20.

But Gagarin added he planned to send Carpenter a message of congratulations and said he is happy to learn the American "returned successfully to earth."

Times Soft Boiled Egg With Cape Countdown

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — The countdown which preceded Malcolm Scott Carpenter's space flight timed a soft-boiled egg for Gene Howe of Newport.

"When they said three minutes and 50 seconds to go," he said, "I put my egg on. When he blasted off, I took my egg off.

"It was a very good egg. Just right."

Nation Blase... Until...

U.S. Heaves Sigh of Relief

By RAY KOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

"Thank God he's back."

These few words summed up reaction to Malcolm Scott Carpenter's historic three-orbit journey—with a cliff-hanger ending which jolted everyone into prayerful suspense.

From blast-off through the orbits, and announcement of re-entry, general interest in the Navy lieutenant commander's flight seemed not as great as that of Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the first U.S. astronaut to circle the globe in a space ship. It was mainly regarded with a feeling of quiet satisfaction.

Then the bombshell announcement. His capsule overshot the landing target area by 250 miles; radar lost him starting with re-entry; all radio contact was gone.

For 41 agonizing minutes a nation was fearful and tearful.

"I'm afraid that boy burned up," a man in New York's Times Square muttered sadly.

Then the joyful announcement. "A plane spotted the capsule and a life raft "with a gentleman named Carpenter."

TICKER TAPE FLOWS

From coast to coast came sighs of relief and shouts of glee. Up went windows at Rockefeller Center, and out went showers of ticker tape celebrating the safe landing.

In a Dallas, Tex., restaurant a lady, after learning that Carpenter, 37, was safe, said: "If I'd only known it while I was trying to eat—I couldn't eat a bite."

Joe Foss, commissioner of the American Football League and a Marine hero of World War II, said in Atlanta that Carpenter's flight will "put us just that much ahead" (in the space race). "Too, it will show that our first shot was not just luck," he said.

A little girl in Atlanta spoke up proudly: "I knew he'd make it; he's an American."

SUDDEN INTEREST

In Cincinnati, an observer reported interest a little slower (than for Glenn), until contact was lost. Then, he said, people dashed about asking each other: "What's happened?"

In Cleveland, Ohio, during Carpenter's flight, a man casually said, "If you've seen one, you've seen them all." But he kept two righthand fingers crossed during the suspenseful period.

Among the first of the honors to be heaped on Carpenter:

New York's Mayor Robert F. Wagner offered him a ticker tape parade.

★ ★ ★

East Aurora, N.Y., has made him honorary mayor, noting that Carpenter's space capsule was called Aurora 7.

President Kennedy personally telephoned his congratulations.

★ ★ ★

In Washington, D.C., interest had not been nearly as high as during Glenn's flight. But, typical of the emotion generated by Carpenter's safe sighting, two women burst into tears at the good news.

★ ★ ★

In Omaha, Neb., Mrs. Hugh Schmidt said: "I was pretty worried and held my breath many times during the flight. I just couldn't see how his wife could stand all the suspense."

★ ★ ★

Keith Miller, an Omaha attorney who pledged Carpenter to Delta Tau Delta fraternity at the University of Colorado, recalled that in college Carpenter had "what bordered on an inferiority complex."

★ ★ ★

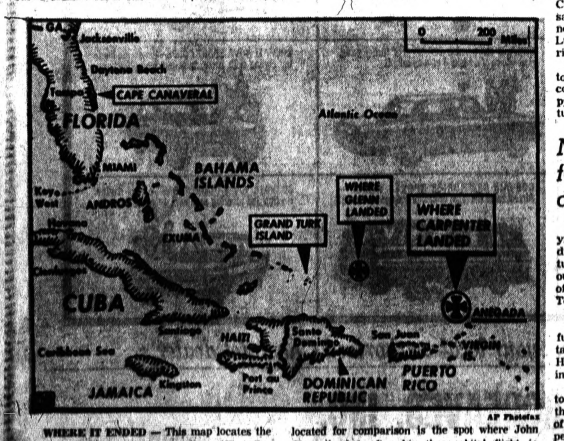

"He was an extremely nice guy but so quiet I'll bet the student who sat at the next desk in physics class wouldn't remember him," he said.

Sons Hesitate at Following Dad Toward the Stars

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut Scott Carpenter's two sons are not too sure they want to follow their father's footsteps to the stars.

Asked if he wanted to be an astronaut, 12-year-old Scott Carpenter said he first thought it was a "safe" way of life, "then I changed my mind." He referred to the 41 minutes, when the Mercury Project scientists had lost contact with his dad.

As for 10-year-old Jay Carpenter, he just says carefully, "well . . . in a way."

AP Photofax

WHERE IT ENDED — This map locates the area in the Atlantic Ocean about 135 miles northeast of Puerto Rico, near the island of Anegada, where Scott Carpenter landed. Also located for comparison is the spot where John Glenn landed after his three-orbital flight in February. Carpenter's craft overshot the intended landing area by 250 miles.

Name Foundling for Spaceman and Controller

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An anonymous telephone call led to the discovery of a 12-hour-old premature baby, weighing 3 pounds, 8 ounces, on the steps of Our Lady of Grace Church in nearby Scott Township Thursday.

★ ★ ★

The infant, a boy, was found fully clothed in a box. He was taken to St. Rosella's Maternity Hospital where he was reported in excellent condition.

Lacking any other name, doctors and nurses made one up for the baby. Combining the names of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter and Christopher Kraft, Mercury flight operations director, they named the baby Christopher Scott.

Carpenter's Parents Glad Flight Into Space Is Over

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Her only child had just been plucked from the sea 3,000 miles away when someone asked the frail, friendly woman if she thought he might be the first man on the moon.

"I'd like to have him wait a few days until I catch my breath," replied Florence Carpenter.

And so it was in the happy hours Thursday as the mother of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter and residents of his hometown rejoiced over his safe recovery after three orbits around the earth.

The tenseness that gripped Americans everywhere during the adventure and the anxious moments to locate him in the Atlantic impact area was magnified in this city where Carpenter was born, reared and educated.

Nowhere was it concentrated more than in the neat trailer home where Mrs. Carpenter, a hospital clerical worker, lives alone. With her during the day were two friends and Will Fowler, a former classmate of Carpenter at the University of Colorado.

At Palmer Lake, 75 miles south of Boulder, the astronaut's father, Dr. Marion Scott Carpenter, viewed the space flight on television with his second wife, Edyth.

The Carpenters were divorced in 1945.

'PROUD' . . . 'HORRAY'

"I'm a very proud man and I'm indeed glad it's all over," said Dr. Carpenter, a retired chemist.

When the report of Carpenter's recovery was confirmed, Mrs. Carpenter shouted "hooray!"

The parents were asked later if, in view of difficulties that plagued their son's flight, they would want him to venture into space again.

Mrs. Carpenter gave her approval—after a few days' wait to catch her breath.

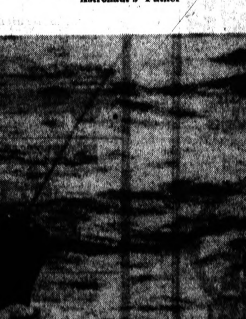

In a more serious vein, she told a news conference at the University of Colorado:

"I wasn't really worried. It is a senseless waste of energy to worry about things I cannot control. I can't afford to do that. My hope is always up."

For the parents and relatives of other future astronauts, Mrs. Carpenter counseled: "You have to condition yourself for it. If they want to do it, by all means let them."

Said Carpenter's father:

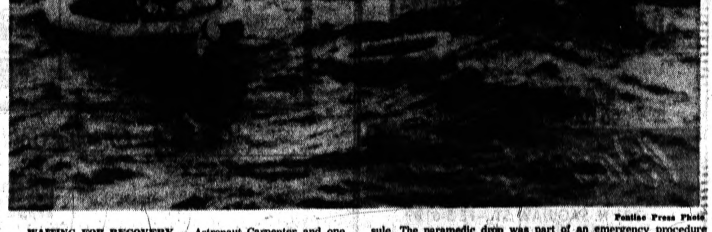

"Now that it's over I can say I hope he's (Scott) chosen to be a member of the first three-man team to orbit the earth."

Fresh, New Approach to Be Used by Romney

DETROIT (AP)—George Romney says, in effect, that he will build his Republican campaign for governor on this theme: "Fresh, new approach."

Just such an approach, Romney said yesterday, is needed "to bring unity out of diversity" in government and solve the state's many problems.

The former president of American Motors Corp. emphasized "fresh new approach" repeatedly in a celebrity luncheon speech at the Detroit Press Club.

Romney said he would spell out details as his campaign progresses, but would pick the time and place, not be pushed into it by attacks of political opponents or questions of newsmen.

TO FACE SWAINSON

Unopposed currently for the Republican nomination, Romney is expected to face the Democratic incumbent, Gov. John B. Swainson in November.

Romney declared that state government had reached "the point of stalemate and deadlock."

The decision of voters, he said, should be based "on whether I can give effective leadership to unite Michigan, bring unity out of diversity—and I think I can."

"My campaign," he continued, "will not consist of a negative approach and it will not deal in personalities. I will not make any commitment to any special group."

Romney drew laughter when he described himself as "an unemployed businessman looking for a new job."

He resigned his $150,000-plus job as American Motors president to seek the $25,000-a-year governorship.

* * *

While he said that he did not believe that the state's many problems "can be solved without the enactment of an income tax," Romney declared, "it is not clear that we need high taxes."

He said "fundamental revision of our total tax structure, thorough administrative and fiscal reform, and stimulation of economic growth" are needed by Michigan, and then added:

"If total administrative and fiscal reform indicates the need of an income tax as part of revenue reforms I shall not hesitate to include it as a part of the total program, of meeting Michigan's need for more jobs, and work out its fiscal mess."

Chiefs Calls Mobilization to Fight Korean Drought

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—South Korea's junta chief, Gen. Chung Hee Park, ordered his defense minister today to mobilize all available troops and military equipment to combat threatening drought.

Defense Minister Park Byung-Kown instructed the chiefs of the three services to provide every possible support to the farmers.

Three Presidents of the United States were born in North Carolina. They were Johnson, Jackson and Polk.

Exploded Titan Still Smoking

Director Orders Work to Stop Pending Probe Into Cause of Blast

CHICO, Calif. (AP)—Investigators awaited clearing of smoke and fumes from a smouldering underground silo to determine what caused the multimillion-dollar blast of a 95-foot Titan intercontinental ballistics missile Thursday.

The giant weapon, one in a complex of three eight miles north of this Northern California community, exploded in its 150-foot silo during a fueling test.

50 AFFECTED

Seven civilian workers were hospitalized from smoke inhalation and were in fair to good condition. Fifty-two others were treated for slight inhalation and released after checkups at a Chico hospital.

Although the other two launching systems were not damaged by the blast, Col. William Sault ordered suspension of work on the entire project pending a thorough investigation. Sault is in charge of the checkout phase of the nearly completed Air Force project.

The blast in silo No. 1 came after the three Titans had been fueled with liquid oxygen and the propellant was being withdrawn by the installation's complex pumping system.

Vapor and smoke preceded the blast, reaching workmen in the adjacent tunnels. The men raced through a ventilation tunnel and out a ground hatch that normally would have been closed.

Chico is the town where 34 people from Long Island, N.Y., relocated last October to escape the perils of fallout.

Gambling Charges Dropped Against 2

Illegal gambling charges against two Pontiac men were dismissed yesterday by Municipal Judge Cecil B. McCallum for lack of evidence.

Charges were dismissed against Walter Stafford, 45, of 14 Putnam St., and Ransom Marcum Jr., 32, of 179 Judson St. Stafford was arrested on a charge of operating and maintaining an illegal gambling place April 21.

Marcum had been charged with aiding and abetting illegal gambling.

Theme of Northern Concert

'Let There Be Music'

Pontiac Northern High School's vocal music department, directed by Melvin Larimer, will stage its annual spring concert, "Let There Be Music," at 8 p.m. tonight.

★ ★ ★

The combined groups, numbering 300 students, will sing the title song "Let There Be Music," "God So Loved the World" and "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor." George H. Putnam, Pontiac Public Schools music supervisor, will conduct "Let There Be Music."

★ ★ ★

The Northern Choir will sing two groups of songs: the first includes "So's I Can Write My Name," a Negro spiritual; "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place," from Brahms' Requiem; and "Ye Shall Have a Song" by Randall Thompson. The final group will feature selections from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

The combined boys' groups will present "The Halls of Northern" and "Oklahoma!" with the combined girls' singing "If My Songs Had Wings" and Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Climb Every Mountain."

Several vocal ensembles will add variety to the program. The Velvettones will offer "If I Loved You;" the Scarletones, "Clap Yo' Hands;" the Norsemen, "Ride the Chariot;" the Hi-Lites, "Moon River;" and the Crystalaires, "Selections from Peter Pan."

★ ★ ★

The mixed chorus will sing two folk songs by Johannes Brahms entitled "I'd Enter Your Garden" and "How Sad Flow the Streams." They also will sing a Negro spiritual "Good News."

Vocal solos will be sung by Edna Hammond ("Red Rosey Bush"), Cheryl Montgomery ("Black is the Color of My True Love's Hair") and Jerry Brabant ("Jamaica Farewell").

This will be Northern's Fourth annual concert. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Draw Lots to Decide on Father

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: My sister and I are having a double wedding and we would both like to walk up the aisle with our father. We are twins so there is no question of one being older than the other and therefore privileged to walk with father.

We were wondering if it would be possible for my sister and me to walk up the aisle together on either side of our father. The center aisle in our church is quite wide and it would be feasible to do this, but would it be correct?

A: It would be most unusual and incorrect for both of you to walk up the aisle with your father. As you are twins, you should draw lots to decide which one of you will walk with your father and the other will have to follow on the arm of a near male relative.

★ ★ ★

Q: I will be giving an informal dinner party shortly for nine guests in honor of an out-of-state couple. As I am an older woman with no immediate male relative, I would like to know the correct seating arrangement when there is no host.

The honored gentleman guest will, of course, be seated on my right, but where does his wife sit?

Should she be seated on my left or should I have one of the male guests who is an old family friend sit at the other end of the table with the honored woman guest on his right?

A: The wife should be seated on the right of the man you appoint to sit opposite you.

★ ★ ★

Q: My sister and I were invited to a stork shower. We were unable to go but sent a present through another friend.

The mother-to-be sent us a thank you note for our present but did not write notes to those who were at the shower.

Several of the girls are hurt about this and think they should have received written thanks, too. Should thank-you notes have been written to all?

A: It is not necessary for the person who has been showered to write notes of thanks to those she thanked personally at the party.

★ ★ ★

The clothes of the bride and bridegroom as well as those of their attendants are described in the New Emily Post Institute booklet entitled, "Clothes of the Bridal Party." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Emily Post Institute, care of The Pontiac Press.

Abby Says: Watch It

Possible, Not Probable!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a lawyer. I heard from a reliable source that one day last week my husband and a young woman checked into a motel together.

ABBY

When I confronted him with this accusation he admitted it, saying that lawyers had to meet their clients in some odd places. He claimed that the young woman was seeking a divorce and didn't want to be seen going to a lawyer's office because people would talk, so he met her at a motel. Is this possible?

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: Only with reservations, my dear.

★ ★

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for 14 years. We have four children. I guess you could call us average people.

A few days ago my aunt came to me with a shocking tale. She said when she was here for supper last week, and my husband drove her home, he made advances to her.

Now, Abby, she is a 63-year-old spinster and there is no reason for her to make up a story like that. When I told my husband about it, he denied it. I have to know the truth, Abby. It is her word against his. I have never known my husband to lie. But my aunt practically lives in church, so I can't doubt her, either.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: If your husband never lied to you — believe him. Your aunt has either a king-sized imagination or a tongue loose at both ends. Both are equally dangerous.

★ ★

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of people who send out hundreds of wedding announcements. Not invitations, mind you — but announcements — telling their friends that their daughter and her fiance eloped.

This means in plain English you are expected to send a wedding gift to two kids who didn't have the decency to get married at home and give their parents and relatives the pleasure of attending a wedding. Why should we send a gift for a wedding we didn't even attend?

DISGUSTED RELATIVES

DEAR DISGUSTED: A wedding announcement is not necessary a bid for a present. Feeling the way you do, don't send anything.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of The Pontiac Press.

Children Should Fight Their Own Battles

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

There's a vicious 4-year-old boy on my block, the son of a woman who once told my little girl to tell me to fall dead. He has run his wagon over my child's hand and will ride his tricycle at her until she screams and gets out of his way. How can I keep her away from him? She is only 3½ and forgets what I tell her about not playing with him.

Answer: Maybe she forgets because she likes him. Maybe he has assets that outweigh the danger of his wagon wheels. Maybe the screams in which you hear terror are actually shouts of delight in a game that offers infants joys you no longer appreciate.

How can you know? You can't. No parent can know what really goes on between two children. A youngster will come shrieking to us about the evil conduct of a playmate, and minutes after we have solicitously affixed the adhesive tape, we look out of the window to see him happily riding on the back of the enemy's tricycle.

Do you want me to advise you to lock your little girl in the house? To supervise all her play? To move from your neighborhood? I can't, you know. Only witches lock children up. Only reformatories supervise all their play. And it may not be possible for you to move from your neighborhood.

So let me remind you that the best we can do for a child who has developed the use of leg muscles to run foward friends and away from enemies is to permit him to discover which is which.

Certainly to a child whose playmate has affronted him we can say, "You're safe with me as long as you want to stay with me." We have to make the Safety we represent always available. But when he's finished with needing it we have to let him go.

He has to learn that when he leaves Safety to seek out the mingled fun and risks offered him by other children, we cannot follow him. We're not his Siamese twin able to preside over every moment of his life.

He has to discover that he's on his own, that it is his job, not ours, to decide whether the fun he gets from a playmate is worth what he has to pay for it.

When we say, "Don't play with Jimmy again" we are making the decision for him. When we say, "Fight Jimmy back" the fight is made by us and on our order.

So we have to mind our own business, keeping our hands on what we don't know enough about to order, contenting ourselves with our parental part of always-Available Protector.

Then the child can begin to take responsibility for himself. If he wants Safety, he will choose to remain in the house with us. If he wants the mingled fun and risk involved in play with other children, he will leave us and return to them.

If you don't mind my saying so, you seem to be trying to turn your little girl into an ally in the battle you are waging with her playmate's mother. This is pretty silly. Such domination didn't work for the Capulets and the Montagues and it doesn't work for us.

Teenagers Completely Absorbed

When teen-agers in New York City's schools witness a Shakespearian production, they are quite likely to unnerve the cast by responding in unexpected places, in unexpected ways.

Actors with the New York Shakespeare Festival Company say their student audiences root for the villain, jeer the hero. In a production of Richard II, the spectators were furious when Richard was killed.

In general, teen-agers have much stronger rooting sentiments for characters in a play than do adult audiences. Instead of viewing a play objectively, they lose themselves completely in it.

While this reaction is a source of satisfaction to the players, they're taken aback because subleties of presentation, the things an actor strives for, are lost on the students. These audiences respond primarily to the elemental drives in a play production, and ignore the fine shadings of a character portrayal.

The Shakespeare company gives 80 performances annually in New York schools, with the board of education sponsoring this dramatic exposure. The company is identical with the group that performs outdoors in Central Park in the summer.

Officers Are Elected

Optometric Unit Joined by Auxiliary for Dinner

The Auxiliary to the Oakland County Optometric Society joined the men's group for dinner Tuesday in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Stein, Huntington Woods.

In the meeting, which followed, officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. J. Raymond Kuzara, president; Mrs. Marvin L. Weston, vice president; Mrs. Marvin Solomon, recording secretary; Mrs. Stein, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. L. Dubin, treasurer; Mrs. George Harkless, press chairman; and Mrs. James St. Louis, safety chairman.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. St. Louis reported that members of the Cooperative Extension Club assisted in testing some 328 persons in the Motorist Vision Screening done by the auxiliary in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce vehicle check.

RECEIVES CERTIFICATE

The Oakland County Auxiliary has received a certificate of commendation from the National Safety Council for their "Motorist Vision" activities, making this the third national award for the group. Plans were made for future screening.

Funds will be allocated to the state auxiliary and for an active membership in the American Optometric Foundation which is financing the Night Driving Research Project at Indiana University. Membership will also be taken in the National Auxiliary Research Fund which finances research on children's visual problems and reading at Ohio State University.

★ ★ ★

Meetings will resume with a luncheon in September.

Sontag-Buck Ceremony Read by Rev. Eastman

Judith Laurel Buck became Mrs. Harold W. Sontag in a candlelight ceremony performed by Rev. O. P. Eastman Saturday evening in the First United Missionary Church.

Joining the newlyweds at the church reception were their parents, the Clay G. Bucks of South Shirley Avenue and the Earl T. Sontags of Lake Orion.

A trio of attendants in yellow silk organza over taffeta, carrying matching carnations, preceded the bride to the altar setting of white gladioli and carnations.

Gloria A. Buck of Lansing served her sister as maid of honor. Dolores Barron and Lois Brown were bridesmaids.

★ ★ ★

Styled along classic lines, the bride's gown of white peau de soie featured a sweetheart neckline, and re-embroidered Alencon lace skirt. She wore long white gloves and tiered veil of silk illusion with crystal paillettes at the scalloped edge. Red sweetheart roses centered her cascade bouquet of white carnations.

★ ★ ★

On the esquire side were Allen Salisbury, best man, and Loren Walden and James Schultz, ushers. All are of Lake Orion.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Buck clipped a white cattleya orchid to her dress of dusty rose lace over taffeta for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Sontag chose champagne lace over cocoa satin and wore a purple orchid.

The newlyweds are making their home on Ruth Avenue.

2 as Cheaply as One? Uh, Uh, It's Not True

By RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Two can live as cheaply as one" is the idea Niagara Falls has set out to sell to honeymooners.

To prove it, during the month of June honeymooners can get a double room for the price of a single at many Niagara Falls hotels and motels and even eat two-for-one meals at leading restaurants.

It's a good promotion stunt, all right. But what about the honeymooners who actually get to believing this "two can live as cheaply as one" propaganda?

★ ★ ★

Getting back to the everyday, work-a-day, worrying-about-money world is hard enough on any honeymooners. It's always something of a shock for a young couple to come down out of the honeymoon clouds and face such realities as the alarm clock, burnt toast, dirty dishes, bills, and so on.

But it will be an extra shock for the couple which has been living high on the hog in the blissful assumption that two can live as cheaply as one.

At least, it is going to be a mighty rude shock for the young breadwinner when he gets back from his honeymoon and discovers that two not only can't live as cheaply as one, two can't even live as cheaply as two — when the extra member of the household is a woman.

WOMEN EXPENSIVE

The young man who has never before footed the bills for an attractive young woman just doesn't know how many things women spend money on that don't come under the heading of food and shelter—all those fancy cosmetics, those sessions at the beauty shop, those pretty clothes, those feminine touches a woman thinks a home has to have, and so on.

Taking all these into consideration, a young man may discover to his chagrin that two can live about as cheaply as two and a half or three.

So the young husbands who take their brides to Niagara Falls during June had better not believe any of that two-as-cheaply-as-one promotion — even while taking advantage of it. Once the honeymoon is over they are going to be paying the bills for two until baby makes three. And three can't live as cheaply as two — either.

U.S. Trade Discussed for Voters

Women Delegates Also Report Work of Council

The League of Women Voters of Pontiac heard reports on the state council and a review of U. S. foreign trade policy Wednesday evening at the United Fund Building.

Mrs. Merle Humphries and Mrs. Robert Matheson, delegates to the May 16 and 17 council held in Ypsilanti reviewed the activity of the council.

Laura Belz, state board member, then presented a resume of the council, stressing work of the board in preparing league members and delegates on decisions.

★ ★ ★

"The delegates made suggestions to the nominating committee; and decided on a permanent location for the state office. The delegates then adopted a budget and decided that the League of Michigan would wholeheartedly support the new constitution," she said.

"Then they directed the state board as to what they wanted in the way of leadership, and when they wanted it."

Mrs. John Borsvoid, foreign policy chairman, related the conflicting ideas on foreign trade, and emphasized the league's favoring liberalized trade.

Lillian Davidson announced the annual picnic will be held at her Camley Street home June 5 at 6 p.m. Candidates for the board of education in the city are to speak to the public June 6, 7:45 p.m. at Pontiac Central High School, room 216.

Firm President Dies

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Charles C. Stoepker, 44, founder in 1957 of Sparta Sheet Metal Co., died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital after suffering a second heart attack in five days. He was president of his firm at the time of his death.

Recovery, Inc., Shows Way

Teach Adults to Meet Life

"It's like you are drowning and someone throws you a rope."

That's how a former mental patient described Recovery, Inc.

"A self-help organization for nervous adults and former mental patients," Recovery, Inc., has enabled countless such persons to adjust to life in the 24 years of its existance.

It was founded in 1938 by an Illinois University psychiatrist, the late Dr. Abraham A. Low. His book, "Mental Health Through Will Training" continues to serve as a guide.

* * *

The organization has three groups in Pontiac and two in the Birmingham area, each meeting one night a week.

They practice group therapy on a first-name-only basis, through open discussion of individual problems.

Thus members of Recovery, Inc., come to realize that their nervous or mental problems are faced by others also, and that these problems can be and have been resolved.

SELF-DISCIPLINE

The method used is to build up self-confidence in handling these problems through self-discipline. It begins by teaching members to cope regularly with the trivial without becoming nervous or upset.

The method is highly endorsed by psychiatrists in general because it never attempts to diagnose but only instruct people in how to help themselves.

Families of disturbed persons also are invited to attend the meetings and learn from other family people what to do with nervous problems, how to behave toward their sick people and how to avoid being the cause of relapses.

* * *

Again the same anonymity is employed. People are introduced by first names only.

Approximately 45 persons are attending Recovery, Inc. meetings in Pontiac regularly.

Two groups meet at the Bethany Baptist Church at West Huron and Mark streets, one on Monday evenings and the other on Thursday evenings. A third group meets at the First Congregational Church at E. Huron and Mill streets on Tuesday evenings. Meetings, strictly nondenominational, begin at 7:30 p.m.

VARIOUS FAITHS

Persons attending the meetings are of various faiths and from different walks of life.

Another group meets in the Birmingham Community House Thursday evenings, and one at Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills on Tuesdays. Both meetings start at 8 p.m.

The Lure of Hollywood—It Started With Grandma

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Growing movie attendance is being sparked, according to theater surveys, by women — postwar newly marrieds, mothers of teenagers, women with grown children — all women.

It is a not so ironic footnote to bold movie themes.

It is not only escapism from daily routines but escape from television's steady diet of Westerns, crime busters and domestic comedy.

The lure is the same as another day when the words "movies" and "children" were not synonymous. It was Grandma's Day when she banked the coals in the family hearth to see Rudolph Valentino in "The Sheik" and Gloria Swanson in "Don't Change Your Husband."

★ ★ ★

Rudy's nostrils flared in his love scenes and Grandma blushed in the dark as old Dad baby-sat at home with the kids.

It was this early catering to women, not children, which helped establish motion pictures, and which is being repeated today in movies like "Sweet Bird of Youth," "The Chapman Report" and "Tender Is the Night."

"So," you may be asking, "how did movie theaters happen to become play pens for the kiddies and love nests for teen-agers?"

"THE CHAPMAN REPORT"—Corey Allen and Claire Bloom hold a mirror up to life in frank, contemporary film. Surprisingly, it is women, escaping household drudgery and TV westerns who have inspired the film comeback.

As movies gained mass audience popularity, there were demands for censorship and even threats of federal control.

The movies played it safe. Trying to please everyone, they became "pap" for the 12-year-old, with built-in popcorn and candy and the original "vast wasteland."

Grandma's daughter and granddaughter are more sophisticated and more highly educated but until television competition came the movies went on catering to juveniles.

TEENS KNOW MORE

Teen-agers today apparently could tell Grandma a few things despite her exposure to Valentino's love scenes and Swanson's amour-the-merrier.

A recent poll of U. S. teenagers' movie-going habits revealed 87 per cent of the 1,105 surveyed had seen at least one of the bold foreign film imports which cued the "adult" movie trend.

"They are much sexier," said one 14-year-old girl. "They are more natural, with likelike situations."

Interestingly, the poll reflected general confusion about the new look of the international motion picture industry.

The teen-agers voted Laurence Harvey their favorite "foreign majestor. Except for one film, "Room At the Top," the English actor has appeared only in U.S.-made motion pictures.

The teen-agers' favorite "foreign" picture, by a wide margin, was "The Greek-made film, 'Never On Sunday'."

'NEVER ON SUNDAY'

"Never On Sunday" was made by Hollywood's Jules Dassin, with money provided by United Artists, an American film distributing company.

But whether foreign or Hollywood-made — and even most of Hollywood's big films are made on locations around the world these days — motion pictures are growing in stature and are winning back their "lost" adult audience with themes too outspoken for television.

Their quality is assured by tremendous profits on the successful films.

★ ★ ★

Their content, short of gross obscenity, is protected by the free speech guarantee of the First and Fourth Amendments.

Their biggest competition — television — has lost its novelty and, because of its home screen, has been forced into playing it safe and trying to please everyone.

The biggest audience appeal for movies is their choice — a Walt Disney comedy for the kiddies, a sex problem play for adults or an "El Cid" or a "Ben Hur" for all the family.

AUDIENCE EDUCATION

Their major problem is audience education and self-enforcement of films bearing "For Adults Only" and "Not Recommended for Children" warnings.

The responsibility rests with parents who must exercise supervision, movie makers who must use good taste in their handling of controversial themes and theater owners who must resist the lure of the fast buck.

EMOTIONAL MINUET — Valentino and Agnes Ayers perform the mannered ceremony of silent screen love episode. It was scenes like this that lured grandma from the dishes and sent her into the local movie house. Early producers had the ladies in mind for their early screen spectacles.

CD Authority to Explain Procedures in Emergency

"In time of disaster . . . Who does what?"

A top-ranking national authority on disaster preparedness will answer this question by defining the specific emergency duties of the Red Cross, Office of Civil Defense and other governmental agencies Monday evening in Royal Oak.

Civil defense directors and municipal authorities from all Oakland County cities, townships and villages have been invited to hear the duties outlined by Edward G. Showers, assistant director of disaster services for the Midwestern Area of the Red Cross.

Showers recently completed several weeks of field service in directing relief and rehabilitation work in a disaster area on the East Coast.

His talk will highlight Monday's 6:45 p.m. annual meeting of Oakland County Chapter of the American Red Cross. The dinner meeting will be held at St. John's Episcopal Church, Woodward at 12-Mile Road.

★ ★ ★

The meeting is open to the public. Reservations may be made by contacting the county Red Cross Headquarters in Pontiac or its service office in Royal Oak.

Among the officials attending will be Oakland County Civil Defense director John A. Madole and Mark Purcell, chairman of the county Red Cross chapter's disaster services.

"The purpose of the meeting," Purcell explained, is to project to our own members as well as to our guests a clear picture of the responsibilities and services of different groups."

"At present, two few people realize that in time of disaster, as well as in normal times, the government has its distinct responsibilities and the Red Cross, under its congressional charter, has its distinct duties," Purcell said.

★ ★ ★

Purcell concluded that a knowledge of the distinct but closely related functions of the Red Cross and the government is necessary in order to "provide maximum relief and assistance throughout the emergency and through the rehabilitation process that must follow."

Boys Clubs Give Keystone Award to 'Spike' Briggs

Walter O. (Spike) Briggs of Bloomfield Hills, former Detroit Tiger owner, was one of three persons presented Bronze Keystone Awards in Detroit Wednesday night by the Boys Clubs of America.

Briggs, who has made few public appearances since suffering a cerebral hemorrhage nearly two years ago, was given the award for his 15 years as a director of the Boys Clubs of Detroit in the youth groups 35th annual meeting.

★ ★ ★

Another Bloomfield Hills resident, Semon E. Knudsen, former Pontiac Motor Division general manager, assumed presidency of the boys club at the meeting. Knudsen is now Chevrolet division general manager and a General Motors Corp. vice president.

★ ★ ★

Charles Gehringer, one-time Detroit Tiger second base star, and Carl Tuttle, retired senior vice president of the S. S. Kresge Co., also received Keystone Awards for service.

United states scientists searching for oil in coastal waters can now map subsurface layers more accurately, utilizing an electronic filter that eliminates interfering noises when seismic crews set off charges in exploring for oil.

Occupancy and Billings Reach Highs During 4th Accounting Period

Pontiac General Hospital officials today announced the hospital has set records in occupany and billings to patients during one accounting period.

★ ★ ★

Occupancy averaged 99.78 per cent and billings to patients reached $540,000 for the fourth accounting period which ended last weekend, according to Harold B. Euler, administrator.

"Occupancy was in excess of 100 per cent for the third straight week last week. This is an unusually high level for this time of year," Euler said.

"The emergency room was extremely busy, treating 671 patients last week, an average of 92 per day."

The normal emergency room load for a weekend is about 60 per day and slightly less on weekdays.

Euler said that continued operation at capacity is beginning to create operating problems now that the vacation period is starting.

Panelists Clash on King-Anderson Bill

'Refugee' Sparks Row at Medicare Talks

A psychiatrist, self-styled "refugee from British socialized medicine," kindled a flash of debate Wednesday at the Forum on Medical Care Plans for the Aged sponsored by the Oakland County Senior Citizens Committee.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Roger V. Pierson of Pontiac State Hospital popped out of the 300-strong audience at Local 594 Hall, 525 East Blvd. South, and said:

"I'm a refugee from socialized medicine. I had six years of work under it. I don't think the British are satisfied but there no longer is a great deal they can do about it. Since 1948, when 99 per cent of the British belonged to the National Health Plan, 11 per cent have chosen to seek private health insurance again."

The panel's AFL-CIO representative, Charles E. Odell, snapped:

"I see the doctors have come to bringing shock troopers into the audience. But I won't be trapped into comparing the King-Anderson Bill with the British system. They are in no senses related."

Dr. Everette Gustafson of Pontiac, representing the Oakland County Medical Society, had charged earlier that the King-Anderson Bill if passed would be "the foot in the door toward socialized medicine."

BLASTS MEASURE

"There are seven million people in the nation who are not covered by any health insurance," Dr. Gustafson admitted. "However, the existing Kerr-Mills Law can, will and is taking care of this need. It is doing so at least in my part of Oakland County, in my hospital."

Odell, who is director of the UAW's Older and Retired Workers Department, countered:

"The fastest way to get socialized medicine is this welfare medicine where the state has to match funds with the federal government and is forced to set fees."

He said that doctors' fees under Kerr-Mills had zoomed so high in West Virginia "that the state welfare department had to move in and set limits on surgical schedules and doctors' fees."

★ ★ ★

Contending that the American Medical Association had done its best to cloud the issue, Odell told the audience of 300 senior citizens:

"The only issue before you is: When you get old, do you want your hospital, home nursing and nursing home bills paid for under Social Security. The doctors are not just attacking King-Anderson but Social Security. They're saying the whole thing is a hoax. Dr. Gustafson is saying you've been duped.

"How many of you have Social Security benefits coming? Have you been duped?"

He was answered by shouts of "No. No!"

Dr. Gustafson had previously said the King-Anderson provisions would increase a Social Security fund debt which, he said, stood at $289 billion in 1958.

Dr. Gustafson appealed for cooperation to establish a private and voluntary national health insurance plan.

"There is another way of giving help to those who need it," he said. "It can be done voluntarily, it can give all the coverage needed and it can be actuarly sound."

"Blue Cross," he said, "could work out such a plan at $11 a month. Blue Shield would need $3 a month. Wouldn't it be cheaper if all groups which could pay would be in such a voluntary plan, and the rest be taken care of by assistance from a private fund?"

A third panelist, John J. Schonenberg, actuary for Michigan Hospital Service (Blue Cross-Blue Shield) said that if the King Anderson Bill became law Blue Shield coverage would still be needed.

He added that his firm was now "working on a supplementary contract to go with Blue Shield" to cover what King-Anderson does not.

The fourth speaker, Dr. Harold Orbach of the University of Michigan's division of gerontology, opened the session by outlining physical and emotional problems faced by the aged.

U. of M. Tuition Raised for Some

Freshmen, Sophomore State Residents Only Students Unaffected

ANN ARBOR (UPI) — A revised scale of tuition fees, intended to add $2 million to the school's income and help pay for staff and faculty salary increases, will go into effect at the University of Michigan this fall.

★ ★ ★

The U. of M. Board of Regents approved the tuition fee changes yesterday in a telephone poll conducted by university administrators. The matter had been deferred at the regular monthly meeting of the regents last Friday.

The changes include increases for virtually all U. of M. students except Michigan-resident freshmen and sophomores, whose fees will stay the same, and music students, whose costs will be slightly reduced.

U. of M. President Harlan Hatcher said the tuition fee increases will be used almost entirely to pay salaries, but a small portion will be earmarked for scholarship and financial assistance funds to students faced with hardship.

★ ★ ★

The tuition increases will hit hardest at graduate, graduate-professional students and out-of-state undergraduates.

Michigan - resident freshmen and sophomores will continue to pay $720 per year, while nonresident freshmen and sophomore fees will rise $150 to $900.

Michigan - resident junior and senior fees increase from $280 to $310, nonresident fees from $750 to $960.

★ ★ ★

Residents of Michigan in the U. of M. graduate school will face a $70 increase from $280 to $350, while nonresident graduate students will pay $250 more — from $750 to $1,000.

They Protect Pontiac People

Inspectors 'Misunderstood'

BY DICK SAUNDERS

There is a small group of men at City Hall that is a very necessary part of city administration—the city inspectors.

Among city employes, they rank as possibly the most helpful, most misunderstood and, as a department, the most understaffed at City Hall.

Their main goal in life is to protect the public. Their tools are a strict set of codes and ordinances.

Currently there are five full-time certified inspectors serving Pontiac.

Statistics show this is roughly half the number needed to effectively handle a thriving city of 82,000.

Generally, inspection associations recommend a city employ one inspector each in building, plumbing and heating divisions for every 30,000 population.

Pontiac has one plumbing, one heating and one sewer inspector; one building inspector and assistant building inspector.

Not included in the inspection department is a fire marshal and fire inspector with offices in the new central fire station.

★ ★ ★

Pontiac's inspectors don't get as much done as they'd like to.

But that's just part of their problem. The other half is the misunderstanding about their services.

Peter L. Hickey, plumbing inspector, holds what would amount to a Ph. D. in plumbing, just as his fellow inspectors have expert knowledge in their fields.

'SAVE 'EM MONEY'

"Too many people think we're here just to find out what they've done wrong," Hickey says. "They think we only cost them money, but we actually save them money."

As a plumbing inspector Hickey's job is twofold, as are those of other inspectors. He can assure people that they get good work from professional plumbers and guard them against making mistakes when they do their own plumbing work.

He cannot recommend any professional plumber for a given job, but he can knock the work after it's done. Hickey was largely responsible for drafting a strict plumbing code put into effect here several years ago.

If a contractor cheats a homeowner, or does sloppy work, uses improper materials or installs equipment the wrong way, Hickey can cite him for violating plumbing codes.

★ ★ ★

A telephone call usually gets the job done the right way at no extra cost.

GET INTO TROUBLE

When old plumbing goes bad, Hickey can tell a homeowner exactly what he needs to have done.

"When homeowners want to do their own plumbing work, we often run into trouble. People don't realize how complex plumbing is.

"The water system must be sized to take care of the amount of plumbing fixtures in a building and installed so there is never any cross-connection between it and the sanitary sewer piping.

"It takes a licensed plumber to study the system and understand it.

"There must be air chambers to cushion the system, sizing of sanitary piping, proper fall toward the sewer, and proper venting of the system to prevent over-pressure which results in sewer air or gas to escape into a building.

"This could easily cause an explosion," Hickey said, "so we're not just talking about money, lives are at stake too."

★ ★ ★

Hickey pointed out that plumbers must serve at least a five-year apprenticeship before applying for a license, and be licensed for at least 10 years before they are even considered for the job of inspector.

★ ★ ★

Robert F. Hawkins, heating inspector, readily agrees there is no substitute for expert opinion. "When a heating firm does bad work, we can do something about it. When the job is well done, there's nothing we can do no matter how expensive the job was.

"Once the job's done, we can't help the fellow who has a $1,000 furnace where a $50 bricking and duct repair job was all that was needed.

"That's the wisdom of an inspection when something goes wrong. I know of many people that could have saved hundreds of dollars with a $5 inspection," Hawkins says.

The urban renewal program has increased inspection duties a little, but not as much as might be expected. They operate only where codes are involved and many rehabilitation projects, such as painting or redecorating don't require inspection.

These "policemen" will never get any medals or citations, but they're mighty helpful just the same.

State Senator Won't Seek Re-Election

LANSING (UPI) — Sen. Lynn O. Francis, R-Midland, one of the legislature's leading advocates of economy in state government, has announced he will not seek another term.

Francis has served the 24th District of Bay, Isabella and Midland counties for eight years.

Francis said he wanted to devote more time to his law practice and would not run again "for economic reasons."

A controversial figure, Francis was a former member of the Midland John Birch Society. He said he resigned last January.

He is chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

Caberfae Is Postponing Physical Training Camp

CADILLAC (UPI) — Caberfae ski area management announced yesterday that it is postponing for one year a boys physical training camp originally scheduled to start this summer.

Manager Fred Bocks said the delay will permit completion of a building program which will provide expanded facilities for dual use by the boys camp and winter sports visitors.

Romney Names Director of Campaign Research

LANSING (UPI) — George Romney has chosen Dr. Walter de Vries of Grand Rapids, a fellow delegate to the constitutional convention, as research director for his campaign for governor.

De Vries, 32, who is on leave as a political science professor at Calvin College, was chairman of the convention's committee on administration. He formerly was assistant to the speaker of the House of Representatives.

Child Care Official Takes Detroit Post

The assistant director and business manager of Oakland County's child care institutions has resigned his position to become administrator of a Detroit retirement home.

William O. Moulton Jr., 41, leaves his post today after 18 years of county employment. He will take over administration of a retirement home at 18th Street and West Grand Boulevard, operated by the Detroit Conference of the Methodist Church.

Moulton will be succeeded in the county job by Dea Keim, chief counsellor of child care institutions. Miss Keim's position will be filled by Ernest Watson, a counselor at the county Youth Home.

In 1944, Moulton started work for Oakland County as a probation officer. He also served as assistant superintendent and director of the Children's Center.

Charge Indians in Tibet

TOKYO (UPI) — Red China's news agency charged yesterday that five Indian soldiers crossed the Tibet border in the Longju sector May 18. "They left after having carried out illegal activities," the agency said.

Advertising helped it happen

By stimulating mass demand, advertising helped create a mass market for the refrigerator. As demand grew, more and more companies got into the act. Result: new and better refrigerators were mass produced for more people by America's remarkable and competitive economic system. Is this worthwhile? Then, so is advertising worthwhile.

Forgetful Borrower Can't Ignore Initials

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paint garden tool handles in a distinctive color—and add initials in a contrasting color.

This will remind the well-meaning but forgetful borrower that the tools are on loan. For wooden handles, a hard-wearing enamel is best.

Press Into Soil

Extremely fine seeds, such as those of petunias, do not need to be covered after sowing. Just press them gently to the soil with the palm of your hand.

Landscaping Is Finishing Touch

So you think you have a complete landscape job! Here's what complete landscaping accomplishes for the home owner, according to the American Association of erty to see what you lack.

1. Good landscaping makes a lovely picture of the house from the street. It ties house and land together by use of trees and shrubs to provide a pleasing "lived-in" look to the house.

2. Sound landscaping includes a garden or outdoor living area, or patio planted for outdoor recreation, dining and entertaining.

3. Proper landscaping includes trees and shrubs that supply adequate shade and privacy to the living area. In locations where houses are exposed to cold winds in winter, proper planting of windbreaks offers more comfort on the property and lower fuel bills. It is cold winds that run up the fuel bills and if the house is protected by evergreen trees fuel costs are kept lower.

4. A well-planted property should provide plenty of cut flowers for use inside the home.

Extension Agent Discusse All-Purpose Fruit Sprays

By JAY POFFENBERGER
Oakland County Agricultural Extension Agent

Many people enjoy eating apples and peaches they have raised in their own backyards. Growing fruit trees is fun, and it can help the family food budget. But insects and diseases often discourage those who can't afford to put lots of time and money into a few fruit trees. Commercial growers invest thousands of dollars in spraying equipment alone.

So in the early 1950's, Michigan State University researchers started testing spray mixtures to control a wide variety of pests. Many commercial firms also began testing. Considerable of the testing work was carried on in Oakland County.

Today, about 80 per cent of the state's backyard fruit growers use an all-purpose spray. This spray can be applied on all types fo fruit in your backyard. This includes all tree fruits as well as small fruits.

Several mixtures are good. Three chemicals work together very well when applied once each week after the first sign of growth appears in April.

1. Malathion kills sucking pests like aphids and leafhoppers. It also controls some chewing insects. It remains effective for about three days after application.

2. Methoxychlor kills caterpillars and other insects that cause worms in fruit. This chemical lasts for about seven days after application.

3. Captan protects against many common plant diseases like apple scab and cherry leaf spot.

Commercial sprays with the above or similar chemicals can be applied safely until one week before harvest, or as directions indicate. Several commercial mixtures with these chemicals worked very well in Michigan State University tests.

Growers with more than ten to fifteen trees may save money by buying the three chemicals and mixing them at home. Mix thoroughly with water by stirring. When you mix up one gallon of spray, use two tablespoons of 25 per cent wettable powder of Malathion, three tablespoons of 50 per cent wettable powder of Methoxychlor, and two tablespoons of 50 per cent wettable powder of Captan.

As a rule-of-thumb, use four gallons of spray on a tree in full foliage that is 15 feet high and has an 18 foot spread. Failure to use enough material is the most common cause of poor success in the tests as they were run in Oakland County.

Some chemicals other than Malathion, Methoxychlor, and Captan cause off-flavors. Growers must stop appling some sprays at least one month before harvest.

Compressed air sprayers with three-to-five gallon tanks work well on a few trees. A trombone or slide-type sprayer can easily handle three or four trees, while wheelbarrow sprayers have enough capacity for about a dozen trees. Larger orchards require a motor-operated sprayer. Some newer sprayers hook onto a garden hose, but such sprayers often work slowly. Also, hose sprayers may mix the chemicals poorly and distribute them unevenly.

Researchers are trying to find chemicals that will be effective longer than one week. They are also experimenting with substances called "extenders" that may make a single applicatign last at least two weeks. Sprays usually work better than dusts on fruit trees.

Michigan's climate and soil make it one of the top states in fruit production. Home gardeners throughout most of the state have good luck with fruit trees.

You may call the Extension Service office FEderal 4-2561 for a bulletin on all-purpose fruit spray.

Steel Sprinkling Can Is Gardener's Pal

A galvanized steel sprinkling can is one gardening item that it is wise to buy now because you will be using it often during the spring and summer.

Gardeners sometimes take their sprinkling can for granted, but they would be lost without it. Many plants and flowers are too delicate to be watered with a hose, and the nozzle of the sprinkling can provides a gentle spray.

Often insecticide solutions must be applied in a limited area, and a sprinkling can is ideal for the job. Since a steel sprinkling can is non-porous, poisonous materials will not become imbedded in the container. Simply wash the sprinkling can out after using insecticides and it can be used for any gardening chore.

Azalea Exhibited June Attraction

Cleveland Show Is Scheduled June 2-3 Open to Everyone

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Michigan flower gardeners and hobbyists are expected to flock here by the hundreds on Saturday, June 2, and Sunday, June 3, for the world's biggest and most colorful display of flowering rhododendron and Azalea.

Sponsored by the Great Lakes Chapter of the American Rhododendron Society, the free exhibit of thousands of budding and blooming plants will be on display at the Garden Center of Greater Cleveland, East Boulevard and Euclid Avenue. Prizes will be awarded to winners in 31 classifications.

Entries are en route to Cleveland from such distant points as England and New Zealand — both offering spectacular new hybrid azaleas — and from growers in Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, West Virginia and New York.

The "First President's Sterling Award," plus other cups and blue ribbons, will be presented to winners of the various group prizes.

Entries from all growers and gardeners—whether Society members or not—are welcome. Plants should be delivered to the Garden Center of Cleveland before 11 a. m., Saturday, June 2. An expert will place them in their proper class before the show opens to the public at 1:30 p. m., Saturday.

Rose Gardening Course Comes Through Mail

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Roses are favorite garden plants. They are easy to grow and offer a wide range of colors and sizes.

Flower colors range from violet through red, orange, yellow and white. Plants vary in height from 6-inch miniatures to long-caned ramblers and climbers.

For help in selecting choice rose varieties and controlling insects and diseases you're invited to enroll in Penn State University's correspondence course. Consisting of 4 lessons and titled Rose Gardening, it deals with outdoor culture of hybrid roses.

To get the course write to Correspondence Courses, 202 Agricultural Education Building, University Park, Pennsylvania. Simply include your name, address and $1.00. Make your check payable to The Pennsylvania State University.

You'll get the entire course promptly. But study can be at your convenience. And you're under no obligation to take examinations.

Sift the Soil

Slightly larger seeds that need only a light covering of soil may have soil sifted over them, using an ordinary small flour sifter for the job. Fill it with either sand or sieved soil.

Planning for Canning

Nothing tastes quite as good in winter as the vegetables you have canned from those grown in your own garden. However, preparation for canning must begin when the garden is planned, otherwise you won't have enough of some vegetables to can and will have an oversupply of others.

To help you plan to grow enough to feed your family all summer plus enough to can for winter use, the following table shows the average amount of produce from one 100 feet planted row:

Asparagus	30 pounds
Snap beans	1 to 2 bushels
Pole beans	2 bushels or more
Lima beans	1 to 2 bushels, unshelled
Beets	2½ bushels
Broccoli	45 flower heads
Brussels sprouts	30 quarts
Carrots	2 bushels
Cauliflower	40 heads
Collards	4 bushels
Corn	48 ears
Cucumbers (for pickles)	1½ bushels
Kohlrabi	40 bunches, 5 to a bunch
Peas	4 to 6 pecks (15-20 pints shelled)
Spinach	3 bushels
Swiss chard	50 plants
Tomatoes	4 bushels

Good Advice for Starting a Lawn

Every year thousands upon thousands of homes are built and lawns established. More often than not lawns are either seeded or sodded without proper planning. Proper planning will return great dividends in terms of personal satisfaction in the years ahead.

When starting to build a home, have the top four or five inches of topsoil bulldozed to a nearby, yet out of the way spot. The topsoil should be saved regardless of whether the lawn is to be seeded or sodded.

After the subgrade of the new lawn has been established, the topsoil should be evenly applied over the area. A complete fertilizer, high in phosphate, should be thoroughly mixed into it. A rate of about 40 pounds per 1,000 square feet is usually satisfactory for this purpose.

If the soil is of clayey nature, then it will pay to modify it by adding a mixture of sand and peat, or sand and well rotted sawdust. Mix the sand and organic materials in about equal volumes. A mixture of about three cubic yards of each, when applied to 1,000 square feet of lawn surface, will amount to about one and one-half inches of new material. This should be incorporated into the topsoil zone. Hand grading is necessary to eliminate low spots in the lawn where water can collect.

In case the topsoil was not saved on your home site, and your lawn is to be sodded, be sure to apply at least 40 pounds per 1,000 square feet of a complete fertilizer, high in phosphate, over the graded soil and work it into the surface three inches or so, before the sod is put in place. As soon as the new sod begins to make growth, apply a complete lawn plant food, high in nitrogen, at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds per 1,000 square feet, and sprinkle the entire area.

SODDING

If your home is completed during the late spring and summer months, it is best to have your lawn sodded. Grass seedings usually are not successful during that time of the year. If you are planning to seed your lawn this fall, be sure to use a good grass and seed mixture on a well prepared and fertilized seedbed.

In case your contractor does not know how to advise you on lawn establishment it would be well to consult with a good local landscape architect or garden-type supply house. Be sure you get sound advice on a new lawn.

Once your lawn is established, you can maintain it yourself merely by using good quality lawn fertilizers, in the spring and fall, and mowing no closer than one and one-half inches for Kentucky bluegrass. Merion bluegrass should be mowed at three-quarters of an inch. Use a sharp mower, and use it often. As a rule, do not let bluegrass grow taller than two and one-half inches.

Many fertilizers for lawns and different types of ornamentals are on the market, most made by reliable firms, and at a reasonable cost.

Because fertilizers vary in their weight and plant food content, be sure to read and follow the directions on the package, or follow the advice of some recognized local authority. This may call for larger or smaller applications than the general recommendations given in this article. Never spread fertilizer unless the grass is thoroughly dry, and always sprinkle immediately after applying it.

Gardeners' Question Box

Q. What are the forms that build the nests in cherry and other trees now?

A. These are Tent Caterpillars, named after the silken tents they build in the crotches of trees at this season. The nests can be destroyed and most of the insects killed with them by simply wiping them out with a brush or a pad of cloth or burlap. Burning them out is effective but dangerous. A spray of the tree with lead arsenate, D. D. T. or any of the all-purpose fruit tree or ornamental sprays is very effective.

Q. What are the chances of a killing frost at this season?

A. The liklihood of getting temperatures below freezing (32 degrees F.) have been computed by the Weather Bureau. For Pontiac they state that the average date for a killing frost in the spring is May 11 to May 20. On May 10 the chances of a killing frost is 45 per cent, but by May 18 the risk has been reduced so that only once in twenty years should we expect a killing frost.

★ ★ ★

Q. My grapevines are "bleeding" — will it kill them?

A. Grapevines pruned in the spring may bleed some, but this "bleeding" of sap has not been found harmful. Late winter or early spring are considered best time to prune grapes.

Q. We have found some borers in our Mountain Ash. What can we do to control them?

A. Spray the trunks and main branches thoroughly on May 18 and again on May 25 with Dieldrin (either 2 tsp. per gallon 18.5 per cent emulsion or 1 tbl. per gallon, 25 per cent wettable powder); D. D. T. can also be used at 3 tbl. per gallon of the 50 per cent wettable powder. Double this rate can be used if a paint brush is used for application. Soak the soil around the main trunk, also.

★ ★ ★

Q. When do we spray grape vines? With what and when and how often? What time of day? Ours have black spots on the grapes when they are ripe.

A. The disease you mention is probably black rot. Start spraying right now (should be when the buds start to swell), again when the blossoms open and every 2 weeks thereafter. Use either Ferbam or Zined, 1½ tablespoons to a gallon of water. The time of day is not important. Later on, you will want to add some DDT to the spray to control leaf hoppers and other insects.

Send in your garden questions to the Gardener's Question Box, The Pontiac Press, PO Box 9, Pontiac.

Clip-on Clay Pots Decorate Walls

The problem of hanging plants on walls and fences is easily solved with a newly designed set of rust-proof metal clips. They can be attached to wood, brick or other surfaces with a screw driver.

Clips have brackets that fit the top lip of any clay pot from two to eight inches, making it possible for you to create any number of artistic arrangements, either indoors or out, with your clay-potted house plants. (Manufacturer: Potclips, 2459 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minn.)

Ask Him to Make Garden Paddles

Flower and vegetable gardeners often like to mark rows for their own convenience as well as that of visitors. Stakes aren't attractive but paddles are.

Paddles, with a stake end to push into the earth are made easily and inexpensively by sawing them from a panel of Masonite Tempered Presdwood available at lumber yards. Scrap pieces may be purchased for this purpose.

Big Brother or Dad can whip out any quantity you need in the home workshop making them identical. You can add a primer and a couple of finish coats of exterior paint.

Paddles can be just less than the width of the seed package which can be slipped on as a jacket for identification. If you prefer to label your rows otherwise you can hand letter them or use a stencil.

Afghan Dog Has Litter as Atlas 107D Lifts Off

GLENDORA, N.J. (AP)—John McCollum's Afghan hound, Mahrinl, started giving birth to puppies in front of the television set just at lift-off of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter's rocket Thursday.

McCollom named them Mister Astronaut, Mercury, Orbit, Atlas, Aurora, Nasa and A-Okay.

Wait a Little Longer

Pole beans, the kind you train upward, are not as hardy as the bush varieties, so should be planted later in the season, after the soil has warmed and the weather settled.

PCH, Ferndale Rated Chance for State Track Crown in Ann Arbor Meet

Up-and-Down Chiefs Expected to Be 'Up' for Finals

If form holds true, Pontiac Central's thinclads should be primed for Saturday's Class A track championships at Ann Arbor.

★ ★ ★

The Chiefs have made a habit this spring of being up for one meet and down for the next. After last Saturday's great showing in the regional, followed by the disastrous display at Grosse Pointe, it should be time for Dean Wilson's charges to come up with their best efforts.

Although Central doesn't appear to have an individual champion, Wilson feels the Chiefs have an "outside chance" for team laurels.

"There will be more schools competing this year," the coach pointed out. "Those entries from the Detroit schools should help spread the points around.

"If this should happen, and we can place in several events, there is a chance we could win the championship."

POINT SPREAD

A wide distribution of points could be a major benefit for Ferndale and its one-man track team — Dorie Reid. The All-State football halfback is expected to successfully defend his 100 and 220-yard dash titles and possibly add the broad jump crown.

In addition to these fetes, he also anchors the Eagles' 880 relay team that has been clocked around 1:30.

The sprint relay should be one of the highlights of the meet.

Bloomfield Hills' crack quartet of Dave Noyes, John Schweppe, Fritz Stressen-Reuter and Roger Stewart has been flirting near the one and a half mark this spring.

PCH's team — Charlie Humphries, Ted Hindman, Ted Lewis and Steve Jones — ran a 1:31.8 in the regionals. Flint Northern's relay team, anchored by fleet-footed Dalton Kimball, will be a slight favorite.

The Vikings also are highly regarded in the team competition.

In the field events, Central's Ed Williams is about due for a 22-foot broad jump. Teammate Charlie Graves can come close to this mark. John Stewart may be ready to add some inches to his 12-foot high this spring in the pole vault.

Less Hampard and Charlie Humphries give PCH three pole vaulters in the preliminaries. Hindman will go in both dashes.

Although he isn't expected to win, Wilbert Preston could very well place in the mile. The same goes for Elick Shorter in the shot. Willie McDaniel is the major hope in the hurdles.

Jim Smith in the half mile, the mile relay team of Smith, Jones, Lewis and Williams and hurdler Tim Thompson qualified in the regionals.

SPARK HILLS

Big Schweppe and Noyes are Bloomfield's chief hopes as point-getters other than the relay team. Noyes has been turning the quarter around 51 seconds and Schweppe has been running the 220 well under 22 seconds.

Art Tegenza, Bob Smith and Fritz Stressen-Reuter are other Barons scheduled to compete.

Orvalle Mullins in 100 and John Popovich in the mile will represent Kettering. Northern is sending quarter-mile Ernie Stroseski and dashman Ed Perry.

Oakland County's top contender for an individual title in Class B will be Ted Nelson of Milford.

Nelson and his arch-rival, Rick Zemper of Howell, are expected to finish 1-2 in the finals. They have been busy beating each other in dual and relay meets this spring.

★ ★ ★

Both run the mile in around 4:23.

★ ★ ★

Nelson has been bothered by a cold this week and Reid is recovering from a pulled leg muscle. Both are expected to be in top condition for the state meet.

Passed Ball Gives Tigers 5-4 Win

Hitchcock Says He Cut Baseballs on Belt Buckle

'Dr.' Bunning Accused

BALTIMORE, (AP) The Detroit Tigers belted three home runs in the 5-4 victory over Baltimore Thursday night, but the Orioles claim a belt-buckle did almost as much damage.

Baltimore Manager Billy Hitchcock accused Tiger pitcher Jim Bunning, who hurled the first nine innings of the 11-inning contest, with doctoring baseballs by cutting them on his belt buckle.

While no formal protest was planned, Orioles' President Lee MacPhail said American League President Joe Cronin would be appraised of the complaint and presented several baseballs as evidence.

GASH MARKS

Four baseballs, with gash marks up to 1½ inches long and a sixteenth of an inch deep, were turned over to senior umpire Charlie Berry. Hitchcock claimed the balls had been thrown out of play by plate umpire Harry Schwarts.

After the game, Hitchcock displayed another dozen marred balls in the clubhouse.

"There's the evidence," fumed the usually mild-mannered manager. "Draw your own conclusions.

"I accuse Jim Bunning of cutting those balls. There is no other way for them to get cut that way. Baseballs cut up that way will do anything and can have a tremendous effect on the outcome of a game."

ARGUE WITH UMPS

Hitchcock said the Orioles tried to get Schwarts and Berry to check Bunning's belt in the eighth inning, but by the time they did in the ninth Bunning had changed into another belt.

The rhubarb started in the eighth inning after Jerry Adair popped out to end a Baltimore threat. First base coach George Staller of the Orioles picked up the ball as the Tigers headed for the dugout.

★ ★ ★

When Baltimore came to bat in the ninth, all four umpires, both managers, coaches and players met on the mound for a heated discussion of about five minutes. Bunning was allowed to remain in the game.

"Hitchcock's way out of line," said Tiger Manager Bob Scheffing. "It's a case of defamation of character."

ACCUSED — The Baltimore Orioles accused Detroit pitcher Jim Bunning (above) of slicing baseballs with his belt so he could get a better grip in last night's game. The umpires said they could prove nothing and the Tigers went on to post a 5-4 win in 11 innings.

McAuliffe's 3rd Hit Starts Deciding 11th; Mossi to Face Yanks

BALTIMORE (AP) — The fluttering ingest knuckleball in the majors has earned Hoyt Wilhelm's bread for a number of years, but it proved the undoing of the veteran Oriole righthander against the Detroit Tigers last night.

★ ★ ★

With one out and two on in the 11th, one of Wilhelm's skittish deliveries got past catcher Charlie Lau, and Dick McAuliffe raced home with the decisive run of the 5-4 Tiger victory.

This amounted to some sort of poetic justice for the Detroit hitters, who must rate Wilhelm among their important nemeses, and who were doing nicely until he came on the scene as an eighth-inning reliever in a tight 4-4 ball game.

Fifth-inning home runs by Al Kaline (with Billy Bruton on base) and Rocky Colavito, and a seventh-inning clout by Bruton had enabled the Tigers to hold their own through the first seven innings.

Wilhelm retired eight of the first nine men to face him, striking out three and allowing only a single by Bruton to open the 10th, until McAuliffe led off the 11th with a single and moved up on a sacrifice.

WHERE'S THE BALL?

A bloop single by Dick Brown put McAuliffe on third and set the stage for the errant pitch to pinch-hitter Vic Wertz. It confused Lau rather badly and enabled McAuliffe to score on a passed ball.

Ron Nischwitz, who relieved starter Jim Bunning in the 10th, after Bunning developed a pitching-hand blister, got the victory —his first decision of 1962.

Besides giving the Tigers the edge in the bob-tailed series with Baltimore, it enabled them to depart for New York on the crest of a three-game winning streak.

They will face the Yankees in four games, with Don Mossi (3-1) slated to pitch the opener tonight against New York's Bill Stafford (3-2).

★ ★ ★

On the strength of Kaline's 13th home run — a 390-foot shot to left field — and Colavito's fifth, Bunning had a 3-0 lead to play with, but it didn't last.

In their half of the same inning, the fifth, the Orioles scored twice on four hits after two were out.

They went ahead, 4-3 in the sixth, when Jim Gentile walked with one out, moved to second on a hit by Jackie Brandt and scored on a hit by Lau, a replacement for the injured regular catcher, Gus Triandos.

Dick Williams fouled to Brown for the second out but Brandt scored when he and Lau worked a double steal and Jake Wood's return throw to the plate bounced past Brown for an error.

★ ★ ★

Bruton — who had three hits and a walk for the night—socked his sixth homer into the bullpen in the seventh to tie it up again. The hit came off Wes Stock, who had relieved starter Jack Fisher in the sixth.

State Golf Event Saturday

Five Oakland County high school golf teams, three in Class A and the remainder in Class B, take a crack at state prep golf titles Saturday at Saginaw and Midland.

Bloomfield Hills, Walled Lake and Farmington lock horns with a talent-laden Class A field in the state finals at Saginaw Country Club.

Two Wayne-Oakland League foes, Northville and Milford, wade into Class B competition at Midland.

Not a single Oakland County squad qualified for the Class C-D state meet, which will be played tomorrow at Saginaw's Rolling Green layout.

★ ★ ★

Bloomfield Hills is the area's leading contender for the state Class A crown.

The Barons will tackle some rough customers at Saginaw C.C., among them defending state champion Jackson, Flint Southwestern of the Saginaw Valley Conference and Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor nipped the Hills by two strokes, 310-312, in last week's regionals at the Burroughs course near Brighton.

Bloomfield's cause was hurt in that event by junior Chuck Menefee, who paced the Ann Arbor cause with a one-over-par 72, about three shots below his average.

★ ★ ★

Fred Ewald, who carded 75 at Brighton, Chuck West and Tom Fry are certain starters for the Hills in the four-man team event. The 4th player will be either Steve Tzineff or Carl Becker.

Farmington and Walled Lake are not regarded as serious title threats, but they are far from lacking talent.

Henry Rosely, Bill Mandulak, Jim Anderson and Al Clark, who carried Farmington to the regional crown, will be on the firing line at Saginaw.

Briane Keen is Walled Lake's No. 1 gunner. Tom Kretzschmar, John Steckling and Ed Sabbaugh are expected to complete the Walled Lake unit, although one call may go to Jerry MacCormick.

The Vikings finished a surprising 3rd in the Brighton regional, but they trailed the Hills by 11 strokes.

Northville, headed by Tom Slattery and Ed Beard, and Milford, with Larry Hoy and Tom Demko leading the way, visit Midland where Alma will defend its state "B" title.

All area schools were casualties in the Class C-D regionals, including St. Frederick which went to Atlas Valley last week as the defending champ. St. Fred failed to qualify for the state tourney by one shot.

Jackson St. Mary is again defending state "C-D" champ. When the boys tee off at Rolling Green, the Jackson parochial team will be seeking its 9th consecutive state title.

Fierce Medal Battle Seen in Press Meet

By BILL CORNWELL

Consensus has it that Bloomfield Hills will successfully defend its Pontiac Press Prep Invitational golf championship next Monday at Pontiac Country Club.

Rival coaches aren't ready to hand the title to them on a silver platter. The Barons will have to fight for their laurels.

But it's still generally conceded that Don Dennis' squad boasts too much depth and all-round talent to be sidetracked by any one of the other 19 contenders.

★ ★ ★

There's a definite belief, however, that where individual medal honors are concerned, the competition will be fierce indeed.

With the team crown decidedly leaning in Bloomfield Hills' direction, keen interest has developed over the race for the medal.

At least half of the 20-team field has one player capable of making a strong bid for medal honors.

A few teams boast more than one with this ability.

The defending Class A medalist is Fred Ewald of the Hills, who carded 75 last year at Pontiac C.C.

★ ★ ★

Chuck West, one of Ewald's teammates, is given an excellent chance of dethroning Ewald and so is Tom Fry, another Hills player who has been playing the finest golf of his prep career with an injured right wrist.

Other schools boasting players of medal caliber are Pontiac Central, which has Phil Thingstad; Lapeer and Bob Duckwall; Walled Lake and Briane Keen; Waterford Twp. with either Mike Secoy or Roger Tallman; West Bloomfield and Rod Thompson; Pontiac Northern with Ed Wasik; and St. Frederick with Charlie Dean.

There are others too numerous to mention here, but the struggle for medal laurels in the Press Invitational could be the highlight of the day.

Thingstad shot an even par 37 in a losing cause Thursday as PCH lost to the Waterford Skippers, 211-214, in a dual meet at P.C.C. Secoy carded 40 to pace Waterford's balanced shooting.

Half a dozen teams were touring the Pontiac C.C. layout yesterday in tuneup rounds for the popular five-man Press tourney next Monday.

The tournament begins promptly at 8 a.m. Pairings and starting times will be published tomorrow.

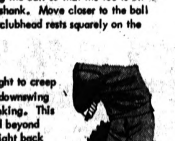

Nuts to Golf Balls

MONTREAL (AP) — The mystery of the disappearing golf balls on the fourth hole of the Senneville Golf Club has been solved.

A squirrel's cache was discovered in a hollow stump just off the fairway. It yielded at least 50 balls.

THE PALMER METHOD

TRY THESE SHANKING CURES

The dreaded shank results when the clubhead is swung outside the ball and contact is made near the heel of the clubface.

If you are addressing the ball so that the toe is off the ground (A), you may shank. Move closer to the ball so that the bottom of the clubhead rests squarely on the ground (B).

Allowing the weight to creep toward the toes on the downswing is another cause of shanking. This may throw the clubhead beyond the ball. Get your weight back toward the heels.

An open clubface at impact will also cause a shank. See that the back of your left hand faces the target at contact.

Pepitone Makes Hurlers Forget Relaxation

Yanks Ailing, Then Along Came Joe

By The Associated Press

It was just getting to the point where American League pitchers weren't quite so fearful about facing the mighty New York Yankees.

Yogi Berra hasn't had a hit for a week. John Blanchard is hitting only .235 and Bill Skowron .197. Elston Howard is 100 points under last season's average. Mickey Mantle is out with injuries and the other half of the M&M combo, Roger Maris, can be handled by walking him.

Then along came Joe. Joe Pepitone, that is.

NO REST

And the pitchers aren't so relaxed any more.

The 21-year-old rookie from Brooklyn, a sometimes first baseman and more recently an outfield substitute for first Maris and now Mantle, is on a hitting binge that has produced a single, double, two triples and three home runs in the last three games. The Yanks have won them all and Pepitone, a lanky left-hand hitter, has had a key part in each, boosting his average from .221 to .306.

★ ★ ★

In the first of the trio he slashed a 12th inning triple and scored the winning run. Then came two home runs and four runs batted in. And Thursday he drove in three runs on a triple and homer as New York stopped Kansas City 9-4 and took a full game lead over idle Cleveland.

Minnesota fell two games off the ace when lowly Boston handled the Twins 7-5. Detroit edged Baltimore 5-4 in 11 innings and Los Angeles beat Washington 7-4 in night games. Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

GETS ADVICE

There never was any question about Pepitone's ability in the outfield. Joe DiMaggio labeled him one of the best he'd ever seen in the Yanks training camp this spring. But the dark, lanky youngster was having trouble making the transition from the Texas League pitching he saw at Amarillo last season to the American League brand until coach Wally Moses got him aside a few days ago.

★ ★ ★

Ease up, Moses told him. "You're swinging too hard."

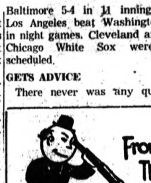

Pepitone eased up and the result is obvious. His two-run triple was the key blow in the five-run New York third inning that wrapped it up against the A's. He hit his fifth homer of the season two innings later and Blanchard hit another in the sixth to provide Bud Daley with his second victory without loss.

★ ★ ★

Carl Yastrzemski, Ed Bressoud and Carroll Hardy each drove in two runs for Boston as the Red Sox managed their second victory in 10 starts. Mike Fornieles won it in relief, though yielding a homer to Vic Power.

★ ★ ★

The Angels broke a 4-4 tie with three runs in the ninth and the help of, some unusual Washington playafield. It included playing Leon Wagner's high fly into a triple—which eventually developed into the winning run—throwing to the wrong base and a dropped ball at the plate. Bob Johnson hit his fourth homer, for Washington in the sixth. Ryne Duren won it as the fourth Los Angeles pitcher.

Campbell and Rosburg Fire 63s to Lead Festival

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Hoosier Joe Campbell and overdue Bob Rosburg, backed by eight-under-par 63s, took a three-stroke lead into today's second round of the $50,000 Speedway Festival open golf tourney.

★ ★ ★

Campbell, who has an aching back, and Rosburg, who has an aching title void, both used hot putters to come up with the most sizzling Speedway round since Billy Casper's record 62 in the 1960 inaugural meet.

Within hailing distance, however, were five pros deadlocked at 66, including Casper, George Bayer, Rex Baxter, Dave Ragan and Dave Hill.

BATTER PAR

In all, 25 sub-70 rounds were fired Thursday on the wind-ruffled par 71 course, half of which is encircled by the famed racing strip where the Memorial Day 500 will be contested Wednesday.

In a trio of 67 shooters were Al Geiberger, Paul Harney and Jerry Steelsmith, while notched at 68 were Buddy Sullivan, Tony Lema, Bob Goalby and Bob Goetz.

★ ★ ★

The victory scent in this "everybody's" tourney was so strong defending champion Doug Ford, who won the only two previous Speedway events, was elbowed back to an 11-way tie for 36th place with a par-matching 71.

It was the first time in nine competitive rounds here Ford has shot poorer than 69.

The field of 142 will be trimmed to the top 90 scores after today's second round and will be looped to 60 at the 54-hole mark Saturday.

CHICAGO, (AP) — The Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight will be held in Chicago in September and the exact date and place may be decided by Monday.

Al Bolan, vice president of Championship Sports Inc., promoter of the match, said the fight will be either Sept. 17 in Soldier Field or Sept. 25 in Comiskey Park.

He said Thursday that arrangements had not yet been worked out with the site officials but that rental price was not causing the delay. He added that all details might be settled by Monday.

Joe Triner, Illinois State Athletic Commission chairman, said license problems also must be cleared up before the fight can be held.

Cincinnati Acting Like Champs Again

By MIKE RATHET
By The Associated Press

A weak-hitting second baseman flashing a big stick, a part-timer plugging the shortstop hole and a guy nobody wanted filling a vacuum at third—and Cincinnati's problem-plagued Reds suddenly have started to act like defending National League champions.

★ ★ ★

The patchwork trio—Don Blasingame, Leo Cardenas and Don Zimmer—collected nine of Cincinnati's 14 hits Thursday night as the streaking Reds whipped Houston 5-0 behind Joey Jay's six-hitter and coasted to their ninth victory in 12 games.

Virtually counted out before the season started after they were stripped of several players by the draft and the injury to third baseman Gene Freese, the Reds have begun to roll with Blasingame at second, Cardenas at short and Zimmer at third.

OFF BENCH

Benched earlier with a .219 batting average, Blasingame has left the splinter brigade and responded with a bevy of hits raising his mark to .284. Cardenas, who hit .308 on a fill-in basis last year, has taken hold at short and is hitting at a respectable .270 clip.

But the biggest surprise has been Zimmer, who went to the New York Mets in the draft. Acquired in a trade, he started out as a pinch hitter for the Reds, but now has been installed at third off his 10-for-20 performance.

★ ★ ★

While the Reds were solving their problems, league-leading San Francisco regained its hitting touch when Willie Mays came off the bench, powered homers Nos. 12 and 13 and led the Giants to a 7-4 conquest of Philadelphia. Los Angeles' Dodgers remained a game and a half back by beating the Mets 4-2. Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 5-2 and Chicago's Cubs edged Milwaukee 4-3.

Blasingame had two singles, a double and a triple; Cardenas a homer and run-scoring single, and Zimmer a double and two singles in the Reds' attack. Meanwhile Jay, center of a rhubarb that caused manager Fred Hutchinson and coach Pete Whisenant to be ejected when they protested eight straight pitches called balls, settled down to handcuff the Colts with the aid of three double plays.

All but one of the Giants' runs came on homers. Consecutive shots by Mays and Orlando Cepeda snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth. After the Phils took a 4-3 edge in the seventh, Mays' two-run homer and Felie Alou's two-run blow put San Francisco ahead to stay.

DECIDING HIT

Frank Howard homered for the Dodgers' first run, then drove in the deciding tally against the Mets with an eighth inning single. That gave the victory to reliever Larry Sherry, who held the Mets hitless for the last two innings after taking over for Johnny Podres.

Singles by Dick Stuart and Don Hoak around a walk, and Don Leppert's double play grounder gave the Pirates two runs in the fourth and snapped a 1-1 tie against the Cardinals. Stuart later homered in support of Al McBean.

Bob Buhl beat his former Milwaukee teammates when Andre Rodgers tripled and pinch hitter Jim McKnight stroked a single for the winning run in the ninth. Buhl allowed only six hits, with Barney Schultz coming on to get the last three outs.

$1,483 Won on $2 Bet in DRC Event

DETROIT (UPI) — It was a $2 day at the Detroit Race Course yesterday when the daily double paid off a whopping $1,483.

To turn the trick, a 96-1 shot, Shannon's Hope, blazed first across the finish line in the second race.

Fleet Mollie won the first race. The combination of six and 12 paid bettors back 741-1, which are pretty good odds any way you look at it.

There were only 28 bettors holding money on the winning combination.

Earlier this season the Hazel Park harness raceway had a $1,432.80 payoff.

Best Ball Golf Tourney

MPGA Visits Sylvan Glen

The Michigan Publinx Golf Association's annual 36-hole best ball golf tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday at Sylvan Glen.

More than 20 top-flight teams representing both public links and private clubs are entered in the event and MPGA officials hope that post entries will boost the field to at least 50.

The entry fee is $25 per team and valuable merchandise prizes and trophies will be awarded. Trophies go to the winning tandem and merchandise awards are distributed through the next nine places.

Among the talented twosomes scheduled to compete are Dick Robertson and Jim Anderson, Roy Iceberg and George Greenhalgh, Le Gohs and Don Nelson, John Kurach and Sam Lima, Claude Dwight and Chuck Cnaterbury, and Wally Smith and Jay Law.

Defending champions are Alan (Scotty) Thompson and Tom Stevens.

The most outstanding private club entry is the Gowanie team of Jim Smith and Dr. Albert LaCroix. Smith is one of nine golfers rated at scratch this year by the Golf Association of Michigan.

Eighteen holes are scheduled each day. Saturday's official starting hour is 7:45 a.m., but MPGA officials point out that tee-off times will be available to post entries from 7 a.m. until early afternoon. No pairings have been arranged after 2 p.m.

Stroh's Gains Deadlock in Waterford Softball

Stroh's pulled into a tie for first place with Spencer Floor Covering last night in Waterford Class B softball by posting a 7-1 win over the defending champions.

Arky James scattered five hits as Stroh's upped its record to 5-1, the same as Spencer. The winners tallied four unearned runs.

Jerry Thomas won his own game 1-0 for O'Neil Realty over Sarko Investment in eight innings. Thomas singled, reached second on an infield out, and scored on catcher Don Wilson's single.

Preps to Show Wares in First Baseball Tourney

The Oakland County area has produced some of Michigan's outstanding baseball talent and many of the boys will be on display here next week when the Pontiac Recreation Department-Pontiac Press Invitational tourney is held at Jaycee Park.

★ ★ ★

Drawings for opponents in the meet slated to start Memorial Day afternoon will be held tonight at a dinner at Elks Lodge 810.

The schools entered are Pontiac Central, Pontiac Northern, Northville, Kettering, Bloomfield Hills, Southfield, Royal Oak Kimball and Farmington Our Lady of Sorrows.

Central has stayed above the .500 mark despite a rugged schedule and the early loss of pitching-hitting ace Ray Collins. The versatile youngster hurt his arm after compiling a 2-0 mound record and hitting .307. Gene Luppino and John Marcuny have been the big hitters with Frank Kettonen dangerous in the clutch. Bob Farms has carried most of the pitching load.

★ ★ ★

Coach Lou Meares is hoping Collins will be ready to return to action by tournament time.

Northern, Inter-Lakes leader for a time, has been hot-and-cold. Veterans Mike Zink and Don Glowaz share the pitching. Mike Marcum and Dave Bihl have been standouts.

Combining power hitting and steady pitching, Northville won the Wayne - Oakland crown after a struggle with Bloomfield Hills. Dan Brown and Tom Swiss are both 4-0. Joe Hay, Craig Bell, Steve and Jim Juday and others have swung big bats.

★ ★ ★

Bloomfield Hills lacked the pitching help to go with John Augustin. First sacker Bill Petitbone won team most valuable player honors. Bill Bennett, Marsh Sherba and Brian O'Neil have been some of the other stars.

CAPTAIN PITCHING

The pitching of sophomore Bob Bogert and Chuck Henderson made Kettering a strong contender to Tri-County champion Romeo. Slugging catcher Gary Heaton has had a good spring.

Giant-killer Waterford recently ruined Southfield's chances of repeating as L-L king. Don Buddemeier and Mike Fournier have been mound and hitting stars for the Bluejays. Standout shortstop Jack Hancock and John Francis have also played important roles.

Kimball has been a power in loop all spring behind the pitching of Steve Wilson. He has a no-hitter and three-hitter among his victories. Chuck Meagher and Craig Kirby help make the ROK boys a strong invitational contender.

Sorrows has had its 2nd staight big year paced by heavy hitter and pitcher Jeff Barth and RBI specialist Tom Conroy.

Elsewhere, Jim Ray of Holly has pitched a no-hitter and two one-hitters with 47 strikeouts since recovering from arm trouble. Gary Kraft at St. Mike, Utica's Ron Paschal, Waterford's Dave Abel, Dan Petz at Capac, Gene Hennig of Romeo, tall Hank Akin, Troy, John Billesdon of Cranbrook, Terry Ignaseak of Imlay City, Brighton's Jim Armstrong, Larry Janiszewski of Orchard Lake St. Mary, Don Wells, ROSM, and Milford's Ed Sparkman have been among the top pitchers.

Some of those who have excelled in the hitting and fielding departments are Keith Simunic and Butch Peraino of Romeo, John Nelson at Farmington, Gae Montante of Milford, Cliff Vandiour of L'Anse Creuse, Lapeer's Chuck Tiffany, Ron Beeman and Ken Kowalski of Lamphere, Al Miller, Orchard Lake, Tony Palazzolo, Utica, Clarkston mates Mike Applegate and Jerry Powell, Ron Koteles at St. James, Jim Porte of Armada and Dave Schultz of Cranbrook.

Ray, Armstrong and Steve Juday had Major League scouts on their trail when play started. Several others have come in for attention in recent weeks.

Jim Ray Flips One-Hitter Again

Northville is the Wayne-Oakland champion but pitcher Jim Ray of 2nd place Holly has become the talk of this area.

A Chicago White Sox scout was on hand yesterday to see the junior fire his 2nd successive one-hitter following a no-hitter in a 5-1 conquest of Milford.

Two infield hits are all he has allowed in the last three outings. He has given up just six hits, walked 19 and fanned around 100 in five victories. His strikeout total was 14 yesterday.

Two of the five free passes Ray gave up to Milford filled the bases after an error. A wild pitch then ruined the shutout.

Dick Canfield and Robbie Wiechert each tripled in runs and Larry Bradsher scored one after a three bagger. Dick Crause had a double and single for the Broncos.

NORTHVILLE VICTOR

Northville whipped winless West Bloomfield 7-1 and Clarenceville tripped skidding Bloomfield Hills 9-5 in other W-O action.

Eric Peterson and Dan Brown combined for a Northville one-hitter, a double by Bok which spoiled the shutout attempt. Jim Anderson swatted two home runs, Jim and Steve Juday and Craig Bell two singles each off loser Ed Ellason.

Clarenceville tallied seven times in the 2nd and held off late Baron bids to make it close. Hawkins had a grand slam homer in the big frame and later doubled. Ace Bloomfield hurler John Augustin ran into arm trouble early. Victor Gary Gearhart gave up a circuit clout and single to Brian O'Neil, a two-run homer to Mike Griffin and double and single to Dick Janz.

ROMEO NOW 10-1

Tri-County king Romeo added another loop triumph and advances to 10-1 over-all by downing Rochester 7-4. Gene Hennig won his 8th straight allowing four hits and fanning eight. A five-run 2nd wrapped up the verdict. Ron Mignot paced the offense with three singles. Blaine Hixson had a home run.

Five Keg Tourneys in Final Weekend

Five area bowling tournaments ring down the curtain this weekend with big closing sessions starting tomorrow.

One other will continue as does the trial traveling league. Shirley Pointer is in Louisville, Ky., to compete in the National Doubles tournament.

★ ★ ★

The Moose Mixed at Huron, UAW doubles at Lakewood Lanes, Dixie and B & M events and Knights of Columbus action at Nor-West are the events coming to a close.

Ellen Bolinger and Marvin Bailey have paced the Moose keglers since the opening round.

Earl Gore and B. Segorski head the auto workers with 187 pins over average. Earl Brown and John Rikey have high men's scores of 546 and 224. Dottie Senter and Eleanor Baxter lead the women with 513 and 196. Entries will remain open at Lakewood until the final squad begins rolling.

★ ★ ★

Bowl-A-Round Hawaii play keeps going at Wonderland and West Side.

West Side is at Airway and Wonderland at Huron Sunday as the travelers battle. There is no charge for spectators.

Two local keglers will be among the four competing for the grand prize of a new car Saturday at 6 p.m. on "TV Bowl." They are Larry Mattson of Airway Lanes and Sylvia Marion of Huron Bowl. The locals will have the smallest handicaps due to having the top averages of the foursome.

Prep Front

By DON YOGEL

Jim Ray, hard throwing Holly High pitcher, is being watched closely by scouts from at least three major league teams.

During yesterday's one-hit performance against Milford a Chicago White Sox talent hunter was on hand. The Tigers were very impressed last spring when Ray was a sophomore.

The Phillies have been looking at Ray, too.

And before he winds up his prep career, more scouts from other teams are bound to take a long look.

All Ray has done in his last three starts is hurl a no-hitter and two one-hitters. Both one-hit games were spoiled by infield singles.

Ray's record stands at 5-1 for the second place Broncos. He was bothered by a sore flipper at the start of the season and lost to Bloomfield Hills.

He later avenged that setback with a one-hit masterpiece. It was this loss that started the Barons on a skid that has left them well out of the running for the Wayne-Oakland championship.

Ray first came to the Tigers attention while hurling in the Pontiac recreation league two summers ago. He showed them some more last summer and probably will be even more impressive in the year to come.

On top of his baseball prowess he is an All-County basketball player and was one of the Bronco's top football players last fall. He also competes in track.

LOOK TO FUTURE

Over at Clarkston High they are looking for improved seasons in football and basketball next time around.

Reason for the optimism is a group of top notch freshmen athletes. Several gained varsity experience this school year, particularly in basketball.

Straightening out a missed announcement at the Clarkston sports banquet last weekend:

Jerry Powell was named most valuable baseball player and Mike Applegate the most improved instead of the other way around.

JONES' RECORD

There is some talk around that Saginaw High's John Bradford may break Hayes Jones state record for the 120 high hurdles. Bradford ran a 14.5 in the regionals.

The 220 dash in tomorrow's Class A meet should be a great event. It will send Ferndale's defending champion Dorrie Ried against Flint Northern's Dalton Kimball. Both have run the distance in 21.5 seconds.

Reid should have it his own way in the 100. He was clocked in 9.6 for the regionals.

Loaded Packers Looking for Help

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody knows the Green Bay Packers are loaded but Vince Lombardi still wants more.

"We need another running back," said the NFL champion Packers' coach-general manager with a straight face today. However, he was willing to admit that Earl Gros, the powerful rookie fullback from Louisiana State might fill the bill.

"In our system two boys carry the ball a lot," said Lombardi. "When Paul Hornung couldn't make it last year (which was seldom), we were down to two runners—(Tom) Moore and (Jim) Taylor, plus Elijah Pitts, who is more the speedy type you play on a spot basis.

IN HOSPITAL

"Hornung is in the hospital, as you know, with appendicitis. He still is in the Army. We don't know for sure when he will be out. The same thing goes for our other Army men—Boyd Dowler, Ray Nitschke, Herb Adderley and Pitts. I don't think anybody got hit quite as hard as we did."

★ ★ ★

Talking about his fine crop of draftees from last year's college ranks, Lombardi said he had room for a defensive lineman, an offensive guard, a flanker and a defensive back, depending on Adderley's status.

"We have two fine rookie guards in Ed Blaine of Missouri and John Schopf of Michigan," said Lombardi. "We think we have a fine prospect for a defensive tackle in Ron Gassert of Virginia.

MORE DEPTH

"You remember last year when Jerry Kramer was hurt we had to move Forrest Gregg, an all-league tackle, over to guard. This year we hope to be a little deeper in the middle of the line.

"We also drafted two flanker-type men in Gary Barnes of Clemson and Oscar Donahue of San Jose State."

★ ★ ★

How many rookies will make it?

"I hope we can find room for a lot of them," said Lombardi.

Does he fear complacency?

"I certainly will be surprised if there is any. There will be no fat cats on our club."

★ ★ ★

Who are the contenders in the Western Conference?

"Shall I name them?" asked Lombardi with a smile. He began to count them off one by one.

LIONS' DEFENSE

"Baltimore always has to be considered as long as they have Johnny Unitas. The Chicago Bears came on real strong late last season. Detroit has a real fine defensive club. They have added Tom Watkins to their running. It remains to be seen how much Milt Plum will help at quarterback. Sometimes a trade helps a fellow."

Before Vince got around to the Rams, 49ers and Vikings, the man with the notebook fled.

Picks 4 Men to Beat Jones Rates '500' Foes

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones, sensation of qualification runs for the 500-mile auto race, figures he has four men to beat in the 46th Memorial Day classic next Wednesday.

Jones, first driver to hit 150 miles an hour on the low-banked old Indianapolis Motor Speedway, names the field's standouts as A. J. Foyt Jr., last year's winner; smooth Len Sutton, and the two men who will share the front row with Jones, 1959 winner Rodger Ward and hard-driving young Bobby Marshman.

NOT WORRIED

"I'm not worried about Dan Gurney and the Buick," Jones says. "If they set it up to go the distance, it won't be able to keep up with the competition."

Indianapolis Motor Speedway old timers have applauded Mickey Thompson, builder of the modified Buick car, for accomplishing a major feat by just qualifying the car. It had the eighth-best speed, 147.886, in the 33-car field which survived from 72 entries.

Jones says he told Thompson, a noted speed driver as well as an engineer, "You will have a hard road. The Offenhausers are too stout for their size."

Offy special racing engines will power all of the other starters.

The new qualification record holder speaks with considerable authority, as he won the national spring car championship last year using a modified stock engine most of the season. They were short races on short tracks, however.

Engineer Don Cummins, who put the last commercial engine in the 500 field 10 years ago, says, "Potentialities of the Thompson car are unknown. I hope it finishes the race because it would be good for auto racing."

PCH 2nd Stringers Lose to Birmingham

With its top runners in the distance events and relays resting on the sidelines, Pontiac Central lost a 63½-43½ track decision to Birmingham Seaholm yesterday on the Maples oval.

Seaholm and Central did not use their qualifiers for the state meet. PCH had 13 out of action and Seaholm seven.

Feel Proposed Constitution Improvement

(Editor's Note—This concludes an in-depth analysis of Michigan's proposed constitution compared with the present constitution written in 1908 and earlier documents.)

By A. D. UNDERWOOD

LANSING (UPI) — In reshaping the Michigan constitution, delegates to the convention trimmed the document from 17 to 12 articles.

Matters which stood as separate articles in the present document were incorporated in other areas as much as possible. There were still some tag-end matters left over.

A new article would deal with property, lumping together such matters as eminent domain and the rights of married women to own and hold property in their own right.

The question of eminent domain, the taking of private property for public purposes, occupies an article to itself in the 1908 document. The approximately 450 words used to detail the right of the state and its institutions to take property would be reduced to a simple, two-sentence section in the new constitution.

★ ★

"Private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation therefore being first made or secured in a manner prescribed by law. Compensation shall be determined in proceedings in a court of record."

Buried in this paragraph lies another of the small wars which racked the convention.

Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie, whose job would be abolished in the new constitution, struck out at the delegates who proposed a "get tough" attitude in the area of eminent domain.

WOULD TIE UP ROADS

"The requirement that there be a court determination and that issues be settled before the property can be taken will tie up highway construction for 10 years," said Mackie at one point.

Utilities, who also have limited powers of eminent domain, joined the highway commissioner. Persons interested in urban redevelopment were worried by the proposed action.

The convention subcommittee which handled the matter professed to have found great abuses and the debate reached an emotional pitch seldom equaled at the convention before the proposed language was adopted.

Another "brush war" argument developed in the area of civil service.

Michigan voters adopted a merit system for state employment 22 years ago and wrote the matter into the constitution with an amendment.

The address to the people of the 1961-62 convention states in part that revisions of that amendment were "intended to correct inequities and abuses which, in the judgment of the convention, have become apparent."

The changes give the legislature some control over pay rates, provide that appointing authorities may create or abolish classified positions and expand the number of unclassified jobs (positions outside of civil service.)

The present bipartisan Civil Service Commission would be retained, but appointments of the governor to the board would require the advice and consent of the State Senate.

The right of local units of government to set up or abolish their own civil service systems was written into the proposed document.

★ ★ ★

The constitutional 1 per cent earmarking based on state payroll for the operation of the civil service was retained, but not without a battle. Delegates who were successful in introducing legislative control over pay wanted to eliminate the earmarking and turn the commission budget over to the law makers.

In the rewritten civil service provision the governor would also get in the act with authority to reject proposed pay increases granted by the commission.

State employes groups termed actions of the convention "a step backward" and a "partial return to the spoils system."

'JOBS FOR RELATIVES'

Spokesmen for the groups said that the control over pay given the legislature and the governor would increase pressures on the commission beyond the point of endurance.

"These guys will be running to the commission looking for jobs for Uncle Charlie and threatening to hold up pay increases if they don't get the jobs," said one State Employes Association spokesman.

Convention spokesmen answered that the Civil Service commission was "too independent."

★ ★ ★

A new section in the wrap-up articles gives the legislature "supervisory jurisdiction over all state-owned lands" and allows for the creation of a state land reserve if two-thirds of the legislature approves.

This would hold such lands for the people with the provision that a similar legislative act could allow sale or lease of parts of the reserve.

The last section of the last article of the proposed constitution would provide for the calling of future conventions.

ON SAME BASIS

The question of a convention would automatically come before the voters every 16 years, as at present. Selection of delegates would be on the same basis as provided in the amendment which set up the convention just concluded.

There would be one delegate from each House and Senate district, elected on a partisan basis, with the governor appointing to fill vacancies.

"We have insured that future conventions will operate under the same handicaps, with the same political overtones, that we have had," said Tom Downs, D-Detroit, the minority vice president.

★ ★ ★

"This is unfortunate and is one of the many reasons the Democrats offered their substitute document," he said.

Downs sought a provision barring convention delegates from seeking other political office for a period after the convention. The Democrats also wanted to change the base for selecting delegates to tie it to the House but not the Senate.

George Romney, R-Bloomfield Hills, the GOP candidate for governor and also a convention vice president, sought to have delegates elected on a nonpartisan basis.

CALLS FOR VOTE

Delegates sought to head off another court action such as they have undertaken to get their document before the voters this fall. A provision was added calling for a vote on any revision produced by another convention in the manner and at the time provided by the convention as long as 90 days elapse after final adjournment.

"We have done the best we could, we have written a good document, now it is up to the people and I am sure they will make the right decision," said Stephen Nisbet, R-Fremont, president of the convention.

"I came here to represent the people of Fremont, perhaps also to represent the people of Newaygo County. I began to realize very early that all of us here should represent the entire state," Nisbet said.

★ ★ ★

"If you look for things to find fault with of course you can find them. That isn't the way to look at the work we have done. We have made improvements in nearly every section of every article and that should be the guide in voting on this constitution."

Nisbet's transformation from a local interest view to concern with the entire state paralleled other transformations.

Rural Republicans, closely allied with the Farm Bureau, opposed calling a convention. They have now announced support for the final document.

CARRIED PROPOSAL

Wayne County labor interests which supposedly control the majority of the state's voters were cool toward the convention but Wayne County carried the proposal to have it called.

Democratic Party leaders first opposed, then reluctantly supported it, now apparently will oppose the work of the convention.

Metropolitan interests, responsible for the calling of the convention, have expressed opposition to the new document.

★ ★

In November or in April of 1963, whichever the courts decide, Michigan voters will make their decision. Conceivably they could take the narrow view that Nisbet described. They can find some reason to vote against the proposed constitution.

Chances are, however, that the majority will adopt the attitude taken by one of the Lansing area residents surveyed by United Press International.

"I guess it is better than what we have now and that is what we wanted," said Keith Hicks, an East Lansing builder.

LOT OF PROPAGANDA

"I suppose we are going to hear a lot of propaganda from now until the election," said Hicks. "I don't think that will make much difference."

Most of those questioned felt the same way. It is an improvement and therefore is worth supporting.

Presenting the medal to MacArthur was George F. Pierrot of Detroit, club president.

8 British Planes Now in Bangkok

More Hawker Hunters Will Join Forces Ready to Defend Thailand

By TONY ESCODA

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — British jets flew to Bangkok today to join steadily growing American forces in safeguarding Thailand's border against possible Communist aggression from Laos.

Six Hawker Hunter fighters, a Canberra twin-jet light bomber and a Pembroke reconnaissance plane arrived from Singapore. They were the bulk of a Royal Air Force squadron assigned to this pro-Western kingdom.

TOTAL OF 250 MEN

An R.A.F. spokesman said four more Hawker Hunters would complete the British force, which with ground crews would total 250 men.

A small New Zealand paratroop detachment and an Australian air force contingent also are expected. These will put in the field units from four of Thailand's allies in the eight-nation Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

★ ★ ★

The Philippine government said today it was ready to send ground or air forces should the call come. The other two members of the anti-Communist alliance — Pakistan and France—have made no gestures toward joining the military buildup.

★ ★ ★

The British planes will be based in the northern city of Chiang Mai, about 100 miles from the northwest frontier of Laos where the pro-Communist Pathet Lao are in control.

American forces form the southern anchor of the defensive arc along the frontier, with U.S. Marines based near Udon, 40 miles south of the pro-Western Laotian government's administrative capital of Vientiane, which is in central Laos. U.S. Army troops are based still farther south, at Khorat, opposite the southern end of Laos.

Envoy to Ireland Quits

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House announced today that President Kennedy has accepted with regret the resignation of Grant Stockdale of Miami, Fla., as ambassador to Ireland. The resignation will become effective July 6.

Lowered by Heavy Selling

Stock Mart Prices Take Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy selling lowered stock market prices early Friday afternoon after an early rise came to nothing.

Key stocks lost fractions to a point or more. Some steadied and recovered part or all of the losses and a few posted minor gains.

The ticker tape ran as much as six minutes late at mid session as the wave of selling—Mixed with some selective buying—became stronger.

This was the third straight day of what brokers described as emotional selling based on fear of even lower prices.

SHRUGS OFF NEWS

Wall Street shrugged off such good economic news as gains in building contract awards, auto production and new car sales as well as the inflationary news that living costs had risen to a record for the third straight month.

The sharp decline in the market average was due to breaks by a few key stocks including Houston Light & Power, off more than 4; Sears Roebuck, off more than 3; Woolworth, down more than a point, and U.S. Steel, also down well over a point.

General Motors was steady. Du Pont and Jersey Standard yielded fractions.

Fractional gains were posted for Ford, Chrysler, Lorillard, Liggett &Myers, Commonwealth Edison and International Telephone. Radio Corp. advanced a point. Texaco and Royal Dutch were firm.

International Business Machines set a 1962 low of 390, sinking 8 points before halving the decline.

Consolidated Natural Gas, a pivotal stock, fell about 3.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange in moderate trading.

Rumors Persist About GM Car

Stockholders Meeting Today; May Be Told of New De Luxe Model

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — General Motors Corp. stockholders today get official confirmation today of persistent industry rumors that Chevrolet will build next year a deluxe model to compete with Ford's Thunderbird.

Whether this information will be disclosed — or even denied — at the annual meeting of the world's biggest industrial corporation is unconfirmed, with officials reluctant to comment.

GM sources do reveal, however, that Board Chairman Frederic Donner, is expected to tell shareholders the giant auto and appliance maker, with many related business enterprises, is en route to one of its biggest money-making years — if not the greatest.

Donner also is expected to outline to stockholders effects of the contemplated divesting of 163 million shares of GM stock now held by the Du Pont Company. Transfer of this stock to Du Pont shareholders is scheduled to begin this summer and continue for about five years.

★ ★ ★

GM has garnered a bigger share of the auto market this year mainly at the expense of Ford and Chrysler. And Donner reportedly will predict the firm's sales will continue to grow.

Based on first-quarter earnings of more than $374 million, nearly double the similar 1961 period, GM could earn a profit of more than a billion dollars for the second time in history. It did this in 1955, then earning $1.19 billion.

Treasury Bonds Steady

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. Treasury bonds opened steady to a bit higher today. Corporates were mixed to lower at the start.

★ ★ ★

An over-the-counter dealer in governments quoted the most distant maturities unchanged. Most intermediates and short term bonds were firm and steady. A few intermediates showed gains of 2/32s.

Trading was described as quiet.

In dealings on the New York Stock Exchange, several railroad bonds lost fractions, and so did a majority of industrials in early turnover. Utilities displayed a little strength.

In all cases, changes in price on a regular bonds amounted to less than a full point, in most cases ½ points or less.

To Seek Lifting of Injunction

Attorney in Rochester Wants Order Blocking Drive-In to Be Raised

ROCHESTER — Village Attorney Arthur R. Cox will ask Circuit Court Judge William J. Beer Monday to lift an injunction against construction of a Big Boy drive-in restaurant here.

★ ★ ★

Judge Beer has granted a temporary injunction restraining the village from issuing a building permit for the restaurant to be located on the west side of N. Main Street near its intersection with Romeo Road.

The injunction was asked by St. Philip's Episcopal Church, located across the street from the site of the proposed drive-in.

★ ★ ★

The bill of complaint by the church charges that approval of the restaurant by the village zoning board of appeals was unreasonable, fraudulent and in bad faith.

It claims construction of the drive-in will create a traffic hazard. St. Philip's "will be damaged by the increase of traffic and the increase of danger as said corner is not at right angles but is laid out so as to permit cars to enter Main Street from Romeo Road at 60 miles per hour," the suit charges.

It also contends zoning board Chairman Leslie Jones was prejudiced and "prevented an impartial hearing" when the restaurant was approved after a two-hour public hearing May 15.

SPEAKS AGAINST IT

Rev. Edgar A. Lucas of St. Philip's Church spoke against the drive-in at the hearing.

★ ★ ★

The zoning board found that a traffic problem already exists at the corner and the restaurant would conform with the existing character of the area. Both are matters that require review before a drive-in can be approved, according to the village's zoning ordinance.

Controversial Teacher Quits Utica Schools for Business

UTICA — Charles McManigal, band and music teacher at Sterling Junior High School here who refused to lead the band in The National Anthem because of religious beliefs, is leaving his teaching job for a fling at private business.

Supt. Fred M. Atkinson said today he will honor the 27-year-old McManigal's request to be relieved of duties June 1.

"We'll be winding up our instrumental music program for the year by then, anyway," Atkinson said.

McManigal said he wanted to leave two weeks before his contract expired to go into the frozen custard business in New Mexico.

"I felt I should get out of teaching for a while," he said, adding that he might return to teaching in the future.

Atkinson said he hoped the controversial teacher, a Jehovah's Witness, would return to teaching. "He's a good teacher," Atkinson said, "except for that one problem."

ALMOST LOST JOB

"That one problem" almost cost McManigal his job about four months ago. The board of education voted not to renew his contract for next year after the teacher said he would not comply with a board policy requiring him to lead the band in "The Star Spangled Banner" in school programs.

He also refused to participate in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag because it was against his religion.

The school board decided to renew his contract, however, and reassign him to the elementary school music program where no conflicts with his religious beliefs would arise.

★ ★ ★

This decision was reached at a hearing of the State Fair Employment Practices Commission March 20. McManigal had appealed the board's previous action to the FEPC.

The board of education voted 6 to 1 to offer English, 49, the $20,000 job.

When this event began at Walled Lake, it was a banquet at which gifts suited to each graduating boy's personality were presented.

★ ★ ★

However, with the increasing number of seniors, the event has steadily grown and was changed several years ago to a reception.

Gifts are still presented to each senior but now the girls receive them the same as the boys. Instead of the banquet, refreshments are served.

To entertain the seniors, junior class members have planned a skit on the Roaring Twenties. Vocal selections, dancing acts, a combo and a band also are on the program.

Serving on the planning committee are Peggy Sofko, Nancy Clark and Carol Woolley. Entertainment committee members are Dick Strait and Pat Madison.

'Country in Good Shape'

Dallas Banker Stays Serene

EDITOR'S NOTE—Want to keep your blood pressure down; want to read the financial news without taking a tranquilizer? In this, last of three articles on the business scene in Texas, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, tells how one man does it.)

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

DALLAS, Tex. — "Paper profits make you happy every morning when you look at the stock tables in the paper. But they don't do you, or the country, any good until they're turned into cash and spent."

That is a calm view to take of what's been happening on Wall Street—the wiping out of millions and millions of dollars of paper profits. But if you'd spent the last 36 years helping turn a small town into a city like Dallas, complete with skyscrapers and traffic jams, maybe you would also be pretty slow to panic.

★ ★ ★

Robert L. Thornton Sr., silver-haired and deeply tanned, pushed back the work on his desk where, at 62, he keeps plugging along at his job as chairman of the Mercantile National Bank of Dallas.

★ ★ ★

"Whether it's the cantaloupe market or the stock market, there will be readjustments," he said. "And in this country it's essential that we have some economic and market disturbances. Otherwise with our American temperament, we would go wild—and all on paper profits, with nothing really in the cash register."

STAYS SERENE

From the vantage point of his years of experience with crises, big and small, Thornton is serene in his appraisal of all the hullaballoo that younger men—whether in the White House, industrial executive suites or labor union headquarters—are kicking up.

★ ★ ★

"This flareup over steel prices and the talk about a new anti-business trend in government—so far, at any rate, it has disturbed a lot of businessmen, here as elsewhere, but it hasn't really hurt many of them," he says.

"I can't see any economic upheaval in the making, or any really radical switch in government attitude and policies, that will retard the progress and development of the country. In this nation political claptrap won't keep the people from doing what they want to do." To that, after a moment's thought, he adds, "If they are able."

★ ★ ★

The banker says that in Dallas and in most parts of the nation, "the big thing is we're able to buy."

MONEY IN BANK

"People have money. A few are worried by loss of paper profits in the market. But basically business is sound. The top men of the companies here in Texas have their feet on the ground. They're alert and cutting out unprofitable lines," he said.

★ ★ ★

"They don't like what's been going on in Washington. All this turmoil over wage demands and the right of business to set prices is disturbing and must be worked out, and will be. And it's hard for most of us out here to keep up with, let alone understand, all the trouble spots in the world. But in spite of all that the country is in good shape.

★ ★ ★

"A manufacturer from a town down the line a bit came in here yesterday complaining about what the government was doing and, worse, what it seemed set on doing.

"I asked him, 'Can't you want to sell your plants in this country and go to some other country to live and operate?'

"He said he didn't."

Thornton pushed the unfinished business a little farther to one side on his desk.

"If you'll excuse me," he said, "I'm a little late. I have a date to go fishing."

And off he went, straight and alert—and real calm about everything—except maybe about how the fish would bite.

Plan for Special Crate if Sending Hippo by Air

LONDON (AP) — When shipping a hippopotamus by air, pack it in a strongly built hardwood crate with a sliding door of iron bars.

The advice comes in a new International Air Transport Association document detailing 14 types of packing for 121 varieties of wild life ranging from oysters and crickets to lions and tigers.

"There are, however, no standard specifications for packing giraffes," IATA says.

Plan Given 'Approval'

LANSING (AP) — The Federal Area Redevelopment Administration has given preliminary approval to an overall economic program for Wexford County, Gov. Swainson has announced.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

BY OSWALD JACOBY

One of the first things you learn about defensive play is that it is usually desirable to return your partner's lead.

You also learn that on many occasions there it little or no future in this line of defence. In such cases it pays to look around for something more promising.

Now put yourself in East's position. You win with the opening club lead with your ace and look around to see if you can find some way to set the four heart contract. You figure that if your partner holds the king of clubs you will have your second trick, but you have to find two more. They aren't going to be in the red suits so that leaves spades.

A shift to a spade is clearly indicated and you should lead the deuce of that suit. South will play the king and your partner will take two spades and the king of clubs to set the hand.

Suppose you just return the club to your partner. He will take his king, but will have no way to set the hand. If he leads a red card South will make his king.

Negroes at PCH March in Protest

Most of the Negro students marching in protest outside Pontiac Central High School today returned to classes at the end of their lunch period. Others were seen leaving the vicinity.

Approximately 120 Negro students marched in protest outside Pontiac Central High School today because a Negro youth wasn't allowed to escort a white girl to a school dance last Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Passers-by described the protest march along West Huron Street in front of the high school as "orderly and quiet." Students were marching two abreast, they said.

Some 200 Negro students at the high school voted earlier today in favor of the march as a silent protest against Principal Francis W. Staley's action in refusing to apologize for asking a Negro boy and a white girl to leave Saturday's "J-Hop" dance, they said.

The students registered complaints of prejudice in the school with teacher Colon McGlown before walking out to participate in the demonstration.

PLEDGE TO BAR BIAS

The Pontiac Board of Education last night pledged to bar all racial discrimination at school activities, after Negro students threatened to boycott the high school over the dance incident.

Students were informed of the board's resolution at a meeting in the PCH study hall this morning.

About 20 parents and City Commissioner Milton A. Henry attended last night's board meeting.

Before there were any questions, the board swiftly approved without debate a resolution introduced by Supt. Dana P. Whitmer. The resolution read:

"All school activities are open to all students, all groups of students and all student couples, irrespective of race, color and creed."

Commissioner Henry hailed the "speedy and unanimous action."

However, he warned that "if this ever arises again we're going to take this to court. We're going to make every effort that it takes that this thing shall never happen again."

Supt. Dana P. Whitmer told the board that PCH Principal Francis W. Staley had said the couple had agreed to leave upon being told the matter was being studied by the administration.

Dr. Whitmer explained he had wanted to have more time to sound out community feeling.

★ ★ ★ ★

"It was in the best interest of all at the time," he said, "tnat no mixing be encouraged at least until the board had had a chance to consider what is in the best interest to all and until a policy for guidance in the future."

Nuisance Taxes Near Passage

Republican Leaders in State House Come Close to Goal

LANSING (AP) — House Republicans came within a whisker of passing most of their nuisance tax package last night as the legislature rounded out the fifth week of its overtime session.

★ ★ ★

GOP leaders, scenting victory, quickly sent out overtures for negotiations they hoped would win a few more Democrats to their side when the package comes up for a second test.

"We're close enough now that I think we just might get a tax package through the House after a little negotiating," said Rep. Allison Green, R-Kingston, House GOP floor leader.

A day-and-night session of Republican caucusing and heated floor debates hit a climax with passage of the first tax bill in the House this year. With support from two Democrats, one of the bills needed for a 4 per cent tax on telephone and telegraph service minimum.

★ ★ ★

A rider on each bill in the package nullifies all six unless they all are enacted.

Coeds, Policemen Hurt in Campus Brawl by 2,500

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)—An estimated 2,600 students, throwing beer bottles and rocks, rioted on the campus at Oklahoma State University last night and early today.

Six women in invaded dormitories, two policemen and a fireman were hurt.

★ ★ ★

The riot got so bad local police had to call for help from state troopers and police departments from surrounding towns. The National Guard was alerted but was not used.

The riot lasted five-and-a-half hours. When two fire trucks rumbled up and the firemen turned fire hoses on the students, some of them cut off the water and wrecked the equipment so it could not be used.

U.S., Russia 'Join' in Peace Appeal

GENEVA (UPI) The United States and Russia, in a rare joint appeal, called on the 17-nation disarmament conference today to condemn war propaganda and war as a means of settling disputes.

The six-point declaration made a special plea for abolition of statements to the effect that war is necessary or inevitable.

"The younger generation of today should be brought up in the spirit of peace, mutual respect and understanding among peoples," it said.

The joint appeal came in a declaration against war propaganda presented for conference approval by U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin, in their capacity as conference cochairmen.

Loving thoughts are always with us.
★
On the one we loved so dear,
He has gone to be with Jesus.
But our sadness lingers still.
Sadly missed by his wife, son, and daughter.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF BERtha G. Syvanne, who passed away May 24, 1961.
We cling to all our memories;
We loved her as tenderly,
Life without her is so sad,
But the fun we used to have;
But she was ready to meet Him there.
In His beautiful Garden of Prayer.
Sadly missed by husband, children and grandchildren.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF SARAH Provan who passed away May 25, 1956.
There's a sad but sweet remembrance
There is a memory fond and true
And a token of affection, Mother,
And a heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by her children and George daughter Margaret Provan and daughter Mrs. Elmer M. Bendy Jr.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MY dear husband, Olbert Behrends who passed away 4 years ago May 25, 1958:

'Music Maker' Uses Rare Skill on Woodwinds

By FRED KLEIN
The Ann Arbor News

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Frank Kaspar came to Ann Arbor to retire and stayed to work.

At 73, the Bohemian-born craftsman still puts in a six-hour day doing what he has done for the past 60 years—making fine woodwind instruments.

Actually, Kaspar now limits his work to mouthpieces. He calls them "the most important part of the instrument." He is one of the few remaining men in the United States who use hand methods, and his clientele is nationwide.

"I thought that when I came here I would be able to enjoy the benefits of Ann Arbor," Kaspar said. "Ann Arbor is a city of culture. There is more good music played here than about anywhere in the country.

★ ★ ★

"But I have not been able to retire. I have more work than I can handle."

Kaspar entered his trade in his native land near the turn of the century. He came to the United States in 1904 as an apprentice to the European master, Oscar Brauer, when the latter brought his entire shop to Chicago.

After serving as a clarinetist and assistant band leader in the Army during World War I, Kaspar became a partner in the Goldbeck & Co. instrument firm in Chicago. In 1922 he became sole owner of the company, which he operated until coming here in 1951.

NEAT GRAY HOME

Kaspar and his wife Mary live in a neat gray brick home. He does most of his work in a small shop on the second floor.

The walls of his shop and study are lined with autographed pictures of such as John Phillip Sousa, Patrick Conway and Wayne King—all former clients. He still services the Philadelphia Orchestra and university bands.

Of his own trade, Kaspar says that craftsmanship as he knows it is declining.

"Everything is different today," he said. "In a factory, one man knows one thing, another man knows another. No one knows how to do it all.

★ ★ ★

"I was taught to take the raw material and do everything myself. A good instrument maker not only must know what to do with his hands—he must have a good ear and be educated in music.

"And he must understand artists. With a professional musician, nothing ever is good enough—they always want something better. You can call them at 1 in the morning and say you have a good mouthpiece, and they'll come. But you had better be right!"

The mouthpieces Kaspar produces consist of eight separate parts, each of which he makes individually. The main apparatus is of metal—usually gold, silver or nickel. It is covered with hard rubber.

A high quality device takes up to 2½ days to complete.

SAXOPHONE PIECE

Most of Kaspar's present work is with clarinets, but some years ago he invented an original type of metal mouthpiece for the saxophone which still is in use today.

"People come to me once in awhile and say, 'Frank, why do you do things this way, so strenuous and time-consuming,'" Kaspar smiled. "But I tell them I learned this way, and I won't change. When I make something and see that it works, it's worth it."

Was Scott Confused on 3rd Orbit?

Even Some Russians Cheer

World's Press Hails Shot

From Our News Wires

Banner headlines throughout the free world proclaimed the success of U.S. Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter's orbital flight today, and even behind the Iron Curtain there were many who hailed the spaceman's achievement.

Americans around the world—servicemen, businessmen or tourists — received congratulations from people in foreign lands.

The story of Carpenter's tripie swing around the world was front-page news in such diverse publications as London's Communist Daily Worker and Tokyo's Nihon Keizai, an ultraconservative financial newspaper.

"Commander Carpenter's flight yesterday had a rather too-exciting end," said the Guardian with traditional British understatement.

★ ★ ★

West Europeans joined in the tension and pride of Americans as they listened during the day to radio commentaries and newscasts from Cape Canaveral.

They waited breathlessly for the final relief-flooding moment when Carpenter was picked up from his tiny liferaft.

M. SCOTT CARPENTER
Talks to President

The story of Carpenter's ride through space was beamed across the iron curtain by Radio Free Europe to Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria. Radio Moscow brushed off Carpenter's feat as a "repetition of John Glenn's flight," and Radio Peiping ignored it altogether. Propaganda broadcasts from Soviet satellite countries compared the space journey unfavorably with the feats of Russia's cosmonauts.

The Russian radio made no mention of the suspenseful minutes during which Carpenter was lost to the world, although it did report his safe recovery.

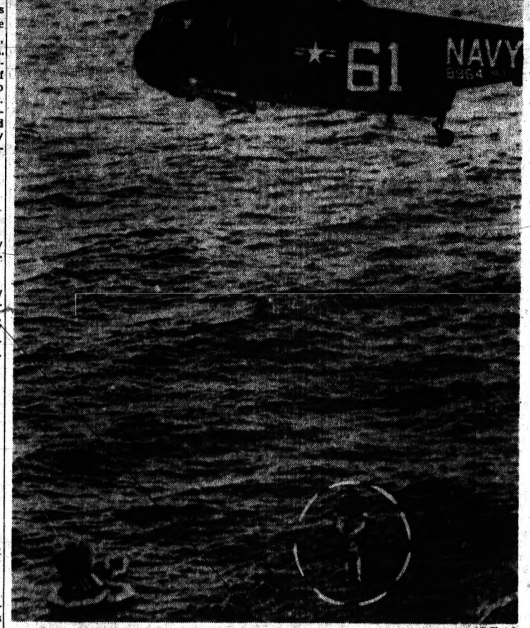

Despite official coolness, many individual Russians were enthusiastic.

★ ★ ★

"I hope he gets lots of money and a nice prize," said a 25-year-old Moscow housewife. "Artyway, now he should be able to retire."

"I wish him health and happiness," a Soviet music student said.

The Soviet press relegated news of Carpenter's three trips around the earth to brief items

PLUCKED FROM ATLANTIC — A Navy helicopter reels in astronaut M. Scott Carpenter in a sling as his Aurora 7 space capsule bobs in the ocean beneath him. The U.S. spaceman was taken to the carrier Intrepid and there to Grand Turk Island for debriefing.

Debriefing Indicates Change on Last Trip

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter was pictured as a very tired and possibly confused pilot during his third orbit of the earth by Project Mercury officials.

This was disclosed at a postflight debriefing session several hours after Carpenter was plucked from the Atlantic Ocean yesterday 250 miles from his intended landing target.

Carpenter had kept space officials and the world in suspense for 41 minutes as he and his Aurora 7 spacecraft vanished during the re-entry and landing after a three-orbit trip around the world.

When finally located, he was found sitting serenely in a life raft beside the space vehicle.

In the space communications network debriefing, it was revealed that Carpenter "certainly was a different man on this (third) pass than the preceeding ones."

That report came from the Kauai, Hawaii, tracking station in a radio hookup late last night among all 17 stations on the world-wide tracking network.

It said Carpenter's voice was weak and he sounded tired.

The session, a report of which became available to the Associated Press today, also showed:

A brief radio signal had been received from the capsule after it re-entered the atmosphere and officials knew from this that the craft had survived re-entry. Complete radio blackout had been reported yesterday and left the world hanging for 41 minutes as to whether the capsule might have burned upon re-entry.

—Medical men were concerned about extreme blood pressure and pulse readings from Carpenter during the flight.

—Excessive fuel consumption may have been caused by a faulty gyroscope reference system.

INDICATED TROUBLE

—An erroneous radio signal 226 seconds after launching, while the Atlas was still propelling Carpenter upward, indicated trouble with part of the rocket's hydraulic system and an automatic signal triggered the abort system to pull the capsule away and end the mission. But a backup trigger sensed no trouble and prevented the abort.

NASA said the overshot resulted because his capsule was 5 to 10 degrees off its intended attitude angle at the time reverse rockets were fired over California to bring the craft out of orbit.

There was some speculation at the briefing that Carpenter's tiredness may have contributed to the off-angle. The Hawaii station reported on his condition on the third orbit:

"He was quite concerned about

Tears or Fears? Not From Rene

Astronaut's Wife Gives Space Program Her Vote of Confidence

By HELEN THOMAS

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Mrs. Scott Carpenter has given the nation's space program one of its highest compliments.

She went through the harrowing hours of her astronaut husband's orbital flight yesterday, without shedding a tear or saying a prayer.

In a remarkable press conference last night Rene Carpenter explained her feelings with eloquence, poise and amazing frankness.

The added charm was the presence of her four children — Scott, 12, Jay, 10, Kristen, 6, and Candace (Candy), 3.

At the outset, the ash blonde woman tried to evade the cliches — comfortable phrases, she called them, — "like happy, proud and thrilled . . . because we feel so much more."

She looked like a little girl in her blue skirt and white middy blouse, but she fielded newsmen's questions like a professional.

She was asked if she, too, felt as did her husband that it would be "presumptuous" to pray for oneself. The Carpenters are members of the Episcopal Church.

"No," she replied softly. "I did not pray. I felt the same way."

As for worry, she said she had none, even during that hour when the space capsule had overshot its target and was out of contact with the Project Mercury control center.

"I wasn't worried at all," she said calmly as she stood before a microphone with her children seated on chairs behind her. The children came into the room looking very somber as though they had been briefed to be on their best behavior.

When pressed about the "41 crucial minutes" she said with vigor, "I think I've been thoroughly checked out in egress (exciting) procedures."

Great as yesterday was to Mrs. Carpenter, she said the "most exciting day" of her life was when her husband was chosen for Project Mercury. She described it as "sheer joy."

Yesterday, she continued, "I was dry-eyed."

She seemed to enjoy the fact that she had managed to avoid reporters and cameramen throughout the day while her husband was in orbit.

She revealed the Navy had brought her and the children to Cape Canaveral and that they had spent yesterday at a private residence on Cocoa Beach. She apologized to the press but added the privacy "was wonderful for me."

Hunt Clues to Slayer of Agriculture Agent

FRANKLIN, Tex. (AP)—A pathologist's finding of probable murder in the year-old death of Henry Marshall, who investigated affairs of Billie Sol Estes, sent officers digging for clues to the slayer today.

This development occurred as a congressional committee prepared to open a hearing in Washington Monday on the operations of Estes, Pecos, Tex., promoter of multimillion-dollar farm enterprises who has been indicted on fraud and theft charges.

Dr. J. A. Jachimczyk of Houston, who studied the exhumed body of Marshall, made his final autopsy report Thursday to Dist. Judge John Barron.

The physician expressed belief that Marshall, shot five times with a 22-caliber bolt action rifle, was murdered but said, "There is the barest possibility of suicide," Judge Barron related.

Dr. Jachimczyk also said there was evidence Marshall's blood contained 30 per cent carbon monoxide at the time he died last June 3. Judge Barron said the pathologist estimated 35 to 40 per cent carbon monoxide—the gas in exhaust fumes from an automobile—could cause death.

The autopsy likewise disclosed a severe blow on Marshall's head.

Dr. Jachimczyk said all five bullets entered from the front and came from a gun very close to the body. Dist. Atty. Bryan Russ had said earlier there was a possibility one shot hit Marshall in the back.

FOUND ON FARM

Marshall, 52, was found dead on his farm near here. As an investigator for the state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office, Marshall had checked cotton acreage allotments held by Estes. The Agriculture Department since has ruled that Estes held the allotments illegally.

The inquest verdict five days after Marshall's death was suicide.

Capt. Clint Peoples said he would call in every Texas Ranger necessary for the reopened investigation.

County grand jurors who began inquiring into Marshall's death four days ago recessed until Monday, when they hope to hear Dr. Jachimczyk and William Elliott of Temple, Tex., an Agriculture Department investigator. The grand jury will decide then whether to demand a complete file on Estes cotton allotments.

Rumors Persist About GM Car

Stockholders Meeting Today; May Be Told of New De Luxe Model

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — General Motors Corp. stockholders may get official confirmation today of persistent industry rumors that Chevrolet will build next year a deluxe model to compete with Ford's Thunderbird.

★ ★ ★

Whether this information will be disclosed — or even denied — at the annual meeting of the world's biggest industrial corporation is unconfirmed, with officials reluctant to comment.

GM sources do reveal, however, that Board Chairman Frederic Donner, is expected to tell shareholders the giant auto and appliance maker, with many related business enterprises, is en route to one of its biggest money-making years — if not the greatest.

Donner also is expected to outline to stockholders effects of the contemplated divesting of 163 million shares of GM stock now held by the Du Pont Company. Transfer of this stock to Du Pont shareholders is scheduled to begin this summer and continue for about five years.

★ ★ ★

GM has garnered a bigger share of the auto market this year, mainly at the expense of Ford and Chrysler. And Donner reportedly will predict the firm's sales will continue to grow.

★ ★ ★

Based on first-quarter earnings of more than $374 million, nearly double the similar 1961 period, GM could earn a profit of more than a billion dollars for the second time in history. It did this in 1955, then earning $1.19 billion.

City to Dedicate New Fire Hall

Public Ceremonies Set for Tomorrow; Open House to Follow

A public dedication of Pontiac's new $350,000 fire hall on Pike Street is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. tomorrow, followed by an open house, Fire Chief James White announced today.

Former City Manager Walter K. Willman will dedicate the building.

Others participating in the ceremony will be Mayor Robert Landry, introducing past and present city officials; master of ceremonies Sherwin Birnkrant, assistant city attorney and chairman of the industrial fire safety committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Robert Hathaway, second vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Chief White will explain the unique features of the new building and City Manager Robert Skierer will speak on the city's progress in recent years.

The invocation will be given by The Rev. Galen Hershey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pontiac, and the benediction by The Rev. Edwin Schroeder, chaplain at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

Guided tours through the new building will be extended to the public.

In addition to the $350,000 allocation for the building, the city spent $25,000 to furnish it and $89,000 to provide the land.

British Wondering Why

Chinese Exile Tide Stops

HONG KONG (AP)—The mass flight of refugees across the Red Chinese border into Hong Kong stopped abruptly today. It appeared that Communist Chinese authorities had taken positive action to choke off an exodus which had poured 60,000 refugees into teeming Hong Kong since May 1.

In an official statement, British authorities said the situation on the border is rapidly reverting to normal.

They said British army units have been withdrawn from patrol activity and that a detention camp in which refugees were held until they could be returned to Red China has been closed.

The reference to normal conditions apparently meant that a trickle of refugees trying to slip into Hong Kong was expected to continue.

★ ★ ★

That trickle swelled into a torrent in the past few weeks, causing harried British authorities to appeal to the Peiping government for action to halt the flights.

★ ★ ★

It was not immediately established what action the Communist authorities and guards had taken on the other side of the border.

ALL QUIET

Border sources said they had heard no shooting and that all appeared to be orderly and quiet at the main crossing points which the refugees have been using since the big rush began.

During the 24 hours before the refugee flow stopped, the number sneaking across the border dropped drastically, to fewer than 2,000. For days before, between 4,000 and 5,000 had been slipping across each day.

★ ★ ★

There was speculation that the Communists were using force in the hills behind the border, out of sight of British patrols.

Communist loudspeakers were silent today after a full day of broadcasting exhortations to the fleeing Chinese to return to their villages. This nonviolent form of persuasion in a police state had mystified Hong Kong officials.

There was also speculation that the drastic drop in the number of refugees might be a result of British diplomatic protests to Peiping. This could not be confirmed.

★ ★ ★

British officials were pleased at the drop in the refugee flow and hoped it was only the start of a trend that would accelerate. But one official pointed out that in jam-packed Hong Kong even 100 border crossers would have caused concern a month ago.

Delay Debate on Boat Rules

Senators' Argument Over State Safety Bill Postponed for Study

LANSING (AP)—Further Senate argument on a bill to set statewide safety standards for boating on inland lakes has been postponed until Thursday.

★ ★ ★

The measure, turning out to be highly controversial, has prompted acid debate in the Senate after being approved by the House with little objection.

Sen. Carlton H. Morris, R-Kalamazoo, main objector to the bill sponsored by Rep. Charles A. Boyer, R-Manistee, won more time so he could study the various safety regulations.

Morris has claimed the bill will work unreasonable hardship on owners of small boats because it requires so much safety equipment. He also said the owner of a boat could be charged with serious penalties under the present law if another person was allowed to use it.

★ ★ ★

A motion to send the bill to death in committee was defeated.

Morris said he wanted to prepare a series of resolutions "to make this a sensible measure."

Sen. Frederic Hilbert, R-Wayland, chairman of the Senate Conservation Committee, agreed to the postponement of arguments.

"We don't want to jam this down anyone's throat," he said "but also we don't want to see it all cut up by amendments."

★ ★ ★

Main features of the bill would increase the annual motorboat registration fee from $2 to $3 and earmark a large part of the increase for enforcement of boating regulations.

Storms Raking Sections of U.S.

Damage in Millions as Tornadoes Hit in East, Central Plains

By United Press International

Thunderstorms which spawned tornadoes in sections of three states yesterday continued to rake the Central Plains and Atlantic Seaboard early today.

Portions of Kansas, Oklahoma and Connecticut counted damage in the millions of dollars from yesterday's tornadoes, which took at least one life and injured scores.

One man was killed and 37 injured in a tornado yesterday at Waterbury, Conn. Twisters at Altus, Okla., injured 26 persons. Ten persons were hurt in a tornado at Hutchinson, Kan. A driver was injured when wind overturned his 4-ton truck during a Hopewell, N.J., thunderstorm.

Tornadoes also were reported at Admire, Beloit, Allen, Concordia, Emporia and Hesston, Kan., Marlow, Okla., and Wolcott, Conn.

TORNADO-LIKE STORM

A tornado-like thunderstorm slammed through eastern Pennsylvania last night, showering Shenandoah with hail the size of golf balls. Ninety-seven windows in two high schools were smashed.

The Waterbury, Conn., twister destroyed 45 houses, leaving 600 persons homeless. Power was cut off to 25,000 homes. A school gymnasium was unroofed and a factory heavily damaged. Debris from Waterbury was showered onto New Britain and Glastonbury, Conn., several miles away.

National Guardsmen were ordered into Waterbury to prevent looting and aid rescuers.

The tornadoes which hit the Altus, Okla., area destroyed one home and overturned three house trailers. Three planes were blown from the municipal airport across a highway.

The transmitter tower of a radio station was bent double, knocking the station off the air.

Nuisance Taxes Near Passage

Republican Leaders in State House Come Close to Goal

LANSING (AP) — House Republicans came within a whisker of passing most of their nuisance tax package last night as the legislature rounded out the fifth week of its overtime session.

★ ★ ★

GOP leaders, scenting victory, quickly sent out overtures for negotiations they hoped would win a few more Democrats to their side when the package comes up for a second test.

"We're close enough now that I think we just might get a tax package through the House after a little negotiating," said Rep. Allison Green, R-Kingston, House GOP floor leader.

A day-and-night session of Republican caucusing and heated floor debates hit a climax with passage of the first tax bill in the House this year. With support from two Democrats, one of the bills needed for a 4 per cent tax on telephone and telegraph service passed by a 56-54 vote, the bare minimum.

★ ★ ★ ★

A rider on each bill in the package nullifies all six unless they all are enacted.

To Give Summer Classes With High School Credit

BIRMINGHAM — A program of summer courses for high school credit will be offered by the Birmingham Public Schools beginning June 18.

The courses are for these students who want to receive advance credits and for those who need to repeat work, according to Charles Buell, who is in charge of the secondary summer program.

The summer sessions are open to residents and nonresident students in grades seven through 12.

All classes will be conducted at Seaholm High School and will be in session from 8 a.m. to noon daily through August 10.

★ ★ ★

Registrations will be taken June 1-15 in the attendance office at Seaholm from 1 to 5 p.m. daily.

Credit courses will be offered in art, mathematics, journalism, language, science, social and commercial studies and shop.

There will be several noncredit courses, including driver training.

The traffic toll for the first four months of the year shows an increase over 1961 in all phases of accidents, Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley said today.

Total accidents investigated by police are up to 271 from 229 last year.

Personal injury accidents increased from 54 during the same period last year to 68 in the first four months of 1962. Persons injured in these accidents are up to 104 from 82 last year. No fatalities were reported for either period.

Mrs. John Graham of Grosse Pointe Woods will be the speaker at the June 1 meeting of the United Church Women of Birmingham.

The 10 a.m. program will be held at Christ Church Cranbrook. There will be a nursery for preschool children.

Mrs. Graham will illustrate her talk, "Migrant Work in Michigan," with slides.

Mrs. Phillip D. BeGole

Service for Mrs. Phillip D. (Grace) BeGole, 83, of 1124 Covington Road, will be 2 p.m. Monday at Christ Church Cranbrook. Burial will be in Woodmere Cemetery, Detroit.

Mrs. BeGole died yesterday at Jennings Hospital, Detroit, after a long illness.

She was a member of the Birmingham Musicale, the Senior Society of Birmingham and the Tuesday Study Club of Wyandotte.

★ ★ ★

She had been active in the senior group of the Episcopal Church and in work at the Birmingham Community House.

Surviving are a son, Art M. of Birmingham and two grandsons.

Hail Fraternity Brother

CHICAGO (UPI) —Delta Tau Delta Fraternity brothers of Astronaut Scott Carpenter at the Illinois Institute of Technology yesterday decorated their house with signs reading: "Great Scott."

Drayton Fire Damage Totals Up to $5,800

Fire yesterday gutted the home of Charles Huggins, 6421 Prairie-lawn, Drayton Plains. Damage to the building was estimated at $3,500 with an additional $2,000 to contents.

★ ★ ★

The blaze, caused by defective wiring in the water pump system, also did $300 damage to a car parked next to the house.

Man Hurt in Car Is Reported as Satisfactory

A 43-year-old Pontiac man injured in a two-car crash on South Marshall Street last night was listed in satisfactory condition today at Pontiac General Hospital.

Cecil L. Beckwith, 99 Orchard Lake Avenue, suffered injuries to his chest and right arm when his car collided with one driven by Leonard Briscoe, 25, of 475 Fildew Street.

Fildew and his passenger, James Albritton, 29, of 500 Raebun Street, were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and released.

★ ★ ★ ★

Pontiac police reported Beckwith was attempting to make a left turn onto Osmun Street when he collided head-on with the oncoming Briscoe vehicle.

Was Astronaut Confused?

his capsule attitude and therefore, on several occasions, when capcom (capsule communicator) tried to get him on his retrosequence he kept returning to what he was doing.

"We told him to get ready for the retro-sequence and he started doing something else. There was some confusion whether he understood what the order was.

"We had the impression that he was very confused about what was going on. But it was very difficult to assess whether he was confused or preoccupied. He certainly was a different man on this pass than on the preceding ones."

The Woomera, Australia, station said "we also feel the astronaut was acting somewhat tired during the last pass."

Plucked by helicopter from a dinghy in the lonely Atlantic Thursday, Carpenter, a Navy lieutenant commander, was taken late last night to Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas for an emotional reunion with the first American to go into orbit, Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.

In relative isolation, he will tell his exciting story there to physicians and spacecraft technicians — before he can forget any part of it.

And then, probably on Sunday, he will be returned here for a news conference — a clinical discussion of the most dramatic bit of space fiction yet to come true.

SHOWS NEW DANGERS

The mission brought to light new dangers—the hazards of missing landing target areas by wide margins, for example—and pointed toward solutions of some of the problems of man in space.

It opened up, too, new vistas of voyage by satellite.

It may even have advanced the United States manned space program beyond the phase of three- or even five- or seven-orbit flights, and on to the field of 13-orbit, all-day missions.

The really alarming part of Carpenter's flight came after he fired the retro-rockets that would retard his speed sufficiently to make the capsule drop out of orbit and descend through the atmosphere.

★ ★ ★

Normally the heat of re-entry, the ionization of the air in front of the spacecraft, cuts off radio communication for a minute or two, Glenn experienced a communications blackout at this stage of his historic flight of last Feb. 20.

But Carpenter's craft, struck dumb at the 12:30 p.m. re-entry, never regained its voice. Nor did Aurora 7 become visible to the ships in the planned recovery area 800 miles southeast of here. The craft might have been burned to a cinder. It simply disappeared.

Policeman Dies, Two Wounded in Bank Gun Battle

BOSTON (AP) —A policeman was killed and a protective service guard and a would-be bank robber were wounded early today in a furious gun battle in the Kenmore Square branch of the National Shawmut Bank.

★ ★ ★

Patrolman John J. Gallagher, 33, father of three, died at Beth Israel Hospital three hours after he was felled with a bullet wound in the chest and one in the leg.

★ ★ ★

Police said some 50 pistol shots and several tear gas bombs were fired before the wounded suspect was disarmed by a detective in the bank basement.

★ ★ ★

The battle broke out, police said, when the suspect tripped a burglar alarm while entering the bank through a rear window.

Scott's Shot Hailed 'Round the World which stressed the difficulties of the flight.

Cairo Radio devoted large parts of its afternoon and evening newscasts to reports of Carpenter's epic journey. The state television gave a full description of the flight from blastoff to final rescue.

★ ★ ★

Carpenter's adventurous ride was the main story in all Indian newspapers. An official Indian spokesman offered congratulations to the United States and Carpenter on the flight.

★ ★ ★

In Rome, even the Communist-leaning Paese Sera rolled out its biggest headlines: "Carpenter in Orbit."

In Paris, all four French-language dailies with early editions hailed the latest American space triumph in page one headlines.

Pair From Area on Carrier That Picked Up Scott

Two 20-year-old sailors from the area were aboard the aircraft carrier USS Intrepid that picked up astronaut Scott Carpenter yesterday.

They are Richard Biron, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Biron, 3984 Sashabaw Road, Drayton Plains, and PO 3.C. Melvin A. Juhl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Juhl, 1405 Catalpa St., Rochester.

Biron, a 1961 Waterford Township High School graduate, was called to active duty April 14 after a year in the Navy's reserve program at Grosse Ile. Juhl, a Rochester High School student, joined the Navy three years ago.

Air Turbulence Seen in Crash

Probers Theorize Jet Ripped Apart Due to Natural Phenomenon

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Government investigators lean to the theory a Continental Airlines jet was ripped apart over northeast Missouri Tuesday night by what fliers call a clear-air turbulence. All 45 persons aboard were killed.

Continental Flight 11 out of Chicago and bound for Los Angeles was jousting with a squall line of severe thunderstorms at about the point where it was to start letting down from 39,000 feet for its landing 30 minutes later at Kansas City.

Capt. Fred R. Gray, the 50-year-old pilot, had flown through hundreds of them and evidence indicates he got through this one too. So what happened?

It is too early for investigators to say. But the experts on flying and crashes are talking among themselves about clear-air turbulence.

It sometimes comes when there's not a cloud in the sky, like a tidal wave. It shows up frequently on the back side of a squall line. Its force is greater than storm clouds.

Hear Methods for Equalizing County Valuation

Forty-four tax assessors and county supervisors attended a meeting in Pontiac yesterday to review the county equalization process and procedures for tax purposes.

The meeting was conducted by the County Board of Supervisors' equalization committee.

Committee members, assisted by County Equalization Department officers, explained the methods by which the county's valuation is equalized each year.

"The prime purpose of both state and county equalization departments, according to Committee Chairman Mayon Hoard, Milford Township supervisor, "is to achieve uniformity of treatment to each unit."

Bells Ring for Michigan Week

Milford Reaches Into the Past

The sound of bells ringing in the old Milford Presbyterian Church on Main Street this Michigan Week has put the whole town in the mood for "Heritage Day" being celebrated today.

Old Michigan hymns that some of the town's pioneers sung, and even composed, are mixed with familiar tunes that have been passed down from one generation to another.

Folks have climbed into attics, barns and sheds, dusting off treasures to display in store windows.

Spinning wheels, iron pots, copper kettles and brass spittoons from the town's first tavern adorn shop windows. Time-worn stovepipe hats in men's stores, high-buttoned shoes in shoe stores and century-old copper scales in drug stores are but a few of the many fascinating displays.

TAKES TOWN BACK

Descendents of two Milford families, Mrs. Georgia Watkins and Mrs. Earl Mastick, spear-headed the project which "takes the town way back."

Several Bibles — their pages yellowed and worn with age — lie wide open in Puckett's Shoe Store window. Antique glass pitchers are lined up like brilliant chunks of colored ice in the El-Mil Restaurant.

At the north end of town, Mel Moore's big black 1915 Buick sits majestically in Feigley's Buick salesroom, like an imposing grand duchess, openly tolerating it's smaller companions.

★ ★ ★

Milfordites plan on leaving their many nonreplaceable antiques on display throughout the weekend so that out-of-town visitors may have the opportunity of seeing Milford and Michigan forefathers' way of life.

Machine to Print in 4 Languages, Translate in 3

NEW YORK (AP) — A multilingual machine, although still in the research stage, promises to translate spoken messages aloud in three languages and print them in four.

Dr. Harry F. Olson, director of the Radio Corp. of America acoustical and electromechanical laboratory, said yesterday the device thus far can ultilize English, French, German and Spanish, but added:

"There is no limitation on the number of languages that might be used or the amount of translation."

GOP Senators 'Mad' at Kelley

Call Secret Probe on Lobbying Over Taxes for Political Use

LANSING (AP)— Republican senators asked to talk to the attorney general about charges of lobbying in their chamber over taxes are steaming mad.

Two of five called in agreed to cooperate enough to converse with the attorney general on the matter —but would not submit to an oath. Meanwhile, charges of "political motivation" were heard of the probe.

Sen. Haskell L. Nichols, R-Jackson, was the most cooperative witness.

Nichols first voted for the income tax proposed by Gov. Swainson, then said he couldn't support it.

Nichols said he was convinced sentiment was against the income tax by the response from voters in his district and declared he wanted more tax relief for industry.

Sen. Stanley G. Thayer, R- Ann Arbor, joined other Republican senators in protesting that the probe, called by Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley, should be an open one.

"As a courtesy," as Thayer put it, he talked with Kelley late yesterday with Sen. Farrell E. Roberts, R-Pontiac, at his side as a witness.

Thayer contended any investigation should be in the open and before witnesses and newsmen, as is the custom in Senate investigations.

Gov. Swainson ordered the investigation of lobbying in the Senate after his tax program was scuttled there.

TACKLE KELLEY

The Republicans marched down in a body yesterday with newsmen accompanying them.

★ ★ ★

Kelley declared this was making "a circus" out of an investigation that should be carried on in privacy to protect the innocent.

Sen. John B. Stahlin, R-Belding, walked out on Kelley.

Said Stahlin, a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor:

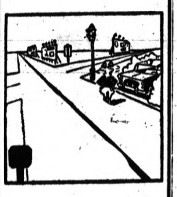

"I think the cloak and dagger manner in which the attorney general is conducting this investigation casts serious doubts on the Michigan Senate.

"This investigation is clearly politically motivated. Gov. Swainson already has served notice he plans to make the Republican majority in the legislature a major campaign issue."

Ike Placed More in Top Jobs

JFK Ignores Smart Gals for His Political Plums

By RUTH MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON: It's a bit of a joke, son, to contemplate Vice [President Lyndon B. Johnson telling 3,000 cheering Democratic women that they should be upgraded from "doorbell ringers" to "conference table statesmen."

The ol' maestro of the Texas plains has a healthy respect for feminine political brainpower. The Lone Star state shared with Wyoming the distinction of electing the first woman governor, when in 1924 it chose Miriam (Ma) Ferguson.

"Ma" may not have been any great shakes as a statesman, but she sho' knew how to count the ballots.

Texas is also the home of the second woman ever to serve in a president's cabinet. It was Republican President Dwight D. Eisenhower, however, who upgraded the Democratic politico, Oveta Culp Hobby to secretary of health, education and welfare.

I'LL SWAP YOU

During the 1960 campaign, vice presidential candidate Johnson was so impressed by the operation of Elizabeth Carpenter, a Texas newswoman who was temporarily serving as press secretary for his wife Lady Bird, that LBJ remarked: "I'll swap you any three men on my staff for Liz."

After the inauguration, there were all sorts of rumors that Liz would get an important job under President Kennedy in the White House press office. When she didn't, Lyndon himself hired her as his executive assistant.

That's one reason why it's a little laughable for the rangy Texan to be telling spellbound women about the administration's intention to "wipe out discrimination against women in politics."

What discrimination? The only one currently practicing it is the top man in the White House. If LBJ had won the presidency, as he hoped, women might have earned a few choice spots in his cabinet, the agencies of the commissions.

★ ★ ★

As it is, the fair sex has lost many of the gains it laboriously made under Presidents Truman and Eisenhower, and no new feathers have been tucked into feminine bonnets.

★ ★ ★

No woman now sits in the Cabinet. Anne Wheaton, who was No. 2 press secretary in the Eisenhower White House, was replaced by JFK with a man.

Ike named the first woman ambassador to a major nation, and the first woman to be chairman of a government commission. His successor has done neither.

The strides which women have made since the change of administration have been made downhill, backwards.

Lyndon oratorically told the gathering of top women Democrats: "Qualify yourselves for public office."

Qualify themselves how? In what way? Many of the prized jobs in the present administration went to college professors, particularly Harvard men, whose qualifications for governmental office - holding were largely academic.

NO BIG JOBS

The woods are full of eminent woman educators. Many of them used to teach the savvy wives of JFK's braintrusters at Smith, Vassar and Wellesley, but none has been made an ambassador or White House aide.

Johnson expressed disappointment that women "who are a major force on the precinct level are not willing to push beyond this level."

Ha! Men are always declaiming that if there's one thing they can't abide it's a pushy woman. How are the little women to rise above the precinct level, if the officials whom they elect by ringing door bells refuse to give them any political rewards?

JFK had worn his presidential hat for only a few months before Eleanor Roosevelt, the grand old lady of the donkey party, charged into his office waving a list of a hundred or so women eminently qualified for high public office.

★ ★ ★

The youthful prexy thanked her profusely, and filed it we know not where. All joking aside, Lyndon, it's nice to know that the administration intends to "wipe out discrimination against women in politics." Ha Ha!

Oakland Second in Total Voters With 318,605

The latest check by election clerks throughout Michigan shows Oakland County ranking second in total registered voters with 318,605, according to the state elections division.

The number of registered voters in Pontiac is 36,990, about 600 above the total in the spring of 1960.

Michigan now has 3,710,788 registered voters, an increase of more than a quarter of a million above the 3,454,804 voters registered in the spring of 1960. There were 3,489,636 voters registered in 1958 and 3,138,572 in 1956.

Wayne county leads with 1,352,952 registered voters. Oakland is followed by Macomb with 189,498, Kent with 167,299 and Genesee with 162,184.

The smallest number of registered voters is in Keweenaw county with 1,451 in the county's five townships.

Has Found Treasure Off Cape Canaveral

Project Mercury Officer 'Explores' Space, Sea

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

CAPE CANAVERAL — The two most fascinating adventures in the universe would have to be the exploration of outer space, and the investigation of the unknown deep seas.

To be involved in either study is, to a young man, the most romantic and absorbing life work conceivable.

To be involved in both — this is paradise on earth — and over, under and around earth.

Lt. Col. Harry E. Cannon, USAF, is the young man who knows this best.

By profession, he is a vital cog in the U.S. space race. His job: Senior range safety officer for Project Mercury, the man who commands all rescue operations, should destruct action become necessary in the critical first stages of an astronaut's launching. Under his command are men, ships and helicopters of the army, marines and air force, not to mention civilians at the launch site.

HE FOUND TREASURE

Col. Cannon's hobby is undersea exploring. He dives for buried treasure in sunken Spanish ships. To top off his picture of paradise, he has FOUND treasure — "several" ships-full, thus far. Loaded with silver and relics. Part of a fleet of 11 galleons sunk by a hurricane in the year 1715, not far south of Cape Canaveral.

"And we know from the writings of a priest, who described the fleet's tragedy a week after it went down, that the 'big ship' (The one carrying the most loot) is still to be found." He grinned. "It's in the area. I think we'll get to it."

With seven other men, some officers and some civilians, Col. Cannon has salvage rights from the State of Florida to 40 miles in the area of their search. Whatever they find there is 75 per cent theirs. Only 25 per cent of the treasure's evaluation must be forfeited to the state.

The Colonel — a slim, dark-haired Steve-Canyonish sort — suddenly pulled a heavy chunk of silver from his pocket. "Know what that is? One of our pieces of eight." He and the others have found "many" of them — he's not saying how many, but associates believe it may be in the dozens of thousands.

All were stashed away in wooden boxes crusted with coral. The boxes stopped the oxidation process of the coins so that, after 247 years, they are perfectly preserved. An acid bath separates the coins, and a scouring with baking soda cleans and shins them.

"They're so perfect, the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York insisted at first they were counterfeit," said the colonel. A single one of these coins sold at auction recently for $114.

ONLY MAN UP

In his job at Project Mercury, Col. Cannon is copilot of the only helicopter in the air at the time of launch. Other helicopters are grounded because it is dangerous . . . .

Should the rocket explode on the pad, debris would shower the air and almost surely crack up his plane. Yet, at T-minus-30 seconds of every launch, Cannon soars off, ready to direct the astronaut's emergency rescue.

Up there, and down under the sea, Col. Cannon faces danger. He rarely thinks about it. Only occasionally does he remember that there could be trouble in paradise, and that is when sharks surround him.

Even then he wouldn't admit to being scared exactly. He puts it this way, a bit sheepishly:

"I don't know. I just never have gotten quite used to sharks."

Russian's Theory Ridiculed

'Christ Was a Spaceman'

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet university lecturer says Jesus Christ was actually a spaceman who came from another world.

★ ★ ★

The theory, by Leningrad University lecturer V. K. Zaitsev, was published by Leningrad Pravda, but only for the purpose of holding Zaitsev up to ridicule. The paper said Zaitsev told student audiences at Leningrad University the Holy Trinity was really the crew of a spaceship which landed on earth. Christ, Zaitsev said, was the ship's doctor and gained fame by healing earthlings with the use of hypnosis.

'BROUTH CULTURE'

Zaitsev was quoted as saying these and other space travelers were "inspirers of social progress in ancient times and brought science, culture, arts, morals and governments to the earth."

Zaitsev said he believed the resurrection and ascension of Christ were real historical events but the ascension actually was in the rocket ship that brought him to earth.

★ ★ ★

Leningrad Pravda criticized Zaitsev as a man who underestimates the intelligence of human beings and denounced him for giving a "scientific foundation" to what it called "one of the most absurd episodes in biblical history."

'Suit Temperature Up'... 'Conserve Your Fuel'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A globe-girdling network of tracking stations provided near-constant radio communications with astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter Thursday and the conversation ranged from fireflies to an oscillating balloon.

The long-range chit-chat was serious when Navy Lt. Cmdr. Carpenter's suit temperature rose and his fuel supply was being used up too rapidly. It took on a light vein when the astronaut interrupted a test with "wait till I pick a washer out of the air."

Here, then, are highlights of the space pilot's talks with his associates:

Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, as the capsule went into orbit: Aurora 7, we have a go—with a better than 7-orbit capability.

Carpenter: Roger, Sweet words. Turnaround (of capsule) has stopped. I am pitching down. I have the moon in the center of the window. The booster (also in orbit) off to the right slightly. I have the booster in the center of the window now, tumbling very slowly.

Grissom: Roger, Aurora 7, we understand you. You sound real good.

SUIT HEATS UP

Canaveral Flight Command (to Air Force Maj. Donald K. Slayton at Muchea, Australia): Indian Ocean ship reports suit temperature as 82 degrees. They also reported that they had practically no voice contact but that their TM (telemetry) readouts showed that the astronaut and the systems status was good. We might get him to check his various radios with you to see if he is having any trouble with them. Secondly, we ought to talk a little bit to him about this suit temperature to see if he had tried to do anything about it.

Canaveral: Cape surgeon recommends that we recommend to the astronaut that he limit his exercise as much as possible till we get this suit temperature down.

Carpenter (to Woomera, Australia station): I have reduced temperature at this time. An increase in setting has resulted in a decrease in suit temperature. I'd like to try if at this setting a little while longer.

Woomera: Roger. Understand. It's time to have a little midnight snack, do you concur with that.

Carpenter: "I'll get to that shortly.

SEES 'SNOWFLAKES'

Carpenter (to Air Force Maj. Leroy Gordon Cooper, Jr., at Guaymas, Mexico): Body temperature is good. I am tracking now a very small particle, little isolated particle about—there is another—very small. Could be a light snowflake. (These apparently were the fireflies witnessed by Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., on his orbit flight).

Cooper: Roger. We're having a body temperature reading on you of 102.4 which we suspect is probably erroneous.

Carpenter: My suit temperature shows 60, and I feel quite comfortable. I'm sure I'd be sweating more than this if my temperature were 102.

Cooper: MCC (Mercury Control Center) recommends that you conserve your fuel a bit and maybe perhaps use a little bit more of your manual fuel.

Carpenter: Roger, can do. Mark coastal passage, coming over the Baja California Peninsula. Half covered with clouds and the other half is dry. Will you pass on this message for me, Gordon, for all the troops (friends) at Guaymas?

Cooper: Roger, will do. (Carpenter read a message of best wishes in Spanish.)

FUEL PROBLEM

Cooper: Everything looks good down here, except fuel usage—you better watch that a little bit.

At 9:23 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, near Bermuda at start of second orbit, Carpenter reported deploying the small test balloon.

Carpenter: The balloon is partially inflated. I have lost it a moment. Wait one and I will give you a better reading. Oscillations are beginning.

Slayton (from Muchea): For your information, there will be no flares at Woomera at this time. The cloud cover won't let you see them anyway.

Carpenter: Roger. I was unsuccessful last time.

Slayton: Sounds like you're doing real well up there, Scott.

★ ★ ★

Carpenter: Roger, it is a little warm.

★ ★ ★

Slayton: Roger, stand by. (to pilot) Manual for quite a spell now or we will probably have to end the flight.

FOOD CRUMBLES

Woomera: Have you taken any food thus far?

Carpenter: Yes, I have. The food has crumbled badly and I hate to open the package any more. Still getting crumbs all over the capsule. I can verify that eating bite-size food as we practice for this flight is no problem at all.

Woomera: Roger. How about water?

Carpenter: I have taken four swallows at approximately this time last orbit. Soon as I get the suit temperature hacked a little bit I'll open visor and have some more water.

Carpenter (as he reached the Hawaiian tracking station): Suit temperature readout is 76 degrees. Body temperature reading 101.

Carpenter: I have more of the white particles in view below the capsule. They appear to be traveling exactly my speed. There is one drifting off—it is going faster than I am, as a matter of fact. I haven't seen a great number of these particles, but I have seen a few of them. Their motion is random. They look exactly like snow flakes.

DECIDE ON 3RD

Cape Canaveral—We see no reason not to continue on into the third orbit. We still want to emphasize to him to limit auto fuel use.

Carpenter (describing balloon): It has a random drift and there is no oscillation that I can predict whatsoever. The line leading to the balloon sometimes is tight, sometimes it is loose enough so there are loops in it. I believe that when the sun is on it the day-glow orange is the most brilliant.

★ ★ ★

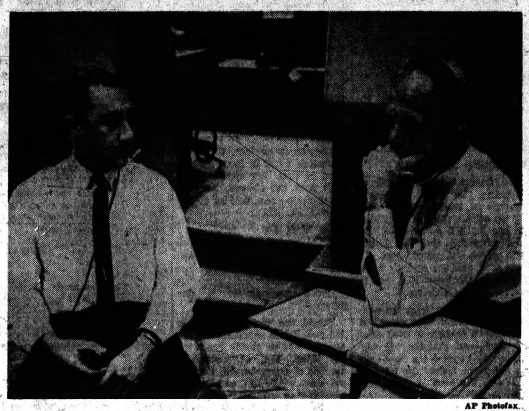

Mercury Control: He (Carpenter) has encountered some difficulties with his automatic control system and is monitoring the attitude control system fuel quantity very closely at this time. He and (Navy Cmdr.) Alan Shepard are discussing the methods that he will use to maintain the proper attitude as he re-enters the earth's atmosphere.

Carpenter's capsule had an improper attitude when the retro rockets were slowed and his resultant re-entry past was shallower and carried him 250 miles beyond the planned impact area.

BIG BOOST — Trailing a torrent of red-orange flames, Atlas missile 107D roars from its launching pad at the start of Scott Carpenter's flight into space that took him around the earth three times.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS — Astronauts Virgil Grissom (left) and John Glenn await word of the condition of Scott Carpenter shortly after launch. Grissom was capsule communicator for the flight and Glenn was technical adviser in Mercury Control.

Talks to President

Astronaut to Get Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has authorized the civilian space agency to give Scott Carpenter its highest honor — its Distinguished Service Medal.

★ ★ ★

Ike: We're Ahead in 'Our' Fields

WAYNE, Pa. (AP)—"In the fields which we have come into we are ahead," former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said when asked how he thought the flight of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter affected America's position in the space race with the Soviet Union.

Eisenhower said, however, the Soviets apparently still had the advantage over the United States in the size and power of rockets.

★ ★ ★

The former president was at Valley Forge Military Academy for the dedication of "Eisenhower Hall," a new officers' dining hall named in his honor. Because of a threatening storm, Eisenhower's helicopter carrying him here from his Gettysburg, Pa., home was forced to detour and he arrived three hours late, coming from Aberdeen, Md., by car.

Eisenhower learned the full story of the dramatic recovery of Carpenter on his arrival at the academy yesterday.

"It's good news," he said. "I'm delighted he's back safely."

★ ★ ★

It will probably be presented to him at Cape Canaveral Sunday. Kennedy does not plan to be on hand.

Kennedy issued the order yesterday. He also called Carpenter after the astronaut made his orbital flight.

"We are relieved, and very proud," the President told him.

Carpenter apologized for "not having aimed a little bit better on reentry."

Before calling Carpenter, Kennedy issued a statement saying that "the skill and initiative of those who participated in the rescue of Cmdr. Carpenter, coupled with Cmdr. Carpenter's courage, is heart warming to all of us."

CONVERSATION

The transcript of the President's telephone conversation with Carpenter:

Kennedy: Hello — hello. Hello, Scott. Come in — are we talking to Scott Carpenter?

Carpenter: Mr. President, I'm—I hear you, sir.

Kennedy: Oh, well, I wanted to tell you we are relieved, and very proud of your trip. I am glad that you got picked up in good shape, and we want to tell you that we are all for you, and send you the very best luck to you and your wife.

Carpenter: My apologies for not having aimed a little bit better on re-entry.

Kennedy: Oh, fine and good. Well, we want to congratulate you and I look forward to seeing you in Washington some time soon.

Carpenter: I look forward to that, sir.

Kennedy: Very good. Good luck now, Scott. Bye-bye.

Carpenter: Thank you very much, sir.

The NASA Distinguished Service Medal is the same award Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. received after becoming the first American to fly in orbit. Suborbital astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom also were given the medal.

Salinger said it had not been determined who would present the medal to Carpenter.

Yuri Questions Scott's Success

Red Cosmonaut Says 'It Is Still Unknown if Trip a Fact'

KYOTO, Japan (AP) — Soviet Cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin said today that Astronaut Scott Carpenter's three-orbit space flight was neither a total success nor a display of any American progress in space travel.

The Soviet major, first man to orbit the earth, noted Carpenter missed his landing target by 250 miles and commented:

"There were no such failures with either myself or Gherman Titov. We landed in our designated areas."

Carpenter's flight, he added, "cannot be termed a total success." Titov, the second Soviet spaceman, made a 17-orbit flight on Aug. 6-7, 1961.

Gagarin, after newspaper accounts of Carpenter's flight were read to him, expressed some doubt about the American's flight.

"It is still unknown whether Carpenter's flight is a fact," he said. "However, if it is true, it did not indicate any progress" over Lt. Col. John Glenn's three-orbit ride on Feb. 20.

But Gagarin added he planned to send Carpenter a message of congratulations and said he is happy to learn the American "returned successfully to earth."

Times Soft Boiled Egg With Cape Countdown

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — The countdown which preceded Malcolm Scott Carpenter's space flight timed a soft boiled egg for Gene Hower of Newport.

"When they said three minutes and 50 seconds to go," he said, "I put my egg on. When he blasted off, I took my egg off.

"It was a very good egg. Just right."

Carpenter's Parents Glad Flight Into Space Is Over

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Her only child had just been plucked from the sea 3,000 miles away when someone asked the frail, friendly woman if she thought he might be the first man on the moon.

"I'd like to have him wait a few days until I catch my breath," replied Florence Carpenter.

And so it was in the happy hours Thursday as the mother of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter and residents of his hometown rejoiced over his safe recovery after three orbits around the earth.

The tenseness that gripped Americans everywhere during the adventure and the anxious moments to locate him in the Atlantic impact area was magnified in this city where Carpenter was born, reared and educated.

Nowhere was it concentrated more than in the neat trailer home where Mrs. Carpenter, a hospital clerical worker, lives alone. With her during the day were two friends and Will Fowler, a former classmate of Carpenter at the University of Colorado.

At Palmer Lake, 75 miles south of Boulder, the astronaut's father, Dr. Marion Scott Carpenter, viewed the space flight on television with his second wife, Edyth.

The Carpenters were divorced in 1945.

'PROUD' . . . 'HORRAY'

"I'm a very proud man and I'm indeed glad it's all over," said Dr. Carpenter, a retired chemist.

When the report of Carpenter's recovery was confirmed, Mrs. Carpenter shouted "hooray!"

The parents were asked later if, in view of difficulties that plagued their son's flight, they would want him to venture into space again.

Mrs. Carpenter gave her approval—after a few days' wait to catch her breath.

In a more serious vein, she told a news conference at the University of Colorado:

"I wasn't really worried. It is a senseless waste of energy to worry about things I cannot control. I can't afford to do that. My hope is always up."

For the parents and relatives of other future astronauts, Mrs. Carpenter counseled: "You have to condition yourself for it. If they want to do it, by all means let them."

Said Carpenter's father:

"Now that it's over I can say I hope he's (Scott) chosen to be a member of the first three-man team to orbit the earth."

Nation Blase... Until...

U.S. Heaves Sigh of Relief

By RAY KOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

"Thank God he's back."

These few words summed up reaction to Malcolm Scott Carpenter's historic three-orbit journey—with a cliff-hanger ending which jolted everyone into prayerful suspense.

From blast-off through the orbits, and announcement of re-entry, general interest in the Navy lieutenant commander's flight seemed not as great as that of Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the first U.S. astronaut to circle the globe in a space ship. It was mainly regarded with a feeling of quiet satisfaction.

Then the bombshell announcement. His capsule overshot the landing target area by 250 miles; radar lost him starting with re-entry; all radio contact was gone.

For 41 agonizing minutes a nation was fearful and tearful.

"I'm afraid that boy burned up," a man in New York's Times Square muttered sadly.

Then the joyful announcement. "A plane spotted the capsule and a life raft "with a gentleman named Carpenter."

TICKER TAPE FLOWS

From coast to coast came sighs of relief and shouts of glee. Up went windows at Rockefeller Center, and out went showers of ticker tape celebrating the safe landing.

In a Dallas, Tex., restaurant a lady, after learning that Carpenter, 37, was safe, said: "If I'd only known it while I was trying to eat—I couldn't eat a bite."

Joe Foss, commissioner of the American Football League and a Marine hero of World War II, said in Atlanta that Carpenter's flight will "put us just that much ahead" (in the space race). "Too, it will show that our first shot was not just luck," he said.

A little girl in Atlanta spoke up proudly: "I knew he'd make it; he's an American."

SUDDEN INTEREST

In Cincinnati, an observer reported interest a little slower (than for Glenn), until contact was lost. Then, he said, people dashed about asking each other: "What's happened?"

In Cleveland, Ohio, during Carpenter's flight, a man casually said, "If you've seen one, you've seen them all." But he kept two righthand fingers crossed during the suspenseful period.

Among the first of the honors to be heaped on Carpenter:

New York's Mayor Robert F. Wagner offered him a ticker tape parade.

★ ★ ★

East Aurora, N.Y., has made him honorary mayor, noting that Carpenter's space capsule was called Aurora 7.

President Kennedy personally telephoned his congratulations.

★ ★ ★

In Washington, D.C., interest had not been nearly as high as during Glenn's flight. But, typical of the emotion generated by Carpenter's safe sighting, two women burst into tears at the good news.

★ ★ ★

In Omaha, Neb., Mrs. Hugh Schmidt said: "I was pretty worried and held my breath many times during the flight. I just couldn't see how his wife could stand all the suspense."

★ ★ ★

Keith Miller, an Omaha attorney who pledged Carpenter to Delta Tau Delta fraternity at the University of Colorado, recalled that in college Carpenter had "what bordered on an inferiority complex."

★ ★ ★

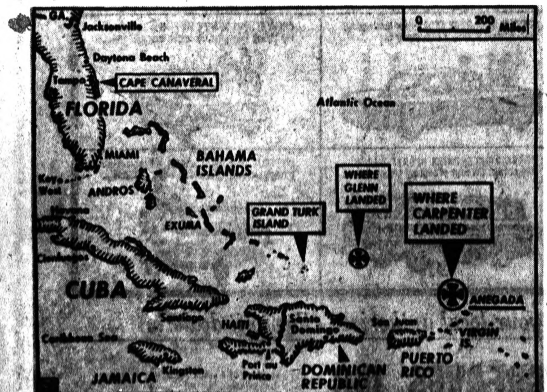

"He was an extremely nice guy but so quiet I'll bet the student who sat at the next desk in physics class wouldn't remember him," he said.

Sons Hesitate at Following Dad Toward the Stars

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astronaut Scott Carpenter's two sons are not too sure they want to follow their father's footsteps to the stars.

Asked if he wanted to be an astronaut, 12-year-old Scott Carpenter said he first thought it was a "safe" way of life, "then I changed my mind." He referred to the 41 minutes when the Mercury Project scientists had lost contact with his dad.

As for 10-year-old Jay Carpenter, he just says carefully, "well . . . in a way."

AP Photofax

WHERE IT ENDED — This map locates the area in the Atlantic Ocean about 135 miles northeast of Puerto Rico, near the island of Anegada, where Scott Carpenter landed. Also located for comparison is the spot where John Glenn landed after his three-orbital flight in February. Carpenter's craft overshot the intended landing area by 250 miles.

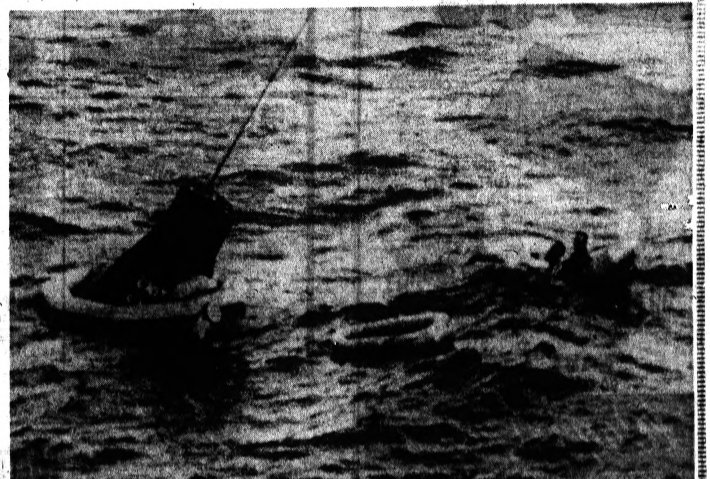

Name Foundling for Spaceman and Controller

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An anonymous telephone call led to the discovery of a 12-hour-old premature baby, weighing 3 pounds, 8 ounces, on the steps of Our Lady of Grace Church in nearby Scott Township Thursday.

★ ★ ★

The infant, a boy, was found fully clothed in a box. He was taken to St. Rosella's Maternity Hospital where he was reported in excellent condition.

Lacking any other name, doctors and nurses made one up for the baby. Combining the names of astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter and Christopher Kraft, Mercury flight operations director, they named the baby Christopher Scott.

WAITING FOR RECOVERY — Astronaut Carpenter and one of the two paramedics who dropped in on him shortly after he was sighted in the Atlantic ride a life raft near the floating capsule. The paramedic drop was part of an emergency procedure set off when Carpenter was sighted following a period of 41 minutes out of contact after re-entry began.

Firm President Dies

Teach Adults to Meet Life

"It's like you are drowning and someone throws you a rope."

That's how a former mental patient described Recovery, Inc.

"A self-help organization for nervous adults and former mental patients," Recovery, Inc., has enabled countless such persons to adjust to life in the 24 years of its existance.

It was founded in 1938 by an Illinois University psychiatrist, the late Dr. Abraham A. Low. His book, "Mental Health Through Will Training" continues to serve as a guide.

* * *

The organization has three groups in Pontiac and two in the Birmingham area, each meeting one night a week.

They practice group therapy on a first-name-only basis, through open discussion of individual problems.

Thus members of Recovery, Inc., come to realize that their nervous or mental problems are faced by others also, and that these problems can be and have been resolved.

SELF-DISCIPLINE

The method used is to build up self-confidence in handling these problems through self-discipline. It begins by teaching members to cope regularly with the trivial without becoming nervous or upset.

The method is highly endorsed by psychiatrists in general because it never attempts to diagnose but only instruct people in how to help themselves.

Families of disturbed persons also are invited to attend the meetings and learn from other family people what to do with nervous problems, how to behave toward their sick people and how to avoid being the cause of relapses.

* * *

Again the same anonymity is employed. People are introduced by first names only.

Approximately 45 persons are attending Recovery, Inc. meetings in Pontiac regularly.

Two groups meet at the Bethany Baptist Church at West Huron and Mark streets, one on Monday evenings and the other on Thursday evenings. A third group meets at the First Congregational Church at E. Huron and Mill streets on Tuesday evenings. Meetings, strictly nondenominational, begin at 7:30 p.m.

VARIOUS FAITHS

Persons attending the meetings are of various faiths and from different walks of life.

Another group meets in the Birmingham Community House Thursday evenings, and one at Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills on Tuesdays. Both meetings start at 8 p.m.

Advertising helped it happen

By stimulating mass demand, advertising helped create a mass market for the refrigerator. As demand grew, more and more companies got into the act. Result: new and better refrigerators were mass produced for more people by America's remarkable and competitive economic system. Is this worthwhile? Then, so is advertising worthwhile.

Ask Him to Make Garden Paddles

Flower and vegetable gardeners often like to mark rows for their own convenience as well as that of visitors. Stakes aren't attractive but paddles are.

Paddles, with a stake end to push into the earth are made easily and inexpensively by sawing them from a panel of Masonite Tempered Pressboard available at lumber yards. Scrap pieces may be purchased for this purpose.

Big Brother or Dad can whip out any quantity you need in the home workshop making them identical. You can add a primer and a couple of finish coats of exterior paint.

Paddles can be just less than the width of the seed package which can be slipped on as a jacket for identification. If you prefer to label your rows otherwise you can hand letter them or use a stencil.

Good Advice for Starting a Lawn

Every year thousands upon thousands of homes are built and lawns established. More often than not lawns are either seeded or sodded without proper planning. Proper planning will return great dividends in terms of personal satisfaction in the years ahead.

When starting to build a home, have the top four or five inches of topsoil bulldozed to a nearby, yet out of the way spot. The topsoil should be saved regardless of whether the lawn is to be seeded or sodded.

After the subgrade of the new lawn has been established, the topsoil should be evenly applied over the area. A complete fertilizer, high in phosphate, should be thoroughly mixed into it. A rate of about 40 pounds per 1,000 square feet is usually satisfactory for this purpose.

If the soil is of clayey nature, then it will pay to modify it by adding a mixture of sand and peat, or sand and well rotted sawdust. Mix the sand and organic materials in about equal volumes. A mixture of about three cubic yards of each, when applied to 1,000 square feet of lawn surface, will amount to about one and one-half inches of new material. This should be incorporated into the topsoil zone. Hand grading is necessary to eliminate low spots in the lawn where water can collect.

In case the topsoil was not saved on your home site, and your lawn is to be sodded, be sure to apply at least 40 pounds per 1,000 square feet of a complete fertilizer, high in phosphate, over the graded soil and work it into the surface three inches or so, before the sod is put in place. As soon as the new sod begins to make growth, apply a complete lawn plant food, high in nitrogen, at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds per 1,000 square feet, and sprinkle the entire area.

SODDING

If your home is completed during the late spring and summer months, it is best to have your lawn sodded. Grass seedings usually are not successful during that time of the year. If you are planning to seed your lawn this fall, be sure to use a good grass and seed mixture on a well prepared and fertilized seedbed.

In case your contractor does not know how to advise you on lawn establishment it would be well to consult with a good local landscape architect or garden-type supply house. Be sure you get sound advice on a new lawn.

Once your lawn is established, you can maintain it yourself merely by using good quality lawn fertilizers, in the spring and fall, and mowing no closer than one and one-half inches for Kentucky bluegrass. Merion bluegrass should be mowed at three-quarters of an inch. Use a sharp mower, and use it often. As a rule, do not let bluegrass grow taller than two and one-half inches.

Many fertilizers for lawns and different types of ornamentals are on the market, most made by reliable firms, and at a reasonable cost.

Because fertilizers vary in their weight and plant food content, be sure to read an d follow the directions on the package, or follow the advice of some recognized local authority. This may call for larger or smaller applications than the general recommendations given in this article. Never spread fertilizer unless the grass is thoroughly dry, and always sprinkle immediately after applying it.

Gardeners' Question Box

Q. What are the forms that build the nests in cherry and other trees now?

A. These are Tent Caterpillars, named after the silken tents they build in the crotches of trees at this season. The nests can be destroyed and most of the insects killed with them by simply wiping them out with a brush or a pad of cloth or burlap. Burning them out is effective but dangerous. A spray of the tree with lead arsenate, D. D. T. or any of the all-purpose fruit tree or ornamental sprays is very effective.

Q. What are the chances of a killing frost at this season?

A. The likihood of getting temperatures below freezing (32 degrees F.) have been computed by the Weather Bureau. For Pontiac they state that the average date for a killing frost in the spring is May 11 to May 20. On May 10 the chances of a killing frost is 45 per cent, but by May 18 the risk has been reduced so that only once in twenty years should we expect a killing frost.

★ ★ ★

Q. My grapevines are "bleeding" — will it kill them?

A. Grapevines pruned in the spring may bleed some, but this "bleeding" of sap has not been found harmful. Late winter or early spring are considered best time to prune grapes.

Q. We have found some borers in our Mountain Ash. What can we do to control them?

A. Spray the trunks and main branches thoroughly on May 18 and again on May 25 with Dieldrin (either 2 tsp. per gallon 18.5 per cent emulsion or 1 tbl. per gallon, 25 per cent wettable powder); D. D. T. can also be used at 3 tbl. per gallon of the 50 per cent wettable powder. Double this rate can be used if a paint brush is used for application. Soak the soil around the main trunk, also.

★ ★ ★

Q. When do we spray grape vines? With what and when and how often? What time of day? Ours have black spots on the grapes when they are ripe.

A. The disease you mention is probably black rot. Start spraying right now (should be when the buds start to swell), again when the blossoms open and every 2 weeks thereafter. Use either Ferbam or Zineb, 1½ tablespoons to a gallon of water. The time of day is not important. Later on, you will want to add some DDT to the spray to control leaf hoppers and other insects.

Send in your garden questions to the Gardener's Question Box, The Pontiac Press, PO Box 9, Pontiac.

Steels, Motors, Oils, Tobaccos Help

Stock Mart Gets a Little Boost

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels, motors, oils, and tobaccos showed a firm enough trend to give an irregular stock market a slightly higher trend in heavy trading early today.

Gains and losses of most key stocks were fractional.

Among the more widely moving issues, International Business Machines rebounded about 9 points at the start, then settled back to a rise of about 2.

Litton Industries recouped about 4 points, Xerox more than a point.

The business news background continued quite good. Building contract awards and auto industry statistics were on the upgrade.

U.S. Steel traded about unchanged but fractional gains were made by Bethlehem, Republic Steel and Jones & Laughlin.

General Motors, Ford and Chrysler also added fractions.

Texaco, Jersey Standard and Royal Dutch were firm.

Treasury Bonds Steady

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. Treasury bonds opened steady to a bit higher today. Corporates were mixed to lower at the start.

★ ★ ★

An over-the-counter dealer in governments quoted the most distant maturities unchanged. Most intermediates and short term bonds were firm and steady. A few intermediates showed gains of 2/32s.

Trading was described as quiet.

In dealings on the New York Stock Exchange, several railroad bonds lost fractions, and so did a majority of industrials in early turnover. Utilities displayed a little strength.

In all cases, changes in price on regular bonds amounted to less than a full point, in most cases ⅛ points or less.

Small advances were posted for American Tobacco, Lorillard and Liggett & Myers.

Still reacting to lower nickel prices, International Nickel fell about a point. Small losses were shown by Anaconda and Kennecott.

★ ★ ★

Montgomery Ward held steady. American Telephone nudged upward. Rails showed scant change. Electronics and aerospace issues also showed little trend.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange. Gains of about a point were made by Anken Chemical and Aerojet-General. Other gainers included Louisiana Land, Ogden, Technicolor and Gulf American Land. Among losers were Barnes Engineering, Gulton Industries, Barnes Engineering and Colonial Sand & Stone.

Exchange Head Final Witness

G. Keith Funston Tells SEC Most Salesmen of Stocks Are Honest

WASHINGTON (UPI)—G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said today that "infractions are bound to occur" in the securities industry but they are the exception, not the rule.

★ ★ ★

Funston devoted most of 41 pages of testimony prepared for a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) hearing to outlining the exchange's rules of membership and conduct.

The thrust of his testimony was that the exchange is doing a good job of policing its member firms but that there always is room for improvement.

The tall, genial Iowan who heads the world's biggest stock exchange was the final witness in three weeks of hearings into the recruitment, qualification, training and supervision of securities salesmen.

The hearings are one phase of a board investigation of the entire securities industry the SEC is making at the direction of Congress.

Funston said the exchange has tried to see that securities salesmen are competent and to teach the investing public "that stock prices move down as well as up . . . this message has been coupled with warnings against tips and get-rich-quick schemes.

"We cannot hope to protect each imprudent investor against himself," he said.

The big board "makes firm use of its authority to discipline" its members, Funston said, but steps aside if the SEC or the National Association of Securities Dealers is already on the job.

★

"In a community of 100,000 people (salesmen) from coast to coast, occasional infractions are bound to occur, but these are the infrequent exception rather than the rule," Funston said.

Race Bias Bar Pledged by City School Board

A pledge by the Pontiac Board of Education to bar all racial discrimination at school activities last night was announced to Pontiac Central High School Negro students and their parents.

The students had threatened to boycott the school after a Negro boy was asked to leave last Saturday's "J-Hop" dance when he appeared with a white girl.

An estimated 200 students were informed of the resolution at a meeting in a PCH study hall this morning.

About 20 parents and City Commissioner Milton A. Henry attended last night's board meeting.

Before there were any questions, the board swiftly approved without debate a resolution introduced by Supt. Dana P. Whitmer. The resolution read:

"All school activities are open to all students, all groups of students and all student couples, irrespective of race, color and creed."

Commissioner Henry hailed the "speedy and unanimous action.

However, he warned that "if this ever arises again we're going to take this to court. We're going to make every effort that it takes that this thing shall never happen again."

Supt. Dana P. Whitmer told the board that PCH Principal Francis W. Staley had said the couple had agreed to leave upon being told the matter was being studied by the administration.

Dr. Whitmer explained he had wanted to have more time to sound out community feeling.

"It was in the best interest of all at the time," he said, "that no mixing be encouraged at least until the board had had a chance to consider what is in the best interest to all and until a policy for guidance in the future."

European Gunmen Kill More Moslems

ALGIERS (AP) — European gunmen struck throughout Algiers at individual Moslems today killing 14 and gravely wounding five.

Among those killed were three veiled Moslem women who had come to the European city in search of food from garbage pails.

None of the attackers was arrested.

Armed Europeans raided two branch post offices in the suburbs, taking the equivalent of $3,000.

In the east Algerian seaport of Bone, two Moslems were shot dead and two were wounded. One of those killed was a Moslem mailman, hit by six bullets.

Post office employes in Bone immediately went on strike.

In the west Algerian city of Mostaganem 12 Moslems were killed in a wave of pistol and machine gun terror that started yesterday and continued today.

MSU Will Offer African Language Summer Courses

EAST LANSING (AP) — Michigan State University is offering courses in Swahili, Hausa, Yoruba and Ibo —all African languages, this summer.

University officials termed the eight-week program, presented by the MSU African Language and Area Center, the largest and most intensive African language program ever offered by an American university.

Five African language instructors — about half of the United States total—will teach in the MSU program, said Dr. William Welmers, academic director for the project.

Welmers is professor of African languages at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Orbit Shots Tolled by Blasts at School

HARBOR SPRINGS (AP) —The nation's two launchings in its man in orbit program twice now have been accompanied by real blasts at Harbor Springs School.

Principal William Baker said the new elementary school's furnace blew up yesterday. Damage was light, however, limited to noise and a spread of soot in the boiler room.

The orbit flight of astronaut John Glenn, however, was accompanied by a blast at the high school agricultural building which still is out of commission with cement blocks cracked and windows shattered. The blast was traced to a student welding on his auto.

Auction State Berries

BENTON HARBOR (AP) — The first crate of strawberries produced in Michigan this year was auctioned off for $100 at the Benton Harbor market yesterday. The grower—Mrs. Lloyd Womack of rural Niles — got the first $25 and the rest went to charity.

Coeds, Policemen Hurt in Campus Brawl by 2,500

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)—An estimated 2,600 students, throwing beer bottles and rocks, rioted on the campus at Oklahoma State University last night and early today.

Six women in invaded dormitories, two policemen and a fireman were hurt.

The riot got so bad local police had to call for help from state troopers and police departments from surrounding towns. The National Guard was alerted but was not used.

★ ★ ★

The riot lasted five-and-a-half hours. When two fire trucks rumbled up and the firemen turned fire hoses on the students, some of them cut off the water and wrecked the equipment so it could not be used.
