Four Die in Plane Crash

Ike Proposes Pan-American Study Group

Suggests the Formation of Commission to Solve Human Problems

PANAMA (P)—President Eisenhower participates in final talks with fellow American presidents today in the wake of the Pan-American Conference at which he urged hemisphere unity in advancing human welfare.

Still convalescing from his June 9 intestinal operation, he has appeared tired at times, but in the main he seemed to relish the proceedings.

Reporters overheard Eisenhower remark shortly after he arrived here Saturday that "I haven't much strength, but I keep going."

The parley, which commemorates the first Pan-American Conference called 150 years ago by Simon Bolivar, the South American liberator, ended yesterday.

It closed in an historic setting with the signing of a declaration of principles and 3½ hours of speeches.

Eisenhower took only nine minutes for his address. He made one major point — the Americas already have put together a mechanism for meeting aggression of Communist intervention in their affairs. "Let us join to find ways which will enable our peoples to combat the ravages of disease, poverty and ignorance," he declared.

ASKS COMMISSION

He proposed forming, in effect, a commission of human problems with a representative of each of the 21 American republics to offer "practical suggestions in the economic, financial, social and technical fields."

Such a commission, he said, could consider ways to hasten (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Twisted Wreckage of Plane Crash in Woods

FOUR KILLED — Four persons died when their plane crashed and burned shortly after taking off from an airstrip near their Independence Township homes Sunday morning. The wreckage is shown

Witness Backs Up Sgt. McKeon

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (P)—A sharp, confident young Marine said today S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon slapped him half-heartedly for failing to stand at attention.

The testimony came from Pfc. John N. Maloof of Forest Hills, N. Y., as the court-martial of the 31-year-old former drill instructor from Worcester, Mass., entered its second week.

Atty. Ennio Zola Berman says he is prepared to battle for the right to call an unlimited number of witnesses in defense of Marine Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon.

He said he would like to offer about 200 witnesses to testify on night marches so that "when we leave the courtroom no man will be able to say this was not a regular practice."

Last April 8 McKeon led 74 members of Platoon 71 on a night march into the marshes off the rifle range at this training center and six drowned.

REFUSED ORDERS

Just before the march began, Maloof testified, McKeon called him into his room. He failed to stand at attention and the sergeant began to chew him out.

"He came toward me," he said, "raised his hand and his open hand glanced off the left side of my face. Sgt. McKeon

Detroit Mother Slays Husband

Killing Follows Spat
by Couple Over Work to Be Done on House

DETROIT (P)—Police say a 20-year-old mother of three children has admitted slaying her sleeping husband with a shotgun following an argument over his failure to make repairs around their rented house.

Officers found Mrs. Charles Morris waiting calmly at the time. Her husband's body lay on the bed and their three small children were sleeping peacefully.

Police quoted her as saying she had twice taken the shotgun from a bedroom closet before she "got up the nerve" to shoot her husband.

"After a while I knew I had to do it. I got the gun out and loaded it again and went into the bedroom and shot him," she told police.

The charge from the 16-gauge shotgun hit Morris in the back of the head.

His wife said they argued most of the morning because Morris, a roofer, had failed to repair the front porch of their small frame home. She said Morris struck her three times at one point during the quarrel.

Mrs. Morris said that a friend of hers came to visit and she told her about the argument.

After the woman left, she said, Morris told her that he had heard the women talking about him, and the argument began anew. But they had dinner and she put the children to bed. Morris went back to sleep.

After she cleaned up the dishes, she went and got the shotgun out of a closet. The gun belonged to Morris. He had taught his wife how to use it.

Quake Kills 117; Relief Speeded

500-Mile Strip Jolted;
India's Worst Tremor
in 6 Years

BOMBAY, India (P)—Indian authorities speeded relief measures today for the quake-shattered coastal town of Anjar, where at least 117 persons perished over the weekend.

The quake hit late Saturday, jolting towns and villages over a 500-mile stretch from Bombay to the Pakistan border. It was India's worst shock in six years.

With 800 persons still missing in Anjar alone, Indian authorities feared the toll might be far greater than first reports indicated. They made arrangements to take care of thousands of sufferers.

Anjar apparently took the brunt of the shocks, but reports from Ahmedabad, 160 miles inland from the stricken area, said inhabitants of the coastal area of Kutch were in panic.

NEHRU ON SCENE

Prime Minister Nehru—returning from a tour of Europe and the Middle East—stopped off last night at Jamnagar, just across the Kutch Gulf from the stricken area. He conferred with officials on relief measures.

Hairy Sea Beast Floats In, Puzzles Alaska Scientists

YAKUTAT, Alaska (P)—A frighteningly huge carcass, estimated at more than 100 feet long and 15 feet wide, has been washed ashore 60 miles southeast of here.

Its origin and species are a mystery.

Experts say it fits no known description of prehistoric beasts, and the reddish brown hair covering its body rules out any relationship to whales.

The hair is about two inches long.

The weird creature now lies buried in the sand 125 feet from the waters of the Gulf of Alaska.

The place is Dry Harbor, 15 miles southwest of the Akwe River, and about 10 miles from glacier-sided mountains. It can be reached only in a small plane.

The discovery was made two months ago by a veteran Alaska guide, Earl Flemming, but word only recently leaked out.

The head measures 5½ feet across. The eye sockets, between 7 and 9 inches in diameter, are about 42 inches apart.

The animal's ribs, are believed to extend about 5 or 6 feet from its spine.

The teeth are about 6 inches long and about 5 inches wide at the base. The movable upper jaw, with a solid, tusklke bone, protrudes about 5½ feet below the end of the fixed lower jaw.

At Seattle, Trevor Kincaid, retired University of Washington zoologist said the description fits that of no known creature.

He said efforts should be made to preserve some of the bones, hide and hair, in an effort to identify it.

Morning Flight Ends in Tragedy for 2 Couples

Motor Fails Following
Take Off for Breakfast
With Aerial Group

By CHUCK ABRAH

Two Clarkston couples were killed early Sunday morning when their airplane crashed and burst into flames shortly after taking off from a private airstrip.

The plane went down in a wooded area off Pelton Road, only 300 yards from the homes they had left seconds earlier.

The dead are: Carl Schindler, 43, and Mrs. Marguerite Schindler, 41, both of 5081 Oak Park Dr., Clyde Norton, 31, and Mrs. Donna Norton, 28, of 5206 Oak Park Dr.

Norton was believed to have been the pilot.

The group was reportedly en route to Allegan to attend the breakfast of an aerial group when the tragedy occurred. Witnesses said it appeared the plane was airborne and it crashed after the wing struck a tree.

Francis Moody, of 5235 Sashaw Rd., told investigating Oakland County Sheriff Department deputies he saw the accident from his porch.

BANKS PLANE

He said Norton apparently was trying to bank the plane around to avoid hitting houses in the area when the wing smashed against a tall tree about 80 feet off the ground.

Moody and other area residents were able to pull Mrs. Norton from the burning wreckage. She died shortly after at Pontiac General Hospital.

The badly burned bodies of the other three were removed from the aircraft by firemen from the Waterford Township and Independence Township Fire departments, who combined to extinguish the blaze.

The plane had only traveled approximately one-quarter of a mile when the apparent engine failure occurred, according to investigators. The two couples had departed from a small field known as Barber's Airstrip. It is owned by Kenneth Barber who operates a flying school at the Pontiac Municipal Airport.

Pay, Job Report Revealed by GM

Second Best Record for a Half-Year Is Set
by Firm During '56

General Motors paid an average of 617,302 worldwide employees $1,441,000,000 during the first six months of 1956 in establishing the second-best record for a half-year in its history.

The near-record figures were revealed in a statement preliminary to the corporation's quarterly statement released today by President Harlow H. Curtis and Board Chairman Albert Bradley.

The totals were second only to the first half of 1955 when average employment was 624,954 and payrolls were $1,583,000,000. The report attributed the decline to adjustment in production schedules in 1956 second quarter.

Tracing a substantial rise in employment over the past 10 years, the report stated that the average in 1946 was 273,000 to 525,000 for all of 1955.

The average number of U.S. wage earners for 1954's first half was 392,106, compared with 408,933 for the like period of 1955, but nearly 6,000 higher than in the first half of 1954 despite a decline in defense employment.

Currently, there are about 16,000 employed in GM defense work, indicating that about 35,000 defense jobs have been absorbed in civilian production, the report showed.

Weekly earnings averaged $32.06 in the 1956 first half for a 38.30 work week.

Ships Collide in Dense Fog

Two Slightly Injured as Cargo - Passenger Vessel Hits Tanker

NEW YORK (U) — A small combination cargo-passenger ship and a tanker collided in dense fog in the Atlantic off New York at 1:10 a.m. today.

Both ships were damaged. One passenger and one seaman on the combination ship were injured slightly.

The Fairisle, inbound from Tampa, Fla., with a cargo of citrus fruit and paper, transferred a number of passengers and crewmen to a Coast Guard boat, which brought them into port.

At least seven passengers were listed among those rescued. From 22 to 32 crewmen also reportedly rode in the Coast Guard boat.

The passengers included five women and two men.

Some crewmen were believed to have been left aboard.

The Fairisle radioed to Coast Guard area headquarters: "We will remain afloat, but starboard list increasing."

Coast Guard cutters and smaller craft stood by at the scene of the collision, near Ambrose lightship and 23 miles from the Battery, southern tip of Manhattan.

The other damaged ship was the San Jose II. She radioed: "We do not require assistance. Some damage to forward portions."

After a brief attempt to pick its way through the fog back into the harbor, the San Jose II dropped anchor to await lifting of the fog.

The Fairisle was due today at Port Newark, N. J., across from Manhattan. It is listed by Lloyd's register as 6,065 gross tons and owned by the Waterman Steamship Corp. Its home port is Mobile, Ala.

The San Jose II left Port Newark last night. Lloyd's lists the ship as of Panamanian registry, and of 11,010 gross tons. Its home port is Panama.

Mad at Church, Leaves to Picket New York Office

Chester Waugh, 36-year-old "disfellowshipped" member of a Drayton Plains Jehovah's Witness congregation, left for New York today to picket the church's headquarters.

Waugh, of 55 Newberry St., claims the congregation ousted him in 1954 after he wrote a letter charging a Pontiac church elder was usurping the authority of the church's governing body.

Calling the church's judicial proceedings a "kangaroo court," Waugh has since demonstrated in communities through southern Michigan. He says he aims to help the church "make itself clean."

Ike Seeks American Hemisphere Study

"the beneficial use of nuclear forces throughout the hemisphere, both in industry and in combatting disease."

He said he had decided to name his brother Milton as U.S. representative on the proposed new commission.

Milton, who resigned recently as president of Pennsylvania State University, made an extensive trip through the Latin-American republics for President Eisenhower in 1953.

THE HIGH SPOT

The high spot of the ceremony was the signing of the Declaration of Panama by Eisenhower and 18 other chiefs of state. It reiterated the Western Hemisphere's determination to stand fast against alien totalitarian forces and to safeguard the economic and political freedom of the Americas.

It pledged cooperative effort to raise living standards throughout the continent.

For the convalescent Eisenhower the ceremony was a demonstration of endurance. While aides fretted because he missed his midday nap, the U.S. chief executive stayed on through the oratory, even though he couldn't understand it all.

LOOKED TIRED

The other chiefs of state spoke in Spanish, French or Portuguese. Midway through the speeches, Eisenhower looked a bit tired and wilted.

In recognition of his convalescent state, Eisenhower was permitted to ignore the diplomatic order and come to the ceremony last and leave first.

The event took place in St. Augustine School three miles from the U.S. embassy, where Eisenhower is staying.

The declaration was read in a room some 200 years old where the first Congress of Panama was held in 1826 under Bolivar's stewardship.

The presidents entered the Bolivar Room. Then they went outside to a platform in the school courtyard. They sat under a green and white striped canopy, stepping forward one at a time to sign the declaration which lay on a small table covered with an ornate tapestry.

During the three-mile trip to and from the ceremony Eisenhower smiled broadly as he stood in his car and waved to the cheering throngs.

After a belated nap and dinner at the embassy, he returned to duty with the other executives as cohort at a reception in the Hotel El Panama for President and Mrs. Arias.

During the reception he locked arms with Arias for a champagne toast. But he told the waiter to pour him "just a sip." He got a quarter glass with no refills. He passed the food completely at the elaborate buffet.

Awaiting 'Emergency Pleas' Operation Alert in 4th Day

EMERGENCY PRESS HEADQUARTERS, Operation Alert (U) — The U.S. "government in hiding" braced itself for a flood of appeals from the state today—for food, for money, for the thousand and one things that would be needed if atomic bombs should start falling.

Illinois Check Fraud Leaps Million Mark

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (U) — Former State Auditor Orville E. Hodge, already under federal indictment, today faced action on the state level in a million-dollar financial scandal.

State's Atty. George P. Coudreau has announced plans of asking the Sangamon County grand jury to return 46 indictments against the former high official of the Illinois GOP administration.

Coudreau said the indictments would cover the alleged cashing of $650,000 in 46 bogus state warrants (checks). The total amount of state funds involved crept over the million-dollar mark with disclosure by federal authorities that Hodge reportedly dissipated another $356,000 from a state property trust fund.

The state's attorney said he does not plan to ask Hodge to testify in person to the grand jury. Instead, Coudreau said, he will have read to the jury a summation of a statement given by Hodge during a recent nine-hour questioning session into his official activities.

Some 20 other persons also are under subpoena for the grand jury hearing.

Senate Ponders Economic Aid

WASHINGTON (U) — Senators preparing to vote on how much the United States should spend this year on foreign economic aid are pondering a report that Russia's economic offensive now is worldwide.

A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee last night issued a staff report and Chairman Mansfield (D-Mont) said it shows that "Soviet economic and cultural representatives are swarming over the globe." The report said that in the past 13 months, the Russian economic aid program has spread beyond a few countries in Asia until it now may be bigger than this country's.

The subcommittee staff mentioned unconfirmed reports that Russia has made more than one billion dollars in economic and technical aid offers to free countries.

Also looming tomorrow is a Senate fight over proposals to cut off all new military aid to Yugoslavia because Marshal Tito recently has been nudging closer to Moscow.

The Day in Birmingham

Seek Zone-Law Change; Study Parking Finances

BIRMINGHAM — A zoning revision that would allow the Birmingham Eccentric newspaper to build a new plant on East Maple and a financial report that may show funds too short to build parking lot No. 4 come before the city commission tonight.

The zoning revision, recommended by the planning commission as requested by George R. Averill, would include "newspaper and commercial printing establishments" in Business A zone districts.

"There are printing establishments within the Business A classification at the present time, says W. H. Burgum, planning board chairman. They would automatically be changed from "non-conforming usage," he says.

Parking lot financing will be discussed, with a new report by the director of finance being presented. The city manager last week suggested that Parking Lot 4 would not have sufficient funds following construction of Lots A and HH.

Among other reports being presented is one on the Twelve Town drain, tabulation of bids for purchase of road-salt for the coming winter, plans for a sidewalk edging Eton road, and special assessments for the Ferndale and Park Street Projects.

Appointment of an election board for the August primaries is being asked by City Clerk Irene Hanley tonight.

City Planners tomorrow night will consider a protest from Fairfield property owners of rezoning to Business C of the southeast Bird and Pierce Street Corner.

Also on the lengthy agenda is the zoning of the presently unclassified, recently annexed, Lambert property.

Zoning ordinance revision will be discussed verbally by the city planner, and a report is expected from the recreation director on his opinions of the present tentative plan for the 66-acre recreation and driver-training field near the high school.

Analysis of traffic recommendations of the police chief and traffic engineer is slated. They go to the board for the first time.

Plans for a parking lot behind the Reed building on North Woodward avenue will be presented by city engineers. The Kasabian-Franco request for rezoning again comes up for discussion.

Tinting of hair is a specialty in the new beauty shop next to Jacobson's Interior Decoration Shop.

Treva Schmidt, who supervises the management of all five of Jacobson's beauty salons while her husband, Louis, directs staff and trains operators to cut hair in his designs, spent several days here when the shop opened late last week.

"About 75 per cent of our customers have hints," Mrs. Schmidt says, "with Ann Arbor women having the most."

With four men and two women now on the local staff, the shop will probably have 19 operators and six others working later, she says.

Hiding? Stay Out of Bed, Women Look There First

MEXICO CITY (U) — If you want to conceal something from a woman, don't hide it in a bed. They look there first.

That's the conclusion of television fans after watching men and women search for a hidden 35,000-peso check on a new program here. The setting is usually a bedroom, with a large bed, a small cabinet, a night table with two drawers, a table with telephone, a rug, and three pictures on the wall.

Hidden somewhere in this room is a check for 35,000 pesos ($2,800). Each contestant has one minute to find it. Whoever finds it, keeps it.

Women usually make a beeline for the bed, and tear it to pieces. Men look behind the pictures, in drawers, under the rug.

So far the check, usually folded into a tiny square, has not been found.

XXXI
Gentry turned from the desk as the house detective came wheeling around the corner toward them. He said, "Evening, Ollie. Shaking hands briefly. You know Shayne and Tim Kourke, don't you?"

"Sure," Patton nodded at the reporter and detective. "Tried to call you a short time ago, Mike. You know, you asked me to keep in touch if anything more came up on the Paulsons?"

"Yeh. What?"

"Her brother was in here asking for her. Big guy with a scar on his face. Just drove in from Jacksonville, he claimed, and she was supposed to be expecting him and he wanted to wait up in her room for her. Funny thing was, he decided he didn't want to wait when I offered to go up and sit it out with him. In fact, he made a funny excuse to beat it—saying he'd be back."

Gentry said, "Interesting. Let's go up and have a look at this room where you keep your bodies hidden, Ollie."

As they went to the elevator in a solid group, Patton said forlornly, "Hope you don't think I was negligent about not reporting all this crazy stuff, Chief. As a matter of fact, we're not even sure which room the body was supposed to be in. And then when there wasn't any body at all—"

Shayne said flatly, "It was 316, Oliver. Miss Paulson explained to me about the mix-up in room numbers. After seeing her brother's body in 316, she rushed out to find another phone to report it on. Three-sixty was conveniently open and she used the phone in there. When she got back a few minutes later, the body had disappeared."

"Her brother's body?" Patton asked in puzzlement as they went up. "But I've just been telling you he was here looking for her."

"Not her brother," Gentry said. "We got a description of him from Jan."

"He had plenty of identification," Patton protested. "I made him show it when he wanted in to her room."

The elevator stopped and they got out. Shayne said, "Yeh. He showed me his identification, too."

BEGINS TO ADD
As Patton led the way down the dim-lit corridor, he said thoughtfully, "Maybe that begins to add up then. Though the guy said he just got in from Jacksonville, the elevator boy swears he's been around before. Either earlier in the evening or the last day or so."

"Yeh, it adds up," Shayne agreed. "He was here about 9:30. Just when the body was doing its disappearing act."

Patton had stopped in front of 316 and he knocked perfunctorily before fitting a key in the lock. He opened the door and reached inside to turn on the overhead light, then stepped back. "There it is," he muttered defensively. "See if you can find a body."

The three entered and stood staring at the smoothly made-up bed standing directly beneath two closed windows. The only way to reach the windows to open or close them was to get on the bed or move it from the wall. Gentry went to the rear and told Shayne, "Take the front and let's move it out. None of you touch the bed. These windows closed when you looked in before, Ollie?"

"Yes, I remember noticing because it was hot. Most guests keep them open all the time."

Gentry grunted as he and Shayne moved the bed two feet nearer the center of the room. He and Shayne circled the bed and stood studying the windows. Through the panes, they could see the riding lights of half a dozen yachts in the Municipal Basin not far distant. They were ordinary sash windows that could be raised or lowered, and they weren't latched. There were outside screens with hooks and eyes to hold them shut. Both screens were hooked now, but without closer examination it would be impossible to know whether either had been unhooked recently or not.

Looking downward as directly as they could without opening the windows, they could see tiny whitecaps rolling in from the bay, and could hear them breaking lightly on the stone wall directly below.

Gentry stepped back with a shrug, saying, "I want this room kept locked, Ollie, until my boys go over it. Did you touch anything at all when you were first up here? Smooth the bed or anything?"

AT LOW TIDE
"Nothing, Will. I just looked in the bathroom and closet and peeked under the bed to make sure there weren't any corpses."

"Water directly below these windows?" pursued Gentry. "No strip of sand to catch a body if it were shoved out?"

"Only at low tide. There's about 16 feet of sand then. It was high tide about nine tonight. Going down now."

Blue Sunoco used by more Automotive Engineers than all other premiums combined

IT'S PREMIUM IN EVERY WAY... STILL AT REGULAR GAS PRICE

We invited a large group of automotive engineers to try Blue Sunoco, boosted in octane, in their own cars and give us their reactions. The results of this survey, compiled by an independent firm of certified public accountants, make New Blue Sunoco the favorite.

43% already are users of Blue Sunoco
Of the 1,166 engineers who reported on '56 Blue Sunoco, 43% told us they were already users of our gasoline. This was a far greater number than reported using all other premium gasolines combined—perhaps the greatest testimonial any gasoline ever had!

Blue Sunoco is recommended for the newest high-compression cars when owners' manuals specify a premium gasoline.

Up again in octane
Blue Sunoco is the only gasoline that meets the new higher premium octane standards and sells at regular gas price. Follow the lead of automotive engineers. Make your own 10-gallon test today.

COMPARISON CHART
This is what automotive engineers reported after comparing New '56 Blue Sunoco with premium-priced gasolines in their own cars
93%	any Blue Sunoco matches or exceeds premium-priced brands for overall performance	91%	any Blue Sunoco matches or exceeds premium-priced brands for power and pick-up

Engineer Gives Bridge Figures

Steel, Concrete Weigh Over One Million Tons in Mackinac Span

ST. IGNACE (AP)—Steel wire, the combined length of 5,650,000 freight cars, will hold the Straits of Mackinac Bridge suspension over the choppy juncture of Lakes Michigan and Huron.

These were just some of the enormous statistics released today by David B. Steinman, consulting engineer for the bridge.

Here are some others:

The total amount of steel and concrete in the bridge structure is more than one million tons. Three quarters of the terrific weight is underwater.

The steel towers and spans are put together with 4,851,700 steel rivets, 1,016,600 high tension bolts. The cable wire is only one fifth of an inch in diameter—something like the lead in a pencil. This wire, bound into cables, would safely hold the entire weight of the bridge if it were held from someplace in the sky.

Of course, Steinman explains, there's an awful lot of the wire that goes into making the cable. He said the length would make an awfully long freight train or, put differently, be the length of 180,000 Empire State Buildings laid end to end.

The cables, which span 8,000 feet, from anchorage to anchorage are 24 1/4 inches in diameter. They are made up of 37 strands of 348 wires each.

If this doesn't overwhelm you, try these:

Some 7,000,000 man hours, excluding quarry, mine, shop, mill and transportation, will go into putting the one million ton structure together.

Some 250 engineers have put in 1,400,000 man hours of engineering, much of it highly specialized, on calculations, design, surveys, inspection and supervision.

This, Steinman says, is in addition to the engineering by the several contractors on the job which is also considerable. Total engineering on the project will exceed two million man hours.

This is what goes into building the longest suspension bridge in the world, so keep your old China Wall.

10,000 Attend Fiesta

HART (AP)—The Hart Rotary Club and Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the ninth annual Mexican Fiesta, report more than 10,000 persons attended the two-day celebration which ended Saturday. Irma Pizana, 15, a Muskegon High School sophomore, was selected queen of the fiesta, a good-will event honoring the area's migrant field workers.

Beaver Islanders Losing Their Doctor, Must Find New One or Else Move Out

BEAVER ISLAND (AP)—The luck of the Irish on this isolated Lake Michigan island has hit a bad streak. Their only doctor is packing up to return to the mainland.

Dr. Harry F. Vail, who came here from Bay City in 1952, will leave Sept. 1 to practice on the mainland.

When he goes, the 300 islanders will be without medical service for the second time in four years.

Many Michigan towns don't have doctors, but Beaver Island will be worse off than most of them. In the summer, you can reach the island by plane or ferry from Charlevoix, 33 miles away.

FLY IN IN WINTER

In winter, the only way to get to the island is by air.

Many islanders say they'll return to the mainland unless they can get someone to replace Vail.

Their attitude is summed up by Jewell F. Gillespie, who runs the Beaver Island power installation: "I've got six kids and even though this has always been our home and we want to stay, we'll have to leave if we can't get a doctor for them."

Gillespie and three other islanders have formed a committee to sell some physician on settling down on the historic island, which is just beginning to grow as a resort.

What can the island offer a doctor? Well, Vail was troubled with asthma and hay fever when he answered the islanders' call. Now he's regained his health.

The same experience could await other doctors with health problems. But besides that the island has plenty of attractions.

LAKES FULL OF FISH

It has nine inland lakes chock full of black bass and pike. You can catch game and panfish among the small islands that form the rest of the archipelago.

The island has a herd of 1,000 deer and offers, duck, goose and ling for grouse, duck, goose and snowshoe rabbits.

Its inhabitants are warm-hearted Irishmen, descendants of sturdy fishermen and heirs of a rich history.

Beaver Island's physician is paid a state salary of from $6,943 to $7,642. He also gets whatever fees he collects from islanders.

The island has a modern, well-equipped clinic, built by popular subscription and containing a one-bed maternity hospital.

Beaver Islanders say their winters are not as cold as they often are in other parts of northern Michigan. Winter temperatures rarely fall below zero and usually range in the mid 20s.

GREAT FOR HISTORIANS

Any doctor interested in history would consider the island a paradise. He could look into the early Indian settlements, the missions, the trappers and the story of James Jesse Strang, who considered himself king of a Mormon colony established in 1847.

Tourists coming to the island are greeted by a sign which reads "Oad Mile Follie"—Gaelic for "A Hundred Thousand Welcomes." The Beaver Island Civic Assn. says the doctor who comes to the island "will have a million welcomes."

Lowell Showboat to Open 25th Season on Flat River

LOWELL (AP)—When it rounds Cattail Bend on the Flat River tonight, the Lowell Showboat begins its 25th year of entertainment for community improvement.

About 700 persons from Lowell's 2,000 population receive credit for onstage and behind-scenes roles in the annual production.

The Robert E. Lee XXVI is a 90-foot replica of river showboats. Floated on 200 oil drums and powered by outboard motors, it makes a riverfront stage for a week-long vaudeville presentation.

The 1956 cast includes six professional acts, a chorus line of eight girls, a band and a choir of 101 voices.

PROS, AMATEURS TEAM UP

The result is a combination of pro-amateur talent which performs annually to more than 30,000 spectators.

Showboat profits—estimated at $75,000 after expenses—are spent for community improvements. Showboat profits have helped Lowell build a 4-H building, an American Legion building and bowling and bowling alleys, free parking lots, schools, new industries and part of a public swimming pool.

Carlton H. Runciman, showboat interlocutor for all its 102 performances, recalls the venture started in 1932 when a group of Lowell men sought to create a diversion from the depression. As Runciman sees it:

"We have held to our first ambition—to make people forget awhile and enjoy themselves."

Among his favorite stories on Lowell Showboat history is the recollection of the night it ran around before an evening performance.

HERE COMES... COMES

"It was finally freed and made the landing after the band had played more than 50 choruses of 'Here Comes the Showboat,'" Runciman says.

Showboat officials say it is impossible to estimate the thousands of man hours that go into preparing the performance. They point out the showboat cast provides spectator appeal but hundreds of others are required for the myriad details leading up to the show.

Bleacher construction, painting and cleaning, floral decoration, outdoor advertising, costume selection and amateur talent screening are some of the payless backstage tasks that precede the show.

But Lowell citizens claim they are rewarded by appreciative audiences who applaud showboat acts.

Fraternity to Lobby for Press Freedom

NEW YORK (AP)—Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, is launching a campaign for greater freedom of information.

Targets of its campaign are the legislatures of 44 states which will meet next year. The fraternity wants these legislatures to adopt clear laws guaranteeing the public access to public records and to open meetings of governmental bodies.

Leader of the campaign as chairman of the fraternity's Freedom of Information Committee is V. M. Newton Jr., managing editor of the Tampa (Fla.) Morning Tribune.

Said a Sigma Delta Chi report on the status of freedom of information in the nation:

"Public government records not only are essential to a free people but they are the life blood of freedom of information. Without them, the people lose their right to know."

The report noted that 22 states have statutes guaranteeing legally the right of public inspection of government records; 28 do not.

Boy Burns to Death in Huge Brush Fire

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—A boy who liked to build forts while playing in the Verdugo Hills died in the middle of a 50-acre brush fire.

The body of Michael David Lewis, 10, was found in a canyon scorched by the blaze.

A search for the boy began Saturday night after he failed to come home for supper. His family hadn't worried before that because they knew he was at home in the hills.

Budget Time and Money for Zestier Life

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
If you feel that life is pushing you around and that you are not getting what you want from it, you should have serious doubts that you are making the right choices.

Recently I wrote about the importance of deliberately choosing the ways in which we spend our energy. The way we spend our money is also important. If our level of spending keeps pace with our increases in income we will have no margin for the things we may want most.

Perhaps you would rather live more simply, saving in many small ways for a big vacation each year, for art lessons, for a country cottage or some hobby, to say nothing about independence in old age. Do not allow life to drag you down humdrum paths.

This surely happens to many people! They seem to be in the clutches of life, unable to choose while they spend their energy in enterprises and activities which have no real meaning for them and sometimes even bore them.

They allow their money to dribble away in the same manner. This is easy to do. In fact it is hard not to do.

SET YOUR GOALS

Decide what you really want. Once you do this you can budget your time and energy and money to reach the goals you are shooting for. An attitude like this even turns saving in many small ways into a fascinating game.

More and more has been learned about the connection between illness and strain. We really cannot afford to live in a constant state of worry and strain if we hope to live out our life span in a vital, youthful way.

It is essential that we choose a life plan in which we can have at least one vacation each year.

It is essential that we choose a plan of life in which we can have daily rest periods, relax on weekends, and have at least one vacation each year.

Good planning and recognition of the fact that rest periods and vacations actually save time, rather than subtract from it, will add to your energy, efficiency and zest for living.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Individual Happiness," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 65 to Josephine Lowman in care of The Pontiac Press.

TO AVOID FINANCIAL STRAIN, TRY BUDGETING

Today more people have more money than ever before. It will be a shame if it all disappears into thin air without even lessening individual strain.

I am certainly no financial expert. If I ever claimed to be one everyone who knows me well would be laughing. However, I have had long and turbulent struggles with budgets of different sorts.

I have come up with some conclusions, which I've listed below, out of personal experience and observation. Probably most people know these long before I did, but I had to learn them the hard way.

1. All people, except the very rich, have financial problems, and even the rich struggle in their way. Of course this latter is more glamorous and more fun than the way most of us peg along.

2. There is nothing more boring than writing down every nickel you have spent during each day. It seems a sheer waste of time and energy to spend an hour trying to remember that you spent that unaccounted-for dime on a bag of peanuts. I believe that this sort of budgeting discourages many people from keeping any budget at all.

3. Budgets are highly individual, and should be. What is money well spent for one person might be a complete loss if spent in the same way by another person.

4. Few people are thrifty enough to avoid financial strain unless they keep some kind of a budget. Human nature being what it is, the average person will find that his desires can catch up with and even pass an increase in income with no effort at all.

5. It is extremely important for all of us to avoid as many of the chronic strains of living as possible. The money problem is one of the most wearing for most folks.

Perhaps you will find a compromise budget best for you. This way you would budget all of the big items, allowing a certain amount for incidentals and personal expenses.

Then if you find that your savings are leaking into these two channels you will have to write down what you spend at the end of each day.

RELIEF TO KNOW
Anyway, it will be a relief to know where your money goes rather than to blame your deficiency on a hole in your pocket or on being shortchanged.

Control of money from middle age on is essential. You are less able to bear the wear and tear; and many of the unhappy emotional situations of later life come from having to be financially dependent on someone else. This often leads to living situations which are unhappy for all concerned.

Divorce Isn't the Answer to Minor Marital Trouble

Wife Should Make the Best of Situation if Problem Cannot Be Solved

By RUTH MILLETT
"Should I take my two children and leave my husband or stick it out?" a wife asks in a letter to this column.

What's wrong with her husband? Nothing that she mentions in her letter.

But she is fed up with living next door to her in-laws.

Are the in-laws interfering in her life? Not that she mentions. All she says of them is that they are cold and indifferent.

Granted, that isn't a pleasant situation. And granted that the couple would probably be better off to put some distance between themselves and the husband's parents.

But why should a wife jump from facing one problem to the point of contemplating divorce?

NEVER PERFECT
No marriage is perfect. Each person who marries has to put up with some problems or try to work them out.

This wife apparently has only one problem and yet she is thinking of breaking up her home because she doesn't know how to solve it.

Maybe she can't solve it the way she would like to. Maybe she can never make her husband understand how important it is to her for them to get away by themselves.

But she can certainly make the best of the situation if she can do nothing else.

She can make up her mind that she will treat her in-laws with unfailing courtesy and respect. If she can't make them like her then she can calmly accept the fact that they don't and refuse to be hurt by their lack of kindness and tolerance.

HER OWN LIFE

Then she will be free to be herself and to live her own life.

Her job in life isn't to win an in-law battle. It is to be a big enough person to make a go of her marriage and to keep her home together for her children's sake.

Coming Events

Man Thinks Youth Acts Improperly

Criticizes Custom of Boy Paying for Girl's Room

By EMILY POST

A man writes: "While glancing through a magazine recently I came across an article on the subject of a girl's weekend date away from home. It said: 'The boy provides your room and all regular expenses of your visit.'"

"When I was a boy, I was taught that for a gentleman to pay for a lady's sleeping quarters was highly compromising, and as the years have passed, and I have seen the effects of vicious gossip, I have come to realize the wisdom of the rule.

"However, in discussing this with others I find that very few of our younger generation follow this rule. In fact, one girl said that if a man invited her to a social event which required that she spend a night away from home, he'd better pay for her room—or else.

"They don't seem to realize that when a lady permits a man to pay for her room, she is sleeping 'under his roof' without a chaperon. I would appreciate your discussing this in your column."

Answer: There is nothing further to discuss because you are entirely right. Nobody of proper ethics could agree to anything else.

"Dear Mrs. Post: Quite often my husband and I and several other young couples go out dancing. After the dance, the others like to go somewhere for something to eat.

"Neither my husband nor I like to eat late at night, so the last few times we asked to be excused and went directly home after the dance. I understand we are being called spoilsports by some of them for doing this.

"They seem to feel that since we all went out together, we should spend the whole evening together. Is it necessary that we join them even though we don't have anything to eat? I would very much appreciate your opinion of this matter."

Answer: If there was just one couple you might then be considered a spoilsport, but as there are several other couples, you certainly shouldn't have to join them.

'Altruism' Inconveniences Mother

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Mrs. P. was 8 years old, she discovered the answer to this question: How can I get Mother to praise me the way she did before my sister and brother came?

The answer was deferring to the younger children. Until then, she'd always resisted their attacks on her rights or property. But as her mother strongly disapproved this resistance as "quarreling," its failure as a method for earning praise became clear.

Accordingly, she stopped protesting her right to go to bed later than her sister. She no longer fought for the Sunday comics with her little brother. On her mother's advice, she tried to always "consider others," never herself—and indeed won much praise for this effort.

But this training in self-denial, though a great convenience to Mrs. P.'s family, has been a great inconvenience to Mrs. P.

By paralyzing her ability to serve herself, it's given her a chronically defiant child.

PHONY ALTRUISM

The other day her 11-year-old Connie flatly refused to make her bed. Did her mother make it? If you think so, you don't know what training in phony altruism can do to us.

Mrs. P. didn't dare make Connie's bed. She didn't dare give first consideration to her wish to get the chore done; she had to give in to her obligation to make Connie obedient.

Just as what she wanted was once over-whelmed by duty to her sister and brother, so today it was over-whelmed by duty to her own child.

Intent on "considering" Connie before herself, Mrs. P. first tried to force obedience by threatening her. When this failed, she burst out at the girl in angry, helpless attack on her "laziness."

The result was a headache, not a made bed.

A child who knows we fear to serve our own wishes before his also serves us unwillingly. He begrudges giving to us because we begrudge giving to ourselves.

If I do not fear serving myself, I respond simply, immediately and directly to Connie's defiance.

I rise from my chair, saying pleasantly, "Very well. If you won't make your bed for yourself, I'll have to make it for you. Right now, what I want is a made bed more than I want an obedient child."

And without reproach or anger, go upstairs to render myself this service.

The less fear there is in me, the sooner will come the call, "Come down here, Mother! I'll make my bed, for goodness' sake. Mother, please wait..."

Hollywood Opens Gate for New 'Miss Universe'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (INS)—The glittering doors of Hollywood swung open today for Miss Universe, gorgeous Carol Morris of Ottumwa, Iowa, and for several other girls who placed high in the beauty contest at Long Beach.

The 20-year-old preacher's daughter who was judged fairest of 43 American beauties and 30 lovelies from around the world will go to Universal-International movie studio today to sign the film contract she won with her title.

Similar contracts also will be presented voluptuous Miss Germany, Marina Orschel, and blonde Miss Sweden, Ingrid Gonde, who were second and third in the final judging, and to other contestants to be chosen in interviews today.

Most of the rest of the girls were on their way home today from the week-long tense, but exciting spectacle which they almost unanimously agreed was the greatest thrill of their lives.

A few remained in the Los Angeles area for visits or sight-seeing, and some to visit relatives, such as Miss Costa Rica, Anabelle Granades, who was voted "Miss Friendship" of the pageant. She will see friends in Southern California and San Francisco before returning home.

CLIMAX OF PAGEANT

The pageant officially ended Saturday night, with crowning of Miss Universe at a coronation ball attended by all the contestants in the escort of uniformed naval cadets from Pensacola, Fla.

Sunday was the day of farewell as most of the girls packed their bags and said tearful good-byes to the new friends they had made in their common ordeal of looking lovely under stares of

The group will meet Sept. 4 for a picnic at Murphy Park followed by a business meeting.

Make 'em Work, Too

Crooner to Wed Miss America '55

DENVER (INS)—Don Cherry, crooner and golf enthusiast, revealed he will wed Miss America of 1955, Sharon Kay Ritchie, in Denver Sept. 22, and teach her to play golf.

Besides the usual diamond ring (3½ carats), Cherry has given the beauty queen a set of golf clubs.

In Denver for the crowning of Miss Colorado for 1956, Sharon described the last year as "wonderful" and "exciting."

Miss Ritchie, who stepped from a coed at Colorado Woman's College to become the nation's leading beauty, revealed she accepted Cherry's proposal on their date with:

"You'll have to get me an automatic pilot for the stove. I'm afraid to light a gas range."

Mrs. Samouris is a busy woman who combines homemaking with an outside job. She is a church choir director and belongs to the Greek Ladies Aid Society. Her hobbies are reading and music.

It was styled with a scoop neckline, short sleeves, a fitted bodice, and a very full skirt ending in a chapel train. French Alencon lace accented the gown's neckline and hipline. A silk pill box headpiece held the fingertip veil. Matron of honor was Mrs. Gerald Bentley, of Rochester, a sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Deanna Myhrs and Janice Gibson, both of Rochester. Best man was the groom's brother, Raymond, of Rochester, and ushers were Kenneth Paulson of Birmingham and Gerald Bentley. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the rites.

Epsom Spray Saves Celery

Aid Kalamazoo Crops With Salts Suggested by MSU Expert

GRAND RAPIDS (U) — Epsom salts, once a household standby for anything from sprains to laxative needs, has taken hold in some Kalamazoo county fields as a celery growing aid.

The salts may do away with the crop duster as a celery-producing mechanism.

A former Michigan State University crops specialist, Paul Harmer, found that most of the celery land in the county's Portage and Comstock townships lacked magnesium.

Celery grown on the townships farms reflected the lack in yellow leaves, a weak plant and susceptibility to blight—the producer's biggest woe.

Harmer decided to doctor the situation with a dusting of epsom salts—cheapest source of magnesium. Dusting failed to produce the desired results, since the soil or plants failed to absorb the salts in dust form.

He found success after dissolving the salts in water and applying the solution as a spray.

Clarence Klooster of Comstock Township became the first to adopt the epsom salts spray last year and says he never will go back to dusting. "You'd never know this was the same celery field," Klooster says. "There is no indication of a magnesium deficiency. The leaves of the plant absorb the epsom salts. Last year we were able to ship celery three weeks longer than if we dusted under the same conditions. "Spraying... with seven pounds of epsom salts per acre... held off the blight that much longer," he adds.

all parts of the area may get together and play good music. The group will be known as the Huron Valley Community Band, according to manager, Ronald Fremlin. Jim O'Grady is temporary secretary.

Purpose of the band is to provide service to the community. It is also an opportunity for adult participation in good music; to provide musical companionship for those with a common interest and to increase individual and community musical understanding. The purposes, rules and officers were decided upon at a recent meeting.

Three rules governing the eligibility for participation in the new band are:

1. Knowing how to play an instrument. 2. Have had some experience in an ensemble. 3. Be a high school graduate or 18 years of age.

According to Hadrill, there have been several attempts to organize bands of this type, over a period of years, but through mis-organization and other factors, the idea never materialized.

Red Chiefs Seen as 'Godless Men'

Khrushchev, Voroshilov Have No Character, Says J. Edgar Hoover

WASHINGTON (U)—Describing Russia's bosses as "godless men," FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover says Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev has directed blood purges and Soviet President Klementi Voroshilov once bragged about executing 11,000 Czarist officers.

Voicing his distrust of Russia's chiefs, Hoover said "I would certainly want to see acts of indication of peaceful coexistence rather than mere words."

Hoover discussed the backgrounds of Khrushchev and Voroshilov in a filmed television interview yesterday, saying that "men of that kind have no character."

He said Khrushchev was in charge of purges in Moscow and the Ukraine, and that in the Ukraine "he insisted, under Stalin, some of the most extreme anti-Semitic measures."

Voroshilov, he said, once "openly boasted" to William C. Bullitt that he ordered the officers put to death at Kiev after they had surrendered on the understanding that they and their families would be allowed to go home safely. Bullitt was U.S. ambassador to Moscow in 1933-1936.

Hoover said Voroshilov also told Bullitt he had executed all the sons of the officers and had put their wives and daughters in to brothels "for the use of the Red army."

One of Hoover's aides said this happened during the 1917 Russian Revolution. Voroshilov then was in command of Red armies at Kiev in the Ukraine.

Hollywood Headlines

Susan Hayward May Play in Evangelist's Life Story

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD (INS) — Just about the most exciting idea in a long time is the possibility of red-headed Susan Hayward as Almee Temple McPherson in "Woman on the Rock," the life story of the fabulous and beautiful Los Angeles evangelist of the 20's.

Credit Samuel Goldwyn Jr. with this fascinating and daring plan. For Sammy has just bought the rights to the McPherson life story from the estate of Herman Markiewicz.

The property has just reverted to the estate from 20th Century Fox who originally owned it and turned it back fearing it was too controversial.

Like the senior Goldwyn, Sam Jr. apparently isn't afraid of man, beast or evangelists, where movie making is concerned.

Fernando Lamas gets the break he's been waiting for,—the singing lead opposite Ethel Merman in Ethel's return to Broadway musicals December 6 in "Happy Hunting."

In anticipation of the usual long run of Merman's shows, Fernando and wife Arlene Dahl have closed their apartment here and taken a year's lease on one in New York. She'll commute to Hollywood for pictures.

Lamas plays a Spanish count in the modern musical written by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse and produced by Joe Meehan. The music is by Harold Carr and Matt Dubey.

This may go a long way toward fulfilling Fernando's ultimate aim, the Exo Pinna role in "South Pacific" on the screen.

Following an amicable agreement to disagree about starting dates and casting between Otto Preminger and MGM, Otto takes his two prize properties "Bonjour Tristesse" and "The Wheel" (the story of Mahatma Gandhi) to Columbia.

The first to go into production under the Columbia banner is "Bonjour Tristesse," the gay-and-naughty novel by Françoise Sagan which has long headed the best seller list in Paris and was also a hit here.

Now I don't want to hear anything about Kim Novak starring in "Bonjour." Kim's great, but not for this.

Preminger's deal with Harry Cohn's emporium is a non-exclusive multiple picture contract.

He's fooling me, plus some other bystanders, if Fred Astaire isn't romantically interested in pretty brunette Susie Parker with whom he's been at the Mocambo and other night spots lately. Just for Fred to show up in a nightclub is something unusual.

When "funny face" first started at Paramount, some of his co-workers noticed that Astaire seemed uncommonly interested in the attractive Susie, one of the dancers on the set. Everyone was pleased, Fred's been so lonely since the death of his wife and hasn't shown the slightest interest in any girl,—until Susan.

$100--It's Yours for the Solution to Puzzle No. 9

Another week — another $100: that's what the Press will pay to the reader who comes up with the correct solution to Pot-O-Gold Puzzle No. 9, the newest challenge in our fascinating summer word game. Other than the clues below, the best advice we can give is to read the rules carefully before sending in your entry. Have fun, and good luck!

The puzzle consists of (1) a number of circles which contain a few scrambled letters, and (2) a corresponding list of clues to these words printed below. The object is to arrange each group of circled letters into a word that best fits its clue. The word which you select for Circle No. 1, then would be the one which you would print in the space to the right of (1) below.

You'll notice that some circles contain $ signs in pots of gold. You may use such a symbol as any letter you wish. However, it and all letters in that circle must be used. The $ sign, of course, can represent ANY letter in the word.

Do the same in all the other circles. Study the clues carefully and arrange all the letters into words that you believe best conform to these clues. Use your $ signs to help you spell out the right words.
