Hawaii Joins Union Today as 50th State

Ike Signs Proclamation at 3 P.M. Ceremony, Designates New Flag

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hawaii, a group of volcanic and coral islands, 2,400 miles west of San Francisco, officially joins the union today as the nation's 50th state.

President Eisenhower arranged a 3 p.m. (Pontiac time) ceremony at the White House to proclaim statehood for the territory after a 56-year effort by Hawaiian citizens, now numbering 585,000.

Besides signing the statehood proclamation today, the President issues an order designating a new 50-star flag to become officially effective next July 4.

The new banner will take the place of the 48-star flag which became official only last July 4. The 48-star emblem, to provide for Alaska, has a blue field of seven staggered rows of seven stars each. It supplanted the 47-year old, 48-star flag which had six even rows of eight stars each.

Soon after the Hawaiian proclamation, the government will put on sale a special 7-cent air mail stamp commemorating the event.

The signing also will be the signal for Gov. William F. Quinn, a Republican elected as the state's first governor last July 25, to take the oath in Honolulu, capital of the new state.

Quinn will then notify Washington of his certification of the election last month of Hawaii's first congressional delegation in time for the two senators and one representative to take their oaths here Monday.

At Gettysburg, Pa., President Eisenhower got in some early morning golf today in advance of the trip to Washington to proclaim Hawaii the 50th state and unveil the new flag. The President, accompanied by George E. Allen, a frequent golf companion, reached the Gettysburg Country Club shortly after 7:30 a.m.

Cancels Red Hearings

Its Flying Days Are Over Now

PILOT WALKED AWAY — This crop-dusting plane lies completely demolished on a highway near Stockton, Calif., but its pilot, Allan Blewett, suffered nary a scratch. The plane crashed through two trees and sheared off a power pole as it plunged to earth. Blewett credits a crash helmet, which he was wearing for the first time, for his escape.

Set to Protest Clinic Appropriation Cut

By GEORGE T. TRUMBULL JR.

After two relatively quiet hearings, the Ways and Means Committee of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors Tuesday can expect some fireworks for cutting the Child Guidance Clinic entirely from the county's 1960 budget.

A force of backers of the clinic, which treats emotionally disturbed children, is expected to appear before the money-governing seven-member committee to protest having its $35,000 county appropriation dropped.

Tuesday's afternoon session will be the third for the committee as it seeks to cut more than a million dollars from its preliminary budget of $13,997,018.

The cut is necessary, officials say, because the county didn't get its $6.47 in tax allocation on which the budget was prepared, and since additional sources of tax relief from the state don't appear forthcoming.

Noel A. Buckner, chairman of the Board for the Clinic, said the county's action will probably mean closing two of the clinic's branches next year and the third in 1961.

"You just can't throw 15 years of work down the drain because the Board of Supervisors has an Oedipus complex," Buckner said.

Nothing New

Bickering over what the clinic established in 1944 — should receive from the county is nothing new. A threat of closed doors hung over the clinic last year when supervisors allocated $32,500 instead of the $72,000 the clinic had asked. For next year it requested $65,000.

Robert Y. Moore, chairman of the Board of Auditors, said the clinic was cut out entirely because "they have been carrying over a balance of more than we've been giving them each year."

Whether the clinic will be on the outside looking in will rest finally with the full Board of Supervisors when it meets to approve the 1960 budget next month.

Man Nearly Hits Two in Fatal 2-Story Fall

A laid-off worker fell to his death yesterday from his second-story room at 12½ S. Saginaw St.

He narrowly missed hitting two men who were standing on the sidewalk.

The dead man was identified by Pontiac Police as Fernando Ochoa, 65.

He was pronounced dead at Pontiac General Hospital by Oakland County Deputy Coroner Dr. Leon F. Cobb.

Ochoa suffered a fractured skull and a broken neck. Dr. Cobb ruled the death a suicide.

When the victim fell, he brushed Russell Schlusser, 47, 83½ S. Saginaw St., and Odell Therp, 38, of 478 Oakland Ave., who were talking on the sidewalk.

Stormy Waters Capsize Ship; Attempt Rescue

May Be Worst Disaster in Peacetime on Seas Near Island Nation

From Our News Wires

MANILA — A Philippine interisland motorship sank in stormy waters off the northern coast of Palawan Island. First reports today indicated more than 100 might have perished.

The Philippine navy and air force launched rescue operations in what could be one of the country's worst peacetime maritime disasters.

Radio messages from the area in the west-central Philippines said the Manila-bound ship Pilar II capsized and sank early Thursday.

First word came from a fishing vessel today, which radioed it was picking up survivors.

The Pilar II was described as a 240-ton ship with space for 83 passengers and 29 crew.

The Philippine navy rushed the patrol vessel Bohol to the area to help the fishing boat Antonio the 12th seek more survivors.

Another SOS message received in Manila said the fishing boat Fengham Benz was in trouble off the eastern Luzon coast.

The message said the ship was leaking and that water was coming in "very strong." It said the strong wind and the strong speed of drift also threatened to sink the vessel.

A motor boat capsized Thursday in the southern Luzon area in strong winds believed kicked up by typhoon Iris but the 14 persons aboard were rescued.

The skipper of Antonio the 12th said the fishing ship had picked up seven survivors who reported there were more than 100 persons aboard the Pilar II when it sailed for Manila from northern Palawan Thursday night.

Striking Prisoners Placed in Solitary

PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP)—Forty-two rebellious prisoners were in solitary confinement at the state penitentiary here today after more than 150 staged a sitdown strike in protest over the slaying of one convict.

The demonstration came after the shooting of prisoner William Jenkins Jr. of Oxon Hill, Md.

A trusty serving as guard, R. B. Hall of Prentiss, said he shot Jenkins Wednesday when Jenkins tried to escape.

Charge 8-Year-Old Girl With Grand Larceny

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—An eight-year-old girl was charged with burglary and grand larceny yesterday.

Juvenile officer D. R. McClesky said her two, four and six-year-old brothers helped her break into a sandwich shop and steal $10 in money, cookies, wafers and chewing tobacco.

Public to See the New '60 Pontiacs October 1

September 25 was revealed as the announcement date for the 1960 Pontiac yesterday at a press preview of the new model. Cars will be in showrooms on Oct. 1.

In speaking to automotive writers from all over the nation yesterday, Pontiac General Manager Semon E. Knudsen said he hoped to sell 425,000 units in 1960, compared to 405,000 in 1959.

Questioned about the anticipated impact of small car sales, Knudsen said he wasn't worried about them.

Although the car is approximately the same length, width and height, it has been redesigned completely, and is quite different from the very popular 1959 model.

It continues to feature wide-track wheels, with the wheels five inches further apart than most other auto makes.

'Voluntary as Traffic Ticket'

Group Probes UAW 'Gifts'

From Our News Wires

WASHINGTON — The Senate Rackets Committee questioned a former United Auto Workers (UAW) official today about his contributions to the union's political fund, described as "voluntary as a traffic ticket."

Called back to the witness stand was Jess F. Mottisinger of Detroit, former UAW International representative and now a member of Detroit Local 288.

This is the second day of public hearings in the GOP-directed investigation of the UAW. The inquiry was thrown open to the press and public on the demand of Democrats and union president Walter P. Reuther after a week of closed-door sessions.

Mottisinger told the group yesterday that he had to contribute weekly to the old UAW-CIO Political Action Committee (PAC) in order to keep his job. The PAC then gave the money to various candidates for political office.

Asked if his contributions were voluntary—as required by law—Mottisinger said that they were "about as voluntary as a traffic ticket."

He said "I know what would happen" if he didn't contribute.

Mottisinger said he received a letter of thanks from the then Sen. Guy Gillette of Iowa, a Democrat, for a $10 contribution. Mottisinger said that was his first inkling of how his contributions were being used.

Gillette was defeated for reelection in 1954 by Sen. Thomas E. Martin, a Republican.

Mottisinger told the committee UAW Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey of Detroit sent him a card to sign about the political fund. This card, he said, called the deduction a voluntary contribution to the old CIO Political Action Committee in 1953.

Mottisinger testified he resented the way he was treated as an international UAW representative on the Detroit staff of UAW Vice President Richard T. Gosser.

Mottisinger now is a non-officer member of the United Auto Workers, Local 228 at the Ford plant in Willow Run.

He said he also was required to pay $10 in cash every two weeks to a "flower fund" maintained by the union. There has been testimony that the fund was used to finance intra-union election campaigns.

Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb) figured that since Gosser had about 130 international representatives on his staff, the flower fund contribution totaled $33,800 annually.

Mottisinger said the union assigned him and other international representatives to do political work in New York City and elsewhere in 1954, although he said their salaries were paid out of the dues all members are required to pay.

Sen. Carl E. Mundt (R-SD), a committee member, called this "taxation without representation" against dues paying members.

Mottisinger said Gosser assigned him to New York City in the late summer of 1954. He said Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., a Democrat, was opposing Republican Jacob K. Javits, now a United States senator, in a campaign for election as prosecutor at the time.

Mottisinger said many international representatives assigned to the staffs of UAW vice presidents work exclusively on political matters rather than on any negotiations with employers.

Even the kids have slowed down to a walk. And grownups, except for frequent trips to the water cooler, are trying their best to remain motionless.

Ice cream and soda pop vendors are the only people who seem to be busy as Pontiac continues to swelter in 90-degree plus temperatures.

Yesterday's high of 93 tied the year's record highs on June 3 and 28.

The Weather Bureau predicts another high of 93 today but isn't giving odds that the record won't be topped.

It's a safe bet, though, that Oakland County residents will seek relief in exodus to the many area lakes this weekend with a "hot and humid" forecast through Monday.

The mercury will sag only to a low of 74 degrees, says the Weather Bureau.

The Weather Bureau's "Discomfort Index," a device that computes stickiness by measuring temperature and humidity, yesterday registered 82, highest since the index was created last spring. "We could beat that today," a weatherman said.

The highest temperature on this date since 1872 was 100 degrees in 1955. The lowest was 46 degrees in 1876. But who's looking for records, anyway.

WHEW! IT'S HOT — Mailman Elmer Jewell, 4785 Kempf St., Drayton Plains, pauses this morning to mop his brow amidst the area's second straight day of 90-degree plus temperatures.

And as he does so, his thoughts go back to the frigid days of last winter and the icy sidewalks.

Knifer to Die in Gas Chamber

Stephen Nash, Killer of 11, Takes Last Walk at San Quentin Today

By HARRY JUPITER
SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—After running most of his life, Stephen Nash was scheduled to walk to his death today in the San Quentin prison gas chamber. The execution was set for noon (Pontiac Time).
The gaunt, hypnotic-eyed knifer spent the last two of his 36 years of life in isolation on death row— isolated because of his fellow murderers sickened of his boast that he killed at least 11 men and boys. He never had a visitor, and there was no one to claim his body.

Arrested on Los Angeles skid road in 1956 when police found a bloody knife in his pocket, Nash admitted killing 10-year-old Larry Hice under a Santa Monica pier and John Berg, 26, in Berg's Long Beach apartment.

Convicted of those two murders, he confessed many others. Three, in San Francisco, Sacramento and Richmond, Calif., were verified by police. They believed the others, too, but found no proof. Nash relished describing the way his victims died, just as he relished his last dinner of steak and pie.

When Superior Judge H. Burton Noble of Los Angeles sentenced Nash to die, he called the lanky, toothless stabber "the most evil person who ever appeared in my court." Nash merely smiled, in the same way he did when he refused spiritual comfort on his last day of life.

With the higher occupancy, the hospital has made more money, Euler said. Gross revenues this year total $2,588,947, while last year's were $2,363,946.

This year the hospital has been able to set up $210,156 in reserves to cover its accounts receivable, Euler noted, and another $348,000 for anticipated losses on state and county patients, bad debts and patient costs not covered by Blue Cross.

Most of Nation Due for Sticky Humid Weekend

By The Associated Press

It's going to be hot and humid again today in most areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast.

No early general break in the long spell of muggy weather appeared. Temperatures in the 80-90 degree range were indicated again in most of the swelter belt. A sticky weekend appeared in store for most areas.

Temperatures during the night in the warm-humid air were mostly in the 70s except for parts of the Dakotas. Readings were in the 50s and 60s from the Pacific Coast to the Rockies.

The mercury climbed to 101 degrees at Pickstown, S.D., Thursday. The 90° mark at Buffalo, N.Y., was a record for the date while Pikeville, in eastern Kentucky, basked in a reading of 98. Precipitation during the night was widely scattered and generally light.

The more general precipitation belt was in the far northwest, with showers from Montana into Washington and Oregon. Other wet spots were mostly in the southern tier of states from Arizona through Georgia and in the northern Great Lakes region.

HIGHLAND ESTATES FROM UP HIGH — The new Highland Estates Subdivision is a picture of attractive orderliness as seen from the air. Its boundaries are M-59 on the north, Airport road on the west, and Elizabeth Lake road on the south. About 200 homes have been built or are in the process of construction. The subdivision has room for still another 100 houses. Names of important Scottish places and people have been used for subdivision streets. The homes range in size from five to eight rooms. The subdivision has blacktop streets, sidewalks, curbs, gutters and storm sewers.

Appoint 24 to Staff of Pontiac Hospital

Twenty-four appointments to the house staff of Pontiac General Hospital for the training period 1959-60 today were announced by Dr. John Marra, medical director. Chief resident is Dr. Robert C. Buslepp, a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Medicine. Buslepp will complete his fourth year of surgery residency in August, 1960.

The appointments include 12 other resident and assistant resident positions and 11 interns.

Resident physicians are: Dr. George Berberian, a third year resident in surgery. Berberian is a graduate of St. Joseph Medical School, Lebanon. He is an honorary member of the New York Academy of Sciences and a Collier Award winner for research work.

Dr. Hyoun C. Chai is a third year resident in surgery. From Seoul, Korea, Chai completed his medical education at Severance Union Medical College.

Dr. Earl Gregoire, a third-year resident in obstetrics-gynecology, is a graduate of the University of Oregon Medical School.

Dr. Robert Leichtman is beginning his residency in internal medicine. He is alumnus of the University of Iowa Medical School.

Dr. Wendell L. Leach is entering his second year of surgery residency. He completed his medical education at Wayne State University Medical School.

Dr. Raymond L. Mavor is a second year resident in obstetrics-gynecology and a graduate of the College of Medical Evangelists, Medical School, Los Angeles.

Dr. Taylor McKenzie is beginning his assistant residency in surgery. He is a graduate of Baylor Medical College School of Medicine.

Dr. Donald C. Niederluecke will complete his residency in obstetrics-gynecology in October. He will enter private practice in Pontiac.

Dr. Nicholas C. Rentzipis is entering his second year in surgery residency. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Medicine.

Dr. Minoru Sato begins his assistant residency in pathology. He completed his education at Okayama Medical School in Japan.

Dr. Rabinra K. Sharan has completed two years of internal medicine residency and is now entering his second year of residency in pathology. He is a graduate of Patna University Medical College, India.

Dr. Richard F. Wilker is beginning his assistant residency in obstetrics-gynecology. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa Medical School.

The new interns are: Dr. Franz Bauer of Geneva, Switzerland; Dr. Avelina P. Estanislao of the Philippines; Islands; Dr. Harold E. Hall of Washington.

Girl Drowns in Pool

No One Would Help Her

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — A fire chief says several persons stood around a motel swimming pool and watched, without attempting to save, a drowning 14-year-old girl. "Why some one didn't dive in the relatively shallow water and get her out before it was too late, I'll never know," Chief William Stone said yesterday.

Called by the motel manager, the chief pulled out Michele Cline of San Anselmo, Calif., but she failed to respond to artificial respiration.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life," the chief continued. "My God, you'd think that at least one person would have had brains enough to get the girl out at once."

A young boy who could not swim saw the girl alone in the pool and ran to the motel office.

The girl had been staying at the motel in this resort town with her aunt, Mrs. Alice Smith of San Jose, Calif.

Pontiac Schools Have Funds

Won't Be Affected by Deadlock in Lansing in Fall Classes

The Pontiac school system will not be immediately affected by the legislative impasse in Lansing on 1959-60 school aid credited with putting many school districts on an increasingly critical financial basis.

Harold R. Brown, fiscal officer in the State Department of Public Instruction, said he is "hearing all the time" from administrators who talk about a delayed start of fall classes.

Louis Schimmel, financial advisor and member of the Pontiac Board of Education, today said the Pontiac school system is in no danger of such a delay.

Schimmel attributed Pontiac's safe financial position to sound planning by the city and the Board. "The school districts in trouble are the ones which don't collect their local taxes until December," he explains Schimmel. "They have to depend a great deal on state aid to open class for the fall term."

"In Pontiac we collect our taxes beginning July 1 for the 1959-60 year. In that way we face no dilemmas when the fall term rolls around."

The increasingly acute situation faced by the Legislature and other school districts in the state stems from two principal facts, according to Brown.

1. The State already has fallen 40 million dollars behind in school aid distributions for fiscal 1959-60 a source of up to 80 per cent of operating revenues in some districts.

2. Local borrowing power has been sharply curtailed by failure of the Legislature so far to pass a school aid bill, the chief borrowing instrument.

Last year in July and August, borrowings were heavy to prepare schools financially for the opening of the fall term. This year they have lacked credit.

At the conclusion of the past hearings, Smith said it did appear that more money was being added than taken away.

Besides the clinic, which has branches in Pontiac, Birmingham and Royal Oak, the auditors suggest making a big dent in the $2,000,000-plus 1960 appropriation for the county's Social Welfare Department.

Moore, in suggesting a trimming here of $533,700, distributed sheets to Smith's committee showing a welcomed and gradual decrease in welfare expenditures for the first seven months of this year. The proposed cut is being made. Smith said, in hopes the load will continue to lessen next year.

Also on tap for Tuesday's hearing is the appearance of welfare officials. Whether they plan to protest their cut could not be determined as the welfare office said commissioners were busy at a meeting today.

The pair set out from Pontiac towing Schultz's disabled car. They had covered almost 30 miles when the "rope" snapped. Henderson's car skidded through a fence on U.S. 10 four miles south of Grand Blanc. Schultz's car overturned.

The driver of the lead car, Howard Henderson, 19, of 457 Montana Ave., suffered severe face and back cuts. He and his companion, Travis Schultz, 24, same address, were held for reckless driving.

Woman Bank Teller Faints, Thief Takes Off

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bank teller Mrs. Mary Downes fainted yesterday and thereafter thwarted a holdup.

Mrs. Downes blacked out when a man handed her a note, saying he had a gun and demanding $3,000.

As she fell, she set off an alarm gun that sent the bandit on the run. He escaped, emptyhanded.

Asks Bids at Porcupine

LANSING — The State Conservation Department is asking for sealed bids on lease of the ski shelter concession at the Porcupine Mountains State Park. More than 28,000 skiers visited the park last season and gross concession sales were near $32,000.

2 Victims Are Dead

Many State Citizens Involved in Stabbings

From Our News Wires

Several Michigan residents — some victims, others the doers — have become entangled in blood-spattered deadly violence during the past 24 hours.

Laverne Bryant, 44, was stabbed to death last night by his 18-year-old stepson during an argument in a tent at Six Mile Lake, near Felch, Bryant's home.

State Police said the stepson, Stanley Brodie, has admitted stabbing Bryant 12 times with a 3½ inch hunting knife.

The youth said he turned on his stepfather because Bryant was beating Brodie's mother, Doris, 36.

At Oklahoma City a 17-year-old waitress from Michigan was stabbed to death in the hotel coffee shop where she worked last night, and five hours later her husband surrendered to a detective.

STABBED TO DEATH
Charles Slade, 21, of Flint, surrendered to detective Hilton Geer. His bride, Shirley Jean Slade, was stabbed to death and another employee was critically injured when he tried to stop the girl's assailant. Frightened patrons watched the attack.

Geer said Slade telephoned him and offered to surrender if Geer would come alone.

The detective drove alone to a service station in north - Oklahoma City. He opened the car door and Slade got into the car.

At New Salem State Park, Ill., a mental test was being arranged today for the 13-year-old son of a Michigan minister who stabbed a bride honeymooning at this Abraham Lincoln shrine.

Police said Glen Sampson, son of the Rev. Orval Sampson of the Congregational Church of Hart, showed no remorse over the attack on Mrs. Bruce Brainard, 25, of Hamden, Conn.

"He acts like he hasn't got a worry in the world," police said, "He isn't the least concerned."

Glen stole into a bathroom yesterday morning and grabbed Mrs. Brainard from behind. He clamped one hand over her mouth to stifle her screams and with the other drove a six-inch steak knife into her chest.

Mrs. Brainard, bleeding profusely, slumped on the floor as a boy ran from the bathroom. She said he was "giggling" as he made his escape.

HEARD SCREAMS
A passerby heard the woman's screams and found her lying on the floor. She was taken to a nearby doctor who said the wound was not serious, although the knife came within a half-inch of her heart.

In Battle Creek, a Battle Creek divorcee, nude except for shoes and bleeding profusely from a slashed throat, staggered into an American Legion club for help early today.

Startled patrons summoned police who rushed her to Leila Hospital where she was reported in fair condition after emergency surgery. Unable to speak, the woman identified herself in writing as Helen Lutz, 38.

Red Infiltrates Cuba
MINNEAPOLIS — A U.S. intelligence spokesman reported today that Moscow sent a Soviet intelligence officer to Cuba last May to guide local Communists on how to penetrate the government of Fidel Castro.

Construction of the new addition to the Junior High School is nearing completion, noted the school board. It will be ready for the first scheduled day of school.

Completion of the Hickory Grove School addition is planned for the latter part of January.

Waterford Board Receives 11 Bids for Construction

Eleven bids for the construction of five additional rooms to the Schoolcraft Elementary School received by the Waterford Township Board of Education last night.

Part of a $5 million construction program, the bids ranged from about $118,000 to $130,000. They were referred to the George D. Mason Co. for recommendation.

Contracts will be awarded at a special Board meeting next Thursday.

Low bidder and last year's insurance policy holder, the C. A. Laffer Insurance Co. was awarded the bus insurance contract for $1,920.

The gasoline and motor oil contract was awarded to the Sacony Mobil Oil Co.

The fuel oil contract was awarded to the Aurora Gas Co. The Board accepted the resignation of principal of the Covert Elementary School, George C. Trammontin, who has been named a staff assistant at the Graduate School of Education of the University of Chicago. He will assume his position there Sept. 16. He had been the Covert School principal for the last three years.

The Board authorized the use of the same room as last year to the Society for Handicapped Children in a building at the rear of Waterford Village School.

Contracts for 28 additional and replacement teachers were approved by the board. The contract for student insurance went to Al Pauly of the Federal Life and Casualty Co. Pupils will pay a $2 insurance policy fee.

The same architectural firm that has designed most of the schools in Waterford Township, the George D. Mason Co., was awarded a contract for the five new rooms to be added to the Schoolcraft School.

The Day in Birmingham

Reveal School Calendar for Bloomfield Hills

BIRMINGHAM — The Bloomfield Hills Board of Education has announced the school calendar for the coming year. Classes will begin Sept. 10 with students attending only morning sessions the first day.

High school and junior high school offices are now open daily for registration. Textbooks will go on sale at all schools Monday. Bus schedules will be available at the same time, at the schools.

Fifteen new 60-passenger buses will go into operation on opening day, making triple runs. Here is a schedule of class times on the first day:

High school 8 a.m. with dismissal at 2:30 p.m.
Junior high school — 8:30 a.m. dismissal at 3 p.m.
Elementary Schools — 9:10 a.m., dismissal at 3:40 p.m.

Kindergarten pupils at Vaughan, Hickory Grove, Eastover and Wing Lake schools whose names begin with the letters A through L will enter school Sept. 10 at 9 a.m. Those whose names begin with letters M through Z will enter on Sept. 11 at 9 a.m.

Pine Lake School kindergartners will enter school Sept. 14 at 9 a.m. Parents who have not yet enrolled their children in kindergarten may do so now at the respective schools. They must bring a birth or baptismal certificate with them. The youngsters should have physical examinations either before school starts or early in the school year.

Parents of children in kindergarten and first and second grades are asked to see that, for the first three days of school, their youngsters who are riding school buses have a note pinned on them giving their name, address, telephone number and bus number.

A teachers work shop will be held Sept. 8 and 9.

The school board also announced that the sixth grade at Vaughn Elementary School will be housed in the Hickory Grove School until such time as the new elementary school on Quanton road is completed. Wing Lake school will continue crowded until completion of the new school which is hoped for in time for the second semester.

Construction of the new addition to the Junior High School is nearing completion, noted the school board. It will be ready for the first scheduled day of school.

Completion of the Hickory Grove School addition is planned for the latter part of January.

In other action the Board of Education approved purchase of a future school site across from Kirk in the Hills, sale of 1959 school bonds, hiring of 30 new teachers, construction of a school bus parking lot just south of the high school building, and the hiring of a school bus dispatcher.

Temporary boundary lines for elementary schools are as follows:

Students residing south of Quanton and west of Telegraph roads will attend Wing Lake School.

Those residing east of Woodward avenue and south of Hickory Grove road and to a line just west of Eastway road will go to Eastover School.

Those living north of Hickory Grove road and east from Telegraph to a line just west of Eastway road will attend Hickory Grove School.

Attending Pine Lake School will be pupils living in the area from the western end of the school district at the Middle Belt-W. Long Lake Rd. intersection, running east to Franklin road and extending beyond Franklin on the north side of the Long Lake road to and including the Kirkway area and including those in the area south of Upper and Lower Long Lakes.

Vaughan School will take pupils living in all areas not listed otherwise, with the exception of the sixth grade which will attend the Hickory Grove School.

City Editor Unaware of Corvair Plot
ANN ARBOR — "I didn't know he intended to shoot the Corvairs. But he did. And I'm delighted."

That was the reaction of Richard H. Emmons, City Editor of the Ann Arbor News, to the aerial photograph of Chevrolet's new small Corvair autos taken by his reporter - photographer, Richard C. Kerr.

The photo was transmitted yesterday on the Associated Press Wirephoto network.

The Corvairs are being built at nearby Ypsilanti by the General Motors Corp. division. The small cars were a closely guarded secret and are not scheduled for public showing until this fall.

"I noticed what I thought were those cars a month ago from a road leading to Willow Run Airport when I was driving out there," the 28-year-old Kerr said. "I knew I never would be permitted inside the canvas-walled field to make closeup pictures. But I also knew I could get them from the air."

"Kerr told Emmons he was going on an aerial photo mission but "I told him I was going to take some other aerials. I didn't want to disclose I was after the Corvairs until I really had them."

Conservationists to Visit
LANSING — A group of 32 conservationists from 19 countries will visit Michigan next week to study watershed management practices. They will visit Michigan State University and the Cedar River watershed project. The group is sponsored by the United Nations.

Jimmy holds the finished product and remarks, "It'll overshadow everything else in the joint." The institute turned down the gift.

Princess Margaret Marks 29th Birthday

BALMORAL, Scotland (UPI)—Princess Margaret celebrated her 29th birthday today without prospects of ending the most talked about spinsterhood in the United Kingdom.

But she did get an orchid corsage from a mysterious American admirer.

The Aberdeen florist who handled the order refused to divulge the name of the sender who was said to have given the princess a couple of dozen red roses recently.

"We have a standing order to send flowers on special occasions to the princess," said a spokesman for Stotts Florist. But that is all he would say.

There was nothing to indicate that anything in the way of a serious romance was in the wind.

The petite princess has at her disposal all the money she needs, plus cars, planes and castles. But unlike most British girls her age she has neither a husband nor a steady beau.

NOT LINKED

Since she quit Peter Townsend in 1955 because he was a divorced man, the pretty, petite princess has not been linked in serious terms with any other.

PRINCESS MARGARET

In fact, everything has pointed to her being resigned to spinsterhood and a life of performing official duties.

Royal spokesmen said there was nothing unusual on the program for her birthday today, just the usual family gathering. Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived at Balmoral Castle—the royal family's summer home—this morning from her own Scottish castle at May.

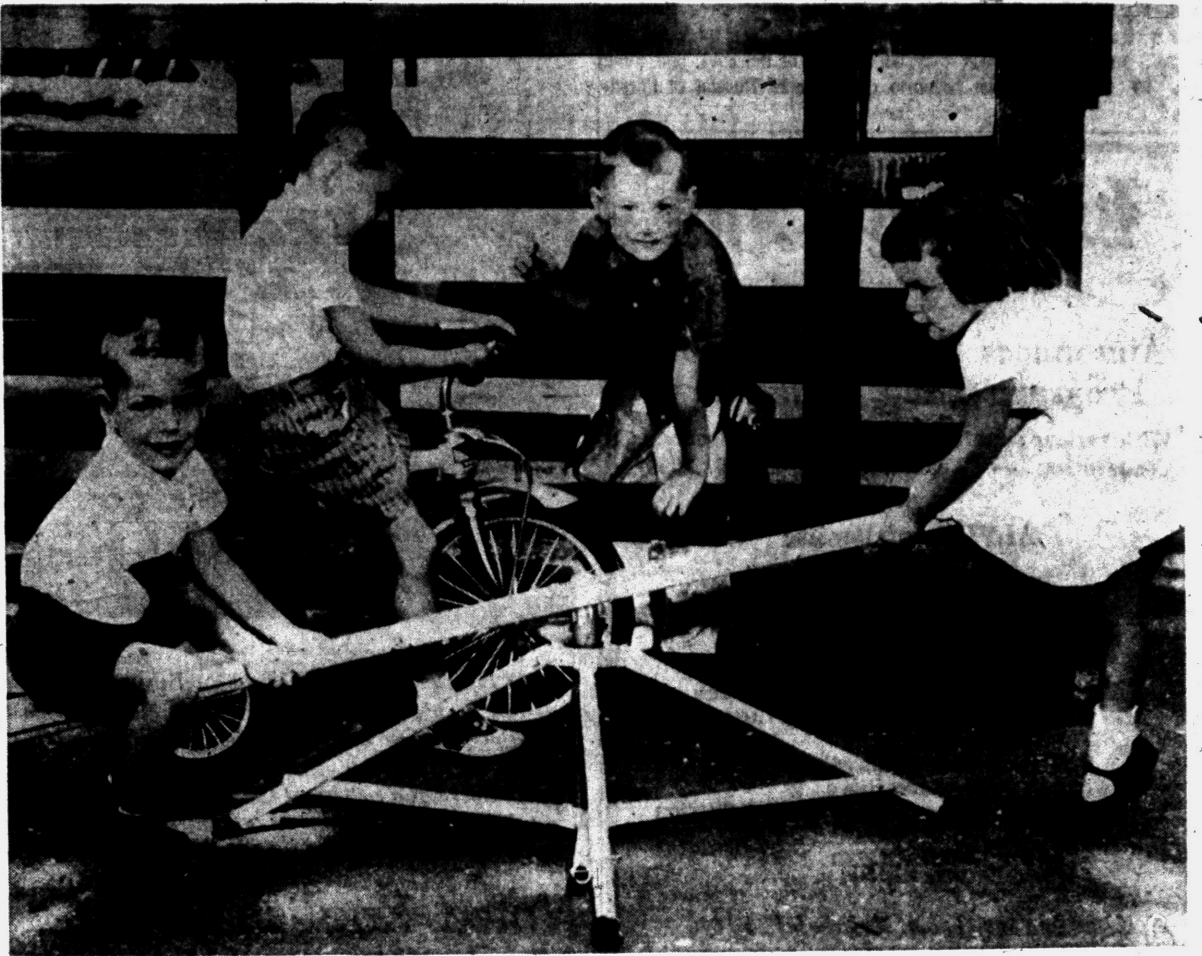

GIFTS AT NOON

Already at Balmoral were Margaret's sister and brother-in-law, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, and her nephew and niece, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Packages from the family usually are opened at an elaborate noon lunch and then a few friends are likely to drop in for tea or dinner.

Since Margaret celebrated her 17th birthday British newspapers have speculated on possible candidates for her hand but today there was not very much material even for speculation.

The mass circulation Daily Mirror summed up the situation with this headline over a big picture of the princess: "29: Alone."

Getting a preview of the fun and games to be offered at All Saints Nursery School which opens Sept. 14 are, left to right, David Oates, Todd Rich, Harold Jacobsen and Debbie Girardin.

Fears She May Risk Criticism

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there anything improper about a girl's stopping for a boy at his house if they are going to a party together and she has the car? I believe you will be the first to recognize the silliness of his having to leave home hours before necessary in order to go a distance to the girl's house, when she will not be driving out of her way to stop for him instead. However, my mother feels that by doing this sort of thing a girl will be talked about by the people who like to gossip.

Answer: I see no great objection to her doing this on an occasion such as the one you speak of, provided he is someone who goes to her house at other times. And of course provided that he drives her to her house with her after the party, and then gets himself home by his own means.

Dear Mrs. Post: My father and mother who live out of town came to visit me and my family recently. My aunt and her husband, who also live here, invited my parents to their house for dinner and asked my husband and me to come in later that evening to play cards with them all. I felt very hurt over this and thought my aunt very rude for not including my husband and me in the dinner invitation.

Answer: She certainly was rude to you unless she explained that she was not inviting you until after dinner because she could not possibly make room for you at dinner.

Dear Mrs. Post: When dining in a restaurant, is it ever proper to dip a corner of one's napkin into a glass of water after eating in order to wipe one's fingers should they become sticky and no finger bowl is served?

Answer: Rather than dip the napkin into the glass, it would be permissible to hold the corner of your napkin in your left hand and tip your glass of water slightly over it just enough to dampen the corner.

'Cultural Brainwashing' Stifles Young Creativity

EAST LANSING (AP)—Kids been acting up lately? Don't clamp down too hard. Brainwashing may stifle their creativity.

"Polite, cultural brainwashing" is snuffing out the spark of youthful creativity, contends a research psychologist at Michigan State University.

Dr. Harold H. Anderson notes that "in children creativity is universal; among adults is almost non-existent."

Anderson has edited and contributed to a new book, "Creativity and Its Cultivation", published this week.

He writes that "the so-called socializing, the polite cultural brainwashing of children, is made up of small incidents, small obstructions, small deflections."

"Out of such deprivations of spontaneous experience," Anderson indicates, "children become uncreative, unimaginative, self-conscious, self-protecting conformists."

The MSU psychologist maintains brainwashing is not a new device but "a technique of child training in the Western cultures for centuries."

Anderson says cultural brainwashing of children at home and at school is not sudden, dramatic nor easily detected.

"But," he continues, "after months and years, if the child has not revolted, the spirit becomes heavy, the motivation is sluggish and activity lacks direction, meaning or purpose. The spark of creativity becomes stifled."

Jo Ann Rohrbach Feted

Jo Ann Rohrbach, bride-elect of John G. Prosser, was feted with a bridal shower Wednesday evening, given by her attendants, Loretta Lauinger, maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Mary-Jo McBrearty, Ruby Lawrence and Kathy McClelland. The event was held at the home of Mrs. James Rose in Lake Orion.

Miss Rohrbach is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Rohrbach of South Edith street, and her fiancé is the son of Mrs. Francis Dumas of Pine Lake and Dr. M. G. Prosser of Williams Lake. St. Michael Catholic Church will be the scene of the Sept. 12 wedding.

Thursday evening Miss Rohrbach was honored at a surprise party given by Mary-Jo McBrearty on Ogema road.

Kenneth Quick, a young English potter, has arrived for his first visit in the United States and has had the pleasure of meeting for the first time his cousin, Mrs. Harry Wacker of Scott Lake road. Mr. Quick operates a pottery at Cornwall and was a visiting instructor this summer at Haystack, a design center and workshop in Liberty, Maine.

Noted English Potter Meets Kin on Visit Here

Visiting at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Harry Wacker, whom he met for the first time this summer, is Kenneth Quick, an English potter who operates Tregenna Hill Pottery, St. Ives, Cornwall. Currently, a study exhibition of his pottery is being circulated in this country in connection with his visit.

Mr. Quick, who came to the United States this summer as a visiting instructor at Haystack, an art center in Liberty, Maine, is staying with his cousin and Mr. Wacker at their home on Scott Lake road. Mrs. Wacker is a Pontiac State Hospital employee.

Since beginning his career in pottery, Mr. Quick's work has been exhibited and sold at Lib-Robin, Nance, and Leach, St. Ives; and the Edinburgh Festival. His ware has been seen before in this country in the Bernard Leach Traveling Exhibition in America. Mr. Quick worked at the Leach pottery from the age of 14 until he was 24.

In the exhibition currently being shown are standard ware items for daily use including tea and coffee services, casseroles, fruit bowls, jam pots, honey jars, cactus pots and vinegar bottles. The work is hand-thrown stoneware.

Use Bottle Brush to Coax Out Dirt

Add a bottle brush to your equipment for washing porch, garden, and patio furniture. Dip it into thick soap or detergent suds, then use it to coax dirt from the seams and crevices of plastic or canvas cushions, the interstices of plastic or rope laces and webbings, and the nooks and crannies of wicker and wrought iron furniture.

Ground Him for Safety . . . Abby

Dad Determined to Drive, but Dangerous

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My dad is in his seventies and when he drives a car he is a danger on the streets. His reflexes are poor. I am afraid to let my children ride with him. When he comes here for his vacation and wants to drive, what can I do?

His pride is tied up in his ability to drive. He thinks he is a good driver, but he is a threat. Others may have this problem, too. Can you help us?

ABBY

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Life and limb (your children's as well as his own) are more important than his "pride." Tell your Dad that because you love him and want him around for many more years, you don't want him to drive. Get the rest of your family to back you up. This may seem cruel, but it is a lot kinder than letting him kill himself. (P. S. Nearly 37,000 people were killed and 3 million were injured on American highways in 1958).

DEAR ABBY: Should I send wedding invitations to people who live too far away to come to my wedding?

I'm afraid if I don't send them an invitation they'll feel hurt. I am also afraid if I send them an invitation, knowing they can't come, it will look like I'm asking for a present. Could you advise me, please?

OCTOBER BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: In recent years, the formal wedding invitation has taken on the connotation of a "bill."

Send invitations only to those friends and relatives whom you feel will come to your wedding. Very few people are "hurt" because they fail to receive an invitation to a wedding they cannot attend.

DEAR ABBY: A very well-mannered and cordial neighbor has deliberately trained her dog to do things on our lawn that she doesn't want done on her own lawn.

She knows we disapprove strongly because she has stood in her doorway and watched us chase her dog from our yard several times.

We are puzzled. How can dog owners train their dogs to destroy and mess the property of others? Your advice is needed.

GREEN INK BUT NOT GREEN GRASS

DEAR GREEN: You are mistaken. Neighbors who train their dogs to destroy and mess the property of others are neither well-mannered nor cordial. Don't rely on anything so subtle as "chasing" her dog from your yard to convey your disapproval. Pay your neighbor a visit and tell her that if she doesn't keep her dog out of your yard, you will ask the law to help protect your property.

DEAR ABBY: My four-year-old daughter was born two years before her father and I were married. When she was born I had to use my maiden name on her birth certificate.

Her father and I are married now. How can I get her birth certificate fixed up proper like it should be?

MARRIED NOW

DEAR MARRIED: I doubt very much if you can "fix up" a birth certificate after it has been filed. Consult a lawyer.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TROUBLED CONSCIENCE: Return the stolen articles and ask to be forgiven. Since this was your first offense you will probably be given another chance. It is doubly unfair to remain silent while suspicion falls on innocent parties.

Best man was Marshall Mahoney of Detroit and Robert Bergey of Arlington, Va., and Robert Scherzer of Detroit were ushers.

The bride is a graduate of Augustana College and is doing graduate work at Wayne State University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Michigan State University.

Keeping That Man Happy Can Be Easy

By RUTH MILLETT

The sooner a wife learns a few facts that apply to most husbands the happier she'll be. For instance—

Most men don't like to discuss a matter to death. Women may enjoy talking around and around a problem, but a man wants to decide what to do about it and stop the discussion.

Most men dislike having a wife unload her troubles on them the minute they walk through the door at night. So feed him before you bring up any depressing or disagreeable news. And try not to worry your man with matters you can handle yourself.

Most men hate to be nagged at—so it makes for a happier marriage to let a man do things in his own good time.

Most men aren't nearly as fascinated by the details of other people's lives as women are. So don't be hurt if you get an unsatisfactory response when you start discussing the marriages of friends or what a poor housekeeper a neighbor is, or the mistake friends are making in rearing their children. Why bore or annoy a man with such chatter and then complain that he never talks to you?

Most men are more allergic than women to a cut-and-dried social life—seeing the same few couples over and over at the same kind of get-togethers. So strive to make your social life as a couple as interesting to your husband as you possibly can.

Most men love comfort and have a right to expect it in their homes. So don't be ashamed to cater to your man's comfort. That's a lot more important than running your household to impress your women friends.

Most men need to feel that their wives respect their judgment. So never miss an opportunity to say, "You were right about such-and-such" and "I'm glad you suggested this or that." And squelch the urge to say "I told you so" when things don't turn out just right.

Garden Club Hears Talk on Conservation

Richard Durnbaugh, McCarrall Elementary School teacher, spoke on the subject "Conservation" at a luncheon meeting of the Better Home and Garden Club Thursday. This summer the club sent Mr. Durnbaugh to the Conservation Institute at Higgins Lake on a scholarship.

Mrs. Harry Winkley was chairman for the affair which was held at the Woodland avenue home of Mrs. A. D. Stimer. Assisting Mrs. Winkley were Mrs. Harriet Seaks, Mrs. John McCormick, Mrs. William Mustard and Mrs. Maude Place.

Three new members, Mrs. Fred Tucker, Mrs. Ardo Crocker and Mrs. Ernest Blimka, were welcomed at the meeting.

Party Fetes Mrs. Lingle

Mrs. Gary Lingle was honored at a post-nuptial kitchen shower Monday at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Dale Anderson of Detroit.

The former Constance Uhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Uhl of Drayton Plains, exchanged vows with Mr. Lingle on Aug. 8 in Weston. He is the son of the Lester Lingles of North Paddock street.

Shower guests were Mrs. Uhl, Mrs. Lingle, Mrs. Floyd Sims, the bride's maternal grandmother; Carolyn Lingle, Nancy Reuter, Mrs. Rosemary Shearer, Mrs. Irwin Olmstead, Sheila Olmstead, Mrs. Robert Gerrity and Christie Anderson.

Others were Mrs. Clara Anderson, Mrs. John Adams, Mrs. William Murphy, Maureen Murphy, Mrs. Virgil Anderson, Mrs. Donald Thompson, Mrs. Fred Schimmels, Mrs. Mildred Salecki, Mrs. Rupert Turner and Mrs. Jack Murphy.

WCTU Unit Holds Picnic

Members of the Frances Willard Women's Christian Temperance Union met Wednesday afternoon at Murphy Park for a cooperative dinner.

Following a speech on "Faith" by Mrs. Herbert Slentington of Birmingham, a discussion was led by Mrs. Leroy Shafer. Also participating in the program were Mrs. Bonnie Hyde and Anne Vone.

Custer Verdict Still Not Known

Was He Hero or Bad General? Experts Not Sure Even Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—June 25 marked the anniversary of the most humiliating defeat ever suffered by the United States Army.

On that date in 1876, Gen. George Armstrong Custer and 211 men were massacred in the battle of the Little Big Horn.

The 83 years since then have failed to dim the Custer legend, or the controversy that exploded the moment the 212 bodies were found on a lonely Montana ridge. There have been as many books written about this comparatively minor Indian skirmish as on the battle of Gettysburg.

At least a dozen movies have been made around the Last Stand. More than 100 paintings depicting Custer's death have graced the walls of every kind of establishment from Bowery saloons to swanky museums.

Up to a point, the facts of the battle are simple.

Custer and 10 troops of the Seventh Cavalry, about 400 men, were ordered down the Rosebud River as part of an over-all plan to box in an estimated 8,000 Indians.

Custer started out as ordered, but ran across a fresh Indian trail. On the afternoon of June 25, 1876, Custer found a large Indian village and spotted hordes of braves moving out of the village and away from his advancing cavalry.

Custer, apparently thinking this was the main body of Indians, made his fatal mistake. He sent Capt. Benteen and two troops along the bluffs on one side of the river. Maj. Marcus Reno was ordered to attack the village with another three troops. And Custer continued along the ridge after the supposedly fleeing Indians.

But the "fleeing Indians" were mainly squaws and children. Reno's charge on the village splintered against hundreds of screaming braves. He retreated to a bluff where he was hemmed in on three sides.

Custer was far up the river — in more ways than one. In following what he thought was the main Indian force, he ran into an ambush. Reno's command heard heavy firing.

The shots grew fainter and finally died away. Benteen finally rejoined Reno's troops and their combined forces managed to stave off all attacks until the next day when reinforcements arrived.

The humiliating defeat resulted in loud demands for a congressional investigation. Reno in particular was condemned for failing to come to Custer's help when he heard the firing, but he insisted it would have been suicide to leave his bluff and try to break through the Indians attacking his own command.

But Benteen, who regarded Reno with unvarnished contempt, claimed Reno over-estimated the force attacking him and could have come to the rescue.

At any rate, the House Military Affairs Committee refused to initiate a probe. Reno himself asked for a Court of Inquiry by the War Department. The Court convened in Chicago three years after the massacre, and exonerated Reno of cowardice.

There never was a formal verdict on Custer's own part in the battle. To this day, military experts and historians disagree on whether Custer was merely a victim of bad luck and too many Indians, or whether he violated orders, made matters worse by dividing his already tiny force into three hopelessly inadequate columns and then blundered into an ambush.

Lady Cabbie Loses 'Loaded' Customer

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI) — "Loaded" is a loaded word that cost a woman taxi driver a fare one recent day.

When Buffalo cabbies pick up a passenger, they call headquarters by shortwave radio and say as a matter of routine, "Number so-and-so loaded."

In this particular case, Mrs. Rita Costello's passenger also was loaded. He took offense at her report, she said, made her let him out and staggered away muttering, "You didn't have to tell 'em."

Most Oldsters Need Glasses to Drive Cars

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UPI) — There's little wrong with the driving ability of elderly motorists that can't be corrected with a good pair of glasses, according to the findings of the Rhode Island Registry of Motor Vehicles.

After completing recertification examinations of 4,557 drivers beyond the age of 70, the registry found it had flunked out only 11 of the oldsters — 10 for poor vision and one for failing the road test.

However, 574 of the 70-plus drivers who passed had to get new glasses to make the grade.

Mailman Scoffs Despite Tragedies

'Hope Diamond No Hex'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Hope diamond, given to the Smithsonian Institution last year by a New York gem dealer, has a sinister history. It is supposed to have brought death, misfortune or insanity to a long string of owners.

When jewel merchant Harry Winston gave it to the government museum last November he sent it by mail, James G. Todd, 35, was the mailman who delivered the 44½ carat diamond.

Since then, these things have happened to Todd:

His leg was crushed by a truck.

While he was recuperating, his wife, mother of their four children, died of a heart attack. In a later accident, Todd was thrown from his car and suffered a head injury.

Wednesday night fire swept four rooms of Todd's suburban home.

"I don't believe any of that stuff," Todd said, referring to the diamond's legend of trouble.

"Perhaps I'm actually having good luck — thank God all four

Pennsylvania Gets 4-Cent Sales Tax

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gov. David L. Lawrence signed into law Thursday a measure raising Pennsylvania's sales tax from 3½ per cent to 4 per cent.

Exempt are food for home consumption; clothing; material used in the construction of foundations for machinery; maintenance supplies bought by charitable and similar nonprofit organizations; machinery; printing services; and repairs to equipment used directly in radio and television broadcasting.

Pennsylvania and Washington now have the highest state sales tax in the nation.

Study Balls of Lightning

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Detroit scientist said today Soviet Russia is studying the possible use of man-made balls of lightning as weapons.

Donald J. Ritchie, of Bendix Aviation Corp., research laboratories, said the proposal has come from physicist George I. Babat, head of the Soviet Institute of Energetics.

Ritchie, writing in Missiles and Rockets Magazine, said Babat proposes to generate balls of lightning in the sky high above cities.

He would do this by focusing two huge parabolic antennas to create an intense electromagnetic field.

The field would develop the ball of lightning fed from the ground by electromagnetic energy. Nuclear fusion processes would occur within the ball.

"The ball could be easily moved through the sky by directing the ground antennas," Ritchie said.

"The effect of directing it at an aircraft or missile can be easily imagined.

"Such a Soviet weapon is not, of course, just around the corner. The work in progress almost cer-

Cooks' Decorations in Her Kiln 70 Hours

HOLDEN, Mass. (UPI)—In the cellar of her home, Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall "cooks" plate glass "sandwiches" with fillings of broken glass and metal turnings.

During a 70-hour kiln process, the plate glass softens like grilled cheese and fuses with the broken colored glass and metal. The result is a solid, slightly uneven block with a center core of riotous colors in free-form designs.

The fused glass can be used for many things such as window panes, room dividing screens, cigarette box lids, decorative garden walls and shower stall doors.

Hi-Fi Disenchantment

Heretic Rips Into Fanatics

By WARD CANNEL
NEA Staff Correspondent
ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Want to try a great new parlor game at your next party?

All you have to do is invite three or four hi-fi fans and then let your real guests try to figure out what they're talking about.

Make sure you ask the kind who feeling, instinct and sense in the book.

"Listen," an audiophile told me, not looking up from the trays of little, lethal-looking, wired things. "Listen: I've got this eight-position amplifier; and this two-band tuner; and this four-pole record player; and this exponential multicellular horn."

But no records?

"What do I need records for?" he asked. "I got this tape recorder with switched dual equalizer and rr db based on three per cent of the total harmonic distortion."

What kind of stuff does he record?

"I dunno," he said. "Nothing special. Sometimes I tape the Ed Sullivan show or Steve Allen."

can talk about continuously variable bass and treble, harmonic and intermodulation distortion, six gang variable capacitor, 10 kc whistle filter, one-piece pulley-idler, hysteresis synchronous-drive, cone resonance and flux density.

Whatever you do, don't invite Leon Knize.

He's dangerous. Not only to your party, but to the whole American hi-fi way of life.

Knize is a professional musician, an audio expert and the sales manager of a big high fidelity outfit here.

"Hi-fi," he said, "is something hardly anybody in his right mind really needs. Our job is to create the right climate so he will buy our product."

"Most audiophiles can recite the names of the component parts. Most likely they can build a whole system of amplifiers and tuners and speakers. They know catalog numbers and manufacturers' names. They know ratings, cycles and waves."

"And boy! Are they confused." It is, of course, remotely possible that an American exists who does not know what high fidelity is.

Well, it is a method of reproducing sound so perfectly on a machine that only another machine can hear it. And a hi-fi fan is a person who either builds or buys these perfect machines for $500 and up.

"What they think they're getting," Knize said, "is sound without distortion. If the sound isn't distorted, it's not hi-fi. A bad sound system makes a record sound a lot better."

"Look at the way they record today. They hang the microphone eight feet over the orchestra, which plays in an acoustically antiseptic studio, and then they tell you it's like being at a concert."

So, what Knize wants to do is change the whole thing around with a new, common-sense plan. He has worked out with a very pleasant psychoacoustician (whatever that is) named Richard Lieblich.

The first step is to prove that their equipment has no personality at all—other than what the purchaser gives it by twisting dials, knobs and things.

"And the second step," in Knize's words, "is to teach people that they are the measure of high fidelity sound—to show them that their ear is a better judge for them than all the specifications in the world."

If it works, it will mean an end to stimulating conversations about dynamal suppression, self-balancing phase inverters, cathode followers, cascaded limiters, cross-over networks, outputs and peaks.

But it's not going to work, Mr. Knize. Not while one expert and a specification sheet is worth every

Describe Agriculture as Promising Feild

EAST LANSING (UPI)—Agriculture is a tremendously promising field for college freshmen seeking to train themselves for a career, according to Dr. Harold J. Lassiter, head of Michigan State University's dairy department.

Lassiter said there were between 14,000 and 15,000 jobs available in the industry this June for college graduates who majored in agriculture and only about 7,000 students to fill them.

Only a few of these jobs are actually on the farm, he added, most being in agricultural education, economics and research. And the salaries being offered are almost as much as what engineering graduates can earn.

Thief Mails Back Loot With IOU for Percentage

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI)—A thief took $2,185 and a revolver from the Buffalo Housewrecking and Salvage Co. but a few days later sent the company a letter in which he returned all but $115 of the cash and submitted an IOU (unsigned) for the rest.

There is no explanation—and no revolver, either. The thief gave his return address as police headquarters.

Cabin Lacks Timber

EUREKA, Calif. (UPI)—Herbert Whitney invited his son and daughter and their families to spend the weekend at his summer cabin. But they didn't have much fun. When they got there they found that someone had dismantled the 20 by 40-foot cabin and hauled away the lumber.
