Strike Still Threatens

JFK, Wirtz Confer on Rails

Could Resist Legislation to Force Rift End

Government Seizure, Operation of Facilities Are Possible Results

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Kennedy conferred for an hour today with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz on latest developments in the railway labor dispute. It could erupt into a nationwide strike early Thursday.

No announcement was made immediately on what steps Kennedy may take to try to avert a walkout.

Railroad negotiators have announced they will put into effect new work rules by 12:01 a.m. Thursday which eventually will eliminate thousands of jobs.

The leaders of five operating rail unions have announced they will strike if the new work rules are applied.

Wirtz' report to Kennedy was delivered just two days in advance of the July 10 deadline the President had set for settling the four-year-long dispute by collective bargaining.

Also attending the session were representatives of the Democratic leadership in Congress and a number of Democratic members of congressional labor and interstate and foreign commerce committees.

Kennedy has said that he would ask Congress for legislation to settle the dispute if bargaining failed.

This could mean compulsory arbitration, government seizure and operation of the railroads or a combination of both while settlement of the dispute is attempted once again.

At the conclusion of today's meeting at the White House Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said he could "not comment on any possible steps the administration is contemplating."

He said some further announcement probably would be made later in the day.

Attending today's session also

SEARCH FOR VICTIMS—Working through smoke and burning rubble, firemen and other rescue workers search for victims at a boys' day camp near Willow Grove, Pa. A Navy jet skidded across a field and crashed into the camp yesterday after a malfunction. The pilot escaped, but seven picnickers were killed.

Plane Crashes Into Camp; 7 Picnickers Killed, 17 Hurt

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP)—A pilotless Navy jet crashed on a baseball field Sunday, then careened in flames into a day camp bathhouse, killing seven persons at a family picnic.

Four children were among the dead. The pilot of the jet bailed out safely a half mile away.

One man was killed as the plane, its wings ripped off when it ploughed through trees, hit the field during a sudden rainstorm. Bodies of the other victims were dug out of the leveled bathhouse.

At least 17 of the 125 or more persons at the picnic were injured. Twelve were admitted to Abington Memorial Hospital, one in serious condition.

Killed were Jennie Klein, 36; her daughter, Sandra, 10, and her son, Harvey Klein, 4; Jeanne Arnold, 40; her daughter, Judy Arnold, 1; Emanuel Milton Fine, 47, and Caroline Hershfield, 10. All lived in Philadelphia.

WAS TO LAND

Capt. John W. Butler, Boiling Springs, Pa., 30, a Marine Reserve pilot, was headed for a landing at Willow Grove Naval Air Station, 18 miles north of Philadelphia, when something went wrong with the FJ Fury fighter.

★ ★ ★

Navy spokesman said they didn't know what caused the malfunction, adding that it apparently occurred in the electrical system.

Capt. Albert Waldman, commander of the base, said, "There will be a big investigation. We will determine what happened."

The end of the airfield's landing strip is only 500 feet from the Green Hill Day Camp which the picnickers had rented for their annual reunion. They were members of either the "Roseman Cousins Club" or the "Weiner Family Circle," with parts of both groups related to each other.

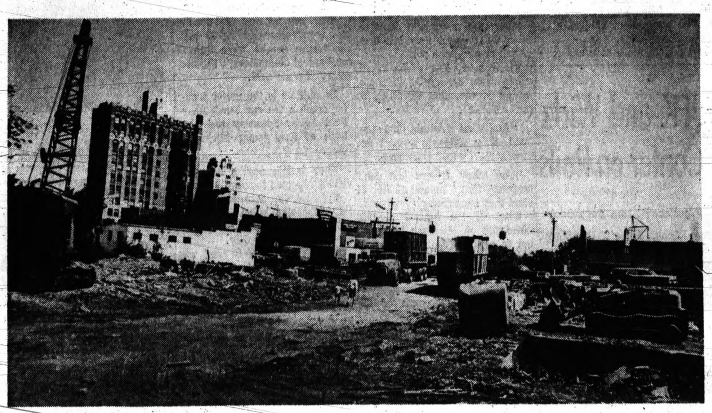

Alan Fineman, 35, a professional photographer from Philadelphia said "It is a miracle we survived." His wife and three children were in the swimming pool near the bathhouse.

He said when the plane hit, "Bedlam broke loose. Everything moved so fast. There was a roar like some unbelievably huge firecracker, then a ball of orange flame."

"Everyone was running madly and screaming," Fineman recalled. "Most ran away from the direction of the crash but a few panicked and headed toward it."

ROAD CONSTRUCTION PROGRESSES — Headway is being made on Pontiac's $3.3-million perimeter road as can be seen from this shot looking south toward Huron and Cass. Scheduled for completion in three phases, the loop highway will eventually provide a one-way, five-lane route circulating traffic around the central business district. The final phase is to be finished late next year.

Meets Belgian Minister

K Snubs Red Unity Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev, apparently in a new slap at the Chinese Communists, conferred in Kiev today with Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak on easing cold-war tensions.

He stayed 500 miles away from the showdown ideological conference with the Chinese now in progress here behind the high walls of a Lenin Hills villa.

There was little more from the Kiev session, although Tass said it was "marked by an atmosphere of sincerity and mutual understanding."

The official Soviet news agency added that Khrushchev and Spaak had a "useful exchange of views on urgent international questions."

Before Spaak, former secretary general of NATO, arrived in the Soviet Union, Tass said his talks with Khrushchev were a continuation of those the two men held in 1961.

It was then that Khrushchev withdrew his deadline for signing a German peace treaty that would have jeopardized the West's positions in Berlin.

Spaak reported on those talks to the NATO allies, but it was not known whether he would follow the same procedure now.

One top Western diplomat here said things had begun "to move a little" in East-West relations. He said he thought Soviet trouble with China was creating a more conciliatory attitude in dealings with the West. But he emphasized he did not expect Khrushchev to give away much.

Moscow papers do not even mention that the talks are in progress although they are the top subject of conversation in East-West groups wherever they meet—even at the current Soviet film festival.

But in the East, Chinese Communist newspapers have kept up a drumfire of attacks on the Soviet Union and on Khrushchev personally.

★ ★ ★

The Chinese Communist paper Wen Pei Po in Hong Kong accused Khrushchev of treating the United States as a friend and China as an enemy. It cited as evidence the publication in Pravda of the short text of President Kennedy's reply to Khrushchev's Fourth of July message.

Light as that bit of evidence may be, Soviet relations with the United States represent a major cause of the conflict between the two big Communist powers.

News Flash

U.S. Limits Trade

Cuba Assets Frozen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today froze all Cuban assets in this country, whether owned by the Fidel Castro government or Cuban individuals. At the same time all unlicensed financial or commerical transactions with Cuba by Americans were forbidden.

★ ★ ★

In general, the orders put the Communist-dominated island country in the same class with Communist China and North Korea, but under more stringent rules than those applying to the Soviet bloc.

Funds that refugees manage to get out of the country are not affected by the freeze order, unless it is determined they actually are acting in behalf of the Castro government.

The action, the State Department said, was taken "to restrict the movement of funds from Cuba" in accordance with the July 3 resolution of the Organization of American States urging member governments to counter Castro-type Communist supervision in the Western Hemisphere.

★ ★ ★

The controls as announced by the State Department will work three ways.

First, the Treasury blocked all assets in the United States of Cuba or of persons in Cuba, estimated to be in the neighborhood of $33 million.

Second, it prohibited Americans to engage in "unlicensed transfer" of U.S. dollars to or from Cuba.

Third, it prohibited all other unlicensed transactions with Cuba or Cuba nationals or transactions involving property in which there is a Cuban interest.

County's Highway Toll Is Much Higher Than '62

As the July 4 holiday passed, the county highway death toll moved up to 71. It was only 47 at this time a year ago.

Short of a miracle this year's toll is certain to exceed the 100-death total for 1962.

Questioned about the upward trend in Oakland traffic fatalities, safety officers in the Pontiac police, sheriff's office, and state police post agreed:

● Speed and driver inattention are still a leading causes of accidents.

● More police officers are needed, they say.

State police and sheriff's deputies point out they have no traffic enforcement divisions. They rely on regular patrols to handle traffic, with exception of one man to compile statistics and handle paperwork.

18 ASSIGNED

Pontiac police have 18 men assigned to traffic duty, of which three are parking meter men. The others are busy handling heavy city traffic problems.

★ ★ ★

"There just aren't enough fellows in blue uniform," said State Police Sgt. Michael Sibal, sounding like all other local law officers.

As head of the State Police Traffic and Safety Bureau for the Detroit area, Sibal is familiar with local and county-wide traffic problems for southeastern Michigan.

He urged added on-the-road police patrols to cope with the rising tide of accidents, injuries and deaths.

But there is no single cause, rather multiple reasons why Oakland County has experienced a sharp increase in traffic deaths, he said.

"The general consensus is that

Temperatures Expected to Dip Below Normal

Below-normal temperatures are scheduled for the Pontiac area this week. Temperatures will average two or three degrees below the normal high of 84 and normal low of 64.

Fair and continued cool is the forecast through tomorrow. A low of 50 is expected tonight, along with a high in the 70s tomorrow.

Pontiac lawn sprinkling restrictions remain in effect. Precipitation will total less than one tenth of an inch in showers late in the week.

Fifty-two was the low recording preceding 8 a.m. At 2 p.m. the mercury stood at 71.

Fast Service Set for Mails

Pontiac residents will receive the post office's new sameday, four-hour downtown mail service on an official full-time basis starting July 24.

As it is presently planned, first-class letters mailed by 11 a.m. on weekdays in downtown mail boxes, marked ABCD for accelerated business collection and delivery will be delivered in the same downtown area by 3 p.m. that same day.

Acting postmaster Jack Featherstone indicated that the system may be expanded beyond the downtown area.

"A further study will be made in the next three days which might lead to an expansion of the service," he said.

★ ★

The program has already been in operation on a trial basis for about three months, Featherstone said.

Mail picked up from ABCD boxes at 11 a.m. is immediately taken to the post office where it is quickly processed and given to the carriers in time for their noon business deliveries.

In many cases, Featherstone explained, such mail will be delivered by 1 or 2 p.m.

Details on the operation of the service—such as boundaries of the ABCD area and the exact location of the ABCD boxes—will not be set until after the survey has been completed, he said.

Would-Be Astronette Rides Bike

By JERRIE COBB
With Jane Rieker

The date was my fifth day of undergoing the same series of tests given to select the seven Mercury Astronauts, at the Lovelace Foundation in Albuquerque, N.M.

In the four previous days, I had inhaled, exhaled, tilted, dunked, listened, talked, looked, walked, run, and had been filled and emptied before a changing audience of physicians, researchers, and technicians.

I was established as being female, unmarried, blonde, blue-eyed, almost 29, 5 feet 7 inches tall, 124 pounds on the scales, and in extremely good health.

STILL FELT GOOD

The wonder of it was that I still felt good despite four days of the most rigorous physical examinations I had ever been through.

For the last day of the 75 tests, I needed every muscle in my body.

"You're going to work hard today, Miss Cobb. You can have a light breakfast — juice and toast, say—and a candy bar."

All three courses greedily consumed, I was led to a brightly-lighted room in the physiology department.

In it stood what seemed to be an exercise bicycle quite overloaded with gadgets and thingnobbles.

"Hey," I thought to myself, "you're going to take a bicycle ride to space!"

White-coated staff members were busy. There was a battery of sensitive machinery to record body reactions.

A big green bag was being attached to the frame over the front end of the bicycle. This, I guessed, would hold the air I breathed. Many space tests involved intricate measurement of oxygen intake and carbon dioxide respiration.

COMPETING WITH MEN

Dr. Ulrich Luft, head of the Lovelace physiology department, said, "Miss Cobb, this test is to see how your body reacts to hard physical work. When we tell you to start, keep time with the metronome."

I knew that the Mercury astronaut candidates had taken this test, as well as the examinations that had preceded it. I knew that my achievement would be measured against the

Asks Auto Checks as 32 Die on Road

From Our News Wires

Michigan Secretary of State James Hare called today for periodic motor vehicle inspections in the wake of one of the bloodiest holidays in state history.

Thirty-two persons, including 10 in two separate accidents, were killed during the long Fourth of July weekend in the state. In addition, six other persons drowned and five persons lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents to raise the toll to 43.

Hare said the deaths of five persons crushed by a trailer tractor running out of control were needless and could have been prevented with proper vehicle inspection.

* * *

"We have no way of knowing how many others of the 27 holiday traffic deaths were due to mechanical deficiences," the secretary of state said.

In addition to the motor tractor crash a two-car crash near Port Austin Saturday took the lives of five young Michigan men.

Other traffic deaths not previously reported include:

Mrs. Bertha Schmidt, 53, of Bay City was killed Sunday in a two-car collision in Fraser Township near Bay City.

Earl Frost, 66, of Crystal was killed Sunday when he was struck by a car in Montcalm County. Police said Frost had left his car to talk to another driver when he was struck by a third vehicle.

Harold Robinson, 66, of Royal Oak, was killed Sunday when his car ran off a road and struck a tree in Iosco County.

Nancy Greer, 3, of Dearborn Heights was killed Sunday when she was hit by a car while playing on a street in Dearborn Heights.

Judy Kenny, 2, of Grandville was killed Sunday night in a two-car crash at an intersection in Muskegon County.

speed is still the main cause," he said. "But it is coupled with driver inattention, or just plain lack of knowledge.

"Yet it can't be an excuse."

Sibal said many still don't realize what speed they are driving and what it can do.

"How many know," he asked, "that while driving at 40 m.p.h. a car is traveling at about 60 feet a second?

"And what if within that second, they suddenly swerve or momentarily look elsewhere?

"Too many drivers just don't respect that ton-and-a-half of steel they are driving."

What of the future? A 1956 bloodbath on Michigan highways led to a number of measures to cut down fatalities, he recalled.

* * *

Among them were a sizeable increase in the strength of the state police, especially for patrol purposes; establishment of a traffic safety center at East Lansing, and compulsory statewide driver's education.

DROPS FOR 3 YEARS

The result was three years of decreasing deaths. They were followed by three more with death on the upswing again.

* * *

An upcoming safety conference summoned by Gov. George Romney may provide new ideas, Sibal said hopefully.

Here are some further tips from sheriff's deputies and Pontiac police that could stem accidents?

- Report traffic violators. When you do, give police a good description of the car and its license number.
- When the reckless motorist is apprehended, help police by being willing to prosecute. Many serious offenders escape now because other citizens don't want to get "involved."
- Be especially watchful while driving between the hours of noon and 6 p.m., the time most accidents occur. Next most dangerous period is 6 p.m. to midnight.

were Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., Senate assistant majority leader; Lister Hill, D-Ala., chairman, and Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Pat McNamara, D-Mich., members of the Senate Labor Committee, and Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee and Reps. Carl Albert, Oklahoma, House Democratic floor leader, Carl Perkins, D-Ky., and Philip Landrum, D-Ga. of the House Labor Committee and Oren Harris, D-Ark., chairman of the House Commerce Committee.

Also in on the talks were Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, who has played an active role in attempting to head off the threatened strike, and Theodore Sorensen, special counsel to the President.

Salinger said Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Labor Committee, was invited but was unable to attend.

Salinger said the President plans to brief Senate and House leaders on the rail dispute situation further at a breakfast meeting tomorrow.

The President has run out of procedures for delaying the strike further under existing law.

Rail unions turned down yesterday a government settlement formula which had been accepted by the railroads.

The five operating unions vowed a bitter fight to defeat any legislation proposed in the controversy.

A railroad negotiator repeated that the new rules—eliminating thousands of jobs the railroads contend are unnecessary—will go into effect at 12:01 a.m. Thursday unless Congress passes legislation for one-shot compulsory arbitration to settle the dispute. The unions threaten to follow with an immediate strike.

U. S. Road Toll Climbs to 557

Deaths Set Record for Summer Holiday

By United Press International

Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, called the toll a "tragic standard against which to measure any holiday."

The final United Press International tabulation of holiday fatalities from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight last night showed this breakdown:

Traffic 557
Drownings 192
Boating 4
Planes 17
Fireworks 1
Miscellaneous 101
Total 872

California led the death count with 48 traffic fatalities. There were 43 in both New York State and Pennsylvania, 32 in Michigan, 29 in Ohio, 25 in Texas, 23 in both Indiana and Missouri, 22 in Illinois and 21 in Virginia.

Only five states could boast no traffic deaths over the 102-hour weekend. They were Alaska, Delaware, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Rhode Island.

The toll broke the record for traffic deaths over a summertime holiday set just last May, when 525 persons died over the Memorial day weekend. The previous July 4 holiday record of 509, set in 1961, was also surpassed.

The safety council had made a preholiday estaimate of 550 to 650 traffic deaths over the holiday.

During the weekend's early hours the death count was so low safety officials hoped they could scrap their estimate.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police arrested more than 100 white and Negro integrationists, including 13 clergymen, at a privately owned amusement park in suburban Woodlawn Sunday. White onlookers jeered and cursed the demonstrators. Police estimated the number of white patrons at 6,000.

The arrests brought to nearly 400 the number taken into custody since July 4. Preliminary hearings for more than 100 of the 283 arrested at the segregated park July 4 in similar demonstrations were scheduled this afternoon. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, chief executive officer of the United Presbyterian Church, is among those scheduled for a hearing.

Baltimore County Police Chief Robert Lally ordered K9 dogs into action Sunday as the first demonstrators arrived and the tenor of the white crowd became apparent. Lally termed the onlookers a "vicious crowd" and said the slightest provocation could have touched off a major riot.

As the demonstrators walked down a ramp into the 68-acre park nestled in groves of trees, they were met by James P. Price, co-owner of the Gwynn Oak Amusement Park, who told them they were not welcome. At the end of the ramp, police waited to arrest and charge with trespass those who failed to heed Price's warning.

Under Maryland law, a business proprietor may refuse admission to whom he chooses.

COME IN GROUPS

The integrationists came in groups of 10 to 15, spaced 20 minutes apart. As the arrest orders were given for each group, all knelt on the pavement singing "We Shall Overcome," a rally song of the civil rights movement.

Many were young adults facing arrest for the first time. Several young white women fought back tears as they faced the white mob only 20 feet away.

Four white and two Negro demonstrators managed to enter the park by wading Gwynn Falls, a stream that meanders around the rear of the property.

A white woman among the six demonstrators who waded the stream was struck above the right eye by a rock thrown by someone in the crowd. It required 10 stitches to close the wound. Police used two K9 dogs to get the six through the mob to a patrol wagon.

* * *

Among those arrested Sunday were three Rabbis, including Rabbi Israel Goldman, co-chairman of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, a state agency.

A number of Catholic priests joined picket lines in front of the park, but none was arrested.

Say Sno' Boy Went Down

MIAMI (UPI) — The Coast Guard said today it had received a message from a Navy task force searching for the vessel Sno'Boy, missing for six days with 40 aboard, that the ship apparently swamped or broke up on a reef "with no survivors."

A spokesman at Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters here said the message was received yesterday from the commander of the Navy task force searching in the Caribbean south of Jamaica for the 63-foot Sno'Boy.

"From evidence on hand it is believed the Sno'Boy either swamped in high seas or broke up on a reef with no survivors," the message said.

Bunning May Oppose O'Toole in All-Star Tilt

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim O'Toole of the Cincinnati Reds was named today as the starting pitcher for the National League in the baseball all-star game Tuesday. Manager Alvin Dark made the announcement.

Ralph Houk, manager of the American League team, said he was undecided about the American League starter. He said it would be either Ken McBride of Los Angeles or Jim Bunning of Detroit.

Pranks Keep Police Active

County Youths Fake Shooting, Bloody Arm

Pranks by separate groups of youths last night pressed several county police departments into action and left several persons unnerved.

A half hour later, police received the first of several reports of a bleeding body being transported in a car trunk.

* * *

* * *

Restaurant patrons told police that four youths preceded Murphy into the restaurant, then feigned concern for their safety as he arrived with a gun.

Murphy entered the building and fired a shot with a 22-caliber blank cartridge pistol. One of the youths pretended to be hit and fell to the floor.

Murphy fled and the other three, carrying the "body" also left the restaurant.

The "body" in the trunk was first reported at 11:30 p.m. when a motorist spotted a bloody arm hanging out of a late model Chevrolet at Sashabaw and Dixie, Waterford Township.

Several minutes later someone else saw the car heading south and called the sheriff's department which joined state police and Waterford Township police in the search.

The same "body" was spotted in Berkley about 12:30 a.m.

State police obtained the car's license number and arrested two Waterford Township juveniles when they arrived home at 4 a.m. today.

* * *

The boys admitted the hoax and said they had conceived the idea at a restaurant. Catsup was spread on the arm of the youth in the trunk.

Two Passengers Rob Taxi Driver, Escape on Foot

Richard Martin, 28, of 3331 Grant, told police that one of the men placed a knife at his throat after he had driven them to Howard McNeill Street shortly after 11 p.m.

He was then ordered by the pair to drive them to Gillespie and Lake where they fled toward an old housing project, Martin said.

* * *

When the two jumped from the car, Martin fired several shots at them from a small caliber pistol he had hidden in the taxi, according to Pontiac Police.

Martin said he had picked up the two men at different locations on South Saginaw.

Hearing to Be Continued on Rezoning of 3 Lots

BIRMINGHAM — A hearing will be continued tonight on the rezoning of three lots designated by the planning board as a potential "buffer" strip between businesses and homes.

* * *

The City Commission's decision on the best use of the lots may hinge on a policy statement received from the Federal Housing Administration since the original hearing on the matter.

The FHA reported it "will not guarantee a mortgage on residential property that abuts or fronts onto a commercial parking facility, regardless of how it is screened or maintained or developed."

Being considered are three triangular lots on an alley behind the west side of Woodward four blocks north of 14-Mile Road.

* * *

Now zoned one- and two-family residential, the lots would serve Woodward businesses if rezoned for parking.

The city planning board recommended that the lots be rezoned upon the request of the property owner.

City ordinances require that parking lots have six-foot walls on the sides abutting residential property and a brick faced wall on the front.

* * *

The latter must be constructed at least as far back as the building line of the adjacent property, in this case 25 feet.

In a report to the commission, City Manager L. R. Gare noted that the FHA would not approve the property for a mortgage if it were developed residentially because it is on an alley adjacent to commercial property.

The question about FHA financing was brought up June 24 by neighboring landowners opposed to the zone change.

Leslie D. Stauffer

Service for Leslie D. Stauffer, 75, of 230 Westwood will be 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in McPherson, Ohio.

* * *

Mr. Stauffer died Saturday after a short illness. Before his retirement in 1961, he was project engineer with the Austin Co. Industrial builders, Detroit, having been with the firm for 30 years.

In recognition of his record both as a college athlete and coach, Mr. Stauffer was chosen as one of the first seven electees to the Ohio Wesleyan Hall of Fame.

He was a member of the Ohio Wesleyan Associates, trustee of Ohio Delta chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and a member of Detroit Economic Club and Orchard Lake Country Club.

He was a former trustee of the First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham.

* * *

Surviving are his wife Mary N.; two daughters, Mrs. Ralph M. Fox of Bloomfield Hils and Mrs. Alice S. Kitts of Birmingham; a son, Robert N. of Marimont, Ohio; and nine grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the L. D. Stauffer Memorial Fund, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio.

Mrs. Stuart M. Allen

Service for Mrs. Stuart M. (Mina) Allen, 73, of 504 W. Frank, will be 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Allen died Friday. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and the Senior Activities Club and Missionary B of her church.

She also belonged to the Birmingham Woman's Club.

3 More VIPs Linked With Sex Scandal

LONDON (AP)—A British newspaper says three more government ministers have been linked to the sex scandals exciting the British public.

The Sunday paper The People said the ministers' names have been turned over to Lord Denning, who is investigating sex and security antics in high circles. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan appointed Denning to investigate security aspects of former War Minister John Profumo's affair with call girl Christine Keeler while she was also the mistress of a Soviet naval attache.

* * *

The People said Denning has been told compromising photographs exist involving one minister and possibly two.

"One of the pictures was in a set of photographs produced during a recent divorce case," the paper said. "Some people claim that a leading minister is recognizable in the photograph."

* * *

"The third minister is also the subject of a rumor that connects him with the Christine Keeler set. Lord Denning has been told of a meeting between a minister and a girl."

Possible Astronette Rides Bike

men's, since no other standards for sex had been established. The result of this test alone could be decisive in determining whether to test other women as possible flight trainees.

A swarm of intent technicians came to me . . . whipped a blood pressure cuff around my left arm . . . applied head and torso sensors to pick up heartbeat, pulse, and respiration . . . attached nose clamps . . . inserted the oxygen breathing device in my mouth, and fitted the connecting tube to the bag.

"Now? Ready?" asked Dr. Luft. "Go!"

* * *

Behind me some attachment was shifted so that as I pumped to the steady tock-tock-tock of the metronome, I was pulling an increasing load. It was like keeping the pace cycling up an ever-steeper hill.

Later I learned that my heart worked up to 180 beats per minute, twice the normal rate and considered to be the physical exhaustion point. Perspiration began to drip into my eyes.

If I could last through this, without my legs giving out or a blackout occurring, if my breathing, heartbeat and blood pressure would return to normal in a measured period, then a most vital part of the testing would be accomplished.

TALKED AND PRAYED

I could feel my lungs trying to gulp the one deep breath there was no time to take. I talked to myself and prayed, "Help me not to falter, Lord, give me strength to make it all the way."

The metronome was a relentless master.

"Well, then, Jerrie, make use of it before it overpowers you. It's only counting rhythm, not minutes. Listen—one, two, three, four, five . . . fifteen times in easy, and it's halfway to thirty. If I make thirty, I know good and well I can make forty-five. Then—six, seven, eight, nine—why not go for sixty?

* * *

My thumping heart and the metronome rhythm and my mental count all merged into a noisy torce driving my legs.

"You okay?" a voice asked. "Um!" I nodded.

I suddenly felt a surge of new strength. Exultantly, I knew then and surely that I wasn't going to collapse, that I would go the distance. "Second wind" had been granted me. Pedal, pedal, pedal—tock, tock, tock.

METRONOME CEASED

"All right, Jerrie, you can stop." The metronome ceased its clacking.

"Just sit there and relax." Sit there? I'd hate to have been told to move.

You don't just hop off the bicycle (when you're finally able) and get the word. The charts must be read, the oxygen consumption determined, and the statistics from body check-points correlated.

* * *

There was nothing more I could do. I had literally given my all.

On a bench in the dressing alcove, as I drowsed in my sweat-warmed clothes, my mind projected bits and pieces as I wondered where and how "now" had all begun.

I used to spend hours in the treetops watching birds fly. Was I looking to the future or did I just like trees? . . .

* * *

The first time I set an altitude record, I made 30,961 feet. That's just short of six miles. I remember it didn't seem far enough. . . .

Guess I've been on a lifelong search for space.

Flint Workers Get Top Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Department of Labor report shows Flint's factory production workers earned the highest weekly pay in the nation in 1962 while Detroit ranked third.

* * *

The average Flint pay was $135.30 at an hourly rate of $3.18, while the Detroit pay was $130.24 at $3.08 hourly.

* * *

The report said the earnings reflected long work weeks in the auto industry.

N. J. Terrorist Is Held in Jail

Admits Killings, Rape in 10-Hour Blood Bath

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — Richard (Teddy) Coleman, perpetrator of a 10-hour reign of terror in Linden, sat in jail today as authorities prepared a series of charges against him.

* * *

Police say Coleman, 36, a truck driver, has admitted shooting to death his wife and sister-in-law, wounding three other persons and abducting and raping Mary Kaminski, 18.

* * *

Coleman was arraigned Sunday, before Magistrate Joseph C. Monico on a charge of killing his wife, Millie, 37. Monico ordered Coleman held for preliminary hearing July 22.

Assistant Prosecutor John J. Dugan of Union County said Coleman also would be charged with the slaying of his sister-in-law, Ruby Coleman, 43, the rape and pistol whipping of Miss Kaminski, and the three other shootings.

ANGRY AT WIFE

The ten hours of crime began Friday afternoon when Coleman became enraged at his wife who planned to leave him.

Police said he shot his wife in their home at 1119 McCandless St. Then he went to 1115 McCandless St., where he killed his sister-in-law and critically wounded his brother, Harry, 52.

Coleman, armed with a 38-caliber automatic and 25-caliber revolver, continued up McCandless Street to the home of Anna Kube, where he shot Mrs. Kube's daughter-in-law, Marianne Kube. Minutes later he wounded Leroy Edwards, 48, on the street.

* * *

Coleman drove away, police said, but parked his car and followed Irene Kaminski, 13, to her home. He held eight members of the family and a visitor hostage for about four hours before forcing Mary to leave with him in the Kaminski car.

Driver Sees His Way Clear to Second Car

Driving along a street Saturday night, Edelman noticed that the car ahead of him looked vaguely familiar—like the one that was stolen from him on June 9.

So he pulled the car over and found, sure enough, it was his.

He held the driver, Peter Orser, 18, Millwood, until police arrived.

Funeral Service Held for Ex-TWA Chief Pilot

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Funeral service was held yesterday for George Kenneth Rice, former chief pilot for Trans World Airlines who learned to fly during World War I.

Rice, 65, who had logged more than 10 million miles during his career, died of cancer Saturday.

The first white man in modern times to see the new world was not Christopher Columbus. He was Rodrigo de Triana, a lookout on the Pinta in Columbus' fleet.

Crown Queen in Holly Twp.

HOLLY TOWNSHIP — Elspeth Grate, tall in stature and in talent, was crowned queen of Holly Township's 125th anniversary celebration Saturday night.

* * *

Holly's queen is 5 feet 8, weighs 139 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes.

Her coronation came near the end of the three-day event which drew more than 20,000 persons to the Holly Township Beach.

* * *

She received her crown from 1956 queen Marilyn Henry, a mezzo-contralto who has just completed a two-year tenure with the Tri-City Opera Company in Binghamton, N.Y.

As she faces her junior year at Holly High School, she is already looking forward to a college major in instrumental music and voice.

Elspeth said she will use the $50 she won in the queen contest to help pay for the piano, organ and voice lessons she now takes.

ACTIVE STUDENT

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Grate of 5270 E. M37, Holly Township, Elspeth is active at school and especially busy on Sundays.

She joins her mother, the director of the United Presbyterian Church choir, to play the organ and sing. The organist at St. Rita's Catholic Church, Elspeth is also substitute musician at the Davisburg Methodist Church during the summer.

At the end of August, she was to be a lifeguard at a Presbyterian camp near Tyrone.

* * *

Fall will find Holly's queen back in high school, where her extracurricular activities include varsity cheerleading, a membership on the student council and serving as secretary of her class for a third term.

Carol Starr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buel Starr, 12810 Holly Road, Holly Township, was the first runner-up in the contest.

Other members of the court are Sandy Vack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Vack, 7188 Holly Road, Holly Township, second; Janie Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gobel Powell, 1015 Bevins, Holly, third; and Gail Herrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Herrington, North Holly Road, Holly Township, fourth.

* * *

The five finalists were chosen from 22 contestants Thursday on the opening day of the celebration, but the queen was not announced until Saturday.

They were joined for Saturday night's program by the cherub queen and princess who were picked Thursday from a field of 28 contestants.

Lois Bailey, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Bailey of 213 Park, Holly, is cherub queen. Princess is Patricia Taylor, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Taylor, 306 Sherman, Holly.

* * *

PAIR OF QUEENS — Holly Township's cherub queen, 3-year-old Lois Bailey, is slightly awed by Elspeth Grate, chosen to reign as the 125th anniversary queen Saturday night. The coronation climaxed a three-day celebration.

Waterford Hill Proves Value, Belies 'Waste' Description

By JOE MULLEN

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP —Waterford Hill, once described as "wasteland," is proving its worth.

Sometimes called Christmas Tree Mountain, the hill in recent years has caught the fancy of land developers and builders. It has become one of the area's finest residential sites.

* * *

Its history dates back to Indian days. Early settlers reported that Chief Pontiac once held council with his braves on Waterford Hill.

With its great height and flat peak, the hill was the foremost site for smoke signaling operations by the Indians, according to reports.

Early land transaction records reveal the hill was included in the sale of section 34 of Independence Township to an Alphonse Williams in the early 1700s.

TOO STEEP

It was in connection with this sale that the hill was termed wasteland—too steep to farm. Further notations referred to it as possessing "worthless elevation."

The original hill tract stretched from the present Dixie Highway west to Greens Lake and north toward the junction of Dixie and M-15. One of the highest points in the county, the hill overlooks more than 20 lakes.

* * *

Contrary to common belief, the hill is located entirely in Independence Township. It is separated from the northern boundary of Waterford Township by Van Norman Lake.

Long a landmark to travelers returning from northern Michigan to the metropolitan area, the property has more than 50 species of trees. A series of plateaus ring the hill, making several elevations of flat land.

The hill has had several owners through the years. The lake at its southern tip was named after the Van Norman family, which owned the property from 1886 to 1916.

L. H. Haas purchased the hill from the Van Normans in 1916 and sold it to Ernest W. Seaholm on July 6, 1931.

DEVELOPS HILL

Seaholm, for whom a Birmingham high school is named, developed the hill extensively during the 19 years he maintained ownership. During this period several hundred trees were planted, buildings were erected and the hill was generally beautified.

Seaholm sold the property to Harris Rogers Oct. 20, 1950. Rogers sold it to radio station WJR two years later.

WJR reportedly had visions of utilizing the elevated site for a television tower installation but this plan was ruled out due to the proximity of Pontiac Municipal Airport.

* * *

The more than 200-acre parcel was sold by WJR to its present owners, the Waterford Hill Development Company, August 26, 1965.

$500,000 Fire Hits Schuler's

Famed Restaurant Destroyed in 2 Hours

ST. JOSEPH (UPI) — A $500,000 fire destroyed the famed Wm. Schuler restaurant near here Saturday night, forcing 200 patrons to flee the burning building.

* * *

The blaze started in a charcoal oven and spread to the ceiling. It was briefly contained, then shot through the roof and spread rapidly. The building was a charred ruin within two hours.

Four firemen were slightly injured when an explosion blew out the windows a half hour after the blaze started. Every available fire company in the area helped fight the blaze. Hundreds of motorists stopped their cars to watch.

The damage estimate was made by Michael Hurst, executive vice president for the Schuler district office at Marshall. He said the building was insured.

* * *

Hurst said a decision on whether to rebuild would be made in a week or two.

Teen Burns Mother, Gets 1 Year in Jail

LANSING (UPI) — An 18-year-old youth who admittedly assaulted and burned his mother with a cigarette has been sentenced to a maximum one year in the Ingham County jail.

John R. Jackson, who pleaded guilty to aggravated assault June 21, was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Louis E. Cook.

The youth admitted striking his mother and burning her because she would not give him more spending money.

ELAINE M. ROBINSON

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Robinson, 47907 Dequindre, Avon Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Elaine Margaret to Jack M. Magee. The prospective bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Magee, 850 Lapeer Road, Oxford Township. No wedding date has been set.

JOAN H. BAILEY

An Oct. 26 wedding is being planned by Joan H. Bailey and Robert H. Newton, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Bailey, 32 Mill St., Oxford. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Newton, 354 Cantley, Lakeville.

To Discuss Problem of Obscene Literature

ROCHESTER—John Danahey, Warren attorney, will speak on problems produced by the ever-increasing tide of obscene literature at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Municipal Building.

The speech is free and open to the adult public. This will be Danahey's second speech here sponsored by the Rochester Area Council for Better Literature.

Detroit Blaze Lasts 2 Hours

DETROIT (UPI) — A fire here Saturday routed 35 residents out of an apartment and damaged three houses, two garages and three sheds.

* * *

It took two hours for some 50 firemen to control the blaze.

Capt. Frank W. Kent of the fire department, said flames of the blaze could be seen two miles away.

* * *

He said the fire spread from a rubbish heap behind the apartment building where scrap lumber was being burned.

To Pick 'Peach' in Ortonville

Take Applications for Queen Contest

ORTONVILLE — This community's first official entry in the Romeo Peach Queen contest will be selected July 26.

Applications will be received up to 7 p.m. the night of the judging, said contest chairman Mrs. Douglas Grovesteen, 3071 Grange Hall Road, Ortonville. Mrs. Grovesteen urged, however, that candidates mail her a list of their qualifications as soon as possible.

Entrants must be between 17½ and 21, unmarried, either a high school senior or graduate, and a resident of Brandon School District.

The winner will be named Miss Ortonville, and go on to compete against queens from neighboring communities for the honor of reigning over the Romeo Peach Festival Labor Day weekend.

* * *

The community had a candidate for Peach Queen in 1959 although there was no official competition for the crown.

Veachel Bilyeu represented the village then and two years later became Pontiac's Centennial Queen.

In the local contest, entrants will appear before a panel of judges in sportswear, casual dress and formal attire. They will be rated on poise, personality and appearance.

Capture One of 3 Convicts

Still Search for 2 Jackson Escapees

JACKSON (UPI) — One of three convicts who escaped from the trusty block of the Southern Michigan Prison here was captured by authorities near here Saturday.

Still being sought, however, were two other convicts who broke out of the prison with him.

Robert Johnson, 29, who had been serving a 2- to 16-year term for breaking and entering, was captured in the Goose Lake area near here.

Still being sought were Kenneth Ipman, 32, serving 3-14 years for passing a bad check in Oakland County and John Ryan, 33, sentenced to 2-5 years for assault with intent to commit armed robbery in Detroit.

Police were tipped off on Johnson's whereabouts by a 16-year-old Goose Lake boy, Richard Till, who spotted three "suspicious-looking" men near his home.

Researchers at The University of Michigan developed a bite-size gadget to get samples of stomach tissue without expensive exploratory surgery.

Susan Sutherland Becomes Mrs. Asad

MRS. DOUGLAS S. ASAD

LAKE ORION — Susan Sutherland became Mrs. Douglas Samuel Asad in a double-ring wedding performed Saturday afternoon in Cooley Gardens, Lansing.

The Cooley Gardens were given to the City of Lansing by the bride's maternal grandparents, the Eugene F. Cooleys.

Mr. and Mrs. Loy M. Sutherland, 250 Cayuga, are the bride's parents. The bridegroom, of Chicago, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Charles Asad of Parma, Ohio.

The bride chose for her gown a Mr. Rujaine original in full-length jersanese, shirred and draped in Grecian style. It featured a cowl neckline, seed pearl trim and a chapel-length train shirred from the shoulders and bordered with Swiss appliques.

* * *

BRIDAL BOUQUET

The bridal bouquet was formed by gardenias and lilies of the valley mounted on a Rainbow Bible.

* * *

Taking part as bridesmaids were Katherine McMahon of Racine, Wis., Jane Nissen of Albuquerque, N. M., Bobbi Robertson of Huntington Park, Md., Caroline McMillan and Mrs. James Bullock, both of Oxford, and Mrs. Gene Gossage of Evanston, Ill.

The bridegroom asked his brother Thomas to serve as best man. Head usher was Gene Gossage of Evanston, Ill.

Also seating guests were Stuart Holcomb Jr. of Peoria, Ill.; Dewitt Hoopes of Denver; John Richard and James Behrens, both of Chicago; and David Elmer and Dale Finley, both of Cleveland.

Immediately following the afternoon nuptials, a reception was held at the Country Club of Lansing.

Park Crowds Set Records

June Sends Throngs to Huron-Clinton Area

A Michigan heat wave in June brought record-breaking attendance at two of the three major parks of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, according to Kenneth L. Hallenbeck, director of the five-county regional park agency.

Kensington Metropolitan Park, near Milford, established a new record for the month of June and the largest total daily attendance on record.

Over 482,000 visitors poured into the 4,300 acre park during June, compared to the previous high of over 362,000 in June of 1959.

Over 51,400 persons visited Kensington Metropolitan Park Sunday, June 30 — the largest crowd on record for a single day since the park opened in 1948.

Metropolitan Beach, on Lake St. Clair near Mt. Clemens, had over 366,000 persons visit the park last month, a new record. The previous high was over 234,000 in June 1962.

Over 43,200 persons visited Metropolitan Beach on Sunday, June 30 — the largest crowd on record for a single day since the beach was dedicated in 1951.

Model Fliers Plan Contest

STERLING TOWNSHIP — The Radio Control Club of Detroit will hold its annual contest for radio controlled model airplanes Saturday and Sunday at the old Wings Airport.

Contestants from all over the country will compete at the airport, located on 18-Mile, a quarter mile west of Mound.

Two different categories of stunt flying, pylon racing and a scale model event round out the program. There are ample parking and refreshment facilities for spectators.

Contest hours both days are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Giant Fire Strikes Scrap Lumber Firm

Firemen from five Macomb County communities — Warren, St. Clair Shores, Center Line, East Detroit and Roseville — fought the blaze at 13875 Ten Mile Road.

Police said the fire, which destroyed large quantities of material but did not damage two buildings, apparently started from a grass fire.

There was no damage estimate.

One Tax Plan for State-Kuhn

Berkley Mayor Hits Income Levy 'Surplus'

DETROIT (UPI) — Mayor George Kuhn of Berkley said today it is "unthinkable" that the state could have two or even three separate income tax plans.

Kuhn is head of the Vigilance Tax Committee, a group of suburban officials fighting the Detroit one per cent income tax imposed last summer.

The Berkley mayor said "we will not tolerate the continuance of the Detroit income tax as well as the adoption of a state income tax. It is unthinkable to have two or three income tax plans in Michigan."

Kuhn's group has asked for a meeting with Gov. George Romney "to talk to him about fiscal reform before he wraps up his program."

But the mayor said Romney turned down an invitation to address the group this Saturday. Kuhn said Romney will be offered other dates in August — the 3rd, 10th and 17th.

* * *

He said Romney's legal adviser, Richard Van Dusen, offered to meet with the committee at any time.

"That is not satisfactory to the committee," Kuhn said. "We'd like to hear the governor."

Former King Calls Off Lansing Trip

LANSING (UPI) — Former King Peter II of Yugoslavia today cancel a scheduled visit to the state capital for speaking engagements at Michigan State University and a Lansing church.

Spokesman for the ex-king's visit here, said the exact reason for the cancellation was not known.

Peter, 39, who became king at 11 and was deposed at 18, is on an American tour. Yesterday, he visited his former subjects in Detroit.

After attending services of the Serbian Orthodox Catholic Church in the American-Serbian Memorial Hall, Peter told about 500 of his former countrymen:

"I like to see you happy and be good Americans."

Peter was guest of honor at a $5-a-plate dinner. A member of the church welcoming committee said Peter would be given some of the proceeds to cover expenses of his Detroit visit.

National Guard Faces Severe Budget Cuts

CAMP GRAYLING (UPI) — The Michigan National Guard strained to get the most out of its two weeks' summer training today amid reports it may have to operate on a scantier budget this fiscal year.

★ ★ ★

Maj. Gen. Ronald D. Mc Donald, the state Adjutant General, revealed the National Guard budget bill approved by the House of Representatives for the fiscal year that began July 1 could:

—Seriously cut back attendance of Guard officers and enlisted men at regular Army training schools.

—Force a reduction in the number of full-time military technicians employed by the Guard in Michigan.

McDonald said he had been informed by Rep. Gerald Ford (R-Mich.) that appropriations for construction of the Grand Rapids and Greenville armories were not included in the National Guard bill approved by the House.

PROJECT COST

The federal government was to contribute $790,000 for the Grand Rapids armory, which will be built in that community's suburb of Wyoming, and $280,000 for the Grandville Armory. Local and state funds are already available for the two projects, which will cost about $1.27 million and $445,000 respectively.

National Guard troops in both cities now use leased armories for training. Preliminary plans have already been approved for the Greenville armory and are near completion for the Grand Rapids building and it had been hoped construction would begin this year.

Mc Donald said if the money is not restored to the appropriation bill the work would have to wait at least another year.

In years gone by the Senate usually has upped House-drawn National Guard appropriations, but there is little likelihood of this occurring again, Mc Donald said.

"There is still a remote possibility Michigan might get something out of the 1963-64 construction fund," Mc Donald said, "But it is unlikely. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has said if the House wanted the money included it should have put it in the bill itself."

Next to the setback in armory construction, Mc Donald said, Michigan's Guard efforts would be most seriously injured by a $243,000 reduction in funds for training. "That's what we'll lose if the House bill is not changed by the Senate," the Adjutant General said.

"Training would suffer in that officers and enlisted men would be unable to go to refresher courses offered by active Army service schools," he said.

"The cutbacks could about wipe out the refresher courses. It would mean service schools for officer qualification and promotion ratings would be greatly curtailed. About 250 people went to these various schools last year from the 46th."

It Seems to Me....

U. S. Foreign Aid Program Continues to Be Big Problem

Representative Otto Passman, D-Louisiana, is authority for the statement that your Uncle Santa Claus has lavished foreign aid on 101 different nations.

What did we get back?

★ ★ ★

Approximately $100 billion of your money has disappeared into the hungry maw of the gimme, gimme, gimme nations. Basically, it's supposed to have dispensed aid for the needy, food for the starving and clothes for the unclad. Once we all thought it did.

Now we're disillusioned.

★ ★ ★

Once we believed we were earning the respect, the friendship and the affection of the recipients in exchange for these titanic sums.

Did we really do so?

★ ★ ★

Some of those that have secured the largest sums turned squarely against us as traitors in showdown votes at the U.N. Some that we thought were really thankful, have looked down their noses as soon as our checks were cashed. And some who approached on bended knees with outstretched hands have taken all the largess that could be extracted and then turned to Russia and brushed us off.

★ ★ ★

The humiliation of our world-wide treatment and the slogan "Yanks, go home," spread so rapidly that even some of those that championed foreign aid grew exasperated and reduced appropriations by a few hundred million as a "warning." The President thinks foreign aid is one of the reasons peace still exists in the world and that it is important to continue on a gigantic scale, but he hasn't as many supporters as he had once.

★ ★ ★

It's time the foreign aid program was wiped out entirely and a new start made. Instead of repeating the appalling sums previously tossed about, let's make every last recipient prove each individual case, starting from scratch. If this is impractical, then let's lop a billion and a half off the total.

★ ★ ★

Personally, the undersigned is sick of buying private jets for the rulers of European, Asiatic and African countries. He's sick of keeping call girls in lavish Paris apartments with our "foreign aid," and resents every inch of that luxury liner with gold fixtures and air conditioning for some small time pooh-bah.

Let's review our role of Uncle Sucker. Sen. Hart and Representative Broomfield, I address you two directly.

Do you agree?

Main Issues . . .

In New York, The Daily News asked a representative group of readers to name the biggest issues in the coming Presidential campaign.

Their answers were fairly well concentrated in three categories:

A—Civil rights.

B—Cuba.

C—Taxes.

The full blown campaign is still a year away, but these three issues are hardy perennials. Civil rights will probably have been more clearly defined, but it's too soon to expect a permanent solution and each party will be taxed with a personal answer, aware that anything they say will be used "for and against them."

The Cuban situation is drifting hopelessly. The President's brave pronouncement won the admiration of the civilized world, but helpless and hopeless inaction and temporizing have dissipated his advantage. We wallow ineptly in a lost faith.

★ ★ ★

Taxes are always with us.

We can't escape.

The Democrats take the lead in ramming home newer, greater and stiffer assessments, but the Republicans merely stumble along with no forthright platform or program. They wring their hands and deplore the unerring pathway to national or international bankruptcy — but do nothing.

★ ★ ★

And in Conclusion....

Political insiders of both parties agree that if the GOP convention were held tomorrow, Barry Goldwater would win in a walk. . . . . Valentina Tereshkova, Russian space gal, has received several thousand proposals of marriage and the mail still pours in. . . . . Here are the names of the fall hurricanes as they occur: Arlene, Beulah, Cindy, Debra, Edna, Flora, Ginny, Helene, Irene and Janice. (The second ten on application.) . . . . . I saw "Cleo" and agree with thousands: Some of the scenes are the greatest ever filmed, the photography's terrific and so's Liz. But it's one hour too long.

★ ★ ★

and Karras won't be in the Lions' lineup.

. . . . . Trusted scouts advise me Judy Mohrman is one of the area's especially attractive young ladies. JUDY . . . . . Overheard: "Christine Keeler's going straight down the ladder, wrong by wrong." . . . . . U. S. News says college enrollments have increased 200,000 a year for five years and come September will stand at 4.4 million. A year hence it will be, 4.8, two years later 5.2 and in 1970 — hold your breath — 7 million.

★ ★ ★

Overheard: "Don't smoke in bed. The ashes on the floor may be yours." . . . . . They have new drugs that are calculated to make you grow taller and early experiments prove they are amazingly successful. . . . . Roger Maris' foul language on the field indicates he's just as big a tramp as he was the year he broke the home run record. . . . . Motorola is introducing a new compact color set in the fall that starts at $625. . . . . Eunice Shriver, JFK's sister: "Brother, you should put more fire in your speeches." JFK: "And you, my dear sister, should put more speeches in the fire." . . . . . Dept. of Cheers and Jeers: the C's—those who refrain from using water during the prohibited period; the J's — those scoundrels who use it.

—Harold A. Fitzgerald

Or Does It Just Seem Like That?

David Lawrence Says:

Congress Creates Retail Chaos

WASHINGTON — An era of confusion, if not chaos, in the retail business in America seems to be on the way due to an unprecedented stretching of the law-making power such as is being proposed by Congress — without the support of a single Supreme Court decision.

LAWRENCE

For Congress is being urged by the administration to yield, in effect, to a stampede of street "demonstrations" and pass a law which creates virtually a federal dictatorship over the relations of private business and its customers.

The legislation recommended by President Kennedy and his brother, the attorney general, is ostensibly directed at racial discrimination. They deem it constitutional, even though the Supreme Court has never ruled that the federal government could expand the interstate commerce clause to cover control over who may or may not be served in business.

While labor unions at present fix hours and wages, they do so by a joint contract with the employer, who has the right—without penalty of law — to refrain from entering into any contract he does not like.

He may choose union or non-union employes, but it is his decision. With the racial problem as its leverage, federal control of employment practices becomes a powerful instrument of national politics.

"AFFECTS" COMMERCE

If the proposed law on "public accommodations," moreover, is held valid by the Supreme Court, there is no end to the powers that could be exercised on the mere pretext that it "affects" interstate commerce.

The Constitution, of course, speaks only of the power of Congress to "regulate" interstate commerce — not the behavior of persons or their rights to select their own customers.

If it be conceded that all men are created equal and are presumably to be given equal opportunity to earn equal compensation when they do the same work, then a standardized system analogous to that which prevails under communism can be as logically applied by the government here by merely invoking the doctrine of "equal pay for equal work."

The private enterprise system would thereupon be materially changed. A political administration then becomes the judge of efficiency.

★ ★ ★

Meantime, what is beginning to bother many small business people, especially restaurant owners, is that the moment they open their doors to all kinds of customers, they begin to lose patronage.

They know that, if they allowed white persons, for instance, in dirty clothing and of disheveled appearance to frequent their restaurants other customers would stay away.

Yet, if a Negro dressed in the same way should be refused a seat in the restaurant among white customers, the owner could be threatened with federal punishment.

It is being argued by some members of congress that interstate commerce in its total dollar amount will be expanded if there is no racial discrimination. Will the total number of customers, however, suddenly increase?

Will Negroes eat more than before? Rather, it is as easy to speculate that many restaurants will be hurt, and no small part of the damage will be inflicted upon those who now cater primarily to the Negro trade.

Irrespective of the merits of the current controversy, many a member of congress who votes for a system of employment that could mean regulation of promotions or salary classifications by government edict is bound to encounter a new wave of protest in the next election. It could make deep inroads inside both parties and furnish a real surprise.

Single-Administrator Idea Loses Force in Congress

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The idea of putting the nation's atomic energy program under a single administrator appears to be dormant for the time being.

Sen. John O. Pastore (D.R.I.), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, says he has no plans to hold hearings on such a proposal unless President Kennedy strongly requests it.

★ ★ ★

Any move to abolish the present five-member Atomic Energy Commission and substitute a one-man head for the program would have to win the approval of the joint committee and Congress.

Pastore once said he was interested in the single administrator ideas as a means of giving the chief executive tighter control of the vast atomic program.

Other committee members, including Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.), the vice chairman, have opposed the single administrator plan from the first.

They have said that the five-member commission setup has served the joint committee and the country well by offering a way to make public dissenting opinions to the actions of any strong-minded chairman.

★ ★ ★

Stories of administration interest in abolishing the commission form appeared a year ago in the wake of reports of some differences between scientist and lawyer members.

John G. Palfrey, an AEC member, referred to these at a recent hearing of the joint committee.

He said that before he became a member last year he had heard stories "about scientists against lawyers on the commission."

But, he added, "thus far I have yet to find a single occurrence in which lawyers took one position and scientists took another."

★ ★ ★

Palfrey and James T. Ramey, former staff director of the joint committee, are lawyers. Seaborg and Dr. Gerald F. Tape, just named to the AEC last month, are scientists. The fifth member and only holdover from the Eisenhower administration, Robert E. Wilson, is a former oil company executive.

'Communism in Cuba Continues to Flourish'

Has the United States a foreign policy, so necessary in the worldwide turmoil of our times. The answer is: "NO!"

Before the Bay of Pigs flop, President Kennedy said: "Communism in the Western Hemisphere is not negotiable." Then he proceeded to negotiate it.

★ ★ ★

He assured Khrushchev that if he would withdraw his missiles (most of them are still there) we would not invade Cuba or let any other nation. Apparently, he now considers the Communist military buildup in Cuba an accomplished fact and the Monroe Doctrine a dead issue.

★ ★ ★

We send troops and sacrifice American blood 10,000 miles away —to block the advance of communism in Southeast Asia—and quarantine Cuban patriots so they cannot harass Castro and try to throw communism out of Cuba on the very rim of the United States.

In reply to "One of Ninety-Nine," most people don't realize that a ham operator is even on their block. We try to keep in our neighbors' good graces by preventing any interference that might affect their TV or radio.

★ ★ ★

Often a lot of the trouble can be traced to poor design and workmanship in your own radio or TV. This is not the fault of the ham. Also, there is a class of radio operators called Citizenband users. They are not well versed in radio theory and are not hams.

'Can Churches Stop Sunday Shopping?'

Sunday sales seem to be increasing. The legislature doesn't seem to pass laws prohibiting this.

If all Christian churches would combine their efforts and ask their members not to patronize these stores on Sunday, it would make it unprofitable for them to stay open.

'Stands at Ball Park Need Screen'

During a Class A baseball game at Jaycee Park, a foul ball was hit into the stands. A couple with their young daughter was sitting in the area not protected by the screen. The youngster was hit in the chest and had to be rushed to the hospital. Many of the youngsters romp around, but this girl was sitting properly between her parents.

We should have a screen in front of all the stands. The field has relatively new lights, dugouts and scoreboard. How about protecting the spectators?

Never Too Old

The Cherryvale (Kan.) Republican

Men who are getting on in years should console themselves with the thought that when they get too old to set bad examples they can always start giving advice.

Upholds Ruling

The Christian Science Monitor

It may be hard for ardent religionists or laymen in the law to understand why a prescribed Bible reading or recitation of the Lord's Prayer in a public school violates the First Amendment of the United States Constitution.

★ ★ ★

But when eight of the nine justices of the Supreme Court agree that this is true, the lines of law must be pretty clear, notwithstanding the one carefully reasoned dissent.

★ ★ ★

The gist of the matter is this: America is a land of mixed religious backgrounds. Much of the freedom stems from the fact that only by tolerance for diverse faiths or for no faith could a viable republic be built. This has called for the rule that neither Congress nor a state should make any law "respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

★ ★ ★

Since a great majority believe in God, and since a lesser majority embrace one or another Christian faith, most of them probably would like to include some expression of reverence in the public schools. But to agree on what form that should take, without offense or unkindness to some minority, has proved virtually impossible.

★ ★ ★

And every majority at some point breaks down into minorities, especially in a nation where more than 50 denominations or divisions of denominations each claim 100,000 or more adherents. Almost any one which might be in sympathy with one form of school prayer might find itself unable to subscribe to another.

★ ★ ★

The Supreme Court has come to conclusions already reached in the United States by most educators and many churchmen: That separation of church and state is the only workable rule. And that, "The place of religion in our society is an exalted one, achieved through a long tradition of reliance on a home, the church, and the inviolable citadel of the individual heart and mind."

Resent Waste

The Denver Post

The U.S. Bureau of the Census has announced "a national survey to determine the average family's attitude toward money." And the answer is that most families resent Uncle Sam's waste of it, as in sending agents around to ask stupid questions!

Curtis Says 'No'

The Wall Street Journal

Conceded that there were lengthy discussions of the Administration's defense appropriations bill in committee.

Concede that when a measure of such complexity gets to the floor, legislators defer to the recommendations of the committee's experts. How is the average Congressman to know whether an active fleet of 872 ships is more necessary than the present fleet of 859?

★ ★ ★

And concede that the $47.1 billion measure represents a cut from the Administration's original request. Everybody is in favor of some economy, on paper at least, and certainly everybody is in favor of defense. But it does seem a little strange that the House vote on defense appropriations, after hardly any debate, was a lopsided 410 to 1. The lone dissenting vote, cast by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, a Missouri Republican, wasn't questioning the bill. He voted "No" because, he said, "we haven't got the money" and he hoped to call to people's attention the seriousness of deficit spending on top of the Government's enormous tax revenues.

★ ★ ★

Yet after all, it is defense, more than any other single activity, that takes the taxpayer's dollars. Is it unreasonable to suggest that he's entitled to a little more debate, discussion and maybe even downright discussion for his money?

Junior Editors Quiz on INSECTS

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: We often fail to realize how well equipped insects are to live their lives. The fact that these lives are very short means they have no time to learn anything; there is no schooling for an insect.

They start right in to live by following deeply laid instincts about which we know very little. But we do know that they use senses which in many cases are much keener than ours.

A honeybee, for example, can see ultra violet light; certain butterflies have a taste sense said to be over 1,000 times more sensitive than ours. Using such senses, the insect's instinct tells him what to do and where to go.

Insects have delicate organs of smell, located in the antennae usually projecting in front of their eyes. Using these, bees can smell the flowers and know which kind gives the best food supply. When honeybees find a new food supply they return to the hive and perform a kind of dance which tells the other bees where the flowers are (C).

The bee dances straight up if the flowers are toward the sun, at an angle if the flowers are in that direction from the sun. The large ant is laying down an "odor trail" by touching her abdomen to the ground (A). Then other ants will be able to rush out along this trail and reach the food supply she has found (B).

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: One can usually locate groups of ants looking for food. Drop a bit of cookie near them and watch for foraging ants to find it.

You can't see the odor trail, but you can tell there is one when swarms of other ants head toward the cookie.

Doctors Find Pin in Stomach of 4-Year-Old

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Doctors will take another X-ray look at Howard Levon's stomach today for an open safety pin, which got there Sunday through his nose.

Doctors at Pasadena Emergency Center couldn't remove the pin because the downward-pointing end would have caught on the side of the child's nose.

When they attempted to shove the pin through the nose and into the mouth, it slid down the throat and into the stomach.

Doctors sent Howard home with instructions to fill him up with mashed potatoes and bring him back today for further X-ray views of the pin's progress.

Hears Plans to Bounce Two Nations From U. N.

GENEVA (UPI)—United Nations Secretary General Thant met informally yesterday with U.N. officials and heard details of the African nations' plans to try to expel South Africa and Portugal from the United Nations, informed sources said.

The African nations walked out of an international labor organization conference here last month because of South African participation. They also had Portugal excluded from an education conference.

Town Soured on Sugar

ARP, Tex. (UPI)—A shipment of 15,000 saccharine tablets was to arrive today for residents of the east Texas town of Arp, whose citizens have vowed to quit eating sugar until prices drop.

The present calendar year makes an error by gaining one full day in every span of about 3,000 years.

Glenn Eying Politics?

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

POLITICAL ORBIT?: Is astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., 41, thinking about attempting a political orbit—perhaps in next year's race for the U.S. Senate?

Glenn replies to such speculation that he has no time for politics. A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration comments that political guesswork about Glenn sounds like a trial balloon.

★ ★ ★

But the speculation persists in Washington military circles, and some Ohio politicians say they wouldn't be surprised to see Glenn among the field seeking the seat of Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, which is up for grabs next year. Glenn is an Ohioan.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER: Settlement of a 100-year-old U.S.-Mexican boundary dispute may come soon, with the United States ceding a chunk of land in El Paso to its neighbor south of the border.

The dispute over the Chamizal —named for the chamiza, or brush, that grows there — dates back to 1864 when the Rio Grande changed its course at El Paso and U.S. citizens began moving into the affected area.

Terms of the proposed agreement reportedly include cutting a new channel to divert the river back to its old course. Rep. Ed Foreman, R-Tex., whose district includes the Chamizal area, said it may cost $80 million to resettle the estimated 4,000 U.S. citizens involved.

NEW SOURCES: Legislation is expected to be introduced in the Senate this week to put the weight of law behind the right claimed by newsmen to protect their confidential sources of information.

"We are all familiar with cases in which journalists have gone to jail rather than reveal their sources of information," said Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., in announcing the planned legislation.

Keating said the legislation would not affect the right to sue newspapers or broadcasters for libel or slander, but would strengthen the public's right to have a free press.

Teen Mobs at Diner

Youth Shot at Race Disorder Scene

NEW YORK (AP) — A white youth was shot and wounded slightly today outside a Bronx diner where racial disorders broke out over the weekend.

Several thousand whites, most of them teen-agers, jeered, threatened and jostled pickets — both white and Negro—from the Congress of Racial Equality Sunday.

★ ★ ★

Two white youths were arrested for refusing to obey police orders to keep moving. About 60 policemen dispersed the crowd.

★ ★ ★

Another crowd at the scene became unruly shortly after midnight. About 50 policemen were sent to break up the gathering. They included members of the tactical patrol force — specially trained six-footers with roving assignments to handle emergencies.

Less than a half hour later, a shot from a passing car struck Jack Cippolla, 18, of the Bronx, who was standing across the street from the diner. He told police four Negroes were in the car.

Ronald Sullivan, driver of a New York Times radio car, said he was right behind the gunman's car when the shot was fired. He stopped and took Cippolla, and a patrolman into his car. They gave chase, but the other car got away.

Cippolla was treated at a hospital for a cheek wound and released.

JOB DISPUTE

They want the diner chain to hire more Negroes. The pickets numbered about 30 most of the time. They began the demonstration Saturday.

The 24-hour diner closed its counter service Sunday but kept open its car-hop service. That, too, closed after the shooting at 12:30 a.m., but both re-opened a few hours later.

Police said teen-agers used the car-hop area as a hangout. They answered the pickets' chant of "Jim Crow must go" with "Shines (slang for Negroes) must go."

Police said they were plagued by teen-agers driving back and forth on the Boston Post Road, shouting taunts at the pickets. Some of the cars flew white handkerchiefs from radio antennas.

★ ★ ★

Dolly Dickens, public relations chairman of the Bronx CORE chapter, said that before police reinforcements arrived after Saturday midnight, pickets were harassed by "screaming, cursing white youths."

She said some shoved into the picket line and knocked over pickets.

"They threw hundreds of eggs, pieces of brick and even plastic ketchup bottles filled with lighter fluid and set aflame," she said.

She said she was grazed by a rock thrown by a youth aiming at a passing car.

Police described the neighborhood as racially mixed and normally quiet.

★ ★ ★

The manager of the diner said that management of the chain has told CORE officials that employes are hired on the basis of job qualification and not race. He said the chain has Negro employes, but could not say how many.

Plan Demonstrations in Downtown Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Negroes planned a civil rights demonstration at a downtown Omaha hotel today so a new biracial committee would do more than "just talk."

A minister said Omaha Negroes want an end to discrimination, particularly in housing and employment. He said his group is of the opinion that the mayor's committee and a similar one named recently by Gov. Frank Morrison are too large. The governor's group consists of 40 members.

"If you want to kill something, all you have to do is appoint a large enough committee and they'll talk it to death," the Rev. Rudolph McNair said.

He said city government, the mayor's office, the school system, banks, insurance firms, railroads and many other local businesses are almost entirely segregated.

The demonstration was described earlier as a planned "march on City Hall."

"There will be no march," the Rev. Mr. McNair, one of the leaders of the demonstration, said yesterday. Instead, he said, a group of Negroes would gather at 10:45 a.m. (Pontiac time) at the Sheraton-Fontenele Hotel. Mayor James Dworak's committee scheduled its first meeting for 11 a.m. at the same hotel.

The Rev. Mr. McNair, who heads the steering committee of the Citizens Coordinating Committee for Civil Liberties of the Omaha Ministerial Alliance, also is pastor of the Zion Baptist Church here.

He said "it's hard to tell" how many would show up for the demonstration. "Many are committed, but you never can tell how many actually will show up," he said. He said he had "no idea" how long the demonstration would last.

"These conditions have existed for many years and we don't need fact-finding committees to tell us they're here," the pastor said.

"All we have to do is look to know the problem exists. What we need are committees to act on the problems, not just talk about them."

Seeks Prosecutions of Visitors to Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. William C. Cramer, R-Fla., has given the Senate Internal Security subcommittee the names of 97 U.S. citizens who allegedly went to Cuba last year.

Cramer, whose April 3 testimony was made public yesterday by the subcommittee, demanded the prosecution of the 97. One of them, Mrs. Helen Maxine Levi Travia, was indicted in Los Angeles June 26 for making two illegal trips to Cuba.

The congressman said he obtained the names from the manifests of Cubana Airlines, which operates flights between Mexico City and Havana.

White Minister Accepts Call to Negro Church

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Rev. Robert W. Hare of Raleigh, N.C., a white man, became pastor of the Negro congregation of the First Presbyterian church Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Hare was assistant coordinator of religious affairs at North Carolina State College at Raleigh when he accepted the call of the Negro church, affiliated with the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. (northern).

Cape Scientists Also Teach

But what you will find at Brevard Engineering College, about 20 miles down the coast, is a faculty made up of some of the nation's top scientists and engineers.

* * *

Most of the students and nearly all the faculty members are employed at missile and space technological centers at Cape Canaveral and Patrick Air Force Base.

Sparked by space-race industries which have grown up along the coast near the Cape, Brevard is the first college in the United States to offer a master of science degree in space technology.

Vine-covered walls would seem out of place at Brevard, where theories chalked on a blackboard may be used the next day in dealing with a real missile-tracking situation.

SOPHISTICATION

While 5-year-old Brevard may be too young to have traditions, it is sophisticated enough to offer such lofty courses as celestial mechanics, space medicine and a long lists of subjects in higher mathematics.

The college was established in 1958 by Dr. Jerome P. Keuper (pronounced Cooper), now its president, and a group of scientists who worked with Keuper for the Radio Corporation of America service company.

Keuper said they started the college because they saw the need for still higher education for the well-educated people in the space field.

* * *

"We learned that many scholars and other space experts hesitated to come to Cape Canaveral because they could not continue their studies here," Keuper said.

Of the school's 700 students, Keuper said about 165 are graduate engineers working for master degrees. The rest of the students are undergraduates, some of whom are taking a few special courses and others who are working toward a bachelor of science degree.

"We built this building we're in now for $7 a square foot," he said proudly, adding that other school buildings in the area would have cost twice as much.

"What we need now is somebody who wants to have his name on a new library building," Keuper said. "I believe we could build it for $60,000. We already have the books."

Keuper said all of the major companies near here working on government missile contracts approve of the college as a way for their employes to progress in their fields. Many of these companies make donations to the school as well as pay the tuition of their employes, he said.

Ludington Man Gives Self Up in Store Robbery

RACINE, Wis. (UPI)—A 28-year-old Ludington, Mich., man, carrying a bag containing $2,300, walked into the police station last night and said he wanted to give himself up.

* * *

Sgt. Robert Corrigan, night police supervisor, said the man identified himself as Emory Ames, assistant manager of the Kalamazoo, Mich., Muir Super Drug Store. Corrigan said Ames related that he took the money Saturday night from the safe in the store after it closed for the night and other employes were gone.

Corrigan said Michigan authorities had issued a pickup request on Ames on an embezzlement charge.

Frightening Asthma Attacks End In Minutes As New Formula Unblocks Lung Passages Fast

New Medical Formula Restores Free Breathing Without Vaccines, Shots Or Narcotics. Calms Anxiety. No Prescription Needed.

New York, N.Y. (Special)—A team of scientists has announced a new formula that stops frightening asthma attacks in minutes and unblocks lung passages fast.

Medical tests prove this formula promptly restores free breathing, so calms anxiety and relieves the worst symptoms of asthma—the straining for breath, the gasping, the wheezing, the terrible fear of suffocation. All without vaccines, painful shots or habit-forming drugs. This formula is so safe when used as directed, it can be sold without prescription in tiny tablets called BRONITIN®.

Doctors know that when asthma strikes, breathing tubes become swollen, lung passages become blocked, so air is "trapped" inside lungs and less and less oxygen can enter. Now BRONITIN, with two asthma relieving medicines that doctors prescribe for their patients, acts quickly to open bronchial tubes and loosen the mucus that blocks lung passages. Trapped air is released and new vital oxygen enters the lungs.

The result is: free breathing is restored, tension eased and so fears are calmed in minutes. Sufferers can now look forward to restful sleep.

Get BRONITIN—available at all drug stores without prescription.

Ohio Newspaper Editor Dies of Leukemia

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Karl B. Pauly, 63, editor of the Columbus Dispatch editorial page since 1959, died of leukemia yesterday in University Hospital.

A native of Lebanon, Ohio, he spent 33 years with the former Ohio State Journal, moving to the Dispatch when the Journal merged with the Columbus Citizen.

Last year $200 million was contributed to higher education facilities by American corporations, the Council of Financial Aid reports.

3 Dead, 52 Hurt in Bus Mishap

Vehicle Hits Wet Spot, Plunges Down Ravine

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—A crowded bus with passengers standing in the aisles hit a wet spot and plunged down a 30-foot embankment yesterday. Three persons were killed and 52 were injured.

* * *

Officials feared the toll might be higher, but when the Scenicruiser was finally righted five hours after the predawn accident, the death count was fixed at three.

"This (accident) is one of the worst we have ever had," a Greyhound official said.

The dead were Jack Wesley, 23, Burdette, Ark.; Cleophas Johnson, 22, Ann Arbor, Mich.; and Mrs. Jessie F. Matthews, 28, Rapton, Ala., who was traveling with their four children to meet her husband. Two of the children were hospitalized.

Ambulances shuttled 28 injured persons to St. Joseph Hospital, Kirkwood, Mo., where 16 were released after treatment and 12 admitted. Twenty-four were taken to St. Louis County Hospital and four were admitted.

* * *

The driver, Elliott John Smith, 34, East St. Louis, Ill., who sustained only bruises and shock, said the rear of the bus skidded into a large highway sign, which sent it spinning off the embankment. It slid backwards into a mud-filled ravine and overturned on its side and top, smashing windows and crumpling the vehicle.

* * *

Many of the injured were among the 15 passengers standing in the aisles. There were 43 passengers seated.

Mrs. Matthews was thrown from the vehicle and crushed beneath it, the top half of her body trapped under it.

* * *

The bus was bound from Memphis, Tenn., to St. Louis, when it reached a highway curve 22 miles south of St. Louis, where the accident occurred.

'Court Ruling Misinterpreted'

Says Aid Available to Parochial Schools

DETROIT (AP) — The Executive Director of the Michigan Catholic Conference declared yesterday that a recent U. S. Supreme Court decision does not bar federal aid to parochial schools.

* * *

Three weeks ago, Coomes said, the court held that reading from the Bible and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in schools violated the First Amendment of the Constitution.

"Recent statements have been made that these decisions would bar federal aid to parochial schools," he said. "This is contrary to fact. A careful reading of these decisions provides the conclusion that the court was not dealing with the subject of federal aid to parochial schools."

Coomes said it is true that Justice Douglas, in his concurring opinion, stated that federal aid to religious schools is unconstitutional under the First Amendment. But the significant fact, he said, was that not one of the justices signed this opinion.

RELIGIOUS BELIEFS

On the same day, the Catholic spokesman said, the court rendered another opinion which emphatically reaffirmed that no person can be denied a public welfare benefit because of religious beliefs.

In this particular case, he said a Seventh-Day Adventist was denied unemployment compensation because he would not work on Saturday, her Sabbath day. The court held the woman was entitled to benefits.

* * *

"We contend that federal aid which assists the secular education of children attending state-approved nonpublic schools as part of a general program of aid to education is in complete harmony with the First Amendment," Coomes said. "There should be no economic penalty for exercising freedom of worship."

Mamie, Ike in Dedication

BROOMFIELD, Colo. (AP)— Former President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower took part Sunday in dedication of a public library named in the former first lady's honor in this Denver suburb.

* * *

Mrs. Eisenhower, who donated 337 books owned by her late parents, told the crowd of 3,000 that she was "very proud."

Child, 7, Found Dead In Old Refrigerator

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)— A 7-year-old boy who left home Saturday to play hide-and-seek was found dead Sunday in an abandoned refrigerator located in a neighborhood garage.

* * *

Fall, Winter Fashions Take Casual Country Look

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Womens Editor

Babushkas and boots were a couple of the earmarks of the overwhelming trend to easy-going clothes as the New York couture group of designers - manufacturers opened today a series of shows for visiting fashion editors from the United States and Canada.

The couture group showings, lasting through Friday, will be followed by another series of shows by a newly-formed American designers group including some California firms.

In silhouette and length of skirts for day, there was little change for the fall and winter collections of womens wear.

The shape overwhelmingly was slim for both day and evening, with more long evening dresses than last season. Most of the floor - length gowns were slim columns and many were in wool instead of the traditional silks. The shaped waist and bell-shaped skirt for dressy clothes was nil.

Throughout the collections which the nations' store buyers and New York and Philadelphia reporters saw in late May and early June, here were some of the things everyone in the multibillion - dollar New York fashion market was doing:

— The casual-looking jumper, for both day and evening. Some of the elaborate jumpers came with sealskin sleeves and collar, with the rest of the garment wool. Others contrasted wool with velvet. One firm showed a shiny jet fabric combined with wool for evening.

— A revival of velvet everywhere for late day and evening clothes, most often shown in black. Other fabrics, in the more casual clothes, included deep - textured tweeds, shaggy mohairs, wide wale corduroys and twills.

— Use of fur in novel as well as traditional manner. Weary of merely lining a satin evening coat in mink, designers turned to making mink blouses, sleeveless, to go with tweed suits, or using weskit tops for wool evening dresses.

One firm showed sleeveless jerkins of mink topping slim, daytime wool dresses. It also produced a sable hood for a black evening coat, and a raccoon hood topping for a daytime coat in beige.

Other furs shown included Mongolian lamb, a shaggy, long - hair fur in white, sealskin, Persian, the patterned leopards, jaguars and ocelots and the long-haired fox and opossum.

— Both daytime and evening dresses shaped to the waist in front, skimming loosely over it at the back. Either unbelted or shown with a loosely hanging half belt.

Your autumn day look, if you have the figure for it, might be this elegant brown and white needlepoint tweed by Maurice Rentner. The stole, lined with taupe brown velvet, the long brown gloves and shiny kid shoes spell elegance, topped with a big fur hat.

Hannah Troy's recipe for some of the most successful dinner dresses in New York—dramatic fabric plus dramatically simple lines. Ankle length, high necked, and just-above-the-elbow sleeves mark this nylon and silk brocade—definitely 1963.

Long evening elegance replaces the short evening dress this season. Larry Aldrich shows how it's done with an embroidered crystal beaded overblouse and white matelisse skirt in a tree bark texture.

Unit to Hold Breakfast, Trip

A 10 a. m. out-of-doors breakfast followed by a "Mystery Trip" awaits members of the Waterford Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association at their Thursday meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Springer.

Group to Tour Area Campuses

Members and guests of the Countryside Improvement Association of West Bloomfield Township will meet Wednesday for a luncheon and tour of the Oakland University campus.

Following the campus tour, the group will visit the Leader Dogs for the Blind school in Rochester. A bus has been chartered for the occasion.

Mrs. Robert Killeen will present a program of folk songs and ballad singing at the July 24 meeting. Mrs. Russell Meyer will open her home for the event.

A Pontiac high school student has received honors for proficiency in journalism at the 1963 Communication Arts Institute at Michigan State University.

A total of 190 high school students from Michigan and surrounding states participated in the opening session, which ended June 28. The second session July 1-12 has drawn 165, with 190 already registered for the third and final session July 15-26.

Advanced instruction is being offered by MSU faculty and other authorities in printed newspapers, advanced journalism, duplicated newspapers, yearbook editing, radio-television, forensics and theater.

Sponsoring this 16th annual program is MSU's College of Communication Arts.

Honor Recent Bride With Shower Gifts

Opening gifts at a post-nuptial shower given for her Friday evening was Mrs. Lloyd L. Hoyt (Sue Ann Hall). Mrs. T. B. Fefel opened her Walton Boulevard home for the event with Mrs. King Stetler of Lake Orion as cohostess.

Mothers of the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. Robert Hall of Royal Oak and Mrs. Lloyd H. Hoyt of Pontiac, headed the list of guests who came from surrounding areas.

For Bathtime Fun

A few corks tossed into the children's tub will turn bathtime into funtime. And there'll be no drippy mess to clean up as the corks won't splash water.

He'll Wait for Change of Clothes

By The Emily Post Institute

Q: What does one do in the following situation: A boy asks a girl for a date and makes no mention as to where they are going. She gets all dressed up for a party or a dance and he arrives in sports clothes all set to go bowling.

A: Say casually, "Oh, I didn't know we were going bowling. Give me five minutes to change," and then go and put on something suitable.

Q: My sister and I are going to be married at a double wedding. We are each going to have two bridesmaids and a maid of honor. There will also be ushers. Please tell me the correct order of the processional.

A: The ushers — one half friends of the first groom, and the other half friends of the second groom—go up the aisle together. Then come the bridesmaids of the older sister followed by her maid of honor. The older sister follows on the right arm of her father. Then come the bridesmaids of the younger sister, her maid of honor, and last, the younger sister on the arm of a brother, uncle or nearest male relative.

Q: What are the guests supposed to say to the mother of the bride when greeting her at the wedding reception? I have often heard people congratulate her on this occasion. This does not seem right to me and suggests that she is being congratulated on marrying off her daughter. Many of my own friends say this and think it quite proper. Maybe they are right and I am wrong. Will you please set me straight on this?

A: Guests usually tell the mother of the bride how beautiful her daughter looks or how lovely the wedding is or something of that sort, but do not offer congratulations.

Wedding Bells Peal for Two Area Brides

Rev. Ralph C. Claus officiated as Linda Lee Stickney exchanged vows with Pfc. Larry Hal Brown Sunday in St. Trinity Lutheran Church.

Hosts at a buffet dinner and reception in the VFW Hall, Keego Harbor, were the bride's parents, the Leon G. Stickneys of North Francis Street. Her husband is the son of the Hal Browns of Morenci.

* * *

The bride's gown of cameo ivory silk organza over taffeta was styled with natural bodice and controlled skirt ending in a chapel sweep. A petal cap held her nylon illusion veil. Combined in a bridal crescent were white carnations, yellow roses and Stephanotis.

Attendants wearing maize silk organza over taffeta were the bride's sisters, Cathy, maid of honor, and Jayne, junior maid; also attending were bridesmaids Judy Noren and Kay Hamilton. They carried yellow pompons.

* * *

The new Mrs. Brown is an alumna of Eastern Michigan University where she was affiliated with Mu Phi Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, Stoic Society and Adahi. Her husband attended Toledo University.

Before leaving for Spring Lake, N. C., near Fort Bragg, where he is stationed, the newlyweds will honeymoon in northern Michigan.

Bound for a honeymoon in New England and their future home in Rochester, N.Y. are the Robert David Parkes (Margery M. MacArthur of Rochester). They spoke vows Saturday in Calvary Methodist Church, Holly.

* * *

Parents of the bride are the Carl MacArthurs of Holly. Her husband is the son of the Claude Parkes, Sashabaw Road.

* * *

Polly's Pointers

Keep Junior Happy

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Make supermarket shopping with your toddler easier on both of you by taking two feet of stout string and attaching one end to a snap-on clothespin and the other to your child's favorite toy. Snap the clothespin to one side of the push cart so that while he rides in the basket he will have something to occupy himself while you shop. There is no danger of the toy being dropped on the floor or being lost. Merely unsnap when ready to leave. MRS. E. L. R.

* * *

DEAR POLLY — If you have a couch that opens to make a bed, sheets usually are wrinkled from the bed being folded up. If two contour sheets are used, the top sheet will be tucked under to really stay in place and be less wrinkled when the couch again is used as a bed. V. W.

* * *

DEAR POLLY — It will pay great dividends if you take the time to show your little girl how to sew on buttons. I started my four-year-old by having her sew a large button on to a couple thicknesses of brown paper. The bottom of a paper bag works fine. Hitting the holes is no problem and the firmness of the paper enables inexperienced little fingers to become acquainted with the successful management of a needle and thread. Pretty shapes, bright thread and encouragement add to the enjoyment. MRS. G. C.

* * *

DEAR POLLY — I was so glad to learn through the column that elastic should be shrunk. I had always wondered why the cotton grosgrain ribbon on sweaters pulled and ruined the sweater's appearance after it was washed. Our sewing teacher taught us that rickrack shrinks, too. I slip mine from the cardboard into a pan of hot water and then lay it on a turkish towel to dry, so very little pressing is necessary.

Nylon hose used for stuffing work best if they are cut into small pieces. I used an old toothbrush, with the bristles removed, to push pieces into small places when stuffing toys, etc. It is smooth and does not catch on the material ELSIE

* * *

DEAR POLLY — I wonder if the readers who sew remember to shrink straight seam tape before using it. When the tape dries you will be convinced that it shrinks by the shape of the card. MRS. J. D. A.

Money Problems? Everybody Has Them

By MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

To those of you fighting the battle of income vs. bills when the breadwinner's check comes in monthly, or even every two weeks, I recommend the following letter. For you see, there are others in the world worse off than you!

Dear Miss Feeley: My husband drives a cab, and brings home his wages every day—from $12 to $17. This way I have to shop for food each day, and it's costing from $7 to $10 to feed my family of seven.

MARY FEELEY

I wish I could find a way to get a little ahead so I wouldn't have to shop day to day. And so I could pay something on our debts.

We pay $57 a month rent, 50 cents a day for the two smallest children to go to a nursery, and we can't get along without the car. I don't know where to start.

Mrs. Mae M., New York City

Dear Mrs. M.: Let's start in the middle of the muddle, and work out in both directions. First, find a shoe box and some envelopes. Mark each envelope food, rent, bills, etc. Each day when your husband brings home his wages, put a certain amount of money in each envelope.

In order to get ahead, you're going to have to try to leave a microscopic balance in each envelope from day to day, until something accumulates.

Your average daily income figures about $14, or $84 for a six-day week, which will have to stretch over seven days actually. If you put $2.40 a day in the rent envelope; $5.50 a day in food; $1.25 in clothing; 50 cents a day in nursery, $1 in bills, $1 in car, you'll have about $2 left for emergencies. You'll have to juggle the $12-days and the $17-days to average these figures.

If there's ever a day when you can hitch a ride or walk, instead of using the car, do it. Mend and alter the family's clothes 'til they won't take another stitch.

Feeding your seven mouths on $4.70 a day, including Sundays, is the kind of challenge little David had when he faced up to Goliath. But remember who won that fray. About 40 cents worth of packaged soup mix — the hearty kind like split pea — will serve the whole family for one meal.

Oatmeal is a very cheap, solid breakfast. Powdered milk goes a long way. About $1.50 worth of beef liver is a main dish for seven.

Like it or not, you're going to have to sell the family on simple fare, and just barely epough of it, until those budget envelopes gain some weight.

The day will come when you'll actually find a few dollars to put into savings—and then you'll be approaching firm ground.

Dear Miss Feeley: Don't you think a man can make the mistake of carrying too much insurance, as well as too little?

and chauffeuring our two small ums are $555 a year, and his takehome pay $357 a month. Now he says we must give up our car, which I really need for shopping and chauffering our two small children — and which costs only $30 a month to operate.

Paying for $10,000 straight life insurance costs $168.40 a year; the other $395 is for a 20-year endowment policy.

My husband, 32, is looking forward to that pay-off at age 45, and that's all he seems to care about. Is that smart planning?

Mrs. H. A. P., Elizabeth, N. J.

Dear Mrs. P.: I agree that's a heavy insurance load on his income. And, off-hand, I'd say the car is not a luxury under the circumstances.

Can you persuade your husband to sit down with you and an insurance representative, and discuss the situation?

Perhaps it might prove more advantageous if the endowment policy were put on an extended term basis for as long a period as the cash value will buy. Or it could be converted to straight life insurance.

Before any change is made your husband should discuss with his insurance agent the non-forfeiture benefits of his present policy.

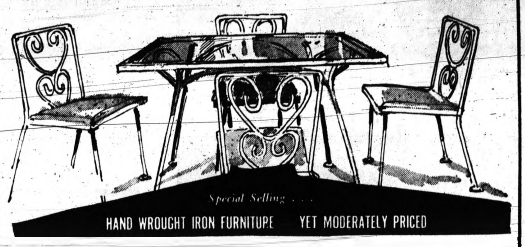

A solution can be found, I'm sure, so you can hang onto that car.

Reception Follows Wedding

MRS. R. D. FREEMAN

The Calvary Baptist Church was the setting for the Saturday marriage of Janet Marie Pittman to Ronald Douglas Freeman. The ceremony was followed by a church reception. Rev. Henry Wrobbel performed the candlelight ceremony.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mrs. Virginia Pittman, Hershey Street, Robert Pittman, Farmington, and the William Freemans, Union Lake.

A gown of white silk taffeta for the bride was appliqued with Alencon lace and silk roses accented her skirt fashioned with chapel sweep. A jeweled tiara held her silk illusion veil. White roses and miniature carnations rested on her white prayer book.

* * *

Wearing blue taffeta were Mrs. Richard Pittman, matron of honor, who carried blue-tipped white pompons, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. James Lamson and Alice Harrell. Their bouquets were blue-tipped white carnations.

Gary Freeman was best man for his brother. Richard Pittman and Clayton Carter seated the guests.

* * *

After a northern Michigan honeymoon, the couple will live in Pontiac.

Couple Has Dinner Party

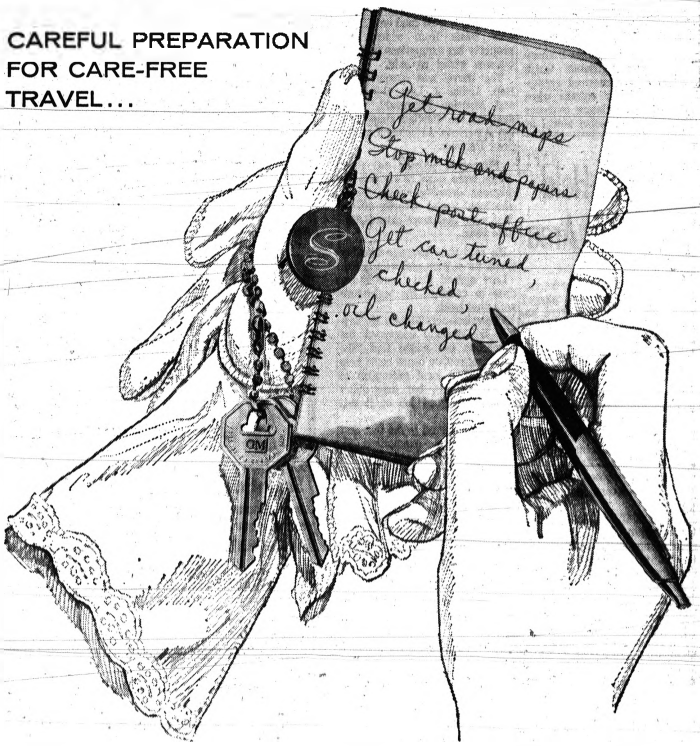

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Bassett of East Iroquois Road entertained at a family dinner party Thursday in their Clarkston summer home.

EMPHYSEMA
Q. Please discuss emphysema. Is it a progressive disease and can its progress be stopped?
A. The term emphysema (pronounced em' fi-see' muh) is derived from the Greek word "emphysan," meaning to blow in. Pulmonary emphysema is a condition in which the air sacs of the lungs become dilated or enlarged. The chronic condition may be due to chest deformity, chronic lung infection, chronic asthma, and similar conditions. Much can be done for the relief of symptoms of chronic emphysema but it isn't a condition which lends itself to anything but good medical care. See your physician.
LOW BLOOD PRESSURE BETTER THAN HIGH
Q. I have low blood pressure. What can I take or do to improve it?
A. You are very fortunate! Thousands of persons would give all they own to have low blood pressure. It's true that you may feel under par at times but the chances are good that you will avoid disorders that go with high blood pressure. Everything considered, your chances of a long life may be better than average.

Seeks Exemption Law on Taxes for Aged, Retired

The Pontiac City Commission has asked Gov. Romney to propose legislation granting homestead exemptions on city and county taxes to aged and retired persons this fall.

★ ★ ★

Commissioners supported the need for such tax relief to aged and retired persons in a resolution offered by Commissioner Dick M. Kirby.

The resolution urges Romney to request legislation which would give homestead exemptions to senior citizens when the State Legislature convenes in a special session aimed at solving tax and fiscal problems in September.

Although it doesn't propose the criteria for establishing need and amount of such exemptions, the measure suggests that "reimbursement for such exemptions be made by the state as is now granted to veterans."

This method would involve establishing a trust fund on a statewide basis from which local property tax exemptions to senior citizens would be paid.

The move was supported by Rep. Arthur J. Law, D-Pontiac, and Maurice Fitzgerald, president of the Pontiac chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Fitzgerald pointed out that there were some 30,000 retired persons drawing checks from the local Social Security office last year and more than 48,000 this year.

He said the "average monthly check for a man and wife is $90.

Law agreed that "now is the time to confront the legislature with this issue.

Commissioner William H. Taylor Jr. strongly supported the resolution but added that "the local tax review board could help by granting local exemption to senior citizens, but they didn't do a very good job of it this year."

Taylor referred to the fact that some previous exemptions allowed senior citizens on local property taxes were not granted by the tax board this spring.

Protests Held in Detroit Area

DETROIT (AP) —Further demonstrations in protest of alleged housing discrimination were announced Saturday as some 200 Negroes and whites staged a protest march in northwest Detroit and Redford Township.

★ ★ ★

The demonstration was the third in a series of weekend marches sponsored by the Detroit branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Previous marches had been held in Dearborn and Grosse Pointe.

Detroit NAACP housing director Abraham Ulmer said "25 segregated apartment buildings" in Detroit would be picketed next Saturday.

Another protest march will be held in suburban Warren July 20, Ulmer said.

Detroit NAACP officials flew in from Chicago, scene of the NAACP's national convention, to join the Detroit and Redford Township demonstration.

The marchers, about half of them white, were met by scattered boos and jeers from about 75 white spectators during a 20-minute rally in front of the Redford Township Hall. However, no violence was reported and the parade attracted only a small crowd of spectators.

NAACP Calls Off Drugstore Pickets

KALAMAZOO (AP) — The Kalamazoo branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People last night called off its picketing of the Van Avery Drugstore.

NAACP spokesmen announced the decision after a meeting of the branch.

The drugstore had been picketed for about a month in what the NAACP called a protest against the store's failure to hire Negro employes. The store has said it will consider such hiring in the future.

U. of M. Glee Club Off to British Isles

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — The University of Michigan Men's Glee Club left Luxembourg yesterday for Brighton, England, where they were to give a concert today before taking part in an international song festival in Llangolen, Wales.

★ ★ ★

Luxembourg's foreign minister Eugene Schaus and members of the American - Luxembourg society were guests at a dinner honoring the students after a Saturday night concert in Echternach Abbey. The glee club's selection of classical works, folk songs, Nero spirituals and Cole Porter and George Gershwin music received an enthusiastic reception here.

Police Direct Traffic for Mountain Climbers

NUMATA, Japan (UPI) — So many Japanese mountain climbers swarmed over Mt. Tanigawa yesterday that police with walkie-talkies helped direct the traffic.

With the climbing season at its summer peak, an estimated 5,500 persons were on the slopes of the 6,380 - foot mountain 70 miles northwest of Tokyo. The mountain has claimed eight lives this year.

First Day

Fighting began on the morning of July 1 when Buford's Federal cavalry encountered elements of Confederate Gen. A. P. Hill's corps, who were moving into Gettysburg looking for stores. Reinforcements began to arrive on both sides but Confederates, with superior strength, pushed toward Seminary Ridge. After a brief respite, the afternoon's fighting saw the Confederates force the Federals south through the town and onto Cemetery Ridge. Union troops on Seminary Ridge also withdrew to Cemetery Ridge. The first day had been a Confederate victory but Meade's entire army was now assembled and digging in on the high ground.

Second Day

Third Day

July 3 dawned with Confederate morale still high. Lee, reinforced by Pickett's division, determined to assail the Federal center. His intention was guessed by Meade. At about 1:45 p. m., 10 brigades —15,000 men—commanded by Pickett, Pettigrew and Trimble, advanced in parade formation across the mile of fields separating Seminary and Cemetery Ridges. A few men reached the Federal line at the Angle—the "high tide of the Confederacy"—but were repulsed. The Union forces had won a great victory but were, in Meade's judgment, too badly mauled to follow it up. Northern rejoicing was tempered by the fact of Lee's escape back to Virginia.

Strategy Behind Lee's Invasion of North

(NEA)—All roads led to Gettysburg in the last days of June, 1863. There was nothing important about the little Pennsylvania town; no one in either the Confederate or Union camps was planning a battle there.

★ ★ ★

But because it was the junction of nine major roads, Gettysburg was like a magnet drawing two great armies—the Army of the Potomac and the Army of Northern Virginia—toward a bloody clash that would be the greatest battle ever fought in the Western Hemisphere.

Gettysburg had its beginnings in the days following the disastrous Union defeat at Chancellorsville, Va., on May 1-4. The Confederate government decided to launch a counter-stroke into the North, for a number of reasons.

In the West, U. S. Grant was laying siege to Vicksburg, last Confederate stronghold on the Mississippi; an invasion of the North might pull Union troops away from there.

★ ★ ★

A Southern victory in the North might also encourage the growing peace movement in the North. More important, it might cause Britain and France to recognize the Confederacy. The capture of Washington could even end the war.

NORTH UNTOUCHED

Besides, Virginia was war-torn and bleeding while the North was fat and untouched, its fields lush and green under the summer sun.

So the invasion began. Seventy-five-thousand men under Robert E. Lee hit the dusty roads through Maryland into Pennsylvania.

By the end of June the advance guards were as far north as Harrisburg while the rear was in Chambersburg, northwest of Gettysburg.

Eastward, the Army of the Potomac—88,000 strong—was also on the move. More than 160,000 men in all were converging on Gettysburg. Every third one of them was to become a casualty.

INTELLIGENCE GAP

Lee operated in the dark during those important last days in June. "Jeb" Stuart, the brilliant cavalry commander who was to guard Lee's right flank and reconnoiter the Federals' movements, had gone off on a wide-sweeping, glorious but useless foray into the North.

It was not until the night of June 28 that Lee learned that the Federals, now commanded by Lt. Gen. George Gordon Meade, had paralled his route north, keeping between him and Washington and now threatened his line of communication.

Lee was forced to call his strewn-out army together. The logical place was Gettysburg, because all roads led there.

THREE DAY BATTLE

So they met, the men of the North and South, on July 1, 1863. When it was finished three days later, the North left 23,000 killed, wounded or missing on the fields and hills around Gettysburg.

The South lost 28,000 men, a loss all the more grievous because she had not the means to replace them.

Militarily, Gettysburg was the end of one era and the precursor of another: Never again would an army dress right and march in formation against the guns of another army.

But not until the 20th century would the world witness massed artillery duels to compare with those of Gettysburg.

Politically, it was the end of the South's hopes for independence (though the war dragged on for 20 more months). But it was the beginning of a stronger United States.

Executives Ruin Tenor Voice by Yelling

By HAL BOYLE

BOYLE

One Dies, 7 Injured in Strike Violence

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Striking dock workers threw a homemade bomb today at a jeep carrying nonunion workers through their picket line. One man was killed and seven were injured.

Three men were arrested.

★ ★ ★

It was the first death in the two-month-old strike which has caused a massive pileup at the Manila piers and prompted a number of ships to bypass the port.

No solution is in sight. Both side are waiting for a Supreme Court ruling on whether the dock workers union is entitled to a collective bargaining contract.

Probe Poisoning of Paratroopers at Army Posts

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (UPI) — Army officials here and at Ft. Benning, Ga., today investigated the food poisoning of about 23 paratroopers who became ill apparently from box lunches.

The exact number affected by the food poisoning Saturday could not be determined pending the outcome of the investigation. However, authorities said there were 21 paratroopers confined to the base hospital and two more at Ft. Jackson, S.C. None was reported in serious condition.

The soldiers apparently became ill after eating food in box lunches given them Saturday and prepared at a Columbus, Ga., restaurant near Ft. Benning. About 50 paratroopers were stricken but not all hospitalized.

XB70 Causes Publicity Pains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The XB70, one of the most controversial and revolutionary aircraft ever built, is scheduled to roll out of a Palmdale, Calif., assembly plant in August or September, and the Pentagon is in a dilemma over how to handle this major news event.

★ ★ ★

Years in construction and the source of continuous friction within and between the executive branch and Congress, the XB70 is the experimental plane which the Air Force had hoped to develop into a reconnaissance and missile-armed strike craft called RS70.

What do you do when you publicly unveil a jet aircraft which is the fastest (2,000 m.p.h.), highest-flying (70,000 feet-plus) and heaviest (more than 550,000 pounds) there ever was, but which you do not intend to put into production? How do you handle the roll-out ceremony, a traditional milestone with new planes, and what do you say to the public about the remarkable machine being displayed?

These are questions the Defense Department, in the person of Assistant Secretary Arthur Sylvester, and the Air Force are debating.

TO BE ANNOUNCED

Sylvester gave assurance that the roll-out date will be announced in advance and the press will be present to cover the event. But somehow an effort will be made to play the whole thing in low key.

No amount of Defense Department crepe hanging, however, will change the fact that the XB70 is a fantastic flying machine in its own right, embodying radical advances in technology and manufacturing processes, and certain to further the aeronautical art. There never has been anything like the XB70, once called a manned missile.

No amount of Air Force and company hooplah at the unveiling, on the other hand, will alter the fact that this particular airplane ran afoul of the missile age and is not destined for squadron service, however much it contributes to future aviation development, both military and commercial.

No amount of the government's wrestling with its problems of managing the XB70 roll-out will influence the fact that there will be great public interest in the event and the press will expect to be out in full force to cover it.

At a cost now expected to exceed $1.3 billion, North American Aviation, Inc., as prime contractor, is building three XB70 models. The first was slated to fly last December but ran into technical problems that have delayed its roll-out at Palmdale until late this summer and its first flight until October or November.

Technical difficulties are the rule, not the exception, in advanced new aircraft, all the more so with one that makes such strides as the high-alloy stainless steel XB70.

GAS LEAK

The specific problem in this case was a leak of pressurized nitrogen gas, used in the triangular wing to cool fuel while hiking along at three times the speed of sound. The company and the Air Force believe the problem has been fixed after painstaking examination of the wing construction and nitrogen gas piping.

Their present expectation is to roll out the XB70 in August or September and start extensive ground tests at the desert center at Palmdale.

Then, if all goes well, the behemoth should take to the air in the late fall for a two-to-three hour flight, alighting at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., the testing area for all America's advanced military aircraft.

Red Germans Try Top Aide

Adenauer Official Charged in Absentia

★ ★ ★

The prosecution charged Globke in absentia before the Supreme Court in East Berlin with complicity in the Nazi persecution and murder of six million Jews.

Globke has been state secretary in Adenauer's chancellery for 12 years and is regarded as the most influential civil servant in the West German Republic.

Presiding Judge Heinrich Toeplitz announced that the summons to Globke had been returned because he refused to accept postal delivery. Two defense attorneys nominated by the court announced Globke had ignored their request for material in his defense.

★ ★ ★

The court could hand down a death sentence, but since the 64-year-old defendant was not accused of personal participation in murder, the prosecution was expected to demand a life term.

The 168-page indictment alleged war crimes and crimes against humanity from 1933 to 1945.

It accused Globke of doing the legal paper work that enabled the Nazis to topple the Weimar Republic. The indictment also charged he helped draft and write the legal commentary on the Nazi racial laws that provided the legal basis for the persecution of the Jews.

Government Gets Roosevelt Shrines

NEW YORK (UPI) — Theodore Roosevelt's birthplace and his summer White House on Long Island today officially become the property of the federal government to be used as national shrines.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall, representing President Kennedy, will accept the title and deeds to the two properties in presentation ceremonies here.

The homes have been given to the government by the Theodore Roosevelt association which also will present a check to Udall for their maintenance.

UAW Sends 30 to Vienna Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—A United Auto Workers Union delegation of 30 was to leave today for a trade unions' World Youth Rally in Vienna—a 10-day conference expected to attract more than 4,000 young workers from 70 nations.

★ ★ ★

The Austrian Federation of Labor is sponsoring the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions' Rally, which has the slogan "live in freedom for peace."

The UAW delegation, which represents every UAW region of the United States and Canada, is the only American delegation to the rally.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther cited a "need for U. S. support to this belated youth effort by democratic organizations in an area which too often has been ceded by default to intensive Communist cultivation."

Activities will include an inspection visit to the Hungarian border, visits to workers' housing and health centers, apprenticeship and training locations, athletic events, a young artists of the world exhibit and seminars on young workers' problems.

Pioneer Airman Dies; Funeral Service Slated

PLAY DEL REY, Calif. (UPI) — Pioneer airman and aerial gunner authority Edmond (Ted) Kelley, 54, died of cancer Friday at his home.

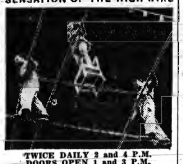

Funeral service for the barnstorming pilot of the early days of aviation will be tomorrow at nearby Santa Monica. Kelly, an Army Air Force major during World War II, developed the Kelly aerial tow target, now used by the Air Force and Navy in aerial gunnery.

Good, Lively Entertainment

Summer Theater Is Spreading

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. — If you don't see a musical play this summer, it may be that you just aren't trying.

THOMAS

Not since the golden era when every community had its vaudeville house and stock company has so much lively entertainment been available. And good entertainment.

In barns, tents, auditoriums and in the fresh summer air, topnotch shows are being presented with well-known stars and casts that are professional or eager, or both.

Some enthusiasts see the trend as a major renaissance in the living theater. Nowhere is the trend better illustrated than here in Anaheim.

A somnolent orange town of 11,000 in 1940, it has been converted by Walt Disney and the postwar boom into a city of 144,000. Two veteran showmen hope to convert that boom into a year-round theater operation that would do credit to Broadway.

★ ★ ★

The showmen: Sammy Lewis, onetime operator of Slapsy Maxie's and now producer of shows for Las Vegas; Danny Dare, producer of stage musicals—"Meet the People"—and movies—"Road to Rio," and "Incendiary Blonde."

MELODYLAND

Their enterprise: Melodyland—the name is a must, since it's across the street from Disneyland.

★ ★ ★

Melodyland rises amid the profusion of motels and coffee shops like a giant tent.

★ ★ ★

Inside, it proves to be a handsome, sturdily-constructed arena with 3,200 seats surrounding a circular stage. There are only 20 cows, so that even the cheapest $2 seat—there is a $5.50 top—doesn't have that reverse-binocular view of most galleries.

Lewis gave its cost at 1.5 million.

He and Dare are high on their chances of success.

$300,000 ADVANCE

"We had an advance for $300,000 before the season began," said Lewis.

"And $250,000 of it came from Orange County," said Dare. "That proves there is an audience for theater here. One of our best bets is that lots of engineers and scientists have moved down here to work in big industrial plants. These people are starved for something cultural."

Death Claims Veteran of 37 Years on Lakes

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Capt. Raymond E. Talbott of Lantana, Fla., a veteran of 37 years on the Great Lakes, died yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage aboard the ore boat, William A. McGonagle, en route from Duluth, Minn., to Gary.

War Against Sicily Mafia

World News

More than 200 suspects were held by security forces after police raids in half a dozen Palermo suburbs marked as hotbeds of the gangland organization.

* * *

Authorities said most of the Mafia kingpins in the Palermo area had escaped, but newspapers throughout the country were publishing photographs of the wanted men.

The Mafia has been blamed for more than 500 deaths in the postwar period, but two bombings in Palermo 10 days ago killed nine persons and sent a wave of indignation throughout the country.

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—The Stornoway prosecutor has dropped charges against a hotel owner and barmaid for serving cherry brandy June 17, to Prince Charles, 14, heir to the British throne. The minimum legal drinking age in Scotland is 18.

Charges against Alexander Macmilan, owner of the Crown Hotel in Stornoway, and his niece, Christine Matheson, were dropped Sunday night to save the royal family from further embarrassment.

If charges had been pressed, the prince probably would have been called as a witness.

ZANZIBAR (AP) — Zanzibar voted today for a new government that will lead this spice island to independence if it convinces Britain it is politically stable.

Britain granted Zanzibar and its sister island of Pemba a measure of self-government June 24 and promised full autonomy when assured of stability. Balloting will continue four days, but results will not be announced until July 15.

Multivehicle Collision Kills Nine, Injures 29

STUTTGART, Germany (UPI) — Nine persons, including six British tourists, were killed yesterday in a collision involving a tourist bus and several other vehicles.

Police said three West Germans died in the collision and 29 persons, most of them bus passengers, were injured. After the crash, the bus plunged over an embankment and hit a railway 50 feet below.

'Draft Only Won't Win GOP Bid'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John G. Tower (R-Tex.), a leading supporter of Sen. Barry Goldwater, doubts that the Arizona conservative can win the GOP presidential nomination solely by a draft movement. "He'll have to announce his decision — one way or the other — by the first primary," Tower said yesterday in a television interview.

* * *

Tower said New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's chance for the nomination have been damaged by his divorce and remarriage. But, Tower said, the "Back Barry" movement was gaining momentum before Rockefeller married the former Mrs. Margaretta (Happy) Murphy.

* * *

If Goldwater does not win the nomination, Tower said he would urge him to remain in the Senate rather than accept the vice presidential nomination.

* * *

Tower said Goldwater has been an important influence on the Senate even though no major legislation bears his name.

'Sen. Goldwater has become an ideological leader and symbol to stimulate the nation's imagination," he said.

Margot Bence Reveals Hatred of Marina

STORY SO FAR — Marina Gregg, beautiful screen and stage star, and her husband, Jason Rudd, brilliant stage boy, buy Gossington Hall and its 400 acres. There Margot Bence, a Scandia native, is to be hostess during Rudd's absence on location. Margot is out of a sick bed to get her autograph. Marina stares past her, frozen look on her face. She asks Jason to give Mrs. Bedcock a drink. The drink is spilled and fractured. Marina offers her own untouched glass. Mrs. Badcock dies from what does Marina believe she was the intended victim. Margot Bence, photographer, was on the staircase taking pictures of special people invited by Marina and Jason Rudd. Inspector Craddock asks Margot if she noticed any unusual expression on Marina's face.

Installment XXXI

Margot Bence leaned forward, opened a cigaret box and took out a cigaret. She lit it. Although she had not answered Dermot did not press her.

He waited, wondering what it was she was turning over in her mind. She said at last, abruptly.

"Why do you ask me that?"

"Because it's a question to which I am very anxious to have answered, a reliable answer."

"Do you think my answer's likely to be reliable?"

"Yes, I do, as a matter of fact. You must have the habit of watching people's faces very closely, waiting for certain expressions, certain propitious moments."

She nodded her head.

"Did you see anything of that kind?"

"Somebody else saw it too, did they?"

"Yes. More than one person, but it's been described rather differently."

"How did the other people describe it?"

"One person has told me that she was taken faint."

Margot Bence shook her head slowly.

"Someone else said that she was startled." He paused a moment then went on, "and somebody else describes her as having a frozen look on her face."

"Frozen," said Margot Bence thoughtfully.

"Do you agree to that last statement?"

"I don't know. Perhaps."

"It was put rather more fancifully still," said Dermot. "In the words of the late poet, Tennyson. 'The mirror cracked from side to side, The doom has come upon me,' cried The Lady of Shalott."

"There wasn't any mirror," said Margot Bence, "but if there had been it might have crack'd." She got up abruptly. "Well," she said. "I'll do something better than describe it to you. I'll show you."

She pushed aside the curtain at the far end and disappeared for some moments. He could hear her uttering impatient mutterings under her breath.

"What hell it is," she said as she emerged again, "one never can find things when one wants them. I've got it now though."

She came across to him and put a glossy print into his hand. He looked down at it. It was a very good photograph of Marina Gregg.

Her hand was clasped in the hand of a woman standing in front of her, and therefore with her back to the camera. But Marina Gregg was not looking at the woman.

There was no fear on it, no pain. The woman portrayed there was staring at something, something she saw, and the emotion it aroused in her was so great that she was physically unable to express it by any kind of facial expression.

Dermot Craddock had seen such a look once on a man's face, a man who a second later had been shot dead.

"Satisfied?" asked Margot Bence.

Craddock gave a deep sigh. "Yes, thank you. It's hard, you know, to make up one's mind if witnesses are exaggerating, if they are imagining they see things. But that's not so in this case.

"There was something to see and she saw it." He asked, "Can I keep this picture?"

"Oh yes, you can have the print. I've got the negative."

"You didn't send it to the press?"

"I rather wonder why you didn't. After all, it's rather a dramatic photograph. Some paper might have paid a good price for it."

"I wouldn't care to do that," said Margot Bence. "If you look into somebody's soul by accident you feel a bit embarrassed about cashing in."

"Did you know Marina Gregg at all?"

"No."

"You come from the States, don't you?"

"I was born in England. I was trained in America though. I came over here, oh, about three years ago."

Dermot Craddock nodded. He had known the answers to his questions. They had been waiting for him among the other lists of information on his office table. The girl seemed straightforward enough. He asked:.

"Where did you train?"

"Reingarden Studios. I was with Andrew Quilp for a time. He taught me a lot."

"Reingarden School and Andrew Quilp." Dermot Craddock was suddenly alert. The names struck a chord of remembrance.

"You lived in Seven Springs, didn't you?"

She looked amused.

"You seem to know a lot about me. Have you been checking up?"

"Oh, I like a change. Besides, as I tell you, I was born in England although I went to the States as a child."

"Quite a young child, I think."

"Five years old, if you're interested."

"I am interested. I think, Miss Bence, you could tell me a little more than you have done."

Her face hardened. She stared at him.

"What do you mean by that?"

Dermot Craddock looked at her and risked it. It wasn't much to go on. Reingarden School and Andrew Quilp and the name of one town. But he felt rather as if old Miss Marple were at his shoulder egging him on.

"I think you knew Marina Gregg better than you say."

She laughed. "Prove it. You're imagining things."

"Am I? I don't think I am. And it could be proved, you know, with a little time and care. Come now, Miss Bence, hadn't you better admit the truth?

"Admit that Marina Gregg adopted you as a child and that you lived with her for four years."

"You nosy bastard!" she said It startled him a little, it was such a contrast to her former manner. She got up, shaking her black head of hair.

"My mother had eight kids. She lived in a slum somewhere. She was one of hundreds of people, I suppose, who write to any film actress that they happen to see or hear about, spilling a hard luck story, begging her to adopt the child a mother couldn't give advantages to. Oh, it's such a sickening business, all of it."

"There were three of you," said Dermot. "Three children adopted at different times from different places."

"That's right. Me and Rod and Angus. Angus was older than I was, Rod was practically a baby. We had a wonderful life. Oh, a wonderful life! All the advantages!"

Her voice rose mockingly. "Clothes and cars and a wonderful house to live in and people to look after us, good schooling and teaching, and delicious food. Everything piled on!

"But she really wanted children," said Dermot Craddock. "That was real enough, wasn't it? It wasn't just a publicity stunt."

"Oh, perhaps. Yes I think that was true. She wanted children. But she didn't want us! Not really.

"It was just a glorious bit of play acting. 'My family.' 'So lovely to have a family of my own.' And Izzy let her do it. He ought to have known better."

"Izzy was Isidore Wright?"

"Yer, her third husband or her fourth, I forget which. He was a wonderful man really.

"He understood her, I think, and he was worried sometimes about us, but he didn't pretend to be a father. He didn't feel like a father. He only cared really about his own writing.

"I've read some of his things since. They're sordid and rather cruel, but they're powerful. I think people will call him a great writer one day."

"And this went on until when?"

Margot Bence's smile curved suddenly. "Until she got sick of that particular bit of play-acting. No, that's not quite true. She found she was going to have a child of her own."

"And then?"

She laughed with sudden bitterness. "Then we'd had it! We weren't wanted any more. We'd done very well as little stepgags, but she didn't care a damn about us really, not a damn.

"Oh, she pensioned us off very prettily. With a home and a foster mother and money for our education and a nice little sum to start us off in the world.

"Nobody can say that she didn't behave correctly and handsomely. But she'd never wanted us, all she wanted was a child of her own."

"You can't blame her for that," said Dermot gently.

"I don't blame her for wanting a child of her own, no! But what about us? She took us away from our own parents, from the places where we belonged.

"My mother sold me for a mess of pottage, if you like, but she didn't sell me for advantage to herself. She sold me because she was a damn silly woman who thought I'd get 'advantages' and 'education' and have a wonderful life.

"She thought she was doing the best for me. Best for me? If she only knew."

"You're still very bitter, I see."

"No, I'm not bitter now. I've got over that. I'm bitter because I'm remembering, because I've gone back to those days. We were all pretty bitter."

"All of you?"

"Well, not Rod. Rod never cared about anything. Besides, he was rather small. But Angus felt like I did, only I think he was more revengeful. He said that when he was grown up he would go and kill that baby she was going to have."

"You knew about the baby?"

"Oh, of course I knew. And everyone knows what happened. She went crazy with rapture about having it and then when it was born it was an idiot! Served her right. Idiot or no Idiot, she didn't want us back again."

"You hate her very much?"

"Why shouldn't I hate her? She did the worst thing to me that anyone can do to anyone else. Let them believe that they're loved and wanted and then show them that it's all a sham."

"What happened to your two—I'll call them brothers, for the sake of convenience."

"Oh, we all drifted apart later. Rod's farming somewhere in the Middle West. He's got a happy nature, and always had. Angus? I don't know. I lost sight of him."

"Did he continue to feel revengeful?"

"I shouldn't think so," said Margot. "It's not the sort of thing you can go on feeling. The last time I saw him, he said he was going on the stage. I don't know whether he did."

"You've remembered, though," said Dermot.

"Yes. I've remembered," said Margot Bence.

"Was Marina Gregg surprised to see you on that day or did she make the arrangements for your photography on purpose to please you?"

"She?" The girl smiled scornfully. "She knew nothing about the arrangements. I was curious to see her, so I did a bit of lobbying to get the job.

"As I say I've got some influence with studio people. I wanted to see what she looked like nowadays."

She stroked the surface of the table.

"She didn't even recognize me. What do you think of that? I was with her for four years. From 5 years old to 9, and she didn't recognize me."

"Children change," said Dermot Craddock, "they change so much that you'd hardly know them. I have a niece I met the other day and I assure you I'd have passed her in the street."

★ ★ ★

"Are you saying that to make me feel better? I don't care really. Oh! what the hell, let's be honest. I do care. I did. She had a magic, you know. Marina! A wonderful calamitous magic that took hold of you. You can hate a person and still mind."

★ ★ ★

"You didn't tell her who you were?"

She shook her head. "No, I didn't tell her. That's the last thing I'd do."

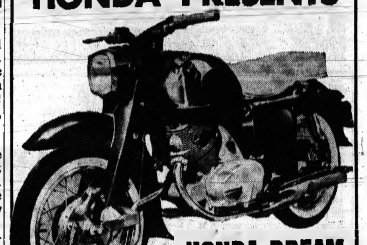

"Did you try and poison her, Miss Bence?"

Her mood changed. She got up and laughed.

"What ridiculous questions you do ask! But I suppose you have to. It's part of your job. No. I can assure you I didn't kill her."

NAACP Youth to Play More Aggressive Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said today NAACP youth groups have been "unshackled and will take a more aggressive role" in the organization's civil rights fight.

"Our 40,000-member youth corps will no longer be restrained or hampered by conservative policies of some local NAACP chapters," Wilkins said.

"They will receive direction from our national headquarters in New York and be free to plan and stage demonstrations under our existing constitution and directives."

* * *

Wilkins was interviewed by telephone from Charleston, S.C., where he had addressed an integration meeting Sunday night.

His comments on NAACP youth resulted from a bitter attack on the quality of the organization's youth leaders by James H. Meredith, the first known Negro to attend the University of Mississippi.

* * *

Meredith's criticism, made at the NAACP's annual convention in Chicago last week, was answered with a vehemence which caused Meredith to admit "I wept my first tears since I was a child."

Meredith aroused the anger of the NAACP youth group by saying:

"Any one of you burr heads out there could be the owner of a large department store, president of a corporation, or even mayor of the city of Chicago. Only believe, all things are possible, if you only believe."

'LOW QUALITY'

He also remarked on "the low quality and ineffectiveness of our Negro youth leaders."

Wilkins commended Meredith as a "very independent and courageous person.

"It was unfortunate, however, that he made the mistake of attacking our youth.

"Mr. Meredith endured much to be admitted to the University of Mississippi, but he is now out of step and evidently misinformed about the civil rights fight," Wilkins said.

* * *

Wilkins emphasized that the role of adults in the NAACP is not being de-emphasized but is being revamped to allow the organization's youth to participate more actively in the integration fight.

The NAACP leader said he had found the leadership in the youth group "intelligent, articulate, militant and free from fear, especially fear of certain economic reprisals some adults might have.

* * *

"Since the civil rights fight intensified, more than half of the youth arrested in so-called direct action and militant demonstrations were members of our youth groups," he said.

In an obvious reference to groups such as the Congress of Racial Equality, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, Wilkins said:

* * *

"The so-caled direct action groups, of course, got the publicity while an impression was given that the NAACP was strictly concerned with only legal work in the civil rights struggle."

* * *

Wilkins said this was "entirely a false impression which resulted in a myth that the national NAACP office was the conservative force in the civil rights struggle, leaving the more militant direct action work to others.

"I first suggested our youth should be utilized in direct action under national office supervision at our 1960 annual convention in St. Paul," he added.

Wilkins said this suggestion was again brought out at the Chicago convention, and a resolution was passed to the effect that the youth group would be given a more active role.

He declined to say whether this would mean the NAACP's youth would immediately begin to stage demonstrations independent of the other civil rights groups.

However, he commented:

"They will be active, very active in both planning and executing their activities.

"They have done remarkable work in the past for which they have received little or no recognition. This will not be the case in the future.

"Our youth leaders are our future adult leaders. "It is only fitting that they play an active and militant role in this social struggle."

Goostree Service Set; Veteran Tiger Scout

SHREVEPORT, La (AP)—Funeral service for Eddie Goostree Sr., 75-year-old baseball scout for the Detroit Tigers, will be held Tuesday in Clarksdale, Tenn., his hometown.

Goostree, a scout since 1927, died here Saturday after a heart attack. His discoveries included Schoolboy Rowe, Tommy Bridges, Rudy York, Dizzy Trout, Whitlow Wyatt and Smokey Burgess.

He played third base from 1909 to 1926 for minor league teams in Louisville, Columbus, Ohio, and Portsmouth, Va.

St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands was formally colonized by the Danes in 1672.

Disabled Veterans Set Annual Affair

The annual dinner and officer installation of Disabled American Veterans, Pontiac Memorial Chapter 101, will be 6:30 p.m. July 18, at 570 Oakland.

Commander-elect of the group is Floyd E. Cremer, 1249 Featherstone. He is director of the Oakland County Department of Veterans Affairs, is a past president of the chapter and formerly headed the Oakland County Council of Veterans.

Also taking office are Alfred Sayles, chaplain; Gerald Torrian, treasurer; Duane Shaw, adjutant; Arlene Dallmon, assistant adjutant; Anthony Renn, judge advocate; Edward McKinney, legislative chairman.

Dressen Predicts Tiger Upswing

Bengals Split 'Bill With KC; Remain in 9th

Bunning Wins Opener; Lary Pitches Well but Bull Pen Fails

DETROIT (AP) — Take it from manager Charlie Dressen — the Tigers will be an improved club in the second half of the season.

"They're not as bad as they've played," concluded Dressen as the Tigers reached the season's halfway point and the three-day All-Star break yesterday, still in ninth place.

The Tigers breathed the heady atmosphere of eighth place for three hours yesterday. They won their sixth straight, beating Kansas City 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader, and stormed into a tie for eighth with the Athletics.

The big jump was a little too much for them and they dropped right back into ninth by blowing the nightcap, 8-7.

Dressen was encouraged by Frank Lary's strong performance in the nightcap. Lary worked six innings in his first start since returning from the minors and was leading 4-3 when he was yanked during the Athletics seven-run rally in the seventh. He showed his arm is much stronger than when he was farmed out in May.

Norm Cash, Rocky Colavito and Billy Bruton — the three players Dressen said must start hitting when he took over as manager last month — are beginning to crack the ball.

CASH CONNECTS

Cash hit a homer and a double, driving in two runs in the nightcap. Colavito contributed a two-run double in the opener. Bruton had three singles and a double in the two games and stretched his hitting streak to 12 games.

Al Kaline, who'll start in the All-Star game tomorrow, will get a couple of days off before the Tigers resume Thursday at Chicago. His hitting has tailed off, his leg hurts and he needs the rest.

The Tigers have been winning without too much help from Kaline. And this is the big reason Dressen feels the Tigers will start climbing in the standings.

Miss Bardahl 1963 Champion

Gold Cup's Hue Green-Black

DETROIT (AP)—The green and black colors of Miss Bardahl fly as Gold Cup speedboat racing champion for 1963.

The Seattle boat driven by Ron Musson, former Akron, Ohio, electrical contractor, won the honors Sunday by leaving her favored Seattle companion, defending champion Miss Thriftway, far to the rear.

* * *

A crowd estimated at 185,000 watched the dramatic battle on the Detroit River as Miss Bardahl beat out a field of 12 of the nation's highest-powered unlimited hydroplanes.

The outcome of the seven 15-mil eheats denied driver Bill Muncey, handling Miss Thriftyway, an historic fifth Gold Cup victory.

Miss Thriftway finished last among the six finalisos as the veteran Muncey lost his chance to tie old-time Detroit racer Gar Wood's record of five cup triumphs.

Traveling at speeds well above 100 miles per hour, though less than Miss Thriftway's 116.463 m.p.h. qualifying record, the racers dueled in alternate rain and sunshine.

Musson complained about the choppy water conditions in the early heats. He said at that time the race should have been postponed. Muncey had the same complaints. But Musson went on to win all three of his preliminaries, virtually cinching the Cup.

He and Miss Bardahl were so far ahead on points that he took it easy in the final heat, content with second place behind Bill Cantrell and his Gale V of Detroit.

Miss Bardahl finished her day with 1,500 points to the runner-up Gale's 1,400. Tahoe Miss of Reno, Nev., driven by Chuck Thompson, was third with 1,225.

Next in order were Notre Dame of Detroit, driven by Col. Warner Gardner, 845; Miss Exide, Seattle, driven by Mira Slovak, 844, and Miss Thriftway, 823.

The Cup victory was worth $10,000 first money to Musson. He also won several hundred dollars more in lap and other prizes.

Detroit's Miss U.S. boats, I and V, lost out early. Miss U.S. I kicked off to the side in the first heat, injuring driver Roy Duby. Duby's back was hurt and he had to retire. Miss U.S. V snapped off a sponson.

WINNER CONGRATULATED — Gar Wood, 82, whose name is imprinted on the Gold Cup a record five times, congratulates Ron Musson of Seattle who stands behind the coveted prize after driving Miss Bardhal to victory Sunday on the Detroit River. Musson defeated 12 other unlimited hydroplanes.

34th Classic Could Attract 50,000 Fans

Tigers' Jim Bunning Not Likely to Fill Starter's Role

CLEVELAND (AP)—The National League, winner of five of the last seven games (excluding a tie), ruled a 6-5 choice to defeat the American League in Tuesday's 34th All-Star Game at vast Municipal Stadium.

A crowd of about 50,000 is expected, largest since 55,105 in Los Angeles watched the Americans defeat the Nationals 6-3 in the second of two games in 1959. The game is scheduled to begin at noon, EST, and will be carried by NBC radio and television.

* * *

The game will mark the return to one All-Star Game after four years of doubles. Despite his recent defeats, the American League holds a 17-15-1 edge in the series dating back to 1933.

This will be the first game at Cleveland since 1954, when the Americans won 11-9 on a bases-filled bloop single by Nellie Fox. The veteran infielder will be the American League's starting second baseman again Tuesday.

The only other All-Star Game in Cleveland attracted a record crowd of 69,831, July 8, 1935.

LIKE BIG CROWDS

The Americans won that one, too, 4-1. In fact, the Americans have won five of the six games which have attracted 50,000 or more spectators.

Manager Alvin Dark and Ralph Houk, who will be master-minding the rival forces, will not announce their batting orders and starting line-ups until 24 hours before game time.

Houk, also playing the percentages, will select a right-hander to oppose the predominantly right-handed hitting National League squad. The Yankee skipper originally had leaned to Jim Bunning, Detroit's right-handed ace who has pitched brilliantly in previous All-Star Games.

* *

Bunning, however, pitched nine innings Sunday and Houk has hinted he may go with Boston's Bill Monbouquette. Monbouquette lost in relief Sunday, but pitched only one inning and Houk said "it wasn't enough to trouble him."

While both are determined to win, the rival managers approach this game with different attitudes. If they stick to their original intentions, Dark will keep his starters in the game as long as possible while Houk will make wholesale substitutions as soon as it is legally permissable.

EQUAL STATUS

The squads are surprisingly equal in power. Each starting squad had a total of 92 home runs through Saturday's games. Overall, the Americans led, 187-182.

The Nationals boast a glittering outfield comprised of Tommy Davis, the league's leading hitter, Aaron, the No. 1 man in homers and runs batted in, and Mays, perhaps baseball's best all around performer.

Lower Huron Swim Meets Are Slated

Two swimming meets will be held at Lower Huron Metropolitan Park near Belleville this month.

The third annual age group meet will be July 31 and the annual novice competition July 24.

* * *

The novice meet is for swimmers 8-14 years old who are not members of a swim club or team. The age group meet is open to boys and girls between the age of 8-16, most of whom are members of swim teams or clubs.

Entries will be limited to participation in two individual events and one relay event.

Candidates for both meets can obtain entry blanks by calling Oxbow 9-2931 or at the pool office. The deadline for the novice meet is July 22, and July 29 for the age group meet.

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Margaret Smith of Australia won the women's singles tennis championship at Wimbledon today by defeating Billie Jean Moffitt of the United States, 6-3, 6-4.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif. tries again today for an all-America sweep of the Wimbledon tennis singles championship.

* * *

Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., won the men's title Friday, defeating Australia's Fred Stolle. It was the first time in eight years an American male has won the coveted Wimbledon championship.

Saturday's postponement was the first time in 40 years that the weather let Wimbledon officials down.

No one was prepared for the situation and officials hoped they would have enough ushers to staff the women's final as well as those in the doubles, also put over from Saturday.

* * *

Men and girls from the Royal Navy, Army and Air Force, who have acted as ushers, gate stewards and dressing room attendants, tried to get an extension of leave which expired Sunday.

"We shall obviously be short-staffed," an official said. "We hope that the public will co-operate with us and that we can see the tournament through smoothly."

The United States also has a chance of getting a share of the women's doubles title. Darlene Hard of Long Beach, Calif. is paired with Maria Bueno of Brazil against Miss Smith and Robyn Ebbern, also of Australia.

Zahn Wins Chicago Bowling Tourney

CHICAGO (AP) — Wayne Zahn, 23-year-old bowler from Atlanta, Ga., got off to a fast start Sunday and held on to win the $3,000 first prize in the Chicago Open Professional Bowlers Association Tournament.

It was the first tournament victory for the former Milwaukee bowler who averaged 219 through 24 games of qualifying and the 16 games in the finals.

Although he lost his final game, 231 to 220 to Jim St. John of Chicago, Zahn took the title by 12 pins. He finished the 40 games with a total of 9,318 pins, while St. John had 9,306.

Zadah DeBolt, Stan Savage 2-Ball Champs

Fred Brooks and Gen Brooks finished in a tie for third with Charles and Helen Barker. Both fired 80's.

Managed Jack Dempsey

Boxing's Doc Kearns Dies

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two months ago Jack (Doc) Kearns, one of the most fabulous characters of boxing's golden era in the 1920's, said from a hospital bed "Tell the mob I'll be back soon. I think I'll beat the count. If I felt any better I'd think it was a six."

* * *

Sunday, the man who managed Jack Dempsey to the heavyweight championship and who is credited with bringing the first million dollar gate to boxing by making it possible for women to attend fights without any social stigma, died at the age of 89.

"The last words my father spoke were 'We have got ready and get on the ball and go to Nevada,'" said Jack Kearns, Jr. at whose home the old promoter died. He explained his father planned to establish a health center in Nevada and promote boxing there.

"His body just wore out," the younger Kearns said. In two months confinement to bed he kept arguing with doctors that he had to be up and doing. He had the active mind and sense of humor of a young man."

Before Doc went to Miami he spent several days in a Los Angeles hospital for observation.

"I'm as good as new," he said when he got out March 25. "They found something wrong, a bone broken in my back, maybe, when I didn't know it, but I'm all right now."

FOUR CHAMPS

Funeral service for Kearns who in addition to Dempsey managed Mickey Walker, Joey Maxim and Archie Moore to world championships, will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. EST in the Philbrick Chapel in Coral Gables.

In addition to Jack, Jr. he is survived by another son, Jerry Kearns, an attorney in Baton Rouge, La. and a sister, Helen McKernan.

"I am sorry to hear it," Dempsey said in New York when informed of Kearns' death, "but we had been expecting it. We had a lot of laughs together and we made a lot of money and he made me."

In an apparent reference to his breakup with Kearns after Jack married Estelle Taylor, star of silent movies, Dempsey added "of course we had our ups and downs, but he was a great manager. Those were great times when we were together."

Other tributes poured in from the boxing world.

"The sports world will miss him because there will never be another Doc Kearns," said Archie Moore who won the light-heavyweight title and also fought Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight crown under the tutelage of Kearns.

Kearns is credited by Nat Fleischer, boxing historian, as being the inventor of the art of modern ballyhoo, the kind of publicity that draws crowds.

Moore gave an insight into this facet of Kearns' ability.

HOW TO DEAL

"I learned more from the 10 years I was with Doc than I did in the other 20 years when I was with other managers," Moore said. "I learned how to negotiate with various promoters, how to drive bargains, how to keep in the limelight, how to stay live copy."

Mickey Walker, who won the welterweight and middleweight titles under Kearns, said in New York, "We were very close pals. He was a remarkable guy, big hearted and generous."

Kearns was born John Leo McKernan in Waterloo, Mich. in 1882. He started his career during the Alaska gold rush in 1898. It was there he first met Tex Rickard, who later promoted the million dollar fights for Kearns and Dempsey.

City Leaders Will Meet

Softball Action Heavy

If Arro Realty intends to make up the two-game deficit it has with Harvey's Colonial House, Tuesday night would be a good time to start.

The teams, one-two in the city Class A softball race, will come together at 7 p.m. tomorrow on the Beaudette Park field.

All Class A games this week are listed for Tuesday. The Howe's Lanes-Monicatti Chrysler-Plymouth contest will follow the big game at Beaudette.

At Northside Park, Martin Associates will meet Town & Country and Elks 810 will play 300 Bowl in the nightcap.

The top Waterford Township teams are slated to tangle the following night at the Drayton Plains field. Lakeland Pharmacy Class B team has two games to make up on Spencer Floor Coverings leaders and they will play at 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Lakeland's Class C contender will meet Haskins Chevrolet which is tied for the "C" league lead with A&W Root Beer. This

Saddle Club Plans Horse Show Sunday

The Horseshoe Saddle Club of Michigan will sponsor its fifth annual horse show on Sunday, July 14.

The show will be held at the corner of Crooks Road and South Boulevard.

The E.M.H.A. approved event will feature one of the highest payoffs for a $2 entry fee on non-trophy classes. A 22-event program is scheduled beginning at 9 a.m.

Lakeland nine, also, trails the leaders by two games.

The city leagues will resume play tonight. A National League (Class B) doubleheader has Bob & Larry's Bar listed to defend its league lead against G&M Construction at 7 p. m. on the Beaudette diamond and Circle Inn playing runner-up Pontiac State Hospital at 8:30 p. m.

On the Northside diamond, the Class C Bud & Lou's Bar and Poponea's Market nines are listed for a single game at 7 p. m.

The township will pick up again Tuesday after the holiday break. Dixie Bar will meet A&W Root Beer and Dinky's Hideaway will tangle with Huron Bowl in a "C" loop twin bill beginning at 7 p.m.

THE PALMER METHOD

If your right hand is drifting too far under the shaft (and your left hand too far on top), chances are you're hitting low hooks or else pulling the ball to the left. This type of grip is shown in Illustration #1.

Much of the time, slicing is caused by a faulty grip, such as is pictured in Illustration #2. The right hand has been moved much too far on top of the club, and the left hand has almost disappeared from view, as you look down.

For correct grip, lay the shaft across the left hand at the base of the fingers, then close the last three fingers snugly around the club. The left thumb and forefinger are placed so that the "V" points to the right shoulder. Place the right hand so that the shaft lies in the groove formed by the fingers when they're bent. Keep right thumb and forefinger close together (see illustration #3).

Cranbrook Stays Alive in 'A' Loop

Cranbrook kept alive its first place hopes in the city's Class A baseball circuit last night by upsetting Huron-Airway, 8-3, at Jaycee No. 2 field.

In the first game of the double-header, M. G. Collision took undisputed possession of sixth place by nipping the Barbers, 8-7.

Larry Demarick and Don Sackett, the loop's one-two pitchers based on earned run averages, were matched in the nightcap and had a 2-2 duel going through four and a half innings.

Third sacker Bill Estes unloaded a two-run double off Sackett for Cranbrook in the bottom of the fifth, however, and when Dave Cooper squeezed home Estes, Demrick had all the runs he needed to post his fourth win of the year.

The victorious right-hander fanned six batters and walked one. Sackett whiffed six men, also, and walked two — both of whom scored ahead of the triple by Estes.

The loss dropped H-A a game behind the pace setting Clippers who have a 6 p.m. contest tonight against M.G., winner of its last two starts.

Ron Chedister's second hit of the game, a double, with one out in the last inning brought in Larry Lamphere with the winning run last night for the Collision nine.

The Barbers had jumped to an early 6-1 lead but the winners fought back. Four runs with the help of one single in the fifth inning cut the gap considerably and two more in the next inning tied the count before Chedister broke up the ball game in the seventh.

Elks 9 Posts Upset to Knot I-C League

An 8-7 extra-inning loss to city softball rival Elks 810 dropped Pontiac Harvey's Colonial House into a tie for first place in the Inter-City League over the weekend.

Flint Budick emerged on top four times Saturday and Sunday to tie HCH for the lead. Included in its spurt were 10-3 and 3-2 wins over Saginaw Drewry's and 6-1, 6-5 triumphs over Waterford's Spencer Floor Covering entry.

Harvey's bounced Port Huron twice Saturday night, 3-0 and 5-1, before running into the Elks' ambush yesterday. Floyd Hicks won his second game in two days, 8-6, to gain a split for Harvey's against the Elks.

Hicks hurled a five-hitter against Port Huron Shoffner's after Fats Keith had shut out the portmen with a three-hitter.

Other weekend contests saw the Elks top Spencer Floors, 2-0, on a two-hitter by R. D. Jacobs, although the township team bounced back for a 4-3 decision on a home run by Harry Dearborn in the last inning.

Sunday Port Huron and Drewry's of Saginaw split a twin bill with the latter bouncing back, 3-1, on a one-hitter by Don Hingston after Port Huron had won the opener by an identical score.

The first game between Harvey's and the Elks went nine innings before the lodgemen could pin the loss on Keith. Home runs by Chuck Graves and Roger Nossek led the winners. Dick Cooper homered for the losers.

John Long's two-run triple in the fifth inning was the big blow as the co-leaders came back in the nightcap.

WANTED! MEN — WOMEN

Government positions pay as high as $446.00 a month to start. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass. Lincoln Service helps thousands prepare for these tests every year. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

For FREE information on Government jobs, including list of positions and salaries, fill out coupon and mail at once — TODAY. You will also get full details on how you can prepare yourself for these tests. Don't delay—ACT NOW!

32 Rolladium Skaters Qualify

Local 'Yankees' Eye Nationals

Pontiac Rolladium Club members — the New York Yankees of the roller skating world — qualified 32 for the American championships later this month during regional competition at the Rolladium over the Fourth of July weekend.

The local skaters grabbed 12 first places on the way to preparing for defense of the national team championship they have won eight of the last nine years.

Rolladium will be a strong favorite to repeat — like the Yankees' at Portland, Ore. the last week of this month.

"We did as well as I had expected," commented Rolladium team coach Bert Anselmi. "There were three or four events I expected to have skaters qualify, but they failed. Overall, I feel we did very well."

Paul Mexico was a key performer for the Rolladium, winning the senior men's singles and teaming with Dianne Grassi to take honors in intermediate pairs. Miss Grassi also won the junior girls singles.

Over 400 skaters competed in the four-day meet. The top three finishers in each of the 54 events qualified for the national championships.

Senior Ladies Figures—3. Cozella Dartmont, Rolladium. Intermediate Men's Singles—2. Dennis Horrall, Rolladium. Junior Girls' Singles—1 Diane Grassi, Rolladium. Senior Dance — 1. Gerry McNelve and Miss Dartmont, Rolladium; 3. James Bell and Carole White, Rolladium. Senior Ladies Singles—2. Miss Dartmont. Intermediate Pairs — Paul Mexico and Gale Enamінger, Rolladium; 3. Horrall and Miss Grossi.

Senior Men's Singles—1. Mexico. 2. David Schafer, Rolladium. Juvenile C Girls Speed—1. Joan Hartley, Pontiac; 2. Robyn Swanson, Clarkston. Juvenile B Girls Singles—3. Melanie Money, Rolladium.

Junior Girls Figures—3. Sandra Bruce, Rolladium. Juvenile A Girls Speed—2 Carmen Hirnisien, Rolladium. Juvenile D Boys Speed—2. Dale Travers, Utica. 3. James Lund, Rolladium. Intermediate Ladies Figures—2. Cheryl Leineke, Rolladium; 3. Darlene Zakrevich, Rolladium. Jr. Girls Speed — 3. Diane Bielicki Rolladium. Intermediate Men's Speed—1. Jerry Charter, Rolladium; Norbert Donnelly, Rolladium. Intermediate Ladies Speed—3. Betsy Hodge, Rolladium. Sr. Ladies Speed — 3. Mary Jo Kurk, Rolladium. Men's Relay—3. HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (UPI) — The Cornell University heavyweights, the Amlong brothers of Philadelphia and Rollins College of Florida were all beaten on the final day of the Royal Henley Regatta.

Mrs. Werner Seeks Crown

State Amateur Golf Tournament Starts

Mrs. T. M. Werner of Birmingham will be trying to regain the state women's amateur golf championship when she tees off today in the 18-hole qualifying round.

Mrs. Werner (Sally Sharpe) and 117 other top women golfers from the state are seeking 31 match-play berths in the tournament at Western Golf and Country Club.

The defending champion is Mrs. Keith LeClair of Ann Arbor. She does not have to qualify for the 47th annual event and will join the 31 low qualifying scorers for match play in the championship flight beginning Tuesday.

Head-on play will continue Wednesday and Thursday with the semifinal and championship matches scheduled Friday.

Mrs. Werner, who won in 1956, 1958 and 1961, is one of four ex-champions in the field.

Breeze Good for Sailors

The breeze was "the best of the season" for sail boat races on Watkins and Orchard Lakes over the weekend.

John Seaton took lightning honors at the Pontiac Yacht Club races on Orchard with Alex Clark second and George Berry third. Roe Redner won the catamaran competition.

Harmon Gillen paced the thistle winners at Watkins. Carl Krtiz was second and Jack Berlen third. Glen Fries paced the snipe class followed by Dave Green and Fred Brede.

Dr. Leo Wasserberger of Pontiac placed first Saturday in a warmup race on the Detroit River at Grosse Pointe YC for the coming district lightning races.

Parents' Suggestions Needed

Planning Ahead Is Key to Teen Activities

By LESLIE J. NASON, ED. D.

Now is the time of year when we hear most clearly the teen-ager's plaintive cry—

"What can we do? Where can we go?"

DR. NASON

Most any parent can make good suggestions. "Paint the woodwork. Mow the lawn. Wash the car. Learn to cook. Scrub some floors. Build a boat. Get a job."

The key to getting such suggestions carried out lied in planning. In my experience, it has worked almost invariably.

Once when I was a young teacher I wanted my students to gather around my desk so that they could watch closely a demonstration of static electricity. So I merely told the room of eighth graders, "gather round the desk please." Swoosh, I was surrounded by a jam-packed crowd.

★ ★ ★

Next time I was explicit.

"Don't move until I tell you," I said, "but I want you to observe at close range the material on the desk. Will those students in the front row arise quietly and come forward to my desk, and then the next row, and so on?"

Now the students knew exactly what was expected of them and they did it.

CHECKS, BALANCES

Teen-agers are best controlled through a balance of prohibitions and positive directions. They are at the age of struggle against restraint, yet restraint is necessary for their protection and sense of security.

At the beginning of this period, usually the junior high period, they have an abundance of energy. They are willing to carry out the directions of parents and teachers provided they know what is wanted and how to do it. Left on their own, they lace direction. What they decide to do often irritates adults.

Parents do not owe their children entertainment. The world does not owe them a living. They do owe the world something. They should use part of their time, energy and talent to help others. Help their pastor, their Red Cross, the Salvation Army. Assist the poor, visit the sick and, when they are through if they are not too tired, read a book.

The attitude of the parents should be: "This is the right thing to do." "In our family each can do many things to make life happier for all." "To have a successful family is what we all want."

★ ★ ★

Back again to planning: it must be done ahead of time.

For example: If woodwork is to be painted the conversation on Tuesday could well go: "Thursday morning would be a good time for you to paint that woodwork. Check today to see if we have the paint, drop cloths and brushes you will need. Anything you need we can get tomorrow. Thursday morning, put on your work clothes when you first get up. We'll get the breakfast dishes out of the way."

Early planning also allows for a discussion of methods. Work tie thus can be scheduled ahead of other activities.

Once established — the habit of planning ahead makes life easier for adults and children alike.

One of the main differences between match point duplicate and rubber bridge is that a duplicate player can take any sort of wild gamble with the certain knowledge that all it can cost him is a bottom score on one board while a rubber bridge player might have to mortgage the family home to pay off his losses if he tried anything of this sort.

JACOBY

At duplicate, when East followed his one spade response to his partner's opening heart bid with a jump to four hearts South decided that he was being fixed. In certain circles a psychic spade response is used after partner opens with one heart and South decided that East had made such a bid. So South took a deep breath and dived to a four-spade contract. East doubled and now South stood by his guns.

West opened the king of diamonds and for some reason or other East let him hold the trick. West shifted to a heart and South went up with dummy's queen. When this held only a couple more things were necessary to bring home the four-spade contract.

South cashed dummy's ace of spades and dropped West's queen. A second spade was won by East's king and East led his singleton club.

South studied a while and rose with the ace. When the king dropped South cashed his jack of spades, conceded one more spade trick and chalk up 790 points and a thoroughly undeserved top score.

Q—The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
3♣	Pass	3♥	Pass

You, South hold: ♠AQ865 ♥108 ♦KQ7 ♣K94

What do you do?

A—Bid three no trump. You have no interest in a slam and every reason to play the no-trump game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR
For Tuesday

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Don't mix business with pleasure. Best way to lose a friend is to involve him with money deal. Keep work and recreation at distance. The two don't combine with harmony today.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): People are apt to receive erroneous impression of what you want to accomplish. Take time to EXPLAIN. Exhibit goodwill, humor. Permit others to peer "deep inside" you, give them a chance to have FAITH.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Good inner aspect today spotlights creative thinking. Your intuition provides illuminating answer to recent puzzle. Knowledge comes instantaneously. Recognize truth.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Much beauty in what you say, what you see and what you do. Recognize responsibility in connection with fulfilling promises important part today in that you receive OPPORTUNITY.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21): Emphasize proper amount of time for that "second wind." Slow pace so you can observe details. Avoid erratic action. Where money matters are concerned. Be sure before going ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Recent attitude of cooperation leads to "pay off." You are right. You can say, "Now I know I can do it!" Express cheer, optimism, goodwill. Don't be afraid to tackle the unusual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Find out what caused recent friction at home. Take steps to correct situation. Important for you to achieve domestic harmony. Express love . . . and receive strength from knowledge that you ARE loved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Key is to avoid self-deception. You want certain persons, situations to be a "certain way." You can't bring this about by merely wishing. Take steps to turn hopes into realities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Much talk concerning what others purportedly say or have said. Means you could find yourself surrounded by sea of gossip. Be perceptive, discriminating and hold on to principles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Chance to improve financial status appears. Grab opportunity when it comes. Means be alert, willing, enthusiastic. You gain by teaching, by sharing, exhibiting charitable attitude.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Lunar cycle continues at peak. Your judgment, intuitive abilities especially sharp. Doors previously closed now flash "come on" sign. Be independent. Exhibit confidence. Sparkle with wit, humor.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Show appreciation for recent favors, to one who was kind to you in past. Remember birthdays, anniversaries. Day to write letters, to get together, formulate plans. Good for visiting, writing.

IF TUESDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are aware of needs of others. You would make excellent teacher, doctor, minister. You DETERMINED to live way people think you should.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: People in public life are asked soon to be re-

Market Moderately Lower

Rails and Motors Dip Sharply

NEW YORK, (AP)—Rails and motors dipped sharply in a moderately lower stock market early this afternoon. Trading was somewhat faster than Friday's slow pace.

* * *

Key stocks fell from fractions to a point or more. A scattering of fractional gainers cushioned the decline.

Wall Street was cautious in view of the vehement rejection by the rail labor unions of a proposed settlement plan of the work rules dispute, leading to the possibility of either a nationwide rail strike or government intervention.

Rails stocks declined on a broad front, some losses going to a point or two.

The major auto stocks also showed some fairly sharp losses. Steels eased off fractionally.

Some of the office equipments and other "glamour" issues fell several points. Drugs, tobaccos, airlines and rubbers were among the losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .8 to 272.3 with industrials down .8, rails down 1.3, and utilities off .1.

* * *

Great Northern Railway fell more than 2 points, Southern Railway nearly 2, Chicago & North Western more than a point. Down fractionally were New York Central, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania and others.

Chrysler sank more than 2 points. Ford was down more than a point.

* * *

IBM was off nearly 10 points before clipping 2 points or so from the loss. Another financial magazine article told of increasing competition for IBM in the computer field. Control Data, one of IBM's successful competitors, instead of rising as it did a week ago as IBM sank, lost more than 2. Polaroid slipped more than 4 despite rumors of better profits. U.S. Smelting slipped about 2. Xerox more than a point.

Corporate bonds were mixed, with rails tending lower. U.S. Government bonds were unchanged to lower in moderate dealings over the counter.

Stalls Clinton River Project

Hope for End to Drainage Suit

By DICK HANSON

Oakland County officials are hoping for an early settlement in Detroit Federal Court of a drainage suit that is holding up the $2.5-million Clinton River project in Pontiac and an estimated $22.2 million in similar projects elsewhere in the state.

County Corporation Counsel Robert Allen said the court might dismiss the suit tomorrow because the plaintiffs failed to file it in state court.

But even if the action is dismissed, the litigants have 60 days in which to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

★ ★ ★

Any further delay is apt to jeopardize construction of Pontiac's downtown perimeter road which is already under way. Construction of both projects must be dovetailed at one point in the city.

The suit, brought by a Macomb County citizens group, challenges a widely applied chapter (Act 20) of the Michigan Drain Code.

The plaintiffs' attorneys argue that provisions of the chapter are arbitrary and unconstitutional depriving property owners of due process of law.

One of the attorneys, Wilson L. Jackson, said the law allows communities to petition counties for drain projects without a public vote and gives three-member drain commissions excessive authority to set drain districts, apportion costs and let contracts without competitive bidding.

Jackson said this authority is beyond that delegated to the executive branch of government by the State Constitution.

★ ★ ★

The lawsuit has hung a legal cloud over bond issues for all drainage projects pending throughout the state.

NO BID MADE

Oakland County Drain Commissioner Daniel Barry said no bonding houses nor banks will bid to purchase drainage bonds until after the suit has been settled.

The drain commission was ready to take bids on the Clinton River project when the suit was filed in Detroit.

The Pontiac City Commission had asked the County Drain Commission to undertake the widening, deepening and straightening of the river to ease its flow through the downtown district.

The City Commission has agreed to retire the 30-year bond through a special assessment on all city taxpayers.

This is the very provision challenged by the Macomb County group in its county because the taxpayers are afforded no opportunity to vote on whether they want such projects.

★ ★ ★

Work is proceeding around the point near Union and E. Huron streets where the road is to cross over a section of the river that is to be rerouted.

Stierer said he didn't know how long the city could proceed in this manner. Both the river and road projects are scheduled for completion late in 1964.

Charles R. Moon, bonding attorney for Macomb County, said, at the court's suggestion, he would make a motion to dismiss the suit at tomorrow's hearing.

The defending attorneys said the people who filed the suit are not sufficiently involved financially to qualify for federal litigation under a $10,000 technical limitation.

They questioned the plaintiff's right to interfere with a matter involving the health and safety of the general public and said the suit should have been filed in a state court instead of Federal Court.

The suit is being heard by a panel of three judges.

Judge Clifford O'Sullivan of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati heads the panel. Other members are Detroit Federal Judges Theodore Levin and Thaddeus M. Machrowicz.

6 Airlines Plan Move to Metro

Willow Run Loses Commercial Contracts

DETROIT (AP) — Contracts have been signed for the transfer of six major airlines from Willow Run Airport to the adjoining Detroit Metropolitan Airport, a Wayne County Road Commission spokesman said yesterday.

The move by Eastern, United, TWA, North Central, Lake Central and Mohawk airlines, all operating at Willow Run, will more than double Metro's operations, said James M. Davey, Road Commission managing director.

The airlines expect to complete the move by the summer of 1965. Currently operating at Metro are Northwest American, Delta, Allegeny, BOAC and Pan American Airlines.

Davey said the Road Commission which owns and operates Metro, has approved a request for a $33-million bond issue to build new facilities at the airport. The request is being considered by the airport committee of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors.

Davey said that if the bond issue is approved, the construction would place Metro among the top 10 airports in the nation. It now ranks about 40th, he said.

Metro currently has about 5,500 airplane movements a month, compared to 7,500 a month at Willow Run, owned and operated by the University of Michigan. Willow Run will continue operating, U-M spokesmen indicated, possibly as an airport for private planes.

"This will have to be worked out with our airport engineer Robert J. Peckham," said Hoskins.

ALERT BOARD

He said tomorrow's meeting was requested to alert the county's Airport Zoning Board that some rezoning will be needed for ILS.

Board Chairman Duane Hursfall, Independence Township supervisor, said the meeting was being called to keep members abreast of Pontiac's plans for expansion at the airport on M59.

The board hasn't met for six years because there hasn't been anything to discuss, he said.

The city's plans, which eventually call for jet flights at the field, have been stalled for several months for lack of funds.

★ ★ ★

The City Commission has approached the County Board of Supervisors to participate in costs of expansion.

The board of supervisors has made no commitment pending completion of an over-all study of airport facilities and needs in the county.

Seeterlin said he has invited James Miller of the Detroit Metropolitan Regional Planning Commission to tomorrow's meeting to discuss zoning changes at Wayne Metropolitan Airport in Wayne County as they might be applied here for future jet operations.

The meeting will be held at Pontiac Municipal Airport starting at 10 a.m.

Airport Board Sets Confab on New Landing System

Oakland County's Airport Zoning Board will meet with Pontiac Municipal Airport Manager Homer Hoskins tomorrow to review plans for an instrument landing system at the airport.

Hoskins said some rezoning would be necessary in Waterford Township to provide instrument landings at the field in the near future.

Landing lights would have to be installed at either end of the east-west runway, he said. This would require the acquisition of additional land in a built-up residential area on the east side of Airport road.

★ ★ ★

It also would mean acquiring vacant land owned by the State Conservation Department on the west side of Williams Lake Road, Hoskins said.

This is the first step recommended in a master plan for expansion of the airport, which presently is limited to daytime use.

Hoskins said it is too soon to say how much land would have to be rezoned and acquired.

Officer Averts Safe Robbery

Attempt Is Foiled at Office in Waterford

Officer Al Doud, patroling the area at 3:50 a.m. today, noted that the company's safe was out of place as he glanced in the front window from the road.

Doud radioed for assistance, then drove to the rear of the building and discovered the opened outer safe on the floor. The inner safe containing $1,192.62 in cash, however, was intact.

★ ★ ★

Attempts to pry open the smaller safe were evident. But, apparently, Doud's arrival scared off the intruder or intruders.

★ ★ ★

Doud said he heard someone running behind a nearby store but was unable to find anyone. Other officers arrived and searched the area without success.

Champ of Chess Amasses Nearly Perfect Score

Fischer finished in front of a strong field including defending champion Robert Byrne of Indianapolis. Fischer's score in the meet was 7.5425 of a possible eight.

For his winning play, Fischer was awarded $750. Fischer was held to a draw in second-round play by Dr. Paul Poschel of Ann Arbor.

The winner of the Women's Western Open Championship was Adelle Goddard of Miami, Fla.

Head-On Car Crash Badly Injures Driver

Guy Barnett, 31, of 99 Lincoln, is in poor condition at St. Joseph Hospital with injuries suffered in a head-on collision in Waterford Township Saturday.

Barnett's car collided with one driven by Wilson Ledbetter, 41, of 1029 Buster, Waterford Township, on Highland Road, 100 feet east of Airport at 6:51 p.m.

Ledbetter told police that Barnett's westbound auto crossed the center line in front of his eastbound car. Barnett was unconscious after the accident and unable to make a statement.

4 Leap as Blast Destroys Cruiser

DETROIT (AP) — Four Ohio boaters leaped to safety on a nearby dock Saturday when a $40,000 cabin cruiser exploded at the Old Club on Harsens Island in the Detroit River.

★ ★ ★

Police said the boat owner, Don M. Casto Jr., 41, was starting the engines to move the craft to another dock when the explosion occurred.

Casto, his wife Betty, 39, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Pierce Jr., all of Columbus, leaped to safety.

Hold Successful Test for Japan-Built Missile

TOKYO (AP) — The Defense Agency today successfully test-fired the first missile made in Japan—an air-to-air weapon—at the firing range on Nijima Island 100 miles south of Tokyo.

Vilagers, supported by left wing elements, threatened to block the test by sending fishing boats into the target area. But officials reported the firing went off without incident.

Doctor Heads Race to Lead Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's voters today pushed a country doctor toward the presidency of South America's second largest nation and also gave a setback to exiled dictator Juan D. Peron.

Only 14 per cent of the voters heeded the Peronist call to cast blank ballots in Sunday's election. In previous elections boycotted by Peronists blank ballots have run as high as one third of the vote.

★ ★ ★

It appeared, however, that about 2 million of Argentina's 11.5 million eligible voters stayed home despite fines prescribed in the compulsory voting law. This could be due to resentment at the barring from the race of the Peronist candidate, Vicente Solano Lima who had been the favorite.

Dr. Arguro Illia, 62, held a steady lead as counting of the votes continued but he fell far short of the 51 per cent required for election.

BALLOT FOR ELECTORS

Voters cast ballots for electors pledged to the presidential candidates, not for the candidates. The Electoral College will meet July 31 to name a president. Since no candidate has 51 per cent of the vote, the electors are free to switch.

If no candidate gets a 51 per cent vote in the Electoral College, the election is thrown into Congress. There the choice is confined to the top three in the electoral college voting.

With about half the vote counted, government figures gave Illia 1,173,000 votes, or about 25 per cent. Dr. Oscar Alende, former governor of Buenos Aires Province, had 824,430 votes, and retired Gen. Pedro Aramburu, a former provisional president, had 805,717.

"Don Nadie"—Mr. Nobody—the popular name given to the blank ballots was fourth with 680,960. Seven other candidates polled 1,147,376 of the 4,631,513 ballots counted.

COALITION ORDER

The vote blank order came from the National and Popular Front, a seven-party coalition backed by Peron from exile in Spain and by imprisoned former President Arturo Frondizi. The Peronist controlled Labor Confederation joined in the call and ordered a general strike next Friday.

★ ★ ★

An army force of 70,000 stood guard as Argentina tried to restore constitutional rule after a turbulent year of revolts and threatened uprisings over the elections. Despite signs of trouble ahead, the balloting went off without major incident.

Despite Red Protests

Prince to Seize Laos Base

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Ignoring pro-Communist Pathet Lao protests, neutralist Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma announced today his government is formally taking over the former French military base at Seno.

The Pathet Lao leader, Deputy Premier Prince Souphanouvong, had insisted that the base, nearly 200 miles south of here, remain in French hands until the integration of the armies of the rightist, neutralist and leftist factions of the coalition government.

Rightist troops of Deputy Premier Gen. Phoumi Nosavan occupied the base June 25, claiming it was threatened by the Pathet Lao. Souphanouvong demanded the withdrawal of the rightists.

The neutralists and Pathet Lao are engaged in a conflict on the Plaine des Jarres, north of Vientiane.

Announcing the formal takeover of the base, a communique from the premier's office recalled that last Dec. 15 the French and Laotian governments proclaimed their agreement for transfer of military installations at the Seno base to the coalition government in accordance with the Geneva accords guaranteeing Laoss' neutrality.

The communique said the French Seno garrison was reduced and last May 1 the French government informed the coalition that the French Seno base had "ceased to exist."

Officer Frees Prisoners in Flaming Jail

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A courageous policeman crashed through a wall of flames today to release 13 prisoners who were trapped in the cell block at City Hall.

Nine of the prisoners took advantage of the confusion to make their escape, but one was quickly recaptured.

The prisoners were at the mercy of the onrushing flames until patrolman George Jackson made his dash through the blaze and unlocked the cell. He suffered only slight injury.

★ ★ ★

Officials said none of the prisoners was being held for a serious crime.

The fire devastated the cell room and several adjoining police offices. Other rooms, including the mayor's office, were damaged by smoke and water.

Say Commie Force Raided in Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — The South Vietnamese government charged today that 100 Communist raiders crossed into Vietnamese territory from Cambodia last Friday and stole cash, clothes, jewelry and cattle.

The government said the Communist force raided a strategic hamlet at the border town of Rach Go in southern Kien Giang Province, south of Saigon.

The marauders held the hamlet until 2:30 a.m. Saturday when rescue troops drove them back across the border, the government said.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A. M. Rosenthal, a foreign correspondent for the New York Times since 1954, yesterday was appointed metropolitan editor of the Times.

Rosenthal, 41, will succeed Frank S. Adams, named to the Times editorial board. The appointments will take effect later in the summer.

Ex-Township Clerk Dies of Heart Attack

ROSE TOWNSHIP— Raymond E. Dearborn, township clerk from 1945 to 1959, died yesterday of a heart attack. He was 60.

Service will be 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Dryer Funeral Home, Holly. Burial will be in Rose Center Cemetery.

Mr. Dearborn of 10860 Milford was employed by the Oakland County Road Commission. He was a member of the Farm Bureau.

Urges Legislation to Open Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's civil rights chief urged Congress today to enact legislation to abolish racial discrimination in places of public accommodation.

★ ★ ★

"It constitutes vitally needed legislation," Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall told the Senate Commerce Committee. "It would remedy what patently is an injustice, and it would do so by the normal processes of law."

Marshall echoed the plea made last week by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy as the administration touched off its congressional campaign to establish a series of sweeping new civil rights laws.

Two house subcommittees also scheduled civil rights hearings today. One takes up the manpower retraining program and the other considers a proposal to deny federal aid to segregated schools.

Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze will appear before the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday when it reopens hearings on the president's omnibus seven-point program.

Marshall's prepared testimony concerned only the proposal to open public facilities such as restaurants, stores, hotels and places of recreation to all, regardless of race.

This has been the most controversial point of the program, because it is based on the constitution's interstate commerce clause. "It cannot solve the problem in a locality where feeling of racial supremacy are so engrained that voluntary action is impossible."

"We do not propose to regulate the businesses covered merely because they are engaged in some phase of interstate commerce," Marshall said.

"Discrimination by the establishments covered in the bill should be prohibited because it is that discrimination itself which adversely affects interstate commerce."

★ ★ ★

Marshall said discrimination is morally wrong and has very serious economic consequences.

★ ★ ★

Where negroes are discriminated against in places of public accommodation, Marshall said, it is not sporadic or incidental, but "is systematized and complete. It is not directed against certain Negroes as individuals; all Negroes are totally excluded from every restaurant, from every hotel, from every lunch counter in the entire area."

Girl, 15, Injured as Bike Ridden Into Path of Car

The driver of the car, Junior Ray Lafountain, 40, of 10 Euclid, told sheriff's deputies that he was traveling north on Perry at about 40 miles an hour when the girl entered the intersection. The accident occurred at 3:40 p.m.

In 1918 President Woodrow Wilson set aside an Alaskan valley and adjacent areas as the Katmai National Monument. Its highest peak, formerly called Knife Peak, was renamed Mt. Griggs in 1959 in honor of botanist Robert F. Griggs, who brought it to the nation's attention.

BEER CAN BARRAGE — Beer cans sail through the air and litter the ground as rioters attack firemen who were exposed by a failure in water pressure during disturbances in Garnett, Kan., early yesterday. The rioters were youths, mostly of college age, who were here to attend the annual Grand Prix sports car races at Lake Garnett.

American Moral Decay Less Than That of Britain

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—The Christine Keeler case is getting so filthy that I don't like to soil my typewriter fingers touching it.

"Here's a news story," I was telling myself, "that maybe I should work on. But—Ugh! Do I really want to? Will it help anybody? Won't I get dirty doing it?"

The worst is, it will get worse.

★ ★ ★

Great energy's being spent to drag Americans into it . . . top actors, singers, jazz musicians, and, of course, politicians.

"See So-and-So over there?" I heard somebody say. "He's just been called in by the FBI."

WILSON

Last year, Ralph McGill wrote a column about American decadence. I stowed his column away—to check up a year later as to whether morals had changed any. They—have—for the worse.

This is the Sick, Sick, Sick, Sick Sixties. England so far is ahead of us in its public sickness in high places. England after all is more "sophisticated"—we're still a little slow and stupid over here in "the Colonies." Will we wise up? Let's hope not!

1,500 Mar Kansas Event

Youth Riot Wrecks Race

GARNETT, Kan. (AP) — This little eastern Kansas town picked up the pieces today and wondered what course to take after a wild riot by hundreds of beer drinking youths marred the final day of the fifth annual Grand Prix sport car races, a national event attended by 65,000 persons.

A policeman was dead of a heart attack suffered at the height of the riot early Sunday. More than 100 persons were treated for minor injuries. Officers jailed 28 of an estimated 1,500 youths involved in the riot.

The sports car drivers, who had no part in the riot, were angry. "They messed the whole thing up," one driver said.

"The riot left a bad taste in the mouths of our citizens," said Mayor Gwinn Schell. "Personally, I doubt if this will be held again."

Police Capt. Robert C. Cowdin, 42, Ottawa, Kan., father of three children, collapsed after he had used a tear-gas gun against the rioters.

The youths fought police and firemen, hurled bricks and stones, beer bottles and cans. Twice they tried unsuccessfully to storm the city jail to free youths arrested earlier and in protest of the closing of two beer halls.

Gov. John Anderson ordered officers into the Garnett area. Included were scores of National Guardsmen. Police dogs were brought from Kansas City, Topeka, Leavenworth and Lawrence.

To Arraign Man in Evers' Death

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Byron De La Beckwith, 42-year-old fertilizer salesman, was scheduled to be arraigned today in the sniper slaying of Negro civil rights leader Medgar W. Evers.

Beckwith, who pleaded innocent in a preliminary hearing two weeks ago, will be arraigned in the Hinds County Circuit Court (at 10 a.m. EST). He was indicted for murder last week by a county grand jury.

Beckwith was born in Colusa, Calif., and moved to Greenwood, Miss., when he was 5 years old. He is charged with shooting Evers from ambush on the morning of June 12. Evers was state field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Evers died in a hospital 50 minutes after he was shot in the back about 12:40 a.m. He had just left his car in the driveway and started walking toward the carport of his house. He was returning from a civil rights rally.

About 10 hours after the murder, a World War I Enfield rifle was found in a honeysuckle thicket in a vacant lot across from Evers' home.

Beckwith was arrested June 22 after FBI agents said a fingerprint found on a rifle believed used to kill Evers matched one of his. A telescopic sight of Japanese make, attached to the rifle, was also traced to Beckwith.

3,000 GIs Moved on E. Reich Road

BERLIN (UPI) — The U. S. Army, in a new expression of its access rights, today began the movement of 3,000 soldiers in 600 trucks and jeeps over the 110-mile highway through East Germany.

The Army started a week-long movement by sending 114 men in 28 vehicles along the highway to Berlin.

Pope Paul Pays Visit to Ailing Vicar of Rome

It was the Pope's third trip out of the Vatican since his election last month. He has visited another ailing cardinal, Enrique Play Deniel, and said a mass for Milanese pilgrims at a Roman church.

Guard Units Leave Race Protest Site

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP) — National Guard troops began breaking camp today for a noontime withdrawal from this racially troubled community, and Negro leaders prepared to resume demonstrations shortly thereafter.

★ ★ ★

The executive committee of the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee announced Sunday night it would lead new public protests "upon the removal of the National Guard."

★ ★ ★

Gov. J. Millard Tawes ordered guardsmen into the town of about 12,200 on June 14 after demonstrations erupted into violence on four previous nights. Four stores were set afire, three white men were shot, and two whites and two negroes were injured by thrown rocks and stones during the outbreaks.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

The City Council last Monday approved a city charter amendment banning racial discrimination in places of public accommodation. Negro leaders called this ineffective on grounds that it could be petitioned to a public vote which would probably defeat it.

Polish Church Rebuts State

WARSAW (UPI) — The Polish government and the Roman Catholic Church today appeared headed for a new clash over freedom of religion in this Communist-run nation.

Political observers interpreted remarks made yesterday by Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Polish primate, as a direct reply to the Communist party's recent criticism of Catholic bishops in Poland.

Cardinal Wyszynski returned to Warsaw yesterday from the Vatican where he participated in the election and coronation of Pope Paul VI. In a sermon to 2,000 persons in St. John's Basilica, he asserted that religion is a vital part of peaceful coexistence.

★ ★ ★

"If peace is to prevail, freedom, justice and recognition of religious conscience must be guaranteed," the Catholic leader said. "This is the basis of peaceful and harmonious coexistence."

Wyszynski's statements came just three days after Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka told the party's central committee that Polish bishops were betraying the ideals of the late Pope John XXIII by opposing communism.

AF Academy Dedicates

Dedication of the academy's new golf course, named in his honor, was a high point of the six-day visit which former President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower are paying Colorado.

Arrest Suspects in Kidnap-Rape

SANTA FE, N. M. (UPI)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation has arrested three men on suspicion of kidnaping and raping a 10-year-old Pueblo, Colo., girl, it was learned tonight.

The FBI would make no comment on the case.

It was learned that an FBI agent arrested the three men in the Taos area in northern New Mexico today and took them to Santa Fe, where they were jailed.

★ ★ ★

No complaint was filed immediately. It was learned that the FBI planned to file charges and arraign the suspects in Santa Fe tomorrow.

The girl allegedly was kidnaped on July 2 near Costilla, a northern New Mexico town 18 miles sough of San Luis, Colo.

Pesticides Suspected

Bald Eagles Diminish

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Scientists at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center near here are trying to solve a riddle that may threaten the existence of America's national bird, the bald eagle.

There are only about 4,000 bald eagles in the United States, excluding Alaska, and there has been a severe drop recently in the number of young eagles being born.

★ ★ ★

The investigation has centered on pesticides as the possible cause.

Pesticides have been found in varying quantities in the carcasses of eagles, including one which observers watched die on Jamestown Island in Virginia.

NOT CONVINCED

But Dr. John L. Buckley, director of the wildlife research center, said he was not yet convinced pesticides are the cause of the eagles' failure to reproduce. He added however, he also wasn't convinced that pesticides were not the cause.

Researchers at Patuxent are working along two lines. The center has requested that all bald eagles found dead be sent to Patuxent for examination.

Dr. James B. DeWitt, who has charge of this phase of the research, said 37 of the first 38 eagles tested showed residues of pesticides. The other was killed accidentally at an airport in Alaska. Pesticides also were found in four eagle eggs which did not hatch.

The second phase of the program has been carried out at a station in Alaska, where there are more bald eagles than in the rest of the United States. Researchers from Patuxent center trapped eagles on the Chilkat River in southeastern Alaska and sent them to nearby Petersburg.

There the birds were fed diets laced with carefully controlled amounts of pesticides.

This research indicated that the lethal dose is about 160 parts per million of pesticide.

Last winter, 16 eagles were divided into three groups and fed diets containing 10 parts per million of pesticide for varying lengths of time. The birds were killed at the end of the test period, and they are being studied at Patuxent.

Dr. Stickel said the researchers hope to find from this study how pesticide builds up in the body and how fast the level drops off when the birds are no longer getting the pesticide.

Although this research project at Patuxent is limited to eagles, scientists there are aware of the importance the results might have for other animal life and for man in this age of widespread use of pesticides.

BIRDS DYING OUT — The bald eagle, America's national bird, is in danger of becoming extinct. Scientists at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Maryland are conducting tests to find out why. The investigation so far has sought to determine whether pesticides are the cause of the decline.

1st Execution in Years

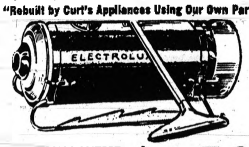

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A convicted murderer was shot by a firing squad yesterday in the first criminal execution in El Salvador in 20 years. Members of the firing squad were national policemen who drew lots for the assignment.

Industrial research and development totaled $10,900,000,000 in 1961 and was about 4 per cent greater in 1962.

Strike Threatens

JFK Maps Rail Move

Signs Point to Request for Solon Action

Speculation by Wirtz Indicates Compulsory Arbitration, Seizure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz meet today to map their next move in the strike-threatening railroad deadlock following union rejection of a settlement plan.

In advance of the White House session, all signs pointed toward an administration request to Congress for legislation to bar the nationwide rail walkout scheduled for Thursday.

The President had told both sides in the work rules dispute that if they couldn't work out an agreement he would ask for new laws to protect the public interest. He has run out of delaying procedures under existing law.

Although there was no firm word on what might be proposed, Wirtz noted only a few days ago that speculation had centered around compulsory arbitration and government seizure and operation of the railroads or some combination of the two.

Rail unions turned down Sunday a government settlement formula which had been accepted by the railroads.

The five operating unions vowed a bitter fight to defeat any legislation proposed in the controversy.

A railroad negotiator repeated that the new rules — eliminating thousands of jobs the railroads contend are unnecessary—will go into effect at 12:01 a.m. Thursday unless Congress passes legislation for one-shot compulsory arbitration to settle the dispute. The unions threaten to follow with an immediate strike.

The unions—which have contended the present job lineup is efficient and is necessary for the safe operation of the trains—rejected as "thinly disguised compulsory arbitration" the settlement formula proposed last week by Wirtz.

That made it virtually a sure bet that Congress would be asked to act.

NO COMMENT

Wirtz wouldn't say anything yesterday about the next step, and Kennedy also declined comment. The labor secretary telephoned the President at Hyannis

SEARCH FOR VICTIMS—Working through smoke and burning rubble, firemen and other rescue workers search for victims at a boys' day camp near Willow Grove, Pa. A Navy jet skidded across a field and crashed into the camp yesterday after a malfunction. The pilot escaped, but seven picnickers were killed.

Plane Crashes Into Camp; 7 Picnickers Killed, 17 Hurt

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP)— A pilotless Navy jet crashed on a baseball field Sunday, then careened in flames into a day camp bathhouse, killing seven persons at a family picnic.

★ ★ ★

Four children were among the dead. The pilot of the jet bailed out safely a half mile away.

One man was killed as the plane, its wings ripped off when it ploughed through trees, hit the field during a sudden rainstorm. Bodies of the other victims were dug out of the leveled bathhouse.

At least 17 of the 125 or more persons at the picnic were injured. Twelve were admitted to Abington Memorial Hospital, one in serious condition.

Killed were Jennie Klein, 36; her daughter, Sandra, 10, and her son, Harvey Klein, 4; Jeanne Arnold, 40; her daughter, Judy Arnold, 1; Emanuel Milton Fine, 47, and Caroline Hershfield, 10. All lived in Philadelphia.

WAS TO LAND

Capt. John W. Butler, Boiling Springs, Pa., 30, a Marine Reserve pilot, was headed for a landing at Willow Grove Naval Air Station, 18 miles north of Philadelphia, when something went wrong with the FJ Fury fighter.

Navy spokesman said they didn't know what caused the malfunction, adding that it apparently occurred in the electrical system.

Capt. Albert Waldman, commander of the base, said, "There will be a big investigation. We will determine what happened."

The end of the airfield's landing strip is only 500 feet from the Green Hill Day Camp which the picnickers had rented for their annual reunion. They were members of either the "Roseman Cousins Club" or the "Weiner Family Circle," with parts of both groups related to each other.

★ ★ ★

Alan Fineman, 35, a professional photographer from Philadelphia said "it is a miracle we survived." His wife and three children were in the swimming pool near the bathhouse.

He said when the plane hit, "Bedlam broke loose. Everything moved so fast. There was a roar like some unbelievably huge firecracker, then a ball of orange flame."

"Everyone was running madly and screaming," Fineman recalled. "Most ran away from the direction of the crash but a few panicked and headed toward it."

ROAD CONSTRUCTION PROGRESSES — Headway is being made on Pontiac's $3.3-million perimeter road as can be seen from this shot looking north toward Huron and Cass. Scheduled for completion in three phases, the loop highway will eventually provide a one-way, five-lane route circulating traffic around the central business district. The final phase is to be finished late next year.

Fast Service Set for Mails

Pontiac residents will receive the post office's new sameday four-hour downtown mail service on an official full-time basis starting July 24.

As it is presently planned, first-class letters mailed by 11 a.m. on weekdays in downtown mail boxes, marked ABCD for accelerated business collection and delivery will be delivered in the same downtown area by 3 p.m. that same day.

Acting postmaster Jack Featherstone indicated that the system may be expanded beyond the downtown area.

"A further study will be made in the next three days which might lead to an expansion of the service," he said.

★ ★ ★

The program has already been in operation on a trial basis for about three months, Featherstone said.

Mail picked up from ABCD boxes at 11 a.m. is immediately taken to the post office where it is quickly processed and given to the carriers in time for their noon business deliveries.

In many cases, Featherstone explained, such mail will be delivered by 1 or 2 p.m.

Details on the operation of the service—such as boundaries of the ABCD area and the exact location of the ABCD boxes—will not be set until after the survey has been completed, he said.

Over July 4th Period

32 Killed in Michigan Traffic

From Our News Wires

Thirty - two persons, including 10 in two separate mishaps, were killed in traffic accidents over the long July 4th weekend to mark one of the bloodiest holidays in Michigan history.

Six other persons drowned over the weekend and five persons lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents to raise the weekend death toll to 43.

A two-car crash near Port Austin Saturday took the lives of five young Michigan men, and five persons were killed in a car-truck collision in Lansing the night before.

Other traffic deaths not previously reported include:

Mrs. Bertha Schmidt, 53, of Bay City was killed Sunday in a two-car collision in Fraser Township near Bay City.

Earl Frost, 66, of Crystal was killed Sunday when he was struck by a car in Montcalm County. Police said Frost had left his car to talk to another driver when he was struck by a third vehicle.

Harold Robinson, 66, of Royal Oak, was killed Sunday when his car run off a road and struck a tree is Iosco County.

Nancy Greer, 3, of Dearborn Heights was killed Sunday when she was hit by a car while playing on a street in Dearborn Heights.

County's Highway Toll Is Much Higher Than '62

As the July 4 holiday passed, the county highway death toll moved up. It was only 47 at this time a year ago.

Short of a miracle this year's toll is certain to exceed the 100-death total for 1962.

Questioned about the upward trend in Oakland traffic fatalities, safety officers in the Pontiac police, sheriff's office, and state police post agreed:

● Speed and driver inattention are still a leading causes of accidents.

● More police officers are needed, they say.

★ ★ ★

State police and sheriff's deputies point out they have no traffic enforcement divisions. They rely on regular patrols to handle traffic, with exception of one man to compile statistics and handle paperwork.

18 ASSIGNED

Pontiac police have 18 men assigned to traffic duty, of which three are parking meter men. The others are busy handling heavy city traffic problems.

★ ★ ★

"There just aren't enough fellows in blue uniform," said State Police Sgt. Michael Sibal, sounding like all other local law officers.

As head of the State Police Traffic and Safety Bureau for the Detroit area, Sibal is familiar with local and county-wide traffic problems for southeastern Michigan.

He urged added on-the-road police patrols to cope with the rising tide of accidents, injuries and deaths.

But there is no single cause, rather multiple reasons why Oakland County has experienced a sharp increase in traffic deaths, he said.

"The general consensus is that

Forecaster Says Slightly Cooler With Blue Skies

Below - normal temperatures moved into the area yesterday with plans to stay for the week.

Fifty-two was the low recorded by the Press thermometer preceding 8 a.m. At 1 p.m. the mercury stood at 75.

Peking Blasts Continue

Red Unity Talks On

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet and Red Chinese negotiators resumed unity talks today and Peking kept up its public attack on Kremlin policies.

Delegates conferred in the privacy of a walled-in villa in the hills above Moscow. Both the Soviet press and Chinese mouthpieces continued to ignore the conference.

Chen said the United States and Yugoslavia "wholeheartedly hoped that China and the Soviet Union would split.

"But the Chinese and Soviet people want unity and oppose a split," he said, "and so do the people of Socialist Communist countries and progressive mankind throughout the world.

"We must adhere to Marxist-Leninist revolutionary principle, adhere to unity and oppose a split. We will never do anything to grieve those near and dear to us all and gladden the enemy."

Nikita Snubs Conference

Khrushchev met with the former secretary-general of North Atlantic Treaty Organization hundreds of miles from Moscow, apparently to demonstrate his aloofness from the showdown talks between the Soviet and Chinese Communist parties, now going on here.

The studied snub was emphasized by the nature of the conference. Tass, the Soviet news agency, said it was a continuation of the conversations the two men had in 1961. That was when Khrushchev withdrew his deadline for signing a peace treaty with Germany and turning West Berlin into an internationally controlled free city.

Would-Be Astronette Rides Bike

By JERRIE COBB
With Jane Rieker

The date was my fifth day of undergoing the same series of tests given to select the seven Mercury Astronauts, at the Lovelace Foundation in Albuquerque, N.M.

In the four previous days, I had inhaled, exhaled, tilted, dunked, listened, talked, looked, walked, run, and had been filled and emptied before a changing audience of physicians, researchers, and technicians.

I was established as being female, unmarried, blonde, blue-eyed, almost 29, 5 feet 7 inches tall, 124 pounds on the scales, and in extremely good health.

STILL FELT GOOD

For the last day of the 75 tests, I needed every muscle in my body.

"You're going to work hard today, Miss Cobb. You can have a light breakfast — juice and toast, say—and a candy bar."

All three courses greedily consumed, I was led to a brightly-lighted room in the physiology department.

"Hey," I thought to myself, "you're going to take a bicycle ride to space!"

White-coated staff members were busy. There was a battery of sensitive machinery to record body reactions.

A big green bag was being attached to the frame over the front end of the bicycle. This, I guessed, would hold the air I breathed. Many space tests involved intricate measurement of oxygen intake and carbon dioxide respiration.

COMPETING WITH MEN

Dr. Ulrich Luft, head of the Lovelace physiology department, said, "Miss Cobb, this test is to see how your body reacts to hard physical work. When we tell you to start, keep time with the metronome."

I knew that the Mercury astronaut candidates had taken this test, as well as the examinations that had preceded it. I knew that my achievement would be measured against the

Ban on Dollar Trade With Cuba Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Kennedy administration has ordered a ban on currency transactions with Cuba similar to those in effect for Red China and North Korea, it was learned today.

The action, expected to be announced later today, involves "blockings" of several million dollars in Communist Cuban assets in American banks.

Officials said the administration was putting into effect for Cuba the foreign assets control regulations, administered by the Treasury Department. Under these rules, assets here of Red China and North Korea are blocked, and unlicensed dealings involving property in which those countries have an interest are prohibited.

The regulations also prevent use of American financial facilities by countries to which they are applied.

They also prohibit unlicensed importations of goods. However, the United States already bans imports from Cuba. This edict has been in effect since February 1962 under other regulations.

★ ★ ★

The new action is one which the State Department referred to cryptically last Friday when a spokesman announced, "We intend to take steps both individually and multilaterally which will . . . further isolate Cuba economically and politically."

A reporter, after learning that currency controls were involved, was told that disclosure of the plans before the technical machinery was put in motion could result in Cuba quickly transferring U. S. assets to foreign banks, thereby avoiding the blocking.

Officials said, however, that as of this morning the machinery was already in progress.

Estimates of the amount of Communist Cuba assets in this country have ranged up to $30 million.

★ ★ ★

The action is not expected to have a major effect on the Cuban economy, but is one more in a series of U.S. restrictions which, taken together, have caused considerable economic difficulty for Premier Fidel Castro's government.

Traffic Deaths Mount

speed is still the main cause," he said. "But it is coupled with driver inattention, or just plain lack of knowledge.

★ ★ ★

Sibal said many still don't realize what speed they are driving and what it can do.

"How many know," he asked, "that while driving at 40 m.p.h. a car is traveling at about 60 feet a second?

"And what if within that second, they suddenly swerve or momentarily look elsewhere?

What of the future? A 1956 bloodbath on Michigan highways led to a number of measures to cut down fatalities, he recalled.

★ ★ ★

Among them were a sizeable increase in the strength of the state police, especially for patrol purposes; establishment of a traffic safety center at East Lansing, and compulsory statewide driver's education.

DROPS FOR 3 YEARS

The result was three years of decreasing deaths. They were followed by three more with death on the upswing again.

★ ★ ★

An upcoming safety conference summoned by Gov. George Romney may provide new ideas, Sibal said hopefully.

★ ★ ★

● Report traffic violators. When you do, give police a good description of the car and its license number.

● When the reckless motorist is apprehended, help police by being willing to prosecute. Many serious offenders escape now because other citizens don't want to get "involved."

● Be especially watchful while driving between the hours of noon and 6 p.m., the time most accidents occur. Next most dangerous period is 6 p.m. to midnight.

JFK Mapping Rail Action

Port, Mass., to tell him of union rejection.

"Sure I'm disappointed," Wirtz said. "I'm bitterly disappointed." He declined to tell newsmen how Kennedy reacted to the union stand.

The Democratic leaders of the House and Senate declined comment. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana and Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma said they had nothing to say about the railroad controversy at this point.

The Wirtz plan called for 20 days of negotiations to draft a temporary agreement on major issues, including implementation of a plan under which 40,000 firemen's jobs would be eliminated through attrition.

That was recommended by a presidential emergency board and backed by the Supreme Court.

If those talks failed, Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds was to draft settlement terms.

★ ★ ★

Then union-management boards were to study the controversy over a two-year period and make binding settlement recommendations. If they couldn't agree, neutral board members were to be named to make settlement recommendations that would bind both sides.

★ ★ ★

The proposal was accepted "without reservations" by the railroads, Wirtz said. It was turned down by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

Mayor Indicted for Extortion in Pennsylvania

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mayor of Reading, Pa., was indicted today along with a convicted gambling figure on charges of extorting at least $10,500 from companies seeking to sell parking meters to Reading.

★ ★ ★

The Justice Department said the five-count indictment was returned by a federal grand jury in Philadelphia against Mayor John C. Kubacki and Abraham Minker, who is serving a 4-year prison term for evading gambling excise taxes.

★ ★ ★

Kubacki is the second Reading official to be indicted by the grand jury this year. Police Chief Charles S. Wade was indicted for perjury last May.

★ ★ ★

Kubacki, 51, and Minker about 65, are accused of receiving $3,000 from the Koontz Equipment Corp. of Pittsburgh, a distributor of parking meters, in April 1960 and $7,500 and an $880 clock from the Karpark Corp., Starksville, Miss., in December 1961.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police arrested more than 100 white and Negro integrationists, including 13 clergymen, at a privately owned amusement park in suburban Woodlawn Sunday. White onlookers jeered and cursed the demonstrators. Police estimated the number of white patrons at 6,000.

The arrests brought to nearly 400 the number taken into custody since July 4. Preliminary hearings for more than 100 of the 283 arrested at the segregated park July 4 in similar demonstrations were scheduled this afternoon. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, chief executive officer of the United Presbyterian Church, is among those scheduled for a hearing.

Baltimore County Police Chief Robert Lally ordered K9 dogs into action Sunday as the first demonstrators arrived and the tenor of the white crowd became apparent. Lally termed the onlookers a "vicious crowd" and said the slightest provocation could have touched off a major riot.

As the demonstrators walked down a ramp into the 68-acre park nestled in groves of trees, they were met by James F. Price, co-owner of the Gwynn Oak Amusement Park, who told them they were not welcome. At the end of the ramp, police waited to arrest and charge with trespass those who failed to heed Price's warning.

Under Maryland law, a business proprietor may refuse admission to whom he chooses.

COME IN GROUPS

The integrationists came in groups of 10 to 15, spaced 20 minutes apart. As the arrest orders were given for each group, all knelt on the pavement singing "We Shall Overcome," a rally song of the civil rights movement.

Many were young adults facing arrest for the first time. Several young white women fought back tears as they faced the white mob only 20 feet away.

Four white and two Negro demonstrators managed to enter the park by wading Gwynn Falls, a stream that meanders around the rear of the property.

A white woman, among the six demonstrators who waded the stream was struck above the right eye by a rock thrown by someone in the crowd. It required 10 stitches to close the wound. Police used two K9 dogs to get the six through the mob to a patrol wagon.

★ ★ ★

Among those arrested Sunday were three Rabbis, including Rabbi Israel Goldman, co-chairman of the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, a state agency.

A number of Catholic priests joined picket lines in front of the park, but none was arrested.

Police Nab Five Youths in Gun Hoax

A half hour later, police received the first of several reports of a bleeding body being transported in a car trunk.

Restaurant patrons told police that four youths proceeded Murphy into the restaurant, then feigned concern for their safety as he arrived with a gun.

Murphy entered the building and fired 5 shots with a 22-caliber blank cartridge pistol. One of the youths pretended to be hit and fell to the floor.

Murphy fled and the other three, carrying the "body" also left the restaurant.

The "body" in the trunk was first reported at 11:30 p.m. when a motorist spotted a bloody arm hanging out of a late model Chevrolet at Sashabaw and Dixie, Waterford Township.

Several minutes later someone else saw the car heading south and called the sheriff's department which joined state police and Waterford Township police in the search.

The same "body" was spotted in Berkley about 12:30 a.m.

State police obtained the car's license number and arrested two Waterford Township juveniles when they arrived home at 4 a.m. today.

The boys admitted the hoax and said they had conceived the idea at a restaurant. Catsup was spread on the arm of the youth in the trunk.

U. N. Troops to Quit Congo at Year's End

GENEVA (UPI)—United Nations Secretary General Thant has ordered the complete withdrawal of U.N. troops from the Congo by the end of this year it was reported officially today.

Staff aides said Thant, who is visiting in Geneva, directed that arrangements be made for the pull-out by Dec. 31.

U. S. Road Toll Climbs to 557

Deaths Set Record for Summer Holiday

By United Press International

Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, called the toll a "tragic standard against which to measure any holiday."

The final United Press International tabulation of holiday fatalities from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight last night showed this breakdown:

Traffic 557
Drownings 192
Boating 4
Planes 17
Fireworks 1
Miscellaneous 101
Total 872

California led the death count with 48 traffic fatalities. There were 43 in both New York State and Pennsylvania, 32 in Michigan, 29 in Ohio, 25 in Texas, 23 in both Indiana and Missouri, 22 in Illinois and 21 in Virginia.

Only five states could boast no traffic deaths over the 102-hour weekend. They were Alaska, Delaware, New Hampshire, North Dakota and Rhode Island.

The toll broke the record for traffic deaths over a summertime holiday set just last May, when 525 persons died over the Memorial day weekend. The previous July 4 holiday record of 509, set in 1961, was also surpassed.

★ ★ ★

The safety council had made a prebholiday estaimate of 550 to 650 traffic deaths over the holiday.

During the weekend's early hours the death count was so low safety officials hoped they could scrap their estimate.

Two Passengers Rob Taxi Driver, Escape on Foot

Richard Martin, 28, of 3331 Grant, told police that one of the men placed a knife at his throat after he had driven them to Howard McNeill Street shortly after 11 p.m.

He was then ordered by the pair to drive them to Gillespie and Lake where they fled toward an old housing project, Martin said.

When the two jumped from the car, Martin fired several shots at them from a small caliber pistol he had hidden in the taxi, according to Pontiac Police.

Martin said he had picked up the two men at different locations on South Saginaw.

Hearing to Be Continued on Rezoning of 3 Lots

BIRMINGHAM — A hearing will be continued tonight on the rezoning of three lots designated by the planning board as a potential "buffer" strip between businesses and homes.

★ ★ ★

The City Commission's decision on the best use of the lots may hinge on a policy statement received from the Federal Housing Administration since the original hearing on the matter.

The FHA reported it "will not guarantee a mortgage on residential property that abuts or fronts onto a commercial parking facility, regardless of how it is screened or maintained or developed."

★ ★ ★

Being considered are three triangular lots on an alley behind the west side of Woodward four blocks north of 14-Mile Road.

★ ★ ★

Now zoned one- and two-family residential, the lots would serve Woodward businesses if rezoned for parking.

The city planning board recommended that the lots be rezoned upon the request of the property owner.

City ordinances require that parking lots have six-foot walls on the sides abutting residential property and a brick faced wall on the front.

The latter must be constructed at least as far back as the building line of the adjacent property, in this case 25 feet.

In a report to the commission, City Manager L. R. Gare noted that the FHA would not approve the property for a mortgage if it were developed residentially because it is on an alley adjacent to commercial property.

The question about FHA financing was brought up June 24 by neighboring landowners opposed to the zone change.

Leslie D. Stauffer

Service for Leslie D. Stauffer, 75, of 230 Westwood will be 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church. Interment will be in McPherson, Ohio.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Stauffer died Saturday after a short illness. Before his retirement in 1961, he was project engineer with the Austin Co. Industrial Builders, Detroit, having been with the firm for 30 years.

In recognition of his record both as a college athlete and coach, Mr. Stauffer was chosen as one of the first seven electees to the Ohio Wesleyan Hall of Fame.

He was a member of the Ohio Wesleyan Associates, trustee of Ohio Delta chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and a member of Detroit Economic Club and Orchard Lake Country Club.

He was a former trustee of the First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham.

★ ★ ★

Surviving are his wife Mary N.; two daughters, Mrs. Ralph M. Fox of Bloomfield Hils and Mrs. Alice S. Kitts of Birmingham; a son, Robert N. of Marimont, Ohio; and nine grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the L. D. Stauffer Memorial Fund, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio.

Mrs. Stuart M. Allen

Service for Mrs. Stuart M. (Mina) Allen, 73, of 504 W. Frank, will be 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Manley Bailey Funeral Home. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Allen died Friday. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and the Senior Activities Club and Missionary of her church.

She also belonged to the Birmingham Woman's Club.

3 More VIPs Linked With Sex Scandal

LONDON (AP)—A British newspaper says three more government ministers have been linked to the sex scandals exciting the British public.

The Sunday paper The People said the ministers' names have been turned over to Lord Denning, who is investigating sex and security antics in high circles. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan appointed Denning to investigate security aspects of former War Minister John Profumo's affair with call girl Christine Keeler while she was also the mistress of a Soviet naval attache.

★ ★ ★

The People said Denning has been told compromising photographs exist involving one minister and possibly two.

"One of the pictures was in a set of photographs produced during a recent divorce case," the paper said. "Some people claim that a leading minister is recognizable in the photograph."

★ ★ ★

"This picture is not linked in anyway with the Profumo scandal. But the second picture about which Lord Denning has heard rumors does bear directly on the Profumo affair.

"The third minister is also the subject of a rumor that connects him with the Christine Keeler set. Lord Denning has been told of a meeting between a minister and a girl."

men's, since no other standards for sex had been established. The result of this test alone could be decisive in determining whether to test other women as possible flight trainees.

A swarm of intent technicians came to me . . . whipped a blood pressure cuff around my left arm . . . applied head and torso sensors to pick up heartbeat, pulse, and respiration . . . attached nose clamps . . . inserted the oxygen breathing device in my mouth, and fitted the connecting tube to the bag.

★ ★ ★

Behind me some attachment was shifted so that as I pumped, to the steady tock-tock-tock of the metronome, I was pulling an increasing load. It was like keeping the pace cycling up an ever-steeper hill.

Later I learned that my heart worked up to 180 beats per minute, twice the normal rate and considered to be the physical exhaustion point. Perspiration began to drip into my eyes.

If I could last through this, without my legs giving out or a blackout occurring; if my breathing, heartbeat and blood-pressure would return to normal in a measured period, then a most vital part of the testing would be accomplished.

TALKED AND PRAYED

I could feel my lungs trying to gulp the one deep breath there was no time to take. I talked to myself and prayed, "Help me not to falter, Lord, give me strength to make it all the way."

The metronome was a relentless master.

"Well, then, Jerrie, make use of it before it overpowers you. It's only counting rhythm, not minutes. Listen—one, two, three, four, five . . . fifteen times is easy, and it's halfway to thirty. If I make thirty, I know good and well I can make forty-five. Then—six, seven, eight, nine—why not go for sixty?

★ ★ ★

My thumping heart and the metronome rhythm and my mental count all merged into a noisy force driving my legs.

"You okay?" a voice asked. "Um!" I nodded.

I suddenly felt a surge of new strength. Exultantly, I knew then and surely that I wasn't going to collapse, that I would go the distance. "Second wind" had been granted me. Pedal, pedal, pedal—tock, tock, tock.

METRONOME CEASED

"All right, Jerrie, you can stop." The metronome ceased its clacking.

"Just sit there and relax." Sit there? I'd hate to have been told to move.

You don't just hop off the bicycle (when you're finally able) and get the word. The charts must be read, the oxygen consumption determined, and the statistics from body check-points correlated.

There was nothing more I could do. I had literally given my all.

On a bench in the dressing alcove, as I drowsed in my sweat-warmed clothes, my mind projected bits and pieces as I wondered where and how "now" had all begun.

I used to spend hours in the treetops watching birds fly. Was I looking to the future or did I just like trees? . . .

The first time I set an altitude record, I made 30,361 feet. That's just short of six miles. I remember it didn't seem far enough. . . .

Flint Workers Get Top Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Department of Labor report shows Flint's factory production workers earned the highest weekly pay in the nation in 1962 while Detroit ranked third.

* * *

The average Flint pay was $135.38 at an hourly rate of $3.18, while the Detroit pay was $130.24 at $3.08 hourly.

* * *

The report said the earnings reflected long work weeks in the auto industry.

N. J. Terrorist Is Held in Jail

Admits Killings, Rape in 10-Hour Blood Bath

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — Richard (Teddy) Coleman, perpetrator of a 10-hour reign of terror in Linden, sat in jail today as authorities prepared a series of charges against him.

* * *

Police say Coleman, 36, a truck driver, has admitted shooting to death his wife and sister-in-law, wounding three other persons and abducting and raping Mary Kaminski, 18.

* * *

Coleman was arraigned Sunday, before Magistrate Joseph C. Monico on a charge of killing his wife, Millie, 37. Monico ordered Coleman held for preliminary hearing July 22.

Assistant Prosecutor John J. Dugan of Union County said Coleman also would be charged with the slaying of his sister-in-law, Ruby Coleman, 43, the rape and pistol whipping of Miss Kaminski, and the three other shootings.

ANGRY AT WIFE

The ten hours of crime began Friday afternoon when Coleman became enraged at his wife who planned to leave him.

Police said he shot his wife in their home at 1119 McCandless St. Then he went to 1115 McCandless St., where he killed his sister-in-law and critically wounded his brother, Harry, 52.

Coleman, armed with a 38-caliber automatic and 25-caliber revolver, continued up McCandless Street to the home of Anna Kube, where he shot Mrs. Kube's daughter-in-law, Marianne Kube. Minutes later he wounded Leroy Edwards, 48, on the street.

* * *

Coleman drove away, police said, but parked his car and followed Irene Kaminski, 13, to her home. He held eight members of the family and a visitor hostage for about four hours before forcing Mary to leave with him in the Kaminski car.

Driver Sees His Way Clear to Second Car

Driving along a street Saturday night, Edelman noticed that the car ahead of him looked vaguely familiar—like the one that was stolen from him on June 9.

So he pulled the car over and found, sure enough, it was his.

He held the driver, Peter Orser, 16, Millwood, until police arrived.

Funeral Service Held for Ex-TWA Chief Pilot

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Funeral service was held yesterday for George Kenneth Rice, former chief pilot for Trans World Airlines who learned to fly during World War I.

Rice, 65, who had logged more than 10 million miles during his career, died of cancer Saturday.

MRS. ROBERT DAVID PARKE

Wedding Bells Peal for Two Area Brides

Rev. Ralph C. Claus officiated as Linda Lee Stickney exchanged vows with Pfc. Larry Hal Brown Sunday in St. Trinity Lutheran Church.

Hosts at a buffet dinner and reception in the VFW Hall, Keego Harbor, were the bride's parents, the Leon G. Stickneys of North Francis Street. Her husband is the son of the Hal Browns of Morenci.

* * *

The bride's gown of cameo ivory silk organza over taffeta was styled with natural bodice and controlled skirt ending in a chapel sweep. A petal cap held her nylon illusion veil. Combined in a bridal crescent were white carnations, yellow roses and Stephanotis.

Attendants wearing maize silk organza over taffeta were the bride's sisters, Cathy, maid of honor, and Jayne, junior maid; also attending were bridesmaids Judy Noren and Kay Hamilton. They carried yellow pompons.

* * *

The new Mrs. Brown is an alumna of Eastern Michigan University where she was affiliated with Mu Phi Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, Stoic Society and Adahi. Her husband attended Toledo University.

Before leaving for Spring Lake, N. C., near Fort Bragg, where he is stationed, the newlyweds will honeymoon in northern Michigan.

Bound for a honeymoon in New England and their future home in Rochester, N.Y., are the Robert David Parkes (Margery M. MacArthur of Rochester). They spoke vows Saturday in Calvary Methodist Church, Holly.

* * *

Parents of the bride are the Carl MacArthurs of Holly. Her husband is the son of the Claude Parkes, Sashabaw Road.

* * *

* * *

On the esquire side were best man James Weber, Clarkston, and ushers Bruce Jarvis, James MacArthur, Holly, and Douglas DeGrow. Douglas and Steven Jarvis were ringbearers.

Polly's Pointers

Keep Junior Happy

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Make supermarket shopping with your toddler easier on both of you by taking two feet of stout string and attaching one end to a snap-on clothespin and the other to your child's favorite toy. Snap the clothespin to one side of the push cart so that while he rides in the basket he will have something to occupy himself while you shop. There is no danger of the toy being dropped on the floor or being lost. Merely unsnap when ready to leave. MRS. E. L. R.

* * *

DEAR POLLY — If you have a couch that opens to make a bed, sheets usually are wrinkled from the bed being folded up. If two contour sheets are used, the top sheet will be tucked under to really stay in place and be less wrinkled when the couch again is used as a bed. V. W.

* * *

DEAR POLLY — It will pay great dividends if you take the time to show your little girl how to sew on buttons. I started my four-year-old by having her sew a large button on to a couple thicknesses of brown paper. The bottom of a paper bag works fine. Hitting the holes is no problem and the firmness of the paper enables inexperienced little fingers to become acquainted with the successful management of a needle and thread. Pretty shapes, bright thread and encouragement add to the enjoyment. MRS. G. C.

* * *

DEAR POLLY — I was so glad to learn through the column that elastic should be shrunk. I had always wondered why the cotton grosgrain ribbon on sweaters pulled and ruined the sweater's appearance after it was washed. Our sewing teacher taught us that rickrack shrinks, too. I slip mine from the cardboard into a pan of hot water and then lay it on a turkish towel to dry, so very little pressing is necessary.

Nylon hose used for stuffing work best if they are cut into small pieces. I used an old toothbrush, with the bristles removed, to push pieces into small places when stuffing toys, etc. It is smooth and does not catch on the material ELSIE

* * *

DEAR POLLY — I wonder if the readers who sew remember to shrink straight seam tape before using it. When the tape dries you will be convinced that it shrinks by the shape of the card. MRS. J. D. A.

Good Framing for Pictures

Burlap, cane or felt makes an excellent matting for framing pictures. Use your automatic washer to dye these materials, coloring to suit the picture or room decor. If your washer is equipped to do the job automatically, as some are, so much the better.

Rainy Day Pastime

Early Trade Is Moderate

Rails, Motors, Steels Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Rails, motors, and steels were lower as an irregular stock market showed an edge to the downside in moderate trading early today.

Chrysler, down about a point, paced the decline of the major motor stocks. Most other losses in this group were fractional. Steels were unchanged to mildly lower.

UP FRACTIONALLY

Homestake gained nearly a point. Up fractionally were such stocks as Westinghouse Electric, Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Gulf Oil, Johns-Manville, and Republic Aviation — the latter still in fairly brisk demand following award of a large contract last week.

Polaroid and Merck were down about a point each.

On Friday the Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .3 to 273.1.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed. Most changes were small.

Corporate bonds were irregular in dull trading.

Contract Talks Continue at Bell

Believe Crucial Point Near in Negotiations

DETROIT (AP) — A possibly crucial point was at hand today in the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. labor contract talks in which the Communications Workers of America seek a national pattern for 750,000 workers.

★ ★ ★

Michigan Bell was reported preparing a new offer for its own 15,000 CWA workers as the union's national executive board went into a huddle here.

CWA President Joseph A. Beirne said in calling the meeting that it would be "decisive." He did not elaborate.

The CWA, which speaks for Bell system workers around the country, has said it is making Michigan Bell its target this year for a national pattern.

Michigan Bell's last offer, rejected by the union, provided for a wage increase of $1.50 to $3 a week and expanded fringe benefits. The company said this would cost it $4 million a year.

Negotiations with 14 major Bell system affiliates in four other cities are on a standby basis, awaiting the outcome of the Detroit talks, he said.

★ ★ ★

Proposals have been made by both sides during the two weeks of negotiations, but no agreement has been reached.

Heavy Selling Hits Corn Futures

CHICAGO, July 8 (AP) — Heavy selling hit the corn and soybean futures today in early transactions on the board of trade and prices of all contracts retreated broadly. Other grains were mostly easier.

Soybeans lost almost nine cents a bushel at the extreme during the first several minutes and corn backed down as much as three cents. Brokers ascribed the pressure to reports of rainfall over the weekend. It measured up to two inches in parts of the best soybean producing area in central Illinois.

The moisture also was a bearish factor in the corn pit. Broader setbacks there also were on the new crop months. Hedge selling weakened wheat.

Vietnamese Protests

Writer Commits Suicide

SAIGON, Viet Nam, (UPI) — South Viet Nam's most eminent writer committed suicide today as a political protest on the eve of his trial for alleged complicity in the abortive 1960 coup against President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Nguyen Tuong Pam, 58, who wrote under the pen name of Nhat Linh, left an eloquent testament protesting against Diem's rule. The former Nationalist leader died in a hospital after taking poison.

The suicide of Pam, considered Viet Nam's greatest writer of the 20th Century, came at a time of growing political and religious unrest under Diem's regime.

CABLE APPEAL

Seven correspondents representing U.S. news media cabled an appeal to President Kennedy to protest to the South Vietnamese government after the U.S. embassy in Saigon refused to make a formal protest over the attack.

The text of Pam's short testament said:

"History alone will judge my life. I will allow no man to try me. The arrest and trial of all the Nationalist opponents of the regime is a crime which will force the nation into the hands of the Communists.

"I oppose this crime and like the High Priest Tich Quang Tuc who burned himself, I also kill myself as a warning to those people who are trampling on all freedom."

His testament was signed and written in Vietnamese on a small piece of paper. It was found in his wallet with a suicide note to his family.

Tich Quang Tuc was a Buddhist who set fire to himself in support of claims by the Buddhist majority that Diem's regime imposes discriminatory policies on them. Diem is Roman Catholic.

Informed sources said Pam received a government summons Saturday along with 34 other civilians, many of them former Nationalist politicians, to appear tomorrow before a special military court on charges of threatening the security of the state.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of death and a minimum of five years in jail with hard labor.

'Egyptians Using Gas on Villages'

LONDON (AP)—A British newspaper correspondent charged today that Egyptian forces in Yemen are using poison gas against remote mountain villages still loyal to the royalist cause.

Richard Beeston of the London Daily Telegraph asserted that seven died in the northern Yemeni village of Al Kawma from a gas attack and 25 others—gravely disfigured—faced a lingering death.

The correspondent said, "There is little doubt that there have been at least three or four other poison gas attacks during the past month. In my journey to Al Kawma, Egyptian Ilyushin bombers were constantly over, bombing and strafing the surrounding villages."

Egyptian authorities have denied to Western diplomats that they are using poison gas, reliable sources in Cairo said.

News in Brief

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR

(Q) "I would like to invest a $75,000 cash windfall from an estate. I am 40, single, and want to retire from business in ten years at the most." J. E.

(A) I should first like to congratulate you on receiving so substantial a bequest.

Investing large sums under present conditions is no easy task. In your position I would put at least $25,000 in a savings association or bank to establish a cash reserve for investment under more favorable market conditions.

I would then put $10,000 in a short-term municipal — say Hartford, Conn. 2½'s of 1967 — to give you security and help your tax position. If municipal prices retreat during the next four years, I would switch from short to longer-term tax-exempts.

The balance I would invest in highest grade growth stocks of the caliber of Texas Utilities; Sears, Roebuck; American Telephone; Campbell Soup, and Avon Products.

★ ★ ★

(Q) "I would like to invest in Orange & Rockland Utilities, Long Island Lighting, or Brooklyn Union Gas for long-term future growth. Which one would you advise?" F. W.

(A) This is a hard one to answer.

Each of your suggested issues has something in common: they all serve expanding areas in or near New York City; they have all shown consistent patterns of rising earnings and dividends.

The market itself is a good determinant of future growth. It prices Orange & Rockland to yield 2.1 per cent, Long Island Lighting on a 2.8 per cent basis, and Brooklyn Union Gas on a 3 per cent basis.

I like all of your stocks for future growth. On the basis of its record, Orange & Rockland — as the market indicates — has perhaps a slight edge over the other two.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK — The biggest stock market of them all has taken its full share of lumps in the last year but today finds at least one reason to crow. The National Security Traders Association says leading stocks on the over-the-counter (OTC) market have been recovering recently at a faster rate than the popular averages of stocks listed on the exchanges.

DAWSON

It was the OTC market that saw some of the most spectacular rises in the speculative stock sprees of 1961—and some of the most disastrous (and sometimes scandalous) dips in the first half of 1962. The fastest climbs and dizziest drops often came in fledgling issues, the kind that aren't listed on exchanges but are tried out over the counter.

FIRE OF SEC

It was the OTC that drew much of the fire of the Securities & Exchange Commission when it asked Congress last month for new powers over stock trading, the persons who sell them, the companies involved, and especially the new issues.

And in the last half of 1962, when the stock exchanges were making strong recoveries from the lows reached in June 1962, trading over the counter lagged, and so did prices of its stocks on average.

★ ★ ★

While the OTC market is too large for full records of trading volume, some leading firms estimate sales to be about 20 per cent below last year.

The National Quotation Bureau, which reports on stocks actively traded over the counter, says its industrial stock average rose 14.11 per cent in the first half of 1963. The Dow-Jones industrial index gained 8.4 per cent in the six months, and Standard & Poor's 500 listed stock average rose 9.93 per cent.

BLUE CHIP ISSUES

The bureau says its OTC price averages "like those for listed stocks are based primarily on representative blue chip issues, and are therefore comparable to leading listed stock averages."

Stocks listed on the exchanges are also sold over the counter, but most of the business is in unlisted issues (estimated as high as 50,000). The exchanges are called auction markets because all buy and sell orders are received there and eventually matched by the brokers.

OTC is a negotiated market because sales are made by negotiation between broker-dealers, largely by private telephone often in different parts of the country. Some 4,600 of them belong to the National Association of Securities Dealers, which polices the market under SEC supervision. About 5,500 individuals whose profession is trading in the OTC market belong to its industry group, The National Security Traders Association.

The new rules asked by the SEC would compel all securities firms to belong to NASD or some other self-policing unit, tighten requirements for entering the business, and give SEC stricter controls over the concerns and their employes.

The SEC also wants some 3,600 industrial and utility companies, banks and insurance companies whose unlisted stocks are traded over the counter and those firms with 750 or more stockholders to follow the same financial disclosure, proxy and insider-trading rules that apply to companies listed on exchanges.

BANKS OBJECT

Banks and insurance companies particularly object to this, preferring federal and state agencies already regulating them.

Exchange officials feel that the new rules would lead many now unlisted industrial and utility firms to apply for listing—reducing by that much the size of the big OTC market.

But the multitude of companies too small in assets, with too few stockholders or too low in trading volume, to meet exchange standards; probably will continue to be a mainstay of the OTC market, whatever Congress may do about stricter federal policing.

Wall Street will watch the course of prices and volume over the counter as one sign of the return of the little fellow to stock buying or of his burnt-finger dallying on the sidelines.
